Vol. 58 No. 45

H. M. Timmerman, Pioneer of the '70s, Died on Jan. 29th

Resident of Nebraska and Valley County for the Past 65 Years.

In the passing Jan. 29th of Hosmer M. Timmerman, Valley county and Springdale have lost one of the oldest settlers still remaining.

H. M. TIMMERMAN.

Many times he remarked in later years that those were the happiest days of his life. Everything had to be transported to Ord from Grand Island, by ox-team in those days, and Mr. Timmerman did his part in this work, making a great many trips overland, each of which required several days.

Hosmer M. Timmerman, son of Jonas and Cathlene Timmerman, was born in Steuben county, New York, Dec. 14, 1859, and departed this life Jan. 29, 1941, at the age of 81 years, one month and 15 days. He was the youngest of a family of nine children, all of whom have passed on. His mother and father died when he was ten years of age.

Mr. Timmerman grew to manhood in his native state of New York, having made his home with his sister and brother William. Two other brothers, Montgomery and Levi, came and all settled on the same section of land in Springdale.

He married Mary R. Finley of Erie, Pa., Nov. 27, 1881, and to this union were born five children: Myrtle Haught of North Platte, Jessie, who died in infancy, Lena Stewart of Ord, Ben Timmerman of Sumner, Neb., and Ed Timmerman of Ord. There were also 16 grandchildren and 6 great-grandchildren.

Funeral services were held Friday afternoon, Jan. 31, at 2 p. m. from the Pearson and Anderson chapel, with Rev. E. H. Maynard of Gothenburg in charge. The pall bearers were Leo Long, Herman Stowell, Harvey Thomsen, George Nay, Jim Covert and Marlon Strong. Robert Noll, John Haskell, Mrs. Mark Tolen and Mrs. E. O. Carlson sang, with Mrs. Noll at the organ. Burial was made in the Ord cemetery. Attending from a distance were Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Haught of North Platte and Mr. and Mrs. Ben Timmerman of Sumner.

Albion Defeated Ord

38 to 32 Friday Eve

In a game that was so replete with thrills that the scorekeeper forgot his job and got some of the individual figures mixed up, Albion edged the Ord high school basketball team on their own floor Friday evening by a final score of 38 to 32.

The Chanticleers were behind practically all the way, but they never gave up, and were coming strong right up to the finish. In fact if the game had lasted a little longer it is believed that they might have won. The score at the quarter was 10 to 4 for Albion, and at the half Albion led by 20 to 12. Malolepszy was the outstanding player for Ord, scoring from all angles and in all quarters to make 14 points and lead the Ord scoring. For Albion, Nelson and Harvey Petersen were outstanding, Nelson making 16 points and Petersen making 13. The Ord boys have no alibis, and agree that the better team won.

Boyd Holloway Married.

Mrs. Jean Romans, the former Miss Alma Holloway, received word this week of the marriage of her brother, Boyd Holloway, to Miss Lola Gipson of Tyler, Tex., Jan. 17. Mr. Holloway is employed at Corpus Christi, Tex., at which place they were married and where they will make their home.

Ord Man Commands Omaha Army Station

When Valley county draftees are sent to Omaha for final physical examination before induction into service, the first officer they will contact will be a former Ord man, Lieutenant Adrian Tolen, who commands the headquarters Omaha induction station. He is a first lieutenant in the infantry, assigned to this command at present. Adrian is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Irl Tolen, of Lincoln.

First Valley county draftee, Eddie Dumond, went to Lieut. Tolen's induction station last Tuesday and on Wednesday passed the final physical examination. He was sent to the reception center, Fort Leavenworth, Kan., where he was equipped and outfitted with clothing, after which he was sent to Camp Joseph T. Robinson, near Little Rock, Ark., and assigned for training to one of the Nebraska national guard units.

All Nebraska volunteers and draftees except a few from western Nebraska counties go through Lieut. Tolen's station being inducted into the army.

Income Tax Law Vastly Changed

Single Persons With Income of $800, Married $2,000 Must File Returns.

This is the income tax filing period and since Congress at its last session changed the law to bring six million new persons under its provisions it is wise for every person to investigate and, if he is in the income brackets affected, file a return by March 15.

Liability for filing a return this year is based on gross income instead of on net income as formerly.

Single persons whose gross income is $800 per year and married persons whose combined gross incomes are $2,000 per year must file a return. Last year this base was $1,000 for single persons and $2,500 for married persons.

The exemptions also have been lowered to $500 for single persons and $2,000 for married persons. The credit of $100 for each dependent has not been changed.

Penalties for failure to file a return include heavy fines and even imprisonment in federal prisons, for those in the income brackets affected. Even though exemptions release you from the obligation of paying an income tax you must file a return if you are single and your income is $800 or more, or married and your income is $2,000 or more.

To assist anybody who desires help in preparing his return Ed P. Curran, of Greeley, a representative of the internal revenue department, will be at the court house in Ord Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week.

Alex Gross, 85, Died at Home Here Monday

Another of the valley's pioneers was lost in the passing of Alexander Gross, who died at his home in Ord at 1:30 Tuesday morning. Mr. Gross had been a resident of the valley, either at Ord or Burwell, since 1876.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow from the Frazier Chapel. A more complete story of Mr. Gross' life will appear in the Quiz next week.

—Mrs. L. B. Knudson arrived Tuesday from Omaha and is staying at the home of her aunt, Miss Sarah McLain.

Two Get University Degrees.

Raymond J. Cronk and Kenneth T. McGinnis, both of Ord and Valley county, received degrees from the University of Nebraska at the end of the first semester. Mr. Cronk received a bachelor's degree in arts and McGinnis received a bachelor of science in medicine degree.

Firemen's Fifty-third Annual Ball Attended by 200 Couples

About 200 tickets were sold for the firemen's ball Tuesday night and more than that number of couples attended, including firemen and honorary firemen, so it was the largest crowd that has attended a dance in Ord for a long time. The Ord fire department will make approximately $100 on the dance, Chet Austin estimated this morning. Part of the crowd present at the Bohemian hall can be seen in this Quiz photo.

The music by Harry Collins' orchestra was greatly enjoyed, especially some of the old time and Bohemian numbers which Maestro Collins played by special request.

Many dancers from Burwell, North Loup, Scotia and other towns attended, as well as Ord people, and firemen are grateful for the fine support given this annual affair.

Mechanics Course Will Be Offered by Ord Schools

Young Men 17 to 25 Will Be Eligible; Tuition Free under Defense Set-up.

Ord high school, in cooperation with the Nebraska State Department of Vocational Education, will offer a course in the operation, care, and repair of motors, providing there are ten or twelve young men between the ages of 17 and 25 who are not now attending school and who are interested in receiving such training.

This course, and others similar to it, are offered in occupations essential to the national defense and all the expense of the course is met by the federal government.

A local mechanic will act as instructor, and the course will either be offered in a shop down town or in the high school agriculture shop.

A minimum of fifteen hours per week is required with the total length of the course being one hundred and twenty hours of class work. After the personnel has been selected, the time at which classes will meet will be decided.

The course, as it is now planned, will probably include all the general care and repair of motors, including such things as packing water pumps, adjusting brakes, setting up front wheel bearings, adjusting steering gear, grinding valves, replacing piston rings, replacing bearings, replacing axles, and all other types of mechanical work.

All young men who are interested are asked to notify Supt. C. C. Thompson, as soon as possible, because the course will start just as soon as the decided number are enrolled. There will be no tuition charge made for this course and boys either in Ord or vicinity are eligible.

The acceptance or rejection of any candidate for this course rests with the school authorities.

Minister Pinch-Hits for Absent Magician

The Ord Rotary club had a performance by a magician scheduled for its Monday after-dinner program but when the magician failed to arrive, possibly because of bad roads, President E. L. Kokes called on Rev. W. Ray Radliff, pastor of the Presbyterian church and a member of the club, to substitute for him. Mr. Radliff did so in splendid style, telling a few stories and singing a couple of songs in Scotch dialect which were enjoyed by club members.

Junior Rotarians for the month are James Ollis, jr., and David Milliken, who were chosen by seniors of Ord high school. The former was present Monday eve and was introduced by C. C. Thompson but David was ill and unable to attend the dinner. Both boys will meet with the club throughout February.

Ord Men Attended State Fair Meet

Many Changes Made; New Officials Are Chosen for Organization.

R. Clare Clement, president, and E. L. Kokes, director of the Valley county fair, drove to Lincoln to attend the annual meeting of the state board of agriculture held there Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of last week. Rodney Robinson went down with them on his way to enter the state university, and Don Tibbert rode back with them to North Loup.

Of special interest is the fact that the board elected a new group of officials for 1941. E. J. Mille of Loretto was selected for secretary over Perry Reed, incumbent since 1933, by a vote of 41 to 31. Other officers elected were Gates Lilley, Papillion, president; J. S. Golder, Oakland, first vice-president; Edwin Schultz, Elgin, second vice-president; G. F. Hueftle, Eustis, treasurer.

Reed said in his annual report that the 1940 fair was the most successful from every standpoint of any in the past eight years. Financially the fair started the year with a balance of $4,651, and ended the year with a balance of $19,494, after all payments were made. J. Frank Schubert, retiring president, stated that the total income from last year's exposition was $179,262.

There are two new members on the board of managers, Harry Doran from Burwell and D. W. Osborne of Pawnee City. The members holding over are Al Russell of Geneva and Preston Bailey of Carleton. These four with the president and two vice-presidents form the official board.

Valley County Lads Do Well at Denver

In the recent baby beef show at Denver, two Valley county boys had entries among the more than 250 exhibited and both of them were good enough to get their calves into the money. Donald Clement, exhibiting a purebred Hereford in the light weight class, under 875 pounds weight, took seventh place in this class, and Delevan Kingston, Arcadia, exhibiting a grade Hereford in the medium class, landed his entry in 9th place.

$260 Donated to the Polio Fund

Chairman Veleba is Pleased with Drive's Success, Thanks All Who Helped.

Total contributed by Valley county people to the infantile paralysis drive just closing was almost $260.00, says Charles E. Veleba, county chairman, and he expresses great satisfaction at the drive's success.

Coin cards turned in to date brought a total of $153.31, the Elyria dance and card party brought $14.15, the dance in Ord brought profits of $33.20, and the Arcadia community contributed $9.50 thru a dance and coin cards.

In addition, postmasters and the postal employees of the county collected almost $50 which was turned in to their own drive fund. Half of this amount will be credited to Valley county for local use, the same as though it had been turned in by the regular county organization.

Credit for much of the success of the drive is given by Chairman Veleba to the city chairmen, U. G. Evans, of Arcadia, Cecil Wardrop, of Ord, and W. E. Dodge, of Elyria.

In a statement released yesterday Veleba says: "May I take this means of thanking one and all for the fine help and support given the infantile paralysis drive. I especially want to thank the Quiz, the Arcadian and the Loyalist for publicity and financial support; the city chairmen and their wives, who did fine work; the teachers of the county and the women's clubs; Father Szumski, the Catholic ladies and the Jolly Home Makers club of Elyria; the AAA committeemen and their wives; the postmasters and employees; and everybody else who helped in any way, as well as those who made donations."

Chairman Veleba says that all coin cards still out should be turned in at once, so that a complete report of the drive in this county may be made to the national organization.

Class Will Have Reunion.

The class of 1933, Ord high school, is planning a reunion Feb. 8, at the Masonic Hall. The entertainment will be dancing and games, and a pot luck supper. Several out-of-town classmates are expected to attend, and any who were overlooked in the notification are invited. This class numbered 87, and was the largest in the history of the school up to that time.

Joseph Kusek, Sr., Resident of Elyria, Passed on Sat'day

Nearly Ninety Years of Age, Valley County Resident for Past 36 Years.

Joseph Kusek, sr., who came to Valley county in 1904, passed away at the Elyria home of his son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Kusek, Saturday, Febr. 1 at 8:30 a. m., his death being due to the complications attendant upon advanced age. Had he lived until Febr. 22 he would have been 90 years old.

Mr. Kusek had enjoyed fairly good health for the past several years until recently. He was born in Pilsno, Poland, Febr. 22, 1850. He was married to Miss Josephine Augustyn, June 30, 1880. The young couple came to this country the year following their marriage and settled on a farm in Platte county, 2 1/2 miles east of Tarnov.

Two years later they homesteaded a farm three miles west of Duncan, Neb. There they lived until 1889, when they moved back to the Tarnov neighborhood. In 1894 they moved to Nance county and in 1904 to Valley county. In March, 1916, they retired from the farm and moved to Ord, where they lived until his wife's death, Jan. 4, 1932.

JOSEPH KUSEK.

To this union were born 14 children, two of whom died in infancy. A daughter, Mrs. Frank Dubas of Burwell and a son, Frank W. of Spalding, preceded the parents in death. In the year 1912 they adopted a little girl whose name was Catherine Connelly. Having one daughter named Kathryn, they changed the little girl's name to Eva. In 1927 she became

All Legionnaires Will Register February 22

According to information phoned yesterday from Lincoln by A. A. Wiegardt and given out at the American Legion meeting last night, all Legionnaires are to be registered for convenience in the government's preparedness program. Feb. 22 has been selected as the day for registration.

Commander C. D. Wardrop appointed a committee of four members, C. J. Mortensen, chairman, E. L. Vogelant, Horace Travis and Alfred L. Hill, to have charge of the work. Details of the registration are more or less indefinite at this time, but all Legionnaires are urged to inform themselves by seeing one of the committee before Feb. 22.

Six Escape with Minor Injuries in Car Accident

No one was seriously injured early last Wednesday morning when a new Hudson coach, bearing a Loup county license and carrying six people from Burwell and Taylor, left Highway No. 11 near the Ellis Leth place between Elba and Cotesfield, jumped the right of way fence and came to rest after turning over three times.

Myrtle Thompson of Taylor was brought to the Ord hospital and treated for an injured shoulder, and Veva Goodwin of Burwell had a collar bone broken. The auto was almost completely wrecked and those who saw it wondered how anybody could have been in it and escaped serious injury.

Car License Sales Ahead of Last Year

County Treasurer George Satterfield and his assistants, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Baker, were plenty busy Friday, Jan. 31, taking care of the rush for auto licenses before the time expired that night. During the day, in addition to all the other work of the office, 182 licenses were sold.

The total number of 1941 licenses sold at the close of business that day was 1935, as compared with 1774 for the same date last year. The past month was not too cold, and while there was plenty of snow, the month was better than the same period a year ago, when a near record for cold was set.

Two Hundred Farmers Attended Irrigation School at Arcadia

A crowd of 200 attended the irrigation institute held Monday and Tuesday at the high school auditorium in Arcadia and heard the group of speakers pictured here. Left to right, the speakers are: W. W. Derrick, Valley County Agent C. C. Dale, J. W. Fitts, R. O. Pierce, D. L. Gross, E. H. Hoppert and Custer County Agent M. L. Gould. Part of the crowd may be seen in the background.

Two men who spoke Tuesday, Marx Koenke and Dr. J. E. Livingston, are not pictured here. All these speakers also will appear on the program at the North Loup valley institute being held at Burwell today and tomorrow.

ABSURD ADVERTISING.

It is usually safe for the customer to discount very largely the claims of the absurd advertiser, and most customers have learned that fact. The fakir of the traveling medicine show made sales by claiming all kinds of miraculous things about the product he had for sale and at the same time convincing them that they were getting a real bargain.

In spite of the fact that this has been known for generations, every medicine fakir who hits the town makes a number of sales, and he usually makes these sales to older men, men who have perhaps seen such fakirs before, but who are taken in, nevertheless. However, our present laws make it difficult for the old style cure-all man to ply his trade.

At this time, however, we come in contact with a new type of publicity man, on a higher plane than the old type street medicine man, but operating along much the same lines. The chief difference between this man and the man who advertises in the newspapers is not in what he says, but the way in which he says it, although he sometimes makes almost absurd claims.

The attitude this type of salesman takes is that his is the one and only product of its kind, the only remedy that will cure the disease for which it is intended. To hear him talk, you would think that there was no other product in the world made for the same purpose as his. His idea is to sell his product to the exclusion of every other.

The utter absurdity of this line of reasoning is evident to many, but it is apparent that, among his thousands of listeners there will be many who take his statements for gospel truth. As one man recently stated: "He must be telling the truth, or they would make him get off the air". The only way of making him get off the air would be for some competitor to start action, and they are all tarred with the same stick.

The radio advertiser has two advantages, if they may be called that, over the newspaper advertiser, and both of these work to the discomfort of the average listener. When you read the newspaper you read what you want to read, ads included, and skip what you are not interested in. You either sit by your radio and turn it down during the ads, or else listen to them whether you want to or not.

The other advantage is that he may, and does, go beyond the limits of the printed copy furnished him by the advertiser, and, by putting the pathos in the right place, produce a much different effect that can be conveyed by mere words. Radio advertising ranges from the reading of ad copy in a smooth, well modulated voice to making it so dramatic that those who are not even sick are apt to have all the symptoms mentioned before the speaker is through.

The absurdity of much radio advertising is shown by the fact that a certain commentator was putting out publicity for a well known cough remedy in December, giving the impression that it was the only kind to use, and on his first broadcast in January he came out making the same claims for an entirely different product.

Many worth while items are advertised over the radio, but it is well for the customer to consider statements carefully and not be carried away by the enthusiasm of a paid announcer. If the item is advertised in the newspapers as well as over the radio, it is likely to be a safe product to buy. So long as the radio stations must depend upon advertising for support, we will have to accept this advertising as a necessary evil.

SHRINKING BIRTH RATE.

Figures released by the Bureau of the Census last week bring out some rather startling conditions and serve to prove what informed people have been telling us for years, that the birth rate is decreasing rapidly in the United States. The same pamphlet furishes proof that people are living to a greater age now than at any time in our history.

The reduced birth rate is nothing to be alarmed about, unless the reduction becomes so great that births are fewer than deaths. This would be a serious condition indeed, similar to that in France during the past generation or two. Eventually such a condition would depopulate the country to such an extent that our standing as a nation would be endangered.

In a democratic government there will come a time when the population is at a standstill, but so long as there are enough people to transact the business of the nation, this condition is nothing to worry about. In a totalitarian government, where men for a large standing army are a necessity, any reduction in population can be a distinct menace.

The Bureau of Census issued a table, known as the median age table, in which was given the median, or average of all persons in the United States for 1940. This was found to be 29 years for the males and 28.9 for the females. The figures were given back to 1890, when the median age of males was 21.5, and of females, 21 years, the age gradually increasing through the ensuing decades.

With this increase in the average age, an increase in population would be inevitable if the birth rate remained the same. However, it has not, as is proven by another table showing the percentage of distribution by ages in 1940 as compared with 1930. The findings here are truly startling, though nothing more than a person would have a right to expect.

The figures are as follows: 34.5% of the people were under 20 years in 1940, and 38.3% in 1930; 39% were 20 to 44 years in 1940, and 38.3% in 1930; 19.7% were 45 to 64 years in 1940, and 17.4% in 1930; 6.8% were 65 years and over in 1940, and 5.4% in 1930.

In 1940 there were 8,956,206 persons in the United States who had reached the age of 65 years, considerably more than 2,000,000 more than had reached that age in 1930. At the same time there were 5,500,000 fewer people under 20 years of age in 1940 than there were in 1930.

This increase in the average age was made in spite of the fact that accidents of all kinds accounted for the death of 93,000 persons in the United States last year, nearly double the number of Americans killed in battle during the World War. This number is more than the population of eleven counties the size of Valley.

TO PROTECT IRRIGATORS.

Senator A. C. Van Diest, of our neighboring county of Loup, has proposed in the current session of the Nebraska legislature a bill which will, if it is passed, do much to settle the fight now brewing over whether irrigation or power shall have prior right to the waters of Nebraska streams.

The Van Diest bill, numbered 202, would amend Secs. 70-707 of the statutes to give those using water for agricultural purposes a preference over those using it for power purposes, sets forth the procedure by which irrigation districts may acquire and appropriate water now being used for power purposes and defines "just compensation" which the irrigation districts shall pay for water so appropriated.

When the Nebraska laws on this point were drawn, and especially when the enabling act known as S. P. 310 was passed a few years ago, making it possible for our present power and irrigation districts to be organized, it certainly was not intended that water should be denied to farmers who need it to raise crops, in order that power might be produced.

Electricity can be generated by coal, or oil or other fuels but only water applied to Nebraska's fertile soil can grow crops, and only growing crops can keep farmers on Nebraska farms.

At present the success of districts already organized, like the North and Middle Loup districts, and new ones proposed, like the Sargent district, is threatened by the stand taken by the Loup district at Columbus, which contends that because it has a prior right to the waters of the Loup river, water should be denied to irrigators and left in the streams so that power may be generated at Columbus.

Passage of the Van Diest bill, possibly with minor amendments, would do much to protect irrigators and would save the irrigation districts thousands of dollars in costs by averting long-drawn-out court actions such as are now threatened.

My Own Column

By H. D. Leggett

If the members of the legislature will do away with a bunch of boards and commissions, pass a few necessary laws and adjourn and go home soon enough to make this a record session for shortness of time, they will be doing the people of Nebraska a wonderful service. Of course there are a lot of good sisters and professional reformers who would, if they could, have several commissions and boards set up. As a rule such boards and commissions are tax eaters who seldom pay any taxes themselves.

My philosophy of life is to always look on the bright side un-

Old Time Group by Anderson Proves Real Puzzle

The above photo, taken by W. A. Anderson about 1890 or earlier, looked so familiar that we had it made up, expecting that it would be no trouble to find somebody who could name a part of them, at least. However, this has not proven easy, and the only clue we can give is that the middle fellow in the back row looks very much like Harold W. Fought, while the second girl to his right in the group in front of him might be his sister Aggie. If you can help us identify the rest of them come in and see the original picture and tell us all about it.

til circumstances force me to do otherwise. Some folks have a different philosophy and always look on the dark side until circumstances force them to change their views and thereby get a chance to do a lot of high class worrying that, otherwise, they would miss. Somehow I feel that my way is best. Still, people built the other way can't help it I suppose.

Total defense should mean no jobless, says a news story heading. But I believe we should do a little thinking, even if everyone gets a job in the defense program, about what will happen when the war ends and the necessity for war munitions tapers off, as it surely must. Neither this nor any other country can go on forever borrowing and spending money the way we are doing now. Most people feel that the depression that followed the first world war will be a picnic compared with what we will get when the present war ends. So it behooves everyone who makes a decent living while this war is going on, to live on less and save some for the rainy day that is surely coming. It may not be nice to spread such gloomy thoughts but it might be better in the long run if more people were thinking along these lines.

I hope I have finished my winter vacation. It was not long but it was long enough. When I went up stairs last Wednesday afternoon, after helping to get the Quiz run and into the postoffice, I had no idea that I would stay there, and in bed, till Monday of this week. But such proved to be the case. I know I was awful tired, but I am usually more or less tired when late Wednesday comes. I told the Missus that I was much more tired than usual. I am usually hungry but that night I had little appetite and I ached and felt chilly. I was sneezing often and so was the Missus. Flu, I guess, she said, and by seven-thirty we were both in bed. And we stayed there till Sunday. Most of you can guess how we felt, for you have had it. She is still in bed Monday but I think a couple of days more may let her up. I have turned a week since being shaved but have orders to go no further than my desk. When I came down I was a bit rebellious and had my neck bowed a little, with the idea that I would go contrary to orders and visit the barber. But after a couple of hours I believe I will be content to stay in today. In fact if Helen was not out collecting and everyone else busy, I think I would go up and try the bed a while now. But Kent didn't show up this morning and everyone is busy, so I will try to stay on the job, at least till noon.

The enthusiasm with which the senators talked of a small number of bills and a short session, has subsided and now this session promises to be a record for number of new bills introduced and the length of it. And it is a shame. We did so need a break this year. Many of the bills, if made into law, would be a detriment. But it seems that every senator has a lot of fool notions that he must parade before the public at great length and expense. So far I have seen no record of our senator introducing a bill and perhaps he will not. If he does the right thing he will oppose a majority of those so far introduced.

A Gering man who kicks like a boy steer at holding the baby thirty minutes at a time seems to forget . . . That he used to hold the baby's mother three hours at a time without tiring a muscle.

After learning to depend upon his fine son Warren for taking a lot of the burden of running the Gering Courier off his own shoulders, Ase Wood is back in the harness and making a full team, if an old guy almost a hundred can do that, while Warren is in the army. I can very easily imagine just how he is feeling and I hope can have the strength to carry on the job.

A FEW THINGS TO THINK ABOUT

Written by GEORGE GOWEN

A Low Outlook If Hitler Wins Should England Win At Home

A Low Outlook.

Most any way we look at it, the coming year of 1941 appears dour, and for the main reason that a major part of the earth's civilized nations are in the grip of war. Although it has not touched our soil yet, it is saddening to us to even stand and watch that waste of life and property. It is alarming to us too, for fear it may come here.

The outlook is dour also, because it appears now this war is drifting into a stalemate. A quick victory would at least have the destruction over. A stalemate might last for years, and the long-end of the war lasts, the more exhausted will be the people and the nations in the end.

Few of us believe Hitler's bragging, that he will invade, conquer and destroy Great Britain. It is possible he is bragging to bolster his people's spirit. It is possible too, that he may do just what he says he will do. He bragged he would take France and he did it. He made good most of his boasts. We cannot dispute he is very powerful; that he has taken more people and nations under his rule than any other man ever did. But he has not taken England yet. England is getting stronger each day. England has whipped Italy until it hardly counts any more. England has the money bags. English spirit has not been broken. England still has control (mostly) of the seas. English shipping is still in operation.

In spite of this, England has no way to attack Germany or no landing port on the continent any more than Germany has on England. It seems the remotest possibility for England to whip Germany on the land. If Germany is whipped, most people think it will be from some other cause than land fighting.

With all the countries Germany has annexed and conquered, her resources are much greater than in the other world war. Then the trench border stopped them on

Nebraska in the Making

By Joseph C. Alden

The first covered wagon train to cross Nebraska over the Oregon Trail started a hundred and eleven years ago on April 10, 1830. Neither time nor plow has obliterated the marks of this historic route. It was the highway across which flowed the migration that was to transform the character of the country and make a homeland of plains and prairies.

Along the trail in western Nebraska travelers saw some astonishing landmarks—Court House Rock, Jail Rock, Chimney Rock, and then the towering mound that later received the name Scotts Bluff. These rocky formations seemed entirely out of place on the broad surface of the Platte river valley. Even yet these bold sentinels seem to tell of a day eons ago when something beside black or sandy loam covered the face of the land.

It is estimated that twenty thousand men, women and children lost their lives on this trail in the period of migration spurred by the Oregon trail. Dangers from storm, hunger, exhaustion, Indians, and bandits dogged the course of the travelers who were compelled to resort to mass movements in trains for self protection.

One of the picturesque figures of those settlement days was Ezra Meeker who made the long journey to Oregon in 1852. In 1906 he retraced his course with an ox-team and recalled to people along the way the mode of travel and the privations and perils of travel when oxen pulled the covered wagons and a day's journey was about fifteen miles. No more do the ox-teams stir the deep dust of the Oregon Trail but the prints of memory mark it well in the recollection of the passing generation.

the west and Russia on the east. Now Germany has the resources of all the continent and if a nation will not sell for Hitler's price he takes what he wants anyway.

None of us believe now Hitler can cross the channel and take England; we believe if he could have he would have done so before. And the most optimistic cannot figure how England can whip Germany unless it is by blockade, or oil shortage, or revolution or some way other than gun fighting. This war might last for many years.

If Hitler Wins.

But if Hitler should win a quick victory, we quaver at the thought of what might happen next. In winning that victory Hitler might and probably would, take the English navy too. He would take Gibraltar and the Suez Canal and perhaps Singapore. Many people scoff at that, saying the navy would scatter to the colonies or to America.

But when England surrenders, Churchill will be out. It will be the same as France and an appeaser like Pétain or Laval will be in Churchill's place. Promises and contracts Churchill has made will be of no concern to the new bunch. In all probability the new bunch will not agree with Churchill's work at all and will do most anything they can different. When England falls, our turn will be that much nearer. It may be next. It is doubtful if Hitler will try to conquer the United States by gun fighting. With the English navy he can run a blockade around us, sink our ships, cut us off from world trading, perhaps attack Panama or Alaska and all manner of things that would not be actual invasion. And do not think he would not do it either. He would do anything to accomplish his end.

Should England Win.

The great preponderance of opinion is in favor of Great Britain. We rejoice at any victory they get, no matter how small. They have been tremendously successful against the Italians and we delight in it. But whipping the Italians does not mean Germany is whipped. Many of us feel Lindbergh was too nearly right when he said both England and United States cannot whip Germany in actual fighting.

But if the miracle should happen and Germany should surrender soon, what sort of a peace would result? Would United States be consulted or would another spiteful Versailles treaty be inflicted that would bring on another war in twenty years.

At Home. Here in the United States things will not be so rosy in 1941. Already in debt nearly fifty billions, we now are adding more billions and more billions for nothing in return. We are building an army and all that goes with it, at a frightful cost and all on earth it is designed for is destruction. Some one will have to pay for this sometime, some way or another; some one will have to pay for this debacle.

And we call ourselves civilized. For a fact, the one land that has had the least war of any on earth, is dark Africa.

Something Different

Down in Texas they have mother-in-law day, which we do not.

Nevertheless, there is a good deal to be said for mother-in-laws, or mothers-in-law, whichever you prefer.

Secondly, I think they are overly maligned, just as are step-mothers. I know there are probably poor ones, middling ones and good ones.

I was fortunate and won a dandy. In fact I don't know what I'd do without her. She stays in the background and is so quiet no one knows her.

She has also been known to be lots of good for other uses. She came up and helped me paint kitchen and pantry woodwork for two or three days one time.

Mrs. Leggett has helped me with sewing problems. She has said "Just leave it here, Irma", more than once . . . for me to return next morning to find she had finished it for me.

She has taught me a great many other things too, and taught them pleasantly. If I needed to know why something faded in the wash, or what ailed the cake, she would help me.

She has also respected my wishes when it came to raising my boys. If I announced I did not want them to have such and such, she has refrained without comment, although I know sometimes she thought I was a . . . deleted . . . fool.

Mothers are commonly expected to teach their daughters and help them freely. My mother has always done everything for me she possibly could and then much more.

But mothers-in-law aren't supposed to be such a gain. I was lucky, as you can see by reading the above, which isn't the half of it. My mother is too far away to help me much, but my mother-in-law pinch hits valiantly. She is an ever present help in time of trouble.

Fir Balsam, Pitch, From Trees. Fir balsam or fir pitch is obtained from fir trees in the form of a clear yellowish liquid by tapping much as maple sap is taken.

QUIZ FORUM

Ord, Nebr. Jan. 27, 1941. Dear Editor of The Quiz, On page two of the Quiz of January 22, I read the article entitled "They Also Serve". It was interesting and logical but, in part, quite out of line with the facts that existed at the beginning of the war.

The following is the Anglo-French policy: Destruction of the country's integrity, surrender of fortifications and indispensable industrial areas to Germany without plebiscite, with a plebiscite to follow in other areas, abandonment of the defense alliances and neutralization of the rump republic. On Sept. 20, French Foreign Minister Bonnet sent for Osusky, Czechoslovakian minister to France, and broke the news to him.

Fortunately, England under the leadership of prime minister Churchill is a far different England from the one of 1938, and here is hoping that Hitler will never succeed in completing the serving of that death warrant, and that independence will again be restored to the conquered nations.

FOR LOVERS OF SUPER-EXCELLENT

Beef

We always plan to have in our refrigerator and display case beef of excellent quality but this week we have some that is extra-fine. Last week we butchered a fine 800 pound steer fed out by Clayton Gilroy, one of the best of local feeders, and now have all cuts from this animal on sale.

We believe Valley county feeders are as good as any in the world and make it a practice to buy all our better beef from them.

You can count on getting good meat here, at fair prices, always.

The Quiz is in receipt of a letter from Nellie Potter Sampson, Box 341, Ceres, Calif., in which she comments on the picture of the Harvey Potter log house published in the Ord Quiz of Dec. 25, a copy of which was sent her by her sister, Mrs. Bert Barnes, of LaCrosse, Wis.

Mrs. Sampson identifies the children in the photo as follows: The boy was her brother Millard, the largest girl was Edna (Mrs. Barnes) and the little girl was Jessie. Jessie and Millard are now dead. The picture was taken in 1890, and Mrs. Sampson was born in October, 1890.

She said that she at one time had a copy of the picture, but it and all others she had were destroyed in a fire, and she and Mrs. Barnes had searched for many years for another of the pictures and had given it up as a hopeless task. The picture was taken by W. A. Anderson who kept the negative for 50 years, and turned it over to the Quiz last fall.

The freshman class recently picked Ed Tunnicliff as "most outstanding athlete" and the junior class chose Bob Tunnicliff as "best all-around junior." Coach H. F. Brockman is doing splendidly as mentor of Kewanee High athletics also. Considering the stiff type of competition, he is giving Kewanee far better results than had been expected in his first or even second year and he has the city and student body squarely behind him. He has 450 gym students daily at Central high, supervises athletics in five grade schools and has his coaching duties besides, so he is very busy. Coach Brockman's basketball team is in the running for the conference championship and his football team did well last fall, especially in late games. Larger Illinois schools are said to be taking note of Brockman's progress but Kewanee people are hoping to retain his services for a few years at least.

Second Cookbooklet Ready Next Thursday

To use leftovers skillfully so that they are not recognized as such, sounds like a job for a wizard, but a glance at "500 Delicious Dishes from Leftovers," the second in the series of 20 Cookbooklets is enough to convince us that even an inexperienced homemaker can perform miracles. Every woman who plans meals on a budget is interested in saving money, and economy is one of the features of this remarkable booklet. However, from the finished product, you would never guess that these sumptuous dishes cost so little to prepare. For instance, the delightful Shepherd's Pie, illustrated here, is made of leftover lamb and mashed potatoes—an excellent way to use the remains of that leg of lamb or lamb roast from Sunday's dinner. It's a great source of satisfaction to know that nothing is wasted—that good use is made of every bit of food you purchase, and it's even more satisfying to know that while you save money, you can still serve attractive and delicious meals. The Leftover booklet is full of clever, easy recipes and ideas for making use of your leftover bread, cake, crackers, eggs, cheese, meats, poultry, fish, sour milk and cream, fruits, vegetables, coffee, cocoa, etc. There are many attractive illustrations too that show how appealing these simple dishes can be. This second booklet is ready next week and may be obtained with only one coupon from any issue of the Quiz. Booklets are available at the business office of the Quiz, at the Vodehnal Pharmacy, in North Loup, and at the Ramsey Drug Store in Arcadia.

Dewey E. Radliff Writes of Life in U. S. Navy

Rev. W. Ray Radliff received a letter from his son Dewey last week telling of the fact that he is now located at the Hospital Corps school in New York. It will be recalled that young Radliff chose this work when he entered the navy. He tells that the building in which the corps school is located is an immense structure, four stories high and covering three square blocks of ground.

He went there Jan. 23 with nine recruits and had many interesting experiences. He says he was surprised to find that he could ride all over the great city of New York for a nickel. Sunday he started out to find a Presbyterian church, and became so interested in sight seeing that he never did find a church. He went over to Ellis Island and to the Goddess of Liberty on Bedloe's Island, his uniform passing him without question.

He mentioned also about being put on guard duty. At 9 a. m. two sailors went past him heading for the river. He yelled "Halt!" but they went right on. He had orders to shoot, but did not like to do it, so another guard took his place and he ran them down, only to find that they were also new men and did not know that they were supposed to halt. His address is: Hospital Corps School, Naval Hospital, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Ord Ice Club Members Different Than Stated

The Quiz printed an old time picture of the Ord Ice Club last week, naming all the members, two with reservations. These two were wrong, as we were promptly informed by John Haskell, Forrest Johnson, Jake Hoffman and others. The Dalley standing in the rear row was not Wes, but Art. The man seated at the left was not Eric Crow, but the equally well known Clay Stroup.

The members of this group are now widely scattered, according to Mr. Hoffman. Ray Hamilton is the only one of the group who is dead. Jake Hoffman, Dutch Burger and John Mason are still in Ord. Bill Hoffman is in Pasadena, Calif., Art Dalley is at Olds, Alberta, Canada, Herbert Severson is at Scottsbluff, and Clay Stroup is at Scribner. We were glad to be able to print this picture, which was much appreciated by Quiz readers.

Frank E. Smith Was Once Well Known Here

Frank E. Smith, whose passing at Soda Springs, Colo., was mentioned briefly last week, was once well known here, according to Theodor Beehrle, who knew him well. He once owned the place now owned by Joe Polak, and the Beehrle brothers, Thearon and Jake, farmed it for him in 1897, at which time Smith was in the stock business in South Omaha.

The next year Frank's father came out from the east and taught Thearon to stack grain with a fork. For a few years before going to Omaha, Smith was buying stock at Greeley with Will Reed. Leaving Omaha he spent many years in the same business in Denver, and amassed a fortune reputed to run into the millions.

Retiring from the exchange business he bought a ranch at Soda Springs, and he and his wife took a three-year trip all over the United States, going by auto for a time, then selling the auto and going by train for a while, and then going back to the car method of transportation. Beehrle recalls that Smith went out west, bought three buffalo and in 1898 exhibited them at the Trans-Mississippi exposition in Omaha. He was a great friend of Clarence Blessing also, and Clarence visited him once at his Soda Springs home.

New Snow Plow In Use.

R. F. Randolph tells the Quiz that the highway department has a new snow plow truck in use now. It is a 4-wheel drive Morgan-Herrington Ford, and was used to clear the highways after the last snow. It is made especially to handle the snow problem on the highways, and will work equally well in light or heavy snow, traveling normally at about 20 miles per hour when at work. By its use the time required to clear the highways of snow is lessened materially.

Seek to Irrigate in Burwell Village

Sixty townspeople gathered at the court house Monday evening to learn about the prospects for bringing irrigation water into the village limits to water trees, lawns, flowers, and gardens. A collection of $25 was raised for the purpose of conducting a preliminary survey to see if an irrigation project is feasible for Burwell.

Roy Hudson, of North Loup, president of the North Loup Valley Irrigation district, was present to explain how the project worked in his town and to answer questions troubling the townspeople. Mr. Hudson stated that he believed water could be brought into Burwell for about $25 per tract, the tracts varying in size from a lot to an acre. This fee would be used to construct the canals and the laterals, with the use of WPA labor and that after the first year the tracts could be watered for about $3 per acre.

Russell Jensen who surveyed the town of North Loup stated that he believed a preliminary survey could be made for about $25. Lyman Kern, who has had experience surveying, offered to carry the chain for him.

Roy Dillon, a WPA representative who was present stated that he believed that the undertaking could be made into a WPA project. If this is done the project will have to be approved by the village board or a separate irrigation district will have to be formed with a charter from the state department of roads and irrigation.

L. E. Walford, the water master for the North Loup Valley district, declared that a supply of water would be available for use in the town. Some of the people present objected that the farmers did not get all of the water they needed last summer and doubted that any water would be available for use in town even though arrangements were made for handling it.

In answer to the objection that the ditch would be a breeding place for mosquitoes, Mr. Hudson said that mosquitoes were no more in evidence in North Loup after the completion of the project than they were before.

Of the sixty persons present none expressed any disapproval for attempting to go ahead with the project. R. L. Walker presided over the meeting. B. A. Rose was elected temporary chairman, R. L. Walker, secretary and treasurer, and R. B. Grunkemeyer, Dewey Demaree, J. C. Phillips, Jr., L. R. Williams and Walter Lund were elected directors of the temporary organization. The meeting adjourned with the understanding that another would be held as soon as the preliminary survey is completed.

It has been an active society the entire time, at times having a large membership and at other times only a few. Of the charter members Mrs. G. L. Hutchins is the only member residing in North Loup although Mrs. Melva Worth was one of the first superintendents. Monday night Rev. Ehret gave a pancake and sausage supper to members of the society at the parsonage. All had a very enjoyable evening.

IT HAPPENED IN ORD.

Thursday afternoon Mid Garner was explaining the beauties of classical music to Sol Brox and others at the Valley County Abstract office, illustrating his lecture with occasional snatches of song. After a while Brox came across with a melody of his own, which all the boys present agreed topped anything that Garner had produced. Anyway both of them do right well for men of their age.

Last week the writer got into serious difficulty by calling to some small lads from the grade school and saying, "Hello, Men." The smallest of the group, not more than 6 years old, came back with, "John, if you don't quit that you'll make me mad. We ain't men; we're just little kids." Which goes to prove that you just cant kid kids.

Festus Williams made the statement the other day that his house in Ord has seven gables, reminding one of Hawthorne's novel, "The House of Seven Gables". One other well known house in the country has seven gables. It is the former John Fish house at the old highway corner east of Olean. Perhaps there are others, but seven-gabled houses are a rarity.

The January records show that the third ward is booming. John Edmiston started up his machine shop in the former Bailey and Detweiler warehouse. Then the bus depot moved to its new location in the Oddfellows hall and Syl Furtak followed to the same building Friday. Last week Charles LeMasters moved to the Mrs. C. C. Brown building. These all came from the first ward, and in return Rotar moved his hatchery from the third ward to the first.

If mud is any criterion, we should have plenty of moisture this spring. Saturday Rice held a sale on his lots, and the mud there was plenty bad. It was also plenty deep and slick on other vacant lots around the square, and the alleys were hardly things of beauty. One could not help but wonder how it would look if we had no paving or gravel on the streets. Improvements cost money, but they are worth it.

The ground hog had very little chance to see his shadow Sunday in Ord, even if there were any ground hogs in this part of the state, which there are not. Saturday was a bright, clear day, but Sunday morning dawned cloudy, and the clouds remained all day, lightening somewhat at 10:30 a. m.

As a matter of fact, we will probably have an early spring, not because of what happened Sunday, but because we have had quite a lot of winter already.

A peculiarity of weather conditions was noted by Clyde Baker on a trip to Dunning Sunday. He said that when they crossed the Middle Loup at Arcadia the river was frozen over solid, but that the same river in the vicinity of Dunning, and also the Disual river, which branches from the Middle Loup at Dunning, were wide open and practically free from ice. Also, while it was cloudy in Ord all day, the sun was shining bright at Dunning.

NEWS OF THE NEIGHBORHOOD

The Spalding Enterprise states that fire a week ago Sunday destroyed the farm home of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Hendrickson, with part of the contents. The Spalding Fire department was sent for, but was unable to get there because of the snow blocked roads.

The village of Sargent has had three fire alarms in the month of 1941, but luckily the damage in each case was slight. The Amos chicken house, the telephone office and the Lysinger garage were the places from which the calls came.

August Kostecky of Sargent is the new manager of the Farmers Union store at Taylor, according to the Clarion. He has repainted the interior of the building and restocked the shelves. Mr. Kostecky is well known in this section, having run a produce buying truck out of Sargent for several years.

Average High Test Rating of 19 PREMIUM GASOLINES

Starts Cold Motors Faster

Why close your eyes to the possibility of getting more for your money? ... to the certainty of getting higher test, which means a higher level of performance, in addition to faster starting?

Just stop at any Orange and Black 66 Shield. That's where you get extra high test without paying a penny extra.

Phillips 66 Poly Gas is not merely higher test than other gasolines which sell at the same price. It is actually higher test than most premium gasolines which sell for 2¢ more per gallon.

This remarkable fact was proved by scientific laboratory study of 303 separate samples of 19 different premium gasolines. The Volatility Number (high test rating) of Phillips 66 Poly Gas was 50 per cent higher than the average Volatility Number of the premium price motor fuels.

It's the "hottest" cold-weather gasoline you've ever used. Loaded with extra wallop, extra heat units, and extra miles. Gives faster warm-up. More mileage, too, because it saves the gasoline usually wasted by excessive chocking with low test motor fuel.

How can Phillips be so lavish, so generous with high test? Well, that's easy. Phillips has more of it, because Phillips is the WORLD'S LARGEST PRODUCER of natural high test gasoline.

Rolling Rockets on Tour of West Coast

Mrs. C. E. McGrew recently received a letter from Miss Arlene Bradt, a member of the Rolling Rocket trio who are now on a tour of the west as a unit of Major Bowes Talent Parade of 1941. She wrote from Seattle, Wash., and enclosed a picture of them from the Seattle Post-Intelligencer. Their itinerary includes many of the cities of the west, one day in each, with longer stays in the larger cities.

They will probably be back in Lincoln, Nebr., March 23 to 25. Miss Bradt said she surely would like to play Ord with the Bowes unit, but she understood that we do not have stage shows here. They are putting on as many as five performances a day, which keeps them plenty busy. It will be remembered that the Rolling Rockets performed at the Ord fair last fall.

—Ansel Clark writes his father, R. J. Clark, telling that their oldest son, Melvin, who was formerly employed in New York City, is now in the employ of the Michigan Alkali company, with headquarters in Detroit, and that he will probably move to Detroit this summer or next fall.

Confers With Wilkie.

Of particular interest was the news coming from London that Mrs. E. O. Kull's cousin, Miss Ellen Wilkinson, labor member of the British parliament, met and escorted Wendell Wilkie on his recent tour of the London air-raid shelters.

Miss Wilkinson, who is a first cousin of Mrs. Kull, has had a spectacular career. During the first World War, when she was a girl of about 17 years, she was a member of the Woman's Army Auxiliary corps and became a sergeant, driving a ten ton lorry to the firing lines in France, later winning a citation for gallantry.

After the war she organized the Women's party and marched to London at the head of 700 unemployed women, a distance of 150 miles. Later she became member of parliament from her district, a position she has held since 1926. Of late she has worked at bettering the condition of the poor in the London air-raid shelters, where they call her "Queen of the Shelters."

—Joe Eret of Sargent, brother-in-law of Anton Bartunek, came to Ord Saturday and went to St. Paul on the afternoon bus to visit his daughter, Mrs. Fred Haruda.

Attend Lincoln Meet.

Miss Clara McClatchey drove to Lincoln Tuesday morning, taking with her Mrs. Blanche Pfehm of St. Paul, to attend the county superintendent's state meeting, held at Lincoln Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. They returned home on Thursday evening. Miss McClatchey said the principal theme of the meeting was the tax problem and the problem of school support.

Why Should a Farmer Order His Tractor NOW?

- * REASON No. 1—Break in your new tractor early on light hauling and belt jobs—prepare now for most efficient operation.
- * REASON No. 2—Buy early for a better deal on your old tractor. Buy while we are short on used tractors—while we can offer you an attractive trade.
- * REASON No. 3—If you plan to change from teams to a tractor this spring, save a good many dollars' worth of horse or mule feed by trading now.
- * REASON No. 4—Be forehanded—get your order on the books while tractor prices are still based on 1940 labor and material costs.
- * REASON No. 5—You Won't have to worry over late delivery when you buy early. Experience proves that late buyers frequently have to wait longer than they want to for their tractors.
- * REASON No. 6—If your young son or daughter plans to "man" your tractor for the first time this spring, choose your safe, comfortable, easy-to-handle tractor now, so the new operator will have a good chance to become familiar with it ahead of the rush.
- * REASON No. 7—Every John Deere in our store is the product of careful, precise work. These modern power-partners were built under the most favorable manufacturing conditions. You will have to go a long way to find a tractor as good as the John Deere that is waiting for you in our store.

COME IN AND TALK TO US ABOUT THESE TRACTORS—OR PHONE US AND WE WILL COME OUT TO YOUR PLACE.

Ralph A. Bullock, Once a Resident, Is Dead

Through the courtesy of Ansel B. Clark of Mead Colo., and of R. J. Clark, who brought the information to the Quiz office, we are able to print a notice of the death of Ralph A. Bullock, who at one time was a resident of Ord, when his parents, Rev. and Mrs. J. A. Bullock lived here and Rev. Bullock was pastor of the Ord Christian church.

He died recently at Boulder, Colo., where the family lives. Friends will remember that he was a cripple, made so by an attack of infantile paralysis at the age of one year. He was a great Bible student, and in his fifty years of life he read the book through a total of 77 times. His sister Ruth is the wife of Ansel Clark.

FIELD SEEDS.

At the present time there is every indication that field seeds will be much higher at planting time than they are at present. Here is an example. Crested Wheat Grass is $2.00 per cwt. higher wholesale than the price we sold at retail 60 days ago. Another case: Sudan Grass has advanced 50c per cwt. in the last three weeks.

We firmly believe that you can save some money if you book your spring requirements now. A 15% down payment will hold your seed till you are ready to plant in the spring.

Sweet Clover Seed .....$3.60 per bu.
Alfalfa Seed.....$9.00 bu.
Brome Grass $18.00 cwt.
Wheat Grass $18.00 cwt.

Quiz Photo-Engraving Year in New Location

This week the Quiz photo-engraving shop across the street completes its first year of service to the public, and we have a right to be proud of the record the business has set since getting into more commodious quarters.

During the year a new and large photo engraving outfit has been added to the equipment, and, even with this, there are days when the capacity of the plant has been taxed to the limit. Several months ago another artist, Carl Gausman, was added to the force. The photo work is also increasing rapidly, and new equipment is being added in this department also.

Funeral Sunday of Mrs. N. G. Clement, Resident Since '74

Respected Mira Valley and No. Loup Lady Was 83 When Death Came Febr. 8th.

North Loup—(Special)—Farewell services for Mrs. Mary Clement were held Sunday afternoon from the home and were conducted by her pastor, Rev. A. C. Ehret. Preceding the service, Jay Auble of Ord played sacred music over his loud speaker, ending with a transcribed solo of Edwin Johnson, "I Will Lift Up Mine Eyes." A quartet composed of Mrs. Erlo Babcock, Mrs. Harlan Breamick, Dell Barber and Albert Babcock sang, "Gently Lead Us," and Albert Babcock sang as a solo, "Some Morning." Mrs. Will Ollis and Mrs. James Ollis of Ord sang, "Sweet Be Thy Rest," the same song they sang at Mr. Clement's funeral. The service was closed with a transcribed solo of Roger Johnson's, "The Lord's Prayer."

MRS. MARY CLEMENT.

Bearers were grandsons and were Clare, George, Hubert, Garis, Grant and Stephen Clement. Boyd Sheldon and George Bell, grandsons-in-law, acted as ushers. This week about 1800 baby chicks arrived by incubator at the Rutar Hatchery at 17th and M streets. Mr. Rutar set one of the incubators the day they moved to their new location and the chicks hatched out on schedule Sunday. Early chicks are in demand, as practically all the first hatch were taken by Monday. There were white Plymouth Rocks, white Wyandottes, buff Orpingtons and Rhode Island Reds in this hatch. A second hatching will come off Monday, Mr. Rutar says.

Henry Karre Killed by Accidental Rifle Shot

Henry Karre, farmer living a mile east of Horace, was killed Saturday by the accidental discharge of a .22 caliber rifle. He and his son Richard had the gun with them while they were husking corn. When they returned from the field Richard went to doing other work and his father began unloading corn. Richard did not hear the shot, but went to investigate when he saw the team in the feed low. He found his father on the ground near the crib, shot through the temple, and unconscious. Dr. Weekes of Ord and Dr. Cinfel of Scotia were sent for, but he was dead when they arrived. Both agreed that the shooting was accidental.

Burwell Planning Paving Project

Burwell—(Special)—At their meeting Monday evening, members of the village board voted to sponsor a paving project if 60 per cent of property owners in the business district would sign a petition now being circulated by interested townsmen. Plan is to lay concrete paving around the square and a block each way. Cost, it is reported, will be only $30 for each twenty-five lineal feet, which was less than the concrete curb and gutter cost when it was installed five years ago.

Religious Census Coming.

The churches of Ord are cooperating in taking a religious census this week and next week. The town has been divided into sections and twelve teams of two persons each will canvass the entire town during that time. The cooperation of the people of Ord is requested.

Corrected List of Drafttees Announced

Valley county young men who will go to army induction stations for a year's military training in February are to report to the draft board at the Union Pacific depot in Ord at 10:15 a. m. on Thursday, Febr. 27, says a notice issued to all the men this week. A corrected list of draftees who will go on this date follows: Dale Philbrick, Leonard Swaneck, Ernest Kirby, Charles Cetak, John Weverka, Raymond Swoboda, John Hill, Herbert Linke, Sylvester Wadas, Arthur W. Barz, John W. Anderson, Emil Trojan, Ned E. Larkin, Downing Rounds. Highest order number held by any in this group is held by Downing Rounds, No. 133.

Because one or more of the men named above may not be inducted into service through failure to pass final physical examination at Omaha, the following were named as possible replacements: Milford Goodrich—135; Theodore P. Baker—133; Benne Zulkoski—139. Any of these men required to report as a replacement will be notified five days before he is required to report.

Senator Knezacek Introduces Bill for Fort Hartsuff

Measure Would Make Site of Old Fort a Park for Use of General Public.

J. T. Knezacek, senator from the 29th district, Thursday introduced a bill authorizing the taking over of part or all the site of old Fort Hartsuff for public park or other purposes. Collaborating with him were Senators Tony Asimus of O'Neill and A. C. Van Delst of Almeria.

This act does not include the appropriation thereof, but authorizes cooperation with the federal government and agencies in regard thereto. Several other senators in addition to the three mentioned above are interested in the proposition. The bill is known as LB 424.

The purchase of Fort Hartsuff is being backed by a committee consisting of Thurman A. Smith, president, of Taylor, John L. Ward, secretary, Ord, Clarence M. Davis, Ord, and R. B. Miller, Burwell, of the old settlers association.

The Loup Valley Historical Society, whose officers are: Miss Maude Goodenow, Burwell, president, Thurman A. Smith, Taylor, vice-president, Mrs. Gladys Rose, Burwell secretary, Miss Meda Draver, Burwell, treasurer, is also behind the proposition. Resolutions favoring the park have been sent by the Ord Chamber of Commerce and the Rotary club, and have been read before the unicameral. The Wranglers club of Burwell is also boosting for the bill.

With the death of George W. McAnulty, a tireless booster for the Fort as a public park, the lower part of the valley was left without a representative, but there is no question that Scotia and North Loup, as well as other towns further down the river, will do their part to urge the passing of this bill. Canning Factory Needed If Valley Grows Vegetables

Hoppert Says Soil and Climate Here Suitable; Big Crowd at Irrigation Meeting.

Burwell—(Special)—Farmers of the North Loup valley thronged into Burwell's new school building Wednesday and Thursday to attend the two-day irrigation institute. The men from the college of agriculture at Lincoln who conducted the school declared that the crowd at Burwell was one of the largest and most interested that they have met in their travels throughout the state conducting such schools. Around 300 were present at the meeting Wednesday. The attendance was smaller Thursday, because of the cold weather.

Free lunch was served both days by Mrs. Fay Livermore, Mrs. Robert Draver and Dorothy, Mrs. Ivan Lux, Mrs. R. H. Douglas, Mrs. J. H. Schere and Mrs. E. J. Smith. The food was supplied by the business men of Burwell. Dr. Smith presided the first day while County Agent C. C. Dale, from Ord, was in charge Thursday.

O. W. Johnson, president of the Wranglers' club, extended a welcome to the farmers Wednesday morning. Dr. J. E. Livingston, extension plant pathologist, the first speaker, discussed the diseases of potatoes. His remarks were accompanied with lantern slides. Dr. Livingston warned the farmers that they could soon expect trouble from diseases.

Ring rot, scab, fusarium wilt and rhizoctonia were the chief diseases which he discussed. As a precautionary measure, he advises the farmers to plant nothing but certified seed, which being practically free from diseases would not introduce trouble into their field. He also recommended a crop rotation.

Phyllis Dodge, of Elyria, will receive a gold medal for rendering the most outstanding service to 4-H clubs in Valley county in 1940.

Potato, Grain and Seed Show Held at Burwell Attracts Many Entries

Those people who believe that Nebraska is fast becoming a vast, unproductive desert should have seen the crop samples from the North Loup valley which were entered in the potato, grain and seed show at Burwell last week, held in connection with the two-day irrigation institute. Excellent specimens of potatoes, corn, beans, barley, oats, sorghums, alfalfa and sweet clover seed were displayed, as proved by the above photo. D. L. Gross, the extension agronomist who judged the show, declared that the quality of the products displayed was excellent and that the number of entries was amazing. Owing to the larger number of entries than was expected, E. H. Hoppert, the extension horticulturist, assisted in the judging. Burwell carried off most of the potato prizes while farmers from North Loup succeeded in winning most of the corn prizes. Henry Bousail, a young farmer, of the Burwell area who was recently married, won the part wool blanket given as first prize for certified triumph seed potatoes. Cecil Butts, Burwell, won second prize, and (Continued on page 5)

Ord and Comstock Play Tonight in Loup Valley Meet

Victor Probably Will Go Into Finals Against St. Paul; Dannebrog Lost, 38-19.

If the Ord Chanticleers can get by Comstock tonight they will go into the finals of the Loup Valley tournament, probably against St. Paul, but the Blues are a formidable team and might win the tourney as they did last year.

Monday evening Ord walloped Dannebrog 38 to 19. St. Paul has been going like a horse fire, beating Loup City 34 to 18 Monday night and Burwell 25 to 18 Tuesday evening.

Comstock played a fine game in beating Arcadia Tuesday evening 28 to 22 and also Monday when they beat Scotia 37 to 28. Sargent beat Taylor 17 to 7 Monday eve and North Loup 35 to 29 Tuesday eve. This team plays St. Paul at 8 tonight, but fans see little chance for the Custer county lads. Taylor was eliminated Tuesday by Loup City, 32 to 22.

Consolation matches continue Thursday evening and finals will be played Friday evening. The tournament is being held at Burwell.

Petitions Circulated for the Corn Loan Plan

Petitions are being circulated in Valley county and throughout the drouth area of Nebraska this week, requesting Congress to take such action as is necessary to provide, out of the huge stocks of sealed corn held by the government, for farmers in the drouth area 10 bushels of corn for every acre of corn planted during the growing season, with provision that it be repaid any time within the next five years, in kind, with no other charges to be assessed to the recipients.

John P. Misko, head of the drouth area organization, asks that all Valley county farmers sign these petitions some time this week, so they may be sent to Congress at once along with petitions from the other Nebraska counties affected.

Ord Business Group Visits Unicameral, Talks about Roads

State Will Send Engineer to Loup Valley Soon to View Road Situation.

Tuesday members of the road committee of the Chamber of Commerce went to Lincoln, where they interviewed Wardner Scott, state highway engineer, relative to roads out of Ord. They report a very courteous hearing on all matters discussed and the promise that a man would be sent up from the state office to look over the entire situation.

Those who went from Ord were Clarence M. Davis, chairman of the committee, Ign. Klimka, member of the committee, and A. A. Wiegardt, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce. They visited first with Senator J. T. Knezacek, who made up a member of the party that called upon Mr. Scott. The following items of road work were discussed.

First: The constructing and graveling of three miles of road in Garfield county, north of the Haskell creek road to connect with the state road from Ericson to Burwell. This work would complete this road for use as a detour from Ord to Burwell at the time the latter road is being rebuilt, which use has been contemplated by the road department.

Second: Some work on completing more mileage on the Ord-Ericson road, part of which has been taken over and is being maintained by the state.

Third: Some work on the designated state highway from Ord to Comstock, with a branch from that highway to Sargent.

Fourth: Completion of the opening of Highway No. 11 from Ord to Burwell, together with all work necessary to prepare the road for oil.

The committee was highly pleased with their reception at the office of the state engineer, and feel that all the suggestions they made will receive careful consideration; also that the work will be done in the near future.

Many Graduates from Distance at Party Saturday

Class of 1933 Numbered 84, Was Biggest in Ord History; Potluck Supper Enjoyed.

The members of the class of 1933 held a class reunion at the Knights of Columbus hall Saturday evening, Feb. 8. A total of 34 persons attended, of whom twenty-two were members of the class and the rest were relatives or friends. The class of 1933 numbered 84 and was the largest class in Ord high school up to that time.

Many members came from quite a distance. Dr. and Mrs. Eldon Benda came from Scottsbluff, Mr. and Mrs. Lumear Sedlacek from Omaha, Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Lauss from Hooper, Mr. and Mrs. Hal Pierce and Miss Viola Mae Flynn from Lincoln, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Chamberlain of Burwell and Gwendolyn Hughes of Loup City. The other members of the group live in Ord and vicinity.

The evening's entertainment consisted of a variety of games, and dancing. The members of the class told what they had done since graduation, and letters from absent classmates were read. A record of the classmates introducing themselves and singing school songs was made on the Philco recording machine, duplicate records of which can be obtained from Auble Bros.

The chief feature of the evening's entertainment was a potluck supper which was thoroughly enjoyed by everyone. As the group took in more money than expected to cover expenses, it was voted to present the extra sum to the Ord Business and Professional Women's club to be used for the milk fund. The reunion was considered a success by all present, and the group is planning another one to be held in two years.

St. Paul Beaten 43 to 37 by Ord in Thrilling Game

Chanticleers Clinch Share of Mid-Six Crown by Upset Victory Friday Eve.

Everything was set up, in the minds of St. Paul fans, for the Apostles to defeat the Ord Chanticleers Friday evening and thus grab off the Mid-Six conference championship.

The high school band and more than 100 spectators accompanied the team to Ord to see the dead end. At half time and until the game was almost over it looked like St. Paul was "in" with a victory and fans from that town were already celebrating when Coach Tolly's boys, who had been behind from the start, came through with a blazing display of ball handling and sharp shooting that won the game for them by a score of 43 to 37.

It was the best game of the season for an overflow crowd at the high school auditorium.

The Apostles took an early lead and at the quarter it was 12 to 5 in their favor. At the half they were in front 21 to 19. Until less than two minutes of the final quarter remained to be played they managed to stay in front but then Ord surged ahead 37 to 26 and continued to pile up a lead in the remaining seconds.

Clarence Romans turned in the finest performance for the Ord boys, bucketing ten field goals and three gift tosses for a point total of 23. Two St. Paul boys, Day and Helzer, were removed on personal fouls as was one Ord player, Furtak.

This victory puts Ord in a three-way tie for the Mid-Six crown and unless an upset occurs the race will end that way. Ord has been defeated only by Ravenna in Mid-Six competition, Ravenna only by St. Paul and St. Paul only by Ord. Box score of the game:

Table with columns: Name, FG, FT, PF, TP. Lists players like Furtak, Malolepszy, Adams, Romans, Cochran, Piskorski, etc.

Ord Thespians Show Talent Wednesday in Play, "Huckleberry Finn"

The Ord Thespians club made a distinct hit Wednesday evening when they presented the play, "Huckleberry Finn" at the Ord high school auditorium. There was a fine attendance, and the audience was most appreciative throughout the performance. Pictured above is the play cast in full costume. The little negro girl, Gee Gee, was characterized very nicely by Darlene Puncchar. The difficult lead of Huckleberry Finn was well portrayed by Raymond Biemond. Dot Kokes as Mrs. Phelps played the aristocratic southern lady to perfection. Ella May Phelps was well played indeed by Carolyn Auble, and Keith Koranda the part of Silas Phelps, a dignified southern planter. Billy Fafaite humorously portrayed the part of Tom Sawyer. Don Auble played the part of the escaping negro convict to the great enjoyment of the audience. Junior Plate in a typical western ensemble played the part of the sheriff. Others in the cast were Darlene Carlson and Marie Marsh, neighbors of the Phelps, and Lucita Kuehl, who, in a costume of the 15th century cleverly portrayed the part of Aunt Polly.

THE TIES OF BLOOD.

Strange as it may seem, one of the outstanding causes of the present European war is the same as the leading cause of the War of 1812.

The chief cause of the War of 1812 was the impressment of seamen, who were taken off American ships on the pretext that they were of British blood, and therefore were British subjects.

The American government held that any foreigner, once naturalized, became an American, but none of the nations of Europe at that time admitted that it was possible for a native born citizen of one country to become a citizen of another.

Hitler made this one of the pretexts under which he waged war against the countries of Europe. In each of the conquered nations German minorities have existed, and so far as Hitler is concerned, these people will be German for all generations to come.

The idea of the German Reich is that every citizen of every country with a percentage of German blood in his veins is a German, naturalization laws to the contrary notwithstanding.

Just why Adolf Hitler should feel so strongly over this question of blood is difficult to understand, when it is known that he himself was born at Braunau, Austria.

With Hitler this idea of all of German blood being Germans is an obsession, and he will never be satisfied until the regions in which they live are all brought into the greater Reich.

AGAIN IN HEADLINES. Nearly five hundred years ago there was born in Genoa, Italy, a man who had more to do in the affairs of the world than any man who has lived, either before or since, present contenders to the contrary notwithstanding.

During the middle ages Genoa was known as the mistress of the west Mediterranean. Genoa has one of the finest harbors in the world, and for this reason has always been an important trading city.

At daybreak Monday morning Genoa again sprung into the headlines, as the target of a small British fleet in the outstanding naval exploit of the present war.

Light the British ships began pouring shells into the city with devastating effect. Just what effect this will have on the outcome of the war cannot be foretold, but it is certain that the world now knows that Britain is still in control of the Mediterranean.

Such disrespect to the memory of departed greatness! Can it be that the British have forgotten the fact that in 1769 Napoleon Bonaparte was born on that island of Corsica? Could they forget that, early in the 19th century, he built up by force of arms an empire of even greater extent than that built by Hitler?

Perhaps they did not see the island of Corsica, but looked instead to the east, where loomed the mountainous skyline of the island of Elba. Perhaps they recalled that, after his abdication, April 11, 1814, the Little Corporal was banished to this island, the empire he had built by force crumbling to bits.

Yes, it may be that those intrepid sailors recalled the fact that Napoleon, the greatest general the world ever produced, was humbled by two of their fellow countrymen, Wellington on the land and Nelson on the sea. Let us hope that they looked into the future and saw there the same fate awaiting another Little Corporal who has dreams of ruling the world.

MONEY IN TELEPHONES. One Ord firm that is making money and has made money right along through the depression is the Nebraska Continental Telephone company's Ord exchange.

Figures from the Nebraska Railway Commission show that the exchange had total revenues of $15,570.48 in 1939.

It is noted that in figuring the expense of operating its Ord exchange the Nebraska Continental was able to include depreciation of $1,203.99 and current maintenance of $1,448.91, as well as the more usual items of $1,239.10 for traffic expenses, $1,653.88 for commercial expenses, $1,464.24 for general office salaries and expenses, and other operating expenses, $34.08 for amortization of telephone plant acquisition adjustment and $1,487.25 for operating taxes.

A telephone company is in a much finer position to make money in these drought years than are most businesses. In Ord this telephone company enjoys a monopoly by virtue of a 25-year franchise which gives it the right to use streets and alleys of the city for its poles and wires, free of charge.

It enjoys the protection of the powerful Railway Commission, which permits it to charge such rates as are necessary to pay an adequate return on the money it is able to show as an investment here. No authority, or even its own conscience, requires it to furnish good and adequate service for the rates and rentals it collects, as businesses which do not have a monopoly or which do not enjoy the protection of a body like the Railway Commission must do to stay in business, retain public good will and continue to show a profit.

A telephone company even seems to be able to charge off its equipment year after year without admitting this depreciation charge as a profit and without adding modern equipment to replace that charged off.

Yessir, there's money in the telephone business. If we were permitted by law to organize a municipal telephone company and operate it in the same manner as our municipal electric plant is operated, we could save ourselves some money and enjoy much better service too.

Plourd Don't Like It. We are determined that there is one kind of breakfast food we are never going to eat. We sat in a cafe not long ago discussing a small business matter with an acquaintance and the radio in the place was going and a jolly-voiced announcer was booming into our conversation in a loud, dominating voice to tell us about this new breakfast food. He kept right on talking when we didn't want to be interrupted.

We felt just as cordial to him and the company that hired him as we would to any other stranger that would come in and interrupt a private conversation to try to sell us something we didn't want to hear about all the time. That's one thing about a newspaper advertisement. It is polite. It waits until you are ready to listen.—W. H. Plourd in the Nance County Journal.

Remember This Famous Ord Basketball Team of Early Days?

This group was perhaps as famous as any that ever played basketball for old Ord high. The picture was taken about 33 years ago by Miss Ora Mutter, now Mrs. W. T. McClain, in the same location where the Lombard studio now is.

A lot of Ordites will remember them, but for the benefit of those who do not, they are, left to right: George Russell Mann, now Lincoln attorney; Ord Two-abley, Arcadia farmer; Ralph Harris, Sheridan, Wyo., railway mail clerk; Maron Cushing and Howard Alvor, both of whom met death in accidents; and Ben Timmerman, farmer of Sumner, Nebr.

My Own Column

By H. D. Leggett

There is one thing that I don't like and that is the effort the stand-pat element of the republican party is making to read Willie out of the party.

To my knowledge, there has been nothing said in any of the local papers about the mud in these parts the last few weeks. It has been nine years since we have had the roads as awful as they have been lately.

It is said that a 2c tax on cigarettes would produce more revenue than the share of the gas tax now being diverted to old age assistance. Nearly everybody has to buy gas and the road department needs the gas tax. We all want more and better roads. Nobody has to buy cigarettes unless they want to do so and the old people must be taken care of. They should be taken better care of than in the past if it is possible to do so.

The state senators couldn't resist introducing a lot of bills that will not be passed and if passed, will be killed by the governor. Many proposed laws provide for more expense, something that every branch of the state administration has declared against.

Because a branch line of railroad in the eastern part of the state is being allowed by the interstate commerce commission to discontinue train service on a line that serves several towns, the county board is raising thunder about it, yet the road is having and has had for years, a big operating loss on that line and the business men of those towns have truckers haul practically all their merchandise, while buses and cars haul all the people who travel.

There is an old saying to the effect that we are never too old to learn. I am too old to learn very much, but after a couple of weeks nursing the Missus, who has the flu, I have learned that the nursing profession is the biggest graft that ever was invented. I have always been sympathetic to nurses and sometimes wished the Missus wouldn't be quite so strict about me being late to them. But never again. One thing, I am getting too old and another thing they don't deserve it. The idea of having to pay a nurse $5 a day for taking care of a sick person through a 24-hour day. There is almost nothing to do. There is medicine to give, but surely it is no great strain on either muscles or mentality to grab a teaspoon and give the patient a spoon of medicine. About all else there is to do is to get a drink of water for her once in a while and bring in a cup of soup. Everyone knows how to make soup. My patient got a little unreasonable toward the end of the second week, complaining that the soup wasn't very good. She had bragged on it a couple of weeks before. I patiently explained that it was the same soup, as I had kept the kettle on all the time, and that as a matter of fact it should really be better than at first. When it was started it was just beef broth, but as the days passed we would have a bit of roast or steak or a pork chop left and I always added them to save throwing them away. Then sometimes there would be a dish of tomatoes or some peas or beans, and I had seen them all in soup so gradually I got it changed to a vegetable soup and I couldn't see any reason why that good, tasty conglomeration should be thrown away and a new start made every few days. I have heard that in some countries the soup kettle is never taken off and that it is still

Written by GEORGE GOWLEN

For Those Away From Home Better Than Dust Better Frame of Mind

For Those Away From Home. To my knowledge, there has been nothing said in any of the local papers about the mud in these parts the last few weeks.

And too, for Merritt Fuson and other wanderers from the fold, I'd like to mention that it looks like our reward has at last come for staying put. Our ground is soaked down two or three feet now and in the best shape it has been for years, let us say those nine years I mentioned before when it was muddy. Everyone feels confident of a small grain crop and perhaps, with a little more rain, some corn besides.

And too, a little different than the times before that nine years ago, although it is troublesome, no one complains about the mud. One man said, "Well, that's just what we have been wanting for a long time. It is better than dust."

All Sockless Here. And speaking of Merritt Fuson, I wish the editor would cease publishing his letters. He does so much better than I can that in the first place they make me feel foolish (natural perhaps) and second, it might be, if he wrote often enough, I would be crowded out entirely.

He says too something about going without socks, as if that was a new idea. He must live in a terribly backward country, to be sure. The school girls have ceased the stocking business several years ago in North Loup and Scotia, both winter and summer. I saw a gal yesterday with no socks but wearing high overshoes. That's all right but I wondered why the overshoes.

And speaking of farmers and socks, well they just don't go together anymore. Three years ago we severed connection with the sock business in the good old summertime. Two years ago we gave up underwear. Last year many of us ceased wearing shirts only to church and we quit church too often too. This year we—well, we just won't carry this argument any further.

Your Frame of Mind. An old friend of mine in California clipped a few columns from the papers there and mailed them to me, for comparison, perhaps, and to see how others are doing the job. I was glad to get them. I am sure he was not trying to embarrass me for he reads my bunk all the time.

One of these was interesting as well as striking home at this particular time. This man told of how he gets his inspirations, and the difficulties encountered in performing his daily (or with me, weekly) stint. His mood and temperament play a big part. Sometimes he has twice too much; sometimes he has to scratch to find anything of interest. How true, how true.

For the last three weeks I have been whipped for ideas. I know the reason why too. All the time, subconsciously, I am on the lookout for ideas or stories. I keep a little note book at home where I sometimes jot down topics but usually my strip is all gathered in my mind before I dig out the old typewriter. I am ready Friday night to hammer it off and it usually takes but a few minutes.

But the last few weeks I have been terribly upset mentally. I was so disturbed over the tragedy we had down here I could think of nothing else. When Friday night came I had nothing to write. I sat around all evening trying to get started on something but I couldn't help it when my mind went back to the tragedy. I went to bed, nothing written, nothing to write, with the thought, perhaps I would have to pass this time up, until many cars were locked solid to the ground. The roads the next morning were rough as the rocky mountains.

All this is written for the folks away from home, not we sufferers left here. We know enough about it without telling it over.

I sat around all evening trying to get started on something but I couldn't help it when my mind went back to the tragedy. I went to bed, nothing written, nothing to write, with the thought, perhaps I would have to pass this time up,

I woke frequently worrying over it and finally found myself awake, unable to get to sleep, unable to think of anything but the sorrow of my friends. Finally I arose and tried to read.

After a while I set to work. All I could think of was the Coxes and the Hutchins and the Adams. I wrote just what came to my mind, hurriedly for it was cold in the room. I did not want to write this for I thought perhaps it was an old subject by then. I finished however, my eyes full of tears and went to bed thinking the editors could cut it out if they wished. I could do no more, and that was all there was to it. Then I went to sleep.

I corrected it a little the next morning and sent it out. The boss printed it, I feared because he hated to offend me, but still I couldn't believe he would care about me that much.

Well, that's all there was to it. The paper came out Wednesday and I heard someone speak of my piece. By night there were several who spoke. I went to the drug store and the papers there were all gone. I have had three fan letters about it and a half a dozen requests for an extra copy. Part of these requests were for the obituaries, but in each instance they spoke of my piece.

The next week I was in somewhat the same frame of mind. I wrote a piece about the war, of which I could write every week. This week I am getting back to normal again, with a few more ideas coming along.

Then Saturday morning, as soon as they had had time to get an answer back, Mrs. Ed Thompson of Arcadia, named them all as did Mr. Smith, except she had Agnes Miller for Hannah Miller. Mrs. Edith Dossen of Arcadia had a card in the same mail and named all of them but four. Mrs. Thompson is the Myrtle Smith Thompson mentioned in the above list.

IT HAPPENED IN ORD. Saw a youngster on the way home from school Thursday noon try to break an empty pint whiskey flask on the ground. When it wouldn't break he put it behind the wheel of a car belonging to Stanley Brown of North Loup. Mr. Brown saw the bottle and kicked it out of the way, thus preventing any damage to his tire. Which brings up the age old question of why do people break bottles on the street. Somebody broke a bottle near the Bohemian hall not long ago, and it cost Frank Paddock a very ugly cut when he slipped and fell on the ice. Who is to blame, the fellow who throws the bottle away, or the kid who breaks it afterward?

Mrs. Hamer called from North Loup to tell us that there is at least one more house of seven gables in the county. It is on the old Ike Van Osdal place 6 miles south of North Loup, recently vacated by Maynard Finley. The original plans called for six gables but Mrs. Van Osdal asked that one more be added.

Took Long Time to Build Fort. It took 66 years to build the ancient fortress El Morro, which has guarded the entrance to San Juan harbor for more than 400 years. The construction work, begun in 1540, was not completed until 1506. How the huge blocks of stone and other materials were moved into place is a puzzle to experts.

LETTERS FROM QUIZ READERS

From T. O. Lambdin.

W. A. Anderson is in receipt of another fine letter from Tom Lambdin, now located at Yoncalla, Ore., in which he tells more about conditions there. He says that they really appreciate the Quiz, now that they are away from all their old friends.

His son B.B. and Walt Lunney work in the saw mill most of the time. Betty goes to school riding to town on the school bus, a distance of 3 miles. He says general conditions are good, and that he has not yet seen anybody working on WPA.

Prices there are about the same as here, he says, with the exception of eggs, butter and corn, which are higher. The main crops there are sheep, dairy cattle and turkeys. The country is divided by mountain ranges into small valleys which are covered with timber.

The winter is over there and winter oats is about 8 inches high. The coldest it got this winter was 20 above. Everybody there burns wood, and he has not seen any coal. One can go to the lumber mills and get the slabs from the logs for nothing.

The climate there is semi-tropical, with such trees as laurel, holly and bamboo, and plenty of mistletoe thrown in. He says that Valley county would be the garden spot of the world if we could get the rainfall they have there. He sends his best wishes to all his Valley county friends and former neighbors.

Funeral Sunday of Mrs. N. G. Clement, Resident Since '74

Hurley, Mary Elizabeth Clement moved early in life to Welton, Ia., with her parents. Second of her father's large family, she was the last survivor when she passed away at her home in North Loup Feb. 8, at the age of 88 years.

On Sept. 16, 1873 she was married to Nathaniel George Clement and the following spring came with him and his two sons, Paul and Carl to Valley county, where she has since lived. Until 1925 she lived on the homestead in Mira Valley where her grandson, George Clement now lives. In 1925 she moved to the village of North Loup where she has been an active member of her church and the NoLo Club, contributing of her talents in any way she could for the good of the community.

Manager of both home and farm, teacher, practical nurse, friend and neighbor, her Irish wit and her sense of humor, her practicality, her ceaseless energy and industry, her indomitable will, self discipline and faith brought her through her 88 years of unwaged life.

Characteristic of Mrs. Clement was a last request. She had been much distressed over the plight of the Seventh Day Baptist missionaries in China, several of them former North Loup people, if the occasion arises that they should return from China and there were insufficient funds for their passage. She asked that no money be spent for flowers for her casket but the money be put in a fund for the missionaries' return and her family respected this wish, although there were many beautiful flowers sent by others.

With her passing North Loup has lost a valiant lady, one who was never too weary or too busy to call on the sick or do something for someone in need. Her last illness was brief. She was at the last meeting of the NoLo club and missed only one morning services of her church.

She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Ava Johnson of North Loup, Mrs. Clara Holmes of Milton, Wis., and one son Hugh of North Loup, also nine granddaughters, eight grandsons, and seventeen great grandchildren. One son, Guy, passed away a number of years ago.

Potato, Grain and Seed Show Held at Burwell

Glenn Walker, a Loup county farmer, third.

Cecil Butts won two sacks of flour for placing first in both triumph and cobbler table stock divisions. His neighbor, Tom Banks, placed second in both divisions. Claude Kennedy won third on table stock triumphs and Floyd Wetzel of North Loup, third on cobbler. Mr. Wetzel also brought in some fine Early Obios on which he encountered no competition.

Denmark in a Chaotic State, Learns L. M. Loft

Last week L. M. Loft received a letter from his father, M. P. Loft, who is living in German occupied Denmark. The letter started on its way in November and took well over two months on the road. It had a label on the outside stating that it had been examined by the censor, but no change was made in the contents.

Mr. Loft understood what could be written and what could not be, and the letter at first reading sounds rather mild. A second perusal, however, brings out the implications between the lines, and makes one understand the condition in which the people of this conquered nation find themselves during the winter.

Prices there are fabulously high, and many commodities, including coffee, cannot be had at any price. A substitute made of many ingredients is being advertised by the shop keepers, but that does not make it taste like coffee. He says he never expects to see order restored in his life, as he is past 80 years old.

Coal is unknown, but there is a limited amount of wood. They are also digging up the peat bogs, compressing it into bricks and burning them. They burn slowly, and do not produce enough heat for extreme cold weather. All public conveyances have been stopped because of fuel. From the way he writes it appears that the Germans have been telling them that all shipping has been swept from the sea.

Grohe's NU-BRED Seed Corn

Our supply of Grohe's Nu-Bred seed corn is growing smaller each week and we do not believe that we will have seed enough to supply the demand until planting time.

This is your golden opportunity to try a small amount of this new modern corn at very small cost.

Mail in your orders or contact one of our associated growers.

A small down payment will assure you high quality seed at planting time. You cannot go wrong by planting a part of your crop to Nu-Bred. It will pay you dividends next fall.

especially one containing alfalfa, as potato yields increased following legumes. Experiments show, he said, that potatoes following corn are more susceptible to fusarium wilt.

For controlling scab he recommended that the seed be treated with formaldehyde and for rhizoctonia with mercury solutions.

Marx Koehne of Alliance, certification manager of the Nebraska Potato Growers association, also advised the farmers to plant certified seed.

"A land that is rich in livestock is never poor and a land that is poor in livestock is never rich," W. W. Derrick, animal husbandryman, declared in his talk to the farmers. He warned them to maintain a well balanced livestock program in order to keep and increase the fertility of the soil. He declared that the farmers could produce everything they needed to feed livestock on their own farms and warned them against paying out their money for feeds in speckled bags. He recommended a mineral mixture for livestock containing equal parts of steamed bone meal and ground limestone, with half as much salt. Mr. Derrick advised the farmers to feed a balanced ration, especially watching out for proteins which are supplied by alfalfa.

North Loupers Will Visit Burwell Often

Burwell—(Special)—This village is expected to see quite a lot of Floyd Wetzel and G. D. Barber, North Loup farmers who copied a large share of prizes at the Irrigation institute last week.

Mr. Barber won a $10 coupon on a washing machine, two haircuts, a theater ticket, a suit of underwear, a five quart can of motor oil, five gallons of gas, a pressure oil can and a throw rug.

Mr. Wetzel won three theater tickets, three pounds of butter, five loaves of bread, a haircut, a dinner at a Burwell restaurant and a five quart can of oil.

Only way they can collect is to come back again and often, so business men here are sure they'll get better acquainted with these two fine North Loup farmers in the future.

Bill Pierce, extension engineer, told the farmers that they could soon expect to receive water in rotation and that they would have to learn to handle larger heads of water. He declared that with more demand for water that the farmers could expect water only in turns and that when their turn came they would have to take the water even though it came at night or on Sunday. He advised the farmers to store up as much water in the soil as possible by spring and fall irrigation because a gully washer might wreck the ditches in the summer time right when the crops needed the water badly. "If there is a reserve of water in the soil," he said, "the crops will survive until the ditches can be repaired."

He declared that the farms in this area are still in need of more leveling before they can be watered efficiently. He advised the farmers to have topographic maps made of their fields before they commenced leveling operations. These maps show where the high and low places are and save the farmers a lot of unnecessary work in preparing their fields for water. In making lath boxes, Mr. Pierce advised the farmers to use cement covered nails as they would not rust and pull out as quickly as untreated ones.

D. L. Gross, the extension agronomist, in discussing the changes which irrigation would bring in cropping practices advised the farmers not to plant all of their acres to crops requiring water at the same time. If a farmer planted all his land to corn, for example, he would need a lot of water in August and would likely run short but if he planted a part of his acres to early potatoes they could be harvested before the corn demanded an abundance of water.

He declared that maintaining the fertility of the soil is more of a problem under irrigation than under dry farming because higher yields are necessary in order to show a profit. According to him dry land corn making thirty bushels per acre will give us large a cash return to the farmer as irrigated corn making fifty-five bushels. He believes that corn is likely to remain the leading crop in the Loup valley and that under irrigation yields of one hundred bushels per acre are possible. He also advised the farmers to plant alfalfa but warned them to plant a wilt resistant strain such as Hardistan. Some strains such as Grimm which are the most satisfactory under dryland conditions are exceedingly susceptible to wilt and under irrigation are most unsatisfactory. He stated that wilt resistant strains are being developed in the Platte valley from fields which have withstood the ravages of the wilt. Cossack is quite wilt resistant and a good seed yielding strain, according to Mr. Gross, who recommended it for planting in this locality.

Mr. Gross also advised the farmers to plant sorghums. He said that the forage varieties yield more and better fodder and ensilage than corn and that in case of a water shortage they could hold out until water is available.

E. H. Hoppert in discussing the possibilities for producing vegetables in the Loup valley declared that practically all kinds of vegetables could be produced except those varieties requiring cool weather such as celery and head lettuce.

In his opinion the canning industry could be established in this locality but he warned that to operate profitably several kinds of vegetables should be grown for canning purposes in order to run the factory as many months as possible. The problem of finding a market, he said, is the chief drawback to vegetable production.

Mr. Hoppert said that asparagus is one crop which could be raised advantageously in the North Loup valley. According to him growers around Nebraska City are realizing a return of $75 per acre from its production. The chief difficulty in its production is that two years are required before the grower gets a return from his investment. Mr. Hoppert said that formerly most asparagus for canning purposes was grown in California. This asparagus tends to be light colored and now that the public has become vitamin conscious it demands a product which is green. Much asparagus is marketed frozen and Mr. Hoppert said that if asparagus is ever produced on a large scale in this locality that portable quick freezing units could be established to handle the crop.

Onions are another crop which can be easily grown in the valley. The drawback in producing them is that the market is unstable. Sweet corn and peas are crops which could be grown for canning, according to Mr. Hoppert. He advised that the peas be planted early.

He said that tomato varieties are being developed which will bear during hot weather. He recommended the Bison, All Red, Victor and Firesteel varieties. He advised that root crops for winter use be grown in the fall as turnips, carrots and beets which have stood in the ground during extremely hot weather become tough and woody, lose their flavor and are almost unfit for food.

J. W. Pitts, irrigation specialist closed the program Wednesday with a series of slides illustrating irrigation practices.

C. W. Newbecker of Taylor, a director of the North Loup Valley Irrigation District, told the farmers that the district would soon be self supporting. He said that the district has a water right for 39,000 acres and that in 1940 they watered 18,000 acres. According to the terms of their contract, Mr. Newbecker said that 50 per cent of the 39,000 acres were to have been irrigated the first year, 75 per cent the second year and 100 per cent the third year which is 1941.

Mr. Newbecker expressed the doubt that farms not taking water by 1941 would ever be able to get it in the future. He declared that he intended to irrigate every possible acre of his farm this year. "Even though I have to carry water in a bucket to do it."

The ditch rider, said Mr. Newbecker, is the contact man between the farmer and the district. He urged the farmers to cooperate with the ditch riders. "Any favor you can show them is a favor to the ditch company," he declared. He pointed out that the ditch riders are under hard and fast regulations, having no voice in making the rules which they must enforce. He pointed out that the water master is the man in control.

Achille Geweke, a Valley county farmer who is president of the Water Users' Association, discussed some of the legal problems which are facing the irrigation district. He stated that the organization which he heads has an ad-

Mr. Hoppert closed the meetings with a discussion of windbreaks, fruit production and beautification of the farm home. He stated that experiments conducted at Mandan, N. D., and in tunnels proved that two rows of trees made as effective a windbreak as seventy-five rows. He declared that irrigated land is valuable and that nothing is gained by planting a large number of trees where fewer will serve the purpose as well. He recommended planting a combination of evergreen and broadleaf varieties, staggered in rows six to eight feet apart in order to allow room for cultivation.

Something Different

Perhaps I am the only one who misses the men's chorus of Ord. Do you remember what a grand singing job they did for our entertainment? For several years they appeared on nearly every public program. As I remember they practiced once a week and soon had a most enjoyable repertoire ready for us.

What happened to that chorus? Wasn't it an American Legion sponsored group? Can't we have a men's chorus again?

I also hear Music Director Daines has a very beautifully trained chorus, superior to anything we have had here for a good while.

Don't you wish we could hear them soon?

Ord has the name of being especially musical and I believe it is deserved. And we are fortunate, for we have had splendid musicians to delight us.

For example, Mrs. Mark Tolen is prodigal of her lovely voice. She is in great demand, and her clear tones are always enjoyed. For years she has worked in the Methodist church and sung in the choir and sung many solo numbers. She has also sung for many, many funerals and public gatherings.

At Christmas time so many listeners enjoyed the Campfire carolers who sang from the courthouse steps. Their white robes made a lovely picture against the evergreen and tinsel background. The dignity of the columns of our courthouse, the graciousness of the doorway, the young girls in the foreground were unforgettable.

That picture was the most charming one ever to run in the Quiz, it seemed to me.

It is coming the time of year to plant things. I hope there will be a lot of trees planted in Ord, to replace some of the lovely old trees our long drought years have taken.

If each of us planted just one tree it would be enough to more than supply the deficiency we now have.

Ord also has a name for being a beautiful town; let's don't let that name slip because so many of our biggest trees have disappeared.

So many forecasters are predicting a heavy crop year and a fine growing summer for this coming season. Let us hope they are right; we have stuck it out long enough to deserve it.

Or perhaps I should say our worthy farmers have stuck it out, and so we stuck with them. They are the ones who really took the gamble.

—Irma.

Valley County Coal. E. D. Cheesbrough, who in the early '80's ran a general merchandise establishment in Ord, got the idea that coal could be found on a farm he owned which was located further up the Loup river above Ord. To find out for certain he had Prof. Aughey of the Nebraska State University staff come to the valley in June, 1882 to look into the situation.

The professor gave it as his opinion that the prospects for coal was not flattering, and that, if it existed at all, it could not be less than 700 to 800 feet below the surface. This put an end to all attempts by Mr. Cheesbrough to find coal, since the cost of getting coal from such a depth would have been prohibitive, even if it were found.

A few weeks later the Ord Quiz received a letter from Prof. Aughey. In it he stated that, while in the North Loup valley, he was so impressed with the natural wealth of the locality that he wrote an article thereon for the Nebraska State Journal. He did not find coal but found instead a valley abounding in agricultural wealth of far greater value.

Expert Baton Twirler.

The baton twirler above is from St. Paul, and he showed his stuff at the St. Paul-Ord game here Friday night. His two batons have electric lights on them, and the lights were turned off during his performance giving a most unusual and beautiful effect.

TALES OF CHESTNUT HILL.

Roland Tumbell Turns Carpenter. The community's principal acrobat, Roland Tumbell, more than met his match last week. As we all know, there is a huge barn on the Tumbell farm, which measures nearly 30 feet to the eaves, with the ridge fully 15 feet higher. At the south gable is a huge, wooden-tailed windmill, fastened to the barn on a big post.

As the windmill is inaccessible from the ground by other means, Mr. Tumbell goes through a scuttle on the roof of the barn, follows the ridge over to the mill, doing this when the tail is over the roof. He then climbs on the tail and proceeds to oil the mill or to do any necessary repairs.

Friday is a bad day to start any undertaking, but this did not occur to Roland. There was a light breeze from the south, and the tail of the mill was directly over the ridge of the barn. So he put a few wrenches in his pockets, grabbed the oil can and climbed to his customary perch on the tail of the mill.

He was so busy with his work that he did not notice the ominous cloud in the northern sky. He did not realize what was coming until the wind suddenly blew up from the north and the mill reversed direction, swinging him out into space 45 feet above the barnyard below. With the wheel turning briskly, he had no possible chance of getting down.

He yelled for help, but there was nobody at hand to hear him. The wind increased in fury and the tail of the mill jumped about in a fair imitation of the gyrations of a bucking broncho. He held on with such tenacity that his finger nails left marks in the wood. Finally, when he had about given up hope of rescue, the storm ceased as suddenly as it had begun, and the wind blew again from the south, turning the mill and permitting him to get down, which he did with alacrity.

Instead of giving thanks for his deliverance, as a Christian should, he vented his spleen on the offending windmill, which had obeyed only the regulations for which it was designed, and determined at once to prevent a recurrence of the unpleasant incident. He would build a ladder up the end of the barn by means of which he could lubricate the windmill in comfort and safety.

But first he must rid himself of the real cause of his discomfort, the scuttle hole in the roof. So long as it remained he might be tempted to use it again, so the thing to do was to get rid of it. Once more he climbed the inside ladder to the scuttle, and after several trips he had enough tools, boards and shingles on the roof to make the necessary repairs.

First he tore out the scuttle, throwing such pieces as he did not need down into the yard. Then he nailed boards across the hole and then shingled over the boards. Finally he threw down everything he had left, even including the hammer, and when it was too late, realized that he was on top of the roof with no way to get down.

It had been fairly warm when he started the job, and he had taken off his coat. He was perspiring freely by the time he got done, and to make matters worse, the wind started up again from the north and the temperature began to fall by leaps and bounds. In a few minutes it was near the freezing point and he could feel his wet shirt freezing on his back.

Fearing that he might get too cold and fall off, he climbed to the ridge and sat astraddle, holding on as best he could. When the boys got home from town shortly after dark, they could hear their father's voice faintly calling for help, but it was ten minutes or more before they could locate him. Then, when they tried to go up through the scuttle, they found the opening closed.

They tried to figure out a way to get him down. One suggested throwing a lariat around him and pulling him down, but the height was too great, and besides, if he hit the ground while he was so cold, he would probably break in pieces like glass. The other boy suggested using an airplane and a grappling hook, but this was equally impracticable.

So the boys did the only thing possible and opened up the scuttle hole again and brought the old man down through it. He finally thawed out, and is getting along

Hitch Hikers

Out-of-town printers that grab business that rightfully belongs to home-concerns are a good deal like hitch hikers. They let somebody else furnish the vehicle and the gasoline and they just ride along.

Communities in which people make their living and enjoy the companionship of neighbors do not just happen. Real citizens gave investments of time, money and hard work to build them. These citizens should have the fruits of their labors. In the case of business people this should be in the form of patronage of the people of the community.

When you consider the idea of giving your printing orders to an out-of-town concern, ask yourself questions like these:

- (1) What has this concern done to help build the community?
(2) Has this concern or its representatives taken active part in community affairs that benefited me?
(3) Does it pay taxes here?
(4) Does it help maintain our schools, churches, roads and other public service in this community?

The answer to these questions will tell you that it is fair and honest to deal with home institutions like your local newspaper. It is a community builder and not a hitch hiker.

The Ord Quiz

fairly well, except for some frost-bitten fingers. But that night it rained more than an inch and the water ran down through the hole in the roof and into the bin of oats, which happened to be directly beneath, so now a lot of good horse feed is ruined. But the story ends as it should. The boys got busy and built the ladder the next day.

To Sit Above the Salt Many centuries ago, it was the custom to place on a table on which food was served an ornamental container filled with salt. The master and mistress of the home and their important guests sat above the salt. The less important members of the household were seated below the salt. To have a position of honor at table is spoken of as being "seated above the salt."

Fans Saw Plenty of Action in St. Paul Game

Here, from LaVern Duemey's fast-action camera, are three pictures taken during the Ord-St. Paul basketball game Friday night which Ord won 43 to 37. The picture at top, taken in the 2nd quarter under Ord's basket, shows Furtak (No. 50) missing a one hand set-up shot and the ensuing scramble for the ball, which the Apostles retrieved a moment later and passed out of the danger zone. The middle picture was taken in the third quarter and shows Adams sinking a set-up, while the lower photo, taken a few seconds before the game ended, shows Clarence Romans making a short shot good to put Ord safely ahead 41 to 37. Romans was high point man of the game with 23 points.

Raising Canaries Is Source of Pleasure, Profit for Walter Sorensen

Walter Sorensen, of Arcadia, has one of the most unusual hobbies of any man in central Nebraska, and that is raising and training canaries. His hobby is a source of profit to him also, as he quite often sells canaries and has shipped them to New York City and other points as far away.

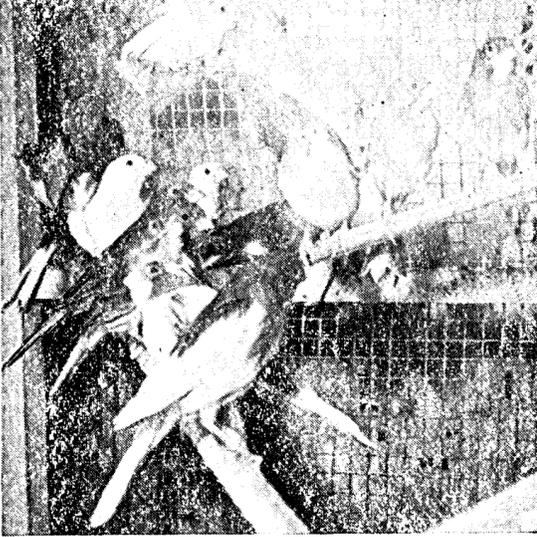

A member of the International Roller Canary association, Mr. Sorensen showed his birds in 1940 at the International bird show held in Denver and won first prize in one division on his canary, Sunbeam 938, which he is shown holding in the photo at upper left.

All Mr. Sorensen's canaries are of the roller breed but they vary greatly in coloring. Some are gypsy green, some mottled black and white with touches of green and yellow breasts, while a third variety is pure white. He has paid as much as $25 for one canary, says Mr. Sorensen, but usual price for a good individual is $5.00 to $10.00.

Since he retired from business (he was a barber shop owner and working barber in Arcadia for many years) Mr. Sorensen has more time to devote to his hobby and now has more than 50 canaries. An attic room in his home has been fitted up with cages and there Mr. Sorensen has his desk also. He spends hours at a time pouring over his breeding records and otherwise busying himself with his hobby.

Yes, records are kept of the breeding of all good canaries, the same as of prize cattle, horses, dogs and other animals.

Numbers are assigned to each bird by the international association, these numbers being on leg bands which are applied to the canaries when they are a week old and which they wear all their lives.

The photo at upper left shows a battery of cages in Mr. Sorensen's canary room, while below is seen a group of canaries, some green, some mottled and some white.

His birds eat about 200 pounds of a specially mixed bird seed each year and drink about a quart of water daily, says the Arcadia canary fancier.

All canaries are natural singers but to have them sing their best they must be separated. Two birds kept in the same cage, or in cages within sight of each other, will sing very little but move one bird into another room and they will sing continually to each other, says Mr. Sorensen. Some of his best singers he keeps in cages in living rooms of the Sorensen home but his breeding birds and the young birds are kept in the attic room specially fitted up for them.

When he went to Lincoln Senator Knezacek stated that he would not introduce many bills. LB 424 is the only bill he introduced, and it is one in which his constituents should be more directly interested, perhaps, than any other. Knezacek generally gets what he goes after, but he will need the help of every person interested in the preservation of this monument to pioneer days.

The Fort Hartsuff bill reads as follows: A BILL, FOR AN ACT to direct the game, forestation and parks commission to take the necessary steps to acquire Fort Hartsuff as a historic site for state park and memorial purposes.

Introduced by Joseph T. Knezacek of Valley county (Asimus and Van Delsit collaborating) Preamble: WHEREAS, on September 5, 1874, Fort Hartsuff was established on the north side of the Loup River, seventy-five miles from Grand Island, and abandoned on May 9, 1881, and

WHEREAS, the original tract of land on which said fort was built is located in Valley county, Nebraska, near the Garfield county line, and

WHEREAS, the buildings of said Fort Hartsuff are still in existence in a fair to poor state of repair, and

WHEREAS, said Fort was built in the pioneer days as a protection against Indians, and

WHEREAS, the citizens of central Nebraska unanimously believe and through the Fort Hartsuff Committee of the Old Settlers society in that territory have by appropriate resolution and other actions indicated that they believe and sincerely desire that the buildings of said fort should be preserved and the site retained in public hands as a memorial to the pioneers and as a reservation to help preserve the ideals of Nebraska's early settlers as a state park or other appropriate historic memorial site, and

WHEREAS, a portion of said land comprising the original site of said fort is within the limits of the North Loup River Public Power and Irrigation district, which now enables its original site to be properly landscaped for the enjoyment of the present and coming generation, and

WHEREAS, the said Fort Hartsuff Committee believe that the preservation of said fort is a matter of state concern, NOW THEREFORE BE IT ENACTED BY THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF NEBRASKA:

Section 1. That the game forestation and parks commission is hereby directed to take the necessary steps to acquire Fort Hartsuff as a historic site for state park or memorial purposes, within such appropriation as the legislature may hereafter allow.

Former Ord Man's Story Told in World-Herald

A former Ordite, George Russell Mann of the class of 1905, Ord high school, was the subject of a feature article by William H. Graham in Sunday's World-Herald. Graham asks if Mann is overpaid at $25 per day for his job as compiler of laws for the legislature, and then proves in the story that he isn't.

According to Graham, 70% of Nebraska statutes are the work of Mr. Mann, which is about correct. When he isn't making laws for the legislature, he goes about over the state revising and improving the ordinances for the towns and villages. He has done legal work for Ord, North Loup and Elyria, among almost 500 of Nebraska's cities and villages. In his particular field Mr. Mann is perhaps as well informed as any lawyer in the nation.

Getting Seed Corn Ready for Spring Planting

Shown above is the Nu-Bred seed corn processing plant at work on the W. O. Zangger farm. In the upper photo Mr. Zangger is shown at the mill, upper right. Harold Nelson is putting the seed into the rotary grader, middle rear. Watching him, behind the machine, is Mr. McGowen. John Guggenmos, back turned, is taking a tub of seed away from the grader. Mr. Van Hoosen, sideways, is weighing seed. John Edwards, facing camera, is tying sacks.

Canning Factory Needed If Valley Grows Vegetables

Hoppert recommended that such makeshifts as brush and corn fodder be stacked against the garden fence and wired there if no other wind break should be available.

Mr. Hoppert advised the farmers not to plant shade trees within fifteen to twenty feet of their homes. He recommended planting hackberries and elms for shade purposes.

In discussing the production of fruits, Mr. Hoppert declared that strawberries were not hard to grow if they were planted with the crowns level with the ground and supplied with plenty of water. He advised frequent and light irrigations as they have shallow roots. He said that the June bearing varieties would be more satisfactory in this locality than the everbearing varieties. He recommended the Senator Dunlap June bearing variety and the Mastodon and Gem everbearing varieties.

He stated that black raspberries could be raised in the North Loup valley but that red raspberries and boysenberries were too apt to winter kill. He recommended that black raspberries be shaded with corn stalks during the winter months. He expressed a preference for the Cumberland variety because of its hardiness.

Mr. Hoppert said that currants and gooseberries would be easy to grow in the North Loup valley if they were protected from the hot south winds. Grapes on the other hand need a windbreak from the north winds. He recommended the early varieties such as Worden and Fredonia and stated that the growing season here is usually not long enough for varieties such as Concord to reach their full maturity.

He stated the opinion that cherries could be grown here even though most of the trees were killed by the early freeze last fall which was a unique weather experience not likely to be encountered again. He recommended the Early Richmond and Mount Morency varieties. Mr. Hoppert declared that rapid growth should be discouraged in cherries as they do not bear fruit under such conditions. He said they should not be watered heavily in the spring as this made the fruit bearing buds change into leaf and branch bearing buds. They should not be irrigated heavily in fall until they have dropped their leaves.

He said that plums could be easily grown here and recommended such varieties as Sapa, Opata, and the Compass cherry which come into bearing quickly, and the Wauwata, Wray and the Omaha which make larger trees.

In producing apples in this locality selecting varieties of proven hardiness is of the first importance according to Mr. Hoppert. He recommended the planting of Early McIntosh, Beacon, Duchess, Early Transparent, Cortland, Haralson, and the Wealthy, except that it is susceptible to cedar rust during wet seasons. He declared that Grimes Golden and Jonathan lack the hardiness essential in this locality. Red Delicious is a variety which can be grown here according to Mr. Hoppert. He said that Anoka, a variety often recommended for hardiness is of poor quality and for that reason he would not recommend it.

Recipe Books Available Now at Burwell Also

3rd Book in Series '250 Classic Cake Recipes,' Released to All Quiz Readers.

In response to many requests, arrangements have been made whereby the Culinary Arts recipe books being distributed by The Quiz may be secured in Burwell as well as in Ord, North Loup and Arcadia.

Readers who want the weekly booklets may get them at the downtown office of Judge Ben Rose, with Virginia Rose Anderson in charge of distribution.

Same plan of distribution is to be followed at Burwell as elsewhere. For a coupon clipped from page 2 of The Quiz, and only 10c in cash, any Cookbooklet in the series may be secured.

Today the third Cookbooklet is released, this being '250 Classic Cake Recipes' which bids fair to be the most popular in the entire series.

Previously released were '500 Snacks' and '500 Ways to Use Leftovers.' Each is proving very popular.

There are twenty Cookbooklets in the series and when completed they form the finest dictionary of the household arts ever published. The Quiz is the first weekly paper in the United States to have the privilege of distributing them to its readers.

All books are beautifully illustrated and the recipes are new and up to date in every particular.

Each Wednesday a different Cookbooklet is released. Booklet available next week will be '250 Ways to Prepare Poultry and Game Birds.'

Women who have not done so are advised to start collecting the Cookbooklets now. While additional booklets may be secured by the Quiz when the present supply runs out, this has not been definitely decided and it is wiser to get them now.

In Ord you may get the Cookbooklets at the Quiz office or at the City Bakery, in North Loup at Vodehnal's Pharmacy, in Arcadia at the Ramsey Drug Store, or in Burwell at Judge Rose's office from Mrs. Virginia Anderson. Each is 10c, with a coupon from the Quiz. Mail subscribers may get each booklet as it is issued by sending 15c (10c for the booklet, 5c for handling and mailing) and the coupon from the Quiz.

"My People Want Rain, Not More Laws"

So Says Senator Knezacek, Who Introduced Fewest Bills of Any Legislator at Present Session.

Joseph T. Knezacek, who represents Valley, Wheeler, Greeley and Howard counties in the unicameral legislature, attained fame and much favorable publicity last week when the record disclosed that he introduced the fewest bills of any senator in the current session. Time for introducing bills expired last Wednesday.

"What my people want most is rain and, of course we can't legislate that," said Senator Knezacek in an interview given to the Lincoln Star. "I'm going to try to kill as many bills as possible."

Knezacek introduced exactly one measure, to authorize the game commission to acquire old Fort Hartsuff for a state park. He was co-introducer of seven others. Champion introducer was Senator Ernest Adams, of Omaha, who proposed 27 and was co-introducer for 36 others for a total of 63.

New Boy Scout Troop To Be Organized Soon

A group of about two dozen boys met at the Knights of Columbus hall Sunday afternoon with Forrest Wittercraft, member of the Cornhusker Boy Scout council, from Grand Island, to talk over plans for a new Boy Scout troop which will be sponsored by the Knights of Columbus.

The meeting Sunday was the second held for this purpose, one having been held a Sunday earlier. A third meeting is to be held there next Sunday, at which time the permanent organization will be perfected. About two thirds of the boys Sunday were of Scout age, and the others of Cub Scout age.

The first Boy Scout organization, which was sponsored by the Rotarians, plans to continue this year, but a new scoutmaster to take the place of Rex Jewett has not yet been found. Scouting has meant much to the boys of Ord in the past, and has proven an enterprise worthy of encouragement.

Money Needed to Extend Free Milk Plan Through May

$119.75 Acknowledged by the BPWC Will Provide Milk Until Middle of March.

More contributions are needed to carry the project of providing free milk daily to Ord school children through until the end of the school year, said Miss Eunice Chase, president of the Ord Business and Professional Women's club, yesterday. This club is sponsor of the project.

Including the original $25 contribution made by the sponsor group, a total of $119.75 has been contributed to date and this sum is sufficient to provide milk for the grade school children until about the middle of April. Another $45, it is estimated now, will continue the project until end of the school year.

Children whose parents can afford to pay for the milk their children drink take 10c weekly to school; all other children in the lower grades are given the same amount of pure milk, with cost being paid from the BPWC fund. This project is one of the most popular and successful ever sponsored by an Ord group.

Contributions to the fund are acknowledged by the sponsor club as follows: Jolly Juniors Extension club, $2; George Parkins, $2; P. E. O., $5; Ava Noll, $2; Merry-mix club, $2; Mrs. C. E. Ord Annual Solo Day Coming Next Monday

The music department of the Ord high school is busy practicing for the annual "Solo Day," which will be at the high school auditorium Monday, Febr. 24. About fifty students will present solos during the afternoon, and in the evening the outstanding solos as selected by the critics will be repeated.

Included in the evening program will be special music by the high school string quartet, and the feature attraction will be the Ord high school band under the direction of Mr. Deines, assisted by Prof. Don Lentz, conductor of the University of Nebraska band, in the first public appearance of 1941.

The critics for Solo Day will be Prof. Lentz and Prof. Herman Dackner, both of the University of Nebraska. These two men will meet with the high school groups and soloists during the morning to help them in their individual performance.

This type of program is unique, and Ord is, so far as known, the only school that conducts such a performance. That it is worth while is proven by the number of Ord graduates who are participating in college and university organizations. A small admission fee will be charged to defray necessary expenses.

Rose Bowl Film Attracted 450

A crowd estimated at 450 braved cold weather Tuesday evening to attend a showing of Rose Bowl movies at the high school auditorium, under auspices of the Rotary and Cosmopolitan clubs of Ord. About 200 adults and 250 children were present, the latter being admitted free.

Link Lyman, line coach at University of Nebraska, showed the movies and commented on high spots of the Nebraska-Stanford game. A technical reel of the Tournament of Roses parade also was shown.

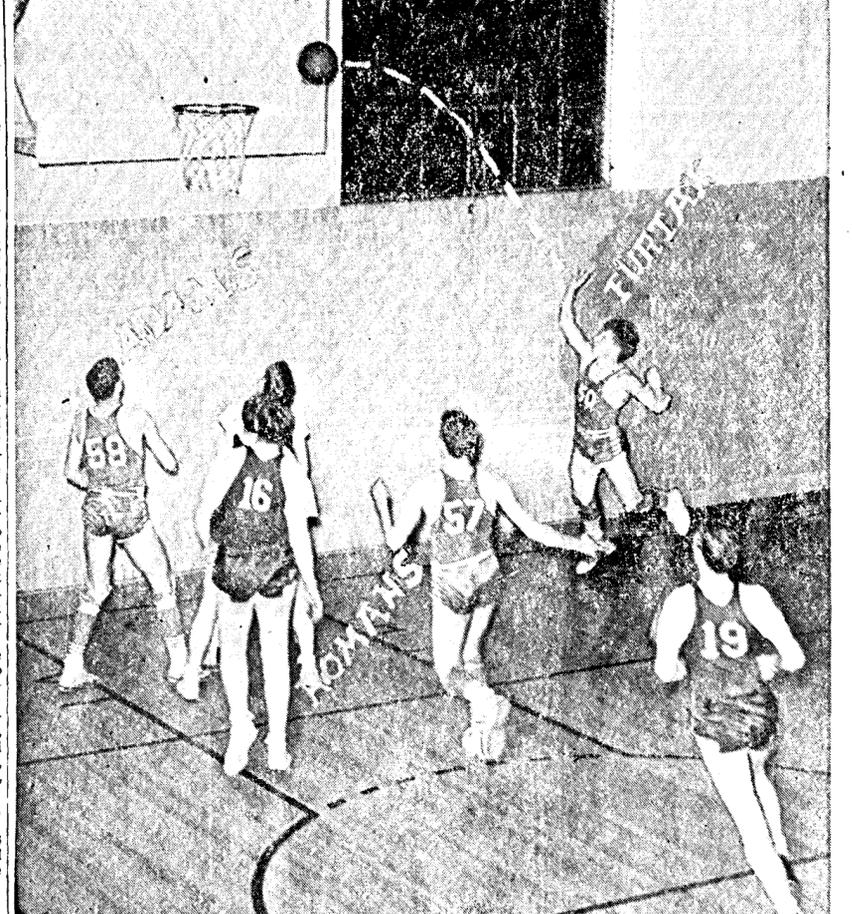

Preceding the movies, Rotarians and Cosmos, their wives and lady friends, enjoyed dinner together at the K. of C. hall with the Thorne Cafe serving a delicious meal. Community singing was led by Dr. George Gard and later Hilding Pearson, president of the Cosmos group, presided at a brief program, introducing E. L. Kokes, Rotary chieftain, who spoke briefly, and also Roscoe Tolly, Ord high coach, and Mr. Lyman.

R. W. Stone to Sell.

R. W. Stone, who lives 3 1/2 miles southeast of Comstock, has decided to move to Gering and so is holding a clean-up sale next Wednesday, Febr. 26, selling 14 head of horses, $9 cattle, a big lot of tractor, and other machinery and one of the biggest miscellaneous offerings yet seen. The ad appears in this issue.

—Arthur Bailey of Omaha arrived in Ord Sunday. He had a few days work in this territory and visited his mother, Mrs. R. C. Bailey, while here. He left again this morning.

Furtak Scores Final Basket as Ord Wins Loup Valley Tournament

With a one-handed shot from near the sidelines, which looped high and then swished through the netting just as the game ended, Furtak scored the basket which clinched the Loup Valley championship for the Ord basketball team at Burwell Friday night. St. Paul was the victim, for the second time in crucial games. Two other Ord boys, Adams and Romans, were in position to grab the ball and shoot but Furtak missed, which shows the kind of plays Coach Tolly taught to a slow-starting but fast-finishing Ord basketball group.

Hi-Y Athletic Show Was Well Attended Monday

Monday evening the Hi-Y athletes of Ord high school put on the first athletic show seen in the school for a long time. It was a great success, as a group of 250 highly elated fans can testify.

Muscle for the program was furnished by a special band, the members of which were Alexis Cochran, Willie Blaha, Gerald Jirak, Dean Misko, Harold Christensen and Orville Stoddard. This same group rode around town in the afternoon in a truck and advertised the show.

Officials for the events were: For the boxing, Roscoe Tolly, referee, judges, Max Hester and Rex Jewett, and Warren Reeves, time-keeper for all events.

In the boxing, Joe Lola scored a technical knockout over Donald Habig in the first event. Alvin Stewart won a decision over Leslie Hayek in the second. The third gave Bob Adamack a decision over Frank Beran. In the fourth, Edward Rousek decided Junior Dodge.

The fifth event was a wrestling bout, with Bob Klima getting the nod over Carson Rogers. The seventh event, boxing, was won by Jack Weaver over Bill Novosad. Otto Maresh decided Earl Barnes in the eighth event. The ninth event was cancelled.

The tenth proved the most interesting of the evening, with Gould Flagg and Harvey Dahlin going three rounds to a draw. Jerry Fryzek decided Donald Fisher in the eleventh event. In the twelfth John Marker scored a technical knockout over Lloyd Gewelke.

The thirteenth, a wrestling event, gave Orville Stoddard a fall over Lyle Norman. George Cetak decided Bob Timmerman in the fourteenth event, a heavyweight boxing event. The fifteenth, another wrestle, was cancelled.

Last but not least on the program was the battle royal, in which Leonard Vavra, Edwin Vavra, Joe Rysavy, Charles Draper, Bud Larsen and Joe Lola participated, with Leonard Vavra and Joe Rysavy finally earning a draw. According to rules, whenever a boy touched the canvas with any part of his body except his feet, he was out.

In an added event, Bob McCall, 142, and Bill Johnson, 135, put on the gloves, with McCall winning the decision. The crowd was unanimous in its approval of the show and are hoping for more of the same kind in the future.

Scotia, North Loup, Split.

North Loup—(Special)—The basketball teams and this village split a twin bill played here last night, North Loup winning the first team game 20 to 15 and Scotia the 2nd team game, 19 to 11. In girls' volleyball the North Loup lassies won, 29 to 25. The presence of high school teams from both schools made it a gala evening.

Ft. Hartsuff History is Written by Davis

The past week the Quiz received a welcome communication from Senator Joseph T. Knezacek, enclosing a copy of the history of Fort Hartsuff, as written for the Nebraska State Historical Society by Horace M. Davis. This is perhaps the most accurate and complete history of the Fort extant.

Later, when space permits, the Quiz hopes to print this history in full. Senator Knezacek also asked for photos of the old Fort, which were furnished, and which will be used to bring the fort before the general public in connection with the plan to have it made into a state park.

Junior High Tourney at Sargent Today

The annual basketball tournament for Junior High teams of the Loup Valley opens today at Sargent, with St. Paul meeting Sargent at 1:00, Ravenna playing Loup City at 2:00, Burwell and Broken Bow playing at 3:00 and Arcadia and Ord colliding at 4:00. Semi-final games will be played at 7 and 9 this evening but finals for the championship and for consolation winner are to be played Saturday afternoon.

Formers vs Farmers.

The south farmers defeated the north farmers last night at the Goodhand alley in a hotly contested series of games, the final score being 2618 to 2477. Playing for the south group were John and Hartwig Koll, Lew Jobst, Emil Zikmund and Elmer Almqvist. For the north were Henry Enger, Emil and Joe Sedlacek, Chris Hansen and Floyd Peterson. Emil Zikmund was high with a score of 222. Dr. J. W. McGinnis was high last week with 221, and Don Severson is high so far this week with 236.

Dr. Clason Discovered by Evet Smith in Photo

Last week the Quiz published a photo of a man driving an old style car, and asked for guesses on his identity. The first and only man to make a guess was Evet Smith, who last evening correctly named him as Dr. Clason, one time veterinarian of Ord, but now deceased. The car, a Ford, had run 76,540 miles on Sept. 17, 1913, the day the picture was taken. The building was the one until recently occupied by Syl's Sign shop, just west of Auble Motors.

Wheat Insurance Closing.

The AAA county committee announces the closing date on 1941 spring wheat Federal Crop Insurance has been set for Febr. 28, 1941. All applications for wheat insurance must be postmarked or received in the county office on or before that date.

Chanticleers Win Championship of the Loup Valley

Nose Out St. Paul 32 to 28 in Tourney Finals Friday Eve Before Overflow Crowd.

Coach Roscoe Tolly's boys proved Friday evening that their earlier victory over the St. Paul Apostles was no accident when they again edged out St. Paul, this time in the finals of the Loup Valley tournament at Burwell before an overflow crowd.

The final score was 32 to 28 and the win gives Ord the championship of the Loup Valley conference. Their victory the previous week over St. Paul gave them a claim on the Mid-Six crown, shared equally by Ravenna and St. Paul.

The game Friday eve was a thriller from the opening gong to the final gun. Ord leading most of the way by a slim point margin but being behind the Apostles on two occasions.

The Chanticleers led by two points with only seconds to go when Raymond Furtak put the game on ice with a high looper that dropped through the basket as the game ended and put Ord four points to the good.

This boy Romans was a thorn in the side of the Apostles all evening. Not only did he lead the Ord scoring attack with four field goals and three gift tosses but he was all over the floor, breaking up the St. Paul attack, handling the ball cleanly and setting up many a scoring play for his mates. Furtak, with 9 points, was next in scoring. Piskorski and Cochran looked exceptionally good for Ord at the guard posts while Brittain was the best performer in St. Paul tugs.

The Chanticleers won their right to play in the finals by defeating Comstock in easy fashion Wednesday night.

Civil Service Exams for Assistance Employees

Three members of the office force of the Valley county assistance office will go to Grand Island this week to take civil service examinations. The three are Merl Hedge, Viola Puncocar and Artyce Zikmund. The Valley county assistance director, Frank Kruml, passed the examination successfully some time ago.

Under a reorganization plan now in progress, all employees in certain types of relief and assistance offices will come under federal civil service and their salaries will be paid by the government.

THE BIRTH RECORD BILL.

There is pending before the unicameral at the present time a bill that should have immediate attention. It is a bill that should be passed, and doubtless will be, by an almost unanimous vote.

Just why this all important bill was not brought up and passed years ago is something that is difficult to understand. In early days no record of births was kept in Nebraska.

Because of the fact that there was plenty of work at home, the people of Nebraska suffered little inconvenience because of this neglect in keeping all important records.

But, with the coming of the drouth, many have been forced to go elsewhere to find employment, and often work is denied them because they are unable to prove, not that they were born, but when and where.

Good and sufficient proof is required to their age, and the only way they have of proving it is through the affidavits of friends.

Many laws proposed in the unicameral are important, but none is of more immediate importance than the one which will furnish the means of proving the date of one's birth.

AYC HAS LOST PRESTIGE.
A year ago the members of the AYC, American Youth Congress, were met with open arms at Washington, D. C.

The National Student federation in former years the organization's largest affiliate, had withdrawn its support Dec. 30 last because of alleged adherence to the communist party.

The United States may be going to the dogs, as many seem to think, but the treatment the AYC meeting received this year would indicate the opposite.

The ORD QUIZ

THE U. S. SANTA CLAUS.

The Quiz recently received a pamphlet, "News From the Outpost," published in London, Jan. 1, 1941. It is an interesting booklet, but like the material this paper has been receiving gratis for months from 15 Battery Place, New York, is nothing more nor less than propaganda.

This pamphlet is put out by what is purported to be Americans-in-Britain, and is designed to influence Americans to take a more active interest in Britain's side of the war.

It might be well to consider who these Americans-in-Britain are. The poorer class of Americans were largely shipped home. Most of those who remain fall into two classes.

With the pamphlet came a cartoon, showing a Roosevelt-faced Santa Claus coming with a big pack of war supplies on his back. Johnny Bull was not at home, but he had left a note over his stocking hung from the mantel piece, reading: "Dear Santa Claus: Sorry I couldn't wait. I'm on duty, please fill up the stocking."

One cannot help but wonder if, after all, that isn't just what Britain expects of us. Santa Claus is expected to give and give, and to receive nothing in return.

Los Angeles, Calif.
Febr. 13, 1941.
Today I happened to get hold of the Quiz of Febr. 5 and noticed the picture by W. A. Anderson and the caption saying it was a puzzle.

Well I can name most of them for you: It is a picture of the school of Dist. No. 16 and as you say, was taken around 1890. I'm not just sure what school year Mr. Anderson was our teacher.

There are four whom I'm not sure of but here are the names, the back row reading from left to right are Frank Smith, Oliver Bundy, Frank Saville (my brother) second row from top reading same Ethel Smith, Myrtle Smith (now Mrs. Ed Thompson I think) Jessie Saville (me) Myra Polter, second row from bottom Charlie Smith, (?) (?) Lottie Smith, Grace Polter, front row Ervett Smith, (?) Smith, Dora Smith, (?) Bundy, (?)

One of the girls whom I can't name is I think a Widstrand girl but I don't know which one she is and I don't know the little chubby tow head at the right end.

I was sure glad to see the picture as I had lost my copy of it. Mr. Anderson gave each of us one as last day of school gift.

I wonder if you would have any back copies of that issue of the Quiz, if so will you please send me one and let me know the charge and I'll gladly remit.

A short time ago I was agreeably surprised to tune in on "We The People" radio program and heard Donald Smith tell about a strange law case he had had. Donald is the son of the Charlie Smith in this old picture. I hope one of your readers can give you the names I'm unable to recall.

Sincerely Yours,

I shall impose on your good nature by enclosing the first coupon and a check for three dollars.

Odd System of Telephone Rate Making

Among the many odd practices followed by the Nebraska Continental Telephone Company, which serves the city of Ord and also a number of other cities and villages in central Nebraska, is the system it uses in fixing rates.

At Greeley, for example, this telephone company charges $2.75 per month for business telephones, $1.60 per month for residence telephones, and $1.67 per month for farm telephones. Discounts of 25c per month are allowed for business and residential telephone users who pay their bills before the 10th of the month; 17c discount for farm telephone bills similarly paid.

At Burwell the same company charges only $1.50 per month for business telephones, $1.00 per month for residential telephones, and $1.08 per month for farm telephones, with no discounts. At Greeley the type of service furnished is magneto, the same as Ord's. In other words, to get the operator you turn the crank. At Burwell the type furnished is common battery, or crankless, service.

My Own Column

I am in receipt of information that Merritt H. (Pat) Fuson is about to put on the market a new discovery under the trade name of Fuson's Early Bird Vermifuge. He will use two slogans to publicize the product: "Merritt Has It, It Has Merit," and "Our Early Bird Gets the Worm."

Charley Hunt, whose poetical ability has long been known, hands in the following for publication in this department of literary gems: There was a young fellow named Tippin Who went with a lady named Grippin; She won him with ease For she did a strip-tease, And she sure was a pippin at strippin'.

A sad accident occurred in a nearby county the other day. The father of 21 children returned home after being absent three weeks. His wife met him at the door and said: "I have a little surprise for you dear," and he up and shot himself.

"It's tough to have to pay 65 cents for a steak," said a guy in a local restaurant, and the waitress replied, "It's tougher if you only pay 35 cents."

I notice that legislative committees in Lincoln have killed several proposed laws, a job the introducers should have done earlier.

A terrible thing happened to one of the most highly thought of former Ordites. Local people were kept in ignorance of it for a long time, hoping some remedy could be found and I have refrained from mentioning it for months. But there seems to be no good reason for longer concealing a fact that is becoming noised about. The tragedy happened to none other than our good friend Pat Fuson. It was while he was up in Montana a few years ago, bigshotting for the government as an architect, a science that he had read something about in the past. It happened in this way: Pat, as we all know, was always a great hand to take the part of the under dog. One day a white man and an Indian got into a fight and seeing the Indian getting the worst of the battle, Pat took his part and got much the worst of the deal. In fact he was so badly hurt that a blood transfusion was ordered by his surgeon. The white men were so incensed at him that none of them would give of their blood for the transfusion. But the Indians, grateful to him for helping their comrade, offered to give the needed blood and apparently that was where the trouble started. For almost from that day Pat began to change in appearance. The Indian blood had done its work and Pat now looks like the picture above. Sent to me by a friend at Poncha, Ore. Eminent doctors everywhere have been consulted but none of them can explain what happened. Pat has associated with beautiful blonde actresses galore in an effort to correct the trouble but to no avail. Of course being a poet the long hair does not come amiss, but Pat, naturally proud of the high florid complexion acquired through year of partake, 'er, abstaining from the cup that cheers, does not like the dark, swarthy complexion which the Indian blood has given him. I suspect however that his condition will prove to be a blessing in disguise for when he goes out from school house to town hall selling his new remedy, he will be well equipped to handle the job.

I wonder sometimes if anyone really likes to be read to.

A FEW THINGS TO THINK ABOUT

Should Have England a Defensive Fighter Odds Still on Hitler

Written by GEORGE GOWEN

I was quite interested in the letter in the Quiz Forum two weeks ago by Barbara Lukes. It showed a good bit of thought and a good bit of knowledge of the European situation. But she writes in a little different trend than I should have done and I would rather tell or predict what is going to happen. For example, I should have gone to church last week, and because I didn't we can predict what will eventually happen.

For another example, a few weeks ago, I predicted that England was about whipped. It is interesting to see how far one can miss in such predictions. England seems to have jumped up the count and found an ally—United States.

But if we are talking of "should have's," we should go back further than the Munich conference. Let us not blame Chamberlain for all this ruckus. What should have been done, it seems to most of us now, was when the other war ceased, that the Allies march to Berlin and stay there with an army making sure Germany did not build up for another war, just the same as the Germans are doing now in Paris. You see, the Germans are a little smarter on that score, or at least, learned from the mistakes of the Allies from the other war.

It would not have mattered much whether the Munich conference was held or not. Hitler and his gang, we know now, were out to conquer the world, or at least the European world. First they tested the reaction with Austria. Then Czechoslovakia, then Poland. First a small bite, then larger. Had France and England declared war at first they might have been whipped worse than they were, for they were unprepared and Hitler was on the line ready to jump. One democracy selling out its smaller friend; if they had wanted to they couldn't have done any different. There might be a man on the other side of the river I think I can whip, but I can't swim the river. So you see, I am not much help to the poor fellow over there that is being abused.

England a Defensive Fighter. Now that is off my chest, let us predict. It looks now like Hitler is stopped, temporarily at least. We do not quite know what he is up to in the Balkans. There is the advantage of the offensive fighter. He pulls all the surprises. He prepares thoroughly; then jumps. The defensive fighter seldom wins a war; is at a terrible disadvantage. More than that, Hitler seems to have no scruples about boundary lines or about neutral countries. Anything is all right with him if he wins his battle. England, as yet, apparently, is badly handicapped on that score; that is, trying to make war on the square. (Don't laugh at that.)

That is the reason Hitler whipped France, why England is whipping Italy. Even with the benefit of forts and on home territory, the defense has a big disadvantage. England, outside of Africa, is still fighting the defensive. She worries over Gibraltar, Suez, Singapore, the Balkans and the invasion across the channel. She must be prepared for any eventually on all fronts, except any kind of a surprise. She worries over bombing, gas and submarines. Hitler sits more or less secure, relatively. It is a wonder to many that England has lasted as long as she has.

That is one of the main reasons why the outlook for England is so doubtful. Even with Italy whipped, one streak of bad luck, at any of the above mentioned points, would be an awful blow to England. But happy is the thought that as yet, she is still holding fast.

Speaking of Hitler, for the nonce he seems stopped. He seemed stopped too, just before he invaded Belgium and Holland. Later he has been unable to do anything with Pétain and the vichy government in France. His navy and army in Africa are his army there. He has not won the cooperation of Spain and Italy is whipped. Turkey is a worry in the east and might cause war on two fronts which he has tried desperately to avoid. We can't tell. There is always calm before the storm and he is still the offensive fighter; still pulling the surprises. And the Germans are masters at that surprise business too.

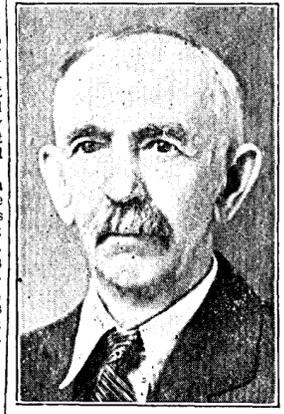

It is said too that Europe cannot stand a long stalemate. Even now, in many places there is a bad shortage of food. If this stalemate went on for a few years there would be, many think, all manner of revolutions. Experts think 1941 will settle it one way or another for Hitler knows he must win soon. In that event, anything might happen; any day.

Sitting in the Bleachers. A fellow said to me the other day, "I don't listen to the war news any more. I am tired of it." We are all tired of it; wish it was over. But it is an epoch in the world's history. War is the world's greatest game. We living now should get in on it; this event that will be studied second hand throughout the ages. We will get it first hand, that is pretty close first hand, with our radios.

Frank Travis Passes Eightieth Milestone

Frank Travis reached his 80th birthday Saturday, and in honor of the occasion a group of relatives and friends gathered at the Alfred L. Hill home for a dinner Sunday. Mr. Travis came to Valley county with his parents, landing in North Loup Sept. 15, 1877, and going to a farm in the Vinton neighborhood in the spring of 1878.

This makes him one of the oldest settlers now living, having been here 63 years last September. The first few years in the county he lived with his parents, but when he married he bought a place four miles further west. The family lived there until 1913, at which time they moved to Ord, where he has made his home since.

Those attending the dinner were: Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Almqvist and Ruth, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred L. Hill, Phyllis and Donald, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Travis and Mary Cathryn. Mrs. Myra Watson and son Forrest, Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Lewis, Lucille and Harold, Mr. and Mrs. John Lemmon, Mr. and Mrs. Merle Denning and family, Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Travis and Margaret, Mrs. Levern Aldrich and two sons, Oscar and Chester Travis and Mrs. Alvin Hill.

Station Bandit Caught. Friends here will recall the hold-up that occurred at the service station of Fred Meyer and son at Midway, Calif., Febr. 23, 1940. In writing to renew his subscription Mr. Meyer encloses clippings telling of the capture, at Dallas, Tex., of William Albert Webb, 21, the man who staged the Meyer holdup. Webb got $67 in cash from the Meyer station. When caught he admitted the holdup of 9 service stations in Dallas. He was returned to California and was sentenced to 6 years, to serve one full year and to be on probation the other five. He is not to leave Orange county or to drink any liquor during the five years.

Ethel Smith Hoyt Writes. Mrs. Ethel Smith Hoyt writes from Huntington Park, Calif., and sends the complete list of names of the school children in the photo printed on the editorial page two weeks ago. She also states that W. A. Anderson was the teacher at the time and took the photo. She says she hasn't forgotten those school days when Mr. Anderson was teacher in No. 16.

Friend Writes from Far West. Mrs. Ross Williams has sent us a part of a letter written her by her brother, Nick Whalen, formerly of North Loup, but now of Aberdeen, Wash. The letter is as follows:

"Everything is booming here now. Everything is running 24 hours a day and things are getting higher in price. Looks like war to me. We see bombers nearly every day, several war ships have been here and they have cannons mounted on both sides and air-craft guns in the center. So tell Ross I will see him in England. I am going to send you some pictures in which you will be interested. You might send them up to the Quiz. The one of the big log is good. Tell them to put it in with the one of the big cottonwood they printed some time ago. I worked last summer near where it was cut."

We regret that we are unable to make a cut from the newspaper print sent. There were two pictures, one a spruce log eight feet through, loaded on a big dual wheel truck; the other a spruce 132 feet long which was being hauled to Quinault CCC camp to be used as a flag pole. It would make the tallest flag pole in the state.

John Polak Tells of Trip to Wake Island

Mrs. E. L. Vogelanz recently received a letter from her brother, John Polak, of Wake Island, who recently arrived at Wake Island as superintendent in charge of work there. It cost 45c to send the letter, which came by air mail, so Mrs. Vogelanz is sending it on to other relatives.

The machinery that will be used at Wake Island was towed behind the ship on which the men made the trip, on a barge which caused considerable trouble, and which broke loose on two occasions and had to be picked up again, a difficult task because of the high sea.

When he wrote the ship was anchored off the island while the engineers were blasting a channel to the shore so that the barge could be brought up to the wharf for unloading. He had an office on board, and could see the island through field glasses. He said it looked very beautiful.

A nephew of Mr. Polak, Gordon Krysan, of Calmer, Ia., left Feb. 1 to be with him. As the fortifying of Wake Island has been the cause of diplomatic exchanges Mr. Polak may see some lively times before the construction work there is completed.

It Happened in North Loup, John and Jane live on a farm in our community and like most young farm women Jane was anxious for some early chicks to make some extra money. The chickens were ordered and were put in the brooder house which had been made ready. But the brooder stove was giving some trouble so after supper John and Jane left the children in the house and went to see what could be done. After a couple hours everything seemed to be going fine and John told Jane to go on to the house with the children and he would watch it a while longer. Jane went to the house, put the children to bed, finished her work and went to bed herself. She had spent a strenuous day and fell asleep at once. Some time later she awakened and realized that John had not come to bed. The clock said after midnight so she got up and went to see what the trouble might be. On a box in the brooder house she found John patiently waiting for her to come and unlock the door which had a patent lock on it that opened with ease from the outside but could not be opened from the inside.

Knights of Columbus Hosts at Card Party Monday evening the Knights of Columbus were hosts to a large crowd at a card party at their new hall in the Bailey building. A total of 20 tables were used in playing pinochle, and a lunch was served at the end of eight games. Winners of prizes for the evening were: high scores, Mrs. Joe Sedlacek for the ladies and Ray Mella for the men; low scores, Mrs. George Zikmund for the ladies and Vencil Sedlacek for the men. The traveling prize was won by Mrs. Frank T. Krikac.

Baseball Meeting. All persons interested in baseball are urged to attend a meeting at the Purtak barber shop Friday evening. Preliminary plans for the season of 1941 will be discussed.

Almost time for Spring Work, Farmers— Let Me Fix Up Your TRACTOR

Every year thousands of dollars are spent needlessly for new tractor parts. It's cheaper to have the old ones repaired and rebuilt than to buy new. I can build up spline shafts and bull gears, fixing up the worn places as good as new at a fraction of the cost of new.

PECENKA AND SON

Tam o' Shanter's Bridge At Alloway, Scotland, there stands the Twelfth century bridge across which Tam o' Shanter, hero of Burns' famous poem, galloped on his old gray horse to escape the witches who chased him down the road.

It Happened in Vinton. The Quiz is informed of something that happened in Vinton. It seems that there is some kind of a ladies club there, and the members had a big dinner and invited their husbands. One poor fellow had to stay at home and take care of the stock and get his own dinner.

When his wife got home that night she told him about the roast meat, creamed potatoes, pie and cake and other good things they had for dinner until she had his mouth watering, and then gave him a going over for not washing his dinner dishes. The Vinton assessor thinks that is adding insult to injury.

Meanwhile a group of men were busy in the kitchen getting the lunch ready, and when all was prepared all went below for a lurch of coffee, hot dogs, cheese, pickles and cookies.

Sunday afternoon Lewis Moore noticed a trickle of oil flowing in the alley at the rear of his home. At once he became excited thinking that possibly a gusher had come in somewhere in the vicinity unknown to him. He immediately traced the oil to its source which he discovered to be the distillate tank which supplies the municipal pump back of his residence. He called the city employees who discovered that the oil was leaking from a defective seam in the tank. City Engineer Hansen estimates that between ten and fifteen gallons of fuel oil were lost.

Wifred Butcher and crew of four men started to work Monday at wrecking the grade school building. Mr. Butcher hopes to interest a group of Burwell people in the establishing of a cannery factory. These two rooms can be quite easily re-roofed after the building is wrecked, according to Mr. Butcher.

C. H. Leonards Were Married 55 Years Sunday

In the issue of the Quiz for Feb. 19, 1886, appears the following item: "Leonard-Bell at the M. E. parsonage, Febr. 16, married, by Rev. Geo. O. Ferguson, Mr. Charles H. Leonard and Miss Mary J. Bell, both of Mira Valley." Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Leonard passed their 55th milestone of married life at their home in Mira Valley. In accordance with the quiet way they have lived for more than half a century, they observed the occasion quietly at home. Charles H. Leonard was born in Middleville, Mich., Sept. 23, 1859. There he and his brothers farmed, ran a threshing machine and went to the lumber woods to work in winter. He first came to Valley county in September, 1882. Mary J. Bell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Bell, sr., was born Jan. 29, 1863, and came to Valley county with the family in 1884, locating on a farm half mile west of Valleyside school, where they lived for a time in a sod house. Meanwhile Mr. Leonard and his brother, A. H. (Beda) Leonard were living on the farm a mile south of Midvale, which his father had bought in the year 1879, and which has been in Mr. Leonard's possession now for nearly 62 years. Their first dwelling was a dug-out in the bank of the canyon just east of where the present buildings are located. Mr. Leonard built their first frame house shortly before their marriage, Jan. 16, 1886. This house was moved when the new house was built, and is now used as a chicken house. The new home was built in 1902, and is still in splendid condition after nearly 40 years. In the early days the Leonard Brothers ran threshing rigs in Mira valley. A third brother, Asa, came in later and bought the farm adjoining his brother's place on the east. He and Beda passed on years ago. In addition to the original quarter section of land, Mr. Leonard acquired two quarters adjoining to the south, making 450 acres he now owns. He and his sister, Miss Ella Leonard, of Greenville, Mich., are the only remaining members of their family. Of the original 5 brothers and 5 sisters in Mrs. Leonard's family, four brothers and two sisters are still living. They are Wilson, John and Bud Bell, of Ord, Oliver, of Hastings, Mrs. W. J. Byington of Lincoln, and Mrs. Leonard. The Leonards have three sons, Earl, who is married, has three children and lives at Kimberly, Ida, Ross, also married, has two daughters and lives at Berkeley, Calif., and Ellsworth, at home, who is a great help to his parents in their declining years. A daughter, Edith, died at the age of 15 in 1903. Mr. Leonard is a great believer in Hereford cattle, which he has raised for the past 30 years or more. He formerly went in for hogs also, but quit them when he found there was no profit in the business when he had to buy all the feed. Both are in fair health for their age and both still have abundant faith in Nebraska.

Boxing and Wrestling Make Debut in Ord at Monday Eve Show

Both boxing and wrestling were popular sports in Ord many years ago but, except for a little high school wrestling, they have not been spectator sports here until Monday evening when an athletic show under auspices of the H-Y was given at the high school auditorium. A crowd estimated at 250 attended and saw a fast series of bouts, many of which are pictured here.

Ign. Klima Takes Part in Debate at Lincoln

A heavy word battle was fought yesterday before the uncameral at Lincoln over the distribution of the gas tax and car license fees. It was a battle of the League of Municipalities on one hand and the county officials on the other.

Frank Anderson, former mayor of Holdrege, was chief spokesman for the former organization. For the county officials were Joe Lee-don of Gordon, president of the County Commissioners' association, Ign. Klima, of Ord, and others.

Mr. Klima said, "It is more important to the city businessmen to have his place on a muddy street than to have paving, if he gets no customers from the farms." Mr. Klima is secretary of the state organization of county clerks and registers of deeds.

BURWELL

Charles Meyer, Garfield county's largest farm operator, will hold a cleanup sale Monday and move to California where he and his family will make their home. Mr. and Mrs. Meyer have operated the Tom Hemmett ranch for over twenty years, moving there in 1919 following Mr. Meyer's return from the army. The sale will be one of the largest ever held in the Loup Valley. It will commence at 10:30 o'clock. Two hundred cattle, twenty-eight horses and mules, 140 sheep and a full line of farm machinery will be sold.

One of the most elaborate weddings of the season will be held in the Sacred Heart church Monday morning at 10 o'clock when Miss Marcella Shouka, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mike Shouka, will become the wife of Wayne Franssen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman H. Franssen. One hundred and fifty guests have been invited to the wedding and to the breakfast which will be held in the parish hall. Nuptial High Mass will be celebrated by Father Murray. In the evening a wedding dance will be held in the American Legion hall at which Tony Nesbitt's orchestra from Burwell will supply the music. Citizens of Burwell interested in securing water for irrigation are urged to attend a public meeting in the court house at 8 o'clock Friday evening. The report of the survey which has been completed will be made at this time and plans for irrigation will be discussed.

The Golden Rule club met with Mrs. F. H. Johnson Thursday. In spite of the cold, windy day, thirteen ladies were present who spent the afternoon quilting. As many or possibly more men were present who enjoyed the day playing cards as well as a bountiful dinner at noon.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Earl Lewis of Taylor Monday with Dr. Smith in attendance.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. John Merritt Thursday with Dr. Smith in attendance.

Noel Rossenbach, son of William Rossenbach was taken to the Ord hospital Friday by Dr. Smith where he submitted to an appendectomy.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Glen Lytle Thursday with Dr. Smith in attendance.

Another Garfield county family has succumbed to the attractions of the west coast. Mr. and Mrs. James Alderman are moving to Eugene, Ore. where they will make their home. They disposed of their property at a public sale today. Floyd Matern has rented their farm.

Domestic Science Club Luncheon.

Red, white and blue were the colors used at the annual Domestic Science club luncheon held at the home of Mrs. Leonard Johnson, Wednesday, Febr. 12.

The food, arranged on a large table was served buffet style. Deep red tomato cocktails and frozen fruit cocktails prepared the appetite for the heavier courses. Tender barbecued pork chops, baked chicken, escalloped chicken and ham loaf made the meat portion. Escalloped asparagus, peas in heart shaped timbales, corn en casserole, potatoes au gratin were the tasty vegetable dishes. Shimmering fruit salad rings added to the attractiveness of the table. One three layered salad, in the shape of a star was topped with colorful red jello. The desserts were cakes, all most attractive. One, especially appropriate, was a four square Lincoln's birthday cake, beautifully decorated with white icing.

Individual tables, set for four, had as center pieces red, white and blue carnations. Candel cherrils on tiny white dollies acted as place cards and favors. American eagle napkins done in the national colors and red, white and blue ice cubes completed the patriotic color scheme.

After luncheon the group played bingo, scores were kept, the highest in order taking his choice of the prizes, with everyone receiving a prize. Most of the prizes had been made by the club members: cakes, pies, candy, jelly rolls, pickles, eggs and dressed chickens. One very lovely cake had the appearance of beautiful basket of flowers so skillfully was it decorated and adorned with flowered mints.

During the business meeting the ladies answered roll call by explaining the recipes, contents and preparation, which they had used in making their luncheon dishes.

The ladies who acted on the party committee were Mrs. Beckwith, Mrs. Paul Banks and Mrs. A. Baugert.

The club welcomed Mrs. Ivan Lux, newly elected member, Mrs. Agnes Hummel and Mrs. Neal Sloan, who came as guests of Mrs. Everett Johnson and Mrs. C. E. Hallock, who were unable to be present.

Facts of 1940 Census Are Given in Bulletin

Complete county, precinct and township returns of the 1940 census in Nebraska were given out a few days ago by the Bureau of the Census in Washington. Some of the findings are interesting indeed, and show a decided change since 1930.

A few parts of the state, notably Scottsbluff county, have shown a fine growth during the decade, while many counties, of which Valley county and all those surrounding it are a few, have shown a sharp decline. As has been stated already, the state as a whole lost about 65,000 in population.

As is already known, Douglas county had the largest population, the exact number being 247,562. The youngest county in the state, Arthur, is also the most sparsely settled, with a total of only 1,045, although it has a far greater area than Valley county, the population of which is given as 8,163.

Of the total of 93 counties in the state, 56 have a greater population than Valley, and the other 36 are smaller. The nearest counties in population to Valley are Webster, with 8,071, and Keith, with 8,333. Other counties in the eight thousand class are Howard, with 8,422, Johnson, with 8,662, Phelps, with 8,452, and Polk, with 8,743.

The breakup into precincts brings out many points of interest. As could be expected, some reported a very small population, but the smallest is not in the west as might be supposed, but in Nemaha county, where St. Deroir precinct has just 23 inhabitants. The next is Warren precinct in Garden county, with 30 population.

Coming down to Valley county, we find the population divided as follows: Arcadia township, 1,006; Davis Creek township, 226; Elyria township, 447; Elyria village, 77; Enterprise township, 338; Eureka township, 265; Geranium township, 375; Independent township, 263; Liberty township, 241; Michigan township, 266; Noble township, 290; North Loup township, 990; Ord city, 240; Ord township, 422; Springdale township, 213; Vinton township, 238; Yale township, 237.

For some reason the population of Arcadia and North Loup villages is not given separately from the township, but that of Elyria is. The population of the supervisor districts with the exception of Nos. 3 and 4, is as follows: No. 1, 1123; No. 2, 844; No. 5, 1208; No. 6, 827; and No. 7, 1243. Because the population of Ord by wards is not given, the population of the 3rd and 4th districts cannot be given exactly.

Methods and ideas of advertising have changed greatly in the North Loup valley during the past fifty to sixty years, and nothing is more interesting than to examine the ads in the Quiz's of the early days and compare the ads then with those of the present time.

Since present ideas are available to the readers of the Quiz, this article will deal together with those of previous times. In order to understand the situation one must remember that in 1882, the year that the Quiz was established, the only railroad was the Omaha and Republican Valley, later the Union Pacific, which had built into North Loup, and did not reach Ord until 4 years later.

First, the type of people who came to a newly settled community is interesting. In the earliest available copy of the Quiz, No. 4 of Volume 1, printed April 27, 1882, we find the ads of a number of builders. Included in this list are George Millard, N. G. Clement and J. W. Secor. Other builders who did not advertise were Daniel Bartlett, E. W. Black, E. P. Bartlett, Frank Chushing, C. L. Harris, A. R. Kinmont, John Monroe, Matt Coffin, H. G. Swift, L. Timmerman, W. J. Wilson and D. D. Wortman, and they all had plenty of work to do.

To help out these carpenters were J. B. Cryer, Taylor Adams, and Burney Wear, masons, and B. A. Howard, J. W. Howk, C. E. Kemp, A. M. Kendall and Ole Severson, painters, S. A. Pratt and Frank E. Hewitt, blacksmiths, A. O. Cummins, wagon maker, and Frank Misko and Jas. A. Van Skike, who were builders. In that they made harness, which was an essential in pioneer times.

The town was much smaller then than it is today, but every possible location was taken up by a business of some sort, and often several different lines of business were carried on in one building. There were a total of 25 professional men in Ord in 1882, and there were 63 men engaged in the various kinds of business.

In the early issues of the Quiz could be seen ads of firms all the way from North Loup to Taylor, including Ord, Manderson, Geranium, Calamus, Willow Springs, Burwell and Kent, and even an occasional ad from St. Paul. The Leader Hardware and Jewelry store, Pratt and Bohne, North Loup, was one of the leading advertisers. W. R. Patty also advertised his North Loup drug store extensively.

The most interesting perhaps is the ad of the Ord, North Loup, New Helena and Willow Springs stage line, W. C. Williams, proprietor. Now after nearly sixty years, we have the P. C. T. stages, Grand Island to Burwell, W. F. Williams, proprietor. The similarity in the names is a coincidence, of course.

The hotels of that time all had livery stables in connection, but let us hope that the connection was not too close. Every blacksmith featured in his ad the fact that he was a horse shoer. The Quiz advertised itself as the official paper for Valley and Wheeler counties. Wheeler county at that time included the present Wheeler county and Garfield county, and the county seat was at Cedar City, a place northwest of the present Ericson on the Cedar river.

That was a time when ready made dresses and hats were practically unknown, so the ads of a large number of milliners and dress makers were to be found in the papers. Most of the ladies handled both lines of work, and there were five who put in all their time at the trade, besides a number who worked at one of the trades a part of the time.

A feature not found so much in modern county weeklies was the ads of a large number of out of town concerns, who used the local paper to get in touch with the people, probably because few of them took a daily at the time. One daily advertised extensively, the Chicago Daily News, and also the Weekly Republican of Omaha, the Weekly Dairyman and the Sunshine Publishing company.

Railroads advertising were the Chicago and Northwestern, and the Burlington Route, neither of which had a depot within a hundred miles of Ord at that time. Other stand-by ads were St. Jacobs Oil, Prazer Axle Grease, Wright's Pills, Hostetter's Bitters, Joseph Gillett's Steel Pens, Charter Oak Stoves, Hunt's Remedy, Mexican Mustang Liniment and, last but not least, Ivory Soap.

Ord Music Department Has New Tympani Set

The most recent acquisition of the Ord music department is this set of concert grand pedal tympani. The player being Carolyn Auble.

Due to the new mechanical construction used in this set of tympani, it is possible to raise or lower the pitch of the instruments throughout the entire register, and it is so sensitive and accurate that it is possible for the player to achieve tones impossible with the hand operated type. The deep, hand-hammered copper kettles are not only beautiful, but assure the finest symphony tone. These instruments are the finest that can be purchased, and are probably one of the few sets in use in Nebraska. "As good as the Philadelphia Symphony orchestra has," says one Ord school man.

Arnold Bredthauer Has Strong Faith in Nebraska Cattle, Has 711 Head on Full Feed

Above are shown more than 300 head of cattle, mostly grade Herefords, on the Arnold Bredthauer farm in Mira Valley. This is only a part of the stock Mr. Bredthauer owns, the rest being scattered in the territory west of North Loup on four different farms, there being more than 700 head in all.

In spite of the dry weather of the past few years, Mr. Bredthauer has been able to make stock feeding pay. His crops have been poor, but he has managed to raise quite a quantity of roughage, and this, with what he has had to buy, has kept him going in the cattle business. The steers in the lot to the left in the picture will weigh 1,150 pounds, and the heifers to the right will average 300 pounds less. They are coming two-year-olds.

Thursday morning the wind was blowing a gale from the northwest when Syl Furtak stopped his car in front of his shop and lost his hat as he came up to the door. He claims he chased it a couple of blocks before he caught it, and it took him exactly ten minutes to get back.

P. J. Cohen has a new version of an old saying which goes like this: "That's Gold in them Hens!" He killed a hen to replenish the family larder last week, and found a piece of gold about as big as a grain of corn in her gizzard. He says she must have picked it out of Joe Ulrich's gravel, which is scattered on the streets in Ord.

Thursday a car engine went dead, and the car stalled in the center of an intersection on the square. The owner immediately got out and pushed it over to the curb before trying any emergency treatment, which was an example of good common sense well worthy of comment.

The boys from the high school picked up a small band and paraded around town Monday after school in Clark's truck dispensing music and advertising their athletic show. It was a cold day to tout a horn, but they put across the publicity in good shape.

Schooler Will Speak

at Kearney Wednesday

Harry N. Schooler, South Dakota rancher-farmer and director of AAA's north central division, will discuss the future of agriculture with farm men and women of this area at Kearney on Wednesday, February 26. Mr. Schooler's address is scheduled for 1:00 p. m. in the municipal auditorium. He will be introduced by the chairman of the county AAA committee.

A delegation of Valley county farm men and women is expected to go to Kearney for the program, Charles E. Veleba, chairman of Valley county AAA committee said. He requested that farmers who will have room for additional passengers notify the local AAA office, and that persons who wish to attend but lack transportation also leave their names at the office. "In that way," Mr. Veleba explained, "we can no doubt provide rides for everyone."

Harry Schooler is recognized as one of the most able farmers in the Department of Agriculture. His South Dakota experiences paralleled those faced by Nebraska farmers and ranchers during drouth years.

Born in Iowa, he homesteaded in Meade county, S. D., following his graduation from high school in 1916. He saw service in France during the World War, and returned to Meade county following the Armistice where he has since engaged in ranching and general farming.

He served as chairman of the Meade county wheat and corn-hog associations for the duration of the adjustment programs. He also served on his local cattle buying and drouth committee in 1931. In 1935, he was appointed by the AAA the South Dakota state grain board. In the spring of 1936, he was appointed chairman of the South Dakota state AAA committee. In 1937, he became assistant director of the north central division of AAA, which includes the states of Nebraska, Iowa, Missouri, South Dakota, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Michigan, Minnesota and Wisconsin. Last year he was named director succeeding Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard.

Mr. Schooler will make three speaking appearances in Nebraska during his February visit. The probability of 1941 marketing quotas for wheat and corn gives added significance to Mr. Schooler's approaching Nebraska visit, Mr. Veleba declared.

Thurlow S. Weed Dies Suddenly of Heart Attack

Respected No. Loup Farmer Is Victim; Funeral Held at S. D. B. Church Monday.

North Loup—(Special)—The community was shocked Friday to hear of the sudden death of Thurlow Weed, 60, well known farmer of the Barker neighborhood, who passed away from a heart attack. He had been about his chores as usual and was making preparations to go to town in the afternoon when he was stricken. Dr. W. J. Hemphill was summoned but the help he could give was unavailing and he passed away about noon. Mrs. Weed was alone with him at the time but neighbors soon went to her assistance. For a number of years Mr. Weed had suffered with a bad heart and for some time had not been able to do any heavy work. Last winter Mr. and Mrs. Weed spent the winter in Alliance with their children but this year have been on the farm here.

Four of their sons, Pearl, Roland, Keith and Kenneth and two daughters Mrs. Dorothy Barton and Mrs. Thelma Segist live at Alliance and all arrived here Friday night. Mrs. Keith Weed, Mr. Barton and Mr. Segist came Sunday. Another daughter, Mrs. Doris Meyer lives near Scottia and the other son Lloyd at Greeley. Another son Boyd, of La Crosse, Wis., arrived Sunday.

Funeral services were held Monday afternoon from the Seventh Day Baptist church, Rev. A. C. Ebert and Rev. J. A. Adams officiating. Mrs. Ava Johnson and Mrs. Esther Babcock had charge of the music which was furnished by a quartette.

Bearers were Guy Burrows, Lee Mulligan, Robert Brennick, Rasmus Peterson, Anson Frazier and Hillis Coleman. Will Egloff, Charles Brennick, Boyd Mulligan, Charles Kingston, H. H. Thorngate, Frank Psota, Edwin Schudel and I. L. Sheldon acted as honorary pallbearers. Miller Bros. of Scottia had charge. A brief service for the family was held in Miller's parlors before going to the church.

Solo Day at Ord High Proved Great Success

The fourth annual Solo Day was held in the Ord high school auditorium during the afternoon and evening of February 24. Over fifty students presented vocal and instrumental solos in the afternoon, and the evening program consisted of numbers by the String quartette, the Saxophone quartette and a concert by the Ord high school band.

In addition, Mrs. Don Lentz, wife of Prof. Lentz, conductor of the University band, played a piano solo, and Prof. Herman Decker, of the University Glee Clubs, sang three vocal solos. He was accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Decker. Following the afternoon program, Mr. Lentz conducted a rehearsal of the high school band and also met with individuals giving instrumental solos. Mr. Decker met with the high school choir and also with pupils who were giving vocal solos.

That this experience has proven profitable in the past is proven by the fact that Ord has more members in the University Band than any school in Nebraska, outside of Omaha and Lincoln. Both Mr. Lentz and Mrs. Decker had high words of praise to offer in regard to the Ord high school organizations and for the solo day in general. Mr. Lentz stated that he had recommended the plan to many other schools and that it had been adopted in many places in Iowa and in a few larger cities in Nebraska.

Knights of Columbus Hold Committee Meet

The Boy Scout committee of the Knights of Columbus held a meeting Sunday afternoon at the hall and the following were appointed: chairman, E. L. Vogelanz; secretary-treasurer, Frank Krumi; advancement, Dr. F. J. Osentowski; camping and activity, Jim Wachter and Frank Fafeta; health and safety, Dr. F. A. Barta, Chester Austin; publicity, Syl Pirtak; chaplain, Rev. Thomas Siudowski. The committee will meet Wednesday evening after church services for the appointment of a scoutmaster.

Legion and Auxiliary to Honor Mrs. Bosch

Mrs. John Bosch of Omaha, department president of the Ladies Auxiliary, will be in Ord this week, and in her honor the Ladies and the members of the American Legion are invited to the Legion hall Thursday evening for a covered dish supper at 6:30. The supper will be followed by a program. A good attendance is desired and expected.

Vivian Frederick to Clinic Hospital

Tuesday morning Mrs. Irwin Underberg and daughter, Connie, left by auto for Elgin, Ill., where they will join Mr. Underberg. They took their personal effects with them and in future will make their home in Elgin, where Mr. Underberg is employed in the factory of the Elgin Watch company. Mrs. Underberg has for the past several years operated the Clinic hospital. Arrangements were made by which Miss Vivian Frederick, a registered nurse formerly in the employ of Dr. J. G. Krumi, assumed management of the hospital, and it will be continued as in the past.

Knights of Columbus Play at Grand Island

Saturday night and Sunday a state tournament of Knights of Columbus bowlers was held at Grand Island, with a total of 31 teams participating from all parts of the state. A total of from 590 to 600 bowlers were in attendance.

Ord was represented by two teams, the first team comprising Emil Sedlacek, Albert Parkos, Paul Adamek, Dr. F. J. Osentowski and Jason Lathrop. They played early Sunday morning against a St. Paul team, winning by a score of 2434. However the team averages had not been posted and they received no handicap, which fact put them out of the running.

The other Ord team was really a pickup team, the members being L. Dendinger, Rev. C. Szumski, James Petaska, Vencil Ptacnik and Bob Novak. This team was given a large handicap, which brought their total up to 2738, and they placed fifteenth. The men all report having a cordial reception and a most enjoyable time. The games were played on the Rockwell alleys.

Ralph E. Clements Buried at Burwell

Burwell—(Special)—Funeral services were held at the Congregational church here Wednesday afternoon, Feb. 19, for Ralph E. Clements, 61, who died of a heart ailment three days before. Burial was in the local cemetery.

Ralph Emerson Clements, son of Eugene L. and Eva Clements was born in Allegan, Mich., Feb. 17, 1879 and passed on Feb. 16, 1941, at the age of 61 years, 11 months and 30 days.

His earlier years were spent in the state of his birth. He came to Nebraska with his parents at the age of 19 and lived first at Ord, later near Comstock and for the past 34 years lived in the vicinity of Sloux Creek, Nebr.

Ralph was of an industrious and frugal nature, was a square dealing honest business man and was of strict moral integrity.

He suffered for several years with a severe heart ailment and at last slipped painlessly away to the beyond. He leaves to mourn; his wife Frances; one sister, Mrs. J. Peter Naab of Burwell; a brother Leon of Boise, Ida.; two sons Ralph Jr. and Robert of Burwell; and an adopted son, Walter Lund, also of Burwell; one daughter, Jessie Loghry of Riverton, Wyo.; eight grandchildren; numerous nephews and nieces; two aunts, Mrs. Nettie Burke and Mrs. H. D. Leggett of Ord; two uncles, Arthur A. Clements of Pueblo, Colo., and Judge Edwin P. Clements of Ontario, Calif.; many cousins and scores of friends and acquaintances.

FFA Boys Plan Window Display of Activities

The Future Farmers of America is a national organization of boys studying vocational agriculture and was founded to promote cooperative activities, develop leadership and establish high scholarship ideals. The Ord high school chapter has been working on several activities the past few weeks, one of which is to have a display in a store window. The Peckenka meat market was selected and the material will be on display there from Feb. 28 to March 5.

The window will show the different phases of vocational agriculture including class room instruction, shop and home project work. There will be a supply of bulletins for distribution to farmers interested. See the FFA display in the Peckenka window during the coming week.

Sugar Beet Payments for 1940 Have Arrived

Payments to those Valley county farmers who participated in the sugar beet program of 1940 were received Monday at the AAA office. The total amount of the checks received was $4,628.69, and covers the beets raised on 280.9 acres last year.

While these checks came to the AAA office, it might be well to explain that the sugar beet program is not a part of the AAA program, but is under the sugar act of 1937. This amount of money for a comparatively small acreage should be a real benefit to participants.

Triple A Meeting Was Held Friday Afternoon in Ord

Best Program in Years Was Presented by Fieldmen and Other Speakers.

A meeting of all precinct committees of the Triple-A farm program was held at the American Legion hall Friday, and Charles E. Veleba, county chairman, states that it was the finest meeting of the kind ever held here. Fifty-five committeemen were present, and eleven of them brought their wives.

Among the many features of the program was a discussion of the surplus corn situation in America today. Frank A. Reed, former fieldman, talked on "Marketing Corn and Wheat." Joe Hladovak, chairman of the Triple-A for Antelope county, gave an interesting account of the work in his county.

Among other things he stated that there are just about a million bushels of corn sealed in the county. He said that there are 550 shelterbelts in Antelope county, which has the finest strip in the United States, a mile long stretch of trees planted in 1935, in which the softwood trees are 20 to 30 feet high, and all uniform.

Bruce Easton, junior statistician from the state office, gave a very interesting talk on the wheat situation in Canada, United States and in the world in general. He also talked interestingly on the nature of his work in the laboratory.

Mrs. Dorothy McMeekin, state farm fieldwoman, gave a splendid address, in which she told the story of one Harold Hannes, who came from Norway as a laborer at the age of 16, worked for years in America, and when Henry Ford was looking for a man to have charge of his new plant in Norway, Hannes drew the assignment.

He went there, and was surprised to find the farm homes there enjoying rural electrification at a cost of $22 per year. This included all they used for heat, light, power, both inside the house and about the farm. Norway had embarked upon a farm program a number of years before, and farm conditions were most enjoyable.

Then Hitler moved in to protect the Norwegians. Immediately the order went out that they could have no white bread. The farmers were ordered to sell to the invaders three out of five pigs and six out of ten cows, and had to accept in payment therefore German printed money that was worthless outside Norway. The Ford plant had to suspend operations, so Mr. Hannes came back to America.

Gas Tax Allocation Bills Are Defeated

On Tuesday of last week Ign. Klimka, county clerk, A. H. Brox, county assessor, and Henry Zirkmond, member of the board of supervisors, went to Lincoln, Klima and Zirkmond to meet with the legislature, and Brox to attend the state meeting of county assessors. John Haskell made the trip with them and visited his daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Hal Pierce. Klima went especially to join in the fight against legislative bills No. 83 and 105, in which interested groups were seeking to change the present allocation of the gasoline tax and also the auto license fees. He felt that the passage of these bills would throw an unnecessary hardship upon those counties which are having a hard time at best to take care of the tax load.

At the close of the hearing both bills were killed. Basing his figures on those of 1940, Mr. Klima says that it meant a saving to Valley county of $12,830.54, which is more than could be raised on a one mill levy on the more than eleven million valuation of Valley county property. Mr. Klima says he was also misquoted in the World-Herald of last week in his argument against the bills. What he said was that good roads into a town were of more importance to the merchant than were paved streets in front of his place of business, since a large share of his customers came from the country.

Mrs. H. D. Coe Dies at Grand Junction

Sunday afternoon F. W. Coe received the sad news of the death at Grand Junction, Colo., of his mother, Mrs. H. D. Coe, which occurred at 11:45 Sunday. He left at once, expecting to arrive there Monday afternoon. No time was set for the funeral in the telegram Mr. Coe received.

Mrs. H. D. Coe would have been 82 years of age had she lived until March 14 next. The family lived in Ord while Mr. Coe was president of the Ord State bank. Her husband passed away March 4, 1908, at the home in Grand Junction, where he had gone in hope of benefiting his health. She will be buried at Grand Junction beside her husband.

Chamber Honors 15 New Members Thursday Evening

Reports of Highway and Fort Hartsuff Committees to Be Heard; Other Matters.

The February meeting of the Chamber of Commerce, which will be held at 8:00 Thursday evening, Feb. 27, in the K. of C. hall, should be an interesting one, and a large attendance is expected.

Not only will the matter of securing improved telephone service be discussed, but also the Chamber will greet 15 new members signed up in the recent drive and will hear reports from committees handling highway work and the Fort Hartsuff program for the Chamber.

A. A. Wiegard, secretary, announces that A. B. Clark, president of the Nebraska Continental Telephone company, has regretted that he will be unable to attend the meeting Thursday but that he will be present at the March meeting. However, much information on the telephone situation will be brought out and members will be invited to comment.

Clarence M. Davis, who recently interviewed State Engineer Scott on the possibility of getting the Haskell Creek and Ericson roads completed this summer, will report, and several men who are in Lincoln today attending a legislative hearing on the Fort Hartsuff measure will discuss this matter.

Other matters important to Ord are scheduled to come up Thursday and every Chamber member should make an effort to be present. Lunch will be served at the close of the business meeting.

Milo Hain Dies in Car Accident

North Loup—(Special)—Milo Hain, 22-year-old son of Jay Hain of this village, was killed early Monday morning in a car accident near Isabella, Kan., where he was employed on a farm. The body was brought here for burial and the funeral will be held at 2:00 p. m. Friday at the S. D. B. church.

Young Hain had been at a dance with a party of young people and they were driving home during a snow storm. Their windshield became frozen over, Hain stepped out to clear it, and was struck by another car. The accident happened at 12:15 a. m. and he died four hours later.

Besides his father he is survived by his mother, Mrs. Bertha Gallaher, who lives in Minnesota and who arrived Tuesday to attend the funeral; by three brothers, Arthur, of Isabella, Kan., George, who lives in Oregon, and Alvie, of this village; and by two sisters, Mrs. Erlo Cox, of this village, and Mrs. Charles Wells, of Kansas City.

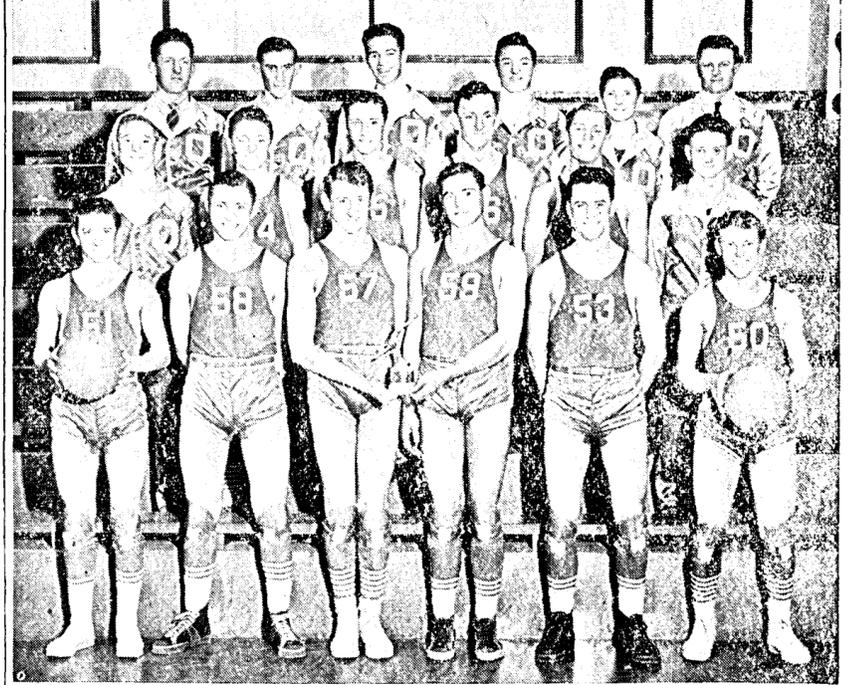

Had he lived, young Hain would have gone to an army training camp in March under the selective service act.

Moisture Continues Through February

According to the records of Horace Travis, weather reporter, considerable moisture has fallen during February. The largest amount recently fell Feb. 12, when 3 inches of snow furnished .54 of an inch of moisture. Then on the 19th the amount was .09; on the 20th, .10; on the 23d, .03; on the 25th, .11; and this morning .07. The grand total for the period was .94 of an inch.

With two more days to go in February, more moisture is possible, and there was more in the early days of the month. However, the balmy weather today gives a definite hope that spring is on the way. With zero weather the past winter beginning Nov. 11, and near zero weather the past week, the extreme weather has stretched out over a period of more than one hundred days, a record for Nebraska.

Here Is the Basketball Squad that Brought Fame to Ord High This Winter

In the first round, Sargent, Loup City, Burwell and Ord were victorious over St. Paul, Ravenna, Broken Bow and Arcadia, respectively. In the Wednesday evening games in the championship bracket, Ord defeated Burwell 18-12, and Sargent defeated Loup City 29-13; and in the consolation bracket, St. Paul defeated Ravenna 18-12, and Broken Bow defeated Arcadia 19-11.

In the finals Saturday night, Broken Bow defeated St. Paul to win the consolation championship, and Ord reversed an earlier defeat by taking Sargent 23-13 to win the grand championship.

Coach Warren Reeves' junior high teams have been very successful, both during the football and basketball season. In football they lost only to Kearney and during the basketball season they lost an earlier game to Sargent and a close one to Kearney again. The basketball team met only the tournament, but also the Mid-Six championship.

City Caucuses Coming Tonight

At 7:30 this evening at the American Legion hall, the annual caucuses of Ord's two political parties will be held. The Good Government party will hold its caucus in the basement room and at the same time the Citizens party will meet upstairs.

Tom Springer Buys a Store in Washington

Last Wednesday came word that Tom W. Springer, formerly owner of a variety store here, had purchased a similar store in Lynden, Wash., and was taking charge of it immediately. Lynden is where Stanley McLain, another former Ord man resides; in fact, Mr. Springer learned of the opening at Lynden through Mr. McLain. The town is located just four miles from the Canadian border.

Mrs. Springer and the children remained in Ord while Mr. Springer went west to look for a business location. Some of the Springer household goods are being sold at auction Saturday, some are being shipped to Lynden, and the Springer family will leave Sunday or Monday to join Mr. Springer.

First National Bank Is Being Remodeled

The past week Andrew Nielsen has been busy at the First National bank during the time when the doors were closed to the public, streamlining the interior. He took down the grill work above the desks and removed the cages.

The result is a strictly modern effect that is much more pleasing to the eye, as well as more convenient for the office force and for the customers. The grill idea was all the style in the old days, but is no longer used in modern banks.

Chanticleers Will Play Superior in Class A Tourney

Ord One of 4 Seeded Teams in Tournament to Be Held at Hastings Next Week.

Coach Roscoe Tolly's cagers of Ord high school will go to the ward again next week, this time to Hastings where at 8:30 Tuesday evening they meet Superior in the opening round of the district Class A tournament.

Ord is one of four teams seeded for this district tournament, others being Grand Island, Hastings and York. These four teams, Superior and Geneva are conceded to be the class of the tournament. St. Paul, twice defeated by Ord, will compete at Hastings also.

Should the Chanticleers defeat Superior Tuesday evening they will play the winner of the Hebron-Geneva game Thursday. Victory in this game would send them into the semi-finals probably against York which team is in the same bracket as Ord. Grand Island and Hastings are in the other bracket.

Sixteen teams play in the district tournament at Hastings and only the winner and runner-up will be eligible to compete in the state tournament at Lincoln the following week against winners and runners-up from the other seven Nebraska Class A districts.

At Atkinson last Friday evening the Ord boys dropped a close one, 24 to 20, to a rugged Atkinson team. The Chanticleers held their own from the floor, nine field goals being made by each team, but Ord missed 9 of 11 chances from the free throw line and thus lost the game. They were in a bit of a slump after the Loup Valley tournament, coaches figure, but should regain their stride by next week.

The district meet at Hastings starts Tuesday, continues through the week until Saturday when finals are played. Quite a number of Ord fans will accompany the Chanticleer team to Hastings Tuesday to cheer them on in their opening start against Superior.

He takes over March 1. Mrs. Mildred Tunnicliff will remain as office manager and Misses Christina Petersen and Loretta Achen will continue as assistants.

COUNTING THE COST.
Before we get our minds too set on another world war, perhaps we should look back to the one which is gone, but which should never be forgotten.

To get an idea of what it will mean to our nation, take a look about you and note where the men who fought that war are today.

Then picture in your minds the loss it would be to the community if all these men should be called to duty once more.

But more tragic than this is that there are those we cannot see, those who gave their lives, it now seems in vain, on the altar of democracy.

There are almost countless thousands who might today be happy and contented citizens were it not for the hand of fate in that mighty selective service which decides which may live and which may die.

Then there are those who lived to return home, but ruined mentally, physically or both by the horrors they had to undergo.

Recently orders from Washington forbade the giving out for publication of the lists of patients received and discharged from the Veterans' Hospital in Lincoln, probably because the list was growing too rapidly.

Last, let us consider the financial cost, some of which we will spend some thrown away. Let us consider the billions in loans to warring countries, all of which repudiated the debt except Finland.

England is not a democracy in the sense that we are. She is ruled by a king, whose word is still final, when and if he chooses to exercise his right.

If, after weighing carefully every reason or excuse we may have, and if, after we have counted fully the cost of war, we still feel that we are willing to make the fatal step, then we should go in with every energy bent toward winning and winning decisively.

THEN AND NOW: A CONTRAST.
Today the nation is carrying on a peace-time draft, the first of its kind in our history.

In one respect they were identical, in that they both took place under a democratic administration. The method of selection is also practically identical.

However, the government has learned the importance of taking only those who can be spared in this draft, and those who pass the physical examination with a high rating. This can be done, since only about ten per cent of the draftees will be needed for this peace-time army.

At the time of the World War draft it was important to get a lot of men, and to get them in a hurry. For this reason the doctors obviously overlooked minor defects, and a huge army was raised and equipped in record time.

Necessary or not, the folly of such procedure soon became apparent when the draftees came up against the stern realities of warfare. Those physically equipped to take it were able to continue day after day in the arduous training.

Some were unable to make the grade, and spent much of their time in military hospitals. Many died in France, not so much from actual combat as from over exposure or from having their systems taxed beyond the limits of human endurance.

Others, whose systems were undiminished, later fell victim, and are still falling victim, to constitutional ailments which they might have avoided had they been permitted to remain at home or to have engaged in less strenuous warfare, such as our peace-time army will engage in.

In Valley county, as well as in most other counties throughout the nation, the work of furnishing the draftees devolved upon the county clerk, who accepted it as his contribution to the war, and handled the work without extra pay.

W. A. Bartlett was county clerk at the time, and he had to work nights much of the time to keep up with the job. It was a job that made him enemies, as many now living recall.

He has been a factor in shortening his life, but it was his duty, and he did not shirk his responsibility. While figures are not available, due to the fact that the amount of pay increases with the work, it is estimated that the amount paid clerks of draft boards in the various counties of Nebraska will average about one hundred dollars per month.

If this is correct it means that the expense for this work to Nebraska per year is well over one hundred thousand dollars for clerk hire alone.

The theory, of course, is that in time of depression, such as we have at the present time, this amount will furnish employment for and subsistence for one person and one family in each county in the United States.

Of course the expense is borne by the federal government, but naturally this will in the end be paid by the state of Nebraska.

Yes, the draft, 1941 model, has many advantages over its namesake of nearly a quarter of a century before. It is certain that the soldiers of our peace-time army will come back to us in the main, in as good physical condition as they left, and they will be equipped by experience to meet any military emergency that may arise.

My Own Column

By H. D. Leggett

Editor Maupin of the Clay County Sun says of his editorial column, "If you see it in this column it is either true or the editor is mistaken."

Bread baking used to be a household art and most wives could bake good bread. I am probably safe in saying that at the present time not 25 per cent of the wives can do so.

One of these bunches of hens were the Leghorns with big red combs and white legs. A local man at the edge of town saw them and went home and culled his flock of heavy hens and then culled those in the C. F. coop and traded.

There are a hundred or more business people in Ord and here is something that many of them never thought of. But before I tell what it is I want to say that Ord should be proud of its fine postoffice and there is very little any of us can say that is detrimental to the personnel in charge.

Our grandmothers believed that there was a destiny which shaped our ends, but modern girls put more faith in girldes, says an esteemed exchange.

The statement was made the other day that we were having more moisture this winter than for the past 64 years. If that is true we should be encouraged to expect an improvement in crop conditions this summer.

Since the U. S. government is spending twice as much money right along as it is taking in, it is said that a new red ink manufacturing plant will have to be built and financed by the government to supply the increased demand for the red fluid to enable it to keep up with its bookkeeping operations.

In spite of increased moisture and more favorable prospects, we are losing many good farmers from this area. Of course they cannot be blamed for they have been disappointed so many years in a row that many feel that it is good business to get away while they can.

Don't overlook the fact, ladies, that while we are announcing a new cookbooklet each week, we still have plenty of the earlier numbers in hand and can supply them all the way through the series of twenty books.

An Ord lady's little boy had a bad cold and couldn't seem to get over it. She was afraid to give the child a bath for fear he would get more cold, but after waiting two or three weeks, finally gave him a bath and the child's cold was worse.

Gregg Likes Carkoski. In a recent issue of the World-Herald Gregg McBride had the following to say about Hartington and its coach, Chet Carkoski, former Ord man: "Hartington doesn't take a back seat to any northeast Nebraska community when it comes to athletic spirit. "For years the Cedar county seat has been turning out winning teams in all branches of sport. Much of the success is due to the workmanlike job turned in by Coach Chet Carkoski, one of the oldest Nebraska prep tutors in point of service in one school."

Origin of Word 'Assassin' The word "assassin" is from the Arabian hashashin, eaters of hashish, the name of a sect in the Thirteenth century. The Old Man of the Mountain roused his followers' spirits by this preparation and sent them out to assassinate his enemies.

Farm Bureau Meeting.

E. W. Moss, Mrs. George Dewey and Floyd Chatfield were chosen directors of the Garfield County Farm Bureau at the annual meeting held in the library basement Friday. For Mr. Moss this will be his sixth year of service as a director of the Farm Bureau. He is also serving as president of the tri-county organization composed of nine directors from Garfield, Loup and Wheeler counties. He represents the south Garfield county district. Mr. Dewey was selected to represent the north district while Mr. Chatfield assumes office for the first time. He represents the east district replacing J. A. Bodyfield. Mrs. Fay Livermore, president of the county organization of Women's clubs, is an ex-officio member of the board of directors.

A covered dish luncheon was served at noon. Ed Catterson of Ainsworth, extension supervisor for this district, attended the meeting. Mr. Catterson explained the financial setup for supporting the farm bureau and informed those present that the commissioners of Garfield county had failed to make the appropriation for which the people had voted in 1940. John Penas made a motion that the chairman appoint a committee of three to contact the commissioners and insist for an appropriation for extension work. The motion carried unanimously.

Father Murray in his address, "The World Today," stressed the need of unity in democracy in troubled times such as the present. There are, he said, two reasons why United States gets into wars. Either they are challenged or their aid is solicited by another country engaged in a war.

"There will be more wars," he declared, "because of the cussedness of human nature." "Democracy makes for unity," he said, "continuing that democracy has remained in America because the people are free to disagree. In his address he stressed the value of the freedom of open discussion.

"The issue before the people is 'What is the best for America,'" he continued, explaining that all Americans had the same ideal but that they differed as to course of action to pursue. He stated that it was necessary in the face of all the heated discussion for and against going to war that the American people be united. "Unity in labor and capital is necessary to the best interests of the United States," he opined.

"When the majority have carefully considered an issue from every angle, weighed all of the evidence and finally reached a decision, support that decision," he advised, "because the majority is nearly always right." He pointed out that belief in this philosophy is necessary in a democracy. "If people have to die for this freedom," the priest declared, "it's a grand death to die for liberty."

In telling about the history of the project clubs in Garfield county, Mrs. John Schere related that the first extension clubs in this county were founded in June, 1922. As there was no extension agent in Garfield county until 1933 the leaders went to Ord for their lessons. The first project in Garfield county, Mrs. Schere recalled, was the making of dress forms. The chosen victim stood for hours while her friends plastered rolls of gummed brown paper on an undergarment. After the paper dried the outfit was ripped down the back and removed, preserving the size and form of the woman who had been imprisoned in the cast. Mrs. Schere related that several women fainted before operations were completed. The second lesson taught the women how to use their sewing machine attachments. They later manufactured their own millinery and one year they conducted a three-day home nursing school.

C. C. Dale in describing some of the experiences of his twenty years of service as extension agent in Valley county declared that when he first came to Ord some of the more dubious farmers looked him over and asked, "What does that young sprout wearing a white collar think he can teach us about farming?" Now Mr. Dale says that some people believe that he is too old to be "up with the times." "The purpose of the extension service," he said, "is to translate the results of scientific experimentation into terms usable to the farmer." He expressed the belief that owing to the efforts of the extension agents closer understanding exists between the farmers and the agricultural college.

Owing to the death of a sister, R. H. Douglas, Burwell extension agent, was unable to attend the meeting.

Miss Phyllis Messenger submitted to an appendectomy in Dr. Cran's hospital Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. Neil Sloan entertained the Sewing club in her home in the Hub apartments Thursday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Meyer, Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Wagner and Mrs. D. C. McCarthy were Grand Island visitors Wednesday.

Mrs. J. A. Kovanda of Ord gave a book review at the meeting of the Domestic Science club Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. Archie Dangert was hostess.

Five Garfield county youths left via bus for Omaha Monday morning where they were inducted into the United States army for a year's training under the selective service act. The five, all of whom were volunteers, were Leland Thompson, Delbert Pearson, Phillip Webb, John Wilberg and Lloyd Richardson. As yet it has not been necessary to draft any men into the army from Garfield county as the selective service board has a list of volunteers which exceeds the number which can be accepted from Garfield county at this time. Two other boys, James Schrier and Clovis Tucker have enrolled in army from Garfield county under the selective service act.

Twenty-five townspeople interested in the proposed project for bringing irrigation water into Burwell attended a meeting in the court house Friday evening to learn what progress had been made toward promoting the undertaking. The results of the preliminary survey made by Russell Jensen of Ord, the surveyor who plotted the irrigation system in North Loup, were announced showing that water could be distributed to practically all parts of the residential districts of Burwell by the installation of two pumping stations. A petition has been prepared which is being circulated to learn the number of property owners desiring irrigation. According to present plans each property owner will pay twenty-five dollars to help defray cost of constructing the system. A charge of three dollars per year will be made to pay for the water and the upkeep of the project. Promoters of the project believe that the chances of securing WPA labor are very good. Roy Dillon, a WPA representative from Ord, has conferred with the backers of the project and encouraged them to ask for WPA aid. To secure WPA labor the project must have the approval of the village board. A committee plans to meet with the board at its next session to acquaint them with the aims of the undertaking. The project can also be carried out if a separate irrigation district is formed in Burwell but in order to do this a charter must be obtained from the state department of roads and irrigation.

A group of friends and neighbors surprised Mrs. Harley Nixon by calling at her home Friday afternoon to hold a farewell party in her honor. The Nixon family plans soon to move to Chambers where Mr. Nixon has been employed for several months.

A newly published operetta, "Words and Music," will be presented by the students of Burwell high school March 3, under the direction of Mr. Stray. The scene of the operetta is laid in a college where the students successfully attempt to modernize some of the old fashioned ideas of the faculty. The players include Frank Ilavica, Ruth Langstrom, Mildred Hummel, Gerald Bishop, Gerald Hald, Leslie Chaffin, Vivian Frederick, LaVonne Johnson, Eileen Philipps, Dorothy Deo Johnson, Eldon Davis, Billy Udell and Eugene Franssen. A variety of song and dance acts are included in the production. Also choruses of both boys and girls appear. Dorothy Jane Duncan is acting as student manager. The words and lyrics for the operetta were written by Bert Horswell, the music by Adele Bohling Lee. Skits from the operetta were presented at the Farm Bureau meeting in the library Friday by Vivian Frederick and Ruth Langstrom.

The junior high school is also preparing an operetta which will be presented at a later date.

Remember This Person!

We thought we would have everybody stumped as to the identity of the little fellow shown under this head last week, but we were fooled. At 5:30 p. m. Friday Ben Eberhart positively identified him as Frank Norman. Several others made guesses, but they were wide of the mark. That is going some, to identify a person from a photo more than fifty years old, but the fact that it was done proves that it can be done. You should have a better chance with the photo shown above, as he was an older man when it was taken. As soon as you are sure, please phone or bring your answer to the Quiz.

LETTERS FROM QUIZ READERS

2547 Northwest, Northrup St. Portland, Oregon.

John L. (Violent) Ward, The Ord Quiz, Ord, Nebraska.

The episode, I am about to tell you about happened a long time before you were born but you can talk to some of the old timers around there and verify the facts of this sidelight of history. Then you could write it up in the way of a story and give it a scientific slant about the invention of spats.

It came about when Edna Clements and Bess Stacy were running the Quiz and they noticed that Hank Leggett couldn't think straight and write good editorials unless he could wiggle his toes when he had shoes on and then they discovered that Hank couldn't think if he had cold ankles either.

When the Quiz was over in the old Quiz building and Edna and Bess and Florence Chapman were the business, mechanical and news brains of the organization and Ernest Coats was the society editor and conducted the Letters to the Lovelorn Column and Harry McBeth was yelling "copy" louder than any printer foreman in North America, and I was conducting the household hints and the needlework columns. That left the boss nothing to do but write editorials and bellyache at the rest of us and he was doing an excellent job of it.

The boss would sit there at his typewriter barefoot and he unconsciously squirmed his big toe around a one spot on the floor until he had finally bored a hole clean thru the floor down into the composing room.

Hank could run over to that toe and watch it squirming around and he could tell by the way the toe was squirming and the color or shade of it just what kind of an editorial the boss was writing and in what stage of completion it was.

Then the Quiz moved into the new quarters and the boss had some buttons sewed on his vest and got himself a necktie and kept his shoes on in the office and his editorial qualifications hit the downward curve. Irl Tolen could lay the boss out cold in any editorial he wrote and the boss was just helpless on a comeback. It looked like the democrats would take the county.

Bess and Edna made quite an exhaustive study of the matter and finally persuaded the boss that he had to take off his shoes and wiggle his toes when he went after Irl Tolen.

However, the boss complained of a draught in the new building and said his ankles were cold and that he could not think with cold ankles. Even after I bored a hole in the floor for his big toe, his editorial temperature only went up about two degrees.

In those days when I was really stuck with a problem I always sent for Hank Stara. Hank had a good brain in his head and was a stout thinker but being Swedish he could not think unless he had Copenhagen Snuss in his mouth, so right off the reel it cost me ten cents for a can of Copenhagen, but I put the problem up to Hank.

At the end of the second box of snuss Hank had figured out that the problem was to have the boss' feet released so that he could wiggle all of his toes and at the same time keep his ankles warm. Pete Darges came in and suggested that we pull the boss' long underwear down over his ankles but the boss threw the cuspidor at Pete and Pete ran out.

I bought Hank another can of snuss and he and I went out and started to walk and then Hank told me that lots of times a problem came to him that was really too tough to solve and then he always went over to his cousin, Stara the Tailor on the north side of the square. We noticed he had a new sign on the window, "Stara the Tailor Has Fits," but Hank said that it didn't mean that he had fits so we went in.

Stara the Tailor was glad to see us and accepted the can of Copenhagen with thanks and Hank told him the problem. He just nodded his head and said, "All right cousin, I fix, give me one hour. Hosen Spatke," he says and went back sewing on a frock coat for Clarence Dye.

Hank chewed up three boxes of Copenhagen and then we bought another one for Stara the Tailor (has fits) and went back. And there John, so help me, were those cunning little garments which were afterwards called spats because it developed that they caused so many spats between husbands and wives about whether or not the husband would wear them already.

Then we went over to the new plant again and got hold of Bess and Edna and we all went into the editorial rooms.

Bess, in explaining the garment and the idea to the boss said, "You see boss, they're shoes and yet they ain't shoes, they will keep your ankles warm and at the same time leave your toes free to wiggle out some thoughts."

The boss looked them over and then began to pound the table and yell that he would not wear them to a dog fight and that he was no sissy and anyway he wouldn't wear them unless Hank Stara would be seen in them in public first.

Of course, originally, Stara the Tailor (has fits) never intended them to be worn with shoes but Hank Stara took them and said, "Look boss, I'll show you that I can go down town and walk twice around the square with them on and nothing will happen." So he pulled them on over his shoes and started out but we knew he had not had time to get further than to the bakery and back when he stumbled into the room pale as a ghost and trembling all over with fear and anger and broken pride.

It took him quite a while to get his breath and then we began to take him about not being able to do it, all the time he was unbuckling the spats and taking them off.

Finally, he told us that he could stand lots of kidding and little boys throwing clods at him and even Ellsworth Ball trying to flirt with him but the way the dogs acted was just too much.

So Edna says, "Hank are you afraid of a little thing like being bitten by a dog?"

At that Hank broke down and began to cry and said between sobs "I ain't afraid of dog bites and I ain't afraid of little boys throwing clods and I can lick Ellsworth Ball with my shoes unlaced but the dogs never even barked at me and they never tried to bite me—The god-danged beasts tried to kick me."

Then he quit crying and put the spats back on and reached for the pick-handle that the boss kept by his desk for irate readers and delinquent subscribers and he says, I'll show you that I can walk three times around the square with these things on and out he went and strutted up the street wearing those garments that were to make his cousin, Stara the Tailor (has fits) famous and were to be known as "spats."

Hank Stara thus established the custom of wearing the spats with shoes and the style of always carrying a pick handle or a cane with a feller when a feller is wearing spats.

While Hank was gone, we heard several sharp cracks like hard wood on flesh and bone and heard several yelps from dogs and three human screams followed by a dull thud as a heavy body fell to the frozen earth.

Then Hank came in with a triumphant look on his handsome Irish face and some blood on the pick handle and took off the spats and handed them to Hank Leggett who was sitting there barefoot and shivering and trying to think of some nasty cracks to make Irl Tolen.

Harry McBeth and I went down into the basement and watched and listened. We heard the boss slide over to his typewriter and heard his typewriter start to click slowly and then increased in speed. Then we saw that too come down through the hole in the floor and watched it squirm around clockwise. We timed it. . . fifteen revolutions to the minute (exactly right). Then we watched the toe turn from pink to yellow, from yellow to green, from green to red, and from red to purple and we knew that Irl Tolen had just as well go up to the District Attorney's office and give himself up.

Someone must have warned Irl Tolen I don't think Hank Stara would do it but I am a little suspicious of Stara the Tailor (has fits). Irl never even waited to read that editorial, he didn't even wait for the next train and so far as I know has never returned to Ord.

Hoping that you are the same, Merritt H. Fuson

WOLFE PETERS came to a dead stop. Premature twilight had settled over the northland. Black clouds had begun to pile up in the western sky.

Ahead Wolfe made out a pin point of light, blinking at him through the bare branches of hardwood trees. His evil features broke into something that resembled a smile.

"Well, Mr. Mountie," he soliloquized, "you've mused your last trail. It's a pity, too, you bein' the cream of the Northwest police. Smart, they said you was. Smart enough to outfox Wolfe Peters. He fooled all the others, so they picked on you. Tough luck, old boy, 'cause you're gonna join your buddies in hades!"

Wolfe kicked off his snowshoes, unslung his rifle and stepped off the trail. Crouching low he circled the campfire until he could get a clear view of it without having his vision obstructed by low-hanging branches.

The drama about to be enacted was the culmination of six months of relentless trailing on the part of Lefty Small, R. N. M. P., and Wolfe Peters' present victim. Peters, most notorious outlaw that ever roamed the north woods, had, following a series of daring crimes, including two murders, successfully outwitted the mounties for more than two years.

Man after man had been sent into the woods to get Wolfe Peters, only to meet with a horrible fate—death at the hands of the outlaw himself. It was uncanny the way Peters evaded capture, incredulous the way he outsmarted seasoned policemen, inhuman the manner in which he dealt with his victims.

In desperation Sergeant Harrigan, in charge of the Bear River patrol, sent for Lefty Small, veteran mountie, a crack shot, experienced woodsman and honored and loved by his companions. Small, who had more than a hundred captures to his credit, had retired from active service. Sergeant Harrigan's appeal had stirred something inside of him that was a reflection of the thrills he received in his younger days while on the trail. He had heard rumors of the activities of the outlaw Peters, and almost welcomed this opportunity to go after him.

Peters, too, had heard of Small and his prowess. And for a time he became more cautious in his movements when he learned that the old man had taken up his trail.

Soon Peters became aware of his pursuer's proximity. It was then that he put into execution the craftsmanship that had outsmarted Small's predecessors. Cleverly manipulating his snowshoes the outlaw confused his trail in a manner that would fool the most seasoned woodsmen. Then he crossed the smooth surface of the Little Bear, concealed himself on the opposite shore and waited. An hour later Small appeared for a moment on the other side and vanished into the woods.

Wolfe smiled to himself, waited thirty minutes and took up the pursuit.

There would be a good deal of satisfaction, thought Peters as he crawled toward the brightly burning fire, to send this dower of the Mounted to join his younger brothers. No fool like an old fool, he grunted.

Wolfe brought up behind a fallen log and rested his rifle on the surface. He sighted along the barrel at the figure crouched over the fire, twenty feet away. He paused an instant. Vaguely he knew a certain vain pride at thus having outwitted the smartest man that ever wore the red and gold of the Mounted.

It was in that moment of evil elation that a twig cracked just behind the outlaw. Peters glanced over his shoulder, to find himself staring into the muzzle of Lefty Small's service pistol.

"Don't move, Wolfe. I'm in no mood for trifling and I've half a mind to shoot anyway, just to even up in a small way for what you did to Higgins and Fitzpatrick."

"My God!" Peters jerked full around, but dropped his rifle as Small made a threatening movement with the pistol.

"Tricked at your own game," the policeman taunted. "Kind of hurts the vanity, eh, Wolfe?"

Peters cast a frightened glance behind him. The figure was still crouched over the fire 20 feet away. Small laughed and produced a set of handcuffs.

"Kind of wondering what it's all about, eh, Wolfe? Well, this is one trick you haven't learned yet, smart as you are. Just to satisfy your curiosity I'll tell you that I happened to know what you were up to when you balled up your trail back there. I let you think I swallowed the bait and then rigged up this plan of my own. Haven't you ever heard of the trick of building a fire and then backtracking to see what happens, Wolfe? No, I guess you haven't. That man up there isn't a man at all. It's my parka, thrown over a log of wood."

Small snapped on the handcuffs and resheathed his revolver.

"Let's go up to the fire, Wolfe. I'm an old man and can't stand this cold without my parka. What's that saying about no fool like an old one?" He grinned and prodded Wolfe Peters toward the fire.

Chinch Bugs Hibernate

From about mid-October to April the middle of April the full-grown chinch bugs are hidden in various sheltered, well-protected places. They do not feed during hibernation, hence do no damage. Their favorite shelters are bunch grass, broom sedge, blue-stem and other native and cultivated grasses. On south slopes of roads, south sides of ditch banks and hedges they are especially numerous. They rarely penetrate more than 10 or 15 rods into dense woodlands, according to Wesley P. Flint, Illinois state entomologist. Only a few bugs hibernate in cornstalks. Over-wintered bugs and their young are found in April, May and early June in fields of small grain or tender, succulent grasses. During this period the flight out of winter quarters occurs. They start leaving winter haunts after several hours of warm, sunny weather of 70 degrees Fahrenheit or above. If the weather suddenly cools, the flight ceases and a week or 10 days may go by before they stir again from their winter homes. Once in the field, the bugs feed for a time, then start laying their eggs. A female lays 15 to 20 eggs in one day and may not lay again for several days. Mating and egg-laying usually go on for about a month, the young from the first-laid eggs often being nearly grown by the time the last eggs are laid. By mid-June most of the old bugs are dead and the first-hatched ones are immature. When the small grain dries up or is cut the latter part of June or early July the bugs migrate on foot to fields of corn. It is only during this migration that the creosote barriers are effective. In midsummer and September, the bugs stay in the corn fields where the second brood is hatched ready to feed on the corn.

Money to Burn

Burning money for the dead is an ancient custom of the Chinese. They believe that there are millions of souls in purgatory who have served their allotted time there and if they can lay their hands on the right amount of cash, they can buy their way back to this world. When death has occurred for a relative, the body is laid out on a great wooden board supported at either end by stools. Before this bier a small altar full of burning coals is placed and from time to time small packets of "hell money" are thrown onto these coals. Larger amounts are put into a special trunk and padlocked so it cannot be opened in the next world by unauthorized spirits. The dead, arriving in the next world with this "hell money," are supposed to loan the money to spirits waiting to return to this earth. In this way, they then will have good luck when their time comes and can borrow enough money to come back.

Psychometers Reveal Reactions

The movie people have discovered a better way of testing audience reactions than by taking a questionnaire poll, so watch out. They're doing it now with psychometers, instruments which measure directly the emotional tension or relaxation of any subject when watching certain types of pictures. Here's the first statement from Warners—see stories are ideal for hot weather, very cooling. Newsreel shots dealing with the current war give the greatest heat reaction. Women show great excitement over love scenes; men do not. That situation is reversed on adventure scenes—the men get very excited but the women just sit back and register nothing.

Disaster of Battleship Maine

A list of the 260 officers and men who perished in the disaster of the battleship Maine, blown up in the harbor of Havana, Cuba, appears on pages 11-13 of Vol. 2 of the report of the secretary of the navy for 1898. This report may be found in any large public library.

This Committee is voluntarily sharing with law enforcement officials the responsibility for protecting the public and the Nebraska Beer Industry from law violating beer dealers.

We look upon that responsibility as a public trust. Beer retailers who violate Nebraska law must and will be eliminated.

We will continue to be keenly aware of the privilege of protecting this economically and socially important industry for the benefit of all Nebraskans.

Rural Urban Panel.

A discussion of the Rural-Urban panel was held Thursday afternoon from 1 to 4 p. m. at Thorne's Cafe. Fifteen ladies from the rural section and fifteen from town met to hear topics of mutual interest discussed. Topics discussed were "Balanced Abundance in America," and "National Defense."

It was agreed that the aim was to produce abundance, but that this had not yet been achieved, due to a number of factors, among which were price fixing, problem of distribution, lack of education, not enough understanding, and low standard of living.

Miss Clara McClatchey spoke on the need of more equality in rural schools. Miss Delores Redfern discussed the tenant purchase plan for farms, and also the rehabilitation plan. The stamp plan was discussed, as well as the benefits of farm accountancy.

Topics under the farm program were the ever normal granary, its success local and general, the farm program versus scarcity, how to better the farm program, the question of the lack of home ownership, national defense, good citizenship, preparedness on the farm, the results of possible dictatorship in South America, better understanding of South American problems.

Also discussed was the possible pressure to compel the United States to trade with the dictator countries. Mrs. Inez Burrows had charge of the first part of the meeting, and Mrs. Dorothy McMeekin had charge of the second part.

Forty Years as a Resident of Joint

By J. L. Abernethy.

Forty years ago this week my brother Harry and I arrived in Ord from south Nebraska with two emigrant cars of farm machinery, household goods, some horses and a few cattle. Our parents and sister Laura came a few days later on the passenger.

We were met at the railroad yards by another brother, Will, who had moved up here the year before.

We put our horses in the Jim Scott barn where the Ord creamery now stands and spent the night at the Transit House, then run by W. E. Hall and family.

The next morning a number of our new neighbors arrived with wagons to help us move onto the Sand Flats near Joint school house.

Among those helping us were Adolph Asimus, Frank and Alfred Holman, Burdard Leofborrow, Ed and August Jensen, Otis Moorman and Fred Hallock.

We ate dinner at the Siler restaurant and got our wagons loaded by mid afternoon and began the long haul (14 miles) to our new home, arriving by moonlight.

When we left Johnson county, the snow was about 18 inches deep on the level, but out here the snow was gone, and the frost coming out of the ground left the roads very spongy, especially on the river road north of the bridge.

My first impression of the Sand Flats was that it looked like an immense prairie dog town with the sand knolls scattered here and there as if thrown up by mammoth prairie dogs.

After leaving the timber of the southeast, this country seemed to be almost bare of trees, although there were a few groves planted around some of the farmsteads and a few groves set out years before on timber claims.

The houses were mostly of sod, although there were a few frame buildings. Adolph Asimus has a frame house as also did W. W. Leofborrow, Mrs. Lucy Turner and Bert Dyer.

The house on the E. L. Ball, sr., ranch was in process of construction. In the Rosevale district Ed Ebel, Dan Smith and Uncle Joe Nelson had frame houses. Both Joint and Rosevale school houses were of sod but the Plain Valley building was frame and the Brick school house was really brick.

The roads in this vicinity were practically unworked and followed the lines of least resistance, angling across all vacant lands. Your early settler had a great antipathy toward turning a square corner.

The land at this time was very productive and crop failures were almost unknown. From 1901 to 1934 we never had a crop failure. Mrs. Asimus suggested changing the name of this community from Sand Flats to Egypt as "that was where they all came to buy corn."

This was the time of the Ed Ebel, Dan Smith and "Phyp" Cunningham feud, each of them more or less openly accused the others of every crime from the murder of George Ray to counterfeiting.

The George Ray case might be classed as the perfect crime as the body was never found and no one was ever arrested for it.

Another tale than was told me was of a fight in which one of the contestants had an ear chewed off. When we came here a quarrel was going on about the construction of a new school house to replace the old "soddy" and in 1902 a new frame building was erected. Miss Mabel Anderson, now Mrs. J. L. Abernethy, was the first teacher in the new building.

Some years later this building was moved to the center of the grounds and about 1918 another room was built on and a two year high school was started with Misses Gall and Glenna Grant as the teachers. Of late years, lack of pupils and hard times have caused the high school to be discontinued.

The old groves of trees as well as many of the later plantings have died or been killed by dry weather until but few more trees are in evidence than forty years ago. Many of the old friends and neighbors have gone to their reward and others have moved to other localities. At present the only residents of Joint of forty years ago are Mr. and Mrs. Bert Dye and myself. Joint has always been a community of good neighbors who would go a long way to help where help was needed.

A partial list of those most outstanding might include E. L. Ball, sr., Adolph Asimus, Ed Jensen, Lou Smith, Frank Holman, Geo. Cummins, Joe Hoover, Clint Davis, F. P. Ackles and sons Floyd and Franklin, Chas. Marshall, Frank Holden and many others. I might add that all the good neighbors have not left the community.

Forty years is a long time. P. S. No writing of this early period of affairs in Joint would be complete without the mention of Pat Fuson, our most (in) famous product.

At the time of my coming to the Sand Flats, Pat had left his home in Joint as a very small boy and was roaming the sandhills to the north in breech clout and blanket, living on prairie dog meat and an occasional chicken, pilfered from some outlying homestead and taming rattlesnakes as a past time.

His family having decided that he was no good for anything else, they decided to take him to Ord and educate him to be a painter. (My apologies to Jud Tedro and George Owen.)

A circle hunt was organized to capture and dress him. I did not get in on the hunt or the battle following as it was on the order of a family affair, but his cousin, Ellsworth Ball, assures me it was some battle and after Ellsworth having been on the county board with Charlie Johnson, Viggo Hansen and Hank Zikmund, when he says "battle" I take his word for it.

It took Pat quite a while to get accustomed to people and town ways. Several years later when Fred Hallock and I used to go to Ord to call on his sisters, we only caught glimpses of Pat as he scuttled from behind one piece of furniture to another.

However Pat learned to be one of Ord's leading sign painters as can be illustrated on the windows of the Mame Siler and L. D. Bailey stores on Hallowe'en. Maybe some of his old cronies like Ernest Coats or John Ward can tell us what happened in Pat's life to change his shrinking violet nature into the bold bad man of later years.

America Wins

By RICHARD HILL WILKINSON
(McClure Syndicate—WNU Service.)

WHEN the war broke out no one was more thrilled about it than Peggy Stuart. Peggy was twenty and romantic. A week later her brother Chet came down from Rottersham. He was wearing the uniform of a corporal. Peg looked at him and there were tears in her eyes; it seemed as though she would burst with pride.

"Oh, Chet, you look simply wonderful! I'm so proud of you—I-I could almost weep." And she did. She brushed away her tears and laughed. "It won't take very long to whip them, darling, to teach those Midlanders they can't sink our ships." She searched his face. "Is—Cary coming down?"

Instantly Chet sobered. "I believe so. He couldn't get away until this evening. Cary doesn't think as you and I do, Peg."

Peggy knew a feeling of apprehension. She wouldn't let herself believe that her fears were justified. When Cary arrived she was alone. He swept her into his arms.

"Hello, darling. Sorry I couldn't come down with Chet—Good heavens, what's wrong?"

"Nothing. Nothing except that I expected you'd be wearing a uniform."

"I see." Cary's face grew sober. "So it's got you, too?"

"Got me?" Peggy's eyes blazed. "If you mean the spirit of patriotism that every true blooded American should have at a time like this, the answer is yes."

"All right, honey. No need to get upset. I didn't mean to condemn you for the way you feel. You're young and you can't know the meaning of war."

"Can't I? Well, let me tell you this: I know that your country needs you, needs every man available. Our ships have been sunk, our people killed, our honor insulted by a nation that has had her eye on us for the last decade. I know that every citizen with a drop of loyal blood in his veins should stand ready to defend his country!"

"Defend it—yes. When it needs defending I'll be there. But not when an American vessel carrying supplies and ammunition to another warring nation has been torpedoed. That isn't invasion."

"Cary Easton, you're a coward and a traitor to say that!"

"Of course, I'm afraid. Who wouldn't be? Who isn't? Why—"

But Peggy had turned and fled. It was a month later that Peggy read in the paper's about Cary's enlistment. She sat down and wrote to him. She loved him, and loved him in spite of everything.

Cary answered her letter. He had thought over what she had said. That's why he had enlisted—because he loved her and wanted her more than anything. More, even, than life. He tried to see her, but at the last minute his regiment was shipped south and from there it embarked three days later for the war zone.

Within the month she heard news of her brother's death—shot down on the battlefield. An honorable death, the dispatch read.

This was in May. In September she stopped hearing from Cary. There was a terrible ache and pain in her heart, a fear, an emptiness. Hope remained alive, but it was a miserable hope.

In December an armistice was declared. According to the newspapers America had won the war. The Midlanders had been suppressed. There was rejoicing and celebrating on all sides. The first boat load of returning soldiers came home in January. Peggy stood in the icy wind and watched them disembark. Cary was not among them.

In May the last boat load arrived. Peggy was not at the dock to meet it. She had given up hope. And yet hope lived again when she heard a knock at her door. She opened it and looked at the man standing there. After a while she recognized him. It was Cary—what was left of Cary. Something caught at her heart; a sob escaped her lips.

Hours later they sat in front of the fire, and Peggy looked up into the bitter, distorted features of the man she had sent away, and said: "Things are going to be just the same, darling—just as we planned. I—I want to get married at once."

"Don't be a fool, Peggy. Why, there's nothing left of me. Do you think for a minute I'd ruin your life by marrying you? Lord! I'll never be able to work again as long as I live. I'd be a millstone." He laughed bitterly. "I—only came back to show you—that I was right."

Peggy reached up and kissed him. Then she put him to bed and left him. For hours she sat alone in the living room, planning how they'd live together, how they'd get along, how she'd take care of him.

The next morning she stole into Cary's room to see if he was awake. But he wasn't. He lay on the bed still and cold. There was a tiny phial on the table beside the bed, empty. And near it was a note, written in Cary's hand. "Good-by, darling. Forgive me. It was cruel of me to come back, but I wanted you to know, to see for yourself—"

Outside a band was playing. The townfolks were celebrating the return of their heroes. America had won the war.

The Note

By RICHARD HILL WILKINSON
Released by Western Newspaper Union

ZITA frowned over the letter. It was hard trying to find the proper words, words that would tell Joffe she no longer loved him, that his little, peculiar ways annoyed her, that she was going away with Paul. She didn't want to hurt him any more than she could help, yet there was no sense in beating about the bush.

"Dear Joffe," she wrote. "I hope this doesn't come as too great a blow. The fact is, I've suddenly realized that our marriage was a mistake. I'm afraid I never loved you as at first I thought. I am going away with Paul. Please try to understand and forgive. Zita."

She read it through twice, frowning. There wasn't much there but cruel, hard facts. She would like to have softened the blow, yet it was better this way.

She copied the letter on her very best stationery and threw away the original. Tomorrow she'd place the carefully penned note at Joffe's plate at the table, where he'd find it when he came home from the office.

She fell to reflecting then, sitting there at her desk, with the penholder and clicking idly against her teeth.

How glad she'd be to get away. Alone with Paul. Dear precious Paul. So kind and gentle and understanding. A pity she hadn't met him before she married Joffe. Joffe! The mere thought of him gave her the willies.

Promptly at 5:30 Joffe would slam into the house. He'd boom out a greeting and give her a great bearlike hug, and in so doing he'd disarrange her hair and spoil her makeup. That was like Joffe. No matter how many times she scolded him about it, it made no difference. Never thinking of her looks, her feelings.

He'd sit down then and eat a big, hearty meal, telling her the while of everything that had happened at the office. And after dinner he'd roam around the house and begin picking up things, emptying wastebaskets, dusting off a shelf or piece of furniture with his handkerchief. The mere thought of it caused Zita to shudder. As if she hadn't spent half the day cleaning house! And then to have him go right over the same ground, betraying by his attitude the fact he thought she was shiftless and lazy!

Joffe never complained. It was his actions, the way he looked at things and at her that had worn on Zita's nerves. It was what he didn't say that bothered her most.

Poor idiot! It would be a hard pill for him to swallow when he read that letter. She wondered how he'd get along with no one to look after him.

Zita sighed and went below stairs. Joffe was just coming in. He swept her into his arms, nearly crushing her bones.

All during dinner she thought what a fool he was, a fool because he hadn't been able to read the handwriting on the wall. Hadn't even suspected she was bored and fed up with him. Why, once he'd even come into the living room and found her in Paul's arms. Quick-thinking Paul had immediately explained that he'd been trying to remove a speck from her eye. And Joffe, poor, dumb Joffe, had believed him. Paul, he believed, was his best friend.

That evening, as usual, Joffe made his customary tour about the house and seemed almost disappointed when he failed to locate a dusty shelf or piece of furniture. Zita had made sure that day to clean the place thoroughly. She didn't want to have trouble with Joffe on her last night.

Somehow Zita lived through the night and the next morning. At noon Paul came. The letter she had written for Joffe was already at his plate on the table. His dinner was on the stove.

They departed as unostentatiously as possible and motored at once to the docks. The liner on which Paul had purchased tickets, sailed at one o'clock. They stayed below until the moorings were cast off, then went up on deck.

Zita saw the city slipping away behind them. She felt Paul's strong arm about her shoulder. She was happy. She had no last-minute regrets; no feeling of wrong-doing. She was leaving behind a life of drudgery and monotony, facing a glorious new adventure. She was glad.

At exactly 5:30 Joffe returned home. There was on his face a look of anxiety. He yelled a greeting to his wife, and on receiving no answer, carefully removed his coat and hat and walked into the dining room.

Instantly his eye fell on the letter lying so innocently at his place. He picked it up, unsealed it and read what his wife had written.

After a moment he removed from his pocket a crumpled piece of paper, which he compared with Zita's letter. He nodded, crushed the two in his hand and threw them toward the fireplace.

"She always was careless about her housekeeping," he mused. "Else she wouldn't have thrown that note in her wastebasket, where I found it last night."

And the anxiety in Joffe's eyes was replaced by a look of satisfaction and contentment.

Noll Relected Co-op President

Stockholders of the Ord Co-operative Oil company held their annual meeting Tuesday afternoon at the Masonic hall with about 125 present. Directors elected were Low Smolik, Arnold Bredthauer and Fred Martinson and at a directors' meeting following the general meeting W. C. H. Noll was re-elected president, Henry Benn vice-president and J. G. Hastings secretary-treasurer.

The Co-op had a very successful year in 1940, the secretary's report showed, making profits of about $3,000. Four per cent was rebated to share earners on their purchases and six per cent paid to stockholders.

A Firestone tractor show was enjoyed during the afternoon and a fine luncheon was served to all stockholders at the close.

Legion Men Registered for Service Saturday

Saturday, Feb. 22, was set as registration day for all ex-service men as part of the national preparedness program. The selection of the day was unfortunate here, due to the fact that it was a legal holiday and the post office and both banks were closed.

However, E. L. Vogellanz, member of the committee, registered a number on that day. The other members, C. J. Mortensen, Alfred L. Hill and Horace Travis, registered a number before Saturday, and several have registered since. A number also registered with A. A. Wiegard at the court house.

For the benefit of any who care to do so, Mr. Travis will have the blanks and typewriter at the Legion meeting Tuesday evening at the hall, and registration can be made at that time. It is explained that this registration is largely a matter of information, and does not obligate the registrant in any way.
