AN AWAKENING CHURCH

The writer had the pleasure of meeting Rev. W. H. Forsyth at Omaha last Saturday and riding with him to Grand Island. Quiz readers will remember him as the pastor of the Methodist church at Ord about 15 years ago. He left this district to take work in Oregon, where he has been holding down good appointments. At present he is located at The Dalles, Oregon. His brother David, who is one of the big guns of the church, has been in charge of the missionary department of the church since the last general conference. He and others of the church leaders are awaking to the fact that the church is not keeping up with the spirit of the times and must do something to make the religion of Jesus Christ more practical. Or rather they are recognizing that the practical side of the Christian religion is the essential side. To this end they are entering into a great drive to raise five millions of dollars in the next five years for the purpose of ministering to the needy in material things.

To get the new movement started all over the country leaders and prominent preachers are being called in for conference and instruction. Rev. W. H. Forsyth is one of these and he is going back to the Pacific coast greatly enthused in the new order of things. He is pronounced in his belief that preaching to people and getting them to come to the altar is not all there is to be done to save sinners, but that the church must get in their daily lives and be no longer aloof from them if the best work is to be done.

It would be impossible here to give an adequate resume of the work and indeed the writer did not get a full conception of its scope, but the preacher told of some of the practical things that have already passed the experimental stage. One of these is along the line of Y. M. C. A. work, appealing to the young by means of wholesome amusements. The plan is to recommend the building of churches with gymnasium equipment in the basements or elsewhere. Other movements are more unique and apeal to the older. In one of the great cities a building has been secured in the slums and a system inaugurated for collecting from the wealthier classes clothing and other discarded valuables. The down-and-outers are then invited in and set to work putting these things in good repair for which they are paid fair wages. The goods are placed in the church store and sold for a fair profit over and above the cost of the repairs. This place sold in this way more than $150,000 worth of goods last year. Waste material is thus saved and put to good use and the dregs of society are turned to good employment and thereby made better citizens. In another city a woman started in a small way to putting up wholesome and sanitary milk for infants. The milk is pasturized and put up in sealed bottles of the right size for an infant's feeding. These were sold or given away as circumstances dictated. This business has grown to great proportions. These are samples of the work lined up in addition to the former benevolences of the church, and will be pushed into all the needy fields of the nation as fast as possible.

Of course W. H. was much interested in the old people of this section and had many inquiries to make about them.

ARMENIAN AND SYRIAN RELIEF

To the Valley county pastors, bible school superintendents, visitors and all others interested in the Armenian and Syrian Relief work:

The plans of the Central Committee, sent out to you some time ago for the raising of these funds, have become almost useless on account of the influenza epidemic; however the pressing needs of the suffering and starving thousands in the home land of the Saviour, the land from which to us came Christianity, with all its blessings, have in no wise been lessened.

Mr. Hoover and many other statesmen and Christian workers, acquainted with the conditions and facts, state, tat i hnspite of all that Christians can do thousands must perish before spring. The great army of Christian workers are doing splendidly in spite of the present handicap, responses are already coming in. Again in the name of the blessed Master who said, "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these, my brethern, ye have done it nuto me," I call upon every pastor, superintendent and appointed visitor, to see that in some way that the matter is brought before your Bible school even as if in some cases a house to house canvass has to be made.

Every Bible school ought to raise sufficient funds to support one person for a year—$60—rejoicing in the fact that they have done their part in raising the $2,000,000, the sum alloted to the Bible schools of America.

Unless you have instructions from your own denominational board for disposition of funds, send all moneys to Cleveland H. Dodge, Treasurer, American Committee for Armenian and Syrian Relief work, 1 Madison Avenue, New York, N. Y.

RED CROSS NOTICE

Mrs. C. S. Jones, president of the local Red Cross, announces that the Red Cross rooms in the G. A. R. hall will be open Friday and Saturday afternoons for those who wish to get refugee garments to make at home.

J. W. Gates was just in and reports Frank Hachel getting along all right.

LOCAL — PERSONAL

Mary Munn was a passenger this morning for McCook.

Mr. and Mrs. Mike Vandas, the parents of Mrs. Stanley Dworak arrived the first of the week from Schuyler.

Yesterday morning Anton Beran went down to Madison to assist his sister, Mrs. Payder and her husband who are down with flu.

On account of the flu the annual meeting of the Farmers Grain and Supply Company has been indefinitely postponed. Date will be announced later. JAS. WISDA, Treas.

The county board held a one-day session this week, but on accouna of the sickness of the county clerk we are unable to get the proceedings this week.

Among the outgoing passengers this morning was Mrs. Chas. Siler who was returning to Hastings after several weeks stay in Ord where she had been caring for Jim. The latter is in the hospital for a few das.

Prosperity has come to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Nay in more ways than one since they went to Canada a year ago last May. The latest is the arrival of a fine son, who came to their home on the 20th of this month. He is named Horace Elmer.

We understand that a large land deal was closed Monday whereby John Uranovsky was the purchaser of the R. C. Greenfield 520 acres north of Ord. Consideration $26,000. The deal was made by F. J. Vopat.

Lieut. A. J. Bandura from Camp Hancock, Ga., is visiting friends in Ord and Elyria. He is in Officers Reserve for five years. He leaves in a few weeks to his civil duties as cashier in a bank in Flensburg, Minn.

New Years morning Mr. and Mrs. Lafe Paist went down to Kearney. Anna Rybin was a passenger for Grand Island. Bert Cornell and son Eugene were Burlington passengers. The latter was going back to his school work in Minnesota.

Will and Frank Hackel are both very sick with the flu. As we go to press a phone message tells us that Will held his own last night, but his condition is so serious that they do not expect him to recover. Frank is improving and should get well.

John Haskell is now located at 1814 North 28th st., Omaha. His family reached the city in due time about three weeks ago, but his goods were about ten days getting there by virtue of the government's way of doing railroad business. They have a fine home and John is doing well.

A little daughter was born last Monday to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cushing but the little life was not spared, the mother and Frank have both been ill with flu. Marion Cushing has come down with the trouble this week. Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Cushing had been in Lincoln caring for the Bert Cushing family. The returned to Ord Tuesday.

H. C. Sorensen is one of the young men who sold out last fall to go to the army. He was in the Quiz office tre other day on Red Cross work and says that he is glad now that the horses did not sell at his sale, for now he is supplied with that force for spring's work, which he would not have been had his horses sold like his pigs and other property. Of course he will not have to go to war and is glad of it, though he was willing to go had the nation needed him.

We neglected last week to mention the return of Sam Guggenmos from a camp in New Jersey where he has been for several months. Percy Norman was in the same company for a while but when the latter was sent across Sam was on the sick list. He made one of a shipfull of soldiers who were two days out on the way to France when peace was declared. He says that was a disappointed bunch of boys, because they had expected to arrive over there in time to assist in settling the trouble.

The flu has hit this office like others. The chief push had a high fever last week, not coming back to his work after the paper was off the press. Saturday night Foreman Taylor took it into his head to be sick too, but did not do a very good job of it, for he developed only a cold and not a case of the flu. He was off duty a day or so. The old boss was called in Monday forenoon to help as best he could for a little while and on him you may lay the blame for all shortcomings of the paper this week.

SUNDAY SERVICES

Services will be held in the Methodist church next Sunday at the usual hours:

Sunday school at 10 a. m.
Public worship 11 a. m.
Epworth League at 6:30 p. m.
Public worship at 7:30 p. m.

The Epworth League extends a cordial invitation to every one to be presentin their meeting.

The day will be the first Sunday in the new year 1919; a fitting time for good resolutions, for turning over a new leaf. Start the year right by worshiping God in the public services of His sanctuary.

The pastor's theme for the morning hour will be: A new life for a new year. And for the evening: The Upward look and the Forward Step.

May he have the cheer id inspiration of your presence and prayer to help with ris part in these services.

Do you hesitate to attem the services of the church and b take up again its work, for fear you will be exposed to the flu. One might about as well hesitate to live fo the same reason. We do know that hose who mingled in crowds have hd the flu, in isolation, in the open country, and not mingling with crowds do have it.

Is there some likelihood of being exposed to the flu in public services of tre church, yes. Just as there is danger of exposure, when shopping or transacting business in the stores and offices. Just as there is danger of exposure when you go for your mail. Just as there is danger of exposure in walking the streets.

To attend the services of the church and take part in its work will not subject one to any greater exposure than may other conditions in which he may frequently be placed, if as much.

In discussing this particular point a certain speaker said: 'The churches are well ventilated with ample air space and besides this people who go to church meet there to pray and to hear prayers to a higher power for the preention of the pestilence that is sweeping the world. This is of great importance. A calm mental poise and reliance upon God to protect from disease together with observance of rules of sanitation, plenty of fresh air, wholesome food, keeping the bodily functions active."

E. E. HOSMAN, Pastor.

Ross Brown returned last week to Paris Island, S. C. He had been home on a furlough.

NOT TOO EARLY TO THINK OF HATCHING

It is not too early to begin plans for hatching, says the Extension Service of the University of Nebraska College of Agriculture. Early hatching means early maturity and early maturity in turn means winter egg production, and it is the winter eggs that brings the top cent. Losses in early hatched chickens are far less than in late hatched chicks. The early hatched cockerels are the ones that reach the broiler age when prices are highest.

IT'S NOT YOUR HEART IT'S YOUR KIDNEYS

The kidneys are the most important organs of the body. They are the filterers, the purifiers, of your blood.

Kidney disease is usually indicated by weariness, sleeplessness, nervousness, despondency, backache, stomach trouble, pain in loins and lower abdomen, gall stones, gravel, rheumatism, sciatica and lumbago.

All these derangements are nature's signals to warn you that the kidneys need help. You should use GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules immediately. The soothing, healing oil stimulates the kidneys, relieves inflammations and destroys the germs which have caused it. Do not wait until tomorrow. Go to your druggist today and insist on GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules. In twenty-four hours you should feel health and vigor returning and will bless the day you first heard of GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil.

After you feel that you have cured yourself, continue to take one or two capsules each day, so as to keep in first-class condition and ward off the danger of other attacks.

Ask for the original imported GOLD MEDAL brand. Three sizes. Money refunded if they do not help you.

GOVERNMENT FARM LOANS

The Federal Land Bank of Omaha is now loaning about a million dollars each month. On March 1st, next this bank will be called on to close loans amounting to fifteen or twenty millions, and in order to handle so large a volume all must be made ready in advance—Applications approved—land inspected—abstracts examined—title corrected if necessary—papers drawn and mailed out—notes and mortgages signed and checks mailed to the local associations. This can not be done in a few days. Make your application early. Make it now. Loans are being approved now and rates guaranteed.

The Government Farm Loan is the best from the farmer's standpoint—low rates—long time—never have to renew—optional after five years—more per acre—easy amortization payments of principal.

Every farmer should understand the Federal Farm Loan System. If you are not familiar with it let us explain it to you, and then MAKE YOUR APPLICATION EARLY—MAKE IT NOW.

bound trip the 3rd of Dec. going by rail to Liverpool, England and then went aboard the U. S. S. Leviathan, the ship we took from Germany at the time we declared war. We went by the way of Brest, France, where we took about 1,500 wounded soldiers on board and coal for our voyage. There were about 11,000 in all on board. The Leviathan is a monster ship, 250 feet in length and has a tonage of 58,000 tons, I was told.

We left Brest France on the 8th and had good weather all the way. Arrived in the harbor of N. Y. on the evening of the 15th and it became so foggy that they anchored for the night On learning that we were out in the harbor there came a small ship loaded with singers and a band. They threw their strong search light on us and then seranaded us, which surely was appreciated.

The following morning it became clear and we pulled up the harbor to the pier, with whistles blowing on both sides of the ship, bands playing, flags waving, and people cheering. It sure was a warm welcome, and one to be remembered by all on board. It seems great to get back to the old U. S. A. and greater still to get back to folks at home. I am now stationed at Pelham Bay, N. Y. awaiting my discharge.

I send my regards to all and hope to be among you soon. I remain as ever, HOWARD E. BARNES,

First Mahogany Wood.

It is said that mahogany was first known to Europeans through the fact that Sir Walter Raleigh, when at Trinidad in 1595, used planks of it to repair one of his vessels. The samples thus carried to England were much admired, but for over 100 years the wood was put to no really practical use.

After several weeks stay in Ord with the F. J. Vopat family and other friends, Wilma Hanks left last Saturday for Scottsbluff where she will again resume her schoo ludties. The schools at that place have been closed on account of flu.

The Albert Anderson family are just about recovered from a case of flu. Albert had quite a tussle with the disease. There is quite a lot of Albert to be sick, he is such a big fellow, and then again it is a new experience with him to be on the sick list. But the flu is no respecter of persons.

We heard from the Asa Barber family this week from their home at Billings, Mont. They sent us a sweet picture of Dorothy. Everything was fine out there, the weather was warm, in fact every day was like a summer day. They have kind remembrances for all of their old acquaintances in this berg and wish to send New Years greetings to all.

Aren't there several Americans on the peace delegation? But somehow the cables, now controlled by the president, mention only Wilson. Why?

Mrs. Blodgett returned the latter part of last week from Horace where she had been spending a few hours with her friend Mrs. Applegate.

The Question of Land Values Is Always Before Us

There are two classes of people—those who think land is always good value and the natural tendency of values is upward—those who think values are always too high and that land will get cheaper. The first class buys land and makes money on it and becomes independent. The second class rents land and simply makes a living while the first class gets rich. Everybody knows land is the basic value of the world. Everybody knows the free government land is all gone and is now a thing of the past. Everybody knows the population of the country is increasing all the time while the amount of the land remains fixed. As families grow up, parents buy more land. Prices advance because of several reasons: Because there is a constantly increased demand for land; because better farming is being done; because there is greater production; because higher prices are being paid for farm products.

When Land Was Cheap, All Farm Products Were Cheap

Corn was burned for fuel. Hogs were hardly worth marketing. A good cow could be bought for $10 to $15. A calf then was not worth as much as bull service is worth today. Things are different now. Those days are gone and they are not coming back. Progress is always forward and upward. No one can advance going backwards. People who are waiting for lands to get cheaper are simply fooling themselves. The thing to do is to buy land NOW. Move along with the procession. Keep up with the march of civilization. Be a booster—not a knocker. Don't joke with yourself.

I can sell you most any kind or size farm you want at reasonable price and easy terms of sale. Let me talk with you about land and land values.

WANT TO MAKE TERMS

The past two weeks the Herald contained especially strong articles on the Scully land situation in Nuckolls county. How the tenants of that English estate, here in America were threatened with greatly increased rents or eviction, and how the tenants were organizing to protect themselves against the threatened oppresion. The Scully renters in Nuckolls, several hundred strong, formed a close and strong organization for the purpose of fighting the increase in the courts and proposed to go to the legislature for relief. Now we are informed the Scullys are ready to make terms with the tenants, since they have organized and are ready to fight more oppressive conditions. Here is one strong and ready result of proper organization of the workers. But we opine it is too late for the Scullys to make peace and continue their old game of milking the farmers on their own terms. The organization and the agitation caused by their attempt to further oppress their tenants for greater profits has aroused the people of the state generally against that system of landlordism and tenantry and there is going to be some legislation that will bring about a great change in the system. And it is not going to be confined to Nebraska. The agitation and fight for reform will be carried into every state where these abuses prevail and will sooner or later become a very live question in congress. We are doing a great deal of talking just now about land for the returning soldier. Instead of trying to put the boys on worthless or "reclaimed" land, there is going to be a strong move for the breaking up of land monoply and speculative schemes and furnish the boys some good land at right prices on whch to build their homes for the future. The Nuckolls county tenants, by their organization and vigorous protests have certainly started something that will result in great good to the entire nation. It is high time that the foreign landlord system should be driven from America.—Lincoln Herald.

UNITED WAR VETERANS

The United War Veterans, A National Organization has been formed to include in its active membership all veterans of the Civil War and Spanish War and all soldiers, sailors and marines of the United States in the World War.

The objects are: To unite in fraternal bonds, through national, state, local and foreign organizations, all soldiers and sailors of the United States; to perpetuate Memorial Day, as established by the Grand Army of the Republic, and to preserve from neglect the graves of our nations dead; to secure employment for and to assist our comrades, their widows, orphans and dependent relatives, to promote loyalty, mutual aid and cooperation among them in all lines of endeavor; to secure from congress and other legislative bodies the enactment of laws beneficial to the welfare of our comrades, and to secure employment for those who have returned to civil pursuits in consonance with laws which prefer honorably discharged soldiers and sailors for government service; to provide and establish homes for orphans and dependent children of our comrades; and to inculcate the principles of universal liberty and justice to all mankind, of loyalty to our country, reverence for its institutions, obedience to its laws and to discountenance what ever tends to weaken these sentiments.

This organization consists of active members (called comrades), and in addition thereto an honorary membership consisting of persons who performed distinguihsed or faithful service or engaged in efforts for the relief of disabled and suffering soldiers and sailors, or who to a conspicuous extent became interested in promoting the moral welfare and physical comfort of troops in camp or in field, or who are honorably discharged soldiers or sailors of any of the Allies of the United States in the World War.

It is not expetced that members of the G. A. R., U. S. W. V., or any other patriotic organization will discontinue their memberships, but will join the United War Veterans in addition, in order to have one large organization of all soldiers of all wars.

The National Headquarters are at Kalispell, Montana, and they recommend that Civil War Veterans be preferred for officers, both national and local as far as possible. The Comthe Montana State Soldier's Home.

The Quiz hears some caustic comments said to eminate from some of the county officers and democrat rulers because Chairman J. H. Carson of the county board saw fit to hand his resignation to Clerk Elect Joe Knezacek with instructions to file it as one of his first official acts. The three or four fellows about town who had come to think that they owned the county, the county offices, the court house and the whole works, can't yet realize what struck them election day and naturally they die hard. We apprehend that Mr. Carson reasoned the matter out something like this—he was a republican and knew that the people of the county were sick and tired of democratic rule and rottenness in county affairs as evidenced by their vote election day. He also knew that the democrat officers would name a democrat in his place if they had a chance. He wanted to have the will of the people carried out however so he took the only course open to him. Vacancies on the board are filled by the county attorney, county treasurer and county clerk, and as soon as the new county officers are in their places no doubt they will proceed to do their duty selecting the best available man to fill the place. In the meantime Mr. Carson will keep the Carson resignation in his pocket just as he was ready to do.

AND WHAT SOME OTHERS THINK

By H. D. Leggett

Well, the old man has got the flu and all the rest of the family have got the flu too. The doctor and nurse say we all have it fairly light and we are all willing to take their word for it and have no desire to experience it in any harder form. We all got to bed about the same time and from present indications we will all be ready, about the same time, to have the quarantine lifted. We don't propose to take any chances on bad after-effects however, by getting out too soon. We were most fortunate in getting a nurse right on the start. The front part of the house is the female ward of this hospital and the back bedroom the male ward and Mrs. Barton Clements is hospital superintendent, head nurse and 1st, 2nd, and 3rd assistant, chief cook, chore boy, head waiter, in fact the whole works. For three days, when I didn't have a thing to do but lie still and try to sweat the flu germs to death, I kept some little track of what a nurse in this kind of a case has to do and I have it figured out, that she had to do 57 varities of things for each of us a day, or 228 for the four of us. Of course this didn't include house work, cooking, keeping 3 stoves running, sweeping, etc. She was right there with the goods all the time, even to lighting the string kept hanging on the door knob when necessary. And then the thing that we are the most thankful of all for, is the certain knowledge that so many people were interested to enquire for our welfare and offer assistance, many with much personal inconvenience, coming to the house with their proffers of sympathy and aid. These acts are as boquets of beautiful flowers and are among the things that cannot be forgotten. And if we are the kind of people we should be we will be doing unto others as we were done by as soon as possible.

CLARIFYING COFFEE

With the high price of eggs, coffee clarified by the use of eggs is almost a luxury. The Home Economics Section of the Extension Service of the University of Nebraska College of Agriculture recommends the following way as both economical and convenient: Upon opening a new can of ground coffee, sprea idts contents out in a shallow pan, mix with egg in the proportion of two eggs to a pound. After well mixing, allow it to dry out thoroughly, and then return to the container. This coffee will need no other clarifier when made into a beverage.

HEALTH DEPARTMENT NOTES

The State Depatment of Health held its recent conference to decide principally two things.

First:—Are the various counties, cities and villages sufficiently organized to render efficient aid to their health departments in putting down this epidemic?

Second:—In the event that the State Department of Health were to declare influenza an absolutely quarantinable disease, would the counties cities and villages see that the quarantine was promptly enforced and strictly maintained?

The first proposition was unanimously answered in the affirmative, the second almost so, by representatives from almost every county in the state. The State Department of Health has accordingly made this an absolutely quarantinable disease and it is expected that the counties, cities and villages in whose jurisdiction cases occur, will see that the regulations are obeyed and violations promptly prosecuted. Very truly yours,

Nebraska State Department of Health.

One week from today all newly cted state and county officials as me their seats. Won't there be a eat turning out of the democrats that day? O, joy!

Now Old Mexico is starting to make with the United States again. time could be chosen for Mexico's hash than just now. the army and the equipment than that our fighting spirit good pitch. If Mexico wants from Uncle Sam it is a good to get temporary sit ch and do a few itor's pet policies. He just give the city rip it into tho non- and lam government public utilities. With bankrupt at the rate of last year and the mess ent has made of running ds, plenty of material was or playing the bull in the e with at least two of these But at the last moment the cided to desist for very valid If Leggett got well before er came out he would pie the batch of editorials and if he ick the sight of them in the might prove fatal to Leggett. efore, dear readers, though you not see any of that kind of orials here, you may know what writer has been thinking about.

Several interesting letters from the oys over in France are printed in the Quiz this week. Among them is a specially fine one from Private Paul Schoning. The Schonings are of course of German blood, but they are Americans every inch. And there are in our army over there thousands of boys of German descent and name who are the equal to any soldier on earth. This fact ought to put the muzzle onto those who are pretending to be so offended when they hear a word spoken in German or who look askance at one who bears a German name. There are no better Americans than some of our citizens of German descent, and no better soldiers are to be found in Pershing's army than some of these German boys. Then where is the sense in tabuing everything German? There has been a disgraceful lot of rot perpetrated in the name of patriotism, but nothing so disgusting or harmful as this false notion that true patriotism demands that you must make a fool of yourself.

Amid the sorrow and loss of these times a little of the sunny side of things might well be looked at. Dr. Shepard, worn out by almost ceaseless labors, was compelled to keep to his bed a day or so the first of the week. Getting a little better Monday night he remarked to another doctor that he was inclined to keep his bed a little longer and let his wife do the chores for another day, but recalling an incient of his practice he concluded it might not be safe. A while ago a farmer was taken sick, went to bed and called Dr. Shepard. It was a number of hours before the doctor could get time to visit him and during that time the farmer's wife did the chores. When the doctor came he said the man did not have the flu and might as well get out of bed. Then the good wife, feeling that she had been imposed upon by her hubby, made him go out and do the chores all over again. For fear his wife might treat him the same way Dr. Shepard decided to get out of the house again Tuesday.

NOW FOR THE FRAUDS

The war is over and it will be in order now to take a whack at some of the frauds that have been perpetrated during the war stress, and newspapers will now feel free to expose them as the facts come to light. The following from the State Journal hits at one of them:

"The National Security League must have been financed by people who did not care much how their money was spent. The salary roll of the organization contains the following regular allowances: Dr. Robert M. McElroy, educational director, $10,000 a year; Henry L. West, executive secretary, $8,400; E. L. Harvey, publicity director, $4,160; Miss Etta V. Leighton, director of the American naturalization bureau, $2,400, and P. D. Calhoun, cashier, $2,080. Probably a study of most of the societies that have been springing up so freely in recent years will disclose a similar sort of liberality. There is reason to believe that some organizations are kept afloat more for the salaries they can be made to produce for the officers than because they have any real public function to perform. This sort of thing needs official regulation in some form. No society ought to be allowed to solicit funds generally without submitting to a reasonable degree of investigation as to the source and destination of the funds and its efficiency in carrying out its professed objects. The greatet srfeedom of organization and action needs to be allowed, of course, but this must be accompanied by wholesome publicity."

MEXICO MAKES WISE MOVE

Americans who have vested interests in Mexican oil fields are vitally concerned in the new constitution adopted in our sister republic to the south. The new constitution does several things to nonresident holders of Mexican property, but in the following few words the Mexicans have put a crimp in the oil interests of the nation.

"In the nation is vested direct ownership of all petroleum and all hydro-carbon solids, liquid or gaseous."

This takes from private hands the ownership of this much of the natural resources of the nation and puts it in the hands of the Mexican government, from whence it came and where it should have always reposed.

The writer believes that this is a wise move on the part of Mexico and is a step that the United States should follow, adding to it all other of the minerals of the land as well as the growing timber and water power.

The greatest of our monopolies have grown out of the cornering of the natural resources of the nation by a few private interests. This would have been prevented had our forefathers been wise enough to have made it impossible for the United States government to dispose of the mines, water power and forests of the nation except by lease.

Just as the writer believes that the government should keep its hands out of all business and manufacturing enterprises, he also believes that the government should retain to itself all the natural wealth, except land.

And it is not even now too late to reclaim this wealth. The writer has more than once sounded the claim that the powers that be in one generation have no right to deprive another generation of its natural heritage. Congress fifty years ago had no right to turn over to the Rockefellers a monopoly of the nations petroleum fields that the people of today have use for. The selling of these natural resources was therefore wrong and against public policy and the present generation has the right to declare that these gifts were only leases to be cancelled at any time the nation chooses to do so.

NEW YEAR BRINGS CHANGES

Things are happening to the newspapers of Valley county. We are told that Editor Gordon of the Arcadia Champion has been appointed as one of Governor McKelvie's deputy food inspectors and will give up the paper. It is also true that Bert Cushing, now of the pure food department of the state, will come back to Ord about the middle of the month and assume control of the Ord Journal. Editor Davis confirms this report and admits that the Journal is to pass out of his hands, unless there is a slip in present arrangements.

The deal seems not to have been completely closed, but it is far enough gone to make it safe to say that the transfer will in all probability be made.

Mr. Davis tells us that in all probability there will be a stock company formed to take over the paper. Several reasons point to the manner of doing the thing. This will enable Mr. Cushing to take what of the stock he cares to handle and makes it easy for him to take on more as he sees fit. But the principal reason is one that the writer weighed long and earnestly before selling the Quiz. A country newspaper is not an ideal piece of property to leave to one's estate. A large part of a newspaper's assets is the personality of the editor. In case of his death the paper is left with its main prop gone. Almost any other kind of property may be handled successfully by an administrator but not so a newspaper. Editors are born not appointed by the probate court. In these strenuous times, when good men are being called from their activities with little warning, any newspaper man who loves his paper feels that he should provide for the success of the paper in case of his premature taking off.

The writer would be glad to write here and now a couple of paragraphs relative to the esteem in which he holds both Mr. Davis and Mr. Cushing as good citizens and newspaper competitors. But, having been the recipient of premature boquets himself, he will leave this pleasant duty unperformed until the transfer of the paper is actually made. He ventures to say, however, that, if this change is made, the Journal will loose the strongest writer that ever sat in its editorial chair. Mr. Davis has been greatly handicapped in his control of the Journal by his position as postmaster. No man can serve two masters. The biggest master will get the service, and Uncle Sam is a pretty big boss. The result is that Davis has had to neglect his paper while looking after his official duties. With the paper in good hands, as it will be in Mr. Cushing's, Davis will doubtless get much more pleasure in licking stamps and, perhaps, just as much profit.

I will sell the Ord Ice House together with all equipment belonging thereto, including the lake and the land, at public auction. Sale will take place at the Ice House if weather conditions permit, otherwise it will be held at the south door of the court house.

This is one of the best paying propositions in Ord, but, being engaged in farming and stock raising and having more to do than I can attend to, I am wholly unable to give the ice business the attention it requires and should have. This is my only reason for disposing of it. It is one of the best ice plants in the state of Nebraska and there is never any difficulty or trouble to get plenty of ice or to sell the ice after it is put up. The lake has been recently cleaned out and everything is in readiness for filling the Ice House with the very best of clear ice.

Terms of sale will be announced at time of sale.

Harry Patterson, a member of Postmaster Gell's fine bunch of mailing clerks, has returned from the military service, having been mustered out. On account of a number eyesight he was put into limited service. But Mr. Patterson's nearest acquaintances and friends declare positively that his eyesight is perfectly good—in some things. For instance—well——er—he was married during his absence—in October—and—well—it is a little difficult to express just what one wants to say and still not say it boorishly. At any rate his friends declare that Patterson's eyes are really very good. She was a school teacher in this city—Miss Florence Waite—though her parents live at Burwell, and the wedding took place at Bassett late in October. Especially because Mr. Patterson was somewhat quiet about it, and the happy life engagement was therefore not learned sooner, belated good wishes are none the less sincere and numerous.—Grand Island Independent.

LAND VALUES

There are two classes of people—those who think land is always good value and the natural tendency of values is upward—those who think values are always too high and that land will get cheaper. The first class buys land and makes money on it and becomes independent. The second class rents land and simply makes a living while the first class gets rich. Everybody knows land is the basic value of the world. Everybody knows the free government land is all gone and is now a thing of the past. Everybody knows the population of the country is increasing all the time while the amount of the land remains fixed. As families grow up, parents buy more land. Prices advance because of several reasons: Because there is a constantly increased demand for land; because better farming is being done; because there is greater production; because higher prices are being paid for farm products.

When Land Was Cheap, All Farm Products Were Cheap

Corn was burned for fuel. Hogs were hardly worth marketing. A good cow could be bought for $10 to $15. A calf then was not worth as much as bull service is worth today. Things are different now. Those days are gone and they are not coming back. Progress is always forward and upward. No one can advance going backwards. People who are waiting for lands to get cheaper are simply fooling themselves. The thing to do is to buy land NOW. Move along with the procession. Keep up with the march of civilization. Be a booster—not a knocker. Don't joke with yourself.

I can sell you most any kind or size farm you want at reasonable price and easy terms of sale. Let me talk with you about land and land values.

WANT TO MAKE TERMS

The past two weeks the Herald contained especially strong articles on the Scully land situation in Nuckolls county. How the tenants of that English estate, here in America were threatened with greatly increased rents or eviction, and how the tenants were organizing to protect themselves against the threatened oppresion. The Scully renters in Nuckolls, several hundred strong, formed a close and strong organization for the purpose of fighting the increase in the courts and proposed to go to the legislature for relief. Now we are informed the Scullys are ready to make terms with the tenants, since they have organized and are ready to fight more oppressive conditions. Here is one strong and ready result of proper organization of the workers. But we opine it is too late for the Scullys to make peace and continue their old game of milking the farmers on their own terms. The organization and the agitation caused by their attempt to further oppress their tenants for greater profits has aroused the people of the state generally against that system of landlordism and tenantry and there is going to be some legislation that will bring about a great change in the system. And it is not going to be confined to Nebraska. The agitation and fight for reform will be carried into every state where these abuses prevail and will sooner or later become a very live question in congress. We are doing a great deal of talking just now about land for the returning soldier. Instead of trying to put the boys on worthless or "reclaimed" land, there is going to be a strong move for the breaking up of land monoply and speculative schemes and furnish the boys some good land at right prices on whch to build their homes for the future. The Nuckolls county tenants, by their organization and vigorous protests have certainly started something that will result in great good to the entire nation. It is high time that the foreign landlord system should be driven from America.—Lincoln Herald.

UNITED WAR VETERANS

The United War Veterans, A National Organization has been formed to include in its active membership all veterans of the Civil War and Spanish War and all soldiers, sailors and marines of the United States in the World War.

The objects are: To unite in fraternal bonds, through national, state, local and foreign organizations, all soldiers and sailors of the United States; to perpetuate Memorial Day, as established by the Grand Army of the Republic, and to preserve from neglect the graves of our nations dead; to secure employment for and to assist our comrades, their widows, orphans and dependent relatives, to promote loyalty, mutual aid and cooperation among them in all lines of endeavor; to secure from congress and other legislative bodies the enactment of laws beneficial to the welfare of our comrades, and to secure employment for those who have returned to civil pursuits in consonance with laws which prefer honorably discharged soldiers and sailors for government service; to provide and establish homes for orphans and dependent children of our comrades; and to inculcate the principles of universal liberty and justice to all mankind, of loyalty to our country, reverence for its institutions, obedience to its laws and to discountenance what ever tends to weaken these sentiments.

This organization consists of active members (called comrades), and in addition thereto an honorary membership consisting of persons who performed distinguihsed or faithful service or engaged in efforts for the relief of disabled and suffering soldiers and sailors, or who to a conspicuous extent became interested in promoting the moral welfare and physical comfort of troops in camp or in field, or who are honorably discharged soldiers or sailors of any of the Allies of the United States in the World War.

It is not expetced that members of the G. A. R., U. S. W. V., or any other patriotic organization will discontinue their memberships, but will join the United War Veterans in addition, in order to have one large organization of all soldiers of all wars.

The National Headquarters are at Kalispell, Montana, and they recommend that Civil War Veterans be preferred for officers, both national and local as far as possible. The Com- the Montana State Soldier's Home.

The Quiz hears some caustic comments said to eminate from some of the county officers and democrat rulers because Chairman J. H. Carson of the county board saw fit to hand his resignation to Clerk Elect Joe Knezacek with instructions to file it as one of his first official acts. The three or four fellows about town who had come to think that they owned the county, the county offices, the court house and the whole works, can't yet realize what struck them election day and naturally they die hard. We apprehend that Mr. Carson reasoned the matter out something like this—he was a republican and knew that the people of the county were sick and tired of democratic rule and rottenness in county affairs as evidenced by their vote election day. He also knew that the democrat officers would name a democrat in his place if they had a chance. He wanted to have the will of the people carried out however so he took the only course open to him. Vacancies on the board are filled by the ounty attorney, county treasurer and unty clerk, and as soon as the new nty officers are in their places no t they will proceed to do their selecting the best available man e place. In the meantime Mr. nek will keep the Carson resigas in his pocket just as he was o do.

AND WHAT SOME OTHERS THINK

By H. D. Leggett

Well, the old man has got the flu and all the rest of the family have got the flu too. The doctor and nurse say we all have it fairly light and we are all willing to take their word for it and have no desire to experience it in any harder form. We all got to bed about the same time and from present indications we will all be ready, about the same time, to have the quarantine lifted. We don't propose to take any chances on bad after-effects however, by getting out too soon. We were most fortunate in getting a nurse right on the start. The front part of the house is the female ward of this hospital and the back bedroom the male ward and Mrs. Barton Clements is hospital superintendent, head nurse and 1st, 2nd, and 3rd assistant, chief cook, chore boy, head waiter, in fact the whole works. For three days, when I didn't have a thing to do but lie still and try to sweat the flu germs to death, I kept some little track of what a nurse in this kind of a case has to do and I have it figured out, that she had to do 57 varities of things for each of us a day, or 228 for the four of us. Of course this didn't include house work, cooking, keeping 3 stoves running, sweeping, etc. She was right there with the goods all the time, even to lighting the string kept hanging on the door knob when necessary. And then the thing that we are the most thankful of all for, is the certain knowledge that so many people were interested to enquire for our welfare and offer assistance, many with much personal inconvenience, coming to the house with their proffers of sympathy and aid. These acts are as boquets of beautiful flowers and are among the things that cannot be forgotten. And if we are the kind of people we should be we will be doing unto others as we were done by as soon as possible.

CLARIFYING COFFEE

With the high price of eggs, coffee clarified by the use of eggs is almost a luxury. The Home Economics Section of the Extension Service of the University of Nebraska College of Agriculture recommends the following way as both economical and convenient: Upon opening a new can of ground coffee, sprea idts contents out in a shallow pan, mix with egg in the proportion of two eggs to a pound. After well mixing, allow it to dry out thoroughly, and then return to the container. This coffee will need no other clarifier when made into a beverage.

HEALTH DEPARTMENT NOTES

The State Depatment of Health held its recent conference to decide principally two things.

First:—Are the various counties, cities and villages sufficiently organized to render efficient aid to their health departments in putting down this epidemic?

Second:—In the event that the State Department of Health were to declare influenza an absolutely quarantinable disease, would the counties cities and villages see that the quarantine was promptly enforced and strictly maintained?

The first proposition was unanimously answered in the affirmative, the second almost so, by representatives from almost every county in the state. The State Department of Health has accordingly made this an absolutely quarantinable disease and it is expected that the counties, cities and villages in whose jurisdiction cases occur, will see that the regulations are obeyed and violations promptly prosecuted. Very truly yours,

Nebraska State Department of Health.

PAUL SCHONING TELLS HOW HE WENT OVER THE TOP

Somewhere in France, Nov. 4, 1918

Dear Sister and Folks:

How are you? I am getting along fine and hope the same to all you folks at home. I am over in the big new building, or the Red Cross building it is called here, always lots of music and singing here every night. So I don't get much time to write. We have writing tables here but they are nearly always full, so many soldiers writing to home folks. Some of the boys will be home for Christmas.

I see by the papers that those in the States are going home now. I hear some of the latest songs here, one is about, "Over on the Jersey Side, another one about, "Give us the Good Old U. S. A. For Mine." There is one pretty song I heard the soldiers sing several times while we were at the front. It makes a fellow think of this song when a body falls in action, "Break the News to Mother, She Knows How Dear I Love Her." I will never forget the drive we were in at Verdun and in the Argonne, it was [illegible] r and October when [illegible] op and gained sev- [illegible]t we marched all [illegible] through the shell [illegible]xt morning laid [illegible]o rest and then put on our packs again and went on in. Our Lieutenant told us, "Boys they have had a little hard luck up on the lines and we are going right into the front lines, but don't let that worry you," and it was only a few hours later when we were fixing bayonets and getting ready to go over the top. We held our formation good, and advanced right through the heavy artillery fire. A few days later we went over the top again but found hard resistance and got into real hard fighting. We did not get into action at Metz and St. Mihiel because the good old Funston division was ahead of us on the lines. We were ahead of them and ready in a minutes notice, in case they would need us, but word came back after they had advanced, "We don't need you boys." They can fight like old timers and were made a first class division the same as we are. They were also picked out to occupy the evacuated territory, the same as our division and several other divisions, that have been in the fighting early in the summer. Suppose you have read about it in the papers over there.

Well I did not get this letter finished last Sunday night, so will finish it to-day. I got eight letters yesterday all in one package, three from Martha and two from you. And I also got those 16 pictures in the letter you wrote the 30th of September [illegible] were real good, many thanks every one looked like a real Nebraska home. Tell Julius he has some straw pile, one is Paul Bartz feeding the machine and it looks like his team. Every thing looks so speedy there beside the way they farm their little patches here in France. I watched them thrash a little wheat here one time feeding by hand an old horse power with a couple horses on it, I thought to myself, "Give me the States for mine, where we do things fast and up to date."

So Becks just received their message from Reuben in September. It is sure too bad. It was Sunday July 21st when I last saw Reuben, just after we took the town of Chateau-Thierry and it was in Chateau-Thierry where he talked a few minutes with me and told me about Sam being wounded a few days ago. Sam was in the same platoon, and it was only a couple hours later when we were again in action. It was a high explosive that killed Reuben, and 14 of our boys fell from the same shell. I know a boy from Bloomfield that got wounded from the same shell and he told me about Reuben. After we took Chateau Thierry we went over the top every day for about a week or ten days.

Yes, Esther Chadwick's brother fell in the big Marne drive after we left Chateau Thferry. I remember that one afternoon when we held our trenches which we had just dug under heavy fire. There wer only 15 of us left out of 60 or 65 that were in the platoon I am in. We were thinking we could not hold out on account of getting cross-fire and our men were few. Soon an order came that reinforcements were coming and would be with us in another hour. Then our Lieutenant said, "Lets stick to our position boys, if we die we will die game," and we did. Soon the other doughboys came and we were relieved. We then went back a mile or two and rested up a little and got something to eat.

I am worried about Sam. I wrote to him after I got here but have had no answer yet so I am thinking that he may be in a hospital and has not had his mail from his company yet, because I didn't get mine until yesterday and it may be his company don't know what hospital he is in. My letter might have been lost, as that happens sometimes. I will write him again soon.

I would have been back with my company several weeks ago, but they have some of the hospitals quarrantined on account of a few cases of diptheria, so they will not let us go until the quarantine is taken off. It is not very catching only among small children. But there might be danger of us carrying germs and little children catching it, although our systems are so strong that we will not take it. I was vaccinated for diptheria last winter on the arm and it did not take. We were all vaccinated at Funston. They are going to take our culture 2 or 3 times before we can get out of quarantine. I hope we will soon get out so I can get back to my company. They are sending all the sick and wounded to the States now as fast as they can.

Well I must close as I have several other letters to write. Will close with love and best wishes to all.

PRIVATE PAUL SCHONING,
Co. D, 4th Iinfantry, A. E. F

New York City, Dec. 23, 1918.

Mr. Leggett, Ord, Nebr.

Dear Sir: I will endeavor to write you a few lines as it has been some time since I have written you, due to the fact that restrictions were very strong on writing while over-seas.

I will try to give you a sketch of my trip since leaving Quebec. We sailed from Quebec the 28th of September out of the St. Laurence river into the Gulf of St. Laurence, up the Straight of Belle Isle, along the shores of New Foundland and Labrador out by the island of Belle Isle, into the ocean.

The first two days out I saw a number of icebergs being a long distance away they looked rather small. About the fifth day out we were taken by a storm which we had to turn around and head into. It lasted about 72 hours and was a rough one at that. There were nine ships in our convoy and one of the freighters cargo shifted which disabled it from going any farther. I never learned what was done with it.

The influenza broke out on one of the ships which was loaded with the Royal Flying corps from Canada and I heard that 38 died on the way over. I know that there was a burial every day after it broke out and at one time I saw nine buried, and five another time. It was sure a very bad trip and we were all glad to land, which we did on the morning of the 11th of October, in the Plymoth Harbor, England.

After the ships were inspected we were taken from the ships into a ferry-boat to the pier, and there a train was waiting for us which took us to Eastleigh, England, arriving at midnight. We then marched out to camp which is about a mile from town. There we were kept busy building up the camp, putting up barracks, and mess hall, laying pipe lines assembling aeroplanes, and a good many other things.

We sent a good many aeroplanes to the front from our camp, and as it was only about 75 miles from our camp they flew over after being assembled.

Our camp was located along side of the railroad and therefore we could see the movement of the troops and amunition which went by, and there were a good many carloads each day.

South Hampton the city from which the Pilgrims first sailed, was located about two and a half miles from our camp and I had the opportunity of seeing the city which is very old, and consists of a good many historical places.

We toiled on each day, doing our bit until the day word came that the armistice had been signed. We were notified after "chow", and away we went out the gate to Eastleigh in our working clothes, with the band in the lead. After parading for an hour we came back to the camp and then deton and parade, so the word was passed that the uniform was dressed blues and flat hats, and believe me we were ready in about five minutes and away for town marching in squads all the way, and down through the streets which were crowded to their utmost capacity. There wer about 2,000 of us in the parade and it sure looked good.

That night I could hear expression one after another that 'it seems good to see the streets lighted after four years of darkness. There was one thing that was greater still to see the weary hearts enlightened after four years of weary sad toil. Our traveling by rail was prohibitd by Admiral Sims, until after the armistice was signed and then we were granted two days leave and a good many of us took advantage of the opportunity and went to London and spent a day which was very interesting, and appreciated by all who went.

We saw the King's palace, House of parliment, London bridge, St. Paul's cathedral, which was a very interesting building to visit, and the Tower of London which was once used as a fort, then as a prison, and now as a museum. We were told of the different apartments as we went through, and one interesting place is what they call the Bloody Tower, where all their prisoners were put before their execution. It was in the upper part of the Bloody Tower that Sir Walter Raleigh was imprisoned for a number of years and it was there that he wrote his history of the world.

We were told by the guard that of late this same room had been used as a bed room by a certain young woman but did not state any name. We took by that that it was Miss Pankhurst while she was a prisoner in England. Passing on through the tower we saw armors worn by the early kings and noted warriors, also many old swords, ancient cannon, executing block and a number of other instruments of torture, also a well which was sunk by the Romans 1,600 years ago. Take it as a whole it was a very interesting building.

We left camp on our homeward

Our good friend Joe Soemhaker was taken sick, presumably with the flu, on the run from Grand Island Tuesday evening. The train was brought up safely with such work as he was able to do, but his condition was such that he could not take the train back yesterday morning. It devolved therefore upon the managers to get a conductor here in time to take the train out this morning. To do this a special engine was run up during the night bringing another conductor. Both engines were hitched to the train and it went out as a double-header. Conductor Shoemaker is not any too strong anyway on account of the sickness he has endured during the past few years, and was not in a very good trim to have a tussle with the flu. We hope he pulls through all right.

NEBRASKA STATE BANK

Advertising Announcemen'

During the recent war period, the Nebraska State Bank did not do much Bank Advertising. It contented itself with doing all it could to aid in the financial requirements of the Government, the Red Cross, and all other War activities. The Bank Business has been made subservient to all these things, and the management of the Bank has taken pride in doing all it could to "Help Win the War." Now that the war is over, this bank will resume an active advertising campaign in the hopes of materially increasing its business during the year 1919. We ask the careful reading and the kindly consideration of our advertised statements. We will have much to say during the year that will not only be of interest but of actual benefit to the general public.

This Bank was organized and commenced business September 12, 1912. At that time it was thought Ord would not support three banks and that the organizers of this bank were mere promoters who had organized the bank for speculative purposes. Time and the success the Nebraska State bank has achieved have proven the wisdom of the organizers in organizing this Bank. The business of the bank has grown from nothing to a very satisfactory and formidable business. All the stock holders of this bank are recognized as leading and responsible farmers and business men, all of whom are interested in farming and stock raising and all that pertains to the welfare of the country. While we are pleased and proud of the business we have done, and while we greatly appreciate the patronage of our customers, we want to do an increased business and we want a greater number of customers. It will be our policy and purpose to handle our business in a manner to merit patronage. This bank has passed through the period of Probation. It has proven itself worthy of patronage, and it has demonstrated its ability to take the best of care of its patrons in "rough weather" in "fair weather" so there is no any one should hesitate to do busi Nebraska State Bank.

During the year 1913, we publ braska State Bank Journal which w very favorably throughout the cou was not only mailed in Valley cou many outside points. This Bank J with general business, financial a tural conditions. It did much to adv resources of Valley county. We are templating publishing a monthl State Bank Journal instead of a q lication. We will be very glad to mail this without charge to any one desiring it either for himself or friends. All you need to do is to send in the name and address of either yourself or your friends, and we will do the rest.

When we were farming, we found it always an easy matter to talk to our neighbor farmers in our own language. We knew what was of interest to us and our neighbors and talking in our own way every one understood what every one else said and meant. We have always preferred to do our own talking and for this reason, we are going to edit th braska State Bank Journal ourselves as before rather than to employ any ad agency to do it. We may not express as forcibly or as elegantly as some specialist might do, but we feel that least be understood by our own hon and that is all we need. We are going t "Home Spun Talk" to "Home Spun" peop Read our advertisements. Get your name o our mailing list for the Nebraska State Bank Journal, and get ready to do business with the Nebraska State Bank where your account will be appreciated and your business will receive the most careful consideration.

FRANK RUDOLPH KOUPAL

When his neighbors and friends will say of a man, "he was a real man" there is not much more to be said and that is what those who knew him best say about Frank Koupal, whose body was laid at rest in the Ord cemetery Monday of this week.

Frank was born at Schererville, Lake county, Indiana, October 16, 1884, and died at the home of Lewton Myers near Burwell, January 1, 1919, aged 34 years, 2 months and 15 days.

He was married at Burwell October 10, 1917, to Miss Edna Myers. They lived on a farm southeast of Ord last year and some weeks ago made arrangements to farm near Burwell the coming season and during the winter were making their home at the home of his wife's parents awaiting the coming of spring to go to their own home. He was taken sick Christmas day and though all that loving hands could do, was done for him, the case steadily drifted into pneumonia from which he was unable to rally.

Frank was the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Koupal who survive him as do also a brother Anthony of Ord and a sister, Mrs. Walter J. Levenick of Rock Island, Ill., and a cousin Steve Koupal, who was raised by the family and who was always more like a brother in the family and who is now with the Colors in France. These, with the young wife, are the close relatives of deceased.

For several years Frank worked at the carpenter trade and was always faithful and held in high esteem by those with whom he worked.

Saturday last the remains were brought to Ord and the funeral was held Monday forenoon from the undertaking parlors, interment being in the Ord cemetery. Rev. Craven of Burwell officiated.

MRS. THOMAS ROGERS

Angie E. Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Jones, was born near Monmouth, Warren county, Illinois, May 24th, 1875. At the age of three years she moved with her parents to Vernon county, Missouri, where they lived eight years and from there they moved to Valley county, Nebraska, where she lived the remainder of her life.

She graduated from the Ord High school in 1893 after which she taught school for thirteen years. She was very successful in this profession. She united with the Christian church at the age of 19 years and later her membership was transferred to the First Baptist church of Ord. At the age of thirty-one she was united in marriage with Thomas Rogers.

She was a faithful worker in the Sunday school which was located in the school house near her home in the country and was always ready and willing to do her part. She will not only be greatly missed by those who attended the Sunday school but also by the neighbors and friends of the community in which she lived. In her home life she was known to be "discreet, chaste, keeper at home, good, obedient to her own husband, that the word of God might not be blasphemed." The hospitality which she showed those who came into her home was refreshing to any who might be so fortunate as to come in personal contact with it.

On the evening before Christmas she was taken sick with influenza and one week later on New Year's day she left those who stood at her side to be with her Saviour.

She leaves to mourn her loss a husband, her father and mother, three sisters and one brother, Mrs. Alta B. Olson of California; Mrs. Grace Minor, Comstock, Nebraska; Mrs. Pearl Carlson, Ord, Neb., and Paul Jones who is at the present time in Camp Funston.

The services were held at the cemetery on Monday afternoon January 6, at 2 o'clock. Many of the neighbors and friends were present to pay their last respects to the deceased. RRev. C. J. Bukoutz, pastor of the First Baptist church conducted the service. He spoke words of comfort from the 23rd Psalm. Miss Minnie Smith and Mrs. C. J. Bukoutz assisted in the singing of the hymns, "Nearer My God to Thee," and "It is Well With My Soul."

JOHN WILLIAM WORK

John William Work, second son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Work, was born at Ord, Nebraska, October 5th, 1888, and died in the home of his parents Thursday morning January 2nd, 1919. A few months ago he suffered a very serious attack of the influenza which left his lungs and heart in a most grave condition. And so it came to pass that upon his parents learning of his weakening condition his father went to Chicago to bring him home. They arrived in Ord Monday, December 16th. His loved ones soon realized that there was no hope for his recovery and every means was employed to make him as comfortable as possible until the end should come. Never were parents and loved ones more concerned and attentive than those who watched at the bedside of the deceased. But there comes a time in the life of man when the most we can do will not push away the coming of the end. And while parents watched and brothers and sisters waited the soul of John William Work went out of this life into the eternity which all must enter. The departed was not an idler in any sense of the word. When but a small boy he was disposed to be of an inventive nature and as he grew into manhood this trait of character developed until he became an expert machinist. About twelve years ago he thought best to go to Chicago and if possible secure a position in which he might adequately test his machinical ability. He was not long in doing so and when he became known in the city he was always in great demand and received a most liberal salary from those for whom he worked.

From boyhood he had a rather quiet disposition and no doubt this characteristic was of help to him and to those by whom he was employed. He was numbered among the best in his line in the city and among the machinists o fthe Hannifin Manufacturing Co. for whom he worked until some three weeks ago.

He leaves his father, mother, two brothers, Roy of Omaha and George of Ord, Nebraska; four sisters, Mrs. Marion Cushing, Mrs. Francis Keating Catherine and Martha, all of Ord, Nebraska.

The funeral services were held at the home Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock in charge of Rev. Charles J. Bukoutz, pastor of the First Baptist church. The 14th chapter of John was taken as a basis for the sermon. The music was in charge of Miss Louise Misko assisted by Miss Minnie Smith and Mrs. C. J. Bukoutz. The hymns used were "Jesus Saviour Pilot Me," and "Lead Kindly Light." Many of the friends who attended the service went to the cemetery to render every assistance possible and to speak of comfort in one of the saddest moments ever experienced by those who suffered the loss of their son and brother.

HANS DETLIF HEUCK

Hans Detlif Heuck was born in Meldorf, Holstein, Germany June 27, 1856. When he became a young man and arrived at the age of 23 years he came to America locating in Grand Island, Nebraska. After having lived in Grand Island about three years he met Miss Mary Jane Stephman and they were united in marriage. To this union there were born ten children, six sons and four daughters. Two of the children, Carl and Leo died in infancy. In the spring of 1888 Mr. Heuck came to Ord, Nebraska, and has made this city his home until his death. He was well known throughout the community and has served as sheriff in Valley county two years. While living in Grand Island he worked in a bottling establishment and when he came to this city he established the Heuck Bottling Works. He conducted this business for some years. He also served as city marshall five years and as night watch some four years just previous to his death. There are left to mourn his loss a faithful wife and four sons and four daughters, Otto Heuck, Boise, Idaho; Fred Heuck, Libby, Mont.; Lillian Ward, Cassa Grande, Ariz., Margaret, Boise, Idaho; Emily and Dorothy, Ord, Nebraska. A few days ago he was taken sick with influenza and soon became so seriously ill that those of the family despaired his recovery. On Saturday morning, January 4th, he passed away. Thus closed the last chapter of the life of Hans Detlif Heuck.

A short service was held at the McLain undertaking parlors on Tuesday morning at 10:30 under the conduct of Rev. Charles J. Bukoutz, pastor of the Baptist church. Interment was in the Ord cemetery. Members of the family deeply appreciate the many kindnesses shown them during the illness and after the death of the husband and father.

WILLIAM FREDERICK HACKEL

William Frederick Hackel was born in Vinton township, Valley county, January 16, 1885, and died at his home near where he was born, January 2, 1919, aged 33 years, 11 months and 18 days. His death was the result of pneumonia following the flu.

Will was married to Miss Rhoda McGraw at Lincoln June 26, 1907, and besides his wife he leaves three brothers, Benn, Ed and Frank and four sisters, Mrs. Mary Bredthauer, Mrs. Edith Davenport, Mrs. Marks and Miss Louise Hackel.

Will united with the United Brethren church fourteen years ago this winter and has always been a faithful member. He was highly thought of by all who knew him and the word of his dangerous illness came as a great shock to those who have known his cheery face for so many years and when he was gone many said, with hushed tones, "another of our best ment is taken," and so it was for Will Hackel was one of the finest men in the valley.

The funeral services were conducted by his pastor, J. L. Hayden at the cemetery in Ord Sunday afternoon. The words for his text were Rev. 14-13, "And I heard a voice from Heaven saying unto me, right bleessd are the dead which die in the lord from hence forth. Yea, Saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their labors and their works do follow them."

BABY LINTHICUM

Last Friday afternoon the 2-months old baby of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Linthicum was buried in the Davis Creek cemetery, Rev. Hayden officiating. The cause of death was flu and the rest of the family were so ill with the disease that they were unable to attend the services. The neighbors were most kind and the family will never forget the kindness shown them in their deep trouble.

INTERESTING LETTER FROM CORPORAL GILROY

Camp Meade, Md., Jan. 3, 1919.

Dear Folks:

I will drop you a few lines to let you know I am well and received the two registered letters one with $30 and the other one with $10 and to say it came in handy is putting it mild. I got a 48-hour pass to go to New York City and with out it I could not have gone and I surely enjoyed the trip. I took a ride on the Subway R. R. and it is a great system. These trolley cars are long ones just a little shorter than the passenger coaches on the U. P. from 4 to 6 in a train and they sure do travel fast. Then you have the surface system and then the elevated one and they all seem to have plenty of business. I never saw as many hacks or taxi-cabs as there are in this city. We saw two extra fine shows but it is very hard to buy a ticket. You have to buy a ticket in advance. I took the elevator and went to the top of the Woolworth building on Broadway which is the highest office building in the world, 55 stories or 723 1 2-ft cost approximately $14,000,000; plot 152 x 197 ft. foundation is 110 to 120 feet below street level. Contains offices of F. W. Woolworth Co., largest 5 and 10 cent syndicate in the world. Then I went to the docks and took a boat to Bedloe's Island upon which stands the statue of Liberty, which was designed by August Bartholdi. It is 150 feet in height, standing upon a pedestal 155 feet and symbolizes "Liberty Enlightening the World." I enjoyed the boat ride and saw several large camouflage ships. The Aquarium stands on Battery Park at the lowest extremity of Manhattan. It overlooks the harbor and was until 1892 the landing place for immigrants but now it contains the finest collection of living fish in existence. Next I saw was the Brooklyn bridge which is called the eighth wonder of the world. It runs over the East river from Park Row in Manhattan to Sands street, Brooklyn. Length 6,537 ft., crossed by numerous trolley and elevated lines and by 350,000 people daily. The port of New York is the busiest in the world, the yearly traffic exceeding 150,000,000 tons. One hundred and fifty-five steamship lines focus here, including the most powerful in the world. The postoffice building is also the central location for U. S. District and Circuit courts, situated on Broadway at Park Row and Mail street. Employs 7,685 clerks and carriers; 1,800 mails dispatched daily. I am studying how to cipher and de-cipher messages beside our general routine of drilling and work, but we haven't the ambition to learn we had before the armistice was signed. We are all looking for our honorable discharge papers to come soon. I guess this is all for this time, hoping to see you soon and will be glad to get back in a dry state again, for when I was in New York City the booze and effects of it were terrible. We got our pay last night and again thanking you for the money and saying that in about 10 days another $30 would come in very handy. Last Saturday when I was over to Washington I went and saw our congressman, Hon. M. P. Kinkaid and he gave me a letter of recommendation to go through the Printing and Engraving, but it closes on Saturday at 3:30 so I did not get to go through but expect to before I come home. So I will close for this time, hoping to see you soon, I am as ever, CORP. C. E. GILROY.

GETS TRIP TO FARMER'S MEETING

Here is a letter that will explain itself. It notifies Emil Urban of the estimate the state authorities place upon his efforts as a junior farmer and stock raiser:

Dec. 28, 1918.

Emil Urban, Ord, Nebr.

My Dear Emil:—I am very glad to announce that you have won first place in Valley county in the pig raising project this year, which entitles you to a free trip to the Junior Farmers week to be held in Lincoln in the late spring. Announcement of the congress will be made later. Also you rank third in raising Chester White pigs in the state which entitles you to a prize of one Chester White pig given by the Chester White Breeders of Nebraska.

Congratulating you upon the success you have had and hoping to see you in Lincoln in the spring, I am,

Very truly yours, GUY R. DAVIS,

NEW BUSINESS FOR ORD

Hillis Neuman of Aurora has rented the former Fackler building and will put in a stosk of automobile accessories about the first of the coming month. The business will be known as the Ord Tire & Repair Co.

LIEUT. PRINCE NAMED

Lieut. Frank C. Prince has been named by Governor McKelvie as an inspector in the Food, Drug and Dairy department. This is a position similar to the one held by George Mayo. It seems to be the policy of the new state administration to select soldiers with technical education for these positions. In this instance the appointment is an especially happy one, Mr. Prince being eminently qualified for the position.

HOME GUARD BANQUET

On New Years Eve the members of the Home Guard had a watch night meeting at the Watson store room. About thirty were present and a very interesting and enjoyable time was had. Before the year die tdhe table was spread and a good feed set out, of which ll took hearty portions. At an appropriate moment gold rings were presented to the officers, Sergeant Weekes and Hoffman doing the speech act to fit the occasion. The recipients of the presents were Captain James, First Lieutenant Roberts and Second Lieutenant Watson.

The boys prolonged the festivities until a few minutes after the new year came in and then departed for home.

D. OF H. ELECT OFFICERS

At their annual election this week the following officers were elected by the Degree of Honor lodge for the ensuing year. Past Chief, Mrs. W. L. Ramsey; Chief, Mrs. George Gaghagan; Lady of Honor, Mrs. Geo. Pratt; C of C, Mrs. ward Van Wie; Financier Mrs. S. M. Mason; Recorder, Mrs. Abbie Daggett; Treasurer, Miss Essie Gaghagan; Ushers, Mesdames McMindes and Tedro; Inside Watch, Mrs. R. R. Burdick.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT

Those of the readers of this paper who have a daily paper, and no doubt most of them do, have read with grief of the sudden and unexpected death of of Theodore Roosevelt. Probably no public man could have passed on, whose demise would have caused the keen regret that this death does.

One of the big men of the country, admired alike by friend and foe, a man who did things, who was no afraid to state just exactly where he stood on any question, regardless of whether it was popular or not, he left the impress of his life upon the generation in which he lived as no other man has since the day of Lincoln.

Theodore Roosevelt was in the prime of life, being only 61 years old and was a great factor in the republican politics of this country. It is questionable whether he would have ever been a presidential candidate, two years hence had he lived but it is certain that he would have been a factor in seeing that some good man was the nominee of his party. A man as active in politics as was Mr. Roosevelt must have of necessity, made some enemies and some mistakes. No doubt he did both but he was many times more often right than wrong. He was the greatest president since Lincoln, doing more than any other man of his time to get the kind of legislation that was good for the country.

JANE MASON

Jane Mason was born at New Castle, England, and died at the home of her brother, John W. Mason in Mira Valley, Nebraska, on the morning of January 6, 1919, aged 80 years and 6 days.

Deceased came to America in 1838 and lived with her parents at Port Henry, New York, until the family removed to Cresco, Iowa. Since the death of her parents she has made her home with her brothers and sisters until the time of her death. She was a member of the Episcopal church. She was a sister of John and Charles Mason of this county and has been in poor health for the past few years.

The remains were brought to the McLain undertaking parlors and the funeral held from there yesterday, interment being in the Ord cemetery. Rev. Hayden officiated, many of the neighbors and friends out in the valley who knew and loved the deceased, coming in to attend the funeral. The members of the family will wish us to express their appreciation for the kindnesses shown them during the sickness and after the death of their sister.

BERT NORRIS HOME

The C. E. Norris folks arrived home last evening from Omaha where they have been caring for their son Bert for the past six weeks. When they went down there they found him in a serious condition and a delicate operation to remove puss from about the lungs, was necessary. He is now on the road to recovery but feels that he had a pretty close call. Mr. Norris is back in his shop looking after the needs of his customers as usual.

SUCHANEK-DESMUL WEDDING

Out at the Geranium church Monday Father Suesser spoke the words that made Renne Desmul and Miss Mary Suchanek man and wife and after the ceremony the friends were entertained at the home of the bride's parents, the Vincent Suchanek family where congratulations were received and a general good time had. Both of these young people are among the most popular in the county and the Quiz joins with their many friends in wishing them happiness and prosperity. They will make their home of the large ranch owned by the groom out in Springdale.

J. A. Perkins has been spending a few days in and about Ord looking after business matters. He will return to his home at Lincoln Saturday.

SARAH JOHNSON UDELL

This community was shocked the first of this week when the sudden death of Mrs. Will Udell was announced. Mrs. Udell, formerly Sarah Johnson, was raised by Mr. and Mrs. Jake Peterson. Though not legally adopted she was loved by them as their own daughter. She was married to Will Udell the 25th of last Feburary and a few months later he was called to the service and so far as the family knows he is still in France. A recent letter said that he expecte to bde on the way home soon and he may be on the way now.

Besides the young husband, there is a brother, Gordon Johnson, some where in the service of Uncle Sam and another brother, Will Smith, adopted son of Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Smith of this city.

Mrs. Udell was very popular among the young people, not only out in the valley where she lived but in Ord as well. She was considerable of a musician and had a beautiful voice. She was a graduate of the Ord schools in the class of 1916. In the opinion of the Quiz Mrs. Udel gave her life to her country as truly as did the boys who iedd in camp or at the front and our hearts go out to the husband who may not even know of the death of his wife until he gets home.

The funeral was held yesterday afternoon from the McLain undertaking parlors, interment being in the Ord cemetery. A former pastor from Ainsworth officiated.

CARL HANKE HURT

Tuesday while on the way to town the team which Carl Hanke was driving became frightened and ran away, throwing Carl out onto the frozen ground. Some one caught the team for him and he drove on into town but he was badly hurt and was taken to the hospital where Dr. Miller gave him treatment. Later he was taken to the home of his sister, Mrs. Henry Geweke and this morning the Quiz learns that he is getting along nicely and begins to talk about getting up and going home. He is unable to recall anything about the accident and don't remember of being taken to the hospital or to the Geweke home but he seems not to be hurt as badly as his people at first feared.

Phone the Quiz the news.

GAVE HIS LIFE FREELY

Last week we made brief mentfon of the death of Forrest Ball, who died at the home of his sister, Mrs. Ernest Hallock in Lincoln. The body was brought to Ord and Rev. Hosman had charge of the funeral services Sunday. Among other things, he said that deceased was truly a soldier hero and he spoke truly for Forrest was ill when he left Camp Funston, so much so that he was forced to leave one of his sachels there, being unable to carry it and by the time he had made the short run up to Lincoln he was unable to go to the home of his sister but went to bed in the nearest hotel. Of course he was taken to the home of his sister as soon as they were advised of his presence in the city but the exposure of the trip while sick with the flu, was more than his constitution could stand.

A large, strong young man, always in the best of health, his people could hardly realize that he could go so quickly and the shock to his father, E. L. Ball, who lives in Canada, was terrible. Members of the family ask that we thank the friends for the kindness shown them. Everything that could be done was done to make their burden lighter.

ARTHUR LEWIS HOME

A telegram was received this morning by Mrs. Susie Lewis from Arthur who had just landed at Newport News, Va., and saying that he would soon be at Fort Dodge where in due time he will be mustered out of the service. He said he was broke and his mother at once wired him money for immediate needs. Arthur is one of our most loyed soldier boys and we shall all be glad to see him home again.

ATTENDED RECEPTION TO THE PRESIDENT

A cablegram received by Mrs. C. J. Mortensen Sunday evening from her husband, Lieut. Mortensen, states that he is stationed at Rouen, France, at the Canton, Ohio, base hospital. He was invited to and attended the Paris reception given for President Wilson and while there met our friend Capt. Oscar L. Nay. He says the Valley county contingent in Fance is well so far as he knows.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

Services next Sunday as follows:
Preaching at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.
Sunday school 10 a. m. B. Y. P. U. 6:30 p. m.
Prayer meeting, Thursday at 7:30 p. m.
"Come thou with us, and we will do thee good."

Several have asked the pastor if there will be services every Sunday from this time on through the month of January. There would be only one reason why we would not have them and that is in case the Board of Health would come to us and tell us that any such a proceedureis prohibited. As Baptists we believe we ought to obey the law and that no church has any right to dictate either state of local government "as the manner of some is." Being a democracy pure and simple we abide by the will of the people and forever insist that church and state shall be separate.

Last Sunday was the first time in some twelve weeks that we had the opportunity to stand in our own pulpit and preach the Gospel. Of course the auditorium was not crowded. However there were several present who listened attentively and appreciated the message which we presented to them. We are expecting better things this year and that right soon. Sexton Hallock had the auditorium thoroughly warmed and everything as in best condition for worship. We looked at the thermometer at the close of the morning service and saw that it registered 80 degrees hot.

We were glad to see brother J. A. Perkins 1 town and especially to have him in our home for a little visit. He came to Ord Monday evening and will remain in town during the week leaving sometime Saturday for his next appointment.

Mr. and Mrs. Moser are recovering from the influenza and will soon be out again. They were very fortunate in being able to secure the services of Mrs. H. H. Berry of Horace as nurse.

Come to church next Sunday morning and evening. There is no "flu" in our services. We trust you will not fail to be present at both and all services. C. J. BUKOUTZ, Pastor.

Among the incoming passengers Monday evening were Jonie Level and family. For three weeks they had been visiting with relatives, the Fish family at Brewster. They had gone over in an auto but the roads were so bad they came home on the train, making a long trip for a short distance. However it did not matter especially as they are out of business for the time being. The only things they were worried about was that the children were not here at the commencement of school.

Stop Profiteering in Farm Loans

The Government, through the Federal Farm Loan Board, has established a rate of 5½ per cent on Nebraska Farm Loans.

DO NOT PAY MORE

Profiteering in farm loans is prevalent. If any loan agent tries to induce you to take a loan at a higher rate, or at 5½ per cent and a big commission, he is not working for your interest, but for a big commission for himself.

The Federal Land Bank of Omaha has abundant funds at all times to close loans. Its own attorneys examine titles without expense to the borrower. Its executive committee at Omaha passes promptly on all applications and loans are closed without red tape or delay.

Federal Farm Loan Bonds are sold at a low rate of interest in the best money markets of the world and the money is loaned to farmers at actual cost. All net earnings of the Land Bank are returned to borrowing stockholders.

You can get the best terms and lowest rate from the Land Bank. You are guaranteed against an increase in the rate and if a lower rate is established you can have the lower rate after five years.

We have loaned $200,000 for the Federal Land Bank in a few months through the National Farm Loan Association. Give us your application now and we will give you prompt service.

Are You Open-Minded?

The average American is open-minded.

American business is conducted by true Americans of vision, open-minded men who believe in their country and strive to meet their country's needs. The men in the packing industry are no exception to the rule.

The business of Swift & Company has grown as the nation has progressed. Its affairs have been conducted honorably, efficiently, and economically, reducing the margin between the cost of live stock and the selling price of dressed meat, until today the profit is only a fraction of a cent a pound—too small to have any noticeable effect on prices.

The packing industry is a big, vital industry—one of the most important in the country. Do you understand it?

Swift & Company presents facts in the advertisements that appear in this paper. They are addressed to every open-minded person in the country.

He also expected to go over to Omaha to see two other brothers and their families. Mr. Matthews has lately returned home from a stay of several months in California.

Dr. Frank Haught was reported last Thursday to have another attack of the flu, in spite of the fact that a few weeks ago he nearly died with the disease. It is quite probable that some of the influenza poison was still in his system after his recent sick spell. He is now about well again.

Among the outgoing passengers last Friday was Gladys Buss who was going to Southerland to teach the balance of the school year. She expected to stop at Kearney between trains. Before leaving Ord she was for a few days entertaining an old friend, John Nicholas of Mason City, at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Pratt.

The Misses Elizabeth and Minnie Lukes are two other teachers who have been traveling back and forwards this winter waiting for the flu to let up its deadly work. They teach at Abbie and in order to have been on hand to start their schools on Monday they should have started last week but could not do so because there was flu in their home and they were quarantined.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross Beauchamp came in from the Mrs. Roy Beauchamp place last Saturday where they had been assisting in caring for the two orphaned boys, who are ill with the flu. Mr. Beauchamp was in an open car and he drove on to Burwell. His wife came in with Mrs. Will McLain in a covered car and went back to Burwell on the train.

Rev. Craven was down from Burwell Monday in charge of the Frank Koupal funeral and took occasion to call briefly at the Quiz office. While the flu has been a terrible scourge up there as here, their toll of death has been much less than here. For the past eight weeks, while there have been no church services he has been assisting the doctors in every way in caring for the sick and he feels that the prompt assistance of the citizens has been a great factor in controling the disease.

While in Ord Monday afternoon enroute home from Grand Island where they had been looking after business matters in connection with the Loup Valley Packing Co., of which they are officers, M. B. Goodenow and W. D. Hart were pleasant Quiz visitors. Both gentlemen are enthusiastic about the business outlook for their new business and indeed there seems to be no reason why such an undertaking should not prove a great success. Mr. McLean and Mr. Rassett were also both in Ord Monday and while in this office said that prospects for the company looked very bright to them.

Last Thursday John Beauchamp of Kansas City arrived at the home of the late Mrs. Roy Beauchamp and was spending several days with his twi little fatherless and motherless grand children. They boys were both ill in bed when their mother died and also when she was brought to Ord and buried. It is sometimes the lot of some little child to be left without one of their parents but we are thankful it is not often out lot to tell of children left without either father or mother as is the case with these two little boys. Their father died about six years ago. Friday evening an aunt and a sister of their mother, Ethel Hutchinson, arrived in Ord from Missouri. Her home in in Indiana. Saturday she went out to the desolate home to care for the sick children. Other relatives, Mr. and Mrs. Ross Beauchamp of Burwell went over and spent Friday and stayed all night ministering to the sick ones.

AUCTION SALE OF ORD ICE HOUSE

At two o'clock p. m.

Saturday, Jan'y 11

I will sell the Ord Ice House together with all equipment belonging thereto, including the lake and the land, at public auction. Sale will take place at the Ice House if weather conditions permit, otherwise it will be held at the south door of the court house.

This is one of the best paying propositions in Ord, but, being engaged in farming and stock raising and having more to do than I can attend to, I am wholly unable to give the Ice business the attention it requires and should have. This is my only reason for disposing of it. It is one of the best ice plants in the state of Nebraska and there is never any difficulty or trouble to get plenty of ice or to sell the ice after it is put up. The lake has been recently cleaned out and everything is in readiness for filling the Ice House with the very best of clear ice.

Terms of sale will be announced at time of sale.

On the freight last Tuesday Jacob Tucker returned to his home at Brighton, near Denver, Colo. He has been here for a couple of weeks with his brother-in-law G. D. Hopkins. The latter lives about twelve miles north of Ord. He says they are having a plenty of flu in his neighborhood. Mr. Tucker recently lost one of his boys who was in service in California, the cause of death being pneumonia. Just before coming to Nebraska he buried a grand son, death being caused by flu. He says in his neighborhood there has been a number of deaths from that disease.

On New Year's Eve my good friend Rood
Sat at his desk in pensive mood.
(So writes he ever his own phist
And prints it in the Loyalist.)
His memory called one by one
His bad deeds wrought and good undone.
The time he scared a little toad
That hopped along the muddy road;
The time he kicked a dog because
He broke the sanitary laws
The time he beat his cow—almost.
(He would have beat her but—pell-mell—
She ran just as the milkstool fell.)
These and a thousand other things
Passed through his mind on sable wings.
And then his mind's movie machine
Threw other pictures on the screen.
A new film in the thing turned loose
And brought up scenes far more obstruce.
His cruel mind without relent
Down to heart's secret workings went
And laid before him stark and bare
The things his soul had harbored there.
Bad thoughts he had of other folks
Thoughts that his lips had never spoke
Came crowding to his memory.
(Did they include his thoughts of me?)
Wishes there were melevolent
Against defenseless foemen sent,
And maledictions without stint
That would not look so well in print.
An hour passed on and then more hours
While Rood sat bound by psychic powers,
Prodded by shame and vain regret,
His noble brow suffused with sweat.
He tried to speak—his voice was dead.
He tried to move, but gasped instead.
But finally he broke the spell
Just as his soul plunged into—heaven.
No wonder now that we should hear

ECHOES FROM WOODMAN HALL

This 16 below zezo has kept every one busy and at home so news is rather scarce this week.

The flu is extinct in our neighborhood and hope it will remain so.

Lloyd and Harold Pedrick and Charles Krikac called on the Waldmann boys last Sunday afternoon.

Mr. Pedrick received a telegram from South Dakota that his father had died and he was to leave this Monday morning fo rhis former home in Kansas where the remains were to be brought and laid to rest.

Mrs. Jim Sic was snow bound at her parental home during the holidays. Not a bad place to be during this blizzardy weather.

Frank Krikac is well pleased with his returns from his cattle that he shipped to the Farmers Union last week. Brother farmers, remember your own interests when shipping stock to Omaha. Look up the farmers stock yards before you dispose of your stock.

We had no mail Saturday on account of cold weather and bad roads.

The Flu Situation

THE present Flu epidemic is probably the worst the country has ever experienced. Sad as it is, it carries a lesson of importance with it and that is it pays every body to have due regard for health and business affairs.

About the first thing asked concerning every man who has died of the flu is: "How did he leave his family fixed? How much life insurance did he have?" If he left his family well fixed, or if he had a goodly sum of life insurance, people comment favorably on his business sagacity and shrewdness. If he left little or nothing and no life insurance, then the comment is to wonder how the family will get along. Our lives hang on a slender thread. The living of today may be the dead of tomorrow. In the midst of life we are in death, especially in this flu epidemic, and it certainly behooves every one to give due consideration to health and business matters.

Meet me at Milford's.

Otto Fuss is one of our sickest flu patients this week, but is doing nicely.

The little child of Mr. and Mrs. John Mason, Jr., has been very ill but is better the middle of this week.

Both Alvin Blessing and A. Sutton are being prominently mentioned in connection with the appointment of supervisor in place of J. H. Carson.

The habit had become too strong to resist and H. M. Davis of the Journal had to go down to Lincoln to see that the legislature got started off as it should.

After Jan. 15th we expect to also have an uptown office, 4 doors west of Milfords, known as the Dr. Haldeman office. Call and see us. We will then be better equipped to accommodate you. F. J. VOPAT.

Among the outgoing passengers Tuesday were C. E. Rassett and R. J. McLean, who went down to Grand Island for a few days on business but had come up from the Island and McLean from Omaha on Saturday. The latter tells us that his wife has recovered from flu and its after effects. She was very low a few weeks ago. She has numerous friends up here having spent the greater portion of the summer in Ord.

John Rybin recently received a letter fro mhis brother in Bohemia and among other news he told somewhat of the prices revailing over there for articles usually considered necessities. One item mentioned was top boots for men which were selling for 1,000 crowns. A crown is equal to about 20 cents of our money. Men's lace shoes cost 350 crown, ladies shoes 200 crowns, ladies hose 40 crowns. Dry goods that were worth 6 crowns a yard a few years ago are now selling for 300 crowns a yard. Mr. Rybin's brother said that he had sold thirteen young geese, seven weeks old for 1,000 crowns. Twenty-eight ozs of pork was worth from 44 to 50 crowns and the same amount of beef was worth 10 to 12 crowns. The established government price for 200 pounds of wheat was 80 crowns but there was none for sale at that price and when any one able to buy it could find any wheat for sale it sold readily for 1,000 crowns for 200 pounds. We think the prices here are mighty high but the prices mentioned in this letter take the cake sure.

THE BIG TASK METHODISM HAS UNDERTAKEN

In the Methodist denomination, at this time there is one thing that is commanding their universal attention and is being given the right of way—THE CENTENARY; this is a movement with which Methodism will celebrate the One Hundredth Anniversary of its missionary work by preparing a more adequate way to meet the world's needs.

In this movement the Southern Methodist join together with us.

The Five Protestant denominations in Canada join together in a movement similar to our Centenary.

Other Protestant denominations among us are launching movements with the same ultimate aim in view as our Centenary; a more adequate way with which to meet the world's needs.

This is the week for mobilizing the forces of our local Methodism; the following organization has been arranged (largely by the former pastor) for the Ord church:

No one can afford to neglect carrying Life Insurance

A week ago Marshal Crow had seventy-five Ord families quarantined but he told us yesterday morning that there were only sirteen of them still in quarantine and he had orders to let several of them out during the day. He thought he would release all within a few days and there had been no new homes quarantined for a couple of days.

Many land sales have been made during the year, to be closed about March 1st. If you made one, let me fix your abstract of title and other papers this month, before the rush begins. Can save you interest on farm loans. 41-1t. J. H. CAPRON.

Jack Dillon, who had been in York county for a few days, returned to Ord the first of the week and was accompanied by his sister who is a nurse and who will help out in caring for the sick if her services are needed.

INFLUENZA STILL CLAIMING VICTIMS BY THE THOUSANDS

Warning to the country that the Influenza epidemic is by no means ended, and that all possible precautions against the disease should be taken has just been issued by the public health authorities at Washington.

Late reports show that the disease is breaking out anew in its very worst form from practically one end of the country to the other. Already there have been over 300,000 deaths from the disease and one prominent health official predicts that there will possibly be 750,000 deaths in this country next year from Influenza and the ailments which follow it. Tre disease has been very baffling to the medical profession and health authorities frankly admit that ordinary preventive measures such as wearing of masks and closing public places seem of little avail.

Persons who are weak and rundown, and who have not the strength to throw off the influenza germ, are the earliest victims. Those who catch colds easily or who are suffering from catarrhal troubles are also early victims, as the inflamed mucus membrane linings of the nose and throat are an open door to the germs. If you are suffering from any of these symptoms, nothing will build you up and fortify your system against attack like Tanlac, which contains the most powerful tonic properties known to science. This statement is easily proven by the fact that this celebrated medicine is now having the greatest sale of any system tonic in the history of medicine. It has been accomplishing remarkable results during the present epidemic and hundreds of thousands who have used it are enjoying the best of health. One prominent physician in Texas frankly stated that he had found Tanlac to be the finest tonic to be had for building up his patients who had had influenza.

Actual experience has shown that the best way to keep from taking influenza is to keep the system in good shape as it is a well known fact that the powers of resistence of the human system can be so perfected that it can throw off almost any infection, not even excepting Spanish Influenza, which is one of the most contageous diseases known.

Tanlac increases your strength and weight and creates a good, healthy appetite for nourishing food. It keeps you physically fit and makes you strong, vigorous and well, and in this way fortifies you against deadly disease germs. In connection with the Tanlac treatment, be sure to keep the bowels open by taking Tanlac Laxative Tablets.

Tanlac is sold in Ord by E. F. Beranek and in Arcadia by Copeland & Moore. 40-2t

IT'S NOT YOUR HEART IT'S YOUR KIDNEYS

The kidneys are the most important organs of the body. They are the filterers, the purifiers, of your blood.

Kidney disease is usually indicated by weariness, sleeplessness, nervousness, despondency, backache, stomach trouble, pain in loins and lower abdomen, gall stones, gravel, rheumatism, sciatica and lumbago.

All these derangements are nature's signals to warn you that the kidneys need help. You should use GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules immediately. The soothing, healing oil stimulates the kidneys, relieves inflammations and destroys the germs which have caused it. Do not wait until tomorrow. Go to your druggist today and insist on GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules. In twenty-four hours you should feel health and vigor returning and will bless the day you first heard of GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil.

After you feel that you have cured yourself, continue to take one or two capsules each day, so as to keep in first-class condition and ward off the danger of other attacks.

Ask for the original imported GOLD MEDAL brand. Three sizes. Money refunded if they do not help you.

LOCAL HAPPENINGS

This morning Mrs. C. C. Shepard was a passenger for Omaha.

George McMeans, brother of Mrs. John Jones, is seriously ill, suffering probably with asthma and the flu.

Mrs. J. J. Blodgett was a passenger this morning for Horace to spend a few days with friends.

Dr. Lindberg was free from fever yesterday and is recovering rapidly, though she was seriously ill the first of the week.

The Kemp family is out after a few days quarantine with the flu. Mrs. Kemp and Leonard were the victims.

Among the outgoing passengers this morning were Mrs. Carrie Smith and her daughter-in-law Mrs. O. O. Smith. They were going to Grand Island.

After a few days stay with her people the Fred Boyce family Mrs. J. C. Jackson returned this morning to Bonesteel S. D. Her husband went back a couple of weeks ago.

Miss Hutchinson, sister of Mrs. Beauchamp, was entertained by Mrs. Peter Mortensen upon her arrival here. Mrs. Mortensen and Mrs. Beauchamp had been particular friends for many years.

HARVEY BARNES DEAD

Another of our fine young men has sacrificed his life to the terrible flu and when the word came the first of the week that Harvey Barnes was dead at his home near North Loup from pneumonia following a few days sickness, it was a great shock to the community. Harvey was the oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Barnes of Greeley but for many years a resident of Ord. Harvey was born at Three Oaks, Michigan, Dec. 15, 1882, and was a small child when the family came to Ord so he was really a product of this county. He was farming and batching near North Loup. Last fall he was a prominent democrat candidate for treasurer in the primary, educated himself lagrely through his own efforts and was a fine type of manhood. He was the first of eleven children to die. He is survived by his parents and the brothers and sisters. They are Mrs. Leon Cronk of Greeley, Mrs. Curt Wilson, Mrs. Jim Arnold, Mrs. Wesley Daily all of Ord, Mrs. John Canning of Greeeyl, Howard and Chester both in the navy, the former at New York and the latter at the Great Lakes, and George, Ellis, Truman and Hershel all at home. Howard was here last night but had but a brief furlough to come home on account of the illness of his brother and was unable to get an extension of time and left this morning to report to his headquarters when the time was up, being unable to wait for the funeral, which was to be held this afternoon if relatives could be here.

Harvey was alone when first taken sick but as soon as possible his mother went to him and the services of a trained nurse were also secured but to no avail.

Harvey was a member of the Methodist church, joining at Ord and later taking his membership to the church at Greeley where he lived for a time. The remains will be buried in the Ord cemetery according to plans this morning.

OLIVE LOLETTA BEAUCHAMP

Last week shortly before going to press the Quiz got word of the death of Mrs. Beauchamp but was unable to get the particulars of her life.

Mrs. Beauchamp was born at Terre Haute, Ind., in April, 1875,, and at the time of her death, Jan. 1, 1919, was 43 years of age. She was married fourteen years ago to Roy Beauchamp and most of their married life was spent here. He died several years ago. There are two sons, one 13 and one 10 years of age and both were so ill that they were unable to attend their mother's funeral Tuesday of this week. Interment was made in the Ord cemetery and Pastor Hosman had charge of the services.

There is one sister, Miss Hutchins, who lives at Springfield, Mo., the only close relative of deecased. She arrived last Friday evening and will remain for a time to assist in caring for the orphan boys, the youngest of whom is still veyr sick.

Mrs. Beauchamp was a member of the First United Brethren church of Terre Haute, Ind. She was a good wife and mother and had many friends here who grieve for the two little boys who are left practically homeless.

Always good advertisers, The Nebaska State bank are using more than the usual amount of space this week and have several announcements worthy of consideration of every Quiz reader. Mr. VanDecar fully understands the value of printers ink, is an ad writer of much more than ordinary ability and never cramps the printer man for space, for he always says, "use what space it needs to make it look right." Read his advertisements this week.

This morning Mrs. Norel Lamberton returned to Lewistown, Mont.

Among the incoming passengers last evening were Mrs. Irvin Thelin and Mrs. Jim Travis from Notrh Loup.

Last evening the mother of Roscoe Watson came up from Grand Island for a few days visit.

The Charley Miller family north of town, are said to be getting along nicely after all having the flu.

METHODIST FURNACE FROZE UP

Indirectly the flu has played havoc with the furnace in the Methodist church for it was due to the flu that services were not held, the furnace was neglected and froze up and burst and those in charge of the matter feel that it will be almost the best thing to get a new furnace. The old one never has been eminently satisfactory anyhow.

GEM THEATRE RE-OPENS SATURDAY NIGHT

For several weeks the management of the Gem Theatre has been beseiged with the question, "When will the picture show be opened?" That question can be answered now. The opening will be Saturday night with one of Fatty Arbuckle's comedies. The feature that night will star Charlie Ray who plays the Rube camedian. The subject cannot be given now but you know who Charlie is for you saw him in the "Hired Man" a few weeks ago, and you know he will please you.

Some improvements in theatre equipment have been made since closing, which give promise for a fine projection upon the screen. The same standard of films as has been shown will be continued. The house will be thoroughly aired each day and a great effort will be put forth for ventilation and a warm room.

Some of the most prominent doctors claim that a frightened, gloomy mind makes its owner a better subject for the Flu. If this be true, suppose we try seeing Fatty at Coney Island Saturday night and laugh the flu germs away.

First show starts at 7:30.

ANNOUNCEMENT

Since taking over the former Bill Timm business we have been greatly pleased with the splendid business that has been coming, in fact it has been better than we had a right to expect, weather and health conditions considered. We appreciate this business and want to invite all our friends to come in and see us. We want your trade and will try to merit it by the service we will give. 41-1t

Mrs. Walter Noll is suffering this week with the flu doubtless contracted while at Elyria last week caring for her sister, Mrs. Norton and other members of the Norton family who had it.

Frank Dworak arrived home on a furlough Friday evening in time to attend his brother Stanley's funeral. He was four days and three nights making the trip. He comes from Norfolk, Va.

On page 7 this week will be found the sale advertising of Palser Bros. This is one of the big sales of the season and large space is being used to let all Quiz readers know about it. Better plan to attend this sale.

Clerk Elect Joe Knezacek was getting onto the ropes at the clerks office the first of this week preparatory to taking over the office today or tomorrow. Clerk Barlett was still confined to his home with the flu the first of the week.

Among the incoming Union Pacific passengers last Saturday evening was Clara Palmatier who returned to Ord at once upon hearing of the serious condition of her brother-in-law Roy Thompson. When she reached here he was dead and buried. She had been in Denver for the last few months.

Upon receipt of a telegram informing them of the death of a brother, J. W. Smith of Lincoln, Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Smith left last Friday afternoon for that place. The deceased is well known in these parts having spent a portion of last summer up here. Paralysis was the cause of death.

Ed Hansen has been a pretty sick man for the past few days. He was said to be on the mend the first of the week but it will be some time before he will be himself again. He had a severe case of the flu but was lothe to give up to the disease for several days after he should have been in bed.

Chas. Arnold invited several of the young people around town last Saturday evening to come out to his batchelor quarters on the farm and have a chicken feed. Those who went report a jolly time. They had to fry the chickens after they arrived but that made all the more sport. They organized themselves into a mock court and tried several cases with Charley on the bench as judge.

Levi Locker is advertising his cleanup sale this week. It will be remembered that he recently sold his place in west Ord to Lutes Gizinski who will occupy it soon after the first of February. The Quiz is also making sale bills and will soon advertise the Gizinski sale which will be held early next month. Mr. Locker will move to his former home at Scotia.

W. C. Woolery came home the latter part of last week from a few days spent with his daughter, Mrs. Henry Murdock and family at Genoa. He will go in a few days, to Des Moines where he has several brothers and sisters. He was accompanied home by his son John Woolery who arrived at Genoa Christmas day from southern California where he was discharged from the service. He was in the coast artillery.

On account of sickness with home people Bess Mason was not able to teach in the high school last week. Mamie Smith was taking her place there as instructor in English. The latter left Saturday for Fullerton where she has work in the public schools. The children of that city have been forced several times to discontinue their studies on account of flu and Miss Mamie has made several trips home. She is hoping she will be able this time to finish her term before closing again.

Chas. Vandas fro Omaha, a brother of Mrs. Stanley Dworak, spent several days with his sister last week. He had expected to attend the funeral but four days was all he could be spared from his work, and the services could not be held until late in the week on account of the non-arrival of Frank Dworak. Mrs. Stanley Dworak's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Mike Vandas of Omaha were able however, to stay until after the funeral which was held Saturday afternoon.

LEAGUE INDORS BY FEDERAL CO T

A year's invest ion of the Nonpartisan league the administration of its affair President A. C. Townley has be concluded by the federal district c t. Federal Judge Charles F. Amid eviewing the case in a 4,500-word ision, summarizes the court's inves tion of the books and records of t eague and its publications in the owing words:

"The record ull and has been honestly kept, and it shows an honest purpose to give an account of an honest stewardship."

The federal case was instituted as the result of the fact that nearly five years ago, when A. C. Townley was a flax farmer at Beach, N. D., he was forced to the wall when grain gamblers forced the price of flax down below the $1 mark. Townley had been engaging for three years in flax culture on a large scale, adopting the principles of "scientific farming" guaranteed to bring success to any farmer. He had contracted for land and had bought tractors on a large scale, and was pointed out as an example of what success "better farming" could bring, and was known as the "flax king." When the depressed price threatened to bring ruin Townley pointed out to his creditors that the price was bound to rise and pleaded for more time to dispose of his crop, guaranteeing to pay 100 cents on the dollar. The time was denied him and he left Beach a ruined man, his entire property in the hands of his creditors. Later flax rose to more than double its price, justifying the claim that Townley, if not forced to the wall, would have been able to repay his creditors dollar for dollar.

Nothing was heard of the claims against Townley until the Nonpartisan league became a success. Then attempts were made to attach League property and stories were set in circulation that Townley and his wife property and stories were set in circulation that Townley and his wife had vast sums sequestered, stolen from the farmers. Townley determined to end the persecution of the league and to demand a showdown of the loose stories of sequestered funds and institute bankruptcy proceedings, filing a complete schedule of his assets.

Francis Murphy of Minot, noted as a bitter League enemy, appeared in the case as attorney for an oil company which presented a claim for $900. During the year of litigation which followed thousands of dollars were spent, detectives were placed on the trail of Townley and his wife and a complete investigation was made of the books and records of the league the Nonpartisan Publishing company in an effort to find what Judge Amidon terms this "hidden treasure."

In his decision Judge Amidon stated:

"The search has been pursued not only with the zeal of creditors intent on collecting their debts, but that of political advertisers seeking to discredit a party believed to be dangerous. Detectives were hired to ingratiate themselves with the wife of the bankrupt. * * * As the result of months of following up these clues by the trustee, the creditors and their detectives, counsel for the trustee, the creditors and their detectives, counsel for the trustee stated frankly on the argument at a recent hearing that no secret reposit or specific property held upon trust had been found. The conclusion is justified, and the court so finds the fact to be, that the reason why this hidden treasure has not been found is that it does not exist."

Judge Amidon finds that the entire property of the League and of the Nonpartisan Publishing company belongs to the farmers who constitute the League and this finding definitely ends any attempt on the part of creditors to obtain any such property. Speaking of the investigation of the books and records of the League the decision says:

"The trustee has been permitted to go through the record of all these concerns as with a lighted candle. He has found no trace of any grant of any of the funds or property of the Nonpartisan league or its subordinate agencies to Mr. Townley, except a salary of $300 per month. On the contrary, the record shows clearly and affirmatively that the Nonpartisan league and its subordinate agencies have never granted to Mr. Townley any part of their funds or property as his personal estate, that he has never made any claim to those funds or properties as belonging to himself personally and he has never used them for any purpose except that of a political leader, devoting them honestly to the achievement of the objects of his party.

"The record is full and has been honestly kept and it shows an honest purpose to give an account of an honest stewardship."

Judge Amidon, who rendered the decision, is a presidential appointee who never has had any connection with the Nonpartisan league, having obtained a life appointment to the district bench before the League became a power.

The net result of the decision is that Mr. Townley is ordered to pay $17.89, the amount by which his own schedule of assets exceeded the statutory exemption. The decision specifically denies creditors any right to any funds or property of the Nonpartisan league or any subsidiary organizations.

GUY G. PATTON NAMED

Guy G. Patton of Fremont has been named by the governor as one of the state insurance board examiners. Guy is a son of James A. Patton and formerly lived in Ord.

ARCHIE WASHBURN WRITES HIS ORD FRIENDS

La Palilce, France, Dec. 18.

Mr. Shirley and boys at home:—

Will write a few lines tonight as I have nothing in particular to do. Will try to let you know that although I am no where near the front that life on this side is not all sunshine.

We are located in a real pretty part of France and real near the ocean. In the summer this would be a fine place but now it is just a little too cool.

Tonight it is raining like hell beating tanbark with no sign of a stop.

Will endeavor to tell you what I have been doing since leaving the U. S. A. First of all we landed in bloody England, Liverpool. From there to Glasgow, Scotland. At Philadelphia I was attached to the U. S. Naval pipe line unit and we laid an eight-inch oil pipe from Glasgow to a little town by the name of Grangemanth, it is only a short ways from Edinburgh. This line is laid along the Firth of Forth canal and is thirty-six miles long, so you see we have not been idle very long. We were then transferred to the air station here, expected to have more pipe work here, but think since the war is over that our next move will be for home.

The Spanish flu wasn't near as bad here as at home. Every precaution was taken to prevent it but a few cases got out at that. We had two deaths here.

Lincoln and I met in France. We wrote each other and he found that there was quite a lot of motor transport work between these two places and he found that he could get a truck to bring up here so he came. We sure had a fine visit, some treat to get to see old Abe.

Well Bud, I would like to see you over here among all these pretty French girls. If you were here I could talk this lingo there would be some time.

Some fine times over here for the U. S. A. men.

Well, I must get to bed as the lights have winked and that means hurry for me.

Best regards to all the boys and be like the Jew (keep the home fires burning.)

ARCHIE R. WASHBURN,
S. C. 3rd U. S. Naval Air Station,
La Pallice, France.

MUST HAVE THE QUIZ

Askov, Minn., Jan. 7, 1919.

Mr. H. D. Leggett, Ord, Neb.

Dear Sir—As we wish to have the Quiz keep on coming, I think I had better send in my subscription before you stop sending it to me. We have taken it now for about fifteen years, so it woudl seem pretty lonesome without it. It is soon three years since we left Valley county and moved up here to Minnesota. Crops up here were just fine last year and we all like it fine and dandy. I uspose you have all read about the great forrest fire that we had up here last fall. It just missed our place about half a mile, so we escaped pretty lucky. It was sure some sight as we couldn't see anything for fire and smoke and it kept on smoking for about two weeks after. I see in the Quiz that the flu is pretty bad down there and that there has so many of our good friends passed away since we left, but we are all in hopes that the dreadful disease will soon be checked. There hasn't been but a very few cases around here.

Well, I must ring off for this time.

SAMPLE COPIES OF QUIZ

If you get a copy of this paper this week, or any week and are not a subscriber, take it home and read it and don't be afraid that we are trying to crowd the paper onto you. Some papers get their lists largely in that way but never the Quiz. Your name will never be placed on the Quiz list unless you order it there and you will never be asked to pay a cent for the paper unless you have ordered it. We want you to know what it is like, however, and sometimes we send out sample copies. If you get one it is an invitation to read it and if you like it, come in and subscribe, or phone us to put you on the list. The Quiz almost invariably carries double the home news and double the advertising of any Valley county paper. It has double the circulation of any paper in the county. Last week it carried 665 inches of paid advertising, almost three times as much as any other paper in the county. Advertisers know they get results, is the reason.

MANY GARAGE CHANGES

There are several important garage changes taking place this week or soon. The Weaver building, just west of the Quiz shop, has been leased by E. W. Gruber who will handle several lines of cars this year. He did a splendid business last year with his Republic trucks and the Scripps-Booth cars. Mr. E. S. Bair, who has been using this building for his Hudson cars, has removed his show cars to the Huff garage where he will have them, at least for the present.

The firm of Hughes & Burdick has leased the stone garage on the corner west of the Gem and will move up there as soon as the place is vacated my Mr. Burdick and Messrs Van Skike and Tolbert will occupy the Siler garage, vacated by them.

These changes, with the new auto supply house being opened in the former Fackler building, makes a change in a majority of the places of this kind in the city.

HE SPOILED HIS SHOES

Representative Dave Strong came up from Lincoln last Friday for a short rest and visit with the home folks. After his strenuous labors at Lincoln he was pretty tired and retired early to rest. Mrs. Strong had not yet retired when she heard a great commotion at the barn. She called her husband and told him she believed there was a horse down and that she would go out and see and if he was needed she would call. He soon heard her call and jumping out of bed he hurried into a few clothes. His shoes polished until they could be used for a mirror, were by the stove and Dave jerked them on, Jerry Simpson style, not even waiting to button them. When he got to the barn a valuable horse was so wedged under the manger that it required fast and hard work to chop the stall down and get her out. The warm weather had made the barn yard sloppy and first the unbuttoned shoes were on, then off and when the job was finished and the horse safe a perfectly good ten cent shine was so covered with barnyard dirt that the shoes could hardly be recognized and they were as bad inside as outside. It was noon Saturay before Dave got those shoes cleaned up and dry so he could come to town. It is needless to say that he was kept busy till dark shaking hands with his friends. He returned to Lincoln Monday morning.

DROZDA-FISHER WEDDING

Tuesday at ten a. m. at the Catholic church Father Suesser spoke the words that made Miss Christina Drozda and William Fischer man and wife. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Drozda of this city and is one of the popular young ladies of Ord. The groom, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hans Fischer of near Elyria is also well known in Ord and is engaged in the hardware and garage business at Elyria. He had a home prepared for his bride and they began house eekping at once. They will take an extended auto trip when the good weather and good roads of spring comes, which will be their wedding trip. The Quiz desires to extend congratulations and wishes the happy couple the greatest of happiness and prosperity.

GEORGE R. MEANS

George R. Means was born in Warren county, Illinois, Dec. 23rd, 1865, where he grew to manhood. His father died when he was but a small boy. He lived with his mother until she broke up housekeeping and then he moved to Nebraska making his home with his sister Mrs. John Jones of Ord. He was known to be cheerful and charitable. He suffered for many years with asthma and on Friday night, January 10th, he passed away. He leaves to mourn his loss two sisters, Mrs. John Jones of Ord, Neb., and Mrs. Ida Sickman, Los Angeles, Cal. The funeral service was held from the McLain undertaking parlors Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock and was in charge of Rev. Charles J. Bukoutz, pastor of the First Baptist church. Mrs. Ida Sickman of Los Angeles was not able to be present. Several kind friends and neighbors were in attendance and spoke words of sympathy to those who were left to mourn the passing away of the deceased.

The family deeply appreciate the kindnesses shown them during the sickness of their brother.

RONALD ORCUTT BADLY BURNED

Last Saturday morning little Ronald Orcutt was unfortunate enough to have a pan of hot water spilled down his back when he got too close to where the cook was at work. She started to remove a pan of water from the stove and the pan being hot she dropped it, not knowing that the child had come close. It was most fortunate that the water was not boiling though pretty hot and the child was severely burned.

BROKE THE FIRE HYDRANT

Last Saturday evening the driver of the Jorgen Moeller car got too close to the sidewalk on the corner by the Kosmata store and struck the fire hydrant breaking it off. A deluge for that part of town was threatened before the water could be shut out of the main at the reservoir and Manager Lund and Plumber Gass worked till 4 a. m. getting a new hydrant in place and the damage repaired. It was indeed fortunate that it was not zero weather for both men were wet and covered with mud from head to foot when their job was done.

ERNEST EHLER DEAD

J. B. Nay informed us this week of the death of his nephew, Ernest Ehler, oldest son of Ed Ehler, at his home, Helix, Oregon, from the flu after a weeks illness. All the family had the dread disease but all except Ernest recovered. The letter telling of his death, said he was crazy from the disease most of the week that he was sick.

He was born in Valley county, December 23, 1886, and died December 22, 1918, and would have been 35 years old had he lived three days longer. He was well known in Ord and all the country north as the family live in Garfield county for many years.

He leaves to mourn his going his wife and three children, two boys and a girl, also his father and brother Archie in Canada and his brother Clarence with the Colors in France and his mother and five sisters all of whom live in California.

Ernest was an expert garage man and blacksmith and had and conducted a profitable business at Helix.

DID GOOD DAYS WORK

Emil Aagaard did a mighty good days work last Saturday and made anywhere from three to five thousand dollars when he bought the Misko ice house property for $6,500. The property sold at auction, Col. Burdick doing the selling. The advertising was attended to by Banker VanDecar, who was anxious that the plant be operated. The place was built several years ago by W. Misko, who says it cost him ten thousand dollars besides the land and his own work and he feels that the new owner has made a splendid buy. Misko traded the plant to Curt Wilson, who in turn traded it to Ed Jensen. Mr. Jensen operated it a couple of years, having to do so with all hired help, which is not satisfactory as it is a business that requires personal attention, yet he made money out of it. Mr. Aagaard is just the kind of a man who will make a success of the business. He is able to do lots of the work himself and has the disposition to do it and he has plenty of means to carry on the buisienss right. He is well known in Ord and has the confidence of the people who know that his dealings will always be fair. The Quiz is indeed glad to see him get this property and predicts that he will make of it a great success.

THE HOSMAN BOYS

The Hosman people have been enjoying a visit from their son Lieut. E. M. Hosman for a few days, which reminds us that the Omaha Daily News of a few days ago carried a fine picture of the three Hosman boys in the service. Perhaps some Quiz readers who know Dr. Hosman and his wife may not know that they have three boys in the service. The following is the story that the Omaha paper carried in connection with the pictures of the soldier boys:

The theory that all preachers' sons turn out bad is disproven in one case, at least, by the fact that three sons of a former pastor of an Omaha church are now in the service of Uncle Sam in the present war.

"The minister in question is Rev. E. E. Hosman, pastor for six years of the Walnut Hill Methodist church, and the three sons are Private David Fay Hosman, with the chemical war service gas defense at Astoria, L. I.; Sergt. Paul D. Hosman, 108th United States engineers corps, Co. D, with the mapping section of the British army headquarters in France, and Second Lt. Everett M. Hosman, at Vancouver Barracks, Wash.

Mr. Hosman, after leaving this city, was district superintendent for six years, with headquarters at Norfolk, and is now pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church of Grand Island.

Paul Hosman is a graduate of the Norfolk High school, and was a student in the University of Illinois when he enlisted.

Everett Hosman is a graduate of the Lyons High school, Nebraska University and the University of Chicago. He was serving as a camp secretary of the Young Men's Christian association at Camp Funston when he entered the military service.

David Hosman graduated from the Omaha High school and the University of Wisconsin. He was first assistant chemist in the laboratory of the Blue Valley Creamery company of Chicago at the time of his enlistment.

Mr. Hosman and his three boys who are now serving their country had a large acquaintance in Omaha.

THE COUNTY BOARD

The new county board met Tuesday morning for the first time and effected a temporary organization by choosing Supervisor Fisher as temporary chairman of the board. The resignation of Supervisor J. H. Carson was then presented and accepted and the name of Alvin Blessing, who had been selected by the county clerk, county attorney and county treasurer for the place, presented. Mr. Blessing was promptly chosen as chairman of the board, the commissioners doubtless feeling that the chairman, for business reasons, should be an Ord man.

After some preliminary business an adjournment was taken until after dinner to allow the chairman to arrange his committees and when the board met in the afternoon the following committees were named:

Grounds and Buildings, Lindhartsen Rowell and Rettenmeyer.

When the matter of printing and supplies came up it was found that the Ord Journal had filed bids on the printing and that there were no other bids on file. It was moved and seconded that all bids be rejected and the purchasing agent be instructed to buy the county supplies in the open market. County Clerk Knezacek was made purchasing agent.

The committees have been putting in a good deal of time on committee work the past couple of days and at the hour of going to press we are unable to get a report on the settlement with county officers and other work that was still unfinished.

It seems to be the sentiment of the committee on house and grounds to fix up the county offices, some of which are in bad shape. A little new paper and paint will make a great improvement.

FERDINAND WHEELER WRITES HIS PEOPLE

Somewhere in Germany, Dec. 10.

Dear Mother:—

I will drop you a few lines tonight to let you know I am still O. K. and feeling fine. We have been on the go for the last two weeks, have been making from 15 to 36 kilometers a day, sure have been tired at nights but we have to keep on going. We went across Belgium, Luxemburg and now in Germany. The folks here treat us good. We have been buying stuff of the civilians for we didn't get much on the march. It was pretty high. I got a pound of liver sausage to take along and it cost me 5 marks or $1.20 a pound. There were four of us boys got some pancakes made and we had to furnish the eggs, besides, which cost us a mark or $1.20 a piece. The cakes were the size of a plate. She made about a dozen and it cost us $5.28, besides the two eggs. What do you think of that; my cash is getting pretty low. I borrowed 115 francs from Sam Sautter of Scotia. I have four months pay coming now and December will make five. I hope you folks are well and feeling fine. I hope it don't take them very long to sign up peace, so I can return to the good old U. S. A. and come home safe and sound. Well, I guess I will have to quit for it is about time to go to bed. Hoping the next letter I write will be in the states, but will write as often as I can. So goodbye, with love to you all.

Your loving son, FERDINAND.

MEDLER BOYS BOTH WOUNDED

Mr. and Mrs. Payzant have heard from their sons, Andrew and Leonard Medler, both of whom were in the thick of the fighting in France. Andrew is now in the detension hospital in New York. He was badly wounded in the foot and came home on the ill-fated steamer Northern Pacific, which was stranded on the rocks for seeral days and he was one of the last of the wounded soldiers to be taken off. Though badly wounded he is getting along well now and will doubtless be mustered out as soon as he is recovered. He was one of the old Company I boys.

Leonard Medley was badly wounded in the chest on the last day of the fighting and is in base hospital No. 49 in France and his nurse is Miss Eva Rogers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Rogers and it is through her letters that his people have heard from Leonard recently. He is the only Nebraska boy that Miss Rogers has under her care and it goes without saying that there is nothing too good for him. We hope his recovery will be rapid and that he will soon be able to come home.

GREETINGS FOR HER FRIENDS

Mamie Siler wr the Quiz last week on a mat er mentioned that lightful fornia coun wrote herself mother were members of a company composed of them, the Timms and McMillens and some of their relatives who went to the top of a nearby mountain and spread their lunch o nthe grass and had their dinner. Miss Siler asked if we could have done that here at the same time and honesty forces us to admit that while we could, the ground would have been a cold, wet place to sit and the experience anything but pleasant. Miss Siler was grieved to read the accounts in the Quiz of so many of her friends and hoped that the health conditions were better here.

AN ORD SOLDIER HERO

Shortly before the armistice was signed Laverne McGrew gave his life for his country and William Wright and Lavern's chaplain both wrote the McGrew family of the death of their son. Always popular with the people of this community, Lavern's death has been the subject of so many inquiries by sorrowing friends that we have asked permission to publish the letters telling of his death and print them this week, with a very good picture of the soldier hero, made from a late picture:

Somewhere in France, Nov. 21.

Mr. and Mrs. Clate McGrew, Ord, Neb.

Dear Friends—My thoughts have been with you folks for the past two weeks and have been wondering if there was not some way for us boys to help lift the load.

I had the privilege of meeting Laverne the morning before he met his death, and as usual, found him just as he always was. He asked about the folks at home and said he never felt better in his life. We didn't get to visit long, for we were both in formation and so our visit was quite short.

I learned of his death the next morning and while I knew it was possible for such things to happen, I found it pretty hard to believe. But I am glad to be able to say that he sure played his part in the right spirits, and I know of no one who has more friends here than Laverne had. He was commonly known as Mac among us, and his death is a deep sorrow to us all.

One of our cooks told me he was quite near Laverne at the time of his accident and said he lived a short time afterwards, but was not unconscious or in much pain. The boys carried him to the ambulance and he told them to let him down whenever they got tired, so he evidently did not realize the seriousness of his condition. He was still conscious when they reached the ambulance but died shortly afterwards, and was laid away in a little French village close to our front lines.

I will sure be glad to tell you more about it when I again reach home and only wish I could find words to express myself now. We helped to lay

Saturday morning Dorothy Jensen was a passenger for Des Moines.

Among the incoming passengers Saturday evening was John Williams of Lincoln, who was visiting relatives and looking after business affairs for a few days.

Saturday evening Bertha Heyden was among the incoming passengers from Scotia. Mrs. A. McMindes and daughter Gladys returned home from Grand Island.

After a few weeks spent pleasantly in Ord, Monday Mr. and Mrs. Noble Ralson returned to their home at Schuyler. They were accompanied by Mrs. Hazel Severson-Smith and two children, who were going back to their home at Boone, Iowa.

The Joe Daly family have gone to Michigan. Mrs. Daly and the little girls went down to Grand Island Friday where they visited for a few days. Mr. Dayl joined them the first of the week and they all went to Port Horn, Mich.

S. B. Rawles has been quite ill again for the last few days. He suffered another light stroke of paralysis about two weeks ago and last Saturday he was much worse. He asked to see his daughters. One lives at Alliance and another at Scottsbluff and another at Grand Island. They will come to Ord this week.

Monday Esther and Luella Banister were passengers for St. Paul. The girls started in to take a business course at the college at that place. Their mohetr's health has been so poorly that they have had to neglect their work, so they decided that Esther would go on with her studies and Luella would stay at home. The latter will doubtless finish the course when Esther gets through.

Ruby Stewart returned Saturday evening to her home at Burwell. She has the Abernethy school about four miles from Burwell. Owing to the flu scare the school is again dismissed. She had only been teaching two weeks since a previous dismissal. There were so few pupils in attendance it was thought best to wait until the epidemic situation was better. Miss Ruby's sister is teaching at Rosevale.

A couple of weeks ago Otis Moorman of Sargent fell from a hay rack onto a feed rack. He was able to be up and around for a few days, but he must have been injured more than he realized at the time. Last Thursday he ha to takde to his bed and his father-in-law, Ed Holman was called from Ord and went over Friday. Mr. Moorman lately lost his wife from flu. He has five little children. His sister is keeping house and making a home for Otto and his little ones. The Moormans formerly lived in Ord.

After spendnig a couple of days at the Collison home Mrs. Jim Travis returned last Friday to her home at North Loup. She tells us of the death of the three-year-old son of her daughter, Fern Travis-Anderson and husband. The Anderson family had all been ill at their home at Senica and Mrs. Travis had gone down to care for them. With the exception of this lit[illegible] had all recovered, [illegible] was his name. [illegible]lu, pneu-[illegible]r a few da[illegible] ossible had been done for him but it was of no avail. His parents were both ill in bed and could not attend the funeral. They have two other children. Fern is well known in Ord, having lived here for a number of years with her parents. She was a graduate from our schools. Her friends in Ord sympathize with her and her husband in their recent bereavement.

After spending several days with her daughters, Mrs. Aonton Kosmata and Mrs. Stanley Dworak, Mrs. Mike Vandas left Friday for her home at Omaha. She and her husband came up to attend Stanley's funeral. Mr. Vandas returned but she stayed for a few days longer. The Vandas family formerly lived in Valley county.

The Home Guards presented Agent James with a very pretty ruby ring last week because of the good work he had done during the summer and fall in acting as their captain and giving so much of his time towards drilling them for service. As soon as Mrs. James saw the ring she wanted one just like it. Why not, she is the captain, general and all at the James ranch. Manlike Jessie went down and purchased one for her just as near as possible like the one he had received.

Chas. Nygren writes his sister Mrs. F. C. Williams. He is in France but has been on a three-hundred mile hike, carrying a pack weighing 75 pounds. He is one of 318 engineers who were sent from Van Couver, Wash. They are on the way to a sea port in order to take a steamer and return to the good old United States. During their hike tehy had to sleep whereever night overtook them. Some times it was on the ground, some times in a hay stack. Once a few of them were accommodated at a dug out. Charley is another boy who will have a plenty to tell us when he comes home.

Saturday evening C. B. Wagner came up from York to assist his wife and their children, who have been staying on the Vinton farm, to pack up their belongings and ship them to their farm four miles from Bradshaw. Some time ago the farm at Vinton was sold. Paul Whitford is the present owner and we understand he is going to run this one and also the one close by upon which he is now living. The Wagners have owned this place for about eleven years. It was rented for five years but since that time Mrs. Wagner and some of the children have lived there and run the place. They were glad to sell, not because it was not a desirable place, but because they can now all live together on the other farm.

KIDNEYS WEAKENING?
LOOK OUT!

Kidney troubles don't disappear of themselves. They grow slowly but steadily, undermining health with deadly certainty, until you fall a victim to incurable disease.

Stop your troubles while there is time. Don't wait until little pains become big aches. Don't trifle with disease. To avoid future suffering begin treatment with GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules now. Take three or four every day until you are entirely free from pain.

This well-known preparation has been one of the national remedies of Holland for centuries. In 1696 the government of the Netherlands granted a special charter authorizing its preparation and sale.

The housewife of Holland would almost as soon be without food as without her "Real Dutch Drops," as she quaintly calls GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules. They restore strength and are responsible in a great measure for the sturdy, robust health of the Hollanders.

Do not delay. Go to your druggist and insist on his supplying you with GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules. Take them as directed, and if you are not satisfied with results your druggist will gladly refund your money. Look for the name GOLD MEDAL on the box and accept no other. In sealed boxes, three sizes.

Nepotism is becoming so very unpopular that few office holders in Nebraska will care to try it from now on.

A Lincoln man in touch with the wholesale grocery business, can't understand why coffee prices should soar at this time. Neither can we common folks and we cant' understand why lots of other prices should continue to go up but they do.

—o—

Now we know why it was necessary for Henry Ford to advance the price of Ford cars last year. A divident of 200 per cent has just been declared on the stock of the company and is being paid in cash, a hundred per cent January 1st and a hundred per cent February 1st.

—o—

Now that Theodore Roosevelt is dead there are a lot of Nebraska editors throwing verbal boquets at him, though they never had a decent word for him when he was alive, simply because he was big enough and brave enough to say what he thought regardless of whom it hit. It was ever thus. We too often wait until a man is dead to send him flowers.

—o—

Recently, when there were so many funerals that we had to waft for days to get the graves dug the thought came that in the good time coming it will become popular to cremate the bodies of our loved ones. Each county will have a crematory and when we become used to the idea no doubt that method of disposing of the remains of the departed will seem better than putting them in the ground.

—o—

It is surely refreshing to have a public officer brave enough to admit that he was mistaken and back up. When Governor McKelvie appointed his brother as bank examiner he probably named as good as there was for the place but the principle was wrong and we are glad he admitted his error. It has greatly strengthened him in the estimation of the people.

—o—

Along about Thanksgiving time cranberries were retailing for 12 cents a quart. The market papers say that the great majority of the crop was acquired by the speculators about that time and on the basis of those prices. Now prices have doubled or more and the American Cranberry Exchange composed of these same speculators, is using newspaper space to urge people to "Eatmore" cranberries. Cranberries are a healthful fruit and cheaply produced and some way should be found to let the people rave them at a reasonable price.

—o—

There is a law of nature which says that as we grow older we should look and act older and the law holds good with most of us but our old friend S. L. Perkins was in Ord the other day and came in to pay for the Quiz for another year and his step seemed to be as springy, his eye as bright and his general appearance as young as when he lived here more than a score of years ago. He denied having found the spring of perpetual youth up in the Mitchell country but he did insist that that was about all it lacked to make it a real paradise.

Almost half of the members of the lower house of the legislature this year, are farmers and they are sure to have a large influence in the legislation that shall be passed. Probably they will not be able to accomplish all that they would like to accomplish but if they shall be able to get passed a workable state hail insurance law, a start toward a terminal elevator system, pass legislation that will make possible a farmer owned packing system, make some progress toward fair taxation of non-productive lands and make the necessary arrangements for a constitutional convention and then clean up their work and go home on time, they will have done well.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

"A Christian Sabbath Home."

Services next Sunday as follows: Preaching at 11 a. m. an 7d:30 p. m. Sunday school, 10 a. m. B. Y. P. U. 6:30 p. m.

Prayer meeting Thursday 7:30 p. m.

Subject for morning worship: "A Cedar in Lebanon."

Subject for evening sevrice: "The Lefthanded Judge and the Fat Man."

A very cordial invitation is extended to you to worship with us.

We were pleased to note that our church attendance is getting back to former proportions and that much of the fear entertained by our friends throughout the community is growing less as the days pass my. To reciprocate those who see fit to worship with us on the Lord's day we are endeavoring to give them messages of gospel teaching and to clearly speak the truth in compassion and love that all may be helped in living the Christian life. A minister who is true to his people and his Master must say some things which are as repulsive to the speaker as it is to those who listen. "For if the Trumpet Give an Uncertain sound, who Shall Prepare for Battle? So Likewise Ye, except ye utter by the Tongue Words easy to be Understood, How shall it be Known What is Spoken? For ye Shall Speak into the Air." 1.Cor. 14:8-9. "If the watchman see the sword come, and blow not the trumpet, and the people be not warned; if the sword come, and take any person from among them, he is taken away in his iniquity; but his blood will I require at the watchman's hand." Ezekiel 33:6. When the time comes for us to leave Ord we want to be able to say as the Apostle Paul did to the church at Ephesus, "Wherefore I take you to record this day, that I am pure from the blood of all men. For I have not shunned to declare unto you all the counsel of God." Acts 20;26, 27.

Mr. and Mrs. Nels Knudsen passed through town on Monday of this week on a matter of business at the John Beran farm. Their daughter Miss Bertha stopped off at the Baptist parsonage and spent the day with the pastor and wife. The Knudsens are soon to move to what is known as the Thorvald Miller farm. This will make them a good home and will not be too far from Ord and their church. They expect to move March 1st. Miss Stella Knudsen drove the car.

We are looking forward to special meetings and hope to be able to obtain the services of Rev. J. L. Dunn who is pastor of the Loup City church. Rev. Dunn approaches as nearly a living bible commentary in his expository sermons as we have met for some time. He will be of great help to us. Look for further announcements in the near future. Shall we not pray for the day "when times of refreshing shall come from the presence of the Lord?"

CHAS. J. BUKOUTZ, Pastor.

Mrs. F. C. Williams tells us a sad case about a cousin who lives in Omaha. Mrs. Noreen is the lady's name. She received a message telling of the serious illness of her daugter Hilda at Newman Grove and went over to care for her, took the flu and both mother and daughter died on the same day.

V. H. Earnest of North Loup was in Ord last Friday. He told us he had not been up this way since last June. Since that time he had been in California and Colorado and several other states. He said the flu cases were few and far between at North Loup and we were glad to hear that. The epidemic is also dying out around Ord. Walter Cummings, a son-in-law of Mr. Earnest, was also in town on Friday.

Her father still retains money interests up this way and quite often comes up here on business affairs. He is a stock holder in the Ord State bank. Mrs. Young is a niece of C. F. MANNER OF GIVING FLAG SALUTE

The ladies of the G. A. R. have been asked for the flag salute and manner of giving it.

The G. A. R. pledge and salute was adopted by the 19th National Convention, ladies of the Grand Army of the Republic, in Denver, Colo.

The manner of giving the pledge and salute was adopted at the 21st National convention in Saratoga which is as follows: Raise the right hand to the forehead with palm outward, all say "I pledge allegiance to my flag and to the republic for which it stands, one nation, indivisable, with liberty and justice for all." At the words "my flag" extend the hand gracefully toward the flag, turning the palm upward. Keep the hand extended toward the flag until the pledge is ended, then drop it to the side.

One of the aims of our order is to teach patriotism and we are pleased to know the schools have adopted the pledge and salute we have practiced so long in our circle meetings.

THE WALTER STARK SALE

We are making sale bills this week and have an advertisement for his cleanup sale which will be held out on the farm on Monday the 27th. The big free lunch that will be served at 11 o'clock will be worth going several miles to get. And if you are not hungry you will want to hear Col. Burdick tell about the good points of the articles offered.

MRS. CHARLES BRICKNER DEAD

Relatives and friends of the Brickner and Jones families were terribly shocked yesterday when messages came announcing the death of Mrs. Chas. Brickner, at her home in British Columbia where the family recently moved. The notice of her death was the first word that the home folks here had of her illness and hte particulars are not known. The family recently sold their place in Alberta and removed to British Columbia and it was only a few weeks ago that the Quiz published a letter from them, telling how well pleased they were with the country.

Charley Brickner is a son of Barney Brickner and Mrs. Brickner was a Jones girl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Jones. Her mother and brothers live here and her father lives at Great Falls, Mont. He wired yesterday that he was on his way or had arrived at the Brickner home in Canada and would accompany the remains to Ord. They can't arrive here before the first of the week probably. Mrs. Brickner died on the 14th. Mr. and Mrs. Brickner were married here some fourteen years ago and they have three children, the oldest a girl 13 and the youngest a girl five or six. The other is a boy. They have the sincere sympathy of a great circle of friends.

Forrest Robinson who has been visiting his people in York county, is not making the gain in health that his people hoped he would make and he writes this week that he will go down to Excelsior Springs for a time. His father accompanied him on the trip.

The consideration of the whole deal was something over eighty thousand dollars. The Collins folks took in a smaller place on the purchase price. Mr. F. P. ARMENIAN RELIEF

At a meeting of the executive committee of the Red Cross, held at the office of Chairman VanDecar at 10 o'clock this morning it was voted to pay $1,331.25 of the quota for this county. It was understood that the Red Cross branches at North Loup and Arcadia were willing to pay their shares of the quota, which would be $500 for each of them, the entire quota being $2,331.25. With plenty of funds on hand and the need of work apparently about over, it was deemed best to pay it in this way instead of making a campaign throughout the county.

When we foun dthat the cream station end of the business averaged more than three hundred dollars a day all of last week however we were not surprised that he was rushed. Manager Bailey in the store seemed to be just as busy and so we went up to see Jimmie Wisda, thinking to have a nice visit with him but he was so busy writing out dividend checks that we had to quit in despair. We wrote up a nice ad for them however, and it will pay you to look it up.

One of the first official acts of Sheriff Round when he took his office Tuesday morning was to name former sheriff Sutton as his deputy. Sheriff Round expects to do most of the work of the office himself of course but there are times when a deputy is needed and Mr. Sutton, who is familiar with all of the workings of the office, will be especially useful as deputy and when the sheriff is away Mr. Sutton, who is not burdened with work, will doubtless spend a great deal of his time in the office.

BAILEY-PATRICK SALE

You will find lots of good local news on page 2 but the large advertisement of the Bailey-Patrick sale on that page will be as good reading for most farmers, as anything else in the paper. This is a dissolution sale and there is a big offering of exceptionally good stock, 68 head of cattle, 19 horses and colts, 125 good hogs and machinery, hay, grain and straw. He is a graduate of the Agricultural College and was assistant county agent in Dodge county last year until he enlisted and went to an officer's training camp. He has recently been discharged and will be ready to take up his work here the first of February. He made a tentative agreement with the farm bureau managers while here, contingent on the action of the county board and later the board agreed to take care of their part of the salary. We had the pleasure of meeting Mr. Vale for a few moments while he was here and were very favorably impressed with him. We hope more Valley county farmers will plan to use the county agent this year.

Among the outgoign passengers Saturday morning was Mrs. Albert Anderson, who was going to Wolbach to see a brother and his wife who were very il wlith flu. The brother's name is John Lapacek and he was just recovering from pneumonia. The wife and mother died and Mr. Anderson went down Monday to attend the funeral. There are five little children left motherless. Albert and his wife have a large family at home to look after so they thought they must return. It was decided that with care Mr. Lapacek could be brought to his sister's home in Ord. So they came up Tuesday evening and Mrs. Anderson will nurse the sick man back to health. One of the children, a little girl, and next older than the baby will share alike with the Anderson children. A tiny baby was taken by the woman who nursed the Lapacek during their illness. The three other children were taken home by their grand mother and that is where they will stay until the father has regained his health and is able to go to work and make further arrangement for the little motherless brood.

ATTENTION LEAGUERS

Editor Quiz—The country roads seem to be in a frightful condition; this condition might easily be rectified if a little dragging was done in these warm afternoons. As it is one can hardly get around unless they are obliged to get out. The state manager of the Nonpartisan league was in Ord last week looking up business matters. He told me he was ambitious to get in touch with every member of the league who has failed to get his membership certificate or for some reason, has not been supplied regularly with the National Nonpartisan leader. One reaon he gave is we are about to have a state paper of our own and he wants every member on the mailing list and for that reason he authorized me to insert the advertisement which appears in the Quiz want ad column over my name. I hope every member will make it his business to speak of this to his neighbor members and if they find any among them who are in that class urge them to comply with the request in the advertisement as it is most important. Yours truly,

B. H. ALVORD.

ECHOES FROM WOODMAN HALL

The farmers shipped out a load of hogs this week. Several from these parts hauling to complete the car load.

Joe Waldmann, Joe Pejda and Tom Nedbalek drove their cattle to Comstock last Sunday shipping them to the Farmers' Union at Omaha Monday morning.

The Farmers of Valley and Custer county are busy building the new Farmers' elevator at Comstock. The frame is all up and at the rate it is going now it won't be long before it will be completed and the people be able to carry on their business.

The Waldmann folks are again on the sick list. By all indications it looks as though they were in for a second attack of the flu.

Joe Smolik, Sr., met with quite an accident one day last week when making preparations to shell corn. He and several other men were in the act of backing a wagon up to the sheller when the wheel hit a stake that was driven in the ground. Mr. Smolik had hold of the tongue and when the wheel hit the stake the tongue swung around knocking him down, striking the frozen ground, cutting a gash in the back of his head, knocking out several teeth and rendering him unconscious. He was carried to the house where after a lapse of an hour he regained consciousness. Outside of being bruised up he felt like himself again thinking that in his old age he had escaped rather lucky.

Mrs. George Perrin of Sargent is staying at the Irwin home this week and helping care for the new boy.

Will Hefferman bought a stack of alfalfa hay of Frank Vanek last week.

Mark Guggenmos plastered a cistern for Joe Waldman the latter part of last week. He returned home last Saturday. On arriving home he found his family all sick which later proved to be the flu.

FARM NOTES

Interesting Discussions on Topics Close to the Farmers' Heart---News of Vinton Township and Vicinity.

BY ERNEST S. COATS

No, I didn't have the flu even if I didn't send any notes last week. I was in Ord Saturday and a lot of people asked me if I had the flu, because they didn't see my notes. I supposed the Quiz would look better for a change, without my dope but somehow I feel glad that the readers think enough of my dope to notice the absence of it.

I met our representative Dave Strong in Ord. There was not much doing at the legislature over Saturday and Sunday so he came home but he expected to be back on the job Monday of this week. He tells me there is to be a very busy session. There are 40 farmers in the unch of representatives and with a farmer governor we may have a look in this year. Mr. Strong says our senator, Mr. Taylor, is sure on the job, first, last and all the time and from my acquaintance with him I will bet that he is.

I notice a growing interest in the road question of late among the farmers. I hope we can get some good roads in Valley county this year. Do not misunderstand me for I do not mean paved roads like they are trying to foist onto some counties. The expense of paved roads would make us an enormous tax, but we can have good roads at a small cost in our county. Well graded roads with the right system of dragging will give us fine roads and with the most traveled roads like the canyon road southwest of Ord a top of gravel would fix our roads in fine shape. I can see that there are interests that are going to try to force us to build paved roads. We do not need them but we do need good dirt roads. Look out brother farmers and do not fall for the paved roads schemes but let's keep our heads working on the good roads question and get a system of road work established that will be within our means and also be a credit to our county.

Since the war is over I have heard several remarks about a new court house. Sure we need a new court house. No one has asked my plan but I believe in running public affairs on a sensible plan as well as private affairs. Now material and labor is high and will probably be lower. I think it would be well to raise some of the tax this year and some next and then the third year begin to build. By the time the building was done the third year tax would be in. Then about two more years of a small tax would complete the payments and we would, in five years time, have a court house and have it paid for. Now I do not want to build a great big thing just to beat our neighboring counties, but just a good, substantial building that will fit our modern day needs. Let's build for ourselves, not for the future and pay for it ourselves, not on twenty years time and for a future generation to pay for.

Mr. Roberts, our former county agent came out to our farm last Thursday evening just as we went to the barn to do the needed repairs on the Jersey cows. He grabbed a milk pail and went down the line. He said it was mighty good to get to doing chores again. He proved it too for the next morning at six o'clock he was out at the barn with the rest of us ready to help with the milking. Mr. Roberts didn't find a farm here so he moved back to Holt county where he owns a tractor outfit with breaking outfit and threshing machine, which he expects to operate this season. His wife is visiting her people in Tennessee and will join her husband at the former home in O'Neill next spring. The farm bureau members meet at the office Tuesday of this week to decide about an agent for this year. They also have a meeting with the county board the same day.

I hear the Farmers Grain & Supply Co. will hold their annual meeting a week from this Thursday, January 23. You bet that slice of the mellon is going to be mighty good tasting this year after using substitutes for so long a time.

Popcorn appears to be a mighty good crop considering that all crops were short in 1918 for Valley county. Peter Knecht told me he sold two loads for $250. It nearly paid for the ground it was raised on. I never went in much for popcorn but after living in Valley county for fifteen years I see that it is a much better crop than the feed variety if the price is right so we expect to put over half of our hundred acres of corn to popcorn this year. Men appear to rather husk popcorn than field corn as there is usually more money in it and if the husking machine is a success then the husking problem is a small one. There are a few of the machine huskers in the county but I have not got a line-up yet as to how they did the work.

Last week Mrs. Coats and yours truly went over to the John Bremer home to get some sweet clover seed. John threshed a lot of it and it is a mighty good article. I guess it's a crop that will make popcorn go some for profit. We expect to sow four bushels of the seed this spring.

Now I am going to give you a little Jersey dope. At a dispersion sale I bought a cow on the bargain counter. She looked good to me and since getting her I have hunted up her former record. This cow is ten years old but looks seven. She has given me a heifer calf from one of the best sires in the state and gives more than forty pounds of milk a day and her official test is 5½. Her feed costs sixty cents per day and her butter fat and skimmed milk is worth $2 per day. Her former record is register of meitr, 422 pounds, 6 ounces of butter in one year as a 2-year-old and 10,000 pounds of milk in county test association as a 5-year old, showing 600 pounds of butter and winner for aged cow at Nebraska state fair in 1915. I am expecting something great from this cow's heifer calf. We have a 4-year old cow that gave us 371 pounds of butter fat in ten months and she is now milking again. She will easily make the 400 pounds by the time this year is up. You will have to take my word for her but for the other cows record for it was official.

B. H. Alvord informs me that he has taken the work of Nonpartisan organizer for Valley county and as there is some complaint that the members are not getting their league newspaper he has asked me to tell all members who do not get their league paper to send him their postoffice address, their cancelled check for membership fees, or if the check is destroyed send the receipt they received at time of joining. Mr. Alvord says we are to have a state paper soon and he wishes to have all members lined up so as to get it. Mr. Alvord's address is Ord, Nebraska.

Here is something new that will interest the farmers and something that I never heard of before, and that is a governor calling the farmers to confer with him on legislation for the betterment of Nebraska. This actually happened and here are some of the questions that our new governor asked the farmers' opinion on at their conference. Farmers were there from all parts of the state to represent their respective associations at the request of Governor McKelvie and there are some of the subjects they were asked their opinion on so as to line up a working basis for legislature: Civil Administrative Code, and Distribution of Farm Products, Diseases of Farm Animals and Farm Bureau, Cooperative Credit Associations, Rural Schools and Education, Landlord and Tenant laws, Land Taxation, Road laws and Farm Marketing. Say brother farmers, do you notice any difference in the last few months? Only a short time ago we farmers were refused the right to meet and talk over our problems. When the former governor was asked to use the power vested in him to protect the farmer meetings he sidestepped and it took a court decision to make it so we could hold our convention at Lincoln last July and I know the air was quite sulphery around about that time because I was there. Quite a difference between then and now. Which do you like the best? I feel proud of our calling and am mighty glad that we stood together and by so doing we have won out. It looks now like Governor McKelvie was going to give us fellows of the farm a square deal.

I hear Lew Smolik is very sick. I hope by the time these lines reach the readers he will be better for we have lost too many good farmers. There is a feeling of loneliness comes to me when I think of my young friends Guy Cochran and Will Hackel who had to give up their lives right when life was at its best. Both of these young men had first won their homes and everything that made life worth living, but that's the way of this terrible flu. Our neighbors and friends are with us one week and the next are no more.

Some folks seem to have a bit more of the flu than their share and one of those people is Mrs. Harold Stewart of Spelts who is slowly recovering from the third attack of the disease and each attack seemed to be a little more severe than the one before. Some of the children have also been having the disease but are getting better this week.

A Splendid Farm at Auction

The splendid half section farm, known as the Walter Cummins place, and the personal property belonging to A. F. Linthicum will be sold at auction soon unless the farm is sold at private sale soon. Watch this space next week for further particulars. This is one of the best farms in Valley county, is well improved, good house and barn and other buildings, fenced and cross fenced and has plenty of alfalfa.

The personal property consists of 50 cattle, some good horses, a lot of hogs and plenty of good machinery. If you are interested in a farm of this kind better investigate it at once.

Frank Dlugosh was a pleasant Quiz visitor Tuesday and added his name to our list for a year.

F. E. GLOVER, Chm. of Board.

The Quiz got several cussings from anxious subscribers who failed to get their papers of January 2, but we just couldn't help it. Trouble with the machines spoiled several more than usual or than was figured and a good many new ones were added to the list that week and there were a dozen or more who failed to get papers in fact we have no papers for our file. It was too late to remedy the matter when it was discovered.

When Detliff Heuck took sick John Kline who has charge of the engines at the Union Pacific round house and has to be up the greater portion of the night, when it is cold, told Detliff he would look after his work until Mr. Heuck was again able to resume his night watch. Since the layoff John has been doing the work for a new night watch man. However, we heard a member of the Heuck family the other day that he had never intended to take Detliff's money, and that when the collection for his work was made it was all to be turned over to Mrs. Heuck. During the time the two men have been at their duties they had become quite well acquainted and John speaks most highly of his former fellow worker.

All the Big Men

Of the Country, whether they be Statesmen, Captains of Industry, Financial Magnates, Labor Leaders or Agriculturists, appreciate the fact that high prices are bound to prevail for several years. All of the European countries are destitute of foodstuff. President Wilson has written back from his European trip asking that Congress appropriate One Hundred Million Dollars to be used in buying foods for suffering people in Europe. Practically all of Europe has to be rebuilt and reconstructed. Great improvement in many lines is needed in America and South American countries. All these things are known by the Big Men who do Things. Prices will remain high for some time. Business activity will be great.

This Means That Land Values

Will not only continue firm and strong, but will advance, and that all products from the farm will be in demand at good prices. THE MAN WHO NEGLECTS TO BUY LAND WILL GO FOREVER WITHOUT LAND UNLESS HE BUYS IT IN THE NEAR FUTURE. The tenant will remain a tenant forever because land values will get clear away from him and beyond his reach. I can sell you most any kind of a farm or ranch you desire now at very reasonable prices, easy terms of sale, render you financial assistance in handling stock and help you over the rough places until you get well established for yourself. The thing for every one to do is to GET LAND while the opportunity is here. Don't talk rent, but let me sell you a farm for yourself. BE A LANDLORD, NOT A TENANT.

See me for Farm Loans. Money ready all the time.

Twelve Million Bottles Sold in Four Years

OTHER DANGERS THAN WAR

Here is a letter—a wonderful letter from a mother to her soldier boy in France. Every mother should read it and when she has the spirit of it write to her own boy across the ocean. If she hasn't a boy of her own "over there" then she can write to some other mother's boy.

There was never a time when the boys were so greatly in need of letters from home as now. When the battle was on the soldier had little time or opportunity to let his mind wander to things unwholesome—he was too busy with what was then the gravest problem of the hour, winning the war.

But now it is different and the woman who wrote this beautiful letter is not the only one who realizes that the real danger to our boys is greater today than when the battle was raging. Then there was only the danger of being killed.

Now—but read this mother's letter. She tells it more beautifully than we can. Then read the appeal from Raymond B. Fosdick, chairman of the commission on training camp activities, who wants the ovesreas forces to be bound to home with that strongest tie of all—love.

"Son of Mine:

"They're sending you home to me at last. Through all these months of waiting and longing I've been wearing a star for you and holding my head high and thinking wonderful thoughts about you. I've watched you through ocean mists and dreamed anxious dreams. Yes, and cried a little, too, but not when people could see.

"And now you're coming home. Oh, it seems too good to be true. I've just read your letters again. They say so much more than you ever thot when you were writing them. Just happenings—that's all most of the things you wrote about were to you. But to me they said you were facing the biggest thing in life, facing it bravely, as I should want my son to face it. You were offering your body and your soul for a thing bigger than you or me or America.

"Don't think me silly or sentimental because I say these things. Just remember that while you were going through that fire and terror I had to sit here and smile. I had to try to be as brave as you, so that you shouldn't be ashamed of me. When I wrote to you I tried to write cheerful, encouraging letters, because I did not want you to go into battle feeling that I was holding you back from the big sacrifice. It's only now, when the fighting is over, trat I can let down a little and be just your mother, just the woman who loves you better than anything else in the world and is so glad to know you're coming back to her that she doesn't care who sees her cry.

"Perhaps for some of the boys who have stood with you so finely through these trials the fighting is not yet all over. The fighting I mean is that between a man and himself, and for many of them this will be the hardest battle of all. During the long days and evenings of waiting before they can start for home thoughts will creep into their minds which will be hard to resist. There will be times after all these months of action when the longing for change and for the companionship of women may lead them into associations which will spoil their homecoming and cause them shame and humiliation and even perhaps make them unfit to receive the love that awaits them here.

"You, dearest boy, are just as human as your comrades, and feelings like these may come to you too. I don't ask you to crush them. They are natural, and they only prove that war has failed to dry up the well spring of your emotions. I ask you only to recognize them when they come and to control them with the fine strength you have gained while fighting for the ideals and principles of America. Just remember that many joyous years of life are ahead of you and that the risk of spoiling them and the love that will fill them is too tremendous to run for a short hour of seeming pleasure.

"Many of the boys who will come home with you have no mothers to write to them. Some of them may think that no one cares what they do. But somebody does care. America cares. And the girls they will marry some day care. And, oh, the difference it makes in their lives if they will just remember that there is always somebody, always!

"Help them to remember. Help them to come home clean and fine. Don't let them spoil everything now. They have been so splendid. If you think this letter will help them give it to them. If they have no mothers let me be their mother until they have come back and taken the high places that await them here. Tell them to write to me. How I should treasure their letters!

"And, of course, you will write to me. Just say that you understand—that you know why I have written this letter. Then I can wait months—yes, even years—knowing that you will come home to me as fine and clean as you were when I sent you away to camp so long age.

"MOTHER."

CARE IN HANDLING TRACTOR

A service man tells of being called by an Arkansas farmer to repair a tractor. The only trouble seemed to be in getting the tractor started. The owner said he had cleaned the magneto in an effort to get the machine going. The service man, in looking over the magneto, asked what had been done with the metal bar which made connection from the magneto winding to the center of the distributer. "Oh, you mean that brace in there?" said the owner, "I have that in my pocket. I saw no need of putting that on until I found out whether or not it would start." A free four weeks practical course in operation and repair of tractors, trucks and automobiles will be given by the University of Nebraska beginning January 27. Any one more than 15 years old may take this course. For further information write Principal H. E. Bradford, University Farm, Lincoln.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

Here is an editorial to think about. Read it carefully, digest it thoroughly, and discuss it with your neighbor or friend. It is from the Washington Star:

"In New York republicans and democrats, enthusiastically co-operating, will, it is said, proceed to abolish the direct primary. Instead of letting the people decide who shall be nominated for office, chosen delegates will be selected by politicians, and they will decide. This is an interesting backward step to celebrate 'new world democracy.'

"New York's Governor-elect Smith will recall from his reading of Machiavelli that Florence lost her liberty because the people, instead of reaching conclusions in a body, concerning crimes against the people, allowed a few judges to decide.

"Said wise Machiavelli: 'A few are corrupted by a few.' Which means in our day that with a few big corporations wishing to control the nominations of both parties and a few politicians able to deliver delegates and nominate judges, governors, etc., you will have 'a few corrupted by a few.' The few financiers that wish to select the people's candidates on both sides will hand necessary inducements to the few politicians able to do the job. You can't blame politicians for wanting it; there is a great deal in it for them. You can't blame corporations for urging it; there is even more in it for them. But you can blame the people, who, if they permit this, will show the intelligence and resourcefulness of a Belgian hare held up by the ears and wriggling its hind leg so pitifully."—Hastings Tribune.

CONSIDER THE CHICKENS' FEET

Horsemen have a saying, "No hoof, no horse." This may well be paraphrased, "No foot, no fowl." Most poultry keepers do not pay enough attention to the feet of their birds, says the Extension Service of the University of Nebraska College of Agriculture. Scaly leg, bumble-foot, and corns are all too prevalent in the average poultry yard. Even the yards of professional breeders are not free from them. The condition of the feet of the birds should have consideration in selecting breeders. While it is true that the prevalence of foot troubles is largely due to unsanitary conditions in poultry houses and yards, it is also true that there are very great differences in the resistance of individual birds to the attacks of such pests as the scaly leg mite and that some birds contract bumble-foot where others are free from it.

UNION PACIFIC RAILROAD CAMP FUNSTON NEWS BUREAU

Camp Funston, Jan. 10th:—

Men from permanent camp organizations will be discharged on the same basis as those from the 10th division if their places can be filled by men from other portions of the camp command.

Closely following the announcement that 50 per cent of the officers and men of the 10th Division will be discharged, this news means that men who have labored long and faithfully at routine camp tasks and who have urgent claim for discharge will not have to face long continued service duirng the emdobilization period if they can be replaced by others not due for immediate mustering out.

These organizations, such as camp utilities, personnel, military police quartermasters, camp activities and others necessary for the administration of the camp in the big task ahead of it, and must be kept up to strength and efficiency. Some of the men in them, however, assigned through no wish of their own, have served through the entire life of the camp. Many of them are needed in civil life and it is put these on the same basis as the men in fighting units that the arrangement is made.

Application for discharge from men who can be replaced will be considered in the same order as these from the 10th Division. Men with families immediately dependent on them will be first. Considered second will be men with dependent parents. These with business of their own or in which they are partners come third if the business is suffering financial loss because of their absence. This class includes farms. Men not included in the first three classes but who are skilled workers needed and called for by business or farming interests will come fourth.

Including men from the Middle west trained at Camp Funston, several units from overseas have arrived in this country.

The 345th and 347th Infantry of the 87th Division were landed in New York recently. The 87th Division was trained at Camp Pike and contains several thousand men from Kansas, Nebraska, Colorado, Missouri and South Dakota who were transferred from Camp Funston late in 1917. In France the 87th was assigned largely to the Service of Supply and saw little or no actual fighting.

The 143rd, 144th, and 145th Field Artillery landed in New York on Jan. 3rd, and 5th, is from the 40th Division, trained at Camp Kearney. 12,000 men from Camp Funston were transferred to it in 1917, being used to fill most of its organizations. The early return of the rest of the 40th is expected. As it was used as a replacement division behind the lines it is thought that many of the men have been scattered to other units, however.

The 30th Division which contains several thousand men from Camp Funston, transferred early in 1918, is slated for return as soon as ships are available. The 91st, trained at Camp Lewis, is also listed for convey, and contains men from Wyoming as well as about 2,000 inducted from South Dakota.

That the men awaiting discharge at Camp Funston have the utmost confidence in General Wood and feel that he has done everything possible for them under the conditions of demobilization is indicated by the excellent morale shown there. Most of them realize that the returning of the huge army of civil life must necessarily be a gradual proceeding and complaints have been comparatively few.

The news that half of the enlisted men and a proportionate number of officers up to 50 per cent will be discharged from the 10th Division has caused a wave of optomism, however, among those who are eager to return to civilian pursuits. Commanding officers are receiving applications for discharge and with the first steps taken it is expected that the mustering out will commence very shortly. Only men inducted into the 10th thru the draft and those who enlisted for the duration of the war, or since April 1, 1917, are included in the discharge order, and only those whose services can be spared will be mustered out.

General Wood has spoken personally to every organization on the conditions of demobilization as every man leaves camp and a letter from the general appreciation for the service to the country. EYRE

Postmaster Wilson whipped his democratic congress into line all right. But can he do so with the European powers?

Secretary Daniels wants to go on building a great navy and keeping it up to a pitch of efficiency so that we can lick any nation on earth. At the same time the government is talking about a league of nations and the prevention of war by all possible means. It is about as consistent as you could expect impractical public officials to be.

"A big enough navy to whip any nation" is Secretary Daniel's ambition, states the daily press. This editor is no pacifist but it is frank to say that kind of doctrine does not sound good to us. It implies a threat and carries a chip on the shoulder. We want the United States to have as large a navy as she needs but not for the purpose of going some other country one better. The only kind of a navy the people of America want is one for defensive purposes. We want the idea of agression left entirely out of the ship building program.—York Republican.

One of the grave questions being discussed in England is the picking out of a wife for the Prince of Wales, who, of course, will someday be the king of England. The picking is not very good, for the list of eligibles is much limited by the late unpleasantness between the European powers. Now the big papers are suggesting that the Prince be allowed to pick a British wife and even suggest that he might choose an American bride. There is no statutary prohibition to an English soverign marrying outside the royal class. The only law for limiting the marriages to the royalty is that of custom. This might be repealed in the interest of democracy. By the way President Wilson has a marriageable daughter.

Just why men who were prevented, through no fault of their own, from participation in the great events overseas should be penalized by being compelled to wear silver chevrons is a mystery which only a democratic mind can fathom. For the stay-at-home swivel-chair warmers a service badge which cannot be distinguished at a short distance from the gold chevron of the boys who met the Hun face to face may be acceptable, but those who really wanted to go and didn't get the chance will find humiliation rather than glory in it. There is nothing which will cheapen real merit so much as making it easy for everyone to attain the outward symbols, as is exactly what the war department is doing with its reckless distribution of service chevrons.—Aurora Republican.

When the government took the railroads over as a war measure it agreed to pay to the railroads as rental the rate of dividends they had been earning in the past. Of course the business of the roads is vastly more than ever before on account of the government's war operations, and freight and passenger rates were increased about 50 per cent. There were also great savings by the discharge of high-priced railroad officials from the pay rolls, the consolidation of depots and offices in competing points, the suspension of all competition expenses such as the government heretofore compelled the roads to incur, and other economies. But for all this the government is facing a deficit of about $150,000,000 which will have to be made up from some other sources. And in the face of all this the government wants to continue the job. Will an outraged public stand for it? When the government turns the roads back to their owners will it compel the return of ruinous competition as under the Serman and other lams? And will it allow the roads to maintain the high traffic rates adopted by the government?

Japan objects to "the league of nations," the French premier, who has just received a vote of confidence by the French chamber of deputies, is for a "balance of power," and Lord George, whose political party has just carried England by an overwhelming majority, has put his own interpretation upon the "freedom of the seas." It is apparent that it will be many months before we have peace with Germany if all these questions are to be settled before the peace is signed. And what have they to do with settling Germany's hash anyway? Let's have Germany off our hands before we go to quarreling among ourselves. After the peace is signed is the best time to settle these and other controverted points.

In figuring up what they are to get for damages done by the vanquished enemy, the allies seem to forget the other nations and count only on what they can get from Germany. Take a hint from the Quiz: First take all the millions that Bill Hohenzollern has salted away, then confiscate the whole Turkish territory and if there is anything left after paying what she owes to the allies or their subjects use that toward indemnities, then confiscate all of Austria-Hungarian territory not occupied by the Bohemians and turn that into the pot, then make Germany pay the balance of all the bills the victors are able to present. There is enough there to pay the bill all right.

Tuesday the government commenced to sell off all the cavalry horses that had been accumulated at Camp Funston for the war. As there is a big slump in the horse market the government stands to lose heavily on the horse business.

Peter Hallen tells us that his son Arthur, whose wound was told of in the Quiz some time ago, has suffered a second wound. This wound was from a bullet passing through his shoulder. Of course this put him out of commission and the Hallens assumed that when he was through with that he would be sent home, possibly disabled for life. To the contrary word comes now that he has come out of the hospital in prime condition and sent back to the army of occupation in class A, which means that is as fit for service. The folks at home are rejoiced that he is all right, even if it does delay his return home.

There are several interesting features connected with the British elections which we trust President Wilson will improve his opportunity to study at close range. One is the triumphant vindication of Lloyd George's war policies without any apparent effort on the part of the premier himself to influence the result; another is that, even with this recent vote of confidence, Lloyd George did not feel justified in appointing himself to head a notoriously subservient delegation to the peace conference.—Aurora Republican.

A BIG LAND DEAL

The Loup City Times of last week has the following to say of a big land deal closed in that town last week, A. H. Esterbrook purchasing 1040 acres of land seven miles northwest of Loup City, paying the neat sum of $75,000 for the same:

A land deal of considerable magnitude was consummeted here last week when Albert Stenger sold his 1040 acre farm to A. H. Esterbrook of Valley county. Mr. Esterbrook paying $75,000 for the place. This is the old Carsten Truelson place and is considered one of the best ranches in Sherman county, is seven miles northwest of Loup City on the Arcadia road and is all in the valley with the exception of 100 acres in the hills. Mr. Stenger purchased the place about twelve years ago for $20,000, making $50,000 on the place besides the income from the place. Mr. Esterbrook will take possession of the place March 1, 1920, John George having it leased until then. This big deal was put through by C. C. Carlson.—Arcadia Champion.

WHO KNOWS THE ANSWER

A North Loup subscriber propounds these questions. Who can answer?

Why does a young man who rides a bicycle double himself up like a home made doughnut the minute he begins to work the pedals? Yes, and why does a fellow when he goes to throw a ball first have to screw it to the palm of his right hand with his left, then hop on his right foot, while he bumps his chin with his knee before he throws it? And why does a man when he gets a raw-boned plug and a ten dollar cart have to rein the poor crowbait up like a turtle treading water, till it can't see the ground before it, and goes stumbling as if trying to read the answer in the starts?

Stop Profiteering in Farm Loans

The Government, through the Federal Farm Loan Board, has established a rate of 5½ per cent on Nebraska Farm Loans.

DO NOT PAY MORE

Profiteering in farm loans is prevalent. If any loan agent tries to induce you to take a loan at a higher rate, or at 5½ per cent and a big commission, he is not working for your interest, but for a big commission for himself.

The Federal Land Bank of Omaha has abundant funds at all times to close loans. Its own attorneys examine titles without expense to the borrower. Its executive committee at Omaha passes promptly on all applications and loans are closed without red tape or delay.

Federal Farm Loan Bonds are sold at a low rate of interest in the best money markets of the world and the money is loaned to farmers at actual cost. All net earnings of the Land Bank are returned to borrowing stockholders.

You can get the best terms and lowest rate from the Land Bank. You are guaranteed against an increase in the rate and if a lower rate is established you can have the lower rate after five years.

We have loaned $200,000 for the Federal Land Bank in a few months through the National Farm Loan Association. Give us your application now and we will give you prompt service.

FUNNY THINGS HAPPEN IN THE ARMY

The following clippings from the Stars and Stripes, a paper published in the army, were sent in a letter received from Robert Glover:

Among the best of the campfire yarns was the one about the soldier who envied his companion's new shoes. Where had he got them? Why, off a German.

"I guess I'll have to go out an' get me a pair," he said, and vanished toward No Man's Land. He came back two hours later, superbly shod. But why had he been so long?

"Well," he apoligized, "it took me some time. I had to kill 47 different Germans before I could find one with a pair of shoes that would fit me."

Then there was the story the Red Cross man told of the doughboy he found sitting pensively in a field while shells from our guns were roaring overhead like invisible mid-air express trains, and while, less noisy, but more disturbing, the shells from the German guns were ending with a wail and burst all about.

"What are you thinking about, Buddy? Making your will? Are you wondering why you were ever nut to enlist?"

said the doughboy gloomily, wondering how I was ever nough to let a man hold me up nicago last spring. He only had 32."

At St. Mihiel, the 5th Division was in the front lines from September 12 to 15, inclusive. During the Meuse-Argonne battle it was in the front lines from October 13 to 20, inclusive again taking its place there on October 27 and going through to the end. It is commanded by Major-Gen. Hanson E. Ely.

The 89th Division, commanded by Brig.-Gen. Frank L. Winne, was in both the St. Mihiel and the Meuse-Argonne operations. It went into the latter the middle of September, remaining through October 7. After 12 days of relief, it returned to the front lines and was still there when fighting ceased.

The 90th Division, commanded by Major-Gen. Henry T. Allen, also took part in both operations. In the Meuse-Argonne battle it entered the front lines on September 26 and remained with the advance through October 10. Then, after ten days' relief from front line duty, it was returned and was in the chick of battle until the hour of the armistice.

Nine divisions strong—the 1st, 2nd 3rd, 4th, 5th, 32nd, 42nd, 89th and 90th—the Third American Army began on the morning of Sunday, November 17, its march to the Rhine.

It was at 5:30 that the order "Forward, march" sounded along the American line from Mouzon to Thiaucourt Mouzon on the Meuse just below Sedan and Thiaucourt down in the heart of what was once the St. Mihiel salient.

An hour or so earlier, the unfriendly notes of reveille had disturbed the chill November air and tumbled out of a myriad dugouts and pup tents a stamping, growling, cursing crew who damned the kaiser and swore at Germany, but not one of whom could have been hired for love or money to go off on leave this day of days.

Indeed, for several days before the march began, officers and men who had started forth so gaily on their long postponed leaves kept hurrying back of their own accord at the first inkling that their outfit had been among those nominated to keep a watch on the Rhine. Even men who, on the strength of the armistice, had decided to go A. W. O. L. for a day or so, would glean the good news at halfway towns like Bar-le-Duc or Chalons and come sneaking back as fast as their legs or hospitable trucks would carry them. Every one wanted to be among those present at what came in no time to be known as "The Party."

So, when the sun came up on the morning of the 17th it found them all marching in columns of squads along the highways that lead to the frontier—plodding along and singing as they went. And the song that they sang to Germany was a new version of an old favorite which broke ever and again into the familiar refrain, "The Yanks are coming, the Yanks are coming."

Ahead of them, as they ambled forward, stretched a countryside strewn with the things the Germans had been too hurried or too indifferent to carry along. In nearly every village, the streets were fairly littered with German guns, Grman helmets, German cartridge belts as though, when the armistice news came, they had been dropped then and there, never to be picked up again by German hands.

Whole platoons of American Infantry could be seen parading toward the frontier, each head adorned with a spiked German helmet. The souvenir market was glutted before sundown of the first day, and lugers, which, a fortnight before, would have sold for anywhere from 100 to 300 francs, could be had in exchange for one package of cigarettes.

Then there were big guns and an occasiontl truck abandoned in the haste of the great departure. One of these trucks was as empty as a ruined town, but on its tailboard the departing enemy had hung this affiable sign: "Help your selves."

There are almost enough automobiles in Nebraska to give every man, woman and child in Nebraska a ride, all at once and without undue crowding. There is an automobile for each 7.8 of the population. There are more automobiles per hundred of population in Nebraska than in any other state. And why not? Isn't Nebraska the most productive, therefore the most prosperous, state in the Union.

The eigth annual convention of the Nebraska State Irrigation Association at Bridgeport last week was the largest attended convention in the organization's history. The federal government was represented by the two men in the reclamation service, and they intimated that the department was ready to co-operate in every possible way with the work of developing the irrigation possibilities of Nebraska.

A great irrigation project that will, when completed, irrigate thousands of acres in Phelps and Kearney counties, is being pushed, and the Reclamation Service has been interested. An immense area in the two counties may be watered from the Platte river and storage reservoirs, thus insuring splendid crops. Interest in irrigation in Nebraska is growing at a gratifying rate, and the federal government is taking more notice of irrigation possibilities in the middle west than ever before.

The Bureau of Publicity has been gathering some crop information of late and reports that taking the state at large the winter heat crop was never in better condition at this time of the year. The latter half of November and the early part of December were usually fortunate in the matter of moisture, the precipitation for the four weeks being far above normal. The winter wheat enters the real winter period in thriving shape. The acreage is practically the same as last year, if anything a bit larger. The precipitation insures good soil conditions for spring plowing and sowing.

OF INTEREST TO INCOME TAX PAYERS

Instructions have been received by Collector of Internal Revenue Geo. L. Loomis, to accept Treasury certificates of Indebtedness dated August 20, 1918, maturing July 15, 1919, and Series T, dated November 7, 1918, maturing March 15, 1919, at par witouht interest, in payment of income and profit taxes.

The Department has advised the collector that accrued interest on the certificates will be paid separately by the Federal Reserve Bank to taxpayers upon deposit by the collector of the certificates accepted, showing the date the tax was due and the name and address of the taxpayer.

In like manner interim certificates issued by the Federal Reserve Banks representing Treasury certificates, will be accepted in payment of income and profits taxes.

Last Friday morning the thermometer stood at 28 below. Saturday morning, though it was snowing, the temperature was 28 above zero. A rise of 56 degrees in 24 hours is some jump.

MONEY IN TOWN CHICKENS

Much has been said on both sides of the question as to whether or not it pays to keep chickens in town. Our old friend Bill Thorp says that there is nothing to it, that they have been keeping chickens at his house when feed was high and when feed was low, when eggs were high and when they were low in price, but never yet has a flock come any where near paying out on the right side of the ledger. Our neighbor B. F. Bunnell however, disagrees with Thorp and cites a few figures to show the judge that there is money in chickens if they are properly cared for. Bunnell has a total of forty-seven young hens, fourteen of them were hatched in May, and the balance during April. Since they have commenced laying these hens have produced a total of seven hundred and thirty-three eggs, and at the present price of eggs he figures that they have been a paying investment to him. We have yet to hear from Neighbor White on the east and Neighbor Hallock on the west, both of them with a good sized flock, but it is reasonable to suppose that on account of the chicken and egg appetite of the neighbor in the center that the chicken business has not been a very profitable one to them.—Burwell Tribune.

SHE HAS NO OCCUPATION

She rises up at break of day,
And thru her task she races;
She cooks the meal as best she may,
And scrubs the children's faces.
While school books, lunches, ribbons, too,
All need consideration.
And yet the census man insists
She has "no occupation."

When breakfast dishes all are done,
She bakes a pudding, maybe,
She cleans the rooms up one by one,
With one eye watching baby;
The mending pile she then attacks,
By way of variation.
And yet the census man insists
She has "no occupation."

She irons for a little while,
Then presses pants for daddy;
She welcomes with a cheery smile
Returning lass and laddie.
A hearty dinner next she cooks
(No time for relaxation.)
And yet the census man insists
She has "no occupation."

For lessons that the children learn
The evening scarce is ample,
To "mfother dear" they always turn
For help for each example.
In grammar and geography
She finds her relaxation.
And yet the census man insists

ABOUT THE NEW COURT HOUSE

Our friend Coats, in his letter this week, touches upon the new court house question and I feel that he is a bit off the tarck that he should travel and I want to try to set him and others right before a wrong impression gets out.

In the first place we may not build a court house for a long time yet though of course almost every tax payer in the county will admit that we should build one as soon as possible. It is an open question whether labor and material is going to be much cheaper for several years. There has been little building for a couple of years and with the war over there will be a good many plans, organized before the war, that will now be put through and this is going to create a great demand for material, which will tend to keep prices up. Mr. Coats has a good idea, that of starting as soon as possible to raise the funds, but the idea in his letter that I didn't like, was that we should build for ourselves, not for the future. I think that is a narrow view to take of the matter and I believe it is wrong. We must build for the next quarter of a century at least for when this court house is built it will be fifty years before there will be another one built in Valley county. It is going to cost a hundred thousand dollars to build such a court house as Valley county needs. Provision must be made for an additional county officer, register of deeds, though we have no such office in the county at this time. When the population of the county reaches fifteen thousand a register of deeds is provided by law. That will happen, possibly in two or three years but surely before ten years and must be provided for. Other provisions must be made for the next ten to twenty years so it is not practical to build strictly for the present. The Quiz would like to print the views of other citizens along this line.

The bible school of the Christian church will receive an offering next Sunday, Jan. 19, for Armenian and Syrian relief.

The people of this community have been wonderfully blessed with the necessities and comforts of life. Come now, let's have a large attendance Sunday morning and a splendid contribution to send to help save from starvation a worthy Christian people, who have been inhumanly persecuted and driven from their homes.

Their loved ones have been brutally slain and all their possessions stolen or destroyed by the "unspeakable" Turk and his more cruel German ally. And their only crime was their loyal devotion to Jesus the Saviour.

Now their enemies are conquered and no doubt these good people, if rescued will have a chance, and will make good in life. Help in this good cause and see how happy you will be by saving a child's life.

LETTER FROM E. L. BALL

Tramping Lake, Sask. Can. Jan. 10.

Dear Editor:—I am writing you thinking perhaps some of my old friends who are your readers would like to know what had become of me. I am told Canada is experiencing the most pleasant winter they ever had. A few raw, windy days in November, all of December nice and warm, up to the 29-30-31 and January 1, these days were cold and some stormy, but cleared up and has thawed some during the day ever since and with all the snow fall we have had we haven't sleighing yet, but too much snow for automobiles in places. Last summer here was like 94 in Nebraska got so hot during the summer that it did not cool off all winter. Crops in this locality were near a total failure which did me no good, but filled me with disappointment which I had to pass on to others. Domestically everything is running smoothly in the home, all had the flu. Twenty died with the flu in this township and some very sad cases to be added to homes who had already been called to mourn for some loved member wha had given his life to dispell the night mare of the kaiser. The Daily Star of Saskatoon has for some time been giving names and pictures of soldiers to be returned like this "he is coming home" which gives the ring of gladness all around and since the armistice was signed I have looked eagerly for names of sons returning home in the good old U. S. A. I have been deeply interested in the boys of my old home and the death of Charley Thompson came very close to me and I felt sad to learn of the death of the sons of my old friends, Clark of Burwell and McGrew of Ord, when the struggle was so nearly over. And these parents looking forward with all assurance to their safe return and now, my turn has come. My own dear boy who was discharged at Camp Funston, Dec. 24, in the cold rain and sick, going directly to ihs sister's at Lincoln on his way home took to his bed Dec. 25. Doctors were called but all of no avail. Word was sent me but the telegram was held up here within 100 miles of home and he had passed away 6 hours before I knew he was sick, but when I received this telegram 5 days overdue saying Forrest was very sick with pneumonia I felt that it was all over for a word he would drop in his letters to me now and then during the summer lead me to believe he had not fully recovered from the effects of the long and tedious siege of pneumonia during last March and April being in the hospital from March 15 to April 12 and one week of this time was very serious and no doubt such was his condition that he much more easily succumbed to this treacherous malady at this time. He had written me Dec. 12 and 14 that he was anxious to be free for he was so tired of it all. My heart beat with gladness at the prospect of seeing my dear boy soon but now never to be. What grief this terrible disappointment brings but such is God's will. May he give us strength to bear this added sorrow. In sincerity, E. L. BALL.

BROTHER WRITES MRS. P[illegible]LEN

Larochette, Luxemburg, Nov [illegible] 1918

Dear Sis:— Just received [illegible] letter of Sept. 27th which has [illegible]inly been a long time getting h[illegible] but the war being over now, the [illegible] will surely arrive more promptly [illegible] suppose you'll be surprised to s[illegible]e are in Luxemburg, but we are, [illegible] will be in Germany soon, and t[illegible]anks will ha the "watch on th[illegible]hine" instead of the Germans. I [illegible]k we are capable of watching the Rhine, don't you? The Heinies are sure beating it to get behind the frontier by said time. Well as the censor allows us to write most anything now, I'll tell you something about war, as I am a member of the 2nd U. S. Army and they know some things only by real experience.

Well, at the time of the signing of the Armistice we held a sector on the Argonne front and had advanced to a depth of about 40 kilometers,(which is about 25 miles) up until the armistice was signed. The hostilities were to cease at 11 o'clock, Nov. 11th. On the morning of Nov. 11th our Division went over the top and fought until the minute of the 11th hour when all hostilities ceased.

They advanced three miles that morning and then came the excitement. Every body was happy and celebrating. That night there were bonfires all along the front and flares of all colors lit up the sky for miles around. Believe me that was the happiest night we had spent for many months. Well soon after we began our march for Germany, and have gotten this far, which is not a long way from the Rhine where we will stop and await for peace which is certain. I suppose you read the terms of the armistice. They hit her hard but not nearly so hard as the Americans were hitting her in the lines before, which caused her to come to time. I suppose you have read of some of the battles the 2nd Division was in, but I will mention some just the same. We were in the lines near Verdun holding a sector which had been quiet for four years, but before we left it it was anything but quiet. Well from there we went up near the Marne for a long rest but the Germans started an offensive and were advancing in the direction of Paris by the way of Chateau Thierry and the 2nd Division was called on to check the advance which was well under way. Well we went up in trucks, trains, any way to get there. The French were falling back fast, and told us to fall back some distance and probably we could stop them before they reached Meaux. But fall back we did not, but went in right there and not only stopped them but drove them back thru Belleau woods, Vaux, and Bourcheres and held them there for almost a month, was then relieved by the 26th Division and went direct to Soissons to hit them a rap there, and you probably read of that battle, so I won't go into details. After the advance of Soissons we had a rest. Then beat it way over in the Alsace-Lorraine sector just north of Toul and advanced through Thiacourt when the Americans cleaned out the St. Michiel Salient. Well that battle was not long enough to be interesting as it was done so quickly. From there we went back to Toul and rested a few days. Then moved over o nthe Champagne front near Chalons-Sur-Marne, and was i nthe advance and broke the Hindenburg line, from there we moved over on the Argonne front and were in the last offensive drive before the armistice. We fought in every offensive the French-Americans have had since the entry of American troops into the lines, besides turning the tide and undoubtedly the termination of the war at Chateau Thierry. And now we are picked among others tofollow the Germans home. But we are expecting and probably will be the first fighting unit home besides the sick and wounded.

Well Sis, Luxemburg is a beautiful country and much more modern than France. Every thing is very high here for the population but they all seem to have plenty, a small piece of soap here costs them six marks, ($1.50) and sometimes more according to quality. So you can see the war was making them suffer. The people here are very good to us, and do all they can to make us feel at home while we are here. I have a room with a private family while here. They are very nice to me. They are of French descent and speak French so I get by just fine. There are four in the family, Mr. and Mrs., a boy about 15 years of age and a girl away at school. They are very rich and have a beautiful home.

I am glad the folks have decided to stay in Nebr. Hope they stay there at least until I get home, which can't be so long off.

Am glad every one is well and doing well. Give my love to all. You asked me what I want for Christmas, not a thing, only to be home. We have plenty to eat and can buy chocolates so don't send anything, but many thanks just the same. Will write again soon. I am well as usual and going every day. Well Sis, I must close as it is bed time for the people here. Give my love to all, wishing you, one and all a Merry Christmas and Happy New Year,

Your loving brother, LEE.

OLD LANDMARK GONE

John Jensen and his helpers have been busy for several days tearing down the Munn building opposite the postoffice and are moving it out onto one of the Munn farms where it will be made into a barn.

GEORGE H. STOVER

The announcement by telegram of the death of a highly esteemed former resident of Ord and Valley county, who passed away at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Cornell of L..coln, Nebraska, on Friday, Jan. 17, 1919, was a shock to the many friends of George H. Stover. He was born at Papertown, /Cumberland county, Pa., Oct. 11th, 1854, and came to Lincoln, Neb., at the age of 15 years, where he remained until his removal to Ord in the early eighties, where he was for several years a respected and successful merchant. With the exception of a short period spent at Salt Lake, Utah, his resilence has been in Nebraska.

He was married to Sarah E. Wolf at Freeport, Ills., April 15th, 1886. This loving wife and their affectionate daughter, Mrs. C. D. Cornell of 2744 Stratford Avenue, Lincoln, Neb., who gave this model husband and father the tender care and attention during his several months of declining health and last illness, with the loyal and patriotic son, Harlan W., who enlisted his services to his country and is now overseas, are the remaining members of this once happy, now bereaved family.

George Stover, as he was familiarly known, was a modest, unassuming, conscientious citizen, an earnest and faithful member of his church and devoted to his lodge, having been a member of the Presbyterian church for many years, a charter member of the Knights of Pythias lodge of Lincoln, Neb., and ably assisted with the organization of lodges at Ord, Greeley and elsewhere. He was an efficient councilman in the city for two terms.

Services were conducted at the home by Dr. Young of the First Presbyterian church, Lincoln, and attended by the immediate friends of the family, many being former residents of Ord. Burial at Wyuka Cemetery, Lincoln, Neb., Sunday afternoon, Jan. 19, 1919.

DAN HINER INSANE

Friends of the family were shocked to learn thru the state papers and from letters of the serious mental condition of Dan Hiner. He was long a highly respected citizen here before going to Wyoming. We trust that he may be cured of the trouble at the hospital where he was recently sent. The Sunday Bee contained the following account of his condition:

"Washing his children in snow in zero weather to "purify them from sin" was the practice of Dan Hiner a dry land farmer living north of this city who has been adjudged insane and sent to the Evanston asylum. Mr. Hiner was committed on the testimony of the wife, who testified that her husband on December 22, when the mercury hovering around the zero point, had forced five of the six children of the family to submit to snow baths out doors. Hiner claimed he was Christ, and frequently preached to the members of the family for hours at a time, compelling even the three year old child to remain awake while he talked.

BIG MEETING AT LINCOLN

Arrangements have been made for a big Nonpartisan league meeting at Lincoln on Friday, February 28, when A. C. Townley, Governor Frazier of North Dakota, Congressman Bear of North Dakota and other speakers of national reputation will be present. No doubt there will be a good many members who will want to go down from this county and the same will be true of all over the state so if you want to be sure of accommodations notify Organizer B. H. Alvord and he will make arrangements so that you will have a bed in which to sleep at least.

ICE PLANT SOLD AGAIN

Emil Aagaard was not long the owner of the ice plant which he bought at auction a week ago Saturday for the first of this week he closed up a deal by which Ormsby Petty became the owner of the plant and he acquired the Petty farm. Mr. Petty the new owner has already started getting things in shape to put up ice and while the warm weather of the past few days keeps the ice mushy on top he hopes in a few days to start cutting and plans upon filling the house as rapidly as possible.

Mr. Petty has been alive for some time to the possibilities of the business and would have been an active bidder at the sale of the plant had he disposed of his farm before that time. He will move to Ord as soon as possible and when the ice season opens he will maintain an office up town where customers may transact business with him. Later when the hot weather comes on he will arrange to keep a load of ice in a refrigerator for the accommodation of the farmers who may want ice.

FLETCHER IN REMEDY GAME

A. B. Fletcher who lived in Ord two or three years ago and then moved to Illinois to take the management of a branch house for a Council Bluffs stock remedy company, arrived with his wife the first of the week for a visit with her people, the Sutton family at Burwell and with her sister, Mrs. E. G. Miller and family of this city.

Mr. Fletcher has severed his relations with the company for which he has worked for many years and has bought a half interest in the Acme Stock Remedy Co. of Akron, Illinois, and will have the entire management of the selling end of the business. Mr. Fletcher is thoroughly experienced in that business and will no doubt make a great success of the new business. He takes charge of the business February 1st.

BIG EXCITEMENT AT NEBRASKA STATE BANK

During the recent cold weather as Mr. Kelberlau, of the Weller Lumber yard, was entering the Nebraska State bank early in the morning a wayfaring street rat that had stayed out too late and had forgotten the way back home was seeking a haven of refuge. As Kelberlau opened the bank door, Mr. Rat took advantage of the opportunity to enter a good bank and did so with all the speed left in him after his night's ogry. Mr. Rat caused all the bank force that was then on duty to immediately stand at attention. Lobby doors were ordered closed and battle formation was soon made. Miss Joan of Arc Shonka pulled the pucker string on the bottom of her skirt for obvious reasons of her own and proclaimed in stentorian tones, "My country for a sword," and said the talk about the pen being mightier than the sword was all bosh. She expressed a willingness to prove her valor in battle line as a suffragette and derided the idea that a common mouse or rat had any terror for a woman with her skirts securely fastened. Major Trosky said: "Don't talk about swords, a broom or golf stick is enough for this rat. After due deliberation and preparation, the battle lines were completed. General VanDecar succeeded in routing the rat from under his desk to the tile floor of the lobby. All avenues of retreat were closed and no chance for anything but a pitched battle left. Mr. Rat crawled up behind the radiator but was soon forced by a well directed thrust of a broom stick to come out into the open. Major Troksy caught him with his perescope and plunged at him with his trusty broom, missing the rat something like six feet, breaking the broom, and incidently throwing his shoulder out of joint. He scorned to be carried to the rear, but got another weapon and staid in the field. Joan of Arc Shonka played Mr. Rat a few rounds until the rat got under cover again behind the radiator. Once more the rat was forced into the open and again Major Trosky was after him landing on him in fine shape with the fatal result of a flu germ. When the rat was known to be dead for sure, General VanDecar threw him out in the street, remarking that "We killed the bear." After the battle the business of the bank was continued in the usual routine manner and but few people knew any thing about the big excitement of war right in town.

MRS. CLIFFORD SMITH DEAD

This is another of the saddest events that the Quiz has had to chronicle in a long time, the death of Mrs. Ida Smith, for besides her husband she leaves five little children, three boys and two girls.

It was but a few months ago that Mrs. Smith underwent an operation but she never fully regained her strength and has been in poor health. They lived out in Mira Valley near the churches where Mr. Smith had work. Recently her condition became so serious that they were advised by their physician that the only chance was an operation and they went to Omaha for that purpose. The operation was performed a few days ago and was of a serious nature and death resulted Tuesday evening. Her father, W. C. Woolery received a message yesterday morning telling him of her death but as this is being written he don't know what funeral arrangements will be made or whether the body will be brought to Ord.

Joe Smith, father of the bereaved husband, accompanied them when they went to Omaha and took the children to the home of a daughter in Madison county.

There is comfort for the husband in the fact that the neighbors out in the Valley did all that could be done to assist him in his trouble. Before leaving Ord he made the statement that he never could repay them for the kindness which had been shown himself and family. Clifford will be remembered as a delivery man for a year or two for Mamie Siler. We know that he has the sympathy of many friends in his trouble. We will have an obituary next week.

HANSEN BUYS FARM

J. Bergman Hansen, commonly called Bert, has bought the Secmhan quarter two and a half miles north of North Loup and will take possession the first of March. The place was farmed last year by Redlon who will vacate soon. Mr. Hansen has been on the John Williams place and is soon to hold a big cleanup sale preparatory to turning the place over to the new owner, Gene Stacy. Mr. Hansen got the Sechman place for $75 per acre which is considered a bargain price. It has been rented for evesral years and was somewhat run down but the owner will soon put it in shape again and located as it is, close to a good town and half a mile from school, was surely a bargain.

BABY BOY DIES

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Worm have the sincere sympathy of all the community in the edath of their baby boy, Ralph E. Ralph was born May 8 and was a healthy child until a couple of weeks ago when he was taken ill with the flu followed by heart trouble and pneumonia and despite all that loving care could do the little life was snuffed out Monday evening. The funeral was held yesterday, interment being made in the Ord cemetery. The bereaved family we are sure, would want us to thank, on their behalf, the friends and neighbors who assisted them in their days of trouble.

Tuesday Axel Lindhartsen was a passenger for Omaha.

CLARA ETTA LONG

Clara Etta Kauble was born in Clay county, Indiana, March 10th, 1879. She came to Kansas with her parents at the age of 5 years. She was the ninth child of a family of ten children and was looked upon by her brothers and sisters as a favorite child. On April 25th, 1904, she was united in marriage to Joseph N. Long at Independence, Kansas. To this union there were born four children. In the year 1908 they moved to Nuckolls county, Nebraska, where they lived about five years and then came to Ord, Nebraska, which has been their home ever since. On Monday morning, January 13th, this faithful wife and mother was taken sick with influenza and after a short illness she passed away on the following Saturday morning, at 7:15 o'clock. The news of her death came as a sudden shock to the community in which she lived and especially to those of her own household and relatives. Clara Etta Long was faithful to her family and was a wife and mother in every sense of that term. Loved by husband and children, brothers and sisters, neighbors and friends, she will be missed and her place in home and neighborhood is indeed vacant. She leaves to mourn her loss a husband, four children, Omer John B., 12 years of age; Beatrice, 10 years; Lloyd Elwood, 8 years; Joseph Arnold, 6 years; added to these of her own family are the following; her mother, Mrs. Leah Kauble, Ord, Neb., three brothers, Jacob Kauble, Reelsville, Ind.; John Kauble, Shale, Cal.; Abraham Kauble, Weir, Kansas; and four sisters, Sarah C. Schiver, Casey, Ill.; Laura A. Baldwin, Galesburg, Ill.; Eleanor Alderson, Lavette, Kansas; and Alice Alexander, Bartlesville Kansas.

Funeral services were held from the Daniels undertaking rooms on Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock in charge of Rev. Charles J. Bukoutz, pastor of the First Baptist church. The music was in charge of Miss Louise Misko. She was assisted by Miss Minnie Smith, Mrs. C. J. Bukoutz and Mr. J. A. Perkins, Lincoln, Neb.

MILLER BUYS PAPER

E. G. Miller returned Tuesday evening from a week or more spent at Lynch in Boyd county where he contracted to buy a newspaper plant and as soon as he can pack their household effects and move up there he will take over the property and be in the newspaper business for himself.

Mr. Miller has been at the head of the mechanical department of the Ord Journal most of the time for the past five or six years and during the past few months he has been manager of the paper. We are glad to see him get into business for himself and hope to see him make a big success of the venture. He is a good newspaper man and has hal lots of experience. He will have the added advantage of being acquainted with many of the people with whom he will do business as Lynch was his home for a long time and his realtives have lived there for many years.

WILL AUCTION IMPLEMENT STOCK

Several times in the last 48 hours the Quiz has had to decline display advertising for this week's paper and yesterday when Mr. Detweiler asked for large space for an advertisement of a close-out sale of the stock of implements which the firm of Bailey & Detweiler has at Scotia we sure hated it. However, all the space in the paper was spoken for as early as Tuesday morning and lack of help prevented our making more than a 12-page paper this week. In a way it is most gratifying to have the Quiz advertising space in such demand and if advertisers will just remember to order their space early some of them at least will not be disappointed.

As it is we are making a lot of bills for the Bailey & Detweiler folks and you will see their locals in the paper. Don't forget their sale as it will no doubt be worth your time to go some distance to take advantage of their offering.

HERMAN JENSEN DEAD

The Peter Jensen family received a message the first of the week telling them of the serious illness of their son Herman who has been farming in Wyoming and Mr. Jensen left at once to be with him. Yesterday a message came saying that the young man was dead but the family didn't know whether Mr. Jensen got there before he died or not. The message stated that he was suffering with double pneumonia. The body will be brought to Ord for burial.

SAILOR BOY LEAVES

Frank Dworak left this morning for New York to join his ship, his furlough being out. He has been with the home folks for nearly a month. It was two years ago that he enlisted for four years so he has two more years to serve and he don't expect to come home until the end of his term of enlistment. He says he will probably have enough of the salt water by then and be ready to settle down and his people surely hope such will be the case.

HAD BUTTON IN HIS NOSE

Dan Bartlett has been having trouble for some time with his nose and head and his people have been much worried and feared an operation would be necessary. The first of this week the boy blew a large button from his nose and is feeling better. The supposition is that the button was put there, probably when he was a small child and has been a source of more or less trouble ever since.

NATHANIEL K. REDLON

Again we are called upon to mourn the passing of a good man and an old settler of the community. Mr. Redlon came to Valley county when it was comparatively a new country and until the past few years when the loss of his wife and the stress of years in a measure broke his health, always took a leading part in doing the things for the upbuilding of the country. He held important positions from time to time and never failed those who imposed a trust in him. His going will leave a vacant place in the home community that will be felt by a great circle of friends and his family, while they grieve, will always cherish him in their memory for the beautiful life that he lived.

Mr. Redlon was born near Portland, Maine, March , 1824, and would have been 85 years old on the 5th of the coming March. In early childhood he moved with his parents to Wisconsin and they settled near Plainfield and that was his home until 1880. In 1854 he was married in New York. His wife died in September, 1906.

Our interest in deceased dates back to 1880 for that was when he came to Nebraska, settling near North Loup. There are two children left to mourn the death of Mr. Redlon, Mrs. George E. Johnson and Amos Redlon, both of North Loup. Since the death of his wife Mr. Redlon has lived much with his children when he was not at the Soldiers Home at Hot Springs, S. D., and of late his time has been mostly spent at the home of his daughter where everything that love could dictate was done to make him comfortable.

Mr. Redlon enlisted in the 8th Wisconsin battery in the fall of 1863 and served until the end of the war, being mustered out in 1865. He died at the home of his daughter at North Loup last Saturday and on Monday the remains were laid beside those of his wife, Rev. Mitchell of the M. E. church officiating. At the grave the Masons, of which order Mr. Redlon was a member, had charge of the exercises.

Beside his two children there are two sisters, Mrs. Chas. Hutchins of Burwell and Mrs. S. R. Hall of North Loup.

MASIN SELLS HIS HOME

Chas. J. J. Masin closed a deal the latter part of last week by which J. J. Polak of the western part of the county became the owner of the beautiful home. Mr. Polak has been planning for some time to buy property and move to Ord and about the time the war started he had fully decided to do so but he saw the necessity for the things he was producing and felt it his duty to stay on the farm as long as the war lasted. Now he will retire and plans upon taking it a little easier tahn in the past. He has secured one of the finest homes in town.

RUMOR THAT TRAIN SERVICE HERE MAY UNDERGO CHANGE

There is a rumor among trainmen passing through Greeley that a decided change in the schedule of the Aurora-Burwell passenger tai rsnoon is to be made by the powers that be.

According to the report, the passenger will leave Aurora in the morning instead of Burwell. It is to reach Greeley from the south about 10:30 o'clock. On the return trip the train probably will pas through Greeley between 3 and 4 o'clock.

Just how this will effect the Ericson crew is not yet known. If the Ericson train is to continue but one trip a day and make connections with the passenger, the crew will live in Greeley, or at least remain here over night. If it is to connect with the freight, two trips will have to be made and the night layover will be in Ericson.

It is presumed that the Aurora-Sargent train schedule also will be changed.

The working hours of agents along the branches are to be changed. Officials of the road were in Greeley last week and let it be known that an eight-hour day soon would become effective. Agent Peer, as soon as the new order becomes effective, will work from 8:30 a. m. to 4:30 p. m. Are Brown will work from 10 a. m. to 6 p. m. This would indicate that a change of train schedules was contemplated.

The rumor has not been confirmer, but the railroad me nare convinced there is something to it.—Greeley Citizen.

MRS. FRED HEUCK DEAD

It was a great shock to the relatives yesterday morning when a message came telling of the sudden death of Mrs. Fred Heuck at their home in Montana. It will be remembered that Fred was here recently to attend the funeral of his father and it seems but a few days, though it was the latter part of last month, that he started for home. Now the word comes that his wife is dead. Only a brief statement was given.

A baby was born to Mr. and Mrs. Heuck shortly after Fred got home from Ord and it will never know a mother's love.

DLUGOSH BUYS HOME

Joseph Dlugosh has bought the Roy Tatlow home north of the north school and will move to Ord this spring. Roy will go to California to live as soon as he can close up his business and sell his household goods.

Last Thursday the Farmers produce station shipped over a ton of poultry and Saturday, the largest days business ever done by that department, $559 worth of produce was taken in Looks like a big business.

MRS. VOPAT BADLY BURNED THIS MORNING

The worst accident that has happened in Ord in a long time occurred this morning when Mrs. F. J. Vopat was so badly burned that there are great chances that she may not recover.

She was cleaning her gloves and as we get the story, the gasoline exploded and was thrown over her and her clothing was set on fire. She screamed for hepl and went into the house and wrapped herself about with rugs and when help came her clothing was still burning under the rugs. The Clements folks live next door west and the little daughter of Mrs. Stacy who is visiting here, was the only one out of doors and she at once went into the house and tried to tell her mother about the accident but was greatly excited f course and had some trouble convincing the folks that there was trouble. Mrs. Clements was soon over there however and assisted in giving first aid before Drs. Miller and Barta arrived. Probably a member of the Irl Tolen household was the first one there.

Dr. Miller, who has charge of the case, tells us at the hour of going to press, that the burn is so extensive that there is greatdangerofthepatien that there is geat rdanger of the patient not being able to survive the shock. She is burned terribly about the waist and chest and also on the back and arms and slightly on the face but it is the lagre area of the burn which is giving the ca[illegible] alarm. If she survives the s[illegible] two or three days her chanc[illegible] ultimate recovery from the burns wil be good.

There is a trained nurse caring for her and the Dr. is in almost constant attendance and everything possible is being done for her comfort.

NEW PANIT SHOP

It will be remembered that Parks & Lowe had a paint shop here last year Mr. Lowe later going east where he has been employed in some of the largest shops for the past few months. He is back in Ord and the firm of Parks & Lowe has leased the Huff building north of Koupal & Barstows lumber yard and had it fitted up for a paint shop. They will make a specialty of sign and auto painting and will be glad to have your business. Bell Phone 69. 431t

OLIE FUSON DEAD

Death of course always comes to the family of the departed with a shock and many times the whole community is shocked. Such is the case with the death of Miss Olive Fus. who died at Hampton Monday evening from pneumonia which developed from flu.

Olive was raised in Ord, was a graduate of the Ord schools, was always popular with the young people of the community, taught school in the county for several years and was sick so short a time that most of her friends did not know of her illness until the news of her death came to them and naturally they were greatly shocked.

She didn't feel well last week Thursday but was in the school room and finished the days work, when she was obliged to give up and her people at Central City were notified. Her mother was visiting there and of course her mother and sister went to her at once and as soon as possible a trained nurse was also secured. The case developed into a serious one soon and the end came rapidly despite every effort of nurses and doctors.

Her sister in Iowa, Mrs. Ford and her brothers were unable to reach Nebarska before her death. We were informed last evening that her brother, Lieut. Merritt Fuson, had not been located despite the fact that several messages had been sent and at the time of writing this article the hour for the funeral had not been set. They were hoping that Merritt might be on the way and arrive for the funeral.

HASKELL SELLS RANCH

Mr. Haskell has sold the ranch, the deal being closed the first of this week and the purchasers are F. P. Ackles and sons Floyd and Franklin and W. J. and William Lunney, all now occupying the place. The Lunneys recently came there, buying John Haskell out and Mr. Ackles has been on the place for several years. The purchase price, including stock, was upwards of sixty thousand dollars.

Mr. Haskell is getting pretty well closed out of business, the ranch being the last of his big interests. He sold the gas plant some years ago and the Quiz a year ago and he is now advertising his home and some other smaller properties which he has about town. He still owns a couple of buildings on the square, the one where the Quiz is located and the one occupied by Bradt Bros.

He tells the Quiz that he don't expect to leave Ord though they may spend a part of next year in Lincoln where their daughter will be attending the university. That has been their plan for several years. He has lived in Ord too long however, to entirely cut loose and he expects to make this his permanent home as long as he lives.

J. J. Polak, who will move to Ord March 1st, or perhaps before, has placed an order with the Quiz to prepare his sale advertising. See his bills and announcement in this paper next week.

A Dodge touring car arrived at the parsonage Monday morning of this week bringing a party of friends from Loup City. Mrs. Julius Angler, wife of the late Judge Angler of Sherman county, and her son Edward and wife were among the party. Mrs. Angler knew the writer of these notes when he was a little fellow back in Illinois. Their calling at the parsonage was a very pleasant surprise. They spent the day, returning late in the evening to the Hub of Sherman county.

Mr. M. E. Bukoutz of Salt Lake City, Utah, is making us a visit. He likes the looks of our country and town and speaks of the advantages which we possess over other parts of the state. We hope to keep him with us for some little time.

Because of several requesting us to give another of our "Sermons in Song" Mrs. Bukoutz and the pastor will do so next Sunday evening at the usual hour of service. We will take for our subject, "The Ministry of Jesus." God has used the songs of His kingdom to accomplish much in reaching and comforting hearts, and we trust He will be the "Sermon in Song" next Sunday night to His glory.

Mrs. Joe Barta was called to Hampton Monday on account of the serious illness of her sister, Olive Fuson. The latter took ill last Thursday with influenza. Olive has been teaching at Hampton.

Since the departure of Mrs. Christine Drozda-Fischer from the Dworak store Lillian Dworak and Mrs. Stanley Dworak have been clerking. The latter formerly was one of Ord's best sales ladies, and filled several positions previous to her marriage. However she has not decided to stay at the work permanently.

Last Friday F. W. Simmons was down from Burwell between trains. He tells us his wife is quite poorly, in fact is only able to get around by the use of crutches. During the last five years he has had several partial strokes of paralysis. Old timers will remember Mr. and Mrs. Simmons. They both lived here while they were young people and then moved away with their parents. Mrs. Simmons was formerly Florence Taylor.

Last Friday Mrs. Berry returned to her home at Horace. For a few weeks she had been caring for Mr. and Mrs. Dean Mosier, who had the flu. Years ago the Berry family lived at Ord and Rev. Berry was pastor of the Baptist church at this place. Some time after moving to Horace he was accidently killed while following the carpenter trade. His wife is one of those women, who has put her shoulder to the wheel and has raised in a creditable manner a family of young children. During the recent flu epidemic in and around Horace and Scotia she has been going out nursing. Many a sick one has blessed her gentle touch and experienced hand during their days of suffering.

MILK PRODUCERS ORGANIZE

About 150 milk producers, meeting in Lincoln January 7, voted to organize. Another organization conference was held in Omaha the following day. Figures presented at the Lincoln conference showed that the price of feed has increased from 100 to 200 per cent since 1914 while the price of milk to the consumer has increased but 75 per cent. Many milk producers are going out of business because of the high price of feed. W. J. Kittle, Secretary of the Illinois Milk Producers' Association, addressed the Lincoln conference and urged the producers to organize so they could receive a profit for their business. This has been done in the big milk producing section near Chicago.

TIME TO THINK ABOUT GARDEN

It is time to plan the garden and order seeds, say University of Nebraska extension workers. It is a good idea to have a definite garden plan or program. Lay plans this year to grow all the vegetables that the garden contained last year and then add a few additional ones. Now is the time to plan hotbeds, dig them and make the frames. It is the early garden that is worth the most and tastes the best, and a good hotbed is necessary for an early garden. With many farmers and others a little planning and work would make windmill irrigation easy. It is remarkable what a lot of vegetables can be grown on a small irrigated garden.

MANY SALE ADVERTISEMENTS

We feel that Quiz readers this week will be surprised at the large amount of sale advertising in the paper. In fact, while we want the advertising all we can handle of it, we would like to give our readers a little more reading matter along with it and hope to do so hereafter. The sale advertising however, will prove interesting to a great majority of our readers for a majority are in the country. Look the sale ads over and if there are things that you want, attend the sales and help to make them a success. We spend a lot of time in trying to make the sale ads attractive so that you will read them.

KEEP UP WAR INSURANCE

Treasury Department, Washington, December 4, 1918;—To the Soldiers and Sailors of America: Approximately 4,000,000 officers and men of the army and navy are now insured with the United States government for a grand total of almost $37,000,000,000.

The priveledge of continuing your family to hold onto Uncle Sam's insurance. It is the strongest safest and cheapest life insurance ever written.

For your protection Uncle Sam has established the greatest life insurance company in the world—a company as mighty, as generous and as democratic as the United States government itself. Jus as Uncle Sam protected you and your loved ones during the war so he stands ready to continue this protection through the days of readjustment and peace.

The priveledge of continuing our government insurance is a valuable right given to you as a part of the compensation for your heroic and triumphant services. If you permit the insurance to lapse, you lose that right, and you will never be able to regain it. But if you keep up your present insurance—by the regular payment of premiums—you will be able to change it into a standard government policy without medical examination Meantime you can keep up your present at substantially the same low rate. The government will write ordinary life insurance, twenty-payment life, endowment maturing at the age 62, and other usual forms of insurance. This will be government insurance at government rates.

The United States government—thru the bureau of war-risk insurance of the treasury department—will safeguard you and your loved ones with the spirit and purpose of a republic grateful to its gallant defenders. To avail yourself of this protection, you must keep up your present insurance. Carry back with you to civil life, as an aid and an assett, the continued insurance protection of the United States government.

Hold on to Uncle Sam's insurance.
W. G. McAdoo, Secretary.

WHEN AUTO REFUSES TO START

The Agricultural Engineering Department of the University of Nebraska gives the following suggestions about starting an automobile in cold weather: Be sure the spark plugs are clean and firing properly. Considerable difficulty may be avoided if one is sure the butterfly valve in the carburetor intake will close, when the choker is drawn clear out to insure a charge of gasoline to be drawn into the cylinder as the starter rotates the engine. There are small primers on the market which may be attached to the car, permitting one to inject either hightest gasoline or ether into the intake manifold as the starter turns the engine over, which is a decided help in starting in cold weather. Use a lighter lubricating oil in winter than in summer, to permit the engine to turn over more freely, as the oil gets quite hard when cold.

CHICKENS NEED FRESH AIR

Chickens should not be cheated out of fresh air, even in the winter, say University of Nebraska Extension workers. Houses that are closed too tight during the night, especially of overcrowded, often become damp. Chickens are liable to catch cold when let out of damp houses, and in extreme cold weather their combs and wattles become damp in the house and freeze when they go out. It is, therefore, advisable that chicken houses have proper ventilation. Still cold is not as dangerous as damp and drafty houses.

BUSINESS METHODS ON THE FARM

To meet a desire on the part of farmers that they have aid in farm accounting, organization and marketing, special courses will be given along such lines at the University of Nebraska beginning January 27 and continuing four weeks. Other short courses will be given in dairying, poultry raising, animal husbandry, automobiles, tractors, etc. One hundred and twenty five farmers are now taking a short course in automobiles, tractors and trucks. The short courses are open to anyone.

WILLING TO TRADE ADVISE

We can think up a mighty good trade for Henry Ford if he will agree to it. If he knows better how to run a weeklypaper than most editors, we will take his advise if he will let us advise him how to improve his little old jitney car. First oc. we would give the driver, who most always goes with the car, a door of his own to go in and out of. Next we would fix the radiator, so it would drink water like a cow, a bucket full at a swallow, instead of like a society lady taking tea.

Also we would arrange the rig-a-ma-gig that lets the water out of the radiator so it would do more than trickle on a cold night when Bob gets home from seeing his girl and wants to get to bed before the whole thing freezes up. Then we would fix the doors so they would shut without having to be jerked to ceh-bang old-tin-can. It could be done mighty easy, and if Henry wants to show us how to run a weekly paper we will be liberal minded and take his advise if he will take ours on numerous little improvements for his pet.—Fairbury Journal.

The Prompting Motive

Of every business or enterprise of any kind is the possibility of profits to be made out of the business or enterprise. In the conduct or management of any business or enterprise certain general rules apply. Business courtsey and efficient service are always important factors to the success of any business. Some people confuse these features with "Accommodations." When a person borrows money from a bank and pays interest for it, the bank is not accommodating him very much, it is simply rendering banking service for profit—no accommodation at all. Loans are a part of the banking business. When a borrower asks for a loan at the bank, it is up to the bank to determine whether the borrower is worthy or deserving of credit. If so, the loan is made at an agreed rate of interest which the borrower agrees to pay. If not, the loan is refused. In no sense is there anything done but the handling of a pure and simple business transaction. Being pleasant, courteous, affable, agreeable, accommodating in a general way all go with the business, not on a charge basis, as interest is, but for the purpose of building up and increasing business. The talk about "Accommodating you with a loan" that you PAY for is on the same basis of a merchant accommodating you by selling you merchandise at a profit. Loans are a part of the Banking business. The Nebraska State Bank is always ready to make a loan as to receive a deposit. It takes both the loans and the deposit to make a success of the Banking Business.

VALUABLE INFORMATION IN PURCHASING SHARES OF STOCK

During the past year quite a number of stock salesmen representing different companies have been selling stock in Ord and Valley county. Some of these shares are all common stock, some are all preferred stock and some are preferred stock with common stock bonus. It is a question to our mind how many who have purchased shares of stock, know just what common stock and preferred stock means. The Quiz therefore offers the following explanation and guidance to its readers:

1—Common stock means ownership in connection with other holders of Common stock of all the company's property or other assets.

2—Preferred stock means you own nothing of the company's property or other assetts, you merely loan them your money upon their promise to pay you interest or dicident at six, seven, eight or more per cent according to what is printed on face or back of the stock certificate.

Companies paying over six per cent dividends generally charge a premium on each share this—

Stock paying 6 per cent $100 per share
Stock paying per cent $115 per share.
Stock paying per cent $135 per share.
Stock paying 9 per cent $150 per share.

But your dividends will only be paid you at the rate of $100 per share, no matter how much over $100 per share you pay for the stock.

We believe it is very important that these suggestions be given to our readers at this time.

"Everything in the world depends upon will."—Beaconfield.

We are back in our old places trying to make up the time that flew while our teacher was having the flu. This can be done by applying ourselves a little more and putting in longer weeks and studying at home. Many of the pupils will make their grades while others will need special attention from both parents and teacher so by careful study and close cooperation we can succeed even yet.

We are reading the book of Pollyanna and find it interesting. We have ersolved to play the Glad game and see if it won't make our work easier, our friends more and a gladder world in which to live.

VINTON TOWNSHIP NEWS

By E. S. Coats.

The members of the farm bureau met at the agents office Tuesday of last week. We found we had $50 in the treasury from our last year's allotment and a lot of workable office furniture. Mr. Dale, an ex-soldier boy, was present as a prospective agent. He was raised on a farm and topped off his education at the state university farm school. He is educated along the lines of live stock and their ailments. He can vaccinate hogs and cattle and understands dairy questions and these are the principal questions the bureau expects him to work on this year. Of course he will be ready to help out on other farm problems but these are the principal ones. In the afternoon the farm bureau members visited our new county board and asked for an appropriation to do the work and pay the agent who comes highly recommended by the county agent leader, Mr. Holland. Our request has been granted and the agent will be on the job at the office across the street from the postoffice on February 1. He is a fine appearing, big, husky fellow and talks like he meant business. Call in and see him, in fact make it a point to meet your farmer friends at the agent's office. There are plenty of chairs there and you can discuss any question under the sun there, of course excepting politics. The county agent is not in politics and the farm bureau has nothing to do with politics. Brother farmers you often make a date to meet your farmer friends in Ord to exchange articles. Now you are invited to use the agent's office for that purpose instead of meeting in some crowded store. We did not give our agent a fair chance to show what was in him last year but it is a little better this year. He is here for our use, let's use him. I see other counties are coming across with the money to hire the agent. Scottsbluff county appropriated $3,500, Kimball county $1,700, Cheyenne county $2,500, Gage county $2,500, Otoe county $2,000. Valley county is coming up with the rest of them on the county agent work.

I see by last week's Quiz that the editor does not take all of my court house dope as good natured as I hoped he would and he wishes to set me right. Well, my guess is as good as his and of course I think a little better. Mr. Leggett does not tell us his plan of payment, whether he expects to have the present business men and farmers pay for it or whether he expect to psa yniterest on bonds for the next fifty years and we pay for it once in interest on those bonds, to the value of the court house then our children pay for it again and then our grandhcildren finally pay off the debt and have an old, out of date court house. Now what I mean by building for the present time is to build for our needs as we see them at the time of building and pay for it in the next five years and not pay for it three times over in interest. Times change so fast that we can't build for our children any more than the builders of the present court house could build for us. I still believe we should have a court house as soon as conditions will permit but I will never favor one that is built for show or to get ahead of our neighboring counties. We want a good, substantial building to fit our present day needs and condition of our pocketbooks and if it does not suit the next generation they can, if they wish to spend their money, get one that will suit them. If I were running public business I would want to run it as I would my private business. I would not think of building a house that would suit my children or grandchildren, nor would I think of leaving them the debt to pay. I expect to leave them the farm but I expect them to build the house to fit hte times they live in, and not have to put up with one that I built to fit the imes I live in. I am glad M. Leggett took the matter up and has opened the question for discussion. Of coue Ir sdo not expect every one to agree with me.

Nebraska has outgrown her constitution, so much so, that the voters at the last election, voted that she should have a new one. And I think that there will be something like a hundred men selected from out over the state to make a bran new constitution that will fit the times. My mother tells me that my uncle, Samuel Coats, was a member of the body of men that formed the first constitution for Nebraska.

I was only a kid when my uncle visited my mother's home but I will always remember him and the stories he told of the eafly days of Nebraska. He was the surveyor in northeast Nebraska and laid out a lot of homesteads for the pioneers of that part of the state. When Nebraska got too tame for him he and another uncle headed an outfit for the Black Hills and helped to develop that country. He was a mighty good story teller ant if I was a real writer I could write a book from the stories he told of his experiences with the Indians and the early mining camps in the Black Hills in the times of the buffalo and the mountain lion. This man has long age been called to his reward and what he did for the early development of Nebraska will most likely never be told.

I am glad that there is another famrer who is keeping books. Mr. editor tells us in last weeks Quiz that Mr. John Wheeler is doing that same thing and he thinks his cows about as good as the Jerseys he hears about. He got an averaye of $67.96, which is very good for a beef cow but did it pay? I wonder if anyone keeps books on the other side, on the feed side. Now if a cow freshens the first of October, according to my book she will need to make her a good milch cow for the 7 winter months, three tons of alfalfa, at $15 is $45 for hay and four quarts of corn or corn meal per day for the 7 months will make 26 bushels of corn at $1.58 which is $39, then 5 months pasture at $2 per month or $10, making a total for feed and pasture for the year of $94. The interest on money invested in cow and taxes on cow will make a total of $100 that the cow must pay for. I will leave it to you dear erader, can you make a profit on milking a beef cow. If I had never kept accounts no doubt I would have been milking beef cows yet. A pound of butter fat a day Jersey for the year at an average of 60 cents per pound will pay the $100. I have figured up or out of the $219 the pound a day Jersey will make $119 for work and the skim milk and calf throwed in. Or even the common average Jersey of 200 pounds will pay her way but it is going to make a beef cow go some to pay her way as a dairy cow about as much as it would a draft horse to trot a mile in 2:10.

I got a letter last week from Dave Strong our representative. He says things are getting in shape for business down there.

Mr. Stanley Rutar from over Loup City way was here Sunday and bought ten of the White Leghorn cockerels and took them home. He says they are all right.

Governor Frazier of North Dakota the twice elected governor of that state by the Nonpartisan leage, in his message to the legislature of that state, says our soldiers and sailors have made great sacrifices and are deserving of some special recognition at our hands and urgently recommends that a fund be provided to give them real assistance in the way of education or to enable them to enter business or to provide for themselves a home or a farm. And this same league was called pro-German and Bolsheviki in its makeup. I believe Governor Frazier is right. The soldier boys that fought our fight for us should be provided with a way to make a good home for themselves and families. I am not forgetting those pet names that our opposition called us last year. I was up at the court house last week and looked in at the new county board. County Clerk Joe was on the job like an old hand at the business and the five young ment that were new to the job of county government looked alive and like they were able to tackle the future work of managing the county. Somehow I feel like that county board has the pep to put new life ni our county affairs. With due respect to the old board I must say that I feel proud of the bunch of supervisors that were seated at the last meeting of the board.

Monday morning I hear that our neighbors the Kirbies have the flu. There are six children in the family and they have all got it at once. It's the second time for the oldest one. I am guessing the parents are very busy people these days and they are hopnig to stay well until the children are better. The reporters family have escaped the flu so far.

A MODERN, UP-TO-DATE INVESTMENT

Recently one of the most successful business men in Chicago, established a precedent in commercial circles by applying for a Million dollars Life Insurance. After being examined by 8 of the best medical authorities, representing 22 leading insurance companies, he received his policy for the exact amount and kind of policy he applied for. The annual premium of this policy amounts to nearly $60,000 which in itself is no small consideration. If the big man of means thinks it is a good thing, don't you think it is a good thing for the ordinary person? You don't have to breath your last to get the benefit of such insurance.

THINK this over, give it CONSIDERATION, it is SERIOUS. Call on me and I will gladly give you the facts and details.

FIRE INSURANCE

Is just as essential to protect your investments and interests. For the Farmers, I can write you a policy covering your live stock, personal property and farm improvements, fire or tornado. On City Insurance, commercial risks, I can either cut down on your premium or write you more protection for the same premium. Automobile insurance a specialty.

I have one of the best recording agencies in the state, representing Standard and well-known companies. If you need any or are interested in any kind of insurance Life or Fire, let me go over the matter with you.

PARKINS The Eye Man

My Own Column

AND WHAT SOME OTHERS THINK
By H. D. Leggett

Doc. Bixby thinks we will soon have to buy some more Liberty Bonds, to raise money to pay ourselves interest on those we have already bought.

—o—

My friend Coats is opposed to paved country roads but we sure need to get busy soon and pave the streets about the square and at least a block each way and the streets to the depots.

—o—

I believe fully half of the bonds bought by the people so far, were bought under duress and it is going to be mighty hard to force people into buying them now that the war is over.

—o—

There are silver tongued orators a plenty in Nebraska but in all the state I don't know of another whose spoken and written words go directly to the hearts of his hearers and readers as do the words of Edgar Howard.

The lives of our boys have been conscripted by the government and now the remains of thousands of them are buried in foreign soil but to date not a dollar of the profiteers has been touched and in most instances their sons have been provided with the snaps. True a part of the war profits have been taken as taxes.

Out of 133 members of the Nebraska legislature, Senator John Tanner of Omaha was the only man to vote against National Prohibition. The name of John Tanner will be often on the lips of future generations of Nebraskans but not many of us would care to be remembered as having gone into the ditch for the dirty saloon bunch.

The first duty of every good citizen is loyally to his government and I would not for the world be known as anything but loyal, but I do not believe that loyalty requires that we overlook apparent wrong. The wrong which I have in mind is graft which the government permits to be practiced on our soldier boys. A soldier boy who recently received his discharge and returned home, was charged $80 for the overcoat that he wore. I believe the government which permitted any manufacturer to receive that amount for that coat did wrong for there is no question but what it was the rankest kind of profiteering.

Brother Rood of the North Loup Loyalist, compailns bitterly because the business men of North Loup don't advertise with him and asks his readers to note the business men in North Loupwho are not represented in the paper. Don't wory Brother, for it is the same everywhere. For instance there are six or seven general stores in Ord and only one of them are represented in the Quiz columns this any week for that matter. Not that we are worrying about it however, for with twelve pages crowded full now, we would have to run sixteen pages if Ord merchants were availing themselves of their opportunities as they should. You know, Brother, and so do I, that thousands of dollars are going to the mail order houses every month because the Valley county merchants are not telling the people about their goods and prices as well as do the catalogue houses.

There is always someone taking the joy out of life but City Manager Lund easily had the belt for doing so last week, when he began sending out water notices. And beleive me I don't want his job either. There were eleven men there to kick when I went over to make my kick and probably some of them had a kick coming and some of them didn't. In no instance so far as I know was Mr. Lund at fault. There are some injustices in the city laws however. For instance, in my own case,I am charged with water for the house use which is O. K. I am charged with water for my cow which is also O. K. Then there are is a charge of $6 for an outside hydrant, which in my case happens to be the one at the barn used for the cow and for no other purpose. Mr. Lund explains that the $6 is for lawn and garden but I never used it for either. Why in thunder can't this city just as well ask me for $25 or $50 as $6 and make me pay it in addition to the amount that I should pay? They admit that it is unjust in my case but say it is the way the ordinance reads so they purpose to have it and I guess they will too. I want to re-Vpeat that I am not the collector of water rents.

Edsel Ford, son of Henry Ford, is advertised to be at the Omaha auto show in March. Edsel is twenty-four years old and has succeeded his father as manager of the Ford factory and draws a meagre hundred and fifty thousand dollars a year as salary. It will be remembered that he squirmed out of taking his place in the draft and was let off because his services were more useful to the government as manager of the factory, he going to make that 200 per cent dividend recently declared. No wonder the dividend was small paying such small salaries.

After the government spent three and a half million building an "eagle" factory on Henry Ford's land near Detroit so that Ford could build 125 "eagle" sub chasers which he estimated when he took the contract, would cost $275,000 each, there was not one boat delivered to the government when the armistice was signed though it was long after the date agreed upon for delivery. Now it developes that the boats are to cost the government $425,000 instead of the estimated price and the government is going to have 60 of the chasers completed despite the fact that all of the subs have been turned over by Germany and there are none left to chase. Government officials admit that they will have no use for the "eagle" boats. And another thing, the government has got to pay ten million dollars to cancel the balance of the order. What do you thing of that kind of business?

PACKERS DOUBLE PROFITS

My how we did shout patriotism when the dollar a year men volunteered their services to the government and were assigned to the food commission and other important places. Now it developes that they were drawing large salaries all the time and were doing the bidding of their masters, the packers, the steel men, the railroads and others who wanted contracts. It was a fine thing to have an employee of the packers employed by the government at a dollar a year to make government contracts for meat. It was a great stroke of business to send a way up milling man to offer his services at a dollar a year to the government and have him put on the job to buy flour from his employers. Sure it was great business to have one of the great steel barrons sacrifice his business and work for the government at a dollar a year buying steel products for war puproses. Does anyone suppose his former masters got the worst of the deal?

And now comes the news that Swift & Co. jumped their pre-war profits of about 8 per cent to 24 per cent during the past two years. And they claim they are not profiteers and are spending millions of dollars in advertising in an effort to convince the people that there is no colored gentleman in their wood pile. The profits of all the big packers are said to have doubled or more. It is openly charged that Mr. Hoover held secret conferences with the packers to fix the prices of their products.

Ford

THE UNIVERSAL CAR

The policy of the Ford Motor Company to sell its cars at the lowest possible price, consistent with dependable quality, is too well known to require comment. Therefore, because of present conditions, there can be no change in price on Ford cars:

Touring Car, $525

The government ought to take necessary action to cut out the excess profits. There will always be a doubt in the minds of some people as to whether some of the excess profits are not getting away from the tax collectors.

Flat head is quite as bad in politics as flat foot is in military life. Not only that, but 80 per cent of the flat foot cases are curable.—Houston Post.

Child's Musical Training.

The child who shows marked musical talent in early years, together with a good voice, had best be allowed the opportunity of such musical training as he will receive in connection with the study of the piano, violin or other instrument for a few years, rather than overtax the powers of his immature vocal organs. The more of general musical training he has had the easier and more satisfactory will be his progress in vocal music when the proper time arrives for its serious study.—Exchange.

LOCAL — PERSONAL

Meet me at Milford's.

J. W. Sevenker is a new Quiz subscriber this year.

After a few days looking after business affairs Dick Bradley returned the latter part of last week to Grand Island.

Dorothy Horner, who has been at work in Ord for a time, returned Saturday to her home near Buwell.

A card from North Platte asks us to change the paper going to Mrs. Glasgow to Marion, Ohio, where the family has moved.

Charley Finley was up from North Loup Saturday and stopped in the Quiz office long enough to pay for the paper another year for himself and also for his sister, Mrs. Girton.

P. L. Pleidrupt and his son Jens were in Ord together last Thursday. The latter has just lately been discharged from service and it must seem fine to his parents to have him rome once more.

Among the outgoing passengers last Monday was Mabel Paumer, who was going to Omaha. Clara, a sister of Elizabeth Buddecke, returned to St. Libory. This was her first visit up this way. C. A. Davis made a business trip to North Loup and Attorney Thompson returned to Grand Island. He came up to Ord and then went to Burwell, driving back to Ord in time to catch the seven-twenty Union Pacific train.

A number of Barney Brickner's children were home last Sunday and Mrs. Brickner prepared a big dinner for them. The families of Ed Holloway, Sam Brickner and Chas. Kingston drove in from the country and Saturday evening Mr. and Mrs. Joe Gunersen came up from Aurora in their car. Sunday night on the passenger another daughter, Mrs. Emma Borkex and her little son arrived from Grant.

John Lapacek, a brother of Mrs. Albert Anderson, who last week came up to hi ssister's home from his residing place between Cedar Rapids and Wolbach, died last Thursday night. His mother and his brother Frank, who liye near Schuyler came up to Ord Friday. Saturday morning they took the body to their home town for burial. The mother and wife had been laid to rest only a few days before at Cedar Rapids, but we understand her body will be moved to Schuyler and placed beside the husband. This is a very sad case. The father had been quite ill but was slowly recovering from the after effects of flu when the wife and mother died. Mrs. Anderson brought her brother up to Ord and gave him the best of care but he only lived a few days. There are five little children left without either parent to care for them. Mrs. Anderson has one child with her.

John S. Turek is another new subscriber, having added his name to our list Saturday.

Mrs. Chas. Hutchins of Burwell was in Ord between trains Saturday, enroute to North Loup where she was called because of the death of her brother Mr. Redlon. While in Ord she visited her nephew, Ben Bowen and wife. While Mrs. Hutchins was at North Loup her daughter, Mrs. Ray Bryan went to Burwell to care for her father who is not in the best of health. Margerie and Gladys Beauchamp, nieces of Mrs. Hutchins, went to North Loup the same day and the former stayed at the Bryan home while Mrs. Bryan was away.

C. O. Philbrick is getting to be quite an extensive breeder of fancy poultry, keeping several varieties, among them turkeys, ducks and geese and he makes a specialty of White Wyandottes of which he has a splendid flock. He was in the Quiz office last Saturday to have us make up a lot of stationery for him including letter heads, envelopes, shipping tags, etc. Good printed stationery is a great convenience for any farmer and an absolute necessity for a poultryman and the Quiz is prepared to print any kind of stationery for the most particular customer.

Murray Rich was up from North Loup way last Saturday and visited the Quiz long enough to pay for another year of this paper.

The George Round family got moved over from Arcadia the first of the week and are settled in the Flynn house just north of the North school.

We had a nice letter the other day from our old time friend Geo. Dennis. He says the Florida weather is fine and re expects to visit us in the spring. He paid for another year of the Quiz.

Our old friend John T. Nelson was up from North Loup Monday and came to the Quiz office long enough to have us add his name to the Quiz list for a year and to order a nice bunch of stationery printed. John has the Blue Ribbon strain of Black Lanshans and has won with them wherever he has shown them and this winter he is shipping stock to many states.

CHANGE OF LOCATION

AUTO HEARSE Both Phones at Parlor and Residence

Mrs. Ida S. Weeden of Lincoln purchased the former Mrs. Coats' farm out in the Waterman neighborhood, from Bailey & Blessing the present owners, Friday. The deal was made through the Hager agency and the consideration for the quarter was $20,000.

J. J. Beehrle called Monday long enough to pay for another year of the Quiz and also ordered it for a year for his mother who lives at Des Moines. She lived here for many years and has scores of friends in this locality and no doubt she will greatly enjoy having the paper.

DUTIES OF A ROAD AND BRIDGE ENGINEER

There has been considerable talk one time and another about a highway engineer or county road boss for Valley county. We note that Hamilton county has just created such an office in that county and has named a man to fill the place and the duties of the officer are defined as follows, making it look like a real job if properly handled:

"The county highway commissioner shall have general control, government and supervision of all the public roads and bridges in the county under the authority and direction of the county board. Before entering upon the duties of his office he shall execute to the county a bond in the sum of $2,000 to be approved by the county board, for the faithful performance of his duties, and to account for all funds and property that may come into his possession. He is also given general supervision over district road overseers.

The county board is required to furnish the highway commissioner with a suitable office in the court house, where he shall keep his records, and shall from time to time, recommend to the county board what improvements he deems necessary to be made to the roads and bridges in the county, giving an estimate of the cost of such improvements.

The highway commissioner is required to keep permanent records showing the cost of construction and maintenance of all public roads and bridges. He must number every bridge and culvert and affix a board or metal sign to each, showing the carrying capacity or weight which the bridge will stand, and any person disregarding such notice is subject to a fine of not more than $100 or a jail sentence not to exceed thirty days. He must audit all bills for the construction, maintenence and improvement of roads, bridges, culverts and road ditch improvements, and no such claims can be paid until he has approved them. It is his duty, through the road district overseers, to keep all public highways and highway drainage ditches free from weeds, causing all roads to be mowed at least twice a year. He must see that all roads are dragged regularly at such seasons of the year as he shall deem most beneficial, and he may contract, if practicable, with the consent and approval of the county board, giving a preference of such contracts to the adjacent land owners or tenants, for a piece or portion of any road to be dragged, the cost not to exceed $1 per mile for each time dragged. He must keep all mail routes open, and when complaint is made by a post-master or rural carrier that a route is blockaded by snow he has power to require the services of any able bodied patrons of said route in clearing the same within twenty-four hours, at a compensation of 30 cents per hour for each man and a like compensation for each team so employed. All of these things and a few others, he is required to compile in an annual report to be submitted to the county board at its January meeting each year.

The contract with Mr. Whitesides allows him to a salary of $100 per month and $500 for expenses, he to furnish his own automobile and gasoline. He expects to make a complete survey of te county during the summer platting every road and bridge for permanent reference. He will probably share the county attorney's office.

Mrs. R. W. Gass had a serious attack of heart trouble Sunday and for a time her people were very much frightened.

The Odd Fellows enjoyed a more than ordinary interesting meeting last Saturday evening. Initiation of new members and a big feed attracted more than the usual attendance.

John Shafner and wife were up from North Loup between trains last Friday and John came in long enough to subscribe for the Quiz for a year. He also brought along a check which his brother George sent to pay his subscription.

Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Clements came up from Lincoln last Saturday to spend a few days visiting their Ord relatives. Mr. Clement also had legal business at Taylor which he attended to the first of the week.

While here the first of the week Mr. E. J. Clements told us of the death recently of Mrs. Geo. I. Kelly at the home in Washington, D. C. after a long illness. It is a good many years since the Kelly family lived in Ord while he was Supt. of the Ord Schools.

We are in receipt of the report of the state secretary covering the drying plants in operation in the state last year. We are sure our readers to know that our plant stood first in the state. Grand Island with two plants did more busines than was done in our plant.

A nice letter received last Saturday from W. E. Davis contained a nice check to apply on subscription. What was better however, was the assurance in the letter that the sender would very much dislike to get along without the paper. He said he had taken it continuously for thirty years. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Davis and is in the meat business in Port Henry New York.

Bert Cushing has purchased thru the Hager Agency, the former A. J. Beck property a couple of blocks south of the square and will take possession as soon as possible. Bert says he is sick of not having a home of his own though it is only a few weeks since he broke up his home in Lincoln to come to Ord.

Have you ever noticed the peculiar, indescribable grin, smirk look or something funny in a persons face and carriage when wearing a new suit or hat for the first time? You may not notice the new article of apparel, but you can tell just at a glance from the foolish consciousness. And now it is said that men are just as vain as the women, and just as crack-brained over anything new, even a necktie. We suppose that it must all be true, because we know from experience how smirky we feel when we get a new subscriber.—University Place News.

A WONDERFUL SALE

"The Mousel Brothers sale of Hereford cattle held recently at Cambridge broke all world's records for high averages. Never before have fifty head of pure-bred cattle sold at auction for so much money, $192,250 or an everage of $3,845. The twenty-five young bulls in this sale sold for $111,900 or an average of $4,476. Superior Domino, a three year old bull, rich in Anxiety 4th blood, sold for $21,000. Rex Mischief, an equally choice animal reached $20,000".

In talking with Robert Noll the other day he was enthusiastic about the Mousel sale. Bob has sold them cattle and has bought cattle of them, in fact Noll and Son have considerable of the Hereford blood that has made the Mousel herd famous.

Stop Profiteering in Farm Loans

DO NOT PAY MORE

Profiteering in farm loans is prevalent. If any loan agent tries to induce you to take a loan at a higher rate, or at 5½ per cent and a big commission, he is not working for your interest, but for a big commission for himself.

The Federal Land Bank of Omaha has abundant funds at all times to close loans. Its own attorneys examine titles without expense to the borrower. Its executive committee at Omaha passes promptly on all applications and loans are closed without red tape or delay.

Federal Farm Loan Bonds are sold at a low rate of interest in the best money markets of the world and the money is loaned to farmers at actual cost. All net earnings of the Land Bank are returned to borrowing stockholders.

You can get the best terms and lowest rate from the Land Bank. You are guaranteed against an increase in the rate and if a lower rate is established you can have the lower rate after five years.

We have loaned $200,000 for the Federal Land Bank in a few months through the National Farm Loan Association. Give us your application now and we will give you prompt service.

INSERT

A FINE PUBLICATION

It is always a source of a great deal of satisfaction to this department, when in the eastern section of the state, especially when visiting in any of a half dozen of the larger county seat towns to impress upon the natives, that in spite of their up-to-dateness in most respects they are sadly lacking in one essential industry—a really first class newspaper. We honestly believe that the most valuable asset a community can have is an aggressive up-to-date publication, and in this matter central Nebraska is particularly fortunate in having several, and easily leader of them all is H. D. Leggett's Ord Quiz. We will all have to admit that Editor Haskell, the former publisher was some newspaper man, but we'll also have to state right in meeting that Homer Leggett outshines him every step in the road. Far be it from us to cast any bricks at our old friend of the Quiz, but the publication under the skilled management of Mr. Leggett is a real honest the goodness newspaper, one that is not only a credit to Ord, but to the entire county as well. A strong editorial policy, a vast amount of local news items and the mechanical end 100 per cent efficient, are the three important essentials that goes to make the Quiz the best country journal in the state today.—Arcadia Champion.

MADE HIM LOOK PLEASANT

While in Ord the other day a Burwell man took a notion to have his picture taken and went up to the Mutter studio for the purpose but he looked so grouchy that Orin despaired of getting a good picture. After retiring under the black cloth two or three times and squinting through the machine, only to see the same dejected, sour countenance, Orin said, "Say, old fellow, would you take a drink with me and keep still about it?" The effect was magical and the machine clicked and the smiling, happy countenance of the customer was transferred to the plate. The man got a good picture and went out cussing when he found how he had been fooled into looking pleasant.

The inevitable consequence of the carnival of snobery in which President and Mrs. Wilson are indulging is the anouncement that the Prince of Wales, a beardless youth, whose insipid countenance indicates that he had better be in school, will soon visit the United States in quest of a wife. And the pity of it is that he will probably find some girl who is a big enough fool to trade her price-less birth right to an American husband for the empty bauble of a European title. That's making the world safe for democracy with a vengeance.

Ed. Hanson and William Bannister have traded residences and will make the change as soon as possible. The Bannister residence formerly belonged to the land north, now owned by Mr. Hanson and is much more convenient to the barns than the house he has been living in. It is larger than the Bannisters needed so both families are making a good change. The tract is now again united as it was twenty years or so ago when W. R. Patty lived there and owned it

One of the biggest sales of the season is the Charley Prien sale which is billed for the 7 of February. The Quiz made the bills and has a large announcement in the paper this week. In addition to a large sale of stock of stock and implements, the household goods are being sold and there are a couple of automobiles and a complete threshing outfit including huler and hay cutter. Be sure to read Priens sale advertising .

Dr. J. W. Sandlin Has Found Tanlac To Be Great Remedy For His Patients.

The followin- letter from Dr. J. W. Sandlin, one of the most prominent physicians of Southern Texas has been received at the Tanlac office and gives indisputable evidence as to the value of Tanlac as a reconstructive tonic for persons who are recuperating from the after effects of Spanish Influenza. His letter follows:

Humble, Texas, Nov. 5, 1918.

"Dear Sir: Just a few lines in reference to Tanlac. I have found your preparation to be a wonderful reconstructive tonic, and in my opinion it has no equal in its line. I have found it to be the best tonic to be had to build up my patients who have had Spanish Influenza. I have treated within the past month about 1,400 cases, and have never been able to get sufficient Tanlac to supply our people. Yours very truly,

J. W. Sandlin."

Dr. Sandlin not only enjoys a very large practice as a physician, but he is also a man of wide influence and ranks as a leading citizen of the enterprising little city of Humble, Texas.

As a practicing physician of sixteen years' experience Dr. Sandlin was quick to recognise the superior tonic properties of Tanlac over other remedies and unhesitatingly and voluntarily gave Tanlac his unqualified indorsement.

Although the Influenza epidemic greatly subsided for a short time, it is today breaking out anew in its very worst form from practically one end of the country to the other and continues to claim its victims by the thousands.

According to late reports, over 350,000 people have already died from the disease.

Persons who have had the Influenza are oftentimes left in a weakened, run-down condition and unless the greatest care is taken, both as to habits and diet, serious complications are apt to follow. If you are in this condition nothing on earth will build you up and strengthen you like Tanlac, as is clearly proven by the experience of Dr. Sandlin and other well known physicians who are using it so successfully in their daily practice.

As a reconstructive tonic and body builder, Tanlac is without an equal and contains the very elements needed by the system to restore you to your normal strength and weight and to fortify your system against attack.

In connection with the Tanlac treatment it i snecessary to keep the bowels open by taking Tanlac Laxative Tablets, samples of which are included with every bottle of Tanlac.

HENRY MARQUARD, Manager

Swift & Company's 1918 Earnings

How They Affected You

During the twelve months ended Nov. 2, 1918 (its fiscal year), Swift & Company transacted the largest volume of business on the smallest margin of profit in its history.

Profits of the meat business—under regulations of the United States Food Administration — were limited to a maximum of 9 per cent on capital employed but not to exceed 2½ cents per dollar of sales.

Swift & Company in the regulated departments earned 7.57 per cent on capital employed and 2.04 cents per dollar of sales, out of which had to be paid interest on borrowed money and taxes. Here is how these earnings affect you.

Live-Stock Raiser—

Swift & Company killed 14,948,000 head of livestock, which weighed alive, 4,971,500,000 pounds.

Consumer—

The sales of our meat departments were 4,012,579,000 pounds on which our earnings were less than ½ cent per pound.

The per capita consumption of meat in the United States is given as 170 pounds. If a consumer purchased only Swift & Company's products he would contribute only about 78 cents a year, or 1½ cents a week as profit to the company.

FARMERS CUT A MELON

Dave Stong was telling me and some other of his friends at the farmers meeting at Ord the other day just how the Farmers Company got its start. Seven men met at the home of Mr. Strong some five years ago and an organization was formed and named the Farmers Cooperative Club of Valley county. More men joined soon and the club got so big that they divided it into divisions 1, 2 and 3. The others were formed out over the county. They began to buy up car lots, then a warehouse was built at Ord to unload the cars in. But the leaders were not satisfied with this way of doing business and an elevator company was established under the laws of Nebraska and called the Famrers Grain & Supply Co. It started with 100 members something like four years ago, each member putting in $50. Now this same company has near 500 members and a capital of near $50,000 and they operate two stores, two produce stations and two elevators and two coal yards at Ord and North Loup. The old farmers cooperative club did its work and has given place to the Farmers Grain & Supply Company. It has grown from seven members who met in a farm house with a very little capital, to the biggest farmers company in the state and in the last year it did nearly a million dollars worth of business with a net profit to its near 500 members of $18,718.35.

Mr. Frank Walker, one of the seven men who helped to start this company has now left the county and lives down the line toward Lincoln and is now a member of a farmers company at his town. Mr. Strong met him recently and he told him that the same firm that audits our books audits theirs, and the auditor told Mr. Walker that we at Ord had the biggest and best farmers company in Nebraska and that it was the most business like bunch of farmers that he ever saw. This is as Mr. Strong told it to me and as I remember it. Sounds good brother farmers. See what we can do by organization, going from nothing but seven members with little business to 500 members with a million dollar business, all in five years and the future looks mighty good. I am proud of our company for there are no black spots in the past and the record is clear. Our directors are a bunch of men that can't be beat and it is due to their close attention to business that this wonderful business record has been brought about.

Thursday morning last week came bright and clear and warm like April weather and something like 300 members of the Farmers Grain & Supply Co. stepped on the tails of their autos and hiked to Ord to the Wentworth Opera house. For we had got word from our directors that there was to be a big melon cut and each member was to have a slice. The melon had been picked by the directors January 1 and kept in cold storage until last Thursday so it was just right to the taste. Say, but it was good. It was not such an awful big melon as we could have had if the conditions had been right. The freeze that froze out our wheat last winter affected the growth of the melon. and the drouth that hurt our corn crop also stunted the melon somewhat. As the slices were not quite so thick as they were on the one that we cut up last year nor so thick as we expect to cut them next year, if weather conditions are favorable but it was mighty good and it was all eaten except the seeds and the rind. The seeds were put in the reserve fund to help grow a bigger melon next year and the vines were carefully placed on the sidewalk for the nearsighted people that said the farmers could never stick together, to slip up on. Claude Hill of North Loup and Mr. Blackburn of Ord were our real orators, and Charles Arnold, Dave Strong and Frank Vodehnal made a few remarks between times. While these gentlemen were getting their breath Will Hather made his speech, very short and to the point this year. The boys were all disappointed in Will as they all remembered his top notch speech of last year and expected something similar this year. There were a number of lady stockholders present and in honor to them President Meese put the ban on any smoking. I hope the ladies will attend every meeting because it's nice to have them there and as I do not smoke I was very much pleased that I did not have to be smoked.

Two directors were to be elected as the terms of Will Hather and Frank Vodehnal were out. These men were both reelected. The board now stands Mr. Meese, Mr. Strong, Mr. Hather, Mr. Bremer, Frank Vodehnal, all of Ord, Claude Hill and Mr. Jackman of North Loup. Our manager, Mr. James Wisda, pleased the crowd with his business report. We feel like we do sure have a good and capable manager in Mr. Wisda. His report showed gross sales for Ord $480,000. Gross sales for North Loup, $255,000. Net profits for Ord, $16,421.13. Net profits for North Loup $2,297.22. Profits divided, Building fund $1,000 for Ord, building fund $1,000 for North Loup, $3,500 added to surplus fund. Stock dividend 10 per cent and business dividend 1½ per cent. This is only a small part of the managers report but it is about all that will be of interest to the readers.

Two committees were elected to report to future meetings on two very important questions that are just now claiming the attention of the farmers. Then we all went home feeling fine and told our wives that we had the best farmers company ever and we sure told her the truth that time.

The board of directors held their meeting Thursday evening. Mr. Meese felt that he had carried the honor of the presidency long enough and refused to have it again this year and Mr. Hather is now our president, John Bremer is vice president, Dave Strong secretary and Jim Wisda general manager. I feel sure that a majority of the stockholders feel sorry to have Mr. Meese let go of the presidency but I think we can depend on Mr. Hather taking up the work where Mr. Meese left it and putting it through in the best of shape. I pledge my support to our new president and expect to be as loyal to him as I was to Mr. Meese when he was at the head of the Farmers Grain & Supply Co.

The flu is still taking our friends. Two who were of the young set of people in Vinton when we came here are now dead of this dreadful malady. First word came that Cora Brickner was dead and now her sister's husband Irving Burson is dead, both with the flu. These people have been away from here for some time. Cora Brickner, formerly Cora Jones, married Charles Brickner and went with him to Canada and her sister Hattie Jones married Irving Burson and at the time of Mr. Burson's death they lived at Loreta, Montana. The parents of these two families are the pioneers of Pinton township and they have the sympathy of their friends here in Vinton.

Representative Strong was home from Lincoln to attend the annual meeting of the Farmers Grain & Supply Co., going back to his legislative duties Saturday. He tells me that things are moving along nicely down there. Some one asked him how the state capitol looked and he replied that it compared nicely with our county court house.

Roads are getting pretty good until you strike the Ord streets, then O, Gee. Mr. Leggett in his column, says something about paved streets, And State Engineer Johnson promises us gravel topped roads in Nebraska in the next few years. My kick on expensive paved roads and my endorsement of gravel topped roads came just in time to match the decision of Engineer Johnson for gravel topped highways. Once the reporter guessed right.

Next Saturday, February 1, will be the meeting of the Farm Bureau at the agent's office and we are hoping all the township vice presidents and anyone else who is interested, will attend this meeting. We expect our new agent to be on the job that day and we want to make plans for the year with him. Come on in and get acquainted.

Walter Stark has his sale Monday. Walter has the habit of having a sale about every so often and they are good ones for Walter has the goods. Mr. Stark expects to go into the auto business in Seward county. I can't very well give you a writeup on the Stark sale as the boss editor says "get your dope in early as we have to print 16 pages this week." The Quiz is getting to be a big healthy fellow.

The Kirby family is getting along fine and there are no more new cases of flu in this neighborhood. The Burson family has just completed a siege of the flu.

Bert Cornell showed me a picture of Eugene in his school uniform and he sure looks fine. He says the boy is satisfied up there and likes it fine. Mr. Cornell sent Eugene some popcorn and he gave a birthday party to his boy friends fifty in number and the boys think that Nebraska is just fine because we have popcorn here. Eugenes address is St. James School, Fairbault, Minn.

Mrs. Winnie Dustin of Nemaha county, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Gates.

I hear that the ship that carried the regiment that Earl Gates and Russell Jones belonged to has arived at New York but there is no word that these two boys are with them We hope they are and that we will have them with us soon.

DETWEILERS TO EXPAND

Construction of a store building on the North side and the opening of an implement store which will form one more link in the chain of business places he is making, has been decided on by W. T. Detweiler, resident of the North side.

Mr. Detweiler has business interests at Ord, North Loup, Scotia, Burwell and Ansley. The new store will be added to this list. He proposes to handle farm implements. His home and headquarters have been in this city but for many years he has put in much of his time at his different stores.

Work on the building which will house the business here is to begin in a short time. The site is North Pine street just north of Zlomke's garage and near Pine and Firth streets. Mr. Detweiler has leased a lot 66 x 132 feet now occupied by a billboard and a shack, both of which will be moved. The lease is for five years for wihch reason Mr. Detweiler does not propose to put up an expensive structure as he may have to remove it at the end of the five years. The structure will be of frame, one story in height.

Harry N. Oldson, former owner of the Star grocery, defeated in a perfunctory race for register of deeds last fall, and now traveling for a business house, is to be in charge of the local store for Mr. Detweiler.—Grand Island Independent.

WILL HAVE LUNCH AT NOON

Through an oversight the fact that Lutes Gizinski will have a big free lunch at 11:30 at his sale next Tuesday February 4. It should have been in the bill and advertising.

ORD HAS MIDNIGHT FIRE

Largest Fire in History of Ord. All Looking for New Locations.

It was nearly eleven o'clock last evening when George Work and Frank Kosmata discovered smoke coming from the grating in front of the Farmers Grain & Supply Co. store and started for the fire house to ring the bell. At about the same moment Joe Daly and F. J. Vopat came out of Drape's place where they had been drinking a pop highball. While in there they mentioned that they smelled smoke and Frank Draper sent a man to the basement to look things over and as no fire was found they walked out. As they got to the street Mr. and Mrs. Burkerd came past the Penney store and Mr Burkerd called to them that he smelled smoke and they at once went down there and at first no indications of fire appeared but soon discovered smoke coming from the grating over the basement windows and turned in an alarm and called Manager James Wisda.

When the firemen arrived there was still nothing but smoke but the fire seemed to be in the back end of the basement of the Farmers store and there was no way to get at it. The back openings were closed with heavy doors and shutters fastened on the inside and it was some time before much progress was made. As the fire got to the elevator shaft it soon reached the upper part of the store and the place was doomed. The thin partition wall between that store and the Penney store soon gave way and both places were a seething mass of flames in a few moments and nothing was saved.

The building occupied by the Farmers and the Penney stock was owned by L. D. Bailey & Sons and the Ed. F. Beranek store used their south wall. When the wall collapsed the Beranek building fell in and it was consumed almost as soon as was the other building and all three stocks were a total loss. In a couple of hours from the time the smoke was first discovered all three stores were reduced to a mass of fire in the basement. The front of the Bailey building fell outward onto the street and the damage to the telephone companies, whose poles and cables were broken, is considerable. The poles that carried the cables are broken off down the street nearly to the Burlington depot.

As soon as it was apparent that the stock was doomed Manager Wisda of the Farmers Grain & Supply Co. got busy arranging for another place in which to do business and he tells us that he expects to be selling goods tomorrow. He was arranging for the shipment of new goods before the fire was under control. Mr. Wisda hoped to get the Goodhand building, recently vacated by Mr. Swan but as we go to press he is not certain that he will get it. He says the stock of his company was pretty well covered by insurance so that the loss of the company will not be very great. He had recently added several thousand dollars of additional insurance.

Manager Joe Daly of the Penney store said his stock was well protected with insurance. He expected to have new goods coming within a short time and as soon as a location can be arranged will open up again for business.

Ed F. Beranek was as cheerful as any of the loosing merchants this morning though his individual loss is probably the greatest of any of them. His stock and building was worth around twenty thousand dollars and he had $9,500 insurance. When the fire was discovered he went into the store and opened the safe and got his ledger but no goods were taken out and the loss is complete. The Beranek store and stock was one of the finest in the state. Mr. Beranek said he expected to be doing business again in a few days, or as soon as a place can be arranged and stock secured. He is already starting arrangements to rebuild and will do so as speedily as possible and no doubt the new building which will soon be built will be better and finer in every way than was the old.

Fortunately last night was still but had there been a very moderate wind from the north nothing could have saved the balance of the block to the south of the burned district. The Siler building seemed in great danger for some time and the firemen kept water playing on it. The fire wall was injured so it broke off down to the rafters but the fire didn't get into the building and there was no damage to the goods of either that store or the Gamble & Perryman stock though of course all the merchants on the west side were on the anxious seat for a couple of hours. Mr. Perryman was much pleased this morning to find that he didn't have even a trace of smoke damage. The heat was so fierce that the skylight on top of the Dworak store was cracked badly and most of the roof paint was burned off. Mr. Dworak says he thinks a little more heat would have been serious for him.

George Parkins didn't remove any goods but he crowded all the valuables possible into the safe. The Johnson Drug Co. folks did move some stuff out but soon decided that the fire would be controled and put it back. W. H. Carson moved his office fiftures out when it looked as if the Siler store building would burn.

James Wisda had between four and five hundred dollars worth of coupon government bonds in a wallet which were laying on a shelf and he don't expect to find them or to be able to recover their value. He usuall kept them in the safe but a day or so before had occasion to use the wallet that they were in and left it laying on a shelf and neglected to replace it.

As we go to press there is a rumor that the Farmers Grain & Supply Co. will try to buy the Bailey & Sons lots and of course they will build a store building suitable for their needs and to conform to their future plans.

Just as we lock the last form we learn that the J. C. Penney Co. has secured the Goodhand building, recently vacated by Swan and a new stock will be put there as soon as it can be secured. Goods are being ordered by wire and shipped by express as far as possible.

HERMAN THEODORE JENSEN

Herman Theodore Jensen was born September 16, 1891, and died January 21, 1919, at his home Morcroft, Wyoming, aged 27 years, 4 months and 5 days.

On Monday night, January 13, this faithful brother and son was taken sick with influenza pneumonia and blood poisoning followed. His father being with him at the hour of death.

Herman, when 3 years old came with his parents to Valley county, where he lived until 5 years ago, then went to Wyoming and took a homestead.

In 1917 he was called to serve his country at camp Lewis, Washington, being there a month when he received his honorable discharge on account of poor health, from there he went back to his homestead where he lived till the angel of death called him away. The news of his death came as a sudden shock to the community in which he lived and especially to his own parents, brothers and sisters and relatives.

Herman was a faithful brother and son in every sense of that term, loved by all who knew him and his going will leave a vacant place in the home that will be felt by a great circle of friends and relatives, they grieve, will always cherish him in their memory for the beautiful life that he lived.

He leaves to mourn his loss, his father, mother, two brothers and six sisters, Olga, Dorothy, Lucy, Anna, and Elfreda Jensen and Mrs. Henry Norris, and Walter and Guy Jensen.

Funeral services were held from the Daniels undertaking rooms on Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock in charge of Rev. E. E. Hosman, pastor of the Methodist church.

WE MUST START PAVING

Considerable comment has been caused by a short article in the Quiz of last week regarding paving of the Ord streets and we are surprised at the sentiment in favor of geting busy right away and have a good sized section paved during the coming summer.

The evidence is multiplying every day for paving. Only last week a leading Ord banker got stuck on a high center on the street on the north side of the Methodist church and had to be pulled off. Last fall a Scotia business man got stuck in the mud in front of the Basket store and broke a wheel before he got out. The soil is full of water and the streets of Ord will be a regular mire hole in the spring. Our friend Coats says that the roads are good until he gets to the streets of Ord. Shall we have to submit to this kind of criticism from our farmer friends? An Ord business man says that the only place he needed chains on his car last Sunday was on the streets of Ord. Outside of town he found the roads good. Now the Quiz believes we should get busy at once and find out the cost of paving and make the necessary arrangements to organize a paving district and get the street about the square and a block each way and down to the union depot paved this summer. That would be a good start and it would be but a few years until Ord could point with pride to its paved streets. How many are in favor of it?

ORD LOSES TO BURWELL

The Ord basket ball team lost the first game of the season to Burwell by the score of 42 to 11 at the Ord gym last Friday evening. The Burwell team is a fast aggregation while the Ord team is weak in team play. Although the team appears to be hopelessly outclassed according to the score, those interested must bear in mind the fact that while Ord has practiced but two weeks, the Burwell team has been busy since December 9. The Ord team is especially strong on basket shooting, the average for the five and substitutes being 80 or even 90 per cent. Lack of experience and lack of team play are the causes which the loss of the game may be laid to. Then too, Burwell is one of the schools which is playing a two stationary guard game this season. Most teams play but one, and Ord's attack has been builded on this supposition. The Burwell team as a whole are poor basket shooters, shooting recklessly from all parts of the floor and against more effective guarding would be helpless. Coach Kaessner helped by several old Ord basket ball players, is trying to develope this team work and effective guarding.

THE SPRING JURY

WEEKES BUYS ELEVATOR

Luke Weekes returned Sunday evening from a several weeks trip in the east selling popcorn and contracting for the future delivery of seeds and corn. He visited all the large cities of the east including New York and says he is greatly pleased with the business now. On the way home he stopped in Omaha long enough to close up a deal for the purchase of the big State Line elevator with a hundred thousand bushels capacity, which he expects to use for a terminal elevator. It is leased for this year so he has to wait a year before getting possession. Knowing that he will have it however will enable him to make his plans for next year to better advantage.

LOST DOG LOCATED

Mt. Morrison, Colo., Jan. 26, 1919.
Te Ohrd Quiz, Ord, Neb.

Gentleman: In reply to an advertisement in your last issue, in reference to a certain dog, I wish to state that a dog passed our place a few nights ago, headed west up Bear Creek canyon, and running easily and strong, despite the heavy grade of two hundred feet to the mile. This one fact alone leads me to think that he may be the valuable dog for which you inquire, for in the case of autos only the best can do this.

He carried the Airedale head and had the body of a hound, as your ad states, but failed to mention his tail, which was rather long and sharp on one end.

I feel deeply concerned about this little dog, and his destination, for I know that your Mr. Madron must be a very kind-hearted man, a good neighbor and a loyal citizen to enquire for him.

If I can be of any further service to you in the search for this little dog, kindly advise me. Yours very truly,

WALT WEARE.

P. S.—I think he was "Going over the Top."

Editor's Note—And then some folks say the ads are not read.

MAY GO TO KEARNEY

There is a movement on foot for several cars of Ord business men to drive to Kearney to inspect the paving in that city and have a talk with the people there who did the work. The object is to get facts and figures, find out the best kind of paving for Ord and if possible decide upon some course of action toward getting the paving work started this spring as early as possible. There seems to be a rapidly growing sentiment for a paved business section, property owners almost without exception expressing themselves in favor of it.

MRS. VOPAT MUCH BETTER

Last week when Mrs. Vopat was so badly burned just before the Quiz went to press Thursday morning we greatly feared that she would not recover as rapidly as she has. Yesterday Mr. Vopat told us that she was much better, in fact she has steadily improved for the past several days and her physician says he expects her recovery to be rapid from now on. It seems almost a miracle that she could be so badly burned and recover at all. The accident happened when she attempted to clean her gloves with gasoline and no doubt it will be a long time before she will again attempt anything of the kind.

DIDN'T GET THIS FAR

Old timers will remember Charley Wolf. In an early day he was an Ord resident, was associated for a time with J. H. Capron in business and was also in business for himself. He is a brother of Mrs. George H. Stover and came to Nebraska to attend the funeral of Mr. Stover. His home is in Illinois where he is still working at his trade, a printer. He came as far as Grand Island but had to get home by a certain time and was unable to come to Ord though he sent word to his friends that he very much regretted not doing so.

GOING TO MONTANA

A. J. Wise and George Cummins will leave in a few days for northern Montana to look the country over and visit the sons of the latter. Mr. Wise is negotiating for a farm up in that country and will go and see it before closing a deal for it.

MOVING TO ERICSON

The George Bodurtha family is moving to Ericson where George will busy himself until March 1 making improvements on his farm which he has rented for next year. Then the family will move to Council Bluffs, Iowa, where George has contracted to go to work for the railroad company in the shops.

REV. KNIGHT COMING BACK

At a meeting of the Christian church board last evening, it was decided to extend a call to Rev. Knight to again serve the church and he will be here to begin his duties a week from Sunday. This will be good news to all members of the church with whom he was very popular. He can stay only until the first of the coming September as he plans upon going to Harvard at that time.

OZIE TIMM SELLS HOME

Ozie Timm sold his home in the south part of town this week to O. G. Petty, the ice man, and will move to Nampa, Idaho, about the first of March. It will be remembered that Mr. Timm sold his barber shop to Jack Maddox some time ago and the new owner will soon be here to take possession. Ever since the Firkins folks started their Ord colony at Nampa Ozie has been planning on getting out there.

OLIVE CALISTA FUSON

Why do you linger here, dear friends,
And gaze at the vacant spot
A lovely forgetme-not?
Cheer up; the Master is calling you;
Oh, don't you hear him say,
"Come, follow me, and thou shalt see
That flower again some happy day,
Transplanted to be with me." A. N.

Olive Calista Fuson was born in Polk county, Iowa, on March 24, 1895, and died at Hampton, Nebraska, January 20, 1919, at the age of twenty-three years, nine months and twenty-six days. She was the youngest of six children, all of the others surviving her. Her father having died several months before her birth, her early care and training became more especially a work of love to the mother, who has lived to see the life she cherished so faithfully develop into a blessing to an ever-widening circle of friends. Olive united with the Christian church in childhood, and left, as a rich bequest, the memory of her loyal and devoted service in many departments of its work. Nearly all her life was passed in Ord, and for years, she was a factor in every undertaking of the Endeavor Society, the Sunday school and the choir. When in recent years, her duties permitted her to return home for a few days, Sunday found her in her place at church.

She was graduated from the Normal training course of the Ord high school with the class of 1913, and immediately took her place among the earnest and successful teachers of Valley county. After three years of rural teaching, she took charge of a department of the Arcadia public schools, where she served with entire success until the present year, when she entered upon the work which terminated by her death at Hampton. The sudden end brought a shock to the entire community. Loving hands rendered every possible service and brought beautiful floral offerings to testify to the high regard of all for the one who has gone from us.

Some day we shall understand much that is mytery now. We must sometimes ask why one is taken in the loveliness of youth. Though we cannot yet know all, we can be assured of this: that the life that has gone on before us influences other lives today more than ever before; and the hands that have ceased their ministering here, never beckoned before they do now; and the trusting of the departed one make to believe, and impossible to us. Surely, neither her life nor her d has been in vain.

The deceased has left, of her mediate family, her mother, Mrs. lista Fuson; three sisters, Mrs. E. Hallock, Central City; Mrs. Jose Barta, Ord; and Mrs. E. H. Ford Iowa; also two brothers, Thomas with the Redpath Lyceum Bureau Lieutenant Merritt Fuson, located a Fort Lewis; and a cousin, Pearl Ward who has always been a member of the family. All these have gathered to render the last possible service to one whom they loved, and from whom they part, only for a time, for they have

This truth, to flesh and sense unknown,
That Life is ever Lord of Death,

GOT A GOOD FEED

Just as we were beginning to wonder whether the neighbors were going to bring in anything to eat at our house here came a nice package of dried corn, beans and such things, the product of the North Loup drier and another worry is removed for a time at least Another doubt is cleared away too, for heretofore we have had our doubts about the dried product being as good as the canned article. Now we know that vegetables out of season could not be better than these are. Bro. Rood, who sent them, said he was sorry he couldn't send more and so are we, though his allowance was most liberal, enough for several messes and enough to make us a booster for a drying plant for Ord next year.

MRS. JOHN WIMBERLY DEAD

EDWIN KULL COMING HOME

The F. S. Kull folks received a message Monday morning from their son Edwin dated New York, saying that he had arrived there safely. Of course he will be home as soon as the formalities of being examined and mustered out are gone through with. He will probably be sent to some camp in this part of the country to be mustered out.

BILL WRIGHT COMING SOON

Mrs. Wright received a letter from her husband the first of this week, in which he said that by the time she had the letter he would be on the way home. Of course she is now anxiously awaiting the word that he is on the way.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

Sunday school 10 a. m. B. Y. P. U. 6:30 p. m.

Prayer meeting, Thursday 7:30 p. m.

The great "Pictory Campaign" under the leadership and direction of Baptist Laymen is now on and results are already being recorded that make their aim certain of accomplishment. $6,000,000 by March 31st is not an ordinary undertaking, but when we consider the tremenduous force of men behind the movement it does not appear impossible. Baptists head the list when it comes to numbers for we stand first, numerically, of all Protestant denominations. While the population of the United States doubled, Baptists terbled in membership. Our Baptist laymen are in the forefront in their effort to obtain the necessary finance to further the kingdom of our Lord throughout the world. Their motto is, "The Love of Christ Constraineth Us." We urge every member of our church to respond to the "Call of the World" which comes to us at this time.

We have no reason to become discouraged as a church here in Ord. The services last Sunday were well attended and increasing interest was noted in several departments. The evening service in particular was well attended. It was a real pleasure to listen to the several hymns with which the male quartet favored us. The duet by male voices was a source of inspiration, and the male quartet numbers gave the Gospel in song a rendition that was beautiful and helpful to all who listened. It would be a pleasure indeed to have them with us often. Miss Louise Misko was the organist of the evening and gave splendid assistance to the evening's service.

Come to church next Sunday. We will not harm you but may help you. The Bible school must not be overlooked. The B. Y. P. U. is moving right along. We will have helpful thoughts to present for your consideration. CHAS. J. BUKOUTZ, Pastor.

DUNHAM NOTES

Friday afternoon Mr. Evans the director of our school, paid us a very pleasant visit. He stayed all afternoon. Just before dismissal he gave the children a short talk which was both interesting and beneficial. We believe him to be a man that means what he says and if so he is well pleased with our work. There are undoubtedly many mistakes made but if each parent would come to school and see what we are doing and cooperate with the teacher the errors would probably be less so we are always glad to have visitors, it makes us feel that someone is interested in us and it encourages us to work harder.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. John had a family reunion Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Shepard and family Ervin and Jay Ball spent Sunday at C. M. R. John's.

Last Saturday the John sisters motored to Loup City where they had their picture taken. There are eight in the group and it will certainly be a model picture. This is something they can always rememer even though they are miles apart the picture will bring them together for the time being.

Mr. and Mrs. Leo Lindsey and son motored to Grand Island Wednesday. at a rest camp, which by the way,

The Prompting Motive

Of every business or enterprise of any kind is the possibility of profits to be made out of the business or enterprise. In the conduct or management of any business or enterprise certain general rules apply. Business courtsey and efficient service are always important factors to the success of any business. Some people confuse these features with "Accommodations." When a person borrows money from a bank and pays interest for it, the bank is not accommodating him very much, it is simply rendering banking service for profit—no accommodation at all. Loans are a part of the banking business. When a borrower asks for a loan at the bank, it is up to the bank to determine whether the borrower is worthy or deserving of credit. If so, the loan is made at an agreed rate of interest which the borrower agrees to pay. If not, the loan is refused. In no sense is there anything done but the handling of a pure and simple business transaction. Being pleasant, courteous, affable, agreeable, accommodating in a general way all go with the business, not on a charge basis, as interest is, but for the purpose of building up and increasing business. The talk about "Accommodating you with a loan" that you PAY for is on the same basis of a merchant accommodating you by selling you merchandise at a profit. Loans are a part of the Banking business. The Nebraska State Bank is always as ready to make a loan as to receive a deposit. It takes both the loans and the deposit to make a success of the Banking Business.

Do your business at the Nebraska State bank, where your business is appreciated and where the very best of banking service is rendered.

We pay Five Per Cent Interest on Time Deposits.

THE LOUP VALLEY PACKING CO.

Burwell, Neb., Nov. 1918.

To the Farmers and Feeders of Valley and Garfield Counties:

Gentlemen:—

We, the undersigned, having accepted the Presidency and Vice Presidency of the Loup Valley Packing Company, we unqualifiedly recommend it to our friends in Valley and Garfield counties as being a proposition in which we are certain is one that means a great deal to them, and one in which with the careful management which the officers and directors intend to pursue, will doubtless make this institution one of the safest of investments that are offered in Nebraska.

There is no promotion stock in this enterprise, every one purchasing shares in this Company shares exactly alike. All stock is voting and participating, and it is free of taxes, and outside of liberal dividends which are sure to be paid, the Company will be able to set aside each year a surplus which we believe in five years will equal the amount of the capital stock thus making each share worth $200 for each $100 paid for same.

It is for this reason that we would like all of our friends to subscribe.

WEEKES GETS SOLDIER LETTER

B. H. 70, A. P. O. 785, Allerey, France
Jan. 3, 1919.

Dear Luke:

As my leisure moments are very abundant this morning, I will try to dispose of them in writing to you. No doubt your curiosity about many things over here is still at its highest pitch. I am going to endeavor to appease them to a certain extent at least, if such a thing is possible. Since the armistice has been signed the censor's restrictions have been raised to a certain extent and we may now refer to incidents and details which heretofore have been forbidden, so prepare for a gas attack, I am going to shoot.

After a very strenuous training period of five weeks, we were received and termed, ready for action. During our training period, life was anything but pleasant. We would go out every day for some real stiff drilling and then after darkness when all decent folks were asleep, we had to go out on maneuvers until about 11 o'clock. We were all mighty glad when we started for the front Aug. 3rd. On the 9th day of August we relieved the 82nd division on the St. Mihiel sector. "Fritzi" evidently knew that we were making a relief and thought it was his solemn duty to tender us some sort of reception. Well, we got the reception and it was in the form of a variety of poisonous gasses; the conquences were, about 250 casuals out of the 1st battalion. That made us all boiling mad and we ached for a chance for revenge, of course our artillery retaliated a few minutes later by sending about three times as many gas shells as the Fritzi had given us. From the way things sounded and from all the commotion on their side of the fence business must have picked up for them, at least for days afterwards our aerial observers reported that their ambulances were darned busy.

Our first trick in the trenches which covered a period of about one month, consisted mostly of patrols and I sure was a full guy because I never failed to be one of the patrol. Just as sure as we venture out we were greeted with some thrilling adventure. Some one of us would always pay the supreme sacrifice, it was tough, Luke, you can take it from me. One reason why I always was chosen was the fact that I belonged to an automatic rifle squad, more commonly known to all soldiers as the suicide squad. One night we went out to examine the enemies wire entanglements and also to determine the enemies' strength. The Boche discovered us and say, they made it hot for us, it was h—l. There we were, way out in "No man's land" no assistance close at hand and a box-barage to break through to get to a place of safety. Their flares lit up No Man's land until it was bright as day, rocks and shrapnel whizzing through the air, believe me, the rocks bounced off of my helmet more than once and we sure did some tall ducking from shell hole to trench and vica-versa. Our casuals were eight wounded and one killed, but this was war, so we just gave it one fleeting thought and waited patiently for Dame Fortune to claim us. Say, the days passed on until the first all-American offensive was to be pulled off, Sept. 12, 1918. I shall never forget those days, fateful days for many an American lad.

I am not going to go into detail about this drive. I may state though that it was a mighty nifty execution of military tactics. After a very devastating barrage, we went "over the top" about five o'clock in the morning and the attack was such a complete surprise that we soon took their advance positions and began to drag prisoners out of the dugouts. Many were mere lads and they were all mighty glad to be captured, the war was finished as far as they were concerned. In one town which we captured we found a lot of German whisky lager beer, etc., and really we forgot that there was a war. We also had German cigars and cigarettes for days afterwards. I wish you could get a glimpse of No man's land and the many ruined villages. A person can't possibly conceive how much destruction modern artillery can wreck. Once peaceful thriving hemlets are now a mass of ruin. When I finally get back to the States I am going to take a good vacation, then I will be up to see you and give you a more vivid and detailed account of the life we led over here and the many thrilling experiences we have had. It would take too many pages if I should try to pen the story.

We had a real pleasant Christmas and the R. C. people did all in their power to make it a success. Santa visited us and incidently left some candies, nuts, cigarettes, etc. We had a fine feed, which consisted of turkey mashed potatoes, pies and all the rest of the trimmings. We also had entertainments of various sorts so all in all, it was quite a successful affair. On New Years day we had a repetition of our Christmas holiday.

The big question now is; when do we start for home? Lawdy, how I would like to get back. I sure have seen enough of the foreign country, the States are what I want to see. Prospects are not overly bright however. I sure hope that they sign peace in a hurry and that the Bolsheviki proposition is adjusted in some sort of satisfactory manner, would hate to spend any of my time in Russia, yet the possibilities of such an act must be reckoned with. There is only one chance for an early return to the states, if I should be fortunate enough to be a member of a casual unit, we may see the states by April.

I think I have sent about enough gas for one attack at least. If you survive this one I may shoot again some day. I never have received any of your letters, which is undoubtedly due to the fact that I haven't been with the company for about three months. I am still looking for them. In the meantime I will write now and then as the opportunities permit.

Trusting that you and yours are all well and happy, I am, sincerely your brotherin-law, PVT. H. G. SELK, Co. I, 355th Inf. A. E. F.

It will be remembered he had but a few days leave when he came down with flu which developed pneumonia. He was at Omaha. He was given permission to come up to his home at Ord until he regained his strength. He expected to report for duty at New York the first of the week.

C. E. Gregory is this week running a Delco light ad which recently appeared in the Saturday Evening Post. Read it and then let Mr. Gregory tell you about this great light system which is making dozens of Valley county homes bright at this time. Mr. Gregory recently took over the battery end of the business at the Burrows garage and he is having plenty of work to keep him and his assistants busy.

The Wiegardt family received a letter last Friday from Alfred. He was in New York and expected to be in Ord sometime around the first of February. The letter was written two days before they landed. He told of a big storm at sea and of one fellow passenger, a soldier boy, who was on guard. He was washed overboard and drowned. Alfred who had also been doing guard duty was soon soaked through by the rain.

Peter Jensen returned home Thursday evening with the body of his son Herman. Upon hearing of his son's serious illness, at ten o'clock at night, he went to the Island in a car in time to catch an early train. The boys were batching on his claim in Wyoming. There was another man who had been sick with flu at Herman's home and the latter had cared for him. He contracted the disease and died after a few days illness. His parents visited him only a few weeks ago and took land near him while they were in Wyoming.

Among the incoming passengers last Sunday was Mrs. Mrs. Geo. Siever who was returning home from Grand Island. She had gone down to care for her sister, Mrs. Leo Larkin and children, who were ill with flu. Four days afterwards Mrs. Siever took the flu and was ill for a week. When she came home the Larkin's sick ones were improving but were still under a nurse's and doctor's care. Mrs. Seiver was not well but the doctor thought it was safe to return to Ord.

For years Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Timmerman have lived in Valley county but now they have moved away. They have gone over to Arnold, leaving on the train for that place last Friday. However they have not burned the bridge behind them. They still retain a house on their farm, so they can come back if they want to. A part of their children are living at Arnold and a couple of them are still living in Valley county. Their son Ed is on the home place. They shipped their goods in a car. Guy Potter who is also moving to Arnold, had a half of the same car. Guy drove over Monday.

We have an attractive advertisement this week from a new advertiser, Hildebrand & Boals of Seward, Nebraska, state agents for a virtrified hollow tile silo and an ensilage cutter of unusual merit. Look this advertising up and read it carefully for with the growing importance of the daily business in this country there are sure to be many silos built during the next few years. These people will be glad to send literature to any one interested and the Quiz will be glad to have its interested readers write them for their booklet telling of their silo and cutter.

Burdick & Cundall are this week advertising a big cleanup sale for Thursday, February 6. This is an unusual sale from the fact that there are practically two hundred head of high grade Polled Angus cattle in the sale. This is all high grade or purebred stuff and mostly cow stuff such as is needed on the farms of Valley county. In addition to the cattle there is a strong line of new machinery and several spans of mares and a lot of younger horse stuff. It is all fully described on page seven of this paper. The partnership heretofore existing between Burdick & Cundall terminates March which is the reason for the sale and it is a complete cleanup.

GUDMUNDSEN-GILISPIE NUPTIALS

William C. Gillespie, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Gilispie, of St. Patrick's parish, Gretna, and Miss Mabel A. Gudmundsen, daughter of Judge Gudmundsen of Ord, were married last Wednesday morning at St. Mary Magdalena's church, Omaha. Father Moran performed the wedding ceremony and celebrated the Nuptial Mass. The witnesses were Charles Melia of Gretna and Miss Anna Gillespie of Wahoo. Miss Ruth Flynn played the wedding march and rendered the music during the Mass. The bride was received into the Catholic church on Tuesday evening by Father Moran. The wedding breakfast was served at the Hotel Loyal. After a short visit to relatives in Wahoo Mr. and Mrs. Gillespie will be at home on the farm south of town. The bride is an accomplished young lady and is well known in Gretna. She was a teacher in the Gretna schools for several years, but for the past two years she has been a reporter and special writer on the Omaha Bee. The groom is almost too well known in this vicinity to need any mentioning here. He is a sterling young man, and an honest and industrious young farmer. He has lived in this community all his life, and has hosts of friends. The Breeze extends its heartiest congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Gillespie and wishes them a long and happy life of martial bliss.—Gretna Breeze.

Through the kindness of our good friend Parsons of Burwell, who sent the above clipping we are permitted to run it this week. The bride is well known here as a charming and talented laly of the highest order and the Quiz takes great pleasure in joining the Breeze in wishing these young people happiness and success for we have no doubt she has exercised fully as good judgment in her selection of a life companion as has the groom.

ETHEL CHARLOTTE CRAIG

Ethel Charlotte Craig was born on January 1st, 1918, at Ord, Nebraska, and died at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Craig, eleven miles north of Ord, on Friday, the 24th day of January, 1919, being at the time of her death, 1 year and 24 days old. Little Ethel was doubly welcome in the home, being the first daughter to come, in a family of four sons. For the short year, and a few days' time she brightened the daily life of those who so dearly loved her. But the dread disease, influenza, proved too much for the strength of our little darling, and she gently passed out of this life to be with those who have gone before. The Saviour hath taken one of our choicest blossoms and transplanted her in His garden above. She leaves to mourn her father and mother and four brothers, Wilmer, Elwyn, Kenneth, and Archie, besides a host of relatives and friends. The funeral service was held at the cemetery in Ord on Sunday afternoon under the direction of Rev. Charles J. Bukoutz, pastor of the First Baptist church. Mr. J. A. Perkins of Lincoln, Nebraska, had charge of the music. Many friends and neighbors were present to comfort and speak words of sympathy to the bereaved parents and children.

She was united in marriage with L. C. Smith September 15th, 1909. To this union there were born five children, three sons and two daughters. She was in poor health for a year or more previous to her death, and after having survived a serious operation some months ago, it was found that she must undergo a second one, and was taken to the hospital at Omaha. For some days she lingered between life and death until on Wednesday, January 22nd the angel of death came to relieve her suffering. When she arrived at the age of 19 years she was converted and united with the Congregational church at Burwell, Nebraska. Upon moving to Ord she united with the First M. E. church. She leaves to mourn her loss a husband, five children, Laura, 8 years, Ronald 7 years, Maynard 5 years, Los 3 years, Golda 1 year of age; a father, W. C. The family lived in Nebraska until six years ago when they moved to Alberta, Canada. A few months ago they moved to Armstrong, B. C., Canada and it was there that Mrs. Brickner died on January 14, 1919, from the effects of the flu. She was buried at Armstrong on the 15th of January.

TOM WRIGHT HURT

Tom Wright was quite badly cut about the face last night while on a ladder at the back of the Bailey building, when a window burst out by the heat. The glass struck him between the eyes and it was just good luck that his eyes were not both put out. He is not dangerously hurt.

Their grandfather J. L. Smith also returned to Enola that day.

Last Tuesday evening Albert McMindes returned home from different points in Missouri. He has been at the springs taking the baths and drinking mineral water. He was not exactly sick but he has felt somewhat run down and he thought the rest would not hurt him anyway. He ran across Forrest Robinson who is also down there. Albert did not stop long in Ord. He ate his supper at home and then went up to Burwell to look after some business that needed his attention.

ESTABLISHED APRIL 6, 188[illegible] TWO DOLLARS PER YEAR THE ORD QUIZ, ORD, NEBRASKA, THURSDAY, JANUARY 30, 1919. VOLUME 37, NUMBER 44

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER

The reactionaries have not yet recovered from their surprise at the decision of the Farmers' Reconstruction conference to send a delegation to Europe. What does it mean? they ask. Why it is necessary when the Rockefellerized department of agriculture already has men abroad supposed to represent American farmers? Should they not be denied passports as another farmer representative was in October? The big press is throwing out dark hints as to a possible taint of "bolshevism," but it has not directly attacked as yet because most of the big progressive farmer organizations of the country were represented at the conference; it was not simply the Nonpartisan league.

The committee of seven are going over to take part in the big congress of organized farmers and organized labor, which is to meet in Paris simultaneously with the peace conference. This congress is going to watch what transpires at the peace table. It is going to offer suggestions or protests whenever it looks as if the diplomats were forgetting the plain folks at home. But probably more important still, this congress is going to bring about a much better international understanding between the common people of all nations.

The peace arrived at may be finally dictated by the imperialistic ambitions of the victorious nations. The League of Nations may be so devised as to be merely a cover for the same thing and a false hope for the common people. But a real League of Peoples, such as is likely to grow out of the farmer-labor congress, will be a real foe of imperialism and war just as in 1914 the enlightened common people furnished the only opposition to the terrible tragedy that followed.

STRONG SELECTIONS MADE

The seven delegates chosen are representative of the more progressive organized farmers. Doctor E. F. Ladd, president of the North Dakota Agricultural college, is well known as the one expert who dared to take the farmers' side in the grain grade controversy and who built up the big argument for grading according to milling value. Arthur Le Sueur has done valiant work as legal counsel for the Nonpartisan league while the anti-farmer gang in the Northwest were trying to kill it with frame-up cases. H. A. Fuller is vice president of the National Union of the American Society of Equity. H. Q. Alexander is president of the North Carolina Farmers' union. George P. Hampton of New York state is a special legislative representative of several large farmer organizations in Washington. Grant Slocum is national secretary of the Gleaners and editor of the Gleaner. C. H. Gustafson is president of the Nebraska Farmers' union.

FOR INTERNATIONAL RECONSTRUCTION

The reconstruction conference also passed a series of resolutions dealing with the international matters which would probably meet the approval of nine-tenths of our people. Among the essentials to prevent future wars in this program are the recognition of the common interests of the working people of all countries, international control of international trade and international investment, freedom of production and uniform and equal free exchange between all peoples; the termination of all secret treaties and understandings between nations, the gradual reduction of armaments, international control of the occupation and development of backward countries, subject to self-determination; complete and direct control by the peoples of every established country of their government, and unrestricted passage for legitimate commerce over land and sea.

To secure and preserve these essentials, the peace conference must provide not only for a League of Nations or Peoples, but the following instrumentalities of such a league must be established: An international investment board, board of trade, commerce commission, institute of agriculture, and labor board.

The principle of reparation, not revenge, must govern the actions of the peace conference. The colonial possessions taken from Germany should be internationalized for the present and free trade with them established, and there should be joint use of all coaling stations and canals.

TO REFORM MILITARY COURTS

The attack on the judicial methods of our military courts from many directions is creating a sensation that is likely to result in important reforms. One of the chief critics is George T. Page, conservative president of the very conservative American Bar Association. At a recent meeting of lawyers in New York City, Mr. Page pointed out how we were still following the barbarous rules and forms copied from the English practice of 174 and long since abandoned by England, and he gave many illustrations to back his points, such as the following:

"A boy of 16, who had just been discharged from the hospital after an attack of influenza, instead of being allowed the usual five days for recuperation, was set to scrubbing kitchen floors and to guard duty. He protested he was not strong enough to do this work, nevertheless he was continued on guard duty for a longer period than usual. In this condition he was taken with a chill, went to his tent to get his overcoat, and while there sat down on the edge of his cot. He was caught with his head in his hands and was accused of being asleep while on duty. Though he denied that he was asleep and asserted that he only yielded to overpowering fatigue, he was convicted by court-martial and sentenced to 25 years in the penitentiary."

Those who know of cases where men have been railroaded to prison by army authorities for trifling offenses under this old system should communicate the facts to their senators without delay. The more the senate hears of the matter the more likely we are to secure thorough reform.

UNEMPLOYMENT GROWS

The politicians who refused to prepare for reconstruction are beginning to see the tangible results of their carelessness, or better, their unwillingness to interfere with special privilege. From the shortage of labor which we had so recently as early November, we have suddenly changed to widespread unemployment. St. Paul, one of the smaller cities, has over 8,000 out of work, by official report. Chicago reports 75,000 unemployed. New Orleans and Boston each report 20,000; St. Louis, 15,000; New York, 20,000; Cleveland, 40,000. Every day the situation grows worse because soldiers are being rapidly discharged (about 800,000 in the last two months); war industries are laying off their men; and basic commodity prices are kept so high by the monopolists that peace-time manufacturers do not dare to launch out on increased production. Starvation, which follows the wake of unemployment, means bread lines in the cities. It means riots and bloodshed, the more terrible because from the point of view of the starving they will be justified in that the hand of organized society has turned against them, denying the right or opportunity to work that they may live. It means declining markets for farm products.

The more intelligent business leaders, who see the way things are going, are demanding more co-operation among business men to meet the unemployment problem, but they have no workable plans because the big special interests insist that this is their opportunity to hold up their prices, reduce wages and kill of labor unions. They will insist on accomplishing these aims though the skies fall. Also President Wilson's unexplainable advice in his last message to the effect that reconstruction would take care of itself has played into their hands.

THE SIMS BILL

The Sims bill, before the house, which aims to carry out the recommendations of the federal trade commission, is now receiving serious attention. Under its provisions the packers are first to be put under strict license regulation. When that fails to stop their lawlessness, they are to be put under license that covers other activities besides the packing and marketing of meats. If that fails, they are to lose their ownership of the markets, but may still operate under license. If they still play a crooked game, they are to be punished by a complete program of public ownership and operation of stockyards and the rest of the marketing system.

Any one who has followed the packing trust business knows that these ifs in the bill are too top heavy to stand up. Why, then, waste time in preparing a blundering purgatory for the trust instead of taking the whole business under public ownership as is done in most of Europe? Why, when we have the packers licked, should we allow them to keep all theirfighting gear?

Sims is sincere enough. The trouble lies with the reactionary forces in congress, which will try to pull all the teeth even of his mild bill and leave it a worthless apology for impossible regulation.

MORE PACKER EXPOSURE

In the meantime, more revelations are coming to light regarding the packers, and they are spreading the press of the country with advertising to offset theeffect, spending $54,000 a year, for instance, with one so-called farm paper. The wholesale grocery business is shown to be at their mercy and the retailers likewise. The fine hand of the Morgan-Rockefeller Wall street crowd pulls the packing trust strings. Mr. Heney, the trade commission's attorney, is expected to reveal the important facts he found in the Veeder vaults, which were locked up by court injunction. Worse yet, we are learning gradually how the packing trust held up the allied nations during the war in the most brazen, conscienceless fashion.

LA FOLLETTE CLEARED

The great La Follette controversy, stirred up over a year ago by the public safety commission of Minnesota, partly, at least, in the hope of discrediting the Nonpartisan league, has been finally settled. The United States senate has decided, by a vote of 50 to 21, to dismiss the disloyalty charges. The big press made mush of the charge also to discourage high war profits taxation, inasmuch as La Follette was the leader of the cause in the senate. Nearly a year after the charge was brought the Associated Press made a public apology for misquoting the senator's St. Paul speech, and it was on the misquotation that the big press built its attacks.

HEAD SALESMAN SPENT HUNDREDS

Burton Suffered Twenty Years Before Finding the Right Medicine.

In speaking of the marvelous way in which Tanlac has relieved him of a long-standing case of rheumatism, B. E. Burton, head salesman in the wholesale fruit and vegetable department at Lutey Bros., Butte, Mont., living at 662 South Montana St., recently said:

"It is simply astonishing that just a few bottles of Tanlac should fix me up in almost no time, after I had spent almost every dollar I earned in the last twenty years trying to get relief from that awful rheumatism."

Before coming to Butte Mr. Burton lived for ten years in Spokane, Wash., where he was salesman for the Imperial Trading Company of that city.

"I tell you what," he continued, "I have gone through all stages of rheumatism, and the agonies I have had to endure simply cannot be described. The trouble first came on me about twenty years ago. My shoulders, knees and ankles gave me the most worry and ached so at times that I hardly had any use for myself. About three years ago it got so bad that I was laid up in bed for six long months, and when I got up again I had to go about on crutches for three months, and till recently I never did get it out of my system, although I have spent hundreds of dollars in trying to get straightened out. I went to Hot Springs, Arkansas, but without reuslt and then I tried the mud baths nearer home, but got no benefit from that treatment either. A little while ago I felt it coming on pretty bad again. My appetite left me, nothing tasted right, I was constipated and suffered from awful headaches every few days. The pain in my shoulders and knees was so agonizing that I could hardly sleep and I would wake up six or seven times during the night racked with pain. Why, at the time I started taking Tanlac I couldn't raise my arms as high as my shoulders to save my life and was unable to put on my coat without somebody helping me, and my knees were so stiff and hurt so bad I could hardly walk.

"After reading so much about Tanlac I decided to try it and I hadn't finished my first bottle before the stiffness began to leave my joints, and now I never suffer a bit of pain or inconvenience. My second bottle gave me a whacking big appetite, that constipation is relieved and I never have a headache. I sleep like a log all night, and am lucky if I wake up in time for breakfast before going to work. I certainly am glad to endorse Tanlac and only hope my experience with this wonderful medicine will help someone else who may be going through what I did."

A big story of the Colorado—the 2,000-mile river that dug the Grand Canyon, the Great-Yellow-Dragon-That-Cannot Be-Harnessed of the Indian—when it burst its banks and threatened to turn the Imperial Valley of California into an inland sea.

"Stop the river; d—n the expense!" said President Marshall of the Overland Pacific to "Casey" Rickard, engineer.

"The River" is the story of that titanic struggle to balk the Colorado of its prey that thrilled the nation; of the man who saved the Imperial Valley and lost his heart to the girl who hated him.

"The River" is the story of Innes Hardin, whose hatred of the engineer turned to love as she watched him lead the battle against the Great Yellow Dragon for the lives and homes of the settlers.

HIS KNEES KNOCKED TOGETHER

Itwas a most unusual situation when a hundred or more Republican leaders of Nebraska, called upon Lieutenant Governor Howard, who was presiding at the joint session of the two houses of the legislature, to express their appreciation of Theodore Roosevelt and their sorrow at his death. Mr. Howard admits that his knees knocked together like a school boys. His story of the affair as told editorially in his Columbus Telegram last week, is most iteresting and worth a place in your scrap book. Here it is in his own words:

Perhaps every boy in Nebraska at some time in his life has read of heard about a person's knees knocking together in time of excitement or fear. Can a person's knees knock together without his effort to make them knock" They can, and they do. Often men say to me that they envy me my complete self possession, my freedom from fear, my great distance from that horrible thing we call nervousness. Friends who pay me such compliments have never been permitted to survey my nerve center, else they would know that, despite my usually calm exterior and my usually deliberate speech, I have since boyhood suffered more than a frail woman suffers from attacks of nervousness, and I here testify that I have knowledge that a man's knees may knock together despite his effort to resist the knocking. It happened to me during the hour of the joint legislative session when the two houses had met to canvass the votes cast at the last state election. It was the afternoon of the day when the body of ex-President Roosevelt was being borne to its tomb in Massachusetts. All day the members of the two houses had appeared depressed because of the great loss the world ad sustained in the death of that magnetic man. During a lull in the joint convention proceedings Representative Jenison, of Clay county, made a motion that the regular order of business should be suspended for a half hour, and the time devoted to volunteer tributes to the memory of the nation's dead leader. The motion was carried. With gavel in hand I stood, eagerly desirous of awarding the floor to the first of the 133 senators or representatives who might arise for recognition by the chair. But none arose. One, two, three minutes passed. The silence was oppresiyse. It was broken by Representative Hardin, of Harlan county, Very quietly, but impressively, he in substance said: "Mr. President, this is a most peculiar situation. Here are many men, each capable of offering a fitting tribute of words to the memory of a great man, and yet all seem subdued to an oppressive silence. I believe I have a solution of the situation. I now ask all the senators and representatives to join me in requesting Lieutenant-Governor Howard to utter in behalf of all of us the sentiments which our hearts are feeling, but which our lips appear forbidden to express." Of course such a request was a great compliment to me, but it was as frightening as it was complimentary. There I stood, one of a score of democrats in that assembly of more than 100 republican leaders and orators over the state, requested by them to speak in the behalf of all the membership, and with not a moment for preparation, a tribute to the departed leader of their own political party. I think fully two minutes passed before I could meet the situation with lips not atremble. I do not recall my address. I recall the sentiment of it, but the words do not come to me again. I remember saying that I permitted no republican to give better place in his own memory-house to the manifold virtues of the distinguished dead than the place to which I had assigned those virtues in my own house of memory. In all my career as a public speaker I never stood before an assemblage so manifestly subdued to almost worshipful silence—not seemingly silent to catch the words of a speaker, but rather that silence of homage which strong men sometimes pay to the memory of their beloved dead. If the burden of surprise and fear was great when suddenly asked by my legislative fraters to perform an office of honor in their name, so also was the offering of appreciation generous when practically all those fine men gathered about me to thank me for my tribute to the very prince of red-blooded Americans. Upon returning from the joint session to their own chamber the senators adopted a request that I should reduce my address to writing to preserve it in the official record of the senate, and a little later the house of representatives honored me by adoption of a like request. I have not a scrap of paper containing a sentence of my address. It came unannounced and the only stenographers on duty were two university boys who happened to be present for practice in writing shorthand. They are still trying to decipher their shorthand notes, and give promise that in due time they will be able to present a fair report of my words on that occasion, and then I shall grant the request of the two houses of the legislature.

PERRY BELL SELLS OUT

A. H. Hepp is the new owner of the Gem theatre. He made the purchase from Perry Bell in a deal yesterday. The purchase price was not made public. Hepp will take possession February 1. In the meantime he will become better acquainted with the business. Hepp has made no definite plans for the future. He intends to give the people of this vicinity the best pictures he can obtain. Perry Bell has made no announcement of his plans. He will assist Hepp for a time.—Greeley Citizen.

MORE DIFFICULT TO GET OUT THAN INTO THE ARMY

That is the conviction of Curley Murphy, Leo Clinch and John O'Connor who returned from Camp Dodge last Monday night.

"The physical examinations of soldiers being mustered out are most exacting," Murphy said today. "Then there is a great deal of red tape connected with being discharged. I dare say I have signed my name to various papers more than 200 times in the last week. It was necessary that a correct report on every soldier's belongings may be kept."

The three lads are looking well and have enjoyed the life of a soldier to the full. They enlisted in the signal corps last summer. They first went to Lincoln, then to Fort Leavenworth and from there to Camp Meade in Maryland. They were sent to Camp Dodge to be mustered out of service about two weeks ago.—Greeley Citizen.

OUR UNIVERSITY FARM LETTER

Nebraska boys and girls are again to have an opportunity to receive free insfruction in some kind of profitable production work. Thru boys' and girls' clubs, the University of Nebraska College of Agriculture Extension Service, Junior Section, will teach the growing of some crop, the raising of some kind of stock, or the preservation of food, baking, or making clothing. Boys and girls will be enabled not only to earn money but also to obtain valuable information. Free correspondence instruction, one lesson a month, will be given boys and girls in gardening, potato growing, pig raising, chicken raising, rabbit raising, canning and drying, baking, and garment making. Any boy or girl 10 years old, or under 10 if in the fourth or a higher grade, may enroll for this profitable summer work. Enrollment may be made with any school teacher February 10 to 14. Thirty thousand boys and girls were enrolled in the work last year. They not only received free instruction in agriculture but produced several hundred thousand dollars worth of food, clothing, etc.

Many stories of tractor incidents are told by students taking the tractor short course at the University of Nebraska. One man, having had his tractor seven years, decided the magneto needed cleaning. He soaked it in gasoline, and then turned it to see if it would spark. It did and set the gasoline on fire and burned the magneto up. Another man heard a fearful noise as the drive wheel turned over. Instead of stopping the tractor he kept it going to see if the noise occurred again. A lug had come loose and the second time around swung out and stripped off one of the control levers and the fender. Positively, a machine should not be run a foot after something has gone wrong. Repair men say that more than 50 per cent of their work comes from improper lubrication.

The time is rapidly approaching when the incubator must be started, if chickens are to be hatched early. When getting the incubator ready make a thoro job of it, suggest University of Nebraska extension workers. Throw away the old wick, test the thermometer, level up the machine, review the instructions and have them handy; it will pay to follow instructions closely. Be sure and don't miss anything that will help to make the incubator a success.

There are on the market a number of preparations which are erroneously termed "milk substitutes." Such feeds undoubtedly have considerable value as substitutes for grain, but as a rule they cannot be fed successfully to young calves to take the place of milk. Milk contains special growth-promoting properties found in no other feeds which are suitable for and can be digested by very young calves. As a rule, calf meals should not be fed until the calf is old enough to eat some grain, which wil be at the age of about three weeks. Then they may be fed in small quantities in addition to the regular milk ration, thus forming a supplement to the milk and not a substitute. A satisfactory calf meal may be made by mixing equal parts by weight of linseed oil meal, hominy meal, red dog flour and blood meal. The meal is fed in the form of gruel, mixed with milk. To make the gruel, pour hot water over the meal and stir vigorously, and allow the mixture to stand a few hours. An amount of the gruel equivalent to 3 or 4 ounces of the dry meal may be fed when the calf is three or four weeks old and gradually increased until one pound is fed daily at 60 days old. A HIGH PRICE FOR CIDER

According to reports reaching Greeley this week, cider has been sold at Spalding for 10 a quart.

Two instances are reported where sales of this kind have been made. Of course, the purchasers believed they were buying something besides cider.—Greeley Citizen.

A WAVE OF THE FLU HITS THE VICINITY OF HORACE

There are approximately seventy-five cases of the flu in the vicinity of Horace, according to reports from that place this afternoon.

The disease broke out in the schools there a few days ago. It spread rapidly. But few of the cases, it was said, are serious.

Thus far there have been but two deaths.—Greeley Citizen.

AND WHAT SOME OTHERS THINK

By H. D. Leggett

An exchange in a neighboring town almost as large as Ord, brags that it has six pages of home print. Well, that's pretty good but the Quiz has sixteen pages of home print this week.

—o—

A Minnesota congressman has gone on record as favoring the changing of the motto on the silver dollar. We would say offhand that giving the common people a little more legislative salt for the eagle's tail would be much more important. We common people find the birds harder to get all the time.

—o—

The more I see of government control as at present handled the less I will be in favor of government ownership of utilities. That is not saying however that I am not in favor of government ownership but it means that I am in favor of efficient management, not management for political graft.

—o—

Congress has just done another fool thing in voting $5,000 per year pention to Mrs. Roosevelt and giving her a perpetual franking privilege. If it was necessary I would say nothing but she has $500,000 dollars or more and the children are grown and self supporting and I can see no reason for the government to take this action in this case more than in hundreds of others.

When the farmers first protested against the packers the soup-bone press called them ignorant, socialistic and dangerous. A year or so ago when the farmers of Valley county first started to organize the kept press of this county devoted much space to calling the farmers disloyal, bolsheviki and similar pet names. The farmers are not forgetting these facts very fast either.

I believe there is a studied attempt on the part of railroad managements to discredit the federal management to such an extent that the people will become disgusted with the whole thing, which is really a farce as at present managed, and demand private others who felt the same way about it others who fel the same way about it and there is plenty of evidence to cause the belief.

The Kearney Democrat says: "Now that the war is over, the government should give the people back some of the freedom enjoyed before the war. For instance, let the freedom of open competition prevail in the groceryshop, the butchershop, the buttershop, the eggshop, the drugshop and the railroadshop. McAdoo's prices may have been all right for war purposes, but they are dead wrong on an everyday basis.

Editor Edgar Howard says plainly that it was rank profiteering when a great Columbus elevator firm paid one Platte county farmer $1.38 per bushel for corn and sold it to another Platte county farmer for $1.56. Does seem like pretty stiff profit doesn't it?

It cost the Quiz almost six dollars last week to get 500 pounds of print paper shipped to Ord from St. Paul by express. That is about double what it would have cost before the democrats took the express companies over to make the world safe for democracy.

It has been customary among business men, when in a hurry for a long distance call to give it to both local offices and the one able to put the call through first got the business. That method will be off now for the new rules will make the man pay for his call over the line that he talks and for fifty per cent of the call over the line that wasn't able to get the call through first.

And now boxing is to be legalized in all the states, a nation wide campaign having been started for that purpose. It is said to have the enthusiastic support of the Y. M. C. A. and many of the large colleges and no doubt our preachers will soon be preaching sermons in support of the pugilists and the betting which always goes with the ring fights.

J. Ogden Armour suggests a giant monopoly of the meat business under strict government control. J. Ogden is a sly old fox and he has found out that it is easy to slip his employees into the government service at $1 a year and no doubt plans upon sending some of his trusties over to Washington to manage and control the meat business. Wouldn't that be a fine arrangement for the packers?

The weather man says there is to be a change with colder weather the last of this week and after the unusually fine January we have had we can't complain if the weather man will just be reasonable. The announcement cheers the coal man greatly too.

Heretofore when we telephone subscribers wanted to call a Burwell party over the local telephone through the Burwell exchange owned by the same company we could do so without charge but that time is past now. It cost good money to talk to any of the surrounding towns.

Packers asserted a few days ago before the senatorial investigating committee that the price of bacon was 65 cents at present, as compared with 25 and 30 cents four years ago, because, largely, "prices of hogs had increased 245 per cent in that time." The statement was Mr. Armour's. It is difficult to imagine where he obtains the idea. The Omaha stock market reports for the years in question, on hogs, are as follows:

Heavy	8.45	7.50	17.40
Light	8.30	7.10	17.25
Bulk	8.45	7.10	17.10

Top prices are quoted in each instance. For 1919 the prices are those of Kansas City, which will vary little with Omaha, the latter being unavailable at the instant. The point not explained is that there is a difference of about nine cents per pound to the producer and of 30 cents per pound to the consumer. Prices of hogs have increased only a little over 100 per cent instead of 245 per cent, according to these figures.—Grand Island Independent.

Some folks say that advertising don't pay and it don't unless it is done in the right way and in the right place. An advertisement in the Quiz does pay however. We had another instance of it last week. C. A. Hager, the land man, came in Tuesday just before noon and wanted to sell some of his wife's Rhode Island hens. He said a small "want ad" would not be seen by her for women never read the "want ads" and he would get rid of the hens before she knew anything about it. The best laid plans however, sometimes go wrong and they did in this case for the paper was hardly out last week when Anthony Koupal rushed into the Hager office and said he wanted to see about those hens. Hager asked him how he knew anything about them and Anthony said he saw it in the Quiz and bought them without seeing them. Mr. Hager told us himself that he had fourteen telephone calls about the hens, more than half of them from women, which proves that the women do read the Quiz want ads, and there are a lot of them on page eight of section one this week.

And by the way, the Quiz is printing sixteen pages this week and we leave it for you to say whether we needed to do so to take proper care of our advertising. Last week we had twelve pages and 981 inches of advertising, which is more than double the amount of advertising carried by any other paper in this part of the state. Last week we circulated 2,600 papers. This week we are sending a considerable number of sample copies and are printing 3,000 copies of this big sixteen page paper. The white paper in the issue this week costs close to twenty-five dollars. If you get a sample copy we want you to read it. You will not be annoyed with the paper unless you order it but the sample sent you is an invitation for you to subscribe. Other people are doing so at the rate of ten to fifteen each and every week. If you start now you will get a chance to read all of the new story which starts this week. The story in book form would cost you nearly the price of a year's subscription.

Editor Thomas of Alliance, says that the farmers up there are being offered 30 to 40 cents per bushel for their potatoes and there are no better ones raised than those raised in that country. At the same time these potatoes are being shipped to Omaha where the consumer is paying from $1.25 to $1.50 per bushel for them. The freight rate is about 12 cents a bushel from Alliance to Omaha. Supposing the price paid is 40 cents they would cost 52 cents in Omaha. There is a profit for the middle men of anywhere from 73 cents to 98 cents per bushel, double or more than double what the man who raised them got for them. Is it time for the farmers to get organized? We think so and we are not at all opposed to a reasonable profit for the middle man either. He should have it but he should not be allowed to practice highway robbery under the guise of business. Neither should be called a traitor to his country because he wants to organize and better his condition.

I am always ready to take off my hat to the St. Paul commercial club and I wish we had a "C. J. Christensen" in Ord for we do need a live, aggressive commercial club here. The latest thing undertaken by the commercial club down there is the paving of the two main streets during the coming summer and they will do it too.

One doctor says that flu patients must not drink cold water and another allows his patients to have all they want. While I had the flu I drank more cold water than I ever did before in the same length of time and lived to tell it and a man told me the other day that he didn't seem to be getting over the flu but he said he had only himself to blame and admitted that he had drank cold water against the orders of his doctor. Where are we poor mortals at anyhow.

DEMOBILIZATION NEWS

By U. P. R. R. Press Bureau.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 27: Special. With the entire demobilization of the Tenth Division on hand, according to announcement made here, the big task of selecting the men for discharge from the fighting unit at Camp Funston will be made simpler, and the work therefore hastened materially.

According to General March's statement of this week, the total demobilization of all combat divisions in camp in this country with the exception of the original organizations of regulars which were used as the nucleus has been ordered.

In carrying out the order to discharge 0 per cent of the Tenth, the big job of selecting the ment to go was expected to take some time. With the new order in force, however, the regulars can be separated, and the others put through the regular discharge routine without having to select the most meritorious out of the thousands of applications for discharge.

Camp Funston has a maximum discharge capacity twice as great as the average demobilization camp, according to a statement given out which puts the average camp capacity of 1,000 men per day. The capacity at Funston has been given as 2,000 per day, and, although this has never been reached, runs averaging as high as 1,800 per day for several days have been made. About 25,000 have been sent out from Funston to date.

General March, Chief of Staff, states that while demobilization is not going at its highest capacity it is proceeding very rapidly, far more so than in any other allied country.

The 89th division is still with the Army of Occupation, and no information is available here that indicates any change in the lineup of the troops on German soil, which includes the troops from Missouri, Kansas, Colorado, Nebraska and South Dakota.

In tracing the origin of the information contained in a dispatch widely published in the Middle West to the effect that the 89th had been detached from the Occupation Forces, it was found that a mistake had been made in the sopying of General March's statement of a week ago which made the assumption on the part of correspondents here a most natural one. In the statement of the locations of overseas divisions, markings showing the units in the Army of Occupation had been misplaced, leaving out the 89th and 90th and including one other division.

The 89th when last reported was at Bitburg, in Germany, and its headquarters was located at Heudicourt, France, although it is thought to be with division by this time.

It can be stated that the 35th division is not a part of any army of Occupation, as has been rumored, although at present it is not listed among the units due for early sailing.

The 35th is at present at Commercy, France, among a group of units, which because of their positions might be thought of as supporting divisions to the army in Germany.

It is thought that this fact has probably given rise to the statements published and reported in soldier's letters that the Missouri-Kansas division would join the troops across the border. According to all information in the hands of the War Department here, this is not the case, however.

General March stated this week that our overseas forces would be reduced to the minimum consistent with our obligations to the Allies. This, he said would be far less than thirty divisions, and indicates that many of these units now ni support positions will be sent back when ships are available to carry them. A comparatively early return is therefore possible for the 35th. The 110th Trench Mortar Battery of the 35th and the 314th Trench Mortar Battery of the 89th are already detached and listed for early sailing.

We have an advertisement this week for the Loup Valley Packing Co. the new organization officered largely by Valley county men. Read it and see what these men propose to do for the people of the Loup valley. Their argument is reasonable for it is surely the wrong principle when we ship our cattle and hogs to Omaha and then ship the meat back to Ord, paying freight or express at the present high rates to make the world safe for the democrats. Mr. McLean, secretary of the new company, says they expect to start butchering June 1, probably with a car each of cattle and hogs. He, with Treasurer Rassett is presenting the proposition to the farmers of this county and surouding country at the present time and is meeting with very gratifying success.

Among the names announced last Saturday by General Pershing for the Distinguished Service Cross was that of Lieutenant George Thorngate. The citation is as follows: Lieutenant George Thorngate Sixth Infantry. For extraordinary heroism in action near Romagne, France, October 14 and 15, 1918. Being seriously wounded, Lieut. Thorngate displayed marked devotion to duty by refusing to go to the rear and remaining in command of his company until next day. Home address, Exeland, Wisconsin. Lieutenant Thorngate is now in a convalescent camp near Bordeaux, France.—Milton Wisconsin, Journal Telephone.

IT'S NOT YOUR HEART
IT'S YOUR KIDNEYS

The kidneys are the most important organs of the body. They are the filterers, the purifiers, of your blood.

Kidney disease is usually indicated by weariness, sleeplessness, nervousness, despondency, backache, stomach trouble, pain in loins and lower abdomen, gall stones, gravel, rheumatism, sciatica and lumbago.

All these derangements are nature's signals to warn you that the kidneys need help. You should use GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules immediately. The soothing, healing oil stimulates the kidneys, relieves inflammations and destroys the germs which have caused it. Do not wait until tomorrow. Go to your druggist today and insist on GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules. In twenty-four hours you should feel health and vigor returning and will bless the day you first heard of GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil.

After you feel that you have cured yourself, continue to take one or two capsules each day, so as to keep in first-class condition and ward off the danger of other attacks.

OUR NEW TELEPHONE RATES

Last week there was a general hcange in telephone rates when the new rules under which the government operates the telephones went into effect and as has been the case with everything the present administration has attempted to regulate, the price has gone up, practically amounting to a 100 per cent increase in this case.

Another thing that seems queer is that the government can take a phone system like the Ord Independent Telephone Co. and tell it that it has got to double its rates to its Ord and Burwell customers. This company is not connected with any big company but is strictly a local concern and it is hard to understand why it cannot be allowed to run its own business as it sees fit. Nothing the present administration has attempted to 'put over" has aroused such widespread resentment and called forth such general and vigorous protests as Postmaster General Burleson's revision upward of long-distance telephone charges, effective January 21, 1919.

Since the administration, under the pretext of its being a war measure, seized the telephone service of the country and placed it under Postmaster General Burleson, there has been growing dissatisfaction with the service. The limit of public patience, however, seems to have been reached when the new schedule of rates for long distance was announced. Notwithstanding the announcement was accompanied by the carefully conveyed impression that the new rates would be a public benefit, the facts are pretty definitely summed up in the statement of Chairman Hill, of the New York Public Service Commission, made in connection with the Commission's instituting legal proceedings in the federal courts to restrain the New York Telephone Company from putting into operation the new rates ordered by Postmaster General Burleson. Mr. Hill said:

"The new rates were promulgated by the Postmaster General with the statement that they brot about a decrease in charges, but analysis by the New York Public Service Commission gives the same results as analysis made by the public service commissions in Illinois, Ohio, Nebraska, New Jersey, Indiana, Missouri and other states; that is, that the rates are increased from 20 to 100 per cent. The effect of the order of the Postmaster General is to increase charges for telephone service covering the bulk of traffic, and making charges for certain service which heretofore were free."

How New Rates Work.

Under the old order, if John Brown wished to talk to William Smith, he might put in a call for William Smith; that is, he might ask the operator not only to get the telephone number at which William Smith might be called, but to call William Smith himself to the phone. Or John Brown might want to talk to William Smith at a certain hour and he could make an appointment to have William Smith put on the phone at that hour. Or he might want William Smith to call him at a certain hour and have William Smith call him, with the charges reversed. Any one or all of these things, John Brown might have done under the old schedule without any extra charges over the published rates for a three-minute talk.

Now it is different. Under Postmaster General Burleson's new schedule, John Brown cannot talk to William Smith unless he puts in what is now designated a "persn to person" call. The rate for such a call is 25 per cent greater than the minimum rate for three minutes' conversation. The only service John Brown can now get for the minimum rate is what is known as a "station to station" call. This merely entitles him to call a elephone number and talk to whomever answers the phone. As only an infinitely small percentage of long distance calls are for "anyone there" at the number called, the number of cases where Mr. Burleson's new minimum rate will apply, will be practically negligible.

Not only must John Brown pay extra in order to have William Smith himself put on the phone, but if he wishes to have Mr. Smith put on the phone at a particular time then another additional rate is charged, known under Mr. Burleson's new schedule as an "appointment rate." Moreover, if John Brown calls for William Smith and the operator reports that he is not there, and Mr. Brown has the operator ascertain when he will be there, Mr. Brown is charged an extra fee for this service which is known as a "report charge."

Rates Actually Doubled.

All of these various services have been rendered by the telephone companies without extra charge and as the majority of long distance calls includes at least one, and maybe all of these services, the actual increase in rates under Mr. Burleson's new telephone order approximates nearly 100 per cent.

Another point upon which an effort was made to mislead the public was in the statement that the night rates are so much lower than formerly. This is true only on "station to station" calls. That is to say, where John Brown simply asks for a telephone anyone in particular or making any appointment. On all long distance calls at night, regardless of the time of night, where the party calling asks for some party in particular or asks information regarding some party or seeks to make an appointment with some party there is ne reduction from the day rate.

The new rates mean an increase of thousands of dollars annually in telephone bills of large corporations and a price to the individual so high as to be almost prohibitive. Under Postmaster General Burleson's administration of the postal department the mails have become so irregular and so undependable that the larger business, banking and manufacturing concerns have been resorting more and more to the telephone. Now they fear that this service is going to be crippled even as the mail service has been crippled and at the same time (as with the mail service) the rates advanced.

The Larger Issue.

In a larger sense, there is the menace of an autocracy established under the pretense that it is necessary to make the world safe for democracy. That is the issue which the various state commissions are bringing into the federal courts. No one believes the administration's seizure of the telephone systems of the country was a war necessity, but having used the war as a camouflage to get control of this vast public utility it remains to be decided whether that autocratic power can be indefinitely extended into the era of peace and used to suit the personal caprice of one man or advance the political fortunes of a vilque, at an added cost to the public of millions of dollars and, at the same time, a lessened quality of public service, and in defiance of all state laws and regulations.

DELAYS IN SOLDIERS' MAIL

Second Assistant Postmaster General Praeger, when questioned by the senate postoffice committee the other day, declared that there were from eight to ten carloads of mail addressed to sailors tied up in France, without prospect of immediate delivery, while "thousands and probably millions" of letters addressed to the men overseas will soon be sent to the dead letter office. He places all the blame on the War department, which took charge of outgoing mail at Hoboken.

With the frequent transfer of troops it was natural that there should be some delays. But no delay should have been longer than a few days. It is not claimed that imperfect addresses form an element in the problem. Inefficiency is the only explanation. The War department used about 50 experienced mail clerks, relying on inexperienced men for the rest of the work. But there was no real necessity for experienced mail clerks, for the mail had to be specially routed according to the list of the units. It is admitted that the index was not kept up. As this was the essential thing, the admission is a confession of gross incompetency.

It is on a par with the delays in paying soldiers and in making allotments to dependents and with the inefficiency of the War department in checking up casualty reports after they had been brought overseas by couriers, following the armistice. Senator Weeks proved in a senate speech that the highest list completed in any day was 7,500 making a maximum average of five for the 1,500 clerks assigned to the work. Think of an able-bodied clerk spending an entire day to certify five names reported from France! The system itself must be an abomination of red tape.

Mr. Praeger did not touch on the delays in mail from soldiers, a subject that also deserves attention. It is significant that the practice of censoring soldiers' mail is maintained, with all the delay it entails, although what aim is served by it, in view of the general publicity following the armistice, is a mystery passing all understanding.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

ONLY WHEN INVITED

The reign of terror which the editors of the big newspapers are seeing under the bolsheviki will come to America only upon invitation.

And the big newspapers which speak the langauge of the big war profiteers seem to be doing their best to extend the invitation.

Have you read the hideous disclosures in the congressional investigation of the meat-packers' trust? The sworn evidence thus far presented would send an ordinary citizen to the penitentiary. But the men connected with the packers' trust are not ordinary citizens. They are ordinary in point of physical appearance only.

They are extraordinary in point of the protection they are always receiving from the Unseen Hand. Never a criminal among them has paid the penalty which should follow his crime. In the face of this fact, and in the face of the mad effort of the big newspapers to minimize the crimes of the packers' trust how can any student of history fail to see the danger ahead? Despite the high wages paid to laboring men, the fact remains that the cost of living is consuming the wage. Out of the war the laboring men of America have emerged without profit. When they read the sworn testimony, showing that many of the big interests have preyed upon the necessities of the government and the people during war times to the extent of 300 per cent profit annually—well, is it strange that in presence of such an unpunished crime the victims shall become restless and make effort to punish the high criminals who have so long been sheltered by the Unseen Hand?

Just now the big newspapers and magazines controlled by the special interests are madly warning the American people against the rising of the bolsheviki in America, the while demanding thet government shall hush all proceedings against the big interests which have robbed government and people during the war days.

Herein lies the invitation to the reign of terror under leadership of men made mad by the crimes of the rich and the failure of government to punish the criminals.

The reign of terror will come to America only upon invitation, and today the criminal profiteers appear to be beckoning industriously with their own Unseen Hand.—Columbus Telegram.

When you have familiarized yourself with Henry Fliver Ford's government contracts you will understand why he elected to become a democrat. No one has ever accused Hen of neglecting the main chance.—Clay Center Sun.

National gratitude is a joke to a lot of us old ducks who remember as one of the familiar sights of our boyhood a raggedy old fellow in a tattered coat of blue who went through four or five years of hell to save his country and as many more years of hell after the saving as a desert country demanded ere it would return to him a scanty living. The boys coming back from the army might as well know the truth first as last. They have lost a couple of years time from civilian duties and the sooner they get their coats off and get into the harness to make it up the sooner will they forget the fact that a country is like an individual. It talks long and lour of gratitude but is exceedingly loathe to settle the bill in any manner that will cause itself any inconvenience.—Clay Center Sun.

"Eaglets" That Never Screamed

Continuing the program for emergency construction after the need for it has passed seems wasteful, but to continue after its product has proved useless and unavailing verges on criminal misuse of public money. The Navy department has ordered that sixty of the Henry Ford eagle boats be constructed though the war is over and the submarines they were to have chased are now in the hands of the allies. This in face of the fact that admirals of the navy have testified that they would not sanction the construction of an eagle boat in peace times. Nor has it been proven that the Ford design is seaworthy; on the other hand good sailors say it is not.

Under a contract dated March 1st, 1918, the Ford company was to deliver one vessel five months from the date of the contract, 10 within one month thereafter 20 the following month, and 25 a month from that time till its order for 112 had been filled. As a matter of fact, by the first week in November only seven had been delivered and of these six were hurried down to the St. Laurence in a far from complete condition, to escape being frozen up at Detroit.

Instead of terminating the contract and settling for the work and material, as it had a right to do, the Navy department has ordered the completion of sixty of these boats, which are slow and uncertain(a torpedo boat destroyer has a maximum speed of 35 to 38 knots; an eagle is expected to make 24 at its utmost), and to pay for the same, $33,000,000, on which Henry Ford is guaranteed a profit of $1,200,000. These boats will be useless until the next war.

Moreover, the factory in which these boats are constructed was built by the government, the Fords not investing a penny in its erection. It is to be "sold" now and the chanves are good for Mr. Ford getting a factory building 350x1,700 feet of the most approved type at whatever price he feels like paying.

The "eagle" boats that never screamed seem to be the Navy's contribution to th bungling of the war at Washington.

FIGHT ON INDEPENDENT PACKERS

Probably the farmers of Valley county and Nebraska don't fully realize what they are going to be up against when they start in to build up an independent packing business in opposition to the big packers. Despite enormous salaries paid to officers and employes, many of whom are relatives who do next to nothing for the business and despite millions paid out for betterments, which in reality are branching out into other times which the packers are rapidly dominating, the big packers are forced to admit enormous profits in their reports. And were the water in their stocks squeezed out, the amount of the profits would be still more astonishing. Following is an article from a reliable source which will throw some light on the methods used to stifle competition. Surely the farmers are justified in any demands they may make. The article follows:

"A graphic description of the fight the "big five" packers are making to drive the Hormel Packing company at Austin, Minn., out of business, was given to the house committee on interstate commerce by Victor Murdock of the federal trade commission.

"Mr. Murdock told the committee, upon an inquiry by Representative Deremus of Michigan as to the schemes of the big packers to destroy the meat supply of the independents, that the Austin situation was perhaps the best example to be found in America of the way the big five go at it.

" 'The packing concern of Austin,' he said, 'has grown up with the community—a thriving city of a few thousand people, located on or near a number of railroad lines that traverse the country not only north and south between St. Paul and Minneapolis and Omaha and Kansas City, but between Sioux Falls and Sioux City on the west and Chicago and Milwaukee on the east. Austin is on some of these roads, a little distacne from other lines.

"In my observation of the situation at Austin, I found that the big five packers had installed buying stations at points a little distance away from Austin, in order to intercept the flow of cattle and hogs, more particularly hogs, as that is what the Austin concern specializes in—from the region which would be naturally tributary to Austin and prevent it from getting its natural supply of animals.

"This is done, as I observed, by the big concerns bidding a little more at these competing points than they do at other points where they are buying and where there is not manifested the same intention to run an independent packer out of business. Of course, it is temporarily anadvantage to the producer of hogs, as he gets a little better prices than he otherwise would, but in the long run he will pay the penalty when the monopoly succeeds, if it does, and as it would appear that it must ultimately, in wiping out its smaller competitor.

"Fortunately, the packing of hog meat has an advantage for the small packers as against the handling of beef, in that the pork products can be cured and the small packer is not, therefore, dependent to so large an extent as is the beef producer on the refrigerator car facilities which the big five control. The line of retreat for the independent packer who is assailed by the big five is along the line of hogs. There he can make his stand longer against the devices of the monopoly."

CHAPTER I.

Marshall Sends for Rickard.

The large round clock was striking nine as "Casey" Rickard's dancing step carried him into the outer office of Tod Marshall. The ushering clerk, coatless and vestless in expectation of the third hot spring day, made a critical appraisement of the engineer's get-up before he spoke. Then he stated that Mr. Marshall had not yet come.

For a London tie and a white silk shirt belted into white serge trousers were smart for Tucson. The clerks in the employ of the Overland Pacific and of the Sonora and Yaqui railroads had stared at Rickard as he entered; they followed his progress through the room. He was a newcomer in Tucson. He had not yet acquired the apathetic habits of its citizens. He wore belts, instead of suspenders. His white trousers, duck or serge, carried a newly pressed crease each morning.

The office had not reached a verdict on the subject of H. C. Rickard. The shirt-sleeved, collarless clerks would have been quick to dub him a dandy were it not for a page of his history that was puzzling them. He had held a chair of engineering in some eastern city. He had resigned, the wind-tossed page said, to go on the road as a salesman. His rapid promotion had been spectacular; the last move, a few years ago, to fill an office position in Tucson. The summons had found him on the west coast of Mexico, where the Overland Pacific was pushing its tracks.

"You can wait here," suggested the clerk, looking covertly at the shoes of the man who a few years before had been shoveling coal on a Wyoming engine. "Mr. Marshall said to wait."

"Ribbons, instead of shoe laces!" carped the human machine that must ever write letters which other men sign. "And a blue pin to match his tie! I call that going some!"

It would never have occurred to Rickard, had he thought about it at all that morning as he knotted his tie of dark, brilliant blue silk, that the selection of his lapis pin was a choice; it was an inevitable result, an instinctive discretion of his fingers. It warped, however, the suspended judgment of Marshall's men, who had never seen him shoveling coal, disfigured by a denim jumper. They did not know that they themselves were slovens, ruined by the climate that dulls vanity and wilts collars.

"Give him a year to change some of his fine habits!" wagered Smythe, the stoop-shouldered clerk, as the door of the inner office closed.

"To change his habits less!" amended the office wit. And then they fell to speculating what Marshall was going to do with him. What pawn was he in the game that everyone in Tucson followed with eager self-interested concern? Marshall's was the controlling hand in Arizona politics; the maker of governors, the arbiter of big corporations; president of a half-dozen railroads. Not a move of his on the board that escaped notice.

On the other side of the door Rickard was echoing the office question. This play job, where did it lead to? He had liked his work, under Stratton. There had been some pretty problems to meet—what did Marshall mean to do with him?

The note had set the appointment for nine. Rickard glanced at his watch and took out his Engineering Review. It would be ten before that door opened on Tod Marshall!

He knew that, on the road, Marshall's work began at dawn. "A man won't break from overwork or rust from underwork if he follows the example of the sun," Rickard had often heard him expound his favorite theory. "It is only the players, the sybarites, who can afford to pervert the arrangement nature intended for us." But in Tucson, controlled by the wifely solicitude of his Claudia, he was coerced into a regular perversion. His office never saw him until the morning was half gone.

A half-hour later Rickard finished

reading a report on the diversion of a great western river. The name of Thomas Hardin had sent him off on a tangent of memory. The Thomas Hardin whose efforts to bring water to the desert of the Colorado had been so spectacularly unsuccessful was the Tom Hardin he had known! The sister had told him so, the girl with the odd bronze eyes; opal matrix they were, with glints of gold, or was it green? She herself was as unlike the raw boor of his memory as a mountain lily is like the coarse rock of its background. Even a half-sister to Hardin, as Marshall, their host at dinner the week before, had explained it—no, even that did not explain it. That any of the Hardin blood should be shared by the veins of that girl, why it was incredible! The name "Hardin" suggested crudity, loud-mouthed bragging; conceit. He could understand the failure of the river project since the sister had assured him that it was the same Tom Hardin who had gone to college at Lawrence;

"Perhaps as the work unrolls, as I see more of what he wants of me, why he wants me, I may like it, I may get to shout for Tucson!" It was impossible enough to smile over! Child's work, compared to Mexico.

The distinction of serving Marshall well certainly had its drawbacks. He wanted to sweep on. Whether he had a definite terminal, a concrete goal had he ever stopped to think? Specialization had always a fascination for him. It was that which had thrown him out of his instructorship into the firebox of a western engine It had governed his course at college—to know one thing well, and then to prove that he knew it well! Contented in the Mexican barracks, here he was chafing, restive, after a few weeks of Tucson. For what was he getting here? Adding what scrap of experience to the rounding of his profession?

Retrospectively engineering could hardly be said to be the work of his choice. Rather had it appeared to choose him. From boyhood engineers had always been, to him, the soldiers of modern civilization. To conquer and subdue mountains, to shackle wild rivers, to suspend trestles over dizzy heights, to throw the tracks of an advancing civilization along a newly blazed trail, there would always be a thrill in it for him. It had changed the best quarterback of his high school into the primmest of students at college. Only for a short time had he let his vanity sidetrack him, when the honor of teaching what he had learned stopped his own progress. A rut!—He remembered the day when it had burst on him, the realization of the rut he was in. He could see his Lawrence schoolroom, could see yet the face under the red-haired mop belonging to Jerry Matson—queer he remembered the name after all those years! He could picture the look of consternation when he threw down his book and announced his desertion.

He had handed in his resignation the next day. A month later and he was shoveling coal on the steep grades of Wyoming.

"Marshall keeps his men with him!" The engineer's glance traveled around the fleckless office. A stranger to Marshall would get a wrong idea of the man who worked in it! Those precise files, the desk, orderly and polished, the gleaming linoleum—and then the man who made the negro janitor's life a proud burden! His clothes always crumpled—spots, too, unless his Claudia had had a chance at them! Black string tie askew, all the outward visible signs of the southern gentleman of assured ancestry. Not even a valet would ever keep Tod Marshall up to the standard of that office. What did he have servants for, he had demanded of Rickard, if it were not to jump after him, picking up the loose ends he dropped?

Curious thing, magnetism. That man's step on the stair, and every man-jack of them would jump to attention, from Ben, the colored janitor, who would not swap his post for a sinecure so long as Tod Mashall's one lung kept him in Arizona, to Smythe, the stoop-shouldered clerk, who had followed Marshall's cough from San Francisco. It was said in Arizona—he himself had met the statement in Tucson—that any man who had ever worked for Tod Marshall would rather be warmed by the reflection of his greatness than be given posts of personal distinction.

Was it office routine Marshall intended him for? He admired without stint Tod Marshall, but he preferred to work by the side of the other kind, the strong men, without physical handicap, the men who take risks, the men who live the life of soldiers. That was the life he wanted. He would wait long enough to get Marshall's intention, and then, if it meant—this! he would break loose. He would go back to the front where he belonged—back to the firing line.

As the hands of the round clock in the outer office were pointing to ten the door opened and Marshall entered. His clothes, of indefinite blackish hue, would have disgraced an eastern man. His string tie had a starboard list, and his hat was ready for a rummage sale. But few would have looked at his clothes. The latent energy of the dynamic spirit that would frequently turn that quiet office into a maelstrom gleamed in those Indian-black eyes. Beneath the shabby cloth one suspected the daily polished skin; under the old slouch hat was the mouth of purpose, the lips that no woman, even his Claudia, had kissed without the thrill of fear.

A Bit of Oratory.

Marshall threw his hat on a chair, the morning paper on his desk. He aimed his burned-out cigar at the nearest cuspidor, but it fell foul, the ashes scattering over Sam's lately scoured linoleum. Instantly there was appearance of settled disorder. Marshall emptied his pockets of loose papers, spreading them out on his flat-top desk.

"Sit down!"

"I shall not see anyone," the chief announced. "I don't want to be interrupted. Take these to Smythe."

His eyes followed the shutting of the door, then turned square upon Rickard. "I need you. It's a h—l of a mess!"

The engineer wanted to know what kind of a "mess" it was.

"That river. It's running away from them. I'm going to send you down to stop it."

"Yes." Queer coincidence, reading that report just now! "I've not been there. But the engineering papers used to get to me in Mexico. I've read all the reports."

His superior's question was uncharacteristically superfluous. Who had not read with thrilled nerves of that wild river which men had been trying to put under work harness? Who, even among the stay-at-homes, had not followed the newspaper stories of the failure to make a meek servant and water carrier of the Colorado, that wild steed of mountain and desert! What engineer, no matter how remote, would not "follow" that spectacular struggle between men and Titans?

"Going to send me to Salton?" he inquired. The railroad had been kept jumping to keep its feet dry. His job to be by that inland sea which last year had been desert!

"No. Brainerd is there. He can manage the tracks. I am going to send you down to the break."

The break—where those Hardins were—how in thunder was he going to get out of that, and save his skin? Marshall liked his own way—

"Who's in charge there?" Rickard was only gaining time. He thought he knew the name he would hear Marshall's first word surprised him.

"No one. Up to a few months ago it was Hardin, Tom Hardin. He was general manager of the company. He was allowed to resign, to save his face, as the Chinese say. I may tell you that it was a case of firing. He'd made a terrible fluke down there."

"I know," murmured Rickard. It was growing more difficult, more distasteful. If Marshall wanted him to supplant Hardin! It had been incredible, that man's folly! Reckless gambling, nothing else. Make a cut in the banks of a wild river, without putting in head gates to control it; a child would guess better! It was a problem now, all right; the writer of the report he'd just read wasn't the only one who was prophesying failure. Let the river cut back, and the government works at Laguna would be useless; a pickle Hardin had made.

Still to gain time he suggested that Marshall tell him the situation. "I've followed only the engineering side of it. I don't know the relationship of the two companies."

"Where the railroad came in? The inside of that story? I'm responsible—I guaranteed to Faraday the closing of that break. There was a big district to save, a district that the railroad tapped—but I'll tell you that later." He was leisurely puffing blue, perfectly formed rings into the air, his eyes admiring them.

"Perhaps you've heard how Estrada, the general, took a party of men into the desert to sell a mine he owned. After the deal was made he decided to let it slip. He'd found something bigger to do, more to his liking than the sale of a mine. Estrada was a big man, a great man. He had the idea Powell and others had, of turn-

Stop Profiteering in Farm Loans

DO NOT PAY MORE

Profiteering in farm loans is prevalent. If any loan agent tries to induce you to take a loan at a higher rate, or at 5½ per cent and a big commission, he is not working for your interest, but for a big commission for himself.

The Federal Land Bank of Omaha has abundant funds at all times to close loans. Its own attorneys examine titles without expense to the borrower. Its executive committee at Omaha passes promptly on all applications and loans are closed without red tape or delay.

Federal Farm Loan Bonds are sold at a low rate of interest in the best money markets of the world and the money is loaned to farmers at actual cost. All net earnings of the Land Bank are returned to borrowing stockholders.

You can get the best terms and lowest rate from the Land Bank. You are guaranteed against an increase in the rate and if a lower rate is established you can have the lower rate after five years.

We have loaned $200,000 for the Federal Land Bank in a few months through the National Farm Loan Association. Give us your application now and we will give you prompt service.

WILBERT NAY DOING NICELY

Camp Rarita,n, Metuchen, N. J.
Jan. 21, 1919.

H. D. Leggett, Ord.

Dear Sir:—I received the copy of the Quiz you sent me and will say that I was certainly pleased to get it, for I always like to get any home news. So in return I think I shall drop you a few lines to give you a little idea of what I've been doing since I left Ord August 15th and will say that I haven't been home since.

I spent the first 2½ months in Lincoln, Nebr., in the special training for enlisted men. I was in the mechanical branch, and also got the required amount of exercise and drilling.

After being there about six weeks I was taken down with the flu which knocked about 25 pounds off of me and kept me in bed about two weeks and I can say this much I certainly sympathize with anyone attacked with the flu and am sorry to hear that it still continues so bad in Ord and vicinity.

When I was strong enough to travel I was transferred to Camp Raritan, N. J. A great many of the boys were at the same time transferred to Allentown, Pa.

This is a yonug camp, but it is to be a permanent camp, and it is amazing how rapidly it is building up. This is the second largest arsenal in the U. S. It has about 100 magazines about 50 x 200 feet all of which are nearly full of ammunition, etc., and a great many more magazines are under construction at the present time. When I first landed here I was put into the 3rd school Co. as were the other boys who came from Lincoln. We got so much drill and exercise each day and also went to school, I was in the tractor department studying operation and construction of the Holt caterpillar.

This is an ordnance camp so every one wears the black and red hat cord with the exception of perhaps a few who wear the blue cord who are in the guard company, also a few in the medical corps.

This was also officers' training camp. A fellow's arm sure gets tired around here, saluting all those fellows with leather puttees and bars. Since the armistice was signed the fellows don't seem to take so much interest in their work, and everyone is getting disgusted and wants to get back home again.

About six weeks ago the school companies were all broken up and put into the supply company, drill was stopped then and almost everyone was sent to the magazines or to the docks to juggle boxes of ammunition and explosives. I'm suhe getting to be some stevedore.

We had all kinds of hopes of getting discharged before Christmas but I'm still here, and don't know when I'll get out. But I've certainly enjoyed myself since I've been here. The trip here was a splendid one and I've had the opportunity of seeing some great sights and large cities, such as New York, Newark, N. J., and many others, when I go out on pass. We get liberty every night except Monday and Friday. Then we get Saturday and Sunday off and Christmas I had five days which I spent very enjoyably in New York city.

I saw the American fleet, was aboard battleships. I was also aboard the big vessel Leviathan when it was at Hoboken, N. J.

The letter written by Clate Gilroy describes New York practically as I saw it. Talk about people, that's where you see them.

Hoping to see rd again in the near future after an absence of almost six months. With regards to all,

FRANK PERLINSKI WRITES

Boulogne, France, Dec. 26, 1918.

My dear brother and all:

Christmas is over and am feeling fine, was in Paris all day and part of the night and I enjoyed myself fine. Had a big dinner and supper at the Y. M. C. A., it was all free. I never enjoyed myself as much as I have and not spent any money. Say, you can take the service flag down, for I am in the M. P. I will be on duty in Paris maybe next week. My old company B has gone home but I wanted to see Paris so the only way I could see it is to join the M. P. so I may be in France for a long time yet, but I like it and am glad to stay here.

I was thinking of you all when I was at the Y and wondering whether you enjoyed yourselves as much as I have. Maybe some of you may not be alive for all I know; I haven't heard from you yet and don't know whether you have heard from me or not. I have written five or six times and I got two of the letters back, so I hope that you got a word from me. I may have more time to write now, as it was before I always was so far from any Y or place to write. We are in barracks now and have real beds. We sleep as we did when we were at home.

Paris is some nice place but I have seen nicer places in good old U. S. A. Am learning French fast but it don't seem like talk. Oh, I have so much to say and don't know what to say first, but it would make a book by the time I'd tell it all so I'll wait till I get back. It may be a long time yet, but I haven't been in a better place since I have been in the army. Will close with love to all,

CORP. RICHARDSON WRITES

Schenkelberg, Germany, Dec. 28.

Mr. Roy McGee.

Dear Friend Roy:—Will try and answer your letter which I received almost two months ago. The last week or so is the first chance I have had to write for about two months and a half.

Well, Roy, I was in the front line and going over the top when the finish came. We had advanced about ½ mile when a rumor came up from the rear with an order to stop and hold where we were, that the armistice would be on at 11 o'clock and it was than about ten. When 11 o'clock came our bugle sounded 'cease firing' at the same time across in the Boche lines we heard their bugle blowing. Believe me we were some happy bunch. I felt so glad that I threw my helmet away, but didn't have anything else to wear so had to go and get it again.

Our division was chosen as one of the divisions to follow up the Germans' retreat. We hiked for over 3 weeks, hiked along the border of Belguim through the state of Luxemberg then into Germany, crossed the Sa??? river into Germany Dec. 1 at 7 o'clock and the Rhine Dec. 13th at 8 o'clock, making history I guess, ha, ha.

Well, Roy, the Germans treat us American soldiers like we were the best friends they ever had. We are billeted in a small village here except those who are on outpost. They had a dance here in town last night, Americans and Germans, all dancing together and everybody seemed to be having the best kind of a time.

I suppose you had a good time Christmas. Here is hoping you did any way. I was well and able to eat my three meals and happy with the thought that next Christmas I would be home again if nothing happens.

Oh, yes, I received a letter from home some time ago, Lee Leonard and Mabel had had the flu but were all o. k. again.

Well, I must close for this time, hoping this will find you and yours well and happy. Oh, yes I was on the Muese sector when the big day came.

Your friend,
