Mrs. Crouch Struck By Automobile

ORD WOMAN IN HOSPITAL WITH BROKEN BONES

Lew Holloway Was Gazing At Farm, Didn't See Victim Until He Hit Her; Will Recover.

An automobile salesman's sentimental interest in the farm where he was born was responsible here last Sunday for a serious automobile accident in which Mrs. A. L. Crouch 48, a school-mate of the salesman for many years, suffered a broken leg, broken shoulder, broken ankle, crushed fingers and many cuts and bruises.

The accident occurred Sunday afternoon on the Ord-Arcadia highway two miles south of Ord. Lew Holloway, a salesman for the Anderson Motor Company, had been calling on a prospect near Arcadia and was returning to Ord.

Born and reared to early manhood on the farm now occupied by A. J. Ferris, Mr. Holloway was looking the old place over as he passed and was paying little attention to the road. He crossed the bridge east of the Ferris farm on the right side of the road but swerved to the left as he scanned the land on the north side of the road, all of which formerly was a part of the Holloway home place.

Mrs. Crouch and her husband were walking down the hill bound for the Ferris place to pay a call. They saw the car approaching on the left side of the road but supposed Mr. Holloway intended to turn in at a side road. Instead, he realized suddenly that he was on the wrong side and swerved sharply to the right. Until then he had not seen Mr. and Mrs. Crouch, Holloway says.

When the big Buick bore down upon them, Mr. Crouch leaped for the ditch on the left and Mrs. Crouch attempted to get out of the way by running into the road. Instead, she found herself directly in the path of the car and was knocked down and carried 22 feet on the bumper before Holloway succeeded in stopping the car. When he did bring it to a stop one of the tires rested on Mrs. Crouch's hair.

The injured woman was unconscious and was carried to the side of the road and Dr. H. N. Norris was summoned. He arrived within five minutes and took Mrs. Crouch to the Ord hospital where her injuries were attended to. At first it was feared that her skull was fractured but this did not prove true and at last reports she is resting easily and will recover.

Besides Mr. Crouch others who saw the accident included their son, Harley Crouch, who was a few rods behind his parents on a bicycle and Dorothy and Melvin Ferris, children of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Ferris. They were running to meet Mr. and Mrs. Crouch and dodged the Holloway car.

Mr. Holloway assumes all blame for the accident. He was on the wrong side of the road, he admits, because of his interest in the farm where he was reared. He was nearly heart-broken over the affair as he and Mrs. Crouch lived on neighboring farms and were school-mates for years. Soon after the accident he was questioned by County Attorney George A. Munn and Sheriff George Round and admitted his responsibility. Unless Mrs. Crouch should die, which is very unlikely, it is probable that no criminal action will be filed.

AGED RESIDENT OF ORD CLAIMED BY GRIM REAPER

M. D. L. Taylor Died Saturday After Years of Suffering; Was Blind For Two Years.

A life that for more than two years was spent in darkness came to an end last Saturday when M. D. Lafayette Taylor, 85, passed away at his home here. For a long time he had suffered with cancer of the throat and other complications and for more than two years was blind. He bore all of his afflictions with patience and fortitude and his entire life was an example of uncomplaining surrender to whatever fate had in store for him.

Mr. Taylor was born in Wabash county, Indiana, on November 30, 1844, and at the time of his death Saturday was 85 years, 3 months and 29 days old.

During his infancy his parents moved to LaPorte, Ind., where his boyhood and early manhood were spent. On October 29, 1873, in LaPorte county, he was united in marriage to Elmyra Stanten and to this union two children were born, Ora S. Taylor, who preceded his father in death on June 12, 1928, and Delpha M. Taylor, who lives at LaPorte, Ind., and mother went to her reward on January 8, 1927.

It was in the spring of 1885 that Mr. Taylor came to Ord with his wife and family and this was his home continuously from that time until his death. For many years he was employed as janitor of the school house here and while thus employed earned the respect and affection of many who are now middle-aged business men and housewives of Ord. Always interested in gardening, Mr. Taylor supplied the market here with choice plants every spring until so afflicted that he was no longer able to work in his garden and his hot-beds.

In 1886 Mr. Taylor united with the Methodist church in Ord and for many years served as a member of the official board of that organization and was always greatly interested in its activities.

Besides his daughter, Delpha Taylor of Grand Island, Mr. Taylor is survived by one sister, Mrs. Mary Good of LaPorte, Ind. Funeral services were held at the M. E. church here Tuesday with Rev. J. A. Moorman officiating and interment was in Ord cemetery.

Explosion Of Gas Breaks Plate Glass

The town was treated to a dose of excitement about 10:30 o'clock last Thursday morning when an explosion occurred in Charley Goodhand's new store building, the impact breaking four big plate glass windows in front of the store. Glass was blown clear across the street and was liberally strewn over the pavement and sidewalk. Luckily no one was passing the store at the time or serious injury might have resulted.

The explosion is said to have been caused by an accumulation of dust and dirt in the delicate electric parts of the oil-burner used to heat the building. When the building was cleaned up after being completed much sand, lime and dirt sifted down through the floor and this is thought to have caused the trouble.

Gas accumulated in the fire-pot of the furnace and when the spark ignited it an instant late an explosion of gas resulted. The oil burner itself was not injured and after being cleaned out was in operation again the next day.

Saturday Mike Whalen, who resides south of North Loup, was in Ord to see Dr. Henry Norris. Mr. Whalen has a gopher and Dr. Norris advised him to go to Rochester, Minn.

ORD BALL TEAM IS IN NEW LEAGUE FORMED MONDAY

Six-Team Loop Organized At Arcadia Meeting; No Salary Limit; First Game Apr. 20

Ord will hold membership this summer in the Loup Valley Baseball League, a new association organized Monday night at Arcadia. Six teams will hold membership in the league, Arcadia, Ord, Scotia, Broken Bow, Ansley and Litchfield, and the league season will open April 20 and continue for twenty weeks. Claris Bellinger, Arcadia, is president of the league. Charles Bellinger, manager of the Ord team, was present at the organization meeting of the new league Monday night and expressed himself as more than pleased with the arrangement. Ord fans will have an opportunity to see real fast baseball this summer he promises.

No limit on salaried players will be made in the new loop but after July 1 each team may have 18 players on its roster. Up until that time as many players may be used as the manager of each team sees fit.

A membership fee of $50 will be paid in by each team before April 5 and schedules will be made up about April 7. Three prizes of $150, $100 and $50 will be given to the three leading teams at the end of the season.

Manager Arnold had an enthusiastic bunch of candidates working out at the fair grounds last Sunday, 28 being present to try for berths on the team. In initial games Arnold will count on Hill and East for pitchers with Harry Wolf as catcher. Promising infield candidates include Baker, Ward, Shunkwiler, Covert, Verl Arnold, Blessing, Furtak and many others. Bill Heck is expected to report this week. Joe Krelci, who goes to the Park state league club late in the season, will play with the local team and will play with them for the first five games, returning to Ord in September to finish the season with them. He is an outfielder and a heavy hitter. Other outfield candidates include Ed Kelly, Anderson, Finch and other. Manager Arnold urges all ball players in this part of the county to turn out next Sunday.

Forty Take Part In Declamatory Contest Thursday

Nine high schools, representing four different counties, participated in the annual subdistrict declamatory contest held in the Ord high school auditorium last Thursday afternoon and evening.

Each of the nine participating schools had entries in the regular classes; humorous, oratorical, dramatic. Four schools presented one-act plays and one school entered the extemporaneous speaking section. The work in all sections was of a high type and keen competition was the order of the day. Miss Helen Neely, director of dramatic at Grand Island college, was the expert judge in charge of the contest. At the close of the evening session the following awards were announced.

Dramatic Section: Gertrude Hemphill, North Loup, first; Marguerite Best, Burwell, second; Lillian Kokes, Ord, third. Humorous Section: Ed Swanson, Greeley, first; Bernice McVey, Spaulding, second; Esther Whiting, Horace, third. Oratorical Section: Arthur Rhode, Burwell, first; Reuben Wells, Taylor, second; Owen Nell, Greeley, third. One Act Plays: Taylor—first. Greeley—second. Extemporaneous Speaking: Spaulding—first.

Approximately forty students engaged in the contest. Good sized crowds attended both afternoon and evening sessions. The Ord high school band opened the evening program with a thirty minute concert and played during the intermission before the decision of the judge.

A business meeting was held at 7 p. m., during which Ord was elected as the contest place for next year and officers of this year were continued in office. They are: Miss Georgina Tolbert, Horace, secretary-treasurer and C. A. Bowers, Ord, chairman.

Teacher Important, Says Supt. Taylor

Most important in the success of a rural school is the teacher, said Chas. W. Taylor, state superintendent of schools, in an address delivered to school officers of Valley county Monday afternoon in the Ord high school auditorium. Next in importance is the cooperation given her by the community, he said. The state superintendent spoke for an hour and his address was heartily enjoyed.

About sixty school officers attended the meeting Monday. At the morning session Professor Gregg of Wesleyan University gave an illustrated lecture on beautifying school grounds by planting trees and shrubs. At noon home economics girls of Ord high school served a fine luncheon. The program was arranged by Clara McClatchey, county superintendent of schools.

MRS. J. VANWIE GOES TO REWARD

Well Known Springdale Resident Dies After Illness of Only Two Weeks.

At her home in Springdale township at 7:40 a. m. last Friday, March 29, Mrs. J. Van Wie went to her reward after an illness of only two weeks. Mrs. Van Wie was seventy-one years of age and had lived in Valley county for more than a third of a century. Funeral services were held at the Sowl church at 2:30 p. m. Sunday with Rev. J. A. Moorman in charge and interment was in Ord cemetery.

Ida M. Holt was born January 4, 1859, in Canisteo, N. Y. and on December 14, 1879, was married to Jonas Van Wie at Knoxville, Pa. On April 19, 1889, Mr. and Mrs. Van Wie moved to Valley county and this had been the home of deceased ever since. She was a true pioneer wife and mother and shared with her husband and neighbors the trials and tribulations of a country that was just being opened up for settlement at the time of their arrival.

She is survived by her husband and by one daughter, Jessie Van Wie, who lives at home. One brother, Sam Holt of Greenwood, N. Y., also survives.

Chas. Goodhand Takes Lambdin To Missouri

Charley Goodhand and Tom Lambdin left Monday afternoon for Savannah, Mo., where Mr. Lambdin will enter the cancer clinic there for an operation to remove a cancer from his cheek. Friends of Mr. Lambdin raised funds to defray the cost of the operation and Mr. Goodhand volunteered to take him to Savannah and return for him in two or three weeks when he is able to leave the hospital.

Special showing of wash and silk dresses for children, sizes 3 to 14. Priced from $1 to $5.75 at Chase's Toggery.

Enormous Mortgage Recorded By County Clerk Ign. Klima

By far the largest mortgage ever recorded in Valley county and probably the largest mortgage ever recorded in Nebraska was filed here last week by Clarence A. Davis, Holdrege, attorney for the Western Public Service company. This company is mortgaging its holdings to the Chase National Bank, New York City, for $200,000,000. Since the law provides that a mortgage be recorded in every county where property so mortgaged is located, the entire mortgage was filed here.

It embraced a book of 140 pages, 8 x 11 inches each in size, and the entire book had to be copied on the typewriter by Ign. Klima, clerk of Valley county. His fee for recording this mortgage was $67.00.

The only property owned by the Western Public Service company in this county is a plot of ground 50 feet square near North Loup, used by them as a sub-station.

WOMAN ESCAPES AS HOUSE BURNS EARLY TUESDAY

Mrs. Lew Wegrzyn Flees in Night Gown; Flames Totally Destroy House, Furniture.

Fleeing down a burning stairway in her sleeping garments, Mrs. Lew Wegrzyn barely escaped from a fire that burned their home in north Ord to the ground early Tuesday morning. She was alone in the house and did not awaken until the downstairs was an inferno of flame. All of the furniture and household furnishings were destroyed. An overheated incubator caused the blaze, it is thought.

Murray Cornell, who lives two blocks northeast of the Wegrzyn home, turned in the fire alarm about 3 a. m. Tuesday. He awoke to find his house filled with smoke, he said, and after looking around for a possible fire within his own home, went outside and saw that the smoke was coming from the northwest. Going to the Wegrzyn house he found it in flames and turned in an alarm at once.

When firemen reached the Wegrzyn place the flames had big start but part of the house could have been saved had the fire hydrant on the Danish church corner been in working order. After laying their hose the fire fighters found this hydrant out of order and had to lay another line of hose two blocks east to the Catholic church before they could get any water on the blaze. By that time their efforts were unavailing and the house burned to the ground.

Bud Shirley, fire chief, made an attempt to carry out some of the more valuable pieces of furniture but found every room in the house in flames when he tried to enter. All of Mr. and Mrs. Wegrzyn's furniture, much of it new, was destroyed. The night-gown in which Mrs. Wegrzyn escaped from the house was the only article of clothing saved from the fire.

Mr. and Mrs. Wegrzyn have only lived in this house for about a year. It is the old Bannister property formerly was occupied by Ed Hansen until purchased by Mr. Wegrzyn in 1928. Mr. Wegrzyn made many improvements when he purchased the property and although he carried $2,500 insurance on the house and additional insurance on the furniture he suffered a heavy loss.

Mrs. Wegrzyn is an extensive cattle feeder and was in Grand Island Monday night planning to attend a cattle sale there Tuesday.

SENSATIONAL DIVORCE SUIT IS FILED HERE

Mrs. Gust Dobberstine Charges Her Husband Was Unfaithful, Asks Divorce and Alimony.

Charging her husband with extreme cruelty and infidelity Mrs. Rose Dobberstine is suing Gust Dobberstine for divorce in an action filed in district court last Saturday by her attorneys, Davis and Urdy. Mrs. Dobberstine wants an absolute divorce, custody of their three minor children, reasonable alimony, attorney fees and suit money.

Rose and Gust Dobberstine were married at York on July 3, 1910. The wife says in her petition they have four children, the oldest girl being married. Her husband is extremely jealous and has often accused her of having relations with other men, which is untrue, she says. He often provoked quarrels with her and called her names before their children. Mrs. Dobberstine alleges, and she further says that in November, 1926, she found her husband in the act of adultery with another woman whose name she will reveal if necessary.

Mr. Dobberstine is an able-bodied man capable of supporting his family properly but has failed to do so, his wife charges. He is an employe of the Ord seed house. His answer has not yet been filed.

Citizens Demand Repeal Of Picture Ordinance By Smashing Majority

The initial step in legalizing Sunday movies in Ord was taken Tuesday when a staggering majority of 235 votes were registered in favor of the question at a city election that developed more interest and a greater total vote than any previously held here. A total of 857 ballots were cast with 546 voters favoring Sunday shows and 311 opposing them. The question carried by a big majority in each of the three wards with the second and third voting about two to one in the affirmative. With this expression of popular sentiment to guide them it is regarded certain that the city council will repeal the ordinance against Sunday shows at their next regular meeting.

The vote on the question by wards was as follows: First—for, 184; against, 132; second—for, 179; against, 84; third—for 183; against, 95.

ORD WOMAN DIES AFTER ILLNESS OF MORE THAN YEAR

Mrs. Mary Zikmund Goes To Reward, Funeral Yesterday Attended By Many Friends.

One of the largest groups that ever attended a funeral in Ord gathered at the Bohemian hall here yesterday at 2 p. m. to honor the memory of Mrs. Mary Katherine Zikmund, who passed away Sunday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Harry Christensen, after a lingering illness with diabetes. Rev. B. A. Filipi, of Clarkson, had charge of the service and interment was in the Bohemian National cemetery.

Mary Katherine Vancura was born August 30, 1856, in Bohemia, and at the time of her death Sunday was seventy-three years old. She came to this country in 1878 and in 1881 was married at Schuyler, Neb., to Anton Zikmund, who passed away June 19, 1904.

Mr. and Mrs. Zikmund came to this county fifty-two years ago and settled on a farm two miles west of Ord where the family home was until Mrs. Zikmund moved to Ord in 1910.

Children of Mrs. Zikmund who survive her include Ed, Emil, Will and Henry, Emma Vodehnal, Anna Polak, Tillie Beranek, Hatlie Christensen and Antonia Christensen, all of Ord, and Sophia Panowicz, of Comstock. Two other children, Mrs. Jennie Misko and Adolph Zikmund preceded their mother in death.

Other near relatives surviving include a half-sister, Mrs. Francis Zikmund, and two half-brothers, Louis and Charlie Vancura, of Ord, and a nephew, Louis Vancura of Omaha. She also leaves twenty-eight grandchildren and six great grandchildren.

Until she became an invalid over a year ago Mrs. Zikmund was active as housewife and mother and also found time to take an interest in the affairs of the Z. C. B. J. lodge of which she was a member. The high esteem in which she was held by neighbors and friends alike was attested by the huge concourse at her funeral yesterday.

Contests developed in the second and third wards on the election of councilmen, H. G. Frey winning over Tony Kosmata in the second by a vote of 147 to 110 and Joe Rowbal defeating E. W. Gruber in the third by a vote of 151 to 122.

Voters approved the sale of the old pumping plant property owned by the city, the result being 479 for and 187 against.

E. R. Fafeita Elected County Commander

Legionnaires of Valley county held a convention Tuesday evening at the Legion hall in Ord and E. R. Fafeita, Ord banker, was chosen county commander. Mr. Fafeita has served the local post as adjutant, commander and service officer and is regarded as well fitted for the county post. He was given authority to appoint other county officers.

H. A. Kriz, district commander of the Legion, was here from Grand Island and gave a fine address. A program was given with a duet by the Duemey children, a solo by Dr. F. L. Blessing, a piano solo by Mrs. Kirby McGrew and a piano and violin duet by Mr. and Mrs. Orville H. Sowl.

With Mrs. C. J. Mortenson as chairman of the committee, members of the Auxiliary served refreshments. Other members of the committee were Madams John Edwards, Roy Severson, Lillian Crow, C. C. Dale, Orville H. Sowl and A. J. Ferguson.

Alice, oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Mazac, was released from quarantine last Sunday. Her brother and two sisters had scarlet fever but she has not taken the fever.

Early in the day Tuesday it was apparent that a huge vote was being cast but even the most optimistic proponents of Sunday shows did not anticipate a majority as large as was given the proposition.

Both those for and against Sunday shows had made active campaign and interest in the result was at white heat. When the polls closed at 7 p. m., and counting boards went into action crowds gathered at each polling place to watch the progress of the count. The streets were crowded with voters awaiting the final result and whether or not Sunday movies carried was almost the sole topic of conversation.

When the result was made known those in favor of Sunday shows were, of course, jubilant while those who had opposed them were unable to believe the result could be accurate as 307 voters had previously signed a petition opposing Sunday movies and only four more than this number voted against them. Members of the protest committee who circulated this "anti" petition evidently covered the ground thoroughly and secured the names of practically all who held their viewpoint.

The next regular council meeting is being held tomorrow night but whether this council will immediately repeal Ordinance No. 23 or will refer the question to the next council taking office in May is not known. Newly elected council members are William Sack, Joe Rowbal and Henry Frey and councilmen who hold over include Joe Rohla, Carl Sorenson and Chester Palmatrix.

Next to the picture show issue the most exciting contests Tuesday centered around the school board election. Opponents of Ralph Norman and Fred Coe, who were nominated at both caucuses, attempted to write in the names of R. J. Stoltz and Guy Burrows in sufficient numbers to elect them. The final vote gave Norman 494, Coe 410, Stoltz 285 and Burrows 248 votes.

There were no contests for the other offices and Wm. Moses was elected mayor, Nelle Wolters city clerk, W. C. H. Noll city treasurer, Dr. C. C. Shepard parkboard member, Wm. Hamilton police judge and Wm. Sack councilman first ward.

Without mentioning the project to their parents two 4-year-old Ord boys decided last Friday to go to California. The boys, Junior Lakin and Vern Keck, started out at once on foot accompanied by their dogs for protection. They were about a mile from Ord on the highway to North Loup and were trudging sturdily along when they met C. A. Hager, who was returning to Ord. He did not know them but when he reached town he reported seeing two small boys on the highway and their fathers, Ross Lakin and Sin Keck, at once went after the little fellow.

When they got home both insisted that they were not running away and did not need punishment—they were just going to California "like everybody else does."

Reporter Tells Of Games Played By Kindergartners

By IRMA ELLIS LEGGETT

Back in my first love, the kindergarten, the first thing I heard was Robert Dean Tunnickliff having appendicitis suddenly last week, and as soon as his little fellow kindergartners heard about it, they each one brought just as many pennies as possible, and all clipped in together to buy Robert Dean a nice bouquet of sweet peas.

So in return, these little people got a thank you note from Mrs. Tunnickliff for Robert Dean, saying that he was improving right along, and would soon be wanting his little playmates to come and visit him! And his mama said Robert Dean had already felt well enough so that he lays in bed and sings school songs.

The kindergarten had just finished painting some compo board animals when I came in. When they are all dry, two sticks of wood are nailed one on either side of these animals' feet, so that the giraffe, elephant, duck or what-not will be able to stand up by himself.

The animal-painting was followed by recess. This is a time of trial to Miss Misko I imagine, although she took it as a matter of course. But if you remember that it is no small task to get your own little Johnny or Evelina into her coat, her mittens, her cap, and perhaps her rubbers, imagine this task multiplied by almost forty eager, and excited and want-to-be-outdoors children!

So one little fist after another was told to keep the fingers stiff, while Miss Misko tugged on a tight glove, and on numbers of bobbing heads Miss Misko, imagine this task multiplied by almost forty eager, and excited and want-to-be-outdoors children!

Then off they all ran to play. Soon they were back, all the above process was reversed, and music and game time began. Miss Misko seated herself at the piano, the children stood in a circle. She would begin, to play when they all stood quiet, listening. The child in the center, as soon as the music struck him as being familiar, would go around the circle in search of a partner. If the music was sweet and gentle, perhaps every step would be a quiet little tip-toe one. If it was prancy and rollicking maybe it meant for him to shuffle one foot first all the way around the circle. Perhaps it meant for him to march loudly, to skip lightly, etc. In any event, the boy was to pick a partner.

It was astonishing how many different tunes and games and verses and little songs these children remember. From one to another they went, only once in a while would a small voice waver. Usually on each face was that confident assured expression that means: "I know this one." But always every child was anxious to be chosen, and as the little person with all the power of choosing came by, each child would reach out a hand as far as possible, although their toes still maintained the original circle.

For a while they played "Round the village," that's the one we used to call "Going In and Out the Window," then the old favorite of dropping the bean-bag; the other game, just as old, perhaps more favored yet "London Bridge is Falling Down."

Then they played a game with a cunning verse about "How do you do, my partner? How do you do today? Will you skip in the circle? I will show you the way!" All the children chose and rechose one another, and Miss Misko was often their choice, too. The Muffin Man with the usual amount of singing, clapping and skipping, such a lot of games they played, and they all seemed to know just how. Even the three new little mid-year recruits, Mary Louise Miller, Margaret Mary Kocina and Eldon Wachtler.

Oh, I must tell you about the London Bridge. Billy Miller and a little girl with dark curls whom I did not know were grabbing the others one at a time, and offering them their choice of whispered prizes. You know how the game goes. Well, I simply couldn't understand it, because the children all chose what Billy-miller-william-warner-miller offered. Guess what it was?

Billy was offering a jar of candy and his little girl partner was promising a gold wrist watch, and they were taking candy!

Gains Ten Pounds In Less Than a Month

MISS DOROTHY HENNING

"When I started taking Sargon, less than a month ago, I only weighed 88 pounds. Now I weigh 98—an actual gain of ten pounds, and I'm still gaining. "I suffered terribly from indigestion and constipation. My appetite fell off to almost nothing, and my complexion was very bad. My appetite is just splendid now, and my complexion is clear and healthy looking. Sargon Soft Mass Pills have entirely overcome my constipation. My friends marvel at my wonderful improvement."—Miss Dorothy Henning, 1442 Grant St., Denver, Colo.

From coast to coast, and from the Gulf to the Great Lakes, Sargon is known and honored. Its fame is based on actual results, not empty promises.

GIRLS ARE BUSY WITH PLANS FOR THEIR PLAY DAY

Girls of Valley Will Compete Here Middle of This Month; Dorothy Weekes President.

Dorothy Weekes was elected president of the Ord high school girls athletic association at an organization meeting held recently. Virginia Vandecar is to be the vice-president, Ellamae Smith, secretary; Alice Anderson, treasurer. More than twenty girls are members of the local association.

Helen Eby, girls physical education director in the Ord schools, says that the Ord association is a member of the Nebraska League of high school girls athletic associations. The Nebraska organization is the second state organization in the United States. Illinois was the first state to organize girls athletics on such a basis and more states are expected to organize soon.

The girls organization is based upon physical attainment and skill rather than competition between different high schools. The program is built for every girl in high school.

All girls in the Ord association will attempt to earn state awards this year, according to Miss Eby. The girls earn points toward awards by participation in different phases of girls athletics. All schools are classified according to their size, equipment for girls athletics, and to whether the physical education director is a full-time teacher or only a part-time physical education director in the schools.

By making six hundred points in the different athletic events, any Ord girl may win a numeral. To make an Ord high school letter, she must make twelve hundred points and to win a state award she must score over sixteen hundred points. The state award is a monogram N on a red background on a six pointed star. By scoring two thousand or more points, the Ord girls may win the state league emblem which is the same as the state award but is in the form of jewelry.

Points are scored according to regular practice hours, passing tests, and training rules obeyed. The work may be done either under organized or unorganized supervision. Miss Eby is to direct the organized Ord program in conjunction with the state association. At a recent state-wide play day

Squadron of Pursuit Planes Swooped Low, Scared His Horses, Relates Elmer Almquist

A squadron of twenty-four army pursuit planes flying fifty feet overhead can make a lot of racket, Elmer Almquist of Central City was telling relatives and friends when he visited here Sunday. Mr. Almquist had an experience with that number of airplanes last Saturday and he doesn't care to repeat it. Saturday morning he was plowing on his farm four miles west of Central City, Mr. Almquist says, when he heard an awful roaring in the sky. Looking up he saw more airplanes than he had ever seen in his life before, all flying low and all coming directly toward him. They were less than fifty feet in the air when they passed overhead, he says. His horses became frightened and nearly ran away and he held at Lincoln where two hundred girls were in attendance, seven Ord high school girls were present. Miss Eby accompanied them. The play day which corresponds somewhat to a high school boys track meet but with no competition was a great success, the Ord girls declare.

If present plans work out, a sectional play day, somewhat similar to the state day held at Lincoln, will be held in Ord in the middle of April in connection with the Loup Valley track meet. All schools in the Loup valley are to be invited, according to Miss Eby, who will have charge of the play day at Ord. At least six schools are expected to attend.

Fairbury and Ord are the only two sectional meets held in Nebraska this year. It is considered an honor to have the state association select Ord for one sectional play day, according to local school officials.

Further plans for the Loup Valley play day are being completed this week. Entries are expected from Arcadia, North Loup, Burwell, Scotia Dannebrog and St. Paul.

Norris Invited to Speak. Senator George R. Norris has been invited to deliver an address at the summer picnic of the Nebraska Club of Southern California to be held July 26 at Bixby Park, Long Beach. Twenty thousand people are expected to attend.

Attends Music Contest. Homing Hautala, director of the Ord band, was in St. Paul last Friday attending a music contest in which nineteen schools participated. Ord musicians do not participate in this sub-district contest but go direct to the district contest to be held in Kearney in about ten days.

Wednesday—This was a missable day in skool for me. I got a cold but cudent stay at home on acct. of ma woddent agree it, and they is nutthing more discomfable than a bad cold when you aint got no handkercheat.

ACHIEVEMENT DAY WILL BE HELD MAY 7th
Club Leaders Decide Date At Extension Lecture Held In Agent's Office.
Valley county women's club leaders, meeting last week at County Agent Dale's office in Ord, studied correct furniture refinishing. Ripah Douglass, state extension leader from the college of agriculture, Lincoln, demonstrated the refinishing. All but one club in the county was represented at the monthly meeting.
Leaders at the meeting decided to have their annual achievement day at Ord on May 7. It is expected that it will be the largest achievement day ever held in this county. Mrs. J. W. McGinnis, Ord, and Mrs. Pearl Mulligan, North Loup, will have charge of preparation for the annual fete day.
Miss Douglass advised leaders last week to use starch and lye in removing old stain and varnish from furniture. She said oxalic acid was the best means of destroying water and oil marks on wood. The acid may be bought at Ord drug stores.

found on the same spot as the jaw and tusk.
The broad flat tusks and the manner in which they were worn by the animal indicates the adaptation of the mastodon to the environment. It is thought that the tusks were used to shovel soft earth, sand and mud, when the elephants nosed about in swamps and pools for aquatic vegetation, hence shovel-tusker. The tusks were embedded in heavy muscular tissue.

HOW THE temperature-viscosity co-efficient OF THE NEW Polarine THE MODERN MOTOR OIL

BETTERS MOTOR PERFORMANCE
The effect of heat and cold on the body of an oil determines its "temperature-viscosity co-efficient."

In the new Polarine you get oil that varies less between zero and the operating heat of the motor than any old process oil.

This means that at all seasons of the year and under all operating conditions, the new Polarine gives more uniform and more dependable protection to your motor.

You get better motor performance and less motor wear. Because the new Polarine deposits less than half as much carbon as old process oils, compression varies less and the oil stays clean longer.

In every respect a premium quality oil—the new Polarine is sold at no advance in price.

Oldtimers: Here's New Candidate For State's Oldest Man
Another candidate for the title, "Nebraska's oldest citizen," has found a place in the collection of prehistoric land mammals in Morrill hall, state museum on the University of Nebraska campus. The lower jaw of a shovel-tusker elephant, unearthed three years ago near Freedom, in Frontier county, has just been placed on display in "Elephant hall."

The shovel-tusker, resident of Nebraska about 50,000 years ago, has been officially baptized the Amebelodon fricki. The jaw and tusk are together nearly seven feet long, and as far as known this is the most massive and largest lower jaw of any land mammal known. The Nebraska specimen is the only one of its kind.
Except for the breaks that were made when the tusk was excavated, the specimen is essentially perfect. The tusks have the whiteness, density and texture lines of ivory. Jaw bones are white and firm, and the great molars of the monster are almost unblemished. One rib and a toe bone were also found on the same spot as the jaw and tusk.

The broad flat tusks and the manner in which they were worn by the animal indicates the adaptation of the mastodon to the environment. It is thought that the tusks were used to shovel soft earth, sand and mud, when the elephants nosed about in swamps and pools for aquatic vegetation, hence shovel-tusker. J. C. PENNEY CO.

ORD, NEBRASKA

passed away at her home in Arcadia, Nebraska, March 26, 1930 at the age of 56 years, 8 months and 6 days. She was united in marriage at Lincoln, Nebraska, to George L. Palmer in 1891 who preceded her in death April 22, 1921. To this union 9 children were born of whom two preceded her in death, Fannie Belle Ervin and Edgar Tyler Palmer. On December 13, 1928 she was united in marriage at Burwell, Nebr., to Henry F. Tucker of Sargent, Nebraska. Sargent had been her home from 1917 until May 1929 when she and Mr. Tucker moved to Arcadia, Nebraska, in which place she lived until the time of her death.

She united with the Christian church at a very early age and was a faithful member and church worker through the remainder of her life.

She leaves to mourn her departure, her husband, Henry F. Tucker of Arcadia, Nebraska, four sons, Percy Palmer of Almeria, Nebraska, Otto Palmer of Bayard, Nebraska, Fay Palmer of Matador, Texas and Robert Palmer of Sargent and three daughters; Mrs. L. W. Provost of Ogden, Utah, Mrs. Henry Olsen of Round Valley, Nebraska, and Mary Palmer of Sargent, Nebraska, eleven grandchildren and three sisters, Mrs. Walter Kellogg of Aurora, Nebraska, Mrs. George Fleming of Denver, Colorado, and Mrs. Thomas Warren of Seattle, Washington, also many other relatives and a host of friends.

Funeral services were in charge of Rev. L. La Verne Jay, pastor of the Methodist church of Sargent and interment was made in the Sargent cemetery. Mrs. Tucker represents the kind of womanhood which is an uplift to her county and any community. Mr. Tucker and the other relatives certainly have the heartfelt sympathy of their many friends of this locality in her untimely death.

Disposes of Residence Property
A deal was consummated recently whereby a finance company of Ord becomes the owner of the quarter block on main street which was formerly owned by Dr. C. D. Langrall.

It is rumored that a filling station is to be erected on the corner and perhaps several tourists cabins will also grace the location. The residence which is now situated on the property will no doubt remain there and Dr. Langrall has been assured that he and his family may occupy it as long as they wish.

Men to Present School Days
Business and professional men of Arcadia will lay aside their dignity and reserve when the ladies of the Methodist church will sponsor the Home Talent Show "School Days." It is to be presented at the church basement on Monday and Tuesday evenings, April 14 and 15.

Not only members of the church but the leading local business men will take part in this reproduction of a program at an old time small town school house a generation ago.

The theme of "School Days" is a program in a small school house which all the children and their parents and various town characters attend, not to mention those more fortunate persons who have gone away from the old home and become famous in the city.

An unusual variety of characters and amusing costumes, such as dainty ruffles and bloomer dresses will help to make this one of the funniest productions of the season. The show is pure comedy from start to finish. A complete list of the cast will be published next week.

The play is presented by the Ruth Jeanette Buttrey Producing Co., of Havre, Montana, and will be directed by a representative of that company.

April has been designated as Child Welfare month.
Three objectives have been established by the National Auxiliary, "A Home for Every Homeless child of a veteran," (2) to give children of veterans of the world war an equal chance with other children, (3) to secure improved and increased facilities for the care and protection of children, thus raising the standard of child welfare generally.

Readers who take the Woman's Home Companion read about the auxiliary and it's work by Mrs. Anna Steese Richardson.
Baker-Franzen
The marriage of Miss Jessie Baker and Floyd Franzen occurred Wednesday March 26th at Ord Nebr. Judge Hollingshead performing the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Baker of North Loup, Nebr., and a grand daughter of Mrs. Nellie Hill of Arcadia. She is a graduate of the North Loup School and also attended college at St. Paul, Nebr.

For a short time this winter she assisted with the duties at the Tucker cafe in Arcadia.
Floyd Franzen is the son of Frank Franzen, well known farmer living north of Arcadia.
Both these young people have many friends in this vicinity who extend to them best wishes for a happy married life.

Cornell-Johns
The many friends of Miss Mildred Cornell and Lawrence Johns were very much surprised this week to learn of their marriage which occurred March 8th at Brewster, Nebr.

Mrs. Johns is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Will Cornell of Broken Bow. She is a graduate of the North Loup high school and also attended college at Wayne, Nebr., for a period of one year. The past two years she has been employed as a school teacher and is at present instructor of the Rosebud school north of Arcadia.

Lawrence is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Johns, prominent farmers of this vicinity. He is well known among his many friends here who join in wishing for him and his bride the very best that life has in store.

Participate in Debating Tournament
The debating teams of the Arcadia high school which are composed of Woodrow Wilson, Charles Jefferies and Dick Whitman of the affirmative team and Max Cruikshank, Harry Smith and Dick Whitman of the negative team participated in the tournament of the West Central district which was held at Grand Island last Friday and Saturday.

The West Central District included the high schools of Grand Island, Wood River, Mason City, Ravenna, Doniphan, St. Paul and Arcadia.
Arcadia defeated Wood River, Doniphan and Mason City in order and received a by in the semifinals, thus going into the finals where they met the experienced team of the Grand Island high school and were defeated Saturday evening.

This is an enviable record when it is considered that this is the first semester of training in debating that any of the students of the Arcadia school have received and to say that it speaks well for all the members of the teams and their instructor, Horace Mott, is putting it mildly.
Dr. R. W. Hille is having the interior of his residence remodeled, which when completed will be one of the most attractive dwelling places in Arcadia.

Two Salmon Recipes Feature This Column

A couple of fine salmon recipes feature the Quiz recipe column this week, just the thing for those who are looking for some good dishes using fish to serve during Lent!

Sometimes it is a little bit hard to find a new and appetizing way to serve fish, but these two seem to be just the thing! Try them!

Cream of Salmon Soup.
1 can of red salmon; remove bone and skin, and flake the meat with a silver fork. Add a quart of whole milk and scald. Season with salt and pepper. Serve with strips of hot French toast and put a sprinkle of grated cheese on top of each bowl of soup.

—Mrs. Ford Shirley, Ord.

Salmon Loaf.
1 can salmon, 6 crackers, 1/2 cup warm water, 1-3 cup butter, 1 small onion chopped, 1/2 teaspoon celery seed, 2 eggs well beaten. Mix the ingredients, season well with salt and pepper. Mold into a loaf and bake half an hour.

—Miss Minnie Holoun, Comstock

And here is a recipe for a meat "Pot Pourri" that would seem to be a dandy, and not too expensive. The savory combination possible between the cheaper cuts of meats and a number of vegetables are supposed to rank among the world's finest dishes, even though their origin is supposed to have been with the peasant peoples of France. Necessity, as the mother of invention, has turned out the best of cookery, you know! Do try this:

Pot Pourri.
1 pound beefsteak cut in cubes, browned in a hot skillet with 3 tablespoons of melted butter until thoroughly cooked. Then add 2 cups diced potatoes, 2 cups carrots and 3 sliced onions, season, cover and steam until cooked. Add water as necessary, stirring frequently.

—Mrs. Ford Shirley, Ord.

And now: Here is a pudding I feel like guaranteeing! It absolutely makes my mouth water!

Cherry Pudding.
This will serve eight persons and is delicious.

Use one quart can of cherries, 2 eggs, 1/2 cup milk, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 2 teaspoons of baking powder, 1 tablespoon of shortening. Drain juice of the cherries, and pour them into a deep baking dish or pan. Add 1 and 1/2 cups of water and one tablespoon of flour which has been made into a paste with water. Sweeten to taste. Stir the eggs, milk, shortening, salt, baking powder and 1-3 cup of sugar together, and add sufficient flour to make it about as stiff as layer dough. This will take from one cup to a cup and a half of flour. Pour over the cherries and bake 30 minutes.

Serve pudding with a sauce made from the juice of the cherries, to which 1/2 cup of water, 1 teaspoon butter and sugar to taste has been added. Bring this to a boil and thicken-it with one heaping tablespoon of cornstarch.

The Burwell Legion boys have rented Riverside Park for the season and have already taken possession. They will retain the management of the pavilion but will sub-let the rest of the park. The first event of the season will be a dance on the evening of April 18.

—Special showing of wash and silk dresses for children, sizes 3 to 14. Priced from $1 to $5.75 at Chase's Toggery.

Touch Lightly The Topic of Hair!

With fear and even more trembling, the Quiz fashion writer will endeavor to touch sufficiently lightly upon a touchy subject... that of hair!

The chief worry of most women at present; one of the principal subjects of conversation and ever-ready topic for argument and disagreement... this is the status of hair this season. For some like it short, some like it long, some like it in-between, but all of them are fussing about "What to do with my hair!"

Of course with the new long swishy, swirly skirts, you just know that wind-blown and sea-breezes and Peter Pans, and all those cuts have gone and are going rapidly as their owners can grow out the necessary hair. For this is a season of femininity and also of individuality. And the boyish looking creature who was so attractive last season has gone where the doodle-bug mourneth for his first-born.

If you would truly be in style, wear a long bob. Not done-up hair. Oh, no. That was talked about, appeared to be here, but is it? Look in the fashion magazines, look at the movie queens, look in the ads... there aren't so many knots on the back of the neck as it once appeared there were going to be! No, the majority of bobs seem to be long, worn back of the ears, more or less curly, but whatever else they are, very womanish and girlish looking. Rather dainty and soft. The sleek head, the oiled waves, the smart tailored look has been left behind, and now it is that softly natural air that your head must wear!

Individuality is also at a premium. Of course there are lots of women to whom straight hair is more becoming than any other kind, although those people sometimes seem to be the last to realize it. And if braids round and round your head become you, wear those. If you are one of those who cling to a short bob--and some very smart women still do--have yours cut just a tiny bit different, just be sure it is flattering to you, that's all.

In fact that is the key-note. Have your hair becoming to you, and if that is just a little different than anyone's else hair, so much the better.

Very little if any shingling in the back is being done to bobbed heads, I might state. Though the back of the head must not look bushy, either, for the shape of the head is still given prominence.

Does all this help you any with your hair problem? I don't know. I hope so.

—Patsy, the Particular.

My Own Column By H. D. Leggett

One of Charley Bowers youngsters who has been studying physiology was directed to write a theme on the human body and the following masterpiece was the result: "The human body consists of the cranium, the thorax and the abdomen cavity. The cranium contains the brains if any and the thorax contains the heart, liver stomach and lights. The abdomen cavity contains the bowels of which there are five, A, E, I, O, and U."

I just can't understand how a man or woman who is violently opposed to Sunday pictures for Ord can justify himself or herself in going to Grand Island to attend the Sunday movies. I believe it is that kind of an example that does more to undo the churches than anything else. I believe there are too many people who want to say what the conduct of others shall be while doing just as they-dampless themselves.

A fellow started in to give me thunder the other day because I accept advertising for the chain stores but I have never heard anyone say a word against the men who rent store buildings to chain stores, about carpenters who build their shelves, about draymen who haul their goods, about the city for furnishing their lights, against the clerks who work for the chain stores, yet if all of these people had rebelled and refused to have anything to do with chain stores how in thunder would I ever have had a chance to sell them advertising in the Quiz. Why single out the Quiz and let all the other previous offenders go scot free?

Next winter when the nice Quiz calendar is given to the subscribers a lot of ladies will look over the recipes and be sorry they didn't send in one or more of their favorites. Many women have told me that they were clipping and keeping them as they are printed each week. I wish a lot more of the ladies would mail in some of their favorites. The woman's page is your page and we want you to help make it interesting.

As this is being written the citizens of Ord are flocking to the polls to cast their votes but no one knows what the results will be. The Sunday movie question seems to be the big question. As I have said before I am willing to abide by the decision of the people and whichever way the voters decide the question I trust that the result will be accepted by the other side and the matter dropped. I am prompted to say this because I heard a prominent Ord citizen say a few days ago that should movies for Sunday carry they would never be allowed to start until a special city election was forced to referendum the question. This, it seems to me, would be a great mistake for it would be putting the people of the city of Ord to considerable expense. I doubt if either side would be so foolish.

There is another question that has been injected into the election that in my judgment should have been decided in the primaries a couple of weeks ago. I did not know until this morning when a voter came to me with a small poster which had been printed on of town, naming a couple of fine citizens for the school board and asking the people to write their names into the ballots today. I can't believe that such a move will get anywhere. I don't know who is responsible for the movement but those who are should have been at one of the caucuses and named their candidates there. The men suggested are both men any citizen could be proud to vote for and their names should have been on the ballot. I can't feel however, that a move originating in some back office and shrouded with secrecy can or should succeed. If it fails as I feel sure it will, I hope it will be a lesson to Ord people to go into the city caucuses in the future and name the tickets openly and above board. I hope the day for such back woods methods are past in Ord. All issues should, in my judgment, be fought out fairly and the majority should not only rule but the officers elected by the majority should have the hearty support of all the people.

And when this is read election will be over, spring is here and we should all get busy cleaning up our places, making necessary improvements setting out flowers and shrubs and making new lawns, to the end that Ord may be the most beautiful town in the Loup Valley again this year.

SENIOR WIN HIGH SCHOOL INDOOR ATHLETIC MEET

Handicapped somewhat by counter-typhoon winds, the annual high school athletic carnival was held Friday evening in the gym. Boxing, wrestling, relay and medicine ball throw were the chief events. Inability of the Junior class to muster enough contestants to form a class team caused the meet to develop into an individual rather than a class tournament. Nevertheless some interesting work was presented in the wrestling and boxing sections.

Pat Stager and Arthur Stoltz staged the most exciting boxing bout of the evening and Stoltz was awarded the decision on points. Glenn and Willard and Melia and Flynn exhibited spirited wrestling matches. Ciemny won the former and Flynn the latter.

In the short relay the seniors were first, freshmen second and sophomores third. In the tug-of-war the sophs bested the freshmen and then the seniors bested a team picked from both soph and freshman groups. Alvin Christensen was high point man in the medicine ball throw. Bud Auble assisted Coach Joe Krejci as meet referee. Figuring from both individual and classes the seniors were all around champions of the meet.

Following spring football practice which closed last week, Coach Joe Krejci will take his athletes into track and field sports. An outdoor inter-class meet will be held Friday afternoon at the fair grounds. On Friday, April 11, Ord will again entertain the Loup Valley high schools in the third annual Loup Valley field and track meet.

A single child had come to bliss each union in the parents' late middle age. The Harris heir, a boy of eight, had been named Calvin in honor of his father's friend, Cal Warren had as nearly returned the compliment as circumstances would permit, and his three-year-old daughter bore the name of Williamette Ann for both father and mother of the boy who was his namesake, and Warren styled her Billie for short.

Each man was as stubbornly set to his new views as he had been in the old. The Harrises came into possession of the Warren's prairie schooner and drove off to the east. The Warrens took over the Three Bar ranch and the little Williamette Ann slept in the tiny bunk built for the son of the Harris household.

For a space of minutes these old pictures occupied the mind of the man on the prairie horse. Instant strings of prairie schooners and ox-bows tided from his mind's eye and he was once more conscious of the red steer with the Three Bar brand that had stirred up the train of reflections. He turned for another glimpse at the distant sign as he headed the paint-horse along the road.

"All that was quite a spell back, Calico," he said. "Old Bill Harris planted the first one of those signs and it served a good purpose then. It's a sight that stands for lack of progress today. Times change, and it's been eighteen years or so since old Bill Harris left."

The road traversed the bench, angled down a side hill to a valley somewhat more than a mile across. The man himself was a stranger to the Three Bar buildings that stood at the upper end of it. Curious eyes peered from the bunk house as he neared it, for the paint-horse and the buckskin were not without fame even if the man himself were a stranger to them all. For the better part of a year the two high-colored horses had been seen on the range—south to the railroad, west to the Idaho line. The man had kept to himself and when seen by approaching riders he had a way of looking on a course that would miss their own. Those who had, out of curiosity, deliberately ridden out to intercept him reported that he seemed a decent sort of citizen willing to converse on any known subject except those concerning himself.

He dropped from the saddle before the bunk house and as he stood in the door he noted half a dozen men lounging on the bunks. This included appraised him of the fact that he had a stranger to sign on for the summer season and that their pay had not yet started, for their pay had not yet started, for their pay had not yet started, for their pay had not yet started.

A tall, lean individual, who sat cross-legged on a bunk, engaged in mending a spur strap, was the first to answer his inquiry for the foreman.

"The Warren is the big hooch of the Three-Bar," he informed. "You'll likely find the boss at the blacksmith shop." The lanky one grinned as the stranger turned back through the litter of log out-buildings, guided by the hissing squeak of rollers and the clang of a sledge on hot iron. Several men pressed close to the windows in anticipation of viewing the newcomer's surprise at greeting the Three Bar boss. But the man did not seem surprised when a young girl emerged from the open door of the shop as he neared it.

She was clad in a gray flannel skirt and black angora chaps. The heavy brown hair was concealed beneath the broad hat that was pulled low over her eyes after the fashion of those who live much in the open. The man removed his hat and stood before her.

"Miss Warren?" he inquired. The girl nodded and waited for him to state his purpose.

"What are the chances of my riding for the Three Bar?" he asked.

"We're full-handed," said the girl. "I'm sorry."

"You'll be breaking out the runda right soon now," he suggested. "I'm real handy round a breaking corral."

"They're all handy at that," she said. Then she noted the two horses before the bunk house and frowned. Her eyes searched the stranger's face and found no fault with it; she liked his level gaze. But she wondered what manner of man this was who had so aimlessly wandered alone for a year and avoided all other men.

"Since you've finally decided to work, how does it happen that you choose the Three Bar?" she asked.

then flushed under his eyes as she remembered that so many men had wished to ride for her brand more than for another, their reasons in each case the same.

"Because the Three Bar needs a man who has proved this country and gathered a few points about what's going on," he returned.

"As for the information is for sale to any brand that hires you!" said buildings on a tour or inspection, and the girl saw him stand long in one spot before the solid log cabin, now used as a storeroom for odds and ends, that had been the first one erected on the Three Bar and had sheltered the Harrises before her father took over their brand.

CHAPTER II

THE Three Bar girl sat looking from the window of her room, the living room of the ranch house, one end of which was curtained off to serve as sleeping quarters. The new man was still prowling about the place, inspecting every detail, and she wondered if he could tell her anything which would prove of benefit in her fight to stop the shrinkage of the Three Bar herds and help her to face the drastic changes that were reshaping the policies of the range country.

The Three Bar home range was one of many similar spots where the inhabitants held out for a continuance of the old order of things. All through the West, from the Mexican border to the Canadian line, a score of bitter feuds were in progress, the principles involved differing widely, according to conditions and locality. There existing laws—and certain clans that denied the justice of each one, holding out against its enforcement and making laws of their own. In some spots the paramount issue was over the relative grazing rights of cows and sheep, fanning a fire of hatred between those whose occupations were in any way concerned with these rival interests.

In others the stockmen ignored the homestead law which proclaimed that settlers could file their rights on land. As always before, wherever men resorted to lawlessness to protect their fancied rights, the established order of things had broken down, all laws disregarded instead of the single one originally involved.

In many communities these clashes between rival interests had furnished opportunity for rustlers to build up in power and practically take the range. Each clan was outside the law in some one particular and could not have recourse to it against those who violated it in some other respect; could not appear against neighbors in one matter lest their friends in likewise against themselves in another. This attitude had enabled the wild bunch to saddle themselves on certain communities and ply their trade without restraint. Rustling had come to be a recognized occupation to be reckoned with; the identity of the thieves were often known, and they visited from ranch to ranch, whose owners possibly were honest themselves but had friends among the outlaws for whom the lathering was always out. The rustlers' tool was in the nature of a tribute levied against every brand and the various outfits expected certain losses from this source. It was good business to recoup these losses at another's expense, and thus neighbor preyed on neighbor. It was a case of dog eat dog, and the slogan ran, "Catch your calves in a basket or some other thief will put his iron on them first."

It was to this pass that the Three Bar home range had come in the last five years. As Billie Warren watched the new hand moving slowly toward the bunk house she pondered over what manner of man this could be who had played a single-handed game in the hills for ORD PROGRAM COMMENDED BY AUTHOR AND STATE SUPERINTENDENT. Professor Fred M. Gregg of Nebraska Wesleyan University faculty and author of the state course of study in Character Education and State Supt. Charles W. Taylor spent a short time in the Ord schools Monday. Both visitors were speakers on the program of the County School Boards Assn. sponsored by Miss Clara McClatchey.

While visiting on current school conditions the subject of Character Education was introduced and the Ord work in that line was presented. Both Superintendent Taylor and Professor Gregg were greatly interested in the local program and expressed themselves as being well pleased with the attempts made here to follow out the spirit as well as the letter of the law. Professor Gregg requested copies of the Ord high school code and the machinery used in building the code for latter use in his character studies.

THIS YOUNG LADY HIGHLY ENDORSES NEW KONJOLA

Run Down Condition Transformed Into One Of Glorious And Abundant Health.

"Konjola certainly made a different person out of me," said Miss Verna Baker, 407 West Eighth Street, Waterloo. "Before I began taking it I was in a very weak, run-down condition. In fact my condition almost amounted to a nervous breakdown. Intense suffering was caused by severe headaches that centered over my eyes. My complexion was yellow, and at times I was afflicted with dizziness until I could hardly stand.

"But Konjola solved my health problems. It restored me to the radiant health a girl of my age should have. I feel fine now, as lively and energetic as ever, and I bothered no longer with nervousness. I look as much better as I feel, as the yellowness in my complexion has cleared away. Dizzy spells and headaches are things of the past. I sleep soundly and eat heartily."

Taken regularly for six or eight weeks, Konjola will work wonders that will astonish those who suffer from the stubborn ills of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels and from rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness.

Konjola is sold in Ord at McLain Sorenson drug store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

Tracing and mapping early trails through the state attracts another student. Nebraska was the crossing ground for most of the emigrants to the Golden West, to the gold strikes, Oregon and Pacific. History of all states west of Nebraska must begin with the point where its early settlers drove ox teams along the Platte, fought Indians and cut the Oregon Trail.

Students Dig Into Records For Early Nebraska History

Dry years in Nebraska, the founding of early white settlements on the Missouri, government relations with the Indians of the plains, and the covered wagon trails through the state are a few of the research problems being developed by University of Nebraska students of western history. Like stories of blizzards and prairie fires, so have the tales of the dry nineties in Nebraska become popular. Students are searching the records and newspapers of the period for accounts of rain-makers who toured the country. One, Melbourne by name, did a good business in the drought-stricken areas.

almost a year. We neagued with the wild bunch, with the law, or was he merely an eccentric who might have some special knowledge that would help her save the Three Bar from extinction?

The stranger picked up his bed roll and disappeared through the bunkhouse door as she watched him.

The lean man who had first greeted him jerked a thumb toward an unoccupied bunk.

"Pay roll?" he inquired; then as the new man nodded, "I'm most generally referred to as Lanky," he offered tentatively. "Evans is the rest of it."

The stranger hesitated appreciably; then:

"Harris will do all right for me—cal for every day," he returned and introductions had been effected. "I was up to each man to use his own individual method of making his name known to the new comers."

EARL HANSON Manager

There had been much speculation about the brand worn by the two horses. The hands were a drifting lot, gathered from almost as many points as there were men present, but none of them knew the brand.

A dark, thin-faced man with a slender black mustache was the first to voice a query, not from the fact that his curiosity was large—it was perhaps less than that of any other man in the room—but for the reason that he chose to satisfy it at once. Morrow's personality was cold and bleak, inviting no close friendships or intimacies; uncommunicative to a degree that had impressed itself on his companions of the last few days, and they looked up, mildly surprised at his abrupt interrogation.

"Box L," he commented. "Where does that brand run?"

"Southwest Kansas and Oklahoma," the stranger answered.

"Squatter country," Morrow said. "Early third section under fence."

Harris sat looking through the door at the valley spread out below, and after a moment he answered the thrust as if he had been long prepared for it.

"Yes," he said. "And that's what all range country will come to in a few more years; farm what they can and graze what they can't—and the sooner the better for all concerned." He waved an arm down the valley. "Good alfalfa dirt going to waste down there—overrun with sage and only growing enough grass to keep ten cows to the quarter. If that would grow enough to winter five thousand head."

This remark led to the old debate that was never-ending in the cow country, breaking out afresh in every bunk and exhaustively discussed.

Evans regarded Harris curiously as he deliberately provoked the argument, then sat back and listened to the various ideas of the others as the discussion became heated and general.

"It's a settled fact that the outfit that have put in hay are better off," Evans said. "But there's a dozen localities like this, a dozen little civil wars going on right now where the inhabitants are so mullish that they lay their ears and fight their own interests by upholding a flimsy prejudice that was good for twenty years ago, but is a dead issue today."

BARTZ CHARGES ORILLA MARRIED HIM FOR MONEY

Did Get Part of It, He Says, and He Wants It Back; Wife Has Temper, He Complains.

Intimating that his wife is a "gold digger" and married him solely for the purpose of securing his money and personal property, Paul Bartz of North Loup has filed answer to the divorce petition of Orilla Mae Bartz.

In her petition Mrs. Bartz claimed that her husband had refused to provide a home for her. He claims this statement is false—that he has repeatedly offered to provide a home but that she has refused to live with him.

Mrs. Bartz has repeatedly refused to be a wife to him until he would trust her by putting property in her name, he claims, and though he did this her demands kept growing more insistent and she still refused to live with him.

She tried to influence him against his relatives and friends; tried to manage his business affairs for him; and often humiliated him in the presence of business associates by saying he was incapable of managing his own affairs and she had to do it for him, he claims.

Mrs. Bartz is a woman of ungovernable temper and about a week before filing suit for divorce she struck her husband with her fist and said: "— you, the next time I'll hit you with a brick!" according to his answer.

On another occasion she struck him with a dish rag, he claims, and she often used profane and indecent language towards him, calling him "jackass" and "dirty pup."

Soon after they were married Mrs. Bartz induced him to give her $4,200 to pay off a mortgage on real estate she owned in Iowa, he claims, and subsequently he gave her large sums of money to pay for taxes and repairs on this property; also money to pay installments on furniture in her house in Iowa.

She induced him to borrow from A. H. Jackman the sum of $8,000 to pay off a mortgage held by Ches Chinn on a farm owned by her brother, Thearon W. Beehrle, according to Mr. Bartz's answer.

He induced her to have this sum to pay off the mortgage, then she got him to deed the land to her; then she refused to pay Mr. Chinn the money owing him and retained both land and mortgage, according to her husband. The money is now held by Maude Jackman, clerk of the district court pending settlement of an action filed by Mr. Chinn.

His wife induced him to buy a Ford car and license it in her name, Mr. Bartz alleges, and by threats, nagging and coaxing she secured large sums of money from him from time to time, he says.

He was inexperienced with women of her type and believed all she told him, Mr. Bartz claims in his petition. He knew his wife but six weeks before they were married, he says, and he is now confident that she married him solely for his money and has since devoted all of her efforts to getting as much of it as possible.

His answer petitions the court to deny Mrs. Bartz a divorce and instead give it to him. Since all of his property was accumulated by his own efforts he does not think Mrs. Bartz is entitled to any of it and he thinks it should be decreed that she return to him all personal property and money he gave her, including the Ford car. He also asks that the Thearon Beehrle farm be decreed to him and he be authorized to collect the rental from it; also that Mrs. Bartz be ordered to give him a mortgage on her property in Iowa as security for money she got from him to pay for it.

C. OF C. OPENS MEMBERSHIP DRIVE MONDAY

Winning Team To Eat Chicken, Losers Beans at Banquet For Members Wednesday.

Beginning next Monday morning at 9 o'clock, the Ord Chapter of Commerce will put on an intensive three-day drive for members that will end Wednesday evening in a banquet for all members.

Plans of the chapter for the year's work are beginning to take form. The organization will be purely a business one designed to boost Ord. Among the projects announced for the year is a plan to open up a road through the middle of Springdale township to connect with a road being built by Greeley county.

It is thought this road will open up a new trade territory for Ord. Another of the club's projects will be to place highway signs advertising Ord on all roads for twenty-five miles around.

Another project as tentatively outlined is to sponsor a series of "trade days" designed to increase Ord's trading territory. Several other equally as beneficial to business interests of the city have been tentatively outlined.

The chapter will operate this year on a dues basis of $12 per year and it is hoped that 150 members can be secured. This will raise $1,800 which is about the sum needed by the chapter to carry on its program.

The membership committee appointed to arrange plans for the membership drive Monday are E. C. Leggett, C. A. Bowers, R. J. Stoltz, Ed Seyler and A. L. Hill. Members are requested to meet at 3 p. m. today at the C. of C. rooms to make final plans.

You Should Trade at Home!

ABRAHAM LINCOLN, wisest of our Presidents, was credited with saying: "If we buy goods in England, that country will have the money and we will have the goods. But if we buy our goods at home, we will have the goods and the money too."

This great truth applies to local as well as national conditions.

If we buy ours in Chicago, we have the goods and Chicago has the money, which may have come back to us. But if we buy our goods in our home city, we have both the goods and the money. A considerable portion of the money remains in circulation in our home city, paying taxes, charities, rentals, wages, farm products, building operations, and so on.

The most prosperous community is that having in circulation the greatest amount of money per capita. The way to maintain that circulation is to promote the patronage of home stores, and home industries in the highest degree possible.

GEORGE WORK, Prop.

THE SETTLING OF THE SAGE

By HAL G. EVARTS

THE STORY

CHAPTER I.—At the Warren ranch, the "Three Bar," on the fringe of the "cow country," a stranger applied for work as a cowboy. He was engaged by the owner, Williamette Ann Warren—known to all as "Billie." The girl's father, Cal Warren, had been the original owner of the place. The question whether the territory is to remain "cow country" or be opened to settlement is a troublesome one.

"And why is it dead today?" Morrow demanded. "And not as good as it always was?"

"Only a hundred or so different reasons," Evans returned indifferently. "Then beefcops brought three dollars a head and they're worth three times that now; then you bought a brand on the hoof, come as they run, for round five dollars straight through, exclusive of calves; now it's based at ten on the round-up tally. In those days a man could better afford to let part of his cows winter kill than to raise the whole of them through—among other things. These days he can't."

"And have your water holes fenced?" Morrow said. "As soon as you let the first squatter light."

"The government has prohibited fencing of water holes necessary to the adjacent range," Harris cut in. "If that valley was mine I'd have put it in hay this long time back."

"But it wasn't yours," Morrow pointed out.

"No; but it is now, or at least a part of it is," Harris said. "I picked up that school section that lays across the valley and filed on a home quarter, that butts up against the river."

"He set gazing indifferently out the door as if unconscious of the dead silence that followed his remark. More men had drifted in till nearly a dozen were gathered in the room."

"That's never been done out here—buying school sections and filing squatter's rights," Morrow said at last. "This is cow country and will never be anything else."

"Good cow country," Harris agreed. "And it stands to reason it could be made better with a little help."

"Whenever you start helping a country with fence and plow you ruin it for cows," Morrow stated. "I know!"

"It always loomed up in the light of a good move to me," the newcomer returned. "One of us has likely read his signs wrong."

"Here's some signs round here you better read," Morrow said. "They were posted for such as you."

"It appears like I'd maybe made a bad selection then. I'm very about that," Harris deprecated in a negligent tone that belied his words. "It's hard to tell just how it will pan out."

"Not so very hard—if you can read," the dark man contradicted. The newcomer's gaze returned from down the valley and settled on Morrow's face.

"Do you run a brand of your own—so's you'd stand to lose a dollar if every foot of range was fenced?" he inquired.

"What are you trying to get at now?" Morrow demanded.

"Nothing much—now, I've already got," Harris said. "A man's interest lays on the side where his finances are most concerned."

"What do you mean by that?" Morrow insisted.

"You're good at predicting—maybe you're an expert at guessing, too," Harris returned. And suddenly Evans laughed as if something had just occurred to him.

Morrow glanced at him without turning his head, then fell silent, his expression unchanged.

A chunky youngster stood in the door and bent an approving gaze on the big Pinto as he swung out across the pasture lot. The boy's face was small and quizzical, a shaggy mop of lavy hair hanging so low upon his forehead that his mild blue eyes peered forth from under the fringe of it and gave him the air of a surprised terrier, which effect had gained him the title of Bangs.

"I bet the little paint-horse could make a man swing and rattle to set up in his middle, once he started to act up," he said.

"Calico wouldn't know how to start," Harris said. "A horse, inside his limitations, is what his breaker makes him. I never favored the idea of breaking a horse to fight you every time you climb him. My horses are gentle-broke."

"But you have to be able to top off just any kind of a horse," Bangs objected.

"That don't hinder a man from gentling his own string," Harris returned.

Bangs turned his surprised eyes on Harris and regarded him intently as if striving to fathom a viewpoint that was entirely new to him.

"Why, it don't, for a fact," he said at last. "Only I just never happened to think of it like that before."

Morrow laughed and the boy flushed at the disagreeable ring of it. Morrow's face wore none of the active malignancy that stamps the features of those uncontrolled desperadoes who kill in a flare of passion; rather it seemed that the were wolves who preyed upon the interests of others, and there was not a doubt that the father so the man before her had preyed upon her interests through the sentiment of her parent; no other possible theory could account for the strange disposal of his property, the date and signed text, the exact time of his visit to the Harries.

It's wise to choose a SIX!

After all, it is a perfectly simple matter to decide which automobile to buy in today's market. Only two questions must be answered to your satisfaction—

First: Which car gives the most for my money?

Second: Which car represents the soundest investment in satisfaction and pride of ownership?

Six-Cylinder Motor

In buying a low-priced car consider the following facts:

It is wise to choose a six-cylinder motor—for six cylinders are necessary to take out vibration and roughness. Six-cylinder smoothness will save the motor, the chassis, the body, the passengers and the driver.

The Chevrolet is a six. And yet it sells at a price that anyone can afford to pay.

This very low-priced car lasts longer, not only because of fine materials and oversize parts, but also because it is a six. Its big, smooth, 50-horsepower six-cylinder engine is always "taking it easy." There is no feeling of strain.

With all its six-cylinder smoothness and power the New Chevrolet Six uses no extra gasoline or oil. Efficient design makes this possible—overhead valves—high compression power from any fuel—very latest carburetor—close-fitting, long-wearing pistons—crankcase ventilation—air cleaner. You can really have extreme economy and still satisfy your ideal of truly modern transportation.

Chevrolet economy is also the mark of Chevrolet sincerity in manufacture. To illustrate:

Chevrolet valves are readily accessible and adjustable. This saves replacing valves, and also makes it possible to preserve the efficiency of the engine.

Fully Enclosed Brake

A similar example is found in Chevrolet's molded brake lining—reducing the necessity of frequent replacement, and consequent expense.

Furthermore, there is a rear axle inspection plate on the Chevrolet.

This makes it unnecessary to take the axle apart to examine or clean it.

The new Chevrolet Six is full of such evidence that true motor car economy comes from modern advancement and refinement.

Like the finest cars, the Chevrolet Six provides the comfort and protection of four springs controlled by hydraulic shock absorbers. They are mounted lengthwise, in the direction of car travel, and self-adjusting spring shackles maintain quiet.

Delco-Lorain Shock Absorbers

With low suspension and extra wheelbase, the Chevrolet Six has excellent proportions.

Its impressive front view is distinguished by the genuine honeycomb radiator, another mark of modern cars.

Safety Gasoline Tank

The gasoline tank is in the rear, for safety and finer appearance.

Chevrolet beauty instantly says "Body by Fisher"—costly car style, with the permanent quiet of Fisher composite steel-and-wood construction.

Body by Fisher also gives you a genuine non-glare windshield, adjustable driver's seat, more space, deeper and wider cushions, clearer vision, finer fabrics and fittings.

There is just as much extra value everywhere in the car. BY ANY STANDARD the Chevrolet Six is the greatest value in the low-price field.

It is wise to choose the Chevrolet Six with its six-cylinder valve-in-head motor... with full scientific equipment... with its Body by Fisher... with four long semi-elliptic springs, long wheelbase, low suspension, rear-mounted gas tank, honeycomb radiator and all the other features of this day and age.

If I was in Michigan at this season of the year I would try and have a mess of cowslip greens. I wonder how many of the readers of this column ever ate them. We used to cook them with a chunk of salt pork and while I like all kinds of greens I never found any that tasted as good as the cowslip greens that my mother cooked when I was a boy. Yes, my boyish appetite might account for my thinking so. I wonder if the middle of May is too late for cowslip greens in Michigan. The forty years that have passed since I enjoyed them made me forget just how early they were ready but I do remember vividly how I jumped from bog to bog in the swamp while gathering them.

The size of the majority for Sunday picture shows was a surprise to me and I don't think there is any danger that anyone will even consider asking to have the people vote on it again very soon. I don't see any occasion for any great delay on the part of the city council in passing a new ordinance to follow out the wishes of the people as expressed at the polls. I was rather surprised that the council didn't fix the job Friday night at the regular meeting.

I am glad to know that it is the idea of the local baseball management to use only home players this year on the Ord team. I have interest in the games played will be increased among the general public, the expense will be much less and there should be no danger of a deficit at the end of the season, as has been the case some years.

John Haskell dropped in Sunday evening when he came past the office and saw me sitting at the desk, and told me that his father was better. He told me a few days before that his father was ill, I am glad to know that Mr. Haskell is improving again and that he will continue to look after his farming this year. John understands that after this season his parents will quit the farm and return to town, probably Lincoln where they still own their home.

Joe Rohla is growing a choice plant for me, a cutting from one that he had admired over one of these days soon. Now if a few friends would follow his good example I would soon have an imposing array of house plants at the Quiz office.

When I read last week that Gus Beuchler and his associates had sold the Grand Island Independent to a party of strangers I felt sad, for not only has the regular evening visit of the Independent come to be a looked for event, my personal acquaintance with Gus its editor and several of his associates has made it doubly interesting. I have since been told that Mr. Beuchler will remain permanently as editor of the Independent and that, too, will be good news to all its readers. The Independent is one of the best dailies of the state, not as large as some it is true, but it has been making rapid strides in gaining new readers and has come to be regarded as a home necessity in thousands of Central Nebraska homes within a radius of 150 miles of Grand Island. I am assured that no backward step will be taken by the new management and that we may look for the Independent to continue to grow and improve.

My garden is all plowed and harrowed; a supply of the finest garden seeds have been purchased from a local dealer and as soon as the Missus gets time to plant them I am ready to show her where and how and we can look forward to having a supply of garden sass in due time. I looked the strawberry bed over Sunday and while the plants are starting fine, I am grieved to see how much faster the weeds are growing and I hate to think of the amount of elbow grease it is going to take to keep them under control. The berries that we expect to get, though, will be worth the effort.

No matter what daily paper you want the Quiz will be glad to order it for you and if you are a merchant, no matter what you want to advertise, our Meyer Both advertising service is ready to serve you and there is some picture that will properly illustrate your message to the public. FROM CENSUS SUPERVISOR FIFTH DISTRICT OF NEBR.

H. A. WEBBERT—KEARNEY Enumerators Begin Their Task.

More than one hundred thousand enumerators over the United States started to work bright and early Wednesday morning, April 2 on the big task of "counting" every man, woman and child living as of April 1, 1930. One hundred and twenty-five men and women in the Fifth District of Nebraska joined this force of enumerators and no doubt many readers have already been called upon and have supplied the necessary information. Enumerators will complete their work as rapidly as possible and District Supervisor offices will compile and forward complete returns to Washington.

Individuals Responsible. Every man and woman should be vitally interested in having complete returns made for their respective town, county or district. Certainly no citizen wants partial returns for any locality, and everyone called upon should give the enumerator prompt and accurate information. If you know of someone temporarily away from home—call your enumerator. If you know of someone maintaining residence in your community, but living elsewhere—tell your enumerator. If you were away from home when the enumerator called, be sure and fill in the Individual Census Slip which was left and have ready for the next call of the enumerator.

Release of Census Returns. Of course every community is anxious to have its census figures released. District Supervisors are just as anxious to release them but cannot do so until every person in the community has furnished the enumerator with all information required. It is the plan of the District Supervisor to release tentative returns starting about April 15—but this will depend upon the cooperation given enumerators so they may complete their work and make final report to the Supervisor's office. Think this over, Mr. and Mrs. Citizen—do you want the census of your community accurate? Of course you do. Do you want to know as soon as possible the numbers of persons in your community? Of course you do. Here are the ways to accomplish both:

Give all information required when the enumerator calls the first time.

If away from home when enumerator calls—fill in the blank which was left and deliver to your enumerator at once.

Ask your neighbors, friends and acquaintances if they have been interviewed by the enumerator.

Inform your enumerator of persons in your community temporarily away from home.

Don't wait until figures are released and then say census was not accurately taken—do all you can now to see that every person in your community answers the required questions.

If you, as a citizen, will do these things your District Supervisor will be able to release tentative census figures within reasonable time.

"KONJOLA GETS ALL CREDIT FOR ENDING MY ILLS"

This Man Strongly Praises New Medicine That Ended His Suffering.

"How I wish I had known of Konjola long ago," said Mr. Oscar Branne, Fisher Hotel, Kenosha. "For two years I tried everything I heard of in an attempt to gain relief from constipation and indigestion that made life miserable. About two hours after eating, my stomach would load up with gas and my breath would come in spasms. Nothing I ate agreed with me. Terrible headaches and sickening dizzy spells were the result of poor elimination.

OSCAR BRANNE.
"The many sincere endorsements of Kenosha people led me to try Konjola, and this splendid medicine lost no time in going to the root of my ailments. Constipation was quickly overcome. Dizzy spells and headaches vanished and daily my appetite improved. In a month, Konjola banished all my ills and restored my health. I advise all who suffer as I did to give Konjola a fair trial and let it prove its merit.

Thus Konjola, works, quickly yet thoroughly. One does not have to wait long for relief when Konjola is given a chance, but for complete and lasting results six to eight bottles are recommended.

Konjola is sold in Ord, Nebr., at the McLain-Sorensen drug store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

The Famous John Deere No. 999 Corn Planter

Carefully tested and graded seed, good soil, thorough cultivation, and right weather conditions will give you a fine crop of corn—PROVIDED the corn has been properly planted. But all these favoring factors can't produce a big yield if an inaccurate planter is used.

First, make sure your planting gives you a full start towards a maximum yield. You can do it through the uniform, accurate planting of a John Deere No. 999 Corn Planter—there are no skips or over-planting.

If you'll call on us next time you're in town we can show you just how this planter operates with such remarkable accuracy and how, without stopping the team, you can change it to drop two, three, or four kernels to the hill, as desired. Safety fertilizer attachment and pea attachment can be furnished.

Come in and see the 999.

THE fastidious woman isn't changing her ideals with her skirt length. She favored Humming Bird Hosiery when all their fineness and richness of color were flaunted full length before the world. She favors them still in their newer role of semi-underthings—daintily fine, smartly colorful as ever.

Tiny stitches, firmly knit, not only create a sheer, even fabric, but also account to a large extent for the remarkable wearing quality of Humming Bird Hosiery.

The community was greatly excited Tuesday morning when a fire occurred at the Louie Fuss farm. Henry Geweke and Miss Sonkinos were the puss home helping brand cattle. A small fire was started to heat the irons not far away but on account of the strong wind some sparks were blown over to a haystack a short distance away. At once measures were taken to put out the fire, but it spread rapidly and soon it was necessary for help to be summoned. In a short time neighbors from all around gathered to help in extinguishing the fire. They worked hard for several hours and at last succeeded in putting out the fire. EGGS MAY DROP TO 12c A DOZEN, SAYS AG EXPERT Prospects Poor for Increase in Near Future; Hatch Season Expected Close Early.

By GEORGE ROUND, JR.

Egg prices are low over the state now and prospects for higher prices are not expected soon, Jack Redditt, poultry specialist at the College of Agriculture, told me recently. He believes that they will go as low as twelve cents a dozen over the state with but little above that in Lincoln and Omaha.

Right now, many Valley county farmers are probably losing money producing eggs. Without doubt there are many farmers over the state keeping flocks of two or three hundred hens who are putting their time in for nothing. Low prices have made profits for the ordinary egg producer null and void.

However, there are those producers who sell quality eggs that seem to have their price held up to near normal. There are egg producers near Lincoln that are getting a fair price for their eggs; a good price in comparison to the market price paid for eggs. This is probably because they are handling a quality product and thus are able to command a good price.

What housewife wouldn't rather pay a few cents more for good fresh, uniform eggs. Surely she would prefer this type of eggs over the ordinary market eggs, many of which are unrefresh and dirty. It is in the centers of consumption that this type of a quality egg product will be able to demand the price where the ordinary eggs will be selling but for a few cents a dozen.

The entire poultry situation seems in a turmoil right now. Orders for chicks are much ahead of the normal season and it is anticipated that the hatching season will close earlier this year than usual.

Perhaps many local farmers would be better off if they sold their hens, keeping just enough to supply eggs for their family use. This is probably what will happen if the price of eggs continues to slump.

Avoid Loss By Buying Good Alfalfa Seed, Advises Stewart

"Valley county farmers can largely avoid losses and disappointments due to use of alfalfa seed with an unknown history if certain precautions will be taken in buying seed," P. H. Stewart of the agricultural college, Lincoln, told me recently in discussing the alfalfa seed situation for the coming season.

Stewart told me that not all good looking seed is necessarily good seed. He referred to tests at the Nebraska Experiment Station and over that state where some lots of seed have killed out practically 100 percent while the others of a more hardy nature have survived in excellent shape. Definite and reliable information as to where the seed was raised should be required of the seller of the seed, Stewart told me. He said much unhardy seed in the past has come from foreign countries and southwestern states.

The University of Nebraska man told me that Valley county farmers have several ways to go about getting seed of a known origin. They may ask for verified seed which has been checked by the U. S. D. A. to show its origin. The tag on verified seed gives the state in which the seed is grown. The seed should come from states north or west of Nebraska, Stewart advises.

"Valley county farmers and other farmers in the state can for the first time this year buy 'hardy approved alfalfa seed' which carries the tag of the Nebraska Crop Growers Association. Such seed must come from fields at least eight years old and many of these producing hardy approved seed are as old as 25 years," Stewart went on to say.

He further said that the seed must be inspected in the field for weeds and sweet clover. The seed must be up to certain specifications. This year there are between three and four carloads of this seed available through regular seedsmen and also may be bought direct from the growers. County agents and the college of agriculture can refer farmers wanting this kind of reliable sources.

Stewart says that for Nebraska conditions, northern alfalfa or the common variety has been found satisfactory, according to careful tests. Grimm or Cossack are particularly hardy, he explained to me.

"When buying either of these

SOIL FERTILITY BIGGEST FACTOR IN CORN YIELDS

Legumes Profitable, Agronomist Points Out; Listed Corn Uses Less Moisture.

"We have found after five years experience in corn yield contests that soil fertility is the biggest factor in increasing corn yields, thereby reducing the cost per bushel. A certain number of bushels are always necessary to pay for the cost of production. The more bushels above this the greater the profits," D. L. Gross, assistant state extension agent in agronomy at the college of agriculture, Lincoln, said recently in discussing the results of the corn-yield contests in the past.

In maintaining and increasing soil fertility, Nebraska farmers are finding the use of legumes profitable, Gross explained. He said sweet clover, alfalfa, and red clover are important ones.

Results of contests in the past have shown that the high men grew their corn on land which had recently been in legumes. The low men grew their corn on land which had no legumes for thirteen years.

Gross said the high men in the contest made a profit per acre of $24 while the low men made but $9 per acre.

"Eastern Nebraska farmers and those in the irrigated sections are finding sweet clover plowed under in May of the second year adds about 75 percent of the fertility that would be added by leaving the sweet clover grow for the full two years. Experience has shown that the use of sweet clover for two years on corn land will often double or even treble the corn yield the following year," Gross says.

Gross declared that land which has been in alfalfa for several years, then plowed and put to corn, is often very droughty. The corn often "fries" producing a poor yield.

Two varieties, insist on getting genuine certified seeded seed carrying the tag of some state crop association or the state department of agriculture," Stewart advises Valley county farmers.

Beware of the so-called "affidavit grimm" is Mr. Stewart's advice to local farmers.

he stated. The greater part of this difficulty is due to the fact that corn makes a tremendous growth and requires an unusually large quantity of water. The college of agriculture man said this could be overcome to some extent by plowing the ground and planting corn with a lister. Lister corn makes less rapid growth in the early part of the season than surface planted corn. Moisture is thus conserved and available to the corn plant in the dry hot season.

In summing up the corn yield contest in the past five years, Gross said every year Nebraska farmers are producing their corn with fewer hours and man labor. A few years ago the average farmer was spending ten hours of labor per acre. Today he spends but six hours per acre, Gross pointed out.

CHOLERA IS BIG CAUSE OF SWINE LOSS SAYS VANES

New Circular By Pathologist At Ag College Gives Cause And Cure of Hog Diseases.

"A rather dense swine population, mainly divided into large herds on small areas of land in recent years has brought about conditions favorable for disease propagation," Dr. L. Van Es, head of the animal pathology department of the College of Agriculture, declares in his new extension circular upon swine sanitation which is off the press today.

In discussing hog diseases, he declares hog cholera and type of environment are the two big factors affecting the presence of swine diseases.

In his new circular, Dr. Van Es says that hog cholera is as yet the disease that causes the greatest part of swine losses. This condition exists despite the fact that practically every farmer knows the disorder and that it can successfully be controlled by immunization. The smaller the number of cholera-susceptible swine on farms, the less will this disease play a part in losses by death, Van Es says.

"Vaccination well ahead of the period in which cholera is apt to show its highest presence, is the only means of preventing cholera losses. Neglecting to vaccinate during years when disease shows a reduced prevalence contributes to make extensive outbreaks possible in following years," Dr. Van Es declares in his circular.

Rickets, bronchitis, pneumonia, parasites, bull nose, pig typhus, joint infections, and other diseases are commonly associated with faults of environment or inherent constitutions. Most of these diseases are more or less confined to pigs and younger swine and probably account for the larger part of the death losses among these age groups, the circular says.

Dr. Van Es says that rickets and bone-softening are primarily caused by the lack of lime-phosphorus compounds in the feed or by the inability of the animals to assimilate and utilize them. He says sunshine helps cure the disease.

He declared that pig pneumonia is associated with environmental faults such as low temperatures; wet, cold floors; and dark filthy pens. Inadequate or faulty feeding is also a cause of the disease, he says. To this must be added the action of certain bacteria.

In discussing preventive measures for pneumonia, Van Es says the establishment of safe environment is the principal factor. Pig pens should be clean, dry, and warm but also well ventilated, he goes on to say. Artificial heat may be applied for unreasonably early farrowed pigs but care must be taken not to overheat them.

In a swine sanitation program, the doctor declares that the ground occupied by swine should be abandoned periodically. A systematic rotation of lots and pastures has a definite place in any scheme of swine sanitation, he declares in his bulletin.

Drainage is an important factor in establishing clean yards. Surface water accumulations are always a menace to animal health and mud wallows, even concrete ones, are a clearing house for various infections. Subsoil drainage is particularly valuable because it promotes the perpendicular flow of water and gets rid of undesirable organisms and substances.

In further discussing swine sanitation in his new circular, Dr. Van Es says that attention must be given to food and water. Drinking water, he says should always be provided in special clean containers. Feeding from the ground should be avoided he says.

These circulars may be secured in a few days from Carl Dale, county agent.

BACK FORTY

By J. A. Kovanda

The Nebraska state high school agricultural contests are conducted each spring under the auspices of the agricultural college. Any high school in the state may enter. No student can compete twice in the same contest. The same eligibility rules are observed as for athletic contests.

Beginning last year the contest was split into two divisions. Schools in eastern Nebraska competed at Lincoln and schools in the western half of the state contested at the North Platte sub-station. 25 or 30 teams competed at each place. The contest was divided because the number of entrants was too large to accommodate at one place.

It will never be possible to hold district elimination contests in agriculture, due to the difficulty of making them representative, and because of the element of chance, which is sometimes a factor in winning.

The first place team from the Lincoln contest represents Nebraska at the Kansas City Royal Live Stock Show. The victorious livestock judging team from North Platte represents Nebraska in the interstate contest at the Denver National Livestock Exposition. Winners in dairy cattle judging, poultry judging, and public speaking contests at North Platte, may compete against eastern teams at Lincoln for the right to represent the state in national contests of a similar nature. This purpose the Lincoln contests are held a week later.

The national winners of vocational agriculture livestock judging contests are termed the national champions. The winners in national 4-H club judging contests also call themselves national champions. Then there are the winners of national inter-collegiate contests, making in all, three different national champions. It has never been determined which of the three is really supreme, but the college team would undoubtedly come out on top if they ever met. As the 4-H club champions decline the challenge of vocational agriculture champions to compete against them, there is no way of telling which of these is best, although the average vocational agriculture judging team receives a great deal more training.

Agricultural contests develop boys' self-confidence, and test their skill and training. They give the boys a wholesome adventure, give them new contacts with other boys, and are an indirect means of showing the work of experiment stations. Some instructors take their entire classes to these contests.

Other schools "specialize," and pick only one or two contests in which to compete. As our means of transportation are limited, it has been the policy of Ord to take seven or eight pupils and enter them in everything, by putting each boy into two or three different contests. The schedule for the 1930 contests is as follows:

Thursday, April 17, 1930.	No. of men
Dairy Judging	3
Livestock Judging	7:30

Local Seed Corn Is Best, Experts Say

The ordinary run of corn will germinate about 70 per cent, according to a summary of information gathered by D. L. Gross and P. H. Stewart of the agricultural extension service. This average is far too low to insure a satisfactory stand no matter how much seed is used, they say.

Corn shown at six central and northeastern Nebraska corn shows in March ran as high as 40 per cent dead or weak germs, Mr. Stewart found when he judged it. Other lots have tested as low as 30 per cent germination.

Farmers have two choices under present conditions; either to use good 1928 seed corn or to test 1929 crop and discard poor ears. Those who have seed to sell are being urged to advertise its germination test, high quality, and price in local farm papers. Those who need good seed should depend upon their local advertisement columns rather than go off a long ways for the 1930 seed supply. Seed corn should be adapted to the locality in which it is used if it is to produce a maximum yield.

However, County Agent Dale of Valley county believes that the average germination of seed corn in this county is much above the average over the state. The corn which he has tested has averaged much higher, he says.

AM I RIGHT?

By Geo. Round, jr.

I wonder how "Queen" and "Lady" came through farrowing time. They must not have known "their pigs" as their master, Hugh Ward, thought they did. What about it, Hugh. Bill Garnick has some nice looking pigs. Incidentally, his Angus calf is one of the finest in the country. It is reported that Downing Round, son of Mr. and Mrs. Don Round of Arcadia, is a newcomer in the R. K. D. Pig club. His father, Don, has been one of the outstanding Poland China breeders in this section of the state for sometime.

What's a stack of hotcakes got to do with a GARDEN?

HOTCAKES just off the griddle are at their tenderest. Then's the time to eat them—when they're hot. And vegetables just from a garden are at their tenderest. Then is the time to eat them, too—when the radishes are solid, crisp. When the tomatoes sparkle as you peel them, and you can slice them smooth and thin.

Have a kitchen garden and enjoy all your vegetables at their climax-time, when they are most tender and sweet. Plant Ferry's purebred Seeds. These have abundant life inside. They are what their name says—purebred. Generations of the seeds that finally became these seeds produced vegetables and flowers approaching perfection.

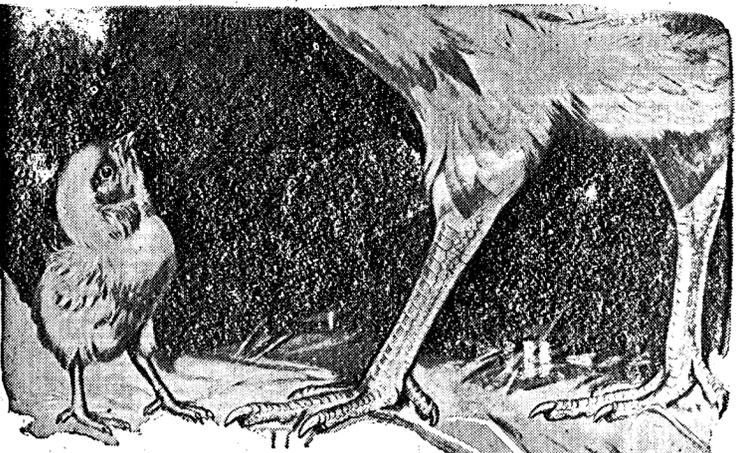

Ferry's Seeds are at the "store around the corner." A few packets will show what your own yard can grow—but you will want more than a few packets when you look over Ferry's Seed Annual. With this, your garden can produce from early-radish time till frost, when crisp, white celery can last clear on till spring again! For the Annual, write to D. M. Ferry & Co., Detroit, Michigan.

P. S.—THE GARDENER HAS NO SECOND CHANCE. PLANT THE BEST.

When you select seeds from Ferry's display box, you select the results of 73 years of successful growing.

WHAT A DIFFERENCE 90 DAYS MAKE!

TODAY A TODDLING CHICK... in 90 days a proud pullet about to lay. There's something to think about! Tiny bones and little muscles have grown several times in size... a delicate fuzz has sprouted into hundreds of feathers... a chick weighing grams has grown into a pullet weighing pounds... all in 90 short days!

A wonderful change... and only one thing can do it... good feed! This year consider Purina Startena Chow (mash) and Purina Chick Chow (scratch) or All-Mash Startena Chow for the first six weeks... and then Purina Growena and Purina Intermediate Hen Chow until your pullets are laying at 16 weeks.

Put these Chows before your chicks. You will see pullets that are built right... pullets that will lay eggs plenty in fall and winter when eggs are always worth good money.

Choose Carefully, Advises Patsy

Easter is almost here. It won't be so very long now, just a few days and the most famous fashion parade of the year is with us. So of course these are days when loads and loads of frilly new spring clothes are being bought and more or less paid for.

The styles are so varied this year that there is no excuse for anyone not being becomingly garbed as well as typifying the best of the mode trends for spring. Softly flattering effects, huge cape collars, labots of odd design, fitted waist lines at the normal waist line of the figure, long swirling skirts of circular cut. . . . these are only a few of the well indicated ways of spring clothes. And if you are a wise woman you will see that your selections this year bear a number of these marks.

Just a word about the choice of your Easter apparel. Perhaps it will help you to select just what you want if you will look over the clothes now in your closet. See what type of clothes you seem to be best equipped with; study over the problem, and decide what sort of a garment you are most in need of; find out, in other words, what kind of a dress, suit, ensemble or coat, when added to what you already have, will make your wardrobe the most suitable for all the occasions you will face the future.

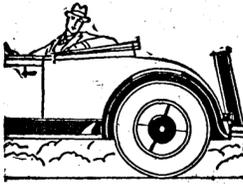

Thus, if you have several rather partyish dresses, but not much of anything appropriate for street or travel or shopping, tailored selection at Easter will probably be most satisfactory for you. If you are one of the many who get the last stitch of wear from a suit, and your wardrobe is suit-less, or nearly so, there surely never was a better choice. And so it goes. You get the idea. . . . to maintain a balanced and well rounded selection of clothes in your closet at all times.

And if you are one of those people who really have no clothes at all, and can barely maintain one presentable outfit at a time, do not despair. Even in your case there is a choice that exactly fits the situation. Study over the places you go, and decide just what kind of clothes you think would be the most admirable in those places, and then set out to find and get just that kind of clothes.

And one more word of caution. If you have just a little money to spend on clothes, it is far better to equip yourself with one complete outfit, all matching and harmonizing, than to buy two dresses, with nothing matching them. Thus, if you buy a printed dress, get a little hat to go with it with some of the same colors predominating. See that your shoes, even if they are the only pair you'll get this summer, will look well with your one dress and hat. And if you get a pocketbook and gloves, match them up too, and also match up any jewelry and handkerchiefs and flowers. Then when you get dressed to go some place, even though it is in your one and only gown, you'll have the satisfaction that comes from feeling well-dressed. You'll have a complete feeling, that comes from knowing you look all right, in every way. You'll be proud of yourself.

And that is really one of the nicest of feelings. Patsy, the Particular.

Mutual Benefit Club
The Mutual Benefit club met at the home of Vida Collins last Wednesday afternoon with an attendance of 17 members. A business meeting was conducted by the president Ada Bossen. Officers were elected: Ada Bossen, president; Emma Cook, vice president; Edna Roe, secretary; Florence Hornick, treasurer; project leaders; Florence Hornick and Edna Roe. A Tire and Silverware

What would happen if a tire were not much heavier on the tread. . . the wear point? It wouldn't last long, would it? Silverware has as distinct wear points as the tire. That's exactly why Holmes & Edwards have blocks of sterling silver inlaid at the wear points of the most used pieces. Absolute protection and silent guarantee that the piece will never wear out. Yet Holmes & Edwards inlaid costs you no more.

LOST 30 POUNDS DURING TROUBLE

"Sargon certainly proved its worth in my case and I'm a firm believer in this remarkable medicine now."

ALVIN A. RUARK.
"All at once it seemed like my stomach went back on me. I couldn't digest my food properly and lost 30 pounds in weight. I had X-Rays made but did not get any better and decided to try Sargon. I've taken 10 bottles of this medicine, eat twice as much as I ever did, my digestion is perfect, I've gained 7 pounds of my lost weight back and am taking on more weight again. Sargon Pills overcame as stubborn case of constipation as any man ever had, regulated me perfectly and I'm feeling fine!"
Alvin A. Ruark, 1739 N. St. Lincoln.

More Recipes Needed For Cookery Column

A fine recipe called "Cheese Mold", which is volunteered by the state extension department of home economics. It appears to be just the thing for a Lenten meat substitute dish, and as this is just the time of year to use it, here 'tis!

Cheese Mold
1 cup macaroni (before cooked)
1 cup cream
1 cup soft bread crumbs
1/2 cup butter
1 teaspoon onion, chopped fine
3 eggs beaten separately
1 green pepper
1 red pepper or canned pimento
1 cup cheese grated
1 teaspoon parsley, chopped fine.
Cook the macaroni in boiling salted water until tender. Heat the cream. Add cheese and butter, then egg yolks, macaroni, bread crumbs and seasonings. Fold in egg whites. Bake in moderate oven. And we hope you'll like it.

Sometimes ago Mrs. Belle Taylor sent in a number of recipe which the cookery editor promptly mislaid. They have come to light again and two of the vegetable combinations would be nice Lenten dishes.

Grilled Tomatoes
Upon a slice of buttered toast lay a slice of grilled ham, then the grilled tomato, covering the whole with cheese sauce. This really makes a one dish meal.
Mrs. Belle Taylor.

Eggplant Novelty
Cut the egg plant in cubes, soak in salt water. Then cook slowly in a Spanish sauce made of tomato, green peppers and seasoning.
Mrs. Belle Taylor.

A fine Butterscotch pie has come to our notice. Won't you try it?
Butterscotch pie
1 cup brown sugar
2 eggs separated
3 tablespoons flour
1 1/2 cups cold water
2 tablespoons butter
1 teaspoon vanilla
Mix sugar, flour and egg yolks, add the water and cook until thick. Add butter, take from the fire to cool. Add the vanilla and pour into a baked pie shell.
Then beat the whites, adding a little white sugar. Spread over the top of the pie liberally, return to the oven for just a moment to brown.
Mrs. F. E. Wilcox.

BERAN BETTERS DISTANCE MARKS IN VALLEY MEET

Mile, Half Mile Records Broken By Ord Speedster; St. Paul Is Victorious in Meet.

Breaking his own record in the mile and establishing a new mark in the 880, Lumir Beran won both events from Rouse of Burwell, his closest competitor, and scored ten of the eleven points won by Ord in the Loup Valley track meet held Friday afternoon on the Ord track. Albert Moorman, with a third in the 100 yard dash, accounted for the eleventh point.

St. Paul won the meet with 32 1/2 points, holding a scant margin of three over Burwell's 29 1/2 points. Other teams finished as follows: Scotia, 22; North Loup, 15; Ord, 11; Arcadia, 11; Dannebrog, 4.

Six meet records fell during the afternoon. Beran's new mark in the mile sliced eighteen and a half seconds from his old time of 5:11.5, holding a 5:00.0. In the half, Beran, in setting the new mark of 2 minutes 12 seconds, won from Rouse the holder of the old record of 2 minutes and 13 and 5-10 seconds.

In the broad jump, both Bentz of Scotia and Martin of St. Paul bettered the old mark of 18 feet 8 inches, when they leaped 18 feet, 11 and 9-4 inches respectively. Martin of St. Paul shaved a half second from the old time of 27 seconds flat in the low hurdles. He also set a new record in the high hurdles, running the race in 17 seconds flat to better the time of 17 and 1-10 seconds made by Schaffner of North Loup.

The Arcadia relay team stepped off the half mile in 1 minute, 2-10 seconds, beating the record of 1 minute, 42 and 5-10 seconds made by St. Paul.

Martin of St. Paul was high point man of the afternoon, scoring 13 1/2 markers, with firsts in the low hurdles and the high hurdles, a second in the broad jump, and a tie for third in the high jump. Fuller of North Loup accounted for ten points for his team with firsts in the shot put and the discus throw.

The Summary: 220 yard low hurdles: First, Martin, St. Paul; second, Hoyt, Burwell; third, Dobry, St. Paul. Time, 26 and 5-10 seconds. (New record, formerly 27 seconds flat, held by H. Davis, St. Paul.)

880 yard run: First, Beran, Ord; second, Rouse, Burwell; third, Penas, Burwell. Time, 2 minutes, 12 seconds. (New record formerly 2 minutes, 13 and 5-10 seconds, held by Rouse, Burwell.)

Mariages Increase But So Do Divorces

There were seventy-two marriages and six divorces in Valley county during the year 1929, according to statistics prepared by the department of commerce at Washington. In 1928, the number of marriages was the same, but there were nine divorces.

Figures from the entire state show an increase from 9,932 marriages in 1928 to 10,200 in 1929, which is a gain of about 2.7 per cent. At the same time, divorces throughout the state increased 12.4 per cent, from 1,538 in 1928 to 1,728 in 1929. There were 71 annulments in 1929 and 54 in 1928.

Based on population estimates, the number of marriages in Nebraska per thousand people in 1928 was 7.1; in 1929 it was 7.2. Divorces per thousand people averaged 1.09 in 1928 and 1.22 in 1929.

MILLION DOLLAR RAIN FALLS, IS BOON TO GRAINS

Sunday Downpour "Spotty" But Monday Rain General; Winter Wheat Is Showing Up Good.

Valley county was visited Sunday and Monday by a proverbial "million dollar rain" and farmers throughout the country are rejoicing in consequence, as oats and barley had just been planted and the soil was beginning to be very dry. Winter wheat is now reported to be in fine shape.

In Ord only a light sprinkle of rain fell Sunday but Monday afternoon .91 inches fell here, according to Horace Travis, government weather observer.

Sunday afternoon's rain was "spotty" and in some localities was accompanied by hail. Near Ericson and east of Ord from 3 to 6 inches of rain fell Sunday, in some vicinities the downpour being almost a cloud-burst.

Visitors to Grand Island and Hastings report the rainfall very heavy there but little fell north of St. Paul.

The Monday rain was general throughout the county and varied from the 2 inches reported at Olean to the .91 inches reported at Ord.

An Ord banker when asked Tuesday as to how much this rain was worth to Valley county said "from $500,000 to a million dollars."

Indications are that more rain will fall here before the Quiz is printed Thursday morning.

NOT PASSING THE BUCK

Something which the Quiz said last week about the county not acting at the April meeting on the Sunday picture show matter, was taken by some people, evidently, as a sort of mild slap at the mayor and council for not taking such action. The story in question was no doubt written after some citizen or citizens had suggested that prompt action could or should have been taken. It is now learned that Mayor Bartlett had instructed City Attorney Clarence M. Davis to draw the necessary ordinance and it was presumed that it would be considered. However, after the meeting got under way other matters came up that required attention such as an occupation tax, there being nothing in the old ordinance requiring such a tax on Sunday shows. Then the ballots had not been officially canvassed and it was pointed out that to pass the new ordinance before this official canvass was made, might complicate matters for the picture show people, so it was deemed best to postpone until the various things before going ahead with the new ordinance. Whether the new council will consider the matter at the first meeting in May is not known but no doubt the matter will be disposed of as soon as it is practical to do so.

"Don't Drink, Don't Idle," Says Man 99 Years Old

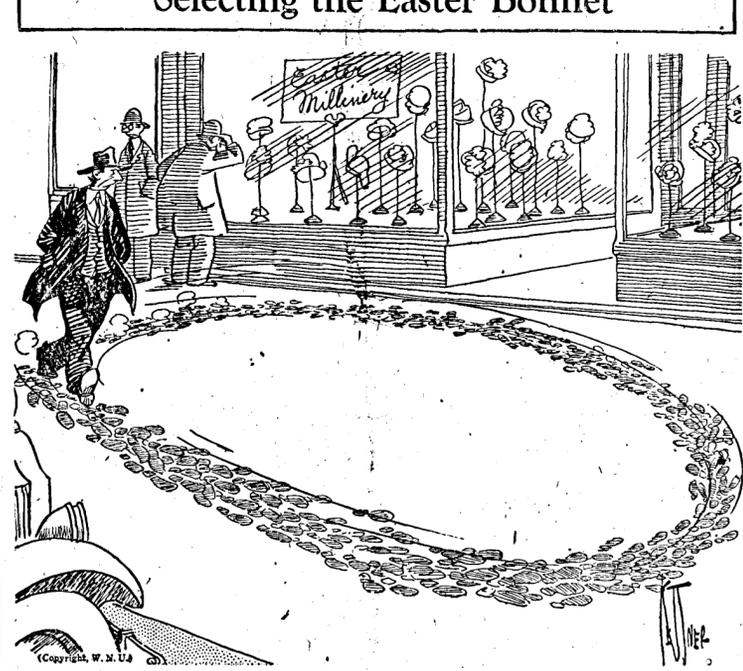

Dr. A. K. Wightman, of Torrance, Calif., an uncle of Mrs. Tom Williams of Ord, celebrated his 99th birthday last Monday, when he was guest of honor at a banquet given him by the citizens of Torrance.

Dr. Wightman's advice to those who aspire to reaching the age of one hundred years is, "Don't drink, don't be idle, and don't sneer at religion." He is in good health, has an unimpaired memory, and is an interesting conversationalist.

ORD BASEBALL TEAM TO OPEN AT BROKEN BOW

First Games of League Season Are Carded for Sunday; Arnold Has Fast Aggregation.

The Loup Valley Baseball league season will be officially opened Sunday when the Ord team plays Broken Bow at that city, the Quiz is informed this week by Charley Arnold, manager of the Ord team. The game will start promptly at 2:30 p. m., weather permitting, and Manager Arnold hopes that a large number of Ord fans will be present to see the game.

Enthusiasts who witnessed the Ord team's workout at the fair grounds Sunday report that Manager Charley has the makings of a fast home talent team. In the infield he had Clyde Athey at first, Ed Furtak at second, "Fidge" Johnson at shortstop, Jim Covert at third base and Harry Wolf catching. This infield handled the pellet with speed and precision and with more practice will surprise many fans who have been predicting that Manager Arnold would be unable to assemble a competent infield.

The Ord outfield has not been definitely chosen as yet but in the initial clash Sunday big Joe Krejci will be in centerfield and Ernie Hill in his customary position in left, with either Burrows or Heuck in right field. It is expected that either Clyde Baker or Laverne Burrows will get the nod for the hurling assignment.

In hitting, especially, the Ord team is expected to loom up as a formidable aggregation. Joe Krejci has been bombarding them out of all corners of the lot in practice and Harry Wolf, Baker, Athey, Covert, Hill and Burrows have also been hitting well. If Big Bill Heuck makes the trip to Broken Bow Sunday he may be used in right field or possibly at his regular position, first, which might cause Arnold to shift Athey to the right garden. Heuck is rather an unknown quantity as he has been at practice irregularly but fans are hoping that he will lend his experience and ability to make the Ord team more successful.

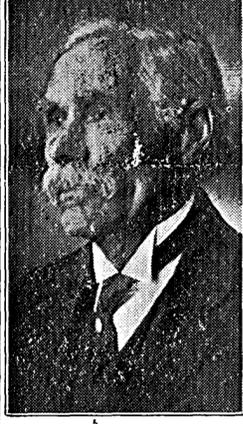

The local baseballers will make the Broken Bow trip Sunday in W. F. Williams' big bus and probably many fans will accompany them. A good game is expected as Long, pitcher for Grand Island in the state league last season, will be on the mound for Broken Bow and the rest of the team is expected to measure up to his standard.

The complete Loup Valley league schedule will be found elsewhere in this issue.

Rotarians Entertain Wives. The regular Rotary meeting for last week was held Thursday evening at the Legion Hall and the Rotarians were entertained. Prof. Clyde Smith of Lincoln was the entertainer. Anderson Passes 77th Milestone

The writer saw a young fellow coming spryly down the street Monday and when he got closer discovered that it was W. A. Anderson, pioneer of this country and resident for more than fifty years on top of that. The writer does not wish him any bad luck but we do hope he will be spared just long enough to see his 77th birthday. That long, with his beautiful philosophy of life, we are sure he will be happy.

Carl Suminski will participate in the broad jump and the high jump. Lloyd Marks will also be included in the entry list.

The relay team will be made up of Moorman, Peterson, Finch, and either Klein or Garnick.

Light, Power Cut Off Monday When Rain Causes 'Short'

Electric light and power were shut off in Ord for about two hours Tuesday evening when rain water leaking into a low voltage conduit at the city lights plant caused a short circuit that burned out the main cable leading out of the plant. Manager E. C. Love and Electrician Dolsberry were in the plant at the time and repair work was started at once but it was two hours before service was restored.

Again Wednesday morning a tree falling across a light wire near the new school building caused an interruption in the service for a short time.

Jay Auble Invents Ingenious Canopy, Installs One on Building In Ord

Ord has an inventor, Jay Auble, who has been working for some time on a canopy to protect the sidewalk in front of stores, has patented his invention and has a model canopy almost completely installed on Auble Bros. building here. The new canopy has five distinct advantages over the old solid metal affairs.

It permits light to reach the show window, at the same time keeping off the direct rays of the sun; it does not hold accumulations of snow after storms; it is cooler in summer, because a circulates through it; it is cheaper than the ordinary canopy; and it reduces the heavy strain on building fronts, ordinarily caused by air currents, because it allows air to pass through it. And it sheds rain.

The canopy is made of a number of metal strips, set at angles in the manner of the slats in an old fashioned shutter. The strips slant away from the store, and have troughs on their edges to carry the water to the side, and then out into the street. Because of this angle at which the strips are set, direct sun rays are excluded, but a considerable amount of light passes through. Because of the spaces between the strips, air currents are able to pass through, blowing off snow which may lodge, and reducing strain in cases of wind storms.

ORD BAND WINS RIGHT TO ENTER STATE CONTEST

Places Second at Kearney But Will Defend State Title; Orchestra, Ivar Hautala Win.

Ord's entrants in the high school music contest at Kearney Saturday won three second places with the band, the orchestra, and Ivar Hautala in the piano division. Selections played by the band, under the direction of Hemming Hautala were the "Overture Rhinefel," by Grieg and the "Celestial Chorus," by King. The orchestra, also under the direction of Ivar Hautala, played "On the Volga," by Akumeto, and "Atilla," by Karoly. Ivar Hautala played as his piano selections "Militaire Polonaise" by Chopin, and "Hungarian" by MacDowell.

The Girls' Glee club, singing under the direction of Miss Bloodgood, sang "Waters of Minnetonka," by Lieurance, and "Lift Thine Eyes," by Mendelssohn. The mixed chorus, also under the direction of Miss Bloodgood, sang "A Note of Golden Song," by Saar, and "Oh, Italia, Italia, Beloved," by Donizetti.

The Ord band last year won both the district and state contests in class B, with Gothenburg second. This year Gothenburg turned the trick, beating Ord out by a narrow margin. The local band was handicapped by the lack of a bassoon, an oboe and tympani. The absence of these instruments counted off from the final scoring, regardless of the quality of the music.

Personnel of the band this year: Cornets: Ivar Hautala, Albert Moorman, Dale Chatfield, Frank Rysavy, and Aili Hautala. Clarinets: Elizabeth Janssen, Adrian Zikmund, Kenneth Wilson, Hans Hansen, Betty Lukesh, Doris Whiting, Elvena Beran, and Bud Brickner.

Flute: Joy Auble, Altos, Arthur Auble, Lotus Wilson, Ruth Haas, Lumir Sedlacek, and Adrian Tolun. Saxophones: Elmer Palmatier, Wilhelmina Janssen, Basses, Elwin Auble, Eldon Benda, Trombones, Rodney Stoltz, Marcus Steinwort, and Eldon Lukesh. Drums: Paul Pierce and Lorraine Haas.

Personnel of the orchestra: Violins: Florence Lukesh, Julius Vala, Eldon Lukesh, Lumir Beran, Aili Hautala, Betty Lukesh, Albert Moorman, Adrian Zikmund, Zola Barta, Cedric Haas. Clarinets: Elizabeth Janssen, Kenneth Wilson, Trumpets: Ivar Hautala, Frank Rysavy, Trombone: Rodney Stoltz, Piccolo: Joy Auble, Bass Horn: Eldon Benda.

Saxophones: Wilhelmina Janssen, Elmer Palmatier, Harry Leota Auble, Alto horn, Lotus Wilson, Ruth Haas. Drums: Paul Pierce, Elwin Auble, Piano: Edith Mason.

By winning second places in the district contest the Ord band, orchestra and young Hautala win the right to defend their state title in the state contest to be held at Hastings in May.

Gets Position at Minden.

Gerald Cohen, who has been crew manager for the Hager Maytag Company here for some months, left last week for Minden where he has secured a better position as district manager in the Maytag organization. His father, Fred Cohen, succeeds him as crew manager for the Hager company.

Rev. J. R. Mouser came to Ord last week from Hollinger, Nebr. Mrs. Mouser stopped in Kearney until Sunday when she joined her husband in Ord. Rev. Mouser is holding services and delivering a sermon every evening in the U. B. church. He plans on continuing the meetings until April 20th.

Wendell Hather drove to Wolbach Friday and stayed until Saturday morning with his new son and its mother. Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Will Hather, spent the day in Wolbach.

Mr. Auble has had a section of the canopy on trial during the winter, but is just now installing an entire covering. At least one large store front concern is interested in the invention, and men who have examined the plans believe that the proposition is a good one.

I have heard of at least one Valley county man who refused to give the census enumerator the facts asked for. This is a serious error on the part of any one for it will result in trouble. Probably this man has changed his mind and answered the questions. If he has not and still refuses he will be reported and a government officer will come and take him to Omaha and he will be in serious trouble.

Thirty-five or forty years ago a relative of Mrs. J. D. Cook whom we all know came to the United States from Germany. She knew she had relatives in this country but didn't know where. One relative was August Pansky and the lady went to Washington D. C., and got the department to look up the name and it was found that August Pansky had located at Louisville, Nebr., and she at once left Washington for the Nebraska town and soon found her relative and through him her other relatives in this country. Which shows that the records of the census might be very valuable in the future.

I have sent notices with postage free envelopes and feel with no expense attached, every subscriber should give me a reply to the last little slip sent. It makes me a lot of extra work to take the name off and then have to cut new stencils and put them back and it is so unnecessary, that I should not have that work and expense.

Last season nine Nebraska bands competed for various championship honors. Ord made a good showing in its class but didn't win. It had won in other years however and is always feared by all other bands in its class. Ord has a mighty fine and talented band. But what I really started out to say is that eight of the bands in the contest last year wore fine uniforms. One of the bands didn't have uniforms for its members and that band was the Ord band. Now Ord is as good a town as there is in Nebraska. Its people are as well off financially as the people in other towns this size. Our boys and girls are just as smart and just as good looking, just as good musicians and just as good in every way as the boys and girls in other towns and when they go down to the contests they should be uniformed as well as any other band and I believe if someone would take the initiative to raise the money by popular subscription to get the uniforms the job could be done in a short time. The Quiz will do its full share by writing a check either to start the ball rolling or to fill in any time the solicitors come this way.

THE STORY

CHAPTER I—At the Warren ranch, the "Three Bar," on the fringe of the "cow country," a stranger appeared for work as a rider. He was engaged by the owner, Williametta Ann Warren—known to all as "Billie." The girl's father, Cal Warren, had been the original owner of the place. The question whether the territory is to remain "cow country" or be opened to settlement is a troublesome one.

CHAPTER II—Cattle "rustlers" have been troubling the ranch owners, the "Three Bar," with a girl having suffered more than others. The new hand gives his name as Cal Harris. By his announcement in favor of "squatters" he incurs the enmity of a rider known as Morrow. The will made by Cal Warren stipulated that half the property should go to the son of his old friend, William Harris, and the other half to the man and he discloses the fact to Billie. The girl is suspicious of her new rider and takes counsel with her friend, the ranch cook, "Waddles." He quiets her fears.

The man nodded slowly. "Too late," he agreed and sat looking into the fire. She had been almost a son to her father, had ridden the range with him, managed the Three Bar during his sickness; and such was her loyalty to his memory that not a trace of her bitterness had been directed toward her parent. He had loved the Three Bar and had always believed that old Bill Harris, its founder, had loved it too. His will had stipulated that half of his property should go to the younger Harris under the condition that the man should make his home on the Three Bar for two out of the first three years after her father's decease. The whole of it was to go to him in case she failed to make her own home at the Three Bar during her mother's stay, or in the event of her marriage to another before the expiration of three years.

"Of course, I'm tied here for two years," she said. "Or left penniless. If you can make it unpleasant enough to drive me away—which won't be difficult—you win." "I wouldn't count too strong on that," he counseled mildly. "Then why did you come?" she insisted. "Half of it was yours by merely keeping away." "Maybe I'm sort of tied up myself—in ways you don't suspect," he offered.

"Very likely," she returned; "sounds plausible. You might offer to marry me," she suggested when he failed to answer. "You could gain full possession at once that way." He removed his gaze from the fire and looked long at her. "It will likely come to that," he said.

"I'll put a weapon in your hands," she retorted. "Whenever it does come to that I'll leave the ranch—so now you know the one sure way to win."

"I hope it won't pan out like that," he said. "I'll be disappointed—more than I can say."

She rose and stood waiting for him to go. "Good night, Billie," he said. "I expect maybe things will break all right for us."

She did not answer as he went out. Waddles halted him in friendly fashion as he passed through the cookhouse, then wiped his hands and stepped into Billie's quarters. Waddles was a fixture at the Three Bar; he had ridden for her father until he had his legs smashed up by a horse and had thereafter reigned as cook. He was confidential adviser and self-appointed guardian of the girl. His mind was still pleasantly concerned with the stranger's warm praise of his culinary efforts.

"That new man, now, Billie," he remarked. "He's away off ahead of the average run. You mark me—he'll be top hand with this outfit in no time at all." Then he observed the girl's expression. "What is it, Pet?" he inquired. "What's a-fretting you?"

"Do you know who he is?" she asked. Waddles wagged a negative head. "He's Calvin Harris," she stated. Instead of the blank dismay which she had expected to see depicted on Waddles' face at this announcement, it seemed to her that the big man was pleased.

"The h—!" he said. "Scuse me, Billie. So this here is Cal! Well, well—now what do you think of that?"

"I think that I don't want to stay here alone with him while you're out after the horses," she returned. "Wrong idea!" the big man promptly contradicted. "You've got to stick it out for two years, girl."

The best thing you can do is to get acquainted; and figure out how to get along the best you can—the pair of you. Old Cal Warren had some definite notion when he framed this play; so it's likely this Cal is on your side, too."

"But even more likely not," she stated. "Then what?" "Why, then I'll have to kill him and put a stop to it," the big man announced. "But it's noways probable that it will come to that. Let's use logic. He spoke well of my cooking, which proves him a man of some discernment. No way to get around that. Now a man with his judgment wouldn't suspect for one living second that he could play it low-down on you with me roosting close at hand. Putting two plain facts together it works out right natural and simple that he's on the square. As easy as that," he finished triumphantly. "So don't you fret. And in case he acts up I'll clamp down on him real sudden," he added by way of reassurance.

His great paw opened and shut to illustrate his point as he moved toward the door and the Three Bar girl knew that when Waddles spoke of clamping down it was no mere figure of speech.

CHAPTER III

BILLIE WARREN heard the steady buzz of a saw and later the ringing strokes of an ax. The men had departed three hours before to be gone for a week on the horse round-up but she had not yet issued from her own quarters. The music of ax and saw was ample evidence that her new and undesired partner was making valuable use of his time. She went outside and he stuck the ax in a cross section of a pine log as she moved toward him.

"We'll have to get along the best we can," she announced abruptly. "Of course you will have a say in the management of the Three Bar and draw the same amount for yourself that I do."

He sat on a log and twisted a cigarette as he reflected upon this statement. "I'd rather not do that," he decided. "I don't want to be a drain on the brand—but to help build it up. Suppose I just serve as an extra hand and do whatever necessary turns up—in return for your letting me advise you on a few points that I happen to have worked out while prowling through the country."

"Any way you like," she returned. "It's for you to decide. Any money which you fail to draw now will revert to you in the end, so it won't matter in the least."

His reply was irrelevant, a deliberate refusal to notice her ungenerous misinterpretation of his offer.

"Do you mind if I gather a few Three Bar colts round here close and break out my own string before they get back?" he asked.

"Anything you like," she repeated. "I'm not going to quarrel. I've made up my mind to that. I'll be gone the rest of the day."

Five minutes later he saw her riding down the lane. She was not seeking companionship but rather solitude, and for hours she drifted aimlessly across the range, sometimes dismounting on some point that afforded a good view and remaining in the warm spring sun. Dusk was falling when she rode back to the Three Bar. She heard the sound of saw and ax as Harris worked up the dry logs into stow lengths. At least he was making good his word to the cook. The sounds ceased when the sun was an hour high and when she looked out to determine the reason she saw him over the top of the corral bars. He had fashioned a back-saw for each and they stood tied to the corral bars. He left them there and repaired to the big gates of the main corral. The two swinging halves sagged until their ends dragged on the ground when opened or closed, necessitating the expenditure of considerable energy in performing either operation. She watched him tear down the old support wires and replace them with new ones, stretching every double strand from the top of the tall pivot posts to the free ends of the gate. Placing a short stick between the two strands of heavy wire, he twisted until the shortening process had cleared the gate end and they swung so freely that a rider could leap from his saddle and throw them open with ease.

This completed to his satisfaction he fashioned heavy slabs of wood to serve as extra brake-blocks for the chuck wagon. Between the performance of each two-self appointed job he spent a little time with the colts, handling them and teaching them not to fear his approach, cinching his saddle on first one and then the next, talking to them and handling their heads.

For three days there was little contact between the two. It was evident that he had no intention of forcing his society upon her. In the afternoon of the third day she saw him swing to the back of a big bay, easing into the saddle without a jar, and the colt ambled back toward the corral, rolling his eyes upon him, but making no effort to pitch. He dismounted and stripped off the saddle, cinched it on a second horse and let him stand, leading a third out to the snubbing post near the door of the black-top shop and proceeded to put on his first set of shoes.

The girl went out and sat on the sill of the shop door and watched him. The colt pulled back in an effort to release the forefoot that the man held clamped between his knees, then changed his tactics and sagged against Harris.

"You, Babe!" the man ordered. "Don't you go leaning on me." He patted down the hoof and fitted the shoe, but before nailing it on he caught the colt's foot and addressed the girl. "If I fight upon now while he's spooked and half-scared, it would spoil him maybe," he explained.

"I gentle-break mine, too," she said, and the man overlooked the inflection which, as plainly as words, standing there, stamped upon her that his ways were feminine. "If every man used up his time gentling his string he'd never have a day off to work at anything else."

"Why, it don't use up much time," he objected. "They half-way break themselves standing round with a saddle on and having a man handle them between spells at regular work—like cutting firewood and such. And it's a saving of time in the end. There's three hundred odd days every year when a man consumes considerable time fighting every horse he sets upon— if they're broke that way to start."

"So your only reason for not riding them out is to save time," she said.

"If you mean that I'm timid," he observed, "why, I don't know as I'd bother to dispute it." He moved over and sat on his heels facing her, twisting the ever handy cigarette. "Listen," he urged. "Let's you and I try to get along. Now if you'll only make up your mind that I'm not out to grab the Three Bar, not even the half of it that's supposed to be mine—unless you get paid for it—why, we're liable to get to liking each other real well in the end. I'll give you a contract to that effect."

"Which you know would be worthless," she returned. "The will specifically states that any agreements between us prior to the time of division are to be disregarded. A written contract would have no more value than your unsupported promise and in view of what's happened you don't expect me to place a value on that."

He pulled reflectively at his cigarette and she rather expected another of the irrelevant remarks with which he so often replied to her pointed thrusts.

"No," he said at last. "But it's a fact that I don't want the Three Bar—or rather I do if you should ever decide to sell."

"I never will," she stated positively. "It's always been my home. I've been away and had a good time; three winters in school and enjoying every second; but there always comes a time when I'm sick to get back, when I know I can't stay away from the Three Bar, when I want to smell the sage and throw my leg across a horse—and ride!"

"I know, Billie," he said softly. "I was raised here, up until I was eight. My feeling is likely less acute than yours, but I've always hankered to get back to where the sage and pine trees run together. I mentioned it while back that I was tied up peculiar and stood to lose considerable if I failed to put in two years out here—which wouldn't have been of any particular consequence only that I found out that the Three Bar was going under unless some one put a stop to what's going on. I'll pull it out of the hole, maybe, and hand it back to you."

"You!" she flared. "And what can you do against it—a man that was raised in a squatter country behind a barbed-wire fence, who has to get to his horses before he can sit on one, who has hitched a gun on his belt because he thinks it's the thing to do, and has stowed it in a place where he'd have to tie himself in a knot—or undress—to reach it. And you talk of pulling the Three Bar out of a hole! Why, there are twenty men within fifty miles of here that would kill you the first move you made."

Pussyfoot's Sportlog

By GEORGE ROUND, JR.

Manager Chas. Arnold told me recently by correspondence that he is mighty glad that Ord was not allowed to enter a franchise in the Central Nebraska League which headquarters at St. Paul with Dan Webster as president. "We are in a much stronger league," he declares enthusiastically and sincerely. Evidently, the "Deacon" doesn't give a hang about Webster's league. Arnold believes the newly formed league will be one of the strongest amateur leagues in this section of Nebraska.

With spring training nearly over, Manager Arnold is anxiously awaiting the first game of the season. He has a ball club that will make them all sit up and take notice, he believes.

In Joe Krejci he has a wonderful ball player. A great hitter is the way the "Deacon" describes our friend Joe and Arnold knows baseball. He believes that Joe will burn the league up with his hitting during the early games when he is performing in an Ord suit. Immediately after the Ord schools are out this summer, Joe is going to York, Nebr., where he is to tryout with the York state league ball club.

Although Krejci failed to put out victorious athletic teams at York high this year, he is not disappointed. He says that he has enjoyed the year and is sorry in one way to see it end. Certainly he has given Ord high boys some fine traits of leadership such as being a good sport in losing as well as in winning. He certainly has come through in great shape. Ord people want him back next year and according to all indications at present, Joe will be back to direct athletics at Ord high again next year. His prospects for winning teams won't be so bright in any line of sport though, it is forecasted.

If Jim Covert plays with the Ord ball club this season, North Loup will be losing a mighty good ball player. He performed with Manager Ernest's team last year around the hot corner, third base, and was one of the outstanding players in Webster's league. He should be a big help to Manager Arnold in winning the 1930 pennant of the newly formed league. Jim is an excellent hitter and a fair infielder. He hails from Springdale, the home of Manager "Deacon" Arnold.

Coach Choppy Rhodes, University of Nebraska baseball mentor, recently cut his varsity candidate squad down to thirty some players. Among those who survived was Hank "Army" Armatis. He is expected to be a regular hurler this year.

By the time this is printed, Elmer Skov will be in Ord for two weeks as representative from the school of journalism, University of Nebraska. Skov is the sports editor on the Daily Nebraskan, official student daily newspaper at the university at Lincoln, and is prominent in other activities on the college campus.

He was appointed sports editor on the "Rag" for this semester and has been developing a real sports page. He is probably one of the best sports writers to ever edit the sport page on the Daily Nebraskan. Prior to his appointment of sports editor, Elmer was out for the varsity basketball team and was a formidable candidate. Although small of stature, he played in a number of games and looked mighty good. After receiving his appointment, he quit going out because of the lack of time.

Ord people will find Skov a mighty fine fellow. He graduates from the school of journalism this year.

Skov recently witnessed the try-out of night baseball under the floodlights at Landis field in Lincoln but declares that he isn't so "hot" over the idea. He says through his column in the Daily Nebraskan that he will take his baseball during the day time as will other people after the novelty has worn off.

It doesn't seem that night baseball will be a success although plans are being made to try it out in regular play in Lincoln soon. Baseball just doesn't seem to be baseball at night.

A bad knee is liable to handicap Vernie Anderson in trying out for a place on the Ord baseball club. He hurt his knee some time ago and during past months it has been giving him more or less trouble. For the past two years, Vernie was an outstanding fielder on the Ord Spuds. His only weakness is at the bat. Vernie swears them out of the air in the field and covers worlds of territory.

Reports have it that North Loup will be in the Central Nebraska League with another strong team this year. With the right kind of pitching, they should lead the league again.

Girls play day to be held at Ord toward the close of the month will probably attract a large number of girls from high schools in this section of Nebraska. Ord is one of the two cities in the state to be selected for play days this year. Fairbury is the other city holding a meet.

Helen Eby, girls physical education director in the Ord public schools, is all set for the big event. She hopes it will be a success. Entries are expected from at least six schools.

Superintendent Bowers is behind the play day meet for girls and also believes it will be a success. He is giving it all the support that he can.

From authority I learn that Comstock will be represented by a Junior American Legion baseball team this year. They should be among the high ranking teams in the sixth district.

Two years ago, the Comstock nine entered state play and were out with a strong team. They defeated the Junior Spuds of Ord quite easily in a pre-season game and it looked as though they were headed for a division championship. There were no other teams in this section of the district.

Powered when the Comstock team played Ord in the sub-district championship game, the Ord victory upset all "dope" for Comstock had been picked to win easily. The Ord boys played inspired baseball that day. Dale Stronx, Fat Adams, Ross Blessing and Dale Chatfield were among the stars in the Ord victory over Comstock.

FROM THE CENSUS SUPERVISOR FIFTH DISTRICT OF NEBR., H. A. WEBB, KEARNEY.

COOPERATION. We doubt if any District Supervisor's office in the entire United States could report any finer cooperation from the people in general, and more loyalty and interest by the enumerators and others employed in making the census, than the Kearney District Supervisor's office. We endeavored to select competent and courteous enumerators. Without exception they have proven themselves worthy of the appointment. They report the finest cooperation from their respective units, and people interviewed throughout the District have responded in a remarkable manner.

Some districts have found it necessary to call upon Federal officers assigned to Census divisions and some arrests have been made, but to date not one single instance of this kind has made it necessary in the Kearney District. We predict that this will not be necessary judging from the splendid response of the entire district this year.

For all this, your Supervisor is indeed thankful and wishes to express sincere appreciation. It is very gratifying to have such loyal workers and to have them receive such a fine response. The excellent cooperation of the newspapers throughout the District is also deeply appreciated.

Radio and Flying Child Health Day

One Cubic Inch, One Ton Round Your Corners

Among farmers' wives until recently the percentage of insanity was very high. Living isolated lives, working hard from dawn until long after dark, seeing nobody but the sometimes dull, tired husband and farm hands, was bad for the mind.

Then came rural free delivery, bringing pictures of the latest fashions, and the telephone, with news of neighbors, finally, greatest blessing of all, the radio. Farmers' wives tune in, and retain their sanity.

To the exceptional woman, rich, able to do what she pleases, but hitherto finding little amusing excitement after six, flying offers relief.

The British duchess of Bedford, sixty-four years old, goes up and down the earth at a rate of speed that old Satan never dreamed of. She has just started the second leg of a flight from London to South Africa, an able pilot and mechanic keeping her company.

You would say that a flying man or woman could write a book, "Things I Have Seen," that would eclipse Voltaire's "Choses Vues," (Things Seen), for Voltaire crawled around on the earth's surface.

However, not the eyes but the heart and brain do the real seeing.

Gandhi, starved Hindu whose sincerity causes the British empire more anxiety than all his 300,000,000 fellow Hindus combined, learns, as other enthusiasts have done, that the spirit is willing, but the flesh is weak.

Weighting barely 100 pounds, eating no meat, taking no stimulants, a walk of 200 miles, that would seem a joke to an Irishman or a Scotchman, has exhausted him. He cannot go on.

Hodge, Calif.—President Hoover designating May 1 as "Child Health Day" urges parents and all others to co-operate.

These are some ingredients of child health: "Fresh air and sunlight. They cost nothing.

Regular hours, long and regular sleep. They cost nothing.

Eating slowly, which costs nothing and develops teeth and jaws, avoiding adenoid and other troubles.

Good, simple food, with variety, from day to day. That costs trouble, principally.

While designating a child health day the government might think of the mother's health, also, and the disgraceful fact that this nation leads all others, civilized, in the number of mothers that die in childbirth for lack of competent attention.

If a sow is about to have a litter, or a cow a calf, the government stands ready to advise and help through the Agricultural department.

For the expectant human mother there is no such help.

Uranium, heaviest of all metals, is now produced for $400 a pound. Some of it was shown to chemists at Atlanta. The present price is low. Recently the stuff was priceless.

It weighs twice as much as lead, but cosmically considered, that is not heavy. Learn from science that the substance of certain stars, because of terrific gravity and compression, weighs two thousand pounds to the cubic inch. Imagine the outer joint of your thumb weighing a ton.

The sun's radiation, heat and power are supposed to come from the "stripping of atoms." The electrons, revolving around the nuclei, are stripped off and shot into space. The nuclei, left alone, are packed one against another, with no space separating them from their electrons and from each other. It is as though you stripped away the planets from suns in space and packed the suns boldly together in a lump. That would be heavy.

An electron, in proportion to its size, is as far from its central nucleus as the sun is from the earth.

Each atom is a little solar system, so small you do not notice a million of these systems in the corner of your eye. Our universe is really too complicated, at least for our feeble minds.

Important to city governments. Berlin, which makes city rule a constant improvement, passenger planes become obsolete while still in safe working order. Highly expensive machines, they have little second-hand value. The problem is to use, profitably, the flying life remaining in them.

The used airplane problem already causes anxiety. With constant improvement, passenger planes become obsolete while still in safe working order. Highly expensive machines, they have little second-hand value. The problem is to use, profitably, the flying life remaining in them.

Among others of our great industrialists, Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., head of General Motors, appropriates millions each year for scientific research. Thanks to this wise and profitable course, followed by the nation's greatest corporations, Steel, Standard Oil, etc., important discoveries are made in many directions.

Bernice Naeve, Prominent 4-H Club Girl, Not Absent Or Tardy In 4 Years of School

By George Round, Jr.

Two years to school without being absent or tardy is the record that Bernice Naeve, 11, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Naeve of near North Loup, has made. She hopes to extend this record over a period of years and has not been absent or tardy this year. A record in itself. It is doubtful if there are many other Valley county boys or girls who can equal such a record.

Bernice is one of the outstanding girl 4-H club members in Valley county. She has been in club work for three years and has made an excellent record.

"I first joined a canning club led by Mrs. Davis in 1926. Since that time I have been in club work and am now a member of the cooking club at Fussville," she explains. Bernice is secretary-treasurer of the club.

"But why ever join a club. You could learn to cook at home?"

"Yes that is true enough but there are lots of other things that you learn in club work. For instance, you learn how other girls act. Then it teaches you to want to dress neat also."

Right now Bernice is planning her exhibit for the Valley county fair at Ord this fall. She is to can all kinds of vegetables and fruits.

At the Ord fair last year, Miss Naeve won nearly all first prizes on her club exhibit. After having it on exhibition at Ord, she sent it to the state fair and it topped a third prize there. Besides showing in the club class last year, Bernice had a private exhibit on canned goods, sewing and farm work at Ord, St. Paul and North Loup at their fairs and celebrations. "I won $45.00 on my exhibit," she declares, enthusiastically. No wonder she is enthused over club work.

Miss Naeve goes to district 24, Valley county, school and is in the fifth and sixth grades. She likes school and is getting along great in her studies. Any girl must like school to have such an attendance record as has Bernice.

Enough proof of her interest in school.

Paul Easterbrook Again in Pig Club

Yours for better pigs and more 4-H clubs is the way Paul Easterbrook, 15, of Arcadia expresses himself in regard to club work.

Great men in this world usually encounter some reverses during their life, so they say. Nevertheless, those difficulties afford opportunities for improving themselves, the old saying is. Evidently, Paul is a firm believer in the theory because he is for better pigs after having a very disastrous season last year in 4-H pig club work.

"I did not have a purebred sow last year and she did not have as clean ground as she should have had. She farrowed ten pigs and raised seven of them, three sows and four boars," Paul says in speaking of his pig club work last year. It was the first year he had entered club work. Orle Sorensen, another member of the R. K. D. Litter Club persuaded Paul to join.

But then along in the summer many of the pigs contracted some disease. First it was thought to be cholera. However, after vaccinating the hogs continued to die and finally the case was pronounced as necro.

"My pigs then contracted the disease when they grew but little and would not fatten. I sold the last of them just a few weeks ago," Paul declares.

Now most boys after such a disastrous year would not feel like joining a pig club the second year. Neverless, Paul is back this year. He is a member of the R. K. D. Litter Club at Arcadia. Mrs. Morris Fowler is the local leader.

Paul's father bought some purebred sows of E. A. Kettle and Sons recently and offered Paul one to enter in the pig club work this year. Paul was delighted and believes that he will have better luck this year with his sow and pigs. He should have.

His sow has farrowed seven pigs. "She has a good litter," Paul declares. He believes they will be in the money at the fair this fall. He got his sow ready for farrowing by putting her in an individual hog house. Paul also saw that she was clean. He washed her with dip and soap. She farrowed her pigs in "style."

Max Cruikshank, another member of the R. K. D. Litter Club, may be a strong Hampshire breeder but he has a competent Chester White breeder opposing him in the same club in Paul Easterbrook. He is just as enthusiastic over his Chester White as Max is over his favorite breed, the Hampshires.

Paul says, "I like the Chester Whites because they put on fat fast and economically. My father also raises them."

Paul's father has purchased some lambs and ewes and has allowed Paul a third interest in them. He keeps an exact feed record on the sheep as well as the pigs. Paul believes.

COMPLIMENTS QUIZ WRITER

Ord, Neb., April 11, 1930. Mr. George Round, jr., Extension Service, College of Agriculture, Lincoln, Nebraska, Nebraska.

Dear George:— I usually read all of your "dope" in the Ord Quiz and will say that it is great stuff. Believe it appeals to many Quiz readers.

Extension Clubs Achievement Day Here on May 7th

Valley county women's extension clubs will hold their annual achievement day program in Ord at the high school auditorium, Wednesday May 7, according to Miss Rizpah Douglass, state extension leader, who has visited Valley county monthly for the past six months giving leaders conferences. Mrs. Mae McGinnis, Ord, and Mrs. Pearl Mulligan, North Loup, are the two county club chairmen.

According to Miss Douglass, the program for achievement day will probably be one of the most outstanding in the history of women's club work in Valley county.

A hooked rug exhibit will be one of the features of the 1930 achievement day. It will be the first time such an exhibit will have been held in connection with achievement day. No prizes are to be given and the rugs exhibited will not be judged, according to Miss Douglass. She urges Ord women to attend and view the display of work done by club women over the county during the year. Over thirty rugs will probably be on display.

According to the tentative program, Mrs. McGinnis is to preside over the afternoon's program. Mrs. Mulligan will welcome those present and point out the purpose of achievement work. Mrs. E. McGrew of the Ord H. O. A. club is to give a progress report at the achievement day. She will give a brief summary and history of club work in Valley county in past years and what has been accomplished this year.

Other readings, musical numbers, and recitations will be included on the afternoon program.

Chevrolet Six Wins Economy Run Prizes

Competing against a field of 41 other entrants, a 1929 Chevrolet six cylinder, driven by Mrs. Paul Lawrence of Los Angeles, won the sweepstakes and first place in its class in the annual Gilmore Blue-Green Economy run here Feb. 14.

Every type of road grade was encountered in the run that covered 200 miles between Los Angeles and the Wrightwood mountains. Mrs. Lawrence's Chevrolet demonstrated its economical operation over a course that included city traffic, country roads and mountain stretches along a circuitous route rising from sea level to an elevation of 6,000 feet.

To win the event, the Chevrolet coach traveled 36.71 tonmiles to the gallon of gasoline, averaging 20.5 miles to the gallon for the 200 miles traversed. The total weight of the Chevrolet coach, with its driver and four passengers, was 3580 pounds. No oil and no water was used during the run.

The economy test was staged under the supervision of the American Automobile Association, sanction number 2306 and was limited to stock cars. Six classes of cars were represented among the 42 entries. The Chevrolet coach, with Mrs. Lawrence at the wheel, not only won first place in its class, but, in addition, won the sweepstakes for all classes.

"KONJOLA MADE ME FEEL FIFTEEN YEARS YOUNGER"

Modern Medicine Praised By Lady For Relieving Health Troubles of Long Standing.

MRS. MORGAN SMITH

"Konjola caused a wonderful improvement in my health," said Mrs. Morgan Smith, R. F. D. No. 7, Green Bay, Wis. "For fifteen years I suffered with bloating after my meals, and during the past three years I had terrible pains of indigestion. My appetite practically left me. As a result I became badly run-down. I had a continual feeling of drowsiness and had no energy, and also had frequent dizzy spells.

"I realized that something must be done quickly to relieve me, and after reading how a neighbor had been relieved by Konjola, I decided to put this new medicine to the test. The results were more than I had hoped for. My appetite returned; I am no longer bothered with bloating and pains, and I am feeling better in every respect. No longer do I dread my household tasks. In fact, I feel fifteen years younger, and gladly recommend Konjola. It sure proved itself in my case."

Konjola, a compound of 32 valuable medicinal ingredients, works with the sufferer's food, eliminating poisons and restoring normal activity to the ailing organs. From six to eight bottles are recommended as a fair treatment.

Konjola is sold in Ord, Nebraska, at the McLain-Sorensen drug store, and at the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

Pierce Cow Ranks Sixth In State

Local Test Association Drops In State Standings But, Individual Herds Show Up Well.

Again the Valley County Dairy Herd Improvement Association dropped in state standings among the cow testing associations in butterfat production for March, according to the monthly dairy report as issued from the state dairy office at Lincoln. The leader, Seward-York-Polk association, averaged 34.9 pounds butterfat while the local association made an average production of 27.6 pounds butterfat. Carl Smith is the Valley county association's tester.

In the highest fat producing herds in each association of from five to fifteen cows, E. S. Coats and son, leaders in the local association for that group during the month, stood sixth in the state. Their herd of eight cows averaged 52.1 pounds butterfat. The state leader averaged 60.7 pounds in the same class.

McLain Brothers of Ord stood tenth among the leaders in the two to sixteen cows or more class in the state for March. They lead the local association in that class also. The herd of eighteen Holsteins averaged 37.8 pounds for the month.

By producing 90.4 pounds butterfat during March, a Holstein cow belonging to A. W. Pierce, member of the local association, ranked sixth in the state among the high individual producers. The state leader averaged 103.7 pounds of butterfat. The record made by the Pierce cow is the high record to be made in the local association this year, it is thought by officers of the Valley county association.

Increased butterfat production among cow testing associations over the state was noted during March. The average production per cow was 28.7 pounds butterfat for the month. This meant an average of 2.5 pounds more per cow than made during the previous month, February. Warm weather and nearing the high production season are considered the causes for the increased production.

Eighty-one cows were sold among the state association members in March. This was slightly below the total sold during February. However, more cows were sold for breeding purposes in March than in February. Eleven purebred sires were bought during the month by cow testing association members over the state.

KEEP THE DOCTOR AWAY DAY BY DAY WITH EXTENSION PAPER

By George Round, Jr.

Mind Reading

Slips of paper are distributed. The mind reader tells the group to write a word and fold the paper in some definite way so that they are all like. Her helper collects them.

The mind reader and helper have previously agreed that the helper will pass in no paper and will accept the first word given. The mind reader presses a paper to her forehead, says a word as though she has read it mentally. Her partner claims it as hers.

The mind reader unfolds the paper as though to check on it but reads at the word she will give next. She picks up a second paper, presses it to her head, says the word that was written, on the first and looks about for its claimant, reads it and proceeds.

Annual Rural School Meet Here Tomorrow

The annual contest of Valley county rural schools, with competition in scholastic work and athletic events, is to be held tomorrow at the high school building and at the fair grounds, starting at 9 o'clock in the morning. No schools offering work above the tenth grade are eligible to compete.

The scholastic contest includes sight reading, penmanship, mathematics, Latin, history, geography, and current events. In the athletic program are dashes, relays, three-legged races, baseball throw, running high jump, standing broad jump, and running broad jump. Contestants in the scholastic division are divided according to grades; in the athletic division they are divided according to ages. The meet is scored on the basis of a possible two hundred points. The award to the winner is a banner which must be won three consecutive years to become the permanent property of any school. Eight schools have signified their intention of entering the meet tomorrow.

A preliminary elimination contest has been held between three schools at Valleyside, according to Miss Clara McClatchey, county superintendent.

By Geo. Round, jr.

Miss Rizpah Douglass, state extension women's club leader, is praising the work of Mrs. Mae McGinnis, Ord, and Mrs. Pearl Mulligan, North Loup, for their assistance in making the 1930 women's club year a success. Achievement day, May 7, ends the club year.

The two county chairmen, Mrs. McGinnis and Mrs. Mulligan, have been big powers in making the 1929-30 club year a success. They have helped Miss Douglass as much as other leaders in other counties in the state, perhaps more. Valley county club women also feel grateful to her for their help in putting the program across.

Now these women are preparing the achievement day program. In all probability, it will be a great success.

Newton W. Gaines, community specialist from the college of agriculture, is to visit Valley county two days next week giving talks at community meetings. His appearance will mean that many country people will turn out to hear him speak.

Wherever Gaines goes; people are always eager to hear him. He is one of the most inspiring talkers that I have ever heard. Clayton Ward, Arcadia, is one of the strongest boosters that Gaines has in this county.

The Red Rocket

a demonstrator of Pontiac's finer performance

BEGINNING today, the New Series RED ROCKET will be on the streets of this city. Notice its speed, quick getaway, smoothness and easy handling. Ask for a demonstration—anytime, anywhere you see this car.

SPEED AND POWER. A 60 horsepower engine, the largest in any six of Pontiac's price, accounts for this car's great power, speed and acceleration.

SMOOTHNESS. The engine is very smooth due to new type rubber mountings and the Harmonic Balancer which counteracts crankshaft vibration.

EASY HANDLING AND RIDING. A new roller bearing steering system and improved four-wheel brakes make the car delightfully easy to handle. And riding ease is increased by comfortable new Fisher bodies and improved Lovejoy Hydraulic Shock Absorbers.

Ask to drive the car with the RED ROCKET. Or come to our salesroom and arrange to learn what splendid performance Pontiac now is offering at low cost.

Prices are f. o. b. Pontiac, Mich., plus delivery charges. Shock absorbers standard equipment. Bumpers and spring covers a slight extra cost. General Motors Time Payment Plan available at minimum rate.

Consider the delivered price as well as the list (f. o. b.) price when comparing automobile values. Pontiac delivers prices include only authorized charges for freight and delivery and the charge for any additional accessories or financing desired.

Mrs. Grace Bonham Thank Orange EX-O

Who Does Not Fear Stomach Ulcers? Constant pain inability to retain food, a loss of weight and strength and back of it all the fear of cancer, the most dreaded of diseases. Can you blame Mrs. Bonham for being thankful? She wants us to tell her story in her own words.

"About two years ago I began to have that run down feeling. I would feel tired and worn out all the time. I kept getting worse, until I consulted a doctor. The doctor said that I had ulcers of the stomach. By this time my condition was so bad that I could not retain any food except raw eggs and milk. "I lived on this food for five months before taking Orange EX-O. My suffering was terrible. A good friend of mine told me of the wonderful results that she had obtained by taking Orange EX-O. Up to the present time I have taken only two bottles and I am truly glad to say that I feel better than I have for years. "I feel that I owe my life to Orange EX-O and I want all others who are suffering, to know what it has done for me," says Mrs. Bonham.

ORD HIGH AG BOYS GO TO NORTH PLATTE

Ten Students and Kovanda Compete In Judging Contests; Won Prizes Last Year.

Ord high school boys competed at North Platte last year and copped honors. Adrian Zikmund scored a fourth in the woodwork contest; Adrian Tolen was the third high scorer in the babcock testing contest.

The Ord dairy products judging team of Eldon Lukesh, Lloyd Needham, Emil Urban won the dairy products judging contest at North Platte last year to bring further honors to Ord high. These boys turned in a much better score than any team in the eastern division of the contests held at Lincoln. In dairy judging, the Ord high school team of Billy Garnick, Robert Cushing, and Adrian Tolen scored a seventh. Garnick was tied for eighth place as an individual scorer in that contest.

Adrian Zikmund copped seventh place in the egg grading contest last year. He scored 170 points. Lloyd Needham was the third high scorer in the egg show. Wayne Keller, Bill Bartley, Billy Garnick, Adrian Zikmund, and John Campbell had entries in the same contest. W. B. Weeks drove his automobile up to the Weekee hospital Monday afternoon and stopped it on top of the hill north of the hospital grounds and went into the office on a business matter. Coming out a moment later he found his car gone and he was just in time to see it plunge into a plowed field on the Blessing property to the northwest. The fence had been opened, the women wire being swung around onto the plowed ground and the car headed for the opening and ran over the wire rolling it up underneath and so wrapping it around the car axels and all moving parts that the car was stopped and it required three hours to get the wire off. Marjorie Hostetter Takes Bicycle Trip Across Continent

Miss Marjorie Hostetter, former teacher in the Ord schools, and sister of Mrs. Gould B. Flagg, of Ord, has been doing the unusual in Europe. She has been touring through France and Switzerland on a bicycle, alone most of the time, and depending upon an English-French dictionary for necessary conversation with the Italians. A feature story in the Lincoln Star Sunday told of her experiences.

Miss Hostetter had been teaching school in Merzifon, Turkey, and when vacation time came around, decided that she wanted to see some of Europe in detail, and not through the window of a more or less rapidly moving train. So with a bed roll and a few necessities on the handlebars and a lunch kit on a luggage carrier, she set out on her 1,100 mile journey.

Sleeping out at night, hooking rides from trucks, swimming every time she came to a lake that could be used for the purpose, Miss Hostetter pedaled her way through the beautiful regions between Paris and Nice.

Bicycle transportation in France is common, according to letters from Miss Hostetter. It is not at all unusual to see a man and woman spinning along together on bikes. Everyone rides them—old men and old women, children, women with babies. In case there is a baby to go along, it is located in a basket in the front. If there are two, another basket is placed behind. On the way to work in the fields, the women carry a rake or a fork at the sides.

After finishing the bicycle journey at Nice, the traveler went on to Paris, Rome, Florence, Milan, Venice and back to Turkey by train. Miss Hostetter is to remain another year in Merzifon, completing her three year contract to act as instructor in physical education and English in the girls' school there.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(By Rev. F. B. Fitzwater, D. D., Member of Faculty, Wesley Bible Institute of Chicago, Ill.)

Lesson for April 20

JESUS TEACHING FORGIVENESS

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 18:15-35, or Easter Lesson, John 8:1-11. GOLDEN TEXT—Forgive us our debts as we forgive our debtors. PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Teaching Forgiveness. JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Teaching Forgiveness. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Why Practice Forgiveness? YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—What is True Forgiveness?

This lesson touches a most vital subject for our everyday lives. We are always surrounded by wicked men. Ill treatment we shall most surely receive, for all who will live godly in Christ Jesus shall suffer persecution (II Tim. 3:12).

In this lesson we have divine instructions as to our behavior in case of such ill treatment. 1. How to Galt an Erring Brother (v. 15-20). A sinning brother is lost. To bring him to a knowledge of his sin and restore him to fellowship in the church is to gain him. One soul is of greater value than the whole world. The method to be used is: 1. Personal (v. 15). Go alone and tell him his fault. Personal effort is most vital in winning an erring brother. It is usually an effective method.

2. The help of a comrade (v. 16). "Take with you one or two more." The presence of one or two comrades helps in making known his fault. 3. Tell it to the church (v. 17). Sometimes the church can accomplish that which the individual and the comrades fail to do.

4. The binding authority of the church's decision (v. 18-20). When the church follows the instruction of the Lord, gathers in the name of Jesus Christ, and is actuated by the Holy Spirit, its decisions are final. 11. Peter's Question (v. 21). This question was probably occasioned by the ill treatment which Peter was then experiencing at the hands of his fellow disciples.

Christ's confession of Peter brought him into the limelight. The question of the disciples, "Who is greatest in the kingdom?" shows that there was some jealousy of Peter among the disciples. This envy and jealousy was known to Peter. His patience being thus tested, he came to Jesus with a question regarding forgiveness. From the Lord's teaching as to the effort to bring about reconciliation in case of offenses between brother and brother, he knew that the spirit of forgiveness would be required. Peter, disposed to be gracious, inquired, "Until seven times?" showing his readiness to forgive his brother not three times, but twice three times, and a little over.

111. Jesus' Answer (v. 22). This answer was an astonishing revelation to Peter. Jesus said, not until seven times, but until seventy times seven, showing that willingness to forgive should be practically limitless. 11. The Two Creditors (v. 23-25). These two creditors illustrate Christ's principle of forgiveness. 1. The gracious creditor (v. 23-27). The king in this parable represents God. The servant who is greatly in debt represents the sinner, any sinner, every sinner—you and me. We were hopelessly in debt to God. Ten thousand talents are equal to twelve millions of dollars. To meet this obligation would be an utter impossibility. This man's plea for time, promising to pay all, resembles man's vain imagining that he can pay his debt to God, that by his future good works he can atone for past sins.

2. The cruel creditor (v. 28-35). The man who was forgiven so much found a man who owed him a small sum—perhaps seventeen dollars. He shut his ears to this man's entreaty to have patience with him, flew at his throat, and cruelly put him into jail. The great mercy shown the one whose debt had been forgiven did not touch his heart, so he refused to be merciful. Being set free from so great a debt as our sins against God, we should not take up some slight consideration against our brothers, but should make God's act of unlimited forgiveness toward us a standard of unlimited forgiveness toward others. (1) We, every one, continue to need every day the forgiveness of God. When we pray, "Forgive us our debts as we forgive our debtors," let us be sure that we have put away all thought of sin held against others. No mercy will be shown to those who have not shown mercy.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Wegryzn Eva and Pauline visited at the John Hrebec home Sunday.

CHILDREN FIGHT EYE STRAIN

They FIGHT it. They don't know what is wrong. Cannot be expected to know. Sometimes afflicted children neglect their studies. Never really apply themselves. They hate books. And this just because their eyes are disturbing their nervous balance. Interested parents should interview us.

Easter program at 11 a. m. as follows: Short address by pastor; Reception of members; in conclusion, children's Easter program. I humbly ask all teachers and parents to help open the Door for the children and tenderly gather them into the fold.

If a church is about its Masters business it will not neglect this opportunity. Whatever there may be of special music and Easter exercises let it be remembered that the main issue is the salvation of the soul. The special Easter service is not an end in itself, but a means to a great end. A. L. Zimmerman, Pastor.

Obituary.
Francis Emmeline Anderson was born near Greenfield, Ohio, June 10, 1852 and died at Hastings, Nebr., April 5, 1930 at the age of seventy-seven years, nine months and twenty-five days.

February 28, 1876 she was married to Millard Corwin Moon, to which union were born six children. Three children died in infancy and three, Alonzo, Doris and Stella still survive. Her earlier married life was spent in Iowa, and she moved to the homestead at Arcadia in 1883, where she lived since that time excepting about five years spent at Mitchell, Nebr. Her husband died here 23 years ago and was laid to rest in the Lee Park cemetery. Mrs. Moon is also survived by three brothers, three sisters and fifteen grand children.

She was a Christian all of her life. She always believed in being neighborly and made, kept and valued many friendships. She tried ever to wield her influence positively for the right.

Funeral services were held at the Congregational church Tuesday afternoon April 8 at 2 o'clock, Rev. Burleigh conducting the services. Burial was made in the Lee Park cemetery.

Legion Auxiliary Meets.
The Legion Auxiliary enjoyed an all day meeting Friday. As carpenters were busy building a platform in the M. E. church basement, Mrs. A. E. Weddel kindly invited us over there to quilt. Mrs. Lyle and Mrs. W. B. Bueck served a delicious dinner in the basement at noon. About 11 members and Mrs. A. E. Weddel, Mrs. Gildner, Mrs. Routh and Mrs. J. H. Marvel were present.

The quilt was finished and will be sent to a sick nurse in California.

It was not decided where the next meeting will be held.

Verna Gregory, Publicity Chairman
Hahn-Lindsey.

The marriage of Mrs. Bernice Hahn and R. D. Lindsey took place Monday evening, April 7th at 8 o'clock at the home which the groom had prepared for his bride in Glendale, California.

Bernice is the daughter of A. C. Duryea of Arcadia, and is well known in this vicinity. She is a graduate of the Arcadia high school and for several years conducted the Welcome Beauty Shoppe. She left Arcadia last summer for Glendale, Calif., where she was employed until her marriage. Attractive and of a pleasing personality, she was always held in high regard in her home community.

The groom is a resident of Glendale where he conducts a news service. He is an ex-service man and has been very successful in his line of business.

Mr. and Mrs. Lindsey will reside in Glendale, Calif., and the many friends of Mrs. Lindsey extend to her and her husband the very best wishes for their future happiness.

Receives High Grade.

Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Schank drove to Hastings on Tuesday of last week where Mrs. Schank took the examination for a hair cutter's permit which was given by members of the state board. The examination was given at the Clark hotel and consisted of a demonstration test in hair cutting and also a written examination. Mrs. Schank received her grades this week and was very pleased to learn that her grades were excellent in fact, much higher than were made by the majority of those taking the examination.

First Visit in 48 Years.
Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Bennett, Ray Bennett and Richard Schwartz drove to Judge Cattle at Hastings where they spent the day with Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Bennett who are residing there at present. This was the first trip that Mrs. Bennett had made in 48 years and at that time, Mr. and Mrs. Bennett made the journey with team and wagon taking two days to reach their destination. Modern means of transportation receive their just amount of appreciation by those who experienced the difficulties of earlier days.

Glenn Buck, promotion secretary, a recent issue of the Nebraska State Journal contained a picture of Glenn W. Buck, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. R. Buck of Arcadia. The following article accompanied the picture: "Glenn W. Buck, Indianapolis, who was graduated from Doane in 1923, has accepted the position of promotion secretary for the college, according to the announcement of President Edwin B. Dean. During college days Mr. Buck was prominent in football. After finishing at Doane, he went to Harvard law school where he spent two years. Later he completed his law course at Northwestern university, receiving the degree of juris doctor in 1928."

Mr. Buck has had four years experience with promotion of financial endowments of some eight different colleges in various parts

Hill's Give Clothing Business to Creditors

Doors of the Hill & Hill clothing store here were locked last Friday when Alfred Hill and Ernest Hill, for six years owners of the establishment, acknowledged judgment and turned the business over to their creditors.

Alfred Hill, senior partner, had been interested in the store for eleven years. For five years it was known as the Perryman-Hill clothing store and six years ago Mr. Perryman sold his interest to Ernest Hill, the firm name being changed to Hill & Hill.

Their plans for the future are indefinite, "Alfy" Hill told the Quiz Monday. Neither he nor "Ernie" plans to leave Ord, however.

Experts Pronounce Ord Cream Superior

Dairymen Visit Co-op Here, Test Cream In National Movement To Better Quality of Butter.

A party of men headed by William A. White, of the United States department of agriculture, division of dairying, has been making a tour of Nebraska towns recently, inspecting dairy manufacturing plants and cream buying stations, as a part of the movement intended to improve the quality of cream produced in Nebraska.

The party was in Ord a few days ago, and after securing samples of local cream and testing it for acidity, flavor, etc., pronounced it superior in quality to that found in many of the cream centers they had visited.

Men making the trip with Mr. White were James Lawrence, of the division of marketing in the state agricultural college, H. A. Scheidtm, of the dairying department of the same school, and H. P. Davis, an employee in the dairying division of the state department of agriculture.

The work is being carried on by the federal government, the state government, and the extension department of the college of agriculture of the University of Nebraska. The Nebraska Co-operative Creamery Association, of which Fred Coe of Ord is president, is also assisting in the program.

As a part of the program, a demonstration in the local creamery has been planned to take place some time next month, according to Mr. Coe. At this time a cooling tank will be built, and experts from the university will be on hand to explain methods of improving cream quality.

W. H. Brokaw, director of the agricultural extension department of the college of agriculture, and H. P. Davis, professor of dairying in the college, are particularly active in the movement.

In addition to this new station the co-operative will continue to operate the station leased from C. C. Brown.

STUDENTS WIN 21 PRIZES AT NORTH PLATTE

Anthony Kokes Is State Champ In Babcock Tests; Dairy Team Wins First Place.

The ten Ord Smith-Hughes students entered in the sixteenth annual Nebraska high school agricultural contests at North Platte last Thursday and Friday brought back a total of 21 prizes. Anthony Kokes won the blue ribbon and the state championship medal in the Babcock dairy tests, was a member of the dairy products judging team which won second, and was fourth high ranking individual in the grain judging and identification contest, to top the performance of the Ord delegation.

The boys were accompanied to North Platte by their instructor, Jesse A. Kovanda, who prepared them for competition. Nineteen high schools were entered. In the Babcock dairy tests contests, each entrant runs a test on milk, cream, and skim milk and writes an examination on technical principles involved in the tests.

The dairy products judging team with Bud Brickner, Adrian Tolen, and Anthony Kokes competing, won first place and a blue ribbon in cream judging and dropped to fourth in milk judging to finish second in an examination on technical principles involved in the tests.

The grain judging and identification team composed of Anthony Kokes, Eldon Lukesh, and Adrian Tolen won fourth place. Charles Barnhart, Valerian Ciochon, and Marion Stillwell were entered both as the dairy cattle judging team and as the general livestock judging team. The group came within striking distance of both trophy cups, placing second as a team in judging dairy cattle Thursday and fourth as a team in judging general livestock Friday. Sixteen schools had teams entered in each of these contests.

Bud Brickner won second place in the public speaking contest for members of the Future Farmers of America. George Vasek captured third place in the farm shop contest out of a field of eighteen contestants, receiving a white ribbon and a carpenter's rule as awards. Charles Barnhart won third prize on an exhibit of white eggs at the egg show. Emanuel Sevener sent a dozen eggs which won third in the brown egg class. There were over 40 exhibits in this division.

Mary Eret To Have Operation. Mrs. Mary Eret is to submit to a serious operation at her Oklahoma home and her sisters, Mrs. Frank J. Stars of Ord and Mrs. Will Wisda of Lexington, are leaving the latter part of this week for Oklahoma to be with her during and after her operation. The many Ord friends of the Eret family, who lived here for many years, will be awaiting word of Mrs. Eret's recovery.

Garrulous Parrots, Barking Dogs, Women Who 'Fib' About Their Age Are Few Of Difficulties Encountered by Enumerator

Strangest things happen to census enumerators. They encounter conditions of all sorts, ranging from women having babies to women doing washings. They get in on family quarrels when the husband and the wife disagree as to their respective ages. They are showered with confidences, turned loose by the rather personal questions asked by the census sheet. They go into houses so clean that one could eat off of the floor and feel comfortable about it, and into houses so dirty that they are physically depressed. All of this is a part of the everyday experience of the many people engaged in counting the population of the United States, and the more important facts about its history.

Mrs. E. C. Leggett, who is gathering census information in Ord, has had all of these widely varied experiences and then some. She has learned to pronounce most of the names which defy the person who speaks only English; she has made acquaintance with two parrots, one of which is particularly about whom he talks to, and with a police dog who threatened at first to chew her up; she has even found some women who "fibbed" about their ages! One pair of shoes is completely "shot" by her travels to date. She started on the second pair Tuesday morning.

One parrot, which is at least 45 years old, now belongs to Mrs. Will Ramsey. It was formerly the property of Mrs. James Milford's parents, the Ratliffs. Another bird belonging to Mrs. Ned Powers is a garrulous creature. When it doesn't have anything in particular to talk about, it mumbles along rapidly, with only an occasional Planting trees, shrubbery and flowers after a plan laid out by Dr. Gregg, of Wesleyan university, district 40 school observed Arbor Day Tuesday. Under the direction of their teacher, Mrs. Dessie Needham, students of the school gave a fine program. Evet Smith, director of the board, told about having Dr. Gregg landscape the school yard recently. Trees, shrubbery, bulbs and flowers then were set out and it is hoped that with the co-operation of patrons and children the plan outlined by Dr. Gregg can be carried out in full. The new plantings will be cared for during the summer by the Country Club. A feature of the Arbor Day program was a bountiful dinner served by the Country Club.

Would Recover $325 From Former Minister

In a suit filed in the district court last week, the W. T. Rawleigh company attempts to recover from Jacob W. Severn and Frank M. Norman $325.55, the amount which Homer A. Turner, former pastor of the Christian church in Ord, failed to pay for goods he had received from the company.

Suit had been filed and judgment against Turner recovered by the company in Illinois, but an attempt to collect the amount failed because there was no property on which to levy. The action against Severn and Norman asks for the amount which Turner is alleged to have neglected to pay plus interest since April, 1929, and costs.

Turner, while here, purchased goods valued at $1624.22 from Rawleigh's, and paid the company $1298.67, leaving the balance mentioned in the suit.

Tells Rotarians About Arbor Day

Bowers Tells Significance of World Holiday Started by Morton; Dale, VanDecar, Skov Also Speak.

A talk by President C. C. Bowers on the history of Arbor Day and its significance, another on the trees best suited to this region by C. C. Dale, and a brief account of his recent trip to Texas by H. B. VanDecar, made up the program at the regular weekly meeting of the Rotary club. H. D. Leggett had as his guest Elmer Skov, who is working on the Quiz as an assignment from the University, who spoke briefly on the journalism work offered at Lincoln.

In his talk on Arbor Day, Mr. Bowers told of its origin by J. Sterling Morton, and of its relative narrowness of field as it started near Nebraska City. He contrasted the widespread character of the celebration today to this small beginning. Mr. Bowers mentioned the lack of respect for forested areas in the United States, and cited as a contrast the difficulty encountered in France during the world war when a machine gun company, practicing, tore up a small forest on a hillside which was being used as a bank for the bullets. After emphasizing the importance of the movement, he introduced C. C. Dale, who told of the plan of the extension service for placing trees in the hands of farmers, at a cost to the farmer of one cent per tree, and described the planting of a windbreak.

Announcement was made of plans to attend the meeting in Anselmy to present a charter to the group there Tuesday evening.

J. Hlavacek Leases Former Hill Store

The building in which Hill & Hill have conducted a clothing store for many years will be converted into a meat market soon, it is learned today. Jerry Hlavacek has leased the building from its owner, Frank Stars, and will occupy the new location within a few weeks. For many years this location was used as a meat market, Frank Stars having established such a business there in 1901. In 1911 he sold to a man named Steinworth, who later sold to Mr. Doman, who sold out to F. M. Gross, now of Albion. The building burned while Mr. Gross was in business there and when it was rebuilt in 1914 it was leased by the Gamble & Perryman clothing store and has been used ever since as a clothing establishment, first by Gamble & Perryman later by Perryman & Hill and for the last six years by Hill & Hill.

FLAMES EXACT HEAVY TOLL IN MIDNIGHT BLAZE

Floor Caves In Big Merchandise Stock Ruined By Smoke and Water; Burger Cuts Foot Badly.

Damage approximating $55,000 was done Saturday night when the People's Store was completely gutted by a fire which started from an unknown cause shortly before 11 o'clock. Burning most of the time in the basement with flames visible only a few times, the blaze was peculiarly difficult to fight, but firemen chopped holes in the sidewalk in front of the building and poured four streams of water into the store from both ends. The loss is estimated at $30,000 for the stock and $25,000 for the building. Everything is covered by insurance.

Plans for reestablishing the store are as yet uncertain, according to Jos. P. Barta, partner with Anthony Koupal in the firm. However, tentative plans call for rebuilding and resumption of business. Before the fire, steps were being taken toward establishing the store as one of the Benjamin Franklin chain of locally owned businesses, and two-thirds of the fixtures in the building at the time of the fire were new equipment, secured for that purpose.

The management of the store has rented the building formerly occupied by the Kohl undertaking establishment, and will move all merchandise salvaged from the fire into that room, where it will be examined by appraisers for the insurance company.

Inability to get into the basement, where the fire was thought at the time to be, caused the department some difficulty in getting the blaze under control, since there was no way of getting in but through the sidewalk. Water could not be thrown clear back into the basement because of the lowness of the ceiling and the four streams were then thrown on the ground floor in an attempt to drown the flames.

At some time during the fire the floor fell down into the basement, but smoke was so thick that the fall was not noticed until an attempt was made to go back into the basement and the wreckage of the first floor was encountered.

After about four hours of fighting, when the crowd had dispersed thinking the excitement over, flame broke out in the northwest corner of the roof but was soon in check. Sunday morning water in the basement of the store was almost four feet deep, and a pump was used to remove it. However, considerable damage was done to the adjoining buildings, Ed Beranek's drug store on the north and Parsons' jewelry and bakery on the south. Mr. Beranek estimated that repairing the damage done to plaster and paint by smoke and water would run close to $1,000. Mr. Parsons was uncertain as to damage done to his shop, and the bakery escaped with little harm done.

Forrest Johnson, owner of the bakery, chopped a hole in the sewer and drained the water out of his basement as fast as it came through the wall.

Lawrence Burger, while helping to carry a show case from the burning building, was severely cut in the foot by a splinter of glass. Although no one was completely overcome by smoke, several of the men had narrow escapes while trying to locate the flame.

The fire might have been started by a short in the wiring, according to Mr. Barta. He explained that the fact that the lights were still on after the blaze started did not indicate that all of the wiring was still good, since there are several circuits in the building.

The People's Store was one of the oldest in Ord. Anthony Koupal, who was manager since 1919 when he and Mr. Barta bought the store in partnership and incorporated it, started to work there as a boy, and made his way up to part ownership in the enterprise. The firm changed hands several times before coming into the possession of Koupal and Barta.

Achievement Day May 7. The date for Achievement day for the women's extension clubs has been tentatively set at May 7, according to C. C. Dale, county agent.

Woodman Hall

Easter has come and gone but the wintry weather refuses to depart and the radio report this Monday morning says, "continued cold and frost tonight," which does not sound so good to us farmers. Our grade school planted a few trees Monday consisting of ash, chinese elm and pine. These trees are given free to all schools in the county that wish to take them and take care of them. A little grove would be a great improvement on any school ground besides providing windbreak and shade which is much needed at most schools. Who will have the nicest grove!

The two schools of our district attended the two-room rural scholastic and track meet at Ord last Friday. This is our second year of attendance and we have shown improvement by gaining an increase in scores. In comparison with other schools, ours is very small and yet our interest is very large, especially among the students, says our teacher. We would certainly like to develop an equal interest among the parents who would enjoy attending the contest. This is a very busy time of year but next year let us not forget and lay aside our work for this one day and live over our school days with our children, show them our interest by our presence and let us see the competition our children will have in life after leaving school. The following scores were won by our schools: first in third grade reading, Mildred Waldmann; first in High School Latin, Eldon Rybin; second in High School Latin, Lumir Vodehnal. In athletics, first in broad jump, Paul Waldmann and tie for first in the 100 yard dash, Paul Waldmann. We wish to take this opportunity to thank the parents for the use of cars for transportation.

Nearly $150 has been expended on improvements in the high school room this year. A book case, victrola, teachers desk, books for our new library and paint for the floor and desks, which the teacher and students applied. The money was earned by our high school play, a carnival and community play. "We would enjoy having the parents visit us and see what we have done," says Miss Hnizda. So let's go.

Joe Waldmann purchased a new Chevrolet car from Graham and Seyler last Friday.

ORD MUSTANGS WIN, 6 TO 4, IN OPENING GAME

Broken Bow Indians Are Victims As Locals Pile Up Lead In First, Krejci Hits 1,000

Opening the Loup Valley league season at Broken Bow last Sunday Manager Charley Arnold's Ord Mustangs clouted the ball hard and took advantage of Pierce's early wildness to win, 6 to 4. A large number of local fans saw four Ord runners cross the plate in the first inning, another score in the sixth and another in the ninth. The fine performance turned in by the Mustangs augurs well for the success of baseball in Ord this summer.

Clyde Baker drew the hurling assignment for Ord Sunday and for the first three innings breezed along well, holding the Bow Indians scoreless. In the fourth stanza the Indians pushed a pair of tallies across on three hits and two walks and in the fifth when Baker strode to the mound he was greeted by a single by Gardner and a screaming three-bagger by Young which scored Gardner. The Ord manager then sent Baker to second base in place of Furtak, called Hill from the outfield to the mound and sent Lynn Beeghly to Hill's position in right field.

The fine performance turned in for the rest of the game by Ernie "Lefty" Hill showed fans that the old arm hasn't lost its cunning. Taking the hillcock with a runner on base and none out in the fifth, Hill allowed only two hits and one run in five innings and retired four by the strike-out route.

Only one error was chalked up against the Ord team, Third Baseman Covert musing up Francis' hard hit grounder in the ninth inning. Edgie Johnson, Ord shortstop, looked better than he ever has before although he pulled a "Steve Brody" in the fourth. Fielding Pierce's hard hit grounder perfectly he held the ball, undecided where to throw, while Elingson reached third and Pierce was safe on first. Pidge more than made up for this bobble, however, by handling everything perfectly that came his way and contributing a smashing two-bagger in the fourth inning.

Joe Krejci compiled the best batting record of any member of Arnold's team. The big centerfielder drew one walk, was hit twice by the pitcher and got two hits in five trips to the plate, which gave him a perfect batting average for the day. His triple in the sixth inning scored Heuck and he scored two runs himself, pilfering a pair of bases in the ninth after being walked and scoring on Covert's single.

Others who hit well included Covert and Baker with two safe blows each, and Heuck and Hill, who got one hit apiece. Clyde Athey, who went in at first in place of Bill Heuck in the seventh inning, played a bang-up game. He went way back after Gardner's fly in the ninth inning and cut off what looked like a sure hit with a difficult catch that was applauded by the crowd.

Next Sunday the Mustangs play at Arcadia and with a little rearrangement of players the Arnold team should have a good chance of bringing home the bacon. It is probable that a large crowd will accompany the team to Cadville as intense rivalry has always existed between the two towns.

DISTRICT 37 WINS ANNUAL MEET, BARKER SECOND

Hayes Creek School Pulls Ahead On Afternoon Track Events; Elyria Places Third.

District number 37, the Hayes Creek school, taught by Miss Marcia Rood and Miss Ella Williams, won the annual Valley county meet for two room schools, held Friday in the high school auditorium and at the fair grounds. Three points behind, for a close second, was the Barker school, district number 3, taught by Mrs. Bernice Caneedy and Miss Ella Mae Sershen. Elyria, with Miss Lucille Green and Miss Myrtle Green teaching, finished third, with the Davis Creek and Fussville schools placing fourth and fifth. The only two-room school in the county not attending the meet was Haskell Creek.

Scores for the day: District 37, 54; District 3, 51; District 63, 25 5-6; District 36, 22 1/2; District 24, 19 1-3; District 10, 17 5-6; District 73, 9 1/2.

Throughout the day the contest was very close between the schools placing first and second. At the close of the scholastic competition in the morning, Barker school was ahead with 29 points, while the Hayes Creek students had scored but 24 1/2. According to Miss Clara McClatchey, the morning contest was very close, with no students particularly outstanding. In the afternoon however, several athletes showed up.

Velma Holmes and Helen Malopeszky did good work in the jumps. They were from District 37. Evelyn Leonard, from District 10, also showed up good in this branch. In the standing high jump, Edward Arnold and Lloyd Lybarger cleared 3 feet 11 inches, and 3 feet 10 inches respectively, and did well in the running high jump which was won by Harold Rich of District 24 with Albin Carkoski of District 63 second.

The three-legged race was won by District 37, which entered a boy and a girl running together.

According to Miss McClatchey, the smaller schools are handicapped in the meet by not having a sufficient number of students to enter in every event.

By GEORGE ROUND, JR.

Rumor has it that Comstock is to be represented by a baseball team this year. In the past few years they have had an independent nine and it appears to me that they will have to get into a baseball league if they expect to keep up their baseball interest. The Central Nebraska League has made baseball in North Loup what it is. They will probably be more interested there in the national pastime this year than ever before.

From unofficial authority I learn that Herbert Colwell, former Ord high school athletic mentor, is in the state of Washington coaching and directing athletics in some high school. He is married and it is reported that he has a recent addition to his family. "Cowie" had many friends here while coaching. After leaving Ord high, he went to Central City where he coached for one year.

Ord people are anxiously awaiting Alexander's first turn at mound duty for the Philadelphia nationals. They want to know just what Alex is going to look like. It seems to be the popular opinion that Alexander will not be such a big help to the Phillies as the daily newspapers seem to think. Winter training at St. Paul failed to keep him fit, according to people who saw him in action during his vacation time. Time will tell what help Alexander will be to the Phillies.

Usually at this time of the year, baseball enthusiasts in the neighborhood of Joint, a community north of Ord, are out in the cow pasture warming up the "ole soup bone." During past years that community has been represented by one of the fastest country nines in this section of the state. They play a strong schedule, including many town teams and win their share of the games. Elmer Hallock has been one of the moving spirits behind the organization during the past few years and one of the big reasons for its success. He takes a keen interest in baseball around the Joint community and people there appreciate it.

Lumir Beran, star track athlete at Ord high, is expected to enroll at the University of Nebraska next fall as a freshman. He graduates from Ord this year and plans to take up pre-med work, later going to Omaha to finish at the medical college. While in Ord high, Beran has been a consistent long distance track star. Coach Joe Krejci will miss him from his track team next spring.

Another Ord high school athletic director whom Ord fans remember quite well is Raymond Noyes. He is now athletic coach at Chadron high school out in the western part of the state. He went to Chadron immediately after leaving the Ord schools. Noyes has had unusual success at Chadron and his teams have been among the outstanding ones in the western part of the state in past years.

Arcadia-Scotia Clash Post-poned Sunday

The Loup Valley league game between Scotia and Arcadia scheduled for last Sunday was postponed because of the poor condition of the diamond at Scotia. Heavy rains left the diamond almost a quagmire.

Litchfield Beats Ansley Team, 9 to 3

The Litchfield team of the Loup Valley league defeated Ansley last Sunday, 9 to 3, in a fast game featured by the hurling of Beryl Lang for Litchfield. Lang is a former University of Nebraska pitcher and hurled for Ord three years ago. Litchfield's defeat of Ansley was unexpected, as Ansley had one of the fastest teams in the league last year.

22 Teams Had Entered Track Meet at Burwell

Twenty-two high schools had entered teams in the Wrangler track and field meet which was scheduled to be held at Burwell last Friday and which has been postponed to May 16. Teams entered included Norfolk, North Loup, Ansley, Albion, Ericson, Spalding, Scotia, Comstock, Burwell, Anselmo, Longwood, Sargent, Wheeler Co. high, Arcadia, Atkinson, Taylor, Broken

Bow, Ord, Callaway, Dry Valley, St. Paul, Butte. Most of these teams and possibly two or three others are expected May 16.

My Own Column By H. D. Leggett

If President Hoover was a candidate this year he would, in my judgment, be defeated by almost any man the democrats would think of nominating against him, solely on the issue of this country joining the league of nations court. The American people, I fully believe, are very strongly against this matter of our mixing up in European matters.

A petition or perhaps several of them, have been filed with the proper state official asking Hon. Bert M. Hardenbrook of this county to become a candidate for attorney general of Nebraska on the republican ticket. While it is understood that Mr. Hardenbrook will accept the filing and become a candidate, he has not yet done so. It is still several months before the primary election and he has plenty of time to do so.

If Mr. Hardenbrook decides to become a candidate it is likely he will have as his chief opponent Hon. C. A. Sorensen the present occupant of the office who was elected two years ago and who is serving his first term. It is a pretty hard job for any candidate to go in and defeat a man who is running for a second term if that man has fairly well performed the duties of the office. I believe Mr. Sorensen has done that. In addition Mr. Sorensen is a clever politician. He has, while attending to the duties of the high office which he holds, always had an eye on the main political chance and if he has not laid his course to reap a political advantage he is not nearly as good a politician general as I think he is. It is true that he has made some enemies. Any man who does his duty is sure to do that. But he has made some friends also and in my judgment he is a mighty hard man to defeat should he want to succeed himself and be a candidate in the primary.

There are, however, some reasons why Mr. Hardenbrook will be a very strong candidate for the office he is being urged for. He has a definite program along lines which all agree should be given attention. He will go before the people with some definite objects in view, some suggestions for changes in the present laws, which if heeded by the next legislature, might result in much progress in this state along lines of crime suppression and law enforcement. Mr. Hardenbrook has been pointing away for several years on the changes which he knows should be made and he has no other ax to grind, whereas it is pretty well agreed that Mr. Sorensen is attorney general merely as a stepping stone to something else which he has long wanted, namely to succeed Senator Norris.

From a careful reading of the papers I am unable to get a very clear idea of what is really likely to happen this year in republican political ranks. Senator Norris is a candidate, at this time, for senator to succeed himself. There are two other candidates of record, both present state officers, Lieutenant Governor Williams and State Treasurer Stebbins. I personally believe that Senator Norris would like to drop out and that he might do so if his political enemies would let him alone. If he continues as a candidate I don't believe he can be defeated by any man in Nebraska. If he should decide to drop out Mr. Sorensen will be a candidate for senator as sure as shooting.

Governor Weaver, in my judgment, has been a good and conscientious governor and he is a fine man personally but I don't believe he is as popular as he was two years ago and I believe he will have the fight of his life to be elected. If Charley Bryan is a candidate on the democrat ticket and Bryan is pretty sure to be a candidate. There are those who would like to see Governor Weaver file for senator and they believe he can defeat Norris. Of course if he filed he would resign as governor, which would make Mr. Williams governor and he would file for that office and make the race for governor instead of for senator. A way would also be found to eliminate Mr. Stebbins from the race and the knowing ones among local politicians claim to believe that Weaver would defeat Norris.

Then if Norris should decide to drop out there would be a real fight between Weaver and Sorensen for the office of United States senator and Hardenbrook would be chosen attorney general without much trouble. Mr. Hardenbrook has a wide acquaintance over the state. He has served as president of the strong county attorneys association and in the state bar association. He is a man who would be perfectly satisfactory to the dry element of the state. He is a member of the Masonic organization and he has a wide acquaintance over the state. Mr. Hardenbrook is also an able attorney competent to cope with the problems which would come to him as chief of the legal department of the state and Valley county and central Nebraska would be honored by having him in the office.

I believe Mr. Sorensen would very much rather be a candidate for senator than for attorney general again and I also believe he would be easily nominated should conditions shape themselves so he could become a candidate for that office. Of course so long as Mr. Norris is a candidate Mr. Sorensen will not be.

But there is another solution to the senator matter. I note that some of his democratic friends are urging Emerson Purcell to get into the race for U. S. Senator and why not. He would have the support of a large share of the weekly press of the state and stranger things have happened than that he might be elected. Some seem to think this is going to be a democratic year. I don't know of any democrat I would rather vote for than Emerson Purcell.

QUIZ FORUM

In Appreciation
Comstock, Nebr., Apr. 15 1930.
Dear Quiz:

Since I have recovered sufficiently from my illness, to be able to return home I feel it my duty to thank my many friends for the many acts of kindness, the visits to the hospital to help shorten the dreary hours and the many flowers, and many surprises I received. Thank you many times over and I hope I'll be able to return the kind deeds in some way. The fifth of March I was called to the home of my daughter to help usher a new life, a new grandson into this world and only three days later, like a bolt of lightning from a clear sky I was stricken down with sickness. What took place the next few days I know little of until they placed me in an ambulance and took me to the hospital at Ord. Thanks to the Lord, the efficiency of our physicians, the watchful, loving care of our nurses who did all in their power to ease my suffering and saved my life. When I recovered sufficiently I missed the Ord Quiz of course, and among the many other things I asked for was the Quiz and I was not disappointed in my request as the nurse was kind enough to call the Quiz office and in a short time several copies reached the hospital. I cannot speak for my fellow patients as I was not able to see them, but as for me I certainly appreciated it greatly. Many thanks. On the morning of my twentieth day at the hospital I looked out through my window, just as the sun had risen over the horizon and cast its soft mellow light over the city in the valley below which looked so peaceful and beautiful, and a robin, somewhere near my window cheered me with his morning notes which seemed to say, All is well if we only place our trust in Him.

Mrs. Jos. J. Waldmann.

THE MODERN MOTOR OIL

SAFEGUARDS HOT MOTORS

Complete removal of wax and tar from the new Polarine prevents this modern motor oil from running dangerously thin when heavy load and high speed cause the motor to heat.

Mud, sand and hard hills—plowing, disk-ing, harrowing—low speeds in low gear for miles heat any type of motor. That's when bearings burn out and wear is most severe—unless your motor oil holds its body.

The new Polarine is not surpassed by any oil, at any price, from any kind of crude in resistance to thinning by heat. It also deposits less than half as much carbon in the motor as any old process oil.

A premium quality oil by every test and specification, the new Polarine sets new lubrication standards. Sold at no advance in price.

Five Are Employed By Milling Company

Flour, Meal, Many Different Kinds Of Feeds Are Manufactured By the Ord Mills.

The Ord Milling company, using local products for the most part, manufactures an extensive line of flour, mashes, and meals. Managed by Roy Collison, the plant employs five men. Territory covered by the company extends as far west as Alliance.

Brands of flour put out by the company include Big Four, Big Six, Number One, Mellow D, and XXX. Other household products are: whole wheat flour, rye graham, rye flour, white corn meal, yellow corn meal, whole cracked wheat, self rising pancake flour, pure buckwheat flour, and self rising buckwheat flour.

Stock and poultry feeds make up an important part of the mill's output. Starting mash, growing mash, egg mash, mineral, calf meal, and pig meal are milled in Ord by this company.

Most of the ingredients for these mashes and meals are local products. Chemicals must be shipped in. Two grinders, one with an approximate capacity of 200 bushels per hour, make possible a total grinding capacity of close to 300 bushels per hour. The grinders will take care of anything, alfalfa, grain of any sort, and the cob, fodder, and even bones.

The mill has storage capacity for 15,000 bushels of grain, and ships in large quantities of wheat to take care of the demand for flour. Shipments to points along the Burlington high line are made by train. Local orders are filled by truck transportation.

Many Who Learned Lino Trade Have Good Jobs Now

The Ord Linotype school, started three years ago and run in connection with the Journal until the paper was bought by the Quiz, and conducted independently since then, has placed a number of operators in good positions. Irvin Tolen, formerly editor of the Journal, has been devoting his entire time to the conduct of the school since the paper was consolidated.

There are five machines in the school and all except one are in use. The fifth machine was in use up until last Thursday when Melvin Harris, after nine months of training, was sent to a position with the Progress Printing company, of Holdrege.

Other products of the school have been placed as follows: Eldon Werber, St. Joseph; Edmond Coats, Oshkosh; Pike Hill, Ogallala; Merritt Swanson, Omaha; Ralph Clifton, Harvard. Howard Roe, another graduate, is now owner of the Scotia Register. Several other men who have received their training with Mr. Tolen are now holding responsible positions.

Ord Co-op Creamery Manufactures Many Tons of Popcorn Valley Butter Yearly Established only a few years ago, the Ord Co-operative Creamery company furnishes cream producers with a good market and manufactures Valley county cream into Popcorn Valley butter, popular for table use in Ord and near-by towns and always high-scoring butter in Chicago and New York markets. Many tons are manufactured yearly.

Weekes Seed Co. Grinds Feed, Also Processes Popcorn

Preparing seed corn for the market and getting pop corn in shape for the wholesaler is the major function of the Weekes Seed House. Considerable business is derived from farmers who grow corn for the firm under contract, and from a wide area around Ord.

Seed corn is milled—sent through various screens to make it uniform in size, and cleaned. For local trade, the seed is hand picked to weed out inferior kernels, but for wholesale dealers the corn is milled only.

The larger part of the pop corn trade is intended for wholesale dealers, but some is sold to poppers who are able to buy in large quantities. Some of the pop corn is packed in 16 ounce packages for local distribution, but sale of the product to retailers is limited.

The seed house contracts for the entire yield from given acreages of land in advance of the growing season, thereby assuring the farmer of a market for his product, and of the price he is to receive for it. The "milling in transit" privilege enables the firm to contract for grain particularly in the region of Broken Bow, have it shipped to Ord for milling, and then on to any markets east of the Missouri river. Most of the pop corn, which is shipped in carload lots, goes to the west coast.

Furnishes Popcorn Market The Ord Seed House, under the management of Val Pullen, is engaged in the preparing of pop corn for the market. Large quantities are bought, cleaned, dried, and sacked for shipment.

Located in the heart of the pop corn region, the Seed House caters to a need of farmers for a market for their produce.

Nu-Way Cleaners Make Many Suits

Ord is represented in the manufacture of clothing by the Nu-Way cleaners. That firm, in addition to doing a general cleaning business, tailors suits from an extensive stock of woolsens. Frank Iron, manager of the concern, and B. Kominek, tailor, are engaged in the work.

Although orders are taken for custom tailored suits, a large number are made right here in Ord. Customers as far away as Grand Island patronize the local tailors. There are carried in stock woolsens in thirty-five different patterns, from which the buyer may choose.

Weller Hog House Sales Show Nice Increase Yearly

Weller Brothers Lumber company is in the manufacturing game with hog houses and brooder houses. Business is picking up, showing considerable gain over that of last year, with more hog houses already built since January first than were put out during 1929.

The Weller hog houses are of the bungalow type, built on a pattern used by Henry Hrbek, a manager of the company. Bert Needham is the carpenter in charge.

Since January, the total output of hoghouses has been thirty, as compared with twenty six built last year. According to Mr. Hrbek there is an increasing demand for the double size shelter this year, and several of that style are being produced.

Brooder houses are distributed over a fairly wide territory. Last year, some were sold to customers living near Arcadia. Seventeen of these were sold in 1929. So far this year, seven have been sold.

Co-op Creamery Big Manufacturer

Several Carloads of Butter Shipped Out Each Year. Poultry and Eggs Also Bought and Shipped.

The Ord Creamery, managed by Fred Coe, handles an enormous volume of cream, eggs, and poultry, using thoroughly modern, scientific sanitary equipment. The creamery is expanding, crowding its old quarters almost to the limit. Employing five men regularly, it requires fourteen to keep abreast of the Saturday rush.

Cream cans are handled on a new steam rack which steams, washes, and again steams the cans before drying them. Three pasteurizers, each with a capacity of 300 gallons, prepare the cream for the churn, which turns out butter in 900 pound lots.

Butter is put up in pound prints, and in tubs. The print butter, under the trade name of Popcorn Valley butter, is distributed for sale on local markets. Butter in bulk is sent to Chicago, where it is distributed all over the east.

The volume of business done by the Creamery is constantly increasing. Last year, 391,000 pounds of butter were marketed. The cream business in the second year showed a 10 per cent. increase over that of the first. The third year's business increased 20 per cent over the second year's, and so far this year, a 25 per cent increase over last year has been noted.

136,000 dozens of eggs were bought by the Creamery last year, representing an increase of 35 per cent. over the year before. The 159,000 pounds of poultry bought last year was a 40 per cent. increase over the preceding year. A total of 32,780 checks were written in payment for produce bought during 1929. Prices during the year averaged 18.3 cents per pound for poultry, 25 1/2 cents a dozen for eggs, and 46.8 cents per pound for cream.

Joe Rowbal Does Sheet Metal Work

Joe Rowbal, plumber and repair man, is constantly in demand for odd construction jobs in sheet metal. Whenever anyone hits upon an idea for some new device in the line of chicken waterers, ventilators, and contrivances of a similar nature, he heads for Joe's shop with the specifications.

Rowbal does any sort of sheet metal work that does not require special machinery, and turns out a great variety of jobs. Sheet metal tanks of varying sizes, unique hog waterers, an elbow to replace one on a corn sheller, in fact "anything reasonable," as Mr. Rowbal says, comes from the shop.

Misko Harness Shop In Business Here Forty-eight Years

Ord's oldest firm, the Misko harness shop, is still engaged in the manufacture of harness. It is one of the few establishments in the state producing hand made harness, which is carried in stock along with factory made leather goods. Frank Misko, the founder has retired from active business and the work is carried on by William, his son, with another son, Henry, assisting.

Two men are engaged in this work steadily. In the spring, when repair work is crowding, a third is sometimes employed.

When Frank Misko first set up his business in 1882, by far the larger part of his time was devoted to the making of harness, with the coming of the automobile and the tractor, this sort of work has naturally fallen off and has given in part to repairing of automobile curtains, upholstery, and tops.

The manufacture of harness is carried on mainly during slack seasons in repair work, but a stock is maintained for those who wish to buy a product which is not turned out by machines.

Hog Houses, Brooder Houses Are Built By Sack Lumber Co.

The Sack Lumber and Coal company has built a good many hog houses and brooder houses this winter and spring. The work is done by local carpenters during dull times and in rainy weather.

All houses are built according to specifications furnished by the Nebraska state agricultural college, and have been tested thoroughly to ascertain their adaptability to this climate.

Both hog houses and brooder houses are finished products, painted and ready for use. The brooders are built on skids for easy transportation. Hog houses are of the A type.

Ord Bakery Makes All Oven Products

Ord's demand for baked goods is supplied by the Ord Bakery, managed by Forrest Johnson. Bread, cake, cookies, rolls, and pastry are baked by Fred Olson and a helper.

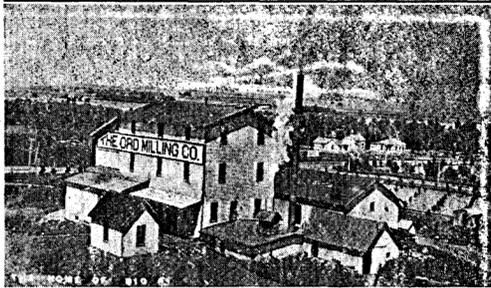

The bakery specializes in Danish pastry. Strictly sanitary throughout, the shop is equipped with modern machinery. A new high speed mixer is used in mixing bread dough. An electric wrapping machine automatically seals the bread into waxed paper wrappers. A moulding machine and a cake mixer are also among the equipment used. The oven has a capacity of 300 loaves.

Flour and Many Different Feeds Are Made By Ord Mills; Custom Grinding Is Done

The Ord Milling company is probably Ord's best known manufacturing concern. blast method are first coated with rubber cement. Then the letters to be cut in the stone are cut from the rubber coating, and the sand blast directed into the breaks in the coating. Where the rubber remains, the stone is not affected by the sand, but where it has been removed the sand digs in.

Some of the lettering on the stones is done by hand chiselling. Another variety of sand blast lettering is practiced in the cutting of designs on plates of glass and covering the back of the plate with a colored substance. This makes the sand blast lettering stand out in contrast to the clear glass.

Ord Cement Works Produces Crypts

Cement products of several different varieties are manufactured by the Ord Cement Works, owned by Lawrence Burger and Company. Everlasting burial crypts are a specialty of the firm. These are of the self sealing type and are unusually durable. Ornamental work such as vases, bird baths, and decorations of various sorts are also made. Cement blocks for building purposes of course form a large item of the company's business and tile for drainage purposes also has been made. The cement works are located next door to the Ord Monument Works.

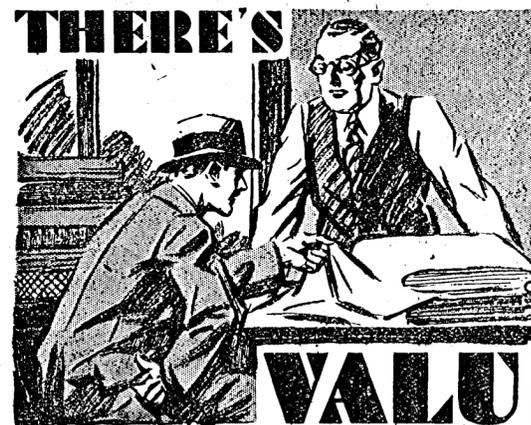

Many Other Manufacturers. There are several other manufacturers in Ord who are co-operating in this special section. Included are the three Ord meat markets, all of whom manufacture meat specialties of various sorts. Thorne's cafe and the New Cafe also have ads in this section. Cream Producers

Do not get alarmed by this talk about OVER PRODUCTION of dairy products.

WE claim that there is no over production, but that under consumption of dairy products is the cause of low cream prices.

The number of milk cows in the U. S. on January 1st, 1929, was 4,000 less than in 1928 and was the lowest number on record for the past seven years with the exception of 1927.

Storage holdings of butter decreased ten million pounds last month, even in the face of increased production.

What does this mean? It means that the people of the United States are eating more butter since its food value has been called to their attention. When this surplus is wiped out the Dairy business will get back to normal. Sell your unprofitable cows to the butcher but don't part with good dairy cows unless you get what they are worth.

You can help get the Dairy business back to normal by using milk, cream and butter freely on your own tables and by asking your Grocer to discontinue selling a cheap substitute which has already reduced your Cream check and your buying power considerable.

From Farm to Consumer

It is the business of the Ord Seed House to take the raw material, in the shape of the various kinds of popcorn and sweet corn and manufacture them into a product ready for the consumer to use. Many times the popcorn which looks so nice when the consumer puts it into the popper, comes to us with husks and silk on and it is our business to prepare it for use by putting it through husker, sheller, cleaners and scourer, after which it is sacked and sent forward in carload lots to the large eastern and western markets.

We place contracts with the growers for such acreage as our trade demands. An important part of our business is the grinding into feed all grain that does not come fully up to the high standard required for our fancy trade.

THE STORY

CHAPTER I—At the Warren ranch, the "Three Bar," on the fringe of the "cow country," a stranger applies for work as a rider. He is engaged by the owner, Williamette Ann Warren—known to all as "Billie." The girl's father, Cal Warren, had been the original owner of the place. The question whether the territory is to remain "cow country" or be opened to settlement is a troublesome one.

CHAPTER II—Cattle rustlers have been troubling the ranch owners, the Three Bar, with a girl boss having suffered more than others. The new hand gives his name as Cal Harris. By his announcement in favor of a rider known as Morrow the will made by Cal Warren stipulated that half the property should go to the son of his old friend, William Harris, under certain conditions. The new arrival is the man and he discloses the fact to Billie. The girl is suspicious of the new rider and takes counsel with her friend, the ranch cook, "Waddles." He quiets her fears.

"How many times have I told you to knock?" she demanded. "The next time you forget it I'll go out as you come in."

Slade dropped into a chair.

"I never have knocked—not in twelve years," he said.

"It was somewhat different when I was a small girl and you were only a friend of my father," she pointed out. "But now—"

"But now that I've come to see you as a woman it's different?" he inquired. "No reason for that."

She switched the channel of conversation and spoke of the coming roundup, of the poor condition of the range stock and of the severity of the winter; but it was a monologue. For a time the man sat and listened as if he enjoyed the sound of her voice, contributing nothing to the conversation himself, then suddenly he stirred in his chair and waved a hand to indicate the unimportance of the topics.

"Yes, yes; true enough," he interrupted. "But I didn't come to talk about that. When are you coming home with me, Billie?"

"And you can't come if you insist on talking about that," she countered.

"I'll come," he stated. "Tell me when you're going to move over to the Circle P."

"Not ever," she said. "I'd rather be a man's horse than his wife. Men treat women like little tinzel queens before, and afterward they answer to save a cook's wages and drudge their lives out feeding a bunch of half-starved hands—or else go to the other extreme. Wives are either work horses or pets. I was raised like a boy, and I want to have a say in running things myself."

Slade rose and moved over to her, taking her hands and lifting her from her chair.

The girl pushed him back with a hand braced against his chest.

"Stop it!" she said. "You're getting wilder every time you come, but you've never pawed at me before. I won't have people's hands on me," and she made a grimace of distaste.

The man reached out again and drew her to him. She wrenched away and faced Slade.

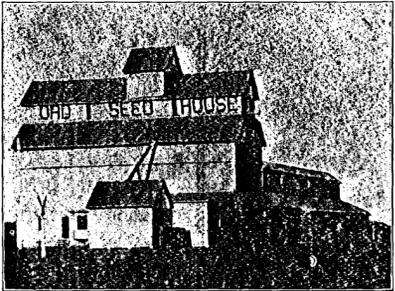

"That will be the last time you'll do that unless I give the word," she said. "I don't want the Circle P—or you. When I do I'll let you know."

He moved toward her again and she refused to back away from him but stood with her hands at her sides.

"If you put a finger on me it's the last time you'll visit the Three Bar," she calmly announced.

He stood so close as almost to touch her, but she failed to lift a hand or move back an inch, and Slade knew that he faced one whose spirit matched his own, perhaps the one person within a hundred miles who did not fear him. He had tamed men and horses—and women; he raised his arms slowly, deliberately, to see if she would flinch away or stand fast and out-game him. She knew that he was headless to her—and he knew it. He might perpetrate almost any crime on the calendar and come clear; but in this land where women were few they were honored. One whisper from the Three Bar girl that Slade had raised his hand against her, and now that as he was, the hunt for him would be on with every man's hand against him.

His arms had half circled her when he whirled, catlike, every faculty cool and alert, as a voice sounded from the door. Both had been too engrossed to notice its noiseless opening.

"I've finished cleaning up round the shop and corrals," Harris said. Is there any rubbish round the house you'd like to have thrown out and piled in a dry gulch somewhere out of sight?"

He stood in the door, half facing them, his left side quivering toward Slade. To the girl it appeared that the strange pose was for the purpose of enabling him to take a quick step to the right and spring outside if Slade should make a move and she felt a tinge of scorn at his precaution even though she knew that it would avail him nothing if Slade's deadly temper were roused by the insult. Slade, who had killed men, would add Harris to his list before he could move.

Slade's understanding of the quartering position and the odd sling of Harris' gun was entirely different as he shifted his feet until he faced the man in the door. His movements were slow and deliberate, nothing that could be misinterpreted.

"Who summoned you in here?" he demanded.

Harris did not reply but stood waiting for some word from the girl. She had a sudden sick dread that Slade would kill him and was surprised at the sentiment for no longer than an hour before she had wished him dead. She made a belated answer to his original question.

"No," she said. "Go on out, please."

He turned his back on Slade and went out.

"And you," she said to Slade, "you'd best be going, too. We've been too good neighbors to quarrel—unless you come over again with the same idea you did today."

At sunset the girl called to Harris and he repaired to the house and found her putting a hot meal for two on the end of the long pine table, the first time she had deigned to eat with him.

"There's no use of our going on like this," she said. "We've two years of it to face; so it's best to get on some kind of a neutral footing."

For her own peace of mind she had tried to smother her dislike of him and he was very careful to avoid any topic that would rekindle it. They washed the dishes together, and from that hour their relations, to all outward appearance, were friendly, or at least devoid of open hostility. But he knew that she was merely struggling to make the best of a matter that was distasteful, that her opinion of him was unaltered. Her bitterness could not be entirely concealed, and she frequently touched on some fresh point that added to her distrust of his present motives and confirmed her belief in his double dealing in the past. There were so many of these points; his refusal to accept her offer to give him his half-interest if he would stay off the place; his weak insinuations that there was some reason why he must spend two years on the Three Bar; his prowling the country for a year spying on the methods she followed in running the outfit, half of which would soon be his; his buying the school section and filling on a quarter of land, the location blocking the lower end of the Three Bar valley. Whenever she mentioned one of these he refused to take issue with her. And one night she touched on still another point.

"What was the reason for your first idea—of coming here under another name?" she demanded.

"I thought maybe others knew I'd been left a part interest," he said, "and it might be embarrassing. The way it is with only the two of us knowing the inside, I can stay on as a regular hand until the time is up."

"You're so plausible," she said. "You put it as a favor to me. Did it ever strike you that if the truth were known it might also be uncomfortable for you?"

He smiled across at her and once more she frowned as she discovered that he was likable for all his underhandedness.

"Worse than that—suicidal," he admitted. "If you mentioned what you think of me, that I've framed to rob you by law, you wouldn't be bothered with me long." He laughed softly and stretched his feet toward the fire. "Look at it any way you like and I'm in bad shape to deal you any misery," he pointed out. Manufacturing

Is the exclusive business of the City Meat Market. We buy cattle and hogs and sheep from the farmers of Valley county and manufacture them, in our own plant, into the food products that we sell over the counter every day. Some of the home cured products we sell are hams and bacon, either whole or in nice thin slices ready for the skillet. Then we have the reputation of making delicious sausages. Our roast and boiling cuts are always tasty and there is a great variety of meat cuts at your command in our freezers. Space does not permit enumerating them but there are dozens of them. We buy the best young stock we can find and handle it all in the best and most sanitary manner. We solicit your business.

ON that last item alone Mrs. Economical Housewife saved three cents, by KNOWING when to order at the most advantageous price. Three cents . . . Not a big saving to be sure BUT when multiplied by the number of times she must place her meat and grocery order, plus the fact that soap was not the only item bought at a saving, it does become VERY significant.

With the food advertising of the Quiz before her Mrs. Housewife conveniently places her order confident that she has purchased the best the market affords and that her expenditures will do their full duty . . . 100 cents in value received for every dollar invested.

HIS RHEUMATISM QUICKLY ENDED BY NEW KONJOLA

Man Pays Grateful Tribute To Modern Compound—All Else He Tried Failed.

MR. OTTO GEISLER "This new Konjola worked wonders for me," said Mr. Otto Geisler, 1438 North Fourth street, Mankato, Minn. "For a year I suffered from rheumatism. The pains settled in my back and hips. The agony prevented me from sleeping and often I sat in a chair most of the night trying to get relief. I had little hope of ever being any better because the many medicines I tried failed to benefit me. "Finally I started the Konjola treatment upon the recommendation of many friends. Although I had a little faith I was not prepared for the remarkable surprise in store for me. Before I thought Konjola had a chance to go to work, the rheumatic pains began to ease up. Steadily they became less severe and then, like magic, they disappeared. Today there isn't a nache or pain in my body; I have more strength, and feel better than for years." Konjola is designed to give thorough and lasting relief. Like any worth-while treatment Konjola should be taken from six to eight weeks giving it a chance to produce the best results. And the results will amaze you -- as they have countless thousands of men and women. Konjola is sold in Ord at McLain & Sorensen Drug Co., and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

COE PRESIDES AT SEMI-ANNUAL CO-OP MEETING

Ord Man Is President of Nebr. Association; McGuire Talks On Improving Cream.

Fred Coe, manager of the Ord Co-operative Creamery, presided over the semi-annual convention of the Nebraska Co-operative Creamery association held in Lincoln last week. Coe is the president of the association. The convention lasted two days. A. W. Cornell of Ord attended the convention with Coe as a delegate from the Ord creamery.

Some of the foremost creamery authorities in the United States appeared on the program at Lincoln. F. Metzger of the Federal Farm Board, A. J. McGuire, and others spoke before the convention. McGuire who is manager of the Land O'Lakes Creameries of Minnesota gave the feature address of the two-day convention. He spoke on quality improvement and cooperative marketing of butter.

The Minnesota man told of the Land O'Lakes Creameries and their operations. With over four hundred members, the organization markets butter over the United States in a cooperative fashion. He told of the results.

"Quality is the foundation to success," McGuire said. "The Land O'Lakes Creameries have based their program on quality and it has been a success. Cream grading is also an essential part of the successful creamery program."

"Nebraska co-operative creameries have not been as successful as those in Minnesota because they are younger," William A. White of the United States Department of Agriculture said. "However, Nebraska creameries should profit by mistakes made by those in Minnesota and build their program on a sound basis."

White recently conducted a survey in numerous Nebraska creameries to determine the quality of cream as delivered to the co-operative stations. He said he found many creameries buying quality cream. Ord was one of the creameries visited.

E. Holland, district extension leader, spoke of the extension service. Holland said people over the state now hold a favorable opinion of the extension service where they didn't years ago. As a result the extension service is serving more people each year. More profitable farming is the extension service stood for more profitable and attractive farming. He said many people had the conception that the extension service stood for larger productions and bigger crops but this was wrong. More profitable farming is their watchword, he states.

Although no sharp downturn is expected, lower hog prices will probably come within the next thirty days for Valley county farmers. The report says that in only six of the past twenty-one years has the May top for hogs in Omaha been above the April top. Increasing receipts of fall pigs at the markets causes the usual downward trend.

Unless receipts fall below expectations, steady to weaker trend in finished cattle prices should prevail in the next thirty days. The usual seasonal lower price trend for butcher classes of cattle may be in evidence by the end of the period. Stocker and feeder cattle prices should be well sustained.

When the movement of southern cattle to markets starts, butcher cattle prices usually turn downward in May, the report goes on to say. However, scarcity of numbers and cheap feed should work to sustain prices for stocker and feeder cattle in the next thirty days.

Although no material decline seems likely in butter prices, Nebraska farmers will probably witness some seasonal weakness in the prices during the next thirty days, Hedges says in his report. The usual trend of prices is downward from April to May, he goes on to say in his monthly report. He says that in only four of the last twenty years has the May price for 92-scored creamery butter in Chicago averaged higher than the April price.

Calves fed corn fodder, cottonseed cake, and alfalfa made the most profitable gains of the seven lots on test. They made a profit per head of $3.02. Calves fed only a limited amount of corn and alfalfa hay made but $2.29 profit per head.

It seems as though Valley county farmers can take advantage of the results of the experiments and perhaps put them into practice. However, it is to be remembered that the experiments were run in eastern Nebraska and this is the first year that such an experiment has been made. One year is usually not sufficient to establish the truth about any practice.

Mildred Wheeler, Only One Year in Club Work, Wins Three Prizes at County Fair

Valley county has girl 4-H members as well as boys despite the fact that thus far the boys have been getting all the publicity. Club work would be mighty dull if it weren't for girls and their clubs. Girls belong to pig clubs, sewing clubs and other clubs the same as boys. Now we have a young girl club member who gives promise of developing into a real leader before she is through club work—Mildred Wheeler.

Although Mildred, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Wheeler of near North Loup, has had but one year of club work she has won her share of club prizes in exhibits at the Valley county fair. She is but 13 now.

"How many times have you exhibited at the Valley county fair?" I recently asked of her. "You have been in club work but one year. Thus, I have only exhibited at the Valley county fair one year, that last fall."

"What did you win?" "I was awarded first on my dress in the club class, second on my shoe bag, and third on my book."

Being in club work but one year and winning so many prizes brought quite an honor to Mildred and her parents. She should do better this year.

However, like other club members, Mildred realizes that the winning of prizes at exhibits is not the main purpose of club work. She believes she is getting other benefits from club work.

"But why did you ever join a 4-H club?" "The president of the Jenny Wren club asked me to join last year. Up until that time I had not thought much about it," she replied.

Mildred says she thought she would get a great deal of benefit from the club and above all wanted to learn how to sew well. Of course, club work has helped her out. She is enthusiastic about it and says, "I am not disappointed with club work. It has helped me a lot. I believe I have received a great deal of benefit from it."

Although Mildred is but thirteen she is in the eighth grade this year. She goes to district 24 in Sherman county. She has taken all of her eighth grade examinations already and, in all probability, will attend some high school next year.

Prices Downward, Predicts Hedges in Monthly Report

Supply and demand conditions favor firmer price trends for Valley county farmers in wheat, corn, and poultry in the next thirty days, according to the economic situation report as published monthly by the rural economics department of the University of Nebraska. It is expected that steady to weak prices for fat cattle, butter, and eggs will develop in the period.

No unusual changes in Nebraska crop acreages are indicated in regard to planting intentions, the report says. Nebraska farmers are expected to increase their barley acreage by 10 per cent and decrease that of oats by 5 per cent, according to the economic situation report.

Weather conditions will largely determine the course of wheat prices, the report declares. However, some firmness may be in evidence, Harold Hedges says in making his economic situation report for the next thirty days.

The report says there should be a steady to upward trend in corn prices within the next thirty-day period. Because of the let-up in marketing when spring farm work is in height, a firmer trend in marketing should develop as in normal years.

Farm stocks and visible supply of corn are smaller than a year ago and present prices are 10 to 15 cents under those of a year ago, the report reminds readers. Favorable ratio of hogs to corn should encourage liberal feeding, it says.

Although no sharp downturn is expected, lower hog prices will probably come within the next thirty days for Valley county farmers. The report says that in only six of the past twenty-one years has the May top for hogs in Omaha been above the April top. Increasing receipts of fall pigs at the markets causes the usual downward trend.

WHY ERNEST S. COATS THINKS LISTED CORN THE BEST

BY GEORGE ROUND, JR. Ernest says, "Listed corn stands more drouth. The ground is easier to prepare for planting which is a big thing in its favor. It is easier to control weeds also in the listed field than it would be in the surface planted field."

However, Coats says in a county where there might be excessive rainfall, he would prefer checked corn. In Valley county during the majority of years he believes in planting accordingly. "I tried plowing and planting for five years here with poor success so I think when land is reasonably level it is best to list," Ernest goes on to say.

Coats prepares his corn ground for planting by disking early in March to conserve the moisture. Just before planting time he disks again. The go-devil is then sent over the field to throw the dirt out. Then harrowing, two cultivations with the high two-row cultivators finishes the work in the field.

CIochon Is Elected Pig Club President

Valerian Ciochon was elected president of the Ord Purebred Pig club recently at their organization meeting held at County Agent Dale's office in Ord. Twelve boys belong to the Ord club.

Other officers elected included Edwin Johnson, North Loup, vice-president; Charles Barnhart, North Loup, secretary; and Harold Garnick, Ord, news reporter. All officers hold their offices for the coming year.

George Round, jr., was elected club leader. Bill Garnick, member of the club, is the assistant leader. Club members expect to show their pigs at the Valley county fair in Ord this fall.

AM I RIGHT?

BY Geo. Round, jr. Valley county farmers have always heard that Ernest S. Coats, who lives near Ord, has a real Jersey dairy herd. Now Ernest has the direct proof to back up his claim; that is, he soon will have. When the Valley County Dairy Improvement association winds up its first year in June, Ernest will be able to tell just exactly what kind of a herd he has on his farm. It would not surprise me in the least to see Coats' herd of Jerseys ranking within the first six high herds in the state for the year in butterfat production. His herd will probably average over five hundred pounds. Probably no other herds in this county will average that high.

Ernest's herd averaged 53.7 pounds for this month and will probably rank among the leaders in the state.

Bert Cornell is a booster of the Ord Co-operative Creamery and is one of the more enthusiastic one in the county. He believes in the local institution. Bert recently told me that he has attended every meeting of the Nebraska Co-operative Creamery Association since its organization, three years ago. This year he attended the convention and enjoyed the convention more than ever before. He thinks they are great things. I agree with him. Certainly it does a person good to get out and mingle with other people once in a while and break the routine way of living. Getting to know people in other sections of the state is worthwhile. Time isn't lost in attending such a convention as Mr. Cornell attended in Lincoln last week. During the three years that he has attended the conventions, Bert has made a host of friends, real ones, too. He could almost turn politician now. Incidentally, Bert doesn't believe farming conditions are so bad today as some people paint them. There is still money in farming, he told me the other day.

In the past few years competition in the great industries of the United States has increased greatly. It has been harder to make money in any form of life activity. Farmers, generally, did not have the competition until recently. Now when the competition comes along, many of them believe that there is no future to farming. It is a pleasure to talk to farmers who have not lost faith in farming. Farmers who believe that there is profit in farming today if the task is done in the right way. However, farmers of today must work much harder to get those profits than

HERE IS HOW DON MILLER PLANTS HIS FIELD CORN

BY GEORGE ROUND, JR. "I list most of our corn land except the roughest and that which is most liable to wash out. Listed corn is the easiest to care for and resists dry weather better because the roots are deeper down and there isn't so much early season growth on the stalks," Don Miller, youthful farmer living north of Ord, says.

Where the corn is planted on alfalfa ground, it is plowed early and the ground is then listed.

The Back Forty

By J. A. KOVANDA

Our country has in storage at present approximately forty-million pounds of butter surplus. This looks like a lot of butter, and it has a depressing effect on price. But if every farm family in the country would eat just one extra pound a month, the surplus would be gone in two months. The cost to each family for the two extra pounds of butter would be about 75 cents. It would be worth far more than that to raise the price of butterfat back to where it was. A raise of 10 cents a pound on butterfat would mean at least $25 a year extra profit to the farmer for every cow he milked.

Another thing to bear in mind is the fact that butter is the superior food when considered from a health standpoint. This was clearly demonstrated in a recent test made by the London Medical Research Council of England. The superiority of dairy products was proven, not with rats, but with a colony of 220 boys during a period of twelve months. With the addition of one pint of milk per day to the usual or basic diet, which included meat, fish, and other elements, 41 of the boys' average gain in weight increased from 3.85 pounds to 6.98 pounds, 81 per cent, and their average increase in height advanced from 1.84 inches to 2.63 inches, 43 per cent. Twenty-six boys who received 1.75 ounces of butter daily in addition to the basic diet, but without the addition of milk, gained an average of 6.30 or 63 percent in weight, and 2.22 inches or 20 percent in height. Sixteen boys who were allowed a ration of vegetable margarine in place of milk or butter gained only 5.21 pounds or 35 per cent in weight, and showed no gain whatsoever in height. At present about twenty-two cents of the average consumer dollar is expended for dairy products. Leading scientists and food authorities state that thirty-five cents of every consumer's dollar should be expended for milk and its products in the interest of child growth and adult health and efficiency. The fight which was recently declared against butter substitutes must everlastingly be kept up; otherwise many who have been persuaded into using butter will return to margarine again. This issue must be kept before the eyes of the public, not only in the interests of health, but for the sake of our own pocketbooks, and the prosperity of our community.

Delta County, Colorado, Joins Anti-Oleo Movement

Delta County, Colo., has decided it does not like oleomargarine, and what's more, won't have it! Besides being the proud possessor of wonderful trout fishing streams, exquisite scenery, the finest apple growing districts in Colorado, Delta County prides with pride to a rapidly growing dairy industry, and tells the cock-eyed world it stands squarely behind said dairy industry and can't see this substitute stuff at all. The Greater Delta County Association, composed of scores of leading retail merchants, large and small, has rained a confetti of handbills all over the country and these handbills tell the world in the fiercest of red ink that "butter has no substitute," and propound the query, "Is it (oleomargarine) the poor man's butter or the rich man's graft?" It is said that before the Delta County campaign started, about 90 days ago, that the ratio of oleomargarine consumption to that of butter was about five to one, but that said ratio has already dropped to two to one and is continuing to drop like a ripe apple from one of the county's orchards. Many merchants in the county now refuse to handle any butter substitutes whatever and more are joining the ranks daily. Frank A. Stewart of Cedaredge, a merchant of that town, is leading the commotion and states to all and sundry that he intends to keep right on leading the crusade. He appeared before a meeting of Colorado creamerymen, recently held in Glenwood Springs, and told the assemblage that he "got his living in a country store and he couldn't see any sense in encouraging the competition of the raw material which his customers produce."

EAT IT NOW

THE TIME to eat a popover is when it has just popped over. When it has reached its climax, and is puffed and crisp. Listen to it crackle when you break it apart for butter.

And the time to eat vegetables is when they've just been picked. They will never be so fresh again. The peas will never be so firm, knuckled tight in their pods... nor the corn so glistening and sweet under its silk. Shell the peas, husk the corn, hustle them into the pot. Have all your vegetables at their climax moment—with a garden of your own.

been patiently wondering why you don't rush matters and invite me to marry you."

He rose and flicked the ash from his cigarette into the fireplace.

"I do invite you—right now," he said, and in her surprise she left her chair and stood facing him. "I'd like real well to have you, Billie."

"That's the final proof," she said. "I'm surprised that you didn't tell me the first day."

"So am I," he said.

She found no answer for this but stood silent, knowing that she had suddenly become afraid of him.

"And that's the living truth," he affirmed. "Other men have loved you the first day. You know men well enough to be certain that I wouldn't be tied to one woman for the sake of owning a few herd of cows—not if I didn't want her for herself." He waved an arm toward the door. "There's millions of miles of sage just outside," he said. "And millions of cows—and girls."

He moved across to her and stood almost touching her, looking down into her face. When Slade had stood so a few days past she had been coldly indifferent except for a sliver of distaste she thought of his touching her. Before Harris she felt a weakening, a need of support, and she leaned back from him and placed one hand behind her on the table.

"You judge for yourself whether a man wouldn't be right foolish—with all these things I mentioned being right outside to call him—to marry a woman he didn't want for herself, because she had a few hundred head of cows." He smiled down at her. "Don't pull back from me, Billie; I won't lay a finger on you. But now do you think it's you I want—or the little old Three Bar?"

"You can prove it," she said at last. "Prove it by going away for six months—or three."

He shook his head.

"Not that," he said. "I've told you I was sewed up in a right pet collar myself—which wouldn't matter a d—n if it wasn't for this. I'd have tossed it off in a second if the girl on the Three Bar had turned out to be any other than you. Now I'm going to see it through. The Three Bar is going under—the brand both our folks helped to found—unless some one pulls it out of the hole. Believe me if you can and if you can't—why, you know that one remark about my being unwelcome here will clear the road for you, like I mentioned a few minutes back."

He turned away without touching her and she had not moved when the door closed behind him.

An hour past noon on the following day a drove of horses appeared at the lower extremity of the valley and swept on toward the ranch. As Harris threw open the gates of the big corral he saw her standing in the door of the cookhouse watching the oncoming drove. Riders flanked the bunch well out to each side to steady it. There was a roar of hoofs and a swirling cloud of dust as three hundred half-wild horses clattered past and crowded through the gates, scattering swiftly across the pasture lot of the corral. A dozen sweat-streaked riders swung from their saddles. There was no chance to distinguish color or kind among them through the dust-caked air of the week-old growth of beard that covered every face.

One man remained on his mount and followed the horses into the pasture lot, cutting out fifty or more and headed them back into the corral for Waddles had decreed that they could have the rest of the afternoon off for a jaunt to Brill's store and they waited only to change mounts before the start.

Calico stood drooping sleepily in one of the smaller corrals and Harris moved toward him, intending to ride over with the rest of the men.

"The boss said for you to ride Blue," Morrow stated as Harris passed the group at the gates of the corral. "He's clear gentle-broke, Blue is."

The men looked up in surprise. Morrow had not been near the house to receive instructions from the girl. The lie had been so apparent as to constitute a direct challenge to the other man.

Harris stood looking at him, then shrugged his shoulders.

"Whatever the boss says goes with me," he ventured evenly.

A rangy blue roan swept past with the fifty or so others. At least once every round of the corral he laid back his ears and squealed as he scored some other horse with his teeth, then lashed out with wicked heels.

"I reckon that'll be Blue?" Harris asked of Evans and the lanky one nodded. The men scattered round the corral and each watched his chance to put his rope on some chosen horse. The roan kept others always between himself and any man with a rope, but at last he passed Harris with but one horse between. Harris flipped his noose across the back of the intervening horse and over the blue roan's head.

"You've been busted and rope burnt a time or two," Harris remarked, and he led the horse out to saddle him. The big blue leaned back, crouching on his haunches as the man put on the hackamore. His eyes rolled wickedly as Harris smoothed the saddle blanket and

Harris tightened the front cinch and the blue horse braced himself and drew a deep breath.

"That's right, Blue, you swell up and inflate yourself," Harris said. "I'll have to squeeze it out of you." He fastened the hind cinch loosely, then returned to the front and hauled on the latigo until the pressure forced the horse to release the indrawn breath and it leaked out of him with a groaning sigh.

"I wonder now why Morrow is whetting his towahawk for me," Harris remarked as he inspected the big roan. "You're a hard one, Blue. I'll let that saddle warm up on you before I top you off."

Harris took a short hold on the rope reins of the hackamore with his left hand, cramped the horse's head toward him and gripped the mane with his right hand on the horn, and swung gently to the saddle, easing into it without a jar.

"Easy, Blue!" he said, holding up the big roan's head. "Don't you hang your head with me." He eased the horse to a jerky start and they were off for Brill's at a shambling trot. Three times in the first mile Blue bunched himself nervously and made a few stiff jumps but each time Harris held him steady.

"You'd have made one good little horse, Blue," he said, "if some sport hadn't spoiled you on the Three Bar."

They left the horses drooping at the several hitch rails before the post and crowded in.

Some detached themselves from the group and occupied themselves with writing. Several started a game of stud poker at one of the many tables. Harris was a shuffling trot. Three times in the first mile Blue bunched himself nervously and made a few stiff jumps but each time Harris held him steady.

The ground like Foster calmly fitted and nailed the shoes on him. Cal Harris finished shoeing the colt he was working.

"That's the last touch," he said. "My string is all set to go."

"You have five colts gentled for your circle bunch," she said. "But you didn't pick a single cow horse. The boys have sorted out the best ones and the few that are left won't answer for a man who insists on a gentled string."

"Creamer and Calico will do for me," he said. "I broke them myself and maybe I can worry along."

"Did you break them like that?" she asked. Bangs was tipping a horse that strenuously refused to be conquered and as they looked on the animal threw himself.

"Like that? Well, no—not precisely," Harris said. "They're not breaking horses. They're proving that they're broncopeakers that can ride 'em before they're broke. A horse started out that way will be a bronc till the day he dies."

Three men were lashing their bed rolls and war bags on three pack horses and when this task was completed they rode down the lane toward the Three Bar where Bangs was standing his pack animal. Harris knew this as evidence that they would start after the calves on the following day. The custom was to exchange representatives to ride with each wagon within a reasonable distance, the reps to look after the interest of the brand for which they rode.

C. E. Wozniak, the census enumerator for the Elyria precinct, visited this vicinity Friday and his nephew, Floyd Wozniak, the assessor, made the rounds Monday.

George Satterfield and family were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Shinn of near Goodenow Sunday. The Satterfields reside in Ord and Mr. Satterfield is treasurer of Valley county.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Millsap and small daughter came up from Grand Island Saturday night returning Sunday. While here they were the guests of Mrs. Millsap's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Brechbill. Other Easter guests included the latter's son Elmer and family, and a cousin, Mrs. Ersham and her husband and son of Duff, which is located in the vicinity of the Bloody river. The Ershams came for the day. Mrs. Ersham's father, Wm. Good, accompanied them home. He had spent the past week with his nephew, Mr. Brechbill. He recently came from Missouri, having disposed of his home in that state. While assisting Mr. Brechbill load hogs a few days ago he accidentally sprained one of his ankles quite badly.

Herman Grunemeyer and family of Burwell were calling on Mr. and Mrs. Harry Shinn Sunday afternoon. Mrs. M. A. Butts accompanied them and was a supper guest at the Goodenow home returning to Burwell with Mr. and Mrs. Claude Kennedy, who had spent the day with their grandmother.

The following extracts are taken from a letter recently received from Mrs. "Dick" Brockus, Huntington, Calif. "We are well and busy as usual and have been around the country more than for a long time. We have another car and it doesn't take all day to go. We went down to San Diego and stayed all night. When Dick is transferred or has his 12 to 8 shift he has Friday and Saturday all days so we can go. We just got back last night from Modesto. It is about 91 miles from Frisco and is a very pretty place. Today we took up the rug in our front room and put up the booths for election which is here tomorrow and I am also one the board. It is City election. We will have county election in August and November. Ed Gram was here for supper one night and we enjoyed it. I think he had a good time in California. We had some good rains and it is raining now. I never saw things so beautiful here as they are now, never saw so many wild flowers at one time as we did the past three days. John (their son) has been out of work since Christmas till last week he got some but you can't tell how long it will continue. I have never seen so many out of work as there are here. I am so thankful Dick has had steady work and hope it continues (in oil field). Our apartments are all full and the most tenants ever. Wayne is in the 10th grade and is taller than I am. Guess I will be the "runt." Zona will start to school this fall. I sure wish I could come back there this year, but can't tell for sure yet. It will all depend on how work holds out. You notice the taxes are $80. less than they have been for five years. Well, they can reduce them more yet. Clara.

The reduction in taxes Mrs. Brockus mentions is on her Garfield county farm near Burwell, but is in school district 14 known as Richland and by some mistake school tax levy for 1928 was raised beyond reason or need therefore at the school election in 1929 the vote showed no school tax would be levied there for a reduction was made for the present tax payment and for the one year only.

The rain fall the past ten days has soaked the ground enough to satisfy the majority of farmers. Wheat is fine, oats are showing up well and men are busy with corn ground. The frosty nights are not desired for fear of the loss of fruit as many early varieties are in the bloom. Possibly some will mature.

Protective Remodels Building.

The Protective Savings and Loan company is remodeling its building just south of the Methodist church, formerly used as a cream station, intending to make it into a dwelling house, according to Jos. P. Barta, secretary of the company. The structure has long been an eye sore, and it was accordingly decided to repair it and improve its appearance.

Leprosy Conquered
Eat Vitamin D
To Europe for $6, Maybe
Women May Preach

Doctor Dostal, bacteriologist of Vienna, isolates leprosy germs and produces an effective serum. Once that would have comforted millions of people and those living in fear of leprosy. It means little today.

Leprosy is one of many "filth" diseases, dying out as civilization and soap distribution progress. Cleaning up a stagnant pond will free a neighborhood of malaria.

Cleaning up the world's filth spots will free the earth of many diseases. If nations that recently spent hundreds of billions killing each other would spend a few billions to rid the earth of mosquitoes, flies, rats and mice, the worst diseases would vanish.

Doctor Price, scientist of Cleveland, says vitamin D prevents diseases called "degenerative," such as cancer, heart disease, influenza and pneumonia.

Dairy farmers will be interested to hear that Doctor Price recommends spring butter from the milk of cows grazing in the sunshine. This vitamin D he calls the "sunshine vitamin." Cows get the vitamin, stored up by the sun, in spring grass, and return it in their milk.

Here is real flying news, important to all interested in moving about the earth. Henry Ford has perfected an all-metal airplane driven by three Packard Diesel motors, burning crude oil. The machine is expected to carry eleven passengers one hundred miles at a fuel cost of $2.16. This means that the fuel cost of taking eleven passengers across the continent or across the ocean would be $64.80, less than $2 each. There is no cost for right of way, little for terminals and for wear and tear.

What is more important, in Ford's opinion, is the fact that fire hazards, explosions, carburetor and justments, electric lighting, all dangerous elements in flying, are eliminated.

"The pilot sits in front of an instrument board like that of an automobile and talks over a radio-telephone without interference from the motors."

Concerning flying, it is apparently true that "We haven't seen anything yet."

The presbytery of New York voted the other day, 51 to 28, admitting women to Presbyterian pulpits. Reverend ladies will now proceed days longer, although she had thought to return the latter part of last week. Mr. and Mrs. Fred McGowan are looking after things while the Townsends are away.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Stude and children were Easter dinner guests at Floyd Wetzel's.

The Standard Bearers held their monthly meeting following the morning service at the Methodist church on Easter Sunday. The lesson study in charge of Eula Shinemann followed the serving of lunch in which the Easter idea was carried out. The hostesses were Arietta Ingraham and Jean Sample. Seventeen girls were in attendance, and a guest, Miss Wisconsin of Nebraska Wesleyan. Mrs. C. E. Pinckney of Scotia was also a guest, and made a talk on the work of the Standard Bearers.

He was accompanied by Miss Beulah Brundage and Glen Heller. Easter Sunday was appropriately observed at the Methodist church with a sermon appropriate to the day by Rev. G. A. Schwabauer, following by reception of new members and baptism. A solo "There is a Green Hill Far away" was sung by Miss Hazel Wiseman, a visiting student from Nebraska Wesleyan.

At the evening service a cantata entitled "The Conquering King" was given by the choir under the direction of Paul Robinson with Mrs. Arthur Hutchins as accompanist.

Solo parts were taken by Mrs. I. B. Manchester, Mrs. Harold Hoepfner, Ella May Sershen, Mrs. G. A. Schwabauer, Erman Barnhart, Roy Hudson, Sterling Manchester and Francis Bockmeyer. Others who took part were Jean Sample, Bethene Coleman, Eula Shinemann, Vesta Kildow, Mrs. Robinson, Joyce Coleman, Mrs. E. K. Murphy, Katharine Charwick and Sam Shinemann.

Among North Loup students who came home from school to spend Easter, were Marjorie Thelin from Nebraska Wesleyan, Ruby Kirk, Jennie Bingham, Delmar VanHorn, Velma Peterson, Velma Baker and a friend from Kearney. A. I. Howard Baxter and a friend from Kearney. Donald Fisher was home from York College and Bernice and Kenneth Hawks from Central City. Miss Thomas becomes Bride of M. C. Koelling

North Loup, April 21—(Special)—Using the impressive double ring ceremony, Rev. Nathan Thomas united in marriage, his daughter, Miss Bessie Maurine, and Merrill Clinton Koelling, on the evening of Wednesday, April 16, 1930, at six o'clock. Immediately preceding the ceremony, "I Love You Truly" was sung by the bride's younger sister, Miss Iona Thomas. With the strains of "Love's Wedding March," played by the groom's sister, Mrs. Elmer Hornickel, the contracting parties, attended by Miss Iona Thomas and the groom's brother, Melvin Koelling, took their places under a latticed arch of white, with yellow roses. The same colors were used in the decorations which her father, the bride was beautiful in a gown of yellow georgette, made in the new mode with cape effect, and carried white roses and yellow snapdragons. Her bridesmaid wore blue chiffon and her bouquet was opium poppies and white roses. After the extending of congratulations, a two course wedding dinner was served with a color scheme of yellow and white place cards with miniature brides and bridegrooms.

Mrs. Koelling has lived in North Loup for a number of years, and is a graduate of the North Loup high school with the class of 1927. She is an accomplished pianist, and has been active in the religious and social life of the community and of the Mira Valley, Zion Evangelical church, of which her father, Rev. Nathan Thomas, is pastor. She is a young woman admired and respected by all. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Koelling of Mira Valley, and received his education in the Valley-side school. He is an enterprising young farmer, of splendid character, worthy of the young woman who has cast her lot with his.

Mr. and Mrs. Koelling left on Thursday for a short wedding trip to Lincoln and points in Cass county and returned early this week. They will occupy the farm in Mira Valley known as the Scott White place, where they will soon be at home to their friends, who wish for them many happy prosperous years together.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON (BY REV. P. B. FITZWAUGH, D. D., Member of Faculty, Moody Bible Institute of Chicago. (© 1930, Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for April 27 GIVING UP ALL FOR THE KINGDOM

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 19:16-30. GOLDEN TEXT—Lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven. PRIMARY TOPIC—Giving Jesus First Place.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Giving Jesus First Place. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How Shall We Use Our Money? YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Stewardship of Possessions.

The lesson title is likely to be misunderstood and no teaching misapprehension is to be present at both the morning and evening service if possible and a cordial welcome is extended to all others who would enjoy being with us at these services.

1. A Certain Young Man (v. 16). For a full view of the characteristics of this man, see Mark 10:17-30 and Luke 18:18-30.

1. His virtues. (1) Courageous (Mark 10:17). He was of high standing—a rich young ruler (Luke 18:18, 23). To come to Jesus at this time might mean ostracism, but with many courage he came. (2) Earnest (Mark 10:17). He knelt before Jesus, thus showing earnestness and sincerity. (3) High aspirations (v. 16). He wanted eternal life. Though taken up with the things of his present life, he felt the need of preparing for life beyond. (4) Pious and moral (v. 20). From his youth he had conformed to God's moral law. (5) He believed that Christ could inform him of the "good thing" to be done to inherit eternal life.

2. His errors. (1) About Christ (v. 16). He esteemed Jesus to be good, but did not apprehend Him as God; otherwise he would have known Him not merely as one who did good, but as one who is essentially good; that is, God. (2) Concerning himself. He thought he was good and that he could do something good. (3) Concerning eternal life. He thought that it could be obtained by good works. He did not know that the only way to gain eternal life was to receive it as a gift from God (Rom. 6:23).

11. The Lord's Dealing With Him (vv. 17-22). Jesus skillfully led the young man to see his errors. 1. His question—"Why callest thou me good?" (v. 17). Before giving him a chance to answer He declared that only God was good, as if to say, "I am good, and therefore God." He was God manifest in the flesh, and repudiated the thought of being known merely as a good man.

2. Jesus' answer to the young man's question (vv. 17-20). "If thou wilt enter into life, keep the commandments." Christ met him here on his own ground, namely, that of the law. He took the young man's level that the young man's real worth might be revealed (Rom. 3:19, 20).

3. Christ's command (vv. 21, 22). Replying to Christ's citation of the commandments of the law, the young man asserted that he had kept them from his youth. Yet in his inner conscience he knew that there was something lacking. When he had to make the supreme decision between Jesus and his possessions, he chose wealth.

Thank you for your help, hoping others who are not attending other churches will help in the good work. We were made happy by the good number of new members added to our church membership. A. L. Zimmerman, Pastor.

Ord Baptist Church Will Close Sunday Upon the recommendation and report of Rev. Beachy given at a meeting of the board of the Baptist State Convention at Omaha, the board unanimously voted to discontinue the church at Ord.

While the work of the church has progressed nicely in a very harmonious manner and eleven have been received into its membership during the past year, nevertheless a detailed survey of the Ord field and study of the building of a church revealed the fact that these factors were largely lacking and could not be developed in the work here.

Rev. Beachy has for some time been making a very complete survey of the Ord field and gave a very detailed report to the board showing the prospect of the work from many important angles, and it was following this report that the board voted to accept this report and discontinue the work.

Much commendation and praise is due the Baptist Convention for their loyalty and support of the work the past year and the strenuous efforts put forth by them to make the work possible with the hope that a number would appreciate their efforts and take hold of the work, but much opposition to the work added greatly to the problem. Not until the board felt that everything had been done that could be done and that the future prospects would not justify such large expenditures as was necessary to keep the work going, did they consent to close the work.

Commendation is likewise due the church, its members, its pastor and his wife, for the spirit and manner in which they have conducted the work the past year. Though conditions unpreventable make necessary the closing of the work, the work of the church the past year should leave the people of Ord, with a deeper appreciation of the high type of Christian work of Baptists and their spirit of loyalty and co-operation with all sister churches in their efforts to manifest the Spirit of Christ in all things, being his witnesses.—(Continued.)

Miss Wanda Wozniak of Grand Island, Mr. and Mrs. August Barto of Comstock and Mr. and Mrs. Will Wozniak and daughter of Arcadia were guests of Mr. and Mrs. James Wozniak Sunday.

The Settling of the Sage By HAL G. EVARTS Copyright by Hal G. Everts WNU Service

"How many reps do you trade?" he asked. "Three," she said. "Halfmoon D. V. L. and with Slade."

The Halfmoon D. lay some fifteen miles eastward along the foot of the hills; the V. L. the same distance to the west, but cached away in a pocket that led well back into the base of the range, a comparatively small outfit owned by the Bradens, father and four sons, who made every effort to keep the bulk of their cows ranging in their own home basin and exchanged reps only with Three Bar.

had been cut out and thrown back on the range, remaining in the pasture lot. The chuck wagon was wheeled before the cookhouse door and packed for an early start. Before the first streak of dawn the men had saddled and breakfasted. It was turning gray now the lanes when four horses, necessitating the attentions of four men, were hooked to the wagon. A man hung on the bit of each wheel horse while another grasped the bits of the lead team as Waddles made one last hasty trip to the cookhouse.

"This will be a rocky ride for a mile or two," he prophesied, as he mounted the seat and braced himself. "These willow-tails haven't had on a strap of harness for many a month. All set. Turn loose!"

The men stepped back and the four horses hit the collars ragedly. One wheel horse reared and jumped forward. The off leader dropped his head and pitched, shaking himself as if struggling to unseat a rider, then the four settled into a jerky run and the heavy wagon cleared into the brush along the valley, the first two riders swinging wide to either flank while the nighthawk and wrangler brought up the rear.

Shortly before noon the wagon was halted in a broad bottom of a stream. The teams were unhitched, the mounts were unsaddled and thrown into the horse herd, which was then headed into the mouth of a branching draw and allowed to graze. Waddles dumped off the bed rolls that were piled from the broad lower valley to the narrow top lane, each man sorted out his own and spread it upon some spot which struck him as a likely bed ground.

It was not long before Waddles was dispensing nourishment from the lowered tail-gate, ladling food into the mouths of the horses and cups which the men held out to him. They drew away and sat cross-legged on the ground. The meal was almost finished when six horse men rode down the valley and pulled up before the wagon.

"What's the chance for scraps?" the leader asked. "Step down," Waddles invited. "And throw the feed in you. She's still a-steaming."

Four of the men differed in no material way from the Three Bar men in appearance. The fifth was a little taller, a little fiercer a face of gorilla cast, stamped with brute ferocity and small intelligence. The last of the six was a striking figure, a big man with pure white hair and brows, his pale eyes peering from a red face.

"The rosted albino is Harper, our leading bad man in these parts," Evans remarked to Harris. "And the human ape is Lang; Fisher, Coleman, Barton and Canfield are the rest. Nice layout of murderers and such."

Harper's men ate unconcernedly, clapping the bones upon the men who had violated every law on the calendar, but knowing also that no man would take exceptions to their presence on that general ground alone, and as they had neared the wagon each man had taken a few minutes to survey the crew to make certain that there were none among them who might bear some more specific and personal dislike.

The Three Bar men chatted and fraternized with them as they would with any of their own, and any legitimate outfit. Harper, praised the food that Waddles tendered him. Billie Warren forced a smile as she nodded to them, then moved off and sat upon a rock some fifty feet from the wagon, despising the six men who ate her fare and inwardly raging at the conditions which forced her to extend the hospitality of the Three Bar to men of their breed whenever they chanced by.

Harris strolled over and sat down facing her, sifting tobacco into a brown paper and deftly rolling his smoke. "Has it been on your mind—what I was telling you a few nights back, about how much I was loving you?" he asked.

"You had got the chance to prove it by going away," she said, "and refused; so why bring it up again? The next two years will be hard enough without my having to listen to that."

"Our families must have been real set on throwing us together," he observed. "I was cut off without a dime myself—until I spent two full years on the Three Bar." She was angry with herself for believing him sincere, for being convinced that he, too, as he had several times intimated, was tied in much the same fashion as herself. The explanation came to her in an illuminating flash. The elder Harris must have nursed a lifelong enmity against her father, who had believed him the most devoted friend on earth.

out my little Box L outfit for more than it was worth—and figured to stop the leak at the Three Bar and that the old brand on its feet. His calm assurance on this point exasperated the girl. "How?" she demanded. "What can you do?" She pointed toward the six men near the wagon. "During the time you spent prowling the hills you ever come across these men?"

"Not to pal round with them," he confessed. "But I did cut their trail now and then. They're not the outfit that's going to be hardest to handle when the time arrives."

"What do you mean?" she asked. "No one has ever been able to handle them up to date."

"Did it ever strike you as queer that Slade could come into this country twelve years back, with nothing but a long rope and a running iron, and own thirty thousand head today?"

"He has the knack to protect his own and increase," she said. "They're afraid of Slade."

"The girl shook her head impatiently and looked across at the six men who ate her fare. "Eat my food; and in a few nights they'll be hazing a bunch of Three Bar steers toward the Idaho line. Why doesn't some man that is a man kill that albino flend and all his whelps and rid the country of his breed? Even Slade lets them put up at his place."

"If they're pestering you I'll order them off," he said. "And what effect would that have?" she inquired.

"The effect of causing them to climb the horses is ample proof of the country," he returned. He sprawled on the grass, his head propped on one hand as he regarded them.

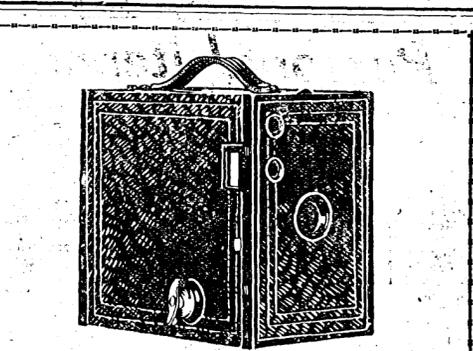

"Then probably you'd better order them off," she suggested. "You have my permission. Now's your chance to help the Three Bar out of the hole." She instantly regretted having said it. A dozen times of late she had wondered if she were turning bitter and waspish, if she would ever again be the even-tempered Billie who had a good word and a smile for every one.

Harris was, as always, apparently undisturbed by her words. Far down the bottoms she could see a point of light which she knew for a white sign that read: "Squatters' Camp." It showed her the way here. The man before her had defied these sinister warnings scattered about the range and publicly announced that he would put in on his hill, knowing that he was a marked man from the hour that he had taken the first step toward his present position.

"I take that back," she said, referring to her words of a few moments before. Harris straightened to a sitting position in his surprise at this sudden retraction, and as he smiled across at her she divined that this man, seemingly so impervious to her sarcasm, could be easily moved by a single kind word.

"Thanks, Billie," he said. "That was real white of you." He rose and sauntered toward the wagon and Billie Warren felt a sudden clutch of fear as he halted before Harper and she realized that he had taken her words literally and intended ordering them off.

"It's been made temporary foreman of the Three Bar. Just so the boss could try me out on that job for an hour or so," he remarked conversationally. "So I'm putting in a new rule that goes into effect right off. When you boys ride away, in a few minutes from now, you can tell folks that the grub line is closed as far as the Three Bar is concerned."

he must possess to have lived to his age. She could find no ready-made answer to this surprising statement. "Don't you know that the albino will kill you for that?" she asked. "Not unless he can stage it as a personal quarrel," he said. "He'll never follow it up as coming out of what happened today by taking it out on me as temporary foreman of the Three Bar—for ordering him off. There's a good majority of folks that don't relish seeing Harper's bunch ride up—that feed them through policy. But whenever you make it plain to a man that he's compelled to do a thing whether he likes it or not it's ten to one he'll balk out of sheer pride. If Harper kills the Three Bar foreman on the grounds that he refused to feed all his men—why then, right off, every foreman and every owner within a hundred miles starts to resenting the possibility that maybe the albino feels the same way toward him. Harper knows that. "But if your theory had been wrong?" she persisted. "What then?" "Then," he said, "then there'd have been h—l and repeat. I wasn't just acting as me, a personal affair, but, as I took pains to remark aloud, as the foreman of the Three Bar. Every Three Bar man would have gone into action the second Harper made a move at me. You know that—and Harper knew it."

Eggs Are Getting Cheaper So Egg Recipes Are Needed

Eggs seem to be getting cheaper, and according to all the experts still have a great decline before them, so let's all learn to make a lot of new egg dishes, and plan to make use of lots and lots and still more eggs in our cooking. Eggs are one of the most nourishing foods known, and probably can be presented to the notice and approval of your family in more guises than any other food.

Chocolate Angel Food Cake.
1/4 cup of sugar (sifted 5 times.)
1/2 cup Swansdown flour.
1/4 cup cocoa.
1/2 teaspoon salt.
1/2 teaspoonful cream of tartar
1 teaspoonful of vanilla
Sift flour once, measure and sift with cocoa four more times. Beat the egg whites with flat wire whip, salt and when creamy add cream of tartar, continue beating until eggs are stiff enough to hold up in peaks, but not dry. Fold in the sugar, two tablespoons at a time, then fold in the flour and cocoa, the same way, lastly add the flavoring. Bake in a slow oven the first 25 minutes then increase the heat slightly, baking 50 or 60 minutes in all.—Mrs. G. E. Burrows.

Housedresses Also Mirror Style Trend

Times are getting more and more progressive. And fashions for morning frocks, as they are now called, change as rapidly as any others. It is very easy to tell a 1930 morning frock from one of the pre-1930 period.

Just notice them closely. The fullness is toward the bottom of the skirt, and many, many times the circular effect predominates. It is so pretty, so popular, and so universally attractive . . . it is one of the few styles that will look well on you, Mrs. Fat, and you, Mrs. Thin, and also on your relatives, Mrs. Old and Mrs. Young.

Then, just as boleros are prominently featured in silk dresses, so one finds many charming bolero dresses in the cotton materials. And the fancy of the modern woman for color oodles and oodles of it, is given full sway in her choice of apparel for her home, her morning marketing, and her gardening. If you like colors, bright gay gobbs of them, here is your chance.

The smock frock is still with us. . . . it is so practical for slipping on in the chilly early mornings of spring when there is no longer a furnace fire. It is so suitable for working among your flowers or turnips; no burned arms or necks are found among the ranks of smocked gardeners.

Tailored touches, lots of bows and buttons and pipings, an occasional buckle, odd collars and pockets . . . in other words, on just that whimsical touch . . . that's what house-frocks show you this spring.

—PATSY, THE PARTICULAR.

North Loup P. T. A. Has Interesting Arbor Day Meeting

North Loup, April 21—(Special)—With Mrs. J. A. Barber in charge, an interesting and profitable program was presented by the local P. T. A. on Tuesday evening at the high school auditorium. It was preceded by some lively community singing led by Roy Lewis. A special musical number was rendered by Ruth Babcock and Marjorie Greene, violins, and Gertrude Hemphill, clarinet, with Mrs. A. H. Babcock at the piano.

After a short business session officers were elected for the coming year as follows: president, Mrs. Sterling Manchester; vice-president, Mrs. Tom Hamer; secretary, Alice Myers; treasurer, Roy Lewis. The next meeting will be the last one of this present year, and the social committee will decide whether or not this will take the form of a picnic as it did last year.

Mrs. L. O. Greene, president of the North Loup organization gave a most interesting report of the recent district P. T. A. convention at Kearney. She gave many new and practical ideas, and a number of pamphlets for use in school and home.

The program proper was opened by a splendid talk on "Arbor Day" by J. Sterling Morton, by Mrs. Edgar Davis. She gave a history of Arbor Day and a description of Arbor Lodge at Nebraska City.

"Clean-Up" was the subject of Mrs. W. J. Hemphill, and it was handled in her usual interesting manner. Roy Hudson in a talk on "Paint Up" explained the formulas of paint and its value as a preserving and beautifying agent. He warned against the purchase of brands of paint which were offered along with premiums to induce their sale.

Mrs. A. H. Babcock read a humorous poem written a few years ago by Mrs. Florence Smith, formerly of North Loup, entitled "Spring Time is Clean Up Time." It had appeared in the Loyalist soon after a concerted village clean up campaign.

Miss Alice Myers, teacher of the fifth and sixth grades, told in a practical way how the village could meet the summer recreation problem.

The leader for the evening, Mrs. J. A. Barber, told what could be done in the way of beautifying the vacant lots in the village, and told what had already been done along this line. Each speaker on the program was introduced with a bit of original verse by Mrs. Barber.

At the close of the evening, those in attendance had refreshments in the Domestic Science room. Cake and coffee were served by Mrs. Nina Lewis and Mrs. M. D. Earnest.

Judah Hotel Damaged Third Time By Flames

Fire which was discovered in the Judah hotel at 3:30 Saturday morning practically ruined the dining room and did considerable damage to the office, kitchen and several bedrooms before it could be brought under control.

Miss Esther Osterloh who works at the hotel was awakened by the fire and she woke Walter Judah, the proprietor and his son Buster. There were no other occupants of the hotel at the time.

It is presumed that the fire was caused by defective wiring. The loss is partially covered by insurance.

This is the third fire which has occurred at the hotel in recent years, the first being about two years ago when the main house and contents were consumed. About three months ago fire broke out in an upstairs room partition and the resulting smoke and water caused several hundred dollars worth of damage to the building and furnishings.

A disgusting feature of the Saturday morning fire was that a purse containing forty-one dollars disappeared from the room of Miss Osterloh and was later found empty in the rear of the hotel grounds.

Funeral Services for Buck Held Saturday

Funeral services for M. R. Buck were conducted for the late residence in Arcadia by Rev. B. W. Burleigh, pastor of the Congregational church at 10 a. m. Saturday. Burial was made in the Arcadia cemetery.

Miles Richard Buck was born at Warriors Mark, Penn., Jan. 1st, 1861, and passed away at his home in Arcadia, Nebr., April 16, 1930, at the age of 69 years, 3 months and 16 days. In 1889 he came to Nebraska and on April 25, 1897 he was united in marriage to Blanche L. Zediker of Alliance, Nebr. They came to Arcadia and have lived here since that time.

To this union were born two daughters and six sons, all of whom are living except Pauline Wickman who passed away Nov. 23, 1925.

Mr. Buck farmed for ten years near Arcadia, then moved to town in 1907 when he took charge of the Barstow grain elevator which he operated for fifteen years. In 1925 he gave up his active work owing to poor health. His condition had been very critical for the past several months.

He leaves to mourn his passing his wife, a daughter, Marguerite Stucker of Alliance, Nebr., his sons, Roy and Russell at home, Orville, Cyril and Stanley of Alliance, Glenn of Crete, Nebr., his sisters, Mrs. Fannie Becker, missionary in Central America, Mrs. Armista Graizer and Mrs. Elmer Grey of Altoona, Penn., and Mrs. David Levi of Drab, Penn. All of the children were present for the funeral.

Senior Play Soon.

The seniors of the Arcadia high school are working on their class play "The Arrival of Kitty" which will be given some time soon. There are eight members in the cast and a delightful evening of entertainment is in store for you. Watch for the dates.

Clear Large Amount

The bazaar and supper given by the ladies of the Congregational church at the Downing implement building last Saturday was well attended and as a result about $77 was cleared. The ladies wish to express their appreciation of the patronage given them.

Up-to-date Club Has Enjoyable Meeting

The Up-to-Date club held an open meeting at the Congregational church Tuesday afternoon of last week. Roll call was answered with "Famous Women." The regular business meeting followed at which time Mrs. A. Lutz was elected delegate to the 6th district convention of Women's clubs to be held at Broken Bow, Nebr., May 6th, 7th and 8th. Mrs. C. D. Langrall was appointed to prepare a paper on "Press and Publicity" to be read at the Inter-county Federation of Women's clubs which was held at Loup City April 22nd. Mrs. N. A. Lewin who is president of the Federation also took part in the program.

Following the business meeting a quartette composed of Mesdames F. J. Russell, H. D. Weddel, George Parker and Edith Bossen favored the audience with two musical numbers the second number being one of their own composition. It was sung to the tune of "Goodnight Ladies" and bid welcome to the guests at the meeting, farewell to the retiring president, Mrs. C. C. Hawthorne, and welcome to the new president, Mrs. C. W. Starr. Rev. B. W. Burleigh, pastor of the Congregational church then addressed the club and their guests on "Women's Place in the Community." In his remarks he brought out five points; women's place socially in the community, civility, politically, culturally and religiously, showing how she might be of benefit in each line of work.

His talk was splendid and was greatly enjoyed by all present. The Nebraska club song brought the program to a close after which refreshments of tea and wafers were served in the church basement. The last meeting of the club year will be held Tuesday, April 29, when the delinquents will serve in the role of hostess.

Arcadia Infant Dies With Whooping Cough

The many friends of Rev. and Mrs. R. O. Gaither were deeply grieved to learn of the death of their infant son, Victor Eugene, which occurred Saturday evening, April 19th at about ten o'clock. The baby had not been gaining satisfactorily for some time and about two weeks ago was taken to a specialist at Hastings. Since that time he contracted whooping cough and although everything was done that love and kindness could provide, he was not strong enough to withstand the struggle.

Victor Eugene was born Dec. 28, 1929 and at the time of his death was three months and 22 days old. Funeral services were held at the Methodist church Monday morning at 10 o'clock. Rev. Hendrickson of Westerville conducting the services, assisted by Rev. Burleigh and F. J. Schank. Lowell Finney sang two beautiful vocal numbers.

The body was taken to Hastings for burial Monday, accompanied by the family, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Bly and Mrs. J. G. Stanley.

The sympathy of the community goes out to Rev. and Mrs. Gaither and family in their hour of sorrow.

Re-shingle First Arcadia Residence.
P. W. Rounds had the rear portion of his residence re-shingled recently. The section shingled was a part of the original home of Mr. and Mrs. Rounds. It was built in 1886, 44 years ago and was the first dwelling house erected in Arcadia. The lumber and shingles used in the building were hauled from North Loup, the shingles costing $3.50 a thousand. This is the first time that this part of the building had been re-shingled which speaks well for the material of 1886. Since that time Mr. and Mrs. Rounds have added a modern dwelling place to the front of the original building which continues to be their home.

Receive Letter of Appreciation.
The following interesting letter of thanks and appreciation has been received by the Arcadia unit of the American Auxiliary: "Please accept our thanks for the donation of $20.00 from the units of Atkinson, Arcadia, Ainsworth, Ord, Burwell, North Loup, Scotia, St. Paul, Loup City, Valentine, Rushville, Hay Springs and Long Pine to be used in giving the men in this hospital a party."

"For our Easter party which is to be held on the evening of April 9th, Red Cross is furnishing the decorations, the ladies of Christ Church, Little Rock, Ark., will furnish the orchestra for the dance and with the $20.00 just received from your units, we are going to buy the ice-cream. This will be especially moulded and in various colors to resemble easter eggs.

"We are so pleased with the manner in which the units of the Department of Nebraska have been remembering this hospital with their gifts, and want to assure you that all assistance coming from them has been most satisfactory and very much appreciated by both personnel and patients."

"The four hammocks arrived this morning and I immediately gave one to our T. B. ward. "In no way may our units serve us better than by making pillows and dresser scarfs for this hospital. "Again let us tell you how greatly your services are appreciated and assure that even our own state of Arkansas must look with envy upon such splendid work as you are doing. Cordially, Pearl Hach Routh, Director Red Cross Service, Little Rock, Arkansas."

A number of the Arcadia people attended the funeral of Art Bennett which was held at the Methodist church in Loup City Monday. Mr. Bennett was well known in this vicinity. Mr. Bennett was 70 years of age at the time of his death.

Ice-cream Cone Day.
Saturday was a royal day for the youngsters of Arcadia and we believe a few grown-ups as well. As is their annual custom on the Saturday preceding Easter, the Beatrice Ice Cream Co. through their local dealer, J. P. Cooper, gave away a cone filled with vanilla ice cream for each egg brought to the dealer. A large number of eggs have always been received and this year, the record showed one-half case more than that of the previous year.

The Ramsey Drug Co. observed the custom for the first time this year and distributed free ice cream cones to the youngsters Saturday.

Give Cantata at Westerville.
The Easter cantata, "Love Triumphant," was not given at the Methodist church last Sunday morning on account of the death of Victor Eugene, infant son of Rev. and Mrs. Gaither. The cantata will be given at the church next Sunday instead.

The cantata was given as planned at the Methodist church in Westerville Sunday evening. About twenty voices took part in the singing which was directed by Miss Edna Hendrickson in the absence of Mrs. Gaither. A large crowd was present.

By Geo. Round, Jr.

I am wondering why farmers do not find a new method of labeling their specific products sold on the market in order to demand a higher price for them. Industrial and commercial concerns brand and label their products and are able to demand a price of their own commodity. I see no reason why progressive farmers in the future will not formulate such a plan.

When going to the drugstore to purchase a tooth brush now, the druggist does not show you a huge assortment of brushes and tell you to take your pick. No, you go in and ask for a certain brand which you think is better than the others. Each has its brand and label and you demand a product which you think is superior to the rest and you are willing to pay more for it.

Why not label the farmer's products on the market. I see no reason for not labeling farm products as those of John Smith or John Oblong. The products go on the market now and when ready for sale command no better price if grown on Jim's or Mike's place. The pork may come from eastern Nebraska or Wyoming. The hogs from which it was taken may have been raised in dirty hog lots or may have been raised in clean lots.

Because of these facts, I think that the system of marketing farm products may be standardized in the future as are canned goods. Labeling of pork might be made simple by some firm with capital.

If the moneyed people in the east were to establish a certain brand of pork and advertise it, the consuming public would buy only that product. If they advertised their hogs as being raised in clean lots, fed by men in clean clothes and butchered in the right way, the public would be more than willing to pay a bigger price than for pork raised on average farms.

In their advertising they might show how pigs are raised on the average farm, how they wallow around in the mudholes and dirt and get dirty things. They might show how the hogs on the Smith Pork Farms were raised in a most sanitary way.

Pictures of men feeding and caring for hogs dressed in white aprons, and Chester White hogs in clean lots would help to put their product over and the people would in very short time demand Smith pork when going to the market to buy. I believe.

All of which may appear too far reaching with no practical value but is only an illustration of what might change the system of marketing farm products in the future, in my mind. Perhaps not, but maybe so.

"Settling of the Sage"

statement. The one inalterable code of the country, a code that had been fostered till it eclipsed all others, decreed that a man should be loyal to the brand for which he rode. The whole fabric of the cow business was based on that one point.

"But now they'll work their deviltry all the stronger against the Three Bar," she predicted. "They could wreck us if they tried. You couldn't get a conviction in five years. Not a man would testify against one of Harper's outfit."
"Then we'll put on a fighting crew and hold them off," he said. "But that's not the layout that will be hardest to handle in the long run. Slade is the one real hard nut on the Three Bar to crack. He can work it a dozen different ways, and you couldn't put one of them on him to save your soul. He's one smooth hombre—Slade."

Harris rose and headed for his bed roll and the girl sought the shelter of her teepee for a rest. Her mind was busily going over the events of the day. She reflected that Cal Harris was at least possessed of self-confidence and that procrastination was certainly not to be numbered among his failings. It came to her that his interests for the present were identical with her own. As half-owner in the Three Bar it would be her own advantage as to her own to build up Waddle's warped legs prevented his acting as foreman on the job and it might be that the other man would find some way to prevent the leak that was sapping the life from the Three Bar. His hand was on the handle of the door.

Warren loved her brand and her personal distrust of Harris was submerged in the hope that his sharing the full responsibility with her might be a step toward putting an end to the old-time plane of prosperity.
She fell asleep with the crooning voice of the night hawk drifting to her ears.
It seemed but a few fleeting moments before Waddle's voice roused her.
"Roll out!" he bawled. "Feet in the trough!"
There was instant activity, the jingle of belts and spurs and in five minutes every man was fully clothed and splashing at the creek. It was showing rose and gray in the east when the meal was finished.

When most of the men were mounted Billie urged Papoose over near Harris' horse.
"Do you know how to throw a circle?" she asked.
"After a fashion," he said. "I've bossed one or two in the past."
"Then we'd better be off," she suggested. "Since you're the Three Bar foreman it's for you to say when."
"I only pre-empted the job for ten minutes or so," he explained with evident embarrassment. "You surely didn't think I was trying to boost myself into the foreman's job for keeping Papoose?"
"No," she said. "But you're half-owner—and you can handle men. I'm giving you free rein to show what you can do."

Harris stightened in his saddle and motioned to the men.
"Hanson!" the new foreman called, and the man repped for the Halfmoon D dropped one. One man was detailed to work each draw, and when some five miles up the divide there were but half the crew left. The foreman divided the wagon, the opposite divide and doubled back, sending a man down each gulch.

Harris and the girl worked the last draw themselves and when they drove their cows out of the mouth of it they found the wagon piled, milled, two hundred yards above the wagon. Harris left her and circled the bunch, estimating it.
When the last rider appeared with his bunch and threw it into the herd Harris signaled all hands to change mounts. Harris, the girl and the rope crew and brought up cow horses while the balance of the crew held the herd, each one relieved some other as soon as he had saddled a fresh horse.

A sagebrush fire was burning fifty yards above the wagon and each man rode past it, leaped from his saddle and dropped his running iron in the flame.
The men worked round the edge of the bunch and slipped a noose on every calf that was thrown to the edge of the constantly shifting mass. Tomorrow roped the first calf and dragged it to the fire.
As much as she loved the round-up, many times as she had seen it, Billie Warren had never become calloused to the brutalities perpetrated on the calves. She withdrew and sat in the shade of the wagon. She was down wind and the dust raised by the tramping hoofs floated down to her, mingled with the odor of steaming cows, the acrid smoke of the sage fire and the taint of scorched hair and flesh.

In a short space of time the herd had been worked, the last calf branded, and Harris led the men up the bottom. Five miles up the valley, at the spot where he had crossed it a few hours before, they found the wagon waiting at the new stand, the normal fashioned and the remuda inside it. It was but ten o'clock, but the first circle had commenced at four. The noon meal on the round-up was served when ever the first circle was completed. The men fed ravenously on the hot meal, changed to fresh circle horses and started again.

It was falling dusk when the herd gathered in the third circle had been worked and the last calf branded for the day.
At the end of the first week out from the ranch Harris pulled up his horse beside the girl's and showed her his tally book.

"We've run Slade's mark on more calves than we have our own," he said. "That's one way he works."
"But that's not his fault and it doesn't mean anything," she said. "His cows are sure to drift. This time he's drifting Slade's mark on southernmost edge of our range and his north wagon works the strip right south of us. We're sure to find a number of his cows. As we double back on our next we'll not find the same proportion."

"Not quite—'but plenty," he predicted. "I've marked more calves for Slade in one week than all his three wagon crews will mark for the Three Bar in a year. The first three weeks of each season you men do a little more work for Slade than they do for you. It's a safe bet that the Halfmoon D does the same, and so on through every brand that joins his range. That puts him way off ahead."
"But that is pure accident," she said.

"It's pure design," he stated. "Harris' busy moving his cows from the middle all week so that when fall comes he has a good inside block that's only been lightly touched. They fall back on that for winter feed. Last winter, when cows were dying like rats, his men were drifting Slade's mark back toward his own range."
"That's true enough," she admitted. "But—"
"But you thought he was doing it as a favor to you—getting his surplus off your territory so your own cows would have a better chance of getting better feed. He's floated all round the line; playing the benevolent neighbor when in reality the old pirate had deliberately planned, year after year, to over-crowd your range and feed you out."

"But his men would know," she objected.
"Not many of them would grasp the whole scheme of it," he said. "You hadn't thought of it, had you? If a few of them did surmise? They're riding for his brand."
The girl nodded. That unalterable code again—the religion of being loyal to one's brand. Not one of Slade's men would balk at doing anything to give his interests as long as he drew his pay from Slade.

As they talked Harris detailed men for each draw, but when they reached the point where they were due to drop down and cross the valley he pulled up his horse.
"You take the rest of the circle," he instructed Carpenter. "I'm going to ride off up the rise a piece. The girl regarded him curiously. No less than three times in the last week she had stopped midway of the circle and asked her to consent to ride. Now he had turned it over to Carpenter and he signaled her to remain with him.

"Where are we going?" she asked as she watched the men ride down toward the bottom. "And why?"
"Back the way we came," he said. "And maybe I can show you why."
He headed back the divide they had just followed until he came to the saddle at the head of a draw that led down to the valley. Far below them they could see a rider leading a bunch of cows out into the bottom. High on the right-hand slope of the gulch lay a notch, a little blind basin watered by the seepage from a side-hill spring, and there on the green bed of it a dozen calves with their eyes grazed undisturbed. For perhaps five minutes Harris lolled sideways in the saddle and watched them. Then a rider appeared on the ridge that divided that draw from the next, dropped in below the cows and headed them back over the ridge into the draw from which he had appeared. Even at that distance she recognized this last man as Lanky Evans. Harris resumed his way down the divide, and she knew he had discovered some irregularity for which he had been seeking.

"Who was the man that overlooked those cows?" she asked. "Who worked that draw?"
"Tomorrow," he said. "His eyesight is getting bad. That's the second time this week and the last."
"Then tomorrow is an inside man for Harper," she said. "Drawing Three Bar pay and working against us, too."
"Yes," he said. "Only he's an inside man for Slade."
"But you could this leaving those calves behind benefit Slade?" she demanded.
"How could it benefit Harper?" he countered. "Can you tell me that?"
She could not and motioned for him to go on.
