Simple in Design, the New Postoffice Built for Service

Basement Rooms Will Be Used for Department of Agriculture Offices.

Following the general plan of federal buildings, Ord's new postoffice is very simple in design. It is 61 by 53 feet over all, and stands on a plot of ground 105 by 187 1/2 feet in size. The main entrance is in the center of the south side and is reached by a flight of steps. On either side of the front door, and around the southwest corner there are three areas, the purpose of which is to furnish ventilation to the basement.

Upon entering the front door one steps into a small foyer with glass windows across the back and a door at each end which give entrance to the main lobby. This is certainly a lovely room with its floor of marble and wainscoting of Missouri marble extending all the way around it. The walls above are painted plaster.

Directly facing the front door are the windows where the public is waited upon. In the southwest corner of the main floor is the postmaster's room, which is equipped with an oak floor instead of marble. All the woodwork in this part of the building is walnut in beautiful but simple designs.

To the east of the delivery windows is the section of lock boxes for the benefit of those who prefer a box to city delivery. They are lock boxes in every sense of the word, and the owner has to carry a key to his box if he wants to get his mail. The boxes cannot even be opened from the inside. This is the type of box the government uses in all federal postoffices.

To the rear of the partition is the main work floor where all the rural and city mail racks are located and where the work of distribution is carried on. This is a space perhaps 30 by 50 feet in size and provides ample room for the present carriers with room for expansion in the future if necessary. The floor of this room is made of maple.

First Postmaster Was A. T. Stacy, Office Open in '73

Ord Has Had 18 Postmasters in 67 Years Since Postal Service Was Started.

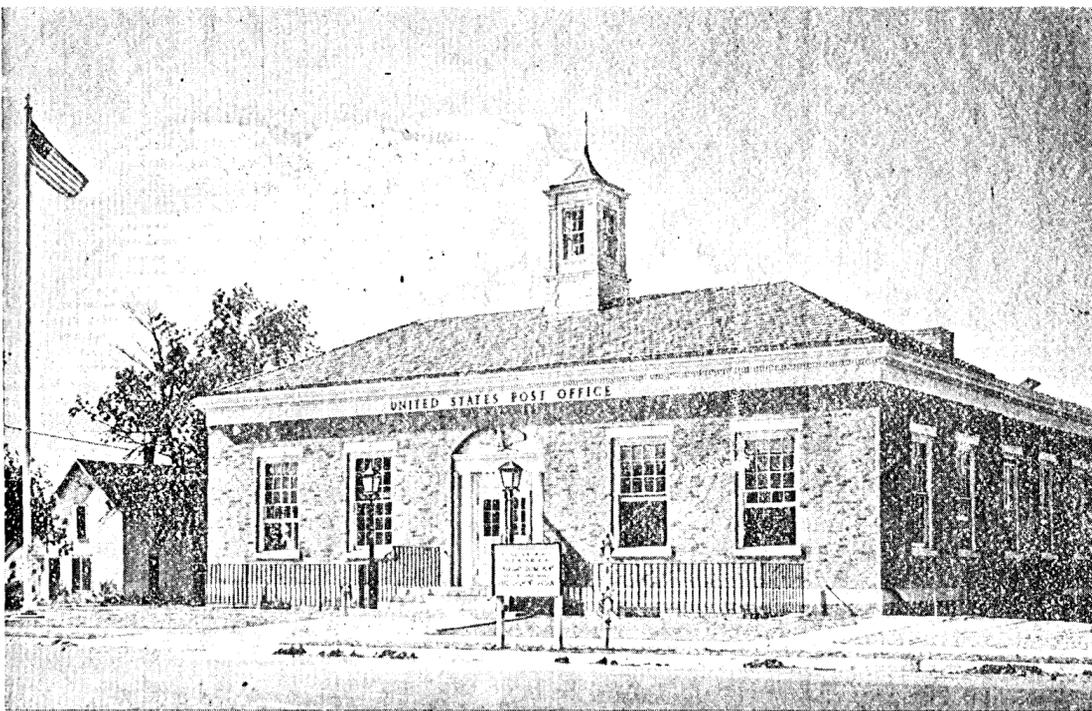

Records in the Post Office department library at Washington, D. C., indicate that the Ord post office was established November 17, 1873, with Arthur T. Stacy as the first postmaster. The order establishing the office provided that it should be served by a special route, but no details of the service are contained in the records now available.

When the post office was established the postmaster's compensation was fixed at $12 per annum. The records indicate, however, that for the fiscal year 1875 the postmaster at "Ordway", as it was then listed, received $33.32. Early receipts of the office are not available at this time.

The records show that money order business was established at Ord on August 15, 1881; that rural delivery service was established here on May 16, 1904, with two

Building to Be Dedicated August 14th the Fifth and Final Home of Ord's Postoffice

The postoffice in Ord has now reached the final state in its progress about the city. The first home worthy of the name was located on the west side of the square. From there it was moved to the east side, then to the south side, and finally to the home it occupied in the Milford building for nearly thirty years. Today the new and final home at the corner of 17th and L streets is ready for occupancy.

Men noted in the early life of Ord had charge of the office in its travels around the town, and many of those names are perpetuated in the names of their descendants who still make this their home. Like our postoffice, which has never taken a backward step, we citizens of Ord owe it to our town to strive ever onward and upward toward those things in life which are worth attaining.

To the east of these and around a shoulder of the wall are the general delivery boxes, and between them is a door opening into the main workroom, which will of course be locked all the time. Beneath the delivery windows on Band Contest, Free Melons, a Free Movie Show, Pavement Dance, Arranged For.

A crowd of 5,000 or more people in Ord for the postoffice dedication and free day next Wednesday, Aug. 14, is visualized by those in charge of the celebration as plans for the program continue to develop.

First event of the big day will be the band contest in which it is hoped 6 to 10 central Nebraska bands will compete. Cash prizes of $25, $15 and $10 are being offered. Committee in charge is made up of Ben Clark, Henry Dumes and Alfred Wiegardt. Mr. Clark said yesterday that he has definite assurance that the Burwell, Comstock and Sargent bands will compete in the contest and is hopeful that three or four more bands will accept Ord's invitation. The Ord Municipal band will play throughout the day but will not compete in the contest, Clark states. Director Glen D. Auble's Loup Valley band also may be present but will not compete in the contest.

The band contest, which consists both of playing and marching, will start at 10:00 a. m., and last until noon.

Money Allotted for Postoffice June 30th, 1938

Site Was Bought Early in 1939, Work Started Late Last Autumn.

The first official action taken relative to a new federal postoffice building for Ord came June 30, 1938. On that day telegrams were received by Postmaster Alfred L. Hill and the Ord Quiz from Congressman Harry B. Coffee, stating that federal funds in the amount of $75,000 had been allotted for the erection of a postoffice in Ord.

It stated that the government had set aside that amount and that government representatives would be in Ord in a few weeks to look over various sites for the new building. It had been known for several months before that time that Ord was next on the list of towns to have a building as soon as funds were available for the purpose.

On July 13 a story in the Quiz said that the government was to advertise for a suitable postoffice site. The bid was to call for a space at least 120 by 170 feet in size, and the bids were to be opened and acted upon Aug. 3.

The legal which appeared in the Quiz for July 29 and 31 was from the Treasury Department, Procurement division, Public Buildings branch, Washington, D. C., under date of July 8, 1938. It called for sealed bids to be handed in to the postmaster at Ord, to be opened publicly at 9 o'clock a. m., Aug. 3, for the sale or donation to the United States of suitable lots for the erection of the building.

Thirteen proposals for the postoffice site were offered and were opened at the time above stated in the presence of Ralph W. Norman, E. S. Murray and John L. Ward. Postmaster Hill opened the bids, which were numbered before opening, and Guy LeMasters, assistant postmaster, took down the descriptions of the properties.

THE POSTAL SERVICE

The idea of sending messages by mail was first manifest when mankind first learned to express his ideas on parchment or similar material.

In its primitive meaning the postal service is the transfer of a written message from one person to another by means of an intermediate. The transfer of messages by a third party in medieval times was accomplished with little likelihood of the messages being learned by any one other than the one to whom it was sent.

The words "postal service" imply the sending of communications by governmental agency. In the beginning the service was only for the use of people of importance, and the plebeian delivered his own messages or they were not delivered.

The method by which important government communications were delivered in early times was by means of runners who were stationed at intervals and whose duty it was to take the message placed in their care and deliver it to the next runner, thus maintaining a maximum of efficiency.

Frequent references to posts, or places where runners met, are to be found in the Old Testament, thus establishing the fact that governments of those times had a well defined system of delivering messages from one point to another as expeditiously as possible.

Perhaps the first postal system worthy of the name was organized in France near the close of the thirteenth century, in Germany in the latter half of the fifteenth century and in Italy in 1561.

The first British postal stamp made its appearance just 100 years ago, in 1840. Following that date progress was rapid in England, the parcel post, banking and telegraph facilities being added to the system.

The first colonial postal system was inaugurated in the colony of Massachusetts in 1639, and by 1691 the American post was established for all the colonies.

From 1707 to 1775 the service in America was controlled by the General Postoffice in London. Benjamin Franklin was placed in charge of the postal service and greatly improved its efficiency.

The Continental Congress, in 1775, resolved to have a Post Office system of its own and Franklin was chosen administrator. Later he was succeeded by his son-in-law, Richard Bache.

Governmental records show that Samuel Osgood of Massachusetts was the first Postmaster General. He was appointed in 1789 and served two years.

During the administration of James Madison the office of second assistant postmaster general was created. At that time the cost of delivering a letter was from eight to twenty five cents, according to districts.

At that time the postage was all collected in money and might be either prepaid or paid by the recipient. In 1847 stamps were introduced. Stamped envelopes were first used in 1853.

Free delivery service was established under the administration of Abraham Lincoln in 1863. Ten years later the postal card was introduced.

It is of interest to note that the most essential feature of the postal system, the postage stamp, was originated just one hundred years ago, when Roland Hill, Postmaster of England, conceived the uniform penny postage plan. Prior to that time the postage varied with the distance the letter traveled.

The custom of putting out a special issue of postage stamps to commemorate some special event was started many years ago, and due to the demand of philatelists, it has developed by leaps and bounds.

Next week we are celebrating the opening of Ord's new federal postoffice, which while well built is a very modest building compared with some of those in the larger cities. Yet it is doubtless as good as any postoffice in the United States was a hundred years ago.

My Own Column
By H. D. Leggett

Dear Quiz Readers: Last week I cheated you, or did I? The force said it would be a tough week, with only 3 pages probably, and that room might beat a premium, so I didn't write.

We drove out of camp on Thursday morning, Aug. 1, at 4:30 in the rain and we drove 200 miles in the rain. Then it quit raining. Eugene didn't bring a coat and we had to drive with the car closed until about noon.

Hi Anderson is leaving for Cullen this week end to join his family and help Mrs. Anderson entertain some guests who they have invited. The two smaller ones of the Anderson children are anxious to come home.

L. B. Fenner is started on another rock project and if he ever gets sent to Alcatraz he will surely be in line for a foremanship with the experience he is getting in rock work. He is now engaged in building a stone garage.

The next one is Mrs. Simpson from Omaha and she and her grandson have been there for three weeks and are doing a great job of cleaning up their place. They were expecting her son Byron and family this week end.

The Humphreilles went home last week but their people, the Bowsmans, came promptly and the Humphreilles and Bowman place is getting the best cleaning up this year that it has had in years.

There are some people from St. Louis in the Ed Michalek cottage for a month and a couple of Minneapolis men are in the Machowski cottage, so every cottage is now occupied except the Page place and the Dr. Gelow place.

The red raspberry crop was in full swing when we left and as some people have everbearing raspberries we will have berries for a long time. The man we buy strawberries from has 3 acres and told me he would have between 5 and 6 thousand quarts if timely rains come along.

Eugene had to come home this week to look after the special postoffice edition this week and I didn't like to have him make the trip alone, so I came along to sort of check up on Joe Knezacek, Jerry Petaska, Ellsworth Ball and a few others who will always bear watching a little.

Contractor and Construction Engineer Study Plans for Postoffice

Contractor Charles E. Goodhand and Construction Engineer F. C. French are shown above studying the blue prints of Ord's new postoffice, of which there were a total of fifty or more, covering every detail of construction.

Such work presents no difficulty for Mr. Goodhand, who has built many buildings, municipal, county, federal and for private companies, in his long experience as contractor.

Mr. French, whose home is in Lake City, Colo., came to Ord as construction engineer last August 18, and has been here as representative of the Federal Works Agency since that time.

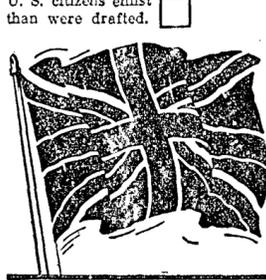

He is a man of large experience in construction work and believes that Ord will have a postoffice of which we may well be proud.

Goodhand Well Known Contractor 47 Years

Forty seven years ago Charles E. Goodhand came to Ord from Illinois, where he was born at Richmond in 1868. He arrived on a Saturday and Monday morning he went to work with George Gaghaghen, local carpenter who was building the farm home of Henry Lee in Mira Valley.

The first work he did in Ord was on the R. J. Clark house in the southeast part of town. His first large contract in Ord was the construction of the McLain and Siler building on the west side of the square. This building was later gutted by fire and was torn down to make place for the new Ord theater.

While Mr. Goodhand did much of his work, especially of later years, strictly on his own, he at times worked with one of Ord's best known early day carpenters, John Wentworth. He had a part in the construction and rebuilding of dozens of residences and store buildings, and the list of new buildings he built is a long one.

More than 40 years ago Mr. Goodhand built the Unitarian church, which was then, and still is, unique in the building annals of Ord. Nothing like it has been built since. Today it is the American Legion hall, and still attracts much attention from visitors because of its unusual construction.

Among the well known buildings of Ord which Mr. Goodhand built are the Bohemian hall, the F. J. Dwork building where the Farmers store is located, the Ord grade school building which was once the Ord high school. The building for Joe Barta where the Russell drug store is located, the Fafesta building on the south side where the Jerry Petaska store is, and his own buildings on the south side which house the Brown-McDonald company, the City Cafe and the Goodhand Alleys.

One of the early contracts of Mr. Goodhand outside Ord was the high school building at Barwell which was abandoned two years ago when the new high school was built. It is believed that this building will some day be bought by Garfield county and used as a court house.

Built by Goodhand were the Scotts Bluff county court house at Gering and the Cheyenne county court house at Sidney, the only court house jobs he contracted. He also built the high school building at Wahoo and the junior high building at McCook.

The building of postoffices is not a new idea with Mr. Goodhand, for he has built them at McCook, Wahoo, Chadron, in Nebraska, at Belle Fourche and Rapid City in South Dakota, and now has just completed the building in Ord. Any man who can handle such a number of contracts has to be good, and Ord should be proud to own him as a citizen.

Wherever he has worked Mr. Goodhand has made it a point to hire local help wherever possible, and he did so in Ord. The following is a list of the men who have been employed in various capacities on the contract for the Ord postoffice:

E. W. Hower, Harvey Parks, Ed Parks, John Beran, Bill Iwanski, Damnon Zulkoski, Jim Nevrlka, Bill Skoll, Jimmy Turek, Lloyd and Bill Butler, Martin Knopek.

Shorty Vodehnal, Elmer Golka, Ed Holloway, Neis Nielsen, Ernest Zabloulli, Everett Mason, Louie Puncocchar, Joe Kusek, John Hawthorne, Bill Moon, Joe Vavra, Donald Long, William Petaska, Clyde Paddock, Ed Hruby, Ed Knapp, Frank Farmer, Chester Houtby, Jim Vastcek, John Mason, Anton Swannek and A. B. Crossley.

Steve Carkoski had charge of the installation of the plumbing and wiring. In addition Jens Hansen and his son Hans did all the blacksmithing needed on the building, which was no small amount. In giving the above information Mr. Goodhand jokingly remarked that, while he was the lowest bidder and got the contract, a lot of people would be talking about how much money he made, now that the job is done.

The postoffice vault is located in the middle of the west side of the building and near the southwest corner of the room. The vault door faces to the east and the space immediately in front of it is separated from the rest of the workroom by a heavy wire grill. A door from the postmaster's room gives access to this space, and two doors in the grill are provided with locks.

To the rear of the workroom is the loading platform, where all the mail is loaded and unloaded. It is in the open, on three sides but is provided with a roof which projects over the driveway to keep the mail dry in case it should be raining.

Ventilation of the workroom, and in fact of the entire main floor, is provided in a vaulted space near the center of the building above and to the rear of the center partition. A row of windows facing the north can be opened simultaneously by a chain device operated from the main floor.

The building is provided with windows on all sides giving ample light during the day time, and these are all furnished with Venetian blinds. In the lobby the indirect lighting system is used, with direct lighting in the remainder of the building.

A stairway near the southeast outside corner of the building leads to a hallway extending east and west across the basement of the building and in front of this are the three offices which will be occupied by the Department of Agriculture Extension service.

The floors in these offices are constructed of asphalt tile and the woodwork is pine. There is a main room in the center, with an office room at either end. The farm offices now located in the rooms of the clerk of the district court in the court house will be moved to these rooms.

The floors and lower part of the walls in the swing room and toilets in the basement are of standard tile, the rest of the walls being plaster and cream colored paint. The swing room is provided as a rest and recreation room for the employees when off duty. There are a total of 7 toilets in the building all with standard equipment.

Back of the space provided for the Department of Agriculture and connected with the hall by a hall running north and south are the storage and fuel rooms of the building, and the boiler room, which is beneath the northeast part of the main workroom above.

All walls in this part of the basement are finished in brick, and all the floors are of concrete. The heating plant is of the latest design in standard heating equipment and is amply large for all emergencies. The grounds are provided with concrete walks where needed and at present are smoothed off and sloped slightly from the building in all directions. Later this space will be landscaped with shrubbery and planted to grass, it being one of the duties of the janitors to keep the grounds in perfect condition at all times.

Evelyn Sharp Carried First Air Mail to and from Ord in Demonstration in 1938 and addressed to local people. At 1:30 p. m., she left with 27 pounds of air mail, making a total of 60 pounds of mail sent out from Ord in the first air mail flight in history.

Thus closed one of the most eventful days in the history of the Ord postoffice, and one which will long be remembered by those who had an active part in the program. At the present time nothing further has developed in regard to giving Ord regular air mail service, but it was demonstrated that the idea is feasible, and Ord will have air mail service whenever the time is ripe for it.

Free Delivery of Mail Was Started Here Only in '31

Credit for Its Establishment Goes to Edwin Clements, Postmaster Then.

The first city free delivery service of mail ever given in Ord started April 1, 1931. The two men appointed temporary carriers were John Lemmon and Mart Wiegardt. According to Postmaster Edwin Clements, free delivery service was established and would continue without interruption with the exceptions of Sundays and holidays.

The first delivery was to start at 8 a. m., when one carrier was to deliver to the business section and the other was to start on the residential district. When the first carrier completed his route he would start in the residential section. The first delivery was to be completed by 10:30 a. m.

A second delivery was to start at about 1:30 p. m. and be completed at about 4 p. m. However, a second delivery in the business district was to start at 11 a. m. and be completed before noon. The time of delivery, then as now, was dependent upon the arrival of the mail. When the mail arrived late, the delivery would also be late.

Five street collection boxes were placed at convenient places around town and mail from these was to be collected at regular hours. They were placed at the following locations: one was placed in front of Hotel Ord, one in front of Beranek's drug store, one at each of the school buildings and one at the corner of 20 and M streets. The boxes are still located at these places.

With the start of city service the one-cent drop letter postage, then in force was raised to the regular letter rate of 2 cents. Since the appointment of John Lemmon as carrier created a vacancy in the postoffice, Michael Ferlinski was appointed temporarily as part time clerk to take his place.

The credit for the establishment of city carrier service goes to Edwin Clements, who was postmaster at that time. Mr. Clements served as postmaster 12 years. He succeeded W. A. Bartlett to the job in 1924 and was succeeded by Alfred L. Hill, June 1, 1936.

February 16, 1933 the Ord postoffice was granted an extension of R. F. D. No. 1 taking in all the east end of Ord not already served by city delivery. The new route was to start Feb. 16, and was granted for the reason that city delivery service was not available there because of the insufficiency of walks and cross walks. City carriers are not required by law to deliver mail where there are no sidewalks.

Postmaster Hill had been trying for some time to get some kind of service for the east part of Ord and this method was worked out as the most practical solution. Now patrons in east Ord get the earliest possible service, as the route, carried by W. L. Blessing starts out that way and they are the first of the route to receive mail.

For centuries the rose has been the symbol of secrecy. The preparation "sub" means under. In places of sanctuary where confidences were to be exchanged, it was customary to carve a rose over the entrance. Literally, to be under the rose was to have the benefits of secrecy.

The Quiz for March 23, 1938, contains the first story of the Air-mail week in which the Ord office was to participate. In celebration of the twentieth anniversary of the inauguration of air mail service in the United States the week of May 15 to 21 had been designated as All-Mail Week.

Postmaster Alfred L. Hill had received word that a mail plane was to visit Ord on Thursday, May 19, and that on that day letters might be mailed from Ord by air mail, the letter to bear a special cachet. The design of the cachet was not decided at the time, but was worked out later.

The mail plane was to make a circuit of a number of towns in this section of the state, landing and picking up mail at each town. This mail was to be delivered to the postoffice in Grand Island and sent out over the regular air mail routes.

The reason for the air mail demonstration was that the government was planning to work out air mail feeder routes connecting with cities on the main air lanes, and that this would give them some idea as to the most practical and feasible routes to use.

April 27 the Quiz published a map showing the six air mail routes out of Grand Island, the way they were to be flown and the towns included on the routes. The Ord route went to Spalding, Burwell, Ord and St. Paul, but was later changed to take in Greeley.

By May 4 another idea had been added. Air mail pilots were to bring air mail into the towns as well as to take it out. This was a source of satisfaction to philatelists who were thus able to add many interesting specimens to their collections.

By May 11th a special box was placed in the lobby of the postoffice to be used for mail to be sent out over Ord's first air mail service. At that time the Quiz published a picture of Tom Springer, commander of the Ord American Legion post, dropping the first letter in the box. The Legion was active in assisting other organizations put the day over.

The Legion was sponsoring the sale of special air mail envelopes bearing a special cachet, which carried a drawing of the route taken by the planes out of Grand Island and in the corner a picture of Miss Evelyn Sharp, Ord's noted aviatrix. An insert giving information about the Ord-North Loup project was given with each envelope.

It was about this time that an incident occurred which is of interest in connection with the postoffice. A convention of Nebraska postmasters was held at North Platte at which J. F. Webster of St. Paul was elected president and Alfred L. Hill was elected secretary. After serving as secretary two years Mr. Hill was elected president of the state organization last spring.

In April the list of pilots who would take part in the commemoration of Air Mail Week had been announced, and the six routes had been charted. They called for an approximate 900 miles of air flying, all in Nebraska, and the serving of 27 cities with a population of 100,000 people. Extra planes and pilots were to be held in reserve at Grand Island to pick up any route where a pilot failed to make the trip because of weather or mechanical trouble.

The pilots selected were: Miss Evelyn Sharp, Ord; O. A. Kostal, M. D., Hastings; Arvine J. Bierman, Holdrege; George Bartenbach, Grand Island; John Seims, Columbus; W. W. Arrasmith, M. D., Grand Island; H. L. Hansen, D. D. S., Hastings; Louis E. Rodenhorst, Columbus; Leonard Kyes, Archer; D. W. Kingsley, M. D., Hastings; Victor L. Beck, D. D. S., Broken Bow; F. O. Gottschalk, Broken Bow.

The morning of May 18 dawned with a quite heavy fog, a rather unusual condition in this section, but this did not hinder the flyers, who got away on schedule. Fog clothed the government licensed air port at Mortensen field that morning at 7 a. m. Miss Sharp arrived on schedule but could not locate the field through the fog, so flew to North Loup to refuel, and then came back again.

She was flying a little orange colored monoplane, and because of the fog, only a few people were at the air port when she arrived, although a large number had arrived before she made her departure some ten minutes later. She was met by practically all the high dignitaries of Ord, Miss Viola Crouch, presenting her with a gold locket and chain as the gift of the Business and Professional Women's club.

Miss Sharp took off at 7:50 a. m. with a 33-pound sack of air mail letters. About the time she left another plane was seen circling for a landing, and when they came down they were discovered to be Frank Cushing and Enzinger of Hastings, who were flying the Grand Island-Spalding-Burwell flight. They had been trying to get through to Burwell but could not do so because of the prevailing fog.

All mail from Burwell, Arcadia, Comstock and Sargent was brought to Ord by auto and taken from here on the Cushing plane, which left at about 10 a. m. The fog lifted about mid-morning and the planes made their second trip of the day on schedule and without any difficulty of any kind.

When Miss Sharp returned from Grand Island shortly before noon she brought with her a bundle of air mail letters mailed that morning in other towns of the state the workroom side are the drawers and cupboards for supplies. Each clerk has his own drawer and all of them are locked in the safe in the vault at night. There is also an outside safe where they may put when only one clerk is on duty during the day.

All Equipment in Ord Postoffice Completely New

Instead of having the letter case for the general delivery window in front and to one side of the window as in the old office, it will be directly behind the window. There will be found the letter case at the right, the paper case to the left of it, and the parcel post case just behind it.

The parcel post packages will be wheeled about in a rubber tired cart especially designed for the purpose. There are dispatching racks for the sacks and pouches and the mail dispatching case. A little further back are the primary sorting letter case, the primary paper sorting case and the throw-back table and the parcel post cancelling cases.

The rural carrier and city delivery sorting cases are located in the northeast corner of the room. Of interest are the electric clocks. They are circular in shape. One about 18 inches in diameter is placed in the rear of the main room, another the same size is above the delivery windows in the lobby. A third, slightly smaller, is in the postmaster's room.

Parcel post mail for city delivery will be placed in mail sacks in order of delivery, and will be taken out on the route in these sacks. For this reason it will be difficult to deliver any packages for city delivery at the general delivery window, as it would be necessary to empty the sack and replace the packages in order again.

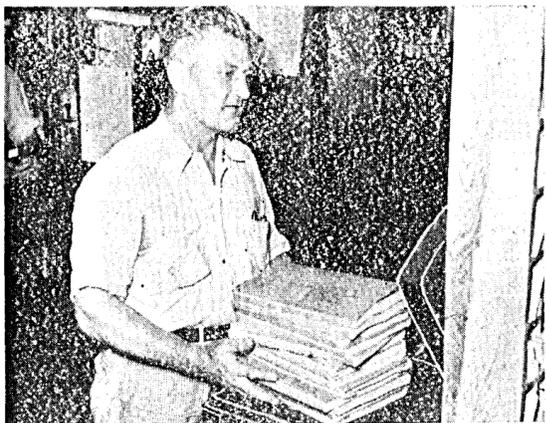

The finance section of the postoffice is in the southwest corner of the main room and to the north of the postmaster's room, with which it is connected by a door. The vault is directly north of the postmaster's room, and a space about sixteen feet square to the east of it is enclosed with heavy netting.

Within this space are a desk, a table, a filing cabinet for forms, one for money order forms, and a safe with space for the individual stamp drawers and a strong box for registers. Within the vault itself is a burglar-proof strong box, a stamp safe and three lock cases for envelopes.

The postmaster's office is equipped with a large walnut flat-topped desk, a filing cabinet, a blank form cabinet, a cap size filing cabinet and a clothing locker. There is a heavy rug covering the floor. The woodwork and furniture in this room and in the lobby are all in walnut.

The swing room in the basement is for the use of employees while off duty and provides a place for them to change clothes. It is provided with individual lockers for all the employees. The furniture for the Department of Agriculture rooms was not yet in place when this was written but will be in keeping with that in the rest of the building.

Postoffice Clerks Have Long Service Records

Twenty-three, twenty-three and nine years, respectively, are the periods Guy LeMasters, Mark Tolen and Roy Severson, pictured above, have served the public as employees of the Ord postoffice. All are courteous, friendly and obliging, and are highly regarded by postoffice patrons.

Assistant Postmaster Guy LeMasters began work in the Ord postoffice Feb. 1, 1917. He is married; has two children, Rosalie and Catherine. He is 43 years old.

Clerk Mark Tolen was appointed June 16, 1917 and has worked in the Ord office continuously since. He is 41 years old, is married, and has two sons, Thomas and Richard.

Newest member of the regular force is Clerk Roy Severson, who was appointed May 1, 1931. He also serves as city carrier. He is married, has no children, is 46 years old.

carriers at $600 per annum each; and that city delivery service was established April 1, 1931.

The records now available do not show under what circumstances, or through whose influence, the office was established. The list of postmasters and the date of their appointment follows:

- Arthur T. Stacy, Nov. 17, 1873.
- Jeppie Smith, Aug. 24, 1875.
- Sylvester S. Haskell, July 7, 1876.
- Ziba K. Ferguson, May 31, 1890.
- John Case, July 15, 1881.
- Joseph H. Capron, March 23, 1883.
- Charles C. Wolf, Jan. 22, 1884.
- James R. Fairbank, Oct. 26, 1885.
- William W. Haskell, Nov. 19, 1889.
- John L. McDonough, March 19, 1894.
- Samuel A. Stacy, May 19, 1898.
- Albert M. Coonrod, June 18, 1906.
- William M. McNutt, (acting) Dec. 9, 1910.
- Alvin Blessing, Jan. 27, 1911.
- Horace M. Davis, March 1, 1915.
- William A. Bartlett, Aug. 5, 1919.
- Edwin P. Clements, Jr., March 11, 1924.
- Alfred L. Hill, May 19, 1936.

Mentioned above is the fact that no details of the special route by which the new post office at Ord was to be served are available in the records. It seems that most of the time from the establishment of the office the mail came by carrier from St. Paul.

There were two routes up the valley for some time, one bringing mail up the east side of the river and stopping at Half-way House near Cotesfield, at Springdale, at Calamus and at Willow Springs. The other came up the west side of the river and stopped at North Loup, Ord, Ida and the Forks, later to become Burwell.

It is interesting to note that while the office here was named Ord in 1873, the first steps toward building a town were not taken until May, 1874, and Gen. E. O. C. Ord, for whom the town was named, did not make his trip into the valley for the purpose of locating Ft. Hartsuff until late in the summer of 1874.

The Quiz is indebted to Fourth Assistant Postmaster General's office for this information relative to the establishment of the postoffice at Ord, and the list of postmasters, together with the time of their appointment.

Arthur T. Stacy, Ord's first postmaster, kept the office in his residence property located to the northeast of the original townsite of Ord, probably not far from where the E. W. Gruber property is now located. It is understood that his immediate successors, Jeppie Smith and S. S. Haskell did the same.

By the time Ziba Ferguson came into the office in 1880 the townsite had been laid out and was taking shape. He kept the office in a store building on the west side of the square, probably where the Ord City Bakery now stands. The Quiz is indebted to George W. Newbecker for this information.

Some time between 1880 and 1885 it was moved from the Ferguson location directly across the block east to a small frame building which then stood just south of the present site of the Odd Fellows building.

It remained there until W. W. Haskell was appointed in 1889, when he moved it to his building on the south side of the square, the present location of the Johnson Beer parlor. Many Ordites will recall the fact that it was in the back part of the building and the original Johnson Bros., John and James, ran a drug store in the front end.

During the administration of Alvin Blessing in 1911 the postoffice was moved, the department ordering that it must be in a building separate from any other business. The addition to the south end of the Millrod building was made, and has been used as a post office since that time.

Later another addition was made by pushing out the south wall of the building to make more room because of the added city carrier service. When the post office went into its present location there was no new court house, no storm sewer, no paving, no city hall, no filtration plant, and the new school building was not dreamed of, as the grade school building was just being finished.

—Miss Josephine Wozniak was a passenger to Grand Island Tuesday for the day.

OIL DRILLINGS IN NEBRASKA

This is the fifteenth of the series of articles concerning oil drillings in Nebraska. All information was compiled by research workers of the Nebraska Writers' Project, W.P.A. from old newspapers and from data supplied by the University of Nebraska.

has also been drilled for oil. First reports were in 1929. Core drillings had been going on for some time and it was finally deemed advisable to sink a deep test well, so the Red Willow Oil and Gas company laid preliminary plans for erecting drilling equipment on the Watkins estate, 14 miles northwest of Cambridge. According to the Cambridge Clarion the well was "spudded-in" during May, 1929. It was rumored that the Prairie Oil and Gas company had offered the Red Willow company $200,000 for their interest in the venture, but the offer was refused. This caused much comment among the townspeople expectations for the first producing well in Nebraska ran high. By July 23, 1929, drilling had passed the 1500 foot mark. Operations finally ceased at a depth of 3423 feet, although oil was reportedly struck at 2470 feet. The site was abandoned in May, 1930.

Records in the State Geological Survey's office show that a drilling also took place on the Charles Compton farm, a few miles northwest of Cambridge. A depth of 1200 feet or more was reached. On December 15, 1925, it was reported that the town of College View, a suburb of Lincoln, "was in the midst of a real boom." Because small quantities of "high grade" oil had suddenly appeared in several water wells in the vicinity, an Oklahoma oil drilling concern began taking leases on town property. The supposed oil strike was first discovered when the son of Mrs. D. E. Bixby, a College View resident, attempted to put out some smoldering coals with water from the family well. It was said that the water only made the coals burn brighter and news of the occurrence soon spread. At one time "geologists" claimed that the seepage came from an oil pool located directly under the ground upon which a church was situated. However, the church refused to permit a drilling on its property.

After the initial excitement had worn off, many persons were of the opinion that hoax had been perpetrated, while others thought that the oil came from a leakage of a gasoline storage tank. Later in December, a Lincoln construction firm induced a Denver geologist to investigate the oil possibilities. The findings of the geologist must have been favorable for on December 22, 1925, a drilling was started on the property of Mrs. Bixby. In January 1926, it was reported that a man drove out to the site, drained his car of gasoline, refilled the tank with "oil" from the well, and drove all over Lincoln under the crude oil power in the gasoline car.

Five wells were drilled in College View; three of them are said to have produced crude oil so pure that it could be used as a substitute for gasoline. Eventually, however all drilling operations ceased and the sites were abandoned.

Talk of drilling for oil near Papillion started on Jan. 17, 1929, according to a story found in the Papillion Times by research workers of the Nebraska Writers' Project, W.P.A. On April 3, 1929, the Schuyler well, as it was known was spudded-in on the Urhammer farm, six miles south of town. At this site charges of nitro-glycerine were used several times in the hope of dislodging the earth and exposing a gas or oil formation. On May 23, 1929, at a depth of 1318 feet the location was abandoned. The farm of Hans Rahn, northwest of Papillion was the scene of another drilling. This venture was named the Victor Jeep well. At one time water filled the casing to within 14 feet of the top and there was some talk of piping the water to Papillion for use as the town's water supply but the project was never carried through. Operations ceased on November 13, 1930, after drilling had been carried on a little more than a month. The well was 1909 feet in depth.

To the efforts of a doodlebug artist might be attributed a test drilling that occurred on the Westre farm, two miles west of Gretna in October 1930. Newspaper accounts of this drilling are incomplete but it is believed that Omaha and Denver interests sponsored the undertaking. (To be continued)

Beaus and Belles of the Future

The peculiar color spoken of above comes early in the illness. It is a grayish or gray-blue color of the skin with blue lips and nails. The peculiar odor is suggestive of almonds and may be detected on the breath or clinging to the skin of the feet.

The most important element in treatment is to take away the source and wash all traces of the chemicals from the skin. In case of more than the slightest symptoms, of course, the person needs medical attention at once. Preventive treatment is to remember that newly dyed shoes may contain sufficient harmful chemicals to be poisonous and it is best to avoid wearing them until evaporation can take place.

Charles Palmatier, Pioneer Geranium Postmaster, Tells History of Early Day Mail Deliveries in Rural Sections of Valley County

The story of the Ord postoffice would not be complete without a story of the smaller offices throughout the county that received their mail through the Ord office. These offices were a very important part of community life in the early days, as they brought the mail to the pioneers who would otherwise be obliged to travel a long distance over poor roads to get their mail.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Palmatier are here shown holding the certificate issued by John Wanamaker, then postmaster-general, which appointed Mr. Palmatier postmaster at Geranium in 1890.

As time went on and highways improved the postoffices lost their pioneer interest, but they were still much used until the coming of the Rural Free Delivery about the turn of the century. This spelled the doom of most of them in Nebraska, and all of them in Valley County, where there is not a single postoffice outside the towns today.

To Mr. and Mrs. Charles Palmatier of Ord goes the distinction of being the only couple still living who ran a country postoffice in Valley County in the early days. Mr. Palmatier came to the country about the middle of June, 1878, built a sod house on his claim about 12 miles west of Ord and then went back to Howard county.

The next year he came back and worked at whatever he could get to do around the country to make a living. Because he was young and light in weight he was a good man to carry mail on horseback, and he did a great deal of this work. His most interesting job was carrying the mail from Ft. Hartsuff to Ft. Niobrara, which he did from June until in October, 1880.

Then came the celebrated blizzard of 1880, which made the mail trip impossible, and the mail route was discontinued. After living in his first sod house a few years Mr. Palmatier built another about half a mile to the south, and in this sod house elections were held for Liberty precinct, which then comprised what is now the townships of Geranium, Michigan and Liberty. It is of interest to note that A. J. Shirley cast his first vote in that sod house.

How the name Geranium was selected for the community and postoffice is of interest. A group of bachelors, Ferd Hollingsworth, Perry Pierson, Frank Lowe, John Wheeler, Henry Grant and Mr. Palmatier, met at the Wheeler home and Hollingsworth suggested that they call it "Whoa, Emma" in honor of Mrs. Solon Pierson, who was so much put out about it that she cried.

It so happened that Palmatier's mother had sent out a rose geranium from New York state to Mrs. Grant, and it struck the group that Geranium would be a fine name to use, and the name has remained that ever since. This happened about 1882. Solon Pierson was the first postmaster of Geranium, keeping the office on his place about half a mile west of the Palmatiers. Mr. Palmatier returned to New York state in 1884, and on Aug. 14 he was married to Miss Etta Colling. They immediately came west and lived on the Palmatier farm. May 20, 1890 they took over the Geranium postoffice, which they ran until it was discontinued in 1905. The pay they got from the office amounted to from $28 to $30 per year.

The office was kept in the old sod house until 1900, when Sam Warner, Burney Weare and C. E. Goodhand built the new frame house. Mrs. Palmatier had more to do with the running of the office than did her husband, since he was busy with the work on the farm, and she was around the house most of the time.

Mr. Palmatier recalls that the first mail through Mira Valley was carried from North Loup to Sargent through Mira Creek, Yale, Geranium, Longwood and Sargent. Shortly after this the mail was carried from Arcadia through Yale, Geranium and on to Sedlov. This route was carried by George Round, now Sheriff Round.

Next the mail went out of Ord, to Mira Creek, Yale, Geranium, Longwood and then to Sargent. The first postmaster he recalls at Sedlov was the elder Wozniak, who was followed by John Cepelcha and Jacob Osentowski. The postoffice was discontinued long before rural routes came into use.

The postoffice at Manderson had a comparatively short existence. It was started by Henry Rhodes on his farm two miles south and a mile east of Geranium. He had started a store there, and it was thus a logical place for a postoffice, although entirely too near Geranium. It flourished for a time, but eventually the business was turned over to Palmatier at the Geranium office.

In 1905 as Mrs. Palmatier recalls they wrote the postoffice department asking that the office be discontinued, as they were planning a trip back east. Shortly afterward they received orders to turn the office over to the postmaster at Ord who at that time was S. A. Stacy. Thus ended an interesting chapter in the early history of the county.

Other postoffices should be mentioned in connection with the Ord office. They are Ida, located where Goodnow now is, and which was an important office for a short time. Calamus, which lived during the life of Ft. Hartsuff, and died when it was abandoned. Alta, located on the John Jones farm in Plain Valley and named for Alta Jones; and Springdale, which antedated Ord.

One of the best known of these postoffices was the Mira Creek office, which was opened by Asahel Ward on the farm seven miles south of Ord, Febr. 4, 1880. The mail was delivered there from the Ord office, and came six days in the week. Mira Creek, Vinton, Yale, Manderson and Geranium in Valley County and Longwood in Custer county were on a route from Ord to Sargent.

Most of the time this route was carried by two men, who met at the Yale office, where the mail was exchanged. One started from Ord, the other from Sargent each morning, and returned home each evening, visiting all offices both ways. Of these the postoffice of Vinton was doomed to an early death, but the others lived for many years.

When the Mira Creek postoffice was first established the mail was brought up the valley from North Loup, a distance of ten miles, but after a few years the system mentioned above was developed and continued with variations until all the offices were abandoned. This occurred in 1904, but two years before that time the postoffice had been transferred to the home of Rev. R. G. Hellenwege, who became the new postmaster.

The Yale postoffice was about 15 miles directly southwest of Ord near the southwest corner of Vinton township, but was first located about 2 miles further south in the northwest corner of Hayes Creek precinct, now known as Yale township. At first the office was kept in the home of Nels Nygren, and the mail was brought there by way of a route from Loup City by way of Arcadia.

After a few years the office was run by a man named Cass for a short time, and then taken over by D. B. Smith, who came to the county in 1883. The office remained in charge of Mr. Smith for at least twenty years, and was finally discontinued in 1904. It was an important office for many years, since it was the meeting place of the two carriers who exchanged mail there. It is of interest to note the radical changes that have taken place in the method of handling the mails since the institution of the Rural Free Delivery system. In the early '80s there were thirteen postoffices in Valley County, and today there are only four, yet the public is far better served by the present system than they were then.

Of the 13 sites proposed, only 3 approximated the size required in the bids, and because of the fact that all lots in the original townsite of Ord are 117 feet in depth, exclusive of the alley, it appeared from the first that no site of 120 by 170 feet could be obtained. The department settled the matter by not using any of the sites proposed.

September 21 the announcement was made that the government had taken an option on the lots owned by the Sack Lumber and Coal company as the site of Ord's new postoffice. The next day Mr. Sack received official confirmation of the selection.

This site had not been offered at the time other sites were offered, but later he was asked to offer it for the purpose. He refused to do so until he could make arrangements for continuing his business in Ord, as he did not wish to quit. He agreed to sell as soon as he made arrangements to take over the Weller Lumber company's yard.

The space offered by Mr. Sack was 102 by 137 1/2 feet in size, and this was considered ample for the purpose. As is well known, this site is near to, but not on, the public square. It is located at the junction of highways No. 11 and No. 57. Highway No. 11 is paved, and in time No. 57 will be. It is most conveniently located with relation to the depots and the bus line.

The lots owned by the Sack Lumber and Coal company were deeded to the government March 1, 1939, the final act in the deal being the turning over to Mr. Sack by Postmaster Hill of the government check in the amount of $8,500, the amount agreed upon for the land.

The buildings on the lots were sold to several individuals, and were moved to the property, after the stock of lumber had been moved to the Weller location. Mr. Sack estimated that it would take six weeks to move everything off the lots and get them ready for the government.

June 7, 1939, the advertisement for bids on Ord's new postoffice first appeared in the Quiz, the same to be in accordance with plans which would be furnished all bona fide bidders, and which must be returned to the Procurement Division Public Buildings branch, Washington, D. C. The ad ran two issues of the Quiz.

During the week ending July 12 the postoffice department announced that Charles E. Goodhand was the low bidder on the postoffice building, his bid being $47,950. The other bids were: Bushbom and Raoh, Salina, Kas., $50,300; Stephens-Brown, Kansas City, Mo., $50,612; Ernest Kokahr and Sons, Lincoln, $53,360; Wertz Co., Inc., Des Moines, Ia., $57,600; McDonald Construction company, St. Louis, Mo., $57,453; John Sonderburg Construction company, Omaha, $57,477; and J. H. Marchbank Construction Co., Chicago, $57,875.

There was every reason to believe that Mr. Goodhand's low bid would win him the contract, and he announced that the work would start within 30 days, as soon as government approval was received. The work was started last fall, and has now been carried through to a successful conclusion, the building being ready for public inspection next Wednesday, Aug. 14.

of the new building. Committee in charge is C. J. Mortensen, C. W. Clark and E. L. Kokes. Although the new building has not been officially turned over to the government yet, Contractor C. E. Goodhand has assured Postmaster Hill that the public is welcome to inspect the building from top to bottom at conclusion of the dedication program. Members of the Boy Scouts troop will serve as guides for all who wish to make the inspection tour.

At 1:30 p. m. the dedication ceremonies at the new postoffice will get under way and will last about 1 1/2 hours. There will be band music, the invocation by Rev. M. A. Lawler, an address of welcome by Mayor M. B. Cummins, a flag raising ceremony by the American Legion, a dedication address by a representative of the United States postoffice department from Washington, D. C., yet to be assigned, introduction of Contractor Goodhand, Construction Engineer French, Post Office Inspectors V. C. Balle, of Omaha, and E. O. Hallock, of Kansas City, as well as other visiting dignitaries, the principal address of the day by Harry B. Coffey, 5th district congressman, who is coming by airplane from the nation's capitol, and a benediction by Rev. W. Ray Radliff. Closing event of the dedication will be group singing of "God Bless America," led by Tom Springer, Master of ceremonies will be Alfred L. Hill. The public address system will be in operation.

This program will be given from a platform to be erected in front of the new building. Committee in charge is C. J. Mortensen, C. W. Clark and E. L. Kokes. Although the new building has not been officially turned over to the government yet, Contractor C. E. Goodhand has assured Postmaster Hill that the public is welcome to inspect the building from top to bottom at conclusion of the dedication program. Members of the Boy Scouts troop will serve as guides for all who wish to make the inspection tour.

Arrangements are being made to have the dedication program broadcast by the KMMJ radio station of Grand Island. There also is a possibility that Foster May, famous WOW commentator, may be in Ord that day to give his "man-on-the-street" broadcast, though definite arrangements with him have not been completed.

At conclusion of the dedication exercises, the free movie show at the Ord Theatre will begin, probably about 3 p. m., and will run continuously until midnight. The feature picture is "The Ghost Breakers," with Bob Hope and Paulette Goddard, and there also will be a comedy, short subjects, etc. No tickets are necessary for admission to the theatre. Ord's guests may walk right in at beginning of any show and stay as long as they like.

At about 4 o'clock the free watermelon feed will begin. Pavement between the Food Center and Auble Bros. stores will be roped off, tables will be erected, and watermelon will be served free to all who want it. Committee in charge is composed of F. V. Cahill, Ed Beranek, Olof Olsson, and Frank Piskorski. Two tons of watermelons have been ordered for the free feed.

Plans for the evening band concert have not been entirely completed but it is thought now that the main concert will be given by the winner of the morning contest, with the Ord band also playing. There is a possibility that a concert by a massed band made up of all the musicians here for the morning contest may be given. Committee members are still working on this and cannot make a definite announcement at this time. The concert will start at 7:30 and last 1 to 1 1/2 hours.

Another event of the evening in which some will be interested is a dinner of the Central Nebraska Postal Employees association, of which Guy LeMasters, of Ord, is president. Plans are progressing for this dinner and meeting, said Mr. LeMasters yesterday.

Closing event of the free day will be a pavement dance. The pavement in front of Beranek's drug store will be roped off, waterglass applied to form a smooth dancing surface, a band stand erected, and music will be furnished by a popular orchestra. Committee in charge is A. J. Auble, Hilding Pearson, E. S. Murray and V. W. Russell.

The committee on the program, publicity and invitations headed by John P. Misko met Monday evening to make final plans and Misko was authorized to arrange for radio publicity and advertising. Postmaster Hill was instructed to invite postmasters of all other Nebraska towns to Ord for the occasion, as well as state officials and candidates. Word from Governor Roy L. Cochran saying that he will be out of the state on the day of the dedication was received by Mr. Hill.

The Chamber of Commerce joins with the U. S. postoffice department in extending a cordial invitation to all the people of this territory to be guests in Ord on Wednesday, Aug. 14. No expense or effort will be spared to make the whole day enjoyable for everyone.

Water Shortage Protested Monday By Water Users

1 Acre Foot Not Enough, Protest Columbus Power Project Gets Too Much.

The Water Users' association of the North Loup Irrigation district met Monday evening at a meeting called at the district court room to hear a discussion of water problems. There were eighty present when the meeting opened shortly after 8 p. m.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Archie Geweke, who asked the secretary, C. C. Dale, to read the minutes of the meeting held March 3, 1940. Following this Mr. Geweke stated the reasons for calling the meeting.

He said that during the summer frequently complaints had been heard about the water being allowed to go on down the river, when it was needed so badly on the farms. "The farmers have been wondering," said Geweke, "why they cannot get enough water; why they are limited to one acre foot when weather conditions require much more."

He then mentioned the fact that, while there are actually about three hundred water users, only 103 are in the list of paid members of the Water Users' association. However, it developed later that quite a number more had recently joined. Mr. Geweke said that doubling the membership would greatly increase the efficiency of the organization.

L. E. Walford, water master for the district, was then introduced. He stated that he was allowed 260 second feet at the river, and that this amount was prorated to the canals in proportion to the amount of acreage under irrigation in each. He said that the district is supposed to irrigate 75% of its canal.

Started on a basis of a second foot to 70 acres early in the season the amount was necessarily reduced to a second foot to 140 acres as more water users came on. It was even necessary to reduce the amount near North Loup to a second foot to 160 acres.

Mr. Walford explained the difficulty of prorating the water to all users as the number increased. He said it took several days for the men to get over the area and make the necessary changes to even up all the water users, and that, while this was being done some were getting more than others. He closed by complimenting the water users on their patience and cooperation.

By this time Manager H. C. James had arrived from Arcadia. He began his talk by stating that he is only a servant of the water users and is trying to do his best for the district by whom he is employed. He stated that the application of the North Loup district for irrigation water was approved on March 3, 1933.

Municipal Plant Making Juice for Ord and Burwell

10,000 Kilowatts Manufactured Saturday, Far Biggest Day in Plant's History.

Beginning August 1, the Ord municipal electric plant went into operation and will continue throughout August, September and October by contract with the North Loup River Public Power and Irrigation district, which is unable to secure electricity from the Platte Valley district during the 90-day period due to construction work under way at Ogallala, which requires all the energy generated by the district at North Platte.

Under Light Commissioner George Allen's supervision, the Ord plant not only is making electricity for the use of Ord people but also is serving the village of Burwell and providing energy for the operation of the district's pumps on the Taylor-Ord canal near Taylor.

Saturday, when 10,000 kilowatts were manufactured, was the biggest day in the history of the Ord municipal plant. Most electricity ever manufactured in any one day previous to August 1 was about 6,700 kilowatts. Two of the city's three diesel engines are operating continuously now, with the third as a stand-by.

During July the city of Ord used 172,000 kilowatts, or an average of about 5,500 per day. While Burwell is being served and the district's Taylor pumps are running, the average amount manufactured here daily will be close to 10,000 kilowatts, Manager Allen says.

In the near future Burwell will begin operation of its own plant, now out of service while some plant improvements are in progress.

Farmers Stricken by Drouth to Get Immediate Help

FSA Maps Out Plan to Keep Farmers on Their Farms at Meeting Friday.

Immediate relief for drouth-stricken farmers in Valley county is being made available by the Farm Security Administration in an effort to keep the farmers on their farms. Claude C. Davis, head of the county FSA office, told the county supervisors and a group of Valley county business men Friday evening.

Carl C. Dale, Valley county extension agent, gave a general discussion of the drouth situation as it exists in this county and talked about the need for planning ahead to meet such situations instead of just working from year to year. The necessity of laying up additional feed supplies in good years to take care of the bad years was stressed.

Mr. Dale also emphasized the need for small farm gardens planted near the windmill so they can be waded to supply vegetables for home use.

Mr. Davis outlined the plan by which the FSA will provide aid for drouth-stricken farmers to meet subsistence needs. This help will be figured on an individual family basis, he said. The first step for the farmer to take, Mr. Davis advised, is to make application at the Valley county assistance office in the basement of the court house.

Investigation of the case will be made by that office and then it will be referred to the FSA office which will handle it entirely from then on. Mr. Davis pointed out that work programs will be put in operation on the individual farms keeping the farmer on the farm, instead of sending him off on highway and other jobs while his livestock and farmstead go untended.

Mr. Davis stressed that this project is a community responsibility and will require community cooperation to make it a success. Present at the meeting, in addition to Chairman S. V. Hansen and the various members of the county board of supervisors were Rev. E. A. Smith, C. W. Starr, Harry Kinsey, and Don Rouds, Arcadia; Charles Johnson of Davis Creek; Mayor M. B. Cummings, F. O'Neal, R. E. Misko, C. J. Mortensen, Emil Pfeiffer, Ed Kokes, Frank Kruml, John Andersen, Fred W. Coe, A. W. Cornell, Orin Keilison, Frank Benda and Charles Veleba, of Ord; and the speakers, C. C. Davis and C. C. Dale.

Hugh Butler Here Calling on Voters Tuesday Evening

Came by Way of Spalding, Greeley, Scotia; Well Received There.

Hugh Butler, Omaha, republican candidate for United States senator, accompanied by Gerald Statford arrived in Ord at 7:30 last evening after a long and strenuous day, during which he had visited Bartlett, Spalding, Greeley, Scotia and North Loup. He was highly pleased with the cordial reception tendered him in all the places he visited.

Archie Geweke, republican county chairman, and Gould Flagg, past county chairman, were on hand to welcome him, as were Tom Springer, president of the republican club in Valley county, and a large number of leading republicans as well as a number who were not but who wished to meet Mr. Butler.

His call at this time was unannounced, but he acceded to the wishes of those with whom he talked and agreed to return for an announcement talk later in the campaign. Mr. Butler wishes to have it understood that he is being held up by the opposition as a grain speculator, when as a matter of fact he is in the grain business just the same as local grain buyers are.

He owns and operates on a partnership basis a cattle feeding farm and an irrigated farm on the Republican river in Furnas county. The irrigated farm is the first to have pump irrigation in that section of the state. He is a practical farmer and as such is interested in the farm program. Mr. Butler says that Nebraska is 100% agricultural, since we all either farm or depend upon the products of the soil for a living. The few inches of top soil in the state is Nebraska's factory. Farm people are interested in irrigation but are perhaps more interested in his stand on agriculture. He is cooperating with the farm program on both his farms. "The farm program should be continued," said Mr. Butler, "so

Lightning Fires Hay, Put Out by Neighbors

Frank Dubas, who lives a mile west of Ft. Hartsuff, was in Ord Monday and told of an unusual occurrence at the farm that morning. His son Ed farms the place, and they had just finished putting up a stack of seven or eight tons of fine prairie hay last week.

At about 7 a. m. Monday lightning hit the stack. Fifteen minutes later Frank, Blaha, noticed smoke issuing from the stack and called Dubas and told him about it. Blaha and his hired man, Joe Proskocil, Dean Moser and his hired man, Lou Mach and the Dubas men got busy at once.

They found the lightning had burned a zigzag hole from top to bottom through the stack and the hay was smoldering. They poured water in the hole and threw the undamaged hay to the ground, where it was pushed away with a tractor sweep. In time they got it all scattered out and the fire put out with very little loss.

Attempt to Wreck Train Discovered

Big Rock Found on Track Near Elm Creek Bridge; Investigators Here.

What seemed to be a deliberate attempt to wreck one of the Burlington trains was discovered by a section crew last Tuesday morning. After Monday night's rain, the section crew had gone out to check the tracks. About two miles east of Ord, near Elm Creek, they discovered a 41-pound rock laid on one of the rails. This rock could easily have wrecked the train, had it been left on the tracks.

Burlington agent, H. G. Frey, notified the Burlington headquarters and a special agent was sent out to investigate. He was assisted by Sheriff George S. Round. The investigators found that the rock was one of those used in building the Elm Creek bridge, and it must have been carried at least a distance of 50 yards. Residents of the neighborhood were questioned, but none of them seemed to know anything about the situation.

"However," said Mr. Frey, "several of those questioned said that a group of Ord boys went fishing in that vicinity frequently." About three weeks ago someone placed a large railroad tie on the Union Pacific tracks. Luckily the tie was placed in such a position that the cowcatcher on the train picked it up and shoved it off the track. The Union Pacific investigator from Grand Island and Sheriff Round traced the act to a six-year-old Ord boy, who was not prosecuted, but was warned of the dangers of such an act.

Sheriff Round said, "It should be the duty of every father and mother in this community to explain to their children the dangers of placing an obstruction upon railroad property. Had one of the trains been wrecked and had a member of the train crew or a passenger been killed, charges of murder or manslaughter could be brought against the guilty person."

Can't Find Lobdell So Courts Delayed

Inability of Ord city officials to locate George Lobdell, Lincoln engineer who is to supervise application of the armour coat of emulsified asphalt on new tennis courts at the Ord athletic field, is delaying completion of the courts said Mark Gyger, WPA head Monday. Mr. Lobdell is away on business at present, his office advises.

The asphalt mat for the double court has been laid Mr. Gyger said, and it will take only about three days to put on the surface coat when Mr. Lobdell comes to Ord, after which the courts will be put into service.

Work on the running track also is at a standstill now because cinders are not available, Gyger says. About 35 railway carloads of cinders are needed and so far only one carload has reached Ord. Price of cinders will be lower later this summer, so purchase will be held up for the time being. Some gravel may be mixed with the cinders, it is thought, now.

An 18-foot backstop at the baseball diamond was put up by the WPA workmen last week and the baseball field is now in splendid shape. Studies Refrigeration. Mr. and Mrs. Elwin Auble are expected home today from Omaha where for the past two weeks Elwin has been taking special instruction in electrical refrigeration problems. He will service all makes of household and commercial electrical refrigerators, with special attention devoted to Frigidaires.

Nelson Ulm Dies of Heart Attack While Driving Car

Auto Out of Control Goes Off Grade Into Field; Passenger Was Not Hurt.

A sudden heart attack suffered as he was driving home from Ord about 8 o'clock Monday evening brought death to Nelson Ulm, 38, farm hand employed for many years by Annis Petersen.

Ulm, accompanied by Mrs. Petersen, was returning to the Petersen place after a business trip to Ord. A half-mile west of the Albers farm Mr. Ulm was stricken and apparently died instantly. The car, out of control, left the grade, rolled through a ditch, crashed through a fence and into an Albers corn field on the south side of the road. A trailer hitched on behind kept the car from overturning, it is thought. Mrs. Petersen turned the ignition switch as soon as she realized what was happening.

Her screams were heard by Frank Petska and Frank Masin, neighbors who were driving to Ord to attend an irrigation meeting, and they went to Ulm's assistance, removing the body from the car and calling Dr. F. A. Barta. Nothing could be done for the young man, however. Sheriff George S. Round, Coroner John P. Misko and the Pearson-Anderson ambulance were summoned by Petska and Masin.

Mr. Ulm had suffered similar attacks on several previous occasions, said Mr. Petersen. He was a son of Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Ulm, was reared in the Ord community and attended the Ord schools. The funeral will be held at the Christian church at 2:30 p. m. Thursday with Rev. Clifford Snyder in charge.

Routine Business only as Council Met Monday

Only the usual routine business required the attention of the Ord city council at their regular meeting Monday evening. The first item was the assigning to the electric fund of $2,843.11 in money received from the old paving districts, and which had not been assigned. The council confirmed George Anderson as chief of the Ord Fire department.

County Clerk Ign. Klimka and Supervisors E. L. Ball and Henry Zirkmund met with the council to talk over the extra cost of keeping the court house open evenings and watering the lawn, and to ask the city to help in this expense. The proposition was discussed but no action was taken.

Venue Ulrich appeared before the council in regard to furnishing the city gravel at the rate of 33c per cubic yard. A contract was entered into with him for 1300 cubic yards of gravel which will be distributed where needed.

The city levy, set in July, was changed at this meeting, the levy for interest on bonds being cut from 7 mills to 6 1/2 mills, making the total city levy 15.85 mills instead of 16.35 mills, as it was announced earlier. A complaint was received that bindweed is being found in the city and the proposition was discussed, but no action was taken. While nothing unusual came up at the session, adjournment did not come until after midnight.

She was also required to pay costs in the amount of $7.66, and upon payment of same was released. She had already made good the amount of the check.

Rodeo at Burwell Starts Today; Big Crowd Gathering

Carnival Arrived Tuesday, all Exhibits Above Par; More Cowboys Than Ever.

Burwell—(Special)—Everything appears to be ready for the 20th annual show of Nebraska's Big Rodeo. Since Sunday the town and the fairgrounds have been swarming with cowboys, swarthy concessionaires, Indians and spectators from many different states who eagerly waited to see the show.

The biggest boom the 1940 show received was the half inch of rain which fell Sunday night and Monday morning, breaking the heat wave.

A band of Sioux Indians, headed by Chief Crazy Bull, arrived Monday from the reservation in South Dakota. By Tuesday noon one of the largest aggregations of cowboys ever to participate in Burwell's rodeo had registered. The race horse stalls filled early in the day Tuesday.

The carnival was a bit late in arriving owing to poor railway facilities offered from Lawrence, Mo., where they showed just before they came to Burwell. The carnival train arrived with the freight Tuesday afternoon although several trucks reached Burwell earlier.

The town is decked out in gala array. Large welcome signs flanked with hunting are strung across the streets to assure the strangers of Burwell's western hospitality. The decorations were constructed by the Plummer Street Decorating company of Sioux City. The Christmas lights have been again strung up around the square to lend their brilliance for the benefit of the cowboys as well as Santa Claus.

The Garfield county fair exhibits show slight improvement this year. The hogs, which once filled two barns and many overflow pens are conspicuous by their absence. The cattle exhibit is slightly larger than last year. The 4-H club exhibits show a marked improvement. The usual amount of chickens and poultry is on display. The agricultural exhibit was somewhat disappointing to those who hoped to see fine displays of the results of irrigation in the North Loup valley, for the exhibits are no more numerous or no better than formerly. The fine arts and the domestic exhibits received the usual large number of entries.

Governor R. L. Cochran has notified the fair board that he plans to attend the rodeo. The program will be broadcast over KMMJ Wednesday and Thursday. The broadcast will start at 2:30 on Wednesday and at 3 o'clock on Thursday and continue for an hour each day. The change in the time is made in order to allow a variety of events to be broadcast. This feature is being sponsored by the Burwell Livestock Market and the Webb Livestock Commission company of Grand Island.

Russell Mitchell, who is in charge of ticket sales declares that the advance demand for tickets has been much larger than it was a year ago. The Grand Island Chamber of Commerce has bought a large block of reserved seats. They are bringing Joe Lukesh's Bohemian orchestra with them today.

Cooler Weather After 1 Inch Rain

An inch of rain, or 1.01 to be exact, fell in Ord Sunday evening and Monday morning, and temperatures promptly slid from a high of 97 in mid-afternoon Sunday to cool temperatures in the 70's all day Monday. Monday night was chilly, the thermometer saying 58 at 11 p. m. and 52 early Tuesday morning. Tuesday afternoon was somewhat warmer, as is today, but no more blazing heat is anticipated this week.

Crop conditions are greatly improved since the rain Sunday night, as it was quite general. Pastures and forage crops are looking better, and a lot of corn will be raised in fields that a week ago seemed certain to burn up. A continuation of the cool, moist weather will assure a partial crop and plenty of rough feed, and people generally are feeling much more optimistic than they were a few days ago.

Alvin Vodehnal Was Drowned in Sand Pit Sunday

Body in Water Two Hours, Inhalator Used but without Chance of Saving Life.

Sunday afternoon Alvin Vodehnal, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Vodehnal who live northeast of Ord, was drowned in a sand pit across the river from the Howard Huff place where he and a group of friends had gone for a swim.

With him were Verl and Robert Timmerman, Raymond and Eldon Svoboda and Kenneth Timmerman. They reached the pit about 3:30 p. m., and immediately went into the water. The pit is being formed by pumping gravel for use on the new highway No. 11.

Almost immediately Vodehnal slipped in beyond his depth. The others saw it at once and went to his assistance, but he became frightened and nearly pulled two others under with him. They hurried at once to the John Mason place and called for help.

A group of firemen went out with the inhalator. Dr. F. A. Barta was called and arrived in a few minutes. Sheriff George Round went out. Rex Jewett, who was in bed with a badly sprained back, got out of bed and drove out. He and Gerald Hatfield succeeded in locating the body in about 22 feet of water, but were unable to bring it to the surface. A hayrake was obtained and this was pulled through the pit until after an estimated time of two hours had elapsed, when the rake brought up the body. In a matter of seconds first aid was being administered.

The inhalator was used, and efforts were continued for two hours, although it was evident from the beginning that the case was hopeless. It is Dr. Barta's opinion that the chances are very much against resuscitation after more than 15 minutes in the water.

Funeral rites were held at the Methodist church Tuesday afternoon, Rev. G. C. Roberson in charge, and interment was in the Ord cemetery. Alvin was born in Ord on Dec. 6, 1920 and besides his parents is mourned by one brother, Edward, of Ord, and by three sisters, Mrs. Rose Visek, of Cozmoek, Mrs. Mildred Nevrlka, of Ord, and Miss Mary Vodehnal, of Ord.

County Board Fixes Levies for Year 1940

The Valley county board of supervisors met in regular session at the court house yesterday. This was the meeting at which the various levies for the coming year are fixed and this work took up most of their time. Due to the fact that the valuation was lowered from $13,690,045 last year to $11,931,265 this year, it was found necessary to raise the levy in most cases to balance the budget, although the amount of revenue this year will still be less than last year.

The total state levy this year is 2.92 mills, as compared with 2.86 mills for last year. The total county levy this year is 4.82 mills. Last year it was 4.51 mills. The total levy for Ord city is 9.35 mills as against 8.90 for last year. The North Loup total levy is the same as last year, 9.5 mills. The Arcadia total levy is 12.38 as compared with 10.30 mills last year. The Elyria village levies amount to 4.00 mills in comparison with 3.00 mills for last year.

The Ord city refunding bond fund levy is 4.50 mills as compared with 1.50 mills last year. The Ord city hall bond fund levy is 2.00 mills, the same as last year. The Ord city intersection paving bond fund levy, 1.25 mills last year has been eliminated. The Arcadia village water bond levy, 56 mills last year, is .60 this year.

School levies are: Dist. No. 1, North Loup, 27.3 mills; Dist. No. 5, Ord, 23.2 mills; Dist. No. 21, Arcadia, 25.2 mills; Dist. No. 63, Elyria, (10 grades) 9.15 mills.

Forage Sorghums May Be Used for Ensilage

R. Clare Clement and David Arnold, members of the Valley county soil conservation committee, were called to a meeting at Albion Tuesday and they were advised that a new ruling grants farmers in Valley and all adjacent counties the right to put up their forage sorghums for ensilage this year. Forage sorghums used for ensilage formerly were classified as depleting crops but due to drouth conditions a new ruling was made applying to all except 10 or 12 eastern Nebraska counties.

McCall Is "Dean" of Ord Rural Carriers but Blessing, McBeth, Are Veterans Too

Oldest rural mail carrier in the Ord office, in length of service at least, is J. D. McCall (center), who was transferred to Ord from North Loup in 1922 and has carried mail to Route 2 patrons ever since. At top is W. L. (Dutch) Blessing, the Route 1 carrier, who was appointed in 1924, and at the bottom is Lyle McBeth, the Route 3 carrier, who was appointed in the same year. The rural carriers, like the rest of the Ord postoffice staff, will have better equipment to work with in the new building. All these pictures were taken in the old postoffice.

Free Delivery to Rural Patrons Started in 1904

According to the memory of many citizens and substantiated by information furnished by the postoffice department, the first rural delivery service was established out at Ord, May 16, 1904. There were two carriers who each received $600 per year for six-day service.

Route No. 1 ran to the northeast of Ord as far out as the corner by the Plain Valley school, thence south and back to Ord through Springdale. Route No. 2 went out into Mira Valley in the direction of Vinton, to Midvale, east four miles and then back into Ord.

Because of the fact that the routes had to be traveled with team and buggy, they were laid out to be about 26 miles in length and it was a fair day's travel to go over the route.

Some time later route No. 3 was established to accommodate the patrons in the territory lying to the west of Ord. It passed along the south line of Michigan township, went one mile over into Geranium and came back most of the way along the present Ord-Sargent highway.

Last to be established was route No. 4 which followed the Haskell Creek road north from Ord over into Garfield county, turned west and came back over a route about two miles west and then down the north side of the North Loup river.

These routes, with minor changes, continued to exist until July 16, 1932, when the routes were combined and No. 4 was eliminated. The new route No. 1 combines all of route No. 4 and part of route No. 1, is 70 miles long and is carried by W. L. (Dutch) Blessing.

The new route No. 2 combines most of old route No. 2 and the rest of old No. 1, is 66 miles long and is carried by J. D. McCall. The rest of No. 2 and all of No. 3 is combined in new No. 3, is 67 miles long and is carried by Lyle McBeth.

The combining of the routes was brought about because Bert LeMasters, for sixteen years carrier on route No. 3 had reached the retirement age, and the move cut down on the expense to the government. Mr. LeMasters had held the position of postmaster of the little town of Jordan from April 3, 1888, until Oct. 13, 1899. John Bremer, in an article on the Mira Creek postoffice published in the Quiz in 1936, gives the following list of carriers on rural route No. 2; T. J. Nethery, Sig Milligan, Mac Boydston, Morris Clements, Perry Luse and J. D. McCall.

According to best information obtainable in a hurry there were only two carriers on route No. 1, Walter White being the first and the present carrier, W. L. Blessing, the second. Sam Bohannon and Bert LeMasters were among those who drove on route No. 3.

Dow Harris, the elder Mr. Dennis, Frank Norman and Lyle McBeth are listed as carriers on Route No. 4. Possibly there were others on all these routes, as it is almost an impossibility to recall the names of all of them.

Today rural carriers find it far easier to carry the mail over routes 60 to 70 miles in length than it was in the horse and buggy days to travel 26 miles, and each carrier serves a far greater number of patrons. Today a total of 565 patrons are served by the three mail routes out of Ord, nearly double the number when the routes were first organized.

BACK FORTY
By J. A. Kovanda

Corn growers here won't have to send away for hybridized seed next year. Evert Smith is producing 15 acres of what is known as Nu-Bred corn, by crossing two inbred strains on his farm north of Ord.

For the past two weeks he and his helpers have been busy detasseling female rows. There are six female rows for every two male rows, planted side by side in alternate strips.

The field must be gone over every other day. Detasseling consists of grabbing the tassel and yanking it right out of the stalks. A man can detassel about two acres per day.

The two pure strains of corn planted by Mr. Smith have been inbred for four years. Their cross will be offered for sale to farmers as Grohe's Nu-Bred No. 22.

Some special advantages are claimed for this corn. It should be well adopted locally. It will cost less than most hybrid seed. Its protein content is guaranteed to be 20 to 30 per cent higher than that of ordinary corn. And it ought to help keep money at home as Mr. Smith will get the major share of the income from seed sales.

Less than a third of the receipts will go to John W. Grohe, of Shaller, Ia. This firm sells Nu-Bred corn in seven states.

The stand of Nu-Bred corn on Smith's field promises to make a big yield. It is on rich bottomland, hasn't been irrigated and apparently won't need to be.

Past experiences have made Mr. Smith quite enthusiastic about hybrid corn for his place. This season he is raising three different kinds, including a patch of contracted hybrid popcorn.

Three Generations of Clarks Run Dray Line

With the transfer of the Clark Truck line from Cecil W. Clark to his son, Arden, the dray business in Ord passed into the hands of the third generation of Clarks.

The first of the Clarks in the business in Ord was H. J. Clark, who ran a line of drays in Ord more than 30 years ago. Whether there was more business then than now is a question, but it is certain that it took more drays then than there are trucks today, for Mr. Clark had four drays going full time when he sold them at auction to go into other work.

About 20 years ago Cecil W. Clark equipped himself for the work and went into the dray business. In that time he kept one truck busy all the time, and another part of the time, and has always enjoyed a fair share of the town's business.

When Cecil began his work as janitor for the new postoffice Aug. 1, he found his son Arden ready to take up the work where he left off, and so today the third generation is carrying on the work begun 35 years ago.

It would be of interest to know the names of all who ran drays in Ord in the old days, but the job of recalling all of them would be difficult. One well-known dray line of about the same time as the elder Clark was the Bradt line, started by A. V. Bradt, Archie's father, and continued after his death by Archie and Ed.

It is very interesting to note how the method of transportation has changed with the years. Before 1920 most of the dray work was done with teams, although some of the older type of trucks were coming into use then. Today a truck hauls two or three times as much as the old dray did, and gets it there in much less time.

H. Losee Was Geranium Postmaster 50 Years Ago

After writing the story of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Palmatier, the former recalled an interesting fact that he had overlooked in giving the original information.

Losee, at one time a resident of Geranium but for the last quarter of a century a resident of Chico, Calif., was the postmaster of Geranium immediately before Mr. Palmatier took it over in 1890. Mr. Losee is still living, and gets the Quiz every week.

There is an interesting story connected with the cartoon which Mr. Palmatier is holding in the photo on page 7. Six years ago they celebrated their golden wedding anniversary in Chicago, and a great many people came to wish them well.

Among them was a young man named Billy Dolan who was a fine cartoonist. He asked Mr. Palmatier about his experiences in the west, and then drew that cartoon. It is labeled "Pony Express of the West" with the notation, "Charles Palmatier, from Ft. Hart-suff to Ft. Niobrara, 1880." The picture was all imaginary with him, but is remarkably accurate.

Last, but not least, it should be mentioned that Mr. and Mrs. Palmatier will observe their 56th wedding anniversary next Wednesday, on the day the new Ord postoffice is to be dedicated. The coincidence is of more than ordinary interest.

—Mrs. Sylvia Stewart and sons and Ethel Hower spent Sunday visiting in Fullerton.

We Are Celebrating Our 3rd ANNIVERSARY IN ORD

As Ord prepares to celebrate the opening of its fine new postoffice building with a Dedication and Free Day, we are celebrating the 3rd anniversary of our coming to Ord.

We came to Ord on August 9, 1937 as owners of the Gamble Store Agency and we can truthfully say that these past three years have been happy years for us. We like Ord and its people the better we know them and we are proud to contribute our bit to the business life of this fine little city.

We are proud, also, to be a part of the great Gamble organization and to own our own store while sharing in the vast buying power of this organization.

Gamble Stores were started on March 11, 1925 in St. Cloud, Minn., by Bert Gamble and Phil Skogma. In that year they opened 5 stores, in 1926 opened 4 more, in 1927 had a total of 24 stores and in 1940 have 252 company-owned stores and also distribute through 1,800 individually owned agency stores such as ours. This tremendous buying power is the reason we can sell automobile parts, tires, hardware, electric equipment, radios and our many other lines of merchandise at such money-saving prices.

The Gamble organization operates in 28 states and maintains 13 large warehouses from Walla Walla, Wash., to Chicago, which is the reason we can give such excellent service to our customers. Gamble stores and agencies are located only in GOOD towns, and we are proud to operate a Gamble store in Ord.

Something Different

If there is a group that has really suffered from the depression of the last ten years, a group that likely will never entirely find itself, it is the youngsters who have finished school and confidently entered the world hoping to find themselves a niche therein. After they study lessons and have fun, they eat and sleep and grow and graduate from high school expecting to find themselves necessary in the world, hoping to become successful, wanted citizens.

For many a year, post-graduation years were happy ones, and many a boy and girl had a job the day after graduation. Into his new job he threw all his strength and energy, expecting to succeed in the best Horatio Alger tradition...and he did.

All at once, this changed. The boy or girl graduate left high school happily, but no job awaited nor could one be located. 'Idly the days and weeks drifted by, still no work or pay, finally it was months, and the drifting became easier, more natural and at last a habit. No one will ever know how many should-have-been good citizens were ruined by the enforced idleness this dearth of jobs left for the young of our land.

These youngsters were worth any effort. And so I was glad to see so many agencies interested in helping them. Government projects to teach them to fit particular jobs were surely far from wasted.

The tie-up in Ord, having seniors spend a week in some business house to learn how the wheels went around, was dandy. I know of a number of instances where it was of real assistance to both employed and student.

I think it would be fine if we could show vocational interest in our students earlier...let our eighth graders learn by doing. Let our ninth graders try selling behind the counter, or making butter or jerking sodas. Why should they wait longer to find their specific interests? The earlier young people learn they do like mechanical things or don't like writing the sooner they can begin preparing for life. And learning exactly the most need things high school offers.

Some day there will be mechanical and industrial training for youngsters who want it just as there is now normal training and commercial training. Children will be offered any of a dozen roads to travel, in place of three or four as they are now.

There are numbers of Ord youngsters who should have had a permanent place in the world long ago. We ought to make jobs for them, and see that they learn a good way to make a living.

There aren't enough people in Ord who understand yardwork and gardening. We could use a young window-washer or two, perhaps some cleaning men to help with heavy house cleaning. Car washing is open to all, as young Frank Robberson has been demonstrating this summer.

Tree trimming and tree pruning young men are needed in Ord. We don't have many paper hangers nor painters in Ord, and very few young men seem interested in learning carpentering, plastering, brick laying as they are done in the best workmen's circles.

Minding babies is always a good task for young ladies of dependable nature, and there are always babies to mind for it is one crop that never fails. But there are other tasks too, outside of the regular lanes. Providing home baked goods, from potato chips to cakes and candy, making cottage cheese, dressing chickens to sell, making pickles, and jellies and jams are only a few. I think a young catress could find a good deal of employment in Ord, and I know young ladies who can serve a meal quietly and efficiently are at a premium.

We don't have many seamstresses in Ord, and they are all kept fairly busy, so a girl who liked to sew might find a good deal to do.

The present Mrs. Kent Ferr's created a job for herself when she ran a book lending agency. She kept herself busy and in spending money until she married, did Mae Helleberg.

Part-time stenographic work can be found in Ord in a number of homes and offices, by young ladies desirous of keeping up their typing and making odd pennies pile up. It has been done.

So endeth today's lesson.

For this reason the approval of the Columbus project's application made Sept. 15, 1932 has the right of seniority. However, there is a stipulation agreed to by the Columbus, Middle Loup and North Loup districts that the Middle Loup is entitled to 300 second feet of water and the North Loup to 260 second feet, regardless of the requirements of the Columbus district.

At the time this agreement was reached it was not thought that the irrigation projects would be approved, but the fact remains that this agreement was made, and that it still stands. He stated further that, since irrigation comes ahead of power in the state constitution, the districts would have the right to appropriate all the water in the river for irrigation if it were needed.

If this were done and the Columbus district suffered any damage as the result of the using of water in excess of the allocated amount, then the Columbus district would be entitled to damages from the North Loup district. This amount would not be the actual value of the water used, but the actual amount of resultant damages from the shortage of water.

He also stated that if the water was taken out fast enough it would be possible to take out the full 260 second feet in sixty days and leave none for the rest of the season. The plan is to start light, gradually increase the amount until the peak is reached in July, and then taper off in the fall.

What is causing all the difficulty this year, according to Mr. James, is the shortage of from 9 to 12 inches from the normal rainfall. With such shortage the irrigation water does little more than to make up the actual shortage, while the acre foot should be in addition to the normal rainfall to produce best results.

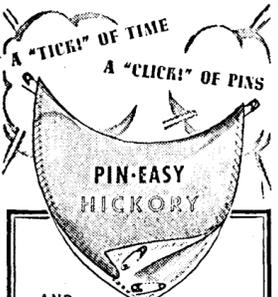

He said that the two districts have a joint application for a hearing before the Department of Roads and Irrigation, and that at that time the districts will endeavor to show that it is necessary to have more water until such time as the subsoil becomes saturated, after which the allotment of 260 second feet should be sufficient.

It was mentioned that on Thursday of this week Congress was to vote to continue the 1937 sugar beet quota, with minor alterations, for the coming year. Mr. James stated that he had sent telegrams to Senators Burke and Norris and to Congressman Coffee urging that they work for an increased allotment of beet acreage in newly irrigated areas. He asked all present to write Coffee at once urging that this be done.

Clarence M. Davis was then introduced. Mr. Davis read the law relative to priority right of water and explained its various provisions. He spoke of the various possibilities of getting more water on the land when it is needed, showing which were practical and which were not. He also read and explained the provision in the state constitution relating to the priority of irrigation over power in the use of water.

The talk of Mr. Davis was largely from a legal point of view, and he cited a number of cases already decided in court to show what had been done along these lines. W. T. Hutchins of North Loup stated that they had used all the output of an irrigation well throwing 500 gallons per minute, and also all the irrigation water allotted, and still did not have enough water.

The meeting voted to approve the work done to date by the officers and any efforts put forth in the future toward getting more water for the district. Mr. James also praised the water users for their patience during the difficult situation through the summer.

Crickets and 'Hoppers

Thrive on Same Crops

Every spring hordes of Mormon crickets and grasshoppers hatch from eggs deposited during the previous summer and autumn, and then begin their destructive attack upon crops and virtually every type of vegetation throughout 24 Western states. The Mormon cricket is a serious pest, however, only in 11 northern Rocky Mountain and Plains states.

These insects are similar in size, go through the same stages of development, and do their damage during the growing season. But entomologists of the federal department of agriculture point out that because of physical differences their methods of attack differ. Mormon crickets are unable to fly. They attack on foot. Most injurious grasshoppers also migrate to some extent on foot but after reaching maturity some species are active fliers and migrate by flight in great swarms, destroying vegetation wherever they alight.

The most effective method of combating Mormon crickets is by dusting the migrating hordes with sodium arsenite. Barriers with pens to trap the crickets are an effective supplementary control. Millions of crickets pile on top of each other in the pens and are killed with a sodium arsenite dust or crude oil solution. Another method, similar in principle, is to dig trenches to trap the crawling cricket army.

Hoppers are controlled by feeding them poison bait. The most effective method is to broadcast a moistened mixture of bran, sawdust and liquid sodium arsenite. Wherever practicable this bait is applied on egg bed areas to poison the young hoppers and thus prevent migration.

Last year the federal government spent approximately $2,200,000 in controlling grasshoppers. This was supplemented by contributions from co-operating states, estimated at slightly in excess of $1,300,000.

The cost of controlling Mormon crickets during the same year was nearly $400,000, co-operating states contributing $201,000. Protection was afforded to 1,375,564 crop acres. Crops on only 12,935 acres were destroyed.

Killing Bear Was 'Routine' For Early Woman Settler

Examination of early records and photostatic copies of such documents are among the services to posterity carried on by historians of the national park service. One such record concerns the family of an early settler in Yellowstone National park. Its laconic style is significant of the period as is the thrilling experience related.

"In June, '81, I went to Omaha on business, expected to be gone 30 days; had sufficient grub to last till my return cached away in a root house apart but near my cabin, while I was gone and my wife and four children was necessarily alone.

"Soon after my departure one morning two bears came down the mt., smelling the meat &c. in root house; approached same and went to digging through the dirt roof.

"I saw it was either kill bears or starve. She took rifle, shot one bear through the jungs. He came rolling toward her. She ran in cabin and closed door just in time, as bear threw himself against it, shaking the whole house. He found it useless, however, and went off. Wife followed him up the mt. found him breathing hard, shothim through the heart. Weighed 700 lbs. Skin was spilt when I got home, but wife and babes were safe."

Wooden Structural Defects

Alternate wet and dry conditions tend to render unsound the structural and other wooden members in a building, point out FHA officials. The ends of joists embedded in a masonry foundation wall may become unsound if the walls of the basement are damp and poorly ventilated. As a result of a leak in the roof or eaves, similar damage to other parts of the building may occur, such as loosened or deteriorated flashing. A simple test will help determine whether structural reinforcements are necessary; the wood may be tested by jabbing it with the point of a penknife. If it is soft and spongy or very brittle it is likely repairs are necessary. Badly deteriorated parts should be replaced and the basement of the building should be kept properly ventilated to prevent further deterioration.

Floor Protection

To prevent footmarks from showing too conspicuously on a kitchen floor, paint may be applied to give a marbled effect. The ground color should first be applied. After it is dry, apply a second coat of a lighter tint. Before this dries, wash a piece of wrapping paper into a long roll, place it on the floor and roll it over and over so that the painted surface is disturbed by it and irregular patches removed, revealing the ground color. The second coat is applied only to a small section of the floor at a time, incidentally. When the floor is dry, go over it with a coat of wax for durability and easy cleaning.

Weight Loss in Hibernation

When an animal awakens from a long hibernation, it may have lost 30 or 40 per cent of its weight, for it has used its stored-up fat during the long winter sleep, and is weak and inactive. After it begins to eat, it quickly regains both strength and weight.

There Were Two Irishmen—

By J. Y. BARBER (McClure Syndicate—WNU Service.)

SEUMAS GAVAN was Number One man and the only Irishman in the fourth ward—and there wasn't the whisper of a doubt about that. On Monday he lamented the need of hiring a dago to tend bar for him in his South street speakeasy, but by Saturday he was glad of it. Irishmen aren't temperamentally suited for co-operative occupations; they won't do as they're told. He was glad his blue-eyed Kathleen never argued with her father.

"Way back in the ancestry there may have been some weak strain that accounted for her passivity. It made Seumas more conscious than ever that he was the only Irishman in the ward. The only man of intellect and discernment, he'd almost say, except for that scavenger of the streets, Adolphus Gonwertz, whose insufferable exposes appeared now and again between the scrofulous lines of the local paper.

"Twas a black day indeed when Kathleen met Adolphus Gonwertz in the bar where Kathleen had no business at all. And a curse on the day when she came to her kind old father, him that was nearly killed with worry over trying to get a respectable liquor license, to ask his good will to their marriage.

"He's not the man," Seumas said abruptly.

"How, not the man?" Kathleen said, too quietly even for her.

"He's the sort," said Seumas, "who writes about people that have died of murder. And it's insulting, he is, when he blackguards some worthy citizen in public life."

Seumas knew he would have no trouble with gentle Kathleen.

She would not, she said, let him alone. She said why she wouldn't and it took her five minutes to say it.

"Bu-but, he's a drinking man, he is," Seumas said with appeal. "He drinks like a fish and he be no good at all."

"Aye," said Kathleen, "and that coming from you! May God have mercy on your soul for the narrowness of your heart. You've little to do to speak of that when it's your own grog he drinks. And it isn't true that he's no good. He's the best newspaper man in the town. And I like him. I love him!"

The debate had reached a point where Seumas realized he would have to assert himself. He leaned forward in his chair. He hissed softly. "I could break him. You know my power when I want to use it. Frame him! How would you like that?"

But Kathleen never moved. She looked at her father boldly. "Aye," she said. "Well, two can play at that game—if it's a fight you're looking for!" And with that she ran out of the room and out of the house and he didn't see her for days. The shame of it!

"I want to see her just try and marry that spalpeen," Seumas said to himself all day on Friday. Customers heard him as he whispered under his breath. They thought he was reciting the list of witnesses who would appear when he came up for his license hearing on the morrow and they let him concentrate.

But Seumas had forgotten all about the hearing until his attorney came down and took him to court. His reception there lulled him to contentment. Mr. Gavan was well thought of up town in certain circles. Not for long, however, did he smile benignly this way and that. His bright green eyes froze to the witness box. For there in the middle of everything sat Adolphus Gonwertz.

Not being familiar with the expediences of the newspaper business Seumas didn't know that Adolphus had merely wandered in there in the course of his routine and that in ten minutes he would be discovered by a court attache and thrown out on his neck. Seumas' pain was so great that he beat himself upon the chest. Could Kathleen have been so angry then to put this notorious exposé onto him?

"I'm going home," he said to his attorney. "I'm sick now. No, I don't care about the license; to hell with it." And so Mr. Gavan went home feeling the power ooze out of him with every step of the way.

Evening came to Seumas Gavan in the little office that he maintained upstairs. He sat sullenly beside the speaking tube that connected his office with the bar and he wished that he had anticipated Kathleen being at least half an Irishman. That was bitter, bitter! It made him very sorry. So absorbed was he that he failed to hear the buzzer until its third buzz.

The bartender's voice floated dimly to him through the tube: "Kathleen's come home!"

"Aye," Seumas said noncommittally. He was abruptly the old Seumas and he had the look of a hawk over a calf. It would be now! and he would be brief but annihilating. The bartender took up a familiar refrain:

"Adolphus Gonwertz wants to know if he's good for your daughter—and he wants to congratulate you on getting your license today, sir!" It was incredible!

"Ha—have I got it?" "You have!" "He is!!!"

A FEW THINGS TO THINK ABOUT

Written by GEORGE GOWEN

A Good Target Peaceful Valley News from Afar Short Shavings

A Good Target.
Sometime before fall we are going to have a wonderful road up the valley. The grading seems to be complete, at least between North Loup, Ord and also Scottia. The rolling outfits are at work now and when this is finished, the road will be one form of pavement. Looking or driving north from North Loup, one cannot but be amazed at the work that has been done this summer, raising the grade by taking wide borrow ditches at the sides, cutting the trees and rebuilding (what we thought) that nice bridge over Mira Creek.

I am no expert myself and personally make no comment, but it is the general opinion of the laymen that it all is a rank squandering of money to build such a road when taxes are so high anyway, and the need for the funds so great in other places.

Most people think we had a road to Ord that we were getting along very nicely with. Besides that the state had to buy great tracts of our very best valley land (land under the ditch too) and practically ruin it in borrow digging. Great trees too were removed, trees like the forestry department dreams to have in fifty years in the shelter belts, and fine bridges only a few years old, torn out and rebuilt.

I guess it is all right; we folks out here in the sticks are not supposed to be very smart, whether we are or not. At any rate we are going to have a road, a wonderful road and nice bridges that will be a fine target for Hitler to blow into smithereens when he gets England conquered; in other words, when our turn comes.

Peaceful Valley.
Two years ago a salesman dropped into the elevator and said to Art Willoughby, "you have now a quiet peaceful little valley, have you not?"
Art answered that we have and he felt quite good that he was one of this peaceful group of people. The salesman then said to Art, "That's fine, but that peacefulness will not continue when the irrigation ditch starts. The valley will be anything but peaceful then."

And this prophecy seems to be quite accurate. Here in North Loup, to say nothing of the surrounding country, we have irrigation, and here the quiet peacefulness has changed quite suddenly. There has been one good fight already, this culminating so they say over water, and there has been other people who have done plenty of talking in manners not at all like, "You first Alphonse."

But in spite of these contentions the little city of North Loup is blessed with some wonderful gardens this year. There seems to be a great abundance of most garden vegetables and many have tomatoes and corn beyond their capacity to eat or sell.

News From Afar
A nice letter was received from Mrs. Milt Earnest last week, they are living now in LaMesa, Calif., and here are a few sentences from it:
"I know how Ford Eyerly and dozens of others feel about leaving the dear old place, North Loup. I have been homesick again after receiving a letter from Mrs. Shinesman, she mentioning the good times we used to have. (They live now in Missouri.) Their girls are now all married, (Lola Mae the second time) and they all have children."
Lyla (Earnest) is nearly a man now and taller than Buster. He is helping his father in the station at the present but expects to attend vocational school and when he becomes eighteen Nov. 13, they will expect him at the consolidated plane factory. In fact there is not much choice for a boy these days.
"I just feast on the past (it seems like) not being able to see much hopes for the future."
"We have two of the finest grandchildren in the world, Russell 2 years and 4 months and Ronald 1 year. These are Buster's children."
Sincerely, Beulah.

Short Shavings
Roy Cox, Sid Wilson and others who have traveled over the state say the discouragement manifest is the same or, worse than here, over all of western and central Nebraska with the exception of the grazing country.

Even out to Scottsbluff, Sid says conditions are the worst for many years. The irrigators there have had even more trouble by the shortage of water than here, and

Mrs. Severns' Pupils Present Piano Recital

Piano pupils of Mrs. J. W. Severns presented a piano recital at the Methodist church Saturday afternoon, July 27. Each child wore a costume to represent his solo. The room was decorated with balloons, which were given to the children after the recital.

Those taking part in the recital were Wayne and Maynard Zlomke, Norma Long, Marilyn Ollis, Joe, Lola, Amelia and Hilda Lola, Luella Keuhl, Noel Mentzer, Nelda Menter, Marian Severns, Lois Severns, Charlene Severns, Jeanine Johnston, Vivian Zikmund, Mary Lou Beran, Joan Blessing, Betty Puncoschar, Marianne Gregory, Marjorie Mulligan, El-lora Cook and Roberta Cook.

so Sid says, those living outside the irrigation are in terrible condition.

Sid has been trying to run a second hand store and auction but he finds a dearth of buyers. He can get all manner of things to sell so he has been writing to different places where he might take his things to dispose of. From every inquiry west he gets the same discouraging answer, that things are selling only fair, which Sid interprets as meaning "Not so good."

Dr. Hemphill lately has not been well at all. Besides having intestinal flu, he told me the glands in his throat had become infected and bad. The night I saw him he was very miserable and didn't seem to care much whether school kept or not.

But I was told after a few days he was better. He had driven to Art Babcock's and showed him a growth he had taken from his throat and at that time he was feeling quite happy over it. Art said it was about the size of a pencil and about two inches long.

Upon further inquiry the story seems to be that he took a mirror and performed the operation upon himself, extracting this growth from his throat without aid. He had told his wife what he thought was the trouble and she urged him to go up and have Dr. Weekes do the job but the Doctor only laughed at her. The next she knew he was showing his friends what he had done.

Dr. Karka of Scottia has been called to the active army service, of which he has been a reserve officer for some time. It is said he had a wonderful practice and was busy all the time, but it is also said that he was able to collect relatively little money.

It is said too that Dr. Paul Hemphill has been called into active army service too, and will have to leave a good practice in Oklahoma.

Fifty-eight years is a long period of time, but that is the period during which our business has been carried on in the city of Ord.

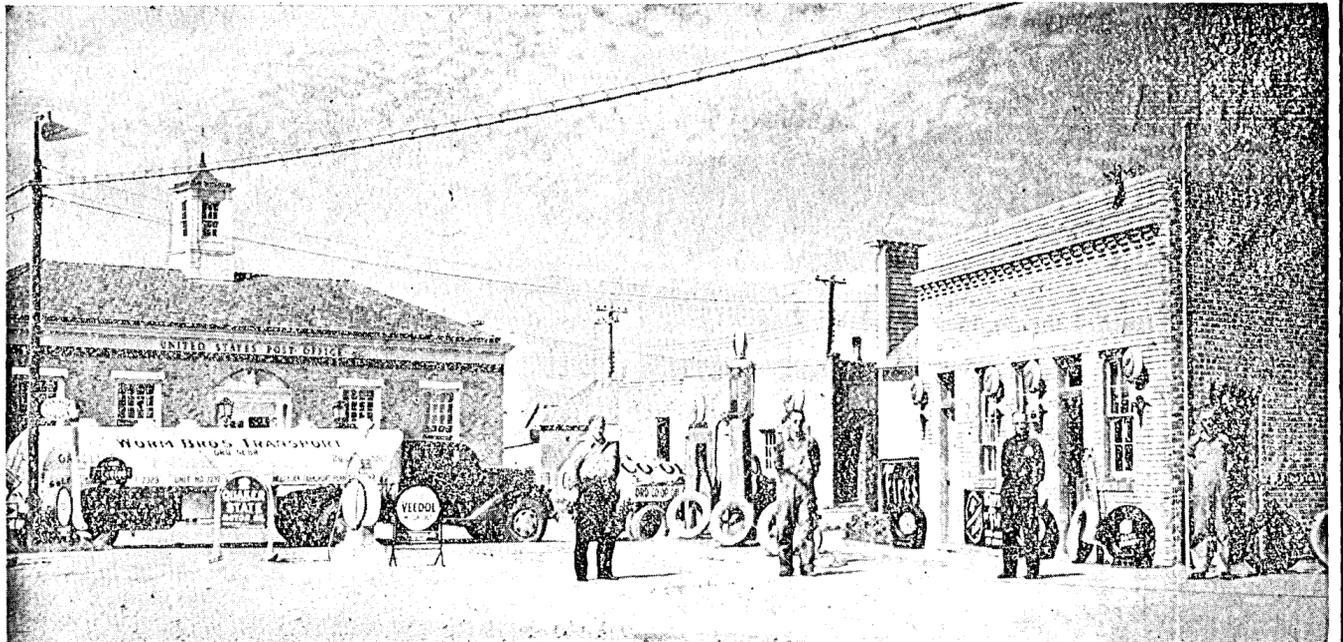

In 1882, Frank Misko came to this community and established the harness and leather goods business which we operate today under the same name.

A small brick building accommodated the business at first but within a few years increasing business made it necessary for Mr. Misko to build the 2-story brick building in which the business has ever since been conducted.

More than a half century in the leather business in the same community certainly qualifies us to serve you when you need anything in harness luggage or other leather goods. It qualifies this shop to handle your repair work and to advise and help you with everything that concerns leather.

As one of the three or four Ord business concerns that have operated continuously since the 80's, we welcome the new Ord postoffice. It is a needed improvement and one which Ord richly deserves. And we join other Ord business men in welcoming you to attend the formal dedication of this fine building next Wednesday, August 14.

IT HAPPENED IN ORD.
 Cecil Wardrop thought he had the only white chickens in his neighborhood, but he found out differently a few days ago. He went home to dinner and saw some white chickens over in Frank Fafetta's yard. Thinking they were his, he was busily engaged in trying to drive them home when Mrs. Fafetta asked him why he was trying to drive off "her" chickens. They had been in the pen before but she had turned them out to catch grasshoppers. They say Cecil's face got red, indeed.

Then there is the one about the man in Ord who met Hugh Butler and was much pleased with his appearance. Later he made the remark that this year he was going to split his ticket for the first time. "I am going to vote for Cochran," said he, "but I sure like Butler, and I'm going to vote for him too."

Some of the boys are talking of having the ledge in front of the buildings on the west side of the square made four inches wider and 2 1/2 inches higher. They say the ledge as it is is wide enough for Ira Lindsey, Harold Hallen and some of the other small fellows, but men of the caliber of John Haskell and John Ward slide off onto the sidewalk.

Hugh Butler Here Calling on Voters Tuesday Evening

long as it is needed, or until something better is proposed to take its place." This does not indicate that he is in harmony with all the policies of the farm board, especially as it is handled from the top down. The reciprocal trade treaties have added to the economic misfortune of the Nebraska farmer.

"If the farm program were administered from the top down as honestly and efficiently as it is in Valley county by the local committee," Mr. Butler remarked, "conditions might be much better than they are. Corn raised in Iowa was sold by the farm board to Canada for 35c less than the board allowed the Iowa farmers for it. All the time farmers in Nebraska are needing corn and have to buy it on the market at a much higher price."

At the same time corn from the Argentine is permitted to come to California and take the place of home raised corn there. Southern planters are paid to reduce their acreage of cotton and tobacco, and permitted to raise corn instead, thus ruining a market for corn in the south. This year there was an 11% cut in corn acreage in Iowa, while Nebraska, with lighter crops, was given a 15% cut.

Farmer's in Indiana are paid to let their acres go back to grass. Then they come to Nebraska, buy up cheap cattle here, take them back to Indiana and fatten them on the grass, thus getting two prices from their land, and all of this to the detriment of the farmer in Nebraska.

The cash income from Nebraska farms in 1933 was 55% of that for 1929, as compared with 104% average for all states east of the Mississippi river, and 80% average for all states west of the Mississippi. "The trouble is," said Mr. Butler, "that farm relief is administered from the top down for the benefit of the voters, the states with the most voters getting the lion's share."

It is Mr. Butler's belief that farm relief should be reduced materially in some states and eliminated in others, where it is not really needed. He was highly pleased with his reception in Ord, as well as everywhere he has been over the state. He remained over night here and visited a number of people this morning.

Modern Bandit Is 'Sissy' To 'Wild-West' Sheriffs

To a pair of chip-jawed sheriffs of the day of the "hoss-hair-trigger" today's gangsters and bad men wouldn't rate a second glance. "Bad Bills? Humph, they're Sweet Williams," say these two men in whose day the usual historian of a gun duel between the law and the outlaw was the man who was fastest with the gun.

Both former Sheriff George Tindall and his successor Fred Thorp of Conconully, Wash., rate as such historians.

Tindall, a native of Oregon, began his career as an officer in 1887 when he was a deputy sheriff and United States marshal. In 1902, he became sheriff and that year was the beginning of the end of horse thieves and cattle rustlers in the Conconully territory.

Thorp, his successor, known all over the Northwest as the sheriff that always brought in his man, dead or alive.

When Tindall assumed office, the average population of his region was one person to each square mile—a situation that made cattle rustling a profitable affair.

A conviction on a charge of cattle theft was hard to obtain, some old pioneers even alleging that many juries had members that were mixed up in the rustlings.

But 10 months after election, Tindall had changed the situation somewhat. Teaming up with a fighting prosecutor, Tindall brought about conviction and prison terms for 22 men in that time—a record never equaled.

Probably the high point of the sheriff's career was the war between the cattlemen and sheepmen. It began when Tindall aided in the arrest of one "Wild Bill" Hughes, a reported murderer.

A deputy sheriff was shot the next night, supposedly by a friend of Hughes—and the war was on.

A verdict of suicide was returned by a coroner's jury since no one could be found to testify. The westerners suddenly were cursed with bad memories.

And events similar to the night riders of the tobacco states began. Bands of men rode the hills at night, armed with guns, knives and clubs. Grazing sheep were slaughtered and sheepmen would receive matches in the mail.

The next night after the match had been delivered, hay and feed would go up in flames. It was the end of sheep raising in the region until comparatively recent times.

'Pill' Used for Testing Metal's Temperature

Metallurgists now can take a metal's temperature by giving it a pill.

The new pill method was developed recently by Harry Blumberg, of Jersey City, to extend the range of existing temperature-finding methods to lower temperatures.

The problem which the pills solve is that of indicating the temperature of metals which are to be shaped or welded at less than 900 degrees Fahrenheit. Metal heated to 400 degrees, for example, is too cool to show a distinctive color by which higher temperatures can be determined.

Blumberg devised pills made of various compounds which melt at definite temperatures. After much experimentation, he developed a complete set of chemical pellets having sharply defined melting points from 200 to 900 degrees.

Now, when a plant operation is specified for a temperature of 400 degrees, the metal can be heated and a 400-degree pill, colored for identification, dropped on its surface.

San Quentin 'Rejuvenations'

Unknown to the outside world, except in limited medical circles, San Quentin prison in California for the past 22 years has been the world's greatest clinic for rejuvenation experiments, a final report by Dr. Leo L. Stanley, chief prison surgeon, reveals. All of the operations of Voronoff of Paris, Steiner of Vienna, and of other great surgeons and specialists in rejuvenation and the fighting of senility have been duplicated thousands of times as well as entirely new methods worked out by Dr. Stanley himself. In the 22 years, during which Dr. Stanley introduced and applied this system of treatment in the penitentiary, 10,000 such operations have been performed.

'Bluegrass State' Title

Minnesota has laid claim to the title of the "Bluegrass State"—in defiance of Kentucky and all her colonies. Minnesota has the support of A. L. Brandon, of St. Charles, Ill., president of the Golf Course Superintendents' association. After visiting several Minnesota golf courses Brandon said: "Fairway grass is bluegrass, and there is more of it in Minnesota than Kentucky. What is more, Minnesota's bluegrass is a better and sturdier specimen."

Melon-Tasting Device

When it comes to sample-tasting muskmelons, the tongue takes a back seat to a mechanical "taster" devised by two University of Minnesota horticulturists. The process is simple. A drop of melon juice is placed on a small plate and light passing through it reflects to show the exact sugar content or sweetness of the melon. The "refractometer" is twice as rapid as the old method of personal tasting, the horticulturists said.

Ord Campfire Girls Present Circus Successfully

It was Circus Day in Ord Thursday, and the small children in the audience screamed with delight as Ringmaster Helen Kokes presented the "only white elephant in captivity."

The audience held their breath as the "high diver" climbed to the great height of three feet on a stepladder and then plunged into a tub of water. Other features of the program were a magician, who produced rabbits (imitation) and flowers (also imitation) out of thin air; two tight-rope walkers; a strong man, whose 5,000 lb. weight burst into shreds when it was touched with a pin; and several tumbling acts.

About 125 persons attended the circus which was sponsored by the three groups of Ord Campfire girls and their guardians, Mrs. E. L. Kokes, Mrs. Ed Getkin and Mrs. Ed Gnaster, at the Opera house. After the circus, a carnival containing several sideshows and a large refreshment stand furnished amusement for the crowd. The girls cleared $25.53 on their first venture into the circus business. This money will be used for projects during the winter. One of these projects will be European war relief.

Greetings to the New Postoffice

For almost 27 years—from November 1912 when we began business in Ord until March, 1939, when we moved to a new location, our yard was located between 16th and 17th on N street, where the new Ord postoffice now stands. We welcome this handsome new building to Ord—it is a distinct credit to the community and a beautiful addition to Ord's business district.

At our yard at 202 North 15th street you will find us still handling the same lines of merchandise handled by the Sack yard in its 27 years of business where the new Ord postoffice now stands.

Our stock of building material, coal, coke, builders' hardware, paint and oils, steel tanks and bins, fencing material, cement, lime, the famous Stokol automatic coal stokers, and the other lines we feature, are always at your service.

If you plan to do any building we will welcome a chance to figure with you.

The whole force of the Sack Lumber & Coal Company, pictured above, welcomes you to the celebration next Wednesday in Ord.

Bill Tunnick, Jr. Dies from Injuries Received Saturday

Funeral Will Be Held Thursday from M. E. Church for Popular Ord Athlete.

Bill Tunnick, Jr., 23, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Tunnick of Kewanee, Ill., former Ord resident, suffered a fractured pelvis and other injuries when a car in which he was riding crashed through the railing of the Dane Creek bridge near the Ord park early Saturday morning. The car was driven by Charles Faughn of Lincoln who suffered two broken ribs and minor bruises on his arm.

Sunday afternoon he was taken to an Omaha hospital by Dr. C. W. Weekes and Frances Duemey in Frazier's ambulance, where doctors worked over him in an effort to save his life, but all that medical science could do was in vain and he passed away Monday. He leaves to mourn his untimely death, his wife, Mildred, an infant son born Tuesday evening in a Loup City hospital, his father and mother, and four brothers, numerous other relatives and a host of friends.

Both Faughn and Tunnick were on the highway between Ord and North Loup and were on their way to work when the accident happened. They were coming from Burwell. Faughn claimed that the left front tire blew out about 50 yards from the bridge and that he was unable to steer the car back into the road again. The tracks led directly from a point fifty yards from the bridge straight to the point where the car hit the bridge.

Tunnick was asleep in the front seat when the car turned a forward somersault and plunged down twelve feet into the creek and landed on its left side facing the north, he was thrown into the back seat and pinned there by a piece of the bridge railing which had come in through the dash.

A group of young people composed of Bill Titson, Carl Bryan, Jim Galbreth and Amy White of Aurora and Frances Duemey and Lillian Karty of Ord were stopped on the road about three miles south of Elyria repairing a flat tire when the Faughn car passed them. They claim the car was traveling at a high rate of speed. About a half hour after the Faughn car passed them, they had the tire fixed and continued towards Ord. They were stopped by Faughn who had crawled out of the car and climbed to the highway.

White and Galbreth remained at the scene of the accident and pulled Tunnick out of the car while the rest of the group drove into town and called Dr. John N. Round and the Pearson-Anderson ambulance. Tunnick who remained conscious all the time asked that he be taken to the clinic hospital and that Dr. Weekes, the family doctor, be called.

The funeral will be held from the Methodist church in Ord Thursday at 2 p. m., with Frazier's in charge. A complete obituary will be printed next week.

No. Loup District Loaned Additional $22,000 By RFC

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation approved last week a loan of $22,000 to the North Loup River Public Power and Irrigation district, according to Eugene T. Porter, field representative.

The loan is to be secured by the purchase of additional North Loup district revenue debentures, of which the Reconstruction Finance corporation holds all at present issued and outstanding.

The additional funds advanced will be used in meeting 1940 operating expenses and maintenance costs of the district and will thus assure its permanent operation as more acreage is made available for irrigation purposes.

Finds Large Bull Snake In Bird House

Joe Rousek was in Ord Saturday and he told an interesting story of an incident that happened on the farm last week. His son, Edwin, who is home from college, found a large bullsnake had climbed a post on top of which they had a wren nest, and had crawled into the one inch opening until he got stuck.

Edwin had to take the top off the box and pull the snake on through the hole. There were only two birds left in the nest, and one of them was dead. He put the live bird back in the box afterward, but he would not stay and he had to close the opening to keep him in. From now on bullsnakes will be killed without mercy on the Rousek farm.

Will Buy Fifty Car Loads of Irish Cobblers in the Two Irrigation Districts.

There appears to be a surplus of potatoes above the demands of the present market in the North Loup and especially in the Middle Loup valley. Early potatoes will not keep long, and the growers have been unable to find a market for them. The situation was reported to W. H. Brokaw of the extension service.

The Surplus Marketing Administration was informed of the conditions here, and delegates from the two valleys met at Gibbon to find out what could be done. Attending this meeting were County Agent C. C. Dale of Ord, Hans Petersen of Springdale, Floyd Bosson, Don Rounds, Fred Murray and Ross Evans of Arcadia, M. L. Gould, agent for Custer county and a large delegation from the Sargent territory.

They met with Hans Hess of the Bureau of Marketing, who is in charge of potato buying in the Platte valley. While they were there Mr. Hess received authorization to buy 50 carloads of potatoes in the two valleys. A meeting of growers was arranged to be held in Sargent Saturday.

Present at this meeting were about 40 growers, including a number from Burwell, who did not attend the Gibbon meeting because of the Burwell rodeo. Mr. Hess was present and explained the proposition. He wanted it understood that the potatoes were not being bought for relief, but rather to get them out of commercial channels and thus hold up the price to the grower.

As a matter of fact, the potatoes are turned over to the relief organization after being purchased, but the Surplus Marketing administration does not assume any responsibility for the disposition of the potatoes after they are turned over, its office being to

Burwell Woman, 70, Injured In Scrap Over Her Chickens

Wayne Hesselgesser Arrested By Sheriff, Trial Will Be Held Wednesday.

Burwell—(Special)—A back fence argument over trespassing chickens scratching in a neighbor's garden progressed beyond the oral stage Tuesday afternoon when Wayne Hesselgesser was alleged to have struck and knocked down Mrs. Kate Robbins, who is past 70 years old. Mr. Hesselgesser was bound over to county court and will be tried next Wednesday. The Hesselgessers and Mrs. Robbins are next door neighbors in the northwest part of Burwell. Relations between them have not been pleasant for some time. Mrs. Robbins came uptown Tuesday afternoon with a large bleeding gash down her nose and a bruised cut on her arm maintaining that Hesselgesser struck her. The gash on her nose was believed to have been cut by her glasses. Dr. Cram who attended Mrs. Robbins had difficulty in removing the gravel from the bruised cut on her arm.

County Attorney Manasil immediately swore out a complaint for Mr. Hesselgesser's arrest which was performed by Sheriff Johnson.

Round Named Officer By College Editors

George S. Round, jr., extension editor at the University of Nebraska school of agriculture, has been elected secretary-treasurer of the American Association of Agricultural College Editors. He succeeds H. L. Harris of the University of Minnesota and will serve for the year 1940-41.

The selection of Mr. Round came at the annual convention of the association held in Colorado. More than 30 states were represented. He will have charge of publishing the Ace, the monthly house organ of the association which goes to each land-grant college in the United States.

Nay's Drivers License Suspended for One Year

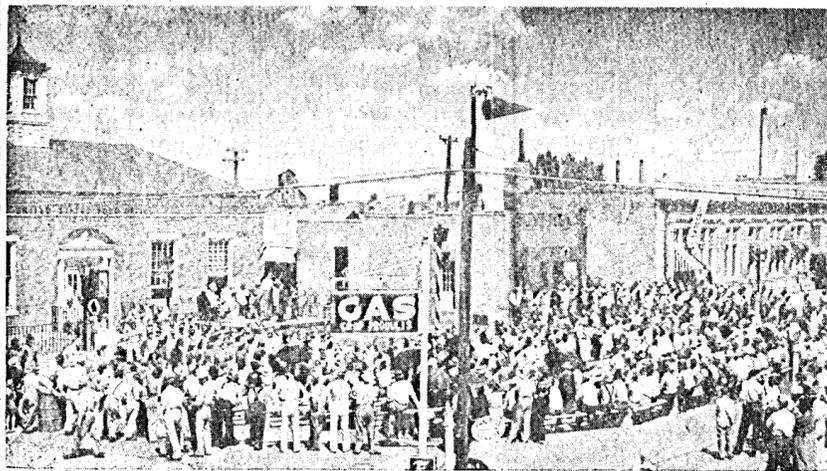

Dr. Lee C. Nay was picked up early Saturday morning by the Nebraska Safety Patrol while returning from the Burwell rodeo and Wednesday County Attorney Misko filed a charge of careless driving against him and he pleaded guilty in county court. County Judge Andersen assessed a fine of $50.00 and costs against him and suspended his drivers license for one year. He paid the fine and was released.

George Chipps Jailed For Driving Without License

The Nebraska Safety Patrol arrested George Chipps for driving without a license and brought him into court Wednesday where he was given a 6-day jail sentence. In 1938 Chipps' drivers license was suspended and he has failed to get it renewed.

Guests of NYA Director Leland Barrett for dedication day were Harold M. Adams of Hastings, field supervisor, NYA, for 35 Nebraska counties, and Benzie Kay of Lincoln field finance supervisor, NYA.

Largest Attendance In Ten Years At Burwell's Big Rodeo

Cowboy Received Broken Vertebrae in Fall From Bronc; Truan Was Best Rider.

For the twentieth time Burwell successfully played host to a vast crowd of people who came from nearly all of the forty-eight states and from Canada to attend Nebraska's Big Rodeo. The largest crowd to attend the show in ten years was present Thursday when every seat in the grandstands was sold out and crowds were packed into seats almost too closely for comfort.

The grandstands were slightly more than half filled Wednesday and the boosters of Nebraska's Big Rodeo were despondent and fearful that the public had grown tired of their show but the excellent turnout Thursday completely dispelled this idea. About fifteen hundred Grand Island business men accompanied by Joe Lukesh's orchestra attended the show Thursday. A part of them came in a large air conditioned stream-lined bus.

A good sized crowd was present Friday afternoon and the night shows were well attended. Russell Mitchell, who had charge of the ticket sales stated that plenty of money was taken in to pay all the expenses.

The program appeared to meet with the approval of practically everyone present. The buffalo riding which was a new feature at the Burwell show, proved to be especially popular. The usual number of thrills and spills occurred each day with a small number of injuries. Bud Miller of Burwell sustained an injured hip when he was thrown from a brahma steer.

Tom Jennings, a Texas cowboy, received a fractured vertebrae when he was thrown from a bronc Wednesday. He was taken to Dr. Cram's hospital where Dr. Cram put him in a cast and released him Tuesday. This cowboy accepted his misfortune cheerfully for this was not the first time he had sus-

Dlugosh Unhurt When Oil Truck Upsets

A rain which wet the dirt roads in Mira Valley Monday proved disastrous to Joe Dlugosh, driver of the Dan Dugan oil truck. He hit the wet road near the Ernest Lange place at 4:30 p. m. and before he realized how slippery the road was he went off the grade.

The truck landed upside down and the cab crushed down until Dlugosh had to slip his feet out of his shoes before he could crawl out. In spite of this he escaped with hardly a scratch, although the cab is badly damaged and the frame sprung.

The Anderson Motor Co. wrecker went out, turned the truck over and towed it to town, where whatever repairs are needed will be made. The tank was nearly full of gas, but luckily none of it leaked out and thus danger of fire was averted.

Union Pacific Motor Equipped to Use Gas

Information was received last week by John P. Klein, mechanical foreman for the Union Pacific at Ord, that the McKeen motor car No. 111 is to be rebuilt to burn bupane gas as fuel instead of distillate, as formerly.

While the work is being done it was to have been replaced by car No. 30, gas-electric. However No. 30 was called for use out of Lincoln Saturday, and steam train 535-536 was sent here to replace it. This train leaves Ord at 10:40 a. m. and returns at 5:10 p. m.

No. 111 is the first and only motor car being equipped in Nebraska for the use of bupane. George Gutschaw, being very familiar with gas internal combustion engines, will be put in charge of this car for testing out. If the test is satisfactory other motor cars will be similarly equipped.

Valley County Fair Dates Sept. 9 to 12

Premium List in Quiz This Week; Entertainment Not All Contracted For.

The premium list of the Valley County Fair, which will be held September 9 to 12, is printed in the Quiz this week and should prove of interest to all who are planning to make an exhibit of any kind at the fair this year.

The exact nature of the entertainment at the fair this year has not been decided upon by the board, but a number of ideas are being considered. The board will appreciate any suggestions at this time that might be of value to them in putting on the fair.

Chris Belers, who is in charge of concessions, is receiving many inquiries from concession men, carnival companies, shows and sides, and will have no trouble filling all the available spaces. However, he is trying to pick the best from the list he has on hand.

The open beef club show, a new idea at the Valley County Fair this year, is attracting interest in surrounding counties, and entries are expected from Garfield, Loup, Wheeler, Greeley, Custer and Howard counties as well as a fine representation from Valley county.

In addition the Valley County 4-H club competition will attract a great many entries. Fairgoers will recall what a fine exhibit the 4-H clubs had at the fair last year and will be looking forward with pleasure to this year's exhibit.

The sentiment of the board is that, while they cannot go to the expense of past years in putting on a free fair this year, they will try to put on a program this year that every one in the territory can attend and enjoy.

Rodeo Board Held Carnival Company For Settlement

Leave $625 Diamond as Security for Money Owed to Fair Board.

Burwell—(Special)—The board of managers were confronted with a difficult situation when the Crowley United Shows, which have not done the carnival business to be too profitable of late years attempted to leave Saturday without paying the fair association a little over nine hundred and fifty dollars which they owed them. County Attorney Manasil got out an injunction which would not allow the equipment to be removed until the debt was paid.

The manager of the company finally persuaded the directors to accept a three and a fourth carat yellow diamond as security for the amount owing them. He claimed to have paid a thousand dollars for the stone. Some of the directors took the diamond to Grand Island where August Meyer, a jeweler, estimated it to be worth $625.00 and possibly more. Mr. Meyer stated that the diamond would be worth more in the south where yellow diamonds traditionally have a higher value. From Burwell the carnival company went to Norfolk. They promised to send more money as soon as they are financially able. The fair association advanced them money to enable them to travel from Laramie, Wyo., to Burwell. This money was paid back.

Hunter Sells Transfer Line to F. V. Haught

After being in business in Ord for 13 years, R. O. Hunter sold his express and transfer business last week to Freeman Haught, who will take over some time this week. Mr. Haught needs no introduction to Ord people, having been in business here for many years.

Mr. and Mrs. Hunter plan to leave Ord about September 1 for Oakland, Calif., where they will make their home. Mr. Hunter's brother lives in Oakland and most of his children and all of Mrs. Hunter's children are residents of California. Their many friends here will learn of their plans with regret.

Crop and Feed Loans Are Now Available

H. J. Hetrick, field supervisor, is now contacting farmers in regard to emergency crop and feed loans for the planting of winter grain and the feeding of livestock. Interested farmers may see him at the county agent's office in Ord.

This loan program is a part of the farm credit administration plan, and is for farmers whose cash requirements are small and who cannot obtain a loan from any other source. Borrowers are required to give as security a first lien on crops financed for, or a first lien on livestock to be fed.

Martin Barjenbruch Is New Council Oak Head

By virtue of a change that is taking place this week, Frank J. Dubsky, manager of the Council Oak store at Ord for the past sixteen months, is being transferred to the store at Howells, Neb., and Martin Barjenbruch, whose home is at Leigh, Neb., is taking his place.

Mr. Barjenbruch came to Ord Monday from the Council Oak store at Madison, Neb. He has been with the company for the past eighteen months. Mr. Dubsky and family will leave for their new location this Wednesday evening. They have made many warm friends in Ord whose best wishes go with them.

Big Crowd Attend Dedication of Ord's Postoffice Building

Band Contest Brought Crowd From Distance; Coffee Principal Speaker.

With perfect atmospheric conditions due to the fine shower that had fallen the day before, August 14 was an ideal day for the dedication of Ord's new federal postoffice building. People began to arrive early, and by 10 a. m. when the day's program opened, the streets were thronged with people, many of whom came from a distance.

The forenoon's program was devoted to a contest for prizes in which bands from Sargent, Burwell and Comstock participated. The bands marched down 16th street from the city hall, executed marching maneuvers on the street west of the square, which had been kept clear for the purpose, and then played selections from the court house steps.

After they had all performed a group of judges from Burwell and Ord checked their markings and found that the Comstock band had taken first place with 78 2-3% the Burwell municipal band, directed by Melvin Struve, had taken second place with 76% and the Sargent band had taken third place with 68%. The Comstock and Sargent bands are directed by Dr. Glen D. Auble.

HARRY B. COFFEY.

At 1:30 the dedication program at the new postoffice got under way. A platform had been erected in front of the building, and a large number of seats had been built in the street in front, which had been roped off for the afternoon.

The program was opened with music by the Ord band, seated beside the speaker's platform. Rev. M. A. Lawler gave the invocation, the Auble public address system, erected for the program carrying his voice to all of the crowd of perhaps five thousand people scattered for a block in all directions.

He was introduced by Postmaster Alfred L. Hill, master of ceremonies, who next called upon Mayor M. B. Cummins. The mayor extended the courtesies of the city to the visitors, and assured them that it was with a feeling of justifiable pride that he invited them to listen to the program, inspect the building and have a part in the free festivities.

A large number of Legionnaires

Shower Hits Ord on Tuesday Afternoon

A light and most variable shower hit Ord Tuesday afternoon. At the home of Horace Travis, weather reporter, the fall measured .78 of an inch. Down town the fall was figured at .54 of an inch, and at the fair grounds there was hardly enough to lay the dust.

Archie Geweke reports that the fall was heavy, perhaps two inches or more, at his farm, three miles northwest of Ord, and it was also heavy at points west of Ord. There was very little rain at Elyria, and none further north. The rain was peculiar as it came at a period of high barometer.

Ord Defeats Cotesfield In 12 Innings Sunday

The Cotesfield softball team came to Ord Sunday evening and battled it out with local boys for twelve innings before meeting with defeat by a score of 3 to 2. It was a pitcher's battle throughout, with Vernon Nay going strong and his opponent going fully as well.

Axel Jorgensen tied the game at two all in the sixth with a home run. In the twelfth inning Sargent got on with a hit and C. Cetak was safe on an error. Sargent advanced to third on an infield out, and came in when Jorgensen's hit to short stop was thrown to the plate too late, ending the longest softball game on record in Ord.

NEBRASKA GOES TO THE FAIR Nebraska is one of the outstanding manufacturing states of the union. The top six inches of our soil is the factory in which all these products are being manufactured, and the soil below that is a reservoir of material from which supplies may be drawn as they are needed.

Nature has set up in our state one of the largest manufacturing plants in the world, and the goods manufactured therein cannot be duplicated in the greatest factory ever made by man, who, given the knowledge of the ages and the most intricate machinery, could not in a lifetime manufacture a single blade of grass.

The farmer lives close to nature. Year after year he sees the marvelous unfolding of the leaf, the swelling of the bud, the ripening of the fruit. He recognizes in it the hand of the Master Craftsman, and because of it he lives on a higher and holier plane than do the dwellers in the crowded cities.

In acknowledgement of the help he gets from the Almighty, man has held festivals from the beginning of time. In primitive days these were more openly religious than they seem to be today, but the true farmer never forgets the Master Workman who toils beside him during the day, and who continues to work while he sleeps at night.

He brings the firstlings of his flocks, the finest of his crops, and his children bring the products made with their hands. Proudly they exhibit these to admiring neighbors, and while they may not say so, they feel in their hearts that these are the result of the combined efforts of the man and the Master.

They may win prizes, but the true exhibitor brings his best from a higher motive than any cash award can offer, and if he fails to win he regrets the loss of the honor even more than the loss of the money. To the fair minded farmer a blue ribbon means more than a cash award, and a medal more than merchandise.

This year, as every year, dozens of county fairs are being held all over Nebraska. Some have bountiful crops, others are hard hit by the drouth. In every case one thing will characterize all exhibits, they will represent the best there is to be found in the county where the fair is held.

But the county fair is not the end for the exhibitor. He uses it as a stepping stone to that greatest of all exhibitions, the Nebraska State fair. If his products are good enough to win in the county, there is a chance of their placing in the state. Somebody will win, and his chance is as good as his neighbor's.

People in increasing numbers are going to the fair, drawn by the exhibits rather than the entertainment they will find there. When this condition prevails the adherents of agriculture have a right to feel encouraged. The state fair is an agricultural fair, and all attractions other than the exhibits should be secondary.

The fair is an outgrowth of the incident mentioned in the Bible. Abel brought a kid from his flock and Cain brought the products of his fields, and offered them as a sacrifice to the Lord. Now, as then, fair time should be an occasion of thanksgiving, of humble gratitude for the blessings of the past year.

The Nebraska State fair is recognized as one of the outstanding agricultural fairs of the nation, and justly so. Nebraskans should realize that two elements are essential to a successful fair; a large number of agricultural exhibits, and a large attendance, without which the finest exhibition in the world would be a waste of time.

This year especially we should rejoice that no war ravages our fields and desolates our homes; that no dictator has permitted his hordes to pillage our farms and destroy our crops; that freedom, justice and democracy still prevail and all men are equal before the law, and most important of all, that America grows the crops that feed the world.

AND THIS IS AMERICA

C. A. Hickok, secretary of the Dade county, Florida, democratic committee, heads a 5-man subcommittee to take legal action in preventing democratic adherents to Willkie's cause from voting in the democratic primary two years hence or becoming party candidates for office.

About all the difference between this and what would happen under Hitler is that they might not live long enough under Hitler to vote two years from now. The principle is the same. The object of having more than one party is to give the voters a chance to choose between them.

Mr. Hickok would take from the voter his right to make this choice. According to him no man once committed to the democratic cause has the right to change his mind. By the same reasoning no man has a right to vote for Willkie because he was once a democrat and has no right to run as a republican. No matter how bad a candidate the democrats have running for office all Dade county democrats must vote for him. This Hickok must be a relative of the Hickok of frontier days who lived by the law of might, when the man who was quickest on the draw was always right. Just how he plans to get around the secret ballot system is not clear.

Let us hope that all Dade county democrats are not so blindly based as this advocate of force. After all, this is America, and Americans are guaranteed a number of rights, among them the privilege of casting their votes for the men they prefer rather than those preferred by arbitrary politicians.

LETTERS FROM QUIZ READERS

Eugene, Ore. August 8, 1940

Dear Quiz Readers: We were up to Corvallis, Ore., for the state picnic of Nebraska people last Sunday, Aug. 4 and to see the people there you would wonder if there were any left in Nebraska. I should judge there were around 1500. The officers had a very entertaining program. A basket lunch was held at noon.

People from Valley county registered there were Mrs. Ruth McColl Lemonds and husband, from North Loup. Mr. Lemonds lived for a time in Malden Valley. They have been here for 3 years and he is employed in one of the largest sawmills in the upper Willamette Valley located at Springfield, Jay Rogers and daughter of Salem, Mrs. James Marsh of Salem, Mrs. Harry Gebauer of Dec, Ethel Moore Moss, Howard Moss, Nina Moss Jorgenson and J. C. Moore, all of Lebanon.

Mr. Moore relates quite an interesting story of the early days at Ord. He lived just at the edge of Ord, a farm and dairy combined. He says he sold milk for 5 cents per quart and sold corn to the Ord elevator in 1888 for 9 cents per bushel. Despite these seemingly low prices he says he made more money than people do now.

G. E. Price of Canby, has been out here 18 years. Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Williams of Monmouth were old timers around Ord. William C. John's from Ord are now living at Portland. Mr. and Mrs. Joe Siangel now live at Selo, on a farm. Mr. and Mrs. Ed Wells from North Loup and Mr. and Mrs. Huff from Arcadia, now live at St. Helen.

We sure enjoyed the day and were very glad to see and talk with different people from "back home." Things are going along pretty good on the chicken ranch. We put "specs" on about 1000 of our young pullets this week so now one of the men have the job of delivering the daily paper to the hens, of course the primary reason is to keep the birds from picking each other. They are "specs" like people wear only they are made of solid metal and fastened with a cotter pin through the nostril.

It is too bad you didn't get much rain this summer. We thought things looked good when we were home in June. We are always anxious for Monday to come so we can read the Quiz through, even read the ads. If anyone from Valley county comes to Oregon be sure and look us up.

Your friends, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Campbell Eugene, Ore., Route 3

Fusons in Cuba. Havana, Cuba August 5, 1940

Dear Quiz: To any who may wonder why Mrs. Fuson and I did not make our usual western concert trip this summer, this will explain that we are on the second of two concert cruises to Cuba, the Bahama Islands and Florida. The first one was in March and this one will be finished on August 11th. I hope to make a brief visit to Lincoln and Ord probably in September, but Mrs. Fuson will not accompany me as she must take care of our teaching in New York.

Here in Havana it is felt that something was accomplished by the recent Pan-American Conference held here, but that it was a grave mistake for Brazil and Argentina (especially the latter) to obstruct a complete understanding. Cubans are quite frank in saying that their country follows the lead of the U. S. A. in everything, and that Cuba depends upon the U. S. A. for her commercial life and her political independence. In fact, the American and his dollar are the little tin gods of the people of Cuba. The island republic can be counted upon to help leading the other Latin-American countries into the fold of hemisphere solidarity.

Day before yesterday we were in Nassau, capital of the Bahama Islands. The people of the Bahamas are all abuzz in preparation for the imminent arrival of the Duke and Duchess of Windsor. Nassau, the capital is banking everything on the expected swelling of wealthy American winter residents. This has fallen off seriously the last few years, but it is expected that business will be better than ever because of the whirl of social events inspired by the famous pair. Strange enough the people of Nassau seem to feel that the American Duchess is certain to be a stronger drawing card than the Duke himself will be. A city official took me to inspect Government House, where the Duke and Duchess will live. It is the second most pretentious dwelling in Nassau, but while very distinguished, it runs a poor second to a magnificent chateau owned by an American bootlegger by the name of Collins. Incidentally, Americans traveling in foreign countries ought to learn to drink less and to be more quiet and dignified. With very best wishes to the Quiz and its readers, I am Sincerely, Tom Fuson.

Flavia Schwarzel Writes. 63 Williams St. Meadville, Pa. The Ord Quiz: We have enjoyed your pictures of Beaus and Belles of the Future, and are sending one for the future. Also one of Vesta Twombly, who ranked second in the township 8th grade examinations this spring. When you consider here the instructors must be college graduates and in Valley county they are young girls out of high school, we think it speaks highly for the Valley county teacher. There were 50 in the 8th grade class. Vesta came to Pennsylvania in March.

We are so sorry that weather conditions are driving more and more from Valley county. Mrs. Twombly's son, Bruce Peterson, is having a sale Aug. 6 and moving here, and needless to say we are hoping Mrs. Elizabeth Twombly Base and family will soon join us and then our family will be reunited.

Yes, we have had hot weather, for us, 91 degrees the highest. But vegetation is growing by leaps and bounds. Wish Valley county had the hay that is not being cut. To our many Valley county friends the Twomblys and Schwarzels send their greetings. We are not coming to Nebraska this year, but plan to next summer. Flavia Twombly Schwarzel.

Visiting Parents. The past week has been a happy occasion for Mr. and Mrs. Charles Urban, with their children visiting them from three different states. Mr. and Mrs. Emil Urban of Prague, Okla., left for Cambridge Thursday to visit her sister before returning home. They came for their children, who had been visiting here during the summer. Mr. and Mrs. George Vastcek and family of Pocahontas, Ia., are here visiting her parents. Mrs. Raleigh Meyer and son Allan from Santa Ana, Calif., are here visiting her parents. They expect to remain until August 21.

A FEW THINGS TO THINK ABOUT

Written by GEORGE GOWEN

The Blitzkrieg If the government agencies such as the FSA come to the rescue and help the farmers outside the irrigation districts it will have to show more snap than it usually does. The fact of the matter is old Jupiter Pluvius has started his blitzkrieg already and most of the farmers are gasping for breath right now. I heard many say that they think this is the worst year yet.

One reason the drouth is so bad is the fact that most the pastures have dried up and already, long before winter, there is no feed. Some men are chopping their burnt corn fodder and feeding their stock; a few have been moved to the sand hills. To buy feed, shipped in from long distances and the price pegged by government storage loans, is out of the question for most men.

Cream and milk prices are not too high (if a fellow can squeeze any from cows with no pasture) and eggs have dropped to 9c. It is from these sources that the farmers have been living.

Each day I hear of some different people who are leaving soon or selling out. It is said that many have hung on so long they haven't money to leave. The story is about that the auctioneers are booking dates by the dozens, and many of these people will have to have direct relief or get WPA jobs.

It's no time to fool ourselves about the conditions of the farmers in this great drouth section of the state, and it is no time either to tarry over forms and red tape.

No Railroad—No School The following clipping was handed me and I will reprint it exactly as I have it:

Says the Bertrand, Nebraska Herald: "Since railway service has been discontinued and rails removed at Greeley, Nebraska, taxes have taken such a stomp that there will be no school there the coming year.

"Other branch lines should take note and wholeheartedly support other forms of transportation if they wish to enjoy the same experience."

I have been unable to find anyone who knows the truth of the above without paying a long distance call, but even should it be true, it might not be so bad as one would think. At Greeley there is a large Catholic parochial school where a large per cent of the children attend, and perhaps the district made arrangements whereby all children should go there.

However the drouth has been as severe in Greeley county as almost any place in the state and many people are not paying their taxes there. It has been said that certain loan companies have refused to pay their taxes on their land this year also, and with the ceasing of paying the taxes by the branch, the districts might easily be put in a position where they would have to abandon the schools.

News of the Neighborhood Kenneth Jacobsen of Dannebrog who was pitching the season with the Wenatchee, Wash., ball club of the International league, injured his pitching arm and is being treated by a specialist at Seattle, who says "Sonny" will be out for the rest of the season.

R. L. Bodein, Roland W. Dalley and Ellsworth Clark of Scotia and Dale Bredthauer of Burwell returned last Sunday from a fishing trip to the Lake of the Woods country in Canada.

The Comstock News had another birthday last week and is now entering on its 34th year, more than 14 years under the management of Edward S. Krikac. The News has always been a good paper, and seems to improve with age. Russell Melvin Wilkie, Loup City, no relation to Wendell, received his master's degree at the Colorado state college of education last Thursday. He is one of a graduating class of 410.

Last week a carload of gypsies stopped at the Orvis Pike home at Sargent and in some manner managed to get hold of ten dollars belonging to him. They went on to the Burwell fair, but could not be located when the Garfield county sheriff looked for them.

The farm home of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Tully burned to the ground last Sunday afternoon near Spalding. Mrs. Tully was preparing dinner on a gasoline stove and leaking gasoline caught fire. They lost all their household goods. The care and maintenance of the Rose Hill cemetery at Scotia was turned over to the Scotia Legion post, and they are busy making plans for keeping the cemetery in good condition throughout the year.

Raven's new fire siren has been mounted on a 40 foot tower and is now ready for any and all emergencies. The city had quite a time of it while the firemen were getting the siren tuned up and testing it to see that it worked as it should, according to the News.

In spite of the fact that the new grandstand at Bloomfield cannot be completed in time for their fair this year, it is planned to build it immediately after the fair and have it ready for the 1941 fair. Bleachers will replace temporarily the stands that were destroyed by fire two weeks ago.

The Blitzkrieg No R. R.—No School Gardens of Eden News from Afar

News from Afar

The second paragraph of the quota might also be taken to heart. Our country is served by two branch lines that pay great sums into our county treasurer each year in taxes, and they are running their trains back and forth each day with hardly business enough for ballast. As sure as the sun sets, if railroads are not able to get more business, sooner or later their rails will be taken up, and then we will have to find some other place to raise that tax money or close our schools too.

Gardens of Eden Doug Barber of North Loup, each year, has represented Valley county at the State Fair and the Ak-sar-ben with a display and exhibit. He and his wife have made a showing that the county could well be proud of.

But the difficulty is on account of the drouth he is short of some samples, especially vines (pumpkins, squash etc) grains and roots. He wanted me to mention the fact that if anyone has any of these things and will call him, he will be glad to come and get them.

There is a section in the city of North Loup that might be well classed as the garden of Eden, and that is that part of town where Rev. Adams Verd and Sterling Manchester, Dr. Hemphill, Merrill McClellan, George Johnson and Dan Bohrer live.

There is not a weed in the whole tract and it has all been irrigated repeatedly. So beautiful are the flowers, vegetables, lawns, strawberries, bushes and the little streams of water winding about that I was amused. There is an apple tree growing there too in line between M. C's and Geo. J's and it was loaded with fruit.

I was tempted to pick an apple and then the thought occurred to me of how it might be forbidden, and I recalled reading, once, of the dire consequences of such an act, so I abstained.

News from Afar Ford Eyerly says that farm lands in Illinois and Iowa has gone up considerably because of the drouth farmers moving back there. He says his brother could sell the farm he bought last fall for forty dollars an acre more than he gave for it.

He says that his brother last fall offered a farm for $125.00 an acre but did not buy it. It sold lately for $175.00.

My brother in Aneval, Calif., wrote me as follows the other day: "If you wait until spring to come out here your chances for getting work will be less than this fall, for the immigrants from the dried out states are coming into California by the thousands every month."

Mrs. Clyde Ebrert, whose home is near New York City was asked how prices compared here with there. She said as follows, "Eggs are much cheaper. Milk here is 10c and there we bought excellent milk for 13c. Ice is higher here than there and most other things I can see little difference."

NEWS OF THE NEIGHBORHOOD

Hoover's Mistakes An inspired piece from one of the New Deal propagandists says that "Hoover was a complete failure." So he was. He failed in a lot of things. He failed to draw out his salary of $75,000 a year while he was President, turning it all back into the Treasury. He failed to have his sons organize insurance company firms to write insurance on government enterprises. MEDICAL FACTS

Sponsored by 4-COUNTY MEDICAL SOCIETY

Most of the cavities of the body are lined by red membranes called mucous membranes. This name implies that the substance we call mucus is produced by the cells of these membranes. People often become worried when they chance to see some mucus in the material passed from the bowel though in most instances it is a perfectly normal affair. On the other hand, one scarcely thinks of the fact that there is always a little mucus secretion from the nose.

There are a number of reasons why nature provides this secretion for these membranes but one of the interesting reasons, and one most people do not realize, is the protection this affords against infection. Most of the mucous membranes are constantly in contact with germs of many kinds. Of course many of these germs are harmless but, undoubtedly, there is daily or, at least frequent contact with microbes that could produce disease. Mucus surrounds these germs. It tends to hold them in its embrace and carry them out of the body. While doing this, it has some direct action on the germs. Often it prevents them from multiplying. If the germs are eventually freed from the mucus they may be found to be still alive and can be made to grow and multiply under artificial conditions. In some instances, mucus has been proven to actually kill germs caught in its substance.

When an infectious agent succeeds in setting up an inflammation in a mucous membrane, regardless of the presence of mucus, the cells of that membrane pour out an excess of this substance. This tends to protect the surrounding membrane, which has not as yet become infected, to kill or inhibit the activity of the bacteria discharged from the infected area and to wash the germs out of the body as rapidly as possible. This process can be observed in the course of a nasal or bronchial infection.

Other body secretions have uses similar to that of mucus. One (think of tears as something to keep the eyeballs moist and comfortable) and to wash out of the eye, particles of dust and other substances which may prove irritating, but this secretion also acts to slow up the growth of germs or even to kill some of them. It thus helps prevent infections of the conjunctiva and other parts of the covering of the eyeball.

Human milk is endowed with similar properties. Thus, we glimpse the marvelous job nature has done in helping protect us from perilous surroundings.

Future farmers from nine high schools competed in a new kind of contest at Broken Bow last Saturday. It was called a Parliamentary Procedure and Informational Contest. Members of the state vocational education department came up from Lincoln to sponsor the event.

Two schools, Loup City and Ord, received the highest possible rating and were given blue ribbons. One school, Sargent, was ranked in the second or red ribbon group. While ribbons for third place went to Bassett and Callaway. Other teams competing were Ainsworth, Broken Bow, Litchfield and Stapleton.

Fifteen towns were represented at this annual District F. P. A. convention, but only nine entered teams in the contest. The Ord team consisted of Frank Zalina, Calvin Ferris and Emanuel Smolik. Frank also presided at the meeting, as he is district president of the Future Farmers of America.

In parliamentary procedure the teams demonstrated such things as disposing of a motion and its amendment, appealing from a decision of the chair, rising to a point of order, referring a matter to the committee, suspending the rules, tabling a motion and taking it from the table. They were required to recite from memory the Future Farmer creed, motto, objectives and other information.

The ranking of teams into blue, red and white groups will be carried out in all high school agricultural contests in the future. First place may be won by all or none of the boys competing under this plan.

OIL DRILLINGS IN NEBRASKA

This is the sixteenth of the series of articles concerning oil drillings in Nebraska. All information was compiled by research workers of the Nebraska Writers' Project, WPA, from old newspapers and from data supplied by the University of Nebraska.

In 1927, Chase county was one of the few remaining counties that had never experienced a drilling for oil. However, on Sept. 20, 1927, the Imperial Republican reported that a well had been started on the Ingold farm, about five and one-half miles southeast of Imperial by the Chase Petroleum company. The paper estimated that over 3,000 people turned out for the occasion.

Drilling operations had reached a depth of 1070 feet by Nov. 3, 1927. A month later, when a showing of oil and gas was reportedly found at 1200 feet, everybody in the region began to see visions of the first producing oil well in Nebraska. It was said that there were indications of oil throughout the drilling and at one time, on Feb. 16, 1928, the Republican stated that a powerful natural gas formation had been encountered. Unfortunately, a shortage of funds caused a halt in activities during the early part of the summer of 1928 and it was not until Nov. 22 that drilling was resumed. Operations continued from that date with intermittent rumors of oil and gas strikes causing excitement among the people. Despite all these "good" signs however, in August, 1929, the site was temporarily abandoned at a depth of 4565 feet. The Ingold well was later deepened to 4600 feet, according to records of the Conservation and Survey Division. This was one of the deeper wells in the state.

On Jan. 17, 1929, the Webster County Argus announced that core drilling operations would start soon on a farm located south of Red Cloud in an effort to find a suitable place for conducting a deep-well test for oil. C. L. Price, who was in charge of the promotional details of the Mid-States Exploration company, sank a number of shallow holes in the vicinity finally deciding on a site on the C. J. Platt farm, one and one-half miles southwest of Red Cloud. Drilling equipment was shipped up from the Vickers oil field near Natoma, Kan. The well was spudded-in in the early part of June, 1929.

Originally, the drilling was financed by private capital, but after a time it was found necessary to secure additional funds to keep the site open. On January 16, 1930, Price returned from a trip into Oklahoma and Texas with the statement that he had been unable to interest southern capital in the Red Cloud undertaking so it was up to the townspersons whether they wanted a drilling or not. The drilling by this time had reached a depth of 1015 feet.

The oil-conscious people of Red Cloud held a meeting to determine what should be done about continuing the drilling. Because an earlier attempt at finding oil, in 1919 had failed, many persons were somewhat skeptical of the outcome of the new undertaking, but eventually enough money was raised. On June 5, 1930, drilling recommenced. On one occasion, a fire damaged the rigging. Operations ceased on April 15, 1931, at a depth of 3506 feet. Later the Argus stated that attempts were underway to finance the venture further but the attempts failed. An unusual feature of this drilling was the report of finding both iron and silver ore in the hole.

The exact date of the spudding-in of a drilling at the Marlville postoffice, northeast of Bassett is not known, although the Rock County Leader reported on Feb. 6, 1930, that operations had ceased temporarily in November, 1929, at a depth of 700 feet.

When in March, 1930, Harry T. Osborn, promoter and president of the North Central Development company, announced that the hole would be drilled further. Indications of oil were reported during that month. Then on June 12, 1930 the drilling was abandoned due to cave-ins and other difficulties.

Newspaper accounts concerning drillings in this region are incomplete, but it is known that a second well was sunk near the site of the first, and by July 17, 1930, had gone down to 850. On Sept. 25, for some unexplained reason, activities at the second well ceased despite the reported presence of gas. Then the site was reopened, this time with volunteer workers, and people living nearby donated saleable farm produce to aid in financing the drilling. By April 19, 1931, the hole was 1203 feet deep.

At a meeting of the stockholders of the company on July 16, 1931, Osborn reported that drilling had gone to 1715 feet, and a discussion was held as to whether or not the hole should be drilled deeper. It was finally deemed advisable to cease operations.

Research workers of the Nebraska Writers' Project, WPA, find that the first drilling to be started in 1930 took place in May on the Shoemaker farm, 11 miles east of Grand Island. The well was known variously as the Chapman well, the Central City well, and the Grand Island well. The Jayhawk Oil and Refining company, Hal W. Nolswanger, head driller, broke all existing records, it is said, when the crew drilled over 200 feet during a 24-hour period.

On July 24, 1930, the Central City Republican stated that oil and gas indications were present, and hopes were high for a "gusher." A flow of salt water in the casing heartened many persons as it was supposed that oil was quite often found in the vicinity of a salt formation. Oil did not appear, however. Later, on August 23, a derrick cable parted and dropped a 200-pound tool to the platform, narrowly missing workmen and bystanders. On Sept. 4, a strata of "heavy" lime was encountered which was said to have been the first time that this formation was found north of the Platte river in Nebraska.

Time passed, oil was not found, so in the latter part of 1930, the location was abandoned. Drilling had gone to a depth of 1440 feet. (To be continued)

BURWELL

Ballagh-Weller

Under an arch covered with morning glories which according to an old English folk belief will bring a long and happy wedded life, Miss Edith Ballagh, was married to Kenneth Weller of Warrensburg, Mo., in the country home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Ballagh, at 7 o'clock Sunday morning. Only the immediate relatives were present. Reverend Michels of Elwood who was formerly pastor of the Methodist congregations at Ballagh and Amella, officiated. The bridal party descended the stairway to the strains of the wedding march played by Miss Michels of Chadron. The bride wore a floor length white satin gown and a finger tip length white net veil. On her head was a white net cap decorated with seed pearls. She carried a white satin obble.

Her sister Esther, who was her only attendant was dressed in pink satin and carried a white satin fan. The groom and his brother, Phineas, of Windsor, Mo., wore dark blue suits. The morning glory covered archway where the rites were performed and was topped by a huge white bell. Potted plants were massed in the background. Immense bouquets of gladioli, phlox, cannas and other garden flowers flanked the sides of the arch.

Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served. A reception a dinner, shower and thirty-six persons signed the guest book which was in charge of Mrs. Glenn Ballagh. A wicker tub filled with fried chicken, several beautifully decorated wedding cakes and many other delicious dishes were served to the guest cafeteria style. The friends and relatives who attended brought an almost endless array of beautiful and useful gifts. Four ministers, Rev. Michels, Rev. Wylie, Rev. Nannie White of Amella and Rev. Lindsey of Chambers, were present at the reception.

The bride comes from one of Garfield county's oldest and most respected families. Both pairs of her grandparents were pioneer settlers in this community and both celebrated their golden wedding anniversaries. The Ballagh post office was named for her paternal grandparents, now deceased. Her maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. William Gumb last winter celebrated their fiftieth anniversary. They now live in Chambers and were present for the wedding.

Mrs. Weller was graduated from the Burwell high school with the class of 1936. She has taught four terms of school in Holt and Garfield counties. The groom is a school teacher who has attended the Missouri State Teachers College at Warrensburg. Several summers ago he worked on the George Rowse ranch near Chambers. Mr. Rowse is the bride's uncle and it was in this manner they became acquainted. He will teach this year near Gallatin, Mo., where the newly-weds have gone to make their home.

Rev. Walter Fehner, pastor of a rural Lutheran church near Poole, Neb., and a brother of Mrs. Francis Thomas will speak at the mission festival of St. John's Lutheran congregation in the Methodist church Sunday afternoon at 2:30. During his years in Burwell his judging teams have scored high in the state contests in which they have participated. He has taught one of the twelve adult night schools which have been operated in the state and one of the thirty-seven schools for young farmers which have been taught in Nebraska. Both Mr. and Mrs. West have taken an active part of the civic affairs of Burwell. No successor to Mr. West has been chosen.

Government Now Purchasing New Crop Potatoes

purchase the surplus, and not to look after the disposition of it.

At the meeting an industry committee of nine members was elected from three districts, divided as follows: three from the Comstock area, three from the Burwell area, and three from the Ord-Arcadia area. For this area the members are Hans Petersen of Ord, Floyd Bossen of Arcadia and L. E. Dahlgren of Loup City.

This committee is to have charge of prorating the quotas to the various growers. The tentative division as now planned is 11 cars to the Ord-Arcadia district, 19 cars to the Comstock district and 20 cars to the Burwell district. The price paid for the potatoes will be 85c per cwt. of No. 1 potatoes at loading point.

Potatoes must show a test of 95 1/2 No. 1 grade as No. 1 potatoes. In case they do not make 95% but do make 85% they then go as commercials with a price of 80c per cwt. Growers must furnish new sacks and pay cost of inspection, $4 per car. The sacks must either be branded or tagged showing the name of the grower and the point of origin. Potatoes for the government are not to be washed.

The principal variety being bought is the Irish Cobbler, which is not in demand on the market as is the Red Triumph. More Cobblers are being harvested in the Middle Loup, while the principal variety in the Burwell territory is the Red Triumph. The government inspector at Burwell will handle the buying in the North Loup valley, and the one at Arcadia will handle the buying on the Middle Loup.

These inspectors not only will handle the potatoes, but will also handle the purchases locally under the direction of Mr. Hess, who will remain at the office in Gibbon. While no figures on the total early potato crop in the valleys is obtainable, it is estimated that the 50 carloads to be bought by the government will be about 20% of the total amount raised.

Many Guests Attended Rotary Monday Evening

A number of guests were in attendance at the meeting of the Ord Rotary club Monday evening at Thorne's Cafe. Dr. George H. Gard introduced as his guests George W. Newbecker of California, who is here renewing acquaintance with old friends, and the doctor's brother-in-law, Harold W. Parks, formerly of Ord, but now of Denver.

Dr. F. A. Barta, after mentioning the fact that he bought his first automobile of Mr. Newbecker on April 2, 1911, introduced his son-in-law, W. C. Wiggins, who is an engineer on the government irrigation project at Ogallala. The Rotarians plan to have him as guest speaker, perhaps next Monday.

J. A. Kovanda then introduced Ord's new head coach, Roscoe Tolley, who responded briefly, saying that he could not promise to duplicate the work Mr. Brockman had done in Ord, but that he could promise to do his best. President Edward Kokes then gave a very interesting talk on the work of Rotary for the coming year.

Valley County Growers Signing Crop Insurance

According to R. Clars Clement, member of the county agricultural conservation committee in charge of "All-Risk" crop insurance, wheat growers of Valley county can now start planning on guaranteed wheat income for 1941. In fact farmers began signing applications for insurance on their 1941 wheat crops about July 15.

Wheat growers must apply for insurance and pay the premium before the crop is seeded, or by Aug. 31, whichever is earlier. Premiums may be paid with cash, a warehouse receipt for wheat, or by executing an advance against payments earned or to be earned under the agricultural conservation program. See Mr. Clement at the AAA office for further information.

Lloyd (Spud) Richardson is a graduate of the Ord high school, and since he is a lover of horses, he tried his hand at training Queenie. He met with so much success that he decided to go into the clowning business, and his tricks are gaining in popularity all the time.

were present in uniform, and they delegated the honor of the flag raising ceremony to the Boy Scouts under the direction of Rex Jewett, scoutmaster. Orville Stoddard sounded "To the Colors" on the bugle, while Cornelius Blomond slowly raised the flag to the top of the pole. Then Stoddard and "Herald" Jirak played "America" on their cornets. Hugh Cahill acted as color sergeant.

V. C. Battle, U. S. Postal Inspector, Omaha, spoke briefly. Mr. Battle was the man who selected the site of the new postoffice. J. H. Musgrave, superintendent, fourteenth division, railway mail service, then spoke as the representative of the postal department, giving the history of the Ord postoffice and the development of the plans for the new building.

Next were presented Mr. and Mrs. Charles Palmatter, who had charge of the Geranium postoffice fifty years ago. At it was their fifty-sixth wedding anniversary, Postmaster Hill presented them with a wedding gift from the Ord Chamber of Commerce. They both spoke briefly.

Next the contractor, Charles E. Goodhand, was introduced. He stated that it was not often a contractor had the honor of building a postoffice in his home town. He said that in hiring his workmen he got all help possible from Ord and its vicinity. That he spent more than $18,000 for help, and that most of this went to Ord men.

F. C. French, government inspector in charge of the work, was called upon but did not speak, taking a bow instead. Mr. Hill then introduced the man responsible for Ord having a federal building, Congressman Harry B. Coffey, who delivered a masterly address. The following paragraphs are excerpts from that address.

"Today we salute our highly efficient Post Office Department and its worthy and capable chief, one of the finest and most competent Postmaster Generals this nation has ever had, the Honorable James A. Farley. I know of no department in the government that is conducted more efficiently and courteously than the Post Office Department. When we think of the millions of pieces of mail sent by air, rail and water, distributed by star routes, rural and city carriers, all at the cost of a few cents postage the importance of the Post Office Department in our daily lives becomes apparent.

"This new building is a milestone marking the march of progress of the Post Office Department in its service to the public. Mr. Goodhand, your contractor has done a fine job. I recall it was Mr. Goodhand who built the Federal building in my home town of Chadron some twenty years ago. I am sure that you are proud of this building and proud of your own postmaster, Alfred Hill, who was recently elected President of the Nebraska Chapter of the National Postmasters' association. It seems Alfred is entitled to a new building.

"When I first went to Congress as your Representative, following the severe drought year of 1933, I had resolved to assist in every way that I could in the development and conservation of Nebraska's natural resources, its water and fertile soil. At that time you people of Ord, Burwell and Taylor were bending every effort toward securing the approval of the North Loup Power and Irrigation Project. The people of the Middle Loup Valley were likewise endeavoring to secure approval of the Middle Loup Valley Project. Believing their approval would help to insure these communities against distress from future droughts, one of the first things I did upon reaching Washington was to confer with the PWA officials regarding the projects. I was very much discouraged in the beginning because I found both projects had been rejected in the examining division. All reports from the engineers, legal and finance departments had been adverse. It required more than a year and a half working with the various divisions of the Public Works Administration in close cooperation with your late President, Mr. Hardenbrook, and the directors of the North Loup District, as well as with the officers of the Middle Loup Project, before we were able to get the various divisions of the Public Works Administration to report favorably on the projects so they would be eligible for final executive approval.

"I might state that the Middle Loup and the North Loup Projects were the first and only irrigation projects in the U. S. as far as I know, to be approved on a revenue bond basis where the development of hydro-electric power was not included. The PWA objection to them was because of lack of power revenue but it was overcome by the proposals from the districts to utilize some of the surplus power from the other hydro-electric districts in the state which were sponsored by the PWA. Power was promised at a lower price than it could be generated by the districts. I was primarily interested, and I know that you were, in the development of irrigation. The power phase was a compromise to secure that development.

"For the last several years as an aid to farmers our committee has through legislation maintained a 3 1/2% interest rate on Federal land bank mortgages. In 1933 it was necessary to override a Presidential veto in order to continue this rate. I am glad to say that the 3 1/2% rate has been continued for two more years and has been made applicable to land bank commissioner loans as well.

"If we are to preserve the priceless heritage of our constitution, let us always bear in mind that eternal vigilance is the price of liberty. Under our constitution the government is the servant of the people—a happy contrast with the dictator countries wherein the people are the servants of the government. If we in this country, the last safe haven for democracy, are to preserve freedom of speech, freedom of the press and freedom of religion, we must be ever willing to defend our bill of rights.

"I am convinced some of the bureaucrats in Washington are more interested in perpetuating their jobs and control than they are in preserving our democracy. Frankly I disapprove of their maneuvers preceding the Chicago Convention. I resent the humiliating treatment accorded Jim Farley, the Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, and other loyal and patriotic Democrats.

"During the Chicago convention, which I did not attend, I made this statement which was carried in the press:

"As a Jeffersonian Democrat consistently adhering to the principles upon which that party was built, I cannot conscientiously support any President for a third term. If our constitutional democracy is to survive, we must have more patriotism and less machine politics."

"This tradition has been respected by all parties for a hundred and fifty years. Since I place the welfare of my country above party politics, I feel I would be derelict in my duties were I to remain silent on this issue. I have tried to represent the people of my district honestly and conscientiously. I have never been a rubber stamp in Congress, and I shall not cast a rubber stamp ballot at the polls in November."

"At the close of Congressman Coffey's address Rev. W. Ray Radliff of the Ord Presbyterian church pronounced the benediction. The Ord band under the direction of Henry Deines then played "God Bless America," with Tom Springer leading the singing of the words, and the large crowd pointed in.

"The free movies at the Ord Theatre were scheduled to commence at 3 p. m. but so many little folk crowded the lobby at 1:30 p. m. that Manager Blomond opened the show at that time, thus giving an extra run of movies, which continued until midnight.

"The free watermelon was handed out from a truck in the street near the Food Center store, and there was enough so that everybody had a share. The dinner of Central Nebraska postal employees, arrangements by Guy LeMasters, president was held at 7 p. m. in the basement of the Ord Catholic church.

"The Comstock band and the Ord municipal band played a concert in the courtyard beginning at 7:30 and the pavement dance was slated to begin at 9:00 p. m. During the day the inspection of the new post office continued, the Boy Scouts acting as efficient guides. The visitors enjoyed the occasion immensely, and the program was well worth while.

Burwell Rodeo Notes

The Quiz is in receipt of a copy of the Lebo, Kan., Enterprise, which contains a nice bit of publicity for the Burwell rodeo.

A fellow selling novelties on the midway said that he had sold a number of Willie buttons during the rodeo, but had not even had an inquiry for a Roosevelt button.

George W. Newbecker, visiting in Ord at present, took in the rodeo both Wednesday and Thursday, and said that it was the finest show he ever saw.

They say it actually happened this year again. Burwell has had a free gate for several years, but some kids came from the south, did not even go down to the gate, but climbed over the fence on the south side.

The weather man was kind to Burwell this year and gave them about half an inch of rain the Sunday night before the rodeo, which helped keep down the dust, which is a nightmare to the management some years.

One cowboy suffered a fractured pelvis and will have to stay in a cast for a month or more, but will eventually be as good as ever.

Charley Cox of the Interstate Live Stock commission company was present, as he always is. Secretary of State Harry R. Swanson was present as keeper of brands for the state of Nebraska, and offered a special prize of a pair of silver mounted spurs to the champion bronk rider.

Chevrolet Company Is Seeking Certain Auto

In the year 1929 the Chevrolet company put out its millionth automobile, and the company is now carrying on a nation wide search for that car or the nearest one to it.

In any case they want that millionth car or the nearest number to it, and are making a very special offer to Chevrolet owners. The lucky person who has the car they want will be asked to drive the car to their factory under its own power and will receive in exchange a new Chevrolet, and all expenses of the trip will be paid as well.

If you have a car that might qualify it will pay you to get in touch with the Ord Auto Sales company and learn all the details of the offer. They will send in full particulars in regard to your car, and in case you have the one they are after, you will be notified in due time.

Phillip Wagner, 15, Veteran Hitch-Hiker

Four nights under a Highland Park bench is the way Phillip Wagner, 15-year-old Ord youth finished a nine-month hitch-hiking trip that took him from coast to coast, Canada to the Gulf, and through 40 states.

He not only used the park bench to sleep under but had the children in the neighborhood supply him with food for the four days. Yesterday morning he was picked up by police and told to do his sleeping in the city jail. He is not under arrest.

Phillip's story is as long as the nine-month journey and to Police Officer Cecil Kirk he told his story of running away from home last December and landing in a Kansas jail several days later on charges of vagrancy.

His stay in jail was short, because when the jail door was opened one day Phillip slipped out quietly and headed toward California. He no sooner reached the coast than he was put in a detention home for about a week. This soured him toward the West Coast and he came back to Ord for several days.

Instead of staying at home, he started toward the East Coast and before he landed in Hastings Thursday had been all through the South. Police here are trying to make arrangements to get the youth home to stay.—Hastings Morning Spotlight.

Remember This Man!

Owen Conway, a former Lexington whiskey pusher and general jollier, visited our habitat Monday morning and just like in days yore, when he opened the door 'Old Man Gloom' saluted out the window. He had just arrived in the city from his home in Winfield, Kan., for a week's tete-a-tete with some of his old comrades.

—Mr. and Mrs. Roland Haught and son Gary Dean of Kansas City, Mo., returned home after visiting with his sister, Mrs. Roy Nelson of Elyria, and brother, Albert Haught of North Loup. On the way home they stopped in Omaha to visit his sister, Mrs. Herb Gade.

SCHOOL DEPARTMENT

CLARA McCLATCHEY, Superintendent

Arrange all exhibits on the cards so they will hang the long way. Mounting Cards may be obtained from the office at any time. Fasten all exhibits on the cards with brass paper fasteners. Do not paste or glue exhibits to the cards. Be sure to fasten at both top and bottom of exhibit.

In marking the exhibits use the following form, written on the exhibit itself or on a piece of paper securely fastened to the exhibit.

Name, Grade in School, Class (as A1 or E16), District

This year instead of awarding just a first and second place we are judging each entry on the basis of quality: SUPERIOR will be given 5 points; EXCELLENT will be given 3 points; GOOD will be given 1 point, and FAIR will be marked but no points awarded.

Each Rural One-room school will be limited to six cards. Two-room schools to ten cards and town school limited to five cards for each grade. Only one entry under each class will be considered. If more than one entry is displayed, it will be judged as one exhibit.

Each year the question arises as to the disposition of the prize money. It is the opinion of this office that all prize money should be school property. Try to train your pupils to have a pride in winning honors for the school rather than the individual.

Highway Hostess Helps Injured Rodeo Cowboy

Miss Grace Bishop, well-known Phillips 66 highway hostess, was present at Nebraska's Big Rodeo last week, and when Tom Jennings, Texas cowboy, received a fractured vertebra when he was thrown from a bronk Wednesday, she administered first aid, after which he was taken to the Gram hospital in Burwell for further treatment.

Miss Bishop, who has visited the Phillips 66 station in Ord run by Vernon Andersen in well known and deservedly popular. On June 15, at Scott City, Kan., she, aided by bystanders, administered artificial respiration to an 8-year old girl who had been pulled from the lake nearly drowned and she was conscious and sitting up by the time doctors arrived.

Miss Bishop is one of a corps of 11 highway hostesses sponsored by the Phillips Petroleum company to help motor travelers and to inspect the certified clean rest rooms in Phillips 66 service stations. Motorists find themselves in an almost unbelievable number of difficulties and there is practically no such situation in which the highway hostess cannot be of assistance.

Red Cross Chairman Explains European War Relief Distribution

There have been inquiries here about the use to which the quota of money raised in Valley county last spring for European refugee relief has been put. The common fear is that our generous response is now but contributing to the national chairman of the organization, public concern all over the United States has been expressed that our money was not intended to aid the invader of their people. Chairman Davis explains that with the fall of France the Red Cross policy was revised and adjusted accordingly. The ship, McKeesport, which had sailed out of New York harbor soon after June 1 headed for France with supplies for hospital bases, medicines, ambulances, food and clothing urgently needed by the 8,000,000 refugees jamming into southern France. However, with the capture of Brest and Le Havre, Bilbao, Spain became an unpractical point for unloading, so the ship was wired instructions to sail for Marseilles in southern France. Its million-dollar cargo was used for refugees in unoccupied France.

The Red Cross has an advisory committee in Europe which always makes the preliminary arrangements with passports and permits across frontiers and through blockades. They succeeded in getting passage for relief into conquered Poland last December after considerable delay with German authorities because the Red Cross insists on having such relief administered by its own officials. The organization feels that only in this way is it assured that those in need really receive the supplies allocated to them. With the exception of Poland, however, Nazi Germany has insisted that their own authorities can take care of the relief needed in the occupied territories. It is part of the Nazi program that all within the realm will be provided for and so Mr. Davis was not surprised that they refused aid from the outside.

The American Red Cross now operates over three distinct areas, each given particular study: First, Great Britain where a Red Cross committee is handling the supplies sent over as rapidly as tonnage is available; second, Unoccupied France which is receiving American relief from headquarters at Marseilles and which is having most of the refugees out of German-controlled France pushed upon them, as Germany will not assume that burden; third, German-occupied territories which are only Poland under the quarter-million dollar appropriation for relief in December, and the immediate territory around Paris where only children are being fed from Red Cross supplies sent out by way of Geneva.

Mr. Davis wished to point out particularly that none of the supplies have been interfered with by any government or diverted from the needy for whom the supplies were intended. He wishes to reassure us that the Red Cross realizes the American public is anxious on this score and that all possible safeguards are taken as our committees abroad carry on the work.

Over 3000 certificates of filing of chattel mortgages were issued in 1939. Titles for all government seed and feed loans were examined and certified. Burwell People See 5 Carloads Mashed Potatoes Floor of Fackler Grading and Washing Plant Collapses, No Workmen Injured.

Burwell—(Special)—The biggest mess of mashed potatoes central Nebraska ever saw resulted Thursday noon when the floor of Glow Fackler's potato grading and washing plant collapsed.

Sixty carloads of potatoes have been shipped from here this season and nearly as many have been moved to markets by truck.

Vernon Linn has shipped 45 of the cars loaded here. Mr. Linn urges farmers to get their potatoes dug and marketed as quickly as possible as the price is dropping.

Among fine potato yields reported is that of Henry Boushal, whose field yielded 202 sacks weighing 100 pounds each of No. 1 tubers per acre and C. W. Hughes' field which produced 110 bushels of field run potatoes per acre.

Peppermint and Spearmint Would Thrive Here, Be Fine Cash Crop for Farmers, Lawler Believes

Ord Catholic Priest Is Back from 7,000 Mile Trip; Tells Ord Rotarians About It

Peppermint and spearmint as possible cash crops for Loup Valley farmers were suggested by Rev. M. A. Lawler, pastor of the Ord Catholic church, in the course of an interesting talk about his 7,000 mile trip through the east, delivered before the Ord Rotary club Monday evening.

In Indiana and Michigan, Father Lawler told Rotarians, much land was devoted to raising peppermint and spearmint, which require only a clay soil to thrive. The crops look much like alfalfa and are harvested in the same manner, he said.

During the World war farmers there received as high as $32 per liquid pound for peppermint oil, said Father Lawler, but the present price is $2.30 per liquid pound. Spearmint oil brings $2.00 per liquid pound.

Much of the Ord priest's vacation was spent with relatives at his boyhood home in Wilmington, Del., headquarters of the vast duPont chemical and textile empire. He was told by a friend of the family who has for 25 years been private chauffeur for Pierre duPont that there are more than 200 duPonts known to him.

A visit to Atlantic City was another treat enjoyed by Father Lawler. He was there on the hottest day of the summer and literally thousands of people crowded the beach. The most automobiles he ever saw in his life were seen on July 4 when driving from Detroit to Cleveland, the Ord man said.

Father Lawler came back convinced that the United States is far better prepared for war than newspaper reports have indicated. "It seems to me that the east coast is absolutely impregnable," he said.

Change in County Government Sought

Petitions were handed to County Clerk Ign. Klimka by Ralph W. Norman last evening for filing, asking for a submission to the voters of a proposition to change the form of county government. Mr. Klimka stated this morning: "Ralph Norman handed these papers to me last night, saying 'Otto Radil gave me these and asked me to have them filed'."

The petition reads: "We, the undersigned electors of the County of Valley, the State of Nebraska, hereby request that the question of the discontinuance of Township Organization in said county be submitted to the voters of the county at the next general election to be held therein."

There is no information as to who circulated the petitions, other than as stated above. They contain a total of 397 names, which is more than the required ten per cent of the total vote cast at the last general election, 3,835. If all names are legal there is no reason why the petition should not be voted upon, and Mr. Klimka will see that it appears on the ballot.

In some cases at least, it is required that the correct address appear after the name of each individual petitioner, and this was not done in the petitions, except in a very few cases. If this should invalidate the petitions, there will still be time to make them legal, as they can be filed up to 30 days before the election in November.

Games Tuesday Decided

The last half of the softball season ended officially last Tuesday evening, but, since two teams, the Chanticleers and Cold Storage, were tied for first and second, and the other two, Douthits and Dr. Peppers, were tied for third and fourth, two games were played last night to determine the position of the teams.

Winners For Last Half

In the first game the Chanticleers with Harry McBeth in the box, defeated the Cold Storage and Vernon Nay by a score of 10 to 9. Nay was touched for 11 hits and McBeth for 12. The Chanticleers contributed 12 errors and the Cold Storage 3. High spots were a home run by H. Christensen and 3-base and 2-base hits by Misko, Jr., for the Chanticleers, and a home run by Jorgensen and a 2-base hit by Misko, Sr., for the Cold Storage.

In the second game the Douthits and Russell Jensen won over the Dr. Peppers and Paul Adamek by a score of 4 to 3. The high point of the game was a home run by Jerry Fryzek of the Dr. Peppers in the second inning with none on. The game ended after 4 1/2 innings found the Douthits ahead.

The standing of the teams for the second half is as follows: The Chanticleers won 5 and lost 2; the Cold Storage won 4 and lost 3; the Douthits won 3 and lost 4; and the Dr. Peppers won 2 and lost 5. Next Tuesday evening the Chanticleers will play the Cold Storage, winners of the first half, for the season championship, and the other two teams will play a preliminary game.

ANOTHER WHITE CROSS

Another cross has been placed in Valley county. These are placed at the scene of a fatal accident, not only in memory of the one who lost his life there, but also a grim warning to all who pass that way that all too often Death rides behind the steering wheel.

Another family circle has been broken, and another life of high potential value to the community, state and nation has been snuffed out. We wonder why these things can be, yet man himself devised this instrument of pleasure, convenience and at times of death.

MEDICAL FACTS

Sponsored by
4-COUNTY MEDICAL SOCIETY

Cryotherapy. That sounds somewhat like a swear-word. Frozen sleep is the more popular name for this kind of treatment.

In 1939, doctors Lawrence W. Smith and Temple Fay, of Philadelphia, published their studies on the effects of temperature on the growth of cells in the animal body.

These doctors found the temperatures of the tissues in the extremities of the body, especially below the elbows and in the mouth, to be much lower than in the trunk.

This difference amounted to from 12 to 22 degrees Fahrenheit. In the different segments of the trunk the temperature variation was less but that segment containing the breast was usually warmer than the others.

Cancer seldom develops primarily below the elbow and knee. It is most common in the parts of the body that are the warmest.

This led these doctors to surmise that temperature had a distinct relationship to the rate of cell growth, especially in cancer and other malignant tumors.

Acting on this conclusion, they devised means of refrigerating cancerous growths, either locally where the patient was, or generally, so that the whole body was involved in the fall in temperature.

This has come to be known as frozen sleep or "cryotherapy."

In the refrigeration of the whole body of the patient, a state of artificial hibernation is produced, in which the processes of life are reduced to a minimum.

The action of the bowel and kidneys stops and the patient's condition greatly resembles that of the hibernating animal.

Cancer cells do not stand this low temperature as well as the normal body cells. They stop growing and many of them are destroyed.

When the patient is allowed to come out of the frozen sleep, the tumor is usually much smaller and the pain has largely or entirely disappeared.

So far, however, some of the sturdier cancer cells have survived and, in time, the tumor has resumed its destructive growth.

Therefore, although this piece of work has taught us a great deal about cancer, and serves to relieve the symptoms and prolong life, it cannot be considered as a cure for this dreaded disease.

BACK FORTY

By J.A. Kovanda

It takes more than drouths to discourage Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Barber of North Loup when preparing their annual Valley county crops display booth for the state fair.

Winners of third place for three consecutive years, they are trucking an exhibit to Lincoln next week that will be bigger and better; one which they hope will rank best in Nebraska for 1940.

About thirty counties compete in the central division, which includes Valley county.

The Barbers raise nearly everything for the exhibit on some vacant lots in North Loup. By everything we refer to a few hundred varieties of crops—a row of this and a row of that.

No where else could the visitor find such products as endive, cowpeas, flax, brocoli, buckwheat, okra and Siberian millet growing side by side. Nor would he see folks threshing small grains out by rubbing them over a washboard, to keep them pure.

The crops are seeded, cultivated and harvested by hand. This year the Barbers saved their plantings by going out and bringing in irrigation water after four weeks of dry weather had caused some damage.

The Barbers work hard at their hobby and are expert exhibitors. For example, two years ago they entered 37 corn samples and brought back 35 state premiums, mostly firsts and seconds.

Their house is a regular museum of grain and forage specimens.

Perhaps no one has done more to advertise Valley county than "Doug" Barber and his wife, and with a little help they could show our county to the top. For instance, their oats samples are not very good this summer.

Premium money is the sole means of financing this exhibit and merely pays the expenses of taking it to Lincoln, so when service medals are handed out, remember the Barbers.

where he came from. Because of the smallness of the business nobody felt like reporting him to the authorities. Being a stranger, he doubtless sold more shoestrings than any local man could, however needy he was.

There are three reasons why a man should be peddling shoestrings; first, he might not be able to work if he had a job; second, he might not be able to find a job, since it is a known fact that older men find it very difficult to secure employment; third, he might be of the kind who would not work if he had a job.

A man unable to work or unable to find work might be deserving of encouragement, but a man who is too lazy to work should be shunned. There is no way of knowing in what classification such a man belongs. Perhaps after all, the best way to solve the problem is to let charity, if such it is, begin at home.

continued to feed my turkeys that way and I am convinced now it is a true discovery."

City of Beautiful Gardens. Since my mention of the beautiful gardens in the southwest part of North Loup, many others about town have asked me to stop and see their place too. The principal reason those places look better than some of the others is that they had irrigation water both last year and this, while other sections have only had it since June of this year or later.

Regardless, I am making a personal prediction that in the course of a year or two, North Loup will be one of the most beautiful towns in this part of the state. There seems to be a contest now among many as to who has the most beautiful flowers, but I am not going to try to be a judge as to that.

Besides those mentioned last week, William Stine has a pretty place, so has Bert Sayre, Gifford Hutchins, Mrs. Earlo Babcock, Joe Fisher (those two do not have irrigation except with a hose), Gus Eisele, Hub Thorngate, George Mayo, Cecil Knapp, Bud Knapp, Ed Knapp, Irby Sheldon, Eddie Davis, Will Shultz, Vern Robbins, Roy Hudson, Mills Hill, Irvin Thelin (his is in the making but it will turn out a winner) and many others too numerous to recall right now.

It is wonderful what a little irrigation water will do to a flower garden.

We Hate to Lose Them. It is with regret for those of us left that such people as William Worrell and Jess and Orin Manchester are leaving the country. Jess has spent a lifetime on the farm he is now leaving. He is seventy years old (so they say) and is going to Illinois to live with his son Darrel.

According to my wife, who was raised in the Davis Creek neighborhood where Worrells once lived, they came to this country about thirty-two years ago, and my wife says, at that time, they were poor as crows.

They not only raised a family of fine children but became and are now considered one of the wealthiest couples in that section of the country. They did this by hard work, good management and good farming; not by speculation.

He owns three quarters of fine land, well improved, grain livestock and machinery all without debts, but the drouths the last few years have so discouraged him that he is going to a land where it rains, he says, regardless of his holdings here.

We all wish them better luck in their new home and are saddened that they are leaving us.

Post Script. P. S. My wife informs me I'll get into trouble over this piece. She says there are a lot more pretty places in North Loup I did not mention.

Gravity Feeder. Art Hutchins, in soliciting business north of Horace, ran on to a man with a nice bunch of turkeys and the following is the story he told Art:

"Two years ago I raised what I thought was a nice bunch of beef type turkeys. I fed them the best I knew how and about Thanksgiving time I took them to Grand Island to sell and there I was disappointed for I had fed them all the good stuff I could buy and all they would eat.

"I stood around while some other men brought turkeys to sell and after while there came a bunch of very fat ones. I at once drummed up a conversation asking this man what he fed and so forth but found he fed very little different food than I had been feeding.

"Finally he asked how I fed my birds and the reply was, 'Oh I just put the feed in a trough on the ground and let them eat all they want.'"

"There is the trouble," he said. "You should put the feed up about as high as a fifty gallon barrel so the turkey has to stretch his neck up to eat. Then the food slides down his throat by gravity and consequently is less work for him. The turkey cannot swallow easily and he does not like to keep his head bobbing up and down to eat."

"This seemed like a joke to me but he insisted it was true, so I went home and fixed my feeders up in the air as I had been told and I swear my turkeys ate half again more than they had been eating from the ground. I

A FEW THINGS TO THINK ABOUT

War of Nerves
Post Script

War of Nerves. This war in Europe is hard on us folks afar off here in comparative safety. So anxious are we all that someone will stop Hitler in his ravages, that we are saddened and distressed when he wins, and he seems to win most of the time.

One woman said the reports so bothered her that she ceased to listen to the radio. Another person told me he listened in the mornings but not at night. If he listened before going to bed he was sure to awaken before morning and lie worrying about it all.

Another person I heard of lost his appetite and became weak and weary. Wondering if his ticker was out of commission, he went to the doctor who gave him an inspection. The doctor concluded it was only worry and this doctor said worry would do more than that if the fellow did not stop. He said he had known of people going insane and becoming sick and eventually dying from worry alone.

This is happening right here in America, thousands of miles away from the scene of battle. Let us suppose we lived in London, or in Belgium, or Holland or France, where we were in constant danger of bombing or of invasion, or we had sons who were flyers or in the army.

This war of nerves is one of the parts of actual war. It is said that many Spanish children were so upset after their war that it is feared they will never recover. This is the reason England has attempted to remove their children.

After we have visioned living in Europe under the fear of catastrophe any minute, let us suppose we were the leaders of the nation or of the army or the airplanes who are under constant pressure to direct their forces so things will turn out the best. These leaders must have a special cast from disposition, fueled with anti-worry.

Sorry to have to bring up these revolting subjects. It is just a forewarning of what we can expect when England is whipped (if they are). It is ridiculous to think Hitler, with the disposition he has proven, will pass up such a fine plum as the United States, with her fertile fields, her mammoth factories, her rich stores of gold, her small army, her loose and dilly-dallying government.

A Fat Plum. I'll admit those last three words are bad. We will admit too, now, that the dilly-dally government of Chamberlain and Daladier were bad. Had England listened to Churchill a year sooner; had they started preparing a year sooner for this mad man, Hitler, they would have had a better chance today. Military experts give them now less than a fifty-fifty chance of holding the aggressor from their land, and the punishment they are taking is beyond words. Our turn will come, if England is whipped, as sure as the sun sets.

And still our congress dilly-dallies over trivial affairs, holding up legislation, filibustering in a way. Why object to peacetime training, to be prepared when the mad man makes his venture? Why object to whittling a big stick to back up our big talk. With an army now like Holland's (it lasted only three days) with a capital on the sea coast virtually unprotected, with no bomb shelters, with practically no anti-aircraft guns, still our congress dilly-dallies. Our democracy is wonderful and we want to keep it, but it surely is not efficient.

Would it not be better to talk gently and swing a big stick than to talk big and swing a feather duster?

This is a photo of Miss Vesta Olive Twombly daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ord Twombly, once of Ord, but now of Meadville, Pa. She ranked second there in a class of 50 in 8th grade examinations this spring. Since all instructors there must be college graduates, this speaks well for the quality of instruction she received in Valley county.

Miss Aldean Swanson went to Hyannis Thursday to spend the week end with her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. George Barber.—Mrs. Neil Petersen and Mrs. Pete Wilson and daughter Jo Ann of Ord spent Monday afternoon with Mrs. Wilson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. N. Criss.—Sherman County Times.

A few people have expressed the same opinion here. We all certainly enjoy booster trips, and feel that the fair is not complete without them.

The Scotia Register says that Greeley county is to have two pheasant seasons this year. The first season, which covers the entire state, with the exception of sanctuaries, starts at 8 a. m. Once again Ronald R. Furse, editor of the Clay county Sun, puts his brainstorms into words. Here is the latest storm: A bulletin from the FSA says that participation in the sanitation program has resulted in improved landlord-tenant relationships. There is nothing like a good party to get a landlord and his tenant close together.

The Wolbach Messenger: Last week Paul Anderson completed work on a dam on his property. The dam is the beginning of a reclamation project to save his land from further destruction by water.

GOOD BUSINESS

Everyone was content, not so long ago, to travel by horse. Business, too, one might say, was in the horse era.

But today, the best car often seems too slow, and today's business does not wait for tomorrow.

++ Something Different ++

Truly different was the part of Minnesota I saw a few days ago when the H. D. Leggett took the E. C. Leggett for a trip across the state east and then north along the shore of Lake Superior. Lake Superior lies eastward, north-east to southwest, you remember? Thousands of turkeys, so many of them their red wattles looked like pink flowers... that's one thing different. Burned ground, peat, ground, where the rich, mossy peat soil several inches thick had burned away in a forest fire and even weeds were left tough and leaching for years to come. Potatoes in fields blooming to the horizon. Lovely flowers, some I knew but more that I did not; tall mullen, bright gayfeather, green trillium, fields yellow-topped with golden rod, pinky pretty fireweed and scores of others too.

Signs that we fancied immensely, such as "Stop at Joe's Dream Cabins." One reading "War-it stinks. The Yanks are not coming." "Gitchee Gumee Lodge" ... remember your Hiawatha? Gitchee Gumee is reported to mean "shining big-sea water" in the Chippewa Indian language. Fun to say it, try it on your tongue and see.

Forests of feathery tamarack. Forests of shiny golden silver birch. Forests of cathedral spruce, otherwise known as Christmas trees. Forests of pine thick with blueberry underbrush and blueberry pickers. (How did they ever get the Indians out of all those trees?)

Duluth, attractive city of modernistic store fronts, streaked alongside the lake with rocky cliffs towering a few blocks away. Harbor is lands and water and rocks and pines, tangled together with many ore trains clattering on overhead tracks down to the docks. The aerial lift bridge, a cobweb of metalwork moved for big boats only. The beautiful homes as we drove north and east on the lakeshore boulevard, many new homes and a great deal of building going on in this land of iron mines. I suppose war means prosperity?

The pretty little city of Two Harbors where we were fascinated to see a boat almost as long as from here to North Loup as it loaded ore. The ore slid down chutes from a track far above where sat the little ore cars as thick as beads on a string. The pier so long that other boats were being loaded too. And double, for boats were being filled with ore on the other side of the dock at the same time. The sun sparkled the water, a lovely breeze blew, the grass and trees were extra green, the sight was beautiful.

Gooseberry State Park, full of large handsome buildings made by the C. C. C. boys of huge logs and thick granite blocks. And plenty more rock underfoot, for grass is lucky to have a few inches of soil under it here. The wild beauty of the lake as it crashed those rocks along the shore, the many trees, the beauty of a fried chicken picnic lunch which we tamed. Raspberries grow wild all over, like weeds do for us! The first of many water falls, each more wonderful than the last one.

The Split Rock Lighthouse, with foghorn. Gene and I sneaking cautiously toward the high rail to peek over and a-way down, when the biggest loudest bellow you ever heard with a scary snort on the end of it, boomed out beside us! We were about five feet from the thing and we tore out of there, oh boy! Next day I wanted to go up in the light house, and Gene's head and ears were still aching so I had to climb alone. A memorable view from the highest lighthouse in North America.

Me, continually amazed as we crossed a river every mile or two. Each of them scenic as it fell down the cliffs to reach the big lake. I never knew there could be so many rivers... they are rarities in Nebraska. Names were fanciful... one was called the Temperance... because it was the only river without a natural bar at its mouth where it entered Lake Superior.

Also continually amazed at the whimsical names they do think up for cabin camps, which lined the road and the shore. A cabin hid behind each tree, almost it seemed. And the mighty claims their owners claimed for them.

Scrambling to see the falls, sometimes up, sometimes down. Manitou Falls, the wildest and most gorgeous, worth the long climb up and down and around and up and down again. With Gene and Kerry and I puffing like three switch engines by the time we regained the car.

Mother Leggett and I, ohing and ohing as we passed trees red with pin cherries. The landscape was pink with them it seemed. And those men... promising we'd stop and pick some as we came back. At that, we saw so many pin cherries it just didn't seem much worth while to start trying to pick them!

And Grand Marais, high spot of the trip. A blue harbor like a story book picture, sheltered and round and so blue, with many low weathered fishermen's shacks on the patchwork docks, and many sizes of boats tied up, many a net wound on a big square spool to dry. A bit of a fishy smell, yet a very fresh, invigorating atmosphere, everyone friendly, a good healthy brogue to the speech. A touch of Swedish or Danish, or Norwegian, lots of calmness and good humor to them, every one.

The cathedral pines, rising out of the fog into dozens of perfect spires... a beautiful, never-to-be-forgotten sight. —Irma.

IT HAPPENED IN ORD.

John Gaika, jr., got busy last week and made up a checkerboard cut puzzle. He cut out all the pieces and mixed them up and then spent most of the day, trying to get it put back together again. He stayed with it until he got the job done, however.

The answer to what is wrong with the rising generation might be found in a little incident that happened last week. I. C. Clark, who is past 70, was seen with his wagon about loaded with ashes, ect., about the time the morning whistle blew. This country was built on early rising and hard work, and perhaps that is what it needs now.

Saw a bunch of the boys seeing who could kick the highest at the Milford corner. Jimmy Hoisington had beaten Louie Pierce and Solly Brox and some of the other fellows, and about that time along came Eddie Timmerman, and in spite of the fact that he was the youngest one of the outfit, he kicked higher than anybody.

A young man from out of town, who had not been in Ord for a long time, was somewhat bewildered last week when he saw the tall grass around the courtyard. He asked, "Has Ord quit using the court house? It looks like a wilderness." He was told that he should have seen it a year ago, when it looked like a desert. Several Ordites have confessed that they have had an almost overpowering urge to lie down on the grass and roll over and over, just to see what it felt like.

Ord, Sargent Teams Played Here Sunday

Two Sargent softball teams came to Ord Sunday evening to contest with two teams from Ord. Russell Jensen pitched the first game, and was in fine form throughout, holding the visitors to 4 hits and 1 run, while the Ord team collected 6 hits for 4 runs. Except for a bad first inning for Sargent, the game was fine all through the game.

Vernon Nay was entirely off form in the second game and allowed 9 hits for 11 runs before he was relieved by Jensen in the sixth. Ord tied the score in the sixth. Sargent got one in their half of the seventh. After two were down for Ord in the last of the seventh, a fly to left that should have been an out let in two runs to make the final score 13 to 12 in Ord's favor.

of 1000 persons, but there were far more standing than were seated. The crowd was very much interested in the entire program and all speakers were met with rounds of applause.

Immediately following the program the watermelon committee got busy distributing melon to the several thousand persons who called for it. The truck containing the melons was located in the street west of Aulsebrook building and a crew of men were kept busy until the melons were all gone.

The closing event of the day, the pavement dance, was held in a fenced-off space on the south side of the square. A spotlight played on the orchestra from the top of the Capron building and helped light the space. A group of local musicians formed the orchestra and the music was all that could be desired.

Due to the fact that dozens of persons aided in one way or another in making the day's celebration a success, it would be impossible to mention all of them by name. Postmaster Alfred L. Clarion Goes Modern; Installs a Linotype

It was somewhat of a shock to receive the Taylor Clarion last week and observe that the hand set type had been replaced by machine work. A linotype recently purchased from the Bassett Leader has been installed and Ivan Smith is learning how to use it.

The Tribune printery was one of the oldest in the state to set type by hand. It was started in 1833 at Kent, Nebr., by Charles L. Phillips, and D. A. Gard received the first copy of the paper fresh off the press. The Clarion moved in 1884 to the new county seat at Taylor.

It was first known as the Loup County Clarion, but it became the Taylor Clarion when it moved. Editors of the Clarion through the years were Wm. Croughwell, J. B. Lashbrook, W. J. Tostevin, Evans Bros., Wm. Evans, E. Andrews, A. K. Holmes and the present owner, Thurman A. Smith.

—Mrs. Ruth Madron, who has been in Ord since last Dec. 1, left Saturday morning for her home at Franklin, Va. She said she hoped to be back for another visit in the spring. She is a sister of Mrs. J. K. Rashaw and Mrs. Kathryn Long.

Wickard Will Speak in Nebr. August 27

Farm and town families from Nebraska, Iowa, Missouri and Kansas are expected to fill Fall City's spacious auditorium August 27 to hear an address by Claude R. Wickard, United States under-secretary of agriculture.

Mr. Wickard who has been nominated by President Roosevelt to succeed Henry A. Wallace as Secretary of Agriculture, is scheduled to talk at 2 p. m. on a program by Richardson county farmers and Falls City civic groups.

Chairman of the committee on arrangements is Amos Mendenhall, veteran Richardson county farmer and chairman of the county AAA committee. He will introduce Mr. Wickard.

"Mr. Wickard's address will be of interest to all of us in this agricultural area, whether we live on the farm or in town," Mr. Mendenhall said. "All of us have a stake in the agricultural problem resulting from war and the situations which will develop after the war comes to an end. We are concerned, too, with the part we can play in the national defense program. These are the subjects which Mr. Wickard will discuss."

Well known to farmers throughout the middlewest, Mr. Wickard has a background which includes nearly a quarter of a century of active farm operation, a technical training in agriculture and six and one-half years of administrative work in the AAA Farm Program.

He was born on a Carroll county, Indiana, farm that has been in the Wickard family since the 1840's. With the assistance of his father, Mr. Wickard continues to operate the same farm on a general grain and livestock basis.

His first contact with AAA came in 1932, when he was an Indiana delegate to the National Corn-Hog Conference at Des Moines, Ia. He later served successively as assistant chief and chief of the corn-hog section of AAA. Following inauguration of the agricultural conservation program in 1936, he was named assistant director of the North Central Division of AAA, which includes Nebraska and nine other corn belt states. He became division director in 1936.

As director of the North Central Division, Mr. Wickard stressed farmer-administration of the AAA, and has been chiefly responsible for developing the effective farmer-committee set-up which now exists in the middlewest.

There Were Two Irishmen—

By J. Y. BARBER (McClure Syndicate—WNU Service.)

SEUMAS GAVAN was Number One man and the only Irishman in the fourth ward—and there wasn't the whisper of a doubt about that. On Monday he lamented the need of hiring a dago to tend bar for him in his South street speakeasy, but by Saturday he was glad of it. Irishmen aren't temperamentally suited for co-operative occupations; they won't do as they're told. He was glad his blue-eyed Kathleen never argued with her father.

"Way back in the ancestry there may have been some weak strain that accounted for her passivity. It made Seumas more conscious than ever that he was the only Irishman in the ward. The only man of intellect and discernment, he'd almost say, except for that scavenger of the streets, Adolphus Gonwercz, whose insufferable exposures appeared now and again between the scrofulous lines of the local paper.

"'Twas a black day indeed when Kathleen met Adolphus Gonwercz in the bar where Kathleen had no business at all. And a curse on the day when she came to her kind old father, him that was nearly killed with worry over trying to get a respectable liquor license, to ask his good will to their marriage.

"He's not the man," Seumas said abruptly.

"How, not the man?" Kathleen said, too quietly even for her.

"He's the sort," said Seumas, "who writes about people that have died of murder. And it's insulting, he is, when he blackguards some worthy citizen in public life."

Seumas knew he would have no trouble with gentle Kathleen.

She would not, she said, let him alone. She said why she wouldn't and it took her five minutes to say it.

"Bu-but, he's a drinking man, he is," Seumas said with appeal. "He drinks like a fish and he be no good at all."

"Aye," said Kathleen, "and that coming from you! May God have mercy on your soul for the narrowness of your heart. You've little to do to speak of that when it's your own grog he drinks. And it isn't true that he's no good. He's the best newspaper man in the town. And I like him. I love him!"

The debate had reached a point where Seumas realized he would have to assert himself. He leaned forward in his chair. He hissed softly. "I could break him. You know my power when I want to use it. Fringe him! How would you like that?"

But Kathleen never moved. She looked at her father boldly. "Aye," she said. "Well, you can play at that game—if it's a fight you're looking for!" And with that she ran out of the room and out of the house and he didn't see her for days. The shame of it!

"I want to see her just try and marry that spalpeen," Seumas said to himself all day on Friday. Customers heard him as he whispered under his breath. They thought he was reciting the list of witnesses who would appear when he came up for his license hearing on the morrow and they let him concentrate.

But Seumas had forgotten all about the hearing until his attorney came down and took him to court. His reception there lulled him to contentment. Mr. Gavan was well thought of up town in certain circles. Not for long, however, did he smile benignly this way and that. His bright green eyes froze to the witness box. For there in the middle of everything sat Adolphus Gonwercz.

Not being familiar with the expediences of the newspaper business Seumas didn't know that Adolphus had merely wandered in there in the course of his routine and that in ten minutes he would be discovered by a court attache and thrown out on his neck. Seumas' pain was so great that he beat himself upon the chest. Could Kathleen have been so angry then to put this notorious exposer onto him?

"I'm going home," he said to his attorney. "I'm sick now. No, I don't care about the license; to hell with it." And so Mr. Gavan went home feeling the power ooze out of him with every step of the way.

Evening came to Seumas Gavan in the little office that he maintained upstairs. He sat sullenly beside the speaking tube that connected his office with the bar and he wished that he had anticipated Kathleen being at least half an Irishman. That was bitter, bitter! It made him very sorry. So absorbed was he that he failed to hear the buzzer until its third buzz.

The bartender's voice floated dimly to him through the tube: "Kathleen's come home!"

"Aye," Seumas said noncommittally. He was abruptly the old Seumas and he had the look of a hawk over a calf. It would be now and he would be brief but annihilating. The bartender took up a familiar refrain:

"Adolphus Gonwercz wants to know if he's good for your daughter—and he wants to congratulate you on getting your license today, sir!" It was incredible!

"Ha—have I got it?" "You have!" "He is!"

Riverdale Defeats Ord in Loup Valley Contest

Behind the superb pitching of Old Timer "Dutch" Clement, his team mates from Riverdale collected enough runs against Ord at North Loup Sunday to assure them second place in the Loup Valley league for 1940. North Loup is already safely in first place, and Riverdale would have to lose all her remaining games before Ord could climb back into second place. The final score was 11 to 9 for Riverdale.

With Ernie Piskorski pitching for Ord, it was youth against age and experience, and youth lost. Except for one inning, the third, Clement was invincible. In that inning a combination of 6 hits, 2 walks, 3 errors and 4 stolen bases accounted for 8 runs, but even that was not enough. Clement struck out 11 men, cutting down the last two in the ninth to stop a threatened rally.

For Ord Piskorski struck out 7 and allowed 11 walks, 5 hits and 9 runs. Allen Zikmund went in in the eighth, allowed 1 hit, 2 runs, 2 walks and struck out 3 men. In the third, with Tatlow, Fox and Dahlin hitting ahead of him, Zikmund lined out a home run to clear the bases. Fox connected for 2 hits, both in the third, and Piskorski also got a couple.

The Happy Dozen Pinochle club will meet Tuesday at the Clyde Baker home.

The Sew and So club meeting which was postponed last week, will be held Thursday at the home of Mrs. Clarence Davis.

Oakley Hather Injured in Ord-Cotesfield Game

Oakley Hather, second baseman for the Ord All-Star softball team and considered one of Ord's best players, was badly injured in the game at Cotesfield Thursday evening. He caught the ball thrown to cut off a man running into second base, and was on his right knee when the ball was caught.

The runner could not stop in time and ran over Hather, the cleats of his shoe scraping across the front of Hather's right thigh and cutting a gash that required 8 stitches to close. The wound is healing nicely but Oakley will play no more softball this season.

The picture shown last week was that of Miss Louise Bartunek. Perhaps more readers would know her under her present name of Mrs. Jerry Petska. Mrs. Harry McBeth reported who it was first, and Mrs. Warren Lincoln phoned in the answer about an hour later. Above are shown early day photos of two people living in Ord. Can you tell who they are?

We Hate to Brag...

—but really we think we're entitled to brag just a little about the quality of Beef we sell. The fact that many customers compliment us on it maybe entitles us to brag a little. Anyway, here goes:

Our market sells only one grade of Beef and its fully corn-fattened right here near Ord by Valley county's best feeders, is home-butchered and properly aged under modern refrigeration. It is tender Beef, tasty Beef, and we can give you any cut you like, just as you like it.

The next time you want steak, a roast or any other Beef cut we ask you to try ours. We'll have another steady customer we know.

Close Out NEW AND USED Automobiles

Here's the situation: We are loaded up with new 1940 model Plymouths and good late model used cars, as well as many older used cars. The 1941 model Plymouths have been announced and we will receive a shipment before very many weeks. WE MUST SELL OUR PRESENT STOCK OF CARS, BOTH NEW AND USED, TO RAISE CASH! This is the chance of a lifetime for you to buy a good automobile at practically your own price. Note the list below, come in and see these cars and what you can buy them for. But COME QUICK, or we'll be forced to sell them to used car buyers from the west coast.

3 1940—Model Plymouths

Two of these are 2-doors, never been driven, now on our show room floor just as they were unloaded from the railroad car. Come in now and buy them at practically wholesale cost. Also 1 4-door demonstrator, very low mileage, at a close-out price that makes us shudder when we think about it.

Tractor Bargain

We have one R-C model Allis-Chalmers tractor, used very little and in perfect shape, which we are prepared to sacrifice at less than wholesale cost for quick sale. See it.

3 1939—Model Plymouths

One is a deluxe 4-door, blue color, new tires, very clean and completely reconditioned; another is a deluxe 2-door, gray color, reconditioned; and the third is a blue Road King model with new tires, reconditioned. Other dealers have quoted higher prices on 1938 models than we ask for these now.

Notes From the VALLEY COUNTY FARM BUREAU

By C. C. Dale

Poultry Field Day.

Eggs with all of their variations are to be featured on the annual Poultry Field Day program at the College of Agriculture in Lincoln on Thursday, Sept. 26 according to information received at the county agent's office here.

Every year farm men and women who want to learn the best methods of improving their farm flocks of chickens attend this gathering and all are being invited to be on hand this year.

The eggs are going to be literally put under the "microscope" on the program to determine their content. In addition, the problem of proper grading and marketing will be discussed by poultrymen from all parts of the state. Dr. Ruth Leverton of the College of Agriculture will discuss, "Eggs as the chemist sees them."

Farm Facts and Fun Returns.

The weekly radio program of the extension service known as Farm Facts and Fun returns to the air on Saturday, Aug. 31, after a "summer vacation." It is heard by many local people who will welcome the announcement of its return.

As has been customary for the past two years, the broadcast will be heard each Saturday afternoon over a state-wide network of six radio stations. It will again originate in the studios of WOV, Omaha. Other stations carrying the program are WJAG, Norfolk; KMMI, Grand Island; KORN, Fremont; KGFW, Kearney; and KGNF, North Platte.

The opening program of the current year on Aug. 31, however, will come direct from the Nebraska State Fair and will present a resume of 4-H club happenings.

Pasturing Sudan Grass.

As most farmers know, Sudan grass makes an excellent pasture usually through the dry weeks of July and August. They also know that pasturing Sudan brings some anxious moments, particularly in times of extreme drought.

Extension dairymen at the College of Agriculture say, however, that if a few precautionary measures are taken, there is little danger of losing animals pastured on Sudan until it is 18 inches high, especially in dry weather.

It is relatively safe to graze when the grass is less than this height if it is a pale green or slightly yellowish in color. The deep green Sudan grass, it seems, has proved to be fatal under certain dry conditions.

A hungry herd, however, should not be turned on fresh grass particularly sudan pasture after a long, dry spell. Rather the animals should be filled with dry feed before turning them out. Feeding of 2 pounds of corn and cob meal per cow per day or a feed of silage is suggested as a precaution against Sudan poisoning.

Early Sugar Beet Planting.

Sugar beet growers in the Loup Valleys are watching an experiment in early planting that may mean extra money in their pockets by increasing yields and thus cutting cost of production.

The experiment is in progress at Scottsbluff, and is under the supervision of S. B. Nuckols, of the Federal Bureau of Plant Industry. Last year the results of the test of early planting were so encouraging that many farmers decided to try the plan on a larger scale this year. It is estimated that more than 20,000 acres were planted prior to April 15 as opposed to practically none the year before. During March, growers in the North Platte Valley planted more than 1,000 acres of sugar beets, setting a new record for earliness.

For many years Nuckols has been running tests to determine the most favorable date for planting sugar beets in western Nebraska. In general practice, plantings beginning about the middle of April have been favored by farmers. For the past 3 years, however, Nuckols has tried plots planted as early as March 16. In both 1933 and 1934, the March plantings gave big increases in yield of sugar per acre over plantings made in mid-April. Last year the planting on March 20 produced more than twice as much sugar as a planting a month later, because late plantings suffered severely from water shortage at germination time.

The biggest risk in early planting is the danger of a heavy frost killing emerging seedlings. The sugar beet plant after it is above ground and established is comparatively frost hardy and withstands the usual light frosts of spring. If severe freezing should hit the seedlings as they come above ground, the farmer will lose about $2.50 per acre—the cost of seed and seedling—but he can usually replant by mid-April, the customary time. Results of the experiments so far indicate that the increased yields from early planting may more than offset the risks. However, several years of tests by commercial farmers will be needed to give the answer.

Calves Put On Weight.

With heat and fly molestation somewhat reduced, 4-H baby beef club members in Valley county are reporting much improved feeding conditions.

However, the club members know that baby calves must be comfortable to "do well" and so they do not depend altogether upon nature to supply such favorable conditions. Most of the boys and girls have selected the coolest shed or stall available for their calves during the day.

If the shed is low, a straw loft might be built in to break the sun's heat. Many of the 4-H club members here are turning their animals into a lot for exercise or training in the evening when the temperature goes down.

Another thing the 4-H club members have found is that calves eat better if they are fed the very first thing in the morning and again late in the evening with a light noon feed. Then, too, calves which have tired of shelled corn will often take to coarsely cracked corn and like even better a little bran or whole oats mixed in to lighten the feed and give variety.

Barley, however, is a little more difficult to feed. It should be coarsely ground and worked into the ration gradually and careful watch should be made for digestive disturbances or bloat.

Four-H club members here also are finding that protein feeds such as soybean meal or linseed meal are unusually cheap compared to grain. They will probably be fed generously from now on until show time.

If the calves are receiving alfalfa, the amount of hay should be limited during the finishing period and a pound to a pound and a half of the high protein feeds should be fed daily. If no alfalfa is fed, about 1½ to 2 pounds of high protein feed can be fed to advantage. Often a nice coat of hair can be produced if a little mineral or molasses is fed. But the molasses should not be fed in the calf barn as it attracts too many flies.

There are 26 baby beves on feed in Valley county. They will be shown at the county fair, September 9-12.

OIL DRILLINGS IN NEBRASKA

This is the seventeenth of the series of articles concerning oil drillings in Nebraska. All information was compiled by research workers of the Nebraska Writers' Project, WPA, from old newspapers and from data supplied by the University of Nebraska.

Drilling for oil is usually a fascinating subject in any locality. It nearly always merits a great amount of publicity in newspapers. However, there is one drilling in Nebraska that received very little mention. On Feb. 27, 1919, the Antioch News, located in Sheridan county, stated that leasing of land for oil drilling purposes was going on in the region, but it was not until Sept. 6, 1921, that a well started just west of the town of Lakeside by the Lakeside Development company.

It is said that the Lakeside concern was sponsored by potash "magnates" who had acquired fortunes as a result of the wartime demand for the mineral. When the war came to an end, the owners of the Antioch potash fields found that they could no longer compete, at a profit, with other potash manufacturers unless a source of cheap fuel could be found. Therefore, they decided to sink a test well in an effort to locate a local oil supply.

Accounts of this drilling were carried in only one Nebraska newspaper, according to research workers of the Nebraska Writers' Project, WPA. Credit should be given to J. F. Blumer, of Lincoln, one of the men interested financially in the Lakeside drilling, for supplying additional information.

Expense was not spared in equipping this site with the finest rigging available, said the Alliance Herald for Aug. 9, 1921. A derrick 120 feet in height was erected and a Fullerton, Calif., drilling crew, headed by B. H. McKinley, was called in.

At the outset, visitors at the site became so numerous that the promoters erected large signs which stated the visitors were not welcome. The drilling operations were kept secret, the Herald at one time said that its estimate of the depth of the well was only guesswork. The well was sunk rapidly, a depth of 1200 feet being reached by Oct. 21, 1921, and on one occasion it was rumored that both gas and oil had been found. In November, the promoters and drillers came to disagreement and the latter were replaced by a crew from Wyoming. In August, 1922, at a depth of 3392 feet, it was decided to abandon the hole but plans were immediately laid for sinking another well. The second well was located about 600 feet from the first, and was spudded-in on Sept. 29, 1922. On Dec. 19, 1922, this attempt also proved unsatisfactory, so the rigging was dismantled and the site abandoned. The well had reached a depth of about 1500 feet. According to records this was the first drilling ever permitted on state school land.

Another drilling that received little publicity took place near Hayes Center in Hayes county in 1924. On Jan. 3, of that year, the Hayes Center Times-Republican stated that the Riverton Development company had spudded-in a well near town, but little is known concerning the drilling.

In May, 1923, the Ohio Oil company which had been making shallow core test drillings in southern Nebraska for some time, almost 100 in number, undertook the sinking of a deep test well on the old George Punroy homestead, seven miles southwest of Riverton. The site, which was a commonly referred to as the Avery well, was on the banks of Lohoff Creek. Drilling at the site did not continue long, however, for on July 14, 1923, the Hastings Daily Tribune stated that the derrick was to be "skidded" to another location 60 feet away. The second drilling was spudded-in a few days later and by Aug. 10, had gone down to a depth of 967 feet. A "showing" of oil was reported on that date. The depth on Sept. 8, was said to be 1640 feet, and the drillers were expecting an oil strike at any time. Oil apparently was not struck, however, for on April 2, 1929, the Tribune announced that after going to a depth of 4250 feet operations at the Riverton site were to cease. There was a rumor that oil had been struck and people were curious as to what the company really did encounter. Details of the drilling were not made public, however, and the well was capped and gradually ceased to be of current interest. M. J. Boyce, a familiar figure in Nebraska's oil history, drilled both of the Riverton holes.

On June 13, 1930, the thirty-first anniversary date of the tornado which wiped the town of Herman off the map with the loss of several lives, a farmer drilling a water well on the Frank farm, two miles north of town, struck a flow of natural gas which blew the pipe out of the ground and spouted mud and water 15 feet into the air. Noticing the smell of gas, the man threw a lighted match into the hole and immediately there was a spurt of flame. The gas burned from the hole for over five hours until it finally diminished to a small flame and then went out entirely. There was some talk of attempting to locate the main source of the gas but apparently nothing was done about it.

Although the exact date of the spudding-in of a well on the John Larsh farm, three miles east of Union, is not known, newspapers reported that drilling began some time in the spring of 1916. Judging from an account in the Plattsmouth Journal, the site was in an inaccessible location which necessitated the construction of a new road in order to transport equipment. On July 13, 1916, after drilling 900 feet, promoters of the well issued a plea for additional funds. Enough money was raised so that drilling activities could continue until Aug. 7, 1916, when the project was abandoned. The well was about 1200 feet in depth, and was drilled by the Union Oil company, of which C. H. Baker was president.

In 1930, the Petroleum Producers, Inc., composed largely of Omaha business men, began the first of a proposed series of core drillings within the city limits of Omaha. The Omaha World-Herald for June 14, 1930, stated that a test drilling was underway "literally in the back yard" of the C. E. Balbach home near 40th and Izard streets. Little is known of later developments. (To be continued)

The custodians have been busy all summer making necessary repairs and preparing the buildings for the opening day of school. Several rooms have been painted, a new floor placed in one room, and the boilers in each room repaired. In addition to their regular duties the custodians have attended a special school in their field of work during one week early in June.

There are a number of students who would like to work for their board and room, while attending high school, say school authorities, and anyone who plans to take a student to work during the school year may secure this list from the office of the superintendent. NYA work will be available for a limited number of pupils, and application for it may be made at the time of registration, although assignments will not be made until after school starts.

Starlite Revue of 1940 Engaged As a Co. Fair Feature

Chamber Takes Charge of the Program, Engages Talent; Date September 9 to 12.

Engagement of a company of 20 members to present a gorgeous revue known as "Starlite Revue of 1940," and arrangements made for other talent assures a splendid entertainment program for the Valley county fair, which will be held in Ord on September 9, 10, 11 and 12.

The fair board recently invited the Ord Chamber of Commerce to take charge of entertainment for the fair, and Chamber members last Thursday evening voted to do so, Dr. Glen Auble being appointed chairman of the general committee in charge. Arrangements to bring the Starlite Revue company here were announced Monday by Dr. Auble.

This is the finest, most up-to-date musical and dancing company that ever has appeared in Ord, promises Auble. At the Adams county fair in Hastings recently this show made a real hit, he says, and it will be brought to Ord intact. All new costumes, scenery and lighting equipment, a Hammond electric organ and other "props" not usually carried by a company offering music entertainment outdoors is used by the Starlite Revue. Joe Ahline and his sister are featured dancers, there is a fine blues singer, a dancing boys quartet and a girl chorus of 12 says Auble.

Entertainment at the fair, as lined up this week, includes both afternoon and evening shows for each day. On Tuesday, Sept. 10, the afternoon program will include music by the Ord band, free acts by The Rolling Rockets, a novelty skating team of two men and a girl, and a company of clowns, a baseball game between Ord and North Loup, a performance by Bill Fuss and his trained horse, and an exhibition of baton twirling by amateurs of central Nebraska. The evening program will be somewhat similar, with a softball game between Ord and Cotesfield taking the place of the afternoon baseball game. Grandstand admission will only be 10c to everyone, either afternoon or night.

Wednesday and Thursday afternoon programs will include concerts by the Arcadia and Comstock bands, specialty singings, dancing and vaudeville numbers by members of the Starlite Revue company, and performances by other specialty engaged acts. The evening programs both days will consist of complete presentations of The Starlite Revue, lasting 1 1/2 hours each evening. The fact that the company will have with it for accompaniment a Hammond electric organ, the first time such an instrument has been brought to the Loup valley region, adds interest to the program. There will be other features.

For the evening shows, chairs will be placed on the track between the grandstand and stage, and will be reserved at 50c each. Seats in Grandstand Section A will be reserved at 35c and Grandstand Sections B and C will be general admission seats at 25c for adults. Grade school children will be admitted to any non-reserved section at any program, either afternoon or evening, for only 10c.

R. Clare Clement, fair president, announces that a carnival company known as Magic-Empire Shows, will appear at the fair. This is a good company he says, and has nine rides, twenty shows and thirty concessions, making it the largest to appear in Ord in many years. Bob's dancing pavilion also will be on the grounds. Exhibits in all departments will be fine, superintendents believe, and particularly in the 4-H club department where cash prizes total $500. Judging and team demonstrations on mornings during the fair should attract many visitors.

The Ord Chamber of Commerce is planning booster trips for Saturday nights of this week and next week to help advertise the fair.

Fair Booster Trip to Be Held Sat., Aug. 31

Five towns to the north and west of Ord will be visited Saturday evening, Aug. 31, by boosters for the Valley county fair. The schedule follows: Burwell—7:30. Taylor—8:15. Sargent—8:45. Comstock—9:30. Arcadia—10:15.

A few minutes of entertainment will be given in each town while advertising matter is distributed through the crowd and placed in business houses.

Patent Papers Filed for Timing Apparatus

A. J. Auble received word recently that the papers for his "Apparatus For Time Watches" had been filed in the U. S. patent office, and in due time he will receive the patent papers on the invention. In the meantime the invention is protected and he can place it on the market without running the risk of having his ideas stolen. Mr. Auble furnishes a kit of parts to make up the timer, together with blue prints and directions for assembling. To date three sets of instruments have been placed; one belongs to Preston Loomis at Newton, Kan.; one to Bailey's Watch Repair shop at Hutchinson, Kan.; and the one in use at Auble Bros. in Ord.

The past week an order came from St. John's University at Collegeville, Minn., under date of Aug. 19. Mr. Auble has had a large number of inquiries in regard to his invention, but did not wish to start furnishing them until he was sure he would be amply protected. He recently received a highly commendatory letter from the Hamilton Watch company. The company enclosed a very interesting pamphlet in which they had used a similar system for the purpose of determining how a watch acted under varying conditions of use. Charts showed that the action of a watch differs materially when carried or when lying around, and that the best watches will show irregularity when carried.

Mr. Auble's invention is an old one, as last year Rose was the champion and Flagg the runner-up. No less than 45 players took part in the open tournament and all the visitors were loud in their praises of the splendid condition of the course, giving credit to Bud Shirley who had spent much time getting the greens and fairways in the best possible condition. Some good golf was played in the qualifying round of the tournament Sunday morning, four players tying for medalist honors with scores of 34. The four were Hildred Pearson, A. A. Wiegardt, Raymond Furtak and Boyd Rose, all of Ord. Medalist prize, a gold pencil, went to Rose when he survived the other three 34 shooters in match play.

Other four players who went into the championship flight were Flagg, whose qualifying score was 35, A. J. Auble, 35, M. Biemond, 35, and J. L. Webster, of St. Paul, also 35.

Flagg eliminated Webster in first round play and Biemond in the second while Rose was knocking out Pearson, Wiegardt and Furtak. A gold pencil went to Flagg as champion when he beat Rose in the championship finals. Pearson won the consolation prize in this flight.

Drouth Counties to Ask Federal Aid; Misko Head

Five Valley County Men to Meeting Held Tuesday in Grand Island.

Five Valley county men, Alfred Wiegardt and John Misko, of Ord, Rev. E. A. Smith, Lloyd Bulger and Wm. Hamsey, of Arcadia, were in Grand Island Tuesday to attend a meeting of representatives of the 43 drouth counties of Nebraska, purpose being to form an organization preparatory to asking for a more consistent program of federal aid.

Mr. Misko was elected head of the organization and E. P. Ryan, secretary of the Grand Island chamber of commerce, was chosen secretary. Present federal agencies do not function efficiently in the face of a continuing emergency, delegates claimed, and it is planned to demand not only temporary financial aid for drouth stricken farmers but also a long range program of help including more irrigation water.

A telegram was dispatched to President Roosevelt outlining the program of the new organization and another meeting was planned for Friday, Sept. 6 at which the program will be more fully defined and resolutions passed.

Cold Storage Defeats High School for Title

Last evening in a wild and ragged game the Ord Cold Storage defeated the Chanticleers for the season championship, the final score being 11 to 3. Neither McBeth for the Chanticleers nor Nay for the Cold Storage pitched effectively, but the High School lads lost the game in the fifth inning on 4 hits, 3 errors and 2 walks which brought in 7 runs.

Two pick-up teams played a more exciting 4-inning opener, the game ending in a tie, each team having 10 runs. It was announced that next Tuesday evening, Sept. 3, a benefit game will be played for Oakley Hather, who was badly injured in a game recently. It is probable that two games will be played, and there should be a record attendance.

It was suggested that the Cotesfield team, against which Hather was playing when he was injured, be asked to play Tuesday evening, but this idea was vetoed because Cotesfield is to play Ord at the Valley County Fair. It is rumored that the Cold Storage team may give the Chanticleers another game, and that, if the Chanticleers win, a third game be played to settle the championship definitely. In any case, there will be plenty of excitement at the Fair Grounds Tuesday evening.

Gould Flag New Golf Champion of Ord; Beat B. Rose

45 Players Competed Sunday in Open Tournament; 4 Tie for Medalist.

By a 2 to 1 victory over Boyd Rose in the championship flight of the Ord invitational open tournament held here Sunday, Gould B. Flagg became golf champion of this city.

The Flagg-Rose rivalry is an old one, as last year Rose was the champion and Flagg the runner-up.

No less than 45 players took part in the open tournament and all the visitors were loud in their praises of the splendid condition of the course, giving credit to Bud Shirley who had spent much time getting the greens and fairways in the best possible condition.

In the second flight Saminski, of Loup City, beat Tolen, of Ord, for first honors and Forrest Johnson, of Ord, was runner-up.

By virtue of arrangements entered into the past week, C. E. Rummel of Palmer will open a Western Auto Supply store in the Keown building just north of the WPA sewing room in about two weeks. Mr. Rummel, formerly of North Loup, has been in the employ of the Foster Lumber company of Palmer several years.

He is a married man and will move his family to Ord early in September. The interior of the building will be rearranged and the shelving put in to suit the needs of the new business.

Fire Destroys Lake Property

Friday noon, a fire which resulted from a gasoline stove explosion, destroyed the large dance hall and the adjoining cafe in Lake Ericson. The cafe and dance hall were operated by J. W. Conger.

When the fire broke out one of the employees at the lake drove to the nearest filling station and called the Ericson fire department. When the fire department arrived it was too late to do anything for the burning buildings. In twenty minutes the buildings had burned to the ground.

Although the damage has not yet been estimated it will probably be around $7,000. Nothing was saved from the burning buildings. Among some of the things destroyed were a piano, a cash register containing small change, which had all melted, an $80 soft drink cooler, restaurant equipment including tables and chairs, clothing belonging to Mr. and Mrs. Conger, dishes, kettles and a refrigerator.

Orville Stoddard Injured When Tire Blowout Upsets Car

Milliken Car Leaves Highway Hitting Power Line Pole; Car is Badly Wrecked.

Friday evening at about 9:30 while David Milliken, with Orville Stoddard in the front seat with him, was driving west on the road near the J. W. Sedlacek place occupied by Doyle Collins, across the river east of Ord, the right front tire blew out, throwing the car out of control.

The car crossed the ditch, side-swiped a pole belonging to the Western Public Service, broke the women wire fence and swung back into the ditch, where it came to a stop upside down. The left front door swung open when the car hit the pole, and Stoddard was thrown out into the field.

He received several cuts on the right side of his face, a badly bruised right shoulder and a slight concussion of the brain. The pole was completely demolished and the car was badly wrecked. Milliken escaped without injury except for minor bruises.

Milliken went to the Collins place and he and W. E. Kesler, who was there, brought the boys to town and to the Ord hospital, where Dr. J. N. Round took care of Stoddard's injuries. His right shoulder was found to be badly bruised, but no bones were broken.

His most serious injury was a cut extending from the right corner of his mouth toward his right cheek. It was necessary to take two stitches inside and two outside to close the wound. A brain concussion was not serious, and he was rational Saturday morning.

Immediately following the accident he was able to walk to the car in which he was brought to town, and was able to walk into the hospital. Monday it was stated that he probably would be taken home in a day or two. There is no question but that the wreck was caused by a blowout, as the track of the flat tire showed clearly from the point where the car left the road to where it hit the pole. The car, a new Plymouth sedan, was a complete wreck.

The repair crew of the Western Public Service happened to be working out of Ord, and they went out as soon as they received information about the damage to the line and soon had a new pole in place. Luckily the poles held up the wires so there was no chance of anyone being killed by the current.

The anticipated enrollment in the lower grades, as indicated by the census, is: kindergarten 21; first grade, 45; second grade, 27; third grade, 29; fourth grade, 31; 5th and 6th grades, 71. Three teachers will take care of the 5th and 6th grades, and one each in the other grades except the first which will require two.

One of the busiest persons at the school this week is the secretary, Miss Lydia Blaha, who has plenty to do to get all the records out and properly organized for the start of school. C. C. Thompson, superintendent, is putting in full time every day in organizing the work for Monday. Miss Swain is also very busy as principal of the grade school.

It is announced that the grade school starts at 9 a. m. and at 1:15 p. m. Pupils should not be at the grade school during the school year before 8:30 a. m. or 1 p. m., and any who come before those hours will not be allowed in the building until the proper time arrives. The high school convenes at 8:55 a. m. and 1 p. m.

The first official action will be taken in school athletics when the football suits are checked out Friday, according to Coach Roscoe Tolly. All boys who plan to play football this season are urged to be present that day and get their equipment. The first regular practice will be held Monday, Sept. 2, the first day practice is permitted under the state association rules.

The following is the football schedule for 1940: Sept. 27, St. Paul there; Oct. 4, Broken Bow here; Oct. 11, Burwell there; Oct. 18, Albion here; Oct. 25, Ravenna here; Nov. 1, open; Nov. 8, Arcadia here; Nov. 15, Sargent there; Thanksgiving Day, Loup City, there. This game will be played either Nov. 21 or 28, whichever is the official day.

With a large number of letter men returning this year, and a lot of promising material developing, Ord should have a good team. Letter men who are back are Frank Roberson, Orville Stoddard, Robert Timmerman, George Cetak, Gould Flagg, Ernest Piskorski, Harold Christensen, Harvey Dahlin, Robert James, Otto Marech, Frank Misko, Floyd Stewart, Paul Covert, Junior Petka, Junior Dodge, Verner Bartholomew, William Novosad, Edward Rousek, Jerry Fryzek, Orville Leach, Earl Barnes, William Malolepszy, Raymond Furtak, Lyle Norman and Charles Zlomke.

Band Concert Tonight. The Comstock band, directed by Glen D. Auble, will give a concert in Ord tonight, playing in place of the Ord band. There will be several vocal and instrumental solos.

Children's Hour to Start. Beginning Saturday, Sept. 7, the Ord library will hold its weekly Children's Hour. The story hour will begin at 10:00 a. m., and will be conducted by Mrs. Mark Tolen. Mrs. Ralph Misko will have charge of it the following Saturday.

Hunter Furniture Sold At Auction Saturday. The auction sale held at the Hunter home in Ord Saturday in which the entire line of household goods was offered for sale by Herman Rice, auctioneer, was attended by a huge crowd and good prices prevailed. Mr. and Mrs. Hunter both expressed themselves as being more than pleased with the results of the sale.

The residence has been rented by E. S. Murray and the family will move in Sept. 1. Mr. and Mrs. Hunter plan to get away on their trip to Oakland, Calif., some time this week. He has a brother there who is working at the carpenter trade, and who believes that he can find work for both Ralph and himself.

Company "I" Picnic to Be Held Next Sunday. All plans are complete for the annual Company "I" picnic which will be held at Bussell Park next Sunday, Sept. 1, according to C. W. Clark, secretary of the organization. The response to the invitations Mr. Clark has sent out indicates that there will be a record breaking attendance this year. Last year 78 persons attended but it is expected that the attendance this year will be near the one hundred mark.

Willkie for President Picnic, Sunday, Sept. 1. Arrangements are complete for the "Willkie for President" picnic at Bussell Park next Sunday, Sept. 1. All are cordially invited to bring their diners and enjoy this picnic and the program to follow. The Auble public address system will be on the grounds. The program will open with the singing of "America" by the audience. Miss Mavis Warden of Arcadia will sing a soprano solo. A reading will be given by Mrs. Ralph Misko. The speaker of the day, H. O. Cooley of Arcadia, will then be introduced. Mr. Cooley's speech will be followed by an accordion solo by Arthur Auble. The audience will then sing "God Bless America" led by Tom Springer. Community singing led by Mr. Springer will follow.

AGRICULTURE & CIVILIZATION

The history of agriculture is the history of civilization. The story of agriculture, like the story of the human race, begins in prehistoric times. Some time during the Paleolithic period, possibly some 25,000 to 50,000 years ago, man acquired his first ideas of planting the edible seeds from wild plants, thus producing crops of grain.

Although Neolithic man had learned some of the benefits of keeping domestic animals and of planting grain, he nevertheless depended on hunting and fishing for a large part of his food and clothing. Five thousand years before Christ, both in the valley of the Nile and the rich country between the Tigris and Euphrates, many crops were raised by tillage and irrigation.

The earliest Egyptians seem to have known onions, garlic, radishes, beans, chick-peas, lentils, and the castor bean. They raised crops of bearded wheat, six-rowed barley, millet, flax and a variety of sorghum. For fruit they had watermelons, grapes, olives, figs, pomegranates and dates. Horses were not introduced into Egypt until 1900 B. C.

To this knowledge of agriculture the Greeks added beets, cabbage, lettuce, turnips, kidney beans and garden peas. They did not have the date palm, but they had the almond tree, and apples, quinces, cherries, pears and plums. The Greeks were the first to apply manure to their fields and to plow under a green growth in order to enrich the land.

The Romans gave much attention to agriculture and left accurate records of the methods used. They introduced the breeding of fine horses, sheep, swine, cattle and many kinds of poultry. Oats and rye, celery, peaches, apricots and melons were added to the list of crops known to the older nations, and alfalfa was raised for fodder.

During the medieval period agriculture was brought to a high state of perfection in Europe. Since the beginning of history the Chinese and Peruvians were much interested in farming. Both nations understood the use of fertilizers and of irrigation. The Incas of Peru terraced their hillside in order to make use of every acre of ground.

The two greatest improvements in modern agriculture are rotation of crops and a chemical knowledge of fertilizers. Lord Townsend established in England the Norfolk system, consisting of the annual rotation of wheat, turnips, barley and clover. The first scientist to make progress in the study of the chemical composition of plants was Liebig, at the beginning of the 19th century.

It is of interest to note that in every instance mentioned above the development of civilization kept pace with the march of agriculture. Where progress was made in the art of tilling the soil, the human race progressed. Inversely, as in China, where no progress was made in agriculture, the people have remained practically at a standstill. The Chinese of today do not differ materially from the Chinese of 4000 years ago.

Thus we see that there is a vital connection between the development of agriculture and the development of the human race. The place of nations in the scale of civilization is determined, not so much by their advancement in the arts and sciences as by the interest they take in the scientific tilling of the soil and the development of newer and better varieties of crops.

Celebrations of the harvest were established in the early days of agriculture. Long before Christian times the Romans celebrated the Feast of Pomona, goddess of gardens. The druidic autumn feast fell about the same time. All peoples of history have observed the arrival of harvest with appropriate celebrations.

In a state like Nebraska where every citizen is dependent, directly or indirectly, upon agriculture, the importance of a harvest festival cannot be exaggerated. County and state fairs, which, after all, are nothing more than harvest festivals, have been held ever since the state was admitted to the union on March 1, 1867.

No one thing does more to stimulate interest in agriculture than the holding of these fairs. Their importance cannot be overestimated. They furnish the stimulus that makes the Nebraska farmer recognized as a leader in the art of tilling the soil, in the raising of bigger and better crops, in the breeding of better live stock.

Every citizen of the state has visited a county fair, and if he has taken the interest in the exhibits that he should, that visit has been profitable to him. If he failed to talk with the outstanding farmers who brought the exhibits, he neglected a golden opportunity. If he did not see the outstanding work of the 4-H clubs he is not in a position to understand what these young people are doing for the farm, and what the farm is doing for them.

As the state towers above the community, so the state fair stands far above any of the smaller fairs. As the state comprises the sum total of all its counties, so the state fair is the summing up of all that is best in the smaller fairs of the state. The best exhibits in all county fairs may be seen at the Nebraska State Fair this year. The state fair is the result of generations of development. Every year the best has been shown. Every year the best farmers of the state have learned new lessons which they have put into practice in the coming years. Practically all the crops we raise, all the kinds of live stock we own, were known to the early races of mankind, but they have been brought to a much higher state of development in Nebraska.

The end is not yet. So long as the human race shall endure the art of tilling the soil and raising stock will be essential, for all mankind must be fed. The farmer of the future must obtain better results for his efforts if he is to survive. Today farming is a challenge that should bring out the best that is in us. Agriculture and civilization go hand in hand. If agriculture takes a backward step, then civilization will fail also.

My Own Column

By H. D. Leggett

Dear Quiz:
This is Saturday, August 24 and the third wet, cloudy, cold rainy day we have had in a row. But it is not as cold as it has been and there is some prospect that the weather is going to clear up which will please those fishermen who have only a few days to spend that way and who hate to lose out on the fun.

I have been neglecting this column. I got the idea that perhaps you readers were getting sick of this stuff that I write, but since I have been receiving so many post cards, letters, telegrams and long distance calls, asking why I was not writing it, I have decided to try to be more faithful.

I see by the radio news, or rather I hear, that Nebraska has been having about the same kind of cool weather that we have had. We have had a couple of frosts here, one a few mornings ago, killed the cucumber vines across the lake on the Lundborg farm. And I notice some of the hardwood leaves are beginning to turn red. I am hoping the heavy frosts will hold off. I bought strawberries today from a gardener who has three acres and he says he has picked berries until November the last three years and that he will have lots of them until that time this fall if the weather is favorable. The best sorted berries are now 25c a quart with the culls three quarts for 25c.

There is a party going on over at the Fenner outdoor grill today, the Downmans entertaining the Fenners and Augustines. I note that they are all eating with overcoats and hats on. The temperature outside is about 60 with a misty drizzle of rain much of the time and not too good a day for a picnic, but from the racket I judge they are all having a good time.

Mr. Fenner has the walls of his stone garage done and the rafters and roof boards on and he will be pouring cement and putting stones on the roof Monday, the weather permitting. It is going to be an all rock building so far as outside appearances are concerned, the wooden doors being the only outside evidence that there is any wood about it and it is going to be very ornamental and a nice addition to the camp.

The Leon Cienny party consisting of his family, the Archie Cienny, family, John Cienny, Cash Wielafak and wife, Zola Celak and Junior Dodge make up the party of 10 and they are in my other cottage. Cash went out the first morning early and caught himself a 6 pound bass and I believe they have been getting plenty of fish despite the bad weather, though fishing right now is mighty poor so far as the larger fish are concerned. They are getting plenty of bluegills, however, also lots of big bullheads. Like all fishermen they are anxious to get hold of a big one and I hope they may do so.

The Augustines and Downmans are leaving for home some time in the next few days, when the camp will be pretty well deserted, as the Fenners and us will then be all that is left. But we enjoy it here when the weather is good even if it is quiet and the fall fishing is usually good. Fishing this summer has been splendid with the one exception of wall-toes and we have been unable to catch them. There was just one way to do it here and that was to go every day. Every few days there has been a day when who ever fished would get plenty of good ones but one who only fishes occasionally misses them as a rule. We went out Thursday the Missus and I, long enough to get a nice mess, a couple of good bass, a bullhead and some bluegills, 11 in all, and that was the first time we had been out for over a week. We may not go again for a week and safely won't unless the weather improves.

That was a splendid story that Irma wrote for last week's paper and though I was on the trip, I did enjoy reading it.

Having a murder committed close under your window, with you standing near is an experience most of us have not had and do not care to, but that is what actually happened to Mrs. Reuben Rydberg of Chicago, now visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Theelin of North Loup.

It happened that about 3 a. m. she was walking the floor with the baby when she heard some shots and looked out the window to see the victim stagger away mortally wounded. She lived in an apartment house on the third floor.

A car had drawn up in front of her apartment house and another followed closely. The murdered man was shot once in the car and again as he started to run for a hotel near by. He entered the hotel and went at once to the elevator, which was operated help-yourself style. There he rode up and down keeping his finger on the button and as long as he kept it moving no one could get to him. He collapsed on the sixth floor, where he was given aid, but it was too late.

It was found out that he was a member of the Green Dragon gang, who smuggled opium across the border into Texas, operating out of Chicago. They were all indicted and were to be taken back to Texas to be tried under the narcotics charge. The murder victim had turned state's evidence and the gang rubbed him out.

According to Irwin, the murderers were never found.

Thrill No. 2

Mrs. Warren Johnson of Scotia tells of an experience of hitchhiking that also was not so pleasant.

Two years ago Ray Dennis, her son-in-law decided he wanted to go to Portland, Ore., and decided he would try hitch-hiking. He caught a ride to St. Paul and stopped in an oil station there hoping to catch another from there on.

He was only at St. Paul a few minutes when a car drove up quickly and the oil station man asked where they were going and they replied, Oregon, and the oil station man asked if they would stop like a passenger, and they replied they would, so Ray climbed in the front seat and started off. There were two men and two women besides himself.

He soon discovered there was something funny about the whole affair. They drove ninety miles an hour much of the time and would not talk at all to him. They would not let him in the back seat or tell him what the rush was. They drove night and day, only stopping a few seconds for gas and running into a grocery for a loaf of bread to eat as they sped along. They arrived in Portland in two days.

Ray began to get pretty worried by that time, wishing he was out of the car. He was suspicious of the people, that they were trying to escape from something and they were taking him to make the number in the car different than when they started. He grew to fear that they might get stopped and that he might be involved in some crime he knew nothing of. He had no opportunity to get out of the car.

At Portland they ran into a traffic jam where some one had a flat tire and they had to stop for a minute. There Ray quickly jumped out of the car and got away, happy with the thoughts he had parted company with these queer acting people.

He never knew or saw any more of them, but he did read in the papers the next day of how at Albion, just a day before he got the ride, the sheriff and deputy were killed and he always wondered if perhaps these folks were not the ones who were escaping from that crime.

The North Loup township has just finished spreading gravel from the village to the river bridge. Ed Lee, who is one of the officers, thinks the cost will be made in only a few years by the savings in maintenance expense. He says that gravel was spread on the road near the Sumner bridge and the saving in maintenance there was that way.

Ed also said if Greeley county would gravel the road east and northwest to the schoolhouse and county line, he felt sure that N. L. township would gravel on toward Sumner.

This would be a nice thing but it was told me that there is not a mile of gravel in Greeley county that is not private road or state road. Whether this is true or not, it is not likely this remote section will be graveled regardless of how much it would be used or how well the taxes are paid in that section.

Now that the petitions will be put on the ballot to vote to change our county set-up from Supervisor to the Commissioner system, plenty of discussions will ensue. The commissioner system is considered more efficient, but there are other things too. There are only three commissioners and it is even easier for two to get their heads together and run things than for four to have their way all the time like they do in Valley county. To be commissioner is a much bigger job than a supervisor. It doesn't take much brain-

Funny Folks

Mrs. Ehret, wife of the S. D. B. minister of N. L. has gone back to the suburb of New York City to teach the coming year, which she contracted to do last winter. She said one was not left in very good standing back there to give up a contract which had been signed to perform.

Some different than the case here in Nebraska. Teachers here, (North Loup, at least) don't seem to hesitate a moment about leaving their contract for better jobs, even in the middle of the year, or a few weeks before the end of the term. Perhaps that is one of the reasons why the standards of New York and California schools are considered the best in the union.

Another incident regarding these folks is amusing. So the story goes, certain friends and neighbors have been trying their best to discourage these people and make them believe this is a terrible country. But as yet they have not been successful in a single instance.

"Oh, I like it here," Mrs. Ehret always answers. "It is beautiful, the sunsets, the long vistas, the dry fresh air and the wide plains. Oh, I like it."

And then she will explain, "Back there it so cold and rainy much of the time and one cannot see only across the block and so many people are strangers."

"Oh, I think it is wonderful here."

Short Shavings

The following is what I heard a person sputter the other day in regard to someone who was opposing the peacetime draft bill now in congress:

"Those same people," he said, "who are opposing the draft so much have been taking aid from the government in one form or another for years."

I heard this in Ord the other day and although it is not in my territory, it's worth repeating. Mrs. John Ward went fishing with a small hook for minnows and in a short time, with that small hook she caught a five pound cat fish. Now the way it happens with me, I fish for a five pound cat but usually catch a minnow.

And then I heard of a cow that gave butter milk, but what would a cow give but her milk.

And then there is the old saw about the Valley county farmer who ate forty acres of sweet corn at one meal and the one that the Valley county cows are all orphans because they have no fodder here.

And then there is the one of how the baby car of corn asked the other baby car who brought you here. The reply was that the stalk (stork) brought him.

And then there is an egg yoke story, but I don't see any yoke about that.

Something Different

I'm afraid the Quiz picked a poor year for a gourd contest: growing gourds drink quarts of water every day. In this dry year we should have had a cactus growing contest!

A few years ago I put a couple of dozen kinds of cacti into a window box, then went to Minnesota and left it. On the sunny south side, without watering, they thrived and grew to fill the box.

The post office dedication day seems to have made a great hit. I hear the farmers were delighted with the entertainment offered their children from movies to watermelon. One farmer who enjoyed the ceremonies and holiday atmosphere declared: "It's the first time I haven't been 'nicked' to death by my children when I came to Ord in a long time. Usually it is 'Daddy, I want a nickel for this' and that is repeated all day. But Ord really had everything for us free the day they dedicated the post office. It was fine."

The day was just the kind of treat for the visitors I have been wanting Ord to have, and I am delighted it was such a success. But of course I wasn't in Ord at the time and didn't do a bit of the work and it takes plenty of careful planning to make such an affair run off smoothly.

This noon I got to pondering over what kind of movies the merchants could offer the children for a treat.

I was remembering that when I was little that the town of Alliance became overrun with those big green box elder worms. So in some sort of deal, every child who brought two quarts of cocoons to the movie door gained free admittance. The children liked hunting for them, it was a kind of game.

What could we have the children collect around here, that they would enjoy and that would clean up our countryside?

What about tumbleweeds? They have surely prospered on some of these summer fallowed fields, along some roadsides. Could we have children deliver half a dozen big tumbleweeds to some specified place and in return get a free movie ticket? And then couldn't we have a huge bonfire, and invite the crowd to witness it while we burn those pesky, ugly tumbleweeds? It would make an odd city celebration, but why couldn't it be fun?

The Doctor MUST Give Service

A Medical Clientele Is Based On Confidence

Much of the Patient's response to treatment depends on confidence in his Doctor. Not only is there a physical reaction to this feeling of confidence in the method of treatment, but the fact that you believe in your Doctor, causes you to follow instructions more carefully.

This confidence of the Patient can come about through only one thing—satisfactory service and the knowledge that your Doctor is competent.

(This confidence of the Patient, is the chief foundation of a Doctor's practice.)

Naturally, it is up to the Doctor to render the highest type of service, if for no other than selfish reasons.

QUIZ FORUM

The Referendum Petition.

The Editor of the Quiz:
The writer for some time has not inflicted any of his ideas before the public but something in the Quiz of last week attracted my attention and as I am always interested in Valley county and Ord, I am writing these few lines.

The article in the Quiz states that a petition has been filed with our County Clerk asking a vote on our method of county government. It seems there is no reason given for making such a change and I ask for information.

When the writer came here in 1879 we had precinct system by which we had one member of county board from each precinct and if I recall there were 5 precincts. Later, as population increased, we voted for the present method of 7 members which seems to me ought not to be changed unless there is an advantage to the public by the change. Of course if it can be shown that it is better I shall be in favor of it. Our present system costs in salaries for the seven members about $4,200 per annum. Maybe not quite that, but no member can draw over $600 per annum. If we adopt a new system with three members, each can claim a salary of $1,700.

You may say that they won't put in the time or claim that salary, but I wish you would point to me an instance where the opportunity occurred that they failed to take advantage of it. If there are any such they would be good subjects for a museum. Are three sets of brains wiser than seven? My opinion is they are not. Another thought is that in case of three members it would be quite natural for Arcadia to demand one and North Loup to demand one and that would leave Ord and the north part of the county one vote against two on any serious question that may arise.

The question of difference in expense is not so great as the question of advantage to the citizens and taxpayers of Valley county. From my point of view I fall to see any. I have always believed in what is best for the majority of our citizens and am ready to change my view when I have the evidence and I am asking someone who is in favor of the change to set me right, so I can vote for the change if I am convinced it is for the best interests of Valley county. I have always believed that our referendum law was a very wise provision so that any general matter could be

Ord Defeats Ericson in Loup Valley League Tilt

Sunday Ericson, which by virtue of a 20 to 12 defeat of North Loup the week before had climbed into first place in the Loup Valley League, came to Ord and met defeat at the hands of the local team by a final score of 14 to 10.

Piskorski got off to a bad start in the first inning when four runs were scored. The visitors were helpless from then until the seventh, when they gathered in six runs on four hits, one error and a walk.

Allen Zikmund went in in the seventh with two down, finished the inning and pitched the last two. Piskorski struck out seven men and Zikmund three, striking out the last two men who faced him, the last one being the well known Dudley Falk, whom he retired on three pitched balls.

Junior Falk started in the box for Ericson, allowed a run on two hits and a walk in the second. He blew up in the fourth when six hits and two walks brought in nine runs. Robert Thompson pitched the fifth inning and was touched for three hits and two runs.

Dudley Falk, former Western leaguer and present Ericson business man, finished the game in the box. He sat down the first four men by the strike out route. In the seventh an error and a hit brought in a score, and the same thing happened in the eighth. The first two pitchers did not strike out a man, but D. Falk struck out six in three innings.

North Loup Defeated at Ord Sunday Night

The North Loup softball team came to Ord Sunday evening to try conclusions with the local All Stars. Vernon Nay went the route for Ord, and aided by errorless support, held the North Loupers to 4 hits and one run, striking out seven, and issuing no walks.

Doug Barber, who had what it took 40 years ago, essayed to pitch for North Loup, but the Ord team made it a field day, collecting fifteen hits for eleven runs. H. Johnson and L. Larsen each got a home run, A. Jorgensen and R. Rathburn each got a three-bagger, and R. Adamek hit for two bases.

Preceding the main game two teams of midgets put on a real show for the crowd and had a picnic themselves. What they lacked in technique they made up in enthusiasm, and the spectators enjoyed it even more than the game that followed.

Valley county people will be able to follow happenings in 4-H club show at the Nebraska State Fair next month through a series of special radio broadcasts which are planned over various stations.

A daily broadcast, Monday through Friday, will originate in the 4-H club building and will be broadcast over WOW, Omaha, from 5:15 until 5:30 p. m. Results of various judging contests, exhibit placings and the like will be given on this program and in addition 4-H club champions will be brought before the WOW microphone.

Another daily series of broadcasts will be carried by KFAB, Lincoln, on the regular College of Agriculture program from 12:15 until 12:25, Monday through Friday.

The Farm Facts and Fun weekly broadcast goes back on the air this Saturday, August 31, direct from the 4-H club buildings on the fairgrounds. It will be heard over a statewide wireless network of six stations from 1 until 1:30 p. m.

Farm women also will be heard on the air during the fair. A special program will be broadcast from 3 until 3:30 p. m., on Sunday, Sept. 1. More than 100 women taking part in the project club singing that day will be heard on the program, WOW, Omaha, will carry the broadcast along with other stations.

Tree "Vaccines" Worthless.

The man who picks a doctor when he's sick, most always goes to someone known locally or to someone with an established reputation—and that's a good rule to follow in picking a "tree doctor" to save sick trees County Agent Dale suggests.

The remark was occasioned by reports that "by-by-night" salesmen in some parts of Nebraska have been selling "tree vaccines" the idea that tree injections or vaccinations will destroy woodborers or other insect pests.

Dr. H. D. Tate of the Nebraska Agricultural College Entomology Department states definitely that no chemical has yet been found that will kill insects or disease attacking a tree without killing the tree itself.

"Reputable research workers have been hunting such a chemical since the beginning of the century and they may discover it some time in the future. But the fact remains it has not been discovered yet," Dr. Tate informs the County Extension Agent.

Wholly distinct from these "quack" salesmen Valley county people may very profitably employ a good tree doctor or surgeon to save any valuable trees that may be sick. Such a man often has the tools, equipment and knowledge to save the life of a tree.

Use All Bait.

Poisoned grasshoppers are much better than poisoned livestock. County Extension Agent C. C. Dale points out in urging farmers to spread all grasshopper bait they have on hand, before fall.

The State Grasshopper Control office at the agricultural college in Lincoln has informed the County Agent that the sodium arsenite in grasshopper poison bait will rot out sacks, if stored in them through the winter. This means there's danger that any bait kept on hand may become mixed in the food of livestock. In past years some farm animals have been killed in this manner.

Bait spread now will kill many grasshoppers before they can feed on fall seedlings or lay their eggs.

Meat Headliners

When you start out to do your food shopping, come here for your meat because you'll get extra-value.

Butchering our own meat means that we can make a normal profit at prices lower than would be possible on "shipped in" meat. It seems foolish to us to ship our good corn-fattened Valley county beef to Omaha, then ship it back again, and make the consumer pay the freight both ways. That is why we butcher our own and our policy means extra value for you.

Hill is on his vacation, but Guy LeMasters, assistant, stated this morning that no aliens had reported for registration here. The local office has forms to be given to any aliens who report, to be filled out by them and returned at their earliest convenience. They may have any help they need in filling these out, or the employees of the office will render any assistance desired. All aliens in the United States must register before Dec. 26. —The Presbyterian junior department is planning a truck ride and picnic to be held this evening.

IF HAPPENED IN ORD.

The amateur decorators are going strong in Ord. Postmaster Alfred L. Hill got busy a few days ago and painted his big front porch both top and bottom. He moved both sets of steps out from the building to keep dogs and other people from walking on it. J. T. Knezacek, not to be outdone got busy and painted the front door of his office. About twice a year Joe paints that door, just to keep in practice. It is one job that he does not trust to Thearon Beehrle. The Chanticleers say they would have won the softball game Tuesday night if the Cold Storage had not run in a couple of colored professionals to play left and right field for them. The boys certainly looked like colored men, but it was learned after a while that they were Barney Larsen and Frederick Jensen, just off duty from hauling coal. They came right from work and didn't have time to wash. That medalist contest Sunday was a real battle between Wiegard and Boyd Rose, who played around the course in par the first round. In the second round the older man weakened and Rose won out. However, the extra play made him a victim to Flagg later and Gould won the championship. The clock that has ticked the hours for these many years on the wall of the Ord postoffice will be out of a job when the force moves to the new building, where electric clocks have been installed. It is the property of Auble Bros., and has displayed their jewelry ad for a long time. The boys have presented it to Guy LeMasters, and it is a gift which he prizes very highly. The clock started ticking the time there in 1912, and for two years it had the name of W. J. Taylor, Jeweler, on it. The name was changed when A. J. Auble bought him out in 1914.

W. J. Bryan Wilkie Club Being Formed in State

The Quiz is in receipt of a letter from A. A. Arter of Omaha, democrat and a former chairman of the democratic central committee in Douglas county, stating that a W. J. Bryan Wilkie club is being formed in Omaha, and that other clubs will be formed over the state. As in the days of Bryan, the club is to fight for principle and against the political bosses. The organization is asking old time democrats over the state to organize and fight for such men as Wilkie, Butler and Griswold. The names and addresses of democrats who will do this are asked for by the club. —Leaving Monday evening for Los Angeles were Ben Janssen, Carl Oliver, Dave Guggenmos, Henry Benda and Henry Misko. Henry Benda and Henry Misko plan to attend school in California.

Rowell Funeral is Held at Comstock Monday Afternoon

It was during his second term of office that the Valley county court house was built. The inscription on the corner stone of this edifice might be of interest in this connection, since Mr. Rowell's name appears there: "Erected in 1920 by the people of Valley County, and Dedicated by Them to Justice and Good Government.—Board of Supervisors.—Alvin Blessing, Chairman, A. L. Lindhartsen, F. M. Vodehnal, C. O. Kettenmayer, M. A. Rathbun, J. M. Fisher, C. C. Rowell, J. T. Knezacek, County Clerk." Not only did Mr. Rowell have a prominent part in the affairs of the county, but he also served as a member of the school board for 12 years. He was a member of the I. O. O. F. lodge No. 287 in Comstock, and a member of the Christian church at Longwood, Nebr., and a faithful member until it disbanded several years ago. Mr. Rowell always held to his Christian faith and was an honest and highly respected citizen. Mr. Rowell lived at his farm home in Woods' Park for over 50 years. Last October he and Mrs. Rowell celebrated their Golden wedding anniversary, at which time two gatherings of relatives and friends were held in their home. He entered Bryan Memorial hospital in Lincoln June 1940, and there underwent an operation. He never fully regained his health and passed away at his home at 10:30 o'clock Friday evening Aug. 23. His children were all at home at the time of his passing. His parents, a brother and a sister preceded him in death. Besides his devoted widow and 3 children he leaves to mourn his loss, a sister, Mrs. Nattie Martin, Pasadena, Calif., 3 grandsons, 3 granddaughters, and a number of

Idea of Merritt Fuson Receiving Some Comment

An Associated Press' dispatch printed in a number of daily papers recently tells of an idea for a super highway advanced by a former Ordite, Merritt H. (Pat) Fuson. Miss Helen Collins kindly furnished the Quiz with a copy of the dispatch, which reads as follows: Portland, Ore., (AP)—Eight years of study have gone into a project advanced by Merritt H. Fuson, architect, for a $21,000,000,000 straight-line highway across the United States. Fuson's road would follow the line of 40 degrees 40 minutes north for 2,700 miles from Newark, N. J., to Eureka, Calif. It would include railroad lines, communication systems, airplane landing fields, oil pipe lines and vacuum pipes for carrying mail. The entire strip would be a military reservation. Fuson has worked out his plans in detail, including the problems of lateral communications and industrial developments along the route. —Quiz want ads get results.

The northeast quarter was to be Corn county with Sargent as the county seat, the southeast was to be Rose county with Ansley as the county seat, part of the southwest as Custer county, with Anselmo as the county seat, part of the southwest as Albany with Oconto as the county seat, and the rest of the county as Arbor county with Callaway as the county seat. Luckily for all concerned they never made the change.

Charles Partridge of Hotel Ord was making considerable effort to introduce the Mongolian pheasant into Valley county, and obtained a number of young birds and turned them loose at the edge of the sand hills north of Ord. However, it was not until about 10 years later that the pheasants really began to develop in the county, due to the fact that hunters killed them all off.

OIL DRILLINGS IN NEBRASKA

This is the nineteenth of the series of articles concerning oil drillings in Nebraska. All information was compiled by research workers of the Nebraska Writers' Project, WPA, from old newspapers and from data supplied by the University of Nebraska.

In 1937, several large oil companies cooperated in sinking a deep test well on the Bonham farm, located about five miles southwest of Reynolds. The test was made to determine the geological formations of the region for reference in future drillings as well as to test the possibilities of a local surface structure. According to the Fairbury Journal, the site was spudded-in about Aug. 10, 1937.

On Sept. 9, it was reported that drilling operations were at a standstill pending arrival of a new engine. A short time later drilling resumed and continued steadily until Jan. 6, 1938, when, at a depth of 3344 feet, it was announced that activity at the site would be temporarily suspended.

The suspension proved to be permanent, however for on Jan. 20, the Journal stated that equipment at the site had been dismantled and the hole plugged. The records of the Conservation and Survey Division indicate that the well was drilled sufficiently deep to test practically all of the possible oil-bearing formations.

The T. S. Allen farm, located in West Branch Precinct, southwest of Pawnee City, was the site of a drilling which started during the latter part of May, 1938. The Pawnee Chief stated on June 29, that an oil flow had been encountered at a depth of 600 feet which reportedly yielded nearly two gallons of "high grade" oil a day.

This occurrence encouraged till drills in July when operations were forced to halt while a clogged drill was removed. In December, 1938, the casing was removed and the site abandoned. The records of the Conservation and Survey Division indicate that the greatest depth reached in this well was 802 feet and that a small amount of very heavy oil was bailed from the well. Another drilling took place about the same time on the Thomas E. Small farm, nine miles southwest of Pawnee City. According to the Pawnee Republican, the undertaking was sponsored by a group of Dubois businessmen. The site was named Drego No. 1, and Archie Nowland of Chanute, Kas., was the drilling contractor. This well was drilled to a total depth of 929 feet ending in granite, according to the Conservation and Survey Division records.

In April, 1935, the Golden Rod Oil company, an organization composed of Cass county people, laid plans for sinking an oil well somewhere in the locality of Murray. However, actual drilling did not start until sometime during Aug. 1937, when the company selected a site on the farm of William Sporer, northwest of Murray. The drilling of this well was a slow tedious operation because of many delays. Drilling activities continued until Jan. 8, 1940, when the Weeping Water Republican stated that the company had held a meeting to discuss finances. Other than a record of this meeting, research workers of the Nebraska Writers' Project, WPA, have uncovered no information of later developments.

Ogallala has come in for a bit of publicity in recent years as the result of a drilling by the Twentieth-Century Oil company at the Steuhm farm, nine miles northwest of town. Judging from reports from the Keith County News, this venture was financed in part, by a Lincoln investment company. Accurate accounts are not available but it is known that the well was spudded-in Oct. 21, 1937. On Nov. 12, 1939, a depth of 2,800 feet had been reached, according to the News and then later in the month it was reported that an underground formation had been encountered which yielded a show of oil estimated to produce "150 barrels to a gusher." The show of oil was reported when drilling was at a depth of 3165 feet. After Dec. 21, 1939, the date of the last report from the paper, little is known of activities at the site other than the fact that further drilling is contemplated.

Records of two drillings that occurred at about the same time were found in the Harrison Sun. The first of the two, a well known as Morgen No. 1, was sunk by the J. M. Huber Corporation and the United Producers north of Harrison. The well was spudded-in on August 6, 1936 and by August 27, had reached a depth of over 1000 feet. Activities were at a standstill during the winter months of 1936-37 and nothing more was done at the location until Feb. 18, 1937. In May, 1937 it was claimed that a gas pocket had been struck at 300 feet. On Aug. 5, a change of equipment from a standard to rotary type of rigging was made and work did not recommence until Sept. 2. Other equipment was added at various times and each time a considerable delay occurred. Finally, however, on Dec. 2, 1937, work stopped completely at a depth of 8999 feet and the site was abandoned.

On June 16, 1938, the Sun stated that a second drilling, this time on the George Buckley farm, southeast of Agate, would soon take place. The Union Oil Company of California had leased over 40,000 acres in the region and their plans included several tests to go below 6500 feet. The Buckley well was spudded-in April 25, 1938, and for a time drilling progressed rapidly. Later, however, on Aug. 11, it was reported that much difficulty was encountered when drill pipe was lost in the hole. After the drillers had reached a depth of 6500 feet, which fulfilled the original contracts, the operating company continued drilling deeper on a day-by-day agreement with the crew. Finally, it was decided to abandon the well, so on Sept. 19, 1938, the rigging was dismantled and all activity ceased. The depth was 6846 feet, and to the present time, this is the deepest well in Nebraska.

A third well in the locality was drilled on the John B. Kinion farm south of Agate. This well was drilled by the Belmont Oil Company about 7 miles south of the Buckley drilling. Spudded-in on July 20, 1938, the hole was drilled to the contract depth of 6500 feet in 48 days. The test also proved unsatisfactory and on Sept. 8, 1938, the location was abandoned. This well is the second deepest well in the state.

Abernethys Visit. Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Abernethy returned the latter part of the week from southeast Nebraska, where they had spent a week visiting. They went to Lincoln by bus and there visited their son, Raymond and wife. They then went to Elk City to visit Mr. Abernethy's brother Ed and family. While there they also visited in Falls City, Hiawatha, Kas., and Auburn. They saw some fine corn there, but much of it is late and might be damaged by frost. They inspected the oil wells at Falls City. There are seven producing wells out of eleven to date, and some are producing up to 700 barrels daily.

BACK FORTY
By J. A. Kovanda

Next Monday the Ord high school will begin its thirteenth season in the new building. There are indications of a good enrollment, and a full program of courses will be taught.

Students are coming in from a wide range of territory. Some of these youngsters plan to stay with relatives, while others will locate at inexpensive boarding houses, "batch," or work for their board and room. A large number will also drive to school in cars.

The Ord school system is the biggest in this area, and offers the largest choice of subjects. Courses will be taught in business training, manual arts, music, teacher training, vocational agriculture, home economics, athletics, dramatics, and college preparatory work. They will be taught by specialized instructors.

Modern equipment and the latest texts are used in the Ord high school. They are housed in a building that is fire-proof, up to date and sanitary.

The Ord board of education hires enough teachers to prevent classes from growing too large. Dividing pupils into smaller groups makes it possible to solve the problems of individual differences more accurately. There is closer contact between teacher and pupil, and more direct help can be given.

Parents will make great sacrifices this year to send their youngsters to high school, because they recognize the value of education.

Under a shimmering white arch decorated with a large white bell, Miss Jacqueline Meyer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur J. Meyer, became the wife of Frank Lee, son of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Lee of Hastings. The simple single ring ceremony was performed by Rev. G. C. Robberson at 3:00 p. m., Wednesday, Aug. 21 at the home of the bride's parents. Attendees were the bride's sister, Betty Meyer and Harry DeLashmuit of Burwell. The bride was dressed in a floor-length dress of white organdie, trimmed with white lace. The bridegroom and the best man were attired in dark suits.

BACK FORTY

By J. A. Kovanda

Next Monday the Ord high school will begin its thirteenth season in the new building. There are indications of a good enrollment, and a full program of courses will be taught.

Students are coming in from a wide range of territory. Some of these youngsters plan to stay with relatives, while others will locate at inexpensive boarding houses, "batch," or work for their board and room. A large number will also drive to school in cars.

The Ord school system is the biggest in this area, and offers the largest choice of subjects. Courses will be taught in business training, manual arts, music, teacher training, vocational agriculture, home economics, athletics, dramatics, and college preparatory work. They will be taught by specialized instructors.

Modern equipment and the latest texts are used in the Ord high school. They are housed in a building that is fire-proof, up to date and sanitary.

The Ord board of education hires enough teachers to prevent classes from growing too large. Dividing pupils into smaller groups makes it possible to solve the problems of individual differences more accurately. There is closer contact between teacher and pupil, and more direct help can be given.

Parents will make great sacrifices this year to send their youngsters to high school, because they recognize the value of education.

AT THE SALE RING IN ORD
SATURDAY, AUGUST 31
SALE STARTS AT 1:00 O'CLOCK

There was the largest assortment of stock in the market last Saturday of any time in the past year. The market was lower on all classes, due to the fact that the buyers who have been purchasing these cattle, putting them into their feed lots and moving them into Iowa markets, were unable to sell their cattle without a loss. One other thing that has had a bad effect upon our market here is that many of our cattle that are coming out of our pastures are 50 to 75 lbs. lighter than common; that is they do not have the fat on them. That is hurting the market because all feeders want cattle fat at this time. Small calves sold well and there was a broad demand.

It looks like next Saturday there will be another large run of cattle, including feeding steers from 500 to 750 lbs., stock cows with good calves by their side and about 100 head of mixed yearlings which are white faces, good quality and carry above the average amount of flesh.

Consign your stock to this market and we will give you the best service that it is possible for us to give.

The carnival company has been more successful since they left Burwell as they show at fairs which are closer together and are not compelled to travel the long distances between showings as was the case prior to their arrival in Burwell.
