Ord Hopes for Big Crowd at Friendly July 4 Celebration

Whole Day to Be Filled With Free Entertainment That Will Please Everybody.

Ord business men are friendly people and through their Chamber of Commerce they invite all of central Nebraska to celebrate the 4th in Ord this year.

Plans have been in progress for weeks and while no expensive elaborate program is contemplated, there will be something doing from 9:30 in the morning until late at night and every bit of entertainment will be free.

Big event of the morning will be the Soap Box Derby, put on under auspices of the Cosmopolitan club, one of Ord's service organizations. Twenty boys in racing cars made by themselves will compete on the South 21st street hill for $50 worth of merchandise prizes.

These little cars go surprisingly fast and there will be thrills aplenty during the card of 12 races. The hill will be roped off and spectators may stand at the starting line atop the hill, at any intersection or at the finish line where South 21st street and L street intersect.

The races will end about 12 o'clock and the next hour will be devoted to a community picnic at Ord's beautiful Bussell park, where picnic facilities to accommodate hundreds of people are available. The fine Ord golf course will be free to all visitors throughout the 4th, as will be the asphalt tennis courts. Little tots may play in the bathing pool near the bridge, which will be supervised so all the children will be safe.

Afternoon program on Ord's new athletic field will include the pet parade, horseshoe tournament, bicycle races, foot races, novelty races, a saddle horse show, ball game and many other interesting events. Before the program in front of the grandstand starts there will be a patriotic speech by Thomas W. Lanigan, of Grand Island, one of Nebraska's finest orators. There will be music during the picnic hour and throughout the afternoon.

In the evening, uptown, will come a water contest between two Ord fire companies, and a 1-hour band concert by the Ord municipal band. Dances in the two Ord halls will conclude the evening.

Ord invites you to bring a picnic lunch and spend the 4th in this city among your friends.

John Hrebec Gored by a Maddened Bull

A near-fatal accident occurred on the John Hrebec farm northeast of Ord Sunday morning when Mr. Hrebec was gored by a maddened whiteface bull. The bull charged him, slammed his body against a fence and then tossed him over the fence on its horns, which probably saved his life, as he was unconscious and undoubtedly the bull would have killed him had he remained in the pen.

The bull had previously displayed such tendencies and Mr. Hrebec usually was armed with a pitchfork when he entered the enclosure. Sunday he had a club and although he struck at the bull as it charged him, the bull kept on coming.

Hrebec was brought to the Clinch hospital where he was attended by Dr. C. W. Weekes. He soon regained consciousness and it was determined that he had suffered no injuries more serious than cuts and bruises so he was allowed to return home that evening.

Ira Lindsey, 86, Passes Thursday

At the Ord hospital Thursday occurred the death of Ira D. Lindsey, 86, who had been a patient in the hospital several weeks. The funeral was held Saturday at the Frazer chapel and interment was in the Ord cemetery.

He was born Nov. 29, 1854 at East Bridgewater, Mass., and the next spring accompanied his parents to Kankakee, Ill., and a few years later to a homestead near Chelance, Ill., which was his home until the death of his parents. On July 22, 1886 he was married at Watseka, Ill., to Clara B. Marshall. In 1895 they moved to Kinbra, Minn., and in 1897 to Nebraska, which remained Mr. Lindsey's home until his death.

Three children are left to mourn, Leo, of San Diego, Calif., Mrs. Frances Baker, of San Diego, and another son, Eino. There also is one grandson and several nieces and nephews. Mrs. Lindsey died in 1912.

Palbearers at the service Saturday were old friends, George S. Round, George Hubbard, P. E. Pockock, J. C. Meese, Charlie Mayo and Lawrence Mason. Music was furnished by Mrs. Mark Tolen and Mrs. Robert Noll. Rev. Clifford Under, of the Ord Christian church, conducted the last rites.

Gets Instructions from Mayor on Safe Driving

Just before he left for Omaha to compete, Tuesday in the Ford safe driving contest for young drivers, Cornelius Biemond got advice on how to drive safely from His Honor M. B. Cummins, mayor of Ord. Young Biemond is one of 12 Nebraska boys who won the right to compete in the contest.

Grand Island Man Died Wednesday After Car Wreck

Grand Merritt Dead, O. Jensen Recovers After Accident Near Scotia Junction.

Grant Merritt, 25, died at 2:00 last Wednesday afternoon from injuries received in an auto accident early that morning near Scotia. His companion in the car, Oscar Jensen, 40, recovered rapidly from a slight concussion and was permitted to leave the hospital Thursday. His worst injury was a broken collarbone.

Merritt's death was caused by a fractured skull. From the start no hope for his recovery was held out by doctors.

Both men were employees of the Union Pacific railroad and left Grand Island early Wednesday morning in Merritt's coupe to join a bridge repair crew now working out of Ord.

Near Scotia, just below the point where the oiled highway and the gravelled highway join, Merritt's car hit loose gravel and overturned. W. A. Ellingson, state highway patrolman, who took measurements and pictures at the scene of the tragedy, said that in his opinion the accident was caused by excessive speed. Merritt's car skidded broadside 33 feet, then overturned and rolled 53 feet, he said.

Young Merritt's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Merritt of Grand Island, were notified of the accident at once and reached Ord before the young man died. His fiancée, a young Dannebrog woman to whom he was to be married last Saturday, also came to Ord at once, as did members of Oscar Jensen's family. The Pearson-Anderson Mortuary took Merritt's body to Valparaiso, his former home, Saturday, where funeral services were held.

The young man's body was clad in the new suit he had planned to wear at his marriage, and his fiancée wore her wedding gown.

Legion Team Wins from St. Edward

Ord Plays Best Game of Year, Winning in Eleven Innings; Darrell Johnson Stars.

For four long hours the Ord Legion Junior baseball team battled against the power of the Legion Junior team from St. Edward at the Ord Athletic park Sunday afternoon finally emerging victorious in the eleventh inning, 9 to 8. It was conceded by the spectators to be the best game seen in Ord in years.

The St. Ed team has plenty of power at bat, and the boys also played a fine game in the field, but the determination of the locals to win was not to be denied. With F. Misko's home run down the third base line in the last of the ninth they tied the score at eight all, and Darrell Johnson batted in the winning run in the eleventh.

Bill Novosad started on the mound for Ord, was replaced by Paulk and Fryzek for a while, and then went back in to finish the game after Fryzek was hit on the right arm in the ninth. Bill Johnson caught the entire game for Ord. Rodd started for St. Ed and was replaced by several others during the game. Regg caught most of the game.

First Inning, St. Edward: Yokeley was out, pitcher to first, after hitting six fouls; C. Fischer was out to center field; Rodd poled a two-bagger out to right field; Spichal was out on a long fly to left field.

Ord: F. Misko out on a line drive to third base; Piskorski out, right field to first; W. Johnson hit over third base; Fryzek was

Jumps Out of Window, Dies, When Accused of Murdering His Wife

Carl Anderson, editor of the Litchfield Monitor, jumped out of a window in Chicago and plunged three floors to his death Monday after he was taken there by Sherman county and state officials to undergo a lie detector test in an attempt to find out if he murdered his wife.

Last Friday near Mason City the editor's wife was killed when their auto went over a 25-foot bank. Anderson said he leaped from the car and was unhurt while Mrs. Anderson's head was crushed.

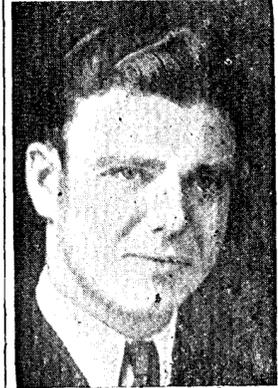

Litchfield residents doubted this story and asked officials to investigate so Sunday, while funeral services were in progress, they took Anderson into custody. An iron pipe found near the scene of the accident was blood stained and officials accused Anderson of beating his wife to death, then simulating an accident.

Anderson protested innocence and went to Chicago voluntarily to take the lie detector test at Northwestern University. Rush C. Clarke, who prosecuted the Hirkas cases here, accompanied him to Chicago.

After taking the tests Monday, and before their results were announced, Anderson committed suicide by jumping from a window.

The Litchfield editor and his wife were known to a number of Ord people. Mr. and Mrs. C.E. Russmisse knew them especially well.

Pierce to Denver, Will Be FSA Irrigation Expert

R. O. "Bill" Pierce, extension agricultural engineer at University of Nebraska and son of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Pierce of Ord, has resigned to accept a position with the farm security administration in Denver. His duties there started Saturday.

In Denver he will work in the regional FSA office, under Ivan D. Wood, who preceded Pierce in the Nebraska job he just resigned. Pierce will do irrigation engineering in 13 plains and Rocky Mountain states.

His salary at the University of Nebraska job was said to be $175 per month and his new job represents a "nice promotion."

Mr. Pierce and his wife, the former Ella Mae Thompson, visited relatives in Ord before going to Denver.

Drillers Hopeful Will Strike Oil Formations Today

Drill Down 2,980 Feet Last Night But Progress Slow; Prospects Favorable.

Drilling at the Bredthauer-Williams Test Well No. 1 had progressed to a depth of 2,980 feet last evening and men in charge of the venture expressed optimism over prospects for striking oil, possibly some time today.

One rumor, which drillers refused to confirm, even said that oil "shows" had already been encountered.

Harold Thomas, of Lincoln, field geologist at the well, said last night that the drilling bit was about to go into the Kansas City-Lansing formation, which is a big producer in western Kansas.

His log of the well, he stated, has indicated this formation would be struck at the 2,980 foot level "and I don't believe we'll miss it over a few feet," he added. They might have to drill into this formation several feet before encountering shows of oil and there is a possibility of course that even though this formation produces oil in Kansas it will not produce oil here.

Rapid progress was made on the well for the first few days, several hundred feet being drilled each day, but as the bit went deeper progress slowed up and last night it was making scarcely a foot per hour.

Most likely depth at which oil might be found would be between 3,000 and 3,500 feet, oil men have stated. Even if some oil is found there is no certainty it will be present in commercially profitable quantities.

Everybody connected with the well including Henry Bredthauer, who has worked on the proposition for the past ten years, seems to be very hopeful. Though Mr. Bredthauer declines to say what formations have been found at what depths he admits that everything seems favorable for oil to be struck.

He indicated that drilling would continue until granite is struck, unless oil is found sooner, so that future ventures may have the benefit of the information thus brought forth. It is likely that another well will be drilled even if no oil is found in this one, providing the formations continue to appear favorable.

More than 1,000 people visited the drilling site Sunday and great crowds are there every day. A refreshment stand on the ground seems to be doing a thriving business.

Valley County Men Registered Here Tuesday by Board

Ord and No. Loup Men Listed at Court House; Some Were Registered at Arcadia.

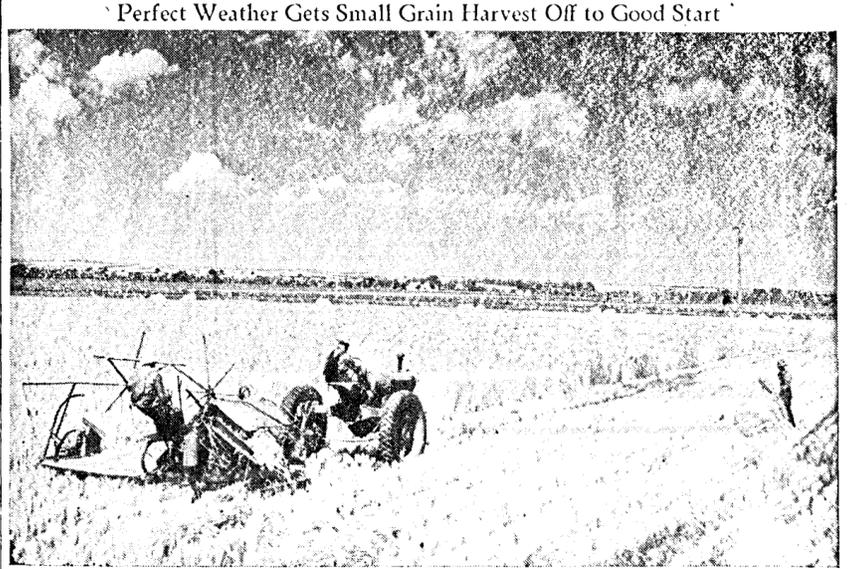

Thirty-three young men from Ord, North Loup and vicinity were registered at the district court room in Ord yesterday under the act which requires the registration of all those who have reached the age of twenty-one since the registration day, Oct. 16, 1940.

Of these, seven were registered from North Loup and the rest from the Ord territory. At Arcadia the young men were registered by W. J. Ramsey, chairman of the Valley county draft board, but the number registered there has not been reported here as yet.

At Ord the work was taken care of by Mrs. A. A. Wiegardt, wife of the former clerk of the draft board, Mrs. Lois Work, recently appointed clerk, and by Miss Marie Bell, who is also assistant in the office of the district court. W. T. McLain, board member, was also present a part of the day. L. D. Milliken, secretary of the board, was absent, having not yet returned from a trip to California.

Major H. R. Turner of Omaha was in Ord last week and authorized the Scenes like this are common in the Loup valley this week, as farmers took advantage of perfect weather to start cutting their small grain crop. Here Henry Benn, on the binder, harvests his 18-acre field of wheat north of Ord while Glen Banks drives the tractor and Herman Negley shocks the bundles. The wheat will make 20 bushels per acre, a part in the middle of the field winter-killed and was replanted to barley.

Food Stamp Plan to Be Discussed Here on July 10th

Surplus Commodity Distribution to Be Stopped, Stamp Plan Substituted, Soon.

Merchants, bankers and other Valley county business men, as well as county board members, welfare directors and county officials are being notified of a meeting to be held at the court house in Ord at 10:30 a. m., Thursday, July 10, at which the food stamp plan of surplus commodity distribution will be discussed.

The present plan of commodity distribution is to be discontinued in the near future and the food stamp plan substituted on a statewide basis. If Valley county desires to continue to share in the surplus commodity distribution, it probably will have to adopt the stamp plan.

In many Nebraska counties the food stamp plan is already in operation and it is being extended to all counties as rapidly as possible. Representatives of the Surplus Marketing Administration and the State Assistance department will attend the meeting in Ord July 10 to discuss various phases of the program.

It is advisable that merchants, especially grocers, attend the meeting so as to familiarize themselves with the plan's operation, in case it is adopted in Valley county.

Fred V. Cahill, Jr., Gets Ph. D. Degree at Yale U.

Mr. and Mrs. F. V. Cahill and son Hugh returned last Wednesday evening after a two weeks' trip to New Haven, Conn., where they attended the commencement exercises of Yale University. Their son, Fred, Jr., was given the degree of Doctor of Philosophy.

Dr. Cahill was graduated from University of Nebraska with an A. B. degree and remained there as an assistant while studying for his master's degree. Then he accepted an instructorship at Yale to complete his studies for his doctor's degree. This summer he is serving as a professor at College of the City of New York and in the fall will join the faculty of University of Oregon. His specialty is political science.

On their trip the Ord people visited Washington, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Niagara Falls and Detroit, and spent three days in New York City. Only one day of their trip was rainy and only one day, as they drove from Niagara Falls through Canada to Detroit, was uncomfortably hot, says Mr. Cahill. Due to the defense effort business is booming in the east, he says, and crops everywhere looked fine, though the best he saw were around Iowa City.

Ord Woman Trapped in Burning Building, Has Narrow Escape

Miss Erna Malotke, former Ord resident and Chappell high school instructor was trapped in an apartment fire Thursday night at 650 Wiltmer Street, Los Angeles in which three people lost their lives and three others were seriously injured. Miss Malotke is a graduate student at the University of Southern California.

Miss Malotke and her Chappell friends, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Empson, now of Long Beach, returned home at 11:30 at which time they thought they smelled smoke but gave it no further thought and were chatting when someone knocked at the door screaming "fire!"

They were unable to leave the burning apartment building by fire escapes since the fourth floor corridor was in flames at either end. They kicked the screen from the window and called for help from the fast gathering crowd below. It was from the fourth floor that one woman jumped to her death and two other persons were fatally burned. Miss Malotke and her friends were rescued by the Los Angeles fire department, Miss Malotke being the last person to be taken from the blazing building.

Shake-Up in WPA Takes Area Office to Grand Island

Dillon, Mrs. Hardenbrook and Ethel Hower Out; Projects Close During Harvest.

A shake-up in WPA, effective July 1, has resulted in closing of the area office maintained in Ord to service Valley, Garfield, Wheeler, Greeley, Sherman and Howard counties, and the consolidation of this area with the Grand Island office. Don Warner, of Lincoln, will be area engineer at Grand Island. Other counties in the new area are Hall, Buffalo and Hamilton.

L. H. Dillon, area engineer here, has not been assigned to a new position but after a month's vacation probably will be re-assigned as a project engineer, either here or elsewhere.

Mrs. Bert M. Hardenbrook, of Ord, area supervisor of the WPA's community service section, and Mrs. Edith McDermott, of Greeley, area supervisor of the public utilities section, probably will not be re-assigned, since these positions are already filled at Grand Island. Miss Ethel Hower, area clerk, also is left without employment by this shake-up.

The county WPA organization is not affected. Mark Gyger continues as superintendent of construction, Clarence Reed as chief time-keeper and Lloyd Wilson as chief clerk.

The WPA load varies here from 120 to 125, says Gyger, and in the past few weeks 117 men have been working on projects. During harvest season all road projects, on which 60 men were working, and the Middle Loup irrigation project, on which 7 men were working, have been closed so as to make more temporary labor available. The North Loup irrigation project work, on which 20 men are working, may be shut down temporarily also, but it is planned to keep 30 men working on the Ord athletic field and the North Loup community building.

The cut in Valley county's WPA quota later is thought inevitable but efforts will be made to get road and other projects in operation again, perhaps on a curtailed basis, as soon as the harvest season with its demand for temporary labor is over, Mr. Gyger says.

County's Largest Small Grain Crop Ready to Harvest

Rye, Barley, Ready Now, Wheat and Oats Later; 50,000 Acres of Small Grain This Year.

Almost fifty thousand acres of rye, wheat, oats and barley, probably the largest Valley county acreage of small grain since World War days, is ready to harvest, and prospects for the largest yield in many years are excellent, barring a destructive hail storm in the next few days.

According to the AAA office, this county has 40,000 acres of barley, 10,000 acres of oats and 1,000 acres of rye. Only about 800 acres of wheat, the rest of the 3,500 acres originally planted having winter-killed and since been seed to barley. These totals do not include wheat harvested for hay.

Already binders are whirring in fields of rye and barley and by the end of this week combines will move into fields of these crops. Wheat and oats will be four or five days later than the crops mentioned, but farmers who plan to harvest their wheat with binders are in the fields this week also.

Some grain men believe Valley county's barley crop will average 35 to 45 bushels per acre and rye will be fully as good.

A little red rust is apparent in this immediate vicinity but little of the more destructive black rust has been noted.

Wheat yields are problematical, as many fields were winter-damaged to some extent. Oats everywhere will make an excellent crop, it is claimed.

Spring and early summer rains came in ideal fashion for both small grain and corn crops and corn at the present time presents the best July 1 prospect in a decade or more.

Tot Painfully Bitten by Dog

Ilene, the little 3-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Zulkoski of near Elyria was painfully injured about 7:00 Saturday evening when she was bitten by a stray dog. The baby was attended by Dr. F. L. Blessing and Dr. J. N. Round.

Mr. and Mrs. Zulkoski were milking when the accident happened. The little girl was playing with the dog, which came to the Zulkoski home about three weeks before and was allowed to remain. Her parents heard Ilene screaming and ran to her aid, finding that the dog had the child's head in its mouth. The dog's lower teeth were in the tot's mouth, its upper teeth clamped on the child's forehead, and if aid had not been close at hand there is little doubt the child would have been killed.

Mr. Zulkoski tried the dog's jaws loose and then killed the dog with a shotgun. Ilene was brought to Dr. Blessing and later was taken to the Ord hospital where several teeth had to be extracted and part of the jawbone removed. It is believed that the damaged bone will grow back in and also that Ilene's forehead will bear no permanent scars.

On instructions from Dr. Round the dog's body was brought to Ord and its head was removed by Dr. J. W. McGinnis and sent to Lincoln for examination by state health officers, as a precautionary measure against rabies. In such cases it is best not to kill the dog, says Round, but instead to confine the animal where it may be observed. By doing this it can soon be determined whether the dog is suffering from rabies.

Ord Boys Ready Their Soap Box Racers for 4th of July Derby

Here are four Ord boys, Frank Golka, Bobbie Marks, Donald Hill and Darrel Johnson, taking a trial spin down the South 21st street hill as practice for the Cosmopolitan club's Soap Box Derby which will be run the morning of July 4th. Fifteen other cars will take part in the Derby races. Two top-ranking drivers will go to North Platte to compete in the state Derby.

Soap Derby cars must be manufactured by the contestants themselves, though standard wheels and axles are available. Little home-made cars are fast—sometimes too fast for the skill of the drivers—and the race is thrilling.

ORD QUIZ

on $2.00 Per Year at Ord, Nebraska

at the Postoffice in Ord, Nebraska, as Second Matter under Act of 1879.

H. D. Leggett Editor E. C. Leggett

HISTORY REPEATS ITSELF.

In the year 1811 Napoleon broke with Alexander of Russia when the latter withdrew from the Napoleonic continental system.

Napoleon expected Alexander to make peace, but he refused to do so. Darius had run up against the same proposition in South Russia 2,800 years before.

Now, after 129 years, history is being re-enacted in Europe. The latest event is the break between Hitler and Russia.

Even if he should succeed as he plans, he will find it a hollow victory, just as Napoleon did. If he should conquer the whole of Russia in Europe, which seems very unlikely, he will have to police the entire country to keep them in subjection.

For the first time since he started his land conquests he has found a foe man worthy of his steel. He has found an army that can hold him at bay, a race of people well trained and equipped in military affairs.

Hitler knows he must win at all costs. His entire plan of conquest has been built upon lies. No nation in the world will trust him.

The civilized world called the turn first when Hitler's mighty war machine failed to get across the 30 mile straight of Dover to defeat Great Britain.

The past winter, while furnishing much needed moisture to lay the foundation for the abundant rains that have followed, proved to be a source of loss to the people of the community.

The principal loss in shade trees is confined to the Chinese elms, which died by the hundreds in Ord and in every other town in this part of the state.

The real winter started Nov. 10 and continued through November, December, January, February, March and most of April.

The good looking fellow shown in the "Guess Who" column last week with the bandmaster's uniform and medals was Rollin W. Bond.

The loss during the winter of fruit trees was heavy, with cherry trees showing the greatest loss. A number of apple trees died in Ord, and the only reason that more peach, pear and apricot trees did not die is that there are so few of them.

Probably not very many Ord people have eaten in the famous Antoine's restaurant in old New Orleans. Hearing about it sounds intriguing.

When the Bud Auble family made a trip through the southland a few years ago they made it a point to stop at Antoine's. The Aubles are used to good cooking.

So the Aubles went into this famous place and ordered a seven course dinner. I asked if they had the oysters on the half-shell, broiled on a bed of rock salt, for which this place is so famed.

Another Auble I want to mention this week is Miss Dorothy, newly graduated from college musical studies, and returned to Ord to bring a fresh and lovely voice.

My Own Column

By H. D. Leggett

I have been away a month and came back Saturday so Eugene could get away from the daily grind for a while and he left this morning at 4 o'clock and before you read this he will be bathing in Cullen lake.

I wish you could all drive the route that I took Saturday and see the wonderful crops everywhere. Cullen lake is in Crow Wing county and Brainerd is the county seat.

All the way the small grain is a heavy crop and wheat and rye in the upper end of the route is about ready to start harvesting.

Last week Oscar Nay drove out from Bayport near St. Paul, Minn., and spent a couple of days fishing with me and I did more fishing in those two days than all the balance of the time I was there.

musical studies, and returned to Ord to bring a fresh and lovely voice.

This daughter of the Glen Auble's has a clear, charming voice that would be an asset to any organization or town. How nice that it is added to Ord, and we hope it will not soon be taken away.

The new swimming arrangement at the bridge swimming hole seems excellent and safe, with two capable teachers there. Mr. Eddy is in charge, and Mr. Tolly is assisting him, and of course they begin with the advantage of knowing nearly every young swimmer by name.

I expect you read in last week's Quiz how supervised swimming was to be conducted five days a week, Monday through Friday, from two till five o'clock, for six year olds and over.

Well, it is a nice spot for the water frolicking of small children. At the east bank, just south of the big bridge, the water is about a foot deep, possibly a foot and a half. Then it tapers off to an inch or so and a sand bar.

Just above the bridge is a deeper spot, better for the real swimmers. Although there is no organized swimming class conducted, the two men give what help is asked for. And some rudiments of swimming are being learned, for I saw children trying to out-float one another, and also to out-submerge one another.

I suppose no one had any idea the irrigation ditch at Russell park would attract such numbers of children to swim there. Several of the hot days the water was "black with bobbing heads," according to some who saw it.

Why didn't we have that irrigation ditch made three times its present width, from the lowest fall to the bridge, out there at the park? It would have made a grand pool with pure running water. And at small expense.

I would have a shallow section of it made and a deeper section for serious-minded swimmers. Made without dressing rooms, swimmers could have done their dressing at home, as they do now, and it would have been quite satisfactory at quite small outlay of money.

The Quiz engraving department runs across some very interesting pictures at times, and one of the most interesting came in a cut order from a Michigan paper last week. There were two men in army uniform in the picture, and the eagle eye of Ed Dlugosh detected the fact that one of them was Private Hank Greenburg. Ever hear of him?

Vern Stark has been putting in his spare time this spring constructing a pneumatic tired garden tractor, powered with a washing machine motor. Vern has a lot of fun with it, and says it works almost as fast and easy as the old Armstrong method. Next year he plans to equip it with a seat.

S. D. Long makes quite a boast for a man of his years. Recently he claimed that he had a hollyhock 8 1/2 feet high, and said he would buy an ice cream cone for anybody who could produce a taller one.

Sol Brox, is a game sport for a man nearly 80 years old, and is making the offer to run a block against any man of his age on the Fourth of July for a dollar side bet. Here's betting that he will win if he gets anybody interested in the proposition.

July 2, 1931.

Because of a truck accident which cost him an eye and disfigured him for life, Donald Savage of Burwell brought suit against the International Harvester company in the sum of $101,000.

Frank Persok passed away at the Veterans' hospital in Lincoln June 21, and was buried at Columbus. He was well known here and at Burwell, and contracted illness at Denning, N. M., during the World war.

A threatened drought was averted by the timely arrival of 1.32 inches of rain early July 2. June was the driest in history, with only .51 inches falling in Ord.

Edward Burrows and Miss Inez Harris of Miller, Nebr., were married June 28. Spiked in a ball game between Sumner and Elyria, James W. Gilbert was spending a few days in the hospital with infection in his foot. He recovered.

Ord was staging a big community picnic and old fashioned Fourth of July, much as they are this year. Bernard Smith, truck driver, had a narrow escape from drowning in a sand pit on the C. J. Mortensen place north of Ord.

About 500 people attended the Ford show put on by the Flagg-Tunnelliff Motor company. The Ord Community club was making big plans to stage one of those traveling comedies so popular after the war, this one known as "The Dream That Came True."

According to President George W. McNulty, a record crowd was expected to attend the Old Settlers picnic to be held at Scotia July 4th. Rawles and Martin quit shipping in artificial ice and the Patchens had taken over their business and were supplying the patrons with pond ice.

The Ord Milling company had been running with wheat shipped in, but were planning to start using local wheat once more, and the county had an unusually fine crop. The Rebekahs held their district meeting at Ord, with 140 persons present for the banquet.

In an open letter to the Ord Quiz, A. L. Haacker, head of the dairy department of the University of Nebraska, stated that the small creamery was not a success. Time has proved that he was wrong.

Bad lightning storms burned barns for Rathbun Bros., Charles Bais, J. M. May, and killed cattle for Chris Thomsen and O. R. Hansen.

W. S. Mattley and a group of friends interested with him in the Burwell power proposition were in Ord talking it up.

George Russell Mann and Miss Evelyn Parsons, both of Lincoln, were married in Omaha June 20. The Gem Theatre was advertising motion pictures of the Jim Jeffries and Jack Johnson boxing contest would be shown there July Fourth. The pictures were taken a full year before at Havana, Cuba.

Perry S. Jones and Miss Anna M. Adamek were married June 26. The Old Settlers' picnic was held at the Burgess grove north of North Loup, June 29.

The celebrated "Maud S" race horse belonging to Clay McGrew died. Mrs. Bess Stacy fell from a cherry tree, dislocating her arm at the elbow, thus proving there were cherries to pick.

Archie Coumbis made a trip to Rockland, Maine, to visit relatives there a few weeks.

Following the recent dry spell the chinch bugs were doing considerable damage in the grain fields and various methods were used in fighting them.

E. J. Fought, formerly of Ord, who was janitor in Dana college at Blair, came to Ord for a visit with his old friends here.

A large crowd assembled at the Ord Presbyterian church to hear Rev. C. A. Arnold preach an evening sermon, and were doomed to disappointment, as the janitor had failed to fill the lamps with kerosene. So long as we have our municipal light plant that cannot happen again.

The Valley County Times was boosting enthusiastically for a lake at Ord but failed to get cooperation from most of the public.

Ord had a curfew ordinance, and so did St. Paul, where a test case was to be argued in court to prove the validity of the law.

North Loup had shipped a total of 300 cases of strawberries for which the sum of $495 was received. The crop was not as large as usual, but the quality was better.

July 2, 1886. The first mail from Atkinson by way of the new star route arrived in Ord at 11 a. m., and was to leave at 1 p. m.

The people of Rosedale, in Garfield county, were organizing a Sunday school in a house there belonging to W. W. Haskell, and Rev. Thornton of Ord was to preach there in the afternoon.

Prof. Gillespie of the Ord schools was a very sick man with liver trouble. A. M. Mutter of Custer county stopped in Ord on the return trip from North Loup, where he had taken his hogs to sell them at the nearest railroad town. He later became a prominent Ordite.

The Ord river bridge was completed by the contractor, John L. Means, and the crew and equipment went to Loup City for a similar job. With the new court house completed by O. S. Haskell and accepted by the county board, the old court house was sold to A. H. Schaefer for $140, and the old jail to S. S. Haskell for $41.50.

Irving McKinley Thinks Russians Poor Mechanics. In last week's Schuyler Sun appeared a story about Irving McKinley, formerly county agent at Burwell for several years, and well known in that section of the valley.

Irving McKinley, Colfax county home demonstration agent, who spent over a year in Russia teaching tractor farming in the employ of the Russian government, does not think the Red army will have too much chance against the Nazis.

"From the work I had over there trying to teach tractor farming, I don't believe that the Russians have a natural aptitude for machinery. I have sat in a Red square in Moscow and watched the Russian army march by for ten solid hours, hundreds of thousands of men. The sight was impressive, but this war doesn't seem to be won by weight of man power. If the Reds can hold out until winter the bitter cold of Russia will weigh heavily in their favor."

They consisted mostly of bound volumes of the Review of Reviews and books by such eminent authors of history and biography as MacMasters, Park, Motley, Parson, Henry Wallace and others.

Mrs. Hanson, who had been visiting here with her son Ralph Hanson and family, left Saturday for Jefferson, Ia., to visit another son, Seton Hanson. She was accompanied by Seton's oldest daughter, Virginia, who had been visiting here. Next month Mrs. Paul Hanson will return to her home in California.

Notes From the VALLEY COUNTY FARM BUREAU

By C. C. Dale

Potato Meeting Held.

A very interesting field meeting was held at the Floyd Bossen potato variety test plot on the 25th of June and was attended by most of the potato growers of the vicinity and several 4-H potato club members from other sections of the county.

E. H. Hoppert, J. O. Dutt and Jess Livingston of the Agricultural Extension Service led the discussion and pointed out varietal differences and diseased conditions on plants in the plot on the adjoining field.

Eleven different strains or varieties are growing in the test plot and although no yield comparisons can be made yet, there were some very interesting differences in growth and development.

A list of varieties and their main characteristics follow:

1. Katahdin. A late white variety developed by U. S. D. A. of questionable adaptation here. It is a high yielder but subject to skinning and bruising by harvesting machinery because of its late maturity.

2. Chippewa. An earlier white variety also developed by U. S. D. A. It stores well and produces a high percentage of U. S. No. 1's. This variety may prove suitable for a late potato in this section.

3. Mesabi. Another U. S. D. A. development. An early white variety of good cooking quality.

4. B-1. A hybrid white selection from Minnesota. Shows a marked resistance to wilt.

5. B-5. A hybrid red variety, showing heat resistance, wilt resistance and good type. It is a fairly high yielder, later than Triumph, a better cooker, but not so good a color.

6. Irish Cobbler. The standard white variety, heat resistant. A good cooker, high yielding but with deep eyes, which are not liked too well by the customers.

7, 8 & 9. Triumph selections Nos. 12-4 and 22. The principal difference in these selections is their length of growing season. No. 4 is the earliest, No. 12 is somewhat later and No. 22 is a mid-season variety. All are red in color, fairly high yielders, not so resistant to heat. They do much better in the Burwell area than in the Gibbon area. Apparently due to the difference in temperature. In some seasons the cooking qualities are not too good.

10. Red Warba. A variety of outstanding deep red color. More heat resistant than the Triumph, a better cooker and produces higher yields. Earlier than either Triumph or Cobbler. May prove to be the best early red variety for this section. Subject to 2nd growth if not carefully irrigated. Cannot be stored and must be produced for the early market.

1. White Warba or Pink-eyed Warba similar to Red Warba except for color. Yields of the different varieties in the plot will be determined at harvest time and a better idea of the possibilities of these different varieties can then be obtained.

Threshing Machine Notices.

With the small grain harvest now beginning in Valley county, farmers are reminded of the state noxious weed law requiring the use of threshing machine and combine notices.

The law requires that every threshing machine and combine in operation in Nebraska must bear a notice containing provisions of the law and other regulations relative to cleaning the machines after operating on farms infested with bindweed, Russian knapweed, perennial peppergrass, leafy spurge, Canada thistle and puncture vine.

Copies of the notices are available at the County Agents office.

BURWELL

Miss Esther Maves, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ben C. Maves of Blake, was married to Wallace Erickson, second son of Mr. and Mrs. George Erickson of Burwell, at Bartlett, June 24. They were attended by Miss Loretta Kusok of Elyria and Frank Ivanski of Burwell. The bride was a sophomore student in the Burwell high school. Mr. Erickson assists Claude Kennedy in operating his farms and ranches. The newlyweds left Friday for a honeymoon trip to Lake Okoboji in Iowa. They were accompanied by the groom's brother, Clarence, who joined his wife in Minnesota where she had been visiting her relatives.

Vernon Parsons of Phoenix, Ariz., arrived in Burwell Wednes- day. He spent several days visit- ing his sister, Mrs. Nell Sloan, at the Lake View ranch.

Mrs. Lola Key is in Winner, S. D., visiting her son, Bud, and his family.

Stanley Hesselgesser, son of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Hesselgesser, was married to Miss Doris Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Smith, in the Methodist parsonage in Burwell at 5 o'clock Friday after- noon. The ceremony was per- formed by Rev. J. Bruce Wylie. The newlyweds both live in the Valley View community. The bride is well known in Loup county. She is the grand daughter of Mrs. William Moninger. The groom, who is a graduate of the Taylor high school is at the present time serving as clerk to the Loup county selective service board.

The call for women who are willing to volunteer their services to sew for the Red Cross is still being sounded by Mrs. D. C. McCarthy, who is in charge of sewing project for Garfield county. While a number of organizations and individuals have volunteered, their number, Mrs. McCarthy says is not large enough to accomplish the work assigned to the county.

The organizations which have called for sewing are the Lutheran ladies aid, the Domestic Science club, the Highway club, Country club No. 1, the Methodist Society for Christian service and the Con- gregational Ladies association. In- dividuals who have taken out sewing are Mrs. D. W. Sartain, who has already completed three pairs of pajamas and has taken out more articles to finish, Mrs. E. A. Jen- sen, Mrs. George Dewey, Mrs. Carroll Hoppes, Mrs. O. A. Nor- land and Mrs. Downey. Others willing to sew are Mrs. D. C. McCarthy, Mrs. McCarthy at once.

John Jones of Lyman arrived in Burwell Friday where he spent several days as a guest in the Arthur Borden home.

LETTERS FROM QUIZ READERS

Wesley Eberhart writes: Dear Friends and Neighbors: I came to the west coast to seek em- ployment in the aircraft industry about a year ago and am proud to say that I was lucky enough to get in almost immediately in the cost accounting department of North American Aviation, Inc. It occurred to me that you might be inter- ested in hearing something of the strike that took place at this plant the first week in June.

The strike was called on Thurs- day and employees that evening were instructed by CIO not to re- port for work until their demands were met. However, on Friday a. m., I reported for work as usual with about one thousand other workers but the armed picket line was too strong to try to go through. An official announced for the men to go home, and that the plant would be temporarily closed. We all went home except the CIO pickets, and most of us went deep sea fishing for the day.

On Monday nearly everyone re- ported for work but the company guards were unable to break thru the picket lines so they called for one thousand Los Angeles police. The strikers then threw bottles and they in return threw tear gas bombs. Strikers picked up the flaming bombs and threw them back at the police and some fell in the factory door. There was quite a fight for a while.

When the smoke cleared the strikers were actually mad, the police could not do anything with the mob so called the army, which was waiting half a mile from the factory. They marched in ten thousand strong, with fixed bayonets, never said a word, and believe me, the CIO dispersed immediately. Some were stabbed where it was far from good and others were hauled in patrol wagons to Fort McArthur to cool off.

The gates were now open and we were advised to come back to work under army orders and protection. About one thousand of us went in at this time and yours truly was the first through the gate. If you should see the Fox Movie news reel at the local theater, you will see my picture. That night the workers were given soldier escorts to their homes, and all streets were guarded where workers and their families lived.

The strike has been a good thing for men, as I get 75 hours per week since the plant reopened, one can work as much as he wishes. A lot for me, as I get 75 hours per week the plant was to be blown up by sabotage. I don't think there is any danger. We are working for the government now and every- where you see a soldier. Machine guns are all over the place. It was quite an experience, one that I will never care to go through again.

Most of the workers have return- ed to work and production of the bers and fighters is back to

Burglar Convicted Here 9 Years Ago Asks Release Now

Albert Smith, Who Burglarized Burlington Depot, Claims Didn't Understand Charge.

Albert Smith, who in the fall of 1932 pleaded guilty to burglary in district court here and was sentenced to serve 20 years in state prison, is now seeking his release on the grounds that he was "framed" into admitting his guilt, and as a result five Ord people made a trip to Lincoln Friday to testify in the Lancaster district court.

The five are Sheriff George S. Round, Deputy Sheriff Archie Kepp, Mrs. J. D. McCall, who in 1932 was acting court reporter, George Munn, who in 1932 was Valley county attorney, and Miss Florence Zulkoski, deputy clerk of the district court.

The convict, Albert Smith, was arrested in a tourist camp at Arapahoe in September, 1932, by a posse of officers and special railway detectives and when questioned admitted a series of burglaries in Nebraska, including eight in Ord. The robberies here were performed on the night of September 15, 1932. In four of these eight burglaries safes were opened, including the safe at C. B. & Q. depot which was blown open with explosives.

Roy Martin, a companion of Smith in the crimes, was arrested at Beaver City, and admitted his guilt, also furnishing the tip that resulted in Smith's arrest a day later. Martin was given a 20 to 25 year term in state prison when he pleaded guilty before District Judge Bruno Hostettler at Kearney.

Brought here for prosecution because loot taken from the Ord depot was among that found in his possession, Smith pleaded guilty in district court before Judge E. P. Clements and was sentenced to serve 20 years in prison at Lancaster.

Twice since he has turned for parole but has been rejected down and last winter he filed a habeas corpus action asking release on the grounds that he was told by Valley county officers that he would be allowed to plead guilty to common burglary and wouldn't get over a 3 year term. When he was sentenced to serve 20 years, he claimed, he jumped to his feet and protested, asked to be permitted to withdraw his guilty plea and asked that counsel be assigned to defend him. It was to prove these statements false that the Ord witnesses were called at the hearing Friday.

The Lancaster district court ruled against him last winter on this action but he appealed the case to the Nebraska supreme court, which also ruled against him. Then he appealed to United States supreme court, which ruled that if the allegations made by Smith were true he was entitled to some relief, and ordered the case back to Lancaster district court for a hearing to determine the truth of his statements. It was this hearing which was held in Lincoln last Friday.

Testimony given by the Ord people, and also by M. M. Runyan, who in 1932 was Custer county attorney and received Smith's confession of the robberies at Ord and elsewhere throughout Nebraska, refuted all of Smith's statements.

When he was arrested at Arapahoe, it was brought out at Lincoln, Smith had in his possession, 72 sticks of dynamite, 3 revolvers, 3 rifles, a 3 ounce bottle of nitroglycerine, a vast quantity of stolen merchandise including silk, wearing apparel and cigars, as well as stolen bonds, savings certificates and other personal property.

All the statements made in his habeas corpus action were untrue, the witnesses showed, and a signed copy of Smith's confession was produced by Runyan, as well as a complete copy of the court transcript placed in evidence by Munn.

Judge Broady reserved a verdict until he had time to study Smith's long, rambling printed statement, but it was indicated that the convict's action to secure his release will not be granted and that he will be required to serve the balance of his 20 year term.

Accidents Kill More in U. S. Than Any Sickness

More young people are killed by accidents than by any disease. The death rate from falls remains consistent day after day and year after year. Fewer persons were killed in railroad crossing accidents last year than in any year since 1924.

These are among the multitude of facts in the 1940 edition of "Accident Facts," the National Safety Council's statistical year book which has just been published.

The following conclusions were culled from its 112 pages:

For males alone, accidents take more lives between the ages of 3 and 38 than any disease. Only four diseases—heart, cancer, nephritis, and general hemorrhage—kill more persons than accidents.

As most every one knows, Saturday and Sunday are the two most hazardous days for motoring. Three-eighths of the fatal accidents in cities occur on those days while in rural areas 44 per cent of the week's death toll occurs on week-ends.

Two out of every five Americans killed by motor vehicles were pedestrians, a total of 12,300 lives. Add the 25,800 killed last year in falls to get the full price paid by the nation for not watching its step.

Of the motor vehicle deaths which occur in rural areas, one out of eight happens when the automobile leaves the roadway on a curve. Usually the driver loses control because he has been drinking, is sleepy, fatigued, distracted by the scenery, or has tried to pass another car.

Grade crossing accidents involving motor vehicles, fatal and non-fatal, numbered 3,079 in 1939. Passenger cars accounted for 69 per cent of the accidents.

Accidental death overtook 93,000 persons in 1939. In addition accidental injuries, ranging from a day's disability to complete crippling, struck 8,800,000 men, women and children.

Valley County Men Registered Here Tuesday by Board

Valley county draft board to select a new clerk for the board, since Mr. Wiegardt as a county official was barred by the rules from acting as clerk. Mr. Wiegardt has made one of the most efficient clerks in the state, and his work was most satisfactory to the board.

Regulations required that the new clerk be a good typist, write a good hand, be able to take a civil service examination and if possible be on WPA. It was stressed that neither army service, politics or religion had any place in the selection of the appointee. The major also stated that, if the board could not find a suitable person at once, one would be sent here.

The president of the board, W. J. Ramsey of Arcadia, and W. T. McLain of Ord got together, the other member, L. D. ## Noted Psychologist Says 'Jitterbugging' Is Normal

At last someone has come to the defense of the "jitterbug." Dr. Max Schoen, psychology professor at Carnegie Institute of Technology, tells people that it is a perfectly normal and harmless outlet for emotions.

It is the doctor's belief that people have been jitterbugging in some form or another since they were leopard skins—and that is a long time back. "We still have the primitive urge," he says, "and by jitterbugging we become oblivious to our surroundings, thus releasing emotions that would have to be vented in some other way."

Dr. Schoen also comes to the defense of "swing" music, declaring that swing music is essential to the jitterbug trend, and that it is a natural stimulant, because sound is the normal outlet for feeling, even among animals.

The future of the country is not at stake or in jeopardy because of jitterbuggers or swing music, according to Dr. Schoen, who feels that they are indulging in the most appropriate and least harmful form of common emotional release.

Where There's a Will—

Where there's a will there's a way, even though the way of dealing with wills may vary in different states of the Union. There is, for example, the way they handle wills in Pennsylvania. For your information, in case you decide to die in Pennsylvania, the last wills and testaments of persons who select that commonwealth as the site of their demise are handled by an official known as the registrar of wills. This system obtains in certain other states, as well.

On the other hand, if you use California as a runway for your take-off into eternity, the county clerk of your particular county will look after such documentary indications as you may leave behind concerning the disposal of your estate.

Motorist Can Stop 'Sneaker'

The "Sneaker" is doomed. Introduction of a tire by a large tire company spells "doom" for the "sneaker," a term used by the professional race driver, who so designates a tire that goes flat quickly without blowing out.

Although not as spectacular as the blowout, the "sneaker" is just as dangerous, especially when it occurs on a rear wheel, according to experts. It gives no warning until the rear end of the car suddenly starts to swim from side to side.

Expert drivers advise that when that happens, there is just one right thing to do—disengage the clutch and hold the steering wheel steadily. The car will automatically "find its feet" and come to a safe stop.

New Non-Stop Highway

Another dream highway is in the offing. With the Harrisburg-Pittsburgh express highway ready for traffic, the Pacific Northwest is contemplating a super highway for that part of the country. This super-modern arterial along the Willamette river, out of Portland, Ore., will include a braided intersection of roads passing over and under each other, a six-lane boulevard with grade crossings and traffic stops eliminated, a parallel service road and other improvements. Tourist traffic confusion and delay on U. S. Highway 99W and 99E entering Portland, will be ironed out with this $4,000,000 highway.

Now! ALL FRESH FRUITS & VEGETABLES SOLD BY WEIGHT

COMPARISONS BY WEIGHT ARE THE MOST ACCURATE.

THEY MAY LOOK ALIKE... and ordinarily, they would sell for the same price. But THERE IS OFTEN AS MUCH AS 40 PERCENT DIFFERENCE IN THEIR WEIGHTS!

WILL BE CLOSED FRIDAY, JULY 4.

Merely because of custom have many fresh fruits and vegetables been priced by the "piece," "dozen" or "bunch." Variations of size, weight and quality make value comparisons only approximate by this method of measurement. Only when the measure is by "weight," and not by "count," can accurate values be ascertained by homemakers, and enable them to get the most for their money. Therefore, SAFEWAY is now pricing by the "pound" all the following:—Cantaloupes, Beets, Carrots, Green Onions, Celery, Head Lettuce, Radishes, and Turnips as well as Citrus Fruits and other fresh fruits and vegetables. Tops have already been removed from Carrots, Turnips and Beets, and of course are not weighed.

Written by Rex Wagner

Mrs. Rose Webster of Grand Island arrived in Burwell Monday where she is a guest in the home of her daughter, Mrs. B. W. Wagner.

The Garfield county commissioners voted to adopt the stamp for the distribution of surcommodities at their meeting Tuesday. According to this stamp no more commodities will be distributed to the needy from the assistance director's office in the high school building. Persons receiving old age assistance pensions, certain FSA families, those played on WPA projects and others having low or no income will be able to buy a dollar and half worth of food for a dollar under this plan. They will be allowed to purchase stamps with the money which they spend for food. For every dollar's worth of orange stamps which they buy they will be given fifty cents worth of blue stamps. The stamps are just the same as cash at the grocery stores. The orange stamps may be used to buy any kind of food for those foods of which there is a surplus. The purpose of the plan according to Miss Paulin, the assistance director, is to keep the surplus foods from depressing the market and at the same time get them to the persons needing them. The stamps will be redeemed by the federal government at their full face value.

Additional organizations who have volunteered their services to the Red Cross and who have obtained material with which to make garments for war refugees are the American Legion Auxiliary, the New Century club, the Catholic Ladies and the Mothers' Home Recreation club. ## M. D. VS. OSTEOPATHS

Reprinted from Hebron Register, June 2 1941

On May 2, 1941, on a test case the Supreme Court of the State of Nebraska rendered a decision that would prevent the Osteopathic Physicians and Surgeons from practicing surgery for the simple reason the word surgeon was dropped from the title of the bill passed by the legislature April 25, 1927, governing the practice of osteopathic physicians and surgeons.

As far back as 1939 the law gave the osteopath an independent board of examiners, and applicants for license to practice were examined in surgery, and the state license read Osteopathic Physicians and Surgeons until 1927. The law passed April 25, 1927 with the title Osteopathic Physicians, (omitting the word Surgeon). In 1929 a law passed defined an accredited School of Osteopathy and definitely stated the subjects and minimum number of hours to be taught. 450 hours was made compulsory for surgery. However 540 hours is the least number of hours of surgery taught in any Osteopathic College, while the Nebraska University of Medicine requires only 450 hours. The Osteopath must have 60 hours more than the law requires; and 81 hours more than the University of Nebraska requires, to graduate in surgery. These extra hours would give them a better understanding of surgery, then the number required by law.

It would seem that the Supreme Court went a long way out of their way when this decision was written that would stop these doctors from practicing surgery when many of them have been successful in their operations for 25 years.

*Common sense teaches us the title of a bill before it is passed by the legislature is not the law. It is what is written in the bill that determines its meaning. If this law did not mean that the osteopathic physicians could practice surgery after the law complied with, why under the sun were these qualifications written into the law? We have heard a lot about dictators of late years, but this decision is dictatorship with a vengeance.

First, it deprives these physicians of the right of rendering the service to their patients, that the law says they are qualified to do.

Second, it deprives the people of their right to select the surgeon of their choice when in need of an operation.

Third, it would force many excellent surgeons to give up the practice of surgery when they are the choice of a majority of the people in the community they serve. It is safe bet this court decision would never have been rendered had it not been for the feud that has existed between the osteopaths and the M. D.'s for the past forty years or more. This has been more or less jealousy. The early osteopathic factors gave only osteopathic treatments. As years went on they took up medicine and surgery and many of them have become very efficient. Evidence of this can be found in the community they serve. This is not saying the M. D.'s have not made great strides in the art of medicine and surgery—it is common knowledge they have. But the continuous fight they have waged against the osteopathic profession in the courts and the legislature have forced the osteopathic physicians to be forever on guard and has resulted in a more rapid advance than has been made by a large majority of medical doctors. This is evident for the fact that forty years ago the osteopaths were trained in osteopathic treatments only, while today they are trained in the art of osteopathic treatments, medicine and surgery and the hours of surgery taught in the osteopathic college is twenty percent more than is required by the laws of Nebraska. With all this evidence at hand it would lead those interested to believe the highest court in the state was under high pressure when its decision was made, as the legislature was when L. B. No. 513 came up for passage the last day of the session. The high pressure was evident—the galleries were full of doctors who came from all parts of the state. Their influence was such that ten senators refused to cast their vote either for or against the bill. Of these unvoting members, three found themselves too sick to be in the senate chamber until after the vote had been taken. One member found it necessary to be out of the state. One was so far away it took him three hours to get to the senate after he was called by the sergeant at arms. He refused to vote after he arrived. Five senators were present through the three hour deadlock and refused to cast their vote either for or against the bill. Who were these senators representing? They are paid $800 per year to represent the people of their district, and they are supposed to use their best judgment when voting for or against any bill that comes before the senate. They all had the evidence on their desks, so it would not be hard for them to form an opinion of their own. Or did these non-voting senators refrain from voting expecting to be excused by their people by telling them who opposed the bill they did not vote for it, and those in favor, they did not vote against it. The bill was not killed by a majority of the votes cast against it. It was killed because ten senators were afraid to go on record for some reason or other. The final vote after a three-hour deadlock was 19 for its passage; and 14 against its passage; and 10 silent—not voting.

If these districts where these ten senators came from expect to be represented in the senate they should see to it that the men they vote for are not afraid to go on record.

Many important bills are killed by the non-voting senators.

Dying Marine Life Formed Sore Beds for Oil in Muds, Clays, Silicates; Mass Later Migrated to Adjacent Porous Sands

By RAY E. COLTON, D. Sc., Oil and Gas Science Writer.

If, as is now definitely proven, oil evolves in such rocks as limestone and shale which once inhabited vast inland seas, salt lakes, etc., once covering Nebraska and other states of the middle west, then it is too assumed that the dying marine life created what are termed geologically as oil "source beds," in the form of muds, clays, silicates and carbonates. The agency which solidified this organic mass of marine life, was in all probability, subterranean heat. The mass mellowed for countless centuries during which time, it was being constantly augmented by additional remains. Finally came the migrations of the oil mass to what are termed as adjacent porous strata. In such rocks as limestone, sandstone and shales which possessed a physical attraction of porosity necessary to attract the migrating oil, and hold it entombed in their strata.

Field engineering in the search for oil proves that one or more forces such as induration and dehydration of the mass, earth movement during land mass adjustments or hydrostatic pressure of accumulated natural gases, could have been responsible for the movement of the oil from the source beds to the adjacent porous strata.

The receiving or "reservoir rock" to which the oil was attracted, had to be permeable as well as porous and it had to be encased in what is termed as "impermeable" strata. This was necessary, in order that the hydrocarbons originating from the dying marine life, might have freedom of movement within the reservoir, yet have no escape from it, once entombed. Preliminary studies in the area around North Loup, Ord, Scotia and other towns of this part of central Nebraska, reveals that underlying strata is very favorable for the accumulation of oil and gas in commercial amounts.

Experience in the major oil fields of the world has proven, that certain rocks such as igneous, metamorphic and those which have been derived from granitic sources, cannot be any possible source of oil, owing to their non-porosity. Had these types of rocks, which are in the minority here in the Ord area, one time contained any crude oil obtained by "seepage," the conditions which have altered them to their present state, would have long since dissipated any petroliferous material which these types of rocks might one time have contained. These rocks, owing to their minority in the sub surface structures of Valley county, offer no obstacle worthy of the name, to present or future drilling operations.

It is interesting to note, that several reports have been received by the petroleum industry during the past ten years, regarding "seeps and shows" of oil on creeks and on the North and Middle Loup rivers, and from water wells drilled. Other reports told of cattle and other livestock refusing to drink the water. Oil seeps and shows and emanations of natural gas appearing in the form of bubbles in an area, such as Valley county, are not to be considered by the layman as any guarantee that oil in commercial amounts is in the vicinity.

Overtured anticlinal fold, showing how one drilling well may intersect the same oil sands three times during drilling operations.

These seeps and shows while they indicate the presence of source beds of oil, if correctly interpreted by the geologist examining the area, may further indicate that the possibilities of commercial production of oil in the area under proper drilling operations are good.

In concluding this article, the writer wishes to impress upon the reader that oil, after forming in prehistoric geologic times, found its way very slowly, if at all, thru dense or compact rocks, mentioned elsewhere in this article. Not only is rock porosity a prerequisite to the migration of petroleum, without which there can be no concentration of oil, but concentrations or accumulations of oil can hardly exist in any but limestone, sandstone and shale rocks laid down in the form of sediments in such geologic eras as the Paleozoic, Mesozoic and Cenozoic times, millions of years before the advent of Man.

The capillarity of water is another thing to be considered in an area being drilled, and this can be judged by previous study of local hydraulic conditions indicated by the flow of water from wells. Water has a much stronger tendency than oil to enter and to fill tiny openings in the strata. If such openings are filled with oil, water can exert sufficient capillary force to drive the oil therefrom, and the oil will not re-enter the openings while they are full of water.

Thus two fundamentals have to be studied in an area to be drilled, and these are the textures of the rocks beneath the surface, and the hydraulic conditions, i. e. water pressure which either assists in the accumulation of oil, or prevents it by entering the pores of the strata and causing the oil to seek other reservoirs during its migration process from the source beds.

Know These Persons?

The man whose photo appeared in the Quiz under this head last week was well known, and we had plenty of answers and in a hurry. First honors went to Mrs. Margaret Wentworth, who called up at 7 p. m. Wednesday and said it was Rollin W. Bond.

At 8:30 the same evening Dr. George R. Gard reported the same thing. At 8:00 a. m. Thursday Charles Barber called from North Loup and named him, as they were formerly fellow band men. A half hour later Frank W. Adams, an other old time musician, told us who it was.

This week we have a photo of a couple of old timers who freighted from North Loup to Calamus in the good old days, and one of them looks very much as he did until his death several years ago. He was known here, and even better known at Burwell and North Loup.

4th of July NOTICE

As a matter of cooperating with the Chamber of Commerce in the celebration they are giving July 4th for people of central Nebraska, I hereby request that all Ord business places except restaurants and soft drink parlors, close all day the 4th of July.

This request applies especially to those business firms who have not signed the Chamber of Commerce closing cards, as it is assumed that signatory firms will close that day without this request.

This notice is in line with a request issued by the Chief of Civilian Defense in which he asks that all the people of this nation observe this holiday. Too many times we are neglectful of our privileges and do not appreciate them until we lose them, and it is my personal opinion that every person should make an effort to attend some celebration or other patriotic assembly on July 4 unless he has just cause for staying away.

Rotarians Hear Voice of "Roosevelt" As Teague Succeeds E. Kokes As President

Rotarians and their wives who gathered at Thorne's cafe Monday evening for a dinner and installation of new officers enjoyed an unexpected treat in the form of a talk by President Roosevelt.

As the dinner came to a close and the retiring president, Edward L. Kokes, arose to open the program, Clarence M. Davis interrupted to announce that as program chairman he had just received a telegram from Washington, which he read. The telegram stated that President Franklin D. Roosevelt would address the Washington Rotary club at 7:30 and that his talk would be broadcast at that hour.

It was exactly 7:30 and President Kokes sat down while Davis tuned the radio. In a moment the voice of an announcer was heard saying that he was in the White House, that the president had left his study and was proceeding toward the east room where he would talk by remote control to Washington Rotarians, and concluded by saying: "The next voice you hear will be that of the president."

In a few seconds the characteristic voice of the president was heard, starting his address with the words "My Friends!" The voice proceeded, speaking on national defense and the need for everybody to be patriotic and finally saying that he deemed it his duty to denounce by name the Quislings in our midst. Quisling No. 1, said the voice, is "Edward L. Kokes, president of the Rotary club of Ord, Nebr., and therefore it is necessary that he turn the gavel over to Dick Teague." The talk continued in similar vein for several minutes, much to the delight of the audience.

Only Dr. George R. Gard, secretary, and Mr. Davis were in on the joke, which was planned two months in advance. The "broadcast" was presented by means of a record made for Gard and Davis by John Townley, a Hollywood actor who specializes in imitations of the president.

Practically every person present was completely fooled until the imitation Roosevelt announced that he would name the Quislings, at which moment Rotarians and their wives simultaneously caught on to the fact that a joke on President Kokes was being perpetrated.

R. E. TEAGUE.

New president of the Ord club who took the gavel at conclusion of the Monday night meeting is Mr. Teague, who was elected in March. Other new officers include Ralph E. Misko, vice-president, and William Sack, treasurer. Dr. Carl continues as secretary. Mr. Kokes becomes sergeant-at-arms and Clarence Davis is retained as official greeter. New directors are H. C. James and F. V. Cahill.

Principal talk at the meeting Monday night was made by Herb Johnson, a Rotarian and hotel operator at Arnold. He made a witty, inspiring talk that was greatly enjoyed.

At her pleasant home in the country near North Loup, Mrs. James McCall was hostess to 12 friends at a breakfast of nice arrangements on Thursday morning at nine o'clock. Following breakfast contract bridge was played, and at this game Mrs. F. A. Barta won the prize.

Ruth Tea Elaborate.

Presbyterian women of Ruth Circle entertained some 80 guests very delightfully Wednesday afternoon in the church basement, with Mrs. Olof Olsson general chairwoman for the affair. First on the program Miss Patricia Frazier played "Berceuse Slav" by Meruda attractively on her violin. In her usual competent style Miss Audrey Koll played a piano number, "Rustle of Spring," then three young ladies sang "America For Me," accompanied by Miss Marion Wardrop. The young vocalists were Misses Reba Lincoln, Phyllis Munn and Roberta Stoddard.

Miss Norma Radloff delivered a timely and effective reading called "The Enemy," and in conclusion was heard the clear, lovely voice of Miss Dorothy Auble. She sang "Twenty-eighteen," an English folk song interpreted by Deems Taylor and then "The Wood Pigeon" by Lehman, with Miss Mary Miller at the piano.

Cleverly, lots were drawn to learn the celebration was for the birthday of Mrs. Kate B. Fulton, of Pittsburg, Pa., who is in Ord visiting her brother, James Hastings and family. Mrs. Fulton was given a lovely birthday cake. Then tea was served to all present having winter-time birthdays at the long south table, decorated with Christmas colors, with Mrs. Fred Kuch and Miss Gertrude Hawkins noiring. To all with summertime birthdays tea was served at the north table, where Mrs. Edward Kokes and Mrs. C. C. Dale presided. Many flowers were used to decorate this last-named table, and throughout the room.

WOOD BROS., THRESHER—55 years in the field. Cost less, do more and better threshing, make you a bigger profit. Liberal terms, 3 seasons to pay.

THRESHES WHEAT, FLAX, ALFALFA.

"I purchased a 26x46 Wood Brothers thresher in the fall of 1933 and since then have threshed over 80,000 bushels of grain and about 15 days threshing fodder corn without a cent for repairs.

"I use a 10-20 tractor and keep bundle teams plenty busy as we have run through 83 loads of bundles in a 10-hour day.

"The cleaning ability of the Wood Brothers thresher is unexcelled. For example, this fall I threshed a carload of winter wheat which was sold in Minneapolis without a pound of dockage on the whole load. I have also done very satisfactory work threshing flax and alfalfa.

"I sincerely approve, and will continue to boost 'The World's Lightest Running Thresher'."—GLENN W. JOHNSON, Walnut Grove, Minnesota.

WOOD BROS., COMBINE—13 years experience. Costs less, runs lighter, liberal terms.

HARVESTED WEEDY GRAIN—EXCELLENT SERVICE

"In July of 1938 we bought an Individual 5-foot Wood Brothers Combine and have harvested about 400 acres of grain, some of which was very weedy.

"In fact, some of our competitors failed to harvest, we harvested and cleaned successfully. We wish to thank the company for the excellent service you have given.

"We purchased this combine of C. Marks, West Point, Indiana."—JOHNSON BROTHERS, Jamestown, Ind.

safe at first on a bad throw from short, taking second when the ball got away, Johnson taking third; Johnson came in on a passed ball, Fryzek taking third and coming home when the ball got away from the third baseman; L. Faulk struck out, leaving the score two to nothing.

Second Inning, St. Edward; Novosad was wild, walking first Regg and then D. Baker on four pitched balls. With men on first and second, Johnson went out after K. Baker's pop up toward first, then threw to first to double D. Baker, Regg holding second. K. Fischer hit through second scoring Regg; M. Nelson hit to left, Fischer taking second; Yokely was out, pitcher to first.

Third Inning, St. Edward; C. Fischer went to second on a bad throw to first; Rood singled to center, Fischer taking third, and Rood took second on the first pitch to Spichel; with men on second and third, Novosad forced Spichel to hit an easy grounder to pitcher, who threw him out at first, Novosad then struck out Regg and D. Baker, ending the rally. It was a splendid exhibition of control by Novosad.

Fourth Inning, St. Edward; W. Novosad still had the perfect control of the third inning and made it four in a row by striking out K. Baker and K. Fischer; with two strikes on him, M. Nelson popped a short fly over toward right field which Piskorski gathered in after a sensational run.

Ordn: L. Novosad drew a base on balls; D. Faulk hit to second doubling Novosad; Misko hit to second, doubling Faulk; Piskorski struck out.

Fifth Inning, St. Edward; Yokely struck out; C. Fischer hit a double to center field; Rood was out, short to first; Spichel was out on a fly to right field.

Ordn: Johnson was out to left field; Fryzek made first on a hit to center field; Faulk sacrificed Fryzek to second; W. Novosad struck out.

Sixth Inning, St. Edward; Regg walked, stole second and then went to third when they tried to catch him; D. Baker was out, second to first; K. Baker hit to short left field, scoring Regg; L. Faulk went in to pitch for Ord; K. Fischer hit to center field, Baker taking third, and Fischer stealing second; M. Nelson was out to left field, and Yokely struck out.

Ordn: Cochrane was out, short to first; L. Novosad was out, second to first; L. Faulk drew a base on balls; Misko struck out. Score Ord five, St. Edward three.

Seventh Inning, St. Edward; C. Fischer hit to left field but the fielder dropped the ball and he was safe at first; Rood hit safely to left field; Spichel was out on a fly to second; Novosad lost Regg's high pop up in the sun, and the bases were loaded; D. Baker hit about twenty feet inside first base, and Piskorski started for the ball and Regg started to second. The ball hit one of them, and all runners advanced, Fischer coming home. A fourteen minute argument ensued, Ord claiming that Regg was out, and the umpire and St. Edward declaring he was safe, the latter winning, of course, Fryzek now went in for Ord. K. Baker struck out; K. Fischer was out on a fly to left field, and another potential rally by St. Edward had failed.

Ordn: Piskorski walked and stole second, Johnson hit to left, Piskorski going to third, and then Johnson stole second; Fryzek drove a single through third, and Piskorski and Johnson scored; shortly after, Fryzek was out trying to steal third; Faulk was out, short to first; W. Novosad struck out. Score Ord seven, St. Edward three.

Eighth Inning, St. Edward; M. Nelson was safe on an error by shortstop; Yokely hit to third, doubling Nelson at second; C. Fischer hit over second, placing runners on second and third; Rood was out on a fly to center field; Spichel was safe on an error by the shortstop, and Yokely came home on the play; Regg was out, third to first.

Ordn: Darrell Johnson went in for Cochrane, and was out on a fly to left field; Ray Vogelantz went in for L. Novosad, and flew out to second; Severson went in for L. Faulk and struck out. Score seven to four.

Ninth Inning, St. Edward; D. Baker was safe and took second on an error by second baseman, who let the ball get away from him; K. Baker was out to first; K. Fischer was out to right field; M. Nelson hit to center field; Yokely hit a very high pop up between home and the pitcher's box, and W. Johnson dropped it after making a hard try. It was an error on the catcher, and the game would have ended seven to five if he had caught it. D. Baker came home on the play; C. Fischer gave the ball a long, long ride nearly all the way to the football grandstand and went all the way around, scoring M. Nelson ahead of him; Rood struck out.

Ordn: Misko worked the count up to two and two and then drove a terrific grounder just inside the third base line, circling the bases before the ball was relayed in, and tying the score at eight all; again the spectators went wild, and began to yell for another score to win the game; Piskorski struck out; W. Johnson was out at first; Fryzek took a swift one on his pitching arm, and walked to first; Faulk hit to short, and W. Novosad struck out.

Tenth Inning, St. Edward; Novosad went in to the box again for Ord, as Fryzek's arm was badly bruised; Misko took Spichel's high foul over near the fence; Regg walked; then Bill struck out the Baker brothers to end the inning.

Ordn: D. Johnson singled to right; Vogelantz walked; Severson struck out again; Misko was safe on a fielder's choice; Piskorski fouled out to the catcher, who took it after a hard run.

Eleventh Inning, St. Edward; K. Fischer drew a base on balls; Nelson struck out; Yokely fouled out to the catcher, who took it off the netting; C. Fischer struck out.

Ordn: W. Johnson drove the ball through shortstop and took second; the St. Ed pitcher committed what was evidently a balk, and then delivered the ball to the plate. Johnson, thinking he was entitled to the base, trotted down to third, and was tagged out by the third baseman. After an argument which lasted 21 minutes, the umpire decided that it was a balk, but sent Johnson back to second; Fryzek walked; Faulk sacrificed Johnson to third and Fryzek to second. The St. Edward pitcher then purposely passed W. Novosad to get at D. Johnson, who hit over shortstop to score his brother and end the game.

The total playing time was four hours, but everyone stayed until it was all over. Umpires were Ralph Smith of St. Edward and Jim Gilbert of Ord, ably assisted by about everybody on the grounds. Carl Wells is manager of the St. Edward team, and Amos Jasa is assistant manager. The game leaves the Ord Legion Juniors on top with three wins and no defeats to date.

Preserve Totem Poles Preservation of the famed collection of totem poles at the Indian village of Klukwan from deterioration by the elements is proposed by Alaska's new governor, Dr. Ernest Gruening. He visited the noted tourist attraction recently and said he believed construction of a fireproof, concrete structure would be a good investment and would not be opposed by the villagers.

ORD LIVESTOCK MARKET

Washington State Has 6,000 Miles State Roads

Thank Washington's pioneers for the finest highway system in the nation, ribboning the high, white ranges, cool green coast, and golden plains.

The settlers of the early fifties were the most road-minded individuals that ever pioneered a wilderness, and their sons and grandsons—and granddaughters, too—have carried on a policy and tradition that came with Washington's first territorial governor, Isaac I. Stevens, and the bearded men of the first legislature.

Six thousand miles of cement and surfaced highways cross and criss-cross the state now, but the major arteries follow routes laid down at the very beginning of territorial government.

It's called the world's most scenic system, but the primary objective then, as now, was to get from one part of the state to another as quickly and easily as possible, and the reason it is scenic is because anywhere one goes in Washington there is scenery of unmatched grandeur and variety.

Back in the early fifties the federal government did most of the road building, and the first Washington legislators probably set an all-time record for asking congress for roads.

What Washington's lone delegate in congress must have thought when all these resolutions, asking for more than 1,000 miles of roads, poured in on him is not recorded, but he set to work and, in the main, he got them.

Compressed Air Powerful
A gust of air, racing six times faster than a tropical hurricane, blew out an electric arc powerful enough to light for a moment all the lamps in a city the size of Chicago, in a demonstration in Pittsburgh.

Executives and engineers of electric power, industrial and transportation companies from all parts of the country witnessed the demonstration at an East Pittsburgh plant.

The compressed air, under 150 pounds pressure and moving at a speed of 600 miles an hour, extinguished an arc of 1 1/2 million kilovolt-amperes in approximately 1-120th of a second, leaving only a puff of smoke in the place of the once powerful arc.

The test, according to L. R. Ludwig, manager of the company's air circuit breaker engineering department, represented the greatest amount of power ever interrupted by a 15,000-volt commercial breaker operating in air.

Crosses for Churches
The use of a cross to mark church buildings, though common in England, did not become general in the United States until after 1840. As a rule the only external decoration of a church, unless lightning rods could be considered decorative, was the gilded ball, weather vane, or other ornament atop the steeple.

Most of the older churches by 1840 had bells, but in a new parish it might be some time before one could be procured, and the joy and pride of the parishioners when it had last been placed in the steeple and could ring out its summons was only a little less than that which was felt at the completion of the church itself.

Slot-Machine Substitute
Deprived of his slot-machines, a storekeeper in Chattanooga, Tenn., put an ordinary cigar box with a hole in the top, on his counter, with a sign reading: "Police got my slot-machine, please drop the money you would have lost in here."

Talent Lined Up for Burwell Rodeo

(Special to the Quiz)
Burwell—The services of an unusually large number of talented entertainers have been hired by the board of directors of the Garfield County Frontier Fair association to perform at Nebraska's Big Rodeo August 6, 7 and 8. New to the audiences at Burwell will be Frank and Bernice Dean, star rodeo performers coming from San Jose. They engage in trick and fancy roping, whip popping, rifle shooting and other entertaining acts. They present a knife throwing act in which Mrs. Dean completely covered with paper stands in front of a board wall through which sixteen knives are thrown. Sometimes the knives land so close to Mrs. Dean that their sharp points pierce her clothing.

Also new this year will be Pat Henry, one of the best riding and roping exhibitionists available who jumps over his beautiful palomino horse while at the same time he swings a large loop with his lariat. Pat Henry comes from Chickasha, Okla.

Frank Chitwood, renown rodeo clown and his trick mule, Scrap Iron, will be on hand to entertain the crowd. They come from Tucson, Ariz. A new added feature which is believed will be especially popular with children is Velva Tindall and her two daughters, Garlene 9, and Glorine, 10. They do fancy trick riding and roping and tap dancing and singing. Mrs. Tindall and her daughters have performed at the World's Fairs at New York and San Francisco and at rodeos at Ogden, Denver and Seattle.

Returning to Burwell this year where they have proved very popular as entertainers are Junita Grey and her high school horse, Smokie Kid, and Weaver Grey, champion-ship roper who spins an eighty foot circle of rope around two horses on which he and his wife are mounted. He is the only performer on the rodeo circuit who can make a three rope catch. He throws all three ropes at the same time and catching a horse around all four legs, and over the horse's head, while the third rope encircles the rider.

As usual a band of Sioux Indians will be on hand to exhibit the various dances and customs of the red men. This year's band is headed by John Crazybull, an educated Ogallala Sioux. Each year it becomes more difficult to find a group of Indians with the knowledge and suitable regalia to demonstrate the tribal dances.

The Alamo Exposition Shows, one of the largest carnivals on the road, will be on the ground all three days. They will present a free act, The Flying Millers, twice daily on the carnival grounds.

City Council Cuts Levy

At the regular meeting of the Ord city council last evening the levy was set for 1942, the total being 15.35 mills as against 16.35 for the past year, a full mill being cut from the bond fund.

Other propositions discussed were the possibility of having oil mat on that portion of highway 57 passing through Ord, and also further sewer improvements.

Clarence M. Davis, city attorney, who went to Lincoln to discuss these propositions with the state officials, was present and made a report on what he had learned.

C. Williams Replaces Marker as Mail Clerk

L. E. Marker, U. P. mail clerk on the Ord-Grand Island run for several years, made a trade with Charley Williams of Pueblo, Colo., by virtue of which he has gone there and is working in the Pueblo terminal. Mr. Williams made his first run July 1. Williams is now living in Ord but has not yet found a place for his family. They will move here as soon as he can find a suitable location. In Colorado he held a regular run on trains 535 and 536.

Robbery at Arcadia.
Sheriff George Round and Deputy F. J. Cohen were called to Arcadia to investigate a robbery of the Ford garage there during the night. The business belongs to Jess Marvel, but his son, Dick Marvel is in charge, as his father is away. The intruder sprung open the rear door, pried up a window of the office and tapped the cash register for about $50 in cash and $40 in checks.

Committed to Ingleside.
Carrie Toops of Arcadia was adjudged insane by the insanity board at a hearing held here Monday morning and was committed to the hospital at Ingleside. F. J. Cohen and the girl's father, Vernie Toops, took her there Monday afternoon. She is 21 years of age.

Bredthauer Dream of Oil In Valley Shattered Sunday

Drill Struck Granite at 3,534 Feet Beneath the Surface; May Try Elsewhere.

After just fifteen days of operation the Taylor Drilling company of Centralia, Ill., hit granite bottom in their test well west of North Loup, known as the Bredthauer-Williams well No. 1, Sunday afternoon, and it soon became apparent that further drilling in this location would be useless.

Evidence showing the presence of oil was found when the drillers reached a depth of 2,990 feet about the middle of last week, and a core was taken to determine if the oil was present in paying quantities. This proved not to be the case, so the work was continued until the underlying foundation of granite was hit Sunday afternoon.

While it might be possible to find oil at a lower depth, the cost of drilling through solid granite at more than a half mile below the surface is prohibitive and would not be compensated for on off chance of running into oil below it. There is no way of knowing, of course, whether the granite formation is a few feet thick or one hundred feet.

Mr. Bredthauer said Sunday that it would be several days before the work would be completed at the well, since the hole must be filled with mud and the well capped before it is abandoned, and this would take some little time. He did not state definitely at that time whether another attempt will be made here, but doubtless this will be done later.

The fact that this proved to be a dry hole does not discourage the drillers nor does it prove that there is no oil in Valley county. It merely proves that the strata was tapped on a ridge from which all oil except traces has settled to lower levels, known as pockets. Another well might strike one of these pockets, and a good supply of oil.

Considerable satisfaction is expressed in the fact that the predictions of the geologists were borne out as to the formation that would be encountered and the depth at which it would be found. It was expected that the Hunton lime stratum would be reached in the neighborhood of 3,000. It was found at 3,162 feet. What is known as the Viola formation lies below the Hunton.

The new 90 barrel per hour well at Falls City struck the Hunton formation at 2,204 feet, and the drillers went approximately 58 feet into it. This makes the Hunton about 900 feet nearer the surface than here, but the difference is accounted for in the greater altitude in Valley county.

Oil is found in Wyoming in similar strata at about 6,200 feet with special well drilling equipment. Mr. Bredthauer is naturally discouraged over the result of this first well, but he still believes that there is oil underlying portions of the North Loup valley, and that in time it will be found. Just when and where another test well will be located it is not known at this time, but it is certain that another test well will be made at a later date.

Harry Doran Given Post at State Fair Grounds

The state fair board announced Monday that they had appointed Harry Doran as superintendent of the fairgrounds. He succeeds Morris Reichenbach, who held the position 23 years.

Doran was formerly a resident of Burwell, where he was arena director and member of the board of Nebraska's Big Rodeo for many years. Also acting as president for two terms. He has been at Lincoln for the past few years and much interested in the state fair.

Paralysis Pamphlets Placed in Ord Library

Mrs. E. L. Kokes, secretary of the county chapter of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, announces placing in the Ord Township library of a number of nicely bound pamphlets that have been sent to Valley county and explain poliomyelitis and what to do as well as how to recognize it. Among them are, for instance: "The Use of the Respirator in Poliomyelitis," "The Nursing Care of the Patients with Infantile Paralysis," "Annual Report of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis," "George Warm Springs Foundation," a history and report.

The season for infantile paralysis begins with the hot weather and people can prevent the disease after effects of this disease by prompt and early diagnosis of it. The public is urged to take off time to stop at the library and see this material. The county organization also possesses information on the location and owners of respirators in the state in case of need.

Caesarian Twins Doing Nicely at Ord Hospital

Above are Mrs. Henry Liske and her two children, born at the Ord hospital July 5 by Caesarian section, and Dr. C. J. Miller, who performed the operation. The girls are known as No. One and No. Two, as no names have been selected for them yet. The Liske has four other children and live north of Scotia in Greeley county. Mrs. Liske was brought to the hospital by Dr. Cimfel of Scotia, who is the family doctor.

Frank Potter, Arcadia, Falls, Fracturing Hip

Frank Potter of Arcadia fell from a granary yesterday, falling ten feet and breaking his right hip and right arm. As Mr. Potter is 64 years old such breaks are far more serious than for a young man.

He was brought to Ord in the Hastings ambulance and the broken bones were set. Tuesday he was resting as well as could be expected at the Ord hospital.

The accident occurred Monday noon as Mr. Potter was working on the building on Miss Phyllis Lutz's property.

Anton Nelson, who was on his regular mail route, heard Mr. Potter's cries for help, and brought him to his home in Arcadia. Dr. J. N. Round was called from Ord and after a preliminary examination Mr. Potter was taken to Ord and to the Ord Hospital.

Trucker Has Accident

They say accidents will happen in the best regulated families. Now we won't lay claim to the George Hubbard family being the best regulated in town. Surely George's truck is not the best behaved truck in town, though it is old enough to know better than to go cutting capers. Tuesday George drove down to the Quiz lot to haul some wood for Frank Glover who has been making the old maple tree up for next winter's use. A load was put on the truck and hauled to the Glover residence and after backing the wheels, the wood was unloaded. Then all that George needed to do was to get in, release the brakes and the truck would have done the balance of the job. But instead of doing that George started to crank the cranky truck. In the meantime Mr. Glover had climbed aboard. The truck started to roll down hill. Glover yelled for George to get out of the way, which he just managed to do, and at the same time he reached in the door and grabbed the wheel. But not being as active as he was 75 or 80 years ago, he was unable to get aboard and as the truck gained momentum George was thrown down and the truck careened over the bank and rolled over on its side with numerous hisses and screams. Fortunately Mr. Glover was not hurt. The truck came out of it with flying colors and a bent wishbone and is now back in service as good as before.

Here is Bill Fuss of Mira Valley and his trick mare, who can do just about everything but talk. They put on a very fine show at the celebration July Fourth at the Ord Athletic field.

Ord Legion Juniors Lose to Cedar Rapids

The Ord Legion Junior baseball team went to Cedar Rapids Wednesday and brought back the small end of the score in an eleven-inning game, the second they played in less than a week. The Sunday before they won from St. Edward by a score of 9 to 8 in 11 innings.

The Ord boys were weakened by the loss of three of their regular players, Catcher Bill Johnson, First Baseman Ernie Piskorski, and Left Fielder Alex Cochrane. Manager V. W. Russell put Jerry Fryzek behind the plate, a spot he had never played before, and he did splendidly.

D. Faulk took Piskorski's place at first, and L. Novosad took over the duties in left field. The other players were Darrell Johnson, Leon Faulk, Frank Misko, Bill Novosad, Raymond Vogelanz and Bob Severson. The Novosad pitched three and a third innings and L. Faulk pitched seven and two thirds innings.

J. Conant for Cedar Rapids struck out a total of 21 batters, a real record in any ball game, and held the Ordites to 3 hits and 3 runs. Misko was hit by the pitcher and scored in the first inning. D. Faulk walked and scored in the second, and Severson was hit by the pitcher and scored in the seventh, thus not a single Ord run was earned.

The Ord pitchers held their opponents to eight hits and four runs. Novosad struck out six men and allowed three hits. Faulk fanned 10 men and allowed five hits, two coming in the winning run. D. Conant was the heavy batter for Cedar Rapids, getting three hits and two runs in five times up. Johnson, B. Novosad and Vogelanz got the Ord hits, one each.

Mrs. Muncy's Mother Dies

Mrs. L. A. Muncy received a telegram last evening telling of the death yesterday of her mother, Mrs. Klausen, who lived near Joes, Colo. The Muncys left today to be there for the funeral. Mrs. Muncy visited her mother a few months ago. Mrs. Klausen was 86 years of age.

Rotarians Hold Good Meeting

Returning Rotarians, who had been to the Atlantic and the Pacific told in brief of their trips at Rotary Monday night. Fred Cahill, who recently returned from a trip to the east gave his observations on that journey. Lyle Milliken, who got back last week from the west coast, where he saw his son James, who is an ensign in the navy and was in California with his ship just back from Hawaii, told interesting stories of that trip, among them being about his eating on the battleship his son is connected with. Hugh Carson was a guest of the newly installed president of the club, Dick Teague. The speaker was Alfred Hill, postmaster of Ord, who told of the new defense bonds being sold through the local postoffice. Next Monday the president and secretary will be at the district meeting of Rotary presidents and secretaries and the vice-president, Ralph Misko will probably preside in the absence of President Teague.

Cornelius Bienond, who was one of those competing in the Ford Safe Driving contest last week in Omaha, returned home Wednesday noon of last week. His father took him to Omaha and brought him back. While he did not win, he had a most enjoyable trip, and learned much of value about safe driving. He was one of eleven boys who competed in the state finals, which included garage backing, steering skill and line driving. Most of the tests were staged in the four blocks radiating from 15th and Cass streets, which were roped off for the purpose, but a five mile drive on a course was included.

Bad Horse Throws Winder Has a Badly Broken Hip

OI Winder, who has handled horses, many of them bad ones, for fifty years or more, met his Waterloo about 4 p. m. Monday when he was thrown by a horse belonging to Walter Carpenter of Grand Island, which he was training. OI sustained a badly broken right hip which Dr. Weekes is quoted as saying is likely to keep him in bed for three or four months. Following the accident he was taken to the Clinic Hospital and Dr. Norris and Weekes attended him, later calling the Prairier ambulance to take him to his home.

Mr. Winder was in Grand Island a couple of weeks ago and rode ten head of horses which were being offered to the government buyers and eight of them were accepted. OI was working for Henry Geweke who says OI made the best showing as a rider of any of those engaged in the work. Mr. Carpenter saw his work and asked him what he would take to train a couple of horses which he had and he got the job. It was while riding one of these horses in the yards at the Ord sales barn that the accident happened. Corwin Cummins was assisting Mr. Winder at the time. It seems the horse had been used in rodeos and trained to buck and they were trying to overcome this training at the time the accident happened. Mr. Winder is said to be around 70 years of age, which will make for a slower recovery than would be likely with a younger man.

Frances Houtby Hurt in Auto Accident July 4th

Four young people met with an accident at 4 p. m. July 4th when the auto in which they were driving collided with the east concrete post at the north driveway entrance to Russell park. A fender, light and wheel were smashed, and Miss Frances Houtby had her right arm badly splintered.

The auto belonged to Kenneth Draver of Barwell and was driven by James Hahn, also of Barwell. They were accompanied by Miss Houtby and Miss Carol Hall. They were approaching the driveway from the west and had slowed to about 15 miles per hour to make the turn into the park. For some reason Hahn failed to make the turn and ran the left front fender into the post.

Mrs. Jorgen Moller Passes in California

Word has been received by Ord relatives that Mrs. Jorgen Moller died at her home in Escondido, Calif., July 2, 1941. Not being able to get a complete obituary this week, we recount a few of the facts and will hope to receive a complete obituary for next week. Valborg Martha Louise Foght was born at Fredriksholm, Norway September 6, 1869. She was the daughter of Captain and Mrs. John Foght and came with them to the United States when she was 11 years old.

She was married to Jorgen Moller, and they lived in Valley county for many years. They moved to Escondido, Calif., in September, 1926 and that has been the family home since. Mr. Moller passed away on Memorial day in 1930. Mrs. Moller has been in poor health for several years and seriously ill for many months. The surviving children are Mrs. George A. Munn of Ord, Miss Gerda Moller of Escondido, Mrs. Clarence Stubbs, also of Escondido, Roy and Sigurd of Westwood, Los Angeles and Erik of Escondido.

Legion Baseball Team Loses to St. Edward

After winning their first three games, the Ord Legion Junior baseball team suffered a temporary relapse and lost two games within a week, one to Cedar Rapids Wednesday, the other to St. Edward Sunday. The team was weakened by the absence of the regular catcher, Bill Johnson, and by the fact that Bill Novosad was hit on his pitching arm during the game, and may be out of the box for some time.

Ord Soft Ball Games Are Scheduled to Start Soon

Plans are about completed for softball contests here for the remainder of the season. They will be played on the diamond at the Valley county fair grounds, which has been cleaned off for the purpose. There is to be a practice game there Friday evening at 7 p. m., and all prospective players are urged to be present.

Plans call for the formation of four softball teams, and three are already well under way, with captains selected. Because of the fact that the softball field at the new athletic field is being planted to buffalo grass at present, it was not available, and so all games this year will be played on the old field at the fair grounds.

Russell, James Gilbert and Harold Hallen went along, and Gilbert acted as one of the umpires.

National Guardsmen Are Required to Register

Men who have served in the Active National Guard are required to register immediately upon expiration of their service, even though they are not, under certain conditions, liable for further peacetime training and service under the Selective Service Act, according to orders from Lincoln.

That fact was stressed today by Brigadier General Guy N. Henninger, Director of Selective Service for Nebraska, who said that all such men should present themselves to a local board for registration immediately upon their discharge.

"The act is specific," said General Henninger, "in requiring registration of men within the age group of 21 to 36 who have served in the National Guard. Men who were members of the active National Guard on October 16 last and who have completed six or more consecutive years, are relieved from liability for peacetime service and training, but they must register. Those who were members of the National Guard and have served less than six years are relieved neither from registration nor training."

General Henninger said that his attention had been called to the fact that some men in the National Guard in federal service who have been discharged because of expiration of their service have not immediately, he declared, and added that the War Department has now issued instructions that such men shall be notified by their organization commanders at the time of their discharge of the necessity to register.

Ord Celebrates Old Fashioned Fourth of July

Soap Box Races, Sports, Baseball Prove of Special Interest; Lanigan Was Speaker.

Ordites are still talking with pleasure of the fine Fourth of July celebration held here Friday, in which even the weather man went out of his way to make everything as pleasant as possible. The day was cool, with a slight breeze from the south most of the time, and quite a few clouds helped by furnishing grateful shade.

First on the program came the soap box derby races, held under the auspices of the Ord Cosmopolitan club. The boys in this contest had their racers stored at the Ord Auto Sales company and the John Edmiston machine shop and at the appointed time went in a body to 16th street, south to O street and then went to south 21st street, where the course was laid out.

Here broad stripes had been painted down the hill on the paving, dividing the space into three lanes, down which the contestants sped three at a time after Triggerman George Satterfield pulled the lever that started them on their way. The time and distance to the finish line were considered, and by this means the exact speed in miles per hour could be estimated.

Ed Gnaster was superintendent of the races, and Clyde Baker was official starter, assisted by Hilding Pearson, Harold Cuckler, Tony Gnaster, Russell Craven, and Satterfield pulled the lever that started them on their way. The time and distance to the finish line were considered, and by this means the exact speed in miles per hour could be estimated.

IGNACE JAN PADEREWSKI
In the death of Ignace Jan Paderewski last week the world lost one of its outstanding figures, and music lovers lost one of the greatest exponents of piano music.

He was born in Russian Poland, and early showed great aptitude in the study of music, playing the piano in public concerts at the age of twelve years.

This was followed by many concert tours in Germany, England, France and the United States, and in time he became recognized as one of the greatest of the world's pianists.

When the Polish state was reconstituted in 1919 he was made prime minister, and was one of the Polish delegates to the peace conference.

In his life he gave more to the fund of human happiness than all the Hitlers, Napoleons, Caesars and Alexanders that the world has known.

He will die and a new order that knew him will rise, but the good that Paderewski has done will live on forever.

SENSELESS SLAUGHTER
This is written, purposely, before the figures for the three-day death toll of the week end of the Fourth are available.

Suppose this rate were to continue for one year. It would mean that a total of 54,750 lives would be snuffed out needlessly in a single year.

We shudder when we think of the awful slaughter that is taking place on the battle fields of Europe, and yet give the slaughterer at home only a passing thought.

In these days there is too much of a tendency to classify every car wreck, every drowning, every fire in which fatalities occur as unavoidable.

We value our liberty, and because of this boasted freedom we enjoy, we do as we please, forgetting the first principles of common sense.

At an average speed of 40 miles per hour a car will go 400 miles in ten hours, and that is far enough for any one man to drive in a day.

Going back to the figures mentioned above. The total of all troops engaged in a total of 32 engagements during the Revolutionary war is given in history as 104,388.

Hereafter, instead of saying: I have a right to drive fast if I want to; I have a right to go swimming in a sand pit if I please; it is my affair if I start a fire with gasoline; why not say: The Lord gave me a brain and expects me to use it.

My Own Column

By H. D. Leggett

As I explained carefully several times prior to the last month or six weeks, I have had to change the former Quiz policy and go to a strictly cash in advance system.

At the time we started this new policy there were 130 subscriptions in arrears. Not wanting to be unkind, we told them that if they would cooperate by paying some on account we would give them time to get caught up.

Pat Fuson wants to be a philosopher and in writing me the other day, about childbirth, he said if the laws of nature provided for the mother to give birth to the first child and the father the second, most families would be limited to two children.

I just don't like the way Lindberg feels about the present situation in this country and should he run for president in 1944 as some profess to believe he will, no doubt he would get a good beating.

Last year when I was home from the Minnesota country it was terribly hot and I looked forward to another hot spell this summer but after a week here it is about as enjoyable summer weather as one could ask for.

Rules For Controlling Chicken Lice Given

J. R. Redditt, Extension Poultryman, passed on some suggestions about the control of lice to Valley county poultrymen this week.

An equally effective process, and one which may be applied in the warm summer weather is dipping. Sodium fluoride is used at the rate of one ounce per gallon of water.

For lasting and effective control, it is frequently necessary to treat the birds more than once. Young lice hatching out from eggs present at the time of the treatment may require a second or third treatment.

IT HAPPENED IN ORD.

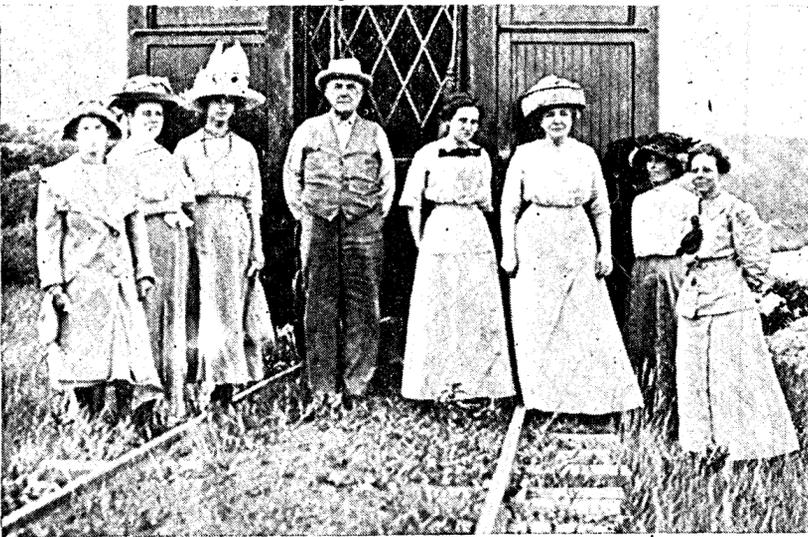

The evening of the Fourth John Gross was tired, so he leaned against the lamp post in front of Ben's Grill, took off his hat with one hand and mopped his brow with his handkerchief.

Now Mike Socha rises to remark that, because George Allen engineered that pole falling episode recently so that he landed on the pole instead of the pole landing on him, he is now fully qualified as a Polander.

There is one man who certainly is not the least bit superstitious, and that is Aubrey Davis, who visited at the Wentworth home recently. He has an Iowa license on his car, and his number has a thirteen on each end and a thirteen in reverse in the middle, thus, 13-3113.

Above is shown a very good photo of one of Ord's best known early day merchants, L. D. Bailey, who appears in the center of the picture. His daughter, Miss Lula, is standing at the extreme left, and between them are a sister of Mrs. Bailey and her daughter. They were returning from a southern trip at the time the photo was taken, 30 years ago.

The place is in the neighborhood of the Chalk Hills below Scotts, and the occasion is of interest. The Union Pacific engine had trouble that day, and the train crew had to remove the connecting rod on the right side and come in on one lung, so to speak. They were doing this when the picture was taken. They finally made it to Ord, but got on deal center in North Loop and the freight engine had to give them a boost.

Ord's First Railroad Arrived 55 Years Ago

The first railroad in Valley county arrived at North Loop in 1886, and for six years that town was the metropolis of Valley county, since the presence of the railroad drew much business that direction.

The building finally came partly through the fear of the Burlington which was planning to build along its present route through this section of the state, but more because Valley county had voted bonds in the sum of $32,000 to make it worth while for the railroad to build into Ord.

The railroad at that time was known as the Omaha and Republican Valley railroad, but a short time later was bought up by the Union Pacific. The railroad officials saw no need of building farther than North Loop, since this was the main outlet for the upper Loup valley, and they got all the business anyway.

At first it was hoped that the railroad would reach Ord in time for a monster Fourth of July celebration in 1886, and preliminary preparations were made for the affair, but it was soon learned that the road would not be completed by that time, and the jubilee was deferred until a later date, and apparently the final celebration was a "bust."

In the Quiz of June 25 appears the following statement, in regard to a meeting of citizens held at the courthouse to decide upon a celebration: "The question was whether to celebrate here on the Fourth or to wait the arrival of the railroad. The unanimous vote was to go to North Loop to celebrate the Fourth and reserve all our energies for a grand jollification here when the trains are running into this city."

The Quiz for July 9 contained the details of a meeting to arrange for a celebration at Ord on the completion of the railroad. By unanimous vote Judge A. A. Lavery was made chairman and H. A. Walker, druggist, was made secretary. A committee of nine men was chosen as executive committee, with J. M. Provis as chairman.

H. A. Babcock, A. D. Robinson and D. N. McCord were retained as a committee to make arrangements for an excursion train on the day of the celebration. There were committees on speakers, on finance, on program, on shade, reception, music, printing marshals ammunition, the latter to secure a cannon from Grand Island, if possible.

A motion carried inviting citizens, farmers, mechanics, tradesmen and secret organizations to take part in a general industrial parade. William Wentworth being manager. It was further decided to hold the celebration on or about July 23, 1886.

By July 16 the road bed had been completed into Ord, and the Quiz made the following statement: "The road bed completed to this place is one of the finest ever built in the state. It was comparatively smooth before being ballasted up." In the same issue was an article entitled "Railroad Talk," by Rev. E. A. Russell, a part of which follows: "The arrival of the train or rather the completion of the road is to be this year the day we celebrate. The time has been fixed and Ord and all Valley county is expected to be at home to all who visit us on that day."

Invited guests what to us will be help celebrate what to us will be a new era. The company, with its accustomed fairness, has given us between North Loop and Ord the finest road bed in the state. The railroad will furnish the faculty (faculty?) for free intercourse with Grand Island and other towns along the line."

promptly abandoned all thought of meeting him among the lakes and plains this year. I am sure he is really building, for his wife declares he has already lost five pounds. Anyone who knows how he works when he builds would take that weight loss as proof positive. I hear a rumor that when Charlotte Blessing reaches the far western home of her cousin Jeanette Clements in Ontario, Calif., Jeanette intends to entertain for Charlotte. How nice, and how interesting. Oh yes, and more interesting still, I hear that at this party Jeanette's engagement is going to be announced. Another little girl grown up, her Ord friends will then realize. After this bit of rumor, I will sign myself. Irma Walter Winchell Leggett.

Highlights of Ord's July Fourth Celebration, Declared Best in Years

pany, sponsor; Dale Manchester, Kenneth Shibata, mechanic, Nebraska State bank, sponsor; Lyle Manchester, Ray Biemond, mechanic, A. A. Wiegand, sponsor. A total of fifteen races were run, with speeds ranging from 31.5 miles per hour to 37 miles per hour in the final race. The difference in the three lanes were only imaginary, since four first places were won on the west lane, six on the middle lane, and five on the east lane. All races were exciting, but the final, in which Randolph took first, Hurlbert took second and Johnson took third, was the most exciting of all. There were enough prizes so that all contestants received at least one, and some received two or three. The picture of the boys and list of what they won appears on the front page. By virtue of winning the final race, Randolph, Hurlbert and Johnson will be taken to North Platte to compete in the contest there. A large crowd watched the contests, and they were pronounced a most interesting event.

After the picnic dinner at the park, where a large number at the dinner they had brought, the program opened with two selections by a male quartet, Alex Cochran, sr., Keith Kovanda, Dr. F. J. Osentowski and Alex Cochran, jr. E. L. Vogelzang then introduced the speaker of the day, Hon. Thomas W. Lanigan of Grand Island.

Mr. Lanigan did not go back to the beginnings of our nation as so many orators are inclined to do, but spoke of the present condition of the republic and the perils that we face. He stated that the present world struggle is not a struggle of armies and tanks, airplanes and guns, but that it is a struggle of democracy to survive.

He defined national socialism and contrasted it with our democratic way of life. He said the battle is really for the minds of the youth of the world, and that it is our duty to imbue youth with the principles of democracy. He closed with these words: "America, with all its faults, I Love Thee, My America." He spoke but a short time, but his words made a profound impression on his hearers.

The program at the picnic grounds and at the athletic field

In the afternoon was put out over the Auble Bros. public address system, and the Pearson and Anderson outfit was used for the soap box races in the morning. The male quartet sang two more fine selections at the close of Mr. Lanigan's speech, and then the crowd lined the park roads to see the pet parade.

Next the crowd was invited to go over to the cinder track at the athletic field, where a number of events, including bicycle races, three-legged race and sack race were run for money prizes. There was also a saddle horse show which was held in the rear of the grand stand with prizes awarded for the best. There were a number of entries in this department, and some fine looking stock.

The horseshoe pitching contest, with Clyde Baker in charge, took place just south of the tennis courts in the athletic field, with sixteen men participating. The winners were as follows: Clyde Baker first, with 97 points with 50 shoes. Jim White took second with 78. Bill Baum and Henry Walkeneyer were third with 70 each. Elva White was fourth with 65. Harold Lewis fifth with 62. Bob Adamek sixth with 57. Paul Adamek seventh with 54. John Koll eighth with 53 and Charles Hather ninth with 51.

All these won money prizes ranging from $2.50 down to 50c. The other players and their scores were: George Kasper, 49; Hans Hansen, 45; John Lemmon, 41; Roger Benson, 41; Chris Hansen, 42; Ernie Rowse, 21.

At the close of the sports at the football field the crowd went over to the baseball diamond, where the attraction was a Loup Valley League game between Ord and Ashton. Clyde Athey and Len Knapp were umpires, and Athey announced the batteries as Allen Zikmund and Emil Krikac for Ord, and Carl Anderson and Clarence Kontor for Ashton. It was a pitchers' battle throughout, with Anderson having a little the best of it at first and Zikmund winning out in the end. Ashton got all their three runs in the first of the second inning. Badura went to first when hit by Zikmund, Anderson drew a base on balls, Skurniak and Anderson struck out, and Stobbs singled, bringing in two scores. Shortly after Zikmund threw wild to third to catch Stobbs, who came home. Then Ksionzek struck out, ending the inning.

Ord got one in their half of the second when Jorgensen walked and came home on Krikac's 3-base hit through third base. Krikac was out trying to stretch it into a home run. Ord got another in the fifth, when Krikac drove another over third, and came in on an error. In the last of the eighth Cummins (Corwin, not Bert) connected with a good one for a home run beyond the right fielder, tying up the game.

In their half of the ninth Manager Douthitt sent Syl Fiala in as a pinch hitter, and he went to first on a line drive right over first base. He stole second at the first opportunity, and Zikmund sacrificed him to third. With the hit-run play on, Syl streaked it for home with the Pitcher's wind up. Tatlow, trying to bunt, got it too high, and the ball went just over the pitcher, and also out of reach of short, Syl coming in with the winning run, and Tatlow making it to first, and the game was over.

The Ord boys certainly made up for those seven straight losses in the grand game they played on the Fourth. Allen Zikmund pitched the full nine innings, the first full game he ever pitched, allowed five hits, gave three walks, hit two batters and struck out eighteen. He struck out three men in each of five different innings. Anderson for Ashton allowed 8 hits, struck out 12, hit two batsmen and issued one walk.

Besides the battery the lineup for Ord was: first base, Fox; second base, Tatlow; shortstop, Long; third base, Cummins; and the Scandinavian outfield, Severin and Jorgensen in center and Christensen in right. The game was thoroughly enjoyed by a very large crowd, and it is safe to say that home games in the future will be well attended.

In the evening prizes were awarded to the boys who participated in the soap box races. Ted Randolph, first place winner, won a radio, a Boy Scout knife and a flashlight; Loyal Hurlbert, second place winner, was given an air rifle, a baseball bat and a flashlight; Darrell Johnson, for taking third place won a dip net, roller skates and a flash light.

Of the other contestants, Bobby Marks won a pair of roller skates; Jay Stoddard won a ball bat; Charles Draper won a watch; Donnie Andersen and Joe Loka each won a tennis racket; Frank Galka won a rod and reel; Donald Walker won a ball glove; and Clyde Dahlin, Don Hill, Ray Gross, Lyle Manchester, David Maurice, Norbert Zukoski, Richard Radloff, Dale Manchester and Don Behrends each won a flashlight.

A great deal of excitement and amusement was produced by the water fight between two hose companies which took place in the street just west of the First National bank. A barrel was placed in the middle of the block and the two hose teams tried to move it north or south with streams of water, wetting themselves quite thoroughly and sprinkling quite a few of the spectators. After the fight had gone for a short time Mayor Cummins put a stop to the carnage to prevent further casualties.

At 8 p. m. the Ord Municipal band, directed by Henry Delnes, put on one of the best concerts of the season. Alex Cochran, sr., sang the refrain to "The Land We Love," Mrs. Mark Tolen sang "God Bless America" and Dean Barta and Gerald Jirak played the cornet duet of the "Elena Polka" all accompanied by the band.

Dancing at the Bohemian hall to music by Ed Kerchal's orchestra, with the same music remote control at the Ord Opera house completed the festivities of the day. A bingo stand was located between the two dance halls, and many enjoyed this pastime until a late hour. It is the consensus of opinion that this was one of the most enjoyable July Fourth programs ever held in Ord.

Speedometer Doesn't Show Speed.
Do speedometers jam in a wrecked car and thus show the speed at which the car was traveling at the time of the crash? The answer is no. And you have for authority the word of spark plug engineers who manufacture speedometers as well as spark plugs. Engineers say: "In our opinion the speedometer which is found jammed would very seldom indicate the speed at the time of impact. To most readily understand this you will find that by taking a speedometer head in your hand and quickly turning your wrist the speed dial can be thrown over to register as much as 10 miles an hour."

This Represents a Mornings Catch for Archie

One day last week Archie Bradt drove up to the Quiz Studio and displayed the fish and snapping turtle shown in the accompanying photo. He has to be on the job all the time looking after Hardenbrook Dam, but the work does not take all his time, so he does a little fishing on the side. The catfish are just right to taste best, and the turtle makes a fine meal and it is a good thing to have him out of the way of regular fishing.

DANA MILTON was thinking of the future.

"Look here, Simon," he said. "I've been thinking this thing over and I've come to the conclusion that it won't be good policy for us to become equal partners."

"You mean you don't think we ought to buy the business?"

"It isn't that. I think the business is worth every cent its owners are asking. But you know, Simon, you and I have only known each other a couple of months. True, we worked fine together and were pretty successful on that last proposition. But—well, I just don't think it's good policy for two ambitious young men to put an equal amount of money in a business."

"I get it," said Simon. "Maybe you're right." He looked at Dana craftily. "I'd like to be the one to put the money in, Dana. It was I who discovered the thing."

Dana nodded. "I thought you'd feel that way about it, Simon. And I'm willing to withdraw, provided, of course, that you give me a contract—assume me of a job during the next five years."

"Fair enough," Simon extended his hand. Secretly he was elated. He knew that Dana was a conscientious worker, a good salesman.

Simon and Dana took the insurance company over in May. Within a month's time they discovered it wasn't the profit-paying proposition both had anticipated. It was run

Simon was angered and not a little worried. Yet he had put too much money into the thing to let it go.

By fall a little business began to come in and then a little more. During October they broke even. November showed a profit, and December still a greater profit. During January and February the gross business increased in leaps and bounds. Simon, watching the weekly returns, began to lick his lips.

In April he dug out the contract he had made with Dana and perused its contents. There was, he saw, a chance for complaint. The contract provided that Dana be paid a percentage of the gross business, that he should sell policies at the rate charged by previous owners. There, thought Simon, was the snag. Dana had cut the rate in order to start the ball rolling.

Simon summoned Dana. "Dana," he said, "I notice you've been selling at reduced rates. We can't make a profit that way."

"That was the only way to get things going."

Simon shook his head. "I'm sorry. Our contract provided that you sell at rates charged by the previous owners. You ignored the clause, thereby causing no little dissension among our clients. I'll have to let you go."

"Let me go! Why, you can't do that! We have a contract!"

Simon looked at him icily. "You broke the contract, mister."

It wasn't until Dana had reached home and broken the news to Hattie, his wife, that he realized what losing his job meant.

The next day Dana received a letter from the insurance company in which Simon stated he had turned the matter over to his lawyer. Dana considered various possibilities. He needed money at once. Remembering that Simon's greatest weakness was his own sense of importance, he decided on a plan.

He visited a local printer and ordered some important looking letterheads, with his name at the top.

Two days later another letter arrived from Simon. It stated that he would like to meet Dana in Attorney Harry Davis' office on Wednesday.

Dana called up his printer and asked for his letterheads, and was told they weren't ready. Perturbed, Dana waited two days longer and then, upon being advised that the copy for his letterheads had been mislaid, sat down to answer Simon's letter on plain white paper.

The letter was hardly completed when the front doorbell rang and Hattie admitted a small wizened man.

"My name," he explained, "is Davis. Attorney Davis. I'm representing Simon Douglas." He paused, coughed. "Mr. Douglas says you have neglected to answer his letters. Your silence has disturbed him. He seems to think you are preparing to bring suit. And whereas there is little on which you could base a suit, Mr. Douglas feels that court action would injure his business. He is—ah—prepared to make you a proposition."

Dana wet his lips. "What kind of a proposition?"

"You were to receive a percentage of the gross business. The sum total of things for a year would, in normal times, amount to about $3,000. Mr. Douglas is prepared to pay you $2,000, if you will destroy the contract."

Dana gulped. The amount was twice that for which he had intended to bring suit. And a suit, if successful, might have netted him $500.

After a moment he said: "Very well, I'll take the check and hand over the contract. The money will come in handy to pay for my letterheads."

And at the look of bewilderment on the attorney's face, Dana grinned.

Speedometer Doesn't Show Speed
Do speedometers jam in a wrecked car and thus show the speed at which the car was traveling at the time of the crash? The answer is no. And you have for authority the word of spark plug engineers who manufacture speedometers as well as spark plugs. Engineers say: "In our opinion the speedometer which is found jammed would very seldom indicate the speed at which the car was traveling at the time of impact. To most readily understand this you will find that by taking a speedometer head in your hand and quickly turning your wrist the speed dial can be thrown over to register as much as 10 miles an hour."

This Represents a Mornings Catch for Archie

One day last week Archie Bradt drove up to the Quiz Studio and displayed the fish and snapping turtle shown in the accompanying photo. He has to be on the job all the time looking after Hardenbrook Dam, but the work does not take all his time, so he does a little fishing on the side. The catfish are just right to taste best, and the turtle makes a fine meal and it is a good thing to have him out of the way of regular fishing.

Five Essential Drilling Conditions Exist Beneath Valley County As the Study of Outcrops Reveal

By RAY E. COLTON, D. Sc.
Oil and Gas Science Writer.

It is interesting to note that past field geologic studies made in the North Loup, Ord and Arcadia areas of Valley county, and in the Scotia area of adjoining Greeley county, reveal that five sub-surface requirements which will greatly influence drilling for oil and gas, exist beneath this part of central Nebraska. These as determined by petroleum engineers are as follows:

1. The area is underlain by beds of strata which are rich in organic matter. I. e. the fossils of marine life from which oil is believed to have evolved.
2. Outcrops of strata in the Ord, North Loup and Arcadia areas of Valley county, indicate that porous sands and limestones exist beneath.
3. Hydraulic conditions, viz. water pressure which assists in the accumulation of oil and gas, are good.
4. Relatively impervious rocks, admirable for the accumulation of oil, exist beneath this part of Nebraska.
5. Large amounts of marine fossil remains found in Valley county, indicate that oil "source beds" are here.

With the above five fundamentals which influence drilling, now known to exist here, it would be ridiculous to assume that any major or independent oil operator would pass up any such drilling "bets" as are offered in the areas of Valley county mentioned herein. Some people think of oil as occurring in lakes, underground rivers and caves, and whenever anyone talks of oil occurring in this manner, he is either ignorant of the true conditions of the recovery of oil, or he is using selling talk to interest the unwary in some stock promoting scheme. In order that the public, now oil minded in view of present drilling operations near North Loup, may know of the actual conditions under which the crude oil is recovered, the following findings in this respect by the field petroleum industry are given.

The strata in which oil and gas occur in order of their importance, are sands, sandstones, limestones, lenticular sand bodies and shales. Most of the oil recovered from such fields as southeastern Nebraska in the Falls City area of Richardson county, is from limestone of the Hunton series of limestones. In the case of recovery from sandstone, the oil is found in the small pores or interstices of the sand body.

Oil occurs in such geologic structures as anticlines, terraces, domes, lenticular sand bodies, unconformities and geosynclines (basins). If oil appear in an anticline, the oil will be found at the top of the folds in the structure. An anticline is described geologically as an upward arch of the beds of the earth's surface. The types of structures in which oil and gas may occur as discussed here are located principally by the system of geophysics known as reflection "shooting." This test includes the drilling of test holes in a given area to a depth of 150-150 feet, the placing of charges of dynamite in these holes, and the register of the shocks and earth sound waves created by the exploding dynamite, on a set of geophones located some distance from the area being "shot." The geophones are very sensitive to earth sound waves, and they amplify these sounds in much the same manner as does the radio the human voice. On a truck located nearby is the seismograph which is the principal instrument used during the test. Inside of the seismograph on a cylinder, is the record of the test, taken from a thin, sensitized strip of paper. Wires connect the geophones with a series of six lights which are located over the revolving cylinder. As the shocks come from beneath the earth, they are transmitted by the geophones to the seismograph. After the test has been completed, geologists and geophysicists study the record of the test, taken from the seismograph cylinder. Areas which by their rapid registration showed that porous strata was being pierced by the sound waves, are considered favorable for test well drilling and areas which by their slow registration, thus indicating salt domes and igneous rocks being pierced are eliminated as being not adaptable for the drilling of test wells. By the use of the geophysical test, previous heavy preliminary expenses incidental to "wildcat" drilling operations, are eliminated, and excellent drilling sites, offering considerable chance of recovering oil, are selected. The seismograph also locates and defines the correct crest trend of anticlines and other potential oil and gas "traps."

BURWELL

The kittenball season opened with a bang in Burwell last Wednesday evening when two games were played on the diamond on the grounds of the new school house. Tentative games are scheduled for Thursday evening if the lights for the diamond are erected by that time.

Last week the ladies' team, known as the Flyers and captained by Miss Dorothy Paulin were victorious over the Hotshots, captained by Miss Eileen Phillips. Miss Phyllis Messenger is pitcher for the Flyers and Miss Paulin is catcher. The other members of the team are Mrs. Lloyd Carriker, Mrs. George Johnson, Miss Gayle Messenger, Mrs. Guy Anderson, Miss Beth Wilson, Mrs. Clarence Jurgensen and Mrs. Floyd Partridge.

Miss Phillips pitches for the Hotshots and Miss Virginia Johnson catches. Other members of the team are Mrs. Lloyd Smith, Miss Mae Meyers, Miss Thelma Mae Johnson, Mrs. Clara Matern, Mrs. Joe Plakus, Miss Roberta Messenger, Mrs. William Mojors and Mrs. Lawrence Richardson.

The married men's team also won over the single men. Walter Lund pitches for the married men and Floyd Boag catches. The others on the team are Marlon Donald, Jerome Zalinda, William Majors, Henry Douglas, Howard Elliott, Lloyd Carriker, Bud Schuyler, R. E. Leach, Floyd Partridge and Clarence Jurgensen.

Clark Sherman pitches for the single men and Jack Messenger catches. The rest of the team are Arthur Mann, Melvin Edgill, Joe Klinsky, Joe Meyers, Dennis Sherman, Bernard Beck, Jesse Williams and Darrell Simpson.

Several Burwellites who attended the celebration in Ord evidently enjoyed themselves to the utmost. Ray Murphy, while driving home from Ord, bumped into two automobiles. He ran his car into the rear end of the car driven by Dean Moser with such force that Mr. Moser's granddaughter, Una Beth Ashman, who was in the rear seat was thrown into the front seat, sustaining a severe bruise on her head. Mr. Murphy was apprehended by City Marshal Brennehan and lodged in the county jail over night. Monday afternoon he pled guilty in county court to driving while under the influence of intoxicating liquor and was fined fifteen dollars and costs by Judge Rose. His driver's license was also suspended for three months.

Mrs. R. B. Grunkemeyer entertained the bridge club to a seven o'clock dinner in her home Tuesday evening. Mrs. C. W. Hughes who recently celebrated her birthday anniversary was the guest of honor. Mrs. William Bathon baked a beautifully decorated pink and white cake fully equipped with candles in honor of the occasion. Mrs. Hughes was also presented with a gift. Mrs. A. E. Sommerfeld of Stanton, Va., was an out of town guest. Mrs. C. E. Hallock won high score for the evening and Mrs. Sommerfeld second.

Terence McCarthy, prominent Atkinson rancher, who is well known in Burwell, pled guilty in county court Monday afternoon to issuing a no fund check. He was fined five dollars by Judge Rose and compelled to make restitution for the value received for the check which was drawn in favor of Andy Snyder.

One of the large cement gate posts at the entrance to the park in Ord got in the way of James Hahn who was driving a Chevrolet car belonging to Robert Draver of Burwell Friday afternoon. The post proved to be an irresistible object and the front of the car was badly damaged. The car was taken to Johnson Brothers' garage in Burwell for repairs. Mr. Draver's son, Kenneth, was with Mr. Hahn at the time of the accident.

John Bartusek is one hundred and twenty-five dollars sadder and wiser because he loaned his car to a friend Sunday who turned it over near the Eben Moss farm on the highway two miles west of Burwell. The top was dented in, several windows and the windshield broken and the frame sprung. It will cost one hundred and twenty-five dollars to have the car repaired.

Six young men left Burwell via bus Tuesday morning to supply Garfield county's quota for July in the United States army under the selective service act. They, who went, were Chester Dewey Johnson, who served as the leader for the group, Louis Kozeal, Raymond Augustyn, Arnold Fischer, Harold Claybaugh and James Smith. These men will report at Fort Crook for further examinations before they are inducted into the army.

Dean Nixon, who is enrolled in the CCC camp at Halsey, visited friends in Burwell over the week end. Datseluf Rehder, who is a member of the CCC camp at Mitchell, is spending a six-day furlough with his mother, Mrs. C. F. Lenker and Mr. Lenker.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Mqurett entertained at a reception and a shower in their home Wednesday evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Albers, who were recently married. Games and visiting provided entertainment for the affair which was very largely attended. Mr. and Mrs. Albers received many gifts from the large number of friends and neighbors who came in to wish them success and happiness in their marriage.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Sewall of Newton, Ia., arrived in Burwell Friday where they visited his brother, Julius Sewall, his sister, Mrs. Charles Conner, and his uncle, P. H. Mohr, and other relatives and friends. They returned home Sunday evening.

Mrs. Ed Hahn and daughter returned Thursday from San Diego, Calif. where they went about a month ago to join Mr. Hahn who has an excellent position in an aeroplane factory there. Mrs. Hahn did not like living in California and returned for an extended visit with her husband's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hahn, and with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Zalud.

Mr. and Mrs. D. C. McCarthy and Miss Huldah Bennett drove to Grand Island today where they are attending a three-day conference of the employees of the Farm Security Administration in central Nebraska.

The ladies' Auxiliary of the American Legion will meet in the Legion hall Tuesday afternoon. At 6 o'clock they will entertain their husbands and families to a picnic supper in Riverside park. All Legionnaires, Auxiliary members and their families are urged to attend and to bring well-filled lunch baskets. In case of rain the supper will be served in the hall.

Wayne Woods, Paul Kern and Miss Gwendolyn Beynon, all students in the University of Nebraska, spent the fourth and the week end in their parental homes in Burwell. They returned to Lincoln Sunday with Miss Sarah Jones who was a week end guest of her sister, Mrs. Osce Johnson and Mr. Johnson. Miss Jones, who teaches in the Hastings schools, is attending the summer session of the University of Nebraska.

Mr. and Mrs. James Butts were dinner guests Sunday in the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Walford.

Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Conner and family were called to Kansas last Thursday by the serious illness of her mother.

The Misses Dorothy Duncan, Janet and Jeanne Berryman, Beth Troxell, Margaret Jean Walker and Marcella Wheeler returned to the Restmore camp on the river west of Burwell Monday where they will spend the week camping, fishing and swimming. The mothers of these young ladies will take turns in cooking for them and chaperoning them.

BURWELL

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Linkswiler were called to Scotia Sunday by the illness of his mother, Mrs. Grant Waters, whose condition is critical.

Miss Dorothy Paulin spent the week end in Lost Springs, Kas., where she visited her mother. On her return trip she visited friends in Hastings, where Miss Florence Rainforth joined her and came to Burwell as a guest of Miss Paulin. Miss Rainforth will return to Hastings Friday.

The WPA sewing center in Burwell was closed Monday, depriving nine women of their livelihood. Miss Dorothy Paulin, Garfield county assistance director, said all such projects in Nebraska employing less than ten persons have been ordered closed. The reduction of the WPA personnel has been found necessary, Miss Paulin explained, since the appropriation for WPA has been reduced five million dollars.

Miss Paulin spent Monday morning in Hastings where she conferred with WPA officials attempting to convince them that the sewing center in Burwell should not be closed. The fact that all of the men in Garfield county eligible for WPA have one hundred per cent work assignment on the paving project in Burwell contributed to her failure in convincing the officials that the sewing center should be continued.

While she was in Hastings the officials received an order to close all sewing centers employing fifteen women or less. This order applies to the center in Ord.

The sewing machines will be left in Burwell for the present. Miss Paulin says that the closing of the sewing center will not affect the distribution of clothing at the present time as there is quite a supply on hand. All nine women employed on the project are in need and desiring private employment. Any person having employment to offer these women is urged to see Miss Paulin.

The last of the surplus commodities will be distributed in Garfield county this week according to Miss Dorothy Paulin, the assistance director. Miss Paulin says that it may be a short time before the stamp plan is gotten into operation but that she hopes to have the necessary arrangements made by first of August. Instructions in the use and the purpose of the plan will be given to small groups of clients at a time.

Threshing Proves Small Grain Crop Biggest in Years

Barley is Best Crop, But Oats, Wheat, Potatoes and Beets Are Fine.

The first threshings of grain have proven that most early estimates on yields were too low, something that very seldom happens in Nebraska. While very little threshing has been done, what has been threshed and combined gives a definite picture of the trend of the crop.

Barley is the biggest single crop with about 40,000 acres being harvested. The little field on the hillside just south of Ord has been harvested and made 30 bushels per acre. With this as a sample, many fields on the level should make up to 50 bushels per acre. The quality of the grain is exceptional this year also.

There are about 10,000 acres of oats, 1,000 of rye and 800 of wheat in the county, and wherever the stand is good an abundant crop is promised. Ten acres of wheat raised by Lynn Cochran on the Bill Sack place in Springdale was combined and produced 19 bushels of fine quality grain per acre. The stand was thin but the heads were exceptionally large.

Dealers in Ord report a large sale of binding twine in spite of the fact that many places are selling this year that did not handle twine before, one dealer states that he sold 560 bales of twine this year as compared with 220 bales last year. Where so much twine is needed, he believes there must be a lot of grain.

The weather remained dry until practically all the grain was cut, a fact for which the farmers are thankful. A heavy rainstorm at the wrong time could have cost the farmers thousands of dollars. In fact, a few fields lodged anyway, the weight of the grain causing the stems to buckle.

Early potatoes are about ready to go on the market, and are reported to be a fine crop, except where the vines have been damaged by insect pests. The farmers have had the standard potato beetle to fight, also the slender, striped beetle, and now reports are coming in of depredation by the gray beetle, which is the hardest to destroy of any.

All beets are looking exceptionally fine, and promise a higher yield than last year. This is due, not only to the fact that plenty of water has been available for irrigation, but also because rains have been plentiful and well scattered throughout the growing season.

Due to the fact that so much of the corn crop is still small for this time of the year, the corn yield at this time is still a question, but the prospects were seldom better. The stand is good in most places, and there is plenty of moisture for present needs. Another crop or two will insure a bumper crop.

Aluminum Drive Plans Complete

Boys and Girls Will Help Legion Auxiliary In Drive Monday.

A meeting of various Ord groups was held at the city hall last evening, the leaders being called into conference by Mayor M. B. Cummins for the purpose of completing plans for the used aluminum drive, which will start next Monday all over the nation.

Present besides the mayor were Ed Whelan and Guy LeMasters, representing the Knights of Columbus Boy Scouts, Rex Jewett, representing Scout troop No. 194, Mrs. Keith Lewis, president of the American Legion Auxiliary, Mrs. V. W. Russell, representing the Junior Auxiliary, Mrs. C. J. Mortensen, national defense chairman, and Mrs. Forrest Johnson, local defense chairman.

Also present were the guardians of the five Ord Camp Fire groups; Mrs. E. L. Kokes of the Soangetaha; Mrs. E. J. Osentowski of the Tawanka; Mrs. Alex Cochran of the Aowakiya; Mrs. Ed Gnaster of the Cheskamay; and Mrs. John L. Andersen of the Eluta. A number of other interested persons were present.

Mayor Cummins called the meeting to order and announced that the purpose of the meeting was to plan the aluminum drive for the city of Ord next Monday, July 21. He then called upon Mrs. Lewis, who, as head of the Legion Auxiliary is head of the group conducting the drive. Mrs. Lewis then explained the general plans for the drive as they had been received here from the department office.

One point that was emphasized was that all metal gathered will go to smelters designated by the

A. Turek Sentenced on Drunk Driving Charge

Albert Turek was arrested by Chief of Police L. H. Covert July 8, and was brought before John L. Andersen, county judge, July 10, where he entered a plea to guilty as charged. He was sentenced to 30 days at hard labor, ordered to pay the costs of the action in the amount of $6, and ordered not to drive a car for the period of one year.

At the trial it appeared that Albert and his brother Otto had purchased beer at the Kasal beer parlor on July 8, and that he had tried to drive the car to the Rice Service station while under the influence of liquor to have a flat tire repaired. It was while he was making this drive that he was picked up by the officer.

As a result of the charge against Turek, Emanuel Sevensker, who is employed at Kasal's beer parlor, was arrested July 11 on a charge of selling beer to Albert, who is a minor, 19 years of age, according to the age given in his driver's license. Sevensker was fined the sum of $10 and costs of $7.95, which was paid and he was released.

Frank Paddock Draws Court Sentence Friday

Friday in Judge John L. Andersen's court Frank Paddock entered a plea of guilty to a charge of contributing to the delinquency of a minor, and drew a sentence of 15 days and was ordered to pay court costs in the amount of $8.40.

The offense occurred Sunday evening, July 6, at National hall, when Paddock was seen by P. J. Cohen, deputy sheriff, to buy two bottles of beer, take them outside and give one to Dudley Hurlbert, who is only 15 years of age. Since there is no specific provision in the law in regard to giving liquor to a minor, the delinquency charge was filed instead.

Co. "I" Annual Reunion Comes Late in August

O. W. Clark, secretary, has posted cards announcing the date of the eighth annual reunion of the members of Company "I", 13th Infantry, which will be held as usual at Russell park, Ord, the date being August 31, the Sunday immediately preceding Labor Day.

This day was chosen some years ago as being the most convenient, since it gives those coming from a distance an extra day to get back to work. All will bring a picnic lunch, with enough extra for the bachelor members of the group. Drinks and paper plates will be furnished locally.

Burwell Housebreaker Steals Cash at Night

(Special to the Quiz)
A short, dark man, partially disguised by the dark glasses he was wearing, awakened Mrs. Mae Eveleth from her sleep about 1:30 o'clock Friday morning and ordered her to open the safe belonging to H. C. Robbins for whom she keeps house. The unannounced visitor was armed with a club and a flash light. He had already visited Mr. Robbins bedroom where he was sleeping, rifled Mr. Robbins trousers' pockets and took his keys and thirty-five dollars in currency without awakening Mr. Robbins.

The thief ordered Mrs. Eveleth to open the safe. She demurred, maintaining that she did not know the combination. Unfortunately the door was shut but not locked and the marauder opened the safe and took a tin box containing notes and other valuable papers. Then he left. Mrs. Eveleth or none of the neighbors heard a car. Mrs. Eveleth called Andy Snyder, an intimate friend of Mr. Robbins, who went to the Robbins residence immediately. Mr. Snyder called Sheriff Johnson. A careful examination was made and it was not learned how the prowler gained entrance to the house. None of the windows had been forced. It is believed that he unhooked the screen door with a wire or similar object.

National Defense Boards for Every County Organized

State and County AAA Men Will Head the County Defense Boards.

An important step was taken recently in collaborating national defense when it was made the first order of business in the Department of Agriculture for the duration of the emergency that exists. No new setup was planned, but the already existing AAA setup is being used to form an organization for any defense emergencies that may arise.

A recent order by the president of the United States established the office of agriculture defense relations in the office of the secretary of agriculture, thus bringing home to the rural districts the important role that agriculture must play in the problem of national defense. As much of this work as possible will be done with those who are already in the work of the AAA program.

While the chairmanships will impose an additional burden upon what is already a heavy task, they offer to AAA workers wider opportunity to take a vital part in the whole defense program. These boards are established because of the increasing amount of defense activities affecting the farmer. Through this cooperation the defense program will go forward as a united effort.

In each county the chairman of the AAA county committee shall serve as chairman of the agriculture defense board. In Valley county this is Charles Veleba. It is understood, of course that these chairmen act as such only in connection with defense activities affecting farmers, and in cooperation with other established defense organizations.

Autos Needed Monday.

Loses Control of Truck; Crashes Into House

Burwell—At 7 p. m. yesterday a potato truck driven west on the street on the north side of the Burwell Butter factory got out of control of the driver, Don Edwards, 17, and crashed into the north side of the building on the west side of the street owned by Gruenkemeyer and occupied as a residence by the Vernon Dye family, who were seated at the supper table. Nobody was injured but a right tire of the truck blew out, the front axle was bent, and then there is the hole in the house. Lyle Meyers coming from the north in an older truck narrowly escaped hitting the Edwards truck as it passed through the intersection. Luckily no one was injured, and no great damage was done.

Food Stamp Plan To Be Initiated In Valley County

County Board Approved a Tentative Plan at Session Tuesday.

At their meeting held yesterday the board of supervisors of Valley county approved a tentative plan to put the Food Stamp plan into effect in the county. This plan has been sent through the Lincoln office to the regional office at Chicago for their approval. If approved the plan will go into effect here August 1.

Assuming that the plan will be adopted the local office is busy transferring the commodity load in the county to the stamp plan, and it is hoped that the work will be completed by August 1. Yesterday Frank Kruml, Valley county director of assistance, stated that meetings are being planned to educate and instruct all eligible persons on how to participate in the operation of the stamp plan.

The present commodity system stops the first of August, and there will be no more commodities on the present basis. N. C. Sorenson, who has been in charge of the office, will be the only man to be retained in this work, and he will have charge of the distribution of surplus clothing. The office will be closed in its present location, it is believed.

Surplus clothing from the sewing center for the time being will be continued on the same basis as before. Families certified as eligible to participate in the stamp plan will purchase a designated amount of stamps which will be issued as orange stamps. They will then be given free one half the amount in blue stamps, with which they can purchase any of the items which have been designated as surplus commodities by the Surplus Marketing association.

The Valley county plan differs somewhat from that adopted in counties first adopting the stamp plan in Nebraska. There will be no stamp issuing office in Valley county. All cases eligible for stamps will be certified to the state stamp office in Lincoln, and stamps will be purchased there through a mail order plan.

Well Known Citizen Takes His Own Life

Dependancy Over Death of Wife to Blame For James Cech Taking Own Life.

This community was shocked Sunday evening when the word spread that James Cech had taken his own life by hanging. He was found by Joe Novosad. Mr. Cech has made his home with the Vincent Vodehnal family since the death of his wife January 16, 1940. He has been morose, has tried a couple of times to take his life and was watched closely by the Vodehnals. Mrs. Cech was a sister of Mrs. Vodehnal.

The family was in the house Sunday afternoon getting ready to make a trip out to the cemetery when Mrs. Vodehnal asked her husband where Jim was. "In his room," replied Mr. Vodehnal, as he had seen him there a few moments before. Nothing more was thought about it for a little while but when they were about ready to go and went to call Mr. Cech, he was not in the room. Thinking he was out in the yard under the trees where he was accustomed to sit, Mr. Vodehnal went to call him. Falling to find him he went to a neighbor and asked if he was over there or if they had seen him, but they had not.

Ord Badminton Players Contest in Tournament

A badminton tournament was held at the courts at the Daryl K. Hardenbrook home Friday evening, with sixteen players participating. The affair took all the evening and afforded a great deal of amusement and exercise for the players.

El Dlugosh and Ellis Carson earned the winning team, with Kent and Melvern Ferris as runners up. In the consolation, Carson, who had bought back in place of an absent player, paired with Don Severson for first, and the runners up were Bernard Behrends and Mrs. Hardenbrook.

Fine Summer Rain Fell Most of Day Saturday

The longest dry spell of the year was broken quite definitely Saturday when rain fell most of the day and also well into the night. The rain was light at all times, but every drop soaked into the ground, and a total of .64 of an inch fell, according to Horace Travis, weather reporter.

Except for 18 of an inch which fell here July 10, this was the first rain of the month. Farmers on the whole are well pleased with the fact that most of the grain was harvested without a heavy rain. The crop in most fields was so heavy that a heavy rain, or a rain with a heavy wind would have caused the grain to go down.

The latter part of the week also witnessed a most unusual weather condition when the thermometer fell far below normal temperatures and remained there for several days. The coldest reported was 51 on the morning of July 12, which established a record not equalled in recent years. It was so cold that the Quiz automatic heating plant started up operations, something that has never happened in July before.

Kovanda Returns; Rousek is Hired at North Platte

Three Ord Teachers Hand in Resignations; Miss Hallen Returns.

Monday of this week J. A. Kovanda, teacher of agriculture in the Ord schools for ten years, announced his intention to return to the work here after six months absence, during which he has been employed by the government setting up defense projects in the public schools of the state.

Uncertainty of the future of the work in which he was interested made him decide to return. The future of the work depends entirely upon whether Congress will pass an appropriation for the purpose, and there was no certainty that this would be done. The possibility of a job without funds to keep it going did not appeal to him.

Edwin Rousek, who was hired to teach agriculture in Ord in the absence of Mr. Kovanda, has signed for a job at the agriculture experiment sub-station at North Platte, where he will be superintendent of experiments in hogs at the same salary he received while in Ord. His work in Ord during the semester he taught was highly satisfactory to both the faculty and the students.

The news that Mr. Kovanda has decided to cast his lot once more with Ord will be received with real satisfaction by his many friends here, where the family has lived for more than a decade, and where Kovanda has given many young men the start that is carrying them far in their chosen career. Farmers will be hoping that he starts his well known "Back Post" column in the Quiz again when he returns.

Other changes are due in the teaching personnel of the Ord schools, due to the resignation of three teachers: Miss Ruth Kernode, teacher of social science in the Ord high school, is now visiting in California, and has decided to make her home there.

Misses Aldeon Swanson and Lois Buckley have resigned as teachers in the grade school. Miss Swanson plans to attend college, and Miss Buckley is married, as stated in the Quiz last week. Miss Daisy Hallen, after taking a vacation for a year, will return this year as teacher in the grades, but the other vacancies have not yet been filled.

Eleanore Wolf is Ill With Spinal Meningitis in Lincoln Hospital

Ord friends will be shocked today to know that Miss Eleanore is very seriously ill in Bryan Memorial hospital in Lincoln. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wolf were sent for Monday and Mrs. R. E. Noll drove to Lincoln to take them down. Miss Eleanore had been delirious for two or three days and had a high fever, but she knew her parents when they arrived at her bedside. Tuesday morning she seemed a bit better and while she had been having three nurses constantly for several days, it was decided that Mrs. Wolf would stay, have a cot in her room and assist in caring for her, allowing Mr. Wolf to come home to attend to his duties here. An hour later Eleanore took a turn for the worse and was placed in the iron lung and a radio call was sent out for Mr. Wolf, asking that he return to the hospital at once. He had left the hospital with the Nolls about 10 a. m. that was Tuesday, and as they were driving into Grand Island an officer stopped them and gave them the message and they turned around at once and went back to Lincoln, arriving there about 2 p. m.

The diagnosis had been that Eleanore was suffering with a streptococcal throat, a serious enough trouble. Her physician is Dr. John Misko and there are four other cases in Lincoln that appear to be the same. They are in different parts of the city and the only connection known is that all five of the girls went swimming last Saturday, the trouble developing after that. Eleanore had been having trouble with badly infected tonsils and as she had just another week of school work, it was planned that she would then have her tonsils out.

It was late yesterday that Eleanore's trouble was diagnosed as spinal meningitis, at least that is what Mr. Wolf told Ralph Misko when he called him from Lincoln this morning. Asked by Misko what the trouble with her was, he replied that they thought it was spinal meningitis. Mr. Wolf is still in Lincoln or was this morning. He said they still had Eleanore in the iron lung and that her condition this morning was a little bit better.

Miss Ethel Ollis, who has been visiting the Ollis families here, left for her home and work in Kansas City this morning on the bus.

FOOLED JULIUS CAESAR.

A lot of Quiz readers can remember the long nightly sessions they had while in school with a certain book of history known as "Caesar's Commentaries," "Gallia est Omnes Divisa, etc." It was pretty tough sledding at first, but after you got further over and started building bridges across the Rhine, it really became interesting.

A little farther along we find that, after building the bridge across the Rhine, Caesar apparently decided that discretion was the better part of valor, and didn't carry on much of a campaign on the east side of the river. The Germanic chieftains invited him to visit them, and he did so, according to his own admission, and he was much impressed with their fighting ability.

Like all explorers in new territory, he asked a lot of questions about the flora and fauna of their land. They, finding that he was willing to believe almost anything they chose to tell him, narrated some truly wonderful tales of the animals that inhabited the forest known today as the Black Forest of Germany, and which, so far as we now know, contains no animals more fierce than the cuckoo birds for German made clocks.

They told him of an animal seen in the woods which had one horn, and that projected from the center of its forehead. Sounds like a unicorn, but who ever saw a unicorn? Then there was a truly remarkable species of alces, or elk, built much like the standard deer and elk of those days except that it had no knee joints. Of this animal Caesar has the following remarks to make.

"For these the trees serve as beds. They lean against them, and by doing so, obtain sleep. The hunters, knowing of this habit, and learning which trees the elk are accustomed to use, dig under them on the opposite side, and when they lean against them as their custom is, the trees fall down and they fall with them. Being unable to rise, because of the lack of knee joints, they become an easy prey to the hunters."

Julius Caesar was one of the wisest men of his day, and yet he swallowed that story without question. Any ten year old in America would know better today, but the trouble is that the German chieftain has changed his stories to suit the times. He has told them in such a convincing way that the wise men of many nations have been completely fooled.

Austria, Czechoslovakia, Poland, Denmark, Norway, Holland, Belgium, France, England, Hungary, Roumania, Bulgaria, Yugoslavia, Greece and Russia all heard the tales Hitler told, and they hoped and believed he was telling the truth. What he told Lindbergh we do not know for certain, but we do know he believed it. Yes, since the beginning of history the rulers of Germany have been telling tall stories and getting away with them.

In "Mein Kampf" Hitler uses the statement that a life as a means to an end is always justifiable. That the people may not believe it at first, but they will believe it if it is repeated often enough. At the outset of the Russian conflict he promised some startling disclosures in a few days. All he has to say of late is that the campaign is proceeding according to schedule. Perhaps it is not exactly a lie. More than likely he has changed the schedule to fit present conditions.

All the little nations of Europe believed what Hitler told them, and believed to their own destruction. The only nation that did not believe all that Hitler said was Russia, and even they believed that the non-aggression pact would protect them. In the meantime they prepared for war, and when Hitler started trouble they were ready for him. Hitler made his fatal mistake when he made his attack on Russia.

THE PRAIRIE SCHOONER.

The prairie schooner was an institution in the days when the west was young, and a most important adjunct to the settlement of the mighty west. It was the development to meet a necessity, a means of transportation from the more populous east to the free land country. The earlier wagons were all hauled by oxen, and the majority of those that brought the settlers into Nebraska used this means of locomotion.

Oxen were plentiful in those days, and horses were scarce and high priced. It was only natural that the immigrants from the east should use the most economical means of locomotion. Travel by ox-team was slow, but the element of time was not so important then as we seem to think it is today. They lived off the country through which they passed, and the cattle got their living in the same way.

permanent building of wood or stone. The wagon was also used in making trips to town to bring home supplies.

The day of the covered wagon has gone long since, and most of the younger generation has never seen one except at some kind of a frontier fair. But in its place has come another institution which appeals to the lover of the great outdoors, the trailer. Today trailer camps are to be found in thousands of cities and towns, and thousands of families live in trailers and trailer camps the year around.

Like the covered wagons of old, they are made for the rich and the poor. The rich travel and live in them to get away from the city and at the same time take the luxuries of the city with them. The poor travel in them from place to place following the harvest and keeping near whatever work may be available to them. Like the covered wagon, the trailer was developed because of popular demand.

In Bible times the families traveled from place to place to find forage for their flocks, a nomadic custom that still prevails in those regions. The human race since the time of recorded history has taken pleasure in traveling about in this fashion, partly from necessity and partly because of the outdoor life and the enjoyment of visiting new places. But the once popular prairie schooner is gone, never to return.

My Own Column

By H. D. Leggett

John Ward was telling me last Wednesday evening that his annual vacation was just over, whatever he meant by that. His wife returned the same day from her visit in Illinois.

I expect to be reading some mighty fish stories soon, as Bill Maupin is due to return from his annual vacation and fishing trip to Minnesota. I learned, long ago, not to tell any tall fishing yarns, for the boys just look around at each other and wink, no matter if I purposely tell my story way under the actual facts.

If I was to tell fish stories as big, according to the size of fish I actually catch, as Theron and Clarence and some of the boys do, I would be run out of town.

And I don't have any more use for Senator Wheeler of Montana than I do for Charley Lindbergh of Minnesota or Pennsylvania or wherever he is from now.

An Ord little boy turned down an opportunity to make a trip down town, for what reason do you think, because he didn't have any money to buy something with. I believe it is a bad thing to teach the children, as soon as they are out of the cradle, to hurry and spend every penny or nickel or dime they get. Neither should we go to the other extreme. Not much satisfaction in a kid working hard to earn money unless he can enjoy spending some of it. But surely he should be taught to save a part, or to spend it for necessities, not all of it for luxuries.

I would like to have a few good pickle recipes. I wonder if some of the friends of the Quiz will send them to me. I have a lot of fun canning and preserving and pickle making.

Irma writes that they are enjoying blueberries up at Cullen and can have all they want for the picking. And it is about as much fun to pick them as it is to eat them, even if you do get a few mosquito bites.

While listening to the band concert Wednesday evening I thought what a wonderful thing it is for the young people of Ord and surrounding territory to have a chance to learn an instrument and put their knowledge into actual practice the way our youngsters are doing. And what a bright, fine looking lot they are too. And if you will take a little time to think back and recall former Ord students who took active part in the music band, orchestra, singing, you will perhaps be surprised to find that almost all of them are a success in whatever they are doing. They are really going places. If they are participating in this work along with their other school work they don't have much time to get into mischief and they form habits of industry. I hope that everyone of my grandchildren will want to and be privileged to take advantage of this department of school work.

It seems to me as though, if I owned a dog, I would call him into the house instead of allowing him to bark continually and spoil a couple of hours of the best sleeping time in the morning for all my neighbors in several blocks around. There is an ordinance against this but naturally people hate to complain about their neighbors. If, however, a neighbor has no more consideration for his neighbors than to allow them to be thus annoyed, the neighbors should not hesitate to complain. And I also think in a well regulated town like Ord is, the night watchman, when he hears a dog barking continuously from 4 to 6 a. m., should find out whose it is and warn the owner to take care of it.

Synthetic Odors

Chemists have synthesized certain floral odors which can not well be recovered from flowers. Perfumes having the true scent of lilac or lily of the valley, for example, were not to be had until the chemist synthesized these elusive and delicate odors.

This week we present another of those interesting old time photos, taken by W. A. Anderson at the Nels Andersen place, a mile west of the Ord cemetery, in about 1922. The picture is taken looking to the northwest. The house has been changed some since the picture was taken. The Chris M. Hansens live there now.

The kiddies on the balcony are, left to right: James Mortensen, Anna Mortensen, and Jennie, Mrs. C. M. Hansen; the group in the foreground are, left to right: Christine Andersen, now Mrs. Albert Olsen of Cedar Bluffs, Nebr., J. M. Anderson, now of Ashton, Ida, Hannah, now Mrs. Wm. H. Thomas, Ashton, Ida., Peter Sorenson (with the beard), now dead, and Pete Andersen, now living in Omaha.

The couple to the left on the porch are Mr. and Mrs. Nels Andersen, with Anna, Mrs. Charles Lickly, between them. The other couple are Mr. and Mrs. Knud Mortensen, and Alfred, now at the V. C. C. camp at Minature, is standing just in front of his mother. Mrs. Lickly is now living in Ord, but the old people were gone long since.

PERSONAL ITEMS ABOUT PEOPLE YOU KNOW!

—Frank Tetrow and Ruby drove up from Fullerton Saturday, did shopping and called on old friends for a few hours.

—Miss Lorene Benson, daughter of Mrs. Marguerite Benson of North Platte, left for her home Thursday morning after visiting her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John Benson, since Decoration Day.

—Bert Needham and Charley Hunt were busy a part of last week putting the grainery on the Mrs. Capron farm across from Elyria, ready for the abundant harvest that is in sight. This farm was formerly the old Johnson farm.

—Syl Furtak has received a letter from Ensign Anthony Kokes, aboard the U. S. S. Dixie, presumably in Pacific waters, in which he states that he is enjoying his work very much, but that he thinks his chances of getting back into his school work are very slim.

—Miss Ethel Ollis arrived from Green Mountain Falls, Colo., Wednesday evening, and is visiting in the homes of her brothers, Will and James Ollis, until some time this week. She will then return to her home and work in Kansas City. She came to Ord first to attend the McPheeters' wedding in June, and went from there to Colorado.

—O. P. R. Bell, who had been working at carpenter work west of Elyria, came to Ord about ten days ago suffering with what Dr. C. J. Miller pronounced a case of housemaid's knee, probably brought on by working on a roof, shingling. He has been unable to leave the Will Ollis home, where he is recuperating, but is gradually improving.

—Miss Wilma Ollis returned on Friday afternoon from Kansas City where she is taking a nurses' training course in the Research hospital. Her father, Will Ollis, drove to Grand Island to meet her, and she plans to visit here until about the first of August.

—Floyd Williams of Portland, Ore., visited Ord relatives and friends the latter part of last week. He is the son of D. L. Williams, formerly in the harness business in Ord for many years. Floyd is a nephew of Tom Williams. He is employed by Swift & Co., and had been in Chicago taking some work at headquarters and while east bought a new automobile and was driving it home.

—John Baron, son of Mrs. Anna Baron, living west of Elyria, went out to his binder which he had left standing in the field, Saturday morning to go to work and when things didn't work as they should he found that some miscreant had stolen the bull chain off the binder during the night. The boys think they know who did the dirty work and no doubt a day of reckoning will come for the fellow who got the chain.

—Mr. and Mrs. John P. Misko, Jimmie and John, returned Wednesday afternoon from an outing of more than two weeks, all of which was spent in various parts of Colorado. They visited, among other places, Denver, Grand Junction and Mesa Verde, and had a most enjoyable trip all the way.

—Just after completing the job of cutting grain on one of Mrs. Capron's farms which he rents, last Friday Vic Kerchal drove his tractor onto a knoll and the machine upset with the binder attached, rolling over two or three times. Vic jumped clear of the machine, saw it rolling after him down the bank and scrambled on ahead. He would jump to his feet only to be knocked down by the revolving sweeps of the binder and this happened a couple of times before he could get entirely out of the way. A less active man might have been seriously injured or killed. Only minor damage was done to the machinery.

BUD SHIRLEY.

Kinder little skinny feller, Standin' hardly five feet five, But where character is figured, Ain't no bigger man alive. Ain't no tall an' stately figger, Bud's a little short on weight, But he's taller, heaps, than malice An' he's heavier than hate.

Bud, he ain't so much to look at, Guess he ain't so young no more, But he totes a youthful spirit An' he's willin' to the core. Swinging stride ain't quite so lively, Little holler in the chest; Where strong men is really needed, Figger Bud amongst the best.

Bud ain't much on education, Never read a lot of books, But he's read a lot of people, Kinder know 'em by their looks. Sorter squints an' looks you over, While he's bitin' off a chew; An' when he turns aroun' to spit, He knows you better than you Ma.

Bud, he ain't much on religion, Never seen him in a pew, But if you need a humble Christian, Then I guess ol' Bud will do. Never had a lot of money, Mostly meets his bills on time; If you honest, really needs it, You can have Bud's last thin dime.

Eat ain't much on war an' glory, Jus' don't like to think of gore, But if his country is in trouble, Figger Bud for any chore. Tote a gun or pull a throttle, Push a pencil or a plow; Or wherever he is needed, Bud he jus' fits in somehow.

My ol' home town needs Bud Shirley, Needs his meekness, needs his might; Needs him when the times is likely, Needs him more when things ain't right.

My ol' town is fond of Budkie, Loves his tired, earnest face. Let me ask you somethin' neighbor, Where's the man to take Bud's place?

—Pat Fuson.

Something Different

So now I see by the papers they are going to slow us all down, saying that people who drive at 25 miles per hour get the most distance from their gasoline. And that if drivers slow down voluntarily, the government may not have to rule for gasless Sundays.

The movement is beginning in the Far East of our country, where the most gasoline is burned. As usual, Ickles tossed the first bombshell, and after the indignation dies down and we grow used to the idea, it likely will be more heavily emphasized.

Well, I suppose slowing down won't hurt us, and to the contrary. We once drove at 25 miles per hour and considered it a giddy speed. Now, however, it will be something like trying to teach children bread is a treat after they have been raised on candy.

Something brand new in highway safety warnings is being installed between our summer cottage and the Twin cities 150 miles to the south of us. It is called a "Telasped." You come down the highway past the first detector and a junction warning. Thirty-six feet beyond a second detector registers the speed of your car... guess where?

On the signboard for you to read! And to be a lesson to you!

A thrill, a real thrill up here at Cullen Lake is to visit the ranger tower five or six miles north of us. Of course it is situated on an eminence, and by driving up the hill a wonderful view of the countryside is obtained. Green and gorgeous the pines stretch away in every direction.

Some of them are near and tall spires, some of them tiny and distant. The sparkle of lakes interrupts the green occasionally. But I must admit to being a dreadful sis. Although we have several times taken guests to this Pequot Lakes ranger tower, and the guests have climbed the tall steel pile of steps, I am no climber and stay put on the ground below.

They do tell me I miss a lot. From the top of that slender tower it is said that 12 lakes may be seen, and a much finer ciew of more countryside. A bigger green quilt.

Unless they bring the view down to earth I am afraid I will never see it. Just a sis.

Something new on the northern horizon of upper Cullen this morning gave a moment of alarm. Smoke billowed slowly into the air across a broad piece of the blue sky. Some of it looked black and threatening, but at any rate it seemed to be rising from a considerable area. We thought it was a forest fire and what of all our beautiful trees? It could sweep down on the Cullen Lakes so quickly.

After a bit we decided perhaps the rangers were burning brush and clearing out dead trees. We don't know, but we hope they are. We haven't any special reason for deciding this, but it is a more comforting thought.

The Old-Fashioned Girl

By JAMES SIMPSON
WNU Service.

"JOAN never had a beau," Joan's sister Emily confided to her visitor. "And you know one can't include girls like that in our parties. Anyhow, I doubt if Joan would care about the crowd any more than the crowd would care about her. Poor kid! I often wonder what will become of her."

"Oh, well," said Emily's house guest, who was deftly making up her face before the mirror. "Old maids aren't looked down on the way they used to be. She will probably find a school to teach or a typewriter to pound after a while, and very likely she'll be happier than you or I. Only I just can't believe Joan is satisfied for it to go that way. I never knew a young girl who didn't like beaus."

"Well, Joan doesn't. If she did she wouldn't be so standoffish, would she? Can't you just imagine Clark or David falling for an evening in the parlor?"

"But after all," broke in the soft tones of Joan, who had stepped quietly into the room, "she's only 22—much too young to have to consider how young she looks."

Emily laughed. "Thanks, old dear!" she said blithely. "But it's these late hours, you know. I admit you look younger, although you're actually a year older, but you'll have to admit that while I may grow old a bit faster I have more fun as I go, won't you?"

"Oh, I don't know," Joan sighed. "After all, what fun is there in wasting time on a lot of men who don't really interest you?"

"They'll interest you if you interest them," Emily laughed a bit sharply. "But it must be mutual, Joan, dear. There's the bell. It must be David and Clark. Now, he is a real catch, Joan, and every girl at the party will envy me tonight. Won't you go down and entertain them while we finish dressing?"

When the gay little party had gone Joan sat out on the vine-screened porch alone lost in thought. She had overheard a part of the conversation about her and it hurt a little. Would a fellow like Clark Howard think her hopeless? When she had said that she didn't care a lot for dances he had asked her curiously, "Well, what would you care to do on an evening like this, Miss Joan?" And Joan answered half bitterly, half earnestly:

"Why, I'd like to sit out on the porch with a handsome young man and listen to the radio. And very likely I'd make some fudge."

She wondered now if he were having a wonderful time dancing with her pretty sister, who was always clever and amusing.

"Is the fudge cooking?" a voice broke in. "And could I substitute for the handsome young man?"

"But," exclaimed Joan, with her engaging honesty, "you are the handsome young man! And I can put the fudge on immediately, only—" she hesitated.

"Oh, I know. You mean to remind me that I shouldn't have run away from the dance, but your sister had a waiting list of partners. And I really never get a chance to talk to you, you know, since you're so uninterested in our modern frivolities."

An hour passed all too quickly for Joan, and when Clark thought he had better get back to the dance he suggested that he come over another evening, and Joan laughingly agreed.

But that was the first of several stolen evenings for Clark and Joan. They found a world of mutual interests and Joan made delightful fudge. Or sometimes it was a delicious dessert with coffee, or sandwiches and tea. They said nothing to the others, Joan because of a shy fear of surprised, sarcastic comments, and Clark because, as he said, "he didn't want to spoil it."

But the time came when Clark's visit to Westfield was about to end. "It's a great little town," he said to Joan, "and I hate to go, but after all, I'm rather anxious to get back to my practice, for I've a new incentive now."

When Joan glanced up questioningly he suddenly reached for her hand and drew her toward him in the seclusion of the vine-clad porch. "I've found something in Westfield," he declared, "that I didn't know was to be found anywhere, a genuine, true, sweet, old-fashioned girl. You're the incentive, Joan! Please say you love me too, dear!"

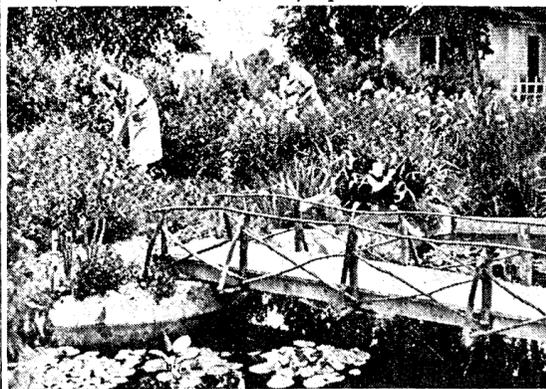

That night as Joan entered Emily's room the latter was saying to Martha, "I declare, we've seen practically nothing of Clark Howard these last few weeks and I hear he's leaving tomorrow. I darsay Rose Trennan has got him."

"About Clark Howard," Joan put in, her cheeks flushing. "I think I have some news for you. We're to be married Christmas."

An amazed silence, which Emily was the first to break.

"Why, Joan Hayward, what a perfectly silly joke! My stars, it must be true!" for Joan was beamingly showing a new diamond ring on her left third finger. "Well, then, all I have to say is this, that if a man like Clark Howard has fallen for Joan, it's all tommy-rot about the modern girl being preferred. The old-fashioned girl must have a racket I should know about!"

Ord Has Many Beauty Spots This Year

The Flower Garden at Rev. Long Home.

Ord is certainly a lovely city this year, and it is little trouble to find spots worthy of a picture. Above are shown two of the outstanding beauty spots in Ord. The upper photo shows the flower garden and bridge at the P. K. Jensen home, with the Jensen sisters, Clara and Minnie looking after the flowers. Below is shown Rev. and Mrs. M. Marvin Long at work in their flower garden to the rear of the Methodist parsonage. Flowers mean a lot of work, but these photos prove that they are worth it.

Fungus Disease Killing Many Grasshoppers

Last week Howe Elliott McClure, assistant leader of the Upland Game survey, brought to the Quiz Studio the above twig containing the bodies of a number of grasshoppers attacked by a fungus disease. From Mr. McClure the Quiz obtained the following information in regard to the fungus:

According to the authority of the late Prof. Bruner of the University of Nebraska, who was state entomologist, the fungus was first discovered in 1856, and belongs to a group known as empusa. The grasshopper eats the spores of the fungus and is attacked by the disease through the alimentary canal.

In wet weather, such as we have had the past year, the fungus can and does strike through the body walls as well as being eaten. It eats the tissues and muscles, finally eating the vital organs. When about to die, the grasshopper, for some reason not determined, climbs to the top of weeds or grass and dies there with its legs securely clasped around a stem.

The fungus continues to grow and in time the abdomen becomes so full of spores that it bursts open and the spores are scattered by the wind. The fungus is present in quantity at all times, but cannot be used in grasshopper control, since its virulence depends upon the weather, and there is enough of it to handle the grasshopper problem in most wet years.

In speaking of grasshoppers Mr. McClure told of a flight of grasshoppers he witnessed June 27. They were of two types, with red and yellow under their wings. They arrived at Wood Lake from 7 to 9, and at Ainsworth two hours later, from 9 until 11. They dropped from the sky in such quantities in both towns that they were thick in the streets after the flight.

After the Honeymoon is over

Stop throwing tomatoes at your car, mister. And lady, remember, scowling gives you wrinkles. So both of you, let up and listen to simple common sense.

Just three months ago, after you bought that car and nursed it through the break-in period, you bragged to all your friends that it "runs like a watch... makes 16 miles on a gallon... licks cars twice its size and price getting away on the green light."

Now that the honeymoon period of your new car ownership is over, why let yourself get sour on a possession that should be, and can be, one of your most useful and pleasurable?

Tell your troubles to your car dealer. He's an honest, able business man, anxious to hold your good opinion. He may find the engine needs some minor adjustment, some squeaks require a squirt of oil, the brakes may take a little pumping-up.

Then fill the tank with a truly great July motor fuel, Phillips 66 Poly Gas. That's the gasoline motorists never tire of recommending. It is not only high anti-knock, high test, high energy... but it is more accurately matched to monthly changes in your weather.

Yes, sir!... yes, ma'am! it does things for your engine. You may find it makes your car run like new again. It delivers real pep and power... sweeter pick-up and easier hill-climbing. And mileage that's a real surprise.

Forget your "mad", and make up with your car, by stopping for a trial tankful of new Phillips 66 Poly Gas... at any Orange and Black 66 Shield. It costs nothing extra.

Phill-up with Phillips for Greater Mileage

She would be glad to hear from old friends and to see them if they happen that way. The street address is 916 Brandtforte Street.

—Quiz readers are familiar with the Nebraska picnic held annually in Los Angeles or Long Beach for former Nebraskans. Now comes a letter from the management of the picnic at Seattle for former Nebraskans. It will be held in Lincoln Park on August 3 and they want all former Nebraskans to attend. The Washington Club of Nebraskans is incorporated and now has 2500 members and Nebraska newspapers are being asked to send the two issues just before the picnic so that they may be looked over by those who attend the picnic.

Aluminum Drive Plans Complete

government, and that this is not a drive for the benefit of junk dealers. Instead it is a united drive by all the people of the United States to gather and turn over to the government all aluminum that has outlived its original purpose.

The mayor announced that Bob Noll had offered the use of his building and scales for the delivery and weighing of the aluminum. It will be gathered up and taken there by volunteers who are asked to furnish cars for this purpose. The articles will be counted, the loads weighed, and the group credited for the amount brought in.

After it is gathered the aluminum will be sent to smelters designated by the government, who will pay for the metal at regular rates, and the money therefor will go to the civilian defense fund. The importance of a publicity campaign was stressed, and it was decided to contact the residents of Ord between now and Monday and have them gather up their old aluminum and have it ready for the collectors.

Mr. Jewett then got out a plat of the city of Ord and it was divided into sectors, the five Camp Fire groups, the two Boy Scout groups and the Junior Auxiliary to gather up the aluminum, beginning at 8:30 a. m. Monday. As the plan was finally worked out, the Boy Scout groups will gather everywhere east of 17th street, and the girls will do the collecting west of 17th street.

In addition to the publicity given through the Quiz, all agreed that all other possible means of publicity should be used. Pastors of the various churches are asked to announce the drive from their pulpits Sunday. About 30 boys and 50 girls will take part in the drive, and it is hoped that the collecting of aluminum will be completed by noon Monday.

The Valley county organization for the aluminum recovery campaign for National Defense has been set up and the campaign will be under way next week in all the towns and rural districts of the county. The County Committee is composed of the Chairman of the County Board of Supervisors, the County Agricultural Agent and the Mayors or Chairmen of Board of Trustees of the cities and villages of the county. In each town the Mayor is in charge and with the cooperation of local organizations a house to house canvass will be made.

County Agent C. C. Dale is in charge of rural areas and for the country the committee has worked out the following procedure. The director of each school district is chairman for that district. Collection day will be Friday, July 26th in all rural areas. The director in each school district is asked to see that some responsible person is in charge at the schoolhouse on that day to receive donations of aluminum.

School district directors will receive full instructions by letter from the County Committee. In the town of Elyria, Mike Kusek is in charge and he has also set Friday, July 25th as collection day in Elyria. People of that village are asked to bring their aluminum to him on that day.

Diamond Home On Furlough. Eddie Diamond, who has the distinction of being the county's first volunteer selectee, arrived Saturday evening from Fort Leonard Wood, Mo., and will spend a 28 day furlough with pay visiting Ord relatives and friends. Eddie was still a little pale from a month in the hospital, but is feeling fine, and says he sure likes life with the 20th infantry. He has been in the service since Jan. 27.

Golden Heart

By RALPH EMERSON
WNU Service.

"SAY! Take your heavy weight off my glass case, will you, Butch?" laughed Wayne Taylor.

"That's my new case and . . ." "Sure, sure, anything to oblige," returned Butch, shifting his weight to the other foot and grinning at his friend. "Why we ever took up with each other is more than I can make out, Wayne. You with your millionaire father and his acres of greenhouses. And my dad a hard worker all his life—"

"Oh, well, you and I are both working hard enough now, certainly, even if we did take it easy in college," returned Wayne, cutting off a tiny cluster of golden-hearted roses.

"Got an order for those?" asked Butch carelessly. "N-not exactly. But a girl comes in here every night and spends a quarter for flowers. Curious thing, too, she doesn't dress like a girl who can afford to spend 25 cents a day for flowers—"

"Getting kind of soft over her?" asked Butch hastily.

"No women in mine, Butch. Now or ever! Just a selfish bunch of grabbers, every one of them."

Thoughtfully, Butch picked up one of the tiny roses and cracked the stem in four places before his friend took it out of his hand.

"Boob!" laughed Wayne, "first you try to lean your great hulking weight on my best case of flowers and then you snap off the stems of flowers I'm going to sell. On with you, boy, and continue counting the nickels in folks' telephone boxes. Some day, with good luck, you'll be manager of the telephone company."

"Betcha," Butch said cheerily. He found that his bus had left three minutes before. Eighteen minutes remained until the next one and Butch decided to collect two near-by telephone boxes. Springing up the stairs of an old-fashioned flat building, he knocked at the door. Ordinarily it was unlocked and the thin, pleasant voice of an elderly woman in a wheelchair answered his knock. Tonight, however, a slender girl in pink opened the door.

"Telephone man," he said briskly, showing his identification card. Butch put his black carrying case on the floor beside the funny little writing desk that held books on one side. Deftly Butch inserted his pass-key and let the nickels slide forth into his hands. The girl had returned to the tiny kitchenette and was peeling boiled potatoes.

"Nice day, wasn't it?" he said to the little old lady in her wheelchair. "Yes, indeed," she answered cheerfully. "Emma, dear, you forgot to bring in the water for my flowers."

"Just a second, grandmother. Thought I'd get the potatoes started first—you must be starving. I was a little late tonight—"

But Butch heard nothing more. He was looking at the golden roses in the old lady's lap—golden roses in a tiny cluster, one stem cracked in four places.

Emma had gone to the sink and was filling the vase and the old lady looked after her with affectionate eyes. "D'you know what I just found out that dear child has been doing?" she said.

Butch shook his head, his eyes still on the golden roses. "Why, the girl that works in the same office with my Emma stopped in tonight and told me that Emma has been going without her luncheon every day to buy me flowers on the way home. You see, I've always lived in a small town and I always had a nice big garden full of flowers. But when grandpa died and I had my stroke—a person who likes flowers never, I reckon, gets over liking them."

Butch counted his coins rapidly, then hurried back to see Wayne.

" . . . and some way or other, I believe I have fallen for that girl," Wayne told Butch a half hour later when Butch dropped in at the florist shop. "You know, I've never even thought of her in that way until you put it into words tonight and when she came in for the flowers—say, she'd just take your breath, Butch—great, big eyes—she just looks big-hearted but—" here Wayne sighed. "I suppose she is a gold-digger along with all the rest of them."

"And suppose I told you that like those roses with hearts of gold this girl of yours had a golden heart, too," said Butch slowly. "Suppose I told you that she had gone without her noonday meal every day so that her grandmother, who loves flowers, might have a little cluster fresh every night, eh?"

"I'd say it sounded like a fairy tale," grinned Wayne, "and you couldn't tell me anything like that for you don't know her name any more than I do. But I'm going to find out—"

"Her name is Emma Martinson," said Butch, "and—say, where are you going, eh?"

"You stay right here and watch the shop for me," said Wayne. "And give me her address, pronto, see? If you sell a lot while I'm gone—well, when I've popped the question and all maybe I'll let you be best man. Who can tell, eh?"

Silently Butch took his place behind the counter.

Nine Selectees Entrained For Army Last Thursday

Thursday morning nine selectees from Valley county left over the Union Pacific for Omaha to go into the service of the United States army. Two of them, Oscar John Larsen of Ord and Everett Merrill Howell of Ord, failed to pass the physical examination and returned.

Those who passed were: Raymond Donald Barr of North Loup, Armin Julius Lueck, Roy James Rambo and Leo Lawrence Kapusta of Arcadia, and Arnold R. Crosley, Meno Wayne Fuller and Darrel Raymond Fish, all of Ord.

No Threshing Machine Near, Farmer Buys One

W. C. Alexander, living north of St. Paul in Greeley county, used oats as a nurse crop for alfalfa. The oats developed into a bumper crop, but Alexander could not find a threshing machine when he wanted one, and he needed to get the oats off the alfalfa.

Deciding that the best thing to do was to buy a new threshing machine, he contacted all the dealers in this part of the country until he finally located just what he wanted at Wichita, Kas. His son, Franklin, drove there and brought it home on a truck, so now his worries are over.

About that time Mr. Novosad saw the Vodehnals running around like they were excited and started over as Mr. Vodehnal tried to open the barn door. It was fastened from the inside and he asked Mr. Novosad to open it, sensing that something was wrong. Upon entering they found Mr. Cech had hung himself and was apparently dead. Sheriff Round was called and he cut the man down and called Pearson-Anderson to get the body.

Funeral services are being held today from the Ord M. E. church, with Rev. B. A. Phillip of Clarkston having charge of the services and interment is in the Ord Bohemian cemetery.

James Cech was born December 9, 1869 and would have been 73 at his next birthday. He was born in Austria and came to the United States 57 years ago, coming directly to a farm in northwestern Valley county. He was married in Valley county in the spring of 1891 and with his wife moved to Burwell in 1913 which was the family home until it was broken up by the death of his wife the 16th of January 1940. Since then he has made his home with his brother-in-law, Vincent Vodehnal, in Ord. They had no children and he leaves few relatives. There are only three close relatives, so far as we can learn and they are in Moravia.

James Cech was a fine man, liked and respected by all who knew him. Those who knew them tell the writer that he and his wife were more like a couple of lovers than like two old people and after her passing he had been despondent, taking no interest in things. He was well to do financially.

Rose Paddock Granted Divorce Here Monday

Through her attorney, John P. Misko, Rose Paddock sued for divorce from her husband, Frank Paddock, in District Judge Wm. P. Spikes' court Monday. She charged cruelty, non-support and intoxication, and asked for the custody of their two minor children, Lina Mae, 3 years and 5 months, and Betty Jo, one year and one month.

Paddock entered a voluntary appearance the same day. Judge Spikes granted a decree of absolute divorce, custody of the children, and ordered the defendant to pay all costs, including the plaintiff's attorney's fee of $50, and also to pay alimony in the sum of $25 per month, beginning Aug 15, 1941.

Thank You. I want to take this means of thanking fifty or more Quiz readers and friends who handed in from two or three or four local news items for this weeks paper. It is a big job to gather and write, set in type and put into the pages the amount of news we have this week and John and I couldn't have done it alone. And I am sure John joins me in expressing our appreciation for your assistance.

And I am sure that the editor and Irma would appreciate it if you who assisted us this week, would continue, in the coming weeks to do as you did this week. I believe you would soon come to enjoy it, too. You would take pride in having a part in having so much news that people would say, "Isn't the Quiz newsy this week." Again I thank you for your help this week.

Group Favors Kroger For Federal Judge

A movement has been started in Grand Island boosting District Judge E. G. Kroger for the position of new federal district judge in Nebraska, it being understood that the president of the United States will in the near future appoint a third federal district judge in Nebraska.

In a resolution passed here Monday by the Valley County Bar association and signed by Clarence M. Davis, president, and Ralph W. Norman, secretary, the organization placed itself behind the movement, setting forth Judge Kroger's qualifications, and also the fact that a third judge should be located in a place accessible to the western and central part of the state.

Thinks School Will Be Fine Now.

Dwight Waddington of Santa Monica, Calif., completed a course of Visual Training with Dr. Parkins last Friday. Previous to consulting Dr. Parkins, Dwight had read just enough to enable him to pass his grades in school and could not understand why people would read for pleasure, since for him reading was a difficult task indeed. After a few days training Dwight found he could read a short story with comfort and from then on all of his spare time was spent in reading. The height of his enjoyment was when he found he could attend a movie then go to his room and read until midnight without having any discomfort.

Dwight was especially pleased to know that he would not need to wear glasses so he left for home a very happy boy, fully convinced that school work would be easy from now on.

Crossing of Cattle

The late Maharajah of Mysore was the first to cross American milk cattle with the hump-backed Sinds breed of India, according to cattle experts. He obtained a prize Holstein bull in Seattle and crossed him with a long-horned Sinds, which had established a record of 740 pounds of milk a year. The offspring produced more milk in two months than her champion mother had in a year.

The engineer is George Wall of the Cheyenne-Laramie run, of Laramie, Wyo.

Fossilized Mermaid

A fossilized mermaid has been found in the Santa Cruz mountains, in Santa Cruz, Calif., and Prof. Ventriss L. Vanderhoof of the University of California stated that it dates from the Miocene age. The skeleton, embedded in the earth, has been classified as a metaxerium and measures about 16 feet in length. The bones will be added to the collection of the university. It is believed to be the second oldest skeleton in western North America.

Wild Monkeys

The Barbary apes of Gibraltar, the only wild monkeys in Europe, belong to the macaque family and are native to the Barbary coast of northern Africa. It is believed that they were originally imported by the Romans or Moors, and that their existence is not a proof that Europe and Africa were at one time connected at this point. There is a saying that the British will leave when the apes do, so that the British authorities have secretly imported fresh breeding stock when the number of apes began to dwindle.

Meals-Appeal

By AMY SMITHERS (Associated Newspapers.) WNU Service.

IT WAS Aunt Dora's diary that started it all. Aunt Dora kept close track of everything that happened to any member of the family. This morning she had read out to Naomi:

"Why, it's just three years ago today that Tom Tyler was introduced to you, Naomi. Three years—m-m-m—three years." It was not so much what she said. It was the way her voice had trailed away softly into silence that hissed as it started.

Oh, Aunt Dora didn't say that she thought Naomi was a flat tire. Dear, no! Dear, gentle Aunt Martha wouldn't hurt the feelings of a mosquito. Naomi, nevertheless, caught the gleam, three years was a long time to "go with" any man without having at least the offer of an engagement ring. Naomi had never heard Tom mention the word marriage in any positive, definite fashion.

Tom stopped in twice a week and allowed himself to be persuaded to have dinner with them. He had a habit of saying admiringly: "You certainly look 'cute' in that apron, Naomi! If there's anything a man likes to see it's a pretty girl in a pretty apron. It makes him think of home and mother and good meals and so on. That's the way to get 'em—meals—appeals! There's nothing like meals—appeals!"

"Three years," Naomi whispered to herself as she frosted the layer cake. "Three years! Why, Alice Parker met Jim Parker only a year ago and they're—married!"

She opened the drawer to find a fresh tea towel and saw the pretty little organdie apron that she had laid there for the evening. At that moment her Aunt Dora walked into the kitchen.

"Making marshmallow frosting?" she asked. "Tom always likes your marshmallow frosting."

"Marshmallow frosting!" said Naomi, suddenly. "Why, I wouldn't give Tom Tyler a mouthful of this cake if his tongue hung out of his head a mile! And if I ever put on that apron again it'll be because some one fastens the rags on me when I'm dead!"

When that evening Tom Tyler cheerfully ran up the stairs of the apartment building he was astonished to meet Naomi coming down. "Where're you going?" he asked. "Oh—out," she said, with a shrug. "Out?" he echoed. "Out? Out where? You're such a domestic little home body—why, Naomi! I always think of you as being home." This last was said with a reproachful glance that might, had it not been for Aunt Dora's diary, have melted her completely.

"Pooh!" she remarked airily. "Home body, indeed! I guess I have stayed at home too long—about three years too long," she added in an underbreath.

"But where are you going?" "Why, I'm going out to dine, if you must know," she said demurely.

"Alone?" he demanded. "Ah, yes—unless," she dimpled, "I meet Prince Charming at the door, awaiting me in a coach and four or an eight-cylinder car of cream color with brown bandings. I just adore cream-colored cars, don't you, Tom?"

He eyed her uneasily. "Say, will it be all right if I go along with you?" he asked.

"If you can finance yourself—yes. Otherwise, no." She spoke candidly.

"Well," he said a half-hour later when they were settled at a central table with an orchestra playing a vigorous melody, "I—I guess I don't understand women at all. I—why, I thought you liked to stay at home and cook and wear little soft-looking aprons—"

"I don't," she cut in heatedly. "I hate to cook."

He stared at her. "Jiminy, I never knew you were so pretty, Naomi. You look so—so demure."

"Demure!" she scoffed. "Let's dance this while they're hustling along the fodder, eh?"

"Pep," he murmured, well-pleased. "Ah, you have it, my dear. Pep! Super-pep, eh? And that pretty dress, I never saw that before Did I?"

"I guess you never saw me before either, maybe? Huh?"

And that night when he took her home after a movie and a little bite of supper they talked for a long, long time in the living-room. When he left, Aunt Dora came out.

"Didn't Tom stay rather—late?" she asked gently.

"Well, now that you speak of it, Auntie, I guess he did, a little," said Naomi softly. "And if it isn't midnight yet, I have a little entry for your diary today. If it's after midnight it makes it a day over three years. Tom and I are going to be married some time next month, Auntie."

"Well, now," murmured Aunt Dora. "We'll have to enter that item in the diary in red ink. Come to think of it, I had no black ink the day you met him and I entered that in red ink, too!"

IT HAPPENED IN ORD.

So many things happen in Ord that we could fill the whole paper with them, and a lot of them are rather comical. For example, an Ord man wanted some ribbon for a certain purpose and went into an Ord store to buy it. He said: "I want some red ribbon an inch and a half wide." The sales lady looked around and finally said: "We don't have it, but we do have some blue ribbon an inch wide."

Another Ord man, a fisherman, tells this story, which is true in spite of the source. He went into an Ord store where fisherman's supplies are kept, doubtless looking for some of those special fisherman's rules. He bought some leader material, and then asked about some files. The clerk told him he didn't have any files, but that he had some fine line and sinkers.

Then there was the group of ladies who were in a meeting or party or something of the sort one day last week. They got to talking about things worth while, including the Quiz, and one of them said she always read the Boss's MOC stuff. Another lady then asked what MOC stood for. The first lady said she did not know, but she thought it stood for Mail Order Company, but she did not know which one.

Yesterday John Ward started out looking for news and was gone about an hour and stopped in a dozen different places. At the last one he found that his hat (83c at Brown-McDonald) was missing, so he retraced his steps, inquiring at each place if anybody had seen his hat. He finally gave it up and came back to the office nearly broken hearted, only to find the hat hanging on the nail where he always hangs it. It is a good thing that his head is fastened on.

Auble Motors have sold seven new and used threshers this season. Exchanging the old for new will make for a better job of threshing done in this community this season. 48 bushels per acre barley has been reported.

July 16, 1931.

One of Ord's earliest business men, Frank Misko, passed away at his home in Ord at the age of 73 years, but the business he founded in 1882 is still carried on at the old stand by his son William.

Seven year old Tommy Rowe of Scotia attempted to cross the road in front of a gravel truck near the river bridge and was instantly killed.

Ord and the other towns on No. 11 were boasting of an all-weather road to Grand Island, following the completion of the gravel project.

Doug Barber of Olean was too much for the Ord Delco Light baseball team, holding them to 3 hits and winning 10 to 0.

Frank E. Lloyd, another of Ord's early day business men, passed away at his home in Long Beach. He was a retired banker and lumberman.

Ord lost another sterling business man in the passing of Charles Partridge, who had been proprietor of Hotel Ord since 1901. He was 70 years of age.

The First National bank reorganized, with the same officers in charge as before. The directors were Frank Koupal, Joseph P. Barta, Wencil Misko, James Milford, C. H. Leonard, R. G. Wicks, Mrs. M. B. Goodenow, W. C. H. Noll, James Petska, Jr., H. W. Travis and C. B. Gudmundsen.

July 14, 1921.

The Quiz ran a very interesting and very correct story of the wild man found up in Wheeler county, illustrating it with a picture of the said wild man, and the bluff in which he dug his cave-like home.

The three year old son of Bert Harris, who came to Ord from Horace and ran the former Bill Timm store a few months, was electrocuted at his father's store in Omaha when he came in contact with a high tension wire.

There was much complaint of people driving about the country without having the lights lit on their autos. In many cases it appeared that there were no lights.

Sealed bids were being asked on a building to house the Ord post-office, then located in the south part of the Milford building. Jim settled the matter to please all concerned by building on to the south end of the building and giving it the required floor space.

Also along the line of auto regulations, the state gave out the information that home made lenses for auto headlights would not be approved, and that these must be of some make approved by the state in order to be legal.

July 13, 1911.

With Miss Lillian Francel as the bridesmaid and Dr. F. A. Barta as groomsmen Miss Mary Francel and John F. Shurtz were married by Rev. Kroupa at the Ord Catholic church, July 10.

The management of the Valley county fair announced that the new race track had been completed and would be in good condition to use during the fair in September.

Rev. Walter N. Halsey, once pastor of the Ord Presbyterian church and then dean of the University of Omaha, underwent an appendectomy and was reported rallying nicely.

W. W. Haskell was chosen to represent the new Ord Commercial club at a meeting of the Associated Advertising clubs to be held in Boston.

W. A. Dye was appointed manager of the Farmers Telephone office in place of Alvin Blessing, who found his duties as postmaster took all his time.

The report of July Fourth fatalities showed that 39 were killed in one day over the nation. This year the average for three days was more than two hundred.

July 14, 1901.

Mr. and Mrs. Den Davis of North Loup were the parents of twins. The item did not state whether they were boys or girls, but they probably were.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Mortensen and Crawford set sail from New York for their visit to Denmark.

The Burlington depot at St. Paul was totally destroyed in an early morning fire, together with the household goods of the agent, who lived upstairs.

There was a fine prospect for a spring wheat crop, and corn was not suffering from lack of water. There was very little winter wheat in Valley county then.

Rollin W. Bond's York band, hired to play for a street fair in South Omaha, got into trouble with a band of union musicians, and had to have the protection of the police force.

Miss Eva Warwick, daughter of J. H. Warwick of Plain Valley died of typhoid fever only a week after the death of her mother.

Dr. E. J. Bond was in a very serious condition and little hope was held for his recovery.

M. L. Fries, Arcadia's well known statesman, left for a few weeks visit to California.

July 16, 1886.

J. M. Provins sold a half interest in the Democrat to Byron Griffith, who had been employed in the office setting type for some time.

A prairie fire was raging in the hills in the west part of the county, in a section which had not been pastured and where the grass was long.

H. H. Pisk had taken over the barn east of the square (the Blue Barn?) and was going to run it as a feed and livery stable.

The people owning buildings on the west side of the square were putting in some good substantial walks fourteen feet wide in front of their places of business. The walks were made of lumber, of course.

G. W. Milford was offering a ten dollar prize for the most elegantly dressed lady on the fair grounds the second day of the fair.

A. M. Daniels, the furniture man, had commenced the erection of a building just north of the H. W. Nelson place, which he then occupied.

Because the county board had permitted anybody who needed lumber to haul away the lumber of the old river bridge, the Quiz recommended that two six-year-old boys and an old woman be elected as commissioners.

A peddler representing the Boston Tea company was canvassing the county, and Cleveland Bros. were offering to meet his prices and even discount them five per cent. Which proves that we have always had tea peddlers and probably always will.

NEWS OF THE NEIGHBORHOOD

The village of Comstock entertained a large crowd at their 4th of July celebration with quite a crowd from the neighboring towns of Arcadia and Sargent. The ball game between Sargent and Arcadia teams was won by Sargent by a score of 6 to 1.

A. C. Van Housen, retired farmer, harvested his oats crop on his ground in Schuyler last week, cutting it with a scythe, binding it into bundles and making a total of five shocks out of it. The account did not say whether he planned to thresh it with a flail.

John Fidler repeated his fine shooting at the Roebottomann's farm near Palmer on July Fourth when he broke 25 bluebirds in succession for the second successive time. The next high man had only 17, and the man in third place broke 16.

The Custer county board of supervisors voted last week to adopt the government food stamp plan, and a group of 22 grocers in the county will participate in the plan, which will probably be put into effect about the first of August.

The Spalding band has been invited to play at the Howard county fair this fall.—Travis Brown of Spalding suffered many bruises and severe cuts last week when his car went into the ditch and threw him through the windshield.

Bobby Nelson's first experience at farming ended disastrously at Dannebrog last week when he was driving a hay rake on the Roy Welsh farm and the team ran away. He dropped the lines when they started to run and held to the seat with both hands until he was jolted off.

A car containing 1,416 bottles of contraband liquor was seized by the authorities at the Barber Garage at Fullerton last week. The driver was not present at the time, and he evidently became suspicious and disappeared. The liquor was valued at $1,500.

Mrs. Gertrude Boehle, resident of St. Libory for 56 years, was buried there Thursday, at the age of 79 years.—S. M. Sonderup, pioneer farmer of the St. Paul community, died July 3, following a fall he suffered at his home. He was 83 years of age.

I see by the Oregonian that Evelyn Sharp was in Bakersfield, Calif. It said she was from Ord, Neb., a typical sandhill town.

The laws here are very strict on drunken drivers as they give them a fine of one hundred dollars and take their driver's license away for one year. A driver's license costs $1.50, one dollar goes to the state and the 50c goes into a fund to provide hospital expenses for indigent persons who are hurt in accidents.

Today the U. S. army trucks and soldiers are passing by on their way from somewhere in California to Ft. Lewis, Wash. It will take them about three days to pass.

LETTERS FROM QUIZ READERS

Ellory Palmatier Writes.

Shanghai, China, Thursday, June 5 Dear Mother and Dad: Tomorrow we arrive in Shanghai so had better catch up on the writing. It's been a good trip, but a long trip, only one stop, Honolulu in 14 days at sea. We are covering about five hundred miles in 24 hours. The Pacific is really beautiful this time of year. The mild breezes are really swell and so peaceful. We have traveled 6,261 nautical miles by noon tomorrow since San Francisco. That is 7,343 of your land miles (nautical miles are 1-1/8 land miles).

We are all looking forward to Shanghai. It is one of the finest cities in the Orient. Many Americans, Russians and Europeans live there. It has beautiful hotels and night clubs, and one can forget ships and the sea for a while. From Shanghai we proceed to Hong Kong and Manila then we return to Hong Kong, Shanghai and Japan before we start on our long voyage to Honolulu and San Francisco. Each trip we travel nearly the distance around the world. I wish I could take you and papa along on one of my trips some time.

I have many opportunities to make around the world trips, not many of the printers like that run as they miss all European ports since the war. Ships travel around the African continent instead of through the Suez canal. Will close and write from Manila.

Lots of love, Ellory, San Francisco, Calif., July 6th, 1941

Dear Mother and Dad: Well for once the President Coolidge not only came in on time, we are one day too early.

The army is taking it over as a troop ship, although it will still carry passengers for the Orient. I was sure as to whether or not they would keep it on the trans-Pacific run, and need a change of scenery anyway, so have decided to go out Tuesday noon, July 8th on the S. S. President Grant on an around the world voyage. So will have to work out some sort of a mail schedule for you to reach me. After we leave the Hawaiian Islands we sail for Japan (subject to not hit Japanese port) Shanghai and Hong Kong, China, also Kowloon, Manila, Philippines, then we sail for Singapore and Penang.

Ports of call in the East Indies group, known as the Malayan Straights, from there we go to Ceylon and Bombay, India, and way around the continent of Africa to Capetown, then to New York City, Havana, Cuba, through the West Indies to Central America, via the Panama Canal to Los Angeles and San Francisco. The trip will take slightly over 3 months, and please don't worry as we will stay out of war zones considered dangerous to shipping, and out of the Red Sea and the Mediterranean.

It is of great importance that I make this trip at this time and could not have found a more opportune moment.

I have very much to do before we sail so will try to write more from Honolulu and the other ports of call also will send some pictures and maps.

With oceans of love, Your son Ellory.

Old Friend Writes. Yoncalla, Ore. July 3, 1941.

To the Quiz: And all friends in Valley county. Well the Fourth has past and gone for another year. So I thought I would write and let you know we are still alive and not starved out.

Things are doing very well in this country. The crops so far are very satisfactory. Small grain is good and what corn there is, is looking fine, although this is not a corn country, they tell me corn will yield well but will not mature or dry properly.

We have had a wonderful garden of early garden stuff, such as peas, radishes, lettuce, onions, etc. The peas I ordered from a certain hardware store in Ord made a wonderful crop. Fruit is a good crop here. Have had all the early berries we wanted and blackberries are not ripe yet. Apples, pears, prunes, plums and grapes give promise of a crop.

There seems to be plenty work for anybody who wants work at good wages.

I see by the Quiz you have had some heavy winds and rains there. We have had plenty rain so far and scarcely any wind. The rain comes straight down, you don't have to close your windows, hardly ever hear any thunder. This is the hottest day we have had. I suppose it is around 75 above zero. The nights are cool so as one must have a blanket or two.

I see by the Oregonian that Evelyn Sharp was in Bakersfield, Calif. It said she was from Ord, Neb., a typical sandhill town.

The laws here are very strict on drunken drivers as they give them a fine of one hundred dollars and take their driver's license away for one year. Know These Persons?

The old timer last week should have been easy to guess, but at that we had only three correct answers that arrived late Friday. The first came in at 5:15 Wednesday p. m., when Mrs. Joe Rowland said it was H. G. Westberg. Mrs. Harvey Parks knew him as soon as they received their paper, about noon Thursday. Mrs. Clarence Brestley of North Loup guessed correctly Friday. This week we have two old timers who were quite a common sight on the streets of Ord a generation ago. Phone your guesses in as soon as you think you know them.

Mrs. J. Summers Names People in July 2 Photo

Mrs. J. Summers, San Francisco, Calif., identifies the Hather-Holman group in the July 2 issue as follows: Back row, Fred Hather, Mrs. Ed Holman and daughter Ermlina, one of Mrs. Holman's sons, Frank Holman, Ed Holman and Lucy Hather.

Front row: Fred Hather's hired man, Mrs. Fred Hather holding Lillie, her mother, Mrs. William Holman, Ernest Hather, William Holman, Fred Hather's mother, Mrs. G. T. Hather, with Mable Anderson (Abernethy) in front of her and Hattie Hather standing back of her, Mrs. Henry Hather holding Pearl, Mrs. John McLain holding Arthur. ## IT HAPPENED IN ORD.

Wilfred and Marily Cook, children of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Cook, of Mira Valley, came into the Quiz office Monday afternoon with a fine specimen of the wingless sandhill grasshopper which Wilfred had found on their farm. These insects properly belong in the sandhill country but are gradually spreading to the south. They are esteemed by turkey raisers as ideal food for poulters.

Bill Dodge was down from Elyria Monday showing a couple of white cobbler potatoes larger than baseballs which he got from one hill, and he said there was a third one the same size which he left. They are from an acre of potatoes which his son Junior has as a project. They were planted April 16, the first Wednesday after Easter, have been watered four times, and seem to be doing right well, thank you.

Also on Monday a young man named Edwin, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Hejsek, was in the Quiz office telling us about his model airplanes, of which he has quite a flock out at the Hajsek farm in Garfield county. Some time soon we plan to get a picture and a story about them. Edwin said he would have more of them made if he didn't take so much time playing the violin. Anyway, there is one young man who doesn't believe in wasting his time.

Cloth House For Propagation of Better Flowers

For some time past those who passed a certain corner in the southeast part of town have been wondering as to the identity of a cloth house built there, a photo of which appears above. It is a house built by the Noll Seed company. Perhaps it would be better to say Floral company, since they deal in flowers also and this is for flowers.

It is built on the property of R. J. Clark of a special cloth manufactured in Connecticut for this special purpose. The cloth comes in 33 foot length, so any house is built in that length or a multiple of that length. This house is 33 feet square, and about 8 feet in height. It is in the nature of an experiment, and is the first of its kind in this section of the state, although they are common farther east.

WOOD BROS., THRESHER—55 years in the field. Cost less, do more and better threshing, make you a bigger profit. Liberal terms, 3 seasons to pay.

THRESHES WHEAT, FLAX, ALFALFA. "I purchased a 26x46 Wood Brothers thresher in the fall of 1933 and since then have threshed over 50,000 bushels of grain and about 15 days threshing fodder corn without a cent for repairs.

"I use a 10-20 tractor and keep bundle teams plenty busy as we have run through 88 loads of bundles in a 10-hour day. "The cleaning ability of the Wood Brothers thresher is unexcelled. For example, this fall I threshed a carload of winter wheat which was sold in Minneapolis without a pound of dockage on the whole load. I have also done very satisfactory work threshing flax and alfalfa.

"I sincerely approve, and will continue to boost 'The World's Lightest Running Thresher'."—GLENN W. JOHNSON, Walnut Grove, Minnesota.

Burwell Canning Plant

About Finished for Use (Special to the Quiz)

Orville Marquardt, manager of the Loup Valley Cooperative cannery is pleased with the cooperation of Burwell people, which is making it possible for the cannery to be ready by the time the tomato crop is ready for harvest. When asked for contributions to get the cannery started citizens here gave even more than the specified amount, which was necessary before obtaining a FSA cooperative loan.

Besides the equipment purchased from the Two Rivers and Millburn plants new Cornhuskers and cream style cutters have been added.

It is expected that between 40 and 60 local people will be employed when both the tomato and sweet corn cans are being packed. Shortly after the middle of July table beets will be planted here so that they may be packed after the corn and tomatoes.

Marquardt expects to close down during the turkey picking season at the Burwell Butler Factory in order to get the canned stock out, give the machinery an inspection and to set up new equipment for dry line packing during the winter months.

Marquardt says that the tomatoes are setting on in fine shape and with the rainfall and supplementary irrigation high yields are expected. Varieties are being used which were recommended by the University of Nebraska.

Already the manager has received letters from the brokers wishing to represent this cannery's goods.

John Kellogg's house, 7 miles northwest of Burwell near the Calamus, burned to the ground Sunday night at about 9 o'clock. It is believed that the fire was caused by a kerosene burning refrigerator. Flames were shooting out the roof before the fire department was called. Six firemen, carrying chemicals in a car, went out but were unable to do anything because of the fire's advanced state. The furniture on the lower floor was saved by neighbors but all canned goods in the basement were lost. When the fire started members of the family were visiting neighbors.

Miss Sarah Jones will arrive here Wednesday evening after completing a summer school session. She will visit her sister, Mrs. O. W. Johnson and family until Friday morning when she leaves for California to spend the remainder of the summer with her sister, Mrs. Lloyd Anderson.

LETTERS FROM QUIZ READERS

Valparaiso, Nebr.
July 14, 1941.

Dear Sir:
Enclosed find a check for $2 to pay our subscription to the Quiz for the coming year. We will be located at Valparaiso, Nebr., until the 22nd of August. After that date we will again be at 111 East Prospect, Kewanee, Ill. We enjoy the Quiz even more since living away from Ord than we did when living there, as every word of it is news, even the want ads.

We like our home in Illinois very much. I enjoyed my work there this last year a great deal and am looking forward to some very good years there. We are building up the department from the grade schools on up so that the boys will come into high school with a knowledge of the fundamentals.

The Tunnell boys, Bob and Ed have been doing some fine work for Kewanee and this last spring were considered among the outstanding athletes in the state of Illinois.

We had a most enjoyable visit in Ord last week and since we enjoy reading the Quiz so much we don't want to miss a copy.

Sincerely yours,
H. F. Brockman.

Something Unusual.
James G. Hastings was up at the Frank Bartos farm the other day and noticing the binder he was using was a rather old model, Mr. Hastings made some inquiries. He found that the binder was one that Mr. Bartos bought 29 years ago. It works like a new one, doing perfect work, though it has harvested many thousands of acres of grain. But Mr. Bartos is a farmer who believes in taking care of his machinery and when it is not being used it is not left setting out in the weather but is properly housed. What a drawback it would be to the machinery manufacturers if all farmers did that way. The cost of a machine shed would be but a fraction of what could be saved.

—ALL PRICED BY THE "POUND"

When the method of pricing fresh fruits and vegetables is by the "pound" instead of by "count," you can make more accurate comparisons, ascertain the best values, and get the most for your money. Take, for instance, Cantaloupes, some of them have large seed cavities in the center, and some small cavities. A small cantaloupe can have as much or more edible portion than a large one. Purchasing them by "weight" assures you accurate and full value in every case!

We believe, but have no direct proof, that H. G. Westburg took the above photo, some time about 35 years ago. The occasion was the showing at Grand Island of Barnum and Bailey's circus, and of course some of the gang just had to see the animals.

Only a few of the people are known, but three members of the train crew will be remembered well by those who knew them then. There is Joe O'Brien sitting on the "cow catcher" with his arm around somebody's youngster. The big fellow with the conductor's outfit is Joe Shoemaker. To the right of him can be seen Levi Hamilton, whose "Do not forget your packages" will never be forgotten. Back of Hamilton, wearing a derby hat, can be seen John Auble, who was well known then. The young fellow to the left of Conductor Shoemaker is the now well-known auctioneer, Col. Herman Rice. There are others in the group we should know, but the names just won't come back.

That fellow with the late model Reo cannot be mistaken. He is Charles Siler, now living near Hastings, and he used to sell those Reos from the building which he still owns, just west of the Frazier Furniture rooms. He was out for a demonstration spin with the gentleman on his left, and stopped the car so he would be in the picture.

Monday Judge John L. Andersen issued a marriage license to Victor J. Filipi of Western, Nebr., and Miss Charlotte John, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles John of North Loup. It is understood that the wedding will take place next week.

Horsepower Decreases
Because the density of the air decreases with altitude, a car that develops 100 horsepower at sea level has only 82 horsepower at an elevation of 5,000 feet and only 60 horsepower at 14,000 feet.

Herr Shakespeare
Cultural note culled from the Deutscher Weckruf und Beobachter, New York Nazi organ: Quite a number of people also describe the German classical author, Shakespeare, as belonging to English literature, because—quite accidentally born at Stratford-on-Avon—he was forced by the authorities of that country to write in English.

No More 'Firemen'
"Firemen" no longer is the correct name for men who fight fires, according to Fire Chief Selden R. Allen of Brookline, Mass. Because they work on automobile accidents, drownings and "certain illnesses," he told 500 firemen at a "smoke-tarian-scientists."

Too Much to Count
A fiscal statement issued by the New York World's Fair corporation disclosed that the organization has spent a total of $94,712,238.24 for construction, administration and other expenses from its inception more than four years ago to last December 27, while revenues had totaled $31,149,487.85. Of this revenue, $4,036,711.11 was obtained in 1939 from the fair's participation in concessions.

Free of Inspection
The diplomatic mail of the United States is free of inspection in all countries through a reciprocal agreement and is delivered to our embassies and legations by American couriers, each pouch is equipped with a special lock that records the number of times it was opened on each trip. If this number does not check with the schedule, an investigation is made.

Story Hour Will Start at Ord Township Library

The regular Saturday morning "Story Hour" will start again Saturday, July 19th from 10 to 11. Mrs. Mark Tolen and Miss Daisy Hallen again are graciously donating their time and talent for this year. This hour is profitable to the youngsters and we hope the mothers will remind their children of it Saturday morning.

Miss Smith, the librarian, gave a short talk on "Books" and the library at the Presbyterian Christian Endeavor Sunday evening.

Have you read "Berlin Diary" by William Shirer? For a man to leave Europe after he had spent all his adult 15 years there, as William Shirer left last December from Portugal, must have been a sad proceeding. Sad in spite of the events of the last few years, most of which he witnessed from inside Germany.

Mr. Shirer had been continental correspondent for the Columbia Broadcasting system and when the company's service was expanded he was in charge of the German broadcasts, probably the most difficult assignment in the field and certainly the most ticklish, from the standpoint of censorship and restrictions. It is not likely that Shirer will return to Berlin because almost as soon as he landed in this country he started a book.

This book is exactly what its author calls it, a diary. Evidently it has been amplified a good deal with material that could hardly have been put on paper in Germany. Now that it is on paper, Mr. Shirer must feel a great deal of satisfaction, all the things the censor cut out are on record.

It is quite a record. But although Shirer does not rant, there is a queerly relentless feeling about the book as small incidents and large incidents follow one another and drop into place in the pattern as a whole, and the reader sees how straight was the course, from the day six or seven ago when Hitler began creating his army openly, and the day when the army was sent into Austria.

It also is a record that is fairly familiar by now, what with the dozens of books that have discussed the subject. But there is a remarkable flash and "go" to a good deal of Mr. Shirer's product, due, paradoxically, to the quiet way of his writing. Things like the so-called "mercy killings", the Nazi naval disaster off Norway, these burn sharply into the reader's mind.

Potato Digging Started Monday at Burwell

Big scale potato digging started Monday in the Burwell vicinity. The general opinion is that the quality of potatoes is exceptionally fine.

Glow Fackler's big potato cellar, which operated last year, will begin sorting, washing and sacking Tuesday. Fackler employs some 15 men during the busy season. He has put down a new well which will greatly speed up operations.

Campbell, biggest potato buyer from Scottsbluff, will have a buyer here. All tubers shipped out by him will be sent in feed cars instead of pre-cooling them since it is claimed that this improves their keeping quality.

It is thought that a buyer will be here soon from Chicago.

Doctor Warns Against Encephalomyelitis

Dr. J. W. McGinnis tells the Quiz to issue warning to farmers that encephalomyelitis is prevalent in several places in the county, and that care should be taken to guard against spreading the disease.

Commonly known as sleeping sickness in horses, the disease makes its appearance about this time of year, as a rule. The only safe rule is vaccination against the disease, since there is no effective treatment after the animal contracts the disease.

Ford Tractor Ferguson System

From the brain of Harry Ferguson came an entirely new method of pulling and controlling an implement in the soil. To give the new idea life, the full resources of the world's foremost industrial plan were placed at Mr. Ferguson's disposal by Henry Ford. The result of this partnership of vision and genius was a tractor new in design, different in principle, costing less to buy and less to operate.

That is probably the reason five men in this territory decided to buy Ford tractors in this valley in the last five days, before this new and exclusive tractor advances in price.

Why not be smart and spend perhaps $5.00 to $10.00 interest and save $100.00 or more over next spring and be sure of delivery so you won't be caught short next spring.

Irrigation Water Cut, Farmers Fear Crops Will Suffer

State Irrigation Board Cuts Water in Both Districts About Fifty Per Cent.

Yesterday the North Loup River Water Users' association and the Chamber of Commerce of Ord wired Governor Dwight Griswold, asking his help in securing essential water to save the valley's corn crop.

The telegram sent to the governor over the signature of the Chamber of Commerce read as follows: "Report received that the amount of water available to the North Loup Irrigation district now being cut at this critical time. Little water has so far been used and it is essential now that it be used. Please investigate and help secure essential water to save the corn crop."

Even more vigorous action was taken at Arcadia yesterday with respect to the water reduction for the Middle Loup Irrigation district. The Middle Loup Valley Association Chambers of Commerce met there in a special session and asked that the order curtailing the use of water by the Middle Loup Irrigation district be rescinded at once.

S. B. Warden, Arcadia, presided at this meeting. The resolution was addressed to R. H. Willis, head of the state irrigation department, and copies were sent also to State Engineer Warden Scott and to Governor Griswold.

"The Middle Loup Valley Associated Chambers of Commerce hereby protest the action of the state director of irrigation in cutting the water appropriation of the Middle Loup Irrigation district from 300 second feet of water to 156 second feet of water."

"Such action in the heart of the irrigation season will mean ruination to growing crops in the face of the best crops prospects in the history of the valley."

"Farmers are just beginning to make full use of irrigation facilities during the dry months of July and August and we urgently petition your office to rescind this order and permit the district to use sufficient water to insure and protect our crops."

Walter Newton Woody Answers Last Summons

In the passing of Walter Newton Woody of Arcadia July 6 at a Hastings hospital the county lost one of its oldest citizens, the Arcadia community of Arcadia lost a good citizen and a familiar figure, and the people of the entire territory lost a man who never forgot a friend in time of trouble.

Walter Woody was born in Dodge county, Minn., July 27, 1862, and was 73 years, 1 month and 10 days of age at the time of his death. He was married to Catherine Hekeler, Nov. 7, 1887, and to this union were born 8 children: Bessie, Mrs. A. C. Mather, Litchfield, Alvin of Columbus; Earl of Lewiston, Mont.; Carl of Cheyenne, Wyo.; Paul of Arcadia; Callie, Mrs. Emile Hansen, of Fresno, Calif.; Mrs. Olive Bellinger of Fresno, Calif., and a large number of other relatives.

Mr. Woody first came to Mira Valley in the early '80s, and is a well remembered figure there both before and after his marriage. Since then he and Mrs. Woody lived in the southwest part of the county, moving to Arcadia in 1929. They observed their 50th anniversary there in 1937.

After moving to Arcadia he ran a milk delivery route for a number of years, finally retiring when the condition of his health made this necessary. During the summer he spent much time in his garden and among his flowers, and many of his neighbors recall the bouquets of flowers that he brought them from time to time. He was a member of the Masonic lodge and of the First Congregational church of Arcadia, from which place the funeral services were held.

Joe Miska Injured in Pump Jack Thursday

Little Joe Miska, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Miska, got his left hand into the machinery of a pump jack Thursday morning and so badly mangled and injured the left hand that two fingers had to be amputated. He was offing the pump jack at the time the accident happened, the balance of the family being at breakfast. His father heard him cry out and saw him going toward the house holding his injured hand with the other hand and he could see that it was bleeding. He hurried to his assistance, first shutting off the tractor with which pumping was done. The belt had been thrown off by the impact of the hand in the cogs of the machinery. Frank then brought the injured lad to the Ord hospital as fast as possible and Mrs. Miller and Round dressed the wound. The little finger was amputated close to the hand and the next one had to be taken off including the joint in the hand. The balance of the hand was saved. The tissue was torn from the back of the hand down to the bones and tendons and skin grafting may have to be resorted to later, but it is hoped the hand will heal without doing this.

Young Joe, ten or eleven years old, was heard by his father just the day before, warning the younger member of the family back from the pump jack and tractor, as he thought they might get hurt. He is a gritty lad, and though he showed in his face the effects of the suffering he has been through, he makes very little complaint. He is shown in the group picture of accidents on another page. He will be laid up for three or four months if he makes a rapid recovery.

Will Nielsen Buried on Friday; Wife Very Ill

Will Nielsen died at his home in Winner, S. D., last week after a long illness from cancer and was buried there Friday. He was a brother of Chris Nielsen and well known in Valley county. His wife was Mattie Petersen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nels Petersen, who formerly lived north of Ord and later in northwest Ord for many years. The Niensens have two children, a son and daughter. Mrs. Nielsen is very ill at this time, suffering with the same dread disease as her husband had. Mr. Nielsen was formerly in the implement business in Ord and has been in the same business in Winner for some years.

Relatives from here who went to Winner to attend the funeral were Miss Sena, Thorvald and Alfred Kazand, who are cousins of Mrs. Nielsen.

Story by George Round Wins National Award

Yesterday's World-Herald contained a story of special interest to Ord people. The University of Nebraska agricultural college has been recognized for submitting the best agricultural feature story of any entered by agricultural colleges in the nation during the year.

The story, submitted to the American Association of Agricultural College editors in Kingston, R. I., was sent by George Round, state extension editor, and Richard Hufnagle, soil conservation service photographer. As is well known, George is a son of Sheriff and Mrs. George Round of Ord and a graduate of the Ord schools, class of 1926.

Brick Norman Figures In a Near Tragedy

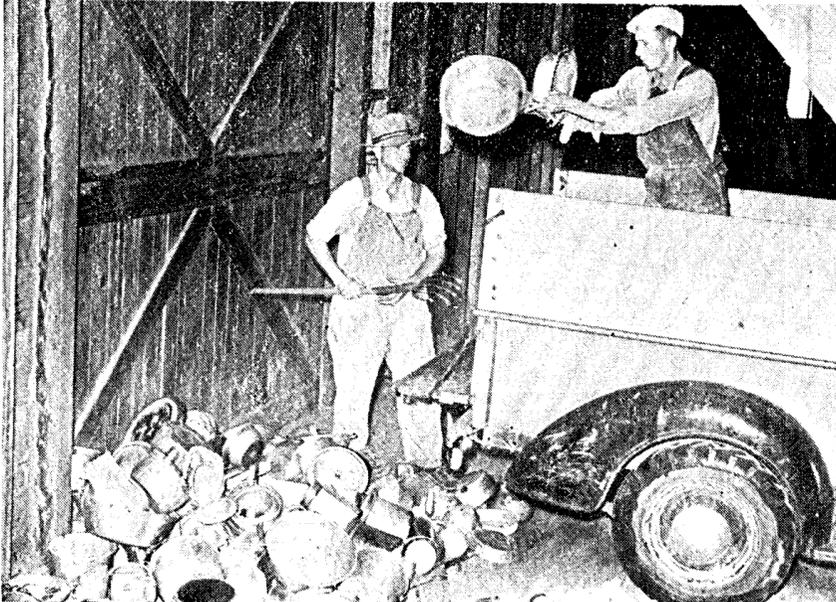

While swimming in one of the drops in the irrigation ditch north of the river and near the Lou Papiernik farm - Sunday Brick Norman had to be rescued by his companion "Stub" Place. The water was coming into the drop pretty fast and when Brick got a bit too close there seemed to be a suction that drew him in and whirled him something on the order of a paddle wheel below a falls and in spite of his best efforts to get out, he seemed to be getting the worst of the battle when Mr. Place, sensing that all was not well, grabbed Brick by the hair and pulled him out. Of course Brick won't admit that he was more than a little scared but the experience might have ended in tragedy had he been alone.

Plays Show and Breaks Arm.

While putting on some sort of vaudeville show in the Anderson back yard Wednesday afternoon, Shirley Beth Anderson fell and broke both bones in her right arm just above the wrist. When the accident happened she was on a chair atop the picnic table in the back yard, the chair tipped off the table and the broken arm was the result. It is not a serious break and will probably be so the cast can be taken off in about three weeks from the time of the accident.

The Andersons were to have accompanied Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Leggett to Minnesota early Thursday morning and the trip had to be delayed a week or more by the accident.

Ord Did Its Bit in Aluminum Drive Monday; County Drive Friday

Ord did its part in the nation's used aluminum drive Monday, when various boys' and girls' organizations collected more than three hundred pounds of the precious metal. Above are shown Willard Clement and James Clayton unloading a motley array of used pots and pans at the Noll Seed company's warehouse.

Sargent District Wins in Its Fight for Water

The state irrigation bureau Monday granted the Sargent Public Irrigation district's application for 508 second feet diversion of Middle Loup river water and dismissed objections filed by the Loup River Power district of Columbus. Also approved were Sargent's four applications for nine thousand acre-feet of storage water.

The Sargent district plans to build a diversion dam on the Middle Loup in southern Blain county, upstream from Milburn, and take the water through a 41-mile canal to irrigate 23,500 acres around Sargent. Two storage reservoirs would hold nine to fourteen thousand acre-feet of water, while sixty miles of laterals would send the water to the fields.

Charles R. Wareham, formerly auditor of the North Loup district and later manager, is the general manager of the new district, and the favorable consideration it received is largely due to his untiring efforts. His friends in Ord are glad to know that his work met with success.

Tick Fever Dangerous, Red Cross Group Warns

The local chapter of the Red Cross received notice that there is a great increase in the danger of tick fever caused by the bite of the wood or mountain tick. Due to the spread of the tick by the amount of tourist travel this danger is not confined to forests and mountains as in former days. Ticks may be found in areas of heavy underbrush in almost all parts of the United States now, including tall grass of golf courses, fields and thickets.

The Red Cross stresses that prevention is the best cure for tick fever or Rocky Mountain fever as it is sometimes called. People are asked to watch for ticks, examine clothing and body for them after trips or outings, and remove them with pinners, swabbing the area with iodine, then watching for symptoms of the fever and consulting a doctor at once if suspicious. Only some of the ticks carry the dread disease infection and therefore a tick bite need not be serious, but too much precaution cannot be taken.

Final Report Made on President's Birthday

The drive for infantile paralysis funds made on the president's birthday, Jan. 30, has been made public, and shows that the campaign in 1941 was far ahead of any preceding campaign, more than six hundred thousand dollars above that of 1940.

The total proceeds are announced as $2,241,457.14, and the total expenses were $138,996.61. The net proceeds were divided about equally, so that more than a million dollars is left in the communities, and slightly less went to the national foundation.

City's Aluminum Drive Monday Is Decided Success

Chairman Dale Asks Fullest Cooperation in County Drive Next Friday.

Carl C. Dale, county agent, has been designated by Ellsworth Ball, chairman of the board of supervisors, as head of the Valley county aluminum drive, which takes place next Friday. Mr. Dale submits the following information for the benefit of the residents in the rural districts:

Families in the rural districts of Valley county are again urged to remember the aluminum recovery drive on Friday, July 25th in every rural school district in the county. The director of the school district is in charge of the drive and each one has been asked to arrange to receive donations of aluminum at the schoolhouse on that day.

It is not expected that any one will have a lot of aluminum to donate, but many small donations will count up, and from the United States as a whole it is hoped to collect enough used aluminum to build 2000 fighting planes. Even though the worn out family coffee pot does not go into an airplane, it will free an equal amount of virgin aluminum for use in aircraft manufacture, says the office of Production Management and will serve its purpose for National Defense.

People are urged not to donate good useful articles that will need to be replaced, but are requested to give that worn-out aluminum dishpan or the broken percolator, or the leaky aluminum sauce pan which is now being used as a feed pan for old sheep, in the interest of our National Defense. Everyone wants to keep out of war and the best way to do it is to build a strong National Defense, backed by a united people, cooperating to make our defense stronger.

Elevator at Cushing Again in Operation

As an indication of how crop conditions are improving in Nebraska, the Palmer Journal last week announced the elevator at Cushing is again in operation after being closed for several seasons.

Elevators have been out of operation for so long that a large number of them, especially in the smaller places, have been torn down. Bert Needham has bought and torn down a number of them in this section in the past few years.

Legion Junior Baseball Boys Win Championship

The Ord Legion Juniors went over to St. Edward Wednesday afternoon, eliminated that team and incidentally won the championship of the district, to be the first Ord legion junior team to get that far. A loss would have thrown them in to a tie with St. Edward for the top and would have necessitated a playoff.

How near they came to losing is graphically shown by the result of the game, which wound up 8 to 7, with three St. Ed men on base when the final out was made. The hits were 13 for Ord and 14 for the opponents. Each team had men die on base in each of 8 innings, Ord 12 and St. Ed 18.

Darrell Johnson was first man up, and score first when Piskorski hit a home run shortly afterward. Thus he made the first hit, the first score, and in the ninth he caught a line drive to second to put out the third man and end a St. Edward rally. For St. Edward, Nelson got a homer in the eighth with none on, and K. Fischer hit a three bagger in the second.

Bill Novosad pitched the first half of the game and Faulk finished. Ord batted second out of the box in the seventh, when four men hit for three runs. The ninth was a nightmare for Faulk, when errors put men on first and second with none down and he hit the next man and then walked in a run. Then he threw to Misko at third to get a man stealing home, and Misko failed to get the ball. Then Johnson caught out the last man to end the rally. The team batting in this game was 388, enough to win almost any game.

With the season practically ended, the batting of the boys is given as follows:

Table with columns: Name, ab, h, r, ave. J. Fryzek 41 20 13 .487 B. Johnson 31 15 14 .483 E. Piskorski 22 7 11 .318 L. Faulk 41 12 4 .292 F. Misko 49 10 4 .202 M. Novosad 30 8 0 .266 L. Novosad 18 7 0 .390 R. Vogeltanz 37 6 4 .164 D. Johnson 38 12 5 .316

Lost Part of Thumb In a Power Saw

Jake Hoffman thinks he is unlucky. Last Saturday afternoon he was operating a power saw at the Koupal & Berglow lumber yard where he is employed and in trying to poke a piece of lumber out of the saw with a stick he got his right thumb too close to the saw with the result that the end was taken off with a part of the thumb nail with it. The bone was not injured and no doubt the recovery will be rapid but it could have been much worse had his thumb been a fraction of an inch closer to the saw. He went at once to the Ord hospital where Drs. Miller and Round dressed the wound.

Forestry Service Men Checking Up on Trees

Ernest D. Moll, general foreman of the United States Forestry service, Prairie States Forestry project, and a crew of men are in Valley county at present checking up on the cultivation of the shelter belt strips for AAA payments. Mr. Moll is located at Greeley, Nebr., and has supervision of the project work in the counties of Greeley, Valley, Garfield and Wheeler. He says that the present year has been fine for the trees that have survived in the county, and they are making a good growth.

Life Nearly Snuffed Out; Small Boy Breaks Leg

Thursday afternoon Jimmie aged six, Dale (Buster) aged five and Tony Dean aged three, small sons of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Svoboda went across the pasture a quarter of a mile or so from the house to play and pick up funny or pretty rocks as had been their custom. Later Irene their older sister who was driving the cattle to or from pasture saw Jimmie crawling toward the house and crying and at once called her mother, who rushed to see what the matter was. Jimmie told her that Buster was buried under the clay bank and she hurried there with a shovel and dug him out. It seems that while the children were at play a portion of the bank caved off burying Dale and a large clod hitting Jimmie breaking his leg. He started to crawl to the house, then thought that Buster whom he had seen was all covered up, must be saved, so he crawled back and scraped the dirt away from his face, then again started crawling to the house to get help and it was then that his sister saw him. Had he not thought to uncover Buster's head the child no doubt would have been dead when his mother got there. She got him out and says she thought at first he was gone, as he was white as a sheet but she carried him to the house then helped Jimmie and called Dr. Norris who assisted in bringing him to the Dr. Weekes office where the fracture was reduced.

Contracts Are Let For Burwell Road

Bids were opened Thursday in Lincoln on a total of 16 state highway construction projects, including the improving of highway No. 11 between Ord and Burwell, a total of 14.4 miles.

Low bidders were announced as Peter Kiewit and Sons, Omaha, grading, $36,201; Capitol Bridge company, Lincoln, culverts, $6,619; and Gerhold-Matzel company, Columbus, bridges, $16,804.

The Kiewit outfit has had contracts in the past in this section but the other two companies are new to this territory. It is understood that work is to commence on the contract by Aug. 4, but this date may be set back in case the detour on the north side of the river is not ready for use.

The Ulrichs have pumped the gravel to be used in graveling the detour north of the river, and the Brockman Sand and Gravel company of Coleridge are now putting it on the road. Meanwhile the townships have been busy putting up the grade ready for the gravel. R. P. Randolph, state highway supervisor states that the work will not be completed for some time yet.

Mr. Randolph also stated that work on highway No. 11 on the 14 miles of construction work from Elba to Scotia began Saturday. The Abel Construction company has the contract and has started the hard surfacing, working from the Elba end north. Angling dirt roads will be used as detours between Elba and Cotesfield.

WPA Offices Converted Into District Project

The impending change in the WPA setup in this section of Nebraska came to a head the past week, when the area WPA offices were converted into district project office, with T. W. Tritt of Kearney as project engineer. The area offices at Kearney and also at Ord were abolished under the new alignment.

To reduce the expense of the overhead to match the reduction of the number of persons on the WPA rolls, the number of WPA areas in the state has been reduced. Kearney was placed in the Grand Island area. Tritt has been assigned supervision over Buffalo, Sherman, Valley and Garfield counties.

This change followed closely on the heels of the change announced July 1, when the Ord area office was closed and the area, comprising Valley, Garfield, Wheeler, Sherman, Greeley and Howard counties was consolidated with the area having its office at Grand Island. That change was a temporary arrangement until something more permanent could be worked out.

Golf Tournament August 3

The Ord Golf club is planning a club tournament to be held a week from Sunday, Aug. 3, in which all members are expected to participate. There will be flights enough to accommodate all who enter, with prizes to the winners.

Valley County's Latest Draftees Get New Numbers

Find Where They Belong in Second Draft Drawing; Anderson First.

To Roland Dale Anderson of Ord fell the honor of being the No. 1 man from Valley county in the nation's second draft lottery. His number, 39, came seventh on the list of numbers drawn, and of course was the first in the list less than 43, there being 42 draftees in the county.

Mr. Anderson is employed by Paul Duemey in his shop, and should he pass the examination it will leave Duemey without a valued assistant. However, that is the way with the world, and both men are perfectly satisfied to let the draft take its course.

The second Valley county number drawn was that of Harold Virgil Dunbar of North Loup, 40, and he thus becomes draftee No. 2. The third number, 9, makes Allan Edward Masters, Arcadia, draftee No. 3. So the fall of the numbers placed the first three in the three large towns of the county. The rest of the numbers run as follows: No. 4, Everett Earl Williams, 11; No. 5, Ralph Raymond Tallow, 18; No. 6, Bennie Frank Skala, 17; No. 7, Richard Edward Vasicek, 36; No. 8, William Gerald Sims, North Loup, 26; No. 9, Gerald Oscar Hatfield, 29; No. 10, Cassius Lemuel Pickett, 28; No. 11, Vernon Donald Mabelesky, 37; No. 12, Emanuel Raymond Kokos, 7; No. 13, Robert Dwight Miller, 20; No. 14, Elwin Lee Williams, North Loup, 10; No. 15, Arden Ray Clark, 25;

No. 16, Reuben Raymond Cook, 13; No. 17, Floyd DeWayne Cone, 12; No. 18, Leonard Charles Dugosh, 31; No. 19, Harold Douglas Giles, Arcadia, 41; No. 20, Harvey Everett Kraluk, 14; No. 21, Mervyn Frank Tolson, 24; No. 22, Vencil Valerian Ptacinik, Comstock, 23; No. 23, Clyde D. Paddock, 15; No. 24, Edward John McCarville, 21; No. 25, Russell Bennett Rose, 22; No. 26, Charles Janda, Jr., 6; No. 27, Eldon Art Turner, 42; No. 28, Louis Edmund Pesek, Comstock, 2; No. 29, Elmer Dale Parkos, 1; No. 30, Marvin Nichols Ingraham, North Loup, 5; No. 31, Earl Alton Leininger, Arcadia, 15; No. 32, Paul Wayne Palser, North Loup, 4; No. 33, Lowell Wayne Dabcock, North Loup, 23; No. 34, Edward Anton Palder, Arcadia, 3; No. 35, Melvin Ray Whitford, 27; No. 36, Harry James Zulowski, 35; No. 37, Mervyn Otis Ann Iron, North Loup, 8; No. 38, Frank Dean Barta, 35; No. 39, Vernon John Beran, 24; No. 40, Joseph John Hrusly, Arcadia, 30; No. 41, Russell Devere Barnes, 34; No. 42, Harold Willis Hackel, N. L., 32.

Above the number preceding the name gives the order in which they will be called by the local draft board, and the names are also given in that order. The numbers after the names are the numbers given them by the local draft board before the numbers were drawn. Two young men, Lowell Wayne Dabcock of North Loup No. 33, and Frank Dean Barta of Ord, No. 38, received the same number the second time.

It should be explained here that the above men will be sifted into the original draft group 35, the rate of one second draft man to from 35 to 18 first draft men. The exact number will be determined and sent to the local board in a few days. The second draft has been giving the Valley county clerk, Mrs. Lois Work, quite a lot of extra work to do, as well as the local board, W. J. Ramsey, Arcadia, chairman, L. D. Milliken, secretary and W. T. McLain, third member.

The impending change in the WPA setup in this section of Nebraska came to a head the past week, when the area WPA offices were converted into district project office, with T. W. Tritt of Kearney as project engineer. The area offices at Kearney and also at Ord were abolished under the new alignment.

Donna Severance Injured In Ring

Donna Severance, little 6-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Severance of near North Loup, was helping her mother with the family wash Thursday and in feeding an article into the power washer her hand was caught in the ring and the arm drawn in until the elbow was reached before the power could be shut off and she could be released.

She was brought to the Ord hospital as soon as possible and Dr. John N. Round dressed the wounds. While no bones were broken the arm was badly bruised and lacerated and the little girl will have to carry the member in a sling for several weeks no doubt. The muscles were badly bruised and otherwise injured and she was most fortunate that the elbow joint was not seriously injured. She is staying with her grand-mother, Mrs. Mable Anderson, in Ord while she has to visit the doctor often.

MUCH ADO ABOUT WILLIAMS.

We don't know who started it, and we don't know who is going to finish it, but we fear that, if something isn't done soon, a lot of editors in Nebraska will develop nervous prostration, halitosis or typographicals.

It is all over one Guy S. Williams of the World-Herald, whether he is, or whether he isn't. Some think he is real, others think he is a ghost.

It got everybody fussed up in the Quiz office, and so we offered a years subscription to the magazine, "Ghost Stories" to the fellow on the force who could solve the mystery.

The best we got was from an outside source, from a man who is a pillar in the church, a shining light in the community, a loving father and helpmate in the home.

Arch Jarrel, of Grand Island town, Denies the man and "mows him down".

He thinks he is a fluke; From Ogallala comes Hal Smith Who claims to be acquainted with This Guy, who ain't no spook.

I don't care what the others think, What they proclaim in printer's ink, What arguments they bring; Consistent are all Nature's laws; There's no effect without a cause, And that proves everything.

This Williams is a real Guy, A man for us to pattern by; And known from coast to coast; He's full of vigor, pep and vim; Nobody writes his stuff for him; For Williams needs no "Ghost."

POSTERS FROM ENGLAND. The writer had the privilege of receiving this week four posters, such as are being posted in England to bolster the morale of the people in time of war.

One repeats the words of Winston Churchill: "Come, then, let us to the task, the battle and the toll; each to our part, each to our station. Fill the armlets, rule the air, pour out the munitions, strangle the U-boats, sweep the mines, plough the land, build the ships, guard the streets, succor the wounded, uplift the downcast and honor the brave. Let us go forward together in all parts of this Empire. There is not a week, nor a day, nor an hour to be lost."

A second shows a riveter working with an electric riveting machine and the simple wording: "Every Rivet a Bullet," and below, "Speed The Ships." A third poster shows a group of five typical English airmen, fully equipped and looking up into the skies, with the words of Churchill above: "Never Was So Much Owed By So Many To So Few."

The fourth is a gem of the engraver's art: a life size photo of Churchill, with tanks rumbling over the land in the background and a flight of British planes above them and beautiful clouds in the distance, a typical English country scene. Across Churchill's breast are printed the simple words: "Let Us Go Forward Together."

This is not written to inflame the American mind with love of England, nor with hate for Germany. It is written to permit the reader to picture in his mind a people who have been in the heart of the conflict now for more than a year. A people who in the large cities have taken the worst that Hitler's Luftwaffe had to offer, and who still carry on.

People with such an unconquerable spirit cannot be defeated. They have met with severe reverses in France, in Greece and in Crete, but at home they have proved unconquerable to date. It might be well for those who rate the Hitler machine irresistible to remember that it has been Britain's history in past wars to lose every battle but the last one.

TOO MUCH INTERFERENCE. Did you ever try to do something and have somebody continually butting in, telling you how to do or how not to do it? Did you ever try to hear the conversation of a friend and be continually interrupted by the noise made by somebody else? Did you ever try to listen to a public program and have your attention distracted by somebody who did not care anything about it?

All these things have happened to you, and you did not like it. In fact, you probably told the disturbers what you thought of them, and might even have had a fight over it before you got through.

Today in Ord a lot of people are trying to listen to speeches, to songs, to news broadcasts and to program. Sometimes, and we say this guardedly, sometimes they manage to hear what they want to hear. More and more are the best radio programs being ruined by interference. Two prominent men of Ord told us a few days ago that they no longer tried to use their radios, because the interference made their use practically impossible.

Walk around the square some day. Walk into the places of business and note just how many radios are being used now, as compared with a year or two ago. It is reasonable to suppose that those who enjoyed the radio then, would enjoy it now. Ask them the reason why they cut out the use of the radio, and you will find that the answer is interference.

This is not only true around the square. Every part of the city has its troubles. In some places it comes at stated periods of time, in others it comes just whenever the defective electrical appliance happens to be in use. Regardless of when it comes, a person might as well shut off the radio until the period of interference is over.

This condition does not prevail in the larger cities, and there is no reason it should be so prevalent here. Practically all interference can be traced to an old or a defective type of electrical appliance. A steady current will not interfere, but a motor with a slight leak or one of the old jump-spark type is a constant source of annoyance.

The cause is not difficult to find, and the remedy is simple. In most cases the cause can be remedied for less than a dollar, and the machine will be the better for the improvement. No decent citizen would think of making a disturbance when somebody is trying to listen to the radio, and yet a number of them are doing so, either through ignorance or possibly because they don't want to pay for the needed improvements.

Somewhere in the ordinances of the City of Ord there is a paragraph referring to disturbing the peace, making it "unlawful for any person within the limits of the city to make any loud or unusual noise, etc." There is no question of the loudness of the noise, but of late it is becoming the usual thing, and not the unusual. Whether through the radio or directly, such noises constitute disturbing the peace.

All the larger cities have a paragraph in their ordinance books dealing directly with radio interference, and, if present conditions continue, the City of Ord will doubtless fall in line. In the meantime, if you have any electrical apparatus that may be causing interference, why not have the necessary work done to stop it. The citizens of Ord have a lot of money tied up in radios, and they are entitled to the privilege of using them.

IT HAPPENED IN ORD. L. A. Muncy had a fine time vacationing in the Rockies, where there are large streams and lovely lakes in which to swim. However, he thought it might be well to practice first in a bath tub, which he did with disastrous results, injuring his hip and otherwise. Mr. Muncy may be a fine jeweler, but as a sailor he sure was a flop.

Al Partridge of Burwell was in Ord Thursday and told about his son Floyd, who has quite a reputation as a baseball player. In a recent game Burwell played with Taylor, Floyd was garnering flies in the left field garden. A line drive came sizzling past him and he gave chase. The ball went into a little clump of grass and a meadow lark flew out. Floyd, thinking it was the ball, chased it a quarter of a mile and in the meantime the Taylor player circled the bases for the winning run.

Still can't figure out how it happened but we got the wrong letter doubled last week in the name of Leighton Conn, and called him Coon. There simply isn't any excuse for getting a stranger's name misspelled that way and giving him a bad start with Ord people. He may not be quite as well known to the general public as one Billy Conn (no relation) but he is of much more importance to the people of this community.

It is too bad that good natured people have to be punished, but it is something when they can see the humor in the situation, as did Frank Paddock, who asked us to let the public know that, as he told it: "I've got the fall house blues, just for selling a minor booze." It is bad to get into trouble, but it is something worth while when a man can laugh it off.

Miss Ruth Milford called the Quiz this week to tell us that when she went out in the yard to move the hose she found a hen pheasant there helping herself to a drink. There are houses in every direction from the Milford place, and the bird had some distance to go to get back out of town.

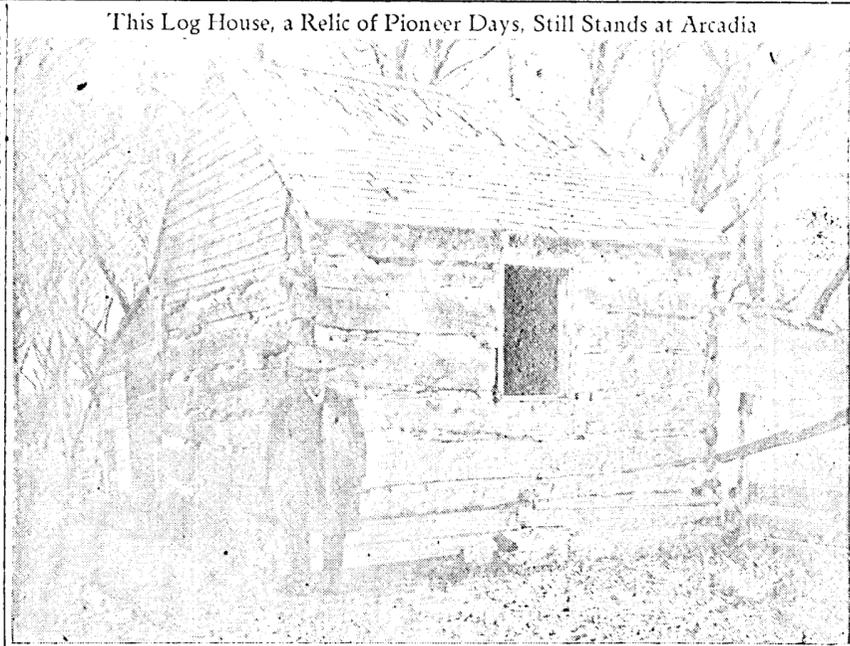

The kids certainly did a thorough job of gathering up the aluminum Monday. Those who came to the John Ward home only picked up the aluminum that Mrs. Ward had placed on the front porch, but also carried away a can of over-ripe liver that she had there and was planning to use for fish bait. Just what place it would find in National Defense is difficult to figure.

The Klever Kitchen Kooks. The Klever Kitchen Kooks held their last meeting at the home of the three Masin girls, July 15th. Everyone was present but Dalma Misko. There were two visitors, Fae Wilson and Ina Fae Jorgensen. After the games and songs a lunch was served.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Elaine Clausen, July 22.—Alice Mae Johnsen, news reporter.

The Lucky Thirteen. The Lucky Thirteen held a meeting at the home of Louise Bredthauer. Members brought the comforter protectors they had made to be judged. An individual demonstration was given on making beds. A delicious lunch was served after which Louise Bredthauer entertained us with her guitar and songs.

The next meeting will be held on Anderson's Island July 29.—Ruth Bredthauer, reporter.

My Own Column

By H. D. Leggett

Even a 70 year old kid gets birthday gifts and one of the most appreciated which I received last week was a beautiful bunch of flowers which Henry Deines brought me, sent by Mrs. Deines.

Some years ago when Daryl Hardenbrook was representing the Fuller Brush Co, he was sent to Burwell to canvass. The plan was to cover a block, asking the name of the housewife and presenting her with a nice little hand brush and ask permission to come back at some appointed time to show her the line of brushes.

Starting out one day at the corner of a block Daryl knocked at the door and when asked her name the lady told him Anderson. It was the same story at the second house. When the lady at the third house told him her name was Anderson, Daryl began to get suspicious. The lady at the fourth house told him her name was Anderson, too. He went across the street and upon asking the lady who came to the door her name, she said Mrs. Anderson. Daryl knew then that he was being made fun of and he said, "Lady, this town should be Andersonville instead of Burwell," and he was so convinced that he was being made the goat that he never went back.

The Missus and I had a most enjoyable evening last Friday when Mrs. Asa Anderson invited us to have dinner with them. Wilma and Asa have a delightful home and a couple of live-wire little girls and our only regret was that Miss Vonnie was at Burwell with her grandmother Anderson and we didn't see her.

A woman will spend the afternoon playing bridge for a dinky little prize and then give her husband binks for playing poker that evening for a dinky little pot, after he has worked hard all day to provide her and the children with the necessities of life. Don't seem quite fair.

If the movie queens would show more face and less legs lots of people would appreciate them more.

A fashion magazine says bustles are coming back. Well, that is where they always were isn't it?

What in the world does that wife of mine do with so much money, said an Ord man the other day. She is always asking me for money. Have you given her any, said his friend. And the reply was, no, not yet.

As I think I have said before, Ord should get organized and start fighting for either a beet sugar factory, an alfalfa meal mill, a canning factory or some other enterprise that will call for a quick money crop under irrigation. Other towns in the valley are alert and such enterprises are going to be thought about and started. Lets get our share.

Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Davis, Mrs. Mayo and Mr. and Mrs. Mills Hill and baby went to Kearney where they enjoyed a picnic dinner in the park with Mr. and Mrs. Dale Halverson and Mr. and Mrs. Richmond Davis. A nice rain which measured .37 on an inch fell Sunday night.

It is so beautiful up here, lovely and quiet. It doesn't seem possible there can be so many wars and battles and hates raging over the world. It is difficult to maintain an interest in the news of the world, when this peaceful corner seems serene and complete. The angry chatter of a squirrel is the most unhappy sound, added once in a while by a bluejay. Across the iridescence of the quiet evening lake the sun makes an orange track, and all the rest of the sky and water are colored like mother-of-pearl. The trees are a lacy pattern close by, and in the twilight their silhouettes are almost prettier than their daytime green. Possibly the eerie cries of the loon and his wife are marring to some, but I like them. It seems the calmness needs to be cut with just such a knife of sound.

Oh, there are details to spoil this as any other paradise. The Rural Electrification Highlines that are being put in have to have a broad track of forest mowed down for them. A mercenary local man with his living to make insists upon cutting the trees on his land, and he owns a good deal of it. And so our beloved pines disappear, here and there, and our roadsides become plain fields. Fields are attractive, but the sweep of the pines is something we have come a long way to see. And something that never loses its charm for the summer people. Occasionally some one peels our birches too deep and makes scars on them that will always be black bands in their whiteness. Someone who doesn't know any better, but stands idly pulling at the birch trees' loose bark. But these are only minor troubles.

A trouble that might have been more than minor yesterday made only a harmless whizzing through the rushes a couple of feet from our boat. We had come south through the thoroughfare (that means our boat with us in it went under a bridge . . . the bridge is part of a farmer's road through his meadows) and we began to inspect the lily pads for tiny turtles. We thought a little turtle would be a good surprise to bring little Teddy Leggett. Trying to oar over into the rushes nearer some little turtles, we were startled to hear this whizzing near us. Well, it was a bullet. A boat in the rushes north of us, out of our sight, carried one half-grown boy who has been insisting on rifle practice. We had passed him as we came south. A big yell, "Hey, quit that!" stopped him that time. We hope we all live to write you next week, folks. We will unless his aim improves. —Irma.

I agree with you that it should be the night watchman's job to see to it that the folks of Ord get their sleep, at least, the watchman of those days looked after that part of it. And in case that you don't know how good a night watchman you had those years, let me tell you about how I know about him.

that hard off and on the seat of his pants. Some of us fell on John, others tried to hurdle the net but our friend the night watchman with his police dog. The song we were working on never got finished because when John spied the two he started the dash around the south end of the building. How I ever got his 250 pounds ahead of every one else, I've never been able to figure out. But as he got back of the high school building, poor John got into trouble. He forgot about the tennis net being stretched out back there and as hard as John hit it, he bounced

The next morning I overheard Arch Bradt on Milford's corner telling someone how he had to get out of bed and find the night watchman to break up a gang who kept him awake by singing on the high school steps. Last week Mrs. Fiv Livermore returned 2 dresses and 4 gowns and 10 handling blankets. Mrs. Vere Shafer completed 2 dresses, 1 bootie, 1 trousers, 4 gowns. These two ladies are going to sew 10 more baby dresses and 16 nighties which were taken out as work for the New Century club ladies. Mrs. David Sartain has now made 8 pajamas and 5 pairs of boy's trousers for the Red Cross. Mrs. Ross Wood made a convalescent robe. Mrs. Orville Norland sewed 3 boy's trousers and 3 baby kimonas. Two bundles containing beautifully made nighties and dresses, 20 in number, were returned Tuesday morning. The leader was out at the time so does not know to whom the credit belongs. Mrs. Downey finished 2 pairs of little woolen trousers.

Mrs. Tom Freer, who broke her collar bone last week when she fell into the cellar, is quite ill following the accident at her home. She is being cared for by Dr. Smith.

Mr. and Mrs. Pete Kinney had a baby boy born Saturday morning which died at birth.

Betty Gale Meyers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Meyers, has recovered from an illness of measles. Little Jack, her brother, is quite ill with them now and is under Dr. Smith's care.

Mrs. Lytle Graham, a patient of Dr. Smith's, suffering from carcinoma died Thursday morning at the Coleman nursing home. Her funeral was Saturday afternoon.

Frank Clause of Broadwater came especially Sunday as a patient to consult Dr. Smith.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Unagot of Bartlett are the parents of a 7 lb. baby boy born Tuesday morning at their home. Dr. Smith reports that the baby has already been given the name of Robert.

Mrs. Carl Wilson was operated on July 15 at the Cram hospital for acute appendicitis. Mrs. Tom Nadelek, who was also suffering from acute appendicitis submitted to an operation July 17. Mrs. L. J. Walters and new little son, Larry Lee of Ericson, left the Cram hospital Friday. Mrs. Al Radke and Mrs. Orin Stark were also dismissed on Friday.

Valley Midgets, 4-H club meeting was held at the home of George Clement. Seven members answered to roll call. Members decided to attend demonstration day in Ord, July 30 and to select a team to enter if possible. The meeting was adjourned when it began to rain. The next meeting will be held at the Ernest Lange home, July 31.—Wilfred Cook, reporter.

This bridge will be constructed entirely of new lumber and is to replace the present township bridge which is inadequate to handle the water it should. Respectfully submitted, (s) Charles E. NO BEER AFTER HOURS The great majority of Nebraska beer retailers observe the closing hour regulations in their communities. Patrons who ask them to violate that regulation are asking them to take the grave risk of losing their retail license—and their livelihood. By their conscientious law observance, retailers are cooperating with the Nebraska Brewers and Beer Distributors Committee in its program of sincere assistance to law enforcement officials to keep beer retailing on a plane as wholesome as the beverage itself. YOU, the public, are also asked to cooperate in this program. You can do so by not asking the retailer to sell after legal hours... and by refusing your patronage to the few who do. Give your patronage to the law-abiding retailer. He's the one who'll stay in business permanently, anyway. Nebraska BREWERS AND BEER DISTRIBUTORS COMMITTEE CHARLES E. ### City's Aluminum Drive Monday Is Decided Success

Following well laid plans formulated at a meeting held the evening of the preceding Monday, a number of girls and boys groups, directed by the American Legion auxiliary, made short work of canvassing the city for old aluminum Monday. The work started at 3:30 a. m. and by 11 a. m. the last load was being emptied.

Groups taking part in the collecting of the metal were the two Boy Scout troops, No. 194, and No. 204, the former under the leadership of Rex Jewett, and the latter led by Ed Whelan and Guy LeMasters. The members of No. 194 collected a total of last accounts of $8 pounds, and No. 204 had $8 pounds.

The five Camp Fire groups with their guardians, Mrs. E. L. Kokes for the Soangehaha, Mrs. F. J. Osentowski for the Tawanka, Mrs. Alex Cochran for the Aowakiya, Mrs. Ed Gaster for the Cheskahmay, and Mrs. John Andersen for the Eluta, collected a total of 120 pounds, an average of 24 pounds per group.

The Legion Junior Auxiliary members under the direction of Mrs. C. W. Clark, collected in a total of 49 pounds. These figures are not final on any of the groups, since more was being brought in by workers all day yesterday and they will continue with the work until the final day of the drive. However, more than 275 pounds of metal was salvaged for the government, according to the figures given above.

Among those who helped by furnishing and driving cars to gather up the metal were C. W. Clark, Mrs. Alfred L. Hill, Mrs. O. J. Mortensen, Mrs. K. C. Lewis, Ed Whalen, Rex Jewett, Rev. W. Ray Radloff, Mrs. John Andersen, Mrs. Whelan, Irene Auble, Mayor M. B. Cummins and possibly others.

Bob Noll kindly offered the use of his warehouse and scales and the metal was hauled there, where it was weighed by James Clayton and Willard Clement, the amounts checked by Geraldine Noll. Mrs. K. C. Lewis, as president of the Ladies Auxiliary, was official head of the drive. The Auxiliary members visited the housewives of Ord before the drive began, and this speeded up the work greatly Monday.

All who have been connected with the work in any capacity are more than pleased with the interest shown and the results attained. The handling of the job so efficiently is not due to the energy or ability of any one person or group of persons, but the united effort of all those who assisted. Mrs. Lewis and Mayor Cummins wish to thank all who assisted for their whole-hearted cooperation. The drive developed an interesting contest between the boys of the two Scout troops, with Troop 194 winning out. As a reward for their work, Scoutmaster Rex Jewett promised them a buffalo feed, and so his boys will be guests in the Jewett home for the feast Thursday evening.

Announce Membership of County FSA Group

Members of the new county FSA council and of the various committees working with the U. S. Department of Agriculture in the local application of the Farm Security Administration program were announced today for Valley county by Darrell Bauder, rehabilitation supervisor. Names of members, as approved by the Department of Agriculture, and addresses, are as follows: E. O. Schudel, North Loup, William E. Dodge, Elvria; Don Rounds, Arcadia; Fred Coe, Ord and A. W. Cornell, also of Ord. The council membership overlaps the membership on other FSA committees. Some members are on the council only, some are on the council and on a committee, and some are on a committee only.

The county FSA council of local substantial citizens with the interest of home farmers at heart and in sympathy with the self-rehabilitation program, can do much to help farm families develop local resources, build community cooperation and cooperatives where feasible, and improve general welfare and opportunities of farm families.

The county council will meet at stated intervals and members will be reimbursed, through FSA, for their time and work. They will cooperate closely, it was stated, with the county land use planning committee, AAA committee and other community groups in tackling problems as they affect low-income farm families. They will work with the FSA personnel making the rehabilitation program effective locally, and will assist in spreading knowledge of these problems and programs of work among the people of the county.

Group meetings and group discussion pertaining to all phases of agricultural and community life problems will be encouraged. Mr. Bauder said community or group meetings will figure largely this coming year in the development of the rehabilitation program.

$11,000 Fur Pelt

The highest price ever paid for a single pelt in the history of the fur industry was recorded at a fur auction in New York. I. J. Fox, retail furrier, gave $11,000 for one Norwegian-bred platina fox, a mutation of the silver fox.

Four Children Receive Broken Bones in Accidents the Past Few Days

Business in Ord 55 Years Ago, as Shown by Ads

A word picture of how business lined up in Ord 55 years ago as shown by the advertising must of necessity be incomplete, for two reasons: first, as it is today, only the live merchants advertised. The others struggled along for a time and then quit. Secondly, the ones who did advertise did not give particulars of location, since they did not need to do so. It is of great interest to note that, of all the advertisers using Quiz space 55 years ago, the only man living today is W. A. Anderson of Ord. He was advertising the Ord Art Gallery, west side of square, and had the following to say in his ad:

"First class work guaranteed. Old pictures copied and enlarged at reasonable rates. Negatives preserved. Pictures taken by the lightning process.—W. A. Anderson, proprietor."

The Quiz has good reason to know that Mr. Anderson meant all that he said in that ad, especially the "negatives preserved" part of it. For some time past we have been using cuts in the Quiz made from new prints of those old negatives, and most of them are in a perfect state of preservation. Yes, W. A. was certainly an honest advertiser.

Other ads speak of businesses which are still going, although the men who ran them then have passed away. One could apply just as well today as it did then, merely by changing the initial of the owner. It reads: "F. Misko, dealer in harness, saddles, whips, robes, blankets, collars, curry-combs, brushes, and everything usually kept in a first class harness store. Shop in little brick, north side square, Ord, Neb." The little brick is bigger now, and one son, Will, still runs the business at the old stand. The other son, Henry, is in the harness business in a different location.

The First National bank, successor to the Ord City bank, was advertising at that time. The officers were J. H. Bell, president; George A. Percival, cashier; H. A. Babcock, vice-president; and P. Mortensen, assistant cashier. The business was located in the room where Ben's Grill now is, and was moved to the present location when the new building was built more than 30 years ago.

A man named George Knecht (spelled Knight in the ad then) was proprietor of the Red Star bakery southeast of the square. They specialized in fresh bread, cakes, pies and confectionery, served meals at all hours, and boarded people by the day or week. He was the grandfather of the present George Knecht of Ord.

Threshermen Perfect County Organization

Some folks would be surprised to know that there are 82 threshing outfits operating in Valley county at this time and more in prospect. Some of them, not many, felt that there should be an organization of Valley county threshermen. They knew that the lawyers, the doctors, the printers, the business women, and numerous other groups, with far fewer members, were organized. So word was sent out to come to a get-together meeting.

And Saturday night was the time set and the bus depot was the place announced for the meeting. Those sponsoring the meeting thought there would be ample room there, in fact they were not so sure that there would be more than a half dozen threshers present. But when the meeting was called to order by L. J. Auble there were 45 present and soon more straggled in and by the time the organization was completed more than ninety per cent of the threshermen of Valley county were present.

Someone, seeing the crowd and knowing that they were threshermen, remarked that they were organizing to boost prices. But such was not the purpose of the meeting. Uniformity of prices was of course sought, which is proper but the old rate of 4c for oats and barley and 6c for wheat and rye. Prices which for the most part have prevailed in recent years of poor crops, were agreed upon as fair now when not only good crops but good prices are assured, and the meeting decided against any raise in threshing prices at least for this year.

The business generally was discussed, and when it came to reports from some threshers who had run fire and bolts gathered with the grain through their machines, they agreed not to thresh raked grain. Better methods of keeping records and of doing the work were talked over and finally an organization was perfected with John Janus as president and L. J. Auble as secretary and Vic Kerchal as treasurer. It is hoped and expected that other meetings will be held during the fall and it is not impossible that a threshermen picnic will be arranged before the threshing season is over.

Burwell Ball Players Defeated Ord's Best

The first inter-town softball game played here occurred at the fair grounds diamond Sunday evening, with the Ord All-Stars crossing bats with a similar team from Burwell. The visitors had their fighting clothes on, and the score at the end of the game was thirteen to seven in favor of Burwell. Playing for Burwell were Lund, Boag, Sherman, Schuyler, Douglas, Meyers, Williams, Messenger, Busell and Klenski. For Ord it was Nay, pitch, Rathbun, catch, P. Adams, first, B. Jensen, second, Stoddard, shortstop, H. Misko, third, B. Adams, short field, E. Dugros, left, Hansen, center and Andersen, right.

For the Love of Pat

By JAMES H. DUDLEY (McClure Syndicate—WNU Service)

"AND she had the gun, sure enough," Patrolman Hanney continued. "strapped in a holster above her knee. What a handful! The air was full of heels and fingernails—like wrestling with a centipede. And when this punk horned in, I had to take time out to cuff him one."

"Holy Saint Peter!" thought Sergeant Duggan. "They get younger every day." He shifted his massive bulk in the chair and appraised the two prisoners, then picked up his pen. "What's your name?" he asked the girl. Her lips closed firmly. "The dame that tipped me off," volunteered Hanney, "called her Pat."

"Maybe her pal will oblige us after we work on him a bit." The sergeant pushed a button and as a buxom police matron appeared, "Take her away," he ordered. "Let her go and I'll talk," said the boy curtly. "No, Frankie!" Hanney limped to the matron's aid. The girl's resistance collapsed and she went out quietly. With the closing of the door, the boy lost his air of aloof unconcern.

"All right, my name's Frank Danton. Get Sergeant Robinson, from Scott precinct, and I'll spill everything." "Robinson! Why?" asked Duggan suspiciously. Confronted by an obstinate silence, he yielded to his inward curiosity and dialed with a stubby finger. "Hello, Scott? . . . Duggan, from Davison. Get Sergeant Robinson, will you? . . . hello, Robbie! Say, we got a bird here called Frank Danton, alias Phantom Frank, who refuses to talk unless you're present . . . what? . . . what's the joke?" Duggan scowled into the mouthpiece. "Oh, yeah! You better come anyway . . . okay."

Sergeant Robinson, round-faced and apple-cheeked, entered chuckling. He clapped the boy's shoulder and peered quizzically at the damaged eye. "Tut, tut, Frank! Who hung the shiner on you?" "He started something and got himself slapped," Duggan said shortly. "Somebody's kidding you, Bill. I've known Frank ever since I was pounding a beat twenty years ago." "How about this?" Duggan slid the gun across the desk. "His girl was carrying it." Robinson's eyes sobered. "It's like this, Sarge," explained the boy, shamefacedly. "Pat—she's Patricia Fahey—is crook crazy. Nothing wrong . . . she's just a kid and . . . well, I—fell for her and was afraid to tell her I was a soda jerk. So I made up this story about being wanted . . . I even bought the gun for her to carry. Trouble was, Sarge, she musta boasted to some dame about the"—the boy blushed and swallowed—"the price on my head. That's the truth, I swear."

Two Types of Beetles Attacking Cottonwood

Leaf beetles are attacking cottonwoods quite seriously in central Nebraska according to the U. S. Department of Agriculture's Sub-District Forest Officer at St. Paul. Two different types have been noted on a number of shelterbelts in this area. A large metallic colored beetle and a smaller spotted or striped beetle are doing a considerable amount of damage. The smaller beetle known as the cottonwood leaf beetle has been the one most widely observed. Both the larva and adult beetle are leaf eaters and their three to five annual generations can keep the tress constantly defoliated.

Spraying with a lead arsenate will control these leaf eating insects. Use one and one-half pounds of lead arsenate to fifty gallons of water plus one half pound of soap flakes to make the spray stick. The spray should be directed against the underside of the leaves.

Ord Legion Junior Team Defeated Pleasant Hill

The Pleasant Hill boys from the southeast part of the county came to Ord Sunday afternoon and crossed bats with the Ord Legion Juniors team in a rather exciting game. However, the visitors had little opportunity to get anywhere, with L. Frank holding them to three scattered hits for 6 innings and B. Novosad allowing only two more in the last three.

Meanwhile the Ord boys were fattening their batting averages. J. Fryzek and B. Johnson each got three hits and three runs, B. Novosad got two hits and two runs, and L. Novosad and R. Vogelantz each got two hits with one less time at bat. Ord made 13 runs on 14 hits, and committed six errors. The visitors had to be content with 6 hits and 2 runs while making 7 errors.

Jolly Cooks Club

The Jolly Cooks club met at the home of Joan Hanson last Tuesday. A camping trip was discussed. Another meeting was held yesterday at Ethel Nelson's. Delicious refreshments were served at both places. Reported by the assistant leader, Frances Houtby.

Irrigation Water Cut, Farmers Fear Crops Will Suffer

practically no water will be available for the 35,000 acres now under irrigation in the two districts. The condition is extremely serious, and the result will be large crop losses if not immediately corrected. In fact, corn has been rolling in the extreme heat of the past three days, thus showing a lack of moisture.

It has been pointed out that the districts did not use the diversion canals his year until June 1, thus available to the Loup Power district at Columbus for the full month of May. It has been pointed out also that the districts are entitled annually to an acre foot of water for every acre of land. A further suggestion was made that the Loup Power district could make use of steam plants acquired by the Consumers' Public Power district this year during the critical irrigation season and thus relieve the distress of the irrigators without causing loss of firm power to the Loup River district.

A hearing was scheduled at Lincoln for 11 a. m. today, and, in addition to Mr. James, a large number of men from each of the districts left early this morning to be in attendance. The names of those from the Middle Loup district who attended are not available, but Archie Geweke, head of the Water Users association, C. C. Dale, county agent, Floyd Hudson, president of the North Loup district, and L. E. Walford, watermaster, made up an auto load from this part of the valley.

To Build at Cullen Lake

R. E. Misko has purchased the Leukart lot in the Ord colony on Cullen lake and plans on building himself a cottage suitable for summer living. This lot was formerly owned by Jack Bristow, then of Burwell, and is a very desirable lot. Ralph is ordering a good boat for next spring delivery and plans on going up this fall and get his foundation in and possibly get his cottage enclosed.

Two Little Girls Killed

Many Quiz readers read in last Thursday's Omaha paper of the death of two little girls when they were hit by an army truck. The story said they had just been to the corner grocery after candy. It is of more interest to Ordites especially to know that the little girls, 4 and 6 years old, had just been to the Joe F. Dworak store and Mr. Dworak sold them the candy and it was when they left the store for their home that they were killed.

Red-Checked Curtains

By G. CLEVENGER (McClure Syndicate—WNU Service.)

SURELY there is no more diverting pastime when riding on a train than that of studying the passengers.

You soon know all about the stout woman in brown satin who sits across the aisle surrounded by a bird-cage, three suit-cases, a lunch box, a bulging string-bag and two cretonne pillows. Having listened all the way from Dodge City to La Junta, you learn that her son is to be married next week to a slipper-uptery who works in an office; and that she is going on a week ahead of plans to have everything ready for housekeeping before the arrival of the bride.

"It'll be much easier," she's never failed to explain, "than tryin' to get things done after the wedding, with them a-billin' and cooin' around all the time. I brought along a whole trunk full of curtains and quilts and pictures—things I'll never use, or else am tired lookin' at. It takes a lot of money to set up housekeepin' and I want to save my boy every cent I can. I expect Junior's girl would rather have new things, never thinkin' about the cost. But if, when she gets there, I've got everything fixed up nice already, there ain't much she can say, now, is there?"

At La Junta there is a fresh influx of passengers.

One of these, a young girl bearing two bags in her newly gloved hands, pauses near you and says to the woman in brown: "Please, may I sit here?"

"Why, hello, you," she says to the bird.

"His name's Dicky," Mrs. Smith speaks up. "I raise 'em. This one's for my son Junior, in Trinidad. He's getting married and I thought Dicky would make his new home seem more like his old one. I'm going down there to set up housekeepin' for him. His girl's been in an office all her life. I expect the only thing she knows about housekeeping is how to cook fudge."

"You may be wrong, you know," the girl interrupts. "Don't condemn her just because she's a business girl. I work in an office myself. And I'm getting married. Today. But I'm sure I can manage a cook-book and a check-book."

The woman looks the girl over appraisingly. "Well, you seem different. You look like you've got some sense."

"Maybe your new daughter-in-law has sense, too. Better not form your opinions in advance. Lack of understanding between in-laws wrecks a lot of marriages. I'm fighting that kind of battle myself—trying awfully hard not to resent my mother-in-law before I've seen her. It's wicked of me to mind her coming, isn't it?"

"When's she comin'?"

"Next week. That's why I'm getting married today. You see, Jack got a crazy idea that he wanted his mama there to fix up the house for us. As soon as I found that out I packed my bags and wired Jack after I was on my way. We'll get married this evening and I'll have a whole week before his mama gets there. It'll be too late, then, for her to fix anything."

"Oh! Mrs. Smith colors up.

"You see, every girl has her dreams about the home she's going to have some day—even office girls," there is a mischievous twinkle in the young eyes. "Why, ever since I can remember I've had my mind made up about my kitchen curtains. If they aren't red-checked gingham, it won't seem like home to me."

"Red-checked gingham?"

"Yes, and the chairs and things with red trimmings. It won't cost much to have things the way I want them. I can do the work myself. I'll have plenty of time with Jack gone to the store all day."

"Oh." The face grows longer.

"And what did you say his name is?"

"Jack Smith. John Smith, really, but I call him Jack."

"Jack Smith!" Mrs. John Smith from Lesterville, Kansas, leans forward. "And where did you say he works?"

"Why—Trinidad."

"Oh!" The woman settles heavily into her seat and looks out of the window. A lonely ranch passes. Another. And another. Trinidad is called. The girl takes her bags off the rack. Her companion continues staring out the window. The girl looks at her.

"Didn't you say you were getting off here, too?"

"No, Albuquerque!"

"Albuquerque! But you said—"

The woman turns now toward the girl. Her eyes hold an expression that reminds you of a little dog you run over in the street last summer.

"I'm goin' on to Albuquerque—to visit my sister."

"But your son—"

"Oh, maybe I didn't tell you," Mrs. Smith forces a queer kind of smile, "but I'm visitin' my sister first." She reaches into her cavernous handbag, and brings out something that looks like a ten-dollar bill. "Here," she says, offering it. "Wedding present."

The girl draws back. "Thanks, awfully—but I—I couldn't—"

"Yes, here." The woman stuffs the money into the palm of the little tan glove. "Take it—to buy curtains with—red-checked gingham curtains."

Charlotte John and Victor Filipi Married

North Loup—At a simple ceremony performed by Rev. Shepherd of Scotia in the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles John, Charlotte John, became the bride of Victor Filipi at ten o'clock Monday morning. Relatives and a few friends were present. The bride was dressed in a floor length white taffeta dress and wore a fingertip veil which was trimmed in white satin bows. She carried a bouquet of pink roses. Her attendants, Helen Filipi and Anna Filipi, both of Western, Nebr., wore floor length chiffon dresses of sky blue and carried bouquets of garden flowers. The groom wore a light blue suit with a carnation boutonniere. His attendants were Milla Wanek of Western and George Radil of Ord. Mrs. Filipi has lived in North Loup for a number of years, coming here from Ord, and graduated from the North Loup schools in '33. Since that time she has spent most of her time at home. For a time she worked in Omaha. Mr. Filipi is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Oliva of Western and has a filling station and cafe on the highway between Western and Wilbur. The guests were served a lunch at one o'clock and the bride and groom left soon after for a trip in the west, probably to California before their return.

A Few of the Many Threshing Outfits in Action in Valley County During the Past Week

No. 1. This picture was taken on the Rudolph Krahulik farm and Mr. Krahulik is operating his own machine threshing rye which is making 20 bushels per acre. He had just finished threshing his barley which made 25 bushels per acre.

No. 2. This is the Willie Tuma machine, or one of his machines, and is threshing on the Weller place north of Elyria across the river. Andrew Kusek lives on the farm and Joe Kusek is in charge of the machine for Mr. Tuma, with Charley Sobon running the tractor. This wheat is making about 20 bushels. Mr. Kusek says a field just to the east will make considerably more to the acre. Mr. Tuma was operating his other machine just south of Elyria when the writer and his cameraman was there, or had been. Something went wrong with the tractor and Mr. Tuma was tearing it down to make repairs.

No. 3. This is a picture of the John Janus machine which he was operating on the Andrew Zulkoski farm threshing barley off a 30-acre field. The barley was making 41 bushels to the acre. It will be recalled that Mr. Janus is president of the Valley County Threshers Association.

No. 4. This is a picture of the Frank Novak rig threshing barley on the J. M. Novotny farm. This barley is of fine quality and was making 25 bushels to the acre.

miles north of Elyria. Edmund Augustyn is the separator man and can be seen standing on the separator. Bernard Augustyn is operating the tractor. Adam Augustyn was just setting up his machine to start threshing on the Joe Bogus farm as the Quiz man and cameraman returned from taking the above picture. Augustyn Bros. have a second machine which is being operated by their father, who will doubtless make a go of it as he has had about fifty years experience in threshing. This is a large sized Woods Bros. separator, one of the largest and best in the county and is being pulled by a new John Deere tractor.

No. 6. This is the Frank Svoboda threshing rig threshing grain on one of the Chas. Bals farms south-west of Ord. James Yasieck is farming the place this year and the threshing is being done in a 25 acre field of barley. In the background is the straw pile from another 25 acre field which has just been threshed, both fields making a yield of 25 bushels to the acre.

No. 7. Here is a picture of the Dobrovsky Bros. threshing rig threshing barley and oats on the A. L. Crouch farm just south of Ord for John Parkos who rents the land. There were two fields, one oats and one barley and the total of grain averaged 36 bushels to the acre.

Valborg Fought Moller.

Word has recently reached Ord, announcing the death of Valborg Fought Moller, the wife of Jorgen Moller, former Valley county pioneer and stockman. She passed away peacefully after many years of illness, and was buried in the beautiful Oak Hill cemetery at Escondido, Calif., at the side of her husband, who had preceded her in death many years ago. Valborg Fought was born at Halden, Norway, Sept. 6, 1868, and was the oldest child of Sea Captain Emil John Fought, who left the sea when steam began to crowd out the Norse clipper ships, and of his wife, Laura Arneberg Fought. Captain Fought came to the United States in the middle '70s, and settled near Ft. Niobrara, where his family joined him in 1881. Indian disturbances and sheer loneliness forced the family to leave that frontier and trek southward, and settled down at Ord. Here they lived for many years, and both have found final rest in the Ord cemetery.

Valborg Moller had been an invalid for many years, but surrounded by children and grandchildren, she had been patient and happy. She was a true Christian, always eager to help others, always comforting, seeing the best in everyone and everything. Her memory will long be cherished and remain sweet and fragrant. She was a life member of the Ord chapter of P. E. O., and also of the Escondido chapter, whose members cheered her and helped her to the end of her life. She was the mother of seven children: Harold, who died in California five years ago; Rolfe, in government service in Bremerton, Wash.; Sigurd, in florist business at Los Angeles; Althild Munn, at Ord; and Astrid Stubbs, Gerda and Eric at Escondido. There are also eight grandchildren.

Her living brothers and sisters are Harold W. Fought, Wayzata, Minn.; Agot Carpenter, Escondido, Calif.; William Fought, Fallon, Mont.; Julia Osborne and Nora Blair, Evanston, Wyo.; and Lucy Pierce, Meota, Canada. —Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Williams left Sunday morning to spend their vacation in the Black Hills. They expect to be away a week or ten days.

Slippery

By JANIS PARKER (McClure Syndicate—WNU Service.)

LEE'S frequent sighs, her pallor, the worried look of her shadowed eyes, bespoke some problem. "Why so pensive?" I asked the question in the furtive hope that she might deny the mood and snap out of it. But there was no answer. Maybe, I thought, there was cause enough for Lee's dejection, for despite her beauty and background she had had fierce luck with men. Jim Bradshaw, who had about convinced her that a vine-covered cottage was preferable to a penthouse, had awakened one sleety morning to find his brawny wrists bracketed with ornaments of the law. Lee had doubtless forgotten him, Jim of the crinkly hair and laughing eyes, but a mark remained.

"What's up for tonight, Lee?" "I'm stepping out with Slippery." She turned from the treacherous river, smiling. If Jim had left a mark, Slippery, Lee's new beau, I mused cynically, would leave a blot. So this was the cause of her pallor! Any woman would worry about winning Slippery, I agreed, and should he be won she'd have more worries. For it seemed obvious that Slippery was not a one-woman man, unless it was one woman at a time.

To me he had always seemed a creepy sort of person. Why did dainty, elf-like Lee get involved with such undesirable men? First Jim, held for the murder of Dorine Darbey, fiery-haired dancer; now Slippery, suave to a suspicious degree. The doorbell rang with his special buzz. Lee leapt to answer it, radiance flooding her face. He patted her cheek condescendingly and sauntered over to me.

He glanced at his wrist-watch and addressed me. "You're giving us the pleasure of your company, I hope?" "Indeed she is!" Lee tucked her arm through mine. "Only once in a lifetime does she leave that forsaken swamp she calls the country!"

"Isn't she the most beautiful thing you've ever seen?" asked Slippery, yet his glowing eyes were pinned long and searchingly on me.

We went in Lee's car. Slippery flipped an airy hand. "You ought to see my car," he gloated. "Special job. But there was a little something or other out of kilter with it, tonight."

Pulling up at a night club, Slippery, amazed, discovered his wallet was in the suit of clothes he had discarded before joining us. "What do you know about that?" he clapped his hand to where the wallet should have been. "Bought five new suits today and left my wallet in an old one at home! Wouldn't that jar you!"

"It would me," I agreed. Lee, automatically opening her own bag, smiled forgivingly into his shifty eyes.

"What would you do without me?" she asked.

"Sweetheart!" he rejoined, which was ample reward for Lee. The floor-show strutted from behind a dazzling curtain, hips swaying, glances darting appraisingly over the tables. Slippery referred to various ones as "some baby." Lee looked uncertain, then she brightened and told me what a perfect kid he was.

When they danced Lee floated dreamily in his arms. I watched and wondered. Perhaps it was explainable enough. Lee had loved Jim Bradshaw fully and Jim had been disclosed as the murderer of a popular dancer. Slippery, having been in the office when stricken Lee rebounded, had received the impact of her misery and, as frequently happens, the gift of her bruised heart.

When they returned, I excused myself and went to the lounge. The riptides of life were too strong for me.

I saw on the front page of that evening's paper a three-column picture of Jim Bradshaw of the crinkly hair and laughing eyes. The same picture had smiled happily at Lee for two years from her dressing-table. I stared glassily at the lines: "Bradshaw's wife, it is rumored, is working to prove his innocence."

A sense of dismay engulfed me. To find Jim had been married in the bargain, might impel Lee's final misstep—elopement with Slippery. Shoving the paper from me, I hurriedly rejoined them. Lee was sitting alone.

"Where's Slippery?" Lee gestured vaguely, musing over a tangle of thoughts. "Is he coming back?" I finally asked. Lee murmured blandly, "No."

Her tonelessness, her disinterestedness, smote me. Had he thrown her over?

"Where did he go?" "Slippery's on his way up the river, and symbolically speaking, across it. I asked him to fetch my wrap. Two plain-clothes men I had engaged to listen in at the adjoining table followed him. Under pressure of my flattering cues Slippery got to bragging about his accomplishments, some of which involved him fatally in the Dorine Darbey affair.

"We'll meet Jim, now," Lee added gently, taking a narrow wedding-ring from her bag and slipping it on her finger.

Ford Tractor Ferguson System

I am going to lay off the Ford tractors long enough to congratulate you farmers in this territory who have had the necessary stuff it takes to stay with it during the past ten years of drought and depression. We think you all have something to be proud of and it is our opinion that you have the battle half won as prices and crops should certainly continue better for a few years at least, considering the change we have seen take place in the past 6 months.

Well here's hoping you get a big corn crop and I believe you will, and watch our ad next week for a new slant on the Ford tractor.—Yours, Benny Nelson.

5 Killed, 7 Hurt, in Auto Accidents

Fatal Injuries to Taylor Girl When Car Rolls 5 Times

Leona Sinner, 19, Dies Sunday in Burwell Hospital; Two Others Hurt.

Taylor—(Special)—Miss Leona Sinner, 19, was fatally injured in an auto accident which happened at the corner of highway 53 a half mile east of Taylor, about 11 o'clock Saturday night. She and her brother, Floyd Sinner, 26, were taken to Dr. Cram's hospital in Burwell where Miss Sinner died Sunday morning.

The car which was a late model Ford V-8 failed to make the corner and turned over five times. Wayne Galbreath of Taylor who was driving the car was uninjured with the exception of a few cuts and bruises even though he and the Sinner were hurled through the top of the car.

The Sinner are the children of Mrs. Ella Sinner who lives on a ranch west of Almeria. Floyd Sinner sustained a broken shoulder and internal injuries but according to reports from the hospital where Mrs. L. D. Pierce is employed as his special nurse he is making satisfactory progress.

Funeral services for Leona Sinner were held in the Pleasant Valley church east of Brewster at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon with Rev. Allan Strong of Rose officiating. Interment was made in the Brewster cemetery.

She spent her entire life in Blaine county with the exception of the last ten months when she took a beauty culture course at Sargent. Last week she successfully passed the examination of the state board of cosmetology and would have become a licensed beauty operator.

In 1939 Miss Sinner graduated from the Brewster high school. She is survived by her mother, three brothers, Floyd, Lee and Leonard; three sisters, Mrs. George Moninger of Almeria, Beulah and Betty, all of whom live at home with the exception of the married sister, and a grandmother, Mrs. Anna L. Garner of Almeria.

Fair Postponed to September Dates

The Valley county fair has been postponed from the last week in August to September 6, 7, 8 and 9, it is announced by the fair board and Dr. Glen Auble, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce committee arranging for the entertainment. ### Legion Jrs. Lose in Nellig Tourney

After defeating Mason City 10 to 0 in brilliant manner Sunday, the Ord Legion Junior baseball team was eliminated from the district tournament at Nellig Monday when they lost to the Nellig team 12 to 3. This was the final game of the season for the Ord team.

A bad first inning when Nellig scored 3 runs got the Ord boys offstride Monday. Bill Johnson was the star hitter for Ord, getting a triple and double in four times up and driving in all the Ord runs. Darrel Johnson, smallest player in the game, got one hit, made two put-outs and six assists.

The Juniors played fine ball throughout the season and deserve a lot of credit. Many of the players will be eligible to play again next year and the manager, V. W. Russell, believes they may go even further than they did this year.

Restrictions Eased on Irrigation Until Peak Need Is Past

Farmers of Loup Valleys Need Not Worry About Corn, Is James' Statement.

Farmers of the North and Middle Loup irrigation districts need not worry about a shortage of water during the peak season of irrigating, it was stated yesterday by H. C. James, engineer-manager of both districts. Though no formal order to this effect has been issued by the state, last week's shut-down orders have been eased to permit each district to use what water it needs up to a maximum of one second foot for each seventy acres. This will be ample for all needs, says James.

C. A. Sorensen, of Lincoln, special attorney for both districts, has been holding conferences with R. H. Willis, of the state department of roads and irrigation, and negotiations toward a final settlement of the water dispute are proceeding.

At Arcadia Monday night a meeting of irrigators passed a resolution commending Governor Dwight Griswold and Engineer Willis for easing restrictions on use of irrigation water and thereby making it possible to save 30,000 acres of corn and other crops in the North and Middle Loup valleys. The meeting had been called to protest restrictions but after listening to James the irrigators praised the common-sense way in which the matter is being handled by Willis. The rate of diversion now permitted will not be changed during the present peak need, it now appears, and irrigation district officials are hopeful that a settlement of all difficulties may be worked out in the near future.

Truck Hits Burwell Tower, Fire Whistle Blows Ten Minutes

The village of Burwell had a bit of excitement this morning when a truck owned by Frank Hopkins hit the 30-foot bell tower on the east side of the square and toppled it to the ground, causing a short in the electric wires which blew the village fire whistle for ten minutes.

Brakes on the Hopkins truck failed to hold when its driver parked it at the curb, and it plunged into the tower which was constructed of steel and was covered with woodbine. There is a bell weighing 1,850 pounds in the top of the tower but the bell has not been used for several years.

The tower toppled toward the street and barely missed One Anderson's car parked at the curb. Only damage was to the tower and to sparrows' nests in the vines upon it.

C. E. Hughes Dies, Valley Countians Critically Hurt

Burwell Farmer's Car Struck Down Charles Masin Family Last Wednesday.

Burwell—(Special)—Charles E. Hughes, 72, Burwell farmer, met his death in an auto accident on highway 53 about a half mile south and a quarter mile west of Burwell late last Wednesday afternoon. Mr. Hughes had complained of not feeling well and was on his way to Burwell to consult a physician, according to members of his family, when the car which he was driving collided with one driven by Charles Masin, who was accompanied by his wife and three year old son, Wayne.

Mr. Hughes was driving on the left side of the road at the time of the accident. His family think that he suffered a stroke or a heart attack which made him unable to control his car. He died on the way to the hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Masin and son were brought to Dr. Cram's hospital where he was found to have sustained a broken hip, brain concussion, severe scalp wounds and a badly lacerated arm. Mrs. Masin had a chest injury and a badly lacerated arm. The three year old son, Wayne, had a fractured skull and lacerations.

Mr. Masin, who was the most severely injured is still in the hospital where he is making satisfactory progress. Mrs. Masin and son were released Saturday. They were taken to the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hulusky where they are being cared for. The Masins live in Eureka township.

Funeral services for Mr. Hughes were conducted in the Congregational church Friday afternoon by Rev. J. Bruce Wylie. Interment was made in the Burwell cemetery beside the grave of his wife who died April 28, 1939.

Mr. Hughes was a pioneer settler. He served for approximately 20 years on the school board in District No. 1.

Rotarians Invited to Serve As 'G-Men,' Help Slow Speeders

City to Start Campaign, Is Mayor's Statement; Police Can't Do It Alone.

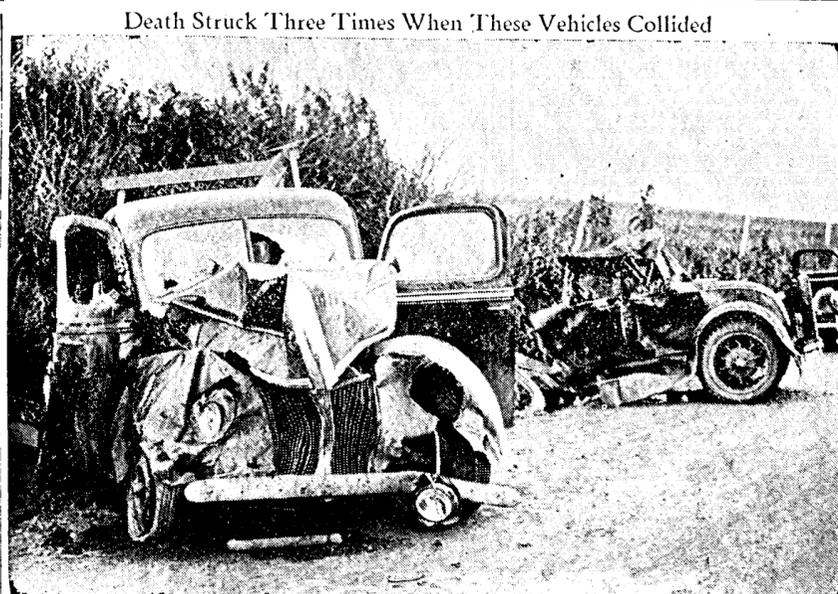

An invitation to serve as voluntary "G-Men" and assist the Ord police force slow down habitual speeders was extended Monday evening to members of the Ord Rotary club by Mayor M. B. Cummins, who said he expects to extend a similar plea to the Cosmopolitan club.

Sunday night's fatal accident, although it happened in the country, added point to Mayor Cummins' plea.

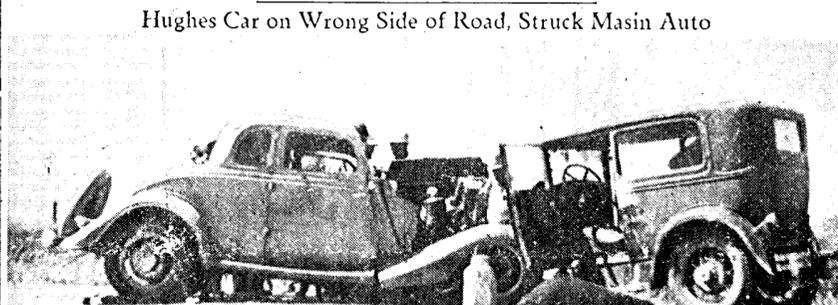

Ord motorists are becoming more careless, he said, and something must be done to stop speeding in this city before a fatal accident occurs within the city limits. The three men who comprise the city police force can't control the situation alone but with the help of volunteer Rotary and Cosmo observers who would report the license numbers of speeding cars to the city office the practice of speeding can be curbed, Mayor Cummins thinks.

In the past police have had instructions to stop motorists driving faster than 40 miles per hour in the residential districts or 25 miles per hour in the business district, the mayor said. More than 1,000 were stopped and warned two years ago and more than 600 last year, he stated. Present instructions to the police call for them to stop motorists doing over 35 in residential districts or 20 in business districts and arrests will be made in most cases where warnings were used previously.

The Rotary club's Monday night program was given by Miss Dorothy Auble, soprano, who sang two numbers beautifully to the piano accompaniment of Mrs. L. J. Auble. A few short talks were made by members. President R. E. Teague presided.

Death Struck Three Times When These Vehicles Collided. This picture of the Romans truck and the Axthelm car was taken soon after the Sunday evening collision in which a happy young family of three had their lives painfully hurt. In the foreground is the Romans pick-up truck which struck the Axthelm car at the Boettger corner, where a corn field is thought to have obstructed the view of both drivers. Funeral services are being held today for Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Axthelm and their baby daughter. (Complete story at right.)

Hughes Car on Wrong Side of Road, Struck Masin Auto. A Burwell farmer, Charlie Hughes, was killed and three Valley county residents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Masin and son, were sent to the hospital, as result of this accident Wednesday. Hughes was driving on the wrong side of the road. (Story at left.)

Still in critical condition in the Cram hospital is Charles Masin, pictured above. His hip was broken and he had brain concussion and severe scalp wounds.

Fall from Horse Fatal to Girl, 13

Burwell—(Special)—Eileen Cochran, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Cochran who live west of Taylor died in Dr. Cram's hospital at 12:10 o'clock Monday noon of skull fracture she sustained Friday evening when she fell from a horse. Her cousin was already on the horse, which was a large gentle work animal, when Eileen attempted to get on behind her. She jumped, over balanced and fell off on the opposite side.

Mr. and Mrs. Cochran, who were in Burwell at the time, were immediately summoned home. The girl was brought to Dr. Cram's hospital immediately where she regained consciousness, ate solid food and high hopes were held out for her recovery until Monday morning when she became suddenly worse.

Eileen would have been thirteen years old next month. She had completed her work in the rural school and would have entered the Taylor high school in September. She was born in Burwell only a few yards away from the hospital where her life ended. Her mother who came to Burwell to be near a doctor at the time of her daughter's birth stayed in the home of Mrs. Lenore Moss who at that time lived in the Capek residence where she now again resides. The Cochrans have two other children, a daughter, eleven, and a son, nine.

Heat Wave Is Broken, Temperature Only 85

A break in central Nebraska's 10 day heat wave came this morning and prospects are that high temperature today will not be over 85, in marked contrast to recent days when high marks have ranged from 96 to 102. Only 13 of an inch of rain reported in Ord by Herace Travis, of which .03 came Friday night and .10 Sunday night, but scattered rains of 1-3 to 1-2 inch each of these nights. Corn is being damaged to some extent by the heat and lack of rain fall but cooler weather and some moisture would pull most fields through with excellent yields.

Harold Barnes Paid Fine for Intoxication

Last week, July 20, F. J. Cohen arrested Harold Barnes and the following day, July 21, he was brought before Judge John L. Anderson, entered a plea of guilty to an intoxication charge filed by John P. Misko, county attorney, was fined $10, which he paid, together with costs of $11, and was released.

According to the officers, Barnes was ejected by Walt Douthit from his beer parlor the night of July 20 when he had become too much under the influence of liquor, and then went to the officers and complained about the treatment he had received, thus bringing the attention of the officers to his condition.

Witt Farm Home Is Destroyed by Fire

About 5 o'clock Friday afternoon the farm home of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Witt, 18 miles northeast of Ord, was totally destroyed by fire, along with nearly all its contents. Neighbors helped the Witts remove a little bedding and a few articles of wearing apparel but everything else went up in flames. Origin of the fire is unknown.

Lloyd Axthelm, His Wife, Baby, Die in Sunday Eve Crash

Romans Truck Hit Car on Corner; Lint Boy Still Unconscious in Hospital.

An entire family was wiped out Sunday evening in one of Valley county's worst tragedies when Lloyd Axthelm, 26, his wife, 23, and their six months old daughter, Judith, were killed when a truck driven by Clarence Romans, 17, collided with their car on a county road nine miles south of Ord. Romans and a companion, Gerald Lint, also 17, were hurt, the latter seriously.

Mr. Axthelm and the little girl were killed instantly and Mrs. Axthelm was taken to the Ord hospital suffering with internal injuries from which she died a few hours later.

A coroner's jury investigating the tragedy Monday afternoon brought in a verdict of "an unavoidable accident."

It happened at 6:10 Sunday evening on the George Boettger corner in Mira Valley. The Axthelm family had been attending a family reunion at Howard Cook's home and were returning to the Davis Creek neighborhood where they worked on the Frank Schudel farm.

Romans and the Lint boy were delivering a load of gasoline to a tractor outfit on the Sterneckner farm.

The Axthelm car was proceeding eastward on a county road and the Romans truck southward. A field of tall corn may have obscured the drivers' view, though there is no evidence to sustain this. In any event, the Romans truck hit the left side of the Axthelm car with great force, hurling it 26 paces southward. Neither car nor truck overturned. Both were practically torn to pieces.

Miss Myra Boettger heard the crash and rushed to the scene. When she found that persons had been killed and fatally injured she ran back to her home and telephoned Sheriff George S. Round, who in turn called the county physician, Dr. J. N. Round, and the county attorney, John P. Misko. The Pearson-Anderson ambulance also was summoned.

The Axthelm baby was thrown out of the car and its body was found beneath the box of the truck, a skull fracture being the cause of death. Mr. Axthelm's body was slumped over in the seat of the car. Death in this case also was due to a fractured skull. Mrs. Axthelm was partly in and partly out of the car and was still alive. She was rushed to the Ord hospital and everything possible done to save her but she died about midnight. Internal injuries were responsible, says Dr. Round.

Clarence Romans suffered only from bruises and shock but his companion, Gerald Lint, suffered a brain concussion and this morning was still unconscious, though his condition was said to be improved. The Romans boy was discharged from the hospital yesterday.

Aluminum Drive Highly Successful

C. C. Dale, who assumed personal charge of the aluminum drive in the rural districts of Valley county, reports that the results of the drive Friday were very gratifying. While the figures for the individual districts are not available, the results in general are as follows, as reported by the Nell Seed company, where the aluminum was collected.

Amount for Ord City, 292 1/2 pounds; for the schools tributary to Ord, 287 1/2 pounds; for Arcadia and adjacent territory, 156 pounds; for North Loup and adjacent territory, 95 pounds; total, 831 pounds. The difference in amounts from North Loup and Arcadia is explained by the difference in amount of territory.

In case any schools have collected aluminum which has not been delivered, they are asked to get in touch with Mr. Dale and the county agent's office. If anybody has been overlooked in the drive, they are asked to bring in the aluminum to the Nell Seed company. In behalf of the committee we are asked to thank all who contributed in any way to make the drive a success.

WHERE IS HITLER?

A number of significant events have occurred in the world in the past month, none more interesting, perhaps, than the unbelievable resistance put up against Germany by the Russians on the Eastern Front.

The Russian campaign opened with the promise of big disclosures by Hitler of wonder gains on a certain date. That date passed, and the time was postponed, and postponed a second time.

Among the wild reports that never developed were the capture of Smolensk more than two weeks ago. The city is still holding out. House to house mopping up operations in the city of Kiev, also mentioned two weeks ago.

In past operations the name of Hitler has figured in practically every news dispatch of importance. But, strategy enough, except for an occasional well-timed inference, practically nothing has been said about Hitler for a long time.

There are several possible explanations for the omission of Hitler's name, the most probable being that he does not want to draw attention to himself during the present failure of the high command to crush Russia.

Another possible explanation is that there is no Hitler to talk about. If he was killed, committed suicide, or became even more insane than he has been in the past, the news would be kept from the entire world, including the German people themselves.

Last, and most unlikely is the idea that he may have lost out with the powers that be in Germany, and be in a concentration camp himself. More likely in this case he would face a firing squad, since no right thinking man would take any chances with a man of Hitler's resourcefulness.

Today affairs on the far flung eastern front are practically at a standstill, and the world awaits further word from Hitler. Until that word comes, the problem of "Where is Hitler?" will be one of the wisest minds in the world to wonder about.

While not all of the fatal auto accidents on the highway are caused by persons operating an automobile while under the influence of intoxicating liquor, we can not blind ourselves to the fact that entirely too many of them are.

When the said wealthy man was wheeled into the operating room to submit to the operation the surgeon who was introduced to him as the finest and most skilled one in the land was . . . the Omaha doctor, who had been sent for to come to Chicago to do the operation!

And then did you read Mr. Witschell on the difference between a plain massage and a Swedish massage? With the latter, the attendant sings the "Hut Sut" song!

Guy Anderson of Burwell was arrested last week on a bad check charge, paid a fine of $5 and $9.25 in costs in Judge Anderson's court, made good the check for $3 to Walt Douthitt to whom it had been given, and was released.

Charles Clark was home from Lincoln over the week end, returning Monday morning.

can bring home to the public the fearful toll traffic accidents are exacting from the people of our nation is by comparison. There is the great Civil war, and most terrible war in which the United States has ever engaged.

Yet, by comparison, we find that the number of people killed in the United States per year in accidents more than equals the loss per year during the Civil war. Phisterer's estimate of the Civil war losses is as follows: Killed in battle, 44,233; died of disease, 49,205; died of disease, 186,216; total, 304,363.

Worse even than the actual loss of life is the fact that we are slowly but surely becoming hardened to these conditions. We read of the accidents or hear about them over the radio, and take them with perfect composure.

A generation or so ago in most states a man had to have an engineer's license to drive a 2-horsepower traction engine down the road at 3 1/2 miles per hour. Today practically anybody over 14 may drive a car powered with a 90-horsepower engine down the road at up to 90 miles per hour.

For the sake of our future as a nation, some means must be devised to put a stop to this slaughter. It is useless for states to legislate, because there is no uniformity in the different state laws.

Real life stories are sillier than any that we read. For instance, the Grand Island man who took a long trip up and down the west coast from Alaska to Mexico and very carefully shot reel after reel of beautiful colored movies of his experiences.

Or the New York Jewish person who went out to Colorado hunting wild game to shoot. The novice hunter hired a fine horse and after he and his party came to a likely spot, he dismounted.

Or the banker of a larger town than Ord who had defrauded so many customers and made such a mess that the bank examiners were having an awful time straightening up.

Or the wealthy man who needed an operation and went to Omaha to consult a specialist. The fee the specialist named was decidedly high, so the out-state man flew to Chicago and consulted specialists there, telling them that he wanted the best specialist available.

Not the First, But One of the First: Trains Which Ran Into Arcadia

Here is a photo that should be of great interest to all Quiz subscribers from the Arcadia territory, since it is a picture of one of the early trains running into that town. The fact that there is no name on the end of the depot leads to the opinion that they had not gotten around to the job of painting the name at that time.

Ord Boy "White Hope" of Cornhusker Team

Says Gregg McBridge, in Omaha World-Herald: "Allen Zikmund, the Ord blonde who grabbed a pass for a Cornhusker touchdown in the Rose Bowl, writes from his home town that mother's cooking and his muscle-building labor have boosted his weight to 193 pounds."

"This is interesting as most fans picture the Zipper as a frail lad who depends on speed more than heft. Last fall Zik balanced the beam at 175. The summer grid prospectus lists him at 185."

"Only 19, the Ord point-maker is growing, having added an inch in height (6 feet 2 inches) since last spring. At times during the 1940 campaign Zikmund cut loose with speed that reminded one of Lloyd Cardwell. All the boy needed was Cardie's height and a big helping of the Wild Hoss' natural finesse."

"If Major Jones lists Zikmund and Debus at halfbacks, Francis or Blue at fullback and Athey at quarter he will have a backfield averaging 195 pounds."

Men at Work in Burwell's New Canning Factory

Above is a good view of Burwell's new canning factory, with men at work installing the machinery. At the left Ferd Wheeler is working on a corn husker. Next to him is Roy Austin running a drill on a corn conveyor. Next is Bud DeLashmuit also working on the conveyor. The man with the goggles is the manager, Orville Marquardt, who is working with the acetylene welding outfit. He was formerly with the Otop Food Products company of Nebraska City. Directly behind Marquardt can be seen Clarence (Jiggs) Downey, electrician. The machinery was brought from Milburn and Two Rivers, Nebr., and is being installed in the former Chevrolet garage east of the Loretta ballroom.

Cannery to Open Saturday; 40 to 60 to Be Employed

The Loup Valley Cooperative Cannery will be all set to commence operations by Saturday night, Orville Marquardt, the manager announced Monday. However the cannery will not open for business until a week later as there is no produce ready to can as yet. Andrew Monson, the county agent reports that the tomato prospects look excellent and that by the latter part of next week there should be some ripe for canning. He believes that the early sweet corn will also be ready for canning by that time and that sweet corn and tomatoes will be canned at the same time.

Mr. Monson reports that some of the tomatoes are infested with psyllids and he recommends that the growers spray their fields with a sulphur of roetene solution.

Mr. Marquardt reports that already around eighty persons have applied to him for employment. Any persons desiring to work in the cannery are urged to see him. No age limits or no regulations as to weight of the women employed have been fixed, he said, contrary to rumors which have circulated.

Between forty and sixty persons will be employed, according to Mr. Marquardt, and about sixty percent of these will be women. The women will be paid 30c per hour and the men 35c. All persons employed must have social security numbers.

After the corn and tomato campaigns are over Mr. Marquardt hopes to can beans, julienne and shoe string potatoes and other similar foods in order to make the factory operate as long as possible. The Loretta ballroom which adjoins the building housing the cannery has been leased by the cannery and will be used as a store room.

Each is 17 years old. Mr. Axthelm was born in Ord June 9, 1915 and grew to manhood in this community, working for different farmers at Davis Creek and Mira Valley and near Scotia. He was baptized in the Methodist church as an infant and was a member until he transferred to the United Brethren church of Midvale, of which he was Sunday school superintendent at the time of his death.

On Feb. 25, 1940 he was married to Elsie Mae Wiberg and one child was born to them, Judith Annette, who was killed with her parents Sunday.

Left to mourn are Mr. Axthelm's father and his step-mother, of North Loup; sisters Mrs. Lloyd Negley and Mrs. Howard Cook, of Ord, and Opal Axthelm, at home; brothers Donald, in the U. S. army in New York, Malvin, of Madison, Wis., and Dale, at home.

Mrs. Axthelm was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. D. Wiberg and was born Sept. 1, 1918 near Burwell. Most of her life was spent in Mira Valley. She graduated from Ord high school with the class of 1937 and later served as librarian here for 1 1/2 years. She was an active member of the Midvale Sunday school.

Besides her parents she is mourned by three sisters, Mrs. Ruth Ryerson, of Burwell, Elizabeth and Lois, at home.

The funeral services for the Axthelm family will be held at 2:00 this afternoon from the Ord Methodist church, with Rev. P. W. Rupp, of Ord, and Rev. Chas. Wantz, of Orchard, officiating. The arrangements are in charge of the Pearson-Anderson Mortuary.

If possible. Jurymen were A. L. Hill, James Patska, Jr., Ed F. Beranek, Carl Sorensen, Clarence Clement and Dick Teague.

This jury viewed bodies of the victims, heard Dr. J. N. Round's testimony as to the cause of their deaths, looked at pictures of the car and truck in the positions they occupied immediately after the collision and went to the scene of the accident where they tried to ascertain whether poor visibility at this corner, speed or other factors caused the accident. Only person who saw either the car or truck just before the crash was Mrs. Ray Peterson, who told the jury that the truck went past her home "very fast" only a moment or two before the collision. Its exact speed could not be ascertained, as Dr. Round said the driver was in no condition to be questioned. About 3:15 the jury brought in a verdict that the accident was unavoidable.

Both cars were traveling on county roads and there were no stop signs on either road. Apparently the Romans truck was being driven at a speed of 60 miles per hour or faster and it seems probable that the driver did not see the Axthelm car approaching on the side road, as there were no marks in the road to indicate that he tried to stop the truck before the collision. The Axthelm car, an old Ford coupe, apparently was being driven at a speed of from 20 to 30 miles per hour.

All the parties involved were or are popular and respected long time residents of Valley county.

Lloyd Axthelm was a son of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Axthelm and was a hard working young farmer. His wife, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Wiberg, served as librarian for the Ord township library until her marriage about 1 1/2 years ago.

Both the Romans and Lint boys are 1941 graduates of Ord high school.

Ranks 1st in Nebraska.

Kermit Erickson, the hustling Arcadia insurance agent, again was honored by membership in the New York Life's "100 club" for June. He ranked 44th among 7,000 agents for this company and 1st among their Nebraska salesmen.

Miss Dorothy Auble and Two Friends in Muscatal

A delightful afternoon of music was provided for Ord Sunday when Miss Dorothy Auble appeared in a song recital at the Methodist church at 3:30 p. m. Miss Ruth Theobald, contralto voice student at Hastings, gave several numbers and Miss Mary Armstrong was a capable accompanist.

First was heard "The Monotone" by Cornelius, then "To the Children" by Rachmaninoff, then the ever beautiful "Ave Maria" of Schubert, all three of them sung by Miss Theobald.

Ord's newest soprano, Miss Auble, then sang warmly and sweetly "Love's Garden Gate" by Keel, "In the Boat" by Grigg, "To Spring" by Gounod, "Plaint," a Bohemian folk song, and lastly "Oh! Had I Jubal's Lyre" from "Jephthah" by Handel.

Chopin's "Ballade in G Minor," from opus 23 was the piano arrangement Miss Armstrong chose to play, after which Miss Theobald sang charmingly another group of songs. Her selection included Kreisler's gentle "Lullaby," then the more spirited "Change of Mind" of Curran, and "Canterbury Fair" by Leslie Smith. Her last number was "The Year's at the Spring," by Beach.

A gay lighthearted thing called "Twenty-Eighteen" by Taylor was the first of the group Miss Auble next presented. Then came "The Nightwind" of Farley, "Kitty of Coleraine," an Irish folk song, the delightful "Woodpigeon" by Lehman, and "In Blossom Time" by Needham.

The numbers were happily selected and well given. Miss Auble's voice was a joy and a thing of beauty.

The contralto voice of Miss Theobald proved to be pleasant, although perhaps not quite so warmly colored. Miss Armstrong, who is also a Hastings college student of music was enjoyed as accompanist.

Miss Auble is an Ord girl, the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Glen Auble, and finished her musical studies at Hastings college last spring. She is spending the summer at home, and has not determined yet what her future plans will be. Whatever they are, Ord hopes to hear Dorothy sing often.

For the recital in her home town, Miss Auble wore a floor-length gown of yellow in something sheer and summery. Miss Theobald's long gown was a cool aqua-colored summer frock, while Miss Armstrong selected an attractive formal dress in white. Many baskets of flowers ornamented the church for the occasion.

Honoring Osentowski's.

For a farewell to Dr. and Mrs. F. J. Osentowski, a group of young married people will meet for a fried chicken supper in Bussell park Wednesday evening. Dr. Osentowski will leave immediately for army duty at Fort Leonard Wood, Rolla, Mo., and his wife as soon as she can find lodgings.

WARNING TO SPEEDERS!

Because of the increasing recklessness of some people here in our city which I fear may eventually result in tragedy, more stringent enforcement of speed laws has been decided upon. Police have been instructed, beginning Monday, August 4, to WARN all auto drivers who are driving in excess of 20 MILES PER HOUR IN THE BUSINESS DISTRICT and to ARREST all drivers who drive in excess of 25 MILES PER HOUR IN THE BUSINESS DISTRICT OR 35 MILES PER HOUR IN THE RESIDENCE DISTRICT.

This recklessness is not confined to any one sex, age or classification. Bicycle riders and pedestrians are as flagrant violators of city traffic rules as automobile drivers. As mayor of the city I am anxious to prevent accidents which I am sure will happen if this excessive speed and foolish, dangerous and unnecessary maneuvers are not checked.

This order applies to every Ord resident and will remain in force until the present condition is corrected.

QUIZ FORUM

Opposes Stamp Plan. To the Editor of the Quiz: In regard to the stamp act as Mid Garner looks upon it. It would be OK, but for one clause in it which ruins the good which was intended to do for us and also the merchants. It forces some of us to buy too many stamps on the small budget or an allowance we receive. If some of us should buy the stamps we would not have enough money left to carry our overhead expenses such as rent, lights, water, clothing and many other items used for necessities of life, such as food, etc.

In our family there are three and our budget, or allowance, does not exceed $30.00 per month. With the stamp act we are compelled to purchase $14.00 in stamps.

You know and I know that the expense of keeping a family, the expense of keeping a child in school and other expenses cannot be done on a small budget. We would be glad to take $7.00 or $8.00 in stamps, but there is a clause which says that we MUST, as they say, and we are not able to do it.

Yours truly, Mid Garner.

—Mr. and Mrs. Paul Jones and Charlotte and Mrs. Harold Schudel left Thursday morning for a weeks vacation in the Black Hills.

NOTICE OF ABSENCE

I will be gone from the office Aug. 7 to 22, and since this will be quite a long period would appreciate your coming in now if you have been planning to have any optical work done in the near future.

A part of this time will be spent in New York City investigating the practical possibilities of the new invisible contact lenses.

The matter of entering into a lease with the C. B. & Q. R. R. Co., was then brought up. The following resolution was presented and read.

BE IT RESOLVED, by the Mayor and Council of the City of Ord, Nebraska, that the said City enter into a lease with the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad company for the land used for a well location, pump house and material yard, as per terms submitted lease dated July 1, 1941, for rental of $10.00 per year in advance, and the Mayor and City Clerk of said City are hereby authorized to sign and attest said lease on behalf of said City and to attach the seal of said City.

It was moved by Councilman McGinnis and that the above resolution be adopted. Councilman Pierce seconded the motion. After discussion the motion was put, and Councilmen McGinnis, Rohla, Krikac, Pierce and Johnson voted aye, in favor thereof, and no Councilman voted against the same, and the mayor declared the said resolution duly adopted.

Whereupon the Mayor announced that the introduction of Ordinances was now in order. NEWS OF THE NEIGHBORHOOD

Supt. John Ward of Taylor, Nebr., was recently elected to membership in the national honorary educational society, Phi Delta Kappa. This is one of the outstanding educational circles, given only to students who have proven themselves outstanding in their field of study.

Private Glenn R. Garrison of Sargeant, Nebr., after only 5 weeks training in the 20th infantry, sixth division at Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo., has been named as an outstanding selectee. This honor is based upon progress shown in practical instruction of Dr. Glen D. Auble of Ord and Harold Grathen of Taylor, is doing very nicely, and will give an outdoor concert in the near future. This band was organized by Dr. Auble by request this spring.

John Miller, who lived southeast of Spalding, passed away suddenly about noon, Tuesday of last week. He was known in Ord—Miss Mary Gorny, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. F. Gorny of Spalding, was married to Lawrence Strehle of Albion at Spalding July 21.

The actual construction of the curb and gutter on O'Neill avenue in Greeley commenced last week. This is an improvement that has been needed for some time, and Greeley is to be congratulated upon its enterprise.—The Greeley tax levy for 1941 has been set at 15.5 mills, 1.5 mills higher than in 1940.

John and Elizabeth Williamson got into the toils of the law at Schuyler last week when Victor B. Wolken of Leigh found that the supposed sable coat he bought from them was nothing but rabbit. The only safe method of buying furs is through a legitimate dealer. Miss Dorothy Auble of Ord, soprano, and Miss Ruth Theobald of Hastings, contralto, with Miss Mary Armstrong at the piano, gave a joint recital at the Methodist church in Comstock Sunday evening, July 27.

While casting off the Palmer bridge one night recently, Henry Jacoby of Grand Island thought he had hooked a flying fish, but it turned out to be a monkey-faced owl which Jacoby had to kill before he could recover his lure, which it had swallowed by mistake.

A cage of wire screen was erected on a main street in Loup City last week, and the people were invited to throw in their old aluminum. It is said that the cage was full in a short time. Similar collection places were provided at Ashton, Rockville, Hazard and Litchfield.

Charles Rother of Scotta won first prize in the Little Theater production there last Wednesday night. Melvin Hemsmeayer was second and Jess and Arlin Shoemaker tied for third. Others in the contest were M. B. Cornell and Rev. Walter Grantham. The cast was picked from men in the audience.

The auto belonging to Sheriff C. A. Jacobson of St. Paul backed down hill when one of the children attempted to drive it into the alley, hit a fire hydrant and broke it off necessitating a shutoff of the water while repairs were being made.

Mrs. Milton Roseberry of near Broken Bow caught her fingers in the power lift of the tractor cultivator she was driving, and her husband found it necessary to dislocate part of one finger with his pocket knife to free her from the gears.

Mrs. Louise Jipp of Ft. Calhoun was 60 years old July 14, and Mrs. Karoline Johnson of Herman was 90 years old Sunday. Both are in excellent health and neither one gives the credit to some kind of patent medicine or new fangled breakfast food, just plain, hard work and sane living.

Rats for Research
One of the chief reasons why rats are used extensively in biological research is that, owing to their size, they require only minimum quantities of testing substances. For example, in a recent experiment on a small number of these rodents, protein fed to them in the form of purified amino acids, cost $50,000. If the experiment had been made on the same number of rabbits, this food would have cost $500,000.

When You And I Were Young Maggie
July 30, 1931.
Ord officials who went to Holdrege and Minden to find out the sentiment there relative to natural gas, found both cities favorable, so Ord favored it also. However, we didn't get it.

E. C. James and Alfred L. Hill were scratched and bruised when James' car was hit by another and upset near Sargeant. July 23 the thermometer got up to 106, which was actually considered hot in those days. The new auto laws were scheduled to go into effect Aug. 3. One law suspended the owner's license unless he could furnish proof that he could pay damages in case of accident, another provided that a person could not drive a car with another person on his lap, and increased the penalties for driving while intoxicated.

Charley Verzal installed his irrigation well, which was looked upon largely as an experiment then, but which is still giving good service. Because it was claimed that poisonous reptiles were coming up the rivers, swimming was halted, and the kiddies were deprived of a lot of fine summer sport by an idiotic report.

Darby Coleman of North Loup was severely injured and Delbert Bridge and Thelma Willoughby slightly injured when their car hit the approach to a bridge. The Ord Co-operative Creamery was the only one in the state buying cream by grade, and was commended for doing so by the state college of agriculture.

Mrs. F. M. Gladson, wife of Marshal Gladson passed away at their home in Ord July 27, having been an invalid for some time. Following the publication of a fake "Wild Man" story in the Quiz, the Omaha Daily News got out a special edition telling all about the alleged wild man, which proves that it don't pay to make a story too realistic.

A hall storm covering a strip four miles wide and thirty miles long hit Kimball county, destroying wheat for Will Armstrong, Dr. F. A. Barta, Willmore Gray, Scott White, Oliver Cromwell and Frank Vopat. Fortunately most of the crops were covered by insurance. A carnival was in Ord, and Ora Taylor and Kirby McGrew were leading the band a helping hand at their noon and evening concerts.

The Ord Community club designated August 10 as Community Day, at which time there was to be a big picnic at Bussell park. Bill Mattley and Charles Detweiler were busy painting the letters, GI-BH on telephone poles along the line of the Grand Island and Black Hills highway.

The Republican county convention was held at the court house, July 22, with W. W. Haskell chairman and W. H. Carson, secretary. Delegates to the state convention were B. Mortensen, Ches Chinn, J. R. Berry, M. E. McClellan, Walter Rood, Dr. A. E. Bortoo and C. J. Donnell.

C. J. Hubbell, civil engineer, came to the valley and had a look at the Burwell power and irrigation canal. He decided it would be a success and gave it his unqualified approval. It could have been built at that time for one tenth what it cost later, but nobody wanted to put up the money.

The Schaaf elevator, located about where the Eschliman and Kull business is now carried on, was burned in a spectacular fire. The manager, Joseph Cink, said there was only about 500 bushels of grain in the elevator at the time.

About two hundred people attended the Illinois picnic held at Bussell park. The Quiz was praising the qualities of Steve Koupal as a ball player, and not without good reason. Plenty of Ordites can recall how he used to bat and play first base.

Albert McMinderes was remodeling his barn, which has been remodeled several times since, and which now houses the Ord Livestock Market. Marion and Bert Cushing, Carl Johnson and Ralph Harris left in the Cushing car, No. 12345, for a trip to the mountains.

One J. G. Jukes had solved the problem of early and late pasture for his stock by sowing rye in the early fall, pasturing it in the fall and spring, and then harvesting 15 bushels of rye per acre. R. P. Russell had an interesting item in the Quiz relative to the valley well that was bored west of Ord, and which struck flowing water at 600 feet. They were experimenting 55 years ago, and are still.

July 27 the Union Pacific filed with the Valley county clerk a plat of the Omaha and Republican Valley railroad right of way through the southwest part of the county. However, the railroad was not built at that time, but much later.

The sum of $2250 had been subscribed by the Law and Order League to be used for the purpose of enforcing the laws in the community by honorable means. Tomas Darnell of St. Paul was in Ord in the interests of J. N. Paul's candidacy for Governor of Nebraska.

The Quiz got a little satisfaction out of the fact that it rained on the day the big railroad celebration had been planned. Mrs. Nellie Coombs was enjoying a visit from her mother, Mrs. M. E. Bartlett, of Creston, Ia.

The firm of Drake and Lytle was offering 100,000 Ord made bricks for sale. Ord could use a good brick yard now.

They had threshed there that day and the hired man, George Elder, had stayed that night to look after the horses. He opened the window at about 10:30 and saw what he at first took to be a horse about thirty feet from the house. It later turned out to be a deer. The next day the threshermen would not believe the story, but the tracks of the deer were found where he had jumped down a bank in the corner of the field.

North Loup—(Special)—This afternoon at the Pete Jorgensen home on Davis Creek, funeral services are being held for Soren K. Since their sponsor, Mrs. Cecil Clark finished serving a year that day, and it was also her birthday, so the 23 girls arranged to have a party for her, and gave her some lovely gifts. vice now. Mayor M. B. Cummins appointed a committee composed of four residents of the section involved, E. C. Leggett, Keith Lewis, A. W. Pierce and Frank Krikac, to contact property owners and see how many want a sewer installed if it can be done with WPA funds. Cost would be about 70c per front foot or $45.00 per lot, estimated City Engineer Allen. He was instructed to prepare a plat of the proposed district for the use of the special committee.

The city council passed a resolution which will be sent to directors of the North Loup irrigation district, objecting to the district's failure to purchase electricity for its pumping and other uses from the city of Ord during the present period. The Ord city attorney construes the contract between Ord and the district to provide that whenever the district purchases electricity during the months of August, September and October it should do so from either the city of Ord or the village of Burwell. Last year during these months the district bought power from Ord to operate its pumps near Taylor and also to serve the village of Burwell. This year power brought in over the transmission line is being used for this purpose.

Storage Total Nears Record for the Month

For 26 years USDA has carefully checked cold storage reports reported storage stocks of butter on the first of each month. Only twice in the 26 years has it reported a larger supply on July 1 than in 1941: 120,278,000 pounds.

Movement of butter into storage during May, 38,997,000 pounds, gave the storage season the fastest start it had had in years. June movement let up none at all, sent another 63,486,000 pounds into warehouses throughout the U. S. on a strictly commercial basis.

July 1 holdings were nearly 40 million pounds higher than last year, 22 million pounds over the five-year average.

IT HAPPENED IN ORD.

Last week we were so busy at the last minute, what with the irrigation water situation and all, that we did not get over to the court house for the court news. However, we have the items this week, and we trust the people concerned will not be disappointed at the delay.

That man Lavern Duamey has been busy for some time digging the dirt out from his house on south 16th street to make a full basement. Now he has a real idea. He plans to invite all the neighbors in for a basket dinner Sunday in the basement, they to bring plenty of eats, and then have them stay and help complete the excavation.

One day recently the Table Supply had a sign on their window which read: "New Potatoes, 98c Bag." The only thing in that part of the window at the time was a pile of watermelons. Now, Fred, potatoes may grow big under North Loup valley irrigation, but they don't have stripes on them.

The boys tell a good one on Otto Radil. Last week a tire blow out for him on the road west of the cemetery corner and he went over the bank into the ditch. He figured he could get back on the grade again by driving along the ditch for a ways, but he got stuck between two trees, where he could not go either forward or backward, and the trees would not let him open either door. Don't know how he got out, but he did.

Monday was plenty hot, and along toward evening a flock of birds were taking a bath through the courtesy of Oscar Goff, who had the water running through his three-sprinkler system on the grade school lawn. They were so located that two of the streams hit the same tree about three feet above the ground, and a fox squirrel was having the time of his life hanging to the tree and getting a shower from both sides.

Friday evening a bunch of the boys thought it was a good time to give newly-wed Arden Clark a real charivari, so they took him over to the irrigation ditch in the park and threw him in. Arden didn't mind it in the least, as he is a former swimming instructor for the Red Cross, and so he stayed in and had a real swim while he was about it.

Freeman Haught reported to the police one evening last week that his daughter Betty's bicycle had been stolen. They did quite a lot of looking around for it and finally located it where the thief had left it in a rack on the north side of the square. They were not so lucky with the fellow who broke into Otto Radil's gas tank and stole a quantity of gas. Some of these days somebody will be caught, and it won't be so funny then.

Since he was 15 years old Iosco had never been well, and he has been hospitalized the past five years. His illness developed into tuberculosis and he passed away July 16, 1941. He leaves to mourn his death, his mother, two sisters and five brothers.

Eddy, have been on hand week day afternoons from 2 until 5 p. m., for the past several weeks, where the highway bridge crosses the North Loup river. They have supervised swimming and playing in the water, helping the youngsters and acting as lifeguards. An average of 30 children a day have been on hand, sometimes of course many more, so the Red Cross feels a good many have benefited from the program. But on August 7 the supervision will cease for this summer, and parents are asked to note this date carefully, so that children will not be sent to swim unguarded.

Nebraska's Big Rodeo Next Week

To Be Held at Burwell, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, August 6, 7, 8, 1941.

Nebraska's Big Rodeo at Burwell once more extends a cordial invitation to attend its twenty-first annual exhibition to be held on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, August 6, 7 and 8. In extending this invitation it is with the feeling that we have prepared one of, if not the best programs we have ever given.

Once again we offer a continuous afternoon performance, starting at one-thirty o'clock each day, of bronc riding, horse races, steer bulldogging, Brahma steer riding, calf roping, ladies bronc riding, and trick and fancy roping. All of this entertainment in the arena is strictly contest and the best talent in the country will be found competing for the liberal prizes offered by the Association.

In addition to this Rodeo program there will be the Sioux Indian Village with the natives in their tribal dances, Weaver and Juniata Grey, talented riders and ropers, Frank and Bernice Dean, bull whip experts, rifle shots, knife throwers and ropers and riders. Pat Henry, trick rider and roper with his beautiful Palameno horse, Frank Chittwood, rodeo clown with his mule "Scrap Iron", the Tidball family, consisting of Mrs. Velva and daughters Carlene and Glorine ages 9 and 10, Trick riders, ropers and dancers, besides other attractions which are being added, the Alamo Exposition Shows, the largest carnival to show on the grounds for years, a complete card of running races and wild buffalo riding, which has proven a great crowd pleaser.

The spirit of the old west prevails at Nebraska's Big Rodeo, a spirit of friendliness and good will—the spirit that has made Nebraska's Big Rodeo, the one big entertainment of the kind in the state. Big night shows and dancing pavilion for those unable to attend the day show. Come and remain for all three days. As thousands have attended this show during the past 20 years you undoubtedly have a neighbor who has attended. Ask him. We stake our reputation on our satisfied customers. Write or wire the secretary for desired information.

Coins Three Centuries Old Owned by George Benn

George Benn of Ord doubtless owns the oldest thing in this part of the county made by man, upon which the date of manufacture is definitely established. It is the coin at the left, above, upon which the date, 1622, can be plainly seen. The date of the coin at the right can also be read and is 1752.

George has had these coins for many years, and received them from his father, George Benn, sr., who found them when he was a young man. As Mr. Benn was well over ninety when he died, the coins have probably been in the possession of the family 75 or 80 years, and of course they were very old coins that long ago.

According to the story George's father told him, George, sr., and some other boys found a lot of old coins one time buried in the ground in the old country, and divided the find among themselves, and the two above are a part of that find. They always believed that they were part of a loot taken by a pirate band, divided among the members and that this was buried by one of them.

Perhaps the fellow who buried it was killed in a fight before he came back to claim it. Perhaps he got sick and died a natural death. What is more likely is that he buried it hurriedly when pursued by authorities, and either died in prison or forgot where he had buried it when he got out.

Ever since men started going out to sea in ships there have been pirates, and there are plenty of pirates today in several parts of the world. The Norsemen were a sort of glorified pirates, who roved the seas, taking booty wherever they found it. Piracy ended in the waters of the United States when Madison pardoned the notorious Jean Lafitte for valiant service at the Battle of New Orleans.

In the early days of the New World the Spanish stole the wealth from the Indians of Mexico and Peru and sailed it to Spain in ships. Freebooters of many nationalities then preyed upon the Spanish galleons and took away the wealth they had stolen. It was a short life and a merry one, ending at the end of a yard arm, or walking the plank.

From the late of the later coin, 1752, it is apparent that the coins must have been stolen some time after that date. Lafitte, of whom there is a record in the encyclopedia, did his acts of piracy from 1800 to 1814. There were plenty of pirates in all parts of the world during the 18th century, so they doubtless infested the shores of Europe, and the coins undoubtedly were part of a pirate hoard.

The origin of the coin at left is rather uncertain, but the lion rampant in the shield in the center with the bundle of arrows in one hand and the sword in the other, gives indications of being English. The crown above it also has an English look. The reading around the edge is "PARVA CRESCUNT CONCORDIA RES." The V is used in the second word because the letter U had not come into general use at that time.

Translated literally, "small things increase harmony." As the coins are produced to exact size, they would hardly be considered small when compared with present day coins, being actually larger than a standard silver dollar. This coin has been shaved down, probably with a knife, until it is no longer round, possibly to make it the exact weight wanted. It is of soft metal, probably almost pure silver.

The reverse side of this coin is shown just below. In the center is a very English looking man in a coat of mail, carrying a broadsword in his right hand and a cord of some kind in his left from which is suspended a shield with a lion rampant upon it, probably the family coat of arms of the man represented.

Around his neck is one of the ruffs of the time of Queen Elizabeth (1533-1603), which were still in use in 1622. His brow is adorned with a chaplet denoting victory. James 1st was king of England in 1622, and the figure shown might well be that of the king. However, the motto around the outside does not fit in with the idea.

It reads CONFO-BELGTRAIEC MOARIG-PRD, and it would take a mighty smart man of the present day to figure out just what it means. However, it certainly does not read much like any English to which we are accustomed. The metal used would be too soft for use in present day coinage, since it would wear out very rapidly. In spite of the care it has received through the years it is badly worn.

The coin does not seem to have any definite value stamped upon it, but the one at the right does. Also it is made of much harder material. The center shield is blank above, but the lower half has vertical lines across it to represent stripes. The number of the lines may not mean anything, but there are 23 of them.

The shield is surrounded by a leaf and floral design, but there is no sign of the fleur de lis, characteristic of French coins. The design of the leaves may have a special meaning, but if it did, that meaning has been lost in the passage of the years. In this coin the date, instead of being on either side of the shield, as in the older one, is in the margin, as our coins are today.

XCCC-GELDT-ANNO-1752. This does not sound much like English. The SCH in schilling and the word Geldt are distinctly Dutch, or possibly German. The milling around the edge is neatly done and very distinct. The edge between the two faces is finished in a chain design with a total of 53 links, the number probably not meaning anything.

On the reverse side of the coin, below, is a two headed bird, rampant, each head with a serpent's tongue and scales on the neck. The wings each have seven feathers, so doubtless the number has some meaning. The number 48 in the center refers, of course, to the value of the coin, 48 schillings. The crown above the bird is surmounted by a cross, probably indicating that Catholicism was the state religion. The lettering reads: MON-NOVA-IMP on the right hand side, and CIVITAT-LUBECAE on the left hand side.

The last two words clear the problem somewhat. Doubtless they may be translated as city, or citizens, of Lubeck. If this is the case, then the coin was put out by the city of Lubeck in Germany, which is still a very important city in north Germany, located on a neck of the Baltic Sea. In those days many cities put out their own coinage.

Strangely enough H. G. Wells in his Outline of History, speaks of the cities of Hamburg, Bremen and Lubeck heading a trade confederation of about seventy towns in all, and this confederation did much to keep the seas clean of piracy. Yet here is one of the city's coins found in a pirate's cache.

Mr. Benn, who found the coins, was born and lived in Schlesweg-Holstein, Germany, less than one hundred miles from the town where the coin was made. It may have traveled far and figured in many transactions before it was buried where he found it. These coins, one 319 years old and the other 139 years, are doubtless among the oldest articles made by man in existence in this part of the country.

—Clarence M. Davis was in O'Neill on legal business two days last week.

In 1869 Mr. Lola passed away, and Mrs. Lola moved to Ord, where she has since made her home with her son, Charlie. She is still in good health, has a fine memory, and likes to visit with her friends. She was a regular church attendant until about 5 years ago, at which time she found it difficult to walk that far.

—Frank Robberson of Neligh arrived in Ord Wednesday and expected to return home last night. He spent the time visiting his many friends in Ord. Frank has the rather unique distinction of attending high school in Broken Bow, Ord and Neligh, playing football in each place, and winning a letter and honor in each school.
—Mr. and Mrs. Bert Norris of Omaha were in Ord from Friday morning until Sunday, and Mr. and Mrs. Ted Lathrop and family of Blair came Thursday night and left Saturday. They came to see C. E. Norris, who suffered a light facial stroke last week, but who is now feeling improved, under the care of his son, Dr. H. N. Norris.

IT HAPPENED IN ORD.
F. M. Vodehnal came into the Quiz office yesterday with a lot of weed tops on which dozens of grasshoppers killed by the fungus concerning which a story appeared in the Quiz not long ago. It seems to be more effective as time goes on, but Mr. Vodehnal believes it affects only one type of grasshopper, and all those yesterday were of that type.
Mussolini had his birthday yesterday, July 29, and we have not heard of anybody from Ord sending him felicitations. Likewise Henry Ford had another birthday yesterday. He was 78, and Mussy was 58. Here's hoping Henry lives a long time yet, but nobody seems to worry much about Mussy. About the only worth while thing he'll do in his life is when he kicks off.
Now why couldn't those men have been sensible, like Mrs. C. E. McGrew and had their birthdays on the first day of August, which is Friday. We are not telling you their age, except that she don't look it. She is not as young as Mussolini, nor as old as Henry Ford. But the way she takes care of her house, and the interest she shows in her friends' would lead you to believe she is a lot younger than the family Bible shows.
—Arthur Bailey, of Omaha, came Tuesday night to visit his mother Mrs. R. C. Bailey, and left early Thursday for Merriman and Scottsbluff.

Ord League Baseball Team Wins No. 2

The Ord baseball team took on new life Sunday and upset the predictions by defeating Rockville, 9 to 5, in a Sherman-Howard league game, for their second victory of the season. Playing outstanding ball the entire game the Ord team tightened in the pinch behind the hurling of Severson to cut off several Rockville rallies. The Rockville team outthrew the Ord hitters 8 to 7 but had eight errors to Ord's four. Severson showed no signs of letting up, going strong as the game ended. The Ord hitters shelled the Rockville hurler, Shinkel, from the mound in the 3rd on a 7 run rally.
