ONE POINT WINS FRENZIED GAME FOR G. I. LEGION

Island Team Comes From Behind To Grab Game From City League All-Stars.

The one point that has decided many a basketball game was all that Ord needed to stand off and feat here Monday night but with less than twenty seconds to play that one point loomed larger than the smoke stack at the city light plant and the City League All-Stars went down to defeat at the hands of the G. I. American Legion, the final score being 23 to 22. Six hundred frenzied fans saw the All-Stars out in front all the way through, only to lose in the dying moments of the game when Nath and McElroy dropped long shots and McElroy tallied a gift toss.

From the very start the game was anybody's affair. Less than three points separated the two teams most of the way through and much of the time the score was tied. Referee Dick Pulliam called fouls closely and 26 personal were tallied against the two teams, Ord having 14 and Grand Island 12. Two Grand Island players and one of the All-Stars were ejected from the game for four personal fouls.

The game started slowly, both teams playing carefully and picking their openings. Wonderful basketball was displayed by both sides but so closely were the teams matched that neither would lay itself open by playing in the slap-bang, fast and furious style that has characterized so many games played in Ord this winter.

The All-Stars had added power in their line-up by the addition of Buettgenbaugh, former Peru Normal star. This big red-headed boy played a nice floor game, dribbling well, passing accurately and breaking up many a Grand Island rally, but he was "off" on hitting the basket and though he had many shots he tallied but one field goal during the festivities. He was sent to the showers late in the fourth quarter, when Pulliam called a fourth personal on him. Joe Krejci was, as usual, the big noise in the Ord offensive. This big fellow tallied 15 points to lead for high point honors and also scored the most field goals of any man on the floor, 5. He was guarded at all times and had many open shots during the fray. His tip-in shot in the second quarter electrified the crowd.

Probably the most notable feature of the game was the close defense put up by both teams. There was a total absence of fouls and opportunities and Syl Carkoski scored on the only shot of this type that any player had. For Ord Alvin Jensen and Lynn Beeghly gave their best performances of the season at guards and McElroy and Wunderwald, G. I. performers, ran them a close second for ability.

When the gun ended the first half Ord had a 13 to 10 lead but McElroy had just released the ball on a high-arching journey toward the basket and the score counted as the ball dropped through the netting. This cut the Ord lead to one point. Not until the final five minutes did Grand Island go out in front but they managed to cling to their slender lead during the balance of the game.

For the Legion their big center, Scherffius, looked best, but Nath and L. P. Phalen ran him a close second and Rosswick also looked good. Scherffius was high point man for the Islanders with 9 points.

A fast preliminary game was played between the All-Star Reserves and the North Loup high school team, the Loupers winning 15 to 9. Noyes with 7 points and Fuller with 6 looked best for North Loup. Blessing, Williams, Gifford, McMiss, Andersen and Shunkwiler appeared for the Ord team, all but Shunkwiler participating in the scoring.

Fire Department Called.

The Ord fire department was called out last Saturday morning when blazing soot in the chimney at the Steve Malolepszy home caused the alarm to be sounded. The house was filled with smoke but no damage was done. Extremely cold weather and a strong wind made the experience unpleasant for firemen.

Zelda Turner Becomes Mrs. Wm. Helleberg

Sunday afternoon at 2:30 p. m. occurred the marriage of Miss Zelda Turner, daughter of Charley Turner and William Helleberg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Chris Helleberg. The wedding took place in the Helleberg home, Rev. J. A. Moorman officiating. Miss Myrel Turner, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid and Curt Gudmundsen best man. Relatives and a few friends had been invited. After the ceremony a wedding luncheon was served. Mr. and Mrs. Helleberg left at once for their new home in Kenesaw, where Bill is Burlington section boss. From there they were going to Lincoln for a few days. Their home was about ready in Kenesaw. Several weeks ago Bill rented a desirable property and during last week their car and household goods was shipped to Kenesaw from Ord. There have been a number of showers and parties for Zelda during the past three weeks and she now has a goodly supply of the useful and necessary things needed by a young housewife.

Mr. and Mrs. Helleberg, both excellent young people, leave Ord with the best of good wishes from their numerous friends. As their people live here they plan on making short visits to Ord from time to time.

The Quiz joins in wishing them a long and happy life together.

Used Cars Selling Fast, Seyler Says

One of the bright spots in Ord this week is the used car salesroom of the Graham-Seyler Chevrolet company where the greatest used car sale ever sponsored by the company is attracting buyers daily. The sale started Saturday and already ten used cars have been sold, Mr. Seyler says.

The local Chevrolet dealer declares that more used cars are sold per year than new cars and that the demand is steadily increasing due to dealer faithfulness in completely reconditioning and guaranteeing the cars they take in trade before reselling them.

"Cars are being built better today than formerly and are driven a shorter time by the original owner due to the yearly urge to trade in on the latest model," Mr. Seyler says. "As a result the majority of used cars have many years of service left. The used car of today, when sold by a reputable dealer, is not a piece of second-hand merchandise to be regarded with suspicion by prospective automobile buyers, but a genuine piece of merchandise with thousands of miles of unused transportation."

Gaily colored banners painted by Ernest Hill are a feature of the Graham-Seyler exhibit. The local Chevrolet dealer believes that thirty used cars will be sold by his agency during the progress of this present sale and says that buyers are being attracted, not only from Ord, but from fifty and sixty miles away.

ANOTHER EARLY SETTLER GOES TO HER REWARD

Sarah Lavenia Ramsey Dies Saturday At Age of 85; Settled Here in Spring of 1878.

At 2:45 a. m. on March 1, Sarah Lavenia Ramsey, one of Valley county's first settlers, passed away in Ord at the home of her daughter Mrs. Margaret Wentworth. Mrs. Ramsey had been ill for months with paralysis and a nervous breakdown. She was eighty-five years old when death came.

Sarah Lavenia, daughter of Frank Truxton and Angeline Williams, was born July 26, 1844, in Strousburg, Pa. On August 2, 1863, she was united in marriage at Suffern, N. Y., to William H. H. Ramsey. For a time they made their home in LaGrange, Mich., but in May, 1878, they moved to Valley county and settled on a farm, moving to Ord in 1891. Mrs. Ramsey died on April 19, 1919.

Mrs. Ramsey is survived by six children, Mary F. Capron, William L. Ramsey and Margaret Wentworth, Ord; Truxton Ramsey, Lava Hot Springs, Ida.; John Ramsey, Long Beach, Calif.; and Edna Jackson, Baker, Ore. Two other children, Eliza Ramsey and Angie B. Orcutt, have preceded their mother in death. Mrs. Ramsey also is survived by a brother, Alonzo Williams, Oakland, N. J., and a sister, Hattie Springster, Ramsey, N. J. Sixteen grandchildren and nineteen great grandchildren also survive.

Funeral services for Mrs. Ramsey were held at 2 p. m. Tuesday, March 4, at the Sowl funeral parlors, Rev. J. A. Moorman being in charge. Interment was in Ord cemetery.

So passes another of Valley county's pioneers. She was a kind wife and mother who will be missed not only by her own family but by a large circle of friends.

INDEPENDENTS ORGANIZE A T FRIDAY MEET

Collison, Stoltz, Fafaita, Heuck, Chosen As Officers; Decide On Educational Campaign.

The independent retailers of Ord perfected their organization at a well attended meeting held Friday evening at the Chamber of Commerce rooms. The meeting was called to order by the temporary chairman, John L. Andersen. Sec. Frank Fafaita, Jr. was unable to be present and Jerry Petaska acted in that capacity for the evening.

President Chas. A. Bowers of the Chamber of Commerce was present and explained the action taken by the board of directors of that organization in arranging for the retailers, if they organized and so desired, to also join the Chamber of Commerce and have their organization affiliated with that organization and he pledged the retailers all the help the Chamber of Commerce could give them. After a discussion of the matter it was unanimously voted to join the Chamber of Commerce and affiliate with it.

Roy S. Collison was elected president of the retailers, R. J. Stoltz was chosen vice president and Frank Fafaita, Jr. was made secretary and treasurer. A committee headed by Bill Heuck was named to draft a constitution and by-laws to arrange for some needed publicity and to be prepared to report to the next meeting which is to be called by the president as soon as the committee is ready with its report.

Such matters as credits, co-operative or collective buying and other matters for the better serving of their customers by the retailers will be studied. A campaign of education is being planned to try to show the public that it is in their best interest to support the home, independent merchants, the people who have been here and who support the schools, churches and all other civic activities of the community, rather than the Wall Street headed merchants who have little interest in local affairs except for the money they can make out of the community. There is no disposition on the part of the retailers, so far as the Quiz can learn, to force anyone to trade with them as against the chain stores but they do hope to convince a large part of the public that it is to their best interest to trade with the home people.

Bill Bannister Will Wed.

Announcement was made at Aurora last week of the approaching marriage of Miss Helen Swanston, of that city, to William G. Bannister, formerly of Ord. They will be wed this month.

Ord Rotarians Have Farmers As Guests

The Rotary club had no set program Monday but following the meal more than the usual number of guests were present. The members and then Ivar Hautala, pianist for the club, favored with a couple of piano selections, the first one a piece best described as piano gymnastics. The second was a real piece of music and both of course showed the great skill Mr. Hautala has as a musician.

There were three guests, Paul Bartz of near North Loup, Joe Krolewski of near Elyria and Charley Shepard of Ord, who accompanied his father. President Bowers, of recent extracts from several letters relative to club matters. He also called the attention of the members to the district convention which will be held in Omaha May 12 and 13 and to the international convention which will be held in Chicago in June and said that the Ord club was supposed to have a large representation at the former and that it must be represented at the latter. He also reminded the members that "boy's work week" will come the latter part of April and the fore part of May and suggested that the proper committee get busy on some special program for that occasion.

President Bowers, who is also president of the Community Service club, explained the changes being made in that organization, which, however, are covered in another story this week. He urged that all Rotarians become members of the new Chamber of Commerce and cooperate with that organization to help solve the civic questions that are always confronting the community.

—R. J. Hoagland left Ord Friday for his home in Auburn. Mrs. Hoagland stayed for a longer visit with her sister, Mrs. L. J. Auble and their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kemp. Mr. and Mrs. Hoagland came to Ord to attend the 50th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Kemp.

—Jim Knapp, who lived in Ord a few years ago, while employed in highway road work, was in town Thursday, guest of R. A. Ayres and family.

MRS. PETERSON GIVES BIRTH TO SON, DIES

Former Principal In Ord School Passed Away Saturday In Ord Hospital.

Seldom has the Ord community been more deeply shocked than last Saturday, March 1, when it became known that Mrs. Belle N. Peterson, 32, wife of Forrest Peterson, had passed away in an Ord hospital only a few hours after giving birth to a baby boy. For a period of four years before her marriage Mrs. Peterson served as principal of the Ord schools and she was respected and liked by everyone in the community.

Funeral services for Mrs. Peterson were held at the Evangelical church, Mira Valley, at 2 p. m. Monday. Rev. Nathan Thomas officiated. The body was laid to rest in Ord cemetery. A large offering of flowers bore record of the high esteem in which Mrs. Peterson was held.

Belle Nadine Bryan was born at Cairo, Nebr., on Dec. 30, 1898. In early childhood she moved with her parents to Utah, later going with them to California. After a few years in the latter state she returned in 1910 to Nebraska and in this state the remaining years of her life were spent.

She graduated from the academy of Grand Island college in 1915 and taught in the rural schools of all county for four years. In 1919 she returned to Grand Island college to take up college work and was graduated from this school in 1923. She then continued her teaching in high schools of Nebraska holding positions at Stockville, Arnold and Ord. While principal of the Ord schools she met Forrest D. Peterson and they were married on June 27, 1928.

When she was fifteen years old she was baptized and united with the Baptist church of Cairo but upon her marriage she transferred her membership to the Zion Evangelical church of Mira Valley, to which she remained true at the time of her death.

Mrs. Peterson is survived by her sorrowing husband and infant son, by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Orion Bryan, of Central City, by two brothers, Guilford Bryan, of Silver Creek, and Lawrence M. Bryan, of Central City and by four sisters, Lena, Ruth and Helen of Central City and Mrs. E. H. Grim of Cairo. Two brothers preceded her in death.

Heads Quill and Scroll.

Miss Louise Barstow, formerly principal of schools here, has been elected Nebraska president of Quill and Scroll, honorary society for high school journalists. Miss Barstow is now an instructor in North High school, Omaha.

—Friday evening Mrs. Charley Jackson of Baker, Ore., arrived in Ord to be with her mother, Mrs. Sarah Ramsey during her severe illness. The latter lived but a short time after her daughter arrived. Truck Ramsey came in on the same train. His home is Lava Hot Springs, Idaho.

—Mr. and Mrs. Jack Brown were in Grand Island for a few hours Thursday.

Weller Sells Farm Near Sargent For $80.50 Per Acre

Land in this section of the state is beginning to move a little as proved last Thursday when E. C. Weller, Ord auctioneer, sold a half section of Custer county land at auction for $80.50 per acre. The farm is located a miles west of Sargent and was owned by Pete Zulkofski. John Cooney, Sargent, was the purchaser. A year or so ago Weller sold the farm adjoining this one at $56 an acre.

NEW BY-LAWS ADOPTED BY ORD CHAMBER

Directors Met Last Week, Decide Endorse New Plan; Elections Will Be Held Soon.

Directors of the Ord Chamber of Commerce, formerly known as the Community Service club, met last Thursday evening and adopted an entirely new set of by-laws under which the chamber will operate in future. Election of an entirely new set of officers and directors will be held within a short time, the retiring board decided. Obligations of the present organization will be taken care of in full within the next two weeks.

Under the new by-laws annual dues of the chamber will be $12 per year, payment of which entitles to full privilege of membership. The budget plan of financial operation may be used by the chamber if the new directors so decide but it is thought the annual dues plan is most feasible. Directors may authorize sub-divisions of the chamber to collect and expend additional funds for the purpose of their particular sub-division, the new by-laws provide. This section was put in to take care of the independent retailers of Ord, who want to belong to the chamber of commerce but also want to have an identity of their own.

Officers of the chamber will consist of president, vice-president, secretary, treasurer and nine directors, two of whom shall be the president and vice president. The entire government of the club shall be vested in the board of directors, who will meet on the last Thursday of each month and at such other times as they may decide. Henceforth the annual meeting of the chamber will be held on the last Thursday of December. Special meetings may be called by the president at any time and the president must call a special meeting any time upon the written request of ten members.

The chamber will be incorporated under the laws of Nebraska.

PAIST PAROLE APPLICATION TO BE HEARD

Former County Treasurer Asking Release From Prison; Quiz Favors His Parole.

Next Monday Lefe Paist, former treasurer of Valley county, is going before the state board of pardons and paroles to ask for a parole from the state penitentiary where he is serving a term of from 1 to 21 years for embezzling county funds. He was convicted in this county on March 1, 1928, and committed to the penitentiary immediately.

Mr. Paist served this county long and well. During the reconstruction period after the war he was caught using county money to pay the penalty. He says he lost the county money in an effort to save himself while he was operating the Ord gas plant, the business of which was ruined by the high prices during and following the war. The savings of a lifetime were tied up in that business and he was making an effort to save part at least, of his holdings when he used county money and lost it.

Friends who have visited Mr. Paist in the penitentiary say that he looks like an old man and that his health is broken. When he was found short by the auditors he turned over all the money he had and the county was paid in full but Mr. Paist was left penniless. He is now pretty old to get another start in life but if he is released now there is said to be a prospect of a job for him and this, with the help of his loyal wife, may make them a living. Mr. Paist feels that he has been sufficiently punished and his friends fear that longer punishment will be considered by him as persecution and that it would do no good.

The Quiz believes that the pardon and parole board should act favorably upon Mr. Paist's application and that he should be released.

WED BUT YEAR, ORILLA BARTZ WANTS DIVORCE

Says Husband's Neglect Impairs Health in Petition Filed Here Saturday.

Charging that she has suffered great mental anguish, that her nerves are wrecked and her health impaired by the neglect and extreme cruelty of her husband, Orilla May Bartz filed suit for divorce from Paul Bartz in district court here last Saturday. Mrs. Bartz wants attorney fees, suit money and reasonable alimony from her husband. Bert M. Hardbrook is her attorney.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Bartz were married Feb. 4, 1929, in Omaha. Since that time her husband has failed to provide her with a home and she has had to live with friends and relatives, Mrs. Bartz charges. He also has failed or refused to provide her with clothing suitable to her station in life, she says. He does not stay at home nights but

Judge Signs Order Restraining Wife

Through his attorneys, Davis & Vogelanz, Paul Bartz applied in district court Tuesday for a restraining order to prevent Mrs. Bartz cashing any cashier's checks she may have in her possession or selling or mortgaging any land in her name. Judge E. F. Clements signed the order which is effective for ten days, and on March 15 a hearing on Mr. Bartz' request for a temporary injunction along the same lines will be held in district court.

Mr. Bartz charges that shortly after their marriage he induced Mrs. Bartz to loan her $12,000 for the ostensible purpose of clearing of debt some property she owned in Iowa. Some time later she secured $8,000 more from him for the same purpose, he says. She has since loaned this money in the First National bank, Ord, and this week withdrew most of it on cashier's checks, he alleges. Furthermore, she has induced him to release $50,000 of Valley county land valued at $20,000 in his name and he would restrain her from selling or mortgaging this land during the progress of the divorce suit.

spends the greater portion of his time in North Loup with friends and relatives and though he owns several farms and residence property in North Loup, he rents all of this property and has failed to provide a home for her.

Assisted by relatives, Mr. Bartz has circulated rumors that his wife has been unlawfully spending the proceeds of his mother's estate, which is untrue, Mrs. Bartz' petition says. Ever since their marriage he has refused to escort her to public functions and now she has reasons to believe that he is planning to abandon her and go to Mexico, she alleges.

Mrs. Bartz says that her husband owns 520 acres of valuable Valley county land; that he owns residence property and 10 lots in North Loup; that he has live stocks and machinery on his several farms and that he has between ten and twenty thousand dollars in money and other securities.

Her husband's neglect constitutes extreme cruelty, defendant believes and in seeking an absolute divorce she wants Mr. Bartz to pay her attorney's fees and furnish her with money to live on while the divorce suit is being heard. She also asks reasonable alimony.

Mr. Bartz' answer to this petition has not yet been filed.

City Cage League Ends Its Season

As only a dozen players turned out for the last session of the city basketball league, it has been decided not to play a tournament to determine the best team in the league. Hill & Hill were victors in the first half of the split season and Anderson's Grocers won the championship of the last half. With Krejci in the line-up the Clothiers have a much superior team so the result of a tournament is regarded as certain.

A small balance remains in the league treasury and this will be kept over until next season when the league probably will be reorganized on a four-team basis. The six-team league has not been entirely satisfactory at any time during the season and has been particularly unsatisfactory during the second half.

—The infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Hansen has been quite ill and in the Ord hospital under the care of Dr. McGrew and a special nurse.

—Miss Margaret Petty, who teaches in Sumter, is driving from Ord each day to her school. The Petty family just lately moved to Ord.

Big Corporation Useful On Crime's Highway Worrying the Burglar Education and Money

The General Electric company has perfected a device to transport electric power over longer distances at less expense. The invention, called a "thyatron," is described as a modified vacuum tube, adapted to power transmission uses.

Some lay science will "hook up" the world's great power stations of North America, Niagara, those in the Rocky mountains, on the Columbia river, Brazil, with other great stations in Africa and all over the world, as radio stations are now hooked up.

Then will come wireless transmission of power, so that airplanes will be able to "pick up power" at various points in their journey, instead of carrying tons of fuel.

The research work done by such institutions as General Electric, United States Steel, Westinghouse, Standard Oil, etc., will give back to the public in increased prosperity a hundred dollars for every one that those big corporations have ever received.

This country is traveling rapidly on the road that leads to thoroughly organized crime and complete contempt for law.

A United States grand jury reports that officials supposed to suppress the sale of drugs are organized on a "racket" basis, misrepresenting their activities to get more money from the government.

Some of them are alleged to be narcotic addicts. The charge is made that the big men in the business can "buy their way out," if they get in trouble.

In the seven months past criminals and others have purchased three times as many pistols as were sold altogether in the twelve months of 1928. A big demand for killing machines.

Mr. Louis Pierson of New York's Irving Trust company delights in annoying burglars. He built, far underground, below his new fifty-story building, a safety vault lined with toughest steel, thick as the ancient walls of Jerusalem. It is the biggest vault in the world except those of our Reserve bank and the Bank of England.

Now he surrounds his steel walls with a thick layer of water, so that the poor burglar, even if he did break through the heavy steel, would have to do his work in a diving suit, most awkward for handling dynamite and drills.

Henry Ford, planning to spend than where a town is served by its own plant as we are here in Ord.

Suppose an accident happens to the power line as is sure to happen occasionally. The power is off. In our shop when the power goes off the metal in the linotype machines gets cold, "freezes up" the boys say. The juice may be off only an hour but after it comes on it takes another hour to get the metal hot so we can go ahead.

I can hardly remember when we have been bothered in that way here in the Quiz shop. It has not happened more than a couple of times in the past year and the management of the electric plant has been very considerate and has notified us when it was going to be necessary to shut the power off for a short time and has done so at a time that would inconvenience us the least. Other large users of juice tell me the same policy has been used with them.

Such a course would not be possible with the power coming from a distant point and, anyhow, our experience with other utilities proves to us that the big outfits don't have the same interest in us that our local people have. It is not natural that they should. If Manager Love has to shut the power off for some reason he knows personally the dozen or so large users who would be most likely to be inconvenienced and it is very easy for him to get in touch with all or most of them and allow them to be prepared. If an outside outfit was doing the job and it was necessary to shut down the manager probably wouldn't know who would suffer by the delay and, anyhow, the patrons would be scattered over a dozen towns and it would be entirely impracticable to get in touch with them. The power would be off till it was on again and we could all take it out in cussing the power trust.

For these reasons and others which I shall discuss from time to time, do not believe this is the opportune time to sell the city plant to the power trust. I am willing, however, to admit that there is lots of argument on both sides; I believe it is one of the liveliest questions that confronts Ord at this time and the Quiz public forum department is a mighty good place to discuss it fairly and freely.

A most estimable lady, answering the question asking for suggestions to make the Quiz better, says, "Get rid of that man and get another," meaning, I take it, that she don't like the way I run the Quiz. Of course I know why and it wouldn't tend to show this good lady as broadminded if I was to tell it and I am not going to do so. I may console myself, however, with the thought that almost everyone who does anything, makes some enemies. I heard a man the one hundred millions educating young people on his own lines, making them "fit into life," teaching every one a trade, wants no advice.

He is right. No one knows better than he how to prepare boys for useful work. But Mr. Ford spoke hastily when he said he wanted no advice on education from those that never earned or saved a dollar.

The world's greatest educators have not been money makers or savers. Aristotle, who taught Philip's son, Alexander, made no fortune for himself. Alexander, conqueror of the world, spent collecting specimens for Aristotle, greatest naturalist and philosopher of the world, more than the total fortune left him by King Phillip.

Pestalozzi, Froebel, none of the great teachers, was a money maker. Ford himself is rich only as a by-product of his mechanical genius, and through no plans of his own.

Conrad Hubert, who changed his name from Horowitz, made many millions, left $3,000,000 to useful charities, left $1,000,000 to his brother.

The brother, who sticks to his old-fashioned name, Horowitz, has been a humble court interpreter and he says he will now devote his time to German opera and charity.

Why did the rich brother wait till he was dead to give a million dollars to his mother's other son?

Many of us forget the proverb often quoted by Nathan Straus: "What you give in health is gold, what you give in sickness is silver, and what you give after death is lead."

Automobile makers will spend $15,000,000 scrapping old cars to clear the way for new cars and moderate the second-hand car nuisance.

R. H. Grant, vice president of General Motors, one of the best salesmen in America, is chairman of the scrapping committee.

Perhaps Mr. Grant could find a way to ship those old cars, knocked down, to foreign countries—China, Africa, anywhere. Ten million old cars scattered over the earth would soon create an appetite for ten million new cars. Just as the little car creates a demand for a larger car.

An expert says that in nine years, from the end of 1920 to the end of 1929, stocks were going up 60 per cent of the time, and going down 34 per cent.

The difficulty is to pick out the time when they are going up.

Two $50,000 speed boats, each carrying three Liberty motors, with 33 knots speed, will help hunt rum runners in New York waters.

Other fast boats, costing $250,000, will be put on the lakes to check rum running there.

(©, 1930, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

other day cussing a local banker from hell to breakfast and I have never asked that particular banker for a thing that I didn't get and I am believing this particular man had failed to make good on some business deal he has had with the banker. I heard a man cussing Roy Collison and he went so far as to say that Big Four flour was not fit for pig feed and he has used that particular brand for years and believe it is as good flour as can be bought. I happened to know this particular man had not made good on a business deal and when he was forced to come through he got mad and didn't hesitate to say or do anything he could to injure the other fellow. An error was made in the delivery of an order of groceries and a sweet woman got so peeved that she will never, never give that store an order again, she says, and she just can't quit talking about the matter, yet she fails to recognize the fact that she frequently makes mistakes herself.

The first mentioned lady loses sight of the fact that I have invested a large amount of money in this business and that unless someone comes along and gives me at least some portion of it to get away with, that it is impossible to get out, and put someone else in as publisher. And possibly this good woman wouldn't be any better satisfied with the new boss if there was one. So I must decline to consider her suggestion as constructive criticism.

The Quiz management is always glad to accept constructive criticism. Our survey soon showed that there was a demand for the local markets in the paper and we at once started printing them. There appeared to be a demand for a cartoon and we bought the best one available and it is to be found on the front page. There is a very large demand for the county commissioner proceedings and we have told the county clerk and members of the county board, which is all we can do. The county board is saving the county four or five dollars a month by not printing the proceedings. I don't believe, as has frequently been suggested, that there is anything to cover up or conceal in not printing the proceedings. The board just don't realize the demand that there is for the news of its doings and wants to save money wherever possible. No doubt if 1/4 of those who have asked in our questionnaires why the board proceedings were not printed, would write the board the same question, the proceedings would be printed.

March is starting out with cold, raw weather and unless someone takes the matter in hand and does something about it right away, the whole month is likely to be that way.

“Squatter, Don't Let The Sun Go Down On You!”

THE DAYS of the open range in the cattle industry were as romantic as anything that ever occurred under feudalism. The owners of important brands were veritable barons in their respective territories, making their own laws—unwritten but none the less effective—and keeping large forces of retainers to protect their rule. These helpers were selected for their physical courage no less than their ability as ranch hands and were capable of being changed speedily into a fighting force—a sort of irregular, but highly efficient cavalry.

Events were frequently of a grim nature and at all times exciting. As in the days of medievalism, the lesser barons held allegiance to more powerful princes, the magnates of the industry. It was a colorful regime presenting strong attraction for adventurers. Thievery and outlawry flourished, but with all the irregularity and roughness, there was a chivalry and code of honor. Certain infractions of the rules brought a swift and unrelenting justice.

The transition from ranges to farms—the settling of the sage—was a stirring period. The change was resisted by the cattlemen in much the same spirit and with similar sanguinary accompaniments as the barons of old resisted the despoiling of their feudatory powers. But the old order had to pass. The march of law and the establishment of orderliness could not be denied.

“The Settling of The Sage”

By HAL G. EVARTS

A SPLENDID STORY of the cattle country, full of action, adventure, gun play, cattle rustling, the round-up and romance. Billie Warren, the heroine, is owner of the “Three Bar” ranch, which is gradually losing out because of the depredations of rustlers. Slade, a cattle baron and gun man, quickest on the trigger of any man in the whole range country, covets Billie and her ranch. To the Three Bar Ranch one day comes Cal Harris, a slow spoken, good-looking puncher from the south. His gun is swung at an awkward angle on his left side, butt pointing forward, but he shows Slade things about “Gun fanning” when they finally meet. Cowboys, plainsmen, cattle rustlers, outlaws—men quick on the draw and honest or base according to the parts they played when the cow country was wild—parade through this powerful story. The story deals with the first changes in the old order, the early efforts to fence the range.

It is located in a section where cattlemen were especially antagonistic, where no portion of the range had ever been fenced, where warning signs were posted at frequent intervals notifying would-be homesteaders not to tarry in that part of the country. “Squatter, don't let the sun go down on you!” was the wording of these signs. The tale is full of the romance and the thrill of that period. It is made more interesting from the fact that its principal character was a cattleman who espoused the cause of the homesteaders and had to fight to the limit of his resources because of the stand he took.

Read it as a serial in this newspaper. It will be published in big, generous installments.

“The Settling of The Sage” will be printed in this newspaper starting in the issue of March 20.

Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Tell About Four Weeks Trip To West; Time Well Spent

It would be hard to tell all about our California trip but I have been requested to tell some of it at least. We left Ord at 4:30 Sunday morning Dec. 15 for Kearney and Highway No. 38. We ate dinner in Colorado and our planned destination for the first day was Denver. We could have made it easily had it not been for sixty miles of snow and mud we encountered on a short cut from Yuma to Brush where we continued on No. 38. However, we spent the night at Greeley leaving early the next morning for Denver and breakfast. The fog was so dense we missed lots of good scenery in that locality. Nevertheless the first mountain drive, through Raton Pass, gave us plenty of thrills and we were glad to call it a day's drive at 5 p. m. We spent the night at Eaton, not a very large town but at the "jumping off" place it seemed to us. Our destination for the third day was Gallup, New Mex., but it was dark when we arrived. It was almost a necessity to place your day's drive or you may have to spend the night in a small town whose population is 500 Mexicans. The fourth day we drove to Needles, Calif. It was 3 o'clock when we arrived here. We probably missed some nice scenery for we went through one mountain pass and crossed the Colorado River after dark. This left us 300 miles for our fifth day's trip so we landed in Long Beach at 3 p. m. Here we visited Brother Wes Flynn and wife and had a very nice time. We met the Paul Jones family in their grocery store, where they seem to have a thriving business. We visited the Ray Gipe family at Wilmington. Ray is right at home in the garage. He seems to think it is far ahead of farming. Eva (Mrs. Gipe) is assistant matriarch in a nursery so her time is well occupied. The Gipes have a fine baby girl but would not let her come to Nebraska with us. We spent a week with the Neil Oliver family at Owensmouth and surely enjoyed it. We spent Christmas eve and Christmas Day with the Ed Bair family who live a few blocks from Neil's. We thought Christmas would be a lonesome time for us when we were so far from home and most of our relatives but it was indeed a merry one. Those who have partaken of one of Mrs. Bair's famous meals can agree with us when we say we had a wonderful dinner. The various trips we took while at Owensmouth were to the Lion Farm, W. K. Kellogg's Arabian Horse Farm, Lincoln Park and Zoo, all near Los Angeles. We went to Santa Monica to go deep sea fishing. We enjoyed this only there was the worry that we might lose our breakfast as some of the party did. We had a fine mountain climb a few miles from Neil's even though the wind was blowing so hard we could hardly stick to it. Neil's two children, Margaret and Milton, have changed a great deal in the six years since they left here, but are certainly nice youngsters. Neil and Leola (Mr. and Mrs. Oliver) took us, including Wes Flynn and wife, to Amee McPherson's Temple on Divine Healing Night. There was an audience of 4000 and she challenged any other church to have an audience of that size especially on Saturday night. There were four of our party who were there for just curiosity and many more were there for the same reason. One could write a long chapter on what took place from 6:15 p. m. until 10 p. m. We enjoyed being in Los Angeles very much although such a very large place it would require weeks and weeks to become familiar with the city. Leslie and Ruth (Mr. and Mrs. Les Flynn) live in a very nice apartment of which Ruth's mother (Mrs. Hoepfner, formerly of Ord) is manager. There are fourteen single and one double apartments in this court and they rent from $47.50 to $80 per month. Everything furnished, very nicely too. It keeps Ruth and her mother busy caring for the renters. Leslie is teaching manual training in a Military Academy this year but is hoping to get a high school position next year. The biggest day we had in California was New Year's Day spent in Pasadena. Wes Flynn and wife came to Los Angeles about 7:30 a. m. to accompany Leslie, Ruth and Aunt Ola (Neb. friends know her as Mrs. Sam Powell) Carl and me to the Tournament of Roses. We left Los Angeles at 8 a. m. and arrived in Pasadena at 9:30. The parade of two and a half hours was too beautiful for me to describe. There were 175,000 present to enjoy this annual event. At 2.15 we were nicely located in the Rosebud Bowl where there was a crowd of 70,000 gathered to watch Pittsburg defeated by such a large margin. It was worth the price of admission, $5, to see the way the enormous crowd was handled and the pretty stunts that were put on by the University of Southern California. At 5 o'clock we were in our car ready to return to Los Angeles but we did not do it very quickly. We were 45 minutes going three blocks, this was our first experience in a real traffic jam. We reached Leslie's about 7:30 where a wonderful dinner was awaiting us and we were ready for it. This finished our visit in Los Angeles and we returned to Long Beach that night with Wes and wife. We had a rather hard drive through the fog, but it didn't bother us so much as we were following close to Wes' car. We enjoyed our visit in Long Beach very much as Wes and wife just turned their home over to us. They have a double apartment in a duplex and we spent the days to suit ourselves as both Wes and wife are working during the day. We saw one baseball game, colored Giants vs Shell Oil Team. The colored team were much better players than the Oil team. A picnic was planned for us the last Sunday we were at Long Beach but the rain changed our plans. It was to have been at Santa Monica but the rain continued until 2:30, so Wes and his wife accompanied us to Santa Monica to call on the Athey family as we had not been able to see them before. We did not see Elmer and Billie but the rest of the family looked fine. I think they like California all right, but I believe they still have a desire to visit old Nebraska again. We gave Long Beach a final farewell Monday morning driving to Santa Ana where we took dinner with the John Cleary family, which we enjoyed very much. They have three dandy boys and John has a good position in the post office. Our next stop was Escondido, where we arrived at 5 p. m. and a regular dinner pour. Here we found Deane (Oliver) at his work in the Ford garage. Cecil Knapp had just arrived at 3 p. m. so we had another "North Louper" to join us at our six o'clock dinner. We ate at Miller's Cafe where there are three former North Louper boys employed, Pete Sayre seems to be at home serving the hungry people while Gayland and Lewis Hurley are in the kitchen. We saw Ted Wright also. Deane went with us to San Diego after his day's work was done, we arrived there about 8:30 p. m. We had lots of things we still had not seen so we had to be on the go every moment. Not even the hard rains stopped us. We visited Carl's aunt, uncle and cousins (the S. H. Powell family and in-laws) and enjoyed our stay very much. We spent one forenoon in Balboa park and of course we had to visit La Juana where beer is sold by the barrel. It was quite a joke that I went to Mexico to drink a cup of coffee. But I was afraid the rest might get too much so I played safe. There was one bar 300 feet long and there was a bar in every store we were in except the "Curio Shop."

Mussel Chairman Of Poultry Husbandry

Prof. F. E. Mussel

Working for the development of the poultry industry in Nebraska, the department of poultry husbandry of the University of Nebraska, under the chairmanship of Prof. Mussel, is carrying out a number of projects. A flock of 2,000 hens of all breeds is kept at the college for experimental purposes. We also visited Agua Caliente where the Million Dollar Hotel is located. This is the home of the big gamblers, where probably thousands of dollars change hands every hour. The annual horse races were in progress also at this place but we did not see them. The following morning we left San Diego at 5 a. m. for Phoenix, Ariz. There was 8 inches of snow in Eastern California and it was so cold we had to get warm at Jacumba, a distance of about 80 miles, before we could eat breakfast. We arrived in Phoenix about 6 p. m. We visited Merrill Anderson until noon the next day, and also called at the Hyde home, the boys to whom Merrill was giving flying lessons. As Merrill had finished here he accompanied us homeward. At Chandler, Ariz., we visited Howard Gipe and wife a few hours. They have a nice home and like the west very much. Our trip home was not as pleasant as it was going out. The weather was colder, there was lots of snow, especially in Texas and Oklahoma, and then the southern route does not have the scenery the northern route has. We arrived in Wichita Sunday night, left Monday morning about six and arrived in Grand Island at 4 p. m. We expected to see lots of snow in Nebraska but there was more in the South than here. We spent some time in Grand Island, had supper in St. Paul and reached home about 7 o'clock. We traveled 1500 miles while sight seeing in California and more than 4000 miles the entire trip. We know California is a nice place to live but we think you want to make your money in Nebraska before you go there. Carl and Rachel Oliver.

and four pounds of copper sulphate in fifty gallons of water. It is sometimes used with lead arsenate to make a combination spray. Where just a few trees need treatment a spray mixture can be applied with a bucket sprayer. It should have at least fifteen feet of extension hose, and an eight foot extension rod attached. Fastened to the end of the rod should be a forty-five degree angle nozzle that throws a fine mist. For the average farm orchard a single action barrel sprayer with about twenty-five feet of spray hose is best. This outfit is usually mounted on a wagon or sled.

PROTECTIVE SAVINGS & LOAN ASSOCIATION. Jos. P. Barta, Secretary. Ord, Nebraska

BACK FORTY By J. A. Kovanda

In recent years it has become necessary to spray fruit trees, if any quantity of decent product is to be secured. Many local farmers have adopted the practice of spraying their orchards regularly. The spray mixture generally used for all fruit trees is made up of 1 1/2 gallons of commercial lime sulphur solution, and 1 1/4 pounds of powdered lead arsenate dissolved in 50 gallons of water. Such a mixture should control scab, curculio, spring canker worm, tent caterpillar, codling moth, blotch, sooty blotch, and several other pests. In spraying apples and pears four applications of this solution are recommended to be applied at the following times: two to six days before the flowers open, immediately after the flowers drop, two or three weeks later, and again in the middle of July. The so-called second and fourth sprays are most important. Good results are generally obtained by simply applying those two. The two most important sprays for cherries, plums, and peaches are given immediately after the shucks have dropped, and again three weeks later. The lime-sulphur lead arsenate mixture described above is again used. Last summer, after peach trees in this locality had leafed out, it was discovered that they were being injured by a curling known as the peach leaf curl. As with many other diseases, it was too late to apply a remedy when the results were observed. To avoid peach leaf curl, trees should be given a dormant lime sulphur spray, applied in late winter, before the buds begin to swell. If dry lime sulphur is used, it should be applied at the rate of two pounds to a gallon of water. Lime Sulphur solution can be purchased from several reliable manufacturers. It is diluted thirty-five times when used against diseases, and nine or ten times as a contact spray against scale insects. Arsenate of lead is used against insects that do damage by eating the fruit and leaves. Nicotine sulphate, or "Black Leaf 40," is a powerful contact killer sometimes used against aphids and other soft bodied insects. Bordeaux mixture is sometimes used where fungous diseases are serious. It consists of four pounds of stone lime

Pussyfoot's Sportlog

By GEORGE ROUND, JR.

It is not whether you win or lose but how you play the game that counts. This parable has been quoted many times in defense of losing athletic teams. Perhaps it could well defend the athletic situation in Ord high school this year.

Ord people, I believe, are losing faith in that old slogan and they perhaps have a right to think it is the "bunk" after the way athletic teams in that school have been performing this year. However, some are overlooking the principle of athletics and the task that Coach Joe Krejci has had to follow out, working under the most adverse conditions.

Edward Krikac, editor of the Comstock News, in a recent issue of his paper said, "The fault is not with Krejci, it must be somewhere else. It is easy enough to wear a grin when your team is winning games but when they are losing, as the Ord team is, then it takes a man to stand the grind and that is just the kind of a fellow Krejci is, in my opinion."

Joe Krejci has had to go through much more of a grind this year

I hear with great interest that Ord may be represented with a home talent baseball club in the Central Nebraska League this year. I hope the plan is successful. Although baseball, in general, has been lacking in interest during the past few years due to various reasons, it is my belief that a good home town team would put Ord back on her feet again as a baseball center.

The past season proved that Ord will not support a semi-pro team in a fashion to make it a success and now it will be up to local fans to support the home town team.

PAYS FILL HOGS BEFORE SELLING, FARMERS DECIDE

Eighth Adult Night Schools Are Held Last Week; Trucking To Omaha Pays.

Night adult school members at Haskell Creek and Valleyside in their 8th meeting voiced the opinion that they were uncertain as to whether hogs should be sent to market as light or heavyweights. It depends upon many factors, they said. Other hog marketing were discussed under the leadership of J. A. Kovanda.

Present and future prices of both hogs and feeds, feed supply available on the farm and the personal ability of the hogs to gain at certain ages were some of the factors determining the weight hogs should go in the discussion of the members appeared to believe.

Kovanda traced the development of stock marketing from its early stages to the present day. He said stock was originally driven on foot to nearby markets with an average cost of $2.00 per head. Stealing costs often amounted to twenty percent of the livestock's selling value, he said.

First railroad shipments were made in about 1852, farmers at the two schools were told. Kovanda described how the cars were equipped for market stock during the early days. Today's car is relatively simple but speedy and modern, Kovanda declared.

Farmers at both the Haskell Creek and Valleyside schools were interested in the discussion of trucking hogs to market. Most of the livestock breeders present believed that it does pay to truck hogs to Omaha if they can be transported for about the same freight rate as on rail. They get there quicker and probably with less shrink, most farmers said.

Various stockyard terms were defined for the benefit of those farmers at the two night schools who had little experience in actual marketing. Yardage covers the pen used, water, weighing, and market use and usually amounts to about twelve cents a head on hogs, Kovanda said in clearing up the points about marketing.

Haskell Creek and Valleyside farmers are finding after years of experience in shipping hogs to Omaha or any other market that it does pay to fill them before selling. Packers usually say the fill is wasteful and pay a little less but when the animals have had a big fill it pays, farmers at the schools said.

Farmers at the two meetings declared that it was best to get hogs on the market at 5 a. m. to get the best results. The stock sells better on Tuesday, Thursday, and Friday they said, since more are on the market on the other days due to railroad connections to most points.

Valley county farmers, as most other farmers in the state, market their heavy hogs at the opposite season of the year that the packers demand them. Usually the heavy hogs are marketed in July, August, and September while they usually sell the highest in the later fall months.

It was brought out in discussion that extra pounds put on hogs at late maturity cost more per pound than the preceding ones. For that reason most farmers believed that it is a little better to market as early as possible.

Farmers were urged to avoid pouring cold water on the back of an overheated hog. They who had experience said that it was dangerous and apt to kill them and advised against the practice. It is better to avoid overheating, they said.

The usual problem of why farmers should pay thirty cents a pound for pork chops when they sell their hogs for ten cents a pound came up for discussion at

Enroll in Short Course.

Earl and George Holmes of near Arcadia are enrolled in the second term auto and tractor short course which opened recently, according to word sent the Quiz today by H. K. Douthitt, short course director at the college of agriculture, Lincoln. They are among the four Valley county boys to enroll in some short course this year.

The auto and tractor short course is probably one of the most practical courses given at the college of agriculture, according to reports coming to County Agent Dale at actual practice in repairing autos and tractors is given in the course with very little book work.

Poison on Prairie Dogs Now, Dale Advises Farmers

"Now is the best time to eradicate prairie dog towns with the least effort and most success," County Agent Carl C. Dale told the Quiz today. "The little animals are very intelligent and aware of most trapping methods. In the spring of the year before any green plant food is available is the best time that they can be induced to take poison bait."

In advising Valley county farmers to poison their prairie dog towns before green plant food is available, Agent Dale recommended the use of either poisoned oats or calcium cyanide. Both have been used to advantage by Valley county farmers in the past, he said.

Poisoning by oats is the cheapest and perhaps the most successful, Dale asserted. "The poison is prepared by soaking the oats in a watery solution of strychnine in which sulphate of strychnine has been dissolved. A spoonful will ordinarily kill all the dogs in each hole," Dale went on to say.

Dale said that calcium cyanide proved to be a great poisoner of prairie dogs in different sections of Valley county last year and was widely believed it did a greater work than the poison oats. The gas from calcium cyanide when exposed to the moisture of the air is suffocating and kills the dogs instantly, he said. The holes must be covered over after a table-spoonful of the calcium cyanide has been put down the hole, Dale advised.

"The calcium cyanide is not as cheap as poisoned oats but it saves labor and can be used at any time of the year with average success, regardless of the amount of plant food available," Dale said today.

Each year the prairie dog situation is a serious one in different sections of Valley county. Many farmers attempt to kill out their towns each year, Dale declared.

"The time to start," he said, "is now, if using the poisoned oats." Dale told the Quiz that the poisoned oats would be on hand at his office in the courthouse in Ord providing enough farmers in the county wish them. Calcium cyanide will also be available. Only cost prices will be charged for either, according to the agent.

Face to Face. Single-circle formation with partners facing each other. One odd player stands in the center of the ring and calls, "Face to Face," "Back to Back," "Face to Face," "Back to Back." As soon as he wishes, he may call, "All change," whereupon all players seek new partners, including the center player. The person left without a partner then takes his place in the center and gives the commands.

The night schools. Kovanda said only twelve percent of the dressed carcass is pork loin and the cost of processing, hauling, and retailing must be taken into consideration.

Farmers believed that the coming hog season will be a fairly favorable one.

Feeders Meeting Held in April At Ag College

The eighteenth annual Feeders meeting will be held at the college of agriculture, University of Nebraska, April 18, according to word sent the Quiz today by H. J. Gramlich of Lincoln. Gramlich tells the Quiz that it will be the largest meeting of its kind ever held and he is expecting many Valley county men to attend.

At the last year's feeders meeting held at Lincoln, there were 1500 feeders from all parts of Nebraska present and Gramlich is expecting at least two thousand this year. He hopes to have many from Valley county and central Nebraska.

Results of experiments run on cattle, hogs and sheep will be given out at the meeting. The most efficient means of carrying stock calves through the winter months under open belt conditions will be determined as a result of the experiments.

A new experiment, which will be finished by the time of the feeders meeting, is being run on hogs. It is being made to determine the effect of gain on pigs at different stages of their development. The university hopes to show that the young hog is the most profitable as in the production of young cattle.

Invites Farmers Join Pig Crop Contests

"We have twice as many entries in the pig crop contest now as we had at the same time last year," O. O. Waggener, state extension agent in animal husbandry, told the Quiz recently. "Nearly fifty Nebraska farmers have already entered the contest and we believe the 1930 contest will show our most successful ones ever held."

At least one Valley county farmer has entered the contest and County Agent Dale is hoping that more will enter within the next few weeks. Entry must be made before the first pig farrows are recorded in pork production from that time on are to be kept. Dale says the blanks are now available at his office in Ord.

In previous years all farmers have been grouped into one class regardless of the size of sows entered in the contest for average pork production. This year two classes are to be formed and farmers entering from six to fifteen sows will be placed in one group and those having more than fifteen entered will be put in another group.

The grouping is being done to make competition in the contest on a more equal basis, County Agent Dale says. Before, the man with a large number of sows was at distinct disadvantage when competing with other entries with but a few sows.

Honor M. Ochsner of Madison county won the 1929 pig crop contest when his six sows averaged 1665 pounds of pork. He has already entered the 1930 contest with ten sows.

George B. Clement, prominent Mira Valley farmer, was the only entry from this county last year. He is competing again this year.

May Have Pig Crop Contest For Clubs

If enough interest in manifested, a 4-H club pig crop contest will be held in Nebraska this year. Definite plans about the contest will be made by Paul McDill, state baby beef club leader, after a survey has been made to determine whether there is enough interest over the state to justify such a contest.

The same rules that apply to the adult pig crop contest in Nebraska will probably apply to the club contest, if it is held this year.

Valley county boys and girls interested in entering such a pig crop contest should let County Agent Dale know at once.

AM I RIGHT?

By Geo. Round, jr.

Last week I wrote a little feature for the Quiz about Orle Sorensen and his club activities in the past. I advised local people to keep their eye on Orle in the future for he may become a great livestock breeder.

Since that time, I have had an opportunity to talk with Orle and I believe more firmly than ever that he will be a livestock breeder of repute ten years from now, barring some unforeseen obstacle. He cer-

Preston Ward Will Enter Champion Sow In This Year's Pig Club Work

By George Round, Jr.

A Duroc, who was grand champion at six county fairs in this section of the state last year, is the kind of a sow that Preston Ward, age 13, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Ward of Arcadia, has entered in the pig club this year. What a record that sow has and what a litter she should farrow for Preston this year.

Right now the grand champion sow of six fairs weighs over eight hundred pounds. "She is in great shape and should farrow me a good litter," Preston says in regard to the prospects of a winning club year.

However, not only this but in the three years that Preston has been in club work, he has had quality hogs in the ring. He has invariably been quite a winner at local fairs and should be this year. Beware of Preston in the Duroc show this year, you other club members.

During the three years Preston has been in club work he has won three certificates of achievement, indicating that he finished up his club project each year. He equals the record of another club member, Harold "Bud" Garnick of Ord.

Usually outstanding club members win prizes on their hogs exhibited at county fairs. At shows last year, Preston won prizes on boar pig, gilt, produce of dam, gilt of sire and young herd. He also had the junior champion boar and junior champion gilt at fairs. What it is being made to determine the effect of gain on pigs at different stages of their development.

University hopes to show that the young hog is the most profitable as in the production of young cattle.

8-Horse Hitch May Be Exhibited Here

If enough Valley county farmers signify their interest, a most original miniature big team hitch layout will be on exhibition this spring in this county, County Agent Dale told the Quiz today. The miniature hitch demonstration is to be sent out to Nebraska counties by the extension service at the college of agriculture.

The horse association of America owns the miniature big-team hitch layout which is made up of many small horses, one-eighth actual size, who are modeled after the grand champion gelding at the International Livestock show in 1928. A miniature two-bottom plow, three-bottom plow, and a tandem disc accompanies the outfit.

Leather harnesses which adorn the horses, are complete in every detail with interchangeable truck ropes, lines, lead chains, and eveners. The horses are moveable and are hitched up to the plows and disc in any hitch combination. Every detail as in actual field demonstration is shown in the different combinations.

Valley county farmers interested in seeing the hitch layout should be in touch with County Agent Dale at once.

Have Your Car Overhauled This Month!

During the balance of February you probably won't want to drive your car very much, particularly if we have cold weather. Instead of letting it stand in a cold garage why not bring it to us and let us give it a thorough overhauling? We can make any minor repairs needed and "tune it up" so you'll enjoy driving it this spring.

death when presented with the cup and is determined to win the contest again this year at St. Paul. Preston not only knows how to raise big hogs but he also knows how to show them to the best advantage.

Of course, nearly every one knows that Preston must be the best breed," Preston says. He is just as strong a Duroc breeder as Max Cruikshank is a Hampshire man. Preston will tell you that the Duroc breed is the best but Max still clings to the belief that there are no hogs like the Hampshires. He has even composed a song which is sung to the tune of "There is no place like Nebraska." "I do not know whether Preston has composed such a song as yet or not but do know he will stand up and fight for the Durocs.

Now in preparation for a big club year, Preston is making great plans. He expects his grand champion sow to farrow him a good litter. "I am going to show at five other fairs beside the one at Ord," he told me recently. Evidently he is planning on cleaning up big.

Preston is a modern young farmer and wants his hogs farrowed under the best conditions possible. As a result he has an individual hog house for his sow in which to farrow her litter. "I have just finished making a new hog lot on clean ground about one-half mile from home and don't believe you can beat clean ground for hog raising," he advised me recently.

It would pay Valley county club boys to watch out for Preston in the Duroc class this year.

mainly is a real club boy. When he was in Lincoln a short time ago he visited at the college of agriculture and declared that he is going to go to "Ag" when he graduates from high school. He had several long visits with Director Brokaw of the extension service.

Mr. Brokaw told me afterward that he thought Orle must be a real 4-H club boy. He is.

This boy went out and bought two aged sows from two of the leading Chester White breeders in Nebraska. Both established records in production and in the show ring last year and should prove big things for Orle this year. There is no doubt in my mind now that Orle does know his "hogs."

Although Director Brokaw of the extension service at the college of agriculture has visited Valley county but few times in past years and is probably not so well known here, those who do know him speak highly of him. Orle Sorensen is a Valley county boy who will probably tell you that Mr. Brokaw is one of the greatest men he ever met.

The director, or chief as he is sometimes called, is a great favorite of club boys and whenever any are around the college, he always invites them in and has a chat with them. He is really interested in 4-H club boys and girls.

He told Orle when he was in Lincoln that he would take him around to meet the governor but the day he planned to do so, the governor was too busy. Nevertheless, Mr. Brokaw declares that the next time Orle is in Lincoln he will take him around to meet the governor and he is a man of his word.

Now Orle is waiting for the time when he can go to Lincoln again to see Mr. Brokaw and a chance to meet Governor Weaver.

Bill Garnick is to feed an Angus baby beef out this year. He recently bought one of the top heaves out of a purebred herd in Howard county. He is already dreaming of copping the grand championship at the Valley county fair this fall. Maybe he will and maybe he won't. What do you mean by "A little closer" Dugan? you will have to explain. The night adult school at Valleyside and Haskell Creek will soon be over. The women's class at Valleyside and Haskell Creek has also had a successful school as have the men. Mrs. Robert Collins is another progressive Valley County woman who is strong for club work. Rumor has it that she is to organize a pig club in her community. Congratulations, Mrs. Collins.

Max Cruikshank, prominent Arcadia 4-H club boy, who is a booster of Hampshire hogs has composed the following little song about a Hampshire school and sent it to the editor. Max says it is to be sung to the tune of, "There is no place like Nebraska."

There are no hogs like the Hampshires
Dear Old Hampshire U
Where the boars are the squarest
And the gilts are the fairest
Of any old breed that you know.

Oh there is no place like Hampshire U

Where the hogs are all true blue
So we will all stick together
In all kinds of weather
For Dear Old Hampshire U.
I wonder if any of the other club boys or girls have similar songs about their favorite breed. If so they should send them in to the editor. Certainly the Ward boys could compose one about the Durocs—Bill Garnick is feeding an Angus calf instead of a Hereford. He recently bought a purebred in Howard county—Ross Williams is beginning to think about a corn shucking contest for next fall. You remember he was the Valley county champ a few years ago when a local contest was held.

I hope we have one this year. Ross—Jess Kovanda's night school will soon be over. No more excuses, to your wife, Jess, to go to the country now twice a week—Two hundred club members in Valley county is the 1930 goal. Let's make it, you boys and girls out in the country and in town. Get busy and organize 4-H clubs.

Cultivating Knee-High Corn Three Rows at a Time with the General Purpose Cultivating Outfit

John Deere General Purpose

—The Two-Plow Tractor That Plants and Cultivates Three Rows at a Time

Twenty-five to forty acres a day in cultivating—that's the average capacity that corn belt farmers are getting with the John Deere General Purpose Tractor and its specially designed cultivating equipment. In small corn or tall corn the General Purpose cultivates efficiently, because you can throttle it down to that steady speed that permits the very best cultivation.

Just picture yourself on a General Purpose doing a quick clean job of weed-killing in your own field.

There you are—seated well up above your work—up where you can get a clear view of the rows ahead. Your hands grasp a wheel that is instantly responsive to your touch, giving you a quick, easy shift to meet irregular conditions.

Your tractor is light-weight for economy, but the strength and power are there to take you steadily up and down the field—at the rate of 25 to 40 acres a day.

No spots are skipped or missed—you have the same flexibility on uneven ground as you have with a single-row cultivator. At your left-hand is a handy device with which you control the depth of the rigs.

No levers to operate—you raise or lower the rigs by a touch of the foot without stopping the tractor. When you reach the ends of the rows the differential brakes enable you to make short, quick turns to right or left with no loss of time.

With four outlets of power available—draw-bar, belt, power take-off and power lift—the John Deere General Purpose will show you the real value in power farming, not only on planting and cultivating jobs, but on all other farm jobs as well.

Eventually you will want this outfit. Come in and get all the facts NOW.

John Deere General Purpose

—The Two-Plow Tractor That Plants and Cultivates Three Rows at a Time

Twenty-five to forty acres a day in cultivating—that's the average capacity that corn belt farmers are getting with the John Deere General Purpose Tractor and its specially designed cultivating equipment. In small corn or tall corn the General Purpose cultivates efficiently, because you can throttle it down to that steady speed that permits the very best cultivation.

Just picture yourself on a General Purpose doing a quick clean job of weed-killing in your own field.

There you are—seated well up above your work—up where you can get a clear view of the rows ahead. Your hands grasp a wheel that is instantly responsive to your touch, giving you a quick, easy shift to meet irregular conditions.

Your tractor is light-weight for economy, but the strength and power are there to take you steadily up and down the field—at the rate of 25 to 40 acres a day.

No spots are skipped or missed—you have the same flexibility on uneven ground as you have with a single-row cultivator. At your left-hand is a handy device with which you control the depth of the rigs.

No levers to operate—you raise or lower the rigs by a touch of the foot without stopping the tractor. When you reach the ends of the rows the differential brakes enable you to make short, quick turns to right or left with no loss of time.

With four outlets of power available—draw-bar, belt, power take-off and power lift—the John Deere General Purpose will show you the real value in power farming, not only on planting and cultivating jobs, but on all other farm jobs as well.

Eventually you will want this outfit. Come in and get all the facts NOW.

ANALYZE THE ALLOWANCE ON YOUR USED CAR

If a dealer pays you more than the true worth of the car he must make up the difference by extra charges on the new car or re-sell it to some one else at too high a price

PERMANENT value is always better than a temporary bargain in the purchase of an automobile. It pays to look ahead and consider reliability and ultimate up-keep costs, as well as comfort, safety, speed, and beauty of line and color.

Since most automobiles are bought for replacement, the value set on your used car is a factor in almost every purchase. Frequently it is given an importance beyond its true worth.

Used cars have a definite market value and you are justly entitled to an allowance based on that value. It is not fair that you receive less. It is not to your best interests to receive more.

IF a dealer pays you more than the true worth of the car he must either re-sell it to some one else at too high a price or make up the difference on the new car. This he cannot do unless he is allowed an excessive profit on the car or on financing, extra equipment and other charges. In either case, you pay the bill, for no way has yet been found to give something for nothing. The money must come from somewhere.

You may not get the largest used-car allowance from the Ford dealer, but that very fact should give you confidence that you are receiving full value in the new car. Ford charges are not marked up or increased to cover a high trade-in allowance on your old car.

Because there is no waste, extravagance or undue profit in manufacturing, distribution or selling, every dollar you pay for a Ford brings a full dollar in return. In lower first cost, in reliability and long life, in the low cost of operation, service and replacement parts, the Ford will save you much more than the seeming difference in trade allowance.

FURTHERMORE, at least $75 extra value is given to you in the new Ford in the Triplex shatter-proof glass windshield, the Rustless Steel, the five steel-spoke wheels, and the four Houdaille hydraulic double-acting shock absorbers. The unusually large number of ball and roller bearings, and the extensive use of fine steel forgings instead of castings or stampings, are other features that show the extra quality built into the Ford car.

SISTERS WED THURSDAY IN MIRA VALLEY

Lillian and Hazel Boettger Become Brides in Unique Double Ceremony.

On Thursday evening, Febr. 28, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Boettger, occurred a wedding that was unique as well as beautiful in that it was a double ceremony.

At 5 o'clock the bridal couples preceded by the minister, Rev. Nathan Thomas, marched in to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march played by Miss Maurine Thomas and took their places beneath an arch daintily decorated with peach and white streamers with a lovely fern forming the background.

Immediately following their arrival Miss Adeline Boettger, sister of the brides, sang "I Love You Truly." The ceremony was then performed, the impressive ring ceremony being used. The couples then were presented by the minister and received the congratulations of the guests.

Mrs. Gross was gowned in rose beige flat crepe, cut with a full circular skirt. She carried a shower bouquet of peach ophelia roses and white sweet peas.

After the ceremony a two-course supper was served to thirty-eight guests, the Misses Maurine and Iona Thomas being waitresses. The table was tastefully decorated with peach and white and held two bride's cakes as centerpieces.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding and supper were Mrs. Clara Gross, Lester Gross and Albert Brown of Grand Island, Miss Lulu Bredthauer of Lincoln, Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Bredthauer and family and John and Minnie Rodgen of Scotia.

Dr. Lee and Zeta May were busy Sunday and Monday moving their offices from the Hron building on the east side of the square to the new Goodhand building, where they have a front suite of office rooms that is modern in every respect.

During the first quarter it looked like another close basketball game. Krejci scored first for Ord, tallying a field goal at close range.

It was surely an off night for the local team. Krejci seemingly was unable to locate the basket, though he tried dozens of times.

PARABLE OF THE KINGDOM LESSON TEXT—Matthew 13:31-32

GOLDEN TEXT—The kingdom of God is not meat and drink, but righteousness and peace, and joy in the Holy Ghost.

PRIMARY TOPIC—The Whole World for Jesus

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What Our Religion Means to Us

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—What Christianity Means to the World

The things set forth in these parables only apply to the church in the measure that they permeate that body by virtue of its being formed within this period. It should be observed that they set forth the "mysteries" of the kingdom.

I. The Wheat and Tares (vv. 24-30, cf. 30-43).

1. The sowers. The sower of the good seed is the Son of Man (v. 37), and the sower of the tares is the devil (v. 29).

2. The growth of crops (v. 28). There is a striking resemblance in the growing of crops. The chief peril of the devil is that he sneaks himself into an angel of light (II Cor. 11:14, 15).

3. The harvest (v. 30). There comes a time when the fruit of the crop shall be gathered. The separation is made by the angels under the direction of the Son of Man. For the tares there is a furnace of fire. For the wheat there is the Lord's garner.

II. The Mustard Seed (vv. 31, 32)

1. Its unimportant beginning (v. 31). It begins as the least of all seeds. Not only was Christ, the King of humble parentage, but His disciples were unlettered fishermen. Likewise through the centuries not many wise and not many noble have been called.

2. Its vigorous growth (v. 32). Though small in its inception, the work inaugurated by Christ has become mighty in power.

3. Its lodging capacity (v. 32). The birds which find lodgment in the trees do not represent the children of men who find safety and salvation in the church, but the predatory beings who have found shelter in the church, though they are no part of it.

III. The Leavened Meal (v. 33).

1. The meal in Scripture means something nutritious and wholesome.

2. It was used in one of the sweet savor offerings which typified Christ (Lev. 2:1-3 R. V.).

3. The woman. The woman is the administrator of the home. Her responsibility is to take the bread provided by the head of the home and prepare and distribute it to the children. It means then that the woman, the administrator, has introduced false doctrine and thus corrupted the children's bread.

4. The leaven. In Scripture, leaven is invariably a type of evil (Ex. 12:15; Matt. 16:6, 12; I Cor. 5:6-8; Gal. 5:8, 9). It means that in this age the truth of God would be corrupted by worldliness and unbelief.

IV. The Hidden Treasure (v. 44).

1. The field (v. 44). Christ's own interpretation makes this to be the world.

2. The treasure. The treasure means Israel (Ps. 135:4; Deut. 7:6-8).

3. The purchaser. No one but the Son of God had sufficient resources to buy the world (John 3:16).

4. The purchase price. This was the precious blood of Jesus Christ, God's beloved Son (I Pet. 1:18, 19).

V. The Merchantman Seeking Pearls (vv. 45, 46)

1. The merchantman is Christ. The Son of Man has come to seek and save that which was lost (Luke 19:10).

2. The purchase price. Christ impoverished Himself (Phil. 2:6-8) to purchase the one pearl of great price (Eph. 5:25).

3. The pearl of great price. This is the church (Col. 1:18).

VI. The Dragnet (vv. 47-50).

1. The sea. The sea in Scripture denotes peoples or multitudes (Dan. 7:3; Rev. 17:15).

2. The dragnet. The dragnet cast into the sea means the sowing of the seed by the Son of Man.

3. The dragnet drawn to the shore when full means that when God's purpose for the present age is full, account will be taken of the results.

4. The separation made by the angels. This will take place at the end of the age.

5. The destiny of the bad fish. The angels shall sever the wicked from among the just, and shall cast them into the furnace of fire where there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth.

informed of the death of his former pastor, Rev. Magnusen. A telegram was at once sent to the bereaved family.

Midvale U. B. Church. Bible School, Orin Kellison, Superintendent, 10:00 a. m. Bible Class, R. C. Burrows, teacher. The program given by the young people, was highly pleasing to all and educational to all that observed. In teaching us what to do in order to be on time at church services.

Evangelical Church News. We are glad to be home again and enjoy worshipping with our own people. Rev. F. McBayles, field secretary of the Western Union College, was here for the Sunday morning service and the preaching hour. After eating dinner in the E. G. Lenz home he took his leave for Taylor to be present during their evening service.

The church was made glad during the week that has past in that there was the ringing of wedding bells for three young ladies of our congregation who were united in marriage to three young men, one of our own congregation, one from St. Michael and one from Scotia, the announcement of which will appear elsewhere in the county press.

But at the close of this week all were made sad as we were compelled to know that one of our number had passed away to be with her Lord, Mrs. Belle Peterson, which makes everyone sad but it is lessened somewhat by the fact of a splendid baby boy. The heart of the whole community goes out to the grief stricken husband and other relatives. May God comfort and sustain them in their sadness.

All mid-week activities for this week will be discontinued, but we would be glad to have the services on next Lord's Day.

Nathan Thomas, Pastor.

"What is good?" will be the theme of the Sunday evening service at 7:30. Merrill Anderson and his group of spirited musicians are excellent entertainers during the musical part of the service.

We would be glad to have the help of any others who can play an instrument or sing.

Can't our church support a morning choir? We have the talent, we have the leader. In God's name can we not consecrate ourselves to this important ministry. People are coming who would be blessed by a good anthem of praise. Who will volunteer?

You will be out for the week-day service at 7:30 on Wednesday night?

You know that the Sunday School will open with a pageant next Sunday morning? Aunt Polly Bodkins was sincerely opposed to missions, but was converted and is now an ardent supporter. Come to the play next Sunday morning and find out how it was.

North Loup Friends Church. We are grateful indeed for the inspiration and blessing that comes from fellowship with the pastors and their families belonging to the Loup Valley Ministerial Association.

The meeting Monday at Scotia was a time of real uplift and Scripture promises shown with new meaning and power. We do want the churches throughout this valley to experience the power of Pentecost and the vitality of the endless life of our risen Lord.

During the 2500 mile missionary life in China, one evening in the City of Canton she climbed up to the third story of the mission home on the compound and stepping out on a small porch looked out over the city at sunset. In the foreground the Bible training school, the dormitories, the quiet chapel, "where prayer was wont to be made," a green campus relieved by a grove of banana palms, clusters of flowers and shrubs, was surrounded by a high stone wall to prevent light-fingered intruders from entering uninvited. Beyond the compound to the west stood the palatial residence of the notorious robber chief-of-police. Across the Pearl river to the north, was the forbidding red-light district of Canton. Only a stone's throw from the compound, to the southeast, was the ghastly execution ground of the Island of Hanam; and oft times, with a bare of trumpets the prisoners were led out hands bound and preceded by a coffin box of rough pine boards, to be shot in the presence of a despotic multitude of spectators. The narrow filthy winding streets of the city were marked at each corner by a dusty, scowling wooden idol, before which the worshippers burned incense and knelt vainly pleading for help.

And the missionary standing out on the third story porch of the mission residence prayed, "O God, in the midst of this awful sin and crime, this darkness and desolation, keep us pure, let this Mission Compound be as a light amidst the darkness and may the loving Father hear of God find comfort in many lives here lived under the light of divine approval."

So let the church of the living God in these perilous times, walk humbly and softly before Him. He loves us all.

Remember the "little Quaker church on the corner" has a welcome for you. Our young people are planning to attend a Christian Endeavor rally at Dannebrog the evening of Mar. 13th. Our Sunday afternoon prayer meetings have been discontinued for the summer, but our prayers continue today.

Bessie Franc Brown, Pastor.

Ord Christian Church. Next Sunday will be our day for foreign missions. We all need to know more about the other fellow and his influence on us. Be with us. In the evening we will use a chart study of the book of Acts.

The Bible School contest is coming along fine. Yet there is room for improvement. Each one of us have friends that are attending no Bible School and we should be trying more and more to interest them.

The Women's Missionary Society will meet Thursday evening of this week with Mrs. Keck. All members are urged to be present.

Quite a large number of our people are becoming interested in having a mid-week Bible Class. Be one of them and let us have a good one.

The parsonage has received its final coat of plaster and now as soon as it is dry the finishers will be busy and before we are aware we will be moving in. The building is certainly moving right along.

Davis Creek U. B. Church. Church School, M. B. Cummins, superintendent, 2:00 p. m. Bible Class, H. C. Steverin, teacher. Worship and sermon, 3:00 p. m. Subject—"What Is It To Live?"

Lenten season begins. Wednesday, March 5th will be Ash Wednesday, the Lenten season for forty days commencing of this week as it is the wilderness. I ask that all members practice churches make this your Bible study in your homes, and pray to be kept by power divine from temptation of all wrong.

WHY PAY MORE? The annual report of the Farmers Mutual insurance company of Nebraska, submitted to its policyholders a few days ago, shows a continuance of the extraordinary growth that has marked the administration of its president, W. E. Straub, over a period of years. The company now has in force the unusual total of 429 millions. During the last year it wrote forty-three millions of new insurance, and closed the year with reserves to policyholders of $1,011,273. The company is the largest farm mutual in the world, operates only in this state, and is constantly adding to its reserves, the measure of stability in an insurance company.

It is easily the biggest success in the way of a fire insurance company that the state has had in the volume of business transacted and in stability over a period of years, and this in a state where there are strong mutual organizations.—Nebraska State Journal.

The Capron Agency is the local representative of the insurance company mentioned in the above article, and is writing a large part of its insurance business with that company, for the reasons that its resources are ample, its loss settlements are prompt and full, and its rates are much the lowest. On farm property the initial cost is one dollar for each $100 of insurance, and for each year thereafter the annual cost is only twenty-five cents for each $100, and this 25-cent rate continues as long as insurance is desired. Under this plan five years insurance costs but $2, ten years $3.25, fifteen years $4.50, and so on. Why pay more? 48-3t

My Own Column

By H. D. Leggett

Styles have surely changed during recent years, in fact styles are all the time changing. Only a few years ago women wore dresses so long that they trailed in the dirt and men wore mustaches so long that they trailed in the coffee and soup. I was reminded of the fact when, in looking over a lot of old cuts the other day, this one of a prominent Ord man was found. This picture was taken a good many years ago at the time when the dresses of the women were as long as they could possibly be worn and the style of the male adornment entirely away. I am glad that styles didn't go quite so far with feminine attire. Longer dresses are coming back and it is said that in a short time women will be wearing 'em as long as ever again. I wonder if men will be doing the same. I am going to keep this little cut and may be able to use it again when it comes in style again.

When I wrote election dope in this department last week I had heard that Otto Murschel was coming to Ord and wondered if, as it used to be alleged when he was living at Lincoln, he was coming back to Ord to take a hand in spring city politics. It occurred to me when I heard that Horace Davis was directing the choosing of city tickets, that perhaps Murschel was going to assist him. They used to be great team mates in political work. Murschel served on the city council, later as city clerk and then rounded out his city political career as mayor if I remember correctly and I am sure he was a good official. I shall feel safe in supporting the tickets he helps to name for I shall be sure that he wouldn't do anything but for the good of Ord. I have no doubt Murschel will have as much to say about naming a ticket as will Davis.

A couple of years ago Henry Stara secured a quantity of fish worms in the fall and kept them in training all winter to be ready for the first signs of spring and claimed that he made some remarkable catches with his trained fishworm. Last year the boys at the Ord Mills corralled the angleworm business and supplied all comers by the simple method of driving a sharp stick into the ground and tapping on the top of it, the worms crawling out on top of the ground to see what was going on and getting caught for their curiosity. There was the work of hammering on the top of the post in the ground however and now Evet Smith has found a better and easier way. He simply sticks a couple of iron rods in the ground a few feet apart, connects the top of them with a piece of wire and attaches a wire from the electric light plant and turns the juice on. The worms are shocked out of the ground over a large space around the stakes and come and gathered by the thousands and Evet has asked to be allowed to supply my fishworm needs this season. He claims that by turning on a little electric juice only small worms come up. Increase the juice and larger ones come and by giving it a full sized load the big worms rush to the surface. He is able to fill all orders for worms of any or all sizes on short notice.

Last fall I took up some geraniums from the flower bed at the back of the lot, putting them in ink pails and they have furnished a good many flowers this winter and we have large plants to put out again this spring. They have been so nice in the office that I want to secure some more plants and if any friend of the Quiz cares to root a cutting from a nice plant, put it in a tomato can and bring it in I will sure appreciate the favor and will reciprocate when the occasion offers.

The Sunday school lesson that we have been printing on the church page is a plate feature which we buy and the editor feels that the readers do not care for it or make use of it. I have not agreed with him and have felt like keeping it in the page but of course if it is not cared for by a reasonable number we will drop it. We know the church announcements are wanted. If a number would assure us by letter, phone or otherwise, that the Sunday school lesson is desired we would be greatly obliged. With no response to this paragraph we will naturally conclude that it is not cared for.

I thought until the latter part of last week that the conflicting forces in the special session of the legislature, would finally adjourn without accomplishing the result for which they were called together. I believe now that the bank guarantee law will be repealed. I don't believe however that they will do what the governor wants and whether he will accept what they do or not is a question. At any rate I believe the law will be repealed and then the matter will be referred to the people to vote on this fall. That will no doubt happen no matter what is done.

Mont Blanc Is Advertised Light of the Mind Thinking Big and Small An Ancient Dread

Francis H. Sisson, vice president of the Guaranty Trust company, repeats what has often been said here, that the big problem is not production, but distribution. Business is on the up grade. Mr. Sisson does not agree with that distinguished political economist, Solly Wertheim, who says, "Business is looking up, flat on its back, looking up."

Mr. Sisson reminds merchants that with adequate advertising goods can be sold at a lower price than without advertising. "First, have what the people want, then let them know you have it."

Consider Mont Blanc, nice mountain in Switzerland. One million and eighty thousand people visited Mont Blanc last year, spending more than $10,000,000 in little communities near the mountain. Only 100 climbed to the top.

We have bigger, better mountains, but they don't get the advertising that Mont Blanc gets, and they don't take in the money. It is true that established reputation helps Mont Blanc. It is also true that advertising helps to establish reputations, and keep them established.

There is no better work than distributing good books. They are the light of the mind, stimulate ambition, develop good taste, prepare men's minds for service in the present by making them acquainted with the achievements, discoveries and services of the past.

Maj. George H. Putnam, veteran of the Civil war, and a most distinguished veteran of the book publishing profession, now dead at eighty-five years of age, represents public service in a high degree.

New York's police force includes a "radical squad" selected to deal with rebellious radicals. Planning that squad in days of extraordinary prosperity, somebody was looking far ahead.

As a rule, prosperity is more effective than poison gas in dealing with radicalism. In the clash between unemployed radicals and police in New York, the photographs show women struggling and fighting more violently than men. Nothing surprising in this. When women believe anything they believe it more violently than men. And when they believe, nothing is important compared with

I sometimes wonder what would happen if the newspaper men of the state were faced with the same proposition the state bankers are faced with. It is said that the deficit of the guarantee fund equals or exceeds the capital of all the remaining state banks of the state. If the newspaper men of Nebraska were faced with the proposition of paying a debt equal to their combined capital wouldn't they be looking down their editorial noses at the guarantors? All of the more successful and more prosperous editors would know that a large number of the less prosperous editors would go broke and not help to pay the deficit, many of the less prosperous banks will go broke and not help pay and that will make it that much harder for the good ones. It would not be a very rosy picture for the editors to look at and I suspect the bankers feel about the same as the editors would.

I am not so sure what will happen though, when the people come to vote on the matter next fall. There are a good many thousands of votes that will vote to keep the guarantee law because the voters have lost money in some failed bank or some relative has lost money. It would not be hard to figure that there are sixty thousand such voters in the state. It is also easy to believe that half the remaining voters who vote on the matter will vote to retain the law and half will vote to allow it to be repealed. The result would be the retaining of the law. So we can see that the matter is not settled when the legislature does its work and adjourns.

Use a doctor's prescription called Thoxine guaranteed to relieve with the very first swallow. Gargles and salves are too slow and if they do relieve, it is usually only temporary. Thoxine has a double action—it relieves the soreness and goes direct to the internal cause. It contains no harmful drugs and is safe and pleasant for the whole family. There is nothing better to stop coughing due to irritated throats. Just ask for Thoxine, put up ready for use in 35c, 60c and $1.00 bottles. Money back if not relieved. Sold by Ed F. their belief, and they care little what happens to them.

Henry Ford will say in Capturer Magazine for April that "It is just as easy to think big as it is to think small."

It is, after you get a start. For instance, in 1859, seventy-one years ago, John D. Rockefeller, who began working as an office boy for $15 a month, started for himself as a commission man. He began "thinking big." He had accumulated $17,000 in 1862 and took a partner, Maurice B. Clark. They invested their money in a crude oil refinery in Cleveland.

That was the beginning of "thinking big." In 1865 Mr. Rockefeller, who is now approaching his ninety-first birthday, and was then twenty-six, bought out his partner for $72,500. Standard Oil corporation papers were signed on January 10, 1870. Standard Oil is now sixty years old. John D. Rockefeller has been "thinking big" ever since.

His best "big thinking" has been devoted to the fight against disease. Instead of giving a few dollars to relieve individual cases, he uses tens of millions to eliminate disease permanently.

Signals to protect pedestrians from automobiles are to be installed in big cities and "amber colored" lights were suggested. The police say: "Drivers will pay no attention to anything but red. That makes them stop."

Why is it that red impresses men and even the lower animals? Is it, perhaps, because of the forty million years, and animals through hundreds of millions of years before men came, have known, and inherited the great dread, the red blaze of a forest or prairie fire?

The national industrial conference board tells you that the wealth of the United States amounts to three hundred and sixty billion one hundred million.

It sounds a lot, but it is only $3,000 for each American, with about $500 extra for New Yorkers. That isn't enough. If a healthy black slave in 1890 was worth on the auction block $1,000, what is the value of an American willing to work and able ordinarily to earn at least $5 a day?

Human machines alone, leaving out mines, real estate, factories, are worth more than three hundred and sixty billions. This land and its people are worth whatever science and industry chooses to produce—certainly not mere billions, but trillions.

Taxes may be bigger. President Hoover warns congress that it is inclined to spend money too freely. An increase of 40 per cent in taxes might follow any too liberal appropriations. (©, 1930, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Second Grade Is Nice Room, Reporter Says

By IRMA ELLIS LEGGETT

Miss Adeline Kosmata's second grade is one of the nicest rooms to visit that I've found—but then, they are all interesting. I did like these little second graders, though. They are so earnest, so enthusiastic and conscientious, they are just eager for knowledge. I think they hate going to school about as much as a man dying of thirst hates to find an oasis.

Reading was going on when I entered, and the part of the class known as Brownies—by far the larger part, had the floor. Young Henry Misko was reading a fairy tale, and finding it fascinating. He read with a little halt before every word, and read in two tones of voice, alternating them, one to a word. He read quite rapidly, and did not need any help from anyone when it came to pronouncing a word, or recognizing it. He went right along as nicely as you please.

The next little boy, Eugene Dudshus, read in softer, lower tone of voice, without any little halts. Once in a while he had to ask a word. I remember that he didn't know "fast." The story was a fairy tale, about two good little sisters and an old witch. One of the sisters was enchanted, but the other little girl was kind to several animals, and so they helped her break the spell. After each story, the teacher always asked questions about it. Robert Anderson knew the answers, knew just what to say.

Henry Benda needed a book and Lavagnin Barnard loaned him one, and went to sit with another little girl so that they could read together. The Brownie class finished, and the Fairy part of the class began to recite. Though there weren't many Fairies, they read swiftly and correctly.

The story the Fairies read was about a six year old boy who was a king. As he was so young, he often felt more like crying than setting a courageous example for his people. So when it came time to have a goose both pulled, the little king had to try hard to be brave. But he succeeded, and all the people he ruled loved and admired him. Alice Mazac read this story beautifully. She even held her book just right, and kept her right hand at her side, most of the time.

After reading the story Alice asked the other Fairies some questions. "Why was the little king brave?" "Why do we like the little king?" One little boy said we liked the little king because he was so brave, and another little boy declared that the little boy didn't cry, and that was why he was brave.

These are the children I visited in Miss Misko's kindergarten not long ago, but a few months time sees them sprout up a lot, and the only one I could positively identify was Bobbie Klina. Except that Bobbie now wears glasses, his face is much as it used to be.

When reading was over, it was recess time. "I wonder," said Miss Kosmata, "if I'm going to have polite boys and girls?"

Then she spied a foot in an aisle and came around to see about it saying: "I wonder if I have good housekeepers?" The foot disappeared out of the aisle as if by magic of which the class had been reading. Then the class turned and passed, but so quietly and orderly, and every little boy and girl who walked by mentioned, in a firm and important little voice, "Pardon me."

This class lost one of its star members when Lillian Lukesh left for a country school. March 1st, is moving day for all the folks who are going to farm this year, you know. I noticed on a chart of arithmetic standings that Lillian had the most imposing array of gold and silver stars, denoting fine grades I'm sure.

Nearby was a list of presidents, which was mystifying until Teacher told me that the morning exercises, including a recitation of the Lord's Prayer, the salute to the flag, and a choice of music or story was presented over for one week periods by whoever was elected president.

Posted at the side of the door was a notice of "Health Contest," which read: 1. clean hands; 2. clean faces; 3. hair combed; 4. clean shoes; 5. clothes neat and clean; 6. teeth brushed.

The classroom is being decorated "in Dutch," as fast as the children can finish the art work. Up over a long blackboard tripped a whole row of little Dutch girls, looking much like those of our famous and well advertised friend, Dutch Cleanser, except that every little Dutch gal carried a bright huge tulip.

On the blackboard itself were a couple of verses of a little poem well loved by children. You remember it. One verse goes like this: "I love you, Mother," again they said, Three little children going to bed. How do you think that Mother guessed Which of them really loved her best?

It was about the three children who were given small tasks to do, and the two who didn't do theirs, and the little girl who did more than her share, don't you recall it? Two cute little figures demanded a closer inspection and on going over I discovered the crayola people pinned above this blackboard were two gaily dressed page boys with plumed hats, doublet and hose and guess what they were carrying? You'd never guess.

One of them had a fat white pig under his arm, and the other one had a fat pig under his arm too but this pig was very remarkable it was white, with so many black spots that it almost had some sort of pox.

THE DESERT MOON MYSTERY

by KAY CLEAVER STRAHAN

THE STORY

CHAPTER I—Sam Stanley, wealthy owner of the Desert Moon ranch, informs his housekeeper, Mary Magin, who tells the story, that his former wife's twin daughters, Danielle and Gabrielle, are coming to the ranch to live, their mother being dead and their father, Daniel Canneziano, who had been the cause of Sam's divorcing his wife in the penitentiary. Sam has adopted a boy, John, now grown to manhood, and a girl, Martha, twenty-one, physically healthy but weak-minded. Mrs. Ollie Ricker, Martha's nurse, lives with them.

CHAPTER II—Hubert Hand, a wanderer, and Chadwick Caulfield, John's wartime buddy, who is an expert ventriloquist, are the other members of the household. The girls arrive.

CHAPTER III—Mrs. Magin has an uneasy feeling that there is a sinister motive in the twins' presence at the ranch, and her suspicions are strengthened by the girls' mysterious prowling around the place. John becomes engaged to Danielle. Caulfield shows a pronounced liking for Gabrielle.

CHAPTER IV—Gabrielle's actions when she receives a letter from France arouse and mystify Mrs. Magin.

CHAPTER V—Sam learns Canneziano is soon to be released from the penitentiary and he looks for him to come to the ranch. The household, with the exception of John, in town for the mail, and the twins, together upstairs, are in the living room when Gabrielle comes down and, with Caulfield, goes into the garden. Danielle, from upstairs, calls to her sister. Caulfield comes back alone. In a few minutes Danielle comes into the living room.

CHAPTER VI—Mrs. Magin finds Gabrielle, choked to death, with tobacco ashes beside her. Despite her terror at the discovery of the body, she realizes that the ashes must be from Sam's pipe, he being the only pipe smoker, and conceals them before calling the household. Caulfield commits suicide.

CHAPTER VII—The coroner's verdict is murder and suicide. Sam finds a note left by Caulfield confessing he killed Gabrielle, but the rancher proves he could not have done it.

CHAPTER VIII—Danielle shows Mrs. Magin the letter Gabrielle had received from France. It is in code, typewritten.

CHAPTER IX—At a conference of all the members of the household it is revealed that the girls came to the ranch hoping to find the proceeds of a robbery in which their father had participated and which Lewis Baumert, his partner in crime, had hidden down and hidden there. Danielle tells them she found tobacco ashes on Gabrielle's bag, beside the body, and prettily accuses Sam of the murder.

CHAPTER X—After heated recriminations, the conference finds Martha, who had seemed to be asleep, is dead. Mrs. Ricker asserts Martha killed Gabrielle and Sam knew it and shielded the girl. Sam hotly denies it.

CHAPTER XI—Sam tells them he has hired a San Francisco detective, Lynn MacDonald, to try to clear up the mystery. Canneziano comes to the ranch. He knows of Lynn MacDonald, who he says is a woman and an expert "crime analyst."

CHAPTER XII—Lynn MacDonald arrives, having traveled with Danielle, who has been in San Francisco arranging for her sister's protection. Danielle is manifestly uneasy over the presence of her father at the ranch.

CHAPTER XIII—Miss MacDonald apparently makes little headway in her investigation. Attempted comparison of the handwriting of the twins, on which she seems to set importance, gets nowhere.

"Yes?" questioned Miss MacDonald.

"I mean that John would fight with him; would whip him within an inch of his life."

"Why should you care?" Danny looked at me.

"She'd care," I said, answering the appeal in her big, hurt eyes, "because she is a woman, Miss MacDonald. It may be hard for you to understand; but women, who aren't crime analysts, don't want their men fighting."

"Thank you, Mary," Danny said, and walked hurriedly out of the room.

"Mrs. Magin," Miss MacDonald began, right off the minute the door had closed behind Danny, "I want to ask you to help me with this case."

"I couldn't be any help to you," I said. "I guess I was rather tart about it."

"Why not?"

"One reason is," I said, "that anybody who doesn't know any better than to suspicion Danny, in this affair, would need a lot more help, to get anywhere, than I could give them."

"My only suspicion concerning Miss Canneziano," she answered, "is that she knows more than she is willing to tell. I may be wrong about that. Have you any other reason for refusing to help me?"

"Only that you don't believe a word I say. If you would consider that I am, anyway, trying to be honest, and if you'd do the same with the others, until you are sure that you have reason to do otherwise, I'd consider it an honor to help you, and I'd thank you kindly. I'd be no use to you, as long as you doubted every word I said. If I know that you are believing that I'll help, and tell the truth, I'll try to. If I think I am to be doubted, anyway, maybe I'll say what I'd like to say."

She sat and looked straight at me for at least half a minute. "I do believe you," she said, "and trust you. I have, since I first met you at the station. I can't help myself. You're all right, Mrs. Magin, and I know it. I'll agree to your terms. Now then: As my assistant, is there anyone on the place who would benefit in any way by Mr. Stanley's conviction?"

"In a way," I said, though it all but choked me, "John would. He is to inherit everything Sam has. But John loves Sam. And John didn't do it."

"Miss Canneziano would also benefit, then, wouldn't she, since she is to marry young Mr. Stanley?"

"It doesn't make sense," I said. "John has plenty of his own, right now; and Sam would give them anything and everything they wanted besides, as long as he lived."

"Is there," she asked, next, "any person at present on the ranch whom you would concede might, possibly, commit a murder?"

"Canneziano."

"Yes, I know. And leaving him out of it?"

"Well," I had to hesitate, "I am not sure. Every instinct I have tells me that neither Hubert Hand nor Mrs. Ricker— No. It is an awful thing to say; but, do you know, Gabrielle Canneziano herself was the only other person who has been on this ranch whom I could even imagine doing such a terrible thing. She didn't have any of the decent, ordinary virtues. She didn't know anything about them. Not charity, nor gratitude, nor kindness, nor honesty, nor modesty, nor—nor anything."

"Isn't it strange that twin sisters, who looked as much alike as these girls did, should be so entirely different as to character?"

"Strange or not, it is true. In character those two girls were as different as night and day. I never even thought that they looked alike. Who told you that they did?"

"I have seen their photographs," she reminded me.

"Their photographs may look alike. They didn't."

"But they did," she insisted.

"I tell you," I said, "that they acted so differently, and dressed so differently, that there was not one bit of likeness."

"A most unusual state of affairs for duplicate twins. Miss Danielle tically accuses Sam of the murder.

"If you are accusing Danny—" I interrupted.

"Oh, I am not!" There was a flash of temper in that. "Making all allowances for mistakes in time, Miss Canneziano could not have committed the murder herself. But, suppose that her past was not as innocent and blameless as she would like to have you all think. Suppose that a revelation of all she knows, or suspects, concerning her sister's death, would also bring to light things that she cannot afford to have brought to light concerning herself. It is at least reasonable to think that she knows more than she is willing to tell."

"I wonder whether you noticed," she went on, "that coming up the station I set a trap for Miss Canneziano. Just for an instant, I fancied that there was more fear than grief in her attitude toward meeting her father. I suggested, you remember, that she see him alone? I wanted to see whether she desired a private interview with him. Her prompt refusal made it evident that she had no secret to give to him, and expected to get none from him. That is in her favor. Still—"

THINK OF YOUR AUTOMOBILE IN TERMS OF TOMORROW

Ultimate cost is as important as first cost in the purchase of an automobile

When you purchase an automobile you are making an investment of a considerable amount of money. It is essential, therefore, that you give careful thought to the best selection and know what you are getting for your automobile dollars.

The first cost is important because it may mean an immediate, satisfactory saving. Of equal importance is the ultimate cost after thousands of miles of service. This ultimate cost is the true measure of automobile value.

The first cost of the new Ford is unusually low not only because of economies in manufacturing, but because the same principles that inspire these savings are extended to every other step that means greater service to the public. It is easy to see that economies in production would be of little value if they were sacrificed later through high charges for distribution, selling, financing and accessories.

The Ford dealer, therefore, does business on the same low-profit margin as the Ford Motor Company. His discount or commission is twenty-five to fifty per cent lower than that of any other automobile dealer. You gain because he makes a small profit on many sales instead of a large profit on fewer sales.

The difference in selling cost, combined with the low charges for financing and accessories, amounts to at least $50 to $75 on each car. This is as important as economies in production in keeping down the price you pay for the new Ford.

The low ultimate cost of the new Ford is the result of sound design, quality of material and unusual care in manufacturing. Friction and wear are reduced by the accuracy with which each part is made and assembled.

These factors combine to decrease the cost of operation and add months and years to the useful life of the car. The good performance and low yearly depreciation of the new Ford are indicative of the enduring quality built into it at the factory.

Service charges are on the same fair, economical basis as the making and selling of the car and replacement parts are always available at low prices through all Ford dealers. In two, three or five years, depending on how much you drive, the saving in operating and maintaining a new Ford will amount to even more than the saving on the first cost.

Think in terms of tomorrow, therefore, when you purchase an automobile. For tomorrow will reveal its true worth.

North Loup, March 10-(Special) —Much regret was felt by North Loup citizens and the older settlers of the village and vicinity when it was learned that D. A. (Derry) Stewart had passed away at his home on the morning of February 27, 1930.

Mr. Stewart had not been rugged for several years and was not often seen away from home. For several weeks preceding his death he had suffered at intervals with heart attacks. Sincerest sympathy is extended to his faithful wife and companion of 44 years who was ever at his side to counsel and encourage.

Funeral services were held at the home on Monday afternoon, March 3rd. A message of comfort was brought by Rev. H. S. Warren of the Seventh Day Baptist church. A quartet composed of Mrs. D. H. Babcock, Mrs. W. D. Johnson, Dell Barber and A. D. Moulton sang, "Rock of Ages," "Little Brown Church in the Vale," and "The Old Rugged Cross."

Interment was made in the North Loup cemetery. Stewart was born at Milton Junction, Wisconsin, Nov. 18, 1859. That was his home until when fourteen years of age he came west with his parents who homesteaded on a farm west of North Loup, Nebraska, in Valley county, known as the Barker district. He was united in marriage with Flora B. Thompson in January, 1886. To this union four children were born, Sunshine A., Noble B., Maude M. and Gladys E. Their married life was spent in Valley county with the exception of seven years spent at Horace in Greeley county and where Mr. Stewart had a wide acquaintance as proprietor of the general store.

He passed away at the age of 70 years, 3 months, and 9 days. He was a loving and thoughtful husband and a kind and indulgent father. He leaves to mourn his going the sorrowing wife and children. Mrs. Maude Whiting of Shelton, Nebr., and Mrs. Gladys Tschauer of Claremore, Okla. There are eight grand children and one great grandchild. ## GRAMLICH TELLS ABOUT RELATIVE VALUE OF FEEDS

Says Oats Good For Young Cattle But Barley, Corn, Best For Fattening Animals.

"Oats are relatively popular with the feeders of young cattle. They have been used occasionally in the fattening of fat cattle. Despite the fact that under ordinary conditions oats are too high in price when compared with corn to justify using them very extensively in the rations of fattening animals," H. J. Gramlich, head of the animal husbandry department at the college of agriculture, Lincoln, told the Quiz today in answer to Valley county farmers' questions as to the value of feeding oats.

Gramlich said oats contain a great deal of bulky material. Those testing 32 pounds to the bushel contain approximately one-third hull. This should be thought of as having the same feeding value as straw. He said corn is a much more concentrated product.

"For calves we have found that oats are only about three-fourths as efficient as corn in producing gains. On big cattle I doubt if the oats would prove to be as valuable," Gramlich asserted.

He went on to say that for young breeding animals which Valley county farmers wish to grow, oats offer a splendid feed. Then he said that barley is like corn in composition. It has a relatively high feeding value. In tests where it has been compared with corn it has usually shown to be from 90 to 95 percent as efficient. The college of agriculture man said that barley should always be fed ground.

"Barley is becoming a relatively popular crop in many parts of Nebraska. It yields a greater tonnage per acre than oats, and makes a more satisfactory fattening feed. Its production should continue to increase," he said.

In further discussing the proper feeding requirements to make more economical production, Gramlich said that a ration of six or eight pounds of corn and oats, one feed of alfalfa hay and one feed of oats hay, should be added about one pound of cottonseed meal daily. He said this would balance the ration and result in more satisfactory gains. Elimination of oats and putting the calves on a straight corn and cottonseed meal ration would be justified later, he said.

"Cottonseed meal is quite a little cheaper than linseed meal and I should recommend it at the rate of one to two pounds per head daily in conjunction with corn and alfalfa. If you are in no hurry about finishing your cattle, you probably could take a little more time and have somewhat cheaper gains by the use of the straight corn and alfalfa ration," he said. "With corn at 65 cents and oats at 63 cents one could probably make the cheapest gain without a supplement," Gramlich said. "In case of young cattle, presumably calves or yearlings, it might be well to feed 1 part oats to 3 to 4 parts corn during the first half of the feeding period. After that it would certainly be better to feed a straight corn ration. Corn at 65 cents represents practically the same cost per ton as oats at 36 cents," he further declared.

Experimental work has proved that in feeds for fattening cattle, 3 pounds of corn will replace 5 pounds of oats. If no alfalfa hay or clover hay is available, it would be advisable to feed about 1 pound of cottonseed cake per animal each day in order to have sufficient protein in the ration to meet the animal's needs satisfactorily, he said.

Frieda Bebee Gets Scholarship. Frieda Bebee, former Ord high school graduate and now a student at the college of agriculture, University of Nebraska, Lincoln, has been awarded a tuition scholarship, according to an announcement reaching the Quiz today. She received the scholarship from the college of agriculture with her tuition for this semester paid.

Awards were made on scholarship and financial need. Miss Bebee is the second Ord student at the University of Nebraska to receive such a scholarship for this semester, John N. Rounds being the other former Ord high graduate honored by the same award.

Loup City water is pure and has no trace of contamination, samples sent to the state bacteriologist have revealed. Rumors were circulated recently that Loup City water was unfit to drink and people of that city were considerably disturbed for several days.

GLENN JAMESON FIRM BELIEVER IN SANITATION

Club Member Thinks Ag College Right About Raising Hogs, Cattle in Clean Lots.

By GEORGE ROUND, JR.

The college of agriculture at Lincoln recommends that farmers practice hog lot sanitation in raising hogs if they expect to produce their pork in the most economical way. It was but a few years ago that Valley county farmers and 4-H club boys were reluctant to have such a policy. Many believed that the hogs could be raised in the old lot without having diseases.

However, those farmers and club members have changed their ideas about the hog lot sanitation project. Among them is Glenn Jameson, 16, Arcadia, another outstanding club member in Valley county.

"I think clean and sanitary places for the hogs is the first essential thing in raising hogs successfully. There are always germs of disease in filthy places. When they come to a filthy place such as an unclean-hog or feeding lot, they gather and multiply rapidly. The hogs soon catch the disease," Glenn explains in regard to the clean sanitation program. He is a firm believer in hog lots sanitation.

He goes on to say, "Cleanliness and sanitation also keep the skin of the hog in a healthy state, this making him feel good. With brood sows, a sanitary place is especially necessary. In filthy places the udder becomes covered with dirt which probably carries disease germs. These are then taken into the small pigs and quickly cause them to get sick."

"However, feeding is also an essential part of hog raising," Glenn went on to tell the Quiz. "It is possible to raise pigs by just throwing corn in the lot. Attention should be paid to the feeding of the sow before and after farrowing. "Oats with a small amount of corn or barley should be the main feed before and after farrowing because oats is a feed that produces milk. Alfalfa should be given to the brood sow as well as the pigs."

After Glenn had told me about why he thought hog lot sanitation was important, he said that he thought of sanitation in cattle feeding.

He said, "Sanitation is also very important in feeding cattle. The old saying, 'good bedding is half the feed,' is the truth I believe. If the place where the cattle live is allowed to become filthy, diseases will check the growth for a length of time. I think cattle, like hogs, when properly taken care of take less feed."

"Feeding is also important in raising cattle. I feed one gallon of ground shelled corn and one-half gallon oats at a feed to my calf. I change this ration every week or so to keep the calf liking his food. Later I intend to feed more ground shelled corn. Each feeding I will mix a small quantity of linseed oil meal in the feed," Glenn then said.

Now Glenn knows his stuff about this feeding and sanitation program for he has had a little experience. He has been in the club work for two years.

He first fed the Arcadia Pig Club in 1928 when H. T. Walkmeyer was the leader. "I didn't fare so well at the fair that year, winning but a fourth on my pigs. I didn't feel discouraged and thought I could win more prizes the next year," he said.

Glenn, like the other club boys, realizes that the club program has other things beside the winning of prizes at the county fairs. It is the feeding and other things learned that are valuable. Prizes are not everything.

Last year, his second in club work, he came back to score many high honors at the local fair. He won two seconds, four thirds, two sevenths and one eighth on his pigs. "My pigs were late both years and so I was showing at a disadvantage," he explains.

This year, Glenn is a member of the R. K. D. Litter Club and of the Lucky South Side Baby Beef Club which Clare Clement heads. He is so popular with the other club boys that they elected him secretary of the baby beef club and news reporter in the pig club.

In preparation for the coming pig club year, Glenn bought a purebred Poland China Sow of Glenn McQueen of Silver Creek, Nebr. He intends to show at other fairs beside the one at Ord if his stock is good enough. "I hope to show

Says Ben Nelson Is Like Alger Heroes; Started Young And Is Working To Top

By GEORGE ROUND, JR.

Great men in this world start from the bottom and work up. Horatio Alger's heroes always started from the most humble homes and accomplished great things. Successful farmers start when young and work up a reputation. In fact, one who is successful in any life activity must and does start when young and ambitious.

Thus, we have such a coming successful farmer in the Valley County Dairy Herd Improvement Association, Ben Nelson. He is not a humble farmer by any means but is a newcomer to the field and gives promise of rising to such dizzy heights as accomplished by Alger's heroes.

Alger's heroes, big spender and belt men as I would call them, usually started from the bottom and worked up the ladder to success. Ben is going that way. He graduated from North Loup high school four years ago and since has been farming his father's place of 320 acres, ten miles south of Ord, with the D. A. Day Creek. Now he is also farming the John Smith place of 320 acres which joins the Nelson farm on the south.

In ordinary years, Ben has 400 acres of this land under cultivation. Ben is raising corn, alfalfa, small grains and the remaining 60 in alfalfa. "In order to farm the land properly, I have a hired man the year round and extra help during the cultivating, harvesting, and corn picking times," he explains.

In going such large scale farming, Ben does a lot of his work such as plowing, disking, haying and cultivating with his tractor. Eight head of good young horses aid the tractor in the work.

Ben is raising a well bred herd of Hereford cattle on his farm. "I have my larger pasture of 170 acres for them," he says. Then in addition, Ben is not overlooking the dairy cows for he has a small pasture, adjacent to the farm buildings, which his cows run in.

Usually Alger heroes started working in large offices but with small pay. Well, Ben doesn't claim he has the best purebred dairy herd in Valley county. He says, "I haven't so many good dairy cows but I am going to improve their quality later and get into the dairy business gradually. I hope to improve my herd by buying from high producing dams."

Ordinarily, the Alger men had a sideline to their regular line of business. Ben, in going to the side of their regular hours doing overtime on certain jobs. In this way they were able to get ahead. Ben spends his spare time, if he has any, in feeding cattle. Each year he ships from one to four carloads to the market. It makes a little money on the side, although it keeps one busy," Ben says.

However, Ben has other livestock and animals about the farm. For instance, he raises from one to two carloads of Duroc hogs each year. Not the scrub kind either, for he gets his foundation stock at the State Fair also," he says. Glenn is quite a Poland China breeder. "I already for he has three sows of his own and thirteen fall pigs. He will have more at this time next year."

When I asked him what he thought of club work his face beamed with enthusiasm and delight. He said, "I think club work is very interesting and find it makes stock raising much more interesting. Club work is also educational."

Now, Glen has aspirations of going to college when he finishes Arcadia high school in two years. "I hope to major in mechanical engineering but may change my mind," he says.

from Asimus Brothers, prominent Duroc breeders in this section of the state.

I asked Ben what he thought the best and most economical way to produce pork. He said, "I believe in hog lot sanitation although I am not as yet fully equipped with a type sheds. I expect father out this spring to help me raise my spring pigs." You see Ben is not a sixteenth century farmer but really a modern one who sees the advantages of raising hogs in the modernistic fashion.

Now when Alger's heroes have advanced far enough, in their work they usually fall. No, not physically or mentally. I refer to women. Ordinarily the men get married some time or other, realizing the help a mate is later.

Ben must have "fell" for last spring he was married. He is not sorry though. His wife is going to raise the chickens on the farm this year. She believes in having the best chickens for each year she orders about 400 accredited chicks. "We find poultry raising, an important sideline in farming," Ben told me the other day.

Then when the Alger heroes are advancing they always observe other people and take advice from experienced men. Ben is that type and he believes that agriculture holds a bright outlook for the man who raises livestock and practices systematic crop rotation. Years ago a man would have been considered a twentieth century dumb-bell for holding such an attitude but not today.

ONLY MEDICINE FOR ME, HE SAYS

"Sargon is the only medicine for me! Five bottles ended my troubles and made me feel like a different man!"

JESSE J. TARTER.

"My health began to go back on me about four years ago. My legs would cramp, my back would ache and sometimes these pains would settle in my hip and leg and nobody will ever know what I suffered. Nearly everything at one time bothered me all the time. I've finished my fifth bottle of Sargon, I eat anything I want without a trace of indigestion and all my old time strength and energy have returned. There is not a pain left in my body! Sargon Pills ended my constipation and regulated me perfectly." Jesse J. Tarter, 2542 Third Ave., Council Bluffs.

Congressman Bob Simmons of this district made a plea for the use of butter as against oleo in a radio address broadcast last Friday by the National Broadcasting company as a part of their farm and home hour program. Congressman Bob made some telling points in support of the dairy industry.

EXTENSION PLAY DAY BY DAY KEEPS THE DOCTOR AWAY

By GEORGE ROUND, JR. FAN RACE

Supply each player with a 4-inch square of tissue paper and a piece of cardboard or a fan. Line them up along a base about 30 feet from two goal posts which may be glasses or books placed about 4 feet apart. Contestants place their paper on the base line and try to fan it below ground, where they were assisted in their work by pocket gophers. Trees from which the bark was gnawed all the way around the trunk will die unless the injured area is bridged over with a bridge graft.

The graft must be put in now, while the trees are yet in a semi-dormant condition. No one need hesitate to employ bridge grafting if they are sufficiently skilled with their hands to fit two pieces of wood together closely. The operation may be used successfully on almost any kind of fruit tree. The cost of making it is negligible when compared with the value of the tree.

In constructing this graft the idea is to connect the two areas of bark on the damaged trunk with small live twigs called cions. These cions are beveled off at the ends, and generally inserted under the bark. They must be so placed that the thin green layers of inner bark, or cambium, of the twigs and trunk come in contact. The points of union are then covered over with grafting wax.

A good grafting wax can be made by melting four parts rosin, two parts beeswax, and one part tallow or linseed oil. The wax may be applied in either solid or melted form. Sticky clay is sometimes used in place of grafting wax.

Where several varieties of fruit are desired on one tree, a cion may be similarly inserted in a cleft made by sawing off and splitting open a branch on the tree to be top-worked.

Trees should also be pruned during the dormant season. The day is past when an orchardist can afford to set his trees and let nature take care of them. Pruning should be done gradually, as a sudden severe cutting away in any one year is harmful.

A few of the reasons for pruning may be listed as follows:

1. To remove dead and diseased wood.
2. To allow sunlight and air to get into the branches.
3. To secure fruit in smaller numbers but better quality.
4. To secure tree shape and size that will enable easy spraying, cultivating, and picking.
5. To protect tree from winds, unscaled, and sleet storms.
6. To rebuild and give more vigor to weak trees and weak limbs.
7. To remove injured branches or roots.
8. To restore balance between roots and tops, in setting out young trees.

Setting New Records for Low-Cost Corn Growing

John Deere General Purpose

—The Two-Plow Tractor That Plants and Cultivates Three Rows at a Time

On farms in all parts of the Corn Belt the John Deere General Purpose Tractor is amazing corn growers with the remarkably low costs at which it gets the work done. It's the tractor that is putting dollars into the corn belt farmer's pockets.

General Purpose Tractor with Cultivator Attachment

Here's the John Deere General Purpose Tractor with planting attachment. One man can plant from 30 to 40 acres per day with this three-row outfit. Planter attaches to tractor to form a single unit, saving time at turns. Also makes possible closer planting to the fence or end of field. No levers to operate—power lift raises and lowers planter.

With this cultivating outfit from 25 to 40 acres can be cultivated in a day—three rows at a time. One man with this outfit will do the work of four men with four single-row cultivators and eight horses. All rigs are raised and lowered without stopping the tractor—by merely a touch of the foot. Has same flexibility on uneven ground as single row cultivator.

Come in and let us tell you more about this cost-reducing, labor-saving outfit.

DUAL PURPOSE COWS ARE BEST-- HOWERTON BROS.

Farmers North of Ord Believe In Getting Returns from Beef As Well as Froom Milk.

"Dual-purpose cows are the better to raise in Valley county and the most profitable," declare Howerton Brothers of Ord, members of the Valley County Improvement Association.

Being a little surprised at the statement after listening to all the good things said about dairying in Valley county by many outstanding dairymen, I thought of asking why Jesse and his brother believe that the dual-purpose type is the best.

I said, "Well, Jess why do you think that the dual-purpose type are the best and most profitable to produce in this county. I have heard many men say that dairying is the only profitable way of raising cattle."

"Despite the fact that many Valley county farmers are sold on dairy cattle, I believe the dual-purpose type are the best and most profitable," he replied. "One gets returns from the milk as well as from the beef product."

"Also the dual-purpose cattle will use a lot of rough feed that is wasted when dairy cattle are the only ones on the farm," he added.

Jesse and his brother, R. C. Howerton, joined the Valley County Dairy Improvement Association last June when it was first organized. They are not sorry today that they joined.

When asked as to the value of the association, Jesse said, "I believe it is a great thing and especially from the purebred dairy breeders standpoint. We certainly are not sorry that we joined the association last year for we have learned a lot about proper feeding."

There are usually times that a testing association proves its value in any community. Many times the poor producers may be culled out. Howerton's were helped in this way.

"We joined the association to find whether we were milking our cows for fun or for a profit. We had heard people say that many farmers milked cows for fun and we wanted to see just what cows were producing for us and those that weren't," the boys said today.

"After the first month's test, we sold one cow over the butcher's block as a non-producer," they also told me.

The boys started milking nine cows in the association but after nearly a year's time they have only eight on test regularly. "Next year we plan to milk fourteen to seventeen if we are in the association," they say.

Howerton brothers farm 320 acres of land north of Ord about twelve miles. They usually have about one hundred acres in corn, some in small grain and about twenty-five acres in alfalfa each year.

In doing general farming, the boys raise about fifty Hampshire hogs each year and do it on a hog lot sanitation basis. "We believe hog lot sanitation is the best thing going. It keeps the worms and necro out of a fellows herd," they declare in favor of the project.

AM I RIGHT?

By Geo. Round, Jr.

Farrowing time for pig club sows is here. Many of the club members have reported that their sows have farrowed good litters. Other club boys and girls have not had such good luck while other's sows will not farrow until sometime this or next month.

However, members of the Arcadia Litter club at Arcadia of which Mrs. Morris Fowler is leader believe in having their pigs come early. Most of the boys in the club have already reported that their sows farrowed good litters.

Nevertheless, there is one boy who is quite sadly disappointed and justly so too. I think he is none other than Orle Sorensen, the club boy who recently purchased two purebred tried sows at sales near Lincoln. He brought two of the best sows at the sales, one of them being the senior yearling champion at the Nebraska and Kansas State Fairs and also the reserve grand champion at the Kansas fair.

But one sow who was due to farrow early in March came in heat and Orle is out of luck for an early litter. He has his other sow to fall back on but she is not due before the first of April, nearly too late for pig club pigs, they being handicapped to show to an advantage at the fair this fall.

Just because Orle had bad luck does not indicate that the other boys in the Arcadia Litter Club

Harold Garnick Wins $83 In Prizes In Three Years of 4-H Club Work

Harold Garnick may be called "Pud" by his boy and girl friends that know him well enough but to most common folks he is just Harold, a good 4-H club member and a brother of Bill of whom I have written before. Of course he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Rock Garnick who reside on a farm southeast of Ord.

Perhaps that nickname came about in a rather funny way for no one knows. Even Harold would not tell me who first called him "Pud" when I asked him recently. He says it is a secret but he sort of likes the name, I am inclined to believe.

But the name, good or bad, apparently has not handicapped him in his 4-H club work for he gives promise of developing into such an outstanding member as his kid brother, Bill, the Master Club Member. For the sake of originality we will call Harold, "Pud," in this article.

Progress comes in club work as in other phases of life activities. Ordinarily club boys do not make such a large sum of money on exhibiting their products at the fair each year. If they don't, all is well and good for then they have a chance for improvement in the future.

To say that Pud has not advanced in learning and showing would be far from the truth, he certainly has. "The first year I showed my pigs at the fair county fair I won $2.00," explains Pud. Not such a large sum of money and perhaps most boys would have been discouraged then.

"The next year I came back to win $51.00 in prizes," Pud added. Boy, I'll bet his eyes almost popped out of his head when he received the check for over fifty dollars. Sure would be great to have some-suffered the same misfortune No, they did not.

For instance, Max Cruikshank, the Hampshire breeder, had exceptionally good luck with one of his sows who farrowed fifteen pigs and saved thirteen. "I'll make a ton litter from them," he recently told me. However, the other sow that he purchased from a breeder at Cairo farrowed but nine pigs and laid on all but five, one boar and four gilts. "We all have a little tough luck once in awhile," Max explains. But he adds, "She was a persistent sow for she surely laid on one every time I turned my back to her."

The Ward boys, Preston and J. C. have a Spotted Poland China sow that farrowed them ten pigs recently and all lived but one. The others are coming fine, the boys tell me.

Even Glenn Jameson's Poland China gilt which he recently purchased from Glenn McQueen at Silver Creek, Nebraska, farrowed seven pigs the other day. He says this is the number he wanted for he will have three boars for the fat barrow club and one boar and three gilts for the litter club.

However, the Arcadia boys will have to step to beat Hugh Ward of Ord this year. "Gee, George, but Queen and Lady sure know their stuff and when they farrow pigs they will be pigs and plenty of them," Hugh told me the other day. By the time this is published I expect Hugh will know just whether his Queen or Lady know their stuff or not.

Could you imagine that 46,000 eggs were laid in the United States every minute last year? Almost enough for a good sized family. . . . Preston and J. C. Ward are about as strong Duroc boosters as Max is a Hampshire man. . . . Don't be content to chew the cud of thought; bite off a few new ideas now and then. . . . Leo Long recently purchased an Angus herd leader from an outstanding purebred breeder in Howard county. . . . It is a fact that the value of milk produced in the United States each year is equal to the entire national gold reserve, which is four times greater than that of any other country in the world. . . . Clare Clement has picked a good name for his baby beef club, Lucky South Side Baby Beef Club.

It won't be long now until it will be time for the reorganization of the Valley County Dairy Herd Improvement Association. The organization was perfected last June and it is supposed that the annual meeting of the association will be held some time during that month.

During the short time it has been in operation, the association has more than proved its value in many instances. With very few exceptions, all members of the association will again sign up for the work next year. It is thought that more Valley county farmers are anxious to join, especially now since the price of butterfat is low and the value of economical and efficient production determines whether milking cow is profitable or unprofitable.

Named On Committee: Two Ord boys, Claude Roe and George Round, Jr., have been made members of an important committee in preparation for Farmers Fair at the college of agriculture, Lincoln, according to word sent the Quiz late today. Roe and Rounds are to work on the publicity committee for the fair which will be held May 3rd.

The fair this year will be the twelfth annual one held at the college of agriculture campus at Lincoln. Each year it attracts people from over the state as well as the students from the University of Nebraska.

In preparation for the fair, seventy-five committees were picked by Elvin Froliek, chairman of the fair board. Every student on the campus has been given a task in helping to make the 1930 Farmers Fair a success.

Miss Lydia Rasmussen of Elba arrived Saturday evening for a visit with the George Glarborg family.

one hand you such a large check just for showing pigs at the fair. Then last year, Pud showed and won $32.00 in prizes. However, he realizes that club work stands for not only the winning of prizes at fairs, it stands for many other things also—fair play, good sportsmanship and ability to learn new things. "Winning of prizes is not everything," Pud told me recently in a conversation.

Now Pud is but thirteen years of age and has been in the club work for three years and has won three certificates of achievement from the state club office at Lincoln. Not many other boys and girls in this county of his age can boast of such a record. He has seven more years in club work and what a record he should establish in that time with the start he has made.

Pud is one of those types of club boys who enjoys a club camp once in awhile. He attended a district camp at Furton in 1927. Accompanied by a number of other club boys, County Agent Dale, took Pud to camp and they had a big time. "I liked it a lot," he says. "Sure had a big time and a good rest. We judged pigs and cattle while there and had a lot." It is incidentally, Pud was one of the boys who helped name Hugh Ward, another club member, "Huge." However, Pud isn't so much bigger than "Huge."

This year Pud plans to enroll in the Ord Sow and Litter Club which will soon hold their organization meeting at County Agent Dale's office in Ord. In preparation he has bought a purebred sow from William Tuma. He expects her to farrow a good litter for him early in March.

"All in all I think club work is fine if any boy or girl will take the interest in the work that they should," Pud declares.

By GEORGE ROUND, JR.

Ord kids are now beginning to train for the coming baseball season. But a few weeks ago, one could see them on all corner lots warming up the "old soup bone." They are in hopes that the summer season will roll around soon and, of course, with it will come the Junior American Legion Baseball Tournaments.

Not so many of the regulars from the sixth district championship team will be eligible this year but a likely number of recruits will probably answer the first call along in May or the first part of June if local American Legion officials decide to put the project across this year.

Valerian Ciochon is expected to be behind the plate this year for sure while Earl Klein probably will be one of the regular pitchers. Toward the latter part of the season last year, Earl developed into a coming pitcher and great things are expected of him this year. He should be able to win a number of games for the Ord Legion team.

At the initial sack we will probably have Everett Lashmett who also covered the corner last year. Due to sickness, Everett didn't get off as good as he should have last year but with the experience he has, he should develop into a good first sacker this year. He swings a mean bat.

Oak Hather was seen around second base a lot last year and should prove to be a good little infielder again this year. He got a lot of experience last summer, playing at second and in the field, and should show a world of improvement this year. He probably will have competition.

It is quite uncertain who will be trying out for short this year for there will be no one back from the team last year. It will probably be the only infield post left open for a newcomer since Harold Finch should cover the third sack although it is indefinite whether he will care to go out this year or not. He could be a good ball player.

Kate McGinnis and Eldon Benda were the Ord youths who played good games in the field for the Junior Spuds last year and are expected to report again this year. "Katie" showed up exceptionally well in two or three games at home but was not a consistent performer but with experience, he should be better this year. Benda was a n o u t standing fielder throughout the year although weak at the bat and is scheduled to take care of the center lot this year on the Ord team.

Other boys, including the midget Leland Slope, who looked mighty good in some practices last year. Bert Boquet, Don Lashmett and others will probably be trying out for places on the team this year. These boys should begin to get in trim now if they expect to be able to get far in state competition this summer for they have plenty of training. Get out your balls and gloves now, boys, and keep practicing every chance you get. Let's bring the sixth district championship to Ord again this year!

With the hot stove league going hot around "Deacon" Arnold's house these days, community ball clubs are probably beginning to wonder about their holdouts for this summer. Emil Kokes probably thinks that he will have a couple boys wanting higher salaries but he is doubtful if he can afford to come across. Bill Vodehnal says one of his boys is playing Art Shires and threatens to break his contract if Bill doesn't come to terms pretty soon. Other community managers are probably experiencing similar troubles with their hold-out stars but it is my guess that they will all be around wanting to play by the time summer is here.

Krejci Plays With Legion. Joe Krejci, Ord high school coach, was in Grand Island last Thursday night playing with the G. I. Legion team in the district town team tournament. The Legion five won, beating the Hastings Tribune team in the semifinals and the Becker Music quintet in the finals. Krejci was a big factor in both games, scoring 11 points in each.

Krejci Signs With York. Joe Krejci has signed a contract to play ball this coming summer with the York club of the state league, it became known this week. R. C. Russell, president of the York club, secured Krejci's signature when he was in Ord last week. Krejci is an outfielder and played with Plattsmouth last summer.

Ord Loses To Litchfield. The Ord high school basketball team went to Grand Island last Thursday and participated in the district high school cage tourney, losing to Litchfield in their first game by a score of 23 to 19.

Lesson for March 9

THE PARABLE OF THE SOWER

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 13:1-23. GOLDEN TEXT—Who hath ears to hear, let him hear. PRIMARY TOPIC—Hearers and Doers. JUNIOR TOPIC—Hearers and Doers. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Giving Heed to Jesus' Teaching. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Take Heed How Ye Hear.

In this thirteenth chapter of Matthew the "mysteries" of the kingdom are unfolded. By "mystery" in the Scripture is meant truth undiscovers by human reason made known by revelation.

The seven parables of this chapter set forth in a most graphic manner the admixture of moral and spiritual affairs in the world between Christ's ascension and return to the earth.

The sower is not named in this parable. In the parable of the wheat and tares, the sower is the Son of Man (v. 37). It is evident that the sower in this case is the Lord Jesus Christ. Through the centuries He has been sowing the seed of divine truth by means of prophets, apostles and ministers.

The sower is the human heart (v. 19). The seed sown is the Word of God (v. 19). The difference of results lies in the condition of the soil, which in turn is the state of the human heart. Notwithstanding the faithfulness of the sower and the purity of the seed, the results of preaching God's Word depends upon the condition of the human heart.

The wayside, or hard-hearted hearer (v. 4, cf. v. 15). The wayside means the track beaten down by the hoofs of animals and the feet of men. Because the soil was unbroken and uncultivated the seed could not get beneath the surface, therefore was devoured by the fowls. The great truth taught is that the heart unbroken and hard is not favorable soil for the Gospel.

The stony places, or superficial hearers (vv. 5, 6, cf. vv. 20, 21). This means stones with a thin layer of soil upon them. Under such conditions the seed springs up quickly, but likewise scorches quickly. Hearts superficially impressed receive God's Word with joy, but when persecution and trial come they are not able to endure.

The thorny ground, or pre-occupied hearers (v. 7, cf. v. 22). In this case the ground is good, mellow enough and of sufficient depth, but has thorns in it. Such really hear the Word of God, but the cares of the world and the deceitfulness of riches and the lusts of other things, entering in choke the Word and it becomes unfruitful (Mark 4:19).

Many are the "thorny ground" hearers of this age. The good seed cannot mature because (1) of worldliness, (2) of men and women are completely absorbed in the things of business and are burdened with care. (3) The deceitfulness of riches. Anxious care in business brings riches to many. The effect of riches is to blunt the spiritual perception of men. (4) Lusts of other things entering in. This means the pleasures of life. All these things choke the Word of God. Many of the enjoyments of the world may be innocent in themselves, but they attract so much attention and consume so much energy and time that one has no time for Bible reading, meditation and prayer. This is a vivid picture of many Christian people today.

The good ground, or fruitful hearers (v. 8, cf. v. 23). "But others fell into good ground and brought forth fruit." This ground differed from all the rest. It was mellow, deep and moist, therefore it was capable of bringing forth fruit a hundred, some sixty and some thirty fold. In the measure that the heart is kept free from worldliness, riches and pleasures the good seed matures.

The Purpose of Teaching in Parables (vv. 10-17). There is much misapprehension concerning teaching in parables. The parabolic method of teaching makes clear the truth to those that love it, but conceals it from those who have a distaste for it. Jesus did not teach by parable till the rulers had set their hearts against Him. When in the light of His miracles and wonderful works they turned against Him and attributed His works to the devil. He denounced them in the most scathing terms and began to teach in parables, in fulfillment of the prophecy of Isaiah (Matt. 13:14, 15; cf. Isa. 6:9, 10). Jesus came, as did His forerunner, John the Baptist, proclaiming the kingdom as at hand. The people rejected and crucified Him. He arose from the grave and ascended into heaven, assuring His disciples that He would come again and would then set up the kingdom.

Days Creek M. E. Church. We enjoyed a fine service Sunday afternoon. Good crowd out. And it was a beautiful day. Service every week. Sunday School at 2. Worship at 3 o'clock. G. A. Schwabauer, Pastor.

Announcements of Services in CHURCHES OF VALLEY COUNTY

Ord Presbyterian Church.

We made a very good beginning last Sunday in getting back to normal again after our enforced vacation, with two good services fairly well attended. We appreciated the welcome accorded us back to the service and ministry of God's day and house; also the many kindly solicitations concerning the boy.

We were glad to welcome our friends, the Petty family, in the Sunday School and preaching service Sunday. The pastor has known these good people for a number of years and has had them in his church before and know they are a splendid help in any department.

Our Sunday School showed a very creditable increase in attendance Sunday notwithstanding the handicap of two absent teachers in the adult department. We should be running well over the one hundred mark and we hope that in some way we shall be able to stimulate a more regular attendance.

Our Sunday morning choir under the leadership of Miss Bloodgood, adds greatly to the interest and attractiveness of our worship. The special, Sunday morning, by Miss Bloodgood and Dr. Blessing with choir accompaniment, was greatly appreciated.

The choir is beginning on an Easter Cantata which promises a real treat and let all that can sing and will sing, encourage our leaders by coming to the regular rehearsals each week on Tuesday evenings at 7:30 unless otherwise announced.

Sunday School at 9:45 a. m., preaching service at 11:00 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. D. C. Williamson, Pastor.

North Loup Friends Church

The people of North Loup will be glad to hear the news, that Rev. Nathan Thomas is planning to hold a revival for the Friends, beginning on Easter night, April 20, and extending over a period of not less than three weeks. During his long and effective ministry around North Loup, only a few of his sermons have been preached in town, and the townspeople have greatly desired to hear him. His life has been a blessing to the town as well as to the country locality where he ministers. Plan to be present and to enjoy these meetings while he is with us. The Evangelical Annual Conference meets shortly afterward.

The Woman's Missionary Auxiliary will meet with Mrs. Lillie Miller on Thursday afternoon, March 20. We invite all ladies who are interested to meet with us.

The Christian Endeavor are expecting an enthusiastic rally at Dannebrog next Thursday evening. Members of the church are furnishing transportation for all who go.

Remember the prayer meeting each Wednesday night at the parsonage. Prayer can move the heaviest obstacles.

We are looking forward to the Standard Leadership Training School to be held in the community, and hope that many will avail themselves of the classes offered. Bessie Franc Brown, Pastor.

First Baptist Church, Ord.

W. J. Beachy, Pastor. The attendance at both the morning and evening services during the past month has been decidedly on the increase and this is certainly encouraging. Next Sunday will be observed with special services morning and evening, it being the beginning of the second year of the present pastorate, and a large attendance of members and friends is predicted.

Special attention is being called to the fact that Rev. G. L. Sharp of Omaha will be with us morning and evening and will preach at the evening service. Rev. Sharp is the convention pastor for Nebraska Baptists and you should be present to hear him.

A cordial invitation is extended to all to be present with us in the services next Sunday morning and evening. Services will be as follows: Church School, 10:00 a. m. Morning worship, 11:00 a. m. B. Y. P. U., 6:45 p. m. Evening service, 7:30 p. m.

Ord Christian Science Society. The subject of the lesson sermon for March 13, 1930 will be "Substance." Services are held at eleven o'clock a. m. in the Lola building.

Wednesday evening meetings are also held the second Wednesday of each month at eight o'clock. The meetings include testimonies of healing and experiences and remarks on Christian Science.

Authorized Christian Science literature may be borrowed or purchased upon request. The public is cordially invited to attend all our services and meetings.

Ord Methodist Notes. Good attendance is reported at both preaching services last Sunday. In the evening Rev. Spracklen was the speaker while the pastor occupied the pulpit at the U. B. church. The Sunday school attendance was 194, a substantial gain over the preceding Sunday.

On Thursday afternoon the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society were guests of Mrs. D. B. Smith and Mrs. B. M. Hardenbrook at the Smith home. Mrs. J. A. Moorman led the day's lesson and Mrs. Leo Long gave a "Stewardship" playlet entitled, "Florence's Decision." The ladies are planning a Kensington and food sale to be given in the near future. Mrs. E. O. Carlson and Miss Mamie Smith were guests at the meeting. Mrs. A. S. Wilson is a new member. At the close of the meeting the hostesses served a delicious lunch.

A very interesting session of the Epworth League was held Sunday evening with Mrs. Moorman as leader. Next Sunday evening Miss Alma Holloway will be the leader. The young people expect to take up a series of lessons on the subject, "Prohibition," for their next work. They cordially invite all the young people of the community who do not affiliate with another society to come out and enjoy the meetings with them.

Next Sunday morning Rev. Moorman will use the subject, "Our Motives," as the theme of his sermon. Following the preaching service the "Friendship" class of the Sunday school will enjoy their monthly dinner and social hour together.

The evening service will be the first meeting of a two weeks' series of revival meetings to be held in this church. Rev. G. A. Randall, pastor of the Methodist church at Scotia will be the evangelist. Rev. Randall has spoken at this church a number of times and is very earnest and fervent in his talks and has a very helpful message in each address. Rev. R. M. Gaither of Arcadia will be the song leader. The services will begin at 7:30 o'clock and be held each evening except Saturday. Rev. Moorman solicits the prayers and cooperation of each member of the church that these meetings may be the means of much good being accomplished.

The prayer meeting will be held at the church this evening when the pastor will continue the study of Dr. E. Stanley Jones' book, "Christ of Every Road." Those who have been attending find this study very helpful. Better be there. A cordial invitation is extended to all to attend the various services at this church.

Midvale U. B. Church. Church School, Orin Kellison superintendent, 10:00 a. m. Bible Class, C. R. Burrows teacher. We missed some of the young people in the Sabbath School last Sunday, make good by bringing a friend with you on next Sabbath morning.

Morning worship, 11:15 a. m. Subject, "Never Grow Old." Much credit is due the young people for their assistance in the song service, the interest manifest in our temperance work by them shows that they are against things that are corrupt. The old saloon panders to the lower form of human appetite and became baneful in its effects, in its sorrow producing fruits. There is now no place for it in an enlightened aggressive civilization. There is no way by which it could be dressed up and truthfully commended, for it is corrupt at heart and its influence is corrupting. A. L. Zimmerman, Pastor.

Davis Creek U. B. Church. Sabbath School, 2:00 p. m. B. C. Cummins superintendent. Bible Class, H. C. Stephens teacher. Worship and Temperance address by pastor at 3:00 p. m. Special music by the choir. Mrs. Burris our musical director has, by her untiring efforts, been instrumental in organizing fine choir. Everybody come next Sabbath and enjoy this service. A. L. Zimmerman, Pastor.

Ord Christian Church. Our subjects next Sunday will be, morning, "The First Foreign Missionary," evening, "Credit for What is in Your Heart."

The Ladies Aid supper last Saturday evening was a great success in every way. A fine crowd and of course that meant they made a good sum of money. It was a great supper and worth going far to get.

The parsonage is progressing nicely. The finish work is being done and soon the decorators will be on the job.

Thursday evening we will begin the new Bible Class. Every one who can and desires to is urged to become a member of this class. A course in the Bible will not come amiss for anyone. Come along and make the class a great go from the start.

MOVE STARTED TO VOTE ON SUNDAY MOVIES AT ELECTION APRIL FIRST

Petitions Being Circulated Here, Council Will Be Asked To Call Special Meeting.

Biamond May Build Theater

Gem Owner's Purchase of Bank Wall Regarded As Indication He May Put Up Building.

Ord voters will have an opportunity to vote on the question of Sunday movies at the spring election if plans launched yesterday by business men and others are successful. Several who believe that too much Ord money is going to Grand Island, Greeley, Loup City and other towns having Sunday movies yesterday started a move to get the question before Ord voters at the election to be held April 1. Petitions were put in circulation

World Day of Prayer Observed in Ord

In 1920 the Council of Women for Home Missions and the Federation of Women's Boards of Foreign Missions of North America started a World's Day of Prayer when praying women the world over were asked to unite in earnest prayer for the kingdom of Christ in this world. Each year this day has been observed on the first Friday in Lent, and last year the attendance in the United States was more than 200,000. Last Friday the day was observed in Ord when about 50 ladies gathered at the Baptist church. Mrs. C. E. Goodhand was the leader, and the meeting was an inspiration to all who attended. Mrs. Goodhand read an article telling how the day was observed in other lands last year. Interesting articles were read by Mrs. Moorman, Mrs. McCarthy and Mrs. James Ollis after which Mrs. Anton Beran sang a beautiful solo.

Mrs. B. M. Hardenbrook prepared a paper on some phases of national life. Mrs. McCarthy spoke on the church life; and Mrs. Gould Flagg spoke on international life. These talks with the printed program made a very interesting meeting.

Following the meeting the ladies were invited to the Presbyterian church where the young ladies' Bible class of the Sunday school yesterday and are being signed by many business people and others. To have Sunday movies here it will be necessary to repeal the present ordinance prohibiting them and pass another that will permit them. The city council has power to do this but probably would not do so without an expression of opinion from the voters at either the regular spring election or at a special election to be held later.

Before the Sunday movie question can be put before the people the city council must take action to put the question on the ballot and since another regular meeting will not be held before April 1 it will be necessary to call a special meeting if any action is to be taken. Those sponsoring the Sunday show movement say they will try to induce the council to do this.

Indication that M. Biemond, of Loup City, owner of the Ord theaters, may intend to build a new theater building here is contained in the announcement that he has bought a half interest in the north wall of the State Bank building and that he has purchased the vacant lots north of this building. Mr. Biemond could not be reached last night or this morning so his intentions are not known.

MYSTERY

By
Kay Cleaver Strahan

"What if I detect a bit? I want you to keep one eye on Miss Canneziano. I want you to keep the other eye on Mr. Canneziano, Mr. Hand and Mrs. Ricker. Will you do that?"

"One check eye for Danny?" I questioned, "and only a third of an eye for each of the others?"

"For the present," she smiled. "Will you do that?"

"I said that I would. It was not until after dinner the next day, when I was resting in my own room, feeling as virtuous as the three monkeys, who see no evil, hear no evil, speak no evil, pleased as Punch over my failures of the past twenty-four hours, that I realized that I just naturally could not carry through a job that went so much against the grain as that job went.

We are, I thought, allowed to know some things—just simple, honest knowing. And I knew that keeping a suspicious eye on the girl who said 'bless your heart' to me the evening my door was closed behind her, was as sensible as sitting up for Santa Claus.

Some one knocked on my door, I answered the knock. Miss MacDonald, all smiles, was standing there. "Let me come in," she said; and, before my door was closed behind her, "A most fortunate thing has happened. Some one has been to my desk and has stolen the code letter."

"I could manage nothing but an echo. 'Fortunate!' I said.

"I had a careful copy of it, locked up, of course. I had been leaving the letter in plain sight on my desk for bait. Don't you see, Mary," she forgot her formality in her excitement, "this is the mistake I have been hoping for. I have found a beginning—at last. The letter could not have concerned anyone in this house except Miss Canneziano, her father, and, possibly, not probably, young Mr. Stanley."

"I guess," I said, "that was likely what you were wanted to think." Her gray eyes questioned me.

"Supposing," I answered, "that Mrs. Ricker, or Hubert Hand, or anyone of us, wanted to get you clear of the track, suspecting especially Danny, could one of us do better than to steal the code letter?"

"My word!" she said. "And you, with a mind that works like that, spending your life doing cooking. All the same, it does prove one thing. That the murderer, or his close accomplice, is right here on the place, now."

"Chad's confession proved that. The key in the fireplace proved it, too."

"Dear me, no. Not conclusively. Now, let me see." She took a folded paper from the front of her dress. "Here is my copy of the letter. It does look a mess, doesn't it?"

I looked at the paper and read, as before:

"Paaxalypl fy nyx ogrgrgo, rn fgao atf jan j-asn, ahzgo, zkg e. ahhalo, vkgt, nyx cplzgr rg zkg kpluzae, zkaz nyx . . ."

"The fact that it was written on the typewriter," she said, "makes me suspect that the typewriter may have been used."

"I told her that what I had not thought to tell her before; about my having heard the typewriter going, slowly, in Gaby's room right after she had received the letter."

"Fine!" she said. "May I use the same typewriter that she used?"

"We went together into Gaby's room."

"I should have thought you'd want to clear this room, first of all," I said.

"Mr. Stanley unlocked it for me that first night. I spent five or six very busy hours in here, and I slept here that night, too."

"Upon my soul! Doesn't that go to show? I'd have taken oath in any court that you spent the night in your own room."

"That is exactly it," she said. "Honest people are so sure that they know things, which they don't know at all, that they have seen things, which they haven't seen."

"I have wished since, that I had said something else instead of saying, 'Well, I might think I knew something which I didn't know; but I'd never mistake what I had seen or had not seen.'"

"Perhaps not—" she said.

"Did you find anything in here that night?" I questioned.

"Nothing. The burned papers were completely burned, as they usually are. Of course, the complete absence of clues should be made into a valuable clue—but I haven't quite worked it out. For instance, though you insist that she was a vain, conceited person?"

"If ever there was one."

"Vain women usually have photographs of themselves about. I found not one here."

"She used to have one, in a silver frame," I said. I looked around and saw the frame lying face down on the mantel. I picked it up. An old faded picture of Sam and Margarita in their wedding togs confronted me.

"When I had shown it to Miss MacDonald, she took it and carried it to the window."

"The glass has been washed carefully," she said, "since the picture was put in here."

"She pressed it, and looked for a stamp in the stamp box," but I haven't anything, except, of course,

A WISE MOTOR CAR INVESTMENT

Consider a few of the basic facts that make the new Chevrolet Six such a thoroughly sound investment.

It offers a great six-cylinder valve-in-head engine, with its capacity increased to 50 horsepower . . . assuring the smooth, quiet, resilient performance which is so essential in a modern automobile.

It offers the all-weather-braking efficiency of internal-expanding, completely enclosed 4-wheel brakes—big, powerful, quiet and easy to apply.

It offers the modern riding comfort of four long semi-elliptic, chrome-vanadium steel springs—under the cushioned control of Lovejoy hydraulic shock absorbers.

It offers the greater beauty, comfort and safety of bodies by Fisher—built of selected hardwood and steel . . . and providing thousands upon thousands of miles of quiet, care-free service.

In fact, every important engine advancement has been incorporated in the new Chevrolet Six. With all these important advancements—coupled with greatly reduced prices for the entire Chevrolet line—it is only logical that thousands are saying every day—"The New Chevrolet Six is a wise motor car investment!"

picture, where the wide frame had hidden it, written in Gaby's bold handwriting, were these words:

"My one deadly enemy."

"My word!" said Miss MacDonald.

"Are you certain," she questioned next, "that the girl's mother is not living?"

"Don't ask me to be certain of anything," I said, and looked for a chair to sit down in.

She came and put one of her capable hands on my shoulders. "You shouldn't let this trouble you," she said. "Is more than likely that Gabrielle Canneziano had nothing to do with it. I must verify the handwriting."

In the next instant she certainly gave me a fine turn. Her eyes went big and round, her cheeks blazed with blushes, and she clapped her hands to them and stood staring at me as if I were the original human horror. "Oh!" she gasped out, "I have made a mistake."

"I felt like rising and giving her a good shaking. 'Lands!' I snapped. 'Who hasn't?'"

"I would discharge one of my assistants like that," she snapped her fingers. "For such a mistake. Crime analyst! Confounded ass! Conceited amateur! Oh!" She went running out of the room, leaving me sitting there to do what I liked with that talk of hers.

She was back in two minutes. She had Gaby's late note to Danny in her hands. "I have been assuming," she said, and her cheeks flamed up again, "that Gabrielle Canneziano wrote this note. I have a pleasant little assumption. Now, I will get some facts. I must find a sample of her handwriting."

She began to search through Gaby's desk. I helped her. Gaby had made a thorough job of her burning. There was not a scratch of her writing to be found.

"Danny will have something," I said. "I'll see whether she is in her room."

Danny was in her room, sitting at her own desk, writing out checks and addressing envelopes. I told her I had come to ask for a sample of Gaby's handwriting.

"I am sorry, Mary," she said, as she finished addressing an envelope, sealed it, and looked for a stamp in the stamp box, "but I haven't anything, except, of course, the first note she wrote me, and Miss MacDonald is keeping that."

She addressed another envelope, and added it to the pile beside her.

"It isn't," she said, noticing my reluctance to leave, "that I am not interested, Mary. It is only that I know that I haven't a scrap of her writing."

I turned to go. I had reached the door when she called me and asked me to take her letters downstairs for the mailbag, when I went downstairs.

I returned to Miss MacDonald with my information.

"Dear me," she said. "It only they would work with me, Mary, instead of by themselves, or against me. At any rate," she put aside the photograph, a ruler-like thing, and her magnifying glass.

"She surely does not seal her letters carefully," she said, and took

Spring Coming And Recipes Show It

Spring is coming, it will soon be here. Before you know it all the days will be warm and inviting. And the bitter cold days of winter, with their demand for energizing food will be gone! It won't be so very long, now!

So let's begin to reflect the seasons in our cookery column. Let's have some spring dishes, some green dishes, salads, vegetables, desserts and otherwise. Let's swap those recipes now, so they will be on tap for use with the first strawberry, and the other wonderful foods spring makes available.

Write the Quiz today. Don't put it off. It isn't fair to enjoy others' recipes and not offer your own. Do your bit and write or phone right now.

1 cake of compressed yeast, put to soak in 1/4 cup lukewarm water with 1 teaspoon sugar and 1 heaping teaspoon of flour. Let this stand, work on the next part.

Take 3 egg yolks and beat well. Add 2 tablespoons of sugar, 1 tablespoon of salt. Heat 1 pint of milk with 1/4 cup shortening, and when cooled to lukewarm add to the egg and sugar mixture. Put in enough flour to work out, beat up very thoroughly with a spoon, adding the yeast mixture just before the last of the flour. Beat well, cover and keep warm. Allow this to raise from an hour to an hour and 15 minutes. Work into little balls and let raise again. Then roll out like half moons or crescents, and allow to raise once more, until light. Bake in a good warm oven.

Mrs. Ed Vogelanz, Ord. We are very much obliged to Mrs. Vogelanz for this recipe, and we are sure many of our readers will welcome and enjoy this famous Bohemian roll.

Below is a recipe often referred to in glowing terms by the boss of this paper, namely, that for Dutch Cabbage.

Shred cabbage fine. Into an iron skillet put a tablespoon of lard or vegetable shortening. Also put in the cabbage, salting well. Add a small amount of water, cover closely and steam. When the cabbage is tender and the water has cooked off let the cabbage brown just a tiny bit, then sprinkle a scant tablespoon of flour over the top and stir in carefully. Next put in a little milk, let it come to a boil, and add enough vinegar to give a slight sour taste. Season well and serve.

Mrs. H. D. Leggett.

Suit Most Important Fashion For Spring

It is easy to see that the suit will be the most important fashion of spring. Tailored suits, and suits of all types will be more popular and more universally worn in some form than they have been for years and years.

While the ensemble of coat and dress is smart, the newer idea of the tailored jacket and skirt is the favorite and if you haven't a suit this spring your wardrobe will be a total loss. As to materials: a dark woolen with a lighter silk showing flecks here and there; soft, fannel-like woolen; the nubby tweeds; all of these with or more probably without fur trimming make up the smart spring suits.

The blouse has also returned to importance this year. And in most attractive versions. The tucked-in blouse and yoked skirt are so smart looking and youthful that they refuse to be discarded.

As to colors, heather mixtures for the tweeds, and black, blue or tones of brown for the suit are the correct choice. Fitted waistlines, cape treatments, belts and the up-in-front cut style items which seem agreed upon.

For wear in small town, for general practicality, for fitting in appropriately at nearly any occasion, you surely can't do better than to buy a suit this spring.

BLUE RIBBON LIQUID HOG REMEDY
Saves you money when you buy it and makes you money when you feed it. Hog men who feed it say it sure gets the worms, and poor doing, gaunt and unthrifty hogs start doing better in a short time after a few days feeding on Blue Ribbon Liquid Hog Remedy. It assists nature through the functioning of the glands, helps build big bone and frame and wards off many common hog diseases which are so general among swine.
This is a tested and proven remedy—a skillful combination of both medicine and minerals. Many hog raisers are turning to it with the best of results. Owing to the demand we have in this locality for our product, we have Mr. Paul Van Kleeck for our representative. He is experienced and understands hogs. If your hogs are wormy or unthrifty, or if you have brood sows, they should have it. Also your little pigs will eat it at two weeks old and that way it destroys the germs and worms as soon as they start. Your pigs will grow and avoid the backsets that are so common among pigs. Write for the Free Hog Book, which is in the homes of thousands of hog raisers, or come and get one from Paul Van Kleeck at Elyria, Nebraska.
A staff of experienced veterinarians stand back of Blue Ribbon. Don't pay the high price. Keep the big savings for your own use. Only 16 1/2c per pig.

C. CURREY, Clark, Nebr.
"I am well pleased with your Blue Ribbon Liquid Hog Remedy. It gets the worms and they are dead. My pigs are doing fine." W. JOHNSON, Central City, Nebr.
"Send me some more of your Blue Ribbon. It gets the worms out of my fall pigs, and they are growing fine."—R. Weller, Palmer, Nebr.
"Your Hog Remedy straightened my fall pigs out in fine shape. I want some more."—O. J. RAWLINGS, Archer, Nebr. Mr. Rawlins is one of the largest feeders in Merrick county.
"Blue Ribbon cured our Negro pigs. Two-thirds of the herd was sick, and we never lost a one after feeding Blue Ribbon. This is my second order, and we will want some more for our little pigs in April."—W. ANDERSON, Archer, Nebr.

out a check, nothing else, from the envelope.
"It is dated today, the thirteenth of July," she said.
"Of course it is," I answered tartly, not liking any of this. "She was writing them just now, while I was in there."
"Did you see her writing them?" she asked.
"I certainly did."
She sighed and moved her head with an impatient gesture, rather like John's worried gestures. "Then that is that," she said, and returned the check to the envelope, sealed the envelope and gave it, with the others, back to me.
"Now for the code letter," she said, and sat down in front of the typewriter. I left her there, and went to look for Sam.

CHAPTER XIV

Daniell's Secret.
I FOUND him in the living room, playing solitaire. Mrs. Ricker was in the chair by the window, tating.
"Lands, Sam," I said, sitting down across the table from him, "when did you take to sitting around and wasting good time like this?"
"I am helping Miss MacDonald," he said. "Making it easy for her to watch me and convincing her that I'm more or less of a nut, at the same time. Two birds with one stone."
"She isn't watching you," Mrs. Ricker spoke up. "She is watching Hubert and me. If I don't leave here, soon, I shall have to be taken to an insane asylum. I tell you, I can't stand it!" She jumped up from her chair, and went rushing out of the room through the front door. On the porch she dropped into a chair, and hid her face in her hands.
As I looked at her, sitting there, I remembered that it was she who had found the body. Her story had sounded straight enough; but, before she had told it, she had plenty of time to make it a straight one. Perhaps she had had help in making it a straight one.
Hubert Hand. He had, by his own admission, served a term in prison for forgery. He had had notes from Gaby, and had destroyed them. Was it possible that he might have written the farewell note to Gaby, and the inscription on the photograph? Sam could not swear that Hubert Hand had been in the barn the entire hour between five and six o'clock.

What Is Oleomargarine?

It is really the poor man's butter, or the rich man's graft?

"Now what is Oleomargarine? How is it made? Does any man want to feed his children on it? Let us see?"

Oleomargarines are made from skimmed milk, coconut oil or tallow, and salt. One large ingredient is skimmed milk, which has no fat or life-sustaining substances.

Now let us look into the ingredients. Many margarines are advertised as the "White Meat of the Coconut." Coconut oil such as is used in American oleo is made from Copra. Copra is dried coconut meat, but let us see the condition of this stuff before it is refined.

Copra comes from the Philippine Islands. The coconuts fall from the trees, are broken open and the meat dried in heaps under the tropical suns. This is called Copra.

When dry, copra looks and smells something like stable manure, or worse. When the stuff is ready for shipment, swarms of half-naked Malays load it on ships, tramping it in the holds of vessels with bare feet. An army of naked Malays sweating under tropical heat, tramping copra that is going to be made into the poor man's butter. Think of it!

When copra arrives at American oil mills, it is run out of the ships with conveyors. Generally it is piled up in the open air where it attracts millions of flies and looks exactly like piles of stable manure and smells a darn sight worse.

This compost is then ground and pressed between steam heated rollers. The raw oil is the most rancid and evil-smelling thing in the world. Until recently it was used exclusively for soap grease.

Scientists discovered ways of refining it. The process is simple.

First, the oil is heated to a very high degree. It is then placed in vats and large quantities of sodium injected. The rancidity attacks the sodium solution and is eaten away. The oil is then treated with ether, which process solidifies the oil.

And this is the stuff they advertise as the "White Meat of the Coconut."

Here is a recipe for making 1,000 pounds of Oleo:
700 pounds of coconut oil at 6½c.....$45.50
30 gallons of skimmed milk..... 1.50
51 pounds of salt..... 1.00

$48.00

Did you ever stop to think it requires five pounds of Oleo to furnish the nourishment for the human system that one pound of butter will furnish?—Taken from Creighton Co-operative Creamery advertisement.

Ord Co-operative Creamery Co.

We invite you to inspect our creamery and see for yourself the sanitary conditions under which our Popcorn Valley Butter is manufactured.

By eating more Butter you will better the health of your family and yourself and assist the cream producers in getting a fair price for their product which will in turn benefit every person who lives in Valley county.

First Ward Councilman Named On Both Tickets; Only Two Contests Develop.

Rumors that a plot existed to sell the city light plant by nominating and electing a mayor and city council who favored the power trust were proved untrue last Thursday night when the Good Government and Citizens parties held their caucuses and nominated Wm. Moses for mayor. Mr. Moses, as councilman from the second ward, has been one of the city plant's strongest supporters. Both parties also named for the city council men who are known to oppose selling the plant. Mr. Moses' nomination for mayor was unanimous at both caucuses.

The Good Government party's caucus was held in the firemen's hall and H. B. Vandecar was chosen chairman, with Will Carson as secretary. Nominations made by this party include Wm. Sack for councilman in the first ward, H. G. Frey for councilman in the second and Joe Rowbal for councilman in the third. Dr. C. C. Shepard was nominated for the park board and Ralph W. Norman and Fred Coe were named for the school board. Walter Noll was nominated for city treasurer, Nelle Wolters for city clerk and W. T. Hamilton for police magistrate.

Before nominations for school board were made Dr. G. W. Taylor, a retiring member, made a few remarks about the school situation everywhere. The trend is toward a more costly educational system, he said, and with retrenchments going on in all lines of business, the park board expansion in the school system, both local and state, should be discouraged. He recommended choosing for the school board men who would watch expenditures carefully and guard against any increase in the school levy. Dr. Taylor expressed his opinion as being well pleased with the nomination of Mr. Norman and Mr. Coe.

Nothing was said about the light plant issue at this caucus but Bud Shirley, who was elected chairman of the Citizens caucus, said that he was ready to fight to the last ditch to keep the city-owned plant. His remarks were applauded.

Nominations made by the Citizens party were substantially the same as those made by the Good Government. Moses was named for mayor, Sack for first ward councilman, Norman and Coe for the school board. Noll was nominated for city clerk, Dr. Shepard for the park board and Mr. Hamilton for police magistrate. Tony Kosmata was the Citizens party's choice for councilman in the second ward and E. W. Gruber was nominated to succeed himself as the party's choice for councilman in the third.

At the election to be held April 1 only two contests will remain for the voters to decide: Kosmata and Frey are opposed in the second ward and Rowbal and Gruber are opponents in the third. As a committee to arrange for the caucus prior to the next election the Citizens party elected Vincent Kokes, E. C. Leggett and Dr. J. W. McGinnis. The Good Government committee will consist of Will Carson, J. H. Capron and Dr. G. W. Taylor.

Agent For Henderson Addresses Retailers

Independent retailers of Ord met last Friday afternoon at the chamber of commerce rooms and listened to a talk by C. S. Winslow, a representative of W. K. Henderson, Shreveport radio station owner who is fighting chain stores. Mr. Winslow is on the road securing members for the Merchants Minute Men, the organization that Mr. Henderson has formed to help finance his fight. Many local retailers and others have joined the Minute Men.

Mr. Winslow told local retailers last Friday that before Henderson started his campaign in Shreveport 28 chain stores were represented there. Now there are but twelve. All through the south chain stores are "on the run" Winslow said. He cited similar instances throughout the country. The Shreveport man also visited Sargent, Comstock, Burwell and other towns and reported that merchants in all of them are joining the Minute Men.

Lafe Paist Is Still In Prison, Wife Near Collapse

Instead of walking from the state penitentiary, a free man last Wednesday, Lafe Paist is still within the grim walls of that institution. The former Valley county treasurer will have to remain there, a prisoner, until December 23 when he will be given a full pardon. This was the decision of the state board of pardons and paroles, issued last Wednesday morning. Announcement that Mr. Paist was paroled was premature.

When the board closed its public hearing last Tuesday night everything seemed to point to Paist's release the next morning. No decision had been made but friends of Mr. Paist had asked the board to take this action and all of its members seemed agreeable. But after deliberating the matter in private, they decided that Mr. Paist should remain a prisoner until December 23, when he will be given a full pardon.

Mrs. Paist was staying at the home of Mrs. Art Gass in University Place and was nearly prostrated when she heard the board's decision. She had anticipated her husband's release Wednesday morning.

Wm. Suhr Added To Mrs. Bartz' Staff

G. I. Attorney To Aid Hardenbrook In Case of Woman Who Was Wed But Year and Repented Bargain.

Wm. Suhr, prominent Grand Island lawyer, will aid Bert M. Hardenbrook in representing Orilla Mae Bartz in her suit for divorce against Paul Bartz, it was learned last Saturday. Mr. Suhr was present at a hearing in which Davis & Vogeltanz, lawyers for Mr. Bartz, sought to obtain a temporary injunction to prevent Mrs. Bartz from converting into money cashier's checks she has in her possession and to prevent her selling or mortgaging and that Mr. Bartz alleges she obtained from him by false representations.

A stormy time was anticipated last Saturday but the hearing proved to be as mild and amicable as a June day. Ten days before Judge E. P. Clements had signed a temporary restraining order at the behest of Mr. Bartz' attorneys. At the hearing March 15th attorneys for Mrs. Bartz agreed that this order should remain in effect until the case is finally settled. Until the divorce case is heard and property settlement is finally made, Mrs. Bartz will not be able to sell or mortgage any land nor will she be able to convert into money the cashier's checks she is alleged to have.

In return for this agreement Mr. Bartz agreed to allow her money for attorney fees and also an allowance to take care of her maintenance until the case comes to trial a few months hence.

The divorce suit was filed by Mrs. Bartz more than two weeks ago. She alleged that her nerves were wrecked and her health impaired by the extreme cruelty of her husband, that he had refused to provide a home for her, that he was planning to leave her and go to Mexico, as well as numerous other allegations.

Mr. Bartz' attorneys have not yet filed an answer to her petition and probably will not do so for two or three weeks.

Ravenna All-Stars Say Didn't Fear G. I. Legion

The refusal of the Ravenna All-Stars to play the Grand Island Legion team a championship game at Ord last week was not because they feared defeat at the hands of the Legion, a letter received Monday from Manager Ted Birt states. The Ravenna team played 27 games this season, winning 23 of them. Seven of these games were played in the ten days from March 2 through March 11. Members of the team neglected their businesses to finish the season and make the Ravenna tournament a success, and all were anxious to quit when the offer of a Legion game came. They had previously defeated the Legion team twice and feel that no stigma should attach to them for their inability to meet the Legion again in a post-season game.

CURTIS TELLS ABOUT WORK OF RAILWAY BODY

Commission Finds Reducing Freight Rates on Farm Products Big Task.

"So many factors are involved and so many problems are constantly arising that reducing freight rates on farm products as a means of giving relief to the farmer is a gigantic task," declared John Curtis, member of the state railway commission, in an address to Ord Rotarians Monday noon. Mr. Curtis represents Nebraska on the board appointed by the interstate commerce commission to study the possibilities of freight rate reduction.

One of the difficulties encountered is the rapid encroachment on rail freight business by trucks and water transportation, Mr. Curtis said. A constant stream of trucks carrying livestock to the Omaha market can be seen on highways near that city, he said. Barges soon will be carrying mid-western wheat to the markets of the south.

Competition even between states has been developed during the freight rate controversy, he said. Nebraska is the greatest producer of both alfalfa and prairie hay in the country and enjoys a lower freight rate than neighboring states on these items. South Dakota cannot ship hay to Wisconsin to compete with Nebraska because of the higher freight rate they must pay.

Charley Arnold, Ed Furtak and other Ord baseball enthusiasts were in St. Paul last night attending a meeting of the Loup Valley Baseball League. They were invited to attend as representatives of Ord by President Dan Webster of the League who wrote that he was glad Ord men were heartily welcomed at St. Paul.

Manager Arnold has been busy since his election with plans for the team he will put in the field this summer. Only league players will be used, he thinks, and he has a pair of hurlers who can be counted on to win their share of ball games against the league teams and unless an emergency develops Manager Arnold does not believe it will be necessary to hire an out of town pitcher. Har Wolf is counted on to handle the catching assignment.

Another meeting will be called within a few days and practice will start soon, Manager Arnold says.

SPLENDID MUSIC WAS FEATURE OF MASONIC SHOW

Mrs. Tolen, Thelma Partridge Were Especially Good; House Was Packed Both Nights.

Delightful music, peppy dancing and no end of jokes were features of the Masonic minstrel show presented at the high school auditorium last Thursday and Friday nights. Packed houses greeted the performers both evenings and the Masons cleared about $225 on the show. Proceeds will go into their building fund to help pay for the temple erected last year.

The minstrel show was divided into two main parts and though both were enjoyable the first portion elicited most praise. The curtain went up to show the entire company grouped in a semi-circle on the stage, with a fifteen-piece orchestra on raised seats behind the performers. Chas. A. Bowers, as interlocutor, occupied a seat in the center and the end men, Dr. George R. Gard, Preston Loomis, Matthew Kosmata and Bert Boquet occupied seats on each wing. Glen Auble, leader of the orchestra, stood before the semi-circle.

The opening chorus, a minstrel medley with bits by individual performers, was enjoyed. Then came Dr. F. L. Blessing's solo, "The Same Old Moon," which drew forth much applause. The next number, a male quartet selection by Geo. Colliery, Preston Loomis, Glen Auble and Dr. Kirby McGrew, also was heartily appreciated by the crowd.

Mrs. Mark Tolen's solo, "Lindy Lou," and Thelma Partridge's negro spiritual, "Oh Lord What Shall I Do," were high spots in the musical portion of the program. Both were in excellent voice and the selections allotted to them were remarkably well suited to their voices.

Another feature of the program that drew forth great applause was a novelty old-time jig by Park Cook and son. They gave a splendid exhibition of jig dancing such as is seldom seen now-a-days. They were required to appear again and again, until both were pretty well tired out.

Other musical numbers included a ladies quartet selection by Madams Joe Barta, C. M. Davis, Stanley McLain and Glen Auble, a mixed quartet number by Mrs. Mark Tolen, Thelma Partridge, R. J. Stoltz and Dr. Blessing, and a spiritual, "Golden Slippers," sung by Dan Auble. All were good and the mixed quartet selection, especially, was greatly enjoyed. Miss Lucille Witter's song, "Am I Blue?" was a high spot on the program.

The big dancing feature of the evening was the "Hoosier Hop" by Dorothy Boquet and her Pep Steppers. This group of high school girls was trained by Miss Boquet and showed the result of much practice in their excellent work. Their costumes were of black and white and added much to the number. Miss Boquet danced with the girls and showed a pleasing stage personality as well as much dancing talent.

All during this portion of the play the end men and the interlocutor carried on a series of conversations and practical jokes that provoked much merriment. Bert Boquet's "Giggling Bill" song and Preston Loomis' rendition of old favorites during the closing chorus proved enjoyable to the audience.

Between the acts Miss Audrey Rogers kept the crowd amused with a novelty act, "Giggling Lizzy," and again demonstrated her ability as a reader. Several musical specialties also were enjoyed, notably a novelty act by Hemming Hautala as Professor "Guess Who."

Jim McCall's speech proved the high point of the last portion of the show, "The Booster Club of Blackville," which had C. J. Mortensen, B. Heuck, Harold Erickson, Carl Dale, Rollin Ayres, Art Meyer, Mark Tolen, Art Capron and Sam Marks as actors. Mr. McCall, as Hon. Bill Johnson who was running for judge, brought down the house with his speech. Harold Erickson, who kept order with a huge razor, and Carl Dale, craps shooter extraordinary, also were favorites as fun-makers.

Altogether the show was an enjoyable one and great credit is due Bert Boquet, the manager, Glen Auble, the musical director, Mrs. Kovanda, the dramatic director, Dorothy Boquet, the step director and Koo Auble, the pianist, for their efforts and talent. Music by a fifteen-piece orchestra was good all the way through.

The Masonic lodge and Eastern Star cleared slightly more than $225 on the two performances.

Attends Music Convention. Miss Ella Wheeler Bond was in Omaha last week attending the state convention of music teachers. While in the metropolis she was house guest of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. W. Rogers, who once lived in Ord.

My Own Column

By H. D. Leggett

One would almost think that Sunday picture shows would carry unanimously by looking over the petition signed and presented to the city council. I don't expect it is going to be that way when the people of Ord vote but I can see no reason why the people should not vote on the proposition and I surely think the majority ought to rule.

And by the same token, I would like to see the matter of prohibition submitted to a vote of the people again. I believe it would carry so much stronger than it did before that the wets would be silenced for some time.

Last week I wrote a paragraph about changing styles and intended to have this picture printed in the item. I thought the back room understood it but after the section had been printed I discovered the picture of Mr. Kokes was not used. You will admit that styles are changing though.

Just as I expected, there was no effort at either city caucus to nominate a "sell the light plant" ticket and now I have got to apologize to Horace Davis and Otto Murschel. The latter came clear from California and if it was for the purpose of directing Ord politics he sure didn't get results like he used to and Davis is in Ord frequently and if he, as has been suggested, was trying to direct city affairs, I should think he would lose confidence in his own powers as a fixer. I guess, as a matter of fact, some one's imagination got the better of their judgment when the Davis story was started.

Of course Davis would like to see the city sell the light plant to the power people. That is his business and he is not trying to cover up the fact. He makes a living by helping put such deals over and for many towns such a deal is no doubt a good thing. I don't think Ord wants that kind of a deal at this time however.

Broken Bow has a municipal plant and has had a power trust plant and there has been a great fight over there and a special election was held recently to determine whether the city should grant a new franchise to the power company. I don't know a thing about the service given by either company but the people voted not to grant the outside concern a new franchise. That seems sensible. It would surely not pay Ord people to have two power plants in Ord, one of them a power company plant competing with the city plant.

At Arcadia the telephone company announces that a member of the State Railway Commission is to be there soon to look over improvements that have been made and pass on whether the company shall be granted a raise in rates. It is claimed that 72 per cent of the phone users have agreed to the increased rates.

Several Ordites are looking for a suitable place near town where a garden can be raised this season and the weather we have had recently makes one think about gardening. Probably a good garden costs more in dollars and cents than the vegetables could be bought for in the market. At least all that an ordinary family uses could be bought for less than the garden costs in cash outlay. I always raise several times as much stuff as we can use. But really the fun the Missus and I get out of digging in the dirt and spending an hour or two in the garden quite often is the real value from the garden. If we didn't use a thing out of the garden it would still be a mighty good investment and I recommend that as many people as possible have a 1930 garden. It is more enjoyable to me than golf would be and probably less expensive and just as healthy a sport or pastime or recreation, whatever we choose to call it.

I presume some at least of the Quiz readers noticed the new kind of print paper we used last week for the first time. For a long time we have been complaining to the paper house about the poor quality of print paper sold us. It lacked strength and was hard to handle all the time in all ways. Finally the house we buy from told us they had a new paper that would suit us and it was used last week for the first time. It is a Canadian product, is much stouter than the paper we have been using and is not as white in color. It is said to be the natural color as made from the pulp wood. I always tried to get the white paper but that is impossible and have the strength also and we have decided to use the better quality paper with the yellow tinge.

Bury Me in Pink Gandhi's Appeal The King's Maxim If War Did Come

Woman's interest in dress, strong and deep, goes back a million years. She started with a necklace, according to scientists. First an ornament around the neck, then one around the waist, then a skirt and all sorts of things.

A woman in California who murdered a man and killed herself asked to be buried in white satin with yellow roses in her hand. A well-known actress in New York jumps from a twentieth-story window and makes two requests: first, that she be buried in pink satin; second, that her husband keep away from the funeral.

Beautiful in sincerity and humility is Gandhi's appeal to the British government. "On bended knees, I ask you to ponder this phenomenon"—namely, the "impoverishment of India's dumb millions" by Britain.

Gandhi says "I do not intend to harm a single Englishman." He will only resist passively. Very touching, but not the attitude that gains independence, not the attitude of a people ready for independence.

Britain set a different example before the Hindus after the Sepoy rebellion. The British put murderous rebels inside of cannon and blew them to pieces, knowing that religious superstition would make the punishment most horrible. No rebellion of consequence since then.

One industry marches on to higher and higher figures. In the cigarette business, prosperity reigns. Everybody always has money to buy cigarettes.

When employment is lacking there is leisure to smoke more cigarettes, and all feel that they must have them, job or no job.

Last year's production was one hundred and nineteen billion cigarettes, almost a thousand cigarettes per year for every man, woman and child in the United States.

One thing most important to all business men in connection with the gigantic cigarette industry: Cigarette men are the most aggressive, energetic and continuous advertisers in the nation.

either all concerns, voluntarily reducing its refining operations by one-seventh. Refining is a continuous process, and must continue seven days a week, but only six days' actual work will be done, to prevent over-production. And most important part of the good example, men will not be discharged or have their wages cut.

An English clergyman reveals King George's six maxims, all hung up on the walls of his library. "The first is: 'Teach me to be obedient to the rules of the game.'"

Excellent for a constitutional monarch, obeying the will of his people. Rulers of a different kind, Alexander, Caesar, Napoleon, had a different maxim: "See that you obey the rules of the game as I make them."

We do not understand management of prisons, or our criminals are different from other criminals. Weeks ago, Warden Hoffman, of Auburn prison, New York, told a reporter: "We are sitting on a powder keg."

Recently a convict stabbed the head keeper of the prison to death. He knew that the electric chair, nearby, would inevitably avenge that murder. Nevertheless, he committed it.

Swift trial and punishment should protect the other keepers. Careful investigation should find what treatment and conditions drove a convict to so desperate an act.

General Ely, commanding the second corps area, has a plan to defend New York city in war. He would "mobilize the civilian services."

If modern war came the civilian services would mobilize themselves. And with them the six million population of New York, as many as survived the first gas and bomb attacks, would mobilize themselves by scattering through the country, abandoning the city as rats leave a ship when it is sinking.

In case of an attack by airplane, which would be the first sort of attack in a new war, it would not be necessary for General Ely to worry about his suggestion for "guarding the water supply."

After the first half hour, there wouldn't be anybody left in New York to drink water. The dead couldn't drink it and all the living would have left the city. An encouraging statement comes from Mr. Edsel B. Ford, now in Florida. He is one who talks rarely, and thinks first. President of the Ford company, knowing the sales from day to day, possessing sound information about business conditions, he predicts steady improvement in business, particularly in industrial lines. # the NEW Polarine is the modern motor oil

New refining equipment and processes alone made possible the new Polarine—with every desirable quality oil can have—free from disadvantages previous refining processes had never overcome.

The new Polarine contains less than half the carbon residue of old process oils—has greater lubricating value—deposits less carbon in the motor.

The lighter grades of the new Polarine have a "pour point" below zero. The heaviest grades flow at 17° below freezing.

In stability and protective body at high engine heat the new Polarine sets new standards.

The light, bright color of the new Polarine shows freedom from wax and tar ingredients.

On all points of both quality and performance, you cannot buy an oil—made by any process, from any grade of crude, at any price—that will do more for your motor than the new Polarine.

This new Polarine is sold at no advance in price. Consult the Chart for the correct grade.

FROM THE CENSUS SUPERVISOR FIFTH DISTRICT OF NEBRASKA, I. A. WEBBERT KEARNEY

Weekly Information. It will be the plan of this office to supply the Quiz with a few items of interest each week regarding the 1930 Federal Census. The editor has very graciously agreed to publish these items, and we sincerely appreciate this cooperation. Readers are urged to watch this column for important census data which will be issued by the Supervisor at Kearney each week.

Reports for Absent Families. For families planning to be away from home during the month of April, special provision has been made by the Director of the Census in the form of an absent family schedule, which is to be filled out by some responsible member of the family in advance of April first, and forwarded at once to the Supervisor. These schedules, with complete instructions are ready for distribution.

General Farm Schedules. Farmers are urged to write at once for copy of General Farm Schedule, which every farmer is required to fill out. By securing these at once, the farmer will have opportunity to study the schedule carefully, and answer all questions relating to the farm which he operates. He will then return the schedule upon the Enumerator calls, and then give complete and accurate information from this prepared copy. The farmer will then retain his copy for his records. Copies of this farm schedule may be secured from County Agents, District Supervisors, or from the Bureau of the Census, Washington, D. C. Farmers securing these schedules in advance will greatly assist themselves and the Enumerators, as considerable time will be saved by having all data assembled when the Enumerator calls.

General Information. All schedules, covering every branch of the census are to be given to the Enumerator or mailed direct to the District Supervisor. Do not mail them to Washington, D. C. Do not hesitate to write for any formation pertaining to the Census. Address I. A. Webbert, Federal Building, Kearney.

Reporter Counts Types of Clothing Worn By Children

By IRMA ELLIS LEGGETT

Remembering that Miss Witter's classes had only been visited once this year, (my memory was jogged by seeing her in the Masonic Minstrels)... I descended upon her room Monday just after the afternoon recess.

First I noticed the many attractive booklets on Africa, health subjects, etc., which made a jagged row about the room, hanging each one of them from an upper corner. They looked so interesting, with their picture fronts, their variegated printing. They were as different as booklets that are alike can be. And I noticed a big map, made on white paper, of those maps showing the chief crops or industries of each country by having a picture that illustrates the point pasted into the heart of the country as drawn on the map. It was a very nice map.

The most attractive thing about the room, however, was the wall pale green and white crepe paper had been used at a group of three south windows. There were sash curtains of the green, with white ruffled tops. And every flower pot... and there were lots of them, had a white card about its middle, growing so much more daintily there. In the middle of each lower window half was pasted a colored paper pot of yellow, with a yellow tulip blooming in it. Really, you should have seen how pretty these windows looked!

Many of the children of this grade are old acquaintances of mine, for I have followed them through a most important two or three years. And how they have changed! Dean Barta, Jackie Wiers, Dorothy Weeke, Delilah Beeghly, Margery Coe, the little blond Dent girl, another blond... Norma Mae Snell, so many of these I had watched sprout up toward young ladyhood and young manhood.

Just for fun, I got statistical and counted the kinds of clothing worn in it. Really, you should have seen how many of them were becoming wash dresses. Seven girls had on tailored wool frocks, and five of them had chosen, or perhaps their mamas had done it, to wear colored wool sweaters, with woolen skirts and hats. Five boys were in sweaters; three wore other types of jackets or coats over their shirts; two boys wore dark flannel shirts, and one boy was warm enough apparently in just a shirt and overalls. Several of the boys wore knickerbockers. So there now, you know what the young folks are wearing this school season!

Teacher was gay in a bright and cheery-colored smock over her dress. This is quite the fashion among Ord teachers, as I notice a goodly number of them wear some type of washable smock over their dresses.

Lessons opened with the flat statement that "you must ask to borrow." So then Miss Witter received a number of such requests, and granted them. Spelling was first on the program, with meanings and sentences to be found for the list of words: "tomorrow, desire, further, enclosing, question, acre, balance, else, hoping, except, statement, minute, oblige, truly, account, suppose, quite, feel, regard, advise."

Miss Witter announced "Pronounce these words, everybody!" and one or two children who hadn't been paying quite the best attention said loudly and brightly: "Everybody!" Having been spoken to for being "off-side," the pronouncing began. Then out came dictionaries, to look up the meanings, for Miss Witter had shown them by actual illustration that although they might have a fair idea of the meanings they would gain a much better impression if they would look up the words! So they did!

Next came a study of a story called "The Lost Trail." It concerned a boy friend from the city who went out to a lumber camp and forgot all the warnings of the camp when he strayed off fishing one day. So the boy got lost, of course, but was found before the end of the story. After answering a lot of questions about the story, the members of this class-room were to write a similar story for the same title. This, for the next day.

I mustn't forget to tell you about Miss Hallen's little second graders! Going out of the building, I noticed them being dismissed so wandered over. A number of little girls were hugging her, and one little girl asked: "Do you go home nights, Miss Hallen?" Another one said: "Do you sleep here?" And another one answered: "She doesn't have anything to eat here, do you Miss Hallen?" "Go home, don't you Miss Hallen?" We smiled together, Miss Hallen and I.

Capes and Capelets Reign Supreme

This is certainly a "capey" year. Every where you look another cape, of a new and fascinating kind meets your eye and usually your highest approval as well. For they aren't just the kind we've been familiar with for years, the kind that cut down square shoulders, and made the skinny look at least pleasingly plumpish!

Capes this year are a law unto themselves. Everyone is different, very few are anything alike, and some type of cape. . . some of the new styles in capelets. . . are sure to become you very much indeed!

For example: Often a cape tops one of the new tweed suits. And as suits are so unusually good this year, many capes will be seen. Such a cape is generally of the extremely round and tailored type. . . more like our old friend, in fact.

Numbers of the new coats for spring show capes as collars. They vary considerably. Sometimes the cape turns into a scarf. Sometimes it only begins at the top of a pair of lapels, cutting across the very front tip of the shoulder so that the cape is only barely visible from the front, but shows all across the back of the coat. But at any rate, probably at least half the coats and suits bought this spring will be sport capes!

And as to dresses! That is where these capes show up the most. Though often they are in such unfamiliar guises that they look very much unlike a cape. One charming dress has the narrowest little collar across the back of the neck, which widens out into a full-fledged cape across the front, and being made of satin falls oh! so gracefully into deep folds!

Of course you have seen the pretty one-sided looking capes, a few of which were charming on their wearers last spring. Well, than ever, and more extreme than ever. Whereas last spring such a cape might fall eight inches below the shoulders in back, this spring it may fall to the hip-line in the back! Such models, are even seen in lace, and very beautiful they are, too. By one-sided models, mentioned above, is meant the capes that curved up to the neck-line, often held there by a pin or bow. I'm sure you've seen them!

Then on models meant for older women are found glorified versions of the cape that fall on either side of a V neck-line, to such depth and purpose that they resemble jabots. And of course these are very becoming to the women for whom they are intended. Extremely slim women are included in the group who will like them, and extremely tall women, too, as well as the older matrons.

But, whatever you do, don't neglect to consider the cape when you are choosing the type of dress, suit, ensemble or coat to buy this spring. If you do, you may be sorry.

Patsy, the Particular.

G. I. Mayor Asks 35 Copies of Co-op Creamery Ad

"In last week's issue of the Quiz there was an advertisement by the co-operative creamery in reference to how cocoanut oil is prepared and would like to get about thirty-five copies of same to send to farm tenants of mine. Have seen piles of copra in Central America as described by ad."

So writes O. A. Abbott, jr., mayor of Grand Island. The ad published last week by the Ord creamery is creating much comment. It was a revolting but truthful picture of just how oleomargarine is made and Ord grocers report fewer calls for butter made from "the white meat of the cocoanut" since this ad appeared.

DAVIS PREDICTS BUTTER PRICES HIGHER IN FALL

Educational Campaign Is Helping, Says Ag College Man; 1/4 of Cows Should Be Culled.

By Geo. Round, Jr.

"The Dairy situation in Nebraska today looks much more promising than it did a few months ago," H. P. Davis, head of the dairy department at the University of Nebraska told me recently. "However, the situation is not bright as yet and we are far from being out of the woods."

Professor Davis predicted that there will be no material improvement in prices paid for dairy products in the next few months, possibly not before fall. He said there might be a slight decline in prices paid for butter, ice cream, and cheese.

"Really we shouldn't expect higher prices before fall on dairy products. We will soon face the increased production of spring season which will put more pounds of butter on the market, usually resulting in seasonal lower prices. Nevertheless, I am optimistic about the prospects in the future although they are none too bright now," he said.

The University of Nebraska man said that he believed the recent dairy problem was caused by under-consumption rather than over-production as most people are led to believe. The public found they could purchase butter substitutes cheaper, he said. Everyone began to cut down on high-priced butter and purchase a cheap substitute, oleomargarine. Butter prices suffered in that respect, he said.

"The dairy crisis had to come sooner or later," Davis explained to me. "I did not expect it so soon but the stock market crash helped to bring it on. Although farmers themselves probably lost little money in the crash, it caused a near panic over the United States. Everyone began cutting down on expenses and butter was one of the first commodities to suffer."

By educating the public to the value of butter and other dairy products, Davis said that he believed consumption would increase in the future. He hoped, he said, that the tariff against coconut oil from abroad would be imposed soon to prevent importation of substitutes.

Dairymen over the United States are putting on a real educational program in an attempt to show the American people the advantages of eating butter, ice cream, and cheese. Publicity is being sent all over the nation. The program is based not only on the fact that butter is a health product, containing proper nutrients and vitamins, but that the consumption of butter means support to one of the main industries of the country.

"The standard of living today in the United States is higher than in any other country in the world. Tariff is one of the things that has kept the standard so high. Without tariff upon the oils that come from abroad the dairy industry will have difficulty in competing with tropical oils. Destroy tariffs on foreign products and you destroy standards of living," Professor Davis told me.

George Valasek, U. P. Scholarship Winner, Thinks Holsteins Are Real Stuff for Dairy

By GEORGE ROUND, JR.

"Why did you ever join a 4-H club?" I recently asked of George Valasek, 16, who lives northeast of Ord across the river. He was the Union Pacific scholarship winner in this county last year and a prominent club member.

"Well, You see I was taking vocational agriculture last year and had to have a project to carry out through the year and so chose to enter a calf in the Valley County Dairy Calf club. I am glad that I did now," he replied.

"It was my first year in the calf club but I won a third in the calf club show at the Valley county fair, and second in the open class at the same fair. 'Wimpy' of the prizes tickled me a bit," George went on to say.

However, after he had told me that he won the major prizes at the local show, I wondered where he got his calf in order to place so high in the string competition.

"Since you asked me, I will tell you. Last fall when J. D. Witche held his dispersion sale, I bought the calf," George informed me.

"Was she a purebred or a grade?"

"She was a purebred Holstein," he replied in answer to my question.

I have had many Valley county club members tell me that they are strong for one breed of hogs or cattle, so thought maybe George might have a reason for thinking the Holsteins superior to other dairy cattle. I asked him what his reasons were.

George began to ponder, evidently not thinking that I would ask him any questions about the quality of the dairy cows. He began to scratch his head and finally with Davis said the butter substitute, better known as oleomargarine, was formerly manufactured from packing house by-products but now comes from foreign countries in great quantities. It can be produced cheap. It does not contain the health qualities of dairy products, he said.

In putting on the extensive educational program the dairy people over the country are advising people to cull out their low producers. Efficient production means more profits, they say. They estimate that from one-third to one-fourth the cows being milked today could be culled out and sold over the block and the industry would right itself.

Clement and Leach In Pig Crop Contest

Two Valley county farmers, Leand Leach and George B. Clement, are entered in the 1930 pig crop contest, according to County Agent Carl C. Dale. Clement was in the contest last year while Leach, who is of Arcadia, is a newcomer. Farmers entering the contest this year with over sixteen sows are placed in one class while those with fewer than sixteen entered are placed in another class. All competed in one class last year. Clement has twelve Poland China sows entered while Leach has ten Durocs in the contest.

The Will Worm family left last Saturday for their new home a mile south of Taylor. The Jess Worm family is moving onto the farm they formerly occupied in Noble township.

a bit of hesitancy blurted out, "I like the Holstein breed and am not ashamed of it. They give just as much cream as other cows and I can use the surplus skim milk for other animals about the farm." I thought that was a pretty good answer to my question so didn't ask him further.

There have been cases where calf club boys, especially dairy calf members, feed their calves wrong from the start. But George appears to know his "oats". He feeds corn, oats, bran, oilmeal and alfalfa in his balanced ration.

In preparation for a great club year, Geo. is planning on getting a real purebred Holstein heifer this year. "I plan to get her through the college of agriculture," he says, "one of the dairy extension agents is to get me a good one. I expect her to come from a dam with a 600 pound butterfat production record. She shall be about six months old," he says.

As I had about finished the conversation with George about his club work, he began to get nervous for fear I would ask him about the girls club work. He had noticed that Max Cruikshank had nothing to say about it but from the way he acted I thought he perhaps knew lots more than he pretended.

I asked, "Say George you ought to know a lot about the girls club work. Do you think it is great stuff?"

He colored up, blushed a bit, looked at the ground and said, "Say just because there is an old saying about George Porgie kissing the girls and running away, I don't believe in it. I really think girls clubs are all right. I haven't run from any of them yet."

That explained it all.

VALLEY COUNTY ASSOCIATION IS 15TH IN STATE

Drops From Sixth During Month Of February; Earl Hanson's Herd Is Highest.

The Valley County Dairy Herd Improvement association fell down to fifteenth place in state standings in butterfat production for the month of February, according to the monthly report from the state dairy office at Lincoln. Previous to this month, the local association has ranked among the six high leaders. The Harlan-Phelps association produced better than sixty pounds. Twenty-one cows were in the forty to fifty pound class.

The high fat producing herd in the Valley county association, that of Earl Hanson, for February ranked ninth in the state. His herd of Holsteins produced 43.6 pounds of butterfat. The leader, from Johnson-Otoe, had an average of 54.7 pounds.

McLain Brothers of Ord, leaders here in the group with over sixteen cows, improved their standing in the state when they were tenth place winners in February. Their herd of eighteen Holsteins averaged 36.2 pounds butterfat. The state leader in the class averaged 41.7 pounds.

Despite the fact that Earl Hanson's local high producing cow produced 67.2 pounds of butterfat for the month, he ranked but nineteenth in the state. More high producers were noted in the month. Jay Robinson of the Buffalo association had the high producing cow. She produced 102.5 pounds.

KEEP THE DOCTOR AWAY DAY BY DAY WITH EXTENSION PLAY

By George Round, Jr.

Third Man This game is another form of Three Deep, but instead of being in circular formation the players are scattered irregularly over the playing area. All players but two fake partners and scatter about in an irregular way. The players forming each couple stand facing each other. One of the two odd players, one is a runner and the other the chaser, the object of the game being to tag the runner. The runner may take refuge between any two players who are standing as a couple. The moment he does so, the one toward whom his back is turned becomes "third man" and must in turn try to escape being tagged by the chaser.

Should the chaser tag the runner, they exchange places, the runner immediately becoming chaser and chaser the runner.

J. C. Ward, Though Only 12 Years Old Has Had Three Years of Work In Pig Clubs

By George Round, Jr.

Another young but outstanding club member in Valley county: J. C. Ward, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Ward of Arcadia, and a brother of Preston, whom I wrote about recently in the Quiz.

Find me another club member who is but twelve years old and has had three years of club work and earned three certificates of achievement. It could be a hard thing to do in any county in Nebraska. Anyhow it is the record J. C. holds.

J. C. may be young but that doesn't mean that he isn't some club boy and a real hog showman. He knows hogs and knows how to show them just as well as his little brother, Preston, although Preston may be no smaller than J. C.

Together with his brother, he won over two hundred dollars last year in showing six pairs in the pig club and open class. "Boy! How many bats, balls, sleds, boots and other things that money would buy for a boy. Gee, I'll bet he and Preston were tickled when they found they had won so much money. J. C. didn't tell me he was sad or anything about it but I don't imagine his face resembled a graveyard when he got his check."

While on their show circuit last fall, J. C. won second place in a pig club showman's contest at St. Paul in the Howard County Fair. It shows that J. C. knows judging just as well as he does hogs. When he picks them he usually picks them right, you can bank on that.

J. C. entered club work three years ago in the Arcadia Pig Club when Morris Fowler of Arcadia was the club member. One can keep changing his pigs and houses then and avoid disease. Also I find that the sow should be carefully bedded down before farrowing and should have her udder washed."

"I believe you should change your hog lots each year," he replied. "Disease comes in if you don't. The lots should be plowed up and grain planted. One can keep changing his pigs and houses then and avoid disease. Also I find that the sow should be carefully bedded down before farrowing and should have her udder washed."

Of course, J. C. likes club-work and thinks it is a wonderful thing for boys and girls.

AM I RIGHT?

By Geo. Round, jr.

Recent statistics given out by extension service at the college of agriculture, Lincoln, in regard to the work accomplished by the average county extension agent in one year seem to prove their value. Some of the figures for the past year, 1929, are astonishing but only go further to prove the value of an agent in any county in the state.

Especially in club work were the county agents in Nebraska effective during the past year. They seemed to stimulate the work to a large degree and helped to make such an increased enrollment over the previous year.

Ninety-one per cent of the boys and girls enrolled in club work in the state last year were from agent counties. The remaining nine per cent were those who resided in counties where there were no agents. Certainly this part of the work alone well repaid the tax payers for no one in Valley county probably doubts the value of club work.

The statistics show that three-fourths of the club boys and girls who had the help of the county extension agents finished up their work while but about half of those without the help started the bad habit of dropping what they set out to do. Another accomplishment for the county agents.

Too, every one of the major championships in the 1929 club work went to members in agent counties. No members in the non-agent counties were successful in landing a major championship. Another indication of the quality of work done by the agents.

The statistics show many other things that the agents accomplished during the year. They show how many farmers were reached in the work and other things bearing directly in extension work.

Paul McDill, state boys and girls baby beef club leader, announces his intention of entering the H. D. Lull crop contest this year if enough boys and girls from over the state are interested in entering. Am wondering why there aren't several Valley county club members interested in the contest that is proposed.

The contest will be held on the same basis as the adult contest has been staged in the past. That is, average production of pork per sow will be the basis of award next fall. Seems as though it is mighty practical plan to teach the boys and girls something in an economical fashion.

Probably Hugh Ward, the boy who produced the ton litter last year in Valley county, would be interested in joining. He may think that he has three or more sows that could produce enough pork to make him rank among the leaders. Other coming club members also are probably interested in the announcement. They should ## ature hitch demonstration layout they should let Agent Dale know at once. After seeing it, they will agree with me that it is quite original.

The eighteenth annual feeders meeting will be held at the college of agriculture, Lincoln, early in April. Prof. H. J. Gramlich declares that he has some interesting experiments running now that will be finished in time for the meeting. They should uncover some interesting and valuable information for Valley county farmers, he says.

In an experiment being conducted with hog feeding, the university is attempting to determine the effects of gains on hogs at different stages in their development. The results of this experiment will probably be more than interesting.

Gramlich says that the experiment will probably prove that the production and marketing of hogs at a younger age will be more profitable for Valley county farmers. Experiments in the past have proved the value of raising and marketing young cattle.

Years ago, cattle that were large weighing around two thousand pounds were desirable on the market. The little cattle were not thought of. The older the animal was and the more fat he carried, the better price he brought. However, in recent years the trend has been toward younger cattle until today the baby beef type are in most demand.

Now it appears as though experiments may prove that it will be more profitable to market the hogs at a younger age because of the inefficient gains made as the animal gets older. If the experiment does bring the facts out, the whole hog industry will probably be changed in years to come. The smaller hog will bring the most money and will be the most efficient producer. He will be a bigger small hog in a relative sense of the word.

Valley county farmers will await the results of the experiment with interest. Farmers in other sections of the state will do so also. It may bring out some startling facts in the production of pork for the market.

New Circular Issued.

Brush dams for ditch control is the name of a new extension circular which Valley county farmers may get at County Agent Dale's office in Ord or at the college of agriculture, Lincoln. The circular has just been published and is now ready for circulation.

The new circular dealing with ditch control by use of brush dams has been written by Ivan D. Wood, extension agent in agricultural engineering. Wood in the new circular, which every farmer in this county should have, describes how to use and where to use the brush dam. It is free, according to County Agent Carl C. Dale of Ord.

In his new circular, Wood describes the single post row and double post row dams.

Picture of Grand Champion Hogs

This is a picture of the load of Hampshire Hogs that won the Grand Championship at the Denver Live Stock show this year. They were raised and fed on Bon-o-fat as a supplement to their grain and alfalfa pasture. Their owner and exhibitor, Mr. J. J. R. Claassen, of Beatrice, Nebr., was one of the Master Farmers for Nebraska this past year, being outstanding in the production of hogs, as well as other lines. Mr. Claassen has fed Bon-o-fat continuously for several years, and he and his brother Aaron Claassen, buy Bon-o-fat in carload lots. Aaron won the Grand Championship at the Omaha Ak-Sar-Ben last October on a carload of Hampshires that had been fed Bon-o-fat and corn. This is not the first time this happened as these men did the same thing last year at three of the leading Live Stock Shows, showing that Bon-o-fat fed hogs are always at the top.

If men like these can feed and endorse a hog supplement like Bon-o-fat and continually feed it, that ought to be conclusive evidence that it brings results. You cannot make a mistake when you feed Bon-o-fat to your hogs or pigs, or brood sows. Try a ton or so of this wonderful feed and be convinced of its merits, and you will be pleased with the finish your hogs carry when you sell them and pleased with the extra profit you will get by feeding it.

A car of Bon-o-fat is on the Burlington track at Ord now and a special price makes this the best feed on the market for the money. Come down to the car and look it over and then take home some of it.

Chevrolet announces A NEW SERVICE POLICY. The Chevrolet Motor Company and its dealers are pleased to announce a new service policy—one of the most liberal ever offered on a low-priced automobile. Put into force as a written agreement given to the purchaser by the Chevrolet dealer when the car is delivered—it offers the following provisions: 1 Every Chevrolet owner receives his car from the dealer in perfect condition—thoroughly lubricated, properly adjusted, and ready to operate efficiently from the first mile of ownership. 2 Every Chevrolet owner is entitled to free inspection and adjustment of his car at the end of the first 500 miles of usage. 3 Every Chevrolet owner is entitled to free inspection of his car every 1000 miles thereafter, so long as the car is in operation. 4 Every Chevrolet owner is entitled to free replacement of any part which may prove defective in workmanship or material, within the terms of Chevrolet's standard warranty. This includes both parts and labor. 5 Provision number 4 will be carried out by any Chevrolet dealer in the United States. As a result, the Chevrolet owner may travel to any part of the country, with assurance that the guarantee on materials and workmanship will remain in force. This new policy constitutes proof of Chevrolet's high quality—for such liberal provisions could only be made in connection with a car built of fine materials to exacting standards of workmanship. Back of this policy, and assuring its successful operation, is one of the most complete and efficient service organizations in the world. There are more than 10,000 Authorized Chevrolet Dealer Service Stations in the United States alone. Each employs skilled mechanics thoroughly trained at Chevrolet Service Schools. Each has specially designed tools and machinery developed exclusively for Chevrolet service work. And each has on hand, at all times, an adequate stock of genuine Chevrolet replacement parts. Chevrolet's flat-rate charges, including both parts and labor, are the lowest in the industry on many service operations! In considering the purchase of a low-priced automobile, think what this service means—in terms of lasting satisfaction, as well as in increased economy. # CURTIS TELLS ABOUT WORK OF RAILWAY BODY pay, and are demanding that rates be equalized, which Nebraska is opposing.

California asks that freight rates on flour and on wheat from Kansas and Nebraska to the west coast be increased, yet Kansas and Nebraska demand that they be decreased. Southern states ask for lower freight rates because of their mild temperatures with all-year-round facilities for running trains cheaply. Nebraska demands lower freight rates because we have a level state with a constant grade eastward. North Dakota asks lower rates because cold temperatures mean that floues will never menace roadbeds in that state and cause expense to railroads. The mountain states say they should have lower rates on eastward shipments because of their strong down-hill grade in that direction. Mr. Curtis cited these and many others as questions that must be solved before freight rates are reduced.

"The world is moving at a faster pace today than ever before," the speaker declared. He cited the development of daily transcontinental airplane service, the perfection of radio and talking pictures, the increased speed of trains and autos and the fact that five years ago automatic telephones were used only in the largest cities. Today small communities in Nebraska and other states are demanding automatic service. Newman Grove and Seward were cited as examples. Such service naturally is demanded and if people demand it they must be prepared to pay for it, he said.

Mr. Curtis praised Rotary and other civic clubs highly, declaring that in such clubs is born the spirit of optimism and the qualities of leadership that the world needs today. He illustrated his points with witty stories and sayings and kept the club in constant laughter. His address was both inspiring and amusing.

The speaker was introduced by Irl D. Tolen and in his preliminary remarks Mr. Curtis complimented Ord on being the home of Mr. Tolen who, he says, is well known and well liked all over Nebraska.

Other guests at Rotary Monday were Will McLain, of Winner, S. D., Dan Needham, A. W. Cornell and E. C. Leggett.

Pussyfoot's Sportlog

By George Round, Jr.

Dannebrog, the only Loup Valley league team to enter the state high school basketball tournament at Lincoln last week, was eliminated in the semi-final round by Barnes-ton. Inability of the Dannebrog hoopers to hit the basket cost them the game. There was no doubt in the minds of spectators that they had the best team.

The Howard county team showed to advantage throughout the tournament and would have been a favorite in the finals had they defeated Barnes-ton, who had made a brilliant season record. The Dannebrog team was mighty well coached and played a smooth brand of basketball.

Joe Krejci took his Ord high school basketball team to Lincoln to watch the finals in the high school basketball tournament between Lincoln and Kearney in the class A finals. The boys were enthused over the trip and I believe that they learned a lot by seeing such great teams as Lincoln and Kearney play in the finals.

With the organization of a home-talent ball club under the management of Chas. Deacon, Arnold, will probably come the selection of a pitcher manager as was suggested at the organization meeting. I believe it would pay the Ord manager to try to get Hank "Army" Armata to come to Ord next summer to take over the coaching and pitching assignments of friends in and around Ord last summer when pitching for the Ord semipro team. He was an effective hurler and his personality carried him across to fans in this vicinity. Then, too, Hank was mighty well pleased with Ord and the treatment he got while here. If approached right, I believe he would be willing to come to Ord this summer to pitch and coach the club.

Now he is out for the varsity baseball team at the University of Nebraska where he is a student in the college of engineering. Last year he was one of the most outstanding pitchers in the Big Six and should be more effective this year. Big things are expected of him at Nebraska this year.

If Hank could be secured to come to Ord, he would probably be more than willing to go out with the Junior American Legion baseball club if one is formed this summer. The kids would be more than willing to work for him.

I hope that "Deacon" sees fit to try to get "Army" to come back to Ord this year. He would be a big help.

Much of Pontiac's increased smoothness is due to new type rubber mountings which now insulate its engine from the frame, and to a more rigid crankcase which assures more permanent bearing and crankshaft alignment. Then too, smoothness is intensified by the Harmonic Balancer which counteracts torsional crankshaft vibration. Finally, Pontiac's basic engine design enables it to develop 60 horsepower at moderate engine speed. No matter how fast or hard you drive, the engine runs smoothly and silently. . . . In this car you get reliability and long life seldom equalled except in cars of much higher price. Furthermore, you get remarkable economy. ## WILL VOTE ON SUNDAY MOVIES APR. 1

COUNCILMEN HOLD SPECIAL SESSION TUESDAY, REFER MATTER TO PEOPLE

Ord voters will have an opportunity at the city election April 1 to determine whether or not Sunday movies will be legalized in Ord. This was decided Tuesday evening when the city council, meeting in special session at the call of Mayor Wm. Bartlett, decided by a vote of 4 to 2 to permit the question to go on the ballot at the city election. A petition containing the signatures of 251 Ord voters who want Sunday movies and a remonstrance containing the names of 307 who are against them were considered by the council after which Councilman Fred Coe moved that the question be left for the voters to decide. Councilman Gruber, Sorensen, Rohla and Coe voted "yes" on this motion and Councilmen Moses and Palmatier voted "no." Mayor Bartlett then declared the motion carried and ordered the question of whether or not Ord shall have Sunday movies put on the ballot for the consideration of Ord voters.

For more than a week the question of Sunday movies has been a burning issue in Ord. Many had previously thought Ord should have Sunday amusements because of their benefits to business interests of the town, but Wednesday afternoon petitions were drawn up and proponents of Sunday movies began circulating them, securing before Thursday night 261 signatures of those who favor Sunday movies for Ord. This petition was filed Thursday in the office of Nelle Wolters, city clerk.

To legalize Sunday movies here it will be necessary to repeal Ordinance No. 23, which prohibits them. Those who want the Sunday shows asked in their petition that the city council submit the question to a vote of the people at the regular city election to be held April 1st.

In the meantime, opponents of Sunday movies were not inactive. Led by ministers of local Protestant churches, a remonstrance petition was at once drawn up and after preliminary remarks made from the pulpits of Ord churches Sunday, the petitions were put in circulation. By Tuesday afternoon the remonstrance contained the names of 307 people who oppose Sunday amusements. In filing this remonstrance, "antis" hoped to induce the city council to refuse a place on the ballot to the question. The remonstrance petition said, in part: "We, the undersigned legal voters of Ord, respectfully protest any modification of Ordinance No. 23, and further protest against the proposition being placed upon the ballots at the coming city election."

This was filed late Tuesday afternoon with the city clerk and that evening the city council met at the call of Mayor Bartlett to consider the petition and the remonstrance. This was done, with the result that by a majority vote the council referred the question to legal voters of this city.

Agitation for Sunday movies is not a new thing in Ord. In 1924 the question was submitted to voters and at that time 311 were in favor of legalizing them with 425 opposed to such action, the majority of votes cast against Sunday shows being 114. A total of 736 votes were cast.

At the present time those who oppose Sunday movies point out that legalizing them will be "a step backward." Sunday should be kept as a day of rest and worship, they point out. Even though other cities have Sunday shows "two wrongs do not make a right," to quote one Ord minister; and Ord should not imperil its churches and their membership by permitting Sunday movies, they say. Probably seventy-five percent or more of local business men favor legalizing Sunday shows. They point out that Ord is in direct business competition with Greeley, Loup City, Grand Island and other cities having Sunday shows and that a large amount of money goes out of town to these other places each Sunday. Filing station men, restaurant owners and others who serve the public seven days a week are said to be particularly anxious that Sunday shows be permitted here.

The question will be decided by the voters on April 1.

Sub-District Contest To Be Held Thursday

The annual declamatory contest of the fourth sub-district of the central Nebraska declamatory union will be held in the high school auditorium on Thursday afternoon and evening, March 27. Eleven schools of the Loup valley district are members of this sub-district and ten of these schools are expected to enter one or more classes in the contest. The contest will be conducted in classes, namely, oratorical, dramatic, humorous, extemporaneous speaking and one act plays. Last year four of these five classes were represented and it is expected that all departments will have entrants this year. The one-act play class, a new one last year, was very well received and will doubtless be one of the leading classes in the coming contest.

As a local preliminary to the sub-district contest the Ord high school held their school contest last Wednesday evening. Twelve contestants represented three classes of speaking and a very high class contest resulted. Mrs. Mark Tolson has been directing the local contestants this year and her efforts have resulted in much improvement in speech work. The following were winners in the local contest last Wednesday:

Oratorical—Wilson Bell—"The Christ of the Andes."
Dramatic—Lillian Kokes, first—"The Little Rebel." Virginia Vandecar, second—"Aunt Lavender's Meeting Bonnet."
Humorous—Esther Zulkoski, first "Football as Dora Sees It." Rosemary Needham, second. "The Dolly's Funeral."

Chevrolet Announces New Service Policy

Detroit, March 19.—The Chevrolet Motor Company today announces a new and broader service policy. Any Chevrolet owner, experiencing defective workmanship or material on a Chevrolet car under the terms of Chevrolet's standard warranty, is invited to call upon any authorized Chevrolet dealer in the United States or Canada where the work will be done at no cost to him.

The plan, known as the Owner's Service Policy, is now in effect in the 10,000 authorized Chevrolet service stations in the United States, operating under the general supervision of the 52 Chevrolet branch offices.

The new policy takes the form of a written agreement given the purchaser by the Chevrolet dealer when the new car is delivered. It puts down in plain, understandable language the greater service protection to which every Chevrolet owner is now entitled. Briefly it covers the following provisions:

1. Every Chevrolet owner receives his car from the dealer in perfect condition—thoroughly lubricated, properly adjusted and ready to operate efficiently from the first mile of ownership.

2. Every Chevrolet owner is entitled to free inspection and adjustment of his car at the end of the first 600 miles of usage. This includes checking and adjusting the brakes, tappets, timing, generator, carburetor, clutch pedal, and steering gear; tightening all body bolts; tightening all motor bolts; testing and filling battery and checking the oil level in the transmission and rear axle. The dealer assumes no responsibility for previous adjustments when they have been made in service stations other than his own.

3. Every Chevrolet owner is entitled to free inspection of his car every 1,000 miles thereafter so long as the car is in operation.

4. Every Chevrolet owner is entitled to free replacement of any part, which may prove defective, either in workmanship or in material, within the terms of Chevrolet's standard warranty, provided such parts and labor are not required because of accident or mechanical abuse. This includes both parts and labor. This provision will be carried out by any Chevrolet dealer in the United States. According to the Chevrolet owner may change his residence, or travel to any part of the country with the full assurance that the guarantee on materials and workmanship will give him complete protection.

In all Chevrolet dealer's service stations there are employed skilled mechanics thoroughly trained at Chevrolet service schools. These stations are equipped with specially designed tools and machinery developed exclusively for Chevrolet service work. The factory carries at all times a complete stock of genuine Chevrolet replacement parts. And the rates charged are standard flat rates including both parts and labor and are the lowest in the industry on many service and repair operations.

BUTTER PRICES STEADY, U. OF N. REPORT PREDICTS

Corn, Finished Cattle, Hogs, Also On "Steady to Higher" List; Wheat To Decline.

By GEORGE ROUND, JR.

Valley county farmers may expect steady butter prices in the next thirty days, according to the monthly economic situation report as published by the rural economics department of the University of Nebraska, Lincoln. The report predicts that there will probably be a little upward reaction in wheat prices and well sustained hog prices with a weakness developing toward the close of the period. It is expected that fat cattle prices will stay near the present level. Egg and poultry prices will probably stay close to present levels also.

There should not be a material change in the wheat market price unless there is damage done to the growing crop or added support is received from the Farm Board agencies. Before the war, wheat prices usually strengthened from March to April. However, since the war prices have declined more often during that period than they have advanced.

The report says that since 1921 in six out of nine years, the April top price for No. 2 hard winter wheat in Omaha has been below the March top price. The economic situation says that since the present price levels are so low, the main factor suggesting that any change is more likely to be upward rather than downward.

In view of the fact that the usual trend of corn prices is rather definitely upward from March to April, it is thought that corn prices will be steady to firm in the next thirty days. In 1929, the April average on No. 3 yellow corn in Chicago was lower than the March average price, the report says.

Livestock feeding requirements are smaller than a year ago and export demand less, but this is offset in a large part, at least, by the smaller corn crop in 1929 and 1928, Harold Hedges says in his economic situation report. The quality of the 1929 corn crop was not as good as in 1928, he says. The favorable hog prices in 1929 have resulted in feeding hogs to slightly heavier weights this winter than last. Late movement of cattle into feedlots suggests a stronger demand for corn from feeders this spring than last.

Finished cattle will probably hold to a steady price, near the present level, in the next thirty days, the report predicts. Lower grades of slaughter cattle will probably not be in such a favorable position with prospects for large runs of short-horn steers and discarded dairy animals.

The report says that butter prices should hold close to present levels in the next thirty days, despite the fact that the usual trend of prices is downward from March to April. In seven of the nine years since 1921, the April average price for 92 second creamery butter in New York has been below the March price and has equalled the March price but twice. Present prices are ten and eleven cents under those of a year ago.

Butter receipts at four principal markets since the first of the year have been five percent under those of a year ago. However, there has been a lower current production and a larger storage stock and a lower price level of demand.

Hog prices should hold up well in the next period, the report goes on to say, although they may weaken toward the close of the period. The usual decline in prices from March to April is expected. The economic situation is not sure when the spring downturn in hog prices will get under way.

Valley county farmers may expect egg prices to stay close to present levels in the next thirty days although the usual trend is downward from March to April. Mild weather has brought egg prices to a storage basis much earlier than usual. In years like the present, April prices show little change from the March levels.

A burdensome supply of poultry will work against price improvement, the report states. In usual years the price is definitely upward.

Where? Brace! When? Friday, March 21. Come and enjoy the program. Ice cream and plate supper. Everybody invited. 52-14

Mrs. Williams Hurt In Automobile Crash

Mrs. Thomas Williams was badly hurt near Grand Island last Thursday when the car in which she was riding was struck by a car coming from the other direction. She suffered cuts and bruises about the head and her right arm was broken in three places. She is now in St. Francis hospital, Grand Island. The Williams car was a total wreck but Mrs. Williams' son, Walter who was driving, escaped with bruises. Mrs. Williams is the mother of Mrs. Ign. Klima, jr., of Ord and has often visited here.

Mr. and Mrs. Klima and Miss Wilma Klima went to Grand Island Sunday to see Mrs. Williams and after a brief visit at the hospital went to see Mrs. Williams' farm to which the family was just moving from Gretna. None of the furniture had been unpacked and the Klima family worked until 4 p. m. putting things in order.

Present plans are that Mrs. Williams will come to Ord to spend the summer in the Klima home as it is feared she will not be able to use her arm for several months. Every bone in her wrist was broken and her arm had not been set Tuesday as doctors feared infection would develop.

For a good many years the Williams family lived in Garfield county and have many friends there.

KENFIELD DIES AFTER WEEK IN STATE HOSPITAL

Former Ord High School Janitor Is Buried at Arcadia Sunday; Leaves Wife, 2 Children.

On Friday, March 14, just a week after he was taken to the state hospital at Hastings for observation and treatment, Charles Lawrence Kenfield, 25, former janitor of the Ord high school, passed away. He had been ill for more than three months. Funeral services were held Sunday at the Methodist church where a large assemblage of friends gathered to pay their last tribute to the deceased. Rev. R. O. Gaither had charge and interment was in the Arcadia cemetery.

Mr. Kenfield was born ten miles west of Arcadia on August 6, 1904 and at the time of his death last Friday was 25 years, 7 months and 8 days of age. He was united in marriage November 7, 1925 to Miss Clara Maslonka of Ord and is survived by his widow and two children, Kenneth, 4 and Deloris, 2.

Soon after his marriage Mr. Kenfield secured a position as janitor at the high school building here and was faithful in the performance of his duties, well liked by teachers and pupils, until his fatal illness starting about Jan. 1. He had been to his home in Arcadia for Christmas dinner but soon afterward became bedfast and though medical aid was summoned he became steadily worse. For a time he was in the Ord hospital but was so restless there that he was permitted to go to the home of his parents in Arcadia.

On March 8, his reason unhinged by constant suffering, Mr. Kenfield was taken to the state hospital at Hastings where it was hoped that his condition would improve but he was too weakened by his long illness.

Besides his wife and children he is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Kenfield, his sister, Miss Edith Kenfield, and four brothers, George and Lyman, Arcadia, Ernest, Nampa, Ida., and Roy, Omaha.

Well Known Ord Man Stricken Early Monday Morn; Funeral To Be Held Tomorrow.

Heart disease claimed another victim in Ord Monday when Dick Nelson, 60, valued resident of the community for nearly thirty years, dropped dead at 1:30 p. m. just as he was arising from bed. He had suffered heart attacks before and for a few days before his death had complained of not feeling well but had been getting about his work as usual.

For some time Mr. Nelson and his wife, who is night operator in the Ord exchange of the Continental Telephone company, had been sleeping in a room at the telephone building. It was Nelson's custom to arise early, dress to go to home in Hillside addition, build the fires and start breakfast, and then go back to the telephone building after his wife.

Monday morning he started to arise at the usual time but fell back into bed unconscious and died within a few moments. Dr. C. J. Miller was called but Mr. Nelson had passed away.

Richard C. Nelson, son of Nels and Mrs. Christina Johnson Nelson, was born at Meringo, Iowa, January 5, 1870. At the time of his death Monday he was 60 years, 2 months and 12 days of age.

Mr. Nelson grew to manhood at Meringo and in 1892 the family moved to Schuyler, Nebraska where on February 27, 1895, he was married to Miss Anna Nielsen of Schuyler. To this union two children were born, Everett L. Nelson of Santa Barbara, California, and Mrs. William Hish, of North Loup.

Mr. and Mrs. Nelson moved to Valley county in 1901 where they lived on a farm for three years, moving to Ord in 1904. In this city Mr. Nelson made his home continuously from that time until his death Monday.

He was baptized in the membership of the Danish Lutheran church in early life and was received into membership of the Presbyterian church of Ord by letter on December 12, 1906. He served the church in the capacity of trustee and was elected to the eldership in March, 1926, which position he held as a valued member and officer at the time of his death.

Dick, as he was affectionately known, had a wide acquaintance both in Ord and throughout the farming communities. For many years he was employed by the J. C. Rogers Implement Company remaining with Mr. Rogers' successor, A. J. Meyer, for several months and later entering the employ of the Ord Implement Company, with whom he worked at the time of his death. He took an active interest in civic affairs all during his residence in Ord.

He leaves to mourn his passing his wife, his son, Everett, and daughter, Mrs. Wm. Hish, seven grandchildren and three sisters, Mrs. S. L. Freister, of Simpson, Colorado, Mrs. H. A. Nelson and Mrs. J. B. Jensen, of Omaha, as well as other more distant relatives and a host of friends.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon at the Ord Presbyterian church with Rev. D. C. Williamson having charge. Interment will be in Ord cemetery.

Dies Of Burns In Island Hospital

Arcadia, March 19.—(Special)—The community was saddened Tuesday morning to learn of the death of Mrs. Warner Sopher, formerly Miss Leona Fagen of Arcadia, which occurred at 3 o'clock Tuesday morning at a hospital in Grand Island. Details were lacking at the time this was written but a message conveyed the news that Mrs. Sopher's death resulted from burns received when an explosion occurred as she was starting a fire at her home in Grand Island Monday.

Mrs. Sopher spent the week end with her folks in Arcadia and her death came as a severe shock to her friends and relatives here. An obituary will be printed next week.

So many requests have been made that this show be given after Lent is over that Masons in charge may accede to the popular demand and give a third performance at the high school auditorium. If this is done a few changes will be made but the show will be substantially the same as last week.

Hardenbrook Files For Attorney General

Bert M. Hardenbrook, of Ord, may be a candidate for attorney general of Nebraska again this year. His name has been placed in nomination by petitions signed by republican voters all over the state. Alvin Blessing and E. C. James, with a Hardenbrook petition signed by 125 Valley county voters, started the ball rolling when they filed the petition Monday. Since then petitions for Hardenbrook have been filed from various other points in the state. Two years ago Mr. Hardenbrook withdrew from the race after filing nomination papers. He has not yet filed an acceptance of the present nomination.

Flack, representative of the Nebraska Dairy Development association, was the principle speaker last Friday evening at a basket supper held by the Valley county association in the Ord Legion hall. ## AAGAARD SUIT SETTLED MONDAY OUT OF COURT

Anderson Pays $50 And Court Costs To Get Suit Dismissed; Would Have Had Jury.

Settlement out of court was reached Monday in a case wherein James Aagaard and Thorwald Aagaard were suing the Anderson Motor Co., C. A. Anderson and James Kirkendall for $200 for damage done to the Aagaard car when it was struck by a car driven by James Kirkendall some weeks ago. The suit was filed about three weeks ago and was scheduled for jury trial before Judge J. H. Hollingshead Tuesday morning. By the terms of the settlement, Mr. Anderson, owner of the car Kirkendall was driving, paid $50 to Mr. Aagaard and also court costs amounting to $2.75 to secure dismissal of the suit.

At the time of the accident Kirkendall alleged that Mr. Aagaard drove into the highway without observing a stop sign near the Wilson Bell feed mill. Aagaard said he came to a full stop at the sign and that the accident occurred because Kirkendall was speeding. Members of his family who were with him, corroborated this version of the accident.

H. B. VanDecar was attorney for Aagaard and Davis & Vogelitz represented the defendants.

ARTHUR AUBLE STARS IN JUNIOR HIGH OPERETTA

"Windmills of Holland" Given To Enthusiastic Crowd Friday; Music Excellent.

The junior high school's operetta, "Windmills of Holland" was presented last Friday evening at the high school auditorium with only a fair sized crowd present. The operetta was excellent and leading parts were played to perfection by Arthur Auble, Charlotte Moorman, Lorraine Haas, Edith Hansen, Harold Garnick, Guy Keep, Leland Slot and Edna Loft. A chorus of farmer's daughters and a chorus of farm hands added much to the play. Fifty-eight students took part.

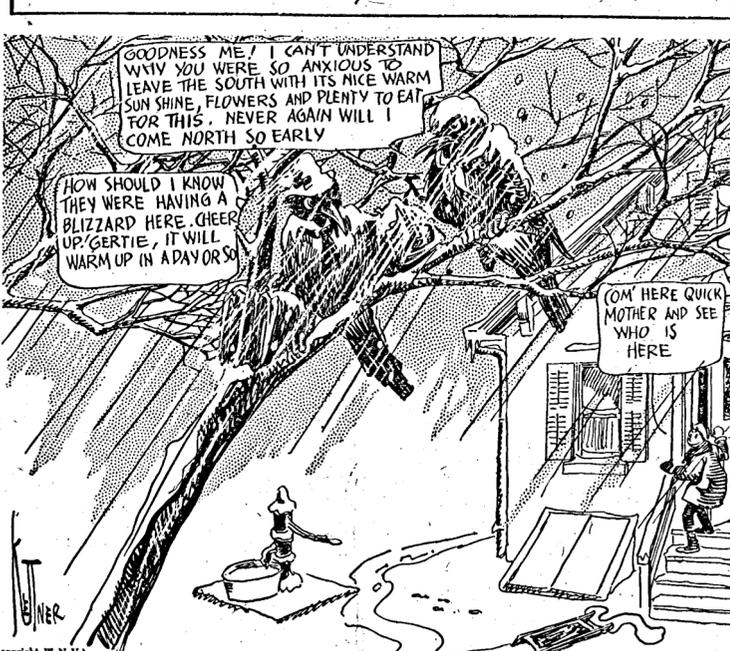

The scene of the operetta was laid in Holland and concerned Mynheer Hertogenbosch, a wealthy mill owner, his wife and daughters, Hil-da and Wilhelmina, Bob Yankee, an American salesman, Hans and Franz, Dutch lovers of the two girls, and Katrina, a rich farmer's daughter. Arthur Auble, as Mynheer Hertogenbosch, was especially good.

Elva Bloodgood directed the operetta, Elizabeth Eastley was librettist, Elizabeth Lukesh had charge of the costumes and stage settings, Helen Eby directed the poppy dance and Ivar Hautala was pianist. A row of tulips designed by Miss Lukesh was effective across the front of the stage and a Dutch windmill built by Joe Krejci added much to the setting. Clever between-acts specialties were given.

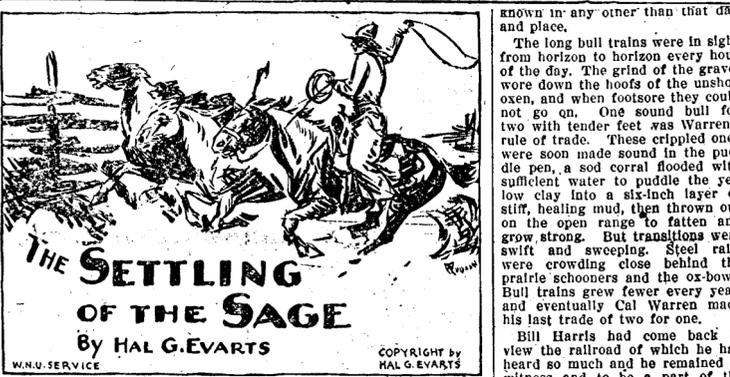

Grade school music pupils of Ord are busily practicing another operetta, "On Midsummer's Day," to be presented some time in May.

Friday afternoon was the yearly meeting of the Rebekah circle. There was a good attendance. Dinner was served at noon. Nearly all of the ladies attended Mr. Nelson's funeral returning to the hall and quilting for a few hours. Some of the ladies stayed for the evening lunch.

The days of the open range in the cattle industry were as romantic as anything that ever occurred in the West. The owners of important brands were veritable barons in their respective territories, making their own laws—unwritten but none the less effective—and keeping large corps of retainers to protect their rule. These retainers were selected for their physical courage and were capable of being called upon at a moment's notice to do irregular, but highly efficient, work.

Events were frequently of a grim nature and at times exciting. As in the days of medievalism, the lesser barons held allegiance to more powerful princes, the magnates of the industry. It was a dog-eat-dog regime presenting strong attraction for adventurers, "riever" and out-laws flourished, but it is loosed in irregularity and roughness, there was a chivalry and code of honor. Certain infractions of the rules brought a swift and unrelenting justice.

The transition from ranges to farms—the settling of the sage—was a stirring process. The change was resisted by the cattlemen in much the same spirit and with similar sanguinary accompaniments as the barons of old resisted the despoiling of their feudatory powers. This story deals with the appearance of settlers and the breaking up of the ranges. It is located in a section where the cattlemen were especially antagonistic and resistant where no portion of the range had ever been fenced and where signs were posted at frequent intervals notifying any would-be homesteader not to tarry in any part of the range. "Squatter, don't let the sun go down on you. The tale is full of the romance and the action of the period is made more interesting from the fact that its principal character was a cattlemen who espoused the cause of the homesteaders and had to fight to the extent of his resources on account of the stand he took.

CHAPTER I

A RIDER jogged northward along the road up a big Pinto horse a led buckskin, packed, trailing a half-length behind. A ranch road branched off to the left and the man pulled up his horse to view a sign that stood at the forks. "Squatter, don't let the sun go down on you," he read. "That's the third one of those reminders, Calico," he told the horse. "The wording a little different but the sentiment all the same." Fifty yards off the trail the charred and blackened fragments of a wagon showed in sharp contrast to the bleached white bones of two horses. "They downed his team and torched his worldly goods," the rider said. "All his hopes gone up in smoke." He turned in his saddle and looked off across the unending expanse of sage. Coldriver—probably so named from the fact that the three wells in the town constituted the only source of water within an hour's ride—lay thirty miles

BASEBALL TEAM TURNED DOWN BY VALLEY LEAGUE

North Loup Only Town Voting For Ord As Member; Arnold Trying Join Other Loop.

Directors of the Loup Valley Baseball League met Ord representatives cordially at St. Paul last Wednesday night. They greeted them with smiles and hearty handclaps—and then, by a vote of 5 to 1, refused Ord membership in the league. Jake Earnest, manager of the North Loup team was the only director who voted for Ord. Though keenly disappointed in his failure to secure for Ord a berth in the Loup Valley organization, Manager Charley Arnold is still confident that Ord will have a place in a league this year. Present plans are that a new loop will be formed with Arcadia, Ord, Broken Bow, Ansel, Ashlan and North Loup as members. The first four named have assigned a desire to join such a league and Ashton and North Loup are said to be considering joining. In case they decide to remain members of the Valley league, two other towns will be invited.

Holds Census School H. G. Webbert, Kearney superintendent of the census for this district, was in Ord yesterday and held a school of instruction for Valley county census enumerators. The school was held in the district court room at the court house. A representative of the census department, Washington, D. C., accompanied Mr. Webbert.

ORD RETAILERS TO HAVE ANNUAL MEETING FRIDAY

Conducting Membership Drive This Week; Officers Will Be Chosen Tomorrow.

Tomorrow evening, at 7:45 o'clock, in the Chamber of Commerce rooms, will be held the organization meeting of the new Ord Retailers association. A membership drive is being held this week and all who join will be charter members of the organization. Officers and directors will be chosen tomorrow night. Meeting at the C. C. rooms last Friday evening, retailers anxious to form an organization decided to call the body "Ord Retailers Association," adopted a constitution and by-laws, set the date of the annual meeting for the fourth Friday in March each year, appointed membership and non-nominating committees and discussed other business. About twenty men were present.

The meeting was called to order by Roy Collison, elected president of the temporary organization formed some time ago. Wm. Healy is chairman of a committee to draft the constitution and by-laws was recognized by the president and read the constitution under which the retail dealers organization operated when it was formed here some years ago. Several changes were made in this. According to its terms any retail organization in Ord is eligible to membership. Maximum dues are $5 per year, but only $1 will be called for by the membership committee and if a need arises more will be collected later.

The purpose of the organization is to boost Ord and to co-operate to promulgate better practices in retailing, according to the by-laws. The retailers will operate as a subdivision of the Chamber of Commerce.

SUNDAY MOVIES IS BIG ISSUE AT CITY ELECTION

Biggest Vote in Years Expected At Polls Next Tuesday; Both Sides Are Active.

With the question of whether or not Ord shall have Sunday movies stimulating interest, the biggest vote in years is expected at the city election to be held here next Tuesday, April 1. The greatest number of ballots ever cast in Ord's history totaled 736, this number being cast in 1924 when the question of Sunday movies also was the big issue. At that time Sunday movies were defeated, 425 to 311. It is thought that 900 or more votes will be cast next Tuesday.

Both sides of the movie controversy have been active during the past week. By personal solicitation, those against Sunday movies are planning to get a sufficient number of voters to cast ballots to defeat the movie measure. Business interests of Ord are appealing to those who favor Sunday movies by means of a full page ad in this week's Quiz.

There have been few new developments in the movie question but it continues to be the chief topic of discussion locally.

Another question voters will be called on to decide next Tuesday is whether or not the mayor and city council shall be given power to sell real estate owned by the city in the north part of Ord, the banks of Dane creek. This property formerly was used as a pumping plant by the city but has not been in use since the city light and filtration plants were established in their present location. There are three buildings on the property, a large brick building formerly used to house machinery, a smaller pump house and a large cement reservoir. They are of no further use to the city and voters probably will authorize their sale. Besides these questions, voters will elect a mayor, the councilmen, two school board members, a park board member and other city officers nominated at caucuses two weeks ago. Sample ballots are printed in this week's Quiz.

Mildred Reisen Granted Divorce

Non-Support and Infidelity Charges Win Decree and Alimony for Electrician's Wife; Mrs. Parks Named.

Charging non-support and infidelity and naming Mrs. R. O. Parks as co-respondent, Mildred Reisen asked an absolute divorce from her husband, Harold Reisen, in district court here last Friday. Judge Bayard H. Paine granted the divorce and ordered Reisen to pay his former wife $30 per month for the support of their five-year-old child, Robert Reisen. The husband did not appear to contest the suit, which was filed some months ago. Mrs. Reisen took the witness stand last Friday and testified that she had known Reisen only two months before they were married on October 20, 1924, in Seneca, Kansas, where they went to evade the Nebraska law requiring ten days notice of intention to wed.

After their marriage the Reizens lived in Grand Island for some time, later moving to Ord where Mr. Reisen was employed by R. O. Parks in the Central Electric company. Mrs. Parks was a bookkeeper for this company and it was not long before her husband was paying Mrs. Reisen testified. He did not come home nights and failed to provide for the support of his wife and child, Mrs. Reisen alleged. After his attention to Mrs. Parks became so marked as to cause public scandal, Mrs. Reisen filed suit for divorce, she said. Mrs. Reisen is now living in her father's home in Lodgepole, Nebraska, and Reisen is employed in Kearney, where Mrs. Parks also lives. Davis & Vogelitz were attorneys for Mrs. Reisen.

Gretchen Allen Has Operation Miss Gretchen Allen came to Ord from Pacific Palisades, Calif., last Wednesday with her aunt, Mrs. C. J. Mortensen, and Saturday morning she submitted to an operation for appendicitis performed in Hillcrest hospital by Dr. C. W. Weekes. She is reported to be making a rapid recovery. Miss Helen's home is in Haines, Fla.

My Own Column

By H. D. Leggett

The charge is being made by some of those opposed to Sunday pictures shows, that the churches will be ruined if they are in town. That has not proved true, where there are Sunday pictures, however, I would not want to see the churches injured. None of us would want to live in a churchless town or community. It seems to me though that almost everybody is looking for some form of amusement these days and when they don't have to work they want to play instead of going to church. It is not and never has been practical to force people to go to church. They resent the attempt and just won't be driven. Many times children, forced to attend church when young, go to the other extreme when older and their own boss.

If I had a bunch of growing children I feel that I would rather they attend the Sunday afternoon or evening show at home in Ord rather than drive to Grand Island or Greeley or Loup City. They are going to these other towns now in great numbers. I talked the other day with an Ord business man who has been driving toward Ord from Grand Island twice on recent Sunday afternoons and he says he was astonished at the number of cars in the bank of the Loup river and fish, which for me is more pleasure than either the show or the ride. Fishing is good clean sport and yet I am condemned for indulging in it Sunday afternoon and those who condemn me think it is all take to take the ride.

When I lived in another Nebraska town I knew a bunch of strong church people who had a delightful croquet ground laid off and they used to gather there and invite in their church members and neighbors and spend Sunday afternoon playing croquet and one of them stopped playing long enough to take me to task for going to the only available fishing place within walking distance to spend a part of the day fishing. I fear we are all prone to see the other fellows shortcomings or rather to measure his doings as shortcomings by our self-made standards while we under estimate our own sins.

In all human probability there will be built in Ord this summer, a new modern picture show house. There is a demand for better pictures than Ord has and better than it is possible to have in the present theatre building. Here is something that perhaps some people didn't know. Since the talkies have come in a different shaper room with different and better acoustics is necessary to give good results. It is impossible to get the best results from the pictures which have been brought to Ord and some of the best productions are not bought at all because it is impossible to show them to advantage. If the right kind of a building is built Ord will get the best pictures available.

And there is another thing to remember. The saving to the patrons will be great. We will be seeing productions that people in New York pay $1.50 and $2 for $5 and 40c. I am informed by the local picture show management and we will see them at considerably less than is now being paid at Grand Island or Greeley. And there will be a considerable saving in the cost of gas and automobile wear and tear also.

Personally I am not an ardent picture show fan. I don't often go, as compared with the number of times many people attend. I am perfectly willing to let the majority decide the matter of Sunday pictures and will gladly abide by the results and now that it is submitted to a popular vote I do hope everyone may feel the same. But I heard one person, violently opposed to Sunday pictures, say that unless there was a very large majority for the proposition there would be another election right away. That party is not willing the majority shall rule and it is such intolerance that injures the very cause he claims to be fighting for.

Spring is here at last but as this is written spring is here in name only. Winter is still with us and there is little immediate prospect of my getting the Missus to leaving garden. I have got the old fishing tackle all ready and Evet Smith has got a bushel or so of the finest kind of fish worms all ready.

Got an awful calling down from W. W. Haskell the other day. He says we ran the Sunday school lessons wrong and when I come to investigate I find that we did. I have told the makeup man to be careful in the future and not let it happen again. I am very sorry for the mistake. I guess we all make mistakes though for I miss some of the church notes from the page almost every week and frequently the ministers come in late with their copy and admit that they forgot until the last minute.

I feel a good deal, about that, like I do about the merchant and his advertising. I think the most important thing the merchant has to do is to have his advertising ready but as a rule he leaves it till the last minute and instead of giving it careful study and preparation with a view of getting results, he simply seems to be trying to fill his allotted space. I feel that when there is the opportunity to place before ten thousand readers each week their church announcements for the next week, the ministers should jump at the chance and not, as sometimes

Don't Sell Wheat Short Federal Control of Power Memories Fade Smallpox Also Marches

Uncle Sam buying wheat at a price above world market and storing it helps wheat growers of other countries, although that is not his intention.

What the wheat situation will be next July, nobody can guess. Wise gamblers will refrain from selling short. Uncle Sam's pocketbook is back of wheat prices in the United States, a new kind of "corner."

Flour has reached its low price since the World War, $6.00 a barrel, compared with $7.30 a year ago, and $18 a barrel, the peak price in war time. Good news for housewives. Bad news for farmers.

Senator Couzens introduces a bill to regulate production, transmission and distribution of all classes of power in interstate commerce.

He would let government supervise rates, and securities issued by holding companies.

Some say the people should have no control of power and its distribution, although power in national life comes next to food, water and air.

The people at least might supervise sales of securities. One company issued more than 60,000,000 shares of stock based on odds and ends of power companies. Foolish investors bought the pieces of paper, at a price exceeding fifteen hundred million dollars for the whole collection.

William Howard Taft, chief justice of the Supreme court, President of the United States, secretary of war, rode to his grave in Arlington cemetery on a gun carriage, the first United States President to be buried there.

A military funeral was, perhaps, not what he would have suggested, but he was entitled to it as former secretary of war and commander in chief of the army and navy.

Before burial, the body of the late chief justice lay in state for three hours in the Capitol, on a catafalque upon which had lain the coffins of Presidents Lincoln, Garfield, McKinley and Harding.

Now Lincoln stands out in that or any list. How soon men become unimportant and are forgotten! Lincoln never.

Ominous and threatening for India is the beginning of Mahatma Gandhi's campaign of "no violence, refusal to obey," against the British.

Gandhi and his followers march in protest to make salt tax-free, and smallpox marches with them. Three are dead, 22 prostrated by disease. The British have made a desperate fight against the various plagues in India, smallpox included, with the natives fighting against them.

It has never been possible to prevent natives bathing in the filthy Ganges, occasionally swallowing water upon which corpses are set afloat.

Under British rule the population of India has increased by 100,000,000. It would soon diminish under native rule, with the aid of smallpox and other plagues.

There is plenty of money in this country, the difficulty is to get it. Secretary Mellon needs $50,000,000 for Uncle Sam.

The public offers to buy twelve hundred and ninety-one million dollars worth of treasury certificates. There is plenty of water in the oceans, lakes and rivers. The trouble is to get it on dry soil that needs it.

All doctors and parents will be interested in news of a "meningitis carrier," a nineteen-year-old youth, William Schiker, in the reformatory for boys at Booneville, Mo.

Five superintendents and inmates with whom he came in contact died of meningitis, showing how easily the deadly disease may be contracted.

From Devil's Lake, N. D., comes the sad story of Sioux Indians that drank anti-freeze mixture for the sake of its alcohol.

It was the wrong kind. Jerome Onehouse, Mike Goodhouse and two other Indians are dead, three more expected to die. The drink "anti-freeze" at a dance, which adds a touch of sadness.

This small item of news interests managers and stockholders of railroad and street car lines.

An airplane driven by a Diesel engine flew from Detroit to Miami in ten hours fifteen minutes without stopping, with Chief Engineer Woolson of the Packard company and Walter Lees, pilot.

And the trip cost for fuel $5.50.

"Every sweet has its sour; every evil its good."

Emerson said it, British Tories believe it. The attack on religion in Russia has created intense feeling in Britain. If Premier MacDonald's labor government with Russia, it will probably be driven from power.

Men and nations, with their radios, movies and other interesting things, may seem to lose interest in religion.

But such an attack as Russia makes on established beliefs shows that religion retains its hold on the human race.

FROM THE CENSUS SUPERVISOR FIFTH DISTRICT OF NEBRASKA, H. A. WEBBERT, SUPERVISOR.

Sex Question in the Census. In 1920 there were 104 men to every 100 women in the United States. Whether this ratio has risen or fallen will be one of the most important facts to be determined by the 1930 census, according to Dr. Joseph A. Hill, Acting Director of the Census, who has pointed out that the relative number of males to females is one of the most fundamental factors to be considered in any analysis of society.

The sex question has always had an important place among the list of questions asked by the enumerators at each decennial census of the United States, Dr. Hill said. Even in the first very simple census taken in 1790, when only four questions were asked on the census schedule, one of them concerned the sex of the white persons enumerated.

The information obtained thru the census as to the number of males, and females in the population is indispensable in the calculation of life tables, in the determination of mortality rates, and in studying the incidence of disease.

Birthplace Must Be Recorded. The 100,000 census enumerators who will begin on April 2 to collect facts about the people of the United States will need to know their geography and also something about the recent history of the world, according to instructions which are being sent out from the Census Bureau in Washington.

Among the most important questions to be asked of everybody in the coming census are those relating to the place of birth of the person enumerated and the place of birth of his father and mother. Each person must be credited in the census records to the state, territory, or foreign country which his birthplace is now located, regardless of what the birthplace was called or what nation owned that territory at the time the person was born.

In the white population of the United States as enumerated at the census of 1920 there were 13,712,754 persons who were born in foreign countries; and there were 22,686,204 persons born in the United States whose parents were born in foreign countries.

The coming census will show the changes that are taking place in the composition of our foreign-born population as the result of immigration restriction and other influences. Census officials have pointed out.

What Constitutes a Farm. A farm, according to the Census Bureau, is all the land farmed by one person, whether it is three acres or three thousand acres.

The amount of farm land owned by one person has nothing to do with the definition of a farm so far as the Census Bureau is concerned. The question is not how much land does he own but how much does he operate or farm. A man who owns 300 acres might farm half of it himself and rent the other half out to three tenants, 50 acres to each. This would go down on the census records as four farms, because the land farmed by each man is considered as a unit.

A number of agricultural pursuits not usually considered by the average person as farming comes within the Census Bureau's definition. All market and truck gardens, fruit orchards, nurseries, greenhouses, poultry yards, places for keeping bees, and all dairies in or near cities, even though the average person never thought were in any way connected with farming purposes, farms, provided they produced in 1929 agricultural products of the value of at least $250. If such places are of more than three acres, they are farms regardless of the value of their products.

In 1925, the last year in which a farm census was taken in the United States, there were 15,151 farms of less than three acres. The total number of farms in the nation was 6,371,640.

General. The office of H. A. Webbert, Supervisor for the Kearney district is a busy place. A staff of assistants and stenographers are busily engaged with the preliminary work of the census.

by KAY CLEAVER STRAHAN

CHAPTER XVII

The End. I SUPPOSE it takes more than a minute for one's wits, particularly if they happen to be thick wits, to drain entirely away.

Before mine had completely left me, I had attempted to telephone to Sam, down in the outfit's quarters, and had failed to get a reply to my call.

I shall not describe what I did, nor what I thought, during the time that I was alone there, downstairs, before help arrived.

Sam said, "Gabrielle Canneziano just now waved at us from her window."

Miss MacDonald turned and ran like a wild thing down the stairs, just as she disappeared from our sight the sound of a pistol's shot cracked through the place.

I followed the others. I ran up the steps. I stumbled down the hall, behind them, into Gabrielle Canneziano's room.

I saw Gabrielle Canneziano, her cheeks painted, her lips red, long earrings dangling from her ears, lying on the couch. Over her breast was a widening spot of color, staining the fringes of the soft white silk dressing gown that she was wearing.

John came. He said, "She told me what she was going to do. I allowed her to do it. I did not want Nevada to have to execute a woman."

SAM says, bitterly, that the only thing I need to explain is the one thing that can ever be explained: how one girl, by changing her clothes and by washing her face, could turn a household of supposedly sensible people into a packet of blithering, bat-blind fools for a generous period of time.

In her talk with John (John says it was in no sense a confession, that it was nothing but a taunt for us all, a final, regretless, high fling of defiance) there in his room, during the twenty minutes or so that she talked to him, before she shot herself, some things, which might still not be clear to us, were made plain.

"When I read that letter," Gabrielle said to John, "and found myself penniless and planless on a Nevada ranch, I at once made up my mind to kill Danfelle, the little fool, and take her place."

oughly disliked the idea, and that she was afraid of its consequences. When the two girls went upstairs together, on the afternoon of the fourth of July, they must have gone to effect the transformation.

We do not know, when the disguise had been completed, by what pretext Gabrielle lured Danny into the attic. There could be a dozen simple reasons why Danny might consent to go up there with her.

She took the earrings from Danny's ears—or, perhaps, Danny had not yet put them on—went to her own room, arranged her make-up, got into the wrap, which completely covered Danny's clothes that she was wearing, pulled the hat down over her eyes to conceal the change in hairdressing, and walked through the living room, for us all to see her, at four o'clock.

When Chad went to the porch with her (this John found out by insistent questioning) she told him that Danny had left the house, earlier, by the back way. That she and Danny had arranged a joke on the rest of us, to enliven the dull afternoon, and asked him to help with it by calling, in Danny's voice to her, when he came back into the house.

John came. He said, "She told me what she was going to do. I allowed her to do it. I did not want Nevada to have to execute a woman."

ter, by the back way. That she and Danny had arranged a joke on the rest of us, to enliven the dull afternoon, and asked him to help with it by calling, in Danny's voice to her, when he came back into the house.

John came. He said, "She told me what she was going to do. I allowed her to do it. I did not want Nevada to have to execute a woman."

SAM says, bitterly, that the only thing I need to explain is the one thing that can ever be explained: how one girl, by changing her clothes and by washing her face, could turn a household of supposedly sensible people into a packet of blithering, bat-blind fools for a generous period of time.

In her talk with John (John says it was in no sense a confession, that it was nothing but a taunt for us all, a final, regretless, high fling of defiance) there in his room, during the twenty minutes or so that she talked to him, before she shot herself, some things, which might still not be clear to us, were made plain.

"When I read that letter," Gabrielle said to John, "and found myself penniless and planless on a Nevada ranch, I at once made up my mind to kill Danfelle, the little fool, and take her place."

How she persuaded Danny to accept the idea of the masquerade, and to change clothes with her, on the fourth of July, we do not positively know. That is the "hole" that Miss MacDonald mentioned in her puzzle. To my mind, there is little doubt that she gained her way very easily, by using her own unhappiness and disappointment as tools with which to remove Danny's scruples and pad her pity.

When John came home from the city of Ord, Valley County, Nebraska, offer for sale at public auc-sun-where, in order to save them for that purpose), and drop the tattling shuttle there, required not more than one or two minutes of time. Another two or three minutes to wash her face thoroughly and to douse on some of Danny's perfume, and she was coming downstairs again, with the headache that necessitated the drawing of the curtains—to make her safety a bit safer, just at first.

She told John that those few minutes when she had to walk through the room, make the trip around the house, and get upstairs again, were the only moments of fright that she had had, from the first to the last. Once safely established in the role of Danny, she said, she knew that she had nothing to fear.

I think, however, that there were other times when she was afraid. I am certain that real fear was there in her room, that day, when the engagement ring dropped from her finger. "Though I believe that her fear, then, was caused wholly from superstition, and not, from any dread that the slight difference between her hands and Danny's might be noticed."

I am sure that her fear for John, on the fourth of July, was real enough. She knew that each minute he was away, longer than the time necessary for the trip, was a minute lost from the perfect alibi she had so mistakenly tried to arrange for him by sending him away from the ranch. She had not known that Danny's fingers had closed on the stair's tread.

She had counted on her note to Danny, and on the fact that, as Danny, she was downstairs within ten or twelve minutes after the time we had seen Gaby walking down the path and had heard Danny calling after her, to prove her own innocence. They and the gentleness of Danny's disposition, did this for her.

Her original plan had been to prove that Sam was the murderer. With Sam out of the way, and with John in possession of the truth, she had thought, I suppose, that she would have no trouble in persuading John to leave the Desert Moon. But she was afraid of the idea.

It is again only my notion that the reason why she put in her note to Danny, to have Danny take her body to San Francisco for cremation, was made because she thought that it would be desirable for her to be able to leave the ranch at once—perhaps for several weeks. Mrs. Ricker's presence, she probably thought, would realize the wisdom of returning as rapidly as possible to the Desert Moon.

Gabrielle Canneziano was a born criminal. Almost all of her life had been spent among criminals. She knew their ways, and she knew the ways of honest people, even to the drop her disguise, even for a minute, in San Francisco. When, on the afternoon of the fourth of July, she had come downstairs as Danny, she had come resolved from that time forth to be Danny, in thought and deed, up to the very end of her ability. That she never doubted her ability, to turn from black to white within the space of an hour is a splendid example of Miss MacDonald's contention concerning the egotism of criminals.

Miss MacDonald says that her first real clew was the one I gave to her. I said that she could expect Gaby herself, who would do such a wicked thing, had ever been on the ranch. If she had been on the ranch, she might have committed the murder. She had all three of the primary motives for murder: jealousy, greed, and the unique feature in this case—Miss MacDonald says that each case has its unique feature—that was the murdered girl had been a duplicate twin.

The hazy, incomplete notion, Miss MacDonald says, had just come into her mind, that she had begun to accept it, she was only allowing it, dimly, to take form, when I returned to the room that day with my hand full of letters written by Danny. Handwriting, as surely as fingerprints, Miss MacDonald says, proves identity.

She asked me, straight, whether I had seen Danny writing the checks and addressing the envelopes. I answered, straight and positively, that I had. (And Miss MacDonald had warned me that people often thought that they saw things they did not see.)

I had not. I had seen the person whom I supposed was Danny writing checks and addressing envelopes. I had turned my back to her, and had walked to the door, when she called after me and gave me the envelopes containing the checks.

Danny herself had written those checks and had addressed those envelopes on the third of July. Owing to all the furor that had been going on in the house that day, she had left the ranch before she had torn the checks from her check-book, and had never gone back to it to finish her task. It is possible that Gabrielle had deliberately arranged that, also; but I think not.

At any rate, she had had the checks lying there in her white silk dressing gown, that had a three, or an eight in it, to produce them.

circumstances and I played well into her hands that day; she had only to insert a one in front of the three to make me her fool.

Miss MacDonald, as you have seen, blames herself, and not me, for the mistake. She says that she should have known better than to believe me; or, to quote her exactly, she should have "doubted your accuracy of observation." But, not until the morning that we found Danny's body, did I realize that it occurred to her to doubt it.

She says that it was not clairvoyance, not intuition, not even common sense, that it was nothing but a memory that took her, that morning, straight back to the idea that Gabrielle Canneziano could be the guilty person. Oddly, that conviction had come to her before we found Canneziano's body.

Sitting across the table from Gabrielle, posing as Danny, that morning at breakfast, she had thought, idly, of the breakfast, that she and Danny had had together in the dining car. She had taken her chair, that morning, just as Danny had handed the order slip for her breakfast to the waiter. Too vague to be certain that it was really a memory, she seemed to see that Danfelle Canneziano was writing. Just then, with the aroma of coffee in her nostrils, and with her teed grapefruit and rolls in front of her, she remembered that it was the same breakfast both she and Danny had had that morning.

As I have written, she spent the following week in efforts to get that evidence; at last, fearing that she was suspected, she detailed the task to me.

You have seen how I failed. How Gaby once saw her, how I tried my trick of attempting to disable my right hand by burning it; and how, realizing that she was trapped she had run upstairs, first to satisfy her longing—to be herself again, even for a few brief moments, then to take John, and, finally, to take her own life.

For I think, in spite of her denials to John, that she killed herself because she knew that she was trapped, though her vanity and her audacity held her to the end.

I knew I should have no trouble in making you believe that silly doll story," she said. "It was the truth. I knew, too, that the dick would read the code letter. She was so slow about it that I had to steal it to make her do it. It was time, you see, for the gentle Danfelle's story to be verified."

"Don't fancy that I had overlooked the matter of the handwriting. I'm not a fool. I thought of it before I killed the girl. There were a dozen ways I could have gotten around it—could get around it. If necessary, I could even have disabled my own right hand. I had rather planned that first to do that. But, later, I found that I loved my pretty little white hand better than I had supposed. Just as I have discovered that I loved the gay Gaby better than I had supposed—so well, indeed, that I had decided that Gaby is infinitely preferable to life as the shiny nosed Danfelle. I have seen this coming. I have not cared."

"I got rid of that cur, Canneziano, not because I was afraid of him, but because he tried to double cross me. I had promised to do much for him, after he got me and I was married, and he would have sold me out for a few thousand dollars. He came here, hoping that Danny might pay him a pretty sum for his silence about my past. He knew his muttons. She would have been fool enough to have done it, poor shiny nosed cur; more to be pitied than blamed—all that, you know. He should have played with me, instead of against me. I had a few old scores to settle with him. Most of my rage about the money was because I had thought it would get me out of my debt to the best of him. And I did—so that's all right. I hid in his room early that evening. It was frightfully amusing to watch him locking his door and his windows to make his sleep a safe one. It was, I did the job so neatly that he never woke at all."

"For that matter, it has all been amusing. You have all been such utter fools. But I am tired of it now. Oh, very tired. Particularly, I am tired of my cruel plan to destroy the gay Gaby by burying her alive. I am going now to do it in a swifter, kinder way."

Sam insists that her success, even for so short a time, is an indictment against all of us; that it shows that none of us was capable of looking deeper than clothes and face paint. "I do not agree with him. Gabrielle was a professional actress. She had lived with Danny long enough to learn all her ways, her mannerisms, her habits in conversation. She did not dupe Chad, who loved her, and who was an expert in voices. She did not dupe Canneziano, who had known both of the girls all their lives."

The murder itself, by stupefying us all with horror, with fear, with suspicions, did much to help her. But without that dulling of our perceptions would have been successful. At the time of the murder, the two girls had been on the ranch with us less than two months. Strangers to us, they knew us deeper than we knew ourselves in so short a time. There was nothing remarkable, it seems to me, about her being able, quite easily to deceive all of us, with the single, glaring exception of John.

NORTH LOUP DEPARTMENT

MRS. CLAUDE RATHBUN, Editor.

The Ed Edwards family entertained relatives from Kearney Sunday. Mrs. Edwards' mother, Mrs. N. L. Crowell, and a sister, Mrs. Delbert Stout with her husband, and Miss Arline Stroh, were their guests for the day.

Four young people, composing one of the gospel teams of the Methodist church had charge of the Sunday evening services. The devotional part of the services was in charge of Opal Post. Verne Peterson read the Scripture lesson, and a duet, "The Garden of Prayer" was sung by Rev. and Mrs. G. A. Schwabauer. The sermon hour was given over to a discussion on "First Things First," by Opal Post, followed by Muriel Eisele, whose subject was "The Value of an Ideal." Hattie Houtby told of the "Ideal Church," and Verne Peterson gave some thoughts on "Everyday Christian Living." These young people, though inexperienced public speakers, provided an interesting program.

Leland Earnest, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Earnest, is at the Weekes hospital in Ord, where he was recently operated on for appendicitis.

Mrs. L. M. Catlin submitted to a serious operation Saturday morning at the Miller hospital in Ord. She is doing as well as can be expected.

Members of the Rebekah circle were guests of Mrs. Bernice Stewart on Wednesday of this week. The Bob Burgess family have moved to Fullerton.

In the near future the North Loup school teachers will put on a play entitled, "A Mad Breakfast." Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Westberg have rented their home to the Joe Horacek family, and are living in the Bee house formerly occupied by the I. K. Patterson family.

Part of the sand has been hauled, and work is beginning this week on the new Texaco filling station on the Bohrer corner. Lou Sheldon is in charge of the construction work of the building which will be of stucco. Mr. Clark of York is the contractor. Will Cook has the contract for furnishing thirty-five loads of sand from his place on the river east of town.

On Wednesday evening at the Strand Theatre the Olean young people successfully presented their play, "The Hoodooed Coon," to a very appreciative audience. Kenneth Barber in the leading role is worthy of special mention. Other parts were well taken by Frank Adamek, Elwood Stanton, Caroline Hughes, Harry Hughes, Russell Madison, Marie Adamek, Ellen Stanton and Alice Adamek. The performance was for the benefit of the Carl Anderson radio fund and the community building fund. About $20 was cleared and will be equally divided. The play had been put on at Olean on the previous Saturday night. Mrs. Glen Barber, who coached the play, deserves much of the credit for its success.

The Carl Nelson family of Forty Two were Sunday dinner guests of the Ed Knapp family.

Verne Peterson was the guest of friends at Loup City Sunday. The No Lo club met on Tuesday of this week with Mrs. Glen Johnson.

The Otto Bartz family accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Elvin Barnhart went to Loup City Sunday for a surprise visit with Mr. and Mrs. Ed Helbig. Mrs. Helbig's parents from Edison were also there for the day, and her brother, Henry Rich and family from North Loup.

Mrs. Sarah Hubbard was taken suddenly ill last Thursday while attending the Friends' missionary meeting at Mrs. Edwin Miller's. She was taken home and is now somewhat improved. Her son Elmer Hubbard and her daughter, Mrs. Harry Wolf, both of Lexington came Thursday night and are caring for her.

Mr. and Mrs. M. R. Jones of Arcadia were in the village Saturday. Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Vanhoosen, who are living in Grand Island, spent the week end with North Loup relatives.

Vern Robbins and R. P. McCune drove to Omaha on business Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Abney, Mr. and Mrs. Billings Clark and son, Hattie Houtby, and Mr. and Mrs. Vern Robbins and daughter, Selma, were among North Loup visitors in Grand Island Friday.

Those on the Honor Roll of the North Loup high school for the first period of the second semester, 1929-1930 are as follows: Sara Arnold, Sylva Baker, Esther Bee, Thelma Bresley, Ilene Harris, Gertrude Hemphill, Mary Morrison, Darrel Noyes, Adell Vanhorn, Juniors: Craft, Wm. Hamer. Sophomores: Merwin Babcock, Merle Fuller. Freshmen: Mary Ann Bartz, Dorothy Goodrich, Katharine Green.

At the village election to be held on April 1st, Arthur Stillman, Roy Cox, Frank Johnson and Mrs. Avy Johnson will be candidates for election to the board of education. Arthur Stillman and Frank Johnson are the present members of the board whose terms expire. According to custom, four candidates were nominated for the two places at the school caucus held Tuesday evening in the high school auditorium.

As a result of the election at the village caucus held on the same date, H. A. Weed and A. L. Willoughby will be candidates for a one year term, members of the board of trustees. Mr. Weed has been serving as an appointed member to act until the coming election in the place of H. C. Sample, who failed to qualify. Dr. Hemphill, Dr. Dallam, Roy Lewis and Ray Knapp will be the candidates for the two places on the Board. Dr. Hemphill and Mr. Willoughby are the present members whose terms will expire. A motion was carried that the four persons receiving the highest number of votes on the formal ballot should be declared the candidates. The ballot resulted in 28 votes for Dr. Hemphill, 18 for Dr. Dallam, 17 for S. L. Shineman and 12 for George Mayo. As Shineman and Mayo declined to serve, Lewis and Knapp, the two next highest, were named as the two other candidates.

For police judge, George Worth received 18 votes, and Isaac Arnold, 16 votes.

"When another engineer told me he had gained 23 pounds on Sargon I decided to try it and the way it brought back my health was amazing."

JACOB MRUZ.

"For several years my whole system was in a rundown condition and I didn't know what it was to feel good. Nearly everything I ate disagreed with me, my tongue was coated and I was bilious and constipated. Four bottles of Sargon put me in fine shape! I eat whatever I please without a sign of indigestion, and I feel stronger and better than in years. Sargon pills stimulated my liver, rid me of biliousness, my tongue is clear and my constipation is over."—Jacob Mruz, 3213 K. St., Omaha, locomotive engineer.

Pussyfoot's Sportlog

By George Round, Jr.

When in Lincoln a short time ago, Charles Bowers, an officer of the Ord American Legion Post 38, declared he was for the Junior American Legion baseball campaign in Ord again this year. Evidently he is interested and hopes that a local team will be organized again this year.

Bowers said he was in hope that he could find someone to take the project over and manage it, at least for a while, when other help could be received from other sources. The Ord superintendent did not offer to succeed anyone for manager of the Ord Legion team this year but was under the impression that someone could be secured.

If so, they should start working the kids now for the tournaments over the state during the fore part of July, ending with the state championship series to be played at Omaha. Results last year showed that the Ord boys should have done more spring training.

Perhaps someone like Charley Hather, Harry Wolf, or Charley Arnold, Ord baseball magnate, could be induced to help the boys along with their early season training. I hope that Ord Legion officials get busy and have someone appointed to the post.

Speaking of Junior American Legion baseball, brings to me the name of Eldon Benda, outfielder on the sixth district championship team last year, who is quite anxious for the 1930 season to start. He recently told me that he was "raring to go." Bert Boquist is reported to be out behind his home pitching a ball at a target on the coal shed. Although Bert failed to make the team last year, he should make a strong bid for an outfield post this year, should the Ord team be organized.

If Joe Krejci plays baseball like he plays basketball, he ought to be the big noise in the state league this year. Reports have it that he has signed with the York state league club. If Joe socks the old ball on the nose as he has been looping the ball through the basket for the Ord All-Star basketball team, he will make them all step to beat him in batting averages this summer.

Incidentally baseball as it was played in the state league last year was plenty fast, probably about the fastest that has ever been played in that circuit. Chas. "Deacon" Arnold will vouch for that statement.

Initial reports from the University of Nebraska had it that Lloyd "Buster" Betts of Arcadia was out for the varsity baseball team. However, it was later reported that he is not even in school and if he was, it would be doubtful if he would be eligible to play this year.

Seven Reasons!

We Urge You To Read This Ad
Carefully--

Consider These Reasons Thoroughly---

Reflect that this matter is Vitally
Important to the future welfare of Ord!

If you do these things we are Confident that you will decide to

Vote For Sunday Movies

1. Keep Ord money in Ord! Give our business men the chance to take in money now spent for gas, oil, tires, soft drinks, food, show tickets, in Grand Island, Greeley, Loup City, etc. Money spent in those places doesn't help Ord--money spent here does. Give Ord businesses an equal chance. Vote "yes" for Sunday movies.
2. Keep Ord young people in Ord! Give them clean, wholesome pictures right here at home. Know where your children are and what they are doing! Keep them in Ord by voting "yes" for Sunday movies.
3. Give equal opportunities to all Ord residents. As it is now those with the car and the money may take their entertainment where they please: not so the poorer man. Give him a show on Sunday if he wants it!
4. Sunday movies will bring more people to the evening church services. Many farmers and residents of other towns will welcome the opportunity to make one trip to Ord afford them a fine sermon and a movie afterwards. Vote "yes" for Sunday movies.
5. Legalizing Sunday movies will, in time, bring a new, modern theater building to Ord. This project will provide labor for dozens of skilled and unskilled workmen of this city. It will benefit the plumber, the carpenter, the plasterer, the bricklayer, the painter, the electrician and all their helpers. It will provide more work and Ord will gain a beautiful, new building. Vote "yes" for Sunday movies.

6. Keep up with the times! Many of our neighbors have Sunday shows; all the cities have them. Let's not lag behind; let's not stagnate. Keener business competition and changing conditions demand that Ord legalize Sunday movies as other modern cities have done. Vote "yes" for Sunday movies.

7. Talkies are a great improvement on silent pictures but they cost the theater owner three or four times as much. To provide the new productions while they are new the theater needs the revenue of Sunday shows. Better pictures for the whole week will result and all will have the opportunity to enjoy them whether they attend on Sunday or not. Vote "yes" for Sunday movies.

For these seven reasons and for many others not mentioned here you should vote FOR Sunday movies. For the sake of the community, for the sake of your family, for the sake of yourself-- vote at the election April 1. If you can't vote for Sunday movies, vote the way your conscience dictates. We want a fair and impartial vote on this live question.

Lyle Smith Another Club Boy Who Promises Develop Into Real Dairyman

By George Round, Jr.

Earl Smith of Maiden Valley has always been known as one of the leading dairymen in Valley county and has a son, Lyle, who gives promise of taking his place when Earl may want to retire. Lyle is a 4-H club boy, being a member of the Valley County Dairy Calf Club of which J. A. Kovanda, Ord, is the leader.

He is but fourteen years old and has hopes of taking his place along side of "Dad" in future years and is now planning and preparing himself in a most efficient manner. Club work in dairying is helping him a lot, he believes.

Now Lyle has won no state championships in club work for he is but a young club member. He has been in club work for two years having joined the dairy calf club two years ago. He has completed his project each year and is in the club again this year.

"Gee, I had the champion heifer in the club class that first year and I sure felt proud of her," Lyle recently told me. He, however, thought he could repeat his second year and so went back to show last year and again won his class with ease.

Lyle doesn't go in for scrubs in his dairy calf club work either for he gets the best there is available. He purchased his calf last year from a dairyman at York, Nebraska, and she is a registered purebred. "I am strong for purebreds," Lyle told me.

When Lyle joined the dairy calf club he gave promise of developing into a crack dairy judge and so last year he made the Valley county dairy judging team and Agent Dale took him with the rest of the team to Hastings where they competed in a district judging contest. Lyle was among the top-notch individual scorers. The Valley county team placed high in the contest although not copying first place.

While interested in agriculture, Lyle is enrolled in the Smith-

Hughes agriculture course in Ord high school. "I take the Smith-Hughes course under Mr. Kovanda and like it a lot," he says. "We take two hours of shop work on two days of the week and on the other days we either study animal husbandry or go out in the field to judge animals. One of the big reasons why I like the course is because we have a fine teacher, Mr. Kovanda."

Lyle is just as enthusiastic over club work as he is over his agriculture work in school for he says, "I think club work is a very good thing for every future farmer."

New Club Circular.

The general extension circular on boys and girls clubs has been revised and will be in the hands of Valley county club members within the next two weeks, according to County Agent Carl C. Dale. Dale says the new circular is greatly improved over the old one and believes that local club members will be enthusiastic over it.

The circular gives a general impression of club work, describes what a club is, who has charge of it, and all about it. The club enrollment in Nebraska in past years is reviewed in the new edition.

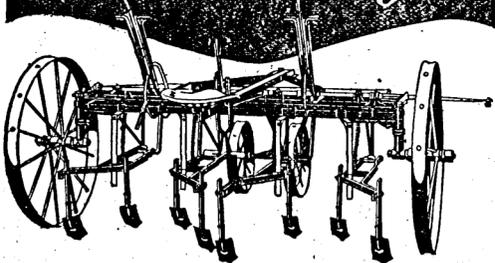

All clubs are described and their purposes pointed out in the circular. A supply of the new circular will be in County Agent Dale's office within the next few weeks.

MAN CAN'T SLEEP, GETS NERVOUS, HATES PEOPLE

"I could not sleep and got so nervous I hated everybody. Since taking Vinol, I can sleep 10 hours and feel full of pep all day.—Julius Bender.

For 30 years doctors have prescribed Vinol because it contains important mineral elements of iron, calcium and cod liver peptone. The very FIRST bottle brings sound sleep and a BIG appetite. Nervous people are surprised how QUICK Vinol gives new life and pep! Tastes delicious. Ed F. Beranek, Druggist.

DEHORNING CATTLE

By A. B. Fiala

The evil of the presence of horns no cattle has long been recognized by cattlemen. The dehorning process though seemingly brutal is generally resorted to to make the animals more peaceful in the yards and pastures and also less dangerous to other animals as hogs and horses with which they may run and to man as well.

Cutting off the horns seems a torture but in doing so we remove a torture which is inevitable when animals with horns gore each other at every opportunity seemingly without any provocation.

Purebred breeders have given attention to this factor in their herds and have developed hornless breeds. First came the Aberdeen Angus and the Red Polled breeds. Later the Polled Durham was developed out of the Short-horn and the Hereford out of the horned Hereford. Both the Short-horn and the Hereford grow beautiful horns but these are neither needed nor wanted. Last we have the Polled Jersey developed. If any it is the high strung hot blooded dairy breeds that need natural dehorning.

Too often people are killed by enraged bulls and a horned cow becomes dangerous as well when her calf is tampered with or she is otherwise provoked.

For us Holstein breeders there is only one way out. We must still do the mechanical dehorning. Being hot blooded, mature animals when dehorned often bleed profusely. Just last year one farmer in Nebraska lost twelve of his milk cows after dehorning. The fact that he had been feeding sweet clover hay at the time aggravated the bleeding as sweet clover hay has the effect of thinning the animals blood. Using clippers in dehorning causes more profuse bleeding than if the saw is used because of the clean cut with them. When we dehorn the animals young the horn is small, they heal quickly and do not bleed much but as a rule the root of the horn will not be destroyed and push out unsightly stubs.

The present year I have tried a better way suggested to me by H. C. Sorenson. I dehorn the calves when a week to three old by the use of caustic potash. First clean and clip the hair from over the horn bud. Then cut skin off with sharp knife from over the budding horn. There will be some bleeding. This will furnish the needed moisture to dissolve the caustic point and get it to burn into the horn. Rub the caustic over the horn until the spot turns white and the blood vessels are burnt shut. Be sure to wrap the other end of stick with paper or it will burn into the fingers if held without any covering.

Calves so dehorned develop natural shaped heads and look like naturally polled cattle. I have since learned that Earl Smith and others are using this method with success. A ten cent caustic stick if kept in a corked bottle will last two or three years and the dehorning of a calf takes but a few minutes of time.

What I can't understand is why Holstein breeders so generally continue to allow horns to grow on calves they expect to sell for breeding purposes. They claim that some customers want the horns on the animals they buy for show purposes. But why afflict forty-nine out of fifty customers with horned animals for the sake of pleasing the possible fiftieth one? I would like to see the Holstein society allow an outcross from a high producing Polled Durham or Red Polled strain brought into the Holstein breed and from that cross if the calves came hornless to use these for herd headers for the purpose of naturally dehorning the purebred Holstein herds and thus develop a hornless strain of Holsteins.

AM I RIGHT?

By Geo. Round, jr.

It won't be long now until it will be time for the reorganization of the Valley County Dairy Herd Improvement Association. Without doubt in my mind there will be a little opposition to the reorganization despite the fact that the association has accomplished results during its one year to existence.

What will cause the opposition, I believe, will be the low ebb of the dairy industry at the present, the low price of butter and of other dairy products. Farmers will doubt the value of the association.

However, if any Valley county farmer wishes to maintain his dairy herd or wishes to milk any cows at all for the purpose of selling cream or other products, he had better get into the association during the coming year. The present dairy crisis is the big reason why more should enter the work instead of a decreased membership.

If a man has ten to twenty cows, he, if he exercises good judgment, should join the association. It is the only way to solve the present dairy problem. Experts have advised more efficient production as one means of making the dairy industry in the future a profitable one. Without knowing how his cows are producing, no farmer can tell whether his cows are producing efficiently or not. The association will tell him that.

The two prime qualities that a good 4-H club leader must possess are a liking for boys and the ability of making boys like him, according to State Club Agent L. I. Frisbie. He says he don't care how much time a man has, how good a standing he has in the community and how good a stockman or dressmaker he or she may be if he does not like "kids" and "kids" don't like him he will not be a successful club leader.

Perhaps that is the reason that there are so many good club leaders in Valley county. People who really like kids and kids like them. Any man can be a good club leader even if he doesn't know anything about hogs providing he is willing to learn with the club members. It is that cooperation that makes the club program in the state a success, Mr. Frisbie told me the other day.

Will Sell Fair Grounds. The Greeley county fair grounds will be sold at sheriff's sale April 15, it is learned from the Greeley Citizen. The defunct Greeley national bank holds a mortgage on the property. It is rumored that the town board may buy the property, for use as a public park and airplane landing field.

'Woody' Tolen, Pres. F. F. A., Interested In Agriculture Tho He Lives in Town

President of the Future Farmers of America club—that is Adrian Tolen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Irl Tolen of Ord.

Adrian or 'Woody' as he is best known to his boy and girl friends was elected president of the Ord chapter of the national organization when it held its organization meeting a few months ago. The club is sponsored by Jess Kovanda, Smith-Hughes agriculture teacher in Ord high school, where Woody goes to school.

Although Woody is not a 4-H club member now, he joined the dairy calf club last year but had to give it up when he could not find a suitable calf. He wanted a good one and could not find one to suit him.

However, the fact that 'Woody' is not a club member does not keep him from being an enthusiastic booster of Smith-Hughes agriculture in Ord high school.

BACK FORTY

By J. A. Kovanda

What about the seed corn situation this spring? In order to get local evidence on this subject we made a test on ear samples from thirty farms in various parts of Valley county.

The results indicate that it would be well to make individual tests on each ear of seed corn this season. They may be summarized as follows:

Strong kernels ..... 75%
Weak kernels ..... 17%
Dead kernels ..... 8%

In making this test, six kernels were taken from various places on each ear. They were placed between layers of wet sawdust in a hot room. There the conditions were so favorable that large sprouts were observed on the corn on the second day after it had been placed in the tester.

None of the ears were completely dead, but most of them showed weak kernels. These weak kernels would not germinate at all if planted under adverse conditions.

However, locally adapted seed testing 75 per cent is generally better to plant than imported unadapted seed with perfect germination. An allowance in the rate of planting should be made for dead seed.

A uniform stand cannot be obtained by using seed which is partly unsound, but it has been shown that there may be considerable uniformity without materially affecting yields. A so-called "perfect stand" is more or less arbitrary anyway, and may prove too thick in case of a dry season.

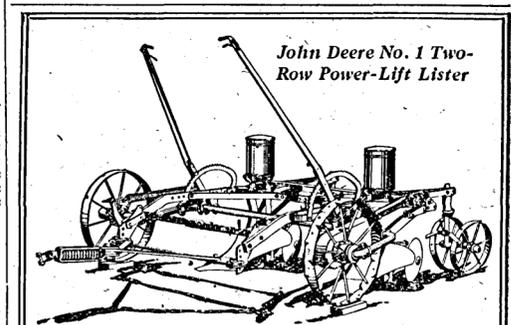

In regard to ear type, the Nebraska station recommends planting a medium shallow, smooth dimpled dent ear with hard kernels. They do not yet recommend extensive planting of hybrid corn as this product is still in the experimental stage. Neither do they advise treating seed corn with organic mercury disinfectants.

judging team that competed at the North Platte district contest for Smith-Hughes students. There the team ranked quite high. Woody entered the Babcock testing contest at North Platte and pulled down a "third." Not so bad.

Every summer 'Woody' is Granddad Koupal's chief helper in keeping up his grand little farm just west of Ord, near Bussell Park. "I plan to raise a small garden and some potatoes for my project in Smith-Hughes agriculture next summer," Woody says.

"The first year proved to be more interesting to me than the second is. However, I am enjoying my second year course. The field trips and studying of farm animals made the first year so interesting to me. I think it is great stuff."

Now Woody isn't just a common student in agriculture. He is among the best. Last year he was a member of Kovanda's dairy

THE DESERT MOON MYSTERY

By

He at once set the fact of Danny's change against the fact of Gaby's murder—and there he stuck fast; too loyal to go further; too disinclined to retreat. He did not believe that Danny had killed Gabrielle. He had known Danny too well to harbor such a belief. He was forced to believe that she knew who had done it. Consequently her accusation of Sam could be nothing but a wicked accusation. Only—Danny could not be wicked.

The mystery was a torture which Danny's presence intensified unbearably; so he avoided her; and unable to blame her for anything, he blamed himself and hated himself for his suspicions and for his faltering loyalty. I'll venture, though it can be only a venture, that the realization of his interest in Miss MacDonald, and his inability to be rigid, was another cause for John's befuddling.

That interest, of course, has all disappeared for the present. Though he despised himself for it, John might have been untrue to a changed, living Danny; might, in the end, have jilted her, meanly, and heart whole. But to a Danny who is no longer living, John, now, must always be true. John is young. I reckon he has fine honest plans for being faithful to her memory for the remainder of his life. Miss MacDonald is also young, and lovely, and he will always be true to her to come and visit us for a month next June.

Just now, with our thermometers at fifty below zero, and our chilblains burning, and the coyotes piercing the nights with their lank, long, frozen screeches, and the cold winds always going forth with their mournful "chuck-loo, whoo, whoo, whoo's" June looks mighty far away.

But, five fingers and a thumb, and she will be here, smelling of sunshine and tasting like smiles; patting our deserts with rainbow colors for us as far down as the eye can see; spreading sunsets that catch you right up into their midst, offering dawns that share their youth with you and that make you believe all over again in things which you had long ago stopped believing. Now I don't know much about romance; but I have a notion that June, in our northeastern Nevada, stirs up whole batches of the stuff. I am counting on her to serve it, fresh and sweet, this year.

It isn't June, though, and it isn't romance that I am trusting for the final chore; it is something moribund, something for which I cannot find a name. But I know that it is induced by a mixture of long years of right living, and clean thinking, and sanity, and courage; so I am expecting it to clear away the shadows from the Desert Moon and leave it, riding high as it used to ride, high and proud, a brave, shining thing in our valley.

PRODUCING IN EFFICIENT WAY IS FARM NEED

Low Prices on Farm Products Show Error in Production, Round Points Out.

By George Round, Jr.

Efficient production is the battle cry of dairy leaders in their campaign to right the dairy problem today. Efficient production is the advice given farmers by college of agriculture experts. Efficient production is the hope of all successful business men. It is a goal to be attained.

Farmers of today are generally thought of as inefficient producers. Now they are in the limelight more than ever before.

However, as farmers go, of course, there are some failures due to inefficient production. Nevertheless, there are failures in every line of business today. I do not care what business you may point to, whether it is that of making machinery or that of selling clothes, they all have their ups and downs although they are not given as much notoriety as is the American farmer today.

The wheat problem today is a great one in the United States. We have produced more wheat than we can possibly use at the present. This is the fault of the farmer. Wheat prices are due to decline further if production is increased in future years. There is a limitation to how much of a commodity the consuming public will buy.

Nevertheless, merchants suffer the same loss that farmers in this country are suffering today as a result of the butter and dairy over-production, if it may be called that. The only difference is that people do not think of the loss in the same light.

Reduced prices in the farm commodities under ordinary conditions means that a surplus has been produced, more than the public wants. The farmer has evidently made a mistake in producing too much wheat or corn. When he doesn't produce so much and the demand is great, the price goes up. This is in the business world.

Clothing stores have the same misfortune and suffer the same losses. Whenever a grocery store or clothing company holds a sale, one at an abnormal time of the year, one can about guess right that the merchant made a mistake in buying. He produced too much speaking in farmer's terms. He bought too many coats in the fall and found when January came that he had a surplus. He had to put on a sale offering at reduced prices to get rid of the coats.

So the farmer must put on a sale to sell his cream or butter surplus. A mistake has been made in production. No merchant ever puts on a sale for fun. Some stores have a clearance sale annually but this does not necessarily indicate that he has erred.

You often think of farmers who have been failures but you don't think of the business failure as readily. Farmers I believe, are just as rich as the business men and perhaps just as many succeed in their life activities. There are failures in every line of life activity.

There are smart and shrewd farmers as well as there are smart and successful business men. It is estimated that the average Master Farmer in Nebraska is worth $50,000, all made in farming. So it is that there are business men worth that sum of money or more.

A farmer that makes no change in his farming from year to year, farms in a hit or miss fashion, probably isn't making a great success. He plants his wheat in the same plot year after year, the same number of acres regardless of the price of wheat or the expected production. He never changes his crops, practices no crop rotations.

A business man may be in the same boat. You see many little business houses in the cities, stuck around some corner, who never change the looks of their stores. They never change the position of the cash register. They never change the looks of the show window unless products are sold from it. Everything is stationary, nothing is ever changed. Usually those stores are not very successful and certainly aren't big successes.

They may be thought of in the same class as the unprogressive farmer.

There are farmers who are failures today, it is true. Business men fail also. It is estimated that only fifty percent of the grocery stores that start in business in Lincoln survive. Of that remaining fifty percent only twenty-five percent are making money, it is thought. The other twenty-five percent do the work of the running the stores for nothing.

So farmers are not the only people in the United States who fail occasionally. They all fail, farmers or business men, alike because of those two little words, inefficient production.

Bill Sorensen Is New Member Baby Beef Club

By George Round, Jr.

Orle Sorensen of Arcadia acts as an ambassador of club work in and around his community. He recently got his little brother, Orvel, or better known as "Bill," to enter club work this year.

Now Bill has never been in club work before and has no record of which to write. He is just starting, being but fourteen years old, and will make his record in the future.

As Bill is just a new club member, I asked him the other day, when home, why he had entered club work.

He replied, "I wanted to learn more about feeding cattle and how to do it most economically. Orle has been in club work before and I saw the benefits he got out of it and there was no reason why I shouldn't join also. This is my first year."

So Bill bought his Polled Hereford calf about the first of the year to enter in baby beef club work. Although the calf is not a purebred, he is said to be a good one. Bill purchased him from Gus Benson of Arcadia who has some outstanding calves this year.

When the South Side Lucky Baby Beef Club organized not long ago, Bill was there to sign up. He made one more member for Clare Clement, leader.

Usually boys of but fourteen years of age and with no feeding experience, do not know how to feed their calves from the start but evidently brother Orle has been giving Bill some lessons in feeding for he seems to know his "feeds."

"What are you feeding the calf now, Bill?" I asked him.

"Well now, George, I am feeding him corn, oats, alfalfa and salt," he replied. "Later I plan to change the feeding a little and add linseed meal to the ration to give him a little protein supplement which he will need." All indicating that Bill is started in the right direction in feeding.

"After you have fed your baby beef entry during the summer, what do you plan to do with him, Bill?" I inquired of him then.

"Well, after feeding him I want to show at the Valley county fair and other fairs if the calf is good enough and I believe he will be. I suppose after that I will sell him at auction at some fair."

Marvelous Work Of New Konjola Medicine Is Told

McLain-Sorensen Drug Store To Introduce Advanced Remedy For First Time In Ord.

If you were told that one single medicine put hundreds of men and women back to work in Chicago, Philadelphia and other large cities after they had been idle for months with health troubles, it would sound impossible, wouldn't it? And that countless people were completely relieved of rheumatism and neuritis, and that they were able to walk again, without cane or crutches, and that this same medicine restored health to men and women who had suffered with stomach and kidney troubles for years, and that complete relief had come in cases of misery where health resorts, expensive treatments and medicine upon medicine had failed—indeed, it seems impossible! Yet it is all true, and the medicine that has done all these things is the new Konjola which is being introduced, starting today at the McLain-Sorensen Drug Store, this city.

Wherever introduced, this Konjola is vastly different and more effective in thousands of cases of ill-health than any previously known medicine. It is a remarkable liquid compound for the following well-known troubles:

Rheumatism: Especially severe cases, where pains are intense, muscles swollen, joints stiff and rigid. In the milder cases of this disease, Konjola relieves almost at once, and this medicine brings the same results to the neuritis victim that it does for the rheumatic sufferers.

Stomach, liver, kidneys and bowel troubles: Nearly all forms of misery that arise from those unhealthy organs have been so quickly relieved by Konjola that men and women sufferers everywhere were surprised. It is the action of this medicine on the organs of the inner-system that removes toxic poisons from the system and brings quick relief in so many cases. The secret of this Konjola is the way it acts on the important functional organs of the body, namely: the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. So many diseases and long standing disorders of these organs were so completely conquered and entirely banished by this new compound that thousands of people in larger cities were able to give up taking medicine for some time to accomplishments and wonderful work of Konjola in other sections, it is declared that this medicine is what hundreds of sufferers in Ord and vicinity have long needed to actually reach their cases, and preparations are being made to introduce Konjola for the first time at the McLain-Sorensen drug store, where this medicine will be sold and explained to the public daily.

Mrs. Stark's Class Enjoys Lesson About Character Build in

By IRMA ELLIS LEGGETT

You'd never guess the new-fangled kind of a lesson that the sixth grade was having under Mrs. Stark's tutelage Monday afternoon when I called! Nope, you never would!

It was a study of "character building," and I really think it was a fine and very effective sort of lesson too. But of course I can't prove it! Not for about fifteen years, until these children grow up!

The book on character building which Mrs. Stark handed to me contained a number of sketches. They couldn't really be called stories, each one doing with some character or personification that was admirable. For example, under the head of a peace-time hero, several pages were devoted to Lindberg, most modest of contemporary heroes. Then another few pages told of Helen Keller's delight when she first began to learn to read and write via the tedious method of spelling everything out on the palm of her hand.

A brief little eulogy was devoted to the subject of "Dad." And although it was brief, it was touchingly eloquent. One about Lincoln walking miles to borrow a book or two; for example, under the head of a peace-time hero, several pages were devoted to Lindberg, most modest of contemporary heroes. Then another few pages told of Helen Keller's delight when she first began to learn to read and write via the tedious method of spelling everything out on the palm of her hand.

As I entered the room, the day's reading and topic for discussion was "The Welcome Man." One of Walt Mason's jingles. This one had to do with "the one who does his stunt with a whistle or smile. . . . 'The Man Who Delivers The Goods.' This man, according to the class, isn't afraid he will work too hard, he isn't lazy, doesn't 'just lay around and read all the time,' doesn't listen for the whistle to blow so he can quit working.

On the sand table was the project for the week, "Holland." So it was pictured as a land of dikes, windmills, dairy cows, canals, and tulips. Under the project system every child does as much as he can, and to the best performers go the highest grades. Thus for the previous week Mrs. Stark showed me a number of the booklets on the subject of "flowers," and very fine they were, too.

The class are informed several weeks in advance about the subjects that are coming up, and they begin to save colored pictures. Everything printed in relation to the subject that they can lay hands on. So in these flower booklets were dozens of pretty printed pictures, pasted in the most orderly fashion. And the person who pastes them in must know the name of any flower if it is asked. Then all the writing in the book. If done in the best Palmer penmanship of which this young person is capable, wins a mark for him or her, as the case may be.

So you see these "flower" booklets were at once a course in nature study, penmanship, observation, artistic perception and execution, neatness, and even in printing, for usually the title on the front is printed by hand. And let me say that you would be surprised how clever some of these booklets are. . . . how unusual! Next week the project is to be "The United States Army and Navy." Ambitious projects, aren't they? And you ought to see how many of them are marked A. A plus or even with two plus marks! On the blackboard the names with quite a few marks after them for penmanship efforts were Armona Beth Achen, Laverne Austin, Delilah Beeghly, Gerald Clark, Marjorie Coe, Barbara Dale, Ruth Haught, Virginia Weekes, Norma Mae Snell. It is just nip and tuck to see whose marks grow the fastest.

YOUR EYES WILL REPAY YOU . .

For any care you give them. And will charge you for neglect. The first move toward caring for them is to learn what sort of care they need. They may or may not need the help of glasses. May or may not need rest. May not need anything at all. But UNCERTAINTY is unwise. Our service dispels all doubt.

Book on the Press
The early history of Sherman, Custer, Dawson and other counties in Central Nebraska in connection with the Olive Gang is going to be put in book form. The history is all written and will be ready to turn over to the printer in a few days. The story which is gathered from reliable sources is one of the most blood curdling incidents ever put into print. The book will be from 100 to 150 pages with illustrations and there will not be a single person in this part of the state who will not want a copy of this book. A. O. Jenkins of Arcadia is the author and sponsor of the book and he has had able writers compile the immense lot of information relative to the greatest cattle thieves in the history of the country. Judge Wall and some of our early citizens figure prominently in the story. The copy was turned over to the Times this week and no time will be spared to get it in print and ready to put on sale. We will endeavor to give a synopsis of the book next week.—Sherman County Times.

UNION INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Lesson for March 30

REVIEW

GOLDEN TEXT—Unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given; and the government shall be upon his shoulder and his name shall be called Wonderful, Counselor, The Mighty God, The Everlasting Father, The Prince of Peace.

Since the lessons of the quarter are bound together by the three-fold unity of one book, one theme, and one person, the best method of review for young people and adults is to present the book of Matthew as a whole, and each lesson in its relation to Matthew's central purpose.

God entered into covenant with David concerning the Kingdom (II Sam. 7:1-16). Christ's genealogy shows His legal right to the throne of David (1:1-17). The Messiah was not only said to be the seed of the woman (Gen. 3:15) and the son of a virgin (Isa. 7:14), but the son of David (Isa. 9:1).

The King entered upon His official work by being baptized. Christ's baptism was His act of consecration to the task of saving His people through the sacrifice of Himself upon the cross.

This lesson shows the characteristics and responsibilities of the subjects of the kingdom, the beatitudes showing the characteristics, and salt and light the responsibilities.

The missionary offering sent to our United Budget following the Sunday services was $15.25. Our Sunday School collection was $5.22. The attendance is growing and we hope to organize a new class soon.

The Home Department sympathizes deeply with one of its members, Mrs. Hubbard, who recently suffered a light stroke and is still far from well. However her condition seems to be somewhat improved.

A Christian Endeavor social is scheduled for the near future, with a fine time promised. Look for developments.

Word has been received from Iowa, Ohio and a certain part of Nebraska, to the effect that earnest, believing prayer is daily being offered for North Loup and for our revival which is to begin Easter night, April 20, with Rev. Nathan Thomas in charge.

The parables of the wheat and tares, mustard seed and leavened meat, show the outward growth and inner decay of the work inaugurated by Christ in the interval between His Crucifixion and second coming.

Our services next Lord's Day will be as usual and you have an invitation. Nathan Thomas, Pastor.

Our subjects next Sunday will be, morning, "Where is My Candle?" evening, "The Faith Finder." Why not bring a number of your friends out with you to our services. Come once and see if you will not want to come again.

Our Bible study classes are doing fine. The Thursday evening class is getting under headway in good shape. No one should miss getting the work this class is doing as foundation for better knowledge of the Bible.

Our subjects next Sunday will be, morning, "Where is My Candle?" evening, "The Faith Finder." Why not bring a number of your friends out with you to our services. Come once and see if you will not want to come again.

ning, April 3rd. Every woman should strive to come out and help make the meeting a most interesting one.

Ordnation Notes. Last Sunday was a very successful day in attendance and interest at this church. The Sunday School record showed 220 present which is more than for many weeks and is very encouraging to both officers and teachers.

The revival meetings will continue this evening, tomorrow evening and close with the service of Sunday evening, at which time an opportunity will be given for all who wish to do so to come into this church in membership.

Rev. Moorman tells us that he is very anxious to finish the work of the benevolent program of the church for this year. Some time ago pledge cards were sent out and a number of these are still out and he will be very pleased if those who have them will make their pledge and return the cards as soon as possible.

Thursday afternoon the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society will meet in the church parlors for their regular meeting. Instead of the regular lesson period, Miss Bessie Franc Brown, pastor of the Friend's church at North Loup, will address the meeting.

Ord Christian Science Society. The subject of the lesson-sermon for Sunday, March 30, 1930 will be "Reality." Sunday services are held each Sunday at 11 o'clock and Wednesday evening meetings are held the second Wednesday of each month at 8 o'clock in the Lola building, 1615 M Street.

Midvale U. B. Church. Bible School, 10 a. m. Orin Kellison superintending. R. C. Burrows, teacher of the Bible Class.

There comes a day once a year when the eyes of the United Brethren churches turn southward. That day is Christian Endeavor Anniversary Day, when young people hold the center of interest, and the whole church is turned out on the various enterprises including Anniversary Day observance.

Ord Presbyterian Church. We are glad to welcome such a splendid congregation as were present last Sunday morning. It is encouraging and helpful to us all. And yet, we are not going to be satisfied until at least fifty percent of our membership are present on Sunday morning.

Our Sunday school is showing a very creditable advance the last few weeks climbing steadily from week to week, and if it continues we will want to have your part in it. We hope you will find it so interesting and profitable that you will not want to miss a single session.

Election of officers, for the new year, next Sunday at the close of the class period. Don't forget to give the choir a word of appreciation and encouragement. It helps. They are adding very materially to our service and we are sure you will want to tell them so.

Our Bible study classes are doing fine. The Thursday evening class is getting under headway in good shape. No one should miss getting the work this class is doing as foundation for better knowledge of the Bible.

The paragon is coming along fine. The carpenters are about done and soon we expect the decorators to be doing their work.

The Women's Missionary Society will meet next Thursday evening.

Redskin Starting Mash

Develops Bone Feathers, Flesh!

—that's what Mrs. J. J. Donahue says.

"I am using Redskin Chick Starting Mash (with Buttermilk and Cod Liver Oil), compounded by the Nebraska Consolidated Mills Co. I find it a well balanced mash, made from clean, fresh grain, bone meal, linseed meal, buttermilk, alfalfa meal, meat meal—in short, all elements a baby chick needs for rapid development of bones, feathers and flesh. I have used this mash now for the past four seasons and I am experiencing an increasing satisfaction in its use. My turkeys were practically raised on Redskin Starting Mash. I use this mash myself and am glad to recommend it to others."—Mrs. J. J. Donahue.

Mrs. Donahue is known as an authority on poultry. She was one of the demonstrators on the poultry train operated by the Burlington Railroad Co. a few years ago.

Redskin Starting Mash (with Buttermilk and Cod Liver Oil) will do all that Mrs. Donahue says it has done for her chicks. A trial will convince you of its merits. Order it from your dealer today and you will be assured of making money in growing healthy, big-bone chicks.
