

Second Carload Of Hopper Poison Being Distributed

Should Be Spread Early in Morning to Give Results; 2 Applications Best.

Under County Agent Dale's careful supervision, mixing and distribution of the second carload of poison bran for this district was being carried on early this week. Three-fourths of the entire carload had been distributed by Wednesday morning.

In distribution of this second shipment of bran, Dale is placing special emphasis on the fact that to be successful during hot weather, the poison must be spread on the fields very early in the morning.

Mixing of the bran is being taken care of in the same place and manner as the first shipment. All farmers who desire the bran may secure it while it lasts according to previous terms.

The best time to spread poisoned bran is from six to nine o'clock in the morning of a warm bright day. In hot dry weather, such as that which is prevailing in this district now, spreading may start at sunrise or even earlier. Grasshoppers feed very little in cool, cloudy weather, and poisoning at that time is not likely to give satisfactory results. In bright, hot weather, spreading of poisoned bran after ten o'clock in the morning is useless.

Two applications usually give satisfactory control and one is sometimes sufficient; where grasshoppers are coming in from other fields, three to four applications of poisoned bait may be necessary. These applications should be made at intervals of about five days.

The poison takes effect slowly and many of the poisoned grasshoppers will not die until three to five days have passed. However, after eating the poison, the grasshopper soon sickens and ceases feeding. The majority of them crawl under trash, weeds or cultivated plants to die. Many farmers have mistakenly concluded that the poison was not working effectively because they did not find many dead grasshoppers on the first or second day after poisoning, and only a few dead ones could be found lying in the open field.

In alfalfa fields, best results may usually be secured just after a hay crop has been removed. A few narrow strips should be left uncut. The grasshoppers congregate on these strips to feed, and may be poisoned with a minimum of work and material.

No WPA Jobs for Men Who Refuse to Work

As a matter of policy the Valley county assistance board has ruled that needy people who have lost their employment on public or private agencies through lack of effort, laziness or failing to report on the job because WPA work is easier, will not be eligible for direct relief under the new set up. Frank Kruml, the relief director, has been ordered to act in accordance with this plan.

Kruml states there has been a marked tendency for men to fail to report on the job or fail to provide a day's work and get "served" so they could return to easier work provided by other agencies and that this is contrary to the program as set up for relieving unemployed. All employable cases will be required to work where such employment is available and no direct relief in these cases will be given.

Butler Leaves Ford Agency.

Ed A. Butler, a partner in the Richter-Butler Ford agency in Ord, this week sold his interest in the firm to his partner Louis Richter, and moved his household goods to Ansley, his former home. Later the Butler family may move to Colorado Springs.

IN COUNTY COURT.

Two condemnation suits were heard in Judge John L. Anderson's court the past week. The North Loup River Public Power and Irrigation District was the plaintiff in each case, and the S. P. Hager Estate and Seton Hanson, et al, were the respective defendants. In the first case a tentative agreement had been reached by the parties and the appraisers, John G. Bremer, Guy Burrows, Joe Rohla, Joe Sershen and L. J. Auble allowed $1,151.75 for a total of 24 acres, asking that the amount be applied on taxes. In the second case the appraisers were E. C. James, Howard E. Barnes, Archie Waterman, Orin Kellison and Emil R. Fafelita. They allowed a total of $600.00 for the 8.43 acres under litigation and recommended the manner in which it should be distributed among the several defendants. It is understood that no appeal will be taken by either side in either case.

Accident Bereaves Former Ord Family

Fireworks July 2 caused the death of Ardyce Pavak, 12-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Pavak, now of Nampa, Ida., but living in Ord until December, 1931. According to the police report, a child set off a display of fireworks in a combination drug store and beauty parlor, turning the place into an inferno of darting explosives. Three were killed outright, and 20 others maimed and injured. While the dispatch did not say so, it is inferred that those who died perished of burns when their clothing was set on fire. Two have died since.

The Pavaks are well known here. Mrs. Peter Anderson of northwest of Ord being an aunt. Mrs. Pavak was Martha Albers, a daughter of John D. Albers, who also lives north of Ord. Before leaving for the west Lester was employed in the Sack lumber yard for a number of years.

Coyote Killed Near P. O. in Broken Bow

Mrs. Myra Gardner who lives two blocks east of the postoffice in Broken Bow last week discovered the loss of two chickens which had apparently been killed and devoured by some animal. A few days later a neighbor saw a small animal in the chicken pen. It had just seized a rooster but she managed to scare it away. The neighbor informed her husband and he watched the pen for several hours. The gray animal returned "and was immediately killed, turning out to be a small coyote. Later investigation revealed that a pet coyote had escaped from a neighbor boy about three weeks ago. It had apparently returned to the neighborhood to feast on chicken dinners.

Ord Theatre Will Show Fight Pictures

Pictures of the Louis-Braddock championship prize fight will be shown for the first time in the Loup valley on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, July 8, 9, and 10 at the Ord Theatre. This exciting feature is to be shown in connection with the regular show and the admission price will be only ten and thirty cents. Manager Biemond is to be congratulated on securing such a fine feature at such an early date. The picture shows every detail of the contest.

Supervised Play Now Available for Kiddies

As part of Ord's summer recreation project which is being sponsored by the American Legion, supervised play periods for children from 5 to 16 years of age are being held each morning between 9 and 11. Children play at Bussell park on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, at the grade school playground on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

Richard Kennedy, of Hastings, sent here by the WPA to get these play periods started, also has made arrangements to have a city truck take the children to the park and return them to town. This truck leaves the Legion hall at 8:30 each morning.

Supervisors of the children include Martin Wiegardt, Bob Hughes, Mrs. Velma Kohl and Lulu Behrens. F. L. Stoddard is in general charge of the recreation project.

Fourteen children took part in the first play period held Tuesday and project heads hope 30 or 40 will take part hereafter. All mothers are invited to send their children to these classes and may feel confident that the kiddies are safe and having a good time.

Holding Tent Meetings Here.

Free Methodists are holding a tent meeting revival in Ord, their meetings starting Tuesday, July 6 in a big tent on No. 11 highway in the west part of town. Rev. D. W. Smith, of Ansley, and Rev. I. E. Booker, of Sargent, are the evangelists.

Corn Now Being Hurt By Drouth, Torrid Weather

Can Stand Only a Few Days More of Present Heat, Say Farmers, Experts.

Unless temperatures moderate or rain comes within a very few days, this part of Nebraska has little chance of producing a corn crop this summer, farmers and ag experts agree. Four days of temperatures above the 100 mark have taken a heavy toll from all growing crops, particularly from corn.

Questioned by the Quiz yesterday, County Agent C. C. Dale and J. A. Kovanda, local agriculture teacher, agreed that most fields can stand little more heat because subsoil moisture is lacking. So far, however, corn is little damaged, thinks Kovanda.

High temperatures for Ord were Sunday 101, Monday 103 and Tuesday 101, according to Horace Travis' government gauge. At North Loup and at Grand Island government readings of 110 were reported.

Some hope for moderation Thursday is held out by government weather observers and possibility of moisture this week end is reported good.

Small grain harvest is in full swing now and oats and barley will make a part crop everywhere. Some fields of wheat were good but most of it was so light and the fields so spotty that it wasn't worth harvesting.

The grasshopper situation right now is causing even more concern than the menace of another drouth. Although a second carload of poison bait has been received and is being used this week by farmers, "hoppers" seem to develop more rapidly than their ranks are decimated by the poison.

So far the insects have remained in small grain, alfalfa fields and pastures but now are moving in to corn fields. Continued hot, dry weather favors their development. A few days of wet, cool, cloudy weather would aid in getting them under control.

In Ord early this afternoon, Ben Hackett told the Quiz that at his farm "hoppers" are so thick they have eaten a field of alfalfa down to the ground. "But they won't touch redtops and other weeds," he says. Operating a tractor Mr. Hackett found that "hoppers" got on sparkplugs and into the radiator in such numbers they stopped the machine. All his neighbors' are infested with "hoppers" as badly as his own place is, Hackett says.

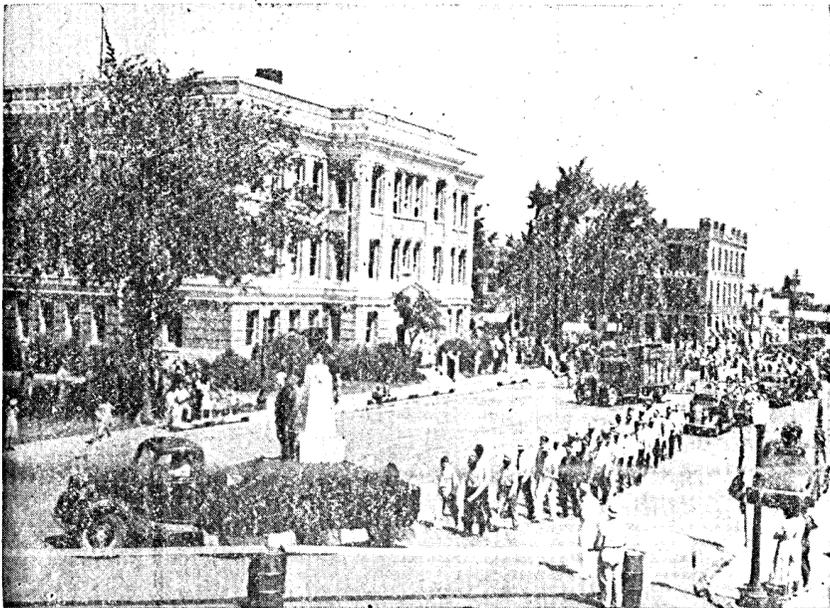

Over the radio at noon Wednesday came a report that grasshoppers which have been in eastern Colorado in such numbers are "on the wing" and headed for Kansas and Nebraska. They leave fields completely bare in Colorado, the report said. Grasshoppers are said to fly with the wind and unless a wind from the west springs up it is unlikely that these migratory hordes will come as far east as Valley county in any great numbers.

Moorhouse Retires After Fifty Years

John W. Moorhouse, freight and passenger agent of the Burlington at Hastings since 1919, rounded out a full fifty years of service for the road recently and turned over the keys to his successor, L. E. Downey of O'Neill, Wednesday evening of last week. He was looking forward to visiting his children in Missouri and Texas, but planned to continue his residence in Hastings.

Speaking of his long service Mr. Moorhouse said: "This is the last lap. I started railroading at Hubbard, Neb., in September, 1886. I was past 19 years old then and I have served as operator, cashier and agent at many places." The places he mentioned were Liberty, Superior, Dawson, Ruby, Preston, Tecumseh, Columbus, South Omaha, Sutton, Ord, York and Hastings. Mr. Moorhouse was agent at Ord for several years about 25 years ago.

March of Progress Parade Best Part of Celebration Monday

Almost a mile long and every part of it interesting was what visitors to Ord's 5th of July celebration said about the March of Progress parade, held about 10:30 Monday morning. In the parade were two bands, 20 decorated floats, many decorated cars and bicycles, various marching organizations and other things of interest. Here is seen the American Legion float, a group of Legion marchers and part of the long parade, with the court house in the background. Lavern Duemey took the picture on the east side of the square.

Scientist in Ord Seeking Gas, Oil: Writing For Quiz

Ray E. Colton, Noted Science Writer, Prepares Series About the Ord Area.

Ray E. Colton, a noted vertebrate paleontologist and science writer, is now in the Ord area engaged in seeking crude oil and natural gas structures together with fossil remains of prehistoric sea life which existed in this part of Nebraska over 200 million years ago. The Quiz has received from Mr. Colton a special series of articles dealing with important scientific finds made in Valley county, the first of which will be released for publication in next week's issue. In these articles, which will be of vast interest in view of the fact that they pertain exclusively to the Ord trading area, the writer will discuss various phases of geological findings, fossil remains, mineral possibilities and the advance of primitive races of mankind into the Loup river valley. The articles will be published exclusively in the Quiz.

Mr. Colton has explored the ruins of the Maya cities in Mexico, and for the past five years he has been engaged in the removal of fossil remains of prehistoric dinosaurs in all parts of the United States. He prepares articles for leading newspapers of the United States, and is well known in journalistic circles in Nebraska and elsewhere.

Kruml Will Name 3 to CCC Camps

Valley county has received a quota of three juniors for enrollment in the Citizens Civilian Corps which will take place July 13 according to a statement issued by Frank Kruml, selecting agent for Valley county.

Only three applications have been filed to date. The enrollment requirements have been changed recently and age enrollments between the ages of 17 and 23 are acceptable. Previous requirements permitted enrolling juniors up to 28 years of age. Valley county selections are to report for enrollment at Ravenna on July 13.

Here is shown the float entered in the parade by Auble Bros., which was said by judges to be the handsomest float entered. For their efforts in planning and decorating it, Glen and A. J. Auble were given a prize of $35.00.

Will Let Contracts For Laterals Friday

Directors of the North Loup project will hold a meeting Friday morning, open bids for the construction of laterals in the Ord-North Loup section of the big project, and let a contract to the lowest bidder. The work probably will cost $50,000 or more and a number of construction firms will have representatives here to bid on the job.

Work on all phases of the project is being rushed, every contractor having one or more gangs at work. Actively can be noted all along the line of the project from Taylor to North Loup, with hundreds of men and many machines working.

Swim Classes to Start.

Postponement of the start of swimming classes in Ord, scheduled for this week end, was made necessary when the instructor Miss Evelyn Sharp, did not get back from Colorado Springs early in the week as had been expected. Leroy Frazier, who has supervision of the plan for the Valley County Red Cross, says B. A. Eddy will assist Miss Sharp in the classes. They probably will get under way early next week.

—Mr. and Mrs. Frank Pesh and family were in Ord over the week end visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ignac Pesh and sister, Mrs. Alfred Bartunek and family. He is now manager of the Piggly-Wiggly store at Muston, Ill. His brother Henry is general manager of all stores in Illinois and Indiana.

Ord's Celebration Attracted Crowd Estimated at 5,000

Visitors Praised Parade, All Free Acts and the Rousing Welcome Given by City.

Ord's first celebration in fifteen years has gone into history, and it can be said to have made a little history itself. That a town the size of Ord could have gotten along without a celebration of the kind for a decade and a half is unusual, but the way the crowds came to attend, enjoy, and appreciate the 1937 celebration was a revelation to the few who said it could not be done.

The big attraction of the forenoon was the parade, which was really a grand spectacle, and much better than even the members of the committee hoped it would be. That one man, with very little assistance, and working under heart-breaking difficulties, could bring order out of chaos and put across an attraction of the kind is some feat, and to B. C. Boquet should go the credit of giving Ord one of the best parades ever seen here.

Among the many features of the huge mile-long parade should be mentioned the Burwell community band of sixty pieces, who held a place near the head of the parade; the Ord high school band of sixty pieces that discoursed music all along the line of march; the booster cars for both Nebraska's big rodeo and the Loup Valley fair and races; the American Legion, with its colors and color guard, its firing squad, its splendid float and its large delegation marching after.

Two dozen business men's floats added color and variety to the scene. A number of decorated cars from the irrigation office were in the parade, and a special float carried a very striking likeness of the father of the North Loup project, Bert M. Hardenbrook. The picture was the work of the local artist, Syd Furtak. The Ord Rotary club had a very fine float.

Enlivening the line of march were a dozen men with the huge heads, and these caused much enjoyment by their ridiculous antics. O. C. Winder on a splendid horse was in his element as marshal of the parade. In fact, to give a complete and detailed description of the many fine entries would take far more space than is available.

The prize winning floats were, first, Auble Bros. Jewelry. Second, Springer's Variety, and third, Will Misko's harness shop. Other winners of special prizes were Mr. and Mrs. Chris Peterson and their eight sons and two daughters from Grand Island, who won the prize for the largest family in the parade. Keen competition could have developed in the family coming the longest distance, but Carl Anderson admitted his defeat by F. J. Bell, who came about 20 miles farther. F. J. and family came all the way from Long Beach and got more applause from the spectators than any other feature in the parade.

After the parade picnic dinners, most of them at Bussell park, brought together family parties, neighborhood friends, and Legionnaires in the special place reserved for them. It is surprising how many people can and do appreciate the beauties of Bussell park on an occasion such as Monday. The shade made the place quite comfortable in spite of the unusual heat of the day.

The Ord band opened with a concert at one o'clock, followed by the Burwell band about an hour later. The athletic contests were put on in the football arena, the crowd being kept back of the lines so that all could see. This was the part of the program most keenly enjoyed by the younger people, as they had an opportunity to get into the contests and win prizes. These contests lasted until about 3:30.

At the same time the horse shoe pitching contest was pulled off near the park drive bridge. In this department no less than 23 persons contested, each pitching a total of fifty shoes and counting all points made. Henry Walkemeyer of Arcadia took first place with a score of 71. Clyde Baker was a close second, Orin Kellison third, and Billy Baum, Mel Rathbun and Charley Waite copped the remainder of the prizes.

Opening the afternoon program in the court house yard, the Burwell band furnished half an hour of music. Ed Kokes then introduced Joe Marlon as master of ceremonies of the afternoon stage program. Marlon is a master of his job, and kept the crowd in a good humor from the start. Every number was pleasing and called for rounds of applause. The various dancing acts, the acrobatic stunts, the Hawaiians, and last, but not least, the ventriloquist, all came in for a full share of approval.

FIREWORKS MUST GO.

Yes, fireworks must go, and so far as Ord is concerned, they have gone. Ninety percent of the citizens are glad this is so, but once in a while you will find one who still believes that it is the only way to celebrate the nation's birthday. If you know of such a person, for God's sake show him the press reports of the holocaust in Nampa, Ida., which at the start caused the death by fire of five innocent victims and the maiming and permanent injury of a score of others. A single life, especially of a child of twelve years, is worth more than all the fireworks exploded in the United States since we were a nation. Experience has proven to us that we can properly celebrate without endangering the lives of children, and most sensible communities have banned the practice that means so much death and injury. May the time soon come when the making of fireworks in the United States or their importation from foreign countries is made a penitentiary offense.

LESS NOISE AT CONCERTS.

The following is taken verbatim from the Ord Quiz of July 5, 1917. "If you have ever attended a concert, recital or musicale of any kind in a city of a size sufficient to support the larger and finer theaters, you could not have failed to be impressed with the entire freedom from any other sound besides the music being produced on the platform. If you have been so fortunate as to listen to one of the Lincoln or Omaha parks you surely noticed the ease with which all were able to hear the most delicate parts of the various compositions, due to the absence of unseemly racket in the audience.

"Why can not such a condition prevail in Ord? That it does not is evidenced by the racket, din or whatever you may wish to call it, that invariably accompanies each concert by the Ord band in the band stand weekly. People in Ord are certainly not noisier than in other towns, and we are loath to believe that they are less considerate of others, but the facts are that our concerts are marred very much in the opinion of many people by the unnecessary noise near the band stand.

"The reason for the difference in the absence or presence of the noise is clearly not the difference between the musical appreciation of Ord and larger towns, but such noises are held absolutely in abeyance in larger places by officers whose duty it is to see that perfect order is maintained at every concert. If any provision has been made for good order at the weekly concerts, the giving of which has been guaranteed by most of the business men and many others in Ord, and which are attended by hundreds of people who often come from considerable distances for no other purpose, let it be showing itself in results. If no such provision has been made, then it is high time something be done.

"There is no question about the popularity of the Ord band and its music. 'This is band concert night' is the happy declaration that goes up from many a heart on Wednesday night. There is always a throng on the streets on such evenings, many listeners being from the country, who go away benefited by the music. And our people not only pay taxes to support the band, but contribute liberally by private subscriptions. It is wrong, then, to have the occasion marred by hideous sounds. Let's stop the noises and listen to the music. The noises can have their way on other occasions."

The above, written twenty years ago by W. W. Haskell, one of the most gifted writers this valley has seen, is as true today as when it was written. Frankly, we could do with less noise during the band concerts. There is no finer appreciation of true harmony than profound silence. If the children could be taught to play less while the band is playing, they would appreciate the music more. And if the few who make the night hideous by blaring their auto horns at the close of each selection realized how it sounds, they would never be guilty of such a travesty of appreciation again.

My Own Column

By H. D. Leggett

Dear Quiz: This is Tuesday morning, a bit early to write this column, but conditions are such this morning that it seems the best time to do it. I usually find it hard work to get it done with just one wife bossing me around, but now with three grandchildren, one daughter and one daughter-in-law in addition to the aforesaid wife, to boss me, I just can't get much done and this morning all but the Missus have gone to Brainerd. I did up the morning chores including dressing fish for dinner, and what a mess of fish five bass, nine bluegills and one bullhead. The Missus says there is enough fish for a crew of harvest or threshing hands. I am betting, when those children and grandchildren get done with them, there won't be many left for Brownie, Ray's old dog, who is a regular boarder down here.

The folks got here at noon Monday. We didn't expect them until toward night, had gotten up at 5:30 a. m., did a big washing and were hungry, so had dinner at 11:30 and I was enjoying my pipe on the front porch when we heard a Plymouth horn in the back yard and a pattering of little feet and several small voices shouting Grandma, Grandpa. We hurried out in time to see them boil out of the car. And things have been lively since. Three live wire kids can sure stir things up around a summer resort place the same as they can around a home in town. And were we glad to have them with us. It got more lonesome each of the six weeks we were here before they came. At home we are used to having them with us some time every day, usually all of them; as a rule they with their parents are in for one or more meals each week. And to get six weeks without seeing any of them is a little too much. Well, they are here now and pretty soon Eugene and Hil will come up and the Missus and I will go back to Ord to take charge of things while the young folks finish their vacation. It will probably be hotter there than it is here, too. This morning it was real cool for a couple of hours so we needed a little fire in both stoves and the same last evening. It is delightful now and looks like it would be all day, as there is just enough breeze from the west to make it comfortable.

Mr. and Mrs. Denman of Kansas City, who have been visiting their nephew, Ross Lakin and family, will leave Friday for their home. Mr. Denman is a brother of Bert Denman of Grand Island, manager of the sugar company.

We are developing some youthful fishermen here who bid fair to outclass we old hasbeens. Yesterday morning Junior Lakin caught a 5-pound bass and this morning Bud Simpson, no doubt spurred on by Lakin's catch, got one that weighed the 5-pound mark awful close. And are the boys proud of their catch and well they may be. It may hustle their dads to equal their record when the season is over. Junior has been bringing in several bass each day. This afternoon they are going to go over to Hubert and try their luck on the small mouths that inhabit that lake.

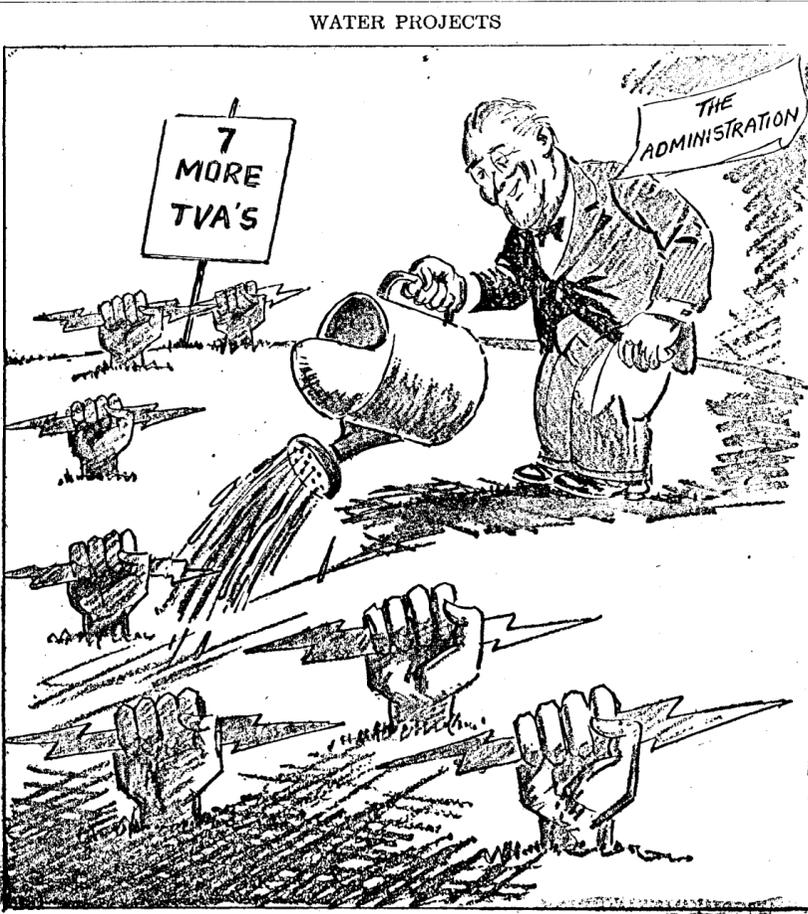

Byron Simpson has been specializing on walleyes in Gull Lake for some time and brought a 5-pound one last evening from there. He catches them on a fly rod. Ross Lakin is also a flyrod fisherman and got four walleyes in the upper lake last night fishing that way. Everyone is catching plenty of fish and they seem to be catching more of the larger fish as the season advances. As I am writing this a Gull bass came over to show me a Gull bass that he took on the stomach of the big bass that Bud caught this morning. He says, in addition to this bass there were several lesser sized fish in the stomach and what he wanted me to tell him, was why a bass, with its stomach packed with food, would strike a wooden plug. I couldn't tell the reason.

Dr. Gelow called this morning and we had a nice visit on the front porch and he agrees with some noted author who says that fishing is an ideal method of doing nothing. And that author was somewhat near right, still, I do find a good many chores to do, that take several hours of my time each day. The Dr. says the Augustines will arrive about the first to the fourth of July. Since starting this paragraph Mrs. Gelow dropped in for a few moments visit with the Missus and the girls.

Bresley Percherons Take Long Trip

T. T. Hanford and sons E. R. and Biff of Burlington, N. C., arrived in Ord Wednesday morning of last week, going out to the Harry Bresley place where they had made arrangements to purchase two Percheron colts. They had a small grandson with them, and also two colored boys, Ed and Scott, to do the work of looking after the colts. They loaded them into the trailer and left Wednesday noon for home. Mr. Hanford said that the home trip would be 1,600 miles, the latter part of it through the Blue Ridge mountains, and that they would pass over the highest point in the mountains on the route. The colts they took were Bette 226721 and Kon Kalix 226720, 7 and 11 months old.

Mrs. L. D. Richtmeyer had her mother, Mrs. Richard Hall and brother, John Hall for company Sunday and Monday.

CARE OF COUNTY BOARD

By George Gowen

Believe It Or Not, It's True.

Now here are a couple of incidents where I should tell the fellow's names, and then there are other incidences where I have found out after, it would have been better had I not told the name. The fact of the matter is I am getting tired of people hailing me on the street or over the phone and telling me what's what. So, for fear, I'll not tell the names, but it's true and Irvy Sheldon and Paul Jones will vouch for it and tell you who the fellows are.

But there came a fellow into Sheldon's and wanted to cash a check for $32.00. Obligingly, Paul proceeded to do it, counting out six five dollar bills and two ones and laying them on the cash box there.

"Count that over," Paul said and went on pumping gas.

So the man counted it over and when Paul came back he said that was right and went on about town and Paul went to work again.

Now Paul drives the truck usually and Irvy stays in the station so in a couple of days this man came back into the station and handed Sheldon a twenty dollar bill saying, "When I cashed the check here yesterday Nostle gave me this bill more than he should have."

Irvy could hardly believe it and when Nostle came back he asked him about it. "Ab, I didn't either," Nostle blurted. "We both counted the bills."

But the man insisted that the twenty dollar bill was in the pack when he got home and Nostle insisted it was impossible and he chewed the rag about it for a few minutes. Finally Irvy took it back from the man and they decided the twenty must have been stuck to the bottom of one of the others.

And then Irvy said of another man. He had been very poor and finally got on relief in the form of an old age pension. And then after a few months he came into the station and wanted to pay a bill he owed there of a dollar and a half or such, he couldn't quite remember.

"You don't owe me anything," Irvy said to him shortly looking in his book.

"But I do," the man insisted. Three years ago I got some coal oil and never had the money to pay for it."

"Well," Irvy exclaimed frankly, "If you got it that long ago you don't owe me a darned thing. A couple of years ago I tore all those accounts that I thought I never would get, out of the book and threw them away. Yours probably went with them."

The old man stammered a little but insisted on paying and so finally Irvy had to take his dollar and a half and put it in the drawer.

And both of these incidents happened in the day time and Socrates was not around with his lantern either.

A Matter of Thought.

While in Lincoln two weeks ago I ran on to a real purebred insurance man. He was one of these honest to gosh talkers that a person only sees (or hears) once in a decade. One of those fellows that gets real confidential, looking you straight in the eye, leaning forward, gasping for breath frequently and giving you the low down on rates and dividends. I tried to play safe and back off a little all the time but I finally ran into a fence, and the corner to boot. Well, all I can say is that I lived through it.

But he did say one thing that set me to thinking. It set me to thinking for so many of us are worrying that we may be presented with the same predicament. But he said he went broke once a few years ago. Flat broke. And he said he turned every cent he had toward paying his creditors. But he said he would not do that again. If he ever goes broke again, he said he would save back enough to start on the next time. The way it was he was down and out, with no money to keep his family or to get started with to pay his debts.

I am not saying he is right. It is just a matter that we might think of and discuss. We are probably all thinking of it a plenty.

Little Vignettes of Big Men. Fred Lindstrums, who live next door to Paul Jones had a baby girl arrive at their house one night last week. But Paul was the one that was worrying. He said, "If I find out that darned stork is flying around my place so close again I'm going to get down the old shotgun and take a crack at him. He might stop at my place."

And Roy Cox said the folks in this country are like a man sentenced to be hung and the governor gives him a reprieve every few days just in the nick of time. Now Roy was referring to the crops and rains, of course.

Will Cook, who sells more milk now to the cheese factory than any other man, his checks running from $150.00 to $200.00 a month, has been milking Holsteins for the last two years. He said, "The greatest mistake I ever made was when I moved my red cows here and tried to milk them. I wouldn't think of milking anything but a dairy breed any more than I would think of keeping Jerseys for beef."

Sunday afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Fred J. Bell, Mrs. Perry Bell and a son of Mrs. Grace Hamilton arrived by car from their homes at Long Beach, Calif. They came at this time instead of later in the summer in order to greet old friends back for Ord's celebration. After a visit here Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bell plan to visit in Iowa and South Dakota. Mrs. Perry Bell has gone to Wahoo to visit her parents but will return to Ord later.

A big new fashionable ballroom has been built about three miles from our cottage. Something Different

In Minnesota:

A nearly grownup wren baby sticks his head out a snug-fitting front door of the wren house and scolds his mother for not bringing more food to him oftener.

The robin family just outside the front door of the former Judge Clements cottage is now completely abolished. The red squirrels finished off the last of the baby birds and the nest is now abandoned.

Vernie Andersen and Vera, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Strombom and Mr. and Mrs. Freeman Haught had a delightful time on their northern trip, to hear the neighbors tell it. They fished, wined, dined, and did everything but sleep away the hours.

Near the close of their visit they decided to get weighed. Ruth wouldn't go near the scales, and the rest of them were appalled at the pounds they had acquired since coming to Minnesota.

They had been hungry for strawberry shortcake, and had bought a sponge cake to use as a basis for the shortcake. In their hurry to run back into the store and get weighed, the shortcake was left for a moment on the running board of the car.

When the party began to holler about gaining so much, they came out, excitedly jumped into the car and forgot the shortcake, started to drive off. They drove over the shortcake in its sack.

"I suppose that was the end of the shortcake then," said Mrs. H. D. L., to whom Vernie was telling the tale.

"Oh, no," drawled Vernie in his best manner. "We ate it, it was good!"

Vernie and Vera were hailed by a CCC boy driving a truck as they passed him one day. He was from North Loup, but neither of them could remember his name. He was delighted to see a face from home.

Gelows from Grand Island are very much in camp, with Grandpa doing his usual woodchopping. He is 93... and Dr. and Clara chasing the fish around, soaking up the lovely Minnesota temperature and ozone.

Augustine's from Grand Island are due in a few days now, will spend the Fourth here. They will be minus two important members of their family. The oldest son and oldest daughter, Webb and Mercedes, each of them, won a scholarship which meant a trip to Europe. And oddly, the trips are unrelated, the brother and sister are making separate and different trips to the Old Country.

But Mercedes and Webb will return in time to spend some of August in their Minnesota home. Mr. Augustine, a publisher and printer of Grand Island, owns the lovely cottage once occupied by Frank Goss and his family of Albion.

States' Experience in Minimum Wage Laws Guides Congress

BY SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT

WASHINGTON.—Problems of administering the Black-Connelly bill, if it is passed, will be somewhat simplified because the federal government can draw on the experience of eight states which already have working minimum wage laws of their own.

The federal wage and hour bill is similar to the New York law, and was in fact written by Ben Cohen, self effacing New Deal brain trust, who drafted the New York law. The New York law applies only to women and minors but the federal bill embraces both men and women.

A limited number of wage earners will be affected by the Black-Connelly bill, if it becomes law. It is estimated there are about 3,000,000 persons in the industries to be covered who are earning less than 40 cents an hour, and there are about 6,000,000 persons who are working more than 40 hours a week.

There will be no minimum wage regulation to protect the man whose income is more than $1200 a year, and local service industries and small businesses will be left to the states to regulate.

Mrs. Elinore M. Herrick, New York regional director of the National Labor Relations Board, thinks the yardstick for wages which will be used by the federal board will be those wages which a majority in any specified industry would and could support voluntarily.

Labor laws such as that proposed by Black and Connelly are designed to control a sub-standard minority, and eliminate sub-standard practices.

This enables those employers who voluntarily subscribe to decent wage standards to maintain and improve those standards. Mrs. Herrick explained that it has been the experience of the New York board that it cannot set a wage higher than the wage in effect in the upper quarter of a given industry.

It is the rule in New York state for all interested parties in wage disputes to be given an opportunity to express their views in hearings.

THE New York board rarely has found it necessary to chastise an employer with the full penalties of $500 fine and/or imprisonment, or both.

Mrs. Herrick testified before the Black-Connelly Committee: "For years we have had a system of departmental hearings where a persistent violator is called in, and his whole record is gone over with him. He is reasoned with, warned and then advised to go and sin no more. It is only if he again appears as an incorrigible that the full penalties are invoked. This procedure has worked so well in New York that it has been found necessary to prosecute but very few."

As an example of what the New York board considers just cause for prosecution, Mrs. Herrick recalled the case of Joe Tipaldo, a laundryman, who figured in the historic New York minimum wage case which was appealed to the Supreme Court.

Evidence against Tipaldo was that he "falsified his books, forced the girls to kickback their pay, and finally forged signatures to pay checks so they would look regular to the inspector."

There has been opposition to the creation of a federal wage and hours board on the ground that it would exercise autocratic power. Mrs. Herrick's answer to that is that in her experience the National Labor Relations Board as a parent body has exercised a restraining influence on field agents and made them prove their cases before allowing them to proceed against any employer.

Restraint is imposed on the board itself by the necessity of making reports to Congress from which it draws its life blood in appropriations.

La Goyal's snooty $2 dancing charge of last season has come down, and now they are removing the cover charge for week nights.

H. D. Leggett is the Spartan among the bathing beauties. He tromps out into the front yard each day shortly after noon, soaks, swims, cools down in the water which is a br-r-r temperature. Shirley is a close second for bravery, splashes about with her grandfather, Kerry and Coralee wade and splash in the shallow water at shore for hours, happy with mud pie construction. The rest of us, just sissies, sun bathe on the dock, perhaps risk getting wet to the knees.

Ross Lakin seems to spend most of his time hunting fish, but the very blonde Mrs. Lakin herds her boys into the water "most every day. I don't believe she hollers when she climbs into the water, but the children do.....like most of the rest of the visitors. The water feels warm, but the air feels cold, and there is considerable hollering.

A Leader Is Provided by God

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for July 11. Text: Exodus 3:1-12.

WE have studied the story of Joseph and the descent of the children of Israel into bondage in Egypt. We now come to the equally inspiring story of Moses, the great type of the leader and of the deliverer.

The story of Joseph began in personal tragedy as Joseph was sold by his brethren and suffered persecution and imprisonment in Egypt. Here the story begins in the tragedy of a people, cast down from their former prosperity in the bitterness of cruel tasks, and suffering from tyrannous masters, yet helpless and almost in despair because there is no way of deliverance.

NOW suddenly a leader and deliverer appears, a man who, like Joseph, has had the opportunity of power and preferment, but in whom loyalty to his people and to their great traditions means more than any success or power he may achieve for himself.

Moses had been born in this condition of bondage at the very time when Pharaoh, in fear of the increasing numbers of the Jews, had taken the ruthless course of destroying their babes. The love of the mother of Moses for her babe had led her to set him afloat in the little ark of bulrushes, in the hope that though she would lose him, he might escape destruction.

Pharaoh's daughter had found the babe and taken him into the palace, and as it turned out, the babe's own mother had become his nurse. It was no wonder that Moses had become so instilled with the sense of unity with the people, that when he became older he refused to be called the son of Pharaoh's daughter, and chose rather to cast in his lot with his own people, and to share their afflictions.

HE was a man of intensity and a man of action, aroused by sympathy for his people. When

Walter Desch, writing from Nampa, Idaho under date of July 2, tells of the terrible disaster that hit the city when the fireworks display exploded. Lack of space makes it necessary to leave out part of the letter, which is very interesting. He enclosed clippings from the Nampa papers telling the story in detail. It appears that the victims were trapped in the beauty parlor upstairs and had the choice of being burned to death or of jumping to the araway in the rear and getting their legs broken. Five were killed almost at once, all by burning, and two more of the 14 injured were expected to die. The little Pavak girl was a granddaughter of the Desch's housekeeper, Mrs. Novak.

A TRUE FISH STORY. The Phillips Petroleum Company through their Omaha office sends out the following flash. We quote below a letter received from our good friend Mr. W. A. Anderson, who is dealer at Service Station No. 2459, Ord, Nebraska.

"Am sorry that my monthly report is so late, but have a good excuse for same. I was fishing in Minnesota and we planned on coming home Friday, the 25, starting at noon. In the morning we went out fishing at 10:30 a. m. I hooked one of those large fish they have up there and he started to drag our boat around the lake. Around and around we went. He dragged us so fast and etc., that we soon became dizzy and laid down in the bottom of the boat. He traveled so fast that we were unable to see what time it was. Oh, it was terrible—the speed we traveled. We threw out the anchor, couldn't stop him. . . . We tied our tackle boxes, pocket knives, thermos bottles and other bottles on the anchor, but could not stop him. We stayed in the boat for two days and two nights with that fish hooked onto our boat. No food, no water, and on the third night my wife fell overboard and with her weight skidded so much going around the corners that it threw the boat up in the top of one of those tall pine trees and it took us all the next day to climb down—No, we didn't land the fish."

Fireman's Dog Ready to Go!

This matter of being ready when the alarm comes in carries right on down to the fireman's dog. It does at least with York, the dog, a Dalmatian mascot of an Atlanta, Ga., fire station. Attired in boots and cap, York looks good for the worst kind of fire as she awaits the signal.

The first feature of the evening program was the stunt flying by Jack Jefford in his Waco "D" airplane, the only one of its kind on the North American continent. This is without doubt the most remarkable plane ever to exhibit before an Ord crowd, and with its 235 horse power motor showed climbing powers almost beyond belief. The evening was ideal for the exhibition, which met with the highest approval.

For the evening part of the musical program the Ord band played a half hour of special numbers, after which the Ord and Burwell bands combined to make the largest single band ever to play in Ord. This was one of the high lights of a program that left nothing to be desired, and one man who came 75 miles was heard to remark that this one feature more than paid him for the trip. The platform show of the evening was along the same lines as that of the afternoon, but with new acts, and many more of them. This feature lasted a full half hour longer than advertised, but the crowd did not tire, and met each new thrill with loud applause. Closing the long day was the pavement dance on the north side of the square, with "Little Gene" and his 9-piece orchestra furnishing the music.

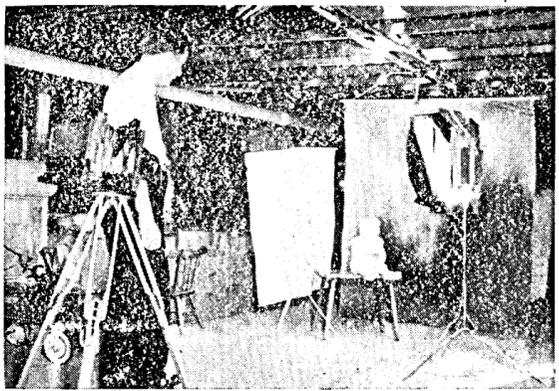

A number of concessions were on hand for the day, including a power swing set up on the east side of the square, McGrew's skating rink on the lots south of the Bohemian Hall, a shooting gallery, and several other smaller attractions. The new benches furnished by the business firms of Ord were placed around the court house yard early in the morning, and saw much use during the day.

A survey of the cars parked at the park during the afternoon showed that there were cars there from 23 different counties, and from 8 different states. Exclusive of Valley, Garfield showed the largest number, with 63 cars parked at one time. Greeley county was next with 18, and Custer third with 13. The attendance from a distance was a surprise to the members of the committee.

Gould Flagg, as Mayor of Ord and chairman of the committee, believes that a word of appreciation should be given to all who contributed so liberally of their time and funds to make the celebration a success. To the visitors as well should be given a word of thanks, not only for their attendance, but also for their fine conduct while here. It was a crowd of which any town should be proud.

Fireman's Dog Ready to Go!

This matter of being ready when the alarm comes in carries right on down to the fireman's dog. It does at least with York, thoroughbred Dalmatian mascot of an Atlanta, Ga., fire station. Attired in boots and cap, York looks good for the worst kind of fire as she awaits the signal.

The first feature of the evening program was the stunt flying by Jack Jefford in his Waco "D" airplane, the only one of its kind on the North American continent. This is without doubt the most remarkable plane ever to exhibit before an Ord crowd, and with its 235 horse power motor showed climbing powers almost beyond belief. The evening was ideal for the exhibition, which met with the highest approval.

For the evening part of the musical program the Ord band played a half hour of special numbers, after which the Ord and Burwell bands combined to make the largest single band ever to play in Ord. This was one of the high lights of a program that left nothing to be desired, and one man who came 75 miles was heard to remark that this one feature more than paid him for the trip.

The platform show of the evening was along the same lines as that of the afternoon, but with new acts, and many more of them. This feature lasted a full half hour longer than advertised, but the crowd did not tire, and met each new thrill with loud applause. Closing the long day was the pavement dance on the north side of the square, with "Little Gene" and his 9-piece orchestra furnishing the music.

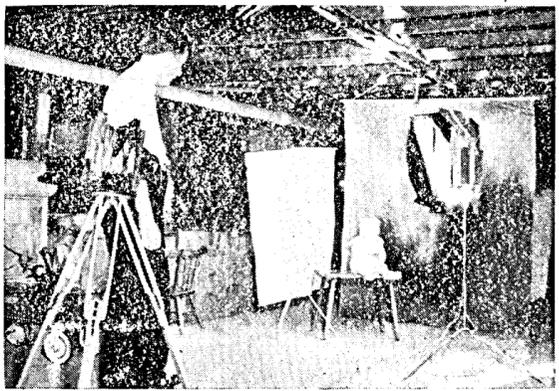

A number of concessions were on hand for the day, including a power swing set up on the east side of the square, McGrew's skating rink on the lots south of the Bohemian Hall, a shooting gallery, and several other smaller attractions. The new benches furnished by the business firms of Ord were placed around the court house yard early in the morning, and saw much use during the day.

A survey of the cars parked at the park during the afternoon showed that there were cars there from 23 different counties, and from 8 different states. Exclusive of Valley, Garfield showed the largest number, with 63 cars parked at one time. Greeley county was next with 18, and Custer third with 13. The attendance from a distance was a surprise to the members of the committee.

Gould Flagg, as Mayor of Ord and chairman of the committee, believes that a word of appreciation should be given to all who contributed so liberally of their time and funds to make the celebration a success. To the visitors as well should be given a word of thanks, not only for their attendance, but also for their fine conduct while here. It was a crowd of which any town should be proud.

News from the State Capitol

BY FRED J. MINDER.

Nebraska officially entered another biennium.

On July 1 the $38,000,000 budget of the last two years was closed and the state was starting on a new one of more than $54,000,000 for the next two years—including taxes, fees, licenses and federal money.

Out of office as member of the board of control went Walter Hager of Alliance having completed his six-year term. Into his place stepped Mrs. Maud E. Nuquist of Osceola, one-time opponent of Governor Cochran for nomination, later appointed by him to the child welfare board and more recently named by him to the six-year post of control board member at a salary of $4,000 annually.

Employees of the board tendered Hager a watch which Hager declined to accept. He said that he had had no time to make plans for the future.

Meanwhile a condition that may develop into a major split between the state and federal governments over power to appoint has developed over directorship of the state employment service.

R. F. Vogeler of Lincoln, as service director was to be placed July 1 by Harry Bane of Omaha. Bane's appointment, announced by the governor and confirmed by the senate just two hours before the body adjourned, apparently has not been recognized by Washington from whence comes half the money to operate the employment service in the state.

Lack of approval by July 1 by the federal government of the departmental budget was indicated by Cochran as the reason Bane does not sit in the director's chair.

V. B. Kinnery, labor commissioner, aped to Washington with the budget to get its approval which the governor said would be readily forthcoming, and to secure thereby, the removal of Vogeler and the setup for Bane. Bane was assistant to N. C. Vandemoer, state assistance director.

The legislature appropriated $70,000 for a state employment service to be matched by the federal government for the new biennium and two years ago an agreement was signed in which the state was to comply with certain requirements of the governmental department before the latter would match state funds.

Altogether, when the new biennium rolled around, nine persons lost their jobs at the statehouse, not including one janitor, released by the land commissioner. The janitor, third to go in three weeks, is jobless, with a wife and a new baby, he told the press.

Generally, however, the entrance into another biennium made but little difference on the surface of things around the statehouse. Minor adjustments were in order but the major factor was that either more or less money was on hand to be spent now that the new source was tappable.

Death from heart disease at the age of 73 took Francis Singleton Howell, former justice of the Nebraska supreme court, at his Omaha home. He was one of Omaha's prominent attorneys. Serving at one time as a special attorney general under Norris Brown, Mr. Howell's work in an injunction suit against the Nebraska Grain Dealers association resulted in dissolution of that organization. Mr. Howell practiced law at North Loup, Ord, Albion, Blair and Omaha.

Significance over the fact a political scramble in the state sheriff's office may be in the making was noted when political-wise realized that Governor Cochran has not yet officially re-appointed William F. Flake, erstwhile Kearney county sheriff, to the state sheriff's post. Say some Flake is on the way out to make room for a new state law enforcement leader, and as a result political factions over much of the state are grooming their best timber for the post.

The state sheriff's office underwent a distinct change July 1. The force was materially reduced because of the abandonment of the traffic control department, the work of which will be taken over September 1 by the new highway patrol.

The state sheriff's office went on a greatly reduced appropriation for criminal investigation work only. The appropriation last biennium was $100,000; this biennium it is $35,000. Flake said his staff would be reduced from 16 to 5 members and himself.

Omaha relief authorities doubted William Cline was 67 years old, when he announced the birth of a new baby in his family. So Cline brought his 105-year-old mother, Mrs. Lucinda Cline from Wisner, Nebr., to prove his age.

Membership in one of the several truckers' associations is not necessary when the state railway commission acts upon applications for permits and certificates under the new state truck law, a commissioner said. Some truckers had reported they learned a membership in an association was grounds for preference. Under terms of the new law, the commission is empowered to prescribe routes and regulate truck rates to commercial motor carriers.

No official action has been taken by railroad or civil authorities following the finding, on the Missouri Pacific tracks near Auburn, of 26 sticks of dynamite. Discovery was made by Angelo Gobbin, 43, Auburn PWA worker and part time wrestler fifteen minutes before one of the railroad's crack Kansas City Omaha trains was due.

Congressman Blinderup of Minden plans to go to Sweden and Denmark for a visit when congress adjourns. He expects to study banking and currency systems in these countries.

Of the 53,995 youths and war veterans to be enrolled in the CCC of the nation this month, Nebraskas allotment was fixed at 475 youths and 23 veterans, Washington sources announced.

The valuation of railroad property in Nebraska for the 1937 assessment has been fixed at $159,511,011 compared with $148,286,096 in 1936, or an increase of about seven and one half per cent. The state board of equalization in setting the valuation said the increase was due to the increased value of the stocks and bonds of the railroads which has been a vital factor in fixing their valuation in the past nine years.

Before the board at a hearing several weeks ago representatives of all railroads sought a reduction in their assessments, or at least no increase, contending that the volume of business had not increased in proportion to the valuation of their securities. Objection was also voiced to the method of determining valuations. Representatives of the roads will have another chance before the value-fixing board on July 19 when final equalization of all classes of property is completed.

The Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Roads valuation for 1937 was fixed at $69,949,482 compared with $64,939,376 in 1936.

The Union Pacific & St. Joe and G. I. valuation for 1937 of $67,277,644 compares with $62,675,560 for 1936.

Chicago & Northwestern 1937 valuation of $11,021,777. In 1936 it was $10,382,436.

The C. St. P. M. & O.'s above the $2,450,535 in 1937 is above the $2,450,535 of 1936.

The Rock Islands 1937 figure was set at $3,132,729. In 1936 it was $2,946,334.

The Missouri Pacific's 1937 valuation is set at $2,804,397. In 1936 it was $2,394,350.

First to toss his hat in the ring for a state elective office is Senator W. F. Haycock of Callaway, who last week announced he is a candidate for the democratic nomination for state railway commissioner. Commissioner Bollen's term expires in 1939 and it is that post Haycock seeks. Haycock is a state senator.

With some six thousand applications for 35 jobs to be dispensed, Chief R. P. Weller of the new Nebraska safety patrol which goes into action in September has announced basic requirements patrolmen must meet to be eligible.

Applicants, he outlined, must be between 25 and 40 years old, able to pass a rigid physical examination and be citizens of the United States and residents of Nebraska. Members will be recruited by competitive examinations on a merit basis with preference given to applicants having high school educations. Men must not be shorter than 5 foot 10 inches. New application blanks are being mailed to men and interviews will be granted by invitation only.

Said Weller: "It is obvious that many good men will be among those rejected. Applicants can rest assured, however, that the department will endeavor to select the best men as judged by a single standard—their ability to be successful highway patrolmen."

Governors of three states, Nebraska, Wyoming and Colorado will be on hand at Grand Island July 16 to attend the Oregon Trail Days celebration. A re-enactment of a stagecoach holdup will be a show feature.

HAVE YOU ANY BEAR MEAT, MISTER SLATTMAN?

Dr. and Mrs. Vallier moved from Ord to Grand Island.

Miss Mable Gudmundsen went to Denver, where she was selected as assistant to a blind editor of a publication there.

The Quiz published an article which said that the trouble with the country was that too many farmers were going to the cities.

Coza Dell Haskell was to return from Boston, where she had been teaching for two years without a vacation.

For driving their horses fast enough to pass up several autos along the road, Charles Hather and Glenn Carson were each fined $3.00 and costs in police court. Wonder if they could do it now?

W. E. Gowen, proprietor of the Arlington hotel at North Loup, announced that it would soon be closed, as he planned to make an extensive trip through the west.

Henry Hoffman of Round Park was trying the Campbell system of dry farming, apparently with good results.

An announcement of a M. W. A. meeting was signed by W. A. Anderson, V. C. and R. M. Hayslip, clerk. Mr. Hayslip is still alive at Ansley, Nebr.

John Meese was one of the farmers who was working a great deal of land with very little hired help, and he was doing a good job of it.

T. O. Barker, for whom the Barker neighborhood southwest of North Loup was named passed away.

N. G. Clement of Mira Valley got the appointment to supervise the building of several buildings at the National Soldiers home in Washington, D. C.

The farmers over in the Round Park neighborhood were building dams to conserve the moisture. Yes, history repeats itself.

The Red Cross took a half page of advertising in the Quiz.

Fred Bell brought up a new Buick from Omaha, leaving there in the morning and arriving in Ord the same evening.

The merits of popcorn as a breakfast food were enlarged upon in a special article in the Quiz. It must be remembered that it was a time of substitutes for white bread, etc.

25 Years Ago This Week. The celebrated Morrow airplane, the one built by Everett Morrow of Burwell, failed to fly, but through no fault of the builder. Either the expert hired to fly was afraid to raise it off the ground or he did not want it to fly. The fact is that the same plane did fly later, which indicates that it could have flown then had the aviator desired to fly it.

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Petty were in Ord for a few days visit. He was in the insurance business, and planned to go to Chicago to open up an office there.

A. V. Cronk of Burwell invented an electric fly exterminator which was intended to shock the flies who came to eat the bait. It apparently did not work, as it never came into general use.

C. W. Noll came close to a violent death when a bolt of lightning struck in the midst of a drove of cattle he was driving, knocking Mr. Noll and the cattle to the ground and killing two of them. He is still doing a good job of driving cattle.

Bill Garnick Tells of Pacific Voyage

William C. Garnick, who was fortunate enough to be chosen as orderly for an officer on a Pacific excursion on the steamship Mariposa March 2 to April 9 of this year had a very wonderful experience. The Quiz heard of this, and Bill promised to give a detailed account of the trip. He did almost as he agreed, furnishing several pictures he took while on the trip, two of which are used as illustrations, and a large bound volume of the copies of a paper called the Polynesian, which was printed on shipboard each day of the voyage. It is evident that a large number of these trips have been made, as this copy is volume 32.

The volume is neatly bound in heavy paper, and has his name "William C. Garnick" on the front in raised letters of gold. It contains this explanatory note: "A newspaper issued daily aboard passenger ships of the Matson Navigation Company and the Oceanic Steamship Company." Of special interest is that each day of the voyage radio news is published from all points of the globe, thus keeping the voyagers fully as up-to-date as we on land.

The first copy of the paper was issued March 5, at sea, San Francisco to Honolulu. The program of events for that day included horse racing, fire and boat drill, tea

Hiked 8000 Miles to Scout Meet

Pair of real adventurers were Scouts Juan Carmona, left, and Rafael Petit of Caracas, Venezuela, who hiked 8000 miles from South America to attend the international Boy Scout jamboree in Washington. Shown as they arrived in the capital city, the scouts reported they had been captured by roving bandits in Honduras and later had been arrested by Honduran officials, until their credentials were verified by Venezuelan authorities.

Garnick and some native Fiji Islanders.

The best part of the trip, the part that took place on land, is not given in the paper, and Bill did not get around to tell about it. However, it is understood that he had plenty of time to see all the main points of interest at all the ports. He says that the officer by whom he was employed always planned it so that Bill could get plenty of time ashore, and he took full advantage of the opportunity.

From Pago Pago the next port is Suva, in the Fiji Islands, and here is to be found a mixture of many races. In addition to the native Fijians there are Solomon Islanders, Gilbert Islanders, Tahitians, Tongans, and mingling with these are urbaned Hindus from the plantations, Europeans and Americans. The welcome at Suva was the most colorful of the entire trip with representatives of so many different races and nations on the wharf at once.

From Pago Pago the direction is nearly straight south to New Zealand, the country with a fauna different from that of any country on earth. Shut off from other parts of the world ages ago, the animals that live and flourish there are peculiar to that land alone, and some of them cannot live when taken elsewhere. One of these is the koala bear, a little animal that makes an ideal pet, but which is not for sale. It lives on the shoots of a certain kind of eucalyptus tree and cannot live where it does not grow.

The ship arrived at Sydney, Australia, March 22, and the passengers enjoyed several hours ashore. From there they sailed down along to Melbourne, one of the oldest and most famous cities in that part of the world. It represented the end of the voyage, as from that point the ship retraced its itinerary to Sydney, Auckland, Suva, Pago Pago and Honolulu, and a description of the return voyage would be principally a repetition.

All the issues of the paper after leaving Honolulu for home are filled with descriptive articles of the places of interest in western America, for the benefit of passengers coming from Australia to the United States. It is hard to write an interesting story of the trip from the papers he furnished, but if there is any feature you would like to have explained more fully, we are certain that Bill will be only too glad to tell you all about it.

Sidelights On The Ord Celebration

—C. J. Mortensen and Ed Vogel-tanz had quite a time training for the fat man's race at the park, but when the time for action came, neither of them showed up.

—When the committee offered a five dollar prize for the family coming the greatest distance they had no idea Carl Anderson would try to cop the prize or that Fred Bell would beat him to it. He had to travel about 1,650 miles to win the prize, but Fred says he wanted to come anyway.

—Bert Boquet should have full credit for the band stand he made out of the old threshing machine. He did his part, and is in no way to blame because the band failed to show up to fill it. Ernie Foster and the fine sorrel team looked mighty fine.

—F. C. Williams made the remark that Misko made fine harness, but it took fancy horses to show them off to good advantage. Whereupon some goof remarked that the same might be said of certain pieces of wearing apparel.

—Auble's 30 year old car made it all the way around with the parade under its own power, and added a needed touch of color.

—An addition to the stage show worthy of special comment was the exhibition by the Miller troupe of fancy ropers. They have only been training for about two years, but they certainly know the ropes.

—Chalk one up for the crowd Monday. Everybody had a good time, but there was not a single arrest for any law infraction. It speaks well for the people, and is a commendation for Ord's enforcement officers as well.

—The racing car from Ravenna made a hit with the crowd, who had no idea anything of the kind was available for the parade. But Clyde Baker had an idea, and it went over big.

—That man W. R. Waite can certainly tootle a mean toot on a flute, and his drummer friends knew their stuff too. We can do with a little more of the spirit of 1776.

—The kids on their decorated bicycles made a very colorful sight, and are always popular with the crowd.

—Mr. and Mrs. Ross Lakin and children have been up to Cullen Lake for the past ten days. Wednesday noon Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Wiegardt and children and Lavern Lakin left for the same destination.

Tense picture was that along the steel front in seven states when workers in four of the nation's largest plants, Republic, Youngstown Sheet & Tube, Bethlehem and Inland struck, after managements had refused to negotiate signed contracts granting the C. Stoddard Quitting, Ord's Recreation Project Ends Today

American Legion Decides To Withdraw Sponsorship; 50 Have Been Enrolled.

Decision of Fred Stoddard to resign as head of Ord's recreation project because he will take summer courses at university is given by American Legion officials as their principal reason for abandoning the summer project today. The project has been in effect four weeks and about fifty were taking part in it.

The Legion has been sponsoring the project since it began. "Some other local organizations that agreed to assist failed to come through, which is another reason we decided to withdraw as sponsors," said Cecil Clark, Legion post commander, Tuesday.

No qualified supervisor could be secured locally after Mr. Stoddard's resignation and WPA funds allotted to the project were not sufficient to allow bringing in a trained supervisor from outside.

Mrs. Gladys Walklin, of Grand Island, district recreation supervisor for the WPA, was in Ord yesterday conferring with American Legion heads and endorsed their decision to let the project drop.

Affected will be crafts and arts classes which have been in progress daily at the Legion hall and also supervised play periods for children which have been held daily at Russell park or at the south school playground.

Swimming classes which are to start in Ord Thursday are not affected by abandonment of recreation activity, as they are sponsored by the Red Cross.

Four Ord Young Men At Fort Crook Camp

Dr. F. L. Blessing, local representative of the Military Training Camps Association, tells the Quiz that four Ord young men, Dale Hughes, Arden Clark, William Goff and Junior James, are now at the camp at Ft. Crook. The camp opened July 2, and will continue for a period of thirty days. All local representatives will be informed each week as to what is being done and what progress is being made. The camp at Ft. Crook is for representatives from all the Nebraska counties and also from 17 counties in western Iowa. The young men are furnished uniforms, food, lodging, and medical and dental attendance while in camp, as well as transportation and travel allowance to and from camp. In a letter to Dr. Blessing Hughes states that they are getting all that the government promised them, plus plenty of hikes and work of various kinds. It gives them an appetite for meats and makes them tired enough to sleep.

Desch, Blessing Return From Trip

Sunday noon Walt Desch and Clarence Blessing got back from their two weeks trip to the west, feeling much enthused over the country they had seen and the apparent prospects for a bumper crop. They spent most of their time at Nampa, Ida., where a number of former Ord people live, but also found time to go on into Oregon, where they visited Dan Bartlett at Ontario, and made a sight seeing trip to other places of interest. In Idaho they visited the celebrated Arrowrock dam east of Boise.

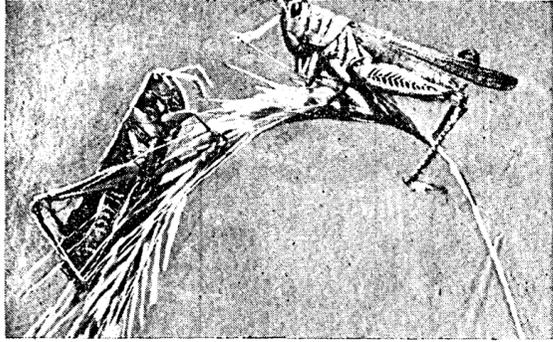

They were in Nampa at the time of the tragic accident that caused the death of five people in a fireworks holocaust, including Ardyce Pavak, the 12 year old daughter of Lester Pavak. Desch, Frank Gifford, Emmett Collins and Dow Harris, all former Ordites, were called into service as pall bearers. Gifford made the trip out to Idaho with the Woolery's and is now located at Soda Springs. Dow Harris is manager of the Nampa Credit Bureau. Collins is retired, but is associated with Lester Pavak in the management of a 40 acre farm. The apple crop there is simply wonderful, the men declare.

In Police Court.

G. A. Smith entered a plea of guilty to a speeding charge Tuesday in Judge John L. Andersen's court, and was fined $5.00 and costs of $4.50, which he paid. The same afternoon J. M. Jack entered a plea of guilty to a speeding charge and received a like fine and costs, all of which he paid.

—Mrs. Susie Odenski from Alliance and her daughter, Mrs. Vernie Richmond from Chicago visited their sister-in-law and aunt, Mrs. Sophie Sydzik and family last Thursday. They were accompanied by her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John Jolkonski and Mrs. Mike Kaminski from Arcadia.

'Hoppers Being Attached by Parasitic Fly

Perched two or three to a weed or stalk of grain all over central Nebraska, their numbers estimated in the billions, you'd think grasshoppers would be safe from everything except a stray bird or fowl, or perhaps from eating poison spread by farmers. But grasshoppers have their natural enemies also, one of them being a parasitic fly which has made its appearance in Valley county. The Quiz picture above shows the grasshoppers, not the flies.

Henry Enger is the first to report finding this parasitic fly. On one hopper he noticed a tiny fly, about the size of a flea, fastened firmly beneath each of the grasshopper's wings. Consulted by the Quiz, Agricultural Agent Dale says such flies lay eggs under the skin of the grasshopper, these eggs hatch into tiny maggots and the maggots feed in the body of the grasshopper, killing it eventually.

Dale doesn't hold out much hope that such parasitic flies are present here in sufficient numbers to have much effect on the grasshopper crop this summer. Spreading poison bait should continue, he believes. Moisture, if it continues to come, will keep grass and weeds alive and since 'hoppers prefer them to field crops this is the best hope of keeping them out of corn.

Premium List Will Be Published by 3 Papers Next Week

Save Your Copy, Is Advice of Secretary Roe; Fine Free Acts Employed.

The premium list for the Valley county fair will be published next week in three newspapers, the Quiz, Arcadian and Loyalist, and about 300 extra copies will be printed for the fair association. "Save next week's issue of your newspaper so you will have the list to refer to at fair time," is Secretary Roe's advice.

Department superintendents have been working hard the past two weeks getting lined up on what premiums will be paid. All premiums customary will again be paid and the total amount of premiums will be slightly higher than last year.

Funeral Today For Mrs. Hunt

Helen Fanny Cole, eldest daughter of Ezra M. and Louise Cole, was born at New Oregon, Ia., May 22, 1867, and grew to young womanhood on a farm near Cresco, Iowa. On Dec. 14, 1895, she was united in marriage to William H. Hunt, and came to live on a farm in the Vinton community. Mr. Hunt died May 24, 1919 and Mrs. Hunt continued to live on the farm until 12 years ago, when she moved to Ord, making her home here until her death, which occurred July 1, 1937, at the Ord hospital at the age of 70 years, 1 month and 19 days.

Two children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Hunt, the eldest, Eugene Ezra, dying in infancy, and Lloyd C. of Ord, who survives. Also left to mourn are three sisters, Mrs. Bertha Mason of Ord, Miss Elizabeth Cole and Mrs. Fanny Fuller, both of Cresco, Iowa, and one brother, Edward Cole of Cresco; two nephews, Raymond G. and Charles R. Hunt of Ord, and one grandchild, Harold Hunt; also a number of nieces and nephews and a host of friends.

At the time of her death she was a member of the Ladies of the G. A. R. and took a great interest in the affairs of the circle. She was also a member of the Rebekah lodge. Mrs. Hunt joined the Vinton Methodist church March 12, 1899, J. F. Webster being the pastor at the time, and was a firm believer in God and His teachings until her death. Funeral services are being held this Wednesday afternoon at 2:30, from the Ord Methodist church, the pastor, Rev. Merle C. Smith having charge of the services.

Will Speak in Ord.

Capt. Nussbaum, a proponent of the Townsend plan will speak in Ord Saturday evening, July 17, from the court house steps. It is possible arrangements will be made to have him speak in Arcadia in the afternoon, but whether he will is not known at this time. If definite arrangements are made before Wednesday noon the fact will be announced in the Quiz.

Bids On Laterals Too High, Rejected; Will Re-Advertise

No. Loup District Got Only 2 Bids and Lowest Was $15,000 Over Estimate.

Only two bidders—Orshek & Christensen of Fremont, and W. J. Assemacher Co. of Lincoln—filed bids for construction of laterals for the Ord-North Loup canal area of the local irrigation project at a letting scheduled for Friday and directors of the district lost no time in rejecting both bids.

The Fremont firm's bid was lowest, $91,657.76, while Assemacher bid $94,837.00. The engineers' estimate, within which PWA regulations compel that the contract be let, was $76,554.29.

Asked this morning what the district's present plans in regard to laterals are, Engineer-Manager E. H. Dammire stated that plans will be re-drawn and only acreage already signed up for irrigation will be included in the lateral system. Originally it was planned to build a lateral system that would permit land owners who did not sign up originally to come in later when they see how much irrigation benefits their neighbors. Now such owners will be able to get water only as money permits the district to extend its lateral system and as water is available.

Ed Graves, Race Driver, Is Killed

Ed Graves of Oklahoma City, who drove the green and white car No. 5 at the Loup Valley Fair and Races last year, was killed at Monee, Ill., last week in making his time trial. He is the second of last year's drivers here to be killed recently, the other being the well known Red Campbell, George Chitwood, who took Campbell's place and is driving Morgan's Miller special, is really going places, according to reports. Everett Saylor is another of the last year's drivers who is drawing a lot of attention. He was in the big money at Ft. Wayne, Indiana, in the races there recently. Duke Dinsmore, another of the last year's performers, writes Supt. Clyde Baker that he would like to come back this year. He drove car No. 45 last year and was from Los Angeles, but is now living at Dayton, Ohio.

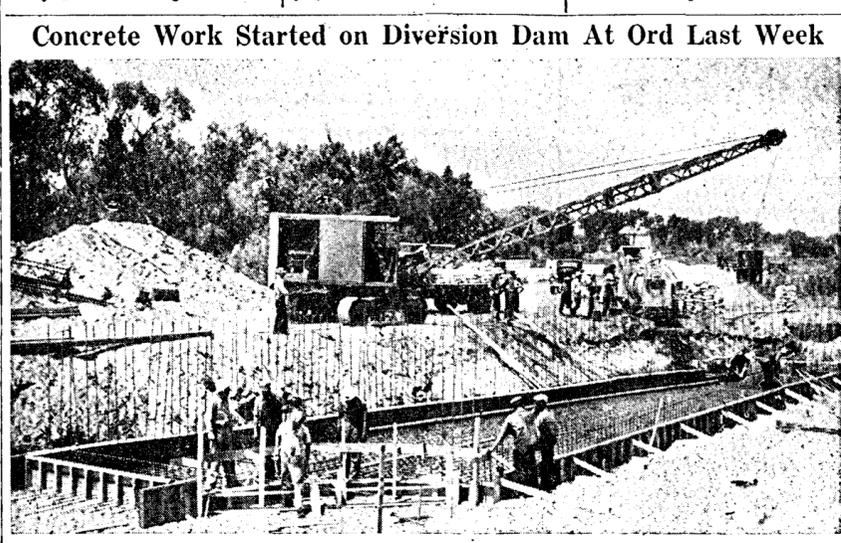

Swimming Classes To Open Tomorrow

Under the direction of Evelyn Sharp, who has been attending a Red Cross school of swimming and life saving work at Colorado Springs, classes in these subjects will open in Ord tomorrow, announces Leroy Frazier, local official of the Red Cross.

State Fire Inspector Downing Checks Ord

Deputy State Fire Inspector H. N. Downing was in Ord the fore part of the week and handed in the following report of his findings Wednesday morning: He made a total of 197 inspections, and found 314 faults. Of these 169 were electric, 79 were cleanups and the rest miscellaneous. He also reported that 70 of these had been corrected before he left Ord. He stated that he found Ord in good condition as compared with other places on his route. Fire Chief Cecil Clark took time off to go with him in order that he might know where the defects were and see that they were promptly corrected. Mr. Downing commented upon this, and said that there are few towns where the firemen take the interest in inspections that they do in Ord.

Concrete Work Started on Diversion Dam At Ord Last Week

The Western Asphalt Paving Corporation, which has the contract for building the three diversion dams of the North Loup River Power and Irrigation District, has started pouring concrete in the construction of foundation for the diversion spillway at the west end of the dam. After spending some time filling in with sand to make a foundation from which the pile driver could work the interlocking piling was driven to form a large triangle out into the river. This is done to shut out as much of the water as possible from the spillway. A four inch centrifugal pump is being used to keep the seepage water out of this space. As shown in the above photo, the structure is of reinforced concrete. When completed the water will run over the spillway and into a siphon which will carry it under the Burlington right-of-way to the ditch on the south side.

While the spillway is of concrete, the main part of the dam is to be built of brush filled with sand, which will serve every purpose of a solid concrete structure at a fraction of the cost. As the water will be raised not to exceed two feet at this point, the present banks of the stream will take care of the water without flooding the bordering low ground. The company has been demonstrating the general utility of the Erie dragline on this job, as they have used it as a regular dragline, as a pile driver and now are using it to move the mixed concrete from the mixer to the point where it is to be used.

Advertising for the Auto Races Being Done

Although the big Valley county fair and auto races aren't coming until August 24 to 27, Advertising Chairman Ed Kokes believes it is high time the advertising campaign gets under way and Saturday he started it. Three hundred bumper signs painted by Syl Furtak were hooked to the bumpers of automobiles around the square by Merrill Hughes and Bert Boquet, Jr. Here Kokes is seen showing the boys how it should be done while Furtak, with a wheelbarrow full of the tin signs, stands in the background.

Kovanda To Return As Ord Ag Teacher

J. A. Kovanda, local vocational agriculture instructor, will remain in Ord for another term, having secured a release from his contract with Pawnee City. At a recent meeting of the board of education, arrangements were made that were satisfactory to both Mr. Kovanda, the local board members and the superintendent of schools.

An acute shortage of qualified agricultural teachers exists and it was doubtful whether the position could have been satisfactorily filled otherwise. Increased appropriations of federal funds also make it possible to hire vocational teachers now at a lower proportionate cost to the local districts.

Officials of Loup Districts Will Sign To Purchase Power

'Tentative Agreement' Was Reached at Conference Held Monday.

At a conference held in Grand Island Tuesday afternoon, officials of the North and Middle Loup power and irrigation districts came to a tentative agreement with Columbus project officials for the purchase of electric energy for resale to municipalities within the districts. Major Wellwood, PWA expediter for the Lincoln area, and K. Sewell Wingfield, head of the PWA power division at Washington, presided at the conference.

Both the North and Middle Loup districts have been ordered to submit plans for construction of transmission lines, the Quiz learns. Estimated cost of the North Loup's lines is $214,000.

Tentative plans call for the two local districts to build a joint line from the Columbus project to a point near St. Paul and each will build a separate line from that point to Ord and Loup City.

Pending final approval of the agreement reached Tuesday, the cost of electricity to the districts was not made public.

"Saved Again" Say Corn Farmers As Heavy Rain Falls

Rain Ranging From .25 to 4 In. Was Lifesaver.

A Monday night rain which ranged from .25 of an inch at Arcadia, North Loup and Burwell to almost 4 inches across the river east of Elyria, with the general average about 1 inch, brought new hope for a corn crop to farmers in the Loup valley region.

The rain began late in the evening, continued all night with some communities receiving heavy showers between 7 and 9 o'clock in the morning.

In Ord the moisture total was .73 of an inch, according to Horace Travis, but just across the river more fell. Two inches fell in the sand flats country, about 1-1/2 inches in parts of Vinton and about 1 inch for a few miles west of Ord. Farther west and north only a light shower fell.

Such a wide variation in rainfall in a comparatively small area is most unusual. W. L. Blessing, Ord rural carrier, said patrons on his route reported from less than 1-4 of an inch to upwards of 4 inches.

At Cushing, Nebr., a cloudburst washed out a section of the Burlington grade and the morning train to Ord was cancelled, mail coming in on the freight Tuesday afternoon after repairs had been made. Charles K. Sisson, truck driver, said he had to stop Monday night for more than an hour until a flood in a deep gully near Elba subsided.

Corn, much of it just entering the tasseling stage, was benefited immensely by this moisture and most farmers immediately became more optimistic than they have been in weeks.

It was pointed out, also, that rain will help the grasshopper situation in that weeds along the roads, alfalfa fields and pastures will stay green and keep millions of the pests out of corn fields.

Of course much more rain is needed before a corn crop can be felt sure of but weather outlook for today and tomorrow appears favorable. Heat, which has seared fields of Valley county almost two weeks, also appears to have subsided.

Valley Countyites At Nebr. University

Seventeen students of Valley county are among the 2,000 students attending summer school at the University of Nebraska. Chester A. Carlski of Elyria is doing graduate work in the long term. Ethel Mae Jeffries of North Loup is registered for the long term. Mary Ann Eiche, freshman in the teachers college, and Irene Downing, sophomore in the teachers' college, both of Arcadia, are attending the short session. Mary Jane Reitenmeyer and Edna Elliott, also of Arcadia, freshman and junior respectively, are registered for the long term in teachers' college.

Eleven students are enrolled from Ord. Charles R. Stoltz and Alma Evelyn Glover are doing graduate work in the long and short terms respectively. Kenneth McGinnis, taking work in the pre-medical college, is attending the long term. E. Lloyd McGraw and Thelma D. Palmatter, junior and senior respectively in the college of arts and sciences, are attending the long session. Rhoda Mae Miller and Margaret Louise Strong are teachers' college freshmen registered for the long term. Helen Louise Mason, Daisy Clara Mae Hallen and Vera Mae McClatchey are all juniors attending the teachers' college for the long session, as is Wayne Edward Johnson, senior in the teachers' college.

Two Car Accidents, No Serious Injury

Emanuel Wewerka, with Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Piva in the car with him, met with an accident when they hit loose gravel coming in on the Sargent road last Wednesday evening. The car overturned and all the occupants were bruised considerably. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Burdick were coming in over the same road and brought all three to town where it was found that they had suffered no serious injury. The accident occurred near the John Janus place and may have been caused by a blowing out of a front tire. After the accident it was found that one tire was down. They may be thankful that it was no worse.

At about 2:00 a. m. Monday morning Joe Klat was driving toward Ord near the Henry-Stara place on No. 11 when he met a car driven by Leonard Manasil of Burwell. Neither was driving at excessive speed, but Mr. Klat put on the brakes, throwing the car out of control and turning it completely around and squarely in the path of the Manasil car. The front of the Manasil car hit the Klat car in the right rear, folding up the back end of the body about a foot and doing other minor damage. The front end of the Manasil car was badly wrecked. Luckily neither man was hurt except for bruises and scratches. Officers who examined the cars after the crash are of the opinion that the accident was unavoidable under the circumstances.

Softball Tuesday.

In the Ord softball league two games were played Tuesday evening, the K. P.'s defeating the L. Vets by a score of 8 to 2 in the first game, and the Safeways taking the measure of the K. C.'s in the final game by a score of 14 to 3.

OPPOSED TO FIREWORKS.

Of nearly forty exchanges that come to the desk, only one, the Wahoo Democrat, still puts up a defense for the indefensible idea of celebrating the 4th with fireworks. In a rather extensive editorial the writer makes an appeal for their use as a method of instilling patriotism into the hearts of the younger generation. We are living in a different age today. A lot of powder is burned today, it is true, but it is burned either by gangsters who are bent on tearing down the principles for which our forefathers fought, or by "G" men in attempting their capture.

Give the average young American today a cap pistol, and he at once organizes a gang, either to hunt robbers, or to be robbers themselves. They have no clear conception of the sufferings our forefathers endured or the battles fought to make America free. No man who went over the top in France is in favor of the use of fireworks today, and yet no man endured more for the cause of liberty and democracy than he. It is a peculiar thing, but we have yet to see a World War veteran shooting off fireworks. He knows the custom is not only useless, and dangerous as well as wasteful, and will have nothing to do with it.

OLD BOOKS; OLD FRIENDS.

Looking over a handful of books we found most of them in fair condition, indicating that their former owner had used care in handling them. One or two were still almost new, some showed signs of use, and one was so badly worn that it looked ready for the junkyard. Then we looked at the titles, and found that the book that had received no use at all was entitled "Russia As An American Problem." No wonder it was not read. The title is misleading. Russia is not an American problem, never was, and never will be. We have our problems and they have theirs, but they are working out their destiny without help from us.

Then we looked at the ones that had seen more use. They were for the most part works by more or less obscure authors. No doubt they all have merit, but are short in that intensely human element that grips the heart. Hence they remain on the shelves while others are being worn out. Finally we picked up the dog-eared and thumb worn volume. I observed that the back was completely loose and that a large number of the pages would fall out or blow away if given an opportunity. The name on the cover was almost unreadable, but on the inside we found it to be one of the ranking books of all time, "Huckleberry Finn."

Go to the public library and you will find that, with the exception of books recently received, if you want to read a book worth while you should take the ones that show the most wear. Others have tried them and found them good. Ask the librarian for a list of the books that are most in demand, and book up the names of the authors. Check these over and you have the "Who's Who" in the literary world. Any old fool, any educated fool, can fill a book with words, but it takes a person who has lived the story through in fancy or in fact to put in the heart throbs.

How like books are our friends. We use the most those whom we appreciate the most, and have a mere speaking acquaintance with those who hold themselves aloof as though they were superior beings. They are not. They are foolish and do not know it. There is this important difference. Men may change, but books are the same forever. It may have been your misfortune to have had to listen for a time to some misguided monomaniac haranguing a crowd of his ilk about the conditions in Russia and what America should do about it. "Russia as an American Problem" over again. A few listen and approve, but most turn away in disgust. Russia has her problems, but she is capable of taking care of them.

We have in mind a man who in middle age when most men are only just beginning to live, is prematurely aged. He does not owe this to wild excesses of youth for he was an exemplary young man. He had his share of fun as a lad, but it was clean fun. His playmates called him "Skinny" or "Slim" or some such name that boys built as he are heir to. In some mysterious way he got into their hearts and he was a leader all through his younger days. And it must be admitted that he seldom strayed far from the path of right.

As he grew older his duties to his fellow men increased. He took care of his own business first, but always found time to serve on committees, to assist in any community work. His friends found that his part was always well done, and as years went on his multifarious duties increased. Like a good book, his friends were using him, and he was beginning to show signs of wear. As time went on his form became more and more stooped, partly from the burden of duties he bore, and partly because he never forgot to give a word of cheer or a pat on the curly head to every little boy or girl he met.

Part of his hair is gone and the rest has turned gray. His face is creased with wrinkles of care, but he has never forgotten how to smile. Like the old book, his back is nearly broken and looks dog-eared and thumb worn. His friends have used him. They have read him through like a book and found therein everything to their liking. They smile when they meet him much as the boy smiles when he sees the worn volume of "Huckleberry Finn" lying on the center table. Some day he will be completely worn out, and will have to be cast aside. But it will have its compensations. His friends will mourn and be truly sorry that he must go. He has done the noble part and by no means shall he lose his reward.

IT IS A FUNNY WORLD.

One woman's husband and another man's wife start around the world on a flight unauthorized and unnecessary and for no apparent purpose but notoriety. Column after column of newspaper space is wasted on their flight. On the most difficult lap they miss the mark and get lost. The government immediately starts spending $250,000.00 per day in a vain effort to find them. That, in brief, is one side of the picture. The other is:

One woman's husband and another man's wife get into a car and start out under exactly parallel circumstances, except that they are trying their hardest to avoid notoriety. The newspapers that think it worth while denounce their act. So far as the world is concerned they are hoping to get lost. They cross a state line and the government immediately starts action to enforce a violation of the Mann white slavery act. The man gets a term in the federal penitentiary, the woman spends a few years in the woman's reformatory. Another angle:

A poor fisherman gets into his boat on a stormy morning. He knows the weather is not to be trusted, but his family must live. When the storm breaks it drives him far out to sea, beyond the limits to which the coast guard is expected to go. No warships steam to his rescue for two reasons; first, they do not know that he is out there; second, he is a poor man, and nobody outside his little village ever heard of him. But in the eyes of God there is no difference.

Given the same opportunities in life, the poor fisherman might have become a greater figure in the eyes of the world than the woman the dailies are still worrying about. He might have become an Edison, a Ford, an Elliott or a Theodore Roosevelt. But the world has little use for a failure such as he. All he did in his life was to try to raise his little family in the fear of the Lord, and see that their physical needs were supplied. The lesson for us is this: If we want to get anywhere we must play to the grandstand.

There are perhaps 2,000 families in Valley County. The money already spent in the search would keep every family in Valley County in comfort for a year. We do not wish to say anything to detract from the work Amelia Earhart has done for the cause of aviation. Had the flight been authorized by the U. S. government for the purpose of charting a new route across the Pacific, then the government would be in duty bound to find her if possible. But we believe 90% of the Quiz readers are opposed to the unwarranted spending of public funds.

THE TREASURY BUILDING DOME

Something DIFFERENT

The motorman of our boat is officially, Mrs. H. D. Leggett, and under her hands the motor pops to life and pushes the boat around the lake in a very lively fashion. Starting home across a corner of the lake after a recent fishing trip, she couldn't get the motor to sputtering in just the correct, smooth fashion it usually purrs. She regulated buttons and knobs and levers and screws, but still it gasped along, and finally, she began to get helpful suggestions from other members of the fishing party. Possibly the majority of them were proffered by her husband, but try as she would, Mrs. Leggett did not seem to have control of that motor. She fiddled and she twiddled, but it just didn't take.

As we drew in near the dock, Mr. Leggett decided to row home, found the boat very heavy to pull. The cause? Oh, he had forgotten to haul in the anchor! An old seasoned seaman like H. D. and how we all whooped and hollered at Dad. . . he had found his wife's "motor trouble".

I'm afraid he won't live that down for quite a spell. —ooo—

Mr. Fenner took one look at the lovely cottage Dad had made out of the former E. P. Clements summer home and was inspired.

He ran home as hard as he could go, grabbed a hammer, began furiously to pound at the front wall of his living room. By the end of the afternoon he had the living room and front porch thrown into one big room, and he was tired, but happy.

Soon other improvements became needed, to his eye, so he bought windows, casement type, and tore out the shutter-and-screen effect which formerly embellished the front and sides of the porch. By struggling all day he got one window neatly installed in the south, and we began to hear his happy cry: "How does she look, girls?"

This went on for several days, with Mr. Fenner starting to pound by six o'clock most mornings, and hammering straight through the day, not stopping to fish, to swim or pursue any of the usual camp activities. He kept Mrs. Fenner on the hop, running for paint, nails, lumber and what-not. Sometimes Dr. and Mrs. Gelow came over to help and found themselves with hammer in hand or heaving boards, though they hadn't known they were going to be on the carpentering crew when they stopped in.

And now the front of the cottage of Mr. L. B. Fenner is back together again, very neatly, too. I didn't know he was such a dandy carpenter.

—ooo— But the best joke I heard this week happened in Ord.

When Edwin Clements came from Ontario, California to surprise their friends, they walked in on the Contract Club Sunday evening, and such bedlam you never heard. There were huggings and handshakes and tears, and lots of happiness.

his relative. Dr. Blessing thought of the big bill, and finally asked, "But man, why did you call me all the way from California?" To which Edwin, chuckling, announced, "Well, Leonard, you know the climate has agreed with Catherine out here and about five minutes ago she presented me with a fine nine-pound boy!"

Of course her brother was thrilled and excited, then he began to get suspicious, for he too is a great practical joker. At that time Edwin had to laugh, and the hoax was announced, but the Blessings were almost as excited to find he was right in Ord as they had been by the spurious news first told them.

My Own Column

By H. D. Leggett

Dear Quiz:

We don't have any way of knowing how hot it was yesterday but it did seem hot to us here in camp because there was an off shore wind. The girls went to town and said it was cool there, so I presume it was in the 80s, though we have no thermometer. I do know that I would go out and work a while among the flowers, then take a plunge in the lake. I went in three times during the day and at 4 p. m. the Missus and I went to the upper lake fishing, getting home at 9 p. m. I felt like going in the lake again but changed my mind after walking out on the dock and giving the mosquitoes a crack at me. We got a nice string of fish consisting of four bass, eight bluegills, five crappies and two bullheads, all nice ones for we threw back all but the real good ones. We could have caught many more had we desired or could we have used them. Fishing is good this year. We have never gone out without getting a mess if we tried. Bass won't always hit and sometimes when we didn't need fish and went out with nothing but plugs, we would come home fishless, but we can always get crappies and bluegills and if we have good minnows we can always get bass too. Walleyes have not done anything all season. Ross Lakin says he gets a few every time he goes, using a fly rod. I am afraid to use my nice fly rod on them, as I am not very expert with it and a good sized walleye can put a permanent kink in a fly rod in mighty short order. One gets nice bluegills on either grub worm or angleworms. Grub worms can be bought in the neighborhood for 5c per dozen. There are numerous people at Brainerd who sell angleworms at 25c per 100. Small minnows for crappies can be secured on our own shore any still evening. Large minnows for pike and bass can be bought in numerous places hereabouts for 20c per dozen. Anyone coming from Nebraska and having room would be glad if they brought a nail keg of angleworms to save the time and expense of buying them. Two or three thousand worms can be carried in a nail keg. Care has to be taken not to get the dirt too wet, as in hot weather they soon scald. A mixture of peat moss and moist dirt is a mighty good combination to bring them in and keep them in after getting here.

L. B. Fenner is remodeling his cottage next door to us and it is going to be a grand improvement. He took the partition between the big main room and the front porch out and is putting in hinged windows across the front and on both north and south sides so they will have an abundance of both air and light. This front room is going to be almost equal to a screened porch with the added advantage that it can quickly be closed in case of storm. Formerly their house was dark when the weather forced the closing of the shutters. Mr. Fenner has not been fishing as yet, though he has been here about a week, but they are planning to stay quite a while I understand.

The Simpsons returned last night from a trip up the North Shore and into Canada. Mrs. B. A. Simpson, her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Byron and her son Billie and a friend of the senior Mrs. Simpson, a Miss Weidman from Omaha making the trip, Byron, Jr., and Bud and Edith Lillian remained in camp. The junior Simpson family have about completed their vacation and will leave this week end for Omaha where he is employed in the U. S. mail service and must get back to his job.

Friends of Irma, the Morrow family of Alliance, will come July 12 to be in the former Clements cottage for two weeks and they will be followed the 25th by the Soren K. Jensen family of Sargent for two weeks and when they move out an Omaha family will move in for three weeks, so the cottage is booked up full time till August 29 when it would be available to the first one applying. The safest way is to wire for reservations, as it looks like there might be a demand for it and the week of Labor Day in this country is a great event.

As I write the grandchildren are playing band, the instruments consisting of tin palls, the washtubs on the bench back of the cottage and several shrill little voices. It is going to seem pretty tame to the Missus and I when those little folks are no longer here and when most of the cottages are vacant again, and then we will have to console ourselves with the thought that we, too, will soon be back in Ord where we can see them every day. They spend hours every day playing in the water in front of the cottage and are getting as brown as little Indians. About their only troubles are mosquitos and as they go for the most part devoid of most of their clothing the mosquitos have a good chance to get in their work. Mosquitos have been bad this year because of so much rain.

The farmers have been having a heck of a time getting their clover and alfalfa under cover because it rained so often that they couldn't get it cured, and some fields have been bunched and then spread out several times. Grain looks to me to be about ready to harvest and the second crop of alfalfa is coming right along.

While in town yesterday Irma bought a quarters worth of green apples, probably from Nebraska or possibly from Iowa and a quart of blueberries and asked the Missus to make a pie of each kind this morning. If there is anything I like better than blueberry pie it is green apple pie and I will try to forget that the blueberries cost 36c for a quart and that the apples were 10c a pound. Pretty soon we will be able to get blueberries much cheaper. We have been getting wonderful strawberries for 20c a quart. I sent down to Bob Noll soon after coming up this spring and had him send some of his famous spinach seed and I gave it to Oscar Wallin and yesterday he brought us a nice mess for dinner and was it good.

The Alfred Wiegardt family will arrive today, July 7, for a visit at the Ross Lakin cottage and Laverne Lakin of the Quiz force will come with them for a few days stay and will drive home with the Missus and I the 15th. I shall be glad of his help in driving as I want to make the trip in one day and it is hard work for me to drive 600 miles at a stretch. I expect Laverne will take some pictures while here, for the edification of Quiz readers. H. D. Leggett.

WASHINGTON LETTER BY SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT

Rump Democrats Divide Party in Congress, Worry President

BY SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT

WASHINGTON.—The Democratic party in Congress is divided against itself. A rump group of leaders has demonstrated its ability to take over the wheel when the conservative Democratic leadership cannot steer the President's program.

These rump leaders are revolting against the efforts of the "batallion of death" group and a strong southern contingent which hopes to bring the President's plans to a dead halt this session and prevent him from dictating the Democratic nomination in 1940. The unofficial call to arms for this group is the question, "Who won the last election?"

The most conspicuous rump leaders are Senators Hugo Black of Alabama, Alben Barkley of Kentucky, Lew Schwelmbach of Washington, Sherman Minton of Indiana and Bob La Follette of Wisconsin. They are, for the most part, young men, and they differ in one important particular from their opponents in that generally they have been more recently elected to office.

The liberals in the House group, which includes Progressives and Farmer-Laborites from Wisconsin and Minnesota, respectively, is led by Congressman Maury Maverick of Texas. But Speaker Bankhead, who formally is the leader of the House, and Majority Leader Sam Rayburn and Rules Chairman John O'Connor, have been co-operating more with Roosevelt than with the Senate Leadership, whose members are accused by Roosevelt partisans of everything from "sitdown tactics" to actual revolt.

THE regular leaders are bewildered and resentful over the rise of the rump leaders. Referring to the regular leadership, one must include the chairmen of the chief House and Senate committees. Committee chairmanships are passed out on a basis of seniority. That means that most committee chairmen are conservative southern members who have been in Congress many years.

Some of these chairmen and other leaders are confused because those men upon whom they have been accustomed to rely for financial support in campaigns have demanded that they stop following White House orders.

There is anger especially over Roosevelt's encouragement of labor organization; the Black-Cannery wage and hour bill and the expenditures for relief. This opposition, sometimes allied with the "batallion of death" group, has made an effort to humble the President and that effort has been reflected in Congress, especially in the Senate.

Majority Leader Robinson of Arkansas can hardly be said to be in revolt against presidential policy. His loyalty to Roosevelt is almost incredible. But he plainly showed his concern over federal spending and debt. And his relief bill amendment requiring localities to contribute 25 per cent to WPA projects costs when able was a harmony move.

BACK FORTY

By J. A. Kovanda

One of the best spring wheat patches ever raised in this territory may be seen on the R. C. Bailey farm about two miles north of town. It is a new variety known as Ceres, and was brought in from South Dakota last year by John Penas. The seed was purchased from the Gurney Seed Co. Mr. Bailey planted fifteen acres of this wheat, and a similar acreage was grown by John Lickly. Both men are pleased with it.

The seed was put in at the rate of 40 pounds per acre on the Bailey farm. It was drilled in during the latter part of March on cornstalk ground which had been double-disked and cross-harrowed. The grain was harvested with a binder on July 9th. It should yield 20 bushels per acre.

Ceres, spring wheat is not exactly a stranger to Nebraska. This hard, red strain was imported from North Dakota by our state experimental farm about ten years ago. It does not shrivel like other varieties, but presents a plump, horny textured kernel that weighs out well.

After many years of experimentation, the Lincoln station states: "Ceres has proved most desirable of the spring wheat varieties available for production in this state. It has yielded 18 per cent more grain per acre than Marquis. Ceres ought to be more extensively substituted for the durum varieties."

The North Platte station says: "Ceres spring wheat has yielded 2 bushels more than Marquis, and is resistant to stem rust. It is the best variety available for western Nebraska."

This remark is given in the latest issue of the Nebraska Crop Growers' Association: "Ceres spring wheat has shown up very well. It is early and rust resistant. Its milling value is satisfactory. Growers of spring wheat should give this variety a trial."

—Farm loans closed promptly; low rates; liberal amounts. The Capron Agency, E. S. Murray, Mgr. 13-1f.

—Walter Brown, son of J. A. Brown, writes that he is now working in the Douglas airplane factory at Santa Monica, Calif. He started there recently and is well pleased with the work.

A Leader Is Inspired by God

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for July 18 Text: Exodus 3:3-16; 4:10-16; 5:1.

OUR lesson continues with the story of a leader, Moses, who was strengthened by God's inspiration at a time when he realized his own weakness and inadequacy.

We are told, sometimes, that the God of these ancient Israelites was a tribal God, and that they had not found the glorious conception that arose in later Israel and in New Testament times, of a God of the whole earth.

But it is something more than such a limited conception that one finds in the representation of God as speaking to Moses. When Moses asks his name and how he shall know and tell his people of the divine reality, the reply is that he is to say, "I AM hath sent me unto you."

"I AM THAT I AM"—what a noble conception that is, conveying so magnificently the emphasis upon the living presence of God! This God of the Fathers is an everlasting God, a covenant making and a covenant keeping God in whom men of devotion and faith can find security and strength.

MOSES is still concerned about his lack of qualification as a leader. He is conscious that he is not eloquent. He is slow of speech and of tongue. Here again though, lack of eloquence is not to be despised. How many great and real leaders have been feeble in speech!

This was one of the complaints against Paul, whom we have compared to Moses, that his presence was weak, and that he lacked the gift of speech, of Apollous, and others. But one can think of many men small in stature and unimpressive in presence and speech who have, nevertheless, been the creators and inspirers of great causes and movements, and who have accomplished almost incredible things simply because faith and determination have driven them, and they have become the medium of a greater power than themselves.

The Lord rebuked Moses because of his lack of faith in himself. "Who hath made man's mouth? or who maketh a man dumb, or deaf, or seeing, or blind?" Cannot God, in His power, give words to men who lack eloquence?

Nevertheless, Moses found a mouthpiece in Aaron, his brother, who was evidently a man of words as Moses was a man of action.

THUS equipped, with a new inner strength and with the support of the eloquent Aaron, Moses goes down to his task to face Pharaoh in the name of the God of Israel, and to say, "Let my people go, that they may hold a feast unto me in the wilderness."

It was not to be as easy a task as Moses might have supposed. God's will is for the deliverance and safety of his children, but there are problems of human freedom and destiny that man has to work out in co-operation with God, and the divine power does not work miracles where men themselves fail. The way that was before Moses was to test alike his faith, his courage, and his strength.

The call of a man to a great task is only the first incident in his destiny.

The real time of testing comes not in his acceptance of the call, but in the power of faith and will with which he holds to his task, day after day, no matter what the discouragements and no matter what the dangers. Moses became a great leader not merely through his call, but by the strength of his faith and his unyielding will.

CARE OF COUNTY BOARD

By George Gowen

Good Cooks.

Roy Cox tells the story of how he was fixing a well out in the country and of how he talked too much. Now usually Roy is a very pleasant man to visit with and everyone likes to have him around, but that evening after he left this one place he did not know but that his kind words had not been taken so kindly.

The lady of the house was reputed to be a fine cook. So when Roy sat down to the table, he found before him a wonderful repast, consisting of viands cooked up in divers manners. There were corn on the ear and corn off the ear, there were cooked tomatoes and fresh tomatoes, there were chicken and beef, there were chocolate and white cake. When the lady passed the corn she said to Roy, "You can have your choice. Some folks don't like corn on the ear you know."

"Ah," Roy said, "Don't worry about me. I can eat food any way. You know almost any kind of food that is properly cooked is good." And then not knowing enough to stop at that he had to give the lady a little dissertation on the eating business. He continued with a bit of disgust, "It is all foolishness for a person to be so picky about what they eat. By just trying a person can learn to like most any kind of food."

Then he noticed everyone was quiet so he took an ear of corn and went to gnawing. Yes, he noticed the folks did not say much for several minutes.

It was when he got home that night and telling what a fine meal he had at that place that his wife told Roy the reason for the different kinds of food. The husband of the lady was one of those notional men. He would eat corn on the ear but not cut off, he would not eat cooked tomatoes nor chicken and nothing with chocolate flavor.

And then Ruth Babcock tells of an experience that happened to her and this experience proved to her whether she was a good cook or not.

At the S. D. B. church suppers everyone is supposed to take quantity enough for their family and it can be in one or two dishes if they wish. Then these dishes are set on the tables and passed.

It happened Ruth sat beside a man that seemed to be in difficulty in getting food to suit. The affair became quite interesting to Ruth for this man's mother-in-law sat next to him and she would sample each dish as it came along by taking a small portion, and the thought was in Ruth's mind, if it didn't kill the mother-in-law, it was safe for the man to eat some. Mothers-in-law don't matter you know and perhaps this man thought he was just putting her to some good use. Of course he didn't say this in so many words. That was Ruth's deciphering.

It all was quite amusing until Ruth happened to notice her own dish of food coming up the avenue. She wanted to just reach around, grab the dish and shove it past. It was a different matter to have her own dish tested out. But she couldn't hardly arrange to get to her dish before the m-l-l grabbed ahead.

She and the s-l-n eyed the dish askance. Ruth even thought she smelled it but nevertheless she took a sample. He seemed quite dubious and then all of a sudden there seemed to be an enlightening on the heroic face of the m-l-l and she took a bigger helping and then she slyly winked to the s-l-l and he took a big helping and Ruth smiled when she said that was about all the s-l-l did eat that evening.

And Ruth tells that story with a good deal of satisfaction, feeling she is one of the best, if not the one best, cook in the congregation. But the best part of the story she never told and that was the name of the s-l-l and the m-l-l.

South Wind-Cold Water.

On the way to town the evening of the day the wind blew from the south so hard and hot, we stopped and took a swim in the river. Frank Schudel saw us there and the street asked me how was the water. I replied, "pretty cold. A fellow would hardly think it with the wind so hot."

And then he said that the water is always cold when the wind is from the south. A south wind makes the water colder than any other wind. Now Frank has lived by the river all his life and he ought to know if any one would.

Some Different.

When Bernard West heard that Albert Babcock was of the mind of hiring a man to help him in the bakery, Bernard applied for the job giving as a recommendation the fact that he had worked in the bakery in the CCC camp. It was on this score that he got the job.

But when he came to work Albert found the baking there was far different than his methods. At the camp they used no thermometers or scales to weight the ingredients. They just tossed the different materials together, then into the ovens and then served the results. If the pastries did not turn out right their customers ate them anyway. There was no danger of it coming back or no danger of losing a patron. The boys just had to eat it and be dammed.

Not So Bad.

We were at Ord the other day, I and my family. Apparently something troubled my daughter that day, but then she always, like her father, had trouble with spelling. Finally at the supper table she wanted to know how to spell "hotel". She had read on a building HOPE LORD. She was quite relieved when I told her.

You Can Tell 'Em, Joe.

A tourist stopped in at Campbell's Cafe the other day and asked: "Do you serve crabs in here?" Joe happened to be at the counter and came back with the answer: "Sure, we serve anyone; sit down; I suppose if the stranger had asked Joe if he had had calf's brains he would have answered in the affirmative.—Platte County Record.

THE COOK'S COL-YUM, YUM

It seems a little hot for candy, but there are always some people with a sweet tooth who insist on being considered. So for them we have to make candy, we must stir up desserts and sweets to finish each meal.

Chocolate Marshmallow Fudge. Cook two cups sugar, one cup cream and two tablespoons of cocoa to a hard ball. Add one tablespoon butter, take from the fire, then put in one-half teaspoon vanilla, and one-half pound of marshmallows that have been cut in half. Beat hard, crushing the marshmallows. Turn into a buttered tin and when almost cold mark into squares. This can also be made by pouring half the fudge into a pan, putting on a layer of marshmallows, cut up and then pouring the rest of the fudge on top.

Mrs. C. Huebner, Dannebrog. Pineapple and Strawberry Shortcake. For part one put together one pint of strawberries and one-half cup sugar, also one pint fresh shredded pineapple and about one-half cup sugar. Let stand while making biscuit dough. To make biscuit dough, use two cups flour, four tablespoons shortening, four teaspoons baking powder, one teaspoon salt, three-fourths cup milk. Shape into individual shortcakes. When baked and ready to serve, put together with the sweetened fruit. Very good.

Mrs. H. M. Grady, Kearney. Nut Brittle. Heat two cups sugar gradually in a skillet, stirring constantly until a golden syrup is formed. Remove from fire and stir in quickly one-fourth teaspoon soda, one teaspoon vanilla, one-fourth teaspoon salt. Put two cups of nuts in a greased pan, pour the syrup in on top of them. When cold crack into small pieces.

Mash one cup stewed prunes fine, add one cup sugar, five tablespoons melted butter or lard, three egg yolks, one teaspoon soda, one teaspoon each of cloves, nutmeg, allspice and one and one-half cup flour. Use one cup prune juice for moistening, stirring as little as possible. Put all ingredients together before stirring at all. Bake in layers or loaf. I use a white icing.

Mrs. Belle Taylor, Sabetha, Kas. No Fireworks for Wayne. The first 4th with enforcement of the anti-firecracker ordinance in Wayne proved refreshing contrast to the old days when the air was charged with exploding powder and when dangers lurked on every hand. This year quiet reigned. No ones rest was disturbed by a "hundred guns at sunrise" or by other explosions. No one had to dodge a burning cracker or torpedo to escape having his head blown off. In time the foolish practice will nowhere be lawful.—Wayne Herald.

QUAKER OATS

...please pass the potatoes

Baked and served with fresh butter ... A GRAND FOOD!

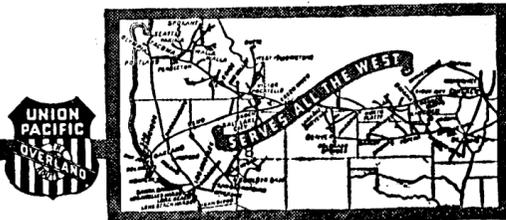

Science has discovered that potatoes provide extra Vitamin C, readily available calcium and phosphorous, and a high content of iron and Vitamin B—all important elements to good health.

Interesting information, but not nearly so impressive as a great, big baked potato—nice and mealy—its russet jacket bursting—steaming hot—with a couple of pats of fresh butter, some salt and pepper ... that's really something to eat. Yet, this is only one of a hundred ways of preparing and serving this marvelous food.

Nowhere are such excellent potatoes grown as in the higher altitudes, the mountain valleys, the great plains of the West, and the Pacific Coast slopes. All of these regions are served by the Union Pacific Railroad.

Efficient, rapid railroad service—specialized cars for safe shipment—brings potatoes to your table from this area every month of the year. Among the nation's railroads Union Pacific is in the front rank as a transporter of potatoes. Last year Union Pacific moved 41,422 cars of the world's staple vegetable—the nutritious, economical potato.

Cram Hospital at Burwell Embodies Many Fine Features

A number of requirements had to be met in going to the wards and rooms on the second floor.

A long hallway opens out of the reception room to the consulting office where Dr. Cram receives those who come to the hospital for medical treatment and advice.

Across the hall is the laboratory where scientific examinations and microscopic studies will be made. The drugs used to fill the doctors' prescriptions are also kept here.

Going back to the hall and moving farther along, we come to the x-ray room which is equipped with instruments for electrical therapeutics. The dark room is just off to the x-ray room where in a short time the pictures can be developed.

Leaving the basement and entering the hall on the first floor we take the stairway to the second floor. Here are the eight complete rooms for the comfort and care of the patients. These rooms are arranged as follows, 1 3-bed ward, 2 2-bed wards and 5 1-bed rooms. During an emergency other rooms are available thus accommodating 14 patients at the same time.

A nicely arranged nursery room is conveniently located on the second floor and was used for the first time by twin boys who were born recently to Mr. and Mrs. Carstensen of the Blake Community.

Located in the northeast corner of the building on the second floor is the latest type of operating room. Directly above the table are eight powerful floodlights with a large light in the center. These are installed on a triple lighting system so that in case one set should fail during an operation, the others would meet the emergency. Four sets of double wall plugs around the wall can be used for other electrical equipment. The windows of the operating room are covered with a number 40 mesh bronze screen to eliminate the entrance of gnats or tiny insects.

Double doors open on the hallway and a window in the wall will permit those in the hall to observe the doctors at work during an operation.

Complete instrument cabinets are located along part of the south wall. Doors on the south side open into the scrub room for the doctors. A large lavatory permits two doctors to scrub up at the same time. Valves on the floor, to be controlled by foot pressure, eliminate the opening and closing of faucets by hand.

Kitchen and Nurses' Quarters. There is a full basement under the hospital in which is a completely furnished kitchen with electric refrigerator and range, table and cabinet. A dumb waiter runs from the kitchen to the first and second floors.

A dining room for nurses and attendants is also located in the basement.

The head nurse's living quarters are located in the basement. Miss Margaret Taylor, formerly of Alda, Nebraska, and a graduate of the St. Francis Hospital in Grand Island, has been head nurse for Dr. Cram for the last 2 1/2 years. Miss Pearl Signer, a registered nurse, and graduate of the Lincoln General Hospital in Lincoln, has been employed by Dr. Cram since April 1937.

A well equipped laundry and sterilizing room is conveniently located in the basement.

In the northeast corner of the basement is the steam heating plant where a large stoker is to be installed. The stoker will extend into the tunnel type underground coal bin which automatically keeps the hopper full of coal as long as there is coal in the bin.

All of the floors on the first floor and hallways are overlaid with alternate squares of light and dark colored moultilite. This floor covering is very attractive. It is constructed so as to deaden the noise and also harmonizes with the interior decorations of the building.

An up-to-date suction air conditioning system is to be installed later. A large ventilator installed in the roof will insure the circulation of fresh air throughout the building at all times.

Other features of the hospital which we have not mentioned need only to be observed to be appreciated.

Visitors are welcome and the public is invited to attend the "open house" of the hospital on Saturday and Sunday, July 17 and 18.—Advertisement.

Mason, jr. Burial was made in the Hillside cemetery.

While hauling water Saturday, Jay Conner fell from a wagon and fractured his elbow. He was taken to the Cram Hospital where an x-ray was taken and Dr. Cram reduced the fracture.

Mrs. Frank Sestak of Comstock entered the Cram Hospital for treatment Saturday.

Friends learned recently of the marriage of John Wallace of Valley View and Mrs. Anna Poulton of Hutchison, Kas. The license was issued at Grand Island, Neb.

Tuesday Sheriff Johnson took the following boys to the CCC camp at Halsey: Lyle Schmidt, Gaylord Quinn, Dexter Ridgley and Franklin Houser.

Sheriff Raymond Johnson of Garfield county and Sheriff Fox of Custer county drove to Chappell on business Monday.

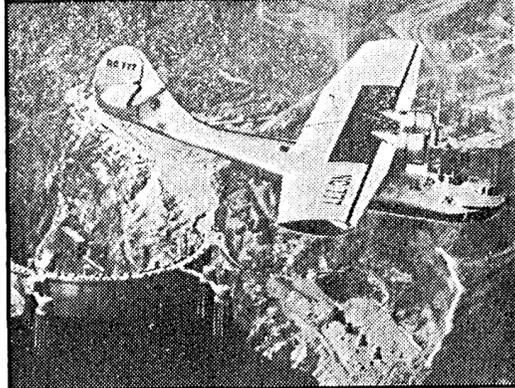

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Johnson and son Buddy and their guest, Mrs. Leonard Brehaus of Hyannis, visited in the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Anderson in Ord Friday evening.

THE GENERAL HOSPITAL
DR. H. B. BOYDEN IN CHARGE
GRAND ISLAND, NEBR. TELEPHONE 1634

July 12, 1937, his death resulting from double pneumonia.

Wilton attended the daily vacation Bible school picnic at the Ord park July 30 and although he then was running a slight temperature he seemed much better the following day. Lung infection however soon made itself manifest and the rapid progress of the malady soon made the case one of life and death. The best attention was given him at his home and in an attempt to provide the best of care the little sufferer was taken to the hospital at Omaha where his patience and his uncomplaining nature won for him as friends the hospital staff.

Wilton was an industrious little student and during his first year at school had, aside from attendance, a perfect score card, and at the Mickey Mouse party recently by Dr. Clifton, Wilton took the prize for having taken the best care of his teeth.

He is survived by his father and mother and his brother Teddy, his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Orlo Whitford of Farina, Ill., and Mr. and Mrs. Gifford Hutchins of North Loup; by his uncle Edward Whitford of Champaign, Ill., his aunt Mrs. Mabel Kinkaid of Marona, Ill., his uncle Arthur Hutchins of North Loup, and his aunt Mrs. Inez Fox of Gary, Ind. Aside from those mentioned there is an exceptionally large group of other relatives and a host of friends as large as the circle of his acquaintance. Mr. and Mrs. Hutchins have the sympathy of all their relatives and friends in this trying hour.

Funeral services were conducted at the S. D. B. church at North Loup Wednesday afternoon at 2:00 p. m. by the pastor, Rev. C. L. Hill. Mrs. Ava Johnson presided at the piano and the musical selections "Love Lifted Me" and "The Land of Little Faces," were sung by Miss Ersel Goodrich and Richard Babcock. The pallbearers for the occasion were La Verne and Donald Hutchins, Albert Babcock, jr., Dale Gilmore, Lynn Van Horn and Geo.

Wilton Hutchins, the second son of Mr. and Mrs. George Hutchins, was born at North Loup Nov. 11, 1930, and passed from this life at the University hospital, Monday,

July 12, 1937, his death resulting from double pneumonia.

Wilton attended the daily vacation Bible school picnic at the Ord park July 30 and although he then was running a slight temperature he seemed much better the following day. Lung infection however soon made itself manifest and the rapid progress of the malady soon made the case one of life and death. The best attention was given him at his home and in an attempt to provide the best of care the little sufferer was taken to the hospital at Omaha where his patience and his uncomplaining nature won for him as friends the hospital staff.

Wilton was an industrious little student and during his first year at school had, aside from attendance, a perfect score card, and at the Mickey Mouse party recently by Dr. Clifton, Wilton took the prize for having taken the best care of his teeth.

SOCIETY

Invited to Wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Brown are in receipt of an invitation to the wedding of Russell Roy Madison, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Madison, to Margaret Ruth Cleveland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Cleveland of Costa Mesa, Calif. The wedding is to take place at 8:00 p. m., July 17 in the Union church at Riverside, Calif., with a reception following the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland announced the coming wedding at their silver wedding anniversary, which took place recently. The groom spent the early years of his life in this community, where he was well known and deservedly popular.

Benjamin Has Birthday.

In honor of Lloyd Benjamin's 47th birthday, he and his wife were invited to the J. T. Knezacek home July 4th for a chicken dinner with all the trimmings, prepared as only Mrs. K. knows how. Of course Lloyd ate too much and just about got sick, but what are birthday parties for if not to have a good time.

Van Slyke-Bartholomew.

On Wednesday, July 7, at Loup City, Muriel VanSlyke of Ord became the bride of Earl Bartholomew of Ericson. The bride wore a dark blue dress of sheer chiffon with white accessories, and carried a bouquet of white lilies. The groom was dressed in a dark blue suit while the attendants were dressed in white. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack

VanSlyke of northeast of Ord, and is deservedly popular with those who know her. The groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Bartholomew, and is a quiet industrious man of good habits and well spoken of by those who know him best.

Announce Engagement.

C. A. Carkoski of Elyria, Hartington high school principal, and Miss Helen Smith of Lincoln, high school English and dramatics instructor there for seven years, will be married in Lincoln Aug. 29, it was announced recently by the bride to be's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Smith. Seventy-five guests were present at a tea at which the date of the wedding was disclosed. Among the guests were Miss Virginia Gleason of Randolph, Miss Alice Ahern of Friend, Miss Cliff Miller of Greenwood, Miss Corinne Carlson of Mead and Miss Dorothea Hudson of Arcadia, all Hartington public school instructors.

Following the beginning of the school term there in September, the couple will go to Hartington to make their home. Miss Smith recently tendered her resignation, but Mr. Carkoski will return to the faculty for his 4th year as principal and his 9th term as athletic director. Miss Smith is a graduate of Nebraska Wesleyan university of Lincoln, and has been teaching at Hartington high since 1929 with the exception of one semester. Mr. Carkoski graduated from the University of Nebraska a B. Sc. in education in 1928. He coached one year at Alma following his graduation and then went to Hartington where he made a highly successful record with his football teams and a creditable showing in basketball and track, besides developing intramural athletics more than any other coach. In addition to coaching and acting as principal, Mr. Carkoski teaches mathematics.

Carlsen-Mostek.

Alvin Carlsen and Miss Ireno Mostek were married July 1 at Loup City, the ceremony being performed by the county judge of Sherman county. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mostek of Loup City, and the groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Carlsen of Ord. A kitchen shower was held for Mrs. Carlsen in Loup City the evening of July 4. They will visit in Loup City and Ord for about two weeks, after which they plan to go to Aladdin, Wyo., where the groom's older brother, Chester, and family now live.

Parkos-Vondracek.

At 6:30 Wednesday morning at St. Mary's church in Sargent Rev. Sidonski performed the ceremony that made Albert A. Parkos of Ord and Stacie Vondracek of Sargent man and wife. The bride, attired in hat, white gown and white shoes, was accompanied by her bridesmaid, Evelyn Suchanek, who wore a peach colored gown. The groom was attended by William Sollacek, and both wore dark suits. After the ceremony a wedding breakfast to the wedding party and a few intimate friends was given at the Sheldon hotel.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Vondracek of Sargent. She is a graduate of the Sargent schools, class of 1930, and for some time was employed in a Sargent beauty parlor. The groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert F. Parkos, is a graduate of the Ord high school, class of 1928, and for the past year has been employed in the county agent's office. After the wedding breakfast the newlyweds left on a wedding trip, the destination uncertain. When they return they will be at home to their friends in Ord, and Mr. Parkos will continue his work in the court house.

Hold Huge Picnic.

Partly because Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Bell were here from California, and also because it chanced to be Mrs. Bell's birthday, and further, that it was the 30th anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Butcher's wedding, a huge gathering of the Bells, Butchers and all their kin was held at Pebble Creek north of Burwell Sunday. It was held there because J. K. Butcher first met his wife on that farm. In all there were 120 persons present. The families represented were the F. J. Bells, the Joe Rowbals, the W. H. Butchers, both senior and junior, the G. H. Maxsons, the Edgar Shermans, the Roy Alders, the B. W. Butchers, the J. K. Butchers, the Wayne Hesseleggers, the Gus Sherbarths, the John Ehsesmans, the Lloyd Herricks, the Axel Hansens, the Martin Michaleks, the Ben Morris, the Ira Mattley's, the John Tiffs, and the Clay McGrews. Some had not met in years, and a few had never met, but needless to say, they all had a good time, and there was plenty to eat.

Pinochle Club Meets.

The pinochle club met at the home of Mrs. George Zikmund Tuesday afternoon and served a covered dish luncheon in honor of the ladies' birthdays. They were Mrs. Joe Punochar, Mrs. Vinnie Anderson, Mrs. George Zikmund, Mrs. Will Misko and Mrs. Lloyd Benjamin, a former member. High score was held by Mrs. J. T. Knezacek and low by Mrs. W. A. Bartlett. Guests were Mrs. George Hastings sr., and Mrs. George Hastings jr., of Arcadia. A very pleasant time was had.

No Cause for Alarm.

John S. Hoff notifies the Quiz that people who drive along the road south of his cornfield out in Mira Valley need have no alarm at the loud popping noises they hear. It is not a belated 4th of July celebration, nor is it bandits shooting at passing cars. It is merely the corn shooting, and it is doing a real job of it now, as it is the first real chance it has had for several years. Mr. Hoff reports about 1 1/2 inches of rain Monday night, which should do wonders for the valley corn crop.

Scotia Man Prizes Ft. Hartsuff Relic

A board, about nine inches wide by three feet long, is in possession of Howard Anderson of Scotia, Nebr., given to him by the present tenant of the Fort Hartsuff property. On the board is the inscription, "AAQM FT. HARTSUFF, NEBR." Valued highly by Mr. Anderson as a bit of historical antiquity, the board was apparently at one time a part of a ceiling or a floor, as the main portions of the buildings were constructed of concrete. Only three of the pieces on which the fort's name had been stenciled have been found by the present occupant of the place.

There has been not a little agitation to repair the buildings and open the old fort to the public as a historical site. Considerable repairs would be necessary but the idea has possibilities and many Central Nebraska citizens are in favor of it. At present the fort structures are used as farm buildings.

The fort, located near Elyria, nine miles north of Ord, was built in 1874 when the Sioux Indians were harassing the white settlers and was used only a few years. Constructed on recommendation of General Ord, after whom the Valley county seat was named, the fort served no great purpose. Marlon Littlefield's death at the hands of the Sioux was the direct incentive for the fort's construction. Some of the pipe originally installed at the fort is still in use and carries water from a well on a hill

SAFEWAY

(July 16 and 17, in Ord Nebraska)

News from the State Capitol

BY FRED J. MINDER.

Of all the cropland in Nebraska, sixty-two percent is participating under the 1937 Agricultural Conservation program, the state committee in charge of the program announced. Participation for the state as a whole is 9 percent below last year.

Thousands of acres of soil depleting crops are being transferred to soil conserving uses by farmers co-operating in the program, said Fred Wallace, chairman of the state committee. With the 1937 season thus far favorable to legumes and grass planted in the spring, a great comeback in soil conservation is expected as a result of the program.

The western part of Nebraska is participating the heaviest. Farmers, faced with a lack of moisture early in the year foresaw the necessity of devoting attention to the holding what rainfall might come, and as a result, in a wholesale manner they turned to summer fallowing, contouring, basin listing, terracing, strip cropping and other practices for which they draw payments under the program.

In Nebraska's "panhandle" area, 82 percent of the crop land is participating. In the north-central area participation is 61 percent; east central, 43 percent; south-west, 76 percent; south central, 64 percent and southeast 45 percent. Meanwhile farmers recalled it was four years ago this month that three letters—AAA—flashed across the farm horizon. These letters were the symbols of the Agricultural Adjustment Act, a measure that paid more than $76,000,000 to Nebraska farmers who raised corn, wheat and sugar beets.

Approved in May, 1933, educational meetings in connection with the program were started in July that year. While the wisdom of crop control policies of the administration were debated, one thing was certain; the AAA poured many welcome dollars into the coffers of drought stricken Nebraska farmers.

The act was declared unconstitutional in January 1936, and several months later the soil conservation program was created to replace it. AAA dollars continued to come to the state however, and now, almost all of the entire total due farmers who participated in the program, $76,427,665.51, has been paid from Washington it is learned that in Nebraska some $38,000 still is to be paid.

The latest summary available, as of April 30, 1937 showed money distributed in Nebraska as follows: wheat payments, $22,846,587; corn-hog payments, $50,725,443; beet sugar payments, $2,849,869 and rye payments, $5,465.

Married at Seward was Miss Beth Hoerner to Lloyd Cardwell, University of Nebraska athletic hero. Rev. J. W. Stivers, pastor of the United Brethren church read the marriage lines. Only members of the immediate family were present.

Beatrice, one of the few remaining cities in Nebraska that prohibits Sunday movies is the scene of a heated campaign prior to an election, July 13, on the proposition. The question of Sunday movies has been hard-fought in the city, the proposition of repealing the ordinance prohibiting the amusement having been defeated on several previous occasions.

One of Nebraska's early day veterinarians, Dr. William A. Thomas, 86, shot and killed himself at his home near Lincoln. He was dependent following the death of his wife three months ago.

Bank loans totalling $33,218,995 in the past year were announced by Omaha banks as they reported figures in the national bank call as of June 30. The loan totals are greater than at any time in nine years, bankers said. On deposit in Omaha banks were $117,454,841. Omaha has nine banks.

July 29 is the date the state highway department will receive bids for the construction and maintenance of highways to cost an estimated $445,000, made up of $138,000 federal funds; $91,000 U. S. works program funds; $211,000 state construction and $15,000 state maintenance funds.

This year's hatch of pheasants is meeting a sad fate, it is learned from various sections of Nebraska. The young birds are dying in great numbers from poisoning caused by eating poisoned grasshoppers. The farmers in eastern Nebraska say song birds likewise have been found dead. One Seward county farmer lost nearly 50 chickens that were ranging, presumably because of poisoning from eating poisoned hoppers.

A graduate school of social work with Ernest F. Witte, as regional representative of the social security board as director, has been announced by the University of Nebraska board of regents. Witte, was formerly NERA administrator for Nebraska. Created to meet the demand for trained social workers to new school of social work will cost $4 a credit hour, the same as charged by the law college.

Officials whose business it is to keep their pulse on the crop outlook are at wide variance when the estimation of Nebraska's wheat outcome is predicted. While no two fact finders agree on the actual outcome of the wheat crop now being harvested, and estimates vary as much as half a million bushels in some cases for the state, wheat growers with but few exceptions know by this time they have a wheat crop that compares favorably with an average year. Some communities are threshing or have combined a crop reaching bumper proportions; other communities find the crop generally isn't quite up to snuff. By the large, however it has been a good wheat year, the race against black rust generally was won and the market continued to hold its own or rise during the crucial dumping period.

Alfalfa and corn are feeling the real brunt of the grasshopper plague with the small grain crop now out of the way. The unrelenting warfare that is being waged is ending in many sections to overcome a major calamity because of the 'hoppers. Poison bran in increasing quantities is being spread out in the sun. A Minister Tried This. If you don't believe its hot ask Rev. Dwight R. Johnson of Loup City. Tuesday afternoon, (July 6) Rev. Johnson decided to find out how hot it was on the pavement down town, and not having an egg handy to fry, (the usual procedure in such cases) laid a thermometer out in the sun. At 140 degrees the thermometer gave up and the mercury went out the top. Procuring an oven thermometer he tried it again and this time he found the temperature on the pavement 169 degrees.—Sherman Co., Times.

Moving to the highest level since 1928, the price of hogs on the Omaha livestock market reached $12.25 for 190 to 240 pound weights. September nine years ago saw a similar high price for the last time.

Nebraskans watched with concern reports from Washington where Senator George W. Norris rests in the Naval hospital, a victim of an intestinal disturbance. Reports indicate he is much improved and merely resting, but some significance was placed on the fact that a "no visitors" sign was hung on the door of his room.

Happy were the officials of safety organizations in Nebraska that they missed their guess on the number of deaths in the state over the double holiday of July 4 and 5. Eighteen persons were to have died because of accidents, the guessers guessed. Actually the number was 9. No fatalities were charged to fireworks explosions. Five drownings, two auto accidents and one burned to death in a home fire made up the list.

SOCIETY

Invited to Wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Brown are in receipt of an invitation to the wedding of Russell Roy Madison, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Madison, to Margaret Ruth Cleveland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Cleveland of Costa Mesa, Calif. The wedding is to take place at 8:00 p. m., July 17 in the Union church at Riverside, Calif., with a reception following the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland announced the coming wedding at their silver wedding anniversary, which took place recently. The groom spent the early years of his life in this community, where he was well known and deservedly popular.

Benjamin Has Birthday.

In honor of Lloyd Benjamin's 47th birthday, he and his wife were invited to the J. T. Knezacek home July 4th for a chicken dinner with all the trimmings, prepared as only Mrs. K. knows how. Of course Lloyd ate too much and just about got sick, but what are birthday parties for if not to have a good time.

Van Slyke-Bartholomew.

On Wednesday, July 7, at Loup City, Muriel VanSlyke of Ord became the bride of Earl Bartholomew of Ericson. The bride wore a dark blue dress of sheer chiffon with white accessories, and carried a bouquet of white lilies. The groom was dressed in a dark blue suit while the attendants were dressed in white. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack

VanSlyke of northeast of Ord, and is deservedly popular with those who know her. The groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Bartholomew, and is a quiet industrious man of good habits and well spoken of by those who know him best.

Announce Engagement.

C. A. Carkoski of Elyria, Hartington high school principal, and Miss Helen Smith of Lincoln, high school English and dramatics instructor there for seven years, will be married in Lincoln Aug. 29, it was announced recently by the bride to be's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Smith. Seventy-five guests were present at a tea at which the date of the wedding was disclosed. Among the guests were Miss Virginia Gleason of Randolph, Miss Alice Abern of Friend, Miss Ithell Miller of Greenwood, Miss Corinne Carlson of Mead and Miss Dorothea Hudson of Arcadia, all Hartington public school instructors.

Following the beginning of the school term there in September, the couple will go to Hartington to make their home. Miss Smith recently tendered her resignation, but Mr. Carkoski will return to the faculty for his 4th year as principal and his 9th term as athletic director. Miss Smith is a graduate of Nebraska Wesleyan university of Lincoln, and has been teaching at Hartington high since 1929 with the exception of one semester. Mr. Carkoski graduated from the University of Nebraska a B. Sc. in education in 1928. He coached one year at Alma following his graduation and then went to Hartington where he made a highly successful record with his football teams and a creditable showing in basketball and track, besides developing intramural athletics more than any other coach. In addition to coaching and acting as principal, Mr. Carkoski teaches mathematics.

Carlsen-Mostek.

Alvin Carlsen and Miss Irene Mostek were married July 1 at Loup City, the ceremony being performed by the county judge of Sherman county. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mostek of Loup City, and the groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Carlsen of Ord. A kitchen shower was held for Mrs. Carlsen in Loup City the evening of July 4. They will visit in Loup City and Ord for about two weeks, after which they plan to go to Aladdin, Wyo., where the groom's older brother, Chester, and family now live.

Parkos-Vondracek.

At 6:30 Wednesday morning at St. Mary's church in Sargent Rev. Sidonski performed the ceremony that made Albert A. Parkos of Ord and Stacie Vondracek of Sargent man and wife. The bride, attired in hat, white gown and white shoes, was accompanied by her bridesmaid, Evelyn Suchanek, who wore a peach colored gown. The groom was attended by William Sellacek, and both wore dark suits. After the ceremony a wedding breakfast to the wedding party and a few intimate friends was given at the Sheldon hotel.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Vondracek of Sargent. She is a graduate of the Sargent schools, class of 1930, and for some time was employed in a Sargent beauty parlor. The groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert F. Parkos, is a graduate of the Ord high school, class of 1928, and for the past year has been employed in the county agent's office. After the wedding breakfast the newlyweds left on a wedding trip, the destination uncertain. When they return they will be at home to their friends in Ord, and Mr. Parkos will continue his work in the court house.

Hold Huge Picnic.

Partly because Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Bell were here from California, and also because it chanced to be Mrs. Bell's birthday, and further, that it was the 30th anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Butcher's wedding, a huge gathering of the Bells, Butchers and all their kin was held at Pebble Creek north of Burwell Sunday. It was held there because J. K. Butcher first met his wife on that farm. In all there were 120 persons present. The families represented were the F. J. Bells, the Joe Rowlands, the W. H. Butchers, both senior and junior, the G. H. Maxsons, the Edgar Shermans, the Roy Alders, the B. W. Butchers, the J. K. Butchers, the Wayne Hesselgessers, the Gus Sherbaths, the John Ebermans, the Lloyd Herricks, the Axel Hansens, the Martin Michaleks, the Ben Morris, the Ira Matley's, the John Tiffs, and the Clay McGrews. Some had not met in years, and a few had never met, but needless to say, they all had a good time, and there was plenty to eat.

Pinocle Club Meets.

The pinocle club met at the home of Mrs. George Zikmund Tuesday afternoon and served a covered dish luncheon in honor of the ladies' birthdays. They were Mrs. Joe Puncocchar, Mrs. Winnie Anderson, Mrs. George Zikmund, Mrs. Will Misko and Mrs. Lloyd Benjamin, a former member. High score was held by Mrs. J. T. Knezacek and low by Mrs. W. A. Bartlett. Guests were Mrs. George Hastings sr., and Mrs. George Hastings, jr., of Arcadia. A very pleasant time was had.

Distributed 5 doz. magazines, Sunday school papers and quarterlies, 2 undershirts, 3 pr. bloomers and 2 pillow cases.

Mrs. Minnie Carlton, Ord, Nebr. Chairman Volunteer service, Valley Co. Chapter, American Red Cross.

No Cause for Alarm.

John S. Hoff notifies the Quiz that people who drive along the road south of his cornfield out in Mira Valley need have no alarm at the loud popping noises they hear. It is not a belated 4th of July celebration, nor is it bandits shooting at passing cars. It is merely the corn shooting, and it is doing a real job of it now, as it is the first real chance it has had for several years. Mr. Hoff reports about 1½ inches of rain Monday night, which should do wonders for the valley corn crop.

Beaux and Belles of the Future

Arden William McDermott is the 17 months old son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank McDermott, who live 6 miles west of North Loup.

Scotia Man Prizes Ft. Hartsuff Relic

A board, about nine inches wide by three feet long, is in possession of Howard Anderson of Scotia, Nebr., given to him by the present tenant of the Fort Hartsuff property. On the board is the inscription, "AAQM FT. HARTSUFF, NEBR." Valued highly by Mr. Anderson as a bit of historical antiquity, the board was apparently at one time a part of a ceiling or a floor, as the main portions of the buildings were constructed of concrete. Only three of the pieces on which the fort's name had been stenciled have been found by the present occupant of the place.

There has been not a little agitation to repair the buildings and open the old fort to the public as a historical site. Considerable repairs would be necessary but the idea has possibilities and many Central Nebraska citizens are in favor of it. At present the fort structures are used as farm buildings.

The fort, located near Elyria, nine miles north of Ord, was built in 1874 when the Sioux Indians were harassing the white settlers and was used only a few years. Constructed on recommendation of General Ord, after whom the Valley county seat was named, the fort served no great purpose. Marion Littlefield's death at the hands of the Sioux was the direct incentive for the fort's construction. Some of the pipe originally installed at the fort is still in use and carries water from a well on a hill overlooking the buildings. On the hill there used to be a tower from which the surrounding territory could be watched for marauding Indians.

Promptness in getting the doctor on the job when the animals are found sick will probably save their lives.

The carving includes an old time stage coach and a cabin with the name "Cougar Gulch, Wyoming" above the door. There are four horses on the coach, and a number of horsemen and men on foot are standing about. Everything is built in miniature.

A Lovely Summer Sunset Scene Across The Patchen Pond

One of the loveliest and most accessible beauty spots near Ord is the Patchen ice pond down along the Burlington tracks. In the years since it was first built the trees have grown all around it and on a quiet evening the reflections in the water are exceptionally beautiful.

A Story of the Dim Past is Found in Land Masses and Fossil Remains of the Loup River Valley

Ord Area Contains Much Evidence of Nature's Work Here in Central Nebraska Millions of Years Before Man.

BY RAY COLTON, Science Writer.

(Editor's Note—In this article which is number one of a special series of four dealing with the prehistoric past of what is today the geographical confines of Valley and the southwest portion of Greeley county, the writer opens with an allegorical study of what transpired here millions of years ago. As the story unfolds, the reader is given an astounding account of the findings of field scientists who have been engaged in piecing together geological and other evidence which has been gained by a systematic study of the Ord area. Republishing in whole or in part of this article by any other newspaper, is prohibited by the writer.)

Nature Creates Valley County and the Loup River Valley Area. Millions of years before the advent of the Nebraska pioneers, Old Mother Nature began to write the prehistoric past of what is today the central portion of Nebraska and the area known geographically as Valley county. Not on a tablet or on written or printed page did nature leave the message which tells to geologists of her work here in the dim past, but instead she has caused the record to be indelibly inscribed in the form of fossils, thin lines of strata, rocks and soil formations. In the remains of sea life consisting of shells, fossil fish, shark's teeth, etc., which have been found in the area southwest of Ord, nature tells of the time when a vast sea rolled over this part of the North American continent. In the imprinted rocks which appear in the area around Arcadia, she tells of the time when vast tropical jungles and various species of botanical life were here. In these, and in many other ways, has nature left the message of her work here in the dim past for man of today to read. Man in the role of the geologist, has learned to read all of these signs with unerring accuracy.

The Ancient Nebraska Sea; Valley County Under Water. It has been determined on the basis of fossil marine life which has been found in the area around Ord, especially in the hill section west of highway 11, and to the southwest of the city, that during that period of the earth's prehistoric past which is termed geologically as the Silurian Age about 200 million years ago, a vast inland sea rolled over what is today the confines of Valley county. In this sea, which had a probable depth of one hundred feet in this part of Nebraska, there existed innumerable species of marine life consisting of sharks, fish, shells, etc. The sea remained here for countless centuries as a study of the fossil remains and land masses show.

Finally, Old Mother Nature decided upon a change, and geologists note that the transition from the sea to the land masses occurred here with extreme suddenness. This phenomena is accounted for in the following manner:

"Subterranean gases which formed in the bottom of the sea suddenly exploded, with the result that the land masses which are here today were forced upward thus causing a gradual recession of the main body of waters. Surplus waters, which failed entirely to drain off, formed into lakes of various sizes. One has only to study the rise and fall of the topographical plane of the western portion of Valley county to note that the lake beds of these ancient lakes are still here. Saline deposits, fossil shells and forms of potash have been found in these lake beds west of Ord."

As the cataclysm continued, land masses began to shift. Anticlines were formed and the marine life was imprisoned within the folds of strata of these anticlinal structures one of which underlies the Loup River valley passing through Ord from the northwest. To the marine life and to these anticlines, do oil geologists look for the basic foundation for crude oil which is believed to underlie this part of Nebraska. This will be discussed in another article of this series which will deal exclusively with the potential mineral resources of Valley county.

Rocks Show that Tropical Age Was in Evidence Here.

Field paleontologists have found in the area around Arcadia near the Middle Loup river in the extreme southwest corner of Valley county, several rocks which contain the imprints or impressions of plant life such as fern and palm. It is known through a systematic study of present botanical life, that only a tropical climatic era could have nourished species of this nature to maturity. On this basis, it appears that the Mesozoic Age which came countless centuries after the upheaval which destroyed the sea and created the land masses, brought into what is today the Loup river valley, a climatic condition comparable to that now existing in Central America, Cuba, Mexico and portions of southern Florida and California. The rocks found in the area around Arcadia date back to approximately 75 million years. Fossil remains consisting of portions of vertebrae and teeth of extinct land reptiles of the species known to science as dinosaurs, have also been found in this part of Valley county.

(Editor's Note—In the next issue of the Quiz, Mr. Colton will discuss the tropical age here and tell of the reptilian life which inhabited this part of Nebraska millions of years ago. Appropriate illustrations will be used with this article.)

A Grasshopper Tale.

A certain farmer out in Mira Valley was walking across his stubble field when he lost his can of Prince Albert out of his hip pocket. As soon as he discovered the loss he retraced his steps. Presently he saw a couple of rabbits hopping about in a peculiar manner, and when he approached close enough to see what was going on he found that the grasshoppers had found the tobacco and were chewing it and spitting the juice in the rabbits' eyes. Jim Holmington told us this story only on condition that we would keep his name out of it, so we will try not to mention him.

Bertha Catlin left for her home in Arcadia Saturday morning after an extended visit with Mrs. Emma Hurd. Mrs. Hurd has received a letter from Mrs. E. T. Woolery in which she states that they are enjoying good health and finding plenty of work at good wages in Nampa, Idaho. Ernest has been working practically all the time and is drawing $1.00 per hour for an eight hour day.

What Other Editors Are Saying

Schuyler Sun.—Ted Kokes, registered pharmacist employed at the Godel Pharmacy since a year ago last February, leaves Friday for Ord, his old home town, where he will become pharmacist in the Sorensen Drug Co., store. During his residence here Ted has made many friends who regret to see him leave, but all wish him success.

Comstock News.—Mr. and Mrs. Joe Suchanek of near Ord brought their daughter, Isabelle, to Comstock Monday and she accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Chalupsky to Kearney, where she took the train for Cheyenne, Wyo.—Most of the Comstock business houses closed their doors Monday of this week, and many of the business folk attended the celebration at Ord that day. Several people remarked that the celebration at Ord was ideal in the fact that not a firecracker could be heard. The time is coming when all firecrackers will be banned.

Adrian Echo.—At Lakehurst, N. J., a survivor of the Hindenburg crew saw a robin on a nest in the blackened framework of the former queen of the air and viewed it as a good omen. Heinrich Bauer visited the wreckage, saw the nest, a blue egg in it and remarked: "It is a good omen. The Hindenburg is dead but from its remains new life springs. So lighter than air craft shall take on new life."

Burwell Tribune.—Many that attended the celebration at Ord Monday are enthusiastic over the absence of firecrackers. A lot of towns in Nebraska have adopted ordinances of this kind during the past year. Youngsters can get just as much enjoyment out of the 4th without as with firecrackers, and the danger is greatly decreased. An ordinance of this kind would not be out of line for Burwell.

Schuyler Sun.—Maybe the fish still needed cleaning, but Tom Daulel of Schuyler found a bar of toilet soap in a five pound catfish he caught at Mentzer's lake near here.—Last week two oxen were offered for sale at the Sioux City stockyards. Stockmen looked over their records and found that these were the first oxen to be offered for sale in 30 years. Few of these beasts of burden are left in the middle west.

Hamburg (Iowa) Reporter.—On Monday night one of the city pumps broke down and the city water supply is reduced down almost to minus, in fact. The citizens voted for improvements in the water system last September which was to have included new pumping equipment.

Platte Valley Tribune.—Everything is O. K. now for O. K. Campbell, of the Campbell service station, a daughter being born to Mrs. Campbell (O. K. if you please) at the Good Samaritan hospital.

Clay Center Sun.—A fire caused by lightning Monday evening called off the fire department to the Pat Delahunty farm, where they extinguished a blaze in an oats field.

A fire in a wheat field southwest of Clay Center on the Walter Harms farm required the attention of the fire department Wednesday evening.

Morning Spotlight.—Hastings has had 11 grass fires that required the attention of the fire department since June 30. No doubt the grass is very dry and smokers are as careless with cigarette butts there as elsewhere.

Palmer Journal.—George DeBord and family returned from Omaha Wednesday of last week and Geo. took up a twelve day job as substitute railway mail clerk on the Palmer-Burwell run. The regular mail clerk, Leo Hunt, is taking a vacation.

Greeley Citizen.—Mrs. Otto Puncocar of Chicago visited at the home of George Puncocar Tuesday. She also visited in Ord.

Phonograph.—Leah Carlson and Virginia VanDecar visited at the Dr. Thompson home on the way back to Lincoln after the 4th.—Mr. and Mrs. Art Lewis went to Palmer Sunday to visit the Spliger families.

Howard Co. Herald.—Bernice Fuhrer visited in Ord over the 4th.—John Duemey and family visited in Ord July 5th. Mr. I. O. Jacobson visited friends in Ord.

Delos Bell, who spent several days visiting relatives and friends here, returned to his home in Sterling, Colo.

Air Mail Delivery.

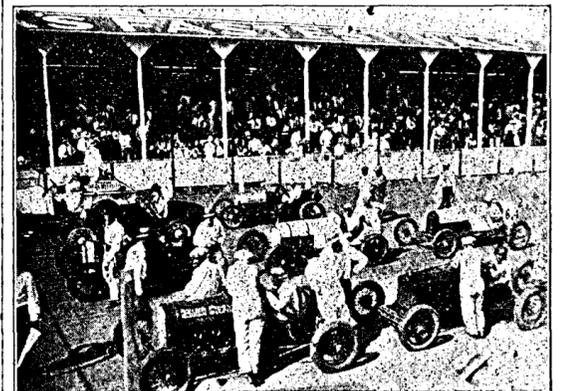

A postcard addressed to Minnie Johnson, Route 3, and bearing a 1909 Creighton postmark, was found last week by Mrs. Kermit Smith of Oberlin in one of their fields, blown there, it is supposed, by the windstorm of a couple of weeks ago. The card, with the handwriting still discernible, told about a play in Creighton that evening, September 22.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Cohen went to Madison, Wis., Wednesday to visit Bill Cohen and family. They expected to be gone two weeks. Bill is employed in a packing house there, cutting the bones out of hams.

Battling Grasshoppers to Save West's Harvest

Prospects of the first bumper small grain crop in five years in the west, particularly the "dust-bowl" regions, were dimmed when swarming hordes of grasshoppers descended, threatening plant life. Indication of the plague is represented by the photo above, left, showing how 'hoppers blanketed a sheet. Chief weapon in the farmers' onslaught on these pests is a solution of poisoned sawdust mixed with blackstrap molasses. Thousands of tons have been distributed by truck, right, in an effort to head off the 'hoppers before they develop wings and spread still more widely. State and federal governments combined forces in an eradication campaign. Focal point of the first drive was eastern Colorado where these pictures were taken, although other western states faced the same menace.

Aabel Outlines Plan To Buy Old Fort

The following letter from Moritz Aabel of Wilcox, Nebr., explains itself:

"Editor Ord Quiz,
Dear Sir: Your article of recent date regarding Ft. Hartsuff has just come to my attention, and you are to be commended for trying to preserve this historic site. In this county we have old Ft. Kearney but we made a mistake of waiting until all buildings had been destroyed before we woke up. However, we finally got busy and organized the Fort Kearney Memorial association and for your information I am inclosing a share of stock that I bought in this association.

The association was formed by Buffalo and Kearney counties and after the land was purchased from private parties it was deeded to the state in order to make a state park out of it. As you no doubt know it is now a state park. I would suggest that you people organize a similar association and subscribe money from the general public in order to buy the land if it can be bought. Then give it to the state in order to have a state park.

Very truly yours,
Moritz Aabel."

The stock certificate he incloses contains a cut of old Ft. Kearney. Burwell and Ord Must Contract For Electric Energy

Dunmire Says Grant Money Almost Exhausted; Cities Asked To Sign.

The North Loup River Power and Irrigation District has now developed to a point where arrangements must be made not only for the purchase of power from the North Platte project, but also for the sale of this power to the municipalities of Ord and Burwell. E. H. Dunmire, project engineer, disclosed Tuesday. This development has been understood from the beginning, and must naturally follow the depletion of the grant money.

There should be no difficulty in making the required arrangements, however. The district hopes to complete arrangements for purchase with the North Platte district by the end of this week. The action of the city council of Ord and that of the village board of Burwell will be sufficient to satisfy the authorities. Some steps have already been taken, and authorities feel it will only be a question of a short time until the contracts for the sale of power to both municipalities will have been completed.

In so far as the district is concerned the bond history has been approved and all papers have been prepared and cleared with the exception of the purchase of energy from North Platte, and the disposal of energy to Ord and Burwell. When these arrangements have been completed there will be no cause for delay until the entire job is finished and water running bank full in all the ditches.

A. C. Adams, Burwell Hurt In Car Crash

A. C. Adams, 65, well known Burwell billiard hall owner, is in serious condition at St. Francis hospital in Grand Island as a result of an auto crash near Doniphan last Wednesday evening. C. A. Grunkemeyer of Burwell, driving his mother's car, with Adams as passenger, sideswiped a car belonging to John Gerdes on the highway 12 miles south of Grand Island. The men were returning from a visit to Hastings when the accident occurred. Grunkemeyer was thrown clear of the car, but Adams was pinned fast when the car went into the ditch.

Passing motorists brought the men to Grand Island, where examination showed that Adams had nine broken ribs and the collar bone on the left side broken and his chest badly crushed. Grunkemeyer sustained minor injuries and suffered severe shock, but was not seriously injured, and returned to his home in Burwell the same night. Adams is still in the St. Francis hospital as this is written, and his condition prohibits his removal at the present time.

The two cars met at an intersection, and, according to evidence, neither driver saw the other car until they were upon each other. The Grunkemeyer car, traveling down the center of the road, at the rate of about 50 miles per hour, either hit or sideswiped the Gerdes car at the front end, went on north through the intersection and into the ditch, where it left the ground for approximately 25 feet and landed on its left side with its nose in the ditch on the east side of the highway.

Mr. Adams has been in business in Burwell for the past 25 years, and prior to that time lived in the Doniphan neighborhood. Grunkemeyer is also a well known Burwell business man, running the Grunkemeyer meat market in conjunction with his brothers. He is an experienced driver. Those who investigated the scene of the accident are of the opinion that it was unavoidable, no negligence being shown on the part of either driver.

Deacon Sells to E. B. Breck, Grand Island

By virtue of a deal entered into by Virgil McBurney, better known as "Deacon", last week with E. B. Breck of Grand Island, the latter takes over his metal and auto parts business. Mr. Breck has signed a 5-year lease for the building with the owner, W. H. Moses. Phil Sorahan is in charge of the business and states that the building will be completely overhauled and redecorated. A large stock of both new and used auto parts will be carried at all times. Old cars will be torn down for parts, but no auto repair work will be done by the new company, which will be known as Ord Auto Parts. They will also handle iron and metal.

Deacon has moved to the Blessing building one half block due east from the old location, and will specialize in welding and repair work of all kinds. In the two and one half years that Deacon was located in the Moses building he built up a splendid business, and his old customers will find him conveniently located just across the street.

Ord Firemen Fight Shoe Store Fire

When the fire siren sounded at 6:30 Friday evening the firemen were on the job in a hurry, as they always are, but they were no quicker than the Quiz photographer, Daemey, who caught the above picture before the crowd arrived.

Fire of Unknown Origin Damages Sid's Booterie

Firemen Respond Quickly and Confine Blaze to Small Area.

Fire of unknown origin did considerable damage in the shoe store of Sid Solson, known as Sid's Booterie, Friday evening. The fire was discovered at about 6:30. When the firemen responded they found that the blaze was confined to a space at the northwest corner of the room, between the front shelves and another row back against the wall used for reserve stock.

The stock and shelves in the immediate vicinity of the fire was badly damaged, but the only damage to the main part of the stock was from smoke and water. The firemen used the water as sparingly as possible when they found that they could keep the fire under control, in view of the fact that the Benjamin barber shop is directly below. Mr. Solson informs the Quiz that the damage was covered by insurance, and that the entire stock will be sold out as soon as possible, beginning Friday. Insurance adjusters were here yesterday and made settlement with Mr. Solson.

The owner of the building, Mr. Kull, carried insurance which will take care of all damage. The fire department is to be commended for the speed with which they responded to the call. It is also fortunate that the fire occurred at the time it did instead of at a late hour of the night, as the Benjamins, W. W. Brown and Ira Lindsey all have rooms in the upper floor.

Explosion Damages Schauer Home

Sunday morning while Mr. and Mrs. Bill Schauer were doing up the chores the stove in the kitchen exploded with great force, blowing most of the window lights out of the house, and doing other damage. Some of the children were in the house at the time, but luckily escaped injury. Mr. Schauer had purchased the stove at the sale Saturday, had cleaned it up, and had one burner lighted and apparently working all right. It is supposed that some oil had leaked into another burner and that the accumulated gas caused the explosion. They are indeed glad that it was no worse.

Fusons Will Sing.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Fuson of New York City will sing at the Methodist church next Sunday morning at the 11 o'clock hour. The Fusons are well known in Ord, having sung here at numerous times in the past. They have a private school of music in the city of New York, and have been on a concert tour in the west this month. They are conducting a short school of music for voice pupils during their visit in Ord the latter part of July.

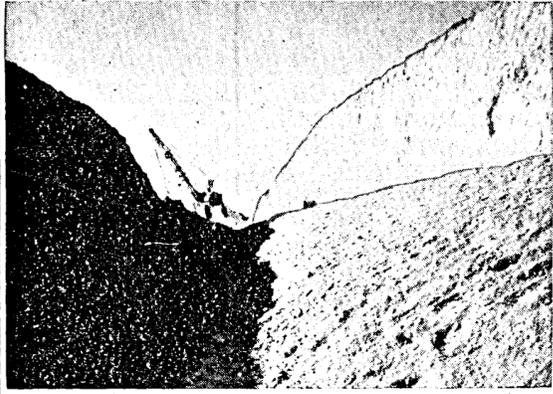

Return from Trip.

Emil Darges, Don Tunncliff and Dick Puncocar returned Sunday from their 30 day trip to the west. Mr. and Mrs. Don Lashmet, who went with them, remained out on the coast. Dick Puncocar went with them as far as Buhl, Idaho, where he visited with friends. Mr. and Mrs. Lashmet went to Newport, Oregon. Darges and Tunncliff put in most of their time at San Francisco and Richmond, Calif. They all had a swell time, the weather being cool, not over 75 nor under 60 degrees at any time. They went to Oakland where they visited the airport, which is very interesting as ships are landing or taking off every minute of the day. They took a special interest in the big bridge, which they crossed several times.

Mail Delayed.

A breakdown of the Union Pacific motor Friday evening delayed the evening mail until supper time. The motor was boosted into Ord by an engine from Grand Island.

30-Foot Cut on Burwell-Sumter Ditch

Above is shown the deepest cut on the Burwell-Sumter ditch. It is located on land owned by the Travelers Insurance company north and west of the Bailey school. At this point the high ridge comes right down to the edge of Haskell creek and makes an abrupt drop to a point far below the level of the ditch. For this reason it was necessary to cut through the bank for several hundred feet. The work was nearly completed at the time the picture was taken. The cut runs nearly due north and south. The picture was taken from the south with the drag line about 300 feet away. The banks to the right and left are 26 1/2 feet high to the shoulder, or 32 1/2 feet high from the bottom of the ditch and the width across the cut is about 75 feet. The cubic yardage of dirt moved in a space of 750 feet of ditch was 35,000. Most of this was lifted by the drag line over the walls and piled fifteen to twenty feet high along both sides of the cut. From this point the line of the ditch makes a huge horseshoe, going about a mile north and curving back to a point to the northwest and on the opposite side of Haskell creek. The ditch is not a continuous line from the starting point near Sumter, as several parcels of land along the line had to be condemned. These will be dug later. This is a part of the work done by J. E. Morgan of Jackson, Miss.

Sevenker Apricots Fruited This Year

For the first time in many years the apricot trees on the John Sevenker lots in southeast Ord are full of fruit this summer. Just how full they are is strikingly shown in the above picture, showing Mr. Sevenker holding up two branches completely covered with fruit. He has several trees of them, and the one shown in the picture yielded two bushels of fruit. He has taken care of these trees for 15 years and this is the first crop he has harvested.

Ahleen Nelson Wed To Ross Blessing

Miss Ahleen Nelson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emil Nelson of Burwell, became the bride of Ross Blessing, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Blessing of Ord, Tuesday afternoon. Accompanied by Bill Rasset and Ruth Long, the couple were married by Judge Scott of Greeley.

—Harry Christensen of Neligh came over Tuesday and had his tonsils removed by Dr. F. A. Barta.

Drenching Rain Brings Cheer To County's Farmers

Moisture Ranging From 25 To 4 Inches Covers County, Some Hail Damage.

The heaviest rain of 1937 fell Sunday, covering the entire county and other neighboring territory. The Monday papers report that heavy rains fell all over the eastern part of the state. In Ord the rainfall totaled 1.41 inches, starting at about three o'clock and continuing for nearly two hours. While the fall was heavy at times, very little damage was done and there was little wind and no hail. At Burwell the rainfall was much heavier, and it was accompanied by some hail. The heaviest rainfall in this section as well as the heaviest hail, passed through the territory south from Burwell. In the middle of its path the rainfall is estimated to have exceeded 4 inches in places, and the hail was sufficient to do considerable damage to crops. Arcadia reports 1.34 inches of rain and some hail. North Loup was again in the light sector, receiving only .46 of an inch. The heavy rains have persistently missed North Loup all season and the crops there are badly in need of rain. Because of the dry weather the grasshoppers have been worse there than at other points. John Kokes reports a two inch rain at his place on the sand flats, and quite a heavy hail further east near the east county line. The hail strip started near the Ford Buttes place in Garfield county and extended south through the Charles Veleba neighborhood, south through Mira Valley and Davis Creek, and stopped over in the edge of Sherman county. The hail was quite severe in spots, but most of the farmers are of the opinion that the corn will still come out and make a fair crop. Clay McGrew, who came up from Loup City after the rain, said the rain there would amount to an inch or more, and that crops along the highway looked ragged from the hail. Lloyd Rusk drove over from Broken Bow Sunday evening. He reported no rain at Broken Bow, but said there was a very heavy rain half way over to Westerville, and a good rain from there all the way to Ord. He also said that what appeared to be a bad storm was raging over along the Platte valley south of Broken Bow and on east. The rain filled Turtle creek bank full along highway No. 11 near Elyria, but the large bridges took care of the water without damage to the roadway.

Ord Softballers Trim Arcadians Thursday Night

Arcadia Girls' Team Too Much For Ord Girls In Opener.

Tied up with one win over each other, the Arcadia and Ord softball teams had a general mix-up last Thursday night on the Ord diamond, the Ordites emerging victor by a narrow 6 to 5 score. Beegly was on the mound for the Ordsters and pitched ball which kept the Arcadians in a constant daze. The game was well attended and declared to be one of the best of the year.

On the same evenings program, the Ord ladies softball team met the Arcadia ladies team. The Arcadians proved their superiority in this division by beating the Ord ten by a very wide score. This makes the second straight win by the Arcadia team over the Ord ladies.

K. P.'s Wallop K. C.'s

Play continued in the Ord Inter-city softball league Tuesday night with one game being played. In the only game of the evening, the K. P. team poured it on the K. C.'s by a lopsided 10 to 0 verdict. Safeways advanced another notch in the league standings by winning over the Livestocks 2-0, for forfeit. Although a game was played between the two teams, a forfeit was declared because the Livestocks lacked several players.

A practice game was held on the same evening, the Ord ladies' team going through their paces in grand manner in preparation for some hard games next week.

Knezacek Building On New Foundation

The past week the building recently purchased by J. T. Knezacek and now occupied by the Valley County Abstract company has been undergoing changes. John K. Jensen and his men raised the building and put new joists under the floor. Then John Mason laid a new tile foundation all the way around. Finally A. J. Cook replaced the rotten boards around the bottom with new lumber. When it gets the new paint that Joe has promised the building will present a much improved appearance.

Attend Sheriff's Convention.

Sheriff George Round and night marshal Roy Pardue left Sunday morning by car for Chadron where the sheriff's state convention was to be held on Monday and Tuesday of this week. Former state sheriff William Condit and Mrs. Condit drove into Ord early Sunday morning, also bound for Chadron. Mr. Condit now is a representative of the state bankers' association. The Condit's planned to return by way of Ericson and spend a day fishing there.

Installed New Churn.

Recently the Ord Co-operative Creamery installed a new churn. The old one was replaced, not because it was worn out, but in order to keep the equipment up to the highest point of efficiency. A company doing business on such a large scale as the Co-op does must have everything in first class condition at all times.

A Correction.

The story of the wreck last week should have read W. J. Klat instead of Joe Klat, who was not in the car at the time.

McGinnis; horses and mules, Dave Arnold; cattle, Kenneth Koelling; swine, Don Round; poultry, A. R. Zabludil; club work, Miss Grace Lee; and Valley county schools department, Miss Clara McClatchey.

Mill at Arapahoe Destroyed by Fire

The Arapahoe Flour Mills, one of the largest milling plants in Nebraska, was completely destroyed by fire Thursday. Defective electric wiring on the third floor is believed to have been the cause. The heat was so great that nothing could be done except to keep the flames from the rest of the town. The only thing saved was two truckloads of flour. J. M. Beegly has been managing the mill since leaving Ord several years ago.

Hunting Accident Victim Recovering

Eddie Bartos, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bartos of Garfield county, is reported as doing as well as could be expected in the Cram hospital where he was taken following a hunting accident Wednesday evening of last week. After the day's work was done young Bartos started out with a .22 caliber rifle to shoot jack rabbits. He wounded one, and in running after it accidentally discharged the rifle, the bullet passing through his abdomen. He was taken to the hospital at once where an operation was performed and the perforations sewed up, there being four in the intestines.

Burwell Men Held For Hog Stealing

Sheriff Johnson of Burwell and Sheriff Fox of Custer county were called to Ogallala last week where Lew Peyton and Bob Shaffer had been arrested for stealing hogs. They had been picked up about 12 miles south of Chappell with two fat hogs in their car. They had been spending some time in a tourist camp at North Platte, and making numerous night trips, no one knew where. It is believed that their arrest will clear up a number of similar cases, some of which are in Custer county. Both have been in trouble with the law before, in the making and selling of illicit liquor.

Arcadia Woman Injured In Fall

Mrs. Olive Brown was injured severely last week when she fell down a flight of stairs in the dark about two o'clock in the morning. She was unable to summon help till about five in the morning when she called to Mrs. Glenn Rex after slowly working her way to the outside door where she waited several hours.

Mail Delayed.

A breakdown of the Union Pacific motor Friday evening delayed the evening mail until supper time. The motor was boosted into Ord by an engine from Grand Island.

Ord Children Enjoy Swimming Lessons With Competent Instructors

The Red Cross swimming school is progressing nicely under the tutelage of Miss Evelyn Sharp, who is proving herself an expert teacher. Two lessons have been given to date, with 15 present the first day, and 23 the second day. Interest is keen, and the pupils, ranging in age from about 4 to 12 years, are enthusiastic over their work. The first lessons were given near the highway bridge, but from now on they will be held straight east of M street in the gravel pit there. A space of safe water has been fenced off, and the pupils are required to remain inside the lines. Miss Sharp recently took a course in swimming and life saving in Colorado, and is well fitted for her duties. The lessons consist of: first, breathing; second, the jellyfish float; third, the prone float; fourth, the back float; fifth, the leg kick; and sixth, the arm stroke. When these are learned the pupil naturally combines them in swimming. The swimming classes will continue until September 1st. There will be two classes each afternoon, and two to three classes per week. The first class will be from 2:00 to 3:30 and the second from 3:30 to 5:00. The pupils are meeting at the Legion Hall and are being transported to the river from there. In the above picture taken by LaVern Duemey, left, shows Miss Sharp giving the class their first exercise, center, a snap of Jimmy Misko, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Misko, one of the youngest members of the class, right, the class getting wet the first time.

My Own Column By H. D. Leggett

Nisswa, Minn., July 16, 1937 Dear Quiz:

This house is so full of folks that I am writing this standing up with my typewriter on top of the chest of drawers. There are ten of us since Eugene and I came yesterday morning and that fills the cottage up pretty well. We are having a spell of unusual weather, unusually wet and cold. In May and June we had 24 days with rain out of 27 in one stretch. Then we had occasional showers pretty regularly until nearly July 1 when it quit raining and by Tuesday, July 13 it was getting pretty dry and we had several days of what folks hereabouts call hot weather. It was up around 100 pretty near every day for four days, but cooled off at night. But Wednesday it rained and such a rain. We don't know just how much it rained but it was somewhere between 3 and 3 inches. Old timers say it was the most water they ever saw fall in one day. This is Friday the 16th and it is still cloudy and drizzling and most disgusting to fishermen on their vacations with limited time to fish. As I write the boys are sitting by the heating stove with a good fire going and discussing (and cursing) the weather. But it will no doubt clear up within a day or two and we will forget the bad weather.

That was some story that Vernie Andersen had in the Quiz last week. I feel that I can vouch for the truth of it, though I didn't see his big fish till the next day when I happened to seine it when catching bait and I used it while fishing walleyes. I wouldn't have recognized it but for the fact that it still had some of Vernie's tackle caught in its mouth. Another reason why I am willing to vouch for Vernie's story is because it was just as near the truth as anything I ever heard him tell. Vernie is one of the boys who won't lie about anything. He will tell it a dozen different ways before he will lie about it.

The Bill Morrow family from Alliance are in my other cottage and are they disgusted. Bill don't dare say much because he went up to the Yellowstone a while back on a trout fishing trip and only had five days to stay and it rained five days so he didn't get any fishing. Now he doesn't dare say that he never had such rotten weather before. He is going to be here two weeks however and so will no doubt get some good fishing before he leaves. There are nine in his party so his cottage is also pretty well filled up.

When you read this Editor Jess Kovanda of the Back Forty will be on Cullen lake. I arranged for him to move into the Mrs. Simpson cottage and I do hope he will have favorable weather and good fishing.

No one knows yet just what the big rain is going to do to the fishing because, as yet, we have not had a chance to try it out. I judge from past experience in such cases, that we will have to have a few good, bright days before fishing will be good again. High water generally slows up the fishing, the reason no doubt being that the fish seek new locations when the water level changes and we have to locate them before we can catch them. Under normal conditions we soon learn where the fish are located and we go to certain points or bars to get the kind of fish we want. Just before the big rain we could get plenty of bass early in the morning by casting plugs up into shallow water in front of the rushes and in the middle of the day we got them with live minnows in ten feet of water around the points and bars. We can catch sunfish and bluegills any time, rain or shine and in almost any kind of water. But we have to hunt for the larva ones. They are so thick in our lake that the small ones usually beat the big ones to the bait unless we go into deep water and locate the schools of big ones.

I had expected to write this letter after arriving in Ord Sunday the 15th, but when Eugene arrived at the lake yesterday he told me he had business matters that would require his being home this week end and that there was no use of my taking that long trip for a week; that John and Harry and the balance of the force could handle the issue with both of us away. So we deferred our home coming until some later date.

probably late in September. It didn't take a lot of coaxing to get us to stay here when the boys told us how hot it was in Ord. Another thing that encouraged us to stay was the reports we are getting of rain in Nebraska and the fine corn prospect. I sure hope all your fondest hopes will be more than realized. This is going to be one of the greatest crop years in the history of this country.

L. B. Fenner has a force of workmen busy putting the finishing touches on fine improvements to his cottage, next door to the north. He saw the improvements I made on the Clements cottage, the bug bit him and he has been going strong since, new windows, new shades, new plywood lining throughout the house, all stained and varnished till the walls are mirrors in which you could all see yourselves if you were there. Before he started the former Clements cottage was acknowledged to be the finest in camp. Now the Fenner cottage will wear the crown until someone else gets bitten by the bug. Will it be the Gelows this fall? They are reported to have ambitions along that line but they are going to have to let loose of a lot of their dinero if they surpass what has already been done.

H. D. Leggett.

Something DIFFERENT

Three children, Shirley who just turned eight, Coralee who is five and Kerry who is three, are taming fish. In our "front yard" are many small bluegills, occasionally a few bigger fish. I mean close around the dock. So the children beg for bread to take out, and then hold small pieces down in the water for the fish. Soon a half-bushel of fish are darting after the bread with great rivalry. From a little way off the top of the water looks boiling.

And a family of wild ducks that has become very tame waddles down early every morning to haunt the yard until they are well stuffed with bread or whatever they are offered. The children are thrilled, and the bread in this house disappears as if by magic.

Jimmy Luther always shot red squirrels because they damaged so many bird nests, but when he found a family of tiny red squirrel babies this spring, he took them home for pets. Everyone teased him about the sudden about-face, but Jimmy fed them with a medicine dropper and enjoyed the quick, cunning things. They climb over him so fast.

Now the red squirrels can drink milk from a saucer, and are thriving like weeds. And they like bread too. Yesterday two of them got a good hold on the same piece of bread and braced themselves against each other, foot to foot, tugging as hard as they could, scolding each other in squirrel swear words worse than any humans use, and noisier too.

Frank Johnson, no longer working for the Beranek Drug store, is planning to take a trip, he and his wife. His pleasant way and quiet personality will be missed in Ord. So unobtrusive, Mr. Johnson never was one to make a splash in Ord, but was content to remain in the background of events.

Mr. Johnsons leisure time is practically all spent at a pastime as unobtrusive as himself,—reading. For many years Mr. Johnson has been an omnivorous reader.

Mrs. H. D. Leggett spends many pleasant hours studying nature around her Minnesota home, particularly bird life. Their yard has many bird houses for wrens, martins, and other feathered comers. Then a high-perched oriole nest swings in one tree; some wild canaries have a nest in another; a red-throated humming bird or two make the rounds of the flowers in the rock garden regularly and amaze us all with their delicacy.

The bigger birds are fascinating to us, loons particularly so. Two adults and two loon babies have become more used to civilization this summer than ever before and do not always dive when a boat with motor purrs noisily by. They float near the dock, very curious about us.

Cranes are fantastic creatures with their long legs. A few days ago our boat went near one and he easily soared to a very high perch in a tree. We were surprised, not knowing he could do that.

A summer or two ago a kingfisher used to stand on one long leg on the edge of our minnow box almost every day. He had found a lazy way to get minnows for his dinner. But he came to a sad end and ceased to bother us. No, we didn't harm him.

A few days ago Mrs. Leggett proudly exhibited the nest of a vireo. She gave it to Mrs. Gelow, who lectures about birds to the school children of Grand Island each year. On our front porch a huge but fortunately empty hornet's nest hangs, looking oddly as though made of pressed gray paper scallops. Today Mrs. Fenner found a wasp's nest. We have lots of variety.

Decided variety is added to the view by the clothes of the Minnesota resort landscape. Men with blistered herring-red backs calmly burn while they fish. Often they wear shorts of khaki which look cool and comfortable to me. Polo shirts are ordinary, berets not unusual on either sex.

This year, too, many of the ladies are adorned with braided silk halos. Many wear bright bandanas tied 'neath the chin. Shorts and halters are often seen in gayest colors. At the postoffice in Nisswa apparel is as bright and varied as anyone could wish. Gaudy flowered beach coats, all-white play suits, overalls of everything bright, all kinds of bathing suits, and dozens of kinds of slacks and halters, all "clever" and "different."

Lots of nice tanned skins, and always one or two are a near-nigger shade.

Farm livestock should get plenty of salt to eat, especially during hot weather. A new method of giving salt is being tried where there is danger from prussic acid poisoning in connection with cane or sudan grass. When such pasture is used, a small amount of sulphur is mixed with the salt. Sulphur is known to have some value in counteracting against prussic acid poisoning.

Another practice, though of doubtful value, is to add one part lime to three parts salt. This is supposed to prevent bloat. Many farmers have great faith in lime, and claim that it has kept their cattle from bloating when on sweet clover or alfalfa pasture. They keep the salt and lime mixture before the animals at all times. At least it does no harm.

Farm animals must consume more salt in summer to offset the extra amount lost through sweating. If the body's salt reserve drops too low, nature prevents further loss by stopping perspiration. When an animal quits sweating, his body temperature rises, and a sun or heat stroke is apt to occur.

It is not a good plan to salt livestock at irregular intervals only. Animals seldom supplied with salt, may overeat when they get a chance. Abnormal thirst, excessive drinking, and digestive disorders are apt to be the result.

Feeding no salt at all is yet worse. A milk cow will break down completely in a year's time, if deprived of all salt.

Cows in milk, and sheep require the most salt. Horses, fattening cattle, dry cows, and stock cattle can get along on less. Pigs and poultry need but little. A block of salt should be kept in the pasture at all times.

Cherry time is a delightful time of the year, bringing in its wake such delights as fresh cherry cobbler, cherry pie, and other distinctive dishes popular with the family. But it lasts only a short while, to our sorrow. So if you would try any cherry recipes, you must be at it.

Put three cups of pitted cherries in a buttered baking dish, dot with two tablespoons butter, add one-third cup water. Separately, crumble fifteen graham crackers fine, add two teaspoons baking powder, one-fourth teaspoon salt, one-half cup sugar and one-half cup chopped nuts. Combine one-beaten egg, three-fourths cup milk and the dry mixture. Spread over the top of the cherries, making forty minutes.

Mrs. O. E. Wesenberg.

Combine one cup sugar, three-fourths cup butter, three beaten eggs, one teaspoon soda, four tablespoons sweet milk, one cup cherries, and one teaspoon each of cloves, allspice and cinnamon. Bake in three layers, put together with boiled icing. Use cooked cherries.

Mrs. H. M. Grady.

Line a pie tin with pastry. For filling, mix together one cup sugar, one-eighth teaspoon salt, three tablespoons flour, and spread half of it over the pastry. Add one quart of cherries. Sprinkle with a few drops of almond extract, add the remaining sugar mixture. Put on the top crust and bake for forty minutes.

Mrs. H. M. Grady.

Seed and chop one cup dates, sprinkle with one teaspoon soda, pour on them one cup hot water and set aside to cool. Cream together three-fourths cup sugar, one tablespoon shortening, add one egg, add the dates. Sift one cup flour with one teaspoon baking powder, one-half teaspoon salt, add to the batter. Combine with one cup all bran, one cup chopped nuts, and one cup chopped raisins. Pour into a greased loaf pan and bake in a moderate oven.

WASHINGTON LETTER BY SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT

C. I. O. Grows Rapidly to Become Powerful Rival of A. F. of L.

WASHINGTON.—The C. I. O. has grown so fast, that while it is a recognized rival of the A. F. of L., technically it is little more than its name implies, a Committee for Industrial Organizations.

The C. I. O. has no constitution and it has held no national convention. It hasn't had time yet to settle the question of the future relationship of the international and local unions. There has been no time for these details in the short turbulent life of the organizing committee which has grown and spread rapidly and is sending down roots of a national central organization of labor unions. There no longer seems the slightest chance of a reconciliation with the A. F. of L.

The C. I. O. sprouted last March when in a full meeting authority was given for the issuance of certificates of affiliation to national, international, state, regional, city central and other local groups.

International unions affiliated have begun to pay per capita dues to C. I. O. just as they used to pay them to A. F. of L. There are some 227 local industrial unions which have been chartered since March in various industries, but are not covered by the 28 national and international unions affiliated with C. I. O. so they are responsible to the central C. I. O. and pay per capita dues to it.

SIMILAR to the state federations or central labor unions of the A. F. of L., the C. I. O. has some 30 industrial union councils to which it has given charters.

Beginning with eight affiliated international unions, the C. I. O. now claims to be adding about one a week, and about 10 local industrial unions every 10 days.

Sunday dinner and supper guests at the James Sedlacek home were Mr. and Mrs. Joe Novosad, Mr. and Mrs. Will Adamek and family, Mr. and Mrs. Emil Sedlacek, Mr. and Mrs. Steve Sotwinkos and Miss Anna Zadina.

Unofficially the C. I. O. claims about 3,000,000 members and says that's more than the A. F. of L. has.

It is expected that the C. I. O. will call a convention some time in the late summer or early fall, to organize a national labor federation on a permanent basis.

Back in November, 1935, a self-appointed committee of heads of international unions, John Lewis, Sidney Hillman, and other prominent labor leaders, got together to promote industrial unionism and to take advantage of opportunities for organizing which they thought the A. F. of L. had neglected. Except for its policy of taking in and chartering new unions as part of its organization, the basic nature of the committee has remained unchanged from its inception.

WHEN the plans of the committee conflicted more and more with those of the A. F. of L., the committee and most of the unions it represented broke away from the federation.

The A. F. of L. has a complex constitution with a system of voting strength allotted to federal unions, city centrals and international unions which has been worked out over many years. So far, the C. I. O. has no such equipment. Many small local unions have affiliated with the C. I. O., but their relationship in voting strength has yet to be settled. The relationship of unions claiming the same field is complex and must be untangled. But this is in the future.

C. I. O. is still a committee, accepting new members as national and international unions and their leaders volunteer to join. But this group will not and cannot continue for long that way.

A People Prepared by God

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for July 25.

Text: Exodus 12:21-28.

THE origin of the Passover, most distinctive rite of the Jews, is the lesson for the week. A solemn celebration handed down and observed through centuries, it is closest associated with the idea of deliverance, and that idea has remained deep in the faith and vision of a race of people who have been in bondage and oppression in successive eras of history.

In the lesson as it stands, are facts and suggested teachings that are on a lesser plane than the teachings concerning the mercy and grace of God in the New Testament.

Here is an avenging God whose wrath is manifest upon an oppressive people, who smites the Egyptians, but who spares the oppressed Jews in the dwellings where blood of the sacrificial lamb has been spread upon the lintel of the door. It is the passing over of the homes thus identified that gives its name to the passover.

One cannot but reflect upon the fact that the Egyptians who thus perished may have been free from guilt, but in history the innocent have suffered with the guilty.

IT is not easy to teach such a lesson in the light of the gospel of love and forgiveness of one's enemies, and what the New Testament calls "the glorious gospel of the grace of God."

We should stress in our study and teaching the idea of deliverance rather than the thought of vengeance.

Civilization," says, "The story of the redemption from Egypt, which is the traditional basis of the Pesah (passover) festival, should be made the occasion for stressing the implications of the conception of God as redeemer.

"That festival should direct our attention to the need of utilizing the redemptive energies which exist in nature and in man, the energies to which we look to break the shackles of the human spirit. It offers an excellent opportunity for becoming conscious of the true significance and the proper uses of freedom."

THE literature of oppression and deliverance in the history of every people has the discordant elements of heroic action and endurance, passionate loyalty to an ideal or cause, and great deliverance, combined with elements of cruel suffering and retribution.

When oppression arises, it is unfortunate that someone must suffer in the process of deliverance, but it is inevitable. The life of a people becomes subject to the consequences of the wrongful and oppressive acts of its leaders.

We cannot, however, be true to the spirit of the Bible and to the Christ to whom the Bible bears witness if we do not in our reading of all the records of history, both sacred and profane, remember that the supreme teaching of Jesus was that men should love their enemies and do good to them that do spitefully use them and persecute them.

It was in this way, he said, that we might be the children of the one great Father of Love, whose justice is manifest not only in His mercy, but in the inexorable laws that bring to every act of good or evil its necessary consequence.

News from the State Capitol

BY FRED J. MINDER.

The protracted heat wave that brought many Nebraska crops up to the point of suffering was broken pretty generally by rainfall and cooler weather and brought to agriculturalists renewed hope of good yields in most grown commodities and bumper crops in others.

In the state's great corn area the rainfall was deemed sufficient in most localities to carry the growing crop for several weeks. It also aided greatly in the war on grasshoppers as other vegetation took on renewed life and became feed for the pests. No great amount of damage resulted to the unharvested grain because of the rains.

From the western part of the state predictions are for excellent crops. A bumper sugar beet crop, a bumper potato yield, a bean crop the best in years, oats and barley crops the best in seasons, alfalfa yields in hay of bumper proportions and better than average yields in tomato and sweet corn fields with a near average field corn yield predicted. The wheat yield in many parts of the western section was nil.

What for a time caused political-wise to raise perspiration-dripping eyebrows at the hope of a juicy bit of politics was developing, proved to be but a very mild tempest in a small teapot. It was started when Terry Carpenter's newspaper, published at Scottsbluff said rumors had reached the western part of the state that Senator George W. Norris was going to resign because of indigestion and that Judge James C. Quigley, democratic national committeeman, who happened at the moment to be in Washington, had conferred with President Roosevelt about getting the appointment.

First came an emphatic denial from Norris' secretary that the senior senator from Nebraska was even contemplating resigning the seat he fought so hard to get last election.

Second, President Roosevelt has not appointive power where a vacancy in the U. S. senate exists—it is up to the governor of the state to name the man.

Close friends of Judge Quigley say his purpose in Washington was far from seeking an appointment or the promise of one.

Speculation was rife among the hotel lobby gentry as to just who the governor would name to the unexpired term "if and when" Norris would leave the picture, and for each opinion there appeared generally a new name.

As the situation stood it was apparent Carpenter's paper rumor was just a rumor; Senator Norris will remain senator; Judge Quigley was not seeking the post if it did open and politically informed sought some other tid-bit upon which to feast.

Fifty-three of the 300 Nebraska communities having legalized liquor have voted for sales over the bar, records of the liquor commission show. Drink sales are legal in 26 of the states 93 counties.

Many of the larger cities permit sale of beer as the only bar drink. These include Lincoln, Grand Island, Hastings, McCook, Fremont and Beatrice. In Norfolk there are 16 liquor by the drink licenses; Columbus has 12 and North Platte 11. Omaha with a 1930 census population of 214,000 has the largest number of such establishments—357. Tarnov, a town with 83 population in Platte county is the smallest town with a bar.

Douglas and Platte counties share top place with five communities selling hard liquor drinks. Dakota and Colfax counties vie for second position with four towns each. Butler, Knox, Thurston, and Cedar each have three communities where legalized liquor by the drink is dispensed.

Nebraskans numbering 185,199 have been assigned social security account numbers says a July 1 report. During June 21,606 employees received numbers. Nebraska, July, ranked in 34th position in the number of account numbers issued.

From Kansas City came a report that 20 head of fancy steers, fed at Scottsbluff and owned by a Colorado operator brought $16.25—highest price record since January 1930.

Charles G. Newacek, 26, of Plattsmouth has been appointed chief statistician to replace Van L. Taylor, state assistance director, Vandemoer announced. According to Vandemoer, Taylor was replaced "because the federal social security board complained about the reports being incomplete."

Another law calling for police powers but failing to provide the wherewithal to pay the police is a part of the bindweed control statute. It requires every operator of a thresher or combine, immediately after completing the work at hand, to clean his machine, wagons, trucks and other equipment infested the fields. Object: to prevent seeds of weeds from being carried to the next place of threshing, thereby stopping the spread of bindweed, considered a real menace to the state. Notices have been dispatched to all threshers, but the real policing power appears to rest with the next farmer on the thresher equipment list.

Bids for printing 716,000 examiners' certificates to be used by automobile drivers applying for new licenses have been called by the state purchasing department. Under the law which takes effect September 1, all persons operating automobiles must go to the examiner selected for the county and pass the required test. If found efficient the applicant will then be issued the examiner's certificate which is to be presented to the county treasurer where the fee is paid and the license issued. Present holders of drivers' licenses will not be required to submit to all of the tests required by the examiner, unless, in his opinion there is some particular reason for doing so.

Licenses will cost present holders 75 cents each. Persons who do not have licenses will be charged $1. All licenses are good for two years.

Just $40 less than a million dollars was the fire loss in Nebraska for the first six months of 1937, says State Fire Marshall Davis. The daily costs to the state was $5,400, and something over two-thirds of the buildings that have been damaged have been insured where the insurance contents reached a higher average. Compared with the first six months of 1936 the fire loss has been $72,000 higher.

Apparently reflecting the prosperity in Nebraska is the statement that Nebraskans paid $14,018,533 in federal taxes during the government fiscal year ending June 30. George O'Malley, collector of internal revenue reports the total for the preceding year as $9,319,295. Income taxes for the past year were $2,927,338 as compared with $1,967,873 the previous year.

For the fourth time in ten years, Beatrice voters went to the polls to decide whether or not Sunday shows should be legalized. When the votes were counted, 1,525 had voted for Sunday movies and 1,512 opposed it. With a 13 vote lead, proponents waited with abated breath the counting of 26 mail votes that may turn the tide. The proposition failed to carry in 1927, 1932, 1935.

Numerous comments of praise were uttered by Nebraska democrats upon the sudden and untimely death of Senator Joe Robinson of Arkansas. Senator Robinson, one of the administration leaders, spoke several times in behalf of the Democratic cause in the campaign last fall, appearing on several Nebraska platforms.

To see first hand the operation of irrigation projects, Attorney General Hunter has announced he will make a tour of the North Platte valley soon. With him will go his assistant, C. G. Perry. "I would like to talk to the irrigators and see their irrigation works in actual operation," said Hunter.

The ado over flood lighting the Nebraska capitol tower has resulted in no lighting at the moment except for a blinking red light at the feet of "The Sower", and Land Commissioner Leo Swanson, in whose hands the legislature placed $10,000 for the job rushing back to New York for consultation and investigation. Personal views of some of New York's flood-lighted buildings will be had by Swanson.

Flock of Good Samaritans. It was a very shocking scene at the Walter Capellan farm home last Thursday evening, when a large group of neighbors assembled for a grain shocking bee. Mr. Capellan has been ill, and was unable to do the work himself. Thirty-three men gathered at the farm, and started on sixty acres of grain. They commenced at 7 p. m. and by 8:30 p. m., every bundle of grain was in the shock.—Ravenna News.

Great Reptiles, Jungles and Swamps Once Covered County

Fossil Remains Tell Age Old Story To Field Paleontologists Searching This Part of Nebraska.

BY RAY COLTON, Science Writer.

Editor's Note: In this article which is the second of a series of four dealing with the prehistoric past of Valley County based on fossil and other finds made here, the writer tells of the geologic age when giant dinosaurs inhabited this part of Nebraska. Illustrations used here in connection with this article are artist's conceptions drawn by Dr. Charles R. Knight of the American Museum of Natural History, N. Y. N. Y. They vividly portray the great dinosaurs as they appeared in life. Republishing of any part of this article by any other newspaper is prohibited by the writer.

Mesozoic Age Brought Strange Creations to What Is Today the Loup River Valley.

As this portion of the North American continent evidently received a bountiful measure of the tropical climatic condition which was heralded by the arrival of the Mesozoic Age of about 75 million years ago, it is assumed that many forms of reptilian life was in existence here at that time. Fossil bones of dinosaurs which have been found in Valley County are mute testimony that these giants of prehistoric times were one time here. The Mesozoic Age is also termed the "age of reptiles" owing to the fact that it has been definitely established by a study of both geologic data and bones that the dinosaurs were contemporaneous with this era of the earth's pre-history.

Dinosaur means "terrible lizard". They were cold-blooded, air-breathing reptiles, ranging in size from three feet up to the huge plant eating Brontosaurus which had an estimated length of 80 feet and weighed about twenty-five tons. Some of the dinosaurs had smooth-skins, others were armored and covered with spikes. While some walked on their hind legs, others walked on all four legs. Some had hundreds of teeth, while others were toothless. Yet, in view of the fact that all of them possessed certain anatomical characteristics in common, science has placed them under one general category; namely, dinosaurs.

Tyrannosaurus Rex, "King of Tyrants", Southwest of Ord along the route of highway number 5, there was found a few years ago, two teeth which were identified as being those of a giant reptile known as Tyrannosaurus Rex. A photograph of this dinosaur based on assembled fossil bones will vividly portray this giant as he appeared in life.

Tyrannosaurus Rex, meaning "King of the tyrant lizards", was approximately 47 feet in length and when standing erect was fully 20 feet in height. He was bipedal in gait, using his powerful hind legs for purposes of locomotion.

while his huge armored tail acted as a stabilizer for his estimated weight of fifteen tons. His great head was armored, and he could open his mouth three feet, revealing rows of razor-like teeth. With these teeth, he could easily rend to pieces the flesh of his hapless victims, the plant eating dinosaurs.

A portion of the vertebrae of one of these giant reptiles was found during a search in the area around North Loup. There remains little doubt in the minds of field scientists, that other remains of these great reptiles lie beneath Valley County land masses.

Triceratops, "Three Horns On Face".

Another dinosaur which was of the herbivorous or plant eating type was Triceratops, meaning "three horns on the face", which is pictured herewith. This reptile was in all probability the forerunner of the present day African and Indian Rhinoceros, as he possessed many of the characteristics of these present day giants. Triceratops was about 25 feet in length and weighed about ten tons. He had three horns mounted on his face, and was equipped with a beak or bill like a parrot. With this beak, he was able to clip the tough vegetation upon which he subsisted. He was easy prey for the giant flesh eaters and no doubt many battles occurred here in the dim past between these monsters of a bygone age.

One horn of Triceratops was found within the confines of Valley county, another was found in the area around Scotia in adjoining Greeley county where several prehistoric bones have been found in the past two weeks.

The dinosaurs became totally extinct here about 50 million years ago when changes in climatic conditions caused a destruction of the plant life upon which the plant eaters such as Triceratops subsisted. The giant flesh eaters, such as Tyrannosaurus Rex having nothing more to eat died off locally.

There are no dinosaurs left on earth today, yet, nature by the process of reptilian evolution has left them in the forms of the present snake, frog, Gila Monster of Arizona, Monitor of Cochiti China and lizards. Even the Iguana of Mexico is a descendant of the great monsters pictured here which were one time common to this part of Nebraska.

Editor's Note: In the next issue of the Quiz, Mr. Colton will discuss the potential mineral possibilities of Valley county. The geological information in this article will be of vast interest to land owners of the Ord area.

King of Tyrants

Mr. Colton, Science Writer for the Quiz, has found much evidence that indicates these pre-historic monsters any many others inhabited this part of central Nebraska in large numbers.

LOT 19—Green Fruit

CARE OF COUNTY BOARD

I Knew Better. I resent very much that I was responsible that the last rain which gave another stay of execution to many farmers in other communities, did nothing more than sprinkle on us. It looks now that we are set for another year of failure of corn. It is doubtful if we shall even have fodder of any consequence in and around North Loup.

We awoke the other night and suspicious rain. The good wife jumped up and slammed down the windows. Now that in itself is bad business. One should never, never pull the windows down until the rain is pouring in. Then we are sure of some rain. But to pull them down before it starts raining is almost always fatal.

But if there is anything that will scare a rain away more than pulling down the windows too soon it is the stunt I pulled. I'll bet again I'll know better. But I tore out in my night shirt and shooed in the chickens that were roosting outside. I should have known better. I did know better. But the cloud looked so black, and the wind was rising from the east. I lay a bed until I thought sure the rain couldn't pass us up.

Well, it did anyway and I am sorry. The next time I'll just let them drown. But the next time will be too late. I just as well run them in.

I Wonder. I have been tempted for a couple weeks to explode about Amelia Earhart and the search that is being made for her but this week the editor beat me to it. Nevertheless I have been wondering if she was a democrat. I have been thinking of the quarter of a million a day they are spending looking for her, and wondering what good she will be to the land should she be found.

I recall the hectic time Hardensbrook and others had in getting the few million to make an irrigation plant here that will help many of us at least. I have been thinking of the many folks on old aged pension who are lately cut down on their allowance. Of course the Federal Government is not to blame but it is tax money just the same.

I have been wondering what her trip was all about anyway. She said herself it was just for fun. How much good would any of us ever get out of the trip except the joy of reading about it in the papers. It's a funny country. We shall need more relief here this winter. We can't get away. We haven't money enough left to get away. But will the government jump up as quickly to save our necks? I wonder!

A Bit of History. Years ago a man by the name of Frier Woods lived on Davis Creek. He drove to Ord one day, and he did this quite infrequently, so about the first thing he did was to get his chin whiskers trimmed up and his hair cut. He was quite a different and quite a precise looking man sheared up in this manner. This task finished, he proceeded to do a little trading.

One of the first places to go was to Milfords. He had no more than stepped in until he saw his brother in the back of the store. He was surprised to see his brother there. His brother was a traveling man and this was out of his beat somewhat but Frier was more than pleased to see him. And still he was a little surprised, as he made his way to meet his brother that the latter had not let him know.

Mrs. Hansen Rotary Speaker.

The Ord Rotary club met Monday evening at the Thorne Cafe with a good attendance of members and one visitor, Don Houston, representative of the Rexall Drug company, who came as the guest of Ed Breanek. Unusual matters of interest were disposed of in the business session, but the feature of the evening was a talk by Mrs. Cecil Hansen, librarian of the Ord township library, who gave a very interesting story of the library and its history. Mrs. Hansen has had charge of the library for some time, and had taken the trouble to gather a number of interesting facts concerning it, which she gave in her talk. The following are a few of the high lights:

At the present time the library has a list of 2647 persons who borrow books. This list includes a number of persons from Custer, Sherman, Garfield and Wheeler counties as well as from all parts of Valley county.

The average monthly circulation during the winter months is 1850 books, while the average for the summer is about half that amount. While the association does not have a nice library building they have a total of 4746 volumes, and the state supervisor states that

Ord has one of the finest selections of books to be found in the state. The library belongs to Ord Township and is supported by taxation, but it is the best spent tax money in the township, as every cent goes to some definite good.

Mrs. Hansen had made a short list of books that she felt would be of interest to men, and she gave a brief outline of them. The list included: Man the Unknown, An American Doctor's Odyssey, Away From It All, The Nile, How to Win Friends, and Gone With the Wind. The association subscribes for fifty different magazines, among them the most popular ones in the United States, including Fortune, The Nation's Business, Life, Popular Mechanics, The National Geographic Magazine, The Atlantic Monthly and many others.

Mrs. Tom Williams returned to Ord Friday from Nemaha county where she had been visiting for nearly six weeks. Tom Williams and Mrs. B. A. Rose drove after her. Mrs. Williams reports that the Missouri river was over its banks several times during her stay. Fish were biting in spite of the high water and she enjoyed several catfish feeds.

Bee Situation Bad, Says F. M. Vodehnal

F. M. Vodehnal, official bee inspector for the six counties of Valley, Sherman, Howard, Greeley, Wheeler and Garfield, says that he finds the bee situation very bad all over this territory. In checking over the district he found that the only place where the bees seemed to find enough flowers to make any honey was near Burwell, and even there the amount being made was very small. There are 18 bee keepers in the valley both above and below Burwell, and all within about four miles of town. Most of these men are not losing many bees, but in other places conditions are serious. The cause is the lack of their usual food, which in the past has been provided by sweet clover along the roads and by the second cutting of alfalfa. This year both these sources are very meager. Conditions seem to be the worst in Greeley county, where out of a total of 36 beekeepers only 9 had any bees left. Right now the bees are starving, and there is nothing that can be done about it. Mr. Vodehnal found very little disease among the bees but doubts if many will be alive next year.

Mrs. Margaret Thurman of Omaha came in on the afternoon train and visited with her friend Mrs. F. C. Williams until the evening bus, when she went on up to Burwell to visit Miss Margaret Kuntz.

Interest In Auto Races Mounting As August Approaches

Track in Better Shape Now Than at Fair Time Last Year, Says Strombom.

Plans for the 1937 session of the Loup Valley fair and races are rapidly rounding into shape and the Quiz has the assurance that every department will be functioning perfectly when the big dates arrive. Secretary Roe was distributing the bills in the business places around the square Tuesday, and stated that North Loup and Arcadia would also be billed this week.

For some time Syl Furtak has been a very busy man stenciling bumper signs by the hundreds. F. C. Williams has been helping him put on the extra metal clips to fasten them on with, and they are being put on the cars as fast as possible. Frank Adams, jr., who carried a couple of the signs on his trip west, says that they caused a great deal of comment, and that one race driver, whose name he failed to learn, said that he expected to come to Ord and contest in the races.

H. O. Strombom, who has charge of the track this year the same as last year, has had men busy dragging every day for the past month, as well as after each shower before that time, and believes the track is in better condition now than it was at fair time last year. This work will be continued right up to fair time. About two weeks before the opening day the men will start putting calcium chloride on the track and working it in. Also the track will be sprinkled thoroughly for at least a week before the fair starts, unless nature takes care of that job.

Chris Befers, concession man again this year, says he is receiving a large number of inquiries for space, and that all the available space will be gone long before time for the fair to open. Practically all the old crowd will be back thus attesting to the fact that they must have been satisfied last year. Some are coming back for the fifth or sixth year. Among the old timers are Boby Bros. with their movable dance floor and Snyder's corn game from Mitchell, S. D.

With the return of Clyde Baker from his vacation next week the task of getting the race drivers lined up will be resumed. In fact, Mr. Baker is combining business and pleasure while out in Colorado, and is visiting several of the drivers and making arrangements for them to be here for the fair. When he left he believed that there would be one of the largest and best representations of drivers ever seen in Ord. If public interest can make a fair, the success of the 1937 Loup Valley fair and auto races is assured.

May Hold Beauty Pageant At Fair

Several Ord women's organizations were discussing plans this week dealing with the noiding of another beauty pageant at the Ord fair this year. If held, it would probably be similar to the one held last year, and a "Miss Ord" would be selected to take part in the state fair beauty pageant. The Business and Professional Women's club is thinking strongly of sponsoring the pageant this year. In 1936 it was sponsored by the American Legion Auxiliary.

Murray Shows What Irrigation Will Do

E. S. Murray of the Capron Agency has on display in his window samples of irrigated crops raised in Idaho, showing what farmers under irrigation may expect to raise when the water is available. The samples were brought back by Walter Desch a short time ago. The per acre yield there is almost beyond belief, but is verified. Even better soil is found in the North Loup Valley and irrigation should produce some remarkable results.

Ord Band Concerts Draw Large Crowds

The weekly band concerts are drawing large crowds, who seem to appreciate the quality of the music the band is putting out. The special numbers last Wednesday were highly appreciated. The specialties were the clarinet polka, with Leonard Sobon of Elyria and Eugent Puncocar playing the clarinet part with great effect. The other number was "Dinah" played by the band with Dick Koupal singing the words. If you are missing the band concerts you should plan to attend tonight and the rest of the concerts this summer.

—Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Bollen of north of Burwell visited with Mr. and Mrs. Neil Petersen at Ord Sunday.

Monster Hopper

Almost four inches long—that's some grasshopper! This huge specimen was brought into the Quiz office last week by Dean Moser, who stated that this was one of the biggest hoppers he has ever seen. Although stories about big grasshoppers drift down from the Dakotas now and then, we feel that this hopper will compare in size with any that can be found anywhere.

Appraisers Allow Pilonowski $455

Condemnation proceedings were instituted by the North Loup River Public Power and Irrigation District against Frank Pilonowski, Norma Pilonowski his wife, and Ernest Stewart, tenant on the farm. The amount of land under litigation was 5.21 acres. Guy Laverty appeared for the district, and Davis and Vogelanz for the defendant. The appraisers were John G. Bremer, Carl Chris Nielsen, Horace Travis, John Janus and Orin Kellison. They allowed Pilonowski $406.00, Mrs. Pilonowski $1.00 and Stewart $48.00, a total of $455.00. The amount originally allowed was approximately $325.00.

Norma Mae Benn Wins Prize Trip

L. I. Frisbie, state 4-H club leader, has announced the names of 57 winners of prize trips to the state wide conservation camp at Seward. Norma Mae Benn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Benn, is a Valley county winner. This is a signal honor and one which the young lady richly deserves.

Work on No. Loup Project May Stop On September 1st

PWA Warns Will Give No More Money Until Ord, Burwell Sign for Juice.

A warning that all activity on the North Loup project may come to a full stop on September 1 unless the cities of Ord and Burwell sign contracts for the purchase of electrical energy before that date was given this week by E. H. Dumire, engineer-manager of the district.

The district now has only sufficient funds to carry on the work until Sept. 1 and the Public Works Administration will make available no more money until the contracts are signed.

So far work has been carried on with grant money, of which the district has already received 25 per cent. Forty-five per cent of the cost of the project is to be a federal grant, the remaining 55 per cent being realized from sale of revenue bonds to the PWA.

No more grant money will be given to the district until after bond money is spent and the bonds cannot be sold until governing bodies of Ord and Burwell sign contracts for the purchase of energy from other Nebraska projects, either the Columbus or Sutherland.

District officials are hopeful that Ord and Burwell will sign contracts acceptable to the Public Works Administration within the next two weeks, so bonds may be sold and funds received to carry on work continuously. All other qualifications have been met, Mr. Dumire says.

A similar situation is said to face the Middle Loup project, except that the PWA is requiring that district to get signed contracts from four municipalities before bonds will be purchased.

—Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Turnblade and Dickie returned Sunday from an eight day vacation in southern Wyoming, a part of which was spent near Centennial, not far from the top of the Continental divide. They enjoyed a snowball fight while there, and brought home pictures to prove it.

Ord Business Men Organize To Buy Plane For Aviatrix

It was unofficially stated to the Quiz Wednesday morning that a group of prominent Ord business men are organizing to raise funds for the purpose of purchasing an airplane for Miss Evelyn Sharp, Ord's young aviatrix who is the youngest girl pilot in the nation. Miss Sharp, now 17, is aiming towards a transport pilot's license. To gain this license a pilot must have 200 hours of experience in the air and Evelyn has already completed over 70 hours towards this goal. She will be 18 Oct. 1 which is the minimum age for securing a transport license.

Jack Jeffords, Evelyn's instructor or stated that if she had her own ship she could get her 200 hours of air experience easily before her birthday on October 1.

K. P.'s Win Over Safeways 10 to 8; Upset Dope Bucket

Second Loss of Season For League-Leading Safeway Team; Livestocks Win.

Play in the Inter-City softball league reached a white-hot point Tuesday night as two of the best games of the season were played.

A fighting clan of K. P.'s furnished the big upset of the evening as they pasted a neat 10 to 3 defeat on the Safeways—their second defeat of the season. In the remaining game of the evening the Livestocks poured it on heavy as they won over the K. C.'s by a wide 10 to 4 decision.

Heavy hitting featured the fast moving K. P.-Safeway clash. With the score tied 3-3 at the beginning of the seventh inning, Hather poked out a home run with one on base to break up the ball game.

Arcadia, Ericson Defeated.

Ord's town team added two more scalps to their already nice collection as they ran over Ericson 3 to 1 Sunday night and whitewashed Arcadia 8 to 5 on Monday night.

The Ericson game was played on the Ord diamond, Ordites having little difficulty at any time with the Ericson softballers. On the following night the Ordsters came up against a little harder competition but proved their superiority over the Arcadians for the third or fourth time by winning by an 8 to 5 margin.

Play Scotia Twice.

Ord will meet Scotia twice within the next week. On Thursday night of this week Ord will go to Scotia and on Sunday the Scotia team will play a return game on the Ord diamond.

Ericson Rancher 4 Feet 2 Inches Tall, Weighs 60 Lbs., Has 180 Lb. Wife; Ord Has Small Man

Better take another look! Either somebody in this picture is awfully big or terribly small. You guessed it. The two fellows standing together form the verdict—they are small with a capital S.

Smallest of the two is George Bosselman of Ericson (extreme left). Here are some "belittling" facts about Mr. Bosselman: Height—4 ft. 2 in., weight—60 pounds; age—44 years. At the present time Mr. Bosselman runs a ranch five miles south of Ericson, taking care of 102 head of cattle.

When it comes to matrimony Bosselman says that height and weight do not enter into the problem. He proves this fact by introducing you to his wife who is 28 years old and weighs 180 pounds.

Many Ord people are acquainted with the other small man pictured here. The name is Mr. Harry Umstead and he is employed in Ord at the John Sharp restaurant. Mr. Umstead is slightly larger than the Ericson man being 4 ft. 3 in. high; weighing 85 pounds and being 50 years old.

Bargain Days, Free Entertainment, In Ord on August 7th

Chamber of Commerce Signs Contract With Universal for Show on Streets.

At a meeting Tuesday evening in the office of President John P. Misko, directors of the Ord Chamber of Commerce signed a contract with the Universal Producing Co. of Fairfax, Ia., for an all-day program to be given on the streets of Ord on Saturday, August 7, for the entertainment of shoppers. Merchants of this city will offer special bargains on that day also.

Miss Powers, a representative of the Iowa company, met with the directors Tuesday evening. Earlier in the day she had met with members of the chamber's retail committee, who endorsed the plan heartily.

Vaudeville acts, dancing, short skits and playlets, using home talent under the direction of a Universal representative, will make up the program. Costumes for all acts will be furnished by the Iowa outfit. A huge loud-speaker arrangement will make all programs audible throughout the business district.

Afternoon programs will be given on the streets and the evening program will take place on a platform to be erected in the court house square. A "man on the street" program will be another feature.

More complete announcement of the program will be made next week but people of the Ord trading area should begin planning now to spend Saturday, August 7 in Ord.

N. L. Popcorn Days Coming Sept. 15-16

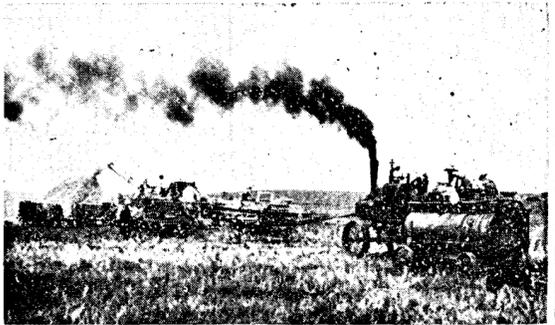

At a meeting of the North Loup Community club last week the dates of the annual North Loup Popcorn Days were definitely set for Sept. 15 and 16.

Officers of the large committee which will work out the details of the celebration are W. O. Zanger, president; Ign. Pokraka, secretary and Claude Thomas, treasurer.

North Loup's home talent chautauqua, sponsored by the high school alumni association, will be held during the first four days of August, Aug. 1-4. A feature of the chautauqua this year will be an operetta "The Hermit of Hawaii" which will be presented by a Mira Valley group.

—Oliver Collison and two of his children drove up from Campbell Tuesday and spent a few hours in Ord.

Threshing In Valley County Under Way, Yields Average Only Ten Bushels

Look at that threshing machine puff! Threshing in Valley county is moving forward at full speed. Yields are very light, most fields averaging about 10 bushels to the acre.

Quiz Photographer LaVern Duemey took the above photo on the Frank Knapp farm late last week. The threshing outfit belongs to Clarence Pierson, who is doing most of the threshing work in Springdale district. Arthur McLain is in charge of the engine, one of the few steam outfits left in the county.

Elevators Begin Buying Grain, Say Quality Very Low

Wheat Testing 40 to 55; 30 to 36 on Barley; Corn Still Looks Good.

The searing effect of three days of terrifically hot winds in early June, when wheat and other small grains were in the prime of their growth, was finally displayed last week when farmers began bringing newly threshed grain to Ord elevators. Not only were yields extremely light but the grain is very low in quality, elevator men say.

Few fields of winter wheat survived the ordeal of a cold, dry winter while spring-planted grains were damaged to a pitiful extent by the hot winds in June. Wheat being sold here is testing 40 to 55, in marked contrast to 1936 yields which tested in the high 50's and low 60's.

Barley yielded the best of any grain, reports of 10 to 30 bushels being the general rule. Quality is poor, testing from 30 to 35. Oats yields were extremely small and grain sold here is testing from 20 to 30.

Brightest spot in the crop situation is the promise of a good corn crop in most places in the Ord area. In the southeast corner of Valley county and over most of Greeley county, which have been missed by rain, drought conditions exist but other neighborhoods report a heavy corn crop in the making. Fields that were hulled ten days ago are coming out of it and will make a fair crop, reports indicate.

A light rain, measuring from .26 of an inch in Ord to a mere trace elsewhere, fell Thursday night. It was accompanied by a severe electrical storm, there being hot lightning enough for a 4 inch rain. In spite of the electrical display no damage from it has been reported.

Forecast of local showers in central Nebraska is made by government experts and rain threatened in Ord Monday night and again Tuesday night but failed to materialize. Rain is much needed here, though corn can stand several days more without moisture.

Ord Girls Return From Camp Kiwanis

Twelve Ord Campfire Girls returned home last Saturday from a week's vacation at Camp Kiwanis, state Campfire Girls camp, located near Milford, Nebr. Funds for making this trip were taken from the club treasury, money which the girls worked several months to secure by means of bake sales and candy sales.

Girls to make the trip included Martina Blemond, Dorothy and Irene Auble, Loretta Mae and Armona Beth Achen, Patricia Frazier, Phyllis Munn, Hele Work, Mary Miller, Priscilla Plagg, Betty Meyer and Margie Jean Smith. Rev. Smith, Mrs. Gould Plagg, Glen Auble and Harlan Frazier took charge of transporting the girls to and from the camp.

At a masquerade party held on the last night of the girls' stay in camp, Mary Miller, Patricia Plagg and Irene Auble were given prizes for the most original costumes.

Gas Stove Brings Fire Truck. About 11 o'clock Tuesday morning the Ord fire department was summoned to the Jack Brown residence where a gas stove had got out of control. No serious damage was done, the fire being extinguished before the department arrived.

Healthy Cornstalk

This 10-foot cornstalk, grown by Anton Bartunek in his yard at Ord, is no taller than many fields of corn in sections of Valley county where rain fell at timely intervals. Another rain or two in August will assure a good crop in most neighborhoods and a fair crop in all sections.

Delivery of Ord's New Fire Truck Is Being Delayed

Was Expected Friday But It Didn't Arrive; Officials Will Test New Outfit.

City officials became worried this week as the new Dodge fire truck ordered some months ago from the General Fire Truck Corporation of Detroit failed to arrive in Ord. Word had been received from the factory that the machine would arrive in Ord last Friday.

Telegrams sent to the company have not produced results, the company failing to reply to the queries. Belief is held that the truck is being demonstrated in various towns along its route in Ord, thus making a long delay in its delivery.

The truck is being driven to Ord from the factory by one of the company's agents. Upon arrival he will put the truck through a series of tests to prove that it has all the features claimed for it by the company.

All latest fire fighting improvements are included in the new truck which cost over $3,500. The outfit is described as being a triple combination fire truck with a 500-gallon per minute 2-stage centrifugal fire pump. The equipment is mounted on a 1 1/2 ton special Dodge commercial chassis with dual rear wheels and 5 speed transmission.

Red Hopper Is Seen.

Mrs. James Hoisington saw one of the red grasshoppers that are attracting so much publicity in the papers of late. She was out in the yard Friday and noticed one with wings of a brilliant scarlet hue. Instead of catching the insect she went in and told Jim. When he came out the hopper had disappeared and could not be located. If you find any with bright blue or silver wings they are to be brought in to the county agent's office. One hundred thousand were colored red and released in a Colorado county to enable the "bugologists" to trace their course. The other colors are from other counties in Colorado.

Eddy Employed To Aid In Handling the Swimming Classes

Almost 100 Youngsters Now Learning Water Safety In Red Cross Program.

Another instructor, B. A. Eddy, was added this week to the force of Red Cross swimming teachers who are doing such fine work this summer. Mr. Eddy, a grade school teacher, is a favorite with the boys and has been hired by Red Cross officials to take complete charge of boys' swimming classes three days of each week.

To date the enrollment in the swimming classes has been 45 girls and about the same number of boys. With the addition of Mr. Eddy, the boys division is expected to enlarge.

Final organization has been completed so that all classes are held on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday afternoons. Boys' classes will meet at the Legion Hall grounds at 2:00 and the girls' classes at the same place at 3:15, at which times the first cars will leave for the river. All classes are being held down stream from the sand pit.

Classes are showing extremely fine progress and there is a promise of a number of unusually good swimmers who are now under Miss Evelyn Sharp's instruction. The Red Cross committee in charge of this swimming program wishes to stress the importance of good discipline and absolute obedience to rules in order to make the plan a success. One rule that must be observed is that all members must return to town at the end of their class period. Boys' classes should be back about 3:30 and girls about 5:00. Parents can lend valuable cooperation by stressing the importance of this understanding with the children.

A double purpose is served by the classes which the American Red Cross sponsors. First, of course, it gives children a chance to learn the art of swimming; second, it teaches safety in the water. Youngsters who can already swim can still learn a lot by the second phase of the instructions given in the classes the latter part of the course. The general public is realizing more and more the need of safety and life-saving instruction in swimming.

Mothers Cooperate In Vacation Camp

Sherman county homemakers by the score attended a mother's vacation camp held at Curtis for four days of this week, July 25-28.

Initial plans for the camp were originated and worked out by the Sherman County Farm Bureau. In planning the camp the Bureau did as much as they could to make it a complete rest for mothers who attended. No dishes to wash, no clothes to press, no children to care for, and no household worries for four days.

Group discussions, book reviews, handicraft, work and music were featured on the four day program.

Hopper Poison Also Used as Fly Killer

Clarence Dunn, who handles the distribution of government hopper poison at Ravenna, has a new use for the material.

Recently he stored several sacks of the poison behind his office. Over a period of several weeks he found an increasing number of flies around the bags. He has come to the conclusion that the poison makes as good a lunch for flies as for grasshoppers.

Others about the Ravenna community noticed the same thing and immediately designed an original fly-catcher. A number of Ravenna people are now hanging small sacks of bran from the ceilings of their barns. If kept moist, and the molasses fresh, it is said that it will kill flies all summer.

He stated that he came to Ord recently to obtain work on the irrigation project.

Arcadia Girls' Team Loses.

The Metz Hottentots, colored girls traveling softball team slammed a 36 to 0 defeat on the Arcadia girls softball team last week for their first loss of the season. Although the Arcadians played a good brand of softball, they could not touch the fine fielding and excellent hitting displayed by the negro team.

Little Stories About People You Know

This story comes to mind every time I see Dr. G. W. Taylor, who had a prominent place in it. In the fall of 1903 Central City arranged a basketball game with Ord, and also a debate, the latter to be held in the evening, and the former at the fair grounds on an outdoor court. At that time Central City had a football team in the school, and they wrote that if they could get a football game also they would come up with a special train.

Ord did not have enough huskies in school to make a football team, and they were informed of the fact. They came back with the information that, since the school did not have enough players, we could draft players out of the Ord Business college, and if that did not furnish enough, then we could pick them up all over town. Their attitude peeved some of the local men, who felt that they were being made fun of, so the Ord team was selected from the best material from all three sources.

When the day came the basketball game was played first, resulting in a rather close victory for Ord. A gridiron had been laid out in the center of the fair-ground track, and the football game came next. When the Ord team lined up they averaged close to two hundred pounds. George White from the business college weighed 220 pounds, and the tiny quarterback, Butch Zimmerman, who worked in the Stara meat market, was a mere shadow at 175 pounds. Doc Taylor and Tutton Charlton are the only other players I now recall.

From the start it was evident that Ord's score would be limited only by the endurance of the players. They marched down the field for score after score, stopping only when some Ord player got out of breath or when some Central City boy was knocked out. The score was more than one hundred to nothing, and could have been doubled if Doc and some of the other men had not had to stop so often to get their breath. The opposition did not make a first down.

Butch Zimmerman at quarter did a lot of swearing. This did not please the C. C. coach, who was a minister, and after a while he told the referee that they would not play any more unless Butch apologized. He refused to do so at first, but when urged by Taylor and others he finally walked up to the minister and said, "Well, I apologize!"

This rather lame apology got by, and the game was resumed.

That evening the Ord debating team, consisting of Mrs. Lester Norton, then Edna Shirley, Grover Long and the writer, succeeded in winning the debate, thus making it unanimous. When the special left for Central City late that night the silence was more eloquent than words. The football deal was rather raw, but they laid themselves liable, and luckily none of the high school boys was seriously injured. But the players in that momentous game will never forget it.

Sargent To Have a Fair.
At the regular meeting of the Sargent service club held in the basement of the M. E. church Tuesday evening, July 20, there being 25 members present, a motion prevailed by an almost unanimous vote to hold a community fair here in Sargent regardless of the outcome of the corn crop. The fair dates are Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Sept. 9, 10, and 11.—Sargent Leader.

Quiz Candid Camera Catches Night Life In Ord

Going places, mister? A good many gallons of gasoline are sold every night by Ord filling stations to both residents and others, such as traveling salesmen and truckers.

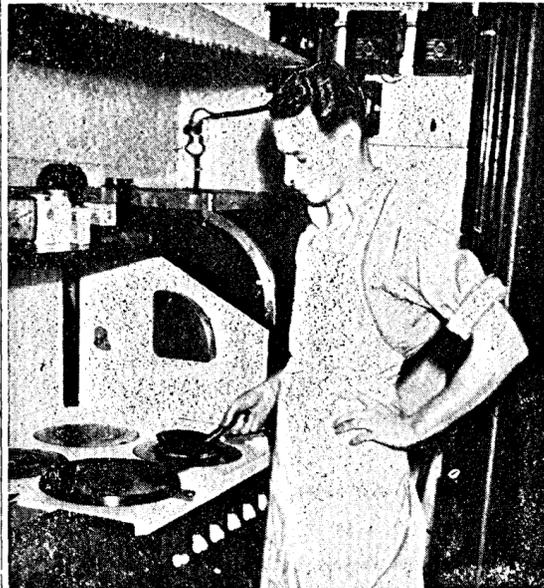

Those park benches that the merchants placed all around the square are proving very popular on these hot evenings. They add a needed touch to the night life of our little city and afford an opportunity to cool off before trying to get some needed sleep.

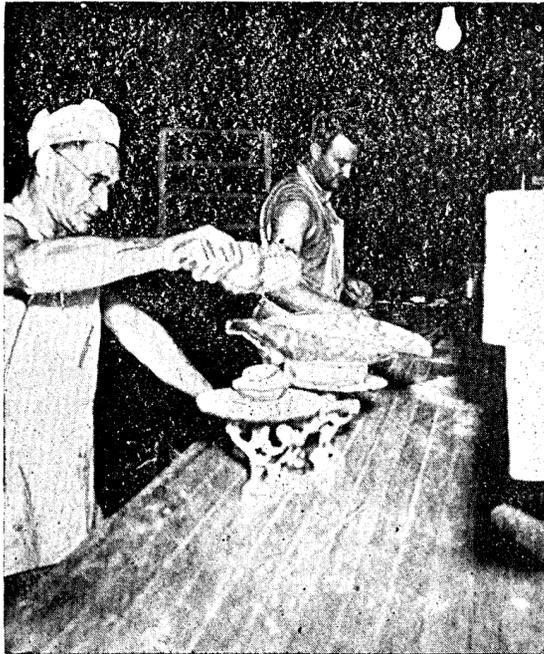

Ord is beautiful by night, just how beautiful you perhaps did not realize until you took a look at the above photo, taken at night. Those streaks down the middle of the street were made by passing cars. In spite of the darkness note the clouds showing above.

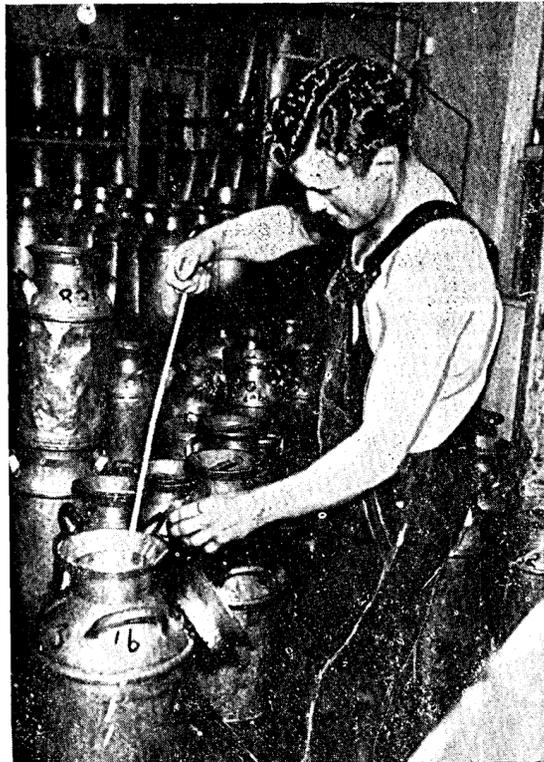

"Hmmm, look at that, will you?" It ain't a fit night out for man or beast but Marshal Covert and Night Watch Pardue are right on the job, scouring the town for any attempts at burglary, traffic violations, or fire outbreaks.

It's a hot old job on these torrid summer nights but there is no satisfaction for a hungry person like a good hamburger sandwich. This fellow is lucky that his stove burns electricity instead of wood or coal.

"Hot cross buns! Hot cross buns!" In this flash photo you see these tasty bakery goods which you purchase in the morning in the very process of being made. Starting early in the evening baking continues until the wee hours of the morning.

THE COOK'S COL-YUM, YUM

Winter and summer, regardless of temperature, there are many families that must have their cake, and so the obliging cook of the household stirs up some sort of a cake almost every day.

Southern Spanish Cake.
Sift flour once, measure one and three-fourths cup, add one and one-half teaspoons baking powder, one-fourth teaspoon salt, one teaspoon cinnamon, sift three times. Cream one-half cup butter or other shortening, add one cup sugar gradually, cream until fluffy, then put in two well beaten egg yolks. Add flour alternately with one-half cup milk, a little at a time. Beat after each addition until smooth, fold in two stiffly beaten egg whites. Bake in two greased eight-inch layer pans in moderate oven twenty-five minutes. Spread with Morocco icing made as follows:
Put two unbeaten egg whites, one and one-fourth cups sugar, one-fourth cup brown sugar firmly packed, and five tablespoons cold water in the upper part of a double boiler. Beat with a rotary beater until well mixed. Place over boiling water, beating constantly, cook for seven minutes or until icing will stand in peaks. Remove from fire, fold in one square melted unsweetened chocolate, spread on cake.
Virus Harkness.

Mahogany Cake.
Combine one and one-half cups sugar with three-fourths cup butter, then one-half cup cocoa and one cup coffee. Add one tablespoon vinegar, one teaspoon soda, two beaten eggs, two cups flour.
Mrs. Harold Slechta, Vail, Ia.

Sour Cream Drop Cookies.
Melt one cup shortening, add one cup brown sugar, one cup molasses, one egg, one cup sour cream or buttermilk. Sift together one teaspoon cloves, one teaspoon cinnamon, two teaspoons ginger, one-half teaspoon salt, two teaspoons soda and four cups flour, mix well, add one cup chopped walnuts, and if desired one cup chopped raisins. Let stand one hour. Drop on cookie sheet, dust with white sugar and bake. Red sugar appeals to children.

Republicans and Democrats alike heard with regret the report that Senator Robinson had passed on.

The even vote of Robinson's successor shows how the Democrats over the court plan. Senator Alben Barkley of Kentucky, favorable to court revision, won over Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi, opposed to revision, by a vote of 33 to 37.

JULIUS CAESAR'S FAULT.

The two hottest months of the year, months that Nebraskans approach with dread, we owe directly to the Romans, and especially to the greatest Roman of them all, Julius Caesar.

So after nearly 2,000 years have passed, Caesar, a pagan himself, makes his influence felt in this Christian era, and we constantly use such absurd combinations as July or August, A. D. September, October, November and December.

My Own Column

By H. D. Leggett

This is Thursday afternoon and I am supposed to write this department each week on pain of losing my job, which of course I don't want to do.

Eugene is taking a nap and is sleeping out loud. I think he is having a pretty good time on his vacation. He says they will be leaving for Ord either Saturday or Sunday.

It was seventeen years ago that we came up here for the first time with ten days to stay and for several years thereafter about two weeks as long as we could be spared from the Quiz office.

The Morrow from Alliance and Scottsbluff, Nebraska, who are in our other cottage, The Birches, for two weeks, will be leaving for their homes the first of the week and the cottage will be occupied by Soren Jensen and party for two weeks.

Yesterday Jess accompanied Eugene and I over to Big Bass lake. The lady where we got the boat said the bass had not been striking since the big rain of a week before and we went out with some misgivings.

CARE OF COUNTY BOARD

By George Gowen

I was at Greeley the other day to pay a little dab of taxes that had been past due for several months.

I tried the same sad plea on the Valley county fellows, Clyde and George, but their hearts were hard, like Pharaoh's. There was no forgetting the interest with "Brannon didn't charge me any interest yesterday."

At first they would not believe me and then Bill Schudel happened in and he too pays taxes in both counties. He said he had the same experience and they had to believe the two of us.

So another time when I was at Greeley I asked Brannon how he managed it when the State came for their money but that didn't seem to worry him a great deal.

One in Luck. One Not. The interest business worked a gross injustice to many people. For a long time there was the interest charge. Then suddenly the State canceled all interest up to a certain date.

A Test of Bread. A man in Scotia the other day was telling me what fine bread he handled. "I'll prove it to you that it is good," he said and he picked up a loaf, put the palms of his hands on each end of the loaf and pushed it together like an accordion.

I was a little astounded at that treatment of his wares but could say nothing. I told him however that I didn't want him to sell that loaf to me. "Oh, that just shows what good bread it is," he said.

My friend replied, "In a way it is. You can do that to all good bread if it is not fresh. It is all right if the bread is a day or two old but fresh bread will not come back to shape."

Roosevelt Foes in Senate Face Stiff Battle for Re-election

BY SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT

WASHINGTON.—Roosevelt is going gunning for those Democratic senators who have opposed him on the court and other bills he particularly wants to see through Congress.

Seven or eight such senators are being pointed out as "fair game" and it is believed that the Republicans may give three or four of them Republican nominations if administration and labor forces pick their off in Democratic primaries or state conventions of 1938.

In at least half a dozen states, the Farley machine and Labor's Nonpartisan League with its C. I. O. backing, are already at work to put up pro-New Deal and pro-labor candidates against anti-New Deal senators.

In New Jersey, Senator William H. Smathers and other Roosevelt supporters have decided, with organized labor's help, to smash Frank Hague's powerful Democratic machine. In the gubernatorial primary, Congressman Elmer H. Wene will run against Senator Harry Moore.

SENATOR AL ADAMS of Colorado faces a desperate fight against combined administration and labor forces, because of his leadership in the anti-court fight, and the fact that he was one of the signers of the blistering judiciary report.

A People Led by God

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for Aug. 1. Text: Exodus 13:17-22; 14:15.

THE children of Israel have been released by Pharaoh in this lesson and have begun their long and troublesome march to the promised land.

The very language of this Old Testament story becomes the language used when we speak today of bondage and deliverance, of hopes and aspirations for a better society.

THE story illustrates the factors in progress and in the struggle for freedom that have been present at all times in history. Until recently, the dominant idea of our times has been that of progress, or what has been called "the march of mankind onward, upward, and forever."

That notion of a sort of inevitable progress of mankind, just rising from stage to stage in a process of social evolution, is very alluring. But it has had a very real shock in the experiences of today, when we see nations that have shown great progress socially recoiling to autocracy and dictatorship, and when we see great progress along some lines utterly nullified by the use of the very things of progress to defeat the higher interests of mankind.

We have seen progress in science, for instance, aiding the work of war and violence, in inventing and improving more terrible instruments of destruction than mankind has ever known. We are coming to see more clearly that instead of inevitable pected, he has to fight it out in the primary with Judge Charles Hay, who probably will run against him as the pro-Roosevelt candidate.

Senator Key Pittman and the State Democratic machine in Nevada will run their man against Senator Pat McCarran in an attempt to put an end to his career in Congress.

It is said that Senator Millard Tydings of Maryland will not be neglected in the proposed purge of the Democratic party. The most likely New Deal candidate to oppose Tydings is the progressive congressman, David Lewis.

UNLESS Senator Van Nuys of Indiana gets a Republican nomination, he probably will be out of Congress when his term expires. He has been out of favor with both the McNutt machine, and the new machine Governor Townsend has been building up in Indiana.

It is expected that Senator Gillette of Iowa and Senator Walter George of Georgia will both have a tough fight when their names come up for renomination. Senator Lonergan of Connecticut will be opposed by the New Deal machine but may look for a Republican nomination if his own party turns him down.

Roosevelt privately hopes to defeat those conservatives who have opposed him on other issues as well as the Supreme Court plan. The only one up next year whom the administration believes to be firmly entrenched is Senator "Cotton Ed" Smith of South Carolina.

Now Ain't That Something. Safe robbers obtained $33.00 but missed an additional $214.00 when tear gas exploded as they punched the safe of the Lincoln Mills, police reported. An employee discovered the robbery shortly before 7:00 A. M. He found the offices filled with fumes.—Holdrege Citizen.

How well the action of Pharaoh in our lesson typifies the attitude and action of modern leaders today who make concessions, only to withdraw or nullify them once they are made. Pharaoh, under the influence of the scourges that came upon Egypt, agreed to let the Israelites go; but no sooner had they started when he changed his mind and sent the hosts of Egypt after them to force them back into servitude, or to destroy them.

In court at Chappell Thursday, District Judge J. G. Towell sentenced Lew Peyton of Burwell and Robert Shaffer of Julesburg, Colo., to three years each in the penitentiary at Lincoln when they admitted their guilt in connection with the theft of two hogs. They are brothers-in-law, and until recently both lived at Burwell. The evidence indicated that this was not the first offense of the kind they had committed since going to the western part of the state.

—Since the inauguration of the new air mail route between Omaha and Scottsbluff, mail planes have been passing over Ord regularly twice per day, one at about one o'clock in the morning, and the other about 5:30. Since both pass in the hours when most people are asleep their passage has not been noticed by many people. It is suggested that Ord should be designated as a place for an emergency landing field, being situated very near the half-way point. The planes are making nonstop flights between the two points.

—The writer went down to North Loup Sunday morning with A. W. Pierce and verified the report that the crops there are in bad shape. It is claimed that crops are in the worst condition there of any place between Ord and Omaha, and they look it. There are whole fields of corn that would make little more than fodder if it rained every day for a month. On the other hand, there are some fields which are not so seriously damaged, and which would come out and make a fair crop. Even the pastures there are almost bare with the exception of weeds. In fact it looks as though irrigation could not come too soon for the farmers in that territory.

Oldest Established Market In Whole North Loup Valley

We haven't gone into the records very deeply but we don't believe any meat market in the whole North Loup valley region has existed as long continuously as this market.

What does that mean to the average meat buyer?

It means we've had long years of experience in catering to the meat needs of Ord and Valley county people, that we know about what they want and can therefore anticipate and be in readiness to supply their requirements. And the fact that this market has prospered over such a long term of years surely is evidence of our fair dealing and ability to please, isn't it?

At your service, always and all ways.

Old Landmark on Loup Facing Extinction

By Laverne Lakin.

Fort Hartsuff, a picturesque old fort, built by the government at a cost of $110,000 has stood as a landmark on the Loup River for over sixty years. Located nine miles north of Ord, about three miles straight north of Elyria near the river, the fort was constructed in record time for that day—every sack of cement and all finishing lumber used in its completion was hauled from Grand Island, nearly eighty miles away by road.

The project, begun in 1874, was built to protect pioneers of the valley from hostile Indians. When the fort was completed in the year of 1874 a huge celebration was staged which the entire countryside attended. Everyone was proud of the fort and both officers and men proclaimed it to be the prettiest and most desirable station in the department of the Platte.

Fort Hartsuff was a fort in name only, it comprised a number of officers' quarters, barracks for the privates, stables and other structures—all arranged in a hollow square. The only defensible part of the fort was the waterworks which lay on the hills back of the officers' quarters. This was protected by a circular stockade, accessible from the fort by an underground passage. This immense stockade stood for a long period of years and would have remained as a lasting memorial of the pioneer days but recently it was torn down and sold as old lumber.

The fort was abandoned in 1881 at the close of the Sioux war of '76.

The broken remnants of warring Sioux tribes were settled on their reservation in the Dakotas and were never a menace to Nebraska settlers again. The large group of buildings erected at such great cost to the government was sold to the Union Pacific Railroad Co. for the paltry sum of $5,000.

Thus, Fort Hartsuff early outlived its usefulness as a defense and was deserted. The buildings, built by the government at such an exorbitant figure, have since been abused to such an extent that if preventive measures are not taken soon, the once prosperous and proud fort will crumble away into the dust of the prairies—lost forever as a memorial of those courageous pioneers who founded Nebraska.

Rev. and Mrs. Bell are making just such an announcement. (Through the misunderstanding of a phone call the Quiz told the story some time ago).

Cozad Local—"Man isn't so smart as he thinks he is," Dave Stevens comments, "Thousands of years ago, before man even thought of such things, the turtle had a stream lined body, a turret top, retractable landing gear and a portable house."

Loup City Leader—Tom Doran of Burwell was in Loup City distributing literature for Nebraska's big rodeo and calling on friends Thursday.

Sargent Leader—Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Rouzo and Mrs. Russell Anderson and two children, Reta and Duane of Burwell spent several hours Sunday afternoon as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Adams. Mr. Rouzo is a brother and Mrs. Anderson a sister of Mrs. Adams. Mr. and Mrs. M. P. Revolvinski and son John drove to Ord Sunday afternoon. Mrs. Revolvinski and John stayed there at the home of her sister, Mrs. George Adderson, and Mr. Revolvinski and Keith C. Lewis manager of the J. C. Penney store at Ord, drove to Grand Island, where they stayed all night. Mr. Revolvinski at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Revolvinski. Monday morning the two Penney store managers went to Hastings to attend a two day meeting of managers of Penney stores. They returned to their homes late Tuesday night.

Woodman Hall

This section received about one-fourth of an inch of rain last Friday night. We would still get a partial crop if rain comes within a few days. The drouth is taking a heavy toll daily and some fields will not even make fodder. Mr. and Mrs. Will Waldmann and sons, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Waldmann and children and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Waldmann, Paul, Raymond and Mildred spent Sunday afternoon at Joe Kamarad's to help Joe celebrate his birthday.

Father Sindowski returned home from Chicago last Friday, bringing his mother with him for a visit. FURWELL NEWS

Eliza Hennich. Eliza Cooper was born in Freeport, Ill., on Sept. 11, 1846 and passed away in Burwell, Nebr., July 19, 1937 at the age of 90 years, 10 months and 8 days.

In 1864 she was united in marriage to Charles W. Hennich and to this union seven children were born. Soon after her marriage they moved to Bradford, Iowa where they attended the famous "Little Brown Church in the Vale".

At that time Dr. Wm. S. Pitts, who wrote this famous song was pastor of the church and a special friend of the family and was a cherished memory in the mind of Grandma Hennich.

While it is not the intention of the writer to inflame residents of the Loup river valley to the point that a great oil boom will some day be in evidence here in the Ord area, yet, on the basis of such geological finds as have been made here in this part of Nebraska, it appears that oil is here at some point.

Oil and Gas Believed Beneath Structures of Valley County

Ord Area Contains Marine Life in Fossil State From Which Geologists Trace The Evolution of Oil.

BY RAY COLTON, Science Writer.

In this article which is the third of a series of four dealing with the prehistory of what is today Valley county, the writer reveals the geological findings which have been made in the Ord area relative to possible crude oil "measures."

Nature Laid Basis for Crude Oil in Organic Mass of Marine Life.

While it is not the intention of the writer to inflame residents of the Loup river valley to the point that a great oil boom will some day be in evidence here in the Ord area, yet, on the basis of such geological finds as have been made here in this part of Nebraska, it appears that oil is here at some point.

On this theory, it is assumed that sufficient marine life still lies beneath the land masses here in central Nebraska to make the discovery of oil at say 4,000 feet quite possible. Geologists are preparing to work this area with a view of testing for oil structures.

Valley County

ing excessively, caused the upheaval which recessed the waters and caused the elevation of the land masses of Valley county. At the time of the upheaval, an anticline was created as explained in a previous article of this series.

On the basis of such evidence as has been found within the confines of Valley county, it appears that there is a good chance of crude oil being here.

Natural Gas Also Possible. At the time of the tropical era here, termed as the Mesozoic Age of about 75 million years ago, vast quantities of botanical life were constantly dying and solidifying into an organic mass of decayed vegetation.

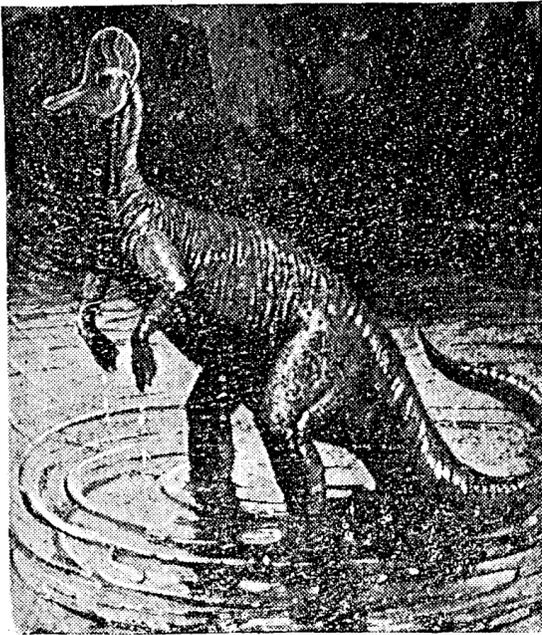

The remains of reptiles were also a contributing factor to the creation of both oil and gas. A representative type of dinosaur which inhabited the lakes of central Nebraska millions of years ago appears here with this article.

Potash Deposits in Valley County. In the western portion of Valley county where the ancient lakebeds exist, there are several "measures" or deposits of saline materials which has been found to contain potash.

Yes! Valley county contains many of nature's bounties from prehistoric times. Deep beneath the land masses there lies wealth. It is up to man to bring these treasures to the surface.

Editor's Note: In the next issue of the Quiz, Mr. Colton will close this series with a discussion of the artifacts of primitive man which have been found in the Ord area.

Taylor Department

Mary Jackson Carpenter. Mary Luiza Jackson was born Dec. 21, 1852 at Clinton, Ohio, and died July 22, 1937 at the home of her daughter, Mrs. John Clay of Taylor, Nebr., at the age of 84 years, 7 months and 1 day.

In 1873 Miss Jackson was united in marriage to Andrew William Carpenter at Boonville, Iowa. To this union six children were born, three having preceded the mother in death, John Walter Carpenter dying in infancy and Sara Jane Orvis and Bradie Mae Gysler after their marriages. The three remaining children are Rose Luella Evans of Sargent, Nebr., Almond Earl Carpenter of Tamarack, Ida, and Pearl Blanch Clay of Taylor.

Mr. and Mrs. Carpenter lived at Boonville for two years and then migrated to Custer county, Nebr., where they settled on a timber claim south of the present site of Kent. They were among the early pioneers in this part of the country. Supplies had to be freighted by wagon from Grand Island. In common with other early pioneers they saw some hard, difficult times and together faced the drought and famine of the nineties. In 1898 they moved over into Loup county, nearer the Kent neighborhood, what is known today as the Phil Lewis place. Here on July 7, 1904 the home was completely destroyed by a tornado. But with the indomitable spirit of the pioneer they built again the waste places and reared a home.

Three years later the husband and father passed away on Feb. 18, 1907. In 1909 Mrs. Carpenter with her youngest daughter moved to Ord, where they resided until her daughter Pearl was married, with whom she has for the past twenty-three years made her home here in Taylor.

She leaves to mourn her departure the three children before mentioned, 16 grandchildren, 2 step-grandchildren, 12 great grandchildren and 1 brother who is living at Three Oak, Michigan.

When Taylor was yet in its earliest days Mrs. Carpenter was converted under the ministrations of the Baptist people who had an organization here at that time. She joined this group and taught Sunday school with them for a while. This group later disbanded and when she moved to Ord, Nebr., she joined the Christian church of that place, in which faith she lived and died.

During the nine months in which she was confined to her bed she never lost patience and always had a kind word and smile for everyone.

News from the State Capitol

BY FRED J. MINDER.

The organization in Lincoln county of a "Cochran for President" club and the tribute of 13 "freshmen" members of the United States senate to George W. Norris for his liberal record were the major newsworthy tidbits that appeared on the political horizon.

Permanent officers to an organization at North Platte, booming Nebraska's governor for the presidential nomination, were to be named. The governor at Lincoln, said he appreciated the compliment but "is too busy being a governor to look that far ahead." Keith Neville, one-time Nebraska governor and former Democratic national committeeman, was named temporary chairman of the boom aggregation.

Said A. A. Hastings of North Platte: "Knowing Governor Cochran well and personally, and watching him grow into manhood and become the governor of the state, the group felt that he is the logical man to take his place as president of the United States. One of the greatest assets in his favor," Hastings added, "is the fact that he is fully in accord with President Roosevelt and will carry out his plans."

The formation of the club at North Platte, Cochran's hometown, caused but little comment in Official Lincoln.

Cochran meanwhile had no comment to make on the president's judiciary reorganization program. He had been asked for his views following the public denunciation of the plan by New York's governor, Herbert Lehman.

At his summer home in Wisconsin Senator Norris is resting. He left the Naval hospital at Washington, retiring to the cool northern retreat where he will remain for some time, friends say.

Signed by 13 democratic freshman senators, a letter extolled Norris' liberal record. The men pledging themselves to continue the fight for progressive policies which Norris has espoused in his long career. It was dispatched to Wisconsin with due notice to the press.

From other quarters there were few surface indications that politics was being considered these warm days in Lincoln, but here and there a name would crop out to be classified with elective posts. At this season of an off-year most of the erstwhile politicians have their names mentioned for some elective post or another, but as usual, little comes of it. The pending war of the short form ballot referendum has reverted to naught by silence.

School districts in the state numbering 6,526 have received their semi-annual appropriations of income from permanent school trust funds amounting to $522,103, the state superintendent's office announced. The new appropriation makes the total for 1937 $972,406 compared with $1,189,634 in 1936. There are 398,131 pupils in the districts which received the funds.

There is restrained rejoicing over much of Nebraska. Rains have come.

For the first time in six years newspapers use the word "boom" in headlines where crop stories are carried. For the first time in several years it appears, something unforeseen excepted, that Nebraska the agricultural mecca of the plains, once more returns to its rightful place in the scope of the things.

Cooler weather and rain, but not without some damage by hail and wind, have proven a boon to most growing things. After three corn crop failures, the prospects this year are excellent.

Back of the scene, however stand the grasshopper menace and thru-out the state concentrated warfare on the pest is the order of the day. Additional poison bran has been spread; wheat stubble is being disced to promote growth of shodded grain for hopper food, and in some areas ingenious devices are being utilized to ward off pest destruction. Whether the rain added to the fight against the hoppers is a matter of conjecture, but aid or no aid, corn can grow with rainfalls and that is what Nebraska had.

From all sections of the state come reports of unusually fine wheat and oats yields. Hay continues to progress and bumper crops from potato and sugar beet lands continue to be the promise. Range lands are greened; wheat prices generally continue to rise and generally, restrained rejoicing is the order of the day.

Contained in 32 mail sacks were 27,000 packets of liability reports and other information on the new unemployment compensation law prepared by the state setup. The packets, addressed to employers of Nebraska, were prepared in various offices of the state house.

Into the "hole" of the Nebraska state penitentiary went three plotters in an attempted prison break; to the hospital with head injuries and a broken arm went a lifer, hero of the frustrated escape attempt, more or less a hero. Robert R. Garrett, 52, foiled the escape plot of George Buxton, 31, serving 15 years for robbery in Lincoln; Harold Domisse, 35, serving 20 years for robbery of the Hay Springs bank and Orville Evans, 29, serving a 50 year sentence as one of Omaha's famous "petting party bandits." The prisoners had succeeded in sawing through two bars of their dormitory window when Garrett, up for a moment, discovered them at work. He sounded an alarm and was rewarded for his efforts by being scaled with a sock containing a scalded weight. In tumbling down stairs Garrett suffered a fractured arm.

In a spectacular fire that lasted an hour, the Arapahoe flour mill was razed resulting in losses estimated at $100,000. It was atop the same mill that two employees were marooned for 43 hours during the Republican river flood.

Nebraska's PWA quota for August is set at 16,000—2,000 less than the number employed this month said director Felton in announcing the 16,000 figure probably would prevail until October, providing some unforeseen factor, such as a crop failure does not justify a raise.

Death of Elias Sam Dial, for 24 years a rural mail carrier out of Lincoln brought forth some figures disclosing that during his years in the service he covered 109,940 miles by horse and buggy and drove one horse a total of 75,000 miles. Mr. Dial retired in 1924.

Rather than walk around the end of a train, Arnold Larsen, 14-year-old St. Paul newspaper carrier crawled under one of the cars with his bicycle. The train started and the boy lost a leg.

The 10-year-old battle for Sunday movies in Beatrice may wind up in court. After the mail vote was counted, it was found 1533 residents had voted for Sabbath entertainments and 1533 voted against it. "A tie vote defeats the ordinance," declared City Attorney Mattoon, backed by an opinion from the attorney general. The movie interests have employed an attorney, and to court may go the old battle. It was the fourth time a vote on the proposition was taken.

Warrants drawn against Nebraska state funds during June amounted to $3,130,605, the state auditor announced. In addition $112 was drawn against a trust fund. A total of 16,232 warrants were issued.

More than 5,000 Nebraska truckers have filed applications for certificates and permits to operate under the state's new law which becomes effective August 16, the state railway commission announced. Truckers have 90 days after that in which to obtain their certificates and permits. Those who were not in operation prior to April 1, 1936 must show convenience and necessity for their work before given the right to operate. B. L. Knudsen, supervisor for the commission of motor transportation estimated that between $25,000 and $30,000 will be received in fees from truck applications.

World's Record for Campbell, Dave Campbell, Bartlett, Nebr., set a new world's record at the Snake River Stampede Monday by completing the bulldogging of his 4th steer for an average of 5.75 seconds per steer, or 23 seconds for the four steers. It was the highlight of the final rodeo program at Nampa.—Ericson Journal. Note—Dave Campbell held the Burwell record at 5 seconds flat for one day. The next day Gene Ross cut it to 4.8, the present record.

Reorganization of the Resettlement administration with a sizeable slash in administrative personnel is looked for by the Lincoln office. Returning from Washington the director, Cal Ward said the four states represented here will find not so many persons needed to handle affairs.

Publicity for Dr. Cram.
The Ord Quiz devoted space last week to an outline of the hospital in Burwell by Dr. Roy Cram, who is well known in this city. The Cram hospital is a stucco building, 30 by 56 feet in size, two-story with a full basement, and is modern and complete in every respect. It was stated that few hospitals in cities larger than Burwell surpass this one in efficiency, completeness and design.—Ravenna News.

Something DIFFERENT

The children find this Minnesota vacation a paradise.

The lower altitude gives them a ravenous appetite, the sun promptly and efficiently browns their hair, the damp air makes their hair soft and curly and skin nice, while the cool, Minnesota air makes them sleep like rocks. They play out all day long in the sand, the woods, the water.

And they also furnish a good deal of amusement for their elders.

A day or two ago we heard Kerry begin to cry, thought he had taken a fall, as he was walling quite loudly, but still he didn't seem to have much to report. Soon Coralee came indoors and her grandmother and mother immediately inquired about Kerry's tears.

"What's the matter with Kerry, Coralee?"

"Oh, nothing," answered that little girl. Then, very casually, she added at a drawl, "Oh, he fell down.....and I stepped on his head."

This afternoon Jackie, the youngest Morrow, sat on the end of the dock dangling foot, shoe and sock in the water. About the time we saw him and began to remonstrate, some swimmer, one of his brothers, splashed ten or a dozen drops on Jack.

"Wa-a-a, you got me all wet," wailed Jack, and started for the house at once.

A few days ago some of us made some jelly and it sat out to cool and fell on the kitchen table. It did look alluring, so red and pretty.

In came Coralee and Kerry, the inseparables.

"Grandma, Kerry stuck a finger in the jelly," reported Coralee. Immediately Kerry tattled in return, "Coralee did too."

Keith Kovanda liked it so well here that inside about eighteen hours after his arrival he and Junior Lakin had it all figured out which cottage Mr. Kovanda should buy, and what it should sell for.

Keith is a dandy swimmer, as you might expect. Also handy at rowing a boat, and proud of it. He wanted to show his mother his skill and at last got her out on the lake in the front yard.

"You know, Mother, you're not so hot on this outdoor stuff," reported the son and heir. "Now Mrs. Lakin, she can go out and catch a fish."

Last year the Simpson brothers, Billy and Buddy, aged about twelve, did a thriving business in turtle selling. They located a nest in the moss down on the lake edge north of the Luther home, and proceeded to take orders for all sizes. Little ones ten cents, bigger ones five cents.

There are all kinds of businesses up here. There seem to be hundreds of gasoline stations, thousands of cottages to rent, but they are all full. Roadside signs amuse Nebraskans the first time they spy, "Worms, ten cents a dozen."

Many roadside legends advertise winnons for sale, others sell frogs for bait. Lots of people want to bake for the public, or wash for them.

Resort signs abound... and so do resorts.

Many of the resorts are beautiful, well planned and organized. Usually they are large log hotels, perched on a high point that commands a fine view, yet with boating and bathing beach close by. The nicer places provide every civilized comfort, have their own golf courses, tennis courts, dance floors, dining rooms, lounges, lovely lawns. Boats, motors, horses, even an airplane or two are available.

Many collegians find summer employment throughout this resort region, as in every other resort country. Bands are hired for the summer by the bigger places, get their living tree, some pay in addition. Often the maids, cooks, bellhops and such are college kids finding a new kind of summer work and fun. The camps for boys and girls employ many college boys and girls, after they are satisfied their references are the finest.

Guides of course are mostly natives. For $5 or $6 per day a good guide will row all day, bait hooks for squeamish fishers, remove fish from the hook after they are caught, look after the minnows in their pail, run the motor, even camp-cook a good fish dinner if desired. They are all sufficient in their line.

Jimmy Luther, fourteen, son of Ray Luther, has a party out on the lake today, and a fine proud guide he makes too. Jimmy is quite an efficient fellow, anywhere he is placed. He is expert at rowing, swims better than some fish, can catch fish as well as either of his parents, which is quite well, indeed.

Jimmy can even shoot his deer and did for the first time last fall

A. M. Gaddis, representing the state engineer's office at Lincoln was in Arcadia a few days ago and met with the village board, discussing the main street situation in regard to having an oil mat through Arcadia. Mr. Gaddis stated at the meeting that State Engineer Tiley was in favor of the oil mat being spread on four blocks through the business district. Mr. Gaddis also stated, if the village would put in gutters the state would spread the mat from curb to curb. The village board agreed to accept the offer proposed by Mr. Gaddis, his office to survey, free of charge, and make an estimate of the cost per foot which he thought would be about 60 to 75c. The village agreed to accept the offer and a crew from the state engineer's office arrived in Arcadia last Tuesday morning and started surveying. It will be about one week or more before the work is finished and ready to meet with the village board. This will be a fine improvement to the town which the business men have been working to get for some time.

HELP NEBRASKA PROSPER THINK BEFORE YOU BUY

Storz is the favorite beer on Nebraska farms — not only because it is grand beer — but also because Storz is a big user of Nebraska grain, paying top prices to get the best.

Storz Beer makes payrolls all over the state. The brewery men, railroad men and truckers, distributors' organizations and thousands of retailers earn their living from the sale of Storz Beer. They are all customers of Nebraska merchants, so keep them busy.

Buy Storz Beer— KEEP YOUR MONEY AT WORK IN NEBRASKA

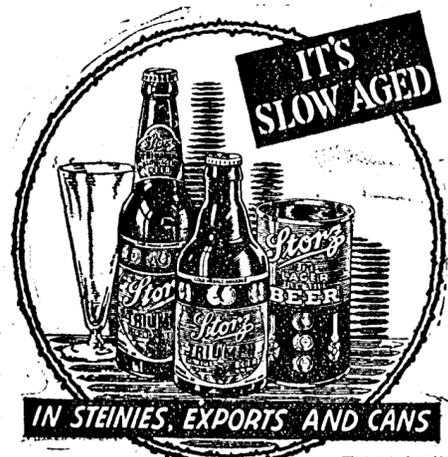

Before you ask for some beer made back east—STOP and THINK. Storz beer equals any beer in America for flavor, quality and strength . . . and Storz Beer is made right here at home, by Nebraska labor, using Nebraska grain.

When you buy Storz Beer your money pays wages to Nebraskans all over the state—men who spend with Nebraska merchants. But money spent on eastern beer cannot be spent again in Nebraska.

Storz makes it a point to buy from Nebraskans whenever possible. The grain used in the manufacture of Storz Beer is the finest, bought at premium prices.

And Storz is one of the largest taxpayers in the state. Last year Storz paid over Eight Hundred Thousand Dollars in Taxes!

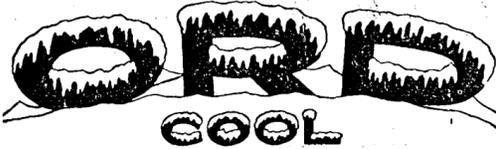

Not only do you help NEBRASKA PROSPER when you buy Storz Beer—you get one of the finest beers in the land—Four times World's Champion—Nebraska's favorite beer by a big majority. So THINK next time you buy and order Storz.

Westerner Makes Heroic Rescue

Another example of western heroism, often regarded as part of the day's work by ready and willing outdoor men, was the feat of George Abernathy, inset, Washington logger, whose efforts were largely responsible for the rescue of Joseph Halwax, injured mountaineer from a ledge high on the steep face of Mount Index near Seattle. Abernathy carried the injured man part way down the treacherous 1600-foot cliff and then protected Halwax from jagged rocks as the pair were lowered from the base. The diagram shows the route taken by the rescuers from the spot marked by the arrow, down over the shale at the base of the cliff, and then by rowboat across a lake to a waiting ambulance.
