Misko Heads Valley County Cancer Drive

Dean W. Misko of Ord has been named chairman of the Valley County Cancer Unit fund drive, scheduled for late April.

Former Ordite Dies

Friends and relatives have learned of the death Sunday of Mrs. Esie Furnish at Cheyenne, Wyo. Mrs. Furnish was the daughter of the late George Gahagen, a former Ord man who was a pioneer contractor and builder. Robert Furnish Sr. was the first paid secretary of the Ord Chamber of Commerce after its organization immediately after the first world war. Funeral services for Mrs. Furnish were held Wednesday morning. Her husband, Robert Furnish Jr., survives.

Your Choice; Twenty Guys Named Joe

At least twenty persons named Joe who live out in the Geranium neighborhood are going to have a finger of suspicion poked at them.

This week, a character who prefers to be known simply as "Geranium Joe" started writing letters to the editor. The letters were sally enough that he and Quiz Editor Ed Apking struck up a deal whereby the letters will be printed regularly as long as "Joe" writes them.

But he insists on keeping his identity a secret... for the present, at least.

You'll find the first installment on page one of Section 2 in this issue. And if you want to meet the author, just go out to the first high hill eight or so miles west of Ord and yell "Joe!" He'll show.

Walter Beggs New Dean University Teachers College

Dr. Walter F. Beggs was named Dean of Teachers College at the University of Nebraska Tuesday, succeeding Dr. F. J. Henzlik who has reached retirement age.

Dr. Beggs was speaker at the annual banquet meeting of the Ord Chamber of Commerce a year ago, and in addition to his faculty duties as chairman of the department of history and principles of education at the University is director of a study of small community life financed by a $90,000 grant from the Carnegie Corp.

Psota Sets Dates For Purebred Sale

Rudy Psota, a well known purebred stock raiser from North Loup, will hold a stock sale Wednesday, May 7, he announced this week. Psota said he would offer 50 purebred polled herefords. Twenty are servicing bulls, 30 are females.

Heading for Own Rites Police Quip

Bernard J. Logsdon of Hastings told county authorities he was heading for a funeral Monday when he was clocked by Patrolman Otto Zapp for doing 90 miles an hour, on Highway 11.

Logsdon, who is 70 years of age, could have been headed for his own, officers said. He paid a fine of $20 and costs in Judge Ellisworth Ball's court Monday.

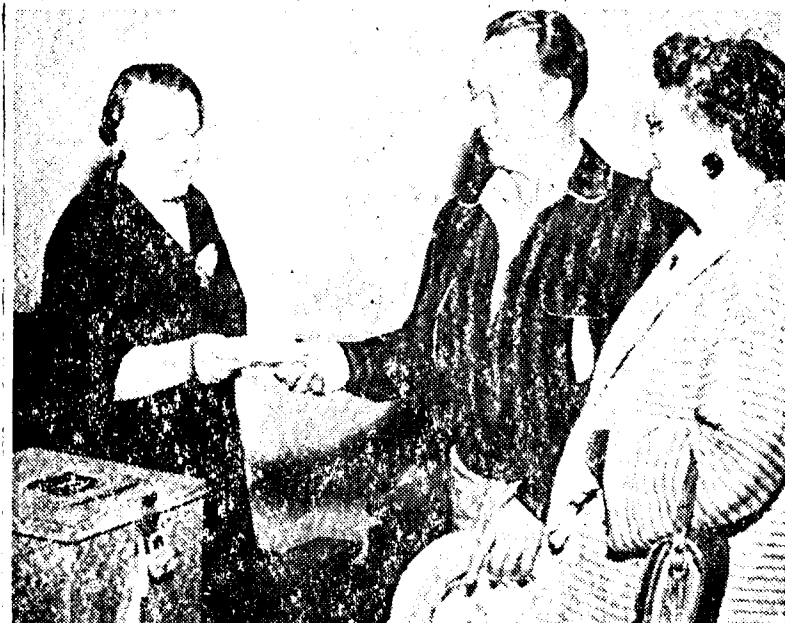

Richard J. Kluna of Ord got a double dose in court. In addition to a fine of $5 and costs of $5 for driving without a license, Kluna was assessed $5, paid costs of $7 and made good an insufficient fund check of $2.25 issued to the Hotel Ord in February.

Charges were dismissed against three Ord youths, when they agreed to contribute $100 toward the damage they caused to windows at the Ord high school last week.

Damage was caused by discharge of an air pistol which the trio had been shooting on the school grounds. Darrell Conner contributed $50, Ralph Absalon and Frank Schamp $25 each. The trio were originally picked up by Sheriff V. J. Beran who turned them over to city policeman Willis Garner for trial in city court.

Three other cases were heard by police magistrate Forrest Peterson.

Harold L. Hines, arrested by city policeman Jim Sobon for driving with obscured vision was fined $5 and costs. James Kruml, Jr. paid a fine of $10, including costs, for driving with expired license plates, while Wayne King of Central City was fined $10 and costs of $5 for speeding.

Voters Turn Out En Masse Tuesday

Ord voters turned out en-masse Tuesday to chulk up one of the largest city and school election votes in recent history. Just before the polls closed in the First Ward, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Hoimer handed their votes to election clerk Mrs. Fied Stoddard.

Bremer is Extension Board Prexy

George (Jery) Bremer, was elected president of the Valley County Extension Council at a meeting of the board of directors held Thursday evening.

Joe Pokraka was named vice-president and Mrs. Wallace Coats, secretary-treasurer.

Two new members sat on the board for the first time as the result of a constitutional amendment passed by the local council at its annual meeting a month ago.

They are Theod Nelson, chairman of the county 4-H club council and Mrs. Floyd Bessen, president of Valley county extension clubs.

Other members of the board are Harold Garnick and Floyd Bessen. The board passed a resolution of thanks to Henry Enger, retired, for his past services.

The local chapter of Red Cross has spent over $600 in services to servicemen's families within the last five years.

Write-In Campaign Puts Osentowski on Board; Lynn Leads - 381 Votes

A write-in campaign that produced 292 votes gave Dr. F. J. Osentowski, Ord dentist, a seat on the board of education to feature the local election Tuesday.

Dr. R. J. Lynn, physician, got 381 votes to lead a field of five as Ord voters turned out for one of the largest city and school board elections in years. Both Lynn and Osentowski will be new to the board.

Three More in County Office Race

Three more candidates dropped their hats in the Valley county political ring as the deadline for filing neared.

Emanuel Petska, incumbent, filed on the democratic ticket for county surveyor.

Melvin Swanson, Arcadia, filed as a republican for the 7th district supervisor post.

Forrest L. Peterson, Ord, filed on the republican ticket for county assessor.

Deadline for filing is five o'clock Thursday afternoon.

Adds Two Contests Peterson, a resident of the county for fifty years, will be opposed in the primary by Clyde Baker, former clerk of the district court.

Both bring to their candidacy a long record of service. Peterson retired from the farm five years ago to move to Ord, has served as a school board and township board member, and is now starting his second term as Ord police magistrate. He is a veteran of World War I. Baker, since the district clerk's job was abolished, has been working for the state tax commissioner in Omaha, but has maintained his legal residence here, and has extensive property holdings.

Swanson will be up against Allan E. Masters in the republican primary, which will be the second political race for the two Tuesday. Masters emerged victor over Swanson in an Arcadia school board race.

Easter Egg Hunt Saturday

Thousands of Easter Eggs will be hidden in the Ord city park Saturday morning when the Ord Chamber of Commerce stages its annual Easter Egg Hunt for kiddies of the area.

The event will start at ten o'clock. Members of the Ord Volunteer Fire Department will manage and supervise the hunt.

38 Teams Here For Track Meet

Five more schools have entered teams in the Ord Invitational track meet to get underway here Wednesday morning, April 9.

The new entries swell the total to 38, 11 in class A and 27 in class B.

Newcomers are O'Neill, Central City and Fullerton in Class A; Springfield and St. Mary's of O'Neill in Class B.

And the Mud Was Deep in Valley County!

Others on the school board ballot were Mrs. Helen Kokes, incumbent with 274 votes; Clayton Calvin 203 and Mike Vost, 220.

A solitary mail vote may decide the third ward council post where voters split 88 to 88 between incumbent Bill Darges and Frank Kaputka.

Only three mail votes were cast two in the first ward and one in the third. The mail vote will be counted at the time of the official canvass set for 11 o'clock next Monday morning.

In other city council races, Clark Weckbach led Harry Zulkoski 179-110 in the first ward; Rollie Johnson nosed out Bill Lee 132 to 115 in the second ward.

Dr. D. L. Karre, veterinarian, running unopposed for mayor, got 660 votes, and Forrest Peterson, police judge candidate, got 640 votes.

766 Voters Turn Out

There were the usual scattered write-ins for all city offices. The election brought 766 voters to the polls, 328 in the first ward, where school district votes outside the city are also cast; 258 in the second ward and 180 in the third.

The official count will await the statutory canvass by the Ord city council. If the canvass confirms the tie between Darges and Kaputka, a flip of a coin will probably decide the issue.

Appointment Scheduled

Regardless of who wins the third ward post, a vacancy will exist as newly elected mayor Karre must resign his present third-ward job. Unless the new mayor decides to look further, the election loser would receive first consideration for the appointment.

Dog Restraint Voted

Dogs got the works when Burwell voters gave a two to one approval of a city ordinance to restrain dogs from May 1st to September 1st. Vote was 213 in favor of the proposed ordinance, 96 against. The ordinance is similar to the one approved by Ordites a year ago.

Burwell city council races saw Melvin Malicky defeating H. W. Wagner, Jr., 108 to 44 in the first ward, while Leslie DeLashmatt beat Walter Conrad 98 to 55 in the second ward.

Ord Starts Red Cross With $544

The Red Cross campaign reported $544.25 here Wednesday as the national headquarters moved to lengthen the annual fund campaign into April.

The extra time is welcomed said Fund Drive Chairman Hank Lange. Lange added that the Ord business solicitation by Rotary was the only one completed so far.

Mud and rain has prohibited solicitors, notably in the out county precincts, from making first calls.

Businessmen Generous Rotary's foray into business netted $537.25. Drop in contributions at Art Jefferies' office swelled the total by $7 more.

Here's the way Ord business responded:

- North Side: Mortensen $101; Geo. Allen $4; Vogeltanz and Babka $36; Pierce $8 and Turek $21.
- East Side: Noll $35; Kellison $31; Jefferies $30.
- South Side: Weckbach $78; Lee $58.50; Parkins $29.
- West Side: Diamond $43; Stoddard $24; Pearson $10; Blessing $13.50; Cummins $12.

The Red Cross goal in Valley county this year is about $1200.

Idaho Climate Healthful
 "Mrs. Rathjen's asthma condition seems to be showing a definite response to this climate," Rev. C. A. Rathjen former pastor of St. John's Lutheran churches in Ord and Burwell, writes from Twin Falls, Idaho. "She has been able to reduce her medication by a great deal. We are all very hopeful and thankful."
 "We have been to Sun Valley and have found it simply fabulous. To be within driving distance of it is a thrill all its own. A cabin, only about ten miles from Sun Valley, belonging to one of our members is available to us any time we wish to use it during the summer. We all find that very enticing... with a mountain stream running just along the side of the cabin!" The former Ord pastor said that his church attendance on March 30 was 1060 for the three services he conducts, while Sunday school attendance was 512. One of his Sunday sermons is broadcasted over a local radio station.

Off The Square

Moving is Big Chore
 Mrs. Will Misko is a busy woman these days, sorting things out in the big house to take to the little new house. For years she has enjoyed collecting china dogs, and in puzzling as to where the puppies would fit into the Misko's new home, she finally put all one hundred of them into a box and tucked them away in a closet. The toy dogs may not be happy about their situation, but Mrs. Misko's friends, who are the new owners of forty violets she gave away are delighted.
 Mrs. Omar E. Hartman, daughter of the Bill Misko's, will fly to Grand Island Sunday and be home with her parents for a week. Her mother hopes to enlist her aid in choosing draperies and carpet colors for the new house, and she may put her to work sorting out odds and ends of things that "have got to go."

Lost in the Blizzard
 During the heavy snows in central Nebraska earlier this month a motorist was lost somewhere near Hastings. His car had come to a stop, but through the snow and dusk he spied a road marker not too far away, although its inscription faced the other way. Farsightedly equipping himself with a whisk broom from his car, he brushed the clinging snow from the sign, he floundered through the snow drifts, went around to the other side of the sign, and brushed. And this is what he read: "One Fourth Mile to Picnic Table."
 —Ashland Gazette

Gates of Arcadia, took part in a major Atlantic Fleet amphibious exercise aboard the tactical command ship USS Northampton during March 13-31, off the Southeastern Atlantic Coast.
 The exercise was designed to train Atlantic Fleet units and Marines in methods of modern amphibious warfare. Speed, dispersal and mobility were stressed throughout the exercise, including the use of helicopters to fly Marine combat units ashore in further tests of "vertical envelopment" techniques. The operation involved 60 ships, 200 aircraft and 40,000 Navy and Marine Corps personnel.

Bow and Arrow Season

April 1st may be April Fools' Day to many persons, but to Nebraska's growing army of archery enthusiasts it is of even more significance, for it marked the beginning of the state's bow-and-arrow season on nongame fish. The arrow shooting continues to December 1, from sunrise to sunset.
 In Nebraska, only the long bow, drawn by hand, is legal. The use of the crossbow or similar device is unlawful. Nongame fish include buffalo, carp, gar, quillback, and sucker.

Farm - Ag Tips

By Bob Perry

Valley County Agricultural Agent

May Be Possible to Store Wet Corn

Experiments conducted at Purdue University indicate that 27% moisture corn can be stored successfully.

The secret is to have the storage airtight. If little or no oxygen is present the heating that takes place in open storage does not occur.

The largest completed experiment in Indiana was on a 500 bushel bin. This was a cylindrical sheet metal bin. A large plastic bag of polyethylene plastic (6 mil. in thickness) served as an airtight liner.

Some of the precautions that were used to insure it remaining airtight: Bolts were installed with openings larger than a lead pencil was plugged to keep out mice.

Sharp angles near the door were covered with plywood. The floor and sides were lined with heavy paper prior to installing the plastic.

A sheet of plywood was placed near the center of the bin on the plastic to prevent damage by the unloading auger.

Little or no molding was found on the corn after ten months' storage. The corn had the fermented odor and soft texture considered typical in airtight storage.

Hogs fed the wet corn gained 8% more per day and ate 9.2% more corn. The cost of gain was $7.78 on the wet corn compared to $8.14 for those on dry corn.

Dutch Elm Disease

Recent publicity regarding Dutch Elm Disease has caused considerable speculation in Ord and other Nebraska communities as to whether control programs are necessary. Information received from the plant pathology and entomology departments of the university by county agent Bob Perry indicates that the threat to our elms is not immediate.

The disease is not known to be in Nebraska at present. The nearest locations are the very eastern edge of Iowa and the city of Kansas City, Missouri. It could move into almost any area populated by elms by being carried in diseased wood. If it depends upon natural spreading, it will probably be several years before the disease reaches Nebraska.

The plant pathology department has set up a program for identification Mr. Perry said. However, the service is for county agents, city parks and nurserymen. Any individual who suspects the presence of the disease may contact the county agent. Samples from trees that have the symptoms of the disease will be sent to the lab.

The smaller European Elm Park beetle is the principal carrier of Dutch Elm disease. At the present time the entomologists are not recommending dormant sprays.

Because the beetles breed only in dead or dying American elms the practical thing to do at this time is to remove and burn all dead elm wood.

Otto Niemeyer Sr., of Hastings was in Ord Tuesday morning, and had dinner with his son, Otto Niemeyer Jr. and family.

Beer Has Put $38 Billions into U.S. Economy Since Repeal 25 Years Ago

By Arthur A. Whitworth

Approximately $38 billion has been pumped into the American economy as a consequence of the re-legalization of malt beverages 25 years ago.

This was shown today in an analysis released by the United States Brewers Foundation in connection with the 25th anniversary of the return of beer, April 7, 1933, after the passing of the Cullen-Harrison Act.

Economic and social consequences of the return of beer in 1933 stood out clearly, according to the analysis. "Signed into law by President Franklin D. Roosevelt, the Act was an economic shot in the arm for a country gripped by a desperate depression. It was also a moral lift for people who could once again consume legally the beverage of moderation. An age of lawlessness, lost taxes, unnecessary unemployment and anti-social behavior came to an end.

"With a few strokes of the pen national deficits became national assets: Racketeers' profits were converted into federal and state taxes, and excessive drinking of poor products in speakeasies became moderate consumption of good beer in open, legal taverns.

"In the 24 hours after beer 'came back' in the city of New York, there were no arrests for drunkenness. Since then the brewers' regard for the law and the Foundation policy of 'self-regulation' have helped maintain a high level of moderation among consumers of malt beverages."

Large amounts paid out by the brewing industry since repeal of Prohibition are:

state taxes $16,500,000,000

Wages and salaries 6,300,000,000

Materials, machinery, supplies, electricity 11,000,000,000

Farmers 2,555,000,000

Bottles (26 billion) 1,000,000,000

Cans (64 billion) 2,000,000,000

During the 25 year period since re-legalization, employment has risen about 70 per cent. The brewing industry presently employs more than 80,000 persons.

Farmers' Gains "Although it is obvious that a quarter century of legal beer has had a powerful effect upon the whole economy, its impact upon agriculture and in particular upon certain crops is often overlooked, according to the Brewers Foundation. "Farm earnings from the brewing industry since repeal have amounted to $2,555,000,000. Farmers' income from the brewers in 1957 alone was $240 million."

According to the analysis, malt beverages require more than 40 pounds of farm produce per barrel brewed. What this means to farm crops is indicated by the following list of agricultural products consumed by brewers during the fiscal years 1934-1957:

Malt: 55,892,702,000 pounds; corn: 16,722,246,000; rice: 5,971,633,000; sugar and syrups: 3,759,427,000; hops: 839,998,000; barley: 559,449,000; sorghum grains: 401,060,000; wheat: 209,860,000; soybeans: 43,468,000; and miscellaneous products: 179,215,000.

Federal and state tax collections rose with beer and ale consumption. Per capita consumption in 1934 was 7.9 gallons; in 1957 it was 15.4 gallons.

Federal taxes for 1934 amounted to $169,000,000. For the fiscal year 1957 they came to $763,000,000. Estimated state taxes for 1934 were $52,000,000, and for 1957 $230,000,000. In the quarter century since repeal a total of 1,843,000,000 barrels of beer have been produced.

From the techniques of the new research men came a whole new system of brewing controls, of improvements in purity, dryness, lightness, taste, color, nutrition and other qualities which make modern beer more desirable.

Among by-products of research were many in the medical field: The role of the brewers yeast is so varied in serving mankind nutritionally and in the production of biochemicals that its full potential is a challenge to scientific researchers.

One of the most important components of yeast is ribonucleic acid. Its functions all are largely obscure, but it is believed to control manufacture of new protein from amino acids in cells. Because it is believed to play a fundamental role in growth processes there is renewed clinical interest in its possible use as a therapeutic agent, especially for elderly people. It may be effective in prolonging life.

A compound cast off in the brewing of beer - known as adenylc acid - is being used to relieve the "maddening itch" of cancer of the lymphatic system.

Doctors may soon be recommending three or four bottles of beer a day as "a useful addition to the diet of heart disease patients on a low salt diet."

Three Milwaukee doctors made the finding, their report said: "It is shown that in obtaining one-quarter to one-third of the calories in a low sodium diet in the form of beer, one satisfies the carbohydrate, protein and fat requirements of the diet plus providing minerals, calcium, phosphorus and iron."

Ten Jobs Open For Every Journalism Grad at Nebraska

Dr. William E. Hall, director of the University of Nebraska's School of Journalism, has laid claim to an unusual record.

"I bet I have been unable to fill more positions than any man or woman in Nebraska engaged in personnel work," the J-School administrator sadly claimed, "and I don't imagine anybody will want to contest my statement."

Hall pointed out he can normally fill only one position in every 10 job requests or listings. That's the ratio of journalism graduates to journalism opportunities.

"It seems almost impossible to get the story across that opportunities for the professional journalist are increasing rapidly while the number of trainees is standing still or declining," Hall said.

He added that today government, industry and the service agencies are bidding as eagerly for the services of the J-School graduate as the traditional news media.

"They recognize that today's J-School graduate is alert, intelligent and observant," Hall said. "He has been exposed to more political science, for example, than most liberal arts students; more important, he must be able to apply that knowledge to a fast-developing news situation and come up with an analysis that is clear and complete. He's a natural for any organization."

The caliber of youngster entering journalism is attested to by the fact that the school of Journalism has averaged two Phi Beta Kappas per year at the University since 1953, Hall said.

Hall indicated he takes no pleasure in the record to which he has laid claim.

Tax Equity Council Launches New Proposal for State Aid to Schools

The major change in the Nebraska Tax Equity Council's current proposal is to replace the previously adopted provision that all schools be paid state aid of not less than twenty per cent of total operating expenses by a requirement that the legislature shall appropriate some amount for the schools.

The membership of the so-called Tax Equity Council is comprised mainly of education groups and real estate interests.

The constitutional amendment as tentatively proposed to the voters, if a sufficient number of signatures are obtained on the petitions, reads as follows:

After January 1, 1959 the legislature shall be prohibited from levying a property tax for the general fund of the state; and shall make an appropriation for the common schools to reduce property taxes that would otherwise be levied for school operating expenses.

If the voters approve such an amendment in November it would mean that the legislature would have to find sufficient funds to replace the property tax for the state general fund and also provide a residual which could be used for state aid to the public schools in the state. At the present time the state general fund property tax amounts to $20 million, or 13.4 per cent of the total state and local property taxes levied.

A two per cent sales tax without any major exemptions would yield about $34 million at the present time, according to the estimates made by the Nebraska Citizens Council. Such a tax would leave about $14 million which could be used for state aid to education if — and this is a big "if" — state general fund requirements did not rise during the next few years. As the requirements for the University and normal schools rise due to increased enrollments, and as more money is appropriated for recreation, health, welfare, and other state activities, the residual left for schools under a two per cent sales tax would shrink. Such an eventually would compel the legislature to increase the sales tax or enact a state income tax, or provide some other revenue source in order to meet the growing needs. An alternative would be to make state aid to education, if adopted, flexible enough so that as the state became pinched for revenue the program could be adjusted downward.

State Aid and Local School Taxes

By the direction in the latter part of the proposal: "property taxes that would otherwise be levied for school operating expenses, shall be reduced by the appropriation required to be made by the legislature for the schools. The question then arises as to how state aid for schools can supply the increasing operating expenses of the schools and at the same time reduce the property taxes levied for school expenses."

Legislature, Could Make Changes Now

It should be borne in mind that the legislature has the power at the present time to give state aid to education whenever it is deemed advisable or necessary. In addition, our present constitution contains a provision that if and when the legislature shall enact a sales or an income tax, or a combination of the two, that the state can no longer levy property taxes for any purpose. The Tax Equity Council seeks by constitutional amendment and vote in November to force the hand of the legislature and compel a change in our tax structure and the adoption of the principle of state aid to schools. The new proposal does not eliminate the state property tax since there would remain $4.5 million in special levies for the institutional building fund, teacher retirement, and the University Hospital building fund. There is nothing in the Tax Equity Council's proposal which would prevent the state from multiplying these special levies in the future and dedicating such levies for special purposes of the state government. —Citizens' Council Report.

1958 Chanticleers Led All Teams in Scoring

The 1958 Ord high school Chanticleers scored more points than any Class A or AA team in the state, unofficial records revealed this week.

The Chants were credited with 1,455 points in their 23 games. Nearest to them was Omaha Westside with 1,259 points in 22 games. Westside won 15 and the Chants won 18.

On the other side of the ledger the Chants has 1,087 points scored against them, a mark edged only by Alliance who gave up 1,223 points in losing 14 to 18 games and tied by Ainsworth who last 12 to 18 games.

In straight Class A competition the Chants won six and lost three, and also dropped one interstate bout.

Randy Dick Goodsell, junior, led Ord scoring with 351 points. Juniors Frank Schamp and Bill Martin had 267 and 256 points respectively, senior Bob Armstrong contributed 236 markers. Don Beerline, another junior, chalked up 128 points for the season.

Other Ord scoring credited junior Gerald Dunlap with 66, senior Don Vasicek with 28, sophomore Eddie Kruml with 27 and junior Todd Muirhead with 26. Sophomore Tom Sevenker had 19, senior Dennis Vasicek 10, junior Arden Negley, six and sophomore Bruce Pearson, four.

Schamp, Goodsell and Martin were placed on the Central West Division all conference squad of ten members. Armstrong and Schamp were rated on the first five in the Three Lous conference, while Martin, Goodsell and Muirhead got honorable mention.

Chanticleer Track Squad at Burwell

Coach Bill Gogan will take a squad of 15 to Burwell this afternoon (Wednesday) for the annual Wrangler Relays, curtain opener of the Chanticleer track season.

Ainsworth is defending champion. Last year's Chant track squad ranked 8th.

Ord's best efforts last year came in the distance medley relay with Don Vasicek, Dave Pokraka, Robert Ptacnik and Rich Potrzeba placing third. All are competing this year.

The Chants hold four meet records, two of them set by weight man Don Kapustka in 1956. 51'3" with the shot and 130'3" with the discus. The Chant's two mile relay team set a record of 8:59.3 in 1954 and the distance medley relay team of 1956 holds a 11:18.5 meet record.

4-H Junior Leaders in Kearney Session

Fourteen 4-H Junior Leaders from Valley county migrated to the Kearney Junior Leaders conference, March 28 and 29. The group from this county included Rita Bogus, Phyllis White, Elizabeth Haywood, Karen VanZandt, Karen Yost, Dolores Sobotka, Bonnie Klantcky, Arden Koelling, LaVerne Koelling, Richard Penas, Dave Pokraka, Robert Linke, Paul Plate and Wendell Bell.

The conference provided an opportunity for junior leaders to exchange ideas, learn new leadership skills, and gain more information about 4-H. During the conference the participants divided into discussion groups, received new ideas for recreation, and gained an acquaintance with other county junior leaders. Wendell Bell participated in a junior leader's panel discussion for radio broadcast under Kenneth Schmidt's direction. The conference terminated with a panel discussion by junior leaders from different counties who presented different possibilities for yearly activities. Dave Pokraka and Dolores Sobotka were members of this panel.

Ruby and Beanie Jensen of North Loup and Mrs. Curt Gudmundsen were Tuesday afternoon callers at the George Nass home.

Game Commission Uses Cannon to Capture Geese

This week, the Dawson County area in central Nebraska will echo with the boom of cannon. But no Paul Revere are needed to sound the alarm, nor will the cannon signal the arrival of a visiting dignitary. The pyrotechnics will be part of the methodology involved in banding white-fronted geese in one of their more popular stopping-over points in the nation.

The man responsible for the big boom is Harvey Miller, Game Commission Assistant Project Leader.

In order to band a goose you must first catch him. After netting is set up in an appropriate spot, the area is baited. In this situation baiting is lawful. When the geese congregate, the cannon are fired, launching projectiles which carry the netting over the feeding waterfowl. The game technician then leg-bands the birds.

Not much is known of the white-fronted geese, and Miller's banding will aid in learning what the Game Commission terms the geese's "population dynamics."

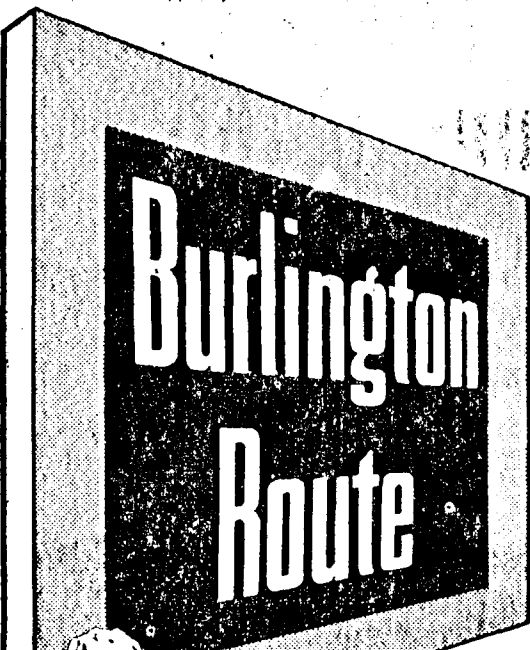

Included in these dynamics will be migratory patterns. The whitefront is also known as the laughing geese. For a long time he's been laughing at game techniques seeking information about his habits. But partly because of the net-cannons, he'll find that he who laughs last laughs best.

THE ORD QUIZ

First Nebraska Settlement was Bellevue; Had Early Hopes of Being Capital City

The first settlement in Nebraska was Bellevue. It expected to become the capital of Nebraska territory, and had one of the strongest claims to that honor. As a matter of fact, the first indications were that Bellevue would be the capital.

The first governor stopped there as it was the most substantial settlement in the new territory. Francis Burt, the first Governor of Nebraska territory, arrived in Nebraska from his home in South Carolina in early October of 1854.

He was sworn in as Governor at Bellevue on October 16, and the residents of that place were sure that he intended to establish the capital there. Unfortunately, Governor Burt, who was sick on his arrival in Nebraska, died after he had been in office only two days.

This made his secretary, Thomas B. Cuming, acting Governor. Cuming, from Michigan, had connections with a group of Iowa promoters who had an interest in Council Bluffs and so were interested in the town of Omaha. There are stories of a number of proposals or offers made in behalf of both Bellevue and Omaha. One of the most commonly told is that Governor Cuming offered to establish Bellevue as the capital if he were given a grant of one hundred acres of land in the town. The Reverend William Hamilton, head of the Indian mission at Bellevue, refused to make such a grant and the capital was lost to Omaha as a result.

This story is repeated in a number of accounts, but real evidence for the charge is lacking.

By-passing Bellevue, Governor Cuming designated Omaha as the place where the first legislature of the territory would meet. Omaha's hold on the capital was confirmed by the county boundaries and representation in the territorial legislature established by the Governor. The areas both North and South of the Platte were divided into four counties and the less populous area North of the Platte river was given more representation in the legislature than the South Platte area. While Bellevue was North of the river its political connection and support was with the South Platte area. Bellevue was further handicapped as a political force by being placed in the same county as Omaha.

The location of the capital remained a continuing political issue in Nebraska until after the capital was moved from Omaha and located at the new town of Lincoln in 1867 under our state government. There was an important aftermath to the struggle between Omaha and Bellevue before then however. Bellevue, resenting its subordination to Omaha in Douglas county, sought for and received support for a project to split Douglas county. A new county, Sarpy, was taken from the south part of Douglas giving Bellevue a county of its own in 1857.

Morrison to Run for U. S. Senator

Frank Morrison, well known Lincoln and McCook attorney, this week filed for the United States Senate on the Democratic ticket. Morrison pledged himself to a program which he said "all Nebraska citizens, regardless of party, can support."
 "I am entering this race," he said, "so that the people of Nebraska can have a clear choice between retaining the kind of negative and outside pressure group representation they now have in the Senate or changing to an aggressive spokesman for the interests of all Nebraskans."
 Senator Roman L. Hruska, Omaha Republican, now holds the office.
 Mrs. Morrison is the former Maxine Hepp, daughter of Mrs. John Hepp of Greeley.
 In addition to the care, treatment and rehabilitation programs, Easter Seals help maintain equally important national programs of research and education. By making your contribution through Easter Seals, you help further this vital work.

Ainsworth, Farwell, to Be Pushed

An effort will be made next week to breathe new life into the Ainsworth and Farwell irrigation projects in Nebraska.
 Both are included in the "accelerated reclamation program" that Senator Clinton Anderson (Dem., N. M.) is pushing.
 The projects fell afoul of the Government's no-new-starts program, put into effect this year.
 Senator Anderson has scheduled a hearing this week in the Senate Interior Committee to study the 165 million dollars worth of additional reclamation projects that have been proposed.
 Under his plan, both Farwell and Ainsworth would get a two-million-dollar appropriation to begin work in the next fiscal year.
 Secretary of the Interior Fred A. Seaton has been asked to testify.
 Representative A. L. Miller of Kimball, who favors both projects, also is scheduled to be a witness.
 Farwell is a 31-million-dollar project, designed to irrigate 52,530 acres of land in Howard and Sherman Counties.
 Ainsworth is a 26-million-dollar project. It would irrigate 34 thousand acres of land north of Ainsworth.

Balmy Weather in Valley County; Snow Damage Seen

Spring was in the air as the Quiz went to press Wednesday. Temperatures during the week climbed to a high of 57 degrees, while only once, on Sunday, did the mercury slide below the freezing mark.
 While many country roads are still in no condition for normal driving, the week has converted quagmires of mud into hard ruts, which are gradually being ironed out by county and township road crews.
Erosion Noted
 Melting snow has left its mark over the county in eroded fields, soggy feed lots, and the revealing of hundreds of spots on gravelled and hard surfaced roads which will need patching or spot gravel.
 Small drizzles Friday and Saturday produced 22 inches of moisture, bringing the mark for this year to 3.78 inches as compared with 2.72 inches a year ago.

County commander V. J. Beran of Ord acted as master of ceremonies and Rev. Mynor Soper of North Loup gave the invocation. The program consisted of a tap dance by Michelle Markley, reading by Gay Romans, musical number by a boy's quartet, Phillip VanHorn, Allan Cox, Jimmie Kasak and Darrell Cox, a vocal solo by Sharon DeNoyer.
 Guest speakers were Eli Shada, Nebraska Legion child welfare chairman, of Ansley and district commander Dick Williams of Aurora.
 At the meeting of the American Legion following the dinner C. J. Mortensen told about new life insurance available to legion members.

April 15 Is Deadline For ASC Program

Paul Owens, chairman of the Valley county ASC this week announced April 15, 1958 is the final date by which farmers may make application to participate in the 1958 conservation reserve program.
 Under CRP — the long phase of the soil bank program — farmers contract to divert general cropland to soil, water, forestry, and wildlife conservation practices for periods of three, five, or 10 years.
 In return, farmers receive two types of payment on the diverted acreage: (1) a cost-sharing payment (up to 80 percent) the year they apply a conservation measure, and (2) annual per-acre rental payments each year the land is under contract.
 One of the major changes made in the 1958 program gives the ASC county committee authority to increase the "non-diversion" payment rates where all the cropland on a farm is put in the conservation reserve.
 Owens explained that the conservation Reserve Program is open for participation by all farmers.
 He urges any farmer who desires to divert any part of his cropland from cultivation into grasses and legumes to look into the advantages offered under the program.

Farwell High School Appeal is Denied; Loses Tuition Money

The State Board of Education voted Tuesday to disapprove Farwell High School, but granted conditional approval for another year to two other schools previously disapproved.
 Conditional approval was granted to Belden and Virginia High Schools for one year subject to the schools' obtaining qualified teachers, adequate equipment and completing redistricting projects.
 Belden and Virginia were among 22 schools knocked from the approved list last month by the board. Non-approved schools do not receive free high school tuition.
 Dean Armstrong, St. Paul attorney, acted as spokesman for the Farwell delegation. He argued that disapproving the Farwell school would gain nothing since other small town schools in Howard county had nothing more to offer students than did Farwell.
 The Farwell School District, he said, has merged with five surrounding rural districts and valuation for the 1958-59 school year will be in excess of $1,200,000 — almost triple what it had been.

Dannebrog Bank is Looted Tuesday

Burglars looted the vault of the Dannebrog State Bank early Tuesday and fled with between $12,000 and $13,000 in cash and travelers' checks.
 President A. E. Dwehus said about $7,000 or $8,000 in currency and silver was taken, along with an estimated $5,000 worth of travelers' checks.
 The burglars jimmed a door to the bank building, knocked a hole in the brick-and-concrete wall of the vault and then cut open the bank safe with acetylene torches.
 Deposit boxes in the vault were not disturbed, but the thieves cleaned out the safe, leaving behind only a sack containing about $40 worth of pennies, a roll of nickels and a five-dollar bill.
 The taste of bear meat is said to be improved if the hide is removed.

THANK YOU!

I would like to express my appreciation and sincerest thanks to those responsible for the writing in campaign that resulted in my being elected Tuesday to the Ord school board.

The Lawyers and Barbers May Have Agriculture's Answer

We are more than a little disturbed by contempt of court charges against an Omaha district judge for alleged violation of "Canons of Ethics."

The fact that Judge James T. English is pilloried for permitting photographs to be taken in his court room has little to do with the matter, we believe.

The essential part is that the judge is accused of going against an arbitrary set of rules that are not the law of the land, but adopted by a group of men without public hearing or debate.

George Turner, Supreme Court clerk, said the court "has inherent power to regulate the legal profession" of Nebraska and does this through Canons of Ethics.

The judicial ethics canon was adopted without hearing, Turner said. Further, he said the canons have the effect of law and penalty for violation is a matter of discretion with the State Supreme Court.

This editor wonders if the legal profession isn't getting a bit too big for its britches.

The argument may be academic, but there are those who believe that the integrated bar, through its Canons, is the same as a closed union shop, which state of affairs is specifically barred from existence by passage of the people's "right-to-work" constitutional amendment some years ago.

Here you have a profession operating within rules of conduct that "have the effect of law." We wonder what would happen if the Canons of Ethics were submitted to our legislature, or any legislature for that matter, to be made into the laws of our state.

And we can easily visualize how soundly the people of Nebraska would trample them at the polls if these codes were submitted to them as a constitutional amendment.

The phrase "viewing with alarm" is hackneyed, but it is very apt here as we note large segments of the rights of the common people slipping away.

This business of the lawyers as a profession usurping the rights of the people has a rather interesting, though somewhat illogical counterpart in another professional group, the barbers.

Through some rather silly legislation adopted a dozen or so years ago, the barbers of a given area can get together and fix minimum prices. All this is done with the state's blessing under the theory that a price-cutting barber can't maintain a sanitary establishment.

Package liquor dealers can get themselves in quite a hole with the state liquor commission by not following the minimum or "suggested retail" prices set by the state.

And doubtless there are other segments of our state's citizenry, whether in "ethical professions," "service groups," retail or wholesale trades, or just plain professions who are affected by similar laws, whether regularly enacted or adopted by fiat.

But woe to those who would attempt "price fixing" without legal or quasi-legal procedure!

All of which points an avenue toward sound economy for our farm groups, we think.

The main trouble with our farming situation today is not the yield of crops but the yield of return—the spread between what it costs to produce and what it sells for. In one word, prices.

There have been many attempts by farm groups to raise agricultural prices through organized cartels, marketing groups, even such abortive attempts as the Wheat Pool, the Farm Holiday, or, for example, the dumping of milk in eastern big-city production areas to force the price up.

Most of them failed because of sheer economic pressure. In a few cases the gentlemen stepped in and settled the hash of the radicals, rightfully so.

We submit that those who would raise the economic stature of the farmer take a leaf from the books of the lawyers, the barbers and the liquor dealers.

Get yourself a law or two, better still, get yourself under the maternal wing of some state bureau. And, if you want to shoot the moon, adopt some Canons of Ethics.

They're the most!

Serious Fun Ahead

Robert Louis Stevenson once wrote that working at what you really enjoy is just serious fun.

With high school graduation exercises just a short time away, Stevenson's advice deserves careful attention from Nebraska's senior classes.

The senior who has obtained his greatest joy from high school newspaper or yearbook work should give journalism considerable thought. For never has opportunity in the newspaper field been so great, so important and so challenging.

Recent reports show that accredited schools of journalism, such as the University of Nebraska, are receiving as many as 10 job listings per graduating senior. Journalism salaries are rapidly catching up with the best-paid professions as newspapers compete to attract the best young minds.

Journalism requires young persons who are alert, intelligent, observant. Fast-breaking news does not wait for the journalist to gather his wits about him; he must be eternally ready.

The job of reporting and interpreting the complex events of each day is indispensable to the functioning of a democracy. Public ignorance and apathy present dangers to this country as grave as the latest Russian missile. It is public opinion that ultimately charts the nation's course; that opinion can be no sounder than the information upon which it's based.

So to the youngster who wants an adventurous life, we say there's a place for you in journalism—if you have journalistic ability, integrity and a willingness to work hard.

Once an angry lady got Don Davis, the Denver Post's assistant editor, on the phone and proceeded to revile him for some story she didn't like in the paper. Don is an old hand, and he knows that at the furious height of such diatribes the phoner is apt to shout, "Yes, and you can just cancel my subscription—what do you think of that, you so-and-so?" This time Don didn't wait for the inevitable climax. He said quietly, "Lady, if you don't stop reviling me immediately, I'll be forced to cancel your subscription. You know something? She stopped cussing him out and apologized.—Denver Post

There is some excellent advice in the government's Savings Bond advertising. Put aside money regularly, the ads say, and when a rainy day comes, you'll be prepared. Better advice couldn't be given. It would be nice if the government would run its own financial affairs as wisely as it advises the taxpayers to run theirs.—Nance County Journal.

On The Lee Side Language Difficulties For Chesky Friends

I am indebted to Mrs. Frank Benda, a buxom housewife, for a pair of amusing anecdotes concerning language difficulties encountered by a native Bohemian.

And Mrs. Benda is a Bohemian native, a "Chesky" as she says it, who came over here from Prague when she was a mere slip of a girl.

She didn't speak a word of English at the time and in one of her several moves through depots, either here or at Plattsmouth, she found herself needing to know the time of day.

Somewhere along the line she had picked up the English words "How much?" so this day that she needed to know the time she sallied up to a bystander in the station and asked:

"How much the clock?"

Well, it took several minutes for the man to get the drift of Mrs. Benda's request but he finally did get it and pulled out his watch. Mrs. Benda looked at it, noted the time, and was satisfied.

This little anecdote loses some of its appeal in the telling since Mrs. Benda relates the story with considerable gusto, and more than a little wailing of hands.

But, she adds, it wasn't near as embarrassing as the experience that happened to a "Chesky" friend, also just learning English.

This friend, Mrs. Benda relates, had a very peculiar accent and couldn't produce the double "ee" sound like in "tweet" or "sweet." She tried pretty hard but it always came out like a "short ee."

This friend started to go shopping one day, and in the course of her travels she stumbled on to a department store that was running a special on percale sheets.

Noting that the offering was a bargain, Mrs. Benda's friend sauntered into the store and walked to a clerk.

In her strange accent she began to tell the clerk what she wanted.

Well, the clerk acted a little strangely, although he listened politely. After Mrs. Benda's friend had repeated the word "sheets," "sheets" several times, the clerk nodded his head and called the manager.

The manager also listened as Mrs. Benda's friend explained what she wanted then crooked a finger at her to follow him.

Down through the store they wandered, down through the basement where stock was piled end to end, until they ended up before a door.

The Benda friend, thought that she was REALLY getting a bargain since the manager was going to all that trouble to show her what was apparently some hidden stock.

Anyway, when they arrived at the room the manager pointed towards the door, suddenly spun on his heel and left.

Mrs. Benda's friend opened the door and came face to face with good old standard American sanitary equipment.

Mrs. Benda said her friend went home after that occurrence and didn't go shopping again for a long, long time.

Big Medicine Ahead for Members of Nebraska's 1959 Legislative Session

The 1959 Legislature appears now to have all the earmarks of one of the most significant in state history.

If the question of broadening the state's tax base is not settled at the polls this November, it will be a top issue. This will be true even if voters say they want no state property tax after 1959.

In the background looms the possibility of an all-out fight by Sen. Terry Carpenter, if he is re-elected, aimed at Gov. Victor Anderson on his first term.

The Scottsbluff legislator has centered his attack on the governor after the chief executive declined a special session of the Legislature on taxes. Carpenter heads a legislative council tax study committee.

Carpenter has made no bones about the fact he was unhappy with the governor's decision and that he will make a vigorous attempt to change tax laws in 1959.

The Nebraska Tax Equity Council will circulate a petition calling for a Constitutional amendment to prohibit the state from levying a property tax for the general fund after 1959.

The amendment also would direct the Legislature to appropriate funds for state aid to schools.

However, the council has not spelled out how much should go to schools or what type of tax should replace the property tax.

This alone could produce a heavy fight in the Legislature.

Another item of note is behind-the-scenes activity aimed at getting high-level members of the Republican party elected to the Legislature.

The thinking behind this is that the step toward a partisan Legislature would therefore be a notch closer.

In the past the Legislature itself has declined to authorize a change to a party system of electing state senators. Petition drives have failed.

Proud of Pesses' Band To the Editor: I wish to add my bit to the controversy going on up that way.

I had the pleasure of attending the band concert March 28th at Veterans Hospital, a real concert from start to finish, I was so very proud of them.

As I sat there listening to this wonderful concert, and watching the expert directing of Mr. Pesses and the glow of pride on his face, it's hard to believe there is too much wrong which cannot be corrected, if tried. Often one doesn't realize what they have until all too late. You just can't reach up and pull a Mr. Pesses out of this air every day, let there be no mistake about this. You have a music director and school band second to none. Let's keep it that way, the pride of Valley County.

Miss Orpha Kasson Grand Island

Dr. Miller in Nebr. To the Editor: I am taking advantage of the annual Easter recess of the Congress to spend several days in Nebraska. There is no better way to get at the thinking of the people than through personal contact.

I have arranged several meetings with various groups, but in addition I want to visit personally with as many individuals as possible.

I plan to be in Grand Island April 4, 5 and 6 with headquarters at the Yancey Hotel. I will make several side trips from there to other towns. April 7 and 8 I will headquarter at the Pavnice Hotel in North Platte. April 9 I will be at the Fort Kearney Hotel in Kearney.

I will meet with the Grand Island Chamber of Commerce on April 10th, then fly to Scottsbluff for meetings April 11. I will be at the Lincoln Hotel. I will return to Grand Island on the 12th and then fly back to Washington for the reopening of Congress on April 14.

Time is short, but I want to meet as many people as humanly possible in an effort to get the views of my constituents.

School Land School land values in 36 counties have been surveyed by the State Board of Educational Lands and Funds.

Overall, the board hiked values about four per cent, although some land was down and other tracts up. The change will be effective July 1 and is expected to boost revenue to the state by about $23,638 per year.

Rent on the state-owned land which is leased is six per cent annually of the property's appraised value.

The board said counties being surveyed this year generally are in the western part of the state. Each year the board re-evaluates school land in about a third of the counties.

Something Just A Little Bit Different

Another April first, fooling us by looking like spring is really here.

Do you go in for April foolery at your house? It seems to me we all need a bit of foolishness in these tense days of worrying about the atom bomb, the summit conference, the Russians, the wet corn, the wet fields, the late spring, juvenile delinquency, will we have a recession or are we?

The most horrible trick I ever played on my family... maybe I told you about it? It was when I cut a bar of soap, P & G I think it was... (advertisement) and then dipped it in white frosting and served it to my family for candy.

They weren't so much tickled as terribly terribly surprised that I could think up such an evil joke and play it on them. I admit it was pretty bad.

Among the ways we used to entertain ourselves — before we parked in front of television or a movie screen, thinking up practical jokes at April first ranked high.

Once upon a time it was a signal for strange scribbles on fences and windows, not to mention stray pocketbooks with string attached to a giggling, hiding prankster, boxes nailed down in innocent places to blunt an unwary nudging toe.

Or not to mention items like "your petticoat is showing" or "there's ink on your shirt" and so on. (Nowdays our blasé public would respond heartily "So what?")

But anciently, it was considered shocking. And shocking good fun.

Yes, we are smarter now. We fool ourselves in other ways. We like to be fooled and shut our eyes to the knowledge.

We think a pill should cure anything. It should make us happy. It should tame us down. It should pep us up. It should keep us awake. It should put us to sleep. In other words, we should always have our own way about how we feel in this world.

We think our cars should be longer. We think they should be lower. We think they should be faster. Why? So they will be harder to park? So they will be more difficult to climb into? So they will fit taller people better? (You know we are growing taller.) So they can exceed our speed laws more yet, on highways far too cracked and antique to be safe for cars much slower? So we can brag more about our chrome powerhouses on wheels?

We think we should, all of us, be 16. Look at the ads. Look at the models. Look at the styles. Look at the trends... do you really think we can all be 16-skinnny? Or 16-pretty? Or 16-peppy? While being 80-smart, of course. I don't.

We think we should all be the same. We should think alike. We should behave alike. We should never, never, never dare to be different. If we are different we are queer, not admired for an original mind but glanced at askance.

If we all follow, who's going to lead? Who is fooling who?

each and every one if we're not fighters enough to get behind Jack... and, many others who are trying in every way possible to hold a free enterprise in trucking. Any business, even farming is becoming so regimented. The ideals and principles of our forefathers are becoming lost, if we allow unions, etc. to rule.

Politically if we didn't send so many yes men down to our Legislature in Lincoln, and instead, some one who dares say no and back the cause. That would help a great deal. So now lets all get going. Watch our election more closely. Vote for the man who has backbone to fight. Not because he is a friend, soft spoken or did you a favor once. Dispense with this formality. Check and demand action and possibly it won't be late to turn the tide.

Write our Senators and Representatives down in Washington. They beg your opinions. And I know personally it helps a great deal when they know what we want. Election is coming up. Make the best use possible of it and vote.

Cob Rot Seen In Wet Corn

Grain men here are noticing more evidence of cob rot in corn brought to elevators.

"And," added Bill Heuck of the Farmer's Elevator, "its a condition that is apt to get worse as temperatures climb."

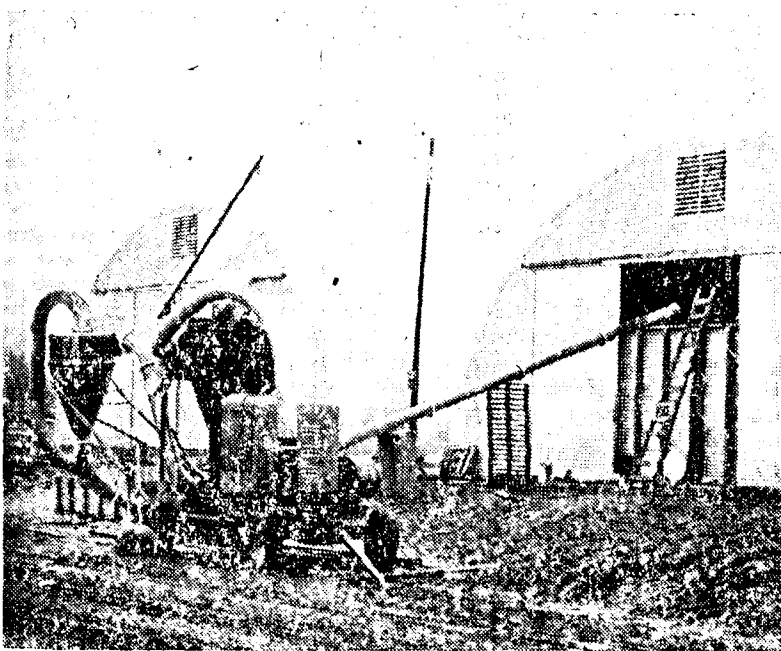

If farmers do not intend to dry and store grain then early sale is wise, Heuck said.

"The grain goes out of condition pretty fast when it warms," he added.

Bredthauer Gets Three Phase Power

Three phase power lines to the farm of Arvin Bredthauer in Mira Valley were installed recently the LPPD announced.

Mr. Bredthauer will use the heavy lines to operate a feed roller. The installation covered about 3/4 of a mile.

NEW MACHINE: This piece of grain unloading equipment siphons grain from trucks into bins by suction. It is being used at the site of some storage quonsets near the fairgrounds. The new equipment is owned by Wilson and Sons.

FHA Moves To Broaden Program

An expanded farm housing loan program, designed to speed up farm building construction and improvement as well as act as an additional anti-recession measure, was announced today by Donald Krick, of the FHA.

"Now an owner of a farm in agricultural production, and on which the operator plans to produce at least $400 worth of farm commodities for sale or home use, may qualify for the four percent long-term housing loan provided that he meets other standard eligibility requirements."

Formerly, an eligible applicant had to own a farm that produced a more substantial part of the operator's annual cash income.

Borrowers may use loan funds to build, improve and repair farm houses or other essential farm buildings, and to provide water for farmstead and household use.

Krick said that in addition to financing major construction, the loan funds can help meet many other needs for farm and home modernization such as adding bathrooms, utility rooms, better kitchens, and many other improvements to the home as well as, to other farm buildings.

Loans of this type have in the past been used to provide Grade A dairy barns.

Tenants are not eligible but the owner may borrow to do the construction or make improvements for them.

Loans are made to farm owners who need credit to finance building improvements or repairs, but find that adequate credit is not available through banks or other regular credit channels. The interest rate is four percent and loans may be amortized over periods up to 33 years on either first or second real estate mortgages.

Cattle Shipments Routine in Area

Routine stock shipments marked the week's passing in Valley country.

Romans reported Floyd Bossen, Arcadia, shipping 195 head of sheep to Omaha, March 18.

Edward Lenz, 42 head of fat cattle to Omaha, March 24.

Leonard Placnik, 15 hogs and 12 fat cattle, to Omaha, March 25.

And Downing Rounds of Arcadia 45 head of fat cattle to the Burwell Livestock Pavilion, March 28.

Also reported by the motor firm was the removal of the household goods of Clyde Baker from Omaha to Ord.

Calf Scours Above Normal

Ord vets reported a mild wave of calf scours bothering stockmen here.

Dr. Dale Karre said the scours were being brought on by cold, wet weather.

"He said most pastures and lots were quagmires. The chilled calf stands in the mud and consequently is more susceptible to routine infections."

"The scours were 'just a little more prevalent than normal,'" Karre said.

"It's almost impossible to fight it," he added, "since new bedding gets wet almost as fast as it is replaced."

Machinery, Tractors Starting to Move

Tractor and machinery sales to farmers apparently have been brisk the past week.

Howard Huff reported the sale of six Farmhands, heavy duty, to Rudy Kokes, Joe Smolik, Sichi Bros., Floyd Konkeleski, Johnson Bros., and Ray Duda.

O. A. Kellison listed the sale of a John Deere, gas, 620 tractor to Henry Lange, and a John Deere, 720 diesel to Armin Lueck, of Arcadia.

LeMasters reported the sale of a '52 Ford 8V tractor to Allen Pearson of Farwell, and the sale of a '52 mowder and '52 plow to Aubrey Davis of North Loup.

New Stewart granary . . . holds 9,000 bushels and is half circle quonset style.

Stewart Brothers Erect New Bin

Fay and Ray Stewart, a pair of nearby Ord farmers, are admiring a new 9,000 bushel drying quonset — and wondering when in heck the quad will dry so they can get to it!

The Stewart bin is a gem. It was constructed by Mid-State's Building Service here and finished last week.

Overall the building is corrugated sheet iron 32 x 60. On the west side it has three 30 electrically driven fans. Each fan has a small propane fueled heating unit.

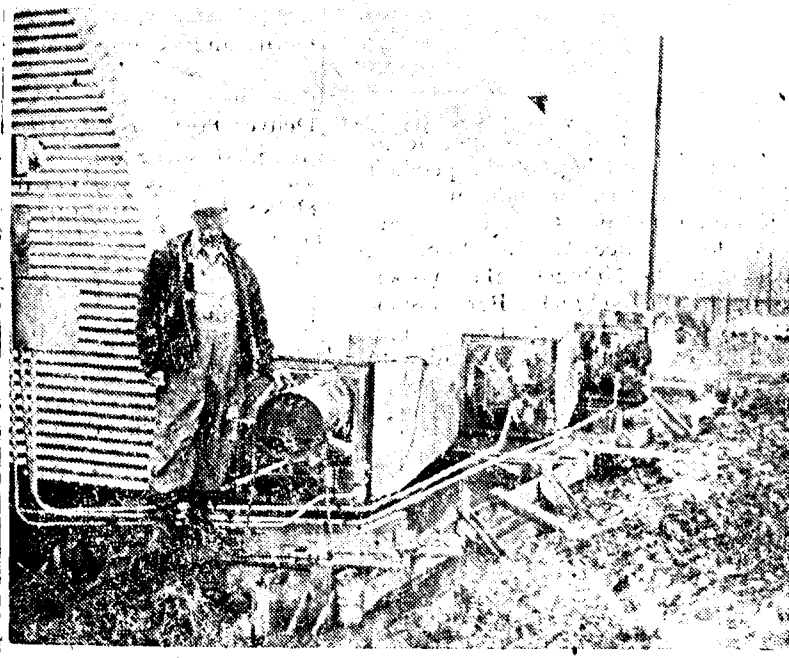

Ray says the fans will drive warm air through three tunnels leading into the bin. From there the air is carried to all sections of the stored crop by another series of tunnels that make up the storage floor.

The fans can be operated anytime weather is suitable. When outside humidity soars above 50 percent the propane heaters kick on.

No Danger

The bin is designed to dry an exceptionally large crop without the danger of overheating. Most days the air used will be the same temperature and humidity as outside air. The propane gives a bigger margin of drying days.

What apparently gives the bin its high efficiency is its tightness. You can turn on the fans and at most be blown off the ladder when you stick your head into the big vent on the south side.

Ray Stewart alongside bin's three ventilating fans . . . the vents are propane heated when humidity soars above 50 per cent.

The Stewarts have apparently decided to quit fooling around with drying. Next harvest they will pick their corn with a picker-sheller.

The harvested crop will go into the bin where the big fans will keep it as safe as a church.

The idea is pretty sound. At a recent corn drying clinic here Vic Kerchal exhibited some pretty fancy dried corn. Vic uses a method similar to the Stewart installation except he doesn't shell. The Stewarts are going one step farther with the picker-sheller.

"But meanwhile it's pretty gloomy on the Stewart layout.

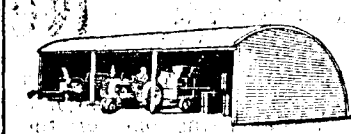

"There's this here mud see," and when you try to get a tractor near the bin it sticks, see, and so . . ."

An injection of iron is a good preventive "measure" against anemia in suckling pigs, researchers have found. Anemia causes a deficiency of red blood cells through lack of iron and other minerals. Sow's milk lacks the needed iron.

Today's high market price for beef makes it a desirable time for dairymen to dispose of inefficient producers. A sound culling program based on herd records is always good business.

Ag College Lists Day of Hospitality

"Blueprint of Home Economics" is the theme for the annual Hospitality Day, to be held at the University of Nebraska, Tuesday, April 15.

Approximately 600 junior and senior girls from Nebraska's high schools will visit the campus.

"The purpose of Hospitality Day is to acquaint high school girls with the opportunities in home economics," says Yvonne Einspahr of Imperial, chairman of the event. "It is also designed to show girls the college preparation necessary."

The girls will be welcomed to the campus by Chancellor Clifford Hardin; Dr. Florence McKinney, chairman of the home economics department; W. V. Lambert, Dean of the College of Agriculture; and Margaret Cannell, administrative assistant in Home Economics.
