

ORD MUNY PLANTS HOLD OPEN HOUSE

Diesel Equipment Now Installed; 52 Years Of Progress

History of Muny Ownership Of Water, Light Systems As Compiled from Records.

Pure water in inexhaustible quantity, light, available at any hour of the day or night by the mere pressing of a button! To most of us these things are commonplace of our daily existence. They are provided at extremely low cost by Ord's municipal water and light plants, we use them as we use other modern conveniences, without regard for the years of thought and labor or the expenditure of money from which they evolved.

Next week when Ordites visit their light and water plants, as many will do in response to the "open house" invitation extended by Mayor Gould B. Flagg and the city councilmen, Commissioner George Allen and his assistants, they will see two of the most modern and efficient such plants in the state of Nebraska.

No Water Famine Now.

So far as Ord is concerned the days of water famine are over—in fact, to most of the present generation they are not even held in memory. They began back in 1884 when first steps were taken to provide a municipal water supply by the then tiny village of Ord, to supplant wells theretofore sunk by each individual householder. They ended in 1928 when the present filtering plant was constructed.

How many people who read this article will realize that, first and last, providing for a municipal supply of water in Ord has cost the vast sum of $125,000.00 or more, the exact amount being impossible to ascertain because part of the city council's records for early years are missing?

When constructed in 1928 Ord's present filtering plant cost less than $40,000 and has been eminently satisfactory but for forty-five years previously Ord city councils had been experimenting with different types of pumps and pumping plants and in their experiments almost $100,000 was spent.

Muny Light Plant in 1914.

Just as Ord's water shortage was permanently ended in 1928 so has the city's artificial lighting problem been satisfactorily settled, although Ord's city-owned light plant is younger by some thirty years than its water plant. Yes, Ord had electricity before 1914 but it was supplied by privately owned plants on a 14-hour per day basis and not until the comparatively recent year of 1918 was 24-hour service established in this city.

Unlike municipal ownership of a water system, Ord's light plant has given satisfaction both on the grounds of cost and efficiency ever since it was purchased back in 1914. From the start it has been more than self-supporting.

Believing that the "open house" invitation extended to all citizens for next week by Ord's municipal plants provides an ideal time for discussion of a subject in which all Ordites living in Ord or vicinity should be interested, this newspaper with the assistance of Light Commissioner Allen has delved into minutes of council meetings from 1884 until the present time and thus is able to present an accurate history of the development of municipal ownership in Ord.

Arcadia Boy Badly Hurt in Car Crash

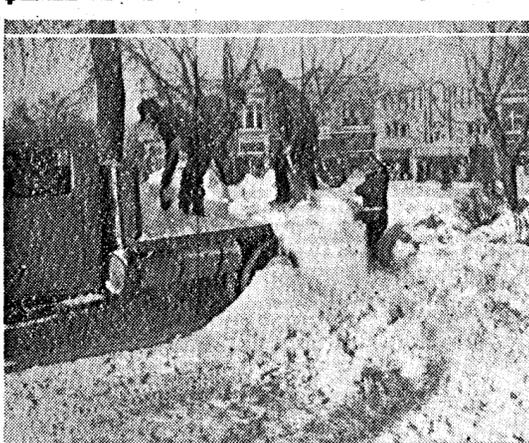

Arcadia—(Special)—Billy, 13-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Murray, will lose the sight of his left eye as result of injuries sustained when the car in which he was riding Friday evening hit a truck near the Roy Woodworth farm. Several of his teeth were knocked out, his nose was almost severed and he suffered other injuries. His brother, James, who was driving, was only slightly injured.

The lights of their car had gone out and they were trying to make the Woodworth farm, where they planned to make repairs, when they met a truck that also was proceeding without lights. The truck was driven by a North Loup man. Both truck and car were greatly damaged.

The Murray boy was taken to Hastings for treatment by Dr. Foote, who says he will lose the sight of one eye.

Ord Finds Way To Handle Snow Problem

For the second time this winter snow was hauled off business streets of Ord Tuesday and dumped in the court house yard, where it will make the green grass greener next spring. Monday's blizzard left so much snow around the square that visitors to Ord could find no parking places until several shoveling gangs went to work. In this picture by H. E. Jones is shown one of the trucks being unloaded.

Blizzard Monday Is Called Worst Since '15; Still Sub-Zero

Six Inches Snow Fell, Mercury At Zero Mark, Wind Strong; Cold Will Continue

The worst storm since 1915, was what oldsters said Monday when six inches of snow fell in Ord, accompanied by a strong north wind and temperatures that hovered between 8 below zero and 4 above zero all day. The blizzard was intensified by the 18 inches of snow already carpeting the ground from previous storms, much of it still loose.

Drifts five and six feet deep were common Monday night when the blizzard blew itself out, only main highways were open and train service to Ord was many hours late.

Maintenance men worked through the storm on state highways but drifts formed faster than they could be cut away and many trucks and cars were stalled between Burwell and Grand Island.

Roads Badly Drifted. All laborers available were hired by state, county and city to shovel snow Tuesday on highways and streets and by night most main-traveled roads were unblocked. So badly are cross-roads drifted that they probably will not be open until spring.

Tuesday the Union Pacific's morning motor into Ord did not arrive until 1:00 p. m. and the Burlington's morning train was even later. A rotary snow plow was sent up ahead of the Burlington train.

"Roads and driving conditions are the worst I've seen in fourteen years of carrying the mail," said J. D. McCall, veteran Ord rural carrier, when he returned late Monday afternoon from a vain attempt to get around his long mail route. None of the Ord carriers got more than half-way around his route Tuesday.

13 Days of Zero Weather.

According to Horace Travis, the government weather man here, yesterday was the twelfth consecutive day of sub-zero weather and the fifteenth consecutive day since temperature has risen above the freezing mark. He furnishes the following record of high and low points reached since January 29:

	High	Low
January 30....	8	-2
January 31....	12	-14
February 1....	8	-3
February 2....	10	-2
February 3....	4	-3
February 4....	5	-20
February 5....	9	-13

Weather forecast for today is continued cold with snow probable, which indicates there will be no relief from present record-breaking weather for some time to come.

Holden Sale Postponed.

Frank Holden's clean-up sale advertised for Monday had to be postponed because of the blizzard and will be held next Monday, February 10.

Tickets For Civic Banquet Will Go On Sale Friday

Sponsoring Organizations Hope For Attendance of 250 to Hear Jimmy Lawrence.

An attendance of 250 men and women at the civic banquet to be held at the Ord high school auditorium Monday evening, Feb. 10 is hoped for by sponsoring organizations, the Chamber of Commerce, Rotary club and Business and Professional Women's club. Ticket selling will commence tomorrow.

Light Plant Completed.

There are two reasons for the banquet being held at this time, one being that the Chamber of Commerce holds a banquet annually upon completion of its membership drive, which is under way this week. Another reason is that the Ord electric plant recently completed installation of its new diesel equipment, is one of the most modern municipal plants in Nebraska, and city officials naturally desire to acquaint Ord people with the efficiency of the city plant and celebrate completion of the big job of installing and testing the new equipment. Civic organizations, cooperating with Mayor Flagg, the council, therefore decided to hold a huge civic banquet and invite as speaker Editor Lawrence, one of Nebraska's foremost advocates of municipal ownership.

J. W. Liberski Files In Unicameral Race

J. W. Liberski, perennial candidate for political office from the Elvira territory, threw his hat into the race for the unicameral legislature Tuesday when he mailed his filing fee to the secretary of state at Lincoln. Mr. Liberski has been a candidate for one political office or another in almost every election in the past 20 years but so far has always fallen short of the goal, although he usually receives many votes.

Legion Convention To Ord In 1937 Is Desire of Ord Post

Delegates to 1936 Meeting In Ravenna Will Issue Ord's Hearty Invitation.

Cecil Clark, Alfred Weigardt and Ign. Kilma, jr., delegates of Fidelity Post No. 33, American Legion, to the annual Legion and Auxiliary district convention being held at Ravenna next Monday, go there charged with the duty of bringing the 1937 convention to Ord.

About 250 people usually attend the annual District 6 convention and there is no reason why Ord should not entertain capably a convention of this size, the Ord post believes.

Delegates to Ravenna will carry with them letters of invitation from the Ord chamber of commerce, Rotary club and city council, pledging the resources of these organizations as well as of the Ord Legion and Auxiliary posts to make the 1937 convention successful should it be awarded to Ord.

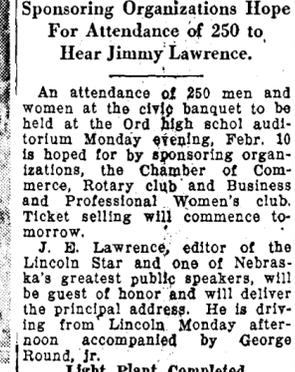

World War Veterans Plan Ways Of Spending Bonus Cash

When House and Senate passed the Bonus bill over the President's veto last week these Ord veterans of the World War, in common with dozens of others in this community, gave three cheers and began planning ways of spending the bonus money they will receive next June. Asked by Quiz Photographer H. E. Jones how he planned to spend his money, Alfred Weigardt (left) said: "I have a couple of lots in Ord picked out with the idea of building a home in the future." Cecil Clark (center) says he intends to buy a new truck. "Man, if I tell you what I'm going to do with the money every car salesman in the county will be on my trail," he said. Carl Sorensen (right) says chances are he will keep the bonds but if he does sell them he has plenty of places where he can use the money to advantage.

Train and Truck Collide on Ord Crossing

A 2½ ton load of coal was unloaded quickly and with the greatest of ease on east J street Tuesday morning when the Union Pacific motor, leaving Ord, collided with a truck driven by Lisle Hunter. Coal was strewn all over the street and the truck smashed up considerably, as this picture by H. E. Jones proves. Neither train nor truck was going very fast or damage might have been worse. And if the front end of Hunter's truck had not hit the switch shown in this picture and thereby deflected off the track the damage might have been worse also. It was a bloodless accident, neither young Hunter nor his father, R. O. Hunter, who was riding with him, being injured.

WPA Worker Jailed, Two Others Fined. In spite of the blizzard Monday morning's grist of police court business was the heaviest Judge John L. Andersen has handled in a long time. Anton Wegryzn, a WPA worker charged with drunkenness, was sentenced to serve ten days in jail at hard labor, Norval Loft was fined $10 for intoxication and Paul Gard was fined $5.00 for assault and battery upon Frank Rysavy. All plead guilty.

Camps at Brownsville, Tex., But Takes Trip Across Border To See Foreign Life.

Brownsville, Texas. Dear Quiz: This is Sunday, January 26. We arrived here yesterday at about 5 p. m. and drove at once to the postoffice hoping it would be open so we could get our mail, but found that, like Corpus Christi, the postoffice closed at 1 p. m. and no chance to get mail till Monday.

After taking our disappointment at the postoffice, we enquired for the cabin camps and made the rounds, and after visiting four and finding them all full, we started back out of town, found one lone cottage left in the Country Club tourist court. It is right in a grapefruit grove and for supper we had some grapefruit just as fresh as it is possible to get it for it was only five minutes from the tree to our supper table. As I write I can see bushels of it hanging on the three or four trees just outside. It is 3 p. m. as I write.

Ord Cagers Wallop Two More Victims

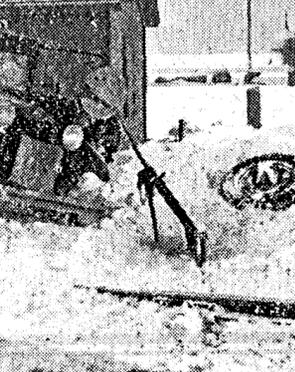

Ravenna and Arcadia are the two latest victims found by Coach H. F. Brockman and his Ord high school basketball team. Friday night on the Ravenna court Ord won, 31 to 16, and Tuesday night on the local floor Ord beat Arcadia 34 to 21. In the Ravenna clash Coach Brockman used his substitutes freely and in the Arcadia encounter he used first and second teams and also a group of sophomores that he hopes will develop into a winning combination next year. Friday night the Ord team plays at Hastings.

Farmers Meet Tomorrow.

Annual meeting of stockholders of the Farmers Grain & Supply Company will be held at the Bohemian hall in Ord tomorrow, Friday, Feb. 7, weather permitting.

North Loup Woman Died 4 Hours Later, Son Will Recover

Mrs. John Yost Crushed Under Wheels When Christoffersen Truck Caught Afire.

Mrs. John Yost, 30, of North Loup, was fatally injured Saturday when she leaped from a burning truck and was crushed beneath its wheels. The accident happened about noon on the Peterson corner six miles south of Ord. Mrs. Yost passed away at 5:30 p. m. in the Ord hospital where she was attended by Dr. C. J. Miller.

Also hurt in the unusual accident was Stanley, 5-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Yost, who was thrown from the truck cab by his mother and landed on his head on the icy highway, cutting a deep gash in the back of his head. He will recover, doctors say.

Driver Painfully Burned.

Elmer Christoffersen, driver of the truck, suffered second degree burns of the face and hands while he was extinguishing the flames by throwing snow on them. He was attended by Dr. F. A. Barta.

The Yost family had been living on a farm six miles north of North Loup but Saturday were moving to Ord to occupy the Mrs. Robert Nay house, which they had rented.

Young Christoffersen, a commercial trucker, was hauling their household goods to Ord and in the truck were riding Mr. and Mrs. Yost and their five children.

In the cab with the driver was Mrs. Yost, who held in her arms her one-year-old son, Howard Stanley, 5, sat between Mrs. Yost and Christoffersen. Mr. Yost and the other three children, Billy, 8, Arlette, 7, and Donald, 3, were riding in the truck box atop the furniture.

Slipped, Fell Under Wheels.

Near the Peterson corner footboards of the truck burst into flames perilously close to the gasoline tank and although the truck was proceeding at a 30-mile speed Mrs. Yost threw open the truck door and leaped out with the baby in her arms, first throwing her son Stanley out. Her feet slipped on the icy road and she fell beneath the truck, the back wheels passing over her body. The baby was not injured.

In attempting to avoid striking Mrs. Yost, the driver ran his truck into the ditch at the left side of the road.

Christoffersen and Mr. Yost leaped out and while the latter ran to the assistance of his wife and son, the driver put out the flames before they could destroy truck and furniture. Mrs. Yost and Stanley were brought to the Ord Hospital by Devillo Fish, who was a short distance behind the truck and saw the accident.

Radiator Alcohol Ignited.

Blaze in the truck engine is believed to have resulted when the heater hose dropped onto the manifold, was burned in two pieces and alcohol in the radiator ignited. All wiring and hose connections were destroyed but otherwise the truck was not greatly damaged. The Anderson wrecker towed it to Ord Saturday afternoon.

At first it was thought Mrs. Yost might have been struck by the truck box, which protruded about three feet, but before she died she told her husband that the truck ran over her. Her body was held in the Sowl funeral parlors Saturday night and Sunday was taken to Scottia for burial.

She was a daughter of Mr. Hepp, former section employee on the Union Pacific railroad here, who is now living in Columbus. Her niece, Miss Audrey Colby, is employed at the Mower restaurant in Ord. She was also related to the Arthur Willoughby family at North Loup.

Meat Market Repainting.

Frank Fryzek and his son began Monday the work of redecorating the interior of Pecena & Perlinski's meat market. White paint is being used and when completed the market will present a most attractive appearance.

Flynn Sale Postponed.

Because of road conditions, the clean-up sale advertised for Wednesday, Feb. 5 by Frank Flynn and James Misko has been postponed until Thursday, February 20. Watch next week's issue for further announcement.

Ravenna Will Entertain Legion

American Legion and Auxiliary members of this city will be interested in the fact that plans are now under way to make the sixth District American Legion Convention to be held at Ravenna February 10th, one of the outstanding District Conventions of the state. Members from all over the sixth district are invited to attend.

Besides the business sessions, there will be plenty of entertainment.

Ord's Municipal Waterworks Began in 1884, Muny Light Plant Bought in 1914; a History Compiled from Minutes of Ord City Council

1900 and presented views as to the best method of improving Ord's waterworks. That July a resolution was passed that a steam plant be purchased for the waterworks and that contract be entered into with U. S. Supply company pursuant to sale of bonds.

Pump, Boilers Bought.
It was decided in October to build a pump house and install engines and then await the coming of spring for installation of pipe. A contract for the pump house went to J. A. Wentworth at $900 and for pumps, boiler and auxiliaries to Fairbanks-Morse Company for $1,820.

In January 1901 the Fairbanks-Morse company was granted a franchise for an electric light plant, further information concerning this plant not being available from the minutes. This is the first mention of an electric franchise in the minutes since Mr. Dings presented his proposition, which was postponed, back in 1889. Whether something in connection with an electric plant occurred during the 1890-99 period when minutes are missing cannot be discovered.

The yearly report on waterworks in April 1901 showed that in that year 5,075 feet of 8 inch main had been laid at a cost of $7,218.29 and that receipts had paid running expenses to the water department, but in May the city ordinance was amended making the fine $3.00 instead of $1.00 for using water before and after time, again indicating a serious water shortage in Ord.

Two Franchises Given.
In June of 1902 the city council granted a franchise to the Ord Light and Fuel Company for establishment of a gas plant, which was followed shortly by granting of a franchise to Jas. Barta for an electric light plant.

Mayor Perry, in his annual message to the council in June 1903, asked for an appropriation for 10 to 12 street lights and also asked that a large dug well be installed at the water works, which again brings water shortage into the picture.

The following year, in his outgoing message Mayor Perry recommended an increase in the annual minimum charge for water from $5.00 to $6.00 per year and the incoming mayor, Otto Murschel, said: "We are forced to recognize a possible insufficiency in our water supply." He recommended that the supply be improved by driving points or digging a well.

Ord's first electric street lights apparently went into use in November or December of 1904 because the city at that time contracted with the electric light company for four arc lights at $6.40 per month for a period of two years.

In February 1905 a boiler was purchased for the waterworks and Mayor Murschel stated in his address: "We now have facilities for pumping large quantities of water but do not have the water to pump; some plan must be devised for a larger supply." At the same meeting a franchise was granted to the Ord Drainage Company.

Mayor Murschel in 1906, stated: "We have succeeded in placing pipe over Dane Creek in such a way that there is little danger of recurrence of accident which twice occurred this year. We should add points so that a larger volume of water may be supplied." In September the old points in the wells were cleaned and new ones added.

Street Lights Installed.
A franchise to the Ord Electric Light and Power Company was granted in 1907 and the company was authorized to light streets for one month with the gas company lighting them the following month, purpose evidently being to test which method was most economical and efficient. Evidently electricity won out for the following month after these tests a contract for five years was given the electric company for street lighting, rate at 32 cp. lamp at $2.25 month or all energy metered at 10c per kilowatt hour.

At this meeting Dr. C. C. Shepard was named city physician, from the record being the first to hold this office.

In July 1908 a contract was awarded Goodhand and Jensen for constructing the second rectangular reservoir at a price of $2,900, a fee of $50 having been paid for plans and specifications.

The year 1909 found Bussell Park being accepted by ordinance from its donor, James B. Bussell, but even more important to students of municipal ownership was the following statement by the mayor and waterworks committee: "Points in wells have been cleaned and wells are not producing enough water. Have had man pumping nights and if water continues to get shorter other steps should be taken."

Voters Reject Light Plant.
Evidently because continued to get shorter water in 1910 the waterworks committee again reported: "Having trouble getting enough water to supply city, even when man pumping nights—causing well on south side of creek furnishes 3 inch stream and it is recommended that we put down more like it." A report by the special electric engineer said: "The Ord electric plant is worth $14,050. Mr. Michelsen reports he would accept $14,000." Based on this report, a special election was called on Jan. 3, 1911 to vote on purchase of the plant but the election failed to carry.

The water shortage continued, as did expense of producing enough to anywhere near supply the city's needs, as proved by the fact that in July 1911 water meters were required and the yearly minimum charge raised from $6.00 to $10.00. Mr. Cummings made a report of the council setting out cost of putting down wells and connecting pipes.

In 1912 Wright and Collison appeared before the city council and made a proposition for pumping city water, the city to furnish a cistern, air lift pump and motor driven pumps, also to build a line from the mill to the waterworks. In July of that year a committee of councilmen visited Albion and investigated their water system.

"Large Well the Solution."
Water remained the big problem confronting Ord's council in 1913 and the council voted unanimously for a steam boiler and pump at the waterworks instead of an oil engine. In March they contracted with Fairbanks-Morse for a boiler and pumps, price being $1,556.70. Mayor J. C. Work's address in May stated: "I am convinced that a large well is the solution to water problems and recommend that steps be taken to that end."

In June of that year the city had in operation four 10 inch wells and two 6-inch wells, but quantity of sand drawn from wells indicated the necessity for a clear well or settling cistern. Engineer Standeven, of Omaha, was employed to prepare plans and specifications for such a clear well.

A. Anderson made the motion, which was passed, that the city attorney take proper steps to submit proposition for water and light plants to voters and at this time Mr. Archibald was employed to test the city wells.

Electric Bonds Issued.
In 1914 the Ord Electric Company offered a proposition to sell their plant to the city and it was placed on file on March 5. A week later petitions were presented to the council requesting that the proposition of issuing $18,000 water bonds, $5,000 lighting bonds and $7,000 city hall bonds be submitted to the people for a vote. In April, as result of this election, the water and lighting bonds carried while the city hall bonds lost.

That May plans were approved and advertising started for bids on waterworks improvement and Mr. Archibald was granted a contract for construction of two wells guaranteeing 300 gallons per minute from each well at a price of $1,490. A petition signed by W. W. Haskell and others asked that Archibald's contract be submitted to vote of the people, which was done and the election carried. The Archibald wells, when installed, did not deliver the guaranteed volume of water, however, and were rejected.

Light plant plans continued and that June an agreement was reached that the light plant be located on C. B. & Q. ground. This was the official beginning of Ord's city plant, since added to and improved many times, and today both water and light plants occupy this location on leased ground.

Contracts Let in 1915.
Early in 1915 plans and specifications for city water and light plants were prepared by Bruce and Standeven, engineers, were accepted in July and advertising for bids started. Bids were received and rejected in August, again received and contracts let as follows: Alamo Engine Company, for pump and motors, $2,773; for pump house, $801; Merkle Machinery Co., boiler, engine and dynamos, $8,600. The Alamo company assigned its pump contract to Merkle and its building and foundation contracts to F. E. Glover, who later also got the chimney contract for $970 and power house building for $5,500.00. A car of poles was ordered from Sack Lumber Co. and Western Electric got an order for line material for a line from the water plant to the power plant at $746.00.

In 1916 Ord's first complete street lighting system material and labor was contracted for with Johnson Electric Company for $5,625 and by motion it was decided to locate electroliters in center of the street.

That August came another crisis in the affairs of the water plant. The city engineer reported "Wells deliver only 100 gallons per minute with suction pumps and said pumps have capacity of 200 gallons per minute, therefore it becomes necessary to install air lift pumps and clear well to settle sand from the water from where it can be delivered to the reservoir by centrifugal pumps."

No Water for Fires.
The Johnson company finished the street lighting system with an additional charge of $1,089.37 for line added during construction. Late in August R. W. Gass, city engineer, reported "Wells do not supply enough water for lawns and household use let alone a supply for fire protection." He recommended installation of "such equipment as may be necessary for all purposes." Acting on this recommendation the council in September contracted with Chicago Pneumatic Tool company for compressor and air lift pumps, the consideration being $1,934.50, which was later settled at $1,400. Archibald's two wells had been accepted at $650.

In 1917 Ord's infant electric plant, which hitherto had been producing power only for city use and street lighting, began in earnest to attempt to supply commercial needs. That January, a contract for engineering of a given electrical lighting system was given Electrical Development Company, of Sioux City, and in April the council passed a motion to wire the square and furnish power to the capacity of the plant for commercial purposes at not less than 4c per kilowatt hour, and to furnish same only when plant was operating for municipal purposes.

Beaux and Belles Of the Future

William Arthur May, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter May of Arcadia will be a year old July 7.

James Misko's meat market is said to have been the first power customer of the city plant.

Buy Hallen Plant Also.
That July an option was acquired from Peter Hallen, owner of the Ord Electric Company, subject to vote of the people, to purchase line and plant for $7,000. Bonds for $30,000 were approved by vote of the people for buying this company and building a distribution system and in October contracts to the total of $35,017.91 were let for commercial lighting system and addition to the power plant.

The E. O. R. A. G. Engineering Company was employed to run gader lines and also to design a sewer system. The city's first light and water commissioner was employed in the person of C. O. Lund, whose wife, Mary, also was employed as bookkeeper.

Ord's municipal plant was now in the electric business in earnest, had eliminated competition and on August 14, 1918 the council passed a motion establishing continuous 24-hour service. The city's lighting problems were solved temporarily but the water shortage continued and was destined to remain a problem for another ten years.

In 1918 another $15,000 of water extension bonds were voted and a well contracted for with the Kelly Well Co., of Grand Island, for $3,250 but the company's guaranteed quantity was not delivered and the well was settled for at $2,250. A Pomona pump for this well cost the city $3,321.

Water Cost $850 Monthly.
When Mayor James Misko made his annual report in 1920 he said: "Water production cost has increased from $320 per month to $850 per month because of inefficiency in pumping layout due to distance of waterworks from the center of distribution, transmission loss of power to waterworks, inefficiency of air lift pumps and added cost of twice pumping the water." He stated that a large well near the power plant, pumping directly into main, would reduce costs 40 per cent.

That year a water extension contract was awarded to the Hammen-Kruse Construction company for enlarging and additional mains around square and electroliters were removed from street center to curb line. F. E. Glover constructed the building over the Kelly well for $2,440. In 1921 the White fire truck was bought at a total cost of $6,233.

The years 1923, 1924 and 1925 were successful years for Ord's light plant, $10,000 of light bonds being paid from the light fund in 1923 and $12,500 in 1924 and a boiler costing $2,900 being installed at the light plant. In 1925 electric rates were reduced and balance of light bonds were taken up.

The city's water troubles continued and in 1924 the council signed a contract with the Sickle Water Production Co. for a 500-gallon well which was settled for at $6,000 in 1925 when the well failed to meet a production guarantee.

In 1927 the city contracted for a Skinner engine for the light plant, total cost being $17,492 and in 1928 the electric fund paid off $8,255.25 in paving district warrants. That summer another revision of electric rates was made.

Filtering Plant Authorized.
This was one of the most important years in Ord's history of municipal ownership for that year voters authorized issuance of $34,000 of 4-1-2 per cent bonds for the construction of a water purification plant, referred to elsewhere in this article as the city's filtering plant. The vote was 249 for and 83 against. A contract was awarded to the M & N Construction Co., for $37,900 for erection of the plant and work got under way at once.

More improvements in the electric plant were made in 1929 when two stokers were bought from the Riley Stoker Company for $4,459.00 and a concrete stack 125 feet high, 4-1-2 feet in diameter was contracted for with the Weber Chimney Co., at $5,280. On July 23 of that year a very sad and unfortunate accident cost the lives of W. E. Wolters and Percy Norman, who were electrocuted as they worked on the city's lines. E. C. Love served for seven months in Mr. Wolters' place and then George Allen, of Friend, was employed as manager of the city light and water plants, a position he still holds.

In February 1930 another reduction in electric rates was made, followed by another reduction in May 1931. At this time also the electric fund canceled $8,000 water extension bonds held by it as an investment.

Black & Veatch, of Kansas City, Mo., were employed in November to survey the electric plant with a view to increasing its efficiency and their report was delivered in January 1932. In 1933 Black & Veatch were employed to prepare plans and specifications for installation of one oil engine in plant, an ordinance was passed authorizing this improvement and then plans were dropped awaiting development of the North Loop Public Power and Irrigation district. That November the electric department installed lighting for the football field at Bussell park, except reflectors furnished by the schools.

In April 1934 the council caused to be cancelled $11,000 worth of paving intersection bonds held as an investment in the electric bond fund and also transferred $2,000 from the electric fund to a paving repair fund for the purpose of repairing paving around the square. That November a discount of 20 per cent was authorized by the council on all electric bills paid before the 10th of the month following service. At the same meeting a motion was passed to investigate the cost and feasibility of installing Diesel power.

Not long afterwards appeared a representative of Butler Bros., of St. Paul, Minn., describing and offering their Diesel plant at Crosby, Minn., for sale. Black & Veatch prepared plans and specifications for oil engines at the plant and on Jan. 14, 1935 bids were received and contract awarded to Butler Bros., for their plant in the amount of $39,000, which later was reduced $1,000 for cash payment and $584 due to failure to meet fuel guarantee during test.

Enviably Financial Shape.
Ord's municipal light plant has paid off all its bonded indebtedness, $9,000 in water extension bonds, $8,255.25 in paving intersection warrants, $11,550 paving bonds, $2,000 for street repair, $825 material for playground lighting, $1,000 for civic improvement and at present has no bonded indebtedness, a cash and bond balance of approximately $20,000 with an electric rate that is unusually low and service much above the average.

Incidental to installation of the Diesel engines the plant's first and second steam engines have been removed and sold for $2,000 the first going to San Francisco for laundry service and the other to the Carnation Milk Company at Hillsboro, O.

With removal of these engines much deferred maintenance work has been done at the light plant.

New windows have been installed in the engine room, adding greatly to the natural lighting, the switchboard has been moved and modernized and is now so arranged that any section may be removed from the circuit and isolated to be repaired safely in case of trouble. Paint and varnish have been liberally used at the plant also.

Water System Efficient.
From the above history it will be seen that Ord's electric plant must be efficient in the extreme to pay off bonds, install new equipment, maintain a cash balance and at the same time supply such excellent service at extremely low rates. Ord's water system, since it was modernized in 1928 by construction of a purification system using the North Loop river as a source of supply, also is extremely efficient as the following figures will show.

This plant is starting on the eighth year of operation and has gone through the extreme demands imposed upon it by the drought and searing heat of the season of 1934 and it delivered all the water Ord could use, without restrictions of any nature.

The peak daily demand then was 397,000 gallons which required the use of only one-half of its pumping capacity for 13-1-2 hours of the day. What a contrast between that showing and the many years of water shortage, when almost every year found new and more expensive expedients being tried in an effort to secure more water!

The pumping capacity of Ord's water plant is 60,000 gallons of water per hour, or 1,440,000 gallons per day, which capacity is a great deal over anticipated requirements for years to come.

New Water Mains Laid.
An adequate supply, furnishing of pure, palatable water with 4-7 grains of hardness, is a great asset to any community. Since 1930 there has been no levy to support the waterworks and money previously spent in developing uncertain water supply has been used to improve the water distribution system. To this end, since 1930, 1,075 feet of eight inch main, 5,187 feet of six inch main and 6,324 feet of four inch main, as well as 1,500 feet of smaller pipe, has been installed, also eleven new fire hydrants and many valves. These have been paid for from water receipts. The system has been extended to many places that formerly were dependent upon wells, including Bussell park and the Ord cemetery. Last year a reduction was made in water rates, which are now fairly comparable with those existing in other communities.

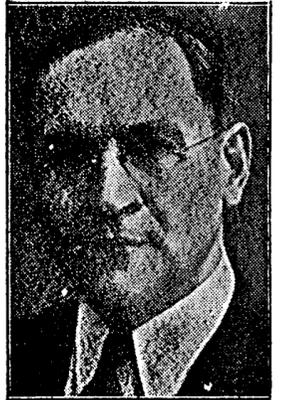

After reading this history and learning the various steps in the "trial and error" method by which Ord's utilities necessarily developed to the present state of efficiency, Ord citizens should be interested in inspecting their light and water plants.

Of course visitors are always welcome but next week, particularly, Light Commissioner Allen and his assistants are prepared to welcome visitors and guide them through the plants, explaining the various items of equipment and their functions.

The welcome sign is out; it is hoped Ord citizens will heed its message.

World's Most Dangerous Road
The world's most dangerous road is the Karakorum route over the Himalaya mountains between Chinese Turkestan and India. It reaches 18,000 feet in height, says Collier's Weekly, and for long distances is very rocky and only a foot or two in width. However, caravans travel it regularly despite the fact that on each trip they lose about 40 per cent of their animals, most of which are killed by falling over cliffs.

THE COOK'S COL-YUM, YUM!

In this day and age there are still many homes where so much butchering is done and so much material for soap accumulates that the housewife very rightly wants to make use of it, and create her own fine soap.

Home Made Soap. Put fifteen pounds cracklings in an iron boiler, add three cans lye and one and one-half gallons of water. Boil one hour, remove from stove and stir in one quart of salt.

Boiled Beets. Peel the beets, cut into slivers, put into a sauce pan with about one cup of water and two table-spoons butter. Cover tightly and cook for twenty minutes.

Fried Cabbage. Chop one medium head of cabbage fine, put two tablespoons melted drippings in a skillet, add cabbage, salt and pepper to taste.

Butterscotch Tapioca. Cook one-half cup tapioca, one and one-fourth cups dark brown sugar, one-eighth teaspoon salt, one tablespoon butter in three cups of hot milk in a double boiler for fifteen minutes, stirring often.

Apple Raisin Pie. Peel, core and grind enough apples for one cup, add one-half cup ground raisins, one-fourth cup chopped walnuts, one cup sugar. Mix well together and bake between two crusts.

Washington Digest

NATIONAL TOPICS INTERPRETED
By William Bruckart

NATIONAL PRESS BLDG. WASHINGTON, D. C.

Washington.—The American Liberty League has laid aside its swaddling clothes and has put on long pants in the field of politics.

Although comparatively new as a group and promoted consistently as non-partisan, the league can now be said to have plunged headlong into the political warfare. If its first big rally can stand as a criterion, its influence is due to be felt in an important way in the forthcoming national elections.

This rally that really marked the league's campaign debut was a picturesque thing. It was picturesque first because of the time and the place and the very nature of the thing and the manner of approach to the voters of the country, but it was more picturesque and more important as well because the headline speaker was Alfred E. Smith, one time Democratic candidate for the Presidency, and by all odds the most colorful and pungent speaker of the present day. It was a dinner of more than 2,000 persons—from every state in the Union—and it was held in exactly the same rooms of the Mayflower hotel here where two weeks earlier President Roosevelt had addressed about the same number of persons at the Jackson day $50-a-plate dinner. As a further note of interest, attention might be called to the fact that the meeting was presided over by Borden Burr, a lifelong Alabama Democrat, and the other speakers were Dr. Neal Carothers, a southern Democrat, long head of the economics department of Lehigh university in Pennsylvania, and former Federal Judge Charles I. Dawson of Louisville, Ky., a Republican.

I referred above to Mr. Smith as being a colorful speaker, and from all of the comments I have heard, it seems to be the consensus that never has he justified the description better than in his league speech. He was introduced by Mr. Burr as "Al Smith of America," and proceeded to assure his audience that included millions listening by radio that he placed patriotism above party, that he was a candidate for no other office under the sun, that he had no ax to grind and that such critical shots as he might take were without personal animosity for anyone. But he did not pull his punches when he pilloried the New Deal and he showed no mercy when he drew the deadly parallel between the Democratic platform of 1932 and the policies which Mr. Roosevelt had carried through. I believe it may be said that he reached the peak of his speech when he laid on the speaker's stand copies of the Democratic platform of 1932 and the Socialist platform of the same year and in his best East-side twang he challenged anyone to deny that Mr. Roosevelt had been elected on a Democratic ticket and had carried out the Socialist promises.

The President's "breathing spell" utterance, his message to congress on the state of the Union, his staff of advisers, his monetary policies formed other meaty subjects which the former governor of New York picked to pieces in his own inimitable way. He begged congress to assert itself again and quoted from the Bible in his plea it should return to the father's house and be again one of the three branches of the federal government.

Through the speech was Mr. Smith's chosen theme that a great danger lies ahead, a danger that the New Deal will destroy everything which he held had made America the outstanding nation that it is. He accused the President of having arrayed class against class and asserted that what the nation faces is the most gigantic tax burden ever known. To this he added that it will not be the rich who will pay, but "that vast army of individuals with incomes from a hundred dollars a month to five thousand dollars a year."

Finally, in conclusion, Mr. Smith said: "Let me give this solemn warning: There can be only one capital, Washington or Moscow. There can be only one atmosphere of government, the clear, pure fresh air of free America, or the foul breath of communistic Russia. There can be only one flag, the Stars and Stripes, or the flag of the godless union of the Soviets. There can be only one national anthem, 'The Star-Spangled Banner' or 'The Internationale,' there can be only one victor. If our Constitution wins, we win. But if the Constitution—stop, stop here—the Constitution cannot lose."

But what of the significance of the league dinner and the Smith speech? Prior to the dinner, the league's executive council met in secret. Whether it committed the league to a definite stand was not formally announced, yet surely there are grounds upon which to base a statement that it means to support candidates and platforms on the conservative side.

With equal emphasis, it can be said that Mr. Smith has walked out on that section of the Democratic party that sticks by Mr. Roosevelt. He said it was a choice either to "put on the mantle of hypocrisy or we can take a walk." He explained it probably would be the latter course. And frankly it seems with the personal following that he has, a walkout by Mr. Smith cannot be described as otherwise than serious to the party from which that group is defected. It has all the earmarks of an interesting political situation.

Immediately after Mr. Smith had spoken, quite a few Democrats in congress fired back at him and in defense of the New Deal. Men like Representative Doughton of North Carolina, a Democratic wheelhorse as chairman of the powerful ways and means committee; Speaker Byrns and a flock of others. They insisted generally that the Smith barrage was more helpful to the Democrats than campaign speeches they themselves could make. Administration leaders in the executive department are beginning to fire also, but they are smart enough to let the enthusiasm aroused by the speech die down before they attempt to upset arguments advanced by Mr. Smith.

I have no doubt, from the signs even now cropping up, that an effort will be made in congress to discredit the league. It looks like Senator Black, Alabama Democrat and chairman of the senate lobby committee, probably will dig into the league's files to show how it was financed to a large extent by such wealthy men as the Duponts, among others. Such an investigation likewise will carry an undercurrent of a movement to do away with political influence of such men as John J. Raskob, former Democratic national chairman, a league director, and Jouett Shouse, former executive chairman of the Democratic national committee and the league president. If that fight gets started it will be a mudslinging beauty.

So, summarized, the picture resulting from the league's dinner is that of a major feud, as well as a major political movement, because there is a really bitter fight between personalities in sight as well as the possibilities of a third party movement.

Congress frequently goes off on a tangent in which it will set about exposing this or that or the other among the practices of private business. In the last several years it has been particularly active in exposing to public view secrets of corporations and individual representatives and senators have blown off much steam concerning salaries paid business executives and they have directed criticism at private business as well for some of its other expenditures.

A few years ago Senator Norris of Nebraska, among others, spoke at great length in criticism of our government's diplomatic service because of the salaries paid and the expenditures allowed for operation of our foreign diplomatic offices. The Norris attack apparently did considerable damage to the diplomatic service because it made many capable men fearful of entering that field where highly trained men are necessary.

But all of the time during which criticisms have been leveled at private business on account of salaries paid business executives and because of other expenses, the senate itself has been going ahead from year to year using taxpayers' money to suit its own purposes. For instance, Col. Edwin A. Halsey, secretary of the senate, lately has made public his annual report covering senate operation and it shows that the taxpayers' money to the extent of $3,296,852 had been spent for maintenance of that one branch of congress. There are 96 senators, each of whom has an office staff; there are some 30-odd committees in operation, each with a staff, and there is the regular senate organization with a large personnel. Consequently, salaries alone take up a considerable chunk of the total outlay, but Colonel Halsey's report disclosed that general "contingent expenses" of the senate had eaten up $701,000. Included in this total of "contingent expenses" was an item of $236,000 for the cost of senate investigations in the last year. Almost half of this amount was used by the munitions investigation committee headed by Senator Nye, Republican of North Dakota, who lately was made the subject of criticism on the senate floor because of his committee's attitude.

Georgia Benson Dies Suddenly

Miss Georgia Benson, 32, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Benson, died suddenly Thursday evening, January 30, at the home of her parents in Ord, death being due to a heart ailment from which she had suffered for many years. Her health, always frail, had been no worse than usual and her death as she was busily engaged in household duties came as a great shock to family and friends.

She was born in Horace, Greeley county, on October 29, 1903, moved to Ord with her family as a child, attended the Ord schools and spent most of her life in this community. She was a kind-hearted woman, always ready to help in time of need. Baptized in the Christian church at the age of 14, she remained a member of this congregation all her life.

Besides her parents she is mourned by six sisters, Mrs. E. M. Keown, of Pendleton, Ore., Mrs. V. P. Sheldon, of Iraan, Tex., Mrs. D. G. Horsman, of Honolulu, Hawaii, Miss Ruth Benson of Grand Island, Mrs. Velma Kohl and Miss Myrtle Benson, of Ord, and two brothers, Roger and Delbert, both of Ord. One brother, Percy, preceded her in death.

Funeral services were held Saturday at the Frazier chapel, Rev. S. A. Woodruff, jr., having charge, and the body was taken to Scotia cemetery for interment in the family lot.

How the 1935 Real and Personal Property Tax Dollar Is Divided in Valley County

Compiled by IGN. KLIMA, JR. County Clerk 1-28-36

From the foregoing diagrams, it will be noted that if your property is taxed outside of the limits of an incorporated city or village, that out of each 1934 direct property tax dollar which you pay at the office of the county treasurer, about .324c goes to the State for its activities, and about .676c remains in the County for the activities of its various subdivisions.

The .676c of this tax dollar remaining in the County is distributed among the various political subdivisions, and goes for the support of the activities of these subdivisions. The subdivisions outside of the limits of the incorporated towns, which participate in this .676c are the County, Townships and School Districts.

If your property is taxed inside the limits of a town, the situation is somewhat different and your tax dollar is divided in different proportions as you will see by the several diagrams. In addition to the State, County and Township governmental activities being supported and a larger proportion of the tax dollar going for the support of the town schools, you find that a portion goes for the support of the City or Village governmental activities which include the support of the street lights, cemetery, parks, band, fire department, water, paving, bonds, general fund, etc.

All of this is known as a direct real estate and/or personal property tax.

No portion of your property tax which you pay to the County Treasurer goes toward the support of the Federal Government in Washington. The Federal Government is supported by an indirect tax which includes estate or inheritance taxes, internal revenues on certain manufactured products or goods, tariffs or duties, income tax, occupation taxes and various departmental fees. This indirect tax catches all of us indirectly by the necessary inclusion of taxes in the cost of food, clothing, rent, merchandise, transportation and other necessities or goods obtained through the merchant, the landlord, the transportation companies and others who, themselves, are taxed.

Everybody should keep informed of the facts about taxes and their expenditures. Study your tax receipts and know where your tax dollars are going and what for.

Ord's Municipal Electric and Water Plants

Invite All Their Patrons To Inspect Them

SEE ORD'S NEW DIESEL OIL-BURNING ENGINES!

Comparative Cost of Generating Electrical Energy

Months of September, October, November and December

Kilowatts Generated	1934-Steam	1935 Diesel
	304,400	365,310
Fuel	$5,203.97	$1,936.48
Boiler Comp	40.00
Oil Waste Pckg.	253.90	130.00
Water	283.38	160.00
Labor	1,070.00	1,070.00
Total	$6,851.25	$3,292.48
Fuel cost k.w.h.	1.72c	.53c
Total cost k.w.h.	2.25c	1.11c

This comparison does not include any maintenance charge on either year as there were no expenditures in either case. It is a matter of experience that the cost of maintaining Diesel equipment only slightly exceed the same costs to maintain a steam plant, boilers, furnaces, stokers, engines and auxiliaries.

On January 4, 1935 the Diesel engines pictured above were purchased from Butler Bros. of St. Paul, Minn., contract price being $39,000, which later for reduced $1,000 for cash payment and $584 due to failure to meet fuel guarantee during tests, by a slight margin. They were installed during the summer of 1935, going into regular daily use in September. These oil-burning engines have reduced fuel costs per kilowatt hour from 1.72c to .53c and total cost per kilowatt hour from 2.25c to 1.11c. Diesel engines are regarded as ideal generating equipment for small and medium-sized electric plants and since their installation it may be truthfully stated that Ord's plant is as modern and efficient as any in Nebraska.

Inspect Ord's Water Purification Plant

In use seven years, Ord's water purification plant, using the North Loup River as a source of supply, has been satisfactory in every respect. Its construction at a cost of approximately $38,000 in 1928 came after years of experimentation with wells and pumps, costing over $100,000 in that period of time. In no year from 1884 until 1928 was Ord's water supply adequate for all uses with a sufficient quantity in reserve for fire protection. Now, with this purification plant, it is possible to pump 1,440,000 gallons per day should it be necessary, but the peak amount ever required in one day was 397,000 gallons. Ord people use all the water they want to for lawns and gardens, as well as for household uses. Water rates are low since the reduction made in 1935.

Ord's water purification plant is a marvel of scientific ingenuity and is well worth a tour of inspection.

The Latch String Is Out . . . We Want You To Come!

Ord's city officials, elected by vote of the people, invite citizens of this city to attend "open house" at the municipal light and water plants next week. They are proud of these modern and efficient plants, a pride that should be shared by every patron. Visit the plants next week, see how our water is pumped and purified, see how electric energy is generated by modern methods. Everything possible is being done to make your visit to the plants enjoyable and plant employes are prepared to guide visitors and explain how the equipment works. This is your invitation, so be there.

My Own Column

By H. D. Leggett

The people who run the camp are from Dallas and call that up north. They have been here three years. They both work, he in a big chain grocery and she in the immigration office at the border. It is only a 20 minute drive from our camp to the bridge across the river. These people who run the camp very kindly took their car and drove us over to Matamoras. We left here at 11 a. m. and got back at 3 p. m. It was a great treat to us and a great help to have guides who know the ropes.

Matamoras is a city of forty thousand, all Mexicans. There is only one paved street, the main street. All the streets are narrow; all are rough; all are dirty. The people live in or back of their places of business. All garbage is thrown out onto the streets. The narrow, dirt streets are so rough that it is hard to drive over them and stay in the seats. If they were wet I just wouldn't want to try to navigate them.

We saw Mexican 2-wheel carts drawn by oxen or mules, hauling wood or water. The water carts had a big barrel fastened on with a piece of hose which the driver let down to fill the jars or cans of his customers as he drove some place to place. We noticed that the windows and doors were heavily barred and were told that frequent revolutions made this necessary. The last revolution was three weeks ago. We had hoped to see one.

We had a wonderful game dinner after we finished seeing the sights. They offered us venison, quail, duck or wild turkey and one could have two kinds. I chose duck and turkey and it was very good. Some of the party had other kinds and all were pleased. Other foods, vegetables, a salad, etc. were also served. There was no coffee. Ice water was served with the meal and you could order anything you wanted to drink, beer, wine, or any kind of liquor. The price was 50c a plate. Such a dinner at the Cornhusker (not nearly as good) would have been three times as much.

I wanted a little Mexican money to bring home as a souvenir and got 35c worth, a whole handful for one of my dimes.

The paper last night announced "wet north" and this a. m. the radio said it was getting cold. About 2 p. m. the wind turned cold and it soon began to mist. We now have the gas heater going full blast and freezing is predicted. I hope it don't get that cold because sure does interfere with our trip.

Yesterday when we drove in here it was really too warm for comfort. This morning I was walking around very comfortable with my gloves rolled up and now I am going to need my coat and vest when we go up town to mail letters. I noticed in the postoffice last night the bulletin board said "all airmail from north cancelled, can't get through" so I am thinking you folks are having some more cold. Well, this is Monday morning the 27th and the wind is still coming from the north, accompanied by a misty rain, and I judge the temperature at around 45 or 50. No danger of freezing I guess but not pleasant. They say that today will probably see the end of it.

As I said above, we got back from Mexico about 3 p. m. Half an hour later we drove up town to mail a letter and while I was doing so the Missus scraped acquaintance with a Mrs. Paul Ussher. The Usshers have lived here 20 years, have a nice bearing grove and seem to be very nice people. She got in the car and took us out to show us their place, told her husband to get us a few grapefruit, and he came with a big dishpan full, which they insisted on our taking, then she drove with us out to the port. This is a big government project, a ship channel has been dug from the gulf, 20 miles long and wide enough for big ships to come in, with what they call a turning basin at the Brownsville end, where great steel and cement docks are being built. It is 8 or 10 miles out to the port from town and the people here think the whole distance will be built up rapidly.

Last evening Mr. and Mrs. Afford asked the Missus and I and Mr. and Mrs. Ridge, the English people from Ontario, if we would like to go over to Mexico and see the night life. We would and we did. We visited four different entertainment places where there was a large room filled with tables, a dance floor at one end, an orchestra and where all kinds of food and drinks were served. We saw no disorder, no one drunk and all seemed to be having a good time. Again, it was something we had never seen. Only small crowds were present at any of the places, but we were home by 10:30. We were told that by 2 or 3 o'clock in the morning things would be much livelier, but old folks can't stay up that way.

We are driving into town this a. m. hoping to get a whole bundle of mail from home. We will likely stay here a day or two longer if the weather clears, as there are several things we want to see.

Something DIFFERENT

The size of the baby surely can't have much to do with the size of the man for someone informed me that Hi Anderson weighed two pounds when he was born and Lee Nay tipped the scales at three pounds. And look at them now.

The Rutar family has had sad luck with their sons. Stanley, who passed away a few days before attaining his majority, was preceded in death several years ago by a younger brother who also had an appendicitis operation not many days before his demise.

What was probably a simple slip of the tongue on the part of Reverend Woodruff as he assisted at the last rites of Mrs. Orin Mutter has furnished a lively topic of local conversation, particularly for members of the K. of P. lodge and more especially since Rev. Woodruff is known as a genuine scholar. In reading the obituary the word Pythias was pronounced as though it were pie-thee-us. Of course Knights of Pythias members present apied this trifling error and it started an argument finished only by Mr. Webster's dictionary, the final authority.

This seems to be a county of extremes—a summer or two ago it was so hot for so-o long. And now it is so snowy and has been so cold for so-o long.

For once I imagine what California papers have to say about snow and cold temperatures in Nebraska is somewhere near accurate.

Friends hardly know the boys who come home to visit after sojourning in the CCC camps. Their definite routine of exercise, work and lessons with regular hours for sitting and sleeping has improved the physique of several of the local CCC'ers immensely. The boys come back to Ord wearing clothes a size or two larger with firm pads of muscles and increased weight, responsible for the differences in their appearances.

These cold days are making heavy demands on the charitably inclined. If you have children's underwear, clothes or shoes to give away, clothes to spare for adults or bedding you wish to discard, call Mrs. John P. Misko, Red Cross chairman, who knows several places for all such articles where they will be put to immediate use. This severe cold spell—such a long one—is tough on those not well equipped to meet it.

I expect a lot of young Ordites, female gender, would like to leave for Alaska after reading last week's Quiz and viewing the handsome picture of that handsome Arctic explorer, Wallace Doe. Alaska is quite a trip even in these days so perhaps Wallace will be safe there, even in Leap Year.

BACK FORTY

The Jerusalem artichoke has been grown to a limited extent for many years as a forage and vegetable crop. Locally its merits and demerits are a live topic for discussion and argument.

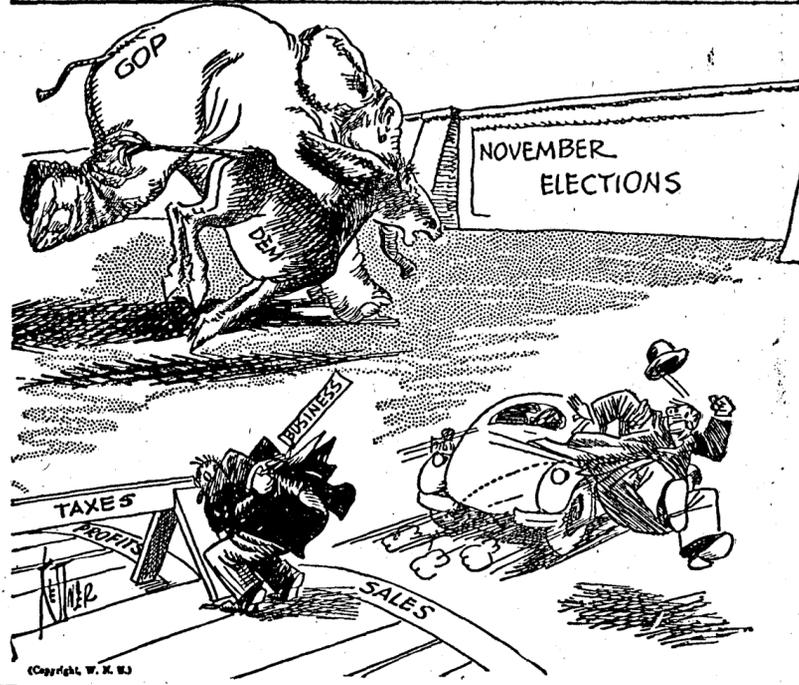

Artichokes can be fed to hogs, and have about the same feed value as potatoes. It takes one pound of potatoes to equal one pound of grain in feed value. Corn is selling at $13 a ton. Artichokes should be worth about one-fourth as much accordingly, for hog feed. If local farmers can produce artichokes at $14.50 a ton, they should make a reasonable profit. Otherwise, they may have difficulty in finding a market.

Artichokes contain 17 percent levulose sugar by weight, and will make over a ton of sugar per acre. The obstacle to this procedure, at present, is the lack of processing mills in the country. Artichokes are a potential source of industrial alcohol, but there is as yet no industrial market for the crop. The best market for the tubers at present appears to be their sale as seed to other growers.

Artichokes can also be marketed to some extent as human food. The tubers are somewhat difficult to store, and for that reason are often left in the ground over winter. The tops are sometimes used for ensilage; they have relatively little feed value, however, after the tubers have been removed.

The Nebraska Experiment Station conducted a series of tests with Jerusalem artichokes during the years 1925, 1926, 1927, and again more recently. The average yield of tubers over a period of four years was 5.14 tons per acre at Lincoln. There was a similar yield of tops, making a total production of about twelve tons field weight. Yields of artichokes at other stations varied greatly. At Mitchell they produced 13.6 tons per acre when irrigated. At Valentine they returned 10 tons per acre under sub-irrigated conditions. The North Platte station secured only 1.56 tons per acre. Reduced down to a moisture-free condition, the artichokes produced an average yield of 2.25 tons at Lincoln. Comparable dry-produce yields of sunflower, silage corn, and orange sorghum were 2.26, 2.96, and 3.56 tons per acre, respectively. The labor of producing artichokes is about the same as for potatoes, or perhaps a little greater.

or as the tubers do not fall apart as readily when dug. In the agricultural station experiments the best planting rate was in 42-inch rows with seed pieces 14 inches apart in the row. An acre required about four hundred pounds of tubers.

QUIZ FORUM

A Hot One for George.
North Loup, Nebr., Jan. 30, 1938
Ord, Nebraska.

Dear Sirs:
I am writing in reply to George G. Gowen's exasperating letter to the County Board. I believe that you are fair minded enough to realize after making such a publication as his, mine is fully in line. We have had the Quiz in our family for a good many years and are a booster for it. So I am asking you very kindly to print this letter to Mr. Gowen.

Mr. Gowen:
Someone must have told you that you are a philosopher and it has gone, very likely to your head. I am quite sure that you should be president of the United States, after being so public minded as to stick your nose into other people's business, that doesn't concern you. I believe you have all that you can handle to keep George above water.

All right, Mr. Gowen, where did you get all of your information? I believe it would be much wiser to find out the real facts before printing it in the Valley county paper. I am sure there are some apologies due on your part, because of your ignorance of the case.

I am quite sure that an ex-postmaster has quoted some different words other than those you have mentioned. It is his place to complain, not yours, and since other parties are not complaining, why should you? I believe that all, including you are getting just as good a mail service as in the past. As long as we are involved in this postoffice deal I might mention that the young man who is working now is a fair and honest fellow. I have found that a single man has to live just as well as a married man and I am sure you would not be willing to support him. By the way since when did you become so humble as to feel with your sympathy.

Who put the idea into your head Mr. Gowen, that Mr. Meyers (Clem) is boss in North Loup? Perhaps Clem would make a good boss. Mr. Hot Shot. What if he did promote Burke and Coffee (if he did) what was wrong with that? I also recall that there are members of your dear G. O. P. often took fishing trips to Florida and elsewhere.

George, you express yourself, as I take it, not sympathizing with the administration which is perfectly okay. But I do believe if I were in your shoes I would not be so eager to take a job that would benefit you where the government is concerned or take advantage of the many things the government puts out. It looks like a face on both sides to me.

I am not involved in this belly-boo you are writing the least bit but I think that you bit off just a little more than you can chew. I might mention that your letter did not improve your friendship in North Loup. If I were you I would concentrate a little more on what you wrote hereafter.

If you really want to know who wrote this it will not be hard to find out. I'll back every word of it. I am a Democrat and proud of it but don't get the impression I am sour on the Republicans as I am not. There are just as smart and honest Republicans as Democrats.

Don'toot your horn too loud George, you're making a perfect fool of yourself.

I remain,
A firm critic of your hoovey.
Charles Barnhart.

CARE OF COUNTY BOARD

By George Gowen

Melodrama.
A discussion of the Hauptmann trial and approaching execution brought out several stories and one from Jake Earnest of a hanging he witnessed back in Ohio when he was a young man. He ended up with the phrase that "I never want to see another."

As I recall the story, Jake said the murderer had been a good friend of Jake, living and working only a few miles from where Jake lived. This man had gotten into a quarrel with his brother-in-law (strange as it may seem) and the murderer had a watch belonging to the brother-in-law. The latter started out one morning and said he was going to get the watch.

From the road the murderer saw the brother-in-law coming and stepped to the door. They had a little altercation and the brother-in-law whipped a gun out of his pocket and shot but missed. Then he turned to run.

But the murderer had been a sharp shooter in the Civil war. He raised his rifle and shot three bullets in the back of his opponent, all the bullets hitting a spot not bigger than a man's hand.

He then escaped to the woods. A posse was organized, Jake among them and they gradually surrounded the man. As they grew closer it was planned to all run for him at once. He was not to give up that easy. With his revolver he tried to shoot the sheriff but the sheriff slammed his hand on the gun and the hammer clicked on the thick skin between the thumb and first finger.

The trial was had and the man was sentenced to be hung. In those days executions were held at the county seat. Jake had a close friend who was influential with the county officials. He had asked two of them for a ticket to be a witness to the hanging, thinking if one failed, he would be sure to get a ticket from the other.

He took Jake with him, walking close. He got one ticket early. As he approached the gate the county clerk slipped Jake's friend another ticket, and he in turn passed it to Jake, and the two walked into the yard.

A scaffold was made between the court house and an adjoining building. It was boarded up high so that no one could see in except the privileged few. The scaffold, Jake said was about as high as the ceiling which happened to be about fifteen feet.

The murderer was drunk Jake said, and didn't seem to realize it all clearly. At least he had access to all the liquor he wanted and Jake said he acted drunk. His last words were that he hoped he met all the people in that town in Heaven but didn't want to see any from the adjoining town for he did not like them there.

His arms were tied to his side and his hands behind, and his legs tied together in two places. He was placed on the scaffold and the sheriff held the hangman's knot close in place under his ear until the crucial second. The trap was sprung and the man was dropped into eternity.

They let him swing for nineteen minutes, his neck thoroughly broken, and his head to the side. Jake watched closely and the only movement except a slight turning of the body on the rope was that the man's fingers twitched. He was let down into a coffin that sat below.

He was supposed to have been hung at high noon. But at that minute the rain was pouring in a regular deluge. They waited a few minutes for that to cease. In spite of that thousands of people stood on the outside in the rain, unable to see a single thing, except through their imagination, and waited until the coffin and its contents were taken away.

"No," Jake says, "once is enough. I don't care to see another."

Scott McBride.

I was the guest of Rev. Warren to Scotia last week to hear Dr. Scott McBride, head of the anti-saloon league of America. There was a very small turn out, and had it not been for the Scotia school being present the attendance would hardly have been worthwhile.

Dr. Hutton, who has been the head of the state anti-saloon league was there also. He is a better speaker than Dr. McBride, but that is with no discredit to the latter, for Dr. Hutton is one of the best in the land. I never have heard of a man with a more complete vocabulary.

Dr. McBride took a new Dodge car and traveled 25,000 and some miles, going first south and then to California and north, and then to Oregon and Washington, back to Reno, Salt Lake City, Denver, Omaha, Lincoln, Kansas City, Missouri, Minnesota and east.

And he reported that everywhere the people are thinking the liquor affair is falling of its own weight! That women are drinking as bad as the men and everywhere governors and public people think things are worse in the drinking line than ever before.

He said in places where two years ago they could not get a meeting, this year they had good turn-outs. I couldn't help but think that spirit had not reached Scotia yet, when a nationally known man could get a scarce dozen to hear him talk.

Postmaster Again.
Mrs. Meyers called me up and resented some of the things said in regard to the postmaster last week. If she shall note I only repeated what is as common talk on the streets as the air that floats around and that they are not my ideas. She said she was a mind to answer but guessed she would not. I honestly wish she would for she is a splendid writer and it might clear up some of the untruths so freely circulated, if they be such.

If she has not learned already, she soon shall, that the job of postmaster carries with it the condemnation and watchful eye of every person in the community, and they all feel it their duty to howl at any little thing that does not go exactly right. It is a well paying job and many want it. Those that fall to get it are prone to stand back and stir up trouble.

As far as Clem is concerned, I cannot see why he is not as entitled to the job as anyone. He is one of the most faithful democrats in the country. He has always delivered my mail promptly and sold me stamps pleasantly, and what more is there to ask.

It was said of both Art Babcock and Clem that they were not smart enough to run the postoffice. This has been proved grossly untrue as we know, for both have done good work. One assistant to Art Babcock was so coached and inspired with his dumbness she took it unto herself to reprimand him and tell him a few things. He finally had to tell her he was responsible.

If the management fell and not her, and eventually she was dismissed. And so if Clem wants to fire his helper I do not know why he shouldn't the same as if he lived on a farm.

However, regardless of how I may feel, the people at large take it unto themselves to be the final advisor to all postoffice matters, and if Clem casts his lot there he must expect to take the tail with the hide.

The Crown Remains Veterans Reach the Top Oxygen Is Life

Behind the gray walls of Windsor castle, on the hill above the Eton school, where young England learns discipline and cricket, King George's coffin was lowered into the vault to lie beside his father, King Edward VII, and his grandmother, Queen Victoria.

The magnificent crown of England was taken from the altar, Kings go; the crown remains.

The services were broadcast, new feature of a royal funeral. The simple Church of England burial service, read by the Archbishop of Canterbury, was heard far over the earth, wherever Britain's 400,000,000 subjects live.

Veterans having successfully climbed the long, long road, the government began the biggest "pay-off" job in history, the printing of two billion four hundred million dollars' worth of bonds, to be distributed among 3,518,191 World War veterans. The mere distributing cost alone will be $7,000,000.

Now government wonders what new taxes can be invented to pay the two and one-half billions.

Interesting news from Ethiopia sent by the residence of Haile Selassie's son has on the roof a large red cross, although it has nothing to do with the Red Cross. Associated Press sends news of a Swedish "field hospital," captured by Italians in the South, carrying ammunition on five trucks adorned with Red Cross flags and insignia. The "field hospital" automobiles contained, in addition, 27 cases of munitions. In modern war, the safe plan seems to be bomb everything. The war drums of the Ethiopian hero, Ras Desta Denu, were captured. He will miss them.

The unnecessary air disaster in Hawaii, two United States bombing planes destroyed in collision while plying "in formation" and six men killed, causes aviators to say that they object to night formation flying. They may well object; nothing more densely stupid could be imagined than sending up planes to fly at high speed, almost wing to wing, inviting disaster and death. Even in these busy times there ought to be somebody sufficiently intelligent to stop that nonsense, at night, and in daytime also.

Nothing ever happens here any more except the coming of the mail every day, and on Saturday, the arrival of the Quiz. This is

One of the interested readers is Raymond Gullford who came up some two weeks ago, and is having his teeth put in good working order. Comstock territory and a brother-in-law of Emil Barta, who lives east of Ord. He married a Valentine girl and his family lives there but he remembers all the people in the west edge of Valley county and around Arcadia, the Stones in particular. Another very interesting man is Stanley Yelli (formerly spelled Jelen) who came here in December for dental work and is remaining for asthma and heart trouble. He formerly lived at Genoa, where he knew the Phillips' of Burwell. He is an artist with carpenter tools, and has succeeded in locating some dead cedar, which he is busy each day converting into lumber, and finally into cute little cedar boxes which he sells to the patients and others. His magnum opus to date is a chest of drawers for silverware which he made for the dentist. This is as fine a specimen of the cabinet maker's art as I have found anywhere.

The work is done in the hospital carpenter shop in the basement. I can claim credit for starting the idea shortly after I first arrived. I located the dead timber, which is usually found in the most inaccessible places, overhanging the cliffs where a misstep would mean a fall of a hundred feet or more in many cases. I took a small saw with me, cut off whatever I thought would do for canes or desk lamps and carried it in until I had one corner of the shop filled with material. Since the snow came I have been working it up into lamps, canes and cribbage boards whenever I felt like working. I thought all the while I was working cedar but a man who knows told me a few days ago that it is juniper. Anyhow it is one of the most beautiful woods I ever saw, but very difficult to work. About 3 more weekly letters and I will be heading home which is something to look forward to.

I don't suppose I will know Ord or Burwell either, not having seen either since August 10th.

Frozen Eggs Are Not Worth Much!

At this time of the year it is necessary to gather eggs often and to protect them from freezing until delivered to the buyer. Keeping the eggs in a hot room or next to the kitchen stove is a bad practice. When an egg is laid it has the temperature of the hen, about 102 degrees F. If it is fertile and the germ on the yolk is active, the egg will incubate at a temperature above 70 degrees F. To prevent incubation of the germ, the egg must be cooled to a temperature below 70, preferably below 60 degrees so that incubation is absolutely checked as promptly as possible after the egg is laid.

The eggs should be gathered from the nests two or three times a day. They should be spread out to cool on a wire screen or a clean shelf in a cool cave, cellar or room. They should never be kept in a pallor other closed receptacle unless they are first cooled. Six dozen eggs weigh about 9 pounds or about the same as a gallon of water and when a mass of nine pounds of eggs of a temperature of 90 degrees F. or above is put in a pall or tight basket, it takes many hours to bring them below incubating temperature. And unless they are quickly cooled below incubating temperature (70 degrees F.) the germinal disc on the yolk enlarges, a "heat spot" appears on the yolk, the egg shows marked evidence of deterioration and down goes the quality to a number 2 or lower.

Even a freshly laid egg in rare instances may be a rotten egg. It may become bad before it is laid by the hen. It may have a bloody white or have meat spots or clots of blood in it when it is not even one hour old. It is impossible to say just what the quality and condition of any fresh egg is until it is candled.

The condition of both white and yolk may be determined by candling. A weak watery white permits great freedom of motion of the yolk; as such egg is twirled, the yolk swings close to the shell and appears as a definite shadow or dark object. Such an egg is of very low quality. A thin, weak, watery white in an egg may be caused by the feeding of a ration that is not complete or properly balanced or it may be due to failure to keep the eggs cool or to cool them promptly after they are gathered from the nest. Germ spots on the yolk, which are enlarged through incubation, and heat spots or darkened areas on the yolk, are readily detected by candling.

If all eggs produced in Valley county were brought to market CLEAN and FRESH the buyers could and would pay more money for them and the poultry raisers would receive good pay for the extra care and work necessary to produce and market CLEAN FRESH eggs.

Corpus Christi, Texas, 2-5-36
Dear Quiz:

It has been several days since I wrote you folks and Eugene may be getting out of copy, think I am laying down on the job, or stop allowing me to write expensive checks. We returned here yesterday from Brownsville after spending 10 days there. We saw the sun just two days out of the ten. The other eight days it was cloudy and a good deal of the time it was misty, foggy, or rained slowly, never hard. There was a good deal of wind off the gulf. In such weather there was not much we could do, as all side roads were muddy and we had to drive, if at all, only on the paved roads and we soon saw all the places of interest.

Twice I bought a dime's worth of shrimp and drove out to the new ship canal, thinking I would fish, but both times there were many fishermen, and as none of them were getting any fish, I threw my bait away without fishing. Last Sunday we started out again, as it looked like it might clear up, drove down the highway toward the gulf 14 miles, then turned off to go five miles across country to hit the ship canal further toward the gulf, where we were told the fish were striking. The road was only a trail and the continued rain had soaked it up and the first we knew we were hopelessly bogged down. It looked pretty gloomy as it started to rain and no house within ten miles. Then here came an old Model T bouncing and rattling across the country and as they drew nearer we saw three grinning Mexicans. They stopped, piled out, and one of them who could talk pretty good English took command, told his companions what to do, and they pulled grass to stuff around the wheels, then all got hold and we were soon out. They took the lead then, picking the road, and we got to the canal without much more trouble.

It continued to rain slowly, but we all started to fish. Nobody got anything, and several other cars that had arrived ahead of us, quit in disgust. We were waiting for the Mexicans to go so we could follow them out and be sure of help if we got stuck. After an hour or so they decided to quit, saying they were going down to the mouth of the river. They advised us to go too, so they could help if we got stuck, which of course was just what we intended doing. They led the way and we got through without their help but we all had to stay and get one of the cars that left earlier, out of the mud. It was still raining when we got back to Brownsville and it was right then that we decided to start for Ord Tuesday morning, though our cottage was paid for till Friday.

Frank Flynn and James Misko have set Wednesday, Feb. 26 as the date of their postponed sale. The Holden sale, twice postponed, will be held on a date to be announced later. Ads for both sales will appear next week.

Ord's Chanticleers Lose Two Games

Falling to defeat before a fast and sure Hastings team Friday evening on the Hastings floor, Coach Brockman's Ord high Chanticleers lost their third game of the season by a 41 to 10 score. Ord boys played a good game the first quarter, holding the Hastings five to a minimum baskets but during the last half of the game Hastings scored freely, and steadily increased their wide lead.

Tuesday evening on the home floor, the Ord boys met a determined Broken Bow team and after a hard battle, suffered their third defeat to a non-conference team by a 21-15 margin. Hard, clean ball was played, both teams being in good form. The score was close throughout the game, the visiting team forging ahead in the last quarter to win. Next Wednesday the local boys will go to Arcadia to participate in the Loup Valley tournament the 19th and 20th where they promise to be strong contenders for the title of basketball champions of the Loup Valley.

Civic Banquet Is Postponed Febr. 24

Because of cold weather and road conditions the civic banquet scheduled for Monday, February 10, has been postponed until Febr. 24, announces John P. Misko, president of the chamber of commerce. James E. Lawrence, editor of the Lincoln Star, who is to be principal speaker at this banquet, wrote that he could not come to Ord Monday as all roads out of Lincoln were blocked with snow. He will be here February 24 if weather conditions permit holding the banquet at that time.

Firemen Clear $40 At Ball Wednesday

A large crowd attended the annual firemen's ball held under the auspices of the Ord volunteer fire department at the Bohemian hall last Wednesday evening. In spite of weather 20 below zero everybody had a good time and enjoyed the music, which was furnished by the Dukes of Rhythm, an aggregation from St. Paul. The committee composed of Mart Beran, Guy Keep and Ed Oetken reports that receipts exceeded disbursements by about $40, which is a much better showing than last year when the annual ball lost money.

Pneumonia Causes Death Friday Of Mrs. W. J. Hather

Nebraska Resident 60 Years
on Cedar Lawn Farm.

With the passing of Mrs. William J. Hather Friday, occurred the death of one of Ord's most loved and respected pioneer mothers. Death came at her home at Cedar Lawn farm as the result of intestinal flu which later developed into pneumonia, further complicated by gall-bladder trouble.

Nellie Lyzetta Vincent was born in Breesville, Michigan on August 12, 1870 to Horace and Alice Vincent and at the time of her demise was 65 years, five months and 25 days old. When six years old, she came to Nebraska with her parents and all of her girlhood and school days were spent in this community. On July 4, 1888 she was united in marriage to William J. Hather and to this union six children were born, one dying in infancy and a son, Joe, at twenty months of age.

Lived in Sod House.
The first years of her married life were spent in a sod house and she knew much of the pioneer history of this section of the country. A devoted mother and friend, her death was a source of sorrow to all who knew her. In early life she united with the Methodist Episcopal church and was always a faithful and energetic member. At the time of her death she was a member of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society.

Left to mourn her death are her husband, William J. Hather, two sons, Wendell and Charles of Ord, two daughters, Mrs. Guy Strong of Callaway and Mrs. Fernie Carson of Ord, her mother, Mrs. Alice Vincent of Ord, a brother, Ora Vincent of Casper, Wyo., five sisters, Mrs. J. B. Nay and Mrs. A. S. Dye of Los Angeles, Mrs. John Lanham of Pasadena, Calif., Mrs. G. A. Horn of Timnath, Colo., Mrs. Calvin Ball of Mareno, Colo., ten grandchildren and many nieces and nephews.

Carl Suminski Is Pneumonia Victim

Carl Suminski, 23, son of Mr. and Mrs. Polish Suminski of near Elyria, passed away at the home of his parents at 4:00 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, pneumonia being the cause of the death. Funeral services will be held Friday from the St. Mary's Catholic church at Elyria and interment will be in the Elyria cemetery. Carl is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Polish Suminski, three sisters, Mrs. Steve Papler, Mr. and Mrs. Gertrude, two brothers, Bernard and Leonard and a number of other relatives and friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Doyle Collins have named their baby daughter, born recently, Ina Jean.

Basketball pairings were determined at a meeting of the Loup Valley High School association at Ord Thursday, Febr. 6. The tournament, which is to be held in the new Arcadia gymnasium, will begin at 1:00 o'clock Wednesday, Febr. 19 with a game between Comstock and Dannebrog.

Game five between Arcadia and the winner of the Comstock-Dannebrog game will be played at 7:00 Wednesday.

Will Vote Soon On Re-Financing Law

Ernest S. Coats has received a letter from Senator Lynn J. Frazier in regard to the new Frazier-Lemke refinancing bill stating that he hopes to bring the bill to a vote soon. All congressmen from Nebraska have signed the petition, he says.

Rev. H. H. Spracklen Passes In Amherst Of Heart Ailment

Former United Brethren Pastor
In Ord Dead at Age of 68;
Burial at Orchard.

Rev. H. H. Spracklen, for several years pastor of the United Brethren church in Ord and for the past two years pastor of the church at Amherst, died at that town last Thursday, Febr. 6, as result of a heart attack, complicated by diabetes. Funeral services were scheduled to be held Sunday at Amherst, with burial at Orchard following, but were postponed because of the blizzard.

Telling about Mr. Spracklen's death an Amherst newspaper says: "Yesterday morning Rev. Spracklen walked down town to get his mail and just at the intersection on main street his heart failed him. He struggled into Belschner's store and Mr. Belschner called Dr. Strand, who took the pastor home. The doctor was in hourly attendance all day but Rev. Spracklen grew steadily worse. At a little after 11:00 p. m., he passed quietly away. He would have been 68 years old this March.

"Rev. Spracklen's death will be mourned by all who knew him. He has been a pastor in the true sense of the word, kindly, sympathetic and earnestly endeavoring to bring happiness to his people. His work in the Amherst church has been of outstanding merit."

Scarlet Fever Decreasing.
Sheriff George S. Round said Tuesday that only one family in rural Valley county is still under quarantine for scarlet fever. Cases of this disease are on the decrease in Ord also, according to Dr. H. N. Norris, the city physician.

Parks Sale Postponed.
The sale of Harvey and Lloyd Parks advertised for today has been postponed indefinitely, said Col. E. C. Weller yesterday. A new date will be announced later.

They're Using Snowplows on Nebraska's Highways Now

3 Engines Needed to Push Burlington's Rotary Plow Thru Drifts East of Horace

After being blockaded since early last Friday, the Burlington's line from Palmer to Burwell was opened by a huge rotary snowplow pushed by three steam engines Tuesday afternoon. Here is shown the plow working in drifts 3 to 10 feet deep three miles east of Horace. The freight followed the snowplow a few hours later but Tuesday night the snow again blew in and Wednesday morning the motor became stuck and after being there several hours was pulled back to Greeley to await the arrival of another snowplow. Monday the rotary plow opened the St. Paul-Sargent branch, bringing towns on that line their first mail and supplies since last Thursday.

Highways Blocked Railroads Tied Up By Friday's Storm

Intense Cold Impeded Work Of Shovelers; Auto Travelers
Had Narrow Escape.

Accompanied by intense cold, the worst storm in many years blew into Nebraska last Friday on the teeth of a 30-mile wind and before it passed on late that night highways were blocked, railroad service halted for days and activity of all kinds suspended. Friday was the thirteenth consecutive day of zero temperatures for Ord.

Another storm that may prove worse than the last was forecast to hit last night. Lincoln and Omaha radio stations were sending out storm warnings every 30 minutes, telling travelers to stay off the highways.

About 2 1/2 inches of snow fell yesterday morning and a light wind caused new drifts to form, again blocking some highways.

Temperature dropped to 8 below zero at 11:00 yesterday, giving additional warning of a new storm to come.

Highways Were Blocked.
In Valley county only about three inches of snow fell Friday but six inches of loose, fluffy snow had fallen only three days before so the strong wind Friday found plenty of material to form drifts. Only one state highway out of Ord, No. 11 to Burwell, was open when the wind died down in the night Friday. No. 11 eastward was blocked so badly that no traffic passed over it until Sunday. No. 87 to Arcadia was opened for traffic Sunday morning, shovelers flagging drifts 4 to 7 feet deep in many places.

First train into Ord after the storm was a Union Pacific engine and caboose, behind a snow plow, which arrived late Saturday afternoon bringing Friday's mail about midnight a Union Pacific train came through with more mail and express.

Three Trains Stalled.
Union Pacific officials say that the regular Friday afternoon motor became stalled between Eiba and St. Paul and a steam engine was sent out from St. Paul to aid it. No word coming from motor or engine operators, another engine was sent out from Grand Island.

Barber Shop Is Sold.
Mr. and Mrs. Leo Johnson, who came to Ord a few months ago and leased a part of the Lloyd Benjamin barber shop, establishing a beauty parlor in connection, have taken over the whole shop. Charles Clausen, who has had a barber shop under the Kosmata shoe store has closed his shop and will have charge of one chair for Mr. Johnson. Lloyd Benjamin said Tuesday his plans for the future are uncertain.

Valley Co. Will Be Accredited Within Month--Dr. Tickler

16 Federal Vets Working Here,
Will Finish Final Check
For T. B. This Week.

Within thirty days Valley county will be accredited as free from bovine tuberculosis, says Dr. O. K. Tickler, in charge of a group of sixteen federal veterinarians who have been working here several days and hope to complete their work within a week. Work has been considerably hampered by cold weather and drifted roads.

When tuberculosis testing was done on a county-wide scale last summer percentage of reactors exceeded 1 per cent, therefore other tests had to be taken before the county could be accredited.

Believes Rating Certain.
So far only 16 or 17 reactors have been found in the whole county, Dr. Tickler says, and it seems certain that percentage of reactors will now be under the required minimum. Accredited rating will come within a month after testing is completed, he says. Tuberculosis eradication work is now under way or has been completed in every Nebraska county and soon the entire state will be accredited as free from this disease.

Dr. Tickler and his crew have been using County Agent Dale's office as headquarters while working here.

By H. D. Leggett

Both the Bredthauers and us left at 7:30 a. m. Tuesday, for here but we didn't see them till we were driving out of the home grounds of the King ranch 25 miles below here. They were just driving in. Mr. Bredthauer had told us he wanted to see this big ranch.

We arrived in Corpus Christi at 2 p. m., and found letters from home, also a telegram from Eugene, sent after noon and delivered here only 20 minutes before we arrived, telling of weather conditions and advising us to stay there. A few moments later we would have been on our way and would have missed the message. We at once made arrangements for a nice room here and will await advice from home before starting again. Mr. and Mrs. Bredthauer are here some place, but we have not seen them yet. Dropped them a line to tell them where we are, so expect to see them soon. They plan on staying here some time, then will visit Houston and Dallas, and other Texas cities and don't expect to get home till danger of cold weather is over.

If I have read the signs right, Texas farmers are just about as prosperous as Nebraska farmers. The fruit farmers I visited with agree that they have not made any money in recent years. We liked Brownsville very much and hope to go back there. As I think I said before, it is the farthest point in the U. S. that one can go as it is right on the border in the very southeast corner of the state. And it does freeze there some years. The lower Rio Grande valley however, is sure a garden spot if there ever was one. They have plenty of water, are so close to the gulf that the cool sea breezes temper the heat of summer, and they seldom have frost. It did get down to very close to freezing while we were there. They all agree, there and here, that it is the coldest winter in several years. Of course I kidded them about the "unusual weather", then told them that W. A. Anderson wrote me that the winter at Ord was the worst in 18 years and they came right back at me and asked if, perhaps, we sometimes had some "unusual weather", too.

There is a world of fine fruit from Brownsville on north for 75 miles, then scattering fruit for another 25 miles. There is also almost countless acres of all kinds of vegetables over that same 100 miles. Then it is nothing but a wild cattle country for the next 75 miles, then vegetables again for 50 miles all around the land side of this place, Corpus Christi. Then it is cattle and cotton, mostly cattle country, for 100 miles toward San Antonio. The soil here and also in the lower Rio Grande valley, is deep and black. So far this country up here is not irrigated. It should be. It looks to me as if Texas could feed the whole U. S. easily if properly handled.

I got acquainted with two old men at Brownsville, one of them Mr. Stillman, the other a Mr. Coffee, an uncle of our own Congressman, Harry Coffee. Mr. Stillman is known here as the Luther Burbank of Texas. He traveled around the world, years ago, spending 4 years on the trip, in the employ of Burbank, gathering seeds and plants for him. I bought oranges, papayas and other tropical fruits from him and visited with him at his home grounds several times. His place was right on the highway where we were located in a tourist camp.

I talked a little politics with Mr. Stillman and he said he was a native Texan, a life-long democrat, had never voted anything but a democrat ticket, but he said "I will vote for a Chinaman for president before I will vote for F. D. R." He doesn't think Roosevelt will even be nominated. He says out of twenty strong democrats that he said he could name, all for Roosevelt before, eighteen of them were against him now. I confirmed this in a way, for I did find a good many who would prefer to see someone else nominated. I found very few who would predict that Texas would leave the democrat fold.

Mr. Coffee has a beautiful home near our cabin camp. I judge he is 75 years old. He started and grew a fine orange grove, then sold it and retired, when the selling was good.

It is surprising how little of the country is cultivated down there and how much is in the native mesquite. I judge, in time, if a market can be found for the fruit, that the lower Rio Grande valley will be all fruit and vegetables. Not over 5 per cent is so used now, which is the reason for my statement that this state could support the whole U. S.

But this letter is getting too long and I must stop. We drove down to the ship turning basin after dinner today and watched fishermen catching trout. I told a fellow I would like 2 bits worth and he gave me four nice ones. It is about time I was starting to cook them and I will close this letter. More later, probably after I get home.

H. D. Leggett.

Dear Quiz:
I see that former Senator Simon D. Fess of Ohio, threatens to "take a walk" if Borah is nominated by the republicans. Mr. Fess evidently thinks he, instead of the delegates is the republican party. He is one of the Hoover-Mills-Mellon standpatters, takes his orders from Wall Street, and is, apparently "sold" on the idea that the east owns this country and that it must be run in the interest of the east and for their benefit.

We were in Brownsville 10 days and saw the sun 2 days. It has been pretty nice since we returned here Tuesday but the weather man says the "worst norther of the season" is due to hit us tonight. Tomorrow is Sunday and it is supposed to be rainy and cold and "may freeze," says the weather man, and all small craft is warned to stay off the water. Of course the weather man may be wrong, as some say, but he has been pretty much correct since we have been down here.

I called on Harry Coffin of Burwell down at Granada Court where they are staying. He says they are having a nice time, that they would like better weather, but that this 40 to 80 degree weather is so much better than the below zero weather at home, that they are not kicking. Today is a delightful day. It was 52 degrees when I looked at 8 a. m., and is lots warmer now. I am again going in my shirt sleeves and enjoy it.

Yesterday we drove, with Mr. and Mrs. Bredthauer, down what is called Ocean Drive. It runs along the shore of the bay, southeast, 14 miles, most of the way close enough so one could throw a rock into the water. Nice homes extend out two or three miles. There are several lots of cottages. All the way the land is laid out in lots and is for sale. Palms have been set along to beautify the roadsides, and in a few years this drive will look like a town, as arrangements are being made to build or rather rebuild a causeway, across to Padre Island. There was a causeway across, 3 or 4 miles long, but the bad storm in 1933 destroyed some of it. One can wade the whole distance when the tide is out, and sometimes it is forded with wagons. The causeway is to be built across here and another below at Port Isabelle, and a road constructed down the Island 150 miles and Padre Island is to be a great national park. It is said to be one of the largest islands there is, 150 miles long and only two or three miles across in most places. It is a bird paradise. A man told me yesterday that in nesting season, one could hardly cross it without walking on birds' nests.

Yesterday, when we returned, we heard the siren at the bridge over the ship channel shriek, so we drove down as soon as possible to see the boat. It proved to be a large one steaming out after loading with gasoline. There was a big ship loading cotton at the dock near where we parked. It was the Comedian from Liverpool, England. They quit work at 5 p. m. and visitors are allowed to see the ship. The Misus didn't care to go through but I did and I saw many things never seen before. I was down in the very bottom 28 feet below water level and up in the pilot house that much above. This ship was 376 feet long, cost a half million dollars to build and has a capacity of 800 tons. It is one of 65 such ships owned by the company. Its captain, named Kennedy, was a most pleasant and congenial gentleman, sent a sailor with me to see the ship, and I greatly enjoyed the hour spent.

A similar ship, the freighter, Texas Banker, has been stranded for 10 days off the shores of Mustang Island, and was floated off today after numerous attempts. Two new ropes, 12 inches in size, and weighing 6,000 lbs. each, came here by express yesterday for the big tug boat that was trying to rescue the stranded ship, and were rushed down to Aransas Pass at once by truck. The picture which I secured of the ship shows how close to the beach it was stuck in the sand. I drove along the beach on the sand almost in talking distance, but it had not been for the ear of the gulf. The boat was considerably damaged and had to be taken to Galveston for repairs.

In a former letter I mentioned the big tree, said to be over 400 years old, on Goose Island. I am inclosing a picture I took. Goose Island is a big national park and this big tree is one of the points of interest. The management has been forced to build a post, pole and barbed wire fence around the tree to protect it from souvenir hunters, who carved it, chopped off pieces of bark or cut off limbs. I judged the spread of the limbs covered a space 200 feet across.

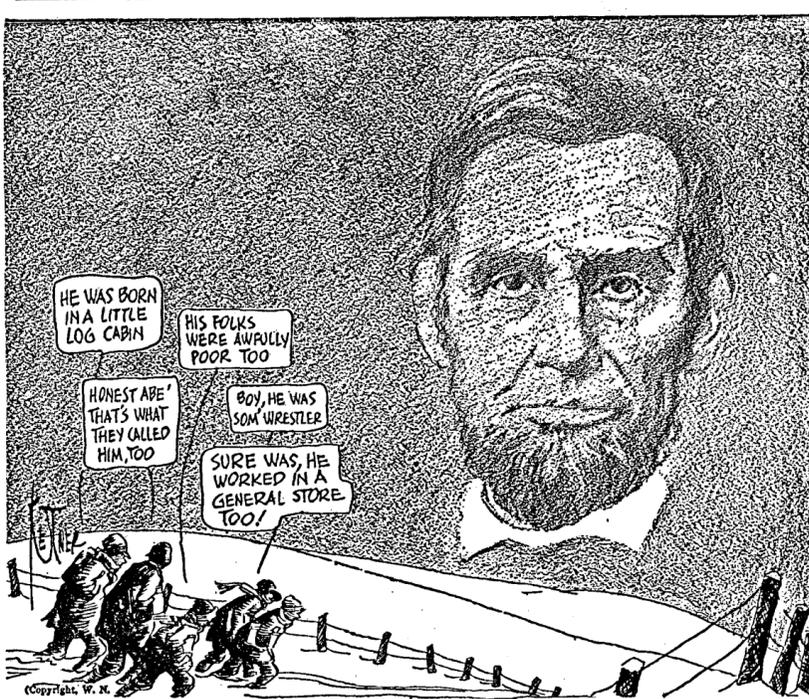

I am also inclosing a picture of some thatched roof houses at or near Brownsville. Many of the Mexicans live in this kind of house, no windows, shutters to close if it is cold or storms, dirt floor, no stove, boxes for chairs. They all have a black iron kettle in the yard and do their cooking, washing, etc out of doors.

Blueprinting Process

The blueprint process is a photographic process based on the action of light, reducing ferric to ferrous salts. In the original process a solution of potassium ferricyanide is employed and the lines of the drawing protect the cyanide from the action of the light; in the blueprint the lines are white on a blue background. Another process gives blue lines on a white background. Blueprints may be changed to brown by immersion in a caustic soda solution followed by tannic acid solution, and there are several other variations of the blueprinting process.

Something Different

One of those kindly, thoughtful acts that happen often in small cities than in big ones, or so I believe, took place one of the blizzard days last week. Knowing many small children would have trouble getting home on such a bitter cold day, with the gale from the north and the snow falling fast, several Ord business men constituted themselves a committee and drove to the grade school building. There, they collected the small students who had no one waiting for them, took them into heated cars and delivered them safely at home.

These good neighbors and Samaritans were, as far as I have been able to learn, Father Lawler, Dr. F. A. Barta, Lloyd Zeleski, Ed Beranek.

Next Monday Josephine Janus will become the bride of Charles Lech at a nine o'clock morning ceremony at the Catholic church. And I wish to publicly congratulate the young man, for he is getting a real bride.

The future Mrs. Lech hasn't any foolish ideas. She is a sensible girl, most competent. She knows how to cook, to sew, she is neat and clean as a pin all the time. In addition to her tidy habits she is well versed in things a farmer's wife should know. She knows how to raise baby chickens, to mind the brooder house, she knows how to sell the chickens for a profit. She can cut up meat, and can it. She is thrifty, too.

Probably still more important, she has a good disposition, calm and pleasant. Children like her. I do not know the young man, but if he has even half as many virtues, don't you think this marriage will be a success?

I think having wedding dances is a jolly custom. In this vicinity, I believe it is identified as Bohemian, is it not? Anyway, whoever thought it up I approve of it. To have a big wedding dance for all friends and relatives, and their friends, seems a gay thing to do.

Maybe I have it tangled up in my mind with the big dances pioneers usually have in a new country, the kind where they drive for miles and miles behind a team to attend until daylight. Or perhaps it is tangled up with old-time Grange meetings, and the tales of fun I have heard of those.

Surely Mrs. Will Hather personified the word cheerful if anyone ever did. She looked to me something like a lady Santa Claus, and was as jolly as Santy, too. I shall miss her.

Once Mrs. Hather was telling me how curious it was. Here she was as gray-haired as could be, white hair not far off. And her mother, Mrs. Alice Vincent, with hair so coal black that time had never succeeded in inserting more than half a dozen white hairs.

When You And I Were Young Maggie

20 Years Ago This Week.
Rev. E. H. Maynard came over from Sargent, finding the roads so bad it took him all day to make the trip.

Paul A. Lambrecht, of Omaha, quit his job with the Union Pacific and was opening a machine shop in the Huff garage. He was a son-in-law of W. A. Wright.

Orin Mutter was elected president of the Ord fire department and other officers included A. J. Shirley, chief; Oliver Cromwell, secretary; Ed Bannister, treasurer; Jake Hoffman, Harry Dye and Guy Burrows, foremen; Jake Hoffman, Tom Wright and Les Mason, trustees. C. J. Mortensen sent a treat of apples and cigars to the firemen.

The Burlington had thirty-one cars of livestock shipped out in a single day. Lois Finley returned to her school work at Fremont after a stay at home to replenish her wardrobe and bedding, destroyed in a dormitory fire at the college.

C. E. Kemp returned from Winner, S. D., where he had been cooking at a big hotel owned by W. E. Goodwin, formerly of Ord.

25 Years Ago This Week.
Repr. M. E. McClellan returned from his work in the legislature, where he was distinguished by the fact that he steadfastly refused to introduce any new bills, maintaining there were already too many laws.

A fast and furious game of basketball between Ord and St. Paul resulted in a victory for Ord, 31 to 16. Ord's bowling team composed of Stroup, Micin, Milburn, Wombough and Kasal beat the St. Paul team 2198 to 2193. Stroup was high man with 497 in three games, getting 201 in his last game.

A new bank was expected to open soon in Ord with Will Detweiler as president. It was to be called the Farmers State. George Parkins was assured he could get possession of his new location in the Mortensen building on March 1 so his old rooms in the Quiz building were for rent. The firemen's ball was very well attended and the firemen cleared about $100 on the affair.

BACK FORTY
A new farm relief plan has been suggested by Governor Alf Landon of Kansas, and a bill carrying its general principles has been introduced in the national house by Representative Hope of Kansas, ranking Republican member of the agriculture committee.

The Hope bill has for its purpose the return, in the form of a bonus, of the amount which the farmer is forced to pay on goods he buys, an account of the tariff. Governor Landon says that this increased cost is about 25 percent.

The proposed bonus would be paid only on the four major exportable farm crops—wheat, cotton, hogs and tobacco—and the amount would apply only to the part of those crops consumed domestically—in the case of wheat, about 54 percent. It is actually the old domestic allotment plan with a simpler method of execution.

If a farmer had 1,000 bushels of wheat, fifty-four percent, or 540 bushels would be used in this country. With wheat selling at $1 a bushel, the farmer would get $1.25 a bushel for 540 bushels, and $1 a bushel for the rest. The bonus in this case would be 25 cents a bushel, according to the Landon plan. The bonus would rise and fall with production. When bumper crops came, the domestic percentage necessary would be less, and bonuses would be smaller.

The governor also advocates a long time program of soil conservation to build up soil fertility and stop erosion, in which the farmer would be paid for not cropping the land. Governor Landon insists that this should be handled through the state agricultural colleges under federal grants as now made for highways.

Kick of the Rifle
The recoil or "kick" of some sporting rifles, such as those which have a .600-inch bore and use smokeless cordite, is so powerful that it may break the shoulder of the user when he is not in a free-standing position.—Richard E. Gilbert, Lewiston, Maine, in Collier's Weekly.

Shapes of Macaroni
Macaroni and spaghetti in Italy have almost as many shapes as there are cities in the country. At Bologna it is ribbon-shaped; in Rome it comes in strips, but that of Sicily amazes travelers most of all. It is so skillfully rolled around knitting needles to make it a tiny spiral.

CARE OF COUNTY BOARD

By George Gowen

The following was copied from the Reader's Digest, and it in turn was taken from The Nation's Schools.
The public elementary schools in Ventura county, California have abolished the formal report card and competitive marks and substituted informal notes and interviews with the parents unreservedly approved of the new method. This type of report eliminated the cut-throat competition which was formerly a source for the development of the inferiority complexes, and provided the incentive to do well without artificial stimulus of the rating. Differences in children are recognized, and if the pupil is failing it tells why he is failing and invites the parents cooperation in helping the child.

Maud Shepherd was for years one of the most successful teachers of the countryside. Long ago she maintained she did not believe in report cards or any competition in school work.
After going to school a few years myself, and after sending three of my own children to school I am convinced Miss Shepherd was right. And more than that my children get their share of the honors too.

It is the dull student, or the one who learns hard who needs the most attention and is in the most need of education. The brighter one is more apt to get it anyway. A much fairer way, if grades are to be given, would be for the effort put forth.

The same principal might apply to athletics. The underlying, the child who needs the physical development the most, is seldom trained. This is largely because of the commercial side, and the thrill of having "our side" win. And the big, healthy, husky, the boy who is strong and well and fleet anyway, is the one who gets the benefit, if there is any.

A little more might be said along the line of education, from a person who is not a teacher or a specialist along that line, and that is, if we call the roll of our honor students in school, we find they measure up in the end no better than the average. I do not say that they are not more successful than the actual nit-wits, but the average. In fact, if the truth be known, those honor students, fall as often or more often than the average.

All of which goes to show the grading system of our schools is a failure. They pick out the successful students, but this "picking out" fails to materialize in actual life. So much more is necessary to success than actual ease of learning. Ease of learning is very convenient to be true, but that is not all the requirements in this day and age.

Personality, that abstract thing, that thing we cannot touch or cannot define, that thing that some have and some don't and that thing we all want and so few of us achieve to acquire, yes, personality goes more toward making a boy or girl successful than all the A's plus the school curriculum offers. And still it is never taught. A man might be the greatest expert in the country in History or Latin, and still have such an obnoxious personality that he would be a failure.

If We Only Would.
An answer to a question in the State Journal a few weeks ago as to how this person could make friends, I think is worth repeating. If we would only put these rules to practice.

"In order to get along with other people and have them like you only a few basic things are necessary. Perhaps one of the most fundamental is showing others you are interested in them. Can't you see how quickly you respond when someone shows an interest in you? Then when people offer you advice and suggestions, accept courteously and appreciatively, even though you can't use it and have no intention of doing so. Likewise don't air your own prejudices and grievances. If you are constantly airing a grudge, no one will like you.

Then be a game loser. Play to win but realize no one can win all the time.
Be interested in other people's successes, rather than their failures.

Laugh at other people's jokes but not at your own.
And of course, be loyal. You can't keep friends if you make unkind and disparaging remarks about them, even to yourself."

Could Be Worse.
Many people proclaim this has been the coldest and most severe winter in a long time. Surely it has been bad enough but as yet we have not had a three day blizzard. Old timers say that such storms have been known here, the last one about 1896. And they were real storms when cattle froze in the drifts and death stalked.

Mr. Green, American Federation of Labor head, warns the miners' union not to split up the federation, Mr. Lewis, leader of the miners, tells Mr. Green, in substance, "You mind your own business." A labor split seems near.

Union labor should consider the fable of the dying peasant who summoned his sons and how they could break small sticks separately, but could not break them when all were tied together.

Louis XI's motto, Divide et Impera ("Divide and rule"), in dealing with powerful nobles, is not unknown to the enemies of union labor, or Goethe's Divide and rule! Powerful word.
Unite and lead! Better word.

A lonely English soldier living on an island in the Indian ocean wrote that he wanted a wife, saying, "I have hazel eyes," nothing else about himself. Already 250 English girls have offered to marry him. The 249 disappointed may find comfort in a better marriage, picking out somebody with blue eyes. It annoys many, but it must be said that practically all the great men in history had blue or gray eyes, even men from dark-eyed races, like Napoleon from Corsica, Caesar from Rome.

To save answering questions, here is a short list: Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln, Roosevelt, Edison, Henry Ford. Look up the others.

Near Tampa, Fla., a schooner loaded with men, women, children, on the way to establish a nudist colony in the Virgin Islands, ran aground. Navigators were unwilling to sign for a nudist enterprise, afraid, perhaps, of catching cold, so the ship ran ashore.

Nudism is a queer atavistic craving. The human race began that way in the Garden of Eden, and each of us starts out as a nudist at birth. The struggle is to keep clothed thereafter.

It is a strange demoralization that makes some long to run about undressed; the more strange because they look so hideously ugly.

Discouraged by incompetence that wrecked two dirigibles, this country decided that lighter than air machines are not necessary. It was necessary to borrow a small privately owned blimp to take food to 3,000 Tanager Islanders, cut off from relief by ice. No heavier than air plane could land there before the blimp, which landed easily.

Mussolini threatens to leave the league if it includes a ban on oil in its sanctions. In modern war, no oil, no war. Mussolini may buy old American ships to use as floating gasoline storage tanks. Had he come a little sooner he could have had plenty of them at a bargain, about one thousand million dollars' worth of expensive steel floating "junk" built when this country's foolish entrance into the World war found it unprepared.

England and Russia were getting along nicely, and now the Russian envoy, Litvinoff, attending the late king's funeral, commits the British unpardonable sin.

After talking with the new king, Litvinoff, instead of expressing admiration for the overwhelming royal intellect, remarked that the new king, Edward VIII, was "just a mediocre young Englishman" and repeated what the young king had said to him, something "not done."

Mr. Norman Thomas of the Socialist left wing runs for President sometimes and says the "New Deal" is leading to Fascism, a dictator.

In Italy Socialism, and doctrines even more radical, led to the rise of Mussolini, aided by castor oil and other methods. If our dictatorship comes, some radicals will look back sadly to the good old days when you could speak your mind without being shot or put to work.

One man's frustration is another man's good news. New Jersey fruit growers say the extreme cold, freezing the ground two feet deep, will destroy orchard pests, including the egypt and codling moths. The cold, which has not injured trees, is expected to discourage larvae of the Japanese beetle.

LETTERS FROM QUIZ READERS

Ft. Robinson, Neb., Feb. 9, 1936.

It seems that I bragged too soon about the lovely weather here at Robinson. We have been catching plenty since last Sunday, with zero weather practically all the time. The limit was reached Friday night when the official government thermometer in front of the hospital dropped down to 34 degrees below. However this was not so bad as Crawford, which is not so well sheltered by hills, had a 39 below reading the same night.

Our snow, which terminated in a blizzard Thursday and Friday, would have been eight inches on the level, but the wind piled it up in drifts 3 feet deep in places. At Crawford and also at Harrison the drifts were much deeper, as they are not protected by ranges of hills. Of course the above is not much to brag about and is nothing to what the rest of the state is getting but it is better than being left out altogether. During the coldest days it was impossible to keep the west ward warm and the patients had to keep under the covers all day long.

An Ord boy, Theodore Knecht, was admitted to the hospital February 5th from CCC camp No. 4723, south of Gering. He is here to have his teeth taken care of and was glad to run across someone from the old neighborhood. The hospital is filled nearly to capacity during the cold weather, due partly to the fact that the severe weather gets the weaker ones, and also because there are always some hunting for an excuse to get in out of the cold.

I have heard a number of very interesting tales of this section, some of which must be taken with a grain of salt. It is a fact that there is a place 18 or 20 miles northwest of the Fort known as the hidden valley, a place surrounded by steep cliffs, and accessible from only one place, near which a sentinel rock commands a view of the valley for miles in every direction. Inside the valley a huge cave has been dug in the face of one of the bluffs by human agency, and indications are that it was used as a stable on numerous occasions. Tradition has it that this was the hangout of a gang of horse thieves in the early days and that the horses stolen were hidden there for a time until they could be marketed.

Coffin Butte, an isolated rock located just a mile straight south of the fort, was the scene of a tragedy several years ago when a traveling man from Dakota chose this wierd location to commit suicide. He was missing from a Crawford hotel 3 days when his body was found at the foot of the butte.

Another body was found in the bluffs back of Coffin Butte a decade earlier. Together with evidence that he had been shot and his body robbed of six or seven hundred dollars he was known to possess at the time. His killer was never apprehended but it is thought that he is now doing life for a second murder committed the following year, so the ends of justice are met in the case here.

Another interesting legend, largely fact, is the story of the men who held up the stage coach from Deadwood and escaped with the strongbox containing specie and gold of a total value of $40,000. They were followed and compelled to leave their loot, which was hidden in the buttes about two miles from Ft. Robinson. The men were caught and the two men who knew where the gold was hidden both died in prison. The last man to die gave a map showing the location of the cache to a friend, who spent several weeks in the hills trying to locate it. He finally gave up, and the treasure is still up here in the hills for anyone who cares to dig it up. I might do so myself later on.

No eastern mail since Thursday, hence no Quiz. You should hear the gang howl.

John Ward.

By mild ripe tobacco we mean just this—

FIRST—ripened in the sunshine... and picked leaf by leaf from the right part of the stalk when fully ripe.

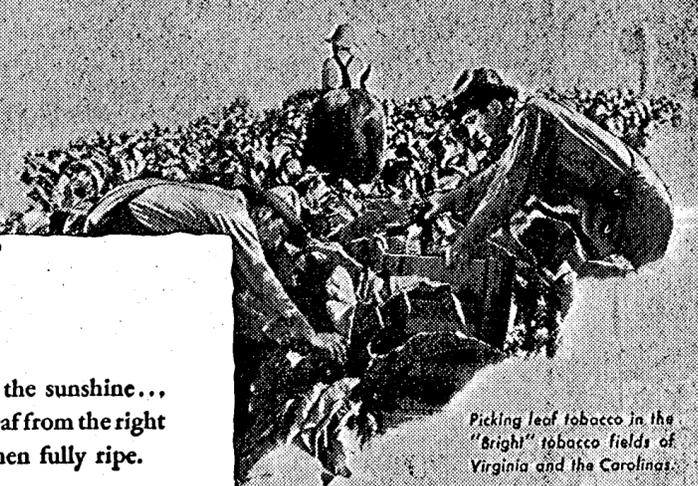

THEN—each day's picking cured right by the farmer... at the right time and in the right way... no "splotching" or brittleness, but every leaf of good color and flavor.

FINALLY—bought in the open market...re-dried for storage...then packed in wooden hogsheads to age and mellow for two years or more until free from harshness and bitterness.

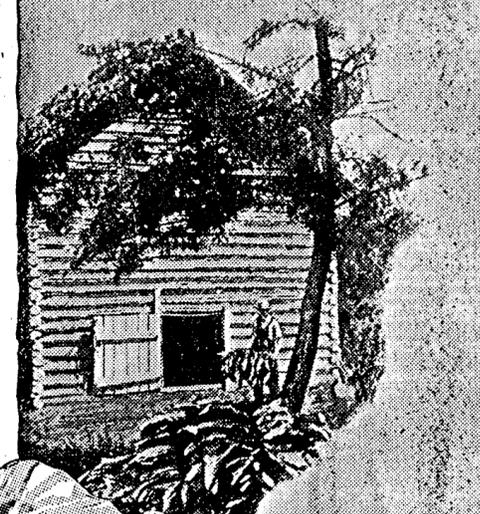

That's what we mean by mild, ripe tobacco. And that's the kind of tobacco we use to give Chesterfields their milder, better taste.

Davis Creek News

News seems scarce this week as everyone has been snowed in. Miss Hazel Stevens, Miss Dorothea Campbell and Vivian Cummins were unable to get to their schools the fore part of the week because of drifted roads. Miss Strombom stayed in the neighborhood so there was high school Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Chris Larson were at Jim Caddies, the place they bought, looking over the buildings, preparatory to moving. Men shoveled roads and opened them just in time to get them filled again, so Monday morning they started again. It is very unusual to be on a highway and no one pass by for two days and three nights.

Mrs. Mell Bower received word from their son Lewis. They arrived in Washington Sunday evening. They say there is wood enough going to waste there to last Nebraska for years, but no one uses the waste wood, if they want wood they go out and cut down a big fir tree. Lewis says he feels so shut in because of so many trees 3 and 4 hundred feet high and from 6 to 8 ft. through. He would like to be able to get up and look out across the country once. His aunt, Mrs. Addie Hunting was planting her early garden.

Our thermometer reached 26 below. People are complaining of water pipes freezing, both to the house and stock tanks, which makes it very unhandy.

Mildred McGee, Dona Desel and Ava Leach were compelled to stay in Ord on account of the storm. Charles Jefferies and Kenneth Egglehoff were in Ord over the week end.

Miss Helen Cook stayed at her brother Ivan's over the week end so as to be at school Monday morning.

We have had no mail since Friday. John and Johnnie Lunney shelled corn for Will Wheatcraft Friday afternoon.

Discovered Tangier Island
Tangier Island in Chesapeake bay was discovered and named by Capt. John Smith in 1608. Between 1650 and 1698 it came into possession of two Cornishmen who brought 14 families of shermen there. The original population has increased until there are now 2,000 inhabitants. The island is two and one half miles wide and four miles long. The streets are only eight feet wide and are intersected with canals though which goods and supplies are transported by boats. The island is crowded and, in many instances, several families occupy the same house. Tangier is called the soft-shell crab capital of America.

The Ruby, "Gem of Gems"
Although diamonds are generally used for engagement rings because they are thought to soften anger, strengthen love, and promote harmony in the home, the ruby is hailed as the "gem of gems," notes a writer in the Los Angeles Times. It has been said that it was the fairest of the precious stones created by God and that by his command it was placed on Aaron's neck. It has been said that he who possesses a flawless ruby dwells in the midst of enemies without fear. An old Indian legend says that the abode of the gods is lighted by massive, glowing rubies.

Arcadia News

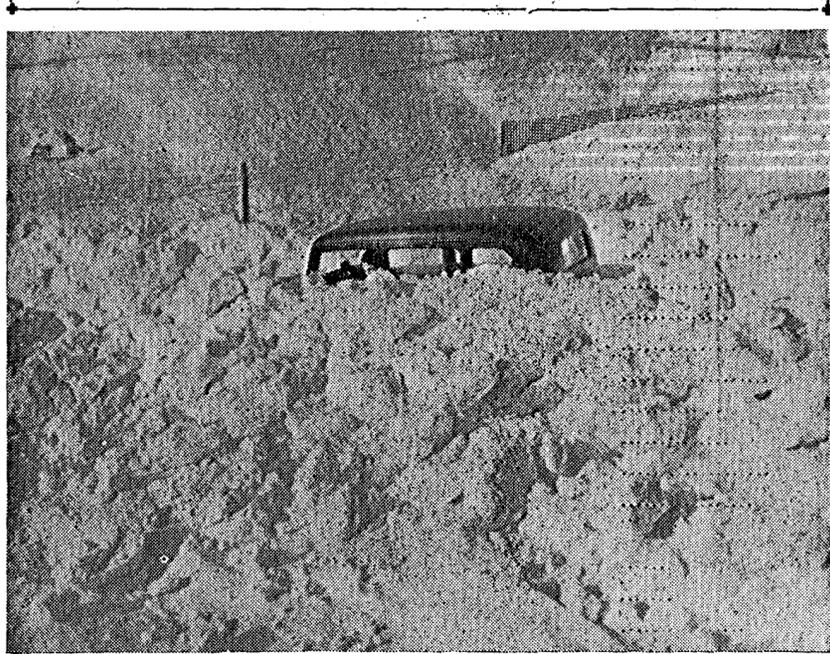

Dr. F. M. Bowman. After a long and patient struggle for life, lasting over a period of five years, Doctor Bowman passed away at his home in Arcadia, Nebraska on Monday morning at 11:20 o'clock, Febr. 3, 1936. He passed on much in the same spirit in which he lived, thoughtful of self, and considerate to the end of his loving wife and helpmate whom he would leave alone. Francis Marion Bowman, was born the 9th day of January 1862 to John H. and Barbara Bowman of Dayton, Ohio, and died February 3, 1936, at the age of 74 years and 23 days. When six years old he moved with his parents to a farm in Indiana, where he grew to manhood. After completing a course in electrical engineering in a Chicago college, he taught school in Peru, Ind., thirteen years. He worked in Logansport, Ind., under Dr. Huntington of Watertown, N. Y., six years at plate work in dentistry, and three years more before completing the chair work. On March 20, 1903, he was united in marriage to Miss Ida Splen in Syracuse, N. Y. He followed the dental profession for over thirty years, the last twenty-five years in Arcadia, Nebraska. Dr. Bowman was a man to be admired, and of sterling qualities. He was of a quiet character, but many deeds of kindness were committed by him. He was a great reader of good books and when the Carnegie library was opened in Arcadia, he contributed about three hundred books. He was also a great lover of flowers, and his yard was a garden of beautiful specimens. His yard and home were always a bower of flowers which he and his wife worked with summer and winter. Their house was filled with choice plants for the winter. He has been a member of the Odd Fellow fraternity since 1891 and of the Masonic Order since 1914. He leaves a kind and loving wife, two brothers C. O. Bowman of Lawrence, Kansas, and W. E. Bowman of California, and many friends. His parents and three brothers preceded him in death. Funeral services were conducted at the Congregational church of Arcadia, February 5, 1936, with Rev. Howell officiating. Lowell Finney sang three favorite hymns, with Mrs. Finney at the piano. The impressive Masonic ritual was used at the Arcadia cemetery where the body was laid to rest. The Masonic burial service was conducted by C. C. Hawthorne and W. N. Woody. The Rebekahs, and Odd Fellows attended in a body. The funeral was directed by A. H. Hastings and son. The pall-bearers were H. S. Kinsey, E. C. Baird, C. C. Hawthorne, Don Rounds, Ray Lutz, C. W. Starr. There was a profusion of beautiful flowers, and the church filled with friends to pay their final tribute of love.

Those attending the funeral of Dr. Bowman from out of town were D. E. McGregor, and Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Marshall of Gibbon, Mr. and Mrs. Jay Schultz of Ansley. Several crews of men were out shoveling snow most of last week to open the roads. Some places were so drifted, five men worked all day and only got two miles. Friday night's storm and blizzard which raged all night has blocked all roads again. Saturday there was no train or bus. The bread wagon could not arrive and it was impossible for it to get through Sunday. It is feared there will be a shortage of bread. The thermometer has registered 28 to 36 below zero and continues very cold. Saturday afternoon about four o'clock the fire whistle blew and the hotel was on fire. It started around the chimney in the office room. It was soon extinguished without the fire department, but they were all ready for work. There was some damage and the smoke made a trying mess. On account of the severe weather there were no church services held in Arcadia Sunday. William Kingston took Kenneth Dorsey to Grand Island Thursday where he gave the blood for a blood transfusion to his mother Thursday forenoon. Mr. Kingston and Kenneth returned home that evening. Lyle Crane accompanied Mr. Kingston and Kenneth Dorsey from Grand Island Thursday evening and he will stay in the Dorsey home for a few days. We passed an unusual January with no thaw and February has been unusually cold and stormy. In spite of the cold there were 24 members, 6 visitors, and 4 new members at the Congregational Aid. Three honor guests at the birthday table, Mrs. W. J. Ramsey, Mrs. Carl Dieterich and Mrs. Anton Nelson, for the January birthdays. In two weeks there will be a table for those having birthdays in February, and afterwards the table for the honor guests will be the first meeting of each month. Mrs. D. O. Hawley baked and furnished the cake for the guests of Thursday. Mads Madsen went to Ord Saturday for his mother, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Marie Bossen in Ord. Mrs. Madsen will visit her son and family for a time before visiting other relatives. As Dwain and Ada Russell and Mrs. Grant Cruikshank were leaving the Ora Russell home Tuesday morning to return home, Mrs. Cruikshank slipped and fell, injuring her left shoulder and right ankle. She has been confined to the house all the week and unable to get around very much. Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Sloggett are the parents of a baby boy born Wednesday, February 5, weighing 8 1-2 pounds, named Gordon Ray. M. L. Fries and N. A. Lewin were transacting business in Ord Friday. Mr. and Mrs. Maynard Carver of Loup City were visitors at the Wesley Sloggett home Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Morris Carver is taking care of Mrs. Sloggett and the new baby for a few days. Mrs. McAllen of Broken Bow will have charge of the household duties and the new baby some time this week. Cribbage club met at the home of Clayton Ward Thursday evening of last week, this being the final game of the losers and winners, the losers will entertain Thursday evening with a dinner at the Arcadia hotel. The losers were Coach Tuning, Charles Bellingier, Dr. Joe Baird, Otto Rettenmayer, Anton Nelson, Roy Anderson, Alvin Haywood, Jess Marvel. The winners were Clayton Ward, Alvin Lewin, Alvin Lee, Percy Doe, George Hastings Jr., Alfred Hastings, C. C. Thompson, Fred Milburn. A. H. Easterbrook, S. V. Hanson and Floyd Bossen shipped sheep to Omaha Tuesday and returned home Thursday. The Up-To-Date club met Tuesday, February 4, with Mrs. Clyde Hawthorne. There were six members present. The lesson will be given with the next two meetings. Discussions of the Federated convention to be held in Arcadia took up most of the time.

Shovelers Moved Tons of Snow to Open Comstock Highway

Before shovelers went to work Sunday morning, the highway to Comstock was completely closed. Here is shown the deep slope of the Brickner hill where tons of snow were moved to make way for automobiles through the drift, closely packed drifts. Scenes like this were common on all Valley county's main roads after Friday's storm and may be seen again this week-end if the blizzard predicted for last night hits as radio stations warn.

School Boards Of Loup Valley Hold Banquet, Meeting

Ebmeier Toastmaster, Talks Were Given by Norman, Moehnert and C. Ray Gates.

The fourth annual school board dinner sponsored by the Loup Valley High School association was held Thursday evening, Febr. 6 in the high school auditorium at Ord with all members of the school boards of the Loup valley schools as guests. President of the association this year is Millard D. Bell, Ord superintendent. H. C. Ebmeier of Scotia is vice-president and E. G. Lightbody of Sargent secretary. With Supt. H. C. Ebmeier presiding as toastmaster, the program was opened with musical selections by the high school band, directed by Dean S. Duncan. Dr. C. J. Miller, president of the Ord board of education, extended a welcome to the visitors and a response was made by J. C. Green, president of the Sargent board. Ord Man was Speaker. Secretary Ralph W. Norman of the Ord board spoke on "Duties of a School Board Member." Judge E. R. Moehnert, member of the Loup City board discussed, "What a Superintendent Has a Right to Expect of His Board." Supt. C. Ray Gates of Grand Island gave an interesting talk on "Positive Constructive Legislation." The evening's program ended with an open discussion after which a business meeting was held. The Loup Valley High School association was organized in the fall of 1930, Superintendent J. R. Opp of Burwell being elected to the first presidency, C. C. Thompson of Arcadia and W. D. Bailey of North Loup filling the positions of vice-president and secretary. Eleven schools are members of the organization, namely, Arcadia, Burwell, Comstock, Dannebrog, Loup City, North Loup, Ord, St. Paul, Sargent, Scotia and Taylor. Past presidents have been, besides Mr. Opp, C. C. Thompson of Arcadia, Merl J. Benton of Dannebrog, F. E. Sorenson of Taylor and C. C. Thompson of Arcadia for a second term. A three-fold purpose prompted the founding of this organization: First, to promote and maintain a better understanding among schools and education in general and chiefly, to give the students of this territory an opportunity to participate in events which will better train them for the business world.

North Loup Couple Escape Injury in Crash

Enroute home from Omaha Tuesday, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Hutchins of North Loup crashed head long into another car near Columbus. No serious injury was suffered by any of the victims of the accident as at the time, the Hutchins car was nearly stopped and the other car was going at a slow rate of speed. Both cars were very badly damaged in the head-on crash and the Hutchins car was hit by a third car before it could be removed. About five minutes after the accident occurred George and Art Hutchins who were also in that section of the state appeared and upon recognizing their uncle's car, inquired as to where they had been taken, arriving a few minutes later at the hotel where Mr. and Mrs. Hutchins had gone, planning to call North Loup relatives to drive down for them. They returned to North Loup Tuesday evening. —Quality chocolates, special for Saturday, 15c lb. Stoltz Variety Store. 46-11

The Farmer Feeds Them All. The politician talks and talks, The actor plays his part, The soldier glitters on parade, The goldsmith piles his art, The scientist pursues his germs, O'er this terrestrial ball, The sailor navigates his ship, But the Farmer feeds them all. The preacher pounds the pulpit desk, The broker reads the tape; The tailor cuts and sews his cloth To fit the human shape. Of the dame of fashion, dressed in silk Goes for the dine or call, Or drive, or dance, or promenade, But the Farmer feeds them all. The workman wields his shining tools, The merchant shows his wares; The aeronaut above the clouds A dizzy journey dares. But art and science soon would fade And commerce dead would fall, If the farmer ceased to reap and sow, For the Farmer feeds them all. —Exchange.

1936 Cage Tourney Will Be Played In Arcadia's New Gym

nesday. Game six between North Loup and the victor in the Scotia-Taylor battle will be followed at 9:00 o'clock by a game between St. Paul and the winner of the Loup City-Burwell controversy. The contest will go into the semi-finals at 2:00 o'clock Thursday afternoon. A consolation game will be played at 7:30 Wednesday evening before the finals are entered to decide the winner of the 1936 Loup Valley championship. St. Paul-Ord Clash Assured. Closely contested games are assured, all teams putting up a strong fight in an effort to prevent the Ord boys from again carrying home the championship. Since the first game of the season with St. Paul when Ord suffered a 37-19 defeat, the Ord five has made such rapid improvement that fans will be eager to see an almost assured clash between St. Paul and Ord teams in the semi-finals Thursday afternoon. In an attempt to minimize association expenses, school officials are used for all work of the tournament except, of course, the refereeing. Local arrangements and publicity will be under the direction of Superintendent Thompson, Principal Weddell and Coach Tuning. Registration and identification of players will be done by local men. Official timers are Superintendents M. D. Bell of Ord and H. C. Ebmeier of Scotia. Official scorers are Superintendents Lightbody and Boren and the ticket salesmen are Naber and Cain. Trophies, selection and presentation, is in charge of the executive committee.

BROADCAST Station G-O-S-S-I-P Ord By REMOTE CONTROL. This exact thought probably has not occurred to many of you QUIZ readers, but the fact of the matter is, the above mentioned station, came into existence and began functioning as such, with the arrival of Ord's first pioneer settler and his neighbor. Today, it is the town's most prolific industry, if such it may be termed, and numbers its voluntary contributing artists strictly in accordance with records as shown on the census books. Thus we are assured of 2,226 interested and enthusiastic contributors at all times day or night. Our stations call letters clearly indicate that our stock in trade and subject matter handled consists of BARBER IN OTHER PEOPLES'S BUSINESS AND IDEAS, and don't for one minute let anyone try to tell you our stock is not complete and strictly up to date--what with Bud and Sis picking up the "low down" at school, Mom getting it at club, aid society, and over the back yard fence, and Dad hashing over this and a lot more he picks up down town or at work--is it any wonder I ask you that I ask you that we positively know all about YOU and YOU?

In order that the editor may not censor us entirely out of the paper right at the start it might be a good idea to confine our efforts this week to such safe grounds as the weather and the local high school sports program. We mention sports because they seem to be an unexpectedly lively topic of discussion since the green and inexperienced basketball boys have begun to show they really know something of what it is all about. Graduation of that splendid championship team of six-footers last year produced a rather dismal outlook at the beginning of the present season with nothing but short men for replacements. However, under the very able tutelage of Coach Brockman these same shorties are giving us a brand of score-board evidence which positively indicates their belief that an extra good little man can go places and do things quite after the manner of a good big man. Result: only one conference game lost so far this year and that with St. Paul in the season's opener.

Speaking of sports reminds us how frequently we hear mention of the Whittlers Club and elsewhere of the fact a boy upon graduating from high school at any time during the past three or four years has a mighty tough outlook for useful and profitable occupation. Jobs are few and far between and when they do land anything it usually consists of but part time employment. A majority due to financial reasons are unable to continue with a college course, what then are they doing with their idle time? For an unpleasant answer to what far too many of them are doing--we invite you to visit the pool halls any evening and take particular notice of the habits of youthful age and the number of athletic sweaters in evidence there. Ord of course has no Y. M. C. A.--in fact no indoor recreational accommodations of any kind for young boys and men in the formative period. We do however, have one of the best gymnasiums in the state at our high school building, which suggests the thought that no more worth while investment of our time and effort could possibly be made than to direct it toward whitening out some kind of an arrangement with the school authorities whereby this splendid piece of equipment might be made available to Ord's youth for basketball, boxing, wrestling, and such other activities as might seem advisable. Why not a Golden Glove Boxing team for Ord by next year too? Think this matter over readers and if you approve, voice your convictions to some officer of the Chambers of Commerce or the Rotary club, who we are sure will be more than glad to organize the sentiment into some form which can be acted upon officially.

The other morning about ten o'clock we thought it would be fun to slip around to a few private garages and see what we could see. Our quest brought prompt reward and we quote here the strongest and most expressive words we found frozen in the ozone. Either Miss Swain or Miss Rowbal had expressed the worst in starting for school with "Oh shoot". Over at Rev. Smith's "I'll declare" was frozen all around the hood, but the syllables were pretty close together and had icicles on them so they might have meant far more than that. "Gosh darn", slanted out the door at Sheriff Rounds' place, and up on the hill where the winds blow pretty fierce at times a great big "Dam" completely blocked Art Capron's drive-way. About this time we decided it might be prudent to dismiss from our party a number of ladies who had joined the expedition, after which we went on down past Ed Bernack's, Dr. Blessing's, Geo. Allen's, O. H. Sowl's and Ed Kokes's. Well--what those fellows had said that morning "just ain't any of your business" and we're not telling.

The city fathers are to be commended for their zeal and promptness in getting men out to shovel the crossings after each snow. The pedestrian should and does fully appreciate the effort, but the man or woman in the car wishes most heartily the shovelers would make it a bit wider and scatter the shovels full instead of piling it up like dirt from a water main trench. Perhaps it would even be a good idea to put that splendid motor driven street maintainer to work pushing the snow on our streets to one side and leveling these extreme crossing hazards just as it smooths the streets after each muddy spell in the summer time. Remember, it's a long winter.

Carrie Collins, Not Hannah Thomas, Was First Child Born Here, Writer Contends

Was Born Jan. 30, 1873, Writes Mrs. Babcock; Downhower Boy Might Have Been First.

By MRS. E. J. BABCOCK.

The story of Mrs. Hannah Thomas as she tells of her childhood was especially interesting, but it would seem she has confused either dates or facts when she claims to be the first child born in Valley County. It is true her father and mother were the first couple married in Valley county, Neil Anderson and Johanna Mortensen, married as she says, by Rev. Oscar Babcock. But she gives the date of her own birth correctly, the stork made several trips to the valley before he brought her.

According to the Collins family and other early settlers, the first child born in the county was Carrie Collins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Collins, who lived so many years north of Olean. She arrived Jan. 30, 1873, which is seven months before Mrs. Thomas. Carrie married Prof. W. J. Seeley and in 1899 and 1900 they lived in North Loup, where he was superintendent of schools. The last the writer knew she was living in Brownville, Nebr.

The Downhower family who took a homestead six miles north of where Ord now stands claim the child who should have been the first-born, but the exact date is not at hand, probably late in the fall of 1872. An Indian scare sent the settlers scurrying down the valley. Just over the line in Howard Co., Mr. Downhower had to halt and go for a doctor. In a few days the Indian uprising proved to be unfounded. The baby boy who came into the world under such harrowing circumstances was taken back to the farm home where he lived and grew to manhood.

The first child born in the valley through a member of the North Loup colony, did not come to Valley county, but over the line in Greeley county. He was Walter, son of Deacon N. W. and Louisa Babcock, born Aug. 2, 1872. When he was twelve years old he was stricken with a disease which Dr. Badger, in later years, said must have been appendicitis. It was so little known at the time it was not recognized and nothing could save him.

A boy came to Valley county, not long after the Collins girl, but the exact date could not be learned. This boy was Ray, son of an early settler, Herbert Thurston and his wife, Almira. They moved to Colorado a few years afterward. Ray was as far as we know, the first boy born in Valley county.

The night of July 6, 1873, the stork brought a double load and dropped a baby girl on each side of the Valley-Greeley county line. The Greeley county baby was Ida Sheldon, daughter of John and Mary Sheldon, and as far as we know, the first girl born in Greeley county, but her father moved to North Loup where he kept a store nearly all the rest of his life. Ida graduated from the North Loup high school, but after her marriage to Lee Lewis moved to Scottsbluff.

The Valley county girl baby was Dora Terry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Austin Terry whose homestead is now owned by the Nebraska Securities Co., and occupied by Ed Christensen. When Dora was still a child, her father took his family to Oregon. Dora married a Mr. Bell and lives in Corvallis, Ore. These two girls were born just two months before the date Mrs. Thomas gives as her birth-day.

Five more boys were added to the North Loup Colony in the fall of 1873 only two of whom are well known here now. Horace Davis, son of Mansel and Mary Davis, arrived Sept. 14 just over in Greeley county. He was especially known in Ord, where he married Miss Bess Packler and for several years published the Ord Journal. He is now state fire inspector and living in Lincoln.

Ed Wellman, son of Charles and Mary Wellman, was just one month later. Ed grew up here, then became Union Pacific station agent at Callaway, Nebr., where he died a few years ago.

In November came DeLos Babcock, Orville Hurley and a son of Mr. and Mrs. Garret Maxson, all of whom moved away with their parents when young.

The first twins in North Loup, and possibly in the county were born to Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Stewart, parents of Mrs. Byron Johnson, June 18, 1875. The girl lived to be eight years old and died as the result of a fall. The boy lived only a week. It was buried on Watts' Hill, with two other babies. One was the child of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Elliot, the other of Mr. and Mrs. Alza Stewart. The Bill Stewart baby was moved to the North Loup cemetery when that was opened, the Alza Stewart baby to the Scotts cemetery, but the Elliot baby has not been disturbed. Of course, long before this, many other babies had come into other parts of the county, but other writers can best record them.

But many of those first settlers were brought in as small children. Day 6, 1872 the group of Seventh Day Baptists from Dakota, Wis. brought two small boys, too young to remember the occasion. They were John Maryott and Lowell Wellman. The two boys grew up together and graduated from the North Loup high school, but then John and a brother a little older went west with their parents. Lowell was the son of Charles and Mary Wellman. Mr. Wellman was a member of the first investigating committee sent out by the Dakota churches and one of the first men to bring his family here. Lowell and his youngest brother still keep the store their father started in 1878, probably the oldest business house in the county that has been kept in one family.

Everett Babcock, about ten years old, moved to Ord when his father was elected county clerk, and so was identified with Ord more than North Loup after the first few years. He was one of the scholars in the first school. Upon his father's election as state auditor, he went with him to Lincoln which was his home until his death four years ago.

Tom Janes, partly grown when he came, was a business man at North Loup and afterwards at Burwell where he still lives.

George Larkin, at whose dugout the first county election was held March 1, 1872 brought his stepchildren, Ed and Emma Brace and his son Leal. All three were prominently connected with the growth of the community, in business or on the farm, Ed Brace until his death in 1926, and Leal Larkin until he moved to Battle Creek, Michigan. Emma Brace, Mrs. H. I. Green, also too young to remember, and Lowell Wellman are the only ones now living in North Loup who came with that first group of little children.

But just a few weeks after that first gathering here, Mrs. George Rood who had stopped at Central City for a visit, came with her baby Stella, one year old. She graduated at North Loup high school married Jay VanHorn of Davis Creek, and many years later moved to Edinburg, Texas.

Soon many more settlers brought their children and the stork was kept busy swelling the crop that never failed, a crop to which North Loup especially is still indebted. Before 1872 was ended, Rev. Babcock brought his four children, Edwin, Arthur, Myra and George. Edwin became a well-known lawyer until his death in 1925. Only Arthur and Myra (Mrs. W. E. Gowen) still live here. Walter Rood was only a boy when two years later, he rode into Nebraska over the Missouri river bridge astride the family cow, to become editor of the North Loup Loyalist until his death in 1925.

Amos Burdick brought a family of five or six, two or three quite young. In a few years, Mamie, who was partly grown when they came, married Alza Stewart, the man who had filed on the first homestead in Valley Co., but as they lived across the river they were more closely identified with the Greeley settlers. Mr. Burdick's family grew up here but moved away many years ago.

A. H. Davis and wife brought three little ones, Allie, Gerlie and Esther, but only the year old Esther, now Mrs. A. H. Babcock, is with us, for many years filling her father's place as church chorister.

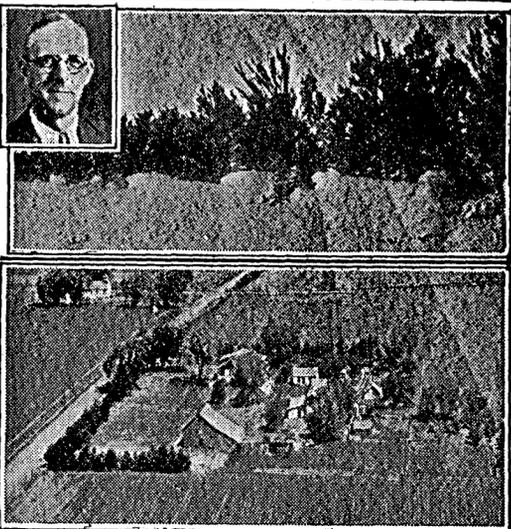

There were many more pioneer children who have moved away. It would take too much time and space to tell them all. But there are many, born at or near North Loup of earliest pioneer parentage, who are still with us, active in public or business life or quiet at home life, Irvie and Louise Sheldon, Rolla Babcock, Merrill Wellman, Glen Johnson and his wife Ava Clement, Hugh Clement, Clara Clement Holmes, Marcia and Eunice Rood, Mary Davis, Jim Johnson and wife Nina Brace, Alice Johnson, Albert and Erlow Babcock, Katharine Babcock, George Gowen, Myra Thorgate, Barber, Rex and Roy Larkin, Ethel Clement Hamer, Stella Clement Cruzan, Bayard Rood, Inez Rood Hill, Margaret Rood and possibly some others.

Their children were the best crop those early settlers raised. Drouth or flood never destroyed them, grasshoppers never devoured them. While many left to help other communities, yet many stayed to build up Valley and Greeley counties, and the large majority of them were an honor to any place.

Palace as a Home

Some 3,000 of the 32,000 people of Split, one of the seaports of Yugoslavia, live within the walls of the Diocletian palace, which covers nearly nine acres, and is one of the largest private residences ever built. Travelers who visit Split spend most of their time outdoors, so that they can enjoy the brilliant sunshine.

"The Tree Planter's State"

1—Earl G. Maxwell, state extension forester at the University of Nebraska College of Agriculture, who is in charge of Clarke-McNary tree planting in Nebraska.

2—Pines on the Chris Lauter farm in Kearney county, planted in 1926, protect the farmstead from blinding snowstorms and hold the moisture.

3—A Nebraska windbreak. Here the entire farmstead is protected from winds.

Nebraskans are more firmly convinced than ever before of the need for a windbreak around every farmstead. They are also determined that Nebraska shall remain "The tree planter's state."

Swirling snow which has swept across the country in one of the most severe winters in the present century has helped remind many people of the need of trees around farm buildings and feed lots. Where trees stand around the buildings, the snow has been caught and impounded. Moisture has been saved. The farm home and dwellings have not suffered the inconvenience of so much snow as the farmstead around which no trees stand.

These facts together with the need for replacing trees which are daily being cut for fuel have awakened Nebraskans to the need for tree planting. As a result, farmers in every section of the state will probably put more than 1,300,000 Clarke-McNary seedlings and transplants into the ground this spring. The trees are distributed through the University of Nebraska, college of agriculture extension service and county agricultural agents for packing and shipping charges.

Already farmers have made application for nearly 750,000 of these seedlings and transplants. With shipping season approximately two months away, they are hurrying to get their applications approved. Blanks are available at all county agricultural agent offices or at the Nebraska college of agriculture at Lincoln.

Highways Blocked Railroads Tied Up By Friday's Storm

land Friday evening. Still no word came so Saturday morning another engine with snow plow attached was sent out from Grand Island.

The motor, steam train and engine all were stalled in deep drifts, crew of the snow plow learned. Engine and plow backed up to St. Paul where the plow was detached, then the engine steamed ahead and pulled the first engine back to that point, then returned and pulled the first train back, then made another trip for the motor, after which the plow was again hooked on and the rails to Ord opened.

Fuel Supply Assured.
There was no service on any of the C. B. & Q. branch lines until Monday when a rotary snow plow opened up the Sargent branch, giving Loup City, Arcadia, Comstock and Sargent their first mail and supplies since Thursday. The rotary plow opened up the Ord-Burwell branch Tuesday but first train to Burwell went up yesterday. Branch line to Ericson was to be opened up yesterday. Six cars of coal and one of fuel oil, held up at Aurora since last Thursday, came into Ord Tuesday night, alleviating danger of a fuel shortage.

Three engines were attached to the rotary plow that came to Ord Tuesday. Worst drift encountered here was just north of Elyria, where a drift 2,000 feet long and about 5 feet deep had formed.

R. N. McAllister, state highway maintenance man here, called a big highway snowplow to open No. 11 south of Ord Sunday. Shoveling gangs opened other highways. Bread trucks were unable to get through until Monday but the Ord bakery supplied all demands. A minor milk shortage existed Saturday when two dairy trucks could not reach Ord.

The high wind Friday packed snow so deeply and so hard on east and west roads that many will be closed until late in the spring. Near the Frank Vodehnal farm in Michigan township 20 men shoveled all day Monday and part of Tuesday to open a single mile of road. Mail route out of Ericson was drifted five feet deep for miles and Jason Abernethy said Tuesday no attempt has been made to open it. "It would take three weeks of shoveling before a car could get through," he said.

Postmaster Edwin Clements reports that Route 2 out of Ord, carried by J. D. McCall, is open most of the way but that No. 1 with W. L. Blessing as carrier, is open only 12 miles out of 67. Route No. 3, carried by Lyle McBeth, is open about half way.

When the storm began Friday temperature was just above the zero mark but mercury dropped as the day wore along and at 6:00 p. m. it was 16 below. Before morning the temperature had dropped to an official mark of 24 below with many thermometers registering 30, 32 and even lower. Few farmers succeeded in getting to town Saturday and the Ord creamery bought only 12 pounds of cream, lightest day's business in eight years. Raymond Christen-Leonard Clochon and Howard Huff were the only farmers to reach town, so far as the Quiz has learned.

Family Has Narrow Escape.
A narrow escape from freezing to death is reported by the Jess Dumberger family, who were moving from Burwell to Scotia. Near the Joe Korbello farm at Olean, Dumberger stalled his motor. His battery was dead and he could not start the truck. Riding with him were his wife and two children, 1-2 and 3 years old. Mrs.

Korbello heard Dumberger's calls for help and her husband went out and guided them to his home, where they remained until Sunday. All were painfully but not seriously frost-bitten but had Mrs. Korbello not heard them all might have frozen to death as Dumberger was not familiar with the neighborhood and no other house near the highway is occupied for almost two miles.

Lowest Mark Was -24.
Practically the whole state of Nebraska, as well as the Dakotas, Kansas and Missouri, were affected by this storm. Radio stations in Lincoln and Omaha broadcasted continuous warnings throughout Friday and many travelers who might otherwise have ventured out unaware of the severity of the storm owe their lives to these warnings.

Official temperatures for the period from Febr. 6 to Febr. 12 are reported by Horace Travis as follows:
February 6..... -6 -19
February 7..... -4 -20
February 8..... -11 -24
February 9..... -4 -18
February 10..... 18 -16
February 11..... -4 -7
February 12..... -6 -10

Yesterday was the nineteenth consecutive day when temperatures reached sub-zero levels in Ord, this being much the longest stretch of cold weather since he has been keeping records in Ord, says Mr. Travis.

Clean Eggs?

.. or Dirty Eggs?

If you went into a store to buy a dozen eggs would you be satisfied to get dirty gumped up eggs with a cracked egg or two among them or would you expect to get a dozen nice clean fresh eggs.

The universal answer is, that you would expect to get good clean fresh eggs, unless you could buy the dirty eggs at a very much reduced price.

Buyers in every market in the United States are pretty much alike. Appearance and quality of food stuffs determine the price the buyer will pay.

And don't forget that all eggs marketed must be bought and eaten by someone.

There is an abundance of good clean straw in the country this year so there is no excuse for not keeping clean straw in nests, poultry houses and scratching pens.

Carelessness in gathering eggs is responsible for a lot of dirty eggs. Never gather eggs in a wet or dirty bucket. Use a clean basket. Do not handle eggs with dirty hands or mittens.

Since eggs are packed in new cases at the packing plant to be shipped in carload lots to market, why not put them in new cases and use new packing material at the grocery store, produce house, or where ever the farmer sells his eggs. The new fillers and flats will keep the eggs clean when the old dirty fillers and flats will make them dirty. Old fillers and flats often carry mold spores which get scattered over the eggs and contaminate them. Later in storage when the eggs will show pin spot mold on the shell. It is folly to try to economize by the use of second hand fillers and flats in the country egg markets when new fillers and flats must be used later at the packing plant.

Fresh Eggs!

$12 to $15 Monthly Old Age Pensions Will Be Paid Here

Accepting Applications Now, Is Word from Kruml; Applicants Must Give Information.

Old age assistance in Valley county probably will run from $12 to $15 per month, including federal aid, estimated George A. Satterfield, county treasurer and member of the county assistance committee, early this week. In the next 17 months Valley county will get approximately $35,000 for old age assistance and it is thought that $50 will apply.

Frank Kruml, county relief director, said yesterday that his office has started taking applications for old age assistance. Due to the large number of detailed questions on application blanks, those interested are asked to study carefully the requirements listed below and prepare the answers so no time may be lost while making out the applications.

The county assistance committee emphasizes that this is not a pension but rather is assistance to needy aged persons. All assistance granted will be made a legal claim against estate of recipient or relatives legally liable and financially able to support recipient.

Must Be 65 at Least.

Before any person is eligible to apply he must be 65 years old or older, must have been a resident of Nebraska five during the nine years immediately preceding application and have lived here continuously for one year preceding application, or have been a resident of Nebraska for 25 consecutive years and lived here continuously for one year preceding application.

During the 12 months preceding application all income including use of own supplies produced must have been less than $360. Recipient cannot be an inmate of a state institution, prison or jail and must have no relative able to support him who has legal responsibility, also he must not have deprived himself of any property for purpose of being eligible.

In making application a man or woman must give full name, age and birthday, length of residence in Nebraska, list of relatives able to support him, sums earned during 12 months previous, land owned, automobile, list household goods, furniture, livestock, poultry, grain and other crops, give amount of cash on hand or in banks, insurance policies and their present status with amount of premiums and names of beneficiaries, list notes, securities and judgments owned, name kin living in his home and their sources of income, give amount of indebtedness, an itemized list of living expenses per month and name three references, not relatives.

Real Estate Questions.

If applicant owns real estate he must give its legal description, in whose name title recorded, date acquired, from whom and cost, is land held in fee, in common or joint tenancy, give description of dwelling house and if property is occupied by applicant or tenant.

Holder and amount of mortgages owed on such real estate must be given, past due interest, assessed value of real estate, holder of tax certificate, if any, holder and amount of mechanic's liens, amount of water rentals owed, insurance on property, judgments, amounts, dates, owners, foreclosure suits, other incumbrances, yearly repairs and upkeep, does real estate produce income and if so what amount, gross value of real estate and its net value.

"If you feel that you will not qualify it will save time and make it possible for some needy aged person to get relief sooner if you do not apply," Kruml says. "All needy persons possessing the necessary qualifications are encouraged to make application but any assistance that may be granted is subject to modification or cancellation, under whatever circumstances may arise."

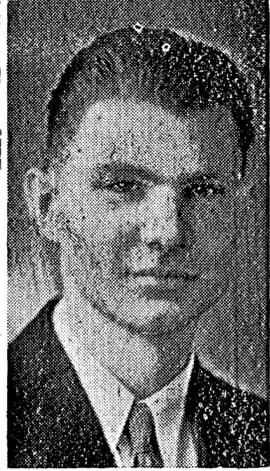

Monthly Meetings For Chamber of Commerce

Beginning Thursday, Feb. 27, the Ord chamber of commerce will hold regular meetings on the last Thursday of each month, directors decided at a meeting Tuesday evening. The entire membership will be expected to attend and suitable programs will be arranged. A light lunch will be served at the close of each meeting. Glen D. Auble is chairman of the committee in charge of program arrangements for the first meeting Thursday, Feb. 27, and Secretary Alfred Weigardt was instructed to mail out notices to all members.

F. E. McQuillan's membership committee has signed up 30 new members, reported President John P. Misko to directors Tuesday evening. The chamber now has a membership of about 125.

CARL SUMINSKI.

Funeral rites, postponed Friday because of drifted roads, were held at St. Mary's church at Elyria Saturday for Carl Suminski, 23-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Bohish Suminski, who died Feb. 11 after an illness with pneumonia. Carl was a bright, capable young man, universally respected and loved.

Frozen Water Pipes Offer Big Problem; Using Electricity

8 or 9 New Cases Daily, Allen
Says; City Mains Have Not Been Affected As Yet.

Since the cold wave started early in January at least 100 Ord homes have been temporarily inconvenienced by water service pipes being frozen and new cases are being reported at a rate of 8 or 9 daily, says George H. Allen, water commissioner. The problem thus presented is the worst in many years. Pipes ordinarily frozen are the service pipes leading from city mains to houses and usually freezing starts at the street end of service pipes, where grading has reduced depth of earth above the pipes. Even where a foot or more of snow blankets the ground frost is 32 inches or more deep.

Electricity is being used by Mr. Allen and his assistants to thaw service pipes. A wire is attached to a faucet or pipe in the house where freezing occurred, another to a pipe in a neighbor's home and a short circuit thus created. It takes from a few minutes to two hours or more to thaw service pipes.

Leave Faucet Running.

For this work the city makes a minimum charge of $1.00 or if the job takes considerable time charges $2.00 per hour for the time used. This is much cheaper than cost of excavating and thawing by old-fashioned methods would be. To avert frozen service pipes the city recommends that one faucet be left running a small stream at night.

Houses along the L street pavement have been affected worse than in other parts of the city, as the grade of this street was lowered considerably when paving was installed.

City employees expect the freezing problem to be even greater when thawing starts as frost will be driven deeper into the ground by the first warm weather.

"Lucky this snow is on the ground or even some of our water mains would be frozen," comments Commissioner Allen.

Many Students On Honor Roll

Many Ord high students have received recognition for superior scholarship during the past semester by receiving unusually high grades. Four students have, in four subjects for the past three six-week periods, maintained grades of A. They are Marjorie Hughes, Ruth Koupal, Lillian Kusek and Lorraine Kusek.

Other students receiving superior scholarship and whose names were on the honor roll as having at least two A's and no C's are: Joy Auble, Armona Beth Achen, Barbara Dale, Virginia Davis, Virginia DeHart, Jean Ferguson, Wilma Kluna, Norma Mae Snell, Wilma Severns, Kendall Weigardt and Allan Zikmund.

Hardenbrook at Office.

Bert M. Hardenbrook was so much improved in health Monday that he was able to spend part of the afternoon at his office for the first time in several weeks. He was there Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons also. Mr. Hardenbrook has been ill and confined to his bed since before Christmas.

Will Give Prizes To Recipe Column Users of Butter

Fred W. Coe, manager of the Ord Cooperative Creamery, has hit on a novel way of rewarding Valley county cooks who had recipes containing butter as a shoening printed in the 1936 cookery calendar issued recently by the Quiz. To each he will give a pound of butter or two tickets to the Ord Theatre, he says in letters sent out this week.

"Since the welfare of this community is vitally affected by the use of butter in cooking and as a spread for bread, we wish to show our appreciation of what you have done in promoting the use of butter," he says.

"We have long contended that there is no substitute for butter and that butter makes good food better," the letter says.

Farmers To Receive Corn-Hog Money The AAA Is Dead

Congress Authorizes Payment of 1935 Money; Committee Back
To Work in Valley County.

Valley county farmers who signed corn-hog and wheat contracts for 1934-35 will receive their payments even though the AAA was declared invalid by the Supreme court, learned County Agent C. C. Dale last week, and he immediately called the county allotment committee back to work at preparing compliance reports.

Congress appropriated funds to pay off farmers who had complied with AAA contracts before Jan. 6, date when the AAA was held void, said the telegram received from W. H. Brokaw, state director.

About $14,000,000 will be paid to Nebraska farmers, of which $150,000 will come into Valley county, it was estimated this week.

Local Work Being Rushed.

S. W. Roe, Charles Veleba and Arthur Mensing, members of the allotment committee here, began work with two assistants and plan to rush compliance reports to Lincoln as quickly as possible. They were well along with the big task on Jan. 6 when they quit work by order of the Supreme court.

At Lincoln more than 300 staff employees resumed work last week, the weekly payroll being about $6,000.

Most Valley county corn-hog contract signers still have one payment coming and some have two, County Agent Dale says. He refuses to predict when the checks will come, saying it depends upon the rapidity with which work is done at Lincoln and in Washington.

Ralph Norman House And Catholic Church Damaged By Flames

A fire Friday morning caused heavy damage at the Ralph Norman house at 1419 L street. Originating in a flare flame burst through a partition and into the roof. Heavy smoke damage also was done and some rugs and furniture damaged by water. So badly was the Norman house damaged that the family had to move the same day into a house owned by Frank Tedrow, where Mrs. C. Mattley formerly lived.

About noon Monday the fire alarm was sounded and firemen called to the Catholic church where an incipient blaze had started around a chimney. The flames were extinguished without the use of water or chemicals and damage was slight.

Both were strictly "cold weather" fires caused by overheated stoves and Ord people are warned to watch their heating plants carefully when big fires are necessary during the present cold spell.

Grover Long Dead In Columbus Hospital

Grover Long, 43, an attorney at Columbus and son of Mrs. W. D. Long of Ord, passed away Tuesday in a hospital there after a prolonged illness. Mr. Long was born on a farm east of Ord and attended school here, later attending University of Nebraska. He was prominent in the legal profession and in 1930 won the democratic nomination for attorney general but was defeated by C. A. Sorensen at the general election. Alex and Leo Long of Ord are his brothers.

Loup Valley Cage Tourney Postponed

Because of cold weather and impassable roads, the Loup valley basketball tournament scheduled to be held this week in the Arcadia gymnasium has been indefinitely postponed, says Supt. Mildred D. Bell, of the Ord schools. Date when it is held will depend on the weather and on success of Loup valley schools in state tournaments.

Fuel Shortage At Burwell, Arcadia

2 Burlington Trains Through in Two Weeks; Hope Worst Weather Has Ended.

Temperatures ranging as low as 22 below zero, heavy snows and high winds have been the portion of central Nebraska during the past week and the result has been the worst traffic tie-up of this winter, which means the worst since 1880. Only today are railroads and highway workers digging main arteries of travel out of deep drifts that formed Monday. There is a ray of hope in the report that more moderate temperatures will prevail for the next few days, although more snow is forecast.

Ord and other towns on the Union Pacific have not suffered from a shortage of fuel and supplies, this railroad having been open though trains were many hours late during the past week. In towns served by C. B. & Q. branches it was a different story.

Fuel Shortage Reported.
The Burlington had a rotary plow and three steam engines in constant service on its branches to Ericson, Burwell and Sargent but snow drifted into deep cuts on these roads almost as fast as it was plowed out, result being that only two freight trains went through on each line in ten days, each going up behind the snow plow.

Serious shortage of fuel at Burwell and Arcadia was reported and at Burwell schools were closed and school coal rationed out to families without any. Coal reached both towns yesterday when the rails were opened.

Rails to Ericson were still closed at noon yesterday but Henry Frey, Ord agent, said the snow-plow was to reach there last night.

Crews Shoveling Roads.
About 100 men are shoveling snow to open county highways, says Harold O. Strombom, county engineer, and he gives the following report on road conditions: Ericson road, open to county line.

Springdale road, open.

Haskell Creek, opened last night to county line.

Sargent road, open west to junction, then south to line; north part hopelessly blocked.

Comstock road, open to 1-2 mile west of Smolik corner; blocked west of there but crew working hoped to open it last night or today.

Davis Creek road, open from church to North Loup; hope to have road open all the way both to Ord and North Loup today.

Arcadia to Comstock, open five miles out of Arcadia and men working to clear rest of it.

New Contract Plan For Shelter Belt

Since the AAA was knocked out by the Supreme court a new contract plan for developing the shelter belt has had to be worked out, says F. M. Hestbeck, chief of the forest service office in Ord, and he is now ready to offer contracts to interested farmers.

Under the new contracts farmers agree to furnish use of the land while the forest service will furnish all trees and labor. The farmer receives no payment for use of his land but gets all products of the trees. As before, the farmer furnishes material for fencing and labor is furnished by the forest service. Cultivation up to June 30, 1936 is guaranteed by the forest service and Hestbeck thinks cultivation will be continued after that time under the same arrangements.

Elwin Auble to Fight.

The Legion fight which was to have been held at Loup City on Wednesday evening was postponed until Friday, February 21 because of the extreme weather conditions.

One of the main attractions of the evening will be the three-round bout between Elwin Auble of Ord and Aldon Thompson of Dannebrog. Auble has proven his ability to both hand out and absorb punishment and is a general favorite for winner of the match. The five-round main event between Lorrick of Loup City and Bud Murphy of Greeley promises fight fans a thrill and numerous other bouts will feature the evening's entertainment.

Allan Zikmund and Evelyn Kokes Rule Ord Schools as Carnival King and Queen

Eight Applicants For Ord Postoffice

Eight men filed formal applications for appointment as Ord postmaster, the Quiz learns, and the Civil Service Commission is now investigating the qualifications of each. Applicants include former Ord postmaster William A. Bartlett, and also Joseph P. Barfa, Alfred L. Hill, Dale A. Norman, William Heuck, Frank Kruml, Mike W. Savage and George Hlavinka. Appointment may not be made for several weeks as Postmaster Edwin Clements' term does not expire until March 10. He will continue to serve until a successor or an acting postmaster is appointed.

Ord In Class A At District Meet

From J. F. Webb, secretary of the Nebraska High School Athletic association which sponsors the state basketball tournament, Superintendent M. D. Bell learns that the Ord basketball team has been ranked as a Class A team and is therefore eligible to compete in the tournament to be held at North Platte from March 4-7.

Last year Coach Brockman's team was entered in the Class A tourney at Gothenburg and after defeating Overton, Elm Creek and North Platte, fell to defeat by the narrow margin of 26-22 in a game with Kearney. The 1936 Chanticleers will battle hard to equal this record. Only one new ruling has been made, a rule permitting each team to use ten players in the tournament rather than eight as of previous years.

Last Rites Tuesday For Henry Hansen

Bachelor Farmer, Cream Buyer,
Died Sat'day at Age of 64;
Was An Avid Reader.

Funeral rites, postponed Monday because of the blizzard, were held at Sowl's chapel Tuesday afternoon for Henry Hansen, 64, who died Feb. 15 at the home of his brothers, Carl and Lewis Hansen, where he had been ill since about Nov. 30. Rev. Mearl C. Smith conducted the services and interment was in Ord cemetery.

The deceased was born in Fremont on Sept. 23, 1871 and moved to Ord in 1893 with his parents, Christ and Christina Hansen, living on a farm in Mira Valley until 1902. Then he moved nine miles north of Ord and farmed for himself until 1910, when he came to Ord and operated a cream buying station and general merchandise store. In business at Wolbach for a brief period, he returned to Ord and opened a grocery store which he operated until failing health forced him to retire about a year ago. In 1934 he was a candidate for the democratic nomination for county sheriff.

Henry was an avid reader and spent many enjoyable hours with his large collection of historical and Biblical volumes. He was kind to everyone and was generous to a fault.

Left to mourn are three brothers, Carl, William and Lewis, all of Ord, two nephews and four nieces. His parents, one sister and three brothers preceded him in death.

Quiz Late This Week.

Because of the lateness of mail trains and rural routes bringing news copy, the Quiz is printed on Thursday morning this week instead of on Wednesday afternoon. It is hoped that the regular schedule may be resumed next week.

Ord High To Issue 1936 Annual; Clear $100 With Carnival

Major Bolles Hour Most Popular Feature Friday Eve; Bad Weather Cut Receipts.

With not one word of reprimand from a forbidding instructor, Ord high students made corridors and halls ring with laughter and fairly rock with noise. Buckets of confetti covered the floor and students rushed madly about in freakish apparel, eyes bright, minds dull, enjoying to the fullest their one night of supremacy.

Ballyhoosers shouted their way—fortune telling, right this way—guess your weight, if we miss you win—Come on in fishermen, no brains required at this game—Step right up and send a telegram, ladies, it's Leap Year.

The high school carnival Friday evening, sponsored by the Student Activities Association in an effort to raise funds for the publication of a high school annual, was underway. A record crowd, present in spite of bad roads and zero weather, brought the gross proceeds up to $195 and netted approximately $100.

Prize to Harold Mella.

Main features of the evening were the Major Bowes amateur hours, conducted under the direction of music instructor, Dean S. Duncan with Laverne Lakin as the capable Major. Talented students performed freely, one or two "getting the song." Prizes were awarded at the close of the evening. Harold Mella for his excellent impersonations of Fire Chief Ed Wynn, Candy of the movies, W. C. Fields and Popeye, was awarded first. Second prize went to the Four High Hatters, a boys' quartette composed of Paul Blessing, Paul Carlsen, Reuben Cook and Kenneth Egloff who sang "Truckin'." A tap dance by Kenneth Egloff added a novel touch to the number.

Also giving good performances were the Misses Ruth, Dorothy and Joy Auble, who as the Mo sisters, Elnae, Melnee and Minee sang two selections. Many other original numbers and performances were given.

Civic Banquet Is Postponed Again

The civic banquet sponsored by Chamber of Commerce, Rotary club and Business and Professional Women's club, postponed last week until February 24 because of bad roads and cold weather, will be postponed indefinitely, directors of the C. of C. decided at a meeting Tuesday evening. James E. Lawrence, stated as principal speaker, will be consulted before the date is finally set but it probably will be some time in March. Representatives of Burwell and North Loup civic clubs will be invited to attend. George H. Allen was appointed a committee to make final arrangements and set the date.

Woman's Club Meets.

At the home of Mrs. Charles Bals Tuesday afternoon, Ord Woman's club members were entertained. Following roll call, which was answered with the naming of a favorite outstanding American personality, Mrs. Edwin Clements led the lesson on "Psychology and Personality." Mrs. Clements was assisted in the presentation of the lesson by Madams M. D. Bell, F. L. Blessing, Edward Kokes and Mark Tolen. At the next meeting with Mrs. Horace Tavis on March 3, election of officers will be held.

Thirty Men Shovel Roads So Officers Can Probe Suicide

Julius Nevriy Hanged Himself
Tuesday in Shed at Son's
Snow-Isolated Farm.

With thirty men shoveling a pathway through the snow for them, Sheriff George S. Round and County Attorney Alvin B. Lee forced their way to the country home of Adolph Nevriy Tuesday afternoon to investigate the suicide of Adolph's father, Julius Nevriy, 76.

About 11:00 that morning Adolph had found his father's lifeless body hanging from a rafter in a shed used as a garage. The Nevriy farm had been isolated by snow for several days but after cutting the body down Adolph plunged through drifts to the home of a neighbor, Robert Psota, and telephoned the news to officers in Ord.

7-Foot Drifts Found.

From the closest point on Highway No. 57 to the Nevriy farm, a distance of about six miles, roads were completely blocked, he told Sheriff Round. None of the neighbors had been able to get out since early last week, he said.

County Engineer Harold Strombom organized a crew of shovelers and accompanied by Round and Lee, started for the Nevriy farm in a truck. Soon after the noon hour they left the highway and the crew began shoveling a path through drifts 4 to 7 feet in depth and deeply packed.

At the same time John S. Vodehnal and Frank Marech, with other neighbors, began shoveling northward from the Vodehnal corner and Germain Hoyt, with twelve assistants, began shoveling the road southward. About thirty men thus were shoveling but it took most of the afternoon to open a road to the Nevriy place and it was 5:30 when officers arrived there.

The facts, as reported to Sheriff Round, are as follows:

Threatened Suicide Act.

About two weeks ago Mr. Nevriy, despondent, had threatened to take his own life but had seemed in better spirits since. He occupied a small tenant house on his son's farm.

About 10:00 Tuesday morning while his son was in the field after a load of hay he entered the shed-garage, climbed on a gas can from there to the car trunk and attached a rope to the rafters overhead. Then he leaped off the trunk after attaching the rope to his own neck. Evidently death was instantaneous.

When Adolph Nevriy returned from the field he noticed the shed door open and went to investigate, finding his father's body. The case was clearly one of suicide and the officers so reported it.

Because it was impossible to send a hearse to the farm because of road conditions, the body was wrapped in blankets and brought to Ord in the truck. It is now at Sowl's funeral parlors pending funeral arrangements, which have not yet been made.

Obituary details will be available next week.

Car, Tank Truck, Collide in Drift

Traffic on No. 11 highway near Olean school was halted for two hours Monday noon when a huge oil transport owned by Leroy Anderson, of Burwell, collided head-on with a car in which Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Clement and Mr. and Mrs. Howard Preston of North Loup were riding, the truck climbing atop the car hood from the force of the collision. Mr. Clement and Mrs. Preston both suffered painful cuts when they were thrown into the windshield and their car was greatly damaged. They were returned to North Loup for medical attention. Two wreckers soon removed transport and car from the highway, permitting resumption of traffic.

The truck, eastbound, and the car, westbound, were coming along the single-way track through a big snow drift when they collided. Drifting snow impeded vision, in fact R. N. McAllister, highway maintenance chief, who came along within five minutes, says it was impossible to see ten feet ahead of his car.

Driver of the Anderson truck says he has been on the present job four years, has driven over a million miles, and this is the first accident he has ever had. Road conditions now are the worst he has ever seen, he says.

Dancing Club Meets.

In a hall gaily decorated to provide an evening at cafe-dancing, Ord dancing club members and guests were entertained last Wednesday evening. Dozens of colored balloons gave an added air of festivity. The dancing club will enjoy their next meeting on St. Patrick's day.

My Own Column

By H. D. Leggett

There is a lot of difference in temperature between Ord where I am this week and southern Texas where I was last week, about 75 degrees.

But there are some drawbacks down there. They, like us in Nebraska, are having a lot of unusual weather this winter and it is cloudy and misty when it doesn't actually rain. And a lot of the time it was around 40 degrees, which Dave Bredthauer pointed out, is a lot better than 20 below.

But I got sick of it and wanted to come home, so I didn't wait for Eugene to wire me that the roads were open, but just loaded up and we came. It was more good luck than anything else I guess, that we got through.

We left Corpus Christi Tuesday morning of last week and arrived in Ord Friday afternoon. It was just 1200 miles. A few hours before or after we couldn't have gotten through, yet we made the trip without incident, except that we had to sit in the car at St. Paul for an hour or so, awaiting a report from Mr. McAllister on the roads.

At Guthrie, Oklahoma where we spent one night, it rained after we got there and the next morning the pavement was a glare of ice. We saw numerous wrecks along the road but by careful and slow driving, we escaped having an accident. We had a half day driving on that ice, then ran out of it. The next night we were at Concordia, Kansas and when we got up it was 12 below and a cold north wind but the sun was shining. We were soon in Nebraska, but didn't see much snow until we got to Fairmont. From there on to York it was plenty deep but some cars had been through and we made it, only to be told that the road to Grand Island was closed, so we had to go back to Fairmont, then west to Hastings and up to Grand Island.

At Grand Island we were told that we might get to St. Paul, but no further. I said we will go as far as we can. At St. Paul McAllister's man said, "You go ahead and we will follow up, as we have to go to Ord, and we will see you through." But he never caught up with us. Other cars were going through and we really didn't have much trouble and made good time. And as it continues to storm we are glad to be home for we know that just so long as we keep on having this "Unusual Weather" up here, they are going to keep on having it down in south Texas, for they get the tail end of most of our storms.

And I want to say right now that we don't half appreciate Bob McAllister and his force of huskies and the work they are doing. It is no fun to have to be out in all these storms. And the more it storms the more they have to be out too. And they are right on the job day and night, doing all that it is humanly possible to do, to open the roads and keep them open.

Of course the roads can't be kept open. Farmers who have a little stuff to sell can't haul it. For the most part they can't even get to town with their eggs and cream and get the groceries that they need. And so we have not enforced the "Stop" notice on the Quiz. When the storm abates and the roads get better, we will have to stop a lot of papers which would have been stopped a month or more ago if roads had been good. We do want to be fair. We know some of you can't get your papers because the carriers can't make their routes. All we ask is that you be as fair as we have been. Come or send your subscription payments just as soon as conditions will permit.

And remember we like to have your daily paper renewals. You would just as soon let us have the commission as to let some stranger have it. Phone us, 17, if your paper is about to lapse and you can't get in and we will take care of it until you can come to town.

I don't want to give the impression that south Texas does not have plenty of good weather. I didn't see it but numerous people from the north who have been there for several winters, told me they had never seen anything like this winter. And we were treated mightily fine by everyone with whom we came in contact.

One couple, Mr. and Mrs. George Martin sr., went far out of their way to make us happy. We bought some fruit from them to bring home and while of course, we couldn't bring enough to give very many a taste, all who have seen and tasted it, pronounce it as fine as they ever saw. The Martins have quite a large orchard and make a specialty of shipping baskets to northern customers. The express on a bushel basket of grapefruit or oranges or mixed is only $1.50 and the fruit costs about the same, so probably one would pay no more getting it that way than by buying it in small lots at home and the quality, well, there is no comparison. To ship it commercially it is picked greener and one does not get tree ripened fruit. George Martin sr., R 2, Brownsville, Texas, is the address of the Martins. Their sons, Joe and George jr., are two fine boys in high school.

THE COOK'S COL-YUM, YUM!

In weather like this the family are ready to gobble up the hottest, most nourishing meal the cook can prepare. There is very little complaint about a dish being too rich, or too filling. Meat and soup are welcome, chill just hits the spot, and hot casseroles full of good smelling meat and vegetable combinations are fine.

Casserole of Meat and Vegetables.
Sear one pint of canned meat in butter, wash and peel two carrots, three potatoes, two onions, cut in two inch pieces. Place meat and vegetables in a casserole. Blend with flour the fat in which the meat was seared, add meat stock and one cup tomatoes with one and one-half teaspoons salt. Pour over meat and vegetables, cover dish and bake in a moderate oven one and one-quarter hours, or until tender. This serves six.

Baked Pork Chops and Potatoes.
Place as many pork chops as you wish in a roaster. Season with salt and pepper. Dot with butter. On each chop place a slice of onion and one tablespoon minced celery. Peel potatoes needed, place them around and on top of the pork chops. Next add sufficient canned tomatoes to cover the meat and partly cover the potatoes. Cook covered until vegetables and meat are tender.

Theresa Spotsnki, Ashton, Chicken Pie.

Singe, draw and clean a good sized chicken as usual. Disjoint. Cover with water and put to boil, add salt and a small onion and boil until tender. When done thicken the gravy with two tablespoons flour mixed with cold water and add a lump of butter and pepper to taste. In the meantime have a good sized enamel pudding pan lined with rich pastry made of a good baking powder biscuit dough. Pour all into the dish, cover with the pastry. Bake twenty minutes in a moderate oven.

Lemon Souffle Pie.
Beat three or four egg yolks until thick as cream, add three or four tablespoons water alternately with one cup sugar, (saving out one tablespoon sugar) and continue beating until very light and thick. Put in a double boiler and cook thoroughly, stirring constantly. When thick take from the fire to cool, meantime beating the whites of two eggs stiff. Put the one tablespoon of sugar into the egg whites, carefully fold into the cooked mixture. Pour into a baked crust, brown in an oven until nicely raised. Whipped cream may be served with this pie.

Sunshine Salad.
Dissolve a package of orange gelatin and add two tablespoons sugar. When cold add three-fourths cup raw carrots grated fine and one small can crushed pineapple, mix well and chill. Serve on lettuce with whipped cream or salad dressing, or unaccompanied.

BACK FORTY
The soil survey bulletin of Valley county was recently completed and mailed out from Washington. It includes a forty page discussion of the county's history, geography, and agriculture, in addition there is a large colored map showing the various kinds of soil in the county. Twenty-five different soil types are recognized, but three major types comprise over three-fourths of the county's area. Nearly one-half of Valley county consists of one soil type—Colby silt loam.

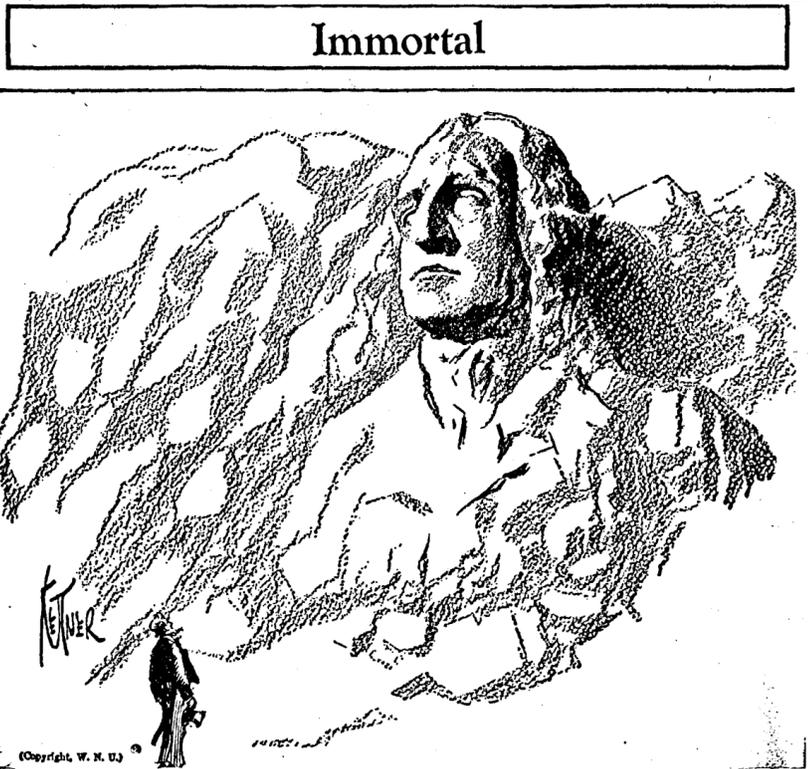

Colby silt loam is our chief upland soil. It lies mainly in the northern part of the county. Alfalfa and sweet clover do especially well on this soil, which also produces corn and oats. Unless carefully managed, erosion soon removes the thin layer of top soil from Colby silt loam, forms gullies, and may render it unfit for cultivation. The hills south of Ord represent the broken phase of Colby silt loam, which is used for pasture. Here overgrazing also results in excessive erosion.

Hastings silt loam is next in importance and also occupies upland—in fact, 85 percent of the area of Valley county is upland. Hastings silt loam occurs mostly in the southern half of the county. In the largest area, about 400 acres, lies about six miles east of Arcadia. This soil is quite fertile, and is adapted to a very wide variety of crops, but often lacks sufficient moisture. Practically all of it is under cultivation.

Hall silt loam occupies third place in total land area of the county. It has formed upon gray silt which washed down from the uplands onto the terraces and higher valleys. Some of the largest developments are in the Valleys of Mira Creek, the North Loup river, and the Middle Loup river. It is one of the best general-farming soils in the county.

Other types of soil found more frequently in the county are Holdrege very fine sandy loam, Hall very fine sandy loam, and Valentine sand.

CARE OF COUNTY BOARD

When the Cat's Away.
One of the pupils of a country school discovered upon arrival that she had forgotten to change her dress before starting out. The child was so terribly embarrassed over her untidy garb that she refused to go inside, and stood whimpering at the door.

The teacher was also in a quandary, for although very strict with her discipline she could not prevail upon the child to enter the door.

To bring peace to the troubled waters, the teacher placed one of the older girls in her chair to keep order, with instructions to write the names of any student who did not walk the straight and narrow, and she would be unto them when she returned. Then the teacher loaded the poorly clad child in her car and went racing to her home to change her dress.

The substitute teacher found herself to have a difficult job. The difficulty was to conduct the spelling and write the names fast enough. Fingers snapped, gum was chewed, erasers hurled. To keep order she retaliated with like medicine. Pandemonium was rife for some fifteen or twenty minutes until the regular teacher's car was seen whirling into the yard.

A calm suddenly settled over the assembly like death itself and as the teacher entered the only noise was that of the substitute teacher tearing into tiny bits a sheet of paper.

"Did you get along all right?" the teacher inquired smilingly.

"Just fine."

"Not a name. Everything went off in good shape."

Not So Bad.

A recent article in the Saturday Evening Post told of a city couple (college people) who lost their job and as a result moved to Nevada mountains to mine. They lived in a log house, carried water from a spring, did their own laundry and hung it out in the cold, had trouble starting their car and the missus had to help, used a coal oil lamp, had trouble getting enough money to pay their bills and eventually had to close down the mine.

All of which, in effect was terrible and worth writing up for a national magazine and they in return paying several hundred for.

I don't doubt that a third of the families in my neighborhood are enduring the same hardships, or more and have been for many years. Many of our houses are not as good as a log house. And if we have not closed our mine down, the income seems to be closed.

My Own Troubles.
Bill Schudel tells me that I am beginning to earn my money now as a writer.

He said he read of a newspaper writer who wrote a column similar to mine and who jumped his boss for a raise. The boss refused, saying, "Not enough snap. You're not worth it. Write things people want to read. Make them mad at you. Make 'em hate you. Then I'll raise your pay."

So the columnist changed his plans and in the course of a few months all the people in the country hated the very ground he walked on. The paper became sought after and as a result the pay was raised.

Regardless of the fact whether folks read this tripe or not, I have learned a little.

In the first place, most people enjoy having their names mentioned, even if it is a joke on them. There are a few who do not and one must learn who they are. The general rule is the more names the better.

Again one should hardly mention religion. Someone may take offense.

School matters are rather touchy as is also the postoffice, I have learned.

Politics are delightful if the reader agrees. Some writers never write of anything else. But locally, folks are apt to tear their hair.

The general editorial is critical and fault finding. That is the reason many small town papers have no editorial at all.

I do not feel capable of giving advice and I attempt to cite facts in such a light one can draw deductions.

More of us are familiar with a lack-of-money condition than with the money problem.

Any man of average judgment can do certain things to forestall catastrophe, but let no man get so certain of himself that he thinks himself master of his fate.

A philosopher writes that it does not matter if the purse is empty if the head and heart are full. In a measure true, but in the anatomical survey let us not forget the belly.

It is not too much to guess that the present administration is going to give away so much of its money that it will cease to have any purchasing value. A very large percentage of the business gains shown by statements as of January 1st, 1936 would shrink to heavy losses if synthetic business emanating from Washington were eliminated.

A "prominent citizen" is described as a bird who bought early and held on while later purchasers developed surrounding property to increase the value of his holdings.

Granting that one may be benefited by prayer, one must qualify by stipulating that the prayers must be made in humility. The world is full of guys who think they can put something over on God, and many of them wear His livery.

When the Highway Safety Drive gets underway, one of the first things local officers should do is to put a stop to Jaywalking. If this is done I imagine that among the first to fall into the hands of John Law will be a sheriff and an editor, but no exceptions should be made. It is a well established fact that more motor drivers observe the law, compared to numbers, than pedestrians.

There was a lot of hurrying around the Ralph Spencer home last Monday when, because of a doctor's mistake, it became necessary to select a dainty little name to give a new baby instead of the sturdy John which had been chosen. Doctors should be more careful.

Newspapers Are Useful! A Leisure Class, Also A Real American Offense and Defense

The Supreme court says: "The free press stands as one of the great interpreters between the government and the people. To let it be fettered is to fetter ourselves." Certainly, the newspaper is to the nation what speech is to an individual, and it is to the crowd what a looking glass is to the individual. History will judge a people by its newspapers, its laws, its theaters, and it will have reason to criticize us.

Arthur Brisbane by his newspapers, its laws, its theaters, and it will have reason to criticize us.

Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan, repeating what Aristotle said before him, said civilization needs a leisure class, and defined as the "leisure class" those that keep a hired girl. Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, thoughtful and wise, improves that definition; a leisure class for her is made up of individuals that "have sufficient economic security and sufficient leisure to find opportunity for a variety of satisfactions in life."

Charles Fourier, French philosopher, said it long ago, and elaborately. Henry Ford said it well, advocating a short work week, with two days off, that men might have time to spend pleasantly the earnings of five days.

All that will come, and more. In the past men worked too hard, while paid and fed too little, and never dreamed of Mrs. Roosevelt's "varied satisfactions," while the prosperous, as a rule, concentrated too much on foolish satisfactions.

All that knew him learn with sorrow of the sudden death of Charles Curtis, former Vice President of the United States. He was an American, a real one, proud of the red Indian blood in his veins. As a boy he rode horse races well and honestly; as a man, he rode the political race fairly. As Vice President he was content with the position that the American people and Constitution gave him. He would have made a good and loyal President had destiny so willed it.

The newspaper heading, "Britain is redoubting her defense plans to offset Germany," should interest somebody in America. This country is not planning to "offset Germany," but it has all Europe, including Russia and all Asia, to think about in these flying days. We should perfect our "defense plans" and particularly our attack plans.

Senator Pittman of Nevada sees Japan shutting us out of China, "even at the risk of war"; says our business men "have been run out of Manchuria already." Japan might reply that her workmen have been run out of the United States. The map will comfort Senator Pittman. Gigantic Manchukuo, bigger than all of old Japan, leans up against Outer Mongolia and Soviet Russia. Japan will not invite trouble with those countries, and war with the United States would invite it.

If you wonder "where all the tax money goes," read this: "In six months the state of New York paid $801,612 for official automobile expense."

And that does not include automobiles for the department of mental hygiene. One official discharged his chauffeur, paid by taxpayers, accusing him of cheating the state out of $2,000 in one year through dishonest gasoline and repair vouchers. That is almost "a business."

"Charlie" Schwab may be seventy years old, but he still "knows his way around." The government tried to get $19,654,856 from Schwab's Bethlehem Steel company, alleging profiteering. Instead of giving the government $19,000,000, the "special master," hearing evidence, says the government must pay $5,000,154 to Schwab and Bethlehem Steel. No wonder Carnegie, who was Scotch, thought a good deal of Schwab.

Dr. G. A. Stevenson, "fellow" in the University college of Oxford, suggests to the London Times that the pax Romana ("Roman peace") of ancient times, when Rome ruled the world and would allow no fighting, should be followed now by a pax Britannica ("British peace"), England ruling the world, telling everybody what to do.

American Olympic athletes appearing on the field in Germany met with gloomy silence, contrasting with applause for European and Oriental Olympic squads. The Americans, who defeated Germany at hockey, score 1 to 0, will survive the silence.

THERE was an inscription on the back of the gold watch. Presented to Henry Smithers in recognition of 35 years of loyal service.

Jones, Ward and Co. "It's beautiful, Henry!" Mrs. Smithers said. Mr. Smithers was slumped in an armchair, hands dug deep in trouser pockets. "Well," he said, "I suppose it's a pretty swell way of telling a man that he's no good any more."

"Don't take it that way, Henry. You ought to be very thankful. They've given you a generous pension. Now you can enjoy a rest." Mrs. Smithers did her best to smile, but in her heart she was afraid. Men retired against their will from jobs held almost a lifetime, forced into inactivity, went to pieces quickly.

Next morning, in spite of protests from his wife, Mr. Smithers arose as usual at seven. He shaved, dressed and was the first down at breakfast.

He was moodily munching a piece of dry toast when the click-clack of feminine heels sounded on the stairs. Doris took her place at the table.

"Good morning, daddy!" Unfolding a napkin, she turned her plump little face with its bubbling blue eyes in the direction of her mother. "Gee, daddy's lucky, isn't he?" she said. "No more rushing off with me to catch the 8:15 in the morning. All day to read his papers and do as he likes."

George, tall and glowing from his morning shower, slipped into his seat in time to echo the sentiment.

"Yes, dad," he said. "Wish I had a little of the spare time you're going to have. I haven't even had time to try out my new fishing rod."

All morning Mrs. Smithers' patience was sorely tried. Henry just moped around. He wandered aimlessly in and out of the kitchen like a man hopelessly lost. Once when she scolded him he made no answer. Just looked at her with a hurt expression in his dull eyes.

After lunch Mrs. Smithers decided that something must be done. She was afraid of what might happen if this went on. Resolutely, she dried her hands and went to find him. Henry was nowhere in the house. The old brown hat he sometimes wore was missing from its accustomed place in the hall. He must have gone off somewhere for a stroll. Mrs. Smithers went to the telephone and put a call through to the office of Jones, Ward and Co.

Mr. Ward, the president, listened with astonishment. Then he said, "But, my dear Mrs. Smithers, we can't take your husband back! He's earned his retirement. If you think the pension's not adequate, perhaps we could—"

Mrs. Smithers had to begin all over again. "It isn't a question of money. Don't you understand? Henry's whole life was in his job. Now you've taken it away! I'm afraid. So afraid! Can't you find a place for him, somewhere, anywhere? Oh, please, please!"

Gradually the president came around. Yes, he began to see. If she'd tell Mr. Smithers to come down in the morning they'd talk things over. Mrs. Smithers hung up the receiver with trembling fingers. She'd done it!

When George came home from work she was almost frantic. They drove down to the village to make inquiries. The butcher put them on the track. His little boy had seen Mr. Smithers heading down towards the river where high banks overlooked the most dangerous part. Mrs. Smithers, white-faced, exchanged glances with her son.

George drove grimly, sending the car bouncing and bucking along the deep-rutted lane. The last fifty yards had to be covered on foot, through trees. As they came out close to the river bank. Mr. Smithers uttered a little weak cry of distress. Halfway up the slope lay a crumpled brown object. It was Henry's battered old hat!

George gripped his mother's arm and steadied her. They climbed to the top and looked down. Immediately below them, at the water's edge, sat Mr. Smithers on a large rock—fishing! Mrs. Smithers' eyes closed and a little prayer of thankfulness went up. Then she looked down again and cried out:

"Goodness gracious, Henry! Don't you know it's getting dark?" The scolding tone in her voice was to hide her relief. "Come on up. We've got good news. They phoned from the office. They want you to go back!"

Mr. Smithers raised the fishing rod, swung the baited hook to another part of the stream and let it fall in again with a little pop.

He looked up at the bank. "Me—go back to that stuffy old office?" he exclaimed. "Not on your life! Look—" He laid the rod aside and held up an insignificant little fish about 4 inches long. "I just landed it," he said with eyes that shone proudly. "Tomorrow I'm going after the big ones. This new rod of yours is a dandy, George. Say—I'm just starting to live!"

Birds, Beasts, Foodstuffs, Trees, Are Found Attending School on Uni. Campus

"What's in a name?" This question, propounded by Shakespeare long ago takes on added significance after a quick peek into records of the registrar of the University of Nebraska at Lincoln. Some of the names of students registered this year are funny, some a bit shocking, and all capable of interesting classification.

There are a variety of famous people whose names are duplicated in the student body: Fenner, radio comedian; Penrod, Booth Tarkington's immortal character; Darwin, father of the theory of evolution; Baer, spectacular prize-fighter; Kellogg, maker of breakfast foods or peace-pacts, as you like; Heinz, of the famous 57 varieties; Kraft, cheese manufacturer; Hershey, chocolate king, and Hoover, shining light on the political horizon—all these have their representatives in actual students attending the University.

Birds and Bees Attend. Although the student body cannot be said to be flighty, there are many Birds enrolled: Swan, Swallow, Teal, Bird, Buzzard and Partridge are some of our feathered friends who, strangely enough walk to school. There are also Bees who buzz around to classes.

The animal world is well represented by students with these names: Cattle, Fox, Wolf, Lamb, Moose and Beaver.

Many students, bearing the names of foodstuffs, would comprise a well-filled larder if they could be lined up on pantry shelves in this manner: Rice, Plums, Wynegar, Lemmon, Ham, Bacon, and Beveridge. Specifically, the Beveridge is Sherry and there is even a Stein to drink it from.

Needed, a Copp. These are the professions which students represent: Butcher, Carpenter, Cook, Thrasher, Barber, Constable, Farmer, Gardener, Harper, Shipman, Baker, Sailors, Tramp, Resler, and a Crook, shamefully accompanied by Swindler and Robb.

The University boasts a cosmopolitan make-up with several nationalities represented. Student names are Ireland, Holland, England, French and Romans. Along the jewelry line there is a Ring, a Pearl and a Diamond.

Alder, Beech, Birch and Redwood trees are to be found on file; other botanical forms are Budd, Bush, Bloom, Rose and Moss.

Nobility is present on our campus. There is a King, a Kaiser, a Knight, a Lord, and a Noble. Nearly every color in the spectrum and a few additional can be seen daily. They are Black, Blue, Brown, Gray, Green, White, and—Reddish.

Parts of the anatomy found in the records are Lepp, Legg and Lipp. An air of sanctity is lent the student body by the array of Biblical names some of which are Abrahams, Moses, Benjamin, Danelli, David and Luke. To go with these, there is a Temple, a Book, a Bishop and a Pope, as well as Pray, and Amen.

Two expletives serve as names for students at Nebraska. One, very vigorous, is Damm. The other, considerably milder is Gee. Adjectival names are very popular. Some of them are Free, Gallant, Sain, Gay, Coy, Moody, Stout, Wise, Young, Blunt, Hasty, Swift, Kleen, Little, Lively, Long and Good.

There is a House and building materials necessary to its construction. On file is a Wall a Floor, Glass, Tools, Hammer, a Heater, Timbers, Stone and Wood.

FARM CREDIT . . .

To Fit the Farmer's Needs

Farming is an industry—the most important in the nation. But it is different from most other industries. It isn't the same as manufacturing automobiles or wholesaling groceries. Farming requires a different type of credit.

Most sources of credit are geared to these other industries—and they do not fit the needs of farming, an industry which moves in pace with the forces of nature.

But the Federal Land Bank is geared to farming—and to farming only. It offers the type of credit that fits the farmer's needs.

A Land Bank loan is a long-term loan. It runs for more than 30 years, with no renewal fees to pay every few years. Payments are arranged so the loan will be gradually paid off—out of the normal earnings of the farm.

And a Land Bank loan carries the lowest long-time rate ever offered on farm mortgages—only 4 per cent a year.

Land Bank loans in this territory are made through this association. Come in and investigate NOW.

Toast, coffee and a glass of fruit juice may be an acceptable breakfast when the thermometer is doing daily gyrations between 90 and 115 but when the mercury drops down to 25 below a breakfast like that doesn't quite hit the spot. When its below zero every person needs more energy producing foods. To be brief, for breakfast you want PLENTY TO EAT.

The season for big breakfast is here. Bacon and eggs, fried ham, pork chops, fried potatoes, griddle cakes, hot cereals—all these are proper breakfast ingredients these cold mornings.

We can supply tasty home-cured or packing house bacon and ham at most attractive prices. Everyone knows the quality and economy of our fresh meats. Let us help you get breakfast tomorrow morning.

the worst of Monday's storm No. 11 state highway has been open between Burwell and Grand Island. From Grand Island No. 30 is open to Omaha and No. 16 is open from Loup City to St. Paul but is hopelessly blocked east of that city. No. 57 to Arcadia was still blocked at noon yesterday by deep drifts near the Ed Hackel farm but 40 Shelterbelt employes, pressed into service as snow shovellers, expected to have it open last night. It is open eight miles out from Ord with the six miles between still in doubt.

Practically all cross roads are hopelessly blockaded and no attempt is being made to open most of them. Ord mail carriers report that they are able to reach less than a third of the families on their routes.

Yesterday was the 26th consecutive morning of sub-zero weather in Ord, shows the weather bulletin given the Quiz by Horace W. Travis, official government recorder. His report of high and low temperatures for the past week follows:

Pupils' Rescue Told By Heroine Of '88 Blizzard

(Chicago Tribune).

Chicago blizzards of the 1936 variety are but pleasant to a heroine of "the great Nebraska blizzard of Jan. 12, 1888." The heroine, Mrs. Minnie Freeman Penney of the Grandeur Hotel, 1055 Granville avenue, recalled yesterday her success in saving the lives of 17 school children.

Mrs. Penney was then a young school teacher. "I have so much to be thankful for," she said. "I didn't lose one of those children."

Tells Her Story.

Many garbled stories have been told of the march through a blinding sleet storm by the then Miss Freeman and her seventeen pupils, ranging in age from 5 to 12. The story as Mrs. Penney told it yesterday is as follows:

The little school house was situated in the center of what was then known as Mira valley, twelve miles from the town of Ord. It was a one story frame building with a sod roof.

It was about one o'clock in the afternoon of Jan. 12, 1888, when the storm broke. A section of the school roof was blown away. Darkness descended suddenly. The snow and sleet blown into the school room by a 60 mile gale quickly extinguished the wood fire in the small heating stove.

No Haven Near.

The nearest home was three-quarters of a mile away. For two hours Miss Freeman marched her seventeen charges around the room to keep them warm.

"If you children will promise me that no matter what happens you will keep together we will try to get to my boarding house," the young teacher finally said. "You must promise that you will hold on to the hand or clothing of one of the others and under no circumstances let go."

The children promised. Miss Freeman led the way, one child at her side, others following two abreast.

Walk Against Wind.

They followed the dirt road. Their journey was against the wind. At intervals Miss Freeman would give the order and all would turn around, their backs to the wind. All would rub snow to their faces, to prevent freezing. What seemed an eternity later, they reached the home of John Kellison, where Miss Freeman boarded. She found one gap in the barbed wire fence that surrounded the Kellison home. They were safe.

Fame came to the Nebraska school ma'am. Her likeness was molded in wax and exhibited in museums. The man she married first saw her image in wax. She had more than 80 written offers of marriage. Eventually she married Edgar Byron Penney, a merchant. Prominent in Politics.

She was the first woman to serve on the Republican national committee. She became prominent in club work, in Red Cross affairs and was the first president of the Nebraska department of the American Legion auxiliary.

"Chicago folks don't know what a blizzard is," she said yesterday. "Paved streets, electric lights, shelter on all sides and help always near at hand! It's a pleasure to be out in a Chicago 1936 blizzard."

Mrs. Penney and her husband have been living in Chicago for many years.

—Mr. and Mrs. Billy Rowbal have named their daughter, born January 21, Carol Ann.

—The infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Mella, born Tuesday, February 4, is very seriously ill and is being cared for by Dr. J. G. Kruml.

—Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Baker were Saturday visitors at the Clyde Baker home.

Business Is Paralyzed!

We don't need to tell you that business is at a stand-still. You all know it and know why. When people can't get to town; can't haul stock; can't even market their cream and eggs, business is at a stand-still. But conditions are going to change. This storm period is going to end pretty soon and you will all be able to resume business as usual. That is why we are writing this advertisement.

We want you to know that we have been spending a lot of our time getting ready to serve you faster and better. We have been ordering repair parts and now have them in stock and can handle almost any ordinary repair job in Plymouth or Chrysler cars. We have plenty of chains and you are going to have to have them this spring. After this cold weather there are a lot of cars that will just have to be looked after. They will all be out of adjustment and it will save you money to have them put in shape and our repair department is all ready to serve you.

We have also ordered new cars. We have on the floor six new Plymouth cars and there is another carload on the road, making a total of ten including all kinds and colors. Why not come in and look them over. No new car will ever be driven until it is sold. They were all shipped in and will not be serviced with gas and oil until they are sold and the purchaser will get an absolutely new car. We are listing below the six new ones on the floor:

1936 Coupe 1936 Coach 1936 4-door Touring Sedans

Used Cars

We also have an exceptionally good lot of used cars, just an even dozen of them, and there is one to fit any pocketbook. We will try to deal with you if you want a car. The used cars are listed as follows:

Pash Da-Ni and the Sage Lily
By DONNA THANE
McClure Newspaper Syndicate, WNU Service.

THE young Indian's impassive face did not alter; a slight stiffening of his hands was the only sign he gave.

He answered through a constricted throat. "Hello."
A lean curly-haired boy about the girl's age came into the store and flung an arm around the girl's shoulders.

Pash-Da-ni loved the girl. He did not want to. He tried not to. None knew better than he the gulf that yawned between Pash-Da-ni, the full-blooded Navajo, and pretty blond Margaret, daughter of the county sheriff.

The curly-head was wearing cream colored corduroys and a dazlingly clean white shirt. Pash-Da-ni wore a checked calico shirt, waist-band overalls, clumsy cowhide shoes; and his long black hair was knotted up in back.

The sun was several hours past the zenith when the youth rode up to the hogan that was his home. He dismounted, strode inside, took a bundle from a dark corner, and rode away.

Tomorrow, when the sun was directly overhead, his friends and relatives of Ha-spe-de would gather in the open space before his father's hogan. Ha-spe-de would pour a basket of water over his hands and he one over hers in the ancient tribal ceremony of marriage.

He loved Margaret, the white girl, but he would wed Ha-spe-de, the Indian maid, tomorrow. He slid to the ground, stalked to the river bank and stood with bowed head looking down into the depths, glistened by the moon.

When he clambered out he dried himself with his hands, shivering a bit in the night wind. He picked up his clothes and flung them contemptuously into the water.

He turned upstream toward the town, watching the ground as he went. Soon he found what he was seeking, the pale gleam of a clump of sage lilies. He plucked a handful of the frail blossoms and carefully wrapped their stems in damp grass.

Before a white house on a back street he paused. Lightly he vaulted the picket fence and stood beneath a cottonwood tree that grew under Margaret's bedroom window.

Pash-Da-ni moved out into the light to look at his flowers. Some of the fragile things were drooping. These he took out and threw away. Seven perfect blooms remained.

He perceived a small white bed in the far corner and heard the sound of slow breathing. The girl lay on her side, one hand under her cheek and the other thrown up over her head.

Pash-Da-ni spread his seven sage lilies fanwise and placed them on the pillow by the girl's face. Then he turned and swiftly and noiselessly was across the room.

Suddenly, although no breeze blew, he shivered. It was long past midnight. It was his wedding day.

Gip's Alibi

By WILBUR CRIFE
© McClure Newspaper Syndicate,
WNU Service.

"THEY got me!" Slick Sarrett stumbled into the tiny walk-up apartment on Eighth avenue where he was hiding out with his pal, Gip Gerard. His face was ghastly.

"Gyp had rushed to the window at the sound of shots. He whirled now, a runt of a man, but broad of shoulder and powerful for his size. As Slick slumped to the floor he tried to catch him, but too late. "Joe Ramell!" Slick whispered the name of his assassin and Gip knelt to listen. Grim lines formed in his face. Then, with frantic concern:

"Let me get a doctor."
"No use," Slick's slender hands reached up to hold him. "I'm done for." A grayish pallor crept into his cheeks. "Seef . . . you can find Johnny—"

"Sure, I'll find Johnny. Now, don't you worry about Johnny. And"—his voice grew husky with threat—"I'll take care of Joe Ramell, too."

Slick closed his eyes.

Gip had a sentimental streak about funerals. He gave Slick Sarrett a showy send-off. A riot of color ending in a riot of gunfire. With the police taking part and so many shots being fired there was no way to determine who did kill Joe Ramell.

Gip went to the hospital with a bullet in his hip. Before he recovered a clever dick traced a stick-up job to his door. Enough to send him to the big house for a year.

But Gip did not mind that. He was free again, and not the kind of baby to stay broke long. He still had his coupe with bullet-proof glass, too. In this coupe, and with ideas in his head, he started for Indiana.

Johnny Sarrett was a likable and pleasant faced lad. Three of his fifteen years had been spent in bed. Gip stared at the silky, brown hair, the shrewd blue eyes, lips full and tender as a girl's. The resemblance of father and son fascinated him. Careful questioning netted the information that Johnny's spine might be made good as ever, with an expensive operation.

Gip placed a hand on his shoulder. "Leave it to me, kid. One of these days I'll have lots of jack."

"You've already done too much." Johnny waived the operation with a smile and a hopeless gesture of his thin hands.

"Tell me about father."
Gip's association with Slick Sarrett had been almost brotherly. He had a great many things to tell which made Johnny's eyes glow.

Gip departed with hearty promises to return in about a week. But he was no more than five miles away when an armed posse in a feet car headed him off.

The officers laughed at his ignorance of a local bank stick-up, a half hour earlier. Certain their captive knew all about it, they made a dryly humorous explanation. A short, broad man had driven up to the bank in a coupe. He had invited the cashier to open the vault, and the latter had done so with a nasty looking pistol jabbing his ribs. After cramming eleven thousand dollars in a brown leather bag, the bandit got away. Bullet-proof glass had protected him from a hail of lead, fired by vigilantes.

Gip sneered, "I haven't the money. You've got the wrong man."

A search of his car proved the truth of his first statement. But unfortunately for Gip, it led to the discovery of the bullet-proof glass and a wicked looking rod in the dash compartment.

Gip was in a hot spot. Any variations in appearance between himself and the real robber could not be determined. Another thing was against him. The house where Johnny lived was on a side street, isolated from other dwellings. It was quite unlikely anybody had noticed his parked coupe. And there had been no traffic at all.

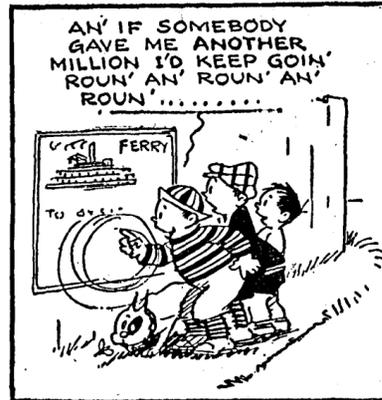

But there was one tiny ray of hope. If he could convince the authorities that he really had visited Johnny, he might be able to prove his presence in the boy's room at the time of the stick-up. So he told the sheriff all he prudently could, and this officer, unconvinced but fair-minded, sent a deputy to investigate.

Johnny had already learned of the robbery. But he did not know Gip was in custody. He was in a fever of excitement, thinking that Gip had pulled the stick-up right after leaving him. To pay for Johnny's operation, no doubt. His heart nearly burst at the thought of this loyalty in his father's old friend.

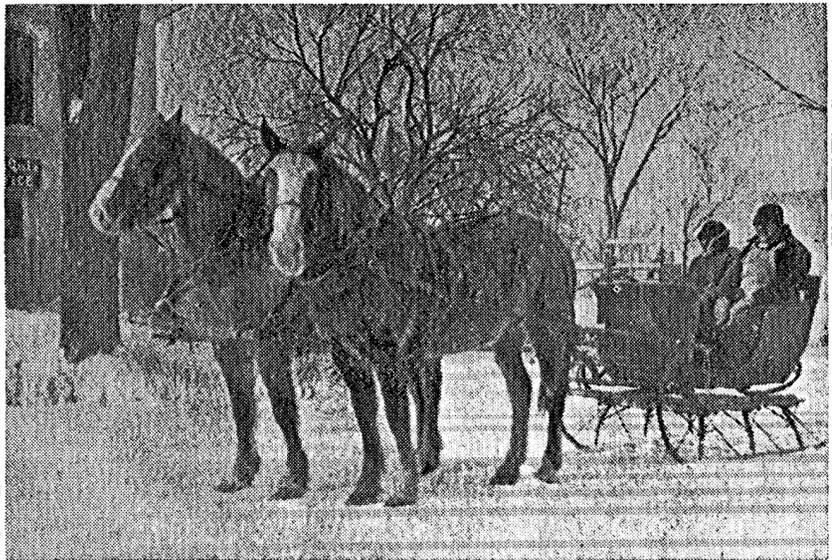

Besides, Johnny had been trained to the belief that a lie is generally better than the truth. When the deputy asked bluntly if he had a visitor that afternoon—a little man with a gray mustache—he answered with easy promptness:

"Nah-h! Ain't never seen such a guy."
Gip Gerard went back to prison. Johnny Starrett had learned that telling a lie is easier than disproving it.

"REG'LAR FELLERS"

Sleighs Now Being Seen Revive Memories of Old-Time Winters

Probably twenty-five years have elapsed since this sleigh, formerly owned by Jake Peterson, made its last trip to Ord. Back in the old days when every winter brought heavy snows, Mr. Peterson used the sleigh every winter but snowless winters have been the rule in recent years and it fell into disuse. The old sleigh is now owned by Walter Fuss who drove it to town last Wednesday, sleigh bells and all. In the sleigh with Mr. Fuss is seen Ole Whitford. The picture was taken in front of the Quiz office by H. E. Jones, staff photographer.

North Loup News

About sixty men and boys attended the banquet given by the Community club for this year's football team in the M. E. church basement last Wednesday evening. George Hutchins acted as toastmaster and talks were given by Rev. Nichols, Chas. Sayre, Coach Thorpe, Supt. Bailey and Charles Zanger. The banquet was served by several ladies of the church under the direction of Mrs. W. O. Zanger.

Paul Weary came over from Kenesaw Friday evening and was the guest of Carmen Weber at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Horner until Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Stillman are parents of a son born on Sunday, Feb. 16. The Roy Hudsons and Harold Hoepners were hosts to the bridge club at the Hudson home Thursday evening. Several members were unable to be present because of the severe weather. The party was a valentine affair with refreshments and decorations in keeping with the date. Regular prizes were won by Mrs. Dallam and Bill Vodehnal. Winners of the traveling prizes were Mrs. Thelin and Bill Vodehnal.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Horner were Sunday dinner guests of the Wm. Horners.

Charlie Faudt is attending an insurance convention in Bloomington, Illinois this week. He is expected home Saturday.

The Warren Baileys, D. R. Sandys and Jesse Thorpes were at the Zanger farm coasting Sunday afternoon.

Mike Folski, who had been to Grand Island to take a civil service examination, came up on the train Saturday evening and stayed at the Wm. Horner home until his family came in after him later.

Dr. W. J. Hemphill returned Sunday morning from Denver where he had been for several days. The annual election of officers was the main feature of the Community club meeting which was held Monday night at the Ideal Cafe. Chas. Sayre is the new president, H. L. Gillespie the vice president and W. H. Vodehnal, the secretary-treasurer. The treasurer's report for 1935, which was read at this time, showed that some three hundred dollars had been used by the club for worthy purposes during the year. Supper was served by Mrs. Hawkes. Twenty members attended.

Mrs. Jennie Hawkes had the misfortune to fall Sunday night in the lobby of the Strand theatre, cutting her face, necessitating several stitches in the forehead. The pupils in Miss Kosch's room enjoyed a Valentine party Friday afternoon. The children had drawn names and each one brought a candy bar. A Valentine exchange was also conducted and Miss Kosch served cookies and fruit salad.

Russell Kasson spent the week end in North Loup. Art Lange left Tuesday for Spalding with the Kasson household goods.

The Albert Babcock family, Mrs. Chas. Sayre and Helen Joyce were Saturday dinner guests of the Bert Sayres.

At a meeting of the Library Board Monday afternoon it was decided to keep the library open only Monday and Friday afternoons until April first. In behalf of the country people who have books and have found it impossible to bring them in, it was decided to allow them to bring books in whenever they can and leave them at the bank or Dr. Hemphill's house. In cases of this kind no fines will be charged.

Myrtle Sayre and daughter Helen were supper guests of Opal Thorpe Monday evening. Frank Kruml was down from Ord Tuesday afternoon helping with the old age assistance applications at the North Loup bank.

Mrs. Russell Kasson and Louise expect to leave for their new home in Spalding as soon as the roads are opened.

Mrs. Myra Gowen entertained the Albert Babcock family at dinner Monday.

The February meeting of the P. T. A. was held at the school house Tuesday evening with the members of the school board in charge of the program. Several questions were given out for discussion and musical numbers were prepared by Miss Gordon and Albert Babcock. Others taking an active part on the program were E. F. Eyerly, James Johnson, A. M. Stillman, W. D. Bailey, Miss Carmen Weber, Roy Cox and Art Hutchins.

Monday H. H. Clement was taking Mr. and Mrs. Howard Preston to Ord. Heading west at the five mile corner they entered a one-way track through a deep drift at the same time an oil transport entered it from the other side. The wind was blowing the snow so much that it was impossible to see and the truck and car came together in a head-on collision. Mr. Clement was cut about the head and Mrs. Preston cut and bruised some. The Clement car was badly smashed and a front axle broken on the truck.

Newspaper Kept in Cane

During the World war a group in Brussels, in constant danger of their lives, clandestinely published and distributed a little newspaper of facts, under the nose of the German army, which never caught a single individual with a copy in his home or upon his person during a three years' search. "La Libre Belgique" was printed on thin paper, letterhead size, and each dealer received his supply in a hollow walking stick.—Collier's Weekly.

UNCLE SAM LENDS A HAND

Hundreds of thousands of farmers through the United States like this one are getting a real lift from the federal government through the Resettlement Administration. In the Dakotas, Nebraska and Kansas, nearly 45,000 farmers have received loans through the Rural Rehabilitation division of the Resettlement Administration. As a result farmers who have been waging an uphill struggle are enabled to secure food, stock, feed, fertilizer, implements, and other farm necessities. State headquarters are located in Bismarck, N. All Stands Profitable.

Under the directorship of Miss Elva Johnson a Bingo stand was conducted, prizes being awarded to the winners. Miss Olivia Hanson, assisted by several students told fortunes by the art of palmistry and in the dimly lighted room, fragrant with incense, where tea and wafers were served, a convincing note was added. Prof. W. S. Watkins and his assistants guessed weights, missing rarely and then only by a few pounds. A novelty stand, selling confetti, noise makers and balloons did a rushing business as did also the lunch room conducted by Miss Elina Olson and her Home Economics class.

Another special feature was the puppet show presented in the auditorium by Miss Ellen Servino, public speaking instructor, and her classes. An athletic event was well attended, the closely-matched events being arranged by Coaches Brockman and Cowel. A fishing pond was conducted and many succumbed to the desire to fish when a catch of some kind was assured. Later in the evening a grand prize was given to the holder of the lucky number which was given out with each ticket purchased. The prize was awarded to Russell Rose. A telegraph station under the supervision of Miss Bernice Slote and management of the Oracle staff kept several pages busy delivering telegrams.

Coronation Biggest Feature.
Climaxing the evening's entertainment was the crowning of the king and queen of the carnival, selected from twelve contestants, two from each class, by popular vote, five votes being awarded with each ticket purchased. At 11:15 the march started and crown-bearer Anne Jensen entered the room, followed by attendants of the king and queen, the other candidates, who were dressed in white. The king, Allan Zikmund, freshman, and Evelyn Kokes, senior, advanced to the stage and following the coronation ceremony at which Laverne Lakin officiated, marched slowly out.

At midnight the building was quiet and empty save for two janitors who glanced dismally at the strewn and disorderly building.

LETTERS FROM QUIZ READERS

Ft. Robinson, Neb., Feb. 16, 1936.

To the Quiz:
Tomorrow is annual inspection day and everybody, patients included, have been more or less busy for the past ten days getting everything ready for the big day. Most of the patients are supposed to have a part in this work, but a select few including myself, do not have to do anything unless we want to. Everything, from the attic to the basement, four floors in all, has been given a thorough cleaning, and so the inspection should be a howling success. The snow continues to fall and now we have had 30 days with an average of below zero straight through. The snow is a foot deep on the level and the thermometer stands at 26 degrees below as I write. The minimum was 34 degrees below.

I read with much interest the report of the Ord municipal plant in last week's issue of the Quiz, which arrived four days late, and note with interest that Burwell is rightly given a high place in the ratings. However, this is from the state records, and some interesting facts are necessarily left out. For example, Burwell's low for 25 K. W. is correct at $1.41, but this does not take into consideration the fact that for a number of years the city council has made a Christmas gift to the patrons of the December light bills. As this is a heavy month, it figures approximately 10 percent of the yearly total, which would cut the 25 K. W. actual price to $1.269. Taking 10 percent off the figures in the other two tables and averaging, will place Burwell far ahead of any and all competition. Also, Burwell's minimum per month is 94c while the minimum of some other towns runs as high as $1.25 and few, if any are less than $1.00. The above hasn't much to do with affairs at Ft. Robinson, but may possibly be of interest.

Got a card from the F. A. Johnson family of Burwell this week, in which they say that they have been reading my weekly letters with interest. The Quiz has a well deserved circulation in the Burwell territory. The weather has been responsible for the scarcity of news, but I might go back and tell of my impressions of Crawford, which I consider one of the finest towns I have ever seen. That also reminds me that the town has had two bad fire losses in the past few months, a fire in November gutted the building occupied by the Northwest Nebraska News, the loss being practically total on both building and equipment, which as you know, means a real financial loss. About the first of this month fire ruined the entire interior of the leading billiard parlor, and also a small cafe built into one corner of the building. This pool hall was larger and better equipped than any in Ord or Burwell.

My first trip to Crawford was on a Saturday and the cowboys from the surrounding ranches were out in force, bedecked in their best ranch regalia. To tell the truth, it looked very much like Burwell the Saturday before rodeo, except that the concession men were absent. On special occasions they have some real times here, I am told.

In spite of the prolonged cold, Soldier Creek and White river, which it joins just east of the fort, have been open all winter. In $3 or $4 take your choice!

Last year, because of the Cow and Feed shortage, following the year of 1934, our volume of cream was the smallest since 1927.

The Interest on Capital Stock, the depreciation of our building and equipment was just as much as in the years when we made over a half a million pounds of butter. There are other items of overhead costs that are just about as much whether we make 300,000 pounds of butter or 500,000 pounds in one year.

If we had bought 125,000 pounds more butterfat, our profits would have been increased considerably more than our expense of handling this additional volume, and instead of a 3c per pound patronage dividend, we would have been able to pay 4c per pound. In other words the man who got $3.00 in dividends would have received $4.00 and the man who received $30.00 dividend would have received $40.00.

There is still a shortage of cows in this community and we need MORE butterfat if we are to operate this plant on an economic volume basis.

If you haven't patronized us in the past, why not sell your cream here in 1936 and then compare results. Correct weights, honest tests and satisfaction guaranteed.

VOL. 53 NO. 48

Artichoke To Be Important Crop Here Next Year

243 Acres Signed in Central Nebraska, Auble Reports; Interest Increasing.

Interest in the white Jerusalem artichoke is increasing at a rapid rate among Valley county farmers, says L. J. Auble, local representative of the United Artichoke company, and already 243 acres have been contracted for this crop in central Nebraska. Several farmers of the Ord community have contracted 5 or 10 acres each, he says.

The contract being offered by Mr. Auble requires farmers to buy seed from the company at a price of $7.50 per hundred pounds and offers them $14.50 per ton for all artichoke tubers they grow this summer and fall on their contracted acreage.

Valley county's soil should produce from 6 to 10 tons of artichoke tubers per acre, it is thought. Near Fremont last summer several farms produced 10 tons and more per acre.

Eventual use for artichokes will be production of commercial alcohol to blend with gasoline but for the next two years there will be a market as seed for all that can be produced.

Scientists contend that the United States has only a 9 1-2 year supply of petroleum in all known oil fields and at all known levels so it looks as though gasoline will soon be 50c or more per gallon unless it is conserved by use of alcohol as a substitute, says Mr. Auble. The white Jerusalem artichoke will produce as much as 300 gallons of alcohol per acre.

The Gurney interests at Yankton, S. D., have been selling an alcohol-gasoline blend for some time and last month marketed over 2,000,000 gallons of this kind of fuel. It works well in all automobile engines, users have found.

Eventually it is hoped that an alcohol distillery can be constructed in Ord but 300 acres must be planted to artichokes here or in adjacent counties annually to support such a distillery.

Artichokes require little cultivation, will produce a big crop in sandy soil or in semi-arid regions and the tops form excellent forage for livestock. With a market assured for the tubers it looks like a good proposition for farmers to investigate.

Mr. Auble will be glad to furnish information about any phase of this subject to any farmer interested.

Nervy Funeral Service Saturday

Funeral rites were held Saturday at the Sowl chapel in Ord for Julius Nervy, 76, who committed suicide three days previously on his farm between Ord and Arcadia. Rev. Mearl C. Smith conducted the services and Anton Bartunek read an eulogy to the deceased. Interment was in the Bohemian cemetery here.

Mr. Nervy was born March 9, 1859 in the village of Rutka, Moravia and as a son of poor parents began work in the coal mines at the age of 12. When he was 21 he served three years in the Austro-Hungarian army and soon was married to Antonie Veleba. In 1889 they brought their family to the United States and settled at Crete, Neb., where for fifteen years Mr. Nervy was a laborer and farmer. From there he moved to Valley county and this was his home until death.

Surviving are three sons, Ignatius, Joseph and Adolph, all of Ord, and a daughter, Mrs. Frank Novotny of Kimball. Two children, Mrs. Lucy Zadina and Julius, Jr., preceded him in death. He also leaves 17 grandchildren.

Married in California.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Peckham received word this week that their son, Frank, who went to California last November, was married Feb. 15 at Hamilton City to Miss Helen Aguesta. They will make their home in Hamilton City where Frank has steady work.

1935 Football Champs of Loup Valley Given Trophy at Arcadia; Clark Is Free Throw King

By holding Loup City to a scoreless tie on a muddy Thanksgiving Day football field, the Ord High gridsters won the championship of the Loup valley conference for 1935 but not until Monday evening were they given the handsome silver football mounted on a polished hardwood base that is emblematic of the championship. Here, at left, is shown Honorary Captain Paul Blessing holding the trophy. Coach Brockman, center, coached both football and basketball in Ord high school. Bud Clark, right, made more free throws than any other player during the 1935 Loup Valley cage tourney decided Monday and thereby won possession of the trophy he is holding. H. E. Jones, staff photographer, took the picture.

Jones Will Speak At Ord Chamber's Monthly Session

Quiz Man to Discuss Taking And Making of News Pictures At City Hall This Evening.

As a principal feature at a meeting for all members of the Ord chamber of commerce to be held at the city hall at 7:30 tonight, Thursday, Feb. 27, Howard E. Jones of the Ord Quiz staff will give a talk on the taking of news-pictures and the photo-engraving process that should prove interesting to all who have wondered how the Quiz portrays local news events and personalities in picture form.

This will be the first of a series of monthly sessions to be held in 1936 by the Ord chamber. At a recent meeting of directors it was decided to adopt this method of bringing business men of the city together once a month.

Each time a program will be arranged by the membership committee, which is headed by Glen D. Auble, and each time a lunch will be served at the close. The meetings will be free to all members.

At these sessions business men also should feel free to bring up problems of community interest for open discussion and should make suggestions that may lead to betterment of the city.

Mr. Jones' talk tonight will deal not only with semi-technical points of the photo-engraving process but also with news photography and his advice is bound to prove beneficial to every amateur snapshot taker.

After the program a lunch of chili will be served by Ed Mover and his committee. It is hoped that all members of the chamber will attend this first monthly meeting and prove to directors that it is possible to have a live organization of business men in Ord.

At Death Owned Same Place He Located On 50 Years Ago; Was Ill Long Time.

Samuel N. Gilroy, who came to the North Loup valley in the early 80's as a homesteader and at death owned the same place he located on there, passed away Saturday afternoon, Febr. 22 at his home in Ord. He was 80 years old and died as he had lived—honored and revered by all.

Born in Wyoming, Ia., on Oct. 15, 1855, Samuel Gilroy grew to manhood there and on May 27, 1879 was married at Anamosa, Ia., to Katherine Preston. The Gilroys moved from Iowa to Omaha in 1881 and lived there 2 1-2 years. Then they came to Valley county and took a homestead near North Loup in 1883.

For a time in early days Mr. Gilroy lived in Scotia and operated a livery barn. He has the record of taking the first traveling salesman from Scotia to Greeley, at the time when Scotia was the end of the railroad. From Scotia he moved to Ord and later to Burwell, engaging in the same line of business in both communities.

From Burwell he moved back to his homestead for three years and in 1905 returned to Ord, living here until his death Saturday at the ripe old age of 80. His health was good until the last two years.

Four children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Gilroy, two dying in infancy. They were Olive Pearl and Leslie Edward. Mrs. Gilroy passed away six years ago. Left to mourn are a daughter, Minnie, a son, Clayton, and a three months old grandson, Lyle Clayton Gilroy.

Mr. Gilroy was one of the honored pioneers who developed this country and possessed those sterling qualities that characterized this group of people—honesty, integrity, neighborly kindness. He was especially devoted to his home and family but made and kept many devoted friends.

Funeral rites were held Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 at the Methodist church, Rev. Mearl C. Smith conducting. A quartet, composed of Mrs. Jos. P. Barta, Mrs. Mark Tolen, J. R. Stoltz and James B. Ollis sang, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Robert Noll. Pallbearers were Noble Ralston, Henry Marks, C. J. Mortensen, George S. Round, Dr. G. W. Taylor, William Bartlett, D. C. Haught and Carl Sorenson. The flower committee was made up of Madams William Ramsey, C. J. Mortensen and A. W. Tunnell. Interment was in Ord cemetery.

'Twas Back of This Snow Wall the Embattled Youngsters Stood--As Photographer Passed

Near the R. N. Rose home in west Ord Sunday afternoon a terrific battle was in progress. Within this snowfort and behind its walls five boys were busily making snowballs, pausing occasionally to throw at members of another "army" that was preparing to storm the fort and likewise was accumulating ammunition. Just then H. E. Jones, Quiz photographer, drove by and seized the chance to get a human-interest picture that will be enjoyed by every reader who remembers his own boyhood.

City Employees Labored By Flood-Light Tuesday Eve to Fix Broken Water Main

While Ordites slept Tuesday night Water Commissioner Allen and several of his assistants labored mightily to repair a broken water main on the Quiz corner. With a flood light, shown in foreground, to see by, they dug a deep hole to reach the main, then tunneled beneath pavement to reach the break. Throwing out a shovel of dirt while back in the tunnel was Chester Austin while Vern Stark. Water in the hole was icy-cold but the men worked on, so Ord people could have water as usual Wednesday morning.

Kenneth Draper Hurt In Coasting Accident

Kenneth Draper, popular grocery clerk in the Farmers Grain & Supply company's Ord store, suffered painful injuries while coasting last Friday evening and will be in bed three or four weeks. Mr. and Mrs. Draper and their children, with several other families, were coasting on the Weekes hill. As he pulled a sled up the hill Kenneth was struck by Freeman Haught's car, which was coming down the hill. Ligaments in one leg were pulled loose but the leg was not broken as was thought at first. Happy Holloway is taking Kenneth's place in the store during his absence.

Cold Wave Broken After 29 Zero Days

After twenty-nine consecutive days of zero or sub-zero weather accompanied by heavy snow-fall and high winds, the worst cold spell of modern years was broken last Saturday when the mercury remained above the zero point through the 24 hours. St. Paul Apostles Edge Out Ord, Win Valley Tournament

Meet Decided in Semi-Finals When Saint Won, 42-40; No. Loup Runners-Up.

Without question, Ord was the second-best team entered in the Loup Valley basketball tournament at Arcadia Saturday and Monday.

Beyond a doubt the St. Paul Apostles were the best. When an accident of the draw bracketed these two teams together it was realized at once that the tournament would, for all practical purposes, end when these two teams met in the semi-finals.

The expected happened and St. Paul won by the mealy margin of two points, score being 42 to 40 with Ord leading at least half the time. Two great basketball teams fought it out on the floor of the new Arcadia gymnasium Monday afternoon and when the final whistle ended the game every cage fan in the building knew that the finals would produce no such a conflict as they had just seen.

The Apostle-Chanticleer battle was one of those nip-and-tuck, high-scoring sprees in which real basketball addicts delight. First one team would take the lead, then the other. In the first period Ord appeared to have the best quintet, leading 17 to 12 at the end, but along in the second half things took a different turn and St. Paul lead 39 to 31 with only a few moments to play. The Chanticleers then put on a scoring spree that pulled them up to equal terms but there wasn't enough time left and St. Paul's final basket was enough to win for that team.

In the meantime North Loup defeated Arcadia, 17 to 12, to go into the finals against St. Paul. The St. Paul-North Loup game Monday night was a fine one, North Loup putting up a valiant battle but losing 40 to 25. Thus the Apostles walked away with the coveted Loup Valley conference championship held by Ord since last spring.

To win their way into the semi-finals the Chanticleers Saturday scored Sargent under, 49 to 9, for the biggest score piled up during the tournament. And in the consolation Saturday night Coach Brockman's boys again proved their mettle by beating Arcadia 49 to 18 to capture third honors.

Next Thursday the Ord squad goes to North Platte to compete in the Class A district tournament being held March 5, 6 and 7. Ord drew a bye in the first round but in the second round meets Lexington, which also drew a bye. Lexington is one of the strongest teams entered, having been defeated this season only by the Curtis Aggies, Kearney and North Platte. Should Brockman's boys emerge victorious they will play Kearney, which already has a 26 to 22 victory over them, in the semi-finals. Last year Ord was defeated by Kearney in the semi-finals of the Class A tournament at Gothenburg.

Even though the Chanticleers did not repeat as conference champs they have a fine season's record and Ord people are proud of them and of their coach, Helmut Brockman. In every game they played clean, hard basketball even though rough or dirty tactics might have won a couple of close contests.

Correcting An Error.

In a story on the front page of last week's Quiz it was stated that 300 employes returned to AAA work in Lincoln. It is called to our attention that there are only six compliance employes on the job and never have been as many as 300. The statement was taken from a United Press dispatch in the dailies which was badly garbled.

Water Main Bursts Beneath Pavement Near Quiz Office

Employees Have Worked Since Sunday to Repair Trouble; Few Homes Without Water.

The most serious mishap to occur in Ord's water distribution system in recent years was revealed Sunday morning by a geyser of water spurting from a manhole in the paving near the C. A. Hager & Company office. Water Commissioner George Allen soon diagnosed the trouble as a burst water main and since Sunday all efforts of city employees have been directed toward locating and correcting the difficulty.

Water south and west of the bursted main was shut off from about noon Tuesday until almost midnight while Allen and his assistants dug a deep hole inside the curb at the Quiz corner and installed a valve so water service to the Quiz office and hospital could continue. Service to a few homes west of the Quiz office is still shut off.

A tunnel beneath the pavement was being dug yesterday and Commissioner Allen hoped that by last night the broken place in the main would be reached. Repairs will not take long after the trouble is located.

Whether frost caused the difficulty or it was caused by an imperfection in the main was not known at noon yesterday.

New Farm Relief Law

Washington. — We have a new farm relief law on the way. The natural and logical question is, what does it mean? A parallel question is, what will it do? And, among the cold and non-partisan analysts of the Washington field one also hears a third question, namely, is the sponsorship of any of the numerous farm plans, Republican or Democratic, sincere? Congress, for the sake of its political hide, is anxious to do right by agriculture. It is attempting to supplant the invalidated Agricultural Adjustment act with a law about which its individual campaigning members can talk, to which they can point with pride.

But there are other and unofficial farm plans bobbing up here, there and everywhere. It seems to be the open season for proposals to aid agriculture. Few, if any, of them are grounded completely in sound practice. Each of them ought to be conceded commendation for some of the provisions they include. None of them, including that which is backed by the New Dealers, is going to completely solve the farm problem because we are going to have the farm problem with us for next year and the next and a good many years thereafter whether we like it or not.

The tragedy of the current situation is that the farm relief plans, taken individually or collectively, constitute—I was going to say a mess and on second thought I believe that is the most appropriate word that can be used. Throughout the administration's proposal for aid to agriculture and perpetuating every other proposal that has been put forward, whether by statesmen or panacea promoters, one can find a splendid collection of objectives that cancel each other. I mean exactly that.

Recognizing the breadth of the statement I have just made, evidence seems to be necessary. Let us look at these various plans, or certainly at the one that is scheduled to take the place of AAA.

First, the administration proposes to take something like five hundred million dollars each year from taxpayers in one form or another to use for benefit payments to farmers. It proposes to use these funds to save the soil, to prevent further carrying away of productive elements in our soil by continued cropping. New Dealers describe the purpose as prevention of erosion.

With that purpose, it seems to me, there can be no quarrel. Ever since the successive portions of our country were settled and the forest coverings removed, soil has been subject to erosion by rain, flood and by wind. The Department of Agriculture says that the top soil of probably fifty million acres has been destroyed in that manner. It would seem, then, that it was high time our government was finding ways to stop it.

Admitting the soundness of this phase of the program, one then must turn to another phase that is not written into law but results from it. If the fertility of soil is improved, is it not natural then that there should be an increase in production? And if there is an increase in production, is it not logical further that we may find ourselves developing a huge surplus of commodities from the farm—and with no foreign market? The answer obviously is, yes.

So, we find these two circumstances in the administration farm bill, proposed, even driven, by that group of New Dealers who, until a few months ago, were declaring here, there and everywhere that to maintain price we must have scarcity of production. That theory was basic in the AAA and was carried out to the furthest by Secretary Wallace and Administrator Chester Davis.

Must Pay Benefits

There seems to be no doubt among students of the farm problem that a subsidy, whether by that name or some trick phrase, for agriculture cannot be avoided. Some way, somehow, money is going to be taken out of the federal treasury to pay benefits, subsidies, to the farm population. I do not know whether anyone can predict where such a policy will lead as a long-term national program. Political figures seem to be content with a temporary solution, something to get farm votes. In all of the debate that has moved through the venturers of the house and senate chambers, discussion of the farm problem on a long-term basis has been noticeably absent.

This fact is just as true when an old-New Deal farm program are subjected to a searching analysis as is the administration's plan itself. It applies to the proposal of an export bounty, offered by Senator McNary, senate Republican leader; to the plan of George Peek, former AAA administrator, to the piecemeal presentations of Senator Borah, Idaho Republican Presidential prospect or to the ideas advanced by Senator Dickinson, Iowa Republican or any of the others.

Since it seems established that the subsidy plan will and must be kept as a part of any farm policy, the problem is narrowed down to the question of how it will be administered. Each plan provides machinery—political jobs—for administration. That fact, however, would seem to guarantee inefficiency rather than efficiency in administration. Each of the plans obviously must reach into nearly every county in the United States and the experience gained from AAA administration forces the conclusion, regretful as it is, that no efficient means for administration has been suggested.

An unbiased investigation of the whole situation, as far as I have been able to make it, prompts me to say that until partisan politics is eliminated from farm relief considerations, farm aid is going to continue in a mess. Perhaps it is a character of our system of government that the condition exists, but whatever the reason may be, I am convinced that there ought to be a distinction between the giving of a subsidy as such and the giving of a subsidy to accomplish other purposes. I mean by that if we are to have a subsidy, let us not get it all mangled up with a lot of prescribed conditions which bind the farmer hand and foot. I am one of those who believe that the average farmer is better equipped to solve his own problem than are his professional leaders who call themselves heads of farm organizations or the politicians who prate about the farmer and think only in the terms of his voting number. So I say until the farm problem can be separated from politics and until it can be separated from theories of regimentation and crop control and binding the farmer by a lot of conditions, there will not be any effective solution for the farm problem.

Grafters Take Their Toll

Several years ago when the present work-relief policy was young, a reader wrote me a letter because I made the statement that crookedness was bound to crop into administration of the relief programs. My prediction was predicated not upon any clairvoyance or ability as a soothsayer but upon a knowledge of the difficulty that necessarily harasses the management of a far-flung organization. It was predicated as well on an understanding that there was no way on earth to keep politicians and visionaries out of these organizations. I had no apology to make to that reader then but I do have the privilege of boasting just a bit since administrative heads of these organizations in Washington have been put to the necessity of cleaning up one dirty problem after another. It has happened in countless places, not with the consent of the ruling authorities, that petty grafters have crept in, have taken their toll.

Now, however, evidence is seeping through to the top in record form, of another danger in the attempted management of so many different groups from a central office in Washington. The best illustration of this that I have seen comes from New York where the local relief organization has a "writers' project" in operation. Just at this time the local New York authorities, with the assistance of Washington headquarters, are trying to find out whether radicals, many of them of foreign birth, have taken charge of the New York "writers' project."

One man, Samuel McCoy, assistant director, has been dismissed. He has charged that reds are in control and that they are taking up their time proselytizing and seeking new members of a Communistic organization.

Against his charges, those he attacked countered with accusations that McCoy has continuously sought to promote Fascism among the writers.

It is an unhappy thing to occur. Here we have a paternalistic federal government seeking to provide people with work and some measure of compensation for that work, and we see a political problem injected into it. I do not know what the end will be, nor is it pertinent to this discussion. The point is, after all, that it represents, indeed it proves, the futility of attempting to run all of these things from Washington. Those who favor the old idea of states' rights certainly cannot want for ammunition in defense of their beliefs.

Homarus Americanus

By CAPN T. ORDORNE
WNU Service.

BENT SAUNDERS chugs into Skulpin Cove in his lobster boat, puts his day's catch aboard the skiff and skulks ashore. A stranger at the landing hails him. "I say, captain, I would like a half dozen or so of your legal size Homarus Americanus."

Bent straightens up and growls: "What in 'ell you drivin' at?" "I said I wished to purchase a half dozen Homarus Americanus. I presume you refer to them as lobsters."

"All engaged. None to spare," Bent tells him. When he gets home he asks his daughter what Homarus Americanus has got to do with lobsters. She tells him it's Latin.

Sixty miles we will go to a big city where live Lydia Hawkins and her widowed mother. Cap'n Abel Hawkins, an old coastwise skipper, had left his wife and daughter comfortably well off. We find Lydia, at twenty-five, a teacher of French in the high school.

For a year she had been running around with a young man named Knowles. He drew a fair to middling salary with a big hardware concern, and had kept an eye on the stock market. He had run a shoestring into a bank roll and was some ten grand to the good. So he and Lydia plan to wed the next June.

Apple blossom time comes along and grassy June is just over the horizon. Then one evening A. Benton calls.

"Lydia," said, "I have lost every dollar I had in the world and this morning I was given a month's notice at the office. I give you back your promise. I can't marry you now."

Lydia Hawkins liked A. Benton for himself and didn't have the slightest idea of hearing him over just because he'd gone broke.

"Bent Knowles, you damn lobster! You're squealin' like a stuck pig. Where in h—l are your guts?" "No woman can talk to me like that," he tells her. "I thought you were a lady." He steps to the hall, grabs his hat and is gone.

A. Benton goes home to his room, sits him down and considers. It was all off so far as Lydia Hawkins was concerned. Next day he boards a bus and turns up at his Uncle Benton Saunders' cottage at Skulpin Cove. After a good lobster supper, ples going, A. Benton tells Uncle Bent his troubles.

"Benton," he says, "do you think you can haul a lobster pot? We'll rig forty more pots and I'll let you in on shares."

Lydia Hawkins misses A. Benton and is sorry she lit on him so hard. She waits and waits but no word comes from him. In the meantime, she runs afoul of Prof. Alvin Barstow, who teaches Latin. One night he asks her to marry him. There is a lot about the professor that she likes. So she tells him that she needs time to think the matter over. But all the time she's hoping to hear from A. Benton.

Professor Barstow invites Lydia to go for a day's outing to a place down on the North Shore called Skulpin Cove. There they can procure some Homarus Americanus fresh from the sea.

One morning they make an early trip to Skulpin Cove.

"We've got to go fishing!"

She hires a dory and drops her keel outside of the breakers on Raggy Neck. They have luck.

Lydia makes a move to haul in the grab and row ashore with the professor when she sees she has anchored in too close to the point. Just then a motherly old sea curia over, the dory capsizes and Lydia and the professor are hoist out.

The dory is bottom up but the grab holds. Lydia holds the professor by the collar, swims the few strokes to the dory, and hangs on. She has seen a fisherman in a power boat headed for the capsized dory, driving hard. He shuts off, reverses to a standstill, and helps the girl and the professor aboard.

As Lydia straightens up she says: "Gosh, Bent, your old boat stinks like h—l!" Then she wraps her bedraggled self around that fisherman and sobs for joy.

Bent Saunders, working in his ash house, sees them coming up from the landing. "Well, I'll be dod-diggered!" says Bent. "It's old Homarus Americanus!"

They dump the professor into his car. Bent takes the wheel and streaks it for his house. He strips the professor, wraps him in blankets and telephones for old Doc White.

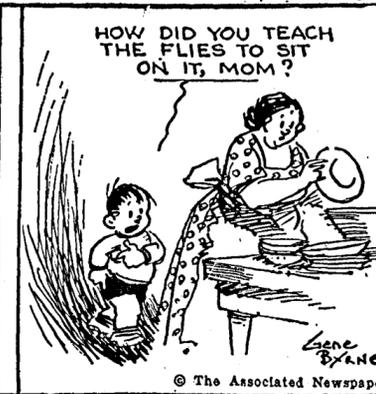

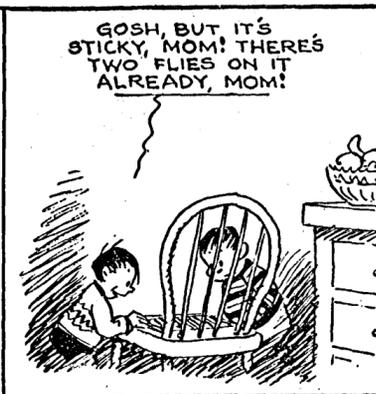

A. Benton and Lydia come home in Bent's truck. What talk they have is not set down.

Professor Barstow and Lydia Hawkins drove back to the city next afternoon. He leaves her at her door and drives away without a word. He never calls again.

That evening, tobacco burning free, A. Benton tells Uncle Saunders the story. "She's got the right stuff in her," Saunders tells A. Benton. "Don't let her get away ag'n."

There are more matches made and mended long shore with the aid of salt water than are made and mended at country clubs with the aid of gin.

Minnesota Cavalcade Came July 2, 1877, Saw Valley First From Devil's Gap

Former Ord Man, Now Resident Of California, Writes Tale For Quiz Story Contest.

By MARCUS E. GETTER,
 1871 Granada Ave.,
 Long Beach, Calif.

May 25th, 1877 there started from Freeborn county, Minnesota a cavalcade of nine wagons, 100 head of horses and cattle piloted by 20 people, old and young, with one object in mind, to reach as expeditiously as possible a great and beautiful valley in the then far western state of Nebraska.

Five weeks of toilsome, but more or less happy traveling culminated in arriving on the banks of Cedar River where now is located the thrifty little city of Ericson. At that time this usually quiet little river was more than banks full, so much so that travelers dared not attempt crossing in its rushing waters. After camping there a couple of days hoping that the waters would recede, there appeared to be no end to the roaring torrents, but rather increased, it was decided to send an ahead over to Calamus a scouting delegation, viz. S. L. R. Maine, and another young man, Horace Stillman, with a view of securing a boat. These young men mounted on trusty horses plunged into the rushing stream, a few moments later they waved adieu and rode away in the direction of Calamus and Fort Hartsuff. They reached their destination in a few hours, it being less than 30 miles from that point to the little village of Calamus.

There they found friends but no boat, but upon the advice of C. K. Ferguson they rode back to camp piloted by Mr. Ferguson, and by that time the waters had receded to an extent that they were able to ford the stream though it was still difficult and attended with considerable danger.

However all came through without accident, then the wagon train took up its course once more. Happy faces and words of congratulation now seemed to compensate for the vexing delay. The long sought for destination was now but a few hours away. It was about 4 o'clock P. M., when the most glorious and beautiful vista burst into view. Having reached what was then known as Devil's Gap, an opening between two hills high above the valley, the whole wagon train stopped, and with eyes of amazement looked upon the much coveted, and long sought for Valley of the Loup. How well the writer remembers that first and wonderful sight which came into view, the miles of green waves that looked like fine pasture lands, the wondrously beautiful river that looked so peaceful and inviting, and it may be truthfully said that it was not many days before many of these travel worn and dusty pioneers had the pleasure of bathing in this, one of the most delightful waters that it had ever been their experience to know. There is one more thing to be recalled, when standing on that high elevation, and looking away across the valley over the river and beyond, we saw shocks of rye that had already been harvested. The sight of that field of grain standing in the distance gave promise to these homeseekers in a new land of future abundance. This was on the second day of July, 1877. The writer of this experience of pioneer days established a home in the then little village of Ord, where it was his great pleasure to remain for 20 years, to take part in the activities and upbuilding in one of the most fertile valleys on the American continent. I will make no exception. It was created with rich soil, abundant sunshine and a most wonderful and constant stream of soft water, all of which belongs to the land, placed there by the Giver of all good. When it is applied to and properly distributed, as it should and will be some day in the near future, that valley will furnish food for countless thousands of people, and the power that will be generated by the falling waters will perform the labor of the inhabitants thereon located.

During these early pioneer days many things of interest occurred that may be recalled later.

What Other Editors Are Saying

Aricultural Research.

There is apparent contradiction in the claim that agricultural research work should continue in these days when farmers are urged to produce less in order to receive more. Unthinking ones decry the cost of expensive experimentation and the channels through which the results of agricultural research may be brought back to the farmer for his profit.

It is this ever-occurring effort to limit scientific agricultural research that forms one of the greatest dangers to agricultural progress. The claim is made that we have already discovered more scientific facts than our farmers use, so why continue spending money in developing new information. And it is surprising that many supposed leaders in this industry are among the complainants.

Other industries do not rest on their oars, even when surpluses are piled in warehouses. There is a continuous seeking after new methods; new experimentation is going on in laboratories, and cost analysis is the concern of every executive.

It is just as reasonable to conclude that medical science having discovered many facts about how to promote health and prolong life, should let up on research and take a holiday until the human race catches up.

Research in the interest of better farming and better farm life provides the promise of our agricultural future, therefore it ought to continue. The work should not only go on, but in carrying the results to the farmer, the truths revealed should be welcomed and applied to individual needs.

Those who throw stumbling blocks in the path of agricultural research work should somehow be brought to understand both the folly and the danger of their doctrines. Even though the farmer is asked to cooperate in reduction programs in order to reduce existing surpluses and thus increase price, any means that will make the remaining production easier, should be embraced with enthusiasm.—Record, Statesville, N. C.

Jefferson's Great Dream.

The more closely you scan the trend of affairs in the United States over the past century, the more you must be of the opinion that the present era is the forerunner of a great transition in our theme of government. This nation was founded, and Thomas Jefferson visioned it as such, on the theory that the average man would own his own land, and also that a majority of the population would remain in agricultural centers.

But this dream of Jefferson's has not materialized; most people work for others, and they do not depend upon their own land for sustenance. The result is that we now have a generation of voters, the majority of whom are products of city industry; they do not know the feel of an ax as it clears farm land in a forest; they do not thrill to the turn of a furrow as they sow crops; they have no recollection of the beat of wind and rain and snow and sleet upon their bodies as winter tried to drive them from the conquest of Nature's elemental environment.

The net result of all this reveals a majority of American citizens unable to appreciate the priceless heritage of free self-governing privileges; the resulting citizen apathy and disinterest therefore leave the way of government open to the demagogue, the predatory and mercenary politician; and, unless human beings reform, you can figure out for yourself how and when some form

Reclamation of Prison Inmates.

Supt. H. L. Merry tendered comment the other day prepared by a federal probation officer, regarding the treatment of paroled and released inmates of the federal institutions. It was in the form of a letter to citizens at large urging their assistance in receiving these men back into normal citizenship activities. It was as follows:

"It is conservatively estimated that one dollar of every four dollars of our annual income is the amount of our crime bill. This terrific expense of 13 to 17 billion dollars annually can be reduced by an interested, aroused, cooperative citizenry, rather than by passing more laws.

"It may interest you to know that less than one per cent of the 173,768 arrests in the first six months of 1934 could be identified by the Bureau of Investigation as being on parole at the time of arrest. In view of admitted inadequate parole service in some states, this is an irrefutable answer to some current unfavorable publicity on parole. The successful completion of 93 per cent of all federal paroles last year without a known violation in those cases is also a matter of record. The percent of success of all federal probation cases was even better than the parole record.

"Over 90 percent of state and federal offenders return from prison to society. Prisons offer only temporary protection. The only permanent protection is the rehabilitation of select offenders who are eligible for probation and parole. These are potentially good citizens who may become self-sustaining and law-abiding or parasites and liabilities. The most important factor in their rebuilding is the citizen who takes an active interest in advising a probationer or parolee. Many of these offenders would never have been in difficulty if they had gone to some responsible person and discussed their problems.—American, El Reno, Okla.

The Larger Concept.

While chambers of commerce are created and supported largely by business men, and while they deal primarily with questions that directly affect the business world, they have been led by the ramifications of business itself to deal with a wide range of activities that are not in themselves commercial but that are the concern of business because they affect the general welfare of the community.

Does business stop with buying and selling, with producing and distributing? On the contrary, it is inter-knit with the whole social and economic fabric of our times. A chamber of commerce in a city of Ohio, let us say, puts on a campaign to speed up repairs and improvements. One man of means agrees to spend several thousands of dollars in improving his estate. Does that affect local business alone? No, his improvements may involve the ordering of stone from Indiana or Minnesota, cement from Illinois or Iowa, ornamental devices, seeds and plants from other states—which in turn affects labor, markets and transportation in those several distant communities.

So with the larger aspects of business; so with the relationship of the chamber of commerce to business. Directly and forcefully through certain of its activities it serves the interests of commerce, trade and industry; indirectly, but no less effectively, it serves those same interests through its concern in matters of community, state and national interest. Business is affected by state and national legislation, by governmental policies, by social conditions and by the manner in which people live, by the degree to which they are educated and even the extent to which they are happy.

So, while the chamber of commerce is essentially a business institution, its horizon extends a little beyond pure business alone. There are imponderable factors involved that embrace loyalty, civic pride, community service, and the willingness of individuals to perform work they do not have to do in order that others may be a little more prosperous, better educated, more comfortably housed, surrounded by conditions of greater safety and sanitation, and afforded not only better commercial opportunities but richer possibilities of getting the most out of life.

This is the larger concept of the work of the chamber of commerce. News, El Dorado, Ark.

THE COOK'S COL-YUM, YUM!

Wintertime salads are a real problem. The housewife must assemble attractive salads out of carrots, cabbage, apples, dates, oranges, bananas, onions, and gelatine, or combinations of these materials, with a few added flavors. And since salads are a badly needed addition to winter time meals, the cook tries, with the green things at hand and the aid of canned fish or possibly hard cooked eggs, to charm the children and father into thinking the old standbys are made into something new and delightful.

Tangy Fruit Salad.
Skin two oranges, two bananas, one grapefruit and cut up. Seed and cut up one-half pound of white grapes. Chill the fruit. Beat two eggs, cook with a speck of mustard, salt and pepper to taste, three tablespoons vinegar in a double boiler until thick. When smooth and cooled, beat in one cup whipped cream, pour over fruits which have been arranged on lettuce leaves. Chopped marshmallows may be added, and one-third cup chopped nuts makes a nice garnish.

Russian Salad Dressing.
Cook until thick the juice of four lemons, one and one-fourth cups sugar. Add one tablespoon Worcestershire sauce or A 1 sauce, one tablespoon paprika, one tablespoon mustard (the prepared kind is O. K.) and one cup catsup. Mix in a bowl with an egg beater. Add the lemon mixture and one cup salad oil and eight tablespoons vinegar. Add the vinegar and oil alternately, which thickens the dressing. Put in a quart jar and place therein one garlic bud. Makes almost a quart of dressing, ready to use.

Mrs. J. Lee Boyer, Omaha. Sweet French Rolls.
Scald one cup milk, when lukewarm add one cake of dissolved live yeast softened in one-fourth cup lukewarm water and one and one-half cups flour. Beat well, cover and let rise until light, one-half to three-quarters of an hour. Then add one-fourth cup sugar, one teaspoon salt, one egg and one egg yolk, one-half teaspoon lemon extract, one-fourth cup melted butter and enough flour to knead. Let rise again until light, like any other dough. Then roll out on the board, to about one-half inch thick, spread with butter, a few pecans, cinnamon and a sprinkling of sugar. Roll up like jelly roll, slice off and bake these rolls in a small pan, as this makes them easier to handle when baked. This is a very good recipe.

Tillie Urban, Grand Island. Hole in the Middle Cake.
Sift together three cups flour, two cups sugar, four tablespoons cocoa, two teaspoons soda, one-half teaspoon salt. Scoop a hole in the center, and put in two cups thick sour milk, two unbeaten eggs, one cup melted butter, one teaspoon vanilla. Mix well and bake in not too hot oven in loaf or layers. Ice with your favorite icing and serve fresh.

Mrs. Oscar Bredthauer. Potato Rolls Supreme.
Heat one quart of milk to scalding, add one cup sugar, one cup butter or other shortening, one cup mashed and sieved potatoes, two eggs beaten light, two teaspoons salt and cool to lukewarm. Crumble two cakes of compressed yeast into the liquid, also one teaspoon soda, two teaspoons baking powder and the grated rind and juice of a large lemon. Add six cups flour, beat vigorously until smooth, elastic batter is formed. Set in a cozy place until it begins to rise, then add enough flour to make a soft dough, or about eight cups. Knead lightly until smooth and place in a greased bowl. When making rolls, pinch off a portion of dough, roll thin on a floured surface. Cut with a biscuit cutter, brush with butter and fold over. Arrange in greased baking pan and let rise two hours, bake in a quick oven twelve to fifteen minutes. Coffee cake and cinnamon rolls are especially good made from this dough. One-half the recipe works out well.

...TERRAPLANE

—JUST COMPARE—

THIS with THIS

Terraplane alone among all popular low priced cars gives you this:

- Full 115-inch wheelbase.
- 195 inches over-all length.
- Most power—88 or 100 horsepower—with freedom from vibration at all speeds.
- Body all of steel, with seamless roof of solid steel.
- Most inside room—145 cubic feet—more leg and shoulder room, and widest rear seat.
- Completely new style—best insurance of the investment value of your car.
- The only rear opening baggage and tire compartment on 5 and 6-passenger models that can be had in any low priced car without extra cost. Spare tire lies flat inside.
- Duo-Automatic Hydraulic Brakes (patent applied for), two braking systems operating automatically from one brake pedal. And a third braking system from the easiest operating parking brake in the world.
- Extra deep "V-type" windshield—for added beauty and wider vision.

In every other popular low priced car this is what you get:

- 2 to 6 inches less wheelbase.
- 5 to 12 1/2 inches less over-all length.
- 3 to 18 less horsepower than Terraplane's 88—and not nearly as smooth.
- Body only partly of steel—or steel body with "soft-top."
- Less inside room—less shoulder and leg room—narrower rear seats.
- 1935 styling, changed only in details. Far more likely to be out of date by 1937.
- No rear opening baggage and tire compartment, except in cars where trunk models are available—at considerable extra cost. Spare tire mounted outside on all other models.
- Single main braking system—either hydraulic or mechanical—without complete reserve braking system and without Terraplane's type of easy acting parking brakes.
- Nothing like Terraplane's deep "V-type" windshield in any other low priced car.

The list of Terraplane advantages doesn't stop with those listed here. There's greater ruggedness, proved by owner mileages of 125,000, 150,000 and more. Greater economy, too, certified by thousands of sworn owner statements... emphasized again just the other day in the Los Angeles-Yosemite Economy Run when a

THE ORD QUIZ

Ord, Valley County, Nebraska
The Quiz is $2.00 a year.

H. D. LEGGETT PUBLISHER
E. C. LEGGETT EDITOR
H. J. MCBETH FOREMAN

Entered at the Postoffice at Ord, Nebraska, as Second Class Mail Matter Under Act of March 3, 1879.

DESERVES A BIG VOTE.

Perhaps as fine a record as that of any jurist who ever occupied the district bench in Nebraska is that of Judge Edwin P. Clements, of Ord, who is now a candidate for reelection in the Eleventh Judicial district. Judge Clements has served sixteen years in this office and has been a resident of Ord for forty-five years.

There are 35 district judges in Nebraska and a recent scrutiny of state records discloses that from December 4, 1919 to May 9, 1935 there were 3,995 appeals to the Supreme court from decisions by these 35 judges. The average number of appeals per judge is 116 but only 50 appeals have been made from decisions by Judge Clements, proving that his judgment is more than twice as good, legally speaking, as that of the average Nebraska district judge.

Records further show that of the 3,995 cases appealed, 1,182 have been reversed by the Supreme court, or an average of 34 reversals per district judge. However, in the entire sixteen years only 13 of Judge Clements' decisions have been reversed by the high court, again proving that the Ord man is head-and-shoulders above the average Nebraska district judge in legal acumen.

Having a Judge of Clements' type is a great dollars-and-cents asset to taxpayers for each case appealed costs county and litigants about $300 and every case reversed and retried costs about $500.

It is natural that Judge Clements will receive, at the primary election in April, a much greater vote than either of his two opponents here in Valley county where he has so long made his home and where his ability is so well known and his character so respected. Probably the whole north half of the district will give him a great plurality also because a great saving in time and expense results by having a district judge located in this end of the district instead of two located in the extreme south end. If the voters in the south end want to be fair they also will realize that the north half of the district is entitled to have one judge and will vote for Judge Clements, particularly since his record so clearly entitles him to reelection.

My Own Column

By H. D. Leggett

Some North Loup Quiz reader name not signed, writes a postcard to the Quiz, saying that it will be perfectly all right with him (or her) if the editor writes telling H. D. to stay in the south. The writer admits that he enjoys my letters and also says, what I already knew, that Eugene and the balance of the Quiz crew are doing fine.

I very well remember when I was a boy that I thought all people past 50 years of age, were old. I am now about 15 years past that age and I begin to realize that I can't do as much work as I used to be able to do. And the Missus is as old as I am and not in as good health. So we feel that we should not only let the younger people do most of the work, but that we should not miss an opportunity to take a vacation where the weather will be more congenial than it is here.

There was a period of 25 years that I never took a vacation. We just could not afford it. When we stopped work the earning power stopped and the expense went on. Now it is a little different. The business goes on just the same when we are away as when we are here. The little that I do, divided among the eight employees in the office, don't really add much to their burdens because I don't do much. So perhaps our friends from North Loup and many other readers will get as much good from the stories I write while away from home, as I would be able to render them if I stayed right here on the job.

So I tell the Missus that if I should fall this year, to be elected to the Unicameral, we won't shed any tears about it, but will plan on spending about three months next winter, in a warmer climate than Nebraska, either Texas, California or Florida. We have some relatives in California and I don't suppose they would object if we were to go out and spend a month or so with each family. The saving on fuel oil at home would go a long way toward buying gas for the trip. And by seeing a new country I could write a lot of good stories home to the paper.

By the way, speaking about that Unicameral job, as I said before, I am not going to ask any man or woman to vote for me. I shall appreciate every vote that I get in the primary, and if I am one of the two high men there, I shall also appreciate all the support I can get in November. I shall get about over the district as much as possible, but it will of course be impossible to see any great number of the voters before the primary which will be held April 14. From present appearances it will be later than that before the roads will be in shape to travel.

If I should be chosen to represent this district, I will make a study of the needs of the district after the November election, and will work for the interests of all the people of the district in the next legislative session. If I am not elected I shall not be sore at anyone and will spend a part of the winter where it is warmer than Lincoln will be, though I suspect it might be plenty warm for the Unicameral members.

I shall, from time to time, talk about the things I am interested in. I am more interested in old age pensions. I believe that any man or woman who has arrived at the age of 60 years and is not able to support himself or herself, should be entitled to at least $30 a month for that purpose. I shall always assume that people of that age have been good citizens; that they have helped to build this splendid country to what it is; that they have in most instances reared a family. I know of many personally, who, through no fault of their own, are now in desperate straits, some of them actually suffering for the necessities of life. Men and women of upwards of 60 years, like little children, require different food and care than people in their prime and if they have performed the duties of good citizenship and as they grow old, are unable to have the care that they should have, then I believe the state should furnish that care.

I fear that we are all going to be disappointed in the results to be had from the social security legislation passed at the late special session. To say the least, it was all done too hurriedly. There was not time to give the matter proper study. Then I don't believe in letting Washington dictate all of our activities and that is what is going to happen under the present social security set up. I think the matter has got to come up for readjustment in the coming legislative session and be all worked over.

Personally I don't believe that the money should be raised by a tax on gasoline. I think that a gas tax should be used for road building and road maintaining and nothing else. I think some other method of raising the money, in which all who are able to help, will have to pay their share, into the fund for social security. This social security problem is one in which we are all vitally interested. No one class of business should be forced to carry the whole burden.

In one day recently I had four orders for the Omaha Bee-News. I make a small commission on each one. If you send in your own you don't get the commission, so why not always let me send it and make the commission. You would rather have me get it than not. And the same for any of the daily papers. I am agent for all of them and guarantee you against loss or trouble if I handle the business for you. Phone me if you want me to send in your daily paper renewal.

I don't like to have Quiz subscriptions for less than 50c. Fifty cents pays for 3 months; $1.00 pays for 6 months and $2 pays for a whole year. I didn't stop any papers lately because of the bad roads but please try to get your renewal in. Show your appreciation. Business is terrible and with cold weather and small business, overhead is increased.

A check-up just completed shows that I paid out $870.00 more than I took in during 1935. I knew we handled over a hundred less commercial printing jobs than in 1934 but I didn't suppose the loss was quite as much as it was. I am hoping that 1936 will be better. This cold weather has put an awful crimp in it however and it will have to be mighty good the latter part of the year to make up the losses in January and February.

Most newspapers, when there is poor business, lay off help and give their readers a poorer paper. The Quiz has not followed that course. All help has been retained; the cook calendar has been put out as usual; all the regular features are continued as usual because we want to make the Quiz the best weekly newspaper in a town the size of Ord in the state. One feature alone, has cost us a lot more in 1935 than the $670.00 that we went in the red. Had we let the pictures alone we could have been on the right side of the ledger. On the other hand we feel that the pictures are a very valuable feature and we want to continue it and hope the readers will appreciate it to the extent that we will be able to do so.

I can't do everything I want to do so last week I stayed away from the annual meeting of the State Press association, of which I have long been a member. It is the first meeting I have missed in a long time. I sent Eugene to represent the Quiz at the meeting and no doubt this issue will have a story giving his impressions of the meeting. He is sure to come home with a lot of new ideas after contacting newspaper men from all parts of the state. The meeting was held in Grand Island.

We still have some of the 1936 cook calendars and will send one to each subscriber, new or otherwise, who pays up for the paper. All who were paid in advance got their calendars some weeks ago. You really should not miss one of these calendars.

When You And I Were Young Maggie

20 Years Ago This Week
P. C. Ferryman returned from Chicago where he had been attending a convention of clothiers and buying merchandise.

There were merry doings at the E. N. Finley farm home in Mira Valley on Feb. 23 when Miss Mabel Finley became the bride of Clayton Noll. Another marriage that occurred was that of Miss Helen Pocock to Earl C. Kahn.

Rachel Flynn returned to her work at Baptist college. Mr. and Mrs. Harold Moeller, married recently in Copenhagen, Denmark, arrived in Ord to visit Harold's parents and his cousin, Mrs. John Ambrose.

Henry Stara and Miss Mary Kucera were married, it being Ord's first Leap year wedding. Will Detweiler was planning to move his family to Ord. Mrs. Harriet Locker, mother of Levi Locker, died at the age of 91. Lloyd McGrew underwent an appendix operation performed by Dr. F. A. Barta.

Ord's militia company rented Siler's garage for an armory, which gave the boys a 100-foot target range. The marriage of Miss Katherine Koupal and Mr. Irl D. Tolon took place at the Presbyterian manse. Amos Harris, Greeley county cattleman known all over the state as "Nigger Amos" died at Greeley at the age of 60.

Jay Lambertson purchased the Bannister interest in the Suitatorium and went into the pressing business. Ed Bradt began running the peanut roaster and making himself generally useful at Bill Timm's place. Bessie Gray, who taught in the N. Ginzski school district, had a narrow escape from death when the buggy in which she was riding slipped over a bank and overturned.

Walter White was still too ill with rheumatism to take up his work on the mall route. Miss Pearl Walker and Frank Ball sprung a surprise on their friends by going to Grand Island and being married.

BACK FORTY

Early chicks generally do better than late chicks, as they are not stunted by hot weather. The best month for hatching chicks is March. Sanitation is the key to successful poultry raising. Scrub out the brooder house with boiling lye water. Treat the walls against mites. Screen over the approaches to the feeders and waterers, so the birds cannot contaminate them with droppings. Raise the chickens on new ground. There are many good ways of feeding chicks. Hens that have had the same kind of mash mixture since they were day-old birds are making favorable records as layers today. Mashies should be inexpensive and may be simple. The following one is good: Yellow Cornmeal...4 parts
Shorts...2 parts
Bran...2 parts
Meat & bone scraps...1 part
The next mash formula is more complete. It is used for both growing chicks and laying hens, and may be fed with grain or by itself.
Cornmeal...390 lbs.
Bran...100 lbs.
Shorts or Gr. Wheat...200 lbs.
Gr. Oats or Barley...100 lbs.
Alfalfa meal...60 lbs.
Meat meal...125 lbs.
Dried buttermilk...25 lbs.
Salt...10 lbs.
Green feed can be fed to advantage with the above rations. Skim-milk may be substituted for dried buttermilk. It is profitable to add

Sunbeams

By Fred Howard in Clay County Sun

"This is a wise mechanic who lets a machine alone when it is working all right. No brand of weather has ever stopped the manufacture of layettes or coffins. Love may be blind, but the general impression is that the little devil is expert in Braille. No doctor careful of his reputation prescribes laxatives for rural patients in zero weather. I wonder if funeral services are not as often oppressive as impressive. As frequently depressing as uplifting. Since radio has become common to every home the sale of Joe Miller's "History of Ancient Jokes" has dropped to nothing. If you wish to know just what a politician thinks, find out what he thinks the voters think. I have no respect for "uppity" folks, yet it is pleasant to note that some noses which have been upon the grindstone for a long time are beginning to turn up at certain of their less fortunate neighbors. The radio nets have been put on the spot. After what they have done they must either keep the present administration in power or take such a spanking as will stand them up to their cakes for many a morning. No one save those employed in the dissemination of news will be able to understand just what has happened and why, but you are hearing the truth while you are told that the radio people are too inexperienced in handling affairs of the kind that they have made a sorry mess of. Though I have had considerable experience with hospitals and surgeons, I still cannot understand the female temperament which shoots across the breakfast table, without warning, "I guess I'll go to the hospital today and have a major operation performed," and does it. Like Charlie Voss, who agreed with me that the most satisfactory way for death to come was suddenly, but that he would like a few days notice even for sudden death, I prefer a few days of dreadful consideration before submitting to the knife. The sad thing for America is that in all of the ponderous editorials written upon the court's 3-A decision for democratic publications, the court is found to have erred. From the same base republican papers go to an entirely different conclusion and the appalling truth is that sober, logical thinking, with us, has fallen to such a lowly estate that honesty is become a matter of party affiliation rather than conscientious conviction. "Twere better to be honestly wrong than to be popular through viciousness. From a reading of "Old Jules" one gathers that the gifted author of the tale is not afraid of the truth, but I had no thought of her being master of sarcasm until last Friday when she said to me as we talked of the Sandhill country over tea: "You wouldn't care for the country any more, Fred, for it has gone soft. Why, men with legs bowed from riding range horses now play bridge. Miss Sandoz and I entertain much the same opinion about men who play bridge and she told it all in the inflection given the word in her statement to me. Speaking of Miss Sandoz, her readers will be pleased to know that publishers are begging her for her writings and she is now working on a story contracted for early delivery. Battling against terrific odds, a talented woman has won, and the winning has not affected her good sense in the least. She is still Mari Sandoz of the Sandhills, honest, hard working, kindly writing woman.

Something DIFFERENT

A big long letter came to the Quiz office this week describing the visit of a friend who stopped in at the home of Mrs. W. M. Carlton. It seems Mrs. Carlton was down on the floor with a couple of children, teaching them their Sunday school lesson. First she taught them about the little lost sheep, hiding a tiny woolly lamb for the children to find. When located, the sheep had hurt its feet, so Mrs. Carlton proceeded to demonstrate how to take care of that little lamb, and bind up its feet. Then the children put the lamb in a toy barn they found close by. Also near at hand was a tiny log church, which I feel quite sure Mr. Carlton was asked to make for his wife. Near the church was a sick man and the children received another practical lesson in Christianity, for Mrs. Carlton showed them how to take him and care for him, telling the stories from the Bible as she worked.

Piled on the table, were dresses, pants, shirts, overalls, overshoes, all of which Mrs. Carlton had made or assembled to give to the poor. "And," reads this letter, "what a lesson I learned from that visit."

Vernie Andersen thought up a big business deal the other day, but it didn't work. He has a fine Chesapeake retriever who has had several litters of excellent puppies. So recently Vernie decided to start a new kind of business. He sold tickets, and when his brown hunting companion next had puppies, Vernie told the buyers he would award the pups to buyers of the lucky tickets. But the dog decided not to have a nice litter of puppies, and Vernie is ruefully refunding money on what was to have been his big business deal. Nature was agin him.

The Vogelitz family were much disgusted last week-end when they attempted to spend a few days at Wahoo with the parents of Mrs. Vogelitz. Driving safely and surely along, they at least reached what might have been termed a snow wall. There were three miles of blocked road, impassable after the many recent snowstorms. And to "go around", meant to retrace a lot of territory and then go via Lincoln. Extra mileage of just 88 miles, because of that blockaded three miles.

At the Johnson cafe the cat was in the habit of curling up in the warm oven of the stove, after everyone had left for the night. This cozy retreat was her favorite. One morning recently the boy who builds the fires forgot to peek inside the oven before he shut the door and built up a good fire. The cat wasn't visible that morning. At noon, someone opened the oven door, and found the poor cremated cat.

After that last story, another would be an anti-climax. —Irma.

Pension.
Recently an ex-service man gave me a new light on the Bonus and Pension bills that have caused so much consternation the country over. The Bonus itself has been opposed quite generally, but this opposition has been of a whispering nature. Very seldom does anyone jump up and cry his ideas to the world on this subject. Everyone is afraid of the opposition and the chagrin involved. The few members of congress who opposed it did so in a feeble manner. The most powerful lobby the world has ever known is that of the American Legion, so the story goes. A considerable support the last year or two has arisen because of the fact that the government is passing the money out right and left, and the soldiers just as well have it as the farmers, laboring men, and this and that, and that and this. A man who was a small boy during the civil war told me recently that as long as I live I will find the American Legion at Congress asking for something, just the same as the veterans of the civil war did. I am beginning to believe he is right for already the World War Veterans are starting their drive for a pension, even before the bonus has been paid. Be that as it may, I am not one who begrudges a soldier who was in France and acted as a target for German guns any pension or bonus either, even if I do feel, going into that fray was a fool idea. But the point I am trying to get at, and having such a hard time doing, is that this American Legion man said by constantly pestering the American people for more and more, is a good thing. It acts as a constant reminder to the American people that the results are nearly everlasting when we once go into war, and this nagging will just tend to make us think a few times more before we enter another. That this asking for a pension is just the reward we reap for our foolish move. Well, there might be something to that.

Careful. This is Politics.
When some of our local politicians were booming Coffee for President, it dawned on me it would be better to say, "Coffee for the White House." But that wouldn't be in keeping with the repeal of the eighteenth amendment which the President so magnanimously signed with a dozen pens.

Not Yet.
Now that the Supreme Court has put its O. K. on the T. V. A. some folks proclaim there is clear sailing for our N. L. Irrigation and Power project along with others of a similar nature. That sounds good, but we must bear in mind that Ickes is still at the helm. I suppose as long as murder is unlawful in this land we shall have to put up with lots of things. Drouth for example, with an ever-flowing river in our midst.

Rats.
A card from National City California says as follows: "Dear Sir: Tell Paul Gebauer and the rest of your readers that we was rats out here by attaching a hose to the exhaust of an auto and putting the other end down a runway or under the floors where the rats live and closing all the other openings to confine the fumes. Carbon Bi-Sulphide is also very effective as it makes the gas heavier than the air and enters deep holes, but it is explosive if it comes in contact with open flames. Sincerely, W. A. Faddock."

A Bit of News.
A letter from my brother who is in Anacortia, Washington included the following paragraph: "There is a man here from Ord. He used to be a druggist on the west side of the square. I am going to take him down and show him through the saw mill this afternoon."

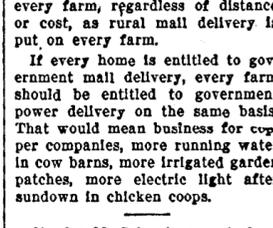

Might Be True.
Frank Miller of Scotia told me the following story that Hugo of the Hugo Brothers Show troupe told him, and Frank said he would not vouch for the truth of it, but it sounded reasonable enough. It happened Hugo had been sent to the grocery for a bottle of milk, and just as he was coming out of the store a bunch of bandits were holding up a bank down the street. To be more specific it was the Time Chas. Bryan was making a speech in Grand Island, and had gone there in the armored car, all of which does not matter about the story. As Hugo walked down the street with the bottle of milk in his hand, a bandit at the curb lined him up with other passers-by on the walk and carelessly turned the spitting end of a machine gun in his direction. Hugo did not argue. He stood as still as it was physically possible for him to do.

When the robbery was completed and the bandits had gone merrily on their way, Hugo hurried home. As his wife uncorked the bottle of milk she discovered it had been churned to butter. He must, ask Fred Coe if I get a couple theater tickets on that recipe.

BRISBANE

What a Troubled World? What Will TVA Do? Schwab Still Smiles Steam Turbine Planes
Will this troubled world ever calm down, supply work to those willing to work and live happily, and enable superior ability to show what it can do? Spain, waking from long lethargy, is swept by riots, jails stormed and set afire. Rioting and rebellion in South America; will our friendly feeling compel us to attempt straightening that out? Rioting in Paris and sabotage on English men-of-war. Nations fight, classes fight, labor unions fight, and even men of the same religion fight. Washington wonders what TVA will do with the Supreme court letting government enter the business of producing and selling power. Some suggest putting power on every farm, regardless of distance or cost, as rural mail delivery is put on every farm. If every home is entitled to government mail delivery, every farm should be entitled to government power delivery on the same basis. That would mean business for copper companies, more running water in cow barns, more irrigated garden patches, more electric light after sundown in chicken coops. Charles M. Schwab, seventy-four, still specializes in optimism, like the man who went to the race track, lost every cent, but escaped death in the railroad wreck. Mr. Schwab says labor conditions are the best in 56 years. He should know; he began as a laborer and did not get $5, or $3, or $2 a day. Industry he calls a "three-legged stool." Capital, labor, management are the three legs. Put Charles M. Schwab back where he was 50 years ago, the same as then, in age and energy, and he would soon be at the head of a great industry. Who does not believe it does not know Schwab. Russia, trying everything, experiments with a steam-propelled turbine plane for stratosphere flights. At such heights water boils at half the temperature necessary at sea level. The exhaust steam, after heating the plane would be recovered 90 per cent. Two years ago William and George Bessler, in Los Angeles, built and flew a plane with a steam engine. There is still much to learn about flying. Uncle Sam, convinced that he is his brother's keeper, after all, wants a peace agreement among all American republics. Beautiful. But if any republic decides to fight, anyhow, it is to be hoped this country will not become an arbitrator. "Judge not that ye be not judged," is sound advice. We can no more decide the right and wrong of a row between Mussolini and England, or Chile and the Argentine, than we could between the two Kilkenny cats. It is pleasing to learn from George Washington university of a new and "refreshing" preparation that makes possible childbirth "during sound sleep" without pain. More and better children, bigger population, is what the world needs with gradual elimination of the hopelessly inferior race by absorption, or voluntary extermination. Poor Halle Selassie of Ethiopia, waiting for the rainy season to expel the Italians, suddenly found his army of 80,000 driven hither and thither, and two other armies, under two of his ablest "rases," sent scattering into the jungle. Seventy thousand Italians seizing a mountain fort that Ethiopia thought impregnable started the Mussolini kind of "rainy season" with bombs from the sky. This time Mussolini used his own white Italian soldiers, not his native troops from Eritrea. Chancellor Hitler announces: "We have solved the problem of producing synthetic gasoline and rubber." How good are the synthetic fuel and rubber; how cheap? These things will come, for science in the material world can do everything better than nature can do it. Fuel will be created, and flying machines, too, as far above today's product as electric light is above whale oil, and the airplane above the ox-cart. New Jersey high schools will give courses in "safe automobile driving," a good idea. All school boys should learn about automobiles and airplanes. © King Features Syndicate, Inc. WNU Service.

Stillman-King.

LAST OF THE PAGANS

The Girl Who Knew Men

By VIRGINIA MILLER

WNU Service.

"THERE'S a job open?" the red-headed girl leaned far over the low railing which guarded the office proper to ask the woman firmly established on the pay envelope side of the railing.

"Yes, there's a position vacant." Miss Olson had to tell the truth, however much she disliked the red-head's green beret set saucily far back over her curls, her touched up lips and short tight little green checked dress.

"Then the job's mine," the girl grinned and gave the curls a pert toss. "I know men."

Miss Olson frowned at that I-know-men phrase. She critically inspected the card the girl handed her. "I shall ask Mr. Adams whether he cares to see you," she said, disapproval edging her voice. She was still frowning as she crossed the office to Mr. Adams' desk and put the card before him.

"The employment agency has sent over this girl," she said. Her tone called one strike on the redhead before the youngster ever got a chance to swing.

At Miss Olson's approach Mr. Adams had hastily put aside the morning newspaper. "Oh, yes," he said. "Gosh, I hope I can get a good girl this morning. The—er—the golf tournament at my club starts this afternoon."

"I am sure the agency will send in a more satisfactory applicant before the morning is over," Miss Olson called a second strike on the redhead.

"Well, I'd better talk to this one now."

So Miss Olson had to swing the gate open to the saucy beret.

"Good morning, sir," she said cheerily. "What a nice sunny office you have here!"

Mr. Adams said the office was very pleasant and thought to ask about her business experience.

"I've not had stenographic experience although I've done typing. But I've just completed ten weeks shorthand study at night school. So you can understand, this being my first secretarial position, that I must take great care choosing it," the girl said calmly. Her smile flashed. "I'm sure you're a good enough sport to realize how essential it is to my future that I take only a position in which I'll get broad experience."

Across at her desk, Miss Olson snorted. Softly, of course.

Mr. Adams looked considerably taken aback. Then he started to describe the work his secretary would be expected to do.

"Well, it sounds as if your position may be what I'm looking for," the red-headed girl said encouragingly.

At that sickening moment for Miss Olson, another girl from the employment agency arrived outside the railing.

This girl's eyes were shadowed with a terrible necessity. Miss Olson saw that necessity first. Then she saw that the plain black hat was pulled down on her head sensibly and that she used no lip stick.

"I've got to have this position. I've got to," the girl said. Tears came to those dull, hungry eyes.

Miss Olson looked at the sensible outfit and the painless face. Scarcely glancing at the card handed her, she swung the gate open and hurried the white-faced, dull-eyed girl to Mr. Adams' desk.

"The agency urges you to talk to this girl before you make your decision. She has all the qualifications you need," Miss Olson said determinedly.

"I've had some experience," the girl said nervously. "Oh, Mr. Adams, I've got to have this position. I've got to. I've an invalid mother."

Having called the third strike on the redhead, Miss Olson nodded to her to move to the other side of the railing. But the redhead was staring with wide, startled eyes at the other applicant, so that she did not notice Miss Olson. The woman shook her in her determination to get her out of the second girl's way.

Mr. Adams glanced from the second girl to the redhead. He squirmed uneasily.

The redhead shook off Miss Olson's hand and got to her feet. She straightened her shoulders and said with a fairly bright smile: "Sorry, I understand, though. Just the wrong approach on my part, and I thought I knew better."

Miss Olson marched the girl toward the gate.

"Gosh! Mr. Adams exclaimed, "Gosh, redhead! Don't clear out. I'll—Miss Olson'll help the agency find another job for this girl. I want you for my secretary."

The redhead's hand closed on Miss Olson's arm. "I told you to watch my technique. I know men. They do like color and a cheerful grin. And they kinda like to do the hunting."

Suddenly her fingers tightened their hold. Her legs buckled and she swayed. Then she straightened and a grin spread over her face.

And Miss Olson, looking into hunger—cruel, ugly hunger, thinly but bravely coated with lip stick and rouge, and capped with a saucy green beret—saw warmly. In tribute to the red-headed youngster's pluck in face of desperation: "You've made an excellent choice. Mr. Adams."

Mixed Dates

By CLARENCE CARPENTER

WNU Service.

THE shrill ring of a bell interrupted my study. Glad of an excuse I tossed the hefty book to one side and reached for my phone. Maybe it was Ellen May; she had promised to call sometime, but of course I couldn't expect too much of her. Ellen May was a very popular coed.

It was Bertie Gregg's smooth voice: "Listen, Ned—I'm in a jam."

"That's sweet," I retorted, surprised at my own wit. "But don't expect me to mix in any of your affairs. Why can't you be a little more discreet anyhow?" Bertie was a terror with the coeds.

"Why, Ned," Bertie reproached me. "Have you forgotten who fixed you up with tickets for the big game? Don't you remember who rushed you into the frat? And besides," he added, impressively, "who, may I ask, introduced you to Ellen May?"

"That did it. 'Tell me the worst,' I groaned.

"Nothing to it, Ned. A friend of my sister, a school teacher, arrives on the five-forty today. She's thinking of taking a postgrad here and wants to look the place over. Sis wrote me to show her around, and you can bet it's goodby allowance if I don't. But I got a date tonight."

"Now wait a minute, Bertie," I protested. "I don't want Ellen May to see me with a strange girl."

"No danger of meeting Ellen May in the library," came Bertie's snappy retort. "Besides, take a tip from me. Don't take Ellen May too seriously, Ned. She isn't your type. But be sure and meet this Miss Susan Malver. Better use my name. She never saw me before and she goes home tomorrow anyway."

Eight o'clock found me setting at a table near the dance floor of the College Town hotel. At my side was a dream of a girl with soft red lips and bright blue eyes.

"I thought you would like to see something besides class buildings, Sue," I told her.

"Oh, Bertie," Sue interrupted me in a sweet, innocent voice. "Who are the couple doing that rather—rather bold dance?"

Bet it's Bertie Gregg, I thought grimly, turning to look. It was Bertie, giving an especially wild execution of the collegiate dip. Snuggled in his arms was Ellen May.

Ellen May was Bertie's date! No wonder that snake-in-the-grass had advised me not to take Ellen May too seriously. Looking down into the questioning eyes of the girl at my side I suddenly realized that Ellen May's fickleness had not affected me half so much as it might have. "Oh, they're just a couple of students," I answered evasively.

Then Bertie saw us. I knew by the gleam in his eyes that Sue's good looks had not escaped him. I wasn't a bit surprised to see him drop Ellen May at the captain's table and come sauntering over to us.

Smiling broadly, Bertie sat down without an invitation. "I'm Ned Kennedy," he said, introducing himself to Sue. "I heard my friend Bertie here had company but I never dreamed it would be so charming. I thought you were the more serious type, like—like Bertie, here."

When Sue and the real Bertie came back, Bertie sat right down again with apparently no intention of leaving the lovely Sue.

"It's funny," she confided, "but I have a feeling you boys are playing a game." Bertie started, and I looked up hopefully. I hated the mess this mixup had made. I didn't want to be Bertie Gregg a minute longer.

"You know," Bertie," Sue went on, turning her violet eyes on me and thus sending my hopes flying again, "your sister told me you were a little wild; instead I find you a nice quiet boy, right at home in the library of study."

"Ned, here, was supposed to be the serious, hard working lad, interested in his career." Sue smiled at Bertie. "Then I find him playing the bold part. Now why don't you boys confess that it's all a game to make me think Bertie has reformed? Honor bright, I won't say a word to Bertie's sister."

I grogged awkwardly for words, but Bertie was always ready for any emergency. "You clever girl," he admired. "How did you guess it? I'm glad though that you found me out; I'm glad you found I'm the type to appeal to a girl like you. I think we are going to like each other very, very much."

I was flabbergasted. It wasn't enough that he had taken Ellen May from me, but now this lovely little teacher was his, too. I gritted my teeth as he reached over to pat Sue's hand.

Sue, however, deftly withdrew her hand from his grasp. "It's stranger yet," she went on, her voice dangerously sweet, "how you boys managed to change faces as well as personalities. According to that snapshot of you two standing together that I brought along to identify Bertie at the station—"

But Bertie had fled. Then Sue taught me a new step, just so I'd be ready when she came back for her postgraduate course.

Mystery Springs in Queensland

Fifty miles southeast of Boulla township, in the far west of Queensland, are two mystery springs. One, known as Elizabeth spring, consists of a circular hole four or five feet in diameter in which tepid water is continually bubbling up and overflowing. The water, which is perfectly clear, is peculiar in that the human body cannot sink in it owing solely to the force of the water bubbling up from below. About 50 yards away is another called Lubra spring. Its water is always icy cold and is jet black. The human body sinks like a stone in it. According to the aborigines of the locality, the water in this spring turned black ages ago when a lubra (native woman) jumped into it and was never seen again.

Discovered South Africa

The early Portuguese navigators were the first to reach the vicinity of South Africa. In 1486 Bartholomew Diaz rounded the Cape of Good Hope, and 11 years later Vasco de Gama made the same voyage. The first vessels to anchor in Table bay were those of the expedition headed by Cornelius Houtman, a Dutchman, in 1495. In 1649 a Dutch ship was wrecked in Table Bay and all on board safely reached land. They remained there five months until the next vessel arrived. This was the beginning of the idea of colonizing the country. The pioneer settlers in Cape Colony arrived in three Dutch ships on April 7, 1652.

Valley Co. Farmers Have Best System Of Balanced Crops

New Soil Survey Report Shows 23 Soil Types, Grazing and Crops Balanced.

The farmers of Valley County, Nebraska, have a better balanced system of farming than farmers of many counties with a larger proportion of rich land suitable for cultivation, according to the report of a soil survey of this county just issued by the Bureau of Chemistry and Soils, U. S. Department of Agriculture. This is because the proportion of cultivated and grazing land favors livestock farming. About 55 percent of the land in Valley county is under cultivation. Most of the remainder is in range and pasture. The heavy soils of the smooth uplands and bottomlands are bordered by or interspersed with tracts of rough or sandy land, and to make the best use of his land the farmer must practice a diversified agriculture and grow feed crops for his livestock to supplement his pasture. The character of the soils in this area forces the farmer to diversify.

Upland Soils Are Best.

Twenty-three soil types and phases, in addition to dune sand and river wash, are named in the report of Valley county and are identified on the soil map.

The most productive soils for cultivated crops are the well-drained soils of the uplands and terraces. This group includes all the soils of the Hastings, Holdrege, Marshall, Hall and Waukesha series. The other soils of the county consist mainly of sandy, eroded, or poorly drained soils. Some of these are used partly for cultivated crops and partly for grazing; others are used entirely for pasture or hay land.

This soil survey furnishes a detailed inventory of the soil resources of the county in the form of a map showing in colors the location and extent of the different soils, and also a report in which the character and utilization of the soils are discussed. The classification and mapping of the soils are on the basis of those features that are readily observed or may be determined by simple tests in the field. The texture; color; thickness of the surface soils; content of organic matter, lime, and alkali salts; the presence of claypan or gravel beds; and conditions of drainage are some of the properties of soils that are given consideration. In addition to a detailed description of the soils, the report discusses the topographic features, climate, agricultural history, and present agricultural conditions in the county.

Soil Survey Useful.

Extension directors, county agents, and others who convey information and advice directly to the farmers can base their advice on a knowledge of the soils obtained through the soil survey. The soil survey is also used by several branches of the Federal and state governments in the location of highways, in projects for the control of erosion, and in other ways.

The Valley county report was prepared through the co-operation of the U. S. Bureau of Chemistry and Soils and the state soil survey department of the Conservation and Survey Division of the University of Nebraska. A copy may be obtained free from the United States Senators from Nebraska or from Congressman Harry Coffey.

Rev. Judkins Dies Of Heart Ailment

Rev. James F. Judkins, for many years a Baptist pastor and missionary in Nebraska and for a time Baptist preacher in Ord, died of a heart ailment at his home in Omaha Friday, February 28. He was employed by the American Baptist Home Missionary society and the American Baptist Publication society and worked under the supervision of the Nebraska State Baptist convention.

Rev. Judkins devoted much of his life to bringing religious interests to the Nebraska sandhills. Here he went from home to home, held meetings in school houses and residences, and was responsible for many of the early Sunday schools and religious groups.

He went into the ministry after being graduated from the former Baptist college at Grand Island. Although he was officially retired in December 1934, he continued with his work throughout the year, serving as a relief minister in many of the Baptist churches.

Rev. Judkins was a frequent visitor of the D. A. Moser family in Ord and his passing will be regretted by many other Ord acquaintances and friends.

City Clerk Jewett Injured Thursday In Rifle Accident

Rex Jewett, Ord's popular city clerk, may lose the sight of his left eye as result of a rifle accident that occurred about 6:30 last Thursday evening near the Ord river bridge. A bullet fired at a target by Harold Finch struck a stone, glanced and hit Rex in the eye. He was attended by Dr. F. A. Barta and then rushed to an Omaha eye specialist. He is expected to return home this morning.

Jewett and Finch had been taking turns firing at a target with a .22 rifle, one replacing the target as the other shot. Rex was standing about eight feet from the target, which was attached to a pile of tires near the city pump house.

Will Remove Cataract.

At first it was thought a fragment of stone had penetrated the eye but Dr. Judd stated that it was a piece of lead. He says that Rex will have partial sight and that in five or six months when a cataract forms this can be removed, and that Rex's sight will be greatly restored by the operation.

Alvin Jensen, Roy Pardue and Miss Florence Lukesh took Rex to Omaha last Thursday. Mr. Pardue expected to go to Omaha yesterday to accompany him home.

Miss Dorothy Allen has been assisting in the city office during the absence of City Clerk Jewett.

Roy Cramer Visits His Old Ord Friends

Roy Cramer, a former Ord boy dropped into town last week, calling on W. A. Anderson and the few old time friends whom he knew in former years. His home for the past twenty years has been in South Dakota but the conditions in farming there has not been good as for the past seven years he has not raised a crop, owing to grasshoppers and drought and dust storms. He has been spending the winter near Phoenix, Arizona and is very favorably impressed with that country which never has a crop failure as it is an irrigated district with an unlimited supply of water.

Great quantities of lettuce are grown there as well as other vegetables and Ord people may be eating their products. Also cotton is grown and one of his relatives grew a crop the past season that netted him $400 per acre above all expenses. There are quite a lot of Mexicans among the more than 100,000 citizens but so far they have been found pretty fair citizens and their children seem bright and intelligent and attend school the same as other children. The part of Arizona where he was is making very rapid progress in the past few years as it is a sure crop locality. He is as much as inferred that could he dispose of his Dakota holdings he would move to Arizona. He reports that wheat is badly damaged in Oklahoma and Kansas as much as 85 percent in places.

He reported no snow until reaching Grand Island. He thinks an irrigated farming country is the only safe place for one who depends on farming for a living. He left Sunday for his home in Dakota.

Mrs. George Flsk Dead.

Mrs. George Flsk, who lived on a Bookwalter farm on Davis Creek for fifteen years, died recently in University hospital, Omaha, where on Feb. 15 she underwent an operation that revealed a cancer. Funeral rites were held at Barnes-ton last Friday.

Clarence M. Davis Is Candidate For Attorney General

Ord Republican Mailed Filing To Lincoln Monday; Amply Qualified for Office.

Clarence M. Davis, Ord attorney who is well and favorably known in legal circles throughout Nebraska, Monday became a candidate for the republican nomination for attorney general of Nebraska. He made his filing by mail.

Only other candidate on the republican ticket for this important office is Richard O. Johnson, of Lincoln, and Mr. Davis with his wide acquaintance and excellent reputation for legal acumen is conceded to have an excellent chance to capture the nomination.

CLARENCE M. DAVIS. Born July 12, 1894 at Harrison, Neb. Mr. Davis is now 41 years old, is married and has two children.

Came to Ord in 1919.

He was educated at the University of South Dakota and graduated from the law college in 1916. After practicing law in South Dakota until 1919 he came to Ord and formed a partnership with his brother, Judge Claude A. Davis. When Judge Davis was appointed to the supreme court commission and moved to Lincoln in 1927 Mr. Davis formed a law partnership with E. L. Vogelanz which has continued since that time.

Mr. Davis has served as city attorney of Ord and has been president of the Ord chamber of commerce and Ord Rotary club.

Twice Party Delegate.

He has been active in the republican party organization all his adult life, was an alternate delegate to the republican national convention at Cleveland in 1924 which nominated Coolidge and Dawes and a delegate from this congressional district to the 1932 convention at Chicago. He has served several times on the state republican committee.

In 1934 he was a candidate for the republican nomination for Congress in the 5th district, finishing second in a field of seven candidates. A. N. Mather, the nominee, later was defeated by Harry B. Coffey, democrat.

The law firm of Davis & Vogelanz has an extensive practice, not only in Ord, but in adjoining counties of central Nebraska. Mr. Davis has appeared many times before the Supreme court at Lincoln and is favorably regarded at the state capitol.

Pioneer Judge Held Court in Log House, Dies in South Dakota

Judge Loren Ellis Gaffy, who in the 70's held court in a log house on the "Uncle Dan" Bailey farm east of Ord, died recently at his home in Pierre, S. D., at the age of 86. Judge Gaffy held a federal circuit appointment and came here often in early days, recall old timers. He was a cousin of Mrs. D. C. Bailey.

Last September R. C. Bailey of Ord visited Judge Gaffy at his home in Pierre and found that he remembered Ord and many people who lived near here in the late 70's.

Forced To Ship His Cattle As Water Supply Froze

All the snow and cold weather of January and February made cattle feeding lots of work, but it wasn't until his water supply began freezing that Martin Rasmussen, of Ord, became discouraged and decided to ship the stock he had in his lots, says an item in the Omaha Journal-Stockman. He shipped three loads including 24 well-fattened Herefords, averaging 1,385 pounds, that sold at $9.15 the day's top. Another lot of 25 Herefords lacked finish and sold at $7.10 to a feeder buyer. Eleven head of 831-pound yearlings brought $6.25.

Mr. Rasmussen said his best load of steers had been on feed since early October, getting corn, alfalfa and a supplemental feed of cattle fattener. The other cattle, which were wintered to start with, were turned into the corn field and then went on to a corn and alfalfa ration without supplement. Had it not been for his frozen water supply Mr. Rasmussen might have gone ahead and fed them out.

Early pig losses were heavy as result of the cold February, Mr. Rasmussen told the Journal-Stockman. He had two liters farrow and found it impossible to save them.

Break-Up Of Ice Endangers Bridges; County Roads Bad

Dynamiting to Keep Channels Open, Sumter Bridge Is In Most Serious Danger.

Ice of the North Loup river, frozen to the greatest depth in many years, has responded to the persuasive touch of spring-like weather and is rapidly beginning to break up, County Engineer H. O. Strombom tells the Quiz, result being that Elyria, Ord and Sumter bridges are endangered.

So far a dynamite gang led by Ed Anderson has been able to keep channels open. At the Sumter bridge Monday a case of dynamite was used and Tuesday dynamiting was in progress above Ord and Elyria bridges.

The old Sumter bridge, with its shorter spans, is in greatest danger of the three. Strombom says, but so far the danger is not acute. Ice seems to be moving out of the river in orderly fashion and no jams have formed near the bridges. A huge jam near Orleans has caused the river to overflow lowland pasture but it is far above the Sumter bridge.

Ericson Highway Worst.

Strombom and his men are watching the ice situation closely and hope to save all Valley county river bridges, in spite of density of ice.

Valley county's road situation is terrible, the engineer admitted to the Quiz yesterday. Heavy snows of January and February are almost entirely melted and mud holes have formed on every dirt road. Fifty men are being kept busy draining these mud holes.

Road to Ericson is practically impassable, Strombom says, but travel is possible on other county roads although all are deeply rutted. The road situation is worst in years, it is claimed.

Warm weather has prevailed during the past week but rain or snow is forecast this week end.

For a time the Pierce family lived in Providence, R. I., and then in 1879 moved to Valley county. Soon after their arrival here Mr. Pierce passed away and in 1886 his widow was married to Wm. H. Moses at Pleasant Valley, in this county. In 1901 they moved to Ord which has since been the family home. Besides her husband and son she is survived by three grandsons.

Mrs. Moses was a member of the Christian church and attended regularly. She was a wonderful wife and mother, a fine cook and housewife, a good neighbor and friend and her departure will be greatly mourned.

Noisy Party Kept Neighbors Awake, 6 Men Land in Jail

Disorderly Conduct Is Charged As Result of Raid on the Woolery Home Monday.

A "wild party" that began at 8:00 Sunday evening at the Ernest Woolery, jr. home in Ord, ended abruptly at 2:30 Monday morning when Officers L. H. Covert and Roy Pardue entered and arrested six of the ten participants. Four women, including the hostess, Mrs. Woolery, were not taken into custody.

Charged with disorderly conduct in police court Monday morning were James A. Miller and Ernest Woolery, jr., of Ord, George Matern of Burwell, Leon Clemmy and Alex. Iwanski, of Elyria; Floyd Carlson, of Ord, was charged with intoxication in county court. All entered guilty pleas.

He Grew Exasperated.

The Woolery home is a block east of the opera house and just two doors from the home of Police Chief Covert. So much noise was made by the party that neighbors, including the police chief, couldn't sleep but nothing was done until about 2:00 a. m. when Covert finally grew exasperated, sought out Night Marshal Pardue and raided the Woolery home.

Miller, Iwanski, Matern and Clemmy each was fined $5.00 and costs of $6.50 and each paid in full. Woolery, fined $7.50 and costs of $6.50 paid up Tuesday and young Carlson, who was fined $10.00 and costs of $3.00, is still in jail. Judge John L. Andersen presided in all the cases.

Last week he changed his plea and was fined $40.00 and costs by Judge John L. Andersen, which he paid.

They came to Nebraska in 1913 and have resided continuously in the state since that time. They moved to Valley county in 1927 and have resided in the Arcadia community. At present they make their home with their daughter, Mrs. Campbell.

Further applications for old age assistance will be taken at the various points as follows, announces Frank Kruml, relief director.

Clare Clement Will Sell 70 Herefords

Ord Breeder Will Hold His 5th Annual Sale March 18 in the Weller Sale Pavilion.

Seventy head of choicely bred Herefords are included in the offering that Clare Clement and fellow-breeders will sell at the Weller sale pavilion in Ord on Wednesday, March 18. It is Mr. Clement's eighth annual sale but heretofore they have been held at the Clement farm. Because of road conditions and inclement weather it was decided to hold the sale in Ord this year, which should result in attendance of more buyers than usual.

Breeders associated with Mr. Clement in this sale include H. C. Koelling & Sons, Jack Britton, Long Bros., J. Z. Marks and others. E. C. Weller, of Ord, and A. W. Thompson of York, are the auctioneers. First National bank of Ord, is clerk, and field men will be Chas. Corkle, and Hayes Walker, jr.

The offering this year is most attractive, including 28 bulls old enough for heavy service, several tried sires and many females, aged cows that are real breeding matrons as well as calves and long-yearlings. Females old enough to breed are bred to Capitol Domino or Anxiety 4th's Review. There are no better Hereford lines than can be found in the Clement herd and his sale will this year, as usual, attract buyers from long distances as well as from the neighborhood by community.

Troubles Continue For Light, Water System Employees

Get Broken Main Fixed, Diesel Clogs, Lights Go Out; City Water Very Turbid.

Troubles never come singly, believe George H. Allen, city light and water commissioner, and his assistants.

No sooner was the broken water main on the Quiz corner repaired last week than other troubles developed, not only in the water system but at the light plant also. Frost, driven downward by warming weather, caused the broken main and also has resulted in many frozen lead-in pipes throughout the city, which has kept Allen and his men busy with their thawing equipment.

Because of turbidity of North Loup river waters as result of influx of thawing snow from every tributary, Ord's city water has been cloudy for several days although extra chemicals have been added daily to increase the settling process. Extra chlorine has been added also to assure purity of the city water supply.

City Water Dumped.

Sunday a quarter of a million gallons pumped from the river into the city's clear well was dumped because it was so turbid. An extra filtration process was used to clear up another quarter of a million gallons, thereby saving it. Water in city mains is gradually clearing up and should be normally clear by end of this week.

About 9:00 Sunday night trouble developed at the light plant when the largest diesel engine developed a clogged feed line as result of water in the last shipment of fuel oil. The smaller engine already was out of commission for repairs so the steam stand-by unit had to be used while the large engine was repaired. The city was without lights for 25 minutes, at the end of which time the steam boiler went into service. Fifteen minutes later the diesel again took up the load and service was uninterrupted the rest of Sunday night.

First in Six Years.

This is the first interruption of more than a minute or two in electric service in Ord during a six-year period.

Ordinarily, a breakdown of one diesel engine would not interrupt service at all as the other would be switched on promptly, but with one already out of service while repairs to the foundation were under way the breakdown proved of greater consequence.

Repairs on the small diesel are being made by two experts sent here by Butler Bros., from whom the engine was purchased, and at the expense of that firm, whose guarantee covered such contingencies.

Mr. Allen expressed the hope Monday that the plants are "over the hump" and that troubles will cease for the time being.

Names Committee To Investigate Airport

In response to a plea made by Jack Jefford, Broken Bow airplane pilot, at the monthly meeting of the Ord chamber of commerce last Thursday evening, President John P. Misko appointed a committee composed of Elwin Dunlap, Ed Kokes and Ed Parkos to investigate possibility of leasing a suitable field in close proximity to Ord so airplanes may land nearer the city. Closest field being used at present is on the Gregory farm six miles north of Ord, Jefford told chamber members. Several Ordinians are learning to fly and it is likely that several planes may be purchased here if a suitable field is located.

About 35 members attended, enjoying also a talk on photo-engraving by H. E. Jones, of the Quiz staff. President Misko presided. A lunch of chili and coffee was served by Edgar Mauer. The meeting was regarded as unusually interesting and plans are going forward to hold similar gatherings monthly in future.
