

Albert McMIndes' Sudden Death Was Shock to Friends

In Perfect Health Tuesday, He Had Stroke That Eye, Died Within An Hour.

Albert McMIndes, 60, a resident of the Ord community for more than forty years, died suddenly Tuesday evening at Atkinson, his sudden and untimely death being a terrible shock to hundreds of friends here.

According to his son, Loes, who was called to Atkinson late Tuesday evening, Albert had been in perfect health lately and was in excellent spirits Tuesday. That evening he and Lloyd Parks were working in the office of the Atkinson auction yards owned by McMIndes and his long time partner, E. C. Weller. About 8:10 Lloyd stepped out on an errand and was gone about an hour. When he returned he noticed that Albert was not in the office but supposed he had gone out the rear door and was in the yards.

About 9:05 Fred Hitchcock, yard employee, entered the rear door and went into a small bedroom next the office where a night man usually slept. There on the bed lay Albert McMIndes, his throat paralyzed and life almost extinct. A doctor was called immediately but nothing could be done for Albert and he died within a few minutes. Death was due to a stroke the physician said.

Mr. McMIndes had done a hard day's work Tuesday and that evening ate a big supper, during which he talked and joked with friends and appeared to be his usual jovial self. He had never been in better health than during recent weeks, his friends at Atkinson say. He had never suffered a stroke before nor had any heart trouble.

Coming to Ord as a boy of 18, Albert grew to manhood here, engaged in business and was known throughout the central west as a horseman and horsebuyer. As a ringman he was second to none and his business association with Col. E. C. Weller, formed in 1921, was a pleasant and prosperous one for both. Mr. McMIndes served as mayor of Ord and during his residence here was active in the business and social life of this community. He moved to Atkinson three years ago to assume management of the big auction ring there. He was universally respected and loved here and knew personally nearly every man in Valley county.

Mr. McMIndes is mourned by the widow and three children, Miss Gladys McMIndes, of Atkinson, Leon McMIndes, of Ericson, and Loes McMIndes, of Ord. Also surviving are a brother, Fred, of Klamazoo, Mich., and a sister, Mrs. Law Smith, of Greenfield, Ia.

Funeral services are being held this afternoon at Atkinson and at 2:00 p. m. Friday rites will be held at the S. M. chapel in Ord, followed by burial in Ord cemetery.

Mrs. Jerry Pesha Passes at Fremont

At a hospital in Fremont on May 28 occurred the death of Mrs. Virginia Marie Pesha, 28, wife of Jerry Pesha, former Ord resident and son of Mr. and Mrs. Ignac Pesha who reside here. She had been ill several weeks. Funeral services, attended by Mrs. Ignac Pesha and Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Bartunek of Ord, were held in Fremont Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Pesha were married at Fremont on Sept. 3, 1927. Her whole life was lived in that city, being a graduate of Fremont high school and later attending college at Midland, Hastings and Wayne State normal. Besides her husband she is survived by three children, Geraldine 8, Tommy, 6, and Jerry, 4. Five children preceded her in death.

Hill's Commission As Ord Postmaster In Effect Monday

Clements Retires After 12 Years in Office, Left Yesterday for Coast.

After serving twelve years as postmaster of Ord, Edwin P. Clements was retired from duty Monday and his successor, Alfred E. Hill, officially took over the duties of the office. Mr. Hill was appointed to the position several weeks ago but could not take over the office until his commission arrived and his bond went into effect.

The checking in of Postmaster Hill and the checking out of Ex-Postmaster Clements was accomplished with little ceremony and took only a short time. Some time in the next two or three months a postoffice department inspector will visit Ord and help Postmaster Hill in familiarizing himself with duties of the office.

Mr. Clements has been anxious to see his successor installed because he has a partnership in a lumber yard at Ontario, Calif., waiting his coming. A big building boom is anticipated in California about the middle of June because veterans' bonus payments will be made then and he wants to be in California before that time.

He has been a very efficient postmaster and patrons generally have been greatly satisfied with service given by the office under his management. The office also should run smoothly under Postmaster Hill, who has had considerable business experience, has lived here nearly all his life and thus knows most of the patrons personally.

For the past two months Edwin Clements and family have been living with his father, Judge and Mrs. Clements, their home having been rented to H. L. Beuck. Yesterday Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Clements and daughters, Jeanette and Jacqueline, Judge and Mrs. Clements and Miss Lena left for California. They will spend a few days at Boulder, Colo., visiting the Wayne Clements family before going on to the coast. Judge and Mrs. Clements will return to Ord about the middle of July.

Valley County's Crop Prospect Is Boosted By Rain

Moisture General Monday Eve, Small Grain, Alfalfa Believed Sure Crop.

A general rain that ranged from 1 3/4 inches in Ord to 1 1/2 inch at Elyria fell throughout Valley county Monday evening, giving assurance of a big small grain and alfalfa crop and also assuring this region's main crop, corn, of a start under ideal conditions.

The rain fell between 5 and 6 o'clock Monday afternoon and in Ord it came in such a deluge that the city's drainage system was hard pressed to take care of the torrents of water. Not since late June last year has such a heavy rain fell here.

Arcadia also reported a rain of 1 1/2 inches. No damage was done either in Ord or Arcadia by flood waters, so far as the Quiz can learn.

Other neighborhoods reported moisture totals as follows: North Loup, .61; Elyria, .25; Springdale, .51; Vinton, .25; Joint, .50; Mira Valley, .50; Woodman Hall, .35. A little hail fell in Ord but none was reported by other communities. The rain came without much wind although in the eastern part of the state a 50-mile-per-hour gale was reported a little later Monday evening. Considerable hail damage was done in the western part of Custer county, it is reported.

Some corn was washed out on farms near Ord but elsewhere no such damage was done. Small grain, much farther along than usual due to the early spring, should need little more moisture to assure a good crop. A big first cutting of alfalfa also should be assured.

From National Hall neighborhood comes a story that three funnel-shaped cyclone clouds were observed there about 1:20 Monday morning by people attending the dance. According to Fred Cohen, deputy sheriff, who was keeping order at the dance, the cyclone clouds came from the northwest and followed each other in close succession toward the southeast. The second cloud was the largest, he says, and at the base of the funnel whirling clouds of dust could be seen. No reports of cyclone damage have come to the Quiz office so evidently the storm did not strike in this part of Nebraska.

After several dry seasons Valley county should again produce bumper crops of grains and hay.

—Mr. and Mrs. Tom Wright and Mr. and Mrs. Howard Wright of Brainerd and Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Collison of Campbell were in Ord to spend the week end with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Collison.

The closing event of Commencement week activities was the senior class night program held last Thursday evening at the high school auditorium. A large crowd was in attendance and enjoyed seeing the seniors in their final appearance as a group.

The program opened with a word of welcome by Dale Melia, senior class president. Miss Dorothy Ann Zikmund gave the salutatory address and this was followed by a vocal solo with Miss Wilma Severns as accompanist. Ruth Koupal, 1936 valedictorian of the Ord schools, gave an interesting address which was followed by a flute solo by Miss Joy Aubie. The class history was read by Miss Charlotte Blessing. Reuben Cook sang an enjoyable vocal solo. Always a source of amusement is the class prophecy which was read by Miss Mildred Craig. Wilma Severns played a piano solo and Miss Julia Fuss read the class will. The program closed with a selection by a double quartette, members of the senior class.

Memorial Day Duly Observed

Soldiers' Graves Decorated, Judge Kroger Made Fine Talk in Morning.

Nature certainly did her part to make Memorial Day in Ord all that it should be, the sky being just cloudy enough to add to the delights of the day, a gentle breeze blew throughout the morning and the midsummer warmth was pleasant. Highways were in fine condition and nearly every family in Ord had visitors Saturday as a result.

As is customary in Ord, memorial services were held in the morning at the cemetery under the auspices of Fidelity post No. 33, American Legion. The program announced last week was adhered to rigidly.

Forming near the winnifill in the cemetery, a parade led by the high school band marched to the memorial plot at the east edge of the cemetery, this plot having been dedicated recently by city authorities for uses of this kind. A temporary platform had been installed and a loud speaker system carried the program to a large crowd that assembled on the higher ground to the west. The scene was a colorful one.

Judge E. G. Kroger, of Grand Island, was principal speaker and made an inspiring address. He was introduced by E. L. Vogelitz. Other features included a reading by Miss Ellen Servine, patriotic numbers by the band and a selection by a mixed quartette. Ladies of the G. A. R. conducted their rites and the decorating of soldiers' graves of course played a part in the morning's ceremonies. The sounding of taps concluded the program.

My Own Column

By H. D. Leggett

If I heard right about the price George Gowen paid for his feeder cattle I hope I don't have to use enough of his writings to reimburse him for the deficit he will have, unless the prices change materially. Or perhaps I don't know much about the cattle feeding business.

I presume everyone reads this department the first thing and if that is the case, I will be on my way to Cullen Lake when a lot of you are reading it, for, weather permitting, we expect to start early, this, Thursday morning. Next week I will tell you what kind of a trip we have, if we get there o. k.

A friend of mine living in the northwest corner of the county, always a republican, but who voted for Roosevelt and all along has been a supporter of the president, told me the other day that he was disgusted. Why? Because the administration seems determined to ruin the farmers. He has been telling me all along that he thought everything was going fine and I wondered why the change. In reply to my query he said that the administration caused the defeat of the Frazier-Lemke bill which would have saved almost countless farmers from losing their farms; now the administration is doing all it can to bring all kinds of farm products into this country in competition with us; and they are spending so much money that if any of us ever have anything it will take it all to pay the debt caused by the great squandering of money.

I asked him if many of his neighbors felt as he does and his reply was, "Yes, a hell of a lot of them." I am hearing a good deal of the same sort of talk from surprising sources from other parts of the county and if Valley county people are thinking and talking that way, the people all over the country are doing the same.

Two Irishmen started to cross a field and an angry bull started to chase them. Pat and Mike started to run but the only place that seemed to offer safety was a haystack and they made for it. Pat scrambled up but Mike failed to make it and as the bull was getting close, he started running around the stack with the bull in close pursuit. Time after time they went around and Mike began to tire and puff. After a time, as he came around the end of the stack where Pat was safely perched calling down suggestions, he yelled the following: "Pat, tell Nora the insurance policy and the other papers are in the bottom of the clock; this is my last time around." And this is my last time around with a lot of fellows who have been promising to pay their subscriptions and have not done so. If their Quiz don't show up they will know why.

Yes, we still want to send in your daily paper renewals or new subscriptions. We appreciate the business.

Everything I see and hear along political lines, convinces me that Senator George W. Norris will accept a petition filing if his friends circulate the petitions and get them on file. The senator has never been defeated and surely does not want to be defeated now and I feel sure there are a great many voters who have always held him in high esteem and who have voted for him in the past, who will not do so this year if his name is on the ballot.

I read last week with sincere regret of the death of Grand Island of Mrs. A. F. Buechler, wife of the Grand Island Independent editor. She has been in failing health for a couple of years. Mrs. Buechler was a charming lady who will be missed, not only by her own people and home friends but by the newspaper people who frequent the state and district press association meetings, for she was active, always, in entertaining the visitors to Grand Island, and Gus and his son have the sympathy of all the folks of the press in central Nebraska.

Receipt Column Suspended. While the very excellent cooking school lessons are running in the Quiz, the cooking column will run only recipes that will soon be out of season, and resume in full force the latter part of the summer when the lessons are concluded.

One reason for doing this is to accumulate some recipes for the every-sparingly supported cook's column in the Quiz, so please send your recipes in as usual. We will gladly print them.

Something DIFFERENT

I have had several readers of my column say they thought Ord really should be Spirea Town, since there are already so many banks of this tiny white flower in view each spring that it would not be difficult to finish the job up properly.

Spirea has its points, especially in Ord. It can hardly be killed, will grow on the north side of a place, in dense shade, where water drips from eaves, anywhere at all. Just stick it in the ground. It thrives rapidly and in a few years, say three, is ready for dividing. So it would cost Ord little or nothing to plant it around every house, as it would be so easy to divide with one's neighbors.

This plant does not need water in dry years as badly as grass or trees. It does not need spraying with special insect exterminators, etc. It is not expensive to buy. In bloom, it resembles rows of greenery, several feet high, of graceful, drooping bushes, well sprayed with snow. It is lovely in effect.

We could easily make Ord Spirea Town. Shall we?

Ord is going to have real races this year, on a speedy track. Drive out and look at it—don't try to drive on it, you'll tip over. Get inspired by a view of the new track, then start boosting the races. Write all your relatives to come visit here the last of August, and see our famous races. Always good, each year they're better, and this year will be the best ever. Well worth seeing, boost for our races.

Bud Shirley, ever ambitious, wants to fix up the part of Bus-sell Park east of the drive, which now has sizeable trees, shade and fair grass. Personally, I think Bud has all he can do now. Look at all the territory he has to keep in condition, the golf course, the playground, the camping ground, the golf club house, Anderson's Island park and its picnic grounds brush to clear out, and other things as well.

Do you know that Bud made the playground equipment out of old bars and stuff, mostly donated? It is makeshift stuff, but he has done as much as he could with it. It is not only his job, but his hobby too, to grow all those flowers, and to spend his winter leisure moments, if any, making bird houses, no two of which are alike.

The Red Cross, feeling that Ord is much interested in having young people learn to take efficient care of themselves in the water, located as it is on a river, is preparing to send an expert swimmer to take an intensive training course in advanced swimming, life saving, water training, and several other related subjects.

Whether you permit it or not, Ord children show a strong tendency to be found swimming in the river. No one would deny they are much safer when they are good swimmers, well able to take care of themselves in the water under any and all contingencies. So, if the Red Cross provides a specially trained local man to teach swimming to classes, particularly to some of the older boys and girls whom he may graduate from exactly the same course he has taken, it is surely doing a noble work in a river-side town like Ord.

These graduates in turn teach others, and so the teaching will spread in ever-widening circles, more and more young Ordites will learn to swim capably. Then maybe some day we can have a pool in Ord, a clean, well-cared-for one, without currents and sand and hidden logs or other perils for our children to battle. One of my pet plans.

BACK FORTY

A profitable project in agriculture was completed within the city limits of Ord this spring by a vocational agriculture student.

Last September Gerald Goff bought a purebred sow for forty dollars. In November she farrowed fifteen pigs, of which five died due to cold weather and other causes. The remainder were kept on a patch of volunteer rye that stayed green during most of the winter.

Gerald was able to rent the rye patch from a neighbor for one dollar. This, coupled with the early sale of the pigs, reduced feed costs. The entire feed cost amounted to $30.80. The pigs received tankage, shorts, oil meal, barley and corn.

The sow and five small pigs were sold in January. The sow brought more than her original cost. The rest of the litter was vaccinated against cholera and marketed about the first of April.

SWAT THE ROOSTER

Now is the time to get rid of the roosters in the farm flock. Poultry men at the University of Nebraska College of Agriculture say. Elimination of the Cockerels will improve egg quality and return more dollars to the producer.

CARE OF COUNTY BOARD

By George Gowen

School Finances Again.

In regard to the financial situation of the North Loup school district, which I wrote about two weeks ago, I must amend the statement a little, or add to it. North Loup is in not as bad shape as many other districts. Their interest and bills are all paid. The tough time is coming. Many districts are already in the mire. At a meeting at Ord a few weeks ago a man from a neighboring town said their district could not go another year. Scotia is hopelessly swamped already with debts. North Loup could go two years on warrants. Ord is not so bad yet as are most larger places because the per cent of farm land adjacent to the city is smaller.

The suit of Harry Klinging-smith and 39 others was to recover taxes that were over charged for the last three years because the appraisal was too high. This sets a precedent, and although the other farmers do not recover for the last three years, after this their appraisements will be lower.

Another situation has presented itself. Should the school board at North Loup increase the expenses and thereby run behind they could default their bonds sooner. One member thought that would not be very good judgment. Another person thought that was the very thing they should do, and bring on the bankruptcy sooner. If not, the other towns, like Scotia would be liquidated and started over sooner than N. L. More than that it would put the city real estate where it could be sold sooner.

Another outrage is the fact that the real estate is having to bear the most of the burden. Many families hardly pay a cent tax. As it is our real estate is encumbered nearly beyond hopes. And then Hank says I did not offer any solution. Who does he think I am, Ulysses? How could he expect me to solve the knotty problem when so many smarter persons than I are bewildered. I only attempted to give the facts, and I may have got them twisted considerably.

I recall one of the arguments presented when the school building with all its trills was built. The State Superintendent came up and told the school board if they didn't build a new building he would take the credits away. Our graduates (aside from me) had always compared favorably with other schools in scholarships, but no more could they be without a seventy thousand dollar building. The principal advantages in the new building are a basket ball floor, an auditorium, a kitchen and a big coal bill. It has more seats but they don't need them.

Too Much Collecting. A fellow shouldn't try a case before the courts have a chance, but it seems like things are going a little too far when men have engaged in swearing and fist fights to collect a bill. I'll warrant there was a different tenor to the voices when the tractor was sold.

Advertisement. This is an advertisement. I bought chickens of a hatchery and they are from the best flocks in the world. Without doubt it is true for the hatchery man said so. Ed Christensen did not do quite as well. His chickens are only from the best flock in this section of the state. Well, here it is. We are going to trade roosters. Now if any of you folks want to—(Whoa there! That's going a little too far, Ed!) want to—want to see some good chickens,—(that's better Ed!) just come around.

Ed Lee's new horse which he went to Iowa to purchase had his tail docked. Ed says all the purebred horses there have been docked and it does not matter if they were raised in America or the old country. If by some chance the tail has been missed, they will dock it if the owner wishes. Well, casting my opinion again, that should make the horse a lot better. Surely would do a lot better job pulling a plow.

But I don't know as that is any worse than docking a pup's tail. Or hurt any worse than dehorning cattle, or catching skunks in traps, or coon hunting, and glorying over the fight of the coon and dogs. And permitting my opinion again I would say we lack a little yet from the ideal civilized state.

Perhaps my nature is too sensitive. But once I decided to go in to the trapping business, I borrowed some bright shining new traps from my brother and sallied forth to make some money.

The first night I caught a mink. He had wrangled for hours with the iron jaws that gripped so firmly on his broken and mangled leg. He had struggled so hard that he was limp and exhausted. I looked at the little beast from afar. There was nothing for him to do but plead for mercy and with his little brown eyes he looked up at me with my fierce club in fatal submission for what ever more there was to come.

I lost heart. I thought of the little home he would leave vacant and how the other mink would wonder what had happened. In place of whacking his tiny head I used the stick and opened the jaw and freed the captive. I took up the trap and hurried on for fear I had cruelly caught something else.

Upon my return home, with a few tears set in my eyes I met my brother. He asked what luck I had had.

"The worst kind of luck," I replied throwing the traps down. "I guess I'll let you do the trapping after this. I'll get rich some other way."

"252 miles to the gallon is how I figure it with Red Crown"

...crows Lester Longbow

Mr. Lester Longbow, a prominent resident of Dozen Forks, R. R. 6, is known throughout the state for his stirring efforts in behalf of the Tall Stories Club.

"YA see, I was to be speaker o' the evening at the annual Grange dinner over to Dozen Forks. I got all tidied up, sorta late, and then found the dratted car was out o' gas—and Dozen Forks all o' four miles away.

"Well, my wife had an idea. Wait'll I get that little bottle o' gas I got from the Standard Oil Station to kill the ants with," says she.

"I loved as how it was foolish, but we'd try it. So she brought out a little 2-ounce bottle and we dumped the Standard Red Crown it held into the gas tank. I started off, figuring mebbe I'd make a hundred rod.

"But I got past the next farm—and the next—in 'fore I knew it there I was in front o' the Grange with the motor still runnin'. Figure it out for yourself...four miles worth o' distance on two ounces o' Red Crown. That's 252 miles to the gallon. That's mileage, mister! ... Eh? ... Sure, the whole Grange is using Red Crown now."

We think Standard Red Crown is good, too, but we refuse to be taken in by Lester's vivid report. It's not THAT good.

With "more live power per gallon," Standard Red Crown operates with less waste power per gallon. With it you can be sure of as long mileage per gallon as with any regular-priced gasoline you can buy—3¢ longer.

But rather than make claims, Standard prefers to make it easy for motorists to find out the real facts about gasoline mileage for themselves.

GIANT LOCOMOTIVE BREAKING RECORD ON 29,000-MILE TOUR

This 350-ton monster, built especially for the United Drug Company to haul its 12-car stream-lined convention train on a 29,000 mile tour of the United States and Canada, will be the only locomotive used on the trip. In ordinary railroad practice locomotives are changed frequently. Never has a single locomotive been called on for such an endurance tour in which it will meet every condition known to railroading.

The traveling convention, hailed everywhere as "the finest train on earth," is taking conventions to the retail dealers instead of asking them to travel long distances from their homes. The train carries all facilities for conventions that can be found in the largest hotel. There are four exhibit cars, two cars for meetings, a cafeteria diner from which lunch and dinner are served daily to several hundred delegates, two cars for dancing, a lounge car and an office car equipped with telephone and teletype connections with all the outside world.

It carries a permanent staff of forty, including nineteen executives and department heads of the United Drug Company, manufacturer of Rexall drug products which are sold in Ord by Ed F. Beranek.

In all cities where stops are made the 12-car train will be open for public inspection. Tickets of admission may be secured, free for the asking, from any Rexall store. In Nebraska the train stops at North Platte all day June 17, at Columbus on June 18 from 9 to 12 a. m., at Fremont on June 18 from 2:30 to 9:15 p. m. and at Omaha on June 19 and 20. Any Quiz reader who expects to be in any of these cities on the dates mentioned and desires to inspect the train may secure tickets from Mr. Beranek.

Weber-Weary.

About sixty relatives and friends gathered at the Wm. Horner residence to witness the marriage of Carmen Weber to Paul Weary Tuesday evening. At eight-thirty Elwin Auble, accompanied at the piano by his sister, Keo, sang "I Love You Truly." Immediately following Miss Auble played Mendelssohn's Wedding march while the bride unaccompanied came down the stairs. At the foot of the stairs she was joined by her father, Mr. Carl Weber. Miss Doris Weber, sister of the bride, and Marion Weary, brother of the groom, attended the couple. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. H. Stephens who waited in an alcove off the living room. The arch to the alcove was decorated with white streamers and banks of flowers. The bride and groom and their attendants took their places just in front of the arch during the ceremony. The bride wore a white satin wedding gown with a wreath of orange blossoms in her hair and carried a bouquet of white roses. The bridesmaid wore green chiffon. The groom was attired in dark blue and the best man in gray. Following the ceremony refreshments of angel food cake, parfait and fruit punch were served by cousins of the bride. A huge wedding cake was cut and served by the bride after which the couple slipped quietly away and due to clever management on their part got successfully away from a large crowd of would be pranksters.

Mrs. Weary is the oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Weber of Burwell. She has taught the third and fourth grades in the North Loup school for the past three years and has made many friends here. Mr. Weary is the second son of Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Weary of Virginia, Nebr. He has been chemistry instructor in the Kearney school for several years and expects to go there again next year. Mr. and Mrs. Weary expect to spend most of the summer traveling in the west, visiting relatives and camping in the mountains.

Miss Helen Houtby Weds Adolph Sevensen
At one of the loveliest weddings of the season on Wednesday evening, June 3 at 8:30 Miss Helen E. Houtby, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Houtby, became the bride of Adolph Sevensen, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Sevensen. The wedding was solemnized in the Houtby home in the presence of 125 relatives and intimate friends by Rev. S. A. Woodruff, Presbyterian minister, the double ring ceremony being used.
The couple stood under an arch of white lattice, covered with yellow roses. A large fern served as a background and large baskets of yellow iris were placed at each side. Miss Angeline Wachter, cousin of the groom, played Lohengrin's wedding march and also accompanied Miss Louise Hilpert who sang "I Love You Truly."
Little Connie Hansen, dressed in green organdy was flower girl and scattered yellow rose petals along the bride's pathway. The bride was beautiful in a formal white satin gown, trimmed with orange blossoms and wore a fingertip veil. She carried a bouquet of white roses.
Miss Florence Anderson was maid-of-honor and wore a floor-length green organdy gown. Janet Jenks of Burwell was bridesmaid and wore formal yellow organdy and both maid-of-honor and bridesmaid carried bouquets. Emanuel Sevensen, brother of the groom, served as best man and Chester Houtby, brother of the bride, was an attendant.
A lunch was served following the ceremony and Madams Fred Newman of Grand Island, James Wachter, Stanley Absolon, Seton Hansen and Miss Lydia Hosenk of Arcadia were in charge of the serving. Waitresses were dressed in green and yellow organdy with matching caps and aprons. In charge of the bride's many lovely gifts were Miss Della Higgins and Mrs. Delbert Bridge.
The bride is a graduate of the Burwell high school with the class of '30. She has attended Nebraska Wesleyan, Colorado State Teacher's college and Cotner Rocky Mountain summer school. For two years she instructed at Burwell and for the past four has been teaching in the Springdale school where she has established a reputation as being one of Valley county's most successful teachers. Mr. Sevensen attended Ord high school and was an efficient clerk for the Pafetta grocery store until they discontinued business. For the past four years he has been assisting in the Karty Hardware.
The bride traveled in an orchid suit with white accessories. After spending ten days in the Black Hills, they will be at home to their many friends in their house in Ord. Congratulations and best wishes are extended to this popular Ord couple.

Albert McMIndes
It is with deep regret that we are called upon to announce the death of Mr. Albert McMIndes who has been resident manager of the Atkinson Livestock Market since its establishment three and one-half years ago. His death occurred suddenly at 9 o'clock Tuesday night, June 2, 1936, following a stroke suffered while he was actively engaged in the work that he loved so well—that of directing and conducting the sale of horses at this market.
Mr. McMIndes had been associated with this firm for more than sixteen years. The loss of his cheery attitude toward life, his sound judgment and wise and impartial counsel, leave a vacancy in this organization that we will find most difficult to fill.

Item of Correction.
Due to errors in last week's account of the death of Mrs. H. D. Stowell, the following correction is made.
Sunday afternoon, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Washburn who have made their home with Mrs. Stowell since Mr. Stowell's death last January, had driven to Ord, not for ice, but to take flowers to the cemetery for their father's grave. They had urged Mrs. Stowell to go along but as she had not slept the previous night, said she thought she would stay at home as long as her son Herman and his wife were home also.
Mrs. Herman Stowell Jr., had gone over to Mrs. Stowell's house during the afternoon and as everything was quiet in the house, she supposed Mrs. Stowell had gone up stairs for her usual afternoon nap. It was when neighbors came for the ice cream freezer later in the afternoon that the body was found.
Always a kind and loving mother she will be sadly missed by her family and friends.

LESSON 9 Biscuits

There are two kinds of dough—just as there are two kinds of batter.

Soft Doughs use three cups of flour to 1 cup of liquid, generally speaking. (For example—tea biscuits and bread.)

Stiff Doughs use about 4 cups flour to 1 cup of liquid. (For example—cookies and pastry.)

Biscuit dough, and all the things we make with mixtures like it, belong to the Soft Doughs.

I am going to teach two ways of making biscuit dough in this lesson—and a number of ways to vary them.

1. Using flour, salt, baking powder or substitute, shortening and liquid.

2. Using a prepared biscuit flour to which we only add liquid.

Standard Flour Method. Biscuit dough is mixed by a method entirely different from that we use for batters.

1. Sift flour once, measure it, mix other dry ingredients with it, and sift into bowl.

2. Measure and, cold shortening, and cut it into dry ingredients with a knife, two knives, a steel-pronged fork, or a wire pastry blender. Use a quick, short, chopping motion until all the fat is in small particles.

Or you may rub the fat into the dry ingredients with chilled finger tips, but this does not make such light biscuits because of the warmth from the fingers.

3. Add liquid—milk or water is used, or sour milk or buttermilk (with which baking soda is used to replace some of the baking powder); an egg may be part of the liquid for fancy tea biscuits, etc., but is not used in plain biscuits.

Sprinkle the liquid all over the surface of the flour, mixing in quickly and lightly with a knife or fork; work dough as little as possible—too much mixing makes biscuits tough, because it develops the gluten in the flour. Add enough liquid to make a dough which is only stiff enough to handle, as a soft dough makes light, tender biscuits.

4. Turn out dough on slightly floured board or canvas and toss it to coat lightly with flour.

5. Knead dough with 3 or 4 light, easy, kneading motions—very little, remember; it is better not to knead at all than too much.

6. Pat dough with palms of hands or roll with covered rolling pin to required thickness.

7. Shape with cutters dipped in flour, or cut in squares with a floured knife.

8. Do not re-roll left-over dough—just gather it together without lifting from board, and stamp out rest of biscuits.

Short-cut—Instead of 4, 5, 6, 7 and 8, make dough just a little softer—add milk until dough is soft enough to drop from a spoon. Drop by teaspoons (or a little bigger when desired) on well-greased pan. We call these Drop Biscuits.

9. Bake in a hot oven, 450 degrees F. And keep these things in mind: The softer the dough the better the biscuits.

Mix quickly, handle lightly, bake quickly.

Foundation Recipe, Using Flour.

2 cups flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
4 teaspoons baking powder
2 tablespoons or more shortening

2-3 cup liquid (you may require more or less)

Mix and bake exactly as I have described.

Prepared Biscuit Flour Method.

It is now possible for the child of 6, or for the woman who has never been able to make good biscuits, to turn out beautifully light and fluffy biscuits in 2 minutes—and to know that every time they will be perfectly successful.

This quick way of making either white or whole wheat biscuits calls for the use of one of the new prepared biscuit flours, which you buy in an exceptionally well-sealed package containing the finest flour, the salt, the baking powder and the shortening. They are all carefully measured and mixed.

1. Measure prepared biscuit flour straight from the package in amounts directed (do not sift because of the fat in it, which makes it gather in little clumps).

2. Measure prescribed liquid, using milk or water, whichever is handier; add all at once to prepared biscuit flour, mixing in quickly and lightly with knife, for just 30 seconds.

3. Scrape out dough on floured board or canvas or paper, and knead lightly with finger tips for 10 seconds.

4. Pat or roll out to desired thickness and shape with cutter or knife.

Short-cut—Instead of kneading, rolling and cutting dough, as in 3 and 4, make it softer by using 2 tablespoons more liquid, and drop from spoon on greased pan.

5. Bake in a very hot oven—hotter than for biscuit dough we make with plain flour; 475 degrees F. to 500 degrees F. makes best white biscuits, and 475 degrees F. is ideal for whole wheat biscuits.

Many Kinds of Biscuits. Once you have learned to make excellent plain biscuits, using either the standard flour method or the prepared flour method, there is no end to the kinds of fancy biscuits you can make. Here are some examples:

Drop Biscuits—The quickest kind as described in Foundation Recipes for both biscuit methods. Make the Foundation Dough with enough extra liquid to make dough soft enough to drop by teaspoonful (or larger) on greased pan. Bake same as rolled biscuits.

Rich and Sweetened Biscuits—(a) Using standard flour method, add 2 to 4 tablespoons sugar to dry ingredients and increase shortening to 4 tablespoons; if you want to add egg, use 1 beaten egg as part of the liquid and about 2 teaspoonfuls less milk.

(b) Using prepared flour method, chop 2 tablespoons hard, cold shortening (butter, lard, or any solid neutral-flavored white commercial shortening) into prepared flour before adding liquid.

Lemon or Orange Sweethearts—Grate a little rind into some lemon or orange juice to steep while you make biscuit dough. Have ready some small diced sugar—the tea-cube size; or break large lumps of sugar in four pieces. Using either method, make Foundation Dough or Richer Dough, or "Richer and Sweetened Dough." Shape small biscuits.

When biscuits are ready, dip a small lump of sugar for a moment in fruit juice, and press it; point down, into center of biscuit. Bake as usual. The biscuit will puff up around and over the sugar during baking.

Cheese Biscuits—Add 2-3 cup grated cheese to dry ingredients in Foundation Recipe, using either method; and for very quick and easy results, just make the Drop Biscuits, instead of rolling and cutting dough.

Date Pockets—Using either method, make Richer Dough, unsweetened. Roll out to 1/4 inch thickness and shape with large cutter. Put a spoonful of date or other fruit filling (see Lesson 10) on each piece of dough, keeping it to one side, and fold the other half of the dough over to enclose it; moisten edges of dough and pinch together, like a turn-over tart. A soft pitted date, rolled in fruit sugar, may be used instead of cookie filling.

Butterscotch Biscuits—Using either method, make Foundation Richer Dough and roll out to 1/4 inch thickness, keeping shape as square as possible.

Spread with 1-3 cup butter and 2-3 cup brown sugar, that have been well creamed together; add a little spice if you like. Roll up dough like a jelly roll, then cut in slices about 3/4 inch thick; place cut-side down, and bake in a greased pan. Tiny muffin tins are ideal for these biscuits, as they save the sugar mixture from running out.

Maple sugar, finely shaved, instead of brown sugar, gives an unusual flavor.

Fruit Pin-Wheels—Using either method, roll out sheet of dough as for Butterscotch Biscuits. Spread with creamed butter and sugar, then with a mixture of finely chopped raisins and candied citron and orange peel; or with currants and peel; or sultana raisins and a small amount of shredded, candied ginger; or equal parts currants and sugar, with 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon; or thick paste of stewed sweetened dried apricots with few drops almond flavoring, or better still, a few finely shredded almonds.

Use about 1-3 cup combining filling. Roll up, slice and bake same as Butterscotch Biscuits.

Sour Milk Biscuits—Using standard flour method only, substitute sour milk or buttermilk for sweet milk, using only 2-3 teaspoon baking powder and with it 1-3 teaspoon baking soda. Crush lumps from soda and sift it and the baking powder with the flour. Will make plain or richer doughs and can be used in all the same ways. White, Graham or Whole Wheat flours may be used.

Soda Biscuits—Same as Sour Milk Biscuits.

Scones—Using either biscuit method, add 2 or 3 tablespoons sugar to dry ingredients, and replace about 2 tablespoons milk with 1 beaten egg, adding milk to egg and using as liquid. A richer dough makes delicious Scones—you can use up to 1-3 cup shortening in standard flour dough or add up to 3 tablespoons hard, cold shortening to prepared flour dough before mixing with liquid.

Currant or Raisin Scones—Add 1/2 to 1 cup washed and dried currants or sultana raisins to Scone Mixture—either the light Foundation Dough or the Richer Dough, just mentioned above.

Sour Milk Scones—Using standard flour method only, substitute sour milk or buttermilk for sweet milk, mix the egg with it, reduce baking powder to 2-3 teaspoonfuls and add 1-3 teaspoon soda, to dry ingredients. These scones may have extra richness and fruit added as just described.

Quick Brioche. Roll either plain flour or biscuit flour dough to 1-6 inch thickness, keeping shape as nearly rectangular as possible. Spread with melted butter, sprinkle lightly with brown sugar and cinnamon. Roll up like jelly roll. Slice down 1/4 inch thick, place cut-side down on a greased baking sheet. Sprinkle with coconut, bake as usual.

To Glaze Biscuits.

1. Brush top with milk, before baking.

2. Brush with beaten egg diluted with milk or water, before baking.

SHORTCAKE. As soon as you can make good biscuits, you can make wonderful shortcake. Real, old-fashioned, biscuit-type shortcake is just made with rich biscuit dough.

Just as in making biscuits, there are two ways of making shortcake.

Standard Shortcake.

2 cups flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
4 teaspoons baking powder
2 tablespoons sugar
1-3 cup hard, cold shortening
2-3 cup milk
1 egg (optional)

Mix shortcake dough by exactly the same rules I gave you at the beginning of this lesson for biscuit dough made with ordinary flour.

Divide dough in half for large shortcake. Roll out to 3/4 inch thickness, and pat into shape to fit pan.

Spread first piece of dough with softened butter, place second piece on it.

For individual cakes, roll out dough, shape with large biscuit cutter, and put together in pairs with butter between.

Bake the rich shortcake mixture with a little less heat than plain biscuits—425 degrees F. This is still a hot oven.

Biscuit Flour Method. For the richer dough that most people expect in shortcake, just chop finely 3 or 4 tablespoonfuls of hard, cold shortening (butter or any unflavored pure white fat) into prepared biscuit flour before adding liquid.

Shape the dough in one large cake—two pieces with soft butter between so as to split easily—or in individual large biscuits.

Like all other prepared biscuit flour mixtures, shortcake made with this ingredient requires more heat than the corresponding mixture with ordinary flour; use a temperature of 450 degrees to 475 degrees F.—just a little lower heat than we give to biscuits made with prepared biscuit flour, because of the added richness.

Don't keep shortcakes for strawberry time, have them every month in the year! Besides fresh strawberries, raspberries, peaches and so forth, we can use many of the canned fruits for shortcake. Canned peaches and apricots, flavorful canned pears, too, make excellent shortcake. The cooked filling made with dates and other dry fruits (see Lesson 10) will also make a delicious shortcake. So also will stewed dried fruits such as peaches and apricots.

Make shortcakes for your meat or fish course, too. Put diced cooked meat or fowl, or flaked cooked or canned fish, into a good cream sauce of medium thickness, such as you learned in Lesson 1 (using 1 cup solid to 1 cup sauce) and serve between the layers and over the top of very hot shortcake biscuits.

Cream (either the rich pouring kind or whipped cream) can be served with the dessert shortcake; or you can use evaporated milk plain or whipped. Sometimes you may like a little almond flavoring extract in your cream or milk. You can also serve with your sweet shortcakes a hot pudding sauce flavored with lemon, orange, vanilla, etc.

Dumplings. There are two kinds of dumplings—those we steam and those we bake.

Both steamed and baked dumplings may be made with ordinary drop-biscuit dough, following either the standard method or the prepared flour method.

Dumplings to serve with a meat stew, stewed chicken, etc., can be cooked in the steamer over rapid boiling water (the steamer must have a tight fitting cover); or the dumplings can be placed right in the stew pot so that they will rest on the solid meat and vegetables and cook in the steam of the stew; in this way, they absorb the delicious flavor from the cooking itself. The cover must fit closely on the stew pot.

Give dumplings 15 minutes to cook without raising the cover from steamer or stew pot; raising it would be like holding your oven door open when a cake is rising—it would chill the mixture, so that it would fall and be heavy. Treat your dumplings when you give them plenty of steam; they will be all right.

Standard Dumplings. Make exactly the same dough that you make for the drop type of Foundation Biscuits, using the standard flour method but use only 2 teaspoons fat for dumplings instead of the 2 tablespoons fat used in the biscuits.

Mix the dough quickly and drop in pieces about the size of a small biscuit over your stew or into your steamer. Cover closely and cook 15 to 20 minutes.

Biscuit Flour Dumplings. 2 cups prepared biscuit flour
7-8 cup milk, or 3/4 cup water

Stir all the liquid into flour quickly and lightly into prepared flour, and drop small dumplings over surface of stew or into steamer. Cover closely and cook without disturbing 15 or 20 minutes.

Dessert Dumplings. Apple dumplings and other fruit cooked the same way, make excellent desserts.

Make shortcake dough either by the standard flour method or by the biscuit flour method.

Roll either dough out in a sheet 3/4 inch thick.

Cut in squares big enough to enclose a pared or cored apple; for smaller dumplings, use part of an apple or a canned half peach or pear, canned apricots, pitted and sugared dates with a few drops of lemon squeezed over them, or other fruit. Sprinkle raw fruit with a little sugar and dust lightly with spice you like best—cinnamon, nutmeg, or mixed pudding spices.

Dampen the edge of the piece of dough and fold it over to enclose the fruit completely.

Dumplings Steamed or Baked. Place the dumpling in the steamer and cook over rapidly boiling water long enough to cook the dough and make the fruit tender. Serve with a hot pudding sauce, flavored with lemon—or a butter, scotch or syrup sauce, or a custard sauce.

These same dumplings may be baked plain, or with a sugar-and-water syrup (1/2 cup sugar, 1/2 cup boiling water, some grated lemon rind) poured over them and used to taste them often while baking.

These are just a few of the things you can do with biscuit dough. You will find more suggestions when you reach Lesson 12, on Desserts, and you will think up many more after studying this lesson and "getting your hand in" at biscuits. I hope you will never feel that the serving of hot biscuits (or any of their infinite and interesting variations) need be a burden.

Not only have we first-aid in the form of excellent methods and materials, but we also have the convenience of being able to prepare our biscuit dough some hours ahead and storing it, covered, in the well-chilled ice-box until baking time. Left-over biscuits may be served as fresh-baked by putting them in a paper bag, closing it carefully and placing in a hot oven, 450 degrees F., until warmed through. (This, too, may be done with the bread rolls.) Tea biscuits are also delicious split and toasted.

Just how far these biscuit-doughs will go in helping you to concoct interesting, even distinguished, little dishes, will be delightfully shown in Planning the Party.

Don't Forget Next Wednesday Is Rooster Day Again!

The following items clipped from various Dairy Publications should be of interest to all farm folks who milk cows.

By using more butter we help ourselves more than anyone else. We help our health by using wholesome, nutritious butter; we help our purse by contributing to the general prosperity of our community.

One should remember that the cow is just a manufacturing plant and must have the raw material if she is to produce efficiently.

More than 10 per cent of a dairy herd has to be replaced each year, because of disease, injury, old age, sterility or low production.

The good dairy farmer regards weeds as one of his worst enemies, for that is what they are. Just a few neglected weeds will spoil many dollars' worth of salable milk or cream.

Under Your Nose. "Most people can't see what's right under their noses." "If they could, a lot of mustaches would be shaved off."

A Good Remedy. Wifey—"Goodness, I believe you're coming down with a cold again." Hubby—"Well, you know what to do at the first sign of a cold." Wifey—"Sure, lock up all the whiskey in the house."

Stand Closer. Sergeant—"Did you shave this morning, Brown?" Cop—"Yes, sergeant." Sergeant—"Well, next time stand a bit closer to the razor."

The Wrong Remedy. Reporter—"A man on the phone wants to know if you have any newspapers for a week back." Editor—"Newspapers are no good for a week back—tell him to try a mustard plaster!"

The Cream Price

The price butter sells for on the market determines the price the farmer receives for his cream. If good cream is marketed, good butter can be made from it which will command a premium on the market, thereby enabling the butter manufacturer to pay more for the farmer's cream.

Most of the butter producing states now have plans whereby differentials of two to three cents per pound of fat are made between first and second grades of cream.

In some states this is required by law and in others it is done by mutual agreement among cream buying agencies.

Off-flavors in cream are frequently caused by the container in which cream is stored. Rusty cans often impart a puckery or metallic flavor and should never be used.

Adjust your separator so the cream will test 35-40 per cent butterfat. Thin cream sours more rapidly than thick cream and often becomes lumpy, which is an undesirable condition. If thin cream is marketed more skim milk is taken from the farm than is necessary. Keep the skim milk at home; it is an excellent feed for pigs and chickens.

Setting the can of cream in cold water and stirring frequently is the method best suited to the average farm. Fresh cold water should be drawn quite often to insure proper cooling.

The large cow of any breed is usually the highest producer and the most profitable animal. Do not deny the growing calf the necessary feeds.

Regardless of how fine a herd you might have, if you are going to produce high-quality cream, you must keep your utensils clean. Scurring and off flavor will often be prevented by a little precaution.

There is no known way to sweeten rancid fat. It cannot be used successfully for food, but it need not be thrown away. It will still make good soap.

John Rousek Passed Away Last Thursday

Died Following a Stroke at Age of 48 Years, 10 Months, and 12 Days.

The community was bereaved last Thursday afternoon when it was learned that John Rousek had suffered a second stroke and passed away shortly after, passing away about five o'clock in the afternoon of Thursday.

John was a very prominent business man of Comstock, at least he had been in business here and was considered one of the group. At the time of death he was a member of the school board in Comstock and his services taken from this group will be hard to replace. Death coming at such an inopportune time, as Mr. Rousek was only 48 years of age, has taken from this community one of the best friends it has ever had.

John Rousek was born on July 16, 1887, near Pawnee City, Nebraska, and departed this life at his home in Comstock, Nebraska, on May 28, 1936, at the age of 48 years, 10 months and 12 days.

At the age of 2 years he moved with his parents to a farm in Valley county, Nebraska, near Burwell, where he grew to manhood.

On February 23, 1909, Mr. Rousek was united in marriage to Anna Bruha and moved to a farm west of Burwell. To this union three daughters were born. His wife died December 18, 1912, leaving him with the three small children.

Three years later he moved to Comstock where he became engaged in the automobile business.

On March 14, 1921, he was united in marriage to Emma Nelson of Comstock. To this union a daughter, Jean, was born.

Ten years ago Mr. Rousek sold his garage business and took up farming in South Dakota, but made his home at Comstock. This occupation he followed up to the time of his death.

He was in failing health the last three years. The 31st day of last December he suffered a paralytic stroke, which left him almost helpless. A second stroke on May 28, caused his sudden death.

Comstock has lost an outstanding citizen, the neighborhood a wonderful friend. His deeds of kindness and gratitude to all will always be remembered by those who knew him.

He leaves to mourn his loss his wife and four daughters, Misses Emma, Alice and Jean of Comstock, and Mrs. Ed Tvardik of Ord, Nebraska; a granddaughter, Mary Ann Tvardik; three sisters and three brothers, Mrs. Mary Bussell Comstock, Mrs. Wm. Mathäuser, Burwell, Mrs. Emil Mathäuser, Burwell, Mr. Charles Rousek, Long Pine, Mr. Joe Rousek, Burwell, Mr. Frank Rousek, Burwell; besides other relatives and a host of friends.

Funeral services were held from the Comstock Theatre building on Sunday afternoon, with the Rev. W. S. Morris of Callaway in charge. Pall bearers were Ed Panowicz, Jerry Pliva, Joe Lenstrom, E. J. Crawford, Conrad Hovle, and Wm. Dwyer. Interment was made in the Douglas Grove cemetery.—Comstock News.

The Valley county assistance committee met Saturday, June 6, and reconsidered seven applications for old age assistance. Nine new applications were also approved at this time. One application for blind assistance was approved and one application for aid to dependent children was also granted by the board.

Frank Kruml, county assistance director, states that there have been 112 applications accepted by the state committee and that 150 applications have been taken in Valley county for old age assistance. Only two applications for blind assistance have been filed, and both have been accepted by the local assistance committee.

McCall, Jablonski Cars Collide Near Elyria Saturday

Both Wrecked, Four People Badly Injured in Midnight Accident.

Four people suffered painful injuries and two cars were practically demolished Saturday night when the cars, driven by James D. McCall, Ord rural mail carrier, and Supervisor Joseph Jablonski, of Elyria, collided on the highway one-half mile south of Elyria. The accident occurred about 11 o'clock.

McCall, alone in his car, was driving toward Ord and Jablonski accompanied by his wife, two children and Miss Angela Szumski, was going to his home from Ord. Supervisor Jablonski suffered bruises and his eyes were painfully burned by acid from the battery, his left eye being most seriously affected. Mrs. Jablonski suffered bruises and a cut on the left arm and Miss Angela Szumski cuts on the face and body, with multiple bruises and lacerations. The Jablonski children were not hurt. Mr. McCall had one cheek deeply gashed and was considerably bruised.

Cause of the accident has not been officially determined but people who visited the scene soon afterward say that from the tire markings both cars apparently were too close to the center of the highway. The drivers may have been partially blinded by bright lights. Mr. Jablonski was driving about 35 or 40 miles per hour, McCall considerably faster.

The cars did not collide head-on but struck each other at a glancing blow. The left side of each car was demolished, frames sprung and considerable other damage done.

Passers-by brought the injured people to Ord and members of the Jablonski party were attended by Dr. J. G. Kruml.

Both cars were hauled to the Anderson garage by a wrecker where they were objects of interest to curious people who did not see how their occupants escaped death or more serious injury.

Summer Program of Reading Planned

To be conducted for the first time this year, the Ord schools are planning a summer reading program for the grades one to eight inclusive. This program is being offered to increase interest in balance reading, and as a reward a good book will be awarded next September to the person in each grade who presents the best balanced summer reading report.

All students in the grades are eligible and should file a report of their summer reading, these brief reports to be kept for each book read and given at the beginning of school to the home room teacher who will see that they reach the hands of the judges.

Any good standard book will be accepted and reports will be judged by a faculty committee on the following points: five points for each full-sized book which is read and reported; a bonus of 100 points awarded when a book from each of the following groups has been read. This bonus may be earned any number of times but the book selected from group four must be from a different subdivision in each cycle. The first cycle includes books on travel, second on history and third, nature books.

Suggested classes of books are fiction, biography, plays or books of poetry and non-fiction which includes nature, travel, history or government and science.

Artichoke Firm Considering Ord As Factory Site

Will Launch Building Program This Fall; 300 Acres Now Under Contract.

The United Artichoke Company this autumn will erect the first of a series of factories for processing Jerusalem artichoke into syrups, fuel alcohol and other commercial by-products, announces Fred G. Johnson of Hastings president of the company, and Ord is being given consideration as a location for one of the factories to be built in the near future. L. J. Aulsebrook, local representative of the company, attended a 5-day session held in Hastings last week and brought back word of the company's plans.

No definite location for plant sites can be announced pending an investigation by the engineering staff, Mr. Aulsebrook says, but Hastings, Ord and Scottsbluff are under consideration. Should the first plant be built at Hastings or Scottsbluff it is probable that other plants will be added in the next year or two and if artichoke production increases here Ord unquestionably will be selected as a factory site because of its central location on important highways.

Johnson's announcement, made last week, said:

"Erection of the first plant for processing of artichoke tubers into syrups will be started this fall; a unit for manufacture of industrial alcohol will be added later."

This fall dehydration plants will be built throughout the territory at an expense of about $5,500 each, Johnson said. Artichoke tubers will be dehydrated in these small plants, about 65 per cent of moisture being removed, and the dehydrated material then shipped to the central plant. According to Mr. Aulsebrook, such a dehydration plant surely will be erected at Ord.

The United Artichoke Company has about 300 acres under contract in this immediate vicinity and about 5,000 acres in central Nebraska. To keep a large processing plant busy the production of about 3,000 acres is required. Next spring it is hoped more Valley county farmers will add artichokes to their regular crop schedule, each putting in five or ten acres, which would insure success of a factory at Ord.

The company has under consideration a hook-up with the Gurney people at Yankton, S. D. Large users of alcohol to make alcohol from artichokes has just been completed at Atkinson, Kas., by the Chemical Foundation, and the Gurney people have contracted for 2,000 gallons of alcohol daily. They are now selling 60,000 gallons of 5 per cent alcohol-gasoline blend daily.

Some time this week Mr. Aulsebrook will accompany representatives of the United Artichoke company to Yankton for a conference with Mr. Gurney which may result in the Gurney company agreeing to purchase alcohol produced by the United from artichokes raised in central Nebraska.

McMindes' Rites Largely Attended

Funeral rites for Albert McMindes, who passed away last Tuesday at Atkinson, were largely attended when held at the Sowl chapel in Ord Friday, many friends and business associates being present from Atkinson, O'Neill, Greeley, Spalding, Ewing, Grand Island and other towns. Few men were more widely and favorably known throughout the central west than was Mr. McMindes and sorrowing friends completely filled the large chapel. As a mark of respect to their former townsman, who left Ord 3 1/2 years ago, business men of this city closed their stores and offices during the services.

Rev. Mearl C. Smith preached the funeral sermon and interment at Ord cemetery followed. Pallbearers were Rude Inbody, O. C. Winder, Chas. Burdick, Geo. S. Round, Harvey Parks and D. C. Haight. Honorary pallbearers included V. W. Robbins, Rube McCune, Henry Geweke, C. J. Mortensen, Joe Anderson and Wm. Moses.

$95,000 Corn-Hog Money Arrives To Pay 770 Contracts

Dale's Office Distributing Final Payments on 1935 Reduction Program.

The sum of $95,132.65, about two-thirds of the final payment contract to Valley county signers of 1935 corn-hog contracts was received Monday by the county allotment committee and is being distributed this week through the office of County Agent C. C. Dale.

Checks now being distributed represent payment on 770 contracts. Yet to come are 310 final payment checks. When these arrive and are distributed the government's 1933, 1934 and 1935 experiment in reducing corn and hog production will be finished, as the entire program was outlawed by the Supreme court a few months ago.

Cards have been mailed to all persons who have checks waiting for them at the county agent's office now and Mr. Dale requests that people do not call for checks unless they have received notice to do so. When the remaining checks arrive the farmers to whom they go will receive notice through the mail.

Total administrative expense of the corn-hog program in Valley county, which is deducted from producers' checks, was only 3 per cent which is at least 1 per cent lower than any other county in the district and one of the lowest in Nebraska. Valley county administrative costs were very low last year also.

Entertain at Shower for Mrs. Nielsen

About twenty of her schoolmates and close friends were present to enjoy a social evening at the Nielsen country home. Mrs. Nielsen was the recipient of many beautiful and useful gifts and at the close of the evening, refreshments of ice cream and cake were served.

Personal Property Valuation Higher 30% Reports Brox

Totals $1,883,445 This Year, He Tells Board Tuesday; Many More Fat Cattle.

The great general improvement that has occurred in the financial condition of Valley county farmers and business men during the past twelve months was proved Tuesday when A. R. Brox, county assessor, made his annual report to the board of supervisors at the beginning of their three-day meeting as a board of equalization. Total value of personal property in the county this spring as shown by 3,033 schedules, exclusive of cars, intangibles and all special schedules, is $1,883,445, his report shows. In 1935 the total was only $1,448,365, which makes the increase about 30 per cent.

Moreover, cars this year are valued at $193,365 as against $148,430 a year ago, or an increase of 30.2 per cent. All cars were assessed as of April 1. Class A intangibles showed a decrease of 8 per cent, the total being $280,325 as against $304,705 but Class B intangibles showed a gratifying gain of 22.2 per cent, the total being $107,270 as compared with $87,765 in 1935.

Greatest increase in any class of personal property was that of fat cattle. A year ago, after the drought of the previous year, Valley county farmers had only 994 fat cattle; this year they have 3,183. Increase in valuation is approximately $100,000. Stock cattle increased in numbers from 2,616 to 3,038, milk cows from 5,361 to 5,563, 2-year-olds from 2,071 to 3,451 and yearlings from 5,043 to 6,336. These figures prove that the cattle industry in Valley county is recovering rapidly from effects of that terrible drought year.

Work horses increased largely in numbers and also in value, the schedules show. Last year there were only 2,494 in the county, this year there are 2,935 and their valuation increase is about $55,000. Hogs also increased from 11,319 to 12,949 but the valuation increase was only $30,000 because they were assessed one cent lower this year.

On April 1 Valley County farmers had stored 123,290 bushels of corn as compared with 78,495 a year ago but corn was valued at only 45c per bushel this year and 75c last year. Oats, valued at 40c per bushel in 1935, found only 2,510 bushels on farms here but this year there were 159,900 bushels, valued at only 20c.

County Assessor Brox called the board's particular attention to the increase in numbers and valuation of tractors this spring. There are now 376 owned in Valley county compared with 311 last year and their valuation for assessment purposes is $40,000 greater due to a new method of computing their value that made them worth about one-third more. This method of valuing tractors is regarded as much fairer to farmers who use horses, who have hitherto paid a higher tax comparatively than have tractor farmers.

Supervisors are meeting three days this week as a board of equalization and unless they finish their work sooner than expected will meet tomorrow to allow claims and transact regular county business.

George Court Dies At Farm Near Cairo

George Court, about 70 years old and a resident of Ord until about a year ago, passed away at 3:00 a. m. Saturday, June 6 at his farm six miles southeast of Cairo, Nebr., following an illness of several weeks with influenza.

Long a farmer between Burwell and Taylor, Mr. Court moved to Ord some years ago and resided in a house in the northwest part of town. In the spring of 1935 he bought a farm near Cairo and moved there, accompanied by his niece, Miss Hulda Appel, who was his housekeeper.

As a resident of Ord Mr. Court was greatly respected and friends will learn of his death with sorrow.

Railway Commission Announces Hearing On Truck Licensing

At 10:00 a. m. on June 15 in the hearing room of the railway commission at Lincoln a hearing will be held that should prove of great interest and importance to every commercial trucker in Nebraska. This hearing deals with the commission's order assuming authority over all motor carriers, which was issued a few weeks ago.

If the commission's order is upheld, all truckers will be required to secure certificates from the railway commission before they may legally operate. The routes over which they may operate will be specified in this certificate and rates, conditions of service and general control will be assumed by the commission.

Motor trucks owned and operated by a farmer in the conduct of his own business are exempted, as are trucks used exclusively in the transportation of livestock and agricultural commodities.

Red Cross Nursery For Rural Children Will Open June 20

Ord Business Men Will Aid In Financing Project; Nurse Will Be Employed.

Business men of Ord, through directors of the Chamber of Commerce, agreed Tuesday evening to aid the Red Cross in financing a Saturday nursery for rural children and the project will get started Saturday, June 20, according to Mrs. John P. Misko, Red Cross president.

One of the small school houses located west of the grade school building in south Ord has been leased by the Red Cross for use as a nursery. Rent will be paid by the Chamber of Commerce and all other expenses, including salary of an experienced nurse, will be paid by the Red Cross.

This rest room will be open from noon until 9 or 10 p. m. each Saturday during the coming three months and country mothers are invited to leave their children there while shopping or visiting friends in Ord. The Red Cross assures mothers that their children will be given the best of care and that toys and playground equipment will be provided to keep the older children amused. Cradles and cots will be installed so babies and small children may have their naps at usual hours.

Babies and all children up to about 8 years old will be welcomed. Mrs. Misko promises. The project should be of great value to rural mothers and should also prove beneficial to the kiddies who may enjoy supervised play under the best conditions. More complete announcement of the project will be made next week, Red Cross officers promise.

Kasson, Peterson Trucks Wrecked

Because their drivers fell asleep, two of the big commercial trucks serving Ord merchants were wrecked on No. 16 highway last week, Charles Kasson's truck hitting a bridge east of St. Paul and K. W. Peterson's truck overturning near Schuyler.

Frank Pray, driver of the Kasson truck, was uninjured but his companion, Charles Mella, received a few cuts and bruises. This accident occurred Thursday night. The truck was taken to Grand Island for repairs.

Saturday night Jim Phillips, driver of the Peterson truck, went to sleep at the wheel and his truck coasted gently off the road and was about to come to rest in a field of oats when Phillips awoke, jerked wildly at the wheel in an attempt to bring the truck back on the highway, and caused it to overturn. The driver was not hurt but the truck was considerably damaged. So sleepy was Phillips that he went back to sleep while awaiting help and thieves stole part of the truck's cargo while he slept. An unusual feature of this accident is the fact that it occurred two years to the day later and at the identical spot where a Peterson truck was high-jacked of its cargo.

Softball Field Is Being Equipped Now

Necessary equipment having arrived, George Allen and his assistants are busy this week installing the lighted field at the fair grounds for the Ord Kittenball league and within the next few days, possibly next Tuesday night, the season's play will start. According to Lynn Beeghly, league secretary, four teams have signed up and another one or two are expected to get into the league. Games will be played Tuesday and Thursday evenings with town team games being played Sunday nights.

World War Vets Will Get $200,000 Bonus Next Week

Bonds Will Arrive Tuesday, Ord Postmaster Thinks; Office Open Evenings.

Beginning next week, Valley county's 569 veterans of the world war will receive approximately $200,000 in adjusted service bonds, usually called "soldiers' bonus" bonds. Bonds will be sent from the various sub-offices of the United States Treasury by registered mail and the letters for veterans in territory served by the Ord postoffice are expected to arrive about next Tuesday morning, according to Postmaster Alfred Hill.

Registered letters containing the bonds will be sent with return receipts and will be deliverable only to addressee, who must sign the receipt. If any veteran receiving the bonds is not known personally to the mail carrier or postal employee making delivery he must identify himself before delivery can be made.

The bonds are in denominations of $50 and veterans may elect to keep them until the maturity date, 1945, until which time they will draw 3 per cent interest, may cash them at once or at any future date.

To convert the bonds into cash immediately a veteran must bring the bonds to his postoffice and sign an application before a certifying officer, after which the bonds are sent to Omaha where a federal check will be made out and returned to the veteran by mail.

Four men in the Ord postoffice will be qualified to accept applications for payment of these bonds: Postmaster Hill, Guy LeMaster, Mark Tolson and Roy Severson. To aid veterans who wish to convert their bonds into cash, the Ord postoffice will be open from 7:00 to 9:00 each evening next week, beginning Tuesday if the bonds arrive that morning. Veterans also may bring them to the postoffice during regular office hours but Postmaster Hill requests that they be brought between the hours of 10:00 a. m. and 4:00 p. m. as the force is busy with mails at earlier and later hours.

Veterans who receive mail regularly from the Arcadia, North Loup or Elyria postoffices also will receive their bonds through these offices and must appear at their home office to make application for cash.

Out of 569 world war veterans in Valley county about half receive their mail through the Ord postoffice. Although the figure is only an estimate, it is believed that bonus payments in the Ord vicinity will total about $100,000 or slightly more. Most veterans have previously borrowed on their adjusted service certificates or the payments being made now would be larger.

The Ord postmaster asks veterans who receive their mail by city carrier to be at their homes or places of business next Tuesday morning at the hour the carrier arrives so they may sign the return receipt on registered letters containing the bonus bonds. Veterans living on rural routes should be at their mail boxes when the rural carrier arrives and if not known personally to the carrier they should be accompanied by someone who will certify their identity.

Genevieve Rathbun Wed To Arthur A. Pierson

At a very pretty wedding solemnized at the home of the bride's parents Monday afternoon, Miss Genevieve Rathbun, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mell Rathbun, became the bride of Arthur A. Pierson of Arcadia. Rev. Mearl C. Smith of the Methodist church officiated at the ceremony, which was attended by about sixty relatives and close friends of the bride and groom.

Miss Dorothy Jobst of Ord was bridesmaid and John Erickson of Arcadia was best man. Preceding the ceremony, Miss Dorothy Jobst sang "I Love You Truly." Mrs. Mearl Smith played Mendelssohn's wedding march and the bride and groom stood under an improvised arch of orchid and white. Baskets of white peonies adorned the room and lavender tapers added a delicate touch.

The bride was beautiful in a floor-length white taffeta and wore a wreath of orange blossoms in her hair. She carried a bouquet of white and orchid sweet peas. The bridesmaid, dressed in formal orchid lace carried a bouquet of lavender sweet peas.

Misses Ella Marie Carson, Virginia Clark and Margaret Strong were in charge of the serving of refreshments following the ceremony and Madams Mott Rathbun and Cash Rathbun were in charge of the gifts and guest book. Immediately following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Pierson left on a trip to the Black Hills and Yankton, S. D. where they will attend the Diamond Jubilee.

Mrs. Pierson is very well acquainted in Valley county and for the past year was instructor in the Maiden Valley school. The groom is in business in Arcadia and with Mr. and Mrs. Pierson in their new location will go the best wishes of a host of friends.

LESSON 4 PASTRY AND PIE FILLINGS

Good pastry (which every girl or woman wants to make) is wholesome and digestible enough for the normal person; it is poor pastry that is so highly indigestible.

There are few materials and few utensils needed for making pastry—yet it can be a tricky thing to make, for the cook who does not understand the little turns and pointers that bring success with it. They are all here in this lesson. In Lesson 3, we learned about Soft Doughs. In this lesson, we study one of the most important Stiff Doughs. The methods of mixing are much alike—the fat is cut into the dry ingredients before liquid is added.

Ingredients for Pastry.
1. A dependable flour, one with tender gluten preferred.
2. Salt—1/4 teaspoon for each cup flour, or a little more if your fat is unsalted.
3. Baking Powder—a very little may be used, 1/4 teaspoon for each cup flour is the amount needed to make pastry light, at least until you have gained experience; then you may use it or not.
4. Shortening—a hard, cold fat of neutral flavor, or part butter and part shortening may be used; 1-3 cup fat altogether to each cup flour makes a pleasantly rich paste, and 1/4 cup fat to each cup flour is the least that should be used.
5. Water—should be ice-cold. Allow just enough to make a paste that will roll without sticking when turned out on a lightly floured bake board; 3 tablespoons to the cup to begin with—and more just sprinkled in if necessary. Too much water makes a sticky paste, which is very hard and brittle when baked. Too little water results in a very crumbly, over-rich crust. Rolling in extra flour on the board cuts down on the richness, the good texture and flavor of the pastry. You will soon get "the feeling" for mixing your paste.

Utensils Required.

- Mixing bowl, flour sifter, measuring cup, measuring spoons.
- Wire pastry blender or steel fork to cut fat into dry ingredients.
- Wooden bake board or canvas bake sheet; wooden rolling pin the pin may be covered with ribbed cotton (the leg of a small child's ribbed white cotton stocking makes a good cover); a covered rolling pin works better, holds the flour evenly—and for the same reason we favor the canvas cloth on which to turn out our doughs.
- Pie or bake pans, or baking sheet, etc.

Kind of Pastry.

There are two kinds of ordinary pastry in general use; a close-textured paste and a light flaky paste made up of thin layers of crust with air between. We are not treating actual puff paste.

It is the method of mixing that is largely responsible for these different results—particularly the way the shortening is added. The kind of shortening, too, makes a difference; a liquid fat like cooking oil will make the very close-textured kind of paste, while solid fats are used in the flaky, as well as the close type.

METHODS FOR MAKING PASTE

- Sift flour, measure it and sift with salt, into bowl.
- Measure fat. (For excellent short-cut method, see Lesson 1.)
- (a) For a fairly flaky paste: Cut fat into dry ingredients, using wire pastry blender or a knife or a knife in each hand, or a steel fork that has 2 or 3 prongs. Use a quick, short chopping motion, until all fat is in particles the size of small peas.
(b) For a close-textured paste: Rub shortening into dry ingredients with chilled finger tips. (Liquid shortening also makes a close paste; it is stirred into the flour before adding water.)

4. Sprinkle very cold water carefully over the surface—just enough so paste will roll. Mix quickly and lightly with a knife. The dough should absorb all the water, but should not stick to the bowl. "Working" the dough will tend to make it elastic by developing the gluten in the flour; that is why we knead a yeast dough in making bread and why we handle biscuit and pastry doughs (which we wish to be tender) as little and as lightly as possible.

5. Scrape out paste into lightly floured board or canvas; pat out and roll, if to be used at once. Chill first if possible.

6. Wrap dough in waxed paper and chill well, if possible, before rolling again for use.
The reason we chill paste is because there is greater force to the expanding cold air when the intense oven-heat strikes it—and so the pastry is made lighter and flakier.

I want you to notice that it is the method of adding the shortening which makes the distinct difference in the finished pastry. There is bound to be heat from the fingers, which softens the fat and blends it into the flour, instead of just mixing particles of fat through the flour. Sometimes you may like one of these pastes better than the other—for instance, some tarts seem rather nicer with the close-textured paste whilst for others, we like a flaky paste.

This method I have just given (even when the shortening is cut in) makes only a moderate flaky paste. There is a special method for making true flaky paste—and when it is rich, can really be used in many ways which we were accustomed to think needed puff pastry; this very flaky paste is easier to make than puff pastry.

Superior Flaky Paste.
This is an excellent paste to make in quantities; wrapped in wax paper it can be kept two or three weeks, if very cold.

- Sift flour, measure it and sift with salt into bowl.
- Measure fat, same as for quick paste. (There must be 1-3 as much fat as there is flour for this paste.)
- Cut half the fat (a nice white neutral-flavored shortening or lard) into dry ingredients, by method (a) in Quick Paste.
- Add water—by method in Quick Paste.
- Turn out on floured board or canvas, pat and roll out in sheet 1/4 inch thick; keep square as possible.
- You have half of your hard, cold fat left. In this case, it may be either white shortening or butter. Divide it in three. Cut one piece into small bits, spread these over the front half of your sheet of paste, dust over lightly with flour, pick up the back edge and fold it over the fat, enclosing as much air as possible.
- Pinch edges and pat and roll out carefully, so that pieces of fat will not break through. Don't roll it thin.
- Fold paste and chill it.
- Roll out again, dot half of sheet with the second measure of fat divided in small pieces, dust over lightly with flour, fold over, pinch edges, roll out carefully, fold and chill.
- Again roll out chilled dough spread the last measure of fat on half of it, fold other half over. Keep well chilled, closely covered, and use as required.

This Superior Flaky Paste makes nice little flaky tart shells, is good for fruit pies and for meat pies, or to hold a creamy filling, and it will make many of the little fancy pastries which we usually make with puff pastry.

Using Our Pastry.

We use our pastry commonly in several ways.
1. Empty pie shells or tart shells—For these: (a) We fit a thinly rolled (1-3 inch) sheet of pastry loosely over the bottom of an inverted pie pan or tart pan, being very careful not to stretch it, because it would later shrink back. With scissors or sharp knife we trim it off around the edge of the pan. In fitting the paste over the pan, we try to catch as little air underneath it as possible. Before putting in oven, we prick it all over with a fork to allow any imprisoned air bubbles to escape.

(b) Another method—We line pie or tart pans with pastry, fitting it in generously and not trimming too closely. Prick paste to allow air bubbles to escape; cut 1/4 inch strips of paste, wet one side, and apply to rim, fluting between thumb and finger; this helps prevent shrinkage and improves appearance. The paste may be weighted down by putting a sheet of wax paper over the pastry and then about half filling the dish with raw rice or beans. The rice or beans are unhurt for later use, and shells hold their shape beneath the weight.

2. As single or double crusts for shallow pies and tarts, when the filling is cooked with the pastry.
3. As a top crust for deep-dish fruit pies and meat pies. Some solid support should be put in the middle of the dish to hold up the paste, if the filling "cooks down."

4. Various fancy pastries, filled and unfilled.
5. As cake-and-pastry combinations—such as Mads of Honor.

Baking Temperatures.
Heat should come from the bottom of the oven for pastry, so place it on a rack on the bottom or near it, according to your oven. When pastry is baked by itself, without fillings, a very hot oven should be used for ordinary paste, and just slightly less hot for the extra-rich paste.

1. Shells—Empty pie shells may be given 500 degrees F. at first, the temperature made lower as pastry shows color.
2. Fruit pies—A fruit pie should be given a hot oven at first, about 450 degrees F., and when paste takes on color, heat should be reduced and baking continued at a moderate temperature, 375 degrees F., until fruit is tender; if top crust is in danger of becoming too brown, put a paper over it.
3. Meat Pies—Meat pies, since their filling has been already cooked, can be put into the hot oven, and removed when pastry is baked—which will allow plenty of time to heat the filling if cold.

4. Custard-type Pies—Pies or tarts with a custard-type filling—any filling in which eggs are used in generous proportion—cannot be cooked long at high temperatures, because all egg dishes demand slow cooking. Put the pie into a hot oven at first, and give it long enough to allow the filling to boil. About 10 minutes is usually enough to give the paste a good start without endangering the filling. Temperature must then be sharply reduced to moderate or rather slow heat, and cooking continue until filling has set to the consistency of a baked custard. Test the filling by thrusting a silver knife into the center; if it comes out misty and moist, filling is not cooked enough; when knife comes out dry, remove pie from heat immediately.

There is another successful method I advise for pies with a filling of cream or custard type. Bake the empty shell first, in the second way I have described, for 10 minutes at 500 degrees F.; take from oven, fill the shell, and return pie to the oven in which temperature has been reduced to very moderate heat.

There is a lesson coming toward the end of your course, which deals entirely with Frostings and Fillings for cakes—and amongst these fillings are the most important of the creamy and custard-type mixtures which are used also for filling pies. So I am just going to give you the Pumpkin Pie as an example in this lesson—then you will have several of these fillings in Lesson 10.

FILLING PIES AND TARTS
Learning to make good pastry is the first step in making good pies.

The second is to really understand at least a few kinds of filling, for making double-crust and open-shell pies, deep-dish pies, meat pies and the little tarts and fancy pastries that are often so useful.

When you have mastered the first part of this lesson, and have a covered roll of pastry in your refrigerator keeping cold for use when it is wanted, you can start in the study of this part of the lesson and make the different kinds of fillings in their turn.

These are the types we will consider here or in the books of the Easy-Way Series.
1. Deep-dish fruit pies.
2. Deep-dish meat pies.
3. Two-crust pies or tarts.
4. Creamy or custard-type fillings:
(a) Baked in pastry shell.
(b) Cooked, cooled and turned into cold baked shell.

Deep-Dish Fruit Pie.
1. Make pastry according to rules and chill it.
2. Prepare fruit as may be necessary—for example, pare, core and quarter or slice apples or pears; peel and stone peaches; pierce the skins of plums, peel and cut up rhubarb, etc.
3. Put a cup, jelly glass or other support in dish to hold up pastry in center.
4. Put fruit in buttered deep pie dish, heating it very high, because of course it will shrink during cooking. (Slicing or cutting fruit finely speeds up the cooking when desired.)
5. Add enough sugar to sweeten whatever fruit you are using—the amounts needed will be different. Add any little touch of flavor with the sugar—a little dusting of spice such as cinnamon or nutmeg, a little grated lemon rind or dash of lemon juice; orange, too, is good sometimes. Butter dotted over filling, gives added richness and flavor.

6. Cut off enough of your paste to cover your dish. Roll out to 1-3 inch thickness. Cut some "eyelets" in center of paste so steam can escape. Fit it very loosely over the fruit—don't stretch it or it will shrink later. (If desired a strip of paste 1/4 inch wide may be adjusted around the rim of the pie plate, dampened, and the crust top sealed to it, before trimming.)
7. Trim off with scissors—not too close to rim of dish—press down about the rim and crimp the edge of your pastry cover with finger and thumb or with a pastry crimper.

8. Put into a hot oven for the first 10 minutes, 450 degrees F., then reduce temperature to moderate and cook until fruit is tender. If necessary, put a paper over top of pie to prevent pie from becoming too brown.

Meat Pies.
Meat pies are made with fresh meat or with left-overs of cooked meat (along with a suitable sauce for that meat) and a pastry top.

Fresh meat should be simmered gently until tender, then a sauce made using the stock from the meat; flavor well and thicken it with browned or white flour (see how to make such sauces in Lesson 1).

If cooked meat is used, make a generous quantity of brown or white sauce to go with it. Fill pie dish with meat and sauce—vegetables also may be put in and these should be already cooked unless they will require only short heating.

Cover the pie:
(a) With pastry crust, same as for deep fruit pie.
(b) With baking powder biscuit dough made by either the standard method or the biscuit flour method given in Lesson 3; roll dough to 1/2 inch thickness and cut or pat into shape to fit top of dish. Make gashes in top to allow steam to escape. Or shape as small biscuits and place over hot filling to bake. Or use drop-biscuit dough.

Two-Crust Pies.
1. Prepare filling.
2. Line shallow pie pan, fitting pastry in easily and gently pushing out air from beneath pastry with the finger tips. With scissors or sharp knife, trim around the edge of pan—not too closely in any case, and with about an inch of pastry left to spare for a juicy fruit pie; this can be doubled back over the top crust and crimped with the fingers, as an aid in keeping juice from flowing out.
3. Turn in filling—it is usually a fruit filling that is put between two crusts; sweeten (mixing spices with sugar when used), fill and prepare for oven according to table of instructions for fruit pies which follows.
4. Cover with top crust, in which eyelets have been cut; turn edge of under crust over edge of upper crust, wetting with cold water, and pinch close, crimping at the same time, with the fingers. If filling is juicy, bind edge with wet cotton and thrust paper funnels through upper crust.

5. Bake at 450 degrees F. till brown, then at 375 degrees F.
Fruit Pies.
Blackberry—3 cups berries, 1-3 to 1 cup sugar, 3 tbsp. flour, 1 tbs. butter.
Cherry—3 cups pitted cherries, 1 to 1 1/2 cups sugar, 3 tbs. flour, 1 tbs. butter.

My Own Column By H. D. Leggett

Jack Pine Lodge, on Middle Cullen Lake

Nisswa, Minn., June 5, 1936.

Dear Quiz:

We left Ord at 1 p. m. Wednesday and expected to get to Pipestone, Minnesota that night at 8 o'clock. The afternoon was all that could be desired for such a trip but there is most always a fly in the ointment, as the old saying is. The fly in our ointment was a big box of fish worms on a shelf at the back of the car. The shelf wasn't attached just right and it continually sagged until it dragged on the ground. After several attempts to fix it with wire we got to Yankton, drove to a blacksmith shop and engaged the men there to take our rigging off and put a shelf on top of the bumper and we lost 1 1/2 hours and had no more trouble with the worms on the trip, but we only got as far as Sioux Falls. We found a nice cottage camp and got supper and shortly after 9 o'clock turned in.

We never saw better crop prospects than we saw all the way from Ord to this place, though the last 100 miles below Nisswa is pretty dry. There was more rain around here than anywhere else. Every stop we made we were met by oil station attendants that they had had plenty of rain all the spring and mostly it came quietly about as needed. At Sioux Falls they had a cloud burst last week and much of the land is still under water and it is going to be some time before farmers can get to putting in crops. They told us that the water was several feet over the pavement near the camp where we were in and travelers were washed off the road and had to be rescued by firemen with boats.

We were up betimes Thursday morning, had our bacon, eggs and coffee and pulled out at just 6 o'clock. It remained cloudy most of the day and rained quite hard sometimes but as the only dirt roads we had on the whole trip, were between Ord and Ericson, the rain didn't bother us. A click developed in our car which was most annoying, so at Pipestone we drove into the Chrysler garage and soon found that we had a broken tappet valve spring and we were delayed just an hour getting a new spring put in, expense $1.25. We thought we got splendid service there. Had a nice visit with the Chrysler-Plymouth dealer and he told us his only trouble was to get cars as fast as he could sell them. I never say crop prospects better around Pipestone. Corn is bigger than around Ord and most of it seems to be cultivated once over.

We stopped at Red Wood Falls for dinner, got into a splendid looking cafe and got a mighty punk dinner. We marked that place to stay away from on future trips. We drove along all the time between 45 and 55 miles per hour, got about 19 1/2 miles to the gallon of gas, arrived at Brainard at 4:30 and stopped to get a few things we needed and drove into camp at 5:30. We had written to Oscar Wallin to open and clean the cottage and put a few items such as milk, cream and eggs in the ice box and we found the place as slick as a button and ready to start living at once.

We have never come in the spring and found things looking better. The season seems to be a couple of weeks ahead of last year. We came two days later last year and choke cherries bloomed after we came while now they are just out of bloom. The sun came out before we got here and it was a beautiful evening, warm enough so we don't need a fire, which is in striking contrast with the weather when we came last year. They tell me that it has been almost a month since they had a frost here.

We stopped at a nursery at St. Cloud and bought seven or eight kinds of rock garden perennials and the Missus is busy directing Oscar in setting them out. Well, I must go to town and get gas and groceries and will write more later about the place, etc.

CARE OF COUNTY BOARD By George Gowen

Should Have a Picture.

The Quiz photographer missed a chance a week ago Sunday by not getting a picture of the old timers assembled at the obsequies of Mrs. Hannah Boettger. The Boettgers came to the valley in 1874 and that was only two years later than the first arrivals.

Art Babcock, Chas. Rood and Mrs. Mansel Davis were at the services and they came here in 1872. Clate Noll, Chas. Leonard and Alfa Crandall came a few years later but have seen plenty of pioneering. Mrs. Alfa Crandall, Mrs. A. H. Babcock, Mrs. George Clement were at the funeral and they all came in the seventies.

The Boettgers lived in Wisconsin at the same town the Seventh Day Baptists were assembled at. They would have come with that group in 1872 but they had a farm to sell before they could depart and hence were delayed.

Upon their arrival here they lived with Rev. Oscar Babcock for a few months. They wanted a claim near the river and North Loup but those claims were all taken. A man had homesteaded the Boettger place and had become discouraged and went back to his home in the east. Boettgers took his claim and that is how it happened. It turned out their farm was much better than the ones they wanted close to the river. Mrs. Boettger was twenty-three when she and her husband and youngsters arrived in Valley county in 1874 with their covered wagon, and she has lived continually on the place ever since some sixty-two years.

The Boettgers always had a special nook in their hearts set aside for the Babcocks. Mrs. Oscar Babcock was taken sick in 1872, a few weeks before the trek was to start, and she died leaving her husband with four small children. Mrs. Boettger was the nurse at the time. Mrs. Babcock told her husband to go on anyway as they had planned and as their hearts had been set on doing. Mrs. Boettger never tired of telling of that tragedy and they named their daughter for Myra Babcock and Mrs. Boettger always claimed Mira Creek was named for the two.

Lived Too Long.

The biography of Solomon Ricker who died at the age of 115 was interesting. He remembered playing with his grandfathers gun that the latter had carried in the Revolutionary war. He was forty years old when the Civil war was fought and was so old he was denied enlistment. He had crossed the country both to California and Colorado during gold rushes in the forties.

Another feature noted was that most of his folks had died. His only child living was a daughter seventy-three years old. He had quite a few grandchildren and great grandchildren but young folks have trials enough now days caring for their own folks to say nothing of grandparents and great grandparents. And in reality a great grandparent is not a very close relative.

We hate to think of giving up and leaving the world to a bunch of youngsters, but the span of life is about seventy and the world has adjusted itself to that. If we live beyond that date it is on borrowed time. We are peering in on another generation. And living to 115 we would be out of place. That would be too much.

Sounds Like Angels.

Joe Knezacek and I were chatting the other day in his office when a nice looking lady dressed in white came in the door. She had come for a pattern someone had left and Joe picked it up from the desk and handed it to her. She was about to leave when Joe called her back.

"Now let me see," Joe said bewildered while he scratched his head. "Let me think. There's something about this I'm supposed to tell you. Just wait. Now what was it?"

Joe had arisen by this time. He was nearly in a dither and the lady tried to soothe his troubled soul by saying, "Perhaps it is something I can figure out when I look it over."

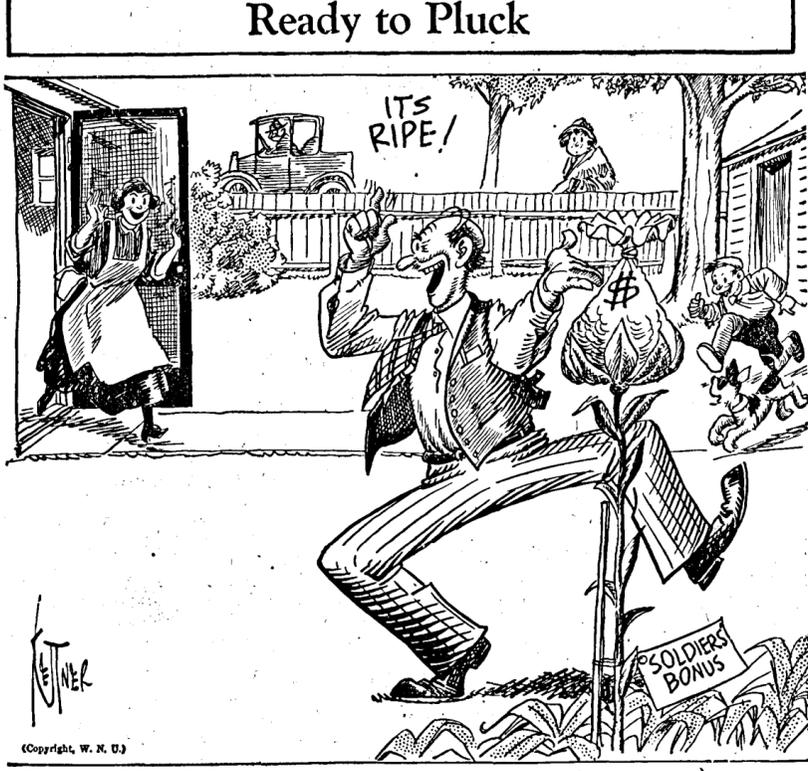

But Joe was still pondering. "Well now. Don't that beat you?" He was rubbing the sides of his coat. "Let me think. What was the name she said? I never could figure out all the things on women's dresses." He began rubbing his shoulders with his hands and making short waving motions. "It was something to do with the flappers that go up here I believe."

Now Smear London.

George Mayo tells me that Farley whispered the news around to the democrats to say nothing against London. In other words he and Michelson have plenty of hope on London to spring when the time comes so he will be the easiest man in the field to beat. After the smear Hoover campaign we can expect anything from Michelson.

No Loss Yet.

NEWS OF THE NEIGHBORHOOD

A city band is being organized and trained by Lewis Brown of Loup City this year, the first band at the state music contest at Kearney. A group of former members united to play last Saturday for Memorial Day services and it was decided to continue band training and to give regular weekly concerts.

Robert Fenstermacher, Sargent high school graduate, who received superior rating as a cornetist at the state music contest at Kearney a short time ago, has emerged from the national contests held at Cleveland, O. as one of eleven superiors among eighty-one contestants from all over the United States. Herbert L. Clarke, director of the Long Beach, Calif. municipal band, was judge of the contest. Robert has participated in many local contests and has appeared on the program for the past several years in the music festivals held annually at Ord.

When You And I Were Young Maggie

20 Years Ago This Week. Guy Clement, one of Valley county's best known farmers, passed away. He was born in North Loup, the son of Mr. and Mrs. N. G. Clement, and when a young man founded Willow Dell stock farm in Mira Valley, where he lived until death. Known wherever purebred cattle and hogs were raised or exhibited, Mr. Clement was mourned by all.

John Haskell was married to Ruth Virginia Wilson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Wilson. Kirby McGrew and Dora Jones were united and Minnie Hawkins became the bride of Forrest Anderson.

Funeral rites for Mrs. George H. Burson were held. Mrs. Anton Kokes returned to Tekamah after spending three weeks with her sister, Mrs. Stella Siler. Her niece, Frieda, one of the Ord graduates, accompanied her home.

Will and John Slavicek left for Denver to look for a location in that higher country, in hopes the climate would benefit their health. Jessie Ferguson went to St. Paul to teach summer school for three months.

25 Years Ago This Week.

Owen Conway moved his barber shop to Burwell. John Prien and Miss Elsie Matlock were married by Rev. Davies.

Several people got a touch of poison ivy while helping to clean up Bussell park. Manning, the painter, and Dell Chapman were so ill they had to be in bed.

Charles Bals, who was feeding 350 head of cattle, shipped three carloads to the Omaha market and got top prices. The previous year he fed and sold 217 head which averaged $105 each.

A. J. Parkins was having a retaining wall of concrete built along the edge of his hill lots. A big camp meeting was being held at Rosevale and was attracting great interest. Brother Jacobs was the preacher.

Harvey Parks bought the Charles Masin property from J. Cass Cornell and expected to move to town in the fall so he could send the children to school. The Ord Independent Telephone company was tearing down its old line running north and east of Burwell and replacing it with a more direct line on the north side of the river.

Something Different

From Ericson someone named Lottie Emry Oberg sends a bit of a poem that she says won't first place at the Wheeler county Women's club convention. I think it is really poetry. What do you think?

"Prayer of a Very New Father
Small son, it is my prayer
That some day you may have and hold,
A woman, loving, kind and true;
As the mother who has given me
you.
And Oh! My son, be gentle with her too."
—Lottie Emry Oberg.

Members of the Burwell Wranglers club and their guests heard a talk Monday evening by Irl D. Tolen, head of the Old Age Service organization of Nebraska. The talk was greatly enjoyed by all attendants.

New sound equipment was installed last week in the Strand theatre at North Loup by Manager Percy Dore. This will make possible the showing of later and more modern films and a greatly increased patronage is expected.

Miss Helen Starr of Arcadia was revealed as queen of the May fete of Hastings college on Saturday evening and three other Arcadia students were honored with places on the program. Election of the May queen was made by the students. Miss Starr, who will be principal of the Arcadia high school next year, won triple honors at Hastings. At commencement exercises she was found to have the highest scholastic average in a class of 66. Earlier she was named recipient of the Bronco award which is made yearly to the person displaying the ideals in constructive college citizenship. Other Arcadians on the program were Miss Doris Valet, Miss Mildred and Carl Easterbrook.

Solomon Ricker, 115, oldest man in Nebraska, died at his home in St. Paul last Thursday, the result of a fall from his porch in which he sustained a fractured hip. It was hoped for a time that he might recover, but his condition became steadily worse and heart trouble and complications reduced his chance of recovery. A daughter, Mrs. Cora Corbett, has lived with him and cared for him for many years.

Mr. Ricker held very definite opinions on varied subjects, he was active and loved to walk from three to six miles a day until he was 110 years old, he believed Abraham Lincoln was the greatest man who ever lived, he occasionally drank a little beer, he liked to smoke and did for 70 years, he enjoyed ice skating and at the age of 100 he fell and broke his arm while teaching four girls how to skate, he attended church whenever possible, he disliked card playing and destroyed every pack of cards he saw, he loved horses and animals and found a great deal of comfort in the radio.

The American Legion hall. A change from school lessons, it provides something to do, worthwhile instruction, for the first vacation days of summer.

QUIZ COOKING SCHOOL

Gooseberry—3 cups berries, stew with the sugar and cool, 1 cup sugar, 4 tbs. Flour, 1 tbs. Butter.
Raspberry—3 cups berries, 1/2 to 1 cup sugar, 3 tbs. flour, 1 tbs. butter.

Strawberry—3 cups berries, 3/4 to 1 cup sugar, 3 tbs. flour, 1 tbs. butter.
Blueberry—3 cups berries, 1/2 cup sugar, 4 tbs. flour, 1 tbs. butter.

Note—If berries are very ripe, or when sweet or canned fruits are used, add 2 to 4 tablespoons lemon juice for tartness.

Open-Faced Pies.
As I have told you, there are two types of pies that have only an under crust—
(a) When filling is cooked in pastry.
(b) When empty shell and filling are cooked separately and filling put into shell when both are absolutely cold.

Note—These open-faced pies or tarts are variously finished:
(a) Plain, or with sprinkling of spice.
(b) With narrow crossed strips of pastry.
(c) With sweetened and flavored whipped cream.
(d) With meringue.

MERINGUE TOPPING FOR PIES
Use the egg whites for a meringue—it really requires 3 egg whites to make a fine, full meringue for a good sized pie. Allow 2 tablespoons granulated sugar for each egg white, or a little less if this is sweet for your taste. Beat the egg whites until stiff, but not dry, then add sugar a little at a time and beat until very stiff. Add the flavoring, drop in spoonfuls over the pie or spread roughly. Sprinkle with a little granulated sugar and put into a slow oven (275 degrees F.)—to brown delicately. Do not try to hurry it, or you will have a tough, watery meringue; give it about 15 minutes and you may even reduce the oven heat a little at about half time. Meringue treated in this way should never fall or be tough.

Plain Apple Pie.

Sliced apples
1/2 to 1 cup sugar (white or brown)
Pinch salt
1 to 2 tablespoons butter
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon or 1-3 teaspoon grated nutmeg and a little grated lemon rind.
1 teaspoon lemon juice

Prepare and mix filling, using enough apples to heap the dish, and bake between two crusts, or as an open-faced pie.
Rich Apple Crumble Pie.
1 1/2 cups flour
1/2 cup sugar (white or well-packed brown)
3/4 cups soft butter
Sliced apples
Sift flour and mix with the sugar; work in the butter, squeezing and blending with the hand. Knead and pat the paste to size and shape of dish; use deep baking dish, filling with sliced apples sweetened and flavored as for ordinary pie; lay the paste on top and bake in moderate oven, about 375 degrees F., until apples are tender and top a tempting brown. Serve with cream or a well-chilled custard sauce.

This is also delicious if a layer of the rich crumble-paste is put in the bottom of a square pan, the fruit next, and a top layer of the paste. Cut in oblongs to serve.

Pumpkin Pie.

This is a good example of the custard-type of pie filling:
2 cups cooked or canned pumpkin
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1-3 teaspoon ground allspice
1/2 to 1 teaspoon ginger
1-3 teaspoon mace
3 tablespoons melted butter
3 slightly beaten eggs
2 cups scalded milk
1 1/2 cups coconut (optional)

Combine ingredients in this order, mixing thoroughly. Coconut may be used, when desired. Turn into pan lined with pastry. Bake in hot oven 15 minutes, then reduce to moderate for about half an hour, or until silver knife thrust into center comes out clear.

Some of the most attractive little pastries, and cakelets that use pastry, will be found in the Easy Way Cake Book and Planning the Party, which no doubt you will have to help you make special occasions successful and routine meals more interesting.

BACK FORTY

For his vocational agriculture project, Kenneth Koelling, a recent graduate of the Ord high school, fattened seven Hereford steers.

The calves were started on corn and alfalfa hay. Barley was later added to the ration. The grain was ground toward the close of the feeding period, and the animals received some linseed oil meal. They were given plenty of fresh water and salt at all times. They made an average gain of about two and one-half pounds a day.

Feed was the main item of expense, as it generally is in all livestock production. Other costs included labor, yard rent, vaccination and interest on investment. Kenneth borrowed the money needed for this project, paying eight per cent interest for it.

The fat steers brought ten cents a pound on the Omaha market and the entire receipts were $687.50. Expenses totaled $648.53, leaving a small profit of $38.92 on the project.

Children are now enjoying the church schools, while they learn their lessons from the Bible and catechism. Nearly every morning I see troops of little Catholics, carefully dressed, well scrubbed, go happily north. And I sometimes see rings of youngsters, quite young, playing games before Must We Have War?

The well advertised Queen Mary, looking very big moving up to her

Arthur Brisbane

New York dock, represented in reality the quintessence of compressed power. On the way over she developed one hundred and sixty thousand horse power.

That number of horses hitched in pairs, one ahead of the other, would make a "team" hundred and fifty miles long. Still more remarkable power compression is that of the flying engine, which compresses the power of a 1,000-pound horse into less than three pounds of metal.

The government offered for sale six hundred millions of 2 1/2 per cent bonds, four hundred millions of 1 1/2 per cent notes. The whole issue is oversubscribed.

It is a comfort for those that have money and want no risk to invest even at low interest rates, free of income tax payments.

Such an investment is much simpler than running the risk of a business enterprise with pay rolls and jobs attached.

To tax heavily the man who uses his money and brains to give work to others, and free from taxation those that buy bonds and take their ease, is a brand-new kind of democracy.

Men of middle age and older may learn from Civil war veterans in the Memorial day parade, some ninety and some ninety-three; one, who led New York city's G. A. R. procession, past ninety-six years of age.

All the old soldiers are very thin men, averaging in weight less than 140 pounds. Had they been fat they would be in the grave, not in any parade.

General Pershing cut a big birthday cake with a general's sword, Mrs. Roosevelt looking on, and on Memorial day he warned America against another war.

To believe that this country can be dragged into a war without a repetition of our big war folly is not complimentary to those in charge. No foreign nation would force war on the United States, and thus put United States resources, and any fighting qualities that Americans may possess, on the side of that foreign nation's enemies.

The unfortunate Congressman Zioncheck, from the Northwest, is locked up in Washington, his sanity to be investigated, after he visited the White House with a present of empty beer bottles for the President.

The unfortunate congressman's antics were seen in him by voters that sent him to congress.

The United States Supreme court declared unconstitutional a New York state law that would permit New York to fix a minimum wage for women and children.

Chief Justice Hughes, who did not agree with the majority opinion, wrote: "I find nothing in the federal Constitution which denies to the state the power to protect women from being exploited by over-reaching employers."

Alfred P. Sloan, Jr. who ought to know about American industry, says enormous building operations are needed in the United States to replace out-of-date equipment, and that the door is wide open for "plenty of jobs and then more jobs."

American cotton growers fighting the boll weevil will sympathize with Argentine growers, attacked by vast swarms of devouring locusts far worse than any weevil. The Argentine ministry of agriculture announces 10,000 tons of cotton devoured, 60,000 acres invaded.

Saturday Sale

at the Sale Ring in Ord
1:30 P. M.
Saturday, June 13

We were very well pleased with the friendly cooperation from the people in the Ord territory at our first auction last Saturday. And we know the better we get acquainted, the better you will like the way we do business.
As the season moves along we will have larger runs of livestock, and of better quality. We have some wonderful connections with the ranch countries west of us, and we are going to have some of the very best feeding cattle this fall.

For our Saturday Sale, June 13, we will have 25 horses, there will be some matched teams, other odd horses with a few colts. 150 cattle, some milk cows, some fleshy cows off grass, yearling steers and heifers, various odd classes with about 20 baby calves. About 200 hogs, consisting mostly of weaning pigs and wet sows, with about 50 head weighing about 100 to 125 lbs. If your little pigs are ready to wean, consign your wet sows to us, as we have a number of buyers wanting them. And we know the price will be satisfactory.

In our opinion, those weaning pigs sold three or four weeks ago, were out of line. When they were bringing from 25 to 30 cents a pound. But the present price is running from 15 to 16½ and we think they are worth that to any man wanting some stock pigs. And they will show a profit to the man who was lucky enough to have farrowed good litters.
If you have any livestock that you would like to turn into cash, consign it to us for our Saturday Auction. We will appreciate the business.

Electric Company Sued For $50,000 In Cushing Death

Legislator's Widow Seeking Heavy Damages in Case Arising from Accident.

Charging that the Western Public Service Company's negligence was responsible for the accidental death of her husband, Marion J. Cushing, on August 13, 1935, his widow, Mrs. Ruth O. Cushing, this morning filed a damage suit aggregating $50,000 in district court here. Her attorneys are C. A. Sorensen, of Lincoln, George A. Munn and Ralph W. Norman, of Ord.

Mr. Cushing, Valley county farmer and widely known republican leader in the Nebraska house of representatives, was repairing a telephone line near his farm home when he accidentally came in contact with a 6,600 volt electric wire strung on a high tension line near the telephone pole where he was working and was killed instantly. His death shocked the entire state and funeral services held in Ord three days later were attended by Governor Roy B. Cochran and many other dignitaries.

Carelessness Alleged.

In the damage suit filed this morning, which is specifically directed against the Western Public Service Company, its general manager, W. P. Venable, and W. D. Moore, who had charge of constructing the high tension line between Sumner and Elyria in 1930, Mrs. Cushing alleges carelessness and negligence on the part of the defendants as the immediate cause of her husband's death.

On Sept. 8, 1930 the company applied to the Nebraska Railway Commission for permission to construct, operate and maintain an electric transmission line between Sumner and Elyria, agreeing to construct and maintain it in accordance with the safety rules and regulations of the Commission and the U. S. Bureau of Standards, Mrs. Cushing's action recites.

The company's application was approved by the Commission on Sept. 23, 1930, subject to the laws of the state and the provisions of the National Electrical Safety Code, and was constructed in the years 1930 and 1931.

Phone Line There First.

Previous to construction of this transmission line by several years a farmers' telephone line was built and was in constant operation on the north side of the highway running along the north edge of the Cushing farm east of Ord. The transmission line ran along the south side of this highway. To furnish telephone service to the Cushing farm a telephone wire ran across the highway to a pole 159 feet north of the Cushing house and from there to the house.

Lightning Bolt Kills Horse, Two Men Are Injured

Vodenhall Team Struck While In Field Tuesday, Blaha Team in Runaway.

A sudden bolt of lightning out of a sky that was only slightly overcast killed one of Henry Vodenhall's work horses Tuesday morning, seriously injured another, knocked Mr. Vodenhall unconscious and frightened a team owned by Rudolph Blaha so badly that they ran away, dragging Mr. Blaha beneath the rake on which he had been working in the alfalfa field.

Mr. Vodenhall was cultivating on his farm 2 miles west of Ord Tuesday. The morning was clear and hot but about 10:00 a few clouds blew up and a shower seemed imminent. Suddenly the clouds were sundered by a great streak of lightning, followed by a tremendous clap of thunder.

The lightning bolt struck Vodenhall's horses, killing one instantly and hurting the other so seriously it may not recover. Mr. Vodenhall got enough of the electricity so that he fell forward across the cultivator in semi-conscious condition but soon recovered and the next day was again working in the field.

On the Blaha farm the thunder clap frightened Mr. Blaha's team as he was raking and they ran away at a great pace. He fell beneath the rake and was rolled over several times before he could make his escape. A deep gash behind one ear required three stitches to close and one of his eyes was hurt.

The occurrence, apparently noted only in the neighborhood just west of Ord, was one of the strangest ever seen here.

Mrs. Edward Kokes To Direct Summer Recreation Work

Classes in Swimming, Wood Working, Sewing, Etc., Start About July 6.

Recreation schools will open immediately after the Fourth of July, reports Mrs. Edward Kokes, director of all activities in Ord, who is so generously serving her community this summer by doing this work without pay. Last summer an official director received $50 for the task, a really big one.

Swimming is of course the foremost project, and the recreation board has the aid of the Red Cross in this for the season. Beulah McGinnis having been sent by the Red Cross to take specialized training. Jesse Kovanda, popular Ord instructor, will direct swimming activities, assisted by Miss McGinnis.

Woodworking is a popular course. One of Ord's best carpenters will teach boys' classes for the first time, under the direction of Mrs. Barney Brickner, an excellent cabinet maker in her own right. Sewing classes for girls are sure to be well patronized, under the direction of Mrs. M. Blemond. Basketry classes, so enthusiastically received last summer, will again be available under the instruction of Mrs. Otis Hughes.

A new feature has been arranged, a story telling hour for children, which will be given by Mrs. Mark Tolson. This is expected to meet with hearty approval from the children.

Columbus Architect Is Rotary Speaker

Emil J. Christensen, president of the Rotary club at Columbus, addressed members of the Ord club and their wives at a special program following the regular Monday evening dinner at Thorne's cafe this week. An architect by profession, Mr. Christensen is a profound thinker along political and economic lines and Monday evening made a talk that his audience will not soon forget.

Other guests at this dinner included Dr. and Mrs. Newman, also of Columbus, Rev. and Mrs. Mearl C. Smith, Rev. and Mrs. S. J. Woodruff, Jr., and Dr. and Mrs. C. J. Miller.

22 Children Now Getting State Aid

Six certificates for aid to dependent children under the Nebraska assistance act have been issued by the Child Welfare Bureau to Valley county, 22 children being represented, says Frank Krumb, county assistance director. These certificates represent $170.75 per month of state and federal funds coming to the county. Four more cases are being investigated. Two others have been approved by the county assistance committee in the state office. Fifteen to twenty applications for aid to dependent children are expected by the local office. When the program is in full operation in Valley county it will represent a total expenditure of $473.46 monthly.

Johnson Calls Ord 'Ideal Location' For Artichoke Factory

But 3,000 Acres Necessary First; Will Build Plant At Scottsbluff Now.

Its location on two railroads and four graveled highways makes Ord an "ideal" location for an artichoke processing factory, said Fred G. Johnson, of Hastings, one of three officials of the United Artichoke Company who visited Ord last week, but before a factory can be installed there must be 3,000 acres planted to artichokes. At present only 300 acres are devoted to the new crop in the Ord locality.

Other United officials who visited Ord Thursday were F. J. Riesel, vice-president of the company, and J. J. Jones, in charge of organization and promotion. Accompanied by L. J. Auble, their local representative, they called on officials of the Chamber of Commerce and at the Quiz office.

Building at Scottsbluff, first factory to be built by the company will be erected at Scottsbluff, where it will have access to large artichoke acreage in Wyoming and Colorado, said Mr. Johnson, who is president of the United company.

Production of fuel alcohol will not be undertaken immediately, President Johnson says, but the company instead will confine its first operations to the making of levulose sugar, artichoke flour and syrups. Brisk demand for these products at high prices already exists, he says.

Ground is now being broken for this plant and it will be built during the summer and early autumn months, the officials claim. Later it is hoped to build plants at Hastings and Ord. About 3,000 acres of artichokes are needed to keep a plant in operation and construction of a plant at Ord will depend upon wider acceptance of the crop by farmers of this community. President Johnson complimented Mr. Auble upon getting 300 acres under contract in his first year as agent and expressed the belief that many more farmers will plant five or ten acre patches of artichokes next spring.

Will Remove Moisture.

A portable dehydration plant costing about $5,500 has been bought by their company, the officials said, and this will be brought to Ord when artichokes are harvested to process the tubers. After moisture is extracted which the plant will do at a speed of forty tons per day, the artichokes will be shipped to Scottsbluff to be manufactured into syrups, flour and sugar.

Interest in artichokes is increasing throughout the United States and demand for seed will be brisk for several years to come, it is stated. Part of the tubers raised in central Nebraska this year will be reserved for seed.

Johnson, Riesel and Jones were much pleased with Ord as a thriving city and made many comments upon its miles of paving, its modern business buildings, fine residences and beautiful parks. They expressed confidence that within a reasonable time an artichoke factory employing 60 or more men the year around can be constructed here.

Ord Summer Course In Music Opens

Summer instrumental classes which have been held up so as not to interfere with the splendid work of the daily vacation Bible school groups are now in full swing at the high school, announced Music Instructor Dean S. Duncan Tuesday.

Full attendance is expected beginning the first of next week and rapid progress is expected to be made. The instrumental classes are continued through the months of June and July and all students are encouraged to avail themselves of the advantages offered by this special instruction.

The following schedule will prevail during the summer unless notice of change is later made: Tuesday at 8:30 a. m., all members of high school band playing in the Ord municipal band; 10:00 a. m., all members of band not in city band and with some experience, especially those who were members of last year's junior band; 1:30 p. m., all beginners and elementary students on band instruments. Wednesday at 8:30, all students playing violins and stringed instruments in the senior orchestra; 10:00, stringed instruments of the junior orchestra and at 1:30 p. m., all beginners and elementary string players.

Mr. and Mrs. Jis Mortensen and Elma Mortensen returned Friday evening from Idaho where they had been for a couple of weeks visiting the Viger and Glarborg families. Miss Anna Glarborg who has been teaching the past year in Nebraska returned to Idaho to spend the summer months with her family.

Ord High Graduate of 1916, Mother of Ten Children, Brings Family to Class Reunion Held in Ord Wednesday

When the Ord high school class of 1916 held its first reunion in Ord Wednesday, the family of one of its 33 members comprised over one-fourth of the group present. Mrs. C. Peterson, of Grand Island, the former Zelma Nelson, daughter of Charles Nelson, brought her husband and ten children to the reunion. They are seen in the picture above, taken by H. E. Jones, Quiz photographer.

Red Cross Play Room for Kiddies To Open Saturday

Mrs. Ella Hughes Supervisor, Rural Mothers Invited To Leave Children There.

The Red Cross Saturday afternoon play room for rural children will open at one o'clock June 20 at the south bungalow on the grade school grounds in Ord, Mrs. John P. Misko, Red Cross chairman, announced. Mrs. Ella Chapman Hughes, a competent nurse, will be in active charge, and will have several girls and youths provided through NYA facilities to assist her in caring capably for children left there.

It is now planned that the "parking place" for children, so kindly provided by the Chamber of Commerce and Red Cross, added by the NYA and others, will operate through the three hottest months of the summer season, giving country mothers an opportunity to enjoy a Saturday in Ord by themselves, knowing they have put their babies and youngsters into safe keeping. Frazier's generously offered the use of a day-sport and bed, others donated "socks, toys, blankets and other necessities. It is likely that four or five young assistants will be on duty to assist Mrs. Hughes. The rest room for children is entirely free, at no cost to mothers or children.

The local Red Cross Saturday sent Miss Beulah McGinnis to Eureka Springs, Ark., to take an intensive ten-day course in life-saving, water sports, advanced swimming. Upon her return to Ord she will help J. A. Kovanda, director of swimming activities, and will teach girls and boys some of the things she has learned. Mr. Kovanda will be in active charge of boys' classes, and will supervise all swimming instruction. Miss McGinnis will teach the girls. It is hoped that several Ord boys and girls will graduate as expert swimmers this summer and secure the Red Cross life-saving awards.

Weather Hot, Dry, Rain Badly Needed

Temperatures have hovered around the 100 mark since Sunday and Valley county is badly in need of rain, reports from most farm communities indicate. Small grain, especially oats, has been damaged somewhat by the hot, dry weather of the past few days. Alfalfa also should have a good rain now that the first cutting is out of the way. Rain is forecast for this week by Mr. Robbins, government forecaster at Omaha.

Kittenball League Begins Play Tonight

First games in the Ord city softball league will be played on the new lighted field at the fair grounds this evening, the Quiz is told by Secretary Lynn Beeghly. Four teams, the High School, Springdale, the K. of P. lodge and Mira Valley, are ready to go and another team or two is being organized. Two games will be played tonight beginning at 8 o'clock and admission is only 5c for adults, children free. It is requested that no cars be driven on the race track while games are in progress.

80 Receive Bible School Diplomas

With a program Sunday evening at the Methodist church, the two weeks' session of the daily vacation Bible school under the supervision of Rev. S. A. Woodruff, of the Presbyterian church, was brought to a successful close. The program was enjoyed by a great many parents and friends who enjoyed the group singing, recitation of verses and recognition exercises. One hundred and ten students were enrolled and eighty completed the requirements necessary to receive diplomas, the daily average attendance was 72 and 26 students had perfect attendance records.

The work dealt primarily with the memorizing of Bible verses, learning new songs, telling Bible stories and several brief object talks were given by Rev. Mearl C. Smith or Evangelist Sylvester Sargent. Missionary hero stories given by Miss Clara McClatchey, Mrs. Gould Flagg and Rev. S. A. Woodruff also added interest to the program and helped in keeping up the youngsters' enthusiasm.

A very enjoyable picnic lunch was had at Bussell park and a happy time was spent recalling high school good times and school day pranks and stunts. Eleven members of the class were present and one teacher, Mae Moyer-Smith. It was requested that each student bring his family and the group feel that they owe a special vote of thanks to Zelma Nelson-Peterson who, accompanied by her husband and ten children, brought the total attendance up to 38. Ina Wall, 55, Died Friday Night of Heart Attack; Funeral Monday.

Arcadia—(Special)—Friends and relatives here were surprised and shocked Saturday morning when they learned that Miss Ina Wall, 55, had died during the previous night. She had been in her usual good health and after visiting with friends throughout the evening retired about 10:30. Her mother went to call her in the morning, found her sitting on the floor with her head resting against the bed. Thinking Miss Ina had fainted, her mother called for help but it was soon discovered that she was dead, evidently as result of a sudden heart attack during the night.

Ina, eldest daughter of John and Sara Wall, was born Nov. 4, 1880, received her education in the Arcadia schools and graduated with the class of 1898. Later she attended business college in Lincoln. For years she was a clerk in the store of her father, who was a prominent Arcadia merchant and political leader until his death in 1925. Left to mourn her departure are her mother, one sister, Mrs. Pearl Scott of Arcadia, two nieces, two nephews and many friends.

Funeral rites were conducted from the home Monday by Rev. Hendrickson of Berwyn and interment was in the Arcadia cemetery beside her father.

111 Ord Veterans Got Bonus Bonds In Monday's Mail

Payments Average $200 Up To $500 Each; Vets Hasten To Cash Bonds.

One hundred and eleven of Ord's veterans of the World War received Monday evening their adjusted service bonds, better known as bonus payments, by registered mail through the Ord postoffice. Other veterans who did not apply for bonus payment before April 1 will receive the bonds later.

Most veterans had previously borrowed half the value of their adjusted service compensation certificates so to them the bonds received Monday represented payment of the balance due them. Most of the payments made Monday totaled from $200 to $500 each, with a few ranging as high as $1,000.

Delivery was made to veterans by the regular mail carriers and Ord postoffice employees said Tuesday evening their nearly every letter was delivered during the day. Rules provided that delivery must be made in person to the veteran entitled to receive the bonds. $15,600 Already Cashed.

A few veterans waited in the postoffice lobby Monday afternoon, got their bonds as soon as the mail was distributed and immediately made application to cash them. To convert bonds into cash the veteran must sign an application before a postoffice employee, after which the bonds are sent to Omaha and a federal check issued there in payment for them. About $5,600 in bonds went on the train on Tuesday morning train, about $10,000 Wednesday morning, and checks are expected back from Omaha this week end.

Some veterans not in need of immediate cash may elect to hold the bonds, which draw 3 per cent interest. They may be converted into cash at any time or held until the maturity date in 1945.

How the veterans will spend their bonus remains to be seen. A few to whom the Quiz has talked contemplate buying automobiles, others plan to buy homes or make repairs on the homes they already own, some are talking about vacation trips and not a few plan to repay money already borrowed. All agree that business improvement should be noted immediately as result of this influx of cash into the community.

William Sevenker Buried Tuesday

Ord Man, 41, Died Friday After Long Period Of Ill Health.

A partial invalid ever since he suffered an attack of pneumonia at the age of thirteen, William F. Sevenker died Friday, June 12 at his home in Ord. Born in Hayes Center on May 28, 1895, he was 41 years old when death summoned him.

As a lad of 7, he came to Valley county with his parents and with them lived on a farm near Elyria where he attended school one term. Then they moved to Ord, lived here two years and moved to a farm fourteen miles east of town where he attended Plain Valley school.

When 13 he suffered a severe case of pneumonia and from after effects of this disease he never fully recovered. He spent four years in Boulder, Colo., hoping the change of climate would prove beneficial but returned to Ord in 1921 with little benefit from the change. In December 1925 he moved with his parents to Ord and lived there until his death.

Unable to work a great deal, Mr. Sevenker's pastime was fishing and in spring and summer months spent much of his time by the river.

He leaves his mother, who had cared for him with such devotion and tenderness during the years, three brothers, Frank, Jr., Jess and Edward, and two sisters, Mrs. Anton Radil and Elsie Sevenker, all of Ord, besides many other more distant relatives and friends. Funeral rites were held Tuesday at Sowl's chapel, Rev. Mearl C. Smith in charge, and interment was in Ord cemetery.

Frazier's Sale Is Setting New Records

Indicative that financial conditions have shown great improvement during the past few months, the sale of furniture, linoleum and rugs being held by the Frazier furniture store is the best ever held by that store, say Harlan T. Frazier and his son, LeRoy. The sale started last Friday and continues for several days yet. Excellent prices are being quoted on quality furniture and already many families have taken advantage of this opportunity to refurbish their homes.

Lesson 5

MEAT, POULTRY, FISH

In this lesson, I want to give my students an understanding of the meat cookery, and because they are so closely related, I am going to talk also about the cooking of poultry and of fish.

There are two main methods of cooking meats—a third method which to some extent combines the other two:

General Methods of Cooking.

1. By applying intense heat for at least long enough to seal in the juices, as we do when we roast or broil. Suitable for tender cuts.

2. By long, slow cooking in water—as when we simmer meats (stewing). Suitable for cuts not naturally tender.

3. Combining these two methods—as when we first sear meat, then cook it in a covered vessel with water braising and pot-roasting. Suitable for medium tender cuts.

I am not going to discuss how to choose meats in this lesson, because you will find all of that information in my little book, "Marketing and Meal-Planning," which I hope every student of these lessons will have. You will learn in it exactly what cuts you can buy to make each kind of meat dish to advantage.

Roasting Meats.

Prepare the roast, according to its needs. Wipe over with a damp cloth. Season all surfaces with salt and pepper, and if you like a very brown and slightly crusty surface, dredge with a little flour. Put meat on a roasting rack (a low rack) in roasting pan, with plenty of suitable fat.

Have oven ready at right time—very hot, 500 degrees F. Put meat in at this high temperature until its surfaces are seared, that means closed up, so that all the juice is held inside the meat. Turn roast over until all sides are browned.

Reduce heat of oven as soon as roast is well browned; finish cooking at 350 degrees F.—moderate heat.

If using open roaster, baste the meat by lifting the hot fat with a long-handled spoon and pouring it over the top of the meat—about every 15 minutes.

If using a self-basting covered roaster, put on cover when roast has been browned.

Sometimes it is more convenient to start roast when oven is first lighted—and many modern authorities advocate this method—the inevitable one if an automatically started oven is to be used to full advantage. In that case, add the extra time required to that given in instructions.

Beef—Brush out surface with a soft fat, sprinkle with salt and pepper, and with flour, if liked. Sear and finish by roasting rules. A meat thermometer offers the only real certainty (expect long experience) of time required—because roasts differ so much in size cut and kind. Less time is needed by meat with large bone than by thick, solid piece; a small cut requires a different time per pound from that needed by a large roast. You will have to learn to adjust all differences—or, as suggested, use a meat thermometer. Allow 15 to 20 minutes to the pound, for rare to medium-done beef.

Lamb—(a) Leg, loin, rack or rolled shoulder—same as beef. (b) A boned shoulder may have cavity left by bone filled with mildly flavored stuffing; tie up and treat same as beef.

Allow lamb 20 minutes to the pound.

Veal—because it is very lean, a solid cut of veal such as the fillet or cushion (the top of the leg) or the shoulder, should be "larded." This means that thin strips of salt pork or fat side bacon are put into a larding needle, and drawn through the solid meat, an inch or so apart. Or slashes may be cut in the meat and thin slices of fat pork or bacon slipped into the cuts. This gives delicious flavor to the mild veal and adds the fat it needs. Use bacon fat if possible for basting veal while cooking. Allow 25 minutes to the pound.

Pork—A loin of pork, the richest roast, is naturally fat and needs only seasoning. A boned shoulder may be filled with stuffing flavored with sage (or other herbs) and onion. A solid piece like the butt (a convenient and economical roast, particularly good for slicing cold) may have chopped onion and a tiny bit of sage pressed into deep cuts made in the meat, if you like the flavor this gives. Allow 30 minutes to the pound.

Ham—Any but the finest ham should be boiled before baking. Put 1 cup molasses, 2 carrots cut lengthwise, 2 stalks celery, in the water. Cool ham in its liquor. Peel off skin (it comes off very easily) before baking. Rub with equal parts dry mustard, cinnamon and cloves, twice as much flour as you have mixture, and maple syrup or corn syrup to make paste or use seasoning only. To bake score fat in diamonds cover with a coating of equal parts fine sifted dry crumbs and brown sugar (paprika adds rich color and flavor too) stick a whole clove in each diamond and bake until brown—allowing time to heat thoroughly also, if ham was cold.

Braising and Pot-Roasting.

For the medium tender cuts of meat, the combination type of cooking, braising or pot-roasting is very suitable. It gives the rich, nutty, roasted flavor, but with added long slow cooking, its fibres are softened and it becomes tender as the higher-priced cuts. In our little book on "Marketing and Meal-Planning," I tell you what to buy for pot-roasts.

There is little difference between braising and pot-roasting. Sprinkle the meat with salt, pepper and flour and either brown it in a very hot oven the same as for a tender roast, or brown all the surfaces in a very hot, greased frying pan.

Then put the meat either into a covered roaster or baking dish, or a covered pot for top-stove use. Add a small amount (about 2-3 cups) of boiling water and allow the meat to cook slowly in the steam, keeping closely covered.

Allow 3 or 4 hours slow cooking—enough to make the meat tender. The less tender the cut is naturally, the longer it needs to be gently cooked. Add a little more water if necessary.

Part way through cooking, diced vegetables may be placed in a thick layer under the meat—carrot, turnip, onion, celery. The flavors all blend—a delicious mixture.

Sometimes we slash beef in 6 to 10 places and slip a strip of fat salt pork or bacon into each cut before cooking as a pot-roast.

Broiling and Pan-Broiling; Frying. Suitable for Tender Cuts—Steaks, Chops, Tenderloins, Meat Cakes, Ham Slices, etc.

Real Broiling—Wipe meat with damp cloth, remove extra fat, rub heated broiler wires with some of it. Brush meat over with melted butter, bacon fat, oil or French dressing. Place in broiler and cook by exposing to strong direct heat from clear fire, electric element or gas flame. Sear one side, then turn, and brown other side; turn every half minute till cooked.

Allow chops 8 to 15 minutes, a 1-inch steak 5 to 12 minutes; 1 1/2-inch steak rare, 7 to 12 minutes; longer if preferred well done; season, serve on hot platter, garnish, sweet rich juices, caught in the broiling pan, act as gravy. Butter is added to steak, fish, etc.

Pan-Broiling—Wipe and trim meat; rub very hot frying pan with pieces of the fat; sear meat quickly on both sides, then reduce heat and turn meat every half minute. (Never thrust fork into the lean meat.) Keep pan free from fat. Allow same time as for broiling.

Frying—Bacon should be put in a cold pan; cook over slow heat, pouring off extra fat or lean back bacon usually needs its fat. Fry meats (most are better broiled or pan-broiled), heat pan and fat; cook meat, turning until suitably cooked on both sides. For breaded chops, coat with seasoned sifted crumbs, dip in diluted slightly beaten egg, coat well with crumbs, and fry in hot deep fat. Sometimes it is well to drain off fat, add milk or water to half depth of chops, cover and cook slowly for 1/2 hour longer. This may be done in a moderate oven.

Stewing or Pot Pie. Cut meat in small pieces, dredge with salt, pepper and flour, brown in very hot fat in frying pan, then turn into a kettle with any bones and trimmings and add boiling water—1 quart to each 1 1/2 pounds meat; cover closely and simmer gently, keeping always below boiling point, until completely tender—an average of about 3 hours.

An hour before finishing, add such vegetables as cut-up carrots, celery, turnips, parsnips, potatoes, onions (the onions may be browned in pan before the meat), onion stew with salt, pepper, sweet herbs, a little bit of bay leaf or a few cloves, with celery salt or dried leaves—just whatever seasoning you like best.

Dumplings are good with stew—make them by either the standard flour method or prepared flour method, as you learned in Lesson 3. A border of plain boiled rice or macaroni increases the food value, or either one may be added, uncooked, to stew, as may pearl barley, tapioca, sage, coarse hominy or oat flakes. Allow time to become tender.

POULTRY.

Just as for the meats, I am going to refer my students to "Marketing and Meal-Planning," to learn how to buy poultry, and what to buy for different purposes.

To Prepare for Cooking. We have to prepare chickens, turkeys, ducks, geese and other birds in pretty much the same way. Poultry bought from the butcher is usually delivered already cleaned. Your best way to learn to clean a bird yourself is to have someone actually show you.

Singe off down and hair quickly over open flame. Remove pinfeathers (with tweezers if possible). Cut out oil sack just above tail.

Wash bird well inside and out. Baking soda in hot water, or rubbed into the skin and rinsed off, is helpful. Oily birds, like geese, should be scrubbed. Flush out inside with running water and be sure nothing is left clinging to the inner framework.

The giblet should be delivered with the bird. Split gizzard, remove the inner sack (uncut if possible); wash heart, gizzard; add the neck and wing tips, and simmer them together to make stock for gravy, or you may cream this meat or make up some little attractive dish with it and left-overs.

To Roast a Bird. Time Table.—Sear bird in very hot oven, 500 degrees F., then reduce heat to 375 degrees F. and allow:

Chicken—15 to 20 minutes to the pound, with 20 minutes extra.

Turkey—(8 to 10 lbs.) 2 1/2 to 3 hours.

Turkey—(13 lbs. up) 3 1/2 to 5 hours.

Goose—25 minutes to the pound with 20 minutes extra.

Duck (domestic)—20 minutes to the pound with 20 minutes extra.

Clean and prepare as needed. Stuff suitably. (I will give stuffing recipes later.) The body cavity is stuffed in all the birds—the crop also in the turkey (a different stuffing from the one used in the body, sometimes gives a useful alternative). Allow space for stuffing to expand in cooking. Mould turkey breast to be evenly rounded.

Truss the stuffed bird into good shape. Use one long skewer to fasten legs high and close to body, another through the wings. Twist the middle of a yard or so of string around the ends of the legs, drawing them together if chicken or turkey, leaving them an inch apart if duck or goose. Carry crossed string under the tail to the two ends of the leg skewer and twist around it securely. Then cross the two ends of string on the back of the bird and carry to the ends of the wing skewer; twist tightly around it then tie the string, drawing tight. This keeps all the string on the back of the bird, so that its breast and top are not marked. Turn down the long flap of neck-skin over the back, and fasten with a short skewer.

Rub breast, wings and legs of turkey or chicken with soft butter or bacon dripping—and if a crispier skin is liked, make a paste of fat and flour and rub it in. Duck and goose, because of their own natural fat, need only be dredged oose may be steamed for an hour before roasting, to get rid of excess fat.

Set bird on rack in roasting pan; it is a good plan to lay a few strips of fat side bacon over the breast of chicken or turkey. I prefer to do this after the skin has browned. Have oven hot—500 degrees F.—until breast is lightly browned, then reduce heat.

Have plenty of bacon dripping or unflavored fat in the pan and every 15 to 20 minutes. As soon as bird is somewhat browned, reduce heat to moderate, 350 degrees F. If using cover, put it on at this point.

To test when done, thrust tine of cooking fork into leg flesh and twist slightly; if flesh leaves bone bird is cooked. Remove it to hot platter, taking out skewers and removing string.

Pour off extra fat in pan, carefully saving brown sediment and 2 tablespoons fat for each cup gravy desired. (See Lesson 1 for gravy instructions.)

To Stew Chicken. Stewing a chicken leads the way to many good dishes. The second most popular way to cook chicken, is to stew it—and this is also a very delicate way to cook turkey.

An older bird, which would not be suitable for roasting, will make many delicious dishes if it is first stewed properly until tender.

Follow the same rules as for stewing meat—put chicken in large pot (I consider it holds more juice and flavor if cooked whole); cover with boiling water, add salt and pepper, a few slices carrot, a stalk or two of celery, when possible, parsley, and if liked, a slice of onion. Or you may use celery salt or onion salt—convenient seasonings; or perhaps you keep some dried celery leaves on hand for seasoning.

Bring to boil, then reduce at once and simmer gently, always below boiling point, until meat is tender enough to leave bones easily.

Hot stewed chicken—or as it is often called, "boiled chicken" (although it should never really boil while cooking)—is very good served with drawn butter sauce (Lesson 4) poured over it—and an extra sauce-boat filled with sauce. Mincéd parsley improves the sauce. Egg sauce is also good over stewed chicken.

Or the chicken may be carved in pieces for serving and piled on its platter, with the sauce over it. A border of fluffy fresh-baked tea biscuits should surround it. Or steamed dumplings—cooked separately or right in the stew pot with the chicken at the end of its cooking period. You have learned how to make both the biscuits and the dumplings in Lesson 3.

Deep Chicken Pie. Put neatly carved stewed chicken into deep baking dish; small balls or dice of partially cooked potatoes, carrots, tiny onions, may be added; or cooked celery, mushrooms or green peas.

Cover with medium-thick cream sauce.

BURWELL NEWS

The work of rebuilding the grandstands at the fair grounds that were torn down by the cyclone last August is practically completed, the work being in charge of George Zimmerman and Frank Flakus. A section of the arena grandstand, one hundred feet long, with a seating capacity of 1000 persons, was recently moved across the track to the outside, and placed in position just west of the agricultural hall. This work was done by John K. Jensen and his crew, under the supervision of Andy Snyder and J. E. Cram. This year, in response to a repeated demand from the public, the section of seats above the agricultural hall will be reserved thus making it possible to hold reserved seats on the outside of the track. Present indications are that the fair this year will be the best since the record year of 1929.

Burwell started out its soft ball season the past week, playing two games Tuesday night and two Thursday night, under the new lights that were installed a short time ago. Burwell has four teams with managers Bill Manasil, Beans Anderson, Jude Phillips and Bud Boag. In the first game Tuesday the Manasils defeated the Boags by a score of 3 to 1. Batteries, B. Manasil and Rector; Jurgensen and Melvin Malicky. In the second game the Andersons defeated the Phillips gang 6 to 5. Batteries, L. Manasil and Wood; J. Phillips and Wood. Thursday night the Manasils defeated the Andersons 14 to 12. Batteries Eatherton and Rector; Ward, McKenzie and Wood. In the second game the Phillips gang defeated the Boags, 18 to 17. Batteries, Phillips and Farrar; Jurgensen and Malicky. Thursday evening the Burwell firemen met defeat at the hands of a fast Greeley team on the Greeley grounds, the final score being 14 to 6.

In spite of the fact that Garfield county had a fair crop last year, the 1936 assessment shows a very decided upward trend, the figures being higher than at any time in the past four years. In spite of the fact that the land was assessed this year, the work was so well handled by the precinct assessors that it was done at a cost of $905,000, which amount is $60,000 less than the three average of 1933, 1934 and 1935. The assessors' supplies also cost $74,000 less for 1936 than for the average of those same three years.

Thirteen thousand cattle brought in a valuation of over $300,000.00, $60,000.00 above the three year average. Three thousand horses showed a valuation of more than $100,000 or $30,000 above the three year average. Three thousand hogs, with a value of $27,000.00, topped the three year average by $12,000.00. Merchandise showed a ten per cent gain over the three year average. $75,000.00 worth of auto tops in the three year average by $22,000.00.

The total personal valuation for 1936, $788,615.00, shows a gain of 26.7 per cent over 1935, and a gain of $106,000.00 over the average of the three years before. The total value of the county, real and personal, shows a gain of 5 per cent over 1935, in spite of the fact that the real estate was left practically the same as last year. This total is higher by two per cent than the three year average.

Largely due to the work of the Burwell assessor, R. B. Grunke-meyer, intangibles for 1936 practically doubled, there being a total in the two classes of $150,000.00, a gain of 96 per cent over last year. Due to the cooperation of the precinct assessors and the county board, Garfield county had the honor of turning in the first complete abstract in the entire state.

If these figures mean anything, they certainly show that we are gradually climbing out of the depression.

The Burwell baseball team played the best game of the season Sunday on the local grounds when they defeated the league leading Kent team by a score of 17 to 3. Kukulish and Partridge went all the way for Burwell, but Kent used three pitchers in a vain effort to stop the barrage of hits the Burwell sluggers were putting out. The Kent battery was Brockman, Brockman, Warwick and Boag.

J. L. Jenkins, for many years county superintendent of Garfield county, dropped in for a short visit, with old friends last week. He has been making his home with his son Linn and family at Gordon for the past two years. Although in the eighties, Mr. Jenkins is still able to get around as well as ever, and he looks better than when he left Burwell.

Mr. and Mrs. Asa Anderson, daughter Ruth and son Donald left this week for California, where they will spend a couple of weeks visiting mostly in the vicinity of Los Angeles. Asa, jr., stayed right on the job at the Quiz office.

While it is a trifle late still the announcement of the marriage of Norma Reed and Harold Ballagh will be of interest to all who know them. These young people are among Garfield's best, both having graduated from the Burwell schools. They are receiving the congratulations of their many friends.

A short time ago the Quiz mentioned the number of Ord high graduates who are employed by the paper. The writer is also an Ord graduate, and perhaps the oldest one who has any connection with the activities of the Quiz. Member of the class of 1904 which furnished the state with such men as the late Grover Long and Irl Tolen.

Popular Mira Valley Couple Wed Sunday

MRS. ALFRED BURSON.

A garden scene, white lattice and huge baskets of seasonal flowers and fernery formed an attractive setting for the wedding of Miss Irma Lenz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Lenz to Alfred Burson, son of Mrs. Hattie Burson of Ord. The ceremony took place at 8:00 o'clock Sunday evening at the Mira Valley Evangelical church, Rev. Frank Lenz of Kearney, an uncle of the bride officiating. He was assisted by Rev. C. E. Nichols, pastor of the Mira Valley church.

About three hundred friends and relatives of the bride and groom filled to capacity the large church and witnessed the impressive ceremony. Viola and Angeline Koelling were candle bearers and looked very nice in pink and orchid organdy. Reuben Cook gave an excellent rendition of "Oh Promise Me." A trio composed of Viola, Oral and Angeline Koelling sang "I Love You Truly" Mrs. Muri Koelling being accompanist for both selections and also playing the wedding march.

Miss Lila Koelling was maid-of-honor and Misses Mildred Campbell and Alice Burson, sister of the groom, were bridesmaids. The best man was Edwin Lenz, brother of the bride, and other attendants were Eldon Burson, the groom's brother, and Kenneth Koelling.

The bride was beautiful in a floor-length white satin gown with lace sleeves and short train and wore a long flowing veil. Accessories were of white and she carried a bouquet of white roses. The maid-of-honor was dressed in light green and carried talisman roses. Misses Mildred Campbell and Alice Burson were gowning in formal organdy of peach and orchid and carried bouquets of orchid and pink sweet peas. Children of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Poth, Eldon and Velma were ring bearer and flower girl.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held in the beautifully decorated church basement for about a hundred relatives and close friends of the couple. Mr. and Mrs. Burson were the recipients of many lovely wedding gifts. Refreshments of ice cream and cake were served by waitresses who were dressed in white with organdy heart-shaped aprons of pastel shades. Serving were Misses Lois Collins, Pearl Leonard, Edna Boeltger, Hulda Hanke, Darlene Geweke, Irma Campbell, Ruth Wiberg and Mrs. Melvin Koelling. An impromptu musical and humorous program was greatly enjoyed immediately following.

The bride is a graduate of the Ord high school in 1927, is capable and unassuming and has won for herself a position of admiration and respect in the community. The groom is also a local product, has worked in the Mira Valley community for several years and both Mr. and Mrs. Burson are well deserving of the many congratulations and good wishes which they received from their countless friends.

Out-of-town relatives attending the ceremony were Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Moline of Hastings, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Burson and two children of Allen, Nebr., and Mrs. Frank Lenz of Kearney and Mrs. John Hopkins of Weeping Water. Friends came from Arcadia, Scotia and other nearby towns to be present for the occasion.

Electric Company Sued For $50,000 In Cushing Death

Regulations of the farmers' telephone line requiring its patrons to make whatever repairs were necessary to secure service, Mr. Cushing was on August 13, 1935 engaged in repairing this line, his widow's petition says. He had placed a ladder against the south-east side of the telephone pole and ascended this ladder with the telephone wire, intending to attach it to a peg at the top of the pole.

Poles 30 Inches Apart.
Thirty inches from the telephone pole the Western Public Service company had set and erected one of its transmission line poles, the petition says, and on the day of Mr. Cushing's death and for at least a year prior thereto to the top of this pole leaned toward the telephone pole so that the top was six inches nearer to it than the bottom. On this high line pole, says the petition, the company maintained a transformer with the high voltage wire loop running into the transformer on the side nearest the telephone pole. The distance from the telephone pole to the loop was only about ten inches and it was this loop that Mr. Cushing's hand accidentally touched on August 13, 1935, causing his death.

Such construction was in violation of the Western Public Service's permit to construct and maintain this line and was not in accordance with standard practice and the various safety rules upon which its permit was based, it is alleged. It is also claimed that the company and its officers had knowledge that this pole, transformer and loop, installed so closely to the telephone pole, constituted a dangerous hazard to and person repairing the telephone line and that their carelessness and negligence in so constructing the line and permitting it to remain was directly responsible for Mr. Cushing's death. The company's failure to trim trees around the pole is also a cause of action.

Earned $200 Monthly.
It is further recited that Marlon Cushing was a man of 47, of good habits, robust health and at the height of his earning capacity that his earnings averaged $200 per month and upwards and that Mrs. Cushing and her two children, Robert and Marlon Grace are damaged in the sum of $50,000 by his death. This sum, plus any costs incurred, is asked of the court.

The damage suit was filed this morning as soon as the office of Alfred Weigardt, clerk of the district court, was opened, by Munn & Norman local attorneys for Mrs. Cushing. C. A. Sorenson, also of counsel, is former attorney general of Nebraska and is well known here. He was a close personal friend of the late Repr. Marlon Cushing.

Holtz-Bremer Wedding.

Miss Ella Holtz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Holtz of Shelton, and James Bremer of North Loup were united in holy wedlock at the Zion Evangelical Lutheran church northwest of Shelton Sunday evening, June 14 at 8 o'clock. The double ring ceremony was performed by Rev. Edwin Beckler, pastor of the church.

The young couple was attended by Miss Ava and George Bremer of Ord, sister and brother of the groom and Miss Leona and Lawrence Lade of Hazard, cousins of the bride. The bridal party entered the church to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march, played by Prof. A. C. Mangert of Staplehurst.

The bride, attired in a white satin and lace wedding gown, carried a bouquet of American Beauty roses. The maid-of-honor wore a formal pink taffeta and the bridesmaid wore green taffeta. They carried bouquets of sweet peas and snapdragons.

After the address by Rev. Beckler, the choir sang "The Lord is My Shepherd" under the direction of Professor John Stohns of Ludell, Kas. Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents for about 115 guests. The rooms of the home were very prettily decorated in white, pink and blue green.

CANTALOUPE

Solid Ripe
Yellow meated

3 45 size 29c

At their best, cantaloupes are firm, and free from excess bruises and discoloration. The cantaloupe meat should be well-ripened close to the rind and of even thickness. It is advisable to avoid placing ice in the hollow of a cantaloupe to cool it as this dilutes the flavor. Chilling in a refrigerator, or surrounding melon with ice will make it more appetizing and enjoyable.

$25 Fine for Firecrackers and Fireworks in Ord

According to the provisions of an Ordinance that has been on the records of the City of Ord ever since 1923 it is illegal to shoot firecrackers, torpedoes, cap pistols, rockets, Roman candles or any other forms of pyrotechnic display within the city limits of Ord at any time, with penalty of a $25 fine for violation. AS LONG AS THIS ORDINANCE REMAINS ON OUR RECORDS WE WILL ENFORCE IT STRICTLY. TAKE WARNING.

This ordinance was passed in response to public demand because some of Ord's children were hurt by firecrackers and torpedoes and also because all fireworks constitute a fire hazard. If the people of Ord don't want an ordinance of this kind let them circulate petitions and take steps to bring about its repeal.

The 4th of July season is here again and there have already been some violations of the Fireworks Ordinance. So far we have been issuing warnings but with appearance of this public notice we will arrest offenders in future.

If we should fail in our duty of enforcing this ordinance and one of our children should be crippled or killed by illegal fireworks we would be blamed for not doing our duty. Therefore, this city administration has given strict instructions to Chief of Police L. H. Covert and the other city officers to MAKE ARRESTS IF THEY ARE NECESSARY. We hope nobody will be arrested and have to pay a $25 fine. The cooperation of all Ord parents is requested.

A passage from the Bible in the lesson-sermon is from John 1:1, 3: "In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God--All things were made by him; and without him was not anything made that was made." A correlative passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, reads: "There is but one creator and one creation. This creation consists of the unfolding of spiritual ideas and their identities, which are embraced in the infinite Mind and forever reflected. These ideas range from the infinitesimal to infinity, and the highest ideas are the sons and daughters of God." (page 503).

Dear Quiz:

If you or I were going to build a house, we would go to work and build it but not so with a Swede. When a Swede wants to build a house, he first builds a martin house and puts it up on a high pole in front of the place where his own house is going to be when he gets it built. There are three of them being built upon the hill on what is now known as Wallin avenue. All built their bird houses and put them up first. The boys' names are Alvin, Dick and Oscar. They tell me that Dick the boy was ready to start his house long before the front was out of the ground but tried to dig a hole in which to set the pole for his bird house and not being able to do so on account of the frozen ground, he deferred starting his own house for a month till he could get the bird house up. Dick and Oscar both need houses for their wives but just what Alvin wants of a house is more than we have been able to figure out. And his house is further along than either of the other boys. They tell me that Alvin will dress up Sunday evening and go visiting and Monday morning he will tear into the building header than ever and there may be something to the rumors of a charming widow in the offering. But that is a funny custom, thinking the bird house has to be put up first.

We have been here almost a week and so far have put in most of our time getting the place cleaned up, planting flowers, completing the rock garden started last year. Until yesterday the weather was warm; we had two nice rains badly needed as it was dry here. Now the ground is well soaked and yesterday it turned so cold with a strong north wind, that it was unpleasant trying to work. Sunday the Missus and I went to the upper lake and caught three wall-eyes, two of them real nice ones and we had a feast and plenty left to be eaten cold, though none of us care especially for cold fish. It warmer this morning as I write at the breeze is still from the north and I suspect it will develop into a hard wind.

One of our greatest pleasures is sitting on the front porch and watching the birds. I wish I knew how many kinds there are. There are numerous nests in sight from our rocking chairs on the porch and they are busy feeding their young. A pair of robins have their first brood out and they are busy building another nest evidently planning to raise another family. A pair of little yellow warblers has a nest on the eaves of a birch just outside the kitchen window and another pair has a nest just over the fence in the Fenner yard. Occar put up a martin house in our front yard early this spring but instead of martins, we have swallows in it. Every day the martins come and try to get in but the swallows drive them off and it don't look like we will have any martins this year. A pair of beautiful orioles is busy building a nest close by, for we seen them gathering material about the yard, but so far we have not been able to see just where it is. We also have a place for a bluebird nest, a piece of hollow log nailed onto a board with the shell of a large turtle for a roof and all mounted on a post out in the edge of the yard. So far the bluebirds have not found it or are not interested. We see several kinds of warblers, there is a flock of cow birds that gather in the front yard and pick up the oatmeal that we put out for them, there are flickers, black birds, king birds, a pair of little wrens has a nest under the eaves of the cottage. There are a half dozen huge white gulls fishing out in front all the time. They will circle around and suddenly plunge into the lake and come up with a minnow in their beak. A pair of little teal ducks has a nest close and we see them swimming around the dock unafraid and a pair of mallards is raising their family a few rods down the shore and every day now we see one of them taking the brood out for a swim.

When daylight comes each morning we are awakened by a bird chorus and some nights the whippoorwill sings to us a good part of the night. Little Cora Lee was with us here last year and she said one morning to her grandmother, "I don't like to hear so many birds sing; I like to hear just one bird sing." She will never live that down as long as her grandpa and grandma are on earth.

A break of criminal insane, 16 of them from the insane asylum at St. Peter in this state, makes the people more or less nervous and houses that have not been locked at night before, are being carefully locked and people with cars here are taking the keys out and fixing it so their cars cannot be stolen. Some of the crazy folk have been recaptured but ten, including the most desperate, are still at large and no one knows where they went. I tell our folks there is no danger of their straying off into a blind road such as ours is, but I am taking the same precautions as the others.

Yesterday we drove over to Pillager. We heard that there was an abundance of flat rocks over there and needing some for stepping stones in our rock garden, we thought to get them. When we got there the oldest inhabitant was not able to tell us where to find the flat rock. He said he had lived there 30 years and had never heard of any such rock as we described. Someone must have had a vivid imagination. Anyhow, it was a nice ride, we wanted to go to Brainard anyhow and it was only 12 miles further or 26 miles out of our way.

CARE OF COUNTY BOARD

By George Gowen

Random Thoughts.

I have found one advantage in living in Greeley county over Valley. The premiums on hall insurance are one cent cheaper over here. The hall does not pound nearly as hard here as it does a half a mile west.

Oh yes; There are other minor advantages too. One thing was that the prohibition laws never bothered Greeley county officials to speak of. The sheriff never wasted any high priced gas or charged up any great amount of mileage over that foolishness and the President signing the repeal law with seven pens didn't mean anything one way or another to Greeley county.

And there is one other worry that has been eliminated over here. That is, locally at least, the republicans. The republicans just "ain't." Or at least I used to think so. Of course I was always rock ribbed but I kept pretty quiet about it. A fellow does not like to be an outcast.

But I had courage the other day. I saw a man walking slowly up the canyon road toward Horace and his head was bent over. I was fixing fence. I trotted the team so as to see the stranger and the kids thought it was a tramp and their hearts went all a flutter at the idea.

But I had seen the man before. His name was Moody and he lived north of Horace. He said he had delivered a horse he had sold. A poor horse. I asked how much he got for a poor horse. He said whatever he got it would be too much for that kind of a horse. But I am wandering from the subject.

This Mr. Moody knew me by sight. Said he had to think of "sightown" to think of my name. We chatted a few minutes and I told him the unbelieveable "It can't be," I stammered, "We are of the same faith."

He prepared to run, "I vote as I please," he said.

I shook his hand. "Brother, I'm a republican too. How does it happen. I thought I was the only one."

"Oh no" he assured me straightening up with courage. "There was eight republican votes in our precinct this last election. But I do not know who a one was besides myself and my son-in-law."

I was shocked the second time. There's a man who stands in good with his son-in-law. Perhaps the son-in-law hasn't been married long.

Then he gave me a little political speech something like as follows: Some years ago we all spent money. Too much money. If we didn't have it to spend we borrowed it and spent it. And we are suffering for it now. That is what put us in the plight we are in. We found out we couldn't get rich or prosper by spending. Now this government is

He hadn't finished when a friend came along and offered him a ride. I have been wondering ever since what he was leading up to and what that had to do with politics.

Guy Earnest and I were loitering in the garage the other day and I asked him if he could tell his twin girls apart yet. "No," he replied unconcerned.

And then he told me that his wife claimed she could tell them apart and Bill's wife claimed she could. But one day Mrs. Bill came over and thought she picked up Thelma. Mrs. Guy always had placed one on one end of the bed and the other on the other end. But that day the babies had gotten changed and Mrs. Bill picked up Thelma. Which went to prove Mrs. Bill could not tell which was which.

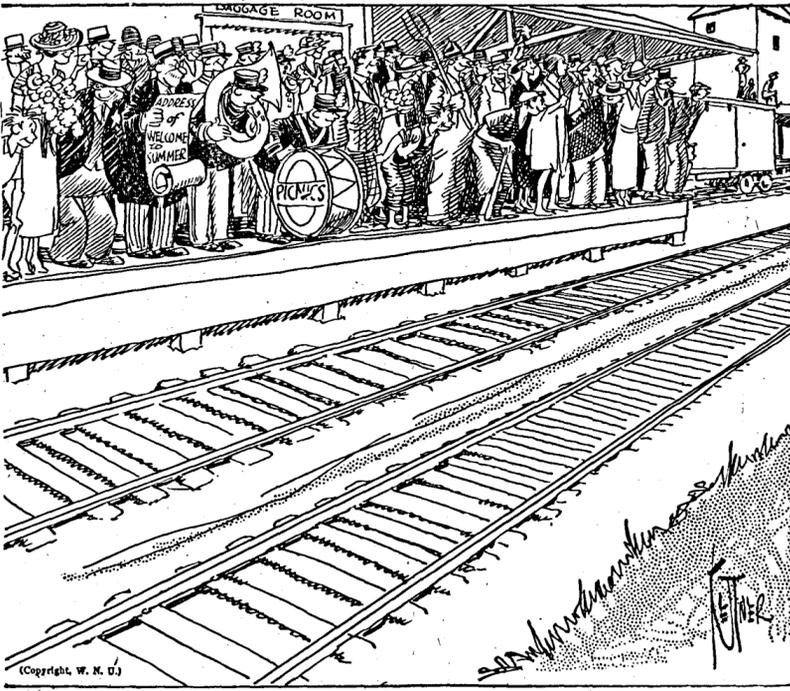

But Guy added, "Of course we can tell them. One has a birth mark on her back."

"Well," I pondered "That's a great note. When they grow up you will have to undress them or put on low backed dresses to tell which girl belonged to which beau."

For a long time I was bewildered when it was said that some friend had a lap supper. All I could think of was how a dog drinks.

To Greeley to get my corn-hog check. Very nice. But I shouldn't take it. I'm not a democrat. I know several ex-soldiers who do not believe the bonus should have been paid. And also I know one that is a republican. I suppose they shouldn't take the bonus either. Nor if they don't believe in the principle of the pension they should not take that in a few years when it comes.

There are two reasons why I should sign up and take the corn-hog payments. In the first place I complied to the best of my ability to conform to my part of the contract. The government made the offer and I accepted. Why shouldn't I get paid even if the whole thing seemed foolish to me? It would be the same as planting artichokes. I have fought artichokes all my life and the thought of growing them now for pay seems foolish. But if I did I should receive the money the contract called for.

The second reason I should sign up for the government AAA or the Soil Conservation Act would be that I help or will help pay for it whether or no. I better sign up and get my share.

And then Roy Cox said a traveling man friend of his who is a stand pat democrat said, "We won't need to worry about paying for all this." Then pointing to Lyle Cox (3), "He's the fellow that will have to worry."

Now this should be a lesson to all the readers not to even start on a Random Thought of mine. I had nothing to write to begin with and have said nothing.

I had an idea to put into the column this week about the school meeting at Arcadia. But carelessly I told Mrs. Root about it and she put it in her paper getting a scoop of the affair before I had a chance. And that is the reason for all this. I'll learn some time to keep my mouth shut.

At a dinner a gentleman sitting near a lady columnist politely asked her if she knew anything of interest to tell the guests. "No I don't," she replied. "And if I did I'd not tell it. I'd save it for my column."

When You And I Were Young Maggie

20 Years Ago This Week.

Republicans nominated Charles Evans Hughes for president on the third ballot at Chicago and he accepted the nomination.

R. L. Dunham, Keene Haldeman, Clarence Woods, Lloyd McGrew and Glendall Bailey left for Crete to attend a H-Y conference.

Noble Stewart's car overturned north of Ord while nine people were riding in it but the occupants were thrown clear and were not hurt.

The Joe Barta and John Perliniski houses were struck by lightning but neither was greatly damaged.

The Ord banks went metropolitan, announcing they would close at 4 instead of 5 except on Saturdays.

Instead of replanking the Ord river bridge the county contracted to have it cemented and work was to begin at once. Rather than have it done by Elvira or Sumter, while the bridge was torn up, E. T. Weekes decided to drive his Ford across the river and did so without much difficulty, the water being low at the time. Others were making the long journey around pending completion of the new flooring.

25 Years Ago This Week.

A man who rented a room at the Mrs. Frank Howard house, representing himself as an employee of Charles Goodhand, departed with stolen property valued at $100. The sheriff was looking for him.

C. J. Rood, secretary of the old settlers' association, announced that a representative of the state historical society would speak at the annual picnic June 28.

Mrs. Bess Stacy fell from a cherry tree, fracturing her arm and dislocating an elbow.

Veronica, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Kusak, was married at Elyria to John B. Zulkoski. The Elyria band escorted the couple to their home after the ceremony.

Something Different

Fred Coe fooled me. I thought that depression, pile of likely looking rocks and that faucet in the middle of the hen house front yard spelled a rock garden. But it didn't. Though I still haven't quite given up.

I hope a lot of mothers from the country will avail themselves of the opportunity to have their children well cared for while they spend a pleasant Saturday afternoon and evening in Ord. The Red Cross nursery and rest room for children will open this coming Saturday, staying open from about noon until after the first evening movie is over. This period should offer a real relaxation and chance to visit or shop to young mothers, unburdened by their families tagging along.

The rest room will be in charge of a competent, trained person, a nurse. She will be assisted by several young Ogd ladies. There will be nothing elaborate about it, but there will be beds for naps or rests for several children, a few chairs, some toys, a big expanse of playground to play on, a sheltered room for them in case of rains, etc. The south one of the two bungalows on the grade school grounds, in south Ord, is the location of the rest room, and for it the Chamber of Commerce is paying the school board $7.50 per month rent, hoping it will be of real value to mothers of the Ord shopping territory.

Children will be kept happy and comfortable by the experts in charge, if it is possible to make them so. Please try this new service that Ord merchants and the Red Cross have so kindly provided for you, mothers.

Picnickers are gratefully exclaiming over the new tables and benches Bud has erected in the Russell Park picnic grounds. The picnic tables and benches are used nearly every night by several groups or families, enjoying the pleasant scene, the pleasant breezes, the outdoors, while their children swing, merry-go-round, or giant-stride.

The Business and Professional girls surely keep busy. A year or so ago they installed some padded furniture in the basement of the court house, a davenport, chair, etc., for the use of visitors who wished to rest.

Such intensive wear has the set received that now the girls are contemplating taking further action in the matter.

I think those B. P. W. C. girls are a bunch of go-getters. They don't only start things, but they keep them up. They find useful projects and dive right into them, not pausing to see just how courageous they themselves are. Other civic organizations are going to "hafo hurry."

Ord has one world-traveller, at least. Mrs. C. J. Mortensen is about to take off again, this time for London to see her sister. She will return to this country on the "Queen Mary", the newest boat, the present marvel of Atlantic passenger travel.

The Mortensen family travel a great deal. They have been to many places, Bermuda, Honolulu, Lake Louise, points east and west, north and south. Perhaps that explains Crawford's hobby, one most unique. He knows routes, time-tables, maps, almost without fail, and can make quite accurate plans for any tour without consulting any authorities. Highway numbers, train-lines, connections, things like that he has at the tip of his tongue and likes nothing better than to advise someone about to take a trip.

Nebraska does not have so many movie stars, but that I think many are interested in Robert Taylor or Beatrice for this reason. Very handsome, he is the newest heart-throb, is showing twice this week at the Ord Theatre. In Beatrice he was raised under the story-bookish name of Arlington Brugh—but I'll bet they called him Arlie in school, don't you? Or Butch.

Fred Astaire is probably most famous Nebraskan on the stage or screen. There is also Harold Lloyd. There used to be Corinne Griffith and Jacqueline Logan, not heard of now-days. What other Nebraskans can you think of in the movies. I guess we must be too busy raising corn, hogs, cattle and potatoes to raise movie stars.

BACK FORTY

The Colorado potato bug or beetle is unusually destructive this spring. The pest may be found in abundance on buffalo burrs as well as on potatoes. The increased number of buffalo burr weed patches has done much to spread potato bugs in this locality.

Arsenate of lead is the best potato bug poison. It does not kill as quickly as Paris Green, but it sticks to the leaves much longer and the benefits can be seen for weeks, even after rains. Paris green is the old standby, is cheaper for a single application, and is still the most used.

Arsenate of lead is applied at the rate of six or eight pounds to a hundred gallons of water. Paris green is mixed at the rate of about a pound to a hundred gallons of water. These poisons can also be dusted on after mixing with lime or other dust. The sprays may burn foliage if applied heavily but they are superior to the old fashioned practice of picking the bugs by hand.

The Colorado potato beetle is a native of a strip of country lying just east of the Rocky Mountains. The adult beetle hibernates over winter. In the spring it emerges and lays eggs, which hatch in from four to eight days. The larvae or slugs devour leaves rapidly. The bugs in striped shells eat but little. Ordinarily just two broods of bugs are produced during one season.

Potato beetles feed on plants that belong to the nightshade family. Included in this group are potatoes, tomatoes, peppers, eggplant, tobacco and buffalo burr. The buffalo burr has yellow flowers, sharp spines and leaves resembling those of the watermelon plant.

FISH.

In "Marketing and Meal Planning," you will learn the very important points about buying fish. Be sure you understand them.

I am just going to tell you briefly, the most useful ways of cooking fish.

Broiled—Grease hot broiling rack. Brush with soft butter and season fish steaks or fresh filets or small whole fish; broil same as meat.

Pan Fried—Season steaks, fresh filets, or small whole fish, and fry in hot fat.

Deep Fried—Wipe pieces, dip in seasoned flour, in diluted beaten egg and again in flour or in seasoned, sifted dry crumbs; lower into deep hot fat, 365 degrees F., (or hot enough to brown a little cube of bread in 60 seconds); cook to golden brown. Drain.

Oven Fried—Prepare as for frying, put in baking pan, dot with plenty of butter or bacon dripping and cook in very hot oven; turn if necessary to brown evenly.

Bolled—Wrap clean and scaled fish in a piece of cheese-cloth or still better in wet cooking parchment (for if you use this modern cooking paper, you can cook all your seasonings right into your fish—butter, lemon juice, pepper and salt). The parchment may be washed and used over and over again as it is very tough when wet. Wrap closely, set in the steamer and cook over boiling water, keeping tightly covered.

If boiling in cloth, add chopped onion, celery, and carrot to water; 1 tablespoon vinegar or lemon juice (to increase whiteness and improve flavor), 1 tablespoon butter and 1/2 teaspoon pickling spice for each quart water, makes plain boiled fish very different. Serve with a good sauce (parsley, drawn butter, egg, from Lesson 1.)

Baked Fish—If possible, place fresh or salted fish on a rack or perforated tin sheet to keep off bottom of pan. Rub cleaned, scaled and washed fish well with flour and dot with bacon dripping or butter or sprinkle with cooking oil. Season well. Bake in moderate oven, 350 degrees F. to 375 degrees F.

Stuffing Improves a whole baked fish.

Another Method—You may wrap fish, stuffed or unstuffed, with all its seasonings, closely in wet cooking parchment, set on rack in baking pan, pour in some boiling water, cover closely and bake in hot oven. The juices closed in the cooking parchment make delicious sauce.

STUFFINGS FOR MEAT, FISH, FOWL.

Breadcrumbs for the base for most stuffing mixtures; mashed potato is often used, and there are special stuffings such as sausage meat (used in turkey crop), mashed and seasoned cooked chestnuts, etc.

Breadcrumb Stuffings.

There are three types of bread stuffings:

1. The dry, crumbly stuffing—soft breadcrumbs with seasoning and a little softened fat (butter or bacon dripping).
2. Same mixture as above, but moistened with beaten egg and a little milk, water or stock. This holds its shape—will slice nicely.
3. Sliced bread covered with warm water and drained well when soft—then combined with seasonings, melted fat, egg if desired.

Breadcrumb Foundation.

- 2 cups crumbs
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- 1 egg (when used)
- 2 to 3 tablespoons fat
- 1 tablespoon minced parsley
- 1 to 2 tablespoons onion
- Milk or water as desired

Potato Foundation.

Rice or mash required amount of potato (white or sweet). Beat light with beaten egg yolk, butter, a little hot milk and season with just salt, pepper, parsley and lemon juice; or with additions of onion with sage or savory or mixed herbs.

Special Stuffings.

Chestnut—Cook chestnuts, and chop or mash them; combine in any up to equal quantities with breadcrumb stuffing. Wet with egg (diluted if desired).

Oyster—Combine ray oysters with breadcrumb stuffing, in anything up to equal quantity.

Giblet—Cook well-washed gizzard, heart, with neck and wing tips, until tender. Chop meat and add to breadcrumb stuffing.

Celery—Combine finely minced celery with breadcrumb stuffing.

Uses and Variations.

Chicken—(a) Use delicately seasoned breadcrumb foundation recipe; slight onion flavor when desired. Where stronger flavors are preferred, a very little powdered sage or savory, or mixed poultry spice, may be added.

(b) Use potato stuffing with parsley and lemon juice.

Turkey—Use same as chicken, making twice or three times the quantity.

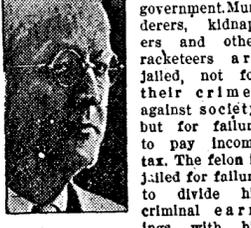

For the crop at least, slightly beaten egg should wet the breadcrumb stuffing, so it will slice nicely. Or a different mixture may be used, such as sausage meat or mashed and seasoned cooked chestnut bound with egg. Giblet, chestnut and oyster stuffings excellent for turkey.

The kind of "justice" supposed to "terrify" crime in this country is very amusing justice: confined to the national government. Murderers, kidnapers and other racketeers are jailed, not for their crimes against society, but for failure to pay income tax. The felon jailed for failure to divide his criminal earnings with his government.

A change in this program is due to Special Prosecutor Dewey, who, before Supreme Justice McCook, in New York city, has convicted a "top-notch racketeer," as Mr. Dewey calls him—Charles ("Lucky") Luciano. He and eight vice-ring associates are convicted on 82 counts, that may entail prison sentences of 1,240 years for "Lucky" and each associate.

This is an actual conviction for crime, not for tax-dodging.

In this world, many laugh and a few do things. Fulton said he would run a boat up the Hudson river by steam; crowds gathered to laugh.

When it was suggested early in this century that men would soon fly, successfully, millions laughed.

Had it been suggested that an army officer would cross the continent "flying blind" in a hooded cabin, seeing nothing, guided by a scientific "radio beam," the laughs would have been louder; but that is what Major Eaker, of the army air corps, has just done. If you should say now that giant ships will fly around this earth, up in the stratosphere, above clouds and storms, carrying thousands of passengers, dropping them at their various destinations in smaller ships, "around the world in 48 hours or less," there would be more laughter, but it would be foolish laughter. What men can imagine they can do, and more.

General Badoglio, who was sent by Mussolini to take over Ethiopia, and did so, celebrated his triumph in Rome, Mussolini and the Italian king, now emperor of Ethiopia, assisting.

The triumphant general, named viceroys of Ethiopia by Mussolini, who surprised the world with the swiftness of his conquest, led his troops, burned by the tropical sun, under the victory arch of Constantine to the tomb of the unknown soldier of the big war.

"Storms kill nine in Oklahoma and Kansas; tornadoes, floods and lightning cause havoc," so runs the headline, and so other headlines have been running for months past. Half ruins crops; lightning bolts kill three; "twisters," those powerful, revolving windstorms, lift up and knock down little houses.

The sultan of Sulu is dead on the island of Jolo, now only sultan in name.

Once, as spiritual and temporal head, he ruled all the Mohammedans of the Sulu archipelago.

The death of this former ruler, Jamalul Kiran, recalls an interesting incident following the Spanish war. Jamalul, good Mohammedan, did not think he should deal with this nation, on account of its religion. He was soothed by an official statement that the United States had no official religion whatever.

The Black Legion, latest secret murder organization, tells candidates: "You cannot join unless you are a native-born, white, Protestant gentile; willing to proceed against negroes, Catholics and Jews." To "proceed against" means to murder.

The Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, a Protestant organization, says it is shameful for the Black Legion to use the word "Protestant," and blasphemous to use the name "God Almighty."

Sir Samuel Hoare had to leave the British cabinet because he opposed the foolishness of sending a great British fleet into the Mediterranean to protect Haile Selassie, not protecting him in the least.

Now, Sir Samuel Hoare is back in the British cabinet "the king pleased to appoint him." This means, probably, that the futile League of Nations' "sanctions" effort to coerce Mussolini will be dropped. Many things are easier than coercing Mussolini.

Why do Americans swallow eagerly anything in the way of foreign-made goods, especially if they come from the friendly British Islands? British merchants advertise proudly "Made in Great Britain." Every Englishman urges "Buy British." Americans seem proud if they can advertise "Made in England" or "Made in France."

North Loup News

Rood-Halverson.

The marriage rites were solemnized for Margaret Grace Rood and Norman Dale Halverson Sunday morning at nine o'clock at the Seventh Day Baptist church. The ceremony was performed by Rev. L. O. Greene of Hagler, Neb. In the midst of a large crowd of relatives and friends. A piano and organ prelude was played by Merle Fuller and Maxine Johnson and just previous to the ceremony Margaret Sayre sang two solos, "Mine Alone" and "I Love You Truly", while the pianist and organist played Lohengrin's wedding march. Mr. Halverson with his best man, Richmond Davis, and Rev. Greene then appeared from an anteroom and took their places on the rostrum. The bride party then entered from the church foyer and also took their places. Miss Maxine Stalter of Lincoln was maid of honor and wore a gown of blue organza and carried pink roses. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Marjorie Rydeberg, Mrs. Kate Harmon, Miss Thelma Willoughby and Miss Ellamae Sershen. Mills Hill, Robert Harman, James Bell and Melvin Cornell were the ushers and little Kendall Harman was the ring bearer. The bride then came in alone and took her place. She wore a white satin gown with long tight sleeves and cowl neckline and a long veil which was held in place by a band of pearls. The groom and his attendants wore dark business suits and the bridesmaids were attired in pastel shades. Immediately following the ceremony the bridal party marched out to the strains of Mendelssohn's march and the couple greeted their friends informally in the foyer. After the wedding the relatives and close friends of the couple attended the breakfast given by Mrs. Grace Rood at her home. The home was beautifully decorated and there was a huge bride's cake which the bride cut. Mr. and Mrs. Halverson and their party were served at small tables by cousins of the bride and groom. Others were served on trays on the lawn. The breakfast consisted of chicken salad, tomatoes, radishes, potato chips, rolls, ice cream and cake.

Margaret Rood is the only child of Mrs. Grace Rood. She has lived all her life in North Loup, was graduated from the North Loup high school and attended the university of Nebraska for one year. She has a pleasing singing voice and is also an accomplished cook and housekeeper. Mr. Halverson is a Scotia boy, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Halverson. He has taught school for several years and is at present attending the state university where he is a Junior. The couple expect to make their home in Lincoln for the present.

The North Loup baseball team proved last Sunday the old proverb that "it is a long road that has no turning" by winning a ball game from Cedar Rapids on the local diamond by a score of six to five. At the start it looked like it might be a repeat of the same old story. The first two innings went scoreless but the boys from Cedar Rapids nicked Sheldon for two hits in the first and one in the second while the home boys were getting only one hit per inning. But in the third Cedar Rapids scored two runs with the aid of a single, a double and a North Loup error. In the fourth North Loup tied it up with doubles by O. Noyes and Sheldon and a singing triple by North Loup's sterling second sacker, Jim Bell. North Loup scored again in the seventh, but Cedar Rapids came back in the eighth with three runs from one single. In the last of the ninth with the bases loaded Kelly Barber came up and bravely swung at the third one which the catcher missed. D. Noyes galloped home. In his rush the catcher over threw and Shaffner scored which caused a little argument and as time had not been called Honeycutt came in with the winning run while nobody was looking. Jim Bell was the big stickler getting a double and triple out of four trips to the plate and Honeycutt got three singles out of five. Batteries were F. Reddler and R. Reddler for Cedar Rapids and Sheldon and O. Noyes for North Loup.

The east end of the basement was decorated to represent a garden scene and in this setting, Mrs. Mary Clement sat rocking and musing on memories of by gone days. Her thoughts were dramatized on the stage by various members of the audience. There was a babyhood scene portrayed by Doris Barber and her baby, followed by school days represented by Marian Maxson and Clair Barber who sang "School Days."

"An old fashioned Garden" was given by Margaret Sayre and Edwin Johnson, "Home Sweet Home" by the Albert Babcock family and "Keep the Home Fires Burning" by Mr. and Mrs. David Davis, their daughter Donna and Marilyn Moulton. Mrs. Emma Koelling Died Wednesday In Lincoln Hospital

Much Loved Ord Woman Had Operation, Seemed To Be Recovering, Died.

Two weeks after undergoing a major operation from which she appeared to be recovering, Mrs. Henry Koelling, 51, had a relapse and passed away at 4:30 a. m. last Wednesday, June 17, in a hospital at Lincoln. Resident of Ord since 1917, Mrs. Koelling had been employed as a nurse in private homes at Lincoln much of the time since the death of her husband three years ago, but still maintained her residence in Ord. She was greatly respected by acquaintances and much loved by a host of Ord friends.

The body of Mrs. Koelling was brought to Ord and funeral rites were held Friday afternoon at the Methodist church, Rev. Mearl C. Smith conducting, and interment was in Ord cemetery beside the body of her husband.

Mrs. Koelling was the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Merkle and was born at Huntley, Neb., on Nov. 30, 1884. Her early life and schooling was in the vicinity of her birth. In 1911 she entered Evangelical Deaconess Hospital in Chicago for training as a nurse and was graduated three years later. For many years she followed the profession of nursing.

In March 1917 she was married to Henry Koelling, of Ord, and with him lived happily until about three years ago when his death occurred at their home here.

Mrs. Koelling became a member of the Evangelical church at Huntley at the age of 20, joined the Mira Valley Evangelical church some years later and three years ago transferred her membership to the Ord Methodist church where she already had worshipped for a number of years. She was an active and greatly loved member of this church at the time of her death.

A tireless worker, Mrs. Koelling's profession as a nurse brought her into contact with many homes where suffering and sorrow were known and always she took the greatest personal interest and by her cheerful philosophy of life and her tender, efficient care brought succor from physical pain and mental suffering to many unfortunates. By those who were her patients and her friends she will never be forgotten.

She is mourned by two sisters, Mrs. Marie Rikil and Mrs. Bertha Heineman, of Murdoch, Neb., as well as by other relatives.

Joseph Ptacnik, Sr., Homesteaded Farm West of Ord in 1878

Farming Operations Prospered, Moved to Town in 1918; Death Occurred June 17.

Joseph, son of Mike and Anna Ptacnik, was born Febr. 12, 1853 at the village of Vyhlave, near the city of Budejovic, Czechoslovakia. His father died when he was a small boy. Being the eldest son, he soon took up the duty of caring for his widowed mother and six children. At the age of 17 he came to the United States with his mother and the other children and settled near Spillville, Ia., where he hired out by the month and cared for the family. In June 1872, he married Cathryn Lukesh and started farming for himself in Iowa. In the spring of 1878 he came to Howard county, Neb., with a team and wagon, fording the Missouri river as there was no bridge at that time. In the same year he came to Valley county and filed on a homestead in Germanium township and later his family followed him to Howard county where one infant child died.

Late in 1878 the Ptacnik family settled on their homestead in Valley county where they lived until 1918, in which year Mr. Ptacnik retired and moved to Ord, having prospered in his farming operations. He was one of the first 13 members to organize the present St. Wenceslaus Catholic parish in Germanium and in 1882 hauled the first load of lumber for the church from St. Paul. He remained a faithful Catholic until his death.

Mr. Ptacnik was financially successful, was a good neighbor and a very kind father, always considerable of the welfare of his family.

He died June 17, 1936 at the age of 83 years, 4 months and 5 days. His wife died Dec. 17, 1928. He was the father of thirteen children, three of whom preceded him in death, Marie, Cathryn and Mrs. Barbara Woracek. The ten children who survive are Joseph P., Frank, John, Albert and William Ptacnik, Mrs. James Patska, Mrs. Jos. Lukesh, Mrs. John Vodehna, Mrs. E. E. Vodehna, all of whom live in Valley county, and Mrs. Frank Valasek of Kimball. Also left is one sister, Mrs. Anna Prochaska, of Profitin, Ia., 43 grandchildren and 23 great grandchildren.

Mr. Ptacnik was one of the Valley county pioneers of whom present generations may feel proud. He was known and respected not only in his own community but in Ord, Sargent, Comstock and Burwell, and everywhere his death is being mourned.

Ord Stores Will Open Friday Eve, Close on July 4

No Celebration Planned For Ord but Near-by Towns Will Celebrate.

In order that proprietors and clerks may celebrate the principal national holiday, July 4th, as other people undoubtedly will do, stores and business institutions of this city have decided to remain closed all day. Because the 4th this year falls on Saturday it has been decided to remain open Friday evening instead, thereby giving farmers who are busy in the fields and ordinarily come to town to do their trading Saturday evening a chance to do it in the evening hours as usual.

This 4th of July closing applies not only to stores but to the cooperative creamery and other produce buyers. The Ord Livestock Market will hold no sale that day, but probably will have next week's sale on Thursday afternoon.

No celebration is planned in Ord this summer but the usual number of picnic parties will no doubt be in evidence at Bussell park, Anderson's Island and other favorite spots. The villages of Comstock, Taylor, Scotia and Ericson are advertising celebrations which probably will attract their quotas of Ord people. Manager M. Biemond expects to give shows at the Ord Theatre on July 4th as usual. Don't forget—Ord will be closed all day Saturday, July 4th but stores will be open all day and all evening Friday, July 3. You are invited to do your usual Saturday shopping in Ord on Friday next week.

Burnie Zulkoski arrived in Ord Saturday to spend the week end with his parents, the J. G. Zulkoski family. Sunday afternoon he returned by bus to his work at the OCC camp at Madison

Viola Krahulik Becomes Bride of Frank Mottl

MRS. FRANK MOTTL.

At a beautiful wedding held at 9:00 o'clock Monday morning at the Methodist church, Miss Viola Krahulik, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Krahulik, became the bride of Frank Mottl, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Mottl. The double ring ceremony was performed by Rev. Mearl C. Smith in the presence of about a hundred relatives and close friends. Baskets of seasonal flowers were banked on each side of the altar to form an attractive setting.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, Rudolph Krahulik, was very beautiful in a floor length white satin gown with long fitted sleeves and a flaring skirt. She wore a long flowing veil and carried a bouquet of white carnations. Miss Irma Novotny was maid-of-honor and was dressed in a formal pink net gown. Bridesmaid was Miss Irma Klupal and she was gowned in a floor-length peach net. Both bride's attendants wore corsages of carnations, large brimmed white straw hats and white accessories. Little Mary Lou Beran, dressed entirely in white was flower girl and scattered rose petals in the path of the bride.

Attendants of the groom were a brother, John Mottl, Jr., and Harvey Krahulik, brother of the bride. The groom and ushers wore dark suits with a carnation lapel flower.

Mrs. Mearl C. Smith played the professional and recessional marches and Miss Hope Bartunek, in a formal white gown, gave a talented rendition of "O Promise Me."

A wedding dinner was served to sixty-five immediate relatives and close friends of the bride and the groom at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Krahulik. The bridal party sat at a long table which had as a centerpiece a three-tiered beautifully decorated wedding cake, topped by a miniature bride and groom. Guests were served by Verna Krahulik, Evelyn Parkos, Richard Parkos and Elder Mottl and the wedding dinner was prepared by Madams Anton Novotny, Frank Novak, Edward Beran, Anna Parkos and Miss Georgia Vasicek.

Both bride and groom are residents of this community and both are Ord high school graduates. The groom graduated with the class of 1931 and later attended the Lincoln School of Commerce. The bride was a popular member of the 1935 graduating class. Both Mr. and Mrs. Mottl are highly deserving of the respect and admiration which they are accorded by all who know them and with them to their farm home ten miles west of Ord will go the best wishes of countless friends.

A wedding dance, attended by hundreds of friends and neighbors, was held Monday evening at National Hall and a great many lovely gifts were received. Mr. and Mrs. Mottl left Ord Tuesday afternoon to be gone for a week or ten days on a wedding trip to Estes Park, Denver, Colo., and points in Wyoming.

Must Summer Fallow By July 1—Dale

Farmers now have until July 1 to complete the first operation in summer fallowing as a conservation practice under the soil conservation program announced County Agent C. C. Dale. Fields which have been planted to crops may be changed to summer fallow by turning under the crops as green manure by July 1. Land which is fallowed will be eligible for the conversion project the same as if it were seeded to a soil conserving crop. This new ruling may enable some farmers to qualify for payment who had not completed their fallowing by June 15.

Fined for Intoxication.

Frank Bruha was arrested Thursday and in county court pleaded guilty to a charge of intoxication, paying a fine of $10 and costs of $8.00. Chief of Police L. H. Covert was the arresting officer.

Kittenball League Under Way Tuesday

First games in the city kittenball league were played at the new field on the fair grounds Tuesday evening with a good crowd in attendance and much interest shown. Both games were free-scoring contests, proving that batters have developed faster this spring than the hurlers. In the first game, which started at 8 o'clock, the High School team beat the K. of P. aggregation 18 to 12. Ed Barnes and E. Krikac formed the High School battery, M. Kosmata and H. Wolf served for the K. of P. In the second game Springdale beat Mira Valley 16 to 8. Batters were Shunkweiler and Lashmet, R. Jensen and D. Marks. Tonight's games will see the High School in action against Mira Valley and the K. of P. team playing Springdale.

Harry Hugo To Be In Ord Next Week, Rain Is Expected

Popular Show To Open Here Monday, June 29 With Many New Plays.

No matter what scientific weather reporters may forecast in the way of moisture for Ord and vicinity next week, this community is practically assured of a good rain.

The reason for this bold statement is that Harry Hugo and his popular show is coming and over a long period of years Ord has always had rain during the week Hugo's show is in town. Sometimes it has rained only one or two days during Hugo's stay here but often it rains all week. Which is hard luck for the Harry Hugo Players but just the opposite for farmers of this community.

Hugo's show, most popular group of thespians showing under canvas in central Nebraska, has been coming to Ord for twenty years or more. Every year the entertainment is a little better than the previous year and next week Harry promises to present the finest group of new plays with the most able actors that he has ever had on a visit to Ord.

The big tent will be pitched near the Bohemian hall, as usual Merchants' tickets may be secured from many Ord business firms. If the Hugo show brings rain which is greatly needed, people should patronize it in spite of bad roads. If rain doesn't come it won't be Harry's fault and he will deserve good patronage anyway because he's in there trying.

William Fleider Died on June 20th

William Fleider, 55, passed away Saturday, June 20, at the home of his brother, Charles, west of Ord, and funeral services were held Tuesday at Frazier's funeral parlors with Rev. Mearl C. Smith in charge. Interment was in Ord cemetery. For twenty-five years Mr. Fleider lived in Valley and Cass counties and had many friends. He leaves five brothers, Charles, who lives here, Henry whose home is in Missouri, Ed, of Homer, Neb., Joe of Sioux City, and another whose whereabouts is unknown. There are also two sisters, Mary and Ann, of Dakota City, Neb.

The child was struck and killed by the car which he drove and he was arrested by officials a day or two later. He was released under $2,000 bond until the jury term of district court. The state presented eleven witnesses in the case including Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Klein, parents of the child, Miss Selma Robbins and Miss Bernice Barber of North Loup, Bernice West and Kurt Daudt of Scotia, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Karre of Horace, Walter Douthit, Dr. H. C. Trautman and Percy Butcher of Greeley.

Burwell War Vet Celebrates Bonus Payment, Is Jailed

Clarence Winteer, 2 Friends Arrested After Wreck In Ord Monday.

Clarence Winteer, 45-year-old veteran of the World War, who lives at Burwell, is serving twenty days in the Valley county jail, must pay a fine of $50 and will be unable to drive a motor vehicle in Nebraska for a year as result of a celebration that followed payment of his veterans' bonus. He was arrested Monday night in Ord with two companions, George Mattern, 29, and Clement Winteer, 35.

About 8:30 Monday evening the car driven by Clarence Winteer, who was accompanied by the other two Burwell men, smashed into two cars parked in front of Hotel Ord. One fender of a Montana car was caved in by the impact and the rear bumper was torn from the other car.

Chief of Police L. H. Covert, who was standing in front of the Safeway store, headed the crash and started across the square to investigate. He saw Winteer back up and start to drive away and shouted at him to stop, but Winteer drove off.

The Ord police chief secured the car of a friend and started in pursuit but was unable to find the Winteer car. Back on the square a few minutes later he saw Winteer drive past, one tire flat, and again attempted to stop him. Again Winteer kept on going, paying no attention to Covert's shouts. Chief Covert then commanded the J. W. Ambrose car and started in pursuit, catching the Burwell men on the Tom Williams corner in west Ord. In the car was a gallon jug partly filled with whiskey and all the men were noticeably effected by the part that was gone.

In county court Tuesday Clement Winteer and Mattern pleaded guilty to charges of intoxication. Because both had been up on similar charges about a year ago, Judge Andersen assessed maximum fines of $50 and costs. Neither was able to pay so both are guests of the county for the present.

County Attorney Lee filed reckless driving charges against Clarence Winteer and he also pleaded guilty, receiving in addition to a $50 fine a jail sentence of twenty days at hard labor. He also made good damage suffered by the cars he hit, cost being $32.00, and his driver's license was revoked for a one year period. In passing sentence Judge John L. Andersen served notice that he expects to discourage reckless and drunken driving in Valley county by giving severe fines and jail sentences or both in every case that comes before him.

Mary Welniak-Verne Porter

Miss Mary Welniak, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Welniak of Elyria and Verne Porter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Porter of Ord were united in marriage at the St. Mary's church at Elyria Monday morning at 8:00 o'clock, the ceremony being performed by Father Szumski.

Attendants of the bride and the groom were Miss Angela Szumski and Victor Welniak and little Elvina Jane Welniak was the flower girl. The bride was beautiful in a white satin with a long flowing veil and carried bouquets of lilies and roses. The bridesmaid wore a floor-length peach satin with matching hat and carried a cluster of sweet peas and roses. The flower girl was dressed in an "old fashioned girl" dress of white-satin and hat and carried a basket of sweetpeas and roses.

Following the ceremony, breakfast and dinner were served to only immediate members of the families after which Mr. and Mrs. Porter left on a short wedding trip. Mrs. Porter wore a clever dress of green and white chiffon with white accessories. On their return, Mr. and Mrs. Porter will sponsor a wedding dance at the Ord dance hall.

Mrs. Porter, a popular young lady of this community, graduated from the Ord high school in 1932, after which she attended college for a year. She has since been teaching in the rural schools of this community and is as charming as she is capable. Mr. Porter attended Lincoln agricultural college, assisted his father on the farm for several years and recently took over the management of a filling station in Ord. Their many friends will welcome them as permanent Ord residents.

Fined for Assault.

On a charge of assault and battery upon Emil Kuklish after a dance at Elyria Sunday night, Raymond Hulbert, 21, was fined $5 and costs by Judge Andersen, Monday. He was arrested by Marshal Anton Swaneek of Elyria. Unable to pay his fine and costs of $7.60, young Hulbert is spending a few days in the Ord jail.

BURWELL NEWS

With two weeks of the Burwell kilted season over, the standing of the teams is as follows: Andersons Athletics, won 3, lost 1; Manasils Middlets, won two, lost two; Phillipps Phanatics won two, lost two; Boags Barnowos, won one, lost three. In the two games last Tuesday evening, the Andersons took the measure of the Manasils, while the Phillipps were drubbing the Boags. The two games Thursday evening were somewhat of a record in several different ways, both being an endurance contest, in which an even hundred scores were made in the two games. In the first contest the Boags and the Manasils were tied up at twenty three all at the end of the seventh inning, and the eighth gave the Boags a well earned victory by a score of 27 to 26. In the final game the Andersons had the best of the merry-go-round, the final count giving them 27 to 20 for the losers. In the first games scores were made in each half of every inning, which is also somewhat of a record.

Late additions to the program for Nebraska's Big Rodeo include the signing of a contract with the Fredericks Carnival Company, which is one of the largest on the road this year. Carl Anderson's horses from Neligh, Neb., will also be here for the entire show. They are among the best horses in the business, and are being trained by one of the best trainers obtainable, Charley Shultz, Texas cowboy clown. Is another of the attractions that will especially please the younger people, and possibly the older ones as well. A full attendance of top notch cowhands is assured by the fact that there are no conflicting dates this year, and also by the increase of the purses in all departments, as well as the addition of a special $300.00 purse for the best all around cowboy. The work of building the stands is practically completed, and the track is being put in shape for the races, which will not be conducted as they were last year.

Burwell and vicinity has a large number of celebrations from which to select this year, as there are half a dozen within easy distance, any one of which will be well worth the trip. Indications are that the celebration at the Frank Clark grove in the north part of the county will draw the largest percentage of the Burwell crowd. This celebration used to be one of the annual affairs of the county, but has not been held for a few years. This year the attractions will be a rodeo, baseball games, races, fireworks, a picnic dinner, and a dance in the evening. Taylor and Ericson are now advertising here, and both places will draw a share of the crowd. As usual the stay at homes will celebrate with a picnic at the Burwell park on the Loup just north of town.

The first of a series of band concerts was held Thursday evening from a stand erected for the purpose on the courthouse ground. A large crowd was in attendance, and they heartily appreciated the efforts of the young people, who have been developing the past year under the tutelage of Glenn Auble, aided and abetted by Bob Rose. The material for the stand was furnished by the Fair association, which had a supply of odds and ends of lumber on hand, and the work was done by a well known local man who has no hankering for publicity.

The work of graveling highway No. 11 from the county line on the south to a point seven or eight miles north of town is progressing rapidly, about half of it being completed. The gravel is being obtained from the Ott Taylor pit in east Burwell and all the work of hauling is being done by local men.

This section is being afflicted with numerous insect pests, some of which are a serious menace to the well being of the crops and trees. Those who own vine covered porches are suffering from the inroads of some kind of a caterpillar which attacks the leaves, and in a very short time leaves nothing but the framework. In many cases it is feared that the vines will be killed. The potato bug always a potential menace, is showing up in large quantities, and in many places the crop is practically ruined as the owner was too busy at the proper time to apply the necessary poison. The crop of small grasshoppers is very numerous in places, an expert believes they will do serious damage before the summer is over.

In the three rivers league Sunday Burwell lost to Calamus 2 to 5. Sargent defeated Kent 9 to 1. Kinkaid beat Ballagh 3 to 1. Taylor defeated Almeria 12 to 3. The standings of the teams to date are:

The subject of the lesson-sermon in all Christian Science churches for Sunday, June 28, is "Christian Science." The Golden Text is from Matthew 13:33: "The kingdom of heaven is like unto leaven, which a woman took and hid in three measures of meal, till the whole was leaven." A passage from the Bible in the lesson-sermon is from John 8:31, 32: "Then said Jesus unto those Jews which believed in him, If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed: And ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free." A correlative passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, reads: "Divine Science derives its sanction from the Bible, and the divine origin of Science is demonstrated through the holy influence of Truth in healing sickness and sin. This healing power of Truth must have been far anterior to the period in which Jesus lived—it lives through all life, and extends throughout all space." (page 146.) What Do You Need? Reminiscences of Pioneer Days

By W. A. Anderson

The homesteaders who settled in Valley County are mostly passed away and I have thought that some recollections by one who came here and went through those early experiences might be of interest to those who are now here.

I landed in Nebraska in the Loup Valley in late February of 1879. An uncle of mine lived not far from Scotia at that time and myself and wife visited a few days with him and to make inquiries about a location for a claim. There was quite a lot of land not filed on and all kinds of claims for sale at a price from $50 to $500 for a quarter section. The weather was fine and I helped my uncle husk corn for a few days as he had been negligent about getting it out in the fall and winter. Incidently he told me that he had sold over a thousand dollars worth of produce during the past year.

This sounded pretty good to me but that was the time of the great rush of homesteaders to the state and a ready market was had for any kind of produce right at his door. At that time Scotia had 4 houses or frame buildings. John Sheldon ran a general store under name of Sheldon and Wellman and had a limited stock of such goods as sugar and salt, picket pins, rope nails, spades, axes which were necessary on a claim. We heard that there was a tract of land about twenty miles north of the head of Wallace that was unsettled on as yet. As we knew little or nothing of the country, I got an old time friend of boyhood days, Mr. A. Gillespie, who had been in the valley for several years and who had been a former teacher of mine in boyhood days. He proved to be the best of scouts and the information he gave me was invaluable. So one day in March we started on our exploring trip.

There were six in the party and each man had a gun of some kind. Our route was north up Wallace Creek and a cloudy morning. Some way in starting out that morning I got directions wrong as a fog came up and as we started it seemed to me we went south. The sun came out about ten o'clock and I got my directions right but for many years there was a point in that road where the points of the compass were instantly changed. Perhaps others have had that disagreeable experience but that was the only time I was ever confused as to locality. We drove north and about noon struck the country that was later known as the sandhills, a valley between the sandhills and the clay ridge. The land was fairly level but was covered with low knolls of sand. One could see for several miles ahead as the knolls were only 5 to 10 feet high.

The country had been burned over the previous fall and was simply a black desert with not a tree or shrub in sight save only a plum thicket at entrance of canyons in the clay hills. There was not a sign of life and a more desolate outlook is hard to imagine.

Just at the head of Wallace Creek we found a water hole with some water in it which later on played quite a part in our later experiences. These water holes are not uncommon among the sandhills and occur where the sand has been blown out deep by the wind and the water is a seep from the surrounding hills as from these hills there is no drainage and the rainfall sinks into the sand.

Even a crow would need to carry a knapsack such a desolate burned over land as this was. But as we rounded a low hill we saw a skunk moving along about a hundred yards away. There were two boys in the wagon and they jumped out with their guns and after the skunk. They shot him and started to skin him. Each took a hind leg and began. Just then they found that the skunk was not dead and you can imagine what occurred. Any way it was a disagreeable trip for them as well as others. We kept north until about one o'clock and came to some better laying land and we drove up on the clay hills and camped for dinner and fed our team. From where we were camped we had a fine view of the sandhills and as the sun got around to the west the thousands of blowouts looked like a vast city. While eating our dinner and studying the landscape someone noticed a herd of deer only about a mile away and among the low hills. Of course all was excitement and the guns were all got out and made ready and four of us started for the deer. None of us had any experience in hunting deer and so knew little as to how to approach them. We were all walking along when the deer sprang up apparently almost at our feet. As they ran we all fired at them, some with rifles and some with shotguns loaded with buckshot. However, no deer fell, though I felt sure we ought to have had a deer with four of us firing at them. Of course each one felt he had by rights got a deer but I have always noted that the more hunters together the less game was secured. However, someone evidently did wound or cripple a deer, as a month or so later I found the remains of a deer that the wolves had eaten and only the head and a few bones remained. We went back to look over the land with a view of entering it as a homestead. The soil was good being a mixture of sod and clay and it was fairly smooth land. We did not know if we were in Greeley or Valley county. Mr. Gillespie, our guide and scout had never been in this locality previously.

However dinner over he gave directions to look for a surveyors mound or corner. We spread out in half hour or more a mound was located. It had no marks on the stake and so Mr. Gillespie paced off a half mile and found a section corner with the stake still in the mound with the original figures still on it.

This was the section corner of Sec. 22 in Township 20, Range 13, west and in Valley county. As we sat on the hillside and looked over the landscape the outlook was dreary indeed with only a vast tract of burned over land in view but I noticed that the stubs of grass showed that there must have been a good growth of grass the previous year. Looking northwest we could see far up the valley but did not venture further in that direction.

The question of water came up and we decided that 25 to 50 feet ought to reach water. I and my neighbor, Mr. B— decided that the land suited us and we would locate there. We drove back to Scotia and talked the question over with our wives and they agreed also.

I had some cousins living on claims at that time on Wallace Creek about 6 miles north of Scotia and so as that was only ten miles from our claims we decided to move up there until we got a well dug and a soddy built to live in. They had a well and a house and in case of a storm we could get in for a night from our covered wagons. Up to this time our prairie schooners had been our residence for many weeks.

The next day we moved and located our camp where we were sure of water and had bought feed for our stock. My neighbor, Mr. B— had 6 head of horses and I had my team, a cow and two yearling heifers. We had bought rope and made a windlass and got a strong wooden bucket, a spade and shovel and the next day went to our claims and began work on a well. We decided to dig the well on the lowest part of the land as it would not be so far to water. I had never dug a well but had always wanted to see how the Supreme Architect of the universe built the earth and this was my opportunity. So I was elected to do the digging and Mr. B— and another man whom we had hired were to work at the windlass and raise the dirt as I dug in the well. I really enjoyed the work as I dug down deeper and noted the different strata as laid down in the previous millions of years of the past.

As we had to drive ten miles each day and return the work went slowly as we had only a few hours to work each day. The soil was clay down to forty feet when a strata of pure white sand that was dry as sugar and would have to be curbed.

A council was held over what was best to do as it would take lumber to make the curbing and we did not know how much. We finally decided to move on our claims and build a soddy and let the well work go for the present and depend on hauling water temporarily. That meant half our time must be devoted to hauling water as the nearest water we knew of was the water hole at head of Wallace Creek about five miles away and the supply was limited and not of very good quality. All our earthly possessions were in our wagons as we moved on our claim only our livestock. We located our camp near where we had started the well. We took our canvas covered wagon boxes off and set them on a dry place on the ground. Our stove we set up out in the open on the windward side of our wagon box home. The first thing was some fuel which we obtained from the oak canyon a mile or so away to the south. We had heard of these canyons and now took our wagon trucks for a supply of wood.

When we got to a point where we could look in, it appeared there was plenty of wood down there but getting it out was a problem as at no point we could discover was there less than a 45 degree grade. However we managed to lock the wheels on the wagon going down and by doubling teams we got up with a part of a load by driving at an angle. It took hard work and the greater part of a day to get a small load for each of us. When back to our claims we raised up our wagon boxes and put some small logs under them so we would be dry in case of heavy rain, as these were to be our homes we knew not how long. Our cow and yearlings were very gentle. My neighbor, Mr. B— had several head of horses but no other livestock so water and feed for the stock had to be provided as well as for our own use. An investment in several barrels became necessary and we each got two barrels as one barrel always was with the wagon wherever we went. We soon found it was almost one persons job to keep a water supply on hand. So it was some problem we were up against every day. Previous to moving on our claims we decided it would be wise to file on our claim as we had noted that we had an occasional caller who might be looking for a claim. So on March 25th, 1879 we were in Ord and made entry on our land.

My Own Column

By H. D. Leggett

This country, like Nebraska, Texas, California and Florida, and for that matter, I guess, the balance of the country, had an unusual winter last winter. I was talking to the lady who manages one of the Brainard greenhouses one day this week, and she said it was a terrible winter here. A large per cent of perennials and many trees that have stood this climate for many years, were killed. I had a half dozen spruce trees set out in front of my cottage this spring and Mr. Ted Lundborg who did the work and furnished the trees from his nursery, said it was May 4 when he finally set them and at that time he had to pick through the frost to do the job. There was much less snow here than usual last winter, only about two feet, which was less than we had in Nebraska, yet it was 35 and 40 below for weeks at a time and the ground froze very deep. That probably accounts for the great mortality among the trees and flowers. The trees that I had set this spring are making a wonderful growth.

We have missed a big blue heron that has always spent a part of each day on the reef out northwest of our cottage. Inquiring about him the other day some of the local people told us that a pair of these big birds showed up here very early, probably the latter part of March or the first of April. The snow was still on, the lake was frozen over and later they found one of the birds on the shore dead. The supposition is that they were unable to get anything to eat and froze to death. These birds would stand for hours at a time, in the shallow water on the gravelly bar and we would watch them through the glasses. Sometimes they would stand on one foot with the other tucked up under the breast feathers. Occasionally we would see them make a grab and come up with a fish, sometimes quite a sizeable one. We get a lot of pleasure in sitting on the porch and watching the various kinds of birds. The swallows with the nest in the new martin house, took their little swallows out yesterday and are busy teaching the little birds to fly and feed themselves and already the old birds, while still looking after the youngsters, are apparently looking for a place to build a new home and rear a second family.

It has been awfully dry here the past few days and our trees and flowers began to show the effects of it. Judge Clements has a gas engine and a pump which he has not used for several years. Last year he told me I could use it if I wished to do so. After studying the matter several days, I decided to install a water system. I found a 550 gal. steel tank at the Clarence Luther place up on the hill above camp which he was not using and which he offered to sell for $10 and I bought it. He had a lot of 1 1/2 inch pipe which he said he would sell me for 2 cents a foot. Old pipe of course, but just as good as any, for there is not much wear out to galvanized pipe. He also had valves and fittings and he sold me four well seasoned tamarack poles about 8 or 10 inches through and delivered the whole outfit. We set the poles 4 feet into the ground and put 2x8 seasoned cross pieces on each side of the posts and hoisted the tank up about 8 feet from the ground. It only took Ray Luther a half day to move the engine and pump, connect everything up and now it takes about an hour to fill the tank. I have two hose lines running out and can run the tank over in spite of them, pumping right out of the lake. We put about three tanks of water onto the trees yesterday afternoon and last night it rained a good hard rain so things are looking mighty fine again this morning and I won't need to sprinkle for a couple of days at least.

Two couples from Albion, Nebraska are in one of the Lundborg cottages. Their names are Van Kirk and Hess. The former is a mail carrier at home and the latter is an undertaker there. It is their first trip up to this country and they seem to be having a delightful time. We see them out on the lake early and late and hear them laughing and they tell us they have been getting plenty of walleyes. When they came they said Harry Gross told them they could fish for everything but bass and they were considerably disappointed that they couldn't catch crappie and bluegill till June 21. I believe they are going to stay a few days longer than they had planned in order to do some fishing for these popular members of the finny tribe.

We were surprised yesterday when Charley De Forrest of McCook came to the back door and asked about the prospect of getting a cottage in this camp. A lot of Quiz readers will remember Bess Gross when as a little girl she lived with her people the Frank Gross family in Ord. She is Mrs. De Forrest now and they live at McCook where they are in the grocery business. They have visited Cullen lake several times before. They are accompanied on the trip by Dr. and Mrs. Montgomery and daughter. I got busy to help them find a cottage but had to take them over to the Wauss camp on Upper Cullen where they are delightfully located for a week. They gave me a lot of salve or hot air or what ever you want to call it and said they wanted me to show them how and where to fish and after seeing their outfit of tackle and talking with them a few moments, I am afraid to even go out with them for I believe they know more about the fishing business than I do. Anyhow we were glad to see them come and hope they will have a good time and believe they will. They are interested in buying a lot in this tract if possible and building a cottage for themselves.

Mrs. Simpson and Emma, the young lady who makes her home with Mrs. Simpson, wrote that they would leave Omaha at noon Saturday and arrive at the Simpson cottage here Sunday afternoon. The Augustines are expected daily now and yesterday a letter to Ray Luther from the Humphreville's contained a key so while we don't know what the letter inside said, we are guessing that they will also be showing up about this week end. The fishing season opens Sunday and we expect to see a number of arrivals just before that, as most people like to be here for the opening of the season. I expect to be on the lake Sunday morning at daylight and catch me a few bass before the other fishermen frighten them and make them hard to catch.

We are having delightful weather. This morning as pretty a morning as I ever saw here. We are unable to sleep after it began to get daylight because of the bird chorus that greeted us. Perhaps the fine rain that came during the night made them extra ambitious with their singing. There are hundreds of birds all around us and I judge there are 25 varieties.

CARE OF COUNTY BOARD

By George Gowen

I was favored with an invitation from Mrs. Rood to attend the wedding of her daughter Margaret to Dale Halverson.

The weddings most of us attend are few. I think I can count the weddings I have attended on one hand. One man said he never attended but one. That was his own. Rev. Leslie Green, the man who did the marrying, said, considering his profession, he had had very few weddings. He had had lots of funerals but few weddings. At one pastorate, where he lived several years he only had two weddings.

I think this wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Halverson was the most beautiful one I ever attended. The decoration by Clara Holmes of elm leaves, roses and ferns transformed the church into a garden, and the stained glass windows moderated the bright sun of nine o'clock into the golden dawn of eventide. We were ushered to our seats by precise boys and awaited in silence one of the three important events of a young couple's lifetime.

The last one to be seated was the mother of the bride, Mrs. Rood and then the doors were locked. St. Matthew, 25-10 says, "And while they went to buy oil for their lamps) the bridegroom came; and they that were ready went in with him to the marriage; and the door was shut."

The minister, the groom and best man came from the door to the south soon after Margaret Sayre sang and then down the aisle slowly marched the bridesmaids, maid of honor, ring bearer, ushers and the last was the bride. She was dressed in cream white satin and in contrast with her black hair and dark eyes we all thought the word beautiful was not quite enough. Her lace veil trailed far behind and Mrs. Rood, sitting near could not refrain from reaching out and touching it and allowing it to slip softly through her fingers as it moved slowly past. The bridesmaids in their misty pink and blue organdies and the ushers with their dark suits did their parts with mechanical precision but none looked nicer or was better looking than the bridegroom.

Little Randall Harmon carried the ring on a pillow. In the rehearsals he had tripped twice and his folks worried for fear what might happen in the actual. But he never made a misstep. When the time came to give the ring the minister himself dropped it and had to reach to the floor and hunt a minute, and that trivial mishap has been an item or remark ever since. The boy was especially amused that someone besides himself should cause the fumble.

They all marched out, in formation to the east similar to the marching in except that the groom went with the bride and the best man with the maid of honor. The minister was left standing alone on the rostrum as if he knew not what to do and finally, which seemed a long time but was only a minute, he smiled and turned to the south and walked thoughtfully away alone, as if, he had done his duty and had made one more couple happy.

The bride and groom stood by the door while we all walked by and shook their hands and we wished her much joy and congratulated the groom. A tear was in Margaret's eyes as I came up, tears of gladness and friendship, I thought Mrs. Rood's eyes were red as she was seated, but I know she was not sad, and I know too she could not wish for a nicer son-in-law.

We all gathered on the walk and lawn and waited to see the bridal couple leave. As they stepped out, framed in the large doorway, she immaculately white, wrapped in her train and still holding flowers, and he tall, light hair and dark suit, they were bewildered for a minute. There was the picture we should have had. And Margaret exclaimed, "What do we do now? How do we get home?"

Art Willoughby volunteered to take them and they left and we all stood around and watched and to my knowledge there was not a kernel of rice or an old shoe thrown.

And then the argument arose over whether the minister pronounced them husband and wife or not. Some said he for-ot. Others said they knew he pronounced them such. Some took the matter seriously but not too much so. But we are all going to give him the benefit of the doubt. We know he meant to.

One man told me after it was all over that he and his wife and two small boys were invited to the wedding. One boy would not go. "Ah it will only take a minute and it is not worth the trouble of getting ready." But the other boy got up early so he would be ready in time. At a wedding a week before the parents were invited but not the children and this lad was very disappointed. He wasn't going to miss this one. I have not heard a person say yet that attended but that it was one of the most beautiful weddings that has ever taken place in our little city. And I ask the question, "Why are there not more such ceremonies?" The Roods and my folks and myself have long been friends and I was more than pleased to be asked to be one of the witnesses, and I know that Mrs. Rood did not invite me to write this for the paper. I think she would rather it would be written for her own.

A Little Unusual. Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Barber are soon to celebrate their golden wedding. They were married fifty years ago on Davis Creek. Mrs. Barber said in those days they did not have maids of honors and best men, but instead, witnesses. And those witnesses are Mrs. Ida Brown living east of North Loup and E. P. Davis living in North Loup. Perhaps a little unusual circumstance that all four would continuously live in one vicinity for fifty years. They have lived here longer for they lived here several years before the wedding. Another slightly unusual circumstance is the fact that the young son of Dell Claud Barber, Theon Duane Barber, has three of his great grandparents living. Chas Barber and wife and John Goodrich.

Card of Thanks. We take this means of expressing our gratitude to all the neighbors and friends for their many acts of kindness and expressions of sympathy during our recent bereavement incident to the death and funeral of our sister, Mrs. Henry Koelling. Especially do we thank the singers, the pallbearers and those who helped at the house.

Every cell in the body must have, from a laboring heart, its supply of food and oxygen, pumped every second.

The brain, alone, contains thirty thousand million separate cells, according to Doctor Carrel. In his 100 surplus pounds, Chesterton carried scores of billions of useless cells, each making an unnecessary demand on the heart.

French anti-Semitism, according to Mr. Birchall, has survived the Dreyfus case, which should have ended it.

LESSON 6 VEGETABLES.

Everybody knows nowadays that food is more important to us than vegetables. It is a good general rule to follow, that we should eat at least one raw vegetable and two cooked vegetables every day. We need the vitamins contained in them—and the minerals. These help us to have good health. Then another thing—practically all vegetables have "roughage" that we do not digest when we eat it, but which is still very useful to our bodies; this roughage works like a broom, as it passes through our system—sweeps out the narrow tubes and passageways for us, and so helps to make us healthy and keep us so.

However, it is always more pleasant to eat something because we like it than because it is good for us. So clever people do not talk so much at the table about why things should be eaten; instead, they cook vegetables, for instance, in the nicest ways possible, make them very appetizing with good sauces and other finishing touches—so that second helpings will be in real demand!

So in this lesson, we will consider the most useful ways of preparing vegetables and I will show you how to follow each method in the easiest way, that will get good results.

It is important not to overcook vegetables, as this alters flavor, destroys food value, color and texture.

To preserve green color, cook vegetables not too closely covered. To keep vegetables white, add a few drops lemon juice or vinegar to the water. Red vegetables, such as cabbage and beets, must not be cut too finely; beets should be cooked with skins and a short length of stem left on—and peeled after being cooked to prevent "bleeding". Lemon juice or vinegar preserves their color also.

When paring vegetables, pare as thinly as possible.

And don't overcook vegetables! First, we will make a list of the general cooking methods—and tell how each is followed.

Note—Sauces suitable for vegetables were taught in Lesson 1.

Boiling—This is one of our commonest ways of cooking vegetables. We put the vegetable into a saucepan containing salted boiling water—one teaspoon salt for each quart of water. Many of the vegetable minerals escape into the water—which is unfortunate; so when the flavor is good we save the vegetable water and use it in making soups, gravy, sauces. We don't keep the water off strong vegetables like onions, turnips, cabbage, cauliflower; in fact we sometimes use two waters for very strong onions or turnips, to get rid of some of the too-heavy flavor.

The smaller the vegetable is cut the more vitamins, minerals and sugar we will lose into the water. With certain utensils such as the very heavy cast aluminum pots and so-called waterless cookers, very little or no water may be used. This preserves practically all the valuable parts of the vegetable without loss. The trick in using these special pots is to have the heat very low, once the pot has been thoroughly heated and the vegetables and seasonings put into it; incidentally, we get a good flavor this way, because butter, pepper, salt, etc., are cooked right into the vegetable; there is nothing to be drained away. I advise starting the vegetable with about two tablespoons water. And if any steam observed, lower the heat at once.

Another way to save the values and to cook the seasonings right into the vegetable, is to tie up the prepared vegetable in a big square of wet cooking parchment. This special cooking paper is very tough and can be used over and over again if it is washed off each time. Wet it, put the vegetable, butter and seasonings in the center, gather up the edges, tie very tight and drop into boiling water—just like a plum pudding.

And again—whatever the method, avoid overcooking.

Steaming—Steaming vegetables is usually better than boiling them as there is less loss of food values. Put the prepared vegetable in the steamer, on plate or in cheesecloth, or in wet parchment, set it over boiling water and cover closely.

Baking—Vegetables which have a tough skin can be baked in it. This is a fine way to save the minerals, sugar and vitamins. Sometimes the vegetable is cooked quite plainly or with just seasoning; sometimes it is stuffed.

Bake all vegetables in a moderate oven 350 degrees F. to 375 degrees F.

Baked potatoes are most familiar. If they are well scrubbed and then rubbed over with bacon fat, the skins are full of flavor and good to eat—and very valuable food, too. Sweet potatoes are treated the same way. Allow 45 to 60 minutes, at 375 degrees F.

Tomatoes and onions are good when baked. Wash tomatoes and cut out stem but do not peel them. Take off outer skins of onions. Set in a baking dish, sprinkle with salt and pepper—put a bit of butter on each onion and a little water in their dish; tomatoes do not need any added moisture. Both tomatoes and onions can be hollowed out and filled with a suitable stuffing before baking. I will mention some good fillings later.

Baking beets is a new idea and an excellent one. Do not peel, but place—tails and all—in a pan, with a half inch of hot water. Cover tightly. Slip from skins when baked. Give them a moderate oven, too.

Vegetable marrow and the various squashes are most easily cooked in the oven. We don't have to peel them; just cut them open, remove the seeds, and set them in a pan (to catch juices), sprinkle with pepper and salt. I like to rub squash first with a little soft butter, or equal parts butter and molasses for a good flavor. Marrow and squash can be cut in squares too, for baking. A section may be cut out of a marrow, seeds scooped out and a filling put in, then the wedge replaced for baking.

Vegetable Stuffing—Breadcrumbs nicely seasoned, with salt, pepper, parsley, a little melted butter and some definite flavor such as minced onion or grated cheese, make good filling for baked vegetables. Then there are vegetable fillings—stewed or canned corn with a little chopped green pepper or onion fried first in butter; bread-crumbs and canned tomato soup or highly seasoned canned tomatoes. Chopped cooked ham, veal, pork, may be added to the filling. Chicken or crab meat or other fish mixed with cream sauce and baked in pepper or tomato shells, makes an excellent main course for lunch or supper.

The above three methods are the generally used for vegetables. In each case, avoid overcooking, and serve as soon as possible when done.

SPECIAL METHODS FOR COOKING VEGETABLES.

Escalloped. Many vegetables, either cooked or raw, can be placed in buttered baking dish in layers—each layer covered with medium thick cream sauce. When the dish is filled, put a layer of buttered crumbs on top and bake in moderate oven until the crumbs are browned on top and the vegetables (if raw) cooked. Potatoes can be dredged with seasoned flour and escalloped with just milk instead of sauce, because they will partially thicken the milk themselves. Tomatoes are done with layers of buttered crumbs, but no sauce.

Cheese adds to the food value and flavor of escalloped vegetable dishes and makes them an even better main dish for luncheon or supper. Add 1/4 cup grated sharp cheese to each cup of white sauce before combining with vegetables; buttered crumbs and grated cheese should be spread over the top.

Glazed Vegetables. Sweet potatoes, parsnips, and carrots are particularly good when glazed. Boil them until tender, peel them, cut in good-sized pieces and spread in a single layer in a large enough baking dish. Pour over a thick syrup of brown sugar and water or use maple syrup or golden syrup of boiled sweetened cider; bake until brown, basting often with the syrup.

Souffles. Souffles are among the most delicate vegetable dishes. Because they are held up by eggs with air beaten into them, they must be served as soon as taken from the oven, or they will fall. For a general rule, use one cup of thick white sauce, 3 eggs and 1 cup of cooked vegetable that has been put through a sieve—you remember it in Lesson 1—and seasoned well. Beat the egg yolk well, stir the hot sauce into them, add the vegetable, then fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites. Half fill a greased baking dish or individual dishes and cook in the steamer protecting top with waxed paper. Or set in a larger dish containing hot water and cook in the oven at 350 degrees F. until firm in center. The time will be from half an hour to an hour, according to the size of the dishes.

SPECIAL VEGETABLE NOTES.

Asparagus—Cut off tough ends, scrape stalks, tie in bundles, then stand in a cooker narrow enough to hold stalks upright; add boiling water to cover stem only—the tips will usually cook in the steam, when tender, serve with melted butter, drawn butter or cream sauce. Hollandaise or Bechamel sauce. Or cool, chill and serve as salad. Save asparagus water.

Artichokes—(Green) like asparagus. (Tuber) like parsnips.

Beets—Scrub, leave a little stem and the tail to prevent bleeding; boil in salted water or steam until tender. Serve with butter or sauce or bake as directed in general rules.

Left-over cooked beets may be sliced and fried in butter or dipped in batter and fried in deep hot fat.

Cabbage—Remove tough leaves, cut in sections, cut away core, and soak in salted water an hour (to draw out possible insects). Cook in large pot of boiling salted water until tender but not pulpy; green vegetables should not be over-cooked. Serve with butter, cream sauce or cheese sauce. Or scallop cabbage with white or cheese sauce. And do not neglect the possibilities of very finely shredded raw cabbage as a salad, with a good dressing.

Throw out cabbage water. To prevent odor while cooking, season and tie tightly in wet cooking parchment, then drop into boiling water.

Carrots—As a useful and delicious vegetable, we allow rather special space to carrots.

Scrub well with stiff brush and boil until tender in small amount of salted water; serve whole or cut up, with butter or sauce. (Carrots cooked in stock instead of water have good flavor.) Carrots may be cut in paper-thin slices before boiling or steaming. (This departs from our general precaution for boiling vegetables, but makes them very attractive.) Cooked, sliced carrots may be covered with thin cream sauce and buttered crumbs, then baked. Equal parts of cooked carrots and peas make a delicious vegetable.

Cooked mashed carrots, seasoned, mixed with slightly beaten egg (1 egg to each cup) are delicious browned by spoonfuls in deep hot fat (380 degrees F.)

Glazed Carrots—See Glazing instructions.

Cauliflower—Soak and cook like cabbage—whole or divided into flowerettes—serve buttered, creamed, or with cheese sauce or one of the richer sauces.

Cold cooked cauliflower is excellent in a salad, with other vegetables.

Boiled or steamed cauliflower, like cabbage, is excellent finished in baking dish with cream or cheese sauce and buttered crumbs on top 25 to 30 minutes in a moderate oven will heat the mixture through and brown the crumbs.

Celery—Save hearts for eating raw. Scrape stalks, cut in lengths cook in boiled salted water. Serve with butter or suitable sauce. Celery (cooked) is excellent when baked with cheese sauce and crumbs. (See above under cauliflower.)

Delicious fritters may be made by dipping short pieces of cooked celery in batter, and frying in hot deep fat, 380 degrees F., or cook in hot butter in frying pan.

Corn—Cook in rapidly boiling water without salt (salt toughens kernels). Don't overcook. Very young freshly picked corn needs only 7 or 8 minutes; allow more time when older or longer picked.

Try cooked or canned corn added to pancake batter—fry as usual, serve with butter. Or add corn to fritter batter, highly seasoned, and cook in deep hot fat, 365 degrees F.; drain on absorbent paper and sprinkle with powdered sugar.

Stewed corn (or canned) is more interesting when butter, a little sugar, grated onion, chopped green pepper and potato are added.

Succotash is a mixture of equal quantities cooked corn and small lima beans; season with salt, pepper and butter.

Cucumbers—Better known for salads, pared, soaked in salt and water, then seasoned and covered with vinegar or marinated with French dressing. A delicate vegetable when cooked. Cut in thick slices, dice or balls, and boil or steam. Serve with sauce or melted butter.

Or cut in fingers, soak in vinegar for an hour, dip in slightly beaten diluted egg and coat with sifted and seasoned crumbs; fry in deep hot fat, 380 degrees F.

Eggplant—Cut in half; sprinkle surface with buttered crumbs and bake in moderate oven until tender. Or steam halves (unpeeled) until tender, scoop out center and fill with bread stuffing, highly seasoned; top with buttered crumbs and bake until brown.

Fried eggplant is very popular. Peel, slice, pile up slices with salt between, put weight on top, let stand an hour then drain off liquid and dip in diluted beaten egg and coat with sifted seasoned crumbs and pan fry or drop into hot deep fat until browned and tender.

Mushrooms—Clean thoroughly; peel unless young, with skins that are white and tender. Cut off tougher ends of stalks and summer to make stock if wanted. Caps may be sliced when large, and left whole when small. Stew in seasoned water or fry in butter or bacon fat until tender.

Onions—Boil in large quantity salted water. For strong onions (the reddish ones—mild onions are white or yellow), change water once or twice. Or tie onions in wet cooking parchment (adding plenty of butter, pepper and salt) and drop into boiling water—when preventing odors is important. Cream or other suitable sauces are good on onions.

Cooked onions can be covered with cream, a thin cream sauce or cheese sauce, and cooked in moderate oven. Very nice if glazed first.

Onions should be sliced very thin for frying and heat kept low enough to prevent browning—they should be yellow and tender when done.

For stuffing, use the mild-flavored large Spanish or Bermuda onion; halve, boil, scoop out and fill with savory stuffing—with cheese, meat or nut meats for added food value and deliciousness.

Parsnips—Scrub well and peel after boiling in salted water. Slice or cut in dice or strips. Serve with butter or suitable sauce. Cooked parsnips can be baked in white or cheese sauce, in moderate oven, about 20 minutes.

Glazed Parsnips—See Glazing instructions.

Boiled Parsnips, halved or quartered, can be dipped in batter and deep fried; or cut in slices lengthwise and pan-fried in bacon fat or placed in fat around roast in oven until well browned.

Peas—After boiling peas until tender, drain, add butter or cream, salt, pepper, a little sugar and a few leaves of crushed mint.

Pea Souffle is a favorite. Follow Souffle instructions.

Pea Timbales—good for vegetable or for main course. To each cup cooked mashed peas, seasoned with salt, pepper and scraped onion, add 1 cup milk with 1 beaten egg and 1/4 cup fine crumbs. Turn into small buttered moulds, set in pan containing boiling water and cook in moderate oven until firm in center. Turn out to serve. A cream or cheese sauce may accompany them.

Peppers—When fried green pepper is used to give flavor to any dish, chop it and fry in butter over mild flame.

Stuffed Baked Peppers—cut off top, remove seeds pack with filling. See "Baked Vegetable" instructions. (Peppers may be par-boiled first.)

Potatoes—Well-scrubbed potatoes, boiled in their skins or baked, contain most minerals. If standing after they are peeled, keep covered with cold water. Cook in boiling salted water.

Franconia Potatoes—Commonly called "Browned," are parboiled first, then finished around a roast, browning in the pan fat; taste and turn so they will have a savory, brown, crusty surface. Season.

French Fried Potatoes—Cut in sections like an orange, soak an hour in cold water, dry thoroughly and drop a few pieces at a time into deep hot fat, 375 degrees F. Drain well, sprinkle with salt and keep very hot in oven.

Lyonnais Potatoes—For each cupful of diced cooked potato, melt one tablespoon butter in frying pan, cook one tablespoon chopped onion until tender, then add potatoes and cook until brown.

Riced Potatoes—Very light and convenient. Press boiled or steamed potatoes through ricer and keep very hot in oven. Top may be browned; or grated cheese spread over top and browned.

Mashed potatoes will never have lumps if riced first; add a little hot cream or milk and butter, season and whip light with a fork or wire spoon-beater.

Potato Cakes—Season mashed potatoes well, adding scraped onion, minced parsley, etc., moisten with well-beaten egg (one-half egg to cupful), form in flat cakes and pan-fry.

Croquettes with potato base—just add any meat or fish (finely chopped or shredded) to potato cake mixture, chill well, shape in balls or cakes, coat with egg and crumbs, and pan-fry or cook in deep hot fat, 30 degrees F., to rich brown.

Salsify—Discolors quickly when peeled or cut, so must be dropped into acidulated water—1 teaspoon lemon juice or vinegar to one cup cold water. Cook and serve like parsnips.

Spinach—Soak in laundry tub or big container of water, then lift out gently so grit will settle at bottom. Repeat in several waters. Finally wash leaves in hot water. Drain. Cook until tender with only moisture that clings to leaves—don't overcook. Chop and season with salt, pepper and oil, or season without chopping. Excellent to cook it tied up with seasoning, in wet parchment, to cook in own juices when dropped into boiling water.

Spinach is good in Souffles or Timbales—Prepare same as peas. Can be creamed or served with cheese sauce or baked in sauce.

Squash—Can be steamed, boiled or baked—see General Instructions.

Tomatoes—To peel them, scald a few moments in boiling water, then flush with cold water; or rub all over with blunt side of knife before peeling, to loosen skin.

Good baked (unpeeled), whether plain or stuffed—See Baked Vegetables.

Firm sliced tomatoes may be broiled or pan-fried—sprinkle first with seasoned flour.

Turnips—A strong flavored vegetable. Peel, slice or dice and cook in large amount of boiling salted water; or season and tie up in cooking parchment to prevent odors. Mash cooked turnips and season with salt, pepper and butter.

Hot Weather is Picnic Weather

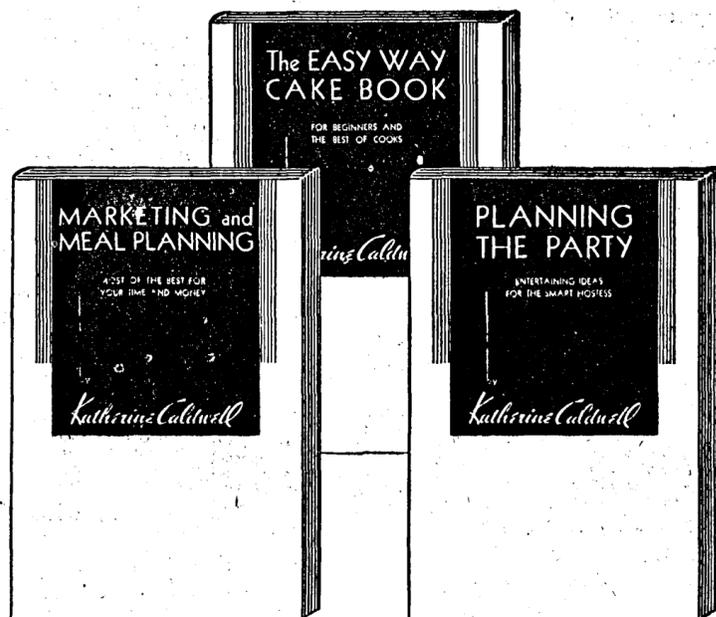

And meats will always furnish the basis for those fine picnic lunches that are always served.

The next time you plan a picnic let us help you plan it. Why not boil or bake a half or whole smoked ham? Cold boiled tongue makes a delicious picnic meat as does a generous cut of lean pork boiled or roasted and then sliced and served cold. Maybe you'll want to bake beans and we have the pickled pork to bring out the flavor of the beans. There's hardly anything in the picnic meat line that we can't supply. Come here.

American Towns, Streets Have Some Queer Names

American visitors to England get a laugh out of the names of some English villages. But their own country has some queer place names, notes a writer in Pearson's London Weekly.

For instance, in the U. S. A. one finds the towns of Bonapart, Wellington, and Waterloo. Also Needle and Haystack, the former in California, the latter in Connecticut, a distance of over 3,000 miles.

Then there are names that sound more like race horses than respectable American villages: Hard Cash, Boomerang, Bird-in-hand, and Dynamic.

Any United States gazetteer will reveal that Americans evidently like their groceries. They have even named towns after them: Apricot, Grape, Fish, Coffee, and Cereal.

Others have named their places after trades. This group includes Brewer, Carpenter, Mason, Barber, Clothier, Farmer, Doctor, Hatter, Sailor, Sawyer, and Surveyor.

Did you know that China, Cuba, Egypt, France, Austria, and Scandinavia are all in the United States? They are—for villages bear these names. Probably the most beautifully named towns in the states are Bliss, Harmony, Love, Solitude, and Tranquility. In contrast, they have villages called Blood, Cemetery, Exit, Fate, and Ghost Pine.

Birds Land Only to Nest; May Not Return in Years

It is difficult for us, who belong so essentially to the land, to realize that there can be warm-blooded things which belong just as essentially to the great world of ocean—there to live, month in, month out, with nothing but sea around and the skies overhead, notes a writer in Answers Magazine.

Their world is a strangely beautiful world, yet one would think that in time it would become an endlessly dreary and monotonous one! Sea—sea, nothing but sea!

The gannet chick, which in August flies from the rugged shelves of the Bass Rock or Kintyre or St. Kilda, may not again set foot on land for a matter of five years. Tens of thousands of stormy petrels darken the face of the mid-Atlantic, close upon 2,000 miles from the nearest land. They come ashore only to nest, and their little legs cannot support them.

The great glaucous gull, or burmaster, born on a desolate Arctic isle, may encircle the earth ere some day he majestically lowers himself to the dark surface of the Thames, or soars like a thing of gold in the sunset high above the cliffs.

Early Travel in America

On June 19, 1633, Gov. John Winthrop, of the Massachusetts Bay colony, sent to his son, John, "at the mouth of the Connecticut," a letter containing one of the earliest references to communication in New England history. He wrote: "Mr. Hooker went hence upon Tuesday, the last of May, by whom I wrote you and sent all your letters, with one from England, and all such news as came to hand." With more than 100 members of his congregation, Rev. Thomas Hooker set out through the wilderness from Newtown (now Cambridge), Mass., to settle at the present site of Hartford, Conn. The journey of slightly more than 100 miles required two weeks. Such were America's facilities for travel and communication three centuries ago.

Gestalt Psychology

Gestalt is a German word that was introduced into psychology in 1890 to indicate the character of a perception as a unity. For instance, the seeing of a square does not consist in seeing four equal straight lines inclosing four right angles, but is the perception of a square as a whole. Similarly, a melody is the totality of a series of tones, not the sum of the separate tones. Bertrand Russell defines Gestalt psychology as the psychology of form, dealing with the apprehension of wholes. He says that "reading is a case in point."

Chimney Rock, N. C.

Chimney Rock gets its name from a peculiar formation amazingly like a real chimney. The base of the rock is connected to a mountain of almost solid rock, but leans away from the ledge about a quarter of the way to its top. There is a walk from the mountain across a chasm to the top of Chimney Rock and the view from the top is magnificent. The town of Chimney Rock is about 18 miles from Asheville on the Greenville-Spartanburg highway.

Peanut, Burrowing Bean

The peanut is often called the burrowing bean, because after the flower fades the plant stems bend over from a height of about 18 inches and, like an ostrich hiding his head, bury the pods in the ground to mature. In the late summer and autumn the nuts are thrown out of the ground with a digger, and then dried in piles of stacks, for four to six weeks. Thrashing machine remove the pods from the vines.

Free Parking for Children.

Country mothers may now park their children on Saturdays from 1 until 9:30 o'clock when they come to Ord, secure in the knowledge that the children are happy and well cared for by Mrs. Ella Chapman Hughes and her capable staff. The Red Cross play room opened last Saturday at the north bungalow on the grade school grounds. The children receive every attention, all free, toilet, cold drinking water, and a lunch of graham crackers if the mothers wish it. Merchants of Ord are paying rent so that rural mothers may enjoy this advantage.

4-H Club Meets.

The Jolly Weavers and Ritzy Room 4-H clubs met on Wednesday last week at the home of Miss Virginia Davis. Club members received instructions for the coming year's work and decided to meet every Wednesday. Club booklets were also made by attending members. The next meeting will be at the home of Martina Biemond.
