Chanticleers Tie Loup City Team on Thanksgiving Day

Ouplayed Visitors but Failed to Cash in on Several Scoring Chances.

Because it was a daytime game and a warm day the Ord and Loup City teams played their Thanksgiving game in what was perhaps the hottest weather of any game for either team during the entire season. The result was that both teams made numerous and costly fumbles. It was a fine day for the spectators, but no day for a good exhibition of football. The game ended 0 to 0.

The game was played in mid-field most of the first half. Just before the end of the half a punt recovered by Cetak took the ball well down into Loup City territory, and a completed pass, Misko to Tatlow put the ball inside the ten yard line as the half ended. The first half was marred by at least half a dozen fumbles.

At the start of the second half Loup City kicked into Ord's end zone, and on the first play the Ord line opened up a wide hole through the center of the line and Tatlow went galloping down the field until he was overtaken from behind by Evans on the Loup City 5 yard line. For the first ten yards he had plenty of interference, but from there on he left his team mates behind and outran the entire back field for a total of 75 yards.

With only 5 yards to go, Ord gained two yards in three tries, and on an attempted pass on the 4th down the passer was trapped back of the 14 yard line, where it became Loup City's ball. Failing to make yardage, Loup City kicked on the third down, the ball going out of bounds on the 32 yard line. For the third time Ord had the ball in dangerous territory, but were unable to make the necessary yardage.

Ord's punt gave Loup City the ball near the 20 yard line, and two successive first downs brought the play to the middle of the field, where it remained until the 4th quarter. Shortly after the final quarter opened Tatlow slid off his own left tackle behind line interference, reversed his field after he passed the line of scrimmage, and would have gotten away if a tackler had not caught him by the nose guard.

Shortly after this Orville Stoddard broke through and blocked a Loup City punt, Cetak recovering the ball for Ord. A few plays later a pass from Misko slipped through the arms of the player trying to knock it down, and Piskorski caught it just before it touched the ground. In fact, Ord threatened all through the last half, but could not push their way into pay territory.

The starting lineup for Ord included Hurlbert, left end; Roberson, left tackle; Benda, left guard; Petska, center; G. Cetak, right guard; Timmerman, right tackle; E. Piskorski, right end; quarter back, Gould Flagg; left half, Misko; right half, Tatlow; and full back, G. Stoddard. This lineup included 7 seniors, 2 juniors, a sophomore and a freshman. It must be remembered, however, that Misko and Stoddard, seniors, were playing their first year of football.

The Ord team needs no alibi, but it has one. Statistics show that all games since the Albion game have been against better teams than were the earlier games. Further, these same teams are composed largely of good men playing their final year. The Loup City team has been giving all competitors plenty of trouble all year, and have a fine offensive, but they could not get going against Ord. The record shows that Ord has not met defeat on their home field since Scotta turned the trick, Sept. 28, 1934, a total of 55 games and nearly six years of competition. With plenty of promising material developing, it may be some time yet before an invader turns the trick. Playing their last year for Ord light were Hurlbert, Benda, Petska, Misko, Tatlow, G. Stoddard, Marks, Smolik and C. Hansen.

Condemnation Cases In County Court Last Week

Two condemnation cases concerning land for use of Highway No. 11 were heard in county court last week. Appraisers appointed to serve on both cases were Curt Wilson, Forrest Watson and James Petska.

The first case was that of about 5 acres of the Edward Penas land, for which the amount allowed was $1,758. Davis and Vogeltanz represented Mr. Penas and John Misko for the state.

The second case concerned about 12 acres of the property known as the Emma Long land, with John Misko representing the state and H. B. Van Decar and Munn and Norman representing the property owners. The amount allowed in this case was $3,566.

Ord Stores Never So Crowded With Christmas Gifts

Not in many years have the Ord stores been so filled with new Christmas merchandise and articles designed for Christmas giving. Toy departments have many novelties never seen here before, variety and general merchandise stores have a wealth of apparel gifts, hardware stores have many practical and electrical gifts, jewelry stores have stocked up more heavily than in many years.

After a trip to Grand Island and a tour of Ord stores later, one woman commented this week that she didn't see why anyone would want to leave Ord to trade. "Our stores have as much merchandise as the city stores, and their prices are certainly lower."

Christmas decorations were put in place about the business district and in many stores this past week and the city presents a truly beautiful appearance both day and evening.

Sugar Company at Capacity Now

Regarding the possibility of securing sugar beet acreage for farmers of the North Loup and Middle Loup valleys, a letter from A. J. Denman, manager of the American Crystal Sugar company at Grand Island to C. C. Dale, county agent of Valley county, states that the company is not in a position to take any action at the present time.

He states that the company will have all the acreage they can handle at the Grand Island factory, from their old growers who must be given first opportunity when contracts are offered.

He says further that until it is definitely known just what the government will do regarding the beet program, they will not be able to offer anything but is hopeful that some definite information can be given by the middle of January.

Friday's Dust Storm Reminiscent of 1934

The dust storm which raged throughout central and western Nebraska all day Friday was reminiscent of the storms of 1934 and may be a foretaste of what is in store this winter and next spring if moisture does not come.

Borne by a west and northwest wind, dust and sand filled the air to such an extent that visibility was cut to a few hundred yards and during much of the day the sun could not be seen.

Except for this one day, Valley county's weather has been perfect during the past week. Temperatures have been almost summer like.

Fined For Failure To Have Proper License

Last week Orville Beman of Grand Island was placed under arrest and brought into court by a state patrolman charged with failure to have a proper driver's license. Upon his plea of guilty John Andersen, county judge, assessed a fine of $1.00 and the costs, $2.75, which he paid and was released.

E. J. Timmerman Dies From Heart Attack on Friday

Neighbor Found Body in His Yard and Called Officials; Burial Was Monday.

Ernest J. Timmerman, resident of Valley county since 1879 and of Ord for a number of years, was found in his yard in southeast Ord Friday forenoon, a victim of a fatal heart attack. He was found by a neighbor, Mrs. Jay Hackett, who at once notified the authorities. Dr. J. G. Kruml, city physician, was summoned, and he announced that death was undoubtedly due to an acute heart attack.

Ernest Timmerman was born May 7, 1869, in New York state, the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. William Timmerman. He came to Valley county with his parents in 1879. In 1907 he married Beesie Canfield, and to this union two sons, Merl and Melvin, were born, who with the widow, survive. He is also survived by two brothers, Herman of Ord and Clayton of Los Angeles, Calif.; two sisters, Mrs. Lina Cronk of Wieser, Ida, and Mrs. Will Cronk of Ord; three grandchildren; and one uncle, Hawes Timmerman, of Ord.

The funeral services, held Monday afternoon at 2 from the Pearson and Anderson chapel, were largely attended. Rev. G. C. Roberson of the Methodist church was in charge. Mrs. Mark Tolén and Mrs. E. O. Carlson sang, with Mrs. Robert Noll at the organ. The pall bearers were Jim Hansen, Ed Timmerman, George Nay, Leo Long, Donald Long and Harry Clement. Burial was made in the Ord cemetery.

Loup City Driver Pays a Fine for Speeding

George Janulewicz of Loup City was picked up Thursday by Highway Patrolman Zink and F. J. Cohen when he passed them on the way out of town driving at excessive speed. The officers gave chase to his bread truck and caught him after going five or six miles. He was given a ticket and ordered to appear in county court, but said he would not do so.

The officers then brought him to Ord and put him in jail until morning, when he appeared before County Judge Andersen with his attorney, Robert Matthew of Loup City, and entered a plea of guilty as charged. He was fined $20 and costs of $6, which he paid and was released.

Chamber of Commerce Meets Thursday Night

A meeting of the Ord Chamber of Commerce is to be held Thursday evening in the Masonic hall. J. A. Kovanda, president, desires a full attendance as matters of importance are to be taken up at this meeting, including the election of officers.

Andersen Files For Judge

The year 1940 will be an off year election in the county, with only one county office to be filled, because of the national ticket and so the candidates are filing earlier than they would when the primary comes in August. J. L. Andersen made his official filing to succeed himself as county judge on Friday, Dec. 1. Mr. Andersen has been judge for several years and has handled the work in a very acceptable manner.

Shotgun Shells Pop As Hunting Car Burns

North Loup—(Special)—Hugh Adams' automobile and trailer, a straw stack, a shotgun and a rifle, two good coats and several blankets were destroyed by fire Friday morning on the Adams farm west of town. The popping of shotgun shells in the blazing car added an unusual element to the fire. Mr. Adams carried no insurance.

Dean Adams and Leighton McGinley had taken the car and trailer to the Adams farm after a load of straw and planned to hunt after the straw was loaded. The car became stuck and after trying for some time to get it out the boys left to get a team of horses. About that time the wind came up and supposedly some sparks from the exhaust were ignited in the straw. The boys looked back and saw the fire but it had too much of a start for them to save anything from the car. Exploding of the shotgun shells made it dangerous to get too close.

Annual Loup Valley Football Banquet Held Next Tuesday

Major Jones, Gregg McBride, John Bentley to Speak; Many Athletes Coming.

The biggest single event of the football season and the culminating feature for the entire Loup Valley will take place next Tuesday at the Ord high school auditorium when the athletes, coaches and officials of the valley meet for the annual Loup Valley football banquet. This affair is sponsored by the Ord Cosmopolitan club, and all arrangements are practically complete.

The banquet will be served by the Ord Methodist ladies aid. A large number of schools have signified their intention to have large delegations present, and it is certain that the attendance will be larger than last year. No effort has been spared to produce a program that will appeal to this large assemblage of stellar athletes.

The club has been informed that Head Coach "Bibi" Jones will be here, and also John Bentley, sports editor of the Lincoln State Journal. Local sports enthusiasts will be pleased to know that Gregg McBride will also be in attendance.

John Misko is to be toastmaster, and responses will be given by the coaches from the different schools. The principal speakers will be Jones, Bentley and McBride. Ticket sales have been started and a meeting with a generous response.

Christmas Decorations Gleam Saturday Night

For several days last week the city crew was busy getting the Christmas decorations in place, and they were turned on for the first time Saturday evening. They are no different from last year, and seem somewhat out of place with the unusually warm weather we have been enjoying. However, there is no denying the fact that Christmas is now less than three weeks away.

Mrs. L. L. Oliver Dies In California Home

Word was received by relatives here Saturday morning of the death of Mrs. L. L. Oliver at her home in Escondido, Calif. For a long time she has been sick with gall bladder trouble and diabetes. They moved to Escondido eight years ago.

There are three children living here: Mrs. Spencer Waterman of Ord, Mrs. Harry Tolén and Carl Oliver of North Loup. The other three sons, Nell, Cecil and Dean are living in California. Funeral arrangements had not been completed at the time the telegram was sent.

Sad Hunting Season Closed Tuesday Eve

The saddest duck hunting season in ten years came to an end Tuesday afternoon at 4:00 and so balmy was the day that even the most fanatic duck hunters did not visit their river blinds on the closing day.

The season began Oct. 22 and lasted six weeks. Though reports from the U. S. biological survey say there are more ducks and geese in North America now than at any time in the last decade, Nebraska hunters went duckless.

Weather has been against the hunter and in favor of the ducks from the start and not even yet have northern mallards in any considerable numbers left Canada.

Since opening day when local birds were plentiful there have been no limit kills reported from the North and Middle Loup rivers, or from the Calamus and Cedar.

Mrs. Payzant To Sell

Mrs. L. G. Payzant is advertising a clean-up sale to be held Monday, Dec. 11. Due to the serious accident suffered by her husband recently, she is unable to carry on farming operations. It is a big offering and includes 21 head of cattle.

Your Help Is Needed.

Many children will have no toys at Christmas this year. You can help by giving discarded toys to the Red Cross for repair and redistribution. If you have warm clothing, bedding, toys or magazines, call Mrs. Syl Furtak or Mrs. E. L. Kokes and they will be collected.

State Church Meet at Ord Last Week A Signal Success

L. W. Dickinson Was Elected President; May Come Again Next Year.

The state convention of Christ's Ambassadors was held at Ord on Wednesday and Thursday of last week, and was a signal success. An effort was made to have all visitors register, but not nearly all of them did. Included in the list were fifty ministers, thirty delegates and 238 visitors, most of whom were from outside this territory.

There was a fine attendance throughout the meetings, and Rev. Clark of the local church estimated that there were at least 500 in attendance Thursday, exclusive of local people. The meetings were held at the Bohemian hall which was filled to capacity. It would require too much space to list all the towns and ministers represented, but the following will give some idea of the territory covered.

From Keya Paha county, 36 young people and their pastor, Rev. Chester Anderson, came from Battle, and Rev. Chester Beebe and a delegation from Burdon; Rev. Harold James and a group from Gordon represented the northwest limit of the territory; from McCook came Rev. Glen A. Reed, formerly well known here as a pastor of the Burwell church; Rev. W. W. Appleyard and a number of delegates came here from Hastings on the south; from Lincoln, came Rev. M. F. Brandt and a delegation; also present were Rev. I. M. Peck of Valentine and C. E. Blodgett of Hershey. The extreme western part of the state and also the northeast section was not represented. Joe Neely of Denver, evangelist, was present and did much to make the meetings a success.

Tuesday evening there was a fellowship rally at the local church, which was addressed by M. F. Brandt. Wednesday morning the meetings were officially opened at the Bohemian hall, at 10 a. m., at which time Glen Reed spoke. That afternoon and evening the meetings were addressed by Rev. Paul Rahneff, formerly of Bulgaria.

Thursday morning the business session was held at 10 a. m., and state officers were elected as follows: Rev. L. W. Dickinson, president; Rev. Clark of Ord, vice-president; and Rev. Earl Cummings of Maxwell, secretary-treasurer. Rev. Dickinson is at present traveling about the state as an evangelist, but was present for the meetings.

The high point of the meetings, from the local angle, at least, was reached at 2 p. m., Thursday, in the ceremony of the burning of the mortgage of the Ord church. Rev. A. M. Alber had charge of the service, and there were talks by Rev. Dickinson, Cummings and Clark, the former applying the match to the mortgage. At this time a letter was read from a former pastor, Rev. W. O. Ziegler of Bonner's Ferry, Ida., and a telegram from another former pastor, Rev. W. M. Lamar of North Hollywood, Calif.

Thursday afternoon, Paul Rahneff held an open forum on the situation in Europe, and he also spoke at the closing meeting Thursday evening. This was the best attended young people's convention ever held in Nebraska, and the delegates were so pleased with the way in which details were handled that there is a likelihood that another convention will be held here in 1940.

Ord Business Women Hear State President

Last evening at Thorne's Cafe the Ord Business and Professional Women's club met for a 6:30 dinner and to listen to their state president, Imogene Scammon, of Beatrice, who was guest of honor. Miss Scammon gave a report on the biennial convention held in Kansas City last summer.

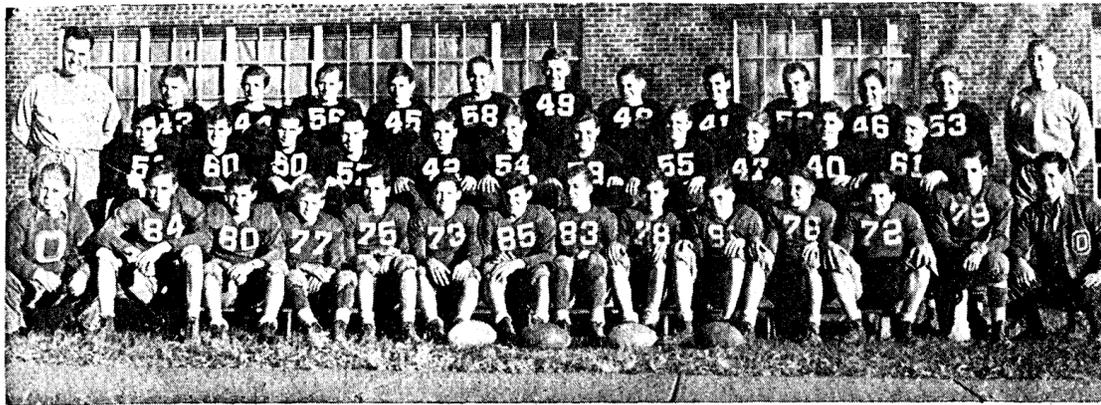

The group also discussed the review of the book, "The Nazarene" which is to be given Sunday afternoon at the Ord Township library by Mrs. J. A. Kovanda.

Rotarians Hear Talks by Dillon and Gyger

The Ord Rotarians at their Monday evening meeting at Thorne's cafe heard talks by Area Engineer L. H. Dillon and County Engineer Mark Gyger of WPA. These men took up the various projects in Valley county and told of the work that is being done, especially with reference to the new athletic field. Both men are interesting speakers and the members enjoyed their talks, as well as the information given.

—Mrs. Stanley Mitchell of Burwell was a visitor Tuesday in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Win. Horner.

Chanticleers Close Season that Started in Blaze of Glory, Ended Dismally with Three Losses, Two Ties

Although the record book will show that in 1939 the Ord Chanticleers won four football games, lost three and that two games ended in stalemates, to most fans the season will be remembered as one that started in a blaze of glory and ended dimly.

Coach Brockman's boys opened by defeating St. Paul 19 to 0, then coasted through Broken Bow 20 to 2, took Burwell 26 to 0 and pulled a close one out of the fire, 6 to 0, at Fullerton. After a week of rest they went to Albion in quest of their 42nd straight victory but instead lost 20 to 6, and because of injuries to key players received in that grueling battle they proceeded to lose to Arcadia 6 to 0 the following week. Then came a 7 to 7 tie with Sargent, a disastrous 33 to 0 loss to Ravenna, and a closing 0 to 0 tie with Loup City on Turkey Day.

Members of the Ord squad are shown in this picture. They are, left to right—back row: Coach Brockman, C. Hanson, F. Fryzek, O. Stoddard, C. Zlonke, H. Christensen, L. Geweke, E. Piskorski, E. Barnes, E. Smolik, H. Dahlin, L. Hanson, Assistant Coach Lee. 2nd row: N. Marks, R. Timmerman, R. Tatlow, H. Misko, F. Roberson, R. Hurlbert, G. Cetak, G. Stoddard, H. Benda, G. Flagg, J. Petska. 3rd row: L. Larsen, student manager; Wm. Dodge, B. Novosad, R. Furtak, Ed Rousek, O. Leach, O. Marsh, L. Norman, R. James, R. Beran, F. Stewart, J. Petska, Joe Gregory, A. Carlson, student manager.

Already Ord fans and high school students have their sights trained on 1940, for all but six of the players who saw most service will return to the squad.

A BROADER VIEW.

The people of Ord had the privilege last week of hearing a man who knows more, perhaps, about the present situation in Europe than any man who has visited the state in years.

This man is Paul S. Rahneff of Bulgaria. At one time he was interpreter for King Edward, and for years he was secretary and treasurer of the communistic movement.

The difference between bolshevism and nazism seems wider than it actually is. As a matter of fact they are both totalitarian forms of government.

It is his opinion that America should have no part whatever in this European muddle. In the first place, it is not our quarrel. We do not understand conditions there.

WHAT ABOUT A CONTEST?
The opportunity for a real contest is now present in the North Loup valley, a contest in which the early farmers took more interest, perhaps, than any one thing in their lives.

In 1889 a big squash raised by E. M. Bennett was displayed in the Loyalist office. It's weight, believe it or not, was 97 1/2 pounds.

Chicago University, one of the greatest in the country, has invited Earl Browder, communist leader in this country, to speak on the campus under the auspices of the communist organization among the students.

Getting to the point, conditions in the valley now are ideal for the farmers to get busy on contests in the growing of crops, not only individual specimens, but the greatest yields per acre, and the highest quality in the crop grown.

Robert Ripley claims that the largest sugar beet on record was raised by M. Shatrich, Ruma, Yugoslavia. It weighed 31 pounds.

The Valley county fair association is asking for ideas for improving the fair next year. The Quiz respectfully submits this idea as one that should awaken more interest in the fair than any other, and it would have a lasting effect on the county in the future.

In years gone by the man who farmed the greatest number of acres was considered quite a farmer, regardless of the bushels per acre he produced. In the future, that man who produces a maximum of crop from a given acreage will be classed as the best farmer. It is a more worth while achievement to get 40 bushels per acre from 100 acres than it is to get 20 bushels per acre from 200 acres.

My Own Column

By H. D. Leggett

Elliot Roosevelt has stated as his belief that the labor leaders are to blame for the present strikes. He says that a great majority of the men want to work. It is about time some of the big shots, come to this conclusion, for it has been apparent to most folks for a long time.

Senator Burke has decided to run for re-election as a democrat. This looks to me like he would be pretty sure to be defeated by Cochran, who will run on the same primary ticket, but with the blessing of the national administration and with his own great state political machine, backing him. I suspect there are enough state and government employees who will vote practically solid for Cochran, to insure his nomination.

I don't know who thought up the brilliant idea of naming the park football field, Brockman Field, but I think it is a screwy idea. Coach Brockman is a fine fellow, a splendid and successful coach and all that, but we have had other good coaches and we will have some more when Brockman has gone on to bigger and better jobs.

I was pleased the other day when an Ord football fan said, "Well those Ravenna people are good sports. They didn't razz Ord like some other towns would have done." And I have been wondering what the attitude of Ordites was or is when Ord is winning over other town teams.

Which reminds me that I heard a North Loup man and a Burwell man talking recently and they almost kissed each other in their glee because Ravenna gave Ord a trimming. Why should there be such intense jealousy of Ord on the part of smaller surrounding towns.

I have been visiting with as many voters as possible the past week and talking about the candidacy of George A. Munn for district judge and without exception, so far, every one of them has agreed that while Grand Island was entitled to have one of the judges, that they were not in favor of having both judges in Grand Island.

Chicago University, one of the greatest in the country, has invited Earl Browder, communist leader in this country, to speak on the campus under the auspices of the communist organization among the students.

A FEW THINGS TO THINK ABOUT!

Better Go Too Often Vignettes of a Dry County

Written by GEORGE GOWEN News From Afar

Better Go Too Often
At a call to Dr. Hemphill's a few days ago and at the inquiry in regard to the ailment of my son I found out that I was too late and should have come several weeks sooner.

I was a little chagrined at this last call. "I come here time and again," I said, "for nothing of consequence and this time pass up when I should have come. You will grow weary of me before long."

The old doctor was called out in the middle of the night to see a sick baby. The mother exclaimed over the phone, "He cries all the time at the top of his voice. I am distracted. I don't know the trouble but I am sure there is something bad."

The mother was then mortified that she had called the doctor in the night for such a trifle and for something that was not really serious. She apologized profusely.

There is much speculation as to when it ever this country will come back and it will rain again. Some pessimists claim never; that certain geographical conditions in the Yukon or elsewhere have changed, causing the trade winds to change and consequently causing the rainfall to change in this country.

Many folks claim there is no hope for a crop next year; that the ground is so dry that there is not one chance in a thousand of there being rain fall enough in one season to produce a crop next year.

This dour outlook is not universal however. Clarence Bressly was saying just the other day, "This country will come back mighty quick when it gets started." "A rainy season like we have had (I believe it was '23) would almost soak up our soil."

Also this change in condition theory seems wrong for just this last year, north of us in the sand hills it rained a plenty, and in many places they have not had better grass for years.

In some ways our country here has been one of the best. Our soil dries quickly and the rain, when it does come, is not so excessive but what we can easily farm large acreages. In the end, in years like we used to call normal, our total crops would be as large as where there was more rain and smaller fields.

News From Afar
A letter from Ralph Comstock at St. Charles, Ill., formerly of North Loup who is caretaker of the Babson estate there contained the following clipping from the Joliet paper.

"First of all one drives through the entrance to the caretaker's cottage. Mass planting of tulips, iris, bleeding hearts and Shirley poppies make the drive to the cottage truly beautiful. Then guided by the extremely clever, well-informed and hospitable Mr. Comstock, one is taken to a spot, covering 200 acres, which has been made into an acreage of breath-taking beauty, far exceeding any gardens to be seen in this area.

And back to the nicknames, Dad is often called and written to as Henry... because his nicknames is Hank. But his real name is Homer.

I know a girl whose name is John. Not Johnny, but John. Because she always wished she were a boy. If she ever had another name I never succeeded in learning it.

Sometimes I believe nicknames result from an attempt at euphony, as "Podge" Parmelee. (One year the children discovered that Monica Jean Gnanster made a nice song sound.)

end of the county, there too is his sister, Mrs. Will Davis of Davis Creek.

On the cover page of This Week magazine, there is a picture very much like that of Estelle Bredthauer. She is the normal training teacher in the Scotia high school.

BACK FORTY

By J. A. Kovanda

Cottonfalls are beginning to gnaw the bark from young trees. Much further damage of this kind may be expected over winter, as there are more rabbits and fewer trees than usual this year.

The girdling of young saplings can be avoided by painting the trunks with some repellent. A number are recommended, which the writer is listing below.

1. Sulfonated oil is said to be a permanent repellent. Heat linseed oil on an outdoor fire, and add sulphur as it boils. Use 3 ounces of sulphur per quart of oil.

2. A mixture of linseed oil and resin will keep away rabbits all winter. Melt the resin and add 5 parts oil to one part resin. Apply the dope while warm.

3. Save the blood from butchering and brush on the tree trunks. It will protect them until spring.

4. Take lime-sulphur solution, add some glue, and spread it over the bark.

5. Mix an ounce of cayenne pepper to a pound of lard or other grease. Smear it on the tree trunks.

6. Axle grease, tar, or creosote will also keep away rodents. But these preparations are not recommended because they may harm the orchard.

The most permanent safeguard against trunk injury is the mechanical wire protector. When extended below ground, it also keeps away mice and gophers.

Nicknames are fascinating to me, good for speculative purposes. For instance, yesterday I heard of a respectable middle aged veterinary called "Keggy" and upon expressing a bit of interest, I learned he had tipped over a keg as a boy.

The abbreviations of first names are not usually nearly so interesting as the nicknames chance thrusts upon some defenseless child. Often they are selected because of some babyish characteristic and although cunning and suitable at the age of one year they loom up incongruous as the poor victim ceases to be cute and becomes stiff and stodgy.

To me a pair of the ugliest nicknames are "Wart" and "Toad" and how relatives and friends can cruelly attach them I can't see. Boys are realists and do not hesitate to call one another whatever comes handy or seems to have a bite in it.

Clayton Burke, when he was back here from Cody visiting told me he had decided Dad Leggett was a lead ringer for Scattergood Baines, the character who has grown so famous in the American magazine, the white haired fat man who sits and rocks and solves all his neighbors problems for them.

For their year's project the little Camp Fire girls have chosen to sell doughnuts on commission. Every two weeks someone will knock on your door. The doughnuts will be Ord Bakery made, the money will go to defray Campfire expenses, there is no doubt the girls will go at their work with a vim and we will all be eating doughnuts!

A BROADER VIEW.

The people of Ord had the privilege last week of hearing a man who knows more, perhaps, about the present situation in Europe than any man who has visited the state in years.

This man is Paul S. Rahneff of Bulgaria. At one time he was interpreter for King Edward, and for years he was secretary and treasurer of the communistic movement.

The difference between bolshevism and nazism seems wider than it actually is. As a matter of fact they are both totalitarian forms of government.

It is his opinion that America should have no part whatever in this European muddle. In the first place, it is not our quarrel. We do not understand conditions there.

WHAT ABOUT A CONTEST?

The opportunity for a real contest is now present in the North Loup valley, a contest in which the early farmers took more interest, perhaps, than any one thing in their lives.

In 1889 a big squash raised by E. M. Bennett was displayed in the Loyalist office. It's weight, believe it or not, was 97 1/2 pounds.

William Marks of Mira Valley was raising high quality honey and selling it. Later on he ordered a sorghum mill, and some of the old timers may remember how good that sorghum tasted.

Getting to the point, conditions in the valley now are ideal for the farmers to get busy on contests in the growing of crops, not only individual specimens, but the greatest yields per acre, and the highest quality in the crop grown.

Robert Ripley claims that the largest sugar beet on record was raised by M. Shatrich, Ruma, Yugoslavia. It weighed 31 pounds.

In years gone by the man who farmed the greatest number of acres was considered quite a farmer, regardless of the bushels per acre he produced.

that man who produces a maximum of crop from a given acreage will be classed as the best farmer. It is a more worth while achievement to get 40 bushels per acre from 100 acres than it is to get 20 bushels per acre from 200 acres.

My Own Column

By H. D. Leggett

Elliot Roosevelt has stated as his belief that the labor leaders are to blame for the present strikes. He says that a great majority of the men want to work.

Senator Burke has decided to run for re-election as a democrat. This looks to me like he would be pretty sure to be defeated by Cochran, who will run on the same primary ticket.

I don't know who thought up the brilliant idea of naming the park football field, Brockman Field, but I think it is a screwy idea.

Well those Ravenna people are good sports. They didn't razz Ord like some other towns would have done. And I have been wondering what the attitude of Ordites was or is when Ord is winning over other town teams.

Which reminds me that I heard a North Loup man and a Burwell man talking recently and they almost kissed each other in their glee because Ravenna gave Ord a trimming.

I have been visiting with as many voters as possible the past week and talking about the candidacy of George A. Munn for district judge and without exception, so far, every one of them has agreed that while Grand Island was entitled to have one of the judges, that they were not in favor of having both judges in Grand Island.

Chicago University, one of the greatest in the country, has invited Earl Browder, communist leader in this country, to speak on the campus under the auspices of the communist organization among the students.

A letter from Ralph Comstock at St. Charles, Ill., formerly of North Loup who is caretaker of the Babson estate there contained the following clipping from the Joliet paper.

Now that Thanksgiving and Christmas are over, sentiment should be well enough known so that in future years such mixups should not occur.

A FEW THINGS TO THINK ABOUT!

Better Go Too Often Vignettes of a Dry County

Written by GEORGE GOWEN News From Afar

Better Go Too Often At a call to Dr. Hemphill's a few days ago and at the inquiry in regard to the ailment of my son I found out that I was too late and should have come several weeks sooner.

I was a little chagrined at this last call. "I come here time and again," I said, "for nothing of consequence and this time pass up when I should have come. You will grow weary of me before long."

The old doctor was called out in the middle of the night to see a sick baby. The mother exclaimed over the phone, "He cries all the time at the top of his voice. I am distracted. I don't know the trouble but I am sure there is something bad."

The mother was then mortified that she had called the doctor in the night for such a trifle and for something that was not really serious. She apologized profusely.

There is much speculation as to when it ever this country will come back and it will rain again. Some pessimists claim never; that certain geographical conditions in the Yukon or elsewhere have changed, causing the trade winds to change and consequently causing the rainfall to change in this country.

Many folks claim there is no hope for a crop next year; that the ground is so dry that there is not one chance in a thousand of there being rain fall enough in one season to produce a crop next year.

This dour outlook is not universal however. Clarence Bressly was saying just the other day, "This country will come back mighty quick when it gets started." "A rainy season like we have had (I believe it was '23) would almost soak up our soil."

Also this change in condition theory seems wrong for just this last year, north of us in the sand hills it rained a plenty, and in many places they have not had better grass for years. The distance is not so far apart but what it might rain here.

News From Afar A letter from Ralph Comstock at St. Charles, Ill., formerly of North Loup who is caretaker of the Babson estate there contained the following clipping from the Joliet paper.

As I have said before, "Ralph is another of our Valley county boys" "who has made good in the city." Besides other relatives in the south by the president, was that he listened to big business. If you know what that is. Big business wanted more time between the turkey holiday and Christmas in order to get more Christmas trade.

On the cover page of This Week magazine, there is a picture very much like that of Estelle Bredthauer. She is the normal training teacher in the Scotia high school.

BACK FORTY

By J. A. Kovanda

Cottonfalls are beginning to gnaw the bark from young trees. Much further damage of this kind may be expected over winter, as there are more rabbits and fewer trees than usual this year.

1. Sulfonated oil is said to be a permanent repellent. Heat linseed oil on an outdoor fire, and add sulphur as it boils. Use 3 ounces of sulphur per quart of oil.

2. A mixture of linseed oil and resin will keep away rabbits all winter. Melt the resin and add 5 parts oil to one part resin. Apply the dope while warm.

3. Save the blood from butchering and brush on the tree trunks. It will protect them until spring.

4. Take lime-sulphur solution, add some glue, and spread it over the bark.

5. Mix an ounce of cayenne pepper to a pound of lard or other grease. Smear it on the tree trunks.

6. Axle grease, tar, or creosote will also keep away rodents. But these preparations are not recommended because they may harm the orchard.

The most permanent safeguard against trunk injury is the mechanical wire protector. When extended below ground, it also keeps away mice and gophers.

++ Something Different ++

Nicknames are fascinating to me, good for speculative purposes. For instance, yesterday I heard of a respectable middle aged veterinary called "Keggy" and upon expressing a bit of interest, I learned he had tipped over a keg as a boy.

The abbreviations of first names are not usually nearly so interesting as the nicknames chance thrusts upon some defenseless child. Often they are selected because of some babyish characteristic and although cunning and suitable at the age of one year they loom up incongruous as the poor victim ceases to be cute and becomes stiff and stodgy.

Ord has its share of unusual nicknames. There is "Brick" Norman, and once there was "Breck" Smith. One of them was red haired, but how did the other acquire that title?

I remember a girl with a long name whose little playmates christened her simply "Meutholatum." Nicknames that rhyme often catch on. I recall "Holman the volman" or if you don't catch on, "Herman the vermin." "Hi" Anderson, properly called Clarence Arthur, is reputed to have won his nickname because his pocket was so high up, as a little fellow "Ponce" Heuck's nickname causes argument, some say it was a distortion of "Pants", originally.

For their year's project the little Camp Fire girls have chosen to sell doughnuts on commission. Every two weeks someone will knock on your door. The doughnuts will be Ord Bakery made, the money will go to defray Campfire expenses, there is no doubt the girls will go at their work with a vim and we will all be eating doughnuts! -Irma.

Damage Done by Beavers in the North Loup Vicinity Interestingly Shown in Pictures

The reason land owners near North Loup and elsewhere have been complaining over the increase in beavers is interestingly shown in these two photos. In the upper picture is shown a beaver dam on the Stude bayou, built by the little animals out of trees and brush cut by themselves along the stream. The lower picture shows a large tree cut by the sharp teeth of these animals.

Under state protection, beavers have made a great comeback and some people think there are now several hundred of them in the North Loup river basin. Permits to trap beaver are issued to land owners, who may trap only on their own land.

Another colony of beaver lives on Turtle Creek and traces of beaver occupancy can be seen on almost every creek and bayou near Ord.

Wanted, a Monkey

By GEORGE EVANS
Associated Newspapers, WNU Service.

"THERE'S nothing the matter with your aunt, Miss Cane," said the doctor, looking covetously at her pocketbook for the $25 his expert opinion commanded, "but she lacks a definite interest in life."

"I suspected it, Dr. Jones," sighed the girl, "but since dear Justin passed out—"

The great man looked at his watch. He dreaded a history.

"Yes," went on the girl rising, and going toward the door where a predatory secretary would despoil her of her poor little yellow bills.

"Justin had won so many prizes and he really was a wonderful dog for 18 years old."

The doctor bowed and probably made a mental note of a "pet" psychosis.

"Nothing like a pooch, after all's said and done, to occupy the mind," said the predatory secretary disposing of the bills. Sally took the elevator and descended to the dazzling avenue. It was good to be in the sunshine after the "creepy" atmosphere of a doctor's waiting-room. She glanced at her watch and saw it was already past lunch-time. She pushed her way through a crowd of giggling office help and demanded soup and a salad. Her clear-cut profile and healthy skin were reflected from the mirror-lined room. Luckily she had a table for herself.

"I must get a pet for dear old aunt," she thought, "but how?"

"Excuse me, I'm afraid this is the only seat. D'you mind if I take it?" Such a nice voice—a man's and such incorrigibly merry eyes despite the slightly formal manner and unsmiling lips.

"Why, of course," Sally stammered, pulling her purse and gloves nearer, and moving her chair to make room for this nice person to sit down.

"I'm a stranger in this city," said the man, "and I find all the places so crowded, but one must eat."

"I advise the vegetable soup. It's rather nice."

"There was a slight scuffling noise which seemed to come from beneath the table."

"Please excuse my adopted son," said the man, "he's a particularly nice monkey. You don't by any chance hate monkeys, do you?"

Sally laughed. "Indeed no. I've just come from the office of a peculiarly disagreeable doctor, and he sneered when I told him my aunt's dog had died."

"Just like doctors. I have no use for them, anyway."

"Neither have I for myself. But I live with a dear old aunt and she reads patent-medicine advertisements and nothing would do but she must consult this old man. He advised her that she needed an interest in life."

"Shouldn't wonder if that's what ails most folks," said the stranger.

"I'm awfully worried about Jack. You see, I'm an engineer. I have to get off tomorrow for South America. I can't possibly take the little fellow and I'm afraid it'll break his heart if he has no one to care for him."

"I wonder—" Then Sally blushed scarlet. What would her aged aunt think if she discovered her confiding in a strange and personable young man?

"My name is George Smith," said the stranger, "and I believe we are wondering the same thing. That is, if Jack might not be the very medicine your aunt needs. Wasn't that what you were thinking?"

"It was," said Sally, "if you wouldn't mind, if you had the time, I'm sure it's awfully queer, but you see I want aunt to live to be a hundred (she's promised to try) and I really think Jack might help her to do it. We live out quite a distance but there's a bus that goes right by the street."

"I'm afraid we must take a taxi, for my time isn't unlimited. You won't mind as I'm going to introduce your aunt's new doctor, will you?"

Sally shook her head.

Mrs. Maude was a trifle flustered when she saw a cab. She expected accidents, due to her choice of disastrous reading. When she saw the box with holes, she began to cry, softly. It recalled the lamented Justin. The introductions being effected, she appeared to take a fancy to young George Smith. The monkey, which was a marmoset, looked wistfully from his master to the old lady and then, with the uncanny love of animals, jumped into her lap and snuggled a pretty little face into the curve of her arm.

"I guess you're going to give Jack a home, aren't you, Mrs. Maude?" he said, rising to go. "This is my address, my father's, that is. I shall be all around in construction camps and your letters about Jack will be forwarded."

"Your father I once knew—before I lost my own husband, who was, like you, a civil engineer, by a cruel accident. That is nice. I feel I know you. You may rest assured Jack will have a happy home. I feel that now I have something to live for."

Looking Sally straight in the eyes, George answered, shaking her warmly by the hand:

"And so do I."

"Bargain Meats" Can Be An Expensive Economy

Don't be fooled into thinking that because meat bears a price tag showing a low price per pound it is a "bargain." Sometimes such meat can be an expensive economy.

The packers sell their fresh meat to markets entirely on a grade basis. There are high grade meats, medium grade meats and low grade meats. Naturally the lower the grade the lower the price per pound.

But when you buy low grade meat you lose in flavor, in tenderness and in food value; in such case, your "bargain" has become a doubtful economy.

For a half century this market has been selling good meat at fair prices—no "specials" but real day-after-day value. It will pay you to trade here regularly as so many families do.

Bears Won 11, Lost 4, to Capture Grade School League Flag

The Bears, Ord grade school team co-captained by Eldon Keller and Gordon Sorensen, won 11 games and lost 4 to win the championship in the grade school league season just closed. Their percentage was 73.3. In second place were the Cornhuskers with 500, in third the Navy with 357 and in fourth the Wildcats with 286. Members of the championship Bears, pictured above with their coach, B. A. Eddy in the center, are besides the two captains, Dick Michalek, Lester Smith, Joe Komines, Dean Gross, Eldon Loft, Billy Husbands, Francis Raenaker and Edmund Swanek. All except Lester are pictured here. Membership of other league squads follows: Wildcats: Lloyd Huribert and blocking and change-of-pace. All the regular rules of football were observed. According to Coach Eddy, every boy showed fine spirit and sportsmanship throughout the season. A few deserving special mention are Roland Hatfield and Bobbie Marks, who did fine defensive work for the Wildcats; Dick Michalek and Joe Kominek, expert pass-snatchers on the Bear team; Eldon Keller, passer, and Lester Smith, blocking back, on the Bear team; Joe Rysavy and Jack Malolespy, the passing combination for the Cornhuskers; and the Navy team on the days they combined to give the Bears their nearest trimmings. Grade school boys have now taken up basketball and hold regular games Mondays and Wednesdays.

Legion And Auxiliary Meet at Kearney Today

The sixth district, American Legion and Auxiliary, is holding its annual convention in Kearney today, and judging by preparations made by that city for the entertainment of the delegates, they are certainly having a fine time. The Auxiliary are Mrs. Harry Wolf, Mrs. Joe Gregory, Mrs. Roy Severson, Mrs. V. W. Russell, Mrs. A. A. Wiegardt and Mrs. C. R. Warcham. The Ord group is delegated to put on a special salt and pepper initiation, and they have been busy the past few days with their plans for this part of the program.

Mrs. Harry Wolf has been appointed a member of the committee on distinguished guests, and Mrs. C. J. Mortensen, department president, will be in attendance to address the auxiliary. It is not definitely known whether any of the legion delegates will be on special committees or not, but no doubt some of them will.

The meeting listened to a report by President Kovanda on the activities of the past year, and the financial report by Secretary Wiegardt. A revised constitution for the organization was read and adopted. It was announced that the annual children's Christmas party, sponsored by the chamber, will be held on Wednesday afternoon, Dec. 20, at which time Santa Claus will distribute 1500 sacks of candy from the court house steps. Burwell Man Keeps Busy with Unusual System of Trucking Burwell—(Special)—Alvin Davis, of this community, has worked out an unusual system of trading by which he keeps himself and his truck busy between Burwell, Scottsbluff, Sioux City and Burwell. First he buys a truck load of fresh eggs in Ord and Burwell and hauls them to Scottsbluff, where he sells them to a wholesale company which buys only fresh eggs, cold storage eggs not being accepted. Mr. Davis then buys a load of beans and hauls them to Sioux City, selling them to another wholesaler there. Then he buys a load of Iowa corn and hauls it to Burwell for sale to feeders here.

The trips are made at regular intervals although products handled vary seasonably. A little capital is needed to make the transactions but Mr. Davis is always sure of a load on his triangular trip. He is driving a new 1940 truck now and makes good time on his route.

Clayton Arnold Has Truck Upset

Clayton Arnold miraculously escaped serious injury Thursday night when the Gilroy truck he drives left the highway west of St. Paul and upset in the ditch, spilling a load of shelled corn all over the landscape. Arnold was blinded by the brilliant lights of an approaching car.

He is certain that the driver of the car knew that he upset, but he went right on. The weight of the load made the mishap much more serious, as it pushed the box against the cab, which was badly damaged, and Arnold was jolted by the impact.

Examination by a doctor showed that no bones were broken, but he was badly bruised, and so stiff he could hardly get around for several days. The truck was brought to Ord by the C. A. Anderson wrecker, and Mr. Gilroy estimates that the damage will total $300, which is covered by insurance.

Autograph Seekers Get Thrill Out of Famous Coach's Visit to Ord

Most thrilled at the visit of Major Lawrence McConey (Biff) Jones to Ord Tuesday evening were the autograph seekers, who crowded around the speakers table at the football banquet and induced the Cornhusker munter to sign their programs. He signed and I signed, until his right arm ached. In the picture above can be seen Coach Brockman, Coach Jones and John Misko, master of ceremonies, seated. Not only children wanted Coach Jones' autograph, as this picture proves, though grade school boys were in the majority.

Wareham Contract Not to Be Renewed; Economy Measure

Drastic Changes Decided by Irrigation Board; Burwell Off the High-Line.

Directors of the North Loup River Public Power and Irrigation district, at their regular December meeting held Wednesday evening, decided not to renew the contract of Charles R. Wareham as office manager, this decision being characterized as an "economy measure" by Roy Hudson, district president. Mr. Wareham was employed Dec. 16, 1938 to manage business affairs of the district for one year. His contract expires Dec. 16, 1939 and will not be renewed, directors decided. However, Mr. Wareham probably will be employed for another month in order that he may supervise the annual audit of district finances and other last-of-the-year business.

J. C. Wilson, in charge of electric lines for the district, also will be out of a job January 1. Mr. Hudson divulged. He has not been working under a contract and there is at present no need for his services, directors feel.

Administrative employees of the district will be L. E. Walford, who will remain as water master, and Miss Norene Hardenbrook, who will have charge of routine office affairs, including collections.

According to President Hudson the PWA docket under which the project was constructed will be closed within a month and affairs of the district are in such shape that a skeleton force can handle them, particularly during the winter months. "We are feeling our way along and trying to be as economical as possible, if this doesn't work out we'll try something else," the North Loup man stated.

It was also learned that E. A. Holub, of Elyria, a director since the district was organized, tendered his resignation at last Wednesday's meeting. The resignation was not acted upon by fellow directors. Whether Mr. Holub's resignation will or will not be accepted and who will be appointed to fill the vacancy if one occurs awaits decision of the board at its January meeting.

Effective Dec. 1, the village of Burwell ceased purchasing electric energy from the district and resumed operation of its municipal plant, the Quiz learns. Burwell went off the high line when Ord did, in January, 1939, but some weeks later resumed purchasing energy with the understanding that it might cease at any time, which privilege was exercised Dec. 1.

Guy Lavery, attorney for the district, who also has been serving as secretary since Joseph P. Barta's term expired, tried some weeks ago to resign the secretaryship but the resignation was not accepted and later was withdrawn, President Hudson says. Mr. Lavery is still serving as secretary.

Mrs. Ben Janssen drove to Grand Island Wednesday, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Langer and Mrs. F. T. Johnson.

L. A. Muncy had a neon white lighting plan installed in his jewelry store Monday that is attracting a lot of attention. A white neon tube extends all the way around the large panel in the metal ceiling, and when turned on gives plenty of light for most use. He still has the regular lights to use when needed. The chief advantage of the new lighting is that it is much cheaper to operate when results are considered.

Minor damage resulted just after noon Friday when a car driven by Mrs. Ed Naprstek collided with one driven by Darold Petersen. The accident occurred at the southwest corner of the square. Petersen, accompanied by some friends, came from the west and turned north. Mrs. Naprstek, coming from the north and planning to turn east, did not see the Petersen car until it was too late. The left rear fender and hub cap were damaged, the necessary repairs being arranged for by Mrs. Naprstek.

Zanger and a nephew of Uncle Charles Burris, who formerly lived at Olean, but is now living in Iowa. Mr. Jackson was married to Miss Edna Ramsey Aug. 30, 1899, by the Rev. Charles C. Arnold.

Following his marriage Mr. Jackson farmed the Burris place, and later farmed in Noble township. The family left the county some 25 years ago. According to a letter written by Mrs. Jackson to Mrs. W. L. Ramsey, he suffered a heart attack on Sept. 29, and was unable to leave his bed after that time. Further attacks caused his death.

CITY COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS

The Mayor and Council of the City of Ord, Valley County, Nebraska, met in adjourned regular session in the City Hall at 7:30 P. M. Mayor Cummins presided. City Clerk Rex Jewett recorded the proceedings of this meeting.

The Mayor directed the Clerk to call the roll. The Clerk called the roll and the following Councilmen were present: Martinus Biemond, Joe Rohla, Robert Noll, Frank Johnson, Guy Burrows. Absent: J. W. McGinnis.

The minutes of the proceedings of November 3, 1939 were read and by motion ordered placed on file.

Mayor Cummins announced that the established routine would be ignored and that other matters would now be taken up.

W. A. Anderson appeared before the Council and explained matters in regard to the ownership and rights as applied to Anderson Island. Mr. Anderson asserted that as the City's deed to the said island covered only certain specified areas, any subsequent accretions thereto were legally his property and carried with them all riparian rights. He asked that the City immediately cause gravel to cease being pumped upon his part of said island and further more to reimburse him at the rate of ten cents per yard for all gravel already taken out. Mayor Cummins spoke at length explaining the matter to the Council, and then conferred with Mr. Anderson. No agreement was reached as Mr. Anderson then left the meeting. Then it was moved and seconded that the Engineer and City Attorney be empowered and directed to investigate Mr. Anderson's claim and title on said island and report back to the Council at a later date. Carried.

Frank Stara and Bert Needham appeared before the Council and asked about building an addition to Mr. Stara's building for the purpose of housing a bowling alley. Mr. Stara presented a formal application for this addition. Mayor Cummins spoke at length explaining the matter to the Council. It was pointed out by Councilman Burrows that such an application was contrary to City Ordinance and that regardless of personal feelings of the Mayor and Council sanctioning such a permit would be illegal. Mr. Stara then asked permission to withdraw his application. Moved and second that the permission be granted and the application was withdrawn.

Leland Barrett appeared before the Council with a proposition that the City grant permission to the NYA to tear down and salvage the old brick pump houses belonging to the City. He proposed that such salvaged brick be build into a youths cabin or building with NYA labor for construction and the City paying any actual monetary outlay in connection therewith. Mayor Cummins spoke at length explaining the matter to the Council. No action was taken.

Mayor Cummins presented two verbal applications to build iron clad structures in the fire limits of the City of Ord for the housing and storage of grain. City Attorney Davis then read an opinion to the effect that since the mayor and Council had established a precedent by allowing and approving the erection of an iron clad structure in the fire limits of the City when asked by the Irrigation District to do so, such precedent should be taken into consideration when considering any subsequent and similar applications. Considerable discussion ensued. Several Councilmen pointed out that such verbal applications were in themselves illegal and did not in any way conform to the ordinance requiring (Continued on page 9)

TYPEWRITERS, NOT BOOKS

The above title is not intended to be funny. It is merely a repetition of a headline used in one of our exchanges last week.

In a Nebraska attorney general, Walter decision handed down by the R. Johnson, in a case in which the point was brought up, he makes the following statement:

"As far back as 1875, the constitution of Nebraska read, in part, as follows:

"The legislature shall provide for the free instruction in the common schools of this state of all persons between the ages of 5 and 21 years.

"Many years elapsed before the law provided that free text books should be furnished, and it has not yet provided that the use of typewriters must be furnished free to those taking instruction in that subject."

"If the school district furnish the instructor and the text books free of charge, it is not required, in my opinion, to furnish also, free of charge, a typewriter upon which the student may practice the art of typewriting."

It is not the purpose of this article to criticize the attorney general, whose point is well taken, but rather to call attention to the fact that we in Nebraska have gone a long way in education since the first schools were established in the dugouts, and log and sod houses of the early settlers.

The earliest schools in Nebraska were taught by Pioneer teachers, who in many cases taught for their board and room, and what little the parents of their pupils could spare, sometimes in cash, but more often in merchandise.

Sometimes they "boarded around," and sometimes they took what supplies the neighbors furnished and lived on that at home.

Most schools in the Loup valley region were taught by teachers who were paid with tax money, as provided by the state constitution in 1875, but their wages in those days were very low.

The school period of the year was usually divided into three terms, fall, winter and spring. In the more prosperous districts there were two months in the fall term, three in the winter term and two in the spring term, seven months in all.

This caused another complication, as the older children especially the boys, could only go to school during the winter term, and thus got far behind those who could attend regularly. Where the children were small and the school house a long distance away, sometimes the little folks would go in the spring and fall and stay at home in the winter.

It was common for each pupil in the class to have text books different from all the others, so it became a job of individual instruction for the teacher, even when there might be 30 or 40 children in one school room.

Sometimes a family could not afford any books, and the children came to school and learned what they could without them.

There are quite a number of people living in the county who can recall those days, and the time when the districts first began furnishing the text books in the schools. Those first books are still to be found in attics in many homes, and come to light frequently at sales, where they bring no price at all because they are so far out of date.

Most famous of all the early day school books were the McGuffey Readers, which went out of circulation in the '30s and were succeeded by the Franklin, Baldwin and other readers of a later date. Equally famous were the Ray's arithmetics, Harvey's grammar, Hildpath's and Barnes' histories and the Student's Speller.

From furnishing too little, our school system has developed until today it is the opinion of many that it is furnishing too much. The biggest single item of governmental expense today is our educational system and it sometimes seems, as in the instance mentioned in opening this article, that the fall is wagging the dog. We cannot afford a backward step, but we must practice economy in the future.

stood. Jan Huss, Martin Luther, Roger Williams, and thousands of others have suffered ridicule and physical and mental punishment because they dared to think for themselves.

The greatest curse of progress is this attitude of the general public toward anyone who dares to have an idea of his own. Many an embryo Edison has quit in disgust because of ridicule. It is impossible even to estimate the loss there are those who, not gifted with ability themselves, point the finger of scorn at those who have.

Thirty years ago a young man had an idea, and to prove his idea was good, he built a road over a hill, a road a half mile long, at a cost of $50 for the work. That fall the people raised the cry of "He is wasting the tax money," and he was defeated for road boss. He was discouraged, sold out and left the country.

But what of the road he built at the rate of $100 per mile? It is still in use, and in that time nothing has been used on it but the maintainer. It was the best $50 investment that township ever made, but you couldn't get the mossbacks still living to admit it. To them that incident was just a shameful waste of money.

Just a little more than ten years after that half-mile was built, Valley built its first version of Highway No. 11, and the record shows that it cost from $1000 to $3500 per mile, which was only a small percent of the amount that has been spent on that highway since that time. This figure from ten to 35 times as much as was spent on that piece of road, mile per mile, yet the public thinks nothing of it.

It might be well to close this with a paragraph about the Great Commoner, Williams Jennings Bryan. Three times he was a candidate for the highest office in the land, and thrice he was defeated. The ideas he advocated were too unreasonable and sensible for people to believe. And yet we have lived to see all those ideas put into practice in our government and today W. J. Bryan is recognized as one of the greatest men of all times.

Everybody in Ord probably has seen that fine big dog that used to go with Jake Hoffman every Sunday when he went out with his car. He always sat on the front seat beside Jake and got as much enjoyment out of the trip as his master did. Not long ago the dog disappeared and nobody knows what became of him, but Jake misses him and wishes he had him back again.

A magnificent pair of deer horns may be seen in Ord, about as fine as you would see anywhere. They are hanging up on the wall in Verne Anderson's Phillips 66 station, and were brought from Colorado by Archie Mason who found them there a part of the skeleton of a large deer. They are still connected with the skull and have a total of 15 prongs.

The Quiz man has not been able to get all the details of the story, but it seems that Mayor M. B. Cummins went modern recently and bought a pair of those new-fangled zipper pants. He isn't wearing them any more which leads to the conclusion that they were not satisfactory and failed to work according to specifications.

Early Monday morning the bankers, C. J. Ralph and Emil, were holding a consultation on the Milford corner. With Santa Claus only two weeks away they may have been considering ways and means of giving the old boy credit, but it is interesting to note that they could visit in comfort on a winter morning. The thermometer stood at 45 degrees, and it has stood at 18 below on the same date.

Bowling Alley Quits. After remaining open for a year the bowling alley at St. Paul decided to quit, and the equipment will be moved elsewhere. Here in Ord we have one alley which has been going strong for some time, and another is ready to open for business.

Whenever I pass the Payzant farm I think of the drainage tile he has implanted in his field to drain off the surplus water.

Short Shavings. Doug Barber tells the story of how Ed Brace owed him some money once and Ed could not pay it if he just had a check book, which he didn't have out on the farm where he was. It was a long way to town and back and Doug needed the money at once. So Ed took a shingle, a nice clean one, and wrote out a check on it and gave it to Doug. Doug took this shingle to town and presented it to the bank. The bankers studied over it a while and finally cashed the check, taking it and putting it in their files.

I read a story once how a couple of men were shipwrecked on a desert island. One man was about to die (and did) but first he wrote on the back of the other man, his will. The other man was saved and can you imagine the hellova time he had with the lawyers and county clerks office to file that will.

Then Doug told another story that he heard somewhere. It seems the bride had roasted a chicken for the Thanksgiving dinner. When the young husband sat down to dinner he asked about the dressing and the bride answered that there is no dressing, there was no place for it because this chicken was not hollow.

A FEW THINGS TO THINK ABOUT! Made Good in City Vignettes of a Dry Country

Written by GEORGE GOWEN Short Shavings

Made Good In The City. Harold Green, formerly of North Loup, is another Valley county boy, who in a small way, "has made good in the city."

After the family left North Loup and wanted to go to college. Being very short of money, this college business was somewhat of a problem. However, he went to Chadron, hoping to enter the normal school, there, all of which he did largely on faith and hope that he could make it somehow.

Even in high school days he was quite a good musician, but this music ran more to less classical type and band playing. At Chadron he solicited a job playing in an orchestra. He was offered the job playing the trumpet providing he could play swing music. This he had never done, for swing music, in the minds of the people he had usually been with, had always been considered a sacrilege.

He was faced with the fact of learning to play swing music or going home so he put himself to it and in a few days he had that art conquered. He played with that orchestra the whole year making fifty dollars a month under the other leader.

The next year he organized his own orchestra and for that and the following year he was the leader. By some accident the fellows got to calling him Johnnie Green and everywhere in the western part of the state after that he was known as Johnnie Green and it was Johnnie Green's orchestra. They had regular schedules for playing and no doubt many of you have heard Johnnie Green's orchestra from the west state radio programs.

Times got hard the last two years and he did not make so much as at first. They played mostly by ear, but he trained his players until they could buy a sheet of music and after the pianist had gone through it a few times the rest would join in and "away they would go."

This is not quite all of the story either. Besides earning his way and going to summer school, Harold finished and got his degree in three years and was offered a scholarship to the University of Nebraska in physics on account of his excellent work in that subject. He put in all his spare time (I was amused when he said spare time) studying different musical instruments and now he can play every instrument some, and a few good.

This year he has a position in the Ewing high school, teaching music, band, mathematics and physics.

Vignettes Of A Dry Country. I have been told that Mira creek is running again after many years of dormancy. Many of the springs have opened up that for many years have been nearly forgotten. It all seems quite mysterious considering the present drought. Some folks think it is because of the irrigation water that has been spread in the valley. One fellow thought that the tapping of the oil wells in Richardson county released pressure that turned a spigot or gadget under the ground somewhere and started the springs again.

On the east side of the river there is a little creek named Stewart creek. It ends on the Schudel farm and heads up northeast of Sumner. Ever since I have known it, it has been dry except after rains. But Otto Barz says years ago it ran a continuous small stream and there were springs all along to furnish that water. More mystery. Why did they dry up?

The farm on which Lyle Abney lives has a river bottom tract that never has failed to produce a crop of corn on account of the closeness of the moisture to the surface of the ground. But this year it came nearer falling than ever and the reason is laid to the fact that the river was low in the summer and consequently not the seepage.

Whenever I pass the Payzant farm I think of the drainage tile he has implanted in his field to drain off the surplus water.

Short Shavings. Doug Barber tells the story of how Ed Brace owed him some money once and Ed could not pay it if he just had a check book, which he didn't have out on the farm where he was. It was a long way to town and back and Doug needed the money at once. So Ed took a shingle, a nice clean one, and wrote out a check on it and gave it to Doug. Doug took this shingle to town and presented it to the bank. The bankers studied over it a while and finally cashed the check, taking it and putting it in their files.

I read a story once how a couple of men were shipwrecked on a desert island. One man was about to die (and did) but first he wrote on the back of the other man, his will. The other man was saved and can you imagine the hellova time he had with the lawyers and county clerks office to file that will.

Then Doug told another story that he heard somewhere. It seems the bride had roasted a chicken for the Thanksgiving dinner. When the young husband sat down to dinner he asked about the dressing and the bride answered that there is no dressing, there was no place for it because this chicken was not hollow.

Burwell News

Written by Mrs. B. A. Rose

Warrane Hall and Donald Savage drove to Brown county last Tuesday duck hunting.

Tuesday evening a group of young people met at the Vergil Beck home to practice Christmas carols. Father Murray was in charge.

Christmas is definitely in the air in Burwell. The streets are strung with the multi-colored lights and here and there a decoration appears. The Hallowell Hotel has one of the large windows turned into a beautiful "Christmas Scene", against a mid-night blue background, the friendly folk stand in silhouette, with star rays guiding their journey. The Golden Rule store has a lovely line of gifts on display. McMullen's store with its falling snow flakes is very impressive and runs true to form as McMullen's each December have one of the outstanding window displays in Burwell. Moore's drug store is festooned with Christmas greens and the Corner Cupboard is lovely with many unusual gifts.

Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Lashmet have just returned from Brule where they visited Mr. and Mrs. Carl Arndt, the latter being a sister of Mrs. Lashmet.

A great deal of interest is being shown here in poultry diseases, care of their quarters and proper food. "Brother" Lashmet vaccinated the Charles Meyers flock last Tuesday evening. Little Richard Welton celebrated his third birthday Dec. 7, with his little cousin Carol Welton who has just returned from the west coast. Richard received many nice gifts but the nicest was a big chocolate birthday cake with three candles from his mother. At Sunday school Richard entertained his class by giving each one a pretty cup cake tied up in cellophane while they sang Happy Birthday to him.

Miss Emma Kruml, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Kruml, left Thursday for Omaha where she will take over the work of her sister, Phyllis, who is employed in the Prague Hotel. Phyllis will return to Burwell for Christmas. Miss Minnie Kruml, a third sister, is also employed in Omaha.

Thursday afternoon the Burwell school children were dismissed early in order to attend the special matinee showing of Charles Dickens' famed "Christmas Carol." This picture is unusually good because of much research work done to make the scenes and costumes authentic.

A great crowd of people both local and from neighboring communities gathered in Burwell Wednesday to see the good will Christmas show sponsored by the Burwell business men. Earl Hammond, a famous explorer and adventurer with his complete show paraded the streets and made a climaxed appearance on the athletic field. The Hammond show consisted of several trucks of equipment, two teams of huskies, two teams of northern ponies, many people in costumes representing totem poles and many displaying beautiful fur costumes. The parade ended with a float of a beautiful white cottage with Santa Claus in an old-fashioned sled and four reindeer behind. The Burwell band and Mrs. Langstrom's carol singers assisted Mr. Hammond with his show. An estimated crowd of 5,000 attended this show and many expressions of pleasure and gratitude were heard congratulating the Burwell business men for their efforts in bringing forth true Christmas cheer.

Gilbert Davenport, a Burwell high school teacher, and Wayne Riggs, of Wahoo, spent Sunday in Omaha.

Word has been received from Doris Miller, formerly of Burwell, that she is now doing secretarial work in a finance company in Los Angeles. Doris spent one day last week with Ruth and Mildred Haas, former Burwell girls. Lorraine, the third Haas girl is married and lives in Ogden, U.

The Junior Matrons club met with Mrs. Iola Moore for their December meeting, Thursday afternoon. Twelve members were present and spent the afternoon playing cards. The Quilt club met Thursday afternoon with Mrs. Russell Mitchell.

One of the Sunday features in the State Journal was the story of this week's gathering of Nebraska farm folks which is called Organized Agriculture. Mrs. G. A. Butts of Burwell is a speaker on the late Thursday morning program. She will tell about her trip to Europe. For several years Mrs. Butts has been a favored speaker for Women's club work. The past summer Mrs. Butts toured Europe. Her travelogue is usually interesting and is always well given. Her picture appeared in the Sunday Journal this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Neal Sloan made a business trip to Grand Island Monday.

Sibyl Webb, small daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Webb has been seriously ill the past week with infection of the ear.

An inter-class basketball meet was held at the Burwell high school gymnasium three nights this week. The seniors were victorious and a final game was scheduled between the seniors and alumni which was played Thursday night. The alumni won with a score of 15-14.

Wednesday Victor Zalud, 18 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Zalud who live east of Burwell, met with a painful accident while shredding cane for Earl Scofield. The injury was received when he attempted to jump from a moving wagon and caught his ring upon a nail. The flesh was torn so badly amputation was found necessary. The finger was removed at the second joint and he was brought to the Gram hospital for treatment.

December 8 George West took about thirty-five agricultural students on a field trip. The moisture content of non-irrigated and irrigated soil was measured.

E. B. Catterson, state extension agent of Ainsworth, called on county agent Ralph Douglas Monday. Mrs. Catterson accompanied him and spent the afternoon with Mrs. Douglas.

The Burwell Woman's club had as their guest speaker Monday afternoon Mrs. McGowan of Chadron.

Mrs. Allie Grunkemeyer, Sarah, Marguerite and Pearl Signor were in Grand Island Saturday.

Mrs. Asa Anderson, Mrs. Will Hemmett, Miss Virginia Hemmett and Don Anderson drove to Grand Island Saturday. At Ord Mr. and Mrs. Asa Anderson, Jr., joined the party.

Mildred Hummel, Ruth Langstrom and Carol Demaree accompanied Mr. Struve, their music instructor, to Beatrice this week. This student group will represent the Burwell high school in the Nebraska Music Educators clinic.

Monday evening a wedding ceremony was performed by Judge Rose of Burwell, uniting Elise Crockett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Crockett and Frank Rickerson, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Rickerson. Both reside north of Burwell. Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Darrah of Burwell were witnesses. An eight o'clock wedding dinner was served at the home of the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Rickerson.

The Wranglers held their regular meeting at the Hallowell hotel Monday evening. Twenty-one members were present. Carol Walker and John Lewis, both of Burwell, were taken in as new members. The topic of retaining the office of county agent was discussed. Four out-of-town guests were entertained.

Bernard Wagner, Cecil Hawthorne and John Beynon drove to Kansas on business Monday.

The Knight Club held a desert party Monday evening at the Verley home. Joan Verley, Hazel Leopold, Marcia Rood and Dorothy Pollin acting as hostesses. Thirty-two members were present, and Swedish rummy and spook was played. Virginia Rose Hemmett received high score. Each guest took a white elephant which were used for gift exchanges. The party ended with group singing of Christmas carols.

Ericson Branch Line Will Be Abandoned

Abandon the Ericson branch line was the recommendation made recently by an examiner for the Interstate Commerce Commission in the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroad's application for permission to take such action. The line has operated at a substantial loss for several years, the examiner found.

The trackage to be abandoned includes 17.38 miles of road between Greeley and Ericson. Ericson business men, Wheeler county ranchers and others effected have made a determined effort to save the line, apparently without success. They maintained that the railroad has lost no more money the last few years than have the ranchers and business men, and predicted that with a general return of prosperity the line would prosper also.

Greeley county tax units will lose much money from the withdrawal if the Interstate Commerce Commission accedes to the findings of its examiner, which is the usual procedure.

Football Banquet

which were arranged artistically, with a continuous table running around the outside except in front of the entrance, where room was left for diners and waitresses to reach the inner tables. Three other tables extended lengthwise through the center of the room.

The Ord Cosmopolitan club had charge of the affair, and arrangements were complete in every detail. The entertainment committee had arranged for the high school orchestra to furnish the music, which they did to the satisfaction of all concerned. The members were Christina Petersen, Lyle Flagg, Orville and Gerald Stoddard, Gerald Jirak, James O'Leary, Rodney Rathburn, David Milliken, Harry McBeth and Dean Misko. Miss Petersen sang "My Prayer" and "South of the Border" very effectively.

The decorations committee had done a very fine job of beautifying the auditorium. Across the north side were lines and numbers to represent the side of a football field, with yard numbers from 50 in the center to zero at the ends, in colors of red and white. Red, white and blue paper was used to decorate the center of each table. The young ladies who waited on the tables wore red in their hair.

The Methodist ladies had charge of the meal, and it was one of the best handled banquets in Ord for some time. The older ladies had charge of the kitchen and supervised the service in the hall, while a large group of young ladies took charge of the table service. The orchestra played throughout the meal and until the speaking program began.

As soon as the meal was over the football players present began to ask Major Jones to autograph their programs, which he did. The demand became so great that the line formed on the right, and for fully fifteen minutes the boys, and some not so young, kept him busy. John Misko, as master of ceremonies, introduced Mr. Deines, music director of the Ord schools, who played two selections on his violin. His ability on this instrument is well known to require further comment.

With timely and well chosen remarks Mr. Misko called on each of the coaches to stand with his group of football boys and speak a few words. A check of those who rose disclosed that D. Willis of Arcadia was present with 15; J. Keill of Burwell had 12; E. Dasher of Comstock had 15; D. Hawkins of Loup City had 10; W. Willis of North Loup had 15; and H. Dean of Sargent had 8; and of course Brockman of Ord was present with his full squad.

John Bentley, sports editor of the Lincoln Journal, was next introduced, and spoke about ten minutes. Mr. Bentley has the rare ability to sense what will be of most interest to his hearers, and he had the undivided attention of the audience throughout his speech. One thought he gave should be memorized: "All this life amounts to is a struggle for self-respect."

When introduced Major Jones told of his plans to attend the banquet at Ord last year, and that he desired to come because he had heard of the long string of victories Ord had won, and was anxious to see the team that could compile such a record. At the last moment the board of regents decided that he could serve the university better by going to Washington and asking congress for an appropriation for the school.

He said that at last it seems that his trip may bear some fruit, and that the seats around the north end of the stadium may be made a WPA project. Before proceeding further he mentioned the fact that Lloyd Grimm, who played on the Cornhusker squads in 1937 and 1938, was in the auditorium, and asked him to stand and say a few words. Mr. Grimm is now a salesman, and made it a point to be in Ord for the banquet.

In speaking along football lines, Major Jones told of the disastrous season of 1938, and showed how it had much to do with the successful one of 1939. He told how the team took a brace toward the close of the season and won three of their four games. The poor showing made earlier in the year was traceable to lack of preparation.

All last winter, he said, members of the squad would be out tossing a football around, tackling the dummy and thus keeping themselves in physical condition for the spring practice. The result was that when spring came and was able to make up two squads and have them scrimmage against each other. It seemed difficult at times to tell which of these squads was the better.

This plan was continued in the fall, and led up to the idea of running in one squad in the first quarter and another in the second, a plan that was used by Pittsburgh for years with great success. This plan resulted in the splendid showing made by Nebraska throughout the 1939 season. He recommended the plan to high schools with enough players to make it practical.

At the close of his talk he showed a resume of the Nebraska-Minnesota game in slow motion pictures which were of great value to the players, as they showed how many of the plays of both teams were executed. He also showed some fine motion pictures made in color by Syl Furtak at the Loup City-Ord game Thanksgiving day.

A check-up of the finances shows that a total of 284 tickets were sold although some were unable to attend. The Cosmopolitan club worked hard to make the affair a success, and they feel that their efforts were appreciated. They also desire to thank all who helped in any way, since it requires the cooperation of everybody in a large enterprise of this kind.

Something Different

Santa Claus is causing much excitement in Ord these days. A group of small children who were planning on going to Burwell to witness Santa's entry were very thrilled, prancing up and down, when some hardy soul told them Santa Claus was dead! They took up the chant, those little three-year-olds, and went about the yard screaming and crying, "Santa Claus is dead. Santa Claus is dead."

Then there was the child, a bit older and more canny, who only lately learned there ain't no Santa Claus and did some fast thinking. Also some questioning, "Who'll give us presents, Mother? We won't get any presents then, will we?" Then the young man sat himself down and composed a letter to Santa, detailing that he wanted a Royal Mounly policeman's suit and a travelling target. He put the letter in an envelope, sealed, stamped and addressed it to "Santa Claus, Ord, Nebr." and down in one corner he wrote, "Care of Wencel Misko."

The grandfather in question received the letter, was tickled pink and went downtown shopping as fast as he could get there.

I think it is astounding how few things in this world are really built for children, although they claim the child is the hub of our civilization today more than ever before.

Movies... They claim a number of recent ones were made for children. Small children could not understand the simper voices used in Snowwhite, I know because I questioned a good many of them. And all children were horrified at the Wicked Queen, some of them left the show, some hid their faces, some could not sleep after seeing her. Some of them cried. Some grown-ups could not sleep... yet it was a show for children? And much the same feeling worried the children when the naughty witch in the Wizard of Oz made Dorothy so much trouble.

Toys... they are made for children? Well, those wind-up ones are cunning, but it is the adults who grab them first, who have to wind them, who exclaim, Children have to have them explained, have them worked. Books? Many of the sophisticated blurbs and pictures have meaning only for adults. What's the difference if some adult can be inveigled into buying them for the youngsters? So, make them to appeal to the big folks.

Radio programs? For children? Very few of them truly are... Orphan Annie, the wild detective and murder and horror tales, the gangster chases and club-for-youngsters organized among listeners? Or the ones that want Sonny to eat Bla-bla's breakfast food, send in thirty box-tops and 10c and get a worthless paper, tin and glass telescope that falls to pieces with dispatch?

BACK FORTY

A bit of legislation which may greatly lower taxes on property is being sponsored by the Nebraska Farm Bureau Federation. The plan may also affect schools more than any other issue in the history of Nebraska education.

The bureau is proposing an amendment to the state constitution. The amendment would limit our state's over-all property tax to 7 mills on property in the open country, and 15 mills on property within villages, towns or cities.

each unit would get. But no more than 7 or 15 mills could be levied for all purposes, including state, county, city and township governments, school districts, etc. The reduced levy would not apply to bond issues, or existing indebtedness.

My Own Column

Hitler was chosen to rule in Germany because the people became dissatisfied with the then conditions. Whether they jumped out of the frying pan into the fire is neither here nor there. The same unrest among the people resulted in the election of Roosevelt in 1932 when there were ten million unemployed in this country.

During the past seven years scheme after scheme has been tried always by spending billions of the people's money and time after time those schemes have been discarded as failures and new schemes tried and that same thing is still going on and the national debt is still mounting.

Just to keep the weather records straight I must tell you about a picnic the Leggett family enjoyed Sunday, December 9. December is not usually a good time for picnics in Nebraska but this year is an exception. We took beef steak for dinner and drove up to the Judge Clements' farm east of Burwell, and down among the cedars and elms. There we found a nice table, plenty of dry wood and a sort of cooking place which we improved somewhat by using an old car radiator grill for the top and it was not long until we had coffee, steak and fried potatoes, which with the other things the women had taken, made a wonderful out of doors meal. There was no wind, the sun was shining brightly, we thought it was about 65 degrees and the children played around on the grass and had a fine time. The water was too cool for wading so we didn't indulge in that sport, but we will long remember December 9 of 1939, in fact all December so far has been exactly the same. It gets down close to the freezing point some nights and some nights it don't and everyone is wondering if we are really going to have any winter.

In writing this week to renew his Quiz for another year, J. J. Stara inclosed, besides the draft, a page of pictures from his home town paper, the Aberdeen (Wash.) World. John nearly always does this and I sure enjoy looking at the pictures, this time a full page of water pictures taken in that vicinity. He put a notation on the edge of the page saying, "This is God's country; had front door open all day." Well, we did the same here and some of us who have been in Valley county all our lives, nearly, think we are in God's country, too, but a little more moisture would make us think it harder and louder.

As I have reminded you before, nothing makes a nicer Christmas for absent son or daughter than a copy of the Quiz for a year. What made me think of it now was that George Allen came in and had it sent to George Allen, Jr., at Friend where he is making good as city manager. Our special Christmas offer is very attractive. Ask us about it.

Nebraska's Big Rodeo Selects Dates for Fair

At a recent meeting of the board of the Garfield County Frontier Fair association, the dates for the 1940 fair were selected. They will be Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, Aug. 6, 7, 8 and 9. The fair last year came six days later in the month, but since a day is lost each year and two on leap years, it is necessary to advance the time a week about every six years.

When You And I Were Young Maggie

December 12, 1929

J. M. Beeghly, miller in the Ord mills, came near losing his thumbs when the lid of a box fell, breaking a bone in one and smashing the other. The Maytag men held a big banquet at the Masonic hall, in celebration of winning the district sales contest. F. J. Cohen had the honor of being the top salesman in Nebraska. Ralph James was making good playing football on the freshman team of the University of California. Ord musicians broadcasted a program from station KOBZ at York. Those taking part were Louis Puncocchar, Joe Puncocchar, George Puncocchar, Ed Kerchal and Joe Lukesh. James Wachtle went along and acted as radio announcer. Walt Finch almost lost a thumb when it caught in an alcohol tester at his filling station. It took several stitches to repair the damage. The city basketball league swung into action with six teams playing. Paul Gregg, a guard on the Ord high school squad, had been selected by his team mates as captain for the coming year.

December 11, 1919

Promotor Merritt H. Fuson was called to Ravenna, where he was to referee a wrestling match. From there he went on to Holdrege where they wanted him to promote a match there. Mrs. G. W. Seiver had sold her home in Ord to Alvin Packer, and planned to live with her daughter. Mrs. Seiver, as Miss Emily C. Bancroft, was married to William C. Hobson at Ord on Aug. 10, 1872, the first ceremony to be recorded in the records of Valley county. County Judge H. Gudmundsen officiated at the marriage of Stella V. Knudsen and Warner Vergin on Dec. 10. In the absence of Judge Hanna, who was unable to preside, the fall term of court in Valley county was heard by judge Corcoran of York. At noon Dec. 9, the Union Pacific round house was found to be on fire. The fire burned out the north end of the building, making it a better sieve than a shelter. Miss Maud Jackman, newly appointed clerk of the district court, took up her duties in that office. Mr. and Mrs. Tom Fuson were in Ord and furnished a part of the program at the Gem Theatre, with the result that the place was jammed.

December 16, 1909

It was announced that Russia was about to build submarines. Archie Keep left for Pennsylvania to see his father and three brothers. The Lincoln Daily Star was advertising a two months trial subscription for 25c. F. J. Bell was building a roller skating rink, but was not proceeding very rapidly because of the cold weather. The Ord Journal office was to be moved to the Misko building on the north side of the square, the present site of the North Side meat market. The G. A. R. people, 42 in number, surprised Mr. and Mrs. A. Ward on his 90th birthday, Dec. 13. Skating was fine on the creeks and on some sections of the river, and the young people were having a fine time. Dr. J. W. McGinnis went to Omaha to attend the Nebraska State Veterinary association meeting.

December 15, 1899

S. P. Warner, who had been the efficient janitor of the high school for some years, had resigned because of differences with the superintendent, C. L. Anderson, and his place was to be taken by J. E. Cramer. The Union Pacific had gone modern. The train run by John Ratliff had its old stoves removed and the cars were to be heated in the future by steam. The case of the state vs. W. W. Haskell for riding his bicycle on the sidewalk was dismissed, the city to pay the costs. F. J. Bell, of Burwell, received honorable mention in some pictures he furnished the Burlington railroad. The school board had chosen Miss Grace Fackler as additional teacher to teach in the second primary. Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Weaver were on a trip to Excelsior Springs, Mo., in the interests of their health. John G. Bremer had bought the Peter Routh place in Mira Valley for a consideration of $2150. M. L. Fries of Arcadia drove his team to Ord and put up for the night and drove back the next day. It was a common procedure in those days of few cars and bad highways. The trip then took half as many hours as it takes minutes now.

December 13, 1889

Herbert Mattley of Haskell Creek died on his 35th birthday. He had been sick and unable to work for several years. It was rumored that the Church of England was going to build in Arcadia, and that Hon. John Wall was going to donate the lot for it in case they did. The Quiz made much of the fact that 12 pounds of granulated sugar could be bought for one dollar. By the hundred sugar is now selling at $5.25, or about 2-3 the price at that time. Robinson and Colby received a carload of water main pipes, size not stated, and they were to be laid as quickly as possible. W. C. Kendall was thrown from his horse and concussion of the brain resulted. He recovered. The waterworks engine was moved to its new location near the mouth of Dane creek, where it was to be put to work soon. Jefferson Davis, head of the late Confederacy, died at the age of 81 years.

December 14, 1883

A small building was to be put up between the new bank building and the county clerk's office, to be used for Mortensen and Babcock's real estate business. The grand opening of Walker's drug store on Dec 8 was a great success. Davis and Rost were paying $3.15 for fat hogs and $4. for stockers delivered in Ord. The North Loup Banking company was doing business in new quarters. A turkey and chicken shoot was to be held at the G. W. Seiver farm northeast of Ord. The Quiz spoke of the fine work done by Robert Harvey, of St. Paul, in making a plat of the Ord cemetery and several sections of the town itself.

Sludge accumulated in the well will be removed and another attempt will be made later.

He Caught The Crow. Our neighboring town of Palmer has been trying to arouse interest in the extermination of crows by turning birds loose with identifying marks, the man finding the crow to win a prize. One of these was turned loose by Geo. Bauman, and Ross Frey caught the bird and won the prize.

They Are Cousins. Wayne Morris, noted athlete and now a well known movie star, is a cousin of Homer C. Stokes of Palmer and for many years a resident of Burwell. Morris plays a role in the technicolor feature, Peter B. Kyne's "Valley of the Giants."

(Continued from page 3) lating to the making of such applications. City Attorney Davis announced that any such claims were invalid and that the City could and would legally retain possession of the City Dump until such time as the lease expires.

ORD LIVESTOCK MARKET

'No News Is Good News'

By GEORGE PARSONS
© Associated Newspapers.
WNU Service.

"OF COURSE," said the smartly dressed visitor, as she glanced about the simply furnished, sunshiny little room, "I can imagine your not wanting to work in winter—you always did hate wading through slush or snow, I remember, and it must be sort of nice just to stay at home and take things easy while the mercury clings to zero. But in spring—well, that's different again."

The bungalow aproned hostess merely smiled as she reflected that stoking a furnace, shoveling paths, tending to the supply of dry mittens, leggings and stocking caps, wool socks and warm scarfs for three active children, wasn't exactly "taking things easy."

"You know you can get your old job back in a minute," declared Madeline. "Miss Burke said just the other day she would be tickled pink to have you in the French section once more—that you were the best saleswoman she ever had. She even said that in case you were short of cash to buy a nice chic little dress for work, she'd make you a special rate on one of the sample models, for she said the girls who get married always are short of cash by the time they have even one kid, let alone three."

"You better think it over, dearie," urged Madeline, drawing her smart crushed gauntlet gloves over smooth white hands. "Any time before the fourteenth, Miss Burke said to let her know. "My!" suddenly exclaimed Madeline, "it certainly will seem like old times to be going out to lunch again with you. And with Phil on the road three weeks out of four, you can get off for some good times instead of being tied to the house the way you are now, every day in the week just like every other day, week after week, month after month."

Her visitor gone, Viola Armstrong looked thoughtfully about one room after another of the little house.

She wondered if she would be able to pick up the new dance steps—Phil never wanted to go out evenings during the week he was in from the "road"—it would seem good to go to a movie or musical show once in a while.

Three hungry children, trooping in from the sand-pile in the back yard, interrupted Viola's thoughts. Deftly she prepared supper.

As the children ate, Viola once more thought of Madeline's words. Of Miss Burke's offer. And she reflected that all three of the jolly brown-eyed youngsters would be fed and tucked into their beds before she would be home from the store, if she went back to work in town. There would be but cold comfort in buying pretty clothes and expensive toys for the children if she was never home to see them wear the clothes or play with the toys.

Supper over, the three laughing children trooped up the stairs to make ready for bed. Viola tucked each child into its own little bed or crib.

Slowly she made her way down the stairs and into the silent living-room. Madeline was right—it wasn't so cheery, this having one's husband on the road three weeks out of four. That is, it wasn't so cheery during the three weeks. The fourth, of course, was just like a gorgeous vacation.

That fourth week wouldn't be so much, though, if she were working in a store in town, Viola admitted to herself.

Seating herself before the well-worn old desk—the desk which had served Phil throughout his college years—Viola took out pen and paper, just as she did every night that Phil was "on the road."

Phil wouldn't be home till after the fourteenth—if she was going back to work, she must let him know.

Suddenly Viola remembered something Phil had said not many weeks before. "I never fret about the youngsters' money," he had told her. "I know you are right on the job, looking after them, instead of tearing around like a cuckoo flapper. I suppose it's lonesome business for you, but I'm telling you the kids are darned lucky to have a mother like you on the job 24 hours a day, every day in the week."

Forty-eight hours later, a certain gray-eyed young man tore open an envelope and eagerly scanned the closely written pages it contained. "Madeline Clarke called—she looked like a million dollars—and she tried to inveigle me into going back to the store. No thanks. No clock punching and waiting on fussy women who have more time and money than they have taste. Not while I've such a grand job looking after the cunningest little house and the three sweetest children in the world, to say nothing of writing to the nicest husband who ever lived."

So read the letter which, strangely enough commenced: "Dearest Phil: Today has been just like every other Sunday when you aren't at home; there really is no news at all."

And ended: "P. S.: I've gone all through my cedar chest and piece bag, and I've found enough stuff to make enough braided rag rugs for the nursery, new cushion covers for the davenport, and for a coat for Betsy. Who says we aren't wealthy."

"Mail Packages Early," Postmaster Requests

"There will be more reason this year to mail packages early than usual," says Alfred L. Hill, Ord postmaster. "Since there will be no mail service on either Dec. 24 or 25, it will be necessary to mail your packages so that they will reach their destination on the morning of Dec. 23. Packages addressed to Nebraska should be mailed by the evening of Dec. 20, and for more distant points as much earlier as necessary."

Since Christmas comes this year on Monday, it will be preceded by Sunday, always a legal holiday, so delivery of Christmas packages must be advanced an extra 24 hours. The use of a special delivery stamp will assure the delivery of your parcel on Christmas day, provided it is mailed early enough. Fourth class mail may be given special handling upon payment, in addition to the regular postage, of the proper charge.

Dwight Griswold Again Candidate for Governor

Dwight Griswold, of Gordon, nominee of the republican party for governor of Nebraska in 1932, 1934 and 1936, filed Tuesday as a candidate for the republican nomination for this office.

"Many have urged me" to file, saying that I deserve the nomination in 1940 when a republican victory is quite probable because I carried the banner when there was little chance to win; others say that I have run too often," stated Griswold.

"Neither statement is quite true," he continued. "The duty of republican voters is to choose that candidate who is best able to make the necessary campaign fight to fill properly the office, if elected. Public offices should not be passed out as rewards to deserving party workers—honesty and ability should be the basis of the voters' decision."

Mr. Griswold says he expects to make an active, aggressive campaign. In his previous election fights he gained the reputation of being the hardest worker ever to stump the state. In one six day period in 1934 he spoke in 74 different towns. He always ran ahead of his ticket and all three times received a larger vote than any other candidate for governor ever received without being elected.

Mrs. Haight Opens New Ord Restaurant

Haight's Cafe opened the latter part of last week in the Bailey building south across the street from Ord's new postoffice and across the alley west of the Farmer's Store. The place has been fitted up in fine style, the painting being done by Fryzek and son and the carpenter work by Toot Harris.

A partition has been built across separating the kitchen from the lunch room in front. The equipment includes a large refrigerator, an ice cream cabinet, counters, pie and pastry cases and tables. The room is heated with an oil heater. The front of the building has been repainted.

Venetian blinds will be installed as soon as they arrive. The most interesting piece of equipment is a late type electric coffee urn. Mrs. Will Moon, Jr., is doing the cooking, and Miss Christie Larsen takes care of the customers, assisted by the proprietor, Mrs. Jessie Haight.

When Lightning Strikes

IF JERRY HOWARD had not been so altogether good to look upon, so interesting because of his very critical, amused attitude toward life and so adored by the two aunts who had presided over his home since he had been left an orphan at 15, perhaps no attention would have been paid to his lack of interest in girls. Given looks and wealth and youth the public is always annoyed at the refusal of a young man to marry.

"We'd like to see your wife in this home before many years, Jerry," little Aunt Lida often said to him as they sat before the library fire after dinner. Aunt Susan busily knitting across from them. "We're knitting old and it's silly to pretend we'll be here forever. You need—"

"I've got all I need," Jerry protested gaily, kissing her affectionately as he arose to pace up and down the rug. "Don't worry—and don't drag any more girls here, you two frauds! There's been something impossible about every one of the four! Now I come to think of it, the things I most dislike in girls were embodied in those four! The first one simply strewed things all over the place and since I've had years of your orderliness that came hard on me. Another one told me everything I said, did or thought was utterly wonderful, and if there's anything I dislike it's hypocrisy or stupidity. Seems to me no other one was so boisterous and noisy, and you've taught me to like quietness and peace. But that last one, Laura—"

"Any woman," he continued, as he got out a cigarette and lit it, "any woman or girl who deliberately puts on a pink hat tells the world that she is irresponsible to all beauty, and weak and frittering mentality! It absolutely kills attractiveness. Laura was quite nice until she would go and put on that hat of hers, and I always ran when I saw it. I couldn't be happy with a girl who offended me in these ways. I'm far from perfection myself, but I'm selfish enough to want it in my wife."

Aunt Lida looked at Aunt Susan and Aunt Susan looked back. Each tried to speak and failed, and finally they spoke together, half fearfully. "We're—we're terribly sorry, Jerry," they got out, "but we have another visitor coming tomorrow! Her grandmother is an old friend of ours and Marion is on her way out West, and we thought we'd like to see her—we—"

Jerry Howard burst out laughing. "Cheer up!" he cried. "I'll be exactly as nice to your guest as I can. I'll do everything the perfect host should do except fall in love with her!"

Nervously the two aunts awaited Marion's arrival. And 30 minutes after she came they were swamped with woe, almost in tears.

"Whatever shall we do for 10 days?" Aunt Lida queried of her sister when Marion had gone to her room. "Did you ever see anyone who bounced around more or laughed so much or had such a funny nose? And her hat went into one chair, her bag into another. And what was it she said as she grabbed up that silver-framed picture of Jerry?"

"She said," quavered Aunt Susan tremulously, "she said right out: 'Isn't he adorable! Is this Jerry? Oh, I think he's splendid!'"

"And," concluded Aunt Lida in a hushed voice, "her—her felt hat—it was that shade of p-p-pink!"

At dinner that night when Jerry was home to meet their guest, tears came to the eyes of Aunt Susan. For Marion with the impish face was a bundle of laughter and talk. She told Jerry frankly three times he was marvelous.

The next morning when Marion appeared in sports clothes, she was wearing the pink hat, and she danced off to meet Jerry approaching in his runabout. His smile, in view of the hat, his aunts decided, was nothing short of heroic. All that day they suffered vicariously with Jerry driving his lively visitor to the country club and the golf links, pink hat, laughter and chatter for eight hours at a stretch.

"It's pitiful!" they told each other that night after the two had returned. "From his manner one would never dream what he is going through!"

For the rest of Marion's visit they dutifully picked up after her, ended the radio and shut their eyes to her choice of colors. For she seemed fond of that shade of pink and it was frequent in her wardrobe. They found to their surprise, however, that they were sorry to have her go when the last day of her visit arrived. There was something about the child which had stolen into their hearts, her gaiety, her real sweetness, her saucy face.

"Before Marion goes," Jerry told them, "I want to tell you that she's coming back again—to stay! I expect you can't believe it for I'm hardly able to myself—to think that a perfectly wonderful girl like herself should ever care for me!" Drawing her closer, he kissed her. The pink hat brushed his face, but he seemed unaware of the fact. It dawned on the aunts that he did not even know it was pink. That was what happened to a man when the lightning struck!

"She was just made for you, Jerry!" the two little old ladies chorused. And meant it.

Alaska Lighthouse Keeper Visiting Ord

J. W. Tyacke, member of the United States lighthouse coast patrol in Alaska waters, is in Ord this week visiting his relatives, the Bert LeMasters family and other old-time friends. Born 2 1/2 miles northeast of Ord in 1883, Mr. Tyacke left here as a young man and since has been all over the world.

His father, Thomas Tyacke, homesteaded north of the Bailey homestead and lived there and on another place 14 miles east of Burwell until 1912.

As a boy "Jack" Tyacke spent most of his time in Mira Valley, being employed on the Guy Clement, W. I. Stevens and Hamilton farms. After he left Valley county he learned various trades, being employed at times as a cook, bricklayer, steam and gas engineer and expert welder. He also owned and raced horses for five years.

He recalls that he was working at the Guy Clement farm when Mr. Clement came back from Kansas City with the famous Hereford cow, Sylph, and her bull calf, born on the train enroute and named Fast Freight, which became a famous herd bull for the Clement farm.

He has been in Alaska ten years and has charge of a lighthouse 50 miles from Juneau, 20 miles from Haines and 34 miles from Skagway. He now is on a 212-day leave of absence but expects to return to Alaska next May and continue service until he reaches retirement age, after which he plans to engage in the fur business.

He came to Ord from Lincoln, where he visited the Fred and Mrs. Ernest Hallock families, and will go to Burwell until after Christmas to visit the Hallock families there. All are relatives.

Mr. Tyacke finds a number of old acquaintances still living in and around Ord and said this morning that he is greatly enjoying his stay here.

Red Cross Reports 1940 Roll Call Above 1939

In spite of drought and depression, Valley county Red Cross officials are happy to report a small increase in the 1940 roll call returns. After calculations were completed it was found that $490 had been contributed in this county; the amount last year was $469. Arcadia and North Loup both showed an increase in memberships. In Ord, results were approximately the same as last year except that a large number of people who have never joined gave small contributions. This seems to indicate greater interest in the Red Cross and recognition of its service, possibly due to the organization's wartime activity.

—Mr. and Mrs. George Colipriest of Lexington will drive to Ord this week end to bring Rev. Harney, who will preach from the Presbyterian pulpit Sunday morning. Colipriests will renew old acquaintanceships and visit their daughter, Mrs. Kenneth Draper and family.

Stockholders Of Ord Creamery Co. Hold Annual Meet

Nolls Biggest Producers 4th Straight Year; Creamery Pays 3c per Lb. Dividend.

The annual meeting of the Ord Co-operative creamery was held Thursday at the American Legion hall, with a very good attendance. For the fifth straight year the honor of being first in the production of butter fat went to Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Noll of Midvale. They sold 4,434.6 pounds and drew a rebate check for $134.54, the dividend this year being 3c per pound.

The record made by the Nolls is worthy of comment. In 1935 their dividend check was $39.31. In 1936 it was $165.48. In 1937, crop conditions being bad, it dropped to $128.15. Last year with a 2c per pound dividend their check was $89.96.

In second place for four times out of five years are McLain Bros. They were second to Nolls in 1935, 1937, 1938 and this year, and were in third place in 1936, being pushed out of second place by another big producer, Roy L. Hansen.

In his report to the meeting Manager P. W. Coe stated that it was the 13th year in which the creamery had operated, and that it had been a very successful year in spite of another almost total crop failure. The pastures, he stated, were good until the first of July and in the month of June 53,160 pounds of butter fat were made, and it looked as though the total for the year might reach 400,000 pounds.

After July the pastures dried up rapidly and forage crops were so badly damaged that dairymen had little roughage to carry their herds through the winter. The favorable weather of fall and winter has been a Godsend and the production has been keeping up surprisingly well. In spite of these recurring conditions the 13th year has shown an increase in the volume of business in all three departments, as follows:

There was an increase in the pounds of butter. The creamery made 363,561 pounds, this being 67,331 pounds more than was made in 1938, an increase of 22 1/2%. The volume of poultry handled during the year was 1,000,000.

John Mattley, 85, An Ord Pioneer, Dies At Burwell

Burwell—(Special)—Another hardy pioneer, who experienced the rigors of frontier life answered the final call when John Mattley died Dec. 14 at his home in Burwell. Mr. Mattley was 85 years, 6 months and 4 days old. He was born in Indiana, June 10, 1854 and came to Nebraska in 1881, first settling in Valley county. He was married to Mary Thusen in 1900 at Ord. Mr. and Mrs. Mattley became the parents of four children, all of whom, with their mother, survive him; Emory, Mrs. Elva Griffith, Ira and Mrs. Vida Wheeler, all of Burwell.

In early days Mr. Mattley freighted from Grand Island to Fort Hart-suff and later from St. Paul to Fort Niobrara. In 1899 he moved from Valley county to Loup county where he homesteaded on Dry Creek about fifteen miles northwest of Burwell.

Mr. and Mrs. Mattley made their home in a sparsely settled community. The Dry Creek road which in earlier days was heavily traveled went by their door and Mr. Mattley truly "lived in the house by the side of the road" and was a friend to man. The people who lived further up the country made his place their headquarters when they freighted with teams over a long sandy trail, many of whom had to take two days to make a trip to town.

Mr. Mattley was always eager to give these people food and shelter and help them in any way. Fourteen years ago he retired and moved to Burwell.

Funeral services were held at the Christian church in charge of Lyman Kern. Music was furnished by a mixed quartet composed of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Grunkemeyer, Mrs. Russell Mitchell and William Eatherton. Alfred and Arthur Scherzberg, J. C. A plan to entertain business men of the community who are not service club members was discussed and it was decided to invite two or three such men to be guests at each weekly meeting.

Ord Woman's Nephew in Movie, 'The Star Maker'

The lad whose picture is shown above should be of special interest to Ordites, as he is a nephew of Mrs. Lols Work, who teaches in the nursery school. Jimmie Pilcher is the son of Mrs. Work's brother, C. J. Pilcher. The Pilchers lived in Kansas City until two years ago, when they moved to Hollywood.

Jimmie, who is 13 years old, performed in the theatres in Kansas City and in Hollywood, and has done work over the radio. He has had parts in other pictures before but the biggest part yet assigned him is in Bing Crosby's "Star Maker" which comes to the Ord Theatre Friday and Saturday of this week.

R. E. Brega Heads 1940 Census Work In This District

County, Township Enumerators Will Be Appointed About Middle of March.

R. E. Brega, of Callaway, last week was appointed to supervise the 1940 federal census in the Nebraska district made up of Blaine, Buffalo, Custer, Dawson, Garfield, Howard, Logan, Loup, Sherman, Thomas and Valley counties. His headquarters will be in Kearney. Area supervisor having charge of the western half of Nebraska will be Ward Miner, of Kearney, whose headquarters will be at North Platte. Both Brega and Miner are well known in Ord.

The enumeration will start Jan. 2 this year so far as manufacturers and businesses are considered, but the population, farming and housing census will not start until April 1, says Brega.

Present plans are to appoint one enumerator for each township to do this work. These appointments probably will be made about March 1 from applications on file at that time in the census office at Kearney. No information as to rate of pay or qualifications needed has been issued as yet.

This is the 16th decennial census made by the United States government.

Rene Desmul's Clean-up Sale Being Advertised

Rene Desmul, who is moving to the Tacoma, Wash., territory to go on a combination wheat and dairy farm, today is advertising a clean-up sale to be held Wednesday, Dec. 27, on his farm nine miles north-east of Ord, in the Elm Creek community.

Mr. Desmul will take his tractor and some tractor machinery to Washington with him, but everything else will be sold and the offering will be one of the largest and of the best quality sold here this winter.

Included are 21 good young work horses, 90 head of cattle including 11 choice milch cows and 67 head of steers on feed, a big lot of machinery, feed, grain and hay, and some household goods.

The community hates to lose the Rene Desmul family, who have lived here many years and taken part in community activities. The sale next Wednesday no doubt will be largely attended.

Ord Store Windows Are Reflecting The Christmas Spirit

Merchants Have Spent Money and Effort to Make Their Stores Attractive.

Despite unusually warm weather conditions, which remind one more of spring or autumn than of winter, there is no denying that Christmas is just a few days off. If you don't think so look at the calendar. Ord business men watched the calendar, and for some time their windows have been reflecting the Christmas spirit.

They also say that the public has been generous in the Christmas buying for the past week or more, Saturday being a very fine day indeed. It seems that the fact that people have been enabled to economize on fuel has given them more money to spend for gifts, and, if buying continues as it has started, everybody will be busy until Saturday night.

A trip around the square Saturday afternoon was one of pleasant surprise for the reporter. Some of the displays had been seen before, but even they assumed a new beauty when viewed in a more leisurely manner. Of course the decorations of the city around the square and at the city hall formed an appropriate setting for the individual displays.

In a story such as this it would be impossible to mention all the lovely sights to be seen in Ord store windows and it would also take a great deal of space to mention all the stores that have Christmas specials for sale. It will take a number of paragraphs to mention just a few of the high spots to be seen, among them are the following:

There is the Council Oak paneled window with cotton snow resting on the ledges, and the Santa

WE ARE LIVING FASTER The story is told of a man who lived in Stringtown on the Pike in Ohio more than one hundred years ago.

"Well, folks," said he, "I don't know how big she is over the other way, but she is as big as she is over toward Zanesville, we sure got a Hell of a big country."

But times have changed since then. From a frontier state, Ohio has developed into one of the greatest states in the union.

As a remarkable example of the speed of the present generation, the British and Germans fought a naval battle Thursday.

I wish some good Valley county man who most of us could get behind and support, would file for the Unicameral.

I was greatly interested in J. A. Kovandas article in this paper last week. If you didn't read it, please do so now.

The weather man every few days tells us that there is going to be some colder weather.

There is still time to take advantage of our Special Christmas Offer and send the Quiz for 15 months to that absent son or daughter or other relatives.

Back in 1930, Paul Wupper, Beemer Nebraska banker, was found guilty of banking irregularities and sentenced to 110 years in prison.

With Sweden divided, the two allies could divide Norway along the same lines, while Germany would absorb Denmark.

Perhaps it sounds fantastic, but it is no more fantastic than events which have happened in the past year or two.

THE LEAST OF THESE Not all of Ord's football heroes are endowed with a large amount of brawn.

Truly, "The race is not always to the swift, nor the battle to the strong," in all those years he must have known that his chances for getting into the big games was mighty slim.

It takes a lot more courage to fight a good fight when you know you are going to lose than it does to fight hard with a chance of winning.

The League of Nations was a fine thing so long as there was no trouble to speak of in the world.

"Fire burns O'neil barn," says a daily paper head line. Well what else could burn it.

A. W. Jefferis, 71-year old Omaha attorney, has filed for U. S. senator on the republican ticket.

Some families even have their gift parties Christmas afternoon. How could anyone wait that long?

Almost more fun than a family Christmas in this wonderful age is a trip through toy shops at Christmas time.

Beverly also is a master of the art of shopping. After employing the afternoon, with the aid of Marthamae Barta, Beverly had her Christmas shopping done.

It would be fine if the Quiz could run an issue containing many letters from former Ord residents.

And now please grasp your left hand firmly in your right, shake it heartily and repeat these magic words, "Irma wishes me a Merry Christmas."

-Mrs. Cash Rathbun and son Rodney will spend Christmas in Lincoln, where Mr. Rathbun is confined to the Veteran's hospital.

-Mrs. Joe Lindberg of Gothenburg, Nebr., who was treated at the Sanitarium last September stopped at the Sanitarium for a visit last week.

-C. E. Norris went to Omaha Thursday morning where he will visit at the home of his son, Burt during the Christmas holidays.

Something Different

Strange, isn't it? There are even fashions in Christmas cards and Christmas decorations and tree trimmings.

The Germans, who originated this lovely custom of a gay tree loaded with small gifts, bright fruits, cookies, pop corn, candies, tinsel and angels with silvery haloes.

The modernists have our Christmas trees in their clutch, and we are likely to find them trimmed with anything up to and including stove pipe sections.

Then there is the good old argument about "When Santa comes." He is an erratic old fellow, stopping at some homes Christmas evening before supper.

A FEW THINGS TO THINK ABOUT

By George Gowen

Vignettes Of A Dry Country. A letter from O. B. Server of Scotia reads as follows: "While going to Grand Island recently I saw a man on top of his house pouring water on the roof and his wife carrying it up a ladder."

As a P. S. he says, "I have discovered a successful method of breaking old alfalfa and sowing it right back. Work the ground until fine, then sow just before a gentle rain being careful to get the new plants in the old holes which act as reservoirs and the results are amazing."

I am glad to get contributions like these and thank Mr. Server steen times. I think his suggestion about the alfalfa extra good, if it were just for one thing.

"Phebe" Wm. Herzog, I. H. C. salesman, said the other day that in drilling for a well down "by Columbus this fall they struck no moist dirt until they came to water, about sixty feet down. However, he said it costs no more to be optimistic about it than to be pessimistic and then he said with all seriousness, "There is one thing about it for sure, the longer we go since the last rain, the sooner it will be until the next one."

Then there is the story of a young couple south of North Loup who went to Washington and worked all of the late summer and fall. Just recently they returned to their farm and they were glad to be home again.

A week ago Sunday evening the S. D. B. church had their Christmas social and gift exchange. There was a large crowd present; someone said over 150.

"A jar of pop corn," I replied. "What did you get?" "A pair of tea towels," he said, "with three little red stars in the corner."

"I know who brought those towels," I said and when he asked who I replied, "my wife."

Known Far And Wide. For a long time there has been a joke with Myra Thorgate Barber of the fact that she is very fond of the color, red, but she thinks because her hair is of a reddish tinge, she is prohibited from wearing it.

It happens he has driven the freight train to Ord and back as part of his work and it also happens that Barbars live close to where the train sails by.

Short Shavings. Roy Cox, tells the story of Ben Hur. It goes something like this. One man said to the other, "It was a Ben Hur incident. The woman found a pocket book with a $20.00 bill in it and she could not find the owner."

It Happened In Ord. James Petska had the nerve to pull out a picture of himself, Ed Michalek and Bill Zikmund the other day, which showed them at Kimball recently with their limit of mallards. He said he was saving it to show Eugene, who happened to hit the wrong kind of weather when he went after the ducks.

One evening two visitors in Ord were heard conversing as they went along the street. They were talking about the new neon sign on the Ord Theatre, and the one stated that you could go anywhere in the state, big cities and all and you would not see a finer theatre front anywhere.

Frank J. Dubsky of the Council Oak store was wearing one of those smiles that won't come off the other day, and all because a lady had just bought a grocery order for more than twenty-one dollars. He says that is the biggest single order he had sold for several years.

BURWELL

Three hundred and sixty people attended the candle lighting service conducted at the Congregational church Sunday afternoon at 4:30. As the congregation entered the church each person was handed a candle. The church was lighted only by candles on the altar and the window sills. The choir which was first heard in the distance entered the loft with an impressive professional singing Christmas hymns. After songs and a prayer a tiny light appeared in the front of the church and candles from the altar were used to light the candles of the people sitting in the center end of the pews. They in turn lighted the candles of the person sitting next to them and in a short time the church was aglow with mellow candle light, symbolizing the love of Christ and the spread of the Christian religion. The congregation filed out of the church carrying lighted candles.

The script for the service was written by Mrs. G. C. West. Anna Cameron and Esther Capek had charge of the candles. G. C. West and Ralph Douglas decorated the church. Joan Verley, Jeanne and Janet Berryman, Ruth Ann Jurgensen and Marcella Wheeler served as ushers. Mrs. Bess Langstrom and her daughters Mary and Ruth sang an old French Christmas Carol. Ruth Langstrom and Gerald Bishop sang a duet. Rev. Light sang Gounod's 'Nazarath.' Lloyd Gounod sang 'The Star of the East' and Mrs. Langstrom assisted by the choir sang 'The Canticle de Noel.' Mrs. Ralph Douglas was at the piano.

Elaborate preparations for the observance of Christmas are being made by the churches of Burwell. High mass will be celebrated at the Sacred Heart church commencing at midnight Sunday. Special music is being prepared for the occasion and the crib will be appropriately decorated. At 6 o'clock in the morning Christmas day, Father Murray will celebrate low mass in the church at Ericson. Low mass will be celebrated in Burwell at 9 o'clock. The Methodist church will put on a program Christmas eve. Most of the program will be the work of the children but there will be several musical numbers by the choir. Mrs. W. F. Grunkemeyer will be in charge. The Congregational church will have a program during the Sunday school hour. Christmas songs will be sung and Rev. Light will preach a sermonette. The Christian church will have its program on Christmas eve.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Wunderlich spent the fore part of the week in Ogallala visiting their relatives, the McGinley families. Miss Phyllis Messenger is assisting Mrs. Cram in the Corner Cupboard during the Christmas rush. Wednesday at the high school auditorium the junior class presented a three act play, 'Aaron Slick from Pumpkin Crick.' This play, amusing from the start to finish, was one of the most interesting given in Burwell for some time. Miss Mildred Hummel played several piano numbers before the play began. The cast was, Gerald Bishop as Wilbur Slick, Harold Mallick, Wilbur Merridew, Frank Hlavica, Clarence Green, Corine Haines, Mrs. Roy Berry, Ruth Langstrom, Gladys Mae Merridew, Mildred Faye Gideon, The Girl in Red; Uneth Dittmar, Little Sis Riggs. An unusual chorus by the faculty men entitled, 'Ferdinand the Bull.' The junior class presented a bouquet of American Beauty roses to Miss Helen Oschger, director. James Kell is class sponsor. With Mrs. Everett Johnson as hostess the Domestic Science club held its yearly Christmas party Dec. 13. Piled high under a shining tree were many gifts for children, each club member having brought one as her roll call. These were exchanged and opened, perhaps played with a bit, and have been turned over to authorities for distribution where Santa Claus might not call. Singing Christmas songs was the afternoon's entertainment, and these were under the leadership of Mrs. G. E. Runyan, with Mrs. Mary Stoddard at the piano. The club welcomed two former members, Mrs. F. Johnson, and Mrs. Gene Troxell, and Mrs. Stoddard as guests. The hostess served delicious refreshments ending a most enjoyable afternoon.

3. They urged congress to supply permanent funds for shelter belts, which are beneficial to wild-life.

Other ideas presented at the session were vetoed by the delegates. The resolutions committee tried unsuccessfully to revive the old script method of paying farmers for pheasants.

North Platte delegates failed to arouse sufficient antagonism against the plan of subleasing goose shooting grounds along the Platte. Under this scheme, a rancher sublets his acres to an agent who charges $3.00 daily per gun for hunting rights. Seven shooters are placed in each pit, and every man is guaranteed a wild goose, either from the air or out of an ice box. No action was taken on this problem.

Unofficially condemned was the practice of having extra loaded guns at hand in duck blinds. Delegates also frowned on the procedure of land owners of getting beaver trapping permits, then subletting such rights to professional trappers.

New hunting and fishing licenses will cost $1.50 the extra money being used to match federal funds. Purchasers have a chance to vote on whether or not they want a season on turtle doves. But if the season on doves is opened next fall, shooters will probably have to buy another dollar stamp, good only for taking doves and shore birds.

In every part of the globe, even in war torn areas, Christmas Day carries a special feeling of warm fellowship that finds its material being in the friendly custom of gift giving and the extending of greetings.

This bank, more than a half century old, has always enjoyed its yearly privilege of extending a warm Christmas greeting to its patrons and friends... but never more so than in this year of 1939.

We're filled with heartfelt sentiment appropriate to the occasion... we want to shout, in type loud enough for all our friends to hear...

Charles Shepard's Marriage.

Details of the marriage of Charles Shepard, though the ceremony took place on Nov. 22, will still hold great interest for his Ord friends. He was married to Miss Victoria Regina Schmidt, at Holy Name cathedral in Chicago at 5:30 o'clock that day, only attendants being Miss Carol Atken, stewardess on the Rock Island Bullet, and Dr. Arnold Wagner of Honolulu. Dr. Wagner and Dr. Shepard have been mates all through medical school, from which Dr. Shepard will be graduated next June.

was enabled to teach the past two years, while continuing his studies. His grandfather, two uncles and two doctors are medical men, and Dr. Shepard, his father, practiced in Ord many years and was held in great esteem. Mrs. Shepard went from Ord to attend the wedding of her son. Following the wedding, dinner was served the immediate families at the Drake Hotel, and the brief Roosevelt Thanksgiving vacation provided a little time for a Chicago honeymoon. Where the young couple will reside is not decided, but it is certain that many good wishes will travel from Ord to join them.

Bill Tunnickliff Writes.

Kewanee, Ill.,
610 E. 2nd St.

Dear Quiz: Enclosed please find what it usually takes to help keep the wheels turning in your plant, and incidentally, what it also takes to keep this family well informed and in touch with friends and acquaintances of a life time. I have no extravagant claims to make for this section of the country, except to say, business here is very good and we all seem to like it. I have leased the service department of a very busy Texaco Super Service Station located on both U. S. 34 and 73 and so far have had more than I can do day and night. The heavy thru traffic in and out of Chicago keeps us on the run at all times regardless of season or weather.

Through the medium of church, Star, PEO, and numerous relatives of mine Mabel is getting well and pleasantly acquainted. Ed and Bob still have spells of homesickness for Ord high and their friends but are liking it here much better since the opening of basketball season. Ed is regular center on the Central Junior high team while Bob is a forward on the high school team. Don has employment operating a tool making machine at the Walworth Works and is playing basketball with a very good independent team, which by the way, is sponsored by the Kewanee Boiler Works, the company which made and sold you the large heating plant in the present high school building at Ord.

The family join me in wishing the Quiz and all Quizzers a Merry Xmas and a Happy New Year, but even more than this, we wish for you a speedy return of Nebraska's normal rainy seasons and a complete restoration of the youth and beauty of the country we have always known until the advent of the past few years. Please observe the above change in address on our wrapper.

Sincerely yours,
A. W. Tunnickliff.

Ord Store Windows Are Reflecting The Christmas Spirit

Claus display in the background. There is a canopy of tinsel the length of the Sorensen Drug store, and the special counter down the middle with the display of gifts. That electric train running in the Gamble store window attracts the kiddies of all ages up to ninety.

Then there is the tiny Christmas tree and the huge stick of candy in the Adam Dubas window; the red Christmas bells and the gifts everywhere in the Beranek Drug store; the three large Christmas trees and the galaxy of gifts in the large Springer windows; especially noticeable are the suggestive "Give More, Spend Less" placards at the J. C. Penney company.

The winter scene, the log cabin almost buried in snow, and Santa and his reindeer and sleigh form a pleasing picture in the Langer window. The silvery looking Christmas tree and general wintry air make the Farmers store window of interest. Well arranged red and green crepe paper and a big "Merry Christmas" sign make the Food Center appealing.

The feature at Auble Bros. is their contest on how long a Bulova watch will run with one winding. At Chase's Toyery is the large fireplace near the door, the pendant stars in the room and the huge red flowers in the window. Lamps, glassware and pyrex form the main display at the Kokes Hardware. Red and green crepe paper forms a pleasing canopy at the Stoltz Variety store.

There are crepe paper decorations at the back of the show windows and special decorations for the lights at Misko's Harness shop. The little fur tree sprayed with white paint is an unusual feature at the New Cafe. The display of lamps, electric candles and Christmas decorations in the Karty Hardware form a fine setting for Santa, who is ready to go down the chimney of the diminutive cottage.

Then there are the crepe bars up and down the North Side Market shop window and the holiday greeting sign at Hotel Ord. There are rope and tinsel from pillar to pillar and from lamp to lamp, and blooming poinsettias everywhere at Iron's. The tent effect Christmas roping and crepe paper at Russell's Drug store are very effective, as well as the Santa Claus and reindeer in the window.

Fan shaped crepe paper decorations brighten the windows at Douthitt's. There are geraniums and other potted plants at the McGrew and Furtak barber shop; a Christmas tree at Thorne's Cafe; tinsel and Christmas rope at Frazier's; tent crepe paper and special racks for the display of neckties at Brown-McDonalds, and the large windows full of gifts tastily arranged.

The new neon sign and evergreen and tinsel form a pleasing picture at Muncy's Jewelry. There is a lot of Christmas rope and a big bell at Johnson's cafe, rope and tinsel everywhere at the Safeway, and at Priska's may be seen two large "Merry Christmas" signs. There are window decorations and over the counter decorations at Pecaska's Market.

In fact practically every store in Ord has gone to much trouble to make this a better town in which to shop. The items mentioned above are but a few of the outstanding features. The only way to get the full benefit of these displays is to make a trip around the square and see for yourself. We guarantee you will be more than pleased with what you see.

The year shows an increase of 52 1/2% over 1933. During the year 129,142 dozen eggs were handled, which is an increase of about 3% over 1933.

The amount of butter made this year was greater than any year since 1934. With the gains made in all three departments as above shown, the expenses for the year increased only $342.00 over 1938, and even with added taxes the expense per pound of butter was the lowest since 1934. This proves conclusively that the amount of profit depends upon the volume of business.

Other items of interest in Mr. Coe's report are that the creamery sponsored the placing in the county of 50 fine dairy calves, and also assisted Chris Larsen in placing 52 more. The creamery owns five fine Holstein bulls which are in service in several locations in the county. The calves born to date are very fine and in time this activity will show gratifying results.

There was little trouble from weedy cream in 1939, due to the fact that the extremely dry fall prevented the growth of peppergrass, the chief cause of the difficulty. The average price of butter fat in 1939 was lower than in 1938, but the outlook for 1940 is much brighter, as there are 67 million pounds less of butter in storage now than there was a year ago.

There were three members of the board whose terms expire this year. They are P. E. Pocock, Earl Smith and Anton Adamak. Since Adamak has moved to town and Earl Smith is planning to have a sale, their names were dropped from the board, and the new members are Pocock, Fred Martinsen and Henry Enger.

The family will have their big dinner Sunday noon, their tree Christmas morning, with a Christmas breakfast.

North Loup

Written by Mrs. Ethel Hamer

The Junior Fortnightly club met with their sponsor, Mrs. J. A. Barber for a one o'clock luncheon Friday. Mrs. W. O. Zangger as guest speaker gave some interesting Christmas stories. Other guests were Mrs. Grace Mayo and Erna Campbell. A gift exchange was a part of the afternoon's entertainment.

A large crowd was in town Friday afternoon to hear the opening concert given by the high school band and to be on hand for the drawing of the prizes given away by the North Loup business men. More than fifty prizes ranging in value from 10c to $1.50 were given away with the tickets that had been given on each 25c purchase during the week. A grand prize of ten dollars went to E. O. Schudel and one of five dollars to Fred McCowan. Harry Johnson, assisted by W. W. Willis, Robert Houtchens and Harold Pearson had charge of the drawing which took place on the band stand after the concert. Amusing things happened during a drawing like this and this was no exception. Four aprons and a house dress given away went to men and Delmar Van Horn drew a beauty treatment at Ann's Beauty Service.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Christensen spent Friday afternoon in Grand Island.

A full house attended the Junior class play given Wednesday night in the high school auditorium. The play, "Demon in the Dark" was full of thrills and fun and was very well played, doing credit to the class and their sponsor, Miss Myrtle Green. Outstanding characters were Albert Babcock and Winsome Meyers, Mr. and Mrs. Duncan McFavish, their crippled daughter, Audrey Babcock, and the house keeper, Dorothy Wetzel and the two negroes, Dorothy Brannon and Claire Barber. Harriett Manchester, Annabelle McMindes, Dean Adams, Charles Klingler and Arnold Leonard who carried minor parts were necessary to the completion of the plot and all did well. Musical numbers were furnished by members of the high school between the acts.

Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Zangger entertained their dinner bridge club Thursday evening. Mrs. Frank Schudel held high score for the ladies and Mr. Zangger for the men while the traveling prize went to Mrs. W. H. Vodehnal. Fire, caused by an over heated stove pipe which runs through the floor in the H. H. Thorngate home destroyed nearly all of Mrs. Bernice Canedy's clothes and was prevented from doing serious damage by the quick action of Vesta Thorngate who put the fire out with heavy rugs and bedding. Mrs. Canedy and Miss Mamie Smith of Ord have been staying at the Thorngate home and driving to their school work at Barker and were awakened to find the curtain around the clothes closet where Mrs. Canedy's clothes hung in flames. The closet was near the pipe which was wrapped in asbestos and had been considered safe. Had the fire been a half hour later when all had gone to school no doubt much more damage would have resulted. As it is Mrs. Canedy lost eight dresses but is thankful her coats and shoes were in a different place.

Married Man

By MADELINE JONES
Associated Newspapers.
WNU Service.

PROFESSOR WAKES was worried. The letter from Crewe university promised him exactly the appointment he desired. It included a house (and this meant he could keep chickens and study the psychology of the domestic fowl, something he'd wished to study for ages). It also meant a satisfactory increase in salary and increased personal prestige.

But the president demanded a married man, and the last thing on earth Professor Wakes wanted was a wife. Women, in his mind, were composed of those who ministered to his comfort, such as cooks, and those dreadful flappers, whom he didn't know but occasionally glimpsed through what he described as the written word.

He rang the bell. Mrs. Lawrence had acted as housekeeper for him and his cronies, Assistant Professor Dawson (in the ethnology department) for seven years. He had some respect for the judgment of Mrs. Lawrence.

"Ah, good morning, good morning," he said fustily when Mrs. Lawrence appeared.

"No bad news, I hope, professor?" she asked, taking an indicated chair by the window.

"No, er, that is to say, I fear it is bad for you, and, er, for me, too. I have been very comfortable in your house, Mrs. Lawrence, very comfortable, indeed."

Mrs. Lawrence smiled and waited. A sensible woman, thought the professor; most of them would have demanded to know why it was bad news.

"The University of Crewe," he said, "asks me to come and fill the chair of zoology. A very desirable position."

"I am thankful you will get the recognition you deserve," cried Mrs. Lawrence. "Of course, I shall miss you, but I must not think of myself when such a fine offer comes your way."

A noble-hearted woman, said the professor to himself, and good-looking, too. Never noticed it before.

"But, er," he continued aloud, "there is one consideration that will, I fear, prevent my accepting the position."

"What is that, if I may ask?" Mrs. Lawrence smiled charmingly. (Professor Wakes didn't know her nephew was a freshman at Crewe university.)

"Er, the position is usually held by a married man. A house goes with it, and, er, in short, I fear, it is not for me. I am too old a man to consider, er, marriage."

"Isn't that rather hard on some nice young girl, professor?" very sweetly. "Now, I know some real lovely girls I should be glad to have you meet. There's Marty Sales, and—"

"Flappers," snapped Wakes. "Scandalous, young people are these days, scandalous." The little man fidgeted with a paper knife and Mrs. Lawrence hoped he might not intend a personal injury to any marauding flapper.

"Well," said Mrs. Lawrence, "if you dislike young girls there are older women . . ."

Professor Wakes looked at her. But he was nervous. Would she allow him liberty to measure the abilities of chickens she probably merely considered in terms of frying?

"I fear an old bachelor is difficult to live with," he faltered.

Mrs. Lawrence smiled some more. Wonderful teeth she had. She stood up. "Well, I must not waste your morning," she said.

"No, wait," he called as she half closed the door. Just the way he preferred it in summer-time. A clever and thoughtful woman.

"I, er—the truth is that I don't know how to say to you what I want to say," he declared lamely.

"Well, professor, there's no need to say anything in a hurry. I quite understand this thing has taken you all by surprise. You just have a little talk to me later."

Professor Wakes sat still for half an hour, his thoughts roaming over that garden and the chickens, which went with the Crewe appointment, and at noon jumped up, seized his note-books and stuffed them into his brief-case.

He knocked gently on Mrs. Lawrence's partially opened door.

"Come right in, professor. I hope you've made up your mind not to let a little thing like a wife prevent your taking that lovely position." Her eyes were laughing now.

"Not if you'll come along with me and be the wife," he said, red to his neat little ears.

"Why, bless your heart, I've cared for you ever since that first Christmas day you came here. Do you remember how you said that you believed turkeys were less intelligent than hens? And I said I'd never thought either of them very bright, but maybe you were right."

So she actually remembered his first words. This was the woman for him, and he could easily explain that part of the hen-yard was a laboratory and only part connected with the table.

"I am much honored," he said quaintly and turned to run for a class at which he was usually and

Fringes of Gold

By EDNA WALTERS

WNU Service.

JOAN reveled in the scented warmth of the great hall as she stood waiting. It must be very pleasant to live in a home like that. And, when she followed the maid's black silk frock into the gold-and-white elevator, her sense of luxurious well-being increased. No one would guess that the outside world was wrapped in snow and that the bitterness of the cold wind cut harshly.

"You may go, Minette," directed the blue-eyed mistress of the rose suite. When her maid had gone, Alice Grant regarded the waiting Joan with a grave intentness. "I had a reason for telling Madam Jerrold to send you with my gown. Do you like to go to the theater?"

"Yes, I go, sometimes," she replied.

"I have a ticket for 'Fringes of Gold' for tonight. I expected to go with a girl chum who has disappointed me. I'll give it to you on a condition."

"Yes?" murmured Joan.

"That you pretend you are me. You resemble me in your general appearance, blue eyes, dark hair and slimmish. I want my evening to myself and I'm announcing to the household that I'll be at the Bijou theater. You needn't mind the subterfuge, which harms no one. In fact," the blue eyes grew mysterious, "the gift to me of three hours will bring a great happiness to two people."

Joan pondered. Evidently this pampered girl longed for the freedom the poor enjoyed. The masquerade, as Alice Grant pointed out, a harmless exchange of identities.

Minette smiled demurely as she slipped the gay little gown of sapphire velvet over the marcelled head of the shop-girl. Minette was in the secret and would accompany the pseudo Miss Grant down to her waiting car. As Joan took a last peep at herself, snuggling her chin into the silver fur of her splendid wrap, she fancied she saw a man's face staring at her from the doorway. She wheeled about but the space between the curtains was empty. All the way to the theater she tried to decide whether the sparkling, skeptical eyes in the white face of a man had been real or just a figment of her excited brain.

She sank into her seat in the seventh row with a subdued gasp of absolute enjoyment.

Someone took the vacant seat at her left but she failed to notice for she was living the role of Daphne Davis, the star.

Passing up the aisle, her soul still dazzled by enjoyment, a hand dropped upon her shoulder.

"Come to the office," said a harsh voice, one of authority.

Whitening, she obeyed.

"You are not Alice Grant, are you?"

She remained mute.

"Miss Grant has been robbed of pearls. We find you here in her seat, wearing her gown and—the cold tone hesitated, then a finger touched the string of pearls that Joan had supposed to be imitation, just lent her to enhance the velvet frock, "wearing her pearls. Have you anything to say?"

"Take me to Miss Grant," cried Joan.

"Impossible. If you've anything to say, say it. Otherwise it's fall for you. Where did you get her gown?"

Joan swayed. Then bit her lips and got herself in hand. She'd given her word and she would not break it. She'd had her night of nights. Dressed for the first time in years as she wished, occupying a good seat at the beautiful theater, she'd entered fairyland. "I've nothing to say," she said, lifting her head to meet the sparkling skeptical eyes of the man in the mirror.

The little room was empty except for the two of them.

Dick Grant held out his hand. "Come, my sister is out in the car waiting. It was a mean trick, but, Joan Winters, you've given me something I never thought to possess—faith in a woman's word. Alice wants to marry for love and I laughed at her. I told her there was no loyalty in the world. I said if she could prove her stand that I would give my consent."

"Yes," said Joan, flushing beneath the ardor she read in his face. "Then I may go? I'll return her frock tomorrow."

He slipped the fur wrap about her. "No. You are to come home with us tonight and let us make up to you for what we did. And, little Joan," he added, bending as they passed out into the snowy night, "you are going to let me prove to you that there is romance left in this drab old world." "Fringes of Gold" had given Joan some happy hours and the romance of the mimic scenes became woven with the real emotions of life for, just three months later, she became Mrs. Richard Grant.

The marine research society of Salem, Mass., says that it has no exact information as to how the name Jolly Roger originated, but it was in use as early as 1720, when it was employed by Captain Roberts. In early times Roger was a canting term for rogue, and a Jolly Roger, therefore, would have its meaning as a jolly rogue.

After 38 Years, Vopat Visits Ord, Former Home

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Vopat of Ponoka, Alberta, Can., arrived in Ord on the bus Saturday evening, and will remain until after New Year's as guests of his sister, Mrs. M. P. Crosby and husband, as well as his many old time friends here before coming to Ord they had visited his brother, Frank, who is now living in Denver, Colo., and who formerly was manager of the Dickinson Seed company at Ord.

The Vopats formerly lived on the farm in Mira valley now owned by Bud Bell, but left here for Canada 38 years ago. Vopat, then known as Joey, started out his school life in Dist. No. 10 about 1890, and numbered among his school mates John L. Ward, Mrs. S. W. Roe, Mrs. Ben Eberhart, Bud Bell, Will Hecker, the Lees, now of North Loup, and a number of others who have moved away or are deceased.

Mr. Vopat engaged in farming most of his years in Canada, but recently retired from the farm and has an oil station business to occupy his attention. He says they have plenty of rain in Canada, but that most of the land he saw in Montana, the Dakotas and Nebraska was badly in need of rain. He left Valley county one of the garden spots of the west, and was much disappointed at what he saw when he returned.

—Mrs. Guy LeMaster and Mrs. Harry McBeth will go to Grand Island in the morning to bring back Miss Norma Mae Snell, who will arrive from Ames, Ia., where she is going to school.

Tax Limitation Plan Explained By Cadwallader

Farm Bureau Sponsors Program to Limit Levy on Farm and City Real Estate.

Thirty-five farmers, representing all sections of Valley county met at the American Legion hall Thursday to hear M. E. Cadwallader, trustee of the Nebraska Farm Bureau federation, and a well known farmer and Hereford cattle breeder of Oxford, Nebr., discuss the Farm Bureau program of property tax limitation.

Mr. Cadwallader explained that an active campaign has been launched all over the state to secure signers on initiative petitions, the object of which is to submit to the voters an amendment to the state constitution to provide that the total tax levy on farm property cannot exceed seven mills, and the total tax levy on village, town or city property cannot exceed fifteen mills, with some exceptions for indebtedness existing prior to January 1, 1942.

He pointed out that Nebraska's tax system is inequitable in that farmers who receive only 24 per cent of the total income of the state are now paying 70 per cent of the property taxes levied, and are also paying their proportionate share of special taxes such as the gas tax, the motor license fees, etc. Any tax system which raises the greater share of its revenue from people who as a class receive less than 25 per cent of the income of all people of the state is not an equitable system, he asserted.

Mr. Cadwallader stated that in his opinion, it is logical to adopt the tax limitation proposal first and then work out replacement taxes, for experience has shown that otherwise, new forms of taxation will simply become additional taxes and will not replace any part of the present property tax. He further stated that other forms of taxation are bound to come in Nebraska because of the tremendous increase in the amount of delinquent taxes, which are now almost ten times as great as in 1921, and quoted figures to show that in eight states where property tax limitation has become effective there has been a marked reduction in the amount of property taxes.

Held For Loup County.

At the request of Loup county officials Nathan C. Replogle is being held in the Valley county jail until Jan. 4, at which time his trial on an insufficient fund check will be heard. He was brought to Ord last Wednesday, Dec. 20, by Sheriff George Brock of Loup county.

Murder Car Bought By Stanton Finley, Patrolmen Take It

North Loup—(Special)—Stanton Finley, who lives on a farm near here, was surprised Saturday night when he returned home and found two state patrolmen waiting for him in his yard. Mr. Finley had purchased a car through Ben Nelson of the McGuire Motor company of Grand Island, and it had been found to be the car used by the murderer of a Grand Island farmer a few days before.

The murderer took the car out to try it, drove into the farmer's yard and shot him down, then drove the car back to town and returned it with the statement that it didn't suit him. From tire prints and by other means authorities traced the car.

Patrolmen took Finley's car back to Grand Island and Sunday Mr. Finley went down and was given a different car to use pending developments in the case. The murderer has not yet been caught.

Electricity Free in Burwell Again; Gift "a Surprise"

Burwell—(Special)—People of this village received an unexpected Christmas present from the village board when their December electric bills were mailed to them marked "paid" and with the words "Merry Christmas" written across them.

It is the usual custom for the board to donate December electricity to Burwell people, but because the village has taken current from the high line most of the year instead of generating its own, the Christmas gift was not expected.

The municipal electric system here is one of the most efficient in Nebraska and the rate schedule, entirely aside from the free December electricity, is as low as any rate in the state.

Charles Downing Killed Sunday by Hit-Run Driver

Arcadia Man Who Lived in Seattle Lived Few Hours After He Was Hit.

Arcadia—(Special)—About 4 o'clock Christmas morning the sad news reached this village that Charles Downing, of Seattle, Wash., had passed away as the result of injuries received when he was struck down Sunday evening by a hit and run driver. Church Programs Demonstrate Ord's Christmas Spirit

Catholic Started Festive Season Dec. 17, Others Had Trees, Programs, Carols.

Ord churches did much to help spread the Christmas spirit throughout the community during the past week, and did much to bring cheer to shut-ins and elderly people through the singing of Christmas carols.

In the Methodist church, the Mission society was entertained at the home of Mrs. Elmer Zlomke, one of the features of the afternoon being the presentation of Christmas offerings for missions.

The Kensington and study group of the ladies aid both had Christmas parties. The junior department of the church sang carols and enjoyed a supper at the church. The high school class decorated the church, sang carols Christmas eve, and with the older league sent baskets of fruit to many families. The junior and primary departments presented a program Sunday evening.

Mrs. Bud Bell Dies Saturday

Louisa Margaret Petty was born at Pittsburg, Pa., July 28, 1875, the fifth child of George Moore and Elizabeth J. Petty. She passed away at her home in Mira Valley, Dec. 23, 1939, at the age of 64 years, 4 months and 25 days. In 1880, at the age of 5 years, she moved with her parents to Mira Valley, where the remainder of her life was spent.

At the age of 15 she became a member of the Wilson Memorial Presbyterian church of Mira Valley, and remained an active worker until the church was disbanded in 1926. At that time she transferred her letter to the Ord Presbyterian church, where it remained until the time of her death.

She attended the rural schools of the county, and was graduated from North Loup high school in 1897. After teaching a few years in the rural schools, she was married on April 28, 1904, to A. W. (Bud) Bell of Mira Valley. To this union were born three sons, James of Hastings, George of Ord, and Wilson who is attending school in Kearney. Surviving are her husband, the three sons, and one brother, Everett Petty of Omaha. Three brothers and three sisters preceded her in death.

Funeral services were held Tuesday at 3 p. m., from the Frazier funeral parlors with Rev. J. A. Adams of the Mira Valley Evangelical church in charge, and burial was made in the North Loup cemetery. The pall bearers were Henry Williams, E. P. Cook, Will Fuss, George Clement, Harry Foth and Albert Peterson. Mrs. Will Foth and Mrs. Walter Fuss had charge of the flowers. The music was furnished by a male quartet from the Mira Valley Evangelical church.

Oakland, Ia., Boys Are All 6 Footers; Play at Ord Friday, Dec. 29

Coach H. F. Brockman's boys face a tough assignment Friday night, for from Oakland, Ia., comes word that the Oakland basketball team averages six feet in height and has won six games in seven starts this season. The Oakland team is in first place in the South-west Iowa conference. On tour now, the Iowa quint, plays the Chanticleers in Ord Friday, Dec. 29.

The Oakland team is coached by Fred Schneider, graduate of Wayne State Teachers college. At Pilger, Nebr., where he formerly coached, his teams compiled a record of 67 straight victories.

Hard luck hit the Ord camp this week when Hurlbert, starting center, came down with a leg infection that will keep him out of action Friday night. Clarence Romans substitute center, may be lost for this week also because of his father's death, which may force Coach Brockman to dip into the reserve squad and start Geweke.

Red Cross Toy Shop Makes Fine Showing

Through the Red Cross toy shop 145 children received toys this Christmas. This project was made possible through the cooperation of the Ord Business and Professional Women's club, which gave $5, the American Legion, which donated space for the work, the NYA which furnished two boys to repair toys, Stoltz's Variety, Springer's Variety, Karty's hardware and Brown-McDonald, who gave toys, and many townspeople who gave used toys. Red Cross officials thank all who helped in any way in making this work a success.

Winter's 1st Snow Came Saturday in Time for Christmas

Almost 7 Inches Fell Here, 10 at North Loup; Wednesday Morning Was Coldest.

The first snow of the winter started falling in the early morning hours Saturday and when daylight came the earth was blanketed with white, giving Nebraska a much desired "white Christmas." Saturday's snow-fall measured 3 1/2 inches in Ord and another 3 inches fell Monday. Moisture content will be about .60 of an inch, says Horace Travis, the official weather observer.

At North Loup 10 inches of snow fell Saturday and Monday, with a moisture content of .90 of an inch. Snow fall at Arcadia also is reported somewhat heavier than at Ord.

Temperatures have been hovering around the freezing mark since Saturday but this morning was the coldest of the winter, 4 degrees above zero, according to Mr. Travis. It dropped from 22 above Wednesday evening to this morning's low mark and throughout Wednesday remained in the 20's.

Little wind accompanied either snow storm and as a result the snow is of uniform depth with very few drifts. Roads and highways remained passable throughout. According to Roy Randolph, state highway maintenance engineer in central Nebraska are in excellent condition. Snow has been scraped to the roadside but when melting starts will be worked back into the road to furnish moisture to work the ruts and humps out of the gravel. For this reason, roads may be a little sloppy for a few days after the temperature raises, he says.

This snow presented Valley county with its first moisture since Oct. 9 and 10, when 3 1/2 of an inch of rain fell. There was no moisture whatever during November and none in December until the Saturday snow-fall. Only 15 of an inch of rain fell during September so the entire fall season was one of the driest on record here.

Next week a resume of 1939 weather taken from Mr. Travis's records will be published in The Quiz.

The scouts laid plans for the next court of honor, which will be held in Ord in January. They will give a play in which the entire troop will participate. At the close of the meeting Rex Jewett, scoutmaster, and Mrs. Lewis gave the boys each two pop corn balls as a treat.

Pneumonia Claims Claude C. Romans

Ord Man Dies Suddenly Sunday After Brief Illness, Was Economist, Philosopher.

An abscess of the lung, which developed as an after-effect of pneumonia, Sunday took the life of Claude C. Romans, 58-year-old Ord resident. The illness which resulted in death was only a brief one but ever since the winter of 1929, when he suffered a severe attack of pneumonia, Mr. Romans' health had been poor.

He was born at Herman, Nebr., the son of Charles and Katherine Romans, on Aug. 13, 1881, and on Dec. 18, 1901 was married at Cedar Bluffs to Mary Alice Clapham. They lived near Cedar Bluffs until 1911, when the family moved to a farm near North Loup, and in 1929 moved to Ord where Mr. Romans and his sons started a trucking and transfer business.

Mr. Romans is mourned by his wife, five sons, Robert, of Arnold, Charles, Gene, John and Clarence, all of Ord; three daughters, Katherine, who teaches in North Loup, Dorothy, who is at home, and Josephine, who is attending college at Marysville, Mo.; one brother, Frank of Plankinton, S. D.; one sister, Mrs. Josephine Kepler of Los Angeles; two half-brothers, two half-sisters and ten grandchildren. Two daughters, Mrs. Wm. Vogeler and Mrs. Harold Kealey, preceded their father in death.

Funeral services were held at the Methodist church of Ord Tuesday at 3:00 p. m., with Rev. G. C. Robberson in charge. Burial was in the Ord cemetery.

Pall bearers were Glen Johnson, Carl Sorensen, Gould Flagg, Archie Geweke, L. H. Covert and Lawrence Loft. Others assisting were members of the quartet, Mrs. E. O. Carlson, Mrs. Mark Tolon, John Haskell and Dr. Glen Auble, and their accompanist, Mrs. Robert Noll; and the flower committee, Mrs. Henry Marks and Mrs. Bert Hardenbrook. Frazier's funeral parlors had charge of all arrangements.

Out of town people here for the rites were Mrs. Perry Palmer and Mrs. Louis Williams of Cedar Bluffs; Mr. and Mrs. George Bruce of Fremont; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cameron, of Tekamah; Mr. and Mrs. Howard Bowers and son, of Callaway; Frank Romans, Plankinton, S. D.; Robert Romans, Arnold; Chris Holt, Dannevirke; Arthur Holt, Scotia; Harold Kealey, Superior, as well as many friends, relatives and former neighbors from the Scotia and North Loup communities.

Mr. Romans was well read in philosophy and economics and was a careful student of world affairs. He will be genuinely mourned by friends and associates.

—Mrs. Joe Zavilka, who had been in Ord visiting her sister, Mrs. Anton Svoboda and other friends, returned to her home Tuesday morning.

Steinbeck's Novel, 'Grapes of Wrath,' Banned in Burwell

Book Indecent, Is Decision of Library Board; Fight to Restore It Led by Fenner.

Burwell—(Special)—The banning of "The Grapes of Wrath," from the Burwell public library, a book telling of the experiences of a poverty-stricken family from the dust bowl that emigrated to California, written by John Steinbeck, has become the cause of a controversy.

Challenging the wisdom of discarding this book is L. B. Fenner, who declares that it is interesting reading, informative and that it gives a person a more tolerant and better understanding of the poor. Mr. Fenner champions the cause of tolerance and enlightenment against the forces of decency and suppression supported by the library board composed of Mrs. A. I. Cram, Mrs. Maude Fuller, Mrs. G. A. Butts, Mrs. Floida Verley and Mrs. Leonard Johnson.

Long Waiting List For New Book Here

John Steinbeck's novel, "The Grapes of Wrath," was bought by the Ord Township Library soon after its publication last summer and has been read by many library patrons, says Miss Elsie Wiberg, the Ord librarian. There has been no talk of banning it here.

Ever since the book was bought demand for it has been so great that it has been reserved for months ahead. At the present time there are 12 names on the list waiting for it, Miss Wiberg states.

The novel now is being made into a movie with a Nebraskan, Henry Fonda, in the role of Tom Joad.

The board was not unanimous in its decision to ban the book which was purchased at the request of patrons of the library. The book was catalogued and put into circulation before members of the board had an opportunity to read it. When certain passages were called to the board's attention it made an investigation and decided to destroy the book.

Don Miller Reported Hurt; All a Mistake

When Don Miller left by auto for Omaha Saturday he had no idea what a lot of excitement his going would create. That night a news broadcast was heard by a number of persons which indicated that a man named Miller who had been driving from Ord to Omaha, had been killed. Those who knew Don had gone at once jumped at the conclusion that he was the man meant.

Then it was announced further that it had been Bob Miller. This man is a traveling man and he ate lunch at an Ord cafe that afternoon just before starting to Omaha to spend Christmas. A third explanation was that it was not Ord, but Overton, that was mentioned in the broadcast. The papers did not contain any story of an accident that would fit the story as it was broadcast.

Meanwhile his friends were kept in suspense until he returned to Ord Tuesday evening. Don was much surprised to learn that he had been the object of so much concern, and he had heard nothing whatever about it until he returned to Ord.

Another accident which the Quiz has been unable to verify is that which is said to have happened to Mr. and Mrs. Joe Cuptl, who went to spend Christmas, supposedly at Wilber, Nebr. It was reported that Mrs. Cuptl was injured in an accident, how badly was not learned. As Mr. Cuptl has not yet returned, it has been impossible to learn further details.

Plentiful Rains in 1940 Is Prediction of Burwell Woman

Burwell—(Special)—Plentiful rains for 1940 are predicted by Mrs. Magnus Johnson, 96-year-old mother of Mrs. Hannah Riley. Mrs. Johnson spent the early years of her life in Norway and says that Norwegian farmers believe that a cloudy sky on Christmas day means summer rains and bountiful harvests. During the many years of her life she has observed that it often happens that way and she hopes that Nebraska's cloudy sky Monday means that the long drouth is over.

A welcome visitor to Ord the Wednesday afternoon before Christmas was Mr. S. Claus, who made his appearance on the court house steps, sang a jovial Christmas chanty in a deep baritone voice and then handed out sacks of candy and nuts to an estimated 1,000 children. Santa Clause also visited the grade school building, where a program was in progress, and presented treats to about 500 Ord kiddies. The Chamber of Commerce arranged for both affairs. Later in the afternoon Manager M. Blemont entertained all the children with a tree movie. The photograph above shows Santa as he handed out the first bags of candy down town.

A splendid program of Christmas music Sunday morning at 11 a. m., which was enjoyed by every one. A feature of this program was the number of anthems which were sung, including, "Awake, Put on Thy Strength," "The Bright Angelic Host," "There Were Shepherds," "Gloria to the King of Kings," "Where Shepherds Watched," and "Come and Worship."

The Ord Catholic church began their Christmas festivities a little earlier than the others, by having a Christmas tree for the children in the basement of the church on Sunday, Dec. 17, together with a fine old Santa Claus. The Christmas night program consisted of a midnight mass and singing in the choir.

Trapping Fur Bearing Animals Provides the Farmers With Winter "Cash Crops"

Burwell—(Special)—A number of drouth stricken farmers in the Loup valley have found a new source of income this winter in trapping fur bearing animals according to H. A. Phillipps, Burwell fur buyer. Mr. Phillipps relates that he has purchased an unusually large number of furs this year and that the season is not yet half over.

So far this season he has bought over 200 mink pelts. He states that mink are unusually numerous this year and that 156 of the pelts which he has bought were caught along the 45 miles of the Loup river between Almeria and Ord. He pays an average price of $6.50 for mink pelts.

He has bought 2,700 muskrat pelts this season. Muskrat hides bring 75c on the average. A number of beaver have been trapped this year, Mr. Phillipps says, especially along the Calamus river. A trapper must have a special permit in order to catch beavers and before the pelts may be sold they must have a seal placed on them by the game warden. Mr. Phillipps has bought no beaver pelts as yet this season for this reason. He states that beaver pelts range in price from $15.00 to $1.50.

About 2,500 skunk hides have been bought by Mr. Phillipps since the season opened. They bring about $1.25 a piece. Civet cat pelts are worth but a quarter. Mr. Phillipps has bought 500 of them.

The price of coyote and badger hides is low this year and Mr. Phillipps has not bought as many of them as he usually does as the trappers are holding them for a better market. He has bought about 100 coyote pelts and about 25 badgers. These hides range in price from $1 to $3.50.

He has bought 50 possum hides this season paying 25c each for them. He has also bought about 50 coon hides which cost him between $3.00 and $4.00 a piece.

To All Former Ord People Now Living Elsewhere:

You are invited and requested to write a Two Hundred Word Letter to the Letter-Box Edition

of The Ord Quiz to be published

Wednesday, Jan. 24

Every week when you read The Quiz you find news about the Ord people you knew when you lived here, and who have remained in the old home town. You enjoy reading about them. Did you ever stop to think that your friends in Ord, and those who have moved elsewhere, would like to hear news about you and your family too?

That is the reason we have decided to publish what we will call a "Letter-Box Edition" on Wednesday, Jan. 24.

Your cooperation will be needed if this issue of The Quiz is to be successful, as we hope it will.

Sit down right now, before you forget it, and write a letter to use for publication in our "Letter-Box Edition." Tell in this letter where you are located now, what line of business or work you are engaged in, how conditions are in your part of the country, what your children are doing and where they are living, what marriages, births or deaths have occurred recently in your family, what other Ordites you see occasionally—just the kind of things you'd talk about if you sat down for a visit with an old friend whom you hadn't seen for years.

If Quiz subscribers who live in California, the Pacific Northwest, Idaho, Texas, the East, in Alaska and in foreign countries will write generally, an interesting "Letter-Box Edition" will be the result. If this attempt proves successful we will try to make it an annual event.

This is your invitation; don't delay; try to limit your letter to 200 words but if it takes more than that go ahead and use them.

Your friends want to hear from you, through the Quiz, and you will enjoy reading the other letters. We hope for 100 or more letters, so write today.

Send Us A New Picture If Possible

If you have a recent photograph of yourself, or of members of your family well known in Ord, send it along with your letter, to be printed in connection with the letter in our "Letter-Box Edition." The picture will be returned to you in good condition.

THE QUIZ STAFF WISHES TO ALL ITS SUBSCRIBERS, NEAR AND FAR, A HAPPY NEW YEAR AND PROSPEROUS YEAR OF 1940

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Nay

Celebrate Anniversary
Out in Los Angeles Sunday will occur an event of more than passing interest to the large number of Ordites who know them personally, for on Dec. 31, Mr. and Mrs. James B. Nay will celebrate their fiftieth wedding anniversary. They obtained their license from County Judge A. A. Lavery on Oct. Dec. 31, 1889, and were married.

It is to be regretted that the judge failed to fill in the blanks in the record book at the court house, and it does not appear who performed the ceremony or who were the witnesses. However, they were married and lived in Valley county until some 20 years ago, when they moved to Los Angeles to make their home.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. McGrew, who celebrated their 50th anniversary last fall and who have been life long friends of the Nays, received a card recently, announcing that they are holding open house on Dec. 31 at their home, 1327 East 83 street. Their many friends will rejoice with them that they have reached this momentous mile stone in their lives.

—Carroll Miller of Garfield county was a business visitor in Ord Tuesday.

—Mrs. Will Dehart went to Lincoln on the bus Tuesday to make arrangements for moving back there. The Deharts recently returned from a trip to California.

Santa Arrived in Ord Wednesday Afternoon

Wednesday afternoon was a great time for the kiddies, for it had been announced that Santa would appear at the court house at that time and would distribute a large number of packages of candy to all the little folks present. The old fellow arrived on time, and he even sang a song, in a voice that sounded much like that of a certain well known Ordite, to whom he might have been related. Any resemblance was of course purely coincidental.

About 1,500 sacks of candy, which had been furnished through the activity of the Chamber of Commerce and Ord business men, were handed out, and there were enough so that each child present got a sack. Weather conditions made it tough shelling for the good old St. Nicholas, but he managed to arrive on time and was in a great good humor throughout his visit here.

Christmas Party.

Revelers Put Cow in Confectionery, Start "4 Minute Malted Milk" Fad at Burwell

Burwell—(Special)—A group of merry revelers trudging homeward from a dance held in Burwell Wednesday night happened upon an unfortunate cow left for the night to shift for herself unsheltered. They had human kindness in their hearts and Christmas cheer in their stomachs. "What, ho!" they cried, "This will never do. We cannot abandon this poor creature. We must get her to shelter," they said.

Looking around they saw a light burning in the window of The Spot, a confectionery operated by Geo. Baker. The town was practically in darkness as most people were in bed so this jolly group with good intentions decided to seek shelter for the cow in the confectionery.

One member of the group was not anxious to enter into the project for fear of soiling his clothes but he was soon put to shame when another member of the party reminded him that Abraham Lincoln got free a pig caught under the fence while he was all dolled up in his best clothes.

The cow was led, driven and accompanied up to the door of the confectionery. Again doubts assailed the weaker willed members of the group. It was really not a nice thing to put a cow in "The Spot." "Why," argued a braver member, "Don't the Irish keep pigs in the parlor? Are we going to let a blinkety, blank Irishman get ahead of us?" Indeed they were not.

"How are we ever going to get her in?" another reveler inquired. "Well, if Noah got two of every kind of animal into the ark all by himself, I guess the whole bunch of us ought to get one old cow into this joint," an undaunted soul replied. The door was opened and after a few deft twists of the tail bossy was inside.

She acted like a perfect lady and looked longingly at the wares displayed in the candy case. Once bossy was inside the gang decided to refresh themselves. One fellow wanted a malted milk but alas, George was out of milk.

The enterprising lad was undismayed. He took the bottle and proceeded to extract some of the fragrant white liquid from bossy's udder. George then made malted milks for those of the group desiring them. They were of exceptional quality and the gang declared that the freshness of the milk added more flavor. They prevailed upon George to make four minute malted milks a regular feature.

"Four minutes from the cow to the customer," they decided, would be an ideal advertising slogan for him. The group departed after awhile leaving George alone with his thoughts—the cow. George decided as he does not keep overnight customers but try as he would he could not get her to turn around and go out. He finally decided that the cow was superstitious. He figured out that she subscribed to the belief that if you enter and depart from the same door you would never again return. He opened the back door and sure enough the cow did want to come back and see him again for she immediately went out like a lady.

White corn is outselling yellow at Omaha. It is needed for cornmeal. Yellow corn makes just as good meal, but folks think that white cornmeal looks nicer, so the markets are paying a premium of several cents a bushel on white corn this winter.

White corn is scarce for two reasons. First, because feeders prefer yellow corn. Second, because all hybrids are yellow, there being no adapted white hybrid seed grown as yet.

A common belief exists among Nebraska farmers that white varieties stand more drought, and yield higher on thin soils. This may be true, although it has never been confirmed by official tests. The belief does account, however, for much of our white corn acreage.

Perhaps all feeders would declare that yellow corn makes the best feed. Occasionally some scientist modifies this theory. Back in 1920 Dr. Stenbeck of Illinois proved that its vitamin content makes yellow corn more desirable, but that a white corn ration can be made just as good for all animals by adding a little green legume hay or pasture.

In 1926 Supt. Snyder of North Platte had the courage to publish a bulletin showing that pigs at their station did as well on white as yellow corn, without any hay or pasture. Perhaps Nebraska pigs get more sunshine than Wisconsin pigs.

Lately, no further comparisons of white and yellow corn have been made. The investigators are too busy making other studies, and the farmers are thankful for any corn, regardless of complexion.

THE GUBERNATORIAL RACE.

With the primary still a long distance away, no less than four good Republicans have served notice on the people of Nebraska that they would like to sit in the governor's chair.

The list to date includes E. M. Baumann of West Point, Dr. A. W. Miller of Scottsbluff, Charles Warner of Waverly and Dwight Griswold of Gordon.

This condition invariably cuts down on a man's chances of being elected in the fall. A lot of each candidate's personal friends work hard for him, and when he is defeated in the primary, they feel that it is their duty to vote against the man who defeated him.

Further, this defect in the primary laws makes it possible for a man who is personally popular to corral enough votes to win the nomination, while some other candidate might have better suited the electors of the state as a whole.

At the primary election in 1936 men were nominated for state office who actually received less than one fifth of the vote of their party.

The Democrats have not been so active in the proposition of filing for candidate for governor, but they still have plenty of time.

There seems to be a feeling in the air that 1940 is to be a Republican year in Nebraska. If so, every effort should be made to get the best possible material before the public.

That the people of the state believe in thinking for themselves is proven by the number of times the political complexion of our officials has changed.

If they are planning on a change for 1940, they should be given an opportunity to vote for the best men possible for each of the offices to be filled.

My Own Column

By H. D. Leggett

I hope you all had a Merry Christmas and I wish you a Happy New Year and a prosperous 1940 and may we meet often during the year just about to start.

There is not a single head of a family in the Ord trade territory, who cannot save more than the price of the Quiz each year just by having it and studying the advertisements, to say nothing about the pleasure of having the news.

And I believe I am fair and honest when I say that I don't believe there is a weekly newspaper in the state that covers its trade territory for the news better than does the Quiz and we are making plans to do a better job in 1940 than ever before.

And you can, many of you, help. When something important happens you can call us and tell us about it and if it is worth a picture and you let us know immediately, we can many times come and get a picture that will be almost priceless, which couldn't be gotten later.

This column is not an editorial column. I am not the editor of the Quiz and the comment in this column is not intended to voice the editorial policy of this newspaper. It is the only thing I ever write for the Quiz and is my personal opinion and comment only.

If you read the editorials in the Quiz and like them, I dare say that Eugene and John Ward, who are responsible for them and for the editorial policy of the paper, will appreciate knowing about it.

One thing that surprises me is that someone or several have not written about the tax limitation proposition proposed by the farm bureau and mentioned by Jess Kovanda a couple of weeks ago.

It is a matter of keen regret to everyone having the best interest of Valley county at heart, to see the farmers sell out and go to other states but of course they cannot be blamed.

I was just counting up and we have been favored with about twenty daily paper renewals the past week. We appreciate this, make a few cents on each one, attend to sending them in promptly and follow up with service for any reason there is over any trouble about your daily.

I don't like to question anyone's good intentions but I do fear the statement of the president that he will send army soup wagons to Ohio if the Ohio people don't take care of their needy poor, is a lot of hooey.

A whole of a lot of you people whose Quiz subscriptions was to expire on January 15 have already taken advantage of the postcard offer I sent you.

Would you like to have a nice 8x10 inch enlargement, beautifully tinted in genuine oil colors, of some member of your family, and have it given to you absolutely free?

A FEW THINGS TO THINK ABOUT!

Written by GEORGE GOWEN

More, More About Taxes.

Following are a few of the remarks gleaned from the talk of Mr. Cadwallader of Oxford who spoke to the Farm Bureau in regard to tax referendum which they hope to put on the ballot next November.

He started his talk stating that he took it for granted that we all felt everyone should pay something, even though it may be small, in taxes, for the support of our government.

"42% of the people live on farms and have 24% of the income. This 42% paid last year 70% of the money raised for state expense. The total 1937 agriculture income of Nebraska was approximately $112,000,000.

Although Mr. Cadwallader was speaking to farmers, he said that small town businessmen were worse off than the farmer. "The salaries paid in Nebraska are approximately $260,000,000 a year. This is more by 30% than the total income of all farmers, merchants, and businessmen who owned their own business.

"47 states of the union have broadened their tax base some way or another. Nebraska is the only state that depends entirely on direct taxes.

"Any tax system is better than the one we have. No system could be more unfair. "Out of the 47 states that have broadened their tax base, there has been only one that had foregone enough to, at the same time, make a tax limitation on the real property. In other words in most cases the extra broadened taxes were just added on.

"Non-taxpayers can about out-vote the tax payers and vote whatever they want. "Eleven years ago, in 1927, the ratio of tax payers to non-taxpayers was about 64-36. Now it is about 50-50. There is no reason why this ratio might not continue in a few years to 45-55.

"On top of that the Supreme Court has now ruled that lands owned by Federal Land Bank, the U. S. L. C. and other government organizations are exempt from taxation. "It is beyond question that some sort of tax broadening will be added to our tax system in a few years. The thing to do is, before that time comes, to put a limitation to our tax levies so that these new forms of taxation will not merely be added, on to our already overtaxed state.

The petitions that are being circulated now are merely to put the referendum on the ballot next November. One might be afraid to sign it for one might sign the petition and then later if he wishes vote against the petition as it appears on the ballot.

The petition places a limit that may be assessed on farm lands at 7 mills and 15 on city property. The extra seven mills allowed to city property is for water, lights, sewerage, etc.

There is a provision too for the appraisal of the property so a county board cannot, because of the need of money, raise the valuations beyond the actual value.

There are a few exceptions. One is where the district is already bonded. We cannot vote away debts we have already contracted. However, this may hinder further indebtedness.

Also there is another exception. If there is dire need for a bond issue, the 7 or 15 mill limit may be exceeded by a vote of 60% of the people.

Omaha, Lincoln and Grand Island are also excepted for they have Home Rule charters. There is not much question but what there will be enough signers to put this referendum on the ballot next November.

Some predict if it gets on the ballot it will pass beyond question. There will be much more discussion of it in the future and the Farm Bureau, who is sponsoring it, only want to put the question where people can decide.

At the school Christmas program at Scottsbluff Thursday evening, Santa Claus was not the only famous character represented. I was a little late and when I sat down, Mrs. Gowen nodded to a lad on the balcony and said, "there is Tiny Tim up there."

Tiny Tim

One Small Detail

Short Shavings

Little Billy Kersch must think that, for my daughter says he has had many operations, and he can walk too, after a fashion.

One Small Detail. Mrs. Frank J. Monahan, whose husband is 1939 master farmer and whose picture is on the front of the last Nebraska Farmer, is a first cousin to Claud Thomas.

He was a very thrifty man and they have owned for years a very fine farm. One son has always stayed at home and the two have been very successful.

What was the little detail that was not mentioned, you say. Oh yes, I about forgot, it was so unimportant. But after he and his wife had worked several years and saved their money ($500) and started farming for themselves, their parents gave them $4000 additional. You know $4000 at a time when one is starting up is hardly worth mentioning.

Short Shavings. At the North Loup theatre the show this week "Night Work" and it comes on work night. Should Phillip Seefus of Scotia have a son, it might be well to name him Joe.

Christmas trees were the bane of my existence this year. I have always loved them, but I am nearly a reformed character and I will tell you why.

On Saturday afternoon, with my husband out of town, I knew I had to set that tree up, because Kerry just couldn't wait a minute longer. And we were to have a tree-trimming supper that evening, with all the relatives bringing something to hang on the tree, so, you can understand, that tree had To Be Set Up.

The metal standard which holds the tree I always keep with the boxes of Christmas trimmings, so I pranced confidently to the closet to bring it out. And it wasn't there. And I began to search. I looked in the basement and I looked upstairs and down and in all the places it never did belong. And it wasn't there either.

But I found half of an old wooden tree standard, so I grabbed a hammer, some wood, the standard, the tree, and strode masterfully out to the back porch. I would put this tree up or have a fight. (I had a fight, but that comes later.) Kerry enthusiastically assisted me, we nailed a contraption to the bottom of the tree and started around the house with it. The tree fell out. We strode back, did it over, strode around the house, and succeeded in getting it in the front door, and getting a few ornaments on the tree. It fell over.

My temperature began to rise. Smash, went the ornaments, and as I endeavored to save some, the tree flopped purposefully about and crash went some more pretty tinseley toys.

First we got the tree to stand up, then as Teddy was about and searching for stuff to put in his mouth, operations had to be suspended while some vacuum sweeping was done. Then the Christmas tree ornaments were duly tied to the branches again, lights strung through the green, silver stuff draped on the tree, etc., etc., and even etc. It looked very nice indeed, and I breathed big sighs of relief.

Whew! By this time I had a lot of helpers, the tree began to tip a bit, so I decided to straighten it before another catastrophe took place. I took hold and gave it a bit of a touch here and there, and WHAM! Down came that tree again! Ornaments flew in bits here and there, and so did my well-known disposition. The floor was a mess, the tree ruined and Teddy was right in the thick of it. Oh yes, and I forgot to say the tree wrapped itself tastefully around Shirley's neck. She gurgled and squealed and made other suitable noises.

We rescued Shirley, and by this time her mother was beginning to feel a bit of a strain where that tree was concerned. But we bravely tried to set it upright once more, and once more began what was rapidly becoming an ordeal. Out came the vacuum sweeper, the lights for the tree were untangled, the broken ornaments thrown away. My chief assistant, Mrs. C. A. Anderson, disregarded all protests and thought it was high time that Tree was set up by an expert, so she phoned her husband. He rushed in, took a look at the mysterious fangle which was supposed to support the tree and made a few sarcastic remarks about my carpentry.

But he was halted by the limp appearance of the tree trimmers, who were sprawled about, trying to generate a bit of energy. The last we saw of him, he whisked the tree down to the garage, and in a jiffy had it stuck tightly into a dandy framework and returned to us.

At the school Christmas program at Scottsbluff Thursday evening, Santa Claus was not the only famous character represented. I was a little late and when I sat down, Mrs. Gowen nodded to a lad on the balcony and said, "there is Tiny Tim up there."

Billy Kersch had dark brown eyes that sparkled like agates and he smiled and laughed at the other children all the time. One would never think "he bore a litting crutch," and cannot walk up and down stairs. Miss Palmer acted as Bob Cratchet and must have thought him as good as gold, for after she had carried him down the treacherous steps, she patted his back and whispered caution to him as he hobbled off in the crowd.

"Sure it's Tiny Tim," I said. "No doubt no one else but Tiny Tim could be crippled and so happy too on Christmas day." It was he who told Bob Cratchet coming home from church, "that he hoped people saw him, because he was a cripple, and it might be pleasant to them to remember, upon Christmas day, who made the lame beggars walk, and the blind to see."

This time we actually got the trimmings on the tree. And after a few hours of deep breathing exercises I found I thought it a handsome tree. Yes I did!

Then I could go on and tell how "angel hair" sticks and gets in the skin and hurts. It is made of spun glass you know. How four strings of tree lights wouldn't light on another tree, you understand. But I think you've suffered enough for the time being, and it being the Christmas time, too.

An Anal Fissure, more commonly known as a rectal Fissure, is probably responsible for more acute pain and suffering than any other lesion of its size occurring in the human body. A Fissure, as its name implies, is a crack or split, usually situated at the back of the rectum.

Fissures are caused from injuries, the most common source of which is the passage of a hard stool. In women childbirth is a very common cause. The symptoms are a sharp excruciating cutting pain accompanying bowel movements, unless these are kept in a nearly liquid state by taking various laxatives, followed by slight bleeding, and spasmodic pain lasting from one-half to an hour afterwards.

Fortunately this disease is readily cured under proper treatment. I know of no more satisfied patients than those who have been relieved of the severe pain caused by a Fissure. If you have any of the above symptoms, or any other rectal symptoms, see or write Dr. Rich, Rectal Specialist, Grand Island, Nebr.

An Anal Fissure, more commonly known as a rectal Fissure, is probably responsible for more acute pain and suffering than any other lesion of its size occurring in the human body. A Fissure, as its name implies, is a crack or split, usually situated at the back of the rectum.

Fissures are caused from injuries, the most common source of which is the passage of a hard stool. In women childbirth is a very common cause. The symptoms are a sharp excruciating cutting pain accompanying bowel movements, unless these are kept in a nearly liquid state by taking various laxatives, followed by slight bleeding, and spasmodic pain lasting from one-half to an hour afterwards.

Fortunately this disease is readily cured under proper treatment. I know of no more satisfied patients than those who have been relieved of the severe pain caused by a Fissure. If you have any of the above symptoms, or any other rectal symptoms, see or write Dr. Rich, Rectal Specialist, Grand Island, Nebr.

Absent Treatment

By GORDON EMSLIE
Associated Newspapers, WNU Service.

THE doctor had just gone and Peter Kane lay looking up at his nurse with an expression of intense exasperation, the immediate reason for his disgust being the decree that he could not hope to leave his bed for at least another week. Peter felt suspicious of that "at least." It smacked too much of the "on the point of death but must not be told" treatment. Not that he was possessed of any terrors, but he wanted tremendously to be up and about.

"Head ache?" asked his nurse kindly.

"No!" lied Peter crossly.

Something wet and deliciously cold descended on his hot forehead.

"There, that'll make your head feel better," murmured a soft voice. "I'll lower the shade so the light won't be too—"

"The light's all right," grumbled Peter, reaching for a book that was just beyond his grasp. Almost at once the book was miraculously in his hand, his pillows were plumped up, a glass of fresh ice-water was by his side and the nurse was unobtrusively seated by the farthest window. Still Peter felt disgruntled. His illness had reached that not-very-bad, rather-headachy, want-to-be-left-alone stage, when everything within sight and sound becomes at times intolerably irksome and nerve-wracking.

"Miss Rogers," said Peter finally, "you must be tired. Why don't you go and take your walk?"

"It will be time for your medicine shortly," was the reply.

"But, my dear girl," said Peter testily, "I still have the use of my hands, you know, even if that fussy doctor won't let me use my feet."

"You might forget to shake the bottle."

Peter raised himself a little in order to get a better view of her face. Her voice made him suspect that she was laughing at him. If such were the case he knew that a certain elusive dimple would make her well worth looking at.

"I'll promise to shake it."

"And then put the bottle back without opening," remarked Miss Constance Rogers sagely.

Peter considered the point.

"If I promise to shake the bottle and take a dose of that da— that extremely unpleasant stuff, will you go and take your daily constitutional immediately?"

"It's time for your medicine now," said Constance.

After the medicine there seemed to be all sorts of little things that needed attention; the window had to be raised, the shade lowered, the counterpane straightened. He fretted and fumed inwardly. How he hated to be fussed over as if he were an infant!

"I believe," proposed Peter hopefully, "that the best thing for me will be to be left alone in order that I may sleep."

Constance made no move to go. Obviously that had been an injudicious statement, decided Peter. Perhaps she thought it a subterfuge meant to cover a plan to disobey the doctor's orders and get up and dress.

"I think, after all, I'll read awhile," said Peter, sitting up and thumping his pillows truculently.

"Just hand me that Cellini autobiography, please—the one on the table over there."

Constance brought him the book, plumped his pillows, raised the shade and started for her seat by the window.

"Now that you have done everything you can possibly think of, you may as well start, don't you think?" suggested Peter.

"I believe I shall," was the unexpected reply.

Five minutes after his nurse's departure Benvenuto Cellini's autobiography slipped to the floor, the cloth on his head felt so unbearably hot that Peter hurled it viciously over the footboard, the tassel on the shade tapped maddeningly against the window pane, the ice in his glass of water had melted; in short, he felt thoroughly miserable. By the time the clock had ticked away 30 minutes he felt abused; here he was lying helpless, neglected, in pain, for his head was pounding harder than ever. Nobody came in response to his bell—where on earth was June? Sisters never could be depended upon anyway. She'd probably run in next door for a minute—a minute that as usual meant a solid hour. It was Thursday, his mother's club day, he remembered; yes, and the maid's day off, too. No wonder his bell remained unanswered. A fine sister he had to desert him at a time like this! When 55 minutes had passed he was gloomily reflecting upon his fast approaching end.

Promptly on the hour Constance returned. When she laid a cool bunch of violets against his hot face she found her hands seized and held tightly.

"Connie," said Peter earnestly, "promise that you'll never leave me again as long as we live."

"Never?" asked Constance a little breathlessly, the dimple beginning to appear.

"Never!" said Peter emphatically.

Mr. Fenner, hearing of its decision and desiring to read the book offered to buy it from the board. One member of the board objected to this on the grounds that it was not fit reading material for anyone. It was pointed out to her that if Mr. Fenner wanted to read the book that he had no power to stop him for he would merely buy another copy and the board decided to sell the book to him.

One board member wanted the stipulation made that Mr. Fenner would allow no one else to read it but the other members did not think the suggestion was feasible.

Mr. Fenner read the book and after he finished it he wrote the following letter:

To the Library Board, Burwell, Nebraska

Dear Ladies:

In the spirit of the holiday season and with the thought in my mind that it may be a constructive criticism, that may be helpful, I am writing you this letter.

I have just finished a careful reading of "Grapes of Wrath" which I purchased from you because you discarded the book thinking it unfit to be read by the patrons of our public library.

I am not able in my mind to understand why you arrived at your decision. Isn't it true that we arrive at our decisions as to what is good from a comparison with that which is known to be bad?

For instance: If all the women in the world were good and had no faults none of us would appreciate them for the reason that we would have no comparison to make and we would take them as a matter of course. The only way that we can know that a woman is good is to compare her with one that is not good.

Take another instance: Suppose the only foot racer that we had in the country was Glenn Cunningham, who runs a mile in a little over four minutes. The only way that we have to know that he is a good foot racer is to compare him and his time with other runners who are not so good.

I do not think that I can assume the prerogative of saying what my friends or anybody else may say, or read, or do. They have the right to do what they please so long as they remain and keep within the bounds of the law and I have no right to any censorship over them.

When you, as a library board, take unto yourselves the authority to say that I shall not read or that you will not have in the public library "The Grapes of Wrath" or any other book you set yourselves up as a censorship board which I believe to be unwise, against public policy and dictatorial.

I stated above that I have carefully read "Grapes of Wrath" and I believe that the book has done more good for me than any book that I have read in the last twenty years. I feel much deeper sympathy for the poor and have a much higher regard for their sentiments and their outlook on life and I understand it much better because of the comparison that the author makes between the good and the bad which are in that strata the same as in all other classes of people.

I believe that the reaction of any one after reading the book depends entirely upon the attitude that person has on life. If he or she is looking for the good things in life, the high aspirations and the alleviation of human suffering, he or she can find it in this book in superabundance.

If the reader's mind is prone to look upon the ugly things of life, the dross and dregs, the filthy and profane, he can also find it in this book, but by making a comparison between the good and the bad he is able when the book is finished to have a much better understanding of life and its problems.

The book brings these things home to its readers in everyday life and the conversation of these people is written and portrayed in the language that we hear every day. There is not an exhort that Peter hurled it viciously over the footboard, the tassel on the shade tapped maddeningly against the window pane, the ice in his glass of water had melted; in short, he felt thoroughly miserable. By the time the clock had ticked away 30 minutes he felt abused; here he was lying helpless, neglected, in pain, for his head was pounding harder than ever. Nobody came in response to his bell—where on earth was June? Sisters never could be depended upon anyway. She'd probably run in next door for a minute—a minute that as usual meant a solid hour. It was Thursday, his mother's club day, he remembered; yes, and the maid's day off, too. No wonder his bell remained unanswered. A fine sister he had to desert him at a time like this! When 55 minutes had passed he was gloomily reflecting upon his fast approaching end.

I think that you were wise in putting the book in the library and the opposite when you discarded it.

This is, of course, the opinion of but one patron and taxpayer in Burwell and is written to you with the hope it will cause a further discussion in your board in regard to this book as well as others that you may purchase or that may be donated to you in your capacity only as supervisors of our library.

Very truly yours,
L. B. FENNER

As yet the library board has made no answer to Mr. Fenner's letter. Only one member of the board has read the entire book in controversy. She stated that she agreed partly with Mr. Fenner's contentions. In her opinion parts of the book are beautifully written and she stated that it does give a true picture, in her opinion, of the people described. She stated that she had read several reviews of the book before the book was bought and that she opposed placing it on the library shelves as she felt it would be displeasing to a great number of patrons.

After the book was bought and paid for she opposed banning it as the board is short of funds and there were many adults who wanted to read it whom she believed would be benefited by so doing. Other members of the board were scornful at the idea of keeping the book on the shelves merely because it was paid for declaring that the morals of the young people of this community were worth a great deal more than $1.85, the price paid for the book. The idea of limiting the circulation of the book to adult patrons was also voted down because the board believed that some parents would allow their children to read it.

One board member declared that she started the book but because of the obscenity and profanity she was so shocked that she could not compel herself to read more of it. She thinks that the book is unsuitable for both adult and juvenile readers and declared that it was being banned by libraries all over the country. She also declared that she thought it extremely unwise to direct any publicity to the book.

Another board member was inclined to minimize the importance of the affair declaring the library board has banned lots of books. When questioned if the books had been catalogued and paid for she said they were not but she said she remembered that the board banned a book twenty-five years ago which had been placed in circulation.

THE ORD QUIZ

It Happened in Ord.

They say that Keith Lewis got the nicest Christmas gift of all, and now he isn't getting to use it. He bought himself a new Plymouth for Christmas, and because of the weather conditions he has left it in his garage until conditions are more favorable to give it a try-out.

For the first time in goodness knows how many years, a real live Santa Claus appeared at the F. J. Dworak home this year. Mr. Dworak must have been a skeptic, for he turned out the lights as soon as Santa left, and thought he would find out where he went to. But the old fellow was wise and didn't go home, as F. J. thought.

Calvin Ferris Won Auble Bros. Watch

As an incentive to the public to watch their window, Auble Bros., initiated a novel contest. They put a Bulova watch in the show window some time ago with the announcement that it would be given away to the person who guessed closest to the time the watch would run on one winding.

More than 1200 persons registered guesses, and when the list was checked over Saturday evening, it was found that Calvin Ferris had won, his guess of 47 hours and 30 minutes being just one second too much. The boys say that the contest attracted much attention and was well worth while.

Won Auble Motors Lamp.

An unusual contest carried on by Auble Motors offered an electric lamp as a prize to the person guessing closest to the number of pieces of candy in a glass jar on display in the window. A large number of persons registered guesses, with Victor Kerchal carrying off the lamp and the candy.

—Mrs. Joe Marks spent Wednesday afternoon in Ord with Mrs. Henry Marks.
