

PAVING IS DISGRACE, C. OF C. BELIEVES

CENSUS IN ORD TO BE FINISHED AT NOON FRIDAY

Enumerator Will Close Books, Mail Them To Supervisor Of District on Noon Train.

Were You Counted?

Commerce Chamber Making Drive To Assure Nose Count Complete; Gain Is Hoped.

CALL 17 NOW IF YOU WEREN'T COUNTED.

If you live in Ord and were missed by the Ord census enumerator, step to a telephone and call 17 AT ONCE. If you know of anyone who hasn't been counted urge them to call 17 and the enumerator will call on them promptly. Census books for Ord will be closed at noon Friday so act promptly.

The work to taking the federal census for 1930 in Ord will be completed by Friday noon, says Mrs. E. C. Leggett, census enumerator for this city. She expects to close her books tomorrow noon and mail them to H. G. Webber, Kearney, supervisor for this district. In the district office Ord's population will be checked and the result will be announced at once. Ord should show a slight gain this year, officers of the local Chamber of Commerce believe. In 1920 the population of this city was 2,143 and though the exact count to date has not been announced it is believed to be close to this figure. There are still a few families who the census taker has not been able to see but by 6 p. m. today all who are on her lists will have been enumerated. A telephone drive was conducted yesterday by Chamber of Commerce members and every family with a telephone was called and asked to report if the enumerator had missed them. Several families who had been missed were enumerated as a result of this drive.

Rainy weather of the past week has hampered Valley county enumerators greatly, particularly in rural districts where roads have been so bad that census takers have been unable to get out at all. Several townships have not been completed but roads are drying up rapidly and they will be completed at once.

Erieon Population Larger.
The village of Erieon has made a population increase in the past ten years. In 1920 the census showed 192 people in Erieon and this year the population is 272.

Arcadia Slightly Smaller.
Arcadia census reports show that village has lost 35 inhabitants in the past ten years. In 1920 Arcadia had 745 people. Now it has but 710. Arcadia township reports a gain with 426 people as against 380 ten years ago.

Few Garfield Returns In.
Only a few census returns are in from Garfield county but of the three precincts reported of this week all show slight losses in population. Dry Cedar precinct had 313 ten years ago; now it had 292. Bryan precinct shows a drop from 184 to 157. Willow Springs precinct has dropped from 42 to 437. Last week Brina and Roosevelt precincts showed slight gains while Kinkaid and Highland precincts showed losses.

St. Paul Population Larger-Total Gain Is One Person

St. Paul, Nebraska, has a larger population in 1930 than it had ten years ago, according to preliminary reports issued by H. G. Webber, supervisor of the census. In 1920 the population of St. Paul was 1,615. This year St. Paul's population is 1,616—a total gain of one person.

Burwell has lost in population during the past ten years, the report shows. This village now has 1,155 as compared with 1,214 in 1920.

Small towns of Nebraska, except in the western portion of the state, nearly all show a loss during the past decade. Ord's population has not yet been announced but it is expected to show a slight gain over 1920 when the enumerators found only 2,143 people here.

Schulte Unable To Come, Rotarians Postpone Meeting

Because their principal speaker, Coach Henry "Indian" Schulte, of the University of Nebraska, was unable to come to Ord last night because of the bad condition of the roads, members of the Ord Rotary club postponed their boys' meeting until a later date. The Nebraska track meet was scheduled to address Ord high school boys and others at a meeting in the high school auditorium last night. The meeting was the feature event of Rotary boys' week. Unless rainy weather continues the Rotarians will be hosts at a "feet" for younger boys at Bussell park Friday evening. Boys from 10 to 16 years of age will be guests. Lunch will be served and stories and songs will be enjoyed around a camp-fire. Bill Heuck, Lyle Milliken and Forrest Johnson are on the Rotary club boys' week committee and will have charge of this picnic and play night tomorrow.

FAST ANSLEY TEAM TO OPEN SEASON HERE

Runners-up in League Last Year Will Play Arnold's Mustangs Sunday; Expect Fast Game.

"Bing!"
"Crack!"
"It's a two-bagger!"
"Slide, Bill, slide!"
"Yre OUT!"
"Kill the umpire. Kill the umpire!"

These sounds and cries and many others peculiar to the great national pastime will be heard in Ord Sunday for the first time in 1930 when the Ord Mustangs open their home season against Ansley, runners-up last year in the Loup Valley league. The game will be played at the Bussell park diamond, starting promptly at 2:30 o'clock p. m.

More interest in baseball is being shown in Ord this spring than several years, due probably to Ord's membership in the Loup Valley league. Manager Arnold's Mustangs won their first league game

PEOPLES STORE OWNERS' PLANS ARE UNCERTAIN

Insurance Adjusters Here But No Settlement Agreed On Yet; Will Stay in Business.

LATER:
Just before the Quiz goes to press we are informed that the stock salvaged from the Peoples Store fire has been sold to three Council Bluffs men, who are moving it to the Bailey & Dettweiler building and plan to hold a fire sale soon. It is understood, also, that a settlement was effected last night between the insurance companies and Koupal & Barta but details of the settlement were not given out.

The plans of A. S. Koupal and Jos. P. Barta, owners of the Peoples Store which was destroyed by fire April 19, are still uncertain, the Quiz was told yesterday by both the partners. Their present plans are to rebuild, restock their store and continue in business, Mr. Barta says, but the plans are subject to change.

Geo. C. Benier, adjuster representing the insurance companies, and representatives of D. A. Johnson and Co., who are acting for owners of the store, have been busy all week appraising stock salvaged from the building after the fire. A settlement had not been agreed upon Wednesday afternoon. Several men who make a business of buying and re-selling the stock of burned stores have been in Ord this week examining the Peoples Store stock but have not yet made an offer acceptable to Koupal & Barta. Should they fail to do so the Peoples Store owners will sell the stock to the public, Mr. Barta says. If the stock is sold to a bulk buyer it may be sold locally or it may be taken to Omaha or Council Bluffs, he says.

The Peoples Store owners have received several offers from business concerns anxious to lease or buy their building, it is reported. The identity of these concerns has not been made known.

Suit for $10,000 Was Settled Out of Court

The suit for $10,000 damages filed by Mrs. Katherine Zikmund against R. C. Thompson and Arlos Thompson was settled out of court early Wednesday. Though the settlement is not a matter of court record, rumor says that the Thompsons gave Mrs. Zikmund $250 as settlement in full. She was injured on Sept. 19, 1929 when a car in which she was riding was struck by a car driven by Arlos Thompson. She was in Ord hospital for several weeks as a result of her injuries. Davis and Vogelantz represented Mrs. Zikmund and the Thompsons were represented by Bert M. Hardenbrook.

Adrian Tolen, son of Mr. and Mrs. I. D. Tolen of Ord, last week was honored by being chosen one of ten Nebraska boys upon whom the title of "State Farmer" was conferred by the Nebraska Farmer magazine. He was presented with a gold key emblematic of this degree.

Only the ten most outstanding vocational agriculture students in the state were elected to this degree at the annual convention of the Future Farmers of America, held at Lincoln last week. Adrian was further honored by being named district president of this organization. He already holds the presidency of the Ord chapter.

J. A. Kovanda, vo-ag instructor in Ord high school, was appointed director of this district by the Nebraska Vocational Agriculture association, which was recently affiliated with the National Vocational association.

Mr. Kovanda, young Tolen and Anthony Kokes attended the convention in Lincoln last week as delegates from the Ord F. F. A. chapter.

CHAMBER WILL PROTEST DELAY IN GRAVELING

Delegation Will Be Sent to Lincoln If Scotia-Cotesfield Project Is Not In May Letting.

If contracts for graveling the road between North Loup and Cotesfield are not included in the May letting at Lincoln, a delegation from Ord will go to the capital city to interview State Engineer, Cochran and Governor Weaver. This was decided Tuesday evening at a meeting of directors of the Chamber of Commerce. As large a delegation as can be secured will make the trip.

"We're tired of being cut off from the outside world whenever it rains," Roy Collison, president of the Chamber, told the Quiz yesterday. "Directors feel that for years all Valley county has gotten from the state highway department is promises. Now we want action and we are going to get it."

The state engineer told visitors to Lincoln last week that the gravel contract for this stretch of highway would be let in May. If the contract is let and if it calls for immediate completion of the work the local Chamber of Commerce will be satisfied, Mr. Collison says. "We've been put off so many times by promises of this sort that we're inclined to be a bit dubious and so we are making all preparations to take a big delegation to Lincoln," the C. of C. chief says.

Efforts will be made to interest people of Burwell, North Loup, Scotia and other towns in the Valley to join with the Ord delegates in presenting their case to the governor and to Engineer Cochran.

Masonic Banquet Tuesday.
Next Tuesday evening the annual banquet given by the Ord Masonic lodge will take place in the banquet room of the Masonic temple. Several out-of-town Masons will be present, besides members of the local chapter.

Young Brickner's nose was bleeding severely after the crash but he escaped without other injuries.

Jury Finds Arcadia Car Dealer Had No Cause For Action

"No cause for action" was the verdict brought in just before noon Tuesday in a case in which E. C. Baird, Arcadia automobile dealer, was suing Henry Wallace for $90 alleged to be due him on the purchase of a used car some months ago. The jury was out from Monday morning until noon Tuesday.

Mr. Baird alleged that he sold the car for $450, Mr. Wallace giving him $250 in cash and a horse and saddle valued at $110, the balance of the purchase price to be paid later. Mr. Wallace denied this, saying that $360 was the price he agreed to pay for the car.

Miles Lee, Arcadia, was attorney for Mr. Baird, and Munn & Norman of Ord represented Mr. Wallace. The case had been tried twice previously, the jury disagreeing on both occasions.

MRS. STEWART DIES, FUNERAL WILL BE TODAY

Well known Rural Resident Goes To Her Reward Monday After Months of Suffering.

After four months of suffering with cancer during which time all was done for her that modern science and loving care could do, Mrs. H. B. Stewart, 44, passed away Monday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Percy Benson, where she has been for five weeks. She suffered with gall troubles for 15 years and two months ago had an operation to relieve that trouble but it was soon found that cancer was the main trouble and it did not yield to treatment.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. today at the Sowl chapel, Rev. J. A. Moorman having charge of the services, interment being in the family lot in the Ord cemetery where her children are buried.

Gouldia Cook was born in West Virginia on Feb. 28, 1886 and passed away at 3:25 p. m. April 28, 1930, aged 44 years, one month and 28 days. She grew to womanhood in the state of Ohio and was married to Harold Stewart, of Vinton county, Ohio, on January 18, 1903. To this union seven children were born, four of whom preceded her in death.

With her husband and family, Mrs. Stewart moved to Ord on May 10, 1910, and two years later moved to Springdale where she lived until her fatal illness.

Those left to mourn her death include her husband and three children, William E. Stewart, Mrs. Margaret Benson and Gladys Stewart. She also has an aged mother, Mrs. S. B. Clift, of Ashville, O., and five brothers, Alfred, Parker and Claud Cook, of Ord, and Lyle Cook, of McCook. Several grandchildren, other relatives and numerous friends also survive.

Mrs. Stewart was a member of the Ben Hur lodge and was a faithful member of the Methodist church. She was a devoted wife and mother and a good neighbor and will be greatly missed in the community where she lived for nearly twenty years.

COUNCIL PASSES SUNDAY MOVIES

City Dads Run Ordinance Through By Unanimous Vote; Shows To Start Mother's Day.

By a unanimous vote, the Ord city council last night passed an ordinance legalizing Sunday movies in Ord, thus carrying out the wishes of a majority of Ord voters as expressed at the city election April 1. The ordinance becomes effective as soon as it is published as prescribed by law, which will be done in next week's Quiz. The first Sunday movie in Ord probably will be presented on Mother's Day, according to Jack Hoogenboom, theatre manager.

Last night's session was the final one for the present mayor and city council and councilmen passed resolutions commending the retiring mayor, Wm. Bartlett, retiring councilmen E. W. Gruber, Fred Coe and Wm. Moses, and Wm. Heuck, retiring city treasurer.

BUSINESS BODY STARTS MOVE TO CLEAN STREETS

Committee Will Circulate Petition Asking Council For Street Flushing System.

Believing that the condition of paved streets in Ord is a disgrace to a city of this size, directors of the Chamber of Commerce began work Tuesday evening on a campaign to induce the mayor and city council to approve and establish an adequate street cleaning system. The campaign is being undertaken as the result of repeated demands from many of the Chamber's 140 members.

"We will not cease our efforts until the paving is cleaned and some system established to take care of cleaning it regularly," directors are quoted as saying.

Never since the paving was laid in Ord has it been kept clean, directors pointed out Tuesday evening. Three or four times a year city officials have hired a man and team to collect and haul away dirt and debris that has accumulated, but for many months of the year the paving has been allowed to remain dirty.

Health officials have said that the unsanitary condition of the pavement is a menace to the health of the city, directors were told Tuesday night by Roy Collison, president of the chamber. Other directors pointed out the fact that our dirty pavement makes a terribly poor impression upon business visitors, many of whom have commented unfavorably upon Ord as a result of the filthy condition of our streets.

"In rainy weather Ord's pav is as muddy as any country r and in dry, windy weather the dust blows up and down the paving like

North Loup Mayor Would Be Supervisor

J. A. Barber, mayor of North Loup, was in Ord last Thursday morning and filed for the office of supervisor for the district consisting of North Loup and Ord townships. This office has been held for several years by V. W. Robbins, who will not be a candidate this year, he says. In commenting on Mayor Barber's filing the Loyalist says: "He is well known throughout both townships and all know him to be fair, square, courteous and a straight-from-the-shoulder business man. It seems that he is altogether fitted to follow in Vern Robbins' footsteps."

Jury Finds Against Goodrich In Stump Pulling Law Suit

After deliberating for only a short time, a jury in district court Tuesday brought in a verdict of "no cause for action" in a case wherein Ward E. Goodrich was suing Frank Psota for $150 alleged due him on a contract he took to pull stumps and saw wood for Mr. Psota. The plaintiff alleged that Mr. Psota ordered him off the place before he could finish the work but Mr. Psota testified that according to the contract Mr. Goodrich agreed to finish the work by January 1, 1929, which he failed to do. Goodrich was to have half the wood for his labor and did get six loads of wood, the evidence disclosed. The jury decided that he was sufficiently recompensed for what labor he performed. Judge Bayard H. Paine was on the bench. Bert M. Hardenbrook represented Mr. Goodrich and Mann and Norman were attorneys for Mr. Psota.

Legion, Auxiliary Will Meet Monday Evening

Because of the Masonic banquet next Tuesday evening conflicting with the regular meeting night of the American and Auxiliary, these two organizations will meet Monday night instead. The Auxiliary has been sponsoring an essay contest, the subject being "Americanism," and these essays will be judged and prizes awarded Monday evening. Posters submitted in the Auxiliary's Health Day Poster contest also will be judged. An extra program is being planned for this meeting and all are urged to attend.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Gowen and family spent the week end in Lincoln with relatives. The former's mother, Mrs. Myra Gowen returned with them for a visit. Radio fans listened in over WJCA at midnight Saturday heard a surprise of special interest to the friends of Miss Marjorie Thelin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. I. J. Thelin. The program was sponsored by the Kappa Tau fraternity of Nebraska Wesleyan, with one of its members, Roger Hurlie as announcer. The program was dedicated to the Alpha Gamma Delta sorority, of which Miss Thelin is a member. This particular broadcast afforded a unique way for the announcement of her engagement to Mr. Gerald Bardo, of Lander, Wyo., a student at the University at Madison the coming year to continue his course in journalism. Another interesting feature of the broadcast was the singing of a group of songs by Robert Gibb, a son of Rev. Richard Gibb, formerly of North Loup. Robert possesses a splendid baritone voice of much promise.

Mr. A. J. Jones went to Cairo Wednesday night by the death of a cousin William Porter, who was reared by Mrs. Jones' parents. Mr. Porter was a son-in-law of the late W. D. Long of Springfield, and was one of the prosperous and most popular farmers in that part of Hall county. Funeral services were held Thursday. On her return Mrs. Jones spent Sunday in Grand Island with Mrs. Florence Smith, formerly of this village.

THE STORY

CHAPTER I.—At the Warren ranch, the "Three Bar," on the fringe of the "cow country," a stranger appeared for the first time. He was a man of middle age, with a mustache, wearing a suit and tie, and a hat. He was known to all as "Billie." He had been the original owner of the place. The question whether the territory is to remain "cow country" or be opened to settlement is a troublesome one.

CHAPTER II.—Cattle "rustlers" have been troubling the ranch owner, Billie, for some time. He has been suffering from a bad case of "rustler" fever. The new hand gives him a name as Cal Harris. By his announcement in favor of "squatters" he incurs the enmity of a rider known as Morrow. The will made by Cal Warren stipulated that half the property should go to the son of his old friend, William Harris, the other half to "Billie." The new arrival is the man who discloses the fact that Harris is a "rustler" and takes counsel with her. The ranch owner, "waddles" his ousting fears.

CHAPTER III.—Harris' method of wearing the inevitable "gun" rather excites the girl's decision, though to Billie she is a "rustler" and a "bad man." He is a ranchman with an unsavory reputation as a "bad man." He is a ranchman who wanted to marry her, but she dislikes and fears him. Slade, endeavoring to embrace her, is repulsed by Harris. The men, on the verge of gun play are quelled by Harris' half testing proposal.

of an interesting lesson in chivalry of Mrs. W. J. Hemphill. There were ten members present, one honorary member, and one guest, Mrs. Maud Johnson. Mrs. Marv Davis told the history of Arbor Day and of the life of J. Sterling Morton. Other topics taken were "The Tree as an Invention," Esther Babcock, "Trees," by Joyce Kilmer, read by Mrs. Hemphill. "How we use our trees in industry," by Mrs. Alpha Crandall. "Other ways trees are being destroyed," by Mrs. M. D. Earnest. "How we replace our forests," by Fannie McClellan; "How to make your back yard more livable," by Mrs. Otto Bartz. Fannie McClellan read an excellent paper on "Famous Trees," written by Mrs. M. C. McClellan who was unable to be present.

Miss Thelma Willoughby very pleasantly entertained twenty three of her friends from the seventh and eighth grades at her home on Thursday evening in honor of her fifteenth birthday. The teacher, Mr. Leibl was also present. Miss Thelma received a number of nice gifts, ice cream and cake were served following a jolly evening of games.

Bobby and Betty Manchester, nine year old twins of Mr. and Mrs. John Manchester, held a joint birthday party at their home after school on April 29.

The winners of the bridge club very pleasantly entertained the losers at an indoor picnic Monday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Zangger. The affair had been planned for an outdoor picnic but because of the inclement weather it was held indoors, but everything in the way of entertainment was carried out as originally planned, as far as possible. All the guests wore overalls, and supper was served picnic style with the guests seated on the floor in the dining room. Tally cards for bridge were express tags, which were found by untangling a maze of strings about the rooms, to which the tags were attached. Mrs. Gillespie won high score at bridge for the ladies, Mr. Zangger for the men, while Mr. and Mrs. Elna Hurley held low score. Travelling prizes also were given. Those who were entertained were the Vodenals, Hurleys, Gillespies and Leland Earnests. Their hosts were the Zanggers, Robinsons, Dallams, and M. D. Earnests. Warren Bailey substituted for M. D. Earnest.

Mrs. Raymond Dunham arrived in North Loup Saturday for a visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. E. Johnson. Her home is at Beverly Hills, California. Mr. Johnson went as far as Grand Island to meet her.

Mrs. D. S. Bohrer went to Kearney Tuesday morning as a delegate from the Women's Foreign Missionary society of the Methodist church, to the district convention of the organization.

Miss Mary Bohrer returned to Lincoln Tuesday after a visit of several weeks with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. S. Bohrer. She will again resume her profession of nursing.

Miss Marie Thomas who accompanied her grandmother, Mrs. V. J. Thomas and daughter to Lexington and Hastings last week, expects to return this week.

that the girl marry him and so settle the matter of the ranch owner. She is indignantly rejected, but the man declares he will remain on the place and restore its prosperity waning under Billie's rule.

CHAPTER IV.—The regular calf round-up is begun. While the riders are at their evening meal, far out on the range, six outsiders join them. Billie knows them to be "rustlers" who, under the leadership of Slade and a man named Harper, have in the past stolen three calves from the ranch. Billie orders the girl appoints him temporary sheriff, suggests that he order the visitors to leave. Some what to her surprise, he does so. The men depart making threats. Billie made Harris permanent foreman. Catching Morrow leaving cattle where they can be stolen, Harris discharges him. Morrow leaves, and Harris realizes he has made a deadly enemy. He knows that Harper, Slade, and the rest of the "rustlers" now will know with whom they have to deal.

"None" of Harper's men has a brand of his own, he said. "They're living on the mare. They can't wait for calves to grow up. The way they work is to run a bunch of beef steers across into Idaho. They'll pick up another bunch there and shove them across the Utah line and repeat by moving a drove of some fine Brand up here. Only beef steers—just turning stuff. You know about the reputation of the O V and the Lazy H Four."

She knew all too well. There was a half-frenzied, smoldering distrust displayed between cowmen on the range. The three states that a triangle of ill feeling. It was current rumor that the O V and the Lazy H Four, ranging far southwest of the Three Bar, would traffic in any steers that came from across either the Utah or Idaho line. In the corner of most states were similar outfits that were receiving stations for rustled stock from the opposite sides. The triangular feud had been fostered to a point where the thieves were immune. Even if a direct complaint should be brought against them they had but to ride across into another state and a sheriff following them, would be helpless, the inhabitants resenting this intrusion into their affairs by an officer from another state, and refusing to aid him even if they did not actually oppose his passage.

"But how would it benefit Slade?" she repeated. "Why, suppose that Morrow over-looked a nice bunch of Three Bar calves all along this first strip next to Slade's range," Harris said. "When some Slade rider happens to drop along after our man has moved on and he haxes them off south. Later another picks them up and shoves them along another half-day's drive—way beyond where our boys ever work, even beyond the strip covered by Slade's north range, the only one that carries a Three-Bar rep; what then?"

"The calves would still be with mothers wearing the Three Bar mark," she said. "After they leave the cows they're slick, fair game for the first man that puts his rope on them. Slade rider wouldn't risk running one of his own brands on them before they left the cows."

"Not one of his own, no," Harris said; "only one that's going to be his later on. Did it ever strike you as queer that Slade, whose way is to crush every new outfit, should suffer a set-back and streak some party that had elected to start up for himself right in the middle of Slade's range? And later buy him out? That's the way he came into nearly every brand he runs. Several of these dinky little outfits have moved out right sudden with a dozen riders from some other outfit following along close behind; McArthur didn't even get moved, for Brand went on the war trail before he had time to start. But it transpired that he was all set to go because Slade showed bill of sale for Mac's holdings, dated only the day before. That's how he came to own every one of those brands of every outfit that overlaps his range."

They had turned their horses down a long ridge that led to the wagon in the bottoms.

"I'll mention to the boys that Morrow sold out the interests of the Three Bar while he was drawing down your pay. They'll pass sentence on him right sudden. Four hours from now they'll have dry gulched him so far from nowhere, that even the coyotes can't find him."

"Not that," she said. "Turn him over to the sheriff. You caught him in the act."

"In the act of missing a few cows on his detail. The sheriff would hold him almost an hour before he would let him go."

"Then give him his check and send him off the Three Bar range," she said. Harris waited till the herd had been worked and the men had gathered round the wagon. Then he handed Morrow a check.

"Here's your time," he said. "You can leave almost any time now."

Every man knew that Morrow had been caught at some piece of work contrary to the interests of the Three Bar. The discharged hand gave a short ugly laugh.

"As soon as you pussyfooted into the bottom, I knew it was only a question of time," he said. "Exactly," Harris returned. "Pack your stuff."

"A foreman has a scattering of a dozen or so men to back him up," Morrow observed with a shrug of one shoulder toward the rest of the men.

Harris turned to the girl. "I resign for about sixty seconds," he said, and swung back toward Morrow; and again all hands noted his queer quivering stand.

"I'm not far from right at this minute," he said. "So if you had anything in particular to address to me in a personal vein you can start now. Otherwise, you'd better be packing your stuff."

Morrow turned his back and headed for the rope corral. When he had saddled one horse and packed his effects on another he turned to Evans.

"You helped frame this on me," he said. "I thought I saw you messing over into my detail a few days back. One day right soon I'll run across you again."

"Then I'll take to riding with my head over my shoulder—surveying my back-track," Lanky promised. "Because we'll most likely meet from behind."

Morrow started to snarl an answer, his usual self-repression deserting him, but Harris waved an impatient hand.

"Drag it," he snapped. "Get moving. If I had my own way we'd lead your horse out from under you—and we will if I ever hear of your turning up on the Three Bar range again."

CHAPTER V

BILLIE WARREN rode with Harris on the last lap of the circle. There were but two men remaining with them.

"Moore!" Harris called, and the man turned his horse down the head of a draw that would lead him out into the bottoms a trifle less than a mile above the wagon. Harris heard a shrill whistle behind him and turned aside in the saddle to look back, saw that Moore had regained the ridge and was signaling. They turned and rode back to him.

"There's another," Moore said, pointing down the gulch. "It's getting to be a habit."

A dead cow lay on a little flat a hundred yards below. For three consecutive days some rider had found a fresh-killed Three Bar cow every animal had been shot.

"I'll turn this over to myself," Harris decided. "There's only two more gulches to work. Each one of you boys take one."

The girl followed him as he turned down the first steep ditch. They pulled up their horses and sat looking at the cow. A trickle of blood oozed out of a hole between the eyes. "Harris rode in a circle round the spot."

"He downed her from some point above," he said. "Not a sign anywhere close at hand." He surveyed the ridges that flanked either side of the draw and the little saddle-like depression at the head of it from which they had just descended. From beyond this gap came the shrill nicker of a horse, the sound chopped short as if a man had clamped his hand on the animal's nostrils to silence it. Harris turned swiftly to the girl.

"It's a plant," he said. "Ride—hard!" He suited his action to the words and jumped his horse off down the bottoms. He waved her over to one side.

"Keep well away from me!" he ordered. "They don't want you." They hung their spurs into their mounts and the horses plunged down the steeply-pitching bottoms vaulting sage clumps and bound ing along the cow trails that threaded the brush. Two hundred yards below the cow the draw made an elbow bend. The girl rounded it and as Harris followed a jump behind he felt a jarring tug at the cantle of his saddle and the thin, sharp crack of a rifle reached him. The gulch made a reverse bend and as they swept around it Harris swung sideways in the saddle and looked back. They were entirely sheltered from any point on the divide six hundred yards behind them. He pulled his horse to a swinging trot and they rode down the sloping meadow that led straight to the main valley.

"We didn't get started any too soon," Harris said. "His horse wasn't more than a hundred feet beyond the notch when he blew off and warned us—not that for me to get carried and drop him as he topped the ridge."

The girl's eyes suddenly riveted on a small round hole in the cantle the mouth of the gulch where it opened into the main bottoms two hundred yards beyond.

From the opposite slope riders were hazing cows out of their respective draws. The running horse caught every man's eyes as the girl careened out into the center of the valley, rose in her stirrups and waved an arm in a circle above her head. In five seconds riders were whirling in behind her from all directions as she headed for the wagons.

She waved those already on the spot toward the rope corral.

"Change horses!" she called, and as each man rode in he caught up a fresh horse.

"Scatter out; some of you, below where we came down, some above," she said. "Five hundred to the men that brings Morrow in."

GAINS 15 POUNDS THROUGH USE OF MODERN KONJOLA

Lady Eagerly Endorses New Medicine That Brought Health After Others Had Failed.

MRS. GEORGE PASSMORE

"I was in a badly run-down condition for months and lost over 100 pounds," said Mrs. George Passmore, 1304 Douglas street, Ames, Iowa. My meals did me no good and I was very nervous. I tried every medicine and treatment that I thought would help but nothing seemed to do me any good. I had begun to think an operation would be necessary. About this time friends told me about Konjola.

"Before I had completed the first bottle of this medicine I knew that it was helping me. Up to this time I have used four bottles and I am able to say that this medicine has done me more good than all the other medicines and treatments combined. I have gained 15 pounds in weight, I can eat what I wish without discomfort and I sleep well at night for the first time in months. I will always be glad to tell any one about Konjola."

Konjola is a new and different medicine containing the juices of 22 natural plants combined with other known medicinal ingredients. Konjola works with the sufferer's food, eliminating poisons and restoring normal activity to the important organs.

Konjola is sold in Ord at the McLain-Sorensen Drug Co., and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

Pussyfoot's Sportlog

By GEORGE ROUND, JR.

Recently Clare "Dugan" Clement told me that he and Jim Bremer went to County Attorney Munn and asked that a warrant be sworn out for the arrest of a certain good for nothing reporter who works for the Quiz. They failed to mention who they meant and as yet the warrant hasn't been served by Sheriff George Round.

When speaking to me, Clement said this reporter or writer, if he may be called that, was telling too much truth. They demand that the writer use his imagination a little more and not stick to facts so closely. Perhaps Gene or H. D. had better look out for Sheriff Round. I will get my man, Round declares.

It appears as though Arcadia is out for revenge in baseball this year with Ord. Ord beat them twice last year and now Arcadia is "up" in the Loup Valley league in preparation to taking Manager Arnold's team into camp. Those two defeats left sour tastes in the Arcadia boys' mouths. They crave revenge.

Bill Vodehnal is probably one of the biggest golf boosters in Valley county. He now runs a drug store at North Loup. . . . Peanuts Jensen declares that Charley Arnold is quite a baseball player and manager. Perhaps Dave Haught would like to manage the MIRA Valley ball team this year. Still he would be quite a target for the pop bottle throwers. Even John Bremer might be able to hit the target. . . . The Arcadia ball club is playing "copy cat" when it comes to hiring baseball players. . . . Fidge Johnson looks better this year new material are showing to an advantage. Especially in Oakley Hather and Everett Lashmett is improvement noted. Both boys played pretty fair ball last year but were inconsistent and inclined to be awkward. Both have now caught up with their growth and are handling themselves in great style. Hather looks like the real goods as an infielder and hitter. Lashmett is a great first baseman if he performs in games as he has been in early practices. Earl Klein looks great as a pitcher and infielder but is woefully weak at the bat. Others look good also.

New material looking good includes Smith and Nutter. Ord sports will remember Smith from his basketball playing on the junior high team. He appears to be just as good at baseball although small of stature. Nutter looks like a comer at the bat. He is an outfielder.

My Own Column

By H. D. Leggett

A well known west Ord society woman, speaking of the wonderful results she had secured from the use of the funny spelled new medicine which McLain & Sorensen are advertising in the Quiz, started her friend when she blurted out, the other day, "Kovanda made me feel 15 years younger."

While the state park board is buying park sites in all parts of the state it should look up a suitable place for a park in Valley county where a good sized lake could be built and stocked with game fish. Valley county is entitled to that consideration and no doubt such a result could be accomplished if someone having a suitable place would come forward.

I got both cussed and commended the other day for what I said about President Hoover and the World Court. Just the same I don't believe the people of the United States want this country to get mixed up in that deal at all and I believe they will say so in no uncertain terms at the first chance.

A man in a position to know says that more trees and shrubs and flowers are being planted in Ord this spring than ever before and that being the case Ord should make great strides towards beauty this and the next few years. Some body or some organization ought to offer some special inducement for a concerted movement to beautify Ord more rapidly. So far this spring Mother Nature is doing her full share to that end.

I notice that the Omaha Bee thinks Governor Weaver will become a candidate for senator and that the other candidates will get out of the way to give the governor the best possible chance to beat Senator Norris. Of course the only chance the governor would have would be for the others to get out and then I very much doubt if he could make the grade. It would not be nearly as humiliating to be defeated for senator, running at the behest of the standpat members of his party as it would to be defeated for a second term as governor. And he has had all the honor he can get from his present office anyhow.

If Governor Weaver would give orders that the road between Ord and Elba be graded and graveled as speedily as possible, so that the people of this central part of the state would have an outlet to the outside world he would add greatly to his standing in central Nebraska. Many places of less importance have fared much better than we have in the way of roads and unless more speed is shown we will travel the chalk hills road another winter in the mud.

May 12 is known as Mother's Day and hundreds, yes thousands of sons and daughters all over the land will send letters and telegrams and flowers and other gifts to the beloved mother far away. And how the mothers receiving these assurances of remembrance and love will glow with pride and how happy they will be. But there will be hundreds and thousands of sons and daughters who will selfishly forget the dear, patient mother so far away and so lonely as she patiently awaits the hoped for message which does not come. I have before me a beautiful letter written more than a decade ago by an absent Ord boy to his mother in Ord. That boy was just ripening into manhood when he wrote that letter and he has gone on through the years since it was written, making good in his chosen life work and that fond mother is still here in Ord, always proud and happy that she has such a boy. And right now she is looking forward to a visit from him some time this summer. But I am going to print that letter in the hope that it will cause some who might otherwise forget it, to remember the mother back home. Names are omitted because the Ord mother is modest but many of you know her well. The letter was written back in 1912 and is as follows:

"My Dear Mother:
Today is known as Mother's Day throughout the country. Here, mother, is a special message to you.

I feel how little any words of mine can express, when it comes to telling how dear you are to me. But if you will allow me I want to tell you in my weak way how I praise my Heavenly Father this afternoon because he has given me a mother like you. In my youth you cared for me; you suffered that I might have comfort; you placed your life on the altar of sacrifice in order that I might be born into this world; you were with me through my growth, ministering to my needs without a thought of your own well-being. As I look back over those different times, when under your wings of influence, when I began to get away from you for a week at a time, then two weeks, then a month, and then two months, then for a year, until now, and thinking how you love has gone with me, whether taking a journey of a few miles, or hundreds of miles, my eyes are blinded because of the tears that should have been shed when with indifference I saw you labor that might have been lightened by me. In the face of it all, looking at it now from a man's viewpoint, I love you and ask your pardon and forgiveness for not making it more pleasant for you, when I was at home. If only I could look you in the face today, put my arms about your neck, and tell you how I feel about what you have done for me, I would rejoice, although my childish nature might choke me up so that after all I might have the appearance of a 10-year-old.

What I am you have made me. Even now, an open Bible is before me, the result of a Mother's advice and influence. The Lord has his own excellent way of working through his people to save them from their sins and ever keep them prayerful for one another. Yes, mother, I still hear yours' and father's simple prayers for us when we had retired and you and father left alone with the Lord to ask his guidance through each succeeding week. They never get away from me, now, even if I do not like the sound very well at the time.

I hope you will not think that I ever forget you or that you do not have a regular part in my prayers. That is the principle of my life from which I do not want to err. I could write a number of pages this afternoon, but I don't want you to think that I am writing this because I think I have to—I would like to see you, mother.

May the kind Heavenly Father, who has given me such a good mother, bless you richly, sustaining you in all you do, and finally bring us, whom you have loved with the same Christ spirit, to our Heavenly home where He shall have the praise. Kiss father for me.

YOUR SON"

Though a man grown at the time, this son was not ashamed to send "many kisses to father and mother" and the father, long since gone to his reward, after hearing the letter read and re-read, said, as he wiped the tears from his eyes, "That letter is worth a hundred dollars to me."

Chew a Rexall Orderly at night. Next day bright. Get 24 for 25c today at the nearest Rexall Drug Store.

Women Always Pioneers

48 Years' Work, Thanks

A New Planet

At the Red Bank (N. J.) railroad station, two large flag baskets and two pasteboard boxes with holes to admit air were filled with carrier pigeons. A railroad man opened them, freeing four or five dozen birds. "I don't know where they come from or where they are going," said he. "They are often sent here to be turned loose. I suppose they go home."

The beautiful birds, descendants of Wild Rock pigeons, found in steep Swiss canyons, flew up in two groups, and for more than ten minutes circled round and round, regaining their sense of direction.

Presently the two flocks united, flew off together over the roof of the S. S. Thompson General Contractors' building in a northeasterly direction. "They always go over that building, after they fly around ten or fifteen minutes to make up their minds," said a bystander.

Presently flocks of young humans, released from their moratorium cages, will be turned loose in the world. It will take them more than 15 minutes to decide on direction, and many will never reach the destination. Some day when men shall have lived on earth as many million years as birds have here, they, too, will be born with a sense of direction and know which way to go.

Oklahoma unveils a fine statue to the pioneer woman. Women have always been earth's real pioneers. In ideas and in action.

Far back in the stone age they had produced all the grains we know by developing the seeds of wild plants.

They tamed female buffaloes to provide milk for their children, planted gardens, changed human beings from a nomadic to a settled life.

They are the pioneers of the frontiers, pioneers in ideas, in religion. The influence of mothers on their sons in the last million years has changed men from promiscuous cannibals to semi-civilized human grubbers. A great improvement.

William Manck, forty-eight years a letter carrier, absent only one week in forty-eight years, retires. His superiors shake hands with him and are photographed doing it. That's kind, but Uncle Sam might do more.

He might give William Manck and other faithful servants of the post office a generous pension on which they could live comfortably.

Plans Progress For Poppy Day Selling

Saturday, May 24, will be "Poppy Day" in Ord this year. Arrangements for the annual sale of memorial poppies to be worn in honor of the World War dead are progressing rapidly under the sponsorship of the local unit of the American Legion Auxiliary. Mrs. Mortensen, unit president, announces, May 24, the Saturday before Memorial Day, and all through the week following will see the little red flowers of remembrance go on sale throughout the city.

The Saturday before Memorial Day has been adopted almost everywhere in the United States as the day for paying tribute to the men who lost their lives in the World War by wearing the poppy. The Ord unit of the Auxiliary is preparing to give every man, woman and child in the city an opportunity to wear the poppy this year. They will have poppies for sale in all parts of the city throughout the day and hope by the end of the day to have placed a poppy on every coat.

The wearing of the poppy has a double significance. The wearer not only honors the war dead but in buying the poppy contributes to the welfare of the disabled and the families of the dead and disabled.

Every penny which the Auxiliary receives from the sale goes directly to the relief of disabled veterans and the families left dependent because of the war. The poppies are made by disabled men and all the work of the sale is done by volunteers from the Auxiliary and other co-operating organizations.

The burden of relief work which the Legion and Auxiliary are called on to carry is becoming heavier each year as more and more veterans are taken from the ranks of wage earners by the disabilities of war. At this late date, it is exceedingly difficult to win government aid for the men who break down from results of their war service and the responsibility for their care falls increasingly on the service organizations.

The citizens of Ord have always made a generous response to the Legion and Auxiliary poppy sale. We hope that the response can be even more generous this year for the need is greater than ever. A poppy on the lapel May 24 will mean honor to the dead and service to the living, Mrs. Mortensen says.

And without waiting for them to be worn out, he might give them the richest employer in the world should be at least just.

Professor Shapley, director of the Harvard observatory, hears from Canada that another planet, sailing around our sun, hitherto unknown to us, has been discovered.

How many are there in our celestial family? How far out to space does the family reach?

Our ignorance proves the extreme youth of our "thinking race." Only a very young and ignorant baby is unable to tell how many brothers and sisters it has.

Our newly discovered planet neighbor, circling around the sun, far out beyond Neptune, is the most interesting thing in the news.

We are only a little more than 90,000,000 miles from the sun. This new planet, about the size of our earth, is 1,335,000,000 miles from the sun.

Multiply that by six and you will know approximately the length of the far-off planet's journey round the sun.

On that planet you must live 3,200 earth years in order to be one year old.

To see the new neighbor, look now. It will be visible with earth's telescopes only about a hundred years longer, and then be hidden for 3,000 years, while it finishes one of its own years.

Japanese customs compels each person to speak with great humility of his own achievements.

The clever Japanese statesman, Wakasuki, who got everything for Japan that he wanted, gave nothing that he didn't want to give, writes his government lamenting his "inadequate ability," calling his work "regrettably insufficient," and winding up, "I am ashamed."

Interesting news from Russia, Stalin, boss of Bolshevism, celebrates the new commercial treaty with Britain by ordering nine British automobiles, costing from thirteen to fifteen thousand dollars each.

When Stalin and other Russians feel that a $15,000 car is necessary that's a sign bigger than a man's hand. It means that somebody is beginning to enjoy wealth, and means nothing good for Communism.

All the powers, you are told, agree that it is desirable "to humanize submarines."

Very desirable, but now?

The young lady in the comic opera sang: "Shoot Him Gently, Oh, So Gently," but you can't do that in warfare.

Submarine commanders send torpedoes to blow up ships, or don't. If they do, it can't be "humane."

Back in 1925, less than 40% of all cars produced were sixes. Then year by year this proportion increased until today, as shown above, the public is buying more six-cylinder cars than any other type. And this preference for sixes is growing every day!

Why? The answer is perfectly clear. The six operates with a smoothness that it is impossible to obtain with fewer cylinders—and smoothness is one of the big things that buyers have learned to demand in pride to have a string of mounts that included the worst horses in the lot. He rode from the corral on Blue, holding the big roan steady, and headed up the ridge a mile below where Harris and the girl had come down. "Rile Foster chose the next five riders were but a few jumps behind. Harris did not change horses, but searched hastily in his war bag and slipped the strap of a binocular case across his shoulders and rode off with the girl as she flinched clinging her saddle on a fresh horse.

In less than five minutes from the time she had reached the wagon the last Three Bar man had mounted and gone. Harris rode with her up a long ridge that led up the divide; they followed another into the next bottom and ascended the second divide. This was sharp and rocky, its crest a maze of ragged pinnacles. He chose the highest of these and dismounted to sweep the range with his glasses. The point afforded a view of every ridge for miles. After perhaps half an hour Harris caught five horsemen in the field of his glasses. They were riding in a knot.

"They've picked up his trail," he said. "But he'll have too long a lead. We might as well be going." They mounted and headed to the right along the divide.

"If Rile is in sight we can wait for him," he said. "And see if he's picked up any tracks."

A half mile along the ridge they saw Foster off through the breaks and he was working back their way.

"Thanks, Billie," Harris said. "For losing a circle trying to run him down."

"I'll have done as much for any Three Bar man," she returned.

"Of course," he said. "I'd have expected that. But all the same it shows that I'm progressing. Maybe my good qualities will grow on you until you get to thinking right well of me."

They waited till Foster joined them on the ridge.

"Bangs crossed over a mile below," Rile said. "We might pick him up."

"Any sign?" Harris asked as they moved down the divide.

"A bunch of shod horses went down through there a few days back," Rile said. "Three or four men, likely, with a few pack horses along. He's pulled out."

"I saw him," Harris said. "He's gone."

They stopped in the saddle of the ridge where a fresh track showed the spot Bangs had crossed.

The girl was looking at Harris and saw a sudden pallor travel up under his tan. As she turned to see what had occasioned it he crowded his horse against her own.

"Don't look!" he ordered, and forced her horse over the far side of the ridge. "You'd better ride on back to the wagon," he urged.

"There's been some sort of doings over across. Rile and I will ride down and look into it." Without a word she turned her horse toward the wagon.

"It's God's mercy she didn't see," Harris said, as the two crossed back over the ridge. "Isn't that a h— of a way for a man to die?"

But the girl had seen. Her one brief look had revealed a horse coming round a bend in a little box canyon below. A shapeless thing dragged from one stirrup and at every third or fourth jump the big blue horse side-lashed the limp bundle with its heels.

Kokes Hardware Will Have Modern Front

tom the frenzied horse had stopped and was fighting to free himself of the thing that followed him. He moved away from it in a circle. He squealed and kicked it, and then dashed off in a fresh panic, side-swiping his pursuer.

Harris' rope tightened on his neck and threw him. As he rolled over Foster's nose started both hind feet and he was held stretched and helpless between two trained cow horses. While the men disengaged the bundle that had once been Bangs. One foot fell was missing and his foot was jammed through the stirrup, evidence that the horse had picked him and the loosened heel had come off, allowing his foot to slip through as he was thrown.

Harris pointed to a burnt red streak across the right side of Bangs' neck. He unbuttoned his shirt and revealed a similar streak under his left armpit.

Old Rile cursed horribly and his face seemed to have aged ten years.

"They learned that from the albino," he said. "It's an old trick that always works. They dropped a rope on him and jerked him, held off his heel, shoved his boot through and laid the quit on his horse. Blue did the rest."

Both men knew well how it happened. Bangs had run across the camp of some of the wild bunch, men he had known for long, and the slow-thinking young had suspected no more danger from riding up to them at this time than at any other. He had told them of the shot fired at Harris and then had known that some other Three Bar man would find the trail leading from the disengaged bit boot camp. And Bangs would mention having found them there, linking them with the bushwhacker.

When Bangs had left a pair of them had ridden a distance with him and then accomplished their aim.

"It's coming dark," Harris said. "And by morning they'll be thirty miles away. That sort of a killing was never fastened on to any man yet."

The old man raised a doubled fist and his face was lined with sorrow.

"Bangs was almost a son to me," he said. "I taught him to ride—and we've rode together on every job since then. You hear me! Some one is going to die for this!"

During the rest of the evening inwardly accused the men of heartlessness. They jested as carelessly as if nothing unusual had occurred and she heard no mention of Bangs. It seemed that it took but a day for them to forget a former comrade who had come to an untimely end. Rile Foster had disappeared but on the fifth day he turned up at the Three Bar wagon and resumed his work without the least explanation of his absence.

The old man was gloomy and silent, his face set in sorrowful lines as he went about his work, and it was evident that he was continually brooding over the fate of the youth he had loved.

Billie could not shake off the remembrance of the boy's adoring gaze as his eyes set in her every move she made, and in some vague way she felt that she was responsible for the accident. "She often rode near Rile Foster, knowing what was in his mind. He spoke but little and, in common with the rest, he never once mentioned Bangs."

At the end of a week Slade rode up to the wagon as the men were working the cows gathered in the second circle of the day. He jerked his head to draw her aside out of range of "Waddies" and said:

"How's the Three Bar showing up this spring?" he asked abruptly.

"Better than ever," she retorted, and he caught a note of defiance in her voice.

"You're lying, Billie," he asserted calmly. "The Three Bar will show another shrinkage this year."

"How do you know?" she flashed; and the distrust of him that Harris had roused in her, lately submerged beneath the trotting thoughts of Bangs, was suddenly quickened and thrown uppermost in her mind.

"I know," he asserted. "It's my business to know everything that goes on anywhere near my range. You say you want to run the Three Bar brand yourself. There's not a man in this country that would touch a Three Bar cow if you was hooked up with me."

"And then the Three Bar would be only one out of a dozen or more Slade brands," she said.

For no reason at all she was suddenly convinced of the truth of Harris' suspicions concerning Slade. She noticed that his eyes traveled from one man to the next till he scrutinized every one that worked the herd.

"Are you looking for Morrow?" she demanded, and instantly regretted her remark. Slade's face did not change by so much as the bat of an eye and he failed to reply for a space, she reflected—then turned to her.

"Morrow—who's he?" he asked. "And why should I look for him?"

"He rode for you last year," she said.

"Oh! That fellow. I recall him now. Bleak-looking citizen," he said. "And what about him?"

"You tell me," she countered. "That new foreman hired the fellow that was scouting round alone for a few months—has been talking with his mouth," Slade said. "If he keeps that up I'll have to ask him to speak right out what's on his mind."

"He'll tell you," she prophesied. "What then?"

"Then I'll kill him," the man stated.

The girl motioned to Lanky Evans as he rode across to them. "Lanky, I want you to remember this," she said. "Slade has just promised to kill Harris. And if he does I'll spend every dollar that I own seeing that he's hung for it."

she turned to Slade. "You might repeat what you just told me," she suggested.

Slade looked at her steadily. "You misunderstood me," he stated. "I don't recall any remark to that effect or even mentioning the name of Harris. Who is he, anyhow?"

Evans slouched easily in the saddle and twisted a smoke.

"Now, let's get this straight what I'm remembering," he said. "Mr. Slade was saying that he planned to down Cal Harris the first time he caught him out alone. I heard him remark to that effect."

He turned and grinned cheerfully at Slade. "That's his very words—and I'll swear to it as long as my breath held out. I'll sort of repeat it over to myself so that I can give it to the judge word for word when the time comes."

Slade favored him with a long stare which Lanky bore with unbroken smiling back at him pleasantly.

"I've got my little piece memorized," Evans said; "and in parting let me remark that Cal Harris will prove a new sort of a victim for you to work on. If you let him he'll tear down your meat-house." He turned his horse and rode back to the herd.

"I'll play your game," the girl told Slade. "If anything happens to another man who is riding for me and I have any reason to even suspect you were at the bottom of it I'll swear that I won't do it for you." The Three Bar was the only outfit with a clean enough record to drag anything up for an airing before the courts without taking a chance. This rule of every man for himself won't hold with me."

She moved toward the wagon and Slade kept pace with her, leading his horse.

"You're a real woman, Billie," he said. "You better throw in with a real man—me—and we'll own this country sooner than you can count a thousand head whenever you say the word."

"I'd rather see it on half as many through my own efforts," she said. "And some day I will."

"Some day you'll see my way," he prophesied. "I know you better than any other man. You want an outfit of your own—and if the Three Bar gets crowded out you'll go to the man that can give you one in its place. That will be me. Some day we'll trade."

"You can't trade soon—you'll trade your present holdings for a nice range in hell," a voice said in Slade's ear and at the same time two huge paws were thrust from the little window of the cook-wagon and clamped on his arms above the crook of his elbow. Slade was a powerful man but he was an infant in the grip of the two great hands that raised him clear of the ground and shook him before he was slammed down on his face ten feet away by a straight-arm thrust. His deadly temper flared and he was simultaneously with the twist which brought him to his feet, but his hand fell away from the butt of it as he looked into the twin muzzles of a saved-off shotgun which menaced him from the window. Slade's face and mind the guns as the face of Waddies.

"I'm about to touch off a pound of shot if you go acting up," Waddies said. "Any more talk like you was just handing out and you'll get smeared here and there."

"Are you running the Three Bar?" Slade asked.

"Only at times, when the notion strikes me," Waddies said. "And this is one. Whenever you've got any special business to transact with us why come right along over and transact it—and then move on out."

Billie Warren laughed suddenly, a gurgle of sheer amusement at the sight of the most dreaded man within a hundred miles standing there under the muzzle of a shotgun, receiving instructions from the mouth of the Three Bar cook. "For Slade was helpless and knew it."

"Waddies, you win," he said. "I'll be going before you change your mind."

As the man walked toward his horse, which was sidling a few steps away, the big cook grabbed him and fingered the riot gun regretfully.

The wagon did not move on when the men had finished working the herd, as the rest of the day had been set aside for him. An hour after Slade's departure the hands were rolling in for sleep. The girl saw Rile Foster draw apart from the rest and sit with his back against a rock. He was regarding some small object held in his hand. As he turned it around she recognized it as a boot heel and the reason for Rile's absence was clear to her. He had back-tracked the blue horse to the scene of the mishap.

She was half asleep when a voice some distance from the tepee roused her by speaking the name of Bangs.

"I've a pretty elastic conscience myself," the voice went on. "I'm not above lifting a few calves for the brand I'm riding for or any little thing like that, but this deal sort of gorges up in me. They'll never catch it on any man—they never did. Rile is brooding over it. He'll likely run nunch. One way or another he'll try to break even for Bangs."

Billie recognized the voice as Moore's and knew that one of her men, at least, had not forgotten Bangs. It was the first time an intimation that the affair was other than an accident had reached her ears.

The calf roundup was nearing its end. Two weeks would finish and supply the final tally. Harris sat on a rock and reviewed the plans he had formulated for the salvation of the Three Bar brand, realizing the weak spots and mapping out some special line of defense that might serve to strengthen them. In the seclusion of the wagon Waddies was carefully rereading a much-thumbed

Why does the omelet-recipe say SERVE AT ONCE ?

The minute an omelet is hot from the pan, it is puffed up, tender... at its best... And the minute vegetables are fresh from the garden, all their flavor, all their juice are at their high point.

The way to have white wax beans while they are tender; and carrots when so crisp they cook creamy before they are creamed... the way to have all vegetables at their climax of freshness, is to pick them from a garden of your own.
And the way to grow vegetables approaching perfection is to plant Ferry's purebred Seeds.

These seeds are perfected the way breeders perfect cattle.
A Ferry-bred tomato is no more like an ordinary tomato than Ferry's sweet corn is like horse corn. Find Ferry's purebred
Seeds at the "store around the corner." And write for Ferry's Seed Annual. This gives you 73 years' experience in gardens before you start—news of much paper—and even of better ways to cook vegetables. D. M. Ferry & Co., Detroit, Michigan.
P. S.—THE GARDENER HAS NO SECOND CHANCE. PLANT THE BEST.

Now Is The Time To Clean-up The Farm

By A. B. FIALA

Cities in their civic activities often institute movements of various kinds for the betterment of their community life. Some towns and cities have put on clean-up days with the aim of removing fire hazards from back yards, alleys and vacant lots. At the same time the general appearance of the city was enhanced. These are examples where individual citizens with a developed sense of order, safety and aesthetics use their influence to move others to catch the spirit and help them to make the city a better place to live in.

Recently I had occasion to travel out in the country with a friend who is a resident of Ord. As we passed one neatly arranged farmstead my companion remarked "How neat that farmer is keeping his place." His remark pleased me and revealed to me that he had a developed sense of order and had appreciation for the beautiful. Whenever I travel any road I observe farmsteads as to general appearance and arrangement of yards and buildings. But I do not end with that. I observe details. I notice how the fences are kept up. How the gates hang. What care the trees show. Paint or absence of it on the buildings. Placement of farm tools. Freedom or lack of it of livestock about the place.

What especially pains me is to pass a place all junked up with old machinery and odds and ends of lumber and sticks scattered all about the place. So many farmsteads we may drive into present danger to our car tires from scrap iron and boards with nails in them lying scattered about the yard. Such places invariably are regular weed patches as it is impossible for the owner to run his mower through the junk even if he did get the idea to keep those weeds down. The shiftless farmer's excuse is that he wants boards scattered conveniently so they would be handy when needed for a repair. But chances are that his type rarely nails up a board when a repair is really needed and should be really look for a board to use he could not locate the right size without running all over the place. One neighbor I had when living in Colfax county when attending sales in his neighborhood made a practice of buying junk machines claiming that he used bolts and braces out of these when he needs them for repairs on his farm machinery. For the sake of saving a few dollars for repairs and bolts he junked up his whole yard with old machinery.

A better way is to take apart the machine you no longer expect to use and put away bolts and braces secured from it, assorted in the shelves of the farm shop so that when needed they can be reached for without loss of time. The rest of the machine had best be hauled away to fill that gully or cast into some out of the way corner of the farm. Pick up those boards, pull the nails, arrange the useful lumber in a pile behind some building out of sight and chop up the useless boards for fuel before they rot away lying around on the ground. Look after those fences. They will look better if in repair and your stock will then be where it belongs and not running all over your garden and lawn or worse yet into your neighbors growing crop. Prune out those trees. Cut off those dead branches. Remove the dead trees. Yes, this will take time and labor and in exact proportion to the neglect the place had received in the past. Do it now in the spring of the year before the weeds come up and grow tall to interfere with your movements. Junk cannot be moved in winter as it is frozen to the ground. It cannot be moved in the fall as then tall sunflowers and weeds will be grown through and entangled in it. Now is the time. When you have a day or several days free why not set them aside as clean-up days on the farm.

After your place is all slicked up you will have contributed your bit towards making this community a better place to live in. Those passerbys will look around a second time as they travel by. You will have done your share towards making that auto ride of your neighbor or city friend who passed your place a pleasant one.

Whenever we travel to town we put on better clothes and clean up the car, which takes us there. By so doing we are placing value on appearances. We should have the same concern about appearances when others pass the place where we live. Our farm is what we make it. It reveals a part of us and of our nature.

Neatness need not be expensive. Any place can be made well appearing without any special outlay. "How to make Home more attractive to the family" is a project that was put on through the extension clubs of the county this spring. Putting on clean-up days on the farm would carry that project a step further. It would make the farm more attractive not only to the passerby but to the occupants themselves and make "home" have a bigger meaning to them.

The farmer is "master of all he surveys." If there is to be any cleaning up to be done he himself must institute the movement on his farm. No outsider will come in and dictate what ought to be done. If this article will help some farmers to catch the spirit and start a cleanup job on his place I will not have written in vain.

AM I RIGHT?

By Geo. Round, Jr.

Walter Sorenson of Arcadia has one of the outstanding small dairy herds in Valley county. Although "Walt" milks but four cows, they are all good ones. He has one cow, a Jersey, that probably will rank with the best in the county when it comes to milk and butterfat production. Walter believes she is capable of making over five hundred pounds butterfat annually.

Although Sorenson is not a member of the Valley County Dairy Herd Improvement association he keeps records of milk production on all of his cows. He knows what they are producing and what his feed cost is each year.

Besides having four outstanding milk producers, Walter has a heifer that looks like a "comer" in butterfat production. He raised the heifer himself and believes that she has a great future.

Ordinarily one does not think that four cows is a large enough herd to use a milking machine on. Nevertheless, Walter bought a machine about three weeks ago and is now milking his cows in that fashion. He says it is economical and saves a lot of time and labor.

Billy Arnold of Arcadia is one of the liveliest 4-H club members in the county. He belongs to two pig clubs. Bill isn't so big either, about 140 lbs. size. Someone predicts that Dean Arnold won't do much farming this year. How about the 50 acres, Charley?—Miss Flavia Twombly is one of Valley county's 4-H club boosters. So is Miss Rood of Hayes Creek. Now is the time for Valley county farmers to enter the 1930 corn yield contest. It costs nothing and particulars can be received from County Agent Dale in Ord.—N. W. Gaines, community specialist from the college of agriculture, told me recently that Haskell Creek community is one of the most progressive farm communities in Nebraska. He recently spoke at a meeting at the Haskell Creek school.—Charley Hather is anxiously awaiting the opening of the horse show season. Will there be another club in Ord this year?

It won't be long until people will be buying their spring fry chickens in little two-pound cartons. The University of Nebraska is now putting up springs in a little carton that resembles the way bacon is put up. Other meats are being put up the same way now.

Mrs. Floyd Bossen of Arcadia wants to know where I get the idea that eggs are going down to twelve cents a dozen before the year is over. Perhaps she didn't notice that I only predicted the price would drop. Evidently she believes the same as Publisher H. D. Leggett that George Round, Jr., is all "wet" in his prediction. There probably are other Valley county people wondering where I got my idea that egg prices will be that low. Time will tell, your guess is as good as mine. I still believe I have some basis for the prediction although prices may not go that low. 'Twas only a prediction. Sometimes they come true and sometimes they don't. Readers of this column are asked to remember that the heading suggests I may be wrong. I leave it to you to be the judge.

Corn Club To Be Organized. A meeting will be held in County Agent C. C. Dale's office this evening (Thursday) for the purpose of organizing a corn club. All boys interested in such an organization are cordially invited to come in and join.

The Union Pacific railway system offers a scholarship in the college of agriculture of the University of Nebraska at Lincoln to the boy who has the highest average ranking in both class instruction and supervised practical agricultural work, in each county through which the Union Pacific railroad runs. The boy must live in that county, be regularly enrolled in a vocational agriculture department, and be between 14 and 21 years of age.

The scholarship, which amounts to $100 in cash for a full course of $50 for a short course, is paid when the student enrolls at the college. In addition, the student is reimbursed the expense incurred for railroad transportation over Union Pacific lines for one going and one return trip, to and from Lincoln.

John Campbell won the Union Pacific vo-ag scholarship for Valley county this year with a net project income of $200 from three hundred baby chicks.

John must utilize his scholarship this fall, however, or it will be passed to Homer Willard who was named alternate winner. Homer realized a net profit of over $100 from a sow and litter project. John and Homer both made excellent scholastic records.

The scholarship winner and alternate from each county were determined by a local committee of three disinterested parties selected by the state supervisor of agricultural education. Their project records were mailed to the state supervisor who in turn sent them to Union Pacific headquarters. There the books were personally read by Carl R. Gray, president of the Union Pacific railway system. Mr. Gray criticized many of the project books because of grammatical and mathematical errors but the only comments made upon the books of John and Homer were the words, "Excellent" written across the cover of each.

A summary of the score card used in determining this scholarship award is as follows: Supervised practice, 450 points; scholastic standing, 350 points; leadership, character and interest, 200 points.

Gaines Speaks At Haskell Creek P. T. A. Meeting

Emphasizing the advantages of 4-H club work to young people of rural communities, Newton W. Gaines, from the extension department, college of agriculture, addressed a P. T. A. meeting at Haskell Creek school house last Wednesday evening. People from Joint, Dry Cedar, Rosevale and Haskell Creek communities were present.

For several years Haskell Creek people have been trying to get Professor Gaines for an address there but until last Wednesday had been unsuccessful. His talk proved well worth waiting for, however. Patrons and students alike found it more than interesting.

Will Nelson acted as chairman of the meeting at Haskell Creek last Wednesday. He introduced Carl Dale, county agent, who in turn introduced Professor Gaines. Native and Chinese elm trees were set out recently on the school grounds at Haskell Creek, the P. T. A. members were told last week.

MR. W. H. BROKAW.

W. H. Brokaw Head of Extension Service For Eleven Years

Lincoln, Neb., May 1.—About 20 years ago a farmer in Seward county read of extension work being carried on in the south. He needed help with his own farm problems, and there were plenty of them in those days too, he says. He came to the heads of the University of Nebraska and its college of agriculture at Lincoln to find out what could be done in Nebraska.

Within a few days, W. H. Brokaw helped organize and became the president of the first county farm bureau in the state. A. E. Anderson, now director of the Extension Service in South Dakota, was hired as the first county agent. He and Mr. Brokaw rode the same motorcycle for a month visiting farmers and holding meetings in every part of Seward county. The second month they graduated to a two-cylinder automobile of questionable disposition, but they made it a point to inform Seward county farmers that there was an Extension Service of the college of Agriculture in that county for their particular benefit.

About 12 years ago, Mr. Brokaw was asked to come to the college of Agriculture to work for the extension service, and for the past 11 years he has been director of the organization.

During that time, he has seen the work grow through a period in agricultural history when farmers were hard put to make a living, and when many of them were little informed as to the sincerity of the Extension Service.

At the present time, there are 45 counties with resident extension agents who are recognized as faculty of the University. Eleven of these counties have two agents, one a woman who works mainly with farm women and with girls. Several other counties have boys and girls club agents during the summer months. The staff of specialists at the College of Agriculture numbers about 30. These men and women travel over the state helping county agents with meetings and projects and meeting with groups of people wherever there is a well organized demand for help. Calls for assistance of the extension service during the past three years has been far greater than the supply of help and funds available. Right now there are ten or twelve counties in the state ready to start the necessary local organization, a county farm bureau, to employ a county extension agent.

In 1929, the organization reached 2,245 people of the state per working day. The average county agent arranged for and took charge of 204 meetings, visited 517 farms and homes in his county, had 1798 office callers and 1299 telephone calls for help. It enrolled 12,571 boys and girls in 4-H clubs and over 12,000 women in Home Economics clubs.

Care Of Cream Is Vitrally Necessary To Raise Prices

Butterfat prices in Nebraska are generally lower than the average price paid in the United States, according to a survey recently finished by the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Quality of the product is also lower in Nebraska than in the average state.

There are two practical ways of raising the quality of cream and getting a correspondingly higher price. One of them is to keep the cream cool and the other is to keep it clean.

Care of the cream should begin before the cow is milked. Her udder should be thoroughly cleaned before milking time to prevent dirt from falling into the milk. The pail should be of a closed top variety. The milk should be clean and healthy and should milk with dry hands. All utensils should be cleaned and aired out following use.

Rapid cooling of the cream after it is separated is necessary to keep down the bacterial growth in the product. Several means of cooling can be used, but for Nebraska conditions a cooling tank using circulating well water for the cooling medium meets the requirements for good quality cream. This type of tank also provides a clean, sanitary place for holding the cream before it is taken to market. Under no conditions should cream be held on the farm more than four days in winter, and a less time in summer.

Co-operation Pays!

The co-operative creamery was the first line of co-operative business among farmers in Minnesota. Practically eight out of every ten farmers in Minnesota are patrons of some kind of a co-operative organization and find it pays. There are over four thousand farmers' co-operative organizations in Minnesota that do an annual business of over 150 million dollars.

These farmers' co-operative organizations have been in business over an average of over twenty years and have proved successful as a whole from every standpoint. Their success in giving real paying service should command the respect and the patronage of every farmer.

Every farmer who is not now a co-operator should take time to give the matter careful study and if he does he will see that he can gain real benefits through working with his neighbor farmers in a business way.

A WORLD-WIDE MOVEMENT. Co-operation in business is a world-wide movement. The most successful farmers of every country on earth are coming to work together co-operatively. Co-operation is the practical application of the Golden Rule and its results are a greater measure of peace, happiness and prosperity.

WHAT A DIFFERENCE

90 DAYS MAKE!

TODAY A TODDLING CHICK... In 90 days a proud pullet about to lay. There's something to think about! Tiny bones and little muscles have grown several times in size... a delicate fuzz has sprouted into hundreds of feathers... a chick weighing grams has grown into a pullet weighing pounds... all in 90 short days!

A wonderful change... and only one thing can do it... good feed. This year consider Purina Startena Chow (mash) and Purina Chick Chow (scratch) or All-Mash Startena Chow for the first six weeks... and then Purina Growena and Purina Intermediate Hen Chow until your pullets are laying at 16 weeks.

Put these Chows before your chicks. You will see pullets that are built right... pullets that will lay eggs aplenty in fall and winter when eggs are always worth good money.

Announcements of Services in CHURCHES OF VALLEY COUNTY

North Loup Friends Church
Rev. Thomas, in his fine, earnest gospel messages, is making an appeal to the intellect, the heart and the conscience of everyone who hears him. Those who attend are enjoying every service, but we grieve that the attendance has been so small. We know that the weather has been rainy and the roads muddy; but we also know that where there is a will there is a way, and the devil can get a crowd on the rainiest night. Why do not the people of God rally also when some of their number are making an earnest effort to win souls? It is largely because of indifference and spiritual deadness. No wonder the unsaved find so little in the lives of some professed Christians to awaken their longing after God and a better life. God help us to work while it is day, for the night cometh, when no man can work. Rev. Thomas' messages are abundantly worthy of a large hearing and so are the song messages of Mrs. Lowe. Come out tonight. Service every evening at 8 o'clock. The Monday night service is a prayer meeting, under Mrs. Lowe's leadership. Sunday afternoon, a Bible reading by Mr. Thomas, at 2:30. Everybody welcome.

Lesson for May 4

PROMOTION IN THE KINGDOM

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 20:17-28. GOLDEN TEXT—The Son of Man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister, and to give His life a ransom for many.

PRIMARY TOPIC—How to Become Great.

JUNIOR TOPIC—How to Become Great.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Greatest Through Self-Denying Service.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Christ's Standard of Greatness.

I. The King Foretells His Death and Resurrection (vv. 17-19).

1. The King on His way to Jerusalem (v. 17).

This is His last journey to the beloved city. He took the twelve disciples aside from the traveling pilgrims to make known unto them what was before them. As they journeyed, He went ahead of the disciples. The courage thus shown by the Lord amazed the disciples who were following in fear (Mark 10:32).

2. The betrayal and death foretold (vv. 18, 19).

He went forward, fully conscious of the awful tragedy of the cross. He for the third time since the transfiguration tells the disciples of His approaching sufferings and death. But they are so filled with their ambitious schemes that they do not understand Him. The treachery of Judas, the fierce persecutions by the chief priests and scribes, the unjust judgment, the delivery to Pontius Pilate, the mockery, the scourging, the crown of thorns, the cross, the hanging between two malefactors, the nails, the spear—all were spread before His mind like a picture! Though He knew all this, He pressed on, not of necessity, but deliberately. The joyous outlook upon the victory which would be accomplished by the shedding of His blood led Him forward. He went courageously, for He knew the time had come for the accomplishment of His Father's will.

3. The resurrection foretold (v. 19).

Truly, this would have been a dark picture had the resurrection not been made known. The resurrection life beyond is always seen as the issue of the cross. The blessedness of the life beyond this "vale of tears" should induce us to press on. Christ is the grand example (Heb. 12:2).

II. The Ambitious Request of James and John (vv. 20-23).

1. The request (vv. 20, 21).

This request was made by their mother. The request was for a place of prominence in the kingdom. It is not wrong for mothers to be ambitious for their boys, but they should know that life's pinnacles are exceedingly dangerous. It is desirable that parents should get places for their children near to Jesus, but the vain ambition of the world should not occupy their minds.

2. Jesus' answer (vv. 22, 23).

He spoke directly to the men, not to their mother, declaring that they knew not what they were asking. He showed them that the way to this position of glory was through suffering. The cup which they were to drink was of great agony. The way to the places of glory in the kingdom of Christ is by the path of lowly and self-forgetting service.

III. How to Be Truly Exalted (vv. 24-28).

1. The angry disciples (v. 24).

When the ten heard of the request of James and John, they were filled with indignation against them. Their displeasure did not arise from the fact that they were free from the same selfish spirit, but that these two had thrust themselves to the front.

2. Greatness among the heathen (v. 25).

The rule of the world has always been by the strong hand. The standards have not been moral excellence, but worth, station and power.

3. Greatness among Christ's disciples (vv. 26, 27).

The standard here is in sharp contrast. The way to the place of prominence in Christ's kingdom is the way of self-abasement. To give is greater than to receive. To be serving some one is much better than to be served. There will be degrees of rank in Christ's kingdom, but this rank will be character, not position, or authority. The spirit of Christ substitutes "the greatness of love for the love of greatness."

4. Christ is the supreme example of greatness (v. 28).

All who will be great should study and imitate Christ. Let them forget self and serve others, even to the giving of their lives.

it was a road in the sandhills," said Wm. Heuck, one of the directors, in the course of Tuesday evening's discussion. He says it is difficult to keep business places about the square clean because mud from the pavement is tracked in by customers during wet weather and dust from the pavement sifts through the stores during dry weather.

"Last summer blue-grass was growing along the gutter in front of my store," Ed Beranek, another of the directors, is quoted as saying. "When dirt is allowed to collect and remain so long that grass and weeds take root and grow right on the paving it is time something was done," Mr. Beranek says. Other directors present expressed similar views.

Members of the Chamber's official board Tuesday evening directed President Collision to have a petition drawn up setting forth the reasons why the Chamber feels that a street cleaning system should be established. This petition will be circulated by the chamber's city development committee, which is composed of C. A. Hager, Edwin Clements, Jr., Marion Crosby, E. C. Weller and C. J. Mortensen, and every person in the city's business district will be urged to sign. This petition will be presented to the city council at once and immediate action will be urged.

A water flushing system will be urged to city officials, this method being regarded by directors as the only way the pavement can be kept clean at all times. The streets in the business district should be flushed three times each week during the summer months, it is thought. Pavement outside the business district should be flushed at least once each week, the Chamber will recommend.

Two weeks ago, beating Broken Bow 6 to 4. They were scheduled to play last Sunday at Arcadia but the game was postponed because of wet grounds.

Touted as one of the strongest teams in the league, Ansley will present a strong aggregation here Sunday. Their line-up is not known but such players as Turpin, King, Knapp, Burnham and Fox, all of whom played with Ansley last year, will again be in suit. It is reported that "Lefty" Isler, who hurried for Central City last year, has signed an Ansley contract for the present season.

Manager Arnold's Mustangs will probably be lined up as follows: Wolf, C. Hill, W. Athey, 1b; Heuck, 2b; Johnson, ss; Covert, 3b; Burrows, lf; Krejci, cf; Baker, rf. Bill Heuck will be playing second base for the first time in his career Sunday but in workouts since the Broken Bow game he has looked "like a million dollars" in this position.

Fans who want to see big Joe Krejci play baseball will do well to attend the Ord-Ansley game, as probably will be the only home game in which he will play with the local team. He reports to the York club of the state league next week-end. Krejci batted 1,000 per cent at Broken Bow and also fielded his position perfectly.

Unless wet weather interferes the diamond at Russell park will be in better shape Sunday than it has been for several seasons. Under the direction of Bud Shirley, sixty-eight loads of clay have been hauled in and used to level off the diamond. Repairs have been made on grandstand, bleachers and scorers box, also, and everything will be in readiness for the opening game.

Marion Cushing has been chosen official umpire by the Ord team and he will officiate behind the plate Sunday. Ansley's official will umpire in the field.

A huge crowd is expected to attend the game Sunday. The league has established the popular price of thirty-five cents as admission charge at all league games and children will be admitted free.

Hardenbrook Will Speak at Albion

Harry Swanson, chaplain of the American Legion post at Albion, was in Ord last Friday and secured Bert M. Hardenbrook to deliver an address at Albion on Memorial day. Mr. Swanson is in the nursery business and had been in North Loup delivering five thousand strawberry plants to Mr. Wetzel.

County Spelling Bee Tomorrow Afternoon

The annual Valley county spelling contest will be held at the Ord high school auditorium starting promptly at 1 o'clock p. m. Friday, announces Miss Clara McClatchey, superintendent of schools. Both oral and written contests will be held. Last spring Miss Edna Smolik was first and Paul Wachtrie was second in the oral contest. Paul Wachtrie was first and Margaret Betts second in the written.

Clements to Western Nebraska.

Judge E. P. Clements spent the week end at home after holding the spring jury term of court in Grand Island last week. Monday he left for Hyannis, Mullen and Theoford where he is holding court this week.

New Products Added To Delco, Says Bud

Complete modernization of rural and suburban homes now is possible, it was brought out at the international convention of the Delco-Light Company, which was held Wednesday and Thursday at the Stevens Hotel in Chicago, according to L. J. Auble, the local dealer, who has just returned from the convention of that General Motors subsidiary.

Announcements of new products and improvements in other lines of the Delco-Light Company were made at the convention.

Delcogas, which provides gas for kitchen ranges, hot water heaters and other gas-burning equipment, was one of the new products made available at a new low price.

The company started manufacturing individual farm electric plants fourteen years ago and now there are more than 350,000 units giving electric light and power to rural homes.

New developments in D-L electric water systems were also announced. A new air volume control keeps the proper proportion of air in the pressure tank and eliminates the necessity of the owner giving attention to the system to prevent "water logging."

The new water systems are more compact and are completely assembled at the factory. This insures perfect installation in a minimum space and had the pump ready for operation in a short time after delivery.

The business outlook for 1930 is exceptionally bright, says Mr. Auble, who was one of the 1200 selling men awarded trips to the convention because of outstanding sales records.

Baseball Team Will Practice Unless more rain falls today the Ord Mustangs will work out on the fair grounds diamond at 6:30 o'clock this evening, according to Charley Arnold, manager. The practice will be the last before the Mustangs' first home game against Ansley Sunday.

Choose Below: Dandy Recipes!

This week we have a number of fine recipes. Two of them are Lenten suggestions which arrived just a little late for publication during that season, but nevertheless will be appreciated during the spring days when the family is just the wee-bit hard to cook for when heavy dishes do not tempt.

Rice Walnut Loaf.

1 cup chopped walnut meats, 1 cup bread crumbs, 1 1/2 cups cooked rice, 1 egg, 3-4 cup milk, sage, salt and pepper to taste. Beat the eggs add milk and other ingredients. Mix well and put in buttered baking dish. Bake 30 minutes and then serve with this.

Tomato Sauce.

2 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons flour, 2 cups strained tomatoes, 2 teaspoons onion juice, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon pepper. Melt and brown the butter, add flour and when brown add tomatoes and onion juice. Stir till the mixture boils, season and serve.

Meatless Meat Loaf.

2 cups cold cooked beans, 2 cups bread crumbs, 1 cup walnut meats, chopped, 1 egg, 2 tablespoons melted butter, salt and pepper to taste, 1 small green pepper, chopped (if available). Mix all the ingredients thoroughly, shape into loaf and bake 30 minutes in moderate oven. This loaf is also delicious with the tomato sauce given above.

Pineapple Fluff.

Take juice from 1 can of pineapple, add enough boiling water to make a pint, heat boiling hot, pour over 1 package of Lemon Jello. When Jello is thick but not firmly set, whip it to the consistency of whipped cream. Beat 3 egg whites stiff and dry, then whip 1-2 pint of cream and fold in 1-2 cup of sugar. Add the shredded pineapple, whipped cream, beaten egg whites and 1-2 cup ground nut meats to the Jello and whip again. Let it harden until firm, when it is ready to serve.

Vegetable Salad.

Chop one head of lettuce, three fresh tomatoes, four or five small

Green Onions and several radishes.

Mix with thousand island dressing and serve.

Try these recipes.

They are new and different, and your folks will like them. You know almost everyone likes something new and different once in a while. A "surprise" for your family will make them all beam.

And don't forget, the dishes that are old stand-bys to you may furnish that needed thrill at some other dinner table. Send in one of your favorites today. Just address it to the Quiz.

QUIZ FORUM

Arvada, Wyo. April 24, 1930

Dear Quiz:
I for one of your readers of the Quiz will say I have gathered cow slips when I was a little girl living in Wisconsin. My mother would cook for greens once in a while but my grandmother used to cook them often while they lasted. I would gather them to play with, especially the blossoms, as I was an only child I played with everything to amuse myself. I used to gather little wild flowers of various colors in the woods near a small brook that ran close to my father's place. Also used to gather water cress by the loads, loads that I could carry.

We are having lovely spring weather and so early I have never seen grass so good this early here. The pines and cedars have put on their summer green and look so bright, especially after a rain. By the way it is raining right now. We had a near cloud burst the 14th of this month. It left the ground beat down quite hard. We have in a little early garden. We planted our potatoes two weeks ago. The month of April has been lovely after a stormy March. Everyone on the Ord Quiz for ticks as they are worse this year than ever. They sometimes cause tick fever. Perry had it three years ago. One gets very sick with it and often it proves fatal.

So many of the old friends are passing to the great beyond Ord will never seem like home again. I could notice it when we were there in 1924 and so many have gone since then.

Quite a lot of farming is being done here, that is for this part of the country. This has always been a cattle country until the last few years.

We may come to Ord this fall if all goes well. I say we, Clarence and I. We are nearly ready to sell our place. This has always been a cattle country until the last few years.

Will say good night.

MRS. HALL BARNES.

ARE YOU MIDDLE AGED OR MORE?

If "yes," you likely need a reading glass service, if you haven't already received one. Like all other eyes, yours have reached an age when they need help for close work. Getting the help in time is wise. Not getting it is not. Generally we cause folks like you to see to read as well as you ever did.

Community Club Meets.
The April meeting of the Arcadia Community club was held at the Methodist church basement Tuesday evening, April 22nd. The ladies aid society of the church served supper at seven o'clock. The business session which was quite lengthy brought to a head the matter of a new road east of Arcadia. The township board of the interested townships and several of the interested property owners were in attendance at the meeting and submitted their opinion of the road and gave an estimate of the damage which they will expect to receive, should the proposed road be laid. The club authorized the submission of the petition covering the road to the Board of Supervisors of Valley county where it will be acted upon soon.

The next meeting of the club will be held May 27th at the Methodist church.

Reads M. E. Church Notes.
The Loup Valley Ministerial association will meet in Arcadia with a fellowship dinner at the church basement Monday May 6th at 12:30 p. m. The president, Rev. G. A. Randall of Scotia invites the local laymen to attend the monthly session beginning at 1:30 p. m. Rev. Warren, pastor of the Seventh Day Baptist church of North Loup is chairman of the program committee.

Three important meetings at one time, of interest especially to people were held at Kearney April 30th and May 1st. They were the Women's Foreign Missionary society, the Woman's Home Missionary society and the Kearney District Conference opening at 9 a. m. Wednesday and closing at p. m. Thursday.

The direction of Bishop Leete and Dr. Hess, hostess Dr. Paul M. Hillman, M. E. Pastor of Kearney. Our service Sunday were all well attended and very inspirational. There were more than 100 present at any one service. We extend a cordial welcome to all strangers and friends.

Remember May 11, Dr. E. D. Hull, Waterloo, Iowa, will be with us for both our services and you cannot afford to miss hearing him. May 18th will be all church day. Bring a basket dinner and stay for the afternoon services. Local talent as well as outside speakers will be present. Special music will be given. We want to ask you to keep this date open and plan to attend. Strangers especially welcome. At least every member should be present. Let's make this a great day in the years work. Our district superintendent, Dr. Hess will be present.

Our Easter cantata given by twelve young people last Sunday evening was very much appreciated and they deserve credit for the pleasing and efficient way in which it was presented.

The Epworth League gospel team will present a Bible Drama in the near future at our Sunday evening service. Don't miss it.

Auxiliary Meets.
In spite of the heavy rain Friday, April 25th several members and guests of the Auxiliary met at the Methodist church basement. The afternoon was spent in sewing carpet rags and Mrs. Arthur Aufrecht served a delicious two course lunch.

Mother's day and Poppie Day will soon be here. The poppie we buy and sell may have been made by "Joe" who has an invalid mother, eighty years old. She is dependent on "Joe," who was disabled but has not been able to get compensation and is gradually becoming a mental case. Each day he walks six miles from the hospital to see his mother. He bought her a shawl and slippers with part of the money he earned in making poppies so when the mother is able to sit up she has the shawl to keep her warm. Won't you buy a poppie? It costs so little and means so much.

The American Legion Hospital at Lincoln will be dedicated May 4th. It is hoped several from Arcadia will attend.

Ground Well Soaked.
The heavy rainfall of last week and this, should have a very beneficial effect on the crops, especially on small grain, such as wheat, oats and barley. The soil should be in excellent condition for corn planting which usually starts the middle of May, providing we get a few days of warm weather. Heavy rainfalls have been reported over the entire state, thus benefiting the crops in general.

Cantata Much Enjoyed.
The Easter Cantata "Love Triumphant" which was postponed from Easter Sunday was given at the Methodist church last Sunday evening and was greatly enjoyed by all those attending. Miss Dorothea Schoemaker gave the theme of the cantata as a reading, and a well trained chorus of voices rendered songs at intervals throughout the reading. A duet by Mrs. R. O. Gaither and Lowell Finney and a quartette composed of Misses Alpha and Mabel Lindell, Opal Carmody and Mrs. R. O. Gaither furnished special numbers. The cantata was ably directed by Mrs. R. O. Gaither.

Stanley was named as recipient of a letter this week from the State University informing them that their son, Stanley had achieved a scholastic standing of such quality as to merit the inclusion of his name in the list to be recognized for high scholarship at the Honors Convocation which was held at the University Coliseum, Wednesday evening, April 30th. This is an honor which is only conferred upon the upper ten percent.

Meeting of Farmers Club.
The Farmers Club held their April meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Thompson last Saturday. On account of the rain and bad roads only about twenty-six members attended.

The service was played before dinner which was served at one p. m. Following the meal, which was described as being very tempting and delicious, a short program was given consisting of a song "Beulah Land" by Mr. and Mrs. John White, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Oliver and Mrs. E. F. Thompson with Miss Ruth Leudtke as accompanist, a piano solo by Jocelyn Babel and the song "America" by all. The remainder of the afternoon was spent playing rook.

The state papers Sunday contained a short account of the death of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Stevens of Ansley, Nebraska who were killed in a head-on auto-bus collision near Wichita, Kansas.

Mr. and Mrs. Stevens were returning from Texas where they had been spending the winter months. Mrs. Stevens was past president of the Nebraska War Mothers and formerly lived at Lincoln and Seward. Both had many friends in Arcadia.

Tough Luck Again.
Once again the baseball game was called off on account of rainy weather and as a result Arcadia and Ord did not play ball last Sunday. If everything is favorable Arcadia will play Litchfield next Sunday at Litchfield.

Start Work Repairing Hotel.
Workmen have been busy the past week repairing the damage done to the Judah Hotel by the fire which occurred there recently. The entire downstairs is being re-finished and redecorated and it will no doubt take about three weeks to complete the work.

Receives Important Appointment.
Each year the American Foundrymen's association chooses a student from each of several universities to attend their convention with all expenses paid.

Gerald Evans, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Evans of Arcadia who is a senior in the Engineering college at Nebraska State University has been chosen from the school to attend their convention which will be held at Cleveland, Ohio, May 12th to 16th.

Gerald expects to leave Lincoln Saturday, May 10th and return a week later and will be the guest of the Foundrymen's association some time. His many Arcadia friends congratulate him on his honor.

Limb Placed in Cast.
Charles Jeffries is at the home of relatives in Grand Island at present where he is recovering from an injury which he received to his right limb about three weeks ago. Chas. slipped and fell as he attempted to jump from the porch at the F. J. Russell home and at that time his injury was believed to be only a bad sprain. He went to Grand Island the latter part of last week where an x-ray examination revealed a splintered bone and torn ligaments. The injury was attended to and his limb placed in a cast reaching from the hip to the ankle. He will probably be forced to remain in Grand Island for some time.

Senior Class Play Next Tuesday.
The senior class play "The arrival of Kitty" will be given at the Electric Theatre one evening, only Tuesday May 6th. Remember the date and secure your seats early. The marriage of Mildred Leininger and Alvin Larson, members of well known Arcadia families, occurred Easter morning April 20th at 8:30 at Harvard, Neb., the ceremony being performed by Rev. W. A. Alcorn, senior pastor, assisting pastor, Gregational church. Miss Mabel Larson of Lincoln and Maynard Wilson of St. Edwards witnessed the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Wm. Leininger who resides south of Arcadia and attended the Arcadia high school, graduating with the class of 1928 and later attended Kearney Normal for one year. The past year she has served as instructor in school district No. 11, proving very efficient in her duties. Attractive and possessing pleasing personality she has been very popular among her acquaintances.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Larson of Arcadia and is a splendid young man of good habits and character. The past year he has been attending the State University at Lincoln and expects to leave for Lincoln the latter part of May to make their home. We extend to them our best wishes and congratulations.

Delinquent Members.
The delinquent members of the Afternoon Bridge club entertained the non-delinquent members and all those who had substituted during the club year at a delightful one o'clock luncheon at the Methodist church basement last Friday. Following the luncheon the guests were taken to the home of Mrs. Claris Bellinger where the afternoon was spent playing bridge.

Mrs. Will Downing of Kearney was an out-of-town guest. The club will not meet again until fall. The Methodist Ladies Aid society met at the church basement Friday with Mesdames C. C. Weddel and J. G. Stanley as hostesses.

The members of the Congregational church choir pleasantly surprised C. C. Hawthorne at his home last Friday evening planning the event in honor of his birthday. The evening was spent playing various games and a delightful lunch was served before the guests departed.

"Settling of the Sage"

Document for perhaps the hundredth time. A man had come in at daylight with the mail from Bill and Billie Warren was with her tepee poring over her share of it. The men had finished theirs and were sleeping. The girl read first the four letters in the same handwriting, one to mark each week she had been on the round-up. The fifth was from Judge Colton, her father's old friend, to whose hands all his affairs had been entrusted. After scanning this she read again the other four. Very soon now, in the course of a few months at the outside, she and the writer would meet away from his native environment and in the midst of her own. Always before this had been reversed and her association with Carlos Deane had held a background of his own setting—a setting in startling contrast to her log house nestling in a desert of sage. The Deane house was a wonderful old-fashioned mansion set in a grove of century-old elms and oaks. She knew his life and now he would see her in her natural surroundings.

In a haze sort of way she felt that some day she would have the plea that, in some fashion or other, was woven into every letter; but not till the Three Bar was booming and no longer required her supervision. Everything else in the world was secondary to her love for her father's brand and the anxiety of the past two years of its decline eclipsed all other issues. Her reflections were interrupted by Harris' voice just outside her tepee.

"Asleep, Billie?" he asked softly. "No," she said. "What is it?" "I've thrown your saddle on Pa-poose," he said. "Let's have a look around."

She assented and they rode off up the left-hand slope of the valley. A mile or so from the wagon Harris dismounted on a high point. "Let's have a medicine chat," he offered. "I've got considerable on my mind."

She leaned against a rock and he sat cross-legged on the ground, facing her and twirling a cigarette in an aid to thought. Her head was tilted back against the rock, her eyes half-closed.

"They say folks get disappointed in love and go on living," he observed. "I wonder now, I've heard that men run mostly to form, and at one time or another let it out to some little lady that there's no other in the world. That's my own state right about now. Are you always going to keep on disliking me?"

"I don't dislike you," she said. She was still convinced of his father's trickery toward her own; but Cal Harris' quiet efficiency and his devotion to Three Bar interests had convinced her, against her will, that he had taken no part in it. "But if you brought me back out here to go into that I'm going back."

"I didn't," he denied. "But I drifted into it sort of by accident. No matter what topic I happen to be conversing on I'm always thinking how much I'd rather be doing you about that. Whenever I make some simple little assertion about things in general, what I'm really thinking is something like this, 'Billie, right this minute I'm loving you more than I did two minutes back.' You might keep that in mind."

"Listen," tapping his knee with a forefinger to emphasize his point. "Cal Warren always wanted to put the Three Bar flats under cultivation. He's probably told you that a hundred times. It will only support a certain number of cows. If the Three Bar had a section in hay to winter-feed your stuff you could run double what you do now on the same range. It's the same with everything else. There's only a few spots suitable for doing ranch sites and every one of those has a brand running out of it now—excepting those sites down in Slade's range. If all those outfits put in hay it wouldn't cut up the range any more than it is now except down Slade's way. Every outfit in the country could run twice as many head as they do now—except Slade. He couldn't. The minute farming starts there'll be squatters filing on every quarter where they can get water to put it in crop. There's twenty quarters Slade would have to cover by filing to hold his range where the others would only have to file on one to control the amount of range they're using now."

She nodded as she caught this point.

"Folks have fallen into a set habit of mind," he explained. "You think because every squatter is burned out that every outfit but the Three Bar is against sticking a plover in the ground. The rest of the range are any more than they haven't a hand in it, but figure you have. As a matter of fact, it's Slade alone. There's a persistent rumor to the effect that any man who burns out a squatter can drop in on Slade and get five hundred dollars in cash."

"The sheriff has never been able to pick up a single one of the men who have burned these squatters out," she said.

"And he never will without some help," Harris agreed. "Alden's hands are tied. He is playing his own game single-handed the best he can. One day he'll get his hooks into some of these torch-bearers so deep they'll never shake them out. The homestead laws can't be defied indefinitely. The government will take a hand and send marshals in here thicker than flies. Then the outfits that have hedged themselves in advance are on top. The rest are through."

"But what can the Three Bar do against Slade until those marshals come?" she asked.

"There's a difference between sucking an established outfit with a big force of hands and burning out some isolated squatter roosting in a wagon," Harris said. "I've filed on water out of the Crazy Loop to cover the section I bought in the flats. We can pick men and give them a job with a view to work. We can put in a company ditch to cover all the filings, pay them for working on it and charge that pro rata share of improvement up against each man's final settlement. When they've made final proof we can buy out those who want to sell. Let's put the flats in hay, girl, and start grading the Three Bar up. It doesn't take much more feed to turn out a real beef steer than of those knife-backed brothers down in the flat. In five years we'll have a straight red head and the Three Bar will be rated at thirty dollars a head, come as they run on the range, instead of round ten or twelve as they'd figure us now. We'll have good hay land that will be worth more by itself than the whole brand of today. Say the word, girl, and we'll build up the old outfit that both our folks helped to found."

The girl had closed her eyes as he painted this picture of possibilities and except for the difference of voice it might well have been old Cal Warren speaking; the views and sentiments were the same she had so often heard her father express. Next to the longed-for partnership with old Bill Harris the dream of his life had been to see the Three Bar flats a smooth meadow of alfalfa.

"I put a bunch of terriers in there that will be hard for Slade to uproot," Harris said. "What do you say, Billie? Let's give it a try."

"I'd like to see it done," she said. "But so much depends on the outcome. I'll have to write Judge Colton first. He has all my affairs in charge."

They mounted and rode back to the wagon and the girl went straight to Waddles with the proposition Harris had urged.

"Tell him to go his best," Waddles advised, when she had outlined Harris' scheme. "He'll put a bunch of terriers on the Three Bar that will cut Slade's claws. If they burn out the boys Cal Harris puts on the place then there'll be one real war staged at the old Three Bar."

"He's been telling you," she accused. "He did sort of mention it," Waddles confessed.

"Then his idea is to import a bunch of fighters," she said. "I won't have a bunch of hired killers living at the Three Bar."

"These boys will just be the sort that's handy at knowing how to avoid getting killed themselves," Waddles evaded. "You can't rightly blame any man for that. And besides, Slade has to be met on his own ground."

"Do you think Slade is at the bottom of the Three Bar losses every year?" she asked.

"Every hoof," Waddles stated. "Every last head!" Maybe the outfit no's layout rustles an odd bunch on the range, but Slade is the man that's out to wreck your brand. The big cook heaved a sigh as he reached a decision on a matter which had been troubling him for days. "That's what Cal Warren was afraid of—Slade's branching out our way and off. But Slade is the man that's south. And that's one reason he left things tied up the way he did."

He tapped a much-thumbed document on his knee and handed it to the girl.

"You and Young Cal have been sort of half-hostile," he said. "Cast your eyes over that and maybe it'll help you two youngsters to get along."

Three times the girl read every word of the paper while Waddles smoked his pipe in silence. Then she sat on the gate of the wagon and gazed across the sage; and she was picturing again the long trail of the Three Bar cows; but this time she was reconstructing the scene at the end of it. Instead of one man scheming to trick an old friend at the last crossing of their trails she now visioned two old squatters plotting against the hope of a partnership had never been fulfilled and planning to cement that arrangement in the next generation. For old Bill Harris had left her a full half-interest in everything he owned on earth with the single exception that she retained her half of the Three Bar for five years after her father's death.

"But why?" she asked presently. "Why did he do that for me? He'd never seen me since I was three years old."

"It did it for the girl of old Cal Warren, the best friend he had topside the ground," Waddles said. "Your dad and Bill Harris had been pals since they were hatched. They knew there was hard times and changes ahead and both hated to think of the old brand going under or changing hands. They was afraid that if both you and the boy knew your path was going to be carpeted soft in any event that you might sell out if things got to breaking wrong. This way it looked like you'd be over to Slade. They was planning the best they could. Your dad told me to keep an eye on the general lay. And Judge Colton sent me that copy to have on hand to sort of iron things out when I thought best. I'm telling you be-cause I know you wouldn't quit the Three Bar as long as there's two cows left."

"Does Cal know that?" she asked. "Not a word," Waddles asserted. "He's likely considerable puzzled himself. But he surmises things like that right some day, knowing his own dad and having visited round a day or two with yours. You drop the judge a line, girl, and turn Harris loose to rip up the Three Bar flat and seed it down to hay."

She nodded and slipped from the end-gate of the wagon, taking the paper with her. Harris was soaking a flannel shirt in the little stream, flattening it in a rifle and weighting it down with rocks. She went straight to him and sat on the bank, motioning him to a seat by her side. He dried his hands and took the paper she held out to him. "What's in the wind?" She nodded to indicate the document and he sat down to look over it. His quizzical expression was erased as he saw his father's name and the girl watched his face for some evidence of resentment as he read on. Their status was now reversed, for Bill Harris' holdings had been easily double those of her own parent. She saw the sun wrinkles deepen at the corners of his eyes as he grasped the text of it and he looked up at her and laughed. "Now we're resting easy," he said. "An even trade."

"Even," she dissented. "Of course you know that I'll not take advantage of that." "Accounts are all squared off between us now," he said. "And of course you'll do just what it says." He held up his hand as she started to dissent. "Don't you!" he re-pressed. "Let's let that end of it slide—rest for a while. Maybe some day we'll lump both into one and the two of us boss the whole job."

Ord Doctor Caught In Belgrade Cyclone

Dr. C. W. Weekes and his daughter, Miss Muriel Weekes of Mapleton, Ia., had an unpleasant experience Monday while enroute to Ord from Mapleton where the doctor visited after his post-graduate work in Chicago. Near Belgrade they were caught in a cyclone, the funnel shaped cloud passing directly over them and ripping the shingles from the roof of a farm house where they stopped to put chains on their car. Neither Dr. Weekes nor his daughter was injured. The cyclone did heavy damage in the Belgrade community.

Dr. Weekes was away from Ord about two weeks and took special work in gastro-intestinal surgery at several Chicago hospitals. He had a thorough physical examination while away and some time this summer plans to return to Chicago for a gall bladder operation.

The Ord surgeon reports that he is feeling much better than when he went away and that the post-graduate studies he took will be valuable to him in his practice.

Wm. Moses,
Mayor

Mayor Believes In
Own Salary

Wm. Moses, sworn in as Ord's new mayor at the meeting of the city council last Friday night believes in economy. Whenever he can save money for the city he proposes to do so. And that program extends not only to ordinary expenditures but to his own salary as well.

For several years Ord's mayor has drawn an annual stipend of $150.00. Believing this sum too low, Fred Coe, retiring councilman, made the suggestion at the old council's last meeting that the mayor's salary should be increased. He suggested a salary of $250 annually. When the new council's committee on salaries met it brought in a recommendation that the mayor be paid $300 per year.

"Not so," said Mayor Bill. "That's too much and we must be economical with the city's money. I'll cut the mayor's salary to $200 per year."

And tax-payers will save $100 each year because they have a mayor who practices what he preaches.

FOUR HUNDRED
DAY PROGRAM

Exhibit of Hand Hooked Rugs Is High Spot of Day; Work Pleases Miss Douglass.

The Achievement day program given Wednesday at the opera house by the various clubs of Valley county who have been receiving project work from the state extension service conducted by the University of Nebraska was a great success from every point of view.

The high spot of the day was the wonderful exhibit of hand-hooked rugs made by the project leaders and their fellow club members. More than 50 rugs were on display of original design and coloring, and the crowd of 400 or more women who enjoyed the program were very enthusiastic over the rugs.

A delightful program was presented, stunts, skits and music by the several clubs filling most of the day. Mrs. Edgar Davis in some whistling numbers rivalled the birds themselves. Myra Thorgate Barber's pianologue drew much applause, a composition of her own called "My Dream House". Flavia Twombly gave a detailed account of the history of project clubs hereabouts since their inception in 1906. Many other pleasing features too numerous to mention were also seen and heard: plays, piano duets, etc.

All in all, Miss Ritzpah Douglass of the extension service and her county chairmen, Mrs. J. W. McGinnis, and Mrs. Pearl Mulligan may feel very proud of their work for the past year.

ROTARIANS ARE

Nearly a Hundred Youngsters Were Entertained Friday Night At Bussell Park.

Nearly a hundred Ord boys ranging in age from ten to sixteen years were entertained last Friday evening by the Ord Rotary club at a "feed" and play night held in Bussell park. Ball games, races, stories and songs around a campfire, together with delicious "hot dogs" made the evening one long to be remembered by the little fellows.

Bill Heuck, Lyle Milliken and Forrest Johnson were members of the boys' committee appointed by the Rotary club to plan the event but the entire membership of the club was present to help make the night a success.

A feature event was a race indulged in by Rotarians. Carl Dale won the 50-yard event. Ed. F. Beranek was second and the rest of the club members straggled across the finish line at varying times in the next fifteen minutes. Some of them didn't catch their breath for the rest of the evening.

H. B. VanDecar and C. A. Bowers served as chief cooks, and reported that the youngsters present consumed an almost unbelievable number of sandwiches.

Rotarians originally had planned to have two evening meetings for boys last week, Henry Schulte being scheduled to address high school students Wednesday night. The Nebraska coach was unable to come to Ord because of bad roads so this meeting was postponed.

Why?
Why do dairymen in some of the eastern states get more for their butterfat than Nebraska producers. One reason is that they are nearer the consuming centers and freight rates are less, but the main reason is that they have learned that it pays to sell cream that is sweet. Cream can be kept in good condition if you have a cooling tank and attend the cooling tank demonstrations, either at the Earl Hanks place, 4 miles east of Ord on May 15th or at the Pearl Miller farm 4 1/2 miles north of Ord, on the Haskell Creek road, May 16th. 7-11

GIRLS OF THREE TOWNS JOIN IN PLAY DAY HERE

Ord, Arcadia, Burwell Girls Enjoy Games Under Direction Of Miss Helen Eby.

Over forty girls representing Ord, Arcadia and Burwell schools competed in the first annual girls' play-day held at Bussell Park in Ord last Friday under the direction of Miss Helen Eby, girls' physical education director in the Ord schools. The Ord meet was one of two sectional girls' play-days held in Nebraska, the other being at Fairbury.

The girls competed in baseball, volleyball, captain ball and basketball and track. Other events were also on the program, according to Miss Eby, director of the meet.

Augusta Bishop of Burwell made the most outstanding record of the day when she high jumped 4 feet 5 inches, which is probably a new state girls' high school record. Spaulding's manual gives 4 feet 6 inches as the limit for girls' high jump record in the United States. Miss Bishop also was outstanding in the broad jump, stretching out for 11 feet 9 inches.

An Ord girl, Alvina Beran, made a good showing in the baseball throw when she heaved the ball 114 feet 10 inches. Dorothy Langstrom of Burwell came through with fast time in the 50-yard dash. She sprinted the half century in 6 1/2 seconds, good time considering that the sprints were run on the turf at the park.

All girls competing in the play-day were divided up into teams. Esther Zukoski, Ord; Betty Upton, Burwell; Rosemary Needham, Ord; Dorothy Langstrom, Burwell; Vivian Gavin, Burwell and Ahleen Nelson, Burwell captained the color teams. Miss Zukoski's rose color team were the high scorers for the afternoon's play in different events.

IT'S WISE TO CHOOSE A SIX

A demonstration tells you why it's wise to choose a six

Everywhere, buyers in the low-price field are agreeing "It's wise to choose a Six." And if you want to know why—get a demonstration of the new Chevrolet Six.

The Chevrolet Six is always smooth. When you idle the motor—drive fast in second—or travel at top speed—the power flows easily and evenly at all times. And everyone in the car enjoys a pleasant ride.

Developing 50 horsepower, the Chevrolet motor is also a marvel of flexibility. Needless gear shifting is avoided. And on the steepest hill, there is a reserve of power more than equal to every need.

And six-cylinder smoothness protects the entire chassis from the destructive effect of vibration. As a result, the whole car lasts longer—and resale value is increased.

Moreover, a demonstration reveals many other reasons why it's wise to choose a Chevrolet Six.

Chevrolet's four semi-elliptic springs and four Lovejoy hydraulic shock absorbers provide comfort and security wherever you drive.

And Chevrolet's completely enclosed, weather-proof, four-wheel brakes give definite assurance of quiet, positive braking control.

It will take only a few minutes to confirm all these reasons why it is wise to choose a Chevrolet Six. So come in today. Get behind the wheel—and drive!

And, as you do, remember this fact: The Chevrolet Six is just as economical as any car you can buy. It costs no more for gas, oil, or service. It is priced as low as $495 at the Flint factory. And it can be purchased for a small down payment with unusually easy terms.

My Own Column

By H. D. Leggett

I took a day off Friday and with the Missus along to direct my driving, tell me when I was going to meet another car, slow me up when, on a nice stretch of road (there are some between Ord and North Loup and between Elba and Grand Island) I got to going too fast, and to see that I didn't get into mischief while in the third city, I had a dandy day. I have driven down to the Island in lots less time than I did Friday for it took us three hours. I had to stop in St. Paul to see Dan Webster, Mike Larkosky, the newspaper boys. Mike says he is not getting the Quiz and gave me thunder for taking him off the list, which I didn't know had been done. I promised to restore his exchange right away. Dan is getting settled in his new newspaper home and has a splendid location in the middle of the south side of the main business block. He moved some weeks ago but says it will be several weeks yet before they get fully settled and I know it will be at least a year for I have been thru the mill several times during various newspaper experiences.

We were ready for dinner when we got to the Island and were not long in getting to an eating house. And it was dinner, not just lunch. I noticed Tom McGowan come in, eat a sandwich and drink a cup of coffee. That was lunch but after a light breakfast and riding over the rough roads I wanted a dinner and got it with a liberal helping of pie as a chaser.

One of the first places I went after dinner was to the Independent office for I wanted to see if the new bosses were making Gus Beuchler do any work. I had to wait a half hour for Gus to come in but the new business manager, Mr. Dunn, was on hand and I got acquainted with him and we had a nice visit. Mr. Dunn is a real guy and he promised me he would be driving this way some of these days, to get acquainted with as many as possible of the Independent readers.

The Grand Island Independent is one of the finest daily papers in the state and those of my readers who take and read it regularly know this. They also know that since the new management took hold the paper has been enlarged and improved and other improvements are contemplated and will be made as fast as possible.

Another old friend who has visited me several times in Ord is Dr. Rich and I never go to Grand Island without going to call on him for a few moments. The genial doctor was on one of the upper floors of his sanitarium among his patients but was soon located and we had a nice visit. I don't know how many patients the doctor has treated from Valley county in all the years he has been practicing as a specialist in the Island but I am sure it would be a very large score and if there is a single one of them who is not entirely satisfied I am sure it is the fault of the patient, not the doctor for he just won't have a patient leave dissatisfied if it can be helped.

There is one thing that is funny. Everyone from this part of Nebraska knows about the terrible chalk hills road. Almost everyone I talked with, and it was a good many during the day, after shaking hands and passing the usual first remarks about the nice day, the fine rain, the wonderful crop prospects, the next question would be, "How is the road through the chalk hills country?" The Ord Chamber of Commerce is right in saying that road is a crime. It is a shame and a disgrace that this part of Nebraska is forced to travel such a road year after year when other places with not nearly as bad a road have given good roads and it is time for the merchants and farmers and professional men all up and down this valley to shout their protest and their demand for a square deal, so loud that Governor Weaver will hear it and order the road built. I believe, if it had been the intention to get that piece of road fixed in this year of 1930, the contract would have been let before this time, believe it would have been necessary to let it and get the work started in order to get it finished and I don't believe there any intention of getting it done this year.

A man was shot and killed in Omaha the other morning. The newspaper stories refer to him as a beer baron and the alcohol king of Omaha. The place where he was killed is referred to in the same newspaper stories as a beer garden. There is a dispute as to whether he was killed with a shotgun or a machine gun. Apparently it is not known. He was, according to the newspaper stories, known to have a bodyguard. The name of another man who was the bodyguard of another underworld character is given, also. The police of Omaha, the reporters of Omaha and probably the Omaha public generally know that these beer gardens and saloons are there; that the gangsters are there. Why are such conditions allowed? Is Omaha just as bad as Chicago? It begins to look like it. The Omaha police are charged with taking hush money. The saloons are known to be there and they run without being molested. What can outstate people believe but that they are protected?

I wish Ord might have counted 2500 people in 1930 but they are not here and I am glad to show an increase over ten years ago. Now for ten years of real growth and let's make it three thousand next time. It's too late for Jim Misko and Bill Hawkins and me to help much but the younger generation should do their stuff and we can all help some when it comes to lending encouragement to new enterprises no matter how small they are.

Aunt Sadie, a new comer in Ord, came in recently and asked a lot of questions about the city affairs, how much money the city had on hand, what was charged for electric juice and how taxes are and then suggested that she should think taxes could be reduced and that electric juice could be sold to the owners of the plant, the people, for still less than is now paid. That is just the way with women. They just don't savvy business. Aunt Sadie had better wait till she has lived here longer before trying to instruct the city dads.

Jay Auble, having completed his all weather store awning, has turned his inventive genius in another direction and is working on a scheme to breed a brand of cut worms that will kill dandelions.

"That actions speak louder than words" was proved the other day when hissoner Mayor Bill Moses stopped out in front of the Quiz building, and, as he rolled his big black cigar thoughtfully back and forth in his mouth, looked at the windrow of dirt on the pavement just outside the curb. Bill could see that the dirt had to be thrown out there when a trench was dug for a row of hedge plants and he should have known that the job was finished the evening before it started to rain. He should also have known that I, C. Clark, promised to haul the dirt away the very next morning but couldn't because of the rain. I suspect that Bill did know all those things and was just trying to nag me and if I find out for sure that he did, well I shall probably spill a few beans. Just because the C. of C. is advocating cleaning the streets and the Quiz has to publish the news is no reason for the Mayor to pick on me and by thunder I won't stand for it.

Aunt Sadie says when she was a girl women wore their furs in the winter but that they now put them away in the winter and in the spring bring them out and wear them.

QUIZ FORUM

Ord, Nebr., Rt. No. 3.

To the Quiz Forum:—
There are some people, who for some reason—perhaps ignorance—are always taking a rap at the foreigners. Some carry it so far that it is disgusting instead of being a joke.
Others seem to have the idea that, they are doing our country a patriotic turn by everlastingly trying to find fault with the foreigners.
Some think they are elevating

Goodby To Rheumatism For Miss Rose Jones

"My rheumatism developed as the result of a badly wrenched knee I tried practically all of the usual methods but without any apparent results. A friend told me about Orange EX-O. This was about thirty days ago, and since that time I have used four bottles. I not only feel that I am completely well and those terrible rheumatic pains gone forever, but I have gained about ten pounds of lost weight, and all of my friends tell me now well I look."

Miss Rose Jones of Kansas
The experience of Miss Rose Jones of Wichita, Kansas, is similar to many cases where Orange EX-O has brought praised relief. This gentle, mild medicine has been praised by hundreds. It is the prescription of a famous physician—a combination of herb and root juices combined with other medicinal ingredients of exceptional value.

Orange-EX-O is sold in Ord by McLain & Sorensen and by all other good drug stores.

themselves by always treating the foreigners in a snobbish way. They don't even stop to think that they are dependent for their bread and butter, to a very large extent, on the ignorant (?) foreigners.

This always reminds me of the hard year, 1894. In the fall of that year there were about a dozen of us Bohemians that went to Blaine county to work on the irrigation ditch which was being constructed on the Middle Loup river near what was known as Rankins Ranch at that time.

Besides about a dozen of us Bohemians there were some Germans, and I remember one old Swede. The balance called themselves Americans, there were about sixty of us in all.

The scum and the snobs of this bunch were always picking on the poor foreigners, on the old Swede and the Bohemians. The old Swede use to say, "You let Alek alone, Alek is all right." Or "You ride Alek's back." And at times he said something worse. There also was an old Bohemian who was pestered very much because he could not speak English.—I sometimes think there on that ditch in 1894 is where the words "Old bohunk" were coined. As long as I live, I shall never forget when one day the boys got so rough with this old man that he could not bear it any longer, as I drove up with a team, instead of filling my scraper, this old man—Mr. Tensky was his name—straightened up and said to me, "Stop Frank, I want you to talk to these boys for me." He said, "Tell them that I am 65 years old, and that if they had any sense at all they would not be everlastingly picking on an old grayheaded man like me." Tell them he said. "That I have not had a chance to learn to talk English. But that I have served as a soldier in two wars in the old country, that I have been in all the principle countries in Europe. That besides Bohemian I also read and write German. I also speak French quite fluently. Tell them says he, That if I should lose my native language I would have the German and the French to fall back on."

Then he said, "What would you fellows do if you should lose your native language?" And after a moment's pause he said, "I know what you would do, some of you would bark and whine like dogs and some of you would bray like a Jackass."

Then suddenly a cheer went up that echoed and re-echoed through the sand hills. This cheer was repeated several times as the quotation of Mr. Tensky was passed from one gang to another.

After that the old man was mostly left alone and respected and snubbing at the foreigners was mostly cut out except by a few of the most ignorant.

Evangelical Church.
We were not privileged to have any service on April 27th, on account of the rain and the muddy roads but all are happy for the abundant moisture, but Sunday May 4th was another good day for service and the usual crowd greeted us for the morning Bible School and preaching service. Rev. Hurley Warren had charge of the evening service and reports that it was good also.

This week will be occupied with the C. E. business meeting and social hour on Friday evening at the church while next Sunday will be Mother's Day and the morning service will be in accordance with the day and a Baptismal service and in the evening the Valley High School will have their Baccalaureate service and the sermon will be delivered by Rev. McCarthy, Pastor of the Christian church, Ord. Please bear each of the announcements in mind and assist by attending them and doing all you can toward their success.
Nathan Thomas, Pastor.

Baptist Church Notes
You were informed last week that there would be no more Sunday School in the Baptist Church but that was an error for we will have Sunday school every Sunday and want all that will to come and receive a blessing. Those that were there last Sunday were away feeling that they had not lost anything by being there but on the other hand had gone away with more than they had come with.

Starting with next Sunday, the Lord willing, we will have a lecture and Bible Chart Talk. These chart talks are very instructive and interesting. If you miss one you will miss something that you will not get a chance to hear very often.

They will be right after Sunday School from 11 o'clock to 12. Come, you are welcome.

North Loup Friends Church.
Next Sunday morning at the Friends church, we will have a special Mothers' Day service. Let all the mothers of our church and congregation plan to be present. Visiting mothers will be welcome also. This invitation includes the fathers, of course!

Rev. Nathan Thomas continues to give straight gospel messages each night, enjoyed by all who attend. Have you been out to hear him? Why not put aside other less important engagements and give him a hearing for several nights in succession? Appreciation for the fine service he has rendered to the town and community ought to weigh heavily in everybody's estimation. Why have a "famine in the land"; not a famine of bread, nor a thirst for water, but of hearing the words of the Lord" (Amos 8:11) when Bro. Thomas is bringing just the message we need? Why not give God a chance to speak to your heart, dear friend without Christ?

We appreciate deeply the Christian Courtesy of those groups who have laid aside their own meetings and attended the revival, taking part and exhibiting a fine Christian fellowship. God bless them.
Bessie Francis Brown.

THE ORD QUIZ AGRICULTURE PAGE

Edited by Members of the Quiz Staff with the Assistance of the Valley County Farm Bureau, the Extension Department, University of Nebraska, and Progressive Farmers of Valley County

Though Only 12, Fern Rich Has Been In Club Work 4 Years; Won Canning Prizes

George Round, Jr.

Club boys learn how to take care of pigs or how to feed calves correctly in their club work and now we have girls who are in club work to learn how to sew and cook. Among our good girl club members who loves club work and believes she is getting something from it is Fern Rich, 12, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Murray Rich of near North Loup.

"I joined club work to learn to do my work better and to learn new ways to do things," Miss Rich told me recently by correspondence. She, like other Valley county girls, believed that there was something to club work that she needed to know.

Fern says, "I certainly haven't been disappointed with my club work thus far. I have learned how to can and sew. Also have learned how to cook. Every Valley county girl of club age, ten to twenty, has the opportunity of getting in club work."

Fern is one of our oldest club members in matter of service for she has been in club work for three years. She first joined the Jennie Wren club at Fussville, five and one-half miles, south of North Loup, in 1926. Minnie Davis lead the club that year. Again last year she was in club work and now this year belongs to the club lead by Mrs. Oyce Naeve. Certainly club work must mean something to Fern or she wouldn't have kept it up for three years. Nevertheless, she is among the strong club boosters in Valley county today.

Our young North Loup club member has learned how to sew and make clothes. In her club work she has made dresses, slips, shoe bags, and other useful articles for herself and her mother's home. Club work is practical, she says enthusiastically.

Like many of our other girl club members, Fern is enthusiastic over her school work. She has missed but two days of school thus far this year and that on account of illness. She has not been tardy once. Quite a record for our little 12-year-old club member.

Last year Fern exhibited her club work at Ord, North Loup, and St. Paul and won over $35 in prizes. She won a special prize at the Valley county fair held at Ord for the best collection of canned goods. At North Loup she copied the special prize on the best collection of canned goods for girls 12 years old and up.

Fern is anxious for school to be out and then active club work will start under the direction of Mrs. Naeve. They should have a wonderful club this year.

WHAT DO YOU KNOW ABOUT THE FEDERAL FARM BOARD? BY GEORGE ROUND, JR.

Questions
1. When did the agricultural marketing act become a law?
2. When did the Federal Farm Board begin its work?
3. In what general way does the Federal Farm Board plan to help improve the farmer's marketing system?

Answers.
1. June 15, 1929, when it was signed by President Hoover.

2. Members of the Federal Farm Board met for the first time on July 15, 1929. The President called them into this meeting which was held at the White House.

3. First, by helping farmers organize into co-operative marketing associations. Second, by aiding in federating these associations into district or regional selling units, wherever possible, into national sales agencies. Third, by assisting them through loans and in developing effective merchandising programs.

Will Reach Goal Of 200 Members This Week-Dale

"We should have our goal of 200 club members as set for this county by State Leader L. I. Frisbie of the agriculture college by next week," County Agent Carl C. Dale told the Quiz late today. He with George Round, Jr., has been working in rural schools over the county in an effort to get the two hundred members.

Dale says that rural school teachers over the county have co-operated in great style in helping to put the club membership program across. With but few exceptions, Dale declares, the teachers have shown a great interest in the membership drive. Many teachers have gone so far as to sponsor organizations in their own communities.

The co-operation of Clara McClatchey, county superintendent, has also been a big help in putting the campaign across, according to the Valley county agricultural agent. She has co-operated in every way possible and has made a special ruling in regard to credit on certificates of achievement. For every achievement certificate earned up to and including two, a student is allowed five percent on his lowest grade in the eighth grade examinations, according to the new ruling as laid down by Miss McClatchey.

Miss Marcia Rood, teacher in the Hayes Creek district, was mainly responsible for the organization of the two 4-H clubs in her community. Temporary organization meetings were held under the direction of George Round, Jr., when clothing and pig clubs were organized. Round then went back and assisted in the permanent organization of the two clubs. The rural school in the Polish church community has taken the initiative in organizing a club in that community. In recent years club work in that section of the county has been weak for unknown reasons, according to Agent Dale.

Carl Smith is to lead the Valley County Dairy Calf Club this year in place of Jess Kovanda. Smith-Hughes agriculture instructor in the Ord schools. Kovanda is expected to organize a corn club in the county soon. He plans to have a crops judging team from this county at the state fair next fall. Only five members are required to organize a club, each planting ten acres of corn for the project. There have been corn clubs in this county in past years.

Most Valley county boys are joining market pig clubs instead of sow and litter clubs. Small capital needed to enter the club is helping the membership in the market clubs, Dale believes. Time is past for sow and litter clubs, Dale declares in speaking of the Valley county club enrollment for this year.

Clubs in the Haskell Creek school under the direction of Alice Mauer, teacher, have completed their projects in clothing and farm accounting. Both finished up 100 percent. Farm account clubs are new ones for this county but Haskell Creek boys and girls probably derived much practical benefit from their club this year. Miss Mauer has been one of the leading club leaders in this county for the past two years and her Haskell Creek clubs have always been outstanding.

Boys and girls interested in enrolling in clubs should get in touch with County Agent Dale at Ord immediately. According to present plans, a 4-H club camp for Valley county club members will be held in this vicinity this year. County Agent Dale and George Round, Jr., will probably be in charge should the camp be held as planned.

CO-OP CREAMERY TO HOLD DAIRY PRODUCTS DAYS

Ag College Experts To Demonstrate May 15-16 on Hanson And Miller Farms.

The Ord Co-operative Creamery is arranging for Dairy Products Days to be held on May 15 and 16. The meetings will begin at 2 o'clock May 15 on the farm of Earl Hanson in Springdale and Mrs. Pearl Miller's farm five miles north of Ord on May 16.

M. L. Flack of the agricultural extension service in Lincoln will give a cream scoring demonstration and discuss sanitary methods of producing good cream or milk. Paul Hoff, of the extension service and H. J. Young of the Portland Cement association will hold a demonstration at which they will complete the construction of a concrete cooling tank and discuss the use of it and the results other dairymen have obtained from these tanks.

It has been stated that dairymen in the United States are losing $40,000,000 annually due to poor quality of milk and cream produced. Overcoming this loss is a matter entirely within the hands of the dairy farmers of the nation.

Naturally the production of either a high quality of cream or milk begins with the dairymen having a disease-free herd. The second important step is the practice of sanitary methods in caring for the milk; cleanliness of the cow, clean utensils, and storage all have their part in producing a high grade product. Clean dairy products, not only mean larger profits to the dairymen but in turn to the creamery or company to whom the dairymen sells his product.

Rapid cooling of either milk or cream is essential and keeping them at a low temperature is a necessary step in producing a quality product. This may be satisfactorily and economically accomplished by placing the cans of cream or milk in a concrete cooling tank and pumping cold water through the tank, for a period of at least an hour. Continuous pumping of course produces a better result. Well water in Nebraska has been known to cool cream to below 60 degrees F., in an hour and without further pumping, by closing the lid of the tank, maintaining the temperature for at least twelve hours.

BACK FORTY By J. A. Kovanda

Of late an increasing variety of animal vaccines has been added to the collections of medicinal remedies handled by all those who would aid the livestock farmer. Of these the contagious abortion vaccine has been of most interest, and has caused the greatest amount of local discussion.

For instance a speaker who was telling the Haskell Creek evening school group about the life cycle of the Bacillus abortus boum, suddenly started them into action by the statement that vaccination was of no value in preventing or controlling contagious abortion. Several farmers thought the speaker was wrong and so informed him as only farmers can.

It developed that several years ago a number of herds in the Haskell Creek community were stricken at one time with contagious abortion. The attendant calf loss was tremendous. The farmers tried vaccines because there was nothing else they could do, and are pleased to note that their cows have calved normally ever since.

Apparently vaccination checked what was contagious abortion, for accidental abortion in cattle is considered impossible. At least one might be added in arriving at such a conclusion after reviewing the following editorial from last week's Hoard's Dairyman.

ABORTION VACCINATION
Inquiries are coming to us concerning the use and value of vaccine for treating herds suffering from contagious abortion. Vaccines made from live contagious abortion germs are considered to have some merit in immunizing cattle against contagious abortion. The fact is, we have not sufficient information as to their exact value in treating animals with abortion. In other words, the live vaccines are still in the experimental stage.

It must be recognized that there is what is termed the virulent type of infection as well as the attenuated, or weak, type. The weak type is not supposed to convey the disease permanently to the animal, but when used will create a condition that will reduce abortions.

With our limited knowledge of the value of vaccines, we can not recommend them for general use. If any one feels that his herd is in desperate condition and desires to do something, it would be far better to use vaccine under the direction of a qualified veterinarian. When the virulent type is used it should be fully understood that the germs which cause contagious abortion are being brought into the herd. In view of this, we do not believe that vaccine of the virulent type will ever come into general use. Further, experimentation may show that the weak type, commonly called attenuated, may prove to be a valuable agency in subduing contagious abortion. Until we know more about it and its effect, this type of vaccine cannot be recommended for general use.

The chief purpose of all our efforts in dealing with farm diseases is to get rid of the agencies that cause them. It is far more important to prevent disease than it is to cure animals after they are sick. If we use living organisms for the treatment of the disease, we continue the contagion indefinitely and we can conceive of no system that will permit the general use of living organisms when the great object in handling our herds and flocks is to destroy the germs which cause disease.

By Geo. Round, Jr.

Census returns from over the state and nation seem to indicate that the farm population and small town population is gradually falling off with each successive decade. It is my belief that the coming of the motor age has helped to cause this decrease in population. Certainly everyone will agree that it has had a great deal to do with the population decrease, especially on the farm.

A professor in rural economics at the University of Nebraska recently told his class that he believed birth control had a little to do with the decrease in farm population. He said that in previous decades, the farm family had to be large in order to have enough help to carry on the work. The motor age has brought new machinery to the farm and less physical labor has resulted. The professor didn't seem to think that people were moving from the farm to the city as fast as the census returns show but that the average farm family isn't so large today. Certainly this professor spoke quite a little sense when he said that birth control might have something to do with the decreased farm population.

Perhaps readers of this column have other reasons why they believe the farm population is dwindling in most cases. I would be only too glad to hear from them. Communications would reach me at the extension service, college of agriculture, Lincoln. Let's hear what some of you readers, should there be any over the country, think is causing the farm population decrease.

Who says that Newton W. Gaines hasn't the backbone in Valley county to show me the farmer who has heard Newton talk that doesn't say he is the greatest talker he has ever heard. I doubt if Ord high school students have ever heard a greater talker speak before them in convocation. Recently when Gaines spoke before their body many of them expressed the wish that they might hear him deliver the commencement address. . . . another man has already been secured to deliver the address but maybe next year Ord will be fortunate enough to get Gaines to come and talk to the graduating class on commencement night. . . . Gaines is one of those kind of people who inspires every listener. . . . school children usually don't throw paper wads about the room and go to sleep. . . . Gaines is one of those fellows that keeps them awake. . . . one could probably have heard a pin drop in the room when he spoke before the Ord high school recently. . . . More power to good old Newton W. Gaines.

Harold Koelling, 14, is a new 4-H club member in Valley county. He joined the South Side Baby-Beef club which "Dugan" leads.

As other boys, Harold joined the baby beef club to get some experience in feeding and to learn how to feed more profitably. He told me that he is getting just what he wanted although he has been in club work for but a very few months.

He bought his grade Hereford from John Hornickel of Ord. When he first took him home and put him on feed, Harold fed the calf half corn and half oats, a standard beginning ration for club calves. Now he says he is feeding him corn, full feed.

Harold has always been interested in feeding cattle and has taken a liking to being around his father's cattle in the feedlots and in the pastures. One thing sure, he has learned how to tame a calf. Harold told me recently that he didn't have any idea before joining club work that a calf should be tamed so soon. Certainly club members must learn how to tame their calves or it would be impossible to show them in the ring at fair time.

Our young friend is in the ninth grade in the Valley high school. Apparently he is getting along well in his school work and with his teachers although he refused to tell me whether he liked his teacher or not. Nevertheless, I am inclined to believe that he sort of likes her. He has no complaints to make at least.

Although "Huge" Ward is quite a little boy, we have another club member who is but a little larger than he. I refer to Guy Worm, 12, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Worm. He is in the baby beef club this year, his second in club work.

Guy belonged to the baby beef club last year and had a fair calf although not the grand champion at the Valley County Fair held at Ord. The calf weighed 495 pounds quite a little when he was sold in Omaha at the Ak-Sar-Ben he weighed over one thousand pounds. Guy fed his calf corn, oats, and a protein supplement throughout the season.

This year, Guy bought a calf from his father, Will Worm, and he is a purebred. With the experience he received last year in feeding, Guy should go a long way with his calf in the show ring at the fairs in this section of the state next fall. Already he is planning to show at Ord and possibly Omaha. Like other club members he is enthused over club work and thinks it has many practical values.

Guy is going to school in Taylor this year. He is a seventh grader. Keep your eyes on Guy this year, folks, for he may surprise you with his calf at the fairs this fall.

Constructs Inlaid Checkerboard.

The Delinquents Pay.
One of the annual outstanding events of the Up-To-Date club is the entertainment at the close of the club year by the delinquents. Needless to say the winners spend much time in speculation as to what will be required of them at the hands of the delinquents. This year proved no exception. The meeting was held Tuesday, April 29th.

The invitations written on mail order blanks and enclosed in matched envelopes, did not reveal the place of meeting but decoyed the guests to the end of the rainbow. However an accidental eavesdropping on a party telephone, gave a clue that the delinquents had gone in and taken possession of the home of Mrs. E. C. Baird who with the winners was out in search of the meeting place. Word quickly spread and soon all were enjoying a delightful afternoon of various contests and stunts. In the auto contest, the Fords won the Silver Loving Cup, a tin can, stuffed with paper and topped with a layer of candy.

Although the weather was inclement, the guests were requested to wear white and several unique costumes were in evidence. Being a backward party, the delinquents donned their dresses backward.

At 4 o'clock, all retired to the M. E. church dining room where a delicious two course luncheon was enjoyed. To further carry out the idea of the backward party, ice cream and cake, finger bowl and tooth picks preceded the main course which consisted of chicken salad, stuffed baked potatoes, hot biscuit, butter, raspberry jam, radishes and coleslaw.

The guests were Mesdames Baird, Wibbels, Ernest Esterbrook, E. A. Esterbrook, Starr, Lewin, Langrall, C. M. Bossen, Fees, Parker, H. Weddel, Piney, Gaither, G. Lutz, P. W. Round and Miss Grace Hagood.

In the written contest Louise Stanley won first, Orville Sorensen, second and Erma King third place. The library board has spared neither money or labor to make these rooms attractive and pleasant for the public, and all returns that are asked, is due appreciation by the public in helping to keep it attractive by avoiding unnecessary abuse and damage such as striking matches and spitting tobacco juice on the walls and digging holes in the plaster and generally making the toilets unfit for use, which makes the rooms an unpleasant place for public meetings. CHILDREN IN ORPHANAGE GAIN ON BUTTER

Actual tests conducted in a Rochester, N. Y., orphanage show that butter is superior to oleomargarine as a builder of bodies and health. Seven children, 11 years old, were fed a uniform diet, with the exception that one child, whose butter was included in the diet. During a second six-month period, oleomargarine was substituted for butter, and during a third period of six months butter was again included in the diet.

During the first period that butter was used each child made an average gain of 6.32 pounds. When oleomargarine was substituted, the children each averaged a loss in weight of 1.35 pounds. With the introduction of butter into the diet again each child made an average gain of 8.12 pounds in a six month period.

THE STORY

CHAPTER I.—At the Warren ranch, the "Three Bar," on the fringe of the "cow country," a stranger came for work. He was a man of middle age, with a friendly smile, and a well-cut suit. He was engaged by the owner, Williamette Ann Warren, known to all as "Billie," the daughter of the ranch owner. He had been the original owner of the place. The question whether the territory is to remain "cow country" or be opened to settlement is a troublesome one.

CHAPTER II.—Cattle "rustlers" have been troubling the ranch owners of the Three Bar with a vengeance. Having suffered more than others, the ranch owner has named as Cal Harris. By his announcement in favor of "squatters" he incurs the enmity of the rustlers. The will made by Cal Warren stipulated that half the property should go to the son of his old friend, William Harris, under certain conditions. The new arrival is the man and he discloses the fact to Billie. The girl is suspicious of her new friend, and takes counsel with her friend, the ranch cook, "Waddie". He quiets her fears.

CHAPTER III.—Harris' method of wearing the inevitable "gun" rather excites the girl's devotion, though she herself admits she is impressed by his manner. Slade, a ranchman with an unsavory reputation as a "bad man," visits Billie. He has long wanted to marry her, but she dislikes him and fears him. Slade, endeavoring to embrace Billie, is interrupted by Harris. The men, in the verge of a gun play, are quieted by Billie, but mutual enmity is established. Harris' ranch, however, is that the girl marry him and so settle the matter of the ranch ownership. He is indicted, but the man declares he will remain on the place and restore its prosperity, warning under Billie's rule.

CHAPTER IV.—The regular calf round-up is begun, and the rustlers are at their evening meal, far out on the range, six outsiders join them. Billie knows them to be "rustlers" who, under the leadership of Slade, have in the past stolen Three Bar cattle. To test Harris' courage the girl appoints him temporary foreman, suggesting that he order the visitors to leave. Some what to her surprise, he does so. The men depart, making threats. Billie made Harris permanent foreman. Catching Morrow leaving cattle where they can be stolen, Harris discharges him. Morrow leaves, and Harris realizes he has made a deadly enemy. Also, he knows that Harper, Slade and the rest of the "rustlers" now will know with whom they have to deal.

CHAPTER V.—Riding with Billie, a man, presumably Morrow, shoots at Harris. Three Bar riders start in pursuit of Morrow. One of them, Bangs, is ambushed and killed. Riley Foster, Bangs' chum, avenges him on the killers, the tracks of a party of riders being seen. Harris outlines his plan for bringing the rustlers into the country. Waddie agrees with him, and the girl writes to her lawyer, Judge Colton, asking advice. In the meantime Harris tells her he has already frisked the rustlers, and has selected for their peculiar fitness to cope with the danger, the hawklike strength of countenance. He dropped a hand on the girl's shoulder and looked down at her.

"How are things breaking this season, Billie?" he asked. "Every thing running smooth?"

"Good girl, Billie," he thanked her. "As to what you said, it's remarkable that you didn't say more. I wonder what you might lose for yourself but over the thought that your father had been tricked. I tried to put myself in your place, and if I'd been you I know I'd have kicked me off the place, and told Waddie to turn loose his wolf."

He switched abruptly away from the topic in hand and reverted to the subject they had discussed an hour past.

"We've a clear field now with nothing on our minds but the job of putting the Three Bar on its feet," he said. "The Three Bar is a pretty small outfit the way things are today, but in a few more years the brand that runs three thousand head will be almost in the class of cattle kings. The range will be settled with an outfit roosting on every available site. The big fellows will find their range cut up, and then they're through. If the Three Bar files on all the water out of Crazy Loop and covers the flat with hay, we'll control all the range for a number of miles each way. There's not another site short of Brandon's place west of us—twelve miles or so, about the same to the east; still farther off south of us. We'll be riding the crest. You try and get another letter off to the Judge today."

The girl nodded.

"We'll try it," she said. "I know that Cal Warren would rather see the Three Bar go to pieces from its own pressure, fighting from the inside to grow, than to see it whittled down from the outside without our fighting back."

"We'll Try It," She Said.

She crossed to her teepee to write the letter asking Judge Colton's advice on this matter, which would mean the turning point in the Three Bar affairs. An hour later Harris rode away from the wagon, his bed rolled packed on a horse, heading for Billie's with the message that meant so much to the Three Bar. As he left Harris handed him two letters he had written weeks past, before leaving the ranch.

Presumably only the three of them knew the intended move out in the course of the next few days it had become rumored among the men that the Three Bar was to turn into a farming outfit. The girl learned that Carpenter was the source of these whispers.

Ever since the departure of Morrow Carp had been sullen. Twice he had taken exception to some word of Harris' but the new foreman had patiently overlooked the fact. However, on the fifth day after the departure of Morrow, Harris whirled on the man as he mounted his antiquated rig when the hounds had gathered for the noon meal.

"That'll be all," he said. "I'll see you out your time. You took things up where Morrow left off. Now you can go hunt him up and count your noses."

"Can't a man speak his mind?" Carp demanded.

"He can talk, his head off," Harris said. "But he can't overlook any Three Bar calves on his circle."

while I'm running the layout, Morrow tried that on while he was breaking out in a sweat.

Carp surveyed the faces of the men and started to speak but changed his mind and headed for the rope corral.

"That's going to leave us short-handed," Harris said to the girl. "Morrow, Carp and Bangs—three short. Horse ought to get back from Billie's today. We've only one more week out, so I guess we can worry through."

"How did you know?" she asked.

"About Carp, I mean," Harris explained. "Lanky is worth double pay."

Harris came back from Billie's in the early evening, and another man rode with him.

"Alden," Billie said. "I wonder what the sheriff is doing out here."

The sheriff stripped the saddle from his horse and the wrangler swooped down to hase the animal in with the remuda as Alden joined Harris and the girl. He was a tall, gaunt man with a slight stoop. His keen gray eyes peered forth from a maze of sun-wrinkles surmounted by bushy eyebrows, the drooping gray mustache accentuating rather than detracting from the hawklike strength of countenance. He dropped a hand on the girl's shoulder and looked down at her.

"How are things breaking this season, Billie?" he asked. "Every thing running smooth?"

Chevrolet Motor Co. Announces New Car

Detroit, May 6.—A further indication of the advantages which accrue to the motorist through the economies of great volume production is seen in the announcement by the Chevrolet Motor Company of a stylish new closed model—the Chevrolet Special Sedan, with body by Fisher.

Introduction of the new model, with its many expensive car features, brings the Chevrolet passenger car line up to nine body styles, three open and six closed. The Special Sedan has been in production for several days and shipments are now going out to dealers.

A leading feature of the new model is its equipment of six wire wheels, with large chrome-plated hub caps. The two spare wheels are mounted in special fender wells. The exterior color scheme combines smart Boulevard maroon on the body with a harmonizing shade of red on the wheels. Rich appointments found in the interior include arm rests, silk assist cords, combination vanity case and smoking set, rich upholstery fabrics and wide, deep seats with form-fitting cushions.

Like other passenger models of the 1930 Chevrolet, the car is powered by the 50 horsepower, six cylinder, valve-in-head motor, it has fully enclosed, internal expanding four wheel brakes, four Lovejoy hydraulic shock absorbers and a bigger rear axle.

The price of the Special Sedan has been set at $725, f. o. b. factory, Flint, Mich.

FOUR ORDITES IN TORNADO AT HASTINGS

Were In Coliseum When Wall
Crumbled Thursday Night;
Damage $200,000.00.

Four Ord men, Dr. C. J. Miller, Ed P. Beranek, C. J. Mortensen and Irl D. Tolén, were in Hastings last Thursday night when a tornado struck that city, killing one person, injuring others and doing property damage estimated at $200,000. The Ord men were attending the dedication of the new Hastings Masonic temple and were in the coliseum when the rear wall crumbled from the force of the twister.

Nearly 3,000 people, including many women, were in the coliseum listening to a concert by the Shrine band of Omaha, the Ord men say. The band had just started playing an intricate selection when the rear wall crumbled. For a few moments pandemonium reigned, women shrieked and everything was in confusion. Then the band struck up "There'll Be a Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight" and the audience gradually calmed down. Nobody was injured by the falling masonry.

For nearly two hours the storm raged outside and the band continued playing much of the time, the Ord Shriners report. Electric service was cut off by the twister and there were no lights in Hastings Thursday night. Communication with the outside world was cut off for many hours because of damage done to telegraph and telephone wires.

Press dispatches Friday stated that one person was killed and many others were injured in Hastings the night before. Conservative estimates of property damage brought the total to over $200,000. The Ord men left Hastings when the fury of the wind had spent itself and drove to Ord. The rain was falling in sheets, they say, and the low country between Hastings and Grand Island was entirely under water. Telephone poles were blown across the road nearly all the way between the two cities, they say.

The Ord Shriners say they do not care for another experience with a tornado. Although they were indoors during the worst of the storm they saw the wall of the coliseum shattered by the force of the wind and in driving out of the city afterwards they saw examples of the damage done.

Thursday night's twister was the second to hit Adams county last week. On Monday a tornado did great damage in the country around Kenesaw and Juniata, missing Hastings by a few miles.

Shunkwiler In Tornado. Lawrence Shunkwiler is another Ord man who was in the tornado at Hastings last Thursday night. He was driving down Second street when the twister struck. The wind picked his car up and deposited it on the sidewalk but little damage was done to the automobile and Mr. Shunkwiler was unhurt.

Texaco Company Is Building New Super Service Station Here

Work was started last week on a new super-service station which the Texaco Oil Company expects to have in operation here by June 1 or shortly thereafter. The station will be located just east of the former Bailey and Detweiler store, on the highway corner. Roy Worden will be manager.

A pretentious station that will cost over $7,000 is being built, Mr. Worden says. The station will be of Spanish type architecture, with contain rooms for greasing, and washing cars and will be equipped with hydraulic lift and other modern equipment. I. C. Clark dug the basement last week and the station will be heated by a hot water furnace. Frank Glover is in charge of the building work.

Ord will be wholesale center for Texaco products, Mr. Worden says, and towns in this vicinity will be served from here. The Texaco company now has stations under construction at North Loup and Arcadia and already owns a station at Burwell.

Kirkendall Gets Position. James Kirkendall has secured a position as manager of the Texaco filling station at North Loup and will report for work Monday. He expects to move there as soon as he can secure a house.

Floyd Rathbun, winner of the Ord Rotary club's baby beef contest, Monday was honored at the club's luncheon by being presented with a silver cup emblematic of the baby beef championship at last year's Valley county fair. The cup was presented by C. C. Dale. To retain permanent possession of the cup Floyd must win the baby beef club contest at the fair again this year, which he says he is determined to do.

Other guests at the Rotary luncheon Monday included J. A. Kovanda, Smith-Hughes agriculture instructor in Ord high school, and two of his students, Anthony Kokes and Bud Brickner. Mr. Kovanda and both of the students made brief talks.

MAE KLEIN IS FAIRY QUEEN IN OPERETTA

Dainty Miss Was Attended By Mary Louise Miller, Beverly Davis In Grade School Play.

With Miss Elva Bloodgood directing and all grade school teachers assisting in various roles, over one hundred and fifty youngsters of the grade school presented their operetta "On Midsummer's Day," by Beatrice Alderman, at the high school auditorium last Friday night. The garden was the center of the scene with the children depicting the flowers, the weeds, the rain, the bugs, the frogs, and everything else common to the garden. With each group and individual costumed to represent a garden plant or animal, the scene was brilliant and constantly changing.

Mae Klein was fairy and Mary Louise Miller and Beverly Davis were her attendants. Groups from various grade rooms, including the kindergarten, sang choruses with a minimum of speaking parts to form the scenes.

Children who had prominent parts in the operetta included Wilma Severns, Frances and LaVerne Duemey, Jean Barta, Harriet Love, Mary Beranek and Eugene Puncchar, Stella Geneski and Dorothy Auble.

The performance was excellent, stage setting, costuming and the musical rendition being of exceptionally fine type. A large crowd witnessed the program.

She gave an excellent interpretation of the part of Juliet, a servant to Juliet's nurse. Miss Kokes is a junior at the college.

Incomplete Census Returns Indicate Valley County Has 300 Fewer People

Most Townships Show Losses
From 1920 Census; North
Loup And Ord Larger.

On the face of incomplete census returns, Valley county's population is 300 smaller than in 1920, information received this week from H. G. Webb, supervisor of the census, would indicate. All enumerators in Valley county have reported and a tabulation shows that the population of this county is now 9,532. Ten years ago the population was 9,832. There is little possibility that a check will make up the difference.

Only four census divisions of Valley county show gains over the 1920 census. Arcadia township, North Loup village, Springdale township and Ord city have a few more people than they had ten years ago. All other divisions show losses ranging from North Loup township's loss of 103 people to Yale's township's loss of only 2. Valley county census returns are as follows:

MAY IS RAINY THO MOISTURE TOTAL IS LOW

Three-day Drizzle Falls In Ord
Over Week-end; Rain Heavy
In Other Communities.

May thus far has been a rainy month, though the total moisture that had fallen up to last night as reported by Horace Travis, government weather reporter, as only 1.72 inches. A three-day drizzle that began Friday and continued through Saturday and most of Sunday left roads in poor condition and made fields so wet that farmers were unable to start corn planting Monday.

Communities adjacent to Ord report heavier rainfall than fell in the city. Henry Rachay was a Quiz visitor Tuesday and said 1 1/2 inches of rain fell in his neighborhood in a short time Sunday morning. Most of it ran off, he said, and farmers started planting Tuesday and Wednesday.

The earth is thoroughly soaked to a depth of several feet and if sunshine and warmer weather supplant the rain prospects look good for a big crop throughout Valley county.

The Loup Valley has been fortunate thus far in evading tornadoes and floods that have done heavy damage in other portions of the state. Nearly six inches of moisture fell in April and all of it went into the ground, as did most of the 1.72 inches that has fallen thus far in May.

Two Former Ordites Arrive In Airplane, Are Visiting Here

Two former Ord men, Perry Bell and Emanuel Gruber, arrived last Thursday evening from Long Beach, Calif., making the trip in Mr. Bell's airplane. They will visit here for about two weeks with relatives and friends.

The two were six days on the way to Ord but they stopped in several places. Their last day's hop was the longest, 1,100 miles. Only one mishap marred the trip, they say. In the mountains they had to make a forced landing and the only place in sight was a dry river bed. They landed without injury to themselves but broke their landing gear and had to make repairs before they could continue the trip.

ROTARIANS WILL HELP D. A. R. TO SAVE OLD FORT

Federal Forest or State Park
Will Be Made of Fort Hartsuff, If Plans Successful.

Decision to join with citizens of other valley towns and members of the Nebraska chapter, Daughters of the Revolution, in saving old Fort Hartsuff for a state or federal park has been made by the Rotary club of Ord. A Rotary committee composed of Jos. P. Barta, H. B. Vandecar, Clarence M. Davis and Dr. Geo. R. Gard has been appointed to do all they can to help save the old fort for posterity.

The Conservative Savings and Loan association, Omaha, now owns the site of old Fort Hartsuff, having bid it in recently at sheriff's sale. For several years it has been occupied by the Chas. Augustus family and used as a farm and stock ranch.

Most Ord people are familiar with the history of Fort Hartsuff which was built in 1874 by the United States government to protect early settlers from the Sioux. A recent article in the Lincoln State Journal told the fort's history and explained plans being made by the D. A. R. to preserve it as a state or federal park.

The Ord Rotary club is now negotiating for an option on the site of the fort and if this can be secured the club will be ready to join with others interested in raising sufficient funds to buy it for presentation to the state or in interesting the federal government in taking it over for a national park.

Girl Reserves Sponsor High School Carnival

The annual high school carnival was sponsored this year by the Girls' Reserve Club. Although Saturday night was rainy a fair sized crowd came to the gymnasium where the usual array of booths, stands and carnival attractions were running full sway. The gym was the big mid-way with free attractions on the stage. The high school band gave a half hour's concert at 7:30 and later in the evening some vocal musical numbers and a solo dancing act were presented. At the close of the evening the winners in the popularity contest were announced as Dorothy Weekes and Paul Pierce, both members of the senior class. The popularity contest was decided by popular vote of the students thru their home rooms.

In the several rooms of the ground floor the usual carnival attractions were to be found; the home economics laboratory housed the Japanese tea room which was very tastily decorated. The most popular beauty parlor was in the music room. Other rooms housed fortune tellers, artists, fakers and what not.

The sponsoring club will realize a small profit from the carnival this year.

Conducting Fund Campaign.

Dr. Hull of Waterloo, Iowa arrived in Arcadia last Saturday to assist in conducting a campaign to raise funds for the purpose of conducting the work on the Methodist church. The basement of the church was constructed a few years ago and it is hoped that at this time enough funds will be received to complete a portion or all of the edifice.

Dr. Hull conducted a series of revival meetings in Arcadia last winter and has many friends here who welcome his return.

Eighth Grade Examinations Given.

Eighth grade examinations were given at the high school assembly room last Friday for seventh and eighth grade pupils of the rural schools. Supt. C. C. Thompson and Miss Ella Bockholdt, normal training instructor, gave the examinations to about eighty pupils.

The annual Junior-Senior banquet of the Arcadia high school was held at the Methodist church basement last Friday evening at 7 p. m.

The splendid four course dinner was served by the ladies of the Methodist Ladies Aid society. Fifty-three guests attended including twenty-one seniors and four juniors, the members of the faculty and Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Routh. The banquet room and tables were attractively decorated in the senior class colors of rose and silver forming a very good presentation of "Moonlight and Roses." One corner of the room was cleverly covered with a rose and silver lattice and the ceiling of the room was draped with rose and silver streamers while the lights were enclosed with rose crepe paper. The dining tables were arranged to form a square and in the center of the square was an arbor adorned with roses and spirea. A white picket fence enhanced by bunches of spirea stood on one side of the arbor and on the other side was arranged a large clump of lilacs. A blue light placed within the arbor gave the resemblance of moonlight which was reflected on the glass strewn floor beneath.

The table decorations carried out the plan and color scheme, the center pieces being large crepe paper roses. Candle holders with lighted rose tapers added further beauty. A miniature rose extended from each of the various colored nut cups and rose noise makers and serpentine served as favors. The program toast list and menu were enclosed in a silver colored booklet on which a rose was painted. This combination also served as a place card, the guest's name being printed on a small card which was inserted in the cover.

Following is the program, menu, and toast list: cocktail, stuffed veal birds, scalloped potatoes, creamed lima beans, parker house rolls, jam, radishes, olives, pineapple salad, fresh strawberry sundae, angel food cake, coffee, mints. Miss Evelyn Hyatt furnished piano music during the serving of the dinner. A solo was rendered by Miss Hazel Sherbeck between the second and third courses and a quartette composed of Lola Smith, Dorothy Strathdee, Fern Bryson and Lucille Bossen furnished numbers between the third and fourth courses.

Toasts: Toastmaster, John Higgins; Welcome, Hazel Armstrong; Response, Ida Gartside; Service, Elmer Toops; Efficiency, Donald Murray; Necessity, Albert Russell; Impressions, Fern Bryson; Opportunity, Dean Whitman; Recognition, Raymond Erickson; Success, Emma Welty.

Four girls from the freshman class and four from the sophomore class served the banquet. The more rose colored aprons trimmed in silver and rose caps.

Much credit is due Miss Clara Koenig, principal of the high school and the junior committees and their sponsor Arnold Tuning for the success of the banquet.

The American Legion Auxiliary met Friday with Mrs. Dr. Christ. Nine members and the following guests attended: Mesdames H. S. Kenney, W. W. McMichael, sr., A. M. Schoemaker, Geo. Olsen, R. O. Galtier and Miss Dorothea Schoemaker. The afternoon was spent quilting and sewing carpet rags. The Poppy program was again discussed and as every one is so busy it was decided to postpone the program until school is out.

At the close of the afternoon, Mrs. Christ served a delicious luncheon. The Men's Community Club are taking charge of the Decoration Day services this year. They have asked the Auxiliary to take charge of decorating the graves. A program will be printed later.

A large box of clothing was sent to the Tekamah storm sufferers.

man corner. The present plans are to make this road standard grade with eight inches of clay and an inch of gravel. If the work is carried out it should result in a road that will accommodate the traffic for some time without complaint.

DALE WILL MAKE FINAL DRIVE FOR CLUB MEMBERS

With Goal of 200, He Hopes To Put County Over the Top Again; Round Will Assist.

The final campaign to reach the 200 club membership will be under way within the next two weeks, according to County Agent C. C. Dale. In preliminary campaigns for membership Dale has been handicapped by weather but in his final drive he expects to go over the two hundred mark easily. Clubs will be organized in every precinct in Valley county, he says.

In staging the campaign for new members, Dale is sending out soon, letters to all eligible club members, boys and girls of from 10 to 20 years of age, who live in Valley county. The letter explains club work and some of its purposes. A self-addressed postcard requiring no postage is being used by the interested boys and girls. Dale then plans to visit the communities wherein the boys and girls wishing to get in clubs reside and complete the organization.

According to Agent Dale, he will have the assistance of George Round, Jr., in his windup membership campaign. Round is to return to Ord to assist Dale by May 23 according to present plans. It is expected that Dale and Round will visit every community in the county in an effort to go over the top in membership.

"We want the boys and girls to know that club work is not restricted to rural boys and girls," Dale told the Quiz today when talking of the membership campaign. "Any town boy or girl between the ages of 10 and 20 is eligible to belong to a club and we wish to put more active clubs in Ord, Arcadia, North Loup, and Elyria this year than ever before."

Over 15,000 Nebraska boys and girls are expected to enroll in club work this year, according to information sent Dale by State Club Leader L. I. Frisbie of the agricultural college. Frisbie is anxious to see Valley county on the honor roll again as one of the counties making its enrollment goal. With a goal of 150 members, Dale put Valley county across the top last year, Frisbie says.

Agent Dale is especially anxious to break into communities west and north of Ord where, with few exceptions, very little club work has been accomplished. He urges women's clubs to sponsor clubs. The North Loup territory is probably the strongest club community in Valley county.

Modern Dairy Barn at Ag College Cost $45,000, Accommodates Fifty-Six Cows

DAIRY BARN

Lincoln, Neb., May 14.—Dairying is one of the most important industries in the state of Nebraska. To help dairymen of Nebraska solve their problems the dairy barn at the college of agriculture of the University of Nebraska, was built in 1925 at a cost of $45,000. It accommodates fifty-six cows.

The up-to-date barn is a two-story red brick construction. It is divided into four sections. Students at the college use the judging division for their judging class work. In the south wing are kept the cows that are milked four times daily while cows milked three times daily are kept in the north wing.

The box stalls, the fourth department, accommodate the cows on test.

The huge loft in the second story has a capacity of 180 tons of hay. A supply is always kept there for future use. Grain bins furnish storage for unsacked and sacked grain.

A milk house, 40 by 30, was built on to the dairy barn when it was first constructed. It is divided into three departments. The milk coolers are kept in one department, the scales and other weighing apparatus in the second department while the boilers occupy the third division of the wash house.

New Circular About Furniture Is Ready

Valley county women may now get the circular, "Essential Qualities of Good Furniture," from County Agent, Carl C. Dale in Ord or from the agricultural extension service, college of agriculture, Lincoln. The extension circular, number 1162, is just off the press and is considered one of the best house-keeping bulletins yet issued from the college. Valley county extension club women used the circular in their work this year according to Agent Dale.

"Furniture is the most distinctive of all movable objects in a home and because of this we all want articles useful and pleasing to design," the circular says, "good selection of furniture is not merely to make our homes more beautiful but helps to make better human relationships."

The circular emphasizes that surrounding children with beautiful but not expensive furniture will help them to receive proper impressions that will develop their character and lead to better and happier lives.

The different functions of the various pieces of furniture are described in the circular. The exact

WHAT DO YOU KNOW ABOUT THE FEDERAL FARM BOARD?

Question
1. What would be the effect on consumers of agricultural products if farmers limited production to harmonize with demand?

Answer
1. The Federal Farm Board is working on the theory that the production of farm products in excess of normal marketing requirements is a waste. It injures the producer without benefiting the consumer. The consumer requires and should have a normal supply of food and textile products of high uniform quality.

The producer desires a supply which can be sold at prices that will assure him a reasonable profit on his farm business. The development and maintenance of a condition of stability with regard to production and price will benefit both producers and consumers. Such coordination of supply and demand is a problem to which the farmer cooperatives must give further attention, and in the solution if which the Federal Farm Board must render all possible assistance.

proportion and design is also emphasized. Local women will also be told something of the proper relation of furniture to the room and other objects. Small rooms need small furniture, the circular will tell the women readers.

The different steps in the process of refinishing woods are described. Different economical varnish removers are recommended. Lye, water, and starch serves as a good remover, it says.

Care and cleaning of furniture woods and floors is also a topic for discussion in the new extension circular. Turpentine, linseed oil, and hot water are recommended to wash the wood surface in varnishing. Other mixtures for the removal of spots, stains, and other blemishes are given in the circular.

Geo. Round Becomes Farm House Pledge

Announcement forthcoming from the University of Nebraska informs the Quiz late today that George Round, Jr., is a new pledge of Farm House fraternity. He has been pledged within the past week, according to the announcement.

GEORGE ROUND JR.
Round, who is the son of Sheriff and Mrs. George Round of Ord, is a junior in the college of agriculture where he is majoring in agriculture journalism and extension work. He has been active in journalism circles at the college this year. Throughout the year he has been employed at the extension editor's office, writing up news for the college. George is a regular contributor to the Quiz.
The Farm House Fraternity is a professional group on the college of agriculture campus. Round will return home to work for County Agent Dale immediately after school closes at the University of Nebraska.

JESS HOWERTON THINKS SURFACE PLANTING BEST

Jess says, "I think surface planting is the best because it holds the soil from washing as in listing. However, it is hard to decide which method is the most successful. I have always listed most of my corn but this year I am going to surface plant all of it."

AM I RIGHT?

By Geo. Round, Jr.

It seems to me as though marketing of all commodities is getting to the point where they are sold in smaller packages than ever before. Everything a person buys today is done up in a small package. Meat is sold in small cuts, only five-cent candy bars are sold, all food products are sold in smaller packages than ever before.

Now the experiment station at the college of agriculture is carrying an experiment to determine the practicability of marketing hogs in smaller packages, that is at lighter weights. Hogs, since the early days, have been put on the market at lighter weights, until each year until now the two hundred pound porker in great demand. The experiment being carried is to determine whether it will be profitable from all standpoints to market hogs at even lighter weights.

"I hope we organize our 4-H club again this year," Marian Davis, 15, of near North Loup, told me in correspondence recently. She has been a member of the club three years and is now anxious to get in a clothing or canning club this year. It is great stuff, she declared when writing.

Marian went on further to say, "I first joined a 4-H club in 1927 and since that time have belonged to some kind of a club. Now I miss club work and I surely hope that our club reorganizes this year."

Our good North Loup club member, Marian, first joined the canning club in your community in 1927 which at the time was led by Minnie Davis. Marian thought she might be able to pick up some pointers on canning vegetables and fruits and she joined the club. She got a lot out of her first year in the club, she says. She declares that she got out of club work just what she expected.

"It's lots of fun to learn to can different vegetables and fruits," she remarks enthusiastically.

Marian is in the ninth grade at the Elyria high school, her first year there. She likes her school work fine, she declares.

Carl Smith is about ready to reorganize the Valley County Dairy Herd Improvement Association. He will assure that it is an advantage to breed their own stock and do their own hatching. The centralizing of hatching may work against the poultry-keepers interests if the work is not well done, or if the chicks purchased are inferior breeding and come from diseased stock.

Here lie opportunities for hatcheries to increase their business and to render a valuable public service at the same time. For instance the Elyria hatchery is doing quite excellent work in eliminating bacillary white diarrhea, the fatal disease that chicks are born with. The Smiths have used the Wattle test during the past two years on all breeding stock from which they select eggs. As a result of testing they found only about one-fourth as much bacillary white diarrhea present this year as last in the flocks which have been tested for two years.

If the following estimate made by the freshmen vocational agriculture students is at all accurate, there is little difference in cost between buying chicks and hatching them. The cost of hatching was figured with an incubator because that is the only practical method where large numbers of eggs are incubated, and the boys figured on the basis of 500 chicks. Some farmers can produce chicks for much less than these figures and save money by doing their own hatching. For other farmers the figures are representative and even direction of Jesse Kovanda, is going over big." The boys in the course are enthusiastic over the results and the benefit they are deriving from studying agriculture of all types. Above all, they will all stick by Jesse for they say he is a great teacher.

This year, some boys were forced to be turned down when asking to enroll in the agriculture course at the local high school. The course has become so popular that it is even hard to get into it. Kovanda certainly should get the pick of the boys when he has so many applying for entrance and so few are accepted. If I am not mistaken he has forty in his two classes this year.

During his teaching in the Ord schools, Kovanda has made a great success and made a name for himself locally as well as over the state. He is rapidly becoming reorganized as one of the leading Smith-Hughes agriculture instructors in Nebraska. Jesse knows his stuff too.

He will be back in Ord next year.

BACK FORTY

By J. A. Kovanda

Is it more economical to buy baby chicks or to hatch them? A question of this kind can have no definite answer. It is known that each year more raisers of poultry are turning their work over to hatcheries. These institutions make it their business to custom hatch the eggs of the producers for them, or to supply them with chicks which they hatch from eggs purchased of several breeders in the community. On the other hand a number of particular breeders will and perhaps should always do their own hatching—one would hate to place a thousand dollar setting of eggs in the care of a hatchery.

There are good arguments on both sides of the question. Very often when the flock is small, the owner feels that he does not want to be bothered with setting hens or an incubator. Many times there is no place suitable for an incubator or the owner does not feel qualified to operate it, as there is the possibility of a poor hatch. Then there is the investment in an incubator which is only used for a short period each year. This is a very important item on a large poultry farm, as not only the incubators must be considered but the expense of a building for them as well. There is also a certain advantage in having the season's quota of chicks arrive at one time, for most growers are able to raise them more successfully when all are the same age.

On the other hand, a number of poultry-keepers realize the importance of well-bred disease-free stock and the difficulty in securing it and feel that it is an advantage to breed their own stock and do their own hatching. The centralizing of hatching may work against the poultry-keepers interests if the work is not well done, or if the chicks purchased are inferior breeding and come from diseased stock.

Here lie opportunities for hatcheries to increase their business and to render a valuable public service at the same time. You can sit down, stand up or change about as you choose. The controls are conveniently placed. . . the steering gear is very fast. . . the front wheels respond quickly to the slightest turn. . . all in all the tractor is remarkably easy to operate.

How about a rhubarb pie? You know rhubarb is supposed to be a fine springtime tonic don't you? Why not make them like that tonic? Here's a delicious one:

Rhubarb Pie.
Line a pie tin with pie dough. Clean and slice enough rhubarb to fill the pie quite full. Pour over this one full cup of thick sour cream. Take 1 1/2 cups sugar and mix with 2 level tablespoons flour and pinch of salt and spread over the cream and rhubarb. Put the top crust in place and bake as for ordinary rhubarb. This is very good.

Auxiliary Holds Health Meeting, Awards Prizes

During the month of April the American Legion Auxiliary throughout the nation observed Child Welfare Week and emphasized in particular child health.

The local unit had a part in this work. Early in the month a prize was offered to the child in the lower grades of our public schools who should make the best health poster. The offer met with a generous response and 64 posters were turned over to the committee to be judged.

Another important department of the Auxiliary work is their Americanization work. This year the local unit offered a gold medal for the best essay in the line of "Citizenship" or "Americanization."

This work was brought to a close with an appropriate "Health" program which was held in connection with the regular meetings of the Legion and Auxiliary at their hall on the evening of May 6th. Several musical selections were given after which the Junior Auxiliary members gave a very interesting little "Health" playlet which was much appreciated. Miss Doris Cushing gave a reading about the flag. The results of the posters and essay contests were then made known. The poster made by Margery Coe was judged to be the best and she was awarded a prize of one dollar.

That of James Cetak was given second place and he received a prize of 50 cents. Several of the posters were on display in the show windows around the square last week. Some very fine posters were made and the judging committee found it a serious matter to decide which were the best.

Changing Glasses

How often should it be done? An EXAMINATION every year is advisable. No change may be necessary. But it pays to know. Those who wear reading glasses only should have a CHANGE every two years or oftener. That keeps the glasses suited to the eyes. Glasses that do not help ENOUGH are only a partial correction. Interview us regularly.

New C & P Automatic Job Press Installed In Quiz Office; Handles Wide Variety of Work

A new Chandler & Price automatic job press, size 14 1-2 x 22, was installed in the Quiz office last week by C. P. Larsen, an erector from the C. I. Johnson Company, St. Paul, Minn., from whom the press was purchased. This new job press is the latest developed by the Chandler & Price people and is the finest press ever brought into the North Loup valley.

A wide variety of work can be handled by this new press. Everything from an envelope to a full page bill can be printed on it at much faster speed than on hand-pressed.

"Nearly human" is the way several Quiz visitors have described the new press after seeing it operate. It is entirely automatic and requires no attention after the form is put on and the run is started. With the installation of this unit the Quiz job department is now equipped to handle every bit of printing used by business men of Ord and surrounding villages.

Friends of the Quiz and particularly users of job printing are invited to come and see this automatic press in operation.

variety of springy ways. On the sash curtains perched a number of gay butterflies. Across the front of the room, on the blackboard, white rabbits played hide and seek with yellow chicks, amid pink and lavender iris. Below them, on the board, was an example of the way children learn to read nowadays. One directly under the other, this is the list I saw: ab, cab, dab, nab, rab, tab, crab, drab, grab, slab, stab. There were several other lists, too.

On the west wall, two huge posters cried: "Keep Clean! A little girl and a little boy, one in each poster, were shown washing themselves, and beneath the girl the verse was:

"Make this your daily duty, For health as well as beauty; Before each meal and after play, Wash all the dirt and germs away."

The boy poster verse began by saying: "Boys who in school and sports excel

This simple rule know very well" and finished up like the other verse. "Marvelous, new, and very effective are the ways in which children learn nowadays. And so painless. You ought to watch them gobble it up. For instance—this class has read 16 books so far this year."

Zola Cetak had lost her place, and did not get to read, so Melvin Holt was called upon. The description of how Lincoln wise, kind and honest, grew up to be a famous lawyer and Indian fighter went on, ending with his election to the presidency.

Erma Covert took up the tale, which was soon ended. She and the rest of the class remembered many facts about Lincoln from their study of him, made at the time of his birthday. And now this class in reading had finished, and were reminded by Miss Swain that those who studied the hardest would get the best test grades.

Another group began to read another type of story. Mildred Mae Moudry read first and probably the best of anyone called on so far. She read easily, with expression, and as rapidly as could be understood with ease. This story was about a little brown, bouncing cub bear who was trying to find out what Christmas meant, but had some trouble because his father, mother, uncle and aunt insisted on sleeping all winter, and besides that, they didn't know anyway!

Jack Loughran, and Angelina Wachtle went on with the story, when their respective turns came. Angelina, just by the way, has beautiful long curls, and lots of them.

War Nurse Sends Sargon to Mother In Far Off London

MRS. A. J. PAYNE

"Sargon did so much for me that I'm sending a treatment to my mother in London, England. I'm a trained nurse and served overseas in the World War, but I never in all my life saw anything like Sargon. I was almost a nervous wreck, was put on a strict diet of milk, for months and I was constantly having to dose myself with drastic laxatives, and finally after long suffering I was down to 95 pounds. I started Sargon about a month ago and now my appetite is splendid and I haven't a trace of indigestion. My whole system is wonderfully strengthened and invigorated, I sleep fine and am gaining weight every day. Sargon Pills overcame my constipation completely."—Mrs. A. J. and Lang were among them. Two of them, Harris and Wade, and Wade. The fifth was unknown to him.

The albino's eyes met Harris steadily as he entered at the head of the Three Bar men.

The pews that the Three Bar had turned into a squatter outfit had been widely noised abroad. From behind the bar Brill covertly studied the man who was responsible for this change. Four men from the Halfmoon D stood grouped at one end of the room. They split up and mingled among the others. Brill moved up and down behind the bar, polishing it with a towel. One after another he drew each of the men from the Halfmoon D into conversation with the Three Bar foreman to determine whether or not they resented his move. There was no evidence of it in their speech.

The men from the two outfits mingled as unreservedly as before, and at last Harris smiled across at Brill.

"Well, have you sized it all up?" he asked.

The storekeeper looked up quickly, knowing that Harris had read his purpose in drawing him into conversation with the four men. He polished the bar thoughtfully, then nodded.

"A man in my business has to keep posted both ways," he said. "I just wanted to make sure. Five years ago every man would have quit the Three Bar like a snake—feeling was that strong. But the boys drift from place to place and they've seen both ends of it. They don't give a d—n one way or the other now. Why should they? They got nothing at stake. Five years ago you couldn't hire a man to ride for you. Now they'll be pouring in asking for jobs—just because they figure there'll be some excitement on tap."

The men from the Halfmoon D were due back and inside of an hour they rode off, leaving only Harris' men and the five card-players in the place. Harris walked over to the table and the Three Bar men shifted positions, slouching sideways at the bar or leaning with their backs to it, alertly watching this unexpected move as the foreman spoke to the albino.

"Let's you and I draw off and have a little talk," he said. "If you can spare the time."

Harris tilted up the corner of his hole-card and peeked at it, then turned his other cards face down on the table.

"Pass," he said, and rose to face Harris. "Lead the way."

Harris moved over to another table and the two men sat down, facing each other across it. He motioned to Evans and Lanky joined them. Harris plunged abruptly into what he had to say.

"First off, Harper, I want you to get it straight that I'm not fool enough to threaten you—for I know that you're not any more afraid of me than I am of you. This is just a little explaining, a business talk, so we'll both know where we stand. It's up to you whether we let each other alone or fight."

"Good start," the albino commented. "Go right on."

"You're playing one game and I'm playing mine," Harris said. "You're in the saddle now—like you have been once or twice before. But you know that the sentiment of a community represses almost overnight. You've stepped out just ahead of a clean-up time or two in the past. I've got a hard bunch of terriers over at the Three Bar and you couldn't ride as without a battle big enough to go down in history. Three Bar war. Either way you'd lose, for it would stir folks up—and when they're stirred you're through. Do you remember what Al Moody did up in the Galtain and when the Con Rillie sprang on the Nations Trail? That will happen again right here."

The two men were leaning toward each other, elbows resting on the table. Harris relaxed and leaned back comfortably in his chair as he twisted a smoke. Evans propped his feet on the table and Harris hung one knee over the arm of his chair. The men at the bar knew that some crisis had been safely passed.

"You talk as if I was running an outfit of my own and had a bunch of riders that could swarm down on you," Harper objected. "I don't even run a brand of my own or have one man riding with me."

"The wild bunch is riding for you," Harris stated. "Suppose that was true," Harper said. "Then what?"

"In one country after the next they've hit the toboggan whenever they get to feeling too strong. If you line up against me that time"

It's so foolish to continue paying rent receipts when for the same amount paid monthly to this association you can buy or build a home.

Let us give you particulars. We'll be glad to do so and there will be no obligation.

has come again. If I get potted from the brush I've hedged to so that those boys that fled over there won't be left in the lurch. There'll be a reward of a thousand dollars hung up for the scalp of each of fifteen men whose names I gathered while I was prowling round—reliable men to carry on what I've begun; and marshals thicker than flies to protect the homestead fillings on the Three Bar."

"Then it might be bad policy to bushwhack you," Harper observed.

"You can go your own gait," Harris said. "As long as you lay off the Three Bar cows. You invited me one time to come down to your hangout in the Breaks. I won't ever make that visit unless you call on the Three Bar first; then, just out of politeness I'll ride over at the head of a hundred men."

"Then it don't look as if we'd get anywhere, visiting back and forth," Harper said.

"Now, don't think I'm throwing a bluff or threatening; I'm just telling you. You could rectify a number of things that could happen to me in return—all of 'em true. I'm just counting that you've got brains and can see it's not going to help either one of us to get lined up wrong. What do you say—shall we call it hands off between the Three Bar and you?"

The albino half-closed his eyes, the pale eyeballs glittering through the slit of his lids as he reflected on this proposition, tapping a careless finger on his knee. He glanced absent-mindedly toward the bar, his thoughts wholly occupied with the matter in hand. A pair of eyes that gazed back at him drew his own and he found himself looking at Bentley, the man who repeated with the Three Bar for Slade. The albino's suspicious were as fluid and easily roused as those of a beast of prey in a dangerous neighborhood. With one of those quick shifts of which his mind was capable he concentrated every mental effort toward linking Bentley with some unpleasant episode of the past. The man had turned away and Harper could only sense a vague feeling that he was dangerous to him, without definite point upon which to base his suspicions. At the sound of Harris' voice he made another lightning shift back to the present.

"Well? Harris asked.

"Why, if I had anything to do with it, like you seem to think, I'd advise against our bucking each other," Harper said. "I'd try to get along—and declare hands off."

He rose, nodded to the two men and returned to the stud game.

"He'll do it, too," Evans predicted.

"There's that much fixed anyway—not a bad piece of work."

The two men returned to the bar and Bill moved close to Harris. For fifteen years he had stood behind that bar and observed the men of the whole countryside at their worst—and best; and he knew men. As well as if he had heard the words of the three at the table he knew that Harris and Harper had reached an agreement of some sort that was satisfactory to both.

Ten minutes later the five men rose to go. Harris looked at his watch.

"I'm off," he said to Evans. "Try and get the boys home by tomorrow morning if it's possible."

He went outside and mounted as the five rustlers swung to their saddles.

"I'm going your way as far as the forks," he said to Harper.

The Three Bar men were treated to the sight of their foreman riding down the road beside Harper at the head of four of the worst rustlers in the state.

And behind the bar Bill moved softly back and forth when not serving drinks, pausing opposite first one group and then the next to dab the polished wood with his cloth, listening carefully to the conversation and gauging it to determine whether the apparent sentimentality of the summer foreman was sincere or would prove different when the men, flushed with undiluted rye, were unrestrained by his presence.

CHAPTER VII

THERE was a new contentment in the eyes of the Three Bar girl as she sat on her horse beside Carlos Deane and looked out down the bottom. A haze of smoke drifted above the little valley of the Crazy Loop. Three mule outfits were steadily ripping up the sage data. The two rode down to the fields with the pungent sage smoke drifting in their faces. Harris joined them, and swept his arm across the stretch of plowed ground.

"Can you picture that covered with a stand of alfalfa hay?" he asked.

The girl nodded.

"Yes—and cut and cured and in the stack yards," she said. "And a straight red run of Three Bar cows wintering under fence."

Harris wondered if her new contentment came wholly from the progress the Three Bar was making or was derived partly from the presence of Carlos Deane. Each man had recognized the other as a contender for the love of the Three Bar girl and during the two days of Deane's stay each one had been covertly sizing up and estimating the caliber of the other man.

For a month prior to Deane's arrival Harris had been occupied from dawn till dark with the details of the new work. A hundred acres of plowed ground lay mellowing under the sun. The cowhands were out working the range in pairs, branding late-born calves and moving drifted stock back to the home range. Forty white-faced bulls had been trailed from the railroad and thrown out along the foot of the hills to replace the other bulls that had been rounded up and brought in. In a few more days the boys would come in from the range and gather at the home ranch, preparatory to going out once more on the beef round-up.

"I'm about to take a vacation," Harris said. "The ranger is coming over and marked out some more trees for us and to run the U. S. brand on the logs we've already cut. I'm going back up in the hills with him to sort out a valley or two for summer range. We can get grazing permits on the forest now—right in the best grass valleys. Each year we'll throw some cows up there to hold our rights. There'll always be good grass on the Forest Reserve, for they won't permit overstocking. The day will come when we'll be glad to have permits to summer-feed a thousand or so head on the Forest. We're thinking maybe you and Deane would like to make the jaunt."

"We'll go," the girl decided.

"We'll start in an hour or two," Harris said. "Just as soon as Wilton turns up. We'll only be gone five days at the most."

"Then I'll stretch my stay to cover it," Deane accepted. "I'll certainly hate to pass up a chance for a trip in the hills."

Calico had sidled off the plowing and was cropping grass at the edge of it. As Harris moved toward him Evans rode down the right-hand slope and the three waited for him.

"Moore and I were working in close and I thought I'd ride over to tell you that the wild bunch has lost a veteran," he said. "Some one put Barton over the Breaks. Barton, whose name was linked with that of Harper, had been found with a rifle ball through his chest. His own gun, found by his outstretched hand, had showed one blackened cylinder, the empty shell sufficient proof that he had fired a single shot at his assailant."

The girl could find no sorrow in her heart over the passing of Barton, but there was an uneasy feeling deep within her—a vague suspicion that she should be able to pronounce the killer's name. This elusive thought was crowded from her mind when the ranger rode up to the Three Bar accompanied by Slade, each man leading a pack horse.

"Slade's going to look over a little territory up on the Forest," Wilton explained. "So we can get it all done over in one trip."

There was no way to avoid this unexpected addition to their party, and in half an hour the little cavalcade filed up a gulch back of the Three Bar, the ranger in the lead with his pack horse. By noon the made the first camp and followed over into a rolling country heavily timbered in the main. In the early evening they rode out on to a low divide and Blind valley showed below them, a broad expanse of open grassland.

"Feed," Harris said. "Feed Wilton of it."

They made camp at the mouth of a branching canyon. Just within the timber.

Harris sensed Deane's attitude toward it all for he knew something of the other man's way of life. Those with whom Deane was thrown most in contact were careful of appearances. It was unheard-of in his code that a girl should jaunt for days accompanied by four men. Here appearances seemed entirely disregarded and no one gave the matter a thought.

The moon swung over the ridges and shed its radiance over Blind valley. Deane motioned to Billie and the girl rose and followed him to the edge of the timber where they sat on a blow-down.

Billie let me take you away from all this," he urged. "And this hard riding and rough man's work. Let me give you the things that will shut out all the hardships. What's the use of going on like this?"

The girl was conscious of a vague sense of disappointment. She reflected that Deane's attitude was that of so many other men. His idea of love synonymous with shelter for the object of it, and his main plea was that of providing her with shelter against all the rough corners of life. Shelter. And what she wanted was to be part of things—to have a hand in running her own affairs.

"I don't want shelter," she said. "And I can't think of anything else till after the Three Bar is a going concern."

The two went back and sat with the others round the dying fire, then all turned in for the night. Billie in her teepee and the men in their bed rolls with no other overhead shelter than the trees.

Near morning Deane was awakened by a clammy dampness on his face. A fine drizzle was falling. Slade was on his feet shoving a few sticks of wood inside the flap of Billie's teepee.

Breakfast was cooked under the dripping trees. The outfit packed up and the little procession fled away toward the next valley—and Carlos Deane proved his real caliber to Harris.

Throughout the day they rode in a fine drizzle; in the timber the wet branches whipped them and sprayed water down the necks of their slickers; in the boggy meadows of the bottoms the mosquitoes hovered round them in humming swarms. At night they rolled camp and slept in damp bed rolls with the clammy mist chilling them. The next day was the same. Deane's neck was raw and chafed from the wet neckband of his flannel shirt and his hands and cheeks were puffed with the bites of the buzzing pests. But he had been cheerful throughout and tired no complaint.

Toward evening of the second gloomy day Harris rode up beside him.

"You'll do," he said.

"How's that?" Deane asked.

"There's maybe one man out of every two hundred that can go along like this and not get to blaming every one in sight for what's happening to him. I don't know as I'd have blamed you any if you'd been cursing us all out for the past two days."

Deane laughed and shook his head.

"I've been rather enjoying it," he said.

"You're just a plain, old-fashioned liar, Deane," Harris returned. "You haven't been enjoying it any more than the rest of us—which is mighty little; but you've got inside enough to let on like it's considerable sport—which is a whole lot."

"No one else has done any better," Deane said. "So why should I?"

"This is everyday business with us," Harris pointed out. "And right unusual for you. There's likely a number of things you do every day back your way, but that doesn't signify that I could amble back there and perform as well as you."

"This Is Everyday Business With Us," Harris Pointed Out.

"I suspect you'd make out all right," Deane said. "Anyway, I'm much obliged for the endorsement."

They camped again in the drizzle but by noon of the following day the sun peeped through. The ranger pulled up his horse as they struck a game trail in the saddle of a low divide, about a dozen horses had been over it a few hours past.

"Some of the albino's layout," Wilton surmised.

They rode out on to a spur and looked down on the low country. Slade and the ranger were going on, the others following. The Three Bar, Harris pointed to the country spread out below them.

"That's the Breaks," he told Deane. "I'll point out the albino's stronghold."

While they're looking I want to talk to you," he said to Billie. "Let's get together. He said when the others had passed on 'Why are you so dead set on making a squatter outfit of the Three Bar? Don't you know the nesters will flock in here and cut the range up as soon as they get a chance?'"

"Not my range," she said. "Outside of the V L and the Halfmoon D there's not another site they can get water for, except maybe a couple of spring gulches where food is stored. I'll hold out long enough to water a forty. So we'll still control our home range."

"But there's a dozen sites down in my range," he said.

"And a dozen small outfits wouldn't run any more cows than you do now," she said. "Why don't you have men live on all those sites?"

"You can't make a contract that will hold a man to turn over his homestead after it's proved up," he said. "Half of them would keep their land."

"Of course," she agreed. "But then you'd have half instead of nothing at all. Do you want the world?"

"I want you," he said. "I'm going to fight these nesters off the Three Bar among the rest. If you don't mind I'll smash the Three Bar into a mess unless you run this d—d Harris off and quit this game."

It was the first time Slade had ever threatened. Her spirits had soared over the prospects of the Three Bar and she was suddenly afraid for her brand if Slade, who had whittled down a dozen outfits at once, should suddenly turn his whole attention to the Three Bar.

"I've got it to do," Slade stated. "Since you've started this deal, there's nesters filing papers on every good site in my range, waiting to rush in as soon as I lose my grip. Do you think I'll let them crowd me out? Not in a thousand years! I'm telling you—I'll break the Three Bar if you keep it up."

"All right," she said. "And what about the homestead laws?"

"I'm the law out here," he asserted.

It came to her that Slade was fighting on the defensive, that he feared to let the Three Bar succeed and set up a precedent in defiance of the signs that dotted the range. "Then it's war," she said. "And you'll go under yourself from your own size, if you haven't the judgment to hedge yourself now like the rest. The Three Bar is going ahead—and we're going to win."

She turned her horse back Slade caught her arm and whirled her around. He jerked a thumb at the two men down the ridge.

"What can Deane, a half-baked boy, give you?" he demanded. "You want an outfit of your own. I'll give you that—the biggest in the state."

She shook her head without answering.

"Then I'll break you," he predicted a second time. He drew a folded slip of paper from his pocket and held it out to her. That's the exchange slip," he said. "It calls for three hundred odd head of mixed stuff. You can send yours over any time. He turned his horse and followed after the ranger while the girl joined Harris and Deane.

Harris had slipped the strap of his glasses and handed them to Deane who had dismounted and was peering off at the spot Harris had pointed out. A few scattered shacks, showing as toy houses from the distance, stood in the center of a broad open basin, sheltered on all sides by the choppy mass of the Breaks. A solid crowd, almost a stockade, stood near the buildings.

"That's Arnold's stockade," Harris explained to Deane. "Arnold was an old-time rustler that finished at the end of a rope fifteen years ago. Now all the drifters in the country stop over here, if they want a place to hole up."

"Can't the sheriff clean them out of there?" Deane asked.

"No man will make a complaint. They can rustle every steer in the country and the losers are afraid to make a report. Every outfit is supposed to protect its own. If Alden should ride to almost any ranch with a rustler's outfit and find them if they'd missed any stock in the last three years, they'd shake their heads and swear that they hadn't lost a hoof. But the Three Bar has a clean page; we're not afraid he'll get a line on us while we have him rustling."

"The first time we get a scrap of real evidence on any man we'll call Alden in."

"You told me the Three Bar herds have been cut in half," Deane said. "How much evidence do you need?"

"I like this," Harris explained. "Rustling is about the hardest thing in the world to prove. There's a dozen ways they can work it. I could catch some of them driving a bunch of Three Bar cattle toward the Idaho line. They'd look up and see me and curdle right on the spot. The rustler would hear of their horses—that they weren't driving them at all. You can't prove a case of rustling even if you see it, unless you actually catch one altering a brand. The only way to get the rustler is to get him to kill him and swear that you run up on him changing a brand. I expect that's what we'll have to do."

Deane looked at the girl to determine how she met this suggestion. He was the server of distance while he rather expected her lips were pressed tight.

"A little of that would help Slade, too," she said. "He told me just now that he'd smash the Three Bar."

The man reflected that this sort of a life would not help but do some of her natural fineness and harden her.

They followed the rims till they had cleared the Breaks, then angled down to the foothills and headed for the Halfmoon D. He held a steady gait until half past sunset and camped in the open near a tiny spring. Again Deane was impressed with the improbability of the girl's being out with two men who loved her, and the thing was an ache that remained with him.

As they sat round the little fire the girl handed Harris the paper Slade had given her. It was a serried bill of sale calling for three hundred odd head of Three Bar cows, the number of numbers of all ages and sexes. In return for the dead animals marked his course. A few more such raids and the Three Bar calf crop would be extremely short the following spring. He rode back to the corral in the early afternoon and looked at Deane.

"Not a trick," he said. "We must expect more or less of that. They'll run in on us wherever there's a chance."

As Harris left them the girl pointed out a horseman riding up the range to a horseman's ride up the range.

"The sheriff," she volunteered, and Deane noted an odd tightening of her lips.

The sheriff came over to Deane and the girl.

"Billie, I expect you can tell me what's doing this killing over in the Breaks," he said.

Her eyes fell under the sheriff's steady gaze. Deane was looking into her face and with a shock he realized that she could pronounce the name of the assassin was as definitely as the sheriff's raised her head with a trace of defiance.

"No, I can't tell you," she said. Deane expected to hear the sheriff's next demand that she divulge the name of the man he sought. It must be easily apparent to the rest of the family, Lou Brandon's wife, Dolly, was a former dance-hall girl of Coldriver, and at Brandon's better half, Belle, was the daughter of a Utah cowboy.

"Ex-schoolteachers," Harris informed. "They marry them so fast that it's hard to keep one on the job instructing the rising generation in the Coldriver school."

Deane shrank from the thought of the Three Bar girl in such a situation. Some way she seemed many shades finer than the rest.

"It couldn't be otherwise," Harris said when Deane expressed this thought. "She was raised at the knee of one of the finest women in the world. I remember her mother myself—a little; and I've heard my own mother sing the praises of Elizabeth Warren a thousand times."

The albino interrupted them.

"Call—how come?" he greeted the three men conversed in the most casual, friendly fashion, as if there had never been a hint of friction between Harris and Harper in the past.

A great voice rose above the buzz of conversation, filling the big room to the very rafters.

"Choose your partners for the dance!" Waddles bellowed from the makeshift platform at one end of the room. "Get your g-a-a-l!"

Deane moved across to the Three Bar girl. There was a general rush for the side opposite the bar where the ladies had gathered. Couples squared off for the Virginia reel, the shortage of ladies rectified by a handkerchief tied on the arm of

"But you don't have to do it?" he urged.

"Neither do you," she said. "I've the same pride in the Three Bar that you have in anything you've helped build up. You'd fight all the harder for one of your schemes that was hard-pressed—and so would I."

She turned to her teepees and ended the discussion, her pride a little hurt that Deane should so little appreciate her work—and the spirit that made her hold on instead of giving up.

That evening they rode up to the Three Bar just as Waddles announced the evening meal. "She's hot!" the big voice wailed. "She's ree-ee-ee!"

The hands were gathering at the ranch, coming in from the range for a frolic before the beef round-up could keep out for another month. Deane's time up and he had planned to leave on the following day.

"You can't do that," Harris said. "Two more days for you. I've given orders not to let you off the place till after the dance at Brille's. This time the range and the big frolic will be staged Thursday night. Then you're free to go."

Deane shook his head and prepared to offer an excuse, but Harris smilingly refused to consider it.

"No use to try," he said. "The boys won't let you go. We've had you out in the range and now I'll try to make amends for it. Billie, don't let him leave the place. I'll detail you as guard."

"You hear the orders," she said. "You're stuck for two more days at the Three Bar whether you like it or not."

"That settles it," Deane said. "I do want to see that dance."

Horne stropped up to them as they reached the corral.

"Another of the wild bunch down here," he said. "Magill this time. Got it just the same as Barton did last week. Shot from in front; one empty shell in his gun. The Breaks is getting to be a hard place to reside in."

Again the girl felt that queer sensation of having expected this to transpire, as if possibly she had helped plan the plan herself and had forgotten it. That night as she lay in her bed her mind was concerned with it and at times the solution seemed almost to reach the surface of her consciousness. Two bedriders came up the lane. As the rustler came he opened windows she heard the name of Magill.

"That's two for Bangs," said a voice she knew for Moore's. The evasive sense of familiarity, of being in some way identified with the rustler, was suddenly clear to her—so clear that she murmured at not having known at once.

Old Little Foster was haunting the Breaks near Arnold's, imposing grim and merciless justice on all whom he suspected of having had a hand in the flush of Bangs.

CHAPTER VIII

HARRIS had left the ranch an hour before daylight, his ride occasioned by the reports of several of the men. In the last three days each couple that worked the range had found one or more of the new white-faced bulls shot down in their territory. The evidence, as Harris pored the scraps together, indicated that a lone rider had made a swift raid, riding for forty miles along the foot of the hills in a single day, that crossed his trail. A dozen dead animals marked his course. A few more such raids and the Three Bar calf crop would be extremely short the following spring. He rode back to the corral in the early afternoon and looked at Deane.

"Not a trick," he said. "We must expect more or less of that. They'll run in on us wherever there's a chance."

life she had loved for long years before Carlos Deane had been even a part of it.

"I can't tell you now," she said as they rode back to the corral. "Not now. It would take something out of me—the vital part—if I had to leave the old Three Bar in the shape it's in today. It's sort of like deserting a crippled child."

The next day her stand was unaltered and in the evening, when the whole Three Bar personnel swung to their saddles and headed for the frolic at Brille's, Deane had been unable to gain her promise.

There were but few horses at the hitch rails when they reached the post. As the Three Bar girl entered at the head of her men she saw Bentley and Carpenter leaning against the bar, well toward the rear of the room.

Within the last week she had heard that Carp, after being left off by Harris, had started up a brand of his own down in Slade's range. Harris' remarks about Slade's mode of acquiring new brand horses cured to her—that he fostered some small outfit for a few seasons, then bought it out. As the men scattered she commented on this to Harris. The Three Bar foreman nodded.

"Likely the same old move," he said. "Like I told you, there's no way to check Slade up on the number of our rebrands. If Carp gets caught, it's his own hard luck."

A dozen men from the Halfmoon D swarmed in the door. Mrs. McVey, the owner's wife, stationed herself in one corner with the Three Bar girl while the men gravitated to the bar.

Harper's men came in, the albino standing half a head taller than any other on the floor, and they mingled with the rest as if their records were the most immaculate of the lot. Two of Slade's foremen arrived with their families.

Bart Epperson, a trapper from far back in the hills, had brought his family to the frolic. Mrs. Epperson was a tiny, meek woman who had but little to say. Her two daughters, in their late teens, had glossy black hair on such skin bones and faint olive tinge of skin which betrayed a trace of Indian ancestry.

Lafe Brandon came at the head of his tribe. Two of his sons were married and living at the home ranch. They came to the dance with the rest of the family. Lou Brandon's wife, Dolly, was a former dance-hall girl of Coldriver, and at Brandon's better half, Belle, was the daughter of a Utah cowboy.

"Choose your partners for the dance!" Waddles bellowed from the makeshift platform at one end of the room

"Ing throng Deane suddenly had a clear view of the open rear door—one brief glimpse before the crowd closed once more and shut off his view. He had an idea that he had seen a face, hazy and indistinct, a few feet outside the door. A wonder if it could be the friend for whom Harris had searched.

"Make the visit soon, Billie," he urged. "It's been a long month since we've had you with us. We thought maybe you'd deserted us back there. How soon will this visit start—and how long will it last?"

"It will start as soon as the Three Bar doesn't need me," she said. "And last a long time."

Again a lane opened through the crowd, affording a view of the door. Deane saw the face outside in the night, and a foot or more below it was some bright object glinting in the dim light which filtered through. The music ceased and the chant of the roulette croupier began, mingling with the smooth purr of the ivory ball. There came a sudden hush from the vicinity of the rear door, a hush that spread rapidly throughout the room, so swift as the perceptions of a frontier gathering.

Old Rile Foster stood just inside, his gun half raised before him. Lang and Lang stood together in the center of the room, apart from the rest and with no others in line beyond them. Rile tossed a boot heel on to the floor and as it rolled toward the two men he shot Canfield through the back of the head. Lang's gun crashed almost with his own, and the bullets sagged under him, and he pitched face down on the floor. His arms sprawled out before him.

The surge of the crowd, pressing back out of line, threw the albino on the edge of it, his big form towering alone.

The old man raised his head from the floor and crooked his wrist with the last of his ebbing strength.

"Four for Bangs," he said, and shot Harper between the eyes.

CHAPTER IX

THE two loggers had finished cutting their quota of timber for the homestead cabins and the white peeled logs lay piled and ready to be smoked down to the Three Bar on the first heavy snows of fall.

The acreage of plowed ground increased day by day and would continue till frost claimed the ground. As soon as the brush was burnt and mule teams pulled heavy log drags across the field, pulverizing the lumps and leveling inequalities of the surface.

Evans had been sent out as foreman of the beef round-up when Harris remained behind to direct the operations at the ranch. A few days before Evans rode down to the beef herd Billie rode Papoose away from the ranch, intending to make a long-deferred visit to the Brandons.

After covering two-thirds of the distance along the foot of the hills to the Y L she saw a rider on a ridge two miles away. She swung Harris' glasses and dismounted to watch for his reappearance. When he came again into her view another man was with him, and they were driving a few head of cows before her.

She mounted Papoose and angled across to intercept their course. As Papoose topped a low hog-back that flanked the valley she saw the men riding toward her down the bottoms, driving twenty or more head of cows. One of the riders threw up his hand, his ears pricking sharply toward her, and the swift upward tilt of the rider's hat, as he swiftly lowered, informed her that she had been sighted. The other man did not look up. They lifted their horses from a walk to a stiff trot and veered past the cows, then looked up as if just aware of her approach, and waited for her. The men were Bentley and Carp.

Bentley greeted her cheerily. Carp nodded without a word.

"What are you two doing up here?" she demanded without parley.

"I repped with the Three Bar wagon and Carp worked with you for a spell, so we sort of know the range," Bentley explained. "Slade sent us to drift any strays back south."

"Those you were driving are Three Bar stuff—every head," she said. "All two-year-old she-stock."

Bentley turned and regarded the little herd they had just passed.

"Them? Show we wasn't driving them?" Bentley denied easily. "They're the valley. A scattered line of riders rode down the bottoms. A cow critter will always move on ahead of a man. We rode on past 'em as soon as we decided to amble along."

She knew that they were on safe ground. Any cow would drift on before a horseman.

"The only way to convict a man on a case like this is to shoot him out of the saddle before he has a chance to pass the cows," she said. "That is what will happen to the next Slade rider that gets noticed with any Three Bar cows moving out in front of him and headed south. You can carry that word to Slade."

She whirled Papoose and headed back for the ranch, the intended visit to the Brandons postponed. Harris was piling brush and the lower field when she arrived and she informed him of the act of the two men.

"I wouldn't put it past Carp," he said. "But I hadn't sized Bentley up just that way. It's hard to tell. If Carp shows up again we'll make him a visit in the middle of the night—he won't trouble us much after that."

"We'd better pay Slade a night visit, too," she said. Her feelings toward Slade had undergone a complete revolution. She knew beyond a doubt that he had been responsible for the raid on Three Bar bulls. The wild bunch would have had no object in such a foray, unless it was from any angle Slade the only one man who could possibly derive any benefit from that. She had come to see that Slade was fighting with his back to the wall—that he had run his course and had come to the end of it. If squatters secured a start in his range, and he considered the act of the Three Bar bottoms. The flashes had ceased except for brief quivering physys of a good pat of mine. I saw him go down, but I couldn't stop right then."

Evans occupied a place in her regard that was perhaps a notch higher than any other of the crew. "Can't we prove anything on Slade—do anything to stop him?" she demanded. "If they've killed him, I'll perjure myself if it's the only way. I'll swear I saw him do the thing himself. He's as guilty as if he actually had."

"I've a hunch or two for Slade," Harris said. "But that way may prove too slow. If Lanky's gone under, I expect I'll have to pick a quarrel with Slade and hurry things along."

"Don't you?" she objected. For all of her confidence in Harris' efficiency in most respects, her implicit belief in his courage, she could not forget the awkward swing of his gun and she had a swift vision of him facing Slade without a chance.

A crash of wagon wheels and the voice of Waddles admonishing the horses interrupted her.

"How is Lanky?" was Harris' first query.

Waddles jerked a thumb over his shoulder. Evans shot once through the arm and a second time through the shoulder, reclined on the triple-thickness bed roll the cook had spread for him on the floor of the wagon.

"He come round fine in a few days if we can keep him off a horse and riding comfortable in the wagon. I've give him orders to that effect."

Evans groaned.

He drives over places I wouldn't cross, he complained. "Did you hold the run?" he asked.

Reassured on this point he flattened out on his pallet and the wagon held on toward the herd.

The weary cows were held over for a day of rest. The night guards noticed that the two men who had welded the stickers out in front were nowhere to be seen.

"Who was the pair out ahead?" Moore asked. "And what swallowed 'em up?"

Harris shook his head.

"Billie and I were the first to make the front," he said.

"Not any," Moore stated positively. "I saw 'em five minutes before you two swung round the point. I was on guard and halfway up the far side. Solli Bar took a header and we delayed me some."

He pointed to the mud crusted on his clothes. Billie knew that he was the lone rider she had seen on the flanks of the herd as she rode away from the wagon. The fall accounted for their rounding the point ahead of him. Moore was looking off across the country.

"Do you mean to tell me you didn't see those two stickers flapping out in front?" he demanded.

"I confess I didn't observe any," Harris said. "You're getting spooky, Moore. A couple of white cows, likely out ahead of the rest."

Moore regarded him curiously.

"Maybe the rain," he said. "Waving their tails in the air."

"And for that reason he was able to hold them down," Harris explained. "It was some of the outfit crooked and wouldn't let his own boys know that much about him, so he'd hire Lang. Harper had brains. He wouldn't have gone in for that. Lang has thrown in against us. He's all bulk and no brains and as savage as an Apache buck. He'll hang himself in the end but in the interim he may hand us considerable grief."

"He was the head of the gang," she said. "The worst of the lot."

"And for that reason he was able to hold them down," Harris explained. "It was some of the outfit crooked and wouldn't let his own boys know that much about him, so he'd hire Lang. Harper had brains. He wouldn't have gone in for that. Lang has thrown in against us. He's all bulk and no brains and as savage as an Apache buck. He'll hang himself in the end but in the interim he may hand us considerable grief."

"The boys held them bunched in good shape."

A hatred of Slade was growing within her. Here, too, was a case where no other would benefit by his own stupidity. If the beef herd could be broken up and sent a delay to round it up in strange range, with the certainty of many cows being missed—case of weakening the Three-Bar.

She had been so absorbed in learning the details of the new work, so elated at its progress, that she had come to believe in its ultimate success. And they had been unmolested for so long a time. Then had come the wanton slaughter of Three Bar bulls and now the stain of the raid on the herd. It was a clueless proof that Slade had done his former wearing-down process as too slow and was out to crush the Three Bar in the speediest possible way through any available means.

Harris, too, was pondering over Slade's change of tactics. He felt assured that Slade's own men had not participated in starting the run. Slade would not let any considerable number of his boys know that much about him. Some of Lang's men had undoubtedly been hired to stampede the Three-Bar herd.

"The very fact that Slade is so bold with it is proof that he sees the necessity of crowding us fast," Harris said. "If we get too big a start he's blown up—and he hasn't anything to work on but a steady crowd. When we expect a steady run of mistakes now or he'll win fast—but we'll win in the end."

She nodded a little wearily for she knew that with Slade throwing all this force against her, the Three Bar would be hard pressed. In addition to this worry her mind was concerned with the riderless horse she had seen as the rode away from the wagon, the huddled figure sprawled in the flat. Every Three Bar rider was a friend, and she hesitated to hear which one of her men had gone down in the raid.

"Who was it?" she asked at last, and Harris divined that she was harkening back to the fallen night guard who had tried to head the raiders alone.

"I've been trying not to think about that," he said. "Lanky was a good pat of mine. I saw him go down, but I couldn't stop right then."

ONE DAY ONLY

Pussyfoot's Sportlog

By GEORGE ROUND, JR.

From all indications the girls play day held at Ord recently under the direction of Miss Helen Eby was a great success. Girl athletes from three schools in this section of the state competed. Helen is more than pleased over the results of the day.

Prof. Charles Bowers of Ord was also enthusiastic over the contests and was one of the strong boosters of the day, according to Miss Eby. Certainly both have played a great part in bringing girls athletics into the Ord schools this year. In future years it should operate on a larger basis. However, it is expected that Miss Eby, present girls physical education director in the Ord schools, will not be back next year and it will take a good woman to fill "Hittiny Hot-tony's" shoes.

She prefers that nickname over others just as Arnold prefers the title "Deacon." Both were christened names by the editor of this column. Helen says thanks but she is entirely welcome.

Lumir Beran will probably be one of the strongest competitors for an "N" award at the University of Nebraska who have enrolled at that school from Ord. He is to enroll next fall, according to present plans. Beran has been a consistent mile performer this year and has won places in that event at the strongest track meets in the state.

With Henry F. Schulte to guide him, he should if he turns out for track make a fair long distance runner. Schulte will be able to give him some valuable pointers which should improve his time in the mile a great deal.

They says Bud Shirley, park custodian, was another reason why the girls play-day held recently in Ord was such a success. Miss Helen Eby, director of the meet, says, "Certainly Bud Shirley helped us a lot in our play-day. It was his corporation that helped to make it possible and to make it successful also."

Again Bud is to be praised for his help in the interests of Ord youths, both boys and girls.

I expect that if you were told that Kenneth Draper used to be one of our Babe Ruth ball players in south Ord that you wouldn't believe it. Perhaps you would think that such a statement should go in Ripley's column. Nevertheless, it is the truth. He used to swing a wicked bat and many a game he would break up with his long homeruns. Then Eric Babe Erickson used to be a member of the old Spud nine. He even played on a fateful Sunday when the Ord club played Joint at Joint and were badly outclassed. The boys were a bit wobbly that day, Erickson says in a sincere manner. Perhaps he is right. Among the other has-beens is Cash Rathbun, Springdale farmer. He used to be quite the classy first baseman in the community ball. . . .

Roger Soto, seven year old or so son of Mr. and Mrs. O. Soto of Ord, gives promise developing into a great little ball player. It is all he can talk about. . . . Ord baseball fans will probably remember a young man by the name of Davidson who performed at third base for the Varsity Sports of Lincoln here last year against the Ord Hermits. He played outstanding ball the day they beat Ord with Clair Sloan, varsity football player at the University of Nebraska, on the mound. Now Davidson is playing third base for the Nebraska university baseball team and appears to be one of the best hot corner guards in the Big Six conference. He is a powerful hitter and fields his position well. He makes a good team-mate for "Army" Armatis, former Ord star.

Then there is Glenn Ullstrom who played for the Varsity Cleaners last year also who is now playing first for Nebraska. He is one of Coach Rhodes' most consistent players.

Organization of a county Junior American Legion baseball league in Howard county indicates that they will have plenty of Legion ball there this summer. Practically every town in the county is entered in the league. The county champion will play in the district tournament which will probably be held in Ord or Comstock early in July.

There are hardly enough towns in Valley county to organize such a league. Baseball stars from Elyria, Arcadia, and North Loup will probably perform on the Ord team in the district tournament in an effort to bring the championship to Ord again this year.

Bill Heuck is the local Legion post athletic officer. Chet Carkoske is another former Ord high school graduate who has gone out and made good in his chosen profession, that of coaching. He is now located at Hartington, Nebraska. This has been first year there but he has been re-elected at an advance in salary for next year.

While in Ord high, Carkoske was probably the greatest lineman to ever wear a Red and White uniform. He played tackle position and won all-state mention by his remarkable playing. After graduating from the local high school he enrolled at the University of Nebraska where he was conceded a great chance of making for himself along the side of other great athletes at the school. However, heart trouble made it impossible to compete after his freshman year.

Ord fan believe that had Carkoske the heart, he could have made a name for himself in the athletic world.

After graduating from Nebraska, he coached at Alma, where he turned out winning basketball and football teams. His teams at Hartington this year were among the outstanding ones in the state. His basketball team competed in the state high school tournament only to be put out by the class B champion Barneston.

Manager Arnold's catching staff should be bolstered up considerably if Chet Carkoske returns home to report as has been indicated by early rumors in Ord. Without doubt Chet would be a valuable addition to the Mustangs. The Quiz said last week that Chet played on the agriculture college team which is evidently true. To say that they play terrible ball out here at the "cow college" as some people are prone to call it, would be doing the college an injustice. They have a good ball team that plays a regular schedule of games. In normal years they win the big majority of their games.

This year they have a good team in the field. Fairchild, varsity hurler, pitches for the ag team at intervals to indicate the strength of the team. Certainly Chet Carkoske should know something about baseball if he performed on the ag college team as it appears that he did.

Ord people are anxiously awaiting to see if Big Joe Krejci will make the state league this year. Evidently he has played his last game with Ord until fall. He is expected to report to York club each week end.

Unless some unforeseen obstacle stands in his way, Krejci should make the state. He has the fielding ability and is an excellent hitter. I don't believe there is any doubt that Joe would easily lead the local league in hitting if he were to play all summer. As it is he probably has the highest percentage in the two games in which he performed in an Ord suit.

Elmer Skov, budding young journalist in the embryo, asked me recently if I was satisfied with the explanation of affairs on his recent Ord visit as explained through his sport column in the "Rag," official student publication at the University of Nebraska. Evidently my friend Skov thought it was hard pill to swallow, in attempting to say that he thought Ord and the Quiz were great but that his experience null and void.

The Nebraska sports editor says through his column that I write reams and reams of copy for the Quiz each week. Of course, he was on the inside once and knew how much copy I send to the Quiz. However, Quiz readers are not supposed to know that Gene rejects about half of my stuff each week.

Announcement is forthcoming from Comstock that the district Junior American Legion baseball tournament may be staged in that city this year. Ord will probably be a member of the district in which Comstock will be located and without doubt will be bidding for the tournament site also.

Perhaps Ord has more accommodations for the staging of such a district tournament and it is considered probable that the tournament will be awarded to the local post if they care to sponsor it again this year.

Only two teams, Ord and Broken Bow, competed in the sixth district meet here last year. More teams are expected to enter the race this year. Howard county is reported to have a league of six teams playing regular schedules while Loup City is expected to put a team in the field this year. Comstock is a cinch entrant. Nothing definite is known in regard to Broken Bow's plan to enter although it is understood that they will be back again this year.

A trip to Omaha to compete in the state meet awaits the winner of the local district tournament. Already Ord boys are planning to make the trip and win the state title.

It appears as though Round's Irish Spuds, Ord baseball team, have drifted far and near and it seems impossible to organize for the coming year.

For the past several years, the Ord team has been organized and playing surrounding town teams. In the majority of their games they were victorious each year. Jim Covert, Harry Wolf, and Ed Furtak, all members of the Ord Mustang club, are former Spud members.

When first organizing the Ord team had for its motto, "they're hard to skin." Members of the team objected to the motto and it was changed later to a secret one. Everyone knew they were hard to skin so why advertise it was the argument put up by members of the team.

Even "Dale" Hip Norman used to perform for the Ord team. When he was in his prime, Dale was a great outfielder, he usually fielded at least five hundred and hit even less. With Vernie Andersen, his stable-mate, Norman used to pull numerous Nick Altrock stunts on the ball field. However, Dale improved so fast that the rest of the club failed to keep up with him so he was released. "Those were the great old days," Dale declares.

Lumir Beran, Coach Joe Krejci's one man Ord high school track team, performed in great fashion at the state high school track and field meet held in Lincoln last week when he came through to win a third place in the mile run in group three. Beran ran a nice race.

Running against some of the fastest milers at the state meet, he lost his competitors by forty or fifty yards up until the last hundred yard stretch to the tape. Lack of sprint caused him to place third instead of first. He had

WHAT IS HELL? Just what is meant by this word "Hell"? They say sometimes "It's cold as Hell," Sometimes they say "It's hot as Hell," When it rains hard, "It's hell," they cry, It's also "Hell" when it is dry.

They "Hate like Hell" to see it snow. It's "A Hell of a Wind" when it starts to blow, Now, "How in Hell" can anyone tell "What in Hell" they mean by this word "Hell."

This married life is "Hell" they say When he comes in late there is "Hell to pay," It's "Hell" when the kid you have to take to school, When he starts to yell, It's a "Hell of a note."

It's "Hell" when the doctor sends his bills For "A Hell of a Lot" of trips and pills. When you get this you will know real well Just what is meant by this word "Hell."

"Hell yes!" "Hell no!" and "Oh, Hell," too! "The Hell you don't," "The hell you do," And "What in Hell" and "The Hell it is," "The Hell with yours," and the "Hell with his!"

Now "Who in Hell!", and "Oh, hell, where!" And "What the hell do you think I care?" But "The Hell of it is," "It's sure We don't know "What in the Hell" is "Hell," —from "Idle Thoughts of An Idle Fellow."

Lee Chatfield, Ord high school graduate, now teaching at Dunham, Neb., had one of the outstanding long distance men in the state meet. Chatfield's boy easily won the group one mile run. While attending Ord high Chatfield was not a star athlete performer, if he competed at all, but studied coaching at University of Nebraska where he later attended. This is his first year at Dunham as coach and principal. He is expected to return to the Duncan schools next year. Duncan is located near Columbus.

Burwell and St. Paul high schools, prospective members of the proposed Loup Valley athletic conference, made good showings at the state high school track meet. Both competed in group two of the championships and were near the top in final point total standings. Jimmy Martin, stellar St. Paul athlete and quiet well known in Ord for his basketball playing, was among the outstanding hurdlers at the meet. He won both the highs and lows in his division and looked "sweet" in winning them. His time of 16.5 in the highs on Saturday was fast considering the condition of the track.

Martin is expected to graduate from St. Paul this year. He will be missed in athletic circles in the Loup valley next year. Speaking of track brings one to thinking of Harold Schaffner, former North Loup star athlete, who is one of the best Peru Normal track men this year. At a recent dual meet between Peru and Cotter, he was the outstanding performer. He won the high hurdles and the pole vault and placed in the low sticks.

The North Loup athlete worked in Ord last summer in a prominent hardware store. It is not known whether he will return this summer or not. If so, he would make a valuable outfielder for Manager Arnold's ball team. He plays a nice game of ball in the field, covers lots of territory and is a pretty good hitter. Cop on to "Schaff," Arnold.

Although North Loup high school had a fair track team this year, they were not represented at the 1930 state meet. Comstock was another school from this section of the state that was not represented at the state meet this year.

Both schools have had record breakers. One North Loup boy, "Buckshot" Fuller holds the present shot record while Gene Gilmore, Comstock youth, holds the state javelin record. Neither were broken this year. Fuller's record in the shot is expected to stand for years to come.

Beran Places Third At State Track Meet

Lumir Beran, only track athlete who represented Ord high school in the State track and field meet at Lincoln last week, won third place in the only event in which he competed, the mile run. It was the first time in some years that an Ord athlete placed in this annual event. Beran and Coach Krejci drove to Lincoln last Friday, returning to Ord Sunday.

Honeycutt at Gordon. John Honeycutt, former North Loup boy, will hurl this year for the fast Gordon semi-pro team. He signed up with this outfit some weeks ago. Honeycutt pitched a few games for North Loup last year and later pitched for O'Neill.

J. Pluvius Does His Stuff, Ball Games Called Off

J. Pluvius was on the mound in every Loup Valley league town Saturday and Sunday and so successfully did he cause steady downpours that every league conflict was postponed. Ord was scheduled to meet Scotia, Arcadia would have played Ansley and Litchfield and Broken Bow were slated to tangle. These games will be played off later as double-headers.

The feature game next Sunday will be one of those frays that cause the natives to nibble on their finger-nails. It will be played at Litchfield between Manager Arnold's Mustangs and Beryl Lang's Litchfield team. This city will bring together two teams that are tied for leadership in the league and the outcome of the battle will be watched with interest by fans in all towns in the league. Probably a large crowd from Ord will accompany the Mustangs on their jaunt.

Other league games will be played at Scotia and Arcadia. The Ansley team journeys to the former town and the Broken Bow Indians will try conclusions with the Cadettes.

The dope bucket may be due for a big upsetting Sunday. Fans give Litchfield better than an even break to defeat Ord and prophesy that Arcadia and Ansley will win. Beryl Lang's pitching ability is conceded to be Litchfield's biggest asset but should the Mustang hitters start finding him, the stuff will be off as far as Lang is concerned.

On paper, Arcadia has a better team than Broken Bow. In Finch and Megrue the Valley county village has about the classiest battery in the league and with Hudson, Belinger, Burns and Bulger the Cadettes have a snappy infield. If the Bow Indians win it will be because of the pitching of their new finger, Gene Packard, and this very thing may happen. The Arcadia hitters are "in and outers" and may fold up before the slants of the former big time hurler.

Scotia's "kid" team should be easy for the Ansley aggregation ago.

Hilltop Jabbers

The pupils and their teacher, Ruth Flynn went on a hike Saturday, going a few miles where they enjoyed a marshmallow and Weiner roast and had their lunch. After playing a few games they hiked back to school on account of the rain.

Joe Urbanovsky, Josephine and Magdaline Konkoleski and Maxine Jablonski received poem booklets for perfect attendance for 160 days.

Margaret Flynn and Richard Philbrick visited school Saturday. The pupils of district 60 have made much improvement in their Palmer method writing this year. Maxine Jablonski, Magdaline Konkoleski, Joe Urbanovsky and Guy Martinson have received their progress pins. Josephine Konkoleski has received her students final certificate and Marshall Sorensen has received his merit button.

Miss Flynn and her pupils expect to have a big picnic Friday, May 16, it being their last day of school. It was not decided whether the picnic would be held at the school house or down by the river. Fred Martinson, Ivan Whitlow and Frank Golka are among the ones who called at the Frank Konkoleski home last week to get some seed corn.

Joe Urbanovsky spent several days of last week plowing at John Urbanovsky's.

Mutt Philbrick was a Friday but Manager "Hook" Duryea may have something to say about it. He pitched wonderful ball against Broken Bow two weeks ago and if he does as well Sunday its anybody's ball game.

Ord fans are hoping that Joe Krejci will remain with the Mustangs for this Sunday's game. He is expected to report to the York State league club this week, but inasmuch as he will have another week's work in the Ord schools before going to York for the summer he may secure a "stay of execution" and remain with the Mustangs for this game.

Manager Arnold is planning to start Baker against Litchfield, holding Hill in reserve to finish the game. Otherwise, the Ord line-up will be about the same as the team that defeated Ansley two weeks ago.

visitor at the Frieda Philbrick home. Jerry Jablonski was a Sunday afternoon visitor at Frank Konkoleski's.

Several of the farmers in this vicinity started planting corn last week. The rain that fell here the latter part of the week will delay farm work for a few days.

Chris Sorensen and son, Alvin were Friday callers at the Joe Jablonski home. Mrs. Frieda Philbrick and daughter spent Tuesday afternoon with the latter's mother, Mrs. Thorne of Ord.

Frank Konkoleski was a Tuesday caller at Jerry Jablonski's. Alex Iwanski and daughter, Sophie Gross were Sunday visitors at the James Iwanski home. Mrs. Steven Jablonski had the misfortune of running a nail into her foot one day last week.

Frank Konkoleski made a business trip to Ord Monday forenoon. Joe Urbanovsky called at the home of Jerry Jablonski Thursday. Steven Jablonski and sons were callers at Frank Konkoleski's Thursday.

Jerry Jablonski spent Monday at the Steve Jablonski home. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Konkoleski were callers at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Jablonski of Ord Saturday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Chris Sorensen were shopping in Ord Monday afternoon. M. G. Kusek trucked hogs for James Iwanski Monday.

Stan Petska called at Frank Konkoleski's Saturday to have some corn ground for feed.

Fred Dowhower was hauling alfalfa from Jerry Jablonski's Monday.

Stanley Petska was dragging roads in this vicinity the first part of this week.

"Then what's the object of this bounty?" Carson insisted. "That's aimed at the doubtful folks." Brill stated. "Folks that was on the fence—like you. This death list makes them spook and they turn into good little citizens in one round of the clock. It leaves the worst ones outside without a friend. Every one lined up solid behind the law. Public sentiment will start running strong against those outside. Then it'll be easy for the sheriff and a bunch of deputies—like you—to clean the country up from end to end, with the whole community backing your play." Carson considered this for some time.

"Well, I can furnish the deputies," he said at last. "Boys that are strong for law and order from first to last."

"I've got about all I need," the sheriff said. "A dozen or so. Mostly old friends of yours. I've picked 'em up on and off in the last two weeks. They're strong for upholding the last letter of the law—just like you said."

"A dozen?" Carson asked. "How'll you raise the money to pay that many at once?"

"I'm sort of expecting maybe the Three Bar will make up the deficit," Alden said. "It's cheaper than paying rewards. That's another reason I don't think Cal had a hand in this blackmail report."

The storekeeper grinned. "Surely not. Surely not. I'd never suspect him of that," he said. "But all the same it's working just as well as if he really had."

The first warm days of spring had drawn the frost from the ground. Billie rode beside Harris down the lane to the lower field. A tiny cabin stood completed on every filling

Treble Superphosphate Experiments Being Made This Year in 14 Counties

Farmers in fourteen Nebraska counties are co-operating with the agriculture college, Lincoln, and the Nebraska State Farm Bureau Federation this year in tests to determine the value of treble superphosphate fertilizer. According to announcement forthcoming from the college this morning, a nationally known copper mining company is also co-operating in the tests as are county extension agents in the fourteen counties. Counties who have tests running include Dodge, Saunders, Douglas, Washington, Burr, Colfax, Holt, Cuming, Madison, Clay, Thayer, Webster, Buffalo, and Dawson. P. H. Stewart and J. C. Russell of the agronomy department at the college are in charge of the tests. This is the first year such experiments have been conducted in Nebraska.

Those in charge of the tests teams were steadily breaking out another strip.

"Almost a year," she said, referring to the commencement of the new work.

"Just a year today," Harris corrected, and he was thinking of the day he had first met the Three Bar girl. "This is our anniversary, sort of."

She nodded as she caught his meaning.

"The anniversary of our partnership," she said. "You told me there were millions of miles of sage just outside. And millions of cows—and girls."

"Later I told you something else," he said. "And I've been meaning it ever since. The road to the outside is closed. If I was to start now I'd lose the way."

She pointed down the valley as a drove of horses moved toward them under the guidance of a dozen men. The hands would start breaking out the remuda the following day. The spring work was on.

"Or to a running start on an other year," he said. "And sure to hold our lead. From today on out you and I'll be a busy pair," he prophesied.

His prediction proved true. The Three Bar was a beehive of activity and it seemed that the hours between dawn and dark were all too short for the amount of work Harris wished to crowd into them.

The cowhands were breaking out the horses in the morning while the acreage of plowed land in the lower fields steadily increased.

The day that Evans led the men out on the calf round-up, the mule teams made their first trip across the plowed land with the drill.

The fields were being seeded to alfalfa and oats so that the faster growing grain might shade and protect the tender shoots of hay.

The grain ripened it would be cut green for hay, cured and stacked.

Early rains had moistened the fields and they were faintly green with tiny shoots of oats. These thickened into a rank velvety carpet while the homesteaders were hauling a hundred loads of rocks to form a crude dam across the stream below the take-out. The water was gradually seeping to the almost flush with the top of the head gate.

The gates were lifted and the diverted waters sped smoothly down the new channel to carry life to a portion of the sagebrush desert.

As the tangible result of the work became more apparent, Harris' confidence increased. There was now more than plowed ground to work on; crops to be trampled at a time when they would not lift again to permit of mowing; fences to be wrecked so that range stock might have access to free fields.

Little Warren half-closed her eyes and smiled at the prospect of "gilding green" in the bottom. How many times she had stood here in the past with old Cal Warren while he visioned this very picture which now unrolled before her eyes in reality; the transfer of the Three Bar flat from a desert waste to a scene of abundant fertility under the reclaiming touch of water.

It was a quiet picture of farm life if one looked only upon the blooming fields and took no account of the raw, barren foothills that flanked them—the gaunt, towering range behind. She found it difficult to link the scene before her with the desolity of a few months past.

The killing of Bangs and little Foster's consequent grim retreat; the raid on the Three Bar bulls and the stampede of her trail herd; all these seemed part of some life so long in the past as to form no part of her present.

No man in the field ever strayed far from the rifle which was part of his equipment. But even this was an evidence of vigilance which had met her eye every day for months and had ceased to impress.

They walked to the near edge of the field and Harris dropped a hand on her shoulder and stood looking down at her.

"Billie, don't you think it's about time you were finding out what Judge Colton wants?" he asked. "He's been right insistent on your going back to confer with him."

The girl shook her head positively. Two months before Judge Colton had written that he must advise with her on matters of importance and suggested that she come on at once. Harris had urged her to go and almost dally referred to it.

"I can't go now," she said. "Not till I've seen one whole season through. When the first Three Bar crop is cut and in stack I'll go. All other business must wait till then. You two can't drive me away till after I've seen that first crop in the stack."

Pussyfoot's Sportlog

By GEORGE ROUND, JR.

Quite proudly I say that Herbert L. Cushing, former superintendent of schools at Ord, but now director of certification in the state department of public instruction at Lincoln in the state house, is one of my sportlog readers. He recently told me that he enjoyed reading the column.

Cushing was probably one of the best superintendents to ever govern the schools in Ord. Above all, he was exceptionally well liked by all his students, both in the grades and in high school. He has made a name in educational circles since leaving Ord and is well known over the state.

The former Ord man is an enthusiastic track fan. He recently told me that he believed he was getting to like track as well as football which is saying a lot. Bert was one of the finish judges at the recent state high school track and field meet held at Lincoln. He saw Beran win third in the mile run in Group three and thought he ran a nice race.

Speaking of Mr. Cushing reminds me that he has two boys, Tommy and Herby, who may some day be outstanding athletes at Lincoln high. Both aspire to all-around performers. Herby says he wants to be a pole vaulter. Tommy is a good mate for Herby but doesn't know what he wants to specialize in as yet. Whether either boy ever makes a name for himself on the athletic rolls, I would be willing to wager a few "shekels" that both will at least be enthusiastic sport fans.

From Syl "Silly" Furtak, I learn that brother Al is playing ball at Benkelman where he is employed in a bake shop. Syl says Al is pitching for the town team there. Al got some good pointers on successful pitching from Hank "Army" Armatis last summer, Sylvester recently told me.

Loup City is to be represented in Junior American Legion baseball this year with a team, according to reports coming forth from the Sherman county metropolis. It will be the first year that Loup City has actively engaged in Legion competition.

Entrance of Loup City in the field probably means that there will be another team in the sixth district where Ord is apt to be. Local officials are making preparations for bringing the district tournament to Ord as it was held here last year on a successful basis.

Practice games between Ord and Loup City may be arranged before tournament play. Bill Hiley, the Ord Legion post athletic officer and in charge of the Ord team this year. He predicts a bright season for the local lads.

I often wonder why Ord cannot produce athletes good enough to come to the University of Nebraska and make a letter in a major sport. There never has been an Ord boy awarded an "N" that I know of and it is a mystery to me why there haven't been a few able to letter at Nebraska.

The answer is probably unknown. However, it is quite true that most of the good athletes that Ord high turns out, if she turns out any that can be called good in a statewide sense, come from smaller state normal colleges and not at Nebraska.

Take "Doc" Wise for example, he would probably have lettered at Nebraska but went to Creighton instead. Then there is Archie Mason, stellar football star at Ord high school, who enrolled at Kearney Normal where he starred in football. Other outstanding college men to be developed at Ord are few. Nebraska university has received none.

It is quite true that many outstanding athletes turned out at Ord fall to go on to institutions of higher learning. "Brother" Lashmett is an example of an Ord high athlete who might have made good in college football, at least at a normal school.

This year Ord is graduating no outstanding athletes who can hope to letter at Nebraska outside of Lumir Beran and perhaps Ervie Lashmett. Beran might letter in track if given two years of experience and training under Coach Henry F. Schulte.

Lashmett, I believe, would make a splendid college basketball prospect if he were to attend an institution of higher learning. Perhaps with a year at a small college, he might enroll at Nebraska and make a formidable showing.

Probably Chauncey Hager has been the only Ord high graduate to letter in any sport at the University of Nebraska. He lettered in rifle at the university for two years and captained the team during his last two years in school. Hager is now attending the medical college at Omaha and as a result is ineligible for rifle competition. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Hager of Ord.

Again speaking of former Valley county high school athletic stars reminds me of "Cap" Williams, former North Loup all-around performer. Now he is varsity letter man in football and basketball at Kearney Normal where he captained

BOW INDIANS WILL APPEAR HERE SUNDAY

Tribe to Be Mustangs' Foes In Bussell Park Clash; Western Leaguer Will Hurl.

Old Man Weather being willing, Ord baseball fans will be privileged to see a red hot clash at Bussell park here Sunday when the Broken Bow Indians, new pitcher and everything, "shoot the works" in an attempt to displace the Mustangs from their position at the peak of the Loup Valley league. Just how successful they are will depend a lot on whether three successive rainy Sundays have dampened the Mustangs' enthusiasm for diamond combat. If the Mustangs haven't turned into plow horses during the floods the Indians may find themselves in for a large afternoon.

A new hurler will take the mound for the Indians Sunday, one Harry Smith by name. While his name is far from original he is said to have a large variety of stunts over which he exercises perfect control. Threats are freely made that the Ord Mustangs will be lucky if they garner five or six hits Sunday from the offerings of Mr. Smith, who formerly toiled for the Chicago White Sox, later for the Lincoln Western league club and has since pitched for state league and independent aggregations over the state.

Mustang work-outs lately have been enthusiastic affairs, Manager Charley Arnold reports, and he doesn't seem a bit doubtful about the outcome of Sunday's game.

The Ord lineup will probably consist of Wolf, c, either Baker or Burrows, p, Athey, 1b, Hall, 2b, Johnson, ss, Covert, 3b, Heuck, lf, Krejci, cf, and Hill, rf. If Burrows gets the starting assignment on the mound, Baker may be seen at second instead of Charley Hall.

This lineup should contain plenty of hitting power. So far Athey is the only Mustang who hasn't broke into the safe hit column and fans who remember him from other years are confident he will strike his stride soon. Harry Wolf got his first single in the Ansley game as did Bill Burrows but all other players have hit safely more than once in both games—the local boys have played.

Other league games Sunday will see Ansley at Litchfield and Scotia at Arcadia. Anything may happen in these clashes but Arcadia should beat Scotia and Litchfield is favored to win over Ansley.

Bible, Gish Pleased With Ord Golf Links

A foursome at the Ord golf course last Friday was composed of Dana X. Bible, head football coach at the University of Nebraska, Herbert L. Gish, director of athletics there, and two Ord men, M. F. Seranek and Wm. Heuck. The two Nebraska officials were en route to Burwell where they assisted with the Wrangler track meet Friday afternoon. Both were out in their praises of the Ord golf course, Bible being particularly pleased with the hill hole.

Beran Wins Half, Second In Mile At Burwell Meet

Lumir Beran, star Ord high long distance runner, surprised local fans last Friday when he won first place in the half-mile run and second place in the mile event at the annual Wrangler meet at Burwell. Beran usually is more proficient as a miler but got off to a slow start Friday and was edged out at the tape by Rowse of Burwell. He came through to an impressive win in the half, taking the lead from the start and finishing strong. St. Paul won the meet at Burwell. The Ord band and a large crowd of local fans attended.

Mitchell to Giants. Clarence Mitchell, former Franklin, Nebr., pitcher, was traded to the Giants this week by the Cards. He has been in the majors since 1916, starting with the Reds.

the 1930 football team. Ord sport fans remember Williams' performance while he was attending North Loup high. It must be remembered that North Loup has turned out some mighty sweet athletes in the past few years. She gave three of the greatest athletes she had to Wesleyan university where they performed in great style. They were Don Manchester, Charley Clark, and Dale Cress. All were good athletes. Probably Manchester was the outstanding one of the trio. At least he got more recognition in the conference, being picked as an all-conference man two years or so. All three were football players.

Mexico, Mo. Student Wins R. O. T. C. Meet

Donald Anderson, grandson of Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Miller of Burwell, won distinction recently when he was declared the winner of a R. O. T. C. rifle contest among military schools in which 63 schools participated. Young Anderson is a student at Mexico, Mo. He won with a score of 196 out of a possible 200. A recent issue of the St. Louis daily papers carried pictures of Anderson. His father, R. B. Anderson, is in the hotel business in St. Louis. The Millers, accompanied by their daughter Mrs. Iola May Fetz, are leaving this week for a visit with relatives in Missouri and Illinois and may spend most of the summer there. Their son Dudley Miller recently removed to a fruit farm down in that country and is said to be very much pleased with his new location. He had been a resident of Burwell for a long time, was employed by the Burlington and the whole family is well known in Ord.

Loup Valley League Chatter

Hope is being expressed by Manager Arnold and other local baseball fans that old J. Pluvius will now turn his water faucet off and depart. Three of Ord's five scheduled Loup Valley league games have had to be postponed because of rain. This will mean three double-headers for Ord a little later in the season, one at Arcadia on July 6, another at Ord on July 20 and Scotia competing, and the third at Litchfield July 27.

Hank "Little Army" Armatis, who pitched for the Ord Hermits last year, would like mighty well to appear in the Mustang lineup this year. He may do so, too, if he can land a job in this vicinity when his work at the University of Nebraska is finished next week. Hank has been pitching good ball in the Big Six this spring and would be an asset to the Mustangs.

The team batting average of the Ord league team is only .283 in two games. The boys are planning to raise it at the expense of the Indians Sunday.

Wonder what was the matter with Gene Packard, who hurled Broken Bow to a victory over Scotia a couple of weeks ago? He has been released by Manager Ernest Deal of the Broken Bow Indians and Harry Smith, former hurler for Lincoln in the Western League, has been signed in his place. Smith will hurl his first game for the Tribe against Ord at Bussell park Sunday.

Lloyd "Buster" Betts, who played for Arcadia in the league last summer, is cavorting around second base for the York state league club this year. If he doesn't make the grade at York he probably will don an Arcadia ball suit later in the season.

Joe Krejci drove to York last Saturday to try out with the state league club but it rained all day and he had his trip for nothing. He will finish his school work in Ord Friday, will play his final game with the Mustangs Sunday and will report to York on Monday.

Manager Chas. Arnold has received a letter from Chet Carlock, Elvira boy who has been coaching at Hartington. Chet expects to return home May 30 and tells Arnold that he'll help the Ord team all he can. Chet caught for the ag college team for two years.

"Peanuts" Jensen has been looking good in the center garden and after Krejci leaves he may be seen at that position on the Ord team. A youngster who has shown a lot of stuff is Everett Lashmett and if he continues showing up for practice he may make a regular before the season is over.

Hungry Men Like Meat!

Men who are tired, hungry, with vitality low after a hard day's work, instinctively prefer a meal centered around a thick, juicy steak. Why? Because steak is a MAN'S food. Ask your husband what kind of meat he prefers. Nine times out of ten he'll answer "steak." Let us select for you a piece of steak that is guaranteed to please him.

PECENKA & PERLINSKI

C. A. Potter, Litchfield, secretary of the Loup Valley league, expects to release batting and fielding averages for all teams after games next Sunday. Although the Ord team average is under three hundred it is expected the Ord club will be well toward the top as pitchers have rounded into shape faster than the hitters in other league towns.

The Parent-Teacher association met at the school house Monday evening with about fifty present. The members, during their business session, voted to put cement walks about the school building. The patrons and students enjoyed a picnic dinner at the school house Friday celebrating the close of another term. As the day was chilly and the men did not wish to miss a day which could be spent in the fields, all left shortly after dinner but all enjoyed the short social hour. My Own Column

By H. D. Leggett

If it doesn't get warmer my nice garden won't grow and if it gets a little colder it will be frozen.

Saw a friend carefully picking dandelion blossoms the other day and when I suggested that it would be more likely to kill them if he would dig them out he just grinned.

A lot of cleaning up was done last week but the work should not stop just because last week was designated as clean-up week. Any time is open season on trash and unsightly places.

The things we get for nothing are usually the most expensive after all.

There is a great variety of opinions regarding what heaven is like. One man sees it as a place where he can lay abed as long as he wants in the morning; another thinks all he will have to do is loaf around and listen to the music. I suppose Fred Howard thinks that instead of a land of milk and honey it will be a place of beer and pretzels and Ole Buck is looking forward to an eternity of sitting around and smoking his pipe, though why either one of them would ever expect to get there is more than I can guess.

I have been solicited many times to subscribe to oil well promotion propositions and have never done so but when I see my Ord friends who have invested in these schemes grow fat bank accounts from the returns I regret that I didn't get in while the getting was good.

For to these many years now we have been promised a road through the chalk hills and the promises of former years are being repeated this season and it is said the contract for grading the road from Junction and Colesfield will be let at the June letting. I have feared and still fear that we will again be put off with some excuse about a corner stake being driven crooked or some equally wretched reason why the job is being put off again. I believe if 25 Valley county people who want to see this road built and all completed this year would write the governor right now demanding it, we would get results. Others who want roads are getting right down to Lincoln and making their wants known. When the Ord job man has a dozen rush jobs on the hook and one or two of the business men waiting for their work come in often and remind him of their great need, those men usually get their work first. It is pretty hard for Jones to grab Bill's job and go to work on it while Hank is watching him so he just naturally works on Hank's job, at least while he is being watched. Cochran is no doubt made of about the same kind of clay.

The following, headed Life, was written by someone. Anyhow it is pretty good and I didn't write it and don't know who did:

"Man comes into this world without his consent, and leaves it against his will. During his stay on earth his time is spent in one continuous round of contraries and misunderstandings by the balance of the species.

In his infancy he is an angel; in his boyhood he is a devil; in his manhood he is everything from a lizard up; in his duties he is a fool; if he raises a family he is a chump; if he raises a small check he is a thief, and the law raises the devil with him; he is a poor man he is a poor manager and has no sense; if he is rich, he is dishonest, but considered smart; if he is in politics, you can't place him, as he is an undratable citizen; if he goes to church he is a hypocrite; if he stays away from church he is a poor sinner; if he donates to foreign missions he does it for a show; if he doesn't, he is stingy and a tight wad.

When he first comes into the world, everybody wants to kiss him, before he goes out, they want to kick him.

If he dies young, there was a great future before him; if he lives to a ripe old age, he is simply in the way and living to save funeral expenses.

This life is a funny road, but we all like to travel it just the same.

When I drove through Geneva last Sunday I thought about Frank Edgecombe but as it was about church time I knew it was no use to stop, as he would be in church and then Monday when I came back through there it was just after nine p. m. and I remembered that Frank's bedtime is nine o'clock so had to again forego the pleasure of seeing him.

Darn it all I wish it would warm up so Johnnie Anderson and I could go fishing. Johnnie is a tender plant and won't go unless it is nice and warm.

There seems to be no foundation in fact for the rumor that the big wind in Hastings on a recent Thursday evening was due to the presence of the Shriners, though some of them I know are pretty windy.

Free Program Tuesday Evening
The American Legion Auxiliary of Arcadia have set aside Wednesday, May 28th, as their annual Poppy Day at which time members of the local unit will conduct a sale of the flower made famous by its promiscuous growth on far off Flanders Field during the World War.

It is the hope and desire of the Auxiliary members that not a person will fail to wear one of these poppies in memory of those gallant American boys who sacrificed their lives on the battle field. The wearing of the poppy is almost universally recognized as the symbol of the World War sacrifice and should be worn in reverence of the memory not only of our own soldier dead, but of the thousands of soldiers left on battle fields of the World War, silently sleeping beneath their white crosses.

The fact that the manufacture of these poppies gives employment to hundreds of disabled ex-service men stationed at the various government hospitals throughout these United States, and thus affords a means of adding a bit of revenue to his pocketbook, only strengthens the worthiness of the poppy sale.

The little wild poppy was the one touch of beauty which survived amid the hideous destruction along the World War battle front. At the edge of the trenches, over the ragged shell holes and about the fresh graves it raised its brave red blossoms. It seemed to be the one immortal thing in the region where death reigned.

The poppies will be sold on the streets of Arcadia Wednesday May 28th so with the spirit of reverence to our soldier dead and with the noble desire to assist the soldier living, let us each make it our duty to assist in putting this community over the top with every person in our midst wearing this little symbolic blossom.

The Auxiliary members have also planned a free Poppy Day program which will be given at the Congregational church Tuesday evening May 27th, the evening preceding "Poppy Day." The program will consist of readings, songs, etc., and will be well worth your effort to attend. It is free so come and bring your friends.

Westerville Student Makes Furniture

The Sunday State Journal contained a picture of Lowell Welsh of Westerville and also a portion of the attractive room which he occupies while attending Wesleyan University at Lincoln where he is a member of the senior class. The room contained a bed, highboy, vanity dresser, bench, cedar chest, banjo clock and picture frames, which had all been made by Mr. Welsh during one semester. The walnut chest lined with cedar was described as a work of art and all the articles were made and painted by Mr. Welsh in the manual training shop at Wesleyan. Next year he will be instructor of manual training in both junior and senior high schools at Nebraska City.

What Weather
It is very seldom that one has occasion to witness snow and lightning with occasional roars of thunder all at one time and especially in the month of May, such was the case in Arcadia Sunday morning when snow began falling about 3:30 a. m., and continued until noon to the accompaniment of thunder and lightning. By noon the foliage on the trees and shrubbery had become so loaded with snow as to flatten the small bushes and disfigure a large number of trees by breaking off large limbs and branches. The streets and yards about town gave the appearance of the remains of a heavy wind storm due to the strewn foliage.

According to the gauge at the Arcadia State Bank we have received about three and one-half inches more moisture so far this year than we had at the same time last year, the figures for 1930 being 9.39 inches and those for 1929 being 5.87 inches, 9.03 inches of that received this year has fallen since April 11th.

Those taking part were Pearl Dobson, Henrietta Krickle, Angelina Kochonowski, Helen Malaski, Ruth Jones, Fern Holmes and Margaret Christensen.

Display Fox and Quail
The display window at the A. H. Hastings furniture store has been attracting a great deal of attention the past week on account of the mounted English fox and the quail which are on display there. The fox was stuffed in England and sent to George Olson's father who in turn gave it to Mr.

Hastings. It comes from the species which furnish the huntmen in England their delightful sport of fox chases.

The quail of which there are two, are fifty-eight years old. They are the property of Geo. E. Hastings who had them mounted in Milford, Mass., in 1872. Eggs which were found in the quail nest are displayed with the quail in a glass container.

Getting Three Meals Daily Is Big Task, These Recipes Help

One can't be sure, but it really looks as though spring and summer had come. Let's hope so. But whatever the season, the housewife of the family has to get three meals a day, and often does she need suggestions. So let's look below, and see if there isn't just the right kind of a recipe for her to use today, something new and different that she will like to make and her family will enjoy eating.

Left Over Chicken.
2 or 3 cups ground chicken, 4 or 5 hard cooked eggs, 1 envelope of Knox sparkling gelatine. Soak gelatine in 1-2 cup cold water 5 minutes, then add 3/4 cups liquid saved from boiled potatoes and peas.

Salt to taste, and when the gelatine is cold add chicken and egg. This mixture either makes nice sandwiches, or may be served with salad dressing.

—Mrs. J. W. McGinnis

And here are a couple of recipes that came in without a signature, but look promising.

A New Dessert.
Mix caraway seeds and together 2 cups cottage cheese, 1 cup of sweetened whipped cream. Add a few broken nuts if you wish.

Easy Salad.
Arrange on shredded lettuce, chopped apples and nuts and diced bananas, which have been well moistened with boiled salad dressing.

Devil's Food Cake.
1/2 cake chocolate, 3 tablespoons cocoa, 1 cup milk, 2 teaspoons vanilla, 1/2 cup sugar. Boil five minutes, remove from fire and add vanilla. Let cool. Then mix: 1/2 cup shortening, 1 cup sugar, 1/2 cup milk, 2 eggs, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon baking soda, 3 tablespoons boiling water, 2 cups flour. Cream shortening, add sugar and cream again. Add well beaten eggs, then beat the cake batter two minutes. Next add milk, soda dissolved in boiling water, flour, salt, and chocolate mixture. Mix well and make in two layers.

Filling.
1-2 tablespoons cocoa, 1-2 tablespoons corn starch, 2-3 cup sugar, 3-4 cup water, 1-2 teaspoon vanilla.

Mix the dry ingredients, add water and flavoring. Cook until creamy, beat until stiff and spread fudge frosting on top.

Mrs. Wm. Leininger, sr. Arcadia. And don't forget to send in any recipes that you have that are just a little different. Don't be stingy; don't be selfish, don't read and use all the other women's recipes and sit back with out sending in any yourself. Don't do it.

Mutual Benefit Club.
Mrs. Dan Cook entertained the ladies of the Mutual Valley Mutual Benefit Club at her home on Wednesday afternoon May 14th. Seventeen members were present. Refreshments were served by the committee in charge. All had a jolly good time. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Lynn Collins on June 11th.

Factory Workers

Can do more and better work if they see as they should. Their work demands all their energy. Can't afford to let difficult seeing rob them of some of it. Then when they see better their production is more accurate, satisfactory, and greater in volume. Hence they would gain on every count if they became equipped to see well and comfortably. Our service promises these results.

Lot of other interesting things were to be seen, too. A big shoe box had become a novel scissors basket, with every pair of scissors stuck through the lid, just the handles showing above. This way every child could easily help himself. Then I saw some ink tattooing on the back of one boy's hand, and one little girl had made pumps of her Mary Jane slippers by tucking the straps into the sides of her shoes. And another little girl was apparently feeling her winter underwear this sunny Monday, for she moved her shoulders and wriggled generally in a fascinating manner.

And over the blackboard sat a row of Japanese ladies with bright parasols, and near them were big green bowls, each with a spray of pink flowers in it. How those sprays did differ! There were little skimpies with mean blossoms, and big fat ones as puffy as pussy willows. And the bowls differed too, some of them appearing to be full of sea-weed, others a very dark green, and one or two looking to be full of water, they were such a light watery greenish color. Here were other things to see, too, but that is about all I can tell you today.

Arithmetic Is Numbers In Grade Visited Monday

By IRMA ELLIS LEGGETT

Over in the grade building there is a quite unobtrusive little miss who teaches some of Ord's youngest scholars most successfully: Miss Adeline Kosmata, an Ord girl.

Pennmanship was just finishing up, and heard a command to take up the ink. Now what might that be? In olden days they didn't used to take up ink! But apparently they do now, and sure enough in just a moment a little girl with a big shallow box began taking up the littlest individual ink bottles anyone ever saw. Next, the fairies wrote their spelling words over once more, and were then free to get a library book; meanwhile, the brownies began work on their arithmetic. Arithmetic in the lower grades, however, is Numbers, and the word must be carefully written on the top of each paper, with the student's own name written below it and to the right. In the lesson was found a mysterious new word, which the class did not know, so all those who cared to wrote down, A-d-d-i-t-i-o-n, on a little scrap of paper, taking it home to be inquired into. Then they would enlighten Miss Kosmata, Tuesday morning.

And now that this class, the part called brownies, had been put to work at their numbers, the fairies began to read, being nearly through an interesting book. The story was about a lot of knights who were searching for a good child, and had a terrible time to find one, too. Alice Mazac read the story, very swiftly and quite correctly, only needing assistance once in a very long while. She said "the knights sized their swords," which Miss Kosmata said meant "seized" and Alice did not know "precious" when she saw it, but what do you expect of a little girl in the second grade, anyway? She read exceptionally well.

The spelling words for Tuesday made a long list on the board: Know, would, bread, threw, always, coming, thumb, right, Saturday, break, laid, don't, wrote, there, piece, ready, waite, minute, every, to-night, to-day, to-morrow, built, have to, couldn't, rabbit.

On another blackboard, I read the most interesting directions. Here they are: Six flies are crawling up the screen door. One is on the lower panel. The rest are on the right hand side near the top. There is a hole in the screen near the floor where the flies come in. Draw this picture. Color it. 2.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(© 1928, Western Newspaper Union.)

JESUS DESCRIBES THE FUTURE OF THE KINGDOM

1. JOHN TEXT—Matthew 24:1-15: 13 (Print 24:1-13).

GOLDEN TEXT—Take ye heed, watch and pray; for ye know not when the time is.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Being Ready to Help.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Being Ready. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Being Ready.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Christian Preparedness.

1. The Prophetic View of the Course of Time from Christ's Crucifixion to His Second Coming (24:1-51).

The order of events in this time are in general as follows:

1. The moral condition of the world during Christ's absence (vv. 1-14).

2. The appearance of the Antichrist (vv. 15-20).

3. The great advent (vv. 27-31).

In connection with this advent there will be mighty convulsions of nature, the mourning of the tribes of the earth, and the gathering of the elect.

4. Warnings to believers in view of the great advent (vv. 32-51).

The time of this advent is unknown and on the part of many unexpected.

5. Instruction to believers in view of the unexpectedness of Christ's coming (25:1-30).

6. Behavior of Believers in View of the Coming of the Lord (25:1-13).

The teaching in the parable of the ten virgins has continuous application in the present time (I Thess. 16:18; Titus 2:11-13).

1. The equipment of the virgins (vv. 1-5).

(1) The foolish virgins took lamps, but no oil with them (v. 3). Lamps signify Christian profession (Matt. 5:10) and oil the Holy Spirit (Zech. 14). Having lamps but no oil shows that they were professors of religion, without possessing its reality. The Christian life is sustained by the Holy Spirit. As soon as a man is regenerated, the Holy Spirit takes up His abode with him. The Spirit's indwelling therefore, is an advance work upon regeneration. The proof that one is a child of God is that he has the Holy Spirit dwelling within him. (Rom. 8:9).

The foolish virgins were professors, but not possessors. (2) The wise virgins possessed both lamps and oil (v. 4). They backed their profession with a real life of righteousness. Both the wise and the foolish virgins slumbered and slept. Their eyes had grown heavy and they fell under the spell of sleep (v. 5). This shows that as the present age lengthens, the real and the professing church will "cease" looking for the coming of the Lord. It is unspeakably sad that so many, even of God's chosen—the wise virgins—should give up the expectancy of the return of the Lord.

2. The coming of the bridegroom (vv. 6-12).

(1) The midnight cry (v. 6). In the midst of the night when all the virgins were asleep the cry was heard, "Behold the bridegroom cometh." Who knows but that the time of this cry is now close upon us?

(2) Activity of the virgins (v. 7). They all arose and trimmed their lamps. There will be great activity when the Lord comes on the part of both believers and those who only make a profession. It will be a day when the reality of one's faith will be tested. (3) The foolish virgins' request of the wise to share their oil (vv. 8, 9). The revelation of Christ will make manifest the genuineness of our faith and expose the folly of mere profession. When the Lord comes, it will be too late to mend one's ways. (4) The wise enter to the marriage (v. 10). While the foolish were seeking to amend their ways—trying to buy oil—the bridegroom came, and those who were ready were admitted to the marriage. (5) The pitiful petition of the foolish virgins (v. 11). They begged the Lord to open the door that they might enter to the marriage feast. (6) The awful judgment (v. 12). The Lord declared "I know you not."

3. The solemn obligation (v. 13). "Watch, for ye know not the day nor the hour when the Son of man cometh." Two solemn facts should govern the attitude of every one. (1) Living with Christ in the marriage demands upon faithfulness to the end. If one and light be wanting when Christ comes, no admittance will be granted to the heavenly banquet. (2) Borrowed religion will not avail at that day. Despite the value of godly companions and associates, they can render no service in the day of Jesus Christ. Personal contact with the Lord Jesus through faith in His blood is the absolute essential.

THE STORY

CHAPTER I.—At the Warren ranch, the "Three Bar," on the fringe of the "cow country," a stranger applied for work as a rider. He was engaged by the owner, Williamette Ann Warren—known to all as "Billie." The girl's father, Cal Warren, had been the original owner of the place. The question whether the territory is to remain "cow country" or be opened to settlement is a troublesome one.

CHAPTER II.—Cattle "rustlers" have been troubling the ranch owners, the Three Bar, with a girl boss having suffered more than others. The new hand, Slade, a ranchman with an unsavory reputation as a "rustler," has been causing the enmity of a rider known as Morrow. The will made by Cal Warren allotted the half the property should go to the son of his old friend, William Harris. Under certain conditions the new hand, Slade, is the man, and he discloses the fact to Billie. The girl is suspicious of her new "partner," the ranch cook, "Waddles." He quiets her fears.

CHAPTER III.—Harris' method of the "Three Bar" rather excites the girl's devotion, though to herself she admits she is impressed by the new hand, Slade, a ranchman with an unsavory reputation as a "rustler." He has been causing the enmity of a rider known as Morrow. The will made by Cal Warren allotted the half the property should go to the son of his old friend, William Harris. Under certain conditions the new hand, Slade, is the man, and he discloses the fact to Billie. The girl is suspicious of her new "partner," the ranch cook, "Waddles." He quiets her fears.

CHAPTER IV.—The regular calf round-up is begun. While the riders are at their evening meal, far out on the range, six outsiders join the party. Billie knows them to be rustlers who, under the leadership of Slade and a man named Harper, have in the past stolen three Bar cattle. To test Harris' courage the girl appoints him temporary leader of the riders. He orders the visitors to leave. Something to her surprise, he does so. The men depart making threats. Billie made Harris permanent foreman. Catching Morrow leaving camp where they can be stolen, Harris discharges him. Morrow leaves, and Harris realizes he has made a deadly enemy. Also, he knows that Harris, Slade, and the rest of the rustlers now will know with whom they have to deal.

CHAPTER V.—Riding with Billie, a man, presumably Morrow, shoots at Harris. Three Bar riders start in pursuit of Morrow. One of them, Bangs, is ambushed and killed. Riley Foster, Bangs' chum, swears vengeance on the killers, the tracks of a party of riders being seen. Harris outlines his plans for bringing the rustlers into the country. Waddles agrees with the plan and the girl writes to her lawyer, Judge Colton, asking advice. In the meantime Harris tells her he has already arranged for the introduction of settlers whom he has selected for their peculiar aptness to cope with the desperate situation which he and Billie are facing.

"If you'd go now you'd likely get back before we're through cutting," he urged. "And the judge has written twice in the last two weeks."

Before she could answer this a horseman appeared on the valley road. The furthest irrigator, merely a speck in the distance, exchanged a shout for rifle and crossed to the fence. The rider, as if expecting some move, pulled up his horse and approached at a walk.

Harris saw the two confer. The horseman handed some object to the other and urged his horse on toward the house. He was one of the sheriff's deputies. He grinned as he tapped his empty holster. "One of your watchdogs lifted my gun," he said. He handed Harris a note.

After reading it Harris looked at his watch and snipped it shut, glanced at the sinking sun and turned to the girl.

"I have to make a little jaunt," he explained. "Waddles wants to see me. I'll take Waddles along. As we go down I'll send Russ or Tiny up to cook for the rest."

The deputy turned his horse into the corral and five minutes later Harris and Waddles rode away. Waddles was mounted on Creamer, the big buckskin.

"We'll have to step right along," Harris said. "It's forty miles."

They held the horses to a stiff swinging trot that devoured the miles without seeming to tire their mounts. For four hours they headed south and a little east, never slackening their pace except to breathe the horses on some steep ascent. The buckskin and the paint-horse had lost the first snap of their trot and it was evident that they would soon begin to lag. Another hour and they had slowed down to a snail's pace.

The two men dismounted and tied the horses to the brush in a sheltered coulee, then started across a broad flat on foot. Out in the center a spot showed darker than the rest—the old cabin where Carpenter had elected to start up for himself after being discharged from the Three Bar.

When within a hundred yards of the cabin a horse, tied to a hitch post in front, neighed shrilly and Harris laid a restraining hand on Waddles' arm. They knelt in the brush as the door opened and a man stood silhouetted against the light. After a space of two minutes came Slade's voice reached them.

"Not a sound anywhere," he said. "Likely some horses drifting past." He went inside and closed the door. The two men crept the cabin and came up from the rear.

A window stood open some eight inches from the bottom. Through the holes in the ragged flour sack that served as a curtain Harris secured a view of the inside. Carp and Slade sat facing across a little table in the center of the room. "I want to clean up and go," Carp was saying. "This d—n Harris put me on the black list."

"You've been on it for three months," Slade said. "Nothing has happened yet. But don't let me keep you from pulling out any time you like."

"But I've got a settlement to make," Carp insisted. "Let's get that fixed up."

"Settlement?" Slade asked. "Settlement with who?"

Carp leaned across the table and tapped it to emphasize his remarks.

"Listen. Morrow gave me a bill of sale from you calling for a hundred head of Three Bar she-stock rebranded Triangle on the hip."

Slade nodded shortly.

"I gave Morrow that for two years' back pay when he quit. It could sell out to you if he liked."

"And now I want to sell out," Carp said. "And be gone from here."

"How many head have you got?" Slade asked.

"Three hundred head," Carp stated.

"You've increased right fast," Slade remarked. "I'd think you'd want to stay where you was doing so well. How much do you want?"

"Five dollars straight through," Carp said.

"Cheap enough," Slade answered. "If only a man was in the market. He looked straight at Carp and the men's eyes slipped away from Slade's steady gaze. "But I'm not buying. Likely Morrow will buy you out."

"Morrow ought to be here now," Carp stated. "He's coming to-night."

"Then I'd better go," Slade said. "I don't like Morrow's ways."

The third of horse's hoofs sounded from close at hand. The two men outside lay flat in the shadow of the house. A shrill whistle, twice repeated, called Carp to his feet and he crossed to the door to answer it. Morrow dismounted and came to the door. He nodded briefly to Slade, hesitating on the sill as if surprised to find him there. Carp lost no time in stating his proposition. He spoke feebly.

"I want to get out," he said. "I'll sell for five dollars a head."

Morrow held up a hand to silence him.

"I'll likely buy—but I never talk business in a crowd." He crossed the room and sat with his back to the window. "There's plenty of time."

"I take it I'm the crowd," Slade remarked. "So I'll step out."

Morrow stiffened suddenly in his chair as a cold glow was pressed against the back of his neck through the crack of the window. At the same instant Carp had tilted back and raised one knee. The gun that rested on his leg was peering over the table at Slade.

"Steady!" he ordered. "Sit tight!"

The window was thrown up to its full height by Waddles and the curtain snatched away from the gun which Harris held against Morrow's neck. Carp flipped back his vest and revealed a marshal's badge.

"I'd as soon take you along feel first as any way," he said. "So if you feel like acting up you can start any time now."

Slade's eyes came back from the two men at the window and rested on the badge.

"So that's it," he said with evident relief. "A real arrest—when I figured it was an old-fashioned murder you planned. What do you want with me?"

Waddles had reached down and removed Morrow's gun from under the table. "A number of things," Carpenter said. "Obstructing the homestead laws for one."

Slade shook his head and smiled. "You've got the wrong party," he said. "You can't prove anything on me."

"I don't count on that," Carp said. "You've covered up right well. We know you work through Morrow, but can't prove a word. We've got enough to hang you, but I expect maybe you'll get off."

There was a scrape of feet outside the door and the sheriff entered and took possession of Slade's gun as Harris and Waddles moved round from the window and went inside.

"A few minutes late," Alden said. "I wasn't right sure how close I was to the house so I left my horse too far back."

"Here's your prisoners," Carp said. "Captured and delivered as agreed. I haven't anything on Slade myself, but if you want him, he's yours."

"What do you want with me?" Slade demanded a second time.

"I'm picking you up on complaint made by the Three Bar," Alden said. "I'll have to take you along."

Slade turned to Harris.

"Killing twelve Three Bar bulls on the last day of August," Harris stated.

"I was out with the ranger," Slade said. "Back in the hills. You know that yourself. That charge won't stick."

"Then maybe it was the second of May," Harris returned. "I sort of forgot."

Slade suddenly grasped the significance of this arrest. He looked at the sheriff, who follows are pussy-footing round out here?" he inquired of Carp.

"I don't mind confessing that several of the boys are riding for you," Carp informed. "But while we've ditched Morrow we haven't been able to trace it back to you. Every man got put in the pen, thinking you might do business with me direct after that—knowing my word wouldn't stand against yours. But not you! You've covered your tracks."

Carp spoke softly, as if to himself, detailing his failure to gather conclusive evidence against Slade.

"I even run your rebrand on fifty or so Three Bar cows. You knew there wasn't a dollar changed hands when Morrow gave me that paper which licensed me to rustle my own she-stock. The idea in my starting you was to run your rebrand on any number of Three Bar cows. Later Morrow would buy me out—acting for you; can't be proved. Oh, you're in the clear, all right."

Slade broke in on the monologue. This re-telling of his probable immunity from conviction, on every man got put in the pen, thinking you might do business with me direct after that—knowing my word wouldn't stand against yours. But not you! You've covered your tracks."

"Then a lawyer will have me out in an hour," he predicted.

"A lawyer could," Alden said. "If you saw one. But we've decided not to let him have access to legal aid for the first few days."

Slade turned to Carpenter.

"This sort of thing is against the law," he said. "You're a United States marshal. How can you go in on a kidnapping deal?"

"I'm not in on it," Carp shrugged. "The sheriff asked me to arrest you at the first opportunity. I've turned you over to him. The rest is his affair. Besides, like I was mentioning, they can't prove a thing on you. As soon as they're convinced of that they'll turn you loose."

"The very day I'm satisfied Harris can't prove his charges I'll throw open the doors. You'll be a free man that minute."

A vision of the near future swept across Slade's mind. If he should be locked up for three months and his charged for lack of evidence it would wreck him as surely as the rumors of the last three months had cut Lang's men out from the rest of the world. Squatters had fled on every available site throughout his range, and now waited to see if the Three Bar would win its fight. If the news should be spread that he was locked up these nesters would rush in. On his release he would find them everywhere. With marshals scattered through the ranks of his own men, intent on upholding the homestead laws, he would be helpless to drive them out. If they locked him up at this time he was lost.

He nodded slowly.

"Well, I guess you've got me," he said. "I don't see that it will amount to much, anyway. Sooner or later you'll let me out." He raised his arms high above his head and stretched. Under cover of this casual move he swiftly raised one foot.

Slade planted his boot on the edge of the light table and gave a tremendous shove. The far edge caught the sheriff across the legs and overthrew him. The lantern crashed to the floor and at the same instant Morrow aimed a sidewise sweeping kick at Carpenter's ankles. As the marshal went down his head struck the corner post of a bunk and he did not rise.

With a single sweep Morrow caught the back of his chair and swung it above his head for the spot which Waddles had occupied at the instant the light went out. The weapon splintered in his hands as it found its mark, and as the big man struck the dirt floor Morrow leaped for the dim light which indicated the open door.

A huge paw clamped on one ankle and a back-handed wrench sent him flying across the room to the far wall. With a sweep of the other hand Waddles slammed the door with a bang that jarred the cabin.

"We've got 'em trapped," the big voice exulted. "We've got 'em sewed in a sack."

Harris made one long reach and swung the butt of his gun for Slade's head as the table went down, but Slade, with the same motion, vaulted the prostrate sheriff. The force of the blow threw Harris off his balance and as he tripped and reeled to his knees Slade's boot heel scored a dancing blow on his

FARMERS FINDING ROTARY HOE A VALUABLE AID

Although not a newcomer among farm implements, the rotary hoe is just beginning to win a place for itself as a valuable aid to cultivation of corn, wheat, soy beans and certain grass crops in their early stages. A. J. Meyer, the dealer in John Deere farm machinery, says: "Recent refinements and improvements have served to make the rotary hoe a much more efficient machine than formerly. According to Mr. Meyer, its sales to farmers have doubled and trebled within the last few years."

The rotary hoe is not designed to replace other implements but to do an added service that results in better growth of crops. It does, however, reduce the number of eradicate weeds, for the rotary hoe makes quick work of weeds when they are just getting started. It is used soon after planting a crop and for subsequent early cultivations.

The rotary hoe, says Mr. Meyer, is unsurpassed as a crust breaker and is a splendid machine for aerating soil. Also, it will do a good deal of pulverizing.

Getting in the early ticks in the campaign against weeds is a principle function of the rotary hoe. Weeds that otherwise could grow to considerable size are dug out before they can rob the crop of valuable moisture and soil energy.

One farmer who grows corn extensively, says Mr. Meyer, has expressed his opinion of the rotary hoe as follows:

"We would not be without our rotary hoe, for on a farm with the hoe we can save the hiring of a man in corn cultivating and the hoe makes easy the hardest part of the cultivating work, the first and second time."

—Friday Mrs. Lewis Kane of Scotia came to Ord and was a patient in Hillcrest.

Woodman Hall

Last Sunday seemed more like Christmas than the 18th of May, judging by the weather. About six inches of snow covered Old Mother Earth but the afternoon rain melted most of the snow and it is bright and sunny again this morning and though it is very wet and muddy we expect it to soon dry off again.

Jerry Pliva traded his Ford sedan for a new Chevrolet last Monday, making the deal with the Graham-Seyler agency at Ord.

While working in the field last Friday morning, Jos. Moravec was quite badly injured. The horses became entangled in the harness and in trying to right the matter one of the horses struck Mr. Moravec in the face, cutting his lip and bruising his face quite badly. He was immediately taken to Sargent where he received medical aid. At this time he is improving.

The Waldmann and Krikac families attended the commencement exercises last Friday evening at the Comstock high school of the senior class of which Lillian Krikac was a member.

Miss Hnizda and her students at Geranium high had planned a big picnic last Sunday but the weather seemed to permit no such fun and frolic so the picnic may be held later this week. This week closes this term of school in our district and we feel that we have had a very successful year. Miss Hnizda is promoting the three sophomores and four freshmen. Miss Hnizda and the director James Hrebec received a letter from the State Superintendent's office, written by Miss Baldrige, State Inspector of rural schools, who recently visited our school, complimenting the teacher and students on their industriousness, also the improvements of the interior of the building and furniture. We hope for another year of success and improvement and are sorry to lose Miss Hnizda who has contracted for a position as teacher in the Ord schools. To Miss Schilling we also owe a good deal of credit as we can easily see her good work in helping to promote the eighth grade pupils.

Raymond Waldmann received an average of 91.6-14%, Alice Moravec, 84.12-14% and Charles Radil, 84.2-14%.

Dr. McGinnis of Ord was called to see a colt at the Jos. Waldmann farm. He set a broken bone in the colt's leg and placed it in a plaster Paris cast.

Miss Edna Hnizda spent the week end at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Anton Nevrlka.

Noble Echoes

Miss Ida Worm closed another successful year of school last Friday with a picnic. Most of the neighbors attended. Several races were run and horse shoe games were enjoyed by all the men.

After the picnic most of the neighbors drove to Ord to see the K. G. B. Z. Entertainers at the Noll seed store.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Wadas were Sunday afternoon visitors at Ed Kasper Jr's.

Pauline called at the home of John Hrebec Tuesday afternoon for eggs.

Jim Larson hauled hogs for F. J. Shotkoski Tuesday.

Mr. William Beam called at B. J. Maly's Sunday evening.

Mr. John John Jr. visited at Joe Wegrzyn's Sunday evening.

Cedar Rapids Man Spent Small Fortune Seeking Relief—New Medicine Brought It Help.

MR. VERNON A. KELCHNER

"For three months I was confined to my bed because of stomach and kidney disorders," said Mr. Vernon A. Kelchner, 138 F Avenue West, Cedar Rapids. Even after that seige, I was forced to bed for two or three weeks at a time. I spent a small fortune in search for health, but nothing seemed to do me any good. As soon as I had finished a meal, I was attacked by terrible pains. Then my kidneys became disordered and brought on severe back pains. Nervousness followed and I became a physical wreck.

"I secured several bottles of Konjola and started the treatment. I began to grow better almost immediately and my friends remarked upon my improved appearance. My stomach was cleansed and invigorated and my digestion became better than in years. No matter what I ate, I was not troubled with pains. My kidneys and nerves were restored to normal activity. Today, I am well and happy. I know this sounds impossible but every word is the truth."

Konjola works with the important functional organs of the body. It drives the poisons from the system, regulates the organs of elimination and brings abundant and glorious relief. It is recommended that Konjola be taken from six to eight weeks to get the best results.

Konjola is sold in Ord at the McLain & Sorenson drug store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

IT'S WISE TO CHOOSE A SIX

These modern features make it wise to choose a Chevrolet Six

In selecting a low-priced car, bear these all-important facts in mind:

The new Chevrolet is a Six—and six cylinders make a wonderful difference—in smooth, quiet, flexible, long-lasting motor car performance.

Chevrolet also offers the all-weather security of perfectly equalized four-wheel brakes that are completely enclosed, both front and rear, against mud and water.

Chevrolet gives you the comfort and safety of four long semi-elliptic springs, which are mounted in the direction of car travel, and are controlled by four Lovejoy hydraulic shock absorbers.

Chevrolet uses the modern "pump" method of fuel supply, which makes it possible to mount the gasoline tank in the rear, away from the engine and car occupants. Chevrolet is the only car in its price field that offers Body by Fisher. And that means not only the style, smartness and distinction of costly cars, but it means hardwood-and-steel body construction—the strongest; safest and most durable type known to the industry.

More Cows Being Culled, Average Production Higher

Over twice as many cows were culled out of Nebraska dairy herd improvement associations during April of this year as in April of last year, according to the monthly dairy report as issued from the state dairy office at the agricultural college, Lincoln, today. Butterfat averages for the two years shows a favorable pointing to this year's report points out.

A Battle Creek physician says "Constipation is responsible for more misery than any other cause." But immediate relief has been found. A tablet called Rexall Orderlies has been discovered. WHAT DO YOU KNOW ABOUT THE FEDERAL FARM BOARD?

By George Round, Jr.

Questions.
1. How much Federal Government money is available for loans to farmers under the provisions of the agricultural marketing act?

2. What rate of interest does the Federal Farm Board charge on loans made from the 500 million dollar revolving fund?

Answers.
1. Congress authorized 500 million dollars to be used as a revolving fund. At the outset only $150,000,000 of this amount was appropriated. The board will ask for more when needed. Since appropriating, they have been granted more.

2. The money is loaned to co-operators at a limited rate of interest—"in no case shall the rate exceed 1 percent per annum on the unpaid principal." Where national or central agencies exist the Federal Farm Board loans the money to them. These agencies in turn loan the money to district or local cooperatives at a slightly higher rate to cover handling charges and build up a reserve to the association against losses. Profits go to build up reserve.

BACK FORTY

By J. A. Kovanda

One of the most outstanding new developments in the poultry industry has been the widespread adoption of hardware or screen cloth for poultry flooring. By this method the chicks are kept from coming in contact with the droppings of other chicks. The chicks are also free of rodent attacks from below, and are kept off of cold damp floors.

The animal husbandry class recently viewed a "lazy" way of raising chicks at the Eves Smith farm. It was termed lazy because the only attention required was to keep self-feeder, self-waterer, and oil brooder filled and in proper working condition. Little house cleaning, if any, was necessary.

An outdoor yard, to which the chicks had access, was also protected with a layer of screen wire placed about four inches above the ground. Oats had been planted beneath the screen. They presented a rank growth, and as they came through the wire the chicks picked off the tender green shoots. In this simple manner was solved the problem of providing the green feed which is so necessary for growing chicks.

A sanitation program of this kind costs but little. An eight by twelve brooder house can be surfaced with hardware cloth for five dollars or less.

The usual practice is to make frames out of 1 x 4 inch lumber and nail the cloth to this. Half-inch mesh material is used for chicks until they are ten weeks old. If the program is continued with older stock, one inch mesh poultry netting is used.

The frames are fitted to cover the entire floor area. Some sand is scattered over the floor to facilitate cleaning. No litter is placed where the chickens walk on top of the wire. The caretaker must be cautious about walking over this wire floor and should step only on the stronger wooden parts of the frame.

Hardware cloth floors may also be successfully used in chick sun-parlors.

PRESENT CORN SUPPLY LOWEST SINCE '23-HEDGES

Economic Report Predicts Price Of Corn Advancing; Eggs, Butter Steady to Weak.

By GEORGE ROUND, JR.

"Egg and poultry prices will probably remain close to present levels and there will probably be steady to weak butter prices in the next thirty days," says the Nebraska economic situation report as issued monthly by the rural economics department of the agricultural college, Lincoln. The report for the next thirty days reached the Quiz today.

Corn prices are expected to remain steady to firm in the next thirty days, according to the report. Valley county farmers will probably note that hog prices will stay near the present levels, if not a little lower. Fat cattle prices are expected to be steady to lower.

The economic report as written by Harold Hedges of the rural economics department says that a steady to firm trend in corn prices seems most probable for the period. In the past, corn prices have advanced from May to June more often than they have declined. In the majority of the last fifteen years, the June top price for No. 3 mixed corn in Omaha has been higher than the May top price.

The visible supply of corn on May 10 was seventeen million bushels which is the smallest since 1923 for the season. About ten or eleven million bushels are expected to be visible by June 1, which would indicate market strengthening, the report says.

The report says that Valley county farmers may expect the weather to be an important price factor in the near future in relation to corn. This will depend whether it is favorable or unfavorable to planting.

Although hog prices may remain near present levels or a little lower, a firmer tone may be in evidence by the end of the period, Hedges says in his report. Although the season's turn in hog prices came earlier than usual this spring, the break thus far has been moderate. In past years such as this when hog marketing, disregarding seasonal changes, were decreasing, the break has usually been much less pronounced than in years of increasing receipts.

The report says that the spread between prices for choice and common classes of steers has been unusually wide this spring but may narrow somewhat in the weeks ahead. Scarcity of numbers may support prices for stocker and feeder cattle but the usual season's trend is downward, it warns Valley county feeders.

As usual butter prices are expected to go from steady to weak in the next thirty days. In the last twenty years, the June average price for 92 score creamery butter in New York has been above the May price five times, has equalled it four times, and has been below eleven times.

Butter receipts, the report says, have been 1 1/2 percent smaller from January 1 to January 1 of this year than in the corresponding period of 1929. However for the thirty days ending May 14, receipts were three percent larger than in the similar period last year. Storage holdings on May 1 were about four times as large as a year ago and three times the five-year period.

Egg receipts at four principal markets since January 1 to May 14 have been eight percent larger than a year ago at the same time, the economic situation points out. During the past thirty days, however, receipts have been only two percent larger than last year. The egg prices should remain close to present levels, the report predicts.

Garnick President Of Dairy Calf Club

Harold Garnick of Ord will head the Valley County Dairy Calf club for the coming year. He has been elected president of the club. Wesley Eberhart is the vice-president, Lytle Smith the secretary, and Wayne Coats the news reporter. Carl J. Smith, who organized the club, is the club leader.

The club plans an extensive program of activities for the year. They include demonstrations, judging trips and tours, and picnics. Their achievement day will be held next fall, according to present plans.

Other members of the dairy calf club include Delavan Kingston, Arcadia; George Valasek, Ord; Marion Fenster, Arcadia; and Morace Kingston, Arcadia.

The club meets monthly. Young People Wed Secretly. Relatives and friends have just learned that Earl Hurlbert, son of Mr. and Mrs. O. J. Hurlbert of Rosevale, and Miss Frances Cutler, of Wolbach, were secretly married on March 1 at Logan, Ia. Mrs. Hurlbert has been teaching in Garfield county during the past year. The young people expect to live on the Hurlbert farm in Rosevale.

Local Cow Test Association Is Fifth In State

Coats Herd Is Top In Nebraska; H. C. Sorensen Has Best Producing Cow In County.

The Valley County Dairy Herd Improvement association again rose in state standings for April when it was in fifth place. There were 23 associations reporting for the month. Members of the local association had some of the high cows and herds in the state.

In being in fifth place for April, the Valley county association had an average butterfat production of 31.3 pounds per cow. There were 232 cows on test. Twenty-three cows were in the forty to fifty pound class and eight in the fifty to sixty. Nine cows in the local association produced over sixty pounds butterfat for the month, according to the monthly association report as issued from the state dairy office at the agricultural college, Lincoln.

E. S. Coats and Son who had the high producing herd in the local association for April lead the high producing herds in the state on average production. The Valley county association member milked nine cows that averaged 53.7 pounds butterfat. The second high herd in the state averaged 48.3 pounds. It is believed that this is the first time that a member of the local association has been able to top the associations in the state in average herd production in the class of five to fifteen cows milked twice daily.

As in normal months, McLean brothers lead the local organization in average fat production in the two to sixteen or more cow class, milked twice daily. The McLean herd averaged 33.6 pounds and they were in fifteenth place in the state standings for April.

A Holstein cow belonging to H. C. Sorensen topped the local association in individual production for April. The cow produced 71.4 pounds of fat. She placed fourteenth in the state among the twenty-three highest producing cows.

Anthony Kokes Heads First Ord Corn Club

The first corn club to be organized in Valley county for this year is to be known as the Ord Corn Club. Organization meeting was held recently when Anthony Kokes of Ord was elected president. He is also to lead the club.

Billy Garnick is the vice-president, Lloyd Marks the secretary, and Axel Jorgensen the news reporter. Harold Benn and Homer Willard are additional club members. This is the first year project for the local club.

Demonstration of hybrid plots is to be one of the features of the corn club program for the year. The annual achievement day will be held in Ord in October. An exhibit for the local fair is planned in September.

Put and Take

By Geo. Round, Jr.

Perhaps readers of this column will remember that a few weeks ago I wrote an article for the Quiz page in which I made the prediction that eggs would decline in price at Ord and surrounding points in the near future. I even went so far as to predict or guess that the price per dozen would drop as low as twelve cents.

Later H. D. meaning Publisher Leggett, and Quiz readers reminded me that I was all "wet" in my prediction of the low price. They evidently thought it was a case of impossibility. At the time I informed them that their guess or prediction was as good as mine.

For a time the price remained up around eighteen cents but within the past week, prices dropped to thirteen cents a dozen in Ord. As I understand it, eggs were quoted at that price in Ord, May 17. At least H. D. and others will have to admit that my prediction came near being true, missing it's mark but one cent. It appears as though this is one case in which I was not all "wet."

Charley Arnold with all his diplomacy could have accomplished probably a great deal more than Stimson and other United States representatives at the recent naval conference is the opinion of "Peanuts" Jensen of Ord. Perhaps Jensen is right for Arnold uses a great deal of diplomacy at times.

Valley county boys and girls are getting their last opportunity by next week to join 4-H clubs during the coming year. Agent Dale is making his final drive in an attempt to get his two hundred members. Letters sent out by Dale have been received with interest and now cards indicating the boys and girls are interested are coming into Dale's office.

There will be many boys and girls in the county wishing next fall that they had joined some kind of a 4-H club. At the fair they will see the club pigs and calves exhibited; they will see the girls exhibit their clothing and canning products. These boys and girls who are exhibiting will be undergoing the greatest thrill of a lifetime. They will be showing their own animals and products before the judges. Some will get ribbons tied on their products, others will not. Those who fail to win this year will be back next year with more determination than ever to win.

However, local boys and girls who are interested in club work should remember that the winning of prizes isn't all there is to club work. The ability to smile in face of defeat is one of the characteristics of the good club boy or girl. Certainly there are other features to club work besides the winning of prizes at fairs or the program would not stand as it has each year.

Polarine
halves engine
carbon

The new refining process used in making the new Polarine produces oil of a greatly improved quality which deposits less than half as much carbon as any old process oil.

This means less engine trouble, less engine wear, less cost for overhauling and repair.

In addition, the new Polarine is unsurpassed by any oil, at any price, for resistance to the thinning effect of high heat and to the thickening effect of zero temperature.

skull and doored him. He registered his feet, gripping a fragment of the chair. Morrow had snatched over Waddles' head, and struck at a din form which loomed against the vague light of the window. The shape closed with him and he went down in a corner with Slade. Slade struck him twice in the face, writhed away and gained his feet, back-slashing at Harris' head with his spurs. Harris caught a hand-hold in the long fur of the other's chaps, wrapped both arms round Slade above the knees and dragged him back. His hand found Slade's throat and he squeezed down on it as the man raised both knees and thrust them against his stomach to break the hold. Slade's arm swept a circle on the floor in search of the gun Harris had dropped, but he was jerked a foot from the floor and Harris jammed his head against the log wall—jammed again and Slade crumpled into a limp heap. Harris held him there, unwilling to take a chance lest the other might be feigning unconsciousness. But Slade was out of the fight.

The sheriff struggled to his feet as Waddles tossed Morrow back from the door and slammed it shut. He closed with Morrow, but the man eluded him. He dared not shoot with friends and enemies struggling all about the black pit of the little room.

Morrow leaped one way, then the opposite, as the sheriff groped for him. Alden turned toward a rattle at the stove as he heard Slade's head crunch against the wall under Harris' savage thrust.

"Down him!" Waddles roared. "Tear him down! Tear him down! I'm holding the door."

From the corner by the stove an iron pot hurtled across the room for the sound of the voice and crashed against the wall a foot from his head. A second kettle struck Alden in the chest and he went down. Waddles saw the light vanish from the window, then reappeared. Morrow had made a headlong dive through the little opening.

Waddles swung back the door and sprang outside as Morrow vaulted to the saddle. The big man lunged and tackled both horse and man as a grizzly would seek to batter down his prey.

The frightened horse struck at him, numbing one leg with the blow of an iron-shod forefoot, then reared and wheeled away from the thing which sprang at him, but Waddles retained his grip in the animal's mane, his other hand clamped on Morrow's ankle.

The rider leaped and struck him on the head. The crazed horse shook Waddles off, but as he fell the other man fell with him, dragged from the saddle by the jerk of one mighty hand. They rolled apart and Morrow leaped to his feet, but Waddles had wrenched the leg already numbed by the striking horse and it buckled under him, and let him back to the ground as he put his weight on it. He reached for his gun. A form loomed above him, a heavy rock upraised in both hands. The gun barked just as a downward sweep of the arm started the rock for his head. Morrow pitched down across him and Waddles swept him aside with a single thrust.

He rose and stirred the limp shape at his side.

"Dead bird!" Waddles announced and turned to limp back to the cabin. A match flared inside as Harris lighted the lantern. Carpenter stirred and sat up, moving one hand along the gash in his scalp. The sheriff stooped and snapped a pair of handcuffs on Slade's wrists. They splashed water on his face and he opened his eyes. He regarded the steel bracelets at his wrists as he was helped to his feet and turned to Harris.

"Don't forget that I'll kill you for this," he said. "It was a simple statement, made with heat or bluster, and aside from this one remark he failed to speak a syllable until the sheriff rode away with him."

The sheriff waved the lantern outside the door and before he lowered it two deputies rode up, leading his horse.

"We started at that shot," one of them announced in explanation of their prompt arrival. Alden motioned Slade to his horse and helped him up.

"Shoot him out of the saddle if he makes a break," he ordered briefly.

"Now you can move against those men I've sworn out complaints for," Harris said to Alden. "Public sentiment has turned against them to such an extent that they won't get any help, and there won't be any to fill their places, once we've cleaned them up. Deputize the whole Three Bar crew when you're ready to start."

The sheriff nodded and led the way with the two deputies riding close behind, one riding on either side of Slade.

CHAPTER XI

THE freight wagons rattled away from the Three Bar as the first light showed in the east, and the grind of wheels on gravel died out in the distance as Harris and Billie finished their breakfast.

The hands had come in from the round-up the night before, prior to the return of Harris and Waddles from their mysterious two-day trip in response to the sheriff's message, and Evans had led them to Billie's for a night of play. They were due back at the ranch in the early forenoon and Harris had allowed the freighters to depart before the others arrived.

"What did Alden want?" Billie asked, referring to the trip from which he and Waddles had returned late the night before.

"We made a call on Carp," he said. "He had some good news we've been waiting for."

"That Carp is a Three Bar plant," she said.

"He's a U. S. plant," Harris corrected. "But he's been working in with us to get something on Slade—to gather proof that he's behind these squatter raids of the last few years' and (the ones they've afraid at us up to date. He couldn't get a shred that would hold in court, but Slade is almost through. His claws are clipped."

The girl started to question him as to Carp's activities, but after the first sentence she became aware that his attention was riveted on something other than her words. He had thrown the top of his head like a startled buck and was peering down the valley.

Her range-bred ears caught and correctly interpreted the sound which had roused him. A distant rumble reached her and the surface of the earth seemed to vibrate faintly beneath her feet. She knew the jar for the pounding of thousands of hoofs, the drone for the far-off bawling of frightened cows. A low black line filled the valley from side to side, rushing straight up the steep sloping bottoms for the Three Bar flat.

"They're on us," Harris said. "I might have known. Get back to the house—quick!"

As they ran she noticed that his eyes were not upon the surging mass of cows in the valley but were fixed on the broken slopes back of the house.

"Anyway, they don't want you," he said. "We'll do the best we can. I made that prediction about clipping Slade's claws too soon. What was I thinking of? Slade and Morrow six feet underground. I was overconfident. I might have known it was planned ahead."

His face was lined with anxiety as an expression she had never before seen him wear even in the face of emergency. She had no time to question him about the assertions relative to Morrow and Slade.

The front rank of the stampede was bearing down on the lower fence. The barrier went down as so much spider web before the drive; posts were broken short, wire row had made a headlong dive through the little opening.

The girl had a sickening realization that the work of a year would be blotted out in a space of seconds under those churning hoofs. It seemed that she must die of sheer grief as she witnessed the complete devastation of the fields she had watched day by day with such loving care. The stampede swept the full length of the meadow and held on for the house.

The foremost cows struck the corral and they went down with a splintering crash under the pressure from behind. She looked out on a sea of tossing horns and heavy backs as the herd rushed through the heavy log buildings shaking against them and squeezing past.

The force of the run was spent on the steep slope back of the house and the head split into detachments and moved off through the hills.

The west side of the house was windowless, a blank wall built against the standing winds. Waddles was busily engaged in knocking out a patch of chinking and endeavoring to work a loophole between the logs. Harris was similarly engaged.

He pointed down the valley to the south and she turned mechanically and crossed to that window. A few riders showed on the ridges on either flank of the valley.

"They were caked up there to pick us off if we rode down to try and turn the run," he said.

She nodded without apparent interest. "What might transpire now seemed a matter to be viewed with indifference."

"It's time for me to go," Harris said. "I'll hold the bunk house. Good luck, Billie—we'll hold 'em off."

He turned to Waddles who still worked to make a loophole through the blank wall.

"If it gets too hot put her out side and tell her to give herself up. Even Lang would know that the whole country would be hunting them tomorrow if they touched her. They won't if they can help it. But this is their last hope—to trust to one final raid. They'll go through with it. Make her go out side if it comes to that."

He opened the door and leaped across the twenty yards of open space which separated the main building from the bunk house, barred the door and looked from the south window. The riders along the valley rim had descended to the bottoms. Smoke was already rising from one homestead cabin and they were riding toward the rest. Two men had dismounted by the head gate.

ORD GRADUATES GIVEN DIPLOMAS THURSDAY NIGHT

Fifty-four Students Are Honored
At Commencement Exercises;
Two Scholarships Awarded.

Climaxing a week of senior activities, fifty-four young men and women who had completed the work given in the Ord schools were presented diplomas last Thursday evening at commencement exercises held in the high school auditorium. Reuben V. Clark, superintendent of the boys' industrial school at Kearney, was the principal speaker, and diplomas were presented by Dr. J. W. McGinnis, president of the board of education.

The commencement program Thursday night was simple and impressive. To the strains of the professional orchestra, seniors filed into the auditorium and took places reserved for them in the front rows. The invocation was given by Rev. H. H. Spracklen, after which the hymn "Lullaby" was sung by a sextette of high school girls.

Mr. Clark, the commencement speaker, then gave a thirty-five minute address that was listened to attentively by the large audience. He touched on the importance of loyalty to country and to self and emphasized the responsibility every graduate should feel to obey the laws of this land. His speech was interesting and powerfully given.

Following another selection by the girls' sextette, Wilbur D. Cass, principal of the high school, presented the graduating class and made the award of diplomas. Elmer Palmater was announced as valedictorian and was awarded a scholarship of $150 to any of the four normal schools of the state. He also was given the Balfour medal for loyalty, scholarship and achievement. Miss Roberta Rogers, salutatorian, was given a $100 scholarship by church colleges of Nebraska.

Diplomas were handed to the graduates by the president of the board of education, Dr. McGinnis, after which the alma mater song was sung by the girls' sextette, directed by Rev. J. A. Moorman followed.

Senior students who received diplomas were:

Stanley Absalon, Alice Adamek, Alice Anderson, Florence Anderson, Ruth Baird, Earl Barnard, Myrtle Bartos, Lumir Beran, Larry Botts, Iva Bricker, Irene Burson, Opal Carkoski, Dale Chatfield, Alvin Christensen, Ellis Carson, Ted Dubas, Thekla Draper, Dennis Flynn, Ruth Footwagner, Naomi Fust, Mabelle Hansen, Nellie Hansen, Esther Hansen, Hans Hansen, Geo. Commencement exercises held last Thursday night were the fortieth annual exercises of the kind held by the Ord schools. The distance from Ord to Amarillo, Tex., is over 500 miles but it is just a matter of five hours flight to Perry Bell and Edith Gruber, who left Ord last Thursday noon for their homes in Long Beach, Calif., after visiting relatives here. The two men reached Amarillo just five hours after leaving Ord, a wire received Thursday afternoon by V. J. Sisk said. They were flying a Velle Monocoupe owned by Perry Bell. The men had been in Ord for two weeks and enjoyed their stay, they say, although the weather was poor for flying all the time they were here.

July Fourth May Be Celebrated In Ord

The 4th of July may be celebrated in Ord this summer if an investigation started last week by the Chamber of Commerce reveals a sufficient number in favor of holding a celebration. Bill Heuck, Ed F. Beranek and Dr. F. L. Blessing were appointed on the committee to query business men and they report that as far as they've gone the majority appear to be in favor of having a celebration.

Should a celebration be put on some good attractions will be given. Ed Tolen, who is in Omaha this week, has been directed to take care of the matter. A ball game, a picnic, band concert, races, fireworks and other features peculiar to July 4th celebrations will supplement whatever outside attractions are secured.

JEAN LAVERTY DROWNED WHEN BOAT CAPSIZED

Daughter of Former Ord Man
Dies In Sandpit Lake While Riding With Dr. Clark.

Jean Laverty, 21, daughter of Richard Laverty, former Ord boy and graduate of the Ord schools, was drowned last Sunday in a sandpit lake near Ashland when the boat in which she was riding with Dr. E. E. Clark and others overturned. Miss Laverty was a niece of Mrs. G. W. Taylor of Ord, and Guy Laverty of Burwell.

The accident occurred about 4:30 p. m. Sunday. Miss Laverty, her sister, Mrs. Guilford Darst, Miss Ethel Martin and Dr. Clark, all of Ashland, were in a motor boat belonging to Dr. Clark, who recently moved to Ashland from Burwell. The boat capsized in 80 feet of water.

The other three were able to reach the boat after the upset but Miss Jean missed a hold and went down. Efforts to reach her were unsuccessful. She was an expert swimmer.

Miss Laverty was a member of the graduating class at the University of Nebraska and would have received her diploma next week. Next year she planned to teach home economics in the Ashland schools. Her twin sister, Miss Cora, also well known in Ord, is employed in the schools of Mead but was in Omaha at the time of the catastrophe. Richard M. Laverty, father of the dead girl, lived in Ord from the time he was a small boy until he graduated from Ord high school. He is a South Omaha commission man and a former president of the Omaha Live Stock Exchange.

The trio were rushed to a hospital where young Hughes was still unconscious yesterday morning. His uncle, C. F. Hughes of Ord, was summoned.

The Ord boy is a son of Mrs. Rose Hughes and moved with his mother to Grand Island a few months ago so that he might take up aviation. He was a student in a flying school here and passed department of commerce examinations two weeks ago, thereby securing a license as pilot.

They came at once to Ord and have gone to housekeeping on the Huff farm southeast of this city. Both young people are graduates of the Ord schools, the bride being a member of the 1930 class. The quiz joins in wishing them great happiness.

The quiz was in error last week in saying that Miss Irene Pierce lives in the W. E. Kesler home. She is a daughter of Fred Pierce and lives with her parents in the country.

Mrs. Hannah Larsen of Minden will arrive in Ord in a few days and visit her daughter, Mrs. Elsworth Ball.

RESIDENT OF ORD FOR FIFTY YEARS GOES TO REWARD

Mrs. F. W. Weaver, First President of Temperance Organization Here, Passes Saturday.

After long months of illness death came here last Saturday, May 24, to Mrs. F. W. Weaver, 88, who had been a resident of Ord for fifty years. Funeral services for the aged woman were held Tuesday in Sowl's chapel, Rev. D. C. Williamson having charge. Interment was in the Ord cemetery.

Augusta Louise Glimar was born in Hardin county, Ohio, on Dec. 20, 1841, and her early years were spent there and in Marion county of that state. She went to Missouri in 1868 and was married there in 1869 to Francis W. Weaver.

Mr. and Mrs. Weaver were among the earliest residents of Ord, moving to this city in the fall of 1880. The following spring they built the home that was Mrs. Weaver's residence until her death last Saturday.

At an early age Mrs. Weaver joined the Presbyterian church but upon her marriage transferred her allegiance to the Baptist faith and both she and her husband were leaders in the Ord church of that denomination while health permitted.

Mrs. Weaver was the first president of the Ord Women's Christian Temperance Union and she also served on the local school board. While of a retiring disposition she was a woman of strong character, always standing on the side of the right.

No children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Weaver and the latter has lived alone since her husband's death here in 1913. Her only living relatives are nieces and nephews in other states and no people of her own blood were in attendance at the funeral services Tuesday. Many close friends and neighbors of olden days were present at the funeral services and by all of these she will be sorely missed.

INDIANS TAKE WARPATH, WIN IN 9TH INNING

Smith, Former Big Leaguer
Hurling For Bow, Limits
Mustangs To Five Hits.

Going on the warpath in the ninth inning with the score tied, the Broken Bow Indians hit the ball hard and scored two runs to win a Loup Valley league clash from the Ord Mustangs, the final count being 4 to 2. The game was played at Russell park Sunday in the presence of a small crowd.

Manager Arnold's Mustangs deserved to lose after playing sloppy ball for nine innings but nevertheless the setback was a bitter pill for the local pastimers to swallow after leading most of the way through in the fourth inning they swarmed on the Broken Bow hurler for three hits, which with an error and a sacrifice fly they converted into a pair of tallies, the only ones they scored during the game.

The chief reason for the Mustangs' loss was a ponderous gentleman named Harry Smith, who formerly was in the employ of the Chicago White Sox and later pitched for Lincoln in the Western league.

Smith had entirely too much candle-power for the Loup Valley league and easily squelched the Mustangs with five hits, three of which came in that fatal fourth inning. The other two Ord blows were scratchy singles registered by Wolf in the third and Johnson in the fifth, neither of which did much good. Smith whiffed fourteen and walked not a single man.

Meanwhile, the Broken Bow hitters landed on Pitcher Baker for some extra distance clouts and effectively avenged a defeat meted out to the Indians earlier in the trophy chase. The Tribe hit safely nine times and also benefited by a pair of walks presented them by the Ord hurler.

The first Indian count came in the sixth inning when Ellington was given a life on Cover's bobble and cantered across the plate when Smith singled. Again in the seventh they scored on hits by Brewer and Young, an error by Catcher Wolf being directly responsible for the tally. Their ninth inning rally gave the Indians the only two earned runs they tallied.

Two double plays executed by the Mustangs broke the monotony, Baker taking Linder's drive in the fifth and throwing to Athey for the first double killing and Krejci catching Smith's fly and throwing to Hall for another double in the seventh. Both plays cut short Indian rallies.

Baker, although he was in trouble in nearly every inning, really pitched a nice game and with perfect support from his mates might have pulled through with a win. Only four bobbles show up against Ord in the error column but several exhibitions of dumb baseball by Ord infielders kept Baker in hot water. Then, too, five hits isn't enough power to win a ball game in any league.

The box score and summary:

Olean Beats Elyria. The Olean community baseball team managed by D. G. Barber played at Elyria last Sunday, beating Manager Paul Whipp's team by a score of 8 to 7.

Litchfield Cubs Out-Hit Ansel But Lose, 9 to 5

Though Beryl Lang was in good form Sunday and allowed Ansel only eight hits while striking out sixteen men, the Cubs made six errors behind him and Litchfield lost, 9 to 5. Each team made but two earned runs. Wunderwald, former G. I. state leaguer now hurling for Ansel, was wild but effective in the pinches. He walked ten, struck out eight and allowed nine hits. Steve Finch Holds Scotia to 3 Hits, Arcadia Team Wins

Arcadia broke into the Loup Valley league win column last Sunday when with Steve Finch holding Scotia to three hits and his mates playing errorless ball, Arcadia won 2 to 0. Finch struck out fifteen and gave not one free pass. Duryea and Sheldon did mound duty for Scotia and pitched nice ball, allowing Arcadia only six hits. Bulger and Finch accounted for four of Arcadia's six bingles between them. Scotia made six errors, three of which were charged against Harry Selk. The box score:

Relief From Curse Of Constipation

A Battle Creek physician says "constipation is responsible for more misery than any other cause." But immediate relief has been found. A tablet called Rexall Orderlies has been discovered. This tablet attracts water from the system into the lazy, dry, evacuating bowel called the colon. The water loosens the dry food waste and causes a gentle, thorough, natural movement without forming a habit or ever increasing the dose.

Stop suffering from constipation. Chew a Rexall Orderly at night. Next day bright. Get 24 for 25c today at Ed F. Beranek's Rexall drug store or at the nearest Rexall Drug Store. 8-321

Shoots 37 Just Six Weeks After Taking Up Golfing Pastime

Just six weeks after he played golf for the first time, Fred Swanson, employe at the Johnson bakery, was successful Sunday in shooting a 37 on the nine-hole Ord course which has a par of 33. When he started playing golf Mr. Swanson said his ambition was to shoot under 40 by the end of the season. Now, with the season scarcely started, he has to seek a new goal. He now hopes to par the course before snow flies.

Catch Limit at Swan. County Treasurer George Satterfield and Deputy Clerk Lloyd Rusk report a limit catch of fish from Swan Lake last Wednesday. All but four of their fish were bull-heads and the balance were perch. The men report fishing good at Swan but say it is overfished, particularly on Sundays and holidays.

FARM BUREAU BALL LEAGUE TO BE FORMED

Community Ball Enthusiasts
Urged To Meet at Dale's
Office Saturday Evening.

A Valley County Farm Bureau baseball league will be organized at a meeting of community baseball enthusiasts at County Agent Dale's office Saturday night at 8:00 p. m. The local farm bureau is taking the initiative in organizing a six-team community ball league in Valley county this year. Schedules and constitution and by-laws will be drawn up at the initial meeting.

If the local league materializes, Valley county will probably be the only county in the state having a league sponsored and controlled by the farm bureau. One other state, Illinois, has a state-wide organization wherein district and state championships are played each year.

It is planned to make the Valley county league a six-team affair, according to County Agent Dale. Representatives from Clean, Mira Valley, Elyria, Davis Creek, Joint and Arcadia have been invited to attend the meeting Saturday. Other communities interested in entering the Farm Bureau league are urged to attend the meeting. If possible an eight-team league will be organized.

"We hope to make this an all-county league and want teams from all sections of the county entered. We are assured of at least six teams. The league should help to develop a more friendly spirit among Valley county community people," declared Agent Dale today.

Communities with potential young ball players are especially urged to get a franchise in the league. The Valley County Farm Bureau wants the young as well as the old to play Dale says. It is expected that play in the league will start a week from Sunday.

Loup Valley League Chatter

Although his batting average is only .233, the hitting of "Pidge" Johnson, Ord shortstop, is surprising and pleasing to local fans. He has hit safely in each of the first three games, his contribution in the first Broken Bow game going for two bases. Pidge stands up and takes a better cut at the ball than he used to. His fielding is up to standard too, and he will be a valuable player before the league season ends.

Manager Arnold may be called on to arrange his team for the game with Arcadia Sunday. Krejci has played his last game until September in an Ord suit and Peanuts Jensen probably will get the center field position. Charley Hall's work at second was disappointing last Sunday and the Ord manager may again try Eddie Furtak at this position against Arcadia. Athey is a valuable fielding first sacker but he has yet to register a single this year in eight trips to the plate. Sunday he struck out twice and laid down a weak grounder in his third trial. Someone else may be given a trial at the initial bag if Clyde doesn't start hitting.

Clyde Baker made a big mistake Sunday when he grooved one for Ellington in the ninth inning. The Indian second baseman clouted out a long two-bagger and brought in two runs, thereby breaking up that ball game. Baker won't make that mistake with Ellington again, we'll bet.

Smith, of Broken Bow, probably is about the smartest pitcher in the league. He hasn't got so much stuff but he has wonderful control and mixes up his offerings so smartly that he struck out four of the Mustangs last Sunday. He got three of his strike-outs at Bill Heuck's expense. Bill was trying to outguess the pitcher, which works about one time out of a hundred against a hurler as smart as Smith.

Only a small crowd was in Russell park Sunday, the high wind probably keeping them away. A capacity attendance is expected this week when Arcadia comes to Ord. Intense rivalry exists between these two teams and it is heightened by the presence in the Arcadia line-up of Hudson, Finch and Megruer, all of whom pastimed with the Ord team last year. The Mustangs would rather beat Arcadia than any other team in the league and the Cadetes feel the same way about Ord. A knock-down-drag-out struggle can be anticipated.

The Arcadia ball team seems to be having trouble finding a clean-up hitter who can hit. Flop Megruer essayed the role in the first clash and failed to get a bingle. This week Freddie White was in fourth place and captured a goose-egg for his share of hitting honors. Both Megruer and White are dangerous all the time, though.

Wonder if Schoonover, who is playing right field for the Litchfield club, is the Schoony who managed the G. I. state league team last year? His hitting record Sunday looks like it.

It has been reported that Frank Andersen's outlaw ball team defeated the Zikmund nine last Sunday on the fairgrounds diamond. No one has disclosed the score. . . . Now comes "Dinty" Clement to the front and declares that I had better lay off from Maggie, whoever she may be. . . . George "Dutch" Clement is playing some ball with the North Loup league team this year. Elyria has a strong ball team and will probably enter the Valley County Farm Bureau league. Syl Karkoske manages the club. . . . Olean has a good club in the field too. Doug Barber is their manager. A few years ago, Doug was a classy hurler and hasn't lost all of his ability yet. . . . I heard an optimist says the other day that as long as there no money in farming, the farmers had better go to playing ball. They couldn't lose anything, he told me. . . .

My Own Column

By H. D. Leggett

Since the Missus has been down at Excelsior Springs I have been chief cook and bottle washer at the Leggett home. The only bottles washed have been milk bottles. I started out alone but Hi soon joined me for meals and then Harry Williams came drifting in. It was suggested that we take turns doing the cooking but Hi and Harry said as long as I was already on the job, I should stay with it as long as they were satisfied with the meals and they agreed that the first one to find fault should be the cook from then on till someone else made a kick. I kept slackening off on the grub thinking one of them would slip and find some fault and I knew Harry Williams was a pretty good cook. I would not be so keen about Hi's cooking. But they just kept on being satisfied, at least they didn't make any kick. I burned the coffee water and they smacked their lips and said it was good. I put a whole handful of salt in the gravy and they looked at each other as they ate it but no complaint was made. Then Harry asked me to make some biscuits. Biscuits was not the course of study when I learned cooking but since the boys had been kind enough to ask me to make them I felt that it was no more than right to do so. I looked through all the cook books I could find but did not find directions for making biscuits. Of course I knew in a general way how to do it. I knew it took flour and milk and of course a little salt and pepper and eggs. I had often heard the Missus call them saltatus biscuits so I knew it required soda. I didn't know how much but since they were called saltatus biscuits I thought it surely needed as much soda as flour and I just mixed an equal amount of each. The biscuits were a great success. They were a beautiful golden yellow, more so it seemed to me than was really necessary. I got them baked nice and Harry who had asked for them, took the first one. I saw Hi eyeing them and while I didn't think of it at the time, I know now he was killing time taking a little of everything else, to see someone else take a biscuit. Harry took a big bite and clapping his hand to his mouth, he spluttered and I thought he had lost a tooth and I was sure of it when he slipped his hand into his pocket. I don't remember just what he said but I remember well enough to know I couldn't print it anyhow so it don't matter what it was. I asked him if he didn't like the biscuits and he said they were fine. Then he jumped up and said something about hearing someone down stairs and rushed down. He didn't come back. Hi got up in a minute, looked at his watch and said he had to meet a man at the garage. I told him we would have cold biscuits for supper but before night they had disappeared. The boys in the back office asked me what it was that Harry was carrying out to the garage and in the afternoon, I am still on the job as cook but the Missus will be home soon and I shall not be sorry to lose my job. I have often helped do the dishes in the past but things were never so handy as I have them arranged now. I keep all three dishpans on the floor right under the sink where I can grab them and find it much handier than hanging them up in the pantry and having the dirty water drip down the wall and when the Missus gets home I will be able to give her a lot of pointers about shortcuts for saving time in doing her work.

I see by the front page story in the Quiz last week that the Arcadia road is now going to be completed. This will be fine. I wonder just why the present solution of the matter could not have been adopted a long time ago and the work finished. Is it possible that the powers that be are completing that road now as a sort of sop to make us think they are doing something for this part of the state? It is said that practically nothing will be done on the Ord-Burwell road this year. The road is being gravelled between North Loup and Scotia which is fine but it is said the stretch from Scotia to Cotesfield will not be more than graded this season and that no work will be done on the Cotesfield-Elba stretch. I believe, after all the years we have been promised action down here, that the whole job could and should be done this year. When they tell us that right-of-way trouble is holding the work up, it is just a bunch of bologna. They can go where they need to go with the roads and there is no sense in delaying it year after year on any of these roads. Sixty days is as long as they need to condemn the right of way and go ahead with the work. The present state administration could do themselves a lot of good by doing the right thing on the Ord to Grand Island road and doing it this year and it is going to do them a lot of harm, the way they are delaying the game. They had better decide to put the whole road through this year and have the gravel on this fall. While letting the Scotia-Cotesfield grading contract why not finish it on to Elba at the same letting.

Speaking of candidates, a friend asked me the other day how long

Bert M. Hardenbrook had been in Nebraska. I was not able to answer the question. I find that he came to Nebraska with his parents when he was 15 years old and he has been here most of the time since and is now 56 years old. He has practiced law for a quarter of a century. He is a member of the Methodist church, a member of the Masonic lodge, served as county attorney for about eight years and was president of the state association of county attorneys for three terms. He has been taking advanced ground for years in recommending improvements in our criminal laws, advocating and asking for the very things that President Hoover is now advocating. Leading attorneys of the state agree that he has contributed much to the improvements that are coming in legal procedure and believe that if nominated and elected to the position of attorney general of the state he will go into the office with a program that will make for much better conditions in court procedure and law enforcement.

"I don't know what there is in Sargon, but it's the most wonderful medicine I ever took in my life! Today is the first time I've been able to come down town alone in six months and it is due to the wonderful strengthening effects of this wonderful medicine. My appetite is splendid, my digestion is perfect, I'm strong and energetic, my nerves are strengthened and my housework is really a pleasure. Shrubby, Trees and Flowers Make Misko Place One of Ord's Most Beautiful Homes

IRMA ELLIS LEGGETT

This is the first of a series of articles on Ord's beautiful homes and gardens. More will follow in future issues.

Clothes may not make the man, but shrubbery and plantings and trees and flowers certainly do make a beautiful home, and there is no better example of this in all Ord than the Jim Misko home.

The place is so pretty that it is difficult to describe. A comfortable, home-like, old-fashioned looking house with a very serene air sits on a nice corner on a nice level lot. The house is yellow and white, and appears so naturally a part of its setting that it is impossible to imagine any other surroundings or background for it. Round the base of the house are masses of shrubbery, all the old familiar favorites, spirea, barberry, snowball, dogwood, and then some newer and rather rare plants interspersed here and there to add flavor. Just now all this base planting is a drift of white, rich with the perfect little white clusters that our friend Bridal Wreath, or in other words the garden variety of spirea, offers for the pleasure of the public about this time of year.

The plantings gets higher toward the back of the lot, toward the garage. Some beautiful tamarisk sprays are already high in the air although it is too soon for them to be lavender tipped. Lilacs are only now losing the last of their blossoms. One of the biggest snowballs in captivity is just bursting with white pop-corn balls. Around the curved edge of the shrubbery west of the house is a row of phlox, the perennial kind, and a little later they will show blossoms of every color, in rich heads. Before them, nearer the street, a weeping willow that is several years old droops oh-so-gracefully. Under one tip of its slender leaves is a brown bird bath, just waiting for sunny Saturdays and some dirty birds.

A work of art that Mr. Misko has just finished is a lattice with a graceful archway over a little gate, which hides the drying yard from the side street. This yard is close to the garage, and before the lattice are three different colors of columbine, already in bloom and such luscious shades. Two drives go away from this garage, curving attractively, and enclosing an irregular bed where tamarisk is the highest point and mock oranges only need a touch of encouragement to begin flowering and around the base are all sort of nice things. Lots of peonies, the huge buds bursting with color even now; lots of rose bushes, some of them with promising little buds, too; a pansy bed with the thriftiest nicest blooms, every little face a color all its own; rows of big geraniums, a tulip bed now heavy with pods, lately heavy with varicolored bloom. There is even a bed of mint here, exclusively Mr. Misko's, although his wife sees to a lot of the work in connection with the grounds.

A very square topped double hedge along the rear-most driveway, and the picture is as complete as it can be put in a typewriter. Really, the task is almost hopeless, although his wife sees to a lot of the work in connection with the grounds.

Recipes That Are Different Feature Cookery Column

Although all of us like to read recipes and try them out, it is a lot more thrilling to choose one that is exceedingly new and different. Just look below.

Rhubarb and Pineapple Pie.
1 small can of crushed pineapple, 2 cups rhubarb, 2 cups sugar, 1-2 cup water. Boil the above together 5 minutes and thicken with 1 tablespoon flour.

Line a pie plate with ordinary pie paste, then pour in the above mixture. Wet the edges and cover with paste rolled out very thin. Sprinkle the top with sugar and bake for 30 minutes or until golden brown.

Miss Vera M. Sobon, Burwell.

Banana Nut Cake.
1 1/2 cups sugar, 1-2 cup butter, 2 eggs, 1 cup sour milk, 1 teaspoon soda, 3 cups flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 2 crushed bananas, 1/2 cup chopped nut meats, a pinch of salt. Sift flour, baking powder and salt together five or six times. Cream the butter thoroughly, add the sugar gradually and cream again, until light and fluffy. Beat the egg yolks until light and add. Add soda to milk and stir well. Add flour alternately with milk a little at a time, beating after each addition until smooth. Then add the crushed bananas and beat well, then the nut meats. Lastly fold in the egg whites beaten stiff and bake in a moderate oven 40 minutes. Use any favorite icing.

Mrs. M. E. Benjamin, Merrymix club, Ord.

The Quiz very much appreciates the thoughtfulness of the Merrymix club, and thanks the club gratefully for the recipe contributions. Surely many Ord homes will enjoy this Banana Nut Cake, and lots of Valley county homes as well.

Spinach.
To use spinach directly from the can, heat it in the double boiler, then add 2 tablespoons butter, 1/4 teaspoon pepper, 1-8 teaspoon nutmeg, 1/2 teaspoon salt, Garnish with hard cooked eggs and serve with vinegar or lemon juice, as desired.

Mrs. J. W. McGinnis, Ord.

In these days when doctors tell every woman to eat spinach once a week, and in these days of prescribed spinach diets, surely someone will wish to try the effect of nutmeg on spinach.

And meantime, have you sent in a recipe yet? Please do it now.

PIANO TUNING.

Make sure you get value received whenever your piano is tuned and regulated. The National Association Piano Tuners are required to pass an examination and to have at least 5 years of experience. Does your piano get that kind of service?

Chas. C. Perry, National Association member has cared for Grand Island's finest pianos for 25 years. Musicians and piano owners generally, join in praising his exceptional ability and unusual fair dealing in every respect.

Call 297, Miss Bond, and leave your order for Mr. Perry's June trip.

—Mr. and Mrs. Wm. McKathney of California, will be in Ord the first of next week. They are driving through from Long Beach. Mrs. McKathney was formerly Zella Morrow. Her father arrived in Ord Tuesday. They have some business to look after in Ord.

—Miss Anna Olsson is visiting a sister in Kearney for a few days. She plans on spending a couple of months there this summer and attending college.

Ideas For Tops Differ Greatly

This year of feminine clothes, hats must needs follow along and be feminine too, whether they wish it or not. And perhaps that is why, with worlds and worlds of various hats with oodles of varied variety that all the hats this spring have one little characteristic in common. And that characteristic is the long-on-the-side effect. Whatever else a hat may be this year, and this is a year of individuality such as has not been seen for a long time, you are just sure to find the hat of your choice has long sides or a long side, as the case may be.

Patsy has figured out why this long side business began, and you will be surprised to learn that she traces it directly to the poke bonnet of so-great charm so many years ago. You remember that nothing was ever quite so generally accepted and so generally accepted as the poke bonnet. You realize that the bonnet we are speaking of accompanied long trailing skirts, little lace hand mitts, curlicues, lace paper valentines, cheek curls, and an era of very delicate and delightful womanhood. Well, then what more logical choice of bonnet for the lady of today than the poke bonnet which so became and personified feminine charm of another day?

And herewith are four examples of the new-day hat lines. Surely you like them?

—Patsy, the Particular.

Happy Days Are Here Again For School Children

By IRMA ELLIS LEGGETT

Hurray! Whoopie! Hats are off, and boys are bare-foot!

Shoes are off and boys are bare-foot! Clothes are off and boys are swimming!

Hurray!

For school is out!

What a happy time for youngsters! Howling and jumping and romping all the way home with their report cards! How glad they have to be paid for books that'll have to be paid for by 'y'don't 'em. "I passed!" "I'm glad I'm through with that old teacher!" "Gosh I hope I don't have to have her next year!"

Now for the sand pile, and the digging. Now for marbles and games where 'lagging' doesn't have to be interrupted to answer the demand of the last bell. Now we can roll hoops, and run and run and run! "Fetch my bike can beat your bike!" "Let's roller skate over at the high school!"

"Mama, can I lick the frosting dish?" "Who took my paper dolls?" "Mother, may I go over to play with Betty?"

Thus the play days.

Summer has come, and school is out, and children are happy. Except for practicing music lessons, all the studying is over until fall.

Long, happy days beneath the trees are here for the youngsters. Nothing to do but play, or, or, or, or ten-foot-and-half! Nothing that has to be done except a lot of hard playing. A lot of outdoor work that will make every youngster in these parts brown and hard and strong and full of hard little bunches of muscle that will be needed next fall when the in-door days, the school days, start again.

But there is a lot of serious playing to do. "Irma, will you buy some pop?" "Where'd my dog go?"

"Aw, please, Ma, just one more cookie! It won't hurt me! Honest, Ma."

Arcadia Teacher Is Wed At North Loup

On Sunday afternoon, May 25th at 2 o'clock at the Friends Parsonage, Rev. Bessie Franc Brown with the simple ring ceremony united in marriage Horace G. Mott of Colorado Springs, Colo., and Elaine Riggs of Central City, Nebr.

Mrs. Riggs is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Verner Riggs of Central City, both of whom are associated with the Eoff department store of the place. Miss Riggs has been a student at Nebraska Central college at Central City. Mr. Mott was awarded his Bachelor of Science degree at Nebraska Central college a year ago, and since that time has been teacher of mathematics in the Arcadia high school. He is the only son of Rev. Herbert Mott, who about twenty years ago organized the Friends churches at North Loup and in the Pleasant Hill neighborhood south of town.

The marriage ceremony was witnessed only by the father, mother and sister of the bride, and the ceremony was performed at North Loup instead of at the bride's home, because of the warm friendship existing between Miss Brown and the families of the contracting parties. This friendship dates back to the time of Miss Brown's college days at Central City.

The rooms were beautifully decorated for the occasion with iris, tulips and roses. Following the ceremony ice cream and cake were served and snapshots taken of the bridal party. The newlyweds left for Colorado Springs where they will spend the summer. They will return to Arcadia in the fall, where Professor Mott will again be a member of the high school faculty.

Your Skin against Summer Sun

Cruel summer sun and wind need not harm the fabric of your skin or leave face and hands harsh and uninviting. You can tan to an even, healthful bronze of any shade or keep your skin lovely and white, as you prefer, by using the proper complexion aids from the very beginning.

We urge you to lay in a supply of summer complexion necessities such as skin balm, creams, lotions, anti-sunburn remedies, powders, etc., right now while summer is getting a start.

you'll thank us later for this advice.

Use The Motor Oil

*That Gives You Four Quarts
Of Lubricant to Every Gallon*

In every gallon of ordinary motor oil there is one quart that is supposed to protect your motor—but doesn't. It is a quart that ordinary refining leaves in—a quart that has little or no value as a lubricant—that fails to ward off wear. Its a quart of waste—but you pay for it.

You never find that quart of waste in any gallon of QUAKER STATE. For Quaker State Motor Oil is not refined in the ordinary way. It is super-refined—carried a step further than ordinary oils. This extra step removes that quart of waste and gives you four full quarts of lubrication to every gallon.

Quaker State is made from 100 per cent pure Pennsylvania crude oil. Figured on the PER YEAR basis, Quaker State is the cheapest oil you can buy.

Quiz Makes Error, Gives Credit To Wrong Man

Last week the Quiz made a serious error when it gave credit to Henry Geweke for supervising the work of moving and building on the Valley county fair grounds. Charley Bals was in charge of this work from the beginning to the end and did a wonderful job, devoting many long hours to the work and displaying interest and attention that is reflected in the ship-shape condition of the tract at present. We regret the error very much and wish to call to the attention of our readers the work done under Mr. Bals' supervision. A visit to the fair grounds will be worthwhile as many improvements have been made this spring.

Mr. and Mrs. Wiseman and son of Bennett, Colo., spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Kildow. They left Sunday afternoon for home, taking their daughter Hazel and Lois Kildow as far as Grand Island. The girls had also been in North end and for the week end, and went back to Nebraska Wesleyan.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross Kildow and son left Friday for Wayne, where they will make their home. Ross will have charge of a rendering plant.

Mr. and Mrs. I. J. Thelin and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Swanson attended the show at Greeley Sunday. The Thelins and Chas. Chinn were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Swanson the same evening.

Mrs. C. E. Rummel and daughter Marjorie, of Palmer, and the former's niece Alice Pierce from Wellfleet, arrived in North Loup Wednesday for a visit with friends and to attend commencement exercises. They were house guests of Maud Shepard. Mrs. D. S. Bohrer entertained at dinner Thursday when Mrs. Stoltz and Mrs. Carrie Lickly were down from Ord. Mrs. Rummel and daughter went home Saturday. Alice Pierce went as far as Palmer Sunday where she will visit. She plans to attend summer school at Kearney.

On Wednesday evening, May 21 fifteen eighth graders received certificates of promotion into the high school at exercises at the high school auditorium. During a professional played by Mrs. A. H. Babcock the members of the class, each carrying a pink rose, the class flower, took their places on the stage, which had been very prettily decorated with the class colors, rose and gold. The program consisted of songs, readings and piano selections. The class song was written by Virginia Moulton. The address of the evening was given by Rev. H. S. Warren, who chose for his subject, "What Boys and Girls Live By," and in a most interesting way stressed Work, Play, Love and Worship. On behalf of the class, Doris Goodrich presented the teacher, Mrs. Leibil with a gift as a token of their appreciation. Before Superintendent Greene awarded the diplomas he announced that the three holding highest honors for scholarship were Virginia Moulton, Doris Goodrich and Maxine Johnson.

The first two above named also received their Palmer Method certificates. Those receiving diplomas were Mary Baker, Ervin Bartz, Genevieve Chadwick, Doris Goodrich, Lewis Hanner, Raymond Jensen, Maxine Johnson, Virginia Moulton, Elmo Manchester, Orland Maxson, Irene Meyer, Claud Rathbun, Jr., Ruby Stewart, Lorna May Shineman, and Thelma Willoughby.

Miss Jessie Gilmore was a passenger to St. Paul Monday after a short visit with North Loup friends.

Verne Robbins went to Grand Island Saturday, expecting to leave from there for Ridgeway, Mo., on business.

FARM WIVES SAY RUNNING WATER IS BIGGEST AID

Recent Survey Shows But 35 Percent Of Homes Have Even Cold Water In Kitchen.

By GEORGE ROUND JR.

Two-thirds of the 179 women questioned in a recent farm household survey as to the greatest convenience in the average farm home declared running water to be most important and greatest, according to a bulletin published by the home economics department at the University of Nebraska. The percentage of women declaring the value of running water was determined in a test conducted in 1927-28 in Nebraska counties. Other data was compiled.

Records were kept in each locality for one year on homemaking. Each county had a superintendent in charge of the records kept in the survey as made by the home economics department. The homes were not selected but picked at random. Counties where the tests were run included Cedar, Wayne, Madison, Boone, Garfield, Colfax, Saunders, Douglas, Cass, Seward, Gage, Clay, Hall, Dawson, Custer, Logan, Perkins, and Saline.

Records show that forty-one percent of the farms in the survey had no system of running water. Less than one-fourth of the women had a pump in the kitchen while thirty-five percent had running cold water in the kitchen.

Despite the fact that it is the general impression that the tasks of the farm women are steadily decreasing, the survey showed that practically all of the women are still doing their own laundering. Only two per cent did but a portion of the laundry work. Little opportunity to have the laundrying done outside the farm home has probably kept the majority of it on the farm as the general belief.

Valley county people will be surprised to learn that the large percentage of Nebraska farm women are still doing their own baking of bread, cake, and cookies during the year. The survey showed that forty-two percent of the women baked all of their bread while an additional fifty percent baked a portion of it. This is not in line with the general public opinion that most farm women today are buying their bread in towns and cities. It was brought out in the survey that there were only eight percent of the women who did no bread baking at all, a very small portion of the total.

As was expected, the survey showed a large percentage of the women on farms today are baking their own cakes. The tests showed that ninety-four percent baked all of the cakes while the remaining six percent baked a portion of them. Only three percent of the farm women baked no cookies.

Women in the test made more butter in the winter and spring than in the summer and fall. Increasing household duties during the summer and fall are given as possible reasons for decreased butter making during that period. More butter was made in May than in any month and the least amount in October.

Most women take care of the poultry on the farms. Of the 179 women questioned, eighty-two percent declared they took all or a major portion of the care of the poultry. Largest sales of chickens took place during July, August and September.

It is surprising to note that the large percentage of the meat and lard used in the homes was made in the home. Public opinion today is that the average farm wife buys the major portion of her meat and lard supply from the town butcher, making the trip to town two or three times a week to get fresh meat.

The survey showed that eighty-four percent of the households in the test made the entire amount of meat and lard used in the home while twelve percent additional made a portion of both. Only four percent purchased all the meat and lard used. The survey shows that butchering on the farm today is quite common.

Farm women in the counties surveyed are still making the large portion of their soap, the test brought out clearly. Fifty-three percent made a portion of the soap used on the farm while twenty-eight percent made all of the soap used. It is believed that the percentage of farm women making their own soap is slowly decreasing, there being a tendency to buy it at the town grocery.

Not only did the women in the test care for chickens and garden, in addition to their homes and families, with very little paid help, but they also did the outside work on the farm. The outside duties including haying, cornhusking, plowing, lawn caring, picking potatoes, chores, driving rake, harrowing, running tractor, and shocking grain.

Haying and corn husking were the two types of field work that farm women helped in the most. Fourteen percent of the home-makers helped in haying and thirteen percent helped in cornhusking.

COATS IS CHOSEN TEST PRESIDENT FOR 2ND YEAR

Kingston and Pierce Also Re-elected At Meeting Held Recently; 20 Members Signed.

Ernest S. Coats was re-elected president of the Valley County Dairy Herd Improvement association for the coming year at the annual meeting of the association held in the district court room at Ord recently. W. D. Kingston was re-elected vice-president and A. W. Pierce was again elected secretary-treasurer.

Members of the association re-elected Earl Smith as director for the coming year and L. P. Fenster was elected director to succeed M. E. Cummins. Plans for the coming year were discussed. The cow testing year ended this month. Organization plans for next year are going right ahead. Twenty members have been signed up by Ester Smith but there are still a few vacancies left.

The association decided to hold quarterly get-together meetings during the year. This year there was but one meeting between annual meetings. Members felt the quarterly meetings would tend to stimulate interest in the organization.

The local association planned to have an exhibit at the Valley county fair held in Ord this fall. No definite plans have been made for the exhibit other than was generally outlined at the annual meeting held recently.

Agent Dale and Carl Smith, vaccination tester, urged farmers in the county who are interested in getting in the association for the coming month to get in touch with them. There are but few vacancies left.

THREE HYBRID CORN PLOTS ARE PLANTED HERE

Beran, Hohn and Wetzel Farms Used For Bureau Tests; Hybrid Seed Expensive.

Three plots of different varieties of hybrid corn have been planted during the past week to be used by the Valley county farm bureau as a demonstration of the value of hybrid corn. The plots were planted by Anton Beran, Harvey Hohn, and Floyd Wetzel.

Each plot consisted of one acre. The varieties planted included Field's Mule corn; Magelord's hybrid; and Hybrid Seed company's hybrid. Next fall the plots will be shucked out and measured. They will be compared with the best local varieties in yield and quality.

Hybrid or crossed corn is the result of crossing two inbred strains of corn. Crossing two distinct types of plants or animals almost always causes an increase in the litter of the offspring. This has long been known and used in the production of mules. Swine breeders practice crossing of different breeds of hogs.

This increases the vigor at the first cross but should not be used thereafter for breeding purposes, Agent Dale advises Valley county farmers.

Tests in various parts of the country have shown almost always an increased production of hybrid corn over ordinary varieties, Agent Dale says. However, he says with any other cross seed should not be selected from these hybrid but a fresh cross secured for seed each year. On account of the large amount of labor and expense necessary to produce hybrid corn, it sells for a very high price per bushel. It must give considerably increased yield in order to be profitable grown.

Results of the tests will be made public next fall, according to Agent Dale.

BACKFORTH By J. A. Kovanda

Sweet clover is the nearest plant that has ever been found to approach a perfect all-around forage crop. Its chief objection is that it develops a coarse bushy growth. In this rank growth the peculiar taste, due to coumarin, becomes so strong as to approach bitterness, and livestock eats the clover with less relish.

Another problem caused by the rank growth of sweet clover is the entanglement of stems at harvesting time. This makes seed collection a disagreeable, and almost impossible task.

The remedy for these difficulties is to mow the crop now, or sometime in the near future. If sweet clover is cut early in the season, it will furnish a longer pasture season, and usually set more seed. The second year sweet clover should be cut before it starts to bloom, and even before any flower buds appear. That time is now near. If hay is wanted, it may be well to cut when the crop is about thirty-inches high. If the hay is not desired, one need not bother about removing the cut crop from the field, but simply let it lie as cut, where it will soon rot.

Cutting second year sweet clover at this time will cause the second growth to be more uniform, prolong the ripening time, and do away with the coarse growth that would be present if not cut or pastured closely. It wanted for seed, the second growth will not present a very difficult job of harvesting with a binder, with the beater, or with the combine.

Unlike alfalfa, sweet clover does not send up new shoots from the crown after it has attained considerable growth the second year, but new growth is from the buds on the sides of the stems. In cutting second year sweet clover at this season it is therefore necessary to mow the crop high enough to leave plenty of buds for a new crop. If cut below these new buds the stand will be killed. Usually the thicker the stand the higher the crop should be mowed in order not to kill it, as the lower buds will be smothered by the heavy growth.

FARM BUREAU MAKING TEST ALFALFA SEED

Six Varieties Planted On Grover Barnhart Farm; Will Check Up At Spring Meeting.

Six varieties of alfalfa seed have been planted by the Valley County Farm Bureau in co-operation with Grover Barnhart on the Nebraska Securities Corporation farm west of North Loup. The plot has been planted to determine the adaptability of the different varieties. Those varieties included Texas, Grinn, Dakota No. 12, Colorado, Dawes County and Home grown.

The test is expected to show the extent to which each variety winter-kills under Valley county conditions. This is probably the first demonstration of alfalfa varieties that has been planted in Valley county, according to County Agent Dale. It will be watched with interest by Valley county farmers. The results may not be determined for some time.

Probably next spring there will be a checkup meeting on the ground with a crop specialist from the agricultural college.

Junior Neighborly Club Adopts Project

The Junior Neighborly 4-H club of North Loup will take up the Girls' Room project for the coming year, it was decided at their organization meeting held recently. Mrs. Pearl Mulligan is to lead the club.

Arthella Burrows is to head the club as president for the year. Gladys Petersen has been elected vice-president and Vesta Petersen secretary-treasurer. Thelma Weed was elected news reporter for the club.

Other members of the club include Cora Goodrich, Ruth Negley, Eva Mulligan, Donna Burrows, Thelma Weed, Ruth Richardson, Dorothy Schudel, Hannah Goodrich, Julia Meyers and Aelene Hish.

Round Will Conduct News Writing School

Valley county 4-H club news reporters will gather in Ord in the next two weeks for a news writing school to be conducted by George Round, Jr., announced County Agent Dale today. Round will instruct the boys and girls in news writing, at an afternoon and evening session. A definite date has been set as yet.

All news reporters in Valley county are eligible to enter the state daily newspaper club contest. The winners are awarded a free trip to club week next August. Round believed that no Valley county boy or girl has ever won the contest in the state. Agent Dale is anxious to win one of the daily contests this year and the school is planned for that reason.

County Agent Dale is to notify all reporters when the school will be held.

ceased. Rev. and Mrs. Galtier furnished the music, singing the beautiful hymns "Just As I Am," "Going Down the Valley" and "Does Jesus Care." The body was laid to rest in the Arcadia cemetery.

Elizabeth Miranda Nelson, daughter of James and Mariah Nelson, was born Feb. 19, 1873 and passed away at her home in Arcadia May 21, 1930 at the age of 57 years, 3 months and 2 days.

She moved with her parents to Nebraska in the spring of 1888 and was married to Henry Dewitt at Arcadia, Jan. 31, 1888. To this union fifteen children were born, five of whom are living, Loia Wing of Ansley, Neb., Virgie Lueck of Brule and Merle, Lorin and Alberta at home.

Mrs. Dewitt united with the Methodist church March 13, 1921, while her husband, E. Bolden, was living. She lived a faithful Christian life, and will be greatly missed in the home and by her many devoted friends.

Besides her husband and children she leaves nine grandchildren, two brothers and two sisters, Val and business will be transacted and the judging classes will be chosen. The club members will be divided into two judging teams in order to promote competition in the home club. Later the best judges will be chosen to compete with the county team at the county fair.

Any boy or girl who desires to join the club must be present at the meeting June 6th as this will be the last chance to join. New members will enter the fall barrow class.

one big raid that would smash the Three Bar and discourage the rest from duplicating our move. That would give Slade a new lease of life—delay the inevitable for a few more years. They made one final attempt and lost. They're through! he asserted positively. "That's their last shot. We're only delayed—that's all. The honestest cabins are only charred. The old buildings at the ranch are gone. I'll put a crew in the hills getting out new logs and there'll be enough out-of-job peckers riding grub-line to rebuild the whole place. We've got our land. The hay is trampled dirt right now, but the roots aren't hurt. Next spring will show the whole flat coming up with a heavy stand of hay. "You're a good partner, Cal," she said. "You've done your best. But the whole thing would only happen over again. Slade's too strong for us."

Slade's through! he asserted. "He's locked up and when he gets out his hands will be tied. Inside of a month the law will be in the saddle for the first time in years. Once Alden gets a grip on things, with folks behind him, he'll never lose it again."

He painted the future of the Three Bar as the foremost outfit within a hundred miles, but her mind was busy with a future so entirely different from the one he portrayed that she scarcely grasped his words. Always she had seen her parents speak of a day when they should go back home; and she had always felt that the day would come when she, too, would live in the place from which they had come—with frequent trips back to the ranch. The day when the ranch had delayed her departure from year to year. But now the old familiar buildings were gone and there were no ties to hold her back once she was gone.

Harris rose and pointed, rousing her from her abstraction. Down in the valley below them, filed a long line of dusty horsemen.

"There is the law!" he said. "That's what I brought you here to see. It's what we've been waiting for. That little procession stands for organized law!"

She turned and looked behind her as her ear caught the thud of hoofs and jangle of equipment. The Three Bar men were just topping the ridge.

Harris knew that action, not inaction, was the best outlet for her energies; temporarily smothered by the shock of the raid.

"I thought maybe you'd like to go," he said. "The fauna will do you good."

She showed the first sign of interest she had evidenced.

"And we're going to the Breaks," she stated.

"That's where," he said. "We'll order them to give up and stand trial. They won't. Then we'll clean them out. Hunt them down like rats!"

The little band in the valley was drawing near. She recognized Carp, Bentley and another Slade man riding with the sheriff at their head.

"What's Bentley doing there?" she asked.

"One of Carp's men," Harris said. "If any of them get away from us U. S. men will find them down here. He wears the U. S. badge and won't be stopped by any feeling about crossing the Utah or Idaho lines."

Rustling is of no interest to him. That's the sheriff's job. But Carp will round them up for obstructing the homestead laws."

The Three Bar men came up and halted. Harris and the girl changed mounts and led their rodeo horses to join the file of riders below.

It was well after sundown when they halted in a sheltered valley. Waddles cooked a meal over an open fire. Red rolls were spread and the men were instantly asleep. Three hours before sunup the cook was once more busy round a fire.

The meal was bolted and a man tucked a generous lunch on his saddle before riding off.

Daylight found them twenty miles from camp and the horses were breathing hard. They turned into a coulee threaded by a well-worn trail. Three miles along this they turned up the right up a branching gulch with eight men. Another mile and Carp led a similar detachment off to the left. Billie rode with the sheriff and Harris at the head of the rest, holding to the beaten trail.

Harris motioned to Billie. "You fall back," he said. The men had drawn their rifles from the scabbards. "They never did post a guard. But there's just a chance. So for a little piece you'd better bring up the rear."

Harris turned up a side pocket and the men waited while he and the sheriff climbed a ridge on foot to investigate. Harris motioned to the girl.

"Come along up where you can see," he said, and she followed them up the ridge.

"From behind a sage-clump Harris trained his glasses on the group a mile out across the shallow basin. Two men stood before a teepee near the stockade. There were two other tents inside the structure, with a number of men moving about them."

He handed the glass to the girl. "We'll be starting," he said. "By the time we get fixed the rest will be closing in. You stay here and watch the whole thing."

"I'm going along," she said. "I'm as good a shot as there is in the hills, and it was my ranch they burned."

The sheriff shoved back his hat and pushed his fingers through his mop of gray hair.

"Fact," he confessed. "Every word. But there's swarms of men in this country—and such a d—n scattering few of girls that we just can't take the risk. That's how it is. If you don't promise to stay out of it we'll have to detail a couple of the boys to ride guard on you till it's over with."

She knew that the other men would back Harris and Alden in their verdict. She nodded and watched them turn back toward the horses.

There was nothing spectacular in the attack of Harris and the sheriff. They went about it as if hunting vermin, cautiously and systematically, taking every possible advantage of the enemy with the least possible risk to their men. The advance was slow as they closed in on the stockade. There was a sudden commotion among the men at the building. They were moving swiftly under cover. Some of the attacking force had been seen. The majority of the rustlers took to the stockade. Four ran into the main cabin.

It was as if she gazed upon the activities of battling ants, the whole game spread out in the field of her glasses. There came a lull in the action and she knew that the sheriff had raised his voice to summon them to come out without their guns and go back as prisoners to stand trial for every crime under the sun.

Not a shot had been fired. Inside the stockade she could see Lang's men kneeling or flattened on the ground as they gazed through cracks in the walls.

She made out Harris, crouching in a draw. A thin haze of smoke spurting from his position. Three similar puffs showed along the face of the stockade. Then the sounds of the shots drifted to her—faint, snappy reports. Throughout the next half-hour there was not a shot fired in the dirt; no general bombardment, no wild shooting, but guerrilla warfare where every man held his fire for a definite human target. A man shifted his position in the stockade, raised the top of a hole breast high, and she saw him pitch down on the ground before the sound of the shot reached her. One of her men had noted the darkening of the crack and had searched him out with a rifle shot. Three shots answered it from the main cabin.

She presently noted one of her men sitting under a sheltering barn and eating his lunch. She looked at her watch; it was after three—the day more than half gone and less than a hundred shots had been fired. Five men were down in the stockade.

The shadows lengthened rapidly, and her view through the glasses was beginning to blur when the gates of the stockade swung back and five horses dashed out, running at top speed under the urge of the spurs, a wild stampede for safety, every man for himself.

She saw one man lurch sideways and slip to the ground; another straightened in the saddle, swung for two jumps, and slid off backward across the rump of his mount. The shooting ceased when six shots had been fired. Four ridersless horses were careening round the basin.

The stockade was empty, leaving only four in the house to be accounted for. A tiny point of light attracted her eye. It grew and spread. She knew that one of her men had crawled up under cover of night and fired the house. She thought of the burning buildings on the Three Bar and rose to make her way back to the pocket where the horses had been left in the care of a deputy.

All through the day she had severely taxed and she was tired. The hours of inactivity had proved more wearing than a day in the saddle. Harris and the sheriff came in with their detail. There were no prisoners.

A little later Bentley's men rode up and five minutes behind them came Carp with the rest, and all hands turned in. At daylight the long journey to the Three Bar was commenced. Twenty miles out from the ranch and before noon of the next day the sheriff and the marshals had split off with their men, leaving the Three Bar crew to ride the short intervening space to the ranch alone.
