Legion Hall to Be Place of Meetings; 3 Councilmen Up for Re-election.

With nominees for the offices of three councilmen, two members of the board of education and one park board member to be selected, the Citizens and Good Government parties of Ord will hold their annual caucuses at 8:00 this evening at the Legion hall. The Citizens party will meet upstairs, the Good Government party in the basement.

Since it is the "off year" offices of mayor, clerk, treasurer and police judge do not come up, the present incumbents serving another year.

Dr. M. M. Sullivan To Speak on Tuberculosis

Friday evening at the Ord high school auditorium Dr. M. M. Sullivan of Spaulding will deliver a lecture on tuberculosis. The lecture will be preceded by a half hour of music by the high school band under the direction of Dean Duncan. The program is to open at 8:00 p. m., and is free to the public.

Tuberculosis is still one of our greatest causes of death in spite of the fact that it is definitely known that the disease can be arrested and brought under control if it is discovered early and placed under treatment. It is an infectious disease and should be treated as such, and it is hoped that the series of lectures will bring this fact before the people of our state.

This lecture as well as others being given over the state, is being sponsored by the Speakers' Bureau of the Nebraska State Medical association, in cooperation with the Nebraska Department of Health. It is planned to give these lectures in more than one hundred towns in Nebraska.

Dr. F. A. Barta has been selected as chairman of the movement, and the interest and cooperation of all civic, religious and fraternal organizations is requested. Dr. Sullivan is a speaker of more than ordinary ability, with a thorough knowledge of his subject, and you cannot afford to miss this opportunity to hear him.

Coach Brockman Able to Leave Hospital.

Coach H. F. Brockman was enough improved from his recent illness that he was able to leave the hospital Monday and by the end of this week will be able to be up and around, doctors say. He is now resting in bed at his own home. It was not necessary to give Coach Brockman a blood transfusion but he will be on a stringent diet for a long time to come, which is expected to cure the stomach ulcers with which he suffers.

Harry Scott of Lancaster county was elected president of Nebraska county assessors at their meeting held in Lincoln last week, and A. R. Brox of Valley county was elected vice-president. W. H. Fuls of Cass county was re-elected secretary-treasurer. Assessors were present from 74 of the 93 counties of the state, making it one of the largest meetings on record.

Unofficial Census Shows Burwell Population 1,382

Burwell—(Special)—In a recent unofficial census taken by L. R. Williams, it was found that the present population of this village is 1,382. The government census in 1930 gave the population then as 1,156 so it looks like the village is making an excellent growth. The next government census will be taken in the spring of 1940.

Mrs. Holloway Answers Husband's Divorce Suit

Monday Mrs. Anna Holloway, through her attorneys, Munn and Norinan, filed an answer and cross petition in the divorce action filed by her husband, Edward Holloway. She denies a part of the allegations therein, and alleges that the defendant has been guilty of cruelties which include neglect, indifference, and associating with other women. She was granted temporary support in the amount of $5.00 per week and $25.00 suit money.

In district court Monday, Judge E. G. Kroger presiding, Howard Watson was granted a decree of divorce from Lillian Watson on grounds of cruelty. The couple were married at Loup City in February, 1933. They have no children.

New Library Damaged by Early Sunday Morn Fire

A fire, discovered at 2:30 Sunday morning by Ben Clark, did estimated damage of $50 to the new library, now under construction. The sub floor and a pile of window frames were damaged by the blaze, which had been burning some time when discovered. The fire department responded promptly and soon had the blaze extinguished. The damage will not cause any material delay in the construction of the building.

Mrs. Dave Wetzel Succumbs Febr. 25

Mrs. David Wetzel, 49-year-old resident of Davis Creek township, died Saturday at her home after an illness of many months with diabetes and was laid to rest in the Scottia cemetery Monday afternoon after funeral services conducted in the Seventh Day Baptist church at North Loup by Rev. Claude L. Hill.

She was born June 11, 1889 on a farm south of Horace, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Barker, and grew to womanhood there, being married on March 30, 1904 to David Wetzel at Greeley. To them 14 children were born, of whom four died in infancy. Survivors are Mrs. Beulah Brown, Mrs. Annie Manka, Boyd and Jake Wetzel, all of Grand Island; Mrs. Doris Lyons, of Omaha; A. J. Wetzel, of Ord; Elvin Wetzel, Melvin Wetzel, Bernard Wetzel and Charlene, at home. One sister, Mrs. John Benson, of Ord, and two brothers, Jesse and George Barker, also survive.

Mrs. Wetzel had suffered a long illness and for a time was cared for in the Mrs. Peterson home in Ord but after a partial recovery was taken to her own home, where the end came.

She was a good wife and mother, a kind friend and an obliging neighbor, and will be missed by a host of relatives and friends who extend sympathy to the husband and children.

Senator Doyle Introduces Fort Hartsuff Resolution

Senator John F. Doyle of Greeley Thursday introduced a resolution in the Nebraska unicameral to authorize the appointment of a three-member committee to investigate the possibility of the state preserving Fort Hartsuff as a historic site.

This movement has the backing of the Loup Valley Old Settlers association, the Loup Valley Historical society, the Wranglers' club of Burwell, the Ord Chamber of Commerce, and numerous other organizations, and it is hoped that something definite will be done at this session of the legislature.

Ord Bowling Team Takes Part in State Tournament

The Nebraska Knights of Columbus bowling tournament was held at Grand Island Sunday, and for the first time, an Ord team participated. The tournament brought out the largest number of team entries, there being a total of 33. Those who represented Ord were Dr. F. J. Osentowski, Syd Furlak, Ed and Al Parkos, Jason Lathrop and Adam Dubas.

Ord drew the experienced Schuyler team as its opponent, and made a fine showing, in spite of the fact that three of the team had never bowled before, and the other two had not practiced for eight or ten years. Lathrop was high for Ord with 130, and the team average was 575. The boys are hoping that a bowling alley will be opened in Ord.

NOTICE—ROOMS WANTED.
There are about seventy-five or eighty young people coming with the Kearney Symphony orchestra Thursday, who will have to stay over night in Ord. Anyone having extra rooms, phone or notify either Mrs. E. L. Kokes, or Mrs. D. S. Duncan. 49-18

Three Men Caught by Falling Tree

Davis Creek—(Special)—Two men were painfully, though not seriously hurt, and a third escaped injury Thursday when all three were caught beneath a falling tree on the Nelson place here.

The men, Kenneth Barber, Howard Nelson and Frank Siegel, had just finished cutting through the butt of a tree 13 inches in diameter and, expecting it to fall east, had run in the opposite direction. Instead the tree fell to the west and all three were hit by the trunk.

Siegel was struck on the head and knocked to the ground, Nelson being nearer the trunk was not hurt, and Kenneth Barber was caught in a running position and crushed into about 18 inches of space, his back being injured and an ankle badly hurt. The other men thought him dead when they reached him. He has been in bed since and as he was planning to move March 1 the injury has been a great handicap.

Dr. W. J. Hemphill attended Siegel and Barber.

Co. Agent Dale Speaks at Cosmopolitan Meet

C. C. Dale was the guest speaker at the Monday evening meeting of the Cosmopolitan club at the City Cafe. He came as the guest of Ed Michalek, and spoke on the farm problem, present and future. Perhaps no one person in this section has a more keen insight into the difficulties that confront the Valley county farmer today, or can foresee better what will become of him in the future. At the business session the club decided to postpone the proposed plan for entertaining the basketball boys until Coach H. F. Brockman would be able to attend.

State Blanketed by Snow Monday

Nebraska was blanketed by heavy snow Monday but as usual the Ord territory received only a light fall measuring 1½ inches. Omaha had 5 inches, southeast Nebraska 11 inches, parts of west Nebraska 8 inches and Iowa had as much as 16 inches in places.

The snow here was accompanied by a heavy wind which drifted the snow quite badly, although drifts were not deep enough to impede traffic to any extent. East of here where snow was heavier the Burlington found it necessary to run the snowplow ahead of the Aurora-Palmer freight to clear the track, and as a result the motor did not reach Ord until after 2:00 p. m. Tuesday. The Union Pacific train Tuesday morning came in about 10 a. m.

According to Horace Travis, Monday night's snow only gave us .13 of an inch of moisture, bringing the February total to .34 of an inch. Average February moisture for the past 10 years is .57.

Two Sales Next Week.

Two farm auction sales are advertised in today's Quiz, the first being C. E. Goodhand's clean-up of farm machinery to be held Monday, March 6, and the other Levi Chipp's reduction sale Tuesday, March 7. A lot of tractor machinery is included in the Goodhand offering. Mr. Chipp has 4 horses, 4 cows and a lot of machinery and general equipment.

State Secretary Coming.

Next Wednesday, March 8, John Alber, state secretary, and John Long, president of the Southern Christian Institute of Edwards, Miss., will be in Ord and will hold an afternoon meeting at 3:00 p. m. at the Christian church. The public is cordially invited to attend this meeting.

Second Annual "Solo Day" Successfully Presented Thursday

The second annual solo day, presented by the music department of Ord high school, took place in the auditorium Thursday afternoon and evening. Seventy-four music students, pictured above, participated in the event. During the program, 71 solos, both instrumental and vocal, were presented. In the evening, four solos selected by the critics were repeated. They were vocal solos by Lloyd Zikmund and Jean Towne, a bassoon solo by Angelina Wachtel and an oboe solo by Harry James McBeth. The high school band, fully uniformed, closed the program with three numbers, "Nola," by Felix Arndt, an overture, "Jolly Robbers," by Von Suppe, and a novelty concert march, "Cibiribina." Critics of the day were Prof. Don R. Lentz, conductor of the University of Nebraska symphony orchestra and bands, and Prof. William G. Tempel, teacher of voice and director of choral music at the University.

Trucker Fined $5.00; Young Boy Paroled

Monday afternoon Chris Larsen entered a plea of guilty to driving a truck without a 1939 license, and was fined $5.00 and costs of $6.15, which he paid. This was the first arrest of the kind for 1939, and warning had been given both through the columns of the paper, and directly by the arresting officer, P. J. Cohen.

Monday afternoon Lyle Whitford 11, was brought into court on a charge that he took some money from the teacher's desk in school on Friday, the amount being one dollar. He was paroled to John R. Haskell until further orders of the court. A number of rules of conduct were laid down by the court, which the boy is to follow.

J. Cass Cornell, Former Ord Man, Dies at Lincoln

Sold Out Hardware Store in Ord 27 Years Ago; Was Buried on Tuesday.

J. Cass Cornell, once a prominent Ord business man, died Monday at his home in Lincoln at the age of 69. He had been a resident of that city 27 years. Funeral services were held there Tuesday at the Castle, Roper & Matthews chapel, and burial was in Wyuka cemetery there.

As young men J. Cass Cornell and his brother, Charles D. Cornell, came to Ord and established a hardware and implement store, building it up to large proportions. Twenty-seven years ago they sold it to Pearce & Milliken and went to Lincoln, where they entered the wholesale plumbing supply business on a large scale.

At the time of his death J. Cass Cornell was head of the Cornell Heating and Supply company and vice-president of the U. S. Supply Co., an organization of job houses in several states. He formerly served as Lincoln city treasurer, was past potentate of the Sesostri temple of the Shrine, was a life member of the Lincoln Country club and of the chamber of commerce at Lincoln.

Besides his wife, Blanche, Mr. Cornell is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Charlotte Ricketts, of Lincoln, and Maryann, who lived at home; and by two brothers, Charles D., of Lincoln, and A. W., of Ord.

6 Pass Advanced First Aid Lessons

Final exams were given to members of the advanced first aid class recently by Dr. J. G. Kruml. Those taking the exams were Miss Leta Crosby, Mrs. E. L. Kokes, Mrs. Mike Socha, Mrs. C. W. Weekes, Oscar Travis and LeRoy Frazier. The passing of this examination qualifies the person taking it, not only to practice first aid but also to teach it. This advanced class was sponsored by the local chapter of the Red Cross.

Legislators have been unable to agree upon the question of municipal tests but it seems agreed that cities operating under home rule charters will be able, by local ordinance, to do essentially what they please about testing.

Senator VonSeggern's modified compulsory car test bill, which would have left provisions applying to brake and light testing intact but killing other features of the 1937 law, found little sympathy Monday, being defeated 37 to 3.

The unicameral legislature is still debating the whole question but it now seems definite that Nebraskans need not fear any form of compulsory car tests.

Heavy Fire Loss at Papiernik Farm

Steve Papiernik's dog barked Monday night but didn't bark soon enough and when Mr. Papiernik awoke and looked out the window and saw several outbuildings afire he realized it was too late to do much about it. Neighbors were summoned by telephone and everything possible was done to check the blaze but it had too much start.

Buildings destroyed included a double granary and a chicken house. The Papiernik car, which was in the driveway of the granary, also burned as did a large stack of feed. None of it was covered by insurance. Some of the grain in the granary was saved by cutting large holes in the wall and letting the grain run on the ground.

The Papiernik farm is southwest of Ord. A short-circuit in the wiring of his car is believed to have started the fire.

E. J. Barrett, Speaker at Rotary Club Monday

E. J. Barrett, organizer for the Knights of Columbus, was in Ord Monday, and was guest speaker at the meeting of the Ord Rotary club that evening through the courtesy of Dr. F. A. Barta. Mr. Barrett, whose home is in Saginaw, Mich., had never been west of Chicago before, and he told of some of his interesting experiences in Nebraska.

Mr. Barrett's trip to Ord was in response to the mission given all Knights of Columbus councils by the late Pope Pius 11th, to organize the councils into a campaign for social justice and religious freedom. Each council is to take some worthy project in its own community and work it out to a successful conclusion.

Compulsory Car Test Law Killed Monday at Lincoln

Farmer Out of Picture But Law Still Indefinite As Regards Cities.

Proposed modified form, was given a quick and decisive kick downstairs by the state legislature Monday, says the Lincoln State-Journal. Farmers are definitely out of the picture but the legislature is still giving attention to certain phases of the testing problem affecting cities that installed testing stations under provisions of the 1937 law.

Legislators have been unable to agree upon the question of municipal tests but it seems agreed that cities operating under home rule charters will be able, by local ordinance, to do essentially what they please about testing.

Senator VonSeggern's modified compulsory car test bill, which would have left provisions applying to brake and light testing intact but killing other features of the 1937 law, found little sympathy Monday, being defeated 37 to 3.

Big Egg Contest Is Getting Under Way; 2 Eggs Brought In

How big will Valley county's largest hen egg be this spring?

Evidently hens have heard about the contest and are straining for supremacy, for already two big eggs have been brought to the Quiz office as evidence.

First Mrs. Frank Penas and her daughter Dorothy brought in an egg that measured 6 inches around the short way and 8 inches the long way.

Next an egg 6½ inches by 7½ inches was brought in by Ernest Frank. This egg was laid by one of his New Hampshire Reds and out of 12 dozen he sold recently, 10½ dozen were graded as special. Mr. Frank reported, New Hampshire Reds are a comparatively new breed.

Both the Penas egg and the Frank egg weighed 4 ounces. Anyway, the big egg contest is under way. Tell us about your big eggs, also your small eggs, freak eggs, etc. The Quiz is going to take pictures of some of the most unusual brought to the office.

M. Biemond Hurt As Car Overtakes

Thursday evening shortly before midnight the M. Biemond car overturned at a corner about five miles south of Atkinson, while the owner was returning from the Ord-Atkinson basketball game. With him were his daughter, Martina, and Miss Alberta Plyn in the front seat, and Miss Darlene and Lloyd Geweke, Miss Lavern Jacobsen and Edward Gross in the back seat.

The car turned over several times and the top was badly damaged, but held up enough to protect the occupants. Mr. Biemond suffered a broken collar bone and other bruises and scratches, and the two girls in the front seat were also bruised and scratched, but not seriously hurt. The four in the back seat escaped with minor bruises.

W. F. Williams came along with the bus loaded with basketball players shortly afterward, and brought all the group to the Ord hospital, where examination showed that all but Mr. Biemond had escaped without serious injury. The wrecker brought the Biemond car to the Chevrolet garage, where it is an object of curiosity and wonder that no one was worse hurt.

Vogeler Sale Grossed $7,500, Was Biggest Yet

The Will Vogeler sale held last Thursday was the biggest of the season, its gross being $7,500, which is said to be about $500 more than the Charlie Meyer sale grossed a few weeks ago. A crowd of 1,900 or more was present. At noon 500 sacks of feed lunch were given out and at least that many men were on the grounds or came later but did not seek a free lunch. Enough cars and trucks were parked east of the Vogeler house to make the gathering resemble a county fair crowd.

Mr. Vogeler was very well pleased with results of the sale. Fourteen horses, he says, brought an average of $100 one mare bringing $143. Other prices were in proportion. Mr. Vogeler is moving to another farm he owns near Sargent.

Evelyn Sharp and Mother Attend Aviation Congress

Mrs. John Sharp and daughter Evelyn left this morning by car at 4:00 for Ft. Worth, Tex., where they planned to attend the Southwest Aviation Congress, which convenes there March 2, 3 and 4. The speakers for the three day meet include no less than 19 well known men in the aviation field.

Among them are Major Jimmy Doolittle, C. P. Craddock, superintendent of the United States air mail, Jacqueline Cochran, winner of the 1933 cross continent Bendix trophy, Col. Roscoe Turner, Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, and Commander Francis W. Reichelderfer, chief of the United States weather bureau.

The meet will close with a meeting of the 99 club, south central section, March 4 at 4:00 p. m. This is the famous flying club of which Amelia Earhart Putnam was a member. Miss Sharp had planned to fly to Ft. Worth, but changed her plans because of weather conditions. They will return Monday.

3 New Directors Elected.
The annual meeting of the Farmers Grain & Supply company was held last Friday and two new directors, Arnold Bredthauer and Frank Krikac, were elected, and one former director, John Bremer, was re-elected. The board will meet soon to elect officers.

Recent Opinion By Attorney-General Gives Cities Hope

Said He Believes Towns Must Vote on Power for Periods Longer than 5 Years.

A recent opinion by Attorney-General Walter R. Johnson, published Febr. 25 in the Nebraska Legal News, brought new hope to the city council of Ord and the village board of Burwell in their efforts to secure a more favorable electric contract with the North Loup district.

Citing a decision of the federal Circuit Court of Appeals, the attorney-general said in effect that it is his opinion that contracts for the purchase of electric energy by municipalities must be submitted to vote of the electors if the contract period was to be longer than five years.

Ord and Burwell have 30 year contracts with the North Loup district and have offered, if the district will tear up these contracts to sign new "buy and sell" contracts for a 5-year period only, to net the district as much profit as it could realize if the present contract was enforced.

The district has as yet given no answer to proposals made by Ord and Burwell but a meeting has been called for Thursday night at which time negotiations will be continued.

A settlement mutually beneficial to the district and to the municipalities is hoped for.

Symphony Orchestra Program Thursday Eve

Don't forget the program of the Kearney symphony orchestra to be presented Thursday, March 2 in the high school auditorium under the auspices of the Ord music department. This 74-piece group probably is the finest symphonic organization ever to appear in Ord. Professor Harold Cerny is director. Proceeds of the concert will be used by the music department to defray expense of taking Ord students to the district music contest this spring.

John Dana Dies at Buhl, Idaho

John Dana, 51, former well-known Ord farmer, died at Buhl, Ida., on February 18, after a six weeks' illness. Heart trouble was given as the cause of his death. After leaving Ord twenty years ago, Mr. Dana moved his family to the western part of the state, where they lived three years. They then moved to Buhl where they have lived for seventeen years.

The funeral was held Febr. 21 from the Albertson funeral parlor at Buhl. The deceased leaves to mourn his wife Agnes, seven children, Lillian, George, Cora Lee, Mildred, Aaron, Ella and Robert; two brothers Charles and Joe both of Buhl; and two sisters, Mrs. August Soucek of Chicago, Ill., and Mrs. John Zurek of Elyria.

Y. M. C. A. FOR ORD.

Thirty years ago there was a healthy Y. M. C. A. started in Ord, and plans were being developed to find a suitable location and make it a permanent proposition.

But with the leaving of Rev. Halsey about that time, the idea died, and little has been done since to revive it.

There is a group of fine young men in Ord who do not want to spend their time in pool halls, beer parlors or at dances, yet these are the only places of amusement open to them.

The start need not be expensive or elaborate. For a small outlay for material the boys can make much of their own apparatus for a gymnasium, and they would get as much enjoyment out of doing the work as they would from exercising on the apparatus afterward.

INVESTIGATION.

After deciding not to investigate the state banking board, the Nebraska uncameral had a change of heart and figured that a little investigating might be the very thing the board needed.

Investigations have been the style ever since popular government got its start, but like the "Handle With Care" signs on an express package, they don't mean a thing. It is a comprehensive word, and sounds business like, but not one investigation in one hundred ever leads to definite results.

As for the state banking board, there is no doubt that they would be the better for a thorough investigation, and the members themselves should favor it.

It is doubtful if the legislature could find out anything incriminating even if they tried to do so, for the board has had every possible opportunity to cover up any discrepancies that may exist. It is not intended that they should.

men are fat, or whether fat men are healthy, and also whether fat men get lazy or whether lazy men get fat.

PAPEERS FAVOR WAR.

When we read the headlines of some leading papers of the United States we wonder what is their idea of using the headlines they do. Recently a headline stretching all the way across the front page of one of them told of a French-Italian clash in Tunis, while in the text the story was denied by both the French and Italian governments.

To make matters worse, the misleading headline was carried over and used in the next edition. There seems to have been no excuse for using the scare-head type, unless it is that the paper and others using the same methods are anxious to see a new world war start.

BEAUTIFUL CITIES & HOMES.

How is this for a slogan: "Ord, the City of Beautiful Homes; Nebraska, the Home of Beautiful Cities."

At a time like this, with nearly a decade of depression behind us, it might seem to be a poor time to talk about either beautiful cities or beautiful homes, but there is another angle: A people who can persist through such a period and still have their cities and homes looking beautiful have achieved something worth while.

And there is no question about the man-made beauties of Nebraska. We are told about them by people who travel through all parts of the country. We who live here get so used to seeing our town and the surrounding towns that we take their beauty for granted, but outsiders do not and they have a pleasant way of telling us nice things about ourselves.

To begin at home, we have as fine a city hall as any town of our size anywhere, and it is being kept looking good all the time. We have a splendid courthouse which as always looks spic and span. We have a splendid high school building, to which an addition is being built at the present time. The Masonic Temple is a credit to any town.

The Ladies of the G. A. R., the Legion and Auxiliary have a home of their own. Work is progressing on the new Ord township library, which will add materially to the beauty of the town when completed. Ord has paving on all the principal streets of the town. It has good churches, and a group of business men second to none.

Best of all, Ord can boast of an outstanding group of citizens, whose ancestry may be traced back to fifty or more countries, but who are one hundred per cent Americans, Nebraskans and Ordites now. After all, the quality of a town, state or nation must be measured by its citizenry, and according to this measure, our town and state rank among the best.

Going beyond the confines of the city, we find ourselves in one of the finest counties that lies outdoors, which is taking in a lot of territory. Other counties may be better suited for agriculture and still others may be ideal for grazing and hay, but in Valley county we have the ideal combination of grazing and farm land that produces the stock and the grain to fatten it.

What is it that makes former Ord residents, some gone from here for thirty years or more, so anxious to hear what is going on in the old home town? Their business interests, their church and social interests have been elsewhere for a long period of time, yet they take the home town paper, and are always willing to put in a good word for Ord, Valley county and Nebraska.

This confidence of theirs is not lightly bestowed, but is given because they knew us in the past, they still have a high regard for us in the present, and they are hoping great things for us in the future. It is for us to see that their confidence is not misplaced. We may be down, but we are not yet counted out, and we still have a chance to get up on our feet and win.

My Own Column

By H. D. Leggett

I didn't know until I returned from a short vacation over in Iowa, that during my absence two of my good newspaper friends had passed on. They were Dan Webster of St. Paul and Fred Howard of Clay Center. I had known both of them for many years. I sat in the councils of the Nebraska State Press association with both of them often.

I was a competitor of Dan Webster at St. Paul for two years, during which time I came to know him intimately. It is when you are in business competition with a man that you learn to really know him. I think I knew Dan Webster as well as it was given most men to know him and I found him a fair and honorable competitor. In those days we were both going after business hard. He had all the best of it because he was established while I was struggling with a run down paper and business, trying to get a foothold. We were often working hard for the same piece of business and often one had to lose, but I always felt that Dan got the job he got fairly. I believe he felt the same way toward me. At any rate Nebraska newspapermen has just lost two of its outstanding editors, both men who made distinct successes of their business. Both will be greatly missed by their late associates in the business.

It is just impossible for me to take as broad a view of the Bund meetings being held over the country, as do high officials of the country. Of course, I believe in our democratic form of government; of course I believe in a free press and free speech. But I do believe speech is getting more freedom than it deserves when it undertakes to overthrow our form of government. I feel as a majority of those whom Foster May interviewed on the street one day recently, that there should be a limit somewhere beyond which a speaker or writer could not go. There are in this country anarchists and bund members and communists who openly admit that they seek to overthrow this government, yet they are allowed to carry on their campaigns without interruption. It seems to me there would be just as much sense and justice in allowing a man who would declare that he was going to go out and steal and job and kidnap, yet such a man would be watched very closely.

I am taking the names of a hundred people off the list following this issue, because they are back on their subscription many months and have neither paid a part on their account or asked to have their paper continued and told me when they would be able to pay some or all. I could get along with all of them if they would cooperate, but I cannot do all the cooperating. It takes at least two people to cooperate. If you miss your paper come in and we will try to get together with you but it would be better for you to do the coming in before it is stopped.

Anything worth having is worth asking for. That is why I continually ask you to allow me to renew your daily papers. I get a small commission which you could not get anyhow. I save you the postage and bother of writing. A number each week allow me to have this business and I sure do appreciate it.

I can still sell you the daily and Sunday World-Herald five weeks for one dollar. It is a good bargain and you will still have a lot of time to read the next five weeks. These are critical times and much of world importance is liable to happen in the next five weeks also. Better come in on phone or mail and have me send in your order on this offer, if you are not now taking a daily.

After studying the picture which I have made and which the boys are running at the top of this column, an Omaha lady accuses me of being a 2-finger typewriter artist. It is a fact but one hates to be told of shortcomings.

Why are you clamping down on us on subscription said a long time Quiz subscriber the other day, as he handed me two dollars for another year, and I replied in about this language: "Well, John, it is costing us more every year every month and almost every week, to put out the paper and at the same time business conditions have caused our advertising income to be cut; have caused more and more people to become delinquent on subscriptions. We have been determined not to cut the quality of the paper, in fact we were and still are determined to continue to improve it. We have added pictures, numerous features, better service, and they all cost money and the time has come, came some time ago in fact, when we were not making even a few cents having trouble to get enough cash to pay expenses. Does that explain to you, why?" John admitted that he believed what I said was true and added that he appreciated the paper and did not want the quality lowered.

Mr. and Mrs. Bolish Jablonski met with an accident Friday when their car went off the grade four miles west of Elyria and turned over. Mr. Jablonski has his right arm in a sling, and his wife had been driving the car. She was afraid to drive it up a hill, so he took the wheel. He got to the top all right, but lost control at the top and tipped over into the ditch. Neither of them were hurt, but the side of the car was damaged considerably.

A FEW THINGS TO THINK ABOUT!

Written by GEORGE GOWEN

Getting On in the World.

Ben Nelson, who has recently started selling cars, (you understand; I said selling not trying to sell) is a bit of a philosopher and in S. O. S. the other day, intermingled with his sales talk he told us a few pointers that I have been wondering about ever since.

A man sitting there who was not too hot a credit risk made Ben the offer, "I'll trade cars with you, giving you my old car and a note for the difference."

Ben answered quickly, "All right I'll trade." "But I can't pay the note," the man begged, backing out. "I don't have any way to pay it. I'm broke and can hardly buy gasoline."

"Oh you'll pay it," Ben said. "If you get this new car you'll want to keep it so badly that you'll pitch into the game a little harder, and scheme a little more and make the payments. A person has to have something to work for to get anything. It is not the man that has everything handed out to him on a platter that very often does things. It's the man that's put to it that really makes the wheels go."

"Very few of us ever do anything until we have to. Very few of us plow our ground ahead of time. When the time comes, we know it must be done and we dig in and do the job. If we don't have something pushing us on, we loaf. Very few of us can save the money ahead of time to buy a car, but there are thousands of people every year who pay for a car on installments after they have it bought."

"And the strange part of it is," Ben continued, "the size of one's family does not seem to make any difference. I know of just as many couples with no children who are so poor they can hardly eat, as I do poor people with a flock of children growing up around them. Those people with families pinch a little more, work a little harder, manage a little better or something. They have something to work for at least. In my own case I was just as hard up when I was first married as I am now with three."

In spite of this little treatise on getting on in the world, the prospect backed out on buying the car. He either didn't have the nerve to try it or was too lazy to put forth the effort.

Chapter II of the Same. I was at a home in another county a few weeks ago, of a widow and three half grown children. This woman seemed quite well fed and happy. Living off the money doled out regularly from the relief office. Her greatest worry seemed to be, whether by some hook or crook she might get a few more dollars passed out to her, and she did not seem to be a bit thankful for her steady income she now has. On the other hand she seemed even resentful and sour that someone else was getting more.

How times have changed. When I was a boy, people had come to terrible straits to get aid from the county and their names were published as paupers in the county proceedings. If they got aid we all knew they were either grafters and lazy nincompoops or in dire and terrible need and very deserving of what they got. No one got a minute longer than they could help. I remember how Joe Fisher, then county commissioner, upon paying a grocery bill, cut out and refused to pay for tobacco that was on a pauper's list.

World Can't Be Done Short Shavings

Before that, county aid was almost unheard of. Many a woman raised her brood after something happened to her husband. One shining example is no less than Eva Hill, mother of Rev. Hill. She worked and sang and raised her three little boys to manhood and never thought of relief checks.

We are in a new order of living, whether for better or for worse, no one knows. Our bonded indebtedness in those days too, was some different affair than now. But it is the disposition and ideas of the people that has changed the most. The busiest place in the court house is the relief office, whether in this county or a thousand miles off; people there getting their dose without chagrin or embarrassment, or the remotest care of who is going to pay the fiddler.

We seem to have a great class of people who are making a business of living off the government dole, so called. Their ambition and pride, if they ever had any is gone. There seems to be two classes of the rehabs. One, whose sole outlook is to get ahead and pay their debts; the others, their sole ambition to get what they can while the getting is good. There seems to be a class of people who have undertaken the role of sitting like the car buyer, and following the lines of least resistance, living off the relief checks.

However, there is one class of relievers that most of us have full sympathy and that is the old folks, who are too old and dodderly to hit the ball any more. Most people feel they must be cared for some way or another; that is one of the debts we owe them and owe civilization. But still, in that noblest of all relief, there are chisellers; folks who hide their means and property to live off the public coffers, that now are nearly dry.

This is the biggest problem that presents the people today by all odds. It is like the old man of the sea on Sindbad's back, and sooner or later Sindbad (the taxpayers) may get the old man drunk and throw him off and the old man of the sea will be where he was in the first place.

Maybe that'll be it. Maybe it will be inflation like it was in Germany and France; maybe it will be Nazism, or Bolshevism or Rooseveltism or something worse.

"Can't Be Done," Walt says. Spencer Waterman admits he enjoys a puzzle. As a result, his brother-in-law, Harry Tolen, told him that he could play solitaire with Chinese checkers. Leaving the center hole empty, put two rows of marbles all around, using eighteen marbles in all. Then the player jumps marbles until all are off the board except one that is left in the center.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

President's controversy with the Virginia senators seems destined to be his most important political mistake . . . End of affair not yet . . . Dr. Schacht, German fiscal wizard, may hook up with some American university . . . Guffy of Pennsylvania proves himself a good trader in putting Biddle over.

WASHINGTON.—Judging by the whippers around Washington the end of that rejection of Floyd H. Roberts by the senate is not yet. The whole affair seems destined to be the most important political mistake President Roosevelt has made since his attempt to enlarge the Supreme court. It seems similar to the court episode in other ways. First, because both were, as it turned out, so unnecessary. The President has appointed three judges to the high bench since that fight, and in all probability will have two more appointments within a short time, making a total of five, a majority of the entire court, which he will have appointed.

Also, the court fight led to the purge, inevitably, and that purge was disastrous in its outcome, and laid the foundation for trouble for the New Deal still to come. Whereas the Roberts case seems to have no end of repercussions.

The latest is the bitterness of the New Dealers surrounding the President against Senator Elbert D. Thomas, of Utah. Thomas voted against confirmation of Roberts, but so did 71 of his colleagues, so that would not have singled him out for special feeling. But when the President wrote a long letter to Roberts, intended as a blast against the Virginia senator, Thomas took the floor with an answer.

The New Deal expected an answer from Senators Carter Glass and Harry Flood Byrd. But it did not expect any hundred per cent New Dealer to join them. Neither did any one else, least of all the Virginia senators. Thomas has been one of the most loyal and enthusiastic New Dealers in the senate for the entire period of Roosevelt's tenure of the White House.

Senator Thomas More or Less a Political Accident. Thomas was more or less of a political accident. He came to the senate fresh from a university chair, never previously having mingled in political discussions or run for office. He was elected in the anti-Hoover landslide which swept Roosevelt into office in 1932, defeating the veteran Old Guard Republican elder, Reed Smoot.

But his nomination was even more remarkable. This writer arrived in Salt Lake City the day after Thomas had adjourned at Ogden, and the folks in Salt Lake could talk of nothing else.

According to their story the Democratic organization had decided on someone else. A group of the alumni of Thomas' university were boosting him, and his name was placed before the convention in a nominating speech. One of the students of the university was in the wings of the theater in which the convention was meeting, listening to the speech naming his hero. But the speech fell rather flat. The student didn't think it had done his idol justice.

So he rushes on the stage, shouting, "Mr. Speaker, Mr. Speaker!" Senator William H. King was presiding. He did not know the young man, but recognized him. It was, after all, a Democratic convention.

The young man made a seconding speech for Thomas. In his youthful enthusiasm he captured the imagination of the delegates, stamped the convention, and, before the surprised leaders could do anything about it, Thomas was nominated.

It became known that the youthful orator was not only not a delegate, but was a Republican. Dr. Schacht, German Fiscal Expert, in the Limelight.

It would be poetic justice, certain financial observers are pointing out if Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, for so many years the tower of strength in Germany's fiscal policies, should wind up as adviser to the Bank of England. This is not mere speculation—the idea is based on some very definite word from London as to the desires of those in charge of the "Old Lady on Threadneedle street."

Doctor Schacht is about to start on a world trip. Not a cruise but a visit to most of the important countries, starting off with South America. Another possibility which some are advancing is that he will become an associate professor of economics at some big American university. There is no scarcity of German authority on exchange, budgets, etc. is desired. By many he is regarded as the world-to-day, not excluding Great Britain and the United States.

Incidentally, the dismissal of Dr. Schacht by Chancellor Adolf Hitler was one of the big surprises of the last few months. Dr. Schacht had been looked up to so much as being the one sound forecaster of fiscal affairs that no one had dreamed that Herr Hitler would deprive the Reich of the tremendous advantage of his advice.

Reports from Berlin since, however, trickling in by undercover routes, explain what happened. Doctor Schacht had been out of sympathy with the Reich policies for a long time. Moreover, he had been disgruntled about the treatment he was receiving.

Farposely Talked Himself Into Being Fired by Hitler. Doctor Schacht made the firing inevitable. He talked and talked, to nearly anyone who would listen to him. Not that he actually beat Herr Hitler. He was not as indiscreet as that. But he said plenty to give the impression that he was not in sympathy with what was going on.

For instance, he was asked at a dinner party one night what he thought about a certain thing that was happening. "Why ask me?" he retorted. "I am just part of the scenery. No one consults me about anything."

He said this sort of thing so many times that the various embassies and legations began reporting to their governments that the fiscal policies of Herr Hitler were no longer controlled or advised by Schacht. So Hitler lost the advantage which the prestige of Schacht's name had been bestowing.

Actually, the old man was like the active president of a bank who is "kicked upstairs" and made chairman of the board—then given a handsome office with his name on the door, but never called in when the new president is deciding whether to make loans or buy bonds.

Senator Guffy Proves to Be an Excellent Trader. Joseph F. Guffy, whose political machine contributed the biggest bloc of delegates to Roosevelt in 1932, and which in 1934 made Joe the first Democratic senator from Pennsylvania since the Civil war and made George H. Earle governor, and, for a time, a presidential possibility, is a good trader. His motto is: "Find out what they want and sell it to 'em."

When Joe wants anything, he manages to make the people who are able to give it to him want him to have it. Hence the appointment of Francis Biddle of Philadelphia as federal judge.

Nobody in Washington knew much about Mr. Biddle at the time Arthur E. Morgan was tearing David E. Lilienthal to shreds in interviews and magazine articles, except that he had been connected with the National Labor Relations board. Nor when Doctor Morgan defied President Roosevelt to his face and insisted on a congressional investigation on the TVA.

But when the joint committee was appointed, Joe's fine Italian hand appeared. White House orders to the majority of the committee were that Biddle should be appointed.

Comparatively Easy for Guffy to Put Biddle Across. So it was comparatively easy for Guffy to persuade President Roosevelt to make the specific committee accept Biddle as counsel for its investigation, and from that moment were ordained a whitewash of TVA and sporadic raids by the committee against the utilities obstructing TVA's progress. Biddle virtually became a defense counsel for TVA.

Newspaper men who covered the raid that committee made on Chattanooga are still laughing over one episode, which fits in with the average New Yorker's alleged contempt for the provincialism of Biddle's home town of Philadelphia.

The leading newspaper in Chattanooga is the Times. Young Adolph Ochs, editor of the Chattanooga paper, was about to be called to the stand. Representative Charles A. Wolvorton of New Jersey made some innocuous reference to the connection between the New York Times and the Chattanooga Times.

Biddle had been in touch with George Fort Milton, owner of another Chattanooga paper, which had been friendly to TVA. He knew the Times had been on the other side. Still he devastated Wolvorton for holding such an absurd idea.

"It's common knowledge that there is no connection," shouted Biddle. A little later Young Ochs went on the stand and stated his name. "Are you any relation to the Adolph Ochs who owned the Philadelphia Ledger?" inquired Biddle apparently impressed with the name.

"His nephew," was the answer, Mr. Ochs not explaining that his uncle had never been exactly proud of his Philadelphia venture.

Prof. Frank J. Kolbaba Conducts First Concert. Tomorrow evening Prof. Frank J. Kolbaba, well known in Ord, will conduct the first annual concert, to be given by the Prague high school band and orchestra in the city auditorium there. Mr. Kolbaba will play violin and cello solos, and several of his compositions will be played by members of the orchestra. He is recognized as one of the most highly gifted musicians and composers in America today.

Something Different

Professor Alexis of the University of Nebraska addressed Rotarians of Lincoln a few days ago and as might be expected by all who know Mr. Alexis' humorous make-up, diverted the Rotarians with modern definitions after his own original fashion.

Speaking in terms of a man who owned two cows, Alexis proceeded to define socialism—(give one cow to your neighbor); communism—(give both cows to the state); nazism—(give one cow to the state, state shoots the other); fascism—(state takes both cows and returns you a pint of milk); New Deal—(shoots both cows, gives you milk of some other cows). This is not quoting Mr. Alexis exactly—but is about what he told those Rotarians.

Mr. Alexis teaches Spanish, sometimes French or German. He has travelled in Europe many a summer, and really knows the lends whose verbs and nouns he attempts to stuff into young Nebraskans.

I was once a student or perhaps I should say an attendant of his Spanish courses and know something of the novel method by which Alexis teaches. For one, he loves to tell jokes in the language he is teaching. All who do not laugh or seem responsive he knows are (1) not paying attention or (2) dumb, (using the word in it's contemporary meaning.)

Or perhaps Mr. Alexis will most politely, in Spanish, ask a student if she will please step out the window? The student who answers in a Spanish answer having to do with shutting the door or answers that she will (when the window is three floors from the ground) is likely to get a zero for the day with Mr. Alexis suspecting she does not know her Spanish.

Students may be funny bugs to the faculty, but professors are set apart as a race of queer people by the students, too. They soon come to know that such and such a two hour English lecture delivered in a monotone is commonly considered a sedative. They soon learn that a dramatic bark is the habitual delivery style of a wee history teacher and that another history teacher dotes on the boys, but girls do well to be seen and not heard in her class.

Certain "profs" are "pipes"—meaning little work is necessary in their classes. So their courses are crowded, the electives everyone chooses. Another prof, who surely must have been the original model for W. T. Benda's drawings of dark-eyed heroes, loves to sit on a corner of his desk and smoke while lecturing. He likes to foster the informal mood, yet really does not expect to find much buried talent in his classes. He once caught me borrowing a rather thoughtful book from the university library, and appeared surprised, not at all surprised. I am sure he at once decided to give me a fine mark in his course.

Then there was the prof, popularly supposed to throw his exam papers across the room at his desk. The papers on the desk got passing marks; all those unfortunates on the floor flunked out!

CAUGHT... ON THE RUN

A "Man-on-the-Street" Feature in which People You Know express their opinions about Issues of the Day. All Photos by the Quiz Candid Camera.

"What is your opinion about the future of the hog business for farmers of central Nebraska?" was the question asked of several farmers and business men this week by the Quiz "man on the street," who talked to people at the Will Vogeler sale and elsewhere around the country. Here are the answers:

"The government is telling the banks to loan money to farmers so they can buy hogs and cattle. I think the government ought to let farmers work out their own salvation. If a man will raise his own pigs and feed them on grain he raises himself he isn't going to get hurt no matter what happens. I worked 20 years to get into the livestock business and then lost it all in 1934. I'm gradually working back and if they'll just let us alone we'll come out all right on hogs and on cattle too."

"I'm not going into it any stronger than before—just my 12 Hampshire sows and two litters a year from each—but the prospects look pretty fair to me. It's a cinch we need more livestock to eat up our grain in this part of the country."

"Hogs are too cheap right now compared with cattle and I don't think the price can get any lower right away. But too many fellows are taking out all the brood sows they can get, all right. When cattle prices break I expect pig prices will follow. It doesn't look any too good for a long pull."

"You hadn't ought to ask me that question; I am selling this stuff and am always optimistic. But honestly, when you can put a hundred pounds of gain on for $3.59 the way Willie Vogeler here did, it looks like hogs are a pretty good buy to me. Maybe the price is higher than the 10 year average and will break later but to me the future looks all right."

"The way everybody is buying brood sows right now, it wouldn't surprise me if the price hit the skids about the middle of the summer. If I had a lot of little pigs coming I'd rush them through and sell them early. The government is going to loan money to all the fellows that want to get back into the pig game, it looks like, there's going to be too many hogs before long."

"There are going to be a lot more hogs in the country a year or two from now but if business picks up a little as everybody hopes and expects, demand had ought to increase faster than the supply and hog prices should go up, not down. To me it looks like farmers had ought to keep on restocking. Livestock is our best bet in this country, most years."

—Last week Toot Harris built a new cabinet and rebuilt another in the county clerk's office for the filing of mortgage forms.

Monday they were working in Howard county.

—Mrs. Kirby McGrew and daughters Patricia, Dora Mae, Chelsea and Mrs. Don Kountze and husband, all of Hayes Center, arrived Friday noon to attend the funeral of her father, C. S. Jones. Dr. McGrew had work that required his attention, and he could not leave. The family left for home Saturday.

BACK FORTY

By J. A. Kovanda

A new publication on sorghum tests was issued recently. Of unusual interest is the fact that it was written by a former Ord boy, Robert Cushing.

Nine years ago Bob attended the Ord high school, where he studied vocational agriculture and was a member of the judging team. Later he worked his way through the College of Agriculture at Lincoln.

Today Prof. R. L. Cushing of the University of Nebraska is regarded as the leading authority on sorghums in this state. In fact, he has earned a national reputation as an expert on the subject.

Prof. Cushing's report dealing with Region II has the most local value. It averages the sorghum yields obtained in Valley and nine other nearby counties.

The comparative sorghum grain yields in Region II were as follows:

Variety	Bu. per Acre
Kalo	30.8
Pink Kafir	30.5
Early Kalo	30.4
Sooner	28.3

A FEW THINGS TO THINK ABOUT

"If you do that," Harry said, "you win. If you don't you lose."

Harry assured his brother-in-law, in friendly brother-in-law fashion, that it could be done.

So Spencer started in on the puzzle determined to solve it. He was late to breakfast and late at milking his cows both morning and night. For two days steady he labored except one that is left in the on the proposition, only using the briefest possible time to do the chores, and too brief a time to eat.

At the end of two days' research on the Chinese board he happened to see his brother-in-law again.

"By gorry," he said to Harry with fire in his eyes, "if that can be worked I'd like to know how it's done. I don't believe it can be."

Harry turned and walked off a safe distance, then said, "I don't believe it can be either. I've been working on it myself ever since I saw you the other day."

Short Shavings.

Hugh Clement tells me of some man he met while working with Tom Hamer and his carpenter crew that had an old tractor and wanted a new one. He found out that by renting another piece of land near by he would get extra Soil Conservation money enough to make his payment next fall or winter on a new tractor. So he traded tractors, using his old one for down payment, planning to make his next payments from his S. C. money.

Jay Davis was in N. L. the other day from Ericson, renewing old friends and greeting all with his friendly smile and handshake.

He said to me, changing his smile to sadness, "George, you don't look well. Is there something the matter?"

I drew my face as long as I could and tried to appear dejected, "Jay," I said, "I feel pretty good except for one thing. I don't get enough to eat."

Art Hutchins and I were quarreling a little over which one was the hardest up. I finally said, "Art you don't know what it is to be poor."

"You're right," he answered. "Neither of us know. My mother has been getting letters from my aunt in China. She says the people there are so poor and hungry they are eating cats and dogs and rats if they can catch them. They eat anything to keep alive. Those people over there can't understand how there can be any complaint in a land like U. S., where there is ample food to eat."

AAA means Always Asleep Assn., so I was told, and WPA stands for Woodpeckers Association.

Story of a Pioneer Farm; Settlers to the No. Loup

The story of a pioneer farm, a first prize story written by Judge Thurman A. Smith, of Taylor, Neb., for the state historical society, made its appearance in the issue of the Nebraska Farmer for Febr. 25.

About half of the story was printed then, and the rest will follow in the next issue. Judge Smith won first and took for his subject the Goodenow farm in Valley county.

It is in fact the autobiography of the farm. It is strictly true to history, and written in that beautiful literary style for which Judge Smith is well known. If you have not done so already, it will pay you to read it, and then file it away to read again at some future time.

The three prize winning stories are published in full in the February number of the magazine, Nebraska History, published by the State Historical society.

They Do Come Back.

Don't be discouraged. No matter how far down the ladder you get, you always have a good chance to come back. For example, New England again has a solid phalanx of Republican governors.—Albion News.

—Roy and Erlo Cox of North Loup and Ernest Horner of Ord attended the Nebraska Well-drillers convention held in Lincoln last week. They went there Thursday morning, returning Saturday afternoon. About 250 were in attendance, this being the largest crowd ever to attend a convention of this kind. Included in the program was a fine address by Gov. R. L. Cochran. Mr. Cox retired as president of the organization, A. A. Horn of Papillion being elected in his place.

Flock of 1,000 White Leghorns on Stone Farm Are Great Egg Producers

Candid Camera Views at the Stone "Eggersy"

Pictures like these will help readers realize what an efficient "egg factory" the R. H. Stone's have on their farm 3 miles east of Comstock, but in Valley county. At upper left is Mr. Stone as he flushed supplying laying mash and warm water to the flock; at the upper right is shown one of the 17 cases of eggs that the Stone's bring each week to the Ord Cooperative creamery; in the middle, left, is a picture of part of the White Leghorns as they crowd around the feeders for mash—ear corn being fed on the straw covered floor; at middle, right, is a basket of eggs gathered from 6 of the Stone nests; and at left, below, are a few typical Leghorns. The rooster is one of nine in the flock that are awaiting their turns at the chopping block.

Seventeen cases of eggs weekly! That is the usual number marketed by Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Stone, who live 1½ miles from the Custer county line on the Valley county side. Without doubt, they are Valley county's biggest producers of eggs.

At the present time the Stone's have between 1,000 and 1,100 laying hens of the White Leghorn breed but last fall, before they cut their flock and marketed poorest producers, they had 2,700 chickens on the place.

Chickens get proper care at the Stone farm. There are three big chicken houses, one being of cement block construction and the others of wood with large windows of glass cloth on two sides. Mr. Stone builds his roosts five feet off the floor and only a couple of feet from the roof, in the interest of keeping the hens as warm as possible during winter. If the roosts were lower many of his hens would have frozen combs but to date he hasn't lost a comb, he said.

Water is piped into the chicken coops but the automatic watering system is not used in winter. Mr. Stone instead carrying water to the chickens two or three times daily. And the water is warmed before it is given to them, too!

Ear corn and a nationally known brand of laying mash are fed to the hens. Eggs are gathered at least three times daily, at 10 a. m., 1 p. m., and 3 p. m. Few eggs are laid after 3 p. m. Mr. Stone says.

The Stone family got into the poultry game in 1932 when they moved from their home in Comstock to the farm, which previously had been rented. "Our renter moved out about the middle of February without giving notice, I couldn't find a man I wanted to put on the place, so I told the folks to pack up their duds, we would farm the place ourselves," Mr. Stone stated. "We've been here ever since."

—Wednesday evening guests at the F. E. Beran home were Miss Lillian Karly and Jerry Rajewich.

—Vernon Beran, who has been working at a filling station in Ord, returned to his home near Greeley county Wednesday night.

—Roy Bailey drove to Grand Island Wednesday morning on business.

—Miss Doris Jensen of St. Paul spent the week-end with Catherine Johnson.

—Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Zikmund and family spent Sunday at Comstock visiting the Joe Zikmund family.

—Miss Viola Nelson, who is employed at the WPA office, spent Sunday in Arcadia with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Anton Nelson.

—W. F. Williams came from Grand Island today noon to take the basketball squad to the tournament at Hastings.

—Mrs. C. A. Hager and Chauncey were dinner guests Monday evening at the Dr. C. J. Miller home.

At first Mrs. Stone held out for Buff Rocks as the breed of chickens to buy, her husband relates. "I told her all right, get your rocks, but for every Rock you buy get me a White Leghorn too, and that's what we did," he told a Quiz reporter.

"That fall when the hens were laying good I began noticing there were a lot more white eggs than brown eggs," he says. "I got two cases, one for the white eggs and one for the browns, and began to keep track. That first week we had about 332 Leghorn eggs and only 160 Rock eggs, although we had about the same number of hens of each breed. That's when we killed and ate the Rocks and ever since we've had Leghorns to do our laying."

Asked how profitable the chicken business is, on the scale he operates Mr. Stone stated that at present egg prices there isn't much profit. "We'd ought to have $6.00 a case for eggs all through the year. At that price we wouldn't get rich but we'd make a good living."

Ever since 1932 the Stone's have sold all their eggs to the Ord Cooperative creamery. "We get a better price and they always treat us fairly," is Mr. Stone's explanation of his practice. He also buys most of his laying mash in Ord.

The Stone's buy their chicks, never try to hatch them. They get sexed chicks and from the 10 percent of roosters that aren't determined they have enough to supply the table with fries. On the second floor of one of the chicken coops, Mrs. Stone has a brooder where she takes care of the baby chicks.

In the summer when Mr. Stone is busy with field work his wife assumes most of the care of their flock of Leghorns. He feeds and waters them in the morning but she gathers the eggs and feeds them in the afternoon. In the winter all help with the poultry work.

A dozen stories could be written about the Stone farm. With the help of only his son and one hired man, Mr. Stone farmed 937 acres last year. He raised about 3,000 bushels of barley, some corn, and other small grain, plenty of alfalfa and hay. Two tractors and eight horses furnish motive power for farming operations.

Two hundred acres of the Stone holdings lie in the Middle Loup valley, within the confines of the new irrigation district. Last summer Mr. Stone and his son Bob put in 60 acres of sugar beets. They had Mexicans to help with the beets. No irrigation water was available and the beets made only 5 tons per acre. "An inch and a half of rain in July would have made a 15 ton crop," Mr. Stone believes. This year he will put in 50 acres to sugar beets and hopes to get irrigation for them.

When you drive over the hill to the Stone farm you'll notice something odd—a field of fall-sown rye that has been fertilized with chicken manure. There are so many white feathers in the droppings that the field looks like it was covered with snow, though adjacent fields are brown and bare. "But without rain it's doing more harm than good," Mr. Stone mourns.

If you want to see an efficient egg factory in operation, if you want to see more White Leghorns in one flock than you probably ever saw before, pay a visit to the Stone farm. You'll find, as two members of the Quiz staff did, that these are mighty hospitable people. "Old Bob," "young Bob" and Mrs. Stone—all will be glad to tell you about their experiences in producing more than 6,000 eggs each week over a period of five or six years.

Know This Person?

In spite of the fact that the picture shown last week was taken some six years ago, a number of people had little difficulty in naming the person, C. E. McGrew. This week another old time picture is presented for your consideration. Al Kroetch was to move to Burwell soon. No reason was assigned, but it is supposed to engage in the lumber business. In U. S. Alone of All World Is There Real Freedom of Speech Disturbing Signs Recently Indicate All Is Not Well; Administration Tirades Against Press Become Frequent; Concerted Effort to Get Rid of Critics.

By WILLIAM BRUCKART WNU Service, National Press Bldg., Washington, D. O.

WASHINGTON.—One of America's greatest and most glorious traditions is the jealousy with which its citizens guard the right of free speech and a free press.

attention should be directed to the recent bill introduced in the Senate by Senator Wheeler, the Montana Democrat.

Three can be no doubt that the federal communications commission is shot through with dissension. There is no doubt that it has developed one of the worst messes in government supervision of any industry.

Well, you ask, how does this have anything to do with President Roosevelt's denunciation of the newspapers?

The answer lies in a belief, now held by a great many observers in Washington, that somewhere in the administration is a concerted effort to get rid of the critics.

Some things have happened lately that bear recounting. Just as an example, and to cite only one case, Boake Carter is off the air as a news commentator.

There have been frequent recurrences of the rumor, too, that W. J. Cameron, who speaks for the Ford Motor company, was marked by administration trouble shooters as a speaker who ought to be eliminated from the air waves.

Other rumors of the type could be mentioned, but I was asked how any body in the government would dare to interfere. The same letter asked how such ends could be achieved.

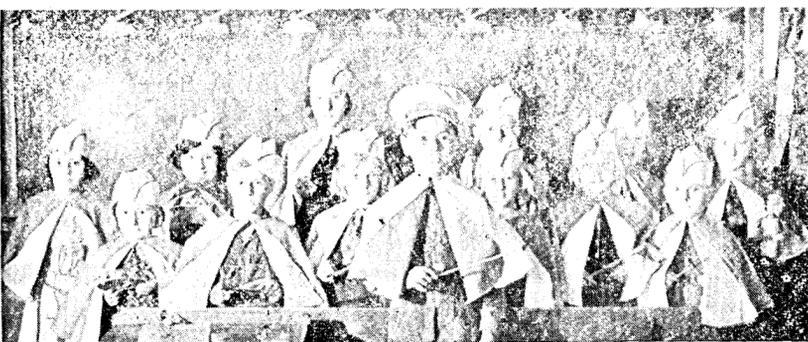

A few paragraphs earlier, I referred to governmental supervision, licensing, etc. That is the answer to the question.

So, to link the Roosevelt denunciation of newspapers and the Wheeler radio bill, one has only to know that Chairman Frank McNinch the President's most trusted radio adviser, largely drafted the Wheeler reorganization bill.

So, to link the Roosevelt denunciation of newspapers and the Wheeler radio bill, one has only to know that Chairman Frank McNinch the President's most trusted radio adviser, largely drafted the Wheeler reorganization bill.

One of the swift changes that has taken place in this country is the switch in the attitude of the bulk of the newspapers.

Nebraska Has Had Many "Gold Rushes"

Since adjoining states produced gold, say research workers of the Federal Writers' Project, WPA, it was natural that Nebraska communities sometimes had visions of similar wealth and became excited when local "strikes" were made. No doubt selected specimens from various localities did show some gold; it was never enough to repay working. However, some remarkable claims were made; these, with the exaggerations and jests of the less gullible, were the chief products of Nebraska's gold fields.

In September, 1887, gold prospectors west of Gering claimed to have struck color, genuine and certain. The Gering Courier was nonchalant. "There is gold within a mile of town. Considerable excitement is brewing; we shall not be surprised to see the gold fever intensified rapidly during the next few weeks, let her come. This town has got used to the boom."

The 1890's produced gold booms galore. In 1895 nearly every landowner just west of Pleasant Dale found gold in paying quantities—on paper. A farm north of Crete was to yield enormous wealth. Mining experts worked there for six months, apparently preparing the place for a summer resort. Choice specimen ores were sent to a Denver chemist for assay. He reported that gold valued at $993-$1 per ton was present. Evidently the samples were extremely "choice," for further investigation proved the find a dud.

Gold fever near Milford ran high when an expert, after considerable study, stated that he had found there a gold-bearing gravel deposit miles in extent and richer than any similar deposit in the world, far more valuable than famous mines of Australia and Honduras. Several companies were formed and much money was spent in exploitation. The expert advocated using artesian well water to wash the gravel and this was done to a limited, but adequate, extent, for the plan eventually "washed up."

In 1896, rumors of gold became so frequent around Alma that had they all materialized, people would have refused gold as a medium of exchange. Newspaper editors, who often took produce in exchange for subscriptions to their paper, said that at this rate they would sooner accept cobs than gold.

After announcing that gold mining had commenced in dead earnest at the Cyclone mine near Falls City the North Platte Semi-Weekly, July 30, 1897, said: "It is expected that pretty soon it will be another Klondike district. A little printer's ink used judiciously can make it such, for a time." Printer's ink did more than that; its sarcastic drippings helped end many ridiculous gold schemes.

Gold is still being hunted in Nebraska, with about the same success which such hunting has always had here.

POWER NEGOTIATIONS BREAK DOWN

District Carrying Case to the People At a Mass Meeting

Will Explain Its Side of the Power Controversy Today at Court House.

At an open air mass meeting called for 2:00 this afternoon in the court house yard, the North Loup River Public Power and Irrigation district will explain its side of the power controversy with the cities of Ord and Burwell.

Speakers will be Roy Hudson, district president, Guy Laverty, district secretary, and possibly other directors. This morning C. R. Wareham, office manager, denied a report that K. Sewell Wingfield, of the Public Works Administration, would address the meeting.

The mass meeting will attract several hundred farmers and business men of the valley, irrigation officials hope. Farmers, they say, have been expressing concern over their irrigation contracts which may be changed if the district is forced into receivership through lack of revenue from sale of power to Ord and Burwell.

A few weeks ago Mr. Wingfield said publicly that instead of $2.50 per acre, farmers might have to pay as much as $4.00 per acre for water, if the district could not iron out its troubles with Ord and Burwell. He said the government would not furnish the district with more funds to operate.

To date, the district has not started the work of cleaning canals in preparation for spring irrigating. Lack of finances is given as the reason, and speakers are expected to touch on this phase at the meeting today.

Burwell Man Named To Securities Post

To succeed Paul Jones, head of Nebraska's "blue sky" commission, who resigned under fire because of his failure to investigate the First Mortgage Acceptance Corporation before its bankruptcy, Governor Cochran yesterday named a Burwell man, Harold O. Johnson. He has been working as an auditor in the state banking department. His new job pays a salary of $3,000 per year.

Thousands lost their life savings in the FMAC failure and Jones, as head of the state securities department which licensed FMAC to operate, was blamed.

Four Students Chosen Declamatory Winners

The local declamatory contest was held in the Ord high school auditorium Tuesday evening. Since there is no sub-district contest this year, the winners of this contest will go directly to the district contest at Lexington on March 25.

The contest was present in four divisions: Interpretive oration, dramatic, original oration, and humorous. Those taking part in the first division were Gerald Goff and Charles Keown; in the second, Evelyn Ollis, Alice Burson, Eleanor Wolfe, Joy Loft and Marilyn Dale; in the third, Wilma Richardson and Laurence Kusek; in the fourth, Emanuel Kokes, Norma Hall, Geraldine Noll, Beverly Davis, Mary Marie Plate, Carol Hall and Jeanne Towne.

Dr. Sullivan Speaks On Tuberculosis

Dr. M. M. Sullivan of Spalding presented a very interesting talk on tuberculosis at the high school auditorium Friday night. These talks, sponsored by the Nebraska Medical Association, are being given all over the state of Nebraska for the purpose of better acquainting the people with the disease of tuberculosis. Dr. Sullivan's speech stressed chiefly the beginning of the disease in school children, symptoms of tuberculosis, tuberculin tests, and the forms of tuberculosis. He gave special emphasis to the fact that the mortality rate in tuberculosis has decreased seventy-five percent since twenty years ago. Ninety-nine people out of a hundred are able to combat tuberculosis. "Nature," he said, "with a little assistance, is the best cure for tuberculosis. No drug or medicine has yet been found which will aid in curing the disease."

Before the talk, the high school band under the direction of Prof. Dean S. Duncan, gave a short concert.

Beet Crop Benefits For Valley Growers

Beet growers in the Loup valleys may receive benefit payments if they plant sugar beets, according to a bulletin issued by the agricultural adjustment administration the past week. Under the sugar beet act of 1937 the domestic beet sugar area, like other sugar producing areas supplying the United States market, receive a sugar marketing quota representing a definite share of the total national sugar requirements.

Since there is no operating sugar beet factory in the Loup valley area, no specific acreage allocation was made in that area. It is understood, however, that whatever beets have been produced in the past in this area have been shipped to the Grand Island factory. Consequently the proportionate share for the growers of the Loup valleys are included in the allocations to the Grand Island district.

Caucuses Wed'sday Choose Candidates For City Offices

Retiring Councilmen go Back on Ballot; Only Fight in School Election.

This being an off election year, interest shown in the city caucuses held last Wednesday evening was in sharp contrast to those of 1938, when three hundred people were in attendance at the two meetings held at the American Legion hall.

The Good Government caucus was held downstairs, with only twenty persons present. Clarence M. Davis called the meeting to order, with A. J. Aulsebrook acting as temporary secretary. On motion by John R. Haskell this temporary organization was made permanent. L. D. Milliken, retiring member of the park board, was made the nominee to succeed himself.

For school board Horace Travis and Dr. C. J. Miller, retiring members, were placed in nomination. Frank T. Johnson was re-nominated for councilman of the first ward, Guy Burrows was nominated in the second ward, and Dr. J. W. McGinnis in the third ward. The chairman and secretary and John R. Haskell were made a committee to fill vacancies.

Fifty persons met for the Citizens' caucus upstairs, with Bud Shirley as chairman and John P. Misko as secretary. The only contest was for school board, two ballots being necessary to bring out Dr. C. J. Miller and E. O. Johnson as the candidates. L. D. Milliken was chosen as candidate for park board.

The ward caucus selected Johnson in the first ward, Burrows in the second ward and McGinnis in the third ward. This makes the only competition in the spring election between Travis and Johnson for member of the school board. John Ward was chosen as the third member of the committee to fill vacancies.

Program committee for this meeting is composed of Evert Smith, Will Hather and Joe Wadas.

Master Blacksmith Johnson Does Fancy Work Designs Women's Gowns . . . Just As a Hobby

A blacksmith with the A. E. F. in France during the World war, later a master mechanic with the Union Pacific railroad, J. L. Johnson, owner of the new Onyx cafe, does fancy work and designs and sews women's gowns as a hobby, he told members of the Ord Rotary club Monday evening. Mr. Johnson was guest speaker of the club. As a child he suffered a severe attack of measles that left him partially paralyzed, he told Rotarians, and to pass the time he learned how to knit, crochet and do fancy work of all kinds. Enjoyment of these occupations has never left him, Mr. Johnson said. He displayed some beautiful fancy work as evidence of his proficiency. Metal working is another hobby of Mr. Johnson's, and he brought to the club meeting some vases made from French 75 shells, some rough

Misko's Election As County Attorney Is Declared Monday

But Lee States Intention Of Appealing Case to the District Court.

"I declare John P. Misko the duly elected attorney of Valley county," said County Judge John L. Andersen at 3:30 Monday afternoon, at conclusion of a hard-fought election contest which has lasted several weeks. The recount held in county court showed Misko to have a majority of 3 votes over his opponent and it was on the basis of this evidence that Judge Andersen decreed that Misko, rather than Alvin B. Lee, was legally elected county attorney.

Mr. Lee immediately stated his intention of appealing the case to district court, in which case it may be weeks or even months before the matter is eventually decided. By providing bond to guarantee repayment of the salary, plus all costs, in the event he loses the office, Mr. Lee might continue to hold office as county attorney. Or, by leaving the office and filing bond to guarantee costs only, he might permit Mr. Misko to serve as county attorney and later, if elected, dispossess Misko of the office.

Tuesday Mr. Lee moved out of the county attorney's office and Misko was sworn in as attorney, after receiving a certificate of election from the county board of supervisors, who were in session.

At the hearing Monday Lee attempted to lay the groundwork for challenging legality of four votes supposedly cast for Misko in November. As witnesses he called Mr. and Mrs. Charles Urban, and by questioning attempted to show that they left Valley county early in 1938 and established residence elsewhere, which would disqualify their votes after their return here. But both people testified that Valley county remained their legal home during their absence, and that they left only for the purpose of visiting children who live in Oklahoma and California. Their votes remained unchallenged. Mr. and Mrs. Walter Dougherty, who bought a bear parlor here in September and moved here from Greeley, also were questioned by Mr. Lee and his brother, Miles Lee, of Broken Bow, who assisted him in the case. Their votes remained unchallenged also when it was proved they had lived in Valley county longer than the 30 day period required by statute.

Henry Misko, put on the stand by Mr. Lee, testified that he had been told by Charles Urban, prior to his auction sale, that he was leaving Valley county for good. Under questioning by John Sheldahl, Lincoln attorney who assisted John Misko, Henry Misko admitted he was a relative of John. "But I hate to have to admit it," he said, thereby showing animus toward the contestant. Another witness called was J. H. Eyerley, one of the judges of election in North Loup township, who testified that two ballots cast there were marked in a certain manner had not, to his knowledge, been so marked by the voters. Judge Andersen ruled that the ballots would stand as rejected.

Monday afternoon, after the noon recess, Alvin Lee introduced as evidence, with the consent of Misko, the "by mail" absent and disabled voters' ballots. They had been recounted during the morning but revealed no change from the count shown when they were originally canvassed. Presumably, Mr. Lee wished them in evidence for use in district court when the appeal is heard.

Middle Loup May Use Surplus Construction Funds for Operation

On Febr. 28 the PWA docket for the Middle Loup project was closed and on March 1 the district entered the operating phase strictly "on its own," it was announced last week. The PWA approved the use of construction funds left over after completion of the project for operation of the district until revenue from irrigation become available next fall. A semi-final audit is now in progress, so operating funds may be transferred at once. Owing to the fact that the electric portion of the project is not constructed, the district's operations are not entirely severed from PWA supervision, but irrigation operation is now almost entirely in the hands of the district officials. A water master, ditch riders and laborers are being employed and canals will be put in shape at once so irrigation may begin early this spring. Paul H. Dean, with the Pathfinder district 10 years, is the water master. The district is now ready to serve 25,000 acres, of which it is estimated 10,000 will be under irrigation this summer.

Old Age Assistance Grants Cut March 1

According to Frank Kruml, county assistance director, it is necessary to make an additional cut of 15% on old age assistance, effective March 1. Only 75% of the budgetary deficiency was paid during the last nine months, he said, and because of increase in applications and the funds still being apportioned on a population basis, this action was necessary.

Mr. Kruml also states there will be several new changes in the assistance program, due to passage of L. B. No. 429 by the legislature. This bill reallocates funds on a need basis instead of population as has been done heretofore. Blind assistance will be paid on the same basis as before, but reduction in aid to dependent children will be necessary, the percentage having not yet been determined.

James F. Barnes Called by Death; Was 83 Years Old

Well Known Ord Resident Claimed by Pneumonia at Home of Daughter.

James F. Barnes, 83 years old and a respected resident of several communities in Valley and Greeley counties for 52 years, died Sunday, March 5 at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Theodosia Daley, after a long period of ill health. Pneumonia was the immediate cause of death.

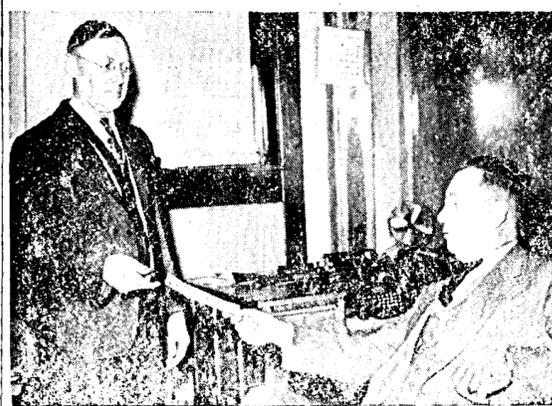

Mr. Barnes was born in Goshen, Ind., June 20, 1855 and in young manhood went to Illinois where on Febr. 22, 1880 he was married to Elizabeth McDonald, of Buda. Later they moved to Three Oaks, Mich., and in 1887 came to Ord, Nebr., which was the family home 12 years. In 1899 Mr. Barnes bought land in Greeley county where he lived until the death of his wife, Aug. 31, 1925. Thereafter for four years he continued to live on his farm with his daughter, Mrs. James Arnold.

In 1929 Mr. Barnes came to Ord and made his home with another daughter, Mrs. Theodosia Daley until his death March 5 at the age of 83 years, 9 months and 15 days, of whom three died in infancy. Twelve grew to manhood and womanhood, one son, Harvey, and one daughter, Mrs. Elsie Canning, preceding their father in death. Left to mourn are six sons, Howard, of Ord, George, of Scotia, Ellis, of Farwell, Chester, Truman and Herschell, of Rawlins, Wyo., and four daughters, Mrs. Lee Cronk, Mrs. A. C. Wilson, Mrs. Theodosia Daley, all of Ord, and Mrs. James Arnold, now of Rawlins, Wyo. There also are 33 grandchildren and two great grandchildren.

Mr. Barnes was a kind father and a friend to all who knew him. In early life he became a member of the Methodist church and throughout his life identified himself with church work in the various communities in which he lived. Funeral services were held at 2:00 p. m., Tuesday from the Ord Methodist church, Miss Mamie Young, pastor of the United Brethren church, conducting the services with the assistance of Rev. G. C. Robberson. Interment was in the Ord cemetery.

Government Buys Site for New Postoffice

In this photograph Postmaster A. L. Hill, seated, is conveying to William Sack a government check in the amount of $5,500, this being the final step in transferring the lots occupied by the Sack lumber yard to the government for use as the site for Ord's new postoffice building. The transaction was completed Wednesday afternoon.

$75,000 Is Amount Appropriated For New Ord Building

Government to Call for Bids Soon; Sack-Weller Deal Was Closed Tuesday.

Within a very few days the United States postoffice department will start advertising for bids for Ord's new postoffice building, to be constructed on lots formerly owned by the Sack Lumber & Coal Company but decided to the government last Wednesday, said Postmaster A. L. Hill this week.

Appropriation for the site, building and equipment was $75,000, Postmaster Hill stated.

Tuesday William Sack exercised his option to purchase the Weller Lumber company, after a week spent in involving the stock, and the deal was completed. Phillip Sack, of Crete, has been here helping close the deal.

Wooden sheds at the Sack lumber yard have been sold, buyer of the largest one being Bert Needham who will wreck it and sell used lumber. Another was bought by Ira Meyers, of Elyria, and a third by a man living near Ericson.

Workmen were busy at the former Weller yard Tuesday shifting piles of lumber to make room for material to be moved from the old Sack yard. It will take six weeks to move all material, remove the sheds and clear the site, estimates Mr. Sack.

Dr. and Mrs. J. W. McGinnis left Wednesday for Maywood, Nebr., in response to a telegram telling them of the death that morning of the doctor's mother, Mrs. H. L. McGinnis. She had been in good health until Tuesday, and her death, caused by a heart attack, was almost without warning. The funeral was held Saturday afternoon at 2:00 p. m., from the Maywood Methodist church.

She leaves, in addition to the Ord relatives, her husband, a son, Dr. H. C. McGinnis of Kiowa, Colo., a daughter, Mrs. O. J. Morgan, of Elbert, Colo., and a brother, Allen Yowell, of Sidney, Nebr., all of whom attended the services. Another brother living in Manhattan, Kas., was unable to come. Dr. and Mrs. McGinnis returned home Sunday afternoon, and Mrs. Morgan remained to stay with her father a few weeks.

Dvorak, Treptow Cars Crash on Ord Corner

An unusual accident occurred on the corner of 20th and K streets in Ord about 5:30 Tuesday afternoon when cars driven by Will Treptow and Joe Dvorak, the meat market owner, collided. Mr. Dvorak, accompanied by his wife and Jim Cetak, was driving west and could not see plainly because of the sun. Mr. Treptow, alone in the car, was driving north. The right front fender of the Treptow car hit the Dvorak car, which went down into the ditch and overturned, all four wheels pointing upward. Only person injured was Mrs. Dvorak, who suffered bruises. The Dvorak car was quite badly damaged and was taken to the Chevrolet garage but the only damage sustained by the Treptow car was one scratched fender. Each driver admitted he had not seen the other car until the collision in the middle of the intersection.

Ord, Burwell Will Submit Question to Voters on April 4th

District Rejected Proposals to Buy-Sell, Cities Rejected a 1-Year Respite Plan.

With a total break-down reported in the power negotiations that have been carried on between the North Loup River Public Power and Irrigation district and the cities of Ord and Burwell since Jan. 1, councils of the two cities decided Tuesday evening to throw the whole question into the laps of voters at the annual municipal election on Tuesday, April 4th.

Purpose of the joint meeting Tuesday was to consider a 1-year "respite" under which Ord and Burwell might have gone back on the high-line for one year under an agreement by which they would not waive any legal rights they now have.

Such an agreement was drawn up by Guy Laverty, attorney for the district, at the instance of the Burwell council, and was submitted for discussion by the two councils Tuesday evening.

"We rejected it by a unanimous vote," said Mayor M. B. Cummins this morning, "because it gave no protection to the interests of either city, according to our interpretation of it."

It was the unanimous opinion of the Burwell and Ord councils last night that some financial assistance should be furnished to the North Loup district, Mayor Cummins stated, but since all negotiations over the form such assistance should take had previously failed it was thought best to submit the entire question to a vote of the citizens of Ord and Burwell at the election coming April 4.

This will be done "unless the situation changes between now and then," Mayor Cummins said this morning.

Text of the proposals that citizens will be asked to vote on was tentatively decided and will be published in full next week, the mayor stated.

While the exact wording of the proposal was not given, the Quiz understands that voters will first be asked to vote on whether they think Ord and Burwell should or should not go back on the high-line under the present 30-year contract, and if they do not think the cities should do this, whether they believe the cities should subsidize the North Loup district to an amount not exceeding $500 per month for Ord and $250 per month for Burwell, or approximately 4 mills per kilowatt hour of electricity consumed by inhabitants of the two cities.

The ballot, while only a "straw vote" for the guidance of the two councils, will be in simple language, plain and easy for the voter to understand, and will be written so as to be fair to both sides of the present controversy.

The councils of both Ord and Burwell want to do exactly as the majority of citizens of both cities want them to do after they understand the situation exactly, the mayor emphasized.

Previous to Tuesday night's joint session, the North Loup district had rejected all proposals made by Ord and Burwell for "buy-sell" agreements permitting operation of the municipal plants.

In a letter to Ord and Burwell, printed in full elsewhere in this issue, President Roy Hudson said, in part: "The district has served notice upon you and has told you from the beginning that it expected you to comply with the provisions of your contracts for purchase of energy from the district. Your attention is called to the fact that these contracts show a rate that is less by a substantial amount than was agreed to by said city and village in their original resolutions. The District does not feel that any further reduction should be asked or made until the termination of the 5-year adjustment period."

"Relying upon the provisions of the contracts with Ord and Burwell," he continued, "the district built its transmission lines, entered into contracts for the purchase and transmission of energy and made plans for operation of the irrigation plant."

"If this income is not received the district has no funds to pay its obligations under its contracts or operate the irrigation plant. If its bills are not paid and the irrigation plant is not operated, it can only mean receivership."

President Hudson then proposed in view of the fact that it is necessary for the Ord and Burwell municipal plants to be ready to operate at all times, that the dis-

Olcott's Portable Sawmill Convenient for Farmers Who Have Native Trees, Need Lumber

A 2-ton chunk of cottonwood . . . goes thru the mill. Almost "a man without a home" is Ivan Olcott, who gives Comstock, Nebr., as his address but spends most of the year traveling about the state with his portable sawmill, helping farmers convert native trees into lumber of good quality. Right now Olcott's rig is working at the Cash Weiniak farm a mile east of Elyria, where this photograph was taken. Guiding a 2-ton cottonwood log thru the sawmill is Olcott, at the other side of the log stands Frank Klimek, and operating the tractor is Mr. Weiniak.

In the right rear can be seen a pile of lumber, part of the 10,000 board feet sawed on the Weiniak farm. Mr. Weiniak bought standing cottonwoods on the old Wiegardt place, chopped them down himself, hauled the logs to his own farm and hired Olcott to convert them into lumber. With the lumber he will build hog sheds, sheep sheds and other outbuildings. As by-products, he will have slabs for windbreaks and several years' supply of fuel wood.

Mr. Olcott has been in the sawmill business 12 years and has worked in most of the counties of central and eastern Nebraska. His rig will take a log 24 feet long and the blade of his saw is 48 inches in diameter. He can saw any native timber into 4x4s, 2x4s, 4x6s, 2x6s, in-to inch boards or any other size of dimension lumber. A Case tractor owned by Mr. Weiniak furnishes power for the Olcott mill here.

Before working at Weiniak's, Mr. Olcott sawed 15,000 board feet for Joe Gregory. Next week he will work at the Henry Benn place closer to Ord.

CAUGHT... ON THE RUN

A "Man-on-the-Street" Feature in which People You Know express their opinions about Issues of the Day. All Photos by the Quiz Candid Camera.

The question asked by the Inquiring Reporter and the Candid Photographer of people at Arcadia this week was: "What is your opinion of the bill introduced in the United States Senate this week by 12 leading senators which proposes to amend the Constitution so that the question of going to war with a foreign nation must be submitted to a vote of the people before war can be declared, except in case of invasion of this nation?"

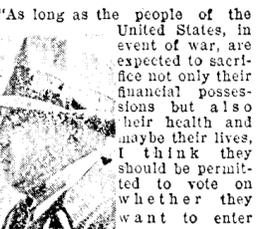

Surprising unanimity of opinion prevailed among those interviewed, as shown by the answers below:

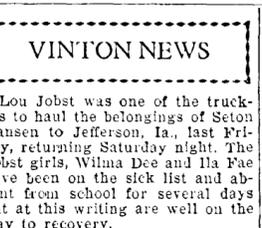

F. Vanechura. "I think we all should have a chance to vote on it before we get pushed into it. We got into it before we realized it the last time and the other countries haven't paid us the money we loaned them yet. The same thing will happen again if we don't look out, and vote for a war before we get into it might stop it entirely."

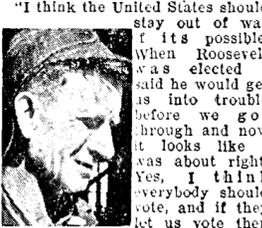

Adam Hvezda. "Before the government could come and take my boys overseas, or to fight some foreign country, I think I should have a chance to vote on whether we should have that war or not. Of course if some other country comes over here and attacks us, that is different. Then we have to fight and there wouldn't be time for a vote."

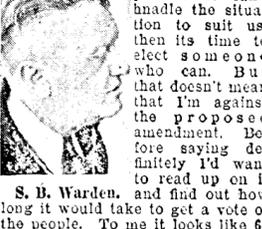

Burt Sell. "As long as the people of the United States, in event of war, are expected to sacrifice not only their financial possessions but also their health and maybe their lives, I think they should be permitted to vote on whether they want to enter that war or stay out. That's the principle of a democratic nation and that's the way it should be. I'm for the proposed change in the Constitution."

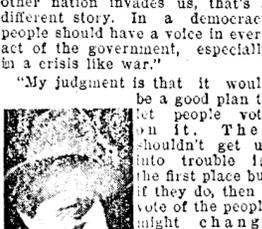

George Ritz. "My judgment is that it would be a good plan to let people vote on it. They shouldn't get us into trouble in the first place but if they do, then a vote of the people might change their minds entirely. I think the Constitution should be changed to give us all a chance to say what we think."

Ralph Aubert. "I think the United States should stay out of war if its possible. When Roosevelt was elected I said he would get us into trouble before we got through and now it looks like I was about right. Yes, I think everybody should vote, and if they let us vote then there won't be any war."

S. B. Warden. "It looks to me like if the men we elect to represent us can't handle the situation to suit us, then its time to elect someone who can. But that doesn't mean that I'm against the proposed amendment. Before saying definitely I'd want to read up on it and find out how long it would take to get a vote of the people. To me it looks like 60 days might go by while Congress debated it, ballots were printed and the election was held. By that time the necessity for war might have passed. Of course if some other nation invades us, that's a different story. In a democracy people should have a voice in every act of the government, especially in a crisis like war."

Kenneth Koelling. "A reception for Mr. and Mrs. Harold Koelling was held Tuesday evening at the Mrs. Lucy Koelling home. Mr. and Mrs. Archie Geweke were Sunday guests at the Will Foth home. Mr. and Mrs. Harry Foth and family were Sunday guests at Ed Cook's. Kenneth Koelling and Franklin Bremer went to Omaha Monday night with cattle. Mrs. James Bremer and baby, Julia Fuss and Frances Bremer visited Sunday afternoon at the Henry Lange home. A nice snow fell Saturday evening and Sunday. Most of it disappeared Monday."

Alvin Lee led off in the concluding arguments, maintaining there was "skulduggery" and "strong evidence of fraud" in the election in certain townships. The Arcadia ballots were brought to the county clerk's office unsealed, he said, and at North Loup the evidence showed that at one time one election official was left alone with the ballots. In the 2nd ward of Ord city, he claimed, testimony varied as to the manner in which the ballots were delivered to the county clerk, one member of the counting board claiming they were in a metal container, one claiming they were wrapped in a piece of paper, and a third claiming they were in a cardboard ballot box.

In Arcadia township, argued Lee, there were 527 ballots cast and only 526 names on the list of voters; in North Loup there were 459 ballots cast but were 460 names; in Ord 3rd ward there were 326 ballots cast and only 323 names listed; in Elyria there were 214 ballots cast and only 213 names; in Ord 2nd ward there were 317 ballots cast and 318 voters listed.

In these discrepancies there were 5 excess ballots and 2 ballots missing, he said, and since at least five of the ballots counted were illegal, he argued that the election either should be declared void or that he should be ruled elected by the judge.

His brother, Miles Lee, developed his argument along similar lines, stating that the "burden of proof" was by law upon the contestant, and that because of the excess and missing ballots, and having a majority of only 3, the contestant Misko had failed to prove his case.

Misko's final argument was very brief. He complimented election officials for their thoroughness, as evidenced by the fact that only 2-100ths per cent of error was revealed by the recount.

He scouted Lee's hints of "skulduggery" and "fraud."

"If I were going to fix an election," he said, "I wouldn't fix it so my opponent came out 1 vote ahead and I had to file a contest to beat him."

Attorney Sheldahl's final argument was very brief also, he pointing out that since excess ballots had not been discovered by election officials they could not now be taken into consideration.

After hearing the arguments, Judge Andersen summed up the evidence briefly, then delivered his judgment to the effect that Misko should be declared legally elected.

North Loup's Rejection of Burwell-Ord Proposals and Cities' Answer Printed in Full to Inform People

(Editor's Note—Most Quiz readers are familiar with the electric controversy between the North Loup River Public Power and Irrigation District and the City of Ord and Village of Burwell, which has been going on since city and village went off the transmission line on Jan. 13 and began operating their own plants again. Poor service furnished over the highline was one reason given for their disconnection; another was the contract executed by the North Loup District with the Western Public Service Company which, the cities stated, allowed most of the subsidy being paid ostensibly for support of irrigation by Ord and Burwell to go to this privately owned utility. At various times Ord and Burwell have made different propositions to the district for selling them electricity and buying it back at an increase, the difference to constitute a subsidy for irrigation. From time to time, solely as a matter of furnishing complete information to citizens of Ord and Burwell, the Quiz has printed in full communications between the District and the Cities' Special Power Committee. This policy is continued herewith. For latest information about the controversy see the front page.)

THE DISTRICT'S LETTER.

Ord, Nebraska, February 28, 1939. City of Ord, Ord, Nebraska. Village of Burwell, Burwell, Nebraska. Gentlemen:

The District has carefully considered all your propositions and cannot accept any of them.

The District has served notice upon you and has told you from the beginning that it expected you to comply with the provisions of your contracts for purchase of energy from this District.

Your attention is called to the fact that the present contracts for purchase of energy by the City of Ord and Village of Burwell from the District show a rate that is less by a substantial amount than was agreed to by said City and Village in their original resolutions. The District does not feel that any further reduction should be asked or made until the termination of the five year adjustment period.

Relying upon the provisions of the contracts with Ord and Burwell and the income therefrom, the District built its electric lines, entered into contracts for the purchase and transmission of energy and made plans for the operation of the irrigation plant.

If this income is not received, the District has no funds to pay its obligations under its contracts or operate the irrigation plant. If its bills are not paid and the irrigation plant is not operated, it can only mean receivership.

The District believes that the citizens of both Ord and Burwell want to see the irrigation of the North Loup Valley a success and are willing, if necessary, to assist you in whatever way is necessary, to comply with your contract. It further believes the citizens of both Ord and Burwell want you to carry out provisions of your contract, which creates both a legal and moral obligation.

You have contended that it was necessary to keep your power plants ready to operate in case of outages. The District realizes that there is some expense in keeping your power plants ready for service. The District is of the opinion, based on negotiations now pending with the Platte Valley Public Power and Irrigation District that the number of outages will be reduced to the minimum and will not seriously inconvenience the cities.

The District needs every dollar of revenue that it can possibly earn to properly operate the irrigation system. However, if you believe that you need the money worse than the District, and think it is best for all concerned, the District will pay you $200.00 per month, you to divide the same as you see fit, for stand-by service, providing you reconnect to the District high line and comply with the provisions of your contracts for purchasing electric energy and make proper restitution to the District for loss incurred through disconnecting from the system.

The District entered into contracts with Ord and Burwell in good faith, built their plant depending on said contracts, have made plans accordingly, expect to irrigate the North Loup Valley and develop the trade territory of Ord and Burwell. If the District is to succeed in doing this, Ord and Burwell must cooperate, and this proposition is the best the District can offer and eventually accomplish its purpose.

The District hopes that the Council of the City of Ord and the Board of the Village of Burwell will see fit to accept this proposition and cooperate with the District in getting the irrigation plant in operation, and we believe, if you do, we will all eventually profit by this arrangement.

It is the hope of the District to eventually build a line to St. Paul or Grand Island and materially reduce the cost of current. To get contracts with North Loup, Elvira and Taylor and furnish farmers along the high line with lights, and unify the interests of all towns and citizens of the District. When this is accomplished it will mean a saving to all concerned.

Permit us to call your attention to the fact that the irrigation plant and electric lines of the North Loup River Public Power and Irrigation District have been built for the people of the Valley including Ord and Burwell, and that it belongs to the people of the Valley and especially the land owners and farmers on whom our prosperity depends, and that if our towns are to grow, the farmers must prosper. What may look like a sacrifice now will mean prosperity in the future.

Will you cooperate with us in developing a better valley which means better towns and more business?

Your truly, NORTH LOUP RIVER PUBLIC POWER AND IRRIGATION DISTRICT, By Roy W. Hudson, President.

THE CITIES' REPLY.

Ord, Nebraska, March 2, 1939 North Loup River Public Power and Irrigation District, Ord, Nebraska. Gentlemen:

Your letter of the 28th of February, 1939 was given to the undersigned at a meeting with your board tonight with a request for an answer tonight. You state therein that the district has carefully considered all of the tentative propositions which have been submitted to you by the power committees of the City of Ord and Village of Burwell, hereinafter referred to as the cities, and that you cannot accept any of them. We feel that these propositions were very liberal propositions and would be more favorable to you than any which you now have or will get, according to the statements made by you as to a possible rate which you may secure, and would make your own money than you would otherwise make, besides being more helpful to the said cities, their citizens and electrical consumers, but you advance or give therein no reasons why you will not or cannot accept the same nor do you suggest any modifications under which you might consider or accept the same.

You express grave concern with reference to the finances of the district and the governing bodies of these cities are also interested in the finances of the said cities and their taxpayers and a sincere interest in the rates which we must charge our electrical consumers. We believe that some of the tentative offers we have made will be more helpful to the finances of the district than the rates you have been paying or will obtain.

We have considered your proposal contained in your letter of Feb. 28, 1939 given us tonight and cannot accept the same as it would not cover the cost of stand-by service and for other reasons which have been previously stated orally or in writing. We believe that we have more than cooperated with your district, and those interested therein, at all times and in our prior tentative proposals and believe that you should cooperate with us in trying to find a basis upon which some one of those proposals might have been accepted as given or as modified. However, to show that any failure of negotiations is not the fault of these cities and in a further desire to still further cooperate and try to find some plan which you will accept, we submit still another proposition, in a tentative form:

The cities each propose to buy electricity from your district at the following monthly rate, based on the last U. S. census on the boards of said city and village. First 25 KW/H per capita per month at 2c per KW/H. Next 25 KW/H per capita per month at 1 1/2c per KW/H. Next 25 KW/H per capita per month at 1c per KW/H and all over that amount at 9 mills per KW/H for a period of 5 years from the date the contract is signed and since, as you say or infer, the said cities also need money to operate their plants as stand-bys, the said City of Ord will each month deduct from the amount so paid for electrical energy to said district, 2-3rd of $600.00 for such stand-by service and the village of Burwell would likewise deduct one-third of $600.00 a month when it paid its bill to said district each month. Other details would have to be ironed out including compensation to said cities for times of nonavailability of energy to either or both cities. If you reject this proposition the cities will consider voting upon the future action of said cities, at the coming elections.

Nothing herein shall be considered as an admission or a waiver or estoppel of any claim, right or demand of the said cities but is again tentatively offered solely in the nature of a compromise of any conflicting claims or demands and in a spirit of good will and would have to be approved by each of said cities before it would become effective if accepted by you.

Submitted respectfully by, Special Power Committees of Ord Council and Burwell Board of Trustees.

Lyle Heitz and Maurice and Loren Horner of Burwell were in Ord Saturday on business.

Spring Just Around Corner... Kite Flying Time Is Here

Ever since the memory of man runneth not to the contrary March has brought kite flying time, and when you see boys flying kites then you know spring is just around the corner. And kite flying time has again come to Ord.

A pair of youthful kite flyers quick to take advantage of March winds are Wendell and Silver (Buddy) Hollander, 10 and 6 years old respectively. Buddy holds the kite while his older brother runs to give it a start, then skillfully lets out string to keep it in the air. The kite didn't have quite enough "tail" for the strong winds atop hospital hill, where these pictures were taken, and showed a tendency to dart and dip. It was hard to keep it aloft but Wendell is a master kite flyer. In the close-up at left, above, Buddy shivers a bit in the chilly breeze.

This kite is a factory-made affair, bought for 10c from a local store. Some Ord boys prefer box kites which cost a little more and need no tail. Few boys "build their own" anymore, the Quiz learned by questioning some of the Ord kite enthusiasts.

Letters From Quiz Readers

Mr. John L. (Violent) Ward,
Corporal of Infantry, tired,
c/o The Ord Quiz,
Ord, Nebraska.

My Dear Corporal:

Your attention is called to the Boss' Own Column, paragraph two, of the Ord Quiz, January 25, 1933.

You take "frustration" that time that Ellsworth Ball decided he would be an actor. That was so long ago that you can't remember but you can ask some of the old codgers my age about it or ask Ellsworth himself.

Ellsworth wanted to amount to something, he had ambition, he did, and noble blood flowed through his veins.

Ellsworth decided he would be an actor and he got himself some books on acting and he studied and he got so he could walk along on the top rail of the pig pen and juggle as many as five horsecollars and he could imitate all of the domestic and wild animals around the place and most of the machinery—

He could imitate a threshing machine or a cream separator or a corn sheller or a hoot or screech owl or a horse going in any direction for any purpose—Ellsworth knew of his heritage and he wanted the better things of life and he wanted to be a thespian and he wanted to thesp.

So then came Opportunity in the shape of the home talent play that was to be given at the old Joint school house.

Florence Chapman was dramatic coach and casting director and Fred Bell was master of ceremonies and property man. The play was to be the "Count of Monte Cristo."

Ellsworth was not to appear until the second act when they were going to set Art Mensing's silo up on the stage and sew Jason Abernethy up in a wheat sack and throw him into the ocean. Ellsworth was to be one of the waves in the ocean.

Bess Stacy was to be one of the waves and was also dramatic editor for the Police Gazette and the Ladies Home Journal, Ernest Coats was to be another of the waves and he was covering the event for the dramatic editors of the North Loup Loyalist and Physical Culture. I was to be one of the waves too and was dramatic editor for the Ord Quiz, the Ericson Journal and the Needlework Magazine.

Fred Bell had taken some old binder canvas and had painted the canvas blue and the slats yellow for moonbeams and we were going to drape it over the heads of the actors and actresses that were going to take the part of the waves and then they were going to squat down and stand up and squat down and stand up and thus create the impression of waves in a storm at sea.

Fred was going to accomplish the sound effect by getting a lot of Aubles, each with a different instrument and each playing a different tune and put an Auble behind each wing, and there were twenty seven wings.

Fred said that if that many Aubles playing that many different tunes on that many different instruments did not create the illusion of a storm at sea, even in central Nebraska, he was willing to go and give himself up.

Well the first act went off all right excepting that Mamie Siler forgot her lines a couple of times and Elmer Hallock muffed his cue once and Art Mensing fell down coming onto the stage.

We got ready for the second act and the silo was set up on the stage as a tower and Ellsworth still did not know what part he was to play but he knew he was an actor so he hunted up Fred Bell and says "Fred, where are my false whiskers?" he says. Fred says, "You don't need no false whiskers for the part you are going to play and Ellsworth began to yell at the top of his voice—like he does at county board meetings—and says "Listen Fred Bell, you are just a stage carpenter and it ain't for you to say what I need to play my part—I am an actor and I want my false whiskers and you are the property man—I know that a female actor does not wear false whiskers, she sits by a window and sews on tiny garments, but I ain't to set by no window and sew on no tiny garments—I am a HB actor—a thespian and I am going to thesp and I am going to have some false whiskers and I am going to jump up and yell some noble saying like "To be or not to be, that is the question". Now you hustle yourself and get me those false whiskers," he says.

Well Fred was never much of a feller to argue so he sent Gracie out with a pair of scissors and she cut off a lot of tail off old Sam, Danny Smith's sorrel horse and Sam has never been the same since that play, he has always had a sad look on his face and never felt satisfied about his contribution to art.

Gracie and Susie worked out a pair of passable false whiskers for Ellsworth but when they started to put them on him he started to yell and stomp on the floor and went into a fit of temper and said, "I won't wear no sorrel whiskers—I won't wear no sorrel whiskers," he says, not knowing what nature was going to do to him later.

Anyway, to calm him down they told him that he could have Jake Earnest's potent pants for the part and Jake would sit up in the balcony with just a laprobe over his knees. So we got set for Act Two—Scene One.

All the Aubles started in to Auble and each was playing a different tune on a different instrument behind a different screen. Bud Auble was playing "Down in the Deep" on the bull fiddle and he was closest to Ellsworth and Ellsworth had been told to Zumm and to Zoom with Bud, but he Zumped when Bud Zoomed and he Zoomed when Bud Zumped and threw the rest of us all off.

Then they sewed Jason up in a wheat sack but forgot to put the corn knife in it and instead they dropped it right at Ellsworth's feet. Then Art Mensing forgot his lines again and the show went flat, the Aubles all stopped Aabling at once and the show was flat.

I leaned over and whispered to Ellsworth and reminded him that his grandfather's name was Fuson and that his great grandfather's name was Merritt and that his uncle Hiram and my uncle Hiram were one and the same man. I felt that the family honor was at stake and I says, "Listen cousin," I says, "You are supposed to be a thespian, now let's see you thesp." I says, "And Bess Stacy and Ernest Coats both chimed in and says "Fevens" sake Ellsworth, the show has gone flat and even the Aubles have quit Aabling—Let's see you do something."

So Ellsworth picks up the corn knife that Art Mensing had dropped and he stuck his head out of the canvas and he turned to Jay Auble and struck a dramatic pose and held out the corn knife to Jay and says, "Here is muh dagger and here is muh naked breast," he says. Then Jay let loose with his trombone on a sour note and slipped the end of the trombone into Ellsworth's stummick and knocked him down for a count of five.

He turned to Bess Stacy and says, "You had your part about saving the show and about a thespian always having to thesp." But Ernest and I both prevailed upon him to try again and so he hopped up and struck a dramatic pose this time with his stomach away from Jay but looking at him with the corner of his eye and he yells, "They shall not press this crown of thorns down onto the brow of labor, they shall not crucify mankind upon this cross of gold," he says—Glen Auble had the bass drum and he draped it down over Ellsworth's head and said, "That sounds democratic to me," he says.

So I says "Ellsworth," I says, "It is a point of family honor, give them something else." I says, "Ellsworth had already taken the count of seven in his own corner and with the bass drum draped over his head and he turned to me and he says, "I won't get up again, there are so many Aubles here that it must be a Methodist pie supper and one of them will hit me with a pie." So Bess says, "There won't one of them hit you with a pie, Ellsworth, there are no pies here," she says. Ellsworth says, "You can't fool me, there are lots and lots of pies here or there wouldn't be no Aubles here—and what is more they are free pies and they are Methodist pies and one of them is liable to hit me with a pie and I won't get up again."

I said, "But Ellsworth, the show has gone flat—do something," so Ellsworth got up at the count of nine, in a neutral corner and he struck another dramatic pose and with his head still thru the drum he said "A horse, a horse, my kingdom for a horse"—Jake Earnest couldn't keep still any longer so he yells from the balcony, "How would a jackass do, Ellsworth." Ellsworth was a little groggy but he comes right back and says, "O. K. Jake, come right on down here." It took down the house, hoping you are the same—No, no, wait, I ain't to that yet.

What I was getting at is that Ellsworth might have developed into a great actor with proper dramatic coaching and experience. I am not claiming that he is knock-out for looks like Clark Gable or Robert Taylor or Fred Bell, on the other hand he ain't homely like Wallace Beery or Bull Montana or Clarence Dye. I ain't claiming that he is a great actor like John Barrymore or Mickey Mouse, but I do think that with proper coaching he might have been a good vaudeville actor. He was an excellent wave and I can see no reason why he should not be at least one end of a horse.

Hoping you are the same.
Merritt H. Fuson.

In Praise of Washington.

The Ord Quiz
Ord, Nebr.
Dear Sirs:

I see on the wrapper last week, that it's time again to send in the remittance for the Quiz. A paper which we still enjoy although it has been ten years ago or more since we moved from Ord.

Every so often I notice when reading the Quiz where there are few that travel to this far western state of Washington and Oregon, and get back with the results that they were not lucky to find employment, and then claim that times are harder than out in the central states. Such statements that the government got to feed the people etc. Now I will say after living in the western state over three years, that the people fed are people that have and are migrating in such great numbers, and are unable to find work and have no money to do anything else. There are very few local people without work. Business conditions here in Washington today are above par on anything in the United States today. Washington is truly a great state. So rapid is the increase in population that housing and school are a great problem. Yakima, a city about twenty miles from us, gained over ten thousand population since 1930.

Our Yakima Valley will be enlarged with over hundred thousand acres of sage brush land put under water, with the Roza project. The Grand Coulee, which is under such rapid construction will bring another million and half acres of land under water.

Beaux and Belles of the Future

Marietta, 5 years, and Donald, 7 months, are the children of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Bredthauer, North Loup.

We are operating a Ben Franklin Store here in Toppensh and enjoy a good business. A great deal of our business is with the Yakima Indians. These Indians are today said to be the best dressed Indian. In the summer months they have their pow-wows quite often and you will see hundreds of them in full feather dress. They are quite honest and very interesting people to deal with. Alice, though you must not trust them with a penny. If you charge them they will never again come into your store.

I will have to close and whenever the Ord anglers get the fever for some real fishing, come to Washington.

Yours truly,
Henry Kriz.

Can't Be Too Careful.

Just last week, for example, so we are told, a local housewife requested her husband to shut off the gas heater in their living quarters, which had been running quite a while. "Maybe you'd better shut off the gas a while," she suggested, "before we get sophisticated."—Blair Pilot-Tribune.

MEDICAL FACTS

Sponsored by
SOCIETY

As we have often stated, there are three known methods of treating cancer, surgery, radium and x-ray. They may be used alone or in such combination as the case demands. Those accustomed to the treating of this disease should be permitted to decide in each instance, what the best method or combination of methods may be.

No other method of treatment is known today, which may be depended upon to cure this disease. It is interesting that x-rays and radium were discovered in the last years of the last century and have been developed and put to their medical uses during the century in which we are now living. Two weeks ago we told you briefly of Madame Curie and her husband, Pierre, who discovered radium. Now it may interest the readers to learn something of the life of William Konrad Roentgen, the discoverer of the X ray.

William Roentgen was born at Lenep, Germany in 1845. His father was a cloth merchant. According to the custom of the day, William was expected to follow his father's trade and his education was planned along these lines. As he proceeded with his school work, he turned more and more to the study of nature and the making of various pieces of apparatus. He finally attended the Polytechnical School in Zurich, Switzerland, where he studied mechanical engineering and received the degree of Doctor of Philosophy. The work which won him his degree was on the "Studies of Gasses." He taught in various universities in Germany and finally became the Professor of Physics at Wurzburg. It was here that he made the discovery of the X-ray.

At the time of this discovery, he was studying the passage of electricity through a vacuum created by exhausting the air from a tube made of glass. This tube was enclosed within a box but he noted, accidentally, that a paper screen coated with certain chemicals and situated outside this box, glowed with light whenever he passed the current through the vacuum tube. This, of course, meant that some kind of "rays" passed through the box and caused this effect on the screen. He did not then know the nature of these rays so he temporarily labelled them "X" rays. This name has stuck to them ever since, although they were later named after Professor Roentgen and are known in scientific circles as the Roentgen rays.

These rays have been put to many and varied uses, but the greatest of these is in the field of medicine. Here they are used in two principle ways. The first of these is for diagnosis. Since the ability of x-rays to pass through solid structures varies, some tissues, such as bones and teeth, will cast shadows upon the photographic plate or film and thus become "visible." Hollow organs, such as the stomach, can be made visible on the photographic plate by putting into the organ some substance, as barium or bismuth, that will cast an x-ray shadow. One can see that there would be a great variety of such uses and that new ones could be found from time to time. This has been the case.

The second great medical field of usefulness for these rays is that of treatment. Although treatment with x-ray is not confined to cancer, this has been the most spectacular and life saving use, so far found, for Professor Roentgen's rays.

Kinnemakit Indians Once Inhabited Loup Valley

Above is shown a very good likeness of Chief Masquakout of the Kinnemakit branch of the Pawnee tribe as he appeared in the days when Ord was just a wide place in the mud of early Loup valley rains.

he had shot 16 times, while with the bow and arrows he could shoot as long as he wanted to.

Chief Masquakout was quite an old man at the time of the blizzard of 1833, but he was still able to run with great rapidity.

Thus perished one of the greatest chiefs of the western plains, at an age estimated to be 105 years.

Masquakout was nominated for congress in 1876, and was elected by an overwhelming majority, only to find that he could not qualify.

Early Day Finance in Ord. The early days of banking in Valley county had its tragic as well as its humorous side.

There was not much security, as the early settler on a homestead could give only a chattel mortgage on what stock or machinery he had as very few had obtained title to their land.

I recall very vividly one instance where the party went to Oklahoma. The sheriff went after him but the man only laughed at him and thought it a great joke.

Another case I recall where a party mortgaged his team, wagon and some other material and then disappeared. The party's father lived here and the sheriff knew that there would be some letters pass before long.

On one occasion he gave an antelope too much head start and ran it so fast and so far that, after he caught it, it took him two weeks steady travel to get back to the valley, and when he arrived the carcass of the antelope was spoiled, so all his trip was wasted.

The picture shown herewith was taken about 1880. The Model 1890 Winchester rifle had not been invented at the time, but the inventor was working on it, and gave the chief the one shown in the picture to try out on buffalo.

had him at once arrested, and in another hour caught up with the father on his way home and told him he had the son under arrest and would bring him back unless the father would come in and pay the note and get the mortgage released, which he did.

Of course there were hazards in banking in those days and interest rates were high and the banks preferred a 30 or 60 day note and did not like to loan on 90 days, as the short time note did more rapid work when interest was added to the principal if renewed which was more after the case than otherwise.

One day in the early 80's a sewing machine agent drove up and had dinner with us. After dinner was over he insisted on selling me a sewing machine. I had sold some property to a party, Mr. G. I will call him Mr. G., and had the note due in 60 days.

Some time about 1883 there came a bunch of horse wranglers with about fifty head of Indian ponies, and camped within a half mile of my homestead.

However I wanted one of those ponies and wanted it pretty bad, but $25.00 was quite a lot of cash to raise in those days.

Yes, I could have the money at 4% on 60 days time, but the interest was not mentioned on the face of the note only a straight 10% note, but the note was drawn for enough more to make the 4% a month, so I signed up for $25.00, drawing 10% on its face due in 60 days.

Soon after that Heddie Bros. came to Ord and said they were going to cut down the high rate of interest, but when one found out the several charges for several items that meant about the usual rate of 4% a month.

This was a period of great uncertainty in Valley county and all of Nebraska as any season crops might be entirely destroyed by a return of the grasshoppers and one cannot well blame the banks for being conservative. I think the early settlers as a rule were as honest as those coming later, but

Farms 585 Acres, Raises Much Livestock

One of the good farmers of that Valley county community east of Comstock is Lew Winkleman, who with his two boys farms 585 acres on what is known as the "old Stone place."

told him to go to the bank and sell them. He said he had but they wanted to discount them 25% and he said he could not afford that.

I at once wrote to my brother in Iowa and told him the circumstances. By return mail he sent me a draft to cover value of the entire list of notes.

The question of money and banking is too deep for me and a whole volume could be written about what I don't know about finance.

About 1855 a man near Arcadia had a sale and came to me to buy some of his notes he had taken in his bunch of notes he had taken in his place every day.

New Hampshire Reds Lead in Valley County's "Big Egg" Contest

Are New Hampshire Reds going to run away with all the "big egg" laying honors? It would seem so at the end of the contest's first week, four out of five big eggs submitted three have been laid by N. H. Red hens.

Biggest egg so far brought in was brought by Ivan Canedy, of North Loup. It was a New Hampshire Red egg and measured 8 inches around the long way and 7 1/2 inches the "short way." As a matter of fact, the big egg was almost round. A picture of it appears in the center above, at right of a normal size hen's egg. The egg from Mrs. Canedy's flock weighed 4 1/4 ounces, heaviest of any entered.

Two other big N. H. Red eggs were brought in, one by George Lange that measured 8 inches by 6 1/2 inches and weighed 4 ounces, the other by Henry Lange that measured 7 1/2 by 6 1/2 inches and weighed 3 7/8 ounces. Pictures of these two eggs are at right, above.

White Leghorns also lay big eggs occasionally, as proved by one brought in by Albert Kirby that measured 7 7/8 by 6 1/4 inches and weighed 3 3/8 ounces, and another brought by Ralph Burson that measured 6 1/4 by 6 1/4 and weighed 3 3/8 ounces. The Leghorn eggs are shown at the left, above.

The freak egg below was a soft shell egg laid by one of Edward Jablonski's Rhode Island Red hens.

Across the top are shown a dozen eggs from Floyd Weitzel's flock of New Hampshire Reds. All of them extra large for hen's eggs, they were as even in size as though cast in one mold. The dozen eggs weighed 32 ounces, which is 10 ounces more than select eggs are required to weigh in the market.

Will Ivan Canedy's 8 inch by 7 1/2 inch egg be the largest laid in Valley county this spring? If any poultryman can produce a larger hen's egg Quiz readers would like to hear about it and see a picture of it, so bring it in, please.

LIKE WHALE?

When the federal oleomargarine law was first enacted for the protection of the consumer, ole was being made chiefly of animal carcass fats. Later the main ingredient became imported coconut and palm oils. Then it was cottonseed oil for a time. Maybe next it will be soybean oil or whale oil. Who knows? The ole manufacturer will buy whichever ingredient will return him the best profit.

Why not "swear off" this business of eating ole and hurting yourself and your community. Why not eat butter—the good wholesome product of our own Nebraska farms. You know what it is, and you know that your money stays here to make business and jobs for yourself and your neighbors.

Burwell Men Trapped 671 Muskrats in Six Weeks Spent on Wallace Ranch on Calamus

—A veteran trapper is Elmer Brockman, a Burwell man who this winter moved his house on wheels to the XA ranch on the Calamus river and there trapped 671 muskrats in a period of six weeks. During the first month Brockman, assisted at times by his brother Herman, trapped 600 rats, nearly all there were on this section of the river.

One mink and a few skunks, besides the muskrats, comprised Mr. Brockman's season's catch of furs. The muskrats brought 25c to 70c each when sold to fur buyers.

The XA ranch on which the trapping was done is located between Valley View and Horseshoe Bend and is owned by David Wallace, president of the Chrysler Corporation, who acquired it a couple of years ago. John Wallace, a brother, and Gaylord Wallace, a nephew, are in charge of ranch operations. The ranch is being restocked with purebred Hereford cattle. The owner has had the entire ranch designated as a game preserve and almost all year flocks of ducks and geese can be seen on the river, apparently secure in the knowledge that they are safe from the guns of hunters. There is a large herd of deer on the ranch also, Mr. Brockman says. He has seen as many as 17 in one herd there.

Bud Shirley balked at hauling the mail any longer without being paid for his work. Bud had started hauling the mail up from the Ord depot March 17, 1887, according to the records, and had kept up the good work for a period of 32 years. In thirty-two years he had missed the mail just five times, which was a record for anybody to shoot at. W. hall, above the present Petska store, and it was one of the gala occasions of the year.

Footwangler Triplets Pose for Pictures on 2nd Birthday

Two years ago on Febr. 18, 1937 a Hereford cow belonging to Lee Footwangler gave birth to triplet calves. Their mother couldn't furnish enough milk to keep three such lusty sucklings so Tom, Dick and Harry had their pictures taken while being fed, and the picture—shown at right above—was printed in the Quiz.

Now weighing between 800 and 900 lbs., but still looking as like as three peas in a pod, Tom, Dick and Harry passed their second birthday recently. IT HAPPENED IN ORD.

F. E. McQuillan thinks that he has more trouble than anybody. First he started that whispering campaign for mayor of Ord, then he sold out a couple of weeks ago so that he could devote his entire time to the campaign. Now he finds that it is all in vain, as there will be no mayor elected until next year. It's too bad, Mac, but it can't be helped.

Those two Union Pacific buses that brought the Kearney Symphony Orchestra to Ord Thursday had a hard time finding a place to spend the night. They finally got into the Chevrolet garage, but it took quite a lot of skill on the part of the drivers. The doors were plenty high, but there was not a lot of space to spare on the sides.

A veteran trapper is Elmer Brockman, a Burwell man who this winter moved his house on wheels to the XA ranch on the Calamus river and there trapped 671 muskrats in a period of six weeks. During the first month Brockman, assisted at times by his brother Herman, trapped 600 rats, nearly all there were on this section of the river.

One mink and a few skunks, besides the muskrats, comprised Mr. Brockman's season's catch of furs. The muskrats brought 25c to 70c each when sold to fur buyers.

The XA ranch on which the trapping was done is located between Valley View and Horseshoe Bend and is owned by David Wallace, president of the Chrysler Corporation, who acquired it a couple of years ago. John Wallace, a brother, and Gaylord Wallace, a nephew, are in charge of ranch operations. The ranch is being restocked with purebred Hereford cattle. The owner has had the entire ranch designated as a game preserve and almost all year flocks of ducks and geese can be seen on the river, apparently secure in the knowledge that they are safe from the guns of hunters. There is a large herd of deer on the ranch also, Mr. Brockman says. He has seen as many as 17 in one herd there.

Small Telephone Companies Hit By Application of Labor Law

Again the People Are Made Victims of Too Much Government; Act Forces Small Industries Into Spot Where They Cannot Do Business or Hire Labor.

By WILLIAM BRUCKART WNU Service, National Press Bldg., Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON. — On President Roosevelt's list of "must" legislation a year or so ago was a bill that, when it eventually became a law, was called the "Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938." It was made to apply to all business crossing state lines or to products thus manufactured that went into channels of trade outside of the state where they were produced. It set certain rates of minimum pay and established a limitation on the number of hours workers could continue on the job. Everyone refers to it now as the wages and hours law.

At the time of the appointment of Elmer F. Andrews, as wages and hours administrator, I discussed the potential success or failure that lay ahead for such a law. In looking over my files of the time, I found that I wrote, concerning the law, that "Mr. Andrews can either make or break it" by the policies he adopts and the interpretations he makes of the law's provisions. I said also that he must use great care in the selection of subordinates.

All of which leads into discussion of a situation that has arisen respecting application of the law to several industries. Generally, too, it forces a conclusion that here is just another law under which government is interfering in the normal living of people. As usual, the people are the victims of too much government.

While there are several lines of industry about which I want to write in this analysis, the most flagrant misgovernment and the most damaging result, as far as I can see, is the application of the wages and hours law to the little known, but widely used, small independent telephone companies. I am referring to that type of telephone company which serves the small towns and villages and the farmers who live around these small, yet very essential, trading centers.

Nearly 30,000 Independent Telephone Companies in U. S. When I heard that some of the subordinates in Mr. Andrews' agency were determined to apply the provisions of the wages and hours law to the independent telephone, I began to dig around for information about them. I am acquainted with those units of service. I know what it is to turn the crank on the big box that hangs on the wall in order to ring a neighbor on a party line; it is not an unfamiliar fact either to hear of how the switchboard, located in somebody's home in the village, closes down at nine o'clock at night, and no one is supposed to ring unless it is a case of sickness or other emergency.

I was stunned, however, to realize that there are nearly 30,000 such companies in the United States. Nor was I prepared to understand, at once, that there are approximately 4,100,000 "stations" or subscribers to those companies. If we figure an average family as five, we arrive at the conclusion obviously that nearly 21,000,000 persons depend upon that type of service.

Champions of the Loup Valley conference but pursued by a jinx all season in non-conference play, the Ord Chanticleers lost to Nelson Wednesday in the district Class A tournament held in Hastings. The score was 32 to 27. The Chanticleers were one of four seeded teams in the district but were given little chance to win the title. Hastings won the championship Friday by beating York in the finals.

or subscribers to those companies. If we figure an average family as five, we arrive at the conclusion obviously that nearly 21,000,000 persons depend upon that type of service.

The wages and hours administration does not propose to apply the law to all of these; it eliminated more than half of the total, but a bunch of the smart boys under Mr. Andrews have decided the law should apply to 12,461 such companies. They decided the law can be applied, even though the companies are entirely within the confines of a county, in most instances because the little switchboards are able to make a connection with "long distance" companies. It may not happen more than five times a month, but the little company is doing "interstate" business. Hence, your Uncle Sam, acting through the bureaucrats, proposes to tell the local companies they must pay the wages designated by the federal law and limit the hours of those who earn their living that way. Would Force Companies to Increase Their Rates

Now, I am thoroughly familiar with the limitation of opportunities of employment for women and girls in the small towns. I know that the small telephone companies employ them as operators, or they employ somebody not physically able to do other types of work. The pay is small, but it provides a comfortable living in most cases. Perhaps, the pay ought to be higher, but if the pay is higher, the town and country subscribers will have to pay more. The reason those companies succeed and render the valuable service that is rendered is because they held down expense and provide service at a dollar, or around that figure, per month. One realizes better what that rate means when a comparison is offered of the five or six dollars per month charged in cities.

Should the smart boys in the wages and hours administration get away with their program, it would mean that a small exchange would have to increase the pay for operators. The minimum for operators would be $2,190 a year instead of whatever rate now is paid; and it would mean, moreover, that there would have to be three or four operators. That is to say, no operator could work more than 42 hours per week—a seven-hour day of a six-day week. And what would that mean? Every one of those companies would be forced to collect three or four times as much per month from the subscribers, or close down the system.

Then, to show how widespread the effect would be, let me cite the number of exchanges in a few states: Iowa, 802; Illinois, 917; Alabama, 167; Arkansas, 299; Indiana, 695; Maine, 123; Michigan, 351; Minnesota, 578; Missouri, 778 and Texas 598. It is to be remembered that these are purely local companies. Whatever number of exchanges are operated in those states by the Bell Telephone company are in addition. But we are not concerned with the Bell system. That outfit is big enough to fight its own battles.

Cannot See What They Are Doing to the Country Why these smart boys cannot see what they are doing to the country, is a question which I cannot answer. Either they are utterly dumb or they are promoting the organization work for passage of the wages and hours law. The CIO certainly has demonstrated it does not belong in the list of real American organizations, but it still has political power. The connection with CIO agitation might be traced though the fact that the law contains a provision permitting a worker to sue for damages if the employer (in this case the telephone company) compels violation of the law by forcing overtime work.

I have mentioned heretofore how often the "unlected" officials of the government—those appointed by the President or his subordinates—either have ignored political history or they know nothing about political history. The case of the independent telephone companies is a splendid illustration. Lately, the little independent steel companies have felt the dead hand of government through the same law. I am not informed as to all details of their case, but there were 44 eastern independent steel companies appeared recently before the propaganda spreading temporary national economic committee, seeking relief. The independent steel companies are to the great steel manufacturers as the little independent telephone companies are to the Bell system. The wages and hours law will wreck them, they told the national economic committee which has come to be known as the monopoly investigation. Forces Industry Into Spot Where It Cannot Do Business If those little fellows have to meet wages and hours set for them by Miss Perkins, secretary of labor, to whom Mr. Andrews is subordinate, the steel people say they will go broke. Or, at least, they charged. Or, they could get no government contracts because of failure to comply with the law. Since the government is spending billions of dollars to create employment and for general relief, I cannot help wondering why it wants to force one segment of industry into a spot where it can do no business and employ labor.

The whole thing, however, gets more cockeyed as time goes on. There seems to be no limit to the lengths to which bureaucrats, who are drunk with power, will go in abusing the nation. Who was there that did not express the greatest disgust at the assinine story which came out of New York city the other day. I refer to the problem before the New York state labor board which was called upon to decide whether a professional woman model was fired because she had been active as a union organizer or because her hips were too wide. The woman claimed she had been fired because she was trying to organize a union of models. Her former employers said her hips were too broad to properly wear the clothes they wished to display. While the story is not lacking in humor, it must be treated seriously because the width of the girl's hips may yet be a question of national importance. It is a fact, and not a witticism, that the national labor relations board may yet be called upon to measure those hips and determine, as judges of fashion, whether she can properly display the latest mode of spring apparel.

RUSH FOR CITIZENSHIP. Federal officers in Indianapolis, Ind., are viewing the sudden leap in applications for naturalization as reflecting conditions of Europe.

In time of trouble the advantage of a haven in the land of the free looms much larger than under normal conditions.

It is a notable fact that those who talk loudest about how fine conditions are in any country in Europe today are those who have already provided themselves with the proofs of citizenship here, and who cannot be required to return to their native country.

There is another reason why citizenship is valued highly at the present time, and that is the fact that all aliens are being removed from the relief rolls.

Recent newspaper reports tell of the resignation of Mrs. Roosevelt from an organization because she felt that she would indicate approval of the actions of the organization if she remained a member.

This organization refused the noted colored singer, Marian Anderson, permission to give a concert in Constitution Hall in Washington.

The mothers and wives of the American Revolution would have stood for no such petty snobbery. They worked together in seeking aid for their cause and they welcomed the help of anyone, regardless of race, color, religion or any other differences that might arise.

Washington might have refused the aid of Lafayette, DeKalb or Kosciusko, on the ground that they were foreigners and of a different race, but the record shows that he did not do so, and, if he had, America might still be a Dominion of Great Britain.

Some ideas advanced by so-called patriotic organizations are about as astute as the expelled nobility of various countries of Europe clinging to their obsolete titles and insisting on a certain measure of respect for what they used to mean.

There is no doubt that the American Revolution would have stood for no such petty snobbery. They worked together in seeking aid for their cause and they welcomed the help of anyone, regardless of race, color, religion or any other differences that might arise.

Twenty years ago an organization was formed which was destined to have a far reaching effect on the affairs of men for a generation or more. The American Legion came into being, and has been an influence for the highest ideals of Americanism ever since it found- ing.

This organization, like the G. A. R. and Spanish War veterans, is unique. There never has been anything like it, and never will be when it has gone. Its membership is exclusive, and when those who are eligible are gathered to their fathers, the organization will cease to exist.

On this, perhaps the most important anniversary the American Legion has ever celebrated, it is fitting that some special mention should be made of it, together with its aims and purposes. No better material can be found than that contained in the preamble to the American Legion, which is here appended with appropriate comment. No. 1. "To Uphold and Defend the Constitution of the United States." Every man, woman and child in the United States can participate in the program of the American Legion and help uphold the above principle.

No. 2. "To Maintain Law and Order." The American Legion, comprised of a million World War veterans honorably discharged from the service, wants nothing more than to give its utmost to keep America safe for Americans.

No. 3. "To Foster and Perpetuate a 100 Per Cent Americanism." The American Legion's program of Americanism includes youth training, the promotion of education, community service and other constructive activities, which make for a deeper appreciation of America and American institutions.

No. 4. "To Preserve the Memories and Incidents of Our Association in the Great War." Quite naturally World War veterans are proud of their honor service to their country. Every veteran can demonstrate this high principle by affiliating with the American Legion and supporting its ideals.

No. 5. "To Inculcate a Sense of Individual Obligation to the Community, State and Nation." Through its many programs, the American Legion expresses its responsibility to the nation. The obligation of good citizenship requires each one to contribute something to the welfare of the community.

No. 6. "To Combat the Autocracy of Both the Classes and the Masses." The membership of the American Legion comes from neither class nor mass, but is a cross section of our entire citizenship.

No. 7. "To Make Right the Master of Might." The American Legion holds that might has no place under our form of government, and at the same time stands ready to give its support to orderly lawful progress.

No. 8. "To Promote Peace and Good Will on Earth." Without involving our nation in any entangling alliances, the American Legion believes that understanding and mutual helpfulness among all nations will promote permanent world peace.

No. 9. "To Safeguard and Transmit to Posterity the Principles of Justice, Freedom and Democracy." No nation can long endure that fails to care for its future citizens.

No. 10. "To Consecrate and Sanctify Our Comradeship by Our Devotion to Mutual Helpfulness." In the comradeship of arms there was the utmost necessity for devotion to mutual helpfulness, but no less important is the comradeship of peace bespeaking the fullest good for each in the betterment of all.

In conclusion, no better rules of conduct were ever written than those of the American Legion, which knows no racial, religious, class or color distinctions, yet embraces men of every race, color, class or religious belief.

By J. A. Kovandu It is time to start tomato plants and begin seeding gardens. Lettuce and radishes can be planted now, or even in the fall.

Here it is necessary to grow early vegetables. The weather is usually favorable up to July, and crops matured by that time are superior both in yield and in quality.

Grasshoppers, plant lice and many other insects are much worse after June 15 than before that time. All sorts of seed diseases become prevalent in hot weather.

My Own Column

An Ord man came in Friday and wanted to know how come that North Loup people got their Quiz before Ord people got theirs. I told him we always tried to serve the best folks first. Fact is, he was right. We go to press with the last run on Wednesday about 2:30 p. m., and have to hurry to get North Loup, Arcadia, Comstock, etc., bundles out in time to go on the 3:10 afternoon Union Pacific train.

Back in New York an 18-year old boy was sent to Sing Sing state prison last week because he stole ten cents. He followed a woman into a store and snatched her purse. He had previously been sent to the reformatory for the same offense and escaped. In the same city one James B. Hines, just convicted of heading a twenty million dollar a year racket, may not get a prison sentence and he may not. If he does it may be less than this foolish boy got. One thing is sure, it won't be any where near in proportion. The boy should be put in some institution where his case could be studied and the reason for his wrong doing found out and perhaps cured.

From helping with the printing of ordinances for several years for towns and cities all over Nebraska, I know that it is customary to exempt from traffic regulations, doctors making emergency calls, fire equipment on the way to reported fires, ambulances answering emergency calls, etc. These exemptions I believe are silly and unnecessary, and that belief is proved by a terrible accident which happened in Omaha last week when two firemen lost their lives and several badly injured, resulted from a fire truck colliding with a passenger car. The fire truck was going at a tremendous rate of speed and the accident happened on a more or less blind corner, the driver of the car not hearing the siren on the truck. A slightly slower speed would have averted the accident and not enough time would have been lost to make much difference at the fire.

A bill has been introduced into the senate of the United States, proposing to allow the people of the United States to vote on the matter before this country can go to war. If such a law was in effect, in all probability this country would never again go to war except in case of invasion of this country by a foreign country. It seems to me that such a law would be right and just. It is and will be opposed by the present administration and perhaps by any administration. It will also be violently opposed by the great munitions manufacturers and probably by most other large manufacturers catering to business for the government. Such a law, however, will have the support of a very large per cent of the fathers and mothers of the country, who, in case of war which they had no voice in causing have to see their sons march away to become cannon fodder. If the voters of the country who would write their senators telling them just how they feel about the matter, there would be no question of the result. I hope that many Quiz readers will at once write a letter or a postal card to both Senator Norris and Senator Burke at Washington.

Visit in New Mexico. Sunday Dr. and Mrs. Mills took their guests from Nebraska, Claud Kennedy, Mrs. Mills' son, and Mrs. Kennedy, Mother Goodenow, Mrs. Mills' mother (who is a globe trotter at the age of 87, and who stood the trip as well as anyone), and Melvin Malicky, through Monticello Canyon to Ojo Caliente and on through old chloride, and back to Hot Springs.

During their stay they visited the White Sands, Fort Seldon, Juarez, and other places, including the Santa Rita mines, a trip over the Silver City road. While our weather was cold for us, they thought it was wonderful and expect to return ere long. While they were here Dr. Mills had the pleasure of treating three of the party and sending them home to be boosters for the Health Center of the World, Hot Springs, New Mexico.—The Hot Springs (N. M.) Herald.

A FEW THINGS TO THINK ABOUT!

Written by GEORGE GOWEN Let Us Have Peace Early Tomatoes Valuable as a Horse Short Shavings

Let Us Have Peace. A happy little "rucksack" has been carried on between the telephone companies of North Loup and Ord for the last year. Whatever they have gained by the affair, no one seems to have discovered yet, but the patrons have at least had the opportunity of heaping coals on someone or everyone connected with the systems.

It happens that some time in the distant past a contract was made between the two companies to the effect that there would be free exchange service between them, each system owning and keeping in repair one half the poles and lines. This contract is still in effect, although the Continental company in late years, wishes it were not. To get free from this contract, a showing would have to be made to the railroad commission telling how the company was giving too much for the patron's money or a mutual agreement entered into by the two companies.

The North Loup company has long considered itself, in nature at least, a cooperative, and by feeling such, their ultimate aim has been to give the most possible service for the least possible money, the earnings of the company being of a lesser consideration. It is for that reason the N. L. company wants a free service to Scotia and Ord.

It can be said, with no disrespect to either, that earnings are the principal object of the Continental company and they feel that a toll charge should be maintained between the two towns. As a consequence, they perform the contract by connecting the parties, but some think with reluctance. The service is heavy between the towns and another wire should be strung, but this has never been installed.

To make things worse, last year, the telephone company in Ord did not include the North Loup numbers in their directory, claiming the extra expense of printing not worth it. As a retaliation for this the North Loup central girl refused to look up numbers for the Ord callers (except the doctor's, which she learned) when that caller would be lucky enough to get the line. So as a result, the Ord caller would have to go back to the Ord central and ask her to look up the N. L. number before the caller could get the connection. By that time, someone else would get the line and as a result the caller would have to wait another half an hour or more. Before that time was up, the caller would feel like axing the phone off the wall and would call long distance.

The mayor of Ord became hostile over it all and informed the N. L. central girl that she would look up the numbers hereafter, but the N. L. C. G. told the mayor, in polite phrasing, that he could go to heaven; that he was mayor of Ord but not of her. Some of the N. L. officials talked then with the said mayor and told him if he raised too much hell, he would find himself paying twenty-five cents toll every time he talked to N. L., all of which was not so happy an outlook for him for he does a lot of talking.

All this performance, resulting from the simple fact that the N. L. numbers failed to appear in the Ord directories, only slows up the service between the towns, that was none too good in the first place with only the one wire to talk over. This before mentioned mayor, after other schemes had failed to bring peace on the troubled waters, tried then to get a N. L. directory for his own use, which contained both Ord and N. L. numbers, and he was refused that too without he would pay the sum of a quarter a book.

Just what effect on the earnings a toll of 25c would make cannot be accurately estimated. At the present time there averages over 100 calls a day back and forth between the two towns. If toll were charged there would not be so many calls and then many patrons claim they would take out their phones, which would cut down the earnings on another branch of the service. Several men have said if they cannot have service between the next neighboring towns, they did not think the phone worth having. It is a settled fact that a telephone is of little value if only a few of the people you wish to call have a phone. The more phones in use, the more value there is to the subscriber. Although seldom are people using country phones questioned, the rule is not to allow non-subscribers to call between the towns without paying toll. No one seems to object to this unless it is the non-subscribers who are trying to get the service without paying anything. The central girls soon get very deft at recognizing voices, and if they are not sure, they do not hesitate to ask. The same situation and contract prevails between the towns of Scotia and N. L. and also between Scotia and Greeley.

The telephone is a wonderful instrument, giving a big service, and the companies claim they should be paid for that service, but on the other hand, should this service be restricted, and the price become too excessive so only a small portion of the people participate, the whole thing will be of little value.

Early Tomatoes. Some time ago Art Babcock read in the paper how a professor had developed a high-powered tomato that operated something like the ever-bearing strawberry, producing fruit in great abundance from the first of June on through the summer. As a result he wrote to the professor and as a gift the professor mailed Art about four dozen seeds. Art was not very well versed in the tomato business and so anxious was he to start picking the fruit, he set at once (that was 2 months ago) to preparing the box and in the window planted his choice seeds.

These seeds sprang forth almost at once from the dirt and grew speedily. Now Art has something like forty fine young tomato plants a foot or more high and growing higher every day. Art has been so busy taking care of them he has not had time to come to the garage every day. It is nearly three months before he can get them in the garden and, although his wife enjoys having house plants decorating the windows of her home, she objects quite forcibly to having 40 big tomato plants parked around.

Worth as Much as a Horse. Julius Schoening says he has now the best cattle dog he ever had. This is saying quite a lot, for Julius has had a number of dogs in his day, as he is very fond of pets. Julius told me of this incident, as also did Cliff Klinger, who lives across the river, to the west from Julius. Cliff said, "I was working in the field by the river when I heard someone yelling to the east and a dog barking close by. Soon I discovered Julius across the river and he was yelling at his dog. I then watched the performance and soon saw the dog sort Julius' cattle out from a herd on the Parks' place, then drove them into the water and home again across the river, and Julius never getting his feet wet."

Julius says, "The cattle had gone across the river and I hardly knew what to do. I stood on the bank looking at them, when I discovered the dog going into the water without my telling him to. I knew he was a good dog so I decided to see what I could do. I coached him along and he sorted out my cows and brought them home, I standing on the east bank all the time."

President's appointment of Amle to I. C. C. regarded as poorest he has ever made... Seems certain of defeat... Roosevelt long bitter against independent commissions... Talk of barter with Germany will bring up difficulties... Rumor that Morgenthau will resign bobs up again.

WASHINGTON.—Harry L. Hopkins tells a story about a herring fisherman who had a great deal of trouble keeping his fish alive in his tanks, and finally hit on the device of putting a catfish in each tank. The catfish, Hopkins says, kept things so stirred up that the herring did not succumb to ennui or whatever was the trouble before.

The story is apropos now because it is being used as an explanation of why President Roosevelt appointed Thomas R. Amle to the interstate commerce commission, an appointment generally regarded as one of the poorest, from the standpoint of practical politics, entirely aside from any merit or demerit it may have that Mr. Roosevelt has ever made.

It is pointed out by those telling the story that the President has long been bitter about the independent commissions. He does not approve of these bodies which are not "integrated" with the administration—or, in short, those which the administration cannot control.

There is nothing new about Mr. Roosevelt's feeling in this particular. He did not like the federal trade commission, and "threw a catfish" into that body after removing—illegally, as the Supreme court later held—William E. Humphrey. The catfish thrown into the Supreme court was Justice Hugo L. Black. Frank R. McNinch has been the catfish for two bodies, the federal power commission and the communications commission.

Marriner S. Eccles has been a particularly effective catfish. He not only has kept the federal reserve board stirred up but has tangled with various other government units.

Public Defeat for the President Almost Certain. It is understood on Capitol Hill to have been Aubrey W. Williams, late lieutenant of Harry Hopkins in WPA, and now head of the youth administration, who originated the Amle idea, which has proved as much of a catfish for the United States senate as the Supreme court enlargement proposal did, though with apparently almost as great a certainty of accomplishing a public defeat for the President.

Roosevelt began his practice of tossing a catfish in every tank he could before he began his aggressive fight to "co-ordinate" these independent agencies. In the government reorganization bill as he originally planned it, it was proposed the most of them be "co-ordinated" by the simple process of putting them under the White House.

The President made no secret of his ideas in this connection. What on Capitol Hill and in certain other quarters was regarded as a move which would so tremendously increase the powers of the Chief Executive as to be a step toward dictatorship, Roosevelt himself saw as a move toward reform and efficiency. He talked about his ideas in press conferences long before his bill was sent to the Capitol. In fact, he talked so persuasively, and so many sympathetic articles were written about the efficiency of his ideas, that later he had to begin soft peddling on this angle.

Difficulties Face Barter Agreement With Germany. Talk of barter with Germany, primarily to move such agricultural products as cotton and land into the "vacuum" which exists in Germany, brings up the essential objections that the men working under Secretary of State Cordell Hull on the reciprocal trade agreements have to face. They are the same objections which resulted in George N. Peek being thrown out of the administration in the early days of the trade agreements, though with variations.

For example, the first objection to barter with Germany is that the particular trades proposed were not barter at all. They involved payment for American raw materials in a special type of German marks, which could be spent only inside Germany. Acceptance of them of course made impossible any three-way type of trade.

The latest proposal does not contemplate the use of these special marks, but the acceptance of German products, mostly steel, wire, etc., in exchange for the cotton and land which complicate America's agricultural problem. Of course the steel and wire industry does not like this idea at all. For every pound of German steel and wire imported as a result of this proposed barter agreement, obviously, there will be just one less pound of steel or wire fabricated inside the United States.

It is the same sort of thing that makes any barter agreement so difficult, which makes any reciprocal trade agreement run into so many domestic objections, and which made the Chinese wall type of tariff so easy in the old days. Everybody is for exports. Nobody is for imports—that is nobody except Mr. Ultimate Consumer, who is never organized and therefore does not have much influence with congress or the government. There Must Be Imports if There Are to Be Exports

In fact, the chief difference between the old tariff system and the new reciprocal trade policy is that, for the first time in American history, there is actually somebody directing the policy with respect to imports who realizes that there must be imports if there are also to be exports. Somebody, in brief, who is charged with the responsibility of encouraging imports in order to provide for exports, instead of merely throttling imports, as the old-time tariff bills did, with merely wishful thinking as to exports.

The chief objection to straight out barter agreements by Hull's lieutenants is that in effect this takes international trade out of private hands and makes it a government matter. Also it takes the movement of goods out of the established channels of trade.

The government agent anxious to swap cotton for something in order to get rid of a cotton surplus, is not going to worry too much about whether the kind of barbed wire he acquires in its place is the sort that the farmers of this country really want. If he happens to get the right kind, he not only displaces workers in American wire plants but he is compelled to get the wire to the farmers in some new way, which plays havoc with the merchants who formerly supplied the farmers.

But the chief objection the trade experts have to barter is more fundamental. Every time there is a barter agreement, anywhere in the world, it tends to restrict free trade all over the world.

Rumor Morgenthau Will Resign Bobs Up Again. The little boy who cried, "Wolf, wolf," when there was no wolf has nothing on the rumor that Henry Morgenthau, Jr., will resign as secretary of the treasury. The first rumor of Morgenthau's resignation came within a few months after he had succeeded William H. Woodin at the head of the treasury department. It has been bobbing up ever since, on the average of not less than once every two months.

So when the real time comes probably no one will believe the warning. But there are actual reasons this time for believing that Morgenthau is on the verge of resignation, and for two perfectly understandable reasons.

Well-informed sources say that the President and Morgenthau have finally reached just about the breaking point on the chief issue on which they have so consistently differed. It can be summed up in the words "balanced budget." But it includes much more than just spending more than the government's income year after year. It takes in also the continual movement of the President toward the left whereas Morgenthau has clung to the original conservative views he entertained when he came to Washington.

When Morgenthau became secretary of the treasury he was perfectly willing to follow instructions because he realized that he did not know very much about Treasury problems. By dint of hard work and long hours, however, he has learned a great deal about public finances. The more he has learned the more outspoken he has become in his advocacy of his original conservative viewpoint.

This does not mean that Mr. Morgenthau has at any time been disloyal to the President. On the contrary there is scarcely a man in the administration who has been so steadfastly devoted to every whim and wish of the President.

But inside the cabinet he has fought for his own ideas, on the budget, on spending, or harassing business, etc.

Secretary Worried Over Plan for More Spending. Right now the same old battle is being waged again with the group which advocates more spending and which worries not at all about the mounting size of the federal debt, head by Marriner S. Eccles of the federal reserve board. Morgenthau is said by friends to be more disturbed than ever before on this particular issue.

First the secretary is much surer that he is right now than he ever was before. Second, he has always yielded before because the argument was made that the need for letting spending run above receipts was only temporary—that with the passage of time the spending could be reduced, as private employment increased, and that actually the budget could be balanced.

Now Morgenthau believes that such an objective will never be attained so long as the present advice the President is being given from the other camp is heeded—that the men who want more spending and more pump priming now will also want it next year, almost regardless of the meantime, and that they will want it the following year, and the year after that.

Williamson in Play. Donald Williamson, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Williamson, who formerly lived in Ord, was recently chosen as a cast member of the second major campus dramatic production of the year at Hastings college, "An Enemy of the People," by Ibsen. Don is known on the campus for his acting in "Importance of Being Ernest," "Twelfth Night," "Dinner at Eight," and numerous other plays.

Farmers Organize To Fix Blame For Irrigation Delay

Archie Geweke Is Elected Chairman of Temporary Committee Wednesday.

With the avowed intention of fixing the blame for the North Loup River Public Power and Irrigation district's delay in cleaning canals and otherwise preparing for the irrigation season of 1933, a crowd of 200 farmers and city owners of land under the ditch met at the Bohemian hall after the open air mass meeting Wednesday and formed an organization tentatively called the Water Users association.

Archie Geweke was named temporary chairman and C. C. Dale temporary secretary. By a vote it was decided that a committee of six should be named, two members representing each of the three canals in the district, to nominate a slate of permanent officers and also to investigate the Ord-Burwell-North Loup district power controversy and report at a future meeting of the association.

Farmers elected to this committee were Loren Butterfield and Archie Geweke, for the Taylor-Ord canal; Iga Pokraka and John Guggenmos, for the Ord-North Loup canal; and Harry Bresley and Ed Dubas for the Burwell-Sumter canal.

Only a few men talked at the meeting Wednesday but the meeting was business-like in the extreme and every farmer there seemed to feel that the present situation is serious and that whatever steps necessary must be taken to assure water being available this spring.

One speaker was P. E. Pocock, who said: "This is no time to use force. Let's get what information we need first and if we learn that it's the fault of the Burwell and Ord councils let's persuade them that it really isn't so important how much their people pay for electricity because everything those people depend on for a living must come out of the ground anyway. If we can't get water we can't raise anything and they won't be any better off. We want the water."

L. J. Auble, an Ord business man and also owner of land under the ditch, stated that in his opinion 85 per cent of the business element of Ord favors the city going ahead with the contract signed in 1937. He pointed out how business men of this city have always acted to help farmers; how they came to the rescue of the fair a couple of years ago and by subscription raised $1,255 to help it; how they financed the drive that resulted in the irrigation project being built. He then moved that Ord, Burwell and North Loup be represented on the committee to investigate, but his motion was voted down by a

Dick King Dies Saturday; Was 58

At his home near North Loup Saturday evening, after six weeks of illness, occurred the death of Dick King, 58 years old and a resident of Valley county since 1892. Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon at the Pearson-Anderson chapel here, followed by interment in the Ord cemetery.

Dick King was born March 13, 1881 in Champaign county, Ill., the son of Alexander and Dora King, and with them came to Holt county, Nebr., in 1882 and to Valley county ten years later, the family settling on a farm in Mira Valley. Dick was united in marriage to Miss Emma Prien at Grand Island on June 14, 1910 and to them three children were born, Irma (deceased), Richard A. and Irene.

At the time of his marriage he located on his father's farm where he lived until 1920, moving then to the vicinity of North Loup where he resided until his death Saturday. He was just two days less than 58 years of age. Mr. King had been in poor health for a number of years, bedfast for the last six weeks, and death came as a welcome release from great physical suffering.

He is mourned by his wife and two children, by two brothers, Will S. and Charles, and one sister, Maggie, all of Ord.

At the funeral rites yesterday a quartet composed of Dr. P. L. Blessing, J. R. Stoltz, Mrs. Mark Tolen and Mrs. E. O. Carlson sang, accompanied at the organ by Mrs. Robert Noll. Miss Mamie Young, of the United Brethren church, officiated. Pall bearers were John and Charles Mason and Ed Hackel, of Ord, and L. J. Miller, Max Sterner and Adolph Stobbe, of North Loup.

Joe Clark to Address Chamber of Commerce

F. W. Coe, manager of the Ord Co-operative creamery, states that Joe Clark of Ravenna will be here Thursday evening, March 23, and will address the meeting of the Ord Chamber of Commerce on the topic, "Then and Now." While Mr. Clark has not stated the exact nature of his discourse, it no doubt has to do with the dairy business as he has been connected with the creamery business in various capacities for the past thirty years and more, and is perhaps the best informed man on this subject in central Nebraska. The farmers are to be the special guests of the club on that date, and full particulars will appear in next week's issue of the Quiz.

New Proposals May Put Cities Back on High Line, Get Water By April 1

The Burwell village board, the Ord city council, a committee from the Water Users' association, the power committee of the North Loup district and two state senators John F. Doyle and A. C. Van Diest, collaborated from 8 p. m. Tuesday until 3 a. m. Wednesday in a sincere effort to arbitrate difficulties that at present threaten 1933 operation of the North Loup irrigation system.

Out of the seven-hour conference may come a settlement that will put Ord and Burwell back onto the high line temporarily and put water into canals by April 1.

About midnight Tuesday, Ord and Burwell councilmen tentatively agreed on two new proposals to be offered the district, and they were drafted by Clarence M. Davis and Glenn W. Runyan, the city attorneys, and conveyed to the irrigation board by the Water Users' committee.

Both propositions were offered solely in the nature of a compromise "and in a spirit of good will," a letter accompanying them emphasized.

In the first proposal, Ord and Burwell offered to again hook up to the district's transmission line and for an indefinite period, terminative at the desire of either party, continue to buy power at rates and under conditions of the old 30-year contract, now held illegal by Ord and Burwell, on condition that the North Loup district pay to these cities $300 monthly in consideration of their plants furnishing stand-by service. Of this amount $200 would go to Ord and $100 to Burwell.

In this proposal the district is not asked to waive any right it has to claim that the contract of August 1937 is a legal document nor the right to bring any legal action it desires, but does waive the right to claim that Ord and Burwell are estopped from making any defense they desire when determination of the contract's legality is sought, and also waives the right to enjoin Ord or Burwell from disconnecting from the high line at a future date, should they desire to do so.

The second proposal is practically identical with one previously submitted. Ord and Burwell offer to sell electricity to the district for a 5-year period and buy it back at prices that subsidize the district to the extent of 6 mills on each k. w. h. the first year, 5 the second, 4 the third and 3 each the fourth and fifth years.

After conferring with President Hudson over these two proposals, Archie Geweke, chairman of the Water Users' committee, brought back word to the cities that the North Loup district is inclined to favor the first proposal, provided certain portions of it might be changed slightly, and provided also the PWA would approve the $300 payment for stand-by service. The PWA, Hudson told the cities through Geweke, has already agreed to a $200 payment for stand-by service, but whether they would approve the $100 increase he would have to find out.

The North Loup district would like to have a little time to study the proposal, President Hudson indicated to the cities through Chairman Geweke. He also indicated that the second proposal involving a 5-year contract to buy and sell energy produced in the municipal plants could not be accepted, although he promised that the district would study this proposal also.

Mr. Geweke, who has been studying the proposition closely for the past week, was inclined this morning to take a gloomy view of the possibility of Tuesday's negotiations being successful.

The district officials, Geweke is convinced, have no authority to make any settlement with Ord and Burwell other than one based on acceptance by the cities of the original contract, in principle at least. The North Loup district procured funds from PWA on the basis of 30-year contracts for the purchase of electricity and Geweke feels that any change in such contracts will have to be made with approval of the PWA or not at all. And PWA, he says, has made it plain to the irrigation board that no change other than a payment for stand-by service can be authorized.

With the city councils insistent that they will not go back under the old contract, and the irrigation board powerless to accept any settlement not based on this contract, negotiations are likely to fail, Mr.

Penney Manager Has Run-in With Two Shoplifters

One Had Suit Under Overcoat When Caught; Both Were Released Monday.

Two shoplifters who gave their names as James O'Connell and George Wildan when arrested, caused considerable excitement at the J. C. Penney store during the Saturday afternoon rush. Authorities had been warned by tramps that two "bums" came into town on the Burlington freight that morning, and passed the warning on to business men, so when O'Connell and Wildan entered the Penney store Manager Keith Lewis noted that they were strangers and watched them closely.

So many shoppers were in the store that Manager Lewis soon had to add clerks in waiting on trade, so he called Lyle Plagg, who was working in the basement, to watch the two strangers. Just as he did so, he noticed through the crack under the basement door that the smaller of the two men had tucked a suit of clothes under his overcoat.

Miss Bees Kravulik, a clerk, also saw the theft, and before Manager Lewis could read the man she tapped him on the shoulder and asked, "Did you take a suit of clothes?" The man brushed her aside and started for the door but was collared by Lewis before he could get away. Young Plagg helped him hold the man, as did Dick Koupal, and Manager Lewis went outside and called Police Chief L. H. Covert and Officer Neils Hansen, who were standing a few doors away.

While he was gone the big man, later identified as O'Connell, tried to get his partner, Wildan, away from the Penney clerks, but Officers Covert and Hansen arrived and took both men into custody. They were held in jail over Sunday while Sheriff George S. Round communicated with the state sheriff's office to see if the men were wanted elsewhere. Learning that they have no records, so far as could be determined, he took them a few miles out of town Monday and turned them loose with an admonition not to return to Ord.

Petty larceny was the only charge that could have been filed, and only Wildan could have been convicted since O'Connell had not stolen anything although he had a suit off the rack and was examining it when his partner was caught. Rather than have a shoplifter in jail for thirty days and have the expense of feeding him, officials here with the approval of business men have in the past followed the policy of running such people out of town.

Shoplifting is on the increase, however, and it is likely that in future such petty thieves caught here may look forward to bread-and-water jail terms, as sentiment among business men seems to favor a change in policy.

Lloyd Parks' Employee Falls Off Truck, Dies

Robert George Ford, 33, an employee of Lloyd Parks in the trucking business at Atkinson for the past two years, was killed last Tuesday when he fell from the top of his truck cab and suffered a skull fracture. He was having trouble loading cattle because a bull he had loaded was trying to climb over the front part of the truck, and he fell off while trying to subdue the animal.

Townsend Meeting. Friday night, March 17 at I. O. O. F. hall. Assistant State Manager, F. W. Garner, will be the speaker. Everybody come and hear what is being done in Washington on the Recovery Act. Cake and coffee will be served.

Joe L. Dworak Buys Food Store in Omaha

Joe L. Dworak, resident of Ord all his life and at present a member of the city council representing the 2nd ward, last week bought a grocery and meat store at 2223 Spencer Ave., Omaha, and today is moving his family to that city. For many years Joe was associated with his father, F. J. Dworak, in management of a grocery store here, and later operated a store of his own, so he knows the business thoroughly. Ord will be sorry to lose the Dworak family. Joe said yesterday that he has not yet resigned as councilman but would do so at once. The position may be filled by appointment of the mayor.

Oscar Collins, 68 Passes Saturday Funeral Is Today

Respected Mira Valley Farmer Had Been Resident Here Almost All His Life.

Oscar E. Collins passed away at the Ord hospital Saturday, March 11, at 2:45 p. m., after living 67 years in Valley county. Mr. Collins, a prominent Mira Valley farmer, was brought to Valley county in 1872 at the age of two years by his father and mother, Warren and Annapa Collins, from his birthplace in Marquette county, Wisconsin, where he was born April 11, 1870. The Mira Valley farmer was thus one of the first children in this territory, and spent his entire life in this vicinity. A quiet, home-loving man, honest and hard working, Mr. Collins was the genuine material of which pioneers are made.

A North Loup girl, Mary E. Jennings, became Mrs. Oscar Collins on October 14, 1896. Mrs. Collins survives her husband, as do six children, Mrs. Vivian Turner of Ord, Mrs. Neva Barnhart of Sargent, Miss Vida of Ord who is at home, and Mrs. Freda Hayes of Ord, and Duane of Denver, and Venard of Ord. Four brothers of Mr. Collins are left to mourn, Earl of Mitchell, Ralph of Loup City, Rex of Arlington, Wash., Dr. Floyd W. of Utah, as well as two sisters, Mrs. W. J. Seelye of Brownville, Nebr., and Miss Helen Collins of Ord.

Fifteen grandchildren and two great grandchildren are also left behind. Six of the grandchildren were pall bearers, Gerald and Eldon Turner, Merlin, Richard, Ben and Francis Barnhart. After private services at the family home nine miles south of Ord this afternoon at 1:45 o'clock, public rites are being held at the Ord Methodist church at 2:30 p. m. Rev. Charles Wantz of Orchard officiates, assisted by Rev. Simpkins of the Midvale U. B. church.

Honorary pall bearers are Ivan Bots, C. F. Hughes, Roscoe Garwick, Ed Pocock, Carl Oliver, Clare Clement, Arnold Bredthauer and Raymond Burrows. Interment will be made in the Ord cemetery.

The Pearson-Anderson funeral directors were in charge of the last arrangements for Mr. Collins. To this pioneer of the Mira Valley community his neighbors are indebted for many years of useful service in various capacities among them being 32 years of service as road overseer, 17 years as a member of the school board, and life time membership in the United Brethren church of Midvale, where he was a trustee for many years. Mr. Collins was owner of a large livestock and grain farm and was widely known as a progressive and alert farmer.

Few are able to combine so many fine and enduring qualities of heart and character as did Mr. Collins. Always kindly disposed, generous and scrupulously honest, his accomplishments and his character will long serve as examples to his friends.

Evelyn Is Front Page News in Fort Worth Too!

Meets Jimmy Doolittle and Roscoe Turner

Evelyn Sharp, Ord's nineteen year old aviatrix, returned Wednesday evening from the Southwest Aviation Conference at Fort Worth, Tex., with a vivid account of her experiences and a list of newly made friends that sounds like "who's who in American aviation."

The conference was held on Thursday, Friday and Saturday at the Hotel Texas in Fort Worth. However, due to five flat tires, Evelyn and her mother, Mrs. Sharp, missed the Thursday session. Friday and Saturday speakers were Major Al Williams and Colonel Roscoe Turner. Saturday evening, Evelyn attended a meeting of the 99 Club at the Colonial Country Club, composed only of women aviators.

Evelyn met many of the famous fliers and high aviation executives. Among them were Clinton Hester, administrator of the Civil Aeronautics Authority; Jimmy Doolittle, former speed pilot and holder of many international records; Major Al Williams, former navy test pilot and now manager of the Gulf Oil corporation's aviation department; W. G. Skelly, oil executive and aircraft manufacturer; Wayne Parrish, editor of American Aviation; Oliver Parks, president of Parks Air college; Colonel Roscoe Turner, international speed pilot and winner of the 1935 Bendix trophy; and Blanche Noyes, government air-marking pilot.

Reporters told Evelyn that she and Roscoe Turner were the most publicized fliers at the conference. The Fort Worth Daily Star-Telegram carried a large picture and story of Evelyn. She was the only delegate who made the front page of the paper.

On the return trip Evelyn and her mother stopped in Oklahoma City, at Hebron, where they visited Evelyn's uncle, and at Hastings, where they spent the evening with Mr. and Mrs. Ed Mauer.

Jury Decides No Cause In Adams-Gerdes Case

The case of Arthur C. Adams of Burwell vs. John Gerdes of Doniphan for $3,253.45 damages as the result of a highway crash near Doniphan, July 14, 1937, was heard in Judge E. G. Kroger's court in Grand Island last week. Despite strong evidence given by the plaintiff, the jury found no cause for action. Mr. Adams was so badly injured that he was forced to remain in bed for two months, and has never fully recovered.

Ord-Mira Valley Highway Project To Be Reopened

A group of interested farmers met with the road committee of the county board at the old project on the highway south of Ord Monday afternoon, and after careful consideration it was mutually agreed to reopen the old project and complete it, so that traveling on this road would not be wasted. Present plans call for using this road and the one west from North Loup for a detour while No. 11 between Ord and North Loup is being surfaced. Supervisors Bremer, Suchanek and Jablonski comprise the committee, but Chairman Hansen and Barber and Zikmund were also present.

Aerial Maps at Soil Conservation Office

One hundred and ninety aerial maps of Valley county arrived Friday, and are already in use in the soil conservation office. Every farm is photographed, the work having been done some time last fall. Miss Ina Mae Warford and Miss Venice Naprstek are busy measuring the fields with an instrument called a planimeter. These maps will not be used for 1939 compliance except on measured farms, but will be used for 1940 compliance. Considering the height from which they were taken, the maps are remarkably clear, and with a little practice it is not difficult to determine the acreage of fields as readily as it could be done from the ground, and of course with only a fraction of the expense.

James Turek Will Sell. James Turek is quitting farming and will hold a clean-up sale, possibly the last to be held here this spring, on Monday, March 20. He will sell 4 head of horses, 16 cattle and a lot of machinery, feed and grain. See his ad elsewhere in this issue.

Show Is Well Attended. Mensing and Huff are well pleased with the response to their free show given at the Ord Theatre last Wednesday afternoon, when the McCormick-Deering pictures were shown. The theater was filled to capacity, and a number were standing at the back of the room. At the close of the show treats of cigars and candy were given out.

Travel on No. 11 Detoured to 281

R. F. Randolph of the highway department, states that Highway No. 11 between Elba and St. Paul was closed to traffic this week for new construction.

From Elba traffic will go east on the newly finished county road, crossing the river and connecting with highway No. 281 a few miles north of St. Paul.

New CCC Enrollment First Week in April

A new and larger CCC enrollment will be called for the first week in April, according to Frank Kruml, county assistance director. Those between the ages of 17 and 23 who desire to go to camp should go to the assistance office, where the necessary papers can be filled out.

New Garfield County Treasurer Appointed

Burwell (Special)—George Tunnell was appointed county treasurer of Garfield county to succeed John Beynon, resigned, by county commissioners at a meeting in the court house Saturday. Beynon was elected treasurer last fall. Several applications for the position were considered. The appointee, Mr. Tunnell, was a candidate for the office last fall but was defeated by Beynon.

Geo. Round, Jr., to Speak At Meeting Here Monday

George Round, Jr., editor of the University of Nebraska agricultural extension service, will be the speaker at a joint meeting of the Rotary and Cosmopolitan clubs next Monday. George, who is the eldest son of Sheriff and Mrs. George S. Round of Ord, also will show an interesting film about reforestation, new pastures and forage crop work being done in Nebraska. Place of the meeting will be announced later.

40 Members in Pig Club.

Gilts have been purchased for forty boys and girls who have become members of the Rotary-sponsored pig club, said Carl Dale yesterday, and he thinks the club will have a membership of about fifty by the end of this month. Any boy or girl who wants to join the club should make application to Mr. Dale at once.

Shows Movies of Florida.

Harlan T. Frazier, program chairman, had charge of the program at the Rotary club's meeting Monday evening and showed movies taken by his son in Florida. Guests at the meeting were J. D. Phillips, a Rotarian from York, and Mr. Mathews, of Aurora.

Hudson, Laverty, State Irrigation District's Side Before Crowd of 300

Temperature Drops 63 Degrees Here In Only 30 Hours

In only 30 hours this week there was a variation of 63 degrees between the high and low temperatures in Ord, reports Horace Travis, official weather man, and this is one of the freakiest weather facts he ever has recorded.

Monday afternoon's high was 76 degrees, almost summer heat while early this morning the thermometer showed 13 degrees. The drop of course, came early Tuesday morning, when the mercury went down into the 20's, but 13 was the lowest recorded for the week.

Favorable Verdict For Middle Loup

The Middle Loup district was granted a very favorable verdict in Judge Bruno M. Hostettler's District Court in Loup City last week when a judgment was entered for $333.50 which the district must pay to Lawrence Danczyk for 6.25 acres of pasture and farm land required for main canal and lateral construction.

The judgment entered covers two separate tracts of land, one of which was for main canal construction, appeal being taken by Mr. Danczyk from its condemnation; the other tract was for a lateral, appeal for which was taken by the district from the appraised amount under condemnation proceedings. The two appeals were combined and tried before the jury as one case and the verdict reduces the total cost of this right-of-way from the appraised value of $447.54 to $333.50.

Hastings College Band Coming Here April 6

Hastings (Special)—The Hastings College concert band, under the direction of James M. King, will appear at the Loup Valley Music Festival artists' program on the evening of April 6.

The Ord trip will follow the annual tour taken by the band, covering 1,500 miles in three states, from March 23 to April 1. Full evening programs will be given in North Platte, Scottsbluff, Alliance and Alma, Nebr., and in Yuma, Estes Park and Sterling, Colo., according to the tentative schedule. Other appearances are being considered.

Director James King will also act as a judge during the Ord music festival. The band appeared in Ord two years ago, and was enthusiastically received.

Junior Girls Entertain Ord Cosmopolitan Club

The Ord Cosmopolitan club met in regular session at the City Cafe Monday evening with a good attendance. A word of appreciation from Coach H. F. Brockman was read by Hilding Pearson. It was announced that next week's meeting would be held with the Rotarians. It was voted to sponsor an Ord boy for Boys' State at Lincoln this year.

Max Pearson, in charge of entertainment, introduced Dean Duncan, who presented two junior girls, Angeline Wachter and Viola Koelling. Miss Wachter played the piano and the bassoon, with Miss Koelling as accompanist. She then played the accompaniment while Miss Koelling played two selections on the xylophone-marimba.

Can't Get Money from PWA to Operate, Must Sell Power to Ord and Burwell.

About 250 farmers and business men representing most of the communities of the North Loup valley were in Ord Wednesday afternoon and attended the mass meeting held in the court house square at which Roy Hudson, president, and Guy Laverty, secretary, of the North Loup River Public Power and Irrigation district explained the district's side of the power controversy with the cities of Ord and Burwell.

Purpose of the meeting was to explain why canals are not being cleaned now in preparation for spring irrigating, and to enlist farmers and business men on the district's side of the power controversy.

President Hudson, the first speaker, gave a prepared address that he previously had delivered before the Cosmopolitan club of Ord. Mimeographed copies of his talk later were distributed in the crowd.

Reviewing the North Loup project's history from the beginning, President Hudson told how a loan of $916,000 and grant of $749,000 were sought from the PWA. "To repay the loan through revenue from irrigation alone would require a charge for water so high the farmer could not pay it," he said, "so it was necessary to seek additional revenue from some other source."

"The cities of Ord and Burwell volunteered to assist in operating and liquidating the project by purchasing power from the district. In order to liquidate a part of the loan over the 30-year amortization period the cities of Ord and Burwell through resolutions passed by their councils, agreed to purchase power at the following rates: On the basis of annual consumption they agreed to pay 2 1/4¢ per k. w. h. for the first 500,000; 2¢ for the second 500,000; 1 1/2¢ for the third 500,000 and 1¢ for all over 1,500,000 k. w. h. Apparently the purchase arrangement was satisfactory to citizens of the two cities as no official protest was voiced. They seemed willing and glad to make the necessary sacrifice to insure construction and operation of the project.

Lower Rates Provided. "When the time came for Ord and Burwell to sign contracts for the purchase of power, it was thought possible by the district and accepted by PWA that a lower rate than that accepted by the cities in their original resolution would enable the district to liquidate its bonds over the 30 year period. The rate effective in the present contracts is 2¢ for the first block, 1 1/2¢ for the second block, 1¢ for the third block and 9 mills for all over the total of these three blocks. The blocks are set up on the basis of 25 k. w. h. per capita per month.

"On the basis of present consumption of the two cities, Ord pays about $3,700 per year less than they originally agreed to pay and Burwell is paying about $2,500 less per year than would have been necessary under the original resolution. "Ord is now using current in the 1c block which means that any increase in load will not cost over 1c per k. w. h. until such time as the blocks are changed due to an increase in population. Due to the fact that the contracts provide for a 5-year adjustment period it would seem improbable that any marked change in the rate would result from population increase."

THAT ERICSON HIGHWAY.

With due respect for the needs and requirements of the rest of the county, it is not out of place to suggest that the work on the Ord-Ericson highway needs a boost this spring. In fact, this work has been needed for a long time but for various reasons it was not possible to get it done.

At the present time there is a good highway practically all the way to the county line, but about half the remaining distance to Ericson is not so good. A few miles of improved highway would complete the link that would make for easy travel from Ord to the northeast, and from that section of the state into Ord.

Beginning a few miles west of Ericson and extending to the northeast is a good highway leading to all points northeast. The completion of the few necessary miles of road would open up a new territory in that direction and establish relations with O'Neill, Neligh, Norfolk, Yankton, Sioux City and other cities in that direction.

Pibel Lake Recreational Grounds is rapidly becoming an important pleasure resort which the improvement of this northeast highway would open to the public of this territory. Inversely it would bring visitors to the park on over into the North Loup valley to look at the North Loup irrigation project.

Plans are now under way which will make a NYA project of the Pibel Lake resort this spring and summer, and a great deal of improvement work will be going on there this year, which should draw visitors from some distance. Travel to the lake will naturally lead to more improvement on the highway.

Another reason why Ord people should be interested in this road being completed is that it would make another route for a Sunday auto trip and open up new vistas now not readily available to the casual motorist. A trip down highway No. 11, north on No. 281, and back by way of Ericson would be well worth while.

Last, but by no means least, the fact must not be overlooked that Ericson has an ideal summer resort and an all-weather road would make it available for a far greater number of people than now take advantage of its opportunities. The improvement of this highway would be mutually beneficial and both towns should work for it.

BUSSELL PARK.

"We are pleased to announce that last evening, just prior to his departure from Ord with the remains of his wife, Mr. J. S. Bussett made a deed to the City of Ord for the sixty odd acres of land lying just west of the city and extending to the cemetery.

"The purpose of the donation is to supply Ord with a park, and this is so stated in the deed, the only condition being that the city shall accept the gift and make a sufficient levy each year to maintain it. In case of failure in these particulars the land shall revert to the donor's estate.

"This land is worth somewhere from $15,000 to $20,000 and is admirably located for the purpose. It comes up to the city limits and is of varied topography so as to make it possible for a good landscape artist to easily plat a beautiful park.

"Part of the land is low, watered by Dane Creek, so that if a lake is decided upon, one or two dams is about all that would be needed to get the lake. Flood waters and the creek ought to keep up the supply of water.

"The deed is in the hands of Mr. Capron subject to acceptance by the city. There ought to be no hesitancy in the acceptance. There is a general feeling of good will in the city this morning over the very generous gift and expressions of gratitude are freely made on all hands."

The above item is taken from the Ord Quiz for thirty years ago, and shows that the donation of the park was actually made on St. Patrick's Day, March 17, 1909. Prior to that time the land was merely a cow pasture, and would still be but for the generosity of Mr. Bussett.

It would be a fine thing if Mr. Bussett could return on the thirtieth anniversary of his gift to the city of Ord, and see what a transformation has taken place. In the first place he would find that the park has been for the past twenty years in the capable hands of a man who was not exactly young even when the gift was made, A. J. Shirlley.

He would find that a general plan of beautification was mapped out some years ago, and that it is now developed into one of the finest parks of its age in the state. In spite of the past years of drought, he would find little to be desired toward the making of a good park.

The trees that have been planted since the park became a city property have grown until today there is plenty of shade beneath them for all who come to picnic, and in summer they come for that purpose from a distance of one hundred miles or more.

The added idea of a lake by damming up the waters of Dane Creek did not materialize, although it was tried about 25 years ago. The dam was built where the park bridge is, but floods persisted in washing it out, and so in time the idea was abandoned, and will probably never be tried again.

The park may some day have a lake, but if so, it will be from some other source than the creek, which does not flow enough at times, and entirely too much at others. At the present time the pressure of public opinion seems to be against the idea.

Uncle Jimmy Bussell did more than he knew for Ord when he gave us this wonderful playground, where picnicking, golf, football and other diversions help the tired business man while away the tedious of existence, and where visitors from afar are made welcome at any and all times.

WHAT PRICE EDUCATION.

Since this thing of government cooperation in the construction of public buildings has become the rage, the amount of money poured into Nebraska for the purpose of erecting new school buildings or for the remodeling of old ones has grown by leaps and bounds. It is safe to say that the amount in the past few years has run into the millions.

There can be no criticism of such action where the need requires it, but it brings to mind the fact that our present educational system has passed the boundaries of necessity and is rapidly becoming a luxury. The percentage of the tax dollar now expended for education is probably ten times as much today as it was fifty years ago, and the end is not yet.

It is useless to argue that the students of those days did not secure a worthwhile education, for many of them are the backbone of our nation today. It is true that those of today enjoy many special privileges that their predecessors did not, but, frankly, is the difference worth what it is costing the taxpayer.

There is such a thing as making an education too easy. Mark Twain wrote that "the way to make a boy appreciate a thing is to make it difficult to attain." There is no small amount of truth in that statement. Sometimes it seems that the younger generation does not fully appreciate what the older generation is doing in the offering of opportunity.

The cost of education is too high today, and is still mounting. Where will it all end? The ability of the taxpayer is already strained to the limit, and in spite of this fact, our educators as a class are far underpaid. Education has become so common that a high school diploma does not mean a thing. To get anywhere in these times a person must have a degree from a university.

BACK FORTY

By J. A. Kovanda

Many farmers are wondering whether or not to plant hybrid corn. Perhaps they would be interested in knowing what growers in other parts of the state think about it.

Recently the North Platte Station circulated a form letter to several agricultural agents and teachers of agriculture, asking what they and their farmer constituents thought of hybrid corn. The letters went to selected counties from Valley on westward.

Fourteen men replied that hybrid corn on dryland showed no advantage over ordinary corn in their counties. Three proclaimed that it did. Six indicated they could not tell. The three counties giving hybrid corn an advantage on dryland were Brown, KeyaPaha and Webster.

Most of the replies asserted that hybrid corn was all right under irrigation. But one agent mentioned that irrigated hybrids in Red Willow county were no better than common corn.

One man remarked that grasshoppers ate the hybrid corn more than ordinary varieties. Another declared that grasshoppers bothered the hybrid corn less. In this connection, it should be mentioned that there was a decided difference in grasshopper damage between some hybrids at the Lincoln station last year.

The need for adapted hybrids in central and western sections was frequently commented on. There has been a mistaken belief that an early hybrid in eastern Nebraska or Iowa would mature in the same number of days when grown in western Nebraska. Actually these so-called early hybrids need up to three weeks longer under the adverse growing conditions of the west.

Reports from two counties stated that the hybrid corn was so hard it required grinding and made poor feed. This might be true of a few varieties, but it is not a common fault of hybrid corn.

My Own Column

By H. D. Leggett

For the second time, a thought-dream of many years was shattered this week when I was told that John Keown had passed on. I used to dream that the Missus and I would go out to the northwest part of the United States and visit John and Ora. Then she died and we still dreamed of the time we would take the trip and sail with John on Lake Washington. But that dream is shattered and I am wondering if pretty soon we won't be joining those good friends on the other side. John and Ora were good sports. They talked our language and we talked theirs and what good times we used to have. It makes us lonely when we allow ourselves to stop long enough to look about and realize how many of the early day friends have gone and how very few of the old timers are left.

Senator Brady of Atkinson is urging the creation of a new office, that of comptroller, whose duty it would be to check all state expenditures and see that state money is not spent without authority. Our own Senator Doyle opposes the idea. If state officers, elected and sworn to do their duty, cannot be trusted, could a comptroller be appointed and sworn to do his duty, be depended upon to do it? Or would it be necessary to create another office, that of inspector to inspect the comptroller and then another inspector to inspect the first inspector? No one ever heard of any senator proposing to do away with an officer but new ones are always being proposed. What we need is someone to propose to cut expenses, not increase them.

There is a great hue and cry going up from many people when there is any talk of diverting a part of the gas tax from road building to support the old people. Most of this outcry emanates from the good roads association. And those same people, at the same time, will deny any new taxes. Now the old people should and must be taken care of. It is true that they will not get what they need. There are lots of good roads in Nebraska and in my judgment, it would be better, for the present, and until conditions improve, to forego building more roads and use what is necessary of the gas tax to care for the old people, than to keep on building roads and increase other taxes to care for the aged and infirm. The present cost of road maintenance is immense and every mile of new road built means more taxes to raise money to maintain the road system. Men in business can and do not run their business that way and why should the state. A business man cuts the pattern according to the amount of goods he has on hand, unless he has the money to buy more goods and when the state and the county and the school district begin to do business by the same pattern, and not until then, will we begin to get on our financial feet again.

I don't just like some of the insulting remarks that Lawyer Laverty has been making both in private and in public about the Quiz. It is a well known fact that Mr. Laverty always fought our irrigation proposition until he saw a chance to get a mighty good job as attorney for the district and during all that time I was digging up cash $25 and $50 at a clatter to promote the irrigation. At the same time I was giving hundreds of inches of free publicity to promote the cause. These facts are well known, not only by the public generally, but by the members of the irrigation board, who are now so very unfriendly because I don't like the high line service which we received. I still believe that the matter can and will be ironed out. I still believe that we need irrigation in this valley and that we will have it and if some wild guy tries to tell you that Leggett is fighting irrigation, just check up and really find out how much that particular guy has done to promote irrigation, financially and otherwise, and see just how what he has done stacks up with what I have done.

For a long time it has been the policy of Ord authorities to take petty crooks to the edge of town and give them a swift verbal kick in the pants and tell them to keep going and not come back. And the word has gone out until every crook in the country knows that he can come to Ord, do his dirty work, and if he gets caught all that will happen will be a chance to walk to the next town, unless he can catch a ride, which no doubt he usually does. Officers tell me that conditions are getting worse. If some good hard work could be arranged for transients who violate the laws and get caught, it would soon teach the crooks to stay away from Ord. I doubt if the saving by kicking wrongdoers out of town instead of punishing them is justified or worth what it saves in taxes.

I have had to stop quite a lot of papers for non-payment. No paper has been stopped where the subscriber, not able to pay up right now, came in and talked it over and agreed to some date near which he would be able to pay and no such subscription will be stopped. The six months in arrears limit will be adhered to however, unless we hear from the subscriber.

I do appreciate the daily paper subscriptions and renewals. I make a small commission on each one and as you couldn't get it anyhow, I see no reason why you would give it to a stranger instead of to me. And you save a little by letting me send it instead of sending it in for yourself.

Why Not Talk English

The Banker's Turn

Down this N. L. way, there is sympathy by everyone for Roy Hudson. He is beginning to show the wear and tear of the ordeal of his job as chairman of the N. L. R. P. & I. board, and his health never has been too good. His heart and soul has been wrapped up in the successful culmination of the N. L. irrigation system and this last "rucksack" over the power is fast making an old man of him.

There will be one more issue of the Pictorial Review and that will be the last. It then ceases publication. "The Song of the Years," by Bess Streeter Aldridge was published first in the Saturday Evening Post. This magazine only published about half the book, the editors using only the love story and cutting out a lot of historical description. Even at that it is not considered much of a book, falling far short of the author's other works.

And Marj Sandos has a short story in the March 4 Post that is not too hot either. She said she used two full reams of paper writing it. She should have used two more or only one. For sure, two were wrong.

Selma Robbins, the N. L. central girl, says that sometimes when someone is giving her thunder for something or another she just pulls the plug and lets them rave on. After a few minutes she plugs in again to see if they are still talking, answering "yes mom" and "no mom," and pulls the plug again.

She says one lady in town who is surrounded by a group of neighbors who have no phones, went to charging a nickel for these neighbors to use her phone, and this lady sends the nickles up to Selma, saying Selma is the one who is earning the candy because Selma switches them for no pay. There are not many nickles however, the neighbors shifting their friendship to another neighbor when the charge was made.

Betsy Kriewald received a card from Bill Hirsch in Illinois, and it said they have a new baby girl. Jim Coleman sold his house last week to Chas. White for $55 at auction, Bert Cummins and Claud Hill performing the wind work. Those few of us who were present will warrant that if these two men, paired together, cannot sell your place it is unsealable. I proclaim them unbeatable.

Why Not Talk English?

A big gob of alligator tears are being shed lately over the fact that some foreigners have been taken off relief because they have not yet taken out their citizenship papers. The question arises among some of us wiseacres, as to why these people have not thought enough of their country to take out those papers. Does it not look as if a person has a quite a lot of guts to take relief and aid from a country he is not a member of? It seems to us he might go back from whence he came and get the relief there or join up.

Another thing that troubles some of us who are trying to pay our own way and also that of some others that are too unfortunate to pay their own, why these foreign people do not join whole hog or nose and learn to talk our language too. That would be no more than courteousness and appreciation for the role we are passing out so willingly. We speak the English language here in this country and it is not hard to learn. People with very mediocre minds learn it.

One family in these parts has been receiving help from the U. S. government for years and cannot to this day converse with their neighbors or anyone but their own countrymen. They have been cut off lately from relief, because they not only failed to learn our tongue, but failed also to take out the necessary simple oaths of naturalization.

One might think, although he would dare not mention it, that the only reason these people live here is for that role that is handed out from so little effort on their part.

More Short Shavings.

The cheese maker, Frank Lethenthal, cats the very cheese he manufactures. That's about as good a recommendation as a food can have.

Albert Babcock has just been to Lincoln to have an operation on his nose. The trouble was caused from an injury while playing football in high school days, it is thought. He is now reaping the fruits of glory. The old hotel Arlington at N. L. has been bought by the city and it along with the community building, are to be wrecked by WPA labor and a new community building and library are to be erected with that labor on what is now the hotel site. There has been talk, too, of wrecking also the town hall and using the lumber from that in the new building, but the town hall belongs to the Oddfellows and the township, and as yet that building has not been made one of the group.

The deal does not have the final OK but the emirs in charge say there is not one chance in a hundred of it being turned down. It is told by some men in authority that if the vote is against the irrigation district in Ord on April fourth, the irrigation offices will all be moved to Burwell pronto.

The Banker's Turn.

A local cattle feeder says, "Last year I lost two thousand dollars because the banker loaned me the money to feed cattle. This year I lost two thousand dollars because he wouldn't loan me the money."

According to a previous arrangement, my daughter called at my banker's home at noon where he was to tell her my bank balance. She called there because the bank closed at the noon hour.

Upon my daughter's arrival the banker's wife told her that the banker was asleep and she would not awaken him for a trivial matter. Fair enough. I do not like to be awakened from my noon nap either. I start work milking cows at about 4:00 a. m., and end the day usually about 9:00 p. m. The banker's hours are the same. Start

WHAT I'D SAY -- If I Were Editor

A Guest Editorial written by Martin F. Lewin. In this Department each week some Loup Valley citizen will contribute his views on a subject of general interest.

A DREAM BECOMES A REALITY.

As the first representative of the Middle Loup Valley to be chosen guest editor, my topic will be what is nearest to the heart of every citizen of the Middle Loup Valley, namely IRRIGATION.

Our Project has been constructed with the aid of the Public Works Administration and the total cost of the power and irrigation system is $1,309,909.00. This cost is divided into a 55% loan of $755,000.00 and a 45% grant of $554,909.00. 70% of this cost is applied to the irrigation system and the remaining 30% to the electric system. The cost of water to the farmers will be $2.50 per acre, per year. This amount of money will assure 12 inches of water for each acre of land the farmer irrigates. The low charge for irrigation water in our Valley is made possible by the 45% grant given us by the Public Works Administration. A fund has been set aside to construct the electric system and will be used for the construction of that system when the plans for the high lines are finished. The people of our Valley are going to make a success of irrigation, thereby show our appreciation to the Public Works Administration and pay off our loan.

With the closing of the construction of our Project on the 28th of February, we are now left to shift for ourselves. The fate of our Project now depends entirely on the people of our Valley. We are determined to make it live up to all our hopes. The people of the Middle Loup Valley have found out that irrigation is an absolute necessity. The past dry years have taught us many things. Recalling the condition of our Valley land as it existed in 1934, when the site of many a burned straw stack from our 1933 crops greeted our sore eyes, it will be a pleasure to greet the waters of our river when they are distributed over our dry land instead of flowing aimlessly to the Gulf of Mexico without benefit to us.

Work is going rapidly forward and we are going to have the river on both sides of the Valley, ready to go to work for us by the first of April. All we need now is the natural amount of winter's trash cleaned out of the canals then the headgates opened, and the water is available for saturating the soil before planting time. The canals and siphons came through the winter in good shape and the District has the men and equipment ready to take care of any emergencies that might come up. Good men are at the helm and our irrigation is here.

There are contractors moving equipment into the valley to level the land for irrigation. There are also engineers surveying farms and drawing contour maps so that each farmer that hires them can get a map of his farm drawn to show six inch contours. People realize how deceptive their judgment may be in judging the slope of land. It is very important to have your work planned and planned right before there can be any hope of success with the leveling of land. Careful study and careful management will pay back with interest, the time and labor spent. Most of the farmers in the Valley plan to prepare only small tracts of land for irrigation and make sure that they use their water efficiently then to expand their acreage year by year. It has been the history of other irrigation districts that the operators of the land would try to irrigate too much land at first. These farmers would not make a success, due to attempting too much and being inexperienced. Then they would give up, and others would move in who knew irrigation and what a small acreage of land could be made to pay. Thus the original farmers would be pushed out. We must prevent this as much as possible in our Valley. We want our farmers to stay, because through their help and cooperation our dream of irrigation has become a reality.

While other nations are madly preparing for war, the people of Central Nebraska will be restoring their fertile land to its normal productivity. The same soil that was here two or three decades ago is still here, therefore, there is no reason why bumper crops cannot be assured. If the farmers of Central Nebraska prosper, the rest of the State will prosper in proportion. We will then be living in the land of tall corn and waving grain, with drought a thing of the past.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

Reviewed by CARTER FIELD

Too much build-up is turning Harry Hopkins' oratorical efforts into a dud... Cutting federal expenses and balancing the budget is seen a virtual impossibility... New Deal will feel the loss of Joseph B. Keenan's political sagacity.

WASHINGTON.—Whatever else may be said of Harry L. Hopkins' "appeasement" speech, intended to "start the wheels of prosperity turning again in this country and to pave the way to his own nomination and election next year, very little poker strategy was shown. The build-up was wrong. The timing was calculated badly. And finally, it became evident that Hopkins simply does not have the golden radio voice of his chief.

On this last point, one wonders if Mr. Roosevelt is really doing his best by this, his second candidate to succeed him in the White House, whether Hopkins, like Robert H. Jackson, is not being "given a run" like a candidate at a presidential convention. For it would seem to the most casual student of mike oratory that the President must have known that Harry was not big time so far as broadcasting is concerned, and that he could be improved quite considerably by a little training.

Most people, for instance, figure that Herbert Hoover would like another try for the White House brass ring, but nevertheless he did advise Thomas E. Dewey, just before Dewey entered the New York gubernatorial race, that his oratory simply must be improved. And no one should know better than Hoover, who as secretary of commerce and as President was one of the worst ever known—until Alf M. Landon—but who turned himself, in the opinion of many observers, into the best orator the Republican party has by the time he had been out of the White House for four years.

Promised His Head Off; Final Effort Became Dud
Coming back to Hopkins' strategy or lack of it, it is possible that he could not avoid one big mistake. Looking at the whole affair coldly, it is probable that if Hopkins had made the same speech three months earlier it would have been a wow. The whole county would have talked of nothing else for weeks. Business would have been electrified. Everybody knowing how close he was to the President, it would have marked a dramatic and spectacular milestone.

What had happened in that three months to make it seem an anti-climax? To have made it, frankly, a disappointment to business as well as to Hopkins' boosters? The answer is simple. There had been too much build-up. The trouble was that Hopkins meantime had been nominated for secretary of commerce, and had to get himself confirmed. Not only that, he had to go far enough in his campaign to get confirmed to avoid any serious fight over his confirmation. Anything else might have thrown him off what seemed like a clear track leading to the White House before he could get steam up.

So he promised his head off, not in one interview but in dozens. He had half a dozen "spokesmen" on the conservative side in the senate telling their colleagues, and newspaper men, and business men back home, just how safe and sane Harry was going to be. He was specific in his pledges, left nothing to the imagination.

In fact, he said so much, and it was relayed so widely, that it is no wonder his final public effort was a dud. Balancing the Budget Is Seen Virtual Impossibility
The virtual impossibility of cutting federal expenditures and balancing the budget is clearly demonstrated in the recent senate vote on the proposal to cut $4,262,000 from the TVA appropriation. It is significant because this was the most logical place for congress to cut this particular bill if it were to be cut at all.

The point is that the house, in cutting more than four times that amount from the TVA appropriation, had included in the projects to be discontinued the Gilbertsville dam, on which the government has already expended some millions of dollars, and which in addition is recognized by all engineers as important not only to the navigation and flood control of the Tennessee river, but to the lower Ohio and Mississippi rivers as well.

In short, it is easy to see that the most determined man to cut appropriations in all congress might easily have been swayed to vote for the Gilbertsville dam money. On this particular point there was no roll call. It was approved by a voice vote.

But on the four-million-dollar appropriation there was no such argument calculated to appeal to senators who want the federal government to balance its budget. Yet the vote to put the appropriation into the bill—to go on spending—was 49 to 31. As four additional senators were paired in favor of the appropriation, the total number for it was actually 53, four more than a majority of the entire body.

Really Is Part and Parcel Of Old Pork-Barrel System

The really discouraging phase of the whole matter to those who see the necessity of budget balancing has nothing to do with the merits of this particular appropriation. In fact, it is not unfair to say that most of the senators who voted for it were not primarily voting on its merits at all. Some of them were voting for the additional dam because they believe in the government going further into the electrical business. Some of them did so because they knew the White House wanted it. Some of them want to round out the TVA project.

For example, had Arthur E. Morgan been a member of the senate when this vote was taken, he would of course have voted for the appropriation, despite his bitter criticisms of David E. Lillenthal, and, inferentially, of President Roosevelt, in the conduct of TVA affairs.

But the really discouraging point is that it is part and parcel of the old pork-barrel system. It will be noted that the senators from many of the states which hope for more federal spending on dams and river control projects went along with the majority.

What so many people who hope for economy from congress do not think about in their wishful talking is that it is good business for politicians to spend public moneys. In fact, it is how politicians live. Sometimes it is a crime, and in the case of local contracts, with attendant graft. Sometimes it is more difficult to trace, as in the pork-barrel type of federal spending. There the objective is not graft, but "bringing home the bacon."

New Deal Feels Loss of Keenan's Political Wisdom

The stepping out of the New Deal circle of Joseph B. Keenan, who has been assistant attorney general leaves really no one on the inside, so to speak, whose knowledge of practical politics and political intelligence commands very much respect on Capitol Hill, with the notable exception, of course, of the President himself.

It has frequently been a matter of comment that Mr. Roosevelt, from the day he yielded to Alfred B. Smith's urging that he run for governor of New York in 1928, did not make a single serious political mistake until he had entered on his second presidential term. It is also frequently pointed out that a great many positive actions, which were of the highest order of political sagacity, contributed to his success in the period a little short of seven years which is included in this span.

His first political mistake, according to the consensus on Capitol Hill, was his proposal for the enlargement of the Supreme Court, made in January, 1937. Then followed the purge, and a long list of actions which approach the definition of an old-time political leader that "it was worse than a crime, it was a blunder."

Many critics insist that it is not merely a coincidence that during the brilliant—always measuring by the test of pure political judgment, and not by whether the action were otherwise sound or unsound—period Mr. Roosevelt had the advantage of the advice of loyal Louis McHenry Howe, and that the period since, when blunders have been frequent, came after Howe's death.

Farley Definitely Excluded From Political Councils

Be that as it may, the administration is recognized as having definitely excluded James A. Farley from its political councils almost ever since the 1936 election.

The President actively entered three of the pure contests himself. In one case, Maryland, Farley is known to have hoped that Senator Millard E. Tydings would be defeated, though his judgment was that it could not be done. In fact, he is known to have told close friends, during the Maryland primary, to bet on Tydings. In the other two cases, where the President personally spoke his wishes to the voters, South Carolina and Georgia, Farley not only thought the purge could not succeed but did not agree with it. In short he would have opposed fighting Walter F. George and Cotton Ed (E. D.) Smith even if he had been sure he could beat them.

Considering the whole picture after Howe died and when Farley's political judgment was being ignored, Joe Keenan, who was the ace politician of the New Deal, so to speak, did not make a very favorable record. But Keenan is not blamed for this. He did not make the big decisions. He simply tried to carry out the orders once they had been given.

Farley is not apt to regain his political leadership. The New Dealers regard him as a candidate for the presidency himself.

Charles Faudt's Photo In High Topper's Club
Charles Faudt of North Loup, representative of the State Farm Insurance companies, recently made a trip to the head office at Bloomington, Ill., on the occasion of the yearly national convention. As usual he made a place for himself in the High Toppers' club, an organization of the leading salesmen in the United States, to which he has qualified for three years. This year seventeen salesmen from as many different states earned membership in this exclusive organization, and Mr. Faudt is to be congratulated upon his success. His picture appears with others of the club in a photo in the official insurance publication, The Pantagraph.

Something Different

Probably the worst scourge a small town ever has to bear and its biggest drawback is gossip... and you ever considered that? And sometimes, when a particularly vicious bit is continually repeated, always with enlargements and embellishments, it almost seems that it would be preferable to live in a city, after all, where one is literally alone in any crowd.

Centuries ago they provided punishments for gossips, delicate little touches such as slitting the tongue, or possibly removing it entirely, or dunking in the mill pond, with trials and other types of public shaming. Possibly a day in the stocks. Too bad all these were abolished—we need some public check.

It is all very well to be interested in our neighbors, to enjoy their foibles, yet what a short step it is to watching them, repeating what we see or think we have seen. And things are not always what they seem, nor what we think we are seeing. Many a heart has ached because of some trifling story wrongly started which has been warped and twisted until it came home in a really damaging form.

Emily Post says we should not talk about ourselves. Yet I think it would be better to discuss our own doings than those of others, if we must choose. After all, when we talk of others we are nearly always wrong, for no two people put the same interpretation on a word or an act, so that even if we are telling what we think happened, the chances are we are not correct.

No two people will describe what they see in the same way... this has been proved in many a journalism and psychology class. When a fake murder is staged for a class, done before their eyes and the students are asked to describe what took place some of the boys saw the murder done with a gun, some with a knife. Some saw him wearing a suit of one color, some another. Some think he was short and light complexioned, while others will swear he was swarthy and tall. Part of the class decided he came in one door, others think he went out that door, not in. The battle rages, proving chiefly that none of us are good witnesses. If we cannot believe what we see, then why think we should relay our inaccurate news to another?

And why talk about others anyway? Let he who is without sin cast the first stone. Do you and I do any better than those we discuss?

More likely we are like the woman who belonged to the aid society and for years was a sore thorn in the side of all officers, for she forever told them what to do and how to do it. One day some bright lady thought up the idea

Congress Takes Bit in Teeth to Restore National Confidence

Vast Resources of Nation to Be Made Available Again For All People; Old-Line Democrats Responsible for Sudden Determination to Assume Leadership.

By WILLIAM BRUCKART
WNU Service, National Press Bldg., Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON.—The dictionary defines the word, "confidence," as meaning: "trust in, or reliance upon, another; a belief in a person or a thing." The dictionary might well have added that confidence is something quite intangible but yet it is a condition of national or state thought about its government, individual thought, a condition of mind, a feeling, or a belief in a person or a thing. The dictionary might well have added that confidence can be destroyed more easily than it can be maintained, or recreated when it once has been destroyed.

In any event, the thing about which we have heard most in Washington lately is the necessity for establishing a feeling of confidence throughout the country. The necessity exists, it is explained freely, because the depression continues and millions of persons, who would like to work, are not working. In some places, where political face-saving is important, the movement is called "business appeasement," but that is a difference between tweedle-dee and tweedledum. It remains as an effort to recreate national confidence so that all of the vast resources of the nation can be made available again for all of the people.

All of this is only a prelude to the declaration that:

Congress has taken the bit in its teeth with a determination that indicates rather a unified effort to restore the country's confidence. It apparently is going to guide the policies and work out solutions for the various problems that are viewed as destructive of a feeling of assurance among the bulk of the people. In other words, congress seems to have assumed a leadership in national life that it has not had in recent years, and is moving sincerely to bring back prosperity.

President Hoover's Plans Wrecked by Stock Market

The course of events that has led up to the latest development (a development that has both political and economic significance) has been rather a wandering trail. It had its headwaters back in 1930 and 1931, when Herbert Hoover, then President, sought to stem the tide of rushing waters of depression by inviting dozens of business leaders to Washington for consultation. He was seeking to restore confidence, to encourage the country to feel safe. Those were days, it will be recalled when "prosperity was just around the corner."

Mr. Hoover wanted to bring it out where it could be of some use.

Well, Mr. Hoover failed because the stock market crash had so destroyed the confidence of the country in him and in his policies of government that there was no possibility of recreating it. The folks simply would not believe in him, nor in any of his works at that time.

Along came the elections of 1932 and Mr. Roosevelt took over the job in 1933. Those days need not be reviewed, except to point out that no man ever had the complete confidence of a people as the new President held it. Congress did as it was told, the safe side, of course, there were ups and downs but the scene was dominated by the personality of Mr. Roosevelt, a condition that continued through about six years.

That brings us to the mistakes in politics which Mr. Roosevelt made in 1933—reorganization of the government, proposed expanding of the Supreme court by appointment of six justices of his own choosing, charges that business leaders were attempting to subvert the New Deal policies and destroy the Roosevelt administration. This was the beginning. In quick succession, there came important gains for the Republicans in the 1933 elections, fear among many old line Democrats that their seats in congress were being jeopardized by mistakes of various New Deal agencies and laws, and in general a doubt that their party should be allowed to remain under New Deal leadership.

Old-Line Democrats Decide To Assume Leadership

And I believe it is the latter condition of belief among the old line Democrats that is chiefly responsible for the sudden blossoming of congressional determination to take leadership. Some observers hold the conviction that many members of the house and senate feel they should protect their own hides and that, to accomplish this, they must assume national leadership instead of leaving the policies to be theorized and blue-printed by such as Jerome Frank, Thurmond Arnold, Tommy Corcoran, Secretary Ickes, and others of that type. That is only saying numerous house and senate members believe the country has lost confidence in that sort of leadership.

Only recently, it may be recalled, Mr. Roosevelt voiced an assurance that business would have no new taxes to burden it. He spoke confidently about the future. Others, reflecting the President's position, including Secretary Hopkins and Secretary Ickes spoke pieces of an assuring nature. This is the same Mr. Hopkins who used to be head of the relief spending.

What happened? The stock market that ruined Mr. Hoover's confidence in the new statements of 1933 with only a little less feeling than it did in the years when prosperity was a feeling of confidence that the government at Washington would quit pulling hair.

It was a natural request of the treasury. The treasury always has provided the fundamentals of every tax program. Capitol Hill had read Mr. Roosevelt's pronouncement concerning "no new taxes" as meaning there would be no changes in the tax structure, however, and there were a good many legislators who felt revision of some, and abolition of other, taxes were advisable.

Congress Will Go Slow on Increasing National Debt

There are numerous signs that congress is not going to be in any hurry at all to pass a law that will allow an increase in the total national debt. Present law provides that the treasury may issue notes and bonds up to $45,000,000,000. The current total is not so far below that figure, and Secretary Morgenthau has asked congress to boost the limit to $50,000,000,000. Congress apparently is not so sure that there should be an increase in the debt limit. It is a type of confidence—rather, a lack of confidence—that is plainly visible. I believe the debt total will have to be increased because there is no provision made for enough taxes to offset the vast spending program for relief and national defense upon which Mr. Roosevelt has launched. There is no place to get that money therefore, except by borrowing. So about the only good that can come from congressional barking on this score is to awaken the country as to the dangers of its great national debt.

From all of these things, one is pretty likely to get the hebechee-bees. One can hardly help wondering where we are headed. But it seems to me that there probably is need for a confidence that thus far has not been mentioned in this discussion. This is a confidence in fundamental Americanism. The voters of the country can compel a sound government on the part of those who make the policies and, on the surface, it appears now that the voters are telling congress what to do.

'Taint Possible.

Believe it or not, there is a University president who deliberately states that he is interested in improving the quality of his institution instead of increasing its size.

Wolf Boy Catches 35 Pound Salmon

This 35-pound salmon was caught recently in the Mad river, near Arcata, Calif., by Charles Wolf, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Wolf, who recently moved there from Ord and have worked on a large dairy farm. "They feed the cows beets and carrots," writes Charles. "We have some beets that are making an average of 50 tons per acre. Some beets here make over 100 tons per acre. We came out here shortly after Christmas and had no trouble finding work. We surely like this country. It rains a lot and frosts about one night each week. Last winter it did not frost once. It snowed about an inch a few weeks ago. It was the fourth snow in 20 years. The people almost go wild when it snows here."

Always Something Different to Tempt Jaded Appetites

No, we haven't forgotten that the best of Meat, sold at the Lowest of Prices, will always form the backbone of a meat market business.

Knowing how difficult housewives find it to serve new and pleasing menus with the "same old meats" we are always trying to find "something different."

That's why we added a Cheese Department with dozens of different kinds of Imported and Domestic Cheeses.

That's why we get frequent shipments of Barbecued Ribs, Brains, Liver, Sweetbreads and other things just a little "out of the ordinary."

That's why our line of fish and seafoods is so complete; why we added a stock of fancy groceries and condiments; why we sell milk, cottage cheese, cream, butter, bread and pastries.

Trade with a market that tries to please you.

Hudson, Laverty, State Irrigation District's Case at Mass Meeting

Middle Loup Fell Down.

President Hudson then outlined original plans for a high-line to be built in cooperation with Middle Loup, explaining that this had to be abandoned because Middle Loup electric facilities never were developed.

Admitting that the contract with Western Public Service company never has been satisfactory, since too much of the North Loup district's power revenue had to be paid for the carrier service, President Hudson explained that negotiations for a better contract have been under way for some time.

Recently these negotiations resulted in an offer from Platte Valley and Western Public to furnish electricity delivered at the Olean sub-station for 10.45 mills per k. w. h., Hudson stated, which rate would, if Ord and Burwell would consent to go ahead with their contracts as originally signed, provide enough profit to enable the district to go ahead and irrigate this year.

No Irrigation This Year!

"If the cities do not comply with their contract we see no way, at present, to effectively operate the irrigation system this season and give the farmer the service to which he is entitled. Our maintenance crews should now be at work getting the canals and laterals free of weeds and ready to operate but the district should not go ahead with this work in the face of the prevailing uncertainty due to the cities' refusal to comply with their contract," he stated.

Hudson also mentioned the possibility of an electric line being built to St. Paul, to hook up with an REA-owned 115,000 volt line to Grand Island already built, thus bringing power to Olean at lower cost than over the Western Public Service company lines. Such a line would cost about $60,000, financed by a 55% loan and 45% grant, and an allotment of 1 mill per k. w. h. would liquidate the loan in 30 years or less. The matter has been submitted to PWA for consideration. Such a line would enable the district to sell electricity, in all probability, to North Loup, Scotia, Elba, Cotesfield and possibly St. Paul, Hudson emphasized, though he said it might take several years to get all these towns as customers because of existing contracts.

The crowd heard President Hudson in silence and there was only scattered hand-clapping at conclusion of his talk.

"90 Per Cent Wanted Them."

Guy Laverty, of Burwell, attorney and secretary of the district, was then introduced and proved to be able to stir the crowd up, for his vehement utterances soon had people cheering and clapping their hands.

"Ninety per cent of the people of Ord and Burwell wanted their city councils to enter the electric contracts and knew what was in them," Attorney Laverty stated, and he believes that a vast majority of citizens today want their cities to comply with the contracts so as to irrigate the valley.

No complaint ever was made, nor any notice given by Ord and Burwell that they contemplated going off the high-line, the speaker claimed, and their action in going off the line Jan. 18 was a bomb-shell to the district.

Stating that he thinks any good attorney would tell Ord and Burwell they are legally bound to live up to the contracts they signed, Attorney Laverty said that surely in any event they are morally bound to do so.

He severely censured the Ord and Burwell councils for the various proposals they have made. "They never have made us an offer that, if accepted, didn't mean abrogation of their original contracts," he said.

"The only thing the district asks, or ever has asked, is that Ord and Burwell comply with the contracts they signed," he shouted.

Crowd Cheered Laverty.

Emphasizing that the district has no money, Mr. Laverty stated that if they had money they would start men out today to fix up the canals to irrigate. "And then we'd tell Ord and Burwell where we think they'd ought to go," he stated. Applause from farmers crowded around the steps greeted this remark.

The PWA didn't loan the district money to operate, they loaned it money only for construction, Laverty stated. As an example understandable to his hearers, he cited the case of a man who borrowed $1,000 from a bank to buy cattle. If a man did this, he would be expected to have feed for those cattle, or money to buy that feed, and wouldn't expect the bank to furnish money for feed also, Laverty said.

"If Ord and Burwell would pay as they agreed we'd have $900 to $1,200 per month and with that money we could put 12 or 15 men to work cleaning up the ditches and getting water to you farmers; then next January when the irrigating season is over and your crops harvested and sold, you could pay us for the water," the speaker stated.

Accuses an Ord Man.

"We know where all this trouble started," he shouted. "It started up in a room in the city hall last August when we tried to make a deal with the city of Ord to take care of our electric lines. We know the man who caused all the trouble, and started it, and is carrying it on."

"We've been told today that the city councils have got cold feet and are going to submit it to a vote of the people. I'm not afraid of how the people will vote. I don't know about Ord but I do know about Burwell. We'll carry it 90 per cent in Burwell."

Attorney Laverty concluded his talk with a plea that farmers get back of the proposition and push. "Find out what the trouble is and do something about it," he urged.

Believes PWA Might Help.

Taking the microphone at conclusion of Mr. Laverty's remarks, President Hudson stated that in-district about $1,000 per month. The PWA, he said, would go a long way toward helping the district years if everybody concerned had done as they agreed from the start.

Some of the other districts in Nebraska are technically in default but the PWA is keeping them going without a receivership because everybody concerned in them is trying as hard as possible to work out of the trouble. He implied that PWA might, if Ord and Burwell went back on the highline, loan money to the district for operation until revenues catch up with expenses.

Discussing the matter of receivership, President Hudson said that street talk often asks why not let the district go into receivership, then buy it back cheaply. In the first place such procedure is not possible under Nebraska statute, he said, and in the second place "where would we get the money to buy it." He emphasized that a receiver inevitably would raise price of water to farmers so as to liquidate the district's indebtedness, if power revenue to make up the deficit is not coming in.

"Get Busy, Clean House."

President Hudson also urged that farmers get busy and find out where the trouble lies.

"You have a way of finding out," he said. "Ask them, 'Are you going to buy power according to your contract?' If they say 'yes' you know where you stand. If they say 'no' why then get busy and clean house where it ought to be cleaned."

In conclusion President Hudson said that arrangements had been made for use of the Bohemian hall, following the open air meeting, and he expressed the hope that all farmers would go to the hall and join in organization of a farmers' group to take such steps as they thought best to force Ord and Burwell to live up to their contracts, or take any other action they deemed advisable.

Rex Jewett Designs New Revolver Bullet

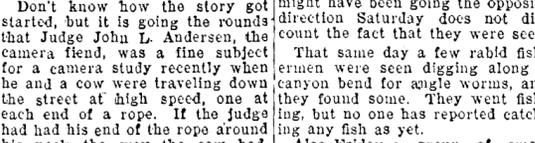

Rex Jewett is one of the best informed men in Nebraska on the subject of guns and ammunition, so it is not surprising that he should be the designer of a new type of revolver bullet that is meeting with general approval among men who know the subject of ballistics.

Above, the new design bullet is shown alone in the center, and in a cartridge on the right, to show its comparison with the standard 38 caliber special on the left. This bullet has a flat nose semi-point and a straight wadcutting band the diameter of the bullet, back of the point. The shape alone will cause it to strike a terrific blow. The ordinary bullet will push tissue aside, while this bullet pushes out a plug like a leather punch.

This produces terrific shock and hemorrhage which will put any animal down immediately. This design is a variation and improvement on an older design, and was first made by Mr. Jewett less than two years ago. It is not loaded commercially, but is used by a number of sportsmen who make their own loads. It can be loaded for a higher velocity than the regular load, and is more humane, as the animal hit is almost certain to die quickly.

A standard 38 revolver bullet goes at a comparatively slow velocity of from 1,000 to 1,100 feet per second, and at that speed will not mushroom, but will slip through tissue, pushing it aside and leaving a small clean hole behind it. It imparts comparatively little shock. Tests have proven that the new type bullet will maintain its direction and speed as well as the round nose type, and makes getting the game almost a certainty.

Don't know how the story got started, but it is going the rounds that Judge John L. Andersen, the camera fiend, was a fine subject for a camera study recently when he and a cow were traveling down the street at high speed, one at each end of a rope. If the judge had had his end of the rope around his neck the way the cow had, they might have been running yet. As it was, he gave up the contest after making 100 yards in 8 1/2 seconds, but the cow was still going strong.

Another one for Ripley is that some housewives in Ord set their clocks, not by the whistle or the radio, but by Clayton Noll's milk delivery car. He makes his rounds on a definite schedule, and is seldom more than a few seconds off.

Our new restaurant man, Ben Clark, who recently bought Mac's Grill and changed the name to Ben's Grill, has figured in both of Ord's fire alarms since he came. The first night he was here he built up a hot fire in the Dr. Miller house, and the steam from the heating plant was mistaken for smoke and an alarm turned in. Saturday night he discovered the fire at the library while on his way home from work and turned in the alarm.

Signs of Spring—One robin may not make a spring and some of them have been seen in this section all winter, but when they begin to sing, then spring is just around the corner. A number of people have heard them singing to date.

Then there are the cardinals, a few meadow larks, and even a wren or two. Yes, the birds are anxiously waiting for spring to appear officially.

The first wild geese were sighted last Friday, flying high, and headed north. The fact that they might have been going the opposite direction Saturday does not discount the fact that they were seen.

That same day a few rabid fishermen were seen digging along a canyon bend for angle worms, and they found some. They went fishing, but no one has reported catching any fish as yet.

Also Friday a group of small boys opened the softball season and played a wild game, won by one side, no matter which, by a score of about 35 to 15. They even played a while Saturday, although part of the boys played with their mittens on.

Happened to stop at Desch Bros., and caught Charlie busy painting his bird houses so they would be ready for occupancy. Walt was getting some markers ready for Decoration Day.

A sport that is gaining favor with the boys is kite flying. Bernard Beran holds some kind of a record, as he had his kite out to the limit of 1,250 feet of string Friday, but some other boys have done almost as well.

Ivan Canedy's Entry Still Tops Contest Though Three More Big Eggs Are Entered

The big egg laid by one of Ivan Canedy's New Hampshire Red hens, the picture of which was printed in last week's Quiz, is to date Valley county's biggest, though other people are "shooting at" the entry and may surpass it before the spring laying season ends.

Mr. Canedy's egg measured 7 1/2 x 3 inches and weighed 4 1/4 ounces. Biggest egg entered this week was a Rhode Island Red egg from Mrs. Albert Lukesh's flock. It measured 7 inches around the short way and 8 inches the long way. Its weight was 4 1/4 ounces. The picture of this egg appears in the center above.

Another big egg came from Mrs. David Wigent's flock of White Leghorns. It was 8 inches long but only 6 1/4 inches around, and weighed 3 4/8 ounces. This egg is pictured at left above. At right is another White Leghorn egg from Mrs. Fritz Kuehl's flock. It measured 6 1/2 inches x 7 1/2 inches and weighed 3 1/4 ounces.

If you find any big hen's eggs, folks, measure and weigh them, and if they tie or surpass Ivan Canedy's entry bring them to the Quiz office and enter them in the 1939 "big egg" contest. Goose eggs, duck eggs and turkey eggs are barred—only chicken eggs are eligible. (The Office Girl wants to know if capons are chickens. Yes they are, and if anybody has a capon egg, big or small, it may be entered in this contest.)

There will be services every evening beginning on Palm Sunday and extending through until Easter except on Saturday evening.

New Proposals May Put Cities Back on High Line

Geweke feels. He also feels it will not be the fault of the irrigation board, since this board must accept PWA's dictum.

Mr. Geweke feels, and indicated this morning that he will so state at the next meeting of the Water Users' association, that Ord and Burwell either must go back on the highline or see the district go into receivership. Benefit to the cities of having the irrigation district function on a $2.50 per acre water basis, with the increase in population that is bound to come, will overbalance loss of revenues from operation of the municipal plants, Mr. Geweke believes.

Should the negotiations of Tuesday evening break down, as previous efforts at settlement have done, Ord and Burwell people likely will vote on the propositions April 4th, as stated in last week's Quiz, but the matter of a vote is held in abeyance pending acceptance or rejection of the proposition made Tuesday evening.

Senators Vandiest and Doyle were invited to Ord Tuesday evening by Mayor Cummins in the belief they might make suggestions helpful in reaching a settlement of the power controversy that has raged since January 18 when the cities went off the high line. Vandiest spoke at considerable length Tuesday but confessed he was un-informed about the intricacies of the local situation, although familiar with hydro-electric development in general because of his chairmanship of that committee in the unicameral legislature. Both Vandiest and Doyle recommended that a settlement be reached. They also explained bills now pending before the legislature on power and irrigation questions.

Farmers Organize To Fix Blame For Irrigation Delay

Two officials of the irrigation district, Roy Hudson and Guy Laverity were present but took no official part in the meeting, only answering questions directed at them by farmers and business men.

Asked if it were true that the district still has funds coming to it from the government, Hudson said that the district still has a portion of the final $50,000 of construction funds coming, but that the loan and grant agreement provides that such money as is left after construction must be turned back to help liquidate the project and cannot be used for operating costs.

Interest on the district's loan will amount to $36,615 annually, Hudson said in answer to questions, and he estimated normal operating cost at $30,000 annually, which might be increased if heavy rains take out portions of the canal or dams. At present operating cost is not this heavy and can be held below his estimated level for a time, he stated. The district counts on getting 15,000 acres under irrigation this year, thus providing $37,500 at $2.50 an acre, which will be enough to meet interest payments. The district had counted on profits from sale of electricity to Ord and Burwell to pay operating expense, he said, but with this money not coming in while the cities are off the highline the district has no funds for operation. "If we can get them back on the line we'll try to operate on what we get from the cities," he said.

Commenting on reports regarding other public power districts, Hudson said that some are in default but since they are living up to agreements the PWA is going along and helping them out. As to the Middle Loup, he explained that not all the laterals were built there, nor has the electric portion of construction been started.

Mr. Laverity also was asked a number of questions regarding the district's financial condition. "We're going to lay all our cards on the table," he said, and explained that the district actually has a little over $3,000 that it could use to clean the canals and start spring irrigating. This money came from sale of water to a few farmers last summer and from sale of power to Ord and Burwell during the five months they were on the district's high-line. "But the board felt," Laverity continued, "that if we went ahead and spent that $3,000 without having money coming in from some source to carry the irrigation along after we got it started the money probably would be wasted." He joined Hudson in denying that the district had access to any federal funds that could be used for operation this summer.

Chairman Geweke, in his initial speech, stated that in his opinion is that the Water Users association should be a permanent organization regardless of the outcome of the present squabble. "We'd ought to have some voice in this irrigation district since we're the ones who are going to pay most of the cost of it by buying water," he said.

Geweke also promised on behalf of the committee to make a thorough investigation and complete report. "We may even name a few names if that seems best," he said, "and wherever we think the blame for the mix-up is we're going to tell you about it."

Since the organization meeting the committee has been busy, so the Quiz is informed. Numerous conferences have been held with district officers and with officials of the two cities, individually and in groups, and Monday evening the entire committee met with the Ord council in the city hall.

No. Loup District Sued for $69,138 By Black & Veatch

Kansas City Firm Claims Fees Still Due Them; File Liens on Property.

In federal court at Grand Island last Thursday, Black & Veatch, the Kansas City, Mo., engineers who designed and supervised construction of the North Loup district's power and irrigation system, filed suit against the district for $69,138.37, plus interest from Dec. 21, 1938, and costs of the action. The money, they claim, is still due them for engineer services performed for the district.

The previous day in the county clerk's office in Valley, Loup, Garfield, Custer and Greeley counties, Black & Veatch filed mechanic's liens against all the physical assets of the district for a total amount of $81,584.78. Included is all real estate owned by the district and also all excavations, dams, canals, laterals and structures.

If awarded a judgment against the district in their federal court action, Black & Veatch will by virtue of these liens claim priority over the bondholders in ownership of all the district's physical assets until the judgment is paid. It was stated Friday by Clarence M. Davis and E. L. Vogeltanz, their attorneys who filed the federal court suit and filed the liens on behalf of Black & Veatch.

Black & Veatch claim in their first cause for action that their contract with the North Loup district was entered into on Sept. 3, 1936, and that it provided all their work was to be entirely performed within one year from commencement of such work; that the work was commenced on Oct. 1, 1936; that the plaintiffs were ready, able and willing to complete the work within a year, but that because of the acts and omissions of the defendant construction required 14 1/2 months longer than the contract period, during all of which time the plaintiff had to maintain an office in Ord and a corps of engineers here; that for this reason the plaintiff was damaged in the sum of $44,922.69, which sum is asked as a judgment against the North Loup district.

The engineers further allege, in five other causes for action, that they were required to resurvey, re-draw and replan the district's entire canal system and lateral system, after same had been surveyed and drawn in accordance with specifications originally given them, also, that they were required to make certain surveys in connection with condemnation proceedings not included in the original contract; also that they were required to make new plans and drawings for the entire electrical transmission system, after the first plans and drawings had been accepted by the defendant; also, that because of delays incident to construction, extra supervision was required, and that funds owed to the plaintiff by certain contractors were deducted by the defendant but never paid over to the plaintiff; and that for these reasons the plaintiff claims damages in the amounts of $6,217.52 on the 2nd cause for action; $3,751.88 on the 3rd cause for action; $418 on the 4th cause for action; $10,042.32 on the 5th cause for action; and $3,785 on the 6th cause for action. Total damages claimed therefore amount to $69,138.37.

Black & Veatch claim they actually expended $112,870.11 on work for the North Loup district; that they are entitled to 30 per cent profit over this sum, or a total of $146,731.14, and that they have actually been paid only $65,146.36, leaving a balance due of $81,584.78, which includes money which they allege is due them from contractors but is being wrongfully withheld by the North Loup district.

Ord Livestock Judges Score High at Columbus

Ord high school was ranked third in the team placings at the Columbus judging contest sponsored by the Nebraska Angus Breeders' association Monday. Approximately 500 boys were in competition from 20 high schools and 19 county 4-H organizations.

Albion entered 37 boys to cop first honors. West Point, with 16 entries, barely edged Ord out of second position. Fourth, fifth and sixth places went to Schuyler, Wisner and York. Rankings of the schools below sixth place were not announced.

Four local boys, Wilford Hansen, Lloyd Geweke, Robert Packer and James Flynn each won cash prizes of a dollar or more. Ord sent but five contestants to the meet.

A livestock judging team and a crops judging team will be entered in the big Future Farmer contest at Kearney April 1st, by the agricultural department of the Ord high school.

Harry Bresley to Sell 40 Horses on March 30

Greathouse Helps Peru Team Reach Semi-Finals

Leonard Greathouse, former Ord high school star, is still doing his bit in basketball for the Peru Teachers. In a game at Kansas City Thursday the Peru quintet defeated the defending champions of intercollegiate basketball, the Central Teachers of Warrensburg, Mo., by a score of 45 to 31 in the biggest upset of the tournament.

Greathouse, who plays center for Peru, made a total of 9 points for his team, and Jack McIntyre, a guard, led the scoring with 14 points.

After playing a brilliant game in eliminating the Central Teachers, the Peru quintet suffered a severe setback and lost in the semi-finals to the San Diego, Calif., Teachers by a score of 49 to 29.

NOTICE. The county spelling contest will be held at the Ord high school auditorium, Friday, March 31. Registration begins at 1 o'clock. Three winners will be selected to enter the inter-state contest at Sioux City, April 28, and the World-Herald contest in Omaha, April 29.

New Agreement Believed Satisfactory to District Drafted at Burwell

A new agreement under the terms of which Burwell would go back on the North Loup district's transmission line and buy power for an indefinite period was drafted at Burwell this week and Tuesday morning was approved by Mayor C. W. Becker, Chester Hallock, Glenn Runyan and E. Hansen, members of the power committee of that village, the Quiz learns. It has not yet been approved by the village board in regular session, nor has it been submitted to the Ord power committee for approval.

The new agreement is believed to be satisfactory to the North Loup district. Guy Laverty, attorney for the district, is said to have examined the agreement and unofficially approved it.

Certain objections raised by district officials to the proposal made by Ord and Burwell last Tuesday are said to be removed by the terms of the new proposal. It follows:

"This agreement made and entered into this 21st day of March, 1939, by and between the Village of Burwell, Nebraska, and the North Loup River Public Power and Irrigation District, Ord, Nebraska.

"The Village of Burwell agrees to connect its electric distribution system to the transmission line of said district forthwith and purchase electric energy from said district at the schedule of rates as set forth in the written instrument dated August 10, 1937 between the parties hereto.

"The said district hereby expressly waives any estoppel or right to claim or plead estoppel as against the said village to question the validity of the written instrument of August 10, 1937 by reason of this connection by the village of its distribution system to the electric transmission system of said district and said district agrees that all defenses which the said village had or claimed to have on March 20, 1939 or prior thereto as to said written instrument of August 10, 1937, and all matters related thereto, are hereby expressly reserved to said village.

"That both parties hereby agree that the execution of this agreement and performance thereunder shall not be construed as a ratification of the written instrument of August 10, 1937, or as an admission of either the validity or the invalidity of said instrument.

"The North Loup River Public Power and Irrigation District agrees to pay said Village of Burwell the sum of $100 per month as a stand-by service so long as the said Village continues to purchase its electrical energy from said district, under said written instrument of August 10, 1937.

"This agreement does not waive any rights of either party under said written instrument of August 10, 1937."

Mayor M. B. Cummins of Ord met with the Burwell power committee Tuesday, when the proposed agreement was discussed and approved, and brought a copy of it to Ord. He is submitting it to Clarence M. Davis, city attorney, for study, and said this morning that if Davis agrees that Ord's rights are sufficiently protected by the agreement, he will recommend it to the Ord power committee for passage. He emphasizes, though, that the power committee has authority delegated by the city council to pass or reject this proposed agreement.

If approved by the power committee, the agreement would come up before the Ord city council for final passage, and if passed by them would be signed by the mayor and council.

Members of the Ord power committee are Dr. J. W. McGinnis, Frank Johnson, Clarence M. Davis and George Allen.

What the North Loup district's official attitude regarding the agreement will be cannot be determined until the proposal is officially made by the Ord and Burwell councils. Mayor Cummins is the Quiz's authority for the statement that the proposed agreement was unofficially submitted to President R. W. Hudson and he indicated that he believes an agreement of this kind may prove acceptable to the district and to PWA.

Under its provisions, as applied to Ord, this city would receive $200 per month from the district for stand-by service.

Farmers Invited Hear Joe Clark Thursday Eve

Chamber of Commerce To Have Ravenna Man As Speaker; To Serve Lunch.

The Ord Chamber of Commerce invites all farmers to be their guests Thursday evening at a meeting to be held in the Knights of Pythias hall at 8:30, at which Joe Clark, Ravenna, will be the principal speaker. Mr. Clark is a humorist and home-spun philosopher and his talk will be interesting to every farmer.

"Then and Now" is the title of Mr. Clark's talk. Although Mr. Clark was for 30 years identified with the creamery business, his talk will not be along this line but rather a real "pep talk" about Nebraska, its resources and its future.

At conclusion of the discourse, the Chamber's entertainment committee will serve coffee and doughnuts.

Members of the Chamber are asked to be at the K. of P. rooms by 7:30, as a brief business meeting will precede the address by Mr. Clark.

Ord Livestock Judges Score High at Columbus

Ord high school was ranked third in the team placings at the Columbus judging contest sponsored by the Nebraska Angus Breeders' association Monday. Approximately 500 boys were in competition from 20 high schools and 19 county 4-H organizations.

Albion entered 37 boys to cop first honors. West Point, with 16 entries, barely edged Ord out of second position. Fourth, fifth and sixth places went to Schuyler, Wisner and York. Rankings of the schools below sixth place were not announced.

Four local boys, Wilford Hansen, Lloyd Geweke, Robert Packer and James Flynn each won cash prizes of a dollar or more. Ord sent but five contestants to the meet.

A livestock judging team and a crops judging team will be entered in the big Future Farmer contest at Kearney April 1st, by the agricultural department of the Ord high school.

Harry Bresley to Sell 40 Horses on March 30

Harry Bresley, one of Nebraska's biggest breeders and trainers of registered Percheron horses, will hold a reduction sale next Thursday, March 30, on his farm 3 miles north of Ord and will sell 40 head of horses, of which 20 are registered Percheron stallions, mares and fillies and the rest are grade Percherons, including some matched teams. This will be central Nebraska's biggest registered horse sale this spring, without doubt.

Greathouse Helps Peru Team Reach Semi-Finals

Leonard Greathouse, former Ord high school star, is still doing his bit in basketball for the Peru Teachers. In a game at Kansas City Thursday the Peru quintet defeated the defending champions of intercollegiate basketball, the Central Teachers of Warrensburg, Mo., by a score of 45 to 31 in the biggest upset of the tournament.

Greathouse, who plays center for Peru, made a total of 9 points for his team, and Jack McIntyre, a guard, led the scoring with 14 points.

After playing a brilliant game in eliminating the Central Teachers, the Peru quintet suffered a severe setback and lost in the semi-finals to the San Diego, Calif., Teachers by a score of 49 to 29.

NOTICE. The county spelling contest will be held at the Ord high school auditorium, Friday, March 31. Registration begins at 1 o'clock. Three winners will be selected to enter the inter-state contest at Sioux City, April 28, and the World-Herald contest in Omaha, April 29.

Fire Destroys Ericson Property of Rev. Austin

Ericson—(Special)—The Ericson fire company was called out at 2 p. m. Tuesday to the Methodist parsonage property, where the barn, chicken house and granary were ablaze before the fire was discovered and the alarm turned in. Prompt action soon got the fire under control, although the building was badly damaged, the equipment inside destroyed and articles stored inside by the Austin family scorched and water soaked.

The fire is supposed to have started from sparks from a trash fire blowing into a pile of hay stacked beside the barn. Rev. Austin had been in the barn only a short time before, but had seen nothing at the time. He was in the house with his wife, who is ill, when the alarm was sounded. With the start the fire had, the firemen did remarkably well to prevent further loss.

Water Users Will Meet March 24th

"All persons who own or operate land in the North Loup River Public Power and Irrigation district are invited to attend a meeting at the Bohemian hall in Ord on Friday, March 24, at 8:00 p. m., the purpose of the meeting being to organize a permanent Water Users association," said a notice sent out Tuesday by the committee to all persons under the ditch.

It was at first planned to hold this organization meeting last week, but delay in the arrival of sample constitutions and by-laws used by similar associations in western Nebraska forced postponement of the meeting.

Archibald Geweke, chairman, C. C. Dale, secretary, and all members of the temporary committee, express the hope that water users will attend the meeting 100% Friday evening.

Stockholders of National Farm Loan Assn Meet

The annual convention of the stockholders of the National Farm Loan association met Thursday afternoon at the Ord Theater. The program for the meeting was in charge of Evet Smith, who first called upon a group of eight high school students who played several selections.

Dr. F. D. Keim, head of the agronomy department of the Nebraska college of agriculture, was next introduced, and he entertained the three hundred guests with colored movies he had taken while on a trip through the agricultural sections of England, Scotland, Denmark, Norway and Germany in 1938 as a member of the grassland congress.

He explained the pictures as they were shown, and this part of the entertainment proved especially attractive. Following Dr. Keim, L. G. Sullivan, secretary of the Broken Bow Production credit association, gave a short talk in which he described the plan and organization of the association, and told how they were trying to work out a plan of low interest on livestock loans.

The business meeting was called to order by the president, W. J. Hather, there being about 40 borrower members present. They listened to the 1938 report of Secretary James B. Ollis. There was one director to be elected, and Joe Wadas, present incumbent, was chosen to succeed himself for the coming three years.

The present board is composed of the following: W. J. Hather, Joe Wadas, Evet Smith, John G. Bremer and M. B. Cummins. Loans are still available for anybody who needs money for agricultural purposes, but, owing to drought conditions they are made as conservative as possible. Among the guests for the program was Mr. Kovanda's agriculture class.

Evangelistic Services. Special Evangelistic services will be held at Bethany Lutheran church Thursday, March 23 to Sunday, March 26, inclusive. Rev. S. C. Nielsen of Lincoln is guest speaker. A cordial welcome is extended to all.

Ord Butter Wins Second Award At State Convention

Assistant Buttermaker Babka Wins in First Try; Coe Elected Sec.-Treas.

Butter manufactured by the Ord Cooperative Creamery company was adjudged second best in the contest held at Lincoln last week in connection with the convention of Nebraska cooperative creameries. Madison butter won first prize.

To Emil Babka, assistant buttermaker at the Ord creamery, goes the credit for making the prize-winning Ord butter. In former years butter made by E. O. Carlson, head buttermaker, has twice won top awards in this contest, so this year it was decided to let Babka make the contest butter. The fact that in his first attempt he won second in the state proves that the Ord creamery has two of Nebraska's best buttermakers in its employ.

Ord people attending the convention were A. W. Cornell, president, Fred W. Coe, manager of the creamery, and Mr. Carlson. Mrs. Coe also went along and served as one of the hostesses at the banquet, which was attended by 200 people.

At the election of officers Jay Wade, of Plainview, was chosen president and Mr. Coe was chosen secretary-treasurer.

Work on Warehouse To Be Complete Soon

H. H. Clement and Tom Hamer of North Loup and Mat Ignowski of Loup City who are doing the work on the new warehouse for the North Loup irrigation district at the corner of 14th and K streets, already have the building finished, and will complete the installing of the fence in a few days. The building is of all steel construction on a concrete base, and is 62 by 28 feet in size with 8 foot sides.

Boy Scouts Win Honors At Court of Honor

A court of honor was held for the Boy Scouts at Arcadia Monday evening. Ord boys who were raised from the tenderfoot rating to second class scouts were Bobbie Shunkweiler, Alton Walker, Bobby McBeth, Junior Wilson and Bobbie Gruber.

Warren Allen was given merit badges in electricity, marksmanship and music, and Cornelius Biemond, Raymond Vogeltanz, Gerald and Orville Stoddard and David Milliken were given merit badges in music. The boys were taken to Arcadia by Wilmer Anderson and C. C. Thompson.

Plans are already being made for the next court of honor, which will be held in Ord some time in May. At that time the boys will put on a program, and the public will be invited to attend.

Third Anniversary.

Friday evening Mrs. Edith Jones arranged a party at her home in honor of the third wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Rex Jewett. Also in attendance were Mr. and Mrs. Ray Hurbert, and, of course, Rex, jr. Mrs. Rex Jewett received a leather gift for the occasion.

Epworth League Met In Ord Tuesday Eve

There were 163 present Tuesday evening for the meeting of the Loup Valley Epworth League at the Ord Methodist church. Towns represented included Ericson, North Loup, Loup City and Arcadia.

The program included a trombone trio by Allen and Lloyd Zikmund and Orville Stoddard, and a quartet composed of Sarah Robertson, Eleanor Wolf, Christie Petersen and Myrtle Auble, with Ruth Auble at the piano.

The evening message was brought by Dr. Frank E. Pfoutz of Hastings, district superintendent of the Hastings district. Following the program games were played, at the close of which a lunch was served.

Valley County's First "Incubator Baby" Was Born Saturday, Is Doing Nicely, Thank You!

Snuggly ensconced in his new home of metal and glass, and comfortably heated with an electric light bulb, James Frank Paddock, Valley county's very first "incubator baby" is doing nicely.

The Paddock baby, who was born at 3:00 a. m. Saturday and weighed 5 pounds at birth, is the first baby to occupy Valley county's baby incubator. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Paddock, who live in north Ord. Dr. J. G. Kruml was the attending physician.

The incubator in which the little fellow is being kept was placed in Valley county several months ago by the Child Health and Maternal Welfare department of the state government. A baby incubator was given to each county in Nebraska by this department.

He was a premature baby, a "7 months' baby," according to Dr. Kruml, and until he gets a little older and is able to exist comfortably under normal conditions he will be kept in the incubator.

The Valley county incubator is kept at the Beranek drug store in Ord for use at the request of any physician in the county. When electric current is available the incubator is heated by an ordinary light bulb. In rural regions hot water bottles heat the incubator.

The lives of many babies are saved annually by availability of incubators of this type, physicians say.

Ord Service Clubs Dine Together and Hear Geo. Round, Jr.

The Rotary and Cosmopolitan clubs, Ord's two service organizations for business men, held their first joint "get-acquainted" session Monday evening at Thorne's cafe, the Rotarians being hosts at a Dutch treat dinner. Facilities of the cafe were taxed to the utmost with about 60 Rotarians, Cosmos and guests present.

Speaker of the evening was George Round, jr., extension editor from the University of Nebraska college of agriculture, who discussed farm conditions in Nebraska as he has found them this spring and then showed two reels of colored motion pictures taken in various parts of the state. Western Nebraska, said Round, has its best prospect for a crop since 1929. Subsoil moisture from Ogallala west and in the panhandle is down to 8 feet. Southern Nebraska also is in better shape than in recent years while eastern and southeastern Nebraska have plentiful moisture.

What farmers of various sections are doing to combat drought conditions by the use of sorghums and other forage crops was illustrated by the movies and explained in rapid-fire manner by Mr. Round.

Presiding at the meeting was Dr. F. A. Barta, president of the Rotary club. He introduced John Misko, the Cosmo president, who spoke briefly, and Dr. John Round, the Cosmo program chairman. The speaker was introduced by C. C. Dale, in whose office George worked before he attended university and got his start in extension work.

The meeting was expressed by one and the hope was expressed by both Rotarians and Cosmos that more joint sessions may be held in future.

—Mrs. Anna Terhune, of Gering, and Miss Doris Creemen, of Arcadia, were in Ord Tuesday visiting Mrs. Festus Williams. Mrs. Terhune is Mrs. Williams' sister and Miss Creemen a niece.

Edward Bruha Dies At Tofield, Alberta

A former Ord resident, Edward Bruha, died March 13 at the Oliver hospital in Tofield, Alberta, Canada at the age of 40, and funeral services were held at the Catholic church there last Thursday with Father Schmelzter officiating, interment being in the Tofield cemetery.

Mr. Bruha was born here in 1898. He is mourned by his parents, one brother, Frank, of Tofield, four sisters, Annie of Vancouver, B. C. and Mrs. Henry McGinnity, Mrs. Theo Genski and Mrs. Lionel Ferguson, all of Tofield.

Carlton's Will Sell Live in California

Mr. and Mrs. William Carlton this week are advertising a sale of their household goods and other personal property next Tuesday, March 28, and announce that they will make their home in California hereafter, principally because the climate is beneficial to Mr. Carlton's health. Mrs. Carlton returned to Ord from California Sunday to get ready for the sale, leaving her husband with relatives there.

—Dave Aubert, of Arcadia, underwent a major operation performed by Dr. C. J. Miller and Dr. J. N. Round at the Ord hospital Tuesday.

THE WEATHER

Fair tonight and Thursday; mild temperatures to continue through Thursday.

No Vote April 4th By Ord, Burwell, On Electric Question

Council Decides Monday Eve a 'Straw Vote' Would Only Confuse the Issue.

By a 3 to 2 vote, with Mayor M. B. Cummins casting the deciding ballot, the Ord city council decided Monday evening not to submit to a vote of the people the question of staying off or going back on the North Loup district's transmission line. The village board at Burwell took similar action Tuesday.

Two weeks ago Ord and Burwell decided to submit the question to a vote, unless negotiations with the district reached a satisfactory solution before election. Monday evening it was pointed out that a vote, now would only be a "straw vote" and would not have any legal bearing. It would serve only to confuse the issue, a majority of the Ord council present thought. Dvorak and Serhsen were absent, the members voting being McGinnis, Rohla, Biemond and Johnson.

The vote on putting the question on the ballot April 4th was 2 to 2 on the first secret ballot. The mayor directed councilmen to vote again, which they did with the result remaining 2 and 2. Mayor Cummins then stated that he would vote against submitting the question to the electorate.

In a written statement submitted to the Quiz for publication this morning Mayor Cummins says:

"There will be no vote on the power question in the city election as it would not be official at this time and might interfere with negotiations. There is a temporary agreement under consideration at this time which has been approved by the Burwell power committee, by Mayor Becker of Burwell and by myself, but not by the Ord power committee. They are considering this agreement but have not yet given their official opinion.

"The only bad thing about this proposed agreement is that it will not settle anything permanently. My judgment is, that if the district has a contract with Ord and Burwell that is valid they should go into court and prove it. The purported contract is only a handicap to negotiations as things are now.

"The president of the district should be able to secure from the PWA a temporary modification of this contract, so that farmers who want water can get it. I have been informed also that there are water bills outstanding of several hundred dollars from last year ready to be paid, which might help the district get irrigation started while we get this trouble settled.

"Both sides of this controversy have many arguments that are just. If they are legal points they must be settled in a legal manner, and if mistakes were made by both parties at the start and legal action is required to correct them it might take a year or possibly two. If a temporary agreement could be arranged and operations proceed on this basis until the legal controversy is settled the people of the whole district would benefit.

"Let's have a little cooperation in these problems by all parties concerned as we go along. Let's not just sit down and let the matter be deadlocked."

So far as proposals made by the Ord and Burwell councils last week are concerned, there apparently is no chance of an agreement being reached although the North Loup district is still studying them. More hope is held regarding a new proposal drafted at Burwell this week, mentioned in another column on this page.

Will Open Shoe Shop Here. John Goka, of Leavenworth, Kas., returned to his home Wednesday morning after visiting since Sunday with the Frank Swank family. He rented the Brickner building on M street while here, and plans to move to Ord in about ten days and open a shoe repair shop.

TO ENRICH NEBRASKA.

One billion dollars is spent annually in the United States on outdoor recreation, according to government figures.

Michigan's business from hunting, fishing, camping and tourists is second in volume only to the automotive industry. In Wisconsin, Minnesota, Pennsylvania, and other northern states, hundreds of thousands are being spent annually on resources that yield millions in dividends.

The South is embarked on an extensive campaign to develop its wildlife resources as means of taking up the economic slack.

No state has greater natural advantages than Nebraska. More miles of rivers, chains of lakes that once teemed with game fish, clouds of wildfowl produced annually in our sand hills "duck factories," fur resources yielding a fortune each year. Pheasant country as good as any in the Dakotas, where tens of thousands of birds are annually shot by thousands of out-of-state hunters all of them bringing money into the rural communities.

When the Kingsley dam is completed at Ogallala, a new lake 27 miles long and 5 miles wide, will be created, with enormous possibilities for recreational development.

Nebraska is the heir to a great business. But like any business it must be managed. Stock must be kept up. Customers attracted.

One of the first ways to improve our business is to take advantage of the Pittman-Robertson act, putting back into the state Federal funds for wildlife restoration. These funds are from the excise tax on sporting arms and ammunition. The Pittman-Robertson act was put through by the National Wildlife Federation, of which the Nebraska Wildlife Federation is an active affiliate. The money belongs to Nebraska!

But—the enabling act now before the legislature MUST be passed to permit Nebraska to draw 75 cents for each 25 cents the state will put up for wildlife.

This is for RESTORATION. For land-use. For BRINGING BACK our outdoor resources.

Nebraska trails far behind the average state in the absurdly low sum charged for a hunting and fishing permit. Legislation to raise the price of this permit from $1.00 to $1.50 is now pending. With the enabling act, it paves the way for Nebraska to receive an annual income from the federal government to be spent altogether in the state for improvements that benefit the state and become the property of the state.

Other progressive legislation, endorsed by the Nebraska Wildlife Federation, is before the legislature.

Short-sightedness and backward thinking cannot be permitted to stand in the way of action that will enable our state to take full advantages of rich opportunities now going to waste.

THAT BOUNDARY GUARANTEED.

Only a few short months ago the representatives of four great European nations met at Munich and signed a pact, by the terms of which each agreed to respect the territorial boundaries of the smaller countries of Europe. Prime Minister Chamberlain of England apparently believed that aggression in Central Europe was at an end.

Today we find that the agreement at Munich was merely another scrap of paper, made to be torn up. It further appears that England and France do not intend to do anything about it. That Italy would do nothing was of course a foregone conclusion. Chamberlain is hiding behind the flimsy statement that the fall of Czechoslovakia came from within.

In a way, it is actually comical to see the way in which Hitler has been able to twist the greatest minds of the European Democracies to his way of thinking. There is no question that the original threat to march the German armies into Sudean land was a colossal bluff, but it worked. Hitler has been able to act at once, since he does not have to consult the personal wishes of the German people.

His propagandists inflamed the minds of the Slovaks against the Czechs, and they rebelled, thus giving Hitler an opportunity to insist that they needed his help. He insisted that the Slovaks be permitted to set up their own government, and this left Bohemia and Moravia completely surrounded by Nazi influence.

He pointed out this condition to the former president of Czechoslovakia, showing him the futility of resistance, and the capital cities of the two countries were occupied without a blow being struck. To the original area of Germany, 130,956 square miles, he has added Austria, 32,377 square miles, and Czechoslovakia 54,196 square miles, a total area 10,000 square miles larger than the state of Nebraska.

True, he has stated that he is merely forming a protectorate over these countries, but he also stated that he would keep his armies out of the borders of Czechoslovakia. The only thing certain about Hitler, if one may judge by the past year, is that no dependence whatever can be placed upon his word. His propagandists prepare the minds of the people, and when the time is ripe, he acts with lightning speed.

If France and England choose to ignore conditions in Europe, we of America should feel no undue interest. It is not our problem. Some time soon, and possibly when it is too late, the other countries of Europe will awaken to the fact that they should have acted before Hitler developed Central Europe into a vast empire.

When his territorial aspirations to the east have been satisfied, or when Russia warns him to come no farther, is there any reason to suppose that he will respect the boundaries of Holland, Denmark, Switzerland or even France? The same Nazi propaganda is being spread in these border lands, and it is easy to find an excuse to cross the line.

A treaty is a treaty only so long as both parties to it feel themselves bound by its provisions. To date it has been all one-sided. So far the Nazi leader has found the going easy, and his conquests have been made merely by a show of armed force, and without any actual fighting. The time will come when he will be met with force, when that time comes we will learn whether he is a great general, or merely a bluffer.

How does Hitler do it? The answer is simple. He plays upon that love of the homeland inherent in the heart of every person of German blood even to the third and fourth generation. We have them in the United States, in Nebraska, and even in Valley County, and the Quiz will doubtless receive letters from some of them in regard to this article, which has stated the facts, as admitted by Hitler himself.

++ Something Different ++

Such a queer world we live in. We say we hate war and we join peace organizations.

Yet... we tell our little boys to stand straight, like a soldier, or to be brave, don't cry, be a little soldier. We buy him guns, caps, teach him to fight. Either boxing, wrestling, duelling... in some form. We teach him it is fine to be able to lick the other guy. Now don't we?

And... we detest the way Japan has treated China. It makes Ma pretty mad to find only "made in Japan" toys when she wants to buy something for the baby. Or to find that tiny little gimcrack she was about to purchase for her what-not.

And... we didn't like what Mussolini did to Ethiopia, but we didn't worry much... they were only niggers.

We got more riled up when Mr. Hitler started grabbing at all the little nations near him, and our sympathies as well as our deepest indignation was involved when little Czech-land was gobbled bodily and against her will.

In place of hollering "We want peace at any price. We don't want to go to war" the American people as a whole, I believe, began to get red in the face and start to growl through gritted teeth. "Those... !!!?(-), that's terrible. We ought to do something! Look what Hitler is doing! Let's do something to stop him!"

Well, what side of the fence are we on? I can't tell.

And I'm like all the rest. I don't want us to go to war, yet I am highly offended at staying neutral while so many national crimes are committed. And I think there must be approaching a day of punishment for the offenders. And I fear the longer the war is put off, the bigger, richer and more powerful we are permitting our next foe to grow.

Men who fought in the last war swear they would not go to fight again. Or at least, not unless our country is invaded.

But I doubt that. Some way, those ex-soldiers glory too much in their past adventures... for many of them, it was the only big excitement they will ever have. Before and after the war, day after monotonous day of dreary work stretches, unperpetuated by anything more thrilling than a couple of days of fishing.

In spite of the unwelcome discipline, the tiresome food, Going to War remains throughout their lives the Big Thrill they had, their big moment, their crusade, their glory, and they talk and live over and over this epic. I think they were glad to go to war and they are glad all their lives that they went. Don't you?

I do not think the nature of man can be changed in a day or in ten years. For hundreds of years we have learned that he who survives is the toughest, the strongest, the best fighter. And how can we forget our strength and all the associated words we were taught go with it, such as courage, bravery, heroism, patriotism? All our lives we are taught it is a fine thing to wage an honest fight, in business, everywhere. I believe it would take about as many hundred years to unlearn these lessons as it took to learn them.

Anyway, do we want to unlearn these lessons? I am confused, aren't you?

L. B. Fenner of Burwell was telling a joke played on him by the late Jim Dahlman and other friends as they were going by train from western Nebraska to Omaha or Lincoln when Dahlman was sheriff of Dawes county, Fenner the county superintendent.

Fenner was hungry and he bragged to the others about all the good food he was going to order and eat when the train stopped at Seneca. He said so much about it that the other fellows decided to trick him. So they entered the cafe and told the waitresses Dahlman had a crazy man in his custody who wanted to order everything on the menu, whom he was taking to the state hospital.

"This fellow is on a strict diet, and can only eat bread and milk," the waitresses were told.

Into the cafe bounced young Fenner, ordering nearly everything in the place to be prepared and served to him. But he got only bread and milk, and the more he raved and the wilder he acted, the more knowing the looks exchanged by the restaurant manager and his helpers. And bread and milk was all that Mr. Fenner got to eat, too.

My Own Column By H. D. Leggett

Tom Jefferson or Dan Boone or some other guy back east and long ago, said something about our all being created equal. That's all bosh. We are not all created equal either physically, mentally, financially, temperamentally or any other way. It might be a good thing if we were and it might not. Ambition is one of the greatest factors in success. It, with hard work makes up for a lot of lack of brilliant mentality when it comes to making a success, whether it be in business, getting an education or what have you.

There are only a few men or women created with the ability to be a great artist or musician. Only a few men are created with the personality, magnetism, physique, voice and physical bearing, coupled with the ability to get the necessary education to be a great preacher or orator. We lack, in this country at this time, even with a hundred and twenty odd million people, a great political leader, like George Washington or Abe Lincoln. And then talk about all being created equal. Necessarily ninety per cent or more of the people must always remain laborers.

Not over one out of a million was created with the ability to go ahead and make for himself a million dollars. Half a dozen or so out of a hundred million, have, under favorable conditions, been able to gather together several or many millions. Considerably less than 25 per cent of the people are able to get and keep enough of this world's goods to see them through their lives, and countless thousands die many years short of what they might live, were it not for the worry because they cannot earn and keep a competence.

Probably the greatest mistake that is being made by parents is in trying to fit their children, by education, for position or business or profession, which they are not mentally capable of being successful at, at the same time spoiling them for the niche in life that they are capable of filling and being happy in and in which they could hope to make a living and a competence.

With a large share of the business institutions of the country doing business at a loss, or without making a profit, the announcement by Senator Vandenberg of Michigan that he will move to see that the social security law is changed during this session of congress so that the present schedule is continued after next January 1, instead of doubling, as provided for, as the law now stands, will be good news to both employers and employees. There are now many millions of dollars in this fund in Washington or would be if the present administration had not used it to pay other government expenses, putting I. O. U.'s in the vault in place of the cash. The present rate of 1 per cent, paid by both employer and employee, on all salaries each week, is said to be ample for any needs that are ever likely to be made upon it for the purposes it was levied, yet the law provides that the rate be 2 per cent beginning next January, and 3 per cent a couple of years later, manifestly a burden that the public should not have to bear.

This week I am mailing cards to those subscribers whose subscriptions expire in April and who payed, the last time, $2 for a full year, like I told you a couple of weeks ago, notices will not be sent to those who paid $1 or 50c. They must watch their name and date on the paper and renew before the time is out to insure their paper continuing.

I want to impress on you one fact. In spite of the fact that business is terrible and that this business is not making money, but los-

A FEW THINGS TO THINK ABOUT! Written by GEORGE GOWEN

More Trouble. Along with the irrigation trouble the farmers are now faced with another drop in the cream price. This drop was in accordance and in conjunction with the fact that the government stopped buying butter, the one thing that has kept the price pegged as high as it was.

From the Produce Packer I learned that the Department of Agriculture announced that there is now held a surplus of 114 million pounds of butter in the U. S. This butter is partly held by the Federal Surplus Commodity Corporation and partly by the FSCC and partly by state relief agencies. Comparing with a year ago, in 35 cities there was stored in March 1938, 14 million against $4 million today.

As a result of a perusal of these figures, Art Hutchins in the cheese factory offered to wage (he didn't say how much) that if the government did not go to buying butter again, before the summer was over the price of butterfat would drop to ten cents.

Annual Frazer has it doped out that the number of pounds of butter held in surplus is about one pound to every citizen in the U. S. and if each person would eat one more pound in one week, the surplus would be wiped out and no one would be hurt very badly.

It must be said that farmers are ingenious creatures for I heard how one saved his neck in his dairy department that he said he was losing him money. He sold his milk to the cheese factory but the price there too was not so good, not enough so that he had any money left for his own eating after he had paid for the eats of the cows.

Before the drop he was hiring his milk hauled by the trucker but he figured with the number of cans he had he would get 50c more a day by hauling it himself and it only cost 25c for gas to make the trip. That way he was profiting by hauling his own milk although he lost on the actual milking part. He was very tickled over his profit.

I myself still think that if there in Nebraska there are six to ten pounds consumed to one of butter, there would be more good effect fromances of buying and storing the surpluses.

I'll Stay Out. I have been asked and hinted at to write a hot piece for or against the irrigation ruckus now so much in the air over the country. True enough I have my opinions and for the side other than which I favor I have little use, but after several years of trying to write a column that the folks will read and that the bosses will ante for, I have come to the conclusion that it is best for me to stay out of such controversial subjects.

The last one I jumped into, and the one I learned a few lessons on, was in regard to the trial of Dr. Day. I still feel the same as I did then, but I surely got panned a plenty for that piece. The next week was Pop Corn Days and all my friends from Ord and everywhere else it seemed, made it a point on those days to get me cornered and tell me a thing or two. The celebration was not so happy for me. I still assume a great deal of the credit for the final disposition of that case, but it is not that kind of credit I want. I want bank credits.

ing money, so far we have kept the paper up to its high standard, all the news of the county, the news of the Washington letter, all the other departments. But you appreciate this effort on my part. I see that your renewal is in our hands before April 15, when many papers expire. Don't blame us if you don't get the paper after your time is out. We must have the money if we send the paper.

Don't misunderstand me about this subscription matter. I will still accept $1 for 6 months or even 50c for 3 months but you have to watch your expiration, marked plainly on the paper where your name is printed, and attend to renewing. No notice will be sent, except to those who pay a full year in advance at a time.

And I must remind you again that I like to send in your daily paper subscriptions for any of the daily papers. If they have a club offers I can get them just the same as though you sent it direct or gave it to some road man, probably a stranger to you. I make a small commission which you couldn't get in any event. I wouldn't keep speaking about this matter, but I have always thought that anything worth having was worth asking for and I know you would just as soon let me have this business if you would happen to think of it.

Just as an explanation, and for the benefit of those subscribers who take the paper regularly, year after year, pay one dollar at a time by check; I have to pay the bank a 3c collection charge on every one of them. If those who can do so would pay a year at a time or else include exchange, I would appreciate it. And to those who send Credit Association checks, I always have to pay 3c when the check is deposited and usually there is a follow-up charge of 5c. Now folks, just stop and think of this matter and see what it does to me. You are safe in sending one dollar bills and there is no exchange charge.

More Trouble I'll Stay Out One in a Thousand Short Shavings

More than this, when subjects are discussed as universally as this irrigation ruckus is, it is doubtful if I can dig up anything new about it. I enjoy most to get a scoop or advanced information of some event, or some incident that is in the nature of a feature article. Bragging just a little I felt pretty smart that I beat the world last week in telling of the new community building at N. L. that the city moguls are confident is in the offing.

At the junior high operetta in Scotia Friday night, Janice Nelson stood out head and shoulders above all the rest as a singer in that group. It was thought by everyone I saw that she would stand out as a good singer in any group.

Singing soprano she took the lead part, reminding one of a bird on top of a tree singing for all she is worth to tell the world that spring is here. It has been said among the students that this girl is the teacher's pet, but it is easy to see why she would be; one who carries the arias like she does.

Short Shavings. People of North Loup cannot understand why all the complaint in regard to the electric service. For a number of years they have been on the same high line that the City of Ord was and they (in N. L.) lived through it not thinking but what it was all part of the game.

In regard to hard times, at the Scotia school last week during the inter-county declamatory contest, I dropped by to take my daughter home, and the school house was surrounded by cars and I did not see a one but what was a relatively new one. That did not look like hard times or ten years of consecutive crop failure.

Joe Knezacek told me in regard to the irrigation row, "It's just another one of those things."

Ken Peterson said in regard to "I'm not talking. I truck for Burwell, Elyria, Ord and N. L. men and I'm not looking for trouble."

I repeat if this deal is not settled before long there will be one man, if not more, who will break down under the strain, and that one man will be Roy Hudson. A person can sit up nights until morning several times a week, wrangling over problems so close to one's heart as this, and then study and work all day too, only about so long.

One man said he suspected that very thing is what is the hopes of some people.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

Reviewed by CARTER FIELD

If the promised economy drive in congress matures, it might start a business revival... Increased taxes sure to be considered by congress... Mounting expenditures and decreasing receipts continues a problem... Why Britain wanted Franco to win in Spain is explained.

WASHINGTON.—If that promised economy drive in congress that Sen. Pat Harrison, chairman of the senate finance committee, is predicting matures, it very conceivably might start the business revival that President Roosevelt and Secretary of Commerce Harry Hopkins have been trying to start.

The trouble about the olive branches that Roosevelt and Hopkins have been brandishing is that apparently they have not been 100 percent convincing to the investing public. Let us consider merely the electric industry and see how the thing works out.

The electric industry, it so happens, is the one on which Sen. Harrison both the President and Hopkins are counting most. It was to get the wheels turning in this particular line that the surprise settlements were made by TVA, with first Chattanooga and then Memphis. The object was to start private utility spending— which piled up $4,000,000,000 of needed investment that Chairman W. O. Douglas, of S. E. C., has been harping on in conversations with the President and Hopkins.

But look what was going on even while the olive branches were being waved, even while several million dollars more was agreed upon than had been paid the Commonwealth and Southern and the Electric Bond & Share if the original Liffenthal-Wilhoite-Rankin ideas had been carried out.

First every ounce of administrative pressure possible was exerted to force the appropriation of more money by congress not only to complete the Gilbertville dam, already started, but the Watts Bar dam as well. Second, the report of Chief Engineer Panter, of the special congressional committee which has been investigating TVA, was suppressed during these maneuvers to get the full amount of TVA appropriations desired.

Investigation Obviously Intended as a Whitewash. No attention was paid to this last by the daily newspapers which long since lost interest in an investigation so obviously intended to be nothing but a whitewash. But surely no one directing this state-gem thought that the private utilities would not know about it—especially when the active Republican members of the committee knew that the report had been submitted, that it was in the hands of Vic Donahy, chairman of the committee, and that a copy of it was in the hands of Francis Biddle, counsel in chief on the whitewashing job, who had been rewarded by the White House with a federal judgeship!

The really perplexing part of all this is that critics of TVA, knowing the opinion of Engineer Tom Panter given to the committee publicly by Arthur E. Morgan, deposed chairman of TVA in protest against Panter's appointment, do not think for a moment that the Panter report will be anything but favorable to TVA. They suspect that there may be some little point in the report, however, on which administration leaders figured TVA critics might be able to make capital. And when it is considered that the change of half a dozen votes in the house would have stopped the construction of Watts Bar dam the point might really have been very important.

Two things, if they could be definitely promised with assurance that the promises would be kept, would beyond the slightest doubt cause a construction spree by the electric industry, which might easily produce the wave of prosperity for which Roosevelt and Hopkins hope. One would be that the government would construct no more hydro-electric projects. The other would be that the government would make no more free grants and cheap interest loans for construction of local electric systems. In short, a promise of no more subsidized government competition.

Question of Tax Boosts Certain to Be Considered. Despite all the promises about no tax increases there is every likelihood to be considerable serious discussion of tax boosts before the present session congress adjourns. Anything else will run the government into a situation which no administration likes to face during a presidential campaign year, which of course is what next year will be.

First let's look at the attitude of congress. The house, one day when a lot of Democrats were not there, voted to cut some $17,000,000 out of the TVA appropriation. The senate restored the cuts. The house conference yielded to the senate, and the house then voted 184 to 174 to spend the money. Close, yes, but plenty.

Take another sample, the silver policy. Administration critics attack it as perhaps the most foolish thing the government is doing, from an economic standpoint—though some experts contend nothing compares with what the government has done about cotton. The silver policy is divided in two parts, paying a subsidy of more than 20 cents an ounce on all silver mined inside the United States, and buying silver from foreign countries.

Minority members a few days ago forced a vote on an amendment to the bill in the house, which would have eliminated the buying of silver from abroad, but would have left the domestic subsidy. But even this failed. The vote was 155 to 185 against the proposed economy.

While Expenditures Mounted Receipts Materially Dropped. Now let's take a look at the treasury situation, in view of this evident prospect that congress is not going to reduce expenditures. The latest figures available as this is written are for the fiscal year, which began July 1, last, up to the end of the day on February 27. Expenses for this year—referring to this period and not the full year of course—were $5,877,219,549 as compared with $4,764,910,658 for the corresponding period of last year. Receipts, however, were $3,645,500,234 for this year, and $3,844,461,033 for last year. So that while expenditures mounted by more than $1,110,000,000 receipts fell off by about $200,000,000.

So that for practically two-thirds of the fiscal year we are now passing through the treasury is about $1,300,000,000 worse off than for the comparable period of the last fiscal year!

As this is reflected in debt and forebushadows what is going to happen to this government along that line, it might be of interest to say that figures for the same day—the close of business on February 27 of this year—show that the public debt of Uncle Sam was $39,850,479,573.22. This had risen from $37,631,168,041.19 on February 27, 1938. Shows Why Britain Wanted Franco to Win in Spain.

The answer to why the British foreign office has consistently wanted Franco to win in Spain, despite the fact that obviously such a victory would increase not only the power but the prestige of Italy and Germany, is very clear, once stated, whether one agrees with the logic dictating it or not. Indeed the fact that it is the Berlin-Rome axis that keeps British statesmen awake at night—a fact which on the surface would seem to create a desire in Downing street for a crushing defeat of Franco—is an integral part of the reason for wanting Franco to win.

The logic behind this is also the logic which has caused President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Cordell Hull to be deaf to the pleas of the liberals in this country. And believe it or not, hatred of communism here and fear of the bear that walks like a man in England has precisely nothing to do with it!

Simply stated, this mystifying logic revolves around the route from England to India and the East via the Mediterranean sea. If you will take a good look at any fair scaled map of the Mediterranean, you will see why. Look at the narrow passage between the tip of Sicily and the projecting point of Tunisia, in North Africa. Every ship going from England to India, East Africa or the Far East must traverse that narrow strait, or else the still smaller passage between Sicily and the mainland of Italy.

Before the days of the World war this did not seem important. The Italians might speak of the Mediterranean as Mare Nostrum, but the British controlled both entrances, Gibraltar and the Suez Canal. But with the World war came the realization of the military importance of the submarine and the airplane, and of floating mine fields. Prior to that time the British navy could assure control of the surface of the sea, and therefore of free passage for her merchant vessels and those of any other nation to which she might choose to grant passage.

So Great Britain Had To Be Friendly With Italy. So the British made up their minds, that, come what may, they would simply have to be friendly with Italy. Little as they might like the new attitude in that country, the conquest of Ethiopia, obvious aspirations in Africa which threatened British interests in that continent, they figured they would have to put up with it.

If you will consider the strategic location of the little Italian island of Pantelleria, just beyond the narrow passage between Sicily and Tunisia, and figure in terms of submarines, airplanes and mines, you will begin to wonder if maybe the British are not right after all.

Reconciled to this, the British have turned their energies, in the last few years, to cultivating Franco. They have convinced themselves, and the Washington administration, that they have done a good job at this; that with the coming of peace Spain would find that England, not Italy, is the market for its exports.

A Minor Prophet. President told the newspaper men that he was a minor, not a major, prophet. Judging by his campaign speeches in 1932 and 1936, he is about half right.—Albion Weekly News.

QUIZ FORUM

No PWA Help Likely, Is Hudson's Belief.

Ord Quiz
Ord, Nebr.

To the Editor of the Quiz:
The writer wishes to compliment you on your issue of March 8th in connection with your presentation of matters pertaining to the North Loup River Public Power and Irrigation district. Your treatment of the various topics is comprehensive and when one considers the complicated and controversial nature of the phases under consideration, it can be readily seen that your problem of presenting the matters to the public is quite difficult to say the least.

In quoting the writer and the inferences drawn from a part of his statements, your reporter stated:
"President Hudson stated that income from power should net the district about $1,000 per month. The PWA, he said, would go a long way toward helping the district over the next two or three critical years if everybody concerned had done as they agreed from the start. Some of the other districts in Nebraska are technically in default but the PWA is keeping them going without a receivership because everybody concerned in them is trying as hard as possible to work out of the trouble. He implied that PWA might, if Ord and Burwell went back on the highline, loan money to the district for operation until revenues catch up with expenses."

Because of the fact that others may have also drawn the conclusion that "he implied that PWA might, if Ord and Burwell went back on the highline, loan money to the district for operation until revenues catch up with expenses", it is desired that this particular point be clarified. The writer did not intend to convey to his listeners the thought or inference that PWA would give financial assistance to the North Loup district in operating its system. The matter of financial assistance for operation has been stated so many times that a repetition should not be necessary. Chief Project Engineer Wingfield's statement released for publication on February 7th and printed in your paper sets out clearly the attitude of PWA on this subject and should be reviewed by anyone who may not be clear on the matter.

Just briefly and for the information of those who might be interested, the matter of unexpended funds allotted to the district should be clarified. The construction work on our project was completed within the funds allotted by PWA but everyone should bear in mind the fact that there are two lawsuits pending in federal court against the district and some right-of-way condemnation appeals in district court and until these are disposed of, the status of unexpended funds cannot be determined. The final audit of the district finances, with the exception of the lawsuits pending, should be concluded soon and the amount of the unexpended part of the allotment determined. Since court procedure in the cases involved will take considerable time, possibly a year or more, it can be readily seen that an early determination of the exact financial situation is very unlikely. Should you care for a detailed statement of the manner in which PWA funds must be handled, the writer will be pleased to prepare an article setting out the requirements and procedures involved.

ROY W. HUDSON.

Always Something Different to Tempt Jaded Appetites

No, we haven't forgotten that the best of meat, sold at the Lowest of Prices, will always form the backbone of a meat market business. Our stock of staple meats is still the largest in the whole Loup Valley region.

Knowing how difficult housewives find it to serve new and pleasing menus with the "same old meats" we are always trying to find "something different." That's why we added a Cheese Department with dozens of different kinds of Imported and Domestic Cheeses. That's why we get frequent shipments of Spring Lamb, Brains, Liver, Sweetbreads and other things just a little "out of the ordinary." That's why our line of fish and seafoods is so complete; why we added a stock of fancy groceries and condiments; why we sell milk, cottage cheese, cream, butter, bread and pastries.

Trade with a market that tries to please you.

On March 22, 1889, Fanny Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Johnson, and George H. Sample, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Sample, all of Davis Creek, drove with a team and lumber wagon the six miles to the home of J. P. Braden, Yale township justice of the peace, and were married. Mrs. Sample's dress was blue with pearl grey silk panels and a hoop skirt. Mrs. J. P. Braden and J. A. Braden were the only witnesses and J. A. Braden still lives on the same place. interest is in Scottsbluff and if he can protect his own community he might be justified in not putting up a serious fight to look after the interests of other parts of the state. We know of nothing more Un-Nebraskan than this almighty effort being waged by the hydro lobby to prevent the people of the state from voting on the various schemes and deals which the hydro managers have in mind. The security of self-government lies in the watchfulness of its citizens, in keeping with this inevitable truth it is incumbent upon every citizen to voice his sentiments with regards to these and other matters which might vitally affect Nebraska and the welfare of her people. Write to your state representative at Lincoln urging him to exercise due diligence in voting upon bills now before the legislature which demand that the people have control over the question of rates and representation in utilizing Nebraska's resources.

Christensen Is Valley County's Big Breeder of Chester Whites

They Get Shelled Corn from Wagon

In the photo above is seen Alfred Christensen shoveling shelled corn to part of his big herd of Chester White swine (old about in the story below. Mr. Christensen has about 150 head of pigs the size of those shown in this picture. At left is seen the Ohio Improved Chester White sow that Christensen sent back to Skoda, Illinois and bought three years ago. Most of his hogs now carry the O. I. C. strain.

Probably the biggest breeder of Chester White hogs in Valley County right now is Alfred Christensen, who lives on a 360-acre farm in Riverdale community and, with the help of a hired man, farms another 320 acres nearby. The home farm is owned by Roy Hudson and the Christensens have lived there nine years.

Mr. Christensen has been interested in Chester Whites for a little longer than that, but in the past nine years while many farmers have got out of the hog business entirely he has built up a splendid herd.

He has 147 fall pigs on feed, weighing about 160 pounds each at present. And he has 19 brood sows some of which farrowed early and brought in litters of 8 to 13 pigs, and others of which are due to farrow in the next week or ten days. Mr. Christensen believes firmly in having his sows farrow early.

Last fall he had even more brood sows than now, 25 to be exact. The market for gilts has been very good this winter, in fact for a longer period than that. In the past year he hasn't sold a single gilt on the market—all have gone to farmers and 4-H club boys wanting to get into the hog business. Most of the gilts brought $30 to $35; a little more than that for the best ones.

Three years ago Mr. Christensen sent back to Skoda, Ill., and purchased a brood sow of the Ohio Improved Chester White strain, which is a more solid, blockier type than the old "rainbow" type of Chester Whites. Most of the Christensen Chester Whites are now the O. I. C. strain.

All the Christensen hogs are purebreds and most of them are registered. All are eligible to register.

Going on the show circuit for the first time last fall, Mr. Christensen won money on his Chester Whites—top money in most cases—at 5 of the 6 county fairs where he showed. At the sixth, the Buffalo county fair, he won ribbons but no money, as the fair had a rule against paying cash prizes to out-of-county exhibitors.

Asked what he thought of the immediate future of the hog business would be, Mr. Christensen replied that he expected to cut down the number of brood sows he was keeping for fall farrow. "I'll keep about 8, maybe 10," he stated, indicating that so many farmers are going back into hogs that the price may be adversely affected.

Most of the acreage on the Christensen farm is hilly and yields only 8 to 10 bushels of poor dry season of 1938. But he has a good river bottom field that yielded 50 bushels per acre of high quality corn, which gave him plenty of feed for his big herd of Chester Whites.

When the country greens up just a little more, the Christensen pictures will offer a fascinating sight—hundreds of white hogs, of all sizes and ages, against a vivid green background. Chester Whites are showy hogs, there's no doubt of that, and they are good hogs, too; especially the comparatively new O. I. C. strain. Swine enthusiasts will get a lot of pleasure out of a visit to the neatly kept Christensen place, and they could travel all day and not find any better quality hogs, either.

BACK FORTY

By J. A. Kovanda

"Earning while learning" is one of the slogans of vocational agriculture students. Some of the projects completed by the boys recently show that they oftentimes attain this objective.

A drove of 52 pigs was fed and cared for last year by Lloyd Geweke. When sold they netted him a gain of $162.71 above expense.

Thirteen acres of Early Kato were planted, cultivated, and harvested by Charles Zlomke. He had $37.08 left after deducting all production costs, including labor.

A calf raised by Peter Petersen cleared him $23.04. It was grown out on oats and roughage feeds.

Robert Packer fed six shoefes. After subtracting his cash expenses, Robert had $16.93 remaining to pay for his work.

Eldon Turner fattened a steer, then butchered it and retailed the meat locally. A net profit of $27.57 was realized on this enterprise.

James Flynn kept accounts on two sows and litters. The porkers were marketed for a gain of $56.90.

Lloyd Vodchnal raised a dairy heifer. His inventory shows an increase of $34.10.

Calvin Ferris fed a beef calf, and sold it when he thought the market was right. It made him a profit of $13.13.

There have also been some projects on which the boys lost money. Those on corn and other crops have been the most disappointing. Such projects are of value only for experience. Livestock projects have generally been the most profitable during the last few years.

Notes From the VALLEY COUNTY FARM BUREAU

By C. C. Dale

Bindweed Control Survey.

Plans are now complete for a comprehensive bindweed survey in Valley county by precinct assessors in April. County Assessor Brox informed Agricultural Agent Dale this week. It will be the first time an attempt has ever been made to find out definitely the infested acreage here and throughout Nebraska and farmers are asked to cooperate with assessors in making the survey accurate.

Through the cooperation of A. E. Anderson, agricultural statistician, the 1939 state census of agriculture will contain a number of questions on bindweeds. Precinct assessors when making their April calls will secure the information from individual farmers.

Field bindweed is regarded as the most serious and destructive weed in Nebraska. Farmers, landowners and land investment agencies feel the ravages of this weed in reduced yields and land values.

Nebraska is now conducting a widespread educational survey to eradicate and control bindweed. In this campaign, the state department of agriculture is cooperating very closely with the Nebraska agricultural college extension service and county farm bureaus. Through the agricultural census, it is hoped that much needed information about bindweed control can be imparted to farmers and help to secure additional assistance to control the pest.

County Agricultural Agent Dale plans to meet with the precinct assessors at their annual county meeting on March 31, to explain the bindweed situation and methods of control. Thus, when farmers are visited by their precinct assessors, it is hoped that they will gladly supply the information about the bindweed on farms they operate. The survey will determine the amount of bindweed on each farm, on roads and along railroads. Bindweed eradication done in 1938 will also be listed along with that contemplated in 1939.

The survey is to develop more accurate information about the bindweed situation in Valley county and farmers are urged to cooperate with their assessors in making it accurate. The information collected will be kept confidential as to farms.

Beware "Hybrid" Oats.

Reports have been received in Valley county that there is now on the market a so-called "hybrid" oat. Farmers should beware of such seed if it is offered to them. The oat plant is self-fertilized and soon becomes fixed in type. The original hybrid vigor characteristic of hybrid corn is most evident in the first generation and has no practical value in oat production. Consequently, the term "hybrid oats" is misleading and is used principally as "bait" to influence farmers to buy seed.

From the U. S. Department of Agriculture come reports of marked activity this season in offering high-quality, plump, uniform, imported seed oats, often weighing 33 to 40 pounds to the bushel, under the name of "hybrid oats." This practice is doubly misleading because foreign varieties usually are unadapted to this country and yield poorly.

Eradicate That Bindweed.

The first growth of bindweed this spring will signal the start of renewed activity on the part of Valley county farmers to eradicate this costly weed pest.

North Side Market

Experimental work conducted by the Nebraska college of agriculture under the direction of L. S. Evans shows the first step should be to remove or destroy surplus trash and excess weed growth which might interfere with operation of tillage machinery. Then the land should be plowed to a depth of six inches, within two weeks after the bindweed starts growth in the spring.

From then on, infested land should be cultivated four inches deep at 10 to 12-day intervals during the first season. Evans recommends a cultivator equipped with duckfoot shovels, since use of discs, plows, one-ways and spring-tooth harrows has not generally proved successful. The shovels should be arranged so as to have a 3-inch overlap and should be kept sharp to insure cutting all plants at each operation.

Cultivation at two-week intervals during the second season until bindweeds are eradicated or until the few surviving plants may be destroyed by treating each plant with a tablespoonful of sodium chlorate is suggested. In most cases, two years cultivation will be sufficient—but in others, it may be necessary to continue cultivation into the third season.

During the process of eradication, the land should receive two deep cultivations to bring to the surface bindweed seeds that have been buried below the plow sole. This will encourage germination of the seeds so the seedlings can be destroyed easily by later cultivations. If the infested field is plowed each spring to a depth of 6 inches, this should be sufficient to bring the bindweed seeds to the surface.

LETTERS FROM QUIZ READERS

Mrs. Woolery Writes. Long Beach, Calif. 230 Lime Ave. Febr. 25, 1939

Dear Quiz Readers: Well after I left Ord, I promised my friends I would send a letter to the Quiz, and now its almost 2 years since we left Ord and I have not written. We are all well, having fine weather here now. Last month I took a trip to Las Vegas to visit Glen and Leona and Earl. Had a fine trip and visit with my children. I stayed 3 weeks and while there we had quite a snow. I never expected to see snow again.

That morning it snowed Glen got up and said, "Leona and mother, get up and see the pound, it is covered with snow." I just couldn't believe it, but got up and sure enough the ground was white. Earl is down in Las Vegas now cooking in a camp. He is getting to be quite a cook. They sent down 20 men from the mountains and the rest of them were snowed in up in the mountains, the most snow its been for a few years.

While I was at Glen's, a neighbor that works at the Boulder dam took all of us to the Boulder dam. It was worth the trip. We went 727 feet down. Sure something to see, and its going to take ten more years before it is complete. When you folks come out this way, you should by all means see the Boulder dam.

I left Marge home to do the housekeeping, which she did very well, but they were sure glad to see me back home.

Earl is taking a radio course, which he's doing good so far. So I hope some time soon it will bring him something in that line.

Well here's hoping my letter will be in print. Hoping this finds all well.

Yours truly,
Mrs. E. T. Woolery
P. S.: The ham and eggs are going strong.

IT HAPPENED IN ORD.

Remember when everything east of Will street, now 15th street, was known as the "Bloody Third"? Times have changed. Today there is but one beer parlor in the third ward, and only one in the first ward, while over in the second ward there are four beer parlors and two liquor stores.

Adam Dubas has been selling peanuts salted in the shell and how the salting is done is somewhat of a mystery to his customers. He has been telling them that the peanuts are grown on the sea shore and the salt water soaks into the peanuts and makes them salty. It is said that several high school girls believed him.

Ferdinand B. Wheeler of Burwell was in Ord one day last week and called at the Quiz office. After he had gone a certain young lady on the force asked, "Was that Senator Doyle?"

As is always done in such cases, a temporary door was hung for the front door of the new library building. Last week some kids were looking at it and one of them said, "I think they could have afforded a nicer door than that for a new library."

Big Eggs, Small Eggs, Freak Eggs Pour In... Quiz Considering a "Best Ham" Contest

Big eggs, small eggs and freak eggs—some of which are pictured above—continued to roll across the desk of the Quiz "egg reporter" during the past week until, surfeited with eggs alone, the Quiz publisher is almost in the notion of starting a "finest ham" contest.

In fact one lady, Mrs. Fritz Kuehl, when bringing in a big egg, intimated that the "big egg" contest was Hank Leggett's own idea of a "ham and egg" plan.

Biggest egg of the week, pictured in the center above, was brought in by Carl Oliver, laid by one of his White Leghorn hens. It measured 8 inches around the long way and 7 inches around the short way, and weighed 4 1/2 ounces. At the left, above, is a Rhode Island Red egg from Mrs. V. J. Vodehnal's flock measuring 8 1/4 x 6 1/4 inches and weighing 3 7/8 ounces. At the right is an egg from Warner Vergin's flock of 300 Lady Windsor strain White Leghorns that measures 8 3/8 x 6 1/2 inches and weighed 4 ounces. Mr. Vergin has had the Lady Windsor strain three years and says these hens are real layers, although he doesn't say that all their eggs weigh 4 ounces each.

Hi Rogers is considering a new plan to get bigger eggs from his flock of chickens. At the left, below, is an egg laid last week by one of his hens. He is thinking about clipping some of the "big egg" pictures from the Quiz and posting them in his hen coop, so his hens can get the idea of what some others are doing and perhaps do likewise. At the right below is a freak small egg laid by one of Dorothy Kirby's White Rock hens. Although the picture doesn't show its shape clearly, the egg was distinctly half moon in appearance.

Too many eggs were brought in to permit all of them being pictured this week but these are the largest, the smallest and the freakiest. To date Ivan Canady's New Hampshire Red egg, six 7/8 x 8 inches and weighing 4 1/2 ounces, is the biggest egg entered.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Nelson held a reception Sunday for Mr. and Mrs. Stone. Those to attend were Mr. and Mrs. N. C. Nelson, LaVern and Miss Gene Dahlin, Mr. and Mrs. Herb Nelson and son, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Nelson and family.

Geweke and Cram Head Water Users' Directors Chosen

Organization Made Permanent at Friday Eve Meeting; Plans Were Discussed.

Pursuant of a call by the temporary committee, water users of the North Loup Irrigation district met Friday evening at the Z. C. B. J. hall for the purpose of forming a permanent organization.

The committee had been selected for the purpose of drawing up a constitution and by-laws for the new organization. This had been done, and the result was read in full by secretary, C. C. Dale, and adopted by the meeting.

The by-laws provide for the formation of a board of nine men, consisting of a president, a vice-president, a secretary-treasurer, and six other members, two to be selected from the territories serviced by each of the three canals.

The committee selected the name of one man for each of the offices and gave the meeting the privilege of nominating any others they chose. For president the selection was P. E. Pocock and Archie Geweke was selected from the floor.

For the position of vice-president the name of J. E. Cram of Burwell was proposed, while W. T. Hather was nominated from the floor. The vote gave Cram 37 votes and Hather 26 votes, making Cram vice-president.

For directors on the Burwell-Sumter ditch the names of Will Sack, Harry Bresley, Leo Long and Frank Blaha were voted upon, resulting in the election of Bresley and Blaha. For directors on the Taylor-Ord ditch Wilbur Rogers, Glen Walker, Loren Butterfield and Ferd Butts were voted upon, the result being as follows: Rogers 15, Walker 15, Butterfield 16 and Butts 18.

The question of membership was determined by those who owned land under the ditch, or who farmed land under the ditch. The problem of dues was settled by making the regular dues one dollar per year per member, and no less than 45 members paid up at once, swamping the secretary with their contributions for a short time.

Following the election various problems in connection with the irrigation were brought up and discussed, but no further official action was taken. The president appointed Butterfield, Bresley and Pokraka as the membership committee, and dues can be paid in any of them or to Secretary Dale at the Farm Bureau.

Rotary-Sponsored Pig Club Has 45 Members

At the Rotary club meeting Monday evening Carl Dale, who has charge of the boys' and girls' pig club Rotarians are sponsoring, announced that 45 bred girls have already been purchased and turned over to members. He has five more sows to buy, he says, to carry out the club's original plan of financing the purchase of 50 sows.

Principal speaker Monday evening was Claude Davis, county supervisor of the Farm Security program, who gave a talk on the work of his department, which now has about 200 farm clients. Aim of the program is to keep clients on the farm and when other financing sources fail, provide them with enough livestock, feed and seed so they may become self-supporting.

Secretary George Gard read a communication from the Grand Island club, inviting Ord Rotarians to participate in the district conference being held there April 25 and 26. Two past presidents of Rotary International will be among the speakers, it was stated.

Burwell Boy Is Killed by Train

The communities of Burwell and Ord experienced a distinct shock when the daily papers Saturday contained a report of the death of Alvin C. Sorensen, 19, of Burwell, beneath a train at Cheyenne, Wyo., on March 24. In company with Bob Zalud and Ralph Liberski, also of Burwell, he was headed for California, hoping to secure employment, when he fell beneath the train and was killed.

As his father, Christian M. Sorensen, is a patient in the Veteran's Hospital in Lincoln, two members of the Burwell Legion post, Leo Demaree and Austin Anderson, went to Cheyenne to identify the body and bring it back to Burwell for burial.

Alvin C. Sorensen, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Sorensen, who live 9 miles east of Burwell, was born Feb. 23, 1920, at Elyria. He was a student in the Burwell high school four years, graduating in 1938.

Funeral services were held from Sacred Heart church in Burwell Monday at 9:30 a. m. in charge of Rev. T. C. Murray. The pallbearers were Homer Livermore, Billie Grunkemeyer, Stanley Owens, Joe Meyers, Francis Graves and Billie Beat, all former classmates. Snow Furnishes Needed Moisture

The first moisture of the spring came Monday afternoon in the form of a very wet snow. It started falling about 2:30 p. m., and continued steadily until about 9:00 p. m. Mr. Travis reports five inches of snowfall, with a moisture content of .48 of an inch. All farmers seen were well pleased with the snow, which they figure will do a great deal of good as it drifted very little and all the water should go into the ground as the snow melts.

About 10:00 Tuesday night snow started falling again, continuing all night and most of this morning. At least another 1-3rd inch of moisture is contained in this snow, it is estimated.

$320,796 Available If All Participate In 1939 ACP Plan

1,001 Farmers Already Have Said They Will Comply With Allotments.

Participation of all Valley county farmers in the 1938 agricultural conservation program would have meant payments for farmers of the county of $242,150.00, instead of the $124,921.00 they actually received, the county committee announced today.

An even larger amount, $320,760.00, is available if all farmers cooperate in 1939, figures compiled by the committee show.

"Considering what the money available in 1939 will mean to Valley county," County Chairman Chas. E. Veleba said on behalf of the committee, "we believe it is to the best interest of every business man and farmer in the county to see that there is 100 per cent participation in the farm program this year, so that the maximum amount may be earned."

"Vastly more important even than the immediate cash benefits are the fundamental objects of the program—to achieve an ever-normal granary that will assure the farmers of crops to sell every year at fair prices and to improve and maintain the fertility of the soil by balanced farming."

The total of 1939 payments available to the farmers of the county is almost double the farm real estate taxes in Valley county during the year.

The figure given, the committee points out, includes conservation, soil-building and price adjustment payments, but does not include the cash value of commodity loans, through which the farmers are given an opportunity to store their corn and wheat in the ever-normal granary at a loan rate well above current market prices.

The closing date for signing up in the 1939 program has not yet been set, but officials have indicated they will set the earliest possible date that is fair to farmers and owners.

"Of the first 1,123 farmers contacted regarding signature of forms showing intention to participate in 1939," Chairman Veleba said, "1,001 informed community committee-men that they intend to comply with their allotment this year."

Asked yesterday when he would appoint Dworak's successor, Mayor M. B. Cummins said it probably will not be done until after the election April 4th. Councilman Dworak did not announce his intention of leaving Ord until after the city caucuses were held, so it was too late to replace him by vote at the election this spring.

First Incubator Baby Dies When 9 Days Old

James Frank Paddock, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Paddock and whose picture appeared in last week's Quizz as Valley county's first "incubator baby," died Monday evening at the age of 9 days. He was born Saturday, March 18 and for the first five days of his life seemed to be making rapid progress in the incubator placed here by the Child Health and Maternal Welfare Bureau of the state. Then the baby ceased taking nourishment and in spite of tube feeding and other modern measures he passed away Monday evening, reports Dr. J. G. Kruml, who had charge of the case. The baby weighed 5 pounds at birth.

The funeral is being held in Frazier's chapel at 2:30 p. m. today, Rev. G. C. Roberson officiating, and burial will be in the Ord cemetery.

Joe S. Clark Gave Interesting Talk In Ord Thursday

No less than one hundred and fifty business men and farmer guests were in attendance at the special meeting of the Ord Chamber of Commerce Thursday evening. Hon. Joe S. Clark of Ravenna was the speaker of the evening. He was induced to come through the agency of W. W. Coe, who, at the instance of President J. A. Kovanda, introduced him with some well-chosen and timely remarks.

Mr. Clark is one of those gentlemen of the old school gifted by nature with the ability to weave words with pleasing to the ear and at the same time enlightening to the brain. He has a clear, well-modulated voice, and all his speech was heard and understood in all parts of the K. P. hall, where the meeting was held.

His subject, "Now and Then," was happily chosen. He used the terms in a broad sense, letting the "Now" refer to that period of 100 years which started 75 years ago and will extend a quarter of a century into the future and the "Then" to all the period of recorded history that preceded it.

In the beginning he paid a fine tribute to the newspaper men, whom he described as laboring unceasingly to bring the news of the day to the public, in spite of the fact that their efforts were not fully appreciated. He addressed all present as farmers, for, he said, "All Nebraskans are farmers, dirt or proxy."

Referring back to the period of the Civil war and the years of immigration that succeeded it he drew a picture of farming conditions of those days, showing how many of the so-called necessities of the farm today had not yet been invented, such as the riding plow, the drill, the mower and the binder.

The more modern ideas of electric lighting, telephone, radio and other conveniences were beyond the wildest dreams of the first settlers in Nebraska. He told of Daniel Webster opposing railroads, which he thought could never succeed; of how scientists opposed Fulton and his steamboat; how Chauncey M. Depew once refused Henry Ford a loan of $5,000, because the auto could never be a success.

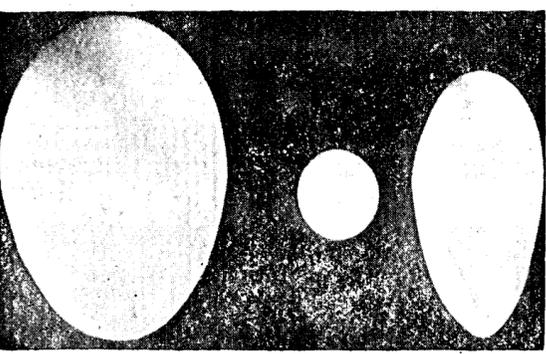

"At the beginning of 'Now,'" he said, "it took the settlers about nine months to travel across the continent. At the present time they cross in a week's travel in their own cars, four days by train or from sunup to sundown by airplane." Mr. Clark added, the Stars and Stripes will represent the politics of young man of "Now," who will be known as a hard man, a winner, but most of all, a safe bet.

According to Mr. Clark, Nebraska is a state unique, in that it has one and only one source of wealth, and that is agriculture. Every other state in the union has some other source of revenue, but in spite of this, Nebraska ranks 5th in per capita wealth, and incidentally, has the lowest percentage of illiteracy. He looked forward to the time when Nebraska will rank first in per capita wealth.

The Chamber of Commerce met in business session before the program, and listened to the report of Secretary J. A. Wiegardt on the trip that he took to Omaha to the meeting of secretaries of Chambers of Commerce. He touched upon the high lights of the meeting in a very interesting talk. At the close of the program coffee and doughnuts were served to all present.

R. I. Red Hen at Brannon Farm Lays 5 1-4 Oz. Egg

To a Rhode Island Red hen in R. U. Brannon's flock will go the honor of having laid Valley county's biggest egg this spring, unless a miracle happens and a larger egg is laid.

The big egg, pictured above, was laid Sunday and when weighed at the Quizz office Monday was officially entered at 5 1/4 ounces. It measures 7 1/4 inches around the short way and 9 inches the long way. Largest egg previously entered in the contest came from Ivan Canedy's flock of New Hampshire Reds. It weighed 4 1/2 ounces and measured 7 1/2 x 8 inches.

Mr. Brannon's egg, now on display in the Quizz office, is the largest hen's egg ever seen by any of the dozens of people who have inspected it. When it is remembered that to conform to grade for select eggs a weight of 22 ounces per dozen, or about 1 7/8 ounces per egg, is required, some idea of the size of this 5 1/4 ounce egg can be gained.

Smallest hen's egg of the year also is pictured above. Perfectly round and weighing only 1-2 ounce, it was laid by a White Rock hen in Joe Rohla's flock.

Pleasant Hill Reporter Makes Sunday Journal

In Oz Black's column in the Sunday State Journal the following item by the Quizz correspondent from Pleasant Hill was featured: "Mrs. Maynard Finley has 33 chickens that she hatched with hens which are two weeks old." The item appeared in the Quizz March 1. Of course it was meant that the chickens were two weeks old, but it doesn't read that way.

Dramatics One of Most Interesting Subjects Taught in Ord Hi

An interesting activity in which a number of Ord high school students take part each year is dramatics, which subject is taught by Miss Wilma Shavlik, who also is sponsor of the Thespian club of which dramatics students are members. Students learn the art of make-up by practicing on each other and on themselves, as the picture at upper left shows. At upper right is Eldon Mathauer being changed into an oriental by the deft fingers of Dick Koupal. In the lower left corner is shown a scene from the contest play, "The Blue Teapot," on which Ord last Saturday won an excellent rating in the district contest at Lexington, competing against Grand Island and Hastings. Members of the cast are, left to right, Marilyn Dale, Charles Keown, Lloyd Zikmund and Eleanor Wolfe. Marilyn Dale won a superior rating for her individual acting. A scene from another play, "The Swamp Spirit," is shown at lower right, members of this cast including Thelma Nielsen, Joy Loft, Capron Coe, Wayne Stewart and Alice Burson. The first period on Friday is devoted to practice and study by the dramatics class, and much volunteer work after regular school hours is done also. About once a month this class gives a program at convocation.

++ Something Different ++

We live in a country of free speech. Every man may express his ideas on any and all occasions, for that is supposed to be one of our privileges in this great land. Any of us may pop down a soap box and climb up to orate. We may hold forth on any subject we please. We may not be equal, as my honorable father-in-law stated was his conviction, but at least we can write to our congressman, we can write to our movie stars, we can tell the world what we do and do not like. However I don't believe many of us exercise this privilege. We may rave a bit to the lady next door, or to our own family, but we don't usually go so far as to actually try to tell our opinions where they might do some good. But we do have an exception in Ord, and I mean Mrs. Edward Kokes. This young woman has the courage of her convictions, and she believes in informing the people who should be concerned just what her convictions are. So every day she sends off postcards to the east, the west, the north, the south. She writes to a good many on a good variety of subjects. If Mrs. Kokes considers a radio program excellent, she tells the sponsor. If she dislikes a broadcast she is apt to write in about that. When she reads something she likes, she takes similar steps. "For," say Mrs. Kokes, "how are we to change the things we don't like or show approval for the things we do like, unless it is by giving them our opinions?" And she is right. I think more of us should stop to do this. But we don't take the moment of time, the bit of trouble, but how are we to change things to our liking unless we do this? Congressmen may be elected by us, but that does not make them omniscient. They do not necessarily know our wishes on all subjects because we once marked an "X" opposite a certain name on a ballot. Now I really believe I have a few good ideas. One day I thought

MEDICAL FACTS

Sponsored by 4-COUNTY MEDICAL SOCIETY

Every case of tuberculosis comes from some other case. For several hundreds of years tuberculosis under various names such as phthisis, consumption, scrofula, etc., was studied as a disease condition before the real cause was discovered. In 1865 the Frenchman, Villemin, showed that the disease could be transferred from one guinea pig to another. Twelve years later Tappanheimer gave the disease to dogs by causing them to breathe in the sputum from tuberculous persons. Though these men did not know the exact nature of the germ or virus and had never seen it, they thus proved that the disease is transmitted from one individual to another by way of the sputum. This made it apparent that consumptive or tuberculous people endangered those about them because the secretions and discharges from the lungs and bronchial tubes contained the cause of the disease, and when this was introduced by breathing or by any other means into the body of a healthy person it would produce the disease in him.

In 1882 Dr. Robert Koch of Germany published the account of his work on this cause of tuberculosis. He showed that there were always small rod-like or sometimes some branching germs in the diseased tissues or in the discharges from them. They could be seen and recognized by certain staining methods and could be grown in a test tube. Whenever these particular germs were introduced into certain animals they produced the disease known as tuberculosis, and if taken again from these animals and injected into others they would again produce the disease. Finally after passing through several animals, the germ could be again isolated and grown in a test tube containing certain kinds of food materials which these germs demanded for their growth.

The work done by Villemin, Tappanheimer and Koch took away much of the mystery of this disease. It became obvious that while the surroundings of a person, his habits of life, the climate, food, clothing, housing, etc., might possibly have some effect in preparing the person to catch this disease easily, he could never get it without first getting the germs from someone who already had it. It is like preparing a field for grain. No matter how well fertilized the ground may be, how well plowed and how well watered, no wheat or corn will grow there unless the seed is planted. The germs of tuberculosis are the seed. Without them there will be no tuberculosis.

The idea still prevails among people that there is some hereditary influence in this disease. A person will often remark when told he has tuberculosis, "But, doctor, there has never been any tuberculosis in my family." He implies that, therefore, there is no hereditary taint and the diagnosis must be wrong. This idea is a hold-over from the days before Koch when every conceivable influence, including heredity, was blamed as a possible cause of this disease.

The "family" idea has some bearing on the prevalence of the disease, however, but in an entirely different way. There is no more intimate contact than in families. If one in a household has tuberculosis, perhaps unknown to himself or the rest of the household, the intimacy of the family contacts makes the spread of the disease in this group of people very easy. This is especially true of those families in which there are young children. Children are not only more susceptible than grownups but they are by nature more careless in their habits. Anything goes into the mouth, they trade bites of candy or apples. They put

After about six seconds it passed out of the earth's atmosphere and faded away.

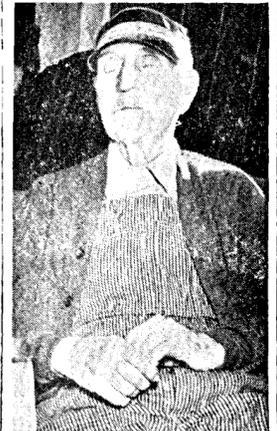

Frank Cadek Times Six Coyotes, Says They Are Playful as Puppies

About nine months ago Frank Cadek, who lives southwest of Burwell, dug out a den containing six tiny coyotes, estimated to be two weeks old. He has kept them penned up since that time, and they are almost as tame as puppies and as playful when in the pen, but can be turned out as they were when the photographer arrived, to show them off. In the photos, upper left, one coyote has a crow, and the others are chasing him. Upper right they are having a fine time playing in the snow, which a favorite sport with them. In the center is one showing fight, but it is really all in play. Lower left is a view of the group, called in for a meal. Lower right they are busy drinking milk. When the pictures were taken Cadek had about three bushels of dead crows on hand, which he had gotten from near Sargent, where they were dynamited.

Will Moon, a Butcher, Photographer, Musician, Chemist and Fisherman, Observes 81st Birthday

Will Moon, who looks to be about sixty-five years old, celebrated his eighty-first birthday recently. He is a jack-of-all-trades; a chemist, a photographer, a butcher, and a musician. He also was an expert fisherman, as his father was before him, and before the time of conservation laws fished for the market. Because of falling eyesight he rarely fishes nowadays. Mr. Moon was born in Richmond, Ill. While in Illinois, he studied chemistry under a doctor in Chicago. There were few colleges in those days. He came to Valley county in 1879 and has been here ever since. He was the first person ever to kill a beef, or take a photograph in Valley county. The first pictures he took were of cowboys. Three years ago he stopped doing photography work when he became blind.

WILL MOON. On Nov. 19, 1891, Mr. Moon married Lucy Craig, who came to Valley county from Michigan when she was six years old. For the past 56 years he has lived in the eastern part of Ord. Mr. Moon has always upheld the principles of the democratic party, and he firmly believes in the enforcement of the saying, "America for Americans." In the earlier days he played his violin on the stages of many of the theatres. He is an accomplished violinist. "They play all the music too fast now," he said. "They were never meant to be played that fast. Even that lovely hymn, 'The Sweet By and By,' is played much faster than it was ever intended to be played. The composer of that piece, Dr. Sanford Fillmore Bennett was Mr. Moon's teacher. Mr. Moon left the theatre because he 'got sick and tired of it.' Having been in the butchering business for sixty-three years, he holds an enviable record in Ord. He has worked in every one of the butcher shops that have ever been in Ord. In the first shop, he and Ole Severson used a dry goods crate for a block and a meat counter. The first real butcher shop in Ord was owned by a man named Cheesbrough. "The most interesting study of my life has been chemistry," he says. "I think it is one of the greatest studies there is. But it is far from being understood yet." When I asked him what was the most thrilling moment in his life, he replied, "Well, I suppose that would be the time that I went hunting buffalo. One of the largest buffalo of a herd of seventeen came charging at me. I shot him thru the head once, and that didn't even seem to faze him. Then I emptied five bullets into his side. However, he still came at me. Finally, as I aimed for his heart, he stepped aside and the bullet went through his leg. It sounded like a fence board cracking. When he finally did die, I had only one bullet left in my gun."

Ed Lukesh purchased a 1936 Dodge coupe from the McCullough Motor company Friday.

Shafer Getter and husband, Mrs. Stewart Bryan and Maud Bryan, Oaklie Hurley, Sherm Clement and Eva Watts Gipe and husband. "Had a quite a visit with Hub and he likes it here fine, but misses all his old friends, the same as I do." "They have a contest in all the schools here in the spring of kite flying. The contests are among the city schools and the best in the city is then sent to contest for the best from all the California schools. So far Bob's school is ahead. The kite, Bob thinks, is nine feet long."

Making Good in the City.

Mrs. Jake Barber tells me that she was fortunate enough to sit with three other newspaper reporters to interview Senator W. S. Bridges of New Hampshire, last week. Mrs. Barber was at Lincoln at the Founders' day meeting and Editor Hugh Brown, of Kearney, who is an acquaintance of Mrs. Barber, seemed to be the man in charge of the affair. Mrs. Barber happened along and he said to her to step in the room there if she wished and hear the interview with the Senator, which she gladly did, she being the only person accorded the privilege besides the reporters from the three leading newspapers of the state. There was also another part of the program that might be worth mentioning. There was a German band from Pierce playing music, or getting ready to. Mrs. Barber was bewailing the fact that she had to leave before the program, so the band played a piece of music especially for Mrs. Barber, the leader telling the audience why he was playing it and asking Mrs. Barber to stand for the occasion.

Short Shavings.

Irwin Stehins, living west of North Loup, second son of Will Steffins, so his father says, can shoot crows in the air with a rifle while they fly along in front of the house. Now, that's some shootin', I'd say. George Satterfield says that the interest charged and collected on delinquent taxes pays for the snow shoveling in the county. In other words, the interest is quite an item. Furthermore, he says that this year there was not a dollar spent in the county for snow shoveling, but usually that expense amounts to a good big sum. Vincent Heine, of Grand Island, field man of the Prudential Ins. Co. over twenty counties, was told by one of his borrowers the other day, that he (the borrower) was getting ahead a little. This man said he was not getting any money, or any crops but he was paying a few bills and was no worse off at least. Mr. Heine replied that everyone is telling him that. Asked the why of it and he said he guessed the ones worst off are mostly cleaned up and that people are learning how to get along; that is how to pinch.

Vern Thomas of Riverdale, said the other night he caught three mice all at once in one small spring steel trap. They were small mice he says, and apparently all were nibbling at once at the bait when pop it went. Clafe Gilroy took me to see his twins Friday and a dandy pair of babies they are, too. Otherwise than the girl is a little larger than the boy, I would have trouble telling which was which. He has three fine kiddies, all with nice big eyes just like their dad. Stopping to see Mrs. Mable Anderson and Carl the other day, on business, she said that they are getting to like it in Ord now pretty well, but for a long time they were so lonesome for N. L., they just had to go down that way to see the people and spend a day every two or three weeks. Speaks well for N. L. people and for Ord people, too.

Here's the Diesel Equipment that Produces Electric Energy for Ord

An interior view of the Ord municipal electric plant, showing its diesel engine equipment, is here shown. Only proposal now under discussion by the Irrigation board, made by Ord and Burwell, embodies operation of the Ord and Burwell plants on a buy-sell arrangement with the cities paying a subsidy to the district of 6 mills on each kilowatt of energy consumed during the first year, 5 mills the second, 4 mills the third, and 3 mills the fourth and fifth. Copies of this proposal have been sent to Washington, D. C., and to Kearney, for consideration by PWA officials. The Irrigation district would receive an average of about $13,000 profit per year on the basis of present consumption, should this proposal be accepted, it is claimed by city officials. The 30-year contracts signed in 1937 and now held invalid by the cities, and related contracts made by the district with Western Public Service company and the Platte Valley district, are a bar to acceptance of the proposal, district officials have contended, even though the proposal is financially advantageous. The equipment shown above has been in continuous operation since Jan. 18, when Ord went off the district's highline.—Quiz Photo.

The fire at the Methodist parsonage property last Tuesday of a good combination barn, chicken house and granary was the first real fire that the volunteer fire company has been called to since getting the water system in. It is very much to the credit of the company that they made a very quick run and immediate connection of water and put out the flames which were covering the entire structure so that the good framing is still intact and some of the siding. It will be worth a new roof covering and siding over the black charred siding. There was some damage to goods stored in the granary and quite a stack of hay was burned or scorched so that stock won't eat it. As no one saw the fire until it was all ablaze it is evident that the first call of the fire company was a mighty good piece of work and the minister and his trustees appreciate it. This shows how necessary is a good water system in a town. No one can tell what the next call might be. Surely nobody would want to be without a good water system and a good volunteer company.

The high schools of Ericson and Bartlett will give a combined musical program in the McGuire hall this Thursday evening. This is preliminary to the inter high school musical contests to come soon.
