

"VIRTUOUS WIVES" - at the Gem Wednesday

Section 1 THE OMAHA QUIN Section 1

ESTABLISHED AT L. C. 1882 TWO DOLLARS PER YEAR THE OMAHA QUIN THURSDAY, APRIL 3, 1919. VOLUME 38, NUMBER 1

THE FARMER BANK

The above was the best name for the new bank. The meeting of those in the opera house last night.

For some time there has been talk of a bank to be started, financed and controlled by the farmers, and some weeks ago a committee was selected to make a preliminary canvass to determine whether there were enough farmers interested who would subscribe for the stock. Members of the committee were soon convinced that there was a demand among the farmers for a bank for those who were out of their quota of stock pledged before they got over their territory. With this encouragement arrangements were made to hold a meeting Thursday of last week when final arrangements were made and directors elected.

Those elected as directors of the new bank are W. J. Hather, J. C. Meese, E. S. Blair, M. J. Cushing, D. E. Strong, Frank Krahulek and Mott Rathbun. Mr. Meese was selected temporary president of the new institution. Manager J. Wisda of the Farmers Grain & Supply Co., is proceeding with the taking of the stock payments as rapidly as possible and the papers are already ready to ask for the charter of the new institution. The question of attempting to buy out one of the established banks was talked over and it was the sense of the meeting that it would be better to buy one of them if it could be bought right. Just what that means however, we are not able to say. Until directors have a meeting we will not know who the officers of the Farmers Bank will be but "Jimmie" Wisda seems to be slated for the management of the institution and his ability to handle it is not questioned by anyone.

The Farmers Bank will be chartered for 99 years and the stock which any family may hold will be limited to $1000. The new proposed law to make a bank operate a couple of years before it may take advantage of the depositors guarantee law is not worrying the stockholders of the proposed new institution in the least. They figure that with as many stockholders as they will have and as much wealth as there will be back of the institution, it will be easy to secure deposits. While the new financial institution will be incorporated for a hundred thousand dollars it is only proposed to have a paid-up capital of seventy-five thousand dollars to start with. It is expected that the new institution will open for business about June 1 though it may be somewhat later. At this time it is not known where suitable banking rooms can be had. The leaders of the movement have been figuring with the Odd Fellows and there is a possibility that that order will build and lease the corner of their building to the new bank. There is a possibility that a building large enough to accommodate both the bank and the Farmers store may be put up but nothing has been decided upon at this time.

County Attorney Hardenbrook is attorney for the new bank and he is out of town as this article is being written so we are unable to learn just what progress is being made with the organization or how soon the charter will be asked for.

A LETTER FROM "BILL" TIMM

William Timm writes us this week from Long Beach, California, to have the Quiz sent to him. When he left Ord he didn't know where he would be for some time and since he bought a grocery and settled down at Long Beach, he says there has been something lacking and he has just figured out that it is the Quiz and from now on he will have it regularly. In his letter "Bill" says:

"Now Mr. Leggett, we had a lovely trip out here. The only regret we had was that we got through too soon. We surely had a grand trip, camping out after we got out of the snow. This is a wonderful country. I haven't had to carry in any coal nor carry out any letters this winter; nor have I seen any coal."

We haven't seen one day this winter that we couldn't go out doors without a coat on, and I haven't seen my overcoat since I left Nebraska.

We are running a grocery store and like it very much, have a good business and the people here are very nice to do business with.

Our health is improving some and we all have a splendid appetite and we have plenty of good things to eat, garden sass all winter. It doesn't seem like winter to us. We live within a block of the ocean and can see the large boats as they pass along from our window. It would do you good to take a dip in the big pond as we go in most every day.

We expect to go camping a good deal this summer as the mountains are so close. Fishing is fine all around here and climate till you can't rest. Come out and have a good time once in your life.

No more cold winter for me. Will be looking forward to getting the Quiz on time.

With regards to you and Ord people,
WM. TIMM.

ARTHUR J. HONNOLD DEAD

Mrs. Amanda Ward has handed us a clipping from a Monroe, (Ohio) paper telling of the death of her brother Arthur J. Honnold there early in March, aged eighty years. Deceased visited here several times and was known by many Valley county people. T. C. Honnold of Oklahoma another brother formerly lived here also. There were twelve children in the family of which Mrs. Ward was one and now there are but five of them left.

CHARLEY LEONARD IN OMAHA

C. H. Leonard, farmer and stock-raiser of Ord, Neb., brought a shipment of hogs to market Tuesday.

Mr. Leonard who has lived around Ord for 32 years, sees a great many changes there. When he came to Ord there were no telephones or automobiles and he had to haul stuff many miles to a railroad. "I was in Omaha about forty years ago," said Mr. Leonard, "and what are Tenth and Farnum streets now? Nothing but dirt roads then, and when it rained the mud got so deep that a fellow needed waders."

"Speaking of mud," said Mr. Leonard, "there's quite a lot of it around Ord section, but if this warm weather keeps up it won't be long before it dries up and we can start our spring plowing."

According to Mr. Leonard, there are a good many hogs in Valley county yet but shipments will start now, as there is no trouble in getting cars.—Daily News.

THE NEXT MAYOR OF ORD

We are glad this week to print a good picture of Wencel Misko, the next mayor of Ord. It is not often that both political parties can agree upon a man for so important an office as mayor. Anyone who has the idea that Mr. Misko wanted to be mayor, is badly mistaken for he didn't want the office, the salary or the grief work to be connected with it, and he did not want anything possible to keep off the ticket and only consented to run when assured that he would be elected without opposition.

It is quite an honor, after all, for a man to have the confidence of his fellow citizens to the extent that he can be chosen to so important an office without opposition. It means that the people of Ord believe that Wencel Misko will handle the affairs of the city in the same careful manner that has made a signal success in his own business. If he does that there can be no fault found. That he will be a progressive mayor there can be no doubt.

He believes in fixing up his own property and in keeping it in the best of repair. If there are improvements he believes in having them and so he is going to believe in having municipal improvements if it is possible for the city to buy them. It is presumed that he will make some mistakes. He will admit that he has made mistakes in his own business and he will agree to pay a man who never makes a mistake, a bigger salary than any Ord man now is drawing, to work for him, so when Mr. Misko is mayor of Ord, let us be sure, reasonably sure, that he has made a mistake before we condemn him. He has lived and done business in Ord for about thirty years. All of his interests are here and he expects to make Ord his home as long as he lives, and it is reasonable that he is going to conduct the business of the city to the very best of his ability.

DR. HALDEMAN WRITES THE QUIZ

The following letter has been received by the Quiz reporter from Dr. Haldeman at Berkeley California. It will be of interest to friends of the Haldeman and Newbecker families. It was written March 25th.

George Newbecker and son Dr. Cecil Newbecker arrived yesterday afternoon. I met them at the depot and while standing in front of the Pullman, was surprised to hear a voice calling "Hello Doc" and looking up saw Otto Murschell standing in the vestibule. I just had time to rush and shake hands with him before the train pulled out for the Oakland Mole.

George stood the trip finely and I took him a long auto ride through Oakland and Berkeley today. Cecil left for Los Angeles this evening as he was very anxious to get back to his work in the county hospital, as he has a number of interesting cases to look after.

Dr. Minerva Newbecker and Mrs. Haldeman attended a meeting of the Ebell Womens club this afternoon, at their beautiful club building in Oakland. This is one of the leading Womens clubs in the east bay region. The ladies have been attending a number of P. E. O. meetings lately, and Mrs. Haldeman took Mrs. D. C. Bell along as a guest last week.

Keene is very much interested in his college work and is doing well. I find it is getting quite late and must close.

With kindest regards, I remain Yours very truly, F. D. Haldeman.

MARRIED

Mr. James L. Bleach and Miss Florence M. Jeffrie of Burwell, Nebraska, were married at the Methodist parsonage by Rev. E. E. Hosman last Wednesday morning. Mr. and Mrs. Bleach will make their home at Burwell.

C. C. HAUGHT MOVES TO TOWN

Last week we announced that C. C. Haught had sold his farm just east of Ord and that he would give possession next spring. At that time he expected to stay on the place another year but later he rented the place for this year to Fred Clark and will move to town after holding a cleanup sale. He has selected Tuesday, April 8, as his sale date and the Quiz made bills for him and is advertising the sale this week. With a nice bunch of good horses, half a hundred cattle and a full line of machinery and other things Mr. Haught will have a big sale. See his ad this week and remember his sale date and the Quiz made bills for him and is advertising the sale this week. It will be clerked by the Ord State Bank.

WICKMAN COMING TO ORD

The F. F. Wickman family are arranging to move to Ord in a few days as soon as a suitable home can be found. The deal was closed last Friday evening by which Mr. Wickman becomes the owner of the Johnson drug store and we understand that Dr. Wickes is associated with him in the deal. Mr. Wickman however will have the management of the business. His family consists of himself, wife and one little girl. The present plan is to keep Will Ramsey as an employee in the store. Mr. Wickman and his father-in-law, Mr. Alexander of Farwell were in Ord Sunday making arrangements for the moving of the Wickmans to Ord. At the present time Mr. Johnson says he doesn't know what he will do.

IRA LINDSAY HURT

Last Saturday while Ira Lindsay was helping to set up machinery at the Rogers implement house he got quite badly hurt. He was under a moving spreader at the time, screwing an oil cup into the machine, which was set on boxes. The machine tipped forward doubling Ira up under it and the result was a badly twisted back. His back was sore from rheumatism with which he had been suffering for several days and the treatment administered by the spreader didn't help it any. He was taken to the Eastburn home and has been laid up this week though he expects to go to work the last of the week. Mr. Lindsay is working at well and windmill repairing and was just helping them out for a few days at the implement shop.

ARCADIA WOMEN INTERESTED

Over at Arcadia Tuesday the ladies took an interest in politics. They wanted to have the pool halls ousted but found that the trustees were in favor of keeping them. They organized and wrote in the names of three trustees who they thought would be the pool halls and elected all of them. The regularly nominated candidates were Fred Strathee, Warren Pickett and C. W. Bulger. Those elected by writing in the names were M. Blakeslee, Albert Russell and J. H. Hollingshead. It is said there may be a contest as Blakeslee won over Pickett by only a couple of votes and the friends of Pickett are saying that a couple of aliens and three non-resident school ma'ams voted who had no right to vote. Two of them were Ord residents according to the pool hall advocates. There are two holdover members in the pool halls, and if the contest resulted in seating Pickett the pool hall men would have another lease of life, at least for a year. Whether the ones in favor of retaining the pool halls are enough interested to contest is a question. And if they do and the matter gets into the courts, whether they could get a decision before the end of the year is another matter worth considering before any great amount of money is spent. As a general proposition these matters cause more expense and hard feelings than the benefit received will warrant.

If the ladies in their enthusiasm, actually voted the election laws against the pool halls, but it was through not understanding the laws rather than because they wanted to do so. They have not had much voice in civic affairs and probably some of them are sick and tired of waiting till midnight for hubby to come home from the pool hall and they should not be censured too harshly.

ARRANGING FOR FINE OFFICES

Dr. Wickes has contracted for a suite of office rooms in the old First National bank building and they will be prepared as rapidly as possible. The arrangements contemplate radical changes and when the work is completed the Dr. will have a fine location. He tells us that his X-ray machine is the finest this side of Omaha and it is his plan to have his office as modern as it is possible to make it.

NIGHT WATCHMAN RESIGNS

Jonie Levil has handed in his resignation to take effect tonight when the council meets and his place is being asked for by Roy Pardee, recently returned soldier boy. The business men are signing Roy's petition liberally and so far the Quiz knows there is no other applicant for the place. The Levil family will go to Long Beach, Utah adding another good Ord family to the rapidly growing Ord colony in that city. Jonie says his brother-in-law, Will Timm, has got something lined up for him out there for a time while he is looking around and locating some business that will suit him.

MRS HASKELL CALLED TO OMAHA

Last Friday morning Mrs. W. W. Haskell went down to Omaha in response to a message that both her son John and his wife were ill with the flu. She found John better but Ruth, his wife, had a light attack of pneumonia but later reports said she was better and getting along fine.

COUNTY ASSESSORS BUSY

County Assessor Bair called his precinct assessors in Tuesday to get their supplies and instructions and most of them were on hand. Those from the south and west part of the county didn't come because of rains which made the roads bad. Most of them came yesterday and work is starting in earnest on the assessing this week.

There is more system about this work this year than ever before and if instructions are followed we will get a better and more fair valuation than ever before. In January when the county assessors met in state convention a schedule as a basis for assessing was adopted and the precinct assessors over the state have been furnished with this list and instructed to follow it.

The instructions are to take ten percent off all book accounts. Shares of stock are to be assessed according to value and it is up to the assessor to say what the stocks are worth. All jewelry and gold and silver plated ware is to be assessed at twenty percent less than present price of the article new and the assessor has got to be well posted in jewelry prices to perform the duties of his office. The same rule applies to diamonds and other stones. Pianos are to be assessed at twenty to forty per cent off the new price and office and store fixtures are the same. All household furniture and furnishings are to be assessed at from 25 to 50 per cent off the present new price of the articles according to amount used. Automobiles are to be assessed at 15 per cent off the retail price for new cars, 25 per cent off on cars used a year, 30 per cent off on cars used two years, 40 per cent off on cars used three years, 50 per cent off on cars used four years and 50 per cent off on cars used five years. Probably after they have been used six years they won't be assessed. Agricultural and farm implements are to be assessed at 30 to 70 per cent off the present new price, according to amount they have been used. Hogs are to be assessed at $2.00 per hundred less than the market price April 1st. The present market price is $19.00, so the assessed value will have to be about $17.00 per hundred and the only chance to fudge is on the weight. The same rule applies to fat cattle in the yard and the schedule fixes the values so the assessor can get a fair valuation if he is a type of present worth of all kinds of property.

THE ORD CITY ELECTION

It was pretty well demonstrated Tuesday that the ladies of Ord don't care to vote, as only a few exercised their prerogative. The election went off quietly. There was a little contest on school board and also on council man. In the last ward Dan Huff defeated Will McLain by two votes and Muttter was reelected in the 2nd ward over A. Anderson, getting 10 majority. Dr. McGinnis was given a second term in the 3rd ward, defeating his opponent, J. B. Nay by a good majority. In every instance the defeated candidate seems to be as pleased at the result as the man elected.

Bert Cushing and E. C. James were elected members of the school board defeating Vopat and Wheeler, and Dr. Shepard was chosen again as member of the park board. His opponent, Irl D. Tolen, got out and worked all day for Shepard. R. W. Gass defeated Charley Nelson for city engineer. The city officers after May 1 will be:

Wencel Misko, Mayor.
Harold Hallen, City Clerk.
William Heuck, Treasurer.
H. Gudmundsen, Police Judge.
R. W. Gass, Engineer.
W. A. Anderson, A. M. Muttter and C. Shepard, Park Board.
W. L. Muttter, E. Huff, Orrin Muttter, Ed Johnson, Dr. McGinnis and L. F. Bly, Councilmen.
Alvin Blessing, Dr. Taylor, E. C. James, Bert Cushing, A. M. Daniels and Orrin Muttter members of School Board.

SOCIAL GREAT SUCCESS

The shadow social and program given by Martha Nass in the Rogers district, was a complete success.

The attendance was heavy and the program was the best ever rendered in this part of the country.

Col. Clem Meyers sold the shadows at a rapid and high priced gate—with much humor and a good talk thrown in. Shadows brought $62.25.

MARRIED

Mr. Don Albert Harmon and Miss Maude G. Clark were united in marriage last Saturday by Rev. E. E. Hosman at the parsonage. Mr. Elijah Parker and Miss Ellen Nelson accompanied them.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Harmon are well known to the people of our community. They will make their home in the community where they have lived. Their many friends join in hearty congratulations and well wishes to them.

MADDOX GOES TO SCOTIA

The Jack Maddox family are moving to Scotia where they have bought the Wickes drug store. Jack will have to stay in Ord for a time until he makes some disposition of his barber shop and Mrs. Maddox will look after the store interests.

THE RINGSDORF COMPANY

The next number of the lecture course promises to be the best one of the entire season. It is the Lillian Ringsdorf Concert Co. and will be at the Methodist church next Monday evening, April 8th. Better arrange for your tickets at once. The Ringsdorf company is one of the best on the road and will sure please you.

OTIS HUGHES BADLY HURT

Last Sunday Otis Hughes got a jolt that he will remember as long as he lives. He lives just east of the bridge on the canyon road in the south part of town but he has his yards in the pasture half a mile or more south of the house. Sunday he rode out to the corral to care for his stock. He was riding a broncho and as he went through a gate the left hand stirrup was rubbed off. While in the yard an old mare that he had owned for a long time got in the way and he told her to move and perhaps slapped her, but he is not sure on that point. At any rate she playfully kicked at him, striking him full in the mouth. As she kicked he yelled at her but it was too late for the animal to change her mind, and his mouth was open when her foot struck. His upper teeth were knocked out and the jaw appears to be badly broken or crushed. It was so badly swollen when Dr. Miller got to him it was impossible to tell the full extent of the damage. The swelling is going down as this is written and it is expected that a careful examination can be made today and whatever is necessary, done to put his face in shape again.

Otis says he was knocked down by the blow but at once got up and finding he was badly hurt he started for the house. He had tied his broncho to the fence and went and got him and evidently had some trouble mounting for his brother found where he had worried along the fence for some distance trying to get on. The stirrup on the left side being off and the horse not being used to being mounted from the other side Otis had to swing himself on from the fence which he was finally able to do. He then rode home, tied his horse to the fence, walked into the house and showed that he was hurt and then became unconscious all in from the loss of blood. Pain and exertion no doubt he will recover rapidly but it will be a long time before his mouth and face will be well.

HEAR THE MATTHEWS LECTURE

We present this week a very good picture of our lecturer for Sunday evening.

Mr. Jack Matthews of Lincoln, who will speak at the Methodist church. Mr. Matthews spent several months in Red Cross work in the war zone, in a responsible position which gave him an opportunity to see and know much of what was going on and born this knowledge to the people of Lincoln. Mr. Matthews is very interesting. He doesn't call it a lecture but says he gives a talk. He is not given to oratory but calls a spade a spade and tells his story so that all can understand it. Editor Webster of St. Paul, said in his paper, after hearing Mr. Matthews, that it was the best and most interesting talk on the subject that he had heard. Others who have heard him, speak in equally high terms, so we feel sure you will enjoy this lecture Sunday evening. There is no charge but a collection will be taken to pay the expenses of the speaker. The meeting is a union service of the Ord churches so you will want to be on hand if you want a good seat. The fact that the speaker was at one time a resident of Ord adds interest to the occasion. At present he is in the undertaking business at Lincoln, being a member of one of the large firms of that city. He is a particular friend of Mrs. Chapman, our reporter and will be her guest while in Ord.

WALLACE JOHNSON HAS RELAPSE

Word comes to us this morning that Wallace Johnson is seriously ill again. He attended the funeral of his mother and sister yesterday and is said to have developed pneumonia in the night. Doctor and nurse were called during the night and relatives who had stayed in town, expecting to go home this morning, were notified to remain. At the hour of going to press he was said to be resting easier but earlier it was stated that one lung was badly congested and that his people and attendants were much alarmed about his condition.

HANSEN HAS SMALL FIRE

Monday afternoon fire broke out in the back room of the Henry Hansen establishment, doing considerable damage to machinery, repairs and smaller things before it was put out. Mr. Hansen don't know how it got started and says his loss is six or seven hundred dollars with no insurance. There was no damage in the store proper.

E. W. Gruber was a Grand Island passenger yesterday

MOTHER AND DAUGHTER DIE

We have been called upon to chronicle many deaths in the past few months. In some cases the circumstances seemed more sad than in others but the death of Mrs. N. E. Johnson and her daughter Mrs. Ralph Harris at almost the same time seems more terrible than any of the other cases because of the continued trouble this good family has had. It was but a few months ago that Mrs. Johnson had a terrible sickness and Ralph Harris got kicked and for weeks his life was almost despaired of and he has barely recovered his normal health. Mr. Johnson has been far from well since having the flu a few weeks ago and both Mr. Harris and the son, Wallace Johnson have been critically ill in recent days.

Alice Margaret Gregg was born near East Nodaway, Iowa, April 29, 1870, and died at the home north of Ord Saturday morning, March 29, aged 48 years and 11 months. She was married to N. E. Johnson on the 26th of September, 1888. They made their home at Genoa until 1891 when they came to Valley county and this has been their home since, on the farm all the time except a few months that they lived in Ord. Three children were born to them: Bethene, Helen and Wallace. Mr. Johnson and Helen and Wallace are now left of the immediate family. The great mother, Mrs. Helen Gregg, of Danville, Iowa, is also here. There are two brothers, William Gregg of Ord and Archie Gregg of Lincoln, Illinois, and three sisters: Mrs. Blanche Walker of La Porte, Iowa; Mrs. John Atkins of Genoa, and Mrs. Esther Ballard of New London, Iowa. The last two ladies are here for the funeral and the other brother and sister were unable to come.

Bethene Johnson was born at Genoa, Nebraska, November 6, 1892, and died at the home of her father Tuesday, April 1, 1919, aged 26 years, 4 months and 25 days. She became the wife of Ralph Harris on September 30, 1913. One child, a little girl two years old, is left with the father, to mourn the going of the young mother.

Both Mrs. Johnson and her daughter Mrs. Harris, were loved by all who knew them for they both had especially pleasing personalities. Mrs. Johnson belonged to the P. E. O. and also belonged to the Laurel Kensington club. Both ladies were members of the Presbyterian church and were active in church work. Rev. Davies, formerly their pastor, was called here to conduct the funeral and didn't know until he arrived that he was to have a double funeral, he supposed that Mrs. Johnson was the only one. He was of course greatly shocked. He performed the ceremony which made Bethene and Ralph Harris man and wife.

The funeral was held yesterday afternoon from the country home, with a short prayer at the house and the main service at the cemetery, interment being made in the Ord cemetery. During the illness at the Johnson home the neighbors and friends could do to lighten the burden of the family and they feel deeply grateful for the kindnesses rendered and for the beautiful floral offerings.

NEW FARMER STORE MANAGER

We understand that J. C. Wisda, manager of the Farmers Grain & Supply Co. business, has been offered the cashiership of the new bank and he has been hesitating about whether he can assume more duties. Now he will doubtless feel free to take the new position and turn a part of the detail of his present position over to Wisda, Jr., born this forenoon. Mr. and Mrs. Wisda, Mother and babe are said to be doing fine and Jim is buying cigars for the boys and candy for the girls.

HOSMAN ELECTED SUPERINTENDENT

At a recent meeting of the Ord school board E. E. Hosman, of Rev. and Mrs. Hosman was elected superintendent of the Ord schools for the next two years. Lieutenant Hosman visited here some weeks ago and many of our people have met him and his wife. When he was released from service he was employed as superintendent at Spencer, Nebraska, where he now is. He will move to Ord during the summer vacation. Mr. Hosman is an able educator and comes to us most highly recommended and in coming to Ord he will feel from the start that he is coming among friends.

JOE WARWICK BADLY HURT

Last Saturday morning Joe Warwick was badly injured at his blacksmith shop. The accident happened when he got onto a stool to put a belt onto the big pulley on the line shaft in the back of the shop. He was reaching over the shaft and the belt which he was putting on, slipped off and caught his shirt sleeve, winding him around the shaft. He went once over the shaft but his weight prevented his going again. He yelled for help and the boys who were near him, stopped the engine at once. Harvey Swer was in an adjoining room and ran in time to grab the fly wheel on the shaft and stop it and help Mr. Warwick, who was still hanging head down by the clothes to the floor, and Dr. Barta was called, arriving in a few moments. Mr. Warwick was able to walk to the car after his wounds were dressed. Several ribs were broken directly over the heart and he suffered much for a few days but is able to be up and about and yesterday was at the shop walking up and back home. It will be some time before he will be able to resume his work however and he is feeling mighty lucky that he was not killed, or more seriously injured.

WE WILL HAVE MILK

Commencing Saturday morning we will have milk for sale in bottles. Come and get it or home your orders, Farmers Grain & Supply Co. 1-11

LAST THOUGHTS OF ROOSEVELT

TANGIBLE EVIDENCE OF WISH.

Theodore Roosevelt's last thoughts were of the great domestic issues of his country, issues whose determination will decide the weal or woe of the next generation. He saw in a united Republican party, just given a vote of confidence and a commission to formulate and carry into action policies of reconstruction, the guarantee of the prompt recognition and successful handling of these domestic problems.

Tangible evidence of this is a memorandum, the last pencilled thoughts of the late President. To Colonel George Harvey and the North American Review.

Facsimile of Last Memorandum of Colonel Roosevelt, Pencilled a Few Hours Before He Died.

view the country and the Republican party are indebted for the publication of this interesting document which carries a message from him "who, being dead, yet speaketh." In the leading article of the current number of the North American Review Colonel Harvey sets forth the vital import of this last pencilled notation of Mr. Roosevelt. He says:

"Mr. Roosevelt died the acknowledged leader of the great party into which he was born. His last written words, pencilled by his own hand a few hours before his death and addressed in the form of a memorandum for the brilliant young man for whose selection as Chairman of the National organization he was largely responsible, were these, as reproduced above in facsimile:

"Hays see him; he must go to Washington for 10 days; see Senate and House; prevent split on domestic policies."

"Here is evidenced as clearly as if the few words filled a volume Mr. Roosevelt's realization of both his responsibility and his obligation. The simple memorandum marked the inauguration of a definite party policy, to be carried through to a no less definite conclusion. It was more than a passing thought or a mere suggestion. It was a Message, signifying the need of immediate and unremitting vigilance in achieving complete unity of action in resolving domestic problems before attacking those of wider range soon to be thrust upon the country—a true soldier's call first to close the ranks.

"Nothing could be more characteristic or more clearly illustrative of the breadth of vision, the foresight, the directness in method and the painstaking attention of the man. Nothing, too, probably could have served his purpose better than that these words should have been his last. Difficult as it is to reconcile oneself to the decree of Divine Providence that the removal of that great patriot at this crucial moment was not untimely, we cannot but realize, as he would have been the first to acknowledge, that the last vestige of animosities which might have continued to impair his highest aspirations was buried with him, and thereby the perfect union which he so ardently desired against all things un-American was attained.

"Thus we find the Republican party resuming full legislative authority thoroughly united and invigorated by the peculiar confidence which so often carried it to victory in former years."

ROOSEVELT'S DEPARTING WORDS TO HIS COUNTRYMEN

Col. Roosevelt died about 4 o'clock on the morning of January 6. The previous evening at a great patriotic rally in the New York Hippodrome a message was read from him, written especially for the occasion. In it was this striking sentence:

"We have room for but one flag, the American flag, and this excludes the red flag, which symbolizes all wars against liberty and civilization just as much as it excludes any foreign flag of a nation to which we are hostile. . . . and we have room for but one soul loyalty, and that is loyalty to the American people."

LOCAL — PERSONAL

Meet me at Milford's.

On Tuesday morning F. M. Cushing was a passenger for Lincoln.

Mrs. Dr. Miller came down with a light case of flu the first of the week.

After spending last Monday in Ord Mrs. Frank Koupal of Burwell left last Tuesday for Kearney.

Mrs. Will Clark and little son from Colorado, were in Ord the first of the week. They came down from Burwell Monday morning.

This week Mrs. F. W. Hartington and son Francis returned to their home at Morris, Minn. after a three-weeks visit with the former's sister, Mrs. Tom McClatchey.

Last Monday Anna Novotny was at the depot with her sister Mrs. Hrdy and three children. The Hrdys were leaving for their new home at O'Neill. Mr. Hrdy had gone several days before with the car of goods. The Hrdy family came here from Montana several months ago and have been staying in the country visiting the Mike Novotny people and waiting until spring arrived when they expected to move to O'Neill.

On Monday evening Judge Hanna and Court Reporter Abbott came up from Grand Island, going up to Burwell in the evening. On the same train was E. P. Clements, A. Norman and E. J. Clements of Lincoln. They were all to be in attendance at a term of court.

On Sunday last Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Huff and Keo Moore were over to Ord from Sargent, and were guests at the Orrin Mutter home. The ladies are nieces of Mrs. Mutter. They came over in their auto going home in the evening.

The C. J. Dye family have been entertaining Mrs. Dye's sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Hataway from Oregon. Tuesday the company left for their home after a few days stop at Red Cloud. Mr. Hataway but lately returned from over sea service.

On last Thursday Eunice Stroup received word that her sister, Mrs. Fred Lyons and baby, were ill with diphtheria at their home in Lincoln. Mrs. Stroup is teaching in the country and could not well get a substitute. Miss Eunice went down the next morning and will stay until her sister is improved.

Mrs. Peter Mortensen was sick the greater portion of last week but upon hearing of the serious condition of Mrs. Ralph Harris, so soon after the death of the latter's mother, Mrs. Nels Johnson, Mrs. Mortensen went over on Monday evening and stayed until after Mrs. Harris passed away on Tuesday morning.

J. C. Work was entertaining a brother from Oklahoma. He was visiting at the other points in the state. The latter part of last week George Work accompanied by Alfred Wiegard, drove over to Spalding in the Work car and brought the Uncle over to Ord for a few days. He left Monday on the Union Pacific for his home.

Next Sunday will be the first day for our motor car. It will leave Grand Island at 7 a. m., arriving in Ord at 10:05 a. m. Leaving Ord at 1 p. m., arriving in Grand Island at 4 p. m. This will take the place of the Sunday passenger. During week days the Union Pacific passenger will run the same as formerly and the motor will run seven days a week.

During the greater portion of the winter Mrs. C. Fuson has been making her home with her daughter, Mrs. Joe Barta. In a few days she is looking for the arrival of her son Tom and wife so last Monday Mrs. Fuson moved to her own home. Later news from Tom is that he and his wife will soon have joined the lecture course the last number of which is to be given at Fowler, Colo. They are then coming to Ord for a few weeks, but they are afraid now that they will only be able to stay for a few days. Mrs. Fuson is very much disappointed, but still she is thankful that they are coming, if only for a short stay.

On Saturday Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Norris left for McCook, Nebraska.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Sutton drove over to Arcadia and back the latter part of last week.

A. L. Craig was a Saturday morning passenger for Kimball. The Craigs have land interests near that town.

Edna Smith of North Loup, was in Ord for a few days going back to her home on Saturday. She was a guest of Mrs. Frank Haught.

Mrs. Stanley Dworak was staying with Mavis the little daughter of Lawrence Bright and nursing her during a case of flu.

On Saturday afternoon Will Detweiler went down to Grand Island to spend Sunday with his family. He often makes the trip in his auto.

Members of the B. F. Tiffany family from Garfield county, were in Ord on Saturday. They had brought Mrs. Fuller down in time to catch the noon train. The latter was on the way to Texas.

Last Saturday Mr. Winsor returned to Beayer Crossing. He had come up to Ord with an auto that belonged to Earl Smith. The latter has lately moved his family into his new farm, the Moul place.

Mrs. Peter Mortensen was confined to her home for several days. She had the grippe and was tired out after sickness and death in her own family, and from caring for sickness in other homes.

A Mrs. Barry returned Saturday to Horace. She had for several days been staying in Ord at the F. C. Williams home and taking treatment from Dr. Howes. Mrs. Barry is teaching near Horace.

On Saturday morning Jens Neilson and her mother went down to Minden. They were accompanied by two little grandsons of the latter. One of the children was to be left with relatives at that place. They came home Monday.

On Friday evening Lillian Hull came up from Horace and is assisting in the E. T. Weekes family. The Weekes children all have the flu, and Miss Lillian is a big help in the household. She is not a stranger, having lived with them before. A year or so ago she lived in Ord and cared for Mrs. Geo. Ketterlin for a number of months.

Last Sunday Dr. Weekes was called to Ord in consultation with Dr. Howes on the case of Josie Kriz, the latter having the flu. Last year she had a severe operation while the family were living in Canada. She suffered a relapse from a complication of troubles and for a long time she was not expected to live. She has never been very strong since that time and her people have naturally been very anxious about her.

On Saturday Mary Lackey was up from North Loup between trains.

George Mayo was up from North Loup, going up to Burwell on Friday evening.

The Herman Mattley family drove up from Lincoln the first of the week and were guests at the W. W. Haskell home.

Mrs. C. L. Rassetf went to Grand Island last Sunday to join Cyrell who is looking after affairs down there for a few days. They both came home on Monday evening.

Don't forget the Ringsdorf Concert Company, lecture course number at the M. E. church next Monday evening the 7th. You will enjoy this music.

Art Brown, the genial cashier at the Burlington, went down to Central City last Sunday for a short stay with friends. He came home Monday afternoon.

The Ladies Aid of the M. E. church have charge of the lecture course Monday evening the 7 and they will be looking for you to attend. You will enjoy it too for it will be one of the best programs seen here this year.

Mrs. Jessie Clement and children departed for the new home in Omaha this morning. Mrs. Clements will run a grocery and confectionery store. Her sister, Mrs. Herr, accompanied her to assist her in getting settled.

John Turner and Mrs. Combs of Fairfax Missouri, father and sister of Chas. Turner and Joe and Lon Turner, brothers, also arrived in Ord Sunday evening. Mrs. Stacy and a daughter, father and sister of the late Mrs. Turner arrived at the same time. Mrs. Turner came from Lincoln and a brother-in-law of Charley Turner came from Kansas.

In a couple of weeks A. P. Jensen and wife are planning on leaving for Montana where they will spend some time with their daughter Mrs. Frandsen and family. Mrs. Jensen has been setting her hens and already has quite a brood of little chickens. However, the neighbors have agreed to look after things and now Mr. and Mrs. Jensen plan on having a fine time with their relatives whom they have not seen since they moved away.

It has been several years since Mrs. Ciara Booth was in Ord. Her home is at York, but she has been visiting her son Lewis at Erickson. Friday he brought her to Ord so that she could catch the noon train for her home. It was a hurry up call on account of the sickness of another son, Charley. Mrs. Booth tells us that outside of this son her family were quite well. Her aged mother, who formerly stayed in Ord when Mrs. Booth lived here, is with them at York, but she was planning on going to Hovenwell, Mo. to live for a while. The mother is nearly ninety years old.

HANDSOME COAT OF VELOURS

There are many handsome coats of wool velours among the new spring models. Here is one in beige color decorated with inlays of satin and satin-covered buttons in a much darker shade, joined by narrow silk braid.

DRESSES FOR THE FLAPPER

More than ever the flapper has cause to rejoice in beautiful clothes. Great designers spend their time thinking of her and creating things to just suit those wonderful years beginning with twelve and ending with sixteen. Here is a dress that will make grown-ups envious. It is made of coarse linen and has a white waistcoat set in, and handsome flat pearl buttons.

OF FINE EMBROIDERED VOILE

A blouse that will look like new after each laundering, as long as it lasts, is made of fine white voile and embellished with dots and thread embroidery in blue silk. For durability and for daintiness nothing is superior to voile.

DRESSES FOR SMALL GIRLS

Every mother will like the sturdy and pretty dresses which the spring has brought in for small girls. They are made of strong wash fabrics, with knickerbockers to match, and their decoration is of simple needlework.

LOCAL HAPPENINGS

Meet me at Milford's.
Mrs. Will Ramsey was ill with pneumonia the first of the week.
Chess Chinn was a Friday afternoon passenger for St. Paul, returning Saturday.
On Friday Harold Hoepfner and family were up from North Loup visiting his mother Mrs. Laura Newbecker.
Ara Tappen of Elsmere, had been stopping with the Flynn families in and around Ord. Friday afternoon she went back to North Loup to continue her visit with relatives.
The E. H. Marks family left this week for their new home in Sterling, Colorado. Ernest accompanied his car of goods and stock Tuesday. He promised to let his former neighbors hear from them through the Quiz columns later.
J. J. Smith was up from North Loup Monday attending to business matters.
Friday afternoon Joe Miska and son Fred made a business trip to Grand Island.
After a couple of weeks visit with her people, Rev. Bullock and family at Alma, Mrs. Ansel Clark and two children returned to Ord last Saturday evening.
Last week Mrs. Anna Wigent returned to Ord from Ainsworth with her two younger children. She had been in Ord for a few days to see how her father was doing, when she found him nearly blind she decided to stay with him but she had to go after the two little girls.
Monday Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Williams and children were passengers for St. Paul. Floyd McGrew went back to Scottia after spending Sunday at the Chas. Brown home. Axel Lindhartsen was a passenger for Omaha.

Steve Wear was up from Greeley, going back to his home Tuesday.
Dallas Rockhold went up to Burwell Thursday evening to visit his father, returning to Ord the next morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Eastburn drove over to Ord last Thursday to have some dental work done, and also to try their new Reo car which they had just purchased.
Among the outgoing passengers Saturday was Mrs. Anton Zickmund. She was going up to Burwell to spend a couple of days with her people. The Zickmunds live thirteen miles north-east of Ord.
Here Wednesday, Miss Anita Stewart in "Virtuous Wives," from the year's greatest novel, by Owen Johnson. A story of society, New York's famous Four Hundred, marriage, moral social conduct, love a-begging, with gowns galore, palatial settings and a big all-star cast. 1-1t
Mrs. Dean Moser was down from her home between Elyria and Burwell visiting her mother Mrs. Mattley. The latter had her suit case packed and was planning on going up to her daughter's home, if her Uncle Dick Atwell did not return home that evening from a visit into Iowa. However he came in on the Burlington so Mrs. Mattley put her visit off until some other time.
We have a letter from Mrs. Carl Johnson from their new home near Kimball. She says they have not received their Quiz and of course their household is not complete without it. Their farm is five miles from town, but she says the country is so level they can easily see it from their place. She speaks of never having seen so much pretty bungalows in one town. She sends a picture of the M. E. Church at that place. The Quiz is on its way and they have doubtless received it before this.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Gano returned Friday from Fairbury where they had been called on account of the sickness of relatives. They had been away for several days.
Miss Gertrude Hawkins is the right kind of a sister to have. She but lately returned from Kimball where for several weeks she had attended her sister, Mrs. Dick Anderson, during a case of flu, and where she had helped to care for her at the birth of the new baby. Friday Miss Gertrude went to Omaha upon receiving word that another sister, Mrs. Lew Kundsden was down with the flu.
H. A. Robbins was in Ord a couple of days the latter part of last week, attending to business matters and visiting relatives and friends. Mr. Robbins came primarily to settle an accident insurance loss with Frank Vodehnal, it being the second time Mr. Vodehnal has received a nice check from the company represented by Robbins. The Robbins family are planning to move to Topeka, Kansas, where H. A. is to have charge of the business for his company in that state and which is a much better position than he has had while living at Kearney.

Just on business affairs Bert Cushing was in North Loup between trains last Friday.

MEDALS FROM CAPTURED GUNS
A telegram has just been received from Mrs. Mary Synon, treasurer National Woman's Liberty Loan Committee, stating that two million medals made from cannons captured from the Germans during the recent war, are being made for the use of the Liberty loan workers in the Victory drive. These medals will be awarded for efficiency in work and will be a much coveted decoration. Nebraska will receive her full quota. The woman's committees of the state are being gotten into shape rapidly, and the intensive organization will permeate every corner. These much prized medals will be an exhibition in the near future.

It is the way in which the Essex combines the advantages of economy in first cost and operation with the performance, endurance and excellence of detailed finish of large costly cars that is attracting so much attention wherever motor cars are considered.
Such qualities have never before been combined in a single car.
Those who have bought the usual light cheap cars knew in so doing that they were missing many of the delights of motoring.
Easy riding quality and endurance were never expected. Such cars have not been distinguished for the character of their performance.
That is why everyone is so happily surprised at the Essex. Without large expense, all the advantages in performance and endurance that have been the exclusive possession of cars costing two and three times as much are obtained in the Essex.
The five-passenger model sells for $1395 f. o. b. Detroit.

"I FEEL JUST LIKE SHOUTING FOR JOY."

Mrs. Biggs Had No Idea Any Medicine On Earth Could Help Her as Tanlac Did.

"When I think about how much Tanlac did for me, I feel just like shouting for joy," said Mrs. Lizzie Biggs of Smithfield, Illinois. "For fifteen years I had stomach trouble," she continued, "and I couldn't eat a bite of anything without being miserable for hours afterwards. I also had bilious spells and my head would ache like an iron band was tied around it and often I would get as yellow as a pumpkin. I was nervous too and so restless and fidgety that often I couldn't go to bed and go to sleep. Many a night I have laid awake waiting and hoping for morning to come and sometimes I couldn't lie in bed any longer and would just have to get up and sit in a chair, for the rest of the night. I finally got so weak that I couldn't have walked a block if I had been paid a hundred dollars to do it, and I felt so bad all the time that life was a burden to me. I tried all kinds of treatments and medicines but none of them did me a bit of good and I began to think there was no hope for me at all.

"When I heard about Tanlac doing so much good and decided to try it I was too weak to go for a bottle myself, and had to send my daughter. I didn't believe it possible for any medicine to do what Tanlac has already done for me. Before I finished the first bottle my strength began to come back and I could sleep better than I had for years. Of course I ordered according to directions and now I feel as strong and healthy as I did thirty years ago. I don't have any more bilious spells and the headaches are all gone and my skin is clear again. When meal time comes I have a good appetite and don't have to worry about what I eat or how much because it all agrees with me. All signs of nervousness have left me and now when I go to bed I fall asleep almost as soon as my head touches the pillow. I don't have to send my daughter to the store for Tanlac now, as I can go myself, and only the other day I walked down and bought six bottles. I weighed while I was down there and found I had gained twenty pounds. My daughter and I both think Tanlac saved my life and I never intend to be without a bottle of this grand medicine in my house as long as I live."

Tanlac is sold in Ord by Ed F. Beranek, and in Arcadia by Copeland & Moore.

WILL THEY EVER GO HOME!

Our relations! We all have 'em. They come and go—and sometimes they never seem to go! Aunt Julia planned a visit to the home of certain Newly-weds. Aunt Julia has money that some day will be left to someone. And most of her relations are playing strong for that money. But the Newly-weds are "A horse of a different color." Of modern circumstances, with barely enough to live on, they plan a system of overwhelming Aunt Julia by the magnificence and extravagance of their entertainment. But not for Aunt Julia's money—merely to break the habit of her periodic visits. There's a little baby in the story; and Aunt Julia detests babies! But in this sweet little yarn the unexpected happens swiftly and often; and when Aunt Julia takes that sweet and innocent and helpless baby in her arms and has her first demonstration of unselfish love and affection—you'll feel a tug at your heart strings that you wouldn't miss for all the money in the world.

Ira Alexander has written a genuinely good and clean and interesting story. "Aunt Julia Comes to Stay," will make a decided hit with you. To be published complete in the June issue of MODERN PRISCILLA. Don't miss it.

"THE RIVER"
Our Interesting Serial Story,

Silent told her without reservations where he had gone and why. There was no feminine foolishness about that sister of Hardin's. A chip of the old block. Funny, the men all thought of her as Hardin's daughter on account of the difference of age. As to a comrade, proudly, he bragged of the taking of the dynamite over that roadless waste.

"Whom did he leave in his place?" Silent knew, only, that he himself was not in charge! Hardin had ordered him to bed.

"Maybe Mr. Estrada?" she hazarded.

"He is not here, he went down the road to look after the track. Hardin went off in such a hurry. I guess he told nobody," chuckled the engineer, still glowing.

"Then I'm it!" cried Innes Hardin. "Will you take my orders, Silent?"

"Sure," he chuckled again.

Through the rush of the wind and water came the whistle of a locomotive.

"A special!" cried Silent. Hardin's sister and his friend looked at each other, the same thought in mind: Rickard, in from the Headin'!

On her face Silent saw the same spectacular impulse which had flashed over Hardin's features a short time before.

She put her hand on his arm. "Silent, you're his friend. Straighten this out. We can't have him come back—spying—and find this." She waved her hand toward the disorganized groups.

"I'd take more orders," suggested the engineer.

"Then send a third of them home, tell them to come back tonight at six. Send away the other third, tell them to come back at noon. Keep the other shift. Say you'll have coffee sent from the hotel, tell them Hardin says to stop wasting stuff. Tell them, oh, tell them anything you can think of, Silent, before he comes." Her breakdown was girlish.

She could hear the signal of the locomotive coming closer. Then she could hear the pant of the engine as it worked up the grade. It was a steady gentle climb all the way from the junction, two hundred feet below sea level, to the towns resting at the level of the sea. It quickened her thought of the power of the river. Nothing between it and the tracks at Salton. Nothing to stop its flow into that spectacular new sea whose basin did not need a drop of the precious misguided flow. She could hear the bells; now the train was coming into the station; she would not wait for Silent. She did not want to meet Rickard.

No one saw her as she left the levee. She passed Silent, who was issuing orders. She heard him say, "The boss says so."

She took the road by the railroad sheds, to avoid the dismissed shifts moving toward. At full speed, she collided with a man, rounding the sheds' corner. It was Rickard! Her veil had slipped to her shoulders and he saw her face.

"Miss Hardin!" he exclaimed. "Whatever are you doing here?"

"I was looking for my brother."

"You ought not to be out at night alone here."

"It's morning!"

"With every Indian in the country coming in, I'll send Parrish with you."

She Collided With a Man.

She recognized Parrish behind him. She tried to tell him that she knew every Indian in Mexicali, every Mexican in the twin towns, but he would not listen to her. "I'm not going to let you go home alone."

She blinked rebellion at the supplanter of her brother. But she found herself following Parrish. She took a deep pride in her independence, her fearlessness. Tom let her go where she liked. She had an impulse to dismiss Parrish; every man was needed, but he would obey Rickard's orders. MacLean had told her that! "They don't like him, but they mind him!"

Rickard made his way down to the levee. "Where is Hardin?" he asked of every one he met. Silent came up to explain that Hardin had gone up to Fassett's just a few minutes ago to carry dynamite. The river was cutting back there. "Good," cried Rickard, "that's hully!"

"He left me in charge," glibly lied the friend of Hardin. "Any orders, sir?"

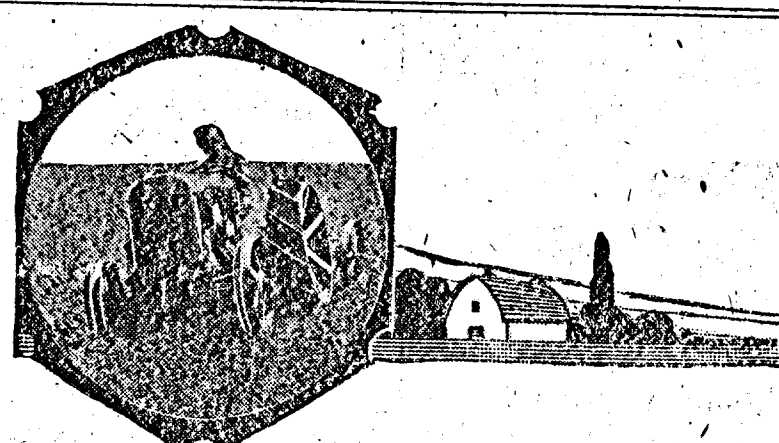

"Things are going all right?" began the manager. He stopped. From above came a dull roar.

"Dynamite!" cried Rickard.

The friend of Hardin had nothing to say. "I thought you said he went only a few minutes ago!" demanded his chief.

"There was another detonation. Down the river came the booming of the second charge."

CHAPTER XVI.

Rickard in Town.

The town woke to a matter-of-fact day. The sensational aspect of the runaway river had passed with the night. The word spread that the flood waters were under control; that the men had gone home to sleep, so the women got breakfast as usual, and tidied their homes. The Colorado was always breaking out, like a naughty child from school. Never would the cry of "The river!" fall to drag the blood from their cheeks. But relief always came; the threatened danger was always averted, and these pioneer women had acquired the habit of swift reaction.

That afternoon, Mrs. Youngberg was to entertain at the A B C ranch the ladies of the Improvement club. It was a self-glorification meeting, to celebrate the planting of trees in the streets of Calxico, and to plan the campaign of their planting. Mrs. Blinn drove into town to get Gerty Hardin. Neither woman had seen her husband since the interrupted drive the night before.

"I don't know whether I should go," Mrs. Hardin hesitated, her face turned toward the A B C ranch. "Perhaps there is something we could do."

"I have just come from the levee," Mrs. Blinn's jolly face had lost its apprehension. "The water has not risen an inch since breakfast. Most of

Finding a Market for the Producer

WITHOUT a market, agriculture could not be the basis of our national prosperity that it is. Marketing turns production into wealth and those agencies that help farmers find profitable outlets are important aids to the country's welfare. Stripped of all discussion, the function of the packers is to find markets. Because of their success in doing this, Armour and Company are today "The American Farmer's Biggest Customer."

Outlets must be maintained for normal supply. Foreign sales must be developed for excess yield. In a shortage of any product, acceptable alternatives must be distributed to relieve the need and to keep markets ready when the yield is again heavy. Fresh commodities which will not bear transportation, and would thus be unprofitable to produce, must be packaged for reserve use elsewhere. There must be manufacture and sale of all by-products. And these are among the services which Armour and Company render—one of the economic reasons why we handle food in so many different forms.

To perform efficiently, our entire system has to operate as a whole. It will not function piece-meal. Our preparation plants, at points where foods are grown, would become choked without our four hundred Branch Houses absorbing production. Our Branches, carrying the several days' reserve supply that makes users well nigh independent of railroad uncertainties, must continually wage a competitive fight for sales. We must finance producers for the thirty, sixty or ninety days necessary—pay cash for raw products, and then prepare, transport and sell on customary credits. Our refrigerator cars have to be steadily carrying the supply forward to the tables of the nation. As the Interstate Commerce Commission in its report of August last says:

"The carriers (railroads) of the country could not so effectively handle the entire refrigerator car equipment as is now done by the intervention of private owners. The meat packer could no more do business on an economical and efficient basis without his private cars than he could without his modern equipped refining or packing plant."

Marketing, however, does not consist merely in taking what producers offer and selling it. Scientific selling must begin with the best growing of those foods the country most needs. To this end our Farm Bureau was inaugurated—as a point of contact with growers and to help bring about a better understanding of mutual problems.

And it is largely because Armour and Company are thus continuously working to market the products of the American farm that you are sure of steady food supply. Understanding this, you must appreciate that in asking your dealer for Armour Products you are lending your support to a system that works to the country's economic good and to your own best interest.

ALL WANT THE LEAGUE

While the big war was on, everybody in this country, apparently were willing to go to any length to win the war and put a stop to future wars. That was what we entered the conflict for, to make certain that in the future there would be no such thing as war. The peace representatives of all nations have agreed that we should have a League of Nations to enforce that idea and that principle. All countries, apparently, are for such a league and a few U. S. Senators, as well as other undesirable citizens, object to the formation of such a league. Looks like those critics would be willing to waive a point now that the war is over and let us have the peace pact confirmed at once. Are the senators big enough men to do so?—St. Paul Photograph.

We believe Bro. Webster is putting it too broadly in the above article. There is no question in our mind, but that the people of this country want the League of Nations plan perfected to the end that future wars may be done away with. There is an honest difference of opinion regarding the method of going about it and this country is too big for one man, even though he be president of the country, to dictate what shall be done and how it shall be done. The United States senate must confirm the treaty and the League of Nations plan and the members of that body should have some voice in the terms of the plan. President Wilson persistently refused to take them into his confidence until now he has seen the error of his way and has conceded some points which everyone will admit will improve the League of Nations plan. The senators were doubtless honest in their fear that the plan as outlined by President Wilson, would get this country into trouble and no doubt with some modifications which are now proposed, the plan will go through. We surely don't want a one man rule in this country even if that man is President Wilson.

TAMORA LYRE WINKS OUT

With the issue of last week the Tamora Lyre, published for the past ten years at the little town of Tamora, in Seward county, by Frank Shields, quits publication and its editor will remove to some other field as soon as he can get up his affairs. Shields is a forceful writer and at times very harsh. There is no question in the mind of any reader, as to what he means when he gets done writing about any subject. He speaks highly of the treatment that the people have given him socially and of the advertising patronage until the auto got so thick that the most of the people went to the county seat, ten miles away or to Lincoln only forty miles to the east. And in what he says there is a lesson for the merchants of the county seat towns if they will learn the lesson. There is no denying the fact that the autos are going to be a detriment to the mercantile businesses of the small towns and that just in the proportion to the enterprise with which the merchants of the larger towns go after the business. Persistent and judicious advertising will bring a large share of the business to Ord from every part of Valley county. Here is what Shields says the auto is doing to the small town has done to his own town: It proves that Ord merchants have an opportunity if they only take advantage of it: "When I came here ten years ago the auto was in its infancy and Tamora was enjoying a veritable boom. Lodges were strong, croquet had more demands than the court could accommodate; S. R. Anstine was doing a rushing lumber, hardware and implement business; L. S. Alexander was there and over with an immense stock of general merchandise and was supplying a large territory with the necessities of life—stable and wearable; Gember Bros. were doing a rushing and profitable livery and stock business; R. E. Marshall, groceries an eating house, was coming all kinds of money. During the five or six years past, the above mentioned firms have gone out of business, but while they lasted they made things hum, but that was before the distance to Seward was only ten minutes or Lincoln was about 50 minutes. The Lyre prospered in those days and today it is not the only country publication suffering because of lack of advertising support. The local railroad business at this point has gradually fallen off."

A. S. O. HOSPITAL at Kirksville, Mo.

Unless you have visited this great institution you don't realize the immensity of it, the facilities provided for the care of the patients, the number of skilled surgeons employed there, the force of trained nurses at hand to see that those who are there for treatment have everything that they should have.

Then the fact that George A. Still, M. S., M. D., D. O., is the chief surgeon is a fact that makes this institution known from one end of the country to the other. Dr. Still has three times declined an offer of $50,000 a year, to stay with the A. S. O. hospital.

This hospital is making an offer to handle surgical cases for returned soldiers free of charge and since making the offer they have been favored with many such cases and the course has made the institution many warm friends. There are twelve skilled surgeons specialists in their lines, in this institution and all headed by Dr. Still. These with thirty-five trained nurses and a small army of assistants make the A. S. O. hospital a leading institution of its kind. See Dr. Still's names for any further information you may want in regard to it.

THE DANGER OF IT

Some years ago congress passed a law forbidding manufacturers to get together and fix a price on all their products—a price not to be undersold by any one in the agreement, nor by any dealers in their product. This law is still in the books. It is quite generally spoken of as the Sherman law, the object of it being to forbid any manner of combination in restraint of trade.

During the past ten days the city newspapers have printed daily stories about the meeting of the big steel magnates in Washington and how, in open and flagrant defiance of the law, they agreed upon the price they would charge for steel during the coming six months.

What did the government do when these steel bars got together and brazenly defied both the letter and the spirit of the Sherman law? Nothing.

And yesterday the Washington dispatches indicated that it would be the policy of the legal advisers of the government to pay no attention to such violations of the law while the country remains in the present "unsettled state".

There is danger in the failure of our government to punish the big interests which so openly defy the laws of the land. The little fellows will argue that "if the big fellows can defy the law, so can we" and no man may estimate the length by which the practice may run.

Evidence gathered by a congressional investigating committee shows that the packers' trust has been doing just what the steel trust is now doing, and yet no man connected with the packers' trust has felt the hand of the law.

In a pigeon-hole in the United States senate lies a report that all through the war the coal trust did just what the steel trust is now doing, but never a criminal connected with the coal trust has been punished.

Same as to the American leather trust. Same as to the wool trust. And the end of all this defiance of law—who may see the end?

We speak of an anarchist deprecatingly. We say he is entitled to the consideration of no good man, because he defies the law. That is just what the managers of the big trusts are doing.

I am always an optimist, and never a pessimist. I try to believe that in the end all will be well with America and with the American people. But I am persuaded that something must be done to remove from the minds of the masses the fast-growing belief that our old laws are made to be enforced against the little fellows and never against the big fellows. Must we admit that we have a privileged class in America? Must we admit that in this dear America of ours we are building up an aristocracy of wealth, free from fear of the laws which we so rigidly enforce against men who do not own great wealth? Must we admit that in our America we are modeling our government along the lines of monarchy, substituting for their aristocracy of birth our own aristocracy of wealth? I do not like to believe it, but when I witness the contempt with which the steel, coal, beef, leather and other trust magnates view our state and national laws, our one is almost compelled to believe it.

Today our country stands in greater danger than in any day of war with a foreign foe. We must not permit our own people to lose faith in the goodness of our government. But they will lose faith unless there shall be a revival of the old-time spirit of Americanism—that spirit proclaimed by Jefferson when he declared that no government could live which did not adopt for its slogan: "Equal rights to all and special privileges to none."

In this hour of danger it is the duty of every good citizen to preach the gospel of the equality of all citizens of the republic and to demand that the laws of state and nation shall be impartially enforced against all citizens, regardless of their bank accounts.—Columbus Telegram.

Last week we protested against putting the old ceiling taken from the island park but the work was done last week. Mr. W. A. Anderson of the park board, has charge of the matter and says he used some similar iron ten years or so ago in another place on the island with good results and he feels sure there is no danger of the iron getting away to do damage to the river. He says he had planned to string hog fencing along the bank in the water just outside of the iron to hold it in place and by doing that he is very sure it will stay there. Since talking with Mr. Anderson and finding him so sure that the old iron will do the business of holding the edge of the river from washing we feel better about the matter and will watch the results of the experiment with interest. The work of putting the iron in place was done by William Bannister.

Down in Omaha if they catch a man with a half pint of booze on his hip they assess him a hundred and cost him they do catch some of them. On the other hand if they catch a man with $35,000 worth of booze cached on his farm they throw the complaint out of court and halt it. It seems as one of the river from washing we feel better about the matter and will watch the results of the experiment with interest. The work of putting the iron in place was done by William Bannister.

GOOD POTATO SEED NECESSARY

High grade seed potatoes are one of the first essentials to successful potato growing, says the Nebraska College of Agriculture. High yielding seed that will produce potatoes of the best quality is as important to the potato grower as high class breeding animals are to the successful modern livestock man. Money and time spent in obtaining good seed will be amply repaid when digging time comes. Seed potatoes are treated with corrosive sublimate to control and prevent scab, etc. The standard solution is: 4 ounces corrosive sublimate (mercuric bichloride) dissolved in a few gallons of hot water and diluted to a total of 30 gallons of solution. The standard length of treatment is: 1 hour for the first time the solution is used; 1 1/2 hours for the second time the solution is used; 1 1/2 hours for the third and fourth time the solution is used. Non-metal vessels must be used.

The men have been sent home. When Howard didn't come home to lunch, I grew anxious. But Mr. Rickard says he sent him to Fassett's with more dynamite."

"There he is," thrilled Gertrude. Mrs. Blinn's eye swept the street. "Where? Your husband?"

"No, Mr. Rickard. Passing the bank. There, he's stopped. I wonder if he is going to? You call him, Mrs. Blinn."

Obediently her friend hailed Rickard. He turned back to the windy street. He felt boyish; the crisis was giving him mercurial feet. He loved the modern battle. Elements to pit one's brains against, wits against force!

Gertrude Hardin's face was flushing and paling. "The river," she faltered. "Should we be alarmed, Mr. Rickard?"

"Smiling, he assured her she should not be alarmed; the levees would protect the towns."

"Mr. Hardin is up at Fassett's ranch, he will be coming back today. I told your husband, Mrs. Blinn. It was enough to weave dreams around."

"We can't do anything, Mr. Rickard, to help?" urged Gertrude Hardin, her voice tremulous.

"I hope we won't have to call on you at all."

There was no excuse to linger. Gertrude threw a wistful little smile at parting.

CHAPTER XVII.

Opposition.

The second night of the flood, the women of the towns dragged brush and filled sacks for the men to carry. It was past midnight when Innes Hardin left the levee. While her feet and fingers had tolled, her mind had been fretting over Tom. Two nights, and no rest! It was told by men who came down the river how Hardin was heroically laboring. She yearned to go to him; perhaps he would stop for a few hours to her entreaty. But an uncertain trail across country, with the dust-laden wind in her face? She decided to wait for the dawn. A snatched sleep first, but who would call her? She would sleep for hours, so weary every muscle. Her mind fixed on Sam as the only man in town who had time to saddle a horse for a woman.

She went in search of him. She found that the long adobe office building had already taken on the look of defeat, of ruin. The casements had been torn from the partitions; the doors and windows were out. The furniture had been hauled up to high ground farther away for safety. She went hunting through the ghoulish

Rebellously she gave him the lantern. The light turned full on her averted angry eyes.

A haughty Thunsselda followed him. Sam was discovered asleep in the only room where the windows had not yet been attacked. His head rested on a bundle of sacked trees which the ladies of the Improvement club had planned to plant the next day. Deep snores betrayed his refuge.

"Here, Sam! I want you to take these ladies home. Chase yourself. They've been working while you've slept. I thought you'd have all these windows out by now."

Gertrude had to supply the courtesy for two. She told Mr. Rickard in her appealing way that he had been very kind; that she "would have been frightened to death to go home alone."

Innes had to say something! "Good-night!" The words had an insulting ring.

The wind covered a passionate silence, as the two women, followed by Sam, yawning and stretching, made their way down the shrieking street.

"It was true," Innes was thinking. She had at last stumbled on the spot, but it was not a matter of personal, but moral, unfitness; not a carelessness of pins or plates, or of tapes or dishes. It was far worse; a slackness of ethics. It meant more unhappiness for Tom.

Her aching muscles told her that she could not have slept four hours when the darky was back, knocking at her door.

Innes' horse loped through the silent streets. "I'll run past the levee; perhaps Tom has come back." It occurred to her that there might be a message at the hotel. She pulled on her left rein, and swept past the deserted adobe.

As she reined in her horse, Rickard stepped out on the sidewalk. He, too, was heavy-eyed from a snatched nap. "Were you looking for me?"

"The scorn in the girl's face told him that his question was stupid. For him!

"Has my brother come back?" He said he did not know. "You can see I have been dreaming!" She would not smile back at him, but rode off toward the levee.

Was this the river? West of the levee, a sea of muddy water spread over the land. There was yet a chance to save the towns, the town, she corrected herself, as her eye fell on the Mexican village across the ditch. For Mexicall was doomed. Some of the mud huts had already fallen; the water was running close to the station house.

She saw Wooster standing near, calculating the distance, the time, perhaps, before the new station would go. She halted Wooster. Ruin was pre- saged in the lines of his forehead.

"Pretty bad?" she cried. He shook his head. "Is Tom back?"

"He's over there, now, fighting like all possessed. He'll work till he drops." Wooster was proud of that method.

"We all know Tom!" Her pride sprang up. "But he's got to stop for a while. I'm going up after him."

"Not if my name's Wooster. I'll go. He'll mind me."

She watched the flowing river, swollen with wreckage. She saw, with comprehension, a section of a fence; somebody's crop gone. There was a railway tie, another! The river was eating up Estrada's new roadbed? A cry broke from her as a mesquit on the coffee-colored tide caught on a buried snag. The current swirled dangerously around it. Instantly, the water rose toward the top of the levee. Men came running to pry away the tree. A minute later, it was dancing down the stream. They raised the bank against the pressing lapping waves. There, the tree had struck again. They ran down the levee with their long poles. Each time that hap- pened, unless the obstruction were

Then she heard steps on the veranda. She ran toward them, expecting to see Sam. She swung her lantern full on two figures mounting the shallow steps. Rickard was with her sister-in-law.

"Oh, excuse me!" she blurted blunderingly. Of course Gertrude would take a wrong intention from the stupid words!

The blue eyes met those of Innes with defiance. It was as though she had spoken: "Well, think what you will of it, you Hardins! I don't care what you think of me!"

What indeed did she think of it? Why should she feel like the culprit before these two, her words deserting her? It was Gertrude's look that made her feel guilty, as though she had been spying. To meet them together, here at midnight, why should not they feel ashamed? She had done nothing wrong. And Tom down yonder fighting—and they make his absence a cover for their rendezvous.

"I'm looking for Sam!" The effort behind the words turged them into an oratorical challenge.

"So are we. I want to send him home with Mrs. Hardin. She's worn out."

"She can go home with me. I am going directly. As soon as I give a message to Sam." She instantly regretted her words, abruptly halting. It came to her that Rickard would insist upon delivering her message. Of course, he would oppose her going. Some petty reason or other. She knew from the men that he was oppositional, that he liked to show his power. Not safe, he would say, or the horse was needed, or Sam too busy to wait on her!

"You cannot go home alone, you two. The town is full of strange Indians. Give me your lantern, Miss Hardin; I'll rout out that darky."

Rebellously she gave him the lantern. The light turned full on her averted angry eyes.

A haughty Thunsselda followed him. Sam was discovered asleep in the only room where the windows had not yet been attacked. His head rested on a bundle of sacked trees which the ladies of the Improvement club had planned to plant the next day. Deep snores betrayed his refuge.

Instantly, the water rose toward the top of the levee. Men came running to pry away the tree. A minute later, it was dancing down the stream. They raised the bank against the pressing lapping waves. There, the tree had struck again. They ran down the levee with their long poles. Each time that hap- pened, unless the obstruction were swiftly dislodged, she knew it meant an artificial fall somewhere, a quick scouring out of the channel. The men were working like silent parts of a big machine; the confusion of the first night was gone. From their faces one would not guess that their fortunes, their homes, hung on the subduing of that indomitable force which had not yet known defeat, which had turned back explorer and conquistador. Ah, there was the lurking fear of it! Victory still lay to its credit; the other column was blank.

She saw Wooster coming toward her. His snapping black eyes shot out sparks of anger.

"Who won't let me go?" "Who won't let you?" But she knew. "Casey. Says he'll send some one else. I said as nobody else'd make Hardin stop. He said as that was up to Hardin."

Of course, he wouldn't let Wooster go!

"Orders me to bed," spat Wooster. "Wonder why he didn't order gruel, top. It's spite, antagonism to Hardin, poCKET; lighted it before answering. "Not a thing. What do you suggest?"

A big wave struck the bank. The car on the sliding trembled.

"Another wave like that and that car'll go over," cried Babcock, jumping, mad. "Why don't you do something? Why don't you hustle—all of you?" He would report this incompetency.

Down the stream came a mass of debris, broken timbers, ravaged brush, a wrenched fence post, a chicken coop, a red hen, clinging to its swaying ship, took the rapids.

"Hustle—what?" murmured Estrada.

Babcock glared at him, then at the river. His eye caught the approaching wreckage. Men came running with their poles. The caving bank was too far gone. The instant the drifting mass struck it, there was a shudder of falling earth, the car toppled toward the flood waters, the waves breaking into clouds of spray.

Human responsibility fell to a cipher. The river's might was magnificent. Even Babcock, come to carp, caught the excitement. "Come, MacLean," he cried. "Watch this! The station's going!" He joined Estrada by the adobe wall.

"Have a cigarette?" murmured Eduardo.

His eyes glued to the lurching station-house, Babcock took a brown paper-rolled cigarette from the proffered box.

"Look," he cried. "There, she'll go. See that—"

There was a splash of splintering timber; a Niagara of spray as the building fell into the flood. A minute later, a wreckage of painted boards was floating downstream.

At table Babcock resumed his campaign. "The trouble with you all, you have cold feet. You're all scared off too soon."

Wooster, up from his nap, looked across the table. "Cold feet? So you'd have if you had been up for nights, wetting your feet on the levee, as some of us have, as Hardin has. Mine are cold all right." He lifted an amazed foot. "Cold! Look here, boys, they're wet!" The men looked to find the water creeping in—Babcock climbed on his chair.

"This means the station," cried Wooster. Every man jumped. If the waters had got to them, it wouldn't be long before they were reaching the O. P. depot! The tracks would go—They were piling out of the door when the telephone caught them. It was a message from Rickard. A car was to be rigged up, papers, tickets and express matter taken from the station. The river was cutting close to the track. The car would be the terminal, a half-mile from town.

The situation looked black. Coul-

CHAPTER XVIII.

The Passing of the Waters.

Babcock came rushing down from Los Angeles that morning to see what in thunder it was all about. He asked every one he met why some one didn't get busy and stop the cutting back of that river? There was no one at the offices of the company to report to him! Why, the building was deserted. Oglivie's letters had prophesied ruin. It all looked wrong to him. Going on to the levee, he met MacLean, Jr., who was coming away. The boy told him vaguely that he would find Rickard around there, somewhere.

"I'll hunt him up for you."

"Why, they are letting it get ahead of them!" Babcock's manner suggested that he was aggrieved that such carelessness to his revered company should go unpunished. Something, he told MacLean, might have been done before the situation got as bad as this!

His excited stride carried him across the dividing ditch, which now was carrying no water, into Mexicall. MacLean had to lengthen his step to keep pace with him. The havoc done to the Mexican village excited Babcock still more.

Estrada, just in from his submerged tracks, was lounging against an adobe wall. His pensive gaze was turned up-stream. The posture of exhaustion suggested laziness to Babcock, who was on the hunt for responsibility. He was more than ever convinced that the right thing was not being done.

"Estrada!"

Estrada took his eyes from the river. Babcock looked like a snapping terrier taking the ditch at a bound. MacLean, Jr., a little greyhound, followed.

"What the devil are you doing to stop this?" A nervous hand indicated the Mexican station gleaming in its fresh coat of paint; to the muddy water undermining its foundation.

Estrada drew a cigarette out of his that's what it is!" She believed that, too. Tom was right. Rickard did take advantage of his authority.

She did not see Rickard until he stood by her side.

"I'm sorry not to spare Wooster, Miss Hardin. But there's stiff work ahead. He's got to be ready for a call. If Hardin insists on spooling one good soldier, that's his affair. I can't let him spool two."

Wooster shrugged, and left them. "Spooling good soldiers!"

"I've taken Bodefeldt off duty. I told him to relieve Hardin."

Bodefeldt who blushed when anyone looked at him! He would be about as persuasive to Tom as a veil to a desert wind! She turned away, but not before Rickard saw again that transforming anger. Her eyes shone like topazes in sunlight. She would not trust herself to speak. Wooster had waiting for her. Rickard could hear the man repeat. "I'm sorry, Miss Hardin. It's an outrage. That's what it is."

Queer, they couldn't see that it was Hardin's fault; Hardin who was up the river fighting like a melodramatic hero; fighting without caution or reserve, demoralizing discipline; he couldn't help admiring the bulldog energy, himself. That was what all these men adored. He'd clenched the girl's antagonism, now, for sure! How her eyes had flashed at him!

Hello! There was a tree floating down toward the station house. "Bring your poles!" he yelled.

The situation looked black. Coulter, Eggers, began to pack their stock. The levee, it was said, would not hold—half of Mexicall was gone. Casey would go next. Rickard's Indians were kept stolidly piling brush and stuffed sacks on the levee. This, the word ran, would be the fierce night—no one expected to sleep.

They were preparing for the big battle, the final struggle, when the grade recession passed the town. Spectacular as was its coming, there was an anticlimax in its retreat. The water reached the platform of the depot, and halted. The town held its breath. There was some sleep that night.

The next day, the nerves of the valley relaxed. The river was not cutting back. The men at the levee dropped their shovels, and went back to the discussion of their lawsuits. Their crops were ruined; too much water, or too little. Whatever way they had been hurt, the company would have to pay for it!

DID THE PREACHER SWEAR?

It Might Seem So When He Agreed With Nimrod.

Several business men were seated about the blazing fire at the club at East Liverpool, O. They were discussing the curious ways in which false reports often start. One merchant told of an experience during a hunting trip out West.

"My guide told me how he had escorted a famous clergyman on a hunt for wild game," said the merchant. "I understand he never was known to show a single weakness, I said."

"That is not true, though," replied the guide. "I heard him swear."

"Is that so? Tell me about it," I said.

"Well, sir, we were watching another fishing. Suddenly, the fellow pulled in an eight-pounder. Turning to the preacher, he said: 'That's a d-d fish.' The clergyman replied: 'Yes, it is.'"

MRS. EVERETT CROMWELL
Nora A. (Honnold) Cromwell was born near Ord in Valley county, Nebraska, Sept. 20, 1881.

Five years after their marriage the young couple came west and settled on a farm near Thomas, Oklahoma in Custer county, where they lived for a number of years and later moved to the city of Thomas.

Mrs. Cromwell had been in poor health for the past two years, and hoping to improve her health the family moved to Colorado in July, 1918, where they lived until a few weeks ago when they returned to Thomas.

Mrs. Cromwell passed away at 7 o'clock on the morning of March 31, at the age of 37 years, 6 months and 11 days. She was a member of the Methodist Church, having been such at Vinton, Nebraska, in her girlhood.

Funeral services were held at the M. E. Church, Wednesday at 3:30 and a large crowd assembled to pay tribute to the memory of this good woman.

I can furnish you an automobile policy covering any kind of risk. W. H. Carson.

GOOD ORD HOSPITAL ASSURED

Friday Drs. Barta and Miller contract with architect Grand Island, to take charge of the work on a fine 20-room hospital which they will start within thirty days if plans can be perfected in that time.

The new hospital will be built on the site of the present Miller hospital. The building now in use is to be moved off and either sold or made suitable for a dwelling.

The plans for the new building are being prepared now and work will start as soon as possible. Mr. Bowell is an up-to-date architect familiar with the best construction and latest hospital improvement and in this case money will not be spared but the building and equipment will be the best to be had.

LETTER FROM CHET SILER

Dear Folks:—Just a few lines to let you know that I am well and getting along fine and dandy. I am working in the Quartermasters' corps.

FARM BUREAU NOTES

With hogs at the present price farmers should take no chances on loss from sickness. About two weeks ago Mr. O. R. Leuck of Arcadia, called the Agent to investigate sickness in his herd.

Feeders and shippers of live stock would do well to read the proposed rules and regulations governing the collection by shippers of claims against railroads.

THE WORLD IN TURMOIL

The era of the Napoleonic wars, with its great disturbances, showed nothing to compare with the turmoil existing at the present time. The world is really much larger now. Peoples everywhere are much more closely united in business relations, if not political, and there is scarcely a wild tribe in the most remote corner of the earth not affected by the great war. The first page of our dailies is made up chiefly of revolutionary news.

After one moderate revolution, Germany is in danger of another soon, and Hungary has already gone over to the soviet form. The border provinces between Russia and Germany are hovering between moderate socialism and complete rule by the farmers and workers. Spain is in the last phase of an iron-hand enforcement of martial law. Portugal has civil war. The radical working class is very near to seizing the reins in Holland, Sweden, Serbia, Roumania, Italy is described as living over a volcano. France is in such a state that the government has not dared to demobilize the troops and the munition workers in the big centers. Recently her sailors mutinied when they were asked to take troops to Russia. The workers of England last week presented an ultimatum to the government on the nationalization of utilities and basic resources. Egypt, says an English official, is in a state of insurrection. The French are fighting against a powerful native revolt in Africa. And as those who follow events know this list can be greatly extended.

What is the matter? Are the common people in so many places wrong as compared with their governments? And has the radical propagandist suddenly acquired supernatural powers surpassing those attributed to German agents? We hardly think so. The great cause is governmental mismanagement. The world is starving under the law and order that was consented to by the hungry people are trying to get relief by new means.

Our own congress failed to do anything for reconstruction. The needs were greater abroad and government incompetence even more pronounced. Let us not blame the hungry men, women and children in the quest for bread, but rather those who insisted on diminishing food production rather than interfere with special privilege.

A TRANSATLANTIC AIR FLIGHT Nearly a hundred years ago, lacking a month or so, the first steam vessel crossed the Atlantic ocean. The voyage lasted for twenty-nine days. This year the world is going to be disappointed if the Atlantic is not crossed in the air.

Great Britain, France and the United States have flyers anxious to make the effort. The chances of success are apparent. The thing will be done, whether by airship or airplane remains to be seen. American army officers flew 634 miles in 300 minutes in a plane. At this rate the ocean can be crossed in fifteen hours.

A huge dirigible is reported from Great Britain, which plans regular air service to Africa, and the nearby dominions. France also is looking for laurels, and the first ocean flight may be accomplished at any time by any of these nations.

The American navy has announced its purpose to make this adventure. Preparatory work is now under way for a flight some time in the spring; during which destroyers, stationed every few hundred miles, will look out for the big craft. Just as it was an American steamship to first cross the ocean let us hope that the first aerial trip will be made by an American. Let us also hope that in this new field our initial effort will be sustained, and our aerial fleets lead the world.

TO SOUTH AMERICA BY RAIL Wouldn't the average American citizen feel a peculiar thrill if he saw a freight car with Spanish inscriptions pull into town, loaded down with tropical fruits, say bananas? Yet that is liable to happen some time in the next few years.

It is now possible to go by rail as far south as the border of Guatemala but a hiatus exists from there to the Panama Canal. Yet, it is believed that in the near future interested capitalists and engineers will furnish these missing links, and a railroad ride to the Panama Canal may be a possibility.

MILLIGAN & SONS

A. S. O. HOSPITAL

at Kirksville, Mo.

Unless you have visited this great institution you don't realize the immensity of it, the facilities provided for the care of the patients, the number of skillful surgeons employed there, the force of trained nurses at hand to see that those who are there for treatment have everything that they should have.

Then the fact that George A. Still, M. S., M. D., D. O., is the chief surgeon is a fact that makes this institution known from one end of the country to the other. Dr. Still has three times declined an offer of $50,000 a year, to stay with the A. S. O. hospital.

This hospital is making an offer to handle surgical cases for returned soldiers free of charge and since making the offer, they have been favored with many such cases and the course has made the institution many warm friends.

There are twelve skilled surgeons specialists in their lines in this institution and all headed by Dr. Still. These with thirty-five trained nurses and a small army of assistants make the A. S. O. hospital a leading institution of its kind. See Dr. L. A. Howes for any further information you may want in regard to it.

The dreamers even go further today. By constructing railroads from the Panama Canal southward through Columbia, through the mountainous regions of Ecuador and Peru, a connection would be established with the railroads in Lima, Peru, and thence a journey southward would only be prevented by a few small gaps yet to be built.

It is said that it takes twenty-five days by steamer to get from New York to Buenos Aires but this railway system would be able to carry you there in fifteen.

SOLDIERS AND JOBS

When a man come home after fighting for his country he wants his job. That is natural, and he must be provided for. The government urges all citizens and municipal corporations to undertake construction projects now, in order to furnish employment for the returning soldiers.

Employers of men now in the service should do what they can to replace them upon their return. The community should see that soldiers secure employment, but it is necessary that private citizens continue progressively to undertake new developments.

RUSSIA AND GERMANY

Napoleon said all Europe would be "cossack or republican." Napoleon was a wise man, perhaps the ablest leader of men yet seen in Europe.

Russia today is a turbulent state, with its wild doctrines and its unknown conditions. The Allies hold aloof, the Germans even mobilize an army against the Bolshevik, but what are the present seeds going to bear?

Will the world face a possible united Russo-German alliance in the next generation? Will the Slav unite with the Teuton, and thus challenge the control of a league of nations formed without them? It is a question worth pondering, without even considering a possible alliance of other nations.

The way some of the states in which the Nonpartisan League is organizing are revealing their primary laws and are going back to the old convention system reminds us of the dog's trick of returning to something he had eaten and which had made him sick. This return to party convention vomit is a good indication of the character of the anti-farmer gang.

"We have come to be one of the worst ruled, one of the most completely controlled and dominated governments in the civilized world"—such is what Woodrow Wilson said about us in 1912 and let us keep in mind that not only he has not been able to do things for the better, but that the war and war profits have added to the bad conditions.

support of every loyal citizen in his protest to the war department concerning the treatment of insano discharged soldiers. One of these unfortunate men, suffering from the effects of shell shock, was kept in jail over night at Omaha recently because no provision had been made for his care. It is just such bonehead plays as this that breeds bolshevism, and if someone in authority does not wake up pretty soon the results will be serious. We hope Governor McKelvie will be able to attract Secretary Baker's attention—something that no one except conscientious objectors has been able to do thus far.—Aurora Republican.

The surest way to make prohibition a howling farce is for special dispensations to be granted those who enjoy official favor. If bonedry conditions are ever established in Nebraska it will be only by means of rigid law enforcement with absolute impartiality. Governor McKelvie has been frank to admit previous mistakes; we do not believe he will repeat the blunder by which his friend, Sidney Drew, was absolved from punishment for an offense which in the case of a less fortunate man would have been unpardonable.—Aurora Republican.

Three Factors in Business

There are three factors in business—

- First, the OPPORTUNITY.
- Second, the ABILITY to see the opportunity.
- Third, the MONEY with which to finance the transaction.

THE ordinary person can see or figure out plans to do business, but frequently men able to see their opportunity, men possessing plenty of ability to manage a transaction lack the MONEY with which to finance it and thereby lose out. The function of a bank is to furnish such men the money. Lending money is what enables a bank to make money. Financing the business ability, the business genius of its customers is what enables a bank to prosper and profit, and by so doing all classes of business are maintained at a high standard and all concerned prosper. People doing business with the Nebraska State Bank know they can get all the money they need at any time they need it for financing any worthy or meritorious business transaction or undertaking. By being able to do this, the customers prosper and profit and the Nebraska State Bank prospers and profits because we are all DOING BUSINESS.

We pay 5 per cent interest on Time Deposits. We can net investors 6 per cent. Int. on tax free 1st mortgage real estate securities. If you have idle funds, deposit with us. If you need funds borrow from us. Remember The Nebraska State Bank when you HAVE MONEY or NEED MONEY.

WE HOPE IT'S SO

Rumors have been floating around quite persistently this week that the Burlington route is contemplating building the road on from Sargent to Dunsmuir and connecting with the main line there, this making the line thru here a main line.

We have often wondered why the Burlington has never made this connection. It would open up a fine territory to them for business besides making a much shorter haul to points west than the main line they now have.

It is also a much straighter and direct line and is through a level country, the country west of Litchfield having many steep hills. It has many other advantages that will be discussed in the columns of The Times in future issues.

Mr. Westervelt, an official line department man, spent several days at Sargent last week, going there in a special car, which probably helped to start the rumor mentioned above.

There has been considerable talk of this line being built, in years past, but the volume of business is getting so big along this branch, and especially in the Sargent country, that its building cannot be deferred very much longer.—Sherman County Times.

LOCAL HAPPENINGS

Dan Huff unloaded a car of Fords one day last week and the next day delivered them all to waiting customers.

Florence Josephine Covert filed a petition in district court last week asking for a divorce from her husband Leonard H. Covert, alleging extreme cruelty as her cause of action.

We want to call attention to page 11 this week. If Ord don't have a building boom this season it is not because the improvements are not needed here and the advertisers on page 11 are ready to do their share toward making the boom a reality. It will be well for Quiz readers to remember these firms when contemplating improvements.

A Basket Social will be given at the Manderson District, on Saturday evening, April 12th. Proceeds will be used for the benefit of the school. Everybody invited. Bring your baskets and pocket books.

Mrs. Hosman went to Kearney Sunday evening to be on hand for the convention of the Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary society of which she is secretary. Rev. Hosman went over Tuesday to attend the sessions.

The ladies of the Christian church held a bake goods sale last Saturday and the hungry public bought their goods as fast as they could get them displayed, so fast in fact that the ladies didn't have a chance to put them in the window at the Misko store where they were sold. Some of the ladies even went home and brought the baked things that had been prepared for the Sunday dinner.

After facing German lead and shells and suffering from German gas he is not likely to be frightened by anything that will cross his path in Ord. He didn't go to see "Hearts of the World" and when we asked him why he said he had seen the real thing enough to do him the balance of his natural life.

Frank M. Gross brought up his household goods last week and loaded out from here with a part of a car of hay for his new home near Bradshaw, where he bought a farm at $250 an acre. Frank had a big sale and everything brought a big price lately and also sold his farm near Spalding at a big advance, hence the change of location.—Erickson Journal.

WHEN THE TORNADO COMES

No other demonstration of Nature's force is more awful than the tornado. Born of conditions well understood, it defies man's little efforts to escape. It knows no law other than that of expending its terrible energy in the shortest possible time. And it is this very prodigality of power that renders it so destructive. For a second time Omaha has witnessed the capacity of this monster of the air for wreaking havoc. We read with awe of the terrific bombardments of cities in Europe, when buildings were blown into smithereens by gigantic shells, but there the work was comparatively slow. Inhabitants might flee, and carry with them such household gear as could promptly be removed. Here the terror struck and passed in the twinkling of an eye. While the heart beat, a home was transformed into a heap of rubbish, all its belongings scattered into nothingness, and the inmates left in bewildered desolation. Man's uttermost effort does not approach a tornado in majesty or might.—Omaha Bee, April 8th.

Protect yourself against loss from this cause by calling on the Capron agency for insurance before the storm strikes. Telephone the value of your property, and you will be advised at once what tornado insurance will cost. The cost for this form of protection is so small no property owner cannot afford to be without it.

TO CAR OWNERS

The Ord Tire and Repair Company is now open for business with a fresh stock of FIRESTONE TIRES. Our long years of experience at the Tire business, along with our modern equipped shop, puts us in a position to rebuild your old tires regardless of condition, and we guarantee our work to last as long as the tire will run.

As we are strangers in this town the only way we can prove ourselves is for you to give us a trial. We invite you to call and get acquainted.

ORD TIRE AND REPAIR COMPANY

INSURANCE

Do you want insurance on your farm buildings and town residence covering damage by hail? I will write you a policy covering Fire, Lightning, Cyclone, Tornado, Windstorm and Hail without cost for hail insurance. This policy will cover the natural increase on your live stock during the life of the policy. Grain is insured against fire while in the shock, stack or buildings and against windstorm in buildings. Only the best Legal Reserve Companies represented.

For a very small cost I will insure your automobile against Fire, from any cause, Windstorm, Theft, Liability and Property damage.

We have an especially attractive line of advertisements for the local merchants this week. After skipping a week, Manager Koupal was just too busy to write an ad last week, the People's Store Company is in again this week with a very interesting announcement. Mrs. Johnson is announcing Easter things at the Toggery. Merchant Perryman has his usual interesting announcement. Mrs. Orectt, not a steady advertiser, is telling about the millinery things she has. All of these ads are worthy of your careful perusal.

BAD STORM IN OMAHA

Sunday evening there was a bad wind storm in Omaha. First reports indicated that it was similar to the one six years ago on Easter Sunday but later reports show that it was not so bad and there are no deaths to a good many people were injured, some seriously. Hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of property were destroyed.

Councilman Huff received the first news of the storm, his mother phoning him of the disaster. His brother Lee Huff, had two apartment houses both of which were unroofed. One of them was his home. None of his family were injured the first reports stated that his wife was missing. In the storm six years ago the Huff home was demolished.

Mrs. Jessie Clements and children, recently moved to Omaha were in the path of the storm but were uninjured. The storm at this time followed the same course as the one six years ago and the people are now saying that that it is a regular cyclone path and some property there is for sale very reasonable.

When the storm was announced people who had relatives and friends in Omaha got busy in an effort to locate them but the wire were all down and it was 24 hours or so before communication was established.

DID YOU EVER LOVE A MAN AND DIDN'T KNOW IT?

Just suppose you were ambitious enough to become a good nurse as it is possible for a girl to become; suppose the reverence, yes the awe you feel for the head doctor in the hospital is real love and you don't seem to realize it; suppose the unreasonable matron insults you to the point of literally driving you out of the hospital; and then a girl who has had every experience a girl can have, who has loved and lost all comes into your life and happens to possess the electrifying spark that makes the right contact—and after all the doctor you love has been—

"The Great Test," is the story of a nurse and a doctor and another girl who has loved and suffered and lost—all. It is a delightful story, sweetly told, and possesses a moral that will make you feel better for having read it.

This novel will be published complete in two long installments in the June and July issues of Modern Fiction. Different from most stories you have read, but so good you wouldn't want to miss it for anything. It is really a "treat" in fiction, and we advise you to be sure and read it. You get the story complete in two installments!

"The Great Test," is written by Alice Garland Steele, a well-known writer and the author of "The Humming Bird," and many other notable successes.

The week before Easter is the busiest time in the whole year at the Clothing Store—but you will find us not too busy to give you courteous attention, not too busy to study your individual requirements, not too busy to make you our pleasant—

LOCAL — PERSONAL

Last Friday E. B. Weekes was a passenger for Scotia.

Monday Krank Krahulik and John Rybin went to Omaha with stock.

Sophia Gross was visiting in Burwell, returning Saturday to Ord. Her parents live up that way.

Fire, lightning, tornado and hail insurance, have W. H. Carson write it for you.

On Thursday evening Will Detweiler went up to Burwell to see about business affairs in connection with the Burwell store.

Monday evening E. P. Clements was a passenger for Burwell, Walter Desech also went up Burwell way that evening.

When Fred Lyons was up at Ord last Friday he told us he was working for the L. M. Thomas and Sons Hardware and Implement Co., of Lincoln.

On the incoming Union Pacific Monday evening was Frank Stara, who had been over to Loup City. Another passenger from the latter place was Alvin Spelts, who was going to Burwell.

Albert Mazac was up from Grand Island last Sunday and spent the day with his parents. Albert and his father are planning on opening up a new butcher shop in Ord. They have not decided on a location, and may decide to build.

A Mrs. Clark, a sister of Mrs. Westberg, has been doing nursing in Ord. Her home is in Omaha. Monday she went down to North Loup to care for her sister who has been suffering with rheumatism, and Mr. Westburg who is suffering from a carbuncle.

The A. C. Wheeler home was quarantined for several days while Vera and Robert had the flu. Mr. Wheeler was stopping in the country with Ernest. The latter part of last week he came in and decided to stay and assist his wife in caring for the little folks. The children are on the road to recovery.

Among the outgoing passengers last Monday was Elliott and H. Clement, who had been called to Askov, Minn., to the funeral of James Olson, Jr., a former Ord boy. The latter died at Kansas City after an operation for appendicitis. The body was being taken to Askov for burial. The James Olson family moved to Minnesota several years ago.

Last Thursday Orval Arnold arrived in Ord from Hanover, Kansas. He was for a few months manager of the Ord Independent Telephone company, at this place. He is now with the telephone company owned by Mr. Jaedicke in Hanover. The latter gentleman is also the largest stock holder in the Ord Independent Telephone company. Mr. Arnold and Mr. Marguard went up to Burwell last Friday to see about the telephone situation at that place.

On last Thursday evening Mrs. Danlery, formerly Lillian Franceel, arrived home on a surprise visit with her people. This is the first trip back to Ord since her marriage and she was as pleased to be at her old home again as her people were to see her. She came from her home at Madison Lake, Minn.

Josie Kriz is not improving as rapidly as was hoped for, since an attack of flu and pneumonia. The quarantine has been removed from the house and last week the doctor operated upon one lung. She is very weak and does not seem to have strength enough to fight again and overcome the effect of the disease. They have had nurses all of the time and her doctor and family are giving her every attention. It is to be hoped she will soon be on the mend.

"You don't look old or cross with those glasses, daddy"

At last Brown has found the perfect glasses for NEAR and FAR vision. No longer is he obliged to peer over his reading glasses to see distant objects. No longer does he fuss with two pairs of glasses. And no longer does he wear the bifocals with the unsightly seam or hump that make him look old and cross.

Brown's eyes are now gaining in looks as well as in usefulness. His eyes are constantly in focus with everything within his range of vision. He can see near and far with the same pair of glasses and no one but himself knows that they are two-sight glasses, because they are

KRYPTOK GLASSES THE INVISIBLE BIFOCALS entirely free from seam or hump—that's why they are universally known as "the invisible bifocals."

Lillian Bailey was in Scotia, returning Sunday morning in Ord.

Monday Mrs. Joe Blaha returned to her home at Elba, after a visit in Ord with her people.

On Saturday evening Josephine Misko went up to Burwell to visit Sella Capek and other friends.

Windstorm insurance is not expensive and you need the protection, see W. H. Carson.

Albert McMinder, son and daughter, returned home Saturday evening from a trip to the Island.

Last Monday Joe Daly arrived home from St. Louis where he had been purchasing goods for the Penney store.

On the Union Pacific yesterday Mrs. Joe Shoemaker went down to Grand Island to see how Joe was coming at the hospital.

Mrs. George Norman was to submit to an operation at Grand Island the latter part of last week, in the hope that her health would be benefited.

Last Monday Bernice Gass and little son left for Hemingford, near Alliance. They expect to spend several days visiting with friends.

After several months stay with her people, the Will Cronk family, Mrs. Ethel Arnold left Monday, for her home in Canada.

Harlan Stover surprised his Ord acquaintances by coming up to Ord Tuesday evening. He had some business to attend to besides spending a short time with friends.

Last Tuesday Minnie Smith was a passenger for Kearney. The same day Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Green returned to North Loup, and Chas. Bals was a passenger for Omaha.

Among the incoming passengers last Tuesday were Wm. Albers and sisters Esther and Pearl. They came up from Lincoln to attend the funeral of their sister, Mrs. Lulu Zickmund.

Mrs. Stella Thompson and her mother-in-law Mrs. Doc Thompson, went down to Brayton the latter part of last week for a short stay with the latter's daughter.

Harrison Battery Station. New batteries for all makes of cars carried in stock. Recharge and repair all makes. One door west Tony Shoe Store. Perry Bell, Prop.

Mrs. Lickly is planning on leaving in a few weeks for Stanton, Nebraska, where her daughter, Mrs. Alice Stoltz lives. The latter will be over in a few days and her mother may go back with her. Mrs. Lickly will rent her home furnished for the summer.

Bert Hardenbrook was at the station Tuesday. He was looking for his sister-in-law, Miss Kinkaid who had been up to Rochester, Minn. She was to stop on her return trip and bring back with her Mr. Hardenbrook's two small children from Fremont. On account of the storm they remained there until later in the week.

Friends of Miss Clara Palmatier have received the announcement of her recent marriage to Mr. T. W. Bartley of Chicago, Ill. Both young people are well and favorably known in Ord, and their many friends join in wishing them a long and happy life in their new home.

Among the incoming passengers on Tuesday were Mike Saba who was waiting for the Burlington to take him to Burwell. For several days he had been in New York buying all kinds of pretty and useful things for his store at Burwell. New York was formerly Mike's home.

E. I. Johnson is figuring quite strongly on purchasing the Chas. Randolph house, now occupied by E. L. Bassett and family. If the deal goes through they will make several alterations. Their present home is a little place but they have not sleeping rooms enough when they are all at home.

This week John Ramsey is expected to arrive from Lava, Hot Springs, Idaho. His brother Truck was here last week but he could only stay three days. Mrs. Edna Jackson will also be here. Her home is at Baker City, Oregon. They are making the trip at this time owing to the serious illness of their father, Mr. Ramsey, sr.

The first of the week Mr. and Mrs. Warren Collins went down to Milford to visit a daughter, Mrs. Seelye and her family. They did not know but what they would go over to Omaha and see a boy who is going to medical school there and will soon be a full fledged physician.

Last Monday Bill Warwick, a son of Joe Warwick, arrived in Ord, coming direct from Denver. He had heard of his father's accident and wanted to visit with him. Bill has been back from service about a month and got out of bed to come up here. He is hardly recovered from a bad case of flu. He received his discharge from Camp Travis, Texas.

On Monday morning Mrs. Scripture returned to her home in Keith county and was accompanied by her daughter Leuta. The latter has been attending school in Ord and staying with her aunt, Mrs. Walkup, but lately she has had a bad case of flu and was not able to return to school for awhile at least, so she decided to return to her home.

Last Thursday when the Quiz went to press Mrs. Haskell was expected home from Omaha but soon a message came saying the little baby at the John Haskell home was dangerously ill and that she could not come. For a time the little life was despaired of but now word comes that it is on the road to recovery and Harold, the older child is recovering from an operation. John is preparing to move his family to a farm near Papillion where he will be employed this summer. Mrs. Haskell will be home in a few days if all goes well.

CHIROPRACTIC

Your Spine Is an Index to Your Health

Here we present the reader with a Chiropractic barometer, one of which each of you carry in your back. It is also the switchboard, by which the Chiropractor sends the vital force to the different parts. In a word, here is a picture of the all in all of the Chiropractic Science.

1. Slight subluxations at this point will cause so-called headaches, eye diseases, deafness, epilepsy, vertigo, insomnia, wry neck, facial paralysis locomotor ataxia, etc.
2. A slight subluxation of a vertebra in this part of the spine is the cause of so-called throat trouble, neuralgia, pain in shoulders and arms, goitre, nervous prostration, la grippe, dizziness, bleeding from nose disorder of gums, catarrh etc.
3. The narrow head marked No. 3 locates the part of the spine wherein subluxation will cause so-called bronchitis, felons, pain between the shoulder blades, rheumatism of the arms and shoulders, hay fever, writers' cramp, etc.
4. A vertebral subluxation at this point causes so-called nervousness, heart disease, asthma, pneumonia, tuberculosis, difficult breathing, other lung troubles etc.
5. Stomach and liver troubles, enlargement of the spleen, pleurisy and a score of other troubles, so-called, are caused by subluxations in this part of the spine, sometimes so light as to remain unnoticed by others except the trained Chiropractor.
6. Here we find the cause of so-called gall stones, dyspepsia of upper bowels, fevers, shingles, hiccup, worms, etc.
7. Bright's disease, diabetes, floating kidney, skin disease, boils, eruptions and other diseases, so-called are caused by nerves being pinched in the spinal openings at this point.
8. Regulations of such troubles are so-called appendicitis, peritonitis, lumbago, etc., follow Chiropractic adjustments at this point.
9. We have so-called constipation, rectal troubles, sciatica, etc., when Chiropractic adjustments at this part of the spine will remove the cause.
10. A slight slippage of one or both innominate bones will likewise produce so-called sciatica, together with many "diseases" of pelvis and lower extremities.

Chiropractic secures RESULTS after all other systems have failed. It removes the cause. Consultation and Spinal Analysis free.

Allen CARS ARE GOOD

They are good because they are built in a big, finely organized factory.

In a factory where particular craftsmanship is and always has been a fundamental.

In a factory of twenty-five years standing, by a company whose moral and financial rating is very high.

All the vital units of this car are really manufactured in these plants.

And this latter fact means a better product and a lower selling price with quality considered.

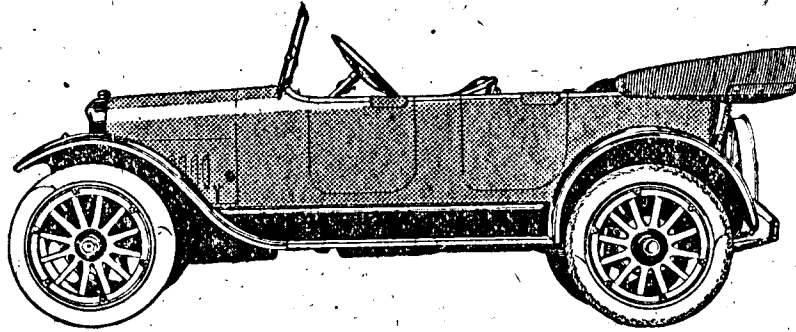

It means a stability in the actual car and it also means permanence in the trade.

With a huge investment in plant and machinery, the Allen Motor Company has too much at stake to build anything but a car which shall insure continued success.

As dealers, we are proud to sell the product of such a company.

We thoroughly believe that the Allen is the most serviceable, comfortable, economical and dependable motor car obtainable at any where near its price.

MRS. BROWN A WELL WOMAN ONCE MORE

Was Confined to Her Bed and Chair For Over Two Years Before Taking Tanlac

"Some strange things happen in this world—and the change. Tanlac has brought about in my wife's condition is one of them," said J. L. Brown, a resident of College Park, Ga.

"For over two years," he continued, "my wife had so much trouble with her stomach that she could hardly take any nourishment at all but a milk diet, and she fell off till she was little more than a living skeleton. She got little rest or sleep at night, had no energy at all and was so weak and rundown that most of her time was spent in bed or in her chair. Her skin was sallow and unhealthy looking and she didn't seem to take interest in anything.

"In fact she was about as bad off as she could be when she started taking Tanlac and just a few bottles of this wonderful medicine have made her a well woman once more. She now eats anything she wants, sleeps like a child, has gained twenty pounds and is able to do all her housework as well as she ever did."

Tanlac is sold in Ord by Ed F. Betanek and in Arcadia by Copeland & Moore.

TIME TO PLANT FLOWERS

It is time to clean up the beds of the perennial flowers and plant the annual flowers, says the Nebraska College of Agriculture. Flowers grow better if the dead flower stems are cut away and the leaves and straw raked off the bed. The same is true of the phlox, iris, poppy and aster. The necessary cultivation can be more readily given if the flower beds are cleaned up in the early spring. Some of the annuals which can be planted any time now are alvia, catspaw, zinnia and coxcomb.

ROLLING WILL HELP THE WHEAT

The University of Nebraska Agronomy Department says that rolling or harrowing the wheat will fill up the cracks in the ground and save wheat that will be killed by the roots becoming exposed. A corrugated roller is better than a smooth one. A smooth roller pulverizes the soil and blowing might result. The farmer who has no roller can use a harrow with good results. The teeth should be set very sloping because wheat will tear out easily where the ground is cracked. Some wheat, especially that which did not get well rooted last fall, has been killed by extensive cracking of the ground, due to rapid drying out.

MAKE YOUR OWN CLOTHES

Make your own clothes. Do your own dressmaking. That is the advice University of Nebraska home economics workers are giving the women of the state. Good dressmakers are becoming more scarce every day, and fashionable styles of garments are in extreme styles of garments are in ready-to-wear department stores, are beginning to awaken us to the fact that we must turn our thoughts back to our sewing room and home garment making. The first aid to the home sewer is good usable equipment, convenient and practical. Next to the machine and cutting table, the most important dress-form. Commercial dress-forms are expensive and nine times out of ten not entirely satisfactory. Why not make one to your own measurements? A dress-form can be made from a broom stick, a board sawed in the shape of the cross-section of your hips, a fitted lining and excelsior. Another way is the making of a plaster of paris form which is even more accurate and hence more satisfactory. More explicit directions for the making of forms may be secured from the Extension Service, Home Economics Section, University Farm, Lincoln.

SPLENDID FOR THE CHILDREN

There is no better paper for the children than Youth's Companion and we have made arrangement with the publishers so that subscribers can get it for fourteen months for the price of a year. The Companion has been published for 92 years and there are millions of men and women who look back to the happy days of childhood and count among their earliest experiences the reading of the Youth's Companion as among the happiest. If you subscribe during April we can send it a year and two months or 61 weeks for $2.00, the price of a year.

HOW CAN YOU TELL YOUR FAVORITE TOBACCO?

As Plain as the Nose on Your Face—Just Smell It

Smokers do not have to put tobacco in their pipes to find out if they like it. They can just rub the tobacco between the palms of their hands and smell it. The nose is an infallible guide to smoking enjoyment.

All smoking tobaccos employ some "flavoring" to improve the flavor and burning qualities of the leaves. To quote the Encyclopedia Britannica: "Naturally, there is considerable difference in the kind of flavorings used, and the nose quickly detects this difference. TUXEDO Tobacco uses the purest, most wholesome, and delicious of all flavorings—chocolate. And the almost universal liking for chocolate in a great measure explains the widespread popularity of TUXEDO Tobacco."

Carefully aged, old Burley tobacco, plus a dash of pure chocolate, gives TUXEDO Tobacco a pure fragrance you nose can quickly distinguish from any other tobacco. Try it and see.

MAMMOTH PARADE FOR I. O. O. F. CENTENNIAL

The centennial celebration of the I. O. O. F., which will be held in Omaha on April 26 and 27, will be featured with a parade of 15 bands and 20,000 Odd Fellows in line. This parade will be on April 26, the one hundredth anniversary of the Odd Fellows lodge. One division of this mammoth parade will be made up of returned army and navy men in uniform, and another division will be made up of beautiful floats symbolic of the different branches of the order. Grand Sire Henry H. Borst, Amsterdam, New York, and Martha Prescott, Laconia, New Hampshire, National President of Rebekah Assemblies, will be present and address the convention which will be held in the Municipal Auditorium. All the Grand officers of the State will be in attendance and address the meetings.

NEBRASKA RANKS HIGH IN NUMBER OF BANKS

Figures recently compiled by the Bureau of Publicity, Omaha Chamber of Commerce, show that Nebraska is third in regard to banks per capita. North Dakota leads with one bank to every 938 people; South Dakota, one bank to every 1,174, and Nebraska one to every 1,208.

RAPE AND RYE MAKE GOOD PASTURE

A combination of rape and rye has been found to make a good year-around pasture at the University Farm. Rye is sowed in September for fall pasture. Cattle may also be pastured on it. If the fall is late rye will provide feed for two months or more. The rye will come on again early in the spring. The University has had good rye pasture for a month or more. Spring lambs are running on it. Along in April the University will plow up the rye and sow rape. This will be ready for hogs and sheep pasture about the 1st of June. When there is rain enough some farmers sow rape in the cornfield at the last cultivating. Barley is being grown successfully as a hog pasture, especially in the western part of the state. Sweet clover also makes good pasture for all kinds of stock.

The Milling Situation

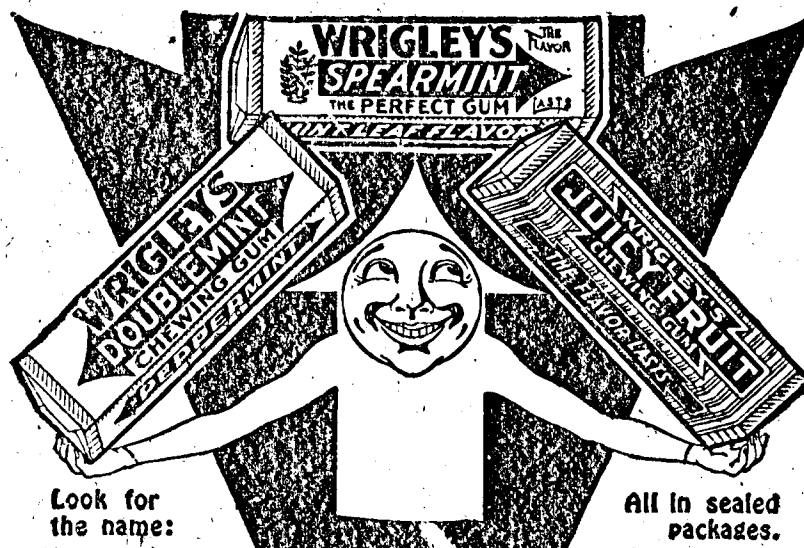

¶ We are glad to announce that the milling situation is almost back to normal. During the war times all mills, or all of the smaller mills, labored under great difficulties and it is safe to say that none of the small mills made any money. The large mills had the edge over us all the time.

¶ However, we kept our service up to the usual high quality all the time and now that conditions are rapidly getting back to normal we can again furnish all our well known brands of flour.

If you've not been using BIG 4 and NO. ONE Ord Flour, try a sack.

TATLOW WRITES FROM CALIF.

Selma, Calif., April 3, 1919.

Dear Son—

Well Duff, I will try and write you a few lines to let you know that we got here all O. K. Our first stop was at Coesfield where we stayed one night then on to Aida where we spent the second night. We then went to Theford where we found Nick sick with the flu. We stayed there one night then started on our journey, traveling by day and stopping at night. We saw the polish plants in Nebraska and let me tell you they are some plants, a great deal larger than I ever expected to see. At Alliance we saw some nice looking country but it is not as good as it looks. We also saw the Pine Ridge which is nice and here is where we went through our first tunnel. Then we struck sage brush and rock. We stopped at Billings, Montana, and it is some town, but what keeps it up I can't see for there is no farm land to speak of. Our next stop was at Miles City, Montana, which is a large place without anything to support it, as the country is nothing but sage brush and rocks. We stayed there four days and then started for Spokane. We went over the Rocky Mountains when we were well named and saw snow from four to six feet deep. We saw one house that was caught in a snow slide and mashed flat. We saw three railroads on one mountain side but they proved to be one and the same road, winding around to climb the mountain. We stopped over night at a small town called Ringland and there we had a fine hotel with a double first-class price. Our next stop was at Butte which is a large mining town with lots of pep. Then we got to Spokane, Washington, which is a fine place with a good what country. Here we stopped at the best hotel in town and the price was one-half what it was at Ringland. We started out to find John Keown but failed to find him so we started for Walla Walla. We stopped there 12 hours and the first man we met was Ed. Van Slike's niece and nothing would do but we must go out to her home, so we went and we had a fine time. They brought us in at 11 o'clock at night so we could catch the fast train for Portland, our next stop. Here is a fine place and a big one too. We saw them building ships and they were sure big ones. Then we started for San Francisco and we saw lots of nice places and lots of poor country. We got off at Okelan to find out about a train for Selma and our train ran down two men and killed them, so they held us some time, which made us late in Selma. We got in here at just dark and could not find anyone who knew where John Ballard lived so I called Matt Pot and he sent his car in and took us out. We found Roy and Winnie there. Now I will send you a box of fruit that your mother and I picked. I want you to take that cluster of oranges up to Lezzett. J. TATLOW.

OUR UNIVERSITY LETTER

The University of Nebraska is aiding in the good road program by giving a short course to train tractor operators. The course began April 14 and will close May 9. It is estimated that 200 tractor men will be needed for the extensive road building maps out for the summer. Four million dollars will be spent on roads this year in Nebraska. Lack of men is the only thing that may hold up the program.

Rhubarb yields a large amount of food and requires a little care and it should be grown on every farm and every town lot, say Nebraska College of Agriculture garden men. It requires a rich soil but not much moisture, and once it is started it comes on early in the spring and grows rapidly. Roots can be obtained in any community and the plant is ready for use the second year. Several thousand boys and girls organized clubs last year, received free instructions in agriculture and home economics, and many of them made a little money, in addition to obtaining valuable knowledge and having a good time. These clubs have picnics and other social good times during the summer. Boys and girls interested in having a club should see their county agent, home demonstration agent, county superintendent, or write the State Club Leader, Extension Service, University Farm.

By organizing into a club boys and girls can obtain assistance from the State and National Governments and secure free lessons and directions in studying agriculture and home economics. Instruction is given boys and girls who wish to have a garden, raise corn or potatoes, pigs, chickens or rabbits, or learn more about cooking and baking, canning, or sewing. Head lice on chicks is one of the drawbacks from now on. There are many remedies on the market, but the University of Nebraska extension workers say that a little lard about the size of a pea rubbed thoroughly on the back of the head is sufficient to rid the chick of the pest. After dark on a dry, warm night, is a good time to apply the lard. Previously the coop, hen or brooder should be thoroughly treated for the lice. Successful chick raising means an everlasting fight against lice.

WANT SUNDAY TRAIN

A petition was being circulated the first of the week asking that the Union Pacific motor be run from Ord on up to Burwell. The motor gets into Ord at about an o'clock and leaves there for the return trip at about one o'clock. With this running time we see no good reason why the motor could not be run on up here, and it would certainly be a great accommodation to the patrons at this end of the road. It would give us a way of getting in and out of town on Sunday at least, and this feature would be considerable of an advantage. The present Ord-Burwell mail route could then be dispensed with. The mail route at best is rather an uncertain quantity when the roads are not in good shape. The petition appeared to find plenty of willing signers when first presented and the general opinion is that with a little pushing the request will be allowed. The writer has talked with several Ord business men in regard to the matter and with one accord they seem to be willing to use their influence to bring about the desired end.—Burwell Tribune.

WILSON A SOCIALIST SAYS SEN. ATOR BAILEY

In a determined and forceful attack Joseph W. Bailey, of Texas, former Senator and leader of his party in the House, repudiates present tendencies of the Democratic Administration and declares that President Wilson has strong socialist leanings.

In the hope that the Democrats who sought no office would perceive the danger of what was being done and compel all Democratic office holders to renew their devotion to the real principles of the party, I have refrained from making any public protest, he says, "but instead of the Democratic masses disciplining the Democratic leaders, the body of the party is being corrupted by the socialist principles, as taught by our leaders, and they are entirely discarded unless something is done to arrest and reverse the present tendency."

"Do you suppose for one moment that we can influence the people now in power? The President has proscribed the real Democrats of the country, and excluded them from all conferences with him, though he takes into his closest confidence semi-Socialists and Socialists. Consider his cabinet. Some of them are downright Socialists, and not one of them can fairly be called a Democrat, according to any definition of Democracy which we have heretofore accepted."

"With a few honorable exceptions, every man holding an important political office under this Administration utilizes every opportunity to discredit the Democrats and to repudiate the principles of the party. They stigmatize every man who believes in a faithful observance of the Constitution as a 'reactionary' and denounce those who defend the rights of private property as 'subversive to the interests.' How then can any man who believes in the principles of the Democratic party vote for office, we have no right to complain at the manner in which they administer our affairs."

"I am fully persuaded that within the next two years the Democratic party must either repudiate President Wilson or it must embrace practically all of the Socialist doctrines. He has already led our party—or rather I should say he has already driven our party—into a reluctant support of many socialist measures, and before his term expires he will have committed us, unless his power in that regard is challenged, irrevocably to socialism under the name of 'progressive democracy.'"

WILL STRICTLY ENFORCE NEW PROHIBITION LAW

Preparation for the strict enforcement of the amendment to the constitution which prohibits the manufacture or sale of intoxicating liquors will be made at the extra session of Congress and enacted into law so as to become effective next January. Representative Andrew J. Volstead, of Minnesota, the new chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, declares that the first thing Congress should do is to determine what should be termed intoxicating. The regulation of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue that any drink is such which contains more than one-half of one per cent of alcohol will probably be adopted.

"The new amendment should be either enforced or repealed," he said to your correspondent. "It is now a part of the law of the land and should therefore be carried out to the letter. Attempts to evade it cause disrespect for our institutions. I am not in favor of forcible searches and seizures of wet goods which may have been purchased by individuals before the new regulation became effective, because the provision applies only to manufacture and sale; but for the rest I think there is and will be found adequate means of very strictly enforcing prohibition in every community in the country."

"In this much of the old machinery of the government for the prevention of illicit liquor manufacture, such as that of the moonshiners, should be used. This is the Bureau of Internal Revenue of the Treasury Department. Its inspectors are trained in ferreting out evasions of the government. The states also have means at their disposal. Licenses will no longer be issued and the separate commonwealths can prevent sale without them. Evaders should be tried by jury and convicted. They should be prevented by injunction from again committing the offense. Importations will be effectually stopped by the officers at the port of entry. The war time prohibition law will be effective until six months after the declaration of peace, but in any event, will become subordinate to the constitutional amendment and the statute for its enforcement. While there will be some evasion, just as there are crimes despite the laws against them, I believe even opponents of the amendment respect it as a part of our law. And it will be much more effective than the present law. The University Service home economist have compiled the best methods of their kind."

BANK CHANGE AT BURWELL

The change and reorganization of the Farmers Bank really brings about little change after all. For the present at least, T. H. Doran will continue to be the president of the institution, with A. I. Cram as vice-president, Harry Doran retiring from the latter position. Fred Davis will return to the cashiership, and Ignatius Kilma, Jr., will be a capable assistant cashier, and we understand that the balance of the bank force will be retained practically as it has been in the past. While Harry Doran is to retire from active service behind the counter he still maintains a financial interest in the bank. The change is one that will be especially pleasing to him as outside work is far more agreeable to him. The board of directors are to remain practically the same as before.—Burwell Tribune.

"HAPPIEST MAN IN STATE," HE SAYS

Farmer Now Eats Things He Hadn't Touched Before In Nine Years

"I had about given up all hopes of ever being a well man again, but since taking a few bottles of Tanlac I am enjoying as good health as I ever did in my life, and have gained twenty-five pounds in weight," said Raymond E. Latham, a well known farmer, who lives at Manito, Ill., while in Peoria, the other day.

"A man never appreciates good health until he loses it," said Mr. Latham, "at least I didn't. Up to the time my health failed me about nine years ago, I didn't know what it was to be sick. I had a fine appetite all the time, and when we came in from the corn fields at meal time, I could eat big, hearty meals and enjoy them. I just want to say in this connection, that we always believed in having plenty of the substantial kind of food that keeps a man in condition to do the work on a farm, and when I reached the point where I didn't know that something was wrong, I discovered a little later that my stomach was in bad shape, and in a short time after I ate a little, I would have sour stomach, and I would be bloated up with gas for two or three hours after every meal. This condition kept on getting worse until I began to feel attacks of acute indigestion, and was told that these attacks were liable to kill me any day. I finally got so weak and rundown that I was hardly able to do any work at all. I would have gladly given every dollar I possessed to get back my health, but nothing I did seemed to help me.

"Nearly every day I would read in the papers about Tanlac, and I personally knew some of the folks that were giving these statements, so I decided to give Tanlac a trial myself. Well, sir, in little or no time I began to eat, my appetite came back in full force, and I was the happiest man in the state of Illinois when I found my food was agreeing with me. I was soon eating just the same things and as much of them, as I did nine years ago before I lost my health, and I was as good as new. I am in as good health now as I ever was in my life, and there isn't a man on my farm that can do more hard work in a day than I can. I am never bothered with indigestion or gas on my stomach, and in fact I am entirely free from all my troubles. You couldn't name a price that I would consider, even for a second, for the good Tanlac has done me. I am well and strong now and that is just the reason why I want to tell the world about Tanlac and all it has done for me."

Tanlac is sold in Ord by Ed F. Beranek, and in Arcadia by Copeland & Moore.

FATHER AND SON

"I must look to the sheep in the fold, see that the cattle are fed and watered. So, Jack, tell mother to wrap you up. You may go with me over the farm. Though the snow is deep and the weather cold, you are not a baby at six years old."

"Two feet of snow on the hillside lay, but the sky was as blue as June; And father and son came laughing home."

When dinner was ready at noon, Knocking the snow from their weary feet, Rosy and hungry and longing to eat, "The snow was so deep," the farmer said, "That I feared I could scarce get through."

The mother turned with a pleasant smile—"I tried what could a little lad do?"

"I trod in my father's steps," said the boy, "When he went I kept in his track."

The mother looked in the father's face And a solemn thought was there; The words had gone like a lightning flash.

"To the seat of a nobler care: 'If he treads in my steps, then day by day How carefully I must choose my way! For the child will do as the father does."

And the track that I leave behind, If it be firm and clear, and straight, The feet of my son will find.

"I will tread in his father's steps and I'm right, for this was my father's way."

Oh, fathers, leading in Life's hard road, Be sure of the steps you take; Then the sons you love, when gray-haired men, Will tread in them for your sake; When gray-haired men, to their sons will say, "We tread in our father's steps to-day."

ENJOYS THE QUIZ

Lewistown, Mont., April 9, 1919. Mr. H. D. Legett, Dear Sir—Am enclosing you a check for the Quiz, for we do not read the home paper. We are having some lovely weather, in fact have had nice weather all winter. Lewistown is still having a tussel with the flu but it is not as serious as it was last winter. We have been quite fortunate so far. Very truly, MRS. CLIFFORD FLYNN.

NEBRASKA CROP REPORT APRIL 1

Nebraska has a chance to make her record production of winter wheat according to the estimates just announced by the Bureau of Crop Estimates and the State Board of Agriculture. The large acreage and present high condition of 97 per cent of normal crop indicates a possible production of 68,000,000 bushels. With the present excellent soil conditions and continued favorable weather the production may even exceed the quantity. The condition a year ago was 75 per cent and the approximate ten-year average 83 per cent. The present high condition of wheat is rather unusual when contrasted with the most unfavorable soil condition during seeding time. Not a few delayed seedings for this reason. There was some complaint during the latter part of March that wheat was being damaged by a sudden breaking or cracking of the soil, but this unfavorable condition was relieved by timely rains almost as soon as the complaints were made. Most of the unfavorable reports come from Adams Clay, Hamilton, Merrick and Polk counties where there was considerable

WHEAT CONDITION

However, the April 1 average condition of these five counties as reported by crop inspectors and agents was 88 per cent, so the damage must have been very slight. Very little abandonment of winter wheat is expected this year.

The condition of wheat for the U. S. is 92.8 per cent compared to 78.6 per cent last year and 88.6 per cent the approximate ten-year average. This is an abnormally high condition for a record acreage.

Rye is also very promising with an average condition of 98 per cent compared to 83 per cent last year. The average condition of rye for the U. S. is 90.6 per cent compared to 85.3 per cent last year.

The estimate on number of breeding sows is 90 per cent compared to a year ago. It will be remembered that Nebraska produced a very large crop of pigs last year and the indicated decrease does not necessarily mean less swine than usual. The number of breeding sows in the U. S. is 100.3 per cent of last year.

ADMINISTRATIVE COMMITTEE, NATIONAL CATHOLIC WAR COUNCIL

Bishop Peter J. Muldoon, Rockford, Ill. Bishop Patrick J. Hayes, New York. Bishop Joseph Schrems, Toledo, O. Bishop William T. Russell, Charleston, S. C.

Pledging hearty support to all legitimate efforts made by labor to resist general wage reductions, Bishop Peter J. Muldoon of Rockford, Ill.; Bishop Joseph Schrems of Toledo, O.; Bishop Patrick J. Hayes of New York City and Bishop William T. Russell of Charleston, S. C., representing the hierarchy of the Catholic Church in America in administering the National Catholic War Council, have issued the following as a part of an official pronouncement on economic and social reconstruction:

Wage Rates Should Be Sustained.

"The general level of wages attained during the war should not be lowered. In a few industries, especially some directly and peculiarly connected with the carrying on of war, wages have reached a plane upon which they cannot possibly continue for this grade of occupations. But the number of workers in this situation is an extremely small proportion of the entire wage-earning population. The overwhelming majority should not be compelled to suffer to undergo any reduction in their rates of remuneration, for two reasons—first, because the average rate of pay has not increased faster than the cost of living; second, because a considerable majority of the wage-earners of the United States, both men and women, were not receiving living wages when prices began to rise in 1915. In that year, according to Lauck and Sydenstricker, whose work is the most comprehensive on the subject, four-fifths of the heads of fam-

LIVING WAGE MINIMUM OF JUSTICE

"Even if the great majority of workers were now in receipt of more than living wages, there are no good reasons why rates of pay should be lowered. After all, a living wage is not necessarily the full measure of justice. All the Catholic authorities on the subject explicitly declare that this is only the minimum of justice. In a country as rich as ours there are very few cases in which it is possible to prove that the worker would be getting more than that to which he has a right if he were paid something in excess of this ethical minimum. Why then should we assume that this is the normal share of almost the whole laboring population? Since our industrial resources and instrumentalities are sufficient to provide more than a living wage for a very large proportion of the workers why should we acquiesce in a theory which denies them this measure of the comfort. The exceptional instances to the contrary are practically all among the skilled workers. Therefore, wages on the whole should not be reduced even when the cost of living recedes from its present high level.

The belief is growing in the minds of the people that had President Wilson bent every effort from the start, to securing a peace pact and then proceeded with the league of nations proposition it would have been much better.

In adopting autocratic methods in his alleged effort to stamp out autocracy, President Wilson made a sad mistake. He was but the servant of the people and should have taken them into his confidence. He surely should have taken the congress into his confidence.

We would not expect that a town the size of Ord could do even a job of work needed as badly as is the paying without there being some objectors on account of the expense, but we do feel that the objectors should be those men upon whom paying would be a hardship, rather than those who have become independently rich because of the opportunities furnished by this town and county. We don't believe that men who have become so wealthy that they can retire and take it easy, men whose income from their holdings far exceed their needs, should be the ones to stand in the way of any public improvement because it is going to increase their taxes.

FREED OF SEDITION CHARGE
Walter Thomas Mills, writer and lecturer of international reputation, has been freed of the charge of sedition placed against him when he delivered a speech for the Nonpartisan league in North Dakota during the last campaign.

Dr. Mills' acquittal came as the result of a trial in the federal district court at Fargo, lasting several days, in which the enemies of the Nonpartisan league were offered every opportunity to bring in facts to sustain their case. Dr. Mills was charged with saying that the sons of the rich did not fight the war; that it was the sons of the farmer and laborer that bore the brunt of the conflict. It was shown, however, that Doctor Mills added the qualifying statement that it was the sons of the farmer and laborer who fought the war "in the overwhelming majority," a perfectly correct statement.

Several Valley county farmers heard Mr. Mills at Grand Island a few weeks ago when he delivered a lecture there.

TURNING THE CLOCKS BACK

There is a movement on foot to turn the clocks back an hour and return to normal time. Some are in favor of it and some are not. There are two clocks that cannot be changed until congress changes the law and they are the postoffice clock and the clock at the Union depot. Probably the matter of turning the other clocks back will be taken up at the next meeting of the city council and they will act as seems best to them and we will all cheerfully abide by their decision. Most of the country people are going by the old time except when they start for the train. It will be a great convenience to the country people if the merchants of Ord will change back to the old time and on that account the Quiz believes that we should do so. So far as we are concerned it makes little difference.

MUST SHOW APPRECIATION

Who is going to start a movement for the celebration in honor of our returned soldier boys? An effort was made a while back to hold a meeting for the purpose but most of those who started the movement were in favor of having the justification at once and the general public seemed to believe that it should be held later. The Quiz believes that July 4 is the time for the festivities and it is time to start something. It will soon be May 1 and sixty days is none too long a time in which to make the arrangements. A speaker of national reputation should be secured. The band boys should be employed and instructed to practice day and night until the time of the celebration. A committee will have to be appointed to have charge of the whole matter and sub-committees will have to be named to look after details. One will have to see to raising the funds, another to securing the seats, another the music and speakers, the decorations will have to be looked after, the advertising will require attention. There are many things to remember and it will take time to work out the details and make the occasion the kind of success that Valley county will want to put on. For this must be a county affair.

It is true that some of the soldier boys will be scattered before that date but there will be many more home by then and no date could be selected when they would all be here. Probably July 4 is the best date that could be named. Sure the associations of the day will help to make the occasion a success.

IT LOOKS LIKE A VICTORY WHEAT CROP

If the weather conditions in this country are favorable, there will be a record wheat crop this year. And every bushel of wheat under the guarantee of Uncle Sam, will bring the farmer $2.25.

This guarantee has back of it an appropriation of a billion dollars made by congress for the purpose of supporting the wheat price.

It begins to look as though the loss to the government will be a trifle, if any, according to Mr. Hoover, who informs the country that Europe will need more wheat than the estimates have called for. The report is that there will be no wheat raised in Russia, Siberia or Bulgaria, so these countries, which are usually exporters will be obliged to import wheat. The Australian wheat crop for this year will be small, and the Argentine crop will not exceed the usual amount.

HIS HIGHNESS, THE $20 HOG

Six weeks ago all sorts of apprehension was felt concerning the price of hogs. How far would the drop go when the government "regulation" of prices terminated on March 17? At that time $17.50 was set as the base price, and anything under this was loss, according to the notions given currency. At Kansas City a Nebraska farmer has just disposed of a carload of fat pigs for the tidy sum of $20.70 per hundred, his shipment of 63 peers of the porcine realm bringing him $3,589.40. No wonder the Farmers Union wants to start a co-operative bank; the ordained institutions will not be able to take care of the money that is coming into the state if pig values continue at this rate of increase. Nobody pretends to account for the ascent of prices, nor to predict that the top has been reached. In the meantime the clamor against the grasping packers has somewhat subsided, while a hungry world calls for more bacon than ever. The future seems rosy for the hog breeders.—Omaha Bee.

HAYS RESTORING PARTY HARMONY AT WASHINGTON

Will Hays, chairman of the Republican National Committee, has come, has seen, and has gone away with the impression that the Republicans in the House are going to compose their differences and give the country an example of constructive legislation in the next session which will make the party "go over the top" in 1920 as it did in 1918.

Mr. Hays found a ticklish situation and handled himself, as usual tactfully, lest the older heads in the party get the idea he was unduly meddling. Denials have been made that Mr. Hays sought to have the steering committee enlarged, but that's what is going to happen eventually, and on that steering committee will be representatives of labor and of the farming interests as well as other elements from which the Republican party hopes to derive its strength in 1920.

Unquestionably Mr. Hays wants a liberalization of the House steering committee. These men are going to control the fortunes of the party in the next Congress. The Republican National Chairman has a very vital interest in whether the men who are selected to have the capacity and the vision to deal with changing America.

Party solidarity is what Mr. Hays is trying to bring about. It is much significant in his trip to Washington, for with a special session beginning toward the end of May or thereabouts, there is little time for the Republicans to get together and agree upon programs of legislation. In the meantime, Mr. Hays himself is losing no time in making a systematic study through a body of experts of the various questions which the Republicans will endeavor to solve in the next Congress, for every practical politician knows that the country in 1920 will judge the Republican party not by what it did in the days of Cannon or Aldrich, but what it did in the two trying years of reconstruction which are ahead.

fact that may be eventually presented to the upper house. This is largely due to the cables from abroad saying that the covenant is being rewritten to meet Republican objection.

Mr. Hays reveals on the whole, therefore, an optimism about the outlook of the Republican party. His talks with the various leaders there have been earnest and persuasive. His plans of campaign organization are meeting with favor. His hand is on the political pulse of the country constantly, and if the Republican leaders in Congress are indifferent to his observations of public sentiment and the trend of thought of the nation as it brought to him through thousands of political eyes and ears in various parts of the country, then they will court defeat.

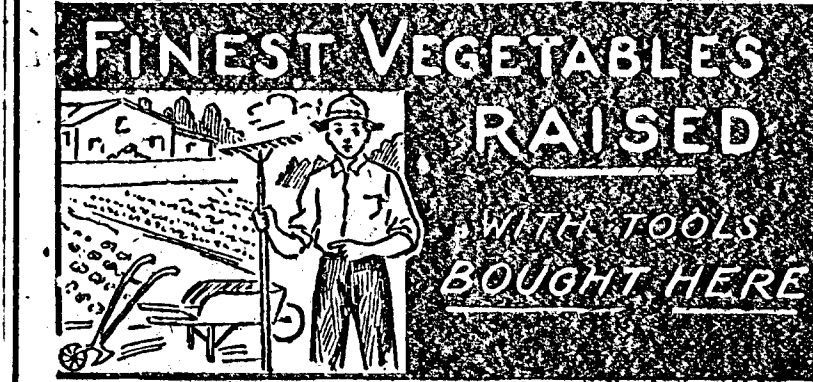

The Republican national chairman doesn't talk candidates. He talks party solidarity. Unless the Republican party is a unit it will not be able to put through a constructive programme in the next two years because times will be lost in bickerings and squabbles. Unless there is harmony the Democratic party, which is united, will take advantage of the dissensions and divisions. As a party of opposition, the Republicans are inclined to be pleased with themselves. They claim to have been the real war party during the war, notwithstanding that the Democratic party controlled the Government. They insist that by persistently shouting about more vigorous prosecution of the war and enlargement of the army they blazed the way to victory and set the peace for the dominant party.

Now, as the Peace Treaty is being wrought the suggestions of Mr. Knox and Mr. Root for compulsory arbitration and a preservation of the Monroe Doctrine are looked upon as strategically sound moves to which the Republican party may hope to point with pride when the not far distant days of pointing with pride comes to pass.—New York Evening Post.

DODGING ISSUES

The celebrated humorist, Mr. Dooley once expressed himself to the effect that when he heard a speaker begin by comparing the United States with ancient Rome, he reached for his hat because he knew there would be no reason for his staying out of bed. The opposition to reform movements uses a number of arguments which likewise warrant the honest man in reaching for his hat or turning over to see what is on the next page.

There is the free lover argument, for instance, which is hurled at practically all reformers. Modern reformers are fought around the idea of better conditions of working and living. Even if we do have state-owned elevators, an open market for farm produce, a minimum wage in our cities, and public ownership of utilities, people will undoubtedly continue "marrying and giving in marriage" until, as the scripture says, they get to heaven.

Again there is the "atheist" argument, but those who spring so to the defense of religion when special privileges is attacked certainly do little credit to true religion. Our reformers, of course, are of differing faiths. Some of them may express doubt about things many others accept as certain. But the very fact that they are willing to toil and suffer for human betterment shows a fundamental kinship with the Founder of our faith. What choice there is is all on their side and not on that of men who find it harder to enter heaven than for a camel to pass through the needle's eye.

And there are other similar tricks of dodging the great issues raised against special privilege by the farmers and workers. The proper answer, as Mr. Dooley suggests, "to reach for the hat." The parties have nothing to offer worthy of the attention of honest men.

What the Public Should Know About the Packing Industry

THE business of collecting, preparing and distributing foods so relates to the daily life of all that it has close, personal interest for everybody. Sensation seekers have long realized this and capitalized on it. An attack on the packers could always be relied upon either to draw notice to its instigator or divert too close investigation of some other question.

Possibly we are partially to blame for the lack of understanding which exists in regard to our business. In the past, knowing that attacks upon us have been based on tissues of half-truths, adroitly handled innuendo and misinformation, we may have forgotten that the public were not in full possession of the true facts.

Armour and Company have always courted proper inquiry into methods and operations. And, in the past few years, because of so many ex-parte hearings, we have voluntarily put our case before the public. Through publication advertising, we have met the misleading headlines through which people get impressions, headlines frequently controverted by the text matter under them.

Confident that fair-minded people will respond to complete knowledge, we seek better understanding with them. Through newspapers, booklets, moving pictures of our processes and other similar methods, we are explaining the place

Armour and Company occupy in the world of human needs and the manner in which they fulfill their function.

We are putting our case squarely up to all parties who are interested—to producer, merchant, consumer and labor—and that each may realize how our obligations to him must combine with our responsibilities to the other involved, we let all know the entire story as we tell it to the rest. We tell consumers what we say to the producers—producers what we say to consumers.

When all is said, however, the size of any business dealing competitively in staples must remain the best evidence of its economic soundness. If our methods were not sound, Armour and Company could not have attained size in proportion to national needs.

Bearing this thought in mind, you will readily appreciate that your own self-interest and your right to fullest value for your money both urge that you always ask your dealer for Armour Products.

the new dredge. It was christened three weeks ago, in champagne brought from Yuma. "You said dine on the Delta. Do you mean they have meals there?" "It's simply elegant. It's a floating hotel, has every convenience. The camp cook, Ling, has his hands full." "Going to wear that?" They were standing now by the door of Gerty's dressing tent. Over the bed a white lingerie gown was spread. "I live in them. It's so hot," shrugged Mrs. Hardin. "I'll look like your maid, Gerty!" Innes' exclamation was rueful. "I didn't bring anything but khakis. Oh, yes! I remember throwing in, the last minute, two piques to fill up space." "Why, we have dances on the Delta, and Sunday evening concerts. You know the work at Laguna dam is being held up? The government men of the Reclamation Service are down here all the time. But it's time to be getting ready." Later, Tom flatly refused to accompany them. "I thought as much," Gerty shrugged an airy irresponsibility. Innes could detect no regret. They passed a cot outside the tent. "Who sleeps there?" "Tom." The eyes of the two women did not meet. Innes made no comment. "He finds the tent stuffy," Gerty's lips were firm with reserve. They walked toward the river in silence. As they reached the encampment, Gerty recovered her vivacity. "That's Mr. Rickard's office, that ramada. Isn't it quaint? And that's his tent; no, the other one. MacLean's is next; there's Junior, now." But his eyes were too full of Innes to see Gerty's dimples. The difference in the quality of his greetings smote Gerty like a blow. And she had never considered Tom's sister attractive, as a possible rival. Yet, after a handshake, she saw that to MacLean, Jr., she did not exist. Gerty was deeply piqued. Until now, the field had been hers. She might perhaps have to change her opinion of Tom's sister. Boys, she had to concede, the younger men, might find her attractive, boyishly congenial; older men would fall to see a charna! The arrangement at table annoyed Gerty. The boss, MacLean explained gaily, would not be there for dinner. He might come in later. Two men from the Reclamation Service tried to entertain Mrs. Hardin. "It isn't a battle," Innes looked around the gay rectangle. "It's play!" The thought followed her that evening. Outside, where the moonlight was silvering the deck, and the quiet river lapped the sides of the dredge, Jose's strings, and his "amigo's" throbbing from a dark corner, made the illusion of peace convincing. This was no battle, it was easy to believe herself again at Mare Island—the Delta cruiser.

Later, Gerty passed her, two-stepping divinely. Before her partner turned his head, Innes recognized the stiff back and straight poised head and dancing step of Rickard. She admitted he had distinction, grudgingly. She could not think of him except comparatively; always antipathetically, balanced against her Tom.

"I'm tired; let's rest here," Innes drew into the shadow of the great arm of the dredge. They watched the dancers as they passed, MacLean playing the woman in "Pete's" arms, Gerty with Rickard, two other masculine couples. The Hardins were the only women aboard.

It was because of Tom that Innes felt resentment when the uplifted appealing chin, the lace ruffles fluttered by. Tom, lying outside an unfriendly tent!

It was easy, in that uncertain light, to avoid Rickard's glance of recognition. Estrada, who had come aboard with the manager, sought her out, and then Crothers of the O. P. Again, she saw Rickard dancing with the lingerie gown. There seemed to be no attempt to cover Gerty's preference; for Rickard, she was the only woman there!

Going in with MacLean, Jr., to the messroom for a glass of water, she met Rickard, on his way out. She managed to avoid shaking hands with him. She wondered why she had consented to give him the next walk.

"He'll not find me," she determined. MacLean followed her gladly to the dark corner of the deck where Jose's guitar was then synthesizing an accompaniment to his "amigo's" voice. To her surprise, Rickard penetrated her curtain of shadows.

"Our dance, Miss Hardin? Give us 'Sob' Las Olas,' again, Jose." The hand that barely touched his arm was stiff with antagonism. She told herself that he had to dance with her—politeness, conventionally, demanded it. But, instantly, she forgot her resentment and forgot their awkward relation. It was his dancing, not Gerty's, then, that was "superb." Anybody could find skill under the leadership of that irresistible step. And then the motion claimed her. She thought of nothing; they moved as one to the liquid falling beat.

The music dropped them suddenly, solating them at the stern of the deck. The silence was complete. Rickard broke it to ask her what she thought of the camp.

Her resentments were recalled. She blundered through her impression of the lightness, the gaiety. "A work camp does not have to be solemn. You'll find all the grimness you want if you look beneath the surface." The guitars were tuning up. "Shall I take you back? I have this dance with your sister."

She thought of Tom—on his lonely cot outside his tent. She forgot that she had been asked a question. He was dancing again with Gerty! If that silly little woman had no scruples, no fine feeling, this man should at least guard her. If he had been her lover, he should be careful; he must see that people were talking of them. She had seen the glances that evening! The business relation between the two men should suggest tact, if not decency! It was outrageous.

Rickard stood waiting to be dismissed; puzzled. Through the uncertain light, her anger came to him. She looked taller, older; there was a flame of accusing passion in her eyes.

It was his minute of revelation. So that was what the camp thought! The wife of Hardin—Hardin! Why, he'd been only polite to her—they were old friends. What had he said to call down this sudden scorn? "Dancing—again—" Had he been all kinds of an ass? "My turn, Miss Innes!" demanded MacLean, Jr.

"Oh, yes," she cried, relief in her tone. Rickard did not claim his dance with Mrs. Hardin. He stood where the girl had left him, thinking. A few minutes later, Gerty swept by in the arms of Brock. Later, came Innes with Junior; the two, thinking themselves unseen, romping through a two-step like two young children. He was never shown that side of her. Gay as a young kitten, chatting merrily with MacLean? Should her eyes discover him, she would be again the haughty young woman!

He'd gone out of his way to be polite to the wife of Hardin. What did he care what they thought? He'd finish his job, and get out. A minute later, he was being rowed back to camp.

CHAPTER XXI.

A Complete Camp.

"Complete, isn't it?" Estrada was leading Innes Hardin through the engineers' quarters. "Yes, it's complete!" Her Brother had told her at breakfast that morning how grandly they had been, wasting time! She would not let herself admire the precision of the arrangements, the showers back of the white men's quarters, the mesquite shaded kitchen. Gerty's elaborate setting was of a piece, it would seem, with the new management. House-keeping, not fighting, then, the new order of things!

Tom was afe to get his gate done. She knew what it meant to him; to the valley. The flood waters had to be controlled. That depended, Tom had proved to her, on the gate. And the men digge and play house, as if they were children, and every day counting!

She thought she was keeping her accusations to herself, but Estrada was watching her face. "We are here, you know, for a siege. There are months of work ahead, hot months, hard months. The men have got to be kept well and contented. We can't lose any time by sickness." He wanted to add "and dissensions." The split camp was painful to him, an Estrada. "Even after we finish the gate, if we do finish it—"

She wheeled on him, her eyes gleaming like deep yellow jewels. "You've never thought we could finish it!" Estrada hesitated over his answer. "You are a friend of Tom's, Mr. Estrada?"

"Surely! But I am also an admirer of Mr. Rickard, I mean of his methods. I can never forget the levee."

She had to acknowledge that Rickard had scored there. And the burning of the machinery had left a wound that she still must salve. "You have no confidence in the gate?"

"The conditions have changed," urged Estrada. "You've seen the mess tent? As it was planned, it was all right, a hurry-up defense. Marshall all along intended the concrete gate for the permanent intake. Have you seen the gap the Hardin gate is to close? Have you heard what the last floods did to it? It's now twenty-six hundred feet, and Disaster Island, which your brother planned to anchor to, swept away! If it can be done, it will, you can rest assured, with Rickard."

"and your brother's zeal, and the strength of the railroad back of them." The camp formed a hollow trapezium; the Hardin's tents, and Mrs. Dowker's, were isolated on the short parallel. Rickard's ramada and his tent were huddled with the engineers' Messes, toward the river, behind Ling's mosquitoes, began another polygon, the camp of foremen and white labor. Some of these tents were empty.

"Is this Mexico, or the States?" asked Innes. "Mexico," she wondered why he halted so abruptly. She did not see, for the glare in her eyes, a woman's skirt in the ramada they approached. Estrada marched on. Outside the ramada, the two women met. Gerty's step carried her past like a high-bred horse. Her high heels cut into the hard sand. There was a suggestion of prance in her mien. She waved her hand gayly at the two, cried, "How hot it is!" and passed on. Innes saw Rickard at his long pine table used for a desk. "I can see it all from here," Not for money would the sister of Tom Hardin go in!

At table, that evening, her family heard with surprise Gerty's announcement that they were to eat in the mess tent with the men. It was too hot to cook any longer; this had been one of the hottest days in the year.

She expected to hear a protest to the new arrangement from Tom. She was to see a new development—sullen resignation. If he would accept it, she must not argue. Both sister and brother knew why it was too warm to cook any longer.

(Continued next week) From Jerusalem to Dead Sea. Nearly everybody who visits Jerusalem rises to the Dead sea, down through Jericho. By starting from Howard's hotel, outside the wall near the Jaffa gate, at daylight, and hiring a fresh horse to meet you at Jericho on the way back, a man used to equitation can have a swim in the Dead sea and return by dark. It is about 40 miles, round trip. Of course, "th pull" is on the return, especially from Jericho onward, for the city of Jerusalem is almost a mile in the air above the Dead sea!

OIL INJURIOUS TO RUBBER Oil and gasoline are deadly enemies to automobile tires.

If you don't believe it, says the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Co., take a small piece of rubber, a rubber band for instance, and immerse it in gasoline. Watch it swell—grow before your eyes. Then after allowing it to soak for a short time just stretch that rubber—no life or vitality left.

Gasoline has a similar effect on automobile tires. "Gas" eats a weak spot in the tread or sidewall, as the case may be, starts deterioration. Oil and grease have the same effect on tires as gasoline.

Great care and vigilance should be exercised in the use of oil around a garage. Oil or gasoline should not be allowed on the floors. Spare tires should always be protected by cover.

A Movable Hitchpost. There is a butcher's boy in Seattle Wash., who travels around on horse back a great deal in a way that attracts considerable attention. He has a dog, and that animal will perch on the horse's back, and ride along the street apparently with as much ease and enjoyment as the boy himself. But when the boy wants to hitch the horse the dog is told to sit down, and the horse is fastened to him, when the two animals are left to all intents and purposes, in perfect security.

Success and Defeat. Success is so hard to endure. We can endure ten defeats better than one victory. Success goes to the head and defeat goes to "de feet." It makes them work harder.—Ralph Parlette.

VOLUME 38, NUMBER 3

GRIEVES FOR DEPARTED FRIENDS

Portland, April 10, 1919. Dear Quiz: The news from Ord as per last week's paper is distressing. I note with painful interest the sickness and death list. What a harvest has been gathered by the Grim Reaper, as home after home has been invaded and what sorrow and anguish has been the result. We shall miss many voices and faces on our return.

How true it is that death loves a shining mark, and how true this is of the honored dead of Ord, and Valley county. I must not attempt to eulogize, but since the death of Mr. Keown a year ago many have followed him? I shall miss dear old Grandma Dutcher, our neighbor, with her kindly smile. Dear good woman of a past generation. The friends of early youth all gone, and she left alone. The tears came to her eyes as we bid her goodbye not expecting to see her again in this life. Such as these linger on the border, we expect will die, but Oh, the young and those in middle life and the children whose little feet have hardly learned to walk. But I must stop.

Your brother, E. A. RUSSELL. "LATE INTO HEAVEN" From an Eighty-five Year-old Classmate's Letter

What will our loved ones say? Noting how long we tarry here below, Waiting the long, and wished for day When we with them, shall see and know.

That beauty land that knows no night, Where they forever dwell with Him, A land where never falling light Is mingled with no taint of sin.

The happy days when we were young Sweet memories hover round me still, The dear ones on whose lips we hung, Are silent now,—are all too still.

Voices so full of sweet delight, Faces so long since turned to dust, Are singing their glad song tonight, Singing as only those who must.

I look to see the forms so near, But none of them do I behold, Are eyes less trusty than the ear? Or is it I am getting old?

Oh where are they, our honored dead? How brightly see them more, Can we not follow where they led? To heaven's bright and blissful shore?

"Late into heaven!" We stand alone, The dearly loved are closed to me, Sometime He'll come and take me home

That I His glories too may see, Treasures I did so highly prize, Are passing on beyond my reach, Beyond the reach of human eyes, Where I can no longer hold or keep.

The fruitage of these lengthening years, For lingering on this earthly shore Will dissipate all doubts and fears, We too will trust, and do no more.

E. A. RUSSELL, 1106 Clinton St., Portland, Ore.

CITIZENS PETITION COUNCIL

Petitions are in circulation asking the city council to pass a resolution changing the time back to the old time which we worked under before the daylight saving law went into effect. It is stated that most of the business people and as many citizens as are getting to see the petitions, are signing them and probably the council will take prompt action in the matter.

THE FIREMEN BALL

Again the Ord firemen are asking the people to attend their annual dance. It was back in 1883 that the first annual ball was held by the Ord Fire Department and they have responded promptly to every call of fire during all those years, saving to the city and its people, thousands and thousands of dollars had it not been for them. And very small indeed for the service rendered. There is no citizen who cannot well afford this year, to buy one or more tickets to the annual dance whether you dance or not. If you don't want to dance it will do you good to go to the hall and spend an hour listening to the music and seeing the dancers enjoy themselves. The grand march will probably start about 9:30 and you don't want to miss that. The music will be furnished by the band orchestra, largely made up of firemen and members of the Firemen Band. You will remember the Ord department was the only fire department in the state that had a band and at the tournaments the Ord band was a big feature of the meetings. There were other bands at the state meetings but the Ord band was designated as the official band and when the Ord band played, the hats of the people were in the air. The orchestra music is in every way equal to the band music and you will not want to miss it.

WESTERN LAND

I have sold several pieces of western land at Kimball, Nebraska. There is now over fifty Valley county farmers and speculators that own land in Kimball county. Not a one but what is more than pleased in his investment. Several have turned their profit, for the amount invested. One particular transfer on a $7500.00 investment made a profit of $3200.00 in fourteen months. When a man can buy land on light payments and produce from 25 to 40 bushels of wheat per acre, a good yield of potatoes, three cuttings of alfalfa, field corn and excellent quality of popcorn and a good yield, why should it not be cheaper to buy that class of land than to rent and pay two-fifths. You not only get all the crop but you get the raise in land which has proved to be increasing each year and no doubt will continue to raise.

It is not only a safe investment when you buy land that will produce like Kimball county, but it is a profitable investment and a much more profitable investment and just as safe as your money is on five per cent deposit. Come in and look over my list and if it is misrepresented to you in any way and I can't show you exactly the class of land that I say I can, and produce what I claim it will, your expense money will be refunded you on your return. With the big wheat prospect which is in sight within four months time now is the time to buy Western land and get the advance which is bound to come within the next six months.

F. J. VOPAT. SPRINGTIME IN NEBRASKA

Oh! Springtime in Nebraska, It comes so warm and bright From land of snow to land of flowers It changes in one night. The buds come to the buds upon the trees Where fruit is wanted to grow, And then there comes a mighty freeze And falls a foot of snow. In spite of frost and snow and ice, The women of the Ladies Aid Are still the greatest wonder. They plan by night, they work by day They plan and work and work, They want new paper on our church And want it in a hurry. They look so sweet and talk so nice You'd think them made of honey But don't get stuck upon yourself They only want your money. Just come along to Misko's Store And buy good stuff for dinner 'Twill do you good and make you glad The Ladies Aid is winner.

BAKE SALE Ladies Aid Christian Church every Saturday in April, at Misko's.

BOX SOCIAL The program and box social, advertised for the Rosevale district for the 18th, is to be held on Friday evening the 25th, instead. Everyone invited to come prepared to have a good time.

LAND FOR SALE I have 160 acres of Valley county land that can be bought for $25,000. Can practically be all cut for hay. It is rolling but not rough. Very easy payments will handle this. If sold for this price it must be sold soon.

F. J. VOPAT. HUSBAND KILLED BY TRUCK

Ord relatives have received word of the death in Omaha last Friday morning, of Thomas E. Calloway. Mr. Calloway was the husband of a daughter of Isaac P. Hoffmaster. Before her marriage she was Miss Elsie and was well known in Ord. They lived here several years and her father was in business, being a member of the Ord Mercantile Company. Miss Hoffmaster was married at Papillion about two years ago and they have been living in Omaha for the past few months. Mr. Calloway was killed when the truck on which he was riding, turned turtle but we have not learned whether he was the driver. The truck or not. Many friends will learn with keen regret of the sorrow which has come to Mrs. Calloway.

Rev. Wells and Art Watts of N. Loup, were Ord visitors Monday.

JAMES OLESEN DIES SUDDENLY

The community was shocked Sunday to hear of the sudden death of James Olesen at a hospital in Kansas City, he having gone there for treatment. Mr. Olesen had been suffering from piles for some time past and about two weeks ago he left for Kansas City to receive treatments from a specialist, in hopes that he might be cured without submitting to an operation. The first reports from Kansas City were to the effect that he was getting along fine but later he wrote that he was ailing and was getting weak. After a few days of silence a telegram was sent from here asking as to Mr. Olesen's health. The reply stated that he was low. Mrs. Olesen left immediately Friday night for Kansas City to be with her husband, but upon her arrival found that Mr. Olesen had already passed to the Great Beyond. He died Friday, the same day that Mrs. Olesen left from here, but the telegraph message announcing his death did not reach Askov before Sunday. The cause of death was pneumonia. The weakened condition of Mr. Olesen from piles gave him little resistance power to combat pneumonia. James Olesen was born in Denmark, Europe, on August 19th, 1887, but came with his folks to America at the age of two, settling at Minden, Neb. They lived there until 1900 when they moved to Ord, Neb.

About ten years ago Mr. Olesen was united in marriage to Miss Lilly Cleland at Ord, Nebraska, two children having been born to this union. The Olesens are among the first settlers around Askov. However about four or five years ago James Olesen and family returned to Nebraska, remaining there about three and one-half years. Last spring they came to Askov again. James Olesen was just in the prime of life, being nearly 32 years old, and aside from his recent illness appeared to be strong and healthy.

Funeral services were conducted from the local Danish Lutheran church Wednesday afternoon. Rev. Andersen officiating. A large concourse of friends followed the remains to their last resting place at the local cemetery. The floral offerings were many and beautiful.

His wife and two children, deceased leave to mourn his sudden demise, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Niels Olesen, five brothers—Ole, Einer, Will, Fred and Arthur—the two former being in the service, and two sisters, Mrs. Emil Fogt, and Miss Clara Olesen. The American joins with the entire community in extending sympathy to the bereaved relatives in their hour of sorrow.—Askov (Minn.) American.

ICE LETTER FROM CHAS. J. MASIN

Orange, Cal. April 10, 1919. Mr. H. Leggett, Ord, Neb. My Dear Sir: Having been reading the Quiz along with you and notice the comments regarding paving and the old court house, now I want to tell you and all my Valley county friends, that in all my travels, Valley county is way behind, not only in roads and paved streets, but in all public improvements. Say you ought to see the roads here, you can get from town to town all the way via paved streets. Why can't Ord have paved streets and a new City Hall like all these western towns, and believe me they are proud of it too. And say, the old school buildings we have some nice ones but we have to have more, and when it comes to improvements, no wonder the people of California praise this country. Why shouldn't they they have public improvements that we haven't and they are proud of it. Believe me the roads out in this country are great. I see no reason why Nebraska should not have as good roads as they have here if the people would only get back of the proposition and stay by it until they get them. Nebraska is all right but the people are too much for themselves, and don't seem to care about these improvements, but let me tell you, that they will wake up some day and wonder why they were asleep.

Valley is one of the nicest countries in Nebraska and why we should be so backward in these improvements is something I can't account for. It all means a new Court House, and one that we should all be proud of, a City Hall that should be a credit to Ord, a Public Library, a sewer system and last but not least, paved streets. One thing you notice here is that they call your attention to these public improvements. What can we show to a stranger when he arrives in Ord? Can we point with pride to any public improvements that we can be proud of? Can you blame people for wanting to come to California when they see this country if we would put in all these improvements like they do here, they would have no desire to leave.

Anyone that has been here can tell you what I have said and besides I don't believe they begin to tell you the best of it. I can vouch for all Mrs. J. W. Lamerton's letters that she writes you in regard to this country, only it is a little better than she writes.

So let all get together and boost for all these improvements for Ord and Valley county. With kindest regards, I am, CHAS. J. MASIN.

Remember the Smith-Nelson ranch sale at Greeley next week Thursday. Read the large advertisement in this paper.

LIGHT HOGS WANTED

I am in the market for light hogs and if you have any, about two hundred pounds weight, come and see me. 3-1t W. Misko.

METHODIST—EASTER SUNDAY

The day will begin with a sunrise Devotional Service at 6:30 in the morning, under the direction of the Epworth League.

Mrs. White will be the leader. The League extends to everyone an invitation to this service of song and praise in honor and worship of Christ the world's redeemer.

Breakfast will be served in the dining room at the close of the devotional service. A nominal charge of 25 cents will be made to cover the expense.

Send your reservation to Roy Hagemer, Mrs. Eva Wright, or Lella Moorman.

The Easter Offering in the Sunday School is always of interest. On this glad day when we celebrate the great event of Christ's redemptive work, let us bring a free and generous offering, that thereby we may help to spread the light and truth of Christ's gospel to the needy peoples in the earth.

The Music, Messages, and Spirit for the hours of public worship will be in keeping with the spirit and lessons of this great church holiday. Mid-Week Devotional Service Thursday 8:00 p. m.

April 27, 1 Cor. 12; 1-13, Spiritual Gifts. Theme for private and family prayer: That the Church may be raised to a new life of vision, consecration and service.

NEBRASKA WOMAN NAMED

Governor McKelvie has named Mrs. A. G. Petersen of Aurora as a member of the state Board of Control in place of Mr. Mayfield, recently resigned. Mrs. Petersen is a prominent business and club woman. She has been president of the state P. E. O. and has had a successful business as bank director.

Alvin Speltz is president of the Citizens State Bank, a new financial institution organized at Loup City. The charter was granted by the state banking board the latter part of last week.

STORM SPOILS LAND SALE

On another page will be found the sale which will take place in Greeley next week Thursday the 24th. The Quiz carried the advertisement of this sale which was to have taken place last week. Unfortunately it was advertised for the day of the blizzard. Even that might not have prevented many bidders couldn't get there, but the auctioneers and several of the bidders went out to look over the place in the morning and when the storm came on they were unable to get back to Greeley, it being midnight of the sale day when they finally got in. Several Ord men have said they were going to bid on the place, which is said to be a large stock place in the country. They had a description of the place in the large advertisement in this paper this week.

PROGRAM AND SOCIAL

There will be a community program and basket social at the brick school house, ten miles northeast of Ord, Friday night May 2, 1919. Everybody Welcome. Gertrude Madison, Teacher. 3-2t.

HUMAN SPIDER PUTS ON SHOW

Last Saturday evening was pleasant and there were fifteen or twenty business men standing around in front of the First National bank when Ray Burdick said he had a good notion to shine up the large round pillar on the front of the building Charley Arnold, walk promoter and all-around sport, heard the remark and said he bet three bones Ray couldn't do it. Ray took him up, and shed his coat and feet, and went clear to the top too, and Charley said, "the money is yours Ray." Then Ray came down. He was about to the limit of holding on any way and he came down with more speed than elegance and in coming he lost several yards of skin off his hands, spoiled a $9.00 pair of shoes and a seventeen dollar pair of trousers at the same time. When we heard about it we supposed of course Ray had been drinking squirrel whiskey but he denied it and so did E. M. Williams and several others who witnessed the frolic. Whenever the auctioneer business falls Ray can go to sweeping chimneys or painting steeples.

JOHN BOETTGER FARM SELLS

Hager and Bailey & Blessing engineered a deal Tuesday by which John Lunnery of York county became the owner of the John Boettger half-section out in Madden Valley. The consideration being $27,600. This was a part of the S. J. Botts farm and was bought a few years ago by Boettger as a speculation at about half what he now receives for it.

McBETH SELLS TWO SECTIONS

McBeth closed a deal Tuesday by which he disposed of a couple of sections of land which he owned up on the Cedar, to a Greeley party.

WILL PUBLISH PERSONAL TAX LIST

As the personal tax schedules come in, County Assessor Bair is more and more dissatisfied with the way many people are giving in their personal property and he has taken the matter up with the members of the county board and has arranged to have the names of the personal tax payers published in the Quiz, with the amount of property which they have listed as taxable. Mr. Bair has also had notices prepared, and is mailing them out to people who he has reason to believe have not given in their property honestly, notifying them that unless the matter is adjusted they will be cited to appear before the county board in June. Mr. Bair tells the Quiz that he positively knows that some people who have admitted having but two or three hundred dollars worth of old furniture to pay taxes on, have thousands of dollars of cash or various securities. They have taken oath that the property given in is all they have and it is going to be mighty unpleasant for them to face the board and have the members ask them leading questions as to their property for the course the questioner will have to have to admit or deny. It is mighty serious to commit perjury. Assessor Bair believes that by having the names printed he will get a line on many people from things that will be told out by persons who know and he will investigate and be ready with his questions when the parties are called before the board. Read the list carefully each week as it appears in the Quiz. It will start next week with Ord city and will be an interesting continued story.

ICE PLANT SELLS AGAIN

For the third time in the past three months the former Misko ice plant has changed hands, this time E. G. Kasperi becoming the owner with immediate possession. O. G. Petty bought it a few weeks ago from Mr. Aagaard, trading in his farm on the deal. Mr. Aagaard got it from Ed Jensen who operated it in the past two seasons. Kasperi traded his 457 1/2-acre farm just south of town on the deal and Petty will again become a farmer, though he will have to farm by proxy for this year at least as his new place is rented for the season. Kasperi is on the job and says he will carry on the business on the same progressive lines planned by Mr. Petty. He will maintain an office up town and keep several tons of ice there during the summer to supply the country trade. Ice will be delivered in town on tickets which will be sold strictly for cash. Anyone wanting tickets can phone the Kasperi residence until a phone can be secured for the office.

THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH

You are welcome to attend any of the services at the Christian church, Bible School at 10 o'clock. Morning Worship at 11 o'clock. "The Master's Easter Greeting" Evening service at 8:00 p. m.

There will be a union young people's Sun's prayer meeting Sunday morning at the M. E. Church at 6:30. Topic: "Eternal Life and How Live It." We will have special music at our services Sunday. Come and help make Easter Sunday a big day.

TAXPAYERS TAKE NOTICE

The following statute is in force and the supreme court has passed on the matter in Courtwright vs. Dodge County, 94 Neb. 659. Read this section of our statute carefully and be governed accordingly: Section 6322—Rev. Stat. requires the assessor to list property brought into this state by any person after April 1 and before July 1, which is found in the possession of the owner, for taxation; and provides that the owner, in order to escape taxation thereon, shall show to the assessor, under oath, and by producing a copy of the assessment duly certified to by the proper officer of the State or County in which said property was assessed, that said property has been listed for taxation for that year in some other County in this State, or in some other State or Territory of the United States, or that said property has been received by him in exchange for money or property listed for taxation during that year.

MAKE MUCH PORK

Blessing Bros. have been feeding hogs all winter and have lost some money doing so, according to Clarence Blessing who has charge of the feeding end of the business. He says they have produced, in the past six months in their north feed yard, a total of one hundred and twenty-five thousand pounds of pork. Mr. Blessing says it is only in the past few weeks that the feeding business has shown a profit. He also says that he paid $20 a hundred Monday for some good hogs and that it is the first time he ever paid that much.

A GOOD SHOW COMING

Saturday evening of this week at the Opera House the program will be by La Zarre's Komical Kid Co., and Mrs. Wentworth says it will be good. Elva, the cute little girl, is featured in the program. Bring the children and enjoy two hours of fun. Good music, good singing and good dancing. Something new, novel and unique.

FULL LINE OF PAINTS

We have a full line of paints coming and will quote prices next week. Basket Store 45.

Mr. and Mrs. Combs, relatives of Chas. Turner, returned to their home in Lincoln yesterday.

"VICTORY LIBERTY LOAN"

If the credit of the United States is impaired by failure to provide funds to discharge its obligations the losers are not a group of government officials or a political party, but you and I. It is our debt, because we are the Government. If the government does not raise the amount in this way it will have to be raised by taxation. "Buy a Victory Liberty Bond." The government will give you a 3-4 per cent interest on your loan and these will be in the form of short time notes and will mature in four years and possibly three. Besides helping yourself, you are helping to make glad the hearts of one million and a half men who are still "over there."

Our boys were willing to go and die if need be that you and I might enjoy the comforts of our own United States. Would you exchange places with the people of Europe who do not have enough to eat? Make this a thank offering, buy a Liberty Bond.

What will you do to bring these boys home? Can you not understand how the homesick boys feel? He tells you plainly what he wants you people of Valley county to do, in a little poem written by a boy over there.

When I come home from dark to light And tread the roadway long and white And tramp the lanes I tramped of yore And see the village green once more, The tranquil farms the meadows free The friendly trees will nod to me. And bear the lark beneath the sun, 'Twill be good pay for what I've done.

Can you face these boys as they return from time to time and feel you have not done your share?

Mr. E. M. Williams has asked the women of Valley county to take charge of the Victory Liberty Loan. With this comes the approval of the state committee. The ladies of Ord will call upon you next week, Tuesday, and they will not take no for an answer. Their time is valuable and it will save them and you the trouble of calling again, so be ready to subscribe the same amount subscribed in previous loans. Mrs. Peter Mortensen is chairman of the city of Ord, and she has worked very hard to get her work outlined. Her committee are: Mrs. R. C. Bailey, Mrs. J. C. Trosky, Mrs. E. J. Williams, Mrs. Alvin Blessing, Mrs. W. A. Wright, Mrs. James Work, Miss Louise Misko, Mrs. J. C. Van Decker, Mrs. L. A. Howes, Mrs. H. B. Van Decker, Mrs. Studley, Miss Lillian Dworkak, Mrs. G. S. Jones, Mrs. C. J. Miller, Mrs. G. W. Milford, Mrs. L. D. Milliken, Mrs. Geo. Mickelwait.

The township chairmen are: Eureka—Mrs. Archie Coombs; Elyria—Mrs. Lester Norton; Noble—Mrs. Chas. Miller; Grant—Miss Anna Novotny; Ord—Mrs. Patricia; Springfield—Mrs. Leo Long; Liberty—Arcadia—Mrs. Pearl Rounds; Vinton—Mrs. Clarence Dye; Enterprise—Mrs. Everett Petty; North Loup, and Independent—Mrs. A. H. Babcock; Davis Creek—Mrs. Melvin Bowers.

This number will have chosen their committees and will call on you soon. (Signed) Mrs. C. C. Shepard, County Chairman Woman's Liberty Loan.

Friday morning Ernest Smith was a passenger for Greeley.

Last Saturday Lena Clements and Lora Smith were passengers for Grand Island.

On the Burlington Friday morning E. P. Clements returned home from several days stay in Burwell.

The first of the week Mrs. Joe Keating and little daughter Eleanor, and Helen Corlett returned home from several days stay in Omaha.

Frances Hoffman was visiting in Ord and returned to Burwell Saturday evening, accompanied by George Level who visited up there over Sunday.

It seemed strange during the last snow storm to see the green grass peeping out from under the snow banks.

Mrs. Lillian Danberry says she is going to stay in Ord just as long as she wants to, probably a month or two. She is much taken with her new home at Madison Lake, Minn.

After a weeks visit in and around Ord, Cecil Staple left Friday for Omaha. He was accompanied by his sister Mildred. She had been up this way since the first of January. She spent the greater portion of her time at the country home of her sister Mrs. Everett Petty. Cecil who has lately been discharged from service feels that he wants to get to work.

In a letter from Eunice Stroup, written from Lincoln, where she has been staying with her sister, Mrs. Fred Lyons, she tells us that her sister is much better. She had a severe case of diphtheria, and Eunice had gone down to care for her. The latter expects to return home in a few days, and resume her work in the telephone office.

On Thursday night at ten o'clock a Union Pacific snow plow came up to Ord. Up this way it was not badly needed but beyond St. Paul the drifts were bad. One was reported to have been seven feet deep by one hundred feet long. The next morning the Burlington people sent up a rotary. It arrived at 5:30 a. m. and found plenty to do. The Union Pacific was followed the night before by a train load of delayed passengers. The regular Burlington passenger train came down on schedule time.

Among the outgoing passengers last Friday were Ben Waterman and wife, who for a few days were going down to Syracuse to visit with relatives.

Friday afternoon Mrs. M. D. Earnest returned to North Loup. She had for a few days been staying with her friend Mrs. James Wisda and the new baby.

On Friday evening Vanda Carkoski returned to her home at Elyria. She had been staying with the Perinski family while they were recovering from the flu.

On Friday morning Mamie Siler left for a visit with her mother and sister at Hastings. Miss Siler is planning on starting before long on a trip to California in her new oldsmobile.

Fred Wichman, who is to have charge of the drug store recently purchased from Frank Johnson, arrived in Ord Friday. The next day the store was closed for invoice.

Among the passengers for Grand Island to attend the auto show last Friday were Jim Mortensen, Fred Bell, Will Tolbert, C. A. Hager, Jim Van-Skyke and Will Gruber.

J. J. Meyers and Harry Coffin were on the incoming ten o'clock P. M. train Thursday evening. They had business in their home town, Burwell and they did not propose to stay in Ord all day. They telephoned for a car to meet them at Elyria, if it were possible and they walked up that far. They expected to walk to Burwell if the car could not reach Elyria.

Mr. Haldeman, Nebraska Commercial telephone man with headquarters at Grand Island, and Mr. Cook of St. Paul exchange were in Ord, coming Friday evening and returning to their work Saturday noon. Mr. Haldeman is a nephew of Dr. Haldeman. He has been up here before as a guest of his uncle, when the latter lived in Ord.

Friday afternoon Dr. Weekes came up from Scotia to see about repairs needed upon the new Weekes hospital. In the afternoon he called for his wife to come up on the evening train as he wished to consult with her in regard to some improvements. The work will be pushed just as soon as the carpenters can tackle the job. The doctor has not so far found a desirable residence property for his family.

Friday morning Mr. and Mrs. Albert Anderson left for Schuyler. They had with them a little nephew, Eldo Lapack. The latter is the little fellow who with several other children were left without parents during the past winter. The father was a brother of Mrs. Anderson and after the wife died his sister brought him up to Ord where after a few days he also passed away. This little fellow was next older than the baby and has been up here for three months. There are numerous relatives at Schuyler and he will find a home with some of them.

Married last Saturday forenoon at the residence of Judge Gudmundsen, Lillian Dahlin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. J. Dahlin, and Ove Fredericksen. The latter has made Valley county his home for some time previous to his entering service. He returned to Ord about three weeks ago. He has been in France for several months. His parents are still in the old country. He has one brother in this county, John Fredericksen, who works for Bradt Bros. The newly wedded pair left Saturday afternoon for Grand Island and after no time they expect to live in a separate house on the Axel Lindhartzen place and Mr. Fredericksen will assist Axel in running the farm.

The Quiz reporter was pleased this week to receive a nice letter from Mrs. J. M. Robinson of Grand Island. Since leaving Ord a number of years ago the Robinsons have done well in a financial way. She tells us Lloyd and his wife have moved to Seattle, Wash. This is where her father lives and the two of them own a large garage there. The Robinsons sent us a picture of Lloyd's baby, a ten-months old boy. This makes Mr. and Mrs. Robinson grandpa and grandma for the first time. She tells us Paul and his wife are well and she is planning on soon visiting with them. Mr. Robinson is building an alfalfa meal mill at Lovelock, Nebr., and has been all of the time. His brother who is interested with J. M. Robinson in business affairs at the Island, is just for the present on their farm near Arcadia. Mrs. Robinson says she is none too well but the balance of the family are enjoying good health.

Mrs. Fern Hart, a former telephone operator at the Ord Independent Telephone board, was in Ord Saturday. She was accompanied by her little daughter whom she was taking up to her mother's Mrs. Anna Cody at Burwell. Mrs. Hart passed through Ord again Monday on her way to Sidney where she will teach for the balance of the school year. It will be remembered Mrs. Hart left here several months ago and went to New Mexico. She did not stay there very long because she was not well. She went up to Chappell, Nebr., and has been in the photography business. This is where Rev. Maynard and Will Harbert and their families are residing. Mrs. Hart tells us the late snow storm was much worse at Chappell than up this way. In fact she had some pictures with her taken just after the storm and the snow appears to be piled several feet high. She tells us that the Harbert family lives about ten miles from town.

John Clery was up from North Loup returning to his home Monday. He was a guest at the Paul Hansen home.

Friday morning Mrs. Studley and little son left for Osceola for a visit with relatives.

Fred Wickman, the new man at Johnson Drug Store and his family will occupy the W. L. McNutt place.

By a good run M. McBeth was able Friday morning to catch the Burlington for Greeley.

Since Herschell McGrew quit the Johnson bakery to go into business with his brother, there has been a shortage of help at the Johnson place. Harold Smith is expected here soon to take the place.

Last Saturday Mrs. Clarence Bailey was considered to be dangerously ill and her brother, Than Bruyn, and her sister Mrs. Huffman of Colorado, were wired for. When they arrived Monday she was improving. She was suffering from the flu.

The Presbyterian people are to have services in their church next Sunday, Rev. J. M. Bloomquist coming from Des Moines for the occasion. He will also preach in the Mira Valley Presbyterian church in the afternoon. All members and others interested are invited to attend the services.

The Otto Smith family came down from Rosevale the first of the week and Otto was attending to some business matters for Ben Bowen while the latter was out of town for a few days. They live on the Bowen farm. Two little sisters who have been living with them, will now stay with their mother Mrs. Carrie Smith.

Mrs. Haskell returned home Monday evening after several weeks stay at the home of her son John in Omaha.

Monday Mrs. Geo. Schumaker of Burwell was in Ord. She had been visiting a brother in Grand Island.

Harold Hoepfner was up from North Loup Tuesday for a short visit with his mother.

YOU WILL BE INTERESTED
We are asking that you turn to page 8 of this section and read it carefully. The "want ad" department is on that page and most Quiz readers look for it each week. Then E. A. Simpkins is advertising his cleanup sale on page 8. He has sold his farm and will probably decide to locate near to Ord as he likes it here. Parks & Lowe are advertising on page 8. Their auto and sign painting business is growing each week and they are seeking more help to handle it. J. B. Nay and John D. Rockefeller are both using space on page 8 this week also.

The C. E. Bassett family are getting settled in their new home in Grand Island this week.

Mrs. James Pokraka was up from North Loup Monday seeking medical aid for her little son.

Yesterday Chas. Watson went down to Horace to look after some business affairs for the Brown & Gray Hardware.

CAPRON—REAL ESTATE AND INSURANCE

1919? What does this year hold in store for you?

EVERY YEAR driving hail storms devastate the most promising crops. No locality is exempt. There is no telling when or in what part of the state they will occur. The farmer who escapes one year may be a sufferer the next. Consequently the question of insuring himself against such loss or damage is a serious proposition.

HAIL INSURANCE ALONE accomplishes this protection

The "OLD RELIABLE" SAINT PAUL FIRE & MARINE Insurance Company has for over thirty years issued HAIL INSURANCE policies to Valley county farmers. Its policies are non-assessable; do not contain a pro-rata clause, and are worth "100 cents on the dollar."

In case of total destruction, the SAINT PAUL will pay the full amount of the insurance per acre. In case of a partial damage, the SAINT PAUL will pay the exact percentage of loss agreed on between the adjuster and assured.

An undivided interest may be insured, for either landlord or tenant.

We Adjust Our Own Losses

Why trust the adjustment of your loss to a "bureau adjuster" who is neither interested in the companies he works for or the assured?

We take pride in the prompt adjustment and payment of our claims, and in the fact that in over thirty years of insurance experience in Valley county, we have not one dissatisfied customer, and they return to us year after year.

You should insist on a HAIL POLICY in the old "loss tried and time tested" SAINT PAUL FIRE & MARINE INSURANCE COMPANY.

Do Not Delay. Do It Now

This company also makes a specialty of writing farm insurance, covering loss from FIRE, LIGHTNING, TORNADO AND HAIL on all insurable farm property. IT IS BETTER TO HAVE INSURANCE AND NOT NEED IT, THAN TO NEED IT AND NOT HAVE IT.

Have your insurance written by men who KNOW HOW

TWISTER HITS CITY

Destructive Wind and Hail Storm Damaged Windows and Electric Lights at Hastings

Hastings, Nebr., April 14.—Scores of telephone poles were broken down and thousands of window lights in green houses, residents and stores were destroyed in a hail and wind storm which struck Hastings and vicinity on Monday morning. A twister which failed to touch ground was seen by many alarmed people driven to basement rooms. Hail was driven into drifts two feet deep in the Kenesaw vicinity where stones as large as hen's eggs were seen. This city suffered a loss of nearly $100 in broken electrical globes. Juanita was also hard hit by wind and hail. Hail larger than teacups was picked up six hours after the storm by Frank Beach north of Juanita.—Lincoln State Journal.

ECHOES FROM WOODMEN HALL

Mrs. Sebasta is again employed in the Joe Zalina household.

Ernest Irvin and Joe Waldmann autoed to Ralph Clements' last Sunday. They found Ralph and his family well and prosperous.

Joe Skoll has been hauling his wheat crop to Comstock in his truck until the storm of last week prevented.

We hope our items will reach the Quiz printer in time. Our mail carrier has not made his round since the storm. We are indebted to Joe Moravee for bringing out our mail Saturday and surely appreciated it. The rainy Sunday would have been a long day without anything to read. But we hope our mail service will recuperate as we have had some important letters in our box for threedays.

Our school was rather small last week on account of sickness among the pupils. Severe sore throats and bronchial affections reigned supreme, but all are on the mend and we hope our schools will not be interrupted any more this term.

Viva, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walt Pedrick was threatened with pneumonia, but we are glad to note she is much improved.

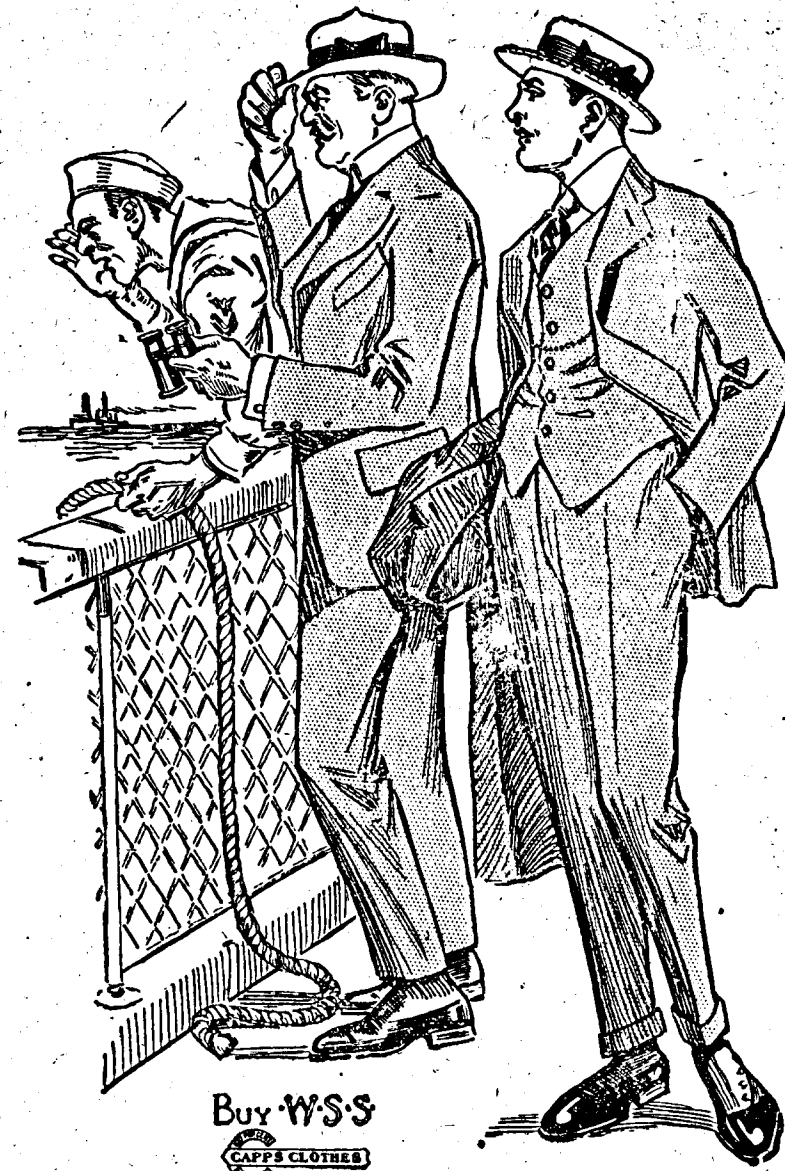

Miss Frances Waldmann is working in the Royal Cafe at Comstock.

Grandpa Slavick is visiting a few days at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Frank Krikac.

Chas. Krikac took the 8th grade examination at Gering school last Thursday and Friday.

The Misses Perin attended the funeral of their friend Frank Gruber at Sargent last Friday. Mr. Gruber was a discharged soldier, only being home a few days. Rheumatism which affected his heart was the cause of his untimely death.

Miss Emma Brien of Ord visited with the Holoun girls a few days.

Ernest Irvin has been helping farmers set up the car load of farm implements which they shipped in a few days ago.

Joe Waldmann has suffered considerable loss of cattle from some malady which resembles "flu" among the humans. Dr. Hoobler was called from Sargent who vaccinated the whole herd, all those that were affected at the time of vaccination have died. As no more cases have developed since. We hope the disease is checked. It has been more or less prevalent near Sargent and Taylor this winter, so the doctor tells us.

Mr. Zalina, the father of our Joe Zalina, who has been assisting his son with the farm work, met with what might have been a fatal accident one day last week. While out discing a hook broke on the single tree and while the old gent was trying to fix it the team started up, pushing him down in front of the disc in such a manner that he was pinned down with his leg between the disks. He was fortunate in stopping the team, but unable to extricate himself from under the heavy disk and unable to call for help. He remained in that dangerous position three hours. When he had not come home for dinner, Mrs. Zalina went to the field to call him only to find him in the above position. She at once unhitched the horses and ran home and called help who lifted the disk and helped the old gentleman out. He escaped with but slightly cut over shoe and a numb leg for some time. But it surely was a lucky escape, for had he not a faithful bunch of horses they might have run over him with the disk.

The farmers celebrated the opening of their business at Comstock Saturday, April 5th, and it surely was a success. They are now buying and selling grain, seeds, etc., at their new elevator; also a car load of farm implements, many of which they have already sold. The elevator was open to all visitors and the farm ladies served hot coffee and sandwiches all day in the office of the elevator. They also handle oils, paints, greases feeds and tankage, posts, cement, coal, fencing, and will handle cream eggs, and poultry as soon as a suitable man can be obtained to handle the business.

POSTPONED AUCTION SALE

1,840 Acres Northwest of Horace

Because of the blizzard on April 9, the day this sale was first advertised for, there was no attempt made to offer it, in fact the auctioneers were unable to get to Greeley. It will positively be held on April 24, however, rain or shine, so be on hand early.

To be held at GREELEY, NEBR.

Thursday, April 24

at the Opera House, 1:30 p. m.

The land is known as the Gould pasture and is located 12 miles west of Greeley, and 3 miles northwest of Horace in Greeley county, Nebraska. Contains 1,840 acres and is fenced in 3 pastures, mostly 4 wires, good fence, 2 new wells and windmills, 2 big cisterns, one 500-barrel and one 300 barrel capacity. All hard land. NO 'AND, and one of the very best pastures in the state. Plenty of shade. Railroad cuts one corner of the land, and there is a loading chute on the ranch. With the ever-increasing demand for good pasture land, here is a splendid opportunity to secure a real ranch at your own price.

This Ranch Will Be Sold in Half Sections on good terms enabling any farmer or stockmen to secure a fine pasture. This fine ranch will be shown at any time by the owners. Investigate it, look it over and come to the sale.

For further information write or phone the owners, or Dan J. Fuller or Z. A. Williamson, auctioneers, Albion, Nebraska, or John H. O'Malley of the First National Bank, Greeley, who is clerk of the sale.
TERMS:—15 per cent day of sale, 35 per cent October 1, 1919. Balance on mortgages at 6 percent if desired.

The A. F. Barbø family left Friday for Mitchell where they expect to make their home.

The first of the week A. J. Wise returned from Pleasanton, leaving his mother much improved.

Alice Manchester, who had been staying up here for several days at the Tolbert home, went down to North Loup Friday.

Mrs. O. A. Haloren of Inman came down from Burwell last Friday and visited with Mrs. Stungley until the old gold noon train. The ladies are old friends.

Saturday Thelma Crow returned to Omaha. She had been up here, visiting and had spent several weeks in the sick room. She is studying to become a nurse.

Mrs. E. B. Burson, a daughter-in-law of G. H. Burson has arrived from Northana. She was accompanied by her children. It will be remembered that the body of the husband and father was brought here for burial during the winter but the family were ill with the flu and could not come.

One day last week Joe Shoemaker was in such a serious condition that he was expected to pass away at any minute. He is at a hospital in Grand Island where he is taking treatment. However, he rallied and was better on Saturday. His wife came back that evening. She goes down every two or three days.

For the past month Ed Milligan has been suffering terribly from a rupture. Dr. Weekes was up last Saturday and it was decided to take Mr. Milligan to Scottia for an operation. They took him to the motor in an auto but after reaching the depot he grew so much worse Mrs. Milligan decided to accompany him to Scottia where he was placed in the hospital and given special attention for a few days by nurses and doctors.

VINTON NEWS NOTES

By E. S. Coats

Mrs. Hattie Burson, the widowed daughter of Mrs. Hannah Jones arrived in Vinton last week. I hear she expects to make her home here in the future. Her former home was in Montana.

I was talking with Ernest Bunch the other day. He said he heard that the business men of Ord were favorable to return to the old time if the farmers would demand that the old time should be kept. I think it is safe to say that nine out of every ten farmers are against the so-called daylight saving law and if the business men of Ord and the people who put on the entertainments would very much appreciate it for it only works a hardship on the farmers the way it is now. The farmers can hardly take in the entertainments in the evening for they can't afford to start doing the evening chores right after dinner so as to get there on time. And from what I hear I am not the only one who gets left when he goes after a load of posts or lumber.

I hear over at North Loup that branch of the Farmers company will in the future ship hogs. Otto Hill who runs the grain elevator will have charge of that end of the business. He will arrange with the farmers for a carload and take charge of the shipping and weighing.

I have some readers in other states besides Nebraska. Some of them are writing very nice letters to the Quiz which I sure enjoy reading so I am going to tell you some things about the weather and the prices we are getting here. Spring opened up fine in March and we did some plowing the last week in that month. April has been cool with only a few nice days. A big snowstorm has made the roads impassable for autos the past few days and this 13th day of April it is trying to rain with a good prospect of success. Winter wheat looks better than I have seen it for years. Blue grass and alfalfa are starting a little and oats are sown. Prices are $1.50 to $1.75 for corn, .70 to .80 for oats, wheat $2. and hay any price up to $25. per ton and very scarce. Blessing Bros offer me $12.50 per cwt for hogs Saturday and a good prospect for $20. Eggs 35 cents per dozen butter fat 50 cents per pound, cows $100 to $150. for common stock, registered stock from $150 to $300 horses from $25 to $200 and a slow sale. Machinery about three times what it was back in Cleveland time. Farm hands from $40 to $65 per month, depends on how much the hand thinks he is worth. The farmer does not argue prices with him if he is a good one. Mira Valley land from $125 to $200 per acre, depends on how much the purchaser has.

S. B. Waggoner writes that they got moved without any loss as to their stock. They found the roads good from Ord to their new home, and Bradshaw out to their new location. He says the buildings have not been kept in good repair and like the roads southwest of Ord, need fixing badly. I am glad Mr. Waggoner remembers the canyon road so that when he comes over here for a visit sometime in the future he will notice the change when Ord township and Ord city, with the help of the county get it graded up and graveled to match the paved streets of Ord. Say I am glad you readers do not know that there is a big mud hole in front of our farm or home before I go to causing others about their roads. Our mudhole is fixed this spring so our road boss Levi Chipp tells me.

Some of my alfalfa has been killed out by short pasturing and I hear some of my neighbors have lost some of theirs by winter killing. I have not heard whether this is general over the county but I suppose it is to some extent. Hay is getting to be more of an object each year and the price keeps going up a little more each year. I hear prairie hay is now selling at $25 per ton. Several farmers I know are going to sow millet and Sudan grass. My plan is to plant blue corn or as some call it, squaw corn, to take the place of hay, we are sowing 25 acres of alfalfa this spring but do not expect to get any hay off of it until next year. We have only 20 acres of a good stand of old alfalfa so will have to buy a lot of hay next fall or plant something to take its place. I have tried this blue corn before and it makes an enormous amount of feed to the acre, and if I can get it shredded I will have the corn in the crib and from a ton to two tons of feed in the barn to the acre, that will be as good feed as the best of prairie hay and it is much better feed for horses than alfalfa. Of course there is nothing as good as alfalfa but a lot of this shredded fodder can be fed with the alfalfa. A year ago last fall we shredded the mow of the horse barn part full of field corn fodder and it was the best feed I ever had for our work horses and a little room holds a lot of it as it packs solid. I shredded a stack outside for the cows and it lasted nearly all winter with very little damage. Last fall I couldn't get a shredder so had to feed the corn out of the bundle. There is from twenty to thirty dollars per acre lost by not cutting the fodder and according to the price of hay the past few years we ought to have more shredders. I believe the time is coming when the corn will all be cut and shredded for then there is no danger of cornstalk poisoning which kills stock about every year. Some farmers object to my plan and say it hurts the land to take the stalks off the field but I think if the manure made by feeding the stalks at the yards or the barn is returned to the land the place is very small from that cause. I think the blue corn is better than the common field corn for fodder, but the field corn makes mighty good feed and if cut just as the ears are getting ripe the quality of corn is good and a lot of good hay substitute saved.

Mrs. Coats received orders for the S. C. White Leghorn eggs to the a-

"You don't look old or cross with those glasses, Daddy."

At last Brown has found the perfect glasses for NEAR and FAR vision.

No longer is he obliged to peer over his reading glasses to see distant objects.

No longer does he fuss with two pairs of glasses.

And no longer does he wear the bifocals with unsightly seam or hump that makes him look old and cross.

Brown's eyes are now gaining in looks as well as usefulness. His eyes are constantly in focus with everything within his range of vision. He can see near and far with the same pair of glasses, and no one but himself knows that they are two-sight glasses, because they are KRYPTOK glasses, entirely free from hump or seam—that's why they are universally known as "the invisible bifocals."

FOGHT LANDS GOOD JOB

Prof. Harold Foght has recently been elected to the position of president of the Northwestern Normal and Industrial School at Aberdeen, South Dakota, and will take up his new duties the first of July.

Dr. Foght has had broad academic and professional preparation for the important position that he has been called to fill.

Dr. Foght is known over the entire country as a writer of educational and other topics. His best known works are perhaps The American Rural School, The Rural Teacher and His Work, and Rural Denmark and His Schools.

Dr. Foght has been a member of the United States bureau of education since 1912. He began his work there as specialist in rural education, and has more recently been made chief of the rural school division in charge of the bureau's rural school work for the entire country.

One of our best known national educators in connection with Dr. Foght's election, has this to say: "In my opinion there is no better qualified man in the United States for the presidency of your normal school than Dr. Foght."

Dr. Foght has perhaps had better opportunities for study and concrete work in the broad field of rural education than any other man in our knowledge in the United States.

On the 18th day of February Dewey Spencer left his command at Camp Merritt, N. J., and for some time has been with his people, the A. E. Spencer family near Horace, and Monday evening when he came to Ord to attend the Firemen dance, Sheriff Round picked him up and lodged him in jail and notified the government authorities.

When questioned Dewey claimed that he was home on a furlough but this proved to be incorrect as the government claimed he deserted.

He enlisted March 11, 1918, at Grand Island, and was in Company F of the 26th Engineers. He was eighteen years old at the time he enlisted.

A message received last evening from government officials, instructed Sheriff Round to take young Spencer to Ord at once and he left with him this morning to turn him over to the government authorities.

E. M. Williams is spending this week in Ord, Omaha on business.

THE FIREMAN DANCE

The management of the Fireman dance given Monday night, say they never had such a crowd as attended this time and they are greatly pleased with the way the people supported them.

The auto men held their meeting and appointed themselves a committee to solicit funds for the necessary expenses of the show.

It is also the intention of those in charge of the movement to make the event a social treat to the public as far as possible.

The committee on entertainment, of which C. E. Detweiler is the head, is making an effort to secure a battle tank for the occasion, and if that is found to be impossible a flying machine will be secured if possible.

Already the various dealers in cars and supplies are speaking for both rooms in the big garage and planning on their arrangement and decorations.

Many Ord folks planted one or more trees on Arbor Day but the only real concerted notice taken of the day was a program at the north school given by the pupils.

Mrs. Carrie Lickly has rented her dwelling and will spend a year visiting relatives. She will spend some time with her daughter, Mrs. Stoltz, at Stanton, and later in the summer will go to Michigan for a visit of several months with relatives.

After having to move several times because of the property which they were renting, being sold, Mr. and Mrs. Ferrymans will dispose of their furniture and give up housekeeping.

Chas. Turner has bought the Otto Murschel place on main street just west of the Mrs. Lickly home and will occupy it as soon as the present occupant, Alfred Strickler, can find another residence.

THE AUTO SHOW ASSURED

Last week we mentioned that an auto show was in prospect for Ord. Since then enough work has been done to make the show an assured thing and from the interest that is being taken in the project it will be a hummer.

The auto men held their meeting and appointed themselves a committee to solicit funds for the necessary expenses of the show.

It is also the intention of those in charge of the movement to make the event a social treat to the public as far as possible.

A CLEANUP IS IMPORTANT

People don't realize how much trash there is laying around their places of business. The Quiz office back yard and stairway on the outside was cleaned up Monday morning and two large loads of dirt and trash was carted away.

The water bills for the period beginning Oct. 1, 1919, and ending April 1, 1919, will be due May 1, and will be sent out on that date.

The materials said to be purchased for the new 20-room hospital will be delivered by May 10 and will be subject to ten per cent discount.

It was about thirty days ago that Harry Hushburger was the name of the little, who sat on the sidewalk and received alms from the people of Ord.

Ormsby Petty was not long out of business after disposing of his ice business last week for he was soon negotiating with C. A. Hager who has been on the lookout for a good man to assist him in caring for his ever growing insurance and real estate business.

On several occasions the editor of this paper met W. S. Rodman, banker, farmer and real estate man at his home in Nebraska, and last week after seeing a recent copy he gave a friend a couple of dollars and asked that we send him the paper regularly for a year.

On Monday evening, the 28th, Povel Bjornskjold, the great Danish dramatic tenor, will give an entertainment at the Wentworth opera house in Ord.

Dr. O'Neill came up from North Loup yesterday and performed an operation at the Miller hospital upon Henry Lee for cancer of the upper jaw. The patient is getting along as well as could be expected and his rapid recovery is hoped for and expected.

The play out at District No. 10 has become an annual event and the pleasure of one occasion is fresh in the minds of those who attend when the next time comes so the people put there are sure of a crowd way I to see the Village Schoolma'am.

I have 160 acres of Valley county land that can be bought for $2500. Can practically be all out for hay. It is rolling but not rough. Very easy payments will handle this. If sold for this price it must be sold soon.

JOHN VANSKOY

John Vanscoy was born in Jackson county, Ohio, April 18, 1838, and died at his home in Ord, Nebraska April 18, 1919, aged 81 years.

Mr. Vanscoy spent the early part of his life in his native state, Ohio. He was married to Catharine Todd, November 11, 1860, and to this union eight children were born, five are now deceased, four having died in their youth.

Mr. and Mrs. Vanscoy came to Nebraska thirty-nine years ago. They lived for two years in the eastern part of the state and for thirty-seven years in Valley county.

He was a member of the Methodist Episcopal church for over 52 years. His faith in God was strong, and when health permitted, it was a joy and pleasure for him to be in the services of the church.

Mr. and Mrs. Vanscoy were both called and after being cared for at the Clement home over night he was brought to the Miller hospital where he is being cared for.

Mr. Ryan was in made a few days ago and put in his coat for him and Mrs. Ryan told the Quiz Tuesday that they had been more than kind in every way and she was feeling very thankful indeed for the kindnesses shown them.

A fortnight ago Mr. and Mrs. Tom Fuson came to Ord preparatory to going overseas in the interest of the Y. M. C. A.

The program was varied and heavy opera selections by both singers followed by solos and duets including impersonations, plantation, religious, and other sorts of songs, so that every taste was satisfied.

Robert L. Finch will be here as the last number of the Mira Valley lecture course at the Mira Valley Presbyterian church Monday evening, April 28.

The ladies of the M. E. Church will serve a chicken dinner at their church Saturday evening, May 3rd.

FARMERS BUY ORD STATE

Aside from the bare statement that the farmers have contracted to take over the Ord State Bank and business, we are not able to say this week for the reason that the deal has not yet been closed.

Included in the deal is the corner lot north of the Dworak building which the farmers get and on which they will naturally build later though of course that matter has not been considered as yet.

A meeting of the stockholders of the Farmers Bank will be held at the Bohemian hall this afternoon for the purpose of electing officers for a year to take the place of the temporary officers who were chosen at their recent meeting.

We were privileged this week to read an important letter written by A. J. Firkins to A. J. Wise, offering him the position of manager of a co-operative creamery business at Nampa, Idaho.

Rev. Shick found time Tuesday evening to drop into Ord for the night and spent the time until yesterday noon paying short visits to his numerous friends.

Valleyside's fourth annual play, The Village Schoolma'am, will be given at No. 10 school Thursday evening, May 1.

There has been a pretty general signing of the petitions asking that Ord business men keep open later at night as an accommodation to the farmers.

Remember the Mask ball May 15th.

Last Saturday Louie Mazac and I closed a deal by which they became the owners of the Misko building on the north side, now occupied by the Gano barber shop.

Mr. Mazac says they will start from the bottom and put up a two story building with full basement. A refrigerating plant will be included and the machinery for that has already been ordered.

LOCAL - PERSONAL

On last Monday Ersilia Van Decar returned to Omaha and to her college studies.

On Thursday evening Dick Atwell and his niece Mrs. Mattley, returned home from a day's stay in Grand Island.

Levi Hamilton tells us that he saw Joe Adamek just before leaving La Junta, Colorado. Joe has moved there from Holly, Colorado, and is in business and doing well.

The Union Pacific took Mr. and Mrs. Will Hawkins to Omaha last Monday, where they were to visit their daughter, Mrs. Mollie Knudsen and husband, Miss Gertrude Hawkins has been there for some time. The Hawkins folks will spend a couple of weeks in Omaha.

The Henry Marks family are all at home again since Dan arrived Sunday morning. He has received his discharge and it lacked just one week of being a year since he went down to Camp Funston. He is another one of those boys who is glad to be back home again.

Mrs. A. K. Van Tuyl and daughter, Miss Thelma Purdie, of Omaha, are visiting in the city with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George C. Benaway. They expect to leave in a few days to join Mr. Van Tuyl on their ranch in Wyoming—Grand Island independent. The above news item will be a surprise to some of Art's acquaintances although a few of his friends were aware of his marriage.

Frank Gifford returned last Thursday evening from Grand Island where he had been on business.

Mrs. Homer Daggett returned the latter part of last week from Hastings where she attended A.D. of H. convention as a delegate from the Ord lodge.

On Friday morning Wm. McMullen and son were down from Burwell, Mrs. L. Simpson came down from Elvira bringing her mother with her. The latter had been spending a few days up there.

While in Omaha Miss Goodhand arranged for many attractions for the Gem. Ord has never had the privilege of seeing such pictures before, as the present Gem management is putting on. Miss Goodhand returned home Thursday evening.

Luella Hardenbrook came over the latter part of last week from Arcadia.

On Monday Dr. Billings drove over from Comstock, and of course it rained. He says it does that way every time he drives over this way. He stopped at the Quiz office long enough to order the Quiz a year for his daughter.

Ernest Marks returned to Ord the latter part of last week. When he went with his car load of household goods and machinery, he left his auto expecting to return to Ord and drive it through. He has made several trips this way to Sterling, Colo. His people like their new home very much. Ernest started back this week. He was accompanied on the trip by O. H. Hagemeyer who had business matters to look after here.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

We have before us as we write these notes a program of our Nebraska Baptist State Convention. The convention this year will be held at Grand Island in the Liederkranz Theatre April 26-May 1st. Our state convention program committee believes that the program for this year is the strongest and most attractive that has ever been presented to Nebraska Baptists. On the "Who's Who" pages we find some very interesting talent presented to us, and we are sure the program committee has been very fortunate indeed in being able to make their presence possible. President E. Y. Mullins, D. D., of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary at Louisville, Kentucky, will be our convention preacher. He ranks today as probably the foremost theologian among the Baptists. The Southern Baptist Theological Seminary of Louisville, Kentucky, is the largest Theological School in the world, and Dr. Mullins has been at the head of it for many years. We are thus assured of the fact that the eight addresses he will deliver during the convention will be of a very high order, and that he will be a worthy successor to Dr. George W. Truett who brought us such wonderful inspiration last year.

The inauguration of President Belknap—On Monday evening, April 19, the entire new Faculty of Grand Island College will be on the platform and will be presented to the Convention. The new President, Arthur T. Belknap, will deliver his inaugural. There is no doubt that the new Faculty is superior in preparation and experience to the Faculty of any other college in Nebraska. President Belknap will rank among the foremost of college presidents. The final figures of the college financial will be presented at this inaugural. This service will celebrate the glad triumph in our education struggle.

It is planned to make the music equally as important and as helpful to the Spirit of devotion as the messages of Dr. Mullins. Professor Roper has been secured to have complete charge of the convention music. He is perhaps the most unique, inspiring and interesting interpreter of religious music on the piano that we have in America today. He has been for years the special pianist for the great composer of church and Sunday school music, E. O. Excell. Mr. Roper will give a piano recital interpreting religious and devotional music at the beginning of each session of the convention.

Professor E. O. Excell is the noted composer of church and Sunday school music and editor of our Sunday school song books. In his chosen line he has no peer. He will conduct all the song and praise services throughout the convention. This in itself will be well worth while. You ought to hear Mr. Excell in every session.

There are several other very prominent men whom we would like to include in this list in these church notes but you must attend the convention in order to learn who they are and get in touch with the great work they represent. Any one desiring to know more regarding the program we will be glad to furnish you with a copy.

Service next Sunday morning and evening at the usual hours of worship. We desire to have you attend our services and trust you will be present. There will be no Sunday preaching on account of the absence of the pastor from the city.

The Milling Situation

¶ We are glad to announce that the milling situation is almost back to normal. During the war times all mills, or all of the smaller mills, labored under great difficulties and it is safe to say that none of the small mills made any money. The large mills had the edge over us all the time.

¶ However, we kept our service up to the usual high quality all the time and now that conditions are rapidly getting back to normal we can again furnish all our well known brands of flour.

My Own Column

By H. D. Leggett.

The next big doings in Ord is the auto show.

It will be but a few days now until the press day is over with. Still, why shouldn't we expect little, petty spite acts from a little fife of a man.

Capt Archie Roosevelt is going in for politics and he talks with a punch, surprisingly like the father before him.

After all, with their hogs bringing 20 cents a pound there would seem to be no good reason why the farmer should not buy lumber and build anything he needs.

Remember now I have several good things for those people who want to read. Needlecraft and Modern Frisella for the ladies; any of the daily papers or magazines for the men. I want to send if your subscriptions no matter what the paper or magazine. It costs you no more and I make a few cents on the deal. I can get the Youth's Companion for you for four months for the price of one year.

The fair grounds will make an ideal feed ground for some stockman and more than likely that is what it will be used for.

It will be but a few days now until the pearse terms will be ready for the Germans and we will find out what it cost them to try to conquer the world and make us all slaves.

The Scottsbluff county folks voted bonds last week to build a new two hundred thousand dollar court house and by gum Valley county is just as good a county as Scottsbluff, too.

Say I like the way business men of Ord subscribed when the soliciting committee for the automobile show went around. That kind of cooperation all the time would make Ord a town of five thousand inside of five years.

Hamilton County republicans signed a petition to the representative from that county, asking him to support the code bill and rather censuring Editor Perkins for the fight he has been putting on Governor McKelvie and some other republicans.

Advertising in this paper or anywhere else, brings results only if you have the right stuff to sell. You have got to back up your advertising all the time and you have got to keep eternally advertising, too.

I know of several Valley county farmers who need the son who is still in the army, but unable to get him. It seems to be no trouble however for the base ball players to get prompt discharges to come home and make a thousand or so a month playing ball.

Repairs for machinery are very slow in coming this year according to reports and if binder parts are ordered now you may not get them much before they are needed. Better look the machinery over and order anything that is needed.

Joe Knezacek denies that his deputy will not let him smoke in the office, but I notice that whenever he wants to smoke that real strong old pipe, the one that he had when he first came to Ord, he always comes over to the Quiz office.

Almost every week some fellow sees a poke in this department at some other fellow. Well, I can't help it, if the show is put on, it probably didn't mean you at all. So my people holler for this column that I just have to write it.

Fellow came in the other day and said, "Damn you Leggett, I don't agree with all you say but I always read every word of your dope and the same." I am sure glad he does. If I don't like it I would agree with everyone it would not be my dope.

I doubt the wisdom of parents compelling their children to attend Sunday school, but if they can influence them to attend one of the Sunday schools in Ord they will be doing the kids no harm at all. Those in charge of the Ord Sunday schools are all good people and bent on doing only good.

Col. Ray Burdick has had many changes the past few months to go to surrounding counties and a couple to go to other states, to cry pure bred stock sales. He has been very busy at home however and has turned down the away from home jobs. It goes to prove however that he is getting a great reputation as a auctioneer.

Newspaper advertising is named as one of the chief factors in raising the forty million dollar fund for the Presbyterian church work. The statement is true, no doubt, but the next question is was the advertising paid for or did the Presbyterians ask the papers to donate it while they were the kids, no one is doing.—Harvard Courier.

The government's control of the railroads, gives the high cost of material as a reason for not making improvements and extensions on the line under its control, and then the people and municipalities of the country are to be disturbed by the high cost of material. Seems rather inconsistent don't it?

I notice the papers are full the past few days of stories about the scarcity of lumber and that it is not going to be as cheap as it was a year or two higher. It looks to me as if this dope in the big papers, so much of it all at once, is probably a result of the lumber prices won't be any cheaper but it will be because the lumber output is controlled by the trust.

Expanding to Meet Public Needs

THE packer is a purveyor of foods. Largely dependent on him are the producer, the retailer and the consumer. The farmer looks to the large packing concern to provide outlets for what he raises. The housewife relies upon the packer for an important part of her daily food supply. Retailers expect prompt service and regular deliveries. Thousands of workmen are given gainful employment.

Of all industrial undertakings none is so closely allied to the comfort and security of the nation.

To meet these responsibilities successfully makes large scale operation imperative. For, in order to buy from the grower whenever he is ready to sell, Armour must have a national market to distribute foods everywhere. And conversely, to make food supplies certain, Armour must be able to buy in many producing centers.

Serving both producers and consumers, it is evident that such a business must be conducted fairly and beneficially to all. In no other way can its existence be justified. In no other way could it have thrived.

But to carry out its uses fully, the responsibilities of the business must be met by the responsibilities of those it serves. In its own interests the public must give big business the opportunity to perform the service which is very properly expected of it.

With a multitude of problems to be solved in national collecting and distributing, a complex though smoothly working system has been evolved in the Armour organization through the course of years. Each part dovetails in its work with the rest. All are dependent upon and inter-related with the others.

Food plants would be unable to give stock-growers outlets without the branch houses which are continually competing for trade. And neither the producing plants nor the distributing branches could operate on an efficient and economical basis without the modern refrigerator cars directed under a single management which controls their movements.

In short, the Armour system is the outgrowth of national needs—a system that can give maximum service only as a whole—and that dismembered, would fall to live up to the requirements which the country and city public today demands.

ARMOUR AND COMPANY

bought just a plain, every day pair of shoes, and the other man charged me $8.00 for them. He said he hated to do so but the cost of leather was so great that it never had to day or two later I had to buy a pair of small slippers for the little girl and the man said they were $10.00 each. The seeming high price was due to the present high price of leather and to nothing else. I bought a better pair of shoes has about four times as much leather in it as the pair for the girl makes no difference.

I just naturally wondered if the rules demanded it or whether the postmaster of Ord was making a fine. I marked copy of the Quiz each week before he would allow any of the Quiz editors to be distributed to the Quiz readers, for "damneanness," so I called Curt Parsons and asked how he managed it up there. He says he has to make each copy of the Tribune the same as I do but he don't have to take them to the office till the end of the month. That proves that my suspicions were correct but to make doubly sure I called Uncle Walter's print shop at North Loup. He was out but a sweet voiced lady answered the phone and she said they had to get ready after the paper was all mailed. I also called the Journal, Mr. Davis' own paper, can be mailed at the Ord office and the marked copy brought down by the manager of the Quiz.

For the past few days it has been President Coats of the Farmers Bank. He was chosen last week in place of J. C. Meese who positively declined to serve for various and sufficient reasons. I didn't notice that Coats had swelled up any at being at the head of such a big organization, and he wrote his dope last week and this just the same as usual. I don't know what will be done at the meeting about choosing him for the place for a year but I feel sure he don't want the job for more than his high school do now. However, if he gets it he will do his full part toward making the business a success.

There is greater scarcity of help than there was last year according to reports from the farm agents over the state. The cities are said to be full of men hunting jobs though why they should stay there when they can get fifty to seventy-five dollars and found in the country is a question. I have heard that Ord men are ready that they were unable to get a man to do a few days work at fifty cents an hour.

Up in Antelope county the council of defense got funny last summer and thought it necessary to put the Non-partisan league out of business and caused the arrest of Royal Sheets, league candidate for state senator and a prominent farmer. The council, after arresting him, demanded that he sign a statement renouncing the league which he refused to do. Of course there was nothing they could do but release him. Sheets has recently recovered damages against the defense council and the district judge used the following language in his statement to the jury: "The council of defense were not authorized by law to order a warrant or order to be issued for the arrest of any person to bring him before them for investigation and you are instructed that under the undisputed evidence in this case the said arrest and bringing was unauthorized by law and was instigated and caused by the defendants herein, and others participating with them and constitutes an unlawful imprisonment of plaintiff for which defendants are liable for the damages occasioned thereby." This decision causing some very zealous oppression of the rights of their neighbors last year. A large number of similar cases have been filed and many more are in preparation and will be filed soon.

PROGRAM AND SOCIAL

There will be a community program and basket social at the brick school house, ten miles northeast of Ord, Friday night May 2, 1919. Everybody Welcome. Gertrude Madison, Teacher.

TAXPAYERS TAKE NOTICE

The following statute is in force and the supreme court has passed on the matter in Courtright vs. Dodge County, 24 Nebr. 669. Read this section of our statute carefully and be governed accordingly:

Section 6322—Rev. Stat. requires the assessor to list property brought into this state by any person after April 1 and before July 1, which is found in the possession of the owner, for taxation; and provides that the owner, in order to escape taxation thereon, shall show to the assessor, under oath, and by producing a copy of the assessment duly certified to by the proper officer of the State or County in which said property was assessed, that said property has been listed for taxation for that year in some other County in this State, or in some other State or Territory of the United States, or that said property has been received by him in exchange for money or property listed for taxation during that year.

ANOTHER LETTER FROM PAT

Saarburg, Germany.

Mr. C. H. Partridge, Ord, Nebraska.

Your most welcome letter received yesterday and was sure glad to hear from you and as this is Christmas and I have just finished the best dinner I ever ate in the army, I will try and write you a line or two.

For dinner we had a large piece of ham, brown gravy, peas, spuds, apple sauce. Don't think we eat that way all the time, but since that grand and glorious day of November 11, we have lived pretty good. Say, you say you celebrated when we declared war. You wasn't a bit more ready for peace than us lads up under the guns were. We had been on the Argonne front driving for ten days with dammit, or nothing to eat. On the night of November 10, my birthday, we crossed the Meuse river at midnight in boats, a pretty good nerve trier, fogger than hell, half a mile and very dark. Company "B" drove at the town of Pouilly for its share of the guns, with orders to take and hold. Well, we got her all right with a hundred and fifty dutchmen and a dozen machine guns with it. They had all heard of the armistice and didn't show much fight. We only lost one or two men. They were too ready to holler Kamrad. As it was so dark you couldn't see your hand before your face. I walked over a bank and fell on the rocks and nearly broke my neck, and we cleaned the town out and then took to the cellars for the dutch started to shell—out of us, but at eleven o'clock it was all over and I will never forget that day. Since then we have marched across Belgium and Luxembourg and on into Germany and we have been here ever since and I am sure glad I had the chance to come to Germany for I have learned a lot. We have been taken care of in fine shape by the German people and when any one tells you about how they are starting to death just tell him I said he was lying. I have seen more food and everything in Germany than any country I have been in yet, and I have been in five. When we came across we landed in England and was there a week or ten days and don't care to go back. And France is the poorest country I ever saw. The only thing they are good at is grafting the U. S. soldiers, and they learned that dam quick. I don't know how long we are booked to stay over here but I hope, not for long. I want to plant my feet on the old B. & M. platform at Ord before spring.

Well, I guess I'll have to close for now as I will have to go for a walk to settle this big dinner. Say, even the picture of those red hogs looks good. You never see a red hog here, do you? Private Charles L. Pardue, Co. "C" 355 Infantry.

ESTRAY NOTICE

Notice is hereby given that on the 11th day of March, 1919, there was taken up on my premises in Eureka precinct, Valley County, Nebraska, one stray white sow pig with a few black spots.

CIVIL WAR VETERAN WOULD AID FRIENDS

Says Tanlac Did Him So Much Good He Wants to Give Every Old Soldier a Bottle

"I wish I could buy every old soldier a bottle of Tanlac, for from the way it has fixed me up I believe it would add years to their lives," said Frank B. Kendrick, a Civil War veteran living at 4800 Charlotte avenue, Nashville, Tenn.
"Some time back," he continued, "I had rheumatism so bad, and went down so fast, that it looked like I was on the verge of a general breakdown and had about despaired of ever walking again. I was fast losing what little flesh and strength I had left and could hardly get from my bed to my chair. I had no appetite, could hardly sleep and suffered constantly with headaches.
"After taking Tanlac a short while I began to improve. I kept it up till I have gained thirteen pounds and feel better and younger than I have in years. Tanlac just filled me with new life and energy and put me on my feet again. I have an appetite and can walk anywhere I want to go and hardly feel it at all."
Tanlac is sold in Ord by Ed F. Beranek, and in Arcadia by Copeland & Moore.

CLIPPED FROM NORTH LOUP LOYALIST

Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Green have returned to this place after a year and more spent in Texas and with relatives on the Pacific Coast.

A. L. Crandall received a telegram Monday, telling of the death of his sister, Mrs. A. A. Whitford, at her home in Milton Junction, Wisconsin. Mr. Crandall is now the only member left of his father's family.

We learn that the report of the death of Paul Schoenig is unfounded. His parents received word from him Saturday saying he had landed on American soil and that he was at that time in Indiana and hoped soon to be at home. This is certainly welcome news to his friends.

Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Hoepfner entertained at a dinner party Thursday evening, April 23rd, in honor of the birthday of their little daughter Helen Jane. The guests were: Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Jones, Hayden and Phyllis; Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Jones and Paula; Mrs. Gertrude Carter and Louise Goodrich. Mrs. Laura Newbecker and Ruth Hoepfner of Ord were invited but were unable to attend.

S. L. Clement, who had been in Montrose, Colorado, doing carpenter work for C. O. Earnest for the past year and more, returned home Friday night. He says that Mr. Earnest has one of the finest bank buildings in Colorado and perhaps anywhere in the west—that his business is picking up all the time—that he is one of the best liked men in Montrose. This is, of course, good news to Omar's friends at this place.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lee went to Grand Island Wednesday to spend a few days with relatives. Just as they were ready to take the train, Mr. Lee informed us that they were taking a wedding trip—that fifty years ago Tuesday, the 16th, they were married in Illinois and that at that time they took a trip together at that time they were taking it now. Mrs. Lee added that things are a lot different now from what they were in those days a half century ago. They have a lot of friends who will be glad to unite with the Loyalist in extending to those good people best wishes at their half century wedding celebration. Fifty years is a long time to be married, but both Mr. and Mrs. Lee look as though they had enjoyed the long time together, and both look as though they might live to enjoy many more years with each other. That they may is our wish for them.

VINTON NEWS NOTES

(By E. S. Coats)
Editor Leggett, in his own column, in the Quiz of last week, is going to have me coming to town in a flying machine some time in the future. I do not expect that time will ever come but if it should would it not be nice to have to worry about bad roads? All we should need would be a place to start from and I suppose when we have progressed that far the Quiz building will have a landing place on the roof for their country reporters to park their fliers so the streets of Ord need not worry us any more.

One of our prominent farmers who generally says something when he talks, tells me that we farmers should be doing something towards a big telephone company which would control all the country lines and also own the central office, have it all in one company and not have fifty separate companies in the country and those all separate from the company that owns the central office. The plan is a good one and will mean better service, is the way I have sized it up.
Our farmers banking board used up several days time last week and finally, last Thursday, closed a deal for the purchase of the Ord State Bank.

Several reports have gotten out concerning this proposition and our board members have received some queer messages over the phone. I heard on the street Saturday that the Farmers bank was to start slashing interest rates on time deposits. As a member of the temporary board I can say that nothing of the kind was talked of. We expect to do a regular banking business in a regular way and meet conditions as we find them. Our meeting of the stockholders will be the day the Quiz is printed. The temporary board reports its work to that body that day and the permanent board will be elected. The farmers have taken much interest in this bank proposition and I predict a prosperous future for the Farmers bank. By buying the Ord State bank we come under the old law which has a few more advantages than some of the new laws. One of them is we are under the guarantee law, the same as any other state bank so we feel that our depositors are dollar safe when we think of the guarantee and also of the property holdings of the stockholders.

Grass is late in getting started and hay is also all gone and I fear there will be some very thin cattle this spring. The cold, wet weather has put the farmer back with his work but if the weather will be good from now on the corn will be planted on time.

Last week I sold a load of pigs not yet eight months old to Blessing Bros., for the nice figure of 20 cents per pound. They weighed 323 pounds each. We raise two litters of pigs each year from our sows; about the first of March and the first of September as near as we can. This bunch we sold is a little the best we ever did in weight and the best we ever got in price. I have sold fall pigs at eight months old that weighed 300 pounds before now so beat my own record. These pigs did not exactly have the milk pail hanging on their noses but it was the next thing to that. I estimate that the milk I fed them made a clean profit of $24.60 each. I hope John Meese and Will Hether do not read this spile of mine for they can make that weight on their hogs in six months I hear, but for just an ordinary, every day hog I feel we done something.

The rush at the Farmers store and produce station did not look as much as common on Saturday but the farmers were coming to Ord more than common during the week and the week's business must have been very large. Miss Hazel Travis was helping behind the counter last Saturday.

Rats. Our legislature finally did something to the primary law. I think one do not like their monkeying with it. Our representative, Dave Strong,

The policy of the Ford Motor Company to sell its cars at the lowest possible price, consistent with dependable quality, is too well known to require comment. Therefore, because of present conditions, there can be no change in price on Ford cars:
These prices f. o. b. Detroit.

Runabout, $500
Touring Car, $525
Coupelet, $650 Sedan, $775
Truck chassis, $550

D. B. HUFF, Agent

tells me he was against any change and so were the other real farmer representatives. Some of the representatives who were listed as farmers were not farmers at all. I see some of the other states have repealed the primary law. Can't be possible they are afraid of the Nonpartisan league. It must sure be something else they are afraid of, to go back to the old convention where the farmer and the laborer do not get a look in. They were sure scared but the big scare is yet to come.

Mrs. Holt returned Monday to Kearney. She had been a guest at the home of Frank Benda.

CARD OF THANKS

We take this way of thanking our many friends for their kindness and assistance in our sorrow and trouble and also the Post and Circle.

Last Saturday evening Eunice Stroup came up from Lincoln where she had been caring for her sister Mrs. Fred Lyons during a siege of diphtheria. Miss Eunice has again resumed her duties at the Ord Independent Telephone office.

ESSEX MOTOR CARS

Here Is the Secret Why

The ESSEX Stays New

- Q The frame of the Essex is as strong as a bridge girder.
- Q Road strains do not affect it in the slightest; consequently, the Essex is free from squeaks and rattles.
- Q There is no weaving or twisting of the radiator. The Essex remains rigid and firm under the hardest service. Every wearing part is adjustable as well as being well lubricated. The Essex retains its newness.
- Q Just ask any of the tens of thousands who have ridden in the Essex and who are so enthusiastic in their praise of it to describe how substantially and quietly it rolls over even the roughest roads.
- Q How often motorists, particularly those with light weight cars, have driven miles out of their way to avoid a stretch of bad road, because of the torture to themselves and to the car.
- Q But the Essex is affected by no such abuse. Its spring suspension is unusual and effective. Its construction is so solid that even the roughest cobblestone pavements are passed over with an ease that has created the greatest admiration.
- Q Its friends declare the Essex has no equal in easy riding quality regardless of the size, weight or cost of the car.
- Q When will you take your ride in the Essex?
- Q Any dealer will show you how and why the Essex rides so easily, performs so well and retains its quiet and rigid qualities.
- Q And you will see also a performance of acceleration, speed and power that is comparable only to the highest powered costly cars.
- Q Think how rare these qualities are, even in cars costing much more than the Essex, which in the five-passenger model sells at $1395 f. o. b. Detroit.

Power For All Purposes Whenever Needed

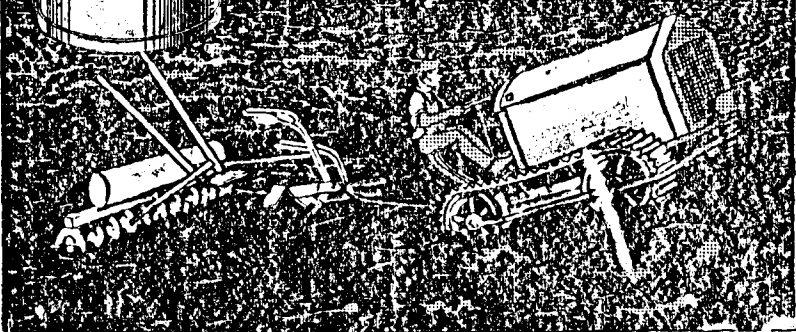

Your tractor is a power plant that's always ready for work— if its engine is kept free from wear by correct lubrication. It requires special lubrication because its operating heat is high— especially when the fuel used is kerosene.

STANOLIND Tractor Oil

is manufactured to stand this extra high engine heat and keep cylinders, valves and bearings protected against ruinous friction. It is the oil that leading tractor manufacturers endorse and recommend. It will keep your tractor fit for hard work the year round at the least cost for overhauling and repairs.

LOCAL HAPPENINGS

Bill Heuck was in Burwell last Sunday visiting friends.

Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Mortensen are in New York City and it is expected they will soon be back to Ord.

Rev. Bukoutz is out of town this week on a Victory Liberty meeting. He was to be at several different towns to hold meetings.

Several sections report a small amount of hail Tuesday night. We are glad that it was not large or very plentiful. Arcadia reports a sprinkle of small hail stones and just a few fell at Ord.

Mrs. James Skoll has bought the Jos. Cernik house a couple of blocks east of the square now occupied by the Walter Bundy family, and will move to Ord this fall and make this town her home.

Bill Heuck, the pleasant young man who has charge of the book accounts at the Farmers Telephone office, went down to St. Paul yesterday and from there he went to Grand Island to take the examination for postmaster. He said he also had business to look after for the telephone people.

On his last trip to Kimball county F. J. Vopat was accompanied by F. J. Stara, Alfred Asgaard, A. C. Wheeler, Chas. Norvold, E. L. Orcutt and M. P. Crosby. Asgaard and Orcutt have closed deals for land out there since returning home and all the gentlemen are greatly pleased with that country.

Mrs. S. A. Stacy and daughter Mrs. Clayton Burke and her little daughter came up from Lincoln last evening and are spending a few days with friends and relatives. Mrs. Burke came to Nebraska from Idaho a few weeks ago expecting that she would meet her husband here soon. However she tells us that Clayton was moved to another place instead of to the seacoast as he expected and he now writes her that he has no prospect of being sent home and has no idea when he will come. He belongs to the 23rd Engineers and has been in the motor truck service. Now that the war is over he is of course very anxious to get home and get to work again. He gave up a lucrative position to enlist early in the war game and saw much service on the other side.

Dr. Blessing tells us that he is going to have his family home from the hospital the first of next week.

Mr. Judd, the Shotwell Mfg. Co. agent at Ord, has moved his family into the Frank Mc Millen house west of the E. M. Williams property.

Mr. and Mrs. Kirby McGrew have rented Mrs. Kegwin's property back of the Journal office, and will soon commence housekeeping in their own home.

Among the outgoing passengers yesterday was Mrs. Hosman, who was going to Norfolk. She was to attend the district convention of the W. H. M. S., one meeting to be held at Plainview and one at Lyons.

Mrs. E. E. Clark and daughter were spending several days in Ord. Ed came up for a short visit and they went back to North Platte yesterday morning. Last year the Clarks lived in Ord and he was one of the managers of the Ord branch of the Penny store. He holds a similar position now at North Platte.

Old timers in Valley county are the Geo. Dennis family. It was but a few weeks ago that the son of the family Ross Dennis and wife of Canisto, New York, visited numerous Ord friends. While they were here Ross' aged mother fell and was badly injured. The Dennis family write this week that she is up and around on crutches. When her son reached her after his Valley county trip, the doctor gave him no hopes at all for her recovery.

On Tuesday evening Cecil Clark arrived in Ord. He has been in the United States about three weeks. He has received his discharge and is now home to stay. His wife and her sister Mrs. Will Slavicek, went to Scotia to meet him in an auto. He says he is mighty glad to be home again. Geo. Dworak has been in the same company with him ever since they left Ord. The latter stopped in Omaha between trains to see relatives and friends.

After several days' stay in Burwell with her sister Lillian Dworak and Mrs. Hattie Johnson came down to Ord yesterday. They made the trip at this time in order to be with their brother George, who was arriving home that day from overseas. Mrs. Johnson and Lillian went down to Scotia on the motor and met the returning soldier boy and rode back with him on the passenger in the evening.

CHAPTER XXII.

A Visit to Maldonado.

Mrs. Hardin's descent on the office that afternoon was successful, but not satisfactory. She had found the manager brief to curtness. She traced Rickard's excuse to the presence of MacLean, and snatched at her cue. She, too, could be businesslike and brief. Her errand was of business; her manner should recommend her!

Rickard had seen her making straight toward the ramada. It was not the first time; her efforts to line her nest had involved them all and often. But today, he was in a bad humor.

"For the Lord's sake," he groaned to MacLean as she approached. MacLean's grin covered relief. He had never heard Rickard express himself on the subject before. "The dead-set Hardin's wife was making at Casey," was the choice gossip and speculation of the young engineers on the Delta. MacLean had a bet up on the outcome. He grinned more securely.

"I am not going to spare any more carpenters," growled Rickard. It was an inauspicious day for Mrs. Hardin's visit. Things had gone wrong. Vexations were piling up. A tilt with Harlin that morning, a telegram from Marshall; he was feeling sore. Deeply they needed labor. Wooster had just reported, vehemently, it appeared to Rickard's spleen, increasing drunkenness among the Indians. Gerty's ruffles swept in. Her dress, the blue mull with the lace medallions, accented the hue of her eyes, and looked deliciously cool that glaring desert day. Her parasol, of pongee, was lined with the same baby hue. Her dainty fairness and childish affability should have made an oasis in that strenuous day, but Rickard's disintegration of temper was too complete. He rose stiffly to meet her, and his manner demanded her errand.

She told it to him, plaintively. Her eyes were appealing, infantile. Would it be too much to ask, would Mr. Rickard mind in the least, he must be perfectly frank and tell her if they would be in the way at all, but while this hot spell lasted, could they, the three of them, eat in the mess tent with the men?

"Surely!" Rickard met it heartily. She would find it rough, but if she could stand it, yes, he thought it a good idea. And then there was nothing for her to do but go. Her retreat was grateful, without haste, dignified. She smiled a farewell at MacLean, who was watching the approach of Linda Harlin and Estrada. Rickard did not see the aborted entrance of Harlin's sister and the young Mexican. He was itching to be at his work.

He let out a growl when Mrs. Hardin was out of earshot. "Shucks! What in Halifax do women come to a place like this for? There's Harlin—brings in two women to cook for him, and now, please may they all eat with the men?"

His secretary subdued a chuckle. He was visualizing a procession of boxes of choice Havanas—from Bodefeldt, Hamlin and the rest of the gang. He need not buy a smoke for a year. Rickard threw himself back in his chair. "Take this letter, MacLean. To Marshall." Then his worry diverted him. "Who in thunder is selling liquor to my Indians?"

"Hold on; that letter can wait. You get the horses up, MacLean, and we'll ride down to Maldonado's. It's his place to stop this liquor business, not mine."

A few hours later they were approaching the adobe walls of Maldonado. They found the gate locked. A woman, whose beauty had faded into Hog prices went back to the high levels of the year on a run of 9,700 head. Several loads of heavy hogs sold at $20.65, the top, and the bulk brought $20.20@20.50. Both the packing and shipping market was active at the 15@30c advance over Monday.

Lamb prices slumped sharply Tuesday morning, fresh supplies amounting to 10,000 head. Best handy weight lambs sold at $19.65 as against $19.50 Monday, and the bulk of them sold at $19.00@19.50. There were scarcely any aged sheep here and the market was notably steady.

Quotations on sheep and lambs: Lambs, fed, handy weight, $19.25@19.65; lambs, fed heavy weight, $19.00@19.25; lambs, shearing, $17.00@17.50; lambs, clipped, $15.50@16.25; lambs, culls, $9.00@13.00; yearlings, $10.00@17.00; weathers, $15.00@18.00; ewes, good to choice, $14.00@15.25; ewes, fair to good, $12.00@14.00; ewes, poor to fair, $9.00@12.00; ewes, culls, $3.00@9.00.

The Belgian peace conference delegation is quoted as saying that Belgium had not been asked to try the former German emperor, and that any action should be taken by a commission representing all the associated powers.

L. D. Pierce, Jr. is up from Horado for a couple of days this week.

Fred Harris arrived this morning from Portland, Oregon, and is visiting friends for a few days.

Mrs. Mable Wright was a guest for a few days at the Dagggett home. Her home is at Kansas City but she came to Grand Island on account of the illness of her mother.

Dr. Howes, Sr. will be out of town for several days, leaving Friday noon. Dr. Howes reports the son of Fred Pratt as having a dislocated shoulder, the result of wrestling.

WILL HAVE MASQUERADE BALL

At the firemen dance the other evening Chief Shirley announced that the firemen would give a masquerade ball in the near future and Thursday evening May 15, has been set as the date. Of course it will be at the Bohemian hall. It is proposed to make this the finest dance of the season and all who go will be assured of a good time. Remember the date.

Yesterday Zofie Korinek left for Omaha to spend a few days with relatives and to have her eyes tested.

Old papers—for pantry shelves, under carpets, to start fires, for various uses—five and ten cents at this office.

The Weekes family were entertaining relatives, who returned last Thursday to their home at Aurora, Ill. They were Mrs. G. E. Schmidt and son Edward.

Between trains yesterday was Mrs. August Baker of North Loup. She has twin boys about nine. She would accept a position in the country as housekeeper as she does not care to bring the boys up in town.

Yesterday morning Mrs. James Barnes returned to Greeley after several days spent in Ord. On the Burlington going down to Greeley from Burwell was a sister of Mrs. Barnes who was planning on a visit of a few days.

The latter part of last week Mrs. Mitchell, the mother of Mrs. Anthony Thill and Edwin Mitchell, returned home from Lincoln where she had been spending the winter. We neglected also to mention the return of Merl Norman from California. He had been out there for several months.

Among the outgoing passengers last Friday was Mary Zukoski, who was going to Omaha and other points to spend Easter. The same morning Ann Shonka went down to Schuyler to spend a few days at home. This is Miss Shonka's first visit to her home town in nearly a year.

a tragic whisper, a ghastly twilight of suggestion, came to their knock, and unbarred the gate for the white strangers. Mystery hung over the inclosure like a pall.

Rickard told his errand. Maldonado sputtered and swore. By the mother of Mary the Virgin, that thing would be stopped. He showed to the seniors, with pride, his badge. He was a ruffian; he was there to uphold the law. He had caught some of those drunken Indians on the road. He had brought them here.

Maldonado showed three men in a locked shed, deep in drunken stupor. He thought the liquor was obtained (Continued on page five) to start the fall insurance business this season, for with both crop conditions and market prospects never better, even the "well-fixed" farmers feel they cannot afford to risk the loss of the crop when there is protection to be had at so moderate a rate. Fall insurance is the only kind that has not been increased in cost during the past year. In fact, we have a new plan providing for fall insurance up to $27 per acre, that costs less than seven per cent.

While we cannot carry but $12 per acre in the old standby—the St. Paul Fire and Marine—we have other good companies in our agency each ready to carry as much more on the same risk for any who want to have better protection. All will want it too, for the bumper crop in sight.

We are taking applications now, and advise you to cover your wheat very soon, taking a vantage of our plan for fall payment if you are short of money now.

LOCAL HAPPENINGS

Joe Daly went to the Island this morning on business.

Mr. and Mrs. William Dodge of Elyria, are the parents of a ten pound baby boy born April 17th.

Ross Beauchamp was in town Tuesday evening enroute home from Colorado. He was accompanied by a bride.

Clarence Coe, Lincoln banker, was in Ord yesterday attending to business matters. Of course he found a little time to call on some of his numerous Ord friends.

While at Scottia Tuesday Mrs. Jack Johnson found time to visit John Allen, Mr. and Mrs. Burkard, and also called at the Jack Riley farm close to town where they were royally entertained.

The body of Mrs. William Beck was brought from Burwell this morning and was met here by the Cotesfield undertaker with his hearse and taken there for burial. The Beck's formerly lived there and moved to Burwell a year or so ago.

When the Herman Mattley family was here recently for a visit at the Haskell home he went home leaving them here for a longer visit. Saturday he drove up from Lincoln after them, bringing Miss Zerna Haskell along with him and they all returned to Lincoln Monday.

Mrs. C. C. Shepard of Ord and Mrs. Chas. Ryan of Grand Island, went down to North Loup to do some Victory Liberty Loan work last Tuesday, and in the evening the doctor drove them over to Arcadia on a similar mission. There they were caught in the storm and had to stay all night.

George Dworak, who has received his discharge and is home to stay, says he met Will Udel shortly before leaving France and that at that time he didn't know of the death of his wife. After arriving in New York George met his brother Frank while walking along the street. Such a meeting must surely have been a surprise.

The Laurel Study club met at the home of Mrs. Jane Hager last Friday afternoon. The new members taken in this year are, Mrs. Darlene Studley, Mrs. Lucille Robinson, Miss Helen Corlett, Miss Merry Micklewait and Miss Gertrude Hawkins. This is the last meeting of the year and the club will have vacation until the first Friday in October.

Go to Bailey & Detweiler for fishing tackle. 4-2t

Mr. and Mrs. Claude Rathbun are the parents of a baby boy born last evening at the Miller hospital.

The little adopted son of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Petty, submitted to a slight operation at the hospital yesterday.

Dr. and Mrs. Keene of Ericson, drove over from Ericson Tuesday and yesterday Mrs. Keene submitted to an operation at the Miller hospital.

Frank Stars took occasion, while on a recent trip to the western part of the state, to visit Mr. and Mrs. Will Wisda at Lexington. He says they are well and getting along fine.

Yesterday Mrs. H. P. Clausen returned to her home at Schuyler after a visit at the home of her daughter Mrs. Roy Hansen. She came to see the new granddaughter which came to the Hansen home a couple of weeks ago.

Homer Veder arrived home last evening from Detroit, Michigan, where he has been for several months taking a special course of study at the Ford auto factory. He will be employed at the Huff garage.

The court yard is a beautiful place now and the lawn is mostly given up to the dogs of town as a playground. There were five or six dogs in a bunch playing there this morning and not one of them had a collar or tag as evidence that they had a right to be there. Are our dog laws being enforced?

COMMISSIONER FOGT MARRIED
Last Sunday at the home of Judge Gudmundsen, occurred the marriage of ex-Commissioner John Focht of Elyria, and Christina Ziegler, Judge Gudmundsen performing the ceremony. The lady has been his housekeeper for several years.

A special nurse arrived last evening to help care for William H. H. Ramsey who has been very ill for a long time. Mrs. Ramsey has been caring for him but is now seriously ill herself, being worn out with the work of caring for her husband.

William Bailett and C. S. Jones returned last evening from Grand Island where they had been to take the examination for the position of postmaster at Ord. They with William Henck are the applicants for the place and we are assured of a good postmaster no matter which one gets the place.

somewhere back in the sandhills. He would find the place. But the senior must be patient; his hands were so full.

Both men were glad to get away from the place and Maldonado. Obviously he was a brute; undoubtedly he was a liar.

CHAPTER XXIII.

A White Woman and a Brown.

For a few weeks Mrs. Hardin found the mess tent diverting. Before the Delta had expanded the capacity of the camp her soft nook had been overtaken, her hospitality strained. The men of the reclamation service, thrown into temporary inactivity, were eager to accept the opportunity created for another. Falling that other, her zeal had flagged. Events were moving quickly at the break; Rickard was absorbed. Mrs. Hardin told herself that it was the heat she wished to escape; not to her own ear did she whisper that she was following Rickard, nor that the percolator and chafing dish, her shelves and toy kitchen were a wasted effort. She kept on good terms with herself by ignoring self-confidences.

Rickard, the discovery unfolded slowly, took his meals irregularly. His breakfast was gulped down before the women appeared; his dinners where he found them.

"No wonder!" reflected Gerty Hardin. "Ling's cooking is so bad." Small wonder the manager foraged for his meals.

She worked out a mission as she lay across her bed that hot afternoon. Her duty became so clear that she could no longer loiter. Immediately she must retrieve her weeks of idleness; what must Rickard think of her? She buttoned herself thoughtfully into a frock of pale colored muslin, cream slipping toward canary. White was too glaring on a red-hot day like this. Pink was too hot, blue too definite. A paragon of pastel green, and she looked like a sprig of fragrant mint.

She found the open space of the trapezium swarming with strange dark faces. So silent their coming she had not heard the arrival of the tribes. She isolated the Cocopahs, stately as bronze statues, their long hair streaming, or wound mud-caked under the brilliant headcloths. Foregathered with them were men of other tribes; these must be the Yumas and Degulnos, the men needed on the river. These were the men who were to work on the rafts, weave the great matresses. A squad of short-haired Pimas with their squaws and babies and their gaudy bundles, gaped at the fair-haired woman as she passed. The central space was filling up with Pimas and Maricopas, Papagoes, too; she knew them collectively by their short hair. These were brush cutters.

Then, then, meant the beginning of rival activity. Tom would at last be satisfied. He would no longer suik and rage alternately at the hold-up of the work.

Before she reached Rickard's ramada she saw that another woman was there. She caught an impassioned gesture. Her only surmise rested on Innes. Gerty saw that she was dark; she looked the halfbreed. The brown woman drew back as the white woman entered. Gerty smiled an airy reassurance. She herself would wait. She did not want to be hurried. She told Rickard that she had plenty of time.

"There is something you want to tell me?" Rickard's patience was courteous but firm. He would hear her errand first. Gerty, remembering the imploring attitude of the stranger, determined that she would not be sent away.

"Will you excuse me, senora? It will be only a minute!" She was to tell her errand, and briefly! Gerty swept past the intruder.

"Sit down, Mrs. Hardin." Resenting the infection, she said she would stand. Her voice was a little hard, her eyes were veiled, as she told her mission. Her usual fluency dragged; she felt a lack of sympathy. In short, she proposed a commissary department, herself in charge. "I'd like to feel I was of some use," urged Gerty. "My heart is bound up in this undertaking; if I'm allowed to stay, I'd like to help along. This is the only way I can, the woman's way."

"Aren't you taking a good deal on yourself, Mrs. Hardin?" Then she forgave his hesitation quite, as it was of her he was thinking. "Not if it helps." Her voice was low and soft, as if this were a secret between them.

"Why, of course, anything you want, Mrs. Hardin." And, remembering her former position, he added, "The camp's yours as much as mine."

A glad smile rewarded him. She went out, reluctantly. There was a new significance in MacLean's absence from the ramada. What could that woman have to say that MacLean must not hear? For the first time the weak tenure on her old lover came to her. Not a sign had he yet given of their understanding, of the poignant situation. Themselves old sweethearts, thrown together in this wilderness. What had she built her hopes on? A word here, a translated phrase, or magnified glance. She would not harbor the new worry. Why, it would be all right. In the meantime she would show them all what a woman with executive ability could do.

"Sit down, senora," said Rickard to the brown woman, Maldonado's wife. "Don't be frightened. We won't let him hurt you." Rickard vulgarized his Castilian to the reach of her rude dialect. Familiar as was Rickard with the peons' speech in their own country, he could not keep up with her story. Lurid words ran past his ears. Out of the jumble of abuse, of shame and misery he caught a new note.

"You say Maldonado himself sells liquor to the Indians?" "Ssh, senora!" Someone might hear him! She looked over a terrified shoulder. That had slipped out, the selling of the liquor. She could have told her story without that; she wanted to deny it. Relentlessly Rickard made her repeat it, acknowledging the truth.

"What makes you tell me now?" Rickard hunted for the ulcer. He knew there was a personal wrong. "What has Maldonado been doing to you? Has he left you?" The veil of fear was torn from her eyes. The trembling woman was gone, a vengeful wildcat in her place. "Left me, Maldonado? Left his home, where he traps the Indian with one coin in his pockets? No, senora. He brought her to our home, there; Lupe, the wife of Felipe, the Domingo. I told him not to fool with Felipe; the Indian was dangerous; he had hot blood. Maldonado struck me—he kicked me—he said I was jealous—and hit me again.

"Maldonado told me to get a big meal. I told him that it was for Felipe. When I said I would not cook for that treachery he cursed me, he kicked me again." She threw off the reboso, dragging her dress loose. "Don't," frowned Rickard. He had seen a well across her shoulder—a screaming line of pain.

She wound the reboso around the dishonored shoulder. "I cooked his dinner! There was a lot of liquor—"

Felipe was drunk; the tequila made him mad, quite mad. He seemed to know something was wrong; he fought as Maldonado dragged him to the cell, the senior remembers the cell! The next day Maldonado sent for two rales. They started the next day for Encenada, taking Felipe; that day Maldonado brought Lupe home. I said she could not stay and he laughed in my face, senora. He put me outside the walls. I beat that gate until my fingers bled. I remembered the kind face of the senior, and then I came here. You will help me, senora!"

Rickard shook his head. "I shall have to look into this thing. If this is true it's prison for your husband."

You won't have to fear Lupe." "When he gets out he will kill me, senora."

The terror was seizing her again. Before she could begin her pleading he called to MacLean.

"Ask Ling to find a tent for Senora Maldonado. Tell him to give her a good meal."

He must trap the rogue. That infernal place must be closed. The woman had come in the nick of time. Those tribes were to be guarded as restless children.

CHAPTER XXIV.

Rickard Makes a New Enemy and a New Friend.

The coming of the Indians gave the impetus the work had lacked. Under Jenks of the railroad company a large force was put on the river; these, the weavers of the brush mattresses that were to line the river bed. On the banks were the brush cutters; tons of willows were to be cut to weave into the forty miles of woven wire cable waiting for the cross strands. Day by day the piles of willow branches grew higher, the brush cutters working ahead of the mattress workers in the stream. In the dense undergrowth the stolid Indians, Pimas and Maricopas and Papagoes, struggled with the

CAUSE vs. EFFECT

The principle of Chiropractic (adjust the cause and the effect is eliminated) is right. Clinical observation of tens of thousands of cases, as far as can be learned every known condition the human body is subject to, shows conclusively that this science is reaching all conditions and correcting the cause of disease, opening the way for Nature to cure.

Chiropractic should be thoroughly investigated by those who are sick, or by those whose dear ones are suffering from disease. Chiropractic courts investigation. A science which is based upon logical principles delights in being investigated; while a pseudo evades analysis. Do not insult your intelligence by ridiculing the great science with which you are unfamiliar; nor will you be a stumbling block to those who want to come in touch with this science. Chiropractic invites suffering persons to come to see her and to get well. Do not abuse the best friend of poor suffering humanity, CHIROPRACTIC. Call at my office and let me convince you of the accuracy of the Chiropractic method of locating and removing the cause of disease.

Mrs. J. W. Galford went to Burwell Friday evening on the train and she expects to spend several days with friends.

M. E. Goodenow is ailing again with stomach trouble.

Miss Stella Sharp came up from St. Paul Friday, remaining until Monday morning when she and her brother Douglas motored to Ord in time for the outgoing U. P. train.

Another bunch from the Burwell school came down Friday going back on the train. Prof. Sawyer came along with them. They seemed to enjoy themselves. The Burwell school gives our station quite the appearance of a young metropolis occasionally.

The ladies of the H. Strong family were Tuesday morning passengers to Ord.

E. G. Brechbill and family, M. B. Goodenow and family, and Martin Kruser, nine guests all told, were the Easter dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Wright.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Brockus were down from Burwell Thursday. Mrs. Brockus spent the day with Mrs. Goodenow while Mr. Brockus was at his farm overseeing repair work on the house. Fred Bunnell did the work.

Chas. Gregory, the Delco Light man, called at Goodenows Tuesday. Mrs. R. B. Miller came out Tuesday from Burwell to visit her daughter's school.

Wilford Haines arrived Monday and is visiting his mother, Mrs. John Garrison near Willow Springs.

LOCAL — PERSONAL

John Ambrose made a business trip to Scotia and back Monday.

Mrs. W. E. Gowan of North Loup was in Ord between trains last Monday.

Among the outgoing passengers last Monday for Lincoln was Mrs. Powell, the wife of the Burlington passenger agent at Elyria.

Monday evening Ralph Harris came back from Genoa leaving his son well satisfied in the home of an aunt. Ralph will leave in a few days for his parents' home in Kansas.

On Tuesday, Mr. Gregory, the brother of Mrs. E. C. James, started on his return trip to Canada. He was accompanied as far as the Island by his sister Mrs. James and their mother, Mrs. Gregory.

There were several passengers up from North Loup who returned on the motor Tuesday. Among them were Mrs. Lew Sheldon and her daughter Fern, Mrs. Ruth Hudson and Ruby and Ollie Shultz; a Mr. Webber and Dr. Hempt; Eva Watt and Zoa Clements, Edna Smith and Miss Thornage also returned to North Loup that day.

Among the outgoing passengers Tuesday was Mr. and Mrs. John Fogt, who were going to Rochester, Minn.

Will Post, a brother of Mrs. John Ambrose, and a brakeman on the Burlington, was a passenger down to Ravenna last Tuesday.

Monday evening Grace Seerley and a gentleman friend came up from Grand Island to attend the Firemen's dance. They left again the next morning.

In a few days Mrs. Will Slavicek and baby will leave for Scranton, Ia., where they will visit a brother of the former, after which they will return to Colorado Springs to make their home.

On Saturday the A. L. Crouch family drove down to Scotia to see Mr. Crouch who is recovering from an operation. Mrs. Crouch went down and back on Monday, thinking it would make the time pass more rapidly for Mr. Crouch to see his relatives once in awhile.

Norris Van Wie has moved out on the C. F. Hughes place, formerly the John Sharp ranch. However Norris will not live alone. The house is this week undergoing some improvements, and in a few days will be ready for a housekeeper.

NEGLECTED ITS DUTY

Many who saw the antidirect primary bill put across in the senate in the rush of the closing days say that had all the senators known that the bill turns the railroad commission over to convention control the bill would not have passed. The bill was explained as taking the "inferior" state offices away from the primary and giving them to the convention. Members did not seem to realize that this meant regulation of railroads and public utilities by political conventions, a function more important than the powers of half a dozen governors rolled into one. The bill, in fact, put under the convention practically all of the state government in which political boss interests have any great concern railroads, public utilities, insurance and taxation. Some senators voted for the bill whose action is explained only on the ground of ignorance of its contents and implications.—State Journal.

Well, if the above is true what was the State Journal, great city paper and supposed friend of the people, doing that it didn't enlighten the people as to what the proposed bill contained. The Journal should have made the intent of the bill so plain that not a senator could have said afterward that "he didn't know it was loaded."

Jose Kris is able to sit up and is slowly getting. She is very anxious to be well and return to her work again.

J. E. Hoover, who has been around here for the last month, returned to Montana Tuesday. He is a son in law of Geo. Cummins.

Monday evening Mrs. Forrest Robinson arrived home from Lincoln where she had been visiting for a couple of weeks.

Joe's Hardenbrook and Tam Round returned Sunday to Arcadia after spending a day with their parents in Ord.

Mrs. Elmer Olsen returned Saturday morning accompanied by her sister Gertrude Anderson. They are the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Anderson.

Tuesday Father Koloski was a passenger for Farwell. The same day Mrs. Kulis and Rose Goss went to Grand Island. Mrs. Kulis will enter the Catholic hospital for examination and possibly an operation.

On Saturday Jim Siler came up from Hastings. He is looking better than when he left Ord several months ago. At that time he was recovering from a severe case of flu.

Cecil Clark wrote that he would be home this week. It has been about three weeks since he landed. He went to Camp Mills and from there left for Iowa and he will receive his discharge from Camp Dodge.

The latter part of last week Mrs. Mary Sowers left for Wyoming for a few weeks visit. She has been promising herself this treat for a long time but up until the present month she never could find time to get away. She also had business affairs that demanded her presence out there.

Saturday morning Mollie Hinesh returned to Seward after a visit at the Blanch Hinesh home. Her home is in South Dakota but she has been working at Seward. Edna and Mary Hinesh, who for a short time have been visiting at their father's home, will return in a few days to their work at Wahoo.

Last Saturday Truck Ramsey left for his home at Lava, Hot Springs, Idaho, and Tuesday his brother John was a passenger for the same place. Their sister Edna Jackson, also left the same morning. They had been here to see their father who has been ill for a long time.

Mrs. Wells returned last week from California where she has been spending the winter with her daughter, Mrs. Will Brown. She went primarily in the hope that her health would be better out there but admits now that she was not as well as when in Ord and is very glad to be home again.

Tuesday morning Flossie Philbrick was taken to the sanitarium at Lincoln. She has a severe case of rheumatism and has been bed-ridden for some time. She was accompanied by her brother C. O. Philbrick and by C. E. Norris. The latter's family have been sick for several weeks, in fact one of the boys is up this week after a month's tussel with lung trouble.

FARM BUREAU NOTES

Although small grain smuts can be controlled by treating the seed with formaldehyde this treatment is of no use in the control of corn smut. The spores which spread this smut live over winter in the soil and infect the plant during the growing season. The smuts of small grains winter on the seed and infect the plant during the seedling stage so may be destroyed by disinfection of the seed. So far no practical method has been worked out for the control of the corn smut.

This office is prepared to furnish either Government blackleg vaccine or germ free liquid vaccine at all times. The liquid vaccine costs 21 cents per dose and is handled by us at cost. It furnishes protection for life. The government vaccine is free and will give immunity for about six months.

Farmers who keep their records in the farm record book put out by the College of Agriculture, according to directions will save a lot of trouble in making income tax returns. This book has been accepted as official by the U. S. government. Certain collectors refused to accept inventories last year but they will be accepted hereafter.

Mrs. Schmidt of Illinois, who has been visiting at the Weekes home went down to Greeley Tuesday.

Last Saturday Lillian Bailey went down to Scotia and visited her friend Pearl Hughes until the first of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Merritt returned Tuesday to Valparaiso, Neb., after having been here to attend the funeral of her father, Mr. Vanscoy.

E. J. Babcock and daughter Kate, and Mrs. Chas. Barber, were up from North Loup Monday, the former looking after business matters.

Harry Dye was in Scotia between trains last Thursday. Joe Long and J. Willard returned the same evening from Grand Island. Other visitors at the island who returned home that evening were Anna Kosmata and Tina Lane. Mrs. Everett returned to North Loup and Bert Hardenbrook was a passenger that afternoon for Fremont.

Our friend, Christian Sorensen must be going into business at Elyria. There was a large sign at the depot Friday which was sent up to that city. The sign gave us to understand that Chris would sell meat and have a lunch counter at which we could buy ice cream, candy, cigars, and a number of good things to eat.

On last Thursday Mrs. Fred Kuehl again left for Kirksville, Mo., where she will enter the hospital for treatment and perhaps an operation. It was several months ago that she went to this place and received much benefit. She did not wait this time until she was in such a serious condition, although she was feeling quite miserable when she left Ord.

HOME AT AUCTION

I will sell my house and two acres, north of the Ord mill, Saturday afternoon, April 28. Small payments and easy terms.

Twenty Years Hence

We may not think much about it now but TWENTY YEARS HENCE we'll regret it if we don't have a picture of the soldier boy in his uniform as he came marching home from the great war. Now is the time to act for it may be too late in six months. We have already taken many of these pictures but there are others who have neglected the matter. That's why we are calling your attention to it now.

O. B. Mutter

The two smaller children in the Will Tolbert family went down to Greeley for a short visit last Saturday.

Tuesday morning E. M. Williams bought a ticket for Grand Island. Alvin Pierce was also an out-of-town passenger the same morning.

The latter part of last week Mamie Tolbert returned to Ord from a couple of days stay with her mother and sister at Hastings.

Alvin Blessing returned the latter part of last week from Omaha where he had been on telephone business. He accompanied a shipment of the Blessing Bros. stock as far as Aurora on the trip down.

Monday evening Edna Smith came up from North Loup and was a guest of Ord friends until the next day.

Last Saturday Tony Kosmata left the hospital and returned to his home. In a few days he expects to go back and submit to an operation.

Last week Sershen Bros. unloaded a car load of Maxwell trucks. Hughes & Burdick also received a car of Studebakers.

Just for a short stay with Grandmother Pierce, Mrs. Geo. Selvers went down to Horace last Monday. Since making her home with her son L. O. Pierce at that place, Grandmother Pierce has been in very poor health.

Watch Value

IF YOU are seeking the utmost in watch value for your money, the greatest timekeeping accuracy coupled with beauty and modernness of design, don't neglect to see the new 19-Jewel watches which we are now displaying. They belong to the famous family of

South Bend Watches

One of these 19-jewel watches adjusted to FOUR positions and sold complete at $35.00 is the most remarkable watch value we have ever seen. Remember this is only one less position adjustment that is given the most expensive railroad watches. And it is the number of adjustments that determines accuracy.

You may have your choice of 12 or 16 size in many handsome case designs.

PARKINS

ferce thorn of the mesquit and the overpowering smell of the arrow weed. As tough as the hickory handles they wielded, they fought a clearing through dense thickets in the intense tropic heat.

Down stream the Broddingnagan arm of the dredge fell into the mud of the by-pass, dropping its silty burden on the far bank. Down the long stretch of levee the "skinners" drove their mules and scrapers; two pile drivers were setting in the treacherous stream the piles which were to anchor the steel-cabled mattresses to the river bed. It was a well-organized, active scene. Rickard, in his office, dictating letters and telegrams to MacLean, Jr., felt his first satisfaction. Things were beginning to show the result of months of planning. Cars were rushing in from north and east; every quarry between Los Angeles and Tucson requisitioned for their undertaking.

A shadow fell on the pine desk. Ling, in blue ticking shirt and white butcher apron, waited for the "boss" to look up. He stood wiping the perspiration from his head, hairless except for the long silk-tapered queue.

"Well, Ling?" His voice was soft as silk. "No stay?"

"It was a thunderclap. There was no one to replace Ling, who was drawing down the salary of a private secretary. Lose Ling? It would be more demoralizing to the camp than to lose an engineer."

"Money all right. Bossee all right. No like woman. Woman she stay, Ling do."

"Mrs. Hardin?" Rickard woke up. "She all time make trouble. She crazy. She think woman velice fine cook. She show Ling cookie plunes. Teachee Ling cookie plunes! I no stay that woman." Unutterable finality in the leathern face. Rickard and MacLean, Jr., exchanged glances which deepened from concern into perplexity. They could not afford to lose Ling. And offend Mrs. Hardin, the camp already hardheaded?

Rickard grew placating. "He spent a half hour wheeling. They met at the starting place. "Ling go, tamale." "Oh, Lord," groaned the manager, capitulating. "All right, Ling."

With the dignity of an oriental prince, Ling pattered out of the tent, Rickard was puckering his lips at his secretary. "I'd rather take castor oil."

A half hour later, MacLean saw his chief leave his tent. He was in fresh linens.

"I wouldn't swap places with him this minute! She'll be as mad as a wet hen!"

Mrs. Hardin, from her bed by her screen window, saw him coming. She slipped into a semineglect of alternate rows of lace and swiss constructed for such possible emergencies. She did not make the mistake of smoothing her hair; her instinct told her that the fluffy disorder bere of the use of the negligee. She was sewing in her ramada when Rickard's knock sounded on the screen door.

Despite his protests she started water-boiling in her chafing dish. He had not time for tea, he declared, but she insisted on making this call of a social nature. She opened a box of sugar wafers, her zeal that of a child with a toy kitchen; she was playing doll's house.

Rickard made several openings for his errand, but her wits sped like a gopher from his labored digging. She met his mood with womanly dignity; she tutored her coquette, withheld her archness.

He found he would have to discard diplomacy, blunt out his message; wad bludgeons for this scamperer's agility. "My mission is a little awkward, but I hope you will take it not be of-ended." Her face showed alarm.

"He's about Ling. He's a queer fellow; they all are, you know." He was blundering like a schoolboy under the growing shadow in Gerly's blue eyes. "They resent authority—that is, from women. He is a tyrant, Ling is."

"Yes?" Ah, she would not help him. Let him founder!

"He wants to be let alone; he doesn't appreciate your kind help, Mrs. Hardin."

"Oh!" Her eyes were hot with tears—angry tears. She sat not speak or would not. She sat in her spotted doll's house, all her pleasure in her toy dishes, her pretty finery, ruined. He could not care if he could humiliate her so. It was the most vivid moment of her life. Not even when Rickard had left her, with his kisses still warm on her lips, had she felt so outraged. He was treating her as though she were a servant—discharging her—because she was the wife of Hardin. Her eyes grew black with anger; she hated them both; between them, their jealousy, their rivalry, what had they made of her life? She remembered the woman she had seen in his ramada; she had heard that the Mexican was in camp, employed by Rickard. Her thoughts were like swarming hornets.

"He's an ungrateful beast, Mrs. Hardin. I told him I would not let you waste your kindness one instant longer—"

"Oh, she understood! A bitter pleasure to see him so confused. Rickard, before whose superior appraisal she had so often wilted! She would not help him out, never! She rose when he paused. He thanked her for meeting him half way, and her smile was inscrutable.

"You can't be discharged if you've never been employed, can you? Thank you once again, and for your tea. It was delicious. I wish Ling would give us tea like that."

"Boorish, all of it, and blundering! Why wouldn't he go? When he had hurt her so! had hurt her so!

Her hand met his, but not her eyes. If he did not go quickly something would happen; he would see her crying. The angels that guard blunderers got Rickard out of the tent without a suspicion of threatening tears. She threw off her negligee and the pale blue slip; the tears must wait for that. Then she flung herself on her bed and shook it with the grief of wounded vanity.

LADIES PUSHING THE LOANDRIVE The ladies of the county are pushing the Victory Loan drive this week, with varying success. In some localities the people are said to be subscribing liberally while in other neighborhoods they are not taking hold as the committee thinks they should. The total to be subscribed by this county is $390,000, and it was hoped that Valley county would go over the top this week. From present indications it will not do so.

Returns from the outside of Ord are not sufficient yet to enable those in charge of the work to make an estimate and it is not known how much of our quota has been subscribed. The full quota for this county should be raised however and it is the duty of everyone who is able to do so, to help.

Meet me at Millford's.
