Bud Shirley Appears On Air Friday A. M.

Didn't Need Car—Had One Like It

Mr. M. Biemond left the theatre Wednesday morning, got into a car, stuck the key into the ignition switch, and drove home.

Ed Beranek, looking out of his drug store window, was amazed to see his car pull away from the curb, driven by Mr. Biemond. Mr. Biemond's car was parked just a few feet away.

Beranek called Biemond for an explanation. "What do you mean, YOUR car?" asked Biemond, "My keys fit—it must be my car."

But he looked at the license plate. Sure enough, Beranek's car. Biemond returned the car and drove his own back home.

The moral of the story seems to be: If the key fits, drive the car.

Tops In Our Town Given Big Fete by Ord Saturday

Large Crowd Here to Attend Betty Crocker Day in Ord.

All radios in the Loup Valleys—and many from coast to coast—will be tuned to the Betty Crocker Magazine of the Air Friday morning, to hear Ord's Tops in Our Town make his appearance over the ABC national hookup.

Local persons will hear the program best over KMMJ, Grand Island and the broadcast will start at 9:25 a. m.

Bud Shirley—chosen Tops in Our Town—is now in New York City and from word the Quiz received this morning, is having the time of his 88-year-old life. He arrived in the big city Tuesday afternoon, spending part of Tuesday morning in Washington, D. C., and Monday afternoon in Chicago, between trains. Making the trip with him is Shirley Norton, his grandson of York, Nebraska. Mrs. Bud Shirley will not physically be able to make the trip.

Tuesday evening, Bud and Shirley had dinner at the Cafe Rouge in the Hotel Statler and then attended the Broadway performance of "Kiss Me Kate." Following the show they had a midnight supper at the Statler roof garden. Wednesday morning they went on a boat trip around New York Harbor.

Last Saturday, Ord turned out en-masse to honor their first citizen. Bud had a busy day, starting with a special radio transcription Saturday morning, an interview with Radio Station KMMJ which was broadcast Sunday noon.

In the afternoon, members of the Ord volunteer fire department escorted their former chief and oldest member to the Bohemian Hall where Tops in Our Town ceremonies began. All three trucks of the department went to the Shirley residence. Bud was given a seat of honor on the old department truck that he drove himself many years ago. With sirens blowing, the trucks circled the square several times, before the procession halted at the hall.

In the hall, Bud was introduced to the assembled guests, and notified officially of his trip by Jim Weesner, representative of General Mills, sponsors of the Betty Crocker Magazine of the Air.

In speaking to the audience, Bud traced his early history in Ord, told of his appreciation in receiving the Tops Award. "It was the nicest thing that could have happened to anyone," he said. "And mother and I are completely overwhelmed.

Tears in the eyes of the audience came freely as the old gentleman struggled with the deep emotional experience it had produced within him.

A handsome fitted traveling bag was presented to Bud by Rollin Dye, chief of the fire department, in appreciation of the years of service Bud had given the department. Mayor F. L. Blessing expressed the congratulations of the city of Ord, and presented Bud with two packages of Beechnut for his trip. Bill Steen, president of the Chamber of Commerce, gave the honored guest the best wishes of the business people of Ord.

Saturday evening, as a climax to Betty Crocker Day in Ord, a Quiz program was presented at the Bohemian Hall, with Professor Mark Question presenting the show. Merchandise prizes given by Ord business men were presented to winners. Prior to the quiz

Keep Holiday Safe Council Pleads

Americans were asked today to celebrate the year-end holidays by keeping themselves and the Christmas spirit alive this year.

That plea launched the National Safety Council's Christmas safety campaign, in which 161 national organizations are cooperating.

The campaign is aimed at reducing the increasing number of accidents throughout the nation. Special emphasis will be placed on traffic accidents, which have taken an upward swing this year.

Traffic deaths for the first nine months of 1950 were up 11 percent, and Council predicts that the traffic death toll for the year is virtually certain to reach 35,000. This would be the highest since 1943 and the only year since 1946 to show an increase.

"The Christmas-New Year's holiday season is the peak accident period of the year," said Ned H. Dearborn, president of the Council, "and traffic accidents present the most acute problem. Heavier travel and the festive spirit of the season always add to the normal winter hazards of bad weather, slippery roads and added hours of darkness."

"And more people will be traveling this year," he said. "Service men and women will be coming home on holiday leaves — and some families will be traveling to military camps to spend the holidays with those who cannot come home."

"This increased travel calls for extra caution on everybody's part. If everyone will take a little more care, we can avoid many of these accidents."

Nearly 600 Receive Immunization in Valley County

Program Called 'More Successful Than Anticipated.'

A total of 590 Valley County children have been immunized in the three centers, Arcadia 114; Ord 326, and North Loup 150.

The children who have not been able to come for all of their shots or the small pox vaccination and have paid the entire fee may go to Dr. Barta's office for the shots needed and the small pox vaccination. Those whose small pox vaccination did not take may also go to Dr. Barta's office for a second treatment.

Mrs. Archie Mason, County Chairman of the Immunization committee says: "The program has been far more successful than we had anticipated in that many more children were brought to be immunized than we expected. The fees charged were used for the services of the doctor. The help of the nurses and the clerical workers was all volunteer. Incidental expenses were — Mr. and Mrs. Orel Koelling, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Geweke and Alice Beran were dinner guests of Carson Roge's last Wednesday evening at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Rogers, paid from the T. B. fund. The Legion Auxiliary cooperated in making no charges for the use of the Legion Hall in each town. The superintendent of schools has allowed us to use the school for a working center and arranged time for the children to be dismissed for treatment. The county superintendent gave his consent for the rural teachers to use any of their children who wished to be immunized."

Triple shots were given for those who were immunized for diphtheria, tetanus and pertussis (commonly called whooping cough); double shots for diphtheria; tetanus and small pox vaccinations for any who wanted it. The booster shots were given for diphtheria and tetanus only for children who had been immunized before.

A complete record was kept of all immunizations. A copy of these records will be given to the county superintendent of schools and to the Superintendent of Schools in each center and a copy is to be sent to the State Department of Health.

"Because of the war situation we feel that this program came at a most opportune time and hope that the children of our county will benefit from it," Mrs. Mason concluded.

Water Seepage into Ocean

How deeply does water seep into the ocean bottom? A great deal of the ocean floor is covered with sediments, of sand or mud, ranging from a few feet to many thousands of feet in thickness. The spaces between the individual grains are filled with sea water which was trapped when the sediments were deposited. Subsequent biological and chemical activity may often have modified such water so that it differs from that in the ocean above. Where there is no sediment, as on the edges of continental shelves and isolated banks and ridges, the sea bottom may consist of solid rock. Here the penetration of the water may vary from a fraction of an inch to several feet, depending on the porosity and permeability of the rock.

Atom First Smashed

Experiments made with elements (like radium discovered in 1898) showed that these spontaneously break up into other elements, with the liberation of various atomic particles and radiation. In 1919, with particles emitted from radium, Sir Ernest Rutherford, at Cambridge University, succeeded in producing changes in the nuclei of nitrogen atoms. The first successful "atom smashing," with artificially produced particles came in 1932 when two other Cambridge scientists, J. D. Cockcroft and E. T. S. Walton, used nuclei of hydrogen atoms (called "protons"), accelerated them with energies of 700,000 volts and fired them at lithium atoms thus smashing them to produce nuclei of helium atoms.

Ulcers in Pigs

About five out of every hundred hogs that go to market have a special reason for squealing. The reason, it seems, is that they're suffering from ulcers of the stomach. All species of large domestic animals, as well as pets, are susceptible to the type of stomach ulcers that afflict human beings. However, there are fewer cases in farm animals than in people, due to environmental

Lord Nelson

Lord Nelson, the English naval hero, was the first to distinguish between a modern house-for-sale ad and that of a wealthy Roman's house in about 30 A. D. The latter would read something like this: "Spacious 30-room stone house, hot air furnace, running water, kitchen with built-in oven, landscaped central court with pool." The Roman probably would assume that you knew he had glass windows and artificial lighting—provided by oil lamps.

Afghanistan

Ancient Afghanistan wants to be among the first in line when the United Nations puts into effect the newly authorized programs for technical aid to underdeveloped areas. With an economy still overwhelmingly pastoral, the long isolated "Secret Kingdom" needs a large measure of such assistance to carry through long-term plans to provide its people with hard-surface highways, new industries, modern schools and hospitals.

"House-for-Sale"

There would be little to distinguish between a modern house-for-sale ad and that of a wealthy Roman's house in about 30 A. D. The latter would read something like this: "Spacious 30-room stone house, hot air furnace, running water, kitchen with built-in oven, landscaped central court with pool." The Roman probably would assume that you knew he had glass windows and artificial lighting—provided by oil lamps.

Dairy Herd Improvement

Improvement in dairy herd genetics is being achieved through the use of modern breeding techniques. This involves careful selection of breeding stock, attention to nutrition and health, and the use of artificial insemination to spread desirable traits.

Big Dog Population of U.S. Has Early American History

The recent census is giving Uncle Sam a reliable figure for the number of people in the United States. But nobody yet has come up with a definite count for "man's best friend," the dog.

Some estimates of the current canine population of the U. S. go as high as 25 million or more. Others are much lower. One "educated guess," made by an organization whose business is dogs, puts the number at about 15 million. The variance, of course, is due to necessarily incomplete records, obtained mostly from dog licensing statistics and other registrations.

At least it is known that the Indians had many domesticated dogs when the first European settlers arrived. Just how and when the ancestors of these beasts came or were brought to America is still a mystery, however.

Anthropologists find no definite evidence that dogs were associated with the first men believed to have immigrated to America—the "red Mongoloids" from Siberia. Probably, it is suggested, the first dogs in America, also from Siberia, were later acquisitions by the transplanted savages after they had become more settled.

The bones of dogs have been uncovered by archeologists in the ancient Ohio Indian mounds, for instance, and early colonial accounts mention such animals in the domestic life of the Indians of the south and elsewhere, before the advent of the white man's poultry, horses, and cattle.

Waste Disposal Problem Studied by U. C. Engineers

Because the disposal of rubbish is of vital importance to metropolitan areas, the engineering department of the Los Angeles campus of the University of California is undertaking a study of waste disposal via incinerators.

A. F. Bush, assistant professor of engineering, is in charge of the incinerator studies.

It may not be important to you what becomes of correspondence you toss in the waste basket or how branches trimmed from trees in yards and parks are disposed of. But when you multiply this by several million, it becomes of vital concern to a metropolitan area the size of Los Angeles, Bush points out.

While cut-and-fill methods are one of the easier methods of taking care of the problem, space is at a premium. Hundreds of thousands of tons of refuse daily soon fill up areas that are close enough to make hauling economically feasible.

Letting it all go up in smoke seems to be the logical solution. But this too has its problems, Bush points out. "Improper combustion" makes excessive smoke and may contribute to the smog problem. After the rubbish is burned there still remains 10 to 20 per cent of the weight in ashes to be disposed of.

Swarm Prevention

Swarming, an inherited instinct of the honeybee, is means of preserving and propagating the species. This instinct is stronger in some races—even within certain strains of the same race—than in others. The tendency to swarm can be reduced to a certain extent, therefore, by a careful selection of breeding stock. Chief among the many factors which contribute to swarming are overcrowding in the brood nest, lack of storage space, presence of old queens, lack of ventilation in the hive, and confinement of the colony to the hive during a honey flow by cold or rainy days.

Comoro Islands

That tireless geography teacher, the postage stamp, is all set to call attention to another little known part of the world—the Comoro Islands. The Comoros dot the northern entrance to the Mozambique Channel, between Africa and Madagascar. In issuing the first set of stamps in its history, the Comoro group will be exercising some of the new independence granted it within the French Union as of January 1, 1947. Prior thereto, the little archipelago was under the French colonial government of Madagascar.

He Was Mightily Proud, and Looked Like the Pictures you See of Northwoods Guides.

So Tracy and I bought ourselves some supplies, and moved into the shack. The third day, Eben dropped around to see how we were doing. We told him in no uncertain terms, and if he wanted to spell us for a day we'd split the reward. "Mean it?" he said. "Sure we mean it. You lay your hands on the thief, you get $2500 cash."

"Come with me," he said. He took us directly to the jail and pointed through the bars at a prisoner, Bronco Pete. Well, sir, this was it: Bronco had committed the theft all right, but it didn't do him much good, because he couldn't dispose of the jewels. Nor could he spend the $50 in cash he'd swiped along the rocks, because he hadn't worked for months, and to do so would have aroused suspicion. Then we came along and advanced him $20 and he bought himself a new outfit with it, including a new pair of boots with cleat marks on the heels.

Eben was suspicious because he knew you couldn't buy a fancy costume like Pete had for less than $50. But Eben let us go ahead with the case, as per the request of the Livermores, till we got fed up; till, in fact, we offered to split the reward.

SHORT STORY

City Cops

By Richard Hill Wilkison

I'VE INVESTIGATED some queer cases but the jewel robbery up at River's End Lodge topped them all. Tracy and I were dumb; we're ready to admit that, but after all, we're city cops not primitive wilderness natives.

The reason we were called in was because Homer Livermore's wife had lost $50,000 worth of gems, and neither she nor Homer trusted or had faith in Eben Jackson, the local constable. Jackson met us at the station, and it wouldn't take a sleuth to see he was sore at the Livermores.

"I'll show you what I already found out," he told us briefly, "then let you smarties dope out the rest."

He took us up to the lodge and showed where a ladder had been placed against the house. Then he showed the thief had probably taken his loot and skunk off in the woods to hide.

Then Tracy had an idea. "If we gotta browse around through the bushes we ought to have a native guide."

Eben recommended Bronco Pete, who, it seemed, was a guide who didn't have enough money to buy a license for himself, hence was out of work. We explained our predicament to him and he shrugged indifferently. Then Tracy flashed a $20 bill and he changed his mind.

He took the twenty, and a promise of two more after a week's work, and went away. He came back the next morning dressed up in new high-laced boots, riding breeches, a checked shirt and a big hat. He was mighty proud, and looked like the pictures you see of northwoods guides.

Well, sir, we started out. We trekked through the woods for a whole day. Then Bronco Pete led us to a deserted shack. Outside we found a set of fresh footprints, the heels of which were marked with a common iron cleat.

"Chances are," said Eben, "if we find the owner of these here boot-marks we'll have us the thief. I see tracks like that around the lodge beneath the window."

"Pete," I says, "find us the owner of these boots and there's an extra twenty in it for you."

Pete set off through the brush like a hound on the scent. Tracy and I followed wearily. Pete led us straight back to the lodge, and there, sure enough, were marked footprints beneath the bedroom window.

"The thing to do," Eben told us, "is for you two nannies to make yourselves comfortable in the shack, and nab the thief when he comes home."

IT WASN'T a pleasant prospect, but it seemed like the only bet.

He was mighty proud, and looked like the pictures you see of northwoods guides.

So Tracy and I bought ourselves some supplies, and moved into the shack. The third day, Eben dropped around to see how we were doing. We told him in no uncertain terms, and if he wanted to spell us for a day we'd split the reward.

"Mean it?" he said. "Sure we mean it. You lay your hands on the thief, you get $2500 cash."

Name 4 Nebraska 4-H State Winners

TOP ranking records in the 1950 national 4-H Dairy Achievement, Clothing, Tractor Maintenance and Farm & Home Electric awards programs have brought state honors to four Cornhusker State club members. Brief outlines of their records follow.

Achievement in dairy production and management has earned state honors for Leslie Myers, 17, of Roca, in the 4-H Dairy Achievement program. Dairy practices and care of animals learned in the project have given him an understanding of the principles of sanitation and animal health. Leslie also has learned the value of teamwork and sportsmanship. A 4-H'er for six years, the youth has developed a fine dairy herd, and has been an outstanding exhibitor, showman, and judge. In 1949 he entered and won five different showmanship contests, and was Nebraska State Champion Holstein 4-H Club boy. Each year he has been able to make the best a little better, and he now has five registered cows in production, 11 heifers and calves and three bulls. He has received $529 in premium money, along with other awards. As president and junior leader of his club he has given much time and effort to ward helping younger boys and girls. Lederle Laboratories has provided Leslie's watch award.

It doesn't cost very much for Alene Ochsner, 17, of Madison, to be smartly dressed because she is handy with a needle, and knows how to buy patterns and fabrics. As clothing winner, Alene has to her credit 100 garments made, mended or altered during 10 years in club work. A student at the University of Nebraska, Alene planned and made her college wardrobe. She also has made matching hats and bags, knitted anklets, mittens and sweater for girls. Alene has displayed many district, county and state clothing exhibits, winning high honors, including more than $370 in cash.

All of these activities are conducted under the direction of the Extension Service of the State Agricultural College and USDA cooperation.

Of practical and lasting value to Joseph Kovar, Jr., 18, of Wilber, is the down-to-earth knowledge gained in the 4-H Farm and Home Electric program, which also won for him highest honors. His plans for utilizing electricity and electrical equipment on the home farm have resulted in more conveniences and leisure hours. Now enrolled in a radio and electronics course at the Nebraska State Trade School, Joseph is applying some of the basic knowledge he gained in 4-H. He has set up a school amplifying system and an electric circular saw at home. Westinghouse Educational Foundation gave Joseph a trip to the Club Congress.

Married at St. Mary's Church

Mr. and Mrs. Maurus Eiberger.

The wedding of Dolores Greenwalt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Greenwalt of Ord, and Maurus Eiberger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Adam Eiberger of King City, Mo., was an event of Nov. 25, at 9:00 o'clock in St. Mary's church of Elyria. Rev. Joseph Bednowicz of Chicago, cousin of the bride, performed the double ring ceremony. Mrs. Don Edwards played the wedding music and accompanied Mrs. Eleanor Copeland who sang, "Ave Maria." "Pans Angelicus," a duet, was sung by Mrs. Copeland and Rev. Leonard Zielkowski. Rita Greenwalt, as her sister's maid of honor and only attendant, appeared in a gown of coral lace and matching satin. She carried a bouquet of tiny white mums. Balthus Eiberger of King City, Mo., served his brother as best man and ushers were Norman Brasch of Pierce and Bud Johnson of Lincoln. The bride entered with her father who gave her in marriage. Her bridal white gown was of misty imported French lace over white satin and tulle. The portrait neckline, scalloped in the design of lace, was accentuated by a sheer illusion yoke. Three-quarter length sleeves ended in a full scalloped flounce. The voluminous scalloped skirt fell from a fitted bodice and swept into a court train. Her veil of illusion was held in place by a crown of lace edged with pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of tiny white mums. Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dlugosh. The refreshment table was arranged with white satin and centered with a three tier wedding cake and on either side were tall white tapers. Assisting at the reception were Mrs. Edgar Byler of Kansas City, Mrs. Peter Benben of Chicago and Mrs. Anthony Osinski of Barrington, Ill. After a wedding trip to the Ozarks and Memphis, Tenn., the couple will reside in St. Paul where Mr. Eiberger is an instructor of veterans agriculture. Mrs. Eiberger is a graduate of the University of Nebraska and has been a member of the Hawthorne faculty at Lincoln. Mr. Eiberger also graduated from the University of Nebraska where he is a member of the Delta Sigma Phi fraternity.

—Dr. and Mrs. P. L. Blessing returned Tuesday from Lincoln after being there Monday night for the Northwest Missouri Teachers' College and University of Nebraska basketball game. Prize Turkey Is Sold at $5 Pound

The Weeping Water Community Club of Weeping Water, Nebraska, paid $5.00 a pound "on the hoof" Thursday for the Reserve Champion Live Turkey at the Ak-Sar-Ben Poultry Congress auction sale for purple ribbon turkeys. The Reserve Champion was a 25-pound "Nebraska" Tom exhibited by the Norris Hatchery and Turkey Farm of Weeping Water. The second high price at the closing day of the three-day poultry show was paid by Fairmont Foods of Omaha. W. W. Dayton, Fairmont vice president, gave $3 a pound for the Grand Champion Live Turkey of the show. The 21-pound, broad-breasted hen was presented to four-year-old Dickie Snively of the Masonic Home for Boys in Omaha. It was also shown by the Norris Hatchery and Turkey Farm. Another Norris turkey, the 18-pound Champion Hen, was brought by Allied Mills of Omaha, for $2.75 a pound. Fairmont Foods bought two additional birds, paying $1.00 a pound each for the 21-pound Champion Beltsville White Tom shown by Hunting Brothers of Moline, and the 36-pound Champion Broad Breasted Bronze Tom shown by the Norris Hatchery. Three of the winning exhibits went to the Omaha Cold Storage Company which paid $2.52 1/2 for the 16-pound 12-ounce Grand Champion Dressed Turkey shown by Sunny-slope Farms of North Platte, and $1.00 a pound each for the ten-pound eight-ounce Champion Beltsville White Hen shown by Lloyd's Hatchery and Turkey Farm of Council Bluffs, and the 13-pound 4-ounce Champion Bourbon Red Hen exhibited by Mrs. A. J. Minish of Depart, Ia. The birds were to be given to the Salvation Army. Picnic Fires Picnic fires may cause accidents unless care is taken to keep youngsters away from them. The fire should be put out when the cooking is finished. Potash Deficiency When the edges of the leaves of growing corn plants turn brown and scorched-looking in appearance, this may be a sign of potash deficiency. Young Turkeys Young Turkeys grow so fast and make such good use of every bit of grain that poultry specialists of the U.S. department of agriculture are taking special interest in the marketing of turkey broilers.

H. Morehead, Former Governor, Served Six Terms in Congress

John H. Morehead, governor from 1913 to 1917, was an important figure in Nebraska politics during most of the first of the 20th century. In addition to his two terms as governor, he served six terms in congress, and one term as member of the state senate (during which he was president pro-tem). Governor Morehead was born at Columbia, Ia., December 3, 1861, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Morehead, Iowa pioneers. He attended the public schools, a private school in Knoxville, Ia., and a business college in Shenandoah. As a young man of 23, he came to Nebraska. Originally he intended to emigrate to western Nebraska, but a visit to Nemaha county enroute convinced him that he should remain in the southeastern section of the state. In the tradition of many another young Nebraskan on the way up, he taught school for a couple of years, then went into business for himself. He married Minnie Weisenreder of Aspinwall, and the young couple settled in Barada, where John went into the mercantile business. Almost immediately the business showed a profit and the young husband began investing in land and branched out into the livestock business. Later, he became one of the founders of the Barada State bank. Mr. Morehead's first venture into politics occurred in 1895 when he ran successfully for the post of Richardson County treasurer. He was re-elected in 1897. Following the expiration of his second term he became cashier of the First National bank in Falls City—later he would become its president as well as head of the Nebraska State bank—and the Moreheads continued to live in the town that was to become their lifelong home. Governor Morehead served a term as mayor of Falls City before being sent to the state senate for a term (1909-11). He was a delegate to the Democratic National convention in 1908. He won the hotly-contested Democratic nomination for governor in 1912, and then defeated Chester H. Aldrich, Republican, who was seeking reelection. He was re-elected in 1914, but refused to run for a third term in 1916. He ran for the U. S. Senate in 1918, but was beaten by George W. Norris. Two years later, Samuel R. McKelvie defeated him in another try for the governorship. In 1922, however, Governor Morehead was elected to the first of six successive terms in congress as representative of the first dis-

It's Basketball Time Again!

Larry Loft, Ord junior, holds three basketballs as he goes out on the maples for the daily drill of Coach Bill Gogan's squad. When asked why he needed THREE basketballs, he replied, "I need one for each hand, don't I?" Ask a silly question, and that's the kind of answer you get!

Kebby's Comments

Al Blessing, a former Ord high school cage star, is seeing action with the University of Nebraska first team this year.

Phog Allen, Kansas basketball coach, is one of the most talked-about men in the game. He does a lot of thinking—and he must do a lot of thinking, because every once in a while he comes up with an idea that pays off for his team.

The latest Allen twist is to take the ball out of bounds instead of trying the free throw.

Some coaches have done that in the last few minutes of play, but the Phogger is going to find out if it's a good idea to make a practice of it.

If the free throw is doomed (we are not saying that it is) the fans will find themselves watching a faster brand of basketball than ever before.

Poetry corner:
A bather whose clothing was strewed
By winds that had left her quite nude
Saw a man come along—
And unless I am wrong,
You expected this line to be lewd.

More poetry:
It's hard to find, for love or money,
Jokes that are clean and also funny.

The Chanticleers have picked a tough opponent to start the 1950-51 basketball season.

The Gothenburg squad is always tough, and although only a pair of Swede lettermen are back, Coach Dutch Zorn's lads will be hard to beat. The Ord fans could help the Chants a lot if they'd jam the bleachers for the season opener, Friday, December 15.

Weather permitting, members of the American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars will hold a blue rock shoot Sunday afternoon, December 10, at the Ord airport. Prizes of dressed turkeys, ducks, capons, geese and fryers will be given. In case of inclement weather the shoot will be postponed a week.

Held Husking Bee for Injured Neighbor

Friends of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Kirby gathered at the Kirby home Monday, Dec. 4, and picked about 60 acres of corn.

Last spring Mr. Kirby fell and broke his hip and has been unable to do his farm work.

Nine mechanical pickers did the work. The pickers were furnished by Jack Koll, Hartwig Koll, Walter Conner, Lewis Jobst, Harold Burson, Warner Vergin, Glen Warner, Walter Sydzik and Anton Kluna.

The men who hauled and scooped the corn were John Koll, Willard Conner, Orrie Hurlbert, Emil Dlugosh, Elmer Almuquist, Otto Graul, Harry Plock, Chris Kirby, Chet Kirby, Sam Brickner, Lowell Jones, Joe John, Leonard Marks, Fritz Kuehl and Frank John.

Ladies of the neighborhood sent covered dishes for the dinner. Those who helped Mrs. Kirby were the dinner were Mrs. John Koll, Miss Thelma Koll, Mrs. Chris Kirby, Mrs. Lewis Jobst and Mrs. Willard Conner.

Grains.

The grain markets have been quite strong the past few days and good yellow corn is bringing over loan price.

If you have grain to sell we would appreciate a chance to make you an offer on it. We have trucks to move this grain to market for you if you need a truck. White corn is bringing a nice premium if it will grade No. 2 or No. 3. Of course grain with a lot of moisture must take a discount.

To the feeders we can furnish you with good quality corn for your feeding operations.

Molasses Feed.

Feed manufacturers are finding molasses harder to get. There is a number of uses for molasses in the manufacture of war goods and of course this use will have priority over the use of molasses in the making of feeds. At present you can buy a 20% protein feed about as cheap as you can buy a 12% protein feed but it will carry a much lower molasses content. Let us figure with you on your needs for your feed yard.

Regarding protein feeds. Most all fall the brokers thought that we would see lower prices on protein feeds because of the very large crop of Soy beans; however, the Cotton Seed available is lower than expected and the soy beans have been stored on the farms and protein prices continue to advance. With feeding grains as high as they are the price of proteins is not out of line.

Lincloy is a mixed protein feed containing Cottoncake, Soy Bean Meal and Linseed Meal. This is ideal for range feeding and if you want something high in protein for feed yard use this will fill the bill.

Christmas Trees.

We have a very good stock of Christmas trees. Anything from a three foot to one large enough for a large church or schoolhouse. We also have some very very good Christmas tree holders. Come in and pick out a tree now while the stock is large. Free delivery anywhere in town.

Lean Men

Fifty years ago Frank McClure, noted lecturer, delivered his lecture, "Lean Men" to a large audience in Ord. The subject is of interest, in fact, it is so vitally interesting that an editorial on the subject would not be out of place at this time.

It appears that there are a number of types of lean men, depending on their place in history, and the point of view from which they may be seen. Some of them are of the greatest value to the world, while others do more harm than good.

The first lean man to be considered is the rugged, tough lean man who goes forth into the wilderness to make it a fit place for civilization to follow. He is lean for the double reason that he works hard and that he often has very little to eat.

Daniel Boone must have been a lean man. Going into the Kentucky dark and bloody ground as he did, the work he had to do would make any man lean, and he doubtless often went without food for a day or two at a time, which should have given him a willowy figure.

It was so with all men who pioneered the great west. They were men who worked from five in the morning until nine at night, using every daylight hour to a good purpose. These men ate three meals a day when they found time to do so, but often skipped a meal, something that would be fine for all of us to copy.

Two other types of lean people are up for consideration, and they form quite a large part of the world today. First they are the people who seem to be unable to support themselves, and who lean upon others for support. Among these are the people who would rather have the government support them than to stand upon their own feet.

This group did not get that way overnight. Twenty years ago people were willing to work for their living. They put in long hours for little pay, it is true, but they would rather do so than to feel themselves dependent on the government. The average man was still the master of his destiny.

But the going was getting tougher, and the government felt that something ought to be done for the man who was trying so hard to do something for himself. The idea sounded alright at first, but the trouble was the government did not have sense enough to stop. Aid for the poorer classes kept up until the average man began to expect it as his right.

One of the greatest needs of our nation today is men who are willing to lean less and to push more; who are willing to do something for the government instead of asking the government to do something for them. We need more business in Washington, and less Washington in our business. We need more willing to give, and fewer willing to get.

In the world at large we find the leanest also. They lean upon the opinion of others. They take the ideas of the ruling class and meekly accept whatever it may mean to them. If it were not for this leaning attitude of the great mass of the people, we would have no Russia such as we have today.

Finally there is still another class of people. They are the lean people who are so lean that we can see right through them. These people are not in the market for opportunity, and they would not recognize an opportunity if they saw one. They will continue at their present job, at the present wage, until they are no longer able to work for a living.

They are not people of vision. They have no desire nor opportunity to better themselves. If they really had the desire, they would make the opportunity. But they work at their task, because their family has worked at that task for generations. They may spend their entire lifetime within a few miles of the place where they were born.

The Chinese are typical of these thin people. The visitor knows that, if he should come back again in ten years, he would find those still living engaged in the same work they were doing when he saw them before. Each generation is no better than the one it follows.

Today the forces of Liberty and Communism are locked in battle, a battle that may continue until one side or the other is victorious. Lean men are the strength of communism. Except for the pioneer type, all lean men make it easy for communism to grow and develop throughout the world.

Actively on the side of communism are the lean men whom people can see through. They have no individual enterprise. They know that they will be permitted to work, and, as they have always worked, they care little who makes the laws, so long as they may work.

The weak-kneed men also aid the cause of communism, because they would rather float with the tide than to try to swim against the current. It is so easy to drift, to go the way the crowd is going, and they give little thought to where the current may be carrying them.

In our own country we find plenty of these lean men. They lean upon the government for support. They favor federal aid for schools, a federal health plan, the Brannan plan, and many similar plans, because they have learned to lean upon the government and get by with less exertion.

With us we have also the thin type through whom we can see. They are shallow in their aims and their ambitions. They would rather compromise with sin than to make an active campaign against it. They have no ambition for the future, for to them, the future is identical with today.

We may not need fat men, but today our nation needs men of depth, men who can see into the future, see what is coming and make preparation for it. Men who can think. Men who know what they want, and who will leave no stone unturned until they obtain it. Future men who can face the future unafraid.

The fight will be long, but right will prevail, for the men who fight our battles are men of vision. They will win our battles afield. Let us be sure we do not lose the battle here at home.

Something Different

Mrs. Ramsey phones to tell me that she was born near the Gettysburg battlefield, in Pennsylvania. . . only a couple of miles to the south and east of the farm purchased last week by ex-General like Eisenhower, which was described in the dailies as "overlooking Gettysburg battlefield."

She has quite a number of pictures of the region, of the battlefield, and even one of a friend of hers, the only woman who was killed at that tragic time. —000—

Did you ever try to put a collar on a fractious little pup, a prancy little pup with teeth like needles? It says in the dog training book from our library that you should let the pup play with his leash or collar a few days, until he gets used to the idea of it, so he won't be frightened. —000—

Seems to me the dog simply gets smarter, and stays out of my reach. He spends his time shaking the collar, thereby spanking his little self. —000—

"He" is a little beagle pup, by name Chipper or Chippy or Chip. He flies over the ground, aided by his winglike ears. Beagle breeders have decided to breed beagles to less height, so Chip is supposed to reach the extreme altitude of 13 inches when he is a big, grown-up dog. Which makes him pretty low-down. —000—

I am afraid he will hit lots of high centers. So I have been threatening to strap a roller skate to his little fat tummy, and then teach him to pick up his four paws and coast. Wouldn't that be fun to see? —000—

The cakes entered in the Betty Crocker cake baking contest were really all beauties. I noticed many of them were made by very young cooks. If those girls can bake cakes like that, maybe there is hope for me! I have never tried one of the chiffon recipes. My neighbor, Jeanette Clement, bakes a beautiful chiffon cake. Esther Covey bakes a lovely chiffon cake. In both cases, the Leggetts have reason to know! —000—

Those misses at the high school make wonderful, airy chiffon cakes. One of those which was not even entered in the contest came home to our house. . . we bought two, sort of by error you might say, and when I cut into it, the texture was so fine and even. It was a luscious cake. —000—

Probably the youngest entrant was little Peggy Anderson, who insisted on trying to bake one, and did, and entered it. "And then," said her mother, "I had to pay $3.50 to get it back to see how it tasted!" —000—

Big Ed Apking had lots of fun, all through the contest. He propositioned every woman he met to bake a cake for the contest, finishing his arguments with "If you will bake one, I will too, so help me." —000—

So sure enough, Ed entered a cake. It was the one trimmed up with orange slices, remember? And like little Peggy Anderson, he wanted to see what it was like, so he bought it to take home. . . I always did like the way Dorothy trims her cakes. . . Ed says, well, maybe I didn't frost it, but I was breathing down her neck when she patched it up for me. You see I turned it out of the pan too soon!" —Irma —Dale Manchester of Gardenia, Calif., arrived here last Thursday for a short visit with his mother, Mrs. Esther J. Manchester, and other friends and relatives.

Ward's Cookin' Column

Did you ever wonder how it happens that you can't save any money on your present salary, which may be twice what you drew ten years ago? I have an idea everybody who reads this has been wondering about it, and I have been myself. So, this week, just for the fun of it, I looked up the prices on a dozen staple articles of food as they appeared in the ads in the Quiz ten years ago, and then compared them with the price of the same items today. You don't have to believe the result if you don't want to, but you might as well, as the comparison is about one hundred percent correct.

Here are the items, the prices in 1940 and the prices in 1950, with the percent of increase in ten years: Beef roast, 16c, as against 57c, 250%; Smoked hams, 15c 50c, 233%; Liver, 3 lbs. 20c, 1 lb. 50c, 650%; pork sausage, 3 lb. 29c, 1 lb. 53c, 483%; Bacon, 19c, 49c, 157%; grapefruit, 3 1/3c, 8c, 156%; flour, sack, $1.19, $3.39, 185%; chocolates, 2 1/2 lb. 57c, 1 lb. 68c, 200%; oats, box, 15c, 36c, 140%; bread, 1 1/2 lb. loaf, 9c, 1 1/2 lb. loaf, 16c, 100%; coffee, 2 lbs. 1c, 1 lb. 79c, 255%; butter, 34, 63c, 91%.

There they are, and the only item in the twelve that has not increased at least one hundred percent is butter, which was a pretty good price ten years ago as compared with other items. Averaging the percentage of increase on these dozen commodities, we reach an average of 327%, or well over three times as much for them today as they cost a decade ago. It will be noted that the biggest increase is in meats. There are many other items that did not increase as much as these did, but you will note that a table with none of the above articles on it would mean slim pickings for most families.

It is too bad that prices are not available on such items as building material, the prices of which do not appear in the Quiz of ten years ago, but it is well more than double, and very few people are drawing twice as much in salary or wages than they did in those days. Times may be wonderful, but I prefer to take in half as much and pay less than a third what we did then, and I believe almost anybody else would.

F. H. Price may not be known to most Quiz readers, but he happens to be one of my very good friends, and it is a pleasure to know of something good happening to him. Mr. Price is the publisher of the Newman Grove Reporter, and so is quite well known to newspapermen all over the state, not only for his ability as an editor, but also for his sterling qualities as a citizen. During the past year he volunteered his services as representative of the Nebraska State Employment service and in this capacity has helped the agency carry on its work in the Newman Grove territory. For his outstanding work he was recently presented a citation by the service.

Ned Larkin is painter extraordinary and good fellow in general in the village of North Loup, and he recalls an incident of his early years that might be amusing if told by some humorist, which I do not claim to be. When he was a little boy, he and some of the other boys would stop in at John Sheldon's store on their way to school to buy pencils or tablets or something of that sort. One morning the owner was not in sight, so from such items went back to the rear where they found him using a novel method of keeping his socks up. To their intense surprise they saw him fastening one of his socks by driving a tack into his leg. They wondered at the toughness of the old pioneer who could keep his socks up with tacks, and it was not until some time later that they found out that Mr. Sheldon had an artificial leg.

Mr. Sheldon is also one of my pleasant memories of the North Loup of some 35 years ago. I recall the had a store in a building facing west where part of the present F. J. Schudel garage is located. He was an interesting man to visit with, and I got a lot of enjoyment and information talking with him. I took my camera along and took a picture of the inside of his store, including the proprietor, which negative I still have somewhere about. Another man I liked to talk to was A. T. Jones, who ran a lumber yard at that time on the now vacant lots just west of the Madsen Blacksmith shop. That was in the days when Walter Rood was running the North Loup Loyalist, the shop being in the upstairs part of the Modern Woodman building, now the American Legion hall. The village has changed a lot since then, improved in some respects and gone to the worse in others, but the sad part of it is that there are now none of the first pioneers left to visit with.

Corn is still king in the North Loup valley, and the king has plenty of his subjects working for him these days. The poor quality is made up in quantity. Since most of the corn is not fit to crib at the present time, most of the farmers have their yards and fields piled high with the golden crop. Those who expect to feed it are not worried about whether it will dry out or not, but there are so many who have no stock to feed to it. However, given a month or two more of dry weather, the corn should be ready to shell and put into the bin. As modern bins are equipped with means of getting air through the corn, there should be no trouble in keeping the crop from spoiling. Seeing the corn piled in every available space reminds one of the corn years, now more than fifty years ago, when the North Loup area had more corn than the farmers knew what to do with. They piled it up in long ricks all over town, after all the corn cribs were full. I believe 1897 was the year of the first big crop, but several years of big crops followed, and, in spite of the fact that there was a lot of stock in the country then, much corn was left over from year to year. Nobody in those days had any crazy ideas about planned scarcity, and the state was full of prosperity that it oozed out all around the edges.

I don't think I ever told the one about Hugh Butcher, who had the contract to sprinkle the streets for Nebraska's Big Rodeo last fall. He had a tank on his truck with the usual pipes for letting the water out, and was on the grounds with it every day. You may recall how it rained every day. Well, Hugh would drive his water wagon down to the grounds and then spend most of his time pulling visitors' cars out of the mud. If he had been on government work he would have had to do nothing but sit around and draw his pay, but there were two reasons he didn't, and both of them are that Hugh is a man who likes to earn his pay.

George Eberhart of North Loup formerly drove a truck before he went into the store business, which makes this story about him sound pretty funny. George was one of a party of five who went to the Nebraska-Oklahoma game, the others being Ronald Cress, Mills Hill, Nels Jorgensen and Cecil Knapp. The boys took tups driving and George was driving when they got into a town in Kansas. In some way he got mixed up in his directions and when he was leaving town they discovered that he was heading back over the road they came in on. They got straightened out and got there in plenty of time for the game.

Potrzeba of Woodridge, N. J. Michael and Louis are cousins who haven't seen each other since they came to this country from Poland in 1898. Mr. Marcewski and Mr. Potrzeba arrived Wednesday and left Saturday.

Happy Is The Day When Backache Goes Away

As we get older, stress and strain, over-exertion, excessive smoking or exposure to cold conditions slows down kidney function. This may lead many folks to complain of nagging backache, loss of pep and energy, headaches and dizziness. Getting up nights or frequent passages may result from minor bladder irritations due to cold, dampness or dietary indiscretions. If your discomforts are due to these causes, don't wait, try Doan's Pills, a mild diuretic. Used successfully by millions for over 50 years. While these symptoms may often otherwise occur, it's amazing how many times Doan's give happy relief — help the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters flush out waste. Get Doan's Pills today!

Nicholas Whalen, last surviving member of his father's family, passed away at nine o'clock, Thursday morning, November 30, aged 81 years, at the St. Francis hospital in Grand Island, where he suffered a broken hip in a fall at the home of his niece, Mrs. Ross Williams of North Loup, on Oct. 24th.

Born in Illinois to Thomas and Ellen Whalen, October 15, 1869. His early life was spent in Illinois, then the family moved to Greeley county, Nebraska. Later he and his brother, Mike, moved to Valley county, south of North Loup, where they farmed and raised cattle. He never married but was dear to him as though they were his own and they returned the love he gave them.

When Tony Pawleska was a young boy, he made his home with Mr. Whalen and since Mr. Whalen's health failed, Mr. Pawleska and his wife cared for him for a time. More recently he had been in the home of his niece, Mrs. Williams, who had spent much time in Grand Island with him the past six weeks and was with him at the time of his passing.

Dr. George Thorngate, brother of Mrs. Myra Thorngate Barber, has left for Indo-China, where he has a government position. Dr. and Mrs. Thorngate returned last summer from China where they have been as missionaries, and where Dr. Thorngate has accomplished a great deal of good with the Chinese afflicted with tuberculosis. Mrs. Thorngate did not go with her husband, but may go later if conditions permit. Both Dr. and Mrs. Thorngate grew up in North Loup and visited here a few years ago, when they returned from China after being confined in concentration camps during World War II. Good, Hot Soup!

You hear a lot over the radio about good hot soup these days. And s'truth, there's nothing better on these blustery chilly days. If you go for the canned variety, okay, but if you want to give yourself a treat, follow this suggestion:

Stop in at the friendly little market on the north side of the square—ask for a joint, a soupbone or a piece of soup meat. Then cook it slowly—simmering in the kettle with the proper spices and seasonings—for most of the day. Add your vegetables or dumplings and continue the slow simmering until they're done.

Then, you've a meal fit for a king! Best of all, it's one of the most nourishing meals you'll have in a long time, and a very economical one, too.

A tip: Be sure and make plenty. Soup made this way tastes even better when it's warmed up the next day!

Woman's Club of Ord Enjoys Visit to Nolls' Antique Glass Collection

As interesting a place to visit as one could wander into is the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Noll of Ord.

Seedman, feedman, flowerman, (and say them in the feminine gender for Mrs. Noll as well) they have collected antiques for many years, until at last their hobby has become formidable.

Though they love old lamps, and have many of the large double-globed ones in both white and colors; though they love old furniture and have rare specimens from chests to spinning wheels, the Nolls' real hobby is old glass.

In a room specially fitted for displaying it, are hundreds of pieces of valuable glass. Mrs. Noll has loved black glass, and has a large collection of objects in black. She has almost every imaginable sort of dish, vase, bowl, pitcher, box, compote, butter dish, salt dish, figurine, all in shiny black.

In a nearby case is the lovely clear coin glassware. Real coin molds were used in designing this glass until the government stepped to smash it up and cry "no, no," and returned the coin molds to the treasury. A little of the glass had been sold and could not be traced, and so, after many long years, it turns up a rare collector's item.

Milk glass abounds in their collection. Most precious and beautiful is the Sandwich glass, which has an almost fiery color when held to the light. One maker's milk glass is famed for its gray tone. Another interesting part of Mr. and Mrs. Noll's collection is the delightful small pieces of milk glass in which mustard was sold, long, long ago, each in the shape of a pussy cat, a hen, an owl or something equally fascinating.

What an appealing touch these must have made for the table! Custard glass takes up another large cabinet. It is palely colored as the name suggests, and was often extravagantly marked with gold. Sometimes colors were used in the designs, and those old glass maker must have known their work well, for the colors are as bright today as when they were applied.

The Nolls have a few handsome examples of fine chateausse milk glass. These are quite difficult to find.

Then there is caramel glass, and as you'd guess it is all the shades of caramel pudding. This is one of Mr. Noll's favorites, and there are many items in the collections, from tall footed compotes to little brown hens.

Each piece of glass has a story of its own, where they found it, how it happened to be for sale, how difficult it was to buy, whom it once belonged to, long ago. This story of course makes owning the dish more valuable.

For instance there was once a father, back in Pennsylvania, who bought three identical white footed fruit bowls for his three little daughters. That was back in the middle of the nineteenth century. The bowls and the daughters remained together for many years. Not long ago two of the bowls were offered to Mr. Noll, and he bought them. They are lovely and he feels extremely lucky to own them.

A collection of amethyst glass came into his possession by accident, along with a lamp he was quite determined to buy, but was having to dicker for. Later he found out the amethyst was not only "nice" but really precious.

His favorite of all the Noll glass, though, is the rare purple shade, which is streaked like marble cake, in tones of dark purple through white. Each piece different, colored in a way that can never be duplicated, glows as Mr. Noll holds it before a string light.

The designs show up clearly upon close examination. He has several dozen pieces, among them two small cups and saucers. Only two other cups and saucers of this ware are known to exist in this country, so scarce are they. Probably the dinner plates with lattice edges are the most beautiful pieces the Nolls own of the purple shade, but it would be hard to choose from the lovely examples.

Mrs. Noll has been famous for her salt and pepper collection for years past. Begun when she was a girl, it now numbers 1,004 pairs, Mrs. Noll holds it before a string light. The designs show up clearly upon close examination. He has several dozen pieces, among them two small cups and saucers. Only two other cups and saucers of this ware are known to exist in this country, so scarce are they. Probably the dinner plates with lattice edges are the most beautiful pieces the Nolls own of the purple shade, but it would be hard to choose from the lovely examples.

The dusting problem? When one of the members of the Woman's Club of Ord asked Mrs. Noll about this apparently tremendous task on Tuesday, Mrs. Noll replied pertly, "I don't! This is supposed to be a dustproof room, and then, I have them behind glass, as you see."

Upstairs Mrs. Noll demonstrated another of her treasures for the club members, playing on an electric organ while they sipped tea. This concluded a perfect afternoon, begun by the club at the home of Mrs. Stoddard. There, after a business meeting, Mrs. Ada Munn read bits from dozens of authors on the three topics, friendships, love, and happiness.

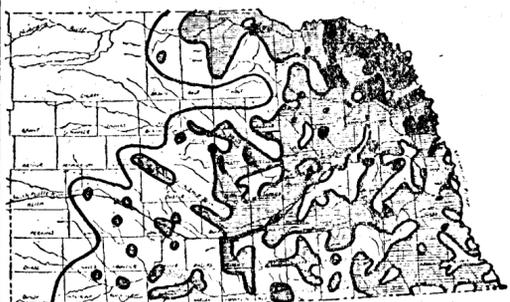

Fitting in with the topic "Old Glass," Mrs. Munn's readings were called Mosaics.

It made a sparkling afternoon.

Corn Borer Damage Is Less This Year Than Last Season

The European corn borer took out of Nebraska's corn crop this year than in 1949, University of Nebraska entomologists said Thursday.

Extension Entomologist Jack W. Lomax said there was a loss of $6,052,888.41 this year compared to $11,461,088.41 in 1949. Entomologist L. F. Bewick conducted the survey with the help of county agents. The 1950 estimate is based on a state yield of 24,922,000 bushels of corn with an average loan value of $1.39 a bushel.

Mr. Lomax said 80 counties were surveyed this year. Sixty-nine were infested with corn borer. Last year 77 counties were surveyed and 66 were infested. Heaviest borer infestation, the entomologist said, is in the nine northeastern counties. The infestation tapers gradually to no borers at Ainsworth, North Platte and Benkelman. The borers' range has extended very little during the past growing season, Mr. Bewick said.

Mr. Lomax said the borer situation is roughly the same as it was in 1948. That merely shows, he added, that the weather this year was unfavorable to the pest. There are, he said, chances for another year like 1949 or worse. Dakota county had the highest count of corn borers per 100 stalks. The number ranged downward to four in Hitchcock and Frontier counties and nothing in counties on the fringe of the borer areas. Other counties where the count was high:

Burt 163.2, Pierce 126.2, Cedar 146.8, Dixon 226.4, Knox 108.3, Loup 155.3, Stanton 122.4, Thurston 215.7, Washington 144.9, Wayne 200.

Mr. Lomax said parasites were released again this year. More than 9,200 insects of three species were used. Results have not been tabulated.

Meanwhile research work on resistant hybrids is continuing. Some hybrids withstand an attack by corn borers better than others. Here is a list of certified hybrids rated as tolerant: Ohio C92, Kan-

Literary Guide

"The Red Masquerade," a new book on the shelf at the Ord library, was written by Angela Calomiris. The story of Angela Calomiris as she tells it in this book, is a first-hand story of an FBI girl inside the Communist party. She entered upon her assignment from the simplest of motives. Patriotism. She worked for seven years with the Communists.

In the story she answers many of the questions which have puzzled us all. Why are Communists Communists? Is there any underlying pattern that makes them so? How do they behave with each other and to outsiders? More important, what are their techniques for infiltration of labor movements? All these questions are explored.

There is plenty of surface excitement in this story as there was constant danger of exposure with unpleasant results.

As we've been saying for quite a spell - "Whatever your price range - Better buy Buick."

But maybe we'd better get down to brass tacks, as to just what this suggestion means.

In the lower-price field, this has been happening:

Four out of ten Buick SPECIALS—bought by people with a car to trade in—have been bought by folks who formerly drove one of the so-called "low-priced three." They found they could afford a Buick!

In the fine-car field, something even more impressive has happened:

Four out of five people who looked at a ROADMASTER and another very distinguished automobile decided in favor of ROADMASTER!

So - whatever your price range, take a look at our prices - and at what you get for your money.

What you get is the thrill of owning the greatest Buick of all time - as registered by record-breaking sales.

What you get is power and style and comfort and performance that are hard to match in any other automobile.

More specifically - you get the power-with-thrift of Buick's famous Fireball high-compression engine - a style that stands out in any company - a ride with the comfort of coil springs on every wheel - and performance that makes you feel like the head man on any highway.

Ward's Cookin' hat's Column

All this talk about washing clothes or dishes without rinsing makes me very weary indeed in a certain portion of my anatomy. If anybody, anywhere, is so careless about the laundry that they do not bother to rinse the clothes, something ought to be done about it. Manufacturers are inventing new ways to attract attention to their newest product, and there is no certainty that what they are advertising the heaviest today will not be thrown into the discard tomorrow in favor of some still newer poyder with a still fancier name. Meanwhile the good old reliable laundry soap has nearly gone out of existence, a fact which would make fellows like Clarence Bailey turn over in their graves. Those old-time storekeepers thought there was nothing in the world equal to Silver Leaf or Beat'em All soap, and there wasn't, at that time. But the very thought of wearing clothes that have not been rinsed makes my skin creep.

However, it brings to mind the first laundryman I recall who washed clothes without rinsing, and that was a young fellow named Leonard Medlar, and the time was the fall of 1916, the locale, the Mexican border. It happened that some of the boys were perfectly willing to pay somebody to do their laundry, but there was nobody who wanted to do said laundry. Being of a thrifty turn of mind, Medlar decided it would be smart to start a laundry, so he got a wash tub and a boiler and went into business. The only hitch was that he didn't know the first thing about laundry work, except what he had happened to learn in the course of human events, and that was not too much. He knew that soap was used in hot water to get the dirt out, and that he would get it out even better. He didn't know that clothes had to be rinsed, so he would wring them out of the lye water and hang them up to dry. You can imagine how fine those OD shirts felt after such a treatment. To the credit of Mr. Medlar it might be said that in time he developed into a very efficient laundryman and made himself quite a lot of spare change to add to his $16 per month wages from Uncle Sam.

This has been an autumn for the under dog in football, with more upsets than have ever occurred in a single year. This is true from the highest to the lowest, from Army and Notre Dame all the way down to the sandlot games. And do the fans love it! I do not know how it was elsewhere, but some of those upsets caused more excitement at our house than anything that has happened since we came to North Loup. This was especially true when Navy rose up and smote mighty Army right between the eyes in what must go down in history as the greatest upset of all time. Not the least of the furors came from the fact that Navy's Davis, powerful on defense, hails from Lincoln. Of course the Nebraska games got the call on the radio whenever they were on the air, and you might have thought from the way the boys cheered the play that Bob Reynolds actually came from North Loup. Anyway, it has been a great autumn, although rather hard on the furniture, and I am sorry it had to come to an end.

And that reminds me of my short, but interesting, experience in football when I first went to Ord high, in the fall of 1901. The Century class with its galaxy of athletes, had graduated the spring before, and there were only about thirty boys in all in high school at the time. Of these, the juniors and sophomores were not considered tough enough to do much real playing, and a few of the boys in the high grades were not the type for tough stuff. That left a total of ten who were willing and able to play, and you can't make a football eleven out of ten men. Anyway, we got out and did some practicing after school, on the then vacant lots south and west from the Ord Christian church. I didn't know a thing about football but the boys put me at fullback and gave me the ball to carry. I could run, and got past everybody but John Mason who tried to make a flying tackle. He missed, and my heel caught him on the left temple, cutting a gash and knocking him out. That was the end of my football days, and, incidentally, the end of John's days in school. He still carries the scar of that encounter.

I am glad indeed that the people of Ord saw fit to send Bud Shirley to represent them on the Betty Crocker program. The only other fellow I can think of at the moment that would have been equally appropriate would have been myself, and, since I live in North Loup, I was not available. The only trouble is that I don't recall at the moment anything I have done for Ord in my life except to live in Burwell and North Loup. It reminds me of what Harry McBeth said when the reporter of Arthur Brisbane's death came. He said: "Well, the world has lost a noted writer, but we still have John Ward."

But, seriously, no better man, or person, could have been found to go east and herald the fame of the only town of its name in the nation. Bud came to Ord the same year the Ord Quiz and the First National bank came into existence, the same year that the Federation of Labor was organized and the year John L. Ward was born. That was in 1882, and Bud has been a resident of Valley county all those years, a resident of Ord since 1886. In his capacities of drayman, expressman, village and city official, and custodian of Bussell Park since 1919, he has often had occasion to accept wages from the village or town of Ord. In all that time he never received a penny that he had not earned. With Bud it has never been, "How much do I get?" but rather, "What more can I do to earn what I get?"

If Bud did nothing else worthwhile, the fact that he was a hero to Pat Fuson would have been something worthwhile. All his life Pat felt the influence of having grown to manhood as a neighbor of Bud Shirley, and on several occasions he wrote poems in Bud's honor. In his later years he had planned to write Bud's biography. He wrote me only a few months before his death and said that the doctors had decreed that he must never cross the mountains again, and that he was to do no more work, and for this reason he probably would never be able to write his story about Bud. He said something ought to see that the story was written, and rather put it up to me to do it. It is up to me, and I hope to do the job.

A recent story on our population got me to thinking and incidentally to figuring. While it is not generally known, most people know that Nevada is our most thinly populated state, but only a few would suspect that Rhode Island, besides being the smallest state, is also the most densely populated. The general average over the United States is about 50 people to the square mile, according to the 1940 census, which is close enough for the needs of this story. In Rhode Island there are 674 people to the square mile, while Nevada has one to the square mile. Now, if all the United States were as densely inhabited as Rhode Island, we would have two billion people, about the total number in the entire world today. On the other hand, if we were as scattered as the people are in Nevada, we would have only about three million population, a few more than twice the number in Nebraska.

There has been considerable talk recently of admitting Alaska as a state. Now it happens that Alaska has 72,524 population, but is seven times the size of Nebraska, nearly 600,000 square miles, or about 8 square miles to each person living there. If the entire United States were as sparsely inhabited as Alaska is, there would be only about four hundred thousand people in the United States. Suppose we admit Alaska as the 49th state. Then that huge territory would be entitled to two United States senators, with less than 100,000 people for them to represent, while New York has some fourteen million for their two senators to represent. It would also mean that those Alaskans would have one representative for their 100,000 population, while all over the United States, Nevada excepted, the proportion is about one member of congress for each 300,000. Yes, if Alaska becomes a state she will have more representation in Washington, population considered, than any other state in the Union. It is one thing that is holding back statehood.

Just What Is an INDEPENDENT Telephone Company?

We in the independent telephone business are often asked what that word independent means. An explanation may be in order.

The telephone, invented in 1876, was under one control until the patents expired in 1893. At that time the skeleton of the present nationwide toll line network was beginning to appear. But all efforts had been taken up with providing this network and local service in the larger cities only. The smaller cities and rural districts were clamoring for service they could not get.

Then new, or independent, interests began making telephone equipment. Civic-minded doctors, lawyers, merchants and farmers organized, and built independent local systems. Their first state association was formed in Ohio in 1895, and their national organization in 1897.

Today these independent companies, doing their part in furnishing a universal service, have more than 8,000,000 telephones and serve about two-thirds of the nation's geographical area. The 173 independent companies in Nebraska operate more than 201,000 telephones, serve about 80 per cent of the state's geographical area, and are managed and manned by local people.

We are proud to be a member of the independent group

MADE YOUR Christmas WISH?

It's natural to make a lot of wishes at Christmas time, but the one that's most important is the wish for the continued safety and security of our families.

The light-hearted happiness of Christmas is centered around home and family — familiar voices raised in age-old carols, the joyful tingling of sleigh bells, the gay seasonal salutes of friends and neighbors. The Christmas tree in the living room, the holly on the window, the red candle on the mantel set the stage for the best scene of all — the faces of those we love seated at the dining room table.

These are the things that help make this the merriest time of the year. Small things they are — but close to home and close to the heart.

From The Equitable agents and representatives who have helped assure your family's security, here's a heart-felt wish for the most joyous Christmas ever.

38th Parallel

The 38th parallel has had an important place in history since the beginning of time, the nations of antiquity clustering not far from that part of the north temperate zone. The southern tip of Greece is crossed by the 38th parallel, and also the southern part of Italy and Spain.

All three of these countries had their place in history, stood first in the affairs of the world for a time, and then sank into mediocrity, never to rise again. Alexander the Great did much of his fighting in the area of this parallel. The Punic war was fought by nations one on each side of this line. Following the fall of the Roman empire a few centuries Spain became the great nation of the world, with conquests of all of South America and Mexico. In time she lost all this vast territory. Napoleon did all right so long as he remained north of the 38th parallel, but in defeat spent his last years at St. Helena, far south of it.

Columbus did most of his fighting for funds to sail the ocean to the west in Spain and Portugal near the 38th parallel. He set sail from the port of Palos, which is near the parallel. The first English settlement in America was made at Jamestown, also not far from this historic line.

The discovery of gold in California in 1849 was near the 38th parallel. That line divided the capitals of the north and the south, Washington and Richmond, and many of the most decisive battles of the civil war were fought in Virginia, Kentucky and Missouri, along the line of the parallel.

The South did all right so long as the war was carried on to the north of the parallel, but when the north advanced south of that line it was the beginning of the end. Likewise, the British seemed to be winning all the way during the revolutionary war, but their battles were won to the north, and the final surrender came at Yorktown, south of the 38th parallel.

In World War 2 the crossing from Bizerte to Sicily and later the crossing from Sicily to the mainland both were made along the 38th parallel. These incidents did not attain much significance until the present trouble in Korea, when the 38th parallel assumed major importance.

The Chinese communists are determined to recapture the entire area of Korea, while diplomatic efforts are being made to have them stop at the 38th parallel. Since the UN forces did not stop at this line on their way north, the Chinese seem to think that they need not stop there on their way south.

The 38th parallel crosses the middle of Kansas. Korea is more than 500 miles north to south. Superimposed on the map of the United States, the north line would be about the north line of Nebraska, and the southern tip would extend nearly to the south line of Oklahoma. That is a lot of territory to fight over.

The coming weeks may determine whether a third world war is to be fought or averted. The world has not faced a more critical situation since it did 9 years ago. The answer to the riddle does not lie with the United Nations. It does not lie with Communist China. Russia alone knows the answer and Russia is not talking.

A Real Santa Claus

This month all over this land of ours, and in many other lands, a jolly old fellow in a red suit and white whiskers will be busy dispensing Christmas cheer to the little folks, finding out what they want Santa to bring them and endeavoring to see that their wishes are fulfilled in part, at least.

This fellow is the jolly old saint himself, and, despite the obvious disguise he wears, he is the fellow the children most desire to see, the fellow in whom their childhood faith is fixed. You cannot fool the little ones and they recognize him for what he is, the Spirit of Christmas.

And you older folks, don't you dare to hint that you lack the faith shown by the children. God help the man or woman for whom the coming of Santa Claus means nothing, for he is a personage, as real as Paul Bunyan, Brother Jonathan or Johnny Bull. He is more real than they, for he is the saint of every Christian nation on earth.

He is a peculiar saint, in that he is known only in the lands where the capitalistic, competitive system of government is used; the lands where the individual has the privilege of thinking for himself and doing pretty much as he wishes to do without asking permission from the heads of the government.

Santa makes it his aim to see that the children of the poor and the under privileged have reason to rejoice at Christmas time. He steals a page from communism by taking from those who have and giving to those who have not. What he takes is given willingly and what he gives is accepted with sincere thanks.

This Santa Claus, if you will, is the spirit of Christmas. He is more than that. He is the spirit of Christ, who gave His life that others, believing in Him, might live. Since Santa is the Spirit of Christ, the importance of believing in him and the gifts he brings is at once manifest.

The value of the gift is determined, not in dollars and cents, but in the spirit in which it is given; it depends largely on what sacrifice was necessary in obtaining and giving it. Like the widow's mite, the worth of a gift, at Christmas time especially, must be based on the financial ability of the individual to give.

There is another Santa Claus, who does not wear the white beard nor the boots, nor the suit of red. He is abroad in the land, not only at Christmas time, but at every other season of the year. The gifts he gives are of such value that they tend to make Santa look like a piker.

His gifts are international in their scope, and the recipients are most of the democratic nations of the globe. This giving has been going on for some years now, and it looks as though it might continue until our nation is forced into bankruptcy. The gifts must continue because it seems impossible to stop.

Unlike Santa Claus, this fellow is giving in the hope that in so doing he may save his own skin. By bolstering the countries of Europe he hopes to keep them in the ranks of democracy and prevent the chance of their turning to communism. He is giving beyond his means and with no thought of the Christmas spirit, but he is hoping by means of these gifts to save his own neck.

This pseudo-Santa is tall, whereas the real Santa is short. He is thin, while Santa is fat. This fellow wears a goatee instead of a beard. His pants are striped, with the blue and white alternating stripes running lengthwise. His swallow-tailed coat is of blue bunting, well sprinkled with 48 stars, with two more beginning to take form. Those who know him best call him "Uncle Sam."

Finally this tall Santa Claus is running another philanthropy. He is planning things so that each year more and more of his people are receiving checks for every conceivable reason, some good and some bad. He is doing so for the plausible reason that everybody should have an opportunity to lead a "More Abundant Life."

Some of these gifts are well and good, and the money goes to those who have earned it. It is taken from the pockets of those who have and is given to those who have not and who would experience actual suffering in many cases without assistance. Nobody has any quarrel with the giving of gifts to those who are entitled to it.

The trouble is that Uncle's magnanimity does not stop here. For political reasons it is deemed important to keep the goodwill and the votes of certain cliques or groups. All parties are equally reprehensible in this respect, the party in power the more so because of the greater opportunity. This type of giving, whether it be in the form of checks to individuals or favorable laws to certain groups, should be condemned by all right thinking Americans. The gifts and concessions are made, not in the spirit of giving, but because something is expected in return.

Every tendency toward corruption in politics should be nipped in the bud. If we want to keep America free we must fight each and every attempt to buy votes, regardless of what group or what party is making the attempt. Such influence is in violation of the right of every voter to think for himself.

Given a little leeway here and there, it is conceivable that in time the people of America might lose all the rights they now possess for the sake of a little more false security. It is also possible that we might lose the right to observe Christmas and Santa Claus would no longer be a part of our holiday festivities.

The time is here for us to realize that there are those in high places who would gladly deprive us of the rights our forefathers granted us under the constitution, and they would do so under the guise of being good samaritans. Beware of those who come bearing gifts. If we listen closely we may hear the rattle of chains.

++ Something Different ++

People are having a little trouble getting their Christmas spirit worked up this year. I think the Korean situation is acting as a damper. We feel so troubled about our soldiers.

Bud was wonderful on the Betty Crocker program, wasn't he? I hope you heard him, for he was something to be proud of. (Though I did hear he had his mustache trimmed and all waxed up the last thing before leaving Ord! They said on the program he couldn't find a barber in New York who knew how to trim Bud's mustache!)

He must have been a sensation on television. It would have been fun to have him tell a lot more details. For instance, how he learned to play golf from a book he sent for... now think of that. Pretty unusual, don't you say so?

How he moves trees, no matter what size, and they never die. How he invents new kinds of benches and birdhouses, spending his winters at this work, so that the park will be more handsome and more useful the next summer.

Mrs. Shirley wanted to go too, but she wasn't able, so she got in on the radio interview, like the rest of us.

It really was, as Bud said, the greatest honor that could come to anyone, to be named Tops in our Town.

A very great honor, to be nominated. I heard a good many citizens comment that the Quiz should have listed all the nominees; thirty-three, weren't there?

It always seems to me that if you have flowers to bestow, or any kindly thing to say, it is better to let the compliment be enjoyed while the recipient is around to savor it.

This week we lost Mrs. Frank Gross at Albion. A darling, quiet little gentlewoman in the finest sense of the word. Sweet and placid, she found great pleasure in genealogy and history. She worked several years writing a history of Boone county, and I hope, got it completed to her satisfaction. —000—

We lost another person dear to us, this week past. A real friend to hundreds of editors over the country, a working friend, was Fred Hill of Hamburg, Ia. Mr. Hill, past national president of the National Editorial Association, had gone to Oxford, Miss. to attend a short course especially for editors. It was typical of him that though he had won the highest honor country editors can give one of their fellows, yet Mr. Hill was still seeking to learn and improve himself as an editor.

Mr. Hill abused his health sadly while he was president, for he made an effort to travel to every state, go to as many meetings and help as many friends as possible. He did enough work for at least two men.

Spare and ill, his pleasant grin and pleasant ways will be missed for a long time to come. He was a demon picture-taker, forever snapping some unwary soul. At the national conventions he strode briskly here and there, often hailing Gene, or me, or someone by name.

And when you turned to see who called, Fred would snap that picture every time!

He sent us many such snaps, taken various places.

In one we were watching them make movies in Hollywood; in another we were eating grapefruit in Texas; in another we were having a ski tow on a Utah mountainside... well, anyway, wherever he caught me, I practically always had my mouth open! As you might know. —Irma.

Ward's Cookin' Column

All this talk about washing clothes or dishes without rinsing makes me very weary indeed in a certain portion of my anatomy. If anybody, anywhere, is so careless about the laundry that they do not bother to rinse the clothes, something ought to be done about it. Manufacturers are inventing new ways to attract attention to their newest product, and there is no certainty that what they are advertising the heaviest today will not be thrown into the discard tomorrow in favor of some still newer powder with a still fancier name. Meanwhile the good old reliable laundry soap has nearly gone out of existence, a fact which would make fellows like Clarence Bailey turn over in their graves. Those old-time storekeepers thought there was nothing in the world equal to Silver Leaf or Beal's All soap, and there wasn't, at that time. But the very thought of wearing clothes that have not been rinsed makes my skin creep.

However, it brings to mind the first laundryman I recall who washed clothes without rinsing, and that was a young fellow named Leonard Medlar, and the time was the fall of 1916, the locale, the Mexican border. It happened that some of the boys were perfectly willing to pay somebody to do their laundry, but there was nobody who wanted to do said laundry. Being of a thrifty turn of mind, Medlar decided it would be smart to start a laundry, so he got a wash tub and a boiler and went into business. The only hitch was that he didn't know the first thing about laundry work, except what he had happened to learn in the course of human events, and that was not too much. He knew that soap was used in hot water to get the dirt out, and that he would get it out even better. He didn't know that clothes had to be rinsed, so he would wring them out of the lye water and hang them up to dry. You can imagine how fine those OD shirts felt after such a treatment. To the credit of Mr. Medlar it might be said that in time he developed into a very efficient laundryman and made himself quite a lot of spare change to add to his $16 per month wages from Uncle Sam.

This has been an autumn for the under dog in football, with more upsets than have ever occurred in a single year. This is true from the highest to the lowest, from Army and Notre Dame all the way down to the sandlot games. And do the fans love it! I do not know how it was elsewhere, but some of those upsets caused more excitement at our house than anything that has happened since we came to North Loup. This was especially true when Navy rose up and smote mighty Army right between the eyes in what must go down in history as the greatest upset of all time. Not the least of the furors came from the fact that Navy's Davis, powerful on defense, hails from Lincoln. Of course the Nebraska games got the call on the radio whenever they were on the air, and you might have thought from the way the boys cheered the play that Bob Reynolds actually came from North Loup. Anyway, it has been a great autumn, although rather hard on the furniture, and I am sorry it had to come to an end.

And that reminds me of my short, but interesting, experience in football when I first went to Ord high, in the fall of 1901. The Century class with its galaxy of athletes, had graduated the spring before, and there were only about thirty boys in all in high school at the time. Of these, the juniors and sophomores were not considered tough enough to do much real playing, and a few of the boys in the higher grades were not the type for tough stuff. That left a total of ten who were willing and able to play, and you can't make a football eleven out of ten men. Anyway, we got out and did some practicing after school, on the then vacant lots south and west from the Ord Christian church. I didn't know a thing about football but the boys put me at fullback and gave me the ball to carry. I could run, and got past everybody but John Mason who tried to make a flying tackle. He missed, and my heel caught him on the left temple, cutting a gash and knocking him out. That was the end of my football days, and, incidentally, the end of John's days in school. He still carries the scar of that encounter.

I am glad indeed that the people of Ord saw fit to send Bud Shirley to represent them on the Betty Crocker program. The only other fellow I can think of at the moment that would have been equally appropriate would have been myself, and since I live in North Loup, I was not available. The only trouble is that I don't recall at the moment anything I have done for Ord in my life except to live in Burwell and North Loup. It reminds me of what Harry McBeth said when the reporter of Arthur Brisbane's death came. He said: "Well, the world has lost a noted writer, but we still have John Ward."

But, seriously, no better man, or person, could have been found to go east and herald the fame of the only town of its name in the nation. Bud came to Ord the same year the Ord Quiz and the First National bank came into existence, the same year that the Federation of Labor was organized and the year John L. Ward was born. That was in 1882, and Bud has been a resident of Valley county all those years, a resident of Ord since 1886. In his capacities of drayman, expressman, village and city official, and custodian of Bussell Park since 1919, he has often had occasion to accept wages from the village or town of Ord. In all that time he never received a penny that he had not earned. With Bud it has never been, "How much do I get?" but rather, "What more can I do to earn what I get?"

If Bud did nothing else worthwhile, the fact that he was a hero to Pat Fuson would have been something worthwhile. All his life Pat felt the influence of having grown to manhood as a neighbor of Bud Shirley, and on several occasions he wrote poems in Bud's honor. In his later years he had planned to write Bud's biography. He wrote me only a few months before his death and said that the doctors had decreed that he must never cross the mountains again, and that he was to do no more work, and for this reason he probably would never be able to write his story about Bud. He said something ought to see that the story was written, and rather put it up to me to do it. It is up to me, and I hope to do the job.

A recent story on our population got me to thinking and incidentally to figuring. While it is not generally known, most people know that Nevada is our most thinly populated state, but only a few would suspect that Rhode Island, besides being the smallest state, is also the most densely populated. The general average over the United States is about 50 people to the square mile, according to the 1940 census, which is close enough for the needs of this story. In Rhode Island there are 674 people to the square mile, while Nevada has one to the square mile. Now, if all the United States were as densely inhabited as Rhode Island, we would have two billion people, about the total number in the entire world today. On the other hand, if we were as scattered as the people are in Nevada, we would have only about three million population, a few more than twice the number in Nebraska.

There has been considerable talk recently of admitting Alaska as a state. Now it happens that Alaska has 72,524 population, but is seven times the size of Nebraska, nearly 600,000 square miles, or about 8 square miles to each person living there. If the entire United States were as sparsely inhabited as Alaska is, there would be only about four hundred thousand people in the United States. Suppose we admit Alaska as the 49th state. Then that huge territory would be entitled to two United States senators, with less than 100,000 people for them to represent, while New York has some fourteen million for their two senators to represent. It would also mean that those Alaskans would have one representative for their 100,000 population, while all over the United States, Nevada excepted, the proportion is about one member of congress for each 300,000. Yes, if Alaska becomes a state she will have more representation in Washington, population considered, than any other state in the Union. It is one thing that is holding back statehood.

Just What Is an INDEPENDENT Telephone Company?

We in the independent telephone business are often asked what that word independent means. An explanation may be in order.

The telephone, invented in 1876, was under one control until the patents expired in 1893. At that time the skeleton of the present nationwide toll line network was beginning to appear. But all efforts had been taken up with providing this network and local service in the larger cities only. The smaller cities and rural districts were clamoring for service they could not get.

Then new, or independent, interests began making telephone equipment. Civic-minded doctors, lawyers, merchants and farmers organized, and built independent local systems. Their first state association was formed in Ohio in 1895, and their national organization in 1897.

Today these independent companies, doing their part in furnishing a universal service, have more than 8,000,000 telephones and serve about two-thirds of the nation's geographical area. The 173 independent companies in Nebraska operate more than 201,000 telephones, serve about 80 per cent of the state's geographical area, and are managed and manned by local people.

We are proud to be a member of the independent group

MADE YOUR Christmas WISH?

It's natural to make a lot of wishes at Christmas time, but the one that's most important is the wish for the continued safety and security of our families.

The light-hearted happiness of Christmas is centered around home and family — familiar voices raised in age-old carols, the joyful tingling of sleigh bells, the gay seasonal salutes of friends and neighbors. The Christmas tree in the living room, the holly on the window, the red candle on the mantel set the stage for the best scene of all — the faces of those we love seated at the dining room table.

These are the things that help make this the merriest time of the year. Small things they are—but close to home and close to the heart.

From The Equitable agents and representatives who have helped assure your family's security, here's a heart-felt wish for the most joyous Christmas ever.

Well, as our combat figured, it didn't amount to so very much. It could have been a lot worse, but we did figure in on four different battles. The landing at Inchon which was uneventful for our outfit left us with one tank hit, but no casualties.

My tank made it in pretty good shape. Had two mortar rounds within about 15 feet of my tank. Didn't hurt anything, but scared hell out of me.

And the Hammius crossing—the only thing that happened there was I got my tank stuck right in plain sight of two enemy machine guns, but don't know why they didn't fire on us before they got knocked out. I was a little worried there too. I guess with the help of the Good Lord and Lady Luck we made it again without anyone hurt.

Then the deal at Seoul. We fired direct fire, get a return battery of artillery on us, then we went with a bunch of South Korean soldiers and paratroopers and fired indirect fire—and no one lost—so you see we nearly made a perfect score. One of the boys got shot through the leg after we got back here, and that was an accident, so you see one place is just as safe as another.

Well, tomorrow is Thanksgiving. Rumors are, we are to have a turkey dinner, but it would taste a lot better in the States.

Thanks a lot for the snapshots of the kids. They are really swell. Would like to see them in person. Maybe one of these days when things get ironed out.

Tell everyone hello for me and to write because all we have to look forward to here is the mail we get.

Love,
Ted

Receives Letter from Brother in Korean Action

Mrs. Harry Vail of Ord received the following letter from her brother who is seeing action in Korea:

Inchon, Korea
Nov. 22, 1950

Dear Sis and Family:

Well, I guess it is time I answered your letter. Got it yesterday, so it took nearly a month to get here.

There isn't any news as yet of leaving here, but the news from the front sounds pretty good. I also received three other letters yesterday so you see our mail is coming in bunches. We sent a special courier up after these we got Saturday. Took him four days to run it down, but may get it through better now, but we still haven't been paid for nearly four months. I have over $700 coming, so will be able to save a pretty good chunk to go on furlough with when I get back to the States (if I get back), and I promise to come to Ord when I do.

Now is the time for all good men to come to the aid of their pocketbooks

There's been a lot of talk in recent weeks about "the buying power of the dollar"—past, present and future. We can't foretell the future—but we can tell you this right now: You'll look a long way before you'll find a car that offers as much for the money as you can get in a 1950 Buick. Close to half a million of these cars have been built and sold this year. Close to half a million people have checked their features and prices against the field—and decided they'd better buy Buick. As to prices—they start down below some sixes. And whether you price the SPECIAL, the SUPER or the ROADMASTER, you'll find, on a cents-per-... pound basis, that few other cars can touch them for value. And this is for sure! When it comes to performance—ride—the way they handle and hold the road—and thrifty use of fuel and oil—Buicks have never been finer. That's another way of saying that coil springs on all four wheels—Dynaflow*—torque-tube drive—and Buick's high-compression, high-economy Fireball power produce an out-of-this-world combination. So if you want your dollars to do extra duty—the time to act is now. Look at the price tags—look at the features—sample the power and thrill that you get for your money—and you'll know what we mean. *Dynaflow Drive is standard on ROADMASTER, optional at extra cost on Super and SPECIAL models.

Let's Do It . . . Fast!

We know by now that we took a hell of a licking in Korea, and it was only by the grace of God and the intestinal fortitude of a small band of combat men that the licking was not worse.

We also know in our own hearts that this is but the first of a series of incidents. The enemy has dozens of satellites, we have tangled with only two of them.

We also know that at any time the enemy dares provoke another incident that we will accept it as we accept Korea, because we're not physically able to do a thing about it.

Unless . . . we as a nation, get tough and hard, and do it in a hurry. And that will mean quick and drastic action.

Let's be frank about it and place the blame where blame lies. First of all, let us go back to Yalta, where the 'deals' were made that left two continents open—without restriction—to the ideology of the red hordes. Then let's go swiftly down the intervening years, the period when the pinkos abandoned the only bulwark against communism in China—casting Chiang Kai Shek adrift because it seemed "smart diplomacy" to deal with Uncle Joe's boys.

The death of every American, Briton, Aussie, Turk, in North Korea can be put directly upon the shoulders of those leaders of our nation who abandoned Chiang Kai Shek in favor of doing business with the hammer and sickle boys.

All right. The damage is done, or rather, it's just started. Let's do what we can to get ourselves out of this mess, before it costs us our lives, or worse, our freedom.

Let's start by cleaning house. Usually in a business firm, when an executive gets the home office in a jam that really costs them, the boy is given his walking papers, or perhaps kicked downstairs.

The US is a business—one of the biggest in the world. The analogy holds good. Let's put the guy responsible out to pasture—buy him another haberdashery or something for which he is fitted. Let's put the rest of them who wear the pink label in the place where they ought to be put.

And then—for the lives of these young kids in high school (who will be butchered on a red bayonet in a few years unless we act quick)—let's settle down to realizing that we're in a war, and do something about it, fast.

How about the billions of dollars appropriated months ago, of which not a thin dime has been spent? How about the hundreds of our magnificently equipped plants which have been given letters of intent but not a blueprint or an order? How about our cost of living, our wages, our waste of vital goods—all of which are in new ascending spirals?

How about our manpower—our armed forces—piddling along at 40,000 a month, when in 1942 we were drafting 450,000 per month?

Yes, how about our manpower? It's easy to write about strategic materials and converting plants to wartime, because all that hurts is business, and if it hurts, let it!

But—how about our sons, brothers, husbands, fathers? It's not an easy thing to say, but here it is, Take Them!

There's not a man among them who wouldn't rather shoulder arms than live under the hammer and sickle. There's not a woman behind them who wouldn't say, Go To It!

This editorial appears in one weekly newspaper—one of more than 15,000 newspapers printed in the United States. As yet, it is a voice crying in the wilderness, but perhaps others will join it.

The paper is staffed largely by young war veterans, several of whom left their wives and families behind so that the rest of you might survive and live in freedom. This article is written by one of them. He knows full well the consequences.

Winter Wheat Is in 'Best Shape,' Says Agent Dale

Corn Harvest Nears Completion Across Nebraska.

"Wheat is going into the winter in better condition than last year," according to C. C. Dale, Valley county agent. Although October was a dry month, there was enough sub-surface moisture to make the plants root well.

The recent snows have carried enough moisture to dampen the top soil and prevent blowing.

The Valley county report was in line with crop reports from the entire state. Nebraska wheat has an excellent start. But in the state's neighbor to the south, Kansas, the picture was not so bright.

Corn Nearly Harvested. The corn harvest, slowed by the cold and light snow, is between 80 and 85 per cent completed in this county. The crop in the valley is not as nearly finished as the upland corn.

Most of the remaining corn is too damp to harvest safely and farmers are waiting until it dries enough to store or for immediate consumption by livestock.

After a long cool spell, the weather man has promised higher temperatures and cloudy skies for the next few days. Some parts of the state will have light snows.

In his early childhood he was baptized in the Lutheran church.

When he was about two years old the family moved to Valley county, where he grew up and had his schooling, and here he has lived most of his life. In his thirties and early forties he lived for some years in Greeley county, Nebraska, but then he returned to Valley county and here the family has lived since. He farmed until 1926.

For the last ten years, up to the time of his illness, he worked for the North Loup River Irrigation District.

In 1912 he married Miss Sylvia Moon, to whom were born two daughters; they are Mrs. Marshall Nelson, and Mrs. Victor Welniak, both of Ord. They together with their mother survive their father and husband. There are four grandchildren, Loretta, Donna, Kathleen and Marsha Nelson. He is also survived by three sisters, Mrs. Percy Thayer, Greeley, Neb., Mrs. Jack Van Slyke and Mrs. Steve Beran of Ord, and three brothers, William of Salem, Ore., Louie of Denver, Colo., and Jesse of Ord, and by several cousins.

Herman Worm was a most loving husband and father. He loved his home and family, a faithful worker, and a true dependable friend.

Funeral services were held at the Hastings-Pearson Chapel Friday, Dec. 8, 1950 at 2 p. m. Rev. C. Jeppesen officiating. Mrs. Leslie Nash sang three hymns accompanied by Mrs. Orin Kellison. Pallbearers were Henry Craft and Ben Stubbly of Wolbach, Harry and

Glassford Will Speak at Cosmo Football Dinner

Bill Glassford, the man who piloted the University of Nebraska to a highly successful football season in 1950, will be the featured speaker at the Cosmopolitan club football banquet Tuesday evening.

The Ord and Taylor high school squads will be guests of the Cosmo at the banquet. Taylor was champion of the Loup Valley conference this year.

Although young, Glassford has 20 years of brilliant coaching and playing experience behind him.

He came to Nebraska from the University of New Hampshire. While at Durham he directed his team to three Yankee Conference titles in 1946-17-18, winning 19 games, losing five, and tying one. His 1947 club was undefeated during regular season play, losing a post-season game to Toledo in the Glass Bowl.

Glassford began his coaching career at Manhattan College in 1937. After three years at Manhattan, Bill moved to Carnegie Tech where he served as line coach in 1940 and 1941. In 1942 he transferred his allegiance to Yale as line coach.

After war-time service in the Navy, Bill went back to Yale for only a month before signing with New Hampshire.

He established his playing career under Jack Sutherland at the University of Pittsburgh, being a unanimous All-American selection in his senior year. In that year, 1936, Bill captained the eleven which defeated Washington in the Rose Bowl.

He is married and has a son, Gary William, who is eight years old.

John Bentley, chief of the U. of N. athletics public relations will accompany Coach Glassford to Ord.

Judge Suspends Sentence in Bad Check Action

Child Neglect Case Dismissed Tuesday Morning.

District Judge E. G. Kroger suspended sentence in a no-account check case and dismissed a child neglect action in district court here Tuesday morning.

The check case was brought against Robert Marshall, 27, after he allegedly gave a check on the First National Bank in Ord to the Rottenmayer store in Arcadia.

Marshall pleaded guilty in county court and was bound over to district court where he again entered a guilty plea.

County Attorney Ralph Norman and Bob Hall, county sheriff, testified that Marshall was intelligent and industrious—but when under the influence of alcohol he is continually in trouble with the law.

The judge then asked Marshall whether he would volunteer to take an alcoholism cure in a state institution, after which he would be placed on parole. Marshall agreed and entered the hospital Tuesday afternoon.

Dismiss Neglect Case. An action against Mr. and Mrs. Jack Lee Witty of Arcadia for child neglect was dismissed by the judge. He ruled that the testimony of several witnesses—schoolmates of seven-year-old Gerald, the adopted son of the Wittys—did not show sufficient evidence of neglect or cruelty.

The suit of Valley county vs. T. W. Moore et al, moved one step closer to trial when the judge over ruled all motions and demurrers.

Said Judge Kroger in making his decision on the motions: "This is a case in equity and it will be tried on its merits. The case should be tried soon and the court feels that there should be no unnecessary delay."

Amelia Novosad sang "Slumber Song of the Madonna." Jean Huff, Amelia Novosad, Leanne Kerchal and Norman Walker, the clarinet quartet played "In a Gondola." A play "The Lord's Prayer" was presented by Frank Adamek, Adeline Dubas, Beth Edwards and Kerry Leggett, followed by a solo "No Candle Was There and No Fire" by Darlene Novosad.

A reading "Juggler of Our Lady" with a musical background was given by Dorothy Urban, Dorothy Blaha, Roberta John, Ellen Jean Foth and Charlene Sevens.

The freshman girl's quartet, Sharon Olsson, Sharon Hastings, Iva Jo Stowell, Virginia Wilson, Marjorie Kluna and Ruth Ollis, sang "Lullaby of the Christ Child." Accompanists were Mrs. William Nelson, Ruth Ollis, Mary Thompson and Charlene Sevens.

Sink Test Well West of Bartlett

Wheeler county has oil fever! The little sandhill town of Bartlett is buzzing with excitement as a test well, the Cedar Valley No. 1, goes down.

The B. B. Carter drilling company has a 12-man crew at work three miles west and a mile south of Bartlett, sinking the first shaft in Wheeler county. The work is being financed by the Cedar Valley corporation, with offices in Omaha.

The crew is working around the clock in an effort to complete the test well by Friday or Saturday.

Hammers of the existence of a huge pool of petroleum in this area have been circulated for many years. Interest in oil has been heightened by the recent strikes in the western part of the state, near Sidney, and the decision of the Cedar Valley group has aroused fever-pitch enthusiasm in the country north of Ord.

Lt. Warren Allen Seriously Wounded In Korean Fighting But Will Recover

Tuesday, George Allen received from his son, Lieut. Warren Allen, three rolls of kodak film taken on the Korean battle front. One of the first films developed is this snapshot of Lieut. Allen in full battle gear, standing in front of one of his tanks. Only a day or two after picture was taken, Lieut. Allen was wounded.

Struck in Temple by Bullet, Now in Base Hospital

2 Other Ord Families Get Cheerful News from Their Sons.

1st Lieut. Warren P. Allen, 27, a son of Mr. and Mrs. George Allen of Ord, was seriously wounded in Korea on Nov. 30, according to a message received Friday from the Adjutant General in Washington.

The War Department's telegram came to Rev. Allen Strong, Presbyterian minister, who relayed it to the Allen family.

Tuesday came further and more cheerful news in the form of two letters in Lieut. Allen's own handwriting. On Nov. 30 he was struck in the temple by an anti-tank rifle round. The incident is related in his own words, as follows:

Saved Their Tank. "Last night about 10:30 the North Koreans came walking down the road in column. There had been ROK units coming thru all evening and the Reds got clear into our positions before we knew it. My gunner and I were both hit but we managed to get the tank back to a friendly position."

Lieut. Allen was taken to the 171st station hospital at Pyong-yang and was evacuated from there by air to a base hospital, probably in Japan. He wrote that surgeons had hopes of saving the sight of his left eye.

He was a tank platoon officer with the 7th Regiment, 1st U.S. cavalry division, which unit has been in the thick of the Korean fighting and was reported a few days before to be surrounded and possibly captured. The Allens had worried terribly about their son and are glad to know that he is now safe from the fighting, even though terribly wounded.

He is a veteran of eight years in the army, has a wife and two-year-old son, who are with his parents in Ord, and only ten days before his injury he had passed an examination for permanent rank.

Another Ord family who got joyful Christmas news is the Fred L. Stoddard family. This week they learned that their son, Lieut. G. W. Stoddard, USN, has landed in California and will spend Christmas with his family there. He has been on a speedboat in the Korean fighting since last April.

Lieut. (jg) Orville Stoddard, another son of the Stoddard family, has been called from the Naval Reserves for active duty and will re-enter service at once. He has been an engineer working on the big dam at Garretson, N. D.

Ord's Bud Shirley Returns Home, Tired, Happy, and Full of Stories from Adventure in New York City

Memories of a hundred scenes in a story book adventure crowded the mind of 89-year-old Bud Shirley so heavily that he could hardly relate them Monday to a Quiz reporter who interviewed him on his return from a week in New York City.

Bud was the guest of Betty Crocker and the General Mills organization on his trip to Gotham by virtue of being named TOPS IN OUR TOWN, in a contest sponsored jointly by General Mills and the Ord Quiz. His grandson, Shirley Norton of York, made the trip with him, also as a guest.

While there, Ord's golf professional and long time park caretaker, saw New York from one end to the other in a whirlwind of events and places. He now has the distinction of being the first man in Ord to appear on a national radio broadcast, a television show, or to ride a fire department vehicle around Manhattan Island.

Bud returned to Ord Saturday previous Sunday, traveled halfway across a continent and back in a Pullman compartment. "I can't say which of four main things impressed me most," he said. "First of all there was the thrill, the noise and bustle of getting ready for a radio program, and the trip through the broadcasting and radio studios. Why they've got a regular city of people, all dashing around doing something or another, and it seems like they never would get anything done but a lot of exercise, but it must work, 'cause the radio shows come off without a hitch."

"Then there was the trip to fire department headquarters, my visit with Chief Frank Murphy, and the trip through their fire museum. "They had fire equipment there dating back to 1855, and it was as polished and kept up as nice as their new big trucks."

Used Fire Chief's Car. Bud was practically given the keys to the city by Chief Murphy during his stay in New York.

The Ord unit of the Civil Air Patrol met at the court house for some training films and a discussion period. Applications were taken for 1951 memberships. Several cadets were present and also several high school students were on hand to investigate the program of Civil Air Patrol for high school students.

Membership for Adult or Senior Civil Air Patrol is not limited to fliers or those who can fly a plane. Anyone interested is eligible. Membership dues are $3.00 a year for Senior members. The Cadet program does not cast the Cadet any thing except regular attendance and a real interest in the program.

Following the meeting Capt. Bowman filed a flight plan with Omaha for his return flight. He was flying in an army Twin-Beech, an eight passenger craft used in liaison work over the state.

And sure enough, when we walked out of the Staller there was a big handsome young Irishman wearing the uniform of a fire lieutenant came up to us. Chief Shirley? he said. 'I'm Bud Shirley,' I said. 'I'm Lieutenant Jimmy Conlon' he said, 'and I have your taxi for you.'

'Well, we walked around the corner and here was the chief's own big red private car, Chief Murphy was in it, got out, introduced himself, and then told me Bud, this car is yours as long as you stay in New York!'

'Well, he wasn't kidding. Jimmy Conlon and that big red car were with us every minute we were awake, and say, did that boy know his home town! Any place we wanted to go, he took us, and when we ran out of places to think of, he had some more. And get around! Why we went sailing down those streets, every place the policemen gave us the highball.

stopped traffic for us, let us on through. Why, the mayor of New York never got better treatment.

'That driver was waiting for us when we got up in the morning, until we went to bed, two—three o'clock at night. Sometimes I rode in the front seat, sometimes in back, but say, it sure was a thrill. 'You know, I think every man in that New York fire department is an Irishman, and they treated me just like my name was O'Shirley.'

Heard Cardinal Spellman. Bud said that another high spot was a visit to St. Patrick's cathedral. 'I don't know how we timed it, but we got there just while Cardinal Spellman was talking. You know, I've heard a lot of men make a lot of speeches and talks, in person and on the radio. But I never had a man impress me like that before. He has the sweetest voice I ever heard. I was just spellbound.'

'Shirley had to come for the third time, and tell me, 'Granddad, we'd better be moving! Finally, I just had to leave.'

'There just didn't seem to be a thing we didn't see,' he said. 'We saw the tall buildings, the subways. Went across the Brooklyn bridge and back through the tunnel about four different times, and I caught a bit of a chill.'

'We saw the Polo grounds, the Yankee Stadium and Ebbetts field. And stores and shops. And the big boats, the liners and battleships. And fireboats. And . . . well, you name it and we saw it.'

Slum Children Mitted. 'But there's one part of New York that just gives me the shivers and that's the slum area. I just can't get over those poor kids—hundreds and thousands of them, with maybe nothing but a little piece of sidewalk to play on. Garbage cans everywhere. Drunks lying in the gutter, or maybe staggering down the streets. Young drunks too, just teen agers.'

'Just how do those poor kids ever get a chance to see the sunlight or grass and trees growing? How do they manage—some how—to grow up to be decent citizens? 'I can tell you one thing—I'm going to spend the rest of my life trying to make our Ord park a better place for kids. They've got it so much better than the New York kids now, there's no comparison, but that's no reason why I can't do what I can to make it even better.'

'Wish I had the money to bring a dozen of those slum kids out here and just let 'em roll around on the grass, or maybe dip a fish pole in the creek. Why, they'd go wild. As it is, you can just see 'em die by inches.'

Bud said that there was hardly a waking moment in which he and his grandson weren't doing something or seeing something. While visiting the television studios, the Ord old timer appeared on a television show together with Shirley and Chief Frank Murphy. They ate meals at Cavanaugh's, world famous steak house, and the Staller Cafe Rouge. One evening they saw the Rockettes and the feature picture, 'King Solomon's Mines.'

Another evening they were in Billy Rose's Diamond Horseshoe. 'Saw them 6 foot girls, too,' he quipped.

Believes Betty, Can Cook. Highlight of the trip was his broadcast over the ABC network, when he appeared on the Betty Crocker Magazine of the Air program. Broadcast Friday morning over KMMJ, the program was actually made Wednesday afternoon in New York.

'That Betty Crocker is really a fine woman,' Bud said. 'And I honestly believe she can cook, too. Never have been sure about the rest of these women who tell recipes over the radio.'

Betty Crocker's interview with Bud Shirley, which most persons in Ord heard, described the recent tops in our town contest, and then reviewed highlights of Bud's life in Ord since 1882, including several of the incidents over the years that made Bud the well known man about town that he is. Interposed was Bud's plaintive remark, 'I can't find a barber in this whole dang town (New York) who knows how to trim a western mustache!'

Ord's famous citizen is not yet through with his round of personal appearances. In the near future he is scheduled for appearances before the Ord Rotary and Cosmopolitan Clubs. He will also tell highlights of his trip to the Ord fire department, and next summer, to the state firemen at their convention.

In the meantime, he and Mrs. Shirley will take time out to celebrate their 65th wedding anniversary, December 22, and listen to the big RCA Console radio and record player that Betty Crocker gave him while in New York.

Slaughter ewes held at $13.50-$15.50. Feeder lambs gained a quarter, Kansas wheat-fielders to a new all-time high of $31.00. Short-term to solid-mouth breeding ewes brought $16.00 to $17.00.

Kebby's Comments

By Marvin Kechschull.

Bud Shirley's absolute refusal to travel to New York by air shows the same attitude that Uncle Dudley had.

To celebrate Uncle Dud's 75th birthday, a friend offered to take him for a plane ride over the little South Dakota town where he had spent all his life. Uncle Dudley accepted the offer.

Back on the ground after circling the town for 20 minutes, his friend asked, "Were you scared, Uncle Dudley?"

"No-o-o," came the answer, "But I never did put my full weight down."

There is considerable feeling that a Loup Valley sportsmen's club could accomplish a lot. We concur. Where in the state will you find more hunters, fishermen, trap-shooters, and wildlife lovers?

There is strength in numbers. A well-organized sportsmen's group could work for a state lake here—or work for any of a number of other worthwhile projects.

The wheel that squeaks loudest gets the most grease. There are organized "squeaking wheels" in other parts of the state. They are getting the facilities that they want. Why don't we organize to see if we can accomplish as much?

"I wish we'd get a few shipwrecked sailors washed ashore," mused the canibal chief. "What I need is a dose of salts."

"Happy" Chandler hasn't had much to be happy about during his tenure as baseball czar. He made some questionable decisions and angered club owners, players, and fans. Now he's being asked to resign. We feel that etainn ETAO sign.

We feel that for the good of baseball, the commissioner should quit. Baseball will have tough sledding in case of an all-out war, and an unpopular czar won't make the going any easier.

Housework Easy Without Nagging Backache

As we get older, stress and strain, over-exertion, excessive smoking or exposure to cold sometimes slow down a kidney function. This may lead many folks to complain of nagging backache, loss of pep and energy, headaches and dizziness. Getting up nights or frequent passages may result from minor bladder irritations due to cold, dampness or dietary indiscretions.

If your discomforts are due to these causes, don't wait, try Doan's Pills, a mild diuretic. Used successfully by millions for over 60 years. While these symptoms may often otherwise occur, it's amazing how many times Doan's give happy relief—help the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters flush out waste. Get Doan's Pills today!

Celebrate Sixtieth Wedding Day

Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Hutchins.

Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Hutchins quietly celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary Wednesday at their home with their son, George and his wife, from Kansas City, and their daughter-in-law, Mrs. Ruth Hutchins, and her three sons, Dick, Dean and Dale of Lincoln present. Plans to hold open house as they did ten years ago were cancelled when Mrs. Hutchins was ill two weeks ago.

Their only daughter, Mrs. Inez Fox of Gary, Ind., was unable to be present. They have two other grandsons, Ted, the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Hutchins, and Arthur Fox, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Fox of Gary, Ind. Their son Arthur was killed ten years ago in the tragic accident which took the lives of two high school boys, riding in his car on their way to a basketball game in a blinding snow storm.

Mr. and Mrs. Hutchins have lived all their married lives in North Loup. Mr. Hutchins is a native of Minnesota and Mrs. Hutchins of New York. Both were children of pioneer parents, who knew the hardships of the early days in the North Loup Valley. For many years Mr. Hutchins with his brothers, was in the well and windmill business, and was salesman for the Aermotor Co. in a wide territory. Both are faithful attendants at the Seventh Day Baptist church. Mrs. Hutchins was a charter member of the Women's missionary society and still does her "bit" as far as her strength permits.

Among the gifts and messages they received this week were corsages of orchids and gardenias from their niece, Mildred Hutchins, Kittleson at Glendale, Calif. Although 87 years of age, Mr. Hutchins does not miss many days driving from their home in the north part of town to the post office and store.

One Lonely Building Remains of Once Prominent Corner College

As you drive through Bethany, a suburb of Lincoln, you can't help but notice an empty, desolate old four-story brick building standing in the center of a deserted campus. That building is all that remains physically of old Cotner College, once a vigorous force in the higher education of Nebraska's youth. Originally called Christian University, Cotner was founded by the Christian Church in Nebraska for the purpose of enabling its young people to receive a higher education in surrounding areas of a distinctly moral and religious nature. Bethany, the community in which the college was located, grew up around the institution and was developed by many of the same men who were behind the college. When the college first opened its doors, in September, 1885, the 30 young people seeking admission, the building was not completed. Hence, classes were held for awhile in one of the residences built in Bethany by the trustees. Cotner developed a well-rounded curriculum and a full program of extra-curricular activities. At times, its athletic teams were the best in the state. Despite this, and the fact that it turned out many graduates destined to occupy distinguished posts in later life, Cotner was unable to weather the heavy financial seas through which it had to sail, and in 1933 the fine old institution closed its doors. Cotner was reorganized in 1946 as a school of religion, and as such it exists today.

Hold Services for Sol Brox, Age 88

Funeral services were held from the Hastings-Pearson chapel Monday at 2:30 p. m. for Sol Brox, who died at the home of his son in Ord, Saturday. The Rev. R. E. Daughette officiated at the services.

Sol Brox was born in Canada on February 3, 1862, and died on Dec. 16, 1950, at the age of 88 years, 10 months, and 13 days. At the age of two years, he moved with his parents to Freeport, Ill., where he lived until he was 12. From there he moved to Milford, Nebr. Later he moved once more, to Atkinson, and finally in 1892 he came to Valley county and lived in or near Ord until his death.

He became a member of the Methodist church many years ago and attended services regularly until the infirmities of age prevented his attendance.

Surviving are a son, Almond, of Ord; three grandchildren; one sister, Mrs. Sarah Raymer of Atkinson, and one brother, George, of Lodgepole. He was preceded in death by his wife, one daughter, and two sons.

Mrs. C. M. Davis sang two hymns at the funeral, accompanied by Mrs. Orin Kellison. Pallbearers were Leo Long, Harvey Parks, Dr. J. W. McGinnis, Tracy Hamilton, John Wozate, and C. M. Davis. Burial was in the Ord cemetery, with Hastings-Pearson mortuary in charge of arrangements.

Kebby's Comments
By Marvin Kobschull.

We're really branching out. This week we have a genuine "guest columnist." He'd rather not have us tell you his name (he's the blushing violet type), but we think this is good.

The All American football player business is in full swing. I don't know who the other All Americans are this year but I know of one as per the following clippings from the Podunk News-Weekly.

Podunk, November 21. We notice that the International News Service released its 1950 All American Football Team the other day. Conspicuous by its absence was the name of Podunk U's great little sophomore back "Scramble-foot" Radzivilov Salzkammergut II. This is no doubt due to the fact that "Rad," as the team calls him, was injured in the shower room early in the season and missed seven of the eight Podunk U. games.

Podunk, November 28. The Associated Press came out today with its idea on All American footballers for 1950. Through some oversight, Podunk U's great little sophomore back, "Scramble-foot" Radzivilov Salzkammergut II, was not named to any position.

Podunk, December 5. The United Press announced its 1950 All American offensive and defensive teams yesterday. To the great surprise of all Podunk University fans, "Scramble-foot" Radzivilov Salzkammergut II, Podunk U's great little sophomore back, was not named to either team. Fans will be greatly disappointed not to see "Rad," as the team calls him, on the offensive eleven. It is generally agreed by all the "coffee-cup" quarterbacks that he is the most offensive back Podunk U. has had in years. The UP sure missed the boat this trip.

Podunk, December 12. The Saturday Evening Post, out again last week, lists the names of players it considers All American football material for 1950. Amazing as it may seem to all Podunk U. supporters, "Scramble-foot" Salzkammergut's name does not appear among the select few. We attribute this snub of the great little sophomore back to the relatively poor season the Podunk U. "Bears" had this year. As you fans recall all of the eight games the Bears dropped this year were by the narrow margin of from one to three touchdowns.

Podunk, December 19. "Scramble-foot" Radzivilov Salzkammergut II, Podunk U's great little sophomore back failed to place in the Northeast Central Conference "player who played hardest and cleanest against us" poll. We can only comment that the players who probably didn't know who hit 'em after "Scramble-foot" went by.

Podunk, December 26. "Scramble-foot" Radzivilov Salzkammergut II, Podunk U's great little sophomore back, was today unanimously chosen All American halfback in the Podunk News-Weekly's annual All American poll. "Rad," as the team calls him, received a total of four first place votes out of a possible four. We of the News-Weekly believe that this is the most authoritative of all All American polls. Two full days are put in studying performances and sifting reports on the great players of the year. All members of the News-Weekly's staff are given only one vote. In only one case do we should mention here that the great little sophomore's father, who happens to be owner of the News-Weekly, did not participate in the poll.

Ice Fishing Now Popular Sport

Lincoln, Nebr.—Fishing, absent from most sportsmen's outdoor calendars for two to three months has regained its throne as king of sports as hunting fades out of the picture. The only hunting seasons still in progress are rabbits and squirrel.

Frigid weather, thick ice and a baited hook are the prerequisites for the state's growing ice populace. With most waters now covered with thick layers of ice, more and more sportsmen are trekking to their favorite fishing holes and a battle with the non-dormant fish, mainly perch.

Huge McConaughy reservoir again promises to be one of the main attractions for the ice anglers. Dewey lake and most of the sand hills, all stocked with perch, also will draw heavily on the ice fishing members.

With the exception of trout, the season on which ran from April 1 through October 31, all fish are legal take during the winter months. The same regulations which governed fishing throughout the spring, summer and fall months are continued in force during the winter season. The bag limits are the same.

As some waters will be closed to ice fishing because of skating, it would be profitable for all anglers to get in contact with the responsible group in charge of the lakes.

Chipped Dishes

When damaged dishes and utensils are used, they are likely to leave chips in the food, and it is almost impossible to get them thoroughly clean and sanitary.

Celebrate Golden Wedding Anniversary

The calendar on Friday, Dec. 1 had a gold lettered day for Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Earnest, formerly of North Loup and now of LaMesa, Calif., when they celebrated their golden wedding anniversary.

Mrs. Earnest was the former Beulah Knapp, and they were married in North Loup, Nebr. She was a school teacher, teaching in a typical one room school house, on Davis Creek.

Like many others in the community Mr. Earnest was a farmer, then for a time was in the hardware store, now owned by C. D. Knapp, and later in the general merchandise business where the Farmers store now is located. For a number of years he was associated with the North Loup State Bank, but in 1934, they moved to California, settling in LaMesa, where they ran a grocery store for two years.

They have two sons, Leland C. Earnest, county deputy sheriff residing in El Cajon Valley, Calif., and Lyle Earnest, with the Bank of America in LaMesa. They have four grandchildren.

On their anniversary a dinner party was held in their honor at the home of their son, Leland, for members of the family and relatives in the area.

Centering the table was a beautifully decorated wedding cake commemorating their golden anniversary.

Mr. Earnest has not been as well the last few years, has had some difficulty with his eyes, but they both still enjoy hearing from old friends at LaMesa, Calif., Palm St.

—Mr. and Mrs. Anton Radil, Mr. and Mrs. John Benben and Jim Turek spent Monday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Petska.

—Wednesday evening callers of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Petska were Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Krahulik and Mr. and Mrs. Emil Zikmund.

—Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Novak and Myron were Mr. and Mrs. Edward Knapp and Daniel and Mrs. Julia Novak.

Cycles. Everything in the world runs in cycles. Everything has run in cycles since the beginning of time. Scientists acknowledge the fact, but can give no sensible explanation. However, science cannot explain even the simplest facts in life. They know every man has a brain, but they cannot explain how that brain works.

About the simplest explanation of the cycle system is the fact that nature has infinite variety. If it were not for this variety, even the most luxurious life would become almost unbearable. This may account for the fact that most people who have lived in localities with ideal climate, are glad to come back to the variety of Nebraska or some similar location.

The man with a steady job is to be pitied, and he should not be blamed if he tries to change his lot for something that gives him more variety. The steady job, especially in a factory, becomes a grind. A man must do the same thing, day after day, year after year. If he changes, it is only from one machine to another.

With the farmer it is somewhat different, for he knows not in the morning what the day may bring forth. It may be just like the preceding day, but the chances are it will be different. When he goes to the field any time of the year he would do well to take his sheepskin along, and be ready to pull his shirt at a moment's notice. The Nebraska farmer finds not a dull minute in his busy life.

Everything in nature goes in cycles. Some years we find an abundance of wild fruit, and others there is very little, and this regardless of spring conditions. Wild animals and birds have their cycles. Some years there are plenty of pheasants, and at other times there are very few. After years of scarcity, the rabbits and prairie hens are making a real comeback at the present time. Cycles make for variety, and variety is the spice of life.

Honesty. Honesty is a condition of mind, and for this reason it varies with the mental attitude of the person concerned. That is why so many people are ready to impugn the honesty of others. The fellow with the easygoing attitude is all too apt to call the man with a strict sense of honor "straight-laced" and to consider the man with the broader point of view as a crook.

Staying within the provisions of the law is not necessarily honesty. It means that the person concerned is just playing it safe. It is possible to break nearly all of the ten commandments and still keep out of the clutches of the law. Honesty in the legal sense and honesty in the ethical sense may be far apart, but both phases pass for honesty in some stratum of society.

People are inherently honest. Most men desire to follow the teachings of the Golden Rule. They do so, not through fear of punishment, nor for hope of reward. They do so because it is the only fair way to live. This is the main reason there is hope for the world in spite of communism. Most of the people under communism and not living the kind of life they want to live.

In a democracy we claim the right to criticize the men in high places. We think it is our right to try to reform our neighbors, the community, the nation or the world. We think as we please, and we also act pretty much as we please. People under communism desire to do exactly as we do, and the only reason they do not is because they are not permitted to do so.

In the early days of our nation we had comparatively little government, but we did have a high level of honesty among the people. Most people want to be honest with their neighbors, but they rebel at too much governmental control. For example, the man who would not cheat his neighbor out of a penny, may go to a lot of trouble to get out of paying taxes.

In pioneer times the people were largely a law unto themselves. They made the laws, and they made them fair to all concerned. The taxes then were not too heavy, because there was not a great need for tax money. In those days there were not a thousand extra governmental agencies designed to benefit mankind but requiring extra taxes for their support.

Also, the government did not meddle too much in a man's personal affairs. Except for the annual payment of taxes, a man might live and die without coming in contact with his government. Today that is all changed, and the man is lucky who can go through a single day without being reminded that he is being controlled from the national to the local and from the cradle to the grave.

Now, because the Lord meant man to be a creature of independence, he rebels at too much government, and so he tries in every way he can to get out from under at least a portion of it. If he can find a loophole in the law that will let him get by without complying with some detested regulation, he will find that loophole. Further, he takes the attitude that, if he cannot work as long as he wants to and as hard as he wants to at the job he wants to do, he will work shorter hours for higher pay, get by in every way he can. He figures that there is not too much object in working hard to get ahead when what he makes will go largely for taxes and the high cost of living and dying.

The man is not to blame for this attitude. The government of recent years has been making it harder for a man to be honest in the true sense of the word, and easier to get by. He finds little need for laying up for the future, when he knows his future will be taken care of by the government.

Luckily for America, there are still a great many of its citizens who insist on being honest, regardless of the general trend. They still prefer the "strenuous life" to the "more abundant life." They prefer to work and earn what they get, rather than to get by with as little work as possible. Those who work short hours accomplish more than ever before in history, train and auto collision Wednesday, better machines.

Yes, measured in accomplishments, the people of America are still honest. They are honest, not because government assistance, but in spite of governmental directives. And so long is the honesty of America kept on a high plane, there is hope for democracy. So long as there is democracy, there is hope for the world.

Ward's Cookin' Column

For some time now I have had in mind to write about the ten most exciting and interesting events in my life. I have compiled them during the past few weeks, and in looking them over, I note that most of them were of the more general type, the kind that were probably equally exciting to a large number of people besides myself at the time they happened. A rehash of these cannot but prove of interest. A few are strictly my own experiences but deal with incidents that should be of general interest. So, without further apology I give them herewith in chronological order.

(1) First trip out of state, in 1891. At the age of 9 years I went with my parents to visit relatives in Iowa and Illinois. I recall that Uncle John B. Ward lived in a grand house, and they even had a maid and a cook. I walked down as far as Rock river (this was at Sterling, Ill) and got to look at the outside of the paper mill there. We rode on the horse drawn street cars, and pulled a string to ring a bell when he wanted to get out. In Iowa I had cousins to play with. I walked to school with Ira Honnold, then went back home across the fields and a pasture. At Uncle Clark Honnold's, in Newton, Ia., I got to see a lot of the high wheel bicycles, which were quite a sight, and I went with another cousin down to the slaughter house to get a liver. The man there had thrown the livers out, but he got one for us, washed it off and gave us the whole thing, worth two or three dollars today.

(2) As I recall, it was in 1894 that we moved into our new frame house, which I had heard planned for years. It is the one Butch Fuss' recently moved out of when they moved into their new home. I had been watching the carpenters, Jim Clement and John Hill Babcock, all the while they were building it, and wondering when we would move. One day I came home from school, and we were located in the new house.

(3) William Jennings Bryan. I had always had a great admiration for Bryan, who flashed across the political sky in 1896 when he made his celebrated "Cross of Gold and Crown of Thorns" speech. I saw him in August, 1900, when he came to Ord and made a speech, which he was supposed to have received $600. It might have been a good speech, if the Republicans had not ganged up on him. His room in Hotel Ord was decorated in gold about two thirds of his hearers were wearing yellow ribbons with "McKinley and Prosperity" printed on them. It seemed to spoil his speech plans, but that day will always stand high in my memories.

(4) In November, 1903, the most exciting day in my school and sports life came along, when Central City came to Ord upon a special train, bringing their football, basketball and debating teams along, together with perhaps two hundred boosters. They expected to win in all three events, but lost instead. The fact that I happened to be on the basketball team and the debating team might have accounted for much of my personal interest, but the excitement in Ord and Ord high was never greater than it was that day. The school had no football team, so a team was made up from every available source, and they made up in weight and power what they lacked in skill. A number of Ordites will recall that event with interest.

(5) No list of outstanding events in anybody's life these days would be complete without Armistice Day, 1918. People went as near crazy then as they ever do. It is not necessary for me to tell most readers about the happy, excited, but compared with the Aug. 14, 1945, celebration, it was a big event indeed. Then the people actually believed that the war to end all wars had been fought and won, and they reacted accordingly. Time has proven how wrong that prediction was, but it sounded good at the time.

(6) In 1935 I served a hitch in the VCC and in October we were moved from Madison to Minatare. The whole hitch was an interesting experience to me, but I think my first sight of the Scotts Bluffs monument was the high point. The first time you see it looming up out of the haze while you are still perhaps 30 miles away does something to you. I made five trips to the top in as many weeks, and would have continued if I had stayed at the Minatare camp. When I went to Fort Robinson I also got quite a thrill out of rambling over the bluffs there, and plan to go back some time and ramble some more.

(7) I always get a thrill out of writing, and my prose pays me well, but I believe the biggest thrill I ever got out of writing was when I had a page of my poems published in the World-Herald magazine section, March 15, 1941. That was about as far as I ever got in the writing game, and I received a lot of fine letters from friends all over the area, some of which I still have. The best, written by Irl D. Tolen, I expect to keep the rest of my life. I thought at the time I might really get somewhere in the writing game, but I got over that idea some time ago.

(8) The call to go to Hawaii was without doubt the greatest thrill I ever experienced. It started when I first got the word at the Burwell rodeo, and the thrill did not wear off until I got back to the mainland. In fact, I still get a thrill thinking and talking about it. It was inconceivable that a man of my age should be offered a better job than I had ever held in my life. Things began looking up for us from the time I received notice to report, and they are still looking up. In fact, it is not beyond the realm of possibility that I might be called back to work there again. If called, I most certainly will go.

(9) I have met very few famous men in my time, with the exception of W. J. Bryan and Clarence M. Davis, but there was something about my meeting with Admiral Nimitz that makes the event stand high in my fond recollections. Perhaps it was because it was Nimitz who announced to Mrs. Paddock that her son Johnnie was missing in action and I was the man who wrote the incident up for the Ord Quiz, having to deny the whole thing some two or three weeks later. Naturally I wanted to tell the admiral about the incident, and I got to visit with him for perhaps fifteen minutes, a truly great experience for any man.

(10) Finally, I have chosen for my tenth thrill the incident that happened this month, when Bud Shirley was chosen "Tops in Our Town" and got to make the trip to New York and to talk on the air. I knew he would be good, but he did a better job by far than I had dared to hope, and he did more to publicize Ord than the Chamber of Commerce could do in a year. It gave me a feeling of pride to have been born in Valley county, to have graduated from the Ord schools and to have known such a man as Bud Shirley.

In the final analysis, one can tell the really outstanding events in one's life by the grip they have on your memory and the fact that something comes up in your throat when you try to talk about them. They are the milestones along the pathway of life, and they take no account of the years. Some may come close together and some far apart, but they are things you can never forget, and would not want to forget, if you could.

repay Mr. Biemond and his helpers, and give him that old Christmas feeling, the best in the world.

and try to keep yourself in as good condition as possible. "Well, then, why do you have to let your hair be gray if you don't want to? Why not fix it the best you can?"

The summer I was twelve I spent my time crocheting, knitting, embroidering, sewing and making Christmas gifts, and by September first they were every one finished, wrapped, addressed and ready. By Christmas time I could barely remember what each one was to get.

What charm they add to our city! In a way, the Christmas lights are almost more welcome and showy than the first flowers of spring. For they bloom in the cold of the year, when all the landscape is drear. (Poem.) (Well, rhyme, then!)

Another time I pity him is the day he lugs heavy magazines to deliver... the day LIFE has an extra big issue, for instance.

Isn't it fine that the Ord Theater is going to have free movies for children next Saturday morning? How happy those kids will be! And what could please them like cartoons and comedies?

It is upsetting to consider that phrase "middle age." For, just how old do you expect to get to be? You think you'll make 90? I doubt it, you might. Well, then, for you, middle age is 45, isn't it?

And life doesn't begin ten years from now; you don't have too darned much time. It is going on; lots of it has gone! So if you expect to do a kindly deed for someone, don't earmark it for middle age. Better get at it while you can walk without wobbling, and see without bifocals.

Here endeth the sermon for the day.

The Christmas cantata given by the choir of the United Brethren Evangelical church at Fish Creek was directed by Mrs. Irvin Hermes-meyer. The Youths Fellowship presented the program. Mrs. Oliver Johnson was the reader and the choir sang the response of the story, "The Town of Bethlehem."

Babson Says Farm Outlook Is Good for Coming Year

Noted Economist Predicts Increased Government Controls

Foresees No Open War With Russia in '51; More 'Episodes.'

SPECIAL EXCLUSIVE:

The United Nations will withdraw from Korea during 1951. The United States in 1951 will have the largest National Income of its history.

By Roger W. Babson.

1. Excluding defense orders, the total business volume in 1951 will be less than that for 1950. However, National Income in 1951 will be the highest ever recorded, as war orders take the place of peace production and high prices prevail.

2. The outstanding feature of the lives of businessmen and consumers.

3. The Administration and its economic advisors are firmly convinced that radical inflation is about to break out next year. But the "brain trusters" are overlooking the fact that the boom is already old and that it was creating badly when the Korean war broke out. War postponed the downturn which would have taken place much sooner. The date of the slide has only moved ahead.

4. Rushing to catch up on its neglected defense program, the Administration is anxious to shrink business volume to an unnecessary degree. Efforts at first will be along the line of tighter credit curbs, such as restrictions on mortgage and installment loans and increased bank reserve requirements.

5. As 1951 wears on, the effect of credit controls will cause a decline in production will decline more than armament production will increase. The public may then cry, "This is a government-made interference of the government in 1951 will be the ever-increasing slump; let's get rid of the controls!"

6. If in 1951 it becomes evident that business is declining too fast as a result of government curbs, the planners at Washington may rush their patient into an oxygen tent.

7. Most labor groups will not be successful in getting a sixth round of wage increases in 1951. Although there may be more strikes in the first part of 1951, there will be fewer for the whole year as compared with 1950.

8. Tightness in the labor supply will be continued as the year wears on, particularly of highly-skilled workers.

9. The Taft-Hartley Law will not be repealed during 1951 but may be amended. The Administrators of the law will continue to wink at some of its clauses.

10. Wholesale prices of many commodities will be marked by a mild decline in 1951 when compared with the price level for December 31, 1950. In some lines the drop may be quite steep from the high levels of late 1950. Retail prices for 1951, I do not now forecast.

11. The year 1951 should prove an excellent time to keep a tight grip on inventories. Commodity speculation for the rise will not pay in 1951. Furthermore, our expanding stockpiles of strategic materials present a real price threat in the event of a peace scare. Such stockpiles could then act strongly as a depressing on prices.

12. The cost of living will remain high during 1951. This prediction recognizes that living costs next year may be above the lower levels that existed during the first half of the year now closing.

13. Farmers' income for 1951 should average no less than that for 1950. Since the trend in the first half of 1950 was down, this forecast is not so optimistic as it might otherwise seem, for there is likely to be a weakening of the farmers' income position during latter part of 1951.

14. Barring crop failures, the total supply of food available should be larger in 1951 than for 1950, since the government will raise planting quotas as part of its attack on inflation. If the weather is extremely favorable, the government will be blamed for farm-price weakness during the latter part of 1951.

15. With prospects good for a rising supply of feed grains, meat should be more plentiful next year than in 1950. Prices for meat, however, will be held up by continuing supply of feed grains.

Dana L. Nay, 20, Was Killed Tuesday Eve in Car Crash

Dr. Wilbert Nay's Son and Young Cousin Die Near David City.

About 8:00 Tuesday evening, Pvt. Dana L. Nay, 20-year-old son of Dr. and Mrs. Wilbert Nay, of Albion, was killed in a car accident near David City, Ord relatives were informed late that night.

Dana's cousin a 17-year-old Columbus girl, also was killed. Their car rolled over five times but whether the cause was tire trouble or excessive speed is not known here.

Pvt. Nay had been in the army three months, was stationed at Shepard Field, Wichita Falls, Tex., and was spending his first furlough at home. His brother, Pvt. Lloyd Nay, of Keesler Field, Biloxi, Miss., also is home on furlough.

The entire Dr. Nay family were in Ord Monday for a Christmas dinner at the George Nay home in Springdale. They returned to Albion that evening. Tuesday, Dr. Nay came back to Ord to look after patients and his wife and the boys went to Columbus to visit some of her relatives. Evidently Pvt. Nay and his cousin were out joy-riding when the fatal accident occurred.

Funeral services will be held at Albion Friday afternoon.

Catholic Youth Group Builds Skating Pond

A new skating pond, large enough to stage regulation hockey games, is now under construction on lots just west of Our Lady of Perpetual Help church, and completion is expected before the end of the week.

The project is under the direct sponsorship of the Catholic Youth Organization, in cooperation with the church and the city of Ord. Jim Finley is president of the group.

With the return of cold weather, skating is a popular sport with Ord's younger set. One or more skating parties have been held every night this week. Currently in use are the Vodeland pond just west of Ord, the Long pond east of Ord and the old Ice Pond near the Valley Rendering plant. When the CYO rink is completed, bulk of the activity will probably center on the new, large spot.

No Oil Found in Bartlett Well

After reaching a layer of granite at the 3250-ft. level in the Cedar Valley No. 1 test well west of Bartlett, the pipe was pulled from the hole and trucked to Dalton in western Nebraska, where another test will be made.

Oil is found above a granite layer, the drilling foreman explained, and there was no necessity in going to the planned depth of 3700 feet.

Promoters, undaunted, feel that there is oil in Wheeler county, although no future plans have been announced.

It is reported that the test cost $30,000 which included a $450 per foot drilling charge, materials and transportation.

There is much oil talk in Central Nebraska and it is thought that this immediate region will see more test wells drilled before long.

Chants Eke Out Win Over Ravenna Thursday Night

Both Teams Are Cold; Second One-Point Victory.

The Ord Chanticleers won their second basketball game of the season Thursday evening. It was the second time that they eked out a one-point margin. The Ravenna Bluejays were their victims Thursday night, losing out to an ice-cold Ord team by a 25-27 score.

It was the first loss in three games for the Jays. But Ravenna was even colder than Ord. Ed Furtak, speedy Bluejay forward, was completely stopped by the Ord defense. He failed to sink a point and went out on five personal fouls.

The Chants led all the way, but Ravenna closed the gap rapidly in the last two periods, forcing Ord to stall through the last, two minutes with only a one-point lead. "Buz" Maurice, ordinarily out of the most dangerous players on the Ord squad, was held to a slender five points. Paul Penas topped the evening's scoring with 13 points while Ravenna's Norman Cook bucketed eight for the losers.

Both teams were weak under the basket, both from the field and from the free throw line. Ord failed to make a field goal in the second quarter, and made only one during the last period. The Chants made good on eight of 21 free throws, while the Jays hit nine of their 24 free throw attempts.

Ord Woman Struck by Auto, Killed, at Scottsbluff

Emma Rasette, 73, Victim; Funeral Held There Wednesday.

Miss Emma Jane Rasette, 73, was struck by a car and killed Sunday evening while crossing a street at Scottsbluff.

For most of her life Miss Rasette lived in Ord, being employed as a nurse at Ord hospitals and caring for many patients privately. For the past few years she had been doing nursing work at Scottsbluff.

Driver of the car which struck and killed her was Tom Donahoe, 23; and by coincidence his passenger was a former Ord young man, Richard D. Michalek, 21, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Michalek.

According to radio reports the driver failed to stop after hitting Miss Rasette, and so both he and young Michalek were taken into custody by police, being released later on $500 bail.

Ord relatives were informed of Miss Rasette's death by a phone call from Ed Michalek Sunday evening.

Funeral services for the former Ord woman were held in Scottsbluff Wednesday. Her nephew, Elwood Rasette and members of his family, and her niece, Mrs. Dorothy Hans, drove to Scottsbluff to attend.

Methodists Will Pray for Peace

Local Methodists will join Sunday, Dec. 31, with the denomination nearly nine million members in a national mid-century prayer for peace, it was announced today by the Rev. R. E. Daughette, pastor of the Ord Methodist church.

He said the call to special prayer was sounded by the Methodist Council of Bishops and the church's General Board of Evangelism in view of the "exceptionally grave condition of the world today."

In a letter to pastors of 42,000 Methodist churches, the board urged every congregation to unite in a chain of prayer on Mid-Century Sunday, beseeching God's guidance in converting a world crisis to a just and lasting peace.

Declaring that "mankind's hope for freedom is in desperate jeopardy," the plea for prayer concluded with a similar request by the president of the new National Council of Churches, Episcopal Bishop Henry Knox Sherrill, of New York. He urged all Protestants to offer prayers on December 31 for "a peace which is the fruit of righteousness."

Cub Scout Den Presents 'The Night Before Christmas'

Den 3 of the Cub Scouts presented "Twas the Night Before Christmas" at the monthly Pack meeting, Wednesday evening. Here Santa (Bobby Armstrong) pauses for a puff on his little clay pipe while the household sleeps — well, nearly sleeps. Member of the sleeping family are Tommy Martin, Donnie Vasicek, and Alan Joe Troyer, who, as Ma, seems to be having a bit of trouble with his—or her—nightgown. The two reindeer at the left are Dennie Vasicek and David Scott. After Santa made his delivery, he hopped back into the sleigh, which promptly collapsed. Santa injured only his dignity.

Christmas Mail Is Heavier Than Ever This Year

Postoffice Here Cancels 73,000 Pieces—New High.

The volume of mail handled by the Ord post office during the 1950 Christmas season was the heaviest in history. Postmaster Alfred Hill says the upward trend in Christmas mailings that began several years ago is continuing.

A gain of about 8,000 pieces during the ten-day period from December 25 was noted this year. In 1949, about 67,000 pieces were canceled. This year the amount was 73,000.

On Monday more than 12,500 cancellations were stamped on outgoing mail—a jump of 1,500 from last year's biggest day.

The volume has increased every year since 1942, when 37,000 pieces of outgoing mail were handled by the local post office crew.

The amount of incoming mail has kept pace with the outgoing. This year one postal employee was detailed to make parcel post deliveries—a job which took all his time.

Omahan Is Fined in County Court on Check Charge

Floyd Walters Pleads Guilty to Complaint.

A 20 dollar insufficient fund check cost an Omaha man a total of 79 dollars in Valley county court this week. Floyd Walters was arraigned before Judge Charles Cochran Wednesday morning.

He pleaded guilty to a charge of writing an insufficient fund check on September 18 to Frank Kapusta. The check, drawn on the Packers National Bank of Omaha amounted to 20 dollars.

Walters was fined 20 dollars plus 39 dollars in costs and was ordered to make the check good. Unable to raise the amount of the fine and costs immediately, Walters was confined in the county jail as the Quiz goes to press.

A minor traffic violation also occupied the judge this week. Floyd Wozniak, Jr. was arrested Thursday evening for operating a car without a driver's license.

He appeared before the judge the next day, and after pleading guilty, paid a fine of two dollars plus four dollars in costs.

Mrs. Martinson Dies Here After Long Illness

Maggie Mae Abrahams, second child of Titus and Mary Jane Abrahams, was born at Woodbine, Ia., November 28, 1882. At the age of 18, she moved with her family to Lincoln. On January 31, 1903, she was united in marriage with Fred E. Martinson, at Lincoln, where they made their home until 1911. At that time they moved to Valley County, where they have resided since.

For several years Mrs. Martinson has been in poor health, having sustained partial paralysis for some time. More recently her condition became worse. She passed away December 20 at her home in Ord, as a result of another paralytic stroke. She will be remembered as a good neighbor and devoted mother and wife.

She leaves to mourn her passing, her husband and five children: Oscar Riggins, Ida, Wilbur of Buhl, Ida, Mrs. Lila Nedbaek of Jerome, Idaho, and Martin and James and Guy S. Abrahams both of Lincoln; three grandchildren, Donald Nedbaek and Freddy and Sandra Martinson, and a host of friends.

Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Hastings-Pearson Chapel, Rev. Alton Strong of the local Presbyterian church officiated. Mrs. Luella Tolen sang two solos, accompanied at the organ by Mrs. Viola Kellison.

Deer Season Is Better Than '49

Complete returns from the six deer checking stations show that the 1950 deer season—completed Sunday, Dec. 11—was more successful than either the 1945 or 1949 hunts.

According to Lloyd P. Vance, supervisor of state game, 681 of the 1,000 special permit holders killed deer. This represents 68 percent of the hunters, eight percent more than in 1949.

The total kill exceeded the most optimistic pre-season guesses. Again, as was true in 1949, the Crawford checking station received the most deer business. When Game Commission personnel prepared to leave the Crawford station on the final day of the hunt, 240 hunters had their deer checked and weighed. The second busiest station was Gering where 107 deer were checked.

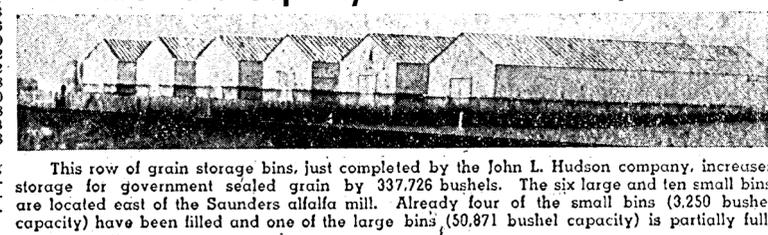

The biggest day of the hunt was Wednesday—the third day of the season—as 145 deer went through the checking stations. Eighty-nine deer were checked on opening day and 110 on the second day.

Laursen Appears in Student 'Who's Who'

Poul Laursen, who is attending Dana College at Blair, is among the five seniors who will receive recognition in the 1950-51 edition of "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges." The selection of students for this honor was made by the faculty on the basis of scholarship, cooperation and leadership in academic and extra-curricular activities, general citizenship, and their promise of future usefulness after leaving school.

Re's appraisal of real estate in Valley county made a lot of news in 1950, although the story started way back in 1949. The announcement of the findings of the appraisers created much news interest, as well as much dissatisfaction.

The fact that the findings were approximately correct did not change the fact that the people were dissatisfied, and perhaps one (Continued on page 2)

Noted Economist Predicts Increased Government Controls Foresees No Open War With Russia in '51; More 'Episodes.'

(Continued from page 1) ... 16. The burden of federal taxes, both corporate and personal, will be increased again in 1951. State and municipal taxes will remain high. ... 17. There will be an excess profits tax in 1951. These excess profits taxes will be milder than those in force during World War II; but they will be inflationary and retard efficiency, economy and incentive. ... 18. There will be heavy pressure for increased federal "sales taxes" to discourage purchasing of luxury and certain nonessential goods. Congress will see the value of some such sales taxes as an inflation road block. ... 19. States and municipalities will again be under pressure to find adequate sources of revenue. Further increases in such taxes can be looked for next year with additional cities and/or states adopting sales taxes. ... 20. Despite renewed efforts to increase the long-term capital gains tax above the present 25% figure, rates will remain unchanged. ... 21. Credit curbs will cut into the demand for automobiles and household equipment. Completions of fewer dwellings will also act as a damper on furniture sales. ... 22. Falling demand for hard goods should mean a stabilization of the public's spending for food and lower-priced soft goods. ... 23. The trend forecast in No. 22 will mean a decline in department store volume, but predict a rise in the sales of variety chains and of drug chains. ... 24. Barring new war developments, I look for continued shrinkage in our exports during 1951. Imports, however, should rise further. Total foreign trade should not be much changed, but the exporters will be on the short end of this business with the importers gaining. ... 25. It will become more difficult to convince Congress that additional heavy credits should be granted abroad except for war supplies. ... 26. As was the case this year, many domestic manufacturers will feel increasing competition from foreign merchandise. Increased tariff protection will be heard again in the land. ... 27. Business and financial forecasts for next year are NOT based on the thought that World War III will start in 1951. Russia is certainly heading for war, but we do not believe she now wants it in Europe. She will be satisfied to have her satellites continue taking unexpected jobs at us, while the Politburo boys hand out the soothing syrup. But we may see another episode like "Korea" in 1951. ... 28. The first half of 1951 may actually see a budget surplus as a result of high National Income and increased taxation. Later, if Congress goes along with the administration's plans for huge rearmament, a federal deficit will arise during the last half of the year. ... 29. As a result of the preceding prediction, money supplies should not begin to rise until after business has turned down. Increases at such a time are not likely to have much effect on prices. ... 30. Government bonds will be held tightly between the floor of Federal Reserve support purchases and the ceiling of Federal Reserve anti-inflation sales. Under such conditions, price changes should be negligible. ... 31. A great deal will be heard in 1951 about giving the Federal Reserve Board powerful controls over member bank loaning policies. Congress is not likely to pass such controls, however, unless commodity prices go a lot higher, or World War III comes. ... 32. I see nothing new to indicate that we are entering a period of improved international relations. The danger of war remains. Until it disappears, wise people will move out of large bomb-vulnerable cities and avoid having investments in such areas.

Ward Picks 'Top Ten' Stories of Past Year in Ord Satterfield Case, Weather Census, Are Spotlited.

(Continued from page 1) ... hundred people filed complaints with the board of equalization, some of them having adjustments made. Later a 20% reduction was made in the valuation of all improvements in the county, thus leaving the overall valuation about the same as before. ... All summer prospective gas users were cheered by news stories of the progress being made in bringing gas to this area by way of Loup City. Finally construction got under way, and the main was laid into Ord. Mayor F. L. Blessing lit the gas at an impressive ceremony in Ord, Sept. 15. ... Later, Oct. 20, William J. Ramsey, chairman of the Arcadia village board, performed a similar duty when the gas was turned on there. Then in November Mayor E. J. Smith of Burwell lit the gas for that town. Thus in the space of a little more than two months three towns in the immediate vicinity were given natural gas service. ... The death of three prominent men made headlines in the Quiz in two successive issues. H. D. Leggett, who had guided the destinies of the Quiz since 1918, and who had been in the newspaper field for a number of years before that time, was called to his reward July 15. ... Within a week's time two other well known men, Andy Snyder of Burwell and Frank Koupal of Ord, were called. Mr. Koupal had completed the span of a long and useful life, but Andy Snyder could have had many more years of service to his town and community, if his life had not been ended suddenly by heart failure. ... The year 1950 saw the development of the newspaper field in Ord by Dr. Glen Auble and its acceptance as a part of Ord by the city council, the extension of streets, water mains, light lines and gas mains into this new part of the city. A number of homes have been completed and are occupied, and others are nearing completion. ... While the above was important, it was not the only improving in Ord during the year. A large number of new homes were constructed all over Ord, and many more were remodeled and improved. A church has been moved into Ord and is being remodeled on its new site. ... Roger Miller, Cork Biemond, Marilyn Cook, Douglas Dale, Bill Anderson, and still another church group has bought lots in City View and will build in the spring. ... Meanwhile many business changes occurred during the year, and other businesses changed from one location to another, all of which is a sign of business development in any town. The old Milford building was razed, the basement filled and the corner beautified. Most important, the new census showed that Ord had continued to grow. ... The taking of the census was in itself one of the big news stories of the year, since it is something that occurs only once in a decade. The public interest in it was not as great as it was in some other events, since everybody knew that the rural areas would lose in population and that a like fate would be the lot of the smaller towns. ... Spice was added by the efforts of such cities as Grand Island and Hastings to round up all those who had been overlooked. Perhaps the greatest surprise was the fact that the new figures for Grand Island showed a gain of 100 people. Satisfaction was expressed when both Ord and Nebraska showed slight increases. ... The most important effect of the census here was the loss of the office of clerk of the district court after 40 years. The office had been serving a good purpose here, being sort of a clearing house for court business from adjoining counties, but it could not be continued legally when the population fell below 8,000. ... The elections, both primary and general, made the top ten in 1950. From a local angle there was plenty of competition for many county offices, and much interest was developed all over the county, especially in the offices of sheriff, county attorney, assessor and the supervisors. ... The interest began in the Ord spring election, when Otto Peckenka defeated Dr. J. W. McGinnis for council in what was considered an upset, and it continued until the last returns were in in November. There was much interest shown in the national election, and the Republican trend in congressional elections met with general satisfaction. ... For sheer drama the "Top in Our Town" contest was in a class by itself in 1950, and its culmination in the selection of Bud Shirley for the honored citizen met with general approval. What happened was well covered by the Quiz and still fresh in the minds of Quiz readers, so a longer story of it is hardly necessary here. ... Finally, the Korean war, because of its effects locally, should be given special rating. Not too much space has been given to the war itself in the Quiz, since this paper leaves national and international affairs largely to the daily papers and the broadcasters. ... The war has a local angle, however, in the induction of many local boys into the armed forces, in the reports of death and injury to men we have known, in the occasional shortage of once plentiful goods and in the impending restrictions of war.

++ Something Different ++

Ho hum, the day after Christmas. Paper, paper, crackly and sparkling and torn up stacks of boxes, string and twine and ribbon and tinsel and clutter throughout the house.

Piles of gifts laid everywhere, "Oh I show people what I got!" Fast visits from small fry, as they compare "I got," and every toy getting a fast try-out.

Demonstrations galore, as we try on bathrobes that are too big, socks that are startling, neckties... wool, wool! Glassware, pressure cookers, sausage and jelly. Cookies here and there, candy, heaps of Christmas cards! Discouraged Christmas trees.

Christmas exchanges, "if I could get it in blue."

And now... bills!

The residential lighting in Ord was never more attractive than this year, I thought. Not too elaborate, perhaps, but good and gay and sparkly.

If there was any fault to find with our city decorations, it was that they weren't up soon enough! They are delightful in the pre-Christmas season.

But certainly Christmas decorations are out of place before Thanksgiving, the way some city stores stick them up!

That is truly commercializing Christmas, most undesirable.

One fine feature of Christmas is exchanging cards with those long gone and far away. That bit of contact is splendid, and often it is the last and only communication between one-time close friends.

Particularly I like the letters, and the notes. They are so much more real than the printed cards to me. It is especially difficult to find time to send them at Christmas though. I have seriously contemplated sending this type of message to my friends on, say, the Fourth of July!

You can see the advantages. For one, we'd have more time to read them after they arrived! Not so much rustle and bustle.

How pleasant it is to get a note from someone like Thelma Partridge Teague, who vanished suddenly from our midst.

It could be so enjoyable if these Ordites so far away from us would send a good, long letter to the Quiz at least once a year, describing their new lives and locations for the rest of us to learn about.

And, we wouldn't seem so separated.

Most of our departed citizens have many friends and often relatives too, who would like to find such a newsy letter in their home newspaper. Such a general letter reaches many an old friend, and delights him... perhaps someone you forgot to put on your Christmas card list, too.

An interesting little gift came to me from Mr. and Mrs. Harley Crouch of San Benito, Texas, "only a few miles from Old Mexico," as they note.

It was a bar of candy made in Mexico, a favorite kind. We liked the taste, though we didn't know what we were eating! We guessed it was made of cactus. Or possibly of citrus peels?

Yes, I struggled with college Spanish a couple of years.

But that doesn't mean I can read what was printed on that Mexican candy box, for Heaven's sake!

Six Months Later—Booby Trap Has Been Sprung

Emporia (Kans.) Gazette

Six months have gone by, and now where are we?

Well, the Communists have again broken our battle line and our troops are again on the run.

The total number of Americans killed, wounded and captured in Korea to date make this the fourth bloodiest struggle in our nation's history—surpassing in casualties the American Revolution, the War of 1812, the Mexican War and the Spanish-American War.

And the goal of it all? Well, it seems there should be free elections in Korea. But why did we take up the value of free elections so late? Why, when we were powerful, did we not insist on free elections in Poland, in Hungary, in Romania, in Yugoslavia, in Czechoslovakia, in East Germany, and in the Baltic states? Why did we sit stupidly by while Communist terror strangled freedom in all this vast, rich, civilized area and then, having stripped ourselves of arms, why do we suddenly begin to shriek for a free election in Korea, a backward country which, in all its three thousand years of history, never has had free elections nor seemed particularly to miss them?

But you forget political considerations. Last spring Republican Senator Joseph McCarthy had aired his charges against Owen Lattimore, including a number of which Dr. Lattimore was probably innocent. The narrative of St. Owen of Lattimore was declared politically pure and ideologically virginal by Mijard Tydings and the other Senate Democrats and promptly sat down to write his "Ordeal by Slander." But the country was uneasy. For obviously much had been smothered under whitewash or suppressed, including the smelly Amerasia case.

So the White House was perturbed because St. Owen's public beatification and noisy canonization might have a backwash in the fall elections, and put the control of Congress in doubt.

At this moment there came what seemed to be from the political standpoint, the Heaven-sent opportunity of Korea. It promised to be a quick, popular little war against a weak enemy, and in behalf of the true, the beauty and the good. The unbearable vulgarities of Joe McCarthy would be drowned out by bugle and drum. Who then would dare say the Truman Administration was not firmly anti-Communist? And so into Korea were sent not Dr. Lattimore, not Dean Acheson—but the little American draftees from Japan. The fraillies of our statesmen were to be glossed over by the blood (in modest quantities) of our sons.

We are therefore now at war in Asia, and furthermore, our outnumbered soldiers are now high-tailing it down the valley of Korea in the most humiliating spectacle the American flag has ever flapped over since the Battle of Bull Run! How did we get into it? Somewhere in the bookcase you surely must have a copy of that half-forgotten document, The Constitution of the United States. Pull it out and in the fine type you will find that the Congress and only the Congress "shall have power to declare war and make peace."

But don't be old-fashioned. That cumbersome contraption of representative government was set up by those old fudd-duddies, our founding fathers. A Congressional debate on whether or not to go into Korea would have meant weeks of delay; in the end, Congress might have decided to stay out altogether! In these swift, modern times, after a rag-tag and bob-tail Supreme Court has made a joke of the Constitution, no one thinks of Congress, but looks instead for dynamic, flashy showmanship from the White House. And remember also that, in the crisis of last June, time was of the essence; it was important that without delay we instantly and immediately dive head foremost into the gaping mouth of that Oriental meatgrinder. Because that lovable old character, Marshal Stalin, was waiting patiently to turn the crank any delay would definitely inconvenience him and Russians are, as our leaders have cautioned us, inclined to be irritable and suspicious, and to misunderstand our motives.

Readers of this column will remember that the Gazette was in favor of standing up to Stalin as early as five years ago when our truly magnificent armies were still intact, and when Harry S. Truman was a happy fellow-traveler who had not yet discovered the horrid Soviet menace. In view of this fact the writer presumes now to list five guide posts to a future American foreign policy. These are:

(1) Since we are now pitifully weak, we should for the moment avoid hopping carelessly into wars which we cannot hope to win.

(2) We should not concentrate all our forces in one distant isolated spot. Almost everything we have is now packed into Korea; if hell should break out in Europe, we have left only the Eighty-second Airborne Division to put between Stalin's three hundred divisions and the Atlantic Ocean.

(3) We should avoid wars to capture regions which are strategically worthless and which, if we won them, would be a future liability.

(4) When we are losing a war in a distant area, we should not be offended when a near-by ally offers help. (Stalin is winning this Korean war without the loss of a single Russian life, whereas Dean Acheson virtuously turned down Chiang Kai-shek's offer to send 200 thousand anti-Communist Chinese fighting men into Korea; Mr. Acheson felt this might offend those peace-loving agrarian reformers, the Chinese Communists.)

(5) Until we are stronger (should Moscow allow us the time to get stronger) we should try to cut to a bare minimum the number of wars we enter solely to win local American elections.

The writer feels that we are now entering a period of terrible stress, in which, if this nation and all Christendom are to survive, we will need the same steady wisdom, solid character and firm courage that our people had in Lincoln's day. As a babby, rich and stupid nation we cannot hope to survive. We can no longer continue fat, dumb and happy, babbling that this is the Century of the Common Man, electing to high office any grinning dummy who will pledge himself to bribe us with paper dollar subsidies paid out of our own public treasury, stupidly believing that if the Kremlin cannot be appeased, then it can be quickly licked in a bloodless, push-button war.

If we are to come through the next grim half of this Twentieth Century still a republic of free people we will need all of our courage and brains. We cannot hope to survive the storm with a government which is by the nincompoops, of the bird-brains, and for the greedy dim-wits! Because of its follies such a government will surely and deservedly perish from the earth, and all the sane and all the brave will be crunched in the wreckage of its crash.

Kebby's Comments

If you need us New Year's Day, you will find us at the radio, listening to the Sugar Bowl game between Oklahoma and Kentucky. The broadcast will be heard over KMMJ beginning at 1:30. Our favorite sportscaster (since Tip Saggau quit the business), Harry Wiener, will be at the mike.

A smart boxer, when he begins to lose the old snap and starts to lose one bout after another, hangs up his gloves and opens a restaurant. A wise ball player, when he feels the elastic going out of his throwing arm, starts to look for a job in a sporting goods store. A tennis player, when his smash and lob begin to look like the same stroke, hangs his racket above the fireplace and goes into the insurance business.

We're going to cut up the cards of our canasta deck into cute little dolls and take up the study of Sanskrit.

The heck with it.

Our canasta career was short. Two evenings, to be exact. There's a limit to human endurance, and we reached that limit when our opponents put down the four red threes, not once, but four times in two games.

In the eight or ten games we played in our career, we were on the losing side every time. And indications are that we'd keep on losing if we'd play eight or ten thousand more games.

Somehow, the more scientifically we play, the more blind luck the other side has.

Oh well, we can always console ourselves with the thought that canasta is not all of life by any means. Only about 99 per cent.

Our friend Joe says he knows one of the sweater girls that we mention from time to time. She's a lumberman's daughter and her limbs are oke.

Here's wishing all of you a Happy and Prosperous New Year!

Wishing you much joy, HEALTH and HAPPINESS throughout the coming year!

Free From War.

The world at the time of the coming of Christ was singularly free from war, in fact as free as this old world ever gets. It was a most appropriate time for the coming of the Prince of Peace. It was and rumors of wars are any criterion, we are a long way from the second coming of Christ today. Since the time of Christ the world has been divided into two warring camps, the followers of Christ on one side and the forces of evil on the other. Sometimes it has seemed that the cause of Christianity could not survive, especially during the Dark Ages, but right has always triumphed. Furthermore, the cause of right will always triumph. The outlook today is perhaps as gloomy as it has been in 1600 years, and it will get worse before it gets better. There will be wars and rumors of wars until the end of time, we are told, and we are also assured that the right will conquer in the end. The forces of communism are mighty today and may grow still more in strength. But such an organization is rotten at the core and in time will fall from within unless it is crushed from without before that time arrives. Right cannot be destroyed and evil in time will fall of its own weight.

The Liquor Business.

At the recent election the people rejected, by not too large a majority, the one cent extra gas tax and the increased tax on auto licenses. It is not the purpose here to question the wisdom of the people, who have spoken. However, the fact remains that the new legislature is faced with the problem of providing revenue to take the place of that lost in the rejection of these laws. Various ideas have been advanced, but it seems to us that the best of these is that brought out recently by our own senator, Hugh Carson, when he suggested that the state take over the wholesale liquor business, a move which would bring in approximately seven million dollars to the state exchequer. Some have expressed themselves as opposed to the state going into the liquor business, but the fact is that the state is in the liquor business now, without being paid for it. We have the state liquor commission, which has to be maintained for control of the business, but the state derives no revenue from it. From the state's point of view there is no question but that every body would benefit if the revenue from the wholesale liquor business went into the state treasury. The retail liquor business would remain just as it is now, with local men buying their supply from the state instead of the present wholesalers.

From the wholesalers' point of view, such a law would be a calamity. The proposition is that seven firms, all located in Omaha, handle the entire wholesale business for the state of Nebraska. Since this is $7,000,000, it means that each of these firms averages one million dollars profit a year. It is not the object of the liquor law to make a few millionaires, but that is what it is doing. It seems that we must have liquor. Therefore, since it is here and must be controlled, why not have the law changed so the state can get some benefit from it?

New Law Unfair.

Whether it was intended to be so or not, the new social security law is unfair, and should be amended. The old law allowed persons drawing benefits to work an unlimited amount in any work not covered by social security, and not to exceed $14.99 in any work covered by social security.

The new law broadened this, permitting a person to still draw his monthly payments and at the same time work in employment covered by social security, so long as the amount he drew from such employment does not exceed $50 for any one month, and no restrictions on the amount of work he social security.

The joker is that practically every line of human endeavor is covered under the new law, from one angle or another, the chief angle being self-employment. The most average person can draw, outside his social security payments, under the new law would not exceed $50.

Let us examine a sample case. A man owns his own home. He is nearing 70 years of age. He retired from all work covered by social security some time ago, and he has been drawing in the neighborhood of $25 from social security. At the same time he has averaged $125 a month in work not covered by social security. This makes $150 per month he has coming in, and he and his family can manage to get by on this amount. It costs him about $100 per month to live, and the extra $50 will take care of the $100 taxes, $200 fuel bill, and the lights, insurance, upkeep and other expenses that go with owning a home. Under the new law this man draws around $45 per month in social security payments, and is permitted to work in work covered by the law not to exceed $50 per month. Of course he can work as much as he wants to in work not covered by the law. The trouble is, just about all work is now covered.

This means that he can draw up to $94 a month under the new law if he draws his social security, while under the old law he was drawing $150, and not working all the time, either. It is apparent that he cannot live as he has lived and still draw his social security, and without his social security checks he will have to go back on full time work. He has two choices. Either he can go back to work on a full time basis, or he can sell his home, move into the cheapest shack he can find, skimp in every way possible, work his $50 worth each month and draw his social security. It was not the intent of the law to work a hardship on those who are supposed to benefit from it, but the way it works out it certainly does. The proposition is that a man past 65 years should be permitted to retire to part time work and take life a little easier. In many cases he must cut down on the work he does for reasons of health.

As the law now stands it means that any man with a social security check of less than $50 per month will have to refuse to draw his checks and work full time until he is 75 years of age, after which time he may draw his social security checks, regardless of how much he earns outside of that amount. With prices as they are today no man can live, maintain a good home, pay taxes, fuel and all other expenses on $100 per month. If the law is to mean anything it should be amended so that a man could earn at least twice the amount of the social security check he draws each month without penalty. Even then he would barely be able to get by in the manner in which he is accustomed.

and was a faithful member all through his life. He was a true Christian in his everyday life. For his faithful work at home his father gave him a place in 1899, a mile south of the home place and across the line in Davis Creek. There he moved and built up a home which he hoped would be his in his old age, but this was not to be. In recent years he lived with his brother Everett and his wife. Charlie Boettger was truly a man of character, and never in his life was known to use liquor, tobacco or profanity. Yes, I have known many fine men in my time, men who attained high places in life, some of whom have become well known throughout the nation. But somehow, I think that when Charlie arrives at the gate, he will not have to knock. The door will be swinging wide for him and he will enter into the rest he so seldom took but so richly deserved.

Coming home from Ord on the bus recently I got a chance to visit with a fine young man who once went to school with our kids in Burwell, Joe Borden. I didn't know him at first, but that was to be expected. I remember him as a boy, and he is now a man. Joe went through the war in the air corps in the Pacific, got through in pretty good shape, although he nearly lost an eye. He is now on the road for the Norge company, was in Wichita but is now changing to Sioux City. His younger brother, David, was in the navy, and now holds a good position with the Timken company. Just goes to show that success is right there for the lads who will work for it. They are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. Art Borden of Burwell.

It seems that the village of North Loup owes a lot of thanks to Miss Maxine Copeland, proprietor of Maxine's Beauty Shop. She does not have to have somebody suggest to her that it would be fine to decorate her window in honor of some special occasion. She keeps track of all special occasions, and always has that window of hers appropriately decorated. The present Christmas season is no exception. She has musical notes high in the window and below them "Silent Night, Holy Night," with figures doing the singing at the bottom of the window. Others decorate, but Maxine is about the only one who decorates on each and every possible occasion. The orchid from this column goes this week to Maxine.

It is strange, but understandable, that our custom of putting up Christmas trees had its origin in pagan times. Christians long ago took the tree to represent the tree, or cross, upon which Christ was crucified, and it is only natural that gifts should come from the tree when so considered. Better take a good look at the Christmas decorations this year, and better appreciate those Christmas gifts. We can count on having such customs only so long as our present capitalistic system of government continues. Such systems as nazism, fascism, communism and other isms rule God and Christ out of the equation entirely, do not permit the celebration of Christmas, Thanksgiving, Sunday, the Sabbath or any other days observed in the name of Christ or God. The next few years will determine whether the democratic nations of the world are to survive. There is no room in the world for both Democracy and Communism.

Our hats should be off this week to Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Hutchins of North Loup, who spent the week preceding Christmas enjoying their sixtieth wedding anniversary. They have a right to be proud of the fact that they have been able to live together in peace and harmony for so many years, and should be equally proud that they have spent all that time in the vicinity of North Loup. They differ from the movie star in Hollywood, who was going back to her old home town to help her parents celebrate their golden wedding. "Just to think," she said, "they have been married fifty years. I may not be married for fifty years, but I don't lack much of being married fifty times." Anyway, here's wishing many more years of happiness together.

Quaint old custom: The old custom of the Ord Quiz tell of a custom that prevailed here in the 1880s, in which the families of the church would save all the Christmas gifts they planned to give each other and would bring them and place them under the tree, from which Santa would call out the names of the recipients and hand out the presents. It had one fatal defect. It showed such a sharp contrast between the rich and the poor that it was abandoned within a few years in favor of the present idea of having treats for all the children with nobody getting more than anybody else. Another comical idea of those times was to print a long story about every church wedding to which a large number were invited, and to print a complete and detailed list of all the gifts received by the couple, together with the names of the people giving them. This in time became objectionable for the same reason as did the gifts at the Christmas tree. Invited guests still bring their gifts, but they give according to their ability and nobody thinks the less of those not able to give largely because their gifts do not cost as much as some of the others.

Another of my dear old friends went home last week. He went quietly, as he had always lived. He went so quietly that he had been laid to rest before I heard he was gone. Charles F. Boettger, Charlie always to his friends, has gone the way of all flesh, but his influence in the community in which he lived will last for generations to come. He was quiet and moderate in all his ways, and in his declining years he loved nothing better than to meet with old friends and talk over old times. No man was better equipped to talk over the pioneer days, for he lived in the valley almost from the time those days began. Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Boettger and their oldest children, Charlie and Lydia, came from Wisconsin and located in Mira Valley in 1874, when Charlie was three years old. In after years he could recall sitting in the wagon and seeing the sun set in the west ahead of them each evening, and wondering if they would reach their destination the next day.

The Boettgers had a few neighbors that year. There were the N. G. Clements, the R. T. and T. C. Honnolds and their sister, Amanda J. Honnold, who two years later became Mrs. A. Ward. The first home of the Boettgers was in a sod house some forty rods east of the present home, which was built in 1881, one of the first, as well as the best, frame houses in the valley. The first school ever held in Dist. No. 9 was held in the Boettger sod house, and Mary Clement, wife of N. G. Clement and grandmother of Clara and George Clement, was the first teacher. Charlie and Lydia Boettger were two of the first four pupils, and Charlie is the last living who attended that first school. The first school house of Dist. 9 was built on the southeast corner of the Clement place and in 1890 it was moved to its present location.

Charlie Boettger lived and grew to manhood through the pioneer days, some of the toughest years this country ever knew. He worked hard all his life, with little time for pleasure, but he found time to be a good neighbor and a good churchman. He helped build the first Evangelical church in Mira Valley and also helped in the building of the present church. He joined the church at an early age.
