Emil Hrebec to Boys' State

Emil Hrebec of North Loup will be sponsored by that town's American Legion post for the thirteenth Cornhusker Boy's State which will be held under the auspices of The American Legion from June 7 to 13. As in the past, the College of Agriculture of the University of Nebraska, is the place where 300 boys will assemble in June as the citizens of this mythical 40th state. To be eligible for Boys' State, a boy must be in the upper half of his class scholastically, must stand well in school citizenship, must have leadership qualities and must be in good health. Emil is a junior in the North Loup high school. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Hrebec.

State Highways in Valley County Will Get Gravel

Ord - Loup City, Arcadia, North Loup, Roads Listed.

Maintenance gravel will be placed on two state highways within the county this summer, according to a call for bids made by the state highway department today.

On the Arcadia-North Loup highway, No. 56, bids have been asked for 3,500 cubic yards of gravel.

On highway No. 58, between Loup City and Ord, 2,510 cubic yards of gravel will be placed.

Bids will be let at a March 26 meeting of highway department officials.

Other projects scheduled for the same letting include resurfacing of the highway between St. Paul and St. Libory.

McMindes to Korea

FAR EAST—It's back to Korean waters for Gerald L. McMindes, fireman, USS, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lores R. McMindes of Ord, Nebr., after a good while cruise aboard the heavy cruiser USS Rochester to the southeast Asia ports of Saigon, Viet-Nam, and Manila, Republic of the Philippines.

Saigon, known as the "Paris of the Orient", is noted for its many sidewalk cafes typical of France; numerous shops and stores; both French and Vietnamese, and sidewalk stands selling everything from silks to magazines.

In the Philippines, the crew had an opportunity to visit the Old Walled City and the partially completed site of the 1953 International Fair to be opened in Manila this spring.

Costa Ricans Call Ord 'Home,' Describe Life in Their Native Country

It is a big transition from being a girl in Cartago, Costa Rica, Central America, to being a wife of a doctor in Ord, Nebr., especially in the midst of a snowy winter. But, and it is a pleasure to say it, Mrs. Carlos Uribe, nee Flora Pacheco, says "This is my home."

And it was pleasant to call on the lady on Thursday, in the apartment in the Sack home, where she with her husband, technician in the Ord hospital, and their seven-month-old baby, Martha Inez, live. The family is even more complete with the coming of the first of February, Mrs. Uribe's mother, tiny, petite Maria Teresa Alfara de Pacheco, who is visiting her daughter.

Life in Costa Rica, so says Mrs. Uribe, is not too much different in some ways. There is nursery school which she attended in the convent, until she was seven years old. Later she attended the grammar school and finally the high school. The grades are similar to those in the states, and are divided in practically the same way, the Chamber Makes Preliminary Plans for Pancake Day

March 18 Is Date for Annual Events, Ads in Next Week's Quiz.

Preliminary plans for Pancake Day, annual Ord bargain day and entertainment event, were discussed at a meeting of Chamber directors Tuesday noon.

The day's activities will start at 11 o'clock with the serving of pancakes for all, along with butter, syrup and coffee. Serving will continue throughout the day.

In the evening there will be a square dance, open to all who care to come.

Special features of Pancake day will be the bargains offered. Every business firm has been asked to make special bargains for this day, either special purchases of merchandise or marked down offers, and these will be advertised in next week's Quiz.

Another feature will be an in-store auction. Every business firm has been requested to choose one article, and buyers will be asked to make a bid. The bid is placed with the customer's name on a card and placed in a box. At the close of the day's shopping the boxes will be opened and the highest bid will get the article.

Watch next week's Quiz for further announcements concerning Pancake Day, Wednesday, March 18 in Ord.

Four-County Doctors Meet

Dr. and Mrs. C. J. Miller were hosts on Thursday evening to the members of the Four-County Doctors organization, with 12 doctors and their wives being present. Dinner was served at Harmony House, after which all went to the home of Dr. and Mrs. Miller, where the ladies were entertained at cards by Mrs. Miller. The gentlemen gathered in Dr. Miller's den where they were addressed by Dr. Henry Kammandel, a member of the faculty of the Nebraska College of Medicine, in Omaha. The doctor showed slides to illustrate his talk. A business meeting was also held.

Present were Dr. Cram and Dr. Zemple of Burwell; Dr. Markley of North Loup; Dr. Bentley of Scotia; Dr. Moss and Dr. Longenecker of Arcadia and their wives, also Dr. and Mrs. Kammandel. All of the Ord doctors were also present with their wives, Dr. Otis Miller, Dr. Martin, Dr. Barta and Dr. Lynn. Present also were Dr. and Mrs. Carlos Uribe, Ord hospital technician.

The four counties comprising the organization are Valley, Greeley, Garfield and Wheeler.

Loses Hand in Grinder

Emory George received a painful and serious injury Sunday when his right hand was severed from his arm.

Mr. George was grinding feed at his farm home, about ten miles southwest of Bartlett, when the hand was caught in the feed grinder.

Neighbors were called to his home and he was rushed to the Spalding hospital by John Stone and Frank Lawhead. After medical treatment at Spalding by Dr. Fox, he was removed to the St. Francis hospital at Grand Island by ambulance for further treatment. It was thought at first that it might be necessary to amputate part of his arm, but luckily this did not have to be done.

At the present time he is reported to be getting along well as can be expected.—Wheeler Co. Independent.

Council to Buy New Whistle for Fire Warning

Considers Quonset to House Machinery for Road Work.

Ord will have a new system of signals for fire warning if joint plans of the city council and fire department are carried to conclusion.

Consideration of a new air whistle to supplement the present siren was made at the Monday night meeting of the group with the result that Fire Chief Richard Rowland and City Engineer George Allen were instructed to present a solution. Firemen have been complaining that the present siren is inadequate—many firemen do not hear the call, and that many motorists also ignore or do not hear the warning to clear the streets for the fire truck.

In a brief, but business packed session, city dads also listened to a proposition to lease a 32x60 Quonset building, to be erected near the city light plant to house road equipment and machinery.

The city is now paying $25 a month rent and could acquire the Quonset for either $2500 cash, or by paying a $50 a month rental fee for five years.

Councilmen also decided to ask for bids for machinery to do dust treating of streets with the new oil ment. Judges and clerks of election for city election, in April, were considered and will be named at another meeting of the council scheduled for Monday, March 9.

The March 9 meeting will also be the final date for considering complaints on the proposed oil treatment district in the first ward. Interested citizens also appeared before the council to protest further consideration of parking meters.

Easter Seals to Be Sold Soon

Beginning the fore part of March, probably about March 5, the Easter Seals, which are put out by the National Society of Crippled Children and Adults, will be on sale. These seals, this year picture a single white lily, with the date, 1953, and the words "Easter Seals" on a banner near the bottom. The words, "Help Crippled Children" also appear on the seals. The flower is on a blue background.

Donation is the theme of the Easter Seal drive in Valley county. Lareda Cronk is the secretary-treasurer and Mrs. Loren Good is vice president.

Mrs. C. J. Mortensen of Ord is one of the state officials.

Corn Exhibited by FFA

Winners of first place in the farm boys' corn show at Ord high was Emanuel Sich. Ron Babcock got second prize. Third award went to Rodney Nelson. Fourth was Eldon Poota, while Eugene Cook placed fifth, and Lumir Hayek rated sixth.

The displays were judged by C. C. Dale. There were 39 entries. Next Tuesday night the Future Farmers will be the guests of the FFA girls at a chili feed.

Eight Candidates Initiated in I.O.O.F.

Eight candidates have been initiated into the IOOF lodge the past two months. They include: Vernon Van Slyke, Donald Patrick, Warren Philbrick, Carl Kroeger, Wayne Ingram, Elwin E. Johnson, Dale Philbrick and Glen D. Cachran.

Thursday evening the lodge will confer the second degree and an oyster supper will be served.

Osentowski in Broken Bow

Department of Nebraska Commissioner Dr. F. J. Osentowski was in Broken Bow Thursday evening where he spoke at the regular meeting of the W.F.W., and inducted new members.

County to 'Spot Check' Personal Tax Schedules

New Assessment Laws Set New Price 'Of 50% of Values.'

The Valley county board of supervisors decided Tuesday that they would make a "spot check" of one in twenty returns made this year to determine accuracy of personal tax schedules.

Tax assessing figures are still in doubt this year with no passage as yet, of legislative bills setting a new schedule. Most county assessors are of the opinion the legislature passed LB 273 setting assessment figures at 50% of actual value.

Last Friday, in Grand Island, assessors from 25 counties, including Henry Stara of Valley, recommended that Nebraska assessors use the following schedule if LB 272 is approved.

Pure bred cattle — Calves up to 6 months, $40; 6 to 18 months, $110; steers 18 to 30 months, $150; milk cows, $250; stock cows, $170; bulls, $300.

Grade cattle — Calves up to 6 months, $30; 6 to 18 months, $90; steers 18 to 30 months, $130; heifers 18 to 30 months, $110; stock cows, $140; milk cows, $220; cattle on feed, average weight, market value less market cost; bulls, $250.

Hogs—Butchers and sows, average weight, market value less market cost.

Sheep—Ewes and rams, $20; feeder lambs and sheep on feed, market value less market cost.

Ord High Students Present Musical Comedy 'Belle of the West' Tuesday

Music students of Ord high school will present the musical comedy, "Belle of the West" next Tuesday night at the high school auditorium. Curtain time is 8 p. m.

Tickets will be sold only at the door this year, with no reserved seats. Receipts will be used to defray expenses of the district music contest in Kearney in April.

The story is centered around a hotel owned by Speedy Summers of Roarin' Creek, Idaho. The time is about the year 1890. The plot concerns the struggle of some jealous women who try their best to be attractive to their boy friends as this "new lady-barber" who has come to town. Ida Brown, the barber, is the most beautiful woman to ever "hit Roarin' Creek" and the men are completely captivated by her charm. The circumstances are quite hilarious to every one.

Shadelite Marquee Convention Sunday

A convention of the distributors and stockholders of the Shadelite Marquee Company, Inc., was held in Lincoln March 1st. Following registration in the morning the group met for luncheon at the Lindell hotel.

The afternoon session included short talks on the "History of Shadelite Marquee" by Glen D. Auble and the "Future of Shadelite Marquee" by A. J. Auble.

The principal speaker of the day was Dr. Arthur G. Auble, professor of Economics at Northwestern University, who spoke on "Business Forecasting" along building and industrial lines. This one followed by a period of open discussion.

The speaker for the evening was Gee F. Tripp, Architect of Hutchinson, Kan., and a film of aluminum materials and products was provided by Kaiser Aluminum Co.

Monday morning a riveting demonstration was presented by J. M. Seymour.

There were about sixty in attendance including all of the Jay Auble and Glen Auble families, and distributors from Duluth, Minn.; Newton, Kan.; Phoenix, Ariz.; Milwaukee, Wis.; Rapid City, S. D.; Lincoln, Neb.; Denver, Colo.; McCook, Neb.; Rochester, Minn.; Richmond, Calif.; Davenport, Ia.; Oklahoma City, Okla.; Omaha, Neb.; Berkeley, Calif. There were other prospective distributors and visitors.

The entire group was quite optimistic because aluminum rationing will cease June 30, and the future looks very encouraging.

Boy Scout Fund Drive

The several men who went out to solicit funds for the Boy Scout drive last Wednesday, did a fine job and the full amount of $735.50 was raised. The quota for Ord was $840.

Arthur Jefferies, auditor, who received the funds, says that the total prospect list was 320 people. Of these, 289 were actually contacted and 277 contributed to the fund. The total not contacted was 31.

It was interesting to note that only 12, or less than 5% failed to give when asked.

The Rotarians and other workers wish to thank all those who gave, and helped in any way to make the drive the success they feel it was.

Assessors to Start March 10

Tuesday, March 10 is the date for starting the listing of personal property for assessment.

County Assessor Henry Stara has appointed deputy assessors in Ord, E. O. Haeckel and Rudolph Krahl, in North Loup, Clifford Clark and in Arcadia, H. M. Brandenburg.

The responsibility for filing personal property for taxation is with the tax payer.

Assessments must be completed before April 20.

Car Caught Fire

The fire department was called to the Frank Polinowski home Monday, when Mr. Polinowski discovered his car to be on fire. The blaze, however, was put out before the fire trucks arrived. The car was not damaged.

Sugar Beet Meeting Not Well Attended

Apparently there is not a lot of interest in sugar beet growing among irrigators of this vicinity as only about a dozen farmers turned out for the meeting at the K. C. hall last week. Those who did attend heard an interesting discussion by Mr. Winkhoff and Mr. McLeay of the American Crystal Sugar Co. Mr. McLeay discussed the importance of growing beets in rotation with other crops including frequent use of alfalfa and sweet clover in the rotation. Mr. Winkhoff showed colored slides illustrating his discussion of cultural methods for beets and the use of modern equipment such as mechanical thinners and harvesters and the latest type cultivators. Questions from the audience indicated that several of the farmers present were interested in the crop, and might be willing to grow some beets if enough acreage could be secured to cut down the individual investment in the needed machinery.

Younger Boys May Be Called

According to Col. Frank B. O'Connell of the State Selective Service it may be necessary to take 19 year old boys to meet the draft quota in the state during the next few months. John R. Sullivan of the local board, which he serves as clerk, says that no such notice has come to him as yet. The Valley county quota is eight for the month of March. The quota for the state for the same month is 530.

According to Mr. O'Connell there may be more 20-year-olds available when the spring term of school ends, but some 19-year-olds may be called until that time.

Dr. M. D. Bahensky Bags 105 Coyotes

Dr. M. D. Bahensky has had another big year hunting coyotes with his Piper Cub.

During the past season he has collected 105 scalps, and thinks more are to come.

With a partner to do the shooting Dr. Bahensky sights the animals from the air, and swoops down a few feet off the ground to make the kill.

His best day has been 18 coyotes. His son, Ronnie, or Hans DeVry, or Martin Helzer, or some other friend, have bagged most of the animals.

The scalps are worth $2.50 a piece—or well over $250 for the season to date. In the past he has donated most of the scalp money to the hospital, but now plans to give it to other charities.

The flying vet says best coyote hunting is up around Wolbach, though he has also done a lot of hunting just north of his place about 7 miles east of St. Paul—St. Paul Phonograph.

Western League to Have Try-Out Camp in Ord

The Lincoln, Nebraska office of the Western League will use Ord for a two-day tryout camp sometime in June or July.

The baseball feature was announced Monday by Mayor F. L. Blessing, who has been in communication with league authorities.

Plans for the camp involve the bringing-in of young baseball aspirants from surrounding territories to be "looked over" by league scouts. At the same time a school of instruction will be held for the youngsters.

Salvation Army Fund Drive Starts This Week

Charles Wrightsman, C. J. Mortensen, Head Local Part of Drive.

It was announced today by the Salvation Army local Service Unit Committee, of which Charles Wrightsman is chairman and C. J. Mortensen is treasurer, that the annual appeal for funds for local and regional welfare needs was being launched. Special letters will be mailed to local citizens requesting contributions to be mailed to the treasurer, Mr. Mortensen.

On the completion of the campaign, a portion of the money raised will be added to the local fund which is administered by the local committee in providing a program of health, welfare, and cultural activities. Such needs as clothing for school children, dental, optical and medical assistance, and family welfare needs of all kinds will come within the scope of the local program.

Other local committees cooperating with and sponsoring the Service Unit in Ord are: Mrs. H. D. Leggett, Ralph W. Norman, C. E. Rumsissell and F. L. Stoddard.

The committee for Arcadia is: Harold D. Weddel, chairman; C. W. Starr, treasurer and F. H. Christ.

For North Loup is: H. L. Gillespie, chairman, Ray Hill, treasurer and R. W. Hudson.

For Ericson is: Frank W. Pierce, chairman, C. F. Foster, treasurer and Howard F. Nutting.

Fifty Turn Out for Caucus; New Faces for Boards

More than fifty persons turned out for annual caucus of the Ord Good Government and Ord Citizens Party Tuesday night, and caucus of voters of the school district, one of the largest crowds in many years.

As a result two new names will "meet Ord voters when they go to the polls in April. Dean Misko, young Ord business man, will replace Ralph Norman, long time board secretary, on the board of education.

Dr. Dale Karre, veterinary, is a candidate for city council from the third ward, replacing another veterinarian of the boards, Gus Schoenstein. Both Schoenstein and Norman had indicated to voters that they did not wish to serve another term.

Orin Kellison, incumbent, was nominated to succeed himself on the board of education.

In the second ward, voters re-nominated Howard Huff for the city council, and in the first ward, gave the nod to John Wozab, incumbent appointee.

Both political parties nominated the same candidates.

$25,000 School Bond Election at Boelus

Boelus will have a special election Thursday, March 19, to vote on a $25,000 bond issue for an addition to the school building there. A majority of 55% is necessary in order for the bond issue to be approved.

If the proposition carries, a new gymnasium will be added to the school there.

During the past year, other towns in Howard county have had school bond elections. They carried at St. Paul and Cotesfield, and failed at Cushing.

To Get New Fire Truck

St. Paul is to get soon, a new $13,000 fire truck, which will be located there to serve a four county Civil Defense area, Howard, Sherman, Merrick and Nance counties. It will also be available for local use. In exchange the St. Paul fire department will train 1,000 volunteer firemen for civil defense emergency.

Returned from Army

Pfc. Willard Stowell, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Stowell returned home Friday evening. He has been stationed in Yokohama, Japan, in the Ordinance Division of the United States Army, and has been overseas for two years. He has received his discharge, but his future plans have not been made as yet.

Fined for Intoxication

Charles Fleeter and Ben Skala were turned over to County Judge Ellsworth Ball on Feb. 19 by Harry Clement and Sheriff V. J. Beran on charges of intoxication on Feb. 18. Both were fined $10 and assessed the costs of $7.10.

Mona Paulee, lovely mezzo-soprano, will be the artist Friday night, March 8 in the second program of this season's Community Concert series.

Weather permitting, the singer and her accompanist-husband, Dean Holt, plan to fly in for this concert engagement in their private plane.

The concert is open to holders of membership cards in the Loup Valley Community Concert Association, and will begin at 8:30.

Parking Meters Enliven Council Meeting; Start Wave of Arguments Around Square

The question of parking meters, a new type of one armed bandit that is apparently legal, started a wave of discussion around Ord this week, and gave spice to Monday night's council meeting.

The advantages of parking meters had previously been presented to the council by H. B. Zelen, representative of a Chicago manufacturing company. City dads took no action at the time.

Monday evening, around 20 Ord business men showed up at council meeting to protest any further consideration of parking meters, by "coincidence," Zelen was also there to present the matter again to the council.

Ed Swopes led arguments against meters, stating that meters would not create another parking space, but merely aggravate what was already a crowded situation. He suggested the city dads look around for a solution to provide more parking areas rather than install meters in existing areas.

George Hastings, council member, said that he had been advised by several residents on the streets affected, that a few more blocks of wide paving would be welcomed, so that diagonal parking could be accomplished within a block of the square. The project outlined included seven blocks, N street from Highway 11 to 17th, thence north three blocks to K street and east one block to 16th. The construction would add about 200 to 300 parking spaces "high and dry."

In conversation with those present at the meeting, Zelen said that the city will also have a like amount in the cost of the meters, and that they become the property of the city.

"You can easily see," he said, "that in the 18 months to two years it takes to pay the meters, that the city will also have a like amount in the cost of the meters, and that they become the property of the city."

Zelen said that the meters would cost $69.50 each and that 450 would be the recommended installation for Ord. Total cost would be (Continued on page 5)

Red Cross Drive Opens This Week; $1800 Requested

The annual Valley county drive for Red Cross funds began this week under the direction of Rev. Keith A. Shepherd.

A quota of $1800 has been set for the county, $200 more than the drive raised last year, which was over subscribed.

Assisting Shepherd will be Mrs. Baird of Arcadia, and Dell Barber of North Loup. School teachers in rural districts will be in charge of the drive in their areas.

In Ord, Mrs. Dale Karre is captain of the third ward and Mrs. Wm. Treptow will be second ward captain. Shepherd will personally conduct the drive in the first ward.

The drive will continue through the month of March, according to Mrs. Leo Long, chairman of the county Red Cross chapter.

Costa Ricans Call Ord 'Home,' Describe Life in Their Native Country

Back to Costa Rica again in 1950, she and her Carlos had decided to marry, where after some other travels, and other experiences, the rites were said in Denver, Colo., in October, 1951.

Their baby was born in North Platte, Nebr., where Dr. Uribe was a hospital technician, which position he left, when the family came to Ord.

Mrs. Uribe's family at one time had a banana plantation, which was operated under the auspices of the United States Friuts Co. Now her father is engaged in other business. She has a sister who she hopes will be able to come to America soon, and two brothers, one a teacher in Ecuador, South America, and another who is working for the government in Costa Rica.

Her home was all one floor and was built about a court. Here are found all manner of flowers, and growing things, among them being especially liked to play basketball and to swim. She swam in the river, mostly, but her home was not too far from both the Atlantic and the Pacific Oceans, and the young folks would swim in both. She enjoyed the Pacific Ocean better, since she says, it was just that, pacific.

Much of the work in her home was done by servants, and she tells of her struggles in learning how to use one of the American washing machines, and how to cook. She says that being along with her now, and does her own work with greater ease.

Times have changed greatly in Costa Rica, one of the greatest changes being experienced by the women. For a few years after her country, and the regular citizens, were not allowed to vote. They got to vote now, but she had left the country before that opportunity was given.

Another change is the way the family observes Christmas. It is only recently that the Christmas trees have been used. Formerly a Holy Manger was used. However, there is no Santa Claus in Costa Rica, but always the Holy Baby gives the presents.

The Spanish language is spoken entirely, and the regular citizens can speak no English. She understands it however, and by signs can make herself understood.

A glance at Mrs. Uribe's report card shows the many things taught in her school, languages, sewing, religion, and the regular mathematics at the church services.

Easter is observed much the same as here, as there are many church services. On Christmas there are several services, also. Women wear their graceful mantillas at the church services.

Food is cheaper in her home than here, especially meat. She thinks that beef is much too high. Vegetables are enjoyed in her other home, and much coffee and chocolate, also cheese.

One of the favorite vegetables are a tiny black bean, which she says is prepared much as we do beans in this country. They also have a larger brown bean which they like. There is also much rice eaten.

One of the particular foods enjoyed at Christmas time has for its foundation a sort of pumpkin, though like nothing that the United States produces. This is fixed with brown sugar and is a confection.

Another food she likes are small circles made of dough fashioned from corn. These, she says are used as crackers in stews.

When her mother came to the United States, she brought so many things, that she feared for a time that she would not be able to get through the customs, but she did.

Among the articles were some lovely blouses, all hand made in the daintiest of yellow, pink and white. The beauty of these, however, is the exquisite embroidery on each. There were also some

Good Natured Fool

By R. H. WILKINSON

NO ONE denied that the Max Jordans were a model couple. Before marriage both had been popular, well-liked. Max was admired for his good nature, his kind and chivalrous manner, his ambition and ability to get ahead. Sylvia was envied for her good looks, admired for her sense of humor, her vivaciousness. They were ideally suited.

3-Minute Fiction

In the spring of the second year the Village Welfare society held a charity ball. As a feature attraction they advertised a beauty contest. Friends of Sylvia urged her to enter it. But Sylvia was doubtful. She was a married lady now.

"Bosh!" said Max. "Go ahead and enter."

So Sylvia entered the contest—in the interest of charity. No one disputed the decision of the judges when she was awarded first prize. Nor was anyone surprised when, two weeks later, she was asked to join a statewide contest in Mendere. The idea excited her, but of course she refused.

"Tut! Tut!" declared the good-natured Max. "Go down there and show them what a really beautiful girl looks like."

And Sylvia, who was really quite thrilled, went down to Mendere, and came home with the winning cup and the announcement that, as winner, she was expected to join the Grand Eastern contest. The winner of the Grand Eastern would go to Hollywood.

"But of course I'd never think of entering it," she told her husband, her eyes shining.

The townspeople gave Sylvia a great send-off.

"Oh, you wouldn't?" Max grinned. "Here we have a chance to bring laurels to the family and you pass it up. O. K." He struggled with elaborate indifference.

And so Sylvia entered the Great Eastern, and won. The papers played up the victory in great shape, and every one wondered if she'd go to Hollywood.

"I couldn't do that," she told Max breathlessly. "Why, I'd have to be away from you for weeks."

"I'll manage," Max told her good naturedly. "If I get too lonesome I'll take two weeks and come out for a visit. Go ahead if you want."

He continued to think how swell it was for almost a week. Then he found that his socks needed darning and restaurant food wasn't agreeing with him and he was mighty lonesome.

The next day he met Elsie Parker on the street and asked her to have dinner with him. It seemed good to have someone to talk to.

Three nights later Elsie called up. "I've a letter from Sylvia," she said. "Would you care to see it?"

Max went over to Elsie's house and found her alone. He read the letter. Elsie said: "She's enjoying herself. She's having a grand time. She's met a lot of interesting people."

"I wonder who this guy Ted Thornton is?" Max asked, frowning over the letter.

Elsie looked at him. "Max, you're a fool! A lovable, good natured fool. If you had any sense you'd go out there to Hollywood and bring back your wife."

"Bosh!" said Max. "Sylvia and I aren't children."

But he thought about it a good deal. He loved Sylvia.

A month later the blow fell. After all, Max, darling, Sylvia wrote, "we could never continue to be happy together when our interests are so far apart. . . . I hope when my lawyer gets in touch with you. . . ."

The next day Max had a letter from Sylvia's lawyer. He answered it at once, agreeing to everything. He wrote to Sylvia also. He told her that he wanted her to be happy. "Even," he wrote, "Elsie Parker seems to think that you're right."

Max spent the next week wishing he were dead. In fact, he was actually contemplating the best means of suicide when Sylvia rushed in on him.

"Darling! Forgive me. It was all a mistake. I should have known better. I was a little idiot. Please take me back and don't ever let me go again."

"That," said the agreeable Max, "suits me fine." He kissed her, delicious with joy but wondering how it had happened. Sylvia said: "Is Elsie—have you—I mean—"

Max answered the frantic look in her eyes by kissing her again. Bless Elsie Parker, he thought.

"MASTER, I'm gonna get married. Me, a guy of forty-two. I gotta tell someone. Want to hear about it?"

"I was waiting for someone when this guy sits on the park bench beside me and starts talking. He'd singled me out from the others in the park and I didn't want to disappoint him."

I nodded my head. After all, I had some time to kill and I don't like to wait alone.

"I'm listening," I told him. "Tell me about it."

"I got a radio shop," he began. "Buy, sell and repair. I'm getting married tonight. Forty-two years old and I'm getting married. She's forty, but she looks thirty. Real black hair and dark eyes. She's a wonderful cook; no food in L. A. like it."

I looked at his stocky form and the graying hairs of his round, bare head. I said something about love.

"Love, you say? How old are you?" About thirty, I bet. In ten years you won't be like that. Things change. She and I had plenty of love when we were young. But we didn't have much money. I got a job helping an electrician. It took me years to get a shop of my own. Now I got money, all kinds of business."

He was silent for a moment, squinting at his watch, trying to see the hands with his red eyes. They were tired and strained from delving into thousands of radios. I wondered what kind of woman would marry this little red eyed man who was fast losing his hair.

"During the war," he continued, "people had all kinds of radios to get fixed. I used to work night and day, saving my money to get married. I hired two kids; they had "SAM'S RADIOS" sewed on the backs of their overalls. They used to make deliveries and stuff. Maybe you saw them down on First street. Just off of Figueroa. I was always in the shop, working constantly because people couldn't get new radios. I never had time to come to the park."

HE PAUSED to look at his watch and I tried to remember where I had heard "Sam's Radios" before. It stuck in my mind. But I couldn't remember at the moment.

"While I'm busy fixing radios with no time to come to the park or anything a guy starts rushing Lena. Lena Raello is her name, the woman I'm going to marry. We—"

The name struck me and I missed a few sentences.

He went right on talking. "—and all the while he was taking her out. To the park in the movies, the beach and all the places I was too busy to take her. They met here in the park almost every day. He was swell to her."

He paused. I waited quietly. I wanted to know what he really had on his mind.

"His name was Harry. Lena liked him because he was so much fun. I never had the time to spare; Harry was good to her. She said, 'Yes, Sam, I'll marry you.' But she'd have to break the news to Harry first. She told me who he was and all about it. He was a pretty good guy and she wanted to break it to him easy."

I didn't look at him but focused on a woman coming across the park. He glanced at me and went on talking, as though he knew I was clutching at every word.

"She was supposed to meet him and tell him, this afternoon. I closed the shop, because tonight we get married, and came over to the park to find this guy. I had to tell someone about getting married and all. Lena said Harry is a nice guy."

"He used to take her—", he broke off as he saw the woman I had been watching. She had seen us and halted. Her hair was black and even from a distance I could see her eyes glisten wet. Sam stood up and took a step, then he turned to me.

"It's Lena," he said. "She didn't expect to see me. I better go meet her, it's better that way. Thanks for listening to me."

I sighed in relief.

I said, "So long. Congratulations."

He glanced over his shoulder. "Thanks," he said, "Goodbye, Harry."

To Cherish

By Richard Wilson

THEY HAD been friends since childhood. James was two years older than Betty; in their play he was always the leader. It remained so when they reached maturity. She looked up to him, depended on him, trusted him. But she never refused his challenge.

When they were children he resented this. Girls were not supposed to be as agile or as physically adept as men. Betty never suspected his resentment. As they grew older it gave way to a certain grudging respect; later to frank admiration. He came to understand her purpose: She loved the things he loved, she loved him, she felt that winning and maintaining his respect was the first step toward winning his devotion.

Without ever mentioning it a perfect understanding and contentment came to exist between them.

Following graduation James entered a brokerage office. Two summers later he joined his family at Granite Beach where they were spending July and August. Betty's folks lived in the next cottage and Betty was the only one there.

There came a day in late August when they sat together on the beach and watched the westering sun dip toward the horizon. Suddenly James sat upright.

"Look," he said, "let's swim across the bay to the headland, cut through the vacant lot and ride home with Dad from the golf club."

There was a challenge in his voice. For an instant Betty hesitated. Few there were who had the strength to swim against the currents caused by the outgoing tide in the bay and reach the headland in safety. It was a dangerous feat at best.

She looked at James and smiled. "All right," she said, "let's." Of the few who could accomplish that feat James stood head and shoulders above the rest. It was second nature with him to thus challenge it was equally second nature with her to follow.

THEY RACED down to the water and plunged in. "Last one across is a crooked banana!" he yelled, then struck out.

They had been swimming most of the afternoon. The second plunge is always the coldest. In addition, the water had a decided chill today. Before they had covered 50 yards James realized that the currents were stronger than he had at first supposed. But these obstacles only gave a zest to the undertaking that caused the blood to course in the veins.

He traveled another 25 yards and then looked back. Betty was farther behind than he expected. He tread water awhile, waiting for her to catch up. When she drew near he saw that her lips were blue; that her stroke lacked its customary vigor. She smiled at him and came on.

"What are you waiting for? Scared?"

Her voice, too, had a forced gaiety to it. He frowned. A sudden thought crossed his mind. It was followed by another and then a dozen more. A feeling akin to horror took possession of him.

Betty swam ahead. She was very close. He could see that her teeth were chattering.

"Look," he said suddenly. "We'll have to go back."

She stared. "Back? You mean—?"

"I've got to quit. Being cooped up in an office all day long has robbed me of what it takes, I guess." He managed a smile. Betty started to say something, but James turned and headed for the beach.

Fifteen minutes later, when both had recovered their breath, James said: "Betty, will you marry me? I mean, right away? This fall?"

"This fall?" She laughed. "Of course I will, James, if you think it best."

He kissed her. He felt greatly relieved, happier. It hadn't made any difference. She was still the same, still ready to follow wherever he led. Out there in the bay he had a moment of panic. For the first time he had realized the full responsibility of her trust. It was, he decided, something to cherish never to forget.

SHORT STORY

Good Natured Fool

By R. H. WILKINSON

3-Minute Fiction

In the spring of the second year the Village Welfare society held a charity ball. As a feature attraction they advertised a beauty contest. Friends of Sylvia urged her to enter it. But Sylvia was doubtful. She was a married lady now.

"Bosh!" said Max. "Go ahead and enter."

So Sylvia entered the contest—in the interest of charity. No one disputed the decision of the judges when she was awarded first prize. Nor was anyone surprised when, two weeks later, she was asked to join a statewide contest in Mendere. The idea excited her, but of course she refused.

"Tut! Tut!" declared the good-natured Max. "Go down there and show them what a really beautiful girl looks like."

And Sylvia, who was really quite thrilled, went down to Mendere, and came home with the winning cup and the announcement that, as winner, she was expected to join the Grand Eastern contest. The winner of the Grand Eastern would go to Hollywood.

"But of course I'd never think of entering it," she told her husband, her eyes shining.

The townspeople gave Sylvia a great send-off.

"Oh, you wouldn't?" Max grinned. "Here we have a chance to bring laurels to the family and you pass it up. O. K." He struggled with elaborate indifference.

And so Sylvia entered the Great Eastern, and won. The papers played up the victory in great shape, and every one wondered if she'd go to Hollywood.

"I couldn't do that," she told Max breathlessly. "Why, I'd have to be away from you for weeks."

"I'll manage," Max told her good naturedly. "If I get too lonesome I'll take two weeks and come out for a visit. Go ahead if you want."

He continued to think how swell it was for almost a week. Then he found that his socks needed darning and restaurant food wasn't agreeing with him and he was mighty lonesome.

The next day he met Elsie Parker on the street and asked her to have dinner with him. It seemed good to have someone to talk to.

Three nights later Elsie called up. "I've a letter from Sylvia," she said. "Would you care to see it?"

Max went over to Elsie's house and found her alone. He read the letter. Elsie said: "She's enjoying herself. She's having a grand time. She's met a lot of interesting people."

"I wonder who this guy Ted Thornton is?" Max asked, frowning over the letter.

Elsie looked at him. "Max, you're a fool! A lovable, good natured fool. If you had any sense you'd go out there to Hollywood and bring back your wife."

"Bosh!" said Max. "Sylvia and I aren't children."

But he thought about it a good deal. He loved Sylvia.

A month later the blow fell. After all, Max, darling, Sylvia wrote, "we could never continue to be happy together when our interests are so far apart. . . . I hope when my lawyer gets in touch with you. . . ."

The next day Max had a letter from Sylvia's lawyer. He answered it at once, agreeing to everything. He wrote to Sylvia also. He told her that he wanted her to be happy. "Even," he wrote, "Elsie Parker seems to think that you're right."

Max spent the next week wishing he were dead. In fact, he was actually contemplating the best means of suicide when Sylvia rushed in on him.

"Darling! Forgive me. It was all a mistake. I should have known better. I was a little idiot. Please take me back and don't ever let me go again."

"That," said the agreeable Max, "suits me fine." He kissed her, delicious with joy but wondering how it had happened. Sylvia said: "Is Elsie—have you—I mean—"

Max answered the frantic look in her eyes by kissing her again. Bless Elsie Parker, he thought.

Funeral services are planned to be held Friday in Kearney for Charles "Chick" Wareham, who died from a heart attack in Japan.

Mr. Wareham was employed at one time with the irrigation district as an engineer, and lived in Ord where he made many friends. He was a co-worker with Mr. Dummire who will be remembered by many Mr. Wareham joined the United States Army with the engineers and had been stationed in Japan. His wife and three daughters are left.

The body was shipped to the States for burial, the arrangements of which are being cared for by the Anderson Funeral Home in Kearney. Services on Ord plan to attend the services.

Show Must Go On
A want-ad in the Springfield Herald advertised for an actor to star in a play, entitled "Friday, the Thirteenth." The ad said, in part, that the star "will receive kind treatment and plenty of cream assured, and will be returned with all nine lives intact." The actor caught a black cat, of course!

Nothing To Lose

By FRANCIS TIPTON

"ANYONE," said Thad Harding, "will tell you that absence makes the heart grow fonder. I think that's the remedy for your present problem. Go away for a while and forget the girl. It will make you more desirable."

"Forget her!" moaned Mart Loring. "Forget her!" Thad, you're insane! I can't live without seeing her at least once a day."

"That isn't the point. You're making an ass of yourself, tagging around after Judith. She thinks you're her slave. She knows your weakness and takes advantage of it."

"And how," asked Mart, "is the fact that I go away going to make me more desirable in the eyes of Judith Temple?"

"Because it'll make Judith wonder whether or not she was right in setting you down as her slave. It'll make her think about you."

"They had been introduced at a charity ball two weeks ago. Mart had looked into Judith's lovely eyes and knew that here was the girl for whom he had waited a lifetime. From that moment he was her slave."

It was different with Judith. Mart was just another man, who had succumbed to her charm. The more, as far as Judith was concerned, the better.

Yes, Mart decided, it was better to go away. Thad's scheme might work.

Mart departed the next morning. Thad was at the station to see him off.

She was not at all like Judith.

She was not at all like Judith.

"I'd go to the mountains if I were you, Mart. The fresh air will do you good. There's a beautiful lake up beyond Ogsburg. Plenty of life. You'll be in luck."

Mart found the lake and agreed with Thad that it was beautiful. There was plenty of life and interesting things to do. But from the moment his train pulled out of the Grand Central Mart was miserable.

It was not until he had spent the better part of a week at Long Lake that the empty feeling in the pit of his stomach began to fill, and he saw for the first time that there were things to see and do in the world. He found himself one day sitting on the hotel veranda talking to a girl. She was a pretty girl, dark, vivacious. She was not at all like Judith.

Conscious of a faint feeling of guilt, Mart was forced to admit that his new acquaintance—her name was Kay Atkinson—interested him in a different sort of way. She talked of tennis and swimming and horseback riding and mountain climbing. And when she looked at him with her deep brown eyes, he felt a peculiar sensation stir inside of him.

The guilty feeling persisted as the days stretched into weeks and he found that more and more he sought out Kay Atkinson's company. The boy was more poignant, perhaps, because shortly after his arrival he had received a letter from Judith. It was a gay letter, curious in a subtle way regarding his abrupt departure, and also slightly affectionate.

Mart didn't answer the letter. He decided to teach Judith a lesson. Besides, life had become almost worth living again since he had met Kay.

A month after his arrival at Long Lake, Mart decided he'd better go home. His friendship with Kay Atkinson had reached a point of intimacy which demanded some sort of explanation. He'd either have to propose or quit the field.

At last Mart made a decision. . . . Mart wired Thad Harding of his expected arrival in New York. His heart leaped when he swung from the train and saw not only Thad but Judith too. He waited by the steps while they rushed to meet him. A sense of remorse possessed him. He felt miserable and uneasy.

Mart would have spoken, would have explained things, then and there, had not Kay appeared in the car doorway, looking curiously at Thad and Judith. Mart took Kay's hand in his and faced his friends bravely.

"Judith—Thad, allow me to present my wife, Kay."

Judith and Thad exchanged glances. Then suddenly they laughed in sheer relief.

Thad seized Mart's arm, "Mart, old boy, congratulations. I—well—sure as a girl." He turned proudly to Judith. "And, Mart, old friend, allow me to present my wife, Judith."

—Mrs. Murray Nelson and Mrs. Charles Houser went to Litchfield Thursday to get Mrs. Nelson's mother, Mrs. Behrens. Mrs. Behrens is spending a few days with her daughter in Ord.

Obituary

Feres Shaer, local merchant was found dead in his bed Wednesday morning. He lived in the back rooms of the general merchandise store which he operated. His death was due to a heart attack. He had been in failing health the last couple of years.

Feres Shaer was born in Damascus, Syria, Feb. 1, 1886, and passed away in Comstock on Feb. 24, 1953, at the age of 67 years.

He was married in Syria and to this union was born one son, Jahad Shaer who now lives at Soweda, Syria.

He was naturalized and became a citizen of United States on May 7, 1923. In his early life he left his native land and came to the United States leaving his family in Syria where his wife passed away a few years later.

As was a custom of a good many Syrian immigrants, he took up the task of selling merchandise, traveling from house to house on foot, he became acquainted with many customers and made many friends.

A few years later he and a partner established a mercantile store in Mason City, Neb., which business he conducted for a number of years.

About 15 years ago he came to Comstock and established a General Merchandise store which he has run since moving here.

During his stay here he made many friends, and was especially liked by school children. He was a member of the Comstock Community Service Club, and was a liberal subscriber to any cause that would benefit his community and his country.

Although he was not able to read the Bible he had a deep conviction of faith and enjoyed church services and was a quite regular attendant until his health failed him. Mr. Shaer will be greatly missed by his many friends and business associates.

Funeral services were held Friday at 2 p. m. from the Methodist church with the Rev. Raymond Walker assisted by the Rev. N. A. Nohas of the Orthodox church in Kearney in charge. Mrs. George Fisher sang "Asleep in Jesus" and "No Night There" accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Richard Stone.

Pallbearers were Ludvik Visek, Ted Erikson, Richard Erikson, Frank Janulewicz, Jake Drake and Wendell Hovie. Burial was in Douglas Grove cemetery with Spooner mortuary of Sargent in charge of arrangements.

Mrs. Steve Smith and Mrs. Frank Ruzicka of Sargent called on Mr. and Mrs. Eva Florida at the H. V. Florida home Friday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Marsh, Jr. and Mr. and Mrs. Wendell Hovie drove to Loup City Saturday evening. They visited with Mrs. Willard Rosenfelt, who is a patient in the Sacred Heart hospital and also visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Elton Guilford and Mickey.

Mr. and Mrs. Jake Chalupsky were Saturday evening callers on Mrs. Eva Florida at the H. V. Florida home.

Mr. and Mrs. Jake Drake were Sunday afternoon and evening guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Tvrdik and two daughters.

A special meeting of the W. S. C. S. was held in the church Thursday afternoon. Officers made out reports and several business matters were discussed.

Mr. and Mrs. Jake Drake were Wednesday evening visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wendell Hovie and family.

Dearest Mabul:
Does you realize its a whole year since your folks had that big party—to tell you the truth baby it was the day we overhauled their 1923 Maxwell and they celebrated their Anniversary. I was a little surprised to see yer ol' lady konk yer dard on the head with a gin bottle at a coccash un' what was sposed to be in honor of thirty years of happy married life. He was already loaded and staggerin' around before he got the sock on the button so I cudent tell if it did any damage besides making his eyes a little crossed.

Baby, like I always told you I is nuts about you—I has a soft spot in my head for you but pleez cocky don't take after yer ol' lady cuz kicking and swinging bottles aint lady like. I don't mind a little afekshun, ate bite on the ear once in a while Mabul, ha ha.

I has news for you baby—Hi Anderson, owner of the Anderson Motor Company here in Ord has offered me the job of managur of his used car lot but I aint in no hurry to take it cuz I has a good hed on me and jobs is a dime a duzen fer guys with brains like me. He does have some good cars and maybe you and me can go places and see things at his expense after hours... get it? Ha.

Maybe by the time you get here I'll be selling used cars like mad cuz spring will soon be here and you know what they say about a young man's fancy, ha ha.

Right now he has some used cars that I wouldn't mind ownin'... there's a 1948 Plymouth as clean as Aunt Maud's Monday mornin' wash and fer $295 you and me could drive it away and just pay a little bit each month... boy could we go places... and probably do things. Ha Ha.

Then there a 1950 Plymouth Special Deluxe 4 door with a radio, heater and it looks bettern some new ones. What sweet music comes from that radio Mabul makes me dream of you... and we could have it if you'd send me $430 for the down payment.

You'll find me at the ANDERSON MOTOR COMPANY and I you don't recognize me just ask for YER DREAMBOAT.

SHORT STORY

Surprising Events

By DUKE ALLISANT

If Thelma Garrison's ideas had been as modern as her physical attractiveness she would probably have had no trouble in devising some means to win the attention of handsome and much desired Chet Shields.

Chet Shields was advertising manager of the Russell department store, where Thelma was employed as secretary. He was young for the position. At first there had been doubts in older heads regarding his ability to fulfill such a responsible job, doubts which Mr. Shields banished during the first six months of his employment, by an amazing display of ingenuity.

Besides being young and successful, Mr. Shields was strikingly handsome and possessed of a charming personality. Each morning when he strode through the office where Thelma and 13 female co-workers labored over their typewriters, the course of his progress was watched by adoring and wistful eyes. At first Thelma had watched too, though her expression contained less of adoration and more of hope, for during the months that followed the first moment she had observed young Mr. Shields, hope fluttered in her breast. Hope that one day he would note her; hope that he might single her out from the 14 office girls.

But young Mr. Shields looked through and not at her, as he did the other 15. And so at last the hope died in Thelma's breast. She realized the folly of her own idle dreams. She was a fool. It was better, much better, to be like the other 13, to realize that she didn't have a chance with young Mr. Shields.

On the other hand, both Luce Florian and Frank W. Hulinsky, who come in on a Saturday, regularly, are not in favor of meters. They both say that what they think is much more essential are traffic lights about the square that drivers practically take their lives in their hands at the end of the sales, which could be remedied with a system of red and green lights. And another thing, Mr. Florian says in his opinion a parking meter is just another effort to get the people's money.

Mrs. Leila Vebeba, who teaches school in Davis Creek, and who comes to Ord to take off-campus courses, as well as to shop and to attend meetings pertaining to school teaching, says she doubts if such would work in a town the size of Ord. Another Ord visitor Mrs. Joe Kreilik says that it is no fun to have to keep your mind on the fact that every so often, the owner must run to the meter and deposit another nickel. Or if this

His progress was watched by adoring and wistful eyes.

And so Thelma tried to put her idea from her mind. And then, a month after Thelma came to this momentous decision, something very surprising happened. Meticulous, un-spectacular, 40-year-old Miss MacReady was promoted from her position as secretary to young Mr. Shields to a similar position in the service of Mr. Harrison, vice-president. And Thelma was offered Miss MacReady's former post.

The advancement bewildered her. Chaotic thoughts rushed through her mind. Hope fluttered once. On Monday of the next week Thelma assumed her new duties. With pounding heart she awaited the arrival of young Mr. Shields. And when he finally came, because of the way he looked at her, she thought she was going to faint. But she didn't. She managed an outward composure, took down the letters he dictated, typed them, made telephone calls, arranged for appointments, consulted clients. She did it all for a week, conscious of a great joy, a blissful feeling, provoked by nothing more than an opportunity to be of service to the man.

And then, entirely without warning, Chet Shields asked her to have dinner with him. He veiled the invitation with some talk of a business proposition about which he wanted her advice, but Thelma wasn't fooled. She knew his motive, and she was bewildered by it.

The first dinner led to others, to theaters and night clubs and Sunday drives and talks of poetry and all the other things that two young people who are in love are apt to do. Thelma lived in a world of unreality and disbelief.

And then came the memorable night on which Chet parked his roadster near the store of Lake Clearwater and turned to her with eyes that were tender and appealing. Thelma's face was radiant in the soft light of a white moon.

Mr. Shields took her in his arms and spoke words that caused the pounding of her heart to grow even wilder. Presently he kissed her and she clung to him and thereby was consummated something that was beautiful and eternal.

Long after it was over Chet Shields innocently explained the thing that had puzzled his future wife. "There were 14 of you out there," he laughed, "and you were the only one who didn't look up every time I came in. You didn't seem to care whether I was around or not. You were different, and it made me feel that here was a girl who had some thoughts in her head beside idol worship. That's why I urged Harrison to take on Miss MacReady so I could make a place for you."

Whereupon Thelma regarded her future husband with nicely gauged astonishment and said: "Well, of all things! Imagine!"

around $30,000. Average "take" of a meter is $6.00 per month, which would mean an income to the city of $2,000 to $3,000 a month.

With a majority of business men opposed to meters, farmers in the Ord trade territory have mixed feelings.

Edgar Roe, farmer, and chairman of the county board, said quite firmly, "I don't like them."

Archie Geweke, a farmer, moved to town, but still considers himself a farmer, approves heartily. He is of the opinion that there is no place along the sides of the street to park and that it is not allowed to park in the middle of the street even for a short time. He thinks that the meter would help to make people conscious that people have to purchase groceries, and that cars would be moved more often, especially on busy days, when the streets are full. Then too he thinks the money garnered in might be a help. This was the opinion voiced by Mrs. Gaweke, but she says both she and her husband felt the same way.

Mrs. Bud Knapp, wife of Valley County Supervisor Knapp, whose son attends the Ord high school, and who has much business in Ord, is another in favor of the idea. She says she has wasted enough money paying for gas in driving about to find a place to park, to buy a private meter.

On the other hand, both Luce Florian and Frank W. Hulinsky, who come in on a Saturday, regularly, are not in favor of meters. They both say that what they think is much more essential are traffic lights about the square that drivers practically take their lives in their hands at the end of the sales, which could be remedied with a system of red and green lights. And another thing, Mr. Florian says in his opinion a parking meter is just another effort to get the people's money.

Mrs. Leila Vebeba, who teaches school in Davis Creek, and who comes to Ord to take off-campus courses, as well as to shop and to attend meetings pertaining to school teaching, says she doubts if such would work in a town the size of Ord. Another Ord visitor Mrs. Joe Kreilik says that it is no fun to have to keep your mind on the fact that every so often, the owner must run to the meter and deposit another nickel. Or if this who also has had much business experience as a clerk in North Loup, thinks that the project of parking meters might work and make money for the city. She cited Omaha, and says that city reports a goodly sum from the meters garnered.

Mrs. Adolph Nevry, who lives near Arcadia, expressed herself as being indifferent as yet because she had given the matter no thought.

Gilbert Babeock, a farmer near North Loup, who also has many things to look after in Ord, says that he would be glad to feed his nieces into a parking meter, even if he did have to remember to come over to his car every hour for that duty. He thinks that meters will solve the parking problem.

Mrs. Irving Kings says that at the present moment she would not be in favor of the meter system, since there are both pros and cons to the subject. The question needs study, she thinks. However, she does say that the parking problem is just that, especially when the family car has to be parked some distance from the grocery stores and the big boxes of foodstuffs that farmers have to buy in case of storms are might heavy to carry the distances that is some times necessary.

However, Mrs. Emmet Frazier, North Loup, says that it runs up into money to have parking meters, what with having to put a nickel in every hour, especially when the family comes in to a show or a sale, besides she says that in cities where parking meters are installed, and she mentioned Grand Island, even there it is necessary to drive about for some time before a parking space can be found. She was definitely against such a plan.

Maynard Schudel thinks that if meters could guarantee parking places, he is all for the idea. He thinks it would be worth a try anyway.

George Bremer says that having to drive about the square two or three times to find a place for parking is one time too many, and he thinks that he would like to see if meters could solve the problem. He thinks that these instruments might prove that patrons could get a place to park where it was desired, especially on Saturdays.

Riley Brannon, a farmer living near North Loup, says that he is not in favor of meters. For one reason he says we are not used to such, and it would take too long a time to realize the value of meters. He says that the fees for manipulating meters are too expensive, and not enough money could be raised from their use to make the meters a self supporting project.

On the other hand, Mrs. Floyd Redlon, who now lives on a farm, the Bethany Lutheran church, Mrs. John Chaffield, and Viola Exely of the Assembly of God church, Mrs. John Cook of the Christian church and Mrs. Clarence Trout of the Evangelical United Brethren church. The offering was taken by Mrs. Cook, Mrs. Edgar Rose and Viris Harkness.

Mrs. Orin Kellison was at the organ and played the prelude and the offertory, also accompanied Glenn Trent who sang, "A Prayer." The choir was composed of women of the various churches.

The theme of the service was, "Walk As Children of Light." The entire program centered about these words.

The church was beautiful with lighted candles, and a large basket of white and red flowers, the gift of the Florette.

Lone Star

Mrs. Earl Nelson went to Central City by bus Thursday evening where she visited her mother, Mrs. Swanson. She returned home Saturday evening.

Don Ballard is practice teaching at Lone Star this week.

Mrs. Otto Cassidy went to Ord Saturday with Mr. and Mrs. Lem Mills.

Mrs. Hazel Guggenmos and sons spent Sunday in the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Svoboda. The boys helped Dale celebrate his birthday anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jones and Patricia came to the Hazel Guggenmos home Friday evening to get Aletha who had been with her grandfather for the past two weeks.

Wrong Car

Just seeing the car cruise down a street convinced Minden's night patrolman the car didn't belong to the two boys in it. So he gave chase in the city's car and jailed the boys. And he no longer leaves the keys in his car.

VFW Basketeers Play Brothers' Team March 21

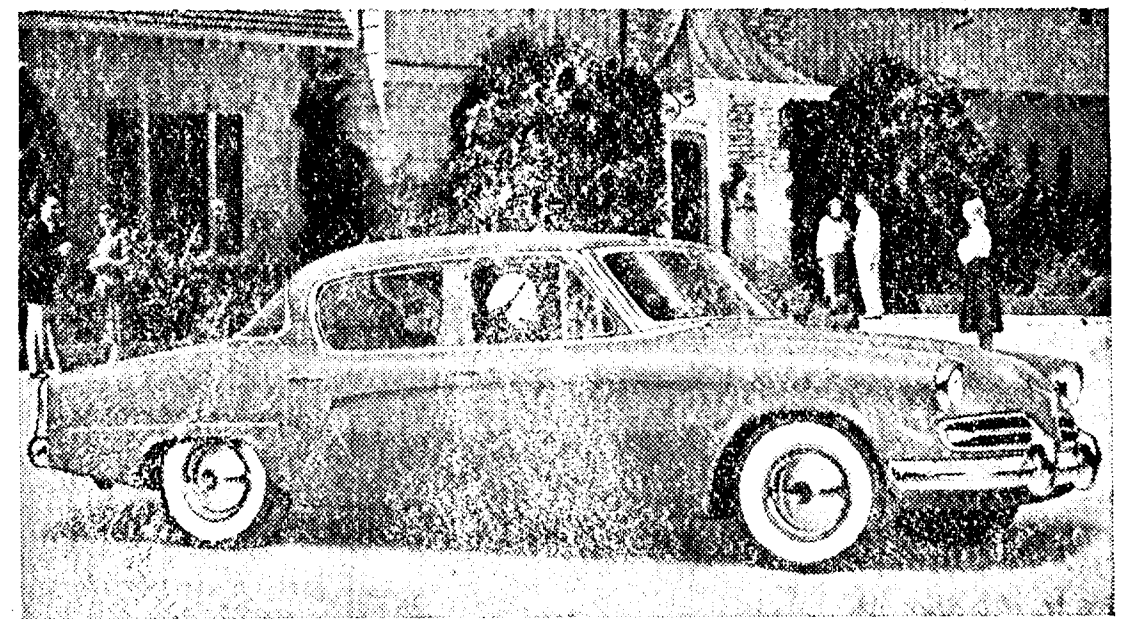

The Ord VFW basketball squad will play the Williams Brothers of Lincoln, a team composed of five brothers, all ex-high school stars, on the local court Saturday night, March 21.

On Monday night, March 9, the locals will journey to Broken Bow to engage the BB VFW team.

Last Wednesday night Ord took Burwell VFW into camp handily by a score of 48 to 19. Maurice with 16 and Finley with 11 points were hot for Ord. Haines was top man for the losers with 12 points. So far this season the Ord VFW has 9 wins and 3 losses.

Speaker in High School

The students of the Ord high school and their teachers were given the opportunity to listen to Albert Stuart Otto, at convocation Friday morning. Mr. Otto spoke very entertainingly on the subject of the "Crust of Civilization," which is being built at the Oglethorpe University in Georgia.

The Studebaker Commander V-8 4-door sedan illustrates the low, sweeping lines characteristic of the company's new 1953 models. Quickly apparent are the "cleanness" of the styling, the use of basic horizontal lines to achieve new contours, and the concave design motif along the sides. Overall length of this model is 198 9/16", height is 60 1/2". Twelve color choices are available. The new car is on display at Schudel Motor Co., North Loup.

Bulls Averaged $800

The bulls shown by W. H. Schudel of North Loup, at the Annual Central Nebraska Hereford Association show last Tuesday, held in Broken Bow, brought their owner $1,900. They were the second and third top selling bulls and brought $1,000 and $990. Mr. Schudel returned home Wednesday. He spent three days in Broken Bow.

Had Bad Fall

Mrs. Jud Tedro received a card the first of the week from her daughter, Mrs. Jack Morrison, telling of the bad fall Mrs. Pearl Morrison had had a few days before. Mrs. Morrison well known in North Loup and in Valley county, made her home in Riverside, Calif. Mrs. Morrison, jr., said that it was not thought that any bones were broken, but the doctors were waiting a while to make sure.

Meets With Committee

Supt. C. C. Thompson went to Lincoln Friday where he spent the weekend with the two others of the state basketball committee to make the pairings in the state class A basketball tournament and to arrange for the officials and such other business that would pertain to the tournament. Mrs. Thompson and daughter, Mary, accompanied him and spent the time in Seward.

Receives District Judicial Appointment

W. C. Loofburrow, sometimes known as Cecil and sometimes as Bill, who is a graduate of the Ord Central School, and has several years ago, has recently been honored by appointment to district judge by the governor of Idaho.

Living in American Falls, Ida., the past several years, Mr. Loofburrow has made a name for himself in his law practice. The Power County Press, which tells of his appointment says in part:

"Loofburrow has several outstanding qualifications which will prove that the governor made a wise selection when he appointed the American Falls man. It can be assured that the new judge will keep up on his business if he continues the practice he follows in his own business. When given a job to do, he did it in a minimum of time and delivered to his client. He got his legal education the hard way. He studied law in an office in Madison, Neb., with a firm that was known to be one of the best in the state."

He was a member of the pioneer younger set in American Falls before the dam was built and has been active socially and in civic affairs for 35 years. He has always been ready and willing to do anything that would promote the best interests of the community.

The new judge has been prosecuting attorney for Power county for many years and was a candidate at the last election. He has been city attorney, member of the schoolboard, both president and secretary of the Chamber of Commerce and headed other civic and local organizations. He is a veteran of World War I and has taken an active part in veteran's affairs.

Mr. Loofburrow is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Loofburrow, both of whom have died some time ago. One sister now lives in Ord Mrs. John Chatfield. Other members of the family, all of whom lived in Ord at one time are Mrs. Grace Holman, whose address is 4661 Spring St., Lamesa, Calif.; Mrs. Jennie Bee, whose home is in North Loup, but who is spending the winter with her daughter, Mrs. Ralph Loofboro, in New Auburn, Wis., and a brother, Rev. C. B. Loofburrow, also of New Auburn, Wis.

Preparing to Move;

Mrs. Hattie Curtis of Scotia, recently sold her home in that place, and purchased another house in Scotia, Colo., with intentions of packing and moving at once. On Wednesday evening she fell and broke her hip, and was brought by Dr. Bentley to the Ord hospital for care. On Thursday she was visited by her son, Dr. V. Curtis of Kearney and her niece, Lola Fuller of North Loup. She still plans to move to her Colorado home as soon as possible.

Loup City Doctor

Dr. B. L. Miller, a member of the staff of the Loup City Clinic since March, 1949, has been recalled by the Navy to report for active service March 15 at San Diego. Dr. Miller, a lieutenant in the naval medical corps, will take two weeks of amphibious training at Coronado, near San Diego, and about April 1 he will report for duty in San Francisco on the USS Scorpion. He will serve from 17 to 14 months. Dr. Miller was on active duty from the late 1944 to 1946.

Mrs. Miller and their four sons will make their home in Loup City.

Handicraft School

Katherine Helzer, who with Mrs. Gilbert Babcock of North Loup and Mrs. John Boone, attended the Handicraft school in Columbus Wednesday and found the school to be very interesting. There were many exhibits of handicraft work to be seen, but the demonstrations were on wood painting and cork painting. The school was attended by a large crowd.

Miss Helzer plans to present the work of wood painting later to the members of the extension clubs of the county.

Dog Gone

Robert Johnson of Cairo made his donation to the March of Dimes campaign this year. But there was a leish attached. The fox terrier he donated, complete with collar and leash, had to be auctioned off—the proceeds then going to the March of Dimes.

Crippled Children Board

The members of the Valley county chapter of the Nebraska Crippled Childrens association met Tuesday afternoon, pursuant to the call of the chairman, Don Auld. Several committees were appointed to carry on the work of the association in the county, and plans made to give help as needed. The sale of Easter seals was also discussed and plans made for this drive.

Hot Enough for You?

An Auburn housewife put the electric blanket back on the bed after her husband repaired it. During the night, the husband turned his dual control down, the wife turned hers up. He turned his off, she opened her side and got extra blankets, which he soon kicked off. Seems in replacing the blanket the wife had switched it so her control operated her husband's half of the blanket and vice versa.

Restore Needed Soil Elements

Enrich your soil with quality fertilizers. Restore the elements necessary to maintain and increase its productivity.

We will have a car of Lincoln Brand Fertilizer on track about the 10th or 12th of March. In this car we will have 15-15-0; 10-20-0 and 0-20-20. And we have in the warehouse 0-20-0 and 0-20-20. No doubt you have need for one of these quality Fertilizers in your farming operations.

We all know it is about impossible to get 33 1/3-0-0 this year and results show that in most cases a mixed fertilizer will do a better job for you.

15-15-0 is about an ideal all purpose fertilizer. It will do a mighty fine job for you on any of your small grain fields. It is a wonderful fertilizer to plow down when you are getting your fields ready for corn. If you will plow down about 200 or 300 lbs. of 15-15-0 in your corn field you need not worry about a side dressing at second or third cultivation unless a soil test shows a very low Nitrogen content.

10-20-10 or 0-20-20 will do wonders for your alfalfa field. If you plan on a new alfalfa seeding use 10-20-0 or 10-20-10. We will have a car of 26-0-0 about the middle of May and there is about 10 ton of it unsold.

Have you ever planned to have the soil of some of your fields tested? We can get a very comprehensive report on a test in about 10 days at a cost of only $1.00 per test. Let us have those samples now and this will give you a little time to plan your fertilizer needs.

Francis Saunders of the North Loup Seventh Day Baptist church gave the morning message at the Bethel Baptist church. Rev. Dorsey Levell was able to make the journey from York to supply his pulpit in the Evangelical United Brethren church, and Warren Porter of California, spoke in the Presbyterian church.

Attend Inspection Of New Home

Johnny Wojtasek proved to be an affable host during the week-end to the many who called to see the new house he and his assistants had just finished in west Ord. Mr. Wojtasek was of the opinion that at least 200 had visited the house on Saturday, and about 300 more on Sunday. More might have taken the opportunity to go through the up-to-the-minute house had the weather been nicer. Those present commented especially on the solid birch cabinets and birch sliding closet doors, the attractive stone fire place and exterior stone trim. Guests were present from Ord, Burwell, Ericson, Hastings, Greeley, North Loup, Comstock, Elyria, Ravenna, Shelton and Superior. Many came back for a second look. Bouquets of flowers from the Sack Lumber Co. and from Mr. and Mrs. Robert Noll added to the decorations of the home. The house had been furnished partially with articles of furniture from the various business places of Ord. From interviews with interested prospects Wojtasek believes there will be no let up in new home construction in this vicinity for some time to come.

Mrs. James Ollis is expected home this week from Hebron, Ill., where she has been the past few weeks, caring for the little son, William David, who was born on February 8, to her daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Alton Goodenberger. Mr. Goodenberger is taking ministerial training.

Anniversary Party

A surprise party was held Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Vavra for their 29th wedding anniversary. Guests who came to celebrate were: Mr. and Mrs. Ed Dymek and family, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Nevrivy and family, Mr. and Mrs. Mike Bower and family, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hayek and family, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Nemceskal, and Mrs. Anna Houska. Lunch was served at midnight. Mr. and Mrs. Vavra received many beautiful gifts.

Local Girl Honored

Among the 22 University of Nebraska coeds honored as outstanding Coed Counselors for 1952-1953 last week was Adeline Dubas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Dubas, whose past office is Burwell. Miss Dubas is a graduate of the Ord high school with the class of 1951. She is a sophomore in the university.

Fertilizer Meeting

Upon invitation of Robert Noll of the Noll Seed Co., a large number of farmers and others interested met at the Masonic hall Friday evening to hear the matter of fertilizer discussed. The speaker of the evening was Howard Peterson of Grand Island, president of the Service and Supply Co. Mr. Peterson gave information of the relative uses of mixed fertilizer on different types of soil and led in the discussion. He also showed slides to illustrate his talk.

Sunday Guests

Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Volf were Mr. and Mrs. Albin Urbanski. Afternoon callers were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hulinsky, Lucille and Ronnie, and supper guests were Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Volf.

For Inductee

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Kovarik and family, Dale Svoboda and Loretta Waskowiak were Sunday afternoon and supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Hulinsky and family in honor of their son, Edward Hulinsky, who left for the armed services Tuesday.

Altar Society Meeting

The Altar Society met on Wednesday, Feb. 25, at the K. C. hall at 2 p. m. Twenty-nine members were present. After the business meeting, Mrs. Floyd Peterson gave a very nice report on their recent trip to the south. Cards were played and coffee was served by Mrs. Ryland Johnson and Mrs. Harley Eghliman, chairman and co-chairman of circle 1.

Victory Dinner

Delegates and alternate delegates of the Republican party in the Unicameral 29th district had a victory dinner Friday evening, the affair being held in the club. For the program, Mrs. C. J. Mortensen gave a most interesting talk on the inauguration, and showed pictures and souvenirs to the group. This was followed by a talk by Senator Hugh Carson, who told what was going on in the present session in the Unicameral, and answered several questions put to him by interested ones. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Deland of Cotesfield, Republican chairman of the district; Mr. and Mrs. Win Ramsey of Arcadia, Mr. and Mrs. Smith of Arcadia, Senator and Mrs. Hugh Carson of Ord and Lincoln, Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Jacobs of St. Paul, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Romans of Ord, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Worm of Ord, Mrs. C. J. Mortensen of Ord, Ed Paulsen of St. Paul, Miss Hoover of St. Paul, Edgar Roe and Elliott Clement of Ord.

Nebraska Admitted to Union as 37th State 86 Years Ago This Week; Was Bitter Fight

Nebraska's admission to the union as the 37th state—just 86 years ago this March 1—was accompanied by a great deal of controversy both nationally and locally. On the local scene one of the most heated controversies involved "the ballot box that went to dinner."

In 1866 Nebraska's voters were called upon to approve or reject a state constitution drawn up by the territorial legislature. If the constitution met approval it would be presented to congress as the basis for admitting the territory as a state; if rejected, statehood would be postponed.

Territorial Republicans strongly favored statehood and enthusiastically nominated a slate of candidates for state offices to take over when Nebraska was admitted. The Democrats were opposed to statehood, but decided they had better go ahead and nominate candidates for state offices, just in case.

David Butler of Pawnee City was the Republican nominee for governor. Opposing him on the Democratic ticket was J. Sterling Morton, one of the most ardent opponents of statehood for Nebraska. Butler and Morton conducted a vigorous campaign. Morton was one of the ablest stump speakers Nebraska has produced, and he had the assistance of George Francis Train, brilliant and witty Omaha promoter and world traveler. Butler, though, was no mean debater, and he made the campaign a hot one.

This first state election was very close, and for a time, because of poor communications, the outcome was in doubt. It soon became evident, however, that the election was in the hands of the canvassing boards rather than the voters, and particularly the Cass county board.

The action of this board gave Rock Bluff—now only a ghost town—a degree of permanence in Nebraska's political history. The vote there was 107 for Morton to 50 for Butler. The Cass county canvassing board threw out the entire vote because the poll book and tally list had not been certified correctly. At the same time, they allowed the vote of the strongly pro-Butler Plattsmouth precinct even though its returns were certified in the same way.

There was another element in the Rock Bluff action, however. The election judges had closed up shop during the noon hour, and in order to protect the ballot box one of them had taken it home to dinner with him. There were many charges as to what happened to its contents during the dinner hour. Whether true or not, the procedure was highly irregular.

The Cass county action was decisive in determining the results of Weather...

It was Mark Twain who said: "Everybody is always talking about the weather, but nobody does anything about it. The obvious is that nobody can do anything about it. Since the beginning of time it has been conceded by man that the weather is one thing nobody can do much about. Whether it be wet or dry, cold or hot, no matter how much a change is desired, that change is beyond the ability of man."

It is true that efforts have been made at times to change the weather, and in a few instances, changes have been made, or example, men in airplanes have seeded clouds super-charged with moisture and caused rains. But the results in these cases have not justified the idea that man will eventually make it rain when and where he will.

Even if man could work some plan for making rain, there would be endless legal technicalities to hamper his work. While man realizes he can do nothing about the weather as we now have it, he would have legal recourse in the case of any changes in the weather made by man. Even if nine men out of ten desired rain, the tenth might have equally good reason for not wanting it, and he would have a legal fight to object.

Still another angle to the rain-making proposition is the fact that man has not control over the winds, which move the clouds in whatever direction they may be blowing at the moment, and which may change direction entirely in the space of a few minutes. Thus a rainmaker seeded clouds to make rain on one Oklahoma town one summer, but the wind carried the rain to a town several miles away.

Trying to regulate the weather is too much like trying to regulate the crops the farmer raises. That is, what the farmer does is to try to get the crop for a number of years, estimating the yield for the coming year on the average per acre for years gone by. The fatal flaw in this system is that they may be and often are, several million bushels short or long when the returns are in for the year.

It is a well established fact that, while mankind can and does have an accurate picture of events of the past and up to the present moment, there is no way of even imagining what may happen in the future.

coming hour and most certainly no way of knowing events that may come to pass over a longer period of time. It is well said that the future is in the laps of the Gods. Thus, while trying to control the future is an absurdity, providing for the future is something else. We have every right to so provide and it is our duty to lay aside for the days and years to come. This is something we may do without regard to the weather. It matters little what kind of weather we are having when we are considering the future and what we may do to insure a happier future for ourselves and loved ones.

But there is an angle to the weather picture that is definitely fit and proper, and that is, the estimating of the weather and the issuing of suitable warnings by the weather bureau when and if such warnings are necessary. While the science of forecasting weather may be reduced to an exact science, it is true that such predictions are much more accurate these days than they once were.

Back in the early days of Nebraska there was no weather bureau. There was little chance of gathering data with respect to the weather, and there was no method of putting out warnings in case such warnings were considered necessary. Because of this lack of weather data, the weather bureau developed an uncanny knack of telling what the coming day would bring forth in the line of weather.

If this happened that many of our early winter storms were forecast far enough ahead to give warning to those who would heed. The trouble was that many considered themselves equally wise and would not listen to warnings put out by men no better informed than themselves. For this reason it was nothing unusual for men or even whole families to be caught out in a severe storm with little or no protection.

The blizzard of 1888 was a case in point. The weather had been as perfect as winter weather could be for several days preceding the storm, and we are told that the day of the storm, Jan. 12, it was so warm in the morning that people went around in shirt sleeves while doing their work. Common sense told everybody never to go far from home without adequate clothing, and this saved many lives.

But times have changed since those days, and we have learned because wise men saw that there was a definite need of some method of foretelling storms to come. The first system used in Nebraska was that of sending out warnings by telegraph and then having the proper weather flags displayed on some building in town. These flags were displayed on the Milford building in Ord more than 50 years ago.

This worked fine for the people who lived in town and who needed the warning least, but it was no good for the farmers who had stock and no means of getting the warning in time. But the telephone came in about that time and they were being installed in the country. It was then a simple matter to call the farms and broadcast the warning.

This system worked fine for years and is still used on occasion, but the development of the radio has finally made it possible to broadcast warnings, for example, from Omaha to all parts of Nebraska, Iowa, the Dakotas, Minnesota, Kansas and Missouri. In addition, these warnings are definite about three times out of four.

The weather is one of the most variable things in nature that man has to deal with. More over, conditions that seem certain one hour may change definitely in a very few minutes. A storm that is headed in a certain direction at noon may change that direction several degrees by one o'clock. A sixty mile wind may slow down to thirty miles per hour in a matter of minutes.

Such changes are something that the weatherman cannot foretell, but they are the exception, rather than the rule. For example, the blizzard of Feb. 19 was forecast very accurately indeed, but that of scheduled for Feb. 22-23, which was as definitely forecast, wore itself out before reaching central Nebraska, and was not nearly as severe as it was first predicted.

Nevertheless, the public is definitely sold on predictions of the weather bureau, not only because of the faith in the correctness of the predictions when given, but because they come true about three-fourths of the time. The average citizen knows enough about the system of weather predicting that he understands how much of it is done. With the air of mystery removed he has solid foundation for his faith.

The system of foretelling the weather of the future is still far from perfect and will never be absolutely dependable but it is being improved all the time, and there is no way of knowing how great a saving is made to stockmen in Nebraska by the warnings they receive in the course of a single year. With cattle as high as they are, the losses prevented have meant millions of dollars.

One thing to be regretted is that, while the weather bureau can foretell disasters to come, it has no way of preventing such events from occurring. For example, given the weather conditions of the third week of February, it was easy to foretell that the telephone and light companies would suffer heavy losses, but there was no way of preventing those losses.

However, it gave the companies a timely warning and time to alert their employees and have them ready to get out on the job as soon as the weather conditions permitted. In this way the work was done in record time and communities without lighting facilities were serviced sooner than might otherwise have happened. So we should feel thankful for the United States weather bureau, which is right often than it is wrong.

Ward's Cookin' Column

It is now about fifty years since the first automobile chugged up the North Loup valley and arrived in Ord. It would be interesting to know all about that early day event, but it is doubtful if anybody now living has the factual data available. I now recall the first car in Ord was the Rambler, belonging to Dr. C. C. Shepard. I went out on a limb in calling it a Rambler, but I know he had a Rambler at one time, and that might have been his first. Another car that came later was the Orient, which in which Malcolm Boydston essayed to make mail deliveries on old rural route 2. He tried it a while, and to him should go the credit of using the first auto for that purpose. There was just one trouble with it. He could make the first part of the run, through the Anton area, without too much trouble, but those hills south of Ord on the trip were just too big to be handled by such a small outfit. I recall that Mac made it home on several occasions by keeping the car in low gear, walking behind it and giving it a push when needed.

I did not take any personal interest in it until 1910, when I won a Bush car in an Ord Journal contest. It was not much of a car, but it was a much better one than those early day affairs, in that it could make almost any hill in the country in low gear. Of course, low gear was only about as fast as a man could walk, but you didn't have to push. You just sat there and rode it up the hills. On a couple of occasions after that I had the honor of driving a Model T, which was the greatest car of all time, and which killed very few people in proportion to the miles covered. The Model T had the advantage of being fixable wherever it happened to break down, and a woman could fix one of them with a hair pin if the emergency demanded immediate repairs. It was the only car in the world that adapted itself to the use of baling wire for wheels.

But that last Model T was the last car I drove until recently. When I had it no driver's license was required. Thus it happened that, when I finally got another car, I had to pass the examination in order to get driver's license. It took me six months, but it was well worth the effort. I had determined to get the easiest car to repair, and it works out that way. The fact is, I have had no trouble of any kind except right at home, with the exception of one puncture on the highway between North Loup and Ord, and I had Ned in with me that time to do all the work. I drive habitually at 40 miles per hour in the daytime and somewhat slower at night. I get quite a kick out of keeping track of all the cars that pass me in a given distance while driving at those speeds. It don't bother me any, and they all seem to be in a hurry to get somewhere. They act like the potato beetles in the fall. Everyone you see is going somewhere as fast as he can go, but nobody knows where he is going, not even himself.

But what I started out to tell got sidetracked. In the Ord Journal for 30 years ago I ran across a set of rules for signalling on the highway. They were apparently the ancestors of some we use today, and went something like this: When wishing to turn right, hold out the left arm and hand, palm to the front. For a left turn, hold out your hand and point in the direction you are going. Wishing to slow down, you hold out your hand out with the palm to the rear. To stop, the motorists was supposed to hold his left arm out with the hand forward and perpendicular, the same as the right turn sign is today. Going farther back, there was a time in history when such signals didn't mean a thing, as there were not enough autos on the road to make any difference. In those days the danger was not from other autos, but from the horses that frequently ran away when they met autos on the roads. These days you can drive for a month without even seeing a horse.

One may have friends in adversity, and they are fine to have. They are not like the "weather" friends, who are all for you when the rest of the world is, but who have no use for you when trouble strikes. The people of North Loup had a real opportunity to learn the difference between fair weather friends and the real kind last week, when the blizzard struck. Plans had been made to hold a Lion and Lady dinner that evening, an event postponed from Jan. 15 when a similar storm put a stop to preparations in time to call the dinner off. This time it looked at noon as though everything would all right that night. But during the afternoon the storm grew steadily worse and it was hardly a night for a party when the time came to go. To make matters worse the power failed at six p. m. and the whole town was in darkness. But the cooks Bessie Roby and Mary Clark had a job started, and they were determined to go through with it. An oil stove was borrowed from the high school lunch department, and the cooking went right on, a little late, but still in time, as the Lions were also a little late.

The problem of lights for the kitchen was settled by getting a kerosene lamp and several candles. The feed committee had set the tables dark, so that was one thing nobody had to worry about. Then three of the Lions brought gas lanterns, and these were set on the tables, where they furnished light almost as good as electric lights would have been. Guests kept coming until there were 28 present, which would not have been a bad showing on a much better night. It illustrated the spirit that makes North Loup the big little town it is. It called to mind the pioneers with a job to do, who saw nothing heroic in getting out in a storm to rescue kids marooned in country schools. With them it was just another job, an unpleasant job, but a job that had to be done. With the Lions it was just another duty to be performed, once-disappointed ladies to be entertained.

To the credit of the cooks and the committee, it must be said that the meal was a complete success. It was not the fault of the entertainer, which Malcolm Boydston kept the talent from arriving to give the entertainment planned. But there was plenty of entertainment of the spontaneous kind, the kind that is more enjoyable than any set entertainment can hope to be. Every person present was brilliant that night and some who never seem to have much to say made statements that will be remembered for a long time to come. What had originally been planned for a more or less formal occasion turned out to be very informal indeed. Those who attended will remember the occasion for a long time, and those who failed to go will not let a little old storm interfere with their social duty again.

After all, what difference should a storm make, anyway? What difference whether the light be made by oil, kerosene or gas, so long as there was light to see by. It is not too many years ago that candles were the popular method of lighting, and the people of that day did not expect anything better. It is not too long since our forebears cooked their meals by an open fire or in pots hung over the fireplace. The chances are that a lot of our boys in Korea cook in the open today, if they are given a chance to cook at all on the front lines. In the beginning God said: "Let there be light," and there was light. Whether that light was made by the direct rays of the sun by day, the moon and stars by night, is immaterial. The fact is there was

When You and I Were Young

Ten Years Ago. — Valley county lost two of its pioneer boys in a public life in the passing of George S. Round and Sarah McLain. Round died at the age of 75 years, and had served as sheriff of the county for 24 years. Miss McLain had been ill for eleven years, but prior to that time had been a member in Ord for many years. Another old timer of the county, Lew Spencer, died at his home in Flint, Mich., aged 67 years. Still another former resident, Frank Tedro, 75, was found dead at Stromsburg following a heart attack. — Charles Thompson was taken to the University hospital following a fall at the Ord high gym, in which his neck was broken. — Charley Romans and Harold Barnes drew jail terms following assault and battery charges. — After a years work in Newfoundland Steve Caroski was planning to go to Africa. — The Red Cross quota for Valley county was fixed at $3,700. — 6,885 registered in one week for War Ration book No. 2. — The Ord Boy Scouts learned about the duties of civic government under plans made by Scoutmaster George Hastings. — The Ord rationing office was closed three days to permit the force to tabulate registrations. — Funeral services were held in Burwell for Mrs. E. J. Smith, 61, who died of a heart ailment. — Ord relatives attended a memorial service at Blair for Lt. Robert Kelly Flynn who was killed in action over western Europe.

Forty Years Ago. — Miss Mary Legner came over from Germany and was married at Grand Island to Iswald Linke of North Loup, who had come to this country seven years earlier. — Burdette Haskell, son of O. C. Haskell died in Lincoln of TB at the age of 31 years. — The new fixtures for the Nebraska State bank had arrived and were being put into place. — A warning was issued to aliens who had received their first papers several years before that these would become of no effect if the process was not completed within a prescribed time. — H. D. Leggett, erstwhile Ordite, was employed in St. Paul, where he was editor of the St. Paul Republican. — Miss Metha Lorenzen had arrived in Ord and was to be employed in the Bright millinery store just west of the Milford building. — Albert Vieregge of Grand Island, a nephew of Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Heuck, was instantly killed by the accidental discharge of a shotgun. — Walter Noll had severed his connection with the First National bank and the family was moving to Ralston, where he was to be connected with the new Ralston State bank. — Harry Parsons, once of Ord, had bought a half interest in the Central City Republican and was to have charge of the mechanical department of the paper. — At the home of the bride's parents in east Ord occurred the marriage of Mary Eleanor Beran to Charles S. Eder, Rev. Allen Chamberlain officiating. H. B.'s STILL ON THE JOB

Our old friend, H. B. Zelen of Lincoln, who's territory representative for the Duncan Parking Meter Corp. of Chicago, was over at Missouri Valley, Ia., the other day to talk the city council into installing parking meters on a "trial" basis.

Looking around and estimating that 300 to 400 meters ought to do the job in good shape, Mr. Zelen then cordially and good-naturedly "scolded" the Missouri Valley council for being so old-fashioned as to neglect installing meters.

"Why," he said, "you are the only town of your size around here I know of which does not have meters."

Why, Mr. Zelen! Have you forgotten Blair so soon? — Pilot Tribune.

—Mr. and Mrs. Richard Manchester and children of Council Bluffs, Iowa, visited relatives in Ord over the weekend.

—Mrs. Joe Murphy and two children returned to their home in Grand Island Monday evening. She and the children had been visiting the past two weeks at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Seveker, her parents, and Mr. and Mrs. Win. Murphy, the parents of her husband.

—Rodney McCall is quite ill with the mumps. His sister, Sabra, and his brother, Jimmie, jr., both have the mumps, also. All are children of Mr. and Mrs. Jim McCall.

Card of Thanks
We wish to extend our heartfelt thanks and appreciation for the acts of kindness, messages of sympathy and the beautiful floral offerings received from our kind friends and neighbors during our recent bereavement in the loss of our father. —The children of R. B. Williams.

ARTHROITIS?

I have been wonderfully blessed in being restored to active life after being crippled in nearly every joint in my body and with muscular soreness from head to foot. I had Rheumatoid Arthritis and other forms of Rheumatism, hands deformed and my ankles were set.

Limited space prohibits telling you more here but if you will write me I will reply at once and tell you how I received this wonderful relief.

Something Different

Yes sir, it's really different to fly out of the late blizzard in Nebraska, with piles of snow on every roadside, straight into the sun. Down at the beach yesterday I saw an ultra-substantial, respectable type matron walking to the grocery barefoot, sun-tanned to a deep mahogany color.

answer a number of questions of general interest. I noticed the coupon in the paper Saturday - ready to be filled out and mailed in with your question. This service here has received nationwide acclaim. Of course there are many ailing people in any climate as perfect as this. And many elderly people, and they always have more aches and pains.

for young or old, it is easy and fun for most people. One fellow cries to another "How long since you made a shot like that?" - and the answer, "bout eighty-two years."

record is not overly impressive. In addition to grappling with such perennial headaches as taxes, roads and election laws, not with phenomenal success, the Legislature has expended a lot of time—and words—on such weighty matters as the location of the Bryan statue, where lobbyists should sit, and whether the mourning dove is a song bird or a game bird.

system and its problems by State engineer Aitken. He told the lawmakers only a third of the 9,600 mile system is adequate for present-day traffic. And at the other end of the scale, more than 500 miles is in "red" emergency condition.

Housework Easy Without Nagging Backache

Nagging backache, loss of pep and energy, headaches and dizziness may be due to slow-down of kidney function. Doctors say good kidney function is very important to good health.

Well, we wish you were all with us here in St. Petersburg, soaking up this hot sun. My right shoulder is pretty hot. I will either have to send some sun to you, or turn around.

Florida only one disadvantage that I notice - it is too darned far from Nebraska. And I haven't figured out anyway to move it.

Junior-Senior Modern Problems Class

The time has come, the Walrus said, To talk of many things...

Things were upset in Mr. Gerald Nelson's classes on Friday, since there had been a convocation...

So it was that the Spanish class, which Mr. Nelson teaches was taken over into the history class time...

Some of the girls were skeptical as to whether the idea would work out, and wondered at the scene...

This brought to mind the fact that much had been learned from the tiny fragments of clay tablets...

By that time, Mr. Nelson reminded the class that this was the regular Spanish period, and so turned on the recording machine...

His next class was in history and the plan was changed from a debate which had been planned to a discussion taken from their papers...

It was the class that came at 1 o'clock in the afternoon, however that was very interesting, being a panel discussion on modern problems...

The panel discussion was carried out according to Hoyle, there being a moderator and two on the Pro side and two on the No side...

Both sides put up good arguments, one side saying that in their opinion if China had blockaded the war would be ended...

Blue and Gold Dinner

Cub Scouts and their families, also the members of the Rotary club with their wives...

The guests were seated along tables decorated with blue and gold streamers, place cards, made from wooden spoons...

The dinner was served cafeteria style. The blessing was asked by Rev. Keith Shepherd and all sang America, led by Hilding Pearson.

Cubmaster Adolph Sevenker introduced the committee, and the den mothers. These women, who devote much time to the boys are Mrs. Frank Clark and her assistant, Mrs. Melvin Clement; Mrs. Tom Williams and her assistant, Mrs. Dou Stewart; Mrs. F. J. Osentowski and Mrs. John Cook.

A. J. Sevenker is the Cubmaster, and his assistant is Tom Williams, sr., the committee is made up of Mr. Gudmundsen, chairman, Emil Babka, Orin Kellison, Don Stewart and Frank Perry.

A reading, "What Is a Boy?" was given by Frank Perry, sr., and the pack history by Emil Babka. Scouting was first started in Ord in 1942, with some 20 Cubs. Now there are 40.

Chairman Gudmundsen presented the awards. As each boy went to the front to get his, he was accompanied by his father or his mother, if the father was absent. The award was given to the father, who in turn gave it to his son.

The following boys received awards which they had earned during the year: Jimmie Stewart—1 gold and 1 silver arrow, Bear rank. Bobbie Sevenker—gold arrow, Wolf rank. Kenneth Mason—1 gold and 2 silver arrows in Bear rank. Richard Zukoski—Wolf badge. Bruce Pearson—1 gold and 2 silver arrows in Lion rank. Jimmie Williams—gold arrow in the Wolf rank. Dennis Ringlein—Wolf badge. John Clark—Lion badge.

Tommie Sevenker—Lion badge, 1 gold and 1 silver arrow in Lion rank.

New Cubs receiving the Bobcat pins—Alvin Vasicek and Leslie Hughes.

In appropriate ceremony, Lyle Babka was presented the Webelos badge, by Mr. Sevenker. Lyle was welcomed into the Scouting project by Hilding Pearson, chairman of the Scout committee from the Rotary club.

In the announcements, Mr. Sevenker thanked the home ce girls of the Ord high school and their teacher, Miss Achen, for assisting with the serving and in other ways.

The benediction was given by Steven Kellison who used the Cub Scout words. Rev. Keith Shepherd also of the Rotary club is chairman of boys and youth work activities.

Ever Busy Club

Mrs. Lowell Jones entertained the members of the Ever Busy club Thursday afternoon at a social meeting. Nine members were present, and two guests, Mrs. Russell Rose and Mrs. E. O. Hackel.

Plans Completed for Pancake Day Here March 18

Square Dance That Evening to Wind Up Day of Food, Fun.

Plans are going forward steadily for a most pleasant day of getting together on Wednesday, March 18, when the merchants of Ord, through the Chamber of Commerce will be hosts to the annual Pancake day.

Much of the planning is in the hands of the merchant committee, the members of which are Quinn Scott, Bolish Jablonski, Alvin Meyers, Albert Parkos, Don Auble, Dean Avers, Mike Yost, Robert Noll, Almond Brock, Eli-Mae Carson, Buzz Maurice, Howard Huff, Charles Wrightman, Frank Beran, Jr., and George Knecht.

Pancakes will be served during the day, with plenty of syrup, butter and coffee, free to all, in the Bohemian hall. Serving will start about 11 o'clock, and will continue as long as the desire for cakes seems evident.

A feature of the day will be the number of bargains, which the business people of Ord plan to offer. Many of these bargains are appearing in this issue of the Ord Quiz.

Another feature will be an individual auction in which the business men will also take part. As explained in last week's Quiz, each merchant will select some article from his stock which will be placed in a conspicuous place in the store. Visitors during the day will make a bid on the article, the bid and the name of the bidder being placed in a box. At the close of Pancake day, the boxes will be opened, and the articles will go to the person who has made the highest bid.

For entertainment, a square dance is being planned in the evening. For the expenses of this a voluntary contribution will be asked. Providing the music for the square dance will be Uncle Henry and his violin, with Bill Green, the singing caller, running the show.

Members of the Entertainment Committee of the Chamber of Commerce are W. D. Wilson, Ray Falter, C. C. Thompson, Corwin Cummins, Donald Auble, Henry Benda, Paul Ebert, George Purdie, John Wojtaszek, Elmer Zlomke and Joe Fajon.

The dance will bring to a close Pancake day and will be held in the evening in the Bohemian hall.

Persons in all surrounding communities are invited to be in Ord on March 18.

Clarke-McNary Trees Available

There is still a good supply of Clarke-McNary trees available, but farmers who plan to plant them this spring should get their orders in soon according to an announcement from the county agent's office. There is an especially good supply of Chinese Elm and Red Cedar which are the two most popular windbreak varieties with Valley county farmers. The Red Cedar stock is said to be the nicest ever handled through the Clarke-McNary program.

State Extension Forester, Karl Loerch says that it is planned to start shipment of trees about April 1st and orders should be placed before that date if trees are wanted for spring planting.

It Even Happens To a Doctor

There was high excitement around the household of Dr. Otis Miller Tuesday when their baby son wandered away from his mother while she was doing the family washing in the basement of the apartment house they occupy, and drank a cupful of kerosene.

The tyke was rushed to the hospital and had his stomach pumped, and is apparently all right at this time.

Got a Mortgage?

Every Nebraskan who has a mortgage on his farm or home will be sorry to learn that the "quickie foreclosure" bill is back again with the Legislature. The present law requires 30 days' public notice before a mortgage can be foreclosed. Under the measure now being considered, LB 142, foreclosure can be completed on only nine days' public notice. You might go on a 10-day vacation and return to find that your home or farm had been foreclosed.

This same measure came up in the session two years ago. It was defeated, because Nebraska people wrote their senators about it, and told them in plain words what they thought about this effort to cut down protection to the poor and make it easy to grab property by foreclosure.

If you have a mortgage, better write your senators now and ask him to vote against LB 142.

1700 in County Will Receive Easter Seals

Money Received Goes to Crippled Children; Girl Scouts to Help.

Easter seals, which are being sold during the month of March, to aid the crippled children of Nebraska, will come from headquarters in Omaha, and probably will be in the mail this week. Lareda Cronk, secretary-treasurer of the Valley county chapter, says a list of 1,700 names of county people was sent to Omaha last week as the mailing list.

At the meeting of the Valley county chapter of the Nebraska Crippled Childrens Association, held Wednesday afternoon, it was decided to ask the Girl Scouts to hold an Easter parade on March 28. At this time the girls will sell small imitation lilies in pots to gain further funds. Posters are to be put out later advertising the drive.

Members of the board wish it to be known that through the funds raised by hearing aids and glasses, as well as crutches and other help for crippled children can be obtained. Children, thus afflicted in the county are eligible for this aid, and help is gladly given. Don Auble is the chairman of the chapter, and Lareda Cronk is the secretary-treasurer.

Said to Be One in 100 Thousand

Allen Clark, Jr., 23, Sargent, was described last week as one case in 100 thousand at the Armed Forces Examination Station in Omaha.

Clark, who left with the group of Custer county inductees last Tuesday, was found to have:

- 1. His heart on the right side of his chest.
- 2. His appendix was on the left side of his abdomen.
- 3. His stomach on right side of his body.
- 4. His liver on the left side of his body.

Normally these organs are on the opposite side of the body.

This phenomena was reported in an article in the Omaha World-Herald.

Clark said it was "all news to me." He also said it would be news to his wife, Marie, and his parents, who live on a farm 17 miles southwest of Sargent and to his three brothers and two sisters.

He said he had never been ill enough to require a doctor's services and could not recall ever being examined by a physician.

But despite the unusual position of his organs — he followed the usual course of events and was sent on to Camp Crowder, Mo., for initial processing and then basic training.

Telephone Rates Up; Local Users Get First Bills

Business Phones Now $8.05; Residence Private Line Is $4.77.

Local telephone users receiving their first bill this week, showing the rate increase. This increase was recently granted the Nebraska Continental Telephone Co. by the State Railway Commission, which became effective March 1.

All of the company's exchanges, Ord exchange being one, received the increase. Both business and residential phone charges were raised, the rural users with "ground" lines being the exception.

Present monthly charges compared with the old rates, both figures including the federal tax are as follows:

One party residential, $4.77 raised from $4.20. Four party residential, $9.91, upped from $9.51. Rural "metallic" line phones, $4.20, formerly $3.57. Business phones, now $8.05, raised from $6.27.

Users of the single "grounded" lines still pay the old rent of $2.99 per month.

Toll rates remained the same until Saturday night, March 7, when they were increased. These are not handled locally.

Assessing Rates Set for Cattle, Other Farm Items

Property Goes at Actual Value; Then Cut 50%.

The Nebraska County Assessors Associations Tuesday made only minor changes in the livestock valuation figures adopted at a Grand Island meeting Feb. 23.

Under the new law enacted last week, property is supposed to be assessed at actual value but taxed at only half of actual value.

So valuation schedules adopted Tuesday list the recommended actual value figures. Tax levies are to be applied against only half of these assessed or actual value recommendations:

Purebred Cattle—Calves up to six months, $10; six to 18 months, $10; 18 months to 24 months, $10; 24 months to 30 months, $10; 30 months to 36 months, $10; 36 months to 42 months, $10; 42 months to 48 months, $10; 48 months to 54 months, $10; 54 months to 60 months, $10; 60 months to 66 months, $10; 66 months to 72 months, $10; 72 months to 78 months, $10; 78 months to 84 months, $10; 84 months to 90 months, $10; 90 months to 96 months, $10; 96 months to 102 months, $10; 102 months to 108 months, $10; 108 months to 114 months, $10; 114 months to 120 months, $10.

Evelyn Urban Puts In Long Hours on Job

Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Mortensen recently received a letter from Evelyn Urban, who recently became a stewardess with the American Airlines. In part she says in her letter:

"I have been working on a military chaper all day. (The letter was dated, Tuesday, 10:30 p. m.) The boys are all asleep, so I have to stay awake. I really had a hard day as practically all 65 fellows were sick. They are so young that it does not seem possible that they are in the army.

"I saw New Orleans this evening from the air, also the gulf of Mexico. We are on our way now to Wichita Falls, to the base there.

"I stayed all night in Memphis, Tenn., last night and now am somewhere in Mississippi. It is very hot down here.

"I have not been home to stay for five days now and I am wondering if I still have a place to live in Ft. Worth. The other girls do not have nearly as many flying hours as I have. My uniform needs cleaning but I have not had time to get it cleaned."

Concert Goes Liked Mona Paulce

Concert goes who prefer to listen to songs sung in English had their inning Friday night when Mona Paulce, mezzo-soprano, presented the second Community Concert of the 1952-53 season. Not only was well over half of the program in English, but the artist's diction was so clear that the audience was able to follow the texts with ease.

Miss Paulce is discriminating in her choice of translations for songs written originally in other languages, and with a single exception, the English versions she used added much to the dramatic effect. This was most notably the case with Schubert's "The Erlking," which was probably the most unforgettable selection of the evening. Favorable comments were to be heard on all sides concerning the English texts for her German songs. But a few expressed a preference for the original French in the case of the "Carmen" aria.

Although classified as a mezzo-soprano, Miss Paulce's unusual range made it possible for her to present a program of surprising contrasts, including a Verdi aria usually sung only by dramatic sopranos. She demonstrated a remarkable degree of flexibility in the florid passages of Handel's "O Had I Jubal's Lyre" and the aria from Rossini's "Barber of Seville." It is a pleasure to hear the latter selection sung by the type of voice intended by the composer, instead of the customary coloratura soprano.

Dean Holt, accompanist and piano soloist, came in for a generous share of the applause. Mr. Holt appeared to be equally at home with Bach and Gershwin, but one suspects that his own preference leans toward the modern side. His interpretation of the highly amusing, impudently dissonant Shotokovitch "Polka" was particularly enjoyable.

Both artists were most gracious in response to applause, offering with as evident pleasure as the audience received them. They created the impression of enjoying the whole performance right along with their listeners.

"We were lost in Europe last season without our plane," he said. "Next time we mean to take it over with us. In fact, if we could hit a spell of favorable weather, we'd like to fly it over."

Off stage the Holt's conversation seemed to be much the same as any other young American couple. Like what would be the most practical arrangement to keep their small daughter from kicking off her blankets at night. And the singer consulted earnestly with Mrs. Asa Anderson about the proper way to make a sauce for certain shrimp dish both liked to make.

The final concert of the current season will be heard on April 30, presented by the Columbia Concert Trio—violin, cello and piano.

Mr. Mason Gaining

John Mason, who was severely burned when his home was destroyed by fire two weeks ago, is gaining gradually but is still being cared for in the Ord hospital. Mrs. Mason is much better. An apartment in the basement in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Rogers has been prepared for Mr. and Mrs. Mason and their family, where they are living at present.

New Door at Grill

Wayne and Darwin Sheldon and Elmer Drawbridge, from North Loup, were busy the last of last week, putting a new door in the entrance of the Ord Grill and bus depot. Glass brick was also put on both sides of the door, and a new top step was made.

Of interest in this remodeling were the old fashioned square headed nails that were found when pieces of the doorway were taken out. The building was constructed in 1886, and housed the 1st National bank, belonging for years to the Mortensen estate. It is now owned by C. E. Gilroy.

So many feet had passed through the door, that the top step had a deep hollow worn into the cement.

North Loup

Mr. and Mrs. John Edwards arrived home Monday morning from Rock Rapids, Ia., where they had been for several weeks and where Mr. Edwards has been under the doctors care. He plans to return this week for more treatments but Mrs. Edwards will remain here. While there they were guests in the home of their daughter, Dr. and Mrs. A. C. Wubben. They spent Sunday night in Grand Island with the Jim DeNoyer family.

Business Women's club met on Tuesday evening for a covered dish supper in the Legion Auxiliary rooms, with Misses Minnie and Clara Jensen and Ruth Mayo as hostesses. The evening was spent playing pinochle.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Thompson and Dale spent Sunday with the Joe Zauha family at Greeley where Mrs. Thompson's and Mrs. Zauha's birthdays were celebrated.

Dr. and Mrs. M. E. Markley and children went to Omaha Sunday. The doctor came back but Mrs. Markley and the children stayed for a few days.

Mrs. Donald Benben has resigned as teacher at Olean and will go to Arizona where her husband is stationed with the U.S. Air Force.

Frazers Celebrate Golden Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. Anuel Frazer Wedding Picture of 50 Years Ago

Mr. and Mrs. Anuel Frazer of North Loup, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary Wednesday, March 11 with a covered dish supper held at the community hall, which was followed by an old time dance.

Ella Mulligan, and Anuel Frazer were married March 11, 1903 at the farm home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Mulligan, in the presence of the immediate family. The ceremony was followed by a wedding dinner and a dance at the home, Rev. J. J. Andrews, pastor of the Friends church at that time performed the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Frazer started house-keeping on her father's farm where they lived till 1906, when they move to their present home in the Barker district.

They had two sons, Anson, who passed away several years ago, and Emmett, who with his wife and small son, now live on the farm with Mr. and Mrs. Frazer. They also have two granddaughters, children of their son, Anson, who live with their mother at Loup City.

Mrs. Erma Eberhart Buried Saturday

Funeral services for Mrs. Erma Eberhart were held Saturday afternoon from the Methodist church in North Loup with Rev. J. A. Miller officiating. Mrs. Harold Hoepner and Mrs. Clyde Ingerson sang "Some Day We'll Understand" with Mrs. J. A. Miller at the piano. Pallbearers were Virgil Annyas, Donald Waller, Paul Madsen, Walter Holmes, Albert Siegel and Ronald Cress.

Mrs. Ronald Cress and Mr. and Mrs. Bud Beebe cared for the many beautiful flowers.

Burial was in Hillside cemetery with the Fullerton mortuary in charge of arrangements.

Mrs. Eberhart passed away early Thursday morning at the St. Francis hospital in Grand Island where she had been cared for the past two weeks. The Eberhart family moved to Fullerton late last summer, after selling their grocery store in North Loup. Mrs. Eberhart had not been well much of the last year they lived here.

Erma Mae Smith, oldest daughter of Earl and Laura Stine Smith was born March 19, 1910, at Ullysses, Nebr., and passed away March 5, 1953, just three weeks before her 43rd birthday.

All her life since she was eight years old, had been spent in North Loup, with the exception of the past seven months at Fullerton.

She was united in marriage to George Eberhart, on Sept. 10, 1927, at Ord. To this union were born six daughters, five of whom survived.

At the age of 18 Erma joined the Rebekah lodge at North Loup. She was devoted to her home and her family, was a good neighbor and a friend to all. Even the little children knew her as a very special friend. Those who have lived nearest to her and had known her longest, are the ones who respected her the most and appreciated the real beauty of her nature. On these she has left the mark of a lifetime. Although she had been in failing health for several months, she always greeted her friends with a smile.

Erma believed in living the Golden Rule, "Do unto others as you would want them to do unto you".

Left to mourn her passing besides her devoted husband, are the five daughters, Gwen Lockhart, Bentonville, Ark.; Darlene Schweiger, Grand Island; Connie Layher, Fullerton; Sharon and Jolene at home; six sisters, Bessie Smith, Hazel Wood and Lyle Watts, all of Long Beach, Calif.; Elsie VanHoosen, Mr. and Mrs. Jacobsen, Mr. and Mrs. Gene Kutschkau, all from Grand Island, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Smith of Loup City, Mrs. Edna Pavee, Eldon and David, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Weinager, all from Ullysses, Mrs. Ruth Cordes from Iowa, Mrs. George Roming of Broken Bow, Mr. and Mrs. Beaton Nolde of Sutton, Mrs. Hulda Smith and Mrs. Marvin Greenland from Arcadia, and Miss Bessie Eberhart of Lincoln.

Mrs. Charles Boldt and daughter, Freddie, of Grand Island, were weekend guests in the Clem Meyers home.

Mrs. Edith Bartz and Marjorie were Saturday evening dinner guests of the Martin Dunklau family.

Mrs. Allen Edwards was a Saturday afternoon guest of Mrs. Kate Pulsler.

The Howard Garrison family spent Thursday afternoon in Grand Island.

Letters to Editor

Let us see what has happened in the city of Grand Island since the installation of parking meters. Two large chain grocery stores have moved out beyond the meters — one almost to the edge of town where free parking is provided. Another locally owned super market has moved on the radio every day that he has a large paved parking lot. Instead of "love me love my dog," it's "if you want my trade park my car," it's the trend of the times.

Look at all the drive-in ice cream stands, drive-in theatres. Steak houses and night clubs have been out in the country for years. (I thought their problem was parking not parking).

What Ord needs is a grocery out south of the fairgrounds, maybe, a pool hall on the fairground, all with free parking. Maybe make the U. P. depot into a bowling alley (the railroad doesn't want to serve Ord any more anyway), tear up the tracks for parking space. Then if someone would build a drive-in theatre out toward the airport that ought to help the parking problem and the gas that is burned driving around the square looking for a place to park would be burned in driving out to where there is a parking place.

Don't Worry About Getting NITROGEN FERTILIZER

You can get PV-82 (Anhydrous Ammonia)

82% Nitrogen — Not a Spray

You buy PV-82 in your field, not in a bag

PV-82 is not an expensive source of Nitrogen

DON'T GUESS on whether your soils need lime phosphorus or potash test them. In a majority of cases Nitrogen is probably all you need. If so a pound of nitrogen bought in a mixed fertilizer is rather expensive.

DON'T GUESS—Consult your County Agent. He is familiar with soil types and requirements in this area.

Athletic Official Dies at Age 49

Dick Pulliam, who won wide acclaim for his ability to officiate athletic contests, died Friday morning at his home in Grand Island after an illness of a year and a half. He would have been 50 years old in June.

Funeral services were Monday in Grand Island with burial in the Grand Island cemetery.

He was a co-proprietor of the Model Laundry there and had served as president of the Nebraska State Association of Cleaners and Dyers.

He was born June 14, 1903 at West Union, Neb., and attended Sargent high school and Grand Island Business College. He and Marjorie Elaine McFarland were married Aug. 15, 1924, at Council Bluffs, Ia.

He was a charter member of the Order of DeMolay at Broken Bow, one of the first DeMolay chapters in Nebraska, and was entering the Masonic Order when taken ill.

Survivors are his wife, a son, Jerry M. Pulliam, Grand Island; a daughter, Julie Jean Pulliam, Grand Island; two granddaughters, mother, Mrs. Edmund Pulliam, Sargent; two brothers, Floyd M. and Burton E. Pulliam, both of Sargent; and a sister, Mrs. Otto Monson, also of Sargent.

Valley County 4-H Club Program Rural Boys and Girls Started in 1921 drawn buyers from many different parts of Nebraska and other states was one of the early members of the pig clubs. Another interested one was Ted King, now a well known farmer in Valley county.

In 1922, Emily Carkoski, of Arcadia, a member of the pig club was the owner of a Duroc Jersey gilt, which was first in its class in the state fair, and was junior champion in open show. The same year, Ted King received fifth place in livestock judging in the state fair, and Clifford Goff was second in hog judging, also in the state fair.

During all the years which have elapsed since the first organizations, fully 5,000 boys and girls in the county have been members of clubs, and have earned awards and certificates. Now, however, there are many different kinds of clubs from which to choose, from the various livestock to corn and pasture and electric wiring clubs and from cooking, sewing, home management, own room, and food preservation. The three main projects at the present time are clothing, home making and food preparation and preservation for the girls and livestock clubs.

Among the girls who have won awards are Leanne Kerchal, who won fourth place in the state in the cheery pig contest, Iva Jo Stowell who won ribbons for demonstrations and as a leader. Other leaders who won awards are Lillian Lech, and Delma Micka. Some girls who now are homemakers in their own home owe much of their training to their 4-H club experience. Among these, the number is great, might be mentioned Phyllis Dodge Garnick and Irene Iwanski Kaputka.

Last year, Sharyl Knapp and Katherine Severance won purple ribbons at the state fair in their food demonstration and Wilma Vodehnal and Jeanette Williams the same for their clothing demonstration. All these young ladies belonged to the HiWay Juniors club. Lillian Lech also won a purple ribbon for serving the club as member and a leader for six years.

Robert Knapp, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Knapp, has won many ribbons that he has won from fairs both county and state for his various projects, that doubtless, he has won many more. All are for 4-H club projects.

Miss Helzer, home extension agent, says that reorganization of the clubs will start in March, and that most of them will be going strong in April. During school the clubs meet twice a month, and twice a month after school is also held. Each club has regular officers, and a leader, who is responsible for the work done. The young folks have a business meeting then the lesson or demonstration, a recreation period, during which they sing songs, and a light lunch.

At the present time plans are being made for the regular stunt night, also the song contest and public demonstrations. Judging contests are also a part of the work. There will be demonstrations at the county fair, and also at the state fair. Miss Helzer says that there will also be a dress revue, probably, during which the girls will show the dresses they have made during the summer.

One of the biggest of all jobs connected with the 4-H club work is to find leaders for the boys and girls. This is a work that takes time, and planning, but it pays very well in money, but is satisfaction and helpfulness.

Leaders for the year 1952 were Mrs. J. Covert, Mrs. H. Goff, Delma Micka, Lillian Lech, Mrs. Russell Rose, Mrs. Merle VanZandt, Mrs. L. D. Wilson, Rose Marie Sevenker, Barbara Klanecky, Mrs. Joe Bonne, who has been a leader of the Junior Prissillas for four years, Mrs. Gilbert Babcock, Mrs. Eldon Sinek, Mrs. Howard Cook, Mrs. Paul Goodrich, Ellen Jean Foth, Mrs. Glen Cochran, Mrs. Vernon Thomas, Mrs. Junior Dilla, DeLores Holmes, Mrs. Ruben Schaffer, Mrs. Anthony Cummins, Mrs.

An Hour With the Jr. High Math Classes

If all the world were full of books, and all the seas were ink, what would we do, I wonder this, it makes a person think. But such a thought is silly quite, for it could never be. So I will think of other things, Nor let this worry me.

Someone has said, and rightly, too, that arithmetic was easy, that were but four parts, multiplication, division, addition and subtraction. But the saying went on, the hard part came in multiplying when to add, when to multiply, when to subtract and when to divide.

And so it was interesting to visit the seventh and eighth grade arithmetic only now they are called mathematics classes of the Ord junior high school. Their efficient teacher is Allen Bellenger, who came to the Ord schools last September, from Arcadia, and who also teaches bookkeeping and is in charge of junior high school athletics.

Thursday was a delightful day, when it really seemed that spring was just around the corner, yet the young folks went at their work with a commendable zeal.

The seventh grade group, composed of some 39 boys and girls, the sexes being about equal as to number.

The lesson was on plane figures, and was leading up to home furnishings especially as dealing with wall and floor coverings. At first they were drilled in the number of degrees in a triangle, and then in a circle. When this was done, then the study of angles was taken up and a series of questions in their books were taken up, one by one, for answering. Much of their work was equal to the old time lesson in geometry.

The young folks were taught the difference between all the angles, acute, obtuse, straight, reflex and right. They learned that arcs were used for a definite purpose in the figures in their books, in order to show the way to read the kind of an angle. How many high school graduates can tell, today how many degrees in any of the angles mentioned above, and how they can tell? Many have forgotten what they have learned about such figures, and it was interesting to wonder.

One of the exercises that the young folks did was to bend their arms to make the different kinds of angles. They found that they were unable to make the reflex angle, since their elbows would not bend that way.

Different kinds of angles were found in the room in which they were having their class, on the clock, the flag staff, the door, in the windows, and walls, and many other places. Later they were told to read angles pictured in their books, and to fill the sides and the vertex.

The work these junior high students had done and would do before school is out seemed to be essential to any young person to what they have to know when he or she went out into the world. For there were lessons on reading gas and electric meters, and who knows but that some day they might save many a penny from knowing just this. They were also taught how to make out and how to read grocery, doctor and garage bills, and how to make receipts, and the value of receipts. They studied about registered mail and learned the fees for registering mail. They learned how to make out a sale slip, and how to understand the monthly statement from the bank.

Their work was in fractions, decimals, and per cents, even as was taught in other days, and yet in a more normal way, since they are given real problems in real living. They will know how to make a budget when they finish this course, how to work out their income graphs, and many other things that will be of value to them in their every day living.

In connection with their work they also have several tests, and reviews, as well as much mental work. It does seem that these future citizens will be able to care for their money and their bills when they are on their own. If they are not, it certainly is not Mr. Bellenger's fault.

The next class was with the eighth grade, which also lasted an hour. There were about the same number in this class as in the lower grade, with practically the same ratio as to girls and boys.

of getting to the costs of oiling streets or of keeping them clean, the city treasurer who would have to be able to make out the checks, to make the deposits and keep the various funds straight.

Then they were really ready to begin on their lesson for the day, which was working with symmetrical figures, which they learned to be two halves exactly alike in size, shape and arrangement. They were able to find from the pictures in their books, just what could be classed as symmetrical or the opposite.

Their next lesson was to be on ratio which Mr. Bellenger very kindly explained.

Then as the hour was not entirely over, representative from each row went to the board where they did rapid problems in percentages, interest, and fractions. The young folks seemed to enjoy this and were glad to take their turn at the board.

Their text book relates all the work to the community, and includes the bank, merchants, business, the home, and planning which makes for practical study in things they will have to know, in not too long a time. There are also listed many review tests, self help tests and practices, and mental work. They are also given charts by which they can find their progress.

Times have changed from the old way, and the new way might seem strange at first. Some might not approve of a class given over to discussion, when they should be at the board with a long pointer, explaining some intricate problem in compound interest. But it is safe to wager that these young folks when they finish school and are on their own, can balance their own check book, and can work out methods in construction that their parents could not dream of doing.

At any rate they seemed to enjoy their work, and must have been getting a lot from it. And anyway, who wants to work at compound interest.

Give 'Em a Chance
The student council of the Kimball county high school thinks even basketball referees deserve a break. The council recently passed a resolution asking fans to ease up on giving officials the "razzberries."

Self-Solved Problem
The Sheriff of Chase county was confronted with a problem when a car was stolen and he had no good leads. While sitting in a police station 65 miles from home, the problem suddenly solved itself. A hitchhiker, stopping in to get warm, turned out to be the car thief.

Weatherproof, But . . .
Modern underground communication lines need more than protection from wind, ice and kites. Twice, when telephone lines near Pender were out of order, investigators laid the blame on burrowing gophers.

Well-Read Men
Current events and a worthy cause were linked together by members of the Seward Rotary club. They divided up into sides and the two teams fired current events questions at each other. Those on the losing side contributed 25¢ per capita to the Heart Fund.

Overland Freighting Was Big Business in Nebraska Before Coming of the Railroads

The overland freighting business, by which goods of all sorts were carried in wagons from the Missouri river steamboat landings to military posts out on the plains and mining camps in the mountains, was an important factor in the economy of Nebraska territory. This was particularly true in the grim day following the Panic of 1857.

Big freighting firms like Russell, Majors and Waddell bought thousands of head of stock and great quantities of corn, thus providing a market for hard-pressed Nebraska farmers. In addition to selling to the big firms, many farmers and small business men went into freighting for themselves. An early historian of Nebraska reported that almost every person who could muster a vehicle went into the freighting business, with equipment ranging from one to three trains of six or eight yoke teams down to a one mule cart.

It's in these small operations that you can see America's enterprising frontiersmen at their best. Many of these small operators were businessmen of imagination who were willing to take a chance and work hard to make it pay out—and often they became big operators in the course of a few years.

Somebody seemed willing to take a flyer with almost any kind of cargo, spurred on by the knowledge that there was a heavy demand for almost all types of goods in the mining camps and that the miners—when they had the money—were willing to pay premium prices.

For example, in 1853 John Reed & Co., pioneer Nebraska City druggists, sent a wagon load of coal oil to Denver. They sold the oil for $7.00 a gallon and realized a net profit of $500 on the trip.

Another unusual cargo was a wagon load of apples hauled from eastern Nebraska to Denver. It brought $20 a bushel. At another time, a couple of Germans who could not speak English hauled a wagon load of fresh oysters westward from Omaha. They filled their wagon bed, letting the whole freeze into a solid lump. West of Julesburg they were encountered selling oysters at $10 a gallon.

Again, in 1853 an enterprising man drove a flock of 500 turkeys across the plains to Denver. They took a wagon load of shelled corn along for feed, but the turkeys subsisted mainly on grasshoppers along the way.

Homo Sapiens . . .

That name is given to the highest order of mammals. It was given by one of them, and for that reason was made complimentary. If the monkeys, for example, had been doing the naming, they would not have had a better name for it. We do not know what name Noah gave the animals when he put them all in the ark, but it is certain that the names we use today have changed greatly since the flood.

The name means literally "wise man," and it is applied to mankind for the purpose of indicating that men are smarter than the rest of the animal kingdom. It indicates that man is the only animal capable of reasoning. Yet we find that man is one of the most unreasonable of God's creatures. Given the power to distinguish between right and wrong, he often takes the wrong way out of sheer perverseness.

This creature we call man because he is the only creature capable of touching the ends of his fingers with the thumb of the same hand, got his start a long, long time ago. The earliest record we have of him comes from near Canton, China, where a few fragments of bone were found under conditions that indicated he must have lived at least 500,000 years ago.

For some reason, nobody knows why, man has made man his greatest study. We have found out volumes about what man has done in the ages gone by, but not one of us can state positively what he will be doing tomorrow. Millions of dollars and millions of man hours have been spent in the rather Polish study of the past of mankind. It was in this study that men found out about the Canton man.

But something had happened to the remains of that man, once preserved in some Chinese museum. The relic disappeared after the Japanese overran China. Now the Chinese blame the Japanese, the Japanese blame the Chinese, and we, more recently, both of them are trying to throw the blame on the Communists.

There is little comparison, either for good or for evil, between the first man who ever walked erect on this earth and the average man of today. We may claim we have advanced far in the scale of civilization since that time. It is true we have greater knowledge today than ever before. The pity is that we use our superior knowledge of evil fully as much as we do our power to do good.

The first man had few worries, but he no doubt did plenty of worrying. He needed food, protection from the elements and beasts and a place where he could rest. Since the earliest men of whom we have accurate record believed in a superior being or beings, we are justified in believing that the Canton man worshipped the forces of nature, much as races of men did at a far later period.

It is also probable that the first man was not the enemy of every other man on earth. He no doubt has his friends and they fought together against the wild beasts and against other men, much as we do today. They fought over hunting grounds and camp sites and caves and food and most of all, over women, just as we do today. They fought as hard as their primitive weapons permitted them to fight.

There were not many men in the world in those days while today we have well over two billion. Compared with the number then and now, there was probably as much war in the world then per man as there is today. We have no way knowing whether men killed each other then. It may be they did, and again they may merely have fought to conquer, quitting the battle when the opposition gave up.

Of one thing we may be sure, men have always fought, for there has always been the same essential causes for which men fight. But primitive man fought of necessity and fought against men, animals and forces that threatened his very existence. It was a fight for survival, and it was not always a case of survival of the fittest.

That myth of the survival of the fittest may apply to nature, but it has no place in the affairs of men. The battle is not always of the strong. In the Panic wars the Romans destroyed Carthage and the Carthaginians as a people. They did so because they were better trained in the art of war. The fact is that the race they destroyed was fully as fine a race of people as the Romans were.

Coming down another step in history we find the Spaniards, Cortez, conquering the ancient Aztec empire. The Aztecs were an agricultural people and in many ways were far more advanced in the scale of civilization than the Spaniards. But they were conquered, because they worked harder at the business of peaceful living than they did at the art of war. They just because they were too trustful of strangers.

Today people who ought to know better fighting all over the world, largely the godless against those who believe in God, but not in cases. In fact, the most cruel wars in history have been the so-called religious wars. Men have improved the methods of waging war through the years, and will continue to improve them until the end of time.

The history of man has proven that because they worked harder at the image of God, has always been a devil in his dealings with his fellow men. Death by torture was the usual thing among savage tribes, but, as man became civilized he refined his methods of torture. The savage had not developed a method of breaking the will of his victims. It remained for the Russians to develop that final refinement in human torture.

Here in America and in all democratic countries we try to get along with people. We like to work together for the common good. We have long realized that in unity there is strength. We make friendships and we prize them highly. But let some little incident interfere with what we consider our personal rights, and we are ready to fight.

There is still another angle to the question of mankind and his development through the ages. It is the angle in which we all should be vitally interested, for all our wars as a nation have been fought for the purpose of maintaining the personal liberty of ourselves or others or both. The question of liberty for the individual has been a tantamount issue since the beginning of time.

But man is a social creature, as such he likes to work with his fellow men for the common good. He realizes the need of laws, and he wants to have a part in the making of those laws. He may not say so, but he wants those laws to apply to everybody except himself. In his heart every man believes he is a superior creature, above the laws that circumscribe the rest of mankind.

In spite of this fact, nearly all men are law abiding citizens, either from fear of the law, hope of reward, or because it is the proper thing to do. But there are always a few who get out of hand, and that makes it tough for the rest of us, who have to put up with their depredations and pay the cost of keeping them in prison.

In order for a group of men to accomplish anything it is necessary that they work together for the common good. That, unfortunately, is the principle of communism, people working together as a community. In principle there is not so much difference between communism and the capitalist system. In practice they are a whole world apart.

Communism ostensibly designed for the benefit of the individual, takes away his individuality and makes him a part of the national machine. There is the ever present danger that, in striving for better community life, man may have his liberty swallowed up in communism. The best defense against such a catastrophe is education and the right kind of education. Time has shown that man, nature's wisest animal, may also be the world's greatest fool.

Ward's Column

When you come to think of it, travel fifty years ago was just about as primitive as anyone could ask for. Nobody planned to go very far except over the railroads, and they traveled the direction the rails would carry them. The schools held athletic and scholastic contests, but the schools involved in this valley ranged from St. Paul to Omaha over the Union Pacific and from Burwell to Greeley, sometimes to Central City, over the Burlington. It was a time when St. Paul and Central City were really closer to Ord than Arcadia was. To get to Arcadia we went first to St. Paul and then back across in those days which meant half a day's travel by rail. The more hardy drove from one town to the other. This also took half a day either way. Those who had much business to transact would drive over to Ord one day and drive back the next. It was somewhat farther across in those days, since the roads had all square corners, and even round around in a canyon or two. It is perhaps two miles shorter now than it was then.

There were two main reasons why people did not travel across country much then. There were no cars, and there were no roads for them to travel over if there had been cars. Then there was not a foot of all weather roads in Valley county, not a block of all weather streets in Ord or any other town. Cement was just beginning its long period of service to mankind as a sidewalk, and paving was not even thought of. After all, who would want to be driving around immediately after a rain, anyway. As it is now, the rains the traveling public most feared were not the heavy rains, which packed the surface of the roads and made them soon fit to travel, but the half inch slow rains that softened the surface of the road and made mud that, that it was almost impossible to travel through. It was nothing unusual to have to wait two days after such a rain to make a trip to town.

So, things we deal with today have not changed greatly. Go into the average home and you will find the furniture much the same as it was then. The sewing machine has been made electrical, but it can do little more than its prototype of half a century ago. In fact, half the sewing machines you find in Valley county homes were sold forty to fifty years ago and are still doing good service. Instead of the old ice box we have the new refrigerator, but the food we keep in it tastes no better than the food always has. In fact, as I recall it, the food in those days tasted better, probably for the reason that we had to work harder to earn it. We still have our three meals per day, but we do not eat as we did then. Now the hours are shorter, the work lighter and the food enriched with vitamins until we do not need nearly as much. Then pancakes and sausage was the usual morning meal, and we ate plenty of them, a dozen or more large ones at a meal. Now we have them only occasionally and three or four are enough.

Farm machinery has been adapted to new power, but it does not differ greatly from that of fifty years ago. We prepare the soil much as we did then, but have adopted radically different methods of harvesting corn and grain. We shoveled our grain and corn then, but that kind of work was too hard for the younger generation and today all this is done by power elevators, except in a few cases where they cannot be used. In the old days the neighbors would get together after each heavy storm and go to town in a wagon, shoveling the drifts out of the way to make a track six to eight feet wide. Only the top was shoveled off, enough to make it possible for the horses to pull through. It has been quite a while since I last saw a man pitching hay. Machinery has taken over this job the same as a hundred others. There are several reasons for these changes, the main ones being the ease of doing the work and the speed with which it can be accomplished.

Today most ditches are dug by machine, a method which is much faster and cheaper. The farmer digs his postholes by tractor and then stretches the wire by the same means. The entire method of building houses has changed, except that still put the basement in the bottom and the attic at the top of the house. There is a trend toward ranch type houses without even a second story, let alone attic. In Europe they formerly did, probably still do, build the stables and the house in one long building, making it possible to do all the chores on stormy days without going outside. We have developed a similar idea these days, building the garage in conjunction with the house, thus saving a little from the house to the garage. Of course the road from the house to the street has to be shoveled as of old, but some even open up this part of the route with a tractor and blade. I suppose it will still another year will be added to the ranch type house in which to store the family plane or helicopter.

For entertainment in the pioneer home we had the organ and the whole family would gather around and sing to the not too certain playing of some juvenile member of the household. Those able to afford them sometimes had some type of mechanical music box, which were considered the most stylish thing in entertainment. As time went on the dog heard his master's voice in the victrol phonograph, which was the first of the earlier machines played cylinders only. Can you remember back to the time when people listened to the gramophone through a pair of ear phones made on the order of the doctor's stethoscope? Today those talking machines are enjoying a new vogue. They now have disc records with different speeds, some of them running half an hour or more. They too, are now run by electric motor, and do not need to be wound. The new platters have the advantage over the radio that they have no static.

In the old days everybody tried to learn to play the piano or the organ in order to have a means of self-expression in music. These days nobody finds time to practice except the kids practicing for school band or orchestra, and in most cases the height of their ambition is to get good enough to blow a horn in some half-baked dance orchestra. Fifty years ago we wrote a lot of letters to friends all over the nation, because we could not afford to take the time or the money to visit them. We wrote letters to people only a few miles away. There were few telephones then, and very few in the country. Now we call them local or long distance, and if it is that important we jump in the car and get there in an hour or two. About all the writing we do any more, with the exception of business letters, is to send greeting cards at appropriate times in the year. All too often we just give our names to these, instead of writing a letter, and by so doing save a little time and an extra cent of postage.

People still take and read the papers, but most of us prefer to get our news over the radio, using the paper only to confirm what we have already heard. In those days we saved up our money and then bought tickets to the chautauqua or the lecture course, and we went to both more to be informed than to be amused. Today we go to the picture show or listen to soap opera over the radio. The average person does not see any life in a lifetime. We used to use somebody killed in a play, perhaps once in a year. Now we see people killed every night at the show, or we listen in on murder mysteries and hear half a dozen killed every night. Not that it would matter if some of the hoi polloi were killed. The trouble is, they don't stay dead. I am 70 now and I have never seen a person killed, and very few after they were dead.

The chances are I never will see anybody killed. I do not believe the average person wants to see any person killed.

But the moving picture industry and the radio corporations seem to think they know what is best for us. They have everything under control. They control our entertainment and to a large extent they are trying to control our thinking. It is no wonder that foreign countries have a perverted opinion of us. All they get to see of us is the moving pictures that are sent abroad. Last fall the voting public staged a revolt against the fair deal for trying to control our thinking. It is about time the thinking public staged a revolt against the type of entertainment we are being forced to accept.

When You and I Were Young

Ten Years Ago. — The Quiz showed the pictures of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Fitzgibbons and their five sons, Duane, Ivan, Virgil, Myron and Edwin, all of whom were in the service. — Inducted into the service at Fort Crook were Gilbert Meyers of North Loup, Robert Owens of Arcadia, and Sidney Brown of Arcadia. Harold Trowbley and Donald Ward, all of Ord. — Mrs. M. B. Goodenow, who came to the valley in 1872, died peacefully at her home in Burwell at the age of nearly 92 years. — Gov. John W. Bricker of Ohio and John P. Misko of Ord were speakers on the same platform in Lincoln at the annual Founders Day banquet. — Charles Thompson was in a serious condition at the University hospital in Omaha. — The potato growers of the Middle and North Loup valleys met in Burwell and discussed the raising of spuds. — The first of March was stormy, with a minus 15 reading two mornings in succession. — An exploding stove caused $3,000 damage to the Farmers Store at North Loup, which later moved to a new location across the street west. The Scott Oil company now owns and uses the old building, which was partly rebuilt. — The Ord city caucuses were lightly attended, and the same incumbents were nominated on both tickets for council, school and park board. — Mrs. Charles Bals was made happy by the receipt of a letter from Belgium, the first to come through since the beginning of the war. — The meat markets were advertising to "Eat Less Meat" because of the war shortage.

Twenty Years Ago. — The Bank holiday declared by the president did not apply to the Ord banks, both of which were given permission to reopen under federal regulations. — Funeral services were held at the Bohemian hall for Mrs. Joseph Bartunek, who died at the age of 63 years. — Before the state railway commission the Continental Telephone company denied all charges made by Ord businessmen with regard to poor service. — A reduction of 30% on all cash crops was required in order to be given crop loans, with a maximum amount of loan placed at three hundred dollars. — George Jensen made an enlargement of an airplane view he took of Ord, then mounted it and cut it up into a jigsaw puzzle. So George was to blame for those puzzles, was he? — A planned meeting of the Taxpayers League was postponed when only three persons showed up for the meeting. — Ralph Brownell of Burwell succeeded A. I. Cram of the same place as vice-president of the irrigation water committee. — William E. Stewart, 29, of Ord, died of cancer leaving a widow and four small sons. — The Kansas City engineering firm of Black and Keatch had been hired to make the survey for the North Loup irrigation project, which had almost become a certainty. — Ord merchants were issuing scrip to tide over the financial crisis. — C. A. Sorenson of Lincoln was to be the North Loup project lawyer. — The question of a new diesel engine for the Ord light plant was postponed when the city council failed to advertise for bids.

Thirty Years Ago. — The members of Fidelity Post No. 38 at Ord held a father member meeting at the hall, which was largely attended. — Very few fathers of those World War I men are now living. — E. J. Powers of Taylor lost an eye when it was injured by flying glass. — Mrs. George McLain, nearly 93 years old, died at her home in Ord. — A mass meeting of baseball fans was called by Manager Rondeau to find out the sentiment for the coming year. — Mrs. J. M. Hussey of Omaha was killed in an auto accident when her head caught in the door and she was choked to death. The Husseys once lived in Ord, where Mr. Hussey was superintendent of the Ord schools. — Mrs. Thead Nelson, the former Leary Alder, was killed when a team ran away and threw her against an embankment. — Mrs. Penny, state president of women's clubs, was chief speaker at a meeting of the Legion Auxiliary. — The proceeds of a Pola Negri picture were to be used to send the Ord basketball squad to the state tournament. — Jawn Pesek was just becoming a celebrity as the Nebraska Tiger man. He still wrestles on occasion.

Forty Years Ago. — At the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Cummings in Plain Valley occurred the marriage of their daughter Hazel to Joseph Hoover, Rev. E. H. Maynard officiating. — Earl Haskell, graduate of the Ord schools, returned from three years in the Philippines as a farm management operator for the government. — Guy Walker and family, Knud Christensen and family, Henaing Fischer and family and Nels Kibsgaard and family left for Canada, the first two families to Tofield, and the others to Gardiner, Alberta. — The Ord Commercial club was making the claim that Ord should have free express delivery, the same as accorded to other places. — While a bizzard was raging about 40 friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Garrick in Maiden Valley to help them celebrate their fortieth wedding anniversary. — James Bales and Miss Iva Wetzel of Burwell were married at the C. H. Welsh home in Ord. — Shippers of stock to Omaha were Ed Leary, Ed Armstrong, F. M. Gross, Herman Koelling and Frank Bruba. — Albert McCrops was required in order to be given crop loans, with a maximum amount of loan placed at three hundred dollars. — George Jensen made an enlargement of an airplane view he took of Ord, then mounted it and cut it up into a Earl Dorfner, Kirby McGrew, Ralph Novan and John Haskell. — Mrs. Lars Larsen, the former Rosie Sophia Miska, 24, died at her home near Ord. — An effort was being made to have but a single ticket in the field for the coming spring election. The new party was to be known as the Citizens Party. Before we had the vote and the days usually called High License and No License. Now we have Citizens and Good Government.

Fifty Years Ago. — Warren Garrison of Ord was attending business college at Shenandoah, Iowa. — The firm of Drs. Holson and Taylor, dentists, was dissolved by mutual consent, with Dr. Taylor taking over the business, which he is still running after fifty years. — Lon Morris sold his interest in the pool hall of Morris and Wear to Raymond Burrows, the firm name to be Burrows and Wear. — Ora Taylor was setting type in the Quiz shop. — Lon Morris died of his property in east Ord to Day, Auble, and planned to go west. — Bill Phillip arrived in Ord once more to set up a real estate and brokerage business. — Harry Ashton of Cedar Rapids and Miss Basha Booth of Ericson were married at the James Barta home. — Several cases of smallpox were reported from Sargent. — Robins and meadow larks were arriving from the south. — The Quiz announced the marriage of Alfred Kuykendall and Miss Anna Wiberg of Garfield county. — Weather Clerk James Milford was displaying for the first time a set of weather flags furnished him by the government. — According to the papers, the most interesting game of those days was crokinole. — Marriage licenses issued by R. L. Staple, county judge, included Michael E. Honeycutt and Zylpha Barnhart of North Loup; Ansel K. Frazer and Ella Mulligan of North Loup; Charles L. Hiner, Valley county, and Ina L. Dennis, Parnell; and Edward J. Graff and Lucy A. Dennis, both of Parnell. — An old sow and six pigs brought $65 at a farm sale, and the Quiz thought it a remarkable price. — Henry Stroup was to be engineer for Ord's new electric light plant.

Fifty-Five Years Ago. — Believe it or not, two buggies had a collision on Ord streets, one backing out of a parking space, the other driving up the middle of the street. Nobody was arrested for careless driving, as we had no traffic cops in those days. — The firm of C. W. Milford had a new slogan, "What We Say We Do, We Do." — Remember? — Paul Rounds sold a farm on Hayes Creek to one Blakesson, initials not given, and was paid the full amount, $2,500, all in cash. — The Christian churches of Ord and Burwell had one preacher, a man named S. A. Copp. — Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Clements and Daniel Burke and family arrived in the county. — Mrs. A. J. Firkens and Mrs. W. W. Haskell arrived from spending a vacation in Texas. — A band concert was given at the opera house featured by four original marches by R. W. Round and a banjo solo by Ora Taylor.

School Needs Discussed at Panel Thursday

A panel discussion, "Educational Needs of this Community" was held Thursday night at the monthly meeting of the K.Y.S.C. in the school auditorium. Different phases of the school were discussed, the lunch program was briefly mentioned while redistricting was given a prominent part of the meeting. It was generally agreed that the building now used was not adequate for growing needs of the school.

The school, built 33 years ago, with minor and major repairs will be used for years to come, but is short on auditorium space, the music department does not have ample space for rehearsal, nor is the home making kitchen large enough for interests shown. Added rest room facilities are needed, as well as dressing room space, the showers are poorly located, a health room can be used. The auditorium is used for the hot lunch program and does not leave enough seats for the hot lunches and the general course of study.

The Scotia Woman's Club submitted a letter signed by all of their members to show they favor employing an architect to submit plans for an adequate building program for the Scotia Consolidated school district. There is an enrollment of 110 in the high school and 114 in the first eight grades. 180 pupils and instructors participated in the hot lunch program.

Spring Grain Cleaning and Treating Season is here again. Grain that looks clean will have several hundred weed seeds per bushel.

Only by planting good, sound seed, free of weeds, will you be able to give your grain that start it needs.

If you are planning to get your grain cleaned, please tell us what you want cleaned and how much you will want cleaned, so to enable us to make up our runs for each day.

The cost of cleaning is 8c per bushel and the cost of cleaning plus treating is 10c per bushel.

Treated grain is poisonous and should not be fed to livestock.

Victory

The Nebraska Farm Bureau Federation scored a victory before the Public Works Committee last week. The committee killed LB536 a Public Works bill which would have abolished the special license farm trucks.

Russell Lockwood, the capable lawyer who's doing most of the lobbying for the Farm Bureau in place of the ailing President Charles Marshall, told the committee there is no logical reason why a farm truck should be classified and taxed on the same basis as commercial truck.

This official chart depicts graphically how state income for construction on Nebraska highway has failed to keep pace with construction costs and amount of travel. The solid black line, representing the dollar amount of state funds available for construction on highways after deductions for maintenance, administration and operating overhead, shows, for example, that in 1952 the state highway department would have needed 20% more dollars just to have the same amount as in the average year in the 1937-41 base period. Construction costs are based on contractors' average bid prices on highway contracts in Nebraska and the dotted line shows that it would take $2.30 in 1952 to do the construction work financed with $1 during the base period. Amount of travel, represented in the broken line, shows that the 1952 volume was about 90% greater than the annual travel in the base period. A glance at the chart will show that there have been few years since 1943 when the state money available for construction came up to the dollar value of the average year in the base period, much less up to the higher amount needed to offset inflation. A start toward solution of the problem, says Chairman Cliff Sandahl of the Nebraska Editors Highway Conference, could be made through a penny increase in state gasoline tax plus higher motor vehicle registration fees.

LINCOLN — Nebraska's county assessors got "the word" here this week.

This year's assessments for tax purposes are to be at 50 per cent of actual value. Does that mean the assessors are to go through their books and halve all the valuations? Not on your tippytoe, said Gov. Robert L. Crosby, chairman of the State Board of Equalization.

It means that the tax officials are to determine the true value of all classes of property and assess on the basis of half of that value. For most classes of property, this means an increase in valuation. For others notably motor vehicles, it means a decrease.

The decision to set the values at 50 per cent came after the Legislature passed LB 272, which provides the new formula.

As he signed the bill into law, Gov. Crosby said:

"This presents an opportunity for public officials and the people in Nebraska to begin an honest and equal system of taxing property. This opportunity is made possible by the Legislature's action resulting from the Supreme Court decision in the Johnson County case."

"It is the duty of county assessors and all taxpayers to cooperate in honestly assessing property as provided by the new law. The State Board of Equalization is determined to conscientiously follow this new law, when in July it begins the task of equalizing between counties and between classes of property."

"We believe that some legislative assistance will yet be forthcoming at this session. It is imperative that the principle of LB 89 reasonably limiting the amount of tax dollars that can be collected this year and next, be enacted. We do not want this earnest effort to equalize the tax burden to result in any extravagant spending of public money. We expect during these two years that citizens at all levels of government which imposes taxes will be watchful. The success of any effort for good government depends on the alertness of its citizens."

"We anticipate the early passage of LB 302 (the annual assessment bill) so that real estate values can be adjusted according to the new law."

Stormy

No bill in this session of the Legislature had a stormier trip from introduction to the governor's desk. The Revenue Committee killed it but it was raised on the floor. Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff twice tried to knife the bill but failed. Then on final reading, he sought to have it sent back to the committee but this, too failed.

Even after the bill had passed, 33 to 9, it wasn't out of danger. The next day, Sen. C. C. Lillibridge who had voted for it, tried to get his colleagues to reconsider their action. He failed, 22 votes to 15.

Although Sen. Karl Vogel of Omaha, Revenue Committee chairman, had told the Legislature on a number of occasions that before LB 272 could become effective, it would be necessary to amend the statutes in 100 places, the advice went largely unheeded.

So the committee this week is having drawn a bill to change the language in the 100-odd sections. The new bill is needed because the language in the various sections varies from "actual value" to "dollar value" and "assessed valuation." To try to apply the new law to those varying sections, Vogel said, would "mean chaos."

Yardstick

While the legislators grappled with the immediate assessment problem, Sen. O. H. Liebers of Lincoln unexpectedly withdrew his bill which Gov. Crosby had endorsed as a possible long-range solution.

Liebers told the Revenue Committee he was dropping his LB 562 because the tax situation is complex, remedies shouldn't be undertaken until all the angles have been figured.

The bill would have provided that the average sale of farm land over a 20-year period, compared to the current selling price would be used as a ratio to determine the percentage value of all other property in the state.

Liebers said he would introduce a resolution asking that his proposal be studied by a seven-member Governor's Committee composed of three legislators and a representative each from agriculture, labor, the professions and industry.

Bingo

To the surprise of nobody, the Government Committee this week officially gave its blessing to Sen. Terry Carpenter's local option bingo bill. The measure proposes a DINING on the Chicago-to-Omaha train was a real treat in 1881—for the food-lover, and for the pocketbook! The menu listed 12 courses... included 30 different meats and fishes, 12 vegetable dishes, 12 separate desserts. One could order as many of the items as desired on each of the 12 courses. Cost of such a feast was exactly 75 cents!

Today it's a real treat to see the way Nebraska taverns are conducted. The owner is a respected businessman, as reflected in his place of business. It is clean, orderly, and merely tolerated but wholeheartedly patronized.

An Hour With the World Geography Class

Far away places, and far away scenes. Seem to be calling me. And from the very light of things, I know it can never be. But why should I worry, Or why should I care? There are plenty of books To take me there.

The world geography class, made up of juniors, sophomores and freshmen, in the Ord high school is taught by Mr. Wm. Dickey. It is a small class, there being on Thursday, seven boys and 11 girls in the class.

South America, and the work on this particular day centered on the Argentine.

It was an interesting class, and the young folks seemed to be on the alert to answer the questions put to them by their instructor.

Before the class, Mr. Dickey told how hard it was in these days to teach geography in a satisfactory manner since the world was changing all the time, with new boundaries, and new ideas about the different countries. He uses as a text, "World Geography." He finds it necessary, all the time to have on hand many other supplemental reading, which he finds in magazines, and other books. With their texts, the young folks use a little magazine, entitled "Our Times," tells in a condensed form the latest news, and gives comments on it. In the magazines are test questions, and exercises by which the readers can mark their own progress.

From their texts the class had learned the relative size of Argentina, in comparison with the United States, also the population. They were told that this might be considered one of the frontier countries, since the climate and conditions as well as many of the areas were like the United States, only in reverse. That is, the southern part of Argentina being similar to the northern part of the states.

Here it was explained were found excellent grazing lands for the many thousands of beef cattle that are raised and which make one of the main resources of the country. Some time was taken in explaining the disappearing cowboys of these plains, with their colorful dress and weapons. The country is flat and there are no trees but it is excellent for industry and for raising cattle.

One of the sections raises flax seed which is used in making linseed oil. Another section, which is mostly swamp and is therefore thinly settled, is found to have more wonderful top soil which is fertile, and on which almost anything can be grown. Here are also found some excellent grazing lands. Another output is the tannic acid used in making leather. This is found from the bark of the Quebracho tree. Another section, which is probably the least important of all, has oil deposits. There is also much wool and mutton exported from this section.

The foothills of the Andes, with the use of irrigation, is a place where are grown vegetables, fruits and especially grapes. However, the main export of the entire country is their cattle, the beef, hides and leather, of which England is their greatest buyer.

Mr. Dickey pointed out that the drawbacks were that the transportation was not good, that there was no coal for industry, and the interior was but poorly connected with the coast because of the lack of roads.

He spent much time in explaining the present government of Argentina, and the situation under Juan Peron and his late wife, Eva Peron. It is true, he says that Argentina has shown much progress under these two people, especially in the labor conditions, and with the military. He also pointed out that no country in South America ever got involved in a world war. The countries only protected their own waters, but never did actual fighting.

He said that under other leaders, only a few owned all the land, and the others were of necessity made to work for them and were very poor. Now much of this is changed and there are more who own land and work it themselves.

The book that the young folks used in this study was Latin America and Its Future. Mr. Dickey said that the students got much more from this little book than from their own texts.

They have studied many of the other countries of the world including Russia. Here they found many new things to think about and to discuss.

Mr. Dickey is of the opinion that South America is a place that might be settled and built up as a frontier for the United States. He believes that in time to come, many young folk will go there to settle as many did in the parts of the United States when the country was new.

He also teaches Nebraska civics, and of course at the present time, all eyes are turned to the Un-American and the proper procedure of affairs in the state house. He also teaches driver education and is an assistant coach.

Now days there are no distances. It just could be possible that some day some of these same young people might follow his advice and seek their fortunes in South America. Things do happen like that.

Newspapers

On Thursday, March 5, the Albion News came out with a single column head on its seven column front, and no headlines anywhere in the paper. Under the heading of "Communities Are Like Newspapers" the editor had the following to say:

"This week's newspaper is an unenviable mess, isn't it? It's drab, monotonous; there's nothing exceptional in it and it doesn't invite reading; you even have difficulty in finding the regular features in the paper, and it's impossible to tell at a glance which are the most important stories."

More than three thousand subscribers are going to complain about this... and we don't blame them one bit. For we've neglected our duty to them.

We've deliberately refused to pour our usual effort into this week's edition. We're attempting to show that it makes little difference what a newspaper or a community contains if all those responsible for the welfare of the newspaper or community don't do the regular or extra things that make the publication or the town grow and prosper.

The News this week is well stocked; it contains the same amount of news and feature material that it does any other week. We've merely neglected to dress it up and make it inviting to consumers.

News stories are a newspaper's stock in trade, just like the stores, the banks, the repair shops, the professional men, the streets, the rary, the water system, the sewer utility, the churches, and the schools are a community's stock in trade. This week we've neglected to promote our stock in trade and you're looking at the result.

And the result is not a pretty sight; it's the opposite of progressive. We can easily imagine that, should we continue in this rut week after week, our subscribers would drop away in droves and that in time we would have to cease publishing. So it is with communities and the things that go to make up good communities. We must be proud of what we have and let folks know we're proud if we want to keep them coming. It's a task that never ends, but it's the extra effort that counts!

Jack Long is the editor and publisher of the Albion News, and so is responsible for the appearance of his paper for the issue of March 5. The idea of publishing such an issue was original, to say the least, and it is safe to say the issue was read more thoroughly than any for a long time before that date. It so strikingly illustrated the power of the press in the community in which it is published that the Quiz has taken the privilege of copying the article above, and of elaborating on the general idea that it brings to mind, that newspapers are like people.

At times we find our neighbors dull and uninteresting, but they come a time when they develop in interest as does the local newspaper, headlines and all. Some people, in interest they inspire in us are the standard 8-column size, with usual headlines, while others may be the tabloid size, with the small headlines.

Some people we see every day, and they always have something interesting to say. They represent the daily papers. Most people may come out only once a week, and when we see them they have a number of local items of interest to relate. They are the type of the home-town weekly.

Like the papers they resemble, both are likely to put out a special edition when something of unusual importance happens. In fact, editors soon learn that these people are and they depend upon them for their main sources of news from week to week. Finally, we have the periodicals among papers and their counterparts among people.

They may be near us every day, just as last week's papers are, but it's impossible to tell at a glance which are the most important stories. More than three thousand subscribers are going to complain about this... and we don't blame them one bit. For we've neglected our duty to them.

The News this week is well stocked; it contains the same amount of news and feature material that it does any other week. We've merely neglected to dress it up and make it inviting to consumers.

News stories are a newspaper's stock in trade, just like the stores, the banks, the repair shops, the professional men, the streets, the rary, the water system, the sewer utility, the churches, and the schools are a community's stock in trade. This week we've neglected to promote our stock in trade and you're looking at the result.

There are seasons of prosperity for the newspapers, times when there is a big demand for advertising space. Usually about this same time there is also plenty of news. Other times everything is quiet. Likewise human beings find conditions very demanding at certain times of the year. The Christmas and Easter seasons are times when there is plenty going both for the newspapers and for the public.

In contrast to these is the usual slump right after New Years and the other in the early autumn, just after the summer's work is done. There are ups and downs in every field and for every body, but in no business is this felt more than in the newspaper field. As a rule, when the newspapers are new, the people are busy since they are the cause of the news that appear in the papers.

When big storms or disasters come, people and newspapers get excited about them. Yes, newspapers, when and if they represent their subscribers as they should, are an accurate reflection of the lives they lead and portray accurately their comings and goings.

The local newspaper as we know it here in America is one of the strictly democratic institutions guaranteed us under our form of government. It does not and cannot, exist under communism or a dictatorship. Here in America only do we find complete freedom of the press, which means complete coverage of the day's news without censorship.

It is a blessing that the people in totalitarian countries know nothing about, because they are not permitted to know. It is a blessing that groups many times in the past have sought to abridge, but such attempts have failed, as they must fail, if our democracy is to continue. Freedom of the press is something we have because the press has always fought to maintain that freedom. If that freedom ends, all freedom will be to jeopardy.

After all there is really nothing to tuning a piano. If Albert Combs can do the job, then almost anybody else can. If you want to try it, borrow Albert's outfit of tools which I am sure he would be glad to loan you. Next find a piano somewhere that needs tuning. If you find one in tune, don't let that worry you. It will be out of tune when you get through with it anyway. So, the job is easy, but what comes next requires more technical knowledge and to avoid any absurd mistakes it might be well to take Albert along to do the work for you.

The first things to do are to raise up the lid on the top of the piano and to get the keyboard from the wall enough so it leans back. It is embarrassing to have the lid fall on your head when you are looking into the mechanism. It happened to Albert so often that it has just about ruined his long, curly hair. So, when you take off the big board in front, about the height of your vacuum cleaner, as Albert does, and thoroughly clean the department of the interior as far as you can go.

Then, take off the piece directly above and behind the keys. For this you will need a long screwdriver. The removal of these boards calls for further use of the vacuum cleaner. The next is very easy. You pick up those lovely ivory keys several at a time and lay them on the keyboard board on the top board of the piano which you have lowered for this purpose. Also take out the big board from the lower part of the front, thus exposing the 250 strings. Now comes more vacuum cleaning. You must get rid of the key-board pins, coins, matches, toothpicks, mouse nests, and even fish bones, all of which should be removed by hand. Don't get any silly ideas, the fish did not crawl in there to die and the piano was never dunked in the fishery. The bones were carried in there as garbage, and such items are salvage, the finder is entitled to keep them, but Albert is too honest for that, and beside he never finds more than a few pennies anyway.

The main job before the actual tuning begins is to place the instrument where they belong, being careful not to have any left over. The average man could probably leave the work thus far in 20 or 30 lessons, but what comes next is more difficult. It defies description and so far as the feeble mentality is concerned, I know Albert uses a wrench to tighten the strings, a hammer to test them and a tuning fork to know they are in the right pitch. I listened to him hammer the keys for a couple of hours and I must admit the music he produced was almost as good as that produced by some of our popular dance orchestras. He tells me that it usually takes a couple of trips to get the strings up to the proper pitch, as putting them at the way up at one time would mean a ton or so to raise the instrument. Another thing, unless you have a good ear for music tones, leave the tuning to the man who has. The tuning fork is an important aid, but too much must be left to the ear of the tuner.

After watching Combs do the work I am more convinced than ever that my fingers work better on the keys of a typewriter, and also that I can make more money easier that way. A final word of warning. If at any time you decide to take your piano apart, go right to the end and be sure you have a piano tuner on hand to do the work for you.

I am reminded of the fact that pianos sometimes receive such rough treatment that a tuner would be a miracle man to get it back in condition to play. Many years ago Jay Rogers essayed to move a piano from Ord out to his farm. He loaded the piano in the wagon, possibly he loaded it alone. He was strong enough to do just that. On the way out he hit a side slope and the piano took a backward flip flop out of the wagon and landed on its top in the ditch. I was informed afterward that the piano was eventually tuned up as good as ever, and the only damage visible was the top board, which had to be refinished. Now that you see how easy the job is, better have Albert Combs do it. He can do the work right and even better than you could do it yourself.

Some days are like others only worse. Monday, March 8, was one of those days. That morning I called Ralph Beck of Scotia to come over and do some trouble shooting for me. A little later Albert Combs came along and wanted me to go with him to Greeley. I decided to ride as far as Scotia with him and then ride back with Beck. I went into Beck's garage and found out that Beck had left for North Platte a minute or two before. There I was four miles from home and no way to get back. Not knowing what else to do under the circumstances I went on to Greeley with Combs. That part wasn't a bad idea. There are a number of people in Greeley I have been wanting to see for a long time, and it turned out that I had the full day before me. Albert left me near the court house, so I went in there and met John W. Smith, the sheriff. I was wanting to satisfy my curiosity as to whether he was the John (Tessie) Smith who was with Company "I" on the Mexican border. He wasn't but he is a fine man to know and to visit with, and we had a fine time talking about the old Company "I" boys and where they are now.

It seems that, of the dozen or more that came from Greeley, not one is living today. That old group included Smith, "Bollivar" Lawrence, James Dewey Kneipp, "Sherry" Boyden, Bill Lewis, Seth Horton, a fellow named Jefferson and one, Jack Doyle, who still lives there. He is selling insurance and was not in town, so I didn't get to see him. But Sheriff Smith told me that Bill Lewis had recently returned to Greeley and that I would find him at the hotel. So to the hotel I went. I found that I had been the victim of similarity of names. The man I found there was Bill Luse, a contractor by trade but now retired. I had a fine time visiting him and learned the man who once carried the mail or Route 2 out of Ord, Perry Luse was a brother of his and that Oscar Luse, once a south side druggist was a nephew.

It has been my ambition for some time to visit the Greeley county judge, Jesse L. Scott, so I went into his office. When I told him my name, he asked me, "What's Cookin'?" All of which goes to show that even people in Greeley county read the Quiz and my column. Judge Scott has the rather unique distinction of having held the office for 38 years and started his 39th in January. He started out in 1915 and has held the office through two world wars, a drought and depression and right on into the Korean police action. He did not have the information available, but it looks as though he must be the oldest judge in point of service in Nebraska. At the other end of the hill I ran across an interesting young man in the person of Jack Vovak, county assessor. He is at the start of a career, while the judge is probably nearing the end of his. Of special interest was making fair assessments when the unicameral has not yet managed making all the laws concerning the same.

The next place I stopped at was the office of the Greeley Citizen, where I met for the first time its publisher, Maurice Curran. We talked a few minutes, during which time I commented on the fine paper he puts out. I don't know whether he believed me or not, but I meant it, just the same. His father, Ed Curran, had been a little upholstering myself. Then I went back to the office and found Ed there. We must have visited for an hour, and were just getting nicely started when Combs showed up and said he had finished one piano and asked if I wanted to go with him while he tuned another. So we went to the Ed Lacey home in east Greeley, and I watched and learned how, while Albert tuned. Before going into that, however, I want to mention that I found our erstwhile North Loup lawyer, Tom Leach, on his way out of town. He was neat and tidy. While talking with him the Greeley postmistress, Irene Barrett, dropped in and I had a nice visit with her. Now more about how to tune a piano.

After all there is really nothing to tuning a piano. If Albert Combs can do the job, then almost anybody else can. If you want to try it, borrow Albert's outfit of tools which I am sure he would be glad to loan you. Next find a piano somewhere that needs tuning. If you find one in tune, don't let that worry you. Has Lived 50 Years in Same Home

Monday, March 16, marked the fiftieth anniversary of the arrival in North Loup of Mrs. Emma Madsen, who has lived all these 50 years in the same home near the blacksmith shop which her husband bought at that time and which he operated till his death in 1939. Mr. and Mrs. Madsen came here from Ames, Nebr., in 1903, after they had been married in Omaha 1901.

Mrs. Madsen is a native of North Schleswig, Denmark, and came to America in 1894, coming to Omaha where she had a brother, after a short visit in Chicago.

She came in the "Hired Girl Era" and soon found work at $2.00 a week, in Omaha. Later she went to Fremont where she worked for a family with ten children, for $4.00 a week. But on this wage she managed to save enough money that she visited her home in Denmark in 1899.

After her return from Denmark she was married to Chris Madsen in 1901. Mrs. Madsen is famous for her Danish soup, which she makes for her friends who are sick; her baking and her housekeeping. She has many friends, who drop in for an afternoon cup of coffee. Her hobby is crocheting and knitting, and in this picture she is working on one of the six afghans which she has made in the past three years.

Mrs. Madsen has three daughters, Mrs. Agnes Manchester, who teaches at Wood River, Mrs. Freda Mason of Lincoln and Mrs. Helen Miller of North Platte and one son, Paul, who operates his father's blacksmith shop, also one grand daughter, Mrs. Donnie Sack of Plattsmouth and one great grand daughter, Cathy Sack.

Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Mund of Milner, N. Dak., were guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Zangger Thursday and Friday. They were returning home from California where they had spent the winter.

The Fortnightly and Nolo clubs will be hostess to the Inter County meeting of Federated Women's clubs Tuesday, March 24, at the Seventh Day Baptist church. Registration will begin at 9:30 and the program at 10 a.m. Lunch will be served at 12 by the Dr. Grace missionary society. Reservations for the lunch should be given to Mrs. Charles Zangger this week. An interesting program is promised. All ladies, whether club members or not, are welcome to attend.

Mr. and Mrs. Anuel Frazer and his brother, Rev. Oliver Frazer, pictured with their golden wedding cake.

Mr. and Mrs. Anuel Frazer and his brother, Rev. Oliver Frazer of Worcester, Mass., had their pictures taken Wednesday evening by W. H. Vodohal, before the wedding cake was cut, to serve more than 200 guests who helped them celebrate their golden wedding anniversary. A covered dish supper was served at six o'clock at the North Loup community hall to most of the guests. After the supper some card games were played and later in the evening the time was spent in dancing, with Bensons of Ord furnishing the music. First dance was a solo waltz by Mr. and Mrs. Frazer. After the dance the guests were served lunch with a two tiered wedding cake topped by white wedding bells, which had been baked by Mrs. Guy Mulligan, on the menu.

Mr. and Mrs. Frazer received many nice gifts, cards and congratulatory messages, among these a telegram from his nephew, Oscar Frazer, of Manito, N. H., who spent some time with them several years ago.

Among the out of town guests present were his brother, Rev. Oliver Frazer, of Worcester, Mass., Mr. and Mrs. Jack Graham, and son, Charles of Omaha, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Tyler and son, Joe of Central City, Sylvan Mills of Arnold, many from both Ord and Scotia.

Rev. Oliver Frazer came 1,000 miles for the celebration. He formerly lived in North Loup from 1893 to 1901, and while here organized and built the Friends' church and served as its pastor during that time. At present he is chaplain in an Odd Fellows home in Worcester. He and his brother, Anuel are the only two of ten children living.

He married Laura Stewart, who passed away in 1928. Rev. Frazer plans to visit here for a month or friends.

Mr. and Mrs. John Ward spent Sunday afternoon in Burwell where they visited the Fay Livermore and Ray Nightingale families.

Sunday guests in the Martha Markvicka home were Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Hansen of Farwell.

Automatic Gas and Electric Water Heaters

More Hot Water for Less Money with Heatmaster

The penny-pinching control unit turns the burner ON when the water cools — turns it OFF when the water is hot. With the new HEATMASTER Insulation, water stays hotter — longer!

Consider These Facts!

HEATING ELEMENT
ELECTRIC—The heating element is immersed in the water for full-heat and highest heat transfer. The wattages are designed to prolong the life of the heater and to keep liming and scaling at a minimum.

INSULATION
Thick, non-setting "Fiberglas" insulation scientifically applied to keep heat in the water longer. The insulation completely surrounds the tank for maximum insulating protection.

GAS—The burner and mixer are one piece with the pilot mounted on the mixer to give more efficient operation. The burner, mixer, and pilot are quickly and easily removed for adjustment and cleaning, WITHOUT SPECIAL TOOLS.

THE TANK
Every HEATMASTER Tank is extra-thick steel, electric welded throughout and heavily bonded with zinc for longer life. The Deluxe tank has an "anodic" rod of magnesium which resists rust and corrosion.

THE CONTROLS
GAS—The controls are outside for easy use. The pilot, when lit, automatically controls the main burner. If the pilot goes out, the main gas supply shuts off. Water temperature is easily set on a simple dial.

ELECTRIC—The thermostat may be set to the temperature you desire and the heater turns itself on and off automatically. A true masterpiece of simplicity for extra convenience.

Wanted: Youth Potion

When the Lions club of Bridgeport conducted a poll for suggestions on improving the town, someone said—Get a new editor! Good naturedly, the Bridgeport News-Blade's editors countered with: "Friend... there ain't no such animal as a new editor." By the time a paper is well-established, they pointed out, "we are pretty well shot, physically, mentally and morally."

FREDRICKA GROETSINGER
Funeral services were held at the Scotia Methodist church Sunday afternoon for Mrs. Fredricka Groetsinger, 83, who passed away Friday, March 13, 1953 in the Ord Community hospital after a short illness.

Mrs. Groetsinger lived on a farm 8 miles southeast of Scotia for 49 years, of late years she spent a great deal of time visiting the homes of her children.

Rev. Merle Jones conducted the services at 1 o'clock. Music was furnished by Mrs. Calvin Hallock and Norma Sautter, accompanied by Bill Hatcher. Songs were "In the Sweet Bye and Bye" and "Whispering Hope". Pallbearers were Raymond Smith, Walter Klein, Ben Sautter, Victor Pearson, Ed Dishaw, Scotia and Kenneth Krebs of Hastings.

Interment was made in the Mount Hope cemetery at Scotia. Funeral arrangements were by Ashley's mortuary.

Fredricka Louise Hirz was born at Oberdorf Vortenberg, Germany, November 14, 1869 to Michael and Rosa Hirz. She passed away March 13, 1953 at the Ord Community hospital at the age of 83 years, 3 months and 29 days. She was baptized and confirmed in the Lutheran church of her country. At the age of 19, she came to America, coming to the home of her brother, Fred Hirz at Northboro, Iowa.

On February 25, 1893 she was united in marriage to Mathias Groetsinger. He preceded her in death Nov. 11, 1936.

Following their marriage they made their home in Mills county, Iowa, from there moving to Platt county, Nebraska where they resided for 10 years. They moved to Greeley county in 1904, residing 8 miles southeast of Scotia which has since been her home.

Surviving are six children, Herman and Raymond, Cotesfield, Henry and Helen Tuma, Scotia, Sophie Groves, Omaha; and Lucy Pape, North Loup; 11 grandchildren and three great-grandchildren, also nieces and nephews and many friends.

GEORGE JENSEN

Funeral services were held at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon for George Jensen, 59, who passed away Thursday, March 12, 1953 at the Veterans hospital in Grand Island.

Rev. Merle Jones, local pastor, conducted the services from the Scotia Methodist church. Bill Hatcher sang "In the Garden" and "Abide with Me". He was accompanied by Mrs. Calvin Hallock.

The Masonic Crystal Lodge 191 and American Legion Post 150 at Scotia attended in a body.

Pallbearers were: Bert Ammerman, S. T. Grohosky, Henry Hosch, Russell Jensen, Sam Hatcher and Edgar Stillman. Taking care of the many floral tributes were Mrs. Edger Stillman and Mrs. Sam Hatcher.

Burial was in the Dannevirke cemetery with Ashley's mortuary in charge. The Masonic Lodge and the American Legion had charge of the burial service. Lou Sautter acted as firing squad commander with Allen Keep, Melvin Lund, Verle McCaslin, Lonzo Lawrence, Loren Steffan, Stub McBeth and Leighton Smith. Leonard Wells, like Babcock, Dale, May and Fay, Gilliam were color bearers.

Chet Krebs and Jim Bryson folded the flag and it was presented to Miss Mary Jensen by Chris Holt, commander of the day. Darre Vance blew taps.

George Jensen, son of Christ and Stine Jensen was born Nov. 7, 1893 at Omaha, Neb., and passed away at the Veterans hospital in Grand Island March 12, 1953. He came to Dannevirke at the age of two years and has since made his home there.

He entered the service of his country on June 17, 1918 was overseas at Brest, France, helping transport wounded soldiers back to the United States after the Armistice, received his honorable discharge on August 26 at Camp Dodge, Iowa.

After returning home, he with his brother, Louie farmed in partnership, from which he planned to retire this summer.

He was a member of Crystal Lodge 191 at Scotia and a past master, a member of Crystal No. 43 Order of Eastern Star at Scotia served his chapter for several years as Worthy Patron and a member of Reuben Beck Post 150 of the American Legion, he was on the board of directors of the Scotia Cooperative Creamery 2 Scotia, and served several years as president. He with his sister Mary joined the Methodist church at Scotia on Easter morning 1933 and always enjoyed his church a long as health permitted him to attend.

He is survived by one brother, Louie and one sister, Mary; two nieces, Mrs. Kathryn Geslerfield Scottsbluffs, and Mrs. Margare Bazo of Lima, Peru, South America and grand niece, and one grandnephew at Lima Peru.

Card of Thanks

We wish to take this means to thank everyone who helped us fight the fire last Friday. Especially, do we wish to thank the Ord Fire Department and the people who so heroically fought to save our tractor, hay, and prairie. It is our earnest hope and prayer that no one will ever experience a fire such as this again.

THANKS everyone, again.
—Mr. and Mrs. Paul Wray and family.

Conwells Arrive in Italy

In a letter to Mr. and Mrs. Paul Coufal their daughter, Mrs. Louis Conwell told of their trip to Naples, Italy. They spent 12 days on the water, four of which were pretty rough. Mrs. Conwell suffered sea sickness while her three children were unaware of any disturbance. The rougher the better they liked it. The children were entertained in many ways during the trip over Shirley won a doll house at bingo and is a very happy and proud girl of six years.

They were met at Naples, Italy on March 2 by Mrs. Conwell's husband, Sgt. Conwell and were immediately taken to the home he has rented. A school bus picks up their daughters, Shirley about 8 in the morning and takes her 15 miles to school, she is home again by 4 p.m.

The family buy every need from the PX but fresh fruits and vegetables, which they wash with a Clorox or Rose X solution before using. Some of their luggage had already arrived but the furniture and car had not been heard from when the letter was written.

Teacher Situation Good

The teacher situation in Valley County rural schools looks very promising, according to a report from the county superintendent's office. Some schools that are believed to have hired teachers have not reported the fact to the office, but a majority of districts have already contracted for the coming year, while some are still in the market for a suitable applicant.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Perry, Dr. and Mrs. Carlos Urbie and Mr. and Mrs. Ed Appling spent Sunday afternoon and evening together.

Card of Thanks

We wish to express our heartfelt thanks to the fire departments and all the others who gave generously of their time and efforts in fighting the fire which endangered our ranch.

City Clean-Up Week Launched by BPW Club

Firemen, City Officials to Coordinate Plans for April 6-13.

Plans for a city wide clean up and paint up week in Ord, April 6 to 13, rushed to swift completion this week, with the Business and Professional Womens Club, Boy and Girl Scout groups, Volunteer Firemen, Chamber of Commerce, and the city administration in active support.

Mrs. George Anderson, coordination chairman for the BPW, which is active sponsor for the week said the active participation of the other groups would make for a complete program.

She listed these high points. Posters furnished by the BPW, and other posters made by upper grade school students in downtown windows would spark the drive.

Ord stores would feature clean-up and paint-up supplies during the week.

Firemen will make a spot check and inspection of business buildings.

Boy Scouts would be available for volunteer work helping those who were physically unable to clean their premises.

City and council police and health authorities would add weight by ordering cleaning of premises where necessary.

Girl Scouts will distribute door-to-door literature giving clean-up and sanitation hints.

City trucks will haul trash without charge on two set days within the week.

Tuesday evening, members of the BPW, heard Mayor F. L. Blessing, Henry Benda, fire department representative and Dr. R. J. Lynn, county physician, discuss city rules and regulations regarding sanitation, garbage and rubbish disposal.

Mammoth Easter Egg Hunt Planned for April 4th

Plans are going forward, according to Mrs. Alan Papiernik, chairman of the Ord Chamber of Commerce, for the Easter egg hunt for the children of Ord and the surrounding trade areas. The only thing, she says, that will stop this fun is inclement weather. Some 2,000 eggs are to be hidden in the Ord park, and the children of up to and including the sixth grades in the schools are invited to come and try their luck in finding these symbols of Easter.

Valuable prizes will also be given out with the eggs.

The plans are being made by the merchants and the Entertainment committees of the Chamber of Commerce. Members of the Ord Fire Department will assist during the hunt.

The time has been set at around 10:30 Saturday morning, April 4.

Canteen Workers for Bloodmobile

Mrs. Leo Long, Valley county chapter of Red Cross chairman, announces the following who will be in charge of the canteen at the next visit of the bloodmobile, April 14. The various churches in the community have been asked in other times to be in charge of this work which has been done by the members of the Catholic, Presbyterian and Methodist churches. This time the five remaining churches will be in charge. The churches and the workers follow:

Bethany Lutheran, Mrs. Chris Johnson; Bethel Baptist, Mrs. Lloyd Needham; Christian, Maggie Kinn; Assembly of God, Mrs. R. C. Austin; Evangelical United Brethren, Mrs. Clarence Trout.

Keith Cook Is Named 'Outstanding Actor' at District Speech Contest Held in Kearney

Members of the dramatic department of the Ord high school were in Kearney Thursday where they were entered in the district speech contest. Keith Cook, high school senior, was given the rating of outstanding actor of the day.

George Vavra Closes Market

Because of ill health, George Vavra is closing the doors on April 1, of the meat market he has owned and operated here since 1946.

Mr. Vavra said his plans for the future were indefinite, but he would be able to make some decisions for disposal or reopening of the market after a period of medical care and possible surgery.

Three Vets on Chanicleer '53 Track Squad

First Baptism April 2 at Burwell; Six Meets Scheduled.

Coach William Gogan has three lettermen back for the 1953 track and field campaign at Ord high school. With spring-like weather prevailing, some 20 hopefuls have gone through daily workouts under Gogan's supervision.

Letter winners include Merrill Mason in the mile, Fred Kwiatkowski, also a mile, and Duane Wolfe, pole vault, high jump and hurdles.

Promising material includes Larry Hurlbert in the 440, Ray Clark and Rodney Nelson in the 880, and Dean Flock, Sherman Smith, Richard Crane and Bill Meese in the sprints.

Six meets besides the district and state affairs have been scheduled. The slate:

April 2—Three Loups Conference at Burwell; 10-Ord Invitational; 17-Hastings Invitational; 23-Central Ten Conference at Crete.

May 1—Trans-Nebraska Conference at Kearney; 8—Class B District; 13—Three Loups (non-qualifiers for state meet); 15-16—State meet at Lincoln.

Annulment and Divorce Granted in Court

An annulment of marriage and a divorce were granted by District Judge Wm. F. Spikes in a brief session here last Monday. Grace Webb was granted a divorce from Everett Webb. Both are Arcadia residents. The marriage of Glen Amos, jr. and Lucille Marshall, both minors, of Ord, was set aside by the judge.

Another action was filed Thursday by Roger McMindes of Ord who seeks divorce from Lois J. McMindes.

Ord Voc Ag Youths Plan for Busy May

Twenty-two in Beef Raising Course; 17 Choose Swine Study.

"Earning while learning" is one of the slogans of vocational agriculture students, and financial returns in recent years show that they usually attain this objective.

Most popular of the home projects carried out by these pupils last year was beef raising, with 22 lads in the cattle 3 hog self feeders, a close second, and saw 18 boys growing porkers. Corn was the leading crop grown and 10 young men took on this enterprise. Some of the future farmers undertook home improvement. Here, plans in trees, establishing farm libraries, and improving shops led the list.

Vocational agriculture students spend two days out of five at farm mechanics, according to the Nebraska plan. Here, again the making of equipment for beef, chicken, and pig raising, the boys have constructed 27 feed bunk, 7 loading chutes, and 3 branding chutes. For swine, the young carpenters have made 4 hog sheds, including one three-sow house. Two wagon boxes were built, 2 hog self feeders and 4 large machinery trailers.

Beginning pupils spend more time on small articles, such as gates, panels, ladders, sawhorses, chicken self-feeders, oyster shell hoppers, mail boxes, hen nests, bee hives, bolt cabinets, dog houses, troughs, milk stools, and lawn chairs.

Metal repair work is done with the welder. On the forge, boys make chisels, punches, and hay hooks. Tool sharpening, hand-fitting, motor and machinery repair come in for attention. Also, soldering, glazing, rope splicing, and cement mixing. F.F.A. boys at Ord high possess exclusive patent rights for the construction and sale of those famous round concrete troughs.

An annual spring project (out) will be held in the near future. At that time, all the boys will go around and visit one another's homes.

Seven medals are given each year to Future Fication activities, Soil & Water Management, Dairying, Farm Safety, Shop Mechanics, Public Speaking, and for the Star Chapter Farmer. There is also a DeKalb plaque award to the outstanding senior in vocational agriculture.

Selected boys will take part in the state judging contests at Lincoln next month. For the district convention in May, and the State F.F.A. Convention at Kearney in June, Ord's chapter is entering a parliamentary team, a public speaker, a creed speaker, and two State Farmer candidates.

Four Year Term for Governor Dies in Committee

Legislative Bill by Ord Senator and Others Not Approved.

Sen. Arthur Carmody of Trenton said Tuesday that he still favors a people's vote on a constitutional amendment providing that Nebraska governors serve one four year term.

A bill providing for submission of the proposed amendment to the voters at the next general election was killed by the Government Committee approximately two weeks before, along with seven other bills relating to governmental organization.

Sen. Carmody, co-sponsor of the bill along with Sens. Carson and Carpenter, pointed out that the bill would not apply to Gov. Crosby since it would not be voted on until 1954.

None of the states that have switched to the four year plan have gone back to the two year system, he said.

"It would give the governor time to lay out a program for the state and carry it out," he commented. "And he would not be confronted with the problems of re-election immediately after his term began."

Asked if he planned to try to raise the bill, Carmody pointed out it would require 29 votes to do that now, but he would go along with a move to raise it if the other two sponsors were willing.

Sen. Carson, principle introducer of the bill, said "I would like to raise it because I still think it's one of the best bills introduced. But I don't think we could get 29 votes now, and I hate to take up the time trying."

Both he and Sen. Carmody said they felt the bill "got caught in the backwash" when the Government Committee decided to kill reorganization bills introduced with the approval of Gov. Crosby.

"I do not know whether the committee thought this was one of the governor's bills, too, or not," Carmody said.

"I really thought that bill would come out of committee," Carson added.

Arcadia Insurance Man Wins Trip

Kermit R. Erickson, local agent for the New York Life Insurance Company, whose home is in Arcadia, has received notice from the officers of the company that he has qualified as a member of the Top Club Council of the New York Life.

The Top Club Council is made up of the foremost writers of the company, the first 275 agents out of over 5000 in the United States and Canada, make up the club.

Mr. Erickson and his family plan to leave soon for Hollywood, Fla., where the Top Club Council convention will be held at the Hollywood Beach hotel. The trip will include Chicago and other eastern and southern places of interest. On their return trip they plan to stop in Dallas, Tex., and visit with his brother, Raymond Erickson and family.

License Suspended

Gerald Manchester was brought before County Judge Ball Monday charged with unlawfully operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of alcoholic liquor, on Saturday, March 21. He was fined $50.00 and assessed the costs of $7.00 and his driving license was suspended for 90 days.

Miss Lowry, Pretty and Irish, Is New Nurse in the Ord Cooperative Hospital

Young, pretty and decidedly Irish, Miss Louise Lowry, who arrived in Ord last Wednesday, is getting adjusted rapidly to life in the Ord hospital, where she is a newly employed nurse.

She likes the little caps worn in the states by the nurses. In her native country, the nurses wear veils that hang from their caps, the veils extending down the nurses' backs. Furthermore, the nurses there wear black shoes and stockings, but their uniforms are white as are their aprons.

She is of the opinion that women have it easier in the United States than in Ireland. In her native country, the men have more say, and the women are not given as easy a life as American women seem to expect. Furthermore living is much faster here; the people are in more of a hurry and have better things to make work easier. She says the cars are bigger and seem so plentiful, while there are only a few in Ireland. There are more modern conveniences here, such as deep freezers and dish washers and even the modern washing machine is lacking in Ireland.

She likes Ord. She says the people are nice and do all they can to make her feel at home. She hopes to go back to Ireland in a couple of years to see the folks, but she does not wish to stay there. She is surely coming back to the states to make her home.

At present she has a room in the hospital. She was busy making our charts when visited Friday and talking on the hours when she was on and off duty. But, and there is no doubt about it, she believes in the little people and the leprechaun, and was proud to wear her shamrock on St. Patrick's day.

19 Year Olds Can Be Called

John R. Sullivan, clerk of the Selective Service Board for Valley county, says that 19-year-old youths can be drafted if necessary, but that there are none available in Valley county of that age who could be called up in April. The quota for March was also eight, but it was impossible to fill the requirements. A group of seven young men will leave Monday, March 30, for physicals.

Potrzeba Selected for Cornhusker State

The American Legion of Ord has selected Vernon Potrzeba, son of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Potrzeba, a junior in the Ord high school, to represent their post, Fidelity 38, at the Cornhusker Boys State to be held in Lincoln, June 7-13.

The young man is at present busy with various school activities. Being president of the junior class, he thereby has many things relative to the annual junior-senior banquet on his mind. He is a baseball fan and plans to go out for this sport with the high school team. He is a former member of the F.F.A. and is a member of the high school band and the boys glee club.

100 Women Attend Federated Club Meet at North Loup

Clubs of Six Cities Represented at All-Day Convention Tuesday.

The Fortnightly and Nolo clubs were hostesses to the Loup Valley inter-county convention of Women's clubs held Tuesday in the North Loup Seventh Day Baptist church, with about 100 ladies in attendance. Clubs from Loup City, Rockville, Arcadia, Burwell, and Scotia, besides the North Loup clubs were present.

Registration began at 9:30, with Mrs. Wm. Vodehnal and Mrs. Lee Mulligan in charge. During registration Mrs. Francis Saunders played organ music.

Theme for the convention was "America Depends on You," with a quotation from President Eisenhower, "A people that values its privileges more than its principles soon loses both," on the top of the program.

Mrs. D. E. McDonald, Rockville, president, presided and acted as master of ceremonies. Mrs. Charles Zangger gave the address of welcome with Mrs. Bill Bristol, Burwell, replying.

The North Loup grade school presented the oath of allegiance to our country and Mrs. J. A. Miller, at league to God.

Mrs. Kermit Erickson, Arcadia was in charge of group singing and Jeneane Brenneck sang a solo. (Continued on Page 4)

Donna St. John Capped

Mrs. Gus Schoenstein returned home Monday from Chicago where her niece, Donna St. John, was capped Friday night. Miss St. John was one of 76 girls to receive their caps, which were presented by the director of nurses, in the Presbyterian hospital nurses school, which she is a part. Following the capping there was a reception from now on she will have more hospital duties together with her studies. She plans to take her vacation the latter part of June.

Alfalfa Mill Being Readied for Season

A crew of four workmen and manager Gene Kovachs started cleaning, painting and repair operations at the alfalfa mill this week in preparation for their season's run.

Some baled hay will be ground preparatory to the first cutting of alfalfa in this vicinity, according to Kovachs, but the mill will not be running full blast until that time comes.

Park Board Amazed to Find Out Problem Is Not More Trees, But Improved Plantings

Members of the Ord park board, who have been catching community criticism all winter for not making residents termed a "ruthless destruction of trees" were amazed to find Monday that they didn't go far enough.

The board spent most of Monday afternoon in the park conferring with Mort Cooper, Fremont, professional landscape artist, Karl Loerch, state forester, Evan Hartman, conservation director and Carl Dale, county extension agent, to make plans for their coming Arbor Day celebration and tree planting.

Advice from the professionals resulted in a decision that a good many more trees will have to go at future dates, and that plantings in the future will be more along the landscape group and area idea rather than straight lines which made it convenient for mowing.

Sketched out for the board were plantings at both north and south entrances, around the new parking and picnic area, the proposed band area, and a memorial plot near the north park entrance.

Other plans include a few strategic plantings in the golf course to break up the bare expanse of fairway, and one or two shade trees by each tree.

New trees to go in the park, to be planted at a community-wide observance on Arbor Day will be oaks, hornless honey locust, white birch and hackberry, coupled with extensive use of evergreen shrubs, flowering shrubs and some ground cover plantings.

Additional screening is planned for the north side of the football field in the area where many Ord trees, hornless honey locust, white birch and hackberry, coupled with extensive use of evergreen shrubs, flowering shrubs and some ground cover plantings.

Park officials also plan a small nursery in the area where a garden and woodlot has existed in the past. Around a thousand seedlings will be planted in the nursery, both pines and broadleaf trees, as well as some shrubs. The nursery will provide trees for future planting and replacement.

Arbor day plans at the park call for planting of memorial trees by local residents to provide shade for future generations. Parents are asked to plant or furnish trees for their sons or daughters and grandchildren.

Easter Seal Sale Off to Good Start

Don Auble, chairman of the Valley county committee of the Nebraska Society of Crippled Children, says he is well pleased with the response being given already to the sale of Easter seals, sheets of which were mailed out to residents of Valley county last week.

An Easter parade is being planned for Saturday, March 28, in which the members of the Girl Scouts will take part. A feature of this parade will be the Easter lily which each girl will carry, the lily being the insignia of the seals this year.

Members of the Valley county Easter seal committee are Mrs. Ed Apking, Mrs. Glen Auble, E. O. Armstrong, Mrs. Myra T. Barber, Mrs. F. L. Blessing, Mrs. John Chatfield, Lorenda Cronk, who is also secretary-treasurer, Don Edwards, Edward Gnaster, Mrs. Loren Gode, who is vice president, Mrs. Warren Lincoln, Mrs. C. J. Mortensen, one of the state vice presidents, Mrs. L. A. Muney, Mrs. F. Osentowski, Mrs. Herbert Smetts, Mrs. J. E. Whiting, Mrs. Otto Sapp, and Mrs. Lloyd Zikmund, all of Ord; Mrs. Inez Lewin, Arcadia and Mrs. Charles Zangger, North Loup.

Civil Defense Meeting Here Friday Evening

The United States Air Force air defense command will stage another meeting in Ord Friday evening at 8 o'clock at Ord high school to which the public is invited.

Horace Travis, in charge of Ord aircraft spotters, said that officers from the Omaha filter station of the civil defense program would provide the program.

"We need recruits," Travis said, "and I hope that a good crowd will turn out."

2000 Easter Eggs in Hunt April 4th

Two thousand Easter eggs will be hid in the Ord city park in preparation for a grand Easter Egg Hunt, scheduled for Saturday morning, April 4.

The event is planned by the Ord Chamber of Commerce, and all children in the sixth or lower grades will be eligible to hunt. Many prize eggs are among those to be hid, according to Chamber officials.

Members of the Ord Volunteer Fire Department will aid in staging the hunt, unless the weather turns bad in which case the hunt will be indefinitely postponed.

Ord's Junior Legion Boys Practicing; Fast Team Hinted

Sheriff Beran Coaching 22 Hopefuls, Invites Other Candidates.

V. J. Beran, who will supervise Junior Legion Baseball activity in Ord this season, says that he has 22 boys out for practices, many of whom are veterans of last year's team and that he is confident of putting a fast club in the field this summer. Other candidates are invited to come out for practices.

Boys who have looked especially good in early workouts include Jim Douthitt, a catcher, John Douthitt has been shifted from third base to short-stop and two boys, Virgil Falter and Gene Flock are competing for the third base spot. Look out for other candidates who will compete with Ord this year. Jay Hackett, who lives in Kearney but spends summers on a ranch near Ord, may also be back with the Ord club this season.

Coach Beran says the team will play several practice games in May and that the regular district schedule will start in June. He hopes to pilot the team to a win in the sub-district tournament this year and if players perform up to their early season form a win in the district also is not unlikely.

Phil Henck will again coach the Midgets sponsored by the VFW and will call a practice soon.

Band Concert Tuesday, April 7

The Ord high school band, under the direction of Glenn L. Trent, will present its annual spring concert Tuesday evening, April 7, in the high school auditorium. The concert will begin at 8:00 p.m., and there will be an admission charge of 60, 30, and 15 cents.

The Ord band is composed of fifty-nine members at the present time. On this concert, Norman Walker, band president and first chair clarinetist, will play the Weber, "Concertino" clarinet solo with band accompaniment. A cornet trio will also be featured in a special selection, and the band will play an assortment of outstanding overtures, marches, and novelties.

Everyone in the community is urged to attend the band concert, and the money will help defray transportation costs to the District IV music contest in Kearney.

Red Cross Report

Rev. Keith A. Shepherd, chairman of the drive for Red Cross funds in Valley County, reports that to date the sum of $500 has been turned in, with about another week to go. This sum represents the money received from a part of the business district of Ord, and from a part of the wards. So far nothing has been heard from the other communities and school districts.

An Hour With the Mathematics Classes
 A cube or a coin, whatever it be, Mathematics began.

Seventh and eighth grade mathematics classes, which in other days were designated as arithmetic classes, were deep in angles when visited a few weeks back. These are in junior high school classes, and so might be called a starter to the more advanced classes in the high school. Yet all of this arithmetic had its start in the lowest grades when little folks learned to count and to write the numbers, and then the various processes in which these figures had to be used. It sort of seems that if they had known what they were in for in the twelve years ahead, they might have simply given the whole thing up. It is a safe wager that they have wanted to, many and many a time.

And yet, under the direction of Maude Holden, veteran math teacher in the Ord high school, and holding office after office among the state mathematics organizations, the study is waxing along, and what is more it is interesting.

And for one reason, Miss Holden is making her work with the students read. Her room on the east side of the second floor, has many objects to be used in showing how mathematics can be put to a practical use. Here are found cubes and cones and circles, a slide rule that almost covers a blackboard on one of the walls, and a whole bulletin board full of pertinent clippings from an income tax form, to a liability insurance book.

Miss Holden also believes in having those in the know assist her. So it was that on a week ago Ed Armstrong was before the class in Consumers Arithmetic, and spoke during the full hour on the how and wherefore of life insurance. By means of a chart which filled the entire board he explained first the meaning of the mortality table, and how such was set up. And though the class is made up of young people, from freshmen to seniors, there was the closest attention given to Mr. Armstrong's talk.

He explained premium rates and why rates were higher the older the applicants were, and urged the young people when they were earning for themselves to save for old age, in one way or another, but since he was talking on insurance, he explained that as a way to save money. He also told about endowments, and what they mean, and how they could be arranged, answered many questions which were put to him by the students.

Miss Holden explained that at one time Mr. Bellinger, who looks after the unemployment situation in Valley county had appeared before the group and explained unemployment insurance, and the work that he was doing. At other times the representative of the social security work, who visits the county regularly under the auspices of the welfare board, had spoken to the young folks. This year, however a series of films were used showing the work.

At another time, Supt. C. C. Thompson had appeared and spoke to the class regarding taxes, especially in regard to the school, how taxes were raised and the levies made, and also how the money thus raised was prorated among the various uses of the school.

The book the young folks are using seems to be very interesting, some of the subjects that they have discussed or will take up dealing with statistics, who makes such and the use of these columns of rather dry figures. However the young folks do not consider statistics dry since by the use of these figures they are taught better buying.

They learn all about consumers credit, and what it means and costs to buy on the installment plan, and why it costs more in the long run. They learn how to get bank loans, and how to figure interest. They learn how to make budgets, whether or not it is possible to stay within such.

They learn all about taxation, whether it be income, sales, property, tangible or intangible. Booklets were not required but several students made some very interesting picture books on this vital matter, showing with pictures just where the tax dollar goes. Miss Holden says the young folks who made the book received an extra credit.

In fact, the students in this class are learning much that older persons would give a great deal to have known before they went into business. And to aid them further, their teacher is seeing to it that they are learning their consumers arithmetic with actual experience methods.

But all of Miss Holden's mathematics classes do not deal with Consumers' Mathematics. There is her class, for instance in freshman algebra. This is a large class and has been divided to accommodate the youngsters who have other classes and activities in which they take part.

The first class to recite comes at the first period in the day, and the second class follows. Both are in the throes of complex fractions and equations.

Miss Holden handed back certain papers that had been corrected, and read the answers from her answer book. She explained that some of the answers had been found to be incorrect, and the class was correcting them, which answers were to be sent to the publisher. She said that apparently the book with the lessons and the answer book had not been proof read at the same time. When there appeared to be a wrong answer, the problem was worked and checked several times, until it was a sure thing that the answers in the book were wrong.

After going over the papers, the class, which was made up of three boys and 27 girls were sent to the board, and problems were given out in complex fractions, which the young folks worked.

There was one set of twins in the class, and one "south-paw," but the entire group worked fast and hard and really knew the answers. It might be of interest to learn that nowadays in algebra, a small dot is used for the multiplication sign, instead of an x, since there is so much use of the letter x in the problems.

In the second class, there are 26 boys and three girls, and the same methods were used, with papers being handed back and checked, and worked at the board. Miss Holden is always ready to help and seemed to have eyes in the back of her head, for she could sense when someone or any one for that matter needed help, and was there to give it.

In another class visited, she is really giving attention to two classes in one. This time is devoted to a class of advanced students who are taking trigonometry, also to others who are taking solid geometry work; through extension, are assisted by Miss Holden. The being assisted by Miss Holden. The other class is made up of students who are majoring in mathematics. The class was small on Thursday, since many of the group had gone to Kearney to take part in the speech contests.

SHORT STORY
Not His Fault
 By Richard Hill

SLATER WELLINGTON'S mother always said that her son was destined to become a writer.

"He writes such lovely letters," she declared. "I'm sure he'll make his mark some day in the literary world."

Friends of Mrs. Wellington smiled and exchanged knowing glances. They'd heard mothers talk about their offspring before.

By the time Slater was graduated from college Mrs. Wellington was more than ever convinced he was going to be a great writer.

And Slater, who had always depended much on his mother's advice, agreed that writing would be pleasant work, and maybe he did have some talent.

And so, after a month's vacation, he fixed up a room in the old Wellington home and sat himself down to become a writer. He sat for a long time, chewing pencil ends, before writing a word.

He spent a whole morning trying to get going. At noon he gave up and went out to play golf. The next day he tried it again, and succeeded after a fashion, in outlining the skeleton of a story. It was a very short story, and sounded pretty terrible when he read it over.

He sat for a long time, chewing pencil ends, before writing a word.

young folks do not consider statistics dry since by the use of these figures they are taught better buying.

They learn all about consumers credit, and what it means and costs to buy on the installment plan, and why it costs more in the long run. They learn how to get bank loans, and how to figure interest. They learn how to make budgets, whether or not it is possible to stay within such.

They learn all about taxation, whether it be income, sales, property, tangible or intangible. Booklets were not required but several students made some very interesting picture books on this vital matter, showing with pictures just where the tax dollar goes. Miss Holden says the young folks who made the book received an extra credit.

In fact, the students in this class are learning much that older persons would give a great deal to have known before they went into business. And to aid them further, their teacher is seeing to it that they are learning their consumers arithmetic with actual experience methods.

But all of Miss Holden's mathematics classes do not deal with Consumers' Mathematics. There is her class, for instance in freshman algebra. This is a large class and has been divided to accommodate the youngsters who have other classes and activities in which they take part.

The first class to recite comes at the first period in the day, and the second class follows. Both are in the throes of complex fractions and equations.

Miss Holden handed back certain papers that had been corrected, and read the answers from her answer book. She explained that some of the answers had been found to be incorrect, and the class was correcting them, which answers were to be sent to the publisher. She said that apparently the book with the lessons and the answer book had not been proof read at the same time. When there appeared to be a wrong answer, the problem was worked and checked several times, until it was a sure thing that the answers in the book were wrong.

After going over the papers, the class, which was made up of three boys and 27 girls were sent to the board, and problems were given out in complex fractions, which the young folks worked.

There was one set of twins in the class, and one "south-paw," but the entire group worked fast and hard and really knew the answers. It might be of interest to learn that nowadays in algebra, a small dot is used for the multiplication sign, instead of an x, since there is so much use of the letter x in the problems.

In the second class, there are 26 boys and three girls, and the same methods were used, with papers being handed back and checked, and worked at the board. Miss Holden is always ready to help and seemed to have eyes in the back of her head, for she could sense when someone or any one for that matter needed help, and was there to give it.

In another class visited, she is really giving attention to two classes in one. This time is devoted to a class of advanced students who are taking trigonometry, also to others who are taking solid geometry work; through extension, are assisted by Miss Holden. Obituary

CARL ERICKSON

Carl Davis Erickson was born May 4, 1893 on a farm in Saunders county, Nebr., near the town of Wahoo. He departed this life on March 17, 1953 at the age of 60 years, 10 months and 13 days. He was the third child of Gustave Albert and Ulrika Sophia Erickson, one of a family of eight children who have all preceded him in death except for one brother, Conrad Erickson of Newman Grove, Nebr. Carl was confirmed in the Swedish Lutheran church at an early age.

When Carl was two years of age the Erickson family moved by covered wagon to a farm in Madison county, Nebr., north of Newman Grove. The Erickson family lived north of Newman Grove until Carl was ten years of age when they moved to southern Texas. They lived in Texas for six years and then returned to Nebraska and located on a farm approximately 5 miles northwest of Albion, Nebr. Carl lived on this farm and in the Albion community until the spring of 1906 when he moved to Wheeler county, Nebr., in 1907 he moved onto the place which he occupied till his death.

On September 27, 1916, Carl married Mary Isabella Allard at Spalding, Nebr. To this union six children were born, Ira, Conrad and Irene of Burwell, Nebr., Leonard and Gailord of Ericson, and Gustave of Lincoln.

Carl leaves in this life, his wife, Mary, all of his six children; a daughter-in-law, Jeanette, Ira's wife and their children, Thomas and Kathleen; a son-in-law, Gerald Larsen, Irene's husband, and their child, Judy; a brother, Conrad; seven nieces and nephews, and a host of other relatives and friends.

Funeral services were held at the Methodist church in Ericson Friday, March 20, at 1:00 p.m., with Rev. Charles Cox in charge. Interment was at the Rose Hill cemetery at Albion.

The pallbearers were Irving Westcott of Burwell, Stanley Baker, Lloyd Kasselder, Peter Dahlstein, Charles Davlin and James Booth, all of Ericson.

CHARLES HANSON

Funeral services were held from the Hastings-Pearson chapel Friday afternoon for Charles Hanson, who died on March 17 in Ord. Rev. C. Jeppesen conducted the service. Mrs. Leslie Nash as soloist, accompanied by Mrs. Orin Kellison as organist, sang "Going Down the Valley" and "Does Jesus Care?"

Bearers were Chris Hansen, Henry Enger, Walter Whipple, Henry Stara, E. Clement and Henry Benn. Interment was made in the Ord City cemetery with Hastings-Pearson mortuary in charge of the arrangements.

Charles Hanson was born in Sweden on August 24, 1866, to Hans Peter and Charlotte Hanson. In 1887 he came to Iowa from Sweden. Later he moved to Hay Springs, Nebr., where he worked on the railroad.

In 1898 he came to Ord, and in 1925, he was married to Mrs. Ida

Erickson in Council Bluffs, Ia. He and his wife moved to Kearney, where he maintained a fruit farm. Here his wife died in 1921, leaving two sons, Charles and John Erickson, whom he cared for until they finished school.

Later he moved to Hooper, where he cared for a small acreage until poor health forced him to enter a nursing home in Dodge county. In 1931 he moved back to Ord, where he made his home in the Whipple Nursing Home until November when he fell and broke his hip. He was in the Ord hospital until February when he returned to the nursing home.

On Sunday, March 15, a sudden illness seized him and he died in his sleep at 4 o'clock Tuesday morning, March 17.

He was 86 years, six months, and 23 days of age. He is survived by his step sons, Charles and John Erickson of Seattle, Wash., nine nieces and nephews. His niece, Mrs. F. H. Kuehl, has befriended him in all ways, during his stay in the hospital and the nursing home. Many called Charles Hanson a friend.

Funeral services were held from the Farina Seventh Day Baptist church on March 14, conducted by his son, Rev. Carroll L. Hill and interment was made in the Farina cemetery.

JOSIE SAMLA

Last rites were held on Wednesday afternoon, March 25, in the Hastings-Pearson Chapel for Mrs. Josie Samla, who died on March 22. Rev. Keith Shepherd officiated. Sharon Jean Hastings, as soloist, sang "But the Lord is Mindful of His Own," accompanied by the organist, Ruth Ollis.

Pallbearers were Joe Kreilek Sr., Mike Noha, Ben Maly, Lou Zablouk, Steve Papiernik and Frank Pesek.

Burial was made in the Ord Bohemian cemetery, with the Hastings-Pearson Mortuary in charge of the arrangements.

Mrs. Josie Samla, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Provisek, was born in Czechoslovakia on March 1, 1880 and passed away at the farm home of her daughter, Mrs. Mary Zmrhal March 22, 1953, after an illness of several years, of which the last six months she was bedfast. She lived 21 days past her 73rd birthday.

She was married to Joseph Samla at Ord in 1904. They lived on their farm home until 1930 when they moved to Ord and lived here ever since.

She leaves to mourn her passing one sister, Mary Pesek of Comstock; three brothers, Joseph, Frank and Jim Provisek, all of Czechoslovakia; three grandchildren and one great grandchild. Her husband preceded her in death in 1952.

Bearers were Chris Hansen, Henry Enger, Walter Whipple, Henry Stara, E. Clement and Henry Benn. Interment was made in the Ord City cemetery with Hastings-Pearson mortuary in charge of the arrangements.

REV. CLAUDE L. HILL

Claude Lawrence Hill was born to Castello and Eva Davis Hill on April 24, 1878 in North Loup, Nebr. He died in Vandalia, Ill., on Wednesday, March 11, 1953. When quite young he went to work to help support his parents and two ill children of his father.

In 1893, he enlisted in the National Guard and was mustered out two weeks later. At once he enlisted for the Spanish American war and was made a corporal. He was in Chickatungua Park in Georgia and in Fort Omaha before his discharge.

In 1899 he was married to Cora Brace in North Loup. She died in Farina, Ill. In May 1933, he was married to Hazel Farris of Farina, Ill., who with his three sons and two daughters survive him.

Much of his earlier life was spent in farming. He was also associated with Bert Cummins in auctioneering.

In 1923 he was ordained in the Christian ministry in the Seventh Day Baptist faith. He served churches in Welton, Ia., Farina, Ill., and in North Loup.

He held many important civic and church offices during his life both in Illinois and Nebraska. His wife and children, he is survived by his eight grandchildren, two brothers and many friends.

Funeral services were held from the Farina Seventh Day Baptist church on March 14, conducted by his son, Rev. Carroll L. Hill and interment was made in the Farina cemetery.

Brings Family Back

Rev. David Schwartz went to Minnesota Wednesday, where he was to officiate at a wedding in Mankato, the first of the week. Later he was to go to Duluth, where his family have been staying for some time. He expects to return to Ord next week and will be accompanied by his wife and three little girls. The parsonage of the Bethel Baptist church has been newly cleaned and renovated for this new family.

Attended Funeral

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Behrends, who now live in Scottsbluff, spent the weekend in Ord, the guests of their son, Bernard and family. On Sunday they with Bernard and another son, Sgt. Don Behrends, who is stationed in Omaha, went to Central City, where they attended the funeral of a relative, Mr. and Mrs. Behrends and Sgt. Don Behrends left for Scottsbluff and Omaha on Monday.

Oil People Visit

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Nix and tiny baby who are now located in Kearney, spent Sunday with Mrs. Edith Jones. Mr. Nix and his wife lived in Mrs. Jones' apartment when the people who were engaged in exploring for oil were in Ord last summer. They came to Ord this time to show their baby to Mrs. Jones.

Is Very Sick

Dr. Otis Miller was called to the Joe Lukesh home Saturday evening to see Mr. Lukesh, who has been very ill for the past several weeks. His condition does not seem to improve.

Had Operation

Vernon Nay went to Rochester, Minn., Friday, where on Tuesday he had an operation on his throat. His mother, Mrs. George Nay, went to Rochester Monday to be with him.

To Convention

Emil Babka and Adolph Seveker, manager of the Ord Cooperative creamery, and buttermaker, went to Omaha Wednesday to attend the convention of the Nebraska Cooperative Creameries. The convention extended until Thursday evening.

Pack Meeting

The regular pack meeting of the Cub Scouts will be held on Friday evening, March 27, instead of Thursday evening, the usual time. This will be in the grade school building and will open at 7:30 p.m. Cub Scouts, their leaders and families are invited to attend.

Lived Here Long Ago

Ord visitors on Tuesday were Mrs. W. J. Bellport nee Gertrude Ager, who now lives in Cloverdale, Calif., and her sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Anderson of Lincoln. Mrs. Anderson was the former Belle Ager.

Both ladies formerly lived in Ord, being the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Ager. The family moved from Ord about 50 years ago in 1905. Mrs. Bellport had visited in Ord some 15 years ago.

She has been spending the winter in Lincoln with her sister. She plans to leave for California Thursday. She has a son who with his family also lives in Cloverdale.

Mrs. Bellport says she finds many changes in Ord and many for the better. While here she called on Mr. and Mrs. Bud Shirley and thought both looked well.

Here for Funeral

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar F. Rose of Kellogg, Ia., and Charles Erickson and John Erickson of Seattle, Wash., arrived Thursday for the funeral of Charles Hanson. The visitors were hosts guests of the R. N. Rose and F. H. Kuehl family.

Visited Sister

Mrs. Will Treptow recently received a letter from her daughter, Loretta May Achen, who is a nurse in Amarillo, Tex. Miss Achen told her mother of a visit she had made with her sister, Mrs. Wayne Goff, in Puerto Rico. Mrs. Goff is with her husband, who is stationed there with the United States air force. Miss Achen spent two weeks with her sister and has returned to her work in Texas.

Receives Scholarship

Relatives and friends have just learned that June Isbrandtson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Isbrandtson, who is taking nurses' training in the University of Nebraska, has been awarded a scholarship presented by the Daughters of the G.A.R. The scholarship is awarded for outstanding work in the nurses' college. Miss Isbrandtson will be capped on Sunday, Her parents, who live on the George Boettger place in Mira Valley, plan to attend.

She is a graduate of the Loup City high school. She has also taken work in the Northwestern Bible college. After she has finished her training, she plans to become a missionary.

SPORT STORY

Squinty

By Charles Hill

THE MAN who sat in a corner of the railroad station reading the newspaper, was not much to look at. The suit he wore lacked newness, as did his shoes and the battered felt hat.

The man who sat in the adjoining seat saw suddenly and for no apparent reason a change come over the face of his companion.

"What's happened?" he wanted to know.

Squinty Yardling thoughtfully folded the paper. "I just read where my old man died."

"Yeah?"

"The old man was worth about half a million. And I was his only kid." Beetle shifted back to his other hip and looked interested. "Ran away from home, didn't yuh? he asked.

Squinty nodded slowly. "Forget it then," Beetle advised. "The old coat probably made a will leaving it to some home."

"Maybe," Squinty agreed, still deep in thought. "Maybe. But a half million is a lot of money."

"Cracky! I knew it. Old Caleb never forgets a face," the agent said.

Two days later, a slow-moving freight deposited two dirt-be-smeared and grimy looking men in the coal yards just beyond the Littleton depot. The pair waited until the freight's caboose had vanished 'round a curve, then climbed back to the tracks. Without a word Squinty led the way back to the depot and entered the wash room through the outside door. Ten minutes later when the two emerged it was to confront old Caleb Hawkins.

The old man peered at the two strangers over the top of his spectacles. "Cracky!" he exclaimed. "Ain't you Jim Yardling's boy, Paul?"

"Well, what if I am?"

"Cracky! I knew it. Old Caleb never forgets a face." His eyes, behind their thick lenses, were suddenly shrewd. "Come back to claim your pappy's fortune, have yuh? Well, son, you better turn right around and go back where you come from. Old Jim left the whole kit and caboodle to Katie Armstrong."

"Who's she?"

"She's the gal he adopted after you ran away. She's deservin' of all he left."

Squinty sneered. "While his own son goes hungry, I suppose?"

WITH BEETLE still in tow, Squinty struck out for the town's main street.

Presently they came to the town's only office building. With Beetle still following, Squinty mounted to the second floor, and entered an office.

An elderly man looked up and nodded. The elderly man was in conversation with a young girl. The elderly man was saying "Of course it was an oversight. Your father intended to sign the will. I witnessed it myself. It was just sheer negligence."

The girl's voice was troubled. "I do hope everything will turn out all right. Of course, if Paul Yardling is alive, the money rightfully belongs to him, even though father did intend I should have it."

She went out and the elderly man spoke to Squinty.

"Was there something I could do?"

Squinty's eyes were on the door, through which the girl had gone. He roused himself when Beetle nudged him.

"Eh? Something you can do? Well, no. No, we were thinking about putting across a little deal. But things have changed."

Squinty was pushing Beetle through the door.

"Hey, what's the idea? You gone nuts? Didn't you hear what they said? The money's yours!"

"Sure, I heard 'em. Sure. What about it?"

"Well, what's the idea? Where you going? Ain't you going to do nothin' about it?"

"Sure, Sure, I'm going to do something. A lot. On my way now."

"What you going to do?"

"We're on our way, son. On our way to really do something. We're going down and see that station agent. Going to convince him I'm not Paul Yardling. Really do something. Get it?"

Name Chairman of M S Drive in State

Stanford Lipsy has just been named chairman of the Multiple Sclerosis drive in Nebraska, according to an announcement made today by the National Multiple Sclerosis society.

The Nebraska chapter seeks to raise $10,000 during the months of March and April as part of a nationally announced goal of $1,200,000. These funds are vital to a nation-wide program of research, clinics, rehabilitation, and service for the approximately quarter of a million people afflicted with multiple sclerosis.

Multiple sclerosis is a chronic, crippling disease of the central nervous system which affects about 250,000 people in this country. Most of these are in the 20 and 40, in their prime of life. Most common symptoms are: impaired vision, lack of balance, tremors, difficulty in walking, numbness of parts of the body, impaired speech, and lack of bladder control. The cause and control for this baffler are not now known. The National Multiple Sclerosis society, since its inception six years ago, has supported 27 research projects and eight multiple sclerosis clinics.

100 Women Attend Federated Club Meet at North Loup

After the business session, Merce Owens of Loup City told of Washington during the recent inauguration.

Mrs. Dan McDonald of Loup City spoke on education and library. Special music by Mrs. Erickson was followed by club reports in charge of Mrs. Gaylord Wallace, Burwell.

A get-acquainted mixer preceded the luncheon which was served in the basement by the Dr. Grace Missionary society. Tables were beautiful with pastel colored cloths, pin dolls and betterflies. The dolls had realistic hand-painted faces and real hair and each held a flower in her hand. These were the work of members of the Fortnightly club. These dolls were given as favors.

Following the lunch hour, the high school girls chorus sang two numbers and Jeaneae Brennick played two organ numbers, "Star Dust" and "You'll Never Walk Alone."

Address of the afternoon was given by Mrs. Jean Hughes of Broken Bow, who spoke on polio. Mrs. Hughes is physical therapist for the Nebraska Crippled Children's clinic for this district and spoke to an attentive audience on the changes in polio treatment in the recent years and the value of physical therapy. Mrs. Hughes says she feels sure the time is coming when polio will be conquered.

The scholarship loan march was preceded by a few brief remarks by Mrs. Butts of Burwell.

"The American Home" was the subject of remarks made by Mrs. Belva Lowery, of Burwell. She was

Old School Teacher in New Location

An interesting visitor in the Ord office Wednesday, was Rev. Roy Frazier, whose home is in Worcester, Mass. Rev. Frazier, who at the present time is chaplain in the Odd Fellows home in that city, was a former school teacher in Valley county. He came to Nebraska from Iowa in 1896 and taught in the old Shepard District, "across the river" which later became part of the Scotia Consolidated District. He also taught school in the Barker District, which school is one of the oldest in the county, being numbered 3, and which is now taught by Mrs. Evelyn Murphy.

Many of his former students have died, but among the living can be named Boyd Mulligan and E. O. Schudel of North Loup.

While in the Shepard District, he boarded with the Clint Schalk family. This family moved to California several years ago, and some are still living there.

Slow Coming In

Henry Stars, with his assistants, Mrs. Lloyd Griffith, Rudolph Kraulik and E. O. Hackel say that this year those who are coming to their office to make out their tax schedules are slower than they have ever been before. Generally, they say, there are several who make it a point to have their schedules made out early, and who appear during the first week but this time this has not happened. All wish to remind tax payers that the dead line is still April 20, in spite of the later date in getting started with the work.

Ord Visitors, Recently Home from Japan, Say Island Empire Is Being Westernized

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rice, visitors in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Dale, recently returned from Japan and have much of interest to tell of this place which was their home for almost a year of their married life. Mr. Rice was in the army and had received his discharge. Mrs. Rice was employed as a clerk-typist for the government.

Both had an opportunity to see the transitions that seem to be going on in this island empire, especially as they affect the people. Mr. Rice is of the opinion that all are becoming westernized as fast as they have the means to do so, but as the whole nation is impoverished, both occidental and oriental conditions exist.

Before her marriage, Mrs. Rice lived in government housing units, made from Quonsets. Her work was with the signal corps. Mr. Rice and she both were stationed in Yokohama. She was housed with 35 girls.

One of the first things that they saw, and that they seem to remember is the dirt. The country is wet, and damp, and there is plenty of mud. When this turns to dust, then there is plenty of dirt. The houses even now are as they were built centuries ago, of paper with shingles on the floors and the walls covered with straw mats. Some of the homes have glass windows, but most of the windows are still of paper. One of the reasons for the flimsy homes is that wood is scarce and the cost is prohibitive. Another reason is the poverty of the people again.

Mr. and Mrs. Rice say that there is no middle class among the Japanese. Fully 90% of the people live in abject poverty, as we would see it. The other 10% are considered wealthy. The average salary of an average Japanese with a family amounts to about $1,000 yen a year, or $30.00 a month.

The national food is the same as it was centuries ago, rice and raw fish. The food is cooked over charcoal fires, the same as the people used long ago. Not enough rice is raised to supply the needs and the rest must be imported. Some vegetables are raised, as there is room, but the country is still over crowded.

Beds are still made up on the floor, with quilts above and below, and the families still squat at their meals. Many of them still use their national costume with wooden shoes or clogs, and the graceful kimonos, but a change is being plements, the houses being made without nails, the frames of which are notched and fitted together, and most of the farming is still being done by hand.

A farm may consist of two acres, which is a big one. However, the land is broken up into a bit here and a bit there, with other persons owning the pieces in between. Children are still carried on the backs of their mothers — if she is otherwise employed, on the back of an older sister. Wrestling is a favorite sport, the wrestlers being extremely fat, and are kept on special diets to be that way.

The rural part of Japan is beautiful. They are wonderful gardeners and even if they have but two trees, it is called a garden. They train their trees into beautiful pipes and plant and tend their flowers into places of beauty.

But on the other side, the side of the changing Japan, there is still much to be said. Efforts are being made to stamp out the dread tuberculosis that is rampant there. The damp climate, the inadequate food, bedding and clothing, have all helped to make this sickness prevalent. The doctors are striving to help the people to have established hospitals and rest homes, and are trying to help the people to have better living conditions.

No longer are the army and navy in Japan on an occupational basis, but for security both to them and to us. In other words Japan is now an outpost.

The American soldiers have found many of the children to be lovable and well behaved. Several of the orphanages are sponsored by the GIs, and help to see that the little charges which are well behaved and nice, to have better advantages for health and care.

It was of interest to both Mr. and Mrs. Rice to meet some former Ord people while in Japan. Among these were Willard Stowell, who was recently discharged from the army. They also saw Joe Kominek, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. Kominek, who was flying with the Military Air Transport Service. Another from this vicinity was Mrs. Frank Lee, the former Jacqueline Meyers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Art Meyers of Burwell, but who attended school here. Mrs. Lee's husband is in the navy.

It is still a country of festivals, and some of these festivals have been held for centuries back. Many can remember reading in old geography books of the festival of dolls. This is still carried on the same way that it was long ago. There are also kite festivals, cherry blossom festivals, the new moon feast and the chrysanthemum festival. The new year festival is the big time in Japan, and they still make it a point to start the new year with all their debts paid.

There are few if any modern improvements, the houses being made without nails, the frames of which are notched and fitted together, and most of the farming is still being done by hand.

Kolaches Are Most Popular in Ord as 'Special Bread' for Easter Time Serving

Bread being the staff of life, it is not strange that it is served at every meal and on every day. It is not strange, either that a "dressed up" bread should be made to honor special occasions. There are many ceremonies connected with bread and also many superstitions, many of which seem foolish now, but which meant a lot in other days.

No doubt cooks in other places shine in making a particular kind of bread, and a bread that is "a must" at Easter. In Ord, there are some families who must have one kind and some another, but all the cooks are one in saying that they will make a special fancy bread to adorn the Easter breakfast table or even for the festive dinner or afternoon coffee lunch.

It has been a sort of a game to get some of the recipes from these older cooks. All begin to smile and say, "Recipes?" as if they were not exactly sure what was meant by this question. Then they would say without hesitation that they followed no recipes but they just knew how their particular dish would be and while they never measured, they could sort of sense the amount of flour and sugar to use. This is possible, too, for many of them have been cooking for over 50 years and many for large families.

Some have been reminded that nobody can make the Bohemian kolaches as well as the Ord women. It seems that there is a special touch given them that makes these delicious breads even more delicious.

But when asked, they do not have a recipe. Mrs. A. J. Adamek says that she takes her flour and salt and sugar, and rubs her fat into the sifted dry ingredients. But she says she does not measure but makes what she thinks she wants. Then she seals the milk and after it has cooled she puts in whole eggs which she beats well and then combines with the yeast which she has soaked in warm water.

She says the dough is somewhat softer than for regular bread, and that she takes it up with a spoon, for shaping on her sheet. Then she makes a depression in the small ball, and fills with the chopped fruit, prunes, or apricots or what she wishes to use, and after the dough is risen to the desired degree, the kolaches are baked.

She learned how to make kolaches from her mother, but she has also learned much from experience. She does not care about ice box dough but makes her "ak wack" dough by planning to make several for her Easter meals, and says that she always has. For Easter she tries to make the treats a bit richer than for ordinary occasions. She flavors her baking with a bit of mace.

On the other hand, Mrs. Vincent Kokes says she does not use the whole egg in her dough but the yolks only because she likes the taste and way for taste food. She also has no recipe and does not bake many any more, but in her time she has made her share. She cooks the fruit she uses and runs it through the food grinder. She says that with the canned products on hand, it is much easier to prepare the fruit since it is already prepared. She uses plenty of shortening because she wants the dough to be rich and good. She too, has made plenty of these rolls for the Easter time but does not plan to make any at this time, unless she changes her mind.

She remembers the kolaches that her mother used to make in Wahoo, when she was a girl. And while she does not have her mother's recipe, she does pattern after the old rule in some ways. She says that her mother made them every week. When asked what kind of fruit her mother used in the bad times of early Nebraska, Mrs. Kokes said that there were always dried apples and dried prunes which could be used. There was also the wild fruit, plums and gooseberries, but these she said were not as popular as the prunes and apricots.

She used to like to make kolaches with poppy seed filling, which her family and friends enjoyed. She says that the seed cannot be stored after it is ground, because it becomes bitter, and has to be used fresh. She liked to mix the seed with cream and put in a bit of orange rind.

Mrs. Julius Vala says that kolaches must be rich to be good, and must have plenty of cream and butter and sugar, also not to think it is possible to stint with the eggs.

Two ways you can protect your family against CANCER

... a check ... a check-up

Cancer strikes in one of every two families. Each year more than 60,000 American children under the age of eighteen lose a parent to cancer.

Yet many cancers can be cured, if discovered in time.

Every man should have a complete physical examination once a year. Women over thirty-five should have a complete physical examination twice a year. Patients are being saved today who could not have been saved even a few years ago.

The American Cancer Society asks your help.

How soon we find cancer's cause and cure depends on how soon and how much help comes from people like you.

Send contribution to Cancer, to your local Post Office. "Cancer strikes One in Five STRIKE BACK... Give to Conquer Cancer!"

THE ORD QUIZ

FERTILIZER

We have in the warehouse as this is written 15-15-0, 0-20-20, 10-20-10, 20-0-0.

Then we have to arrive this week six truckloads of mixed Fertilizer. We will have 13-13-8, 15-15-0 with Aldrin, 15-15-0, 10-20-10, 10-20-0, 0-20-20, 0-30-0.

About April 1st we will have a large car of 25-0-0 Nitrogen and then we will have two cars of 26-0-0 arriving in May.

Many of the Fertilizer Plants have about all of their production for the next three months all sold out. We still recommend that you get your fertilizer at the first opportunity and get it in storage so that you know you will have it when you want it.

Soil Testing. Have you had a soil test made of your farm so that you know what you need in fertilizer. We can have that test made for you at a cost of only $1.00 per sample. It is remarkable the great change in the need for fertilizers in the last few years. A few years ago it was thought that Nitrogen was about the only element that you needed. However today most of the soil tests that we send in show the need for Phosphorus and Potash as much as you need Nitrogen.

It would be a very good plan to use a Starter Fertilizer on your corn this year. A starter fertilizer will give you an earlier maturing corn next fall.

Come in and see us about the fertilizer that you need.

Other guests at the Andersens home for the week end were Mrs. E. O. Carlson of O'Neill, Mr. Carlson returned to O'Neill Monday, but Mrs. Carlson plans to remain until Thursday. A daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andersen, who is a student in Lincoln also spent the week end at home.

Guests at Andersens

Married 54 Years

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Parks celebrated the 54th anniversary of their marriage very quietly Sunday, their guests at dinner being their son and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Parks, and daughter of North Platte, also Mr. and Mrs. Charles Burdick.

The dinner table was decorated with white candles and yellow spring flowers. Other decorations consisted of a bouquet sent to Mr. and Mrs. Parks by their daughter Mrs. DeWitt Williamson, the former Elma Parks, of Portland, Ore. also by their daughter-in-law, Mrs. Edna Parks, and family, in Portland. The wedding cake was baked by Mrs. Lloyd Parks, and was charmingly decorated with yellow roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Parks were married in Ord 54 years ago, and have remained here ever since.

Celebrates 71st Birthday

Phil Osentowski celebrated his 71st birthday Sunday, when a number of relatives were his guests. These included Mr. and Mrs. Tom Osentowski and family, Mr. and Mrs. Alozy Osentowski and family, Mr. and Mrs. Max Osentowski and sons, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Osentowski and family, and Mr. and Mrs. Chet Papiernik and family. The guests brought the lunch which was served, the birthday cake being baked by Mrs. Max Osentowski. He received many nice gifts. Mr. Osentowski was born and has spent all of his 71 years on the place where he now lives.

Celebrate Anniversaries

Thursday, March 19, marked the 40th wedding anniversary of Rev. and Mrs. E. H. Sohl, minister of the Mira Valley E.U.B. church. In honor of this occasion a hundred friends and relatives of the Sohls gathered at the church for a 7:00 o'clock covered dish supper and program. It was planned as a surprise and was successfully carried out as such. Since this date also marked the 34th anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Geweke, and Mr. and Mrs. Will Koelling were to observe their 35th anniversary within a few days, these two couples were also included in the observance and much to their surprise all were presented with corsages and bouquets.

The program included songs and poems, a few jokes delecting the courtship and married life of Rev. and Mrs. Sohl. A lovely 3 tier wedding cake and candles graced the honored table. Candles and small potted plants formed center pieces for the other tables. Two of Rev. and Mrs. Sohl's six children were present for the occasion, Mrs. Margaret Zwonesheck and 2 sons from DeWitt, and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Sohl of Mira Valley. The ruby is the 40th year stone and as a remembrance of this happy event, Rev. and Mrs. Sohl were presented with beautiful ruby rings.

Supper Guests

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Rohla entertained at supper Wednesday evening the following friends, Mr. and Mrs. Will Misko, Mr. and Mrs. T. Knezeck, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Rutar, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Rutar, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Benda and her mother, Mrs. Cecelia Absalon, and Mr. and Mrs. George Cetak. The evening was spent in playing cards.

At Pinochle

Mrs. Will Bartlett entertained a number of friends at her home Thursday afternoon at pinochle. Guests were Mrs. Ella Beehrle, Mrs. Pat Wray, Mrs. Christina Velcha, Mrs. Iwanski, Mrs. Stanley Petka, Mrs. John Ciochon and Mrs. George Zikmund. Mrs. Bartlett served lunch. Mrs. Iwanski won high score, Mrs. Ella Beehrle, second high, and Mrs. Stanley Petka, low.

BPW Club

Guests at the regular meeting of the Business and Professional Women's club Tuesday evening were Henry Benda, Dr. F. L. Blessing, and Dr. Robert Lynn. With this meeting, plans were set in motion for a Clean-Up Week in Ord, the week of April 6 to 13, being set as the time.

Mrs. Alcen Papiernik, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce, took some of the advertising plans made by the Chamber to carry out Clean Up Week. Mrs. Joe Ruzicka is program chairman. Mrs. Papiernik and Helen Gzhevski were hostesses at the regular dinner served. The Easter theme was used in the table decorations and in the place cards at each plate.

Neighborhood Sisters Club

Neighborhood Sisters met at the home of Mrs. L. F. Zablouid on March 18 with 13 members and one guest, Mrs. J. Valasek, present. The Collect was read and several songs were sung by the group. Roll call was answered with a handy hint on pastry. Mrs. Jos. Bonne presented the lesson on pastry and pie making. Lemon fluff pie was made, all those present assisting with the lesson. Mrs. Frank Novak received a Secret Sister gift. Mrs. Jos. Bonne and Mrs. Gary Krikac received the door prize. Mrs. A. Novolny entertained with games and prizes, after which a lunch was served by the hostess. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Lew Zadina, Wednesday, April 15.

Brownie Scouts

Brownie Scouts, Troop 1, met on Tuesday evening after school with Gay Dean Wigent. New officers were elected during the business meeting, being president, Tana Field; vice president, Karen Simons; treasurer, Judeen; secretary, Cheryl Schaefer; color bearer, Patty Lee; flag bearer, Shirley Cetak; and color guard, Jean Lemmon and Gay Dean Wigent. Tana Field brought the treats. Coin purses were given to the members by their leaders, Mrs. Ed Apking and Mrs. Henry Schaefer.

Entre Nous

The next meeting of the Entre Nous will be on April 16, at the home of Mrs. Horace Travis.

Bid A Lot

The Bid A Lot club met with Mrs. Max Meyer Tuesday evening. Mrs. Lowell Jones won high score.

Dinner Guests

Mr. and Mrs. Hilding Pearson had as their dinner guests at the club Thursday evening, Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Kuehl and Charles and John Erickson, who were here from Seattle, Wash. to attend the funeral services of Charles Hanson.

Pinochle Party

Mr. and Mrs. V. A. Andersen were hosts to a pinochle party Tuesday night in honor of their house guests, Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Kosmata, Mrs. E. O. Carlson, Mr. and Mrs. F. V. Haught of Curtis and their granddaughter Linda. Other guests were Mr. and Mrs. George Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Lorens McMindes, Mr. and Mrs. Archie Mason, Jessie Haught, and Harlan and Alan Kosmata. High score was won by Mr. and Mrs. F. V. Haught and low score by Mr. and Mrs. Lorens McMindes.

Sadie Hawkins Dance

Members of the Ordettes of the Ord high school gave a Sadie Hawkins dance in the high school auditorium Tuesday evening. In true Sadie Hawkins style, the girls made the dates and otherwise cared to the dance. Records furnished the music.

Attended Re-Dedication Holds Guest Day

Mrs. C. J. Mortensen returned on Tuesday evening from Denver, Colo., where she had been since Friday, attending the re-dedication of the National Jewish hospital for tubercular children, a project of the 8 et 40 organization. She was accompanied home by Mrs. Marguerite Speir, national secretary of the 8 et 40, whose home is in LaGrange, Ill., who is a house guest of Mr. and Mrs. Mortensen. Mrs. Mortensen is planning several social events to be held in Mrs. honor.

Ord Woman's Club Has Guest Meeting

The Woman's Club of Ord held the annual guest day tea Tuesday, in the home of Mrs. Ora Kellison. Appearing on the program was a guest speaker, Mrs. Robert Spooner of Sargent, Mrs. Spooner is the chairman of International Relations for the Nebraska Federation of Women's Clubs, and spoke in a very interesting way on her subject. She further told of her trip to Washington D. C. and New York and of her visit to the United Nations headquarters.

On the lighter side, Lorraine Dunlap, Ruth Ollis and Jeanne Lange, accompanied by Mary

Members and their guests were served dairy sandwiches, cookies and tea from a beautifully appointed table, at which Mrs. Joe Jirak, the club president poured. The table was decorated with yellow spring flowers and yellow and white candles, on a lace table cloth.

Members of the tea committee were Mrs. D. W. Wilson, chairman and her assistants, Mrs. Orrie Hurlburt, Mrs. George Allen and Mrs. Merritt Littrell.

It's Official Now—

According to the radio and newspaper reports, spring arrived officially on Friday, March 20, at a little after 5 o'clock, our time. March weather has prevailed for the weeks before and after, with plenty of wind, some rain and snow, which was spotty, coming on Saturday.

Some farm work has been started, with a bit of discing, plowing and spreading fertilizer. The ground is too cold to plant much garden but there has been a lot of seed purchased to be in readiness, as well as seed potatoes. According to tradition, potatoes should be planted on Good Friday, April 3.

Good Friday Services

There will be services in Ord on Good Friday, April 3, planned by the Ord Ministerial association. The services will begin at 12 noon and will continue until 3:00 p.m. and be held in the Methodist church. There will be music and speaking throughout the three hours of the service. All who desire are invited to attend.

What Are Cooperatives Worth To You?

Are you business people who sponsored the National Tax Equality Association ad in the Ord Quiz, ready to stand up and be counted by members of the Cooperative Associations in Ord?

Do you realize that the Ord Cooperatives are owned by local people from whom you get a big share of your business?

Do you have any idea what the Cooperatives of Ord have meant to the people of Valley County in money that they have saved and which they have no doubt spent with you? Let us have a look.

Since the Ord Cooperative Creamery Co. has been doing business it has returned $472,353.96 to patrons as rebates on cream and produce sold to it. This means that the patrons have had this amount of money to purchase merchandise which they would not have had, had they been selling to other companies. Has this been worth anything to you business people? During this time the Creamery has paid $317,378.54 as salaries to employees. It is reasonable to assume that most of this has been spent at business places in Ord. Has this been worth anything to this community?

During the 27 years that the Creamery has been in operation it has paid personal and real estate taxes amounting to $18,815.33. How much do you suppose the major companies would have paid in taxes during this period?

When the Ord Cooperative Oil Co. was organized, the margins on gasoline averaged 10c per gallon. The present margin is less than 5c per gallon. Is this of any value to you car and truck owners who are not members of a cooperative?

Audits of the Ord Cooperative Oil Co. show that from 1935 to 1953, it has paid rebates totaling $158,070.00 to its member patrons.

During this period it has paid income taxes amounting to $6,569.74. These taxes are based on the savings on business done with non-members. It has paid personal and real estate taxes amounting to $8,436.63. This money is used the same as your tax money, for the benefit of the State, County, City and School District.

It has paid salaries and commissions to employees amounting to $219,737.00. Again it is reasonable to assume that most of it has been spent in local business places.

Considering these explanations of our operations, we feel that we are entitled to your support, rather than your knocks.

Leggetts Spend Vacation on Grand Cayman Island, Call It 'Unspoiled Paradise'

"An unspoiled paradise" is the term used by Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Leggett of Ord to describe Grand Cayman Island, a tiny island in the Caribbean Sea, where they recently spent part of a month's vacation. The island is located 300 miles southeast of Cuba and because it is so inaccessible it has to date been visited by only a few tourists.

To get there the Leggetts made a 5 hour flight by Caribbean International Airways seaplane from Tampa, Florida. This airline makes only one flight to and from the island weekly. The only other way of reaching the island from the United States is by traveling on a small trading vessel, the Merco, which makes a bi-weekly trip from Tampa to Grand Cayman with freight and a few passengers.

This island is 10 miles long and about 7 1/2 miles wide. Temperature from Jan. 1 to May 1 is equable, averaging from 72 at night to 80 in the heat of the afternoon. Two new hotels for tourists have been built on the island within the last year, an airstrip is being built, and the place is expected to become a fabulous resort for winter travelers in the near future.

The Caymanian people are a mixture of races, combining the native Carib strain with negro and probably white blood. English is the language spoken by all, as the island is British owned. Population of the island is about 6,000 of which perhaps 30 families are British or American and the rest are natives. The island is under the government of the British Colonial Office in Jamaica, a large island two hundred miles to the eastward, but has its own British commissioner and its own corps of British paid civil servants.

Several miles of white coral sand beach and an ocean of the brightest blue-green imaginable makes swimming the major sport for Grand Cayman visitors. Fishing for kingfish, bonita, and other sea fish is of the highest type, or visitors may fish for tarpon, porgies, and other panfish in lagoons on the island itself. Duck hunting in these lagoons is excellent and is practiced the year around as there are no game laws or game wardens. Visitors also may spear lobsters on the reefs or hunt blue crabs in which the island abounds and which are excellent in stew or soup. There are tennis courts on the island but no golf courses.

Little of the island is cultivated but native fruits abound in a semi-wild state. Lemons, oranges and

1900 Sears-Roebuck Catalog Owned by George Bartz Is Interesting Relic

The old book is looking sort of woe-begone and the lovely red binding is somewhat faded. The back is about to come off and the printing has almost become obliterated, but this old book is a museum piece. Doubtless if the owner cared to sell, he could get a nice sum of money for it.

This book belongs to George Bartz, a farmer, living in the Riverdale district, and it is possible that many would guess and guess still not be able to name this old book.

It is an old Sears and Roebuck catalogue and has the date of 1900. The catalogue is bound in red grapefruit are grown there but were out of season when the Leggetts visited. Limes were abundant. Breadfruit, plantains and eggfruit were abundant and could be had for the asking. Dozens of other fruits come into bearing in the late spring and early summer.

Georgetown, the largest settlement on the island, is a town of about 2,000 people, boasting three up to date department stores, as well as many smaller shops and business establishments. There is a movie theatre in the town, but it shows movies only twice a week and then they are usually 10 year old western films from the United States. The island has no newspaper, no ice plant, no drug store, no soda fountains.

The postoffice and government building is a large structure of native stone that appears new. A huge colonial type frame mansion is maintained for the use of the resident commissioner. The spacious grounds around this mansion abound in all varieties of tropical flowers, in fact the whole island has a profusion of colorful blooms which attain immense size.

There are perhaps 25 automobiles on the island and most of them are of American make, the vintage of 1936 to 1942. Streets in Georgetown are made of coral and the narrow rough road which leads around the perimeter of the island and at places ventures into the interior, is rough and rocky. Most people use bicycles for transportation, or walk. No horses were seen and very few cattle or pigs. Most of the island's food supply comes from Jamaica, Nicaragua or from Florida.

The native Caymanians are shy, friendly, and very cooperative in contrast to residents of regions where tourists are better known. The going price for manual labor on Grand Cayman is $1.00 per day and household servants work for $1.50 per week. Prices on nearly everything purchased are correspondingly low and the American tourist's money buys some rare bargains on Grand Cayman as the American dollar is worth $1.70 in island currency.

For anybody seeking a restful vacation spot with nearly ideal weather, off the beaten tourist track, Mr. and Mrs. Leggett recommend a sojourn on Grand Cayman Island.

While away they also spent several days in New Orleans and about two weeks in the Tampa-St. Petersburg area. They returned home on March 18.

how to ship. Small packages could be sent by mail, but express was advised for large packages. Freight took longer but was recommended because it was cheaper. Customers were begged to be sure to tell the correct size and the color desired, and stamps up to $1.00 would be accepted. Otherwise, it was necessary to send money orders. Goods could be returned and money refunded.

First in the book came the grocery list. Here are found brands of tea, coffee, baking powder and extracts never heard of in present days. Popular brand of coffee seemed to be Mocha and Java blend, priced at 22 cents per pound in lots of 10 pounds and up. Dried fruit was offered, including the delectable popular dried apples at 7 cents a pound for a bag of 60 pounds. That would make a good many pies. A sugar cured ham was offered at the lowest market price. A dozen 1/2 pound hand-made banded table tumblers, each containing homemade jelly could be had for $1.25. A hundred cakes of ivory soap, weighing 6 ounces each could be had for $3.75.

Cheese, candy, plug tobacco, glass starch, brooms and poultry foods and many, many other articles were offered in the grocery list at a somewhat lower price than new. One can imagine the poring and figuring that was done in 1900 when the grocery list was made out for, without a doubt, supplies were laid in for months in advance.

Wallpaper in very homely designs could be had for two cents a roll. A new blue color called turquoise wallpaper was listed at nine cents a roll. Shown were the ceilings and borders, the borders being surprisingly wide.

Thick silver watches occupied many pages of description, all wonderfully marked. Some were even made of gold and were of a new thin variety. Do you remember the watches that were engraved with a railroad train or a stag, or a mountain scene? All these are pictured.

Smaller watches for the ladies were shown all engraved. Some had pins and were called chateaux. Beautiful were the watch chains with guards for women and fobs for men, which took several pages.

Locketts and bracelets and rings including wide wedding bands, took many pages. However, there were no matching sets of wedding rings and no bracelet watches. By the way, the price of a solid gold wedding ring, either plain or engraved was from $1.75 to $4.25. Pages were filled with charms and emblems buttons and cuff buttons and cuff links. Clocks, silverware, pens and buckles, hint of yearning hearts, for all seem to be so lovely and would make such nice gifts. Old fashioned castors and cruet sets would make some antique hunter's mouth water and they were cheap, too.

Complete evenings' entertainments were offered if the customer would but order one of the new graphophones complete with a set of hearing tubes for two persons with 24 high grade electrically recorded musical and talking records for $29.00. Or if this was not wanted there was a moving picture outfit using calcium light, complete with one set of 52 stereoscopic views and six highest grade moving picture films, each 50 feet in length, the selection to be made by the customer for $162.00. In fact 16 pages were devoted to showing machines for the projection of moving pictures.

Remember the old fashioned horse nets or fly nets? The light weight and brilliant colored ones being kept for special days when the carriage team was taken out on a Sunday or when the young man was using his own horse and buggy to take his girl for a ride? These and the heavier nets made of leather for the work horses have their descriptions covering many pages, prices being a bit more than a dollar up to $2.40.

Guns, saddles, some being very the very modest side saddles for the ladies; bicycles, the models being named Napoleon and Josephine, depending on the sex of the purchaser and selling for $14.95, boxing gloves and the wonderful electric belt guaranteed to make men strong, all rate several pages.

Furniture listed consisted of three piece bedroom suites, tall head pieces in quarter sawed oak for $31.75. The pieces were all ornate with much scroll work, very fancy. A popular "lounge" with a high back, handsome in quality, velvet cloth could be had for $7.45. The beauty of this was that with a bit of adjustment the lounge could be turned into a bed. A three piece parlor suite, upholstered in crushed plush and consisting of divan, arm chair and parlor chair could be had for $10.40, while another suite, with the same three pieces and the addition of another parlor chair and a large rocker, could be had for $15.20.

Toilet sets that antique hunters pay good money for now, could be had for as low as $4.39. Dinner sets, consisting of 100 pieces in a beautiful variety of patterns of colors and most of the sets bearing an English trademark, could be had for as little as $8.70. Soup plates had to be ordered extra.

The Acme Regal steel range complete with a reservoir, warming closet and extra big oven would cost $22.40. Base burners, replete with nickel trimming, and used for hard coal were offered for $19.90. Clothing seemed to be the strangest, particularly in styles. This seems to be the era of tiny waists and flounces, for the ladies—with high collars and fitted coats. Skirts swept the ground and jackets showed much stitching. Push capes with high fur collars could be had for around $5.00 and a little girl's fur set could be bought for a bit over a dollar. Women wore under skirts in those days with ruffles and costing 89 cents.

Old ladies wore bonnets that tied under the chin with a bit of white trimming or a purple flower. Women also wore belts, which trimly encircled their tiny waists and accented their hour-glass figures.

And the wrappers with the long skirts made with flounces, long sleeved and yoked, seemingly hideous in comparison, but serving their purpose. They cost about 89 cents and were made of percale, mostly in blue, black or gray colors, and some daring ones were even in red all with fancy figures.

Dresses for the baby were long and were dainty with insertion and lace. One in cambric would cost 75 cents, and it was not called a dress but a slip.

A lady's pair of shoes could be had for $2.25, with a hand turned heel and laced. A kid oxford would cost $1.95.

A man could get a pair of shoes for $2.95. This particular pair was of calf with a double welt and laced. Suit and overcoats were also much different, not only in style but in price. A man's suit with narrow lapels, single breasted and cut away in serge would cost about $10.00. In worsted the cost was $9.00. Overcoats, very boxy and simple in a special overcoating cloth, cost from $11.00 to $18.00 with extra cost for extra size.

So have the styles and prices changed—what will the next 50 years bring?

Cattfish in Area State Plants 5,000

The Nebraska Fish and Game Commission last week planted 5,000 cattfish, ranging in length from 6 to 18 inches, in the streams and lakes of this area. At Ord, 1,000 went into the North Loup river near the bridge. Near Burwell, 500 were planted in the North Loup river, and near Theford another 500. These lots were tagged fish—that is, each has a metal tag in its tail. People who catch tagged fish are asked to remove the tags and send them to the office of the Game & Fish Commission at Lincoln with the date and place they were caught. Other plantings in this area included 1,500 in the Cedar river near Spalding, 1,000 in Lake Ericson and 500 in the Cedar river above Eripon.

A state seining crew is now at work lowering the water in Pibel lake and later this week will sein all coarse fish from the lake. The water will then be restored to normal level and plantings of game fish will be made.

Out for Golf Team

Tom Tolen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Tolen of Ord, is a strong competitor for a berth on the University of Nebraska golf team this season. Competitive matches to be played this week will decide the team and several matches with other university teams are in the offing.

Ord VFW Basketball Squad Piles Up Good Record

SEASON STATISTICS FOR
ORD VFW BASKETBALL TEAM
Total score for season — Ord VFW, 905; opponents, 800.
Ord average per game though-out season, 60.4 points per game; opponents, 53.3.
Ord free throws—Made 192 out of 297 tries for average of 64%.

Cattle Jolted on Huge Run; Lambs Higher

Exceptionally large cattle runs at Omaha and Chicago Monday—36,000 head at the two points and the bulk of that total slaughter steers, yearlings and heifers—look the starch out of trade. The fat cattle market at Omaha was unevenly steady to mostly 25-50c lower, instances off more, and late in the trading session clearance was incomplete.

Most sales of slaughter steers and yearlings ranged from $19 to $22.50, with better steers to $23.50, 1400-pounders to $23.25. Best heifers were a part load of 935-pounders at $22.25.

Stocker and feeder trade was unevenly steady to 50c lower. Feeder steers ranged from $17-$22, there were stock steers to $23.50. Butcher hogs sold steady to 25c lower, top 35c off, 180-360 pounders, $25-$23.50. Sows sold steady, 300-550 pounders $19.50. Stags brot $14.50 to $17.

Among recent sales at Omaha for shippers from this area:
Ed Cook, 11 steers, wt. 900, $21.25; wt. 832, $20.00.
Theodore King, 13 steers, wt. 1,134, $22.50.
Cash Welniak, 18 steers, wt. 1,171, $22.75.

Solo Contest March 30

The Ord high school music department will sponsor its annual solo contest March 30, beginning immediately at 4:00 p.m. The purpose of the "contest" is to encourage music students—both in instrumental and vocal—to perform solos before an audience. Solo work helps stimulate interest in music more rapidly, and students gain helpful experience rehearsing and performing these solos. About 18 instrumental and 15 vocal solos will be heard during the program. Everyone is invited to attend the program, keeping in mind that for many, this is their first chance to perform serious solo work.

Gordon Flood of Loup City high school has been invited to be guest critic for the solo contest. He will criticize the students as they perform for improvement. These criticisms will be in writing and given to the students after the program. From this group of solo-

Wild Scoring Spree Gives VFW Victory

In one of the wildest scoring sprees ever seen on an Ord court, the Ord VFW trounced the Central City VFW 77 to 71 Wednesday night on the local maples. Ord led at halftime, 37 to 30.

Dilla with 25 and Penas with 23, were marksmen for Ord. Elnwood with 25 and Haskins with 21 were high point men for the losers.

Saturday night, Holmes of the Ord VFW made a bucket as the whistle sounded to give Ord a 56-55 victory over the Williams Bros. team of Lincoln. Finley was high local point man with 21, Maurice had 17.

In fifteen starts this season the Ord VFW has won 11 games and lost four. The locals scored 905 points for an average of 60.4 points per game, while their opponents piled up 800 points for a 53.3 average.

Hastings Choir at Convocation

Members of the Hastings college choir, enroute, stopped at Ord briefly Tuesday afternoon, and presented a program in the high school auditorium. The young folks, numbering about 50, had appeared in Loup City during the morning and were on their way to Grand Island, where they were to give a concert.

Of chief interest to Ord friends was the appearance of Dick Tolen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Tolen and Richard Heuck, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Heuck. Both of these young men appeared in several novelty numbers, in which was featured a male quartet. Mr. Tolen was accompanied by his wife, who is also a member of the chorus. Mr.

Tolen had the solo part in "On Top of Old Smoky".

A granddaughter of Mrs. C. E. McGrew, Chelsea, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. K. C. McGrew of Orleans, Nebr., is a member of the chorus and sang a solo part in one of the numbers.

The chorus is directed by Millard Cates. The program included, besides the chorus work and the quartet numbers, a number by the head of the violinist work in the college, as well as a number presented by the head of the piano school.

Mr. and Mrs. Heuck and Mr. and Mrs. Tolen went to Grand Island in the evening to hear the concert given there.

Early Resident Visits

Mr. and Mrs. Morris Clements of Nampa, Ida, were in Ord Sunday visiting their cousins, Mrs. C. A. Anderson and Eugene Leggett, Morris was born here and is the son of the late Leon Clements who in the early days operated a livery stable in Ord on the corner where the Ord Cooperative Creamery is now located. Mr. and Mrs. Clements were in Washington, D. C., where they went to attend a farm conference with Secretary of Agriculture Benson. While in this region they were guests in the country home of his aunt, Mrs. Peter Naab and husband of Taylor, who accompanied them to Ord.

At Mayo Clinic

Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Hollands left on Saturday for Rochester, Minn., where Mrs. Hollands planned to get medical care in the Mayo clinic. Their return home is uncertain.

Golfers Reorganize

The first meeting of the Ord Golf club for the season was held Friday evening, being a covered dish no-host dinner in the home rooms of the high school building. Following the dinner, a business meeting was held. A new board of directors was chosen, the board to choose their own officers. This group is made up of Arthur Jefferies, Robert Groves, Russell Rose, John Haskell and Don Edwards.

The retiring board was made up of George Hastings, president; C. C. Thompson, secretary; and the directors, Mark Tolen, W. P. Hollands and Kenneth Ayres. Mr. Ayres resigned when he moved to Lexington and the vacancy was never filled. The old board will meet with the new board in the near future to offer such assistance as needed.

Two Little Girls

The birth of two little girls was announced from the Ord hospital during the past week. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Applegar of Arcadia was born on March 23. Her name is Julie Ann, weight, 7 pounds, 2 1/2 ounces, and the doctor was Dr. R. J. Lynn.

Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Behrends also have a daughter, born March 23. Her name is Shirley Jean, weight 6 pounds, 5 ounces. Dr. Paul Martin attended.

Cochrane Is Civilian

Alex Cochrane, jr., former Ord high and Nebraska University football star, has finished his army hitch and is back at his old job in Miller & Paine's department store in Lincoln.

Peak Season On at Ord Hatchery

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Krepel are very busy in their Ord Hatchery these days since Mrs. Krepel says that the week before Easter is the peak time of their production. At present time they are taking off two hatches weekly on Mondays and Thursdays. The Monday hatch averages about 6,000 baby chicks and Thursday between four and 5,000. There has been a ready sale for them, especially since the weather has been fair.

Mrs. Krepel attended a school on how to determine sex of chicks several months ago and now she says that with the use of a machine and with her knowledge, she is able to determine the sex of the chicks, 100%. Many of the customers of the hatchery are ordering pullets entirely.

During the hatching season and especially at its height, Mr. and Mrs. Krepel, as well as all other hatchery workers are on the job on practically 24-hour shifts, watching that there be no change in temperatures, or lest anything disturb the eggs in the incubation period.

Ferry Service Across Missouri River 100 Years Ago Constant Source of Irritation

An important point of entry into Nebraska a hundred years ago was Council Bluffs, or Kanessville, as it was sometimes called. This one-time Mormon settlement had in a few short years developed into one of the most important jumping-off places in the West, and in the early spring of 1853 its merchants were anticipating a banner year. Emigrants were coming up the river by steamboat and overland across Iowa in record-breaking numbers.

Many of the travelers were most unfavorably impressed with the Missouri river town. During the peak of the season there simply were too many people for the town's meager facilities. One man, enroute from Watertown, Wisconsin, to Oregon, wrote:

"Ten thousand strangers have been here in a month, and are gone again, and the town begins to be desolated and still. It is built of log cabins, one story high, on both sides of a street running about 60 rods down the bottom of a ravine, between high, dirty clay hills, where it can neither see nor be seen. There are perhaps a half dozen two story buildings in the place, all devoted to gaming, the only business that can afford to live in them. I know not whether there is a frame building in the city. Their stores and offices are all in little log buildings, that would be a disgrace to almost any Wisconsin farm, and would not be allowed to stand a week in any Wisconsin village. I have not seen a school house, nor a church, in the town."

Another wrote: "A majority of the citizens appear to be only temporary residents, who assemble here during the egress of emigration, for speculative purposes and erect temporary buildings accordingly. . . . Came very near upsetting on the main and only street, on account of gullies and sideling places in the street. . . . The whole length of the street today filled with wagons and teams, taking in their outfits, render it almost impassible."

A source of great irritation was the ferry service. It was wholly unable to handle the large emigration and everyone experienced a delay of several days before getting across to Nebraska—and then the crossing was had only at what the emigrants invariably considered exorbitant rates.

Not all travelers were unfavorably impressed with Council Bluffs, however. One wrote that he got provisions so cheaply there that it didn't pay to haul them from home. This was in 1853. Another year would see the people of Council Bluffs interested in establishing a town across the river in the newly organized Nebraska territory—a town that soon would outstrip old Kanessville and become one of the most important on the river.

Pvt. Thurman A. Garner entered into the armed service of his country on Jan. 19, 1953, age 20 years. He is a nephew of Mr. and Mrs. Pete Wallin of Ord. Pvt. Garner's address for the present is: Pvt. Thurman A. Garner, Co. "B," 11th Armored Cavalry Camp Carson, Colo.

Kokes Serving in Ship Repair Unit

Yokosuka, Japan — Serving in the ship repair facility at the U. S. Fleet activities here is Harold J. Kokes, seaman, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rudolf C. Kokes of route 3, Ord.

Kokes works in the administration office.

Kokes, who was graduated from St. Joseph's high school in Atkinson, entered the navy on July 7, 1952.

The facility is comprised of a highly technical and skilled group of trained mechanics. These men, totaling more than 300 naval enlisted sailors, are responsible for repairing and maintaining all ships operating in the Far East in support of United Nations action in Korea.

In addition to working on battle-scarred veterans such as the attack aircraft carrier USS Boxer, the minesweeper USS Waxbill and the destroyer USS Small, the men have worked on vessels from foreign countries.

Almost every week some time is spent on a ship flying an ensign from Siam, Denmark, Great Britain, France or Colombia.

Stationed in Africa

A recent letter from A/2C Vernon Wells, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Wells, tells that he is in Africa and liking it very much. He says the days are pretty warm and he enjoys getting out in the sun. He has acquired a little bit of sun tan in the time he has been there. However, the nights are cold, so much so that the boys sleep under three blankets. Their barracks are small huts with about ten men in each one and they have an oil stove in the hut to keep off some of the chill at night.

The men of his company are restricted to the base. Vernon tells of a range of hills some eighteen or twenty miles from there and on the other side is the Sahara desert. He speaks of Arabs being pretty dangerous. They are expected to go on a trip to some of the bigger cities for which a train will be brought in and all the men will go at one time.

It is about two miles from the barracks to where Vernon works and they go there in trucks. They have a nice shop. The last of the convoy of planes, B-29s had gotten to the base the day his letter was written and the next day it was planned to get all of the twenty-two planes in the air. They were to start taking off at 6 a. m. which meant that Vernon had to be at work at 3 a. m. His work is with radio and radar. Vernon thinks that he will not be in that part of Africa very long and his group may be back in the states before very long.

These boys are sure seeing a lot of the world and it is fine that they can enjoy it along with the hard work of serving our Uncle Sam.

In a more recent letter by his parents, Vernon tells of being in Casablanca, where he with others of his buddies visited the home and the grounds of the Sultan. He also says that he saw his first and as far as he was concerned, his only bull fight.

Young-dung-po, Korea March 10, 1953

Readers of the Quiz: I get my Quiz over here in Korea and it takes me back home with all the news of the town. It is enjoyed very much.

From the Quiz and from letters, the Loup Valley region sure has had the snow this winter.

Over here in Korea, it has not been too bad where I am, but up north they have had a lot more snow and it has been a lot colder.

In Korea I am with the 539th Q. M. Ldry. Co. Baker. My job is to bake the bread and the pie for the mess hall. We feed about 250 men now.

Most of all I am looking for the day I can come home.

Novel Sentence

Even judges sense the fact that people like variety—or so a sentence given by a Howard County judge seems to indicate. He gave a Cushing man, found guilty of selling beer to minors, 30 days in jail with the fare every other day to be bread and water.

Capitol News

Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

LINCOLN — The big question here this week was water diversion.

The hearing on Sen. Richard Marvel's LB 311 before the Public Works Committee of the Legislature on Thursday was expected to draw the largest crowd of any bill to come before this session.

Marvel, representing residents of the Republican Valley, is asking, in effect, for the repeal of the 57-year-old Nebraska law which the Nebraska Supreme Court several years ago held to be a ban against diverting water from one watershed to another.

The opposition is led by young Sen. Joseph D. Martin of Grand Island. He campaigned against incumbent Sen. Herman Wellensiek and won on the diversion issue. After spirited battles in the 1943 and 1947 sessions, diversion bills were killed.

The battle in 1947 was highlighted by a hearing which attracted hundreds of spectators from both the Hastings and Grand Island areas. Debate on the measure, introduced by Sens. C. Petrus Peterson of Lincoln and Fred A. Seaton of Hastings, was among the session's bitterest. The bill was killed in committee and was raised on the floor.

Finally, on the motion of Speaker Walter R. Raecke of Central City—who has been the Democratic candidate for governor in the past two elections—the bill was killed 23 to 19. Of those who voted to kill the bill, six are members of the 1953 session: Sens. Glenn Cramer of Albion, Earl Lee of Fremont, C. C. Lillibridge of Crete, Dwight Burney of Hartington, O. H. Person of Wahoo, and Harry Pizer of North Platte.

Of those who voted against killing the measure, three are back: Sens. Arthur Carmody of Trenton, Charles Trvdik of Omaha and Karl Vogel of Omaha.

Presiding over that session was Lt. Gov. Robert B. Crosby, now the state's chief executive. He shocked and angered anti-diversionists some weeks ago with a precedent-breaking announcement that he would not veto a diversion bill this session.

During the campaign when he was asked to state his views on diversion he said:

"Nebraska cannot afford to permit water to be wasted. Most of the area involved is close to being what is called a semi-arid area.

The issue until now has been simply this—Who has the first chance at the surplus water from the Platte River? It has been my feeling that the residents around the Platte river should be entitled to first opportunity to make use of the water provided—and this is important—they do not delay an unreasonably long time in making use of the water. I see nothing wrong with diverting water from one watershed to another if the watershed from which the water originates is reasonably protected."

Both Marvel and Martin are members of the Public Works Committee headed by Sen. Hugh Carson of Ord. Other members are Hal Bridenbaugh of Dakota City, Tom Coffee of Alma, William Moulton of Omaha and Glenn Cramer of Albion.

ROUGH The Legislature gave Gov. Crosby a rough time last week but he still managed to bat two for three.

His proposal that counties take over the entire cost of over-ceiling medical grants to assistance clients won tentative approval but only after brash Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff charged that Crosby had proposed the shift of the $1-million-a-year burden from the state to the counties "so he can throw out his chest and show he's following through with his program of restraint."

The governor made his veto stick on Sen. Glenn Cramer's bill which would have prevented children under five years from entering school. Cramer's motion to override the session's first veto produced a vote of 22 to 17 but lost because the rules require 26 votes to overcome the governor's objection. When it was up for final passage, the vote on the bill was 27 to 12.

Gov. Crosby's loser was a bill, by Sen. Les Anderson of Aurora, to transfer the collection of the state tax on gasoline from the Agriculture Department to the Tax Commissioner. The measure was the last of nine governmental reorganization bills which had the governor's blessing. The motion to kill it came from Sen. Charles Wilson of Norfolk, chairman of the Government Committee which had killed the other eight. The vote was 20 to 11 to kill.

DIM The outlook for a state sales tax was pretty dim this week. The Revenue Committee has killed Sen. Terry Carpenter's version—which earmarked the revenue for highways—and applied the axe to a pair of constitutional amendment proposals which would, in effect, have taken the state out of the property tax field, thus paving the way for a sales tax.

Still alive, but just barely, is Sen. Dwight Burney's sales tax bill. Only reason it didn't go down the drain, too, is because he was to be absent this week and couldn't meet the three-day deadline under which he would have to move.

The 52-year-old Ress came up through the Highway Department's ranks from the lowly position of a surveyor's rod man in 1919. He left the department briefly in the 20's but has worked in the Capitol continuously since 1926. He was named design engineer in 1947 and Aitken appointed him deputy state engineer just a year ago.

Ress outlined his policy this way:

"I feel Nebraska is badly in need of an improved highway system in order to improve the economy of both agricultural and commercial interest and to attract to this state the traffic that desires to use our highway facilities.

"I also hope that differences which exist among various factions and interests can be resolved so that we can make a united effort to provide Nebraska with a much-needed program of highway improvement, based strictly on an engineering approach."

SPOT A freshman senator managed to put his colleagues squarely on an uncomfortable spot last week. He's young Joe Martin of Grand Island, who is the sponsor of a bill providing that women doing jobs equal to those of men shall draw equal pay.

The bill was heard by the Labor Committee which amended it to exclude private industry and include only governmental employment. Martin objected to this amendment and he demanded that record vote be taken.

Because most of the senators don't want to make anybody mad—most of all the women—there were only three votes in favor of the amendment. The others either didn't vote (there were ten of these) or else voted to reject the amendment.

The three brave men who voted publicly to adopt the amendment are Sens. Howard Britt of Lincoln, to have the bill raised. If he makes the deadline, only 22 votes are required; if he doesn't it takes 29.

VETERAN If you like success stories, consider the career of L. N. Ress, the new state engineer whom Gov. Crosby appointed to succeed Harold Aitken. Karl Vogel of Omaha and John Aufenkamp of Julian.

It Happened In NEBRASKA . . .

In tiny, log-hewn school houses like this, many of Nebraska's leaders received their first "book-learnin'." The schools were ill-equipped for little more than the basic fundamentals of Reading, Writing and Rithmetic. Teachers' salaries weren't much larger than the schools themselves. In 1882, they averaged a generous $133 a year!

Housework Easy Without Nagging Backache

Nagging backache, loss of pep and energy, headaches and dizziness may be due to slow-down of kidney function. Doctors say good kidney function is very important to good health. When some everyday condition, such as stress and strain, causes this important function to slow down, many folks suffer nagging backache—feel miserable. Minor bladder irritations due to cold or frequent passages, cause getting up nights or frequent passages. Don't neglect your kidneys if these conditions bother you. Try Doan's Pills—a mild diuretic. Used successfully by millions for over 50 years. It's amazing how many times Doan's give happy relief from these discomforts—help the 15 million of kidney tubes and filters flush out waste. Irrigation Necessary
It is now nearly 60 years since the first irrigation development started in the North Loup valley. It was the drought of 1894 that got the farmers to thinking along that line. As a result of this the North Loup Irrigation and Improvement company was formed. Since this was developed by people in the North Loup area and Ord did not benefit directly from it, the name Ord did not appear as it does in the present Ord-North Loup canal.

It was worthy of note, however, that the early ditch followed nearly the same route as that of the present time, the chief difference placing the upper gate above the Burlington railroad bridge instead of below it, as it was then. The chief headache of the old ditch was the job of cleaning the sand out of the upper gateway, as it was constantly filling in all the while while the ditch was in use. A dollar was worth a lot of money in the early 90s, and help was plentiful. During the drought farmers gladly took on the work of making the ditch at a very low rate of pay. For this reason the first ditch cost only a small fraction of what the new one did. Since the cost was low, it was possible to let the farmers have the water at a very low rate per acre, thought to be about fifty cents, certainly less than a dollar.

It is a matter of history that the ditch worked very effectively for several years and that the village of North Loup grew all kinds of garden crops in quantity. The farmers in that area grew fine crops of corn and grain, learned how to flood their alfalfa fields, leveled many of them for irrigation, got their first start in popcorn, and were just ready to lead a normal irrigation life when something happened.

Two items stand out prominently as the chief causes of the demise of the old ditch. The first was and continued for many years that the good years began in 1896 thereafter. The second was that there was no way of compelling the farmers to continue paying their irrigation assessments. Since they did not need the water, they did not take it and they would not pay for what they did not use. There were also the usual troubles incident to irrigation, such as ditch breaks and not always being able to get the water just when it was needed. Be the causes what they may have been, it is history that the North Loup Irrigation and Improvement company was a thing of the past in less than ten years from its founding.

Today the farmers are more irrigation minded than they were then, and they have the mistakes of those days to guide them in making the decision that irrigation is necessary. They realize that it is better to have the water always available and not need to use it than to need it even for a single time and not have it available.

They are realizing more and more that buying irrigation water is buying crop insurance, it is far better to pay the premiums and have the protection than have a dry spell come and have to use the water. If rains are normal they are out only the cost of the water. If they have to use it, they are out all of the time and trouble it takes to distribute the water.

Not only that, but most farmers use the water at some time during the season, especially in the fall to get the land in condition for winter. Alfalfa especially comes through the winter in fine condition and makes an earlier and a faster start in the spring if the ground is wet thoroughly in the fall. The same is true of winter wheat, although not too much of this crop is being raised under the ditch.

When the ditch was first built plans were made to run the water into the towns along the route as much as possible. In accordance with this plan Burwell got a partial irrigation system, Ord, because of the difficulty and expense of crossing Dane creek, got nothing. On the Middle Loup Comstock and Arcadia had water available. Elyria lay well below the ditch and some of its citizens used the water.

The only town in the valleys with full scale irrigation was North Loup. For a long time this irrigation was used and large fields of strawberries, tomatoes and other garden crops made it the garden spot of the North Loup valley. It is one of the points that helped set the village aside and make it different from other towns. The citizens were proud of the fact that they had irrigation available.

Conditions have changed through the years. Whereas most of the citizens used water at one time, the number has decreased until today the burden of keeping up the expense of irrigation is being borne by a comparatively small number, and the others do not use the water. The assessments have been increased to $9.65, and still the amount received is not sufficient to keep the business going.

The time has come that something must be done. It seems that the company stands to lose its franchise and everybody be deprived of water unless more interest is taken in the project. It is known that Ord would gladly take over the North Loup system if there were any way in which it could be moved there and the water made available.

North Loup has several features that make it stand out as a village. Among these are the only cheese company of its kind now doing business in Nebraska; the celebration of Pop Corn Days, distinctly different from any other festival in the state; The Stine Hatchery, producing both baby chicks and broilers, a distinct asset to any town; and, last, but by no means least, the only complete irrigation system in the North Loup valley. North Loup lost irrigation once; it could happen again.

HUMANITY'S STAGE

There is nothing like a city street for every single one in the stage where plots constantly are unfolding. And admission is free to everyone who drives or walks.

A street shows life itself. It can be happy and gay when parades of singing people or playing bands march by. The participants and spectators, all playing parts, forget themselves and their troubles and find themselves humming or tapping their feet in rhythm echoing the street sounds.

A street can be lonely, too, when most of the actors have gone home and the stop lights blink their warnings only to the few cars and walkers reluctant to make their exit from the stage.

Or a street can be lazy when, on a warm summer evening, cars move lazily along with no particular place to go just to escape the heat only summer brings. But still the lights blink on and on. A street can also be dreary when sheets of rain relentlessly beat down on it. Even though the sidewalks glisten, pedestrians hover beneath umbrellas and a strange noise comes from the splashing of water under the wheels of cars.

Occasionally, too, a street can be terrifying as ambulances and fire trucks race through the lights, their sirens screaming. The actors know what the sirens mean, for no one knows pity like those who love the streets.

And a street can be the studio for many young artists. Their murals are "Joe loves Mary" or "Harold is a sissy," or faded chalk marks showing that a game of hopscotch was played not too long ago.

Yes, there is nothing like a city street. It shows happiness, loneliness and fear. It shows life.

Unfair Criticism

Unfair criticism is usually the product of a small mind, but the Quiz has noted it may come from men prominent in the political and editorial field as well. One of these barbs, evidently intended as a joke, was the statement by Ainslee Loren Davis, made within a month of the time Eisenhower was sworn in as president.

He stated in his paper, the Wheatland, Wyo., Record: "Have you noted taxes coming down in the nation, state or county?" Since that time other similar items have appeared and similar statements have been made at meetings of democratic groups. The opposition seems to expect the Republicans to correct in one month what it took the

Not long ago Congressman A. L. Miller sent out hundreds of questionnaires over his district. In these he asked about four leading problems confronting congress, and asked for a vote on which was considered most important by the voters. An overwhelming majority put tax reduction in fourth place, with the Korean war and balancing the budget in first and second place.

From this it appears that Nebraskans, at least, are more concerned in getting the Korean war settled and in making both ends meet in governmental affairs than they are in having a cut in taxes, agreeable as this would be. The administration is hampered at the present time by a lot of New Deal thinkers in high positions who were appointed under civil service and who are entitled to hold their jobs for that reason.

These men owe their allegiance to the gravy train, and are not doing anything that might reflect credit on the party now in power. Until some means can be found for ridding the government of these men who know no system but to continue to spend, it is going to be difficult indeed to save enough money in government to warrant a cut in taxes.

We are all agreed that we would like to have taxes come down. They must come down and will come down in due time. But most of us are honest. We would rather continue to pay taxes as they are and see the budget balanced than to pay less and see the national debt continue to climb. Every man should put his shoulder to the wheel. It certainly does not help to have a group riding on the wagon and even dragging their feet.

Ward's 'Cookin' Column

On an old door that is no longer in use and that stands in a corner of the fire house in North Loup is tucked a board from a crate. On that crate is stenciled: "Koupal and Hart, North Loup, Neb." I was living in Burwell three time then gentlemen ran their store in North Loup, and it seems to me they had a store in Ord at the same time.

So I asked the firemen about it and found out that the store was located where the Farmers Store of North Loup now is, and the time was about 1932. There have been a lot of changes since that time, and not all of them for the better. For example, the national debt in 1932 was $22,500,000,000, which was enough, the Lord knows. But today it is $267,000,000,000. It doesn't take much figuring to show that we are now carrying a load of 12 times as much as we were then. We all know too well that it now takes three times as much to live as it did in 1932. In case you didn't know it, our taxes are about three times as high today as they were in 1932.

It was in 1932 that the famous bear cellar putsch started Hilder on his way to prominence and his dream of world domination. As a result of it the world was plunged into World War 2 and we individuals came near losing our rights in the demands of the nation as a whole. While none of us want to go back to the conditions of 1932, none of us with good common sense want to continue to live on the roof top as we are living today, making good money, it is true, but paying most of it out in salting the living. It will take a year or more to get the trend started in the right direction, and it may take even longer than that to get the Korean mess settled. The world, and the United States in particular, was never in a worse condition than it is today, with the possible exception of the Civil War. It will take the united efforts of 150 million people for some time to come to get us started on the road to lower taxes and lower cost of living.

There are not too many people left in North Loup who remember the days when a man named Spethman ran a blacksmith shop in the same building that now houses the business of Paul Madsen, welder and blacksmith. There is a book on Nebraska, put out in 1889, which tells quite a story of the man and gives a picture of the plow he was putting out in that shop at that time. It was known as the "Grasshopper Breaker" and was a breaking plow which used rods instead of a mouldboard. Spethman had the patent on his special make of rod breaking plow, and the plows were made right here in North Loup and were sold all over the area. It is safe to say that Spethman and his plows had a great deal to do with the breaking up of the virgin sod in Valley county and the growing of the crops that followed and encouraged other settlers to come in until all the land was taken up. The rod breaker was as important to the settler here as the ax was to the woodsman farther east.

rolled it over so evenly that the lumps which were a part of breaking prairie were few and far between. In good sod it was not unusual to turn over a line of sod 100 yards or more in length without a break. The rod breaker turned the sod much better than did its ancestor, the mouldboard breaker. In addition to this, the plow which required three good horses to pull, was so light that a man could pick it up by the beam and carry it a quarter of a mile without setting it down. It actually weighed less than half what the regular breaking plow did. One of its earliest recollections is of seeing the sod turned with one of these plows. Later when I was big enough for the job, I handled a grasshopper plow on several occasions myself. That was one of the most pleasant jobs to be found in those days. It was a special honor to be trusted with breaking the prairie, just as it was a special honor to be trusted to write a column for the Quiz.

Whenever I go and wherever the Quiz goes, which is much farther than I go, we find people who read the paper. Most of them admit reading this column, which shows the extent to which people will go in their enthusiasm for the old home town. It is no small job to write a column, and I suspect it is fully as much a job to read it. But people read it. Whenever the time comes when Quiz readers quit reading this column it will be time to quit writing it. All of which reminds me that the home town paper is read much more completely by those away from here than those who live right in town. I found it so every time I have been away from this area. The fact is I read every word in it when I was in Hawaii, then loaned it to friends, and when the paper got back to me it was falling to pieces. The people who read it knew little or nothing about Ord, but they did know that the paper came from back home, which to them was anywhere on the mainland. I never heard there a remark I hear nearly every week at home: "Here's nothing in the paper this week."

In the Quiz of 55 years ago I ran across the ad of the Arkansas Valley Nurseries of Sedgewick, Kan., (present population, 738) telling about their splendid line of nursery stock and the special wholesale prices they were making to get rid of their huge stock. They offered the following: 100 peach trees, $10; 100 apricot trees, $10; 6 early Ohio grapes, $6; two hardy perpetual roses, $1; and two ever-blooming altheas, $2. There were the regular agent's prices for the above, but they were offering to send the entire bunch for five dollars cash. Compared with prices today one wonders how any company could afford to raise nursery stock at such a price. But that was in pioneer times, and the land on which the trees were raised probably did not cost more than ten dollars an acre. It was easy to get all the trees for a dollar and a day or less. Also the settler did not have many dollars to spend for fruit trees.

I do not know what kind of a life a fireman in a big city leads, but if it is any more strenuous than the life of a farmer, I would not want any part of it. Wednesday afternoon the fire whistle blew loud and long. I grabbed a coat and cap and rushed out in front, where the Blue Devil happened to be parked. Before I got in the car I saw the truck hitching it to the west on main street. When I got the car started the truck had disappeared. I drove to the west end of the street, took a look to the north, so turned south and went to the highway leading west. From there I could see plenty of smoke near the government grain bins, so I went west. The fire was there. I got there I found it was the ditch crew burning weeds along the ditch. Then I drove west on the highway to the No. 46 school house. From there I saw a lot of smoke to the south, so I turned that way. After going a mile and a half I found it was just a farmer burning off some stubble.

From there I turned east and went to the Ashton highway, thence north to town, where I parked the car and did what I should have done in the first place, asked the first man I saw, Floyd Trojans, where the fire was. He told me, so I turned the corner at the Farmers store and went north and there was the fire truck with the pump still running, but the fire was out by that time. It burned a lot of trash behind the Farmer's Store and would have burned the store in a few minutes if the firemen had made a wild goose chase as I did. Anyway I got there in time to help roll up the hose and get my hands dirty. I also got a nice drive out of the deal, but I was too excited about the fire to enjoy the trip. Anyway, I warned the boys that the fire was there. It might come some time. After all, the best way to get rid of trash is to burn it, but Wednesday was hardly a suitable day for the conflagration, what with the wind doing 40 or more per hour. Oh, yes, the firemen went west just one block so that they would be on the right side of the street when they parked. That was what made me think they were going out of town.

Something Different

This column has suffered from gonorrhea, due to the fact that I mailed home material that never reached Ord. I am quite disgusted about this loss.

So I must start back a way, and I guess that I will do it by telling you about my birthday on Grand Cayman Island, which was surely something different.

On your map you'll find Grand Cayman lies south of Cuba and the Isle of Pines, some 300 miles. We flew out of Tampa sitting in the belly of an ex-navy PBY, if that's the way to refer to it, and landed five hours later at a coral airstrip still embellished with grade stakes. It also had a small thatched hut for customs officials which intrigued all of us eight passengers. An elderly station wagon and a dark-skinned careful-spoken chauffeur named Ertis Ebanks took us to our hotel, which turned out to be a long, low, white frame building, only completed a few weeks ago. Here all our rooms opened onto an immense screened verandah, a much used place. Yes, it was hot. Yes, it was beautiful. Yes, it looked tropical, with not a flower nor bush I could recognize, and all with leaves 80 big.

The days were brighter than any postcard, and the sun penetrated like an X-ray, though there was a goodly breeze from the Gulf. Beaches of white sand were ground-up coral, and the water was brighter than any bluing water you ever fixed. And warm and salty and amazing for swimming, though you had to be careful the rollers didn't roll you. The most wonderful swimming imaginable, it was, though it left you heavily coated with salt.

I didn't think Gene remembered my birthday, March 3, but he had pussyfooted around and arranged a birthday cake, big enough for all the guests in the hotel, and left it to the pastry cook to devise. It was big, and wonderful tasting, and so black. Here is the bill for it, but you'll have to solve the mystery of Jamaican money before you can try it. No, not British money, though the island is British owned, and a VERY British place.

Prunes, 2 shillings, 10 pence.
Dates, 4 shillings, 10 pence.
Butter, 5 shillings, 6 pence.
Jam 3 shillings, 3 pence.
Mince-meat, 4 shillings.
Cherries, 2 shillings.
Citron, 2 shillings, 6 pence.
Rum, 2 shillings.
Flour, 9 1/2 pence.
Sugar, 2 shillings, 4 1/2 pence.
Flavoring, 1 shilling, 6 pence.
Spices, 1 shilling, 6 pence.
Labor, 1 pound, 10 shillings.
Eggs, 3 shillings.
Total, 3 pounds, 6 shillings, 6 1/2 pence. (On Grand Cayman a pound is worth $2.84, our money, a shilling is worth 14 cents.)

And after this delicious cake, and before it too, we sang and sang, 28 or 30 of us. There was the black Jamaican who was in charge of building the airstrip, an intelligent, mannerly person. There was the handsome Jamaican personality boy, Montreal-educated, who was selling insurance on the island, the first to do so. There were our pleasant young friends from McAllen, Tex., the Sandy Sharps, with their little three-year-old Mary Louise who sang Happy Birthday to me many a time, carrying the tune so truly. There was her young grandmother, Mrs. Hanks, who was born in Plymouth, Nebr., and has brothers there.

And there were our friends, the Paul Fishers from Rockford, Ill., where he is a steel tycoon who referees big-time swim meets, or perhaps I should tell it vice versa. There was the 34-year-old turtle canner boss, a jolly young Norwegian who has a lovely new home built and goes back to Norway this summer to find himself a bride.

There were the three British bankers who had come from Jamaica to establish a "branch of the Bank of Barclay's, London," the first bank on the island. They were delightful, though I only began to interpret their beautiful speech a day or two before we left the island.

There was the prim ex-school teacher, Miss Connor, who operates the hotel for that thunder-browed Scotsman, Dr. Roy McTaggart. She beamed pleasantly on all the proceedings.

There were our waitresses, shy, pretty Caymanians, Faith and Veda and Loveth by name.

There were several of our fellow citizens down there to relax, Mr. John Anderson from Nantucket, Mrs. Charles Phlanz from New York (a wonderful, competent person who helped everyone do everything (me with my sunburn, for example). There were a number of people sniffing around for likely investments, including big Al Blaylock of Raleigh, N. C.

There were two couples from Cincinnati, lovely people. Well, I can't remember who all were there, but you get the idea. And how they sang. We found the British and Scotchmen didn't sing "Old MacDonald," they sang "Old McDonough," and their version of Alouette was marvelous to hear, verse after verse.

A mixed crowd, a fun crowd, and I think they all had as much fun as I did.

All the men wore shorts, and the women as little as possible, because of sunburn in my case. It was warm, it was fun, it was delightful.

—Irma.

When You and I Were Young
The Ord Chamber of Commerce offered prizes to stimulate interest in Victory gardens. As but-ter was frozen as of Sunday night, there was a run on stores open on Sunday and all the butter they had went in a hurry. There was to be no butter sold for a week at least. A consolidation of the Rotary and Cosmopolitan clubs of Ord was being planned under the name of the former. The Ord school board decided to rehire all teachers with a higher rate of pay, but expected some would not accept their new contracts. The front page of the Quiz was taken up largely by an official table of point values of meats, fats, fish and cheese. Frank S. Hisek, who came to the county in 1881, died at the age of 86 years. Livestock dealers and slaughterers were required to obtain a federal license. L. D. Milliken resigned from the Valley County draft board and Glen Johnson was chosen in his place. The Valley County quota of bond sales for April was to be $200,000. P. R. Beauchamp, resident of Fort Hartuff, North Loup and Burwell and finally of Pasadena, Calif., died, aged 73 years. Frank Prince, in the service, had been promoted to major. Arcadia was the first town in the county to go over the top in the Red Cross drive. Miss Gretchen Giles and Sgt. Irving Youngquist of Arcadia were married at Broken Bow. Among the popular movies of the day were "Little Tokyo," "Desperate Journey" and "My Heart Belongs to Daddy."

Forty Years Ago
Rev. D. C. Williamson of Mira Valley, who was a poultry fancier, shipped 94 of his line white Lehighs to a dealer in Havlock. Mrs. L. Fenner of Burwell was in a Chicago hospital and had a very serious operation, from which she recovered. The wet and dry parties in Ord united in a joint caucus to nominate candidates for city office, the agreement being that, if the election went wet the council would grant licenses without regard to party convictions. J. C. Work was named for mayor, Irl Tolon for clerk, J. C. Wisla for treasurer, L. D. Milliken for engineer and H. Gudmundson for police judge. A. M. Mutter, E. M. Williams and E. W. Gruber were for council and R. C. Barkley and George Gard for party board. The Low Smith family moved to Iowa, taking their dog with them, but later the dog returned to visit his friends in Ord. The ice went out of the river with a rush and a large crowd gathered to watch the men fighting the ice at the river bridge. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Berquist of Sibley took charge of the independent Telephone company on long term lease. Jet, a Shetland pony belonging to Marie Hall and a town pet, was sold to the Cook family and taken to the country. The H. D. Leggett family moved to St. Paul to live, as Hank had

Twenty Years Ago
Defeat of Sargent gave the Ord basketball squad the honor of meeting Columbus in the opening game of the state tournament at Lincoln. A March blizzard raged on March 18, with spring following immediately afterward. The Loup Valley music festival was being held in Ord. About 60 farmers were present at an irrigation meeting held at Elyria. Ulric Sorenson, once of Ord, was featured in a Grand Island cartoon for his glider flight at Berwyn in 1909. The old Spanish swindle was being tried on a number of Ord people. It had a revival about three years ago at which time the writer was honored by being included. A big Sunday school convention was being held at the Ord Presbyterian church. Gold and gold hoarders were given until March 27 to turn in their gold and gold certificates to the bank. Former Sheriff Alanzo Sutton, 86, had suffered two light strokes but had recovered from both of them. Ord officers staged raids as part of the plan to clean up the city of Ord, probably a part of the spring cleanup. Butter made by the Ord Cooperative creamery won first place in the district. One of the largest funerals ever held in Grand Island was that of Emil Wolbach, killed in a plane crash. Ord and Burwell had raised their quotas of a fund to pay for irrigation survey. Paul Hanson, Ord farmer, died as a result of a stroke two months before, aged 62 years. The Ord Quiz was selling in those days. They are still very popular.

Doyle L. Buckles was editor and owner of the Ord Journal. A fellow named W. F. Williams was selling Maxwell and Chalmers cars. It was noted that time that he started the P.C.T. Stage line. The Scotia school district had 49 square miles and was the largest consolidated district in Nebraska. J. M. Cooper of Ord had taken over the sale of Sinclair oils, gasoline and kerosene for the Ord territory. The dormitory at the Wheeler county high school at Hartlett burned to the ground, with a loss of $11,000. Mrs. Katie Brown, formerly living near Ord, died at a hospital in Fremont. Miss Jennie A. Reed, former Ord resident, died in Denver and was buried at Oneta, Ill. Miss Rachel Sohl and Miss Ina Kinney, graduate nurses, arrived in Ord to be employed in the Weckes hospital. Bob Noll and Clare Clement won honors at the Hereford show in Grand Island. Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Rogers were called to Litchfield to attend the funeral of Mrs. Rogers' father, Ward Wilbur, 82. A debate between the Greeley and Ord high schools was cancelled when the Greeley team could not come because of a railroad blockaded by snow.

Rev. Leslie O. Greene

Leslie O. Greene was born in Greeley County near North Loup, May 30, 1886, the son of Herbert L. and Emma Grace Greene. He attended the North Loup public school and was graduated in the class of 1905. He was baptized by Dr. F. O. Burdick in his early teens and united with the Seventh Day Baptist church. He received his B. A. degree from Milton College, Milton, Wis., and his B. D. degree from Alfred School of Theology, Alfred, N. Y. He was married to Georgia Black Dec. 28, 1909, who survives him. There are five children, all married, and ten grandchildren. The children are Mrs. Gerald (Marjorie) Bond, Madison, Wis.; Mrs. Wayne (Katherine) Crandall, Andover, N. Y.; Harold Greene, Oak Ridge, Tenn.; Herbert Greene, Lombard, Ill.; Donald Greene, Villa Park, Ill. Two sisters also survive, Mrs. Harry Van Horn, Riverside, Calif. and Mrs. Lloyd Lukens, Battle Creek, Mich., and many nieces and nephews.

As a young man he taught school one year in the "rural" of the North Loup district, also a term in the Daniel Davis district in Greeley county. While attending the theological seminary he was student pastor of the Independence, N. Y. Seventh Day Baptist church near Andover, N. Y. He next served the Farina, Ill., Seventh Day Baptist church five years where he also taught one year during the first world war. Following this he taught in Nebraska high schools for 18 years at Cowles, Hooper, North Loup and Haigler. In summer vacations he often supplied the pulpit in his home church and other churches. One summer was spent in missionary work on the Arkansas river.

In 1937 the family moved to Albion, Wis., where five years were spent serving the Albion Seventh Day Baptist church. He also taught school two years of this time. Then he and his wife travelled five years, working on the home fields for the denomination. In 1947 he became pastor of the Jackson Center Seventh Day Baptist church, which he released him the next year to go to Indianapolis, Ind. Only last July he and Mrs. Greene returned to Jackson Center where a heart condition soon necessitated a curtailment of many of the activities so dear to him. However, he persisted in performing as many of the pastoral duties as he had strength to do.

He passed away in a Dayton, O., hospital March 7, 1953. Funeral services were conducted in the Jackson Center church by Rev. Alton L. Wheeler of Battle Creek, assisted by Rev. Herbert L. Polan, first world war pastor who has also been his pastor in North Loup. Interment was in the Jackson Center Seventh Day Baptist cemetery.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Cox were Saturday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Maxson.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Burns of Scotia and Mrs. Ed Edwards were Friday evening guests of Merrill McClellan.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Spierling and their daughter, Mrs. Tom Durm left Monday morning for Los Angeles to see Mrs. Durm's husband graduate from his course with the Seabees. He is stationed at Port Hueneme, near Los Angeles, and will have a furlough and come home with them. Mrs. Durm bought a new Studebaker from the Schudel Motor company, which they will drive through Friday Mr. and Mrs. Spierling drove the car to Lincoln to get Mrs. Durm.

Mrs. Duane McWilliams of Omaha spent Saturday night and Sunday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Spierling. She came up with Raymond Wright who spent the time with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Everett Wright.

METHODIST CHURCH J. Arthur Miller, Pastor

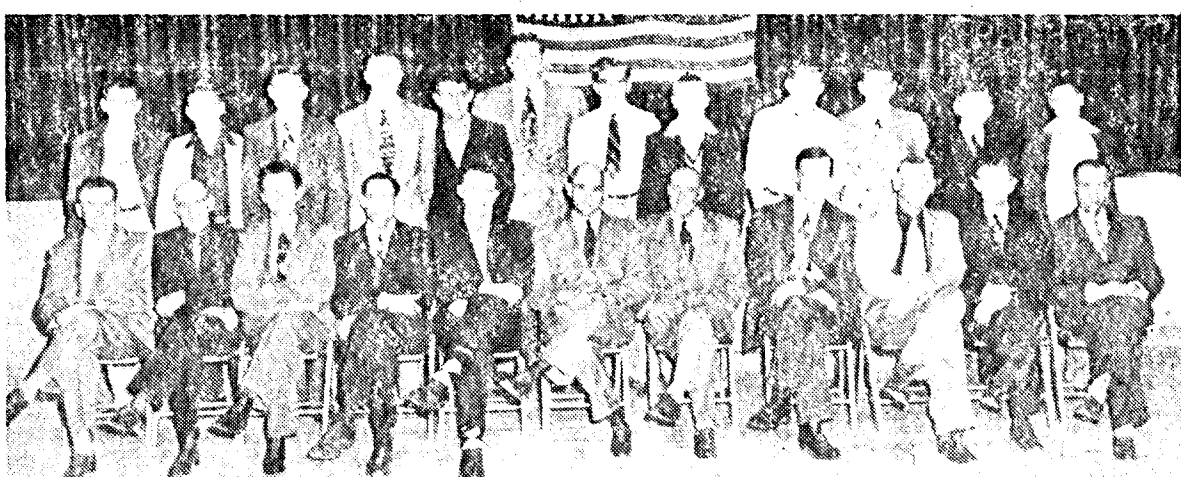

Thursday of this week the Ruth Circle meets at 2:30 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Mildred Manchester. Thursday of next week (April 2) the pastor will give a Passion Week sermon, and immediately following will be the Administration of the Lord's Supper. This service will take the place of the Good Friday Service. The sermon topic will be "The Alone Master." Time, 8:00 p.m.

Next Sunday morning, Palm Sunday, the pastor will preach at the 11 o'clock hour. It had been announced that the District Supt. Rev. Jewett would deliver the Palm Sunday sermon, but the illness of the Broken Bow pastor Rev. Monkman makes it necessary that Rev. Jewett take his place.

However Dr. Jewett will be with us to preside at the last quarterly conference, next Sunday, March 29. Reports of the year's work soon closing, of the heads of all departments of church work will be presented. A large attendance at the quarterly conference is much desired, and necessary for the planning of the future work of the church. A family dinner for all church members and friends of the Methodist church will be in the parlors of the church, immediately following the morning service and the business meeting will be at 1:30 p.m. Bring table service, covered dish and sandwiches.

Easter Sunday (or next Sunday either) the pastor will baptize any who may desire this service either for their children or themselves.

The doors of the church will be open to those desiring to unite with this church.

An Every Day Bargain

Most everyone follows the American custom of looking in the newspapers to see what is on sale. That is quite natural because no one cares to pay more than necessary for what they purchase.

One bargain, available every day in the year, is railroad transportation. For example, Burlington charges an average of only one and three-tenths cents to haul a ton of freight one mile. What's more, it moves over our own steel highway, provided and maintained at Burlington expense to give you safe, low-cost, dependable transportation.

You save money by taking advantage of this every day bargain. Whatever you have to ship, let Burlington handle it.

Gregory Stillman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Stillman, who reside south of Scotia, has been chosen by the American Legion Auxiliary to represent Scotia at Boys State to be held at Lincoln some time during June. Bob Holt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Art Holt has been chosen as his alternate.

Marcia Spencer

Marcia Spencer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Spencer, who reside west of Scotia, has been chosen by the American Legion Auxiliary to represent Scotia at Girls State to be held in Lincoln during June. Ellen Salter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Salter, has been chosen as her alternate.

Mrs. Adelaide Klingensmith, 93, is a patient in the hospital at St. Paul, after suffering a light stroke while at the home of her grand daughter, Mrs. John Muller. Mrs. Klingensmith is the mother of Harry Klingensmith who lives west of Scotia.

I am now located in my new office building, across the street of Hotel Ord. Dr. G. R. Gard, 52-11c

District Judge Spikes of Grand Island has set April 20 as the date for the trial of John Condon, the Brayton farmer who is charged with "shooting with intent to kill" Mrs. Margaret Foster, also of Brayton.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Spencer entertained their Pinochle club at their home Friday night. Seven couples were present. Winning prizes were Mrs. Allen Sims, Wm. Donscheski and Bryan Portis.

Soldier's Son Burned Badly, Recovering

Lee, son of Sgt. and Mrs. John Buffington, celebrated his 9-month birthday on the 17th of March by going to the home of his parents in Trieste, Italy, after being hospitalized for better than two months.

Little Lee pulled a cigarette lighter from a table when his mother was absent from the house, hanging clothes on the line. In some manner, the lighter ignited his clothes. Mrs. Buffington was excited and could not extinguish the flames, so immediately put the child under the water faucet, thus putting out the fire but driving the burns in, causing second degree burns. He was released from the hospital within a few days but was soon returned with virus pneumonia. Again released, he went back to the hospital with infection caused from the burns. On Feb. 24, the physician in charge deemed it necessary to graft skin in order to heal his burns. Now Lee is home with his parents, is lively and kicks about all he can with one leg in a cast. He has a smile for every one.

Mrs. Buffington is the former Esther Key, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Key of Burwell. Lee's other grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Earl Buffington of Scotia.

C. Furtak was in Grand Island Thursday, where he spent the day.

A. F. Crosby, the boot and shoe man, went to Lincoln to take treatments for rheumatism.

Bolles-Ruzicka

Miss Nita June Bolles of Wood River and Gordon Ruzicka of Scotia were married March 15 in the Methodist church at Wood River. The Rev. Clarence McConkey officiated at the 2 p.m. ceremony. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Bolles, Wood River. Mr. Ruzicka's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ruzicka of Farwell.

The bridal gown was of white satin, Chantilly lace and tulle. A Mary Queen of Scots tiara held her three-quarter length veil and she carried a white Bible topped with red roses.

Mrs. Nina Bolles, twin sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Mildred Young, sister of the bridegroom, of Rockville, and Ruth Peterson of Berwyn. They wore gowns of Nile green, orchid and yellow nylon over taffeta and carried pastel carnations.

Leo Gillham, Grand Island, served as best man and groomsman was Raymond Ruzicka, Columbus. Ushers were Robert Bolles and Edward Young. Lighting the candles was Evelyn Coley. Mrs. W. P. Moore was vocalist and pianist was Mrs. Amy Sack.

During a reception for 125 guests in the church parlor, Mrs. Myron Duncan and Shirley Allen had charge of the gifts and Betty O'Brien took flash pictures.

That evening the couple had a wedding dance at the Glovera ballroom in Grand Island.

After a two week's trip they will live in Scotia, where Mr. Ruzicka is depot agent.

JOHN O. BOETTGER

John Oscar Boettger, fifth child and third son of Conrad and Hannah Boettger, was born at the family home in Mira Valley, July 4, 1875. Because of changes in the school districts he attended school in Dist. 9, 10 and 57, though always living at the same place. Later he was a student in Grand Island Business and Normal college for a period of two terms.

After that he farmed and raised stock on farms in Mira Valley and in Maiden Valley for about 25 years, during a part of which time he engaged in the well and windmill business when his other work permitted. He then went into this business exclusively, and had his shop in Ord for a period of 11 years.

Selling out to E. R. Horner, he moved to a ranch south of Chambers, where he lived for 10 years. In 1946 he moved to Kennard, Nebr., returning to Mira Valley in 1951 when his health began to fail. He gradually grew worse until death came to end his sufferings March 17, at 11:35 p.m. at St. Francis hospital in Grand Island.

He leaves to mourn his passing his sisters Myra of Mira Valley and Mrs. Bertha Pates of Minneapolis, Minn., and his brothers George S. and Evert W. of Mira Valley. He was preceded in death by his parents, a sister, Lydia Hornickel, brother, Charles and one brother and two sisters who died in infancy.

Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon, March 22, at 2:30 p.m. at the Ord Methodist church. Rev. Mamie Young having charge. Mrs. Louise spent some time in Aurora, accompanied by Viola Kellison at the organ.

Active pallbearers were Walt Foth, Clare Clement, Edgar Ro Dan Cook, Forrest Watson and John Ward. Honorary pallbearers were Claude Thomas, S. W. Ro Anton Guggenmos, John Be George Houtby, Ed Cook, James Cook, William Hecker, M. B. Cummings and Roy Cox.

Burial was in the family plot at the Ord cemetery. Haslings-Pe son mortuary had charge of funeral arrangements.

Mrs. Charles Johnson, who lives in Decatur, spent from Friday until Monday with Mr. and Mrs. B. Cummings, and other relatives. She also spent some time earlier in the week at the W. Cummings home in North Loup, and Mrs. Cummings took her to Decatur on Monday.
