'Community Action' To Get $28,589 From Federal Grant

A $28,589 grant to Central Nebraska Community Action Program Inc., of Loup City, has been approved by the Office of Economic Opportunity.

The federal grant will be combined with local services and commodities valued at $9,510 to provide a full-year, part-day "Head Start" program for about 50 children from disadvantaged families.

The Head Start centers funded by this action are located at Loup City, Broken Bow and St. Paul. Each center will have some 17 children enrolled.

Children who participate in Head Start receive a wide range of services, including medical and dental check-ups, social, psychological and nutritional services. Staff members visit the children in their homes to help interest parents in scheduled Head Start activities designed to involve parents in their children's learning experiences.

The projects will employ six low-income persons from the area.

For Teachers

End of School — Yes; Relaxation — Well, Maybe . . .

Although visions of leisure hours dance in the heads of Ord school teachers, most are faced with the reality that this summer is as busy—or busier—than ever.

Planning to continue their education at Kearney State College are Jill Ritz, Arden Koelling, Ken Trubeay and Dave VanNorden. Johnny Hyde will attend summer sessions at Kearney State College; however, plans for painting and fishing trips are included in his summer schedule.

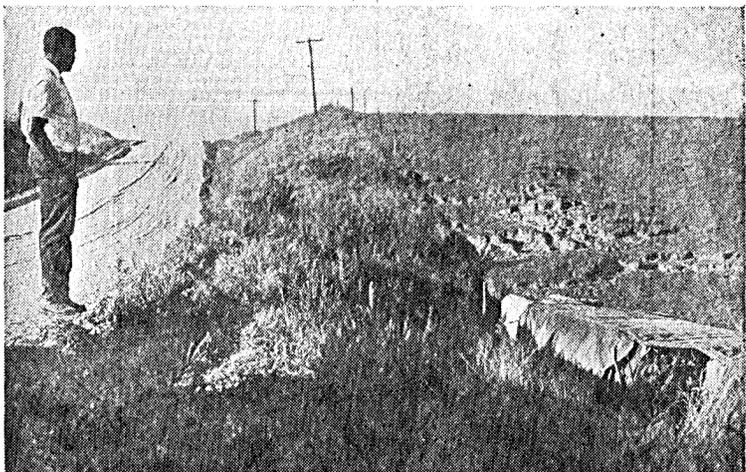

It could be a busy summer for Ann Pocock, too. Along with "picking up" some college hours at Kearney State College, she will try to fit in visits by her three children and their families. Being a farmer's wife, she undoubtedly will do her share toward fighting musk thistles and dandelions—with hopes of finding a few days for fun and relaxation.

A trip to Ohio is being planned by Rachel Weinman. She will accompany her brother and sister-in-law to visit relatives—many of whom they have never seen. Mrs. Weinman will teach in the summer program and later hopes to visit her daughter, Marlene and husband Bert McGee in South Carolina.

Also teaching in the summer program at Ord will be Fred Williams (math and driver's ed-

Farm And Home Show Planned

Friday and Saturday, June 7 and 8 are the dates set aside for the annual Chamber of Commerce Farm and Home Show.

The show will be open at the girls' gymnasium at Ord High School on Friday from 11 a.m. to 9 p.m. and on Saturday from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. There will be no admission charge.

Some 30 booths will be set up featuring the latest in farm and home items exhibited by Ord merchants.

Furniture Spills in Spectacular Overturn Of Van on Gravel Road Near Loup City

No one was seriously injured, but a load of furniture was partially spilled late Monday when a moving van owned by the Security Moving and Packing Co. of New Orleans overturned 10 miles north of Loup City.

John Williams of Shreveport, La., had picked up the furniture of Capt. and Mrs. David Gunnels in Ord. He was enroute to Colorado Springs to complete his load with an eventual destination of Fort Benning, Ga.

The accident occurred about one mile onto the gravel portion of Highway 58.

Mr. Williams said another automobile passed him and he pulled over to the right to try to avoid the dust and get better vision. When he did the wheels of the trailer caught in loose gravel and started pulling to the right.

Travelling about 35 miles an hour at the time, according to Sheriff Clarence Fox's report, Williams attempted to control the heavy rig and bring it to a stop or get it back on the roadway. He was unsuccessful, however, as the weight of the trailer eventually pulled the entire rig down an incline. It turned over and came to rest on its side.

The van was broken open and a number of cartons and other items spilled.

Williams said he was following a road map, and it showed Highway 70 to be an oil road. When he reached the fork where Highways 70 and 58 split, he considered taking 58 but decided against it because he would still encounter gravel road on a portion of Highway 183.

It was his first trip for Security, although he had worked for other moving companies.

He was alone at the time of the accident and suffered only a bruise on his shin and a sprained wrist.

Captain Gunnels had recently returned from Vietnam. His wife, the former Janet Hoon, had resided in Ord for the past year with their two children.

City Council Approves Airport Expansion Issue

It was all systems go on the proposed expansion of Ord's municipal airport after Monday night's City Council meeting.

The councilmen voted unanimously to approve the first phase of the project, which will call for paving the existing northwest-southeast runway and extending it from its present 3,100 feet to 3,900 feet. A second phase calling for the construction of a completely new north-south runway, which would be 3,200 feet in length, may be entered into later, Mayor Bill French said.

This clears the way for us to start engineering studies, land appraisals, etc.," the mayor said Wednesday.

The project will be financed in part with funds provided through the Federal Aviation Administration. Mr. French said he had talked earlier this week with Walt Krenschner, state engineer in the Nebraska Department of Aeronautics, and that the federal money is definitely available for use in Ord.

Although the vote was unanimous, a couple of the councilmen would have preferred to study the matter further before taking definite action. Harold Christensen said he wanted to know more definitely how much

Exchange Group Now Seeking Home For Next Student

Holding their June meeting early, interested members of the American Exchange Society met last week at the high school. Pledges toward bringing a student here for next year now total $720, the treasurer reported, which include $500 pledged by the Valley County Board of Supervisors from the Mortenson fund.

Any family desiring to serve as a host for the next young visitor should contact John Lemmon or Howard Paulsen at once, as names must be submitted to the New York office for consideration very soon. Would-be host families are welcome to ask for further information about their obligations, an official said, and any member of the board will be glad to provide this.

Karin Nielsen of Denmark has finished her year here and will leave soon. All who have met her or heard her talk are most pleased with this quiet, intelligent young girl, declared board members.

A farewell dinner was held in honor of Karin Monday evening at the Veterans' Club.

New officers elected include Paul Lambert, president; John Lemmon, vice-president; Hazel Dunbar, secretary; and Marly Paulsen, treasurer. Liaison officer between the school and the student will be Eldon Buoy; and in charge of projects for the new student will be Ladine VanZandt. Lemmon and Heloise Bresley will serve on the home selection committee, and Irma Leggett will do publicity.

Roger Clough Resigns As Ord Superintendent

Roger Clough has announced his resignation as superintendent of the Ord school system to accept a similar position at York.

The resignation was accepted by the Board of Education at its regular meeting Monday night. The move will become effective July 1.

Mr. Clough cited as his reasons for the action the comparative size of the two towns and school systems, and their proximity to Lincoln.

Step Up

York has a population of approximately 6,700, he said, and its school system is twice the size of Ord's, making the new post a substantial promotion. It is also much closer to Lincoln, he said, and will give him a better opportunity to complete work on his doctor's degree from the University of Nebraska.

Before leaving Ord, Mr. Clough said he would assist members of the Board of Education in locating a possible successor.

The 33-year-old native of Uehling has been superintendent here for the past two years.

"My family and I have really enjoyed these two years," he said Tuesday. "We could not have had better cooperation, not only from the Board of Education but from the community as well. We would like to thank everyone for what they've done for us."

Mr. Clough came here from Lincoln where he was principal of Everett Junior High School for three years. He has also worked in the school systems at Polk and Yutan.

The resignation means that new men will be naming the two top posts in the Ord school system when the fall term begins. High School Principal Al Bellinger had announced his resignation previously to accept a position in Kearney. His successor will be Robert Norton, who is completing his contract with Douglas High School at Ellsworth Air Force Base, Rapid City, S. D.

Summer School To Open Monday For 126 Children

Summer vacation will have to be postponed for 126 Ord youngsters. They are the students who will be participating in summer school, which begins Monday.

The summer school session will last six weeks, until July 19. Grade school principal Gerald Decker said the school will observe a holiday July 4 but will be in session July 5.

Subjects being offered are reading, mathematics, and physical fitness. There are 110 students from grades one through nine may attend.

Each student will attend school a half day; however, because of the large number of participants some children will attend in the mornings and some in the afternoons.

The school is completely voluntary, and Mr. Decker said parents of children planning to attend should have received their child's schedule through the mail by now.

Omaha Firm to Install Closed Circuit System

K&M Electric Co. of Omaha will install the closed circuit television system for the Ord high school and grade school, it was decided Monday night.

The Board of Education voted at its regular monthly meeting to accept K&M's bid of $15,522.45 for the project. The board also approved a bid of $2,100 from the Notifier Corp. of Lincoln to provide portable equipment for the system, and a bid of $2,600 from Rowbal Plumbing & Heating for enclosed dressing rooms at the football stadium.

K&M's bid covers installation of the complete closed circuit system, including circuitry and required equipment. However, the board reserved the right to purchase television receivers locally for each of the classrooms if competitive prices can be obtained. If the board takes that route, cost of the receivers will be subtracted from the amount K&M is to receive.

Work will begin immediately, and Supt. Roger Clough said the system should be operational when school opens this fall.

Mr. Clough also said classes will be able to tune in the educational channel at any time and receive programs in their respective rooms. In addition, the school will be able to videotape certain programs and play them back at more desirable times, and it will have the capability of originating programs.

The K&M bid includes the cost of two one-inch recorders and a camera for this origination. However, this equipment can be used only where the proper circuitry and outlets exist.

To film programs originating from other locations, the school system is purchasing a portable camera which is battery operated and a half-inch recorder for playback. That's what the Notifier Corp. is providing for its $2,100.

"This will enable us to go anywhere in the community and record programs," Mr. Clough said.

The city, the school system and the federal government will share costs of the program.

Rowbal's bid on the dressing rooms covers only the heating and plumbing costs. Mr. Clough pointed out, and does not include price of the walls. That bid will be let later, but soon enough so that the project can be completed by the opening of this fall's football season.

The dressing rooms will be constructed by enclosing the area underneath the stands.

Marlin to Address County Republicans

Republicans will hold their county convention Saturday evening at the Odd Fellows Hall, meeting shortly before 8 p.m. to hear Congressman Dave Marlin speak briefly.

Mr. Marlin has another engagement that evening and will talk at the beginning of the program.

Scotia Homecoming & Barbecue, June 10-11

The Scotia Homecoming and Barbecue sponsored by the Scotia Community Club is planned for next Monday and Tuesday, June 10 and 11. Activities begin at 1:30 p.m. Monday, when the Elba band will perform. The program for this annual event includes kiddies races, parades, dancing plus the big barbecue at the recreation center grounds beginning at 5 p.m. Tuesday. The public is invited to attend.

Fifty One 4-H'ers From Valley County Take Part in Camping Activities at Halsey

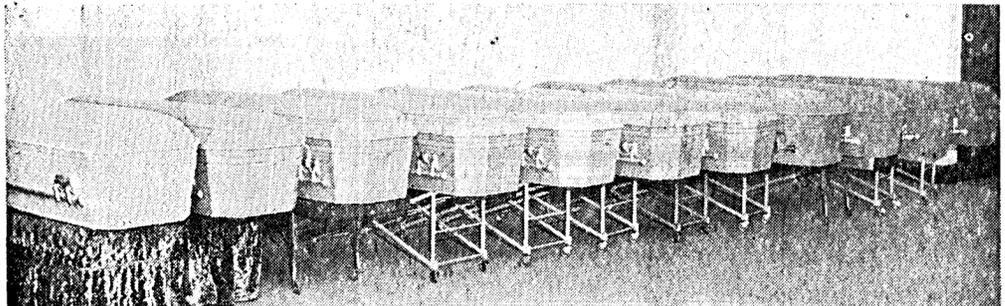

Fifty one 4-H'ers and sponsors left early Monday morning for an enjoyable time of camping at the Nebraska State 4-H Camp at Halsey. The three days were packed with sports, archery, crafts, swimming, canoeing talks by the Game Commission, parties and making new friends with other 4-H'ers camping at the same time from Greeley, Sherman and Howard Counties.

Those attending from Valley County were Ricky Welniak, Nancy Welniak and Susan Petska of Elyria; Steven Palser, Jonette Schade, Joan Leggett, Yvonne Selik, Renee Belgram and Jackie Belgram of Ord; Cheryl Chalupa, Terry Chalupa, Debbie Dubas, Tim Dubas, Joan Kusek and Judy Kusek of Burwell and Norine Hoebet of Arcadia.

Nancy Kusek of Burwell attended a Camp Counselor, Mrs. Lyle Sevensker and Mrs. Rosalie Leggett were the Ord adult sponsors. Mrs. Carol Van Norden, Home Extension Agent and John Schade, County Extension Agent also accompanied the group as sponsors.

There are lots of ways to tell when the weather is getting nice, but one of the best is to watch the benches at the courthouse square. They were mighty active last week as oldtimers gathered to catch up on yarns they had to keep to themselves during the winter. Left to right are Tracy Hamilton, Bill Worm, Abe Lincoln and Oscar Pearson.

been plaguing the local team, and they came up with 10 base hits. But Scotia got 11 and combined them with nine bases on balls to double the Mustang run out- put.

Unfortunately, the brightest Ord newcomer won't be around much longer to assist the locals. Elliot Johnson, who clubbed two home runs and scored three of Ord's five runs, plans to attend summer school at Colorado State College in Greeley, Colo.

Both Johnson's homers came as he was leading off an inning; consequently, they accounted for only one run apiece.

Rich Guzinski got the big blow for the Mustangs with a bases- loaded double in the third inning. That's when Ord scored its three other runs.

Scotia jumped out front fast with two first-inning runs. How- ever, they were scored with the benefit of only one base hit. That was a lead off single by Jerry Stine, who led his team with three safeties for the day.

The winners added two more in the third, and this time they were more legitimate as singles were sandwiched around Larry Lewis triple. But the big inning was the fifth when Ord used three pitchers before the hole could be plugged.

Rich Psota gave up a lead off single and then departed in favor of Guzinski. He was completely ineffective, giving up a single and

5,000 Bluegills Added to North Loup By Nebraska Game and Fish Commission

More than 5,000 baby bluegills were released recently in the North Loup Wayside Area near St. Paul to further tempt Central Nebraska fishermen.

The two-inch fingerlings will require only a few minutes but eventually should offer local anglers good eating as well as plenty of sport. They were some of more than 145,000 fish released across the state by the Nebraska Game and Fish Commission.

Brown trout were the most numerous species released, with 57,000 fingerlings going into state waters. About 24,000 of them were placed in the Snake River near Gordon.

Other species released includ- ed: rainbow trout, 35,000 of catch- able size and 7,000 fingerlings; bullheads, 16,000 of catchable size; four-inch largemouth bass, 5,000 fingerlings; walleye fry, 20,000 fingerlings; and carp, 34,000 pounds of catchable size.

No other type of fish, however, is as widely distributed in Ne- braska as the bluegill. This scrap- py fellow is a long-time favorite among local anglers, especially the younger ones, for he can be found everywhere and can be taken almost anytime with a wide range of baits.

Farm ponds, sand pits, lakes and even some large reservoirs, such as Red Willow, have good concentrations of this panfish. Just as tasty as they come, the bluegill puts up as good a battle for his size as anything around and can usually be taken in large numbers. This is especially true when the bluegills move into spawning areas. At this time they congregate and become very ag- gressive, hitting almost any in- teresting looking bait or lure.

Although the state record blue- gill is a hefty 2 1/2 pounds, the average would be closer to a half-pound. And that is a pretty good fighting size for them.

Normal habitat for bluegills varies somewhat depending upon the size and type of water they are in and the time of year. Spawning, however, occurs in shallow water, about four or six feet deep, in sandy areas if avail- able. If the re is vegetation, they will spend much of their time in it except during spawning time, when they stubbornly guard the "nests." Often the bluegills hang out in fairly deep water during the day, then move into the shall- lows or toward the surface as evening nears.

To catch bluegill and most oth- er panfish, the angler would be wise to take along several types of live bait. Chances are one will work better than others on a particular day. Among best baits are worms of almost any descrip- tion, including such delicacies as grubs and meal worms, crickets, grasshoppers, spiders, roaches and even leeches. Whole kernal canned corn is also good, as are such artificials as poppers, flies and spinners.

Fishermen at Verdon Lake in southeast Nebraska round up leeches right at the lake by turn- ing over rocks. Garden worms and night crawlers are generally dependable bluegill-getters, and they are fairly easy to come by.

Those who consider the blue- gill "small potatoes" and not worthy of any serious angling ef- forts should switch to ultra-light tackle on a fly rod. When a one- pound bluegill gets on the end of line, he'll demand new respect.

Once a fisherman catches a blue- gill, he should work that area over pretty well for others are almost sure to be close by.

A kid's got a right to some privacy too.

If your kid's been hiding out lately when he gets on the phone, take the hint. There are probably some things he'd rather discuss without an audience around. And he's entitled. After all, asking a girl out at his age is hard enough. But when the whole family's listening in, a guy could freeze.

One call to your General Telephone business office takes care of the whole thing. We play up the gift idea by sending out a miniature toy phone with a gift card first. That's just to let him know the real phone is on its way.

When a kid feels you don't want to listen in on all his private conversations, he's more apt to tell you about them. An extension phone gives him that choice.

Ord Adult Team Loses to Scotia Despite Influx of New Personnel

Most of the faces were new, but the end result Sunday was more of the same old stuff for Ord adult baseball team playing in the Sherman-Howard League. With the American Legion season now underway and several college-age youths home for the summer, the adult team has taken on a bit more maturity. Now that there'll be enough post-teen players to fill the adult team, the younger players apparently are going to stick to competition in their own age group. At least that's what Coach Dick Moran, who's been handling both teams up to now, hopes will happen.

Regardless, the older fellows could do no better Sunday than their Legion-age predecessors had been doing. Ord dropped its fifth straight game and even came up with another 10-5 score. That's what it has been in three of the five contests played.

Scotia was the victor and moved within a half game of league-leading Wood River, which was idle. Both teams are unbeaten, but they'll do something about that Sunday when they meet headon in Wood River.

Ord plays Sunday at Central City which is in the middle of the pack with a 2-2 record. This week the schedule shifts from afternoon to night games, with the first batter due up at 8:15. The new personnel eliminated some of the errors that have been plaguing the local team, and they came up with 10 base hits. But Scotia got 11 and combined them with nine bases on balls to double the Mustang run output.

Unfortunately, the brightest Ord newcomer won't be around much longer to assist the locals. Elliott Johnson, who clubbed two home runs and scored three of Ord's five runs, plans to attend summer school at Colorado State College in Greeley, Colo.

Both Johnson's homers came as he was leading off an inning; consequently, they accounted for only one run apiece.

Rich Guzinski got the big blow for the Mustangs with a bases-loaded double in the third inning. That's when Ord scored its three other runs.

Scotia jumped out front fast with two first inning runs. However, they were scored with the benefit of only one base hit. That was a lead off single by Jerry Stine, who led his team with three safeties for the day.

The winners added two more in the third, and this time they were more legitimate as singles were sandwiched around Larry Lewis' triple. But the big inning was the fifth when Ord used three pitchers before the hole could be plugged.

Rich Psota gave up a lead off single and then departed in favor of Guzinski. He was completely ineffective, giving up a single and two walks before giving way to Jim Hulinsky. Merlyn Williams greeted him with a single, but after allowing another walk Hulinsky managed to retire the side. By that time four runs had crossed the plate, and a 5-4 lead had been stretched to 9-4.

Shelton Shatters Ord Legion Mark With Big-Run Innings in 13-3 Win

Ord's American Legion baseball team won its second straight one-sided game last week, but then the bubble burst Sunday when Shelton slugged a 13-3 defeat on the locals.

A six-run first inning by Shelton had Ord in the hole all the way. Twelve men went to bat that first inning as Dan Wolfe encountered all sorts of trouble in his first pitching start of the season.

He eventually turned things over to Collyer Cronk, who made his first pitching appearance ever. Cronk worked creditably until the fifth when his own wildness contributed to five more Shelton runs.

Ord had battled back from the 6-0 deficit to make it 6-3 when the dam broke again.

Even the Ord batsmen, who usually manage to do well against anybody, had a bad day. They managed only one hit, that a seventh-inning double by Jim Lukesh.

In last week's game Ord pummeled Arcadia into submission early with an outburst that brought a 14-4 victory.

Spencer Douthitt, Ron Bredthauer and Wolfe led the way. Douthitt was three-for-three, while Bredthauer had a double and a single and Wolfe a pair of singles.

Lukesh went the distance on the mound, limiting Arcadia to two singles.

Ord will try to rebound tonight (Thursday) against Broken

Midgets Beaten In Shelton Too

Ord's midget baseball team suffered the same fate as its older American Legion team Sunday when Shelton, absorbing a 12-6 setback.

Shelton scored five runs in each of the third and fourth innings to come from behind and grab victory.

Ord had a five-run third inning itself and led, 6-5, going into the fourth stanza.

Dick Janda had the big bat for the losers, slapping a single and a double in four times up.

Earlier Ord had beaten Comstock, 9-4, with Bill Klanczyk leading the way. He had a single and a triple.

St. Paul Golfer Captures Playoff For Loup City Championship

Dan Bahensky of St. Paul clipped in for a birdie on the first extra hole to win a playoff and the championship of the Loup City Open Golf Tournament Sunday.

Bahensky and hometown linksmen Alan Page had tied for first in the championship flight with five-over-par 77s in 18 holes of regulation play.

Medalist honors also went to Bahensky who carded a low round of 37 his first time over the nine-hole sand-green course. His second time through he had a 40. Page carded rounds of 39 and 38.

A total of 105 players took part in the tournament, played under sizzling Nebraska skies.

Another St. Paul resident, Bill Johnson, also won a playoff to take third place in the championship flight. Johnson defeated Chick Moyer of Wood River after the two had tied at 78 just one stroke behind Bahensky and Page.

Still another St. Paul golfer, Bill Scarborough, won the first flight. He finished ahead of Bob Couton of Loup City.

Larry and Danny Johnson, the former of Loup City and the latter of Ord, tied for third place with Larry besting his brother in a playoff for the show position.

In the second flight Mack McConnell of Gibbon was first with Schneck of St. Paul second, Mike Schmidt of Grand Island finished third.

Other results:
Third flight: first, Bernard English, Wood River; second, Craig Moyer, Wood River.
Fourth flight: first, Bob Jablonski, Loup City; second, Randall King, Grand Island; third, Jim Stollenberg, Ravenna.

5,000 Bluegills Added to North Loup By Nebraska Game and Fish Commission

More than 5,000 baby bluegills were released recently in the North Loup Wayside Area near St. Paul to further tempt Central Nebraska fishermen.

The two-inch fingerlings will require some growing time but eventually should offer local anglers good eating as well as plenty of sport. They were some of more than 145,000 fish released across the state by the Nebraska Game and Fish Commission.

Brown trout were the most numerous species released, with 37,000 fingerlings going into state waters. About 24,000 of them were placed in the Snake River near Gordon.

Other species released included: rainbow trout, 35,000 of catchable size and 7,000 fingerlings; bullheads, 16,000 of catchable size; four-inch largemouth bass, 5,000 fingerlings; walleye fry, 20,000 fingerlings; and carp, 34,000 pounds of catchable size.

No other type of fish, however, is as widely distributed in Nebraska as the bluegill. This scrappy fellow is a long-time favorite among local anglers, especially the younger ones, for he can be found everywhere and can be taken almost anytime with a wide range of baits.

Farm ponds, sand pits, lakes and even some large reservoirs, such as Red Willow, have good concentrations of this panfish. Just as tasty as they come, the bluegill puts up as good a battle for his size as anything around and can usually be taken in large numbers. This is especially true when the bluegills move into spawning areas. At this time they congregate and become very aggressive, hitting almost any interesting looking bait or lure.

Although the state record bluegill is a hefty 2 1/2 pounds, the average would be closer to a half pound. And that is a pretty good fighting size for them.

Normal habitat for bluegills varies somewhat depending upon the size and type of water they are in, and the time of year. Spawning, however, occurs in shallow water, about four or six feet deep, in sandy areas if available. If the water is vegetation, they will spend much of their time in it except during spawning time, when they stubbornly guard the "nests." Often the bluegills hang out in fairly deep water during the day, then move into the shallows or toward the surface as evening nears.

To catch bluegill and most other panfish, the angler would be wise to take along several types of live bait. Chances are one will work better than others on a particular day. Among best baits are worms of almost any description, including such delicacies as grubs and meal worms, crickets, grasshoppers, spiders, roaches and even leeches. Whole kernel corn is also good, as are such artificials as poppers, flies and spinners.

Fishermen at Verdon Lake in southeast Nebraska round up leeches right at the lake by turning over rocks. Garden worms and night crawlers are generally dependable bluegill getters, and they are fairly easy to come by.

Those who consider the bluegill "small potatoes" and not worthy of any serious angling efforts should switch to ultra-light tackle or a fly rod. When a one-pound bluegill gets on the end of a line, he'll demand new respect. Once a fisherman catches a bluegill, he should work that area over pretty well for others are almost sure to be close by.

American Legion Hall Redecorated

By Hannah Sheldon

There's a new look at the American Legion hall these days. Nearly completed is the sprucing up that has been done. A new doorway was built back from the sidewalk so the door could open out. The floor in the big room has been sanded and resealed, and the ceiling repaired. Best of all, the walls were painted and the Legion Auxiliary is making new curtains. The hallway and stairs, when finished, will make a very attractive scene as part of the Community Improvement Project. The center not only looked very pretty with the new flag pole and flag erected by the Fortnightly Club, but the Legion also placed new flags at each veterans' grave, making a very attractive scene. We also suggest people take pride in their flags and display them often at their homes this summer.

Carol's Corner

by Carol Leggett

A lesson I'm trying to learn about traveling is that a trip is just a trip — not a move. Traveling for me could be more fun if I could only learn to distinguish between the two. Sometimes when we leave for a weekend it appears by the tons of luggage and clothes on hangers that our destination must be China, for a month or more!

Last weekend when our family went to Omaha, the situation was different, I'm proud to say. With two girls planning a trip to 4-H camp we couldn't take everything with us, some of the clothes had to be left at home, clean, ready and waiting for the early Monday departure.

My mid-year resolution is to pack to live easily and as lazily as possible and to try to leave my home problems at home, along with the cooking, dishes and thoughts of ironing — and wouldn't that be a good thing to keep in mind whether you're working or vacationing.

absorbent paper. Cut short slit in the side of each fried ball through the center. Insert a tsp. of your favorite jelly and jam into the center and close, tightly. Sprinkle with confectioners' sugar. Makes 10.

The children of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Dunbar took them to dinner Saturday evening in honor of their 25th wedding anniversary. As they parked in front of the Veterans Club, their car ran out of gas. Call it coincidence if you like, but Hazel tells me Allen pulled this same stunt on their first date too. She thinks that after 25 years plus he could be a bit more original with his schemes.

Failure is often a matter of viewpoint. A few hours after his play had flopped on opening night, Oscar Wilde was asked by a friend, "How did your play go tonight?" "Oh," was the lofty response, "the play was a great success, but the audience was a failure."

While talking to Mrs. Mary Johnson Monday, she told me that 10 years had passed since her husband, Walter, was killed when his tractor he was using tipped over, crushing him beneath the wheels. She went on to tell of another tragedy which occurred nine years ago on the same date when her son-in-law, Vencil Placnik, drowned at Cedar Lake as a boat capsized.

Look now. Before the outdoor cooking season gets into full swing, search for those tongs to turn meats on the grill. They're neat to use and won't puncture the meat to let those juices go dribbling into the charcoal.

For a sweet and quick dress-up for refrigerated biscuits this suggestion will certainly please.

Learn to pause — or nothing worthwhile can catch up with you.

Bismarks
1 can refrigerated biscuits
1/4 c. jelly or jam
Confectioners' sugar
Heat fat to 350 degrees.
Drop biscuits into hot fat about 1 1/2 in deep. Turn when golden brown (about one min).
Take from fat and drain on paper.

Coffee Cup Philosophy:
Learn to pause — or nothing worthwhile can catch up with you.

The Winds of Death Blew Strong Fifteen Years Ago

"Everything was quiet and still. I heard a roar and walked out on the porch, and I saw it coming. I grabbed Bobby, told the missus to get the baby and the hired man to get Shirley, and headed for the cave."

That's how Guy Lutz remembers the blackest day in Valley County history. Moments after Mr. Lutz and his household scrambled into their storm cellar, a vicious tornado rolled over their property east of Arcadia and over that of the Mads Madsen family across the road. When it had cleared, 10 members of the Madsen family were dead and both home-steads were obliterated. Back down the tornado's path another man lay dying and three more homes had been destroyed.

Tomorrow, June 7, will mark the 15th anniversary of that fateful day. "Time sure goes fast," Mr. Lutz said Sunday as he strolled across the ground where the Madsen home had once stood.

He paused, kicked at something on the ground, and then picked up a child's leg brace. "One of the little boys was crippled," he said. "That must have been his brace. Imagine that, still here after all these years."

"This is the first time I've been over here since the tornado," he added, which seemed almost incredible since the scene was not more than 200 yards from his own house.

"I've just never had a reason," he explained. "Mr. Lutz was the first person to the scene of the Madsen tragedy, and it was a scene he wishes he could forget."

"I headed for the cave because I figured that's where they were," he said. "But as I was coming down the road here I saw part of a body. I sent the missus back then, because I knew if she saw it she'd never want to rebuild here."

Mr. Lutz continued on and was joined shortly by other neighbors. "There was nothing left," he said. "The bodies were just sucked apart by the terrible winds." Mrs. Lutz has some vivid memories, too, of that lay Sunday afternoon whose stillness was shattered so deafeningly. Her youngest child, Tommy, was two weeks old at the time.

Unlike her husband who had spent many anxious moments in a storm cellar as a child, Mrs. Lutz had never been in a cave. But she did not hesitate that day when her husband told her to hurry.

"The cave was just outside the door of the house," Mrs. Lutz said. "After the storm passed, we looked out at what should have been the house and there was nothing there—just a clear sky."

In addition to the 10 dead at the Madsen place, the tornado claimed an 11th victim when 60-year-old Lester Hubbard died the next day. Mr. Hubbard was a bachelor farmer who lived alone. He was found alive in the basement of his house about four miles southwest of the Lutz and Madsen places. However, he was pinned beneath timbers and died in the Ord hospital of a skull fracture and crushed chest.

"He would have been okay if he had had something heavy to crawl under," Mr. Lutz said, because the tornado itself didn't hurt him. It was all the falling debris.

"I heard the tornado take the Hubbard place," he added. "It sounded just like an old silage cutter—zoom!" And he swung his hand as if wielding a sickle.

"I heard it take these two places, too," he remarked. "It was deafening."

Dead at the Madsen place where a small family reunion was in progress were Mads Madsen, 60; his wife, Minnie Earl Madsen, 57; their daughter, Mary Edith Madsen Witt, 37; her three children, Thelma, 11, Gerald, 9, and Patricia, 7; a son of the Madsens, Jens Virgil Madsen, 36; another daughter, Dolie Irene Madsen Johnson, 31; and her two children, Kenneth Eugene, 11, and Barbara Ann, 10.

Only survivor of the family living in this area was Jack Witt, 39, husband of Mrs. Mary Witt and father of three of the dead children. He was at his own farm when the tornado struck.

He had planned to attend the reunion but remained home to look after livestock. "Mr. Lutz now lives in Omaha. "One of the saddest things about it was that the Madsens had never really had much," Mr. Lutz said. "But they had just built a new house and were starting to do real well. Then that happened."

Ironically, a storm cellar which could have saved the Madsens as it did the Lutzes went unused not more than 20 feet from their house.

"I'm sure they just didn't hear the storm coming," Mr. Lutz said. "Their house was well insulated, and they were probably all talking and just didn't hear it."

Two other families had narrow escapes. Warned by a telephone call that the storm was approaching, three members of the Carol Lutz clan huddled in a corner of their basement as the tornado whisked their house from over them and dropped debris all around.

Miraculously, none of them was seriously injured. The Keith Dorsey family saw the storm approaching and ran to a neighbor's storm cellar a quarter of a mile away. Then they watched as the tornado destroyed everything but their house. It was hoisted off its foundation and deposited in a clump of trees 15 yards away. Although not destroyed, it was damaged to such an extent that it had to be replaced.

As is common with tornadoes, the storm produced some oddities. At the Guy Lutz farm a crate of eggs went unbroken while everything around them was demolished.

At the Carol Lutz place the garage was lifted from its foundation while a nearby new car inside went undamaged except for minor dents from falling boards.

"There were piles and piles of junk," Guy Lutz recalled. "Besides the building debris, there were dead chickens, calves and so forth. But the neighbors were just great. They helped us clean it up, and of course they also gave us clothes and things like that."

A disaster fund was also established to help provide necessities for the families affected. "Sometimes I think the good Lord brings things like that on us to show us we do need friends and other people," Mr. Lutz said.

While the Lutzes resolved right away to rebuild as best they could, though their destroyed property was valued at more than $30,000 and they had only about $5,000 worth of insurance, their will was stretched almost to the breaking point when a second storm three weeks later demolished all the new buildings they had erected and ruined a car they had purchased as a replacement for one destroyed in the first storm.

"But we had to come back and clean it up," Mr. Lutz said. "It was too good a place, and it was of no value to us the way it was."

Even though the storm cellar saved their lives, the Lutzes have been without one now for over a year. They had it taken over to make room for some renovation they were accomplishing.

"We plan to build another one as soon as possible, though," Mrs. Lutz said. "The weather's been too good around here the last couple of years. We're living dangerously."

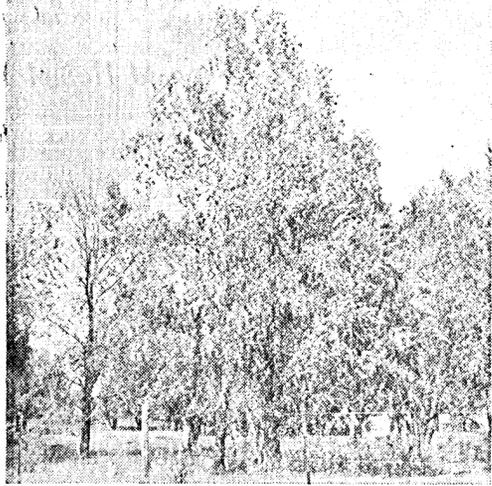

"The only reason we haven't built it already is that we can't agree on the location," her husband added. "The boys and I want to put it in the middle of the missus' flower bed, and she doesn't like that."

While the terrible experience of 15 years ago left unforgettable etchings on Mr. and Mrs. Lutz's memories, outwardly it has not affected them.

"Oh, I had some hair before that thing," the completely bald farmer joked. "But I'm not afraid to go to bed at night when the weather is bad or anything like that."

"I still don't think the good Lord will take you before he wants you. If the weather's bad I go ahead and go to bed. If I wake up in the morning I know we didn't have a tornado. If I don't, well . . ."

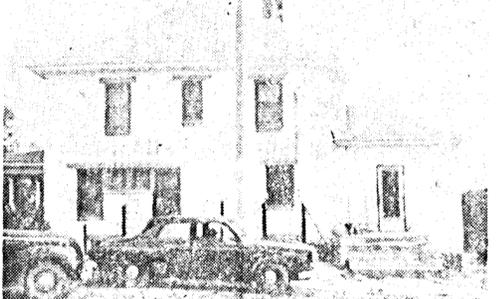

Once again the trees grow tall and straight on the Mads Madsen homestead. Fifteen years ago the trees and the house they shielded were shorn at their bases, laying bare a landscape cluttered with death.

Only gentle cattle now bother to gaze upon the storm cellar that might have saved the lives of 10 people had it been used. Located less than 20 feet from the house where the Madsen family lived, it went unused—probably because the victims had no knowledge of the approaching storm.

Guy Lutz claims to be a horse trader, and he must be a good one. He says he received a $50 trade-in for this battered Studebaker which felt the storm's worst fury.

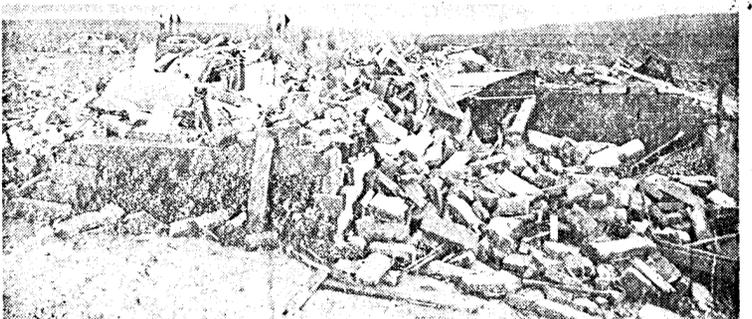

Before . . . Two-story stone house of Guy Lutz family was nothing but a pile of rubble when the storm subsided.

Kindly neighbors were quick to lend a helping hand to families victimized by the tornado. At the Guy Lutz farm cleanup operations were well under way when this picture was made. In the foreground is the storm cellar that saved the lives of six persons—the Guy Lutz family and a hired hand, Glenn Patton.

Six months after the storm debris still litters the Madsen landscape, but in the background the Lutz family has moved another house in to replace the one that was destroyed. Even today boards and other pieces of residue may be found in the tornado's path.

Superintendent Assails Lawlessness in Memorial Day Speech

Americans did not bleed and die on foreign battlefields to preserve the lawlessness that is sweeping the United States today, the superintendent of Ord schools said Thursday in a Memorial Day address at the city cemetery.

Roger Clough made his remarks as the principal speaker in a brief ceremony marking the 100th anniversary of Memorial Day. Members of the American Legion, the Veterans of Foreign Wars, and the two organizations' auxiliaries participated in the services.

Wreaths were laid on the grave of Ord's unknown soldier, and a military salute was fired in honor of those who had given their lives in the service of their country.

In his speech, Mr. Clough told a crowd gathered on the grassy slopes of the cemetery that fellow countrymen have fought and died "so that the American way of life shall persist."

"And it is time that we start teaching this American way," he said. "We teach that right is always right and that wrong is always wrong regardless of the face it wears or the mob it is a part of. We must preserve individual freedom, but only when it goes hand in hand with individual responsibility."

"Americanism is taught, not inherited," Mr. Clough added. He cited Abraham Lincoln as an example and said that Mr. Lincoln was not born as "honest Abe," but he was taught that way. "He had a great mother and an even greater step-mother who taught him that true success in life is based on character, intelligence, integrity and loyalty," the superintendent stated.

"If mothers do not do their job right, it really doesn't matter what the rest of us do," he added.

"If the American system fails," Mr. Clough said, "it will fail because we have developed a philosophy of living that says: 'No individual is morally responsible for his own individual, welfare or individual conduct.'"

"The biggest threat to America today is the erosion of individual character," he continued. "Surveys tell us the causes of delinquency are poverty, slums, etc. But this alone is not the answer. This gives the impression that the poor have a license to steal or the economically well-to-do will not steal. These are false assumptions," Mr. Clough stated, "and guaranteed incomes will not solve the problem."

"Instead, we must teach people," he said. "We must go from person to person and from home to home. We must teach them why Americans have been willing to die and bleed for a right cause."

Mr. Clough also deplored the state of the nation when honest people are made fun of and criticized as stooges. He cited as an example a cleaning plant employee who found $900 in a customer's pocket and returned it to the owner. He received as a reward a cigar, and a picture in the newspaper showed him smoking a "$900 cigar."

"What the paper didn't say," Mr. Clough commented, "was that the $900 was never his in the first place. Instead, it inferred that just because he found it he was entitled to it."

Another example was a man who found $240,000 in unmarked bills. He returned the money to the owner and was given a reward of $10,000. Years later when asked if he would do the same thing over again, the man said no. Asked why, he said that he had received so much ridicule and criticism for finding the goose that laid the golden egg and then letting it get away that if given another chance, he would not subject himself and his family to such abuse.

Ord Girl Attends Music Festival At Chadron State

An Ord girl was one of more than 200 high school students attending last week's 10th annual Summer Fine Arts Festival at Chadron State College.

Sonja Swaneck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chet Swaneck, participated in the activities which included individual and group classes in musical theory as well as practical application. She was among the top 30 students in the music theory class. The week concluded with a concert Sunday afternoon.

A junior at Ord High School this fall, Miss Swaneck's specialty is the baritone saxophone. She played first chair in her section and also participated in the chorus.

Guest choral conductor was Dr. Lloyd Pfautsch, conductor of the choir at Southern Methodist University. Guest band director was Edmund Marty, conductor of the Casper, Wyo., Civic Symphony.

Students with superior musical talent were recommended for attendance at the festival by their high school instructors, according to Dr. Harry Holmberg, chairman of the Division of Fine Arts at Chadron. Those attending hailed from South Dakota and Wyoming high schools as well as Nebraska.

Time To Spray Musk Thistle

Despite the dry weather, musk thistle plants unfortunately seem to be making good growth. A spot check of infested areas in Valley County indicates that some of the plants will be shooting the flowering stock within a few days. This means that every day we delay spraying, our chances lessen of getting the desired kill.

The deadline for spraying or destroying musk thistle under the ACP cost-sharing practice is June 15.

The Nebraska noxious weed law specifies that steps to destroy musk thistle, either by spraying or digging, must have been taken no later than June 15. The law also states that if, either by reluctance or apathy, such steps have not been taken, the Noxious Weed Division of the state of Nebraska shall spray or take whatever measures necessary to clean up the infested area. The cost of this eradication shall be charged to the property by adding those costs to the property tax.

Musk thistle can be eradicated by spraying the infested area with 24-D at the rate of 1 1/2 to 2 pounds per acre. For best results this spraying should be done when the temperature is in the upper 60s or around 70 degrees. However, don't be tempted to put off spraying too long. We would caution you not to try to skimp on the amount of chemical. Lesser amounts just will not give the desired kill. On the other hand, over-application of chemical is not desirable either. Always read the label carefully and follow directions.

Feedlot Operators Must Register Before July 1

Feedlots where large numbers of cattle are confined in relatively small areas have grown rapidly in recent years. Confinement feeding has increased odor, dust, insect problems and water pollution potential. Thus, controlling feedlot wastes has become a problem.

Complaints of extreme pollution have been registered by citizens living downstream from Nebraska feedlots. Recognizing the seriousness of the pollution problem, Legislative Bill 300 was enacted in 1967. The new law is more inclusive than previous water pollution laws, giving broader powers to the Nebraska Water Pollution Control Council.

The regulations of this group state that a feedlot operator must register his operations with the council if his feed lot meets certain specifications.

This registration must be completed by July 1. We have registration forms in the Extension Office. If you have any questions on this matter, stop in at the office.

Shade-Tree Borers

It is time for the second DDT, dieldrin or Lindane spray to protect young trees from borer attacks. Mix three tablespoons of the liquid concentrate to one gallon of water. Spray the trunk from ground to lower limbs. Newly planted shade trees should be sprayed. After spray dries, robenzilate, Kelthane, Aramite, Dimite or Fedion. Follow instructions on the label.

Rabbit Club To Organize

We have had several inquiries about the possibility of organizing a 4H rabbit club here in Ord. Mr. Alvin Markvicka has consented to be the leader of this group.

A meeting to organize the club is scheduled for 2 p.m. Friday during the County Extension Office (basement of the Post Office).

Pasture Livestock Judging Contest

Plans are complete for the 4H practice livestock judging day which is scheduled today (Thursday), starting at 9:30 a.m. at the Bill Schudel Ranch near North Loup. All Valley County 4H members are invited to participate. Contestants will be given an opportunity to judge one class of breeding heifers and one class of bulls.

Gordon Albrecht, herdsman for the Schudel Hereford Co., will give a demonstration on wrap with special tree wrapping. Spray birch trees now with DDT for bronze birch borers. Spray the entire tree since borers infest branches as well as trunk.

Spider Mites

Reports have been received of damaging infestations of spider mites on evergreen trees in several areas of the state. Begin watching for them now. Check trees by tapping a branch over a white piece of paper. Spider mites will appear as walking dots if present.

Control by spraying infested trees with Cygon, diazinon, Chlo-

Half-Mill Levy Adopted Again

The Twin Loups Reclamation District will continue with its present one-half of a mill levy during the next year, following adoption of a resolution at the May meeting of the board of directors.

The levy is assessed on all of the tangible property within the district, according to Pete Russell, secretary of the reclamation board. The half mill levy, which supports the district's budget, is only half of the levy permitted under Nebraska law. The next directors' meeting will be June 24.

Upon failure to observe this notice the weed control superintendent is required to proceed pursuant to the law and have weeds destroyed by such method as he finds necessary, the expenses of which shall constitute a lien and be entered as a tax against the land, and be collected as other real estate taxes are collected or by other means as provided by law.

That Rainy Day Is Due

One of the least publicized facts of the otherwise widely discussed tax measure now before Congress is that it will possibly be retroactive.

To all Central Nebraskans this is important. For it means not only that future checks will contain less take-home money, but that taxes will have to be paid for the period between the time the measure was passed and its effective date.

The most probable effective date for the 10 percent surtax on individual incomes is Apr. 1. Thus, if the measure were passed today, taxes for the period Apr. 1 to June 6 would have to be paid. Certainly this could cause the family that was unprepared some serious financial pains.

For corporations the prospects are even more alarming. Their 10 percent surtax will likely be retroactive to Jan. 1.

Practically every economic expert in the United States, as well as other countries of the world, agrees that passage of the tax is necessary. With government spending exceeding government income by such a huge margin (over 20 billion dollars this fiscal year alone if the tax like is not passed), there seems little doubt that something must be done. And that something undoubtedly will be a tax increase. In fact, Rep. Wilbur Mills of the House Ways and Means Committee, which had held the brake on the tax bill for months, said after President Johnson agreed to a $6 billion budget cut that he expects the tax bill to pass June 12.

To ease the blow when it comes, or more specifically when income tax filing time comes next April, a little extra set aside from each pay-check now would be a wise move.

Hruska Plan Essential Part of Crime Bill

One of the most important aspects of the huge anti-crime bill now before Congress is Title III, that part of the measure which deals with wire-tapping and which is sponsored in part by Senator Roman Hruska of Nebraska.

Law enforcement officials have stated publicly that wire-tapping is the only way to successfully oppose organized crime in this country. Yet liberals in our government have steadfastly opposed all electronic eavesdropping for fear that it would be an encroachment on individual privacy.

Certainly abuses of wiretapping could result if caution were not exercised in its application. But still we cannot continue to play this silly game of "if-it-might-be-bad-for-Joe-Dokes-then-it's-bad-for-the-country." On the other hand, if Joe Dokes is about to commit a crime against fellow members of his society, then whatever is bad for Joe Dokes is really good for the country.

Title III contains enough safety measures to insure that wire-tapping is not used indiscriminately. It authorizes electronic eavesdropping in the manner now provided for search warrants and also permits police to use it "in an emergency" for a period up to 48 hours without a court order.

Senator Hruska has done the country a favor by his sponsorship of this amendment. Let's hope enough of his fellow Congressmen join him in its support that it will remain an integral part of the anti-crime package.

The National Assn. of Manufacturers warns, "Lack of proper monetary and fiscal discipline within the United States has aggravated the gold crisis. An essential step for protecting the value of the dollar, both at home and abroad, is to reduce federal spending. Present domestic commitments should be scrutinized carefully and priorities set. Wherever possible programs should be spread out over a longer period of time, postponed or eliminated so as to reduce the impact on the nation's economy. Expenditures in fiscal 1969 must be held well below the total proposed in the President's budget, and should not exceed the expenditures of fiscal 1968."

The St. Louis County Medical Society Bulletin observes, "The imposition of social equality on all the people is neither the prerogative nor the privilege of the federal government. Social equality, as with all other forms or levels of equality, is to be earned or won, not conferred by a paternalistic government. Social equality cannot be given by a decadent society attempting to survive by lowering the level of social equality until it can contain the masses. Social justice is quite another matter. It must not be confused with social equality."

Citing rapidly accelerating labor costs and spiraling material prices, the chief executives of 15 major U.S. railroads told the Interstate Commerce Commission in Washington that both service to the public at home and to our armed forces overseas will be severely jeopardized unless freight rates are promptly increased. They urged the commission to approve modest but essential increases in freight rates and charges to provide adequate funds for running and improving the nation's railroads.

State's Tax System No Hindrance To Industry, Research Study Finds

By Melvin Paul
Statewide Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

LINCOLN — A Chicago-based research firm has concluded that Nebraska's new corporate income tax is one of the lowest in the nation.

Because of this, it said, the state's present broad-based tax system should help rather than hinder efforts to attract industry from other regions.

The conclusions of a six-month study of Nebraska's industrial potential by Corplan Associates were contained in a 110-page report released by the State Economic Development Department.

The objectives were to outline the assets and limitations of Nebraska's business climate and show ways to get new industry into the state.

The study was made under a $28,500 contract with the state. The money was appropriated by the 1967 Legislature.

"We do not consider Nebraska's two percent corporate state income tax a major deterrent to plant location," the hired consultants said.

"Thirty-seven states exceed Nebraska's corporation income tax rate, two states have the same rate, and 10 states have no corporate income tax."

Nebraska's first corporate income tax went into effect Jan. 1. The two percent levy applies against a firm's federal taxable income after normal business credits.

The corporate income tax, like the individual income tax, is subject to annual review by the State Board of Equalization and Assessment.

The board, which is headed by the governor, can either lower or raise the rate to meet state government budgetary demands.

State Tax Commissioner Murrell McNeil has estimated the two percent corporate levy will yield about $8.8 million a year in revenue.

The Corplan study said the value of services received for the corporate tax in Nebraska compares favorably with other state income tax rates. "This is considered increasingly more important" among industries seeking new plant locations, the research firm added.

In addition to tax rates, the consultants listed labor supply, railroad services and utility costs as major "assets" Nebraska has to offer prospective industry.

Liabilities included lack of air freight service, poor interstate highway access, substandard educational facilities in some outstate areas, and an absence of skilled workers.

Corplan recommended several long-range proposals for Nebraska to consider incorporating into its economic development program. Among them were:

- State loans for building construction and state financing aid for existing plant expansion.
- Tax exemptions or temporary tax moratorium on land and/or capital improvements.
- Tax exemptions or credits to encourage research and development.

James Monroe, director of the Economic Development Department, said chances of the legislature authorizing tax incentives for new industry appear remote at this time.

"Right now there is no indicated need for granting tax exemptions to industry," he said. "Our tax system is a sound one and does not harm industry."

Civil Rights Committee Named
The legislative council's executive board has appointed a four-member committee to study the impact of the new federal civil rights law on Nebraska Indians and their tribal customs.

The unit will be headed by Senator William H. Hasebrook of West Point. Other members are Senators C. W. Holmquist of Oakland, George C. Gerdes of Alliance and Elvin Adanson of Valentine.

Attorney General Clarence A. H. Meyer requested the study to determine if state laws are compatible with provisions of the federal act.

"Serious problems and frictions could arise if the state does not take this opportunity to clarify relationships between the Indian tribes and state and federal governments," Meyer said.

The bulk of the state's Indian population is located in North-east and Northwest Nebraska.

Nebraska Awarded Ambulance Grant
Nebraska has been awarded a $310,000 grant from the Federal Transportation Department to develop an ambulance and emergency medical treatment program.

Dr. Lynn Thompson, state health director, said his department will work with the Nebraska adjutant general's office, the University of Nebraska Medical College and the American Red Cross on the project.

Included will be a system whereby emergency health data is transmitted electronically from an ambulance to a hospital. The medical college will participate in this phase.

Tax Credit Eligibility Explained
Military personnel who claim Nebraska as their state of residence will receive a 7 percent dependent food credit on their state income tax return even though they might be stationed outside Nebraska.

That is the ruling of state Tax Commissioner Murrell McNeil on the eligibility of servicemen for the food credit.

The credit is designed to compensate Nebraska taxpayers for lack of a sales tax exemption on food. It had been questioned whether a serviceman stationed in another state could receive the credit since he paid no Nebraska sales tax.

But McNeil ruled it is "not relevant that the taxpayer did not incur any Nebraska sales and use tax liability. Neither is it relevant that the military person or his dependents were not in Nebraska any portion of the year in which he claims food sales tax credit for himself or for authorized exemptions in his family."

In a family of four, the food credit would amount to $28 a year. A family of six could claim $42 in credits.

McNeil stressed it is necessary, however, that military personnel who claim the exemption must list Nebraska as their state of residence.

Getting the Family Together

Family reunions are a great invention.

For a long, long time I have thought it was, too bad that most families fail to get together except at funerals. At this time everything is so weepy it is difficult to enjoy the meeting.

So, conclaves like alumni banquets, graduations and weddings really serve a great purpose when they bring members of the family out of hiding. And I enjoyed such a get-together in Omaha last weekend when my nephew, Bill Wilcox, received his M.D.

For Dr. and Mrs. C. W. Wilcox, my only sister and her husband, came from their nice new home in Grand Island to see their son graduate.

Their only daughter, Carol Wilcox, and her new husband Cary Stiff made a special trip from Denver where both of them are employed on the Denver Post. Carol wrote news for the Quiz one summer, remember?

Bill's in-laws, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Nielsen, came from Aurora to see their daughter's husband get the award and to see their tiny blonde granddaughter, of course. She looks like a little angel, but she's full of springs.

Not very many for a reunion you say, but I come from a smallish family.

Right behind us in the Civic Auditorium sat Mr. and Mrs. Hilding Pearson from Ord, proudly present to see their son Bruce become a full-fledged doctor. With them were Bruce's wife, her parents, and also Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Pearson. And a very handsome little grandson.

Such a mix-up you ever saw, out on the lawn afterwards. Everyone was trying to meet someone. And everyone was trying to snap pictures of one group after another.

But it was a very happy day, and I thought Chancellor Hardin of the University of Nebraska made an excellent point when he thanked the parents of the graduates for their efforts. And he also took note of the sacrifices made by the young wives, even the younger brothers and sisters and often the grandparents too.

It takes such a great amount of money to put a young doctor into his office, ready to practice.

Not to mention the years and years of work by the young person himself. Or herself, for there were a few young women honored also.

Education is getting to be more and more of a burden for the families. It may be necessary, but it can also be painful.

But this day was one of the pleasanter aspects. All the sacrifices, the burning eyes, the tired backs from hours of study were forgotten on this most wonderful graduation day.

Roger L. Green of Scottsbluff reported they spent more than $15,500 in their unsuccessful bids to unseat Rep. Dave Martin in Nebraska's third congressional district Republican primary contest.

Martin listed his $300 filing fee as the only campaign expense.

The Costly Price

By PFC Dennis C. Crowell

Take a man, then put him alone,
Put him 12,000 miles away from home,
Empty his heart of all but blood,
Make him live in sweat and mud,
This is the way I have to live
And why my soul to the devil I give.

But you don't have to know what it is like over here
You have your parties and drink your beer,
You burn your draft cards and march at dawn,
Plant your signs on the White House lawn.

You all want to ban the bomb,
There's no real war in Vietnam.
Use your drugs and have your fun,
Then refuse to use a gun.
There's nothing else for you to do.

And I'm supposed to die for you?
There is one thing I think you should know
And that is where I think you should go.

I'm already here and it's too late,
I'll hate you 'till the day I die,
I'll hate you 'till the day I die,
You made me hear my buddy cry.
I saw his arm—a bloody shred,
I heard them say, "This one is dead."

It's a large price to have to pay,
Not to live another day.
He paid the price, but what did he buy?
By him dying, your life he buys.
But who gives a damn if a soldier dies?
His wife does, and maybe his sons—
But they're the only ones.

Last week we debated on the floor of the House a bill to tear down, remove concrete basement walls, and level the lots at taxpayer expense, those buildings destroyed by the April riots in Washington. Estimated cost of the legislation—$200,000.

Practically all the property owners had insurance, and it does not seem to me to be justified to use taxpayers' money for this purpose. This was a bill to cover only damage done during the riots of last April here in Washington.

If this passed, there is nothing to prohibit Detroit, New York, New Haven, Chicago and all of the hundred and one other cities in the country who have suffered from riot damage to build in similar pieces of legislation.

The bill was defeated, and I helped.

'Talking Machine' Not the Answer To Woes of Students or Congress

Most of the session at the country store Saturday night was taken up on the subject of modern education. George Hastings got the session off in this direction by reporting he had saw where they were getting a thing in the schools called the "talking page."

The young'uns can talk their lesson, and the lesson talks back. George allowed that one educator claims the talking page will do for education what the portable radio did for the Middle East. The only trouble with that statement, George said, was that he didn't know what the portable radio did for the Middle East.

But, anyhow, said George, this talking page fits on the top of a school desk and is about the size of one of them three-ring notebooks all the students used to carry. It has lessons in it and talks the instructions. If the student don't follow directions, the machine stops the lesson and repeats the part the student missed. He said this story claimed the students would talk back and argue with the machine where they wouldn't with the teacher. He said he wasn't shore this was doing the young'uns manners any good. He had saw where they was fixing talking pages for adults and there was a heap of husbands that would be glad to have someone they could talk back to.

Jim Cetak was agin these machines, said after the young'uns watched education television and all that stuff they learned ever-

The Valley County petroleum industries committee elected Ray Falter as chairman at its organizational meeting.

Ord was again chosen as one of six sites in the state for the annual 10-acre corn yield contest conducted annually by the University of Nebraska.

Valuation of all taxable property in Valley County increased $2,105,377 over last year, according to figures released by County Assessor W. H. Neill.

Wallace A. Due was named new secretary of the Ord Chamber of Commerce.

Thirty Years Ago
Don Dahlin returned from a week at Cornhusker Boys' State in Lincoln.

The Ord Booster Club elected two new officers, Walter Thodal and B. C. Bouquet.

Delco light and similar plants made the farmer's work light in more ways than one. While the plant formerly cost about $15 per month to run, the cost had now dropped to only about 50 cents per month. The Clayton Oil farm was one of those in the area equipped with a Delco outfit.

At the Safeway Store a 24-ounce package of Oxydol sold for 22 cents while a three-pound bag of Airway coffee cost 45 cents.

Forty Years Ago
Ordites were discussing the many reasons why the city should have a water purification plant.

A teenage conference for Seventh Day Baptist young people was held at North Loup.

The Ord Board of Education asked the county board to reduce the tax in this district one mill for the coming year, making a 14-mill levy instead of a 15-mill levy, which was good news to taxpayers.

At the People's Store, coffee sold for 25 cents per pound and English walnuts were 23 cents a pound.

Assaults on Postal Employees
Assaults on postal employees will become a federal criminal offense under a bill approved by the House recently. Presently, a person accused of beating, killing or otherwise harming a postal employee in the performance of his duty can be punished only under local and state laws.

As was pointed out in discussion of the bill, "It is a serious federal crime to steal a postal card from the mails. Yet, there is no violation of federal law for killing the mailman who carries the post card."

The bill, approved by the House by a vote of 333 to 5, corrects this situation. Passage was spurred by the fact that in 1967 the rate of increase in the number of assaults on postal employees rose 123 percent over the number for 1966.

Despondent, but unrelenting. The lodestone that had drawn him this far would neither dispel nor release him. Taunted by the contemptuous treatment of others, formerly dismayed at his own brethren . . . he moved up lonely streets past shuttered windows and barred doors.

A recluse by choice . . . not by chance. Confined to one body, one mind, one soul. Within him lay dormant the amorous yearnings of bygone days. And/or would flame forth if the door of his heart were ever opened. Best that it burn within, he thought, lest someone get burned without.

Moving on in the night . . . veiled in stars, cloaked in darkness. He cast aside the moon and returned a smile in exchange for its mirrored reply. Wind hustled the leafing trees,

What of being? What of doing? Is not the answer within . . . and not, without? Why do we hear so many voices? Why do we fear another's eyes? Why do we watch . . . why do we listen!

Who answers for us! Who sees through our eyes!

There is only One to whom we must answer. And you—oh! pervious mind—betray me. You listen from without . . . I hear from within. You see what others see . . . I see myself. But in the darkness you are blind, and without voices you cannot hear! Oh! night of love . . . live on.

But returns the light . . . illuminating the wasteland . . . closing the curtain on yesterday and postponing tomorrow. Invidious light! Suppressor of dreams! Obliterator of hope!

Bring back the night . . . and the quest . . . and the questions. . . bring back my love!

Amen, Brother

(Editor's Note: The following is a news release from the United States Chamber of Commerce, Washington, D.C.)

For centuries poets and philosophers have probed the mysteries of happiness. Now, according to Washington Report, publication of the United States Chamber of Commerce, the federal government is taking a whack at it.

As part of a $249,000 package of projects in Puerto Rico, the U.S. Public Health Service decided to find out what made those island people happy. Out of a survey of 1,500 Puerto Ricans came a study, "The Demography of Happiness," which made these remarkable discoveries:

- People who are in good health are happier than people who are ill.
- People who think positively are happier than people who think negatively.
- People who make lots of money are happier than people who make little money.
- Young people are happier than old people.

To which the national chamber says could be added: People would be a lot happier — even ecstatic — if the federal agencies would stop spending taxpayers' money so ridiculously.

This Week's Meditation - More Pledges "Take not the word of truth utterly out of my mouth." Psalms 119:43 Several years ago, a soldier was brought into the District of Columbia Police court on a charge of intoxication. He promised that if the judge would give him a chance he would never touch strong drink again. The judge gave him that chance. The judge had the young soldier raise his hand and solemnly swear that he would not use intoxicating liquors for the next two years. The soldier was most earnest in the matter. It is high time for a new pledge-signing campaign in this country, a campaign that will summon all American manhood and womanhood to resist the devil's temptations of drunkenness. It is high time that the American people realized what drink is doing to their nation, their homes, and their individual lives. According to statistics I have read: The American tax payer spends $6.00 on rehabilitation for every $1.00 collected on liquor tax. One out of every eighteen social drinkers end up as an alcoholic. And it's an established fact that a great percentage of the young girls who find themselves pregnant got that way while either, they, their boy friend or both were drinking. Only human will power can withstand the pitfall that Satan has placed before mankind. Only when people see the destruction it brings will they resist this tool of Satan. And its time that many open their eyes before they become blinded in their stupor. And in many other matters than intoxicants we need to exalt our pledges. If we are church members, we have taken a solemn pledge to be faithful unto Christ until death. Are we true to them? Do we even remember what they were? If you are married, you have made some vital and sacred vows. Are you true to them? Are you faithful in the flesh only or does your mind cling to the one whom you uttered those vows to? In many other relations we have entered into agreements. Is our word as good as our bond? Have we forsworn ourselves before God? If you haven't, it's time that you did. J. H. Schroeder, Minister Christian Church Ord, Nebraska

THE Ord Quizz

Estab. April, 1882 Ord, Nebraska, Thursday, June 13, 1968 Vol. 87, No. 14 In 2 Sections

Published Weekly at 305 S. 16th St., Ord, Nebraska 68862 Subscription Rates — $6.00 in Nebraska, $7.00 Elsewhere Second Class Postage Paid at Ord, Nebraska

The weather was warm, but the water was cold when the Ord swimming pool opened Saturday. Patty Veskerna had to test it with a toe before taking the big plunge.

City to Ask for $71,750 in Taxes; Per-Month Figure Is Down Slightly

The City of Ord will ask Valley County for $71,750 in mill levies to cover the 1969 fiscal year which began May 1. That's an increase of $10,250 over last year's request.

However, fiscal year '69 will cover 15 months instead of 12 as in the past. Consequently, the budget is actually down slightly when figured on a monthly basis.

The new budget was adopted at last week's City Council meeting. In other business the councilmen authorized purchase of a new police car and approved Ray Marshall as an interim councilman to fill the seat vacated by Don Edwards. Mr. Edwards recently moved to Scottsdale, Ariz.

Johnson Motors submitted the low bid of $385 plus trade-in on the new police car. It will be a 1968 Ambassador. The police department currently possesses a 1966 Chevrolet.

Concerning the budget, Mayor Bill French pointed out that Nebraska municipalities are changing on a May 1 through April 30 fiscal year to an Aug. 1 through July 31 year. Fiscal year '69 is the transition period, so that's the reason the city must plan for 15 months this year instead of the normal 12.

In addition to the $71,000 plus the city expects to get in mill levies, it is planning on another $25,000 from the state sales tax. The state collects the tax and will return a portion to each community based on population. The state will keep 20 percent of all monies collected and divide the rest among the various municipalities.

City Auditor Norm Schmidt said Friday he does not expect an increase in city taxes over last year's 16.42 mills per dollar of assessed valuation. However, he said he can't be sure until the county assessor completes a re-valuation of all real estate in the city.

Because real estate represents the bulk of taxable property in the city (last year it accounted for nearly 82 1/2 percent of the city's total assessed valuation of slightly over $3 1/2 million), it is a huge variable which won't be known until County Assessor Frank Mott completes his survey. His office said Monday it will be finished some time this month.

This is the first complete re-valuation of city real estate since 1949. It is being assessed at 33 percent of its real value, the same as in the past. Arlene Johnson, deputy county assessor, estimated Friday that the total assessed value of real estate would exceed last year's figure. If that proves true, mill levies should drop slightly. (This is the city levy only; the total amount each citizen will pay can only be determined after school district budgets are figured also.)

After real estate the next greatest source of taxes is motor vehicles, the value of which is accounted for nearly half a million dollars in assessed valuation. Other sources are railroads, franchises, personal properties of businesses, and a miscellaneous category called "special."

Based on past fluctuations, the value of motor vehicles in the city is expected to stay about the same or increase slightly.

Personal properties of individuals, which last year were combined with personal properties of businesses to total about $750,000 in assessed valuation, have been deleted from this year's tax schedule. However, Mr. Schmidt said the $25,000 in sales tax revenue would more than make up for the loss in personal property taxes.

The three other tax sources — railroads, franchises and special — are minor and accounted for less than $150,000 in assessed value last year.

The one big increase in the budget is in the Road Fund, where last year's figure of $13,000 has risen to $27,000 this year. Mr. Schmidt said this was because the city was having to plan for two summers. Since most road work is done during the summer when weather conditions are favorable, the bulk of the Road Department's money is spent during that season. This budget covers not only the summer months of calendar year 1968, but most of the summer months of 1969 as well, the city auditor pointed out.

Other funds and the amounts requested are: General, $23,750, down $5,250 from last year (however, the entire $25,000 in sales tax revenues will be placed in this fund); Park, $6,500, up $500; Street Lighting, $6,000, the same as last year; Fire Department, $5,000, up $2,000; Cemetery, $3,000, down $1,000; and Water, $500, the same as last year.

New Schoolhouse for Mentally Retarded Nearer Reality as Fund Goal Approached

The drive to secure $21,200 in local funds for construction of a new school building here in Ord for the mentally retarded is within $2,000 of its goal, Dr. Barton Kline said yesterday.

Dr. Kline is director of Educational Service Unit 13, which serves Valley and Loup counties. The unit operated the Special Services School, formerly known as Opportunity School, during the past year.

The school is presently in a dwelling which, though an improvement over former years, is unsuitable for the training of handicapped children, according to Dr. Kline.

The proposed new building will provide two classrooms, as well as rooms for individual and group speech therapy, health services and counseling. Dr. Kline said physical therapy will be added if a therapist can be employed. If one cannot be found, the nurse will administer basic physical coordinating exercises.

Federal funds have been requested to assist in financing the new school, and Dr. Kline was optimistic that they would be received.

The federal government has allotted $100,000 to the state of Nebraska, he said, and Ord is the only community to request a portion of it. Fremont made a bid for the entire amount, he said, but that community's application was submitted after the filing deadline had passed.

For the past three years Nebraska has forfeited its allotted money to other states, Dr. Kline added.

The Ord request is for $21,200, which with the local funds would provide a $42,400 building.

Ord's Junior Chamber of Commerce has donated $1,065 to the project, and a number of individuals have made pledges of varying amounts ranging up to $1,000. The Educational Service Unit has also contributed $8,000 from its budget this year and has pledged another $8,000 from next year's budget.

Mrs. Edith Fiala of Ord has donated a building site for the new edifice.

Contributions to the building fund may be made in any amount, Dr. Kline said, and may be left at the Farmers and Merchants Bank in Constock or at the office of Dr. Glen Auble in Ord. Mrs. Jewell Buoy, county superintendent, is also accepting donations.

Ord Accountant Takes New Post In Ravenna Bank

Ord's public accountant since 1959, Norman Schmidt, announced yesterday that he will move to Ravenna where he has accepted a position as vice-president of the Ravenna Bank.

Mr. Schmidt, 37, came to Ord from Garnd Island with Ward's Accounting Service and later opened his own office. He has served as an accountant for many individuals, businesses and institutions, including the City of Ord and the Ord School District. For the past year he has also served as manager of the Ord municipal airport.

Tentative plans are to continue to operate the local office with its present personnel until he either sells it or brings in another accountant to operate it. Mr. Schmidt will assume his new position July 1. He said he will move his family to Ravenna as soon as he locates suitable housing.

He and his wife have three children, Steve, 10; Scott, 7; and Sheryl, 6.

Search Underway For Superintendent

The Ord Board of Education is accepting applications this week and hopes to have his successor named the last week in June, Supt. Roger Clough said Tuesday.

Mr. Clough has resigned to accept the superintendent's job at York. He said he expects the new man to be named before July 1, when the resignation becomes effective.

The Board of Education has also issued an invitation to bid on the new music building to Simpson Structural Co., Inc., of Norfolk.

Plans for the structure were approved at last week's Board of Education meeting.

Ord High School Student Injured In Saturday Automobile Accident

An Ord High School junior received broken bones in both legs and a double fracture of the left wrist in a Saturday automobile crash five miles south of Ord.

Dennis Philbrick, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Philbrick, walked away from the crash despite his injuries and was picked up by a friend who took him to the hospital in Loup City. He was detained overnight there but is now at home.

The accident occurred on the Constock road, one mile west of Ord.

the Brece schoolhouse.

Philbrick said the rear end of his newly remodeled automobile started bouncing on the gravel road, causing him to lose control. He said he had taken the normal shocks off and replaced them with special coils to raise the rear end. That, plus a lack of weight in that section, caused the accident, he thought.

He said that when he saw he was going to crash, he leaned over and grabbed the bottom of the car seat with his right hand and the steering wheel with his left. That probably saved his life, since he was not wearing seat belts, although it did cause the broken wrist.

"When the car stopped rolling, I was halfway out the left door," he remarked. "If it had gone over one more time, I probably wouldn't be here."

Philbrick said he was traveling about 50 miles an hour at the time. Both leg fractures were in the small bones.

Lukesh Receives $600 NU Award

Jim Lukesh, a member of the 1968 graduating class of Ord High School is the recipient of a University of Nebraska scholarship valued at $600. This award is given a student who did outstanding work and plans to go into the field of teaching.

Earlier he was awarded the Ronald Eabcock Memorial Scholarship valued at $100. Jim was chosen by the Ord High School faculty for this honor.

He will attend the University at Lincoln where he plans to major in history and science. Jim is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Lukesh of Ord.

Money Seen as Root Cause of Problems in Today's Society

"What's happening to the country?" That was the question heard over and over again last week following the tragic death of Senator Robert F. Kennedy.

At least one local leader, County Judge Rollin Dye, saw the Kennedy killing as part of an overall pattern of declining morals and respect for others which has permeated right down through Valley County.

"Our morals and respects are very much down," Judge Dye said Friday. "I see it so much, especially among the younger generation. Many of them have no respect for elderly persons, for their parents, or for property — especially property."

cause he knew it cost money and he wouldn't get another one. But now he thinks nothing of tearing it up because he knows he'll just get another one."

Young people past the bicycle stage also drew criticism from Judge Dye. "Lots of them think nothing of being so deeply in debt they can't borrow another dime," he said.

"It used to be that people worried when they got a traffic ticket, too, because of the money it would cost them. Now they don't worry about the money; they're concerned only with their points. And you wouldn't believe the lies people will tell just to keep from getting too many points."

The judge told of a recent case where a young man had been cited for speeding. He made a special trip to the judge's home to beg for leniency because "this was his first offense." The next day Judge Dye contacted state officials to check the young man's record and found that he had been arrested three times in six weeks for speeding.

"Self-respect has gone," the judge said, "and along with it cleanliness and neatness."

Inadequate home supervision is one by-product of our concern with money, Judge Dye said. "Mothers are working to get even more money for their families, and consequently they can't provide the needed supervision in some cases," he remarked.

"In other cases people don't even bother to work, because they know our welfare system is going to take care of them anyhow."

Lack of morality is not only a problem for cities like New York, Chicago, Los Angeles and Detroit, the judge said, but it's also a problem for communities like Ord.

Karl MacKinnon, administrator at Valley County Hospital, said he did not feel this was a particular problem based on his records. He said he knew of only three illegitimate births over the past three years, and two of the mothers were out of county residents. However, he pointed out that he could speak only for his institution and not for the county as a whole. Furthermore, it was possible that some local girls might have gone out of town to have babies.

There's less respect for human life, even in this part of the country, Judge Dye added. Again he cited an example, this time in Broken Bow.

"A group of kids jumped on an old man there recently and beat him up, apparently for no reason at all," he said. "They jump, and then they think instead of thinking first."

Television has contributed to this violent streak in our society, (Continued on Page 8)

Drouth Assistance Asked for County

A request to designate Valley County a drouth disaster area has been forwarded to Gov. Noyes by the county's Drouth Disaster Committee.

The decision was made at a meeting held Tuesday in the offices of the Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service. Representatives of local banks as well as federal, state and county agencies were present.

"Individual farmers will not make any money as a result of this move," Lloyd Zikmund of the ASCS office said. "But it will help them minimize their losses."

Committee members pointed out that the county has received only 5.85 inches of moisture this year, compared to 8.17 a year ago. In addition to the shortage of rainfall, a lack of snow the past winter and abnormal temperatures this spring have helped bring on the drouth conditions.

County Agent John Schade said all growing crops have been affected by the drouth. Areas which have been overgrazed in the past have been especially hard hit, Allen Masters of the Arcadia State Bank pointed out. He said that included 50 percent of the county's pasture lands.

The committee hopes for action by Governor Noyes within a couple of days.

If he does designate the county

a disaster area, major benefits would include:

• Moving the free grazing date from Sept. 1 to Aug. 1 on designated diverted acres involved in the 1968 feed grain program. This means that up to 50 percent of the county's non-productive acres could be turned over to grazing a month ahead of schedule.

• Grazing and harvesting be allowed on acres designated as part of the Conservation Research and Cropland Adjustment Programs. These are long-term projects, and this action means that lands formerly barred completely from grazing may now be turned over to cattle.

• Emergency loans be granted through the Federal Farm Home Administration for maintaining livestock herds. FHA Administrator Sam Galley said these loans would be at a three percent interest rate if the farmers are refused loans elsewhere.

• Livestock feed programs be made available this fall and/or winter. This means that grains now stored by the federal government would be sold to farmers at a specified price for use in feeding cattle.

This is the first time since the 1955-56 period that a disaster designation request has been made. Mr. Zikmund said it had been discussed in other years, but action had not been taken.

"Farmers are already in the process of selling some cows," he said.

Some grains and hays are being cut now also well ahead of normal, because they are needed as feed, Mr. Schade disclosed. He said others are burning in the fields.

"The situation is serious, and it could get disastrous," Committee Chairman Everett Lech remarked.

Those attending the meeting and participating in the unanimous vote were Robert Timmerman, vice-chairman of the Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service committee;

Gary Krikke, also an ASCS committee member; Al Dunbar, of the Soil Conservation Service; Clark Weckbach, president of the First National Bank in Ord; and Messrs. Galley, Lech, Masters, Schade, and Zikmund.

New Leadership a Must, Martin Tells Republicans

"If we don't get some new leadership in Washington, we will never see our country back the way it was and the way it should be passed on to our children," Congressman Dave Martin told a group of approximately 50 persons attending Saturday's Valley County Republican Convention.

"We Republicans don't claim to have all the answers," he told the county delegates and other interested citizens. "But sometimes when you get some new leadership they can see things in a different light and come up with answers the old leaders would never have thought of."

Personal properties of individuals, which last year were combined with personal properties of businesses to total about $750,000 in assessed valuation, have been deleted from this year's tax schedule. However, Mr. Schmidt said the $25,000 in sales tax revenue would more than make up for the loss in personal property taxes.

The three other tax sources — railroads, franchises and special — are minor and accounted for less than $150,000 in assessed value last year.

The one big increase in the budget is in the Road Fund, where last year's figure of $13,000 has risen to $27,000 this year. Mr. Schmidt said this was because the city was having to plan for two summers. Since most road work is done during the summer when weather conditions are favorable, the bulk of the Road Department's money is spent during that season. This budget covers not only the summer months of calendar year 1968, but most of the summer months of 1969 as well, the city auditor pointed out.

Other funds and the amounts requested are: General, $23,750, down $5,250 from last year (however, the entire $25,000 in sales tax revenues will be placed in this fund); Park, $6,500, up $500; Street Lighting, $6,000, the same as last year; Fire Department, $5,000, up $2,000; Cemetery, $3,000, down $1,000; and Water, $500, the same as last year.

"We need to win 31 seats away from Democrats, provided all of our incumbent Republicans win again," he said. "And while that may sound like a big order, remember that we won 47 seats away from the Democrats just two years ago."

His party needs to regain control of the House so it can get the chairmanship of the committees, he said.

"Right now we can't conduct any investigations because we don't have the chairmanship of the committees. We could uncover some real scandals in the operation of our federal government if we could get some investigative authority," he said.

Mr. Martin will be up for reelection himself this fall, opposed by Democrat J. B. Dean who was unopposed in the recent primary. The incumbent congressman defeated two younger challengers to gain the Republican nomination.

The 3rd District representative listed four areas that require immediate attention: Vietnam, the farm program, the money crisis, and crime.

"Situation Is Serious" "People out here in Nebraska just don't understand the seriousness of the situation," Mr. Martin said in speaking of the crime

Valley County GOP Backs Bi-Partisan Unicameral Body

Valley County Republicans passed a resolution advocating a bi-partisan unicameral legislature for the state at their convention Saturday night.

"We feel like we'll be able to understand a candidate's position better if he is affiliated with a party," Gwen Cochran said Tuesday.

The county delegates also established a resolutions committee to formulate ideas they want incorporated in the party's state platform. "We also hope to influence delegates to the national convention," Mrs. Cochran said.

Dr. Otis Miller of Ord is chairman of the new committee. Other members are Max Staab of Arcadia, Joe Kruml of Elria, Ron Goodrich of North Loup, and Bob Anderson, Heloise Bresley, George Clement, Dr. Dale Karre and Carson Rogers, all of Ord.

Orel Koelling was re-elected county chairman, and Irma Leggett was re-elected vice-chairman. Merrill Mason is the new treasurer, and Mrs. Robert Lucke the new secretary. All are from Ord.

Dr. Miller and Mrs. Bresley will represent the county at the state convention, with Mr. Koelling and Mrs. Cochran the alternates.

Democrats Name State Delegates

Frances McCall of Ord and Paul Owens of Arcadia have been selected by Valley County Democrats to represent them at Saturday's state convention in Hastings.

The selections were made at the recent county convention. E. J. Lange of Ord, county chairman, and Carol Lutz of Arcadia, treasurer, were named alternates.

Other officers are Rae Jean Treptow, vice-chairman, and Marvin Scheideler, secretary.

A few of the estimated 1,700 persons who attended last weekend's Farm and Home Show examine the wares of local merchants.

Turnout Light For Home Show; Drouth Blamed

The turnout was disappointingly small, but Ord's Farm and Home Show Friday and Saturday was declared a success anyhow by its director, Don Walker.

"Under the circumstances I consider it successful," Mr. Walker said yesterday. "With the dry weather people just don't know whether they're going to have any money this year or not. So they're not in a mood to look at merchandise and things for sale."

Friday's crowd was a good one, Walker felt. He estimated it at 1,000. But he felt Saturday's turnout dropped off to about 700.

"We're going to have a meeting of the participants Friday morning and discuss how we can improve it next year," he said. "We felt we had just as good a program this year as last, but the weatherman didn't cooperate."

Mr. Walker said there were more applications by merchants (Continued on page 5)

Three Residents of Loup Valley Receive Medical Degrees From State University

Three young people from this area received degrees recently at commencement exercises for the University of Nebraska's College of Medicine and School of Nursing. Bruce Pearson of Ord and Max Elvin Brennenman of Burwell received Doctor of Medicine degrees, while Mary Jane Hermsmeider Savage of Scotia received a Bachelor of Science in Nursing.

Pearson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hilding Pearson. He is a 1960 graduate of Ord High School and received his Bachelor of Science in Medicine in 1964. He will intern at Presbyterian General Hospital in Denver.

A total of 175 degrees were presented at the ceremonies and the graduates were honored with a reception following the exercises. Ninety-four students received MD degrees, 31 BS's in Medicine, 33 BS's in Nursing, and 17 BS's in Medical Technology.

Also receiving an MD degree was Bill Wilcox of Grand Island, a nephew of Mrs. Irma Leggett of Ord.

Valley Craft Club Accumulates Money For Betterment With Fashion Show

By Hannah Sheldon

The Valley Craft Club staged a fashion show Tuesday evening at the North Loup community building as a benefit to raise money for their community betterment project.

The stage and runway were decorated with spring flowers. Vera's Style Shoppe presented the show using models Colleen Keown, Darlene King, Marilyn Hachel, Maris Cox, Lori North, Nancy Vogeler, Karen Keenan, Leona Knapp, Dorothy Cook, Delores Burson, Reatha Budge, Norma Albrecht, Marjorie Spencer, Frances Van Horn, Marjorie Goodrich and Theresa Benben. Bonnie Keown was the narrator. Following the show door prizes were given. Lunch consisted of cupcakes and sandwiches served by the club.

Ku Mingle Club

Ku Mingle Club started its betterment project Tuesday morning when the members set out to paint rural mail boxes on the outskirts of North Loup. With permission of the postman, a good share of the mailboxes in the local vicinity were painted.

Fortnightly Club

Carol's Corner

by Carol Leggett

One of the best known and loved young misses in America, a famous salt company's little girl with her umbrella, has received her fifth change of fashion.

In her facelift since 1956, she wears her hair short. Gone are the pigtail, baby-sock and white umbrella now is lavender and white. The salt package she identifies has been modernized, too.

The young miss has been marching through the rain and into the hearts of millions for more than half a century. She and her slogan first appeared on the package in 1914.

Unlike Little Orphan Annie, the ageless umbrella girl has had a new wardrobe and hair style from time to time to keep her fashionable. The first change came in the 20s. In the 30s she appeared in "Shirley Temple" curls, so popular then. Pig-tails first were seen in the 40s and in the 50s she took on her jaunty look that lasted until this year.

The 1968 change reflects the modern appearance of America's 8-year-old "girl next door." Have you noticed her?

For a truly delicious dessert, try this recipe from Mrs. Merle VanZandt.

Melt 30 marshmallows in 1 c. milk. When dissolved, set aside to cool. Drain the juice from can of black raspberries, heat and thicken with 2 1/2 c. corn starch dissolved in 1/3 cup water. Remove and add berries and set aside to cool.

When mixtures have cooled, whip 1 c. cream or 1 large package Dream Whip. Add cooled marshmallow mixture. Have 8x12 glass dish with whole or crushed graham crackers covering bottom of dish, add half of marshmallow mixture, then spread thickened black raspberries and then remainder of marshmallow mixture. Top with crushed graham crackers. Chill.

VARIATION: For a quicker dessert add 1 c. coconut to marshmallow and whip cream mixture. Use graham crackers for bottom and top.

A Friend Is A Person — who will help in the hour of sickness; who will lend you a dollar without deducting the interest; who will help you up hill when you are sliding down; who will defend you in the hour when others speak evil of you; who will believe in your innocence until you admit your guilt; who will say behind your back what he says to your face; who will shake hands with you wherever he meets you, even though you wear patches; and who will do all these things without expecting any return.

Use Annual Forage Crops To Supplement Short Pastures Because of the extremely dry weather and the late spring, the native grass pastures, as well as some of the alfalfa, may not produce up to their potential this year. The possibility of planting an annual forage crop may be considered to take up some of the slack in grazing and provide some additional winter forage. Annual forage crops produce their greatest yield in July and August, when native pastures, as well as alfalfa, clovers and other legumes, are often at a low production stage because of limited moisture and summer heat. With good management practices the hybrid sudangrass, or sorghum x sudangrass, can be useful in supplying excellent forage during the dry months of July and August. If the crop is fertilized with nitrogen and phosphorus, you can expect excellent yields of green chop or pasture for livestock from about July 10 until frost. The sorghum x sudangrass crosses will usually outyield the conventional varieties of sudangrass. Hybrid sudangrasses should be planted in a firm, clean seedbed at the rate of 20 pounds per acre from about the 10th to the 15th of June. Irrigate Soil or Crop An irrigator can use good seedbed preparation, adequate fertilizer, good seed, insecticides, and common sense and know how, but if water isn't present when a crop needs it, he will have a meager harvest. Put irrigation water where the crop can use it — in the root zone. Excess irrigation wastes water, and water below the root zone is of no value to the plant. Most crops obtain 70 percent or more of their total water from the top three feet of soil. Corn will usually need water about 45 days after planting (near lay-by time). It is suggested that you keep a close watch on soil moisture at this time and irrigate before the crop shows signs of moisture deficiencies. The critical moisture period for corn is from pre-tassel to the early dent stage. On the first irrigation the top 19-20 inches of the soil should be filled to capacity. On successive irrigations care should be taken to fill the top three feet to field capacity. If the soil is well filled with water at the early dent stage, little if any advantage will come from later applications except on sandy soils. Mrs. Harold Garnick took Paula Waldmann, Nancy Jo Kirclick and Brad Garnick to Lincoln where the three are attending Cornhusker's Girls' and Boys' State this week. They will return home Saturday with the Paul Waldmanns. Pat Novotny is spending this week in Lincoln as a counselor at Cornhusker's Girls' State. Her parents, the Eugene Novotnys of Comstock took her to Lincoln, Friday. Bladder Galls on Maple The past several weeks we have had a number of people in the office with the problem of bladder galls on maple trees. These galls are red bumps or purple-like protrusions on the upper side of the leaves. Infected leaves tend to curl. Each of these tiny protrusions contains a microscopic insect. There is no treatment for infected trees when the galls are in this stage. The insects will emerge as adults within 15 to 20 days after the galls appear. We recommend spraying at this time with Malathion — three teaspoons full in one gallon of water. The galls can also be controlled by a dormant spraying with lime-sulfur.

European Elm Scale on Elms Several infestations of European elm scale on elm trees have been reported in the Ord area. The elm scale, like the bladder galls on maple trees, is the home of an insect or its eggs. Trees which are infected with elm scale should be sprayed with an insecticide when the eggs begin to hatch, usually early July. Spraying should be repeated in about 10 days. Insecticides of choice are: Seven, 50 percent wettable powder; DDT, 50 percent wettable powder; Diazinon, 25 percent emulsifiable concentrate, or Malathion, 57 percent emulsifiable concentrate. All the above insecticides are mixed at the rate of two level tablespoons to one gallon of water.

Chaffin Field Day According to Dean Robinson, county extension agent, Garfield District, plans are now completed for the Chaffin Field Day. The event will be held at the Chaffin Hereford Ranch 20 miles north and eight miles east of Burwell next Tuesday, starting at 9 a.m. The event is open to both 4-H and FFA members. Contestants may judge on both a 4-H and FFA team; however, contestants cannot be on more than one 4-H and one FFA team. Special ribbons and traveling trophies will be awarded in all divisions. As usual, Chaffins will provide the lunch so the contestants are asked to come prepared to work, eat, and enjoy themselves.

Discover Nebraska: This Week, The Loup Valley

(Editor's Note: Again this year the Nebraska Petroleum Council is publishing a series of vacation articles, showing Nebraskans just what is available to see in their home state. The Loup Valley drew top billing this year, with the following article by Mrs. Glen Auble of Ord the first of the series. It was released to all newspapers in the state.) By Mrs. Glen Auble

Driving north on Highway 11 just west of St. Paul, on a high hill southeast of Elyria, you will see a large sign, which reads, "You are now entering the beautiful North Loup Valley." The drive ahead of you is one of the prettiest in central Nebraska. The wide North Loup river flows steadily between hills and the fertile valley. It is known to have the most constant flow of any river in the world.

Between Cotesfield and Scotia are the Chalk Hills and the old chalk mine. It has been years since the mine was worked and carloads of the material shipped out on the Union Pacific, but several buildings still stand in Scotia made of the chalk blocks. Last summer the mine was put in shape for visitors to tour the many tunnels, and it is a fascinating cave. It is under "Happy Jack Hill," named after a trapper who lived in that area, and the steps and trail to the top lead to a fine view of the river and valley below.

North Loup is the home of the famed "Pop Corn Days" homecoming in September, and free hot buttered popcorn is given to everyone. North Loup held the title "Popcorn Center of the World" for many years. A good place to stop next is at Ord, called the "Hub of the North Loup Valley." It is a busy county seat city of 2,500 persons noted for its recreation facilities. The sports, grass greens, golf course, swimming pool, athletic field and picnic grounds are all in one area, and close to the airport. There is good pheasant hunting.

Six miles further on Highway 11 we come to the village of Elyria and read the historical marker telling of old Fort Hart, suff four miles northwest. The fort was established in 1874 as protection to the settlers from the Sioux and Pawnee Indians, and most of the buildings are still standing. The fort was abandoned in 1832 and is now being restored as a state historical park. Don't miss seeing this important part of old Nebraska. There is a scenic route from the fort, between pine and cedar trees and the river, heading right to Nebraska's Big Rodeo at Burwell — if you're travelling in August. Four whole days with real cowboys, Indians, bands and carnival. Truly genuine western entertainment for the whole family.

By now you probably are looking for a quiet restful place. Lake Erickson, on Highway 91, straight east of Burwell, has cabins, summer houses and trees surrounding the lake where the boats cruise slowly and the fishing is good. Or if you need a huge lake for water skiing, we have that too. Just take Highway 70 through the sandhills back to Ord and on south. Near the junction with Highway 22 there is a marker near where the Minnie Freeman school stood, telling of the heroic saving of her school children during the blizzard of 1888. A little further on you pass a very pretty knoll known locally as "Pikes Peak," and a large round barn on the way to Sherman Lake. Happy boating, and come again!

Dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Gonnerman and Kenneth Wilton Wheeler at their home Saturday evening were Mr. and Mrs. Jim Goff and David and Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Goff, all of Burwell. Koelling attended the wedding of Gary Gonnerman and Sheryl Gilbert Saturday evening in Bellevue. The ceremony took place in the Baptist Church.

Two Area Students Will Be Participants At Leadership Camp

Gene Wray of Scotia and Danny Thompson of North Loup have been selected to attend a youth leadership camp at William Jewell College in Liberty, Mo., later this month. Farmers Elevator Co. of Ord is sponsoring Wray's trip, and Farmland Industries Inc. of Kansas City, Mo. is paying Thompson's expenses. The two Loup Valley youths were among six University of Nebraska students selected to attend the session. All are former 4-H Club members.

The students will participate in various activities designed to develop their leadership potential. The agenda will include guest speakers, group discussions, a tour of Farmland Industries, and recreational activities. Mrs. Dorothea Holstein, associate state 4-H leader and club advisor, said Thompson has taken the lead in the University 4-H Club's food concession at the Nebraska State Fair. The concession supports the club's annual pledge of $750 to send an International Farm Youth Exchange delegate from Nebraska abroad each year, so that he might promote better world understanding.

NOTICE The Auble Lake is now ready to use and we are willing that it be used and enjoyed. You do not need a permit to explore and use the grounds, but children MUST have a permit from their parents to go in or on the water. Even though the water is only about three feet deep it is necessary according to State Law that they wear life jackets in a boat. The following form is sufficient to fill in and mail or give to — Glen Auble Our children have our permission to use the Auble Lake and comply with the State Laws and fair play. Signed _____

Pelska Will Serve On FHA Committee For This Locale

Eugene Pelska of North Loup has been appointed to a committee of the Farmers Home Administration serving Valley and Garfield counties. The three-man committee works with the agency's county supervisor to see that the best possible use is made of the organization's farm credit service consistent with needs of local farmers. Other members of the committee are Clarence Larsen of Erickson and Leonard Kamrad of Comstock.

The committee determines the eligibility of individual applicants for all types of loans. It also reviews the progress of borrowers and aids the county supervisor in adapting the agency's policies to conditions faced by farmers in this area. Members are selected and appointed so that, as far as possible, different areas or neighborhoods are represented.

Each committee member is appointed for a three-year term. Mr. Pelska will succeed Eldon Sintek of North Loup whose three-year term expires July 1, 1968.

Future Trade Shows

Trade shows scheduled at the Los Angeles Japan Trade Center showrooms for the year include home electronic appliances, hardware, cameras, and bicycles.

Safety Sessions Set June 24-26 For Farm Youth

To permit boys and girls under 16 years of age to work on farms and ranches and still be cleared of regulations imposed by the Hazardous Occupations Law which became effective Jan. 1, a workshop is scheduled June 24-26 at the Vocational Agriculture Room of Ord High School.

The workshop will consist of three eight-hour sessions covering tractor operation, maintenance and safety. It is open to residents of Valley, Greeley, Garfield, Loup, Wheeler, Custer and Sherman counties.

Instruction will be given on all phases of safe tractor operation, as well as the safe operation of a number of power-driven farm machinery items. Boys and girls interested in this workshop may call or write John Schade, Valley County Extension Agent, Ord, Neb. Registration should be in the office no later than June 21.

Many Change Locations During Recent Weeks

Several Ord families have changed locations during the past two weeks. The Glen Klineks are getting settled in their new home in the Westridge addition. Other Westridge newcomers are Gerald Decker and family.

Dwight Moody has moved into the Paddock apartment house; Ann Parkos calls the Wozab apartment her home and Russell Dockhorn is living where Ray Brock was.

The Phil Quinns have moved into the Virgil Bennett house which they purchased; the Bennetts are in their new home—the former Don Edwards property, and Jim Pishna has rented the house vacated by the Quinns.

He remarked that he had read where 95 percent of the juveniles arrested in a certain large city had first seen their crime committed on television.

What's the answer to the problem? Like everyone else, Judge Dye has no concrete answers.

"The whole situation is so mixed up I'm scared," he added.

Word was received Sunday of the death of Fred E. Wigent of Alhambra, Mo.

Funeral services will be held Thursday (today) at 2 p.m. in the Methodist Church at Chadron with interment at Crawford.

Higher up, Judge Dye feels a change of attitude in Supreme Court justices and government officials is essential.

One very concrete proposal the judge has is a change in of Nursing in Grand Island. Misses Hickman and Klanecky have spent the past two semesters in Darheem College of Omaha, and will now receive additional study and clinical experience in St. Francis Hospital School of Nursing, Grand Island.

"A unanimous decision would be preferable," he said, "but even a 7-2 would be an improvement. We require that individual justices come to a unanimous agreement, and yet we let matters that will affect every person in the country be decided by a 5-4 vote. And there are a lot of ticklish questions that have been decided by a 5-4 count," he concluded.

Martin Says

doors unlocked, but in Washington we have locks on the doors and bolts both at the top and the bottom.

"I don't want to alarm anyone unduly," he continued, "but in this nation we're taking the first steps toward anarchy. We're going to save this country from the abyss it is approaching. We must have a change of national leadership this year."

The eight-term representative of western Nebraska blasted the present leadership for not taking decisive action in last April's Washington riots when it saw trouble brewing.

Federal troops were alerted and standing by at Fort Meade and Fort Meyer three hours before the first fire bomb was thrown, he said. Yet it was not 24 hours before they were finally pressed into action.

At the same time Washington city officials were mulling over also, Congressman Martin asserted. They had only 400 men from a total force of 3,000 on duty when the trouble started, he claimed even though there was clearly a mood of trouble in the city. By the time things really got rough, only 2,000 policemen could be found, he said.

Poor People's March Concerning the Poor People's March, Congressman Martin said the demands of its leaders were unreasonable and he would vote against extension of their permit to camp on federal property.

"They demand a guarantee of annual income of $3,000, a new educational program channeled only into minority groups, and jobs for all," he commented. "But I don't think they want jobs at all. Newspapers all over the country have help-wanted ads; there are plenty of jobs available."

He cited an instance when a truckload of food donated to the marchers was delivered to Resurrection City ("our Insurrection City as we call it"). The driver was also told there were about 400 disabled men sitting around doing nothing.

They wouldn't help unload that food, though," Mr. Martin said. "The driver had to call back to the company for someone to help him."

Sanitation Terrible Living conditions are squalid in the temporary community, he said, with no sewer facilities and only 12 showers — just two of which work. "Health authorities in Washington are quite concerned," he said.

Mr. Martin remarked that he and his colleagues cannot go near the place to inspect it because the marchers have guards to keep away people they don't want around.

He also told of a recent incident in which they ran up a $295 bill in the Department of Agriculture cafeteria and refused to pay it.

"As they were going through the line," he said, "their leaders told the cashiers to make one total check. The cashiers obliged, but when the bill was presented at the conclusion of the meal they refused to pay it. They said they've been getting short-changed on food for years, and that $295 would be the first installment in getting back what the government owes them."

Since campers ordinarily are not allowed on federal park grounds except in specific areas approved for such use, a special permit had to be obtained from Secretary of the Interior Stewart Udall before they could move in.

That permit expires Sunday, and legislative approval will be required to extend it. Mr. Martin said he will vote against it, and he thinks a majority of his colleagues will also.

"But the 'poor people' have indicated they will stay regardless of whether it's approved or not," he said.

Anti-Crime Bill The present anti-crime bill before the Congress is a good one, he feels, and President Johnson will be making a mistake if he vetoes it simply because of the gun-control section.

"The firearms section is really very minor," Congressman Martin stated. "The most important part of the bill is Section 2, which countermands some recent Supreme Court decisions that handicap law enforcement authorities."

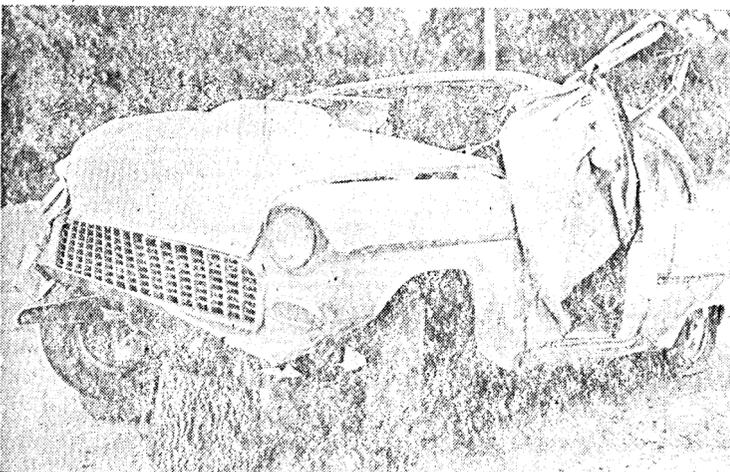

Of special importance to Nebraskans is a portion of the bill which provides block grants for training of local law enforcement officials.

"Quite often our small communities in Nebraska must hire officials who have little or no training," he said. "This bill would correct that."

Money Crisis Congressman Martin also advocated passage of the pending tax bill to help solve the present money crisis. "It's the only responsible course of action we can take," he said.

"The only alternative is devaluation of the dollar in the near future, and that will bring economic chaos to practically the entire world," he said.

He criticized in particular the Johnson administration's spending program, pointing out that it had resulted in the most rapid increase in domestic spending in the history of the nation. Obviously, he felt much of it was unjustified.

As an example he mentioned a $10 million request for the administration presented for fire research. "We already had nine separate governmental departments dealing with that, in addition to manufacturers and underwriters in the private sector of our economy," he explained.

More Waste Another example was a request for $135 million to go to the Arts and Humanities Council.

"After I voted against the bill I received a letter from a gentleman at Nebraska Wesleyan University," Mr. Martin related. "He requested that I reconsider my negative vote because he was to receive an individual grant of $1,200 to study the musical heritage of the Russian-German people in Nebraska."

"I'm sure a few people would be interested in his findings," the congressman continued, "but I don't think we need to spend tax money for something like that."

He also said the Arts and Humanities Council had one time poured between $25,000 and $30,000 into a Broadway play that was about to fold, buying up tickets so it would be able to continue even though it was not good enough to warrant public support.

Farm Program Switching to the farm situation, Mr. Martin said he has helped defeat or change several pieces of what he considers poor legislation.

These include a proposal by Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman to make the present farm policy a permanent one, or failing that, to extend it one year through 1970. The legislation failed when a 7-7 tie in the Rules Committee, of which Mr. Martin is a member, kept it from being presented on the floor of the House.

His reasoning was that we're going to get a new President and a new secretary of agriculture in a few months, and we should give them an opportunity to come up with their own farm program," he said.

Another piece of poor legislation in Mr. Martin's opinion was that bringing agriculture under the Fair Labor Standards Act for the first time. The act forbids young people under 16 from performing hazardous duties, and it leaves it up to Secretary of Labor Willard Wirtz to decide what's hazardous and what's not.

One of the things he decided was hazardous was driving a tractor. Mr. Martin said that partially through his efforts the law has now been amended so that 14- and 15-year-olds can drive a tractor on their family farm, or family corporation farm, if they have taken a 411 safety course.

Vietnam Mr. Martin did not discuss the Vietnam situation in his talk, but in answer to a question he said that if peace talks fail we should turn the war over to our military experts as he has advocated all along.

"We should begin all out bombing of strategic military targets and take whatever steps necessary to close Haiphong Harbor," he said.

Fifty officers in the Ord High School chapter of the Future Farmers of America attended a leadership camp recently in Curtis.

Accompanying the boys was Frank Andreesca, their sponsor. Those attending were Barry Martin, Gary Brubaker, Ron Hosen, Mike Kriskac and Dan Radt. The chapter president, Gary Bogus, was unable to make the trip.

Sessions for each type of FFA officer were conducted, and the boys participated in contests which required them to contact meetings. They were judged on their abilities, especially in conduct of the opening and closing ceremonies.

A "flashlight relay" and singing contests were other highlights of the two-day affair.

Twenty-Five Years Late

By Vern Scofield
Nebraska Press Assn.

Americans, both men and women, are more than disturbed — shocked, shall I say? — at the lawlessness, the thefts, the rapes, the killings in our Great Country.

I think it all started — to the degree we now know it — about 25 years ago. That takes us back to World War II.

Why then?

We adults — the old folks past 35 — found out that if we were enlisted men we could "get by" with things. If we were junior officers we could "get by" with the big boss. We are now parents, most of us. Too many of us tend to blame the young people — the 12-year-old who gets a $15-a-month allowance for doing nothing, or defies his parents when they want his hair cut decently . . . the "hippies" . . . the 28-year-olds who feel they would rather be on "relief" than to accept a job that pays less than $15,000 a year. Don't blame them. Blame the parents, and, yes, even the grandparents. We taught them these things.

Most — and I hope I am not talking about the majority of Americans — have forgotten the word "no". It's easier to hand a youngster $2 to go to a movie than to argue about it.

So then money has to be one of the things wrong. And money started getting "easy" during World War II.

And now money is getting even easier to get — one way or another — for the average person.

Time was when you had to work — and work hard — for a buck. No more. There are even four-day weeks for certain people. And I've even read that the three-day work week is not far away.

So I say it all started 25 years ago, and "it" has grown in "popularity".

With "it" has grown lawlessness and disobedience of authority. Just how proud do you think you'd be if you were a policeman and could give very little information on a crime to a reporter — or any American — for fear of losing your job? Thanks to ABC's recent Reardon Report, that's just what's happening.

The recent tragedy in Los Angeles, you might say, was the result of one "nut". But those "nuts" are all over the country. I hope and pray that this "first 25 years" is not the start of a pattern for our country that will end up as it did for another great and powerful country — the Roman Empire. I have fears and concerns we're heading that way.

The Public Has a Right to Know

From the Waushara Argus, Waufoma, Wisconsin

The American Bar Assn. has worked out a set of guidelines on release of information about persons accused of committing crimes.

The code has a resemblance to the army's regulation for prisoners of war . . . give only name, rank and serial number. The press, radio and television have been blamed for releasing the name of the man wanted by the FBI for murdering Martin Luther King Jr. Bar association members claim he may not receive a fair trial.

Overlooked in this argument, however, is the public's right to know what has happened . . . and the right to evaluate this information. Only by providing complete information on events of importance can a democratic form of government be responsive to the will of the people.

The bar association's logic follows that of a police chief in a Montana community who felt only he was qualified to release information to the public. A prowler had attacked a teenage girl in her bedroom but fled when her screams aroused other residents of the home. The girl was not injured but was badly frightened.

The girl's father notified the police chief who "sat" on the information while he posted policemen in the neighborhood to catch the man the next time he attacked.

Meanwhile, no one in the city was aware that a potential killer was on the loose. A few days later another girl was attacked, this time while she walked on the sidewalk near her home.

When the whole story came out, the public all but tarred and feathered the police chief for allowing their daughters to be used as "bait" for the prowler. It had not occurred to the chief that by denying the public information of a crime he was subjecting the entire public to far worse crimes.

If the bar association sets itself up as judge and jury as to what information the public is to know, it too is using the public as "bait" in a misguided effort to capture and convict one criminal.

The problem lies within the bar itself and not in the amount of information given to the public. Certainly lawyers should be able to work out mechanics of a trial so that the rights of an accused are protected without reducing crime news to name, rank and serial number.

Something Different
Travelling Nebraska

As you know I am quite a nut about Nebraska, so it was definitely interesting to me lately to hear about the impressions of the state gained when a newly acquired member of the family did some sightseeing in Nebraska.

The young man was a native of Michigan, now living in Denver, and he wanted to learn about the home state of his bride. The family of this young man are veteran travellers, not satisfied with a superficial inspection of any region.

So from Denver the young couple went to Cheyenne, and he particularly wanted to inspect Fort Laramie and that famous old area of western history.

Coming over the Nebraska line they stopped at each of our storied landmarks, going to the top of Scotts Bluff, checking Chimney Rock (which I regret to note is eroding away) and seeing Mitchell Pass.

Swinging north they looked over Ogallala's Front Street, but missed the lively evening show. Next came North Platte and a stop at Scout's Rest which Cary thought worth their time. Of course the name Buffalo Bill is known nation-wide.

Coming east through the western part of the state the Michigan-lander was appalled at the flatness of the landscape. He couldn't believe anything could be so flat, and I'm not sure he thought the level look was beautiful. I do love to be able to look all the way to the horizon myself, and I consider the landscape around Alliance where I grew up to be really beautiful. I remember that when I first moved to Ord I felt a bit hemmed in among all these trees and rolling hills which I now like so much.

That open feeling is wonderful, I think.

Continuing east the young pair stopped at Minden, for he had heard of Mr. Warp and his fabulous collection of old things and bits of history. He considered them too old, too dusty: do you? Pioneer Village I'm talking about.

In Grand Island they took time to go through the new Stuhr Museum, the pride of this part of Nebraska.

Then the investigation lapsed into family visits, so further explorations must wait for a later date.

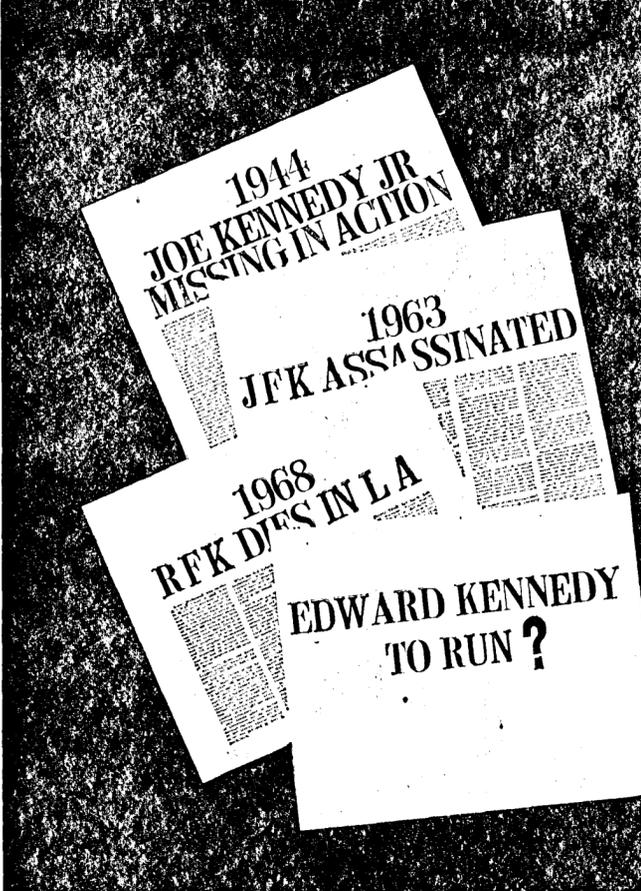

—Lma

There are many parts of Nebraska I've never seen, and I plan to remedy this, tour by tour. I've never seen the noted Devil's Falls. I've never been to Gavin's Point. Have you? Is your summer vacation planned?

The Chadron and Crawford corner of the state I recommend to everyone; it is so scenic with its pines and canyons. It also has a lot of history to tell, of Indians and raids your children will want to hear. There are fine camping places with noisy little streams. I remember one such stream in what was called Dead Horse Canyon where my father used to take us for a Sunday picnic.

Wandering a little you may visit the weirdly beautiful Toadstool Park. Or the well known Agate Fossil Beds where so much has been learned about the animals of thousands of years ago. Nebraska could be named Variety. With justification.

Senior Citizens Ain't Gone Yet, But They May Be on Their Way

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

Walt Smith, who ain't afraid of work and can lay down beside it and go to sleep, told the fellers at the country store Saturday night he is powerful worried about this new anti-discrimination age law that went into effect yesterday. He said it was bound to cause a heap of worry amongst us older fellers.

Walt said this new law don't allow old age to be an influence on hiring, firing or promoting a worker. He was of the opinion this new law comes under the heading of government over-protection. It seems the government, Walt allowed, has stuck "over" in front of everything since Franklin Roosevelt. We was over-spent, overtaxed, overproduced, overwelfare and overgrown and now we got a law that tries to make old fellers overworked.

Chet Swanek, who usually is up on such matters, told Walt the old - age worker law don't keep a feller on the job whether he wants to work or not. Chet explained the law was passed to keep workers from getting fired just on account of they was getting a little age on them. Chet don't hold much with the Great Society, but he said he don't have nothing agin this law. He told the fellers the worst thing he could think of was having to retire and be one of them senior citizens. It's good to get old, Chet allowed, when you consider if you ain't getting old you're in the cemetery, and this business of making a career out of being old don't appeal to him none.

Frank Blaha, who's a long wagon - greasing part 65, agreed the other day about this senior citizen party where they give prizes to the members fer things like the most recent surgery, the most number of natural teeth and the most grandchildren. Frank said it sounded to him like they was judging them senior citizens like they was cattle at the county fair.

It was James Ollis that spoke up defending the senior citizens, claimed they was the only anchor he had left in a world gone crazy. He told the fellers he had even saw where one of them big magazines was trying to get rid of old folks that was subscribers an account of they didn't buy no liquor or deodorants or cigarettos and was deadwood fer their advertisers.

Walt agreed with Jim, and come out strong fer the old folks and senior citizens. But Glen Auble was lamenting it looked like he was going to have to go when his parts wore out. He said he had saw where one heart transplant patient's hospital bill was $28,845, and there wasn't many folks that could afford new parts at that rate.

Personal, Mister Editor, I aim to take extra care of my parts and hope to be a senior citizen until we git peace on this earth of ours.

Yours truly,

Congressman DAVE MARTIN Reports

"Insurrection City"

Last week in our Rules Committee we had a hearing on legislation to prohibit the issuing of a permit to any group "for camping, sleeping, sitting-in, or other overnight occupancy, or for construction or erecting of temporary buildings" on any government-owned property in the District of Columbia.

The present permit to the Southern Christian Leadership Conference was for 30 days, and expires Sunday. It appears, as this is being written, that this group will extend their stay, regardless of whether a permit is issued.

The bill further establishes a Joint Congressional Committee on Citizen Grievances, where groups of people having grievances, and wishing to petition the Congress, can do so through this committee.

Conditions at "Insurrection City" are deplorable. Sanitary conditions are extremely bad, and could result in an epidemic. Members who have toured "Insurrection City" report that the stench is terrible, and that there are not proper facilities for bathing or handling food.

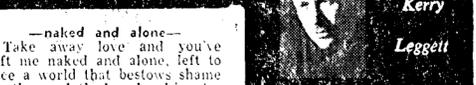

The permit to camp on national park property should never have been issued by Secretary Udall. The threats and demands by the leaders of the Poor People's March are beyond reason.

Federal Employees Who Engage in Riots

Last week in our Rules Committee we reported out a bill which would cause the immediate firing of any federal employee who engages in a riot. Furthermore, the person would not be eligible for employment by the federal government for a period of five years.

This legislation has been needed for a long time, and I hope that it becomes law in the near future.

KERRY ON

—naked and alone—
Take away love and you've left me naked and alone, left to face a world that bestows shame on the unclothed and subjugates the individual to a barren island.

The fruits of love — savoured over and over until nothing remains but the tasteless pulp and seed — those once were the sustenance of life and living. Having tasted the fruit — knowing the sweetness — no other food can again nourish the soul. They speak of the bread of life, but never the ingredient that makes that bread rise. Neither do they relegate the fruit of love to the vine upon which it grows.

First you planted the seed. So cunning were you that I had little realization of your intent. Overshadowing the tiny seed was the splendor and glory of your branches, leafy and restful to the tired traveler.

As I sat watching, resting beneath your boughs . . . escaping the hot sunlight that beat down with its torrid heat on unproductive ground . . . then, in my restive state of breathing the cool, fresh air . . . then you gave birth to the fertile heart beneath your branches.

The seed grew fast, sending shoots outward and upward. I entwined myself around your trunk and became rooted in the same soil that nourished your widening branches.

I was not alone. Searching for your roots . . . seeking the depth to which they sank . . . others sought the same contentious growth. Others sought your knowledge . . . your understanding. Others languished in the protective cover you so graciously provided all who could gather beneath.

As I grew, others died . . . losing the battle for nourishment by not becoming deeply rooted . . . soon withering and perishing. The fruit died on the vine, shaded from the light that was necessary for all growth.

Knowing I must seek not only depth with my roots, but light for my branches, I learned to love. And with love came understanding . . . the understanding that you really didn't mean to kill the growth beneath you.

Suddenly came the blossoms . . . then the fruition of the hard fought battle for survival. With fruition came love and knowledge and understanding. Then I knew!

As Paracelsus explained, "He who knows nothing, loves nothing. He who can do nothing understands nothing. He who understands nothing is worthless. But he who understands also loves, notices, sees . . ."

"The more knowledge is inherent in a thing, the greater the love . . . Anyone who imagines that all fruits ripen at the same time as the strawberries knows nothing about grapes."

But even the grape will wither and die on the vine . . . falling to the ground . . . naked and alone . . . when over-shadowed from even the faintest ray of light.

The torch is burning . . .

VOX POP
To the Mothers of American Servicemen:
Did we send our boys to Germany, France, the islands of the Pacific, Korea and Vietnam to have them come back to such a disgrace as we have made of America today?

Yes, be sure you protect the constitutional rights of those nuts with the high-powered rifles. Then let them cut loose on our asspools as they did in Texas, Tennessee and now in California. We'd better wake up before it's too late.

What has happened to Pope who killed three people and crippled the fourth? They protect and coddle these killers like they were made of glass.

Be sure and write to your congressmen and make it known that we, the women of America, will not stand for any more of this rot in our country. If we mothers don't do it, who's going to?

A mother of two Korean war Veterans,
Mrs. Ruth Ray

A Word of Thanks to the Chief of Staff

A dedicated but controversial soldier came home this week. After more than four years as commander of United States troops in Vietnam, Gen. William C. Westmoreland passed the reins of the most controversial war in U.S. history to Gen. Creighton Abrams.

Now it will be left to the historians to decide what kind of a commander General Westmoreland was.

Whether that decision be good or bad, all Americans owe the new chief of staff a warm word of thanks.

General Westmoreland was maligned from both the right and the left. On the one side he was criticized for following the Johnson "no win" policy, while on the other he was accused of ramrodding the military's escalation policy.

To give more than four years in the service of one's country under such conditions requires a great deal of courage.

Thank you, General Westmoreland.

When does a bunkhouse look like a smokehouse?

When it's not equipped with clean, modern gas heat.

If you don't have a modern gas heating system, your home can look like a smokehouse, too. Modern gas heat constantly filters and circulates clean, fresh air. Gets rid of smoke and odors right away. And gas heats better. Heats evenly and automatically.

Gas heat maintains the temperature you choose. Gives whole-house comfort. Now's the time to switch to gas heat. You'll save money two ways. Save money when you install it, thanks to Kansas-Nebraska's special low prices. Save money when you use it, thanks to low-cost, modern gas.

If America hired people for the job, it would take the largest sort of army to keep our country free of litter. But there's no need to hire anyone. It's a job we can do for ourselves. All of us. Every family that spreads a picnic lunch. Every boatman who cruises the lakes and waterways. Every motorist who uses our roads and highways.

Results of School Study Show Good, Bad Areas

The Ord School System is producing graduates who "succeed in college, are successful in subjects other than basic skills, maintain a low incidence of delinquency, and generally assume responsible positions in their communities wherever they go."

That is one of the findings contained in a 59-page report issued recently by the North Central Assn. of Colleges and Secondary Schools, and the Nebraska State Department of Education. The findings are based on a comprehensive evaluation of the school system, its curriculum and facilities, by a 15-man delegation which visited here Apr. 30-May 2.

The report contains general observations and suggested improvements in 22 separate areas. Especially laudatory remarks are made about the home economics and art departments and about the media and audio-visual library.

"One of the finest in the state" is the report on the home economics department. "The teacher (Mrs. Harold Garnick) is regarded throughout the state as one of the most dedicated, professional educators in home economics," the report reads. "She has developed special interest in and respect for home economics in the community of Ord, and enrollment in the program reflects this."

Of the art department, the evaluators commented: "This new program has been well planned. The freedom allowed the teacher (Mrs. Jerry Walsh) in both course content and preparation of the physical facility has paid dividends. There seems to be a great deal of enthusiasm on the part of students for the program."

Concerning the media and audio-visual library, the report concluded: "This media program is considerably above average . . . in comparison with other schools of this size." The report on the library was the most detailed of the brochure.

Program Is Adequate
Overall, the school's program of studies was described as "comprehensive enough to meet the needs of most students in the lower level of achievement and adequate to provide the high achiever with a background necessary to succeed in institutions of higher learning."

"Support by the community appears to be 'quite good,'" according to the report, and it added that the school district has a better than average tax base. With a potential tax base exceeding $40 million within three to five years, the district "should continue to serve a growing service area," it said.

A genuine spirit of cooperation is being shown by the community. . . .

A 1963 graduate of Ord High School has received a bachelor of science degree in industrial arts from Westmar College in Le Mars, Ia.

Donald Hackel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Hackel, has enlisted in the Navy and will enter the service Aug. 14. Until then, he and his wife Pat, of Sheldon, Ia., will remain in LeMars where she is still working on her degree. She plans to graduate in December.

Hackel was one of 175 students receiving degrees at the college's recent commencement exercises.

Annual Youth Pilgrimage

Four Area Students to Visit United Nations Headquarters During 16-Day Excursion

Three Ord girls and one from Ericson will take part in this summer's 19th annual United Nations Pilgrimage for Youth sponsored by the Odd Fellows and Rebekah Lodges.

Pam Lambert's expenses for the 16-day tour will be paid by local lodges of the sponsoring organizations. Leah Brickner, Donna Krajinik and Darlene Daly will pay their own ways. Miss Daly is from Ericson, and the others are from Ord.

The excursion trip will begin from York, Miss Brickner will depart Wednesday and the other girls a month later.

As observers at United Nations headquarters in New York the girls will be made aware of frictions between various nations of the world, of progress in disarmament and the peaceful use of atomic energy, and of the way in which problems of health, education, employment and industry in under-developed nations are being handled.

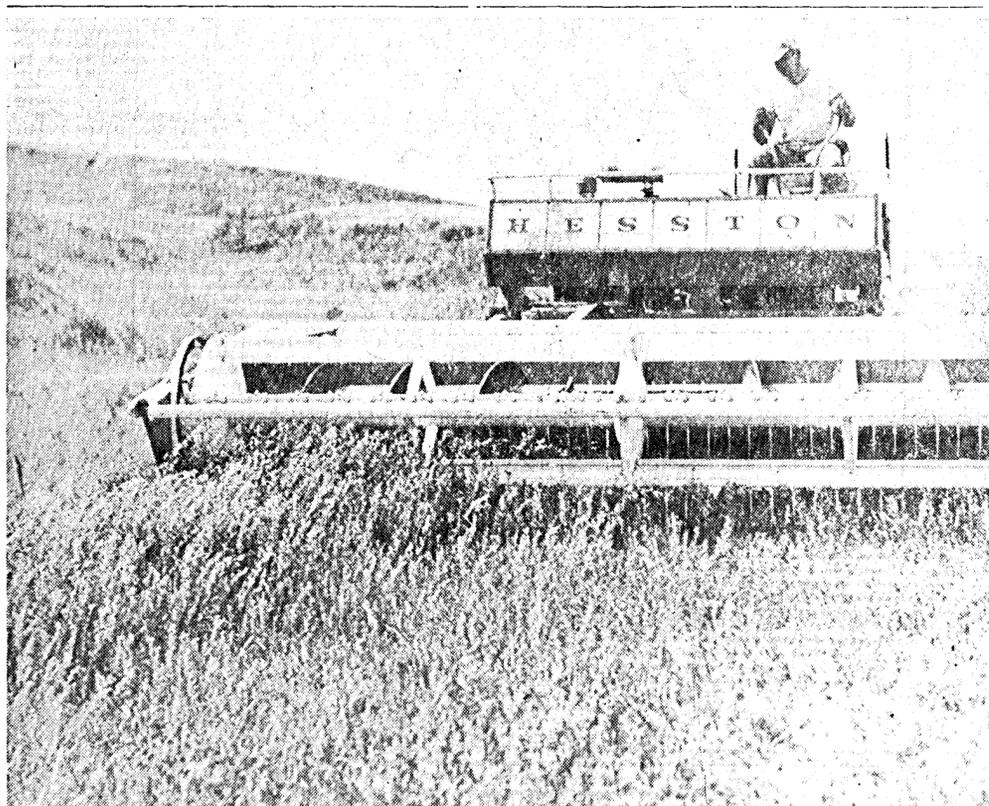

In addition, representatives of member nations will be interviewed and commissions and committees seen in action. International House, where graduate students from 80 countries live under one roof, will be visited, and there'll be an evening at Radio City Music Hall and a boat trip around Manhattan Island as guests of New York Odd Fellows and Rebekahs.

Seven of the 16 days will be spent in New York, while the others will be spent sight-seeing enroute to and from the big city by bus. Stops along the way include the Gettysburg Battlefield at Gettysburg, Pa.; President John F. Kennedy's grave and that of his brother Robert at Arlington, Va.; Fort McHenry near Baltimore, where Francis Scott Key wrote the "Star Spangled Banner"; and Valley Forge Park at Valley Forge, Pa. Typical of this year's drought-plagued alfalfa crop is this meager stand, being harvested by Gust Foth Jr., southwest of Ord. The taller hay at left grew because of a snow drift which saturated the ground with moisture last winter. The rest of his field looks like that at right, which he won't even bother to cut. Ordinarily three cuttings a season are made.

Two Groups of Minors Picked Up; Pair Pleads Guilty to Intoxication

Seven minors were apprehended in Ord early Sunday morning in two separate cases allegedly involving use and possession of alcoholic beverages.

Two Albion youths have pleaded guilty in one of the incidents and paid fines and court costs. A hearing is scheduled Monday by County Judge Rollin Dye to consider evidence in the second case. No charges have been filed yet.

Larry Loeffler, 18, and Gerald Morisch, 19, were the Albion youths who pleaded guilty. According to investigating authorities, they were accompanied by two teenage Burwell girls when they were picked up about 3 a.m. However, the girls had not been drinking so no charges were filed.

The apprehensions were made by John Boettcher, assistant chief of the Ord Police Department.

ment: Dwayne Wort, patrolman; and Clarence Fox, Valley County sheriff. Buzz Tatlow, a citizen, assisted in apprehending the Albion youths, Mr. Boettcher reported.

When work on the 10-mile roadway is completed, Highway 70 will be an all-weather route from Sioux City, Ia., at the northeast corner of the state, to North Platte in the south-central section.

Bids will be accepted until 10 a.m. on the date of opening. Plans and specifications may be seen at the office of the division engineer for the Department of Roads in Grand Island, or at the main office of the Department of Roads in Lincoln. The bids will be opened at the Lincoln office.

The contract will call for grading, placing culverts and guard rails, subgrade compaction, and providing a soil aggregate base course, a bituminous sand base course, an armor coating, shoulder construction, and incidental work.

Don Sears, president of the Ord Chamber of Commerce, said yesterday that the highway department still hopes to have the work completed before winter sets in, providing the federal government does not place a hold on funds it has allocated for the project.

The telegrams were signed by Gerald John, commander of the American Legion Post 38 with 164 members, and Everett Lech, commander of the Ord VFW Post 7029 with 292 members.

They were sent yesterday to Senators Roman Hruska and Carl Curtis, and Rep. Dave Martin.

The chase started near the Ord Hotel and ended in bottomlands at the end of 15th Street, Mr. Boettcher reported. The first youth was apprehended near residences of A. C. Wilson and Mr. Tatlow.

A citizen's tip brought about the second pickup, Mr. Boettcher said. The boys were taken into custody on L Street and offered no resistance.

Rowbal's parents posted a $500 bond, and Augustyn's a $200 bond. George Dworak also posted a $200 bond to secure his elder son's release and signed an appearance statement for his younger son. McCall's parents also signed an appearance statement. No bonds were required because the boys were under 18.

Four Area Students Receive Sheepskins At NU Presentations

Two students from Arcadia and two from North Loup were among a record 1700 graduates at the recent University of Nebraska spring commencement exercises.

Donna Jean Thomas and Philip Van Horn, both of North Loup, received bachelor's degrees from the College of Arts and Sciences. John Hagood received a bachelor's degree from the College of Engineering and Architecture, and Robert Alvin Spencer accepted a bachelor's degree from the College of Agriculture and Home Economics.

The graduating class was the largest in the 99-year history of the university.

Chancellor Clifford Hardin presided at the commencement exercises, and Dr. Merck Hobson was master of ceremonies. Music was provided by the University of Nebraska band under the direction of Professor Jack Snider.

State Ruling On Drought

The Nebraska State Disaster Committee will meet Friday in Lincoln to consider the requests of several Central Nebraska counties to be designated as drought disaster areas. Among those who have requested the designation are Valley, Sherman, Garfield, Wheeler and Custer counties. Disaster committees from Loup and Greeley counties feel conditions in those areas do not warrant such requests at this time.

However, Loup officials said they will probably make such a request if the drought conditions continue for another week or two. Greeley officials said only one section of their county—the Wallace Creek area, which lies adjacent to the eastern portion of Valley County—has been hit hard.

Lloyd Zikmund, manager of the Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service office in Ord, said Monday's rains which dropped up to .85 of an inch in the North Loup area had not made an appreciable impact on the drought conditions.

"If anything, possibly more damage than good was done by the heavy hail which accompanied the rain," Mr. Zikmund said. He said the ASCS was moving 3,700 bushels of corn from the Hudson bin near North Loup to a bin in Ord because hail had punctured the roof of the bin there.

The hail was near baseball size in diameter and caused some broken house windows and a couple of broken automobile windshields, he said.

Officials here had remarked earlier that Ord was directly in the middle of a severe drought area whose extreme condition reached about 40 miles in all directions. However, Mr. Zikmund said he had talked with Custer County officials in Broken Bow yesterday and they felt conditions there were worse than in Valley County.

Cattle are being moved steadily from pastures for sale, he reported.

Ranchers are selling from 2 to 40 percent of their herds," he said, "because even if rain is received it won't cause enough growth to provide the amount of grass normally grazed." He said he anticipates the same will be true in Valley and Sherman counties.

Thousands of acres of alfalfa will probably never be cut this year, Mr. Zikmund added, because it never reached a sufficient stage of growth. Ordinarily three cuttings are made a season.

Gust Foth Jr., who farms southwest of Ord, is one of those who will reap very little hay this year. He said Monday he's cutting only the edges of his fields, where snow drifts piled up during the winter and gave the necessary moisture for at least some growth.

He said he will stack "maybe one or two tons" from an 80-acre field that normally produces 70 to 80 tons.

"I'm luckier than a lot of fellows, though," he said, "because I haven't sold any hay the last few years. Consequently I've got about eight stacks (approximately 10 tons apiece) saved up."

Mr. Zikmund emphasized that farmers cannot expect to make anything even if the disaster requests are approved, but that it should help them cut their losses and stay in operation.

The real effects of the drought won't be felt until this winter and next year, members of the Valley County Disaster

Bid Opening for Paving of Highway 70 Scheduled July 11 by Department of Roads

Bids will be opened July 11 to determine the contractor who will pave the Ord-to-Ericson portion of Highway 70.

When work on the 10-mile roadway is completed, Highway 70 will be an all-weather route from Sioux City, Ia., at the northeast corner of the state, to North Platte in the south-central section.

Bids will be accepted until 10 a.m. on the date of opening. Plans and specifications may be seen at the office of the division engineer for the Department of Roads in Grand Island, or at the main office of the Department of Roads in Lincoln. The bids will be opened at the Lincoln office.

The contract will call for grading, placing culverts and guard rails, subgrade compaction, and providing a soil aggregate base course, a bituminous sand base course, an armor coating, shoulder construction, and incidental work.

They were sent yesterday to Senators Roman Hruska and Carl Curtis, and Rep. Dave Martin.

Opposition Voiced To Gun Legislation

Telegrams have been sent by two local veterans' organizations to Nebraska congressmen, requesting them to assist in defeating any additional gun legislation.

The telegrams were signed by Gerald John, commander of the American Legion Post 38 with 164 members, and Everett Lech, commander of the Ord VFW Post 7029 with 292 members.

They were sent yesterday to Senators Roman Hruska and Carl Curtis, and Rep. Dave Martin.

Smoke pours from an automobile owned by Alvah Barnhart of Sargent. Members of the Ord Volunteer Fire Department responded to a call Monday afternoon at the St. John's Lutheran Church where they put out the fire caused by a leak in the fuel line. Damages to the vehicle were estimated at $400 by Harry Kramer, of Kramer's Garage.

The poor, misunderstood extension telephone.

What it is, what it isn't. It is a second telephone in your home. It isn't paying for a separate line into your house. Or paying for a separate number. And it isn't paying a double telephone bill. What it is is merely an extension from your present phone. And if you have to dash through the house or scramble downstairs to say out-of-breath hellos, it's something you need. And it isn't a big expense. The cost—if you choose the basic style and color—is something like 4 cents a day. (Which is a bargain; you pay about four times that for your regular phone.) It's not even a sensational new fad—by now four out of ten homes in America already have an extension phone. And the average family takes over 400 incoming calls a year on it, and uses it for at least that many outgoing calls. Last of all, it wouldn't cost much to try one for a couple of months and this would tell you everything. Whether it is, or isn't, for you. Call our business office or ask the man on the telephone truck. General Telephone

The stores are showing them in every shape and size, imaginable — big ones, small ones, square ones, round ones, trays and even wee little ones just right for holding one baked potato. They come in all different weaves — loose weaves, bumpy weaves and smoothly woven ones.

Buy one of the huge round baskets and then get a smaller brother size and plant an artificial long-leaf plant in each, set them by that large lamp, and with a painting looking down on the group, you'll give interest to a corner that didn't mean a thing before. Or fill a wicker wastebasket full of giant blossoms to liven a hall or a low table. Or how about a large flat basket to hold the fireplace logs.

Baskets can be a big help in a child's room — to hold crayons and pencils, or toys. For a brighter accent paint them a dashing pink or lime green shade. A long Slim-Jim bread basket in a kitchen is just right centerpiece for a narrow table when filled with fruit or short-stemmed blossoms in small jars.

Why not put your home in a basket mood — or summer?

Just the thing to serve when guests drop in are these Sour Cream Cookies. Served with a frosty glass of iced tea or piping hot coffee, a treat like these adds up to just one thing — "Mmm good!"

This week's recipe is from Mrs. Rich Potrzeba.

1/2 t. salt
1 2/3 c. flour
1/2 c. soda
1/2 c. sour cream
1/2 c. nuts
Mix all ingredients together and bake at 350 degrees 10 to 12 minutes. Top with frosting made of 1 c. brown sugar and 3/4 c. sour cream. Roll frosting to soft ball. Add 1/2 t. vanilla.

Something new has been added to the Duane Carson household — frisky 7-week-old dachshund they call "Pal". I think the name is most appropriate.

A shrinking gal is Dorothy Holmes. She's taken her belt up several inches and says the end is not yet. Her slimming is quite noticeable.

The beautiful ponies that adorn so many yards in Ord are suffering greatly from heat and wind. However, the fragrance of these lovely blossoms is still as sweet as ever.

Don't be discouraged! The temptation to be discouraged is common to every man.

Walt Disney was dismissed from a major newspaper when he was told he had no talent as an artist; explorer Richard Byrd crashed-landed the first two times he soloed in a plane and the third time flew head-on into another plane; writer Rod Serling wrote and marketed 40 stories before he and one western writer Zane Grey were fired by five papers because he couldn't do the job as a reporter.

COFFEE CUP PHILOSOPHY: Five minutes of constructive thinking will do more than a whole night of wishing.

Jury Trials for Juveniles Debated Before Supreme Court of Nebraska

By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association LINCOLN — Nebraska Supreme Court judges have raised searching questions about the validity of a 1963 state law prohibiting a juvenile court jury trial for criminal suspects under 18.

One judge, Hal McCown of Beatrice, wondered if the law might violate basic constitutional rights since a minor can receive a jury trial if he is prosecuted in an adult court.

The law came under fire during oral arguments on an appeal by a 17-year-old Fremont resident, Clarence DeBacker, after the dismissal of his request for a juvenile court jury trial on a forged check charge.

The juvenile court of Dodge County committed young DeBacker to the State Boys Training School at Kearney. The Dodge County District Court refused to consider his challenge of the action.

William Line of Fremont, attorney for DeBacker, argued that a minor has the same right to an adult trial as an adult and that to limit this right is constitutionally wrong.

"No matter how you slice it, the freedom of a child is just as important as that of an adult," Line said. "Juries are a juvenile's wall of protection against judicial despotism."

The law was defended by Mel Kammerlohr, assistant state attorney general, and Richard L. Kujman, Dodge county attorney. They said the purpose of the juvenile court is to set wayward youths on "the right track" while an adult court is designed to mete out punishment.

Kammerlohr also argued that to hold that minors have a right to jury trial in juvenile court would be tantamount to putting our juvenile courts out of business of turning them into criminal tribunals.

well-established precedent for a court classification between adults and minors. "The right to vote, drive a car, be bound on certain contracts and so many other things are of such common knowledge as to require no argument," he said. "Obviously, then, there is legal basis for a distinction in their treatment for law violation."

The state law which permits the Department of Public Institutions to transfer a boy from the training school at Kearney to the men's reformatory in Lincoln also entered into the debate.

Line said this statute is important to the case because it is possible for a youngster to be sent to the training school by a juvenile court judge, then later moved to the reformatory where he is classified as a convict — and all without a jury trial.

"Is this right?" he asked. The seven-judge court took the case under immediate advisement. A decision is expected later this summer or early next fall.

Nebraska May Get Crime Funds Nebraska would receive an initial grant of $300,000 under the new Federal Crime Control Bill, the governor's crime commission has been advised.

The figure was released by Richard Velde of Washington, D. C., chief legal counsel for the Senate crime subcommittee. Velde said the state would be in line for additional funds on a population basis, providing it drafts a comprehensive crime control plan.

That task was assigned to the commission's chief researcher, Dr. Harvey Perlman of Lincoln. The plan will be submitted to the government as soon as possible.

Velde said the crime control measure grants broad powers to the states on the theory they should be given an opportunity to carry out the intent of the law.

"If you fail," he warned, "you can expect the federal government to take over the reins."

Gun Review Ordered Gov. Norbert Tiemann has ordered a review of Nebraska's gun control laws to determine if they need to be changed in any way. He took the action after the assassination of Senator Robert J. Kennedy and at the request of President Johnson.

The governor reserved comment on the need for new gun control laws in Nebraska until he has had a chance to check present statutes.

Education Pay Held Up The State Education Board has voted to defer action on Education Department salary increases despite a warning the delay could trigger staff resignations.

A proposed salary scale providing $1,000 a year more for top department officers was scheduled for consideration at the July 12 meeting.

Grasshoppers Very small grasshoppers were observed this past week along the margins of fields. As warning continues, more will hatch. Farmers are advised to watch field margins now for indications of developing infestations.

It is more effective and less costly to spray when they are small and concentrated in the margins. When hoppers are small, spray field margins with toxaphene (6 lb/gal), at the rate of 1/3 gallon per acre, or chlorodane (4 lb/gal), at the rate of one quart per acre.

Melting Out Lawn Diseases Many lawns in the area are suffering from a fungus disease known as melting out (fading out), or sometimes called dying out. A variety of symptoms are produced by this disease. Thinning grass in scattered areas of the lawn is one sign of melting out. A general brownish under-cast caused by dead leaves accompanies the general thinning out. As the disease progresses, large irregular areas of the lawn are killed.

Examination reveals a spotting of the leaf. The spots may be brown or purple, or brown with purple border. The leaf spot stage of the disease usually does not cause extreme damage to the lawn. The more severe injury results when the leaf sheath area in the crown of the plant is infested. The disease progresses from leaf sheath to leaf sheath until the above-ground parts of the plant are killed. It then moves into the crown and the underground parts, killing the plant.

When checking symptoms for identification, look first for leaf spot. This symptom may not be apparent during midsummer but is common in the spring and fall. Check further for brown discoloration of the leaf sheath. Where the lawn is yellowing and dying, check the crown and roots for a brown rotting of these parts.

The disease can be controlled by a vigorous spray program. Good protection against melting out is attained by spraying every one or two weeks throughout the growing season.

If one waits until midsummer to spray, the disease most likely has progressed to the crown stage making it more difficult to control. However, steps should be taken at this time to eliminate further spreading of the disease.

Chemicals of choice for the control of melting out are: Dyrene, Actidione-Thiram; Daconil 2787; Fore; Ortho Lawn and Turf Fungicide; Difolitan; Zinab; or Stauffer Turf Fungicide. Best results are obtained when the chemicals are applied under pressure. A commercial wetting agent should be put into the spray solution to get the necessary spray coverage. Common household detergents used at the rate of one teaspoonful per gallon of water can be used as a wetting agent.

4-H Record and Award Workshop A 4-H Record and Award Workshop is scheduled Monday in the Extension Office. Kernels & Husks By John Schude

Hackberry Problems The dramatic change in the weather, from cool temperatures throughout the spring to the hot wind of early June, brought much concern to hackberry tree owners throughout the county.

On many hackberries the leaves turned yellow and curled, and trees began to drop their leaves as they do following the first frost in the fall.

Because of the grave concern shown by many residents, I called Karl Loerch, extension forester, who assured me that the trees would recover. Mr. Loerch stated that no insect or disease was involved. The trees were showing a physiological reaction to the change in weather.

There is little that tree owners can do. However, because of the extended dry period it would be advisable to keep the trees well watered. No chemical or spray can help unless you observe an insect infestation.

Oyster Shell Scales We have observed several places throughout the county where Oyster Shell Scale eggs are hatching. Now is the time to spray the first time with Seven, Malathion, diazinon or several of the commercially prepared spray materials. Repeat the spray, again in 10 days.

Mizpah Chapter 56 Order of Eastern Star Holds Quilt Par-Tea for Members, Guests

Mizpah Chapter #56 Order of Eastern Star held their annual tea on June 11.

The special program for the afternoon was a quilting Par-Tea commentary by Mrs. Nellie Snyder Yost, author of the book, "Time On My Hands", telling about the dozens of hand-worked quilts done by her mother, Mrs. Snyder, who is well past 80 years of age.

Mrs. Snyder was one of the many pioneers who helped to establish our western frontier and one can appreciate her art more readily after reading the book and viewing the wonderful exhibit as displayed at this tea held in the basement of the Veterans Club.

One of the outstanding quilts in the exhibit was a flower basket design, resembling a great painting, made up of 8,700 blocks the size of a dime. Wherever this quilt has been shown it always wins the grand prize. The design was taken from a picture on a china plate, manufactured in Germany. The legend goes that after learning of this reproduction the manufacturer sent several sets of china to members of the Snyder family.

The program was sponsored by Mrs. Elinor Koelling and her committee of Lillian Krauhlik, Norma Remington, Edna Roe and Zae Walford. Roses throughout the hall were furnished by Rebecca Zlomke, Jackie Hurlbert and Jan Remington helped with the serving while Evelyn Jackson and Mammie Smith presided at the tea table.

Effects of this year's drought are vividly demonstrated by County Agent John Schade. At left Mr. Schade uses his hat to show the height of alfalfa in a field worked by Dr. Dale Karre. Dr. Karre said he would not cut it at all this season. Ordinarily the alfalfa should be about knee high at this time of the year. At right Mr. Schade stands in the middle of a burned patch of wheat on the farm of E. J. Lange. Even though Mr. Lange has irrigated it some, the field still shows numerous patches of thin, burned-up wheat.

Dr. Barton Kline, director of Educational Service Unit 13 which operates the school, said all moneys will be returned to the donors if matching federal funds are not received to construct the new building for training of mentally retarded children.

Scotia, North Loup Youngsters Train For Religious Work

Christina Williams of Scotia and Bernard Keown of North Loup have completed a week of religious training at Milton, Wis. for the Seventh Day Baptist Summer Christian Service Corps.

The youth corps, commonly referred to as "SCSC" is a project of the Seventh Day Baptist General Conference and "is in its fifth year. The North Loup church has participated in SCSC for four years, and this summer's trainees are the seventh and eighth from here to spend their vacations in this way.

The 15 youths participating in SCSC this year will give their talents and time without salary, receiving only travel expenses, room and board, and a small expense stipend for incidentals. They will work the entire summer, bringing their work to a climax for evaluation at the time of the Seventh Day Baptist General Conference in Kearney Aug. 11-17.

Although plans are not completely definite for the summer's assignments, Miss Williams is expected to go to Daytona Beach, Fla., for three weeks' service, then complete her term at Schenectady, N. Y. The tentative schedule for young Keown includes Plainfield, N. J., the metropolitan New York City area, and Estery, R. I.

Both youths graduated in May from North Loup — Scotia High School. Miss Williams is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Horace "Doc" Williams, and Keown is the son of Mrs. Cecil Severance of North Loup and the late Bernard Keown.

Farm Safety Tests For 14-15 Year-Olds On Tap Next Week

Youths under 16 must complete a 24-hour course of instruction before being employed to operate a tractor or other equipment, under terms of the Hazardous Occupation Law which became effective Jan. 1.

Valley County Extension Agent John Schade has arranged a three-day course on starting, stopping, turning, hitching, maintenance, lubrication, power-take-off uses, etc., to be held Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Students must attend all course hours, complete a written examination and a skill test to obtain a certificate and be eligible for farm employment.

The Nebraska Stock Growers Assn. urged all employers of 14 and 15-year-olds to make certain their employees earn a certificate. A farmer's own children should complete the course, officials pointed out, especially if the operation is a corporation or a partnership.

The course will be held in the Vocational Agriculture Room at Ord High School.

Additional information regarding the course or regulations can be obtained from Mr. Schade, Tuesday and Wednesday, should be in his office by 5 p.m. tomorrow.

Drought

Committee pointed out at their recent meeting.

Farmers won't have the feed they normally have to see their cattle through the winter, they pointed out, and anyone who cuts his herd too low will have an extremely rough time in getting it back up to size.

Mr. Zikmund indicated that farmers and ranchers should make every effort to keep their best cattle, since it normally takes three to four years to replenish a herd.

Hybrid sorghums are a possible source of feed if the farmers will get their fields planted right away, County Agent John Schade suggested. He said the sorghums would not provide the quality feed alfalfa and grains would, but that it would provide some bulk.

In the Arcadia area hay is already higher than it was all winter, Allen Masters remarked. "If you can find any to buy," he added.

Not only a lack of rain has contributed to the drought conditions, but alternate spells of hot and cold weather have also taken their toll, the committee reported.

In addition, there was little snow the past winter. In the early spring the weather was hot and windy, and then came a freeze.

All this helping back about the present situation, the disaster committee reported.

Eight Area 4-H'ers Visit Omaha Firms During Career Day

Eight Loup Valley young people visited the Omaha business firms of their choice as a highlight of the recent 4-H Club Week held in Lincoln.

The visits were set up so that the youngsters could investigate individual career potentials in their chosen fields. The itinerary included orientation discussions, career opportunity sessions and an evening banquet.

This was the 12th year for such a Career Day program to be held. It was sponsored by the Omaha Chamber of Commerce, Omaha Union Stockyards Co., Omaha Livestock Exchange, and the individual business firms.

Young people from this area who attended the Career Day activities, and the firms they visited, were: Lonna Axthela of Ord, Stockyards National Bank; Karen Pelster, Bartlett Farmers National Co.; Sandi Bousall, Burwell, Producers Livestock Marketing Assn.; Chris Cronin, Burwell, University of Nebraska Medical Center; Debi Cronin, Burwell, Nebraska Methodist Hospital; Konny Morgan, Burwell, Farm Credit Bank; Larry Lynn Moses, Burwell, Roberts Dairy Co.; and Linda Jean Scherer, Burwell, J. L. Brandeis & Sons.

During the rest of 4-H Week, the students attended educational workshops, other tours and banquets.

Attending those activities, in addition to the students listed previously, was Gloria Slagle of Sargent.

Driver's Ed Class In Full Swing at Ord

Students of the driver's education course are anticipating the day when they can demonstrate their ability as good drivers by passing their final driver's test and obtaining a longed-for license.

Now in their third week with Fred Shores as instructor, the class will complete 30 hours of classwork, six hours of driving and 18 hours of observation by the end of the six-week course. What they do includes varied discussions in class, visits from a patrolman, an insurance agent and a doctor, plus study and examination of the engine and, of course, actual driving experience. The goal of this course is to prepare skillful and more responsible young drivers and thus reduce the mounting accident fatalities. In other words, they are learning today so they can become responsible drivers of tomorrow.

Sticks and stones may break bones, but they can also serve useful purposes. All Janet Pierce lacks now to make her campfire a complete success is a little bit of flame. She is a Junior Girl Scout from Troop 145 of Ord.

Ord-Scotia Brownies, Junior Girl Scouts Experience Day Camp at Vets Grounds

For the first time in several years, rain did not interrupt the activities of Day Camp for Brownies and Junior Girl Scouts. Instead, hot dry winds blew steadily across the Veterans Grounds all last week, as 66 determined young scouts kept busy with the various duties pertaining to Day Camp.

While a group carried wood for building the campfires, others concentrated on menu planning, budgeting and food preparation. Contrary to past years, no food commodities were furnished this year, so funds from the Girl Scout cookies sales became the major support for financing the five-day camp. Mrs. Robert Sich, camp director, boasts, "Even so we still have money left over . . . and we splurged one day by preparing fried chicken, mashed potatoes and cake." Mrs. Lyle Novosad acted as business manager for the week.

Most leisure time was had during the afternoon hours when the girls participated in games, singing, hiking and craft. One afternoon Gerald Woodgate shared wild life interests with the group, and another time Mrs. Fred Dale showed the Juniors how twig baskets are made.

Friday the older Junior Scouts stayed overnight at the camp site, arising at sunrise Saturday to prepare oatmeal and pancakes over an open fire.

Mothers took turns in supervision, seeing that all safety precautions were carefully observed. Serving as unit leaders all week long were Marie Iwanski, Mary Adams and Kay Kerchal.

At the close of the camp Saturday afternoon, each girl received an appropriate camp patch earned by her own efforts for Girl Scouting in the outdoors.

With the 16 Scotia campers were the following from Ord: Debbie Banzhoff, Mary Kay Beard, Terri Clapp, Kristy Goodsell, Jolene Grim, Kim Kerchal, Jerene Manchester, Marcia Sears, Rosellen Sich, Kathy Walker, Wynne Adams, Cathy Beard, Nancy Dworak, Julie Hansen,

It's Time to Teach Them

Nearly two weeks later the vivid scenes still linger — the flag-draped coffin, the grieving widow, the fatherless children. The United States was saying good-bye to another leader, and to another Kennedy, cut down in the prime of life.

As the emotional impact of Robert Kennedy's assassination subsides, the country must not return to business as usual and let the killing slowly fade into its collective memory, there to languish until the next assassin's bullet rips it up again.

Clearly, we here in Ord and Valley County were not directly involved in the tragic happenings of two weeks ago. Furthermore, we deplore the attempts of certain persons to stick the country with one massive guilt complex, as has been done in past cases.

The fact remains, however, that concrete steps must be taken to halt the spreading lawlessness which is eating at our country like a giant cancer, of which the Kennedy killing is just the latest shocking example.

Furthermore, it's easy to say what "they" in Washington must do, and perhaps even what "they" in the big cities of New York, Chicago, etc., must do.

But what about "we"—right here in Ord and the rest of Valley County? Surely "we" will be remiss if we don't turn the spotlight inward at this moment of national soul-searching and do some intensive self-examination of our own communities.

Home Supervision Needed

In last week's issue of the "Quiz," County Judge Rollin Dye made a good point when he said young people today, including those of Valley County, are not getting enough home supervision. Certain happenings of the last two months or so lead us to concur with him full-heartedly.

Here in Ord several public buildings and properties remain defaced, the work of vandals who struck a couple of months ago. Don Sears, president of the Ord Chamber of Commerce, appeared before the City Council at its last meeting to request protection for residents of the city against further abuses by the brush-wielding vandals.

Another incident:

A moving van loaded with the furniture of an Ord military family—of which the father had recently returned from defending his country on the battlefields of Vietnam—overturned a few weeks ago 10 miles north of Loup City. The accident occurred about dusk, and the driver—not seriously injured—decided to spend the night at the scene. His precaution was justified when a group of teenagers appeared during the night and were starting to make off with some property when they realized they were not alone, dropped it and fled.

Are they really any better than the people who ransacked a burning Washington last April?

These incidents, of course, are the work of a minority. But it was a minority that burned down a good church of Detroit.

Cicero once wrote, "What greater or better gift can we offer the republic than to teach and instruct our youth?"

There is ample evidence that we in Valley County, as well as the rest of the nation, have been lax in teaching our youth. It is a situation we ought to correct.

Did you work your way through school? Millions of youngsters are trying the same thing today. Help them help themselves. Give them a job this summer.

Money Money Everywhere, But Not a Drop to Keep

DEAR MISTER EDITOR: Bill Zablouil came to the session at the country store Saturday night snorting and waving a handful of them clippings he collects. He was loaded fer bear and was shooting at ever Democrat and Republican that ever voted to give his taxes away.

What had got Bill so riled, Mister Editor, was this ad he had cut out of a magazine. A company had run the ad and called it "No Wonder We're Broke." It had got from the Agency on International Development a listing of all the money we had given other countries from 1943 through 1966. The total was $122 billion, 338 million, 520 thousand.

Bill allowed we was pouring money down holes he ain't never heard of, and them countries would rather shoot us than thank us. He read off to the fellers some of them, like Upper Volta, Babon, Lesotho, Burundi and Surinam. The list showed the smallest donation we made since 1943 was $300,000 to Tonga Island, and it went on from there to $9 billion we have given France. Ed said he ain't never heard of Tonga Island, but all France has give us fer keeping her up was a hard time. Furthermore, said Ed, for all the taxpayers knowed, that $300,000 might have given everybody on Tonga an income for life.

And this piece showed we was spending $425 million a year fer news releases from government agencies, or more than it costs all the wire services, three tele-

Something Different

Down in Kansas

Today I can report to you that Wichita is quite a city. I am just home from a five-day convention stop there, and I am truly impressed with this progressive, western, cosmopolitan-flavored place in Kansas.

The National Press Women, about 400 of them, experienced the warmest hospitality there. They learned about the city's industry, which includes jet assembly plants for five big airplane companies. And there were hosts of other industries to learn about.

For one thing Wichita residents are proud of the superior wheat crop Kansas produces. And I was glad to hear about them producing a food called Bulgur, which means wheat cooked, dried, split and then ready to use as a cereal. This is not original with them, far from it.

It comes from the Far East and is served over much of the world, and is used like potatoes or rice. I told you about it last year when I came from Morocco where it is a chief ingredient in couscous, served in a great peaked dish. Couscous is their steak. They love it.

You add to this dish as you wish, topping it with stew, chili, any tasty gravy-like sauce you fancy, putting it on as you serve.

This cracked wheat may also be served as a cereal, or is often added to soup or stew to thicken it, the way we use flour.

The first evening of our visit we were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Sheldon Coleman at their sumptuous home. Who were they, I kept asking myself, until I spied the Coleman lanterns centering each big table in the garden. (We had such lanterns in our Minnesota cottage until REA came along.) Then I noticed the handsome gas grills spotted around, being used for hot canapes and snacks, tended by assorted waiters and maids, all for our benefit.

It was a delightful blue-sky evening in a garden setting with the family tennis courts alongside.

One beaming face looked familiar, behind a big gas grill, and it was our old friend Lyle DeMoss from Omaha. He had been asked to invent a menu and demonstrate how easy it would be to do on one of these grills.

He chose to do a rack of pork chops, still attached to the backbone with a sausage popped between each one, and dressing inserted in a pocket of each chop. He served apples with this, each one half peeled, stuffed with a bit of fruit cake and doused with bourbon, tucked into a foil wrapping.

He also dipped chicken livers in a batter, rolled little shrimp into biscuit dough to grill, and served excellent teriyaki tidbits, very tasty. All the while he cooked he delivered his famous fun patter which Nebraskans know so well.

The Coleman house was lined with art treasures, furnished exquisitely. It showed a lot of their own tastes and not that of their decorator. I am all for this. After all, the decorator isn't going to live there: nor is he going to pay the bill.

Our work sessions were equally rewarding, but I'll save them until next week and tell you then. Meantime I'll add that Kansas is a beautiful prairie state, a fit partner for Nebraska.

Others Are Saying...

LOVINGTON, N. M., LEADER: "... property rights are not too popular at the moment. They seem to have been set aside in favor of the euphemistic 'human rights.' Lost in the sound and fury is the sobering truth that so-called human rights are worthless without corresponding property rights. Western society has long held that a man is entitled to the produce of his labor. This labor, whether it be manual or mental, is of value only when exchanged for some material thing, i.e., some property. Property is nothing less than an extension of a person's being."

FLORENCE, ALA., HERALD: "Government spending far beyond income has intensified inflation and placed the American consumer in a staggering price squeeze. In fact, the red ink on government ledgers is so tremendous that it is past ordinary comprehension. . . . For instance . . . the government in the past six years has spent $60 billion more than its income from the taxpayers. This averages about $50 million a day or $100,000 a minute, every minute, eight hours a day, 40 hours a week. Not being experts in the realm of finance, we can only exhort those who ARE to do something to return this nation to a sane fiscal policy."

EVERETT WASH., HERALD: "Across the nation in these incredible days colleges with student populations of many thousands are being crippled or closed by tiny minorities of demonstrators. It has never before occurred in our nation and it's a heck of a way to teach how democracy should operate."

NANTUCKET, MASS., INQUIRER AND MIRROR: "It would be in order for the press to start publicizing the activities of the law-abiding citizen as well as the law-defying ones. In this year of political strife, perhaps the aspiring candidates for office may realize that the best support they could desire comes from the people of this country to whom 'law and order' mean just what they represent."

Dear Editor:

We are in another presidential election year. The secretary of agriculture job is on the line. Four years ago, a week before the Presidential election, all farmers participating in the government program received their checks.

The Valley County ASCS office has already started to buy votes. This became evident with the news that they had decided that all farmers presenting claims for spraying less than 50 acres of musk thistle would be paid in full and those claims of 50 acres and more would be paid for a flat 50 acres, regardless of the acres sprayed.

The Valley County Noxious Weed District has employed a man to inspect noxious weeds on all farms and ranches in the county. As these inspections are completed, reports are turned over to the ASCS office for payment of money appropriated for noxious weed control.

If this was the way the ASCS was going to pay out this money, why let the Weed District pay an inspector. All his work went out the window. Just as well pay every one who applied the same amount.

Better yet, take the money appropriated in Washington for the complete farm program, divide by the number of farms in the nation and pay every one the same amount. All any county would need is one part-time employee to keep count of the number of farms.

Gun Legislation

In the aftermath of Senator Kennedy's tragic assassination, the mail has been heavy both for and against legislation to restrict the sale of firearms.

Approximately two million firearms were sold in the United States last year. If the criminal element in our country wants to secure guns, they will be able to do so, even with restrictive legislation. We had prohibition in this country for 17 years, but it did not stop the use of alcoholic beverages. Legislation of this type will not preclude the possibility of a deranged individual killing a person.

We need fair, impartial and vigorous prosecution of laws on the books today, and to overturn recent Supreme Court decisions which have favored the criminal and obstructed the work of law enforcement officers.

Poor People's March

Three of the large food distribution companies have been providing food free to the inhabitants of "Insurrection City" here in Washington.

A large semi-trailer truck loaded with food from one of the companies drove into the compound recently, and the driver asked for assistance in unloading the supplies. Even though there were three or four hundred able-bodied men available among the Poor People's Marchers, none would assist in unloading the supplies which were provided free. Perhaps they don't want to work, even to supply themselves with food.

Mrs. Fiala Participates in Historical Tour

Mrs. Edith Fiala attended the 1968 meeting of the Nebraska State Historical Society held recently in Grand Island. Those attending made a bus tour of the city and visited the new Stuhr Museum.

Among the items on public display, according to Mrs. Fiala, are a depot, town hall, church building, post office, windmill, barn with battens, and log cabin made of cottonwood. A section containing old machinery is planned, and a plot of Nebraska prairie grasses has been started.

Mrs. Fiala reported that society members also enjoyed an excellent dinner which included chokecherry and buffalo berry jellies, as well as buffalo meat.

Marci Is Two
Marci Marshall was 2 years old Thursday. To celebrate the occasion, an outdoor party was held near the river that afternoon. Guests with Mrs. Ray Marshall, Marci and Mitzi were Mrs. Ross Woods, Teddy and Debbie.

In the evening Mr. and Mrs. Robert Thompson, Jane and Nancy were guests in the Marshall home for cake and ice cream.

Mrs. Olive Stone left last week to visit a daughter and family, the Dave Maurices, at Westminster, Calif. She plans to be gone two weeks.

The correct way to use the new drive-up mail facility outside the Ord Post Office is demonstrated by Mrs. Virgil Bennett. The new facility has been in operation for about three weeks now, and Roland Norman says people are still using it improperly. The drive-through depository was designed to provide customer convenience without blocking traffic, as the old facility which faced the street tended to do. Some customers are making U-turns across a lane of traffic after leaving the facility, while a few are even ignoring the one-way sign and entering from the wrong direction, Mr. Norman said. This means they must get out and walk around their car, or else slide all the way across the seat to deposit a letter. Mr. Norman, assistant postmaster in charge, emphasized that automobiles leaving the drive-through facility should ease into the right lane and go with the flow of traffic, even if it means going all the way around the block to get back on L Street.

Rains Total 4.42 Inches

Guarded optimism was voiced by Loup Valley farmers, ranchers, and agricultural officials after four days of soaking rains left the area with 4.42 inches of moisture.

That brought the total for the year up to 10.46 inches, less than an inch below last year's total at this time.

Small grains and corn should be helped immediately, County Agent John Schade said. Alfalfa also should come back, he reported but pastures are damaged almost beyond repair. Recovery will depend on subsequent weather, he said.

Five Central Nebraska counties will continue to request designations as drought disaster areas. Lloyd Zikmund of Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service office in Ord said yesterday. They are Valley, Sherman, Garfield, Wheeler and Custer counties.

The Nebraska State Disaster Committee approved the requests Friday and forwarded them to Washington for a ruling by the United States Department of Agriculture. Mr. Zikmund said he anticipates a decision any day.

"One rain won't correct the damage done by several months of drought conditions," Mr. Zikmund said in explaining the continued request. "Pastures are still short, and almost half the normal alfalfa crop in non-irrigated areas won't be harvested."

Mr. Zikmund said farmers have been into his office every day requesting to open diverted acres to cattle. However, he said no approval can be given unless the Department of Agriculture makes an affirmative ruling on the disaster request.

By getting cattle off regular acreage and onto the diverted land, which normally cannot be used, normal pastures will have an opportunity to get full benefit from this week's rains and thus speed their recovery, he said.

However, he pointed out that the extent of recovery will depend on whether additional rain is received through the summer, and whether the weather stays warm without excessive heat.

If the USDA does declare the five counties disaster areas, each farmer will have to make an individual application for drought assistance before opening any of his diverted acres, Mr. Zikmund said. He advised each farmer to contact the ASCS office for his locale if a positive decision comes through from Washington.

"It was a beautiful rain with very little run-off," Mr. Schade said. "And luckily there was no hail damage in this area."

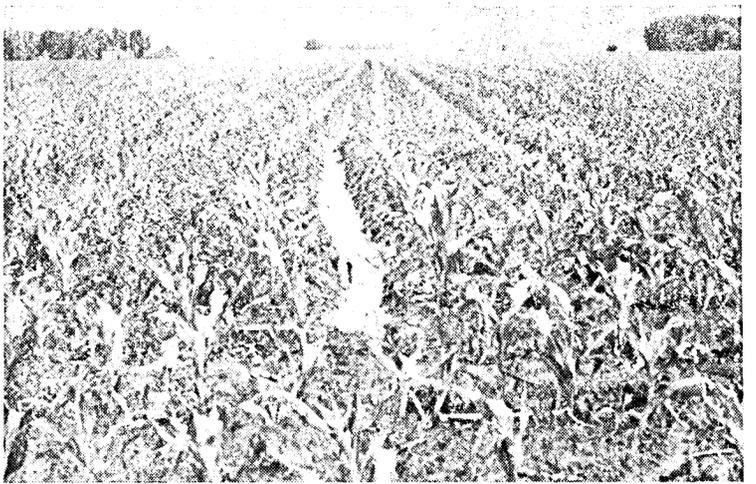

He again urged farmers to consider planting an annual forage crop to take up some of the slack caused by sub-par growth of native grasses and alfalfa.

"That could be done on some of the diverted acres," he said. "But we're at the end of the planting season even for that. It will have to be done immediately to approach maximum yield."

The official rainfall totals for Ord by days were: Sunday, .53 of an inch; Monday, 1.32; Tuesday, 2.53; and Wednesday, .04.

Farm equipment stands idle in fields, but it's not cause for concern as welcome rains give farmers day off and crops needed moisture.

Former Ord Teacher Named Superintendent

A local man is coming home to become superintendent of the Ord School System.

Dr. Bill Gogan, 43, who grew up in Arcadia and taught and coached at Ord High School for 10 years, has notified the Board of Education he will accept the job effective July 1. That's when the resignation of Roger Clough, the present superintendent, becomes effective. Mr. Clough has accepted a position as superintendent of the York School System.

Since leaving Ord in 1960, Dr. Gogan has worked at Scottsbluff, Gering, Chandler, Ariz., and Denver, Colo. Most recently he served as principal of Drake Junior High School, which has an enrollment of approximately 1,000 students.

The Gogans have purchased the home owned by Mr. and Mrs. Al Bellinger at 2114 L St. The Bellingers are moving to Kearney where he will become junior high principal.

Dr. Gogan is married to the former Gladys Kokes, daughter of Mrs. Helen Beran of Ord and the late Frank Kokes. They have four children: Neal, 12; Billy, 10; Jane, 7; and Nancy, 5.

The new superintendent holds a Bachelor of Arts degree from Kearney State College, a master of science degree in education from the University of Southern California, and a doctor of philosophy degree from the University of Nebraska.

Dr. Gogan was born in Lindsay, but his family moved to Arcadia when he was quite small. He graduated from Arcadia High School in 1940 and taught for a couple of years, beginning at the age of 17.

He enlisted in the Navy in 1942 and served until the end of World War II. One ship he served on was hit by enemy fire near Okinawa and 40 of his shipmates lost their lives.

Following his discharge from the Navy he enrolled at Kearney, where he earned four letters in track as a hurdler and relay participant.

After graduating from Kearney, he came to Ord. His first year here he was junior high basketball coach, the next year he became head basketball coach, and the following year he was named head coach in all sports.

His football teams were consistently good. In the 1955 squad posting a perfect 9-0 record and claiming first place in state Class B ratings. Twice his basketball teams won state tournament berths — in 1952 and 1959.

From Ord Dr. Gogan moved to Scottsbluff as basketball coach and history teacher, and following a three-year stay there he transferred to Gering as principal.

One year in that position was followed by a job as assistant principal at Chandler, Ariz.

State Liquor Inspector on Case Involving Use and Possession by Minors

Evidence in two separate cases involving use and possession of liquor by minors has been turned over to the state liquor inspector, County Judge Rollin Dye said Monday.

Both groups gave information about where the liquor was obtained, Judge Dye said. He indicated that it came from Custer County, and no Valley County dealers or salesmen were involved.

Five youths involved in the second case pleaded guilty Monday, three of them to charges of intoxication and two to charges of minors in possession of alcoholic beverages. Those charged with intoxication were Randy McCall, 17; Tom Dworak, 18; and Dick Dworak, 17.

Charged as minors in possession were Dave Augustyn, 19, and Dick Rowbal, 20. All are from Ord except Augustyn who is from North Loup.

Each of the boys drew minimum fines of $25 and costs. The same sentences had been meted out last week to two Albion youths, Larry Loeffler, 18, and Gerald Morison, 19. In addition, Loeffler was fined $50 for reckless driving.

"The sentences were light because of the excellent cooperation we received from both the boys and their parents," Judge Dye said.

He advised the boys to stay out of trouble and not brag about how easy they had gotten off.

Another Youth Found Guilty

Richard Psota, 20, was found guilty in City Court Wednesday on a charge of intoxication and fined $25 and costs by Judge Frances McCall.

Psota was picked up about 1:30 a.m. June 13 by Dwayne Wert, city patrolman, at the Ord park.

Tiny Calf Born on Farm Near Ord

Cross a registered Hereford cow with an Angus bull and what do you get? The Ed Bruha family got a black-coated, white-faced calf that stood 17 inches high and weighed 18 pounds.

If that doesn't impress you, consider that a normal calf stands about 30 inches high and weighs 30 to 45 pounds, depending on the breed.

"The veterinarians have no idea what caused the smallness," Mrs. Bruha said last week. "Both her parents were normal, and she was not premature."

Nicknamed "Tiny Tim" by the Bruha children, the calf has been come quite a pet.

"We feed her five times a day," Mrs. Bruha said, "a cup at a time. Her stomach is so small she can't take anymore."

The calf eats a normal milk feed.

"We didn't expect her to live at first, but now she's over the hump," Mrs. Bruha continued.

"She's had a touch of pneumonia this past week, but she's about over it now. She'll make it."

"Tiny Tim" at 1 week is dwarfed by 3-day-old friend. Mrs. Ed Bruha keeps them calm.

Evaluators Suggest Complete Programs For Social Studies, Foreign Languages

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of a series of articles explaining in depth the findings of a 15-man delegation which examined the Ord School System Apr. 30 - May 2. The men were from the North Central Assn. of Colleges and Secondary Schools, and the Nebraska State Department of Education. This week's special areas of concern are social studies and foreign languages.)

Social Studies
The evaluators commended Ord High School for its attempt to refine the social studies and to include the more valuable parts of the older, traditional programs can be combined with newer developments in the field.

However, they pointed out a lack of coordination between courses at different levels and an imbalance in requirements for American study versus world study.

Concerning the lack of coordination, they suggested frequent discussions between teachers and administrators responsible for the program.

"Each teacher would get a better picture of the total social studies program and the part he or she has in it," their report read. It inferred that this would provide better continuity and smoother transition for the students as they progress through school.

About the imbalance in requirements, the report stated that two years (four semesters) of American study are required for graduation and only one semester of world study. It suggested changing that to one and a half years of American study and one year of world study.

Other suggestions for improvement included increasing the amount of reading materials available in this field and a re-consideration of the 70-minute class period. The evaluators felt the periods were too long, especially for students in the seventh and eighth grades.

As for reading materials in addition to the texts, they suggested the use of a weekly news publication. They liked the idea of getting a copy for each student, but if that proves impractical they suggested getting a number of copies equal to enrollment in the largest class.

Foreign Languages
This was one of the areas the evaluators criticized most sharply. Their main gripe was the limited course offerings — one year of French during the 1967-68 year and a planned two years of French during the 68-69 session.

Three years of study are a minimum to reach any sort of proficiency in foreign language, they felt.

They did not recommend offering a second language. "Rather, there is a need to strengthen offerings in the language presently being taught," they said.

An overall program should be built, according to the evaluators, which would include familiarizing students with the need for studying a foreign language, and of the career opportunities available for those with a second language.

"It must be approached as something more than simply a college preparatory course," they said.

More use of visual aids in teaching was also suggested.

On the positive side, the evaluators liked the school's present policy of emphasizing French culture and "exposing students to studies in international understanding."

They also approved of the text chosen by school officials. It is an up-to-date audio-lingual text, and this is important because of the emphasis upon conversing in French rather than simply reading and writing, they said.

Threat of Prairie Fires Tapers Off As Result of Area's Heavy Rainfall

This week's drenching rains will have a number of beneficial effects for farmers and ranchers. In addition to the obvious one of making crops grow better, the rains have helped avert serious threats of prairie fires for thousands of acres of crop and grasslands, according to local fire department officials.

Before the rains came, a siege of fires in several localities had kept volunteer fire departments in several Loup Valley communities on the go.

The most serious blaze occurred early Friday morning when 50 to 60 acres of Soil Bank land was burned off in a pasture leased by Rudolph John near Arcadia. The land was owned by Mrs. Katy Trefren, who lived there formerly but now resides in Kearney.

"It was all good grass, and I sure hated to lose it," Mr. John said afterwards. "Of course I couldn't use it right now, but if the state approves the county's drought disaster request it would really have come in handy." (The state did approve such a request later that same day.)

Although volunteer firemen from both Arcadia and Ord answered the call, Mr. John said he knew nothing of the fire until the next morning when a neighbor called to tell him that some of his cows were out. When he drove over to see about them, he found the burned off pasture. He lives some 7 1/2 miles north of the fire scene on the Ord-to-Sargent road.

Lightning was presumed to have caused the fire, which started about 2 a.m.

A spokesman said the Arcadia fire department had difficulty in rounding up help to fight the fire. Heavy winds in that area had knocked down a power line, cutting off electricity to the city for a period of time. Because of that, no one could blow the fire whistle.

William Hansley, local weatherman, estimated the winds peaked at about 50 miles an hour.

The John fire was one of two the Arcadia department answered that night. Another on the Allen Masters farm was contained more quickly.

Mike Hill also reported a fire that night, but he and neighbors were able to contain it without fire department assistance.

The Ord department also answered a second call Friday. It was to the Ed Osentowski farm nine miles east of town. Some weeds caught fire while spraying operations were being conducted by employees of the Burlington Railroad along the railroad right-of-way.

Actually, the firemen never reached the scene because of a scarcity of suitable roads and unfamiliarity with the area. However, the fire was contained by the Burlington employees with the help of young Tom Osentowski.

Loup City firemen also answered a call Friday, extinguishing a blaze in the Fisherman's Bridge recreation area at the west end of Sherman Reservoir. Although the rains lessened the threat of fire, severe weather warnings which accompanied them kept firemen busy as lookouts for tornado funnels. Members of the Ord department, as well as city police and the Valley County sheriff, were out both Sunday and Monday nights.

Spidermites Invade
This past week I have observed a number of conifer trees that are showing extensive damage caused by spidermites.

Spidermites suck the nutrients from the tree, thus weakening it and leaving it susceptible to other insects and diseases as well as dry, hot winds.

Check trees by tapping a branch over a white piece of paper. Spidermites will appear as walking dots if present.

Control by spraying infested trees with one of the following insecticides: cygon, diazinon, chlorobenzilate, kelthane, armit, dimite, or tedion. Follow instructions and safety precautions on the label.

Washing the trees with water under pressure can help keep the spidermite population in control.

Ag Chemicals Deadly
Agriculture chemicals can be deadly as they become more and more an important tool of farming and ranching operations, producing increased yields and protection against insects and weeds. They are important tools only when properly used according to instructions and cautions on their package or container. They can become dangerous and even deadly to people and livestock when used improperly.

Safety officers emphasize several simple rules to follow when agricultural chemicals are used and stored on the farm or in the home.

First read the instructions for use carefully each time these chemicals are used. Follow the instructions religiously, and use the recommended dosages. Avoid the temptation of thinking that a little is good a little more is better. This little more can be the difference between safe use and deadly danger.

Second, when the chemicals are not being used, keep them locked in a safe place out of reach of children and livestock. Keep them in their original containers so they can be easily identified. Third, when the supply is exhausted, destroy the container by burning, burying or some other recommended means. When burning avoid the fumes which may be as deadly as the chemical itself.

The safest procedure to follow with any agricultural chemical is to treat it as if it is the most deadly of the lot.

Remember that chemicals used according to recommendations and with proper precautions are a useful tool. Disregard safety precautions and they can mean tragedy.

Vaccinate Against Rabies
Rabies occurs all year round, but there's a greater chance of exposure during the warm months when children and pets are allowed more freedom.

Habit is widespread throughout the world with foxes, wolves, skunks, bats, and other wild animals. People can get rabies from all animal bites, but because we are around dogs so much they are the most likely source.

There is no known cure for or successful treatment once the symptoms appear, and death is dependent upon vaccination of pets and control of strays.

Farm and rural pets should be vaccinated as they have the best opportunity of being exposed to wild animals.

It is the responsibility of all pet owners to protect their own pets. All citizens must assume the responsibility of controlling stray animals.

Leaves of Three - Let It Be
If it has three leaves - let it be! It's probably poison ivy or poison oak plants that cause millions of cases of skin poisoning each year.

The USDA Publication, "Leaves Mean Poison Ivy," points out that each year skin inflammation caused by plants are responsible for an estimated 2,730,000 days of restricted activity, half a million days spent in bed, and the loss of 330,000 work days. Active, roaming youngsters are the most frequent victims, but no age group and few individuals are immune.

Identification and eradication are the keys to poison plant control. Once recognized, these plants can be safely and effectively eradicated by using one of the suggested herbicides. Chemicals of choice are 2,4-D, 2,4,5-T, amital, silvex or ammonium sulfate. Always follow directions on the label.

Attending from Ord were Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Matern, Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Elgard and Mr. and Mrs. Jim Duda. The women and Mr. Matern are all members of the 1953 graduating class.

Curb and gutter work has been going on in various parts of town for a couple of weeks now, with more scheduled. Mayor Bill French said residents from each part of the city have banded together and are paying for the work themselves. He said the curbs and gutters will provide a better flow of water, will keep moisture from concentrating in the streets and causing heavy road damage, and will in general provide better streets "by keeping people out of the mud." The work is being performed by Kittle Construction. Dwayne Wilson, an employee, assists in pouring concrete here near Ord High School.

Methodist Youth Group Enjoys 10-Day Trip to New Mexico

By Bertha Clement

Eighteen Mira Valley United Methodist young people left on a 10-day mission tour June 9 following a picnic dinner hosted by their families at the Mira Valley church.

The tour was decided on a year ago, and since that time much planning and hard work had followed. A fund of approximately $1,000 was needed and earned by the youth in many different ways to make the trip possible.

Purpose of the trip was to become acquainted with the church's mission work in New Mexico and the people who live there. Two days were spent working; one at the Santa Cruz Mission and the other at Valley View Church in Espanola, N.M.

Lodging was provided by different United Methodist churches along the route.

Highlights of the tour were visits to the Navajo Methodist School in Farmington, N. M., where the youngsters spent two days learning about the Four Corners Mission, Mesa Verde, Echo Canyon, Los Alamos, the "Atomic City," Bandy National Monument, Chocoma Mountain Zoo, and the Garden of the Gods.

The people of Farmington are mainly Navajo, and are a very proud and artistic tribe. The big problem they face today is transition from the old tribal way of life to the modern. In most cases both are intertwined in their lives. Many of the Indians live in round, one-room mud hogan. This is an old tradition with the Navajos. All doors in the small homes face east to let out the evil spirits.

Traveling eastward to Espanola, the Spanish-American people become very prominent. Little English is spoken, and there are few whites in that area. Ways of the Spanish descendants who settled in Mexico and New Mexico can be seen in the culture of the people.

On Sunday, June 16, the young folks divided into groups and attended four different churches: Hernandez, Alcalde, Valley View and Santa Cruz.

Sponsors making the tour were Mrs. Dick Peterson, Youth director; the Rev. and Mrs. Earl Higgins; Dan Spillinek; and Leonard Marks. The young people were Connie Peterson, Mark Peterson, Bob Peterson, Angela Burson, Allen Cahill, Gerald Lueck, Cheryl Peterson, Alan Koelling, Cheryl Koelling, Phyllis Harkness, Emily Schudel, Dianne Peterson, Shirley Peterson, David Huebner, Cindy Foth, Bob Cook, Ramona Luoma and Darrell Hackel.

The young folks and sponsors arrived home June 18. All in all they called it a fantastic and educational venture, and those involved will long remember it.

This Mourning Dove Was Friendly Bird, State Trapper Finds

Sometimes you just cannot predict what a bird will do, a Game Commission technician has decided.

Each year a specified number of mourning doves are banded by the commission in order to study their migration patterns and behavior. While banding a few days ago, a technician at the Lincoln office happened across one interesting dove.

It was a female adult, and in the course of trapping operations she received a leg band with the number 209. That band was on a Thursday. The next day good old 209 was again in the cage, pecking busily at the free grain she found inside which served as "bait". The fact that she returned a second time was duly noted in the log book.

As no one would check the wire trap over the weekend, it was placed upon a picnic table devoid of the usual supply of grain. Bright and early the following Monday the technician prepared to bait the traps again, and what did he find? You guessed it. Mrs. 209 was back in the trap. And with her inside the cage were two young doves.

Not only was there no food to entice them inside, but the birds had to really concentrate on climbing in because they had no place to stand. The cage nearly covered the table, leaving just a one-inch ledge in front of the door. The technician is scratching his head wondering why the three doves entered the rig when there was obviously no food in it, but he is thinking of using more picnic tables in the future.

Deer milk is extremely rich. It contains about twice the solids of cow milk, and nearly three times as much fat and protein.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Higgins and children visited his folks, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Higgins, at Kearney Monday afternoon.

Janice Mroczek spent last week with the Jim Palu family at Loup City. This week Jeff Palu is staying at the Leo Mroczek home.

Americans consume more than 30 billion pounds of beef, veal, pork and lamb annually, twice as much as any other country, according to "The Kansas Restaurant." That's about 170 pounds per person. Since 1937, meat output has doubled to provide a population which has increased by one-third with 45 more pounds of meat per person. This larger amount of meat costs each individual an average of less than five percent of disposable income, leaving 95 percent for purchase of other goods and services. Americans get more meat for a smaller part of their paycheck than ever before.

The Arizona Farm Bureau Federation states, "During recent years many erroneous statements have been made describing agriculture as a declining industry. These statements are not so. The general trend has been upward over the past 10 years, rather than downward. Enrollments in college of agriculture programs in the fall of 1967 has been exceeded only by the record number right after World War II."

Each year there are new colors on the fashion scene. Some of the "in" colors this year include Vibrant Neon Brights... a carry-over from last year, but with a new look when combined with lighter shades.

We also have "noteworthy Neutrals"... pale tones with barely a suggestion of color. Have you noticed the pastels this year have softer hues with lots of personality. There are two shades of yellow, for instance, but they are of equal importance. Citron, tinged with green and egg yolk, whitened gold...

Pink is lightened so it remains one of fluffy cotton candy. It's closely followed by "bleed pink" or "strawberry". Some new neutrals are described in this way: "bananas", the palest of all vanilla tones; "bisquit", a light, chamois; "Columbia", rich warm brown; "summer brass", softly touched with green; "navy", dark and chic; and we can't forget "dove", the silvery whitened grey.

For a quick summertime lunch treat, try this chicken Waldorf sandwich. Simply combine 4 c. chopped diced chicken, 2 c. cooked apple, 2 c. chopped celery, 1 c. chopped walnuts and 1/4 c. salad dressing. Chill and spread on bread for sandwiches.

Thou shalt not attempt to hide behind thine own petticoat. 4. Thou shalt speak softly, and carry no stick... except lipstick. 5. Thou shalt serve thy lady boss as graciously as thou servest any man. 6. When success cometh, thou shalt not get too big for thy britches. 7. Thou shalt watch thy language; there may be gentlemen present. 8. Thou shalt not match martinis.

In London, a newspaper reports a shortage of maternity beds in the Midlands area. One person was told at a hospital, "I'm sorry, Sir, but if your wife needs a bed in March it should have been booked 10 months in advance."

Future Mailmen

One-day mail service to any place in the world could well become commonplace and inexpensive in the future. Messages would be relayed from local "post offices" to the nearest satellite. The satellites (powered by nickel-cadmium batteries constantly under charge from solar cells) would then redirect the message to earth.

It wasn't the moon Rich Stickney of Ravenna was throwing against the Ord American Legion baseball team last week, but it might as well have been for all the luck local batters were having. Stickney pitched a three-hitter and shut Ord out for the first time this season, 6-0.

Patched-Up Legion Squad Posts Win Over Sargent, Halting Losing Skid

This week's rains helped end the drought not only for farmers, but for the Ord American Legion baseball team as well. In a Sunday contest halted in the sixth inning because of rain, Ord defeated Sargent, 5-3, for its first victory since the second game of the season. The club had lost five straight after opening with a pair of wins. Three nights earlier the local team had lost to Ravenna, 6-0. Coach Dick Beran remarked after that game that some of the boys were not playing up to par, but because he had only nine players he couldn't make anyone sweat for a job. That may change now, however, because Sunday's victory was achieved with three-fourths of infield and two-thirds of the outfield composed of midget players. In addition, Coach Beran says he hopes to add three boys from Ericson to his roster. Collyer Cronk shook off the inconsistency which had plagued him in earlier mound appearances this season to hang up a one-hitter. His control was good too, as he walked only two. At bat the leader was also Cronk. He responded to a promotion to the clean-up position by slugging a home run in the first inning, driving home Dan Wolfe who had singled. Victory did not come easy, however, as Sargent battled back and took a 3-2 lead in the third. The two runs scored that inning came with the assistance of two errors by Bill Klancecky, one of the younger players forced into action when some of the regulars failed to show. Nevertheless, Ord was destined to reverse a pattern it had fallen into in earlier games. This time, instead of watching the opposition come from behind in the late innings and break open a close game, it was Ord which came through with the clutch performance. Chuck Fryzek, another promoter from the midget nine, opened the fifth inning with a single. Jim Lukesh's double brought him home with the tying run, and two Sargent errors provided the fourth and fifth runs. The rains came in the bottom of the sixth with one man out. Prospects are now bright that the team can get its season record back up to .500 this week, since it plays Burwell tonight and Arcadia Sunday. Those are the two teams Ord defeated to open the season; however, this time they'll be road games whereas both were played in Ord previously. In the earlier game last week against Ravenna, Rich Stickney choked the local batters off with only three hits and pitched the season's first shutout against them.

Ord Softball Team Subdued by Ericson In 4-0 Pitchers' Duel

Going from one extreme to the other, Ord's new softball team lost again last week—but in a different manner. After losing its first two games in hitting batters, 15-10 and 13-11, the team reversed itself and lost last week, 4-0, to Ericson. The team could get only two hits after collecting 16 and 13, respectively, in its first two games. Chuck Squier pitched well in defeat and left the mound at the beginning of the last inning behind only 20. Overall, Ericson got six hits, four of them off Squier. Ord loaded the bases in the first inning but failed to score when Squier lined into a double play. Allen Vancura provided the defensive play of the game when he made a spectacular catch in left field after Ericson had opened the third inning by putting its first two men on base. The schedule tonight (Thursday) finds Scotia at Wolbach.

Ericson at Horace, Spalding at Greeley, and KC's at Ord. Monday's lineup calls for KC's to be at Spalding, Ericson at Greeley, Scotia at Horace, and Ord at Wolbach. There are about 300,000 plants classified in the world, of which about 120,000 varieties are edible. Cedar waxwings often line up on a limb and playfully pass a berry back and forth along the line of birds.

Wolbach Adds to Woes Of Ord Adult Team, 12-2

It's no longer a question of when Ord will win its first game of the Sherman-Howard League season, but if. The Mustangs suffered their eighth consecutive defeat of the year Sunday, bowing to Wolbach, 12-2. The winner scored twice in the second inning, then bombarded Ord with 10 runs over the last four frames. In other league action Scotia went a full game up on Wood River in the battle for first place. Wood River was beat 4-2, by Greeley, while Scotia stood idle because of the rain. That gives Scotia a 6-0 record for the season compared to Wood River's 6-2. In the feature game next week, the league's all-stars will gather at Scotia for a Wednesday night battle. It will begin at 8:15. Ron Robinson limited Ord to only four hits Sunday, two of them by losing pitcher Jim Hultinsky. However, by a sore arm, Hultinsky nevertheless pitched well until the seventh inning when he gave up four hits and hit a man. Ord was trailing, 4-1, going into the seventh, but all four of Wolbach's runs up to that point were unearned. Robinson struck out 19 Ord batters in an outstanding pitching effort for the winners. He gave up only two walks. Assistant coach Ed Lange blamed a lack of interest for Ord's difficulties this year. Having been with the team only two weeks himself, he pointed out that Ord hasn't fielded the same lineup two games in a row all year. Sunday's game was almost 45 minutes late in getting started too, he added, because only eight players were present at the scheduled time. "A few of the boys really want to play," he said, "but others will come only if they don't have anything better to do."

Midgets Fall to Ravenna, Sargent; Double Loss Drops Record to 3-5

After a brief two-game spurt, Ord's midget baseball team lapsed back into its losing ways last week against Ravenna and Sargent. The scores were 7-5 and 7-4, respectively. The Sargent batsmen found the offerings of Bill Miller suited to their tastes in Sunday's game, and rapped him for five runs in the first three innings. They added two more against relief man Bill Klancecky. Following the Thursday night loss to Ravenna, Coach Bill Plock lamented the fact that his pitchers always seem to have one or two bad innings when their control goes to pot. Miller's problems, however, weren't so much with his own control as they were with the Sargent batters. The winners teed off for three hits in the first inning, one in the second, and three in the third. Ord opened the game with three runs of its own in the first inning, but after that it was all zeroes until the seventh when its final marker was placed. Against Ravenna the cause seemed hopeless when Ord came to bat in the bottom of the seventh. But three doubles and a hit batsman got three men home, and the visitors were glad to get out of the inning with their two-run margin. Miller and Dick Janda each had two hits in that game, including two of the seventh-inning doubles. Substitute Darrell Farmer had the other. That game was a perfect example of the control problem Coach Plock was discussing afterwards. Klancecky pitched most of it, and he walked three in a row in the third inning when Ravenna overtook a 2-1 Ord advantage. The losses dropped Ord's season record to three and five. This week's schedule calls for road games tonight against Burwell and Sunday against Comstock.

By Game Commission Talloos, Transmitters, Tagging Devices Used To Keep Track of Fish Travels

Anglers in Nebraska have fish of all sizes, shapes and colors at their disposal, but they may also catch some that are keeping up in the fashion world. Several styles of "fishy fashions" are currently in vogue. These are tags or marks that Game Commission technicians use to keep tabs on angler harvest and life history of the various fish species. Many different methods are used to mark fish, including the traditional nautical "tattoo". One of the most common tags is the metal jaw band, which is merely clipped to the lower "lip". As this requires considerable time to install, many hinder the feeding activities, and cannot be used on all species, other forms of tagging are now being tried. A plastic model of the jaw band is one possibility. Plastic tubing or "spaghetti" with a barbed tip is another. These tiny tubes come in various colors with lettering and are inserted into the fish's back with a special jaw-like hypodermic needle. Streamer tags are yet another new device, and are attached with monofilament line through the flesh in the region of the dorsal fin. Tattoos are relatively new in the fish world, although they have long been associated with seafarers. This new fad is especially popular with kamloop trout and is accomplished by touching the fish with a metal symbol which is first dipped in a sub-zero mixture of acetone and dry ice mixture. Presently, a radio transmitter is in the experimental stage to keep track of fish movements. This device is slipped into the fish's stomach, then his movements monitored by technicians following with a receiver. Anglers have been asked to report all tags to the nearest conservation officer or other Game Commission representative. Each tag returned contributes to better fishery management and to improved fishing potential in the state, a commission spokesman said.

Successful firearm deer hunters in Nebraska last fall spent an average of just over 3 1/2 days afield to bag an animal. State-wide, over 75 percent of successful hunters were in the field four days or less. Wild turkey hens in Nebraska normally average between seven and eight young in their spring broods. Stop! # Grand Opening For Mini-Golf Set Saturday

The latest addition to Ord's recreational scene is open for business, and a grand opening celebration will be held Saturday. Special prizes and refreshments will be available at J.B.'s Mini-Golf, the new miniature golf course owned and operated by J.B. Ferguson. It's located between the Ord Drive-in and the south entrance to the city park. The course did not get open without some difficulties. The biggest one occurred when the first shipment of clubs, balls, score cards and pencils was lost in Kansas City. The truck they were being shipped on was burglarized. The equipment was replaced by the factory, however, and everything is now in shape for the grand opening. Mr. Ferguson reports that floodlights have also been received, and the course will be ready for after-dark play almost immediately. No regular operating hours have been established, pending a determination of the customer load. However, the course will be open in the afternoons and evenings.

Official Asks Anglers to Tell Of Dead Fish

Most sections of Nebraska are not heavily industrialized and are not plagued by the same water pollution problems that other parts of the nation are suffering. Nevertheless, deteriorated water quality does occur that causes direct loss of fish or water degradation to the point fish will be driven from some areas, the Game Commission says. Occasionally improper or careless spraying for pest or weed control accounts for a fish kill. Chemicals used for such control programs are very toxic, and to fish. In view of this, anyone using chemicals should avoid spraying near water, especially on windy days when drifting can occur, a Game Commission spokesman urges. He says the public can provide a great service by reporting fish kills promptly to area conservation officers or other Game Commission personnel. Often, too much time lapses between the kill and the time it is reported.

New Type of Liquid Hog Feeder Being Distributed by Ord Company

Dealership rights to a modern, sophisticated way of "slopping the hogs" have been obtained by the Ord Manufacturing Co.
The process consists of a new type of hog feeder which mixes water with dry feed, creating a sort of "slop." Called Gruel-Omatic, the feeders are made by Sollars Brothers, Inc., of Washington Court House, Ohio. Exclusive dealership rights in Nebraska have been granted to the Ord firm, which will contract with about 40 other distributors in selling the feeders throughout the state.
"We've come to the conclusion that Grandpa was right, and that a liquid feed like slop makes the best hogs after all," vice-president Wayne Miller of the Ord Manufacturing Co. said recently. "Hogs eat more and sleep more on liquid feed. That means they'll go to market faster and probably weigh more when they get there."
The feeders come in two sizes, one intended to handle up to 200 head of hogs and the other half that many. The large one has a 2,500 pound feed hopper and the smaller one a 1,200 pound hopper. Both are designed to hook up to conventional water outlets and use 110-volt electricity.

No additional feeders or water troughs are needed when Gruel-Omatics are used, Mr. Miller said.
He pointed out that hogs fed with the new system are going to market two to four weeks ahead of their counterparts raised on conventional dry feeds. Feed waste is also eliminated, he said, and labor requirements are reduced.
A thermostatically controlled heating element keeps the feed mixture, or water alone, at proper temperature for size of pigs and weather conditions. In addition, troughs are refilled automatically as the hogs finish each feeding.
The large feeders will retail for $807 each, and the smaller ones for $640, Mr. Miller said.

Friday supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Art Mentzer and family were Mr. and Mrs. William Lewis and son of California, Lloyd Patrick of Burwell, and Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Mentzer.

Exactly 100 years ago — in 1868 — Japan became a trading nation with meager exports of raw silk, tea, chinaware, fish. Imports were equally meager: sugar, rice, cotton, coal, crude oil, hides. The new Japan, in striking contrast, is one of the world's most industrialized nations and her import-export list is thousands of items long.

No Place To Go
Over 10 million Japanese possess driver's licenses, and no car. They represent about half of the country's total license holders. Car ownership is increasing, however, and registration of cars, trucks, buses, and two and three-wheel vehicles now exceeds 10 million. A survey by Japan Automobile Manufacturers Assn., reveals 8.1 percent of working households now own passenger cars.

Fresh Start
Modern equipment, especially air spinning machines, has given the Japanese cotton-spinning industry new life. The new machines, developed by Daiwa Spinning Company, spin yarn directly from cotton, skipping pre-treatment stages.

Longer Engine Life
A complex nickel chemical in motor oil increases the life of certain automobile engine parts by decomposing and producing nickel oxide which is plated out at points of load thus reducing the rate of wear.

Because of its exceptional ductility, commercially pure nickel can be drawn into fine wire less than one-thousandth of an inch in diameter. A pound of such wire will stretch 80 miles.

A personal transceiver, which man can use to speak to any person on earth, could possibly replace the telephone, as we know it today, by 1985. Satellites using nickel-containing alloys will beam the signal toward the desired receiver wherever it is.

Tiny nickel stainless steel rods, inserted into the muscle tissue on the backs of salmon fingerlings, are used for migration studies. Less than one-twentieth of an inch long, the rods are injected with a hypodermic needle and cause no discomfort to the salmon.

Ord was host to 160 county officials from throughout the state last week. The officials gathered at the Veterans Club for their quarterly luncheon and meeting. Approximately 25 attended from Valley County. Next quarter's meeting will be held in September at Greeley.

Others Are Saying . . .

IDAHO FALLS, IDAHO, EASTERN IDAHO FARMER: William McChesney Martin, Jr., chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, says that this country today is living in a 'Fool's Paradise' financially. Certainly we are; we have been for a long time. But Martin's dire prediction of financial disaster to come unless we mend our ways will fall on deaf ears; nobody wants to listen. And the merry-go-round will keep right on rolling."

ELK POINT, S.D., LEADER-COURIER: "Man is equal before God and before the law. Beyond that there are so many variables in individuals that it is impossible to legislate equality. This country was built by highly motivated people who did not want to be average, they wanted to excel. Equality is a delusion, it is something to strive for but will not be attained until we arrive at some highly improbable Utopia."

SANTA PAULA, CALIF., CHRONICLE: "We are grimly conscious of the violence in the streets with its drama and tragedy, but we fail to get equally aroused with the student agitators who are eroding our values of fair play, citizenship responsibility and property rights . . . It is becoming increasingly difficult for politicians to express their views on college campuses and get a fair hearing without being greeted by violence or intolerant demonstrations . . . We have differences in this country and that is what makes it great. We need these differences, and we must see that the right for men to express their views, no matter how unpopular, is not encroached on."

DAMARISCOTTA, ME., NEWS: "It is obvious that unless something extraordinary comes we will have more and more and not less and less government domination . . . Now and then it might be a good idea to refuse a government subsidy until you are sure it is really good. Something for nothing just never exists, and remember the government has nothing to spend but OUR MONEY."

ST. MARY'S, PA., PRESS: "We have a government for the people, by the people, etc. A great many of these people complain about the taxes, how this is done and how that is done, but they themselves are just too lazy to go to the polls and vote for any changes . . . We will have a presidential election in November that might see more people going to the polls. We sincerely hope so."

VINTON, VA., MESSENGER: ". . . we would like for you to read a few comments made the other day by Representative John W. Wylder, a member of Congress from the State of New York . . . The weekly press is the hometown voice and conscience of our country. It hasn't the far flung organization of the big daily. Often one, two or three people gather the news, write it, edit it, write the headlines and do the makeup . . . It's an excellent medium and supplements the daily. Let's help it prosper."

LIVINGSTON, TEXAS, ENTERPRISE: "What does it cost to keep a nation progressive — not just in dollars, but in things like the personal help and support we give our children, and thereby our public school systems? Our children are our most valuable resources. You've heard the trite expression many times: 'Tomorrow's leaders, etc.' And yet, it's true. So the cost is not just in what we pay each year in taxes for school books, and teachers' salaries — not just school clothes and lunch money. It's more than that. It's how much and what kind of encouragement you give your child."

ANDERSON, S.C., FREE PRESS: "(The) . . . White House staff, already the largest in history, continues to grow every month, according to U.S. News and World Report. The magazine reported the staff is so large that even senior aides are unable to keep track of all the people called in to advise the President." And the . . . budget was said to have been cut to the bone."

The Holts are natives of Ord — she is the former Shirley Janus. They have three daughters, Loree, Jacqueline and Tammy.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Manchester of Aurora, Colo., spent Sunday evening at the Joe Polak home.

Loup City's first Polish Days celebration was barely over when Don Schwaderer began calling for a "bigger and better" extravaganza next year.

The weekend's activities were spread over three days with children's foot races, three-legged races, and water fights Friday; a Polak dinner, outdoor entertainment and a dance Saturday; and a water ski show at Sherman Reservoir Sunday.

Mr. Schwaderer was chairman of the first Polish Days celebration, which was three years in the making.

"The first year we were fairly disorganized and it never really got off the ground," he said. "Then last year the community devoted its major effort to the Nebraska centennial celebration."

This year's celebrants were estimated at 2,000 for the Saturday festivities, with 1,500 being served dinner that day.

Next year Mr. Schwaderer hopes to have a larger entertainment program, perhaps a midway and carnival, some name bands, and some Polish dancers.

Clarence Damratowski acted as master of ceremonies for Saturday's program of entertainment, held on the courthouse lawn. The program consisted primarily of Polish songs and dances.

Let the People Choose

The primaries—what there were of them—are all complete, and the voters have had their say. Yet we still don't know who the Presidential candidates will be.

In this year of surprise in the Presidential race, one important fact has been made clear—besides the need for armed body guards by each of the aspirants. That is that the people really have very little to say about who will represent them in November.

With the nominating conventions drawing ever closer, at least two major contenders still stand out in each party.

No Choice in Either Party

On the Democratic side there's Vice-President Hubert Humphrey, who didn't enter a single primary and yet is still the front-runner for the nomination, and Eugene McCarthy, who did enter but lost more than he won.

On the Republican side Richard Nixon, who entered every primary except California's and won them all, is leading against Nelson Rockefeller, who claims he wants to give the people a choice, yet carefully avoided a single primary confrontation with his opponent.

Now it's up to a few hundred people at those smoke-filled summer carnivals to decide for the millions of others in America whom they will get a chance to vote for.

Better Opportunity for Nebraskans

At least we in Nebraska got a chance to express our opinions, regardless of how little the delegates we elected are obligated to stick by them. That's more than the residents of 36 other states got to do.

Voters have been asking for years to do away with the electoral system, whereby a man receiving a majority of the popular vote in the general election may not necessarily receive a majority of the electoral vote. To that we should add the present system of selecting candidates.

There's really a very simple alternative. One national primary, whereby voters in all states go to the polls the same day, would do nicely.

In that manner the selection of a candidate could be taken from the pollsters and the delegates and given to the people, where it belongs.

They Write as Well as They Budget

Taxpayers will be interested in learning why the 10 percent surtax on incomes, passed last week by the Congress, was necessary.

Across the editor's desk this week came a four-page news release from the office of Senator Carl Curtis, one of the two U.S. senators from Nebraska.

One page of the release was devoted to explaining a speech Senator Curtis had given on the floor of the Senate protesting elimination of the phrase, "It's as easy as pie," from the American language. The other three pages contained a verbatim text of the senator's remarks.

According to the release, the phrase has been eliminated because of a Food and Drug Administration regulation which goes into great detail about what constitutes a cherry pie and which sets forth a standard of quality for the pastry. The implication is that a cherry pie is no longer simple or easy because of the federal terminology.

Definition of Cherry Pie

The FDA descriptions are indeed extraneous and border on the ludicrous. A sample:

"Cherry pie is the food prepared by incorporating in a filling contained in a pastry shell mature, whole, pitted, stemmed, red, sour (tart) cherries (fresh, frozen or canned) that have not been treated with a chemical preservative. The top of the pie may be open or it may be wholly or partly covered with pastry or other suitable topping . . ."

And on it goes, for 27 more typewritten lines.

Senator Curtis said this illustrates the extent to which Big Government has dehumanized our way of life through administrative rule-making, and it shows why the cost of government has risen so high.

It also shows that the federal writers better stick to regulations where they have a guaranteed income from our tax money. They'd go broke for sure if they had to compete with Betty Crocker on the outside.

Ancient Babylonians and their neighbors mixed a form of petroleum with sulfur, beer, and other substances to treat everything from inflamed eyes to sore feet. In medieval Europe, crude oil was used by sufferers from scurvy, cramps, and something called asthmatic passion, as well as by "forgetful people and those who have lost their memory from an excess of phlegm."

Draft of State's Open Housing Law Set for Review by Interested Parties

By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

LINCOLN — Gov. Norbert Tiemann has outlined provisions of a proposed state law to ban discrimination in the sale or rental of most homes and apartments in Nebraska.

The "draft" of the open housing measure will now be submitted to local government officials, civil rights groups and real estate interests for comment.

Tiemann will consider recommended additions or deletions before presenting the legislation to the 1969 Unicameral, which convenes in January.

The preliminary proposal was drawn by the University of Nebraska Law College at the governor's request. It is modeled for the most part after the new federal open housing act.

Tiemann said the principal difference is the vesting of control over housing discrimination with the state Equal Opportunity Commission rather than the federal government.

The governor recommended the size of the commission be increased from seven to 10 members, and that it be given full judicial authority to enforce the law, including the right to subpoena witnesses.

Appeals from a commission order could be carried to a district court and ultimately the Nebraska Supreme Court.

Away With Middlecence

The prime purpose of a convention, of course, is to exchange knowledge, and this goal was well rounded in the program arranged by the lively Kansas Press Women who hosted the national convention a week ago.

Jacqueline Cochran, the famed aviatrix, self-made from a poverty-stricken child and noted now for her cosmetic products, told of the many firsts she had garnered in flying. Often she had topped men competitors. It was really inspiring that a stray youngster could achieve so much.

Three cracking good speakers that afternoon provided mental food, sugar-coating it with wit. Eldon Case of the Wichita Eagle and Beacon reviewed Biblical influences still found in printing rooms. He talked of the first printing being done in churches or monasteries, accounting for phrases still current such as wrong font, hell box, printer's devil, and the way the term "a chapel of printers" came to be used for an organization of printers.

He urged more white space, wider columns, more pictures — especially horizontal ones. He told of the great demands the speedy new printing machinery puts on the editorial staff. Mr. Case felt women were particularly adapted to news fields.

Nebraska's own Neale Cople gave a useful description of depth reporting and told why it is a necessity in this modern world. It must be complete, accurate and thorough, he declared, and it must answer all the questions a reader might pose. He felt that women were very good at this type of writing, and urged them to make it their own.

A fine photographer from Beech Aircraft told of his successful career in this field, kidding himself as he told of his experiences, and a recent book he'd written which he said "isn't worth the $15 . . . but buy it anyway." His name was James Yarnell.

Dr. Harry Levinson of the Menninger Clinic gave an excellent talk. He said we are all like porcupines but some of us are more prickly than others. "Behind every successful man is an astonished woman," said he. He gave a list of do's and don'ts for women employees. He suggested they establish a wide variety of activities. That they maintain job relations on the job and social relations in a social life: he urged they go back to school and keep learning.

"Don't be afraid to care, and don't be afraid to show it. To love and to work is the way to mental health."

Kay Arvin, young Wichita attorney, also talked about women and their role in business. She stated, "Somebody gets the best eight hours of a woman's work, either the boss, the kids, the house and meals, or lastly the husband. Every woman can have all these items, but they must be timed; she cannot have them all at the same time and do a good job.

Wait until the family is grown up and gone; keep alert; feel adequate; don't slump into middlecence; pick up a career later. These were some of her phrases.

There were several other excellent speakers, such as humorist Jack Smith who writes a column that is syndicated from Los Angeles.

There were about 60 or 70 door prizes a day. Our companion, Helen Alkire from Lexington, won the first one, a rare and handsome Rinaldi figurine valued at over $100. It was given by the woman who heads Beech Aircraft, from her personal collection.

They also gave a rough diamond, to be cut and mounted as a 1 1/2-carat stone. They gave a lovely typewriter I drooled for, and an Italian wool knit dress and coat costume.

But what I pined for most was the 12 hours of free flying instruction offered by Cessna Aircraft. No. 1 won a summery green breakfast coat.

Irma

A person found guilty of housing discrimination under the law would be forced to pay actual damages to the complainant, and attorney's fees.

Generally the state proposal would forbid discrimination on the basis of race, color, religion or national origin, but there are some exemptions.

A private home owner would remain exempt in selling his own home without a broker's help or the use of discriminatory advertising. The law would likewise not apply to rentals in an owner-occupied two-flat, three-flat or four-flat building.

The governor's proposal contains an across-the-board ban on discrimination by lending institutions such as banks and savings and loan associations.

A home owner could not refuse to sell to a Negro on the ground that it would upset his neighbors to have an integrated community, and the measure would prohibit anyone from trying to make money by urging home owners to sell because Negroes may buy homes in a neighborhood.

Enrollment Crush End Seen

A rapidly declining birth rate and the steady exodus of families with young children from the state will combine to halt the enrollment crush in Nebraska schools in the years ahead.

That is the conclusion of the state Education Department in a report released outlining reasons for the expected downward trend in the number of elementary and secondary school students.

The department estimated that by the 1971-72 academic year, public and private school enrollments in Nebraska will drop from the present 383,716 to 367,430.

Principally affected will be the lower grades. It projected the number of 6-year-olds attending kindergarten will decline 26.4 percent to 21,800.

First-grade enrollments are expected to fall off by 19.3 percent to 26,300, second-grade by 10.5 percent to 28,530, and third grade by 5.5 percent to 29,820.

The department observed that the statistics indicate "lower school enrollments in many of Nebraska's counties will quite likely reduce the need for as many classrooms as are presently in use," and that a "corresponding reduction in the number of school teachers may also result."

Space Taken at Fair

The State Fair Board reports all available exhibition space at this year's fair has been reserved, assuring one of the largest display spectacles in the event's 99-year history.

More than 7,000 individual exhibits are planned for the Aug. 30 through Sept. 5 extravaganza. Fair Manager Harry Brandt said, "There will be something old and something new," said Brandt. "We hope to attract a record attendance."

Spending Below Expected Level

Spending from the state tax-supported general fund has been running $12.8 million below expectations during the 1967-69 biennium, but fiscal experts look for it to catch up soon.

During the first 11 months of the two-year fiscal period, expenditures amounted to $81.1 million compared with a projected outlay of $93.9 million.

The 1967 legislature appropriated $232.4 million to the general fund, with the bulk of this scheduled to come from the new sales income tax program.

The spending rate will pick up in December and January when the new state-aid-to-schools and governmental subdivision programs go into effect. Together they will require $35 million in state tax funds.

Another drain on the treasury will occur when salary increases for state workers go into effect in July.

Bridge Inspections Set

The Nebraska Roads Department has begun an inspection of all bridges in the state built before 1935 to determine if they are safe.

G. C. Strobel, deputy state engineer, said the survey will cover such items as weather wear, pier strength and pavement deterioration.

"The purpose of the program is to find out which bridges need to be repaired or replaced," he said.

Strobel estimated 500 bridges will be inspected by four department teams. He said the project should be completed this fall.

The inspection program was recommended by the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads after a bridge collapse at Point Pleasant, W. Va., claimed many lives last December.

KERRY ON

—soul house—
Projecting an image of happiness and content, he dwelt in a house of loneliness and uncertainty.

A mansion to others—his soul house was empty and barren. Many had knocked on the front door, but none had crossed its threshold. No one had been allowed entry.

In his soul house he wanted no visitors. It was his alone. No one would ever pass the portals. They were barred forever.

What others envisioned as a temple — richly furnished — was nothing but a sanctuary. Room upon barren room held the truths of a half-lived life.

There were rumors . . . started by those who had knocked and brought him to the door. They'd glance quickly in — glimpsing the vestibule — hopeful of envisioning the interior. And just as quickly he'd close the door behind him, stepping out to visit with them but never, once, allowing entrance.

Usually these same people that had paid a visit to his soul house would circulate false notions of its furnishings. They would tell others of the lavish furnishings they saw within.

He knew — as its only occupant — that the house was barren. What others saw was what they wanted to see. Little were these visitors aware that a well-placed mirror reflected their own image — and he knew this.

What they saw — if glimpsed over his shoulder through the half-opened door — was a reflection of themselves . . . and, perhaps, a part of his shoulder as he shut the door quickly behind him.

Yet how they talked! He'd overheard their detailed explanation to others of the interior . . . what they'd "seen" in his soul house. Smiling smugly to himself, he'd watch the intent interest of others as they listened to the account of his "visitors." How curious people are — he thought — of that which they cannot see!

Only late at night—and, on occasion, during an extremely "bad" day—would he seek the sanctuary of his soul house. His retreat usually came in darkness, though, in the rest of the world slept.

Silently he returned to the darkened sanctuary of hopes . . . and dreams . . . and his half-lived life. Slowly—after closing the front door securely behind him—he'd light the torch that illuminated the vaulted chamber within.

By the flickering fire-light he seated himself quietly at the grand piano. Staring into the darkness he'd let the warmth of the flame melt his soul in the grandiosly resplendent of his surroundings.

Dreams would return . . . half-lived lives were reborn on the resonance of a single note . . . a single flame. Quietly he'd sit . . . alone and lonely . . . seeking lost loves and forgotten faces . . . seeking, but never finding.

The torch is burning . . .

Gun Control Legislation

Amid the emotionalism and hysteria which still exists in this country from the recent tragic assassination of Senator Kennedy, both the House and the Senate are pushing for immediate action to control the sale of firearms.

The bill, as reported out of committee, forbids mail order purchases of rifles and shotguns; forbids dealers to sell rifles and shotguns to residents of another state, even if they try to buy in person; forbids the interstate shipment of ammunition, except to licensed dealers; and bans any sale of rifles and shotguns to persons under age 18.

This last prohibition, I presume, would prohibit a person under 18 from owning or using a rifle or shotgun. This is the time of life when young people should be taught how to safely use firearms.

Last year in the United States, it is estimated that two million firearms were sold, and total estimates of firearms in the hands of individuals run as high as 200 million. This sort of legislation will not stop the criminal element, the deranged, or the insane from securing firearms.

It seems to me that in this wave of emotionalism we are attacking the problem from the wrong end. Strict and very tough laws should be enacted providing severe penalties against the person who uses a loaded weapon to commit a robbery, a felony, or an attempt on someone's life.

Due to Supreme Court decisions over the last few years, the country has leaned over backwards to protect the suspect and to prosecute the criminal. I have had many letters on this subject in the last two weeks, and my mail is currently running better than two to one against gun control legislation, and in favor of legislation to protect the law-abiding citizen.

Farm Program

The Rules Committee last week reported out a one-year extension of the present farm program — a program which has resulted in ruinously low prices for both corn and wheat. The current program does not expire until the end of 1969, but one farm organization seemed to feel that if the program were not immediately extended for one year that dire consequences would result.

My mail over the last two or three years has not been in support of the present farm program, which has reduced the prices of both corn and wheat to the lowest level since the depression days of the 30s. The next President of the United States, to be inaugurated in January, and the new secretary of agriculture, should have an opportunity to present to the Congress recommendations for a new farm program.

Come to Church. Will You Be In Church Next Sunday? by Leonard S. Clark, Minister. North Loup-Scotia United Methodist Churches. Did you ever wonder... what makes for high attendance figures for worship and church school? What is it that fills a church, that increases number in church school? This is the vacation season, the time of year when most churches become concerned about the all too numerous empty pews in church on the Sabbath Day. Of course, we do not deny anyone a vacation when both body and soul can be refreshed from the daily round of ones labors, but conscientious churchmen are concerned about the usual "summer slump". What makes high attendance figures? "I have given thought to this over the years" says one Pastor. "We have many programs to promote attendance, and ideas which 'guarantee' that attendance will increase! However, when it comes right down to results, the increases in attendance or the drop in attendance rests on EACH INDIVIDUAL MEMBER of the group! It is up to you and me to see that we are in church on Sunday, or we have no congregation!" Be assured your church is counting on you next Sunday! Why not vow now to be there unless you are out of town on vacation. If you are on vacation do not take a vacation from the Lord! Be certain that you are enjoying that vacation only because the Lord has not taken a vacation from your interests! See you in church next Sabbath Day!
