Elvern Noha, 18, Drowned Sat'day In No. Loup River

15-Foot-Deep Hole Near Mouth Of Rogers Creek Claims Farm Youth As Victim.

The North Loup river near Ord claimed its first victim in several years Saturday afternoon when Elvern A. Noha, 18-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Mike Noha, was drowned in a 15-foot-deep hole two miles south of Ord, near the mouth of a creek on the Hi Rogers farm.

With a friend, Leland Cronk, young Noha went to the river for a swim about 4:30 p. m. Saturday. The boys had swam at this place all last summer and believed the water to be only three or four feet deep, unaware that flood waters had scooped out one of the deepest holes ever found in the North Loup river.

Both boys could swim a little but were used to swimming in running water, whereas water in this eddy was almost still.

According to young Cronk, he and Elvern disrobed and waded in to the water, which was shallow near the shore. Suddenly Elvern dropped out of sight and came up screaming for help. Apparently the boy lost his head for instead of struggling toward shore, only a few feet away, his struggles carried him farther out into the river.

Leland Cronk plunged to the assistance, grabbed him and tried to pull him toward shore but Elvern was much the larger and stronger of the two and pulled Leland under water several times. For a few moments it looked as though both boys would be drowned, according to John Sebesta, who was fishing in the creek close by, but finally Leland broke Elvern's hold and succeeded in reaching shallow water.

He then took Mr. Sebesta's fish pole and threw the end of it to Elvern, hoping to pull him ashore, but the pole broke and Elvern went down again. He failed to come to the surface again.

Young Cronk then got into the car in which the boys went to the river and came to Ord for help, arriving at city hall corner just as City Clerk Rex Jewett and Marshal L. H. Covert were locking the hall at 5:00. In incoherent fashion he gasped out his news and the men left at once for the river in Jewett's car, guided by Leland.

"A cramp hit me on my first dive they at once began diving for Elvern's body. On his third dive Marshal Covert touched the boy's hand but on succeeding dives failed to locate him again. He told Jewett where he believed the body was located, about twenty feet from shore, and Rex began diving for him. On his third dive he grasped the boy's upflung hand and pulled him to the surface and then, aided by Covert, carried him ashore and applied artificial respiration, without avail. The body had been under water 40 minutes.

In the meantime Dr. C. J. Miller, Sheriff George Round and County Attorney Alvin B. Lee had reached the scene. Dr. Miller examined the boy and pronounced him dead and the body was brought to Sowl's mortuary in the Sowl ambulance, which Jim Mortensen had brought to the scene.

Both Jewett and Covert estimate the depth of water where the body was found at 15 feet. On the surface the water was warm but a few feet down was icy cold and it is believed that Elvern may have suffered a cramp.

Mr. and Mrs. Steven Urbanski and I thought I was done, sure," City Clerk Jewett says. "In a minute I was all right and kept on diving." Elvern's body was partly

Capron Reelected Head By Title Men

ARTHUR B. CAPRON.

A. B. Capron, member of the Capron Agency of Ord, last Wednesday was reelected president of the Nebraska Title association at its annual convention, held in the Faxon Hotel, Omaha. Other officers elected were Leo J. Crosby, Omaha, vice-president, Guy E. Johnson, Wahoo, secretary-treasurer, Verne E. Hedge, Lincoln, George M. Lathrop, Nebraska City, Phil O'Hanlon, Blair, and Herman Buckow, Grand Island, directors. Mr. Capron has been one of the most active and efficient presidents Nebraska title men have ever had and his reelection to this important office met with general acclaim.

Files Answer To Wife's Petition

Saturday in district court here Perry Timmerman filed an answer to his wife's petition for divorce. In his answer Mr. Timmerman accuses his wife of infidelity and of addiction to liquor, also asking custody of their two minor children. In case the court thinks it unwise to place the children in his custody, he asks that they be given to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Timmerman.

Will Make 'Better Housing' Drive

Joseph J. Gallagher, of Omaha, field representative of the Federal Housing Administration, was in Ord Tuesday making arrangements for a "better housing" drive to be carried out here in the near future. "We must try to get some of these men off the FERA by putting them to work on home repair work that needs doing in this community," Mr. Gallagher said.

Ord banks, building material dealers, contractors, hardware stores, plumbers and other business men will cooperate. Full details will be announced in the near future.

Two Liquor Stores Now Open In Ord; Business Rushing

Legal Booze Returns After 21 Years Absence; Prices Too High, Is Complaint.

John Barleycorn is back. Outlawed in Ord twenty-one years ago, he made his return to this city Saturday and that afternoon was sold legally and openly for the first time in over two decades.

Last year in which Ord voted wet was in 1914 and in the two following years voters of this city refused to sanction saloons. In 1917 Nebraska voted dry and two years later came national prohibition. Now, by vote of the people, all prohibitory laws—local, state and national—have been repealed.

Store opened Saturday. Thursday the Nebraska Liquor Control Commission granted a license to sell liquor by the original package to Petska & Michalek and Saturday a truck load of whiskey, brandy, gin and other stimulants was trucked from Omaha for this firm by K. W. Peterson. Saturday noon the Petska & Michalek store opened for business in the Haskell building on the south side of the square.

Saturday the state commission granted a license to Frank J. Faletta, Jr., and Tuesday the Faletta liquor store opened in the Mortensen building on the west side of the square.

Old Brands Too Costly. Much curiosity attended the opening of these stores and both were crowded with people as liquor went on sale. Both stores report that business is fairly good with low-priced whiskeys being the items most in demand. Brands of liquor familiar to drinkers of pre-prohibition days are, generally speaking, so expensive that little such liquor is being sold.

At Arcadia the Ramsey drug store will sell liquor, starting this week. So far, no application for a license to sell in North Loup has reached the state commission.

Fined for Intoxication. Two traveling salesmen who got too much to drink in Ord last Wednesday were fined $10 and costs each when they appeared before Judge John L. Andersen the next day. Donald Whitmore and Richard Beal were the names given by the men.

"Come Back With That Case of Gin," Shouted Ed Michalek Just Then the Shutter Snapped

Legal liquor returned to Ord Saturday after an absence of 21 years. K. W. Peterson was unloading a truck load for the Petska & Michalek store. Naturally, people gathered to watch the unusual sight and many jokes were heard. "Come back with that gin," shouted Co-owner Ed Michalek. Perliniski turned, grinned, and just then Photographer H. E. Jones, of the Quiz staff, snapped this picture. Also in the picture is Mr. Michalek. Just out of sight was standing Jerry Petska and only his arm can be seen at the left of this picture.

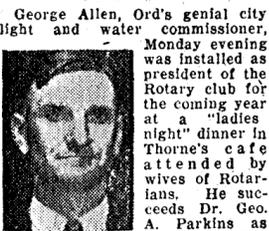

Biggest Catfish Caught Friday By Lyle Hanson

To Lyle Hanson, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Hanson of Springdale, goes credit for catching the biggest game fish in this community this summer, so far as the Quiz knows. Moreover, he used nothing but his hands to catch the fish.

Last Friday after the storm Lyle was walking through the Hanson pasture and spied the huge catfish in a puddle left by receding waters. He caught it with his hands, carried it home and weighed it, learning that the fish weighed 3 1/2 pounds. When Mr. Hanson dressed the catfish he found 50 angleworms, many minnows and one quill-back six inches long in its stomach.

Allen Installed Monday Night As Rotary President

Succeeds Dr. Parkins As Chief Of Club; Cullen N. Wright Is Principal Speaker.

George Allen, Ord's general city light and water commissioner, Monday evening was installed as president of the Rotary club for the coming year at a "ladies night" dinner in Thorne's cafe attended by wives of Rotarians. He succeeds Dr. Geo. A. Parkins as head of the club.

Allen was elected president about two months ago but, in accordance with custom, was not installed as president until the first meeting in July. Other officers who began a year of service Monday night include John Goddard, vice-president, Dr. George R. Gard, secretary, August Petersen, treasurer, Forrest Johnson and E. L. Vogelanz, directors.

Principal speaker Monday evening was Cullen N. Wright, of Grand Island, often called "Nebraska's Will Rogers." Mingling sense and non-sense in delightful fashion, Mr. Wright lived up to his far-flung reputation as an able after-dinner speaker.

Coffee Requested To Hurry Approval Of Ord Postoffice

Chamber of Commerce Urging Congressman to Secure Funds for Building.

Spurred into action by news that 1,200 cities in the United States have been declared eligible for federal buildings and funds are available to construct only 500, the Ord Chamber of Commerce last week sent telegrams to Congressman Harry Coffee urging him to have the Ord project approved at once.

Ord has been placed on the list of towns eligible for buildings to cost 50 to 75 thousand, with construction to start this summer, but funds have not yet been allotted for the project.

24 Towns Eligible. There are 23 other cities in Nebraska eligible for such buildings and probably not more than 10 or 12 will be built this year, says Postmaster Edwin Clements. Ord is thought to be well toward the top of the list of cities eligible in Nebraska.

Glen D. Auble, secretary of the Chamber, is awaiting Congressman Coffee's reply before deciding what further action should be taken. An appeal may also be made to Senators Burke and Norris.

Will Get Rebate Checks. Rebate checks for all farmers who had corn sealed under the 1933 federal corn-loan plan will arrive in Ord this week and may be secured at his office, said County Agent C. C. Dale Tuesday. The rebate checks were mailed to him by the Nebraska railway commission Tuesday. Farmers must come to the county agent's office to get them.

Boy's Foot Severed By Mowing Machine

Arcadia—(Special)—Floyd, 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Carpenter, fell from a mowing machine which he was operating Saturday, directly in front of the sickles. One foot was cut almost off and he was rushed to Grand Island for medical attention in the home that the food might be saved. The Carpenter family lived nine miles southwest of here.

Ord Beats Loupers In 12-Inning Clash; Game Is Protested

Olson Car Wrecked. Sunday evening, while driving to Elyria to deliver a keg of beer for the Ord Artificial Ice Co., Horace Johnson lost control of the new Terraplane car owned by Olaf Olson and it rolled over three times. Only injury to Horace was a small cut on one ear. Robert Albers, who was riding with him, escaped with a small gash on his head. Damage estimated at $250 was done to the car, which was fully insured.

Dives To Recover Body of Noha Boy

REX JEWETT.

City Clerk Rex Jewett, a good swimmer and diver, had to go fifteen feet under water Saturday to recover the body of Elvern Noha. He was assisted by Marshal L. H. Covert.

Will Give Account Book To Farmers

Through the courtesy of a group of Ord business and professional men, a simplified farm account book that should prove very valuable to any farmer who wishes to keep books, is being mailed this week to every farmer in the Ord community. "Farm Accounts, Simplified," is the official title of the book, which contains twenty pages of forms covering every farm operation.

Forms used in this book were devised by a county agent in Madison county and are copyrighted by a Norfolk firm, from whom permission to use them was secured. Advertising of sponsors appears in the book.

Instructions for using this book appear on the first page and it is believed any farmer can, by devoting a very few minutes each day to the task, keep track of his financial and business operations as well as any business man does with a much more complicated bookkeeping system.

The period from July 1, 1934, to July 1, 1935, should be kept track of in this book. It is planned to issue the book annually hereafter if farmers find it beneficial.

At Corn-Hog School.

About fifty men and boys were in Ord Tuesday attending a school of instruction for prospective corn-hog supervisors. From the group 28 were to be appointed, said County Agent C. C. Dale. Appointments had not been announced when the Quiz went to press Tuesday night.

Wants Flower Pictures.

Rev. Willard McCarthy, pastor of the Ord Christian church, is anxious to secure the negatives of pictures of Ord flower gardens and other beauty spots. He will tint the negatives and prepare them for another stereopticon show which he plans to give this fall.

Extra Copies

Believing that because of the flood pictures and other photographs that illustrate this edition so profusely Quiz subscribers may desire to purchase extra copies to mail to friends and relatives living elsewhere, 100 extra copies of this issue are being printed. This supply will not last long so if you want one or several extra copies reserve them at once. They are 5c each.

Flood, Hail, Wind, Combine To Wreak Destruction Here

Thursday's Storm Called Worst In History, Swept Central Part of Valley Co.

Two torrential downpours that brought 3 1/2 inches of rain in less than three hours visited the Ord community last Thursday, flooding basements and causing thousands of dollars worth of damage. Hail and high winds accompanied the rain.

The first storm hit about 10:00 a. m. and lasted a half hour; the second hit about 12:30 and continued for twenty minutes.

Worst damage probably was caused at Bussell Park in the afternoon when Dane creek overflowed and deposited a foot of mud over the golf course and picnic grounds. The flood-lighted kitenball field cannot be used for the rest of the summer nor can holes Nos. 1 and 7 of the golf course. It was the first time Bussell park has been flooded since 1929.

Picnic Grounds Flooded. Picnic tables and benches floated down Dane creek with the flood waters, Bud Shirley's ornate flower bed near the golf club house was a lake, the bridge on the park drive was undermined and considerable other damage done.

Water was three feet deep on the West L street pavement during the height of Thursday's storm. The canyon that runs east of the Capron and Weller houses was running bank full and water ran over the pavement on No. 11 highway four feet deep for a space of two hours. Frank Banda's cleaning plant on the bank of this canyon was flooded, as was his house basement.

The east half of town was isolated for a time by the flood which was the worst in 35 years, according to Frank Koupal, who lives near this canyon. Water reached his front porch at its height, he claims. The Wm. Wigent and George Daily houses on the edge of this canyon were flooded.

Try Embank Pits. At the municipal light plant a dozen men worked throwing up an embankment to keep water out of pits that had been dug for the new fuel oil tanks but they were twenty feet deep with water Thursday evening. The tanks were raised 6 to 8 feet and brickwork and masonry was destroyed.

The North Loup river was high all day but reached its highest point between 4:00 and 6:30 p. m., when it overflowed Anderson's Island and the low lands east of the river for a quarter of a mile. Mazac's slaughter house was inundated.

Many basements in the business section were flooded, not only from run-off water that storm sewers could not handle but also from backing up of the sewer itself. The basement in Kee's cafe was five feet deep with water, the Furtak barber shop in the State bank building was flooded and many other business buildings had from a foot to three feet of water in the basements. Residential basements also were flooded, particularly on L and K streets and in the east part of town.

Heavy Hail Storm.

Little hail fell in Ord but west of town Vance Grabowski reports complete destruction of small grain crops. Lyle McBeth, rural mail carrier, says hail was so deep on the county road near the Grabowski place that his tires did not cut through. Luckily, severe hail damage was confined to a comparatively small area, west and south of Ord, although slight Wednesday, June 26, 1935.

Dear Quiz Readers:

I have been coming to Cullen Lake for fifteen years and I never saw such damnable weather in June as we are having this year. The real fact of the matter is that we have had only two or three nice days since we came and much of the time we cannot get onto the lake because of the wind. Yesterday we, the Missus and I, went to the upper lake right after dinner and it blew us off the lake and we had to give it up and come home. The only place we could fish was in a small cove on the south side of our own lake and even there the anchor dragged off and we were continually rowing back, till we got disgusted and came in fishless. The wind went down with the sun and we went out and caught a mess of bluegills and we have plenty of pan fish in the livebox, but the wind is blowing again today worse than it did yesterday and it is clouding up, looking like rain. That, the natives say, means three days more of wind. We expect that kind of weather here in the fall, but not in June. As a rule June is a delightful month here, usually the warmest of the summer. And never before have I seen it here when fishing was not good in June. The terrible weather here, coupled with the fact that the water is very high, probably accounts for the poor fishing.

I was just up the line in camp and found the Augustines had arrived from Grand Island and were opening their cottage and getting dinner, all at the same time. The party consists of Mr. and Mrs. Augustine, a daughter and two sons. Mr. Augustine was telling me he was going to do some building, probably a nice big porch on the lake side of his cottage, possibly a garage. He is a trout fisherman and also has a cottage at Medicine Bow, Wyo., and has been going there for years to fish trout and he says that while they all like it here (they were here last year) he is not going to give up his trout fishing.

Further up the Lakins have their addition to their house all enclosed. Windows are not out in 'as yet and when I was there the sound of saw and hammer had ceased and all I could hear was the wind in the trees and Ross and Alfred snoring in the house as they took their after-dinner naps. Guess the wind was blowing too hard for them to even drive nails.

The people in the Mackowsky cottage walk around the yard and I think I could give a pretty good guess of what they are thinking but no gentleman would use such language. They were here last year in August and it was just such weather, cold and so windy that they only got a couple of days fishing in the two weeks they were here. They said they were going in June this year and have good weather and here they are with the same kind of weather they had last year and the first time in years it has been that way this month.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Humphreys and a friend, Dale Graham, from Clarinda, Iowa, arrived yesterday and are busy getting their cottage, the former John Keown place, in shape for a stay of a month. Dale braved the high waves and motored across the lake a while ago and we can see him with the glasses, fishing under the hill in the McDowell cove. He can catch all the small sunfish he wants there but if he gets very many large ones he will do better than we could.

Judge Clements has been busy cutting the high grass and otherwise cleaning his place. He had stone hauled last fall and planned then, on building a fireplace but he has not indicated that he would go ahead with the project this summer. I presume when the cool fall days come, if he should come back then, he will get fireplace-minded again. He is thinking more about fishing now and is expecting a new Johnson motor which he ordered through the L. & L. firm and when it comes I presume bridge will get a severe letting alone for a few days. Now, having but three in his family, I have to loan him a bridge player every afternoon and evening.

Well, the storm came up awfully fast and I had to stop and go out and cover the motor and get my tackle out of the boat. We went out this morning early. Before the wind came up so hard and when we came in, left some tackle in the boat. It is raining awful hard right now and I can see a motor out in the lake, streaking for home, evidently from the upper lake when they got caught in the storm. No doubt but what they will be soaked to the skin even if their boat doesn't upset, which of course it won't, but the motor might get wet and stop and in this wind they would have a hard struggle to go on against it and might have to seek shelter in the woods till the storm is over.

We have been spending some of our spare time making a rock garden in a low place in front of our cottage and if the picture which Flora took proves good, the boys may be able to show it to you along with this letter. The rocks, some of them all that two strong men could lift and load, were gathered along the road where they had been blasted out in building the road. There are others there several times as big, that we would like to have, but they are too big to handle. The wild flowers that we took up and transplanted, are doing better than I should think they could in this weather and so late in the season. We took them up with plenty of dirt however. Ladies in Ord would pay several dollars to get ferns like we can dig by the hundreds if we wish. We moved some fifteen inches tall, great bunches of fronds and apparently they don't know they have been moved.

Oscar Wallin, said to be a direct descendant of Leif Erickson, who with his hardy Norsemen were probably the first real discoverers of North America. His whiskers make him look a good deal like his early ancestor, as you will agree if the boys in the office are able to get a good cut of the picture we have taken of him. Oscar is cutting logs for a new home for himself and wife and he expects to start building in a month. The logs, about six inches through, are taken to the sawmill just over the hill and squared on three sides. The bark will be taken off the other side and when the logs have seasoned a month they will be laid up into a solid wall, the inside being flat and the outside looking like a real log house. This is said to make a very warm house and surely it will be solid. When completed it will have a couple of rooms each about ten by eighteen feet and Oscar and Ruth will be happy arranging their new home and planning for the arrival of the stork in the early fall months. Those of us who have gone through the same happy experiences can sympathize and be happy with them and wish them well in all the years that are before them.

KEEPING FIT FOR SUCCESS
By Dr. V. E. Levine, professor of bio-chemistry and nutrition, the Creighton University School of Medicine.

Typhoid Fever.
Typhoid fever is an acute communicable disease caused by Bacillus typhosus. Clinically the disease is characterized by fever, intestinal disturbances and diarrhea, enlargement of the spleen, and a rose-spot eruption of the skin, and general symptoms of bacterial invasion.

The incubation period of typhoid fever is usually from ten to fourteen days. It may, however, vary dependent on the virulence of the invading organism.

All human beings are universally susceptible to typhoid fever. The disease occurs more frequently during youth and early adult life and is rather uncommon during the later years of life. One attack of typhoid confers immunity in most cases. Second attacks however, occur occasionally.

Geographically the distribution of typhoid fever is world-wide. Climate by itself does not affect the prevalence of typhoid fever except it modifies the habits and movements of men and as it influences the chances for bacilli to grow outside the human body. The incidence of typhoid fever seems to display seasonal variation. The incidence is greater during the months of July, August and September and reaches the highest peak for the year in October. After that time the incidence gradually decreases, remaining low during the winter and spring months.

The increased incidence during the summer and early autumn is apparently due to the fact that during this part of the year more people frequent districts where measures for the control of typhoid are not enforced. Typhoid fever due water-borne infection tends to occur during the colder months.

In the absence of natural or artificial protection through immunity, the prevalence of typhoid in a community is governed largely by the sanitary conditions under which the inhabitants live.

In communities having a potable water supply and proper supervision of food supplies, the incidence of typhoid fever is low and the disease tends to disappear. Under these conditions typhoid fever occurs only as endemic or residual typhoid fever in the form of sporadic cases or limited epidemics.

Residual typhoid is spread principally by carriers through the medium of food, contact, and flies.

Something DIFFERENT

So many lovely roses in Ord. On the big white fan trellis at the front of the Guy LeMasters home is a fine climbing rose, thickly sprinkled with bright red blossoms, a gorgeous sight. The rose garden at the rear of the Dr. C. C. Shepard home is beautiful this year. Planned and planted by the late doctor, his widow finds much comfort in the beautiful flowers, each bush a fine rose of a named variety, famous in its own right.

This past spring, with its plentiful showers and many cool days has been just what was needed for many plants that came through the winter in a sad way after the severe dry summer of last year. And consequently many yards are beautiful again that once about a year ago looked as though they never again could be attractive.

A nice rose bed in the side yard of the John Klein home is a lovely vision.

There is something charming about a yard that is altogether green, with well clipped lawn, with a base planting of green shrubs about the house... without any flowers or colored blossoms. Such a yard usually has only perennial shrubs and plants, and no effort is made to set out beds of flowers, pansies, asters, geraniums, whatnot.

There are in Ord a lot of these green, well cared for yards. Notice them as you drive up and down the streets of our pretty small city.

Seeing the water rushing where it wasn't supposed to was the chief sport in Ord after our big rain. Many, many housewives left their dishes, half-finished work and piled into cars to drive hither and yon. Lots of substantial citizens retained good shoes plowing through the mud to view the roaring water as it went over the bridge near the Claud Romas home, and back of E. C. Weller's, and J. H. Capron's. This was probably the biggest sight in Ord. The water was several feet deep over the Covert garden, and the stream was many, many feet wide. The pavement of the highway was under water for a block or so as the water poured over it in a torrent going to the east and north toward the river.

An odd touch was the sight of a barrel that bounded in this river-sized stream, tossing wildly. When the barrel hit the pavement, it bounced a hen who once thought her barrel home a fine place to set on some eggs but found her domestic affairs sadly unsettled by the big storm and its water. I wonder what became of that poor hen.

The water rose so rapidly that many an Ordite turned to ask another "Could we have a flood here like the Republican River one?" Most of the answers were in the negative.

Frank Koupal said the water had not been so high in 35 years past. At the dam where Dane Creek flows through the foot of his gardens, the water roared and rose so much the dam was finally completely buried from sight, and soon the bridge nearby was roped off, under water too.

Across the road from his place the park was a pretty lake, or would have been if the water had been gentle. The foot bridges went out at once, though strongly anchored. One of them was pushed against a row of trees and stopped there, the other went merrily bobbing to the east as I watched.

Mrs. George Anderson and I decided we were the two smartest women we saw that day. Everyone had on shoes that were soaked and shapeless. What did we

THE COOK'S COL-YUM, YUM!

Cake remains just about the final test of a cook's ability and cake continues, as it has for many years, to be a favorite sweet. There are some cake recipes that are practically foolproof, and these are the recipes that I treasure. Why risk time and ingredients on a cake that is difficult, when you know a good recipe for a good cake that almost or never fails? And of all cakes, I think white cakes are probably most difficult to make. Perfect results in a white cake mean a fine textured, moist white cake, one that does not dry out the first day, either. The cake should be white, not gray or yellowish, and it should be light, not heavy. It shouldn't be chew-able, but should melt away quickly in the mouth. Easy to Make White Cake. Sift together one cup sugar, two cups flour, two teaspoons baking powder, add one-half cup butter and work in as for pie crust. Mix thoroughly and add one cup milk to this mixture. Beat five minutes. Now fold in the stiffly beaten whites of two eggs. This makes two layers.

way, sweeten and cool. When cool mix with whipped cream sweetened to taste, and a can of grated pineapple.
Mrs. Joe Peterson, Arcadia. A tip for you from a Quiz subscriber reads: "For a dinner party dessert, serve a delicious fruit pie with a crust of ice cream, the center filled with fresh fruit or frozen strawberries. The top crust is also made of ice cream and decorated with colored whipped cream."

CARE OF COUNTY BOARD
By George Gowen

Hogs. I have visited the last twenty-one weeks something like 400 farms. About 20 a week. A few of the deductions are as follows. Take them or leave them. They're free with the paper.

There are very few hogs in the country. Last week I called on eight farms without seeing a hog or a pig. Finally in despair I asked one man and he said he had one. One to butcher. There may have been a few others but they were not in sight. Several of these farms I am sure did not have any at all.

The only drove of fat hogs were at Geweke's. I saw three bunches of tiny pigs just farrowed, indicating these men decided late to raise a few. Ordinarily this has been a great hog country, each man raising fifty to a hundred. I find the same true everywhere I go.

Horses. I find lots of little colts. Nearly every farm has one or two and more to come. Most of these are nice ones. This is not all. Nearly every man is hoping to raise a few more next year. He is breeding every available mare. The stallion men have been busy.

I have offered my opinion to several men and some of them have agreed. I predicted that in about four years when these colts are ready to work, horses will be cheap. An over-supply. One or two men did not agree. They said that there are so many old horses, the colts will not nearly off-set the deaths that are bound to come.

I have not seen a baby mule this year, nor have I seen a Jack.

Tractors. I find tractors more popular this year than ever before. Every available one is in use. High feed prices is the reason. I find old Fordsons and one would ordinarily think would be in the junk heap, are following up and down the fields. Several men are working their tractors nights to save buying horse feed and horses. Second hand tractors sell about as good as any farm machinery, and far better than second hand cars.

Pastures. I find that the wild grass pastures are very badly killed out from the ravages of last year's drought. In many pastures there is nothing but weeds growing. The south sides of the hills are the worst. In many places no grass can be seen at all. A fuzzy something is growing but not the blue stem.

A new kind of grass has appeared. In places where the blue stem used to be the rankest, I find this new grass. It grows tall as a horse's belly, tough and wiry, with a head something like wheat. The cattle do not seem to eat it. Other places weeds, and sunflowers, and fire weed are all that appears.

It is a serious situation. Many people think if the native grass is once killed it will never return. Others say it will in time. But the country has not been settled long enough to find the time yet. Some say blue stem and buffalo grass spreads from the roots. Should that be the case, there may be enough roots left to eventually spread and cover the ground. Most folks think it will be a long long time.

From reports, some of the wild hay land, that was not grubbed last year is not hurt so badly. But most folks grubbed it.

Poultry. I may be wrong but it seems like there is an average crop of chickens. Especially in Mira Valley do I find lots of them. That normally is a great place for poultry.

One man, Wm. Schudel, has converted his hog house into a turkey ranch, and is having fine luck so far. So far he is enthusiastic about the change and is not sorry. With the scientific methods of raising poultry now days, more people are turning to that. And John Bremer says the price of chickens is almost always higher than either hogs or cattle.

Cattle. There are not many cattle in the country. The feed lots that normally have cattle are mostly empty. But on the other hand, pasture has been hard to find in these parts.

A bumper crop of small grain is the promise in places where hail has not struck. Corn is late and thin but coming better now where it is not halled or flooded. The alfalfa is a bumper crop but damaged by rain. The next crop will be good and soon ready to cut.

New planted trees have lived and done well for nearly everyone. Blue grass lawns were killed last year, but new seeding is coming. Ash, elm, pine and boxelder trees have been killed by the hundreds. The cottonwoods, cedars, blue spruce and Hackberries have lived through. Natives perhaps. Know how to stand the gaff. Most people have a lot of faith in the Chinese elms. Some few do not report so favorably.

Everyone has a little better spirit than last year, but still broke. Nothing to sell yet. Living on hopes of this year's crop.

We Know How to Spend Only the Electric Chair Anglo-French Rift Surprise for Blue Eagle

Uncle Sam is learning to spend. A few lines tell you that the Bankhead bill, making the government guarantee a loan of one thousand million dollars to help tenant farmers buy their farms, is passed. No fuss or excitement about it. Senator King wanted to cut the one thousand millions to two hundred millions, but was "shouted down."

Do you recall the excitement when Theodore Roosevelt wanted to build the Panama canal for two or three hundred millions? Now "one billion" is almost "small change."

Some young criminals, apparently, can be adequately managed only by the electric chair. In their case it seems useless to talk of reform, or "another chance." They are distinctly of the rattlesnake class.

Consider a twenty-five-year-old machinist, captured in Peoria, who confessed to murder when the clothing of a dead girl was tossed into his lap. "Yes, I did it," he sobbed. This young murderer kept a diary, which in one month recorded 18 attacks on young women. The electric chair should cure his sobbing.

In the lute of Anglo-French friendship and understanding there comes a rift, wide enough to let a coach and four drive through. England, dealing directly with Germany and Hitler, now rejects the French suggestion of a "consultative pact," which would compel Britain to consult France before reaching any important diplomatic conclusions.

That ought to interest this country, which agreed to consult every body on earth before building more ships, or tilting its big guns to the most effective angle.

It is stated, bluntly, by British officials: "Britain is placing greater stress on friendly co-operation with Germany, closer consultations with the British dominions, and a steady drift toward co-operation with the United States."

News from the Department of Commerce would surprise the recent deceased Blue Eagle, and others: "Business shows sharp upturn throughout country since death of Blue Eagle."

This is the skeleton announcement; the details show retail sales increasing, in spite of abominable spring weather, in some of the big cities.

Union labor demands that all United States railroads be nationalized, owned by the people, run by the government. Reason? Private owners do not know how to run them. The roads would be bought, not confiscated, presumably, which would mean twenty to thirty more billions of national debt.

Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., and Laura La Plante—surely you know her—after work on the set near Monte Carlo's gambling room dressed up and presented themselves for an evening's entertainment.

The doorkeeper said bluntly: "You work in Monaco, so you may not enter the gambling rooms. That's the rule."

Monte Carlo wisdom is in that rule. The Casino spreads money among Monaco's inhabitants, but will not take the inhabitants' money, and so avoids trouble.

Another wise ruler is Mr. Bradley, who owns the tourists' "wide open" gambling house at Palm Beach, but will not allow natives to lose in his place. When you gamble, you know, you lose. If you do not know it, try.

Mussolini has a habit, annoying to Britons especially, of digging up past history. He is expected to tell the British: "I want a protectorate over Ethiopia, with a free hand, and I invite you to remember what happened to Germany's colonies after the war. You promised to give Italy her share if she joined the allies, which she did. The war ended, and you British gobbled up all the German colonies worth having."

Sheriff Miller of Martinez, Calif., knows that the weakest thing in superstition is man's mind. Attack that and you have him. Anaceto Torrest said he had not killed Area Cabrera. In a locked drawer in a cell occupied by Torrest the sheriff concealed a loud speaker, muffled to make it sound ghostly, and continually Torrest, not knowing whence it came, heard a voice saying in Spanish: "You killed me. I am Area's ghost. You had better confess. You know you killed me." Torrest thought it unwise to ignore the advice of a ghost and confessed accordingly.

Strawberry Harvest In Full Swing at Wetzell Truck Farm; Marketing Vegetables Is Biggest Job, Says Busy Owner

One of the biggest truck gardens in this section of the country is operated by G. P. (Gus) Wetzell and his wife, who live on the east side of the river, just over the bridge on the road from North Loup to Greeley. They have a farm of forty acres and a little chunk extra along the river that was homesteaded a few years ago. Gus acquired the place 13 years ago from Ed Helbig, who had bought it the year before of El Green.

They can irrigate almost the entire forty with their pump, drawing the water out of the river. This year they have not irrigated at all except their strawberries, and last year they had their engine and pump going nearly all the time.

Wife Is Boss Too. As far as anyone knows Mrs. Wetzell assumes equal responsibility with the work as her husband. Never a word of discord is ever heard, and both are inveterate workers. Their daughter Neva lives there and is also a part of the farm.

No small part of their business is their strawberries. Their patch varies each year but is usually about two acres. Last year they harvested 2,500 quarts, this year so far about 3,000, and some years as high as 9,000 boxes. The picking lasts about three weeks and from 5 to 20 pickers are employed. These girls pick by the box and start as soon as they can see in the morning. They wear large hats and overalls, rubber tubes on their knees and look so had Gus had to nearly threaten to fire them to get them to have their picture taken.

20 Men Working. They raise 2 acres of onions. The production here varies, but last year they harvested 1500 bushels. He sells these over the country throughout the winter. One day last week Gus had 20 men employed to thin the patch. He hires one man, Jim Ingerson, steady, and more help as needed. Jim boards all the time. The others for dinner. The pickers carry their lunch.

They have 1 1/2 acres of tomatoes and usually about six acres of cabbage. (This year 10). Two acres of sweet potatoes, three of watermelons, two of miscellaneous, two or more of Irish potatoes, beside sweet corn, sudan grass and a large flower bed.

Selling Hardest Task. Besides this Gus finds time to go fishing on Sunday, and he catches 'em too. The sale of their products is no small task. Every Wednesday and Saturday afternoons Gus is on the streets of Ord and he says he makes real sales there, besides receiving the most courteous treatment from the mayor in regard to location of his wagon. Saturday night he is on the streets of North Loup. He goes to Arcadia, Scotta, Greeley, Wolbach, Primrose and even other towns occasionally. Greeley is one of his best points, especially for his onions and strawberries, North Loup the poorest. Merchants there have shipped in onions when he would sell them cheaper. It is no small job to get the produce gathered and ready to sell.

Pedigreed Berries. His strawberries have won quite a reputation. He cannot nearly supply his orders. Grocers in Grand Island wanted his berries this year but he could not supply them. Greeley is a good town. Spalding takes quite a lot. Ord takes a great quantity and he has had orders for two crates from Lincoln this year. Someone visiting at Spalding liked his berries so well they called on long distance and ordered the crates sent C. O. D.

With sand. Work of cleaning the plant up has not yet been completed and some machinery may have to be replaced. Mr. Benda's basement garage also was filled with water, which reached up to the cushions of a new car parked within.

First White Leper. From the absence of evidence to the contrary, it is believed that leprosy did not exist in the Western hemisphere until introduced from Europe and Africa. In 1573, in Colombia, the first white man of prominence was declared a leper.

Beaux and Belles Of the Future

Allen Roger Kosmata, Allen Roger is the son of Mr. and Mrs. M. F. "Mike" Kosmata, of Ord, and is sixteen months old.

Marianne Gnaster. Marianne is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Gnaster, of Ord. She is six months old.

George Finch Located. According to an item in the St. Paul Herald, the whereabouts of George Finch, of Ord, was learned last week when he sent a wire to John Brittain, of that city, asking for money due him. Finch, it is stated by the Herald, recently left for the west accompanied by a woman formerly employed at the Whale Cafe in St. Paul. Mrs. Finch has declined to prosecute her husband, it is claimed, and has made the statement that he will return to her voluntarily without invoking the law. Mrs. Finch recently moved from Ord to Alliance and now has employment there.

Hall Damage Serious. Widespread hall damage is being reported to Ord insurance agents, the Quiz learns. Worst damage was west of town about six miles where small grain was hurt from 50 to 100 per cent. East of town damage will run only 10 to 15 per cent. South of town the hall was spotty, some fields being damaged very little and others up to 50 or 75 per cent. Much corn was washed out and other cornfields damaged by hail. Hail-damaged corn, most of it, will come back. Gardens, potato patches and alfalfa fields also suffered from the hail.

Cleaning Plant Flooded. Benda's cleaning plant, which is located at the rear of Mr. Benda's lot and on the bank of the canyon in southeast Ord, was severely damaged by the flood. When water subsided the floor was covered with mud several inches deep and machinery was coated with slimy mud and filled

Sidelights On Thursday's Downpour

Had Ride In Barrel. Joe Rohla reports the most comical sight seen during Ord's high water period Thursday. Down the torrent of water descending the canyon east of the Capron place came a barrel, whirling in the current. As it hit the edge of the paving near the Romans home out flew a setting hen, squawking with alarm. Apparently the boat ride hadn't bothered her a bit but she didn't care for collisions.

L Street Floodway. About half the flood water in Ord seemed to collect at the Ign. Klima corner of L street. Sewers were unable to handle the vast volume of water and much of it flowed northward, inundating the tennis court, flooding Dr. Barta's basement and then flowing across K street and the school house toward its way to the river. According to Bill Moses, it has always been Ord's policy to have each street ditched to handle its own flood water. Installation of paving has upset this plan and now the water flows down the hill and then down L street.

Easy to Catch Fish. After flood waters subsided in Bussell park Mike Kosmata waded through the mud to a locked box in which kittenball supplies were stored. Flopping about in the mud, he says, were dozens of bullheads about six inches long. He restored many of them to the creek. In the Mortensen pasture north of town many good-sized catfish and pike were left in puddles by the receding river waters. Carp, also fell easy victims to hand and pitchfork fishermen in several places.

They Enjoyed Flood. To the juvenile population of Ord the flood Thursday presented a rare treat, something not quite as interesting as a circus, perhaps, but much better than an ordinary movie show. Boys and girls were out in old clothes and bathing suits, disporting themselves in the rain water. Even presence of hailstones that made the water icy didn't seem to bother them.

Last Rites Held For John M. Long

At the Sowl chapel Sunday afternoon, June 30, funeral services were held for John M. Long, 53, who passed away June 25 at St. Alphonsus hospital in Boise, Ida., after a six weeks' illness. Interment was in Ord cemetery. Rev. Mearl C. Smith conducted the rites here.

John Long was the eldest son of the late W. D. Long and Mrs. Long and was born at Ord, Jan. 25, 1882. Until the age of 18 he engaged in farming with his father and then, having taken a course in drawing, became an architect. In 1905 he left for Denver and five years later to Idaho where he bought a ranch at Garden Valley, which remained his home until his final illness. He never married and lived alone on this ranch. A great lover of the west, Mr. Long never returned to Ord after leaving here.

Only relatives present at funeral rites held in Boise, Ida., last Wednesday were his sister, Mrs. Claude Shannon, and daughters Patricia and Roberta, of Tuttle, Okla., but the rites were largely attended by friends from Garden Valley. Mrs. Shannon, then accompanied the body to Ord for burial.

Mr. Long is mourned by his mother and by five sisters and three brothers. They are: Mrs. W. J. Porter, Cairo; Mrs. Herman Timmerman, Ord; Mrs. Claude Honold, Tuttle, Okla.; Grover C. Long, Columbus, Neb.; Mrs. Claude Shannon, Tuttle, Okla.; Leo and Alex Long, Ord; and Mrs. H. M. Fish, Spearfish, S. D. There are also several nieces and nephews.

Washington.—President Roosevelt took the country by surprise when he suddenly disclosed a plan to patch a message to congress asking for a new tax law that would have the same effect, although in a limited scope, of the "share-the-wealth" program advanced by Senator Huey Long and Father Coughlin, the radio priest. It may be said that the President not only surprised but stunned congress by the proposal. It was a move concerning which there has been no forecast and it has taken some research to show how it links with other New Deal reform plans. But a link does exist. Of that there can be no doubt.

Succinctly, Mr. Roosevelt has demanded that congress enact a tax law that will yield, according to estimate, something like $1,000,000,000 annually. It is designed to place the heaviest drala on the rich, whether they be rich corporations or rich individuals. In terms, the President observes that it was a program to tax "static wealth" and increase purchasing power of those not blessed with this world's goods.

The key to the program is the tax on inheritances and gifts. These two taxes must operate jointly if they are to succeed at all. If an individual of wealth wants to avoid already heavy inheritance taxes, he has only to give away his property before his death. In the new Roosevelt proposal, those who receive these gifts would have to pay a tax upon them as they would on any other income. There is a question as to its constitutionality but many able lawyers believe the gift tax will be sustained by the Supreme court.

The second phase of the new tax bill boosts rates of taxes on incomes. At present, the individual with an income of $1,000,000 is taxed at exactly the same rate as the individual having an income of $5,000,000. Of course, the $5,000,000 income pays more total tax, but the point is the rate is the same as on the smaller income. Mr. Roosevelt proposes that the rate should be gradually increased above $1,000,000 just as it is graduated from the lowest income taxpayer to those receiving $1,000,000 annually. There seems to be little opposition to this particular item in the bill although it is natural to expect that attempts will be made to alter that suggestion since there is a school of economic thought which insists that tax rates can be high enough to discourage investments bringing a return to the individual of a size large enough for the government to take the bulk of that income.

The third major item in the President's program provides for a graduated tax on incomes of corporations. Corporations now are taxed at the rate of 13 1/2 per cent of their net income whatever it may be. Mr. Roosevelt thinks this basis is improper. He proposes to have the smaller corporations pay only 10% per cent and that, as the capital of the corporations increase, they be subjected to a gradually higher rate until a top of 16% is applied on the incomes of the largest corporations. Certain modifications or classifications were offered in this connection so that some types of corporations may not be compelled to pay the maximum rate.

The President's program for new taxes was received without particular enthusiasm in congress. More groans than applause were heard. "Amen" by Senator Long. Indeed, the President's message was right down Senator Long's alley. The Louisiana senator has made hundreds of speeches advocating some part of the proposal now offered by the Chief Executive.

Congressional reaction to the President's message included more groans than applause. A political campaign is due next year. Democratic leaders in many instances face re-election. It does not require the services of a soothsayer to tell you that the new taxes are hard for a political candidate to defend.

Superficially, therefore, it would seem that Mr. Roosevelt was playing bad politics when he proposed a tax bill at this time. Such, however, is not the case. Editorial conclusions by dozens of newspapers which understand the political situation in this country at this time are unanimous in terming it a political maneuver. Their conclusions are based on the fact that a candidate seeking political office can go out and say to the people of small incomes: "Look what we are doing to the rich." Thus it is made to appear that a new wave of soak-the-rich propaganda is about to engulf us.

Business interests naturally are alarmed over the prospects. Thousands of corporations have barely been able to make ends meet in these depressing years. Now that there is a prospect of some additional business and more jobs, they are confronted with a wave of new taxes.

It is interesting to note how Mr. Roosevelt, observing a bad reaction to his initial statements concerning the NRA decision, has maintained silence on the point since. It is equally interesting to note how some of his mainstays and advisers have kept the issue bobbing up here and there throughout the country. Such men as Senator Robinson of Arkansas, senate majority leader, and Senator Byrnes of South Carolina, probably the President's closest friend in the senate, have made speeches lately using much the same tone and language as did the President in that memorable press conference. Every other administration spokesman has done the same thing. These speeches together with the continual jabbing and poking by New Deal opponents are serving to keep the question before the country. New Deal opponents frankly are joyful at the opportunity they say the President provided them.

In the meanwhile, as said above, the Republican national committee has been doing next to nothing. The condition is serving to build a fire under Henry P. Fletcher, chairman of the national committee, and is drawing criticism as well to Senator Hastings of Delaware, and Representative Bolton of Ohio, joint chairmen of the senatorial congressional committee. Some Republicans are saying that the Roosevelt opposition is being allowed to wander without guide or anchor and that a golden chance to gain important results is being wholly wasted, because of the inactivity of these two committees.

An old tale about the Blue Eagle has just come to light. It was not disclosed until after the Blue Eagle had been buried under the avalanche of a Supreme court decision holding NRA codes unconstitutional. The story involves the patenting of the design. Artists conceived the Blue Eagle as the NRA insignia. To protect it and prevent unauthorized use of the insignia the design was rushed through the United States patent office. The design was then turned over to an artist at the patent office with instructions to make the necessary prints required by law. He had proceeded only for a brief period on the work when he left his desk to notify the commissioner of patents of what he deemed to be a mistake in the design. His words were prophetic. He called attention to the fact that one wing of the Blue Eagle contained more feathers than the other and added: "Any bird built like that can only fly in a circle."

To shorten the narrative let it be said that the artist was directed to proceed with his work and that he did so. The Blue Eagle was designed and the Supreme court decision was rendered.

Nye Committee Points Need of Protecting Defense Funds From Shipbuilders—Congress Divorces Tax-the-Rich Bill From Nuisance Tax.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

Western Newspaper Union

SENATOR NYE of North Dakota and his committee on munitions do not have a very high opinion of American shipbuilders and they feel that strong legislation is needed "to keep them from confusing public defense needs with their private pocketbooks."

Senator Nye

1. Prevent "collusion" in bidding for navy construction jobs.
 2. Prevent American patents from getting into the hands of foreign powers.
 3. Limit profits to 5 per cent of the total cost to the government, in cases where the government assumes the risks of the enterprise, or to 10 per cent where the government does not.
 4. Requiring the shipbuilders' "lobbyists" register with the government and disclose their income and expenditures.
- The committee finds, in the matter of collusion, that there was "telepathy" among shipyard officials so that in bidding for many contracts each concern was able to get the contracts it wanted at profits that ran as high as 36 per cent. It says the navy has been at the mercy of the shipyards in preparing plans for war vessels and also in determining what were fair prices.
- "A series of bids are put before the navy," the report recites, "and the navy has to take the low one and the taxpayers have to hope and pray that the low one is somewhere within a few million dollars of being reasonable."
- Construction of naval vessels is declared to be more costly in private yards than in government yards.
- "While the evidence is not all in," the report says, "the indications are that the private yards cost the government from one to two million dollars more per cruiser than the navy yards."
- The committee charges big shipbuilders with breaking up the Geneva naval limitation conference in 1927 and immediately launching a price-increase campaign that "made profits of 35 and 25.4 and 36.9 per cent on the cruisers."

LEGISLATIVE administration leaders, for a while in a frenzy of anxiety to hitch the President's tax-the-rich program to the resolution extending the so-called "nuisance" excise taxes, thus speeding it through the Washington legislative factory in four days, suddenly disclaimed any intention of such procedure, and let the $500,000,000 tax extension ride along unopposed. Congress will consider the new taxation program during early July.

2. Train and retrain for industrial, technical and professional employment opportunities.
3. Provide for a continuing attendance at high school and college.
4. Provide work-relief projects designed to meet the needs of youth.

The average payment for youths on relief work will be $15 a month; those going to high school would be given $8 a month, and those attending college $15 a month.

"I have determined that we shall do something for the nation's unemployed youth," said the President, "because we can ill afford to lose the skill and energy of these young men and women. They must have their chance in school, their turn as apprentices and their opportunity for jobs—a chance to work and earn for themselves."

The problem of what to do with the youth who finishes school, supposedly equipped to make his real start in life, and finds what few jobs there are are given to older and married men and women, as well as the youth who is unable to finish school because of poor circumstances, has been one of the most discouraging aspects of the entire depression. The NYA will attempt to remedy it by divisions set up to work with private industry and schools in each state, co-ordinated by national headquarters in Washington.

LIKE most Utopias, the new one in Alaska's Matanuska valley has been reported a nest of discontent; the disillusionment apparently was manifest even quicker than usual in this case. Minnesota, Michigan and Wisconsin farm families who made up a large share of the recent expedition to begin life anew in the North Pacific territory drafted a list of grievances for the FEHA trouble shooter, Eugene Carr.

Many of them said the project was misrepresented, that the land is poor and that housing is not what they were led to believe it would be. Neither are medical service, school facilities, seeds disbursed for planting, the climate and prices for groceries measuring up to advance word-pictures. There is considerable jealousy existing over the distribution of farm land. And to top it all off, the Utopians want government pay for the work they are doing to make new homes for their social and economic rejuvenation.

Protests would get no sympathy unless he found them justified, said Eugene Carr.

GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON, once ambitious to direct the $3,000,000,000 public works program, was named to direct a comparatively small part of the President's new $4,000,000,000 works-relief schedule. As director of works-relief in New York city, he will co-ordinate the program in that area.

With the famed fighting jaw determinedly set, he revealed the four conditions under which he accepted the new job:

1. He will get no pay, only $7,800 for a year's expenses. (He got $6,000 a year for this purpose during most of his time as keeper of the Blue Eagle.) His job will end October 1, unless he and the administration agree that it shall continue. He will devote a minimum of four days a week to his official duties. And he will consult with Mayor Fiorello H. La Guardia as far as possible, but will be responsible to Harry L. Hopkins alone.

NEW YORK'S Harlem and its kindred negro populations throughout the land resounded in jubilation, with chicken and ham in every fryin' pan and juniper juice flowing freely, as Joe Louis, the first great brown hope of pugilism since Jack Johnson, established himself as a real threat to the world's heavyweight boxing championship.

Showing ring generalship far beyond his brief professional experience, boxing ability conspicuous by its absence from the heavy-weight ranks since the days of Corbett, and a wallop like the kick of a cotton-belt mule, the dusky Detroit cut Primo Carnera, Italian human skyscraper, to ribbons for five rounds, knocking him down three times in the sixth, and was declared the winner by technical knock-out in a bout at the Yankee stadium.

Louis, former golden gloves champion, will probably meet Baer and Schmeling before getting a crack at Champlon James J. Braddock's title.

DESPITE Germany's promise never again to engage in unrestricted submarine warfare, France entered an immediate and strong protest to the reich's bilateral pact with Great Britain, permitting Germany to increase naval tonnage. Capt. Anthony Eden was hurried over to Paris to explain the British action and justify it. Premier Laval told him that the French national doctrine was and would continue to be that organization of collective security must precede any legalization of German rearmament.

Captain Eden then went to Rome and Mussolini told him flatly that he sided with France and could not approve the manner in which the Anglo-German accord was reached without consulting Italy and France.

No more success did Captain Eden have in trying to get Il Duce to submit to a compromise allowing Italy certain concessions in Abyssinia in return for the guarantee that there would be no war with the African monarchy. Mussolini refused to talk about it. Great Britain was faced with two remaining choices: To influence the Abyssinian government to accede to Italian demands in toto or simply give up and let the apparently inevitable war go on. The feeling in diplomatic circles is that England would rather waive her protests than have Italy withdraw from the League of Nations as a result.

CONGRESSMAN MARTIN DIES of Texas has before congress a bill the enactment and enforcement of which would evoke cheers from millions of tax-weary citizens, for it provides for the deportation of about 6,000,000 aliens who are receiving or holding jobs that should be held by citizens who are on the relief rolls. A campaign to get congressional action on this measure has been begun by 153 organizations estimated by Mr. Dies to represent 5,000,000 people, and he says at least 150 congressmen have promised to support the bill. Outlining the provisions of the measure, Mr. Dies said:

"First, it bars all immigration of pioneer immigrants who do not have relatives in this country.

"Second, it makes mandatory deportation of 3,500,000 aliens estimated of illegal entry.

"Third, it gives about 4,000,000 aliens legally in this country 12 months in which to become citizens or go home.

"Fourth, all aliens must secure labor department permits to work and permits would be issued only when employers show they can't find United States citizens to do the job.

"Fifth, it provides for gradual reunion of families not likely to be come public charges when the economic situation is improved."

CITIZENS everywhere were urged by Attorney General Cummings to assist the federal government in "cracking down" on bucket shops which are swindling the public out of millions of dollars. He declared that a nation-wide chain is operating. Most of their victims are doctors, lawyers, professors and business men, he said.

"We know the names of the ring-leaders," said Mr. Cummings, "but it will take co-operation of both the public and legitimate brokers to put them where they belong—behind the bars."

Most of the victims believe that they have lost their money legitimately, he said, and are afraid of complaining to federal officers because they are in debt after they have been "cleaned."

LABOR policy in a democracy is not a program conceived by a government. It is a program of action which the people who earn their living as wage earners and those who employ them in profit-making enterprises must work out together.

So asserts Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins in her annual report to congress, and she sets forth these six specific duties of the government in this respect:

1. To do everything in its power to establish minimum basic standards for labor, below which competition should not be permitted to force standards of health, wages and hours.
2. To further peaceful settlements of controversies and relieve labor of the necessity of resorting to strikes in order to secure equitable conditions and the right to be heard.
3. Through legislation and fostering co-operation between employers and workers to make every job the best that the human mind can devise as to physical conditions, human relations and wages.
4. To encourage such organization and development of wage earners as will give status and stability to labor as a recognized important group of citizens having a contribution to make to economic and political thought and to the cultural life of the community.
5. To arrange that labor play its part in the study and development of any future economic policies.
6. To encourage mutualities between labor and employers in the improvement of production and the development in both groups of a philosophy of self-government.

The Ord Quiz

The Work Sheet

By GEORGE GOWEN
"The Roving Reporter"

As I stopped at the elevator a minute, Frank Johnson asked Dick if he is the fellow who is getting his picture in the paper and running for office. I told Frank, "No, I'm the fellow who is running. But I haven't figured out which office to run for yet." He told me he had held a lot of offices in his day and found those without any pay the easiest to get. Then I asked if he knew whether the governor was paid or not.

And then Ed Christensen drove up and told me that his brother Fred Christensen of Arcadia owns a Holstein bull in partnership along with a couple other fellows by the name of Penster and Kingston, that is the biggest bull in the county. I'll be over and get a picture some of these days, I told Ed.

Through town and west again around a bridge they are still saving and south and west and south again and on a serpentine road through the canyon past some wild canaries and a nail keg mail box and south and west again and then the Davis Creek churches and south again, stopping first at Bert Rich's.

Mrs. Rich said she thought I had forgotten them in these parts. On the hill west from the house I saw a lady scarecrow and a turkey gobbler strutting around and around. Dick and I sauntered up that way and he asked what the gobbler was doing there. I answered, that stuck up old fellow is the bookkeeper.

Turkeys Profitable.
Mrs. Rich has forty little poulters with a few old turkey hens, the latter incarcerated in boxes. Then she has six more hens setting and seventy eggs in an incubator. She thinks she makes more money with turkeys than she does with chickens. For several years she has raised turkeys, trying to keep them back on the alfalfa most of the time. The coyotes and crows have bothered quite a little this year.

On south again and turning in at Chas. Mrsny's. Mrs. Mrsny came to the door and we talked a minute. A lot of boxes were on the side of the barn where they raised pigeons, and she says they get enough for a pie now and then. Then Chas. came to the yard and we chatted a few minutes. He asked if I was looking for news, and I said by all means. Then he said he had shot a coyote this morning while he was after a chicken. Chas. said, "I am a good shot, having practiced with a rifle since a boy." That he always buys his new hunting license before the old one expires. The once, a few years ago his field south of the house grew 80 bushels to the acre, but not last year.

Commission on Grease!
The next stop was at the old Sample place where now Ed Jefferson resides. He and two of his boys were repairing his tractor. Of course I gave them a little advice and told him he should grease here and there and after a few minutes he asked me if I got a commission from the oil station. Ed has a fine family of 7 boys and one girl and I'll warrant not a one too many of that kind of children either.

I asked him if he and his family could fill all that big labyrinth of a house and he said, "Just." Every kid has a room for himself. They can't sleep together. If they do they either play or fight all night and get no sleep. I saw no fighting while I was there.

Then George told me they had no hogs and the best bull in the country, and I told them I was an expert on bulls and also on Mel Bower's accident insurance. I asked Ed about his paper and he said he never paid anything until they stopped it and I said we will see that it is stopped this next week.

Then I asked what he thought about the county fair. He said he hadn't thought. Then scratching his head he said, "If they make it free, and put on a darned good show, we might attend once if we get a crop."

Then he said, "Your boy died about the same time mine did." I said, "Yes." And then a minute later I added, "Pretty bitter medicine." And then he said, "For a long time I'd get out one team and expect the other to be coming." And then I said, "The next day after the funeral Dick (then two) went to the barn and called Billie to breakfast." Then after another minute I said, "No, Ed the funeral is not half of it." We said no more. Just stood there and I thought of the little poem of Guest's Rev. Warren read.

"It takes a heap o' livin' in a house to make a home."
A heap o' sun and shadder and you sometimes have to roam."

Painter in Family.
Across the road and a little west to Iona Leach's. She and her boy Buddy were in the field working. Her nice looking daughter, Bernice, Ora and Eva were getting ready to wash. Their washing machine was out of whack, but they had it tinkered in a minute. They ceased their washing efforts and with smiling faces they showed me their front yard and flower garden which they had spent considerable time on. Then into the house to show me some pictures. Their sister Pearl had painted, and they were very fine. Another picture was made of feathers. One would never dream an artist that could paint such scenes could grow up in those hills.

Laughing and telling me to stop again, I hurried on south and stopped at the corner place where the big round hog house is the most conspicuous building in the countryside. Mac Long and his wife live here with his brother and his wife. I asked about the paper and she said they were too hard up. That they would like to have it but she thought they could get along better without reading than without eating. So that spoiled a sale.

The kids had an iron horse in the front yard and she said that was the best kind to have last year as it didn't eat, and then she said the water ran into the barn until it was no good and they had to keep their horses in the hog house. Then she told about the hall and floods and I asked if it was as bad as last year, and she said, "NO. NO. Anything's better than last year."

Dinner Bell Community.
Back north a mile and turning west and over a hill and into the yard of Roy McGee. Mrs. McGee came to the door and we chatted a minute. She said they had nothing to tell. They have no hogs but do have a dinner bell. Every place I had visited so far that day had a dinner bell. She said Roy lost one of his four horses just as work started this spring and to save buying another, he made his machinery over for three.

I stopped along the road to see Roy a minute. He had made his two-row into a one-row two-row. He had done a pretty good job of it all except one thing, and that was tragic. He had not made a seat. He had to stand up. Then he asked about my brother John, and then said he wished a few minutes ago the Roving Reporter would come along. Asking why, he said there were two big white hens up in the cherry tree eating cherries. But they have flown down now. Well that is something to tell anyway.

West to the corner and south about half a mile and into the yard of Mrs. Chas. Mostek. Her husband being away to the hospital, she and her boy and girls are doing the farming. She and her boy were cultivating at that minute. She said she had nothing to put in the paper. I found out she had one sow with pigs. That she lives just across the road from where Jason Green used to live long years ago.

A Bookwalter Here.
Back north to the road and west a few humps and into the yard of Dean Bookwalter. He is a young fellow, (18 years old) and very pleasant, just starting up this year. He is batching and his mother had come to visit him. She seemed to think things didn't look any too neat and was papering his house and straightening out a little. "Making it look more like home," she said. She told me Dean was a little discouraged because some machine or other didn't work just right.

I told her by the time he had farmed as many years as I have it would take more than that to discourage him and that his troubles had just started. He seemed to be a little interested in the paper but not enough to part with a couple dollars, so I said I would send him a sample copy, and away I went.

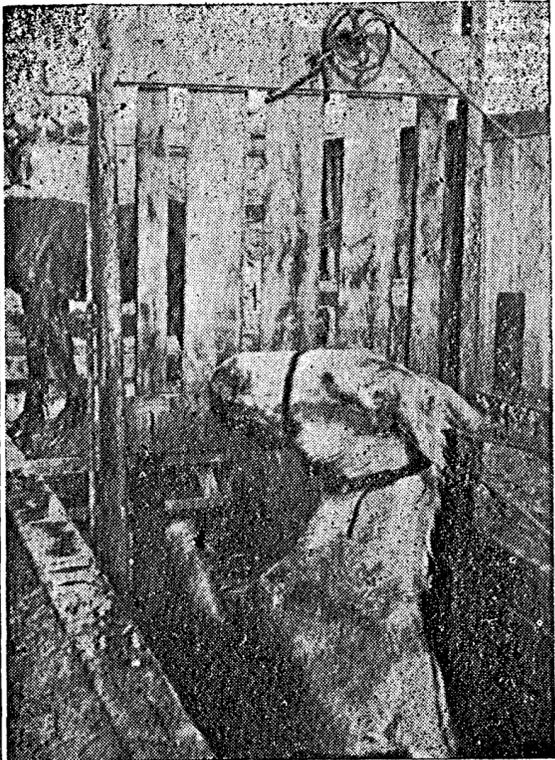

Back to the road and sensing with my nose a sweet clover field, I looked to the north and saw two large fields of yellow blossoms, suffusing the atmosphere with resonance, until for a minute, I thought I was in Heaven. When I get rich scribbling for the Quiz, I am going to plant my house in the middle of a thousand acres of sweet clover.

Trades For Shotgun.
Herman Desel was near on the list to the west. He came sauntering out of the house, and I could see by the twinkle in his eye he was bubbling over with his usual trading spirit. I asked him as introduction what he would trade for a subscription to the Quiz. He said, "A shot gun." I said, "Bring on the gun." The boy went a-running. After considerable parley, he talking with short choppy sentences, the trade was made. Say H. D., do you need an extra shot gun on your fishing trip?"

Herman said he had quit trading horses, but still showed me a spotted one he had traded for twice and asked me what I would give for. They have about seven hundred nice W. L. chickens, and I offered to take a picture of them and he said he didn't want his picture in the paper. He said they were eating the roosters, but I told him 350 would last me a long while.

Then we talked a while longer about finances, and we both could sympathize with each other both telling the other we were broke. Then we argued which was the richest in debts and concluded we were a good pair. Misery loves company, you know. Inquiring about my brother John who used to work in these parts I was off.

Earl Kriewald's Livestock Caught Scab In Sand Hill Pasture, Are Dipped Twice Under Supervision of State Veterinarian

Slip, splash, and into the tank of odoriferous purple dip the critter goes. Such was the wild and hilarious time we had at Earl Kriewald's last week as neighbors gathered there to watch the dipping of livestock belonging to several men in this community so as to cure their stock of scab or itch. Someone said it was as much fun as a rodeo.

Dr. W. T. Pritchard, state field veterinarian from Lincoln, was there to supervise the work. He explained that scab is a little bloodsucker that works on livestock. One of Dr. Pritchard's duties is to keep this malady under control and from getting scattered. As soon as he finds out there is scab in some pasture or on some place he goes there at once and requires this man to dip his stock. They must be dipped twice, about three weeks apart. Also, cattle in neighboring pastures are inspected and required to be dipped if he is suspicious they might be scabby.

Got Scab in Pasture.
The way this particular herd of Earl's and some neighbors happened to be diseased was that these cattle with a few hundred others were in a certain pasture in the sand hills last summer where scab was prevalent. No one knows how that herd got it. The veterinarians got wind of it, made a trip there and then ran down every bunch that was pastured there and required the men to dip. It was not discovered until the cattle were taken home in the fall.

"We try to make the dipping as inexpensive as we can, but we feel we must not allow this scab to get scattered," Dr. Pritchard said. "The man that gets it is just unlucky. If we did not stamp it out at once, the disease would soon scatter until whole townships or whole counties might have to be quarantined. We seldom have any trouble, but if necessary there are jail sentences for the man who will not dip, or we have a right to take possession of the herd, dip and then sell enough to pay expenses. We always give personal supervision to know for sure the job is done right."

Scab Kills Cattle.
"The scab is a very serious trouble. Cattle seem to have it the worst although all livestock get it. One man down by Elba lost six head of cattle last winter after he had fed them a long time. He thought his cattle ate more, but they gradually became thinner and thinner."

"How do you find out about it?" I inquired.
"In various ways," he answered. "Whenever any scab turns up in the markets, or stockyards we are notified, and we then go to the man's farm and inspect. We ride his pasture and the neighboring pasture. Frequently folks write us and ask us to help them. Veterinarians inform us also. We have the scab under control pretty well and there is not a great deal in the state, but this is a big state and it would be an impossible and expensive job to inspect everything."

Fine Cement Tank.
Earl Kriewald has built quite an elaborate dipping tank. It is made of cement and over 9 feet deep, 4 feet wide and about 30 feet long. A platform to the west end sits over the tank. The back end rests on the edge. It swings or balances at the middle. The animal is safe as long as he first steps on, but as his weight gets over the center, the back end flies up and down he goes "ker-splash." A gate in front keeps him swimming there the required time of two minutes. During that swim, Earl takes a pole and pushes the head under a time or two. Then the gate is raised and Mr. Mule (or whatever it is) swims and walks out thoroughly soaked and thoroughly embarrassed.

Dip Is Heated.
The vat is charged with a lime and sulphur solution. It is heated by Geo. Bartz' steam engine to 110 degrees. This dip only kills the scab. To kill lice also the temperature must be 120 or warmer, but the lice are not what the men are after.

"It all seems like harsh treatment to the animal, and a big expense to the unlucky man who has the scab," Dr. Pritchard said, "but it is best in the long run and about the only thing to do to keep it from spreading over the whole state. For the most part farmers are very nice about it."

West over a young mountain and then north to the old Vol Earnest place where now lives H. C. Stevens. He and his boys, Burton and Glen, were eating dinner. The wife had gone to Aid. They showed me some extra nice red sows they have with a lot of red pigs scampering about. Gilbert Babcock, the son-in-law, lives close by and farms some of the land the same as Burton. He and Gilbert have a working arrangement with Harry that seems to be satisfactory.

Hole Acts As Camera.
Then a peculiar phenomenon was showed to me. On the north side of their granary the end of a board is broken about the size of a half dollar, but irregular, allowing light to peek in. By going inside, on the wall, a miniature picture in silhouette about a foot high is shown upside down of the windmill, house, trees and things to the north. Glen and the dog walked across the yard and they could be seen. The picture can be seen on a cloudy day as well as when the sun shines. When spotted cows move along, the spots can be seen. It shows up better when it is darker inside.

I looked for a mirror or a glass but there was none. The boys deciphered it as being the same idea as a camera. They said some smart fellow tried to fathom it to them once but they couldn't understand his explanation. Then Harry paid his subscription. I asked if he wanted a receipt. He said, "No, if you don't turn it in someone might write something for the paper about you."

Sok Reads It, Anyway.
On north and east and stopping at John Sok's. He said his brother-in-law takes the Quiz, and he takes the Loup City paper and then they trade. I said, "That's fine, but I don't get any commission that way." He said, "I know it. I'm sorry for you, but that's the way we make our commission."

East another hill or two and stopping at John Lunney's. John and his wife were at aid, but John Jr. was there and showed me the place. They have a lot of White Leghorn chickens and eighteen young geese and a fine garden. They run a tractor and farm quite a lot of land but not nearly as much as a year or two ago.

Back west and driving in at Jack Hayes'. No one was present, so we stopped at the well and got a drink and I gave a look over the fence. I saw some slick horses, a new tractor, a flock of big fat hogs, a truck load of yellow corn dumped on the ground for them, and a big red barn with a sway back. Jack works for Henry Geweke and I do not know whether Jack takes the paper or not. One in a hundred if he doesn't and it is one of the essentials that brings life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness. That's the kind of a sales talk I put up, H. D.

Then east again and arriving at the old Ed Houtby place. Walter Linke lives here with his mother and sister. He is a bright chap, small like his father, of whom I and my folks were old time friends. I went to Omaha with his father, Oswald, a few months before he died. He told me of his sickness, of his early life in Germany, of coming to America, of politics there and here, and it was all so interesting I shall never forget it.

Sorry Went to Germany.
Walter was getting ready to go to the field to put up hay but I tarried a minute to visit. I asked about his uncle in Germany and Walter said in all his letters until the last year or so his uncle said he was sorry he ever went back. The last few letters have been censored and say Hitler is all right. Walter added, "They have to like it I guess. Like we do here with the A. A. A." Then he told me about the big munition plant explosion in Berlin. His uncle lives near there and his mother knows just where the plant is located.

Wouldn't Wake Baby.
Again turning east and across the road to Ross Leonard's. His wife came smiling to the door. She was a vivacious young lady with auburn hair, and I knew I had seen her some where. Finally she said she used to live in North Loup and her name was Roberts. I asked her what they had for news and she said nothing except a tiny 18 months baby named Janis Grey and she was asleep and Mrs. R. would not wake her. She had 200 little chickens about three weeks old and have only lost four.

East again and this time at the place of Jack McCarville. He was in the field but came to the house soon leaving his 15-year-old boy running the two row. He said the boy would be disappointed because he wanted to show me a nice pony he has. I promised to stop again if I came that way.

Mrs. McCarville has been gone to a hospital for six months and was more than glad to get home again. Jack said, "Mother, can't we think of something we can get advertised in the paper?" but they couldn't seem to. They surely are pleasant people.

Then east again over a hill and to the house of Ign. Gizinski. He seemed to be in the field but his young looking wife came to the door and also announced they had nothing to tell the world about. "You have a fine looking baby peeping out the window," I said. She laughed and told me his name was Eldon. We tapped on the screen at him as we left and turned back west again.

37 Pigs Too Many.
This time back a mile or two and driving in at the old Trump place where Vere Leonard inhabits. His wife and two pretty kids, Lester and Carol came to the door. All they had to tell about was that they had five sows that just got through with the over-production of 37 pigs.

Vere was in the field so I drove around there and chatted with him a minute or two. He said he had too many pigs and wondered what to do with them. They were all nice ones and it seemed like a crime to kill them. "Give 'em the cholera," I suggested.

Vere is a pleasant fellow and posted on all the world happenings, like prize fights, prohibition, politics, roads, and not at all uninteresting. He did not seem to be in any hurry to go go-deviling across the field and I didn't blame him. Good friends must part sooner or later.

He told me that the land south from the hill to the north drains to Davis Creek, and North side to Mira Valley. That the head of Davis Creek was about 100 rods to our west. That the 66 school house we could see to the north sits on the great divide. A rain-drip that falls on the north side runs into Mira Creek and on the south side trickles into Davis Creek.

Fixing Hoe for Wife.
To the west around a corner to the farm of Ralph Atkinson. He and Ed Burrows were fixing a wheel hoe for Ed to borrow, so (they said) Ed's wife could use it. I asked Ed if he had anything to see at his place and he said he had a nice spud patch and seemed to want me to come. "It is only a mile and a half," he begged. So I told him I'd soon be over and he hurried off.

Ralph showed me a nice little colt he has. He said his pasture is killed out but not so badly as some. They raise chickens too, by the hundreds, and their house is "powerfully tiny." He hoped to have a bigger one some day. So say nearly all of us.

So we started trekking back south to Ed Burrows'. Up a hill and wandering around the turn-over of a few cornfields, over a dozen or more corduroy washed ditches, snaking our way until I tell Dick I believe we are lost. I could still see Ed's tracks in the dust, however and kept going. Suddenly I came on a spud patch in a little draw of about 1/2 acres. He had checked them. He put three "aters" in each hill, marking the land with a corn planter first. He said he saved seed that way and believed he was going to get a big yield. He cultivated them both ways.

Has Chinese Chow.
Into his yard and there spying a red chow dog which Ed said was a pedigreed one. That breed is of Chinese origin, and the only dog that has a black tongue and mouth. Quite an advantage, to be sure.

Upon my arrival Ed said, "How do you like the road?" I do not swear so I didn't answer. He told me that was the reason he wanted me to come. Three-fourths of the time it is impossible to go to Ord to trade, and that is where he wants to go. His only road out is to Loup City. He thinks in a country that is some sixty years old, they ought to at least furnish a road to the county seat.

Made Own Windmill.
The first thing I noticed was a big home-made windmill. Ed said he made it last summer to keep his mind off his drouth troubles. The propeller was like an aeroplane only bigger, made out of a 2x6x16. A tower was built out of some ash poles and on top of this was set a differential of a car. Where one wheel goes the propeller was fastened, the other wheel was locked.

Then the drive shaft was run down to another rear end on the ground on the wheels of which he placed his belts, (either side or both). With a fairly stiff wind he can run a grinder and saw wood. He said he sawed up a big pile last winter. He also runs the washing machine but the worst part of it is, it seems like when his wife wants to wash the wind will not blow. And if his wife is like mine, and she makes up her mind to wash, no arguments can defer action. She must wash then should the heavens fall.

He said he had seen another mill where the mechanic placed a transmission where one wheel is, with a line shaft, and then have three speeds. We talked for several minutes after I took a picture of his wind power. I found his and my schooling quite analogous. Three years in college and back to the farm. We still have hopes our education might come in handy.

Calling it a day, we started our sinuous trail back through a few cornfields homeward. Into Mira Valley at Henry Geweke's we sped east along the proposed new highway. As we were flying along I noticed a strange sight in Bremer's hay field. We slammed on the brakes and disembarked.

New Kind of Sweep.
The Bremer boys had made a hay sweep that beat anything for sweeping hay I ever have seen. We use to think the tractor was the thing, but this has the tractor beat in every way.

They had taken an old Buick car, stripped the body, and fastened a sweep close on the back. Then the differential is turned over so there were three speeds backward and one ahead. In that way the machine is guided with the back wheels. The steering wheel, clutch and brake were turned around and away they went, pulled from the middle, guided from the rear.

I climbed on and took a ride. Going to the field empty he traveled thirty-five miles an hour or more. He came back with the load in second gear and at about ten to twenty miles per. Bill said the engine was not working exactly right or he could go faster. At that he was going plenty fast enough for the man on the stack, who continually yelled for smaller loads and not so often.

Bill said if this worked he might make a few to sell. I couldn't imagine what more a fellow would want in way of demonstration.

Woodman Hall

Another storm struck here last Thursday noon doing more or less damage in its path. In our immediate neighborhood no serious damage was done although the crops were badly beaten by the downpour and high wind but east of us the crops are a total loss from hail which was not of great size but being driven by strong wind beat out everything in their path. The farmers rejoiced over the most promising crop they have had in years only to have it snatched away in a few minutes time. Coming after last year's drought is a hard blow on the farmers who are compelled to take another involuntary cut.

Frank Krikac and family of Ord were out on the farm at Charles Krikac's last Thursday.

Frank Novak helped Louis Volt stack alfalfa last Saturday.

Mr. Sevenker and Otto Radil of Ord helped Edward and Charles Radil put up alfalfa the first of the week.

Will Ptacnik and his small son returned home from Rochester last week where Will had taken his son for medical care.

Our boys won another victory over the Sargent team at the National hall Sunday afternoon with a score of 11 to 2. Comstock will tackle our boys at the same place next Sunday.

Mrs. Frank Zadina returned home from Rochester the latter part of the week.

Adolf Pesek helped his brother Lew put up alfalfa last week.

Miss Anna Hrbec has been quite ill since having a tooth extracted last week.

Ord Church Notes

accompanied by their son, Glen, on the guitar.

A call for help comes from the churches of the hall belt in our own district, south of Hastings, where crops were destroyed and church and parsonage buildings damaged by the hail of some two weeks ago. About a half dozen of the weaker churches were in this strip. By action of the Official Board, an offering will be taken next Sunday for the benefit of these stricken churches in our own district. It will not be a subscription offering—just bring your gift in a specially marked envelope and drop it in the plate. It will be sent to Dr. Johansen to be given out as he sees fit.

Mearl C. Smith, Minister.

Christian Science Services.
"God" is the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Christian Science churches for Sunday, July 7.
The Golden Text is from I Samuel 2:2: "There is none holy as the Lord; for there is none beside thee neither is there any rock like our God."
A passage from the Bible in the lesson-sermon is from Mark 12: 29, 30: "And Jesus answered him, The first of all the commandments is, Hear, O Israel, The Lord our God is one Lord; And thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind, and with all thy strength; this is the first commandment."
A correlative passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, reads: "Dost thou love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy mind? This commandment includes much, even the surrender of all merely material sensation, affection, and worship. This is the El Dorado of Christianity. It involves the Science of Life, and recognizes only the divine control of Spirit, in which Soul is our master, and material sense and human will have no place. (Page 9).

damage was reported over the north and central parts of Valley county.

Elyria had 3 inches of rain, Burwell 2 inches, North Loup 2 1-2 inches but in Mira Valley less than a half-inch fell.

Turtle Creek overflowed for the fifth time this spring and Highway No. 11 was inundated. Fred Dowhower, who lives on the bank of Turtle Creek, had several head of hogs drowned and reports of livestock losses also have come in from other points on Turtle and Haskell creeks.

Small Tornado.
In the Travis neighborhood southwest of Ord a small cyclone struck at 1:30 p. m., Oscar Travis reports. The wind was the strongest he has seen since he lived there, he says. The barn was moved a few feet, one large tree was torn out by the roots and numerous branches were broken off other trees. The Stanley Gross farm also was affected. This storm came from the west and caused considerable damage in the Comstock neighborhood.

According to R. N. McAllister, serious highway damage was confined to No. 11 highway in the fifth mile north of North Loup where a concrete spillway and a portion of the highway was washed out. This road was closed to traffic for twenty hours, being opened Friday. While it was closed travel was routed over No. 57 through Arcadia.

Several bridges were washed out on both Turtle creek and Haskell creek, according to H. O.

The Fort Hartsuff school building is being repaired by FERA workers.

Announcement was made Sunday at the St. Mary's church of the approaching marriage of a popular Elyria couple, Florence Sydzik and Cashmer Weiniak.

On Tuesday of last week an annual meeting of stockholders of the Farmers Grain and Coal Company of Elyria was called but on account of the farmers being so busy not enough members came to hold the meeting.

Workmen Make Valiant Effort to Keep Flood Waters Out of Fuel Tank Pit At Muny Plant

Here, in a photo taken by George Jensen, is shown a group of workmen attempting to keep flood waters out of the twenty-foot pits that hold new fuel oil tanks at Ord's municipal light plant. If you look closely you can see overflow pipes that betray location of the tanks. This picture was taken after the first rain Thursday.

Their Efforts Were In Vain! Here's What Happened When Pit Filled With Water

This twisted mass of brickwork and pipe shows what was left after water flooded the south pit, in which a 12,000-gallon tank had just been set in place. Water forced the tank upward, breaking brickwork and twisting pipe. This fuel tank was empty. At the north the other 12,000-gallon tank was partially filled with fuel oil and so was not forced upward. H. E. Jones, staff photographer, took this picture at 6:00 p. m.

Members of the Merry mix club will meet for a picnic Tuesday. Catholic Ladies club will meet this afternoon with Mrs. John Perlinski at her home. Mrs. Emil Sedlacek will be co-hostess.

Woodman Hall

Another storm struck here last Thursday noon doing more or less damage in its path. In our immediate neighborhood no serious damage was done although the crops were badly beaten by the downpour and high wind but east of us the crops are a total loss from hail which was not of great size but being driven by strong wind beat out everything in their path. The farmers rejoiced over the most promising crop they have had in years only to have it snatched away in a few minutes time. Coming after last year's drought is a hard blow on the farmers who are compelled to take another involuntary cut.

A call for help comes from the churches of the hall belt in our own district, south of Hastings where crops were destroyed and church and parsonage buildings damaged by the hail of some two weeks ago. About a half dozen of the weaker churches were in this strip. By action of the Official Board, an offering will be taken next Sunday for the benefit of these stricken churches in our own district. It will not be a subscription offering—just bring your gift in a specially marked envelope and drop it in the plate. It will be sent to Dr. Johansen to be given out as he sees fit.

Mearl C. Smith, Minister.

Christian Science Services.
"God" is the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Christian Science churches for Sunday, July 7.

The Golden Text is from I Samuel 2:2: "There is none like the Lord; for there is none beside thee neither is there any rock like our God."

A passage from the Bible in the lesson-sermon is from Mark 12:29, 30: "And Jesus answered him, The first of all the commandments is, Hear, O Israel, The Lord our God is one Lord; And thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind, and with all thy strength: this is the first commandment."

A correlative passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, reads: "Dost thou love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind? This command includes much, even the surrender of all merely material sensation, affection, and worship. This is the El Dorado of Christianity. It involves the Science of Life, and recognizes only the divine control of Spirit, in which Soul is our master, and material sense and human will have no place. (Page 9).

Flood, Hail, Wind, Combine To Wreak Destruction Here

Damage was reported over the north and central parts of Valley county.

Elyria had 3 inches of rain, Burwell 4 inches, North Loup 2 1/2 inches but in Mira Valley less than a half-inch fell.

Turtle Creek overflowed for the fifth time this spring and Highway No. 11 was inundated. Fred Dowhower, who lives on the bank of Turtle Creek, had several head of hogs drowned and reports of livestock losses also have come in from other points on Turtle and Haskell creeks.

Small Tornado.
In the Travis neighborhood southwest of Ord a small cyclone struck at 1:30 p. m. Oscar Travis reports. The wind was the strongest he has seen since he lived there, he says. The barn was moved a few feet, one large tree was torn out by the roots and numerous branches were broken off other trees. The Stanley Gross farm also was affected. This storm came from the west and caused considerable damage in the Comstock neighborhood.

According to R. N. McAllister, serious highway damage was confined to No. 11 highway in the fifth mile north of North Loup where a concrete spillway and a portion of the highway was washed out. This road was closed to traffic for twenty hours, being opened Friday. While it was closed travel was routed over No. 57 through Arcadia.

Several bridges were washed out on both Turtle creek and Haskell creek, according to H. O.

Midvale News

As no organized plan for a celebration at Clement's grove has been effected this year, individual gatherings will be the order of the day for most folks in this community on the Fourth of July. Storms of cyclonic nature destroyed some stacks and damaged some buildings in this community last Thursday afternoon. Heavy but varied rains accompanied the wind and some hail damage was noted. Guy R. Street family of Lawrence, Kas., who spent the past week in Valley and Custer counties visiting relatives returned home Sunday. Rev. Wanta accompanied by James and Wanda drove to Broken Bow Friday after grandmother Wanta who spent the past two weeks visiting among friends and relatives in Broken Bow. Evidence of the flood which struck Broken Bow and vicinity were still noticeable especially in Custer county. The Christian Endeavor Society will hold its monthly social on Friday evening of this week. Regular services are scheduled for next Sunday both morning and evening at Midvale. The C. Elvern Noha, 18, Drowned Sat'day In No. Loup River buried in silt and he had quite a time extricating it, Jewett says. His lungs felt like they were bursting when he got back to the top and could breathe again. Marshal Covert says Rex was under water well over a minute on the dive in which he rescued the boy.

Made Brave Attempt. Only witnesses of the tragedy, except young Cronk, were Mr. Sebasta and a Dehart boy, aged about 10, who also was fishing near by. Both say Leland was fortunate to escape drowning, so tightly was he clutched by the Noha boy. Elvern was a big fellow, weighing about 180 pounds, and Leland weighs only about 130. He made a brave rescue attempt, Mr. Sebasta told officers.

Elvern was the oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Mike Noha living near Ord. He came to Ord Saturday afternoon with his mother, leaving Mr. Noha cultivating in a corn field. Both of his parents were prostrated with grief when they learned of Elvern's tragic death about 6:00.

Elvern Anton Noha was born Jan. 13, 1915 on a farm nine miles northeast of Ord, the son of Mike and Augusta Noha. Besides his parents he is mourned by one sister, Elsie, and one brother, Eldon. Also surviving are two uncles, Joseph and Charles Noha, and two aunts, Agnes and Marie, all of whom live in Czechoslovakia, another uncle, Joseph Burian, of Ord, and another aunt, Mrs. Lottie Kovarik of Dorchester, Nebr.

Funeral services were held at 2 p. m. Tuesday, July 2, at the Bohemian hall with Rev. B. A. Filipi, of Clarkson, in charge. Interment was in Bohemian National cemetery here.

Friends and relatives from elsewhere who attended the funeral were Mrs. Frank Novak, Wilbur, Stanley Novak, Friend, Stella and Bertha Novak, Grand Island, Mrs. Steve Kovarik, Dorchester, Mr. and Mrs. Leland Kovarik, Wilber, Mrs. Victor Kotouc, Aurora, and Mrs. Merlin Weber, Friend.

Alice Seerley Weds Grand Island Man

Miss Alice Seerley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Seerley of Ord and Everett O. Glines, son of Mrs. Carrie B. Glines of Grand Island, were united in marriage Sunday afternoon at a quiet wedding which took place at the home of Rev. R. W. Hobbs, pastor of the First Baptist church.

Rev. Hobbs officiated at the single ring service in the presence of the witnesses, Miss Dorothy Seerley of Ord, a sister of the bride, and Roy Glines, the groom's brother. The bride wore a two-piece knitted dress of shell pink, with white accessories. Following the ceremony, the couple departed on a motor trip to the Minnesota lakes where they plan to spend two weeks. On their return, they will reside at the home of the groom's mother at Grand Island.

For the past eight years the bride has been employed in the office of County Judge Paul N. Kirk. Mr. Glines is employed as load dispatcher for the Central Power company.

$$$$ More Money or No Money 0000

Weeds, Hot Weather and Carelessness

are causing a lot of poor cream and it is still a fact:

That no one can make good butter out of poor cream

The price that butter sells for is determined by the quality of the cream that it was made from. The money paid you for cream must come from the money received for the butter made from said cream.

Ord--One of the Best Cream Markets

There is no town or city in the State of Nebraska where a higher average yearly price is paid for churning cream than is paid by Ord buyers. Ordinarily at this time of the year we get our finest cream but this year the quality is not as good as usual.

This condition we believe is due to the millions of weeds that have come up in our pastures. You can't keep the cows from eating weeds but you can better the quality of your cream by observing the following suggestions which should be no hardship on anyone.

1. Take the cows off of pasture at least one hour before milking. Two hours would be better. This will sometimes eliminate feed flours.
2. Thoroughly wash and scald all milk utensils—pails, strainers, cans, separators. Use washing powder. Do not use cream cans that are rusty inside.
3. Every farm should be equipped with a milk strainer that uses a cotton filter disk. These strainers really take out the dirt and sediment and are not expensive.
4. Cool cream in well water immediately after separating. Use a small can for separating the cream into and then set it in cold water for cooling. Never mix warm cream and cold cream. Keep lids tight on all cans containing cold cream. . . Have a cooling tank if possible. A barrel tank can be fixed up at very small cost.
5. Deliver cream often. Stir it well and taste it before starting to town. You will be surprised how much better your cream will be if cared for as suggested above.
6. Before starting to town, cover your can of cream with a wet sack. This will not only keep the cream cool but it will keep the dust and dirt from gathering around the neck and lid of the can. Imagine what it does to a can of cream to be exposed to the sun on the side or back of an automobile during a ten mile trip to town.

We hope that all Cream Producers will take this matter as seriously as the situation warrants and in the spirit of friendly cooperation.

At Vinita, Oklahoma on the 30th day of May a Government Pure Food Inspector dumped about 1200 gallons of cream into the sewer, claiming that it was unfit for human food.

We don't anticipate a visit from this Inspector (although it is not improbable that a U. S. Inspector will be in Ord sometime this summer) and we don't believe he would condemn that much cream in Ord, but Why Take a Chance?

In order to overcome the weed flavor it will be necessary to practice the best methods possible in producing and marketing good cream. Mr. Farmer—Your honest efforts will be appreciated.

County Flooded Again With Downpour Saturday; Much Wind and Hail Damage Crop Damage From 10 to 100% in Some Section of County; Roads Washed Badly.

Ord territory was again visited last Saturday morning by a heavy rain storm, which combined with lightning, hail, and wind, did much damage to Ord and adjacent territory. The storm, which broke at 9:00 Saturday morning, lasted until 12:30, bringing a total of 1.60 inches of rain to Ord, and flooding the Springdale district east of Ord with 3.50. Rainfall west and a little north of town was approximated at 3 inches.

Hail and lightning were general throughout the east, west, and south parts of Valley county, and did considerable damage on some farms, the per cent of crop damage caused by hail varying from ten to one hundred per cent. The most damaging hailstorm was on the Evinand Laursen farm, three miles southwest of Ord. One field of corn suffered complete ruin, and another field had a 75 per cent loss. The damage was entirely covered by hail insurance. Rudolph John, who farms west of Ord, also suffered a heavy loss. Damage was done to the O. E. Collins and Archie Geweke farms in the Mira Valley district, about seven miles south of Ord and also to farms in the Springdale territory east of Ord. Three and a half inches of rain almost completely flooded the low land, and hail, which fell with the rain, damaged crops on the Mell Rathbun, D. E. Strong, Will Petersen, Claude Rathbun, Marlon Strong, and Earl Hansen farms. Heavy rains washed out a large section of road two and a half miles west of town on the road which leads north to the Mortensen summer cottage, after leaving the Burwell highway.

Sharp lightning, which accompanied the thunder storm, did much damage striking three places on farms east and west of Ord and one place in Ord. Considerable damage was done at the Bill Amsey home when lightning struck a huge cottonwood tree, located between the houses occupied by Bill Ramsey and Jack Riley in the northern part of town. Striking the tree about twenty feet from the ground, the lightning tore away a piece of bark six inches thick. Five windows were broken from the Ramsey home and bark, glass and gravel were thrown through the windows into every room. Mrs. Ramsey, who was in the house at the time, was badly shocked and Dr. C. J. Miller was called. Mrs. Ned Powers, and Mrs. Alvin Hill, nearby neighbors, were also shocked. Dr. F. A. Barta being called to care for Mrs. Powers. Two windows were broken from the Jack Riley house.

On the J. L. Greathouse farm east of Ord, lightning struck the barn, killing two horses and crippling one. Some damage was done to the building, although it was not burned. Lightning, striking the windmill on the Will Treptow farm north of Ord, jumped from windmill to barn and house. Two farm hands, Jimmy Taine and Joe Spota, who were standing in the barn door watching the storm, were knocked down by the impact of the shock. One horse in the barn was killed. At the Lyle Abney farm east of Ord, the barn was struck, and shingles and boards were torn from the roof.

Rain in the Springdale district washed out two bridges making the road to the highway impassable. On farm north of Ord a half inch of rain fell, and no damage was done by lightning or hail, although farmers in this section report a very strong wind.

Native Pastures Contain Many Weeds, Says Dale

County Agent Urges Farmers To Pasture Lightly; Mow Weeds Before They Go To Seed.

Last fall in a conversation with County Agent Dale, Mr. Dale expressed the belief that a large per cent of the native pastures had been destroyed by the dry weather. The writer and others doubted this statement and believed that with the normal 1935 rainfall native pastures would be as good as ever. Now, after examining a good many of the native pastures the theory held by Mr. Dale seems to be pretty well agreed with. Mr. Dale himself has examined a good many pastures and told the writer this week that some of them had less than a 25 per cent stand of native grass. Following the spring rains they did look pretty good but a closer examination discloses the fact that a large per cent of what appeared to be pastures was nothing but native weeds which will soon go to seed unless cut, and this will further injure the pastures. Manager Coe of the local creamery told the writer Monday that during the past 30 days when they should have been making the finest butter of the whole year, they were really making the worst. He says the reason for that is that the cows were feeding largely on weeds. He also says that at the present time this condition is improving somewhat because the weeds are getting weedy and the cows are searching for the scattered grass among the weeds.

Now what leading farmers are afraid of is that many pastures will be further injured by too heavy pasturing during the balance of this summer. Asked about this matter, Mr. Dale says that the only salvation for native pastures is to pasture them very lightly this year and provide other pasture for fall and winter and next spring pastures. The high price of sudan which would perhaps be the best substitute to be used at the present time has prevented many farmers from sowing it this year. A large sowing of rye to provide late fall and winter pasture and early spring pasture states Mr. Dale will be of material assistance to the native pasture. An investigation shows that those pastures from which the stock was taken early, say in June last year and through in much better shape than pastures that were more heavily pastured last year.

Another very important thing is to mow the weeds in the pastures before they go to seed where it is possible. This of course can not be done on many rough pastures but it can be done on the smoother acreage. Those who have made a study of the matter seem to be agreed that the native grass will soon thicken up and bring back the pastures if given a chance. A more ideal season for that could not be imagined than we have had this year.

Recreation Center Being Planned By Civic Organizations

Is Sponsored By City Clubs And Backed By Entire Community, A Worthy Project.

For a number of years various organizations in Ord have talked of starting a recreational organization to be sponsored by city clubs, and backed by the entire community. Last Friday Mr. McCannless of Omaha was in Ord and interviewed representatives of the Rotary club, Women's Club, and the American Legion as well as Ord business men and women, in an effort to create interest in this work. Mr. McCannless is devoting his time this summer in traveling around the state helping to start such organizations.

This organization would be principally for the young people and children of the town and particularly for the underprivileged, those children who do not have toys and adequate playground equipment in their own homes, or whose mothers are too busy to suggest and supervise their activity. The organization was started by the Children's Welfare Board, Mrs. Cochran, wife of the governor, is one of the most ardent workers and devotes much of her time to the enterprise. Many eastern and western states are already organized in this line of work.

Under this project, time would be devoted to drama, story telling, athletics, including baseball, tennis, volleyball, golf, boxing, wrestling, handcraft, and music. Workers are desirous of obtaining the services of H. Brockman, athletic director and manual arts instructor in the Ord high school.

The following people are on the committee to represent the various Ord clubs, L. D. Milliken, the board of education, A. E. Weigardt, the American Legion, Val Pullen, the Ord city Council and the Chamber of Commerce, George Allen, the Rotary club, Glen Auble and M. Blemond, Ord business men, and Mrs. G. Flagg and Mrs. John Misko, the mothers of the city.

Loans May Be Secured From Government For Improvements, Low Interest Rate.

It is a well known fact among business men and admitted by almost everyone, that during the past few years, little has been done to keep business and residence properties in good condition. The reason for this condition was, of course, the hard times which made it impossible to get funds to do necessary work. This in turn ruined dealers in materials, carpenters, masons, painters and every one. It is realized that if lumber yards, hardware stores, paint dealers, plumbers and all other dealers, could sell their goods and men could be employed to use them under, conditions would improve faster. So the government is undertaking to finance this class of work through their Better Housing department. This work is just getting under way in Ord. In many Nebraska towns it has been going forward for some time and much new building and more repair work is already under way.

V. H. Weller of the Weller Lumber Co. of Ord, has been named as chairman in this community and already several meetings have been held, attended by dealers in building materials of all kinds and much interest is being shown. Mr. Weller says he is already receiving numerous inquiries from people who are interested and who want more information. The Quiz has in the past, carried several stories telling somewhat of the National Housing Act and in future issues we will give more information about the matter. If you are interested and will drop a line to Mr. Weller or go and see him or drop a line to Mr. V. A. Hall, associate state director, 670 Saunders-Kennedy Building, Omaha, you will be furnished with a government pamphlet that will give very complete information about the working of the Federal Housing Act and what it is hoped to accomplish and how to go about getting the assistance of the government. Probably anyone interested, would save time by going direct to the local committee, headed by Mr. Weller.

It seems sure that there is no economy in allowing buildings to go to the dogs if money can be secured to make needed repairs. A run down building cannot be sold, even, to advantage. The time is surely coming when there will be a demand for business and residence property and if it is for sale it will sell better if kept in good repair. If it is not for sale the reason is even greater for putting it in shape as soon as possible.

Money for improvements may be secured in amounts from $100 up to $2,000 and Mr. Moffett, Housing Administrator, states that the cost will not exceed $5 per hundred dollars including interest and all fees for the first year of the loan. Loans can be secured for as long as three years, states the advertising from the department.

This newspaper will try to get additional information each week and will cooperate in every way to help put this government program across.

My Own Column
By H. D. Leggett

Dear Quiz Readers:
When you are reading this I will be back in Ord and Eugene will be up here and we will be depending on him for the letter for next week.

A couple of days ago we took a boat over to Big Bass Lake and caught a beautiful string of bass and crappies. I hooked the big one of the day, a 5 1/2 lb. bass and landed him after a fine fight.

There was a great family row in camp yesterday and a family was apparently almost broken up when the husband and wife quarreled almost all day about the arrangement of their home.

Something DIFFERENT

"Stormy Weather", English bull terrier puppy of Mrs. Edith Jones had the unusual distinction of having a musical selection dedicated to him last week when a colored orchestra, Johnnie Sells and his tribe, played and sang the song called "Stormy Weather" with the pianist that it was exclusively dedicated to Mrs. Jones' young pup!

Lloyd Vodehnal, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Vodehnal, is very proud of his latest achievement. Lloyd planned and planted a garden at their country home, laying it out to spell his name. And when it came up it really did!

Darlene Anderson, Quiz reporter, was phoning for news, and called Mrs. George Satterfield. After their conversation Mrs. Satterfield thought of something else and called back, partly no doubt, to say that her little son, the Dickie, after having the reason for the talk explained to him said to his mother, "Why didn't you ask her when the Fourth was?"

Rex Jewett of Ord, expert swimmer since he was a child, and present city clerk, had considerable difficulty getting the body of Elvira Noha out of the deep hole in which it lodged a few days ago. Rex dived three times, and stayed down so long his friends were very worried about him, the third time.

Eugene and his family and Miss Olga Vodehnal arrived at the Leggett cottage at 4:30 the morning of July 4 after making a record trip. They said they found ideal roads most of the way and had no trouble on the trip.

ing and arrived home Sunday afternoon, making the trip without trouble but finding the temperature growing increasingly hotter the farther southwest we came. I am hoping that the kids will have a nice vacation during their stay at the lake and unless the weather changes from what it was when we left they will even though the fish were not biting as fast as we might wish. We celebrated the 4th with a family picnic but Eugene promised to include an account of that with his story next week.

When You And I Were Young Maggie

20 Years Ago This Week.
The city council advertised for bids for the erection of new city electric and water plants in Ord.

W. A. Dye passed away after a long and painful illness. John Boyce lost three horses, some hogs and harness when his barn was struck by lightning and destroyed.

After an investigation a coroner's jury acquitted Galbreath of killing Roy Fox in Loup county. Upon orders from Attorney General Read the jury was empaneled by Judge Hanna, who presided.

An auto polo game was put on in Ord by a traveling company and proved a big attraction. Mr. and Mrs. Martin Costello and Dr. and Mrs. F. A. Barta returned from an auto trip to Cedar Rapids, Ia. It took them only 2 1/2 days to go over but coming back roads were bad and it took longer.

25 Years Ago This Week.
Joe Dworak was going around with his face bandaged because he was curious about what would happen if he put some gunpowder in a tub and touched a match to it, by way of celebrating the 4th. He found out.

Odd Fellows held their regular installation and put in Jacob Hoffman as noble grand, Oscar Nay as vice grand and Joe Barta as treasurer.

J. R. Berry was a new lawyer in Ord, entering partnership with Herman Olson.

Ray Burdick's buggy tipped over just after crossing the river bridge and Ray was badly bruised. A man riding with him had his arm broken.

THE COOK'S COL-YUM, YUM!

Cookies and sweet crackers have an appeal for children, and are so useful for "picnics" that many housewives keep them on hand constantly. They are wholesome and nourishing, keep fresh a long time, furnish just the needed energy for a snack. They are handy to serve, less messy than cake.

Sweet Crackers.
Cream together one-half cup butter, two cups sugar, add two eggs. Powder five cents worth of baking ammonia, dissolve in one pint of milk and stir into the first mixture. Add enough flour to make a stiff dough and roll thin.

Buttermilk Cookies.
Cream together one cup butter or lard, one and one-half cups sugar, add two eggs; put one teaspoon soda into one cup buttermilk, beat and add to the first mixture. Sift three cups flour with two teaspoons baking powder, a pinch of nutmeg, a pinch of salt, beat into the batter. A little more flour may be added to make the dough stiff enough to roll.

Fish is so highly considered in the diet of the average middle-westerner, I am sure. Many delicious dishes start with a can of fish, or fresh ones, if you are fortunate. Fish provides a simple to prepare, not expensive, and practically every small family can use it.

Salmon Salad.
Mix one can pink salmon, flaked, with one beaten egg, one fourth cup vinegar, a small chopped onion, chopped pickles of any kind preferred, one-fourth cup sweet cream, sugar to taste and enough fine cracker crumbs to bind the ingredients.

Place a slice of canned pineapple on a lettuce leaf, add salad dressing, chopped nuts and grated cheese. The dressing is made of two egg yolks, one-fourth cup sugar, pinch each salt and the juice of one lemon, beaten together and cooked in a double boiler until the proper consistency.

Mildred Smith got herself a job in the office of an uncle, Bert M. Hardenbrook, attorney, and there she is learning how different typing legals can be from typing lessons.

Dorothy Fish, another crack commercial student, is employed part time in the office of Arthur Capron, and her typing is now full of "northwest quarter of Section 3, Township 4, Range 49", etc.

KEEPING FIT FOR SUCCESS

By Dr. V. E. Levine, professor of bio-chemistry and nutrition, the Creighton University School of Medicine.

Typhoid Fever -3-

Typhoid fever is preventable. The control of the infection is based on preventing the transmission of massive or continuous infection by water, food, or contact. This method of prevention involves purification of water, control of food and the control of waste disposal. In addition immunization against Typhoid is important.

Immunization will in the vast majority of instances afford protection against the incidental and moderate exposure to infection. Immunization, however, cannot overcome massive infection due to poor environmental sanitation. Immunization is not a substitute for sanitation, and sanitation alone cannot be depended upon to afford full protection from the disease.

Active immunity to typhoid fever can be conferred by the subcutaneous injection of dead typhoid bacilli. The bacilli are killed by exposure to a temperature of 55 degrees Centigrade for an hour and sterility is assured by the addition of 0.25 per cent tricresol.

The anti-typhoid vaccine is administered in three doses at intervals of approximately a week. The first dose used to be one-half centimeter of the vaccine suspension, but it has now been cut down to one-fourth cubic centimeter. The second and third doses used to be one cubic centimeter, but have now been reduced to three days. The dosage for children is proportionate to their body weight.

The vaccine should be injected subcutaneously. Injections into the muscle are followed by rapid absorption with the consequent danger of severe general reactions. A local reaction practically always follows the injection of anti-typhoid vaccine. The reaction is usually most marked after the second injection. As a rule, a red tender area develops from one to several inches in diameter. In some cases the area extends for some distance down the arm. In some instance the axillary glands are also involved. The local reaction subsides rapidly. It requires no treatment.

Calling

I think I inherited a little of this idiosyncrasy. My father was a sticker for a hat. He always insisted a person's hat contributed more or less to one's looks than any other garment. He was very particular about his head gear, never wearing anything but an expensive one.

To illustrate his fervor along the hat line, I must give this illustration. My mother never thought he was any worse than most men. Just part of the makeup of his masculine gender.

About seven o'clock one cold morning the phone buzzed hard. My father never arose early and was never any too happy for an hour or so after. Mother jumped up and answered the ring. It announced his store was on fire.

I can remember it all as plainly as if it was yesterday. I was only a small boy. I remember how he sprang from his bed. How fast he tried to dress. How mother helped him button his clothes and how she helped him find them. How he did not even trouble to put on his shoes. Just pulled his overshoes on his socks. How he did not button his shirt all the way, and in a very few seconds, which seemed like hours he was ready to run.

But then he couldn't find his hat. We all hunted. He stormed about how someone had mislaid it. We all scrambled frantically for several minutes, hither and yon, spending far more time than he did dressing, looking for that hat. He would not go without it, should the wholotown burn. Luck was with him, for his white Stetson was finally discovered in the kitchen where he had left it the night before. His head covered, away he went racing, forgetting his coat, to see his store go up in flames.

CARE OF COUNTY BOARD

By George Gowen

Dear Jake:
I have often wondered just why we wear hats. The only real reason I can think of is the decorative effect. The pagan in us perhaps.

I try to make myself think I wear a hat for a sun shade. I further try to attempt an excuse of keeping my head warm, of keeping my ears warm, of keeping my hair in place, of beauty, but these reasons are all without foundation.

The sun shade part of it is ridiculous. The Indians, Africans and civilized women seldom think of a hat as a sun shade. They seldom squint, or are annoyed by the sun. In fact I noticed a lady the other day with a wide brimmed hat, the front of it turned skyward, like Teddy Roosevelt.

Keeping your head warm is only a matter of habit. When heavy fur caps were the vogue, those caps made one's head so sensitive the wearers could hardly sleep without them.

I have wondered if a person's ears were not similar. I know one man who seldom pulls his ear flaps down regardless of the cold. He never freezes his ears. And then carrying the question a little further. A cow, or horse or even a mule will never freeze their ears if they are properly fed. Maybe the reason my ears get cold is I don't eat enough. Perhaps if I went without a cap I would grow ears like a mule.

The fact of keeping the hair in place is ridiculous. Some of the hair slicker now available at small cost will so plaster the tonsure that a hammer and chisel is necessary to muss it up. It is perfectly safe now to go see your lady friend bareheaded and stop at the saloon or restaurant on the way home without the crowd knowing how lovingly the only girl has stroked your tresses.

Of beauty I shall not say much. We think so and so has a very pretty hat, or a becoming one or a chic one. We all expostulate at great length. But if a picture were only taken and saved and dug out of the drawer five years hence, we would burn the terrible thing before sunset for fear someone would see and remember the terrible, hats we wore then. Is there a hat ever devised that is more beautiful than well groomed hair?

Be that as it may, I will report now to my own self and personal traits if you will pardon me. Should I be compelled to go to town without a hat I think I would feel as uncomfortable as if I had left my pants at home.

LETTERS FROM QUIZ READERS

To the Ord Quiz:
As I promised you last week, I will try to give the readers a few ideas of what is going on in camp from week to week. I and John Boyle Jr., also of Burwell, went to Albion Sunday with Pete Petersen of the East Side Cafe acting as chauffeur. We went by way of Erickson, Spalding and Cedar Rapids, and found the roads most of the way in bad condition. They were good after we hit the main highways. We arrived at camp at Albion at about two o'clock, and found half a dozen of the Burwell boys there and glad to see us. We also ran across Lambdin, Greathouse and Furtak from Ord, and Hermesmyer from Scotia. They are doing fine there, with very light work and good food. We were put through the mill Monday forenoon, and in the afternoon were taken down to the depot and supposedly put on the mixed train for Columbus. It so happened that there was a shipment of cattle due at four o'clock and so the train waited until that time. I went up town to put in the time, and met Dr. Wilbert Nay, who seemed glad to see me, so we had a fine visit. We finally arrived at Columbus at six o'clock, and found that we had to wait until nine thirty to get out to camp. So I called on across Long, and found that he has been in very poor health for some time and that he was not able to answer the phone. When he heard who it was, he insisted upon my coming down to visit him, and we spent a very pleasant hour together. He has been in poor health for three years, but will be able to be about in a short time now, to judge by appearances.

The camp here is thirteen miles out of Columbus, and is on a small creek formed by a large artesian well, which forms the source of water supply for the camp. This water is as good as any I have ever tasted, and contains a large percentage of iron, which the doctors state is good for the boys. There are more than four hundred ex-service men here in two companies one of which will remain, while the other, of which we are a part, will move to Madison, Neb., on July 10th. This is by all odds the finest place I ever saw of the kind, and we have little to do at present but eat three meals per day and have a good time.

Will write more from Madison.
John Ward.

War Possible, Four Kinds 10,000 Million Questions Our Large Gold Pile Knows Too Much at Four

Russian newspapers, speaking officially, accuse Japan of stirring up trouble along the Russian border, to "bring on grave complications." A protest carries Stalin's warning to Japan, that a continuation of these incidents "may have serious consequences in the relations of Russia and Japan, and peace in the Far East."

If Russia and Japan should have a serious disagreement, Russia's equipment in the way of submarines and airplanes, all within 400 miles of Tokyo, would probably enable other countries to stop worrying about Japan's military plans.

England does not approve of Mussolini's plans in Abyssinia, and the question arises, Would England close the Suez canal, the short cut for Italian troops and supplies to Abyssinia? Will Italian airplanes be forbidden to fly over the Suez canal area?

The answer as to closing of the Suez canal by Britain would probably be no. England would not voluntarily provoke hostilities with Italy. She really wants peace. But, how easily war could come—French against German or English against Italian or Japanese against Russian!

Germany undertakes to establish a "family tree" for each of its 66,000,000 inhabitants, which means asking, answering, writing down ten thousand million questions. The sensible answer would be, "I descended from Adam, with heaven knows how many mixtures in my blood on the way up," but Hitler would not accept that. Young couples getting marriage licenses are questioned: "What were your eight great-grandparents like? Did they have any Negroid or Jewish blood?"

"Were they fond of telling the truth? Did they have imagination, driving power?" Ten thousand million foolish questions would seem to set a new record.

The "greatest" country in the world, supposed to be the most intelligent, owns some tons of gold, called "worth" nine thousand million dollars.

We do not use the gold, or even invest part of it in adequate national defense, that would protect it. We are afraid some one may come, with better airplanes and submarines than ours, and steal it; so the government will dig a deep hole, far from the coast, put in it a huge safe, and hide away the gold lump, that is used only to impress the financial imagination of the world and keep foreigners from knocking down our currency.

Dolores Anne Diamond, only four, surprised teachers in a Schenectady kindergarten. She said the games for little children bored her, and she could recite the alphabet backward.

Dolores was moved to the first grade, and could have gone higher. She has the intelligence of a child of fourteen.

Usually it is better for a child to develop slowly and normally. The infant prodigy is usually dull later. Perhaps little Dolores will be an exception, like Mozart, and, at eighteen, as wise as Hypatia, with a happier ending.

Lloyd George, in spite of his seventy-two years, returns to active politics. He hates the "ard atmosphere of political controversy" and returns to active politics only because he believes that world conditions are growing worse, and "from the point of view of peace are worse than before 1914."

Miss Koutanova, Russian, twenty-one years old, jumped 25,426 feet from an airplane without oxygen apparatus and landed in a cabbage field after turning over four times before her parachute opened. She claims the female record.

Russia is teaching millions of young people to use parachutes, the first step in curing nervousness in flying. Here we have only a small handful of excellent pilots, but the masses of our population know as little about aviation as they do about "geometry in space."

Mr. Werner Kahn, district leader of "Hitler Youth," says Nazi doctrines have become Germany's real religion, and "the time must come when entry into the Hitler Youth organization will take the place now occupied by Catholic or Protestant confirmation." Furthermore, the young gentleman says, "I declare to all enemies of Hitler Youth that the fuhrer is our faith and national socialism is our religion."

Mexican Jumping Beans

Mexican jumping beans are not beans but the seeds of various tropical plants, especially that of the shrub called the swamp tree, whose pods are known as "broncho beans." When this is in bloom the gray tortricid moth lays its eggs in the blossoms and the eggs hatch out into larvae which bore into the beans. The jumping of the beans is due to the movements of the larvae within them. After some time these change into pupae, which gnaw holes in the beans from which the moths emerge.

Chase's Toggery

Old Settler in Pleasant Valley, Now 80, Recalls Early Day Cyclones, Blizzards

School District No. 19 Formed in Her House in 1885, Says Arcadia Woman.

By Clara F. Easterbrook.

We reached Valley county on March 10, 1880. I rode from Kearney on a small box which was on top of a large goods box that filled about one-half of the wagon box and was as high again, and carried my two-year-old baby. Mr. Easterbrook turned the spring seat bottom up and roped it to the wagon box so the springs formed some protection.

Mr. Easterbrook sat on the front of the large box and drove. We had a table, stove and some chairs piled in behind. Mr. Easterbrook chartered a railway car in Watseka, Ill., to Kearney and brought his machinery and stock and our household goods.

Arcadia then consisted of a few scattered sod houses, one occupied by Boone Hawthorne, who took the Arcadia postoffice. Arcadia then seemed a dreary, barren waste. Nothing green, no trees. Mr. Easterbrook took a homestead in Pleasant Valley on which we lived 30 years. We had to go to Grand Island to take out his homestead papers. We stayed with my cousin and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus Pierson, who had the homestead now occupied by Frank Franzen, while our sod house was being built. The lumber Mr. Easterbrook hauled from Grand Island. We had a board roof and floor which was pronounced "a regular palace" by many.

The day we moved into our sod house Edith and I were exposed to the measles and both took them. While I was broken out so I looked like I had smallpox we had one of the Nebraska bad blizzards that broke out every light of our small-paneled west window but one, and pounded hallstones and glass across the room 18 feet. I climbed up on the foot of the bed and helped Mr. Easterbrook hold a quilt over the window, then crawled back in bed when the storm passed.

The winter of 1880-81 was one big blizzard after another. A snow bank much higher than either, was between the house and barn over which Mr. Easterbrook passed to care for his stock. At one time the storm was so bad and had drifted over the barn doorway so he had to cut a hole through the willow roof to put feed and water through for the horses and cow. Mr. Easterbrook always took the scoop shovel in the house at night to shovel his way out in the morning. On March 3, 1883, a horse fell on the ice with Mr. Easterbrook, breaking his leg near the ankle and bruising some badly, from which he never fully recovered. This happened about 10 a. m., and it was 9 p. m. before we could get Dr. Klinker from Ord to reduce the fracture.

I well remember the big blizzard of 1888. Our two girls, Edith, 10, and Cora, 7, were in school a mile north. Peter McClary drove to the school house and got his children and ours and the teacher, Miss Edith Hellar and took them to his place from which Miss Hellar walked to our place to let us know the children were there safe.

My father, E. M. Foster, came to Valley county in 1883 and took a homestead in Pleasant Valley. He had the walls partly laid and lumber which he hauled from St. Paul for his sod house, also a pile of corn on the ground near by. On May 8th a cyclone took all, driving the lumber in kindling wood in the prairie in every direction. Kindling wood, shelled corn and cobs were scattered as far as Mira Valley. It missed our place by just a few yards and took a straw stack, leaving the ground as bare and clear as though having been swept by a broom.

About two months before my daughter Cora was born (who was the first baby born in Pleasant Valley) I killed a big rattlesnake in the yard. It was between 5 and 6 feet long and had 10 rattles. Pleasant Valley school district No. 19 was organized in our sod house in 1885 and Miss Hallie Harris was the first teacher.

An M. E. church class was organized in Pleasant Valley in October, 1883 and Mr. J. E. Hawley used to preach there, also in Old Yale. The class was later supplied by the Arcadia minister and was eventually transferred to Arcadia.

On July 3, 1884, Mr. Easterbrook "laid by" his corn, which covered the horses backs as they went through the field. In August we had a big hailstorm that pounded everything into the ground. There wasn't a green thing left in sight. The corn was just stalks from 6 to 10 inches left, and jackrabbits and prairie chickens were killed. That fall Mr. Easterbrook dug potatoes in Mira Valley on shares and hauled cornstalks from there to burn to keep us warm.

In June 1891 we had a freeze that killed grapevines, 2 to 3 feet long so they never started again. March 1, 1904, the mercury stood at 78 in the shade at 11 a. m. At 3 p. m., it had dropped to 28. On March 20, 1912 was the worst blizzard of the season. March 16, 1917 had a big blizzard, no trains. May 1, 1911 had a big snow storm, the snow from a foot to 15 inches in depth. Nov. 14, 1914, mercury was 2 below zero.

We built the first frame house in Pleasant Valley in 1885 which burned recently. Mr. W. E. Burdick the second a few years later. Mr. Burdick and Mr. McClary homesteaded in Pleasant Valley in 1881. I have set broken bones and been called many times to many homes to help usher in new settlers without the aid of doctor or nurse, there being neither in the vicinity at that time. I washed and dressed the first time, both father and son in one family, there being no doctor in attendance.

I might go on indefinitely but think I have written enough. I have passed my 80th birthday and as the first 80 is said to be the hardest I guess I will survive the remaining time allotted to me and like the old lady, when I count my "marbles" I find they far outweigh all I have had to endure.

Baby Poses in Four 4-Generation Groups While Making Summer's Visit to Nebraska

Baby Molly Winch, shown above in the arms of her mother, Mrs. Mary Winch, is a fortunate child, indeed, for she has four great grandmothers living. On her visit to Nebraska this summer Baby Molly has posed in four such groups. In the top picture with Mrs. Winch and Molly are Mrs. Winch's father, Glen Johnson, marshal of the village of North Loup, and Mr. Johnson's mother, Mrs. Maudie Johnson.

In the bottom picture with Mrs. Winch and Molly are Mrs. Winch's mother, Mrs. Ava Johnson, and her mother, Mrs. Mary Clement.

Both the Johnson and Clement families are pioneers at North Loup. Mrs. Maudie Johnson's husband, Byron, came there in 1872 as a bachelor and a year later was married to Miss Maud Stewart, who had arrived a year previously from Welton, Ia. Mr. and Mrs. N. G. Clement came to North Loup in 1872, soon after Mr. Clement was mustered out as a captain in the Union army during the Civil war. Both families have lived in North Loup ever since.

Granddaughter of this family, Mrs. Winch, is the husband of a professor of physics in Williams university, Williamstown, Mass., and is spending part of the summer with her parents and grandmothers in North Loup.

Far-Famed Florence
Florence, Italy, was once the center of world culture and world finance, and there are names associated with it that will endure for all time. Some of them are Michelangelo, the Medici, Dante Alighieri, Boccaccio, Machiavelli, Della Robbia, Leonardo da Vinci, Benvenuto Cellini and Raphael.

Uspallata Pass
The Uspallata pass is in the Andes mountains, in the northwestern part of the Argentine province of Mendoza, close to the boundary of Chile. Through it and a great tunnel, at an elevation of 9,334 feet above sea level, passes the transcontinental railroad between Buenos Aires and Valparaiso.

Petrified Forest of Arizona
The petrified forest of Arizona consists of thousands of petrified logs heaped in confusion on the ground, hundreds of feet below the places where they originally grew. Most of them are broken into short lengths as cleanly cut as if sawn. After falling they drifted down a water course, lodged in some eddy and were finally buried deep in sand and clay. The conversion of the wood into stone was effected by gradual replacement of the organic matter through the lime and silica contained in underground water. A small amount of iron in it has given it the brown, yellow and red tints.

The Boss Comes Back.
By Charles F. Wantz.
When the boss comes back from fishin',
With the tales of luck that's bad;
We wonder why such r'locrats
Will to the north lakes gad,
When there's fish that are a callin'
For the nice, sweet, juicy bait
That is needed for to land 'em
In their journey to the plate.
We just wonder why it takes a trip
Of several hundred miles,
While business waits or goes undone
Or on some other piles,
Just so's the boss can get a mess
Of fish from northern lakes,
As tho' them species' better
Than the local sort of makes.
It's not suckers Hank is seekin',
When he angles in the woods.
He can't fool us with that story—
'Bout it's fish he seeks for food.
Folks all know our butchers sell 'em,
Be it Otto, John or Mike,
Or Alvin 'cross the courthouse square;
But then, Hank'll have to hike
Out in the sun so blisters' hot
Whereas, when he's in camp,
An' wants to rest and also fish
Why he, the lucky scamp
Just rolls his eyes out lakeward,
An' can choose some shady nook
Where he can tatalize the fish
With tly or baited hook.

Nope! T'aint fish the boss is wantin',
It's jst change of bed and hay,
And a view of distant places
An' new faces while he's way.
Like other folk and critters,
Hank must get a change of scene,
To keep his mind a rollin'
An' to stimulate his spleen.
But the thot that burns us stay-at-homes
Is—we need vacations too,
But we can't work the deal it seems,
Like other folks can do.
So we just stay at home an' work,
An' wish for distant lands,
An' take our Quiz vacations,
From H. D. second-hand.

—Mr. and Mrs. Carl Sorensen drove to Berwyn Sunday to spend the day.

Mildred Rife Wed To Lawrence Nye

Miss Mildred A. Rife, daughter of E. R. Rife, of Red Cloud and Rev. Lawrence Nye, son of Rev. and Mrs. E. W. Nye, of Chambers were solemnized in marriage Sunday at 5:00 o'clock in the Methodist church in the presence of 300 guests.

The couple stood under a lattice-work bower of climbing roses before three and five-branch candelabra which were lighted by two candle bearers, Lucille Starr and Caroline Kinsey, who entered as Mrs. Lowell Finney took her place at the piano to play the wedding march, "Here Comes the Bride." She accompanied Kenneth Nye, brother of the groom who sang "O Promise Me," and Carl Easterbrook who sang "I Love Thee Through All Eternity."

Rev. E. W. Nye, father of the groom, united the couple, using the double wedding ring ceremony before an altar which was decorated beautifully with large baskets of roses, baby's breath and daisies, with two tapers on either side.

The bride, who was given by her father, E. R. Rife, was ushered in by little Dickie Warren, attired in white and blue, carrying the rings on a small white silk pillow and little Beth Finney, all in white, sprinkled rose petals in their pathway.

The bride was gowned in a white embroidered organdy and wore a long train down her back. She carried a gorgeous bouquet of snapdragons and calla lilies. Mrs. Clement Byrne, sister of the bride, of Hastings, who acted as Matron of Honor wore a gown of green organdy, of floor length trimmed in green organdy ruffles and carried a bouquet of daisies. The bridesmaids, Mrs. Arthur Henderson, sister of the groom and Miss Dorothy McNabb, of Lincoln wore yellow organdy and pink crepe dresses and carried lovely bouquets. Roland Nye, of Lincoln, brother of the groom, served as best man. The ushers were Orville Lueck and Arthur Henderson of Lincoln.

Following the reception held in the church basement the bride and groom left on an extended trip for the west coast to be gone three or four weeks. Mrs. Lillie Bly had charge of the guest book and Mrs. Harold Weddle was in charge of the gifts. The bride traveled in a brown two-piece suit with brown accessories. They will visit an aunt and uncle of Mrs. Nye's, Mrs. I. F. Roach and W. E. Rife in San Diego and in the Kenneth McDaniel home in Oregon. While in California they expect to take in the Exposition. The Work Sheet

By GEORGE GOWEN
"The Roving Reporter"

Driving out Mira Valley way around the bridge they are still saving, slowly past a road gang and on to the Arcadia road and north and to the west, making the first stop at Fern Johnston's.

Mrs. Johnston was feeding some little chickens in a tin garage with the assistance of her tiny daughter, Joyce, whose hair was all finger waved into nice little ringlets. Mrs. J. said they had some big gold fish but they hid to the bottom of the tank. When she said the barn out there was built the year the place was homesteaded long ago. I pecked into it. It is used now to milk the cows in. It is 12x20 feet and quite a barn yet. One nearly has to duck to get in the door.

I stopped at the edge of the road to see Fern. He has some nice horses, and has made a three-row two-row. He said he thinks some of this new grass we see around was blown in with the winds this spring.

The next place was Lavern Aldrich's. Mrs. A. came to the door with a dandy little baby boy by the name of Richard. She told me my sister-in-law worked there once; that for the first few months the baby cried nights and slept day times; that her husband was Dear Johning in the field, that she is a sister of Oscar Travis; and they had to have few flowers around the house which I had already spiced. Then she said "You may be Senator someday, who knows" and I left. I suppose there is a remote chance, but I had not thought of it before.

On west up a little grade alongside a bountiful wheat field the heads so heavy they are drooping, I turn in to Geo. Wozniak's. Everyone was absent except a friendly black dog. The place was neat, with a dinner bell, and had been planted on the edge of a pasture of sharp hills.

George Kirby was go-deviling and I chatted with him at the edge of the road. He said he is a brother to Morris Kirby and they look so much alike the people in town get them mixed all the time. When they are together they are accused of being twins but are three years different. I stopped at the house and Mrs. K. has some nice Leghorn chickens. The old ones are brown L., the young ones white. She likes the brown ones better as the crows and coyotes do not see them so easily, but she couldn't get the brown ones this year. She also said she thought they ought to have the fair, and that they would go if they did.

Across the road to the east Geo. Chipps lives. He was gone so Mrs. K. said and he is a batch and works with his father.

So I turned to the west and stopped at the father's, Levi Chipps'. His wife had a few tiny Brown Leghorn chickens on the porch. They are about the prettiest little chickens that were ever invented. Brown, fluffy balls, with light brown stripes, and look for all the world like little prairie chickens. Mrs. C. said Levi was close in the field so his grandson and I walked out there.

This grandson's name is Harold, a two-year-old with dark eyes and tan complexion a fat, good-natured little fellow and had his pockets bulging with valuables. Sort of a favorite of Levi, who nicknamed him Brownie.

Levi and I talked a few minutes and he asked if I was Bill Gowen's kid and I said yes, and he said he knew Bill well and Will Wetzel too, who use to work for my father and who just died the other day. We had a friendly visit before I left. His small grain and corn look wonderful to me. One year in forty someone said. He said the land there is still called Mira Valley but drains into Dane Creek. It is no wonder Mira Creek boils at North Loup when it rains out west.

Sherman Huff was the next stop. The whole place looked abandoned, but through the window of the kitchen door I noticed an old coat and a stove. I left my card, that is an old piece of paper with my name on it and hurried on.

I met Lew Hansen go-deviling and chatted there a minute. He and his brother Carl batch it. I asked Lew why he didn't get acquainted with some of the merry widows around. He said there are none around. That they are all picked up in a hurry in these parts. I suggested that he saunter over to Mira Valley, but then he would run into Bill Hecker, and that would toll any matrimonial chances there.

I told him he has some nice corn and then he asked if I was the Roving Editor and then I asked if he had anything to write about at his place and he said, "No, not a damned thing." He has a dog that nearly ate me alive when I stopped and when I left too, but that wouldn't have mattered if he had.

Ernest Coats was the next victim. He was asleep but was awakened and he showed me his cattle, and bull, and spic and span barn, and milk house and lily pond fraught with pollywogs, a red bird dog, and an old gun. Then I stayed to dinner, after meeting his son-in-law, Cass Cornell, who farms and works in partnership there.

The next stop was at Anton Lebruska's. Fred Skala seemed to be helping him, and they were sitting on the porch, their legs jack-knifed and their backs to the wall, resting after dinner. Another agent was giving them thunder, but I chiseled in, gave my song and dance, and left.

Anton was a friendly duffer and said a cyclone had been along scattering his hay rack asunder, hither and yon. The barn door was over by the windmill and the hog house ajar, but otherwise all looked pretty good. His oats and barley were simply wonderful. He said he liked the Quis but his shoes were worn out and he was going barefoot. He thought he better buy a pair of shoes first when he got the money if he ever did.

The next place to the east was Mrs. Mary Graul. She and her boys Will and Emil live here in a nearly new white house along Dane Creek among the tall trees. Will came out of the house and chatted a while. He said the large Cottonwoods have been falling over and dying. We wondered if it was not because of the feed yard built there.

Then he showed me a couple of nice little colts, and said they still have a few hogs, but that is the trouble. They have had too many the last few years. That is one reason they are so hard up, but that was a joke. I'd like to be hard up like they are.

Across the road to the south and nearly driving by the place without seeing it. Bill Hansen said that would have been all right. I asked him as he was hitching up some nice horses if he took the Quis. He said "No, I wouldn't take such a bum paper." I asked how he knew it was bum. "Oh, I see the neighbors' paper once in a while. Then I suggested selling another paper to him and he said that one is worse. He very unemotionally defamed the Quis at great length, but I deduced he was just trying to worry me and that his wife took the paper and he read it.

Nevertheless he proved to be quite pleasant and we went traipsing off to see some nice chickens and some Chinese Elms about eight years old that are higher than our heads. He did this only with the consideration I pay for all the damages if the team ran away. They have one of the nicest windbreaks I have seen yet, including cherry trees red with cherries. He also has some old corn in his crib.

I turned into Emil Kokes' next. I drove by a virtual forest planted slam bang to the north of a low white house. It was quite cozy there, and they never would realize "the north wind doth blow."

No one was present. I could see a few Chinese geese and a few more Chinese goslings and a quoniam piano sitting out beside the shop. Now I have seen quoniam engines galore, and a few quoniam horses and barns and one or two quoniam men, but this is the first quoniam piano. I plunked it a few times and hurried on. As I drove out I saw Emil go-deviling with a Fordson tractor.

To the highway, around the corner to the north and noticing the name Frank Johns on the mail box. Mrs. Johns was feeding her chickens and told me they had nothing at all worth mentioning. She said she was sorry and I told her they were surely unfortunate on that score, for right now was once in her life she might get a little free advertising in the best county paper in the state, barring none. I might even put a picture in the paper too if she wished. Sady she could think of nothing.

Across the gravel and a very little north to Frank Jobst's. Frank was tractoring in a field to the south. Two fields had been put together and Mrs. J. said there was about 195 acres there of corn. And a lot of level too. She said they had one pig, that it made no difference to them if there was a fair or not, that Frank did all his work with a tractor; that the few horses he has are loaned around the country. They have some wonderful large rustling cottonwoods there and some tiny kittens.

On north up the gravel a little ways and turning in at Ed Verstrate's. A dog named Peanuts was in the porch and nearly tore the door off to get out so he could eat me alive. I pushed hard on the door so he couldn't get out for his meal until a nice looking girl by the name of Eleanor came and quelled him.

Peanuts having given up that I was a highwayman and having laid down eyeing me suspiciously with his tongue out, Miss Eleanor told me they had raised some elk and deer on that place for John Rogers. But what didn't die were executed, so I was cheated out of a feature story there. I should have come quicker or the Elk died later. Miss Eleanor said not to put her name in the paper at all, just leave them out. Well I have. I am just telling about the Elk "what ain't and Peanuts what am."

North past the Brace school house. Climbing up on a little knoll to a house, I overlooked land to the west that was black and level and fertile as lays out doors and through which winds a little creek by the name of Dane. No trees guard off the elements at this place.

Mrs. Stanley Kordik and a couple fine looking children came to the door. A toy stacker was on the porch, one that took someone a few hours to build, and one that an older boy than the one I saw had made. Mrs. K. said Stanley was the artist.

She said this is Chas. Bals' place. I asked her if she was of the same nationality as Chas., and she said, "No we are Bohemians," and I told her that was nothing to be ashamed of. A cyclone had been along scattering the garage about the place and banging one of the windows against the bay window. As a result the garage and window both were slightly riddled. She has some Buff ducks and some Buff ducklets. I asked her what she raised them for. She said to eat. I asked them how they do the feathers off. That once when we tried to dress a duck we finally had to eat feathers and all, and she then said the Buff ducks dress like a hen, and are no trouble.

The next place was Eivind Lauren. Mrs. L. was preparing to wash out under the shade of the old apple tree. I asked her if they took the Quis. She said no they borrowed it. I told her I wished I could sell it to her and she said she wished I could, but they haven't the money now. When they harvest the big grain crop, if it don't hail etc., etc., they'll take.

Then she showed me some fine barred Rock blood tested chickens that are nice ones, and noticed several youngsters that were nicer yet playing around the door. And then I got a whiff of some alfalfa hay that was stacked too green. I like the smell as well as the cattle like the tobacco-colored feed that is in the making.

North and around the corner and up a little hill to one of the best improved farms I have seen yet. On the elevator was the name CHAS. BALS. Chas. and I are good friends, and I rode to Omaha once with Hector Van Daele, Chas.'s partner who lives on the place. I had never seen their place before although both these men had told me much about it.

Mrs. V. D. eyed me askance and put down clad restrictions on putting anything in the paper about them. Afraid of me. I assured her I would try to say nothing offensive or nothing to mortify them, but she was suspicious. She finally said I could take a picture if I would see her uncle, Mr. Bals, before I published it.

So when I arrived in town I hunted up Mr. Bals and he said, write anything you wish and took me up to his home to look up a picture that might be better than the one I took. He discovered all his good pictures were in Europe and I concluded not to go there for one. He also showed me his home in Europe and told me several stories about his experiences that will make good ones some time.

Then he said he has not any cattle in the yard now, that they farm about 400 acres besides a few sections he rents and that have some hogs but not as many as usual. They have an elevator, corn cribs, barns, shops, two wells and cisterns, two houses and two hired men besides Mr. Van Daele. It is a pretty place, nicely located on the hillside and the house surrounded by many trees. Joe Shoemaker is the hired man but has to quit soon so as to have an operation.

W. J. (Joe) Klat was next. He was in the garden which was in front of a large white house. He seems to be a fine horseman, a horseman who has fine animals and sells them too, when he gets money enough. He said he raised the nice sorrel team that Les Leonard has and he sold them.

Joe showed me a spotted mare that was not only spotted but big as well and then we went to the field and there Joe, jr., was two-rowing with four nice ones. I took a fancy to a roan mare but Joe liked the grey better. He said he could get $200.00 for the roan. I took a picture of the four horses with Joe and Joe, jr., near and hurried on.

I turned in at Mrs. Roy Adams' place next. Her heart was still wrung from her husband's death. She said she was still living here now, and fate would have to take care of her. I told her that it was hard business, and the last rites and shock of the death were only a small part of the grief in such cases. She also said her husband had not died from heart trouble but from a clot of blood on the lung.

Thinking this a day's work, I deserted my efforts, toured into town and stopped at the Quis office. There the crew were preparing to print the paper and something had gone wrong with the press. M. C. said "No one has more troubles than the printer." I asked if they have more than the farmers. He thought so. Well, I said, you don't get hauled out anyway. I tarried there until I got a first edition and scampered home, passing Joe Barta on the road home also.

To the Public.
There is a rumor being circulated that we lost a lot of cattle from our herd, as a result of the recent TB test in Valley county. This is not true. We didn't have a single reactor from our herd and have the papers from the government men in charge of the test to prove it and will be glad to convince anyone interested. Such gossip, whether malicious or idle, might injure us, hence this statement. 15-1t

Father Flanagan's Plea Heeded By High Authorities

BOYS TOWN, Nebr., July 6th.—An insistent plea for justice which would save them from prison terms has resulted in a fresh start in life for three "baby bandits" of New York.

Father E. J. Flanagan, head of Father Flanagan's Boys' Home of Boys Town, Nebr., has been notified by New York authorities that his plea that the boys, Frank Damato, 12, his brother, Julius, 10, and their pal, Gibson Lawrence, 13, son of a negro clergyman, be sent to a home rather than to prison, has been officially heeded. The three boys were held for the killing of a man in a holdup with a pistol they had stolen from a Jamaica, N. Y. police station.

New York authorities told Father Flanagan that rehabilitation of the boys was recommended by the grand jury that heard the evidence. The jury, refusing to indict for first degree murder, told the judge of the Children's Court that he should take charge of the youths and send them to a state home where they could be given a new start in life.

The district attorney concurred in these words:

"The best interest of justice will be served if these lads are turned over to the child welfare agencies and placed in an institution where they may be reared as good citizens."

"The report made to me by Dr. Sylvester Leppy, the psychiatrist I engaged to examine the boys, coupled with my own investigation of their family life and background, convinces me they were too young to realize the serious nature of the act they committed."

Father Flanagan, who had notified New York authorities that he would take the boys into his nationally known home for homeless boys here if other arrangements could not be made was happy on receipt of the news that has plea in their behalf had resulted in saving them from prison.

"I am happy," he said, "that the law of man in the case of these three boys, has been made to conform with the law of God."

Will Wetzel

William Lewis Wetzel was born in North Vernon, Indiana, April 12, 1862 and passed away July 3, 1935 at his home in North Loup. He was one of four children, all of whom are gone except the youngest brother, Gus Wetzel. When a young man he went to Iowa and spent some time working there. Later he came to North Loup and took a homestead, where he made his home for many years. While living there he married Abbie, elder daughter of A. B. Hutchins, and with her two children by a former marriage, it was a very happy home. The stepson passed on several years ago, but the daughter, Mrs. Laura Robbins, has been with him to help care for him during the many months of his illness.

He was a hard working man and took much pride in doing each task well. He was a just, kind, man and had many friends. Besides his wife and stepdaughter he leaves one brother, Gus Wetzel, two grandchildren, Selma and Leland Robbins and a number of nieces and nephews.

The funeral service was held at the home and was conducted by Rev. Hurley Warren, who spoke from the text, "Provide things honest in the sight of all men". Casket bearers were Eino Hurley, George Gowen, Bert Sayre, Edward Christensen, Ska Kraft, and Harlan Brennick. Burial was in North Loup cemetery.

Mr. and Mrs. Leland Robbins came up from Lincoln to attend the Will Wetzel funeral and stayed over the week end visiting relatives in Sargent and North Loup.

A meeting of the Board of Directors of the Loup Valley League was held in North Loup last Wednesday night in which North Loup's protest of the game with Ord was considered. After due consideration and hearing North Loup's side of the case and due to the fact that the Ord representative did not come to the meeting at all to present his side of the case the protest was upheld and the game awarded to North Loup. Also at this meeting the Board voted to make the season into a split season starting with Sunday July 7th.

Arcadia, 1-North Loup 4. At a special game held in Arcadia at their celebration July 4th North Loup beat Arcadia 4 to 1. Kelly Barber started pitching for the Loupers, was altogether too tough for the Arcadians, for five innings he held them to one hit, a double by Hollingshead, and no runs at all. At the same time North Loup was scoring nothing, getting only three hits. Knapp relieved Barber in the sixth and stayed for two innings giving up two hits and no runs. In the seventh North Loup started hitting, getting four in a row and forcing three runs across, and two hits and an error in the eighth put another across. Sheldon went in in the eighth for North Loup and in the ninth gave up two hits and this coupled with an error gave Arcadia their lone run. Batteries, North Loup, Barber, Knapp, Sheldon and Cap Williams; Arcadia, Johnson and Scott.

North Loup, 7-Ashton, 5. North Loup scored a win to start off the second half of the League season by beating Ashton 7 to 5 at North Loup last Sunday. For the first five innings it looked pretty much as if it were going to be Ashton's ball game. In the first five Ashton got five runs from five hits while the North Loup boys were making four errors in the field. North Loup managed to get two runs across in the fourth by three hits and a couple overthrows by the Ashton boys. To start the sixth inning Noyes tied out to the right fielder, Ken Barber singled, Mel Williams was safe when they played unusually fast for Barber at second. Hutchins batting for Faudt singled scoring Barber for successive singles by Sheldon, Cress and Knapp put five runs across the plate. Neither team scored from that time on and the final was North Loup 7, Ashton 5. Batteries, Ashton, Jacobson and Kontor; North Loup, Sheldon and Williams and Hutchins.

A passage from the Bible in the lesson-sermon is from I Corinthians 10:1, 4: "Moreover, brethren, I would not that ye should be ignorant, how that all our fathers were under the cloud, and all passed through the sea; And did all drink the same spiritual drink: for they drank of that spiritual Rock that followed them: and that Rock was Christ."

A correlative passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, reads: "Throughout all generations both before and after the Christian era, the Christ, as the spiritual idea,—the reflection of God,—has come with some measure of power and grace to all prepared to receive Christ, Truth, Abraham, Jacob, Moses, and the prophets caught glorious glimpses of the Messiah, or Christ, which baptized these seers in the divine nature, the essence of Love." Way of an Eagle Birds which are most faithful to their nesting places are golden eagles and buzzards. These birds have the queer habit of building two nests, or eyries, in the same locality, often not more than a mile apart. Both nests are visited and repaired each spring, and the birds don't make up their minds until the last minute which they will use.

Some eagles' nests have been used for scores of years—even perhaps for a century—and they grow to an enormous size. Each pair of eagles, if unmolested, hunt across a certain territory which, by bird law, seems to belong to them. They do not invade the hunting ground of other eagles.

Briar Pipes
Briar, used in 95 per cent of all pipes made, is mainly taken from the fields of Algeria, from where great quantities are exported each year. The "straight grain," or that part which comes from the center of the root, is most expensive and pipes made of it range from $5 to $100 in price. Being a naturally porous wood, fine briar will absorb a natural coloring from the tobacco and turn a lustrous hue of deep brown. This is supposed to be the secret of a sweet-smoking pipe, because the pores of this fine wood are permitted to "breathe," thus flavoring the wood with the aroma of natural leaf tobacco.

Salt Industry of Canada

The salt industry of Canada is one of the oldest non-metallic industries of the country, dating back to the early years of the last century when the Hudson's Bay company obtained their local supplies from the brine springs of the McKenzie basin. The discovery of salt in Ontario in 1800 was, however, the real beginning of the industry on a substantial basis, and production from the Ontario field has been continuous since that time.

Turtles on Desolate Isles

The desolate Galapagos islands were once known as the Enchanted Isles, perhaps because they served as safe havens for buccaneers and whalers. They are 16 in number, and although discovered by the Spaniards, they all bear English names. They belong to Ecuador. Galapago means tortoise. The islands are the home of vast numbers of turtles, some weighing 600 pounds.

DECIDE TO HOLD FAIR THIS FALL

Former Ord Man Killed In Brawl At Nebraska City

Second Degree Murder Charges Filed Against Assailant of Jerry Jelinek, 43.

Jerry Jelinek, 43-year-old Missouri river laborer died Monday evening in a Nebraska City hospital from injuries suffered in an altercation last week. Jerry, who went to Nebraska City with his wife and children from Ord eight months ago, is the son of P. J. Jelinek of Ord.

Floyd Clark of Nebraska City is held and according to County Attorney Edwin Moran following the adjournment of the coroners jury Tuesday, charges of second degree murder will be filed against him. The jury found that Jelinek met his death "by reason of injuries received in which one Floyd Clark was the aggressor, said injuries being purposely and maliciously inflicted but without deliberation or premeditation." He also faces a charge of assault on James N. Hamilton, whom authorities said followed Jelinek and Clark out of a beer tavern just before the incident took place.

Mr. Jelinek is survived by his wife and four children, his father, P. J. Jelinek, two brothers, John and Joe Jelinek, and a sister, Mrs. Will Kokes, all of Ord. Funeral services were held Wednesday morning from the St. Mary's church at Nebraska City. Ord relatives drove to Nebraska City Saturday evening, returning home Tuesday, being unable to remain for the funeral services.

Popular Ord Couple Announce Marriage

Miss Margaret Frazier and Shirley Norton, popular Ord couple, were united in marriage on July 3 at Atchworth by Judge Olsen. Witnesses were Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Beeghly.

MRS. SHIRLEY NORTON.

Mrs. Norton is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Frazier of Ord, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Norton of Eryia. Both bride and groom are well known to Ord people, the bride being employed in the J. C. Penney store.

The marriage was not known until Saturday evening, when the couple gave an announcement party at the Mortensen cottage. About thirty friends of the bride and groom were guests and enjoyed an evening of dancing and merry-making.

Effie Benson Married.

Saturday morning Miss Effie Benson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Benson of Ord, became the bride of Donald J. Horsman of Polver. The ceremony took place at the Presbyterian church following which a wedding dinner was given for the couple by a member of the navy, and is stationed at Hawaii. Mrs. Horsman will live with his parents for a few months, and will then go to Hawaii to join her husband, stopping at Ord on her way to visit her many friends here.

Catches Big Catfish.
 A catfish weighing thirty pounds was caught in Pibel Lake last week by Leo Schaaf of David City. Schaaf was fishing for bullheads, casting with a rod and reel, with a worm for bait when the big catfish took the bait. The fish was hauled ashore with the light line.

Park Now Cleared Of Flood Damage

Bud Shirley, caretaker of Buswell Park, reports that the park is again in condition to be used. Tables and other equipment have been restored and the picnic grounds are in fine condition. The lighted kittenball field, which was thought to be out of commission for the remainder of the season, is again in use by the players, and children may now play on the equipment provided for their entertainment.

Fish Still On Strike At Cullen, Writes Editor

Cullen Lake, Nisswa, Minn. Thursday, July 11.

Dear Quiz:
 It has been more than a week since I sat down to a typewriter, as I easily realize when I attempt to operate this Remington portable. How quickly fingers grow stiff from disuse!

We (my wife, son Kerry and Miss Olga Vodehnal) left Ord about noon Wednesday, July 3, and had a very pleasant trip to this lakeside cottage. Our route took us to Ericson, Bartlett, Elgin and then to Highway 20 near Brunswick. We followed No. 20 to Sioux City and then U. S. No. 75 up through Iowa, hitting Minnesota at Luverne. From there we followed the usual route and found all roads good. We arrived at St. Cloud, 80 miles from Cullen lake, a little before 1:00 a. m. and then I went to sleep and let Irma drive, with instructions to "take it easy" as we didn't want to drive into camp in the middle of the night and wake everybody up. She followed instructions literally. Our speedometer measured the distance from Ord to Cullen at 608 miles and we believe it was the best route we ever traveled.

Publisher H. D. Leggett and family, who had been in their cottage here for almost a month, were expecting us about noon of the 4th but knowing our ways weren't surprised to see us roll in about daylight so soon had breakfast ready.

Although we had been told that Cullen lake was unusually high we were surprised when we found it is higher than at any time in the fifteen years we have been coming here.

On the 4th of July we enjoyed an unusual sort of picnic, a "porch picnic" on the screened-in front porch of the Leggett cottage and I believe it's the best sort of picnic to hold. No flies, no bugs, no mosquitoes to bother, a table to eat from, chairs to sit

Bumper Corn Crop Is Predicted Here

Valley county, the world's popcorn center, recalling the desolate outlook of a year ago, today looks forward thankfully to its 1935 prospects. Outside of a small hail-stricken area, the prospect is for a bumper crop, although corn will be a little later than usual in maturing due to the extremely wet weather. Hay and pasture crops are good and where no hay stacks visible last year, today they dot the horizon, the hay crop being nearly ready for the second cutting.

Farmers are looking forward to a heavy small grain crop and bladders are now humming on several Valley county farms. Some damage was done to the small grain by hail, but in most instances the prospect is for a good crop. A few farmers report red rust in their wheat fields, due to excess rainfall. Black rust, dreaded by wheat raisers has been spreading rapidly in Nebraska wheat fields and considerable damage has been done to fields in eastern Nebraska. When this rust attacks a wheat plant, growth stops and the berries do not fill out. The rust is prevalent only in wet years, being a fungus disease. Authorities state that the only possible check is sunshine and wind, and even this will not completely eradicate the rust.

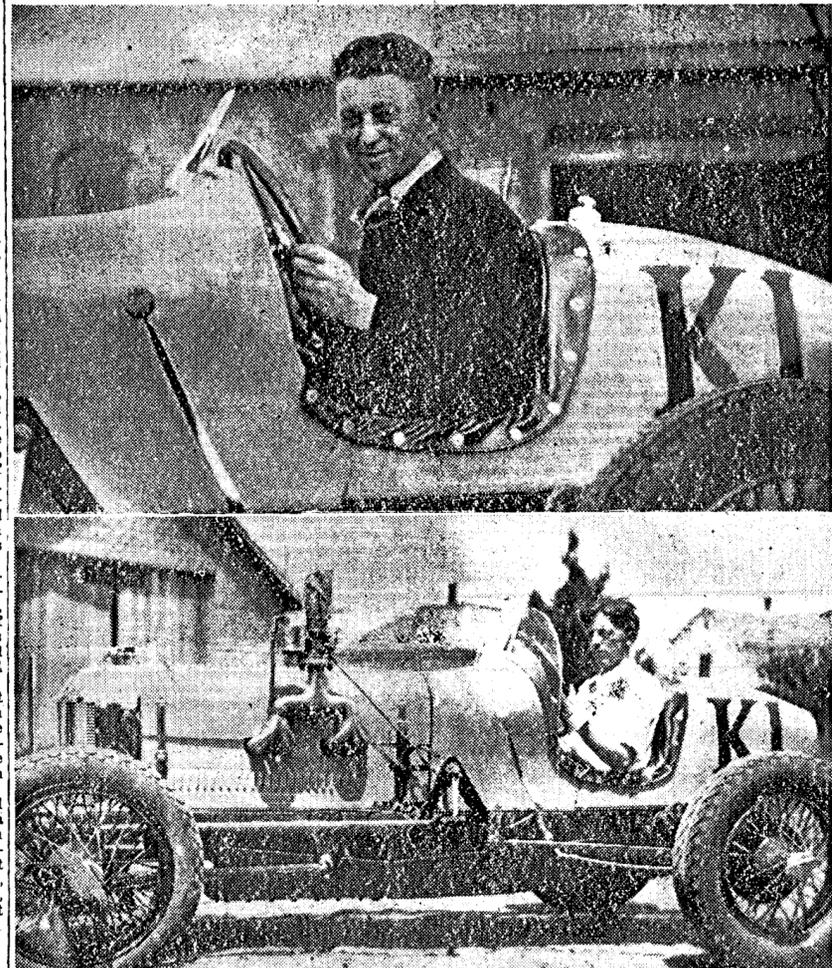

Faye Weekes, Former Ord Girl, Is Married

Miss Faye Weekes of Broken Bow and John Bilstein of Amelia, were united in marriage Tuesday evening, July 2, at 5 o'clock by the Rev. C. E. McPherson at the Methodist parsonage in Atkinson. Witnesses were Miss Ida Bilstein, sister of the groom, and Melvin Hicker of Atkinson.

The bride is the daughter of E. L. Weekes of North Platte, and Mrs. Edith Weekes, Broken Bow, and formerly lived at Ord, teaching school in Broken Bow for several years. Mr. Bilstein is the son of Mrs. E. G. Bilstein of Swan Lake. He is engaged in trucking and he and his bride will make their home at Atkinson.

Ord Business Interests Join Chamber of Commerce In Assisting Fair Board, Three Days of Races Assured

Enthusiasm High As Ord Business People Subscribe Funds Liberally. Fair Board Set Dates September 16, 17, 18 and 19. Many Race Drivers Anxious to Compete Here, Supt. Clyde Baker Already Has Communications From Several of the Best.

For several months the question of whether Valley county should revive its fair in 1935 has been a live question. The fair board was not convinced that there was a demand for it. Neither did it have the funds necessary to put the buildings and track in shape for a fair. The fair board was willing to borrow the money and go to the necessary expense if only it could be assured that there was a real demand. There seemed but one way to find that out and the wily fair board took that way. They put the matter squarely up to the Chamber of Commerce, telling them that it would cost at least $750.00 to make necessary repairs and saying if Ord business interests wanted a fair and would signify it by raising that amount of money, they would go ahead and have a fair with two days of auto races.

The Chamber of Commerce accepted the challenge. President Pullen called a meeting of the directors for last Thursday night and a few other business men, hearing about it, dropped in to add their suggestions and advice. The sentiment seemed to be strong with the eight or ten present to have a fair but still they didn't know the sentiment of all the business men. So President Pullen named a committee of three, headed by Bud Auble and including Stanley McLain and Ed Mauer and volunteered to go with them and assist in finding the sentiment. The matter was talked over, a campaign mapped out and it was thought that with Friday, Saturday and Monday for the committee to work, the sentiment of the Ord business men could be found out. They started out Friday morning about nine o'clock and before night more money was pledged and actually paid in than had at first been asked for.

Monday night when the committee went before the fair board with its report it was able to turn over something over eleven hundred dollars in cash and to give assurance that there were still a number of business people to see and that the total sum would no doubt go over the twelve hundred dollar mark.

The fair officers consist of C. W. McLellan, President, Sam W. Roe, Vice President and Secretary, (he was chosen secretary at the meeting Monday night) Emil Fafetta, Treasurer, Don Rounds, Henry Jorgensen, Henry Enger, Clare Clement, Chess Chin and Charles Bals. The next meeting will be held at the Nebraska State bank the evening of July 22. Mr. Rounds was the only member unable to be present at the meeting Monday night and he says he will be on hand for the meeting next Monday evening.

The board chose the following as superintendents in the various departments:

Burwell Boy Falls Under Truck, Dies

Friday at Burwell occurred the tragic death of Glen, fifteen-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hahn of Burwell.

The accident occurred at 9:30 Friday night when the lad, who was walking down the sidewalk ran across the street, and attempted to jump onto the running board of a slowly moving ice truck, driven by Wilson Schaffer. The boy's foot slipped, and he was thrown in front of the truck, its wheel traveling over the entire length of the body. Death was instantaneous.

The body was taken to Columbus and interment was held Sunday afternoon in the Columbus cemetery. Glen is mourned by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Glen Hahn, three brothers, and a sister. Friends will remember that a year or two ago, Mr. and Mrs. Hahn lost two sons when a cave in which they were playing, crumbled in. Another son lost his life in an automobile accident several years ago.

Allotment Committee Makes Statement

Because of the fact that many rumors are being circulated among farmers that a signer will not receive his corn-hog payment unless he raises his quota of hogs, the Valley County Allotment Committee, wishes to issue this statement:

The corn-hog contract provides that a man must raise 25% of his base acreage of corn and 25 percent of his hog base unless excused by the allotment committee.

The rules also provide that the allotment committee may excuse signers from these provisions, if they find that it was due to unusual weather conditions, shortage of feed, etc. The allotment committee of this county intends to excuse signers from the requirement in regard to raising hogs because it is a well known fact that due to the shortage of feed, and lack of capital many farmers had to get rid of all their breeding stock. Also in view of the attack on the processing tax, in the courts many farmers are afraid that this year's contract will not stand. The allotment committee is assured by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration that regardless of what the courts hold in regard to the tax, that present contracts will be carried out and payment will be made on all contracts which are fulfilled by the signer. The Government will not back out on these contracts, regardless of the fate of the processing tax at the hands of the courts.

Dispose of Liquor At Burwell Jail

Under the supervision of Sheriff Johnson, Judge Rose and County Attorney Runyan, some seven hundred bottles of liquor was disposed of Wednesday morning at the Burwell jail. The liquor was that which was taken several months ago from an O'Neil bootlegger by Sheriff Johnson. A Ford truck, which was also taken, was disposed of later at public auction, and Wednesday, by virtue of a court order, the liquor was dumped into the sewer. Several popular advertised brands were included, most of it being in pint and half pint bottles. At present market prices, it is estimated that the total value of the liquor would reach four hundred dollars.

Liquor Store Moving To New Location

Work is going forward on the new brick liquor store which is being built on the lot just north of the Auble Bros. building, for Frank Fafetta and we understand he expects to have it ready to move into by August. There are said to be several applicants for the Mortensen building which Mr. Fafetta will vacate but at this time no contract has been signed.

Old Settlers Picnic Will Be Held Aug. 18

The date for the annual old settlers picnic of the Loup Valley association has been set for Sunday, August 18 and the picnic will be held on the old Pebble Creek battlefield where Littlefield was killed by the Indians. The officers of the organization have selected Sunday for the picnic because it will make it possible for more to attend and it is urged that all old settlers plan to be on hand and to have something to offer on the program. A program will be published in the newspapers of the valley later but the committee will greatly appreciate any assistance rendered them in getting the program lined up. Communicate with E. C. Helbig at Burwell with any suggestion.

Two Men Killed When Auto Hits Parked Truck

Harry McDonald, Arcadia, Instantly Killed; Omaha Man Is Other Victim.

Harry McDonald, farmer near Arcadia and Frank Sheehan were killed and two other persons injured Saturday, when the car in which they were riding struck a truck, owned by Chris Larsen of Ord, which was parked at the foot of a hill on highway 16 near St. Paul.

The truck, driven by James Larson of Ord, was enroute from Ord to Columbus with a load of oats. Larson had the trouble and left the truck at the foot of the hill about 7 p. m. Saturday while it was still light. The car which crashed into the truck was driven by Bert Sell, 51, of Arcadia. Witnesses said there were no lights on the truck at the time of the crash. Larson was not in the vicinity at the time, having gone to make arrangements for tire repairs. In the car with Bert Sell was Frank Sheehan of Omaha, Carl Wicklund of Loup City, and G. Sorenson of Omaha, besides McDonald, McDonald, Wicklund and Sell were returning to their homes from Omaha. Sheehan and Sorenson are street car conductors at Omaha and had availed themselves of an opportunity to ride with Sell to visit relatives near Rockville.

Harry McDonald was instantly killed, and Frank Sheehan suffered a multiple skull fracture, basal skull fracture, and a broken arm. He died at a St. Paul hospital Monday afternoon shortly after four o'clock. Carl Wicklund of Loup City suffered a broken collar bone, fractured ribs, and internal injuries. At present his condition is improved and barring unexpected complications, he will make a satisfactory recovery. G. Sorenson of Omaha suffered slight injuries. Bert Sell, driver, escaped injury. Sorenson returned to Omaha late Monday, and Wicklund is a patient in a St. Paul hospital.

A coroner's jury was summoned at St. Paul Tuesday morning to determine the cause and fix responsibility for the accident. The inquest, which was held at the Christensen mortuary, Tuesday morning was brief, and the coroner's jury heard evidence relating to the cause of the death of McDonald and Sheehan. County Attorney Charles Dobry announced adjournment of the inquest to reconvene Wednesday morning at 8 o'clock at the court house. At this time 45 witnesses were called to give testimony concerning the fatal accident.

As we were unable to get details of the Wednesday inquest.

Judge Munger Again Names Hardenbrook

Judge Thos. C. Munger, one of the judges of the District Court of the United States, District of Nebraska, has just reappointed Bert M. Hardenbrook as Conciliation Commissioner for the counties of Valley, Garfield, and Loup for another year.

In making the appointment Judge Munger stated "There may be cases to be filed under the conciliation provisions of Section 75 A to R of the Bankruptcy Act." It will be remembered that something over a year ago the Frazier-Lempke law was passed. Section 75 of what is termed the Bankruptcy Act in the Federal Code consisted of paragraphs (A) to (S) and was a part of the so-called Frazier-Lempke Law. A decision of the Supreme Court of the United States decided May 27th last Subdivision S, which constituted the Frazier-Lempke portion of this law, was declared unconstitutional. Subdivision S had to do with the appraisal of the Debtor's property which required the creditor to either make settlement based upon the appraised valuation, or the Debtor could have a reasonable rental value fixed and occupy the premises for a period of five years, and the premises could be purchased by the Debtor at the appraised value during that period.

Subdivisions A to R are still in force and effect. Under the Federal law a farmer who owes debts he cannot pay may yet file a Debtor's Petition and make an effort to secure a settlement with his creditors. In many instances the conciliation between the Debtor and the Creditor which was to their mutual advantage. It will be observed under the Legal Division of the Quiz that there are persons engaged in farming who are at this time taking advantage of this provision of the Federal law.

My Own Column

By H. D. Leggett

The proposal of the Roosevelt administration, to tax the great aggregations of wealth is described by them as "Confiscatory" but when they take it away from the people by sharp practice methods, that is real business.

Last year I advised everyone to raise a good garden and tried to do so myself, but the drought prevented any of us doing so. I gave the same advice again this year and took my own medicine and we are enjoying a great abundance of many kinds of garden sass. It is hard on the meat dealers and canned goods merchants when we all raise good gardens but it is easy on the pocketbook and beneficial to the health, for fresh vegetables from the garden are always much better than the boughten kind.

I notice that most of the surrounding towns are planning some sort of fall entertainment for the people of their communities and if Valley county decides against having a fair, then Ord surely must begin planning some sort of fall festival. We are gaining the reputation of being a dead town, which is not true, but we may have to prove it is not. I doubt if a better time to revive the fair, perhaps on a smaller scale, will be found than this year.

After a few days of good fishing, Eugene writes that the fish have again gone to sleep and that there is nothing doing. None of us know exactly what is the matter. We can think of a number of things that might be the cause of the condition. One of them is high water, which has caused the fish to change their bedding places, making it harder to locate them in great numbers. For a time we thought it was due to the late spring and that they would start in about a month later than usual. It is getting pretty late for that theory to be reasonable. About the only reasonable excuse is that there are so many storms, high winds, heavy dashing rains that the fish are frustrated and don't know their own minds.

As I came through the alley from my garden the other day with a mess of beans, some nice young beets and a handful of onions, I was wishing I had some nice leaf lettuce. I don't care so much for the nice head lettuce we can get at the grocery. Then I saw the long row in the preachers garden and knew he was on his vacation. I know it is wrong to steal from anyone and perhaps worse to steal from a preacher, but I just pulled a few roots of those nice lettuce leaves and had them for dinner and I hope Bro. Smith don't find it out.

Don't be timid about asking me to send in your daily paper subscription. I want the business. I get a commission and it don't cost you a red cent, saves you a few cents in fact. I have always believed that anything that was worth having, was worth asking for, so I am asking for your daily newspaper subscription business. Don't let it stop, phone me to send it in if you are not coming to town for a few days. I will take care of it and you can drop in and pay me when you come to town.

An Ord man, with a large family to support, failed to do his work as he should and lost his job and now has plenty of time to fish and don't seem to have any regrets. He probably thinks the world owes him a living and probably he will get it, at the expense of the government—the people.

One of the finest things Ord and vicinity could have would be a lake, a place where people, old and young could go and fish and swim, a body of water with land about it that could be landscaped and beautified during the next few years and made into a beautiful park, where trees could be planted and drives laid out and graveled. There must be some site near Ord that could be thus treated. The state has built and is maintaining such parks all over the state. Custer county has two or three I believe, due to the influence of Hon. Emerson Purcell. Sherman county has one. Now Howard county is starting promotion work to get one. The Chamber of Commerce of Ord has done many useful and helpful things in the past few years. It is doing things all the time. The money paid into its treasury as dues is probably the best spent money in Ord. But if the Ord Chamber of Commerce could locate a lake site in this vicinity and then father the project that would, in the years to come, stand out as far the greatest work it ever did I feel sure the state would back a well planned feasible project.

Anyone who reads the daily newspapers knows that our Congressman, Mr. Coffey and our Senator Mr. Burke, are not cooperating to get the Ord irrigation-power project financed. Why? You tell.

The road between Ord and Ericson is a crime. It has now been graded out from Ord for a few miles and now if gravel could be put on before the grade is spalled, that much of it would be good. If that is not done a wet fall will make it almost impossible for people from the north to get into Ord. At the present time one can drive around by Burwell, Atkinson and O'Neil and get to Ericson almost as quickly as they can go across and with lots more comfort and less wear and tear on their car. Ord business interests should arise en masse and insist upon a good road to Ericson.

I believe that if the government could get a dollars worth of actual service in return for the dollars it pays to employees, one fourth of the money spent would get the job now being done, completed. If you don't believe that just watch a few groups of government employees at their work.

If Rev. Wantz don't quit pickin' on me I shall have to do something about it. I would have Eugene send him a box of fish but he just can't catch the fish. It takes a real fisherman to catch them this season.

Something Different

One of the quaintest stories I've heard for a long time concerns the little dog, Boots, which belongs to the O. E. Johnson family. Boots goes to bed when the children do, and stays there until they get up. So when the family suffered a siege of illness this past spring and several of the children were sick for several days, what do you think?

Boots took to his bed too. Once in a while he would wander in to see if the children were up, and see that they were still in bed. Perplexed, Boots would go straight back to bed, and there he dutifully stayed until the little Johnsons could run about again. No doubt Boots thought it a very long night.

There are lots of things about life on Middle Cullen in the Leggett cottage, Jack Pine Lodge, which are very interesting to me, but I don't know just how many Quiz readers would care to hear about them. For instance, about ten feet from where I am, typing on the big front porch, which is a screened-in affair well-swept by the west wind at this minute, there is a cunning little birch bird house with red trim. In this little bird house a wren family are living, or rather the Mama wren is setting on the nest, and the Papa wren rustling a living for the Mama, for there isn't any family yet.

There are lots of bird houses on our lot, most all occupied and dozens of birds living nearby in other kinds of nests. In fact there are so many birds they sing constantly, sometimes making almost too much bird-music. But I use this native orchestra. When Kerry cries, takes a tumble etc. . . . he rarely ever does cry. I can always tell him to "Listen. There's a bird that wants to sing to Kerry." And so far the birds haven't failed me, there is always one that will sing for the baby in such a case.

Another large bit of local color is provided by Oscar Wallin's whiskers. Like all the rest of the natives, he is sporting a beard, an advertising scheme for some celebration coming soon. And it is a beard, a real one. It reminds me of pictures of Brigham Young, or perhaps of some of my ancestors, shown with beards so luxuriant that collars are hidden trifles.

Anyway, Oscar, a nice youth, has civilized brown hair, but how independent his beard is. It is not brown but reddish, and stands out wirily from his face.

Gene says Smoky Joe, in Nisswa, has his beard trimmed to make him look like the Green Ambassador, or somebody, with waxy points, mustache, a truly elegant affair. Smoky Joe runs a hamburger stand. . . . a tip for Ed Mouser. . . . he could undoubtedly increase his business if he'd rate such a display on his chin and cheeks.

Then there is a little story about Miss Ethel Luther, daughter of Ray Luther's, who worked many hours making herself a gay banquet dress of turquoise blue taffeta, with ruffles many places, puffs dropping over the arms, etc., only to come down with measles the day before the banquet and she hasn't worn the dress yet, except to show her friends how it looks. She graduated from the high school at Pequot this spring, past.

Ethel is the girl who did practically anything to get to go to high school. She went any old way, just to get there. In the fall and spring she rowed a mile and a half to meet the highway and school bus. In the winter when the lake was frozen she skated across it. In the between kind of weather she had to go the best way she could, hiking into Nisswa, four miles, to catch a ride the five miles into Pequot.

The City Cousin

Then I could tell a tale about the Judge Clements wire haired terrier, a pretty little pedigreed pup with a happy disposition. One day last week Smoky, this aforesaid pup, was on a leash in the front yard. Suddenly two terrifying big brown dogs came out of the evergreens a few feet away and tackled poor little Smokey. They were the Chesapeake dogs of Ray Luther, a couple of fine hunting dogs when there is hunting but killers as far as visiting dogs in this part of the woods are concerned.

At once Lena Clements knew what had happened and she dashed out the front door and flung herself courageously into that heap of fighting dogs, trying to save little Smokey from being killed. Lena made what Flora, Mrs. C. A. Anderson, termed a shoe-string tackle. . . . whatever that is, your football fans.

Anyway, with more help the dog fight was eventually stopped. Smokey, a trusting fellow who never heard of a dog fight, was suspicious of everyone for a few days, spending much time under beds and etc., while he licked a wicked gash in his side. But as Smokey forgot his scare, the wound healed and he will soon be as beautiful as ever.

He is as waggly now as he ever can be.

Then I could tell about the time Mr. Gross, Frank Gross, spent two or three uncomfortable hours in a boat while a party fished, and expressed himself, on landing, as happy to climb off that monkey wrench on which he had been perched all afternoon. Afraid of water Mr. Gross was almost afraid to breath in a boat, so had sat right still.

Irvin Augustine of Grand Island is also afraid of water, as he cannot swim. His eldest, Mercedes, wears a bathing suit with that emblem given by the Cross to swimmers who have passed life saving tests, and are indeed swimmers and divers. But Mr. Augustine will not permit his children to take a boat out into the center of the lake and anchor it to dive from as they long to do, even if Mercedes is a crack swimmer. And since the water we swim in in our "front yard" is not over four feet deep, diving exhibitions by this talented young lady are not to be had.

Why County Funds Are Low.

Not in a quarter of a century have the funds of this county been as low as they are at present and one of the prime causes of our impoverishment is to be found in the fact that since the opening of the Federal Relief offices in this county, last October, Clay County tax money has been used, exclusive of Federal funds, in the startling sum of $27,769.12, exclusive of salaries or expenditures thru Farm Bureau office. There are those who assert that the entire relief work in this county could have been carried during the period for much less money than the portion we have been obliged to add to the other many thousands of dollars spent for us from outside agencies. However this may be, there is no denying the fact that we cannot continue our local spending in the hours our aid demoralized citizenry are being educated to think is justly theirs. Our supervisors were practically forced into partnership with the Federal administration. They went into the deal with their eyes wide open and aware of just what it would surely do to our reserves and income—but the time has come when they can use their own good judgment and they intend doing so without delay. The way back to sound business foundations is long and difficult, but beginning August 1st, we are on our way. Fred Howard in Clay County Sun.

When You And I Were Young Maggie

20 Years Ago This Week. Mrs. J. E. Boquet died at Omaha, shortly after her return from Rochester. For many years the Boquets were owners of Hotel Ord, moving from Ord to Omaha where they owned and operated the Hotel Boquet.

Charles Johnston of the Happy Hollow Country Club of Dundee arrived in Ord to lay out the links and course for Ord's first golf course at Bussell park.

A family reunion was held at the I. A. Manchester home at North Loup. The function honored Miss Grace Petty who was visiting from Pittsburgh.

The movement for a new court house met with general approval at a meeting of the County Board this week and further plans are being made to raise money for the erection of such a building.

Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Sorensen arrived in Ord from a several weeks trip to western points of interest.

Eight business houses burned to the ground in Comstock when a fire was started in a store on the south side of the square. As the city had no fire department the only means of fighting fire was by bucket brigade.

Dr. and Mrs. C. J. Miller, L. D. Bailey, O. P. Balle; and LuLu Bailey departed by auto for a month's trip to the mountains. The Park Board arranged to have a sidewalk laid to the Anderson park, along the north side of the street from the depot to the U. P. bridge.

W. L. D. Auble returned from South Dakota and gives glowing accounts of the progress being made on the Bud Auble farm in that section.

25 Years Ago This Week. A large number of Ord folks attended the G. A. R. picnic at Summit where they were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Potter.

A new laundry, which will be open for business soon, will be operated by Peterson. Three carloads of western horses arrived today for distribution in Valley and surrounding counties.

The Republican county convention was held this week. This was a mass convention, any republican being entitled to a vote. S. J. W. Brown left for Washington state to look after and sell his property there. Funeral services were held for Mrs. Anna Christina Thussen, a very early settler of Valley county, who came here with her husband in 1882. Mrs. Thussen suffered a stroke, which resulted in her death.

A very heavy rain fell in the west and south part of the county and crops are now flourishing. A new set of telephone directories are being printed this week. It comprises the Ord and rural lists and also the Burwell directory.

CARE OF COUNTY BOARD

By George Gowen

Dear Jake: The cheese factory the last few months have been making a big drive for new customers, and they have been quite successful too. Some men hesitated for several days before he consented to let the trucker pick up his milk. He had become so in the habit of turning the separator he couldn't give it up he thought.

But finally he succumbed to the pleadings and the wiles of the truck driver. The cans were full every morning and everyone seemed happy. When test time came the manager discovered the milk to test only about one-half of one per cent. He thought there was some mistake and checked his test by taking samples from the cans as it came in. Each test was the same.

Then upon inquiry it was found out this customer separated his milk before he sent it. He was going to get two sales from his milk. But the trouble was that when his check was all figured up, and the deduction made for the hauling, the man owed the cheese factory or the trucker fifty cents for his trouble. When the announcement was made to this farmer he decided the cheese factory was not a profitable place to sell his milk and quit doing business there.

Beefsteak. For the few people who live in the purlieu of our territory, and might not know it, this is a little advertisement telling you North Loup is the place to buy beefsteak.

Mills Hill decided to sell this meat in the Farmer's Store where he works. This commodity had been selling for 30c a pound. Mills thought he would make a little special and sell it for 28c which he did and advertised such.

The morning the sale was to take place Sterling Manchester's window blossomed out with the bargain of beefsteak 27c. Someone soon ran in and told Mills about it and he walks out and paints on his window 24c.

By that time both merchants were eyeing across to see what their competitor was doing. Soon the number 7 on Manchester's window was erased and the number 2 put in its place. Mills has always been a little sporty, and from a sporty family so he grabs his rag and window paint, walks out and writes in large letters, BEEFSTEAK 19c. There the price seemed to settle, 22c and 19c.

Mills said he was about sold out by that time so it didn't hurt him much, but he forgot to erase his sign. There it stayed all day. The war has continued through out the next week. It is reported that Sterling maintains he has pushed the price down so his competitor is selling the meat below cost and that tickles Sterling. If Mills is worrying about it no one would know it.

It is all highly amusing anyway and we all are eating beefsteak now days. We wonder just what the wholesale cost of beefsteak is, and just how long the window paint will hold out.

Happy Days Are Here Again. January first the salary of the S. D. B. pastor, Rev. Warren was raised. There was quite a little opposition to it at the time. There was no one I knew of who did not want to raise his pay. The opposition was on the score the church couldn't afford it at that date. It was having a hard time of it making ends meet as it was.

However, there had not been a month when his salary was not available.

However the motion was made at church meeting to raise his pay and it carried. A couple folks had nerve enough to vote against it. Several more howled afterwards but would not vote at the time.

One of those who voted against the raise was an officer of the church and knew the troubles it was having to raise money in these drought times. He explained his vote as follows.

"I would like as much as anyone to pay our pastor more. But I can see no reason to think our income will be any bigger than it was for the last few months. I would sooner think it would be less. The farmers have their seed to buy at high prices, hired help to pay and no income until a crop will be harvested. That will be a long time yet.

"As far as I am concerned I would rather pay him a smaller salary and pay it than to vote a bigger one and default."

I was talking with that director again a week ago. I asked about the contributions and if there was enough to pay the bills.

"I am thoroughly surprised and mistaken," he replied. "Our income has been markedly increased since the first of the year and now the collections are a third to a half more than last winter. We have plenty of funds to pay the raise, are accumulating a little for next year's coal bill and have paid a big premium on insurance for the church.

"I cannot understand where it is coming from or why, but we are getting more money."

Sparkling Eyes.

We have observed a fine reading item in the Chicago Evening American (July 8th) by Benjamin Gayelord Hauser, a famous food scientist. We have been permitted to reproduce this item and are doing so in full:

"The relation between the beauty of the eyes and the general well-being of the body is obvious. When your eyes are bright and sparkling, when they are full of life, it is a sign of health. When they are tired and dull, that's a sign of illness.

"As a matter of fact, to the physician, the appearance of the iris and the pupil is a valuable diagnostic sign. When, because of gall bladder trouble, bile backs up into the blood, the eyes may become as yellow as old parchment. Bloodshot eyes are often an indication of fever.

"Here are some specific food hints in respect to eye beauty which you should know and use: "First of all, vitamin A seems to be the specific for eye health. When Denmark—the greatest dairy country—was tempted by high prices to export practically all of its butter, milk and cheese to the other countries during the world war, it learned this lesson with tragic results. Among its inhabitants, who depended on margarine instead of butter which they sold, an epidemic of eye disease followed.

Malady and Cure.

"The eyes became inflamed, a sticky discharge appeared on the eyelids and ulcers and blindness usually followed. A horrible condition! Yet as soon as the law forbade the export of all dairy stuff above a certain amount, the spread of this eye disease—or, as it was called, "xerophthalmia"—was checked. It was the vitamin A in the dairy products which the eye tissue needed for proper functioning!

"Unfortunately, xerophthalmia is not only a condition of wartime. Thousands of children suffer from exactly the same disease—although in milder form—right now. These are underfed children, children starved for vitamin A. And it is not always victims. Sometimes children of families in comparatively comfortable circumstances suffer from this deficiency disease.

From a Partial Lack.

"A slight deficiency of vitamin A may cause any one of the symptoms I have described and it may cause them in any degree of intensity. Very often we see people who have red-rimmed eyelids, whose eyes look rheumy and whose eyelids are inflamed. Such people are quite likely to be suffering from a chronic deficiency of vitamin A—not a total lack, it is true, but merely an insufficient supply.

"There are two things you ought to look out for when choosing your vitamin A foods: One is color; the other, ripeness. As a general rule, the vegetables that are most richly tinted are the best sources of this vitamin. Thus, the yellower the corn and the greener the salad, the better. Also, vitamin A does not appear in fruit until it is fully ripened. The nearer to perfection a fruit is, the more of this vitamin it contains.

"Perhaps nature's way of giving us this important message is by tempting us with the luscious taste of ripe fruit and discouraging us with the acid taste when ripeness is not complete and nature's chemistry is still unfinished!"

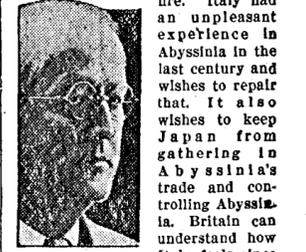

Tuesday Cosa Dell Lindberg and her children, David and Alice, arrived from Decatur, Ill., by auto. Cosa will be in Ord for a few weeks to aid in the care of her father, W. W. Haskell, while her husband, Dr. D. O. N. Lindberg, is taking his vacation among the islands of the Pacific, going as far as New Zealand. Today Mrs. Lindberg will accompany her children to Grand Island, where the latter will board the train for San Diego, Calif., where they will spend the summer with relatives.

Big War or Little?
LaGuardia's G-Men
She Took It Seriously
Pretty Bluebirds

War is not coming; it is here. It may or may not be a war "setting the world on fire." Italy had an unpleasant experience in Abyssinia in the last century and wishes to repair that. It also wishes to keep Japan from gathering in Abyssinia's trade and controlling Abyssinia. Britain can understand how Italy feels, since Britain found it really necessary to gather in the Transvaal and other vast areas throughout the world.

Arthur Brisbane

Italy used to send 500,000 immigrants a year to the United States. Now they are shut out. They must go somewhere. They would considerably improve Abyssinia if they went there.

Mayors of other cities will watch New York's Mayor LaGuardia fighting racketeering and crime in general. Besides training his own police force to shoot straight and "to kill," Mayor LaGuardia will get some government "G-men," if possible, from Washington, to come and set the example.

If Mayor LaGuardia, who has an honest and energetic police commissioner, cleans up crime in New York, he will deserve a statue next to that of Hercules, who cleaned the Augean stables, and a bigger statue.

Women, before and since Heloise, have taken heart affairs more seriously than men. Margaret Jordan, an Irish girl, lonely, fell in love with a Mount Vernon, N. Y., policeman, because he came from her home town. He was married, with eight children, and after he had seen the girl for two years he decided that he must reform and see her no more. He told her about this pious resolution as he sat in his police car, and did not notice that she took his service revolver from the pocket of the car.

He learned what had happened next day when told that the girl had killed herself with his revolver. It was embarrassing for a married policeman with eight children.

At Fort George Wright, tiny bluebirds built their nest in the mouth of a big cannon, and mother bluebird laid four pretty blue eggs. Our kind-hearted heroes at the fort are protecting the nest. Sentries do not come too near, cats are discouraged and to the orders of the day Maj. George S. Clark added these kind words, "and keep an eye on those birds."

In American churches Sunday, August 18, will be a day of prayer for peace in Africa and safety for little Ethiopia, which confronts war with powerful Italy.

That is the right United States interference in foreign affairs. The prayers will reach their destination, and the Supreme Being to whom they are addressed knows what is best, and has power to arrange matters in Ethiopia as he chooses.

To pray: "Lord, possessor of omniscience and omnipotence, we leave all in your hands," is right.

To send a million young American men, and several thousand million American dollars, to meddle in hot Africa would be wrong.

The country will welcome President Roosevelt's statement that the "four thousand million dollar works relief fund" will actually be invested in such a way as to increase the nation's capital assets. Many times four thousand million dollars could be spent advantageously, if it were really invested in wise, permanent improvements.

A financial letter from London remarks, casually, "Credit was plentiful at one-half of one per cent interest." Americans that cannot borrow anything, on securities once considered good, wonder how the British manage. The American government borrows at three and a half per cent, seven times the current English interest rate, money manufactured by itself, and thus adds one hundred per cent to taxes for interest that need not be paid at all. Queer finance, dearly beloved.

St. Louis reformers say women should not sit on high stools with their feet on a rail and drink at the bar. And, reformers rejoice to hear, the saloonkeepers say "Amen."

Reformers and saloonkeepers are right. The saloon was bad enough before women moved in to make it worse, hitching up their dresses, climbing high stools, readjusting their dresses, or not readjusting them, calling for foolish drinks to show how foolish they could be.

Devilleo Fish Has Exciting Experience When Water Raised High Into Barn

By GEO. GOWEN.

"It is funny afterwards," drawled Devilleo Fish, "but not so funny while it was going on," he continued.

Such was the remark he made while we visited at the edge of the cornfield the other day, in regard to the last two heavy rains a few weeks ago, when twice, water raised high into his barn.

Devilleo lives on the highway just around the corner as we turn south along the hills. His barn sits on the bank, half of it on higher ground than the other.

"Never but once before has the water been in the barn," he said. "I do not know how much it rained, but an empty tank in the lot had five inches of water in it the next morning."

"The reason the water raised so high was that the bridge is not big enough, and it run over the road grade before it went down."

"We tied the horses in the higher part of the barn but had to wade in to our waists to get them from there. The lower part of the barn was full to the ceiling."

"We had two little calves in a box stall. We discovered them swimming around, unable to get out. I would not go in there for them. Finally we threw a rope over their heads and pulled them out through the top."

"They had never been out of the barn before. They were scared and ran right into the creek again. They swam around there a while but finally were saved."

"The flood picked up the hay rack and turned it around on the boiler. The running gears held it but when the water subsided the rack was let down behind the gears. The manure spreader was nearly covered with mud, only the seat and beater showing now."

"The boy's pony was saved just because a rope couldn't be found to tie her. I told the boy to fasten her in the barn and said the water surely will never get high enough to drown anything. The boy couldn't find a rope so turned her loose. Had she been tied she would have died sure."

"The granaries are on the second floor, (so to speak) and the water ran in them until we had to move the grain later to save it from spoiling."

"The water was to the top railing of the bridge."

"The state ought to be made to pay damages for putting in such a small bridge," Devilleo thinks, "but an individual can't sue the state. Permission first must be gotten in the legislature, and the governor always vetoes any such measure."

"The barn is useless now. The mud is a foot or more deep all over the first floor. The water wrecked the south side and the foundation. Devilleo now ties his horses to a feed bunk."

WHO WAS PAUL BUNYON?

There is to be a big Paul Bunyon celebration for three days at Brainerd, Minnesota, starting July 18. The writer wanted to stay and attend. Alfred Weigardt was asked to lead the parade after they saw his whisks. Every man in Brainerd and in most of the country for 30 miles in all directions, is wearing some sort of whisker face adornment. Some of the men look so much like bears that children run crying to their mothers when they see them. The first time little Kerry Leggett saw Wallie Wallin he started to cry, but it developed that he was not scared of Wallie's whisks, it reminded him that he wanted his spinach and he could not be consoled until the spinach was forthcoming. Most of the Brainerd business men keep their whisks trimmed in some fantastic fashion but the mill men, road laborers etc., leave their whisks grow just as nature intended, making some of them look like eyes and nose in a buffalo robe. But what I started to do was to explain who Paul Bunyan really was.

Paul Bunyan, the patron saint of the woodsman, is not only an all-American myth but, as far as can be determined, the only home grown myth or legend in this country. Paul's wonderful exploits, massive, monumental, epochal and awe inspiring in their nature, were all accomplished on this continent and there is no counterpart in the Old World.

It took five storks to bring Paul to his new home. When three weeks old he rolled around so much he destroyed four square miles of standing timber. His big blue ox, Babe, could pull anything that had two ends to it. With Babe and his big ax Paul invented logging.

Whenever the ox, Babe stepped, there was a depression that soon became a lake and thus Minnesota got its 10,000 lakes, and the lake area was built up about Brainerd. Capital of Paul Bunyan's playground. Due to Babe's inquiring nature and hoofing proclivities 500 lakes were created within easy motoring distance of Brainerd.

When Paul took up efficiency engineering he went at it with his customary thoroughness. He hitched Babe to a section of land and snaked in the whole 640 acres at one drag. At the landing the trees were cut off just like shearing sheep, and the denuded section hauled back to its original location. Six trips a day, six days a week just cleaned up a township, for section 37 was never hauled back to the woods Saturday night but was left on the landing to wash away in the early spring when the drive went out.

I couldn't stay for the big celebration at Brainerd so Ross, Judge Clements, Fenner of Burwell, Weigardt and Eugent, who all have whisks looming up good, will have to represent the Cullen lake camp.

Here's how Alfred Weigardt looked last week after returning from a three weeks fishing trip to Cullen Lake, Minnesota. Alfred joined in with the spirit of the occasion and helped the natives celebrate in honor of Paul Bunyon, described in the above article. Fish Still On Strike At Cullen, Writes Editor on and everything comfortable. Judge and Mrs. E. F. Clements and Miss Lena were the only guests but there were twelve of us that sat down to the table and enjoyed the traditional large meal.

Saturday the H. D. Leggett family left for Ord, not before I had enjoyed one fishing trip with Dad, however. Since we must necessarily take our vacations from Quiz work at different times it has been years since we have had a real day's fishing together. Friday, the day before he left, we went over to Big Bass lake with Guide Ray Luther to do the rowing for us and although we didn't catch a big string of fish we did spend several hours on the water together and got enough fish to pay us for the trip.

I've made one other trip to Big Bass since Dad went home, going yesterday, with Judge Clements and L. B. Fenner, of Burwell. For some reason I was the lucky member of the party and landed two big bass, both 4 1/2 pounders. I also got several of the big crappies for which this lake is famous. Big Bass is getting to be quite an attraction for fishermen of this camp and most people who go there succeed in landing the fish for which this lake is named. A few days ago Mr. Augustine and his sons, of Grand Island, who are new owners of a cottage here caught two 5 1-2 pounders in Big Bass. Ross Lakin and Alfred Weigardt have fished there and, I understand, had good luck, although I didn't see the fish. All bass caught in this lake appear to weigh between 3 and 6 pounds and seldom is one disappointed about landing at least one.

The Cullen lakes have been very poor fishing spots since I've been here. Sunday Judge Clements and I caught seven wall-eyed pike on the bar in Upper Cullen but that's the best catch I've made in these lakes. I'll admit I haven't fished hard, though. Surprising how many small bass there are in Middle Cullen. Yesterday I was out for a few minutes and caught at least a dozen small—1-2 to 1 pound—bass, returning them all to the water. Judge Clements, who was fishing in his own boat, caught at least as many along the rushes and then, moving out into deeper water, caught three that weighed from 3 to 4 1/2 pounds each.

Almost everyone is fishing with the minnows now but bass will still strike artificial baits as proven by the success two Illinois anglers had Monday and Tuesday mornings. Guided by Ray Luther and casting nothing but bluehead wobblers they caught 30 bass, 17 the first morning and 13 the next. When fish can be caught like that I guess one shouldn't complain that fish aren't biting.

In camp today are the Clements, Leggett, Fenner, Gelow, Augustine, Humphreyville, Lakin and Weigardt families. The Mackowskys returned to Des Moines Tuesday morning and I understand that the Weigardts will leave for Ord tomorrow. Ross Lakin will stay a few days longer, I am told. Both the Fenner and Gelow families came Sunday, the former from Burwell and the latter from Grand Island. Judge Clements is planning to leave for home Friday of this week.

Ever since he arrived Judge Fenner has been fishing hard and has evidently been catching them, too, as he has shipped several boxes of fish. The other day I saw him packing a big box and asked who they were for. E. H. Luikert and Charlie Bryan, was his answer. Today he was packing another box and told me they were for Ben Saunders, present head of the state banking department. As receiver of the two banks at Burwell Mr. Fenner is acquainted with these politicians and ex-politicians.

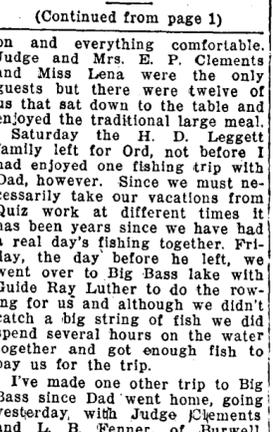

We've had several terrible wind and rain storms here in the last week. On July 4th a sudden storm struck about 7 p. m. and on Gull lake, a few miles from here, two little children were drowned. The little girl's body was recovered but they are still searching for the body of her little brother. At Pelican lake, near Duluth, four people were drowned in this same storm, the papers say. We had no trouble of this sort on our lake although the Lakin and Weigardt crowd had to take shelter on McDowell's point while the wind was blowing hardest and got soaked to the skin. Judge Clements was coming in from Upper Cullen and was only about 500 feet from his dock when the storm struck and had difficulty in making a safe landing. He, also, got about as wet as a man can get. Yesterday we had another such storm, only not so severe, and were awakened at 6:00 a. m. today by another. Seems to be a summer of storms, both here and in Nebraska.

Well, I guess I've told about all the news there is in camp so will close and let Irma use the typewriter. If I've missed anything she'll probably tell you about it in Something Different.

Very truly,
E. C. Leggett

—Word was received last week from Frank Vondracek of Lhuta, Czechoslovakia, that his brother, Joseph Vondracek of the same place passed away a few weeks ago, being buried June 19. He was sick for several years because of diseases that had their beginning while he served in the army during the World War. Storeroom and Business Property Owners May Profit in Repair Work Enhancement of Location Values Naturally Will Increase Occupancy Record, Inviting New Tenants as Well as Keeping Present Lessees Satisfied.

The condition set forth by the Federal Housing Administration as to taxes, mortgages, etc., on the property would apply in the case of commercial real estate just as to homes. No loan may be made by a lending agency for repairs to a piece of property on which taxes are in arrears, or on which there exists delinquent assessments or a mortgage or lien not in good standing.

One of the qualifications for loan insurance by the FHA that affects business property sets forth that "notes may be signed by lessee to make alterations, repairs, and improvements and provided, further, that the final termination date of the lease is at least 6 months beyond the final maturity date of the note. In such cases, a certified copy of the lease must be furnished to the financial institution at the time the note is purchased and must be retained by it as part of its documentary evidence of the transaction."

In examining the business property for possible improvements, many items may be listed. First in importance is its safety. In the interest of tenants, customers, or employees, check up on exterior steps, damaged sidewalks, walls, fences, and jagged curbs. Protect areaways with guard rails. There should be emergency aid rooms and safety devices on machinery. The fire hazard should be looked into, with a check-up on fire escapes, exits, fire pumps, etc., and installing a fire-alarm and sprinkler system if necessary.

Painting, plumbing, electrical equipment, and heating apparatus should be looked over. Properly applied, paint can improve sanitation, eliminate eyestrain, stimulate worker morale and pride in surroundings. Faulty plumbing leads to building decay. Obsolete lighting fixtures should be replaced and ample outlets provided. Fuel costs may be cut down by installation of new plumbing equipment, and appearance of rooms improved by modern radiation.

The rentability of the business structure will hinge to a great extent on its comfort and convenience. A modernized front, a new entrance, a revised display space, and new sign might easily increase the attractiveness of the building. Office space is made modern with repaired plaster, paint, or wall paper, refinished floors, new woodwork, etc.

"Renovizing" writes its own golden reward in enhanced property values, increased rentability, and better business. Business properties in Ord may be modernized and repaired with funds made available locally by the National Housing Act, just the same as homes and farms.

The same financial institutions that supply funds for improving houses are ready to make advances to owners of industrial, commercial, and other business properties—up to $2,000—for needed renovation and modernization.

Industrial and commercial leaders are quick to concede that a well maintained store, apartment house, garage, or factory is one of the important needs of a successful, paying business. New clients and customers are attracted by convenient, sanitary surroundings, and, by the same token, old ones are retained.

Owners of business properties who undertake improvements at this time will find themselves able to repair and modernize at prices which are fair and are likely to increase as business improves. A glimpse into the building supply and equipment field will show them, also, important and far-reaching innovations in the realm of property maintenance. The keen competition that developed in the construction trades as a consequence of declining activity during the era of economic stress has been productive of advances in design and utilitarianism that are almost revolutionary in character.

The elimination of obsolete equipment in stores, factories, and business houses generally is one of the objectives sought by the Government in creating the Federal Housing Administration. The effect of such work will make itself felt not only in the particular establishment in which it is executed, but all down the line from the producer of the goods used, to the consumer.

Washington Digest

National Topics Interpreted by William Bruckart
National Press Building Washington, D. C.

Washington.—Back in 1916 before the United States became involved in the World war our government had a national debt which was regarded as large at that time. It was only $1,200,000,000, but that was sufficient in those days to cause concern.

On the first of July, 1935, the treasury started a new set of books. This represented the beginning of a new financial year for the government. One of the items it had to enter on those books was a public debt of about $28,800,000,000. We of today think that is a huge debt and when it is compared with the outstanding obligations of the federal government a score of years ago its magnitude seems titanic.

When the treasury closed the fiscal year books on June 30 and counted the cost of the preceding 12 months of government it was found that there had been expended roughly $7,300,000,000. In the same period it had collected through income and other forms of taxes, including duties laid at the customs houses, a total of approximately $3,800,000,000. This means that in the last 12 months the government operated with a deficit of something over $3,500,000,000. In other words, its operating costs were virtually double the amount of revenue it received. This deficit together with the deficit that was created during the earlier months of the Roosevelt administration added something like $8,000,000,000 to the national debt. President Hoover while in office added about $4,000,000,000 to the national debt through deficits in the last two years of his administration. So there are two outstanding phases in the financial affairs of the federal government as it starts the fiscal year of 1936, which began July 1.

There is bred these questions: How long can the federal government continue to spend money like water and thus increase its public debt, and how long will the American people continue to permit expenditures by their government in excess of the revenues it collects? They are related questions. Neither can happen without the other. But it seems to me that the time has come for taxpayers and voters generally to take note of the condition of the government's finances.

Mr. Roosevelt justifies these heavy outlays under the necessities of an emergency. He contends that when prosperity returns and business is normal, citizens will pay their taxes without complaint and that these taxes will be sufficiently large in their total production to whittle down the gigantic outstanding debt. Hence there is at this moment an urgent need for examination of the whole tax structure. This is necessary to maintain the credit of the United States. If people doubt or lose faith in government bonds, the credit of the government can be said to be impaired. No nation of self-respecting people desires that thing to happen. It has long been a recognized truism that if a United States government bond was not worth its face value, the money we have and the rights we exercise as citizens likewise become impaired in value and benefit.

Careful analysis of government finances in the last 12 months shows that federal revenues were sufficient to cover what Mr. Roosevelt characterizes as ordinary government costs. He means by that the expenses of the regular establishments of government and excludes all of the so-called emergency agencies, of which there are now some sixty-odd. This condition reveals that federal taxes are about the only item in governmental affairs or in private business that have completely recovered from depression effects. Recovery has been sufficient to make the total revenues virtually the same as those received under the Hoover administration in the fiscal year of 1929-1930. It shows also that Mr. Roosevelt has not reduced the cost of ordinary running expenses of the government as he had planned when he became President.

I mentioned earlier a comparison of the public debt now and in 1916. Let us take another date, namely, 1919. At that time the outstanding debt was $20,504,000,000. The annual interest charge on that debt was just short of one billion dollars. Today with a much larger outstanding debt, the annual interest charge amounts to only $820,000,000 per year.

This seems almost paradoxical but the answer lies in the interest rate the government is paying. In 1921 the average rate of interest calculated on all different types of government securities outstanding was 4.34 per cent. At the present time it is less than 3 per cent. So credit must be accorded the treasury for its gradual reduction in interest rates. Ten years ago an effort was made to market securities at gradually lower interest rates. It did not succeed fully because private business was demanding capital and private business was paying higher interest rates. In the last five or six years private business has called for very little money. Government securities and the law of supply and demand operated to allow the treasury to sell its bonds and notes at much reduced interest.

On the one hand, therefore, the Roosevelt administration has run up the public debt by about $8,000,000,000 but has succeeded in actually reducing the carrying charge of this great structure by more than $100,000,000 per year. This is the situation as of today. Restoration of business activity and the resultant demand for capital may change the market for treasury bonds almost overnight but the prospects for such business activity are not immediate.

One of the interesting things that often occurs in government affairs is the explosive effect of a single incident or a single remark by an important official. It is a characteristic of changing conditions and it is a circumstance which causes Washington observers to be on their toes continuously because they never can tell when such an incident will occur. Thus it was the other day that Representative Brewster, Republican, of Maine, a former governor of that state, arose in his place and charged that the Roosevelt administration was threatening individual members of the house who declined to support the administration view on a particular piece of legislation. Mr. Brewster named one Thomas Corcoran as the administration emissary and bearer of the threats. He told of details of the circumstance and informed the house that the legislation which the administration demanded he should support was the so-called "death sentence" provision in the bill to eliminate utility holding companies. Suffice it to say that Mr. Brewster did not yield.

Starts Something

The point of this incident, however, is that immediately there came from many quarters in the house a demand for an investigation of lobbying activities. There had been many charges theretofore that the public utility corporations were over-running the house with lobbyists in their effort to defeat the "death sentence" section. The real reason back of this sudden outburst, however, lies in dissatisfaction among many members of congress with tactics employed by the Roosevelt administration. They have taken orders constantly since March 4, 1933, but apparently they are no longer going to obey.

So the investigation of lobbying is to be started by a house committee and it will be broader than just the public utility lobbyist. If the undercurrent of information proves to be correct, administration representatives who have frequented the house chambers during consideration of the holding company bill will be placed on the witness stand to tell their story.

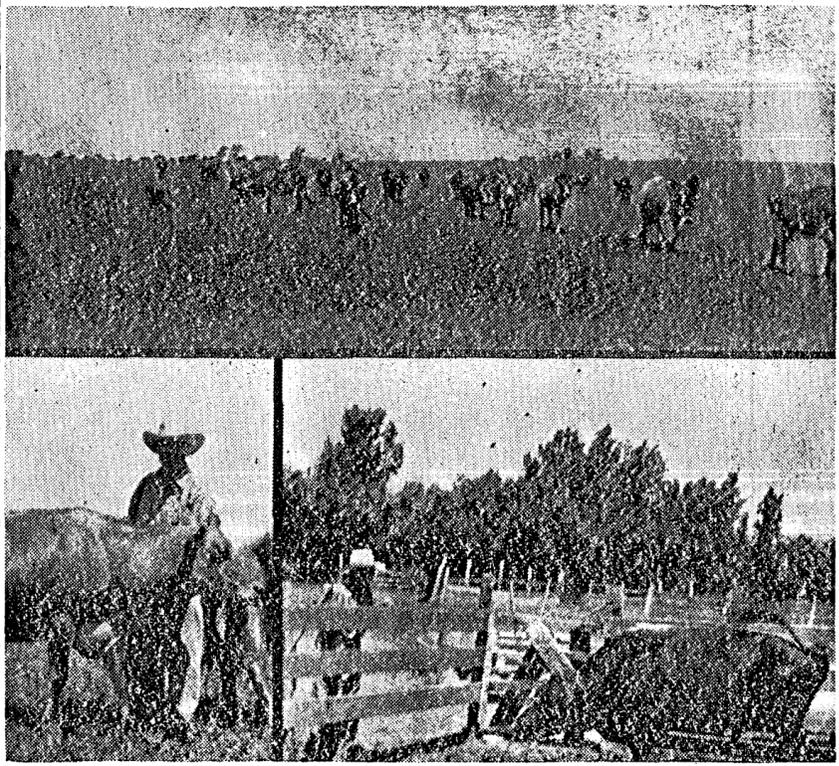

In the meantime and maybe as a result of the excitement over the Brewster charge, Senator Black, an Alabama Democrat, started fireworks in the senate. He is prepared to create investigating machinery in that end of the Capitol to determine what influence the utility lobbyists have exerted. That investigation also will go beyond the utility lobbyist phase. It is scheduled to dig up dirt on lobbyists for other legislation. Thus far there has been little mention of administration activities around the senate.

But, as in the case of the house investigation, it appears now that the senate investigation has a double purpose. It will be recalled that Senator Black fostered a bill requiring all lobbyists in Washington to register at the Capitol, to show their connection, to show what salaries or other compensation they receive and to make public certain types of correspondence passing between them and the people whom they represent. The gossip is that the senator's bill, although it passed the senate without difficulty, will have hard sledding in the house. Senator Black appears to be proceeding on the theory that the investigation will create additional atmosphere and public demand for passage of the lobbyist registration measure.

Actually, I believe that the investigation will do no more than ruin reputations of some few people. Such an inquiry will not stop lobbying. It will not even curb or reduce lobbying. As long as individuals have property the value of which may be affected one way or the other by federal legislation, just so long will individuals seek to influence their representatives and senators in congress. It seems to me to be a perfectly natural and normal thing, and without defending the slimy type of lobbying and the raw or crooked deals that may come from lobbying, the voters have a right to express their views to their representatives.

Ernest thinks he sells his share of the milk sold in Ord. "There are two other dairies that do a good business. We were having a sort of milk war a year ago, but had a friendly agreement and decided to each charge 8c. This was not enough to hardly make it last winter, and cheaper than other towns, but in the summer time we make back what we lose in the winter. I asked him if it is not quite confining work. He could not see that it was. He said he takes about as many trips as anyone.

Coats Herd of Jerseys Finest He Ever Saw Reports Roving Reporter

"He's asleep," was the reply about eleven A. M. when I called at the door for Ernest Coats. I was a little surprised to hear that from a farmer who runs such an extensive business.

And when he came out of the house rubbing his eyes he explained he arose about three thirty in the morning and went after the cows so as to start milking at four. That is the only way we have time to get them milked and the milk delivered in the forenoon. They are milked again about four in the afternoon. To catch up, Ernest snatches a little sleep about ten each day.

Then he climbed into the car and drove to the pasture where I saw his herd of forty registered Jerseys. He called and they came toward us, nosing around, not a one but what was tame enough to walk up to and milk. Their hair was sleek and of a tan, yellow or brown color, their noses black, and udders that indicated them to be pall fillers. A prettier sight I have not seen in a long time.

I asked Ernest if he could make them pay for their feed last winter. He answered, "Yes. They paid for their own keep and kept four families. One delivery man, (my son Wayne), my own family and two other hired men. They did not pay for the keep of the forty other cattle we kept over. We went in debt to keep them. We are paying that debt off now on cheaper feed. We are feeding no grain now, so it is mostly profit."

When asked what the forty cows produced he said, "We peddle about 300 quarts a day of milk and cream besides selling 5 gallons of cream to the creamery. This makes an income net to me of around four hundred dollars a month. The boy has the delivery business on commission and that is his job. My job is the cows. My son-in-law has the farm. We all milk."

Do you think the Jersey is the best breed, was the next question. "They have been proven to be the most profitable milk machine," he said. "Naturally I like them best or I wouldn't keep them. There are good cows and poor ones in all breeds."

"This herd tests from 5 to 6 per cent which is higher than the average Jersey herd which is 5.35 per cent."

Then he said he did not use a milking machine, thinking hand milking better; that the University of Nebraska had bought bulls of him; that he had no trouble a few years ago selling all his bull calves at good figures, still sells them above the market value; that the teats of the cows may look small, but the cows all milk easy and when a person gets used to it they milk easier than big ones.

Then he explained his system of pasture. He divided a quarter section into thirds making 1-3 pasture each year, and in a different place, so eventually the whole place is fertilized and made into pasture. He sows sweet clover and oats and various combinations but always sweet clover, plowing it under the second year.

Driving back to the barn I was showed the bull which is a ferocious fellow. He pawed and bellowed as we tried to take his picture. Then to see the cow barn which was about as clean as a barn could be and the tiny deer-like calves that come along at all times.

goes to the old-time dance once a week, and writes a little insurance now and then. He says he has time to do about anything he wishes.

He did not have to tell me, for I have heard for many years, that Ernest Coats has one of the best Jersey herds in the state. The ribbons I saw in his office, winnings at state fairs and county fairs, were numerous enough to paper the room.

North Loup Mail Carrier Completing 2nd Term As President of State Group

Has Never Missed a State Convention In Thirteen Years; Attended 4 Nationals.

By GEO. GOWEN.

Finishing his second term as president of Nebraska Rural Letter Carriers Association, C. J. (Cliff) Goodrich of North Loup left last week with his wife to attend and preside at the annual convention at Omaha, July 15th and 16th. Cliff is rural carrier of Route Number one of North Loup.

Edward B. Teagle of Washington, Superintendent of the Rural Carriers of America is to be one of the speakers to be introduced by President Goodrich. Besides this he has charge of the elaborate business program.

C. J. (Cliff) Goodrich

Probably few other persons in the county have been a more devout conventioner than Mr. Goodrich. In the thirteen years as a carrier out of North Loup he has never missed a state meeting. He has filled nearly all the subordinate offices leading up to president.

He has attended four national conventions. These were held at Los Angeles, Des Moines, Detroit and last year at Denver.

At the Denver convention, he wore a big hat as part of the regalia of the Nebraska delegation. He, along with state presidents from New Jersey and California were photographed and their picture placed on the front page of the Denver Post.

Besides being one of the most active members of the Rural Carriers Association, Cliff has long been a lodge man, having attended many grand lodges. Also he is a volunteer fireman and has been to many of their conventions.

"But this is the best one of all," Cliff smiled. When asked why, he replied, "The President gets his expenses paid." He also said he always takes his wife along.

The Work Sheet

By GEORGE COWEN
"The Roving Reporter"

Twelve Dollars a day.

Flying north on the highway to the corner and west and then north again at the Olean school house. There on the lawn was Chas. and Delmer Bridge getting ready to plow corn with ten head of good horses and mules. I concluded I was not the last man to go to work that morning, but perhaps the next to the last.

Anyway I visited with them a minute and Delmer asked how I got my farming done running around the country so much. "Heck, Delmer," his father scolded. "He would be foolish to farm when he can make $12.00 a day working for the Ord paper."

Driving on north a field or two I came upon the domicile of Wm. Schauer jr. Their young son had gone into the duckling business and demonstrated how the fluffy things could swim. Mrs. S. walked out into the yard and told me the place belonged to the County but the County board forgot about it when it came to repairing the buildings.

She said the granary leaked grain out of the bottom, and rain into the top, that the cow shed was being scattered by the four winds for the lack of repairs, and the garage was falling apart. She also said if I would give the County board hell about it and that as a result they repaired the buildings, she would pay six months subscription to the Quiz. Now H. D., there's something to work for. Wm. has six Clydesdale horses that all look alike and are nice ones.

He Made the Uncle Sam. On north and spying a few lakes to the east I turned in to the yard of Frank Pillnowski. He was not at home but a man by the name of Rozecki with a truck was loading ear corn out of the crib. In the same crib was some 30,000 pounds of pop corn. Mr. R. and I visited a minute.

Frank has a tiny house there, some nice sorrel colts, two potato diggers, a lot of other machinery, and a trailer with a tiny house built on it.

Back south and west and stopping at the side of the road where Chas. Urban was go-digging. He had some mighty nice corn there and I could well see he is a good farmer. He told me that the last rain, or the one before the last, poured so hard that the entire bottom to the north was covered.

He had an expertly built and painted Uncle Sam that he had made, a pretty yard all mowed slick with flowers around, a large corn crib with some corn in it and everything in tip top repair. Mrs. U said Jim Misko owned the place and was very nice about furnishing repairs. But why wouldn't he furnish a few repairs for folks that take such good care of their property? One of the neatest farmyards I have seen. She said, "We like to have a pretty yard as well as city folks."

Like a Raging Lion. Devilla Fish was go-digging and I waited for him at the end of the field. His boy was running a tractor there too, and both were having fear they might get stuck in the mud. These folks have been having their troubles with flood waters. I stopped at the house. Richard had a nice black pony, and about the yard was one of the nicest pair of colts I have seen yet.

Henry VanSlyke was the next man. He too was go-digging in a dark green looking field of pop corn. He said he had nothing to tell about his place. That the farm belonged to Gilroy's and it was there the old irrigation ditch started, or at least run straight across the field. He also said that his landlord was going to paint all the buildings aluminum color this fall.

Across a little bridge and turning in at Lee Klinger's. Mrs. Klinger came to the door and told me Leo was in the field west of the house. She said the cats and the floods had got her chickens. They had three dogs, one smooth white one, one curly black one and one sheared like a raging lion.

I stopped a minute and renewed acquaintance with Leo. We talked of crops mostly and hall. He said his father insured. Thirty minutes after he signed up the hall came and pounded his small grain into the ground.

Save the Ducks. The next stop was at Mrs. Long's. She proved to be an interesting talker, and told me she is a sister of the Peota boys. The flood had come along here also and moved a lot of dirt hither and yon. It drowned a bunch of her multi-colored chickens. She did not say about losing any of their many little white ducks that were scamping about. She said her boys thought $1,000.00 would not pay the damages.

She said they raised Black Angus cattle some of which were purebreds and the fellow who tested them said it was the best herd he had tested yet. She said there was a mix-up in her cornhog check and she had not received any money yet. She thought she should charge 10c each for everyone who went to see their cattle!

Speaking about the ducks. She said the speeding cars on the highway would always slow up so as not to kill a duck, but would not for a chicken or a rabbit. Many times she would hear the brakes squeak on a car to discover it was slowed up so as not to kill the waddlers that happened to be on the highway.

The Huff Dam. The next place on the road was that of Ed Penas. Back south in the grove of tall trees which sits so closely by the highway. Mrs. Penas came to the door. She said they borrowed the Quiz but that was not very satisfactory. For sometimes they did not get the paper at all, and frequently when they did they had already heard the news.

She was a nice looking young lady with a reserved smile that came a little slowly, and I was sure I had either seen someone who looked like her before, or someone looked like I had seen her before.

After quizzing about her relatives I concluded it was she and Mrs. Joe Bonnie who were doubles. She said Mrs. Bonnie is her cousin and they had long been close friends.

Back off the highway and after going up a terrible road that had been washed into a thousand tiny ditches, we circumnavigated the house and came to a stop at George Whitford's. George was gone working in town. They only lived at that place. They have a couple nice kids there and a dog that looks like a half breed coyote and scowled at me like one too.

Back of their house I noticed the big Huff dam, built to stop the water to make a lake to make it rain. Well, it rained. Sure a good thing the government didn't build any more of them! It had been full and ran over.

Fine Trailer Hitch. Back down the rough road to the highway and west again to the yard of Howard Huff. Mrs. Huff was trying to find some lettuce in the garden and her little tow-headed son Dannie was assisting. Dick and he went off to see a little car which Dannie said he would take $9.00 for and which Dick determined for me to buy. Should have, it would have just taken part of a day's wages.

Mrs. Huff chatted a few minutes until Howard came in from the field. Then I sauntered to the barn where I saw a small flock of the nicest black faced sheep I have seen in quite a spell. Howard farms with a rubber tired tractor that he and another fellow have in partnership. He likes the rubber tires much better than the lugs.

Emil Sedlacek was next. His house was in the center of a grove of large trees. He says in the afternoon, it is all shade around there. He was just getting ready for dinner, but took time to come and talk a minute. He is a fine appearing young fellow.

He has a splendid garden, luxuriant potatoes, and tall sweet corn in full bloom of tassels. Then in the barn I noticed a four-wheel trailer with a hitch he had made that never whipped he said. It worked so nice one or two fellows though he should get it patented. He too takes the Quiz.

Fighting Cats. Up a little grade and into the yard of I. C. Clark. The first thing I noticed was the statue of the head of a woman mounted on a wire rack. Around this vines were supposed to entwine. Upon inquiry I. C. said he was a hauler and found this woman's head in some junk and saved it.

Hauling is his business and he hauls for the Quiz. Sometimes he gets a dozen papers. Once in a while he saves things out of the junk he gets, such as old tires, papers, and statues of women. He resurrected a lot of things when he took the contract for cleaning the debris from one of the stores that burned a few years ago.

Then to the house to see four long-haired yellow Persian cats which Mrs. Clark raised when the cars on the highway do not kill them. She used to raise Spitz dogs but had to give that up because all got killed on the road. Then to the barn to see a couple dandy colts. One was a black and white spotted one and the other a roan. I. C. had a terrible time to hold them for a picture. They were surely nice ones.

Mrs. Clark said the Persian cats were far better fighters than ordinary cats. With that recommendation I ordered one at once. I have too many cats especially at night.

On down the hill to the north, across the bridge and to Raymond Christensen's. He and his boy Harold, and Robert Albers came out of the house. We had not been there but a minute until another agent drove in with a brand new car and attempted to sell it to Raymond. He didn't tackle me. He knew better. I would have tried to trade him Quizzes. How shall I trade Quizzes for cars? This car was worth (or he asked) about $600. Would you give 300 subscriptions for one? A shiny one? Then let me have it to rove with?

Anyway Harold Christensen, age 12, has made a hobby of collecting rifle shells and Indian arrow heads. The most of the latter he has picked up on the place where he lives. He has some seventy shells all told mounted on a board. He had many other things placed on a table with a sign, "hands off." A nice hobby and a fine collection for a boy that age.

On into town and stopping at the court house, and at John Misko's and then to the office where I saw the boss back from his vacation. Down to the picture department to see Howard Jones and finding he has too many pictures for the nonce.

Across the river where the kids were swimming and east toward home, I spied a great grove of hollyhocks (fit by as we circled past a curve. Then some poppies and we stopped.)

We drove into the yard of Emil Skoll and asked about the many rows of poppies. She grows them for the seeds. She says it is possible to grow a pound of seed on a plant. An ounce to a pod and sometimes there are as many as 16 pods. The best plot of poppies I have seen in this country. In fact it is the only one I have seen yet.

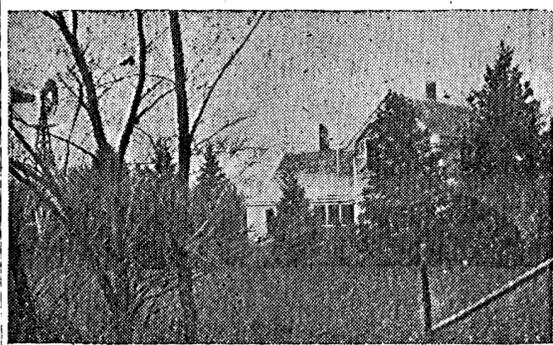

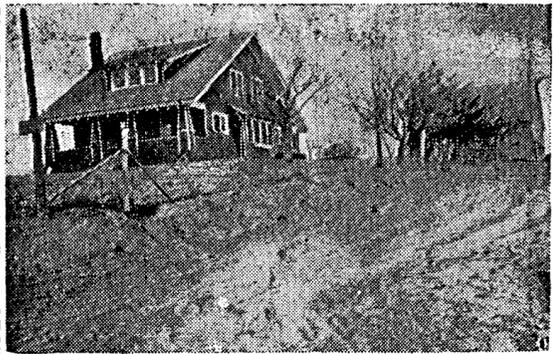

On east and stopping at Earl Hanson's where I bought a bull on the boss' time. Mum's the word.

Peanut Acres. Being assigned to Dick Karre's and Elmer Sautter's in the Horace land, to count acres, I conceived the bright idea of drawing pay from two sources.

Dick lives on the outskirts of Horace. The suburbs in other words. He has a beautiful home on the highway south of the city, and he and his three boys farm great quantities of land. When I found him they were running one-row cultivators. I advised him to get a couple two row machines and two of them then could sit in the shade and play cards.

And when we got around to a certain bridge by a certain wash out, Dick said, "Let's go over here and see Elmer. You have to measure him, too." Elmer had rented a quarter about four miles from home. I told him I heard of an-

Johnson and Koelling Farm Homes Two Of County's Best, Is Verdict of Quiz Reporter

Records Show District 1 Organized In 1871; Was Before Settlers Came

By IDA M. BROWN.

In the county superintendent's office, Dec. 10, 1871 is recorded as the date of the organization of school district No. 1 of Valley county. This was before the settlers came. Would it be permissible to invite our County Attorney to furnish an explanation for a correction, via Quiz. Was there a state law fixing the boundary of each county as boundary of school district No. 1 of that county? And was there a survey made by the state at that time? Even fixing boundaries could hardly be called an organization. And could we be told how and when our county was "made"?

Further, will he get a statement of the year in which school district No. 1 was really organized, signed by Mary Davis, Jeanie Crandall, C. J. Rood, A. H. Babcock, and Myra Gowen and place it on file in the court house? The superintendent could not find the date of the original organization of District 24. It was a joint district with Sherman county so I have written to Stanley Roy, superintendent of public instruction of Sherman county, at Loup City for this date and he replied as follows:

"Dear Madam: I received your card in regard to the organization of District No. 24. In going through the old records, I found the date of organization and the entry used in recording this organization, in this district.

District 24, at the time of its organization, was number District 12, fractional with Valley county. The organization occurred on July 8, 1875. The entry of this organization may be found on page 15 in the "Organization of Districts", which is as follows:

"District No. 12, is this day formed as per petition of two-thirds of the legal voters of district number 5. It embraces the north 1/4, T. 16, R. 13 set off from District number 5, and is a fractional district, embracing a part of town 17, R. 13, in Valley county."

On May 17, 1879 it was decided to make the number of the districts uniform and it was then that the district was changed to the present district number 24. The original entry begins on page 15 on the regular entry, and is continued on page 27 and is entered as follows:

"To make a uniformity of numbers in this and Valley county, the number of this district is this day changed to No. 24. This district formed as a fractional district July 8, 1875, changed in number from 12 to 24 and embraces the north 1/4 of Town 16, Range 13."

I believe that this information will readily answer the questions you asked. In fact it is all the information that is available from the records handed down from that time. I hope that this information will be satisfactory to you.

Sincerely yours, Stanley F. Roy, County Superintendent"

We have also found a very interesting list of names on a petition circulated by Joseph H. Clark. It was presented to John F. Kates, superintendent of Valley county, March 13, 1884 and affidavit was by Cyrus Weaver that it was a complete list of the voters of District 24. I cannot understand why the name of Mrs. G. W. Moore does not appear as Fannie Moore and Harvey Hosbrook were both of school age. Mrs. Delight Tappan had no children of school age, hence she was not a voter, unless her homestead made her one. The petition follows:

"To the County Superintendent of Valley County, Nebraska: We, the undersigned legal voters of school district No. 24 of Valley county and Sherman county, State of Nebraska, do hereby petition that the boundary of said district be so changed as to detach therefrom the following tracts of land to wit: Sections 19, 20, 21, 28, 29, 30, 31, 32, and 33 of township 17 North, and Range 13 West. And that the above described territory be formed into a new school district.

Names of voters of District 24: Joseph H. Clark, Cyrus Weaver, Oliver Doman, Benjamin Clement, Eliza Clement, A. E. Cress, Lizzie Cress, A. C. Dorn, E. F. Curry, G. F. Doman, G. W. Finch, S. D. Wood, Rachel Wood, T. D. Wood, Mary Wood, Phebe Clark, E. C. Tappan, W. W. Rathbun, C. W. Myer, C. Bellel, Christina Bellel, Peter Spelet, Orin Manchester, Lattitia Manchester.

Thomas H. Hamer, Julia Hamer, D. W. Davis, Amanda Davis, William Archer, Mary A. Archer, J. Thomas Paddock, John Chipp, Sarah Chipp, Mrs. J. T. Paddock, G. H. Scott, Elizabeth Scott, Newton Davis, E. J. Davis, Mary Sayre, O. D. Vanhorn, Mrs. O. D. Vanhorn, G. W. Moore, Moses Sayre, A. M. Weaver.

Mrs. Hall Barnes Recalls Early History of Whiting Log House

I want to tell what little I know of the Whiting house at Sumter. I really do not know when it was built, and I do not remember Doc Harter living there. He lived on what is known as the Seerly place when we came there, but R. W. Bancroft had the postoffice at that time and I was sworn in as assistant postmaster and had it for nearly a year, then the postoffice was moved to the Whiting place, then owned by Waldo Ludden, later Mrs. Ludden's parents came and a sister. The father (Mr. Mallory) died at Ludden's and was buried as the Quiz said and the sister (Mrs. Atwater) died later and was buried beside her father and later the Ludden's sold out and left there. If I was able to sit here and write I could tell more of Sumter and Springdale vicinities.

Last evening I returned to Sheridan from Big Horn near the mountains after spending a week at Lynn's. Sheridan did not celebrate but other places did but we did not go anywhere. Yours, Mrs. Hall Barnes.

John Ward Writes Again.
Madison, Nebr., July 15, 1935
To the Quiz:

My last letter was written on July 4th, three days after arrival in camp and before I had learned much of the details of camp life. Since then I have found that practically every detail of camp life here is identical with life in the boys camps with which most readers are familiar.

The original order called for removal to Madison July 10th but the move was made on the 12th. We got up at four o'clock, packed equipment, struck tents and had everything loaded on the trucks and ready to move at 5:30. We came up to the Madison camp exactly at seven, and in a few minutes we were eating breakfast in the new mess hall, just completed. The mess hall is built so that it can be taken down and moved in short order if necessary. It is built in the shape of a "U", with the dining hall the top part and the kitchen the handle. The dining hall is twenty by one hundred and twenty feet in size, and has seating capacity for 200 or more at one time. The present force is slightly below two hundred. The kitchen is modern in every detail and we have some of the best cooks in the business.

Our camp is located on the Madison county fair grounds, on the open space to the west of the north end of the race track and only a quarter of a mile from the Union Pacific railroad so the boys can watch the trains go by, a privilege they did not have in Columbus.

The only other building completed to date is the bath house which is complete with individual hot and cold water connections. There is also a large room for washing, shaving and laundry and most of the boys are doing their own laundry work. Footings are being put in for four barracks, each 120 ft. by 20 ft., in size, each to form living and sleeping quarters for fifty men.

The headquarters, hospital, and superintendent's offices are located in some of the fair buildings until their buildings are completed. The men will live in the squad tents until the barracks are completed, the date of which is uncertain, the work now being held up by the failure of lumber to arrive.

They sure feed the boys here, and the only time there is a shortage is when the guy who is bringing in the rations fails to arrive on time. We have breakfast at 7 o'clock, dinner at twelve and supper at 5:00. For breakfast we have bacon and eggs, coffee, breakfast food and fruit. For dinner any one of several menus put out by the best hotel. Yesterday we had a chicken dinner. The evening meal is along the usual lines. There is always enough and the waiters are always urging the boys to eat more. To my mind the meals here are far better than in the regular service.

More anon,
John Ward.

Who says that it does not pay to advertise? Since I placed a 25c ad in the Ord Quiz for work, I have received the following answers: John Ward, Earl Hanson, Frank Danzeck, Ed Timmerman, Edward Burrows, Chas. Brickner and L. G. Pasant. Three of the above named, have offered me jobs by the month. I have been working by the day ever since I placed my ad with you, getting $1.25 per day. Through the harvest I get $2 per day. The Smithsonian Institution

The Smithsonian institution is maintained by the income derived from private gifts and interest on its own money. It was established by statute in 1846 under the terms of the will of James Smithson, an Englishman who, in 1826 bequeathed his fortune of $500,000 to found the institution. Gifts and good management have increased the original amount to over a million and a half, which is in perpetual investment in the treasury.

Many Incurable Diseases

Throughout the world there are about 30 incurable diseases that are inheritable, among them being several kinds of blindness, haemophilia and idiocy. Experiments on lower animals also show that various abnormal conditions caused by X-rays, such as color changes in fruit flies, can be passed on to descendants.—Collier's Weekly.

Partitionless House

An ultra modern "space house" has no partitions or swinging doors. When it is wished to shut off a room, a button is pressed and a hanging curtain, on an overhead track, is run around the room by a hidden motor. The doors are swinging slats, rolled up by a motor. The draperies are sound absorbing.

2-Story Home in Redwood Trees

One of several curious homes in the Redwoods Mill valley of California is a two-story house constructed within a circle of giant redwoods. It happened that the trees grew in such a fashion that there was just room to build the dwelling inside the circle and today the trees tower above the home on all sides.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Montreal's Great Bell

Granddaddy of Montreal's brazen songsters is Le Gros Bourdon. Afloat in its spire of Notre Dame church, it is one of the great bells of the world. For long it was the mightiest bell of the western hemisphere, but that honor has passed to newly cast bells in the United States. Weighing 24,780 pounds, Montreal's deep throated bell is mute except on state occasions.

Bubble Formation on Grass

The bureau of entomology says that the bubble formation on grass in the early morning has nothing to do with grasshoppers. It is the exudation of the nits or larvae of a certain type of bug called a frog-hopper or spittle insect and is a protective covering provided by nature for the larvae, which are very tender.

Officers Hopeful Project May Yet Be Approved

All Difficulties Will Soon Be Ironed Out; Interesting
Developments Expected.

The sponsors of the North Loup Power and Irrigation Project are still hopeful for an approval. Out of the $4,880,000 appropriated some time ago for relief purposes, $900,000,000 of that amount was specifically set aside for non-federal, self-liquidating projects wherein the president was authorized to make a grant or gift of 45% of the cost of the project. When it comes to arranging for the spending of so huge a sum of money, it takes time to complete the setup. The president and the other members of the allotment board have been busily engaged for some weeks arranging for state and district administrators with other officials with which to handle his program.

C. McDonough, the director of engineering for the PWA, under date of June 5th advised Mr. N. T. Veatch, Jr., of the firm of Black & Veatch that under the amended application, the project was legally and engineeringly sound and would be financially sound in the event that a 45% grant were allowed.

On or about July 10th there appeared in the state papers what purported to be an interview with Mr. A. M. Ferebee of the Public Works Administration wherein he was supposed to have notified Representative Coffey that our project was not sound for the reason that the cities of Ord and Burwell could not legally enter into contracts for the purchase of electricity from the district. The sponsors of the district have been busily engaged since that time trying to ascertain the status of this man Ferebee. C. McDonough has charge of the engineering, and it is difficult to understand how on June 5th, 1935, he would give out the information by letter to our engineers that the project was sound, and then in less than one month afterward for some representative to raise the question as to the power of the cities and villages to purchase electricity from the district. It is thought that difficulty will soon be ironed out. The attorney general of Nebraska has been asked for an opinion as to whether or not the cities of Ord and Burwell would be authorized to purchase electricity from the district. Lawyers in the valley can see no reason why the cities could not legally obligate themselves for that purpose.

It may be noted in press dispatches of this week that the Hon. Arthur J. Weaver has spent in the neighborhood of ten years in an attempt to secure Federal funds for the development of a channel for navigation in the Missouri river. Whether or not such a development is for the benefit of this part of Nebraska is not the question, but on account of Mr. Weaver's persistency he has at last secured the appropriation, and his dream of a decade is sure to become true.

The sponsors of this project believe that with the development of the cheap power in this valley, that it will encourage home industry, that since we are farther from oil or coal field than any other place in the United States, it is the only thing that will assist us in encouraging manufacturing. They also believe that the cities as well as the farmers should have a right to cheaper electricity.

As far as concerns the irrigation there may be a few that feel that with the copious rains this spring, we will not need supplemental water in the future, however, as a matter of fact, in the past forty years there has never been a year when supplemental water would not have paid for itself many times. Then, too, the sponsors of the project feel the irrigation will permit the farmer to diversify his crops. There was a time when we raised a great amount of wheat in the North Loup valley and it was profitable to raise it, but today little or no wheat is raised in the valley, and when it is grown it is unprofitable. Corn is not as profitable a crop in this valley as it once was. The fertility of the soil has been used for such crops. Irrigation will allow diversification so that different types of root crops can be raised with profit and the fertility of the valley restored.

It is thought that there would be some interesting developments during the next few weeks upon the project. In every instance where government funds are sought for development, it has been necessary to persistently keep on knocking at the door, and we are not quitters in the North Loup valley.

Exonerate Jim Larsen At Accident Inquest

We were unable, last week, to get the results in the coroner's inquest held at St. Paul on the Sells-McDonald-Larsen truck-auto accident in which two men were killed. Jim Larsen was the driver of the truck, which it will be remembered, he had left just off the highway on No. 16 east of St. Paul and the auto, driven by Bert Sells, came over the hill and struck it. Larsen was arrested and put in jail, but upon the advice of the county attorney, after a brief examination, was released by the authorities. The car owner and members of his party were quoted in the state papers as saying their car was in good shape as to brakes. Experts tested and examined it however and found that only one wheel had the least sign of a brake working and testimony showed that the car, loaded heavily, could not be controlled, coming over the hill as it allegedly did, at a high rate of speed. The new state Flares law does not go into effect, as the Quiz understands it, until July 28 and that fact should be born in mind by all truckers and they should all be prepared. Anyhow, regrettable as the accident was, we are glad our townsmen are in the clear in the matter.

Mrs. Anna Jensen Passed Away After After Long Illness

Was Faithful Member of Danish Church; Funeral Held At Arcadia Monday.

A life spent in kind and faithful service, was ended Saturday with the death of Mrs. Anna Katherina Jensen, which occurred at her home southwest of Ord Saturday morning.

Anna Katherina Sorensen was born October 2, 1873 in the country of Denmark. When 18 she came to America, and lived for some years near Minden, Kearney county. Here she met and on July 27, 1894, was married to Christian Jensen. Here they made their home for five years, moving from there to Arcadia. Ten children, George, Ernest, Bennie, Arthur, Harry, Cora, Leda, Esther, Ruby, and Anna, came to bless this union. A daughter, Mrs. Anna Barr passed away five years ago, and a son, Harry, nine years ago.

MRS. ANNA JENSEN.

Her husband, Christian Jensen, died 12 years ago at Arcadia, where they made their home after leaving Minden. Mrs. Jensen and her children moved from Arcadia to Ord ten years ago, and has lived on a farm since that time. Mrs. Jensen had been ill for several months preceding her death, which resulted from cancer. Six weeks ago she underwent an operation at Weekee's sanitarium, but it was without avail and she became gradually worse.

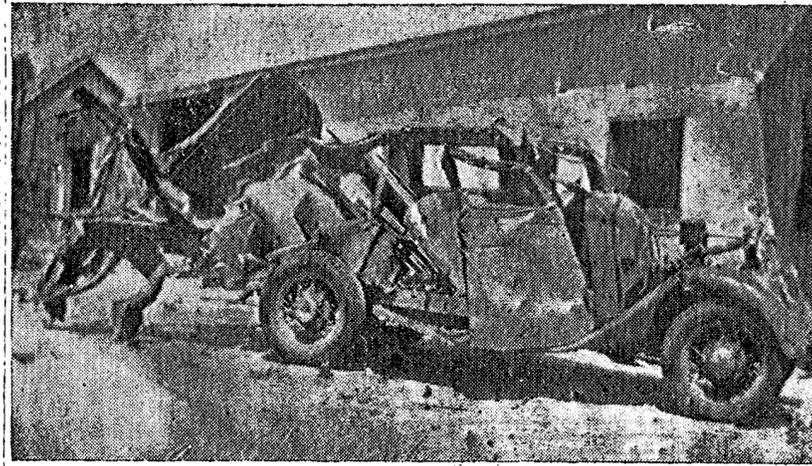

Mrs. Jensen was a member of the Danish-Lutheran church of Ord, attending faithfully when her health made it possible for her to do so. Funeral services were held Monday afternoon at 2:00 p. m. at the Methodist church in Arcadia, Reverend Hendrickson of Berwyn officiating. Interment was made in the Arcadia cemetery. The Sowl mortuary had charge of the funeral.

Palbearers were Brady Masters, R. B. Williams, R. L. Christensen, Henry Creemen, Levi Chilpiss, and John Vodehnal.

Surviving Mrs. Jensen are four sons, George, Ernest, Bennie, and Arthur, all of Ord, and four daughters, Mrs. Nels Hansen, Mrs. George Nass, Esther Jensen, of Ord, and Miss Ruby Jensen of Omaha. She is also mourned by two sisters, Mrs. Hannah Steffenson, and Mrs. Holgaard, and seven grandchildren.

Bert Sells Car That Claimed Two Lives

This picture shows the condition of Bert Sells' car after running into a parked truck near St. Paul. Sells, who was driving, escaped injury, but two other occupants of the car, Harry McDonald, Arcadia farmer, and Frank Sheehan, Omaha, were killed. The other two occupants of the car, Carl Wicklund, Loup City, and G. Sorensen, Omaha, were only slightly injured.

Improvements Made At Fair Grounds

Track Supt. Len Covert is busy putting the track on the fair grounds, in shape and those who have seen it, say that it is already in good shape. From now on it will be a question of working it down and getting it smooth and hard.

At a board meeting Monday evening a committee headed by Charles Bals and with Sam Roe and Clare Clement as helpers, was named to re-roof the grandstand. Work is also going forward under the direction of Mr. Bals to get the entire grounds cleaned and the buildings all in shape. The board also appropriated $500 for advertising and arrangements will be made as soon as possible to get advertising out announcing leading features.

Superintendent Clyde Baker has a letter from driver Fisher expressing pleasure that Ord will again hold a fair and race meet and promising to be on hand and to advertise the matter as widely as possible among racing men and he predicts that Ord will have one of the best lineups of racing cars it has ever had.

Better Housing News Flashes.

Better Housing news flashes, produced by Pathe News for the Federal Housing Administration, will be shown at the Ord Theatre this week.

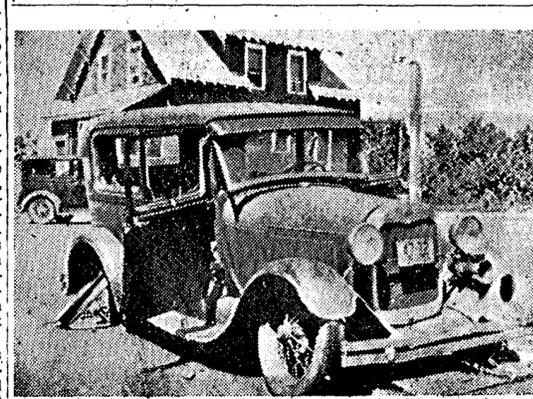

These pictures are a distinct screen novelty. They were prepared in News Reel form, to tell what can and is being done in the Better Housing movement today throughout the country. Two reels, each 600 feet in length, have been produced to date.

Before Better Housing News Flashes were made the Federal Housing Administration sent a form letter to theatre managers asking them if they would show such subjects. Six thousand managers replied in the affirmative, and then production was started. Motion picture experts who have previewed Better Housing News Flashes are enthusiastic in praising their entertainment value.

A Nice Rain Here Tuesday.

People in Ord generally were feeling good Tuesday morning due to a nice rain, 5/8 of an inch, early Tuesday morning which cooled the atmosphere. The rain, however, didn't extend much beyond the city limits and the temperature has again soared high. A good rain over the county would be welcome now, though the corn is standing the hot weather remarkably.

City Council Meets.

At a special meeting of the City Council Friday evening it was voted that every city employee receive a week's vacation with pay. No definite decision was arrived at in regard to the Diesel engines as the tests have not yet been returned from Kansas City.

Food Center Employees Meet.

The local Food Center employees and Manager Puncchoar with their wives or sweethearts, are invited to Grand Island Sunday where the company will entertain them, together with managers and employees of all Food Center stores at the Stratton Hotel. During the afternoon they can get anything they want to eat or drink at the Stratton coffee shop and their money won't be good and in the evening they will enjoy a banquet with dancing to follow. The local employees are all twitter over the fun they are going to have and the public is eagerly waiting to get a line on the sweethearts Emil and Art will take. Jim Wachtel and family who have been on a vacation to Canada will get home this week end, just in time to go to the Grand Island celebration.

1936 License Tags.

Nebraska's 1936 license tags are to be on a solid black background with a bright aluminum numeral. Preparations are about complete for starting their manufacture. More than 10,000 car registrations for 1935 over 1934 will necessitate an increase in the number of tags this year.

Mrs. W. W. Haskell Falls, Fractures Hip

In a most unfortunate accident Sunday evening, when Mrs. W. W. Haskell fell while about her kitchen work, her hip was broken. Dr. McGrew was called and after a preliminary examination, it was decided to take x-ray pictures and the patient was taken to the Ord Hospital in the Sowl ambulance. The pictures confirmed the diagnosis which Dr. McGrew had made. The break is in such a shape that it was deemed impractical to set the bone and the lady was returned to her home where she is being cared for by her daughter, Mrs. Dr. Lindberg, and others and it is hoped the break will mend rapidly. This is an especially sad accident because Mr. Haskell is also ill and confined to his bed much of the time. He has depended upon his good wife to care for him and she has done a wonderful job of it. The many friends of the family are hoping that both Mr. and Mrs. Haskell may show marked improvement. The present hot weather makes it most unpleasant to be confined to one's bed.

Just before going to press last evening we learn that Mrs. Haskell was taken to Lincoln during last night, Sowl's ambulance service being used. She was accompanied by her daughter Winnie, Mrs. Mattley, her son John and Dr. Kirby McGrew. She was taken to Lincoln where she could have the services of Dr. Orr, an eminent specialist and when the party left Ord it was not decided to what hospital Mrs. Haskell would be taken. It was planned Wednesday morning to take both Mr. and Mrs. Haskell, but later it was decided to keep Mr. Haskell in his Ord home and his daughter, Mrs. Lindberg is staying to care for him. Mrs. Mattley came from her Lincoln home as soon as she learned of the accident of her mother.

Ord Has Slight Chance For New Postoffice Building

Only One City In This District
To Get New Building; Ord Ranks Fourth.

Word comes that there is slight chance that Ord will get a government postoffice, as seemed likely some time ago when a government man made a survey here. It is now said that this district will only get one government building and that Ord is 4th in the list in postal receipts or whatever it is that the buildings are based on. What we are really wondering is why the powers that be didn't decide on how many they were going to build, refer to the records on file in Washington to find out just what town was going to get the building and then send the man to make the survey. Just why was it necessary to send out an army of men and examine towns galore at great expense, when they were not going to need the information.

Parkins Appointed.

Dr. George A. Parkins has received notice of his appointment to a Membership on The Educational committee of the International Association of State Boards of Examiners in Optometry. This committee has general supervision of the courses of study in Optometry in the different colleges throughout the United States and Canada. This committee also recommends to the different states suitable examination questions for men applying to be licensed to practice optometry, and is therefore, in direct charge of the upbuilding of the profession.

Dr. Parkins received the appointment several weeks ago at the National Convention at Miami, Fla., but received notice of his appointment only last week. Other members of the committee are Dr. Frederic Wol of Columbia University, and B. W. Hazel, M. D., of Baltimore, Md.

We Were In Error.

The Quiz is always ready to correct an error and like everyone else, we do make them. The Co-Operative Oil company subscribed $25 to the 1935 fair board fund and through error we left their name off the list last week.

We made another error in a story about a Weekee young lady getting married, but it was not our Miss Weekee, as stated in the Quiz and we are sorry we made the mistake. There is an old saying to the effect that the rats, or perhaps it was the mice, will play when the cat strays and probably when the editor gets home and takes charge of things again and this writer gets back up to Cullen, there won't be any more errors in this newspaper.

The Camp Fire girls enjoyed a swimming party at Mortensen's last Monday. After a cool swim they went to Bussell Park and had a lunch. A business meeting was held afterward.

Coach Brockman Will Supervise Recreation Work

Children Are Asked To Meet
At School Friday at 3 P. M., Committee Raising Money.

The Recreational Council held another meeting Monday evening with Helmut Brockman who has returned to take over the duties of supervisor for the recreational project which is rapidly being organized in Ord. This is one of the many such projects being organized all over the state by the Child Welfare department for the purpose of better directing the energies of the children.

This program is designed principally to provide worthwhile and healthful occupation for the children of school ages during the summer, but the ideal outcome is to have it last throughout the year and include children from five to seventy-five, as it does in Omaha and Lincoln. The project will tend to take children from the streets, alleys and other questionable playgrounds and give them a safe place to play under the guidance of an able director. The object is to introduce to the children as many forms of activities as possible and to give each child a chance to develop to the fullest, especially in such activities as athletics. Where the schools develop star athletes by competition, the purpose of this is to eliminate competition and to allow all of the would-be stars to have their chance.

Aside from athletics the project arranges for organization of handicraft groups. This may include anything in which the children show an interest. Manual training classes to make bird houses, airplanes, kites, furniture; leather tooling groups; sewing, knitting and home art groups; dramatics, story telling, music, doll shows, pet shows, nature study, puppets, in fact, anything in which there is sufficient interest shown to warrant starting a group, will be included.

For outdoor playgrounds, the committee has secured a number of vacant lots in town which are being cleaned for playgrounds for games, horseshoe, kitterball, baseball, and for tennis courts. The owners of these vacant lots were very generous and happy to turn them over to the "kids". The Legionnaires have cooperated by opening their hall for use as a work shop.

While Mr. Brockman will organize and supervise every activity that is to be carried on, he, of course, will be in need of many additional voluntary workers. A number of people have already volunteered their services. As junior athletic and playground assistants, the following have agreed to help: Richard Severson and Arthur Auble in athletics, Roland Tedro, music, Wayne Johnson, handicraft work. Rev. S. A. Woodruff will give his services in nature study and the crafts. For the girls these very able and talented young women have agreed to help: Martha Mae Barta, Marion Grace Cushing, Evelyn Coe, Pauline Barta and Mrs. Stanley McLain. These young women are all especially capable in the home arts and crafts, in dramatics, and story telling. Rev. Willard McCarthy, whose hobby is woodwork, has always had an ambition to share the joy he gets out of this work with others. He has offered to take an active part in teaching his art. He also offers the church basement and his tools for carrying on the work.

Anyone who would enjoy this work is asked to volunteer. Giving an hour a day or an hour every other day, to helping a group of interested children carry out some activity which will enrich their lives and give them an unquenchable enthusiasm for life and its many interesting activities is indeed a worthwhile effort to make for anyone. A meeting of all volunteer workers will be held Friday morning, July 26, at 10:00 o'clock at the Legion hall and the committee asks that all people interested in volunteering their services be present at that time.

The committee is asking for the donation of used articles, such as old tennis nets, wire fencing, poles, tennis rackets, bats, balls, kitterballs, or other articles. Anyone having donations, is asked to call Mr. Brockman who will send after them. Tennis nets or other equipment will be repaired gladly by the workers.

In many cities over the state, the city council has voted a sum of $200 or more to take care of the financing of this project, but with the Ord organization it was decided to ask each civic organization of the city for a small donation. The finance committee is busy getting into contact with the head of each organization so that this will be brought up at the next meeting or as soon as possible. The P. E. O. organization has headed the list with a $10 donation and many other organi-

My Own Column

By H. D. Leggett

In sending a renewal on his Quiz, W. E. Davis of Port Henry, N. Y., says, "Your new picture department in the Quiz is a great improvement and makes the paper even better than before. I consider that a compliment. It has been a good many years since Mr. Davis lived in Ord. He is a son of the late F. M. Davis. He has very few relatives left in this community but during all the years he has continued to read the old Home Town paper."

Dr. Joe Kruml read my little item last week about a lake for this community and before noon Thursday, was in to talk to me about it. He said the secretary of the Isaac Walton League of America had a cabin next to his up in Minnesota this summer and he told him about our needs along that line. The secretary told Joe that if a suitable location could be found, he was sure arrangements could be made for the government to finance the building of it.

Now I am wondering if there is a suitable place on Bean creek for a lake and a recreation park on the site of Fort Hartuff. If so, that location could and would have the support of the people from Burwell to Scotia. North Loup people have been especially interested in having a park developed there and Burwell, also, on various occasions, has started agitation along the same line. What the Quiz is anxious for is a real park, a nice lake where there would be water enough to warrant stocking it for this whole valley. True it would be nice to have such a lake at the edge of Ord. If that is possible we are for it. If some other location is better and more feasible then lets unite on that place. If we can have the national organization of the League backing our project we are likely to get results.

The Quiz does not have as much advertising as it should have. Merchants of Ord are not using the space that it would pay them well to use. Some of them spend most of their appropriation for advertising, for hand bills and throw them on the porches of people to their annoyance or send them through the mail, to have a large percent of them thrown on the ground at the base of the RFD mail boxes. These hand bills are all printed in some other city and not in the Quiz shop, yet the merchants contend that they should have the support of the home people. They don't like to have Valley county people send to mail order houses for merchandise.

There are a few business concerns in Ord who are consistent newspaper advertisers and without a single exception those merchants are leading the procession in their line of goods in the amount of trade. Every Ord business should be represented in a newspaper like the Quiz. It actually goes to about 90 per cent of the Ord trade territory, yet week after week the advertising amounts to less than the money paid out for help, not to mention many other expenses. Eventually the quality of the Quiz will have to be cut down under these circumstances, there can be no other result because no business man is going to give back to his patrons more than he is able to get out of the business.

A careful survey made by experts in their lines, and taking a large number of representative newspapers in each state, has shown that a paper with the circulation the size the Quiz has, would warrant an advertising rate of 42 per inch. The Quiz never got that but at one time did get 35. When the depression came along the rate was reduced to 25 with no increase of business as a result. During the past year costs have increased steadily. Business men in other lines have advanced the retail price to meet the increased cost but the Quiz has not done that, proving, no doubt that we are not good business men. Just a reasonable amount of advertising patronage however would enable us to carry on along present lines. Not getting it the rate will have to go up and that means more expense for the loyal booster-advertisers.

The people of Omaha asked for, insisted on having the people of the state vote on horse race betting and the people by a large majority approved it. The legislature passed the necessary legal machinery to make it legal. People want to bet and do bet and almost every day we read in the papers about the Omaha police arresting people for betting. It is one of the funny things, when you think about it.

Of course Omaha makes a clean-up gesture every so often. Everyone out in the state knows of course, that it is only a gesture. Crime is a racket in all large cities, Omaha included. The police and city officials are in on the act in all large cities. Omaha included.

The investigation now going in congress, relative to the power trust proves that the Utilities will stoop to anything to gain their point. In the fight they made against passage of the bill to do away with holding companies, employees sent telegrams to congressmen by the thousands protesting against the passing of the legislation. It is now seems that these employees took telephone and city directories and got the names to sign on the telegrams sent. Now it is proved that the records have been burned, the employees say, on orders from the higher ups. If it wasn't for just a few men in congress, like Senator Norris and a few such men in the house, the public would never know these things and the Utilities would have full sway.

In one of the larger inland cities of Nebraska, there were two newspapers, a thriving, money making daily and a weekly, not doing so good with its paper but with a large, money-making commercial printing business. The daily spent a lot of money installing a commercial plant and probably did so to the detriment of the quality of the daily, cut prices and took away a large part of the weekly shop, making it a sorry affair financially. I am led to believe. The weekly retaliated by starting a morning daily sheet, in turn taking a large amount of the business formerly enjoyed by the daily. Both plants have suffered and the fight is still on and, in the end, will perhaps result in two regular daily newspapers in the town, where one was ample for the needs. Neither will be able to make money. Greed and short-sighted business policy was at the bottom of the whole deal.

It looks to one reading the daily papers, as though a war between Italy and Ethiopia is sure. The public also believes that the war is being forced by Italy as a means of getting new territory for a dumping ground for its population and for the most part the Ethiopians, though they will probably get licked to a frazzle, will have the sympathy of the world. No one can tell where such a war will end or how many nations may be forced into it before it is over with.

Irma writes in her "Something Different" column this week, about what the Dr. Gelows are going to do to improve their Cullen Lake cottage. But Irma, that really is not something different. It is the same old bunk they have been shooting at us every year, and probably the same old plans. They believe that the pleasure of anticipation is greater than the pleasure of realization and I, for one, don't ever expect to see them make a single change in their cottage. They did add a new lamp wick for the oil lamp a few years ago and may have to do so again some day, but as to moving it and adding porches, and new furniture and planting flowers and trees, well, seeing will be believing. And Irma, next year, when you write this same old bunk, save your time, just say, "See last year's story. . . clip the Gelow improvement note."

The power of suggestion is wonderful. There is a big crop of currants up at Cullen and the price is low but the fruit was not ready for jelly when we came home. Then we were unable to get currants here so I wrote the kids and told them how badly the Missus felt because of all these facts. A letter this morning proves that it took for Irma had made up a lot of jelly. The Missus gave me a thunder when she read my letter. She said, "Why, those kids may think that you are hinting that they make the jelly," and I said, "Well, that is just what I am doing and we will see how good they are at taking hints."

KEEPING FIT FOR SUCCESS

By Dr. V. E. Levine, professor of bio-chemistry and nutrition, the Creighton University School of Medicine.

Ed. Note. Readers of this newspaper may receive answers to any questions regarding the general subject of health by sending a self-addressed and stamped envelope with their questions to Dr. Victor E. Levine, Creighton University, Omaha.

Symptoms of Vitamin Deficiency.

The symptoms of deficiency are divided into two types: (1) non-specific symptoms and (2) specific symptoms.

The non-specific symptoms arise when there is a partial, not a complete deficiency in any one of the vitamins. Under such conditions an individual may be very much below par in health without developing an out-and-out clearly recognizable deficiency disease. The non-specific symptoms refer to growth, to weight, to muscular strength and fatigability, to the condition of the blood, to the heart, to the gastro-intestinal tract, to the bones and teeth, to the nervous system, to the cutaneous system, to the organ of vision, and to the power of resisting infection.

The non-specific symptoms are as follows: 1. Failure to gain weight or loss in weight. 2. Muscular weakness and marked tendency to fatigue. 3. Changes in the blood picture, low hemoglobin or lowered cell count, indicating the presence of anemia. 4. Gastro-intestinal upsets, such as low gastric acidity or complete absence of acidity, deficiency in digestive enzymes resulting in poor digestion and poor absorption, fullness in the region of the stomach, abdominal pain, constipation, bacterialization, diarrhea, and ulceration. 5. Disturbances referable to the heart. The heart muscle shows weakness and tendencies to fatigue, irregularities and murmurs. Edema, evidenced by the swelling of the lower extremities, may indicate the approach of cardiac failure. 6. Skin changes. Skin lesions are especially to be observed in vitamin A deficiency and in vitamin C deficiency. 7. The condition of the eyes. In order to have good vision without eye strain, the muscles that control the movements of the eyeball and also those of the lens must be strong and responsive. Vitamin deficiencies cause muscle weakness and rapid fatigue. Vitamin deficiencies also increase susceptibility to infections of the eye. 8. Changes in bones and teeth. Delay in eruption of the teeth, the presence of soft, chalky, fragile and carious teeth are regarded as symptoms of vitamin deficiency. Rickets due to absence of vitamin D and scurvy due to absence of vitamin C are characterized by a failure of bone growth and other characteristic changes in the osseous system. 9. Changes in the nervous system. Actual degeneration and destruction of nervous tissue may occur as in the case of Pellagra (vitamin B deficiency) or functional changes without organic destruction may be present as indicated by emotional and mental disturbances, such as lack of concentration, melancholy, apathy or marked irritability, fault-finding, fretfulness, loss of courage and stamina. 10. Increased susceptibility to infection. Those suffering from vitamin deficiency are very susceptible to upper and lower respiratory infections—the common cold, influenza, tonsillitis, laryngitis, tracheitis, bronchitis, pneumonia and tuberculosis. Those suffering from vitamin deficiency are also susceptible to infections

Little Donnie McBeth was playing with his grandparents' wire haired terrier, Smoky. Smoky got affectionate and licked Donny. "Oh, Donnie," said everyone, horrified, "you mustn't let Smoky lick you. His tongue is dirty!" "Next time you give Smoky a bath won't you wash his tongue, too?"

20 Years Ago This Week.

A destructive wind and hail storm swept the entire length of the North Loup river valley, doing much damage to wheat crops, which were about two-thirds cut, corn, and other small grain. Many window panes were broken by hail, and strong winds uprooted several trees. About three inches of rain fell.

When You And I Were Young Maggie

Lars Hansen celebrated his 83rd birthday anniversary at a large picnic given for him by his daughter, Mrs. P. Jensen.

25 Years Ago This Week.

The Odd Fellows were preparing to build a new hall and had received the drawings for the contractors.

A new lawyer, J. R. Berry of Lincoln located in Ord and was associated with Herman E. Oleson in the practice of law.

Gene came home from Bay Lake recently telling me that he knew where there was a big clump of big pin cherry trees. With a lot of poison ivy under them, about waist high. I told him that was probably why the trees were going to be so loaded. No, pin cherries are nowhere near ripe yet.

Green groceries, if they have to be shipped in, are high to buy in this country. If home grown, it is different. Meat is high, Swift's Premium bacon is 42c per pound. But we did have a grand, tender lamb stew the other day, my husband confiding that he brilliantly purchased the meat for 5c per pound.

Great plans for a big celebration in Brainerd were well nipped by heavy rains. The celebration was of an enormous legendary fellow called Paul Bunyan, about whom some of the biggest and best lies are told. All this country united to put over this celebration, and it may be nice tomorrow, but I feel sure Lum Park, where the free shows were scheduled, is well under water, as it is very low, and the kibosh is on the affair for today.

When You And I Were Young Maggie

"Well, that is about the same with George's stuff. He's been trying to farm for the last seven years over there and seems to think he is not making it. Says it never rains on his farm. Says he even dired out last year. And now he starts writing for the papers."

The Spud Crop.

I was up to Raymond and Donald Bakers a few days ago measuring their many patches of corn held there among the hills.

I asked how their potatoes were turning out. These fellows usually grow quite a few.

"Well," Raymond said scratching his head, "before the last rain we were digging some to eat. In every hill there were two or three good sized potatoes and a lot of little ones. We thought we were going to get a good crop."

"But lately we have been digging again and the big ones are all gone. What do you suppose happened to them? I can't quite understand it."

It was too deep for me. So when I was at Horace later I told the Green Tree club about it. Frank Moody said he had heard the same thing from someone else. He said he had also heard that under certain conditions the vines would absorb the potatoes. He added he had heard that and didn't say he believed it.

CARE OF COUNTY BOARD

Dear Jake:
I have been asked time and again how I manage to get my farming done and do all this raving for the paper. I guess I might as well just put my explanation in the paper so you folks will all know and relieve that awful strain of mind over the county, so it is this way. I am naturally downright lazy. There is nothing I rather do than to do nothing. So Sundays I work just as hard as I can so I can rest the rest of the week. I even get up early so as to get in a full day's rest.

I say Sunday because I go to church on Saturday, or to be more specific, I go to church with my wife on Saturday. I find that a good place to nap and think up columns for the next week's Quiz. The sweet pulchritude of the soft music, the dull restfulness of those yellow tinted windows. Lately this has not worked so well. Our pastor is too interesting. I may have to change churches.

So as a consequence I arise early Sunday morning and work late in the evening so I can bum the rest of the week. I am disturbed less on Sundays by newspaper peddlers and medicine agents than other days. I have tried to put the kids to work too on Sundays but usually it is less work to let them play.

Then I am a conscientious soul. After long thought and concentration I decided to rent part of my land to some other more unfortunate creatures. The fact of the matter is that I have made so much money in the last few years farming I just thought I would divide it up. It would be the height of unfairness to profit so much, to pile up enormous dividends year after year, keeping it away from the other fellow. Give some other man a chance to get rich like I have. I reasoned if I kept on I might become as wealthy as some of the banks did a few years ago.

Now there are two days accounted for. Then I drove another day. That's not hard work. I come home as free from ennui as if I had husked corn all day. I am so pert that after supper I draw the big chair up to the table and prepare to hammer off the copy in fifteen minutes. I get it about a third done when the good wife, who has already taken off my shoes, shakes me and helps me into bed. And I am not drunk either.

The other four days of the week I languish about reading wild west stories. I spend a few minutes some evening finishing the Work Sheet, but most of my time is spent in lassitudes gaining strength for next week's grind.

Valuable Advice.

Eino Hurley was telling some of the fellows, including myself, in his store, about a man he used to know. We will call him John Doe for short.

Eino said, "I used to read the farm papers a little. I would run on to the nicest little article giving the finest kind of advice on how to farm and make money. I would get really enthusiastic about it as I read along. Suddenly I would come to the end of the place and there would be the name John Doe."

"Well, I was acquainted with that fellow. He used to farm and starved out. He was as near a failure as anyone I ever knew. Then he moved away and went to writing for the papers. He continued to be on the verge of bankruptcy in his new endeavor and could hardly pay his bills. The very fact of John Doe writing and telling others how to do things spoiled the whole article."

"Well, that is about the same with George's stuff. He's been trying to farm for the last seven years over there and seems to think he is not making it. Says it never rains on his farm. Says he even dired out last year. And now he starts writing for the papers."

Figures do not lie, but they surprise you. For instance, in the year 1801 the government of the United States had 126 employees. Today it has 700,000 employees, an increase of 5,000 per cent. The number of congressmen has risen since 1801 from 128 to 531, a little more than 400 per cent, while United States population has increased 2,500 per cent.

The increase in population is due to mothers, the increase in government extravagance is due to politicians.

Austria seems not quite certain that she has had enough of the Hapsburg royal family, that has ruled and misruled an intelligent people for so long. The state council cancels a decree that banished Hapsburgs and took their property. Young Archduke Otto, pretender to the throne, may now return to Austria. He and his mother will find themselves rich, the confiscated imperial property returned.

Young Otto, a handsome boy, with a somewhat peevishly conceited expression, may occupy the throne. Self-government is not easily learned.

Not Constitutional Flies and Black Magic Kilkenny Cats, Again
Pickings for Lawyers

In Boston, the Federal Circuit Court of Appeals decides, two to one, that the "New Deal" process tax on cotton is unconstitutional. The judges decide that "the power of congress to regulate interstate commerce does not authorize it to tax products either of agriculture or of industry merely because their production may indirectly affect interstate commerce."

This important decision, if not upset by the higher courts, will upset, decidedly, the plans of the administration in regard to financing bigger incomes for farmers.

Universal Service says Abyssinia will not take Mussolini, his airplanes and armored tanks "lying down." Abyssinian sorcerers, dealers in black magic, will work against Italy. What is more dangerous than magic, Abyssinian fighting chiefs will use the poisonous tssetse fly against Italian soldiers. These flies, feeding on decayed animal matter caught in the teeth of sleeping crocodiles, get the tssetse germs from the blood of the crocodiles and plant them in the blood of human beings and cattle.

Slow death by "sleeping sickness," leaving the body almost a skeleton, follows the tssetse bite.

Two cats hung over a line must fight. The Kilkenny story proves it. Mussolini has committed himself to war, and once a dictator speaks positively it is unsafe, politically, for him to back down, especially when other nations interfere, as France and England have interfered. To retreat might cost Mussolini his prestige.

Difficult also is the position of Haile Selassie, emperor of Ethiopia. His hold is not firm. Important chiefs, heading various Abyssinian tribes, would like his job. If he should avoid war by yielding part of his territory to Mussolini, as advised by England, resulting complications might include assassination, common in tropical countries.

The United States Chamber of Commerce objects to the income and inheritance tax program, calls it confiscation. The question involved seems simple:

Does the property of the United States, result of thrift and intelligence, belong to the people that created it, or is it only held in trust by them for public use by those that for the time being exercise powers of government?

Owners of stock in Paramount-Public Moving Picture company, once selling on the market at $100,000,000 and more, now worth about nothing, learn that in some wind-up proceedings lawyers ask for $3,000,000. That seems a good deal, but you must remember that one New York lawyer—he will not object to being mentioned—the skillful Louis Levy, once got more than $1,000,000 for settling a sad misunderstanding between a prosperous gentleman and a certain "little lady."

Washington reports a "whispering campaign" concerning President Roosevelt's health. It will be a very small whisper if the whisperers stick to facts. The President's friends will be glad to know that his health is excellent, has never been better since his Presidential work began. A constitution able to withstand and conquer such an attack of illness as the President has withstood need not worry about a few political annoyances.

A correlative passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, reads: "Ignorance of God is no longer the stepping-stone to faith. The only guarantee of obedience is a right apprehension of Him whom to know aright is Life eternal." (preface vii).

North Loup News

In a free hitting, base running ball game Sunday North Loup won from Arcadia 9 to 6 at the North Loup Athletic Park. The Home boys started things off when Cap Williams the second man up, in the first inning slammed out in a long three-bagger into left center and scored on Hutchins' single. North Loup scored again in the second when Knapp got life on Mill's error, went to second on a hit and scored on two successive errors. In the third three hits and an error accounted for four more runs. The last hit a screaming triple by Sheldon over the center fielder's head. Up to the sixth inning Sheldon set the arcadians down with only two hits and no runs. In the sixth they rang up four hits and as many runs. Bellingier got life on Cap Williams' error, went to third on Scott's single. McCleary scored Scott with a double and Johnson stepped into the ball for a long triple, cleaning the bases and scored when Mills singled. That ended Arcadia's scoring until the ninth when McGowan stepped into one for a triple and scored on a fielder's choice. North Loup scored three runs in the sixth on singles by Williams, Faudt, Knapp and Cress and a double by Chadwick. That ended the scoring and the game, ended North Loup 9, Arcadia 6. The Work Sheet

By GEORGE GOWEN
"The Roving Reporter"

On His Knees.
Feeling a little reluctant about going to the country roving because everyone would be swamped with work harvesting and cultivating, I reversed my direction and drove to the city of Horace.

My first stop was at the post-office. Marion Welsh is postmaster, having charge of all outgoing and incoming mails. This is not his only business. He runs a little joint along with it. He sells a few groceries, a little candy, an ice cream cone now and then, and a bottle of pop, and many wild west magazines. He has a full line of that literature and says he sells a good many copies especially in the winter. On top of all this, Marion is the city electrician and light man.

From that active place of business I sauntered out on the walk and north a few steps. There in the shade of some nice trees, and the leaf of a quoniam bank, Delbert Hille was on his knees. Now he was not doing what you are surprised to hear of me about to say of him. He was not proposing, or praying, at least audibly. He might have been praying his job would soon cease.

With a cream station cap tipped to the angle of a buck sargent, he was methodically and speedily mailing egg cases together. John Hoagland was sitting near learning the trade. Delbert was asked what he got out of the violent movements and he answered unemotionally, "The exercise."

Green Tree Club.
John and I sat down on the fender of an old Ford and talked over the assessor's business. John and I both ran for assessor last year. He got the job assessing and I with the Quiz. Neither of us have much to brag about, in the jobs we got or the votes either. He got something like 10 more votes than I did, but the saddening part of it was, there was something like 15 who didn't like either one of us and wrote in a name. Had they not done that it is a problem who would have won. And to make the fight more interesting one of the members of the election board was the leader of the "writing in" movement.

Nevertheless John was one of the few assessors who did not get his schedules either raised or lowered. Besides this remunerative job, John is the elevator man. He gets 3c a bushel for all the grain he handles and one good month last year he made 6c. For some reason he lost heart and does not stay at the elevator unless he is called.

By this time Ben Rux, who is general manager of the Horace Trucking service, and R. F. Moody (Frank) appeared on the scene and we all squatted around watching and enjoying the sight of Delbert as he so expertly nailed the egg cases. I soon discovered that an association by the name of "The Green Tree Club" was gathering for their morning session.

Nix on Washing Feet.
Business of the city was talked over. The first house to the north on the east side of the street Marion Welsh lives. At the next place resides Roy Whiting. His father, who lives up the road to the north is the section boss.

Across the road to the north on the hill is the nice large white residence of Water Commissioner Frank Moody. He supplies the city with water from his big cistern on the hill and his two wells, one of which is out of commission. That is, the mill is out of commission. He said there was not enough wind for two.

He has no meters, just charging so much a spigot. He keeps his argus eyes on tap at all times and tells the populace whether they can use water or not, or whether they use too much or too little. As he joined the throng John H. asked if he might wash his feet tonight. Frank replied curtly, "No. Not today. Better put it off a while. Not much wind. Dog days now you know."

Then he registered a little disgust at the electrician because when Frank thought a little of connecting a motor with one pump, Marion thought an engine would be better. Frank said he had an engine once and a neighbor borrowed it and when it was returned it wouldn't run, and by the time he got it tinkered so it would run he didn't need it. The wind came up. With a motor to run the pump the Horace people might be able to wash their feet every week.

Had Not Forgotten the Mail.
About that time the mail carrier, Clyde Warford, Scotia, who runs the star route from Scotia, drove to the postoffice and as he slowed up he looked into the back seat, and then without stopping the engine he whirled around and started back. It was the opinion of the unanimous vote of the Green Tree club that Clyde had forgotten his mail when he left headquarters and had to go back after it. This motion was recorded on an egg case by the secretary. This proved to be wrong for Clyde didn't have time to drive clear to Scotia before he returned. He only has a Ford.

Down the street south from the City Water Department Iver Peterson lives. Iver operates the big garage and gas station of the metropolis. He sells gas for what it is worth, but puts his signs up like the other fellows. In other words, you don't always believe everything that is in print.

The next house south, still on the side hill, is the place of Glen Johnson. Some members of the club said he is a G-man. Then he said that meant Government man. Anyway Glen works with Wm. Welsh on the road, and I am coming to Billie soon.

Glen has long been a noted ball player. He and his boy both have for many years been considered experts in that line. But baseball has this last year, because of the simple and unadulterated reason that some inconsiderate soul plowed up the ball diamond and planted corn there. So Glen took up fishing and says he likes that better.

Traded Shoes.
The story goes Glen caught a 22-pound fish a week ago but the fish got away just before he was landed. Glen knew he weighed 22 pounds because he had scales on his back.

By that time the club was beginning to dissolve. E. M. Applegate came up. I told him I would trade the Quiz for a pair of half soles. "All right," he said. So he unlocked his repair shop and we entered. This establishment is a barber and cobbler shop combined. The tools are interchangeable. He flensed his coat and shirt and I discovered he was wearing a heavy suit of wool underwear. Naturally, heaving a pant, I remarked about it. He explained to me as if I was a kid and anyone should know it, that these woollens were cool, keeping the cool air in and the hot out. I asked him if he didn't have an extra suit he might lend me as at that moment I was really quite distressed with the heat.

Then he couldn't find his knife, I suggested he use a razor. He nearly smashed his thumb with the hammer and ceased the work to look for an awl. I asked him if he was going to do a good job on the shoes and he took a few minutes to show me the fine leather he was using. I told him if he didn't do a good job I could throw the shoes away and he said if the paper wasn't good he could do the same with it. He hunted up a can of mixed nails and started to work. Shingle nails clinch better than small ones. He drove about one a minute and I begin to think I might spend a lot of my valuable time right there in that shop. I complained if I just had another pair of shoes I would go on canvassing. So he pulled off his shoes and loaned them to me.

Another G-Man.
The church where the exciting elections are held is next south of Glen Johnson's. Then the city theatre and dance hall that has the foundation wrecked and the windows knocked out. Then the garage "still going south", then the big department store belonging to Earl Hille. He has a fine business there and whenever I happen along he scampers around with his hair slicked back in a smooth pompadour, his head leading his thin body in a wild scramble to get everyone happy and on their way, his eyes in a serious mood as if the store was on fire and he was looking for a mislaid bucket.

West of the store around the corner Johnnie Earl runs the blacksmith shop and although a former resident of Valley county, he wasn't interested in the least in the paper. And further up the track lives Frank Pawloski who "is working on the railroad" and already takes the paper.

On down the street to the south, by the tracks lives the ex-banker, Jim Leth and he too now is a G-man. That is he works for the government, so the club said, with an office at Greeley, having something to do with the administration of the C. W. A.

Next in line is Carl Jensen, father of Pete and Yoc. He is old and stooped but still a friendly old Dane and on the retired list.

The next house on south is John Hoagland, of which I have mentioned already and then the city public schools, from which Frank Moody extracts the toll of $5.00 a month for water, and they don't wash their feet there either.

Works Too Hard on Road.
Across the street lives Wm. (Billie) Welsh who farms a little and is the chief of the road gang. Most any time one will see him and his cohorts going to work or coming from or working, making the roads and by-roads smooth like the kitchen floor for us unappreciative duffers. He and his gang have had plenty trouble this year. They no more than get a washed out culvert fixed than another rain would tear it out again.

Billie became over-heated the other day. The club made fun of Glen J. (deputy) by telling him they saw no sweat on his shirt. And then the club asked how it happened and Glen joked, "we were working under a bridge and there was a crack in the planks letting a six inch streak of sun in."

Anyway Billie must be satisfying the people for he gets the office whenever he runs. Never have I heard anyone say but what he is a mighty nice fellow and he is the biggest sort of a chump to work so hard for the public that he keels over.

Lige Applegate lives next to the north. I am in his boots right now. He is 76 years old and looks and speaks 15 years younger. He is witty and quick at retort as a fraternity brother and as smart but don't think so.

Knew the Clatter.
Climbing up hill to the Burlington station I found the general freight and passenger superintendent busy behind a paper with his feet on the desk. It was no less than Martin Hille. I think the Hille family have a majority of the town.

He said, "How do you happen to be wearing Lige's shoes?" He knew them by the clatter. He told me how they happened to be so big. Lige normally wears a 7. He tried on an 8. They felt so good on his feet he bought a 9.

Then I happened to think. I had been wandering around town with Lige's shoes with no thought of returning. Without question he was in the shop, my shoes repaired but too small for him to wear, and in that way he was incarcerated.

We talked a few minutes, Martin and I, telling each other a few jokes. He was going to get up a debate last year between John H. and I over the assessor business. Both of us were ready with profuse briefs but I guess Martin couldn't find a half big enough to hold the crowd.

I gave Martin a sales talk about the Quiz and spread the sheet before him, explaining the good points and telling about the many pictures. I even told him we might put his in sometime. He grabbed up the paper, swung up his feet and read the whole Work Sheet and more too while I waited. While I waited I read a dozen R. R. magazines and a half a dozen shipping contracts. I didn't worry any about my time (I was drawing pay) but I was a little afraid Lige might want his shoes.

Nearly Lost My Sample.
I had a peck of trouble salvaging the paper because he found it so interesting, but I finally succeeded. I expressed my regrets in keeping him from his devoirs so long and hurried on.

I found the club had adjourned and Delbert weary from his box nailing. He was sitting in the barber chair talking over big things with Lige. Lige was rasping the soles of my shoes and about to apply the paint. I was relieved to find I had not kept him waiting. After hunting his toothbrush, the jet tint was applied, and his tools put up on the bench. We exchanged foot gear. We all stepped to the street. Lige locked his joint.

It was about train time. Delbert is the chief cream man for his brother. He grabbed a couple cans of cream and rolled them across lots to the depot.

I was tired and weary from my toll working the town, and left for home, west, over the hills and far away.

Moore Bell Ordained, Will Live At Friend

On Thursday evening at eight o'clock Moore G. Bell is to be ordained to the ministry by the Presbytery of Hastings at a special service in the First Presbyterian Church of this city. Mr. Bell is the son of O. P. Bell, 1103E, Ninth St. He attended Hastings College graduating with the class of 1931. After graduation he completed the three years course of the Biblical seminary of New York and then took an extra year of graduate study in the Presbyterian Theological Seminary associated with Princeton University.

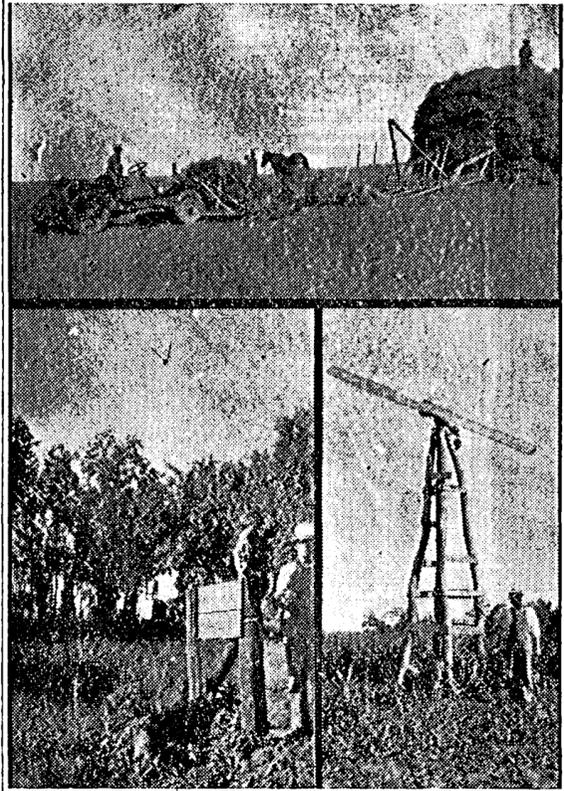

Mr. Bell has been called to the First Congregational Church at Friend, Nebr., and has already begun his ministry there. By mutual understanding between the two churches the young minister will be ordained by the Presbytery among old friends and transferred to the Congregational Association. Those participating in the service Thursday evening are Dr. D. D. MacKay who presides as moderator and offers the ordination prayer; Rev. Arthur Soundy of Minden reads the Scripture; Rev. Harry Hansen of Holdrege offers the charge to the new minister. The ordination sermon is preached by Dr. Alva V. King, pastor of the local church.

Mr. Bell has many friends in this community who recall the associations of college days and will doubtless be pleased to offer good wishes to the new minister as he begins his work at Friend. —Hastings Spotlight.

—Born to Mr. and Mrs. Anton Lebruska Thursday, a 6½ pound boy. Dr. H. N. Norris was the attending physician.

DR. RICH says:
Why people who suffer with rectal trouble expect to get well without proper treatment is beyond reasonable and intelligent understanding. That would be too good to be true and therefore rarely happens. It is much better to be safe than sorry. I will be glad to tell you all about it. Come and see me for your cure. Dr. Rich, Rectal Specialist, Grand Island, Nebr. (1)

Roving Reporter Shows Evidence That Valley County Farmers Are Inventive

To prove that Valley county farm people are of an inventive nature the Roving Reporter has sent in the above pictures. At the top is the hay sweep made by the Bremer boys out of an old car. The boys move hay around on this sweep at a speed of 35 miles per hour.

Bottom, left, shows Chas. Brennick and his mail box. The box is hung on a cable 80 rods long, stretched between the Brennick house and the road. Whenever they want their mail (providing there is any in the box) they just turn a crank and the box comes to their doorstep. Bottom, right, shows Ed Burrows and his Chow dog standing beside a home-made power mill which Ed manufactured.

Former North Loup Man Tells Of His Experience In The Big Prairie Fire of 1878

By WILLIAM B. GREENE
The morning of October 16, 1878 dawned bright and sunny and developed into an unusually warm autumn day. Until twelve o'clock there was not even a hint that on that day the fire spirit would demand the sacrifice he did.

My brother Morris T. Greene my brother-in-law Albert Cottrell and I had started work on a sod house for Albert Cottrell's brother, Clark, on his homestead about eight miles west of North Loup (farm now owned by Henry Koelling). Morris and Albert were cutting and bringing in the sod on a heavy wooden wagon drawn by oxen belonging to Plummer Horr. I was trimming and laying the sod twenty rods north of where they worked.

About ten o'clock, we noticed a fire, stirred along by a gentle breeze, coming over the hills to the southwest. If the south wind continued, the head fire would come no closer to us than a mile. If the wind changed and started the fire toward us, we were protected by a narrow fireguard unless there should be a high wind.

We watched the head fire which had started near Loup City, pass us and lose itself from view as it burned on and on over the hills until it reached the North Loup river near Ord.

But backfire was constantly creeping closer to us, fed by the extra heavy growth of grass that covered hills and valleys that year. By two o'clock it was within half a mile of us. Suddenly, to the west, a fearful black cloud of smoke arose, indicating that a strong wind had risen. Wind, smoke and fire were coming toward us. Whether the wind traveled as was estimated, at 80 miles an hour, there were no records to prove, but it had sufficient force to blow over stacks of hay and grain. Burning bunches of grass were picked up and carried for thirty feet ahead to start new blazes.

Morris and Albert reached me, with oxen, just as the heat struck. With all possible speed we loosened the oxen from the wagon but dared not take time to unyoke them. They galloped from the fire, causing untold misery to wild animals and terrorizing human beings until it again met defeat in the North Loup river near Scotia. Some did say it leaped the river in the big bend.

And darkness settled as if to hide the destruction the day had wrought.

This story told by William B. Greene, formerly of North Loup, now living at 3639 Elliot St., Denver.

New Deal Badly Hurt by Ruling That AAA Processing Taxes Are Unconstitutional—Democratic Senators Score Schall of Minnesota.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

TWO to one against the New Deal was the week's score in Federal court decisions. The administration suffered severely. The Circuit Court of Appeals in Cincinnati first held unconstitutional the condemnation of land by the PWA for slum clearance. Then the Circuit Court of Appeals in Boston dealt the AAA a terrific blow by declaring unconstitutional the processing and flour taxes.

The one favorable decision was by the Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans and was that the sale of cheap electric power by the Tennessee Valley authority was constitutional.

Harold Ickes, who is PWA administrator, said the slum clearance work would be carried on, though necessarily in modified form. But Chester Davis, AAA administrator, openly admitted that "the end of the processing taxes would mean the end of the Agricultural Adjustment administration in all its important aspects." He would not confess that he believed for a minute the Supreme court would confirm the ruling of the court at Boston. He asserted he had expected that decision to be adverse, saying: "That section around Boston is a hotbed of resistance to the processing taxes. Why, it's right up there among all those cotton manufacturers." This was most extraordinary comment from a high government official, but the Appeals court in Boston has not yet cited Davis for contempt.

Most well informed and unbiased persons have never believed the processing taxes would stand up under court test. The Guffey coal bill has some similar features so that those who debate it should read these paragraphs in the Boston decision:

"The power of congress to regulate interstate commerce does not authorize it to do so by taxing products either of agriculture or industry before they enter interstate commerce, or otherwise to control their production merely because their production may directly affect interstate commerce."

"The issue is not, as the government contended, whether congress can appropriate funds for any purpose deemed by congress in furtherance of the 'general welfare,' but whether congress has any power to control or regulate matters left to the state and lay a special tax for that purpose."

Several hundred suits to enjoin collection of the processing taxes have been filed in Federal courts by processors. If they pay the taxes and the act is held unconstitutional by the Supreme court, they will not be able to recover, under a provision of the pending amendments prohibiting recovery suits against the government.

The New Orleans opinion on the TVA affecting electric utility holders, consumers and prospective consumers, reversed a finding by Judge W. L. Grubb of the northern District court of Alabama.

Judge Grubb enjoined 17 Alabama municipalities from using federal funds to acquire electric power plants, contending that "TVA was engaged in illegal competition with the Alabama Power company."

The Circuit court, conceding that the project was launched primarily as a power supply for manufacturing of munitions in war time, asserted it was within the "province of congress to adopt any reasonable means" to dispose of surplus power not needed in peace time.

THOMAS D. SCHALL, the blind senator from Minnesota, has been one of the sharpest tongued critics of the administration in the senate. Recently he described President Roosevelt as a "megalomaniac," and though the word was subsequently eliminated from the Record, the Democratic senators were decidedly miffed. So a little later Senators Robinson, Black and Bone found opportunity to tell Schall what they think of him and to demand that he conform to the rules of "decency."

The argument started when Schall had read by a clerk an editorial from a Texas editor, and an address of his own—all critical of the administration.

Robinson protested. He asserted "when one whose moral obligations are so great as are those of the senator from Minnesota, it becomes necessary for some one to object." He added Schall "cannot shield himself behind an unfortunate affliction."

The Schall speech said President Roosevelt was imitating Mussolini, and that Ben Cohen, an administration aid and bill drafter, had "assumed the legislative functions usurped by the Executive."

Robinson called Schall the "misrepresentative from Minnesota" and expressed the opinion the senator had "employed" some one to write his speeches.

"It is small business and only could be done by a man of small mentality," said the Arkansas senator.

Replying, Schall said, "If the people knew what was behind this government they would not stand for it a minute."

TWENTY months of apparently futile moves to revitalize the commercial relations between the United States and Russia, and then suddenly Washington announces that the two nations had concluded a one-year trade agreement under which Soviet Republics agreed to increase their American imports by 150 per cent. In return for purchases of $30,000,000 worth of American goods Russia is to be granted wide tariff concessions by the United States.

Russia will buy railroad equipment, machinery for making new automobile models and other products of heavy industry. In addition the Soviets will buy cotton. The railroad equipment is needed badly for modernization of a weak transportation system.

In return Russia expects to sell sausage casings, certain grades of iron ore, manganese, furs and dairy products in large quantities to the United States.

The pact, concluded by the exchange of notes between Ambassador Bullitt in Moscow and Maxim Litvinov, commissar for foreign affairs, provides for no further loans to Russia and makes no mention of the more than $700,000,000 in debts contracted by former Russian governments. It is in line with Secretary Hull's policy of trade agreements. For these two reasons especially it is attacked by many Republicans and not a few Democrats in congress. Senator Pat McCarrren of Nevada was one of the angriest of these gentlemen. He declared Secretary Hull was a "prize diplomatic dupe" and announced that he would demand an immediate modification of the reciprocal tariff act to rescind powers under which Hull is negotiating such treaties.

Key Pittman, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, also is earnestly opposed to Hull's trade program.

SENATOR J. HAMILTON LEWIS of Illinois, a member of the foreign relations committee, long has urged that Great Britain be persuaded to cede to the United States her island possessions in the Caribbean sea in the West Indies, the senator said, are both useful as defense and necessary as protection for the United States. They "could be seized in time of war between nations fighting among themselves to possess the Caribbean and Southern seas. They would be used as the backyard of the United States from which supplies could be stored to be used in assault on America."

The senator also suggested that England surrender all rights she claims to privileges of constructing a Nicaraguan canal, recalling, as a precedent, that England compelled France to yield all claims to territory adjacent to the Suez canal.

GEORGE WILLIAM RUSSELL, known to the world of letters as "AE," is dead at Bournemouth, England, at the age of sixty-eight. He was one of the brightest stars of modern Ireland. Though famous especially as a poet, Russell was versatile, being a painter, editor, business man, organizer and one of the founders of the noted Abbey theater in Dublin.

This is a very rushing season on the farm, some corn is still being cultivated, grain binders are going day and night and second cutting of alfalfa is awaiting cutting. A nice rain is needed badly for corn which is at the critical stage when moisture is needed. Gardens are suffering.

The oat crop is good but most wheat is not worth the twine. Rust caused by superfluous moisture and excessive heat during the growing season grew tall straw but was minus the grain.

Miss Laurene Volt spent last week with her cousin, Nadine Urban.

Lumir Cadek and Charles Mraz are helping Charles Krikac during the rush season.
