

Numerous Activities Scheduled to Note July 4th Holiday

A big day of athletic activities capped by a large fireworks show is scheduled locally in celebration of the Fourth of July holiday.

The activities will begin at 2 p.m. with three-legged races and sack races for children from ages 5 through 12. The competition, which is sponsored by the local chapter of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, will be divided into four age brackets. Separate contests will be held for boys and girls.

Prizes will be given to all contestants. The races will be held at the city athletic field.

Ord's midget baseball team will play the Comstock midgets at 2:30 p.m.

Another baseball game pitting the city's Sherman Howard League team against a group of former players will be played at the city diamond, beginning at 7:30 p.m. It will precede the fireworks show at the same location.

Ord's Rotary Club is sponsoring the fireworks. Gary Ackles, a member of the committee in charge, said Tuesday that the show will begin when it gets dark, or about 9:30 p.m. The baseball game will be halted if necessary.

Admission is free to both the game and the fireworks. However, the Chamber of Commerce is reimbursing the baseball team $200 for the money it will lose by not charging admission.

The fireworks show will take place "in the neighborhood" of $700, Ackles said. He indicated that the club's fund drive to finance the show has been completely successful.

Assault Charges Filed Against Trio

Charges of assault with intent to commit rape have been filed against three Valley County youths in connection with an incident which allegedly occurred Saturday night near Burwell.

Conviction on the charges carries a minimum sentence of two years in prison and a maximum sentence of 15 years.

Named in the charges were DeLyle Burson, 18, of Ord; Thomas Vaughn, 18, of North Loup; and David Konkoleski, 15, of Elyria. Garfield County Attorney Keith Kovanda said all three will be tried in criminal court rather than juvenile court.

A 16-year-old girl, Mary Giblin of Omaha, is in the Community

Memorial Hospital at Burwell, suffering from injuries reportedly sustained in the incident.

She was listed yesterday morning in satisfactory condition, "although still not feeling very well," by Dr. Ben Meckel, the attending physician. He said she was suffering from lacerations and contusions over a good part of her body and had been criminally assaulted. Contrary to rumors, she is conscious, he said.

School Levy Decrease Anticipated for 1968-69

Prospects for reduction of the Ord school tax levy are bright following adoption Monday night of a new budget.

The Board of Education voted to approve the new budget at its regular monthly meeting. It calls for total expenditures during the coming fiscal year of $365,270, up slightly over $25,000 from last year.

However, outgoing Supt. Roger Clough said the levy should drop from the 33 mills assessed last year to about 30 this time because of increased state aid and increased assessed value of property.

In other business the Board of Education approved the bid of Simpson Structural Co. Inc., of Norfolk, to construct the new music building, and formally endorsed Dr. Bill Gogan as new superintendent.

Dr. Gogan returns to Ord after an absence of eight years. He was a teacher and coach during his previous stay here, from 1950 to 1960. His appointment as superintendent was effective Monday.

In approving the budget, the board voted to pull $20,000 to be paid on the new music building during the coming year from the general fund budget and place it in a special building fund, if this can be done legally.

Regardless of whether it can or can't, Clough said taxpayers can expect to pay about 30 mills per dollar of assessed valuation during the coming fiscal year. That's because the school levy will probably stay at 30 if the building payment is left in the general fund budget, and if it's pulled the general fund will drop to 28 but a separate building fund levy of 2 mills will be assessed.

Besides the new building, the other major increase in the budget is for teachers' salaries. They'll go up more than $30,000 overall.

Much of that increase is due to a hike in the base salary—that amount paid a new teacher with a bachelor's degree and no previous teaching experience. It will be raised from $5,400 to $5,900 a year.

The base is also used as the beginning point in computing all teaching salaries. As the teachers increase in experience and educational level, their salaries go up according to a set schedule.

Clough said that even with the increase to $5,900, he believes Ord's base salary is still among the lowest 10 percent in the state.

To partially offset the increases in salaries and the music building payment, sharp cuts have been effected in other operating expenses.

The biggest slice came off the amount of money obligated for purchase of furniture and equipment. It was slashed from $25,000 last year to $9,000 this year.

Other major cuts were in the funds allotted for replacement of instructional equipment, salaries of repairmen, and repair of buildings.

Grade School Principal Gerald Decker reported that this coincided with recommendations he received during a recent conference with Title I officials.

"Based on a recent visit here, they think our equipment and materials are in pretty good shape now."

School Open Tomorrow

Summer school students in Ord will get a holiday today (Thursday), but school will resume tomorrow at the regular time. That's the official word from Gerald Decker, director of the school.

Konkoleski's hearing has not been set pending the posting of bond.

Sheriff Lockyer said he was called by Burwell city policeman, who had in turn been notified by hospital authorities, after the alleged "party" had broken up. He said the girl was taken to the hospital by friends.

Investigation has revealed that about 35 or 40 youths were present, he said.

Miss Giblin's parents were also vacationing at the Comstock ranch, the sheriff said. He indicated that she was staying overnight in Burwell with a female friend.

No arrests were made at the scene, he said.

Farmer and ranchers were still awaiting word from Washington yesterday on whether five Central Nebraska counties will be declared drought disaster areas.

Lloyd Zirkmund, manager of the Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service office in Ord, said he hoped to receive word Wednesday. If the answer is affirmative, he anticipated an eight county meeting will be called to work out details and make sure land appraisals in the affected areas are fair.

Use of County Taxes by State Homes Questioned in Suit Filed by Ord Man

The legality of approximately $75,000 in annual tax payments has been challenged by a suit filed in Valley County district court.

Filed on behalf of Clark Weckbach, the suit will affect every taxpayer in the county if it is upheld. It maintains that taxes paid through the county for support of state institutions, including the Hastings State Hospital and the Beatrice State Home, are unconstitutional under Section 1A, Article VIII, of the Nebraska State Constitution, which prohibits the state from levying a property tax for state purposes "when and if an income or sales tax or a combination thereof is adopted by the legislature." Such a combination was adopted Nov. 18, 1965.

Before the income-sales tax became effective, patients in the institutions were supported from property taxes collected by the state.

When legislation was passed eliminating the property tax, the state's laws were also amended to provide that funds to support the state institutions would in the future be levied as a "county tax" instead of a "state tax" as in the past.

Weckbach's suit says that this levy is nevertheless for a "state purpose," and therefore contrary to the provisions of Section 1A, Article VIII.

"In effect, we contend that the state has never really gotten out of the property tax business, even though the money is now being collected through the county instead of the state," he said Monday.

"The state contends it's a county tax, but those certainly aren't county institutions that are being supported by it," he added.

The county levy this fiscal year for support of the state institutions was 3.24 mills out of a total budget of 15.28 mills. Thus, if Weckbach's position is upheld, 21.2 percent of the year's taxes already collected will have to be refunded.

In addition, that percentage will have to be stricken from future collections.

Each county supports the institutions at a rate determined by the number of patients from that county in the hospitals.

As of Feb. 29, Valley County had paid a total of $56,018.94 for support during the previous nine months. The hospitals have not yet submitted their requests for the three-month period ending May 31.

However, County Clerk Thelma Dulitz said Friday she is sure it will be equal to or in excess of the $19,000 plus paid for the previous three-month period. If it is, the total for a year will be well over $75,000. During the previous 12 months it was $68,260.69.

No records are available on the total number of taxpayers in the county. However, Mrs. Dulitz said 2,978 voters are registered. If all of them are taxpayers, and she said undoubtedly they're not, the average refund per individual would be over $25. She pointed out, however, that that is an average which would vary with the total amount of taxes paid.

The home county of each resident at the Hastings State Hospital is billed at a rate of $13.30 per day of care. The rate for residents at the Beatrice home is $4.90 per day.

During the last two quarters for which records are available, Valley County had 13 residents at Hastings and 12 at Beatrice. For the quarter before that, the county had 15 at Hastings and 12 at Beatrice, plus one at the Norfolk State Hospital, whose rate is also $13.30 per day and is funded in the same manner.

Suits similar to the one Weckbach has filed have also been entered in some other counties. The one in Douglas County was upheld by a district court but a request for a new trial has been lodged.

A second portion of the Weckbach suit asks the court to declare unconstitutional this fiscal year's total levy of 15.28 mills, since the state constitution limits its counties to a maximum levy of 14.28 mills. However, he said that if the 3.24 mills are thrown out, the court will not have to act on the second part of the petition since the county will then be below its authorized limit.

Weckbach pointed out that he was not against support of the state institutions, but that he wanted the support kept within the proper legal frame work.

"Otherwise a precedent could be established whereby the state might impose a financial burden on the counties for any project it desired," he said.

Ten Area Students Earn Grade Honors At Kearney College

Ten students from Loup Valley communities have been named to the dean's honor roll at Kearney State College for the second semester of the 1967-68 school year.

Linda Foster, a freshman from Elyria, heads the list with an all-A record. She is a 1967 graduate of Wheeler County High School, majoring in English. During the year she also served on the board of directors and as worship chairman for the school's Wesley Foundation.

Three of those named to the honor roll were seniors this year. They were Terry Drake of Comstock, with a 3.7 grade average out of a possible 4.0; Janice Rathbun of Ord, also with a 3.7; and Linda Schwaderer of Loup City, with a 3.6.

Steve Grantham of Scotia was the only junior honored. His average was 3.6.

Sophomores selected were Esther Lutes of Loup City, with a 3.3 grade average, and Myron Lakin of Burwell, 3.5.

Besides Miss Foster, freshmen honored were Alan Vancura of Ord, 3.3; Rodney Czaplewski of Loup City, 3.7; and Devin Hoppes of Burwell, 3.5.

Plans are progressing for Arcadia's Fall Festival, according to Mrs. W. Bumgarner, parade co-chairman.

The festival will be held Labor Day, Sept. 2. Bruce Ohme is overall chairman.

Mrs. Bumgarner has announced that prizes of $10, $7.50 and $5 will be presented for the top three parade floats in each division. Children's floats will be judged separately, she said.

Categories are: schools and 4-H clubs, churches, organizations and extension clubs, and businesses.

Mrs. Bumgarner, on behalf of the parade committee, has asked float sponsors to call her at 769-2682. Her co-chairman is Marley Sell.

Contract Approved, Let For New Music Building

A bid of $58,384 by Simpson Structural Co. Inc., of Norfolk, was approved Monday night by the Ord Board of Education for construction of a music addition to the high school.

The addition will contain vocal and instrument practice rooms, as well as administrative office space. It will be added on to the north side of the present building.

Paul Schulte represented the company at Monday's meeting. He said construction will begin soon but that it probably won't be completed before October.

"Let's set a target date of Oct. 15," he said. "If we're lucky you can be in it by the middle of September. We're in a position to move quickly, and once we get on it we'll stay on it."

Schulte indicated a lot will depend on the availability of materials from local suppliers. He inferred that as much as possible will be purchased locally, and that local subcontractors will be used.

The building will cover slightly less than 5,000 square feet. Thus, the cost per square foot is just over $10.

"We were hoping for 8 to 10 dollars," outgoing Supt. Roger Clough said. "So that figure is pretty much in line with what we were expecting."

Schulte's company has already checked on matching the outside bricks of the present building, he said, and he thinks a pretty good match up is possible.

"We'll purchase bricks for the new addition from the same company that made those used in the old building," he said.

Features of the building will include a recessed vocal room, so that it can be renovated easily if the school ever decides on another use for it, and a means whereby the music practice areas can be closed off from the rest of the building. This will enable officials to work in the administrative offices during the summer months or at other periods when school is out without air conditioning or heating the entire building.

Dr. Otis Miller, president of the Board of Education, also asked the contractor to check into the possibility of a central cleaning system. This would save money and time because the cus-tomian would have to carry only a vacuum hose from room to room and not an entire unit, he said.

Dr. Dale Karre, vice president of the board, explained that the group "went to a company which is experienced in building onto schools." The fact that Simpson will use local suppliers and contractors also figured heavily in the choice, he stated.

The company recently completed a similar project at Randolph.

New Supervisor Will Be Named

An appointment will be made to fill the unexpired term of Melvin Clement at next week's meeting of the Valley County Board of Supervisors.

The supervisors will meet in regular session Tuesday at 10 a.m.

Clement represents District 3 and is moving to Goshen.

The appointment of his successor will be effective Aug. 1.

The term runs until January 1971. County Clerk Thelma Dulitz said Monday six persons have applied for the job, but she will continue to accept applications until the board meets.

Benefit Sale for Mentally Retarded Adds $405.60 to Building Fund

A total of $405.60 was realized from the community benefit sale held Saturday night for the Ord Special Services School.

Proceeds will go into a building fund for the school and will be matched dollar for dollar by the federal government, if approval of a request for $21,200 is received. Total cost of the building will be $42,400.

An additional $11 was earned Saturday by members of the Fort Hartsuff 4-H Club, who sold home-made cookies, iced tea and coffee at the sale. It also was contributed to the building fund.

All items sold were donated by friends of the retarded. Contributions came from as far away as Rockville, which sent a pickup load. There also were donations from Burwell, as well as Ord.

Among the items sold were furniture, tools, a live Shetland pony, a live rabbit, a barn, chicken house, dishwasher, new automatic washer, and an electric dryer.

The sale was handled by Leo Wolfe and Stan Nolte, assisted by Duane Brechbill. With their good-natured banter, the trio also managed to sell six cases of honey left over from the Junior Chamber of Commerce's "Honey Sunday," that went, into the building kitty too.

Mrs. Jewell Buoy, local coordinator for the drive, said Monday that a building fund account has been opened at the First National Bank. She said checks should be made out to "Building Fund for School for Retarded, Ord".

Contributions may be left with

Sheriff Apprehends Man Wanted by FBI in Auto Near Elyria

A man wanted in three states by the Federal Bureau of Investigation was picked up Thursday by Valley County Sheriff Clarence Fox.

The man was taken into custody near Elyria, Sheriff Fox said. He explained that he had received a call from officials in Taylor asking him to make the pickup. He said the man was wanted in the Loup County town on a "no funds" check charge.

A radio check with the National Crime Investigation Commission in Washington also revealed that the man, Jerome Dolphin of Madison, Wis., was wanted in Minneapolis, Minn., for parole violation; in Green Bay, Wis., for not returning a car rented May 4; in Madison, Wis., on a bad check charge; and in Vermillion, S.D., for failure to pay a motel charge.

Sheriff Fox said the man was still driving the rented car, which was due back at the agency May 6, when he was apprehended. He said the speedometer showed it had been driven about 7,000 miles since being rented.

Dolphin was returned to Taylor, the sheriff said, and will be extradited to Minneapolis when complete on the check charge is complete.

The car is being held here until the rental agency picks it up, he added.

Correction

Two youths who pleaded guilty in County Court to charges of minors in possession of alcoholic beverages were fined $100, rather than $25 as reported in last week's Quiz. The $100 was a minimum fine for that offense.

Three other youths who pleaded guilty to intoxication were fined $25 as reported. Those also were minimum fines.

Ord's Junior Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring a raffle with the proceeds to be used for a community betterment project. The prize is this riding lawn mower—without the model. (Sorry, fellas!) Tickets are $1 and can be bought from any Jaycee. A drawing will be held July 20 at the Jaycee Junior Rodeo to determine the winner. Ila Bollesen is a student at Bob Jones University in Greenville, S.C., who is working this summer for Norm Schmidt's accounting firm. She kindly consented to grace our picture.

Kernels & Husks

By
John Schale

The past two weeks we have had a flood of calls inquiring what to do about the pesky little caterpillar that is working on shade trees and shrubs in the area.

This little pest has been positively identified as the Tussock Moth larva. The larvae feed on leaves of trees and in some cases have done a pretty good job of defoliating whole branches or even whole trees.

We recommend spraying infested trees with any of the insecticides — either DDT, Melathion or Sevin. The insecticides should be applied with a high pressure sprayer. Mix two quarts of the 25 percent DDT per 100 gallons of water; or, when using Sevin, mix two pounds of the wettable powder per 100 gallons of water.

For lesser amounts use either Sevin or DDT at the rate of two tablespoons per gallon of water. Melathion is recommended at one table-spoon per gallon of water.

Lawn and Garden Clinic
A lawn and garden clinic is scheduled July 17 in the 411 Building at the fair grounds. The meeting will start at 2 p.m.

Speakers will be three of the headliners on the popular Monday night program, "Back Yard Farmer," seen on educational television.

Dr. Robert Rosell, Extension entomologist, will be on hand to answer questions on lawn and garden insects and their control.

Also on the program will be Dr. John Wehling, Extension plant pathologist, who will lead a discussion on plant diseases. To answer questions on weeds and their control will be John Furrer, Extension agronomist, specializing in weed control.

The afternoon meeting will be followed by a twilight lawn and garden tour. Final arrangements for the tour are pending. More information on this event will be forthcoming.

District 4-H Horse Show
The district 4-H horse show is scheduled July 15 at Stuart. This event is a prelude to the state 4-H horse show which will be held in Lincoln during the state fair.

Contestants will compete in pleasure classes, horsemanship, reining, pole bending, and barrel racing. To qualify for state fair, participants must place in the blue or purple ribbon groups.

The event is scheduled to start at 9 a.m., rain or shine.

Watch Feeder Steer Weight
Better think twice if you plan to put that extra 40 to 50 pounds on your feeder steers this summer.

Costs of adding weight to animals already in the upper weight brackets are steadily climbing. There is also a good chance that an increase in steer weights could have a negative effect on prices.

Average weight will be a critical factor in determining prices during the coming weeks. Here's why: Number of cattle on feed June 1 was up 2 percent from a year earlier. This increase was almost entirely in heifers which normally are slaughtered at lighter weights than steers.

Looking at numbers alone, the prospective increase in beef production would be reasonably well in line with anticipated increase in demand. However, if average weights should increase, supplies could outstrip demand.

A 20-pound per-head increase in average slaughter weights would boost beef output by more than 2 percent, and the effect on prices would be even greater — in the opposite direction.

So you will be dollars ahead if you sell your animals when they are fed to grade.

Wheat Prices Look Drab
The outlook is anything but bright for wheat prices as harvest progresses throughout Nebraska. Growers can expect no better price than they received for their 1967-68 crop.

A number of factors — including prospects for a near record crop and a drop in exports — are exerting downward pressure on prices. However, the government price support will again provide a floor for wheat prices this year.

The U.S. winter wheat production is estimated at a record 1,230 million bushels which is 2 percent more than last year. Production of spring wheat is also up. This adds up to an estimated 1 1/2 billion bushels. Record production coupled with an estimated carry-over of 550 million bushels can only mean a gloomy outlook for the wheat producer.

However, exports will be the most important influence on wheat prices. Competition from other wheat-producing nations, plus larger world stocks, point to a slump in U.S. exports from the total of about 700 billion bushels in 1967-68. Exports of some 650 million bushels are expected in 1968-69.

There is hope that the CCC will be forced to place around 400 million bushels in strategic reserve. However, this will only affect the market for a short time. Long-term price effects will depend on purchase and release of the 400 million bushels controlled by the CCC.

Ord Personals
The Dwight Hatcher family, who are visiting Mrs. Hatcher's mother, Mrs. Kate Tolon, and other friends and relatives in the area, stopped briefly at the Cliff Flynn home Friday afternoon.

With twin red lights flashing, city policeman Dwayne Wert and John Boettcher show off the department's new police car. The 1968 Ambassador 970 has been in use for about a week. Besides the lights, other special features include citizen's band and police network radios, a special heavy-duty battery and alternator, 15-inch four-ply tires, and of course a siren. The air conditioning unit which normally comes on Ambassadors was removed. The car was purchased from Johnson Motor Co. for $350 and trade-in of the city's 1967 Chevrolet Biscayne.

Ord School Board

July 1, 1968
Budget Hearing called to order at 8:30 p.m. by President Otis Miller, with Miller, Kamard, Newland, Karre and Vodehal present. Paulsen absent. Mr. Gerald Green editor of the Ord Sun was the only person appearing at the hearing.

The Budget was reviewed and official minutes were read until the regular meeting. The official budget meeting was held per public notice which appeared in The Ord Quiz on Thursday, June 20, 1968.

The regular meeting was called to order at 8:30 p.m. by President Miller, with Miller, Kamard, Newland, Karre and Vodehal present. Paulsen absent.

Motion by Karre, seconded by Newland and carried that the Budget be approved as presented with the following changes: The $20,000 for the music addition be removed from the general budget and be put into a special levy of 2 mills. This leaves the Amended Budget total of $545,270. If for some reason this is not advantageous to the Ord School, this will be put back into the 2-7-2 category. This would then make the budget read $565,270.

Motion by Kamard, seconded by Vodehal and carried to approve of the Treasurer's report as presented.

Carol's Corner

by Carol Leggett

Many of us become discouraged when we try to improve, and the reason could very well be that we attempt too much at one time.

We should be more reasonable. It was Benjamin Franklin who made a list of his personal ideals of character and behavior, and then he said: "I judged it would be well not to distract my attention by attempting to fix on one of them at a time; and when I should be master of that, then proceed to another, and so on, till I should have gone through the list."

Yes, Mr. Franklin had the right idea! It has commonly been observed that the undoing of ambitious savers is the attempt to save too large a percentage of their incomes. At the end of five or six months they discover they have decided themselves so unmercifully that they are unappreciated. Their wardrobe is in disrepair, their hair is long and their spirits low. They suddenly decide that all their efforts are hopeless.

What they fail to see is that this competence cannot be accomplished by putting yourself in a straight-jacket. Psychiatrists say to take an honest and intelligent survey of oneself, and it will usually reveal that a lot of wasteful, costly nonsense can be dropped without any effort at all. So, I'm taking a good look. Gee, what I could do with some extra time and energy!

Rhubarb stalks are excellent for sauces and pies, but just this week I learned that the leaves are poisonous. According to the U.S. Department of Agriculture, rhubarb leaves contain an amount of oxalic acid and of oxalates sometimes great enough to cause the fatal poisoning of those who eat them. This week's recipe is for rhubarb fluff pie. 4 c. diced rhubarb 1 pkg. of strawberry Jello

1/2 pint whipping cream 2 c. sugar 20 large marshmallows Cook rhubarb and sugar together until mushy. Add no water. Then stir in the Jello until dissolved. Add marshmallows and dissolve also. Let cook, stirring occasionally. When cooled, whip cream and fold into rhubarb mixture. Pour into graham cracker crust and chill.

Children seldom misquote you; they can be depended upon to repeat word for word what you shouldn't have said in the first place!

Sunday was another "4H Day" at our house as Number One girl struggled to get a zipper perfectly in her "School Clothes" project. Number Two girl disgustingly ripped the crooked him from a cotton plaid skirt, and Number Three girl measured carefully the ingredients that made up a batch of oatmeal drop cookies. Meanwhile, Mom's headache grew increasingly worse as she remembered that the Valley County Fair is but some 20 days away!

Women have a harder time being successful in business than men. Probably it's because they have no wives to advise them!

The vacation plans of young David Norland were interrupted somewhat during the weekend. David became ill Saturday night, shortly after he and his family arrived in Ord, and underwent an emergency appendectomy at the Valley County Hospital Sunday. The Lyle Norlands of Liberty, Mo., are spending this week with Mrs. Norland's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Mason.

Concrete Slab Roof Goes On New Elks Club

Work continues to progress on the $200,000 Elks Club building going up in the northwest section of Ord.

Principal work this week consisted of putting the roof in place. Pre-stressed, reinforced concrete slabs are being used as the basic material in the roof.

Nineteen truckloads of slabs, each one approximately 41 feet in length and 6 feet wide, were hauled in Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday. Two other trucks hauled in loads of reinforced concrete beams on which the slabs will rest.

The slabs are laid across the beams, using a crane to lift them into place. Louie Prohaska, owner of the Pro Concrete and Builders Co. of Wahoo which is doing the work, said no other work is necessary to make the slabs secure. He indicated that their heavy weight will keep them in place regardless of weather conditions.

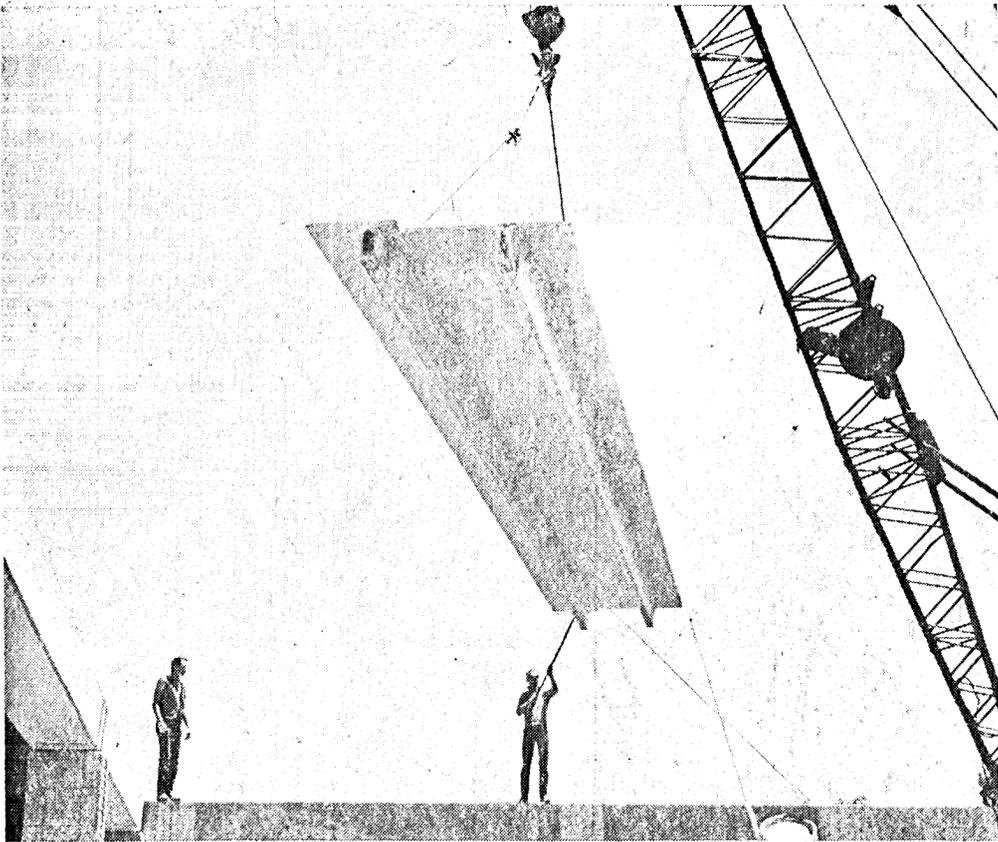

Some sort of mortar or caulking compound will be used to fill the cracks between slabs.

Prohaska listed speed, fire-proofing, and strength as primary advantages of this type of roofing. He said it can be put up in a hurry, and said if all goes well he planned to have the entire 18,000-square foot building covered by yesterday evening.

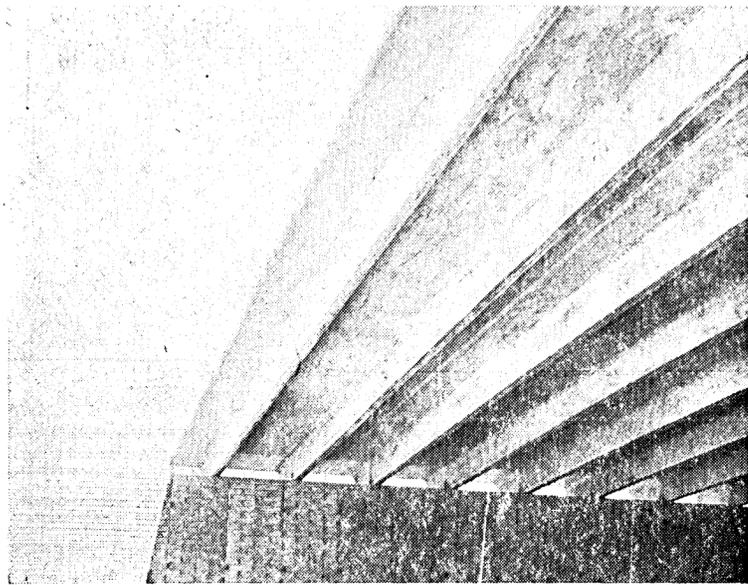

The slabs also help provide an all concrete building, Prohaska said, greatly decreasing insurance costs because of the reduced danger of fire.

"Those slabs are tremendously strong too," he said. "They're pre-stressed, and you don't have to worry about one of them ever breaking."

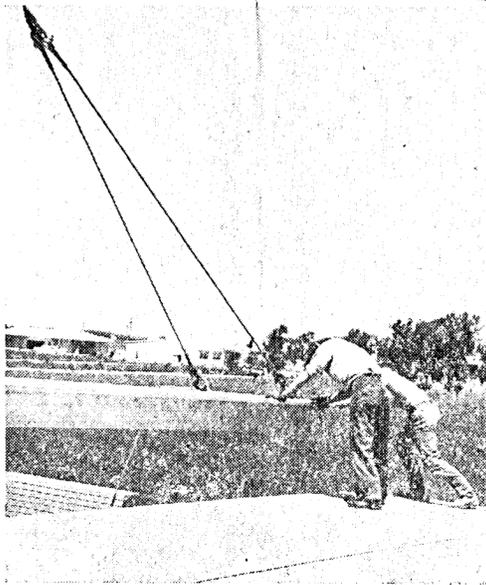

The slabs and beams are manufactured by the Wilson Concrete Co. of Omaha.

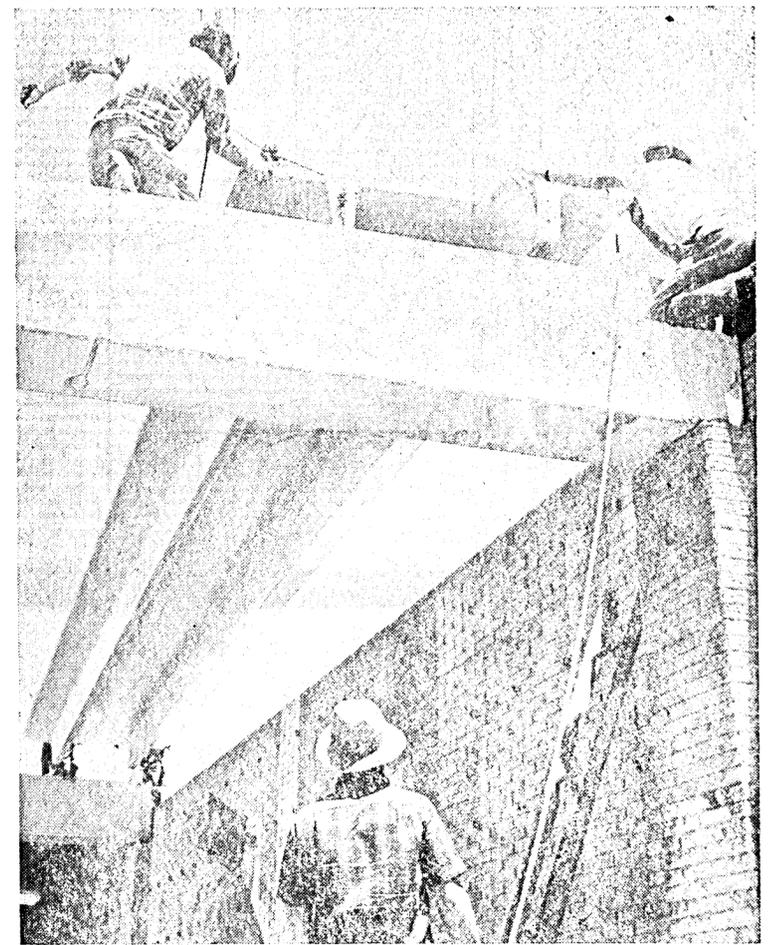

Down-down-down comes a double-T reinforced concrete slab.

Here's what double-T bars look like from underneath when they're laid side to side.

Once in place, that's where the slabs will stay.

Length of slabs must be correct to the fraction of an inch. Otherwise, they won't fit.

School Report

Art, Music Departments Have Several Strengths, But Evaluators Suggest Some Improvements Too

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of a series of articles explaining in depth the findings of a 15-man delegation which examined the Ord School System Apr. 30-May 2. The men were from the North Central Assn. of Colleges and Secondary Schools, and the Nebraska State Department of Education. This week's special areas of concern are art and music.)

Art
The art department was praised highly for progress made during 1967-68, its first year of organization, but the evaluators also found room for much improvement.

Specific areas receiving praise included the program's planning, its acceptance by the students, and the use of audio visual teaching aids.

"This new program has been well planned," the report stated. "The freedom allowed the teacher (Mrs. Jerry Walsh) in terms of both course content and preparation of the physical facility has paid dividends. Future plans for expanding and improving the program must likewise directly involve the teacher."

Concerning curriculum, the major suggested improvement is to make the seventh and eighth-grade offerings more exploratory—especially in arts and crafts—and hold off on the actual "art" portion of the program until the ninth grade. The inference was that this would give students an opportunity to become familiar with various art processes before beginning specialized instruction.

In this same area, the evaluators recommended integration of the crafts program currently being conducted by the industrial arts department into that of the art department. This would free the industrial arts teacher, they felt, to develop a "more meaningful" program that would better assist students seeking "salable skills."

At the elementary level, the investigating committee suggested

ed a central art room for all classes.

Commenting on the report, Mrs. Walsh said last week that "this would save money and provide a more efficient operation." She added, "At the present time each teacher must keep materials and supplies for her individual class, whereas with one central room all classes could use the same materials and facilities."

She also said an elementary art teacher was desirable to free other teachers at that level so they could devote more time to basic subjects.

Development of a curriculum guide by levels was another suggestion of the evaluators. "At first this guide would simply be a resume of the activities of each level and the skills which are taught," they said. "Later it could be more formally organized to serve as a guide for the system."

Such a guide would be particularly helpful to new teachers entering the system, they felt, because it would give them exact information concerning the skills already taught by their predecessors and the achievement levels each class should have reached.

Plans should also continue for the organization of an art club, the evaluators said.

Mrs. Walsh said an art club is planned, but administrators wish to wait until the end of the 1968-69 school year before starting it.

"That way we feel we will get students as members who are sincerely interested in art," she said. "If we had begun it immediately, we think a lot of students would have joined simply because it was something new, even though they had little interest in the field."

Physical facilities which are needed, according to the report, include a screen placed so all students can see it, and storage shelves, book shelves, and more appropriate tables and seating.

A future project should be the conversion of an old shower area and part of a little-used storage space, which are located adjacent to the art room, into a crafts area. It would be an ideal spot, they said, for a kiln.

Music
Comments concerning the music department were also quite complimentary, with the band receiving special praise from the evaluators.

"The varsity band performs at a very high level of achievement," they said. "It played well in tune, and had an excellent sense of interpretation and dynamics of some very challenging music selections."

Audio equipment and musical instruments were called "quite adequate," as was the vocal music facility. Material for vocal groups was termed "quite commendable, except on the junior high level."

Principal areas of criticism were physical facilities for the band and scheduling.

The band facility was described as "very inadequate with terrible acoustics." However, a new building will be constructed this summer to remedy that situation.

Present scheduling makes it impossible for some students to enroll in some music classes, the report pointed out. It cited in particular seventh and eighth-grade students who participate in band, and said that they have no opportunity to take vocal music.

"These schedule conflicts should be reviewed very carefully," the report said.

Lack of a music appreciation course was also cited as a deficiency. The emphasis is on teaching students to perform in an excellent manner, "and this definitely has some merit," the investigators stated. "However, there is still a great deal to be said for the course that offers the nonperformer an opportunity to appreciate music."

The evaluators commended the high school for having two

"well qualified" music instructors, but recommended that consideration be given to hiring a third teacher who could devote at least half his time to music.

"Another half-time music instructor would enable the two teachers already employed to plan and prepare to a much greater advantage," they said.

The present teachers are Mrs. Florence Erickson and Jim Ochsenr. Mr. Ochsenr was hired recently as a replacement for Eric Johnson and will be starting his first year in the Ord system this fall. He comes here from Scribner.

Ord's two-band system, one for the junior high and another for the high school, also drew favorable comments. The raters felt, though, that competition for places on the varsity group should be based on performance rather than grade level.

"If a freshman is good enough to sit on first chair or any other chair in the varsity band, he has a right to do it," they stated. They also felt the same should be true of seventh and eighth-graders, but acknowledged that the State Activities Assn. prohibits students in those grades from competing in district contests.

Such intermingling of students based on performance would "promote more interest in instrumental music and more outside individual practice, and it would discourage complacency of those who think they have it made," the report stated.

Only one vocal group was observed, but it did not impress the evaluators.

"Too many students were still singing by rote," they said. At this level they felt the students should be able to gauge their voices by reading notes rather than listening to others or an instrument.

Ruminants such as cattle and sheep are more susceptible to nitrate poisoning than are horses and swine.

Religious Camp To Start Sunday At North Loup

The Seventh Day Baptist Church's junior high camp will begin Sunday with about 25 young people from North Loup attending Camp Riverview, on the North Loup River.

Combining the church's Vacation Bible School program with camp, the theme this year is "Venture With God Into the Unknown." The camp will combine Bible study, recreation, playing in the river, hiking, and camp-life. Although arrangements are not complete, the staff will include Mrs. Menna Fuller, Miss Darlene King, Pastor Duane Davis, and Carol Rasmussen of Johnson as counselors; Merle Davis and Mrs. Ron Goodrich as cooks; and Mrs. Bud Williams as business manager.

Visitor's day will be July 13 with an all-church dinner at noon. Then the youth will lead the church's outdoor worship service.

The camp, located about five miles north of the village on the west side of the Elery King farm, has been operated by the church for about 10 years, with some major improvements each year. This year, a new boy's dormitory frame has been erected, with volunteer work crews composed of church members and friends.

THE Ord Quiz

State's GOP Delegates Have Moral Obligation

Nelson Rockefeller's weekend foray into Nebraska may have gained him some important ground, if reports emanating from Omaha can be believed.

The state will have 16 delegates to the national nominating convention in Miami. Fifteen of the 16 were listed on the May 14 primary ballot as supporters of Richard Nixon, and thus by law cannot vote for anyone else through the first two ballots at the national convention.

After Rockefeller's departure Friday one state GOP leader, who asked not to be identified, said that some of the state's 16 delegates might not vote at all if Nixon fails to be nominated on the first ballot and a second is necessary.

We hope the man is misinformed. Nebraska voters left no doubt as to their preference for the Republican nominee. Nixon won 70 percent of the state's vote compared to 22 percent for Ronald Reagan and 5 percent for Rockefeller.

Admittedly, Rockefeller's name was not listed on the ballot, but that was no one's fault but his own. With his policy of vacillation, he first tried to win the nomination by staying on the sidelines and offering to "accept a draft."

When that failed, he officially entered the race. But quite conveniently, his belated entry came five days after the filing deadline for the last primary. Thus, the man who now claims to be "the candidate of the people" made sure there would be no head-to-head confrontation between him and the former Vice-President in a single state.

Who's Really Being Coy?

Now he speaks of Nixon's "coy evasion" and refusal to debate the issues.

"I have read press reports from men around the former Vice-President that he does not want to debate the issues," a press release received last week from Rockefeller's campaign headquarters quotes him as saying. It continues, "They say there is no need for him to speak out. They say they want to shun what they call the politics of confrontation."

"I say they are wrong," the New York governor continues. "This is no time for coy evasion. I say this is the time to confront the great problems before us — not hide from them."

It's funny that this time is so much better than the months, weeks, and days preceding May 14.

To Refuse To Vote Would Be Betrayal

But back to the 16 Nebraska delegates. The state's Republican voters did not elect them to go to Miami and sit on their duffs if it appears Nixon will have a fight on his hands. On the contrary, their overwhelming vote was a ringing endorsement of the man and those who were backing him. To refuse to support him in a close contest will be a betrayal not only of Nixon, whom they have publicly endorsed, but of the state's entire Republican electorate as well.

But then all this would be completely unnecessary if we had one national primary conducted on the same day throughout the country, giving the people a once-and-for-all-say-so about who the candidates will be.

Some Deplorable Statistics

Just about any adjective one wishes to choose can be used in describing a certain set of statistics. They may be "enlightening," "inconclusive," "misleading," or "shocking."

"Incriminating" is the word we wish to use in describing some statistics cited by Rep. Dave Martin in his column this week.

According to Martin, during the years 1953 to 1960, when General Eisenhower was President, the crime rate in the District of Columbia dropped by 11.5 percent. Conversely, from 1961 through 1967, under the Kennedy and Johnson administrations, crime in the federally administered district rose by 135 percent. (That's right, there are no periods in that figure.)

If this does not convince the skeptics, here are some country-wide figures, released by J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation. According to Hoover, the volume of serious crime rose 88 percent throughout the nation from 1960 to 1967. That was nine times the rate of population growth.

To arguments that improved reporting by police and increased reporting to police are responsible for the major rate of increase, Hoover says:

"Agencies which update their reporting systems are not included in the national trend until they have established at least two comparable years under their revised operations. This is done purposely to avoid any paper increase which might result from the change.

"As to more crime being reported to police, most persons would concur that armed robbery and murder, with isolated exceptions, are consistently reported year after year. Consequently, with minor fluctuations, the annual totals for these two crimes should remain fairly constant. Yet, in 1967, armed robbery increased 30 percent above the 1966 figure, and murder rose 12 percent."

Rather than crediting improved reporting with the increased rates, the simple truth of the matter is that crime today does pay. Other statistics show that approximately one in eight crimes results in a conviction and punishment.

The President may urge, and Congress may pass, all sorts of crime legislation. But it does little good if it is not enforced. Surely it's time for a change.

Everybody talks about what's wrong with our young people but what are you doing about it? Here's your chance. Put them to work this summer. Call your local state employment service and hire young workers for summer jobs.

Congressman DAVE MARTIN

Reports

LSD and Other Drugs Last week in the Rules Committee we cleared for Floor consideration a bill to make unlawful the use of LSD and other depressant and stimulating drugs. Stimulating drugs are commonly called "pep pills."

The depressant drugs are generally known as "softballs" and are the barbiturates. The bill makes possession of dangerous drugs a misdemeanor subject to imprisonment up to one year and a fine of up to $1,000 for a first offender, with a penalty of up to three years imprisonment and a $10,000 fine for second and subsequent offenses.

The bill also makes all offenses involving illegal trafficking in such dangerous drugs a felony, subject to imprisonment of up to 10 years and a $15,000 fine for first offenders, and for subsequent offenses imprisonment of 15 years and fines of $20,000, or both.

Testimony at the hearing brought out an increase in the use of stimulants, depressants, and hallucinatory drugs. This is a good bill, and I supported it along with other members of the Rules Committee.

Tax Bill

The tax bill passed the House last week by a vote of 268 to 150, was concurred in by the Senate, and has now been signed into law by the President.

It provides for a mandatory $6 billion cut in expenditures for fiscal year 1969, which begins July 1; a 10 percent surtax on all incomes; continuation of the present excise tax on both telephones and new automobiles; and an increase in the advance payment which a corporation must pay on its income tax.

The expected deficit, without this bill, for fiscal year 1969 was $20 billion. This bill is estimated to close the gap by 15 to 17 billion dollars, thus resulting in a deficit of from 3 to 5 billion dollars.

Crime

According to the Federal Bureau of Investigation, there were 3,750,000 crimes committed in the U.S. in 1967, which was almost 4 1/2 times the number of crimes in 1944. Population between these years increased by 44.6 percent, whereas the amount of crime increased by 367 percent.

From 1953 to 1960 in the District of Columbia, which is completely under federal jurisdiction, crime decreased 11.5 percent. But from 1961 to 1967 we have had an increase of 135 percent. In 1968 it appears that there is an abrupt increase over the 1967 figure.

Something Different

A Hard Night

It is 2 a.m.

I am sleeping peacefully, and hard, hard, hard, not having been in bed too long. A wild shrieking whistle rises me straight up in bed with its swooping wailing.

I remember that the weatherman was making threats as I went to bed, something about a tornado rolling this way. So it was here, it was arriving. What else could the whistle mean?

I was too sleepy to think straight, though I went to the bathroom and washed my face twice. I turned the radio up loud, night as well hear more about the dire prospects.

The skies were black. I couldn't see any funnel clouds on any side, but they must be there. The wind was roaring, the house was vibrating, the chimney twanging. The tornado must be near.

Wonder what I'd better do? I remembered that stuff about the southwest corner of the basement being the safest place to be. I thought about this. And I didn't like the prospect: it would park me next to the garage door. . . . now what would be so sturdy about that garage door?

I thought about sitting on the steps to the lower floor. And I was too chicken to go to do this, sit there alone, and wait and listen and wait while the wind velocity rose.

Every few minutes I'd look out the windows again, but I was evidently too sleepy to think straight, or even to be frightened. No lights in neighboring windows.

Trouble was, the house sits catty-cornered on a catty-corner lot, and I couldn't even tell which way the storm would blow from. I never have been too sharp on my directions in this house.

So where was the southwest corner of the house? Or did I want to know? Guess not.

For I simply retired to my inviting bed and laid thereon. I decided I might as well be comfortable while I awaited the worst. I left the radio blaring, and first thing you know I was asleep and then it was morning, and to I was still breathing.

Where did the tornado go? Next morning, strangely, no one called to discuss the tornado and it wasn't on the radio, and they weren't talking about it at the grocery store. I was full of questions.

But they were talking about a house that burned down last night. That wild whistle! Silly alarmist me!

How glad I was that I hadn't gone downstairs and sat up in terror all night.

Debt Limits Imposed by Constitution Upheld in State Supreme Court Edict

By Melvin Paul Statehouse Correspondent The Nebraska Press Assn.

LINCOLN — The Nebraska Supreme court has ruled the state cannot back general or limited-obligation bonds for capital improvements because of the long-standing constitutional ban on debt.

The ruling came in the tribunal knocking out a 1967 law authorizing the State Game Commission to issue $2 1/2 million in bonds for a new headquarters building and wiping out major financing portions of a companion measure for local wastewater plant construction.

The laws were enacted by the last legislature at the urging of Gov. Norbert Tiemann and were considered the first modern-day test of the debt limitation and its relationship to bonds.

Attorney General Clarence A. H. Meyer initiated the challenge directly with the high court on the contention that the laws conflicted with the constitution. Robert Kutak of Omaha, acting as special attorney for the governor, handled the defense, arguing there was no violation because tax funds were not involved.

A unanimous court sided with Meyer.

The Game Commission law (LB 947) was struck down in its entirety, but the tribunal let stand the measure (LB 884) setting up a five-member State Clean Water Commission, although eliminations were provided of the statute dealing with state financing.

Richard Duxbury of Lincoln, chairman of the clean waters unit, said the ruling appeared to dissolve the commission for all practical purposes since the agency was created mainly as a financing body.

Dr. Clayton Yetter, executive assistant to the governor, agreed with Duxbury. He said the court made it clear the state cannot get involved in the bond business until the constitution is changed.

Yetter said the ruling underscores the need for voter approval in November of the proposed constitutional amendment to permit debt-financing of highway construction.

It had been thought that if the court allowed the 1967 laws to stand, the highway amendment might not be needed. Yetter said such speculation now becomes a moot issue.

The court rejected the argument that the Game Commission law did not violate the constitutional restriction on debt because the bonds would be retired from hunting and fishing fees, not general tax funds.

Judge Leslie Boslaugh, writing for the court, said game fees are the same as excise taxes and therefore come under the limitation on red ink spending.

"If the legislature is free to authorize unlimited indebtedness payable from special funds derived from excise taxes, it is apparent that the constitutional limitation upon indebtedness is ineffective," he said.

"We think the act in question is a clear violation . . . of the Nebraska Constitution. It is a form of financing which the constitutional provision on debts was intended to prevent."

The court was not so final in its pronouncement on the clean waters law. It acknowledged a different set of circumstances were involved because the repayment fees would be levied by cities and counties, not the state. The tribunal took particular objection to that part of the law permitting the clean waters unit to pledge fees and charges for the payment of bonds and notes. The judges also found fault with a section authorizing the legislature to appropriate "supplemental funds" to make up any bond payment deficiency.

State Senator Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff, a manager of the bond bills in the last legislature, doubted the court action would jeopardize state college and University of Nebraska bonds. "In the first place, someone would have to bring a test in court to determine the question and I don't think any one would do that," he said.

"Furthermore, the supreme court would be very hard put to find unconstitutional a procedure that could endanger millions of dollars in outstanding bonds."

State Game Commission officials were disappointed with the court decision. They said a request for money to erect a building and that "Fabe" had come up with a solid idea. Tracy full agreed with "Abc" that this country was being run like the big advertising agencies where you create a demand for a product and then sell the product. If the public is being told what it wants, it don't care, cause it thinks it thought of it first.

Furthermore, said Tracy, politics in the United States are run at the convenience of the television networks instead of the other way round. What the candidates want, Tracy said, is "exposure," and they are more interested in being seen and heard than about what's going on in government.

Bill Worm agreed with Tracy. He reported where an opponent charged Ronald Reagan with wearing makeup on his face and that his hair and teeth was store bought. Reagan's helpers immediately called a news conference to deny all the charges and answer all questions about Reagan's good looks. People was more interested in a candidate's deodorant than his issues, Bill claimed. But when you got wimmin movie stars endorsing a certain kind of car muffler, and selling a lot of mufflers you're living in a crazy world.

Personal, Mister Editor, it's a mystery to me why a fellow would want to run for President now-days in the first place. It's gitting where it's mostly a spending race and a candidate spends $10 million running for a job that pays $100,000 a year, and it's the only job in this country

Lower Withholding Rate The state income tax withholding rate will drop from 10 to 9 percent when the new federal surtax goes into effect, Nebraska Tax Commissioner Murray McNeil reports.

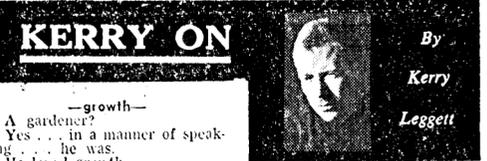

This will be done so that the amount of money withheld from a wage-earner's paycheck does not exceed the total due as the surtax does not affect the federal tax base against which the Nebraska tax is assessed.

Dear Editor: I am writing in hope that some of the people around Ord will read this letter and take it to heart. You know, when we who do not live in Ord come back to a reunion of our former school-mates we expect to see some people from a distance. The ones we really miss when we come back are those who live in Ord! I know their thinking is that they live there all the time and no one cares about seeing them. They are wrong. The Ordinies are the ones I want to see. I only get back once in a great while and I want to see those people who live in Ord. It is the only time I get to visit with them. I come back with that thought in mind and when they are not at the banquet or at the school house I do not see them. Our time is too limited to go see everyone. I hope some of you will take this as a personal letter to yourselves and come out to this year to see those of us who have come from a distance.

By Kerry Leggett

—growth— A gardener? Yes . . . in a manner of speaking . . . he was. He loved growth. With utmost care he'd plant the seed. He was ever mindful that maturity is attained only after careful nurturing through the embryonic stage. Early exposure to the elements could kill the seedling—destroying any hope of growth. Sheltering and protecting in the early stages were of utmost importance. Both heat and cold—if too severe—could be decisive factors in the early growth . . . so he usually became over protective. Once he knew his plant was firmly rooted . . . then, and only then, would he leave it exposed to the elements. This was perhaps the most difficult stage of all—for him. He would watch with care as storms loomed . . . always ready—and close enough—to offer protection. He watched the storm clouds form. As lightning flashed and the skies became fearfully dark, he'd stand a solitary watch . . . ever ready to offer his own body as protection from the hail that at any time could come screaming down upon his plant.

Winds would bend and blow the sapling as storms raged, but he knew too well that the young plant is much stronger than the fully developed tree. He grew to anticipate—somewhat with excitement—the challenging gales and strong surface winds that tested the strength and stability of his seedling. He watched the growth as summer started, knowing he had planted substantially in fertile and firm soil. Soon the branches would bear fruit . . . a fruit he would never taste. Instead he would sit idly by, enjoying the outgrowth of his love and labor. Later—when he had need—then, perhaps, he would sit beneath the branches that he had implanted as a mere seed and nurtured to maturity. In the shade he would lazily gaze upward, tracing each limb to its trunk to its roots, knowing that he had planted well. A gardener? In a manner of speaking . . . for he loved growth.

Geranium Joe Let Voters Pick Pollsters, Lincoln Says, If They Want 'Real' Choice in Elections

DEAR MISTER EDITOR: "Abc" Lincoln has figured the situation up the side and down the other and he has decided the voters in this country are called on to pick people for the wrong office. He is of the opinion we ought to elect them pollsters, on account of they pick the winners for public office anyhow.

that don't offer no chance for advancement. No matter what you do after you're President, you're just an ex-President.

Wayne Gregory surveys his 55-acre cornfield, which has corn already over waist high.

Pre-Irrigation Helps Produce Waist-High Corn

Preparation and experimentation are paying off for Wayne Gregory in his bid to make a decent corn crop this year.

Despite drought conditions which plagued farmers and ranchers until about two weeks ago, Gregory already has 55 acres of corn well over waist high.

"I'm real optimistic," he said last week, "but I'm reserving judgment on my experiments until I see how far and fast that bin fills up. That's what really counts."

Gregory said the field where his fine stand of corn is growing was used last year for hay and as an orchard. He cleaned out the field and pre-irrigated the field around mid-April, then planted about May 15.

Three different hybrids are planted in the field, and three different rates of fertilizer application were used. Despite the differences, the entire field is growing about the same, he said.

"This year is especially encouraging because he was hailed out last year."

"I got it to come back, but still made only about 75 bushels an acre," he said. "This year I'm hoping for 130 to 135."

Gregory said he's doing a lot of experimenting this year, and he has even built his own corn planter.

"However, that's not too unusual because a lot of farmers are doing it," he added.

He calls the planter a "minimum tillage" type. It has 24-inch chisel plow blades which prepare the seed bed directly in front of the seed. The plow sweeps are followed by furrow openers which provide uniformity in depth for the seed bed.

They also "leave a little furrow so you can keep the seed from whirling across when it rains."

"One of the big problems for farmers today is getting adequate help," Gregory said. He indicated that he has one hired man now, but he is being called into service.

"Without suitable help, we have to do some experimenting and rely more on chemicals and machinery," he said.

Arcadia Alumnus Earns Degree At Ohio School

A former Arcadia man has received his Master of Education degree from the University of Cincinnati.

Seth Carmody, son of Leonard Mahurek and the late Seth Carmody, received his secondary schooling at Arcadia. He was awarded a Bachelor of Arts degree in education from Kearney State College in 1965, and has also attended Omaha University.

His specialty at Cincinnati was business education.

For the past two years he taught punch card and data processing at Norwood High School in Cincinnati while attending night school.

Carmody has accepted a teaching position at Southeast Missouri State College in Cape Girardeau, Mo., where he will instruct punch card, data processing and computer programming.

Central Nebraska Poverty Program Receives $68,000 in Federal Funds

Two separate grants totalling more than $68,000 have been awarded the Central Nebraska Community Action Program, Inc., during the past two weeks.

The money, which comes from federal taxes, is to be used in providing jobs in the five counties served by the agency, and in providing increased services to elderly poor people.

Counties served by Community Action are Valley, Sherman, Greeley, Howard, and Custer. The agency is operated by the Office of Economic Opportunity and has its headquarters in Loup City.

One grant is for $31,988, and the other for $36,153. The smaller sum will be used in a job-creating program and in providing transportation for the elderly, according to the Kansas City office of OEO. The larger one will be used to increase services for the elderly poor.

$14,000 for Jobs

Roye Lindsay, who is director of Community Action, said Monday that $14,000 of the smaller grant will be used to encourage industry to locate in this area, and the rest will be used in the transportation program.

George Haynes of Comstock has been named coordinator for the jobs program. He was appointed by a 17-member Industrial Opportunity Advisory Council. Valley County is represented on the council by Marvin Sather.

Lindsay said that Haynes' job will be "to go out and talk with industry officials and encourage them to locate in this area."

He said the problem of out-migration "is so terrible because of a lack of suitable jobs in this area that practically no town or city has the cash to fight the problem by itself."

"They are therefore pooling their resources with those of the federal government to see what can be done together," he said.

According to a news release from the Kansas City office of OEO, a total of $8,964 in "local services and commodities" will be added to the federal tax funds allocated to the project.

Coordinator's Salary $9,000

Haynes' salary will be $9,000 per year as coordinator, and will come from the $14,000 provided by the federal government.

The Industrial Opportunity Advisory Council, according to the news release from Kansas City, will monitor the OEO-funded project. It will make major suggestions to the program coordinator (Haynes), including recommendations on hiring of key staff and location of the project office.

The news release said the transportation program for the elderly, which will use approximately $17,000 of the federal grant, "will allow elderly low-income residents of the five-county area to go to and from doctors' and welfare offices, main shopping centers, and future group and club activities for the aged."

"We hope to use this as a catalyst to get local church and civic groups to do more in helping our elderly people with suitable transportation," Lindsay said. He indicated that transportation for the elderly is becoming a more serious problem all the time with more and more persons reaching older age and many of them losing their drivers' licenses because of physical disabilities.

Total Helped Unknown

He said he did not know how many elderly people would be helped by the program, but he estimated 20 to 30 percent of the five-county area's 40,000 residents are over 65. Of those, he said "possibly 40 percent would fall into the poverty bracket as established by federal government income criteria."

"Of course many of them have relatives or friends who provide transportation services," he said, "and church and civic groups help others. However, I think we can conceivably reach 2,000 to 4,000 elderly poor people who do not now have adequate transportation."

He experimented with it some last year and saw there was no similar organized activity at the local level," he said.

One thing the $17,000 will be used for is to reimburse "neighborhood aides" who use their own automobiles to drive elderly persons to and from medical facilities, welfare offices, and recreational centers. They will be reimbursed on a mileage basis, Lindsay said.

No Comments on $36,000

The Community Action director did not wish to comment Monday on the second sum of money awarded last week.

"We have not yet received official word of it ourselves," he said, indicating there were some apparent differences in the final allocation from what was requested.

The news release from Kansas City said $15,236 is being provided locally "in the form of goods, space and services" to support the program, which provides "an increase in services to the elderly poor."

Some of the $36,153 of federal tax money will be used to hire 12 "low-income residents" of the five counties. Six employees, to be called "community outreach workers," will work out of centers at Ord, Greeley, Loup City, Sargent, St. Paul, and Callaway.

In addition, five center coordinators and one secretary will be employed.

To Help Elderly

The nine-month program aims at improving participation of the elderly poor in local activities by organizing advisory councils for senior citizens in each of the six centers, the news release stated.

In addition, stress will be placed on improving delivery to the elderly poor of services now available through the centers, including referral services, basic social services, and individual and group recreational activities," the release stated.

The two grants bring to $96,730 the total amount of taxpayers' money allocated to Central Nebraska Community Action Program, Inc., during the last five weeks. A sum totalling $28,589 was awarded in early June for a "Head Start" program to assist 50 children from needy families in a full-year, part-day program.

O.H.S. Alumni Activities Draw 400; All Sections of Country Represented

More than 400 "old grads" of Ord High School returned to take part in a round of gala-alumni activities during the past weekend. At least half the 400 were estimated to be from out of town, according to Mrs. Elsie Pecena Furtak, chairman of this year's reunion committee.

Each of the honor classes was recognized with music representative of the era in which they graduated.

"Down by the Old Mill Stream" greeted the Class of 1938. It was rendered by a barbershop quartet composed of Tom Furtak, Mark Bresley, Ron Drudik, and Larry Rathbun.

Two members of that 1938 class — Archie Coombs of Cotesfield and Miner Harris of Palmer — were present. However, they yielded "oldest grad" honors to Mrs. Grace Work Keating of Loveland, Colo., from the Class of 1907. Mrs. Keating was one of four Work sisters, each living in separate states, who returned for the celebration.

A medley of war tunes, played by Connie Bredthauer on her trumpet, was used to salute the Class of 1918. Miss Bredthauer was accompanied by Kathy Kokes.

Those attending their "golden anniversary" reunion were Mrs. Irma Marquard Blakeley of Den-

Disaster Request Okayed; Grazing, Haying Rates Set

Grazing and haying rates for an eight-county area approved for drought disaster relief were established at a meeting Monday in Ord.

The rates will be uniform throughout the area. However, each farmer who wishes to use diverted acres for haying must have his land appraised, and the final figure he pays will be based on that appraisal.

Rates for grazing will vary according to the age of cattle. For heaves 6 to 12 months old, the rate will be 4 cents per day per head; for cattle over 12 months old, it will be 7 cents; and for a cow-and-calf combination it will be 9 cents.

This means farmers will have to pay a sum, based on those rates, to the government for turning cattle into fields that they previously agreed to let stand idle, and for which government reimbursement was received.

The haying rate will be $5 per ton for standing forage. However, each county's Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service committee must appraise fields farmers wish to harvest and establish an estimated yield per acre. Then the $5 will be applied against that estimate.

For example, if a field is estimated to produce a ton an acre, the farmer will have to pay $5 an acre to harvest it. If the estimated yield is two tons an acre, he will have to pay $10.

The rates were set at a meeting in the Valley County ASCS office at Ord. All eight counties were represented.

The disaster designation was approved Friday by the secretary of agriculture. It applies to Valley, Sherman, Garfield, Wheeler, Loup, Howard, Custer, and Greeley counties.

Cut-off date for the designation will be Sept. 1 in Valley, Sherman, Greeley, and Howard counties. The others will have an Oct. 1 cut-off date.

Requests for extension will be submitted if conditions warrant at that time, Lloyd Zikmund said yesterday. He is manager of the ASCS office in Ord.

Zikmund re-emphasized that each farmer will have to make individual application at his respective county ASCS office before using diverted acres for grazing or haying. And in the case of haying, the appraisal will have to be completed first.

However, he indicated that appraisals will be accomplished as quickly as possible. Valley County's three-man committee of Everett Lech, Robert Timmerman, and Gerald Krikke began work yesterday.

Fifty-one applications had been received at that time, Zikmund reported.

In the case of grazing, spot checks will be made later, he said.

He also pointed out one possible area of trouble for farmers. According to federal regulations, haying may not be accomplished on fields sown in millet, sudan grass, sorghum-grass crosses, and sweet grasses.

Ord School System Remains Accredited

The Ord School System has been continued on the list of schools accredited by the state for the coming year, local officials have been advised.

Nebraska's State Board of Education made the decision to continue accreditation, based on a recommendation by the State Accreditation Committee. The period covered runs from July 1 to June 30, 1969.

Dr. Floyd Miller, state commissioner of education, made the announcement in a letter to Dr. Bill Gogan, new superintendent of the Ord system.

Two Accused Youths Will Be Tried In District Court, County Judge Says

Two of three youths facing charges of assault with intent to commit rape were bound over to district court Tuesday in Burwell.

They are DeLyle Burson, 18, of Ord, and David Konkoleski, 15, of Elyria. Bail was left at $1,000.

A preliminary hearing on the third youth, Thomas Vaughn, 18, of North Loup, was postponed until next Wednesday at 2:30 p.m.

This means Burson and Konkoleski will be tried in district court rather than county court. Garfield County Judge Dermont Erickson said yesterday he had no idea when district court would convene because of a recent heart attack suffered by Judge William Manasil. He indicated another judge might be asked to preside at the trials.

Burson was represented at the preliminary hearing by his attorney, Paul Kubitschek of Ord. Konkoleski was represented by Leonard Cronk, also of Ord.

Cronk moved to have the public excluded from the hearing due to the age of his client. However, he was overruled by Judge Erickson after Garfield County Attorney Keith Kovanda, acting as prosecutor, objected.

The prosecution called two witnesses, Don Grieb of the Nebraska State Highway Patrol and Mary Patricia Giblin of Omaha. Miss Giblin, 16, was the alleged victim in the assault.

She had been in the Community Memorial Hospital at Burwell suffering from injuries received in the incident, which reportedly occurred June 29 six miles northeast of Burwell. However, she was released earlier Tuesday by her physician, Dr. Ben Meckel, and has since returned to Omaha with her parents.

Burson's attorney called no defense witnesses. However, Konkoleski's called the accused youth's older brother, Mike, who testified that he and his brother had left the "party" prior to the time of the alleged assault.

The number of acres harvested will be as low as in any recent year, they estimated.

Local Girl Receives $700 Scholarship

A $700 scholarship grant from the National Elks Foundation has been awarded to Marlene Shotkoski, daughter of Mrs. Stella Shotkoski.

The 1968 graduate of Ord High School will use the scholarship to attend Kearney State College this fall. It is for one year, but application may be made for a similar award next year.

Beatitudes For Friends of the Aged. Blessed are they who understand my faltering steps and shaking hands. Blessed are they who know that my ears today must strain to hear the words they say. Blessed are they with a cheery smile who stopped to chat awhile. Blessed are they who never say, "You've told that story twice today." ### Ericson Lad Boosts Ord Midgets To One-Sided Win Over Shelton Getting rid of its pent-up frustrations with one gigantic explosion, Ord's midget baseball team clobbered Shelton, 13-3, Tuesday night to gain a split in the week's schedule.

Earlier the local team had lost to Broken Bow, 10-6, in another of those games where it led the hitting statistics but lost on the scoreboard.

The split kept the team just below — but still in sight of — the .500 level with a 5-7 record.

Scott Patrick, recently recruited from Ericson, gave the midgets a much needed infusion of new pitching blood Tuesday night. He went the distance, throwing a two-hitter and walking six.

Bill Klanecky, erratic as a pitcher but consistently tough as a batter, led the Ord attack along with David John. Each had three hits.

In the game against Broken Bow, Ord erased a 4-1 deficit just in time to see the winners break loose again. After tying the score at 4-4, the local team saw Broken Bow take a 6-4 lead in the fifth inning and increase it to 10-4 the following frame.

Klanecky was his own worst enemy, although not in his customary manner of issuing free passes. This time it was his fielding as he committed three errors, helping Broken Bow to six unearned runs.

The losers led in hits, 11 to 9, but they also led in men left on base, 10 to 6.

The game was the second straight teeth-grasher for the local nine. In the preceding contest Ord lost to Comstock, 1-0, even though it out-hit the winner, 7 to 1.

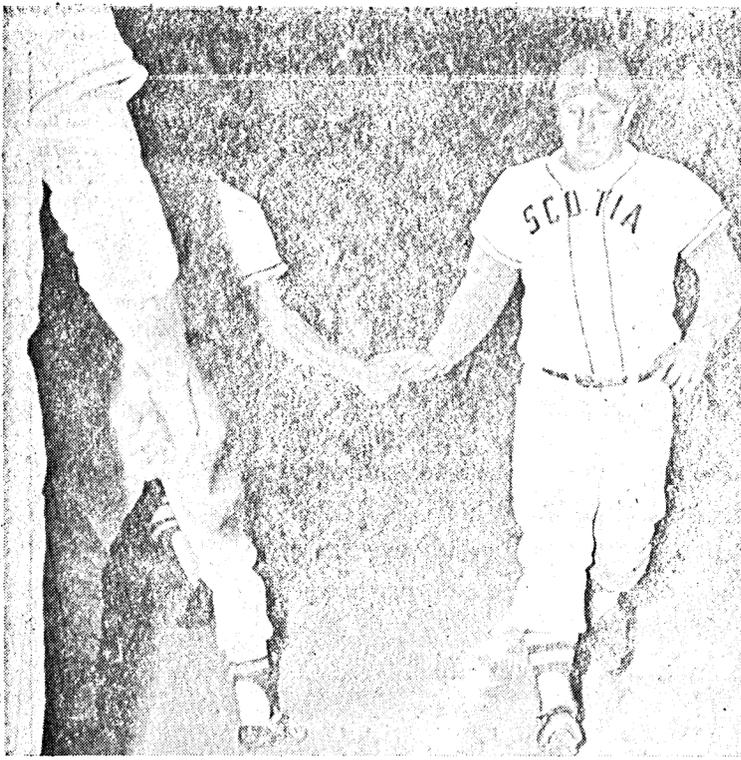

A rematch of that game was played as a July Fourth practice game, and it was one Ord needn't have bothered to schedule. This time, instead of 1-0, the score was 12-4, still in Comstock's favor.

Scotia catcher Jerry Lammers, playing for the North, trots home with first run in Sherman-Howard League All-Star game last week. The game was called in the second inning because of rain with the North ahead, 2-0, after Lammers had homered over the right-center field fence. The game, which was being played at Scotia, will not be rescheduled.

Legion Nine Shakes Off Errors, Beat Shelton 4-3, To Gain Split

Still error prone, Ord's American Legion junior baseball team nevertheless returned to the winning trail Tuesday by dumping Shelton, 4-3, in nine innings.

Like their younger brethren on the midget team, the juniors got a lift from the addition of an Ericson import, Rich Watson was installed at second base and scored two runs for Ord, including the last one that brought victory.

Six errors were committed by Ord fielders, but a strong pitching performance by Colyer Cronk and some daring base running off-set the miscues.

The victory upped the team's league record for the year to 5-7. It had fallen earlier last week to Broken Bow, 1-0, as four errors and lack of batting support sabotaged an outstanding pitching performance by Jim Lukesh.

Cronk gave up three hits Tuesday against Shelton as he pitched all nine innings. It was his best performance of the year.

Both teams' scores came in one-run dribbles with Shelton getting unearned runs in the first and fourth and an untainted one in the fifth.

Ord countered them with scores in the second, third, and sixth. Its first two runs were also unearned.

Watson stole one base and Bill Miller two en route to the first pair of Ord runs. Dan Wolf got the third on a walk followed by Cronk's single.

In the ninth Watson led off with a single, went to second as Mark Peterson walked, and to third on a passed ball. He came home on an overthrow.

Only batter to get two hits was Ord's Spencer Douthit, but neither of them figured in the scoring.

Against Broken Bow, Wolf avoided having a no-hitter thrown against Ord by getting a sixth-inning single. It was the only hit of the game for Ord, but was little consolation to Lukesh who suffered his second straight defeat in an outstanding pitching effort.

The previous week he threw two hit balls for 5 2/3 innings of relief, only to be beaten in the 10th.

Lukesh gave up seven hits to Broken Bow but didn't walk a man as he struck out 15. The game was in the eighth inning when the winning run scored.

The juniors have a holiday due this week with the schedule calling for a bye and a meeting with Ansley. However, that city is not fielding a junior team, so Ord players may get a chance to relax.

The midgets, however, will play Ansley. Their contest is a road game.

Mustangs Come Close, But That's All; Wood River Captures 3-2 Decision

Ord's adult team went to the brink of the Promised Land, looked over, and then withdrew Sunday as it dropped a 3-2 decision to Wood River.

Mired deeply in the Sherman-Howard League cellar, the Mustangs were on the verge of a major upset over second place Wood River. But they couldn't quite pull it off.

With runners on second and third, one run in, and nobody out in the ninth inning, three straight batters failed to produce.

The victory moved Wood River to within one game of league-leading Scotia, which suffered its first defeat in an 8-3 contest with Central City. The two leaders will meet Sunday at Scotia.

Making his first pitching start since June 2, Rich Psota had an outstanding game for Ord. He limited Wood River to six hits and walked only four.

One of the most unusual plays of the year occurred in the third inning when a fly bounced out of Roger Psota's glove in left field. Center fielder Mroczek grabbed it before it hit the ground, however, and threw to third to double up a Wood River runner trying to advance from second after the catch.

The defeat sent Ord into double figures in the loss column. Its record for the year is now 1 and 10. Wood River, on the other hand improved its standing to 8-2. Scotia, which has played two fewer games, has a 7-1 mark.

Central City broke a tight pitching duel with six runs in the seventh inning to hand Scotia its first loss. The shutouts were ahead, 2-0, on the shutout pitching of Jerry Nicholson when they broke loose.

Home Runs Hurt Scotia
Three home runs, one of them by Nicholson, helped forge the 8-0 lead that Scotia was able to dent only mildly.

Leonard Williams pitched well until the seventh for Scotia. For the game, Central City had 15 hits compared to Scotia's five.

Third place Greeley gained a game on the leader by slugging Ashton, 15-4. Bill Warner and Gary Dugan slapped home runs to lead a 12-hit Greeley assault.

Ardon Stoboda had a homer for Ashton.

Maintaining Beef Herd

It appears that the native pastures in this area may not be able to carry the usual number of cattle. The rancher or farmer may need to consider one or two alternatives, either reducing the stocking rate or supplemental feeding of the cow herd, or both. If your choice is to reduce the stocking rate, it is advised that you begin by culling the dry cows and marginal producers. Move these animals to market while they are still fleshy. There is one factor in your favor; this year at least cow prices have been relatively high.

It might be well to consider culling a bit more critically this year to take advantage of this favorable price. Then too, it won't cost as much to feed heifers through the winter, and you can use them to replace the cows sold.

If your choice is to supplement the herd's ration, it is well to bear in mind the following points:

(1) Cattle on droughty pasture will have essentially the same nutrient deficiencies that might be expected on fall or winter pasture. Nutrient deficiencies may include energy, protein, mineral, and possibly vitamin A.

(2) Supplement on pasture might be compared to a wintering program and could consist of additional roughage, plus a source of protein, vitamin A and minerals, such as would be available in a commercial range supplement. The roughage might include: available grazing plus hay, silage, ground corn, straw, and similar materials.

(3) Dry-lot feeding needs to be considered if pasture conditions warrant. Dry-lot rations would be similar to winter feeding programs except that available roughages might differ. Green chopping of sudan, alfalfa, or droughty row crops might serve as part or all of the necessary roughage.

(4) Watch the prices closely and if grain becomes competitive price-wise as a source of energy, it could be used in a dry-lot program.

(5) Feeding rates and rations must be determined by pasture condition, available feeds, and cost of grain and roughage, as well as the nature of the production program.

Weed Control Difficult
We have noted an unusually heavy infestation of milkweeds and other perennial weeds in cultivated fields. This can possibly be attributed to the fact that we are following rotations that contain primarily row crops. Rotations which include a legume every six to ten years tend to keep these perennials pretty well in check.

Most of the perennials are quite resistant to 2,4-D. Therefore, control of these troublesome pests may become somewhat difficult.

In the case of milkweed, tanweed, or perennial smartweed, controls will need to be pretty much cultural.

Where plants are scattered throughout the field, about the best method of eradication is by hand, either digging or pulling. Where infestations are heavy, it is recommended that the land be plowed several times during one season, thus preventing the plant from sending up new shoots.

Even though the plants are somewhat resistant to 2,4-D, fair controls can be obtained by spraying just before bloom stage with from 1 1/2 to 2 lbs of 2,4-D.

This practice will sometimes check growth of the plant sufficiently to prevent blooming and thus prevent further spreading through seeds.

Further questions on methods of controlling these perennial weeds can be obtained from the County Extension Office.

Musk Thistle
Hats off to the farmers and ranchers of Valley County for their efforts in controlling musk thistle. Most of the infested acres have been treated in some way so as to check progress of this troublesome invader.

This does not mean that we can let down our guard. The battle against musk thistle will be a continuous one until every acre in Valley County is free of this weed.

So keep up the good work, and let's strive for complete eradication of musk thistle in Valley County.

Saturday callers at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roland Norman were classmates Mr. and Mrs. Paul Couvert of Mt. Vernon, Wash. and Bob James and children who live near New York City.

Guests of Mr. and Mrs. Herb Dultz and Galen at a cook-out supper Sunday evening were Mr. and Mrs. Thad Krason and boys, and Sharon Ronzall.

and Norman family. Other Sunday supper guests were Mr. and Mrs. Bill Wozniak and Harry Zukoski Jr.

Fourth of July supper guests of the Richard Prienses were Mr. and Mrs. Herb Dultz, Galen Dultz, Sharon Ronzall, and Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Sevenker.

The Roland Norman family were Wednesday overnight and Thursday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Don Wozniak at Kearney.

Mr. and Mrs. Albin Absalon and family left Saturday for their home at Falls Church, Va., after vacationing with relatives in the area. They were houseguests of Mrs. Absalon's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Meese. En route to Ord the Absalons went to Little Rock, Ark., to visit a son, Ralph Absalon, and family.

VFW Races Provide Lots of Thrills for Contestants, Spectators

THE Ord Quiz

Estab. April, 1882. Ord, Nebr., Thurs., July 11, 1968. Vol. 87, No. 18. In 2 Sects.

Published Weekly at 305 S. 16th St., Ord, Nebraska 68862. Second Class Postage Paid at Ord, Nebraska. Subscription Rates — $4.00 in Nebraska, $7.00 Elsewhere.

The tangible rewards were small, but the intangible were great at Ord's Fourth of July races sponsored by the local chapter of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

More than 50 children and twice that many spectators turned out to take part in and watch the proceedings, held at the Ord athletic field.

Three types of races were conducted — regular foot races, sack races, and three-legged races — with the competition divided by sex and age groups.

Although form left something to be desired in a lot of cases, there was no lack of competitive spirit. One might have thought it was a try-out for the Junior Olympics judging by the efforts put forth.

When the competition was finally halted so the field could be turned over to the American Legion middle school team, five youngsters had won or shared first place in at least two events.

Eric Bishop was the top performer in the 5 and 6-year-old group, winning the foot race and the sack race.

The 7 and 8-year bracket had two double winners—John Miller on the boys' side and Nancy Dworak on the girls' side. Miller won the sack race and shared the three-legged title with his partner, Galen Mareš. Miss Dworak sped to the foot race championship and shared the three-legged crown with Marsha Sears.

Shelly Collins was the outstanding contestant in the 9 and 10-year group winning both individual races.

And in the 11 and 12-year class, Vickie Kramer won the sack race and shared the three-legged title with Sue Miller.

Girls 9 and 10—(1) Barbara Dworak and Shari Klineck; (2) Peggy Smith and Margi Hruza;

(3) Shelly Collins and Sharon Stephens.

Boys 11 and 12—(1) Dale Wojtasek and Martin Zulkoski; (2) Kip Leggett and Harry Zulkoski; (3) Scott Markvicka and Danny Petska.

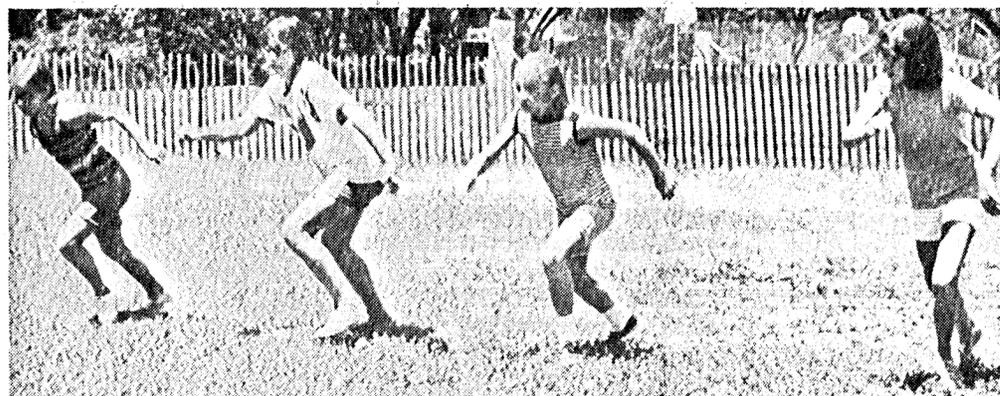

Girls 11 and 12—(1) Vickie Kramer and Sue Miller; (2) Candy Ericson and Judy Miller; (3) Rosemary Kush and Karen Smith.

Long-legged Lori Ackles leaves no doubt about who's going to win among the 5 and 6-year-old girls. Marsha Mason was second.

ON YOUR MARK, GET READY . . . Contestants in the race for 9 and 10-year-old girls receive final instructions from the starter. Among those poised and ready for the starting whistle is Shelly Collins, second from right, the eventual winner. Margie Hruza, far right, was second, and Barbara Dworak, third from right, was third.

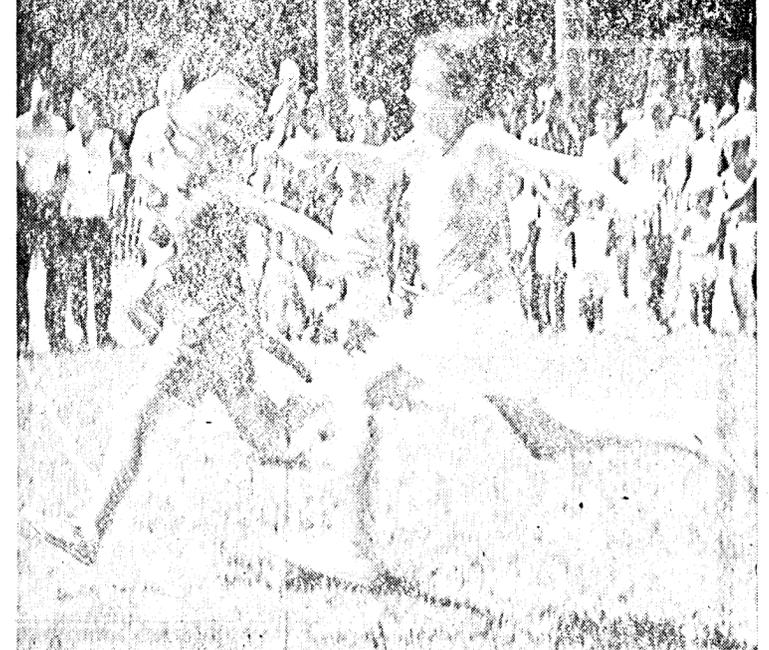

Some sack racers were calm, other determined—but there was no doubt that all had fun.

If the winner were determined on concentration, the judges would have a tough time deciding between Marcia Sears, left, and Nancy Dworak in the sack race for 7 and 8-year-old girls. As the race turned out, Nancy finished third and Marcia was out of the running. Lorie Klanecy was first and Vickie Mason second.

Too fast for the camera to stop the action, Nancy Dworak gets a foot across the finish line just ahead of Marsha Sears in a photo finish. Action was in the 7 and 8-year-old girls' division where the pair finished one-two.

Where Are They?

"It's 10 o'clock. Do you know where your children are?" That short announcement appeared regularly each night at 10 p.m. on some of the television stations earlier this spring. It was a most effective way of reminding parents they had a responsibility to know of their children's whereabouts and activities.

The recent rash of lawlessness by certain of our young people hereabouts brought to mind the parting words of John Nordgaard, former minister of the Bethany Lutheran Church who is now in Chicago.

"People around Ord like to talk about the riots in Washington and Detroit," Nordgaard said, "because that way they don't have to face up to the problems they have right here."

Those Words Proving True

With the increasing disregard for law and order, not to mention simple human compassion, Nordgaard's words ring ever louder and clearer.

While it's true we should not get so wrapped up in our own little world that we don't know or care what's happening in the rest of the country, it's also a fact that we should cleanse our own house before we start throwing stones at others.

One of the best ways to start is for parents to pay closer attention to their children's comings and goings, and — perhaps just as important — to their companions.

Down through history most of man's darkest deeds have been performed in the dark of night. So the next time that 10 o'clock whistle blows, or the 10 o'clock news comes on, use it as a reminder to ask yourself, "Do I know where my child is?" If the answer is negative, pray that you'll have another chance.

Nuclear Pact Restricts Only the Honest

Four years ago the United States and the Soviet Union signed an agreement that neither would conduct nuclear tests in the atmosphere.

Earlier this spring it became common knowledge that the Soviets had developed a "fractional orbital bombardment system." In other words, an orbiting nuclear bomb that could be de-orbited at any time and place they chose.

Now, quick on the heels of that disclosure, our President has proudly announced the signing of another nuclear agreement with the Soviets. This one says that neither power will give nor assist any other country in obtaining nuclear weapons.

Ideologically, it is a desirable goal. Realistically, as all agreements with the Soviets, it is a one-sided affair.

Coincided With Propaganda Blackmail

It was significant that as the agreement was being announced the Russians were exacting another large helping of propaganda blackmail from us. This they were doing by detaining a civilian airliner carrying troops to Vietnam until we had made a public apology, to their satisfaction, for violation of Soviet air space.

Significantly, those countries with the most to lose have refused to sign the agreement saying they will not attempt to obtain nuclear weapons.

West Germany, which possesses the manpower and technology to develop such weapons and which sits directly under the Soviet nuclear shadow, was one of those refusing.

France and Red China, well on their ways to having their own systems, also refused to sign.

We would like to share the President's optimism. But past dealings with the Soviets force us instead to agree with the "Wall Street Journal," which calls it "a meaningless symbol" that is just as effective as a treaty "outlawing war."

Others Are Saying ...

WYNNE, ARK., PROGRESS: "I'd be more hopeful of winning the war on poverty if the managing agency weren't already nearly $350 billion in debt. Perhaps the war strategy is to enlist everybody by bankrupting everybody, then we can all start at the bottom together again. Seems to me a pauper with nothing at all is somewhat higher on the economic scale than somebody that is $350 billion in debt. Perhaps the poor folks ought to be helping their less fortunate Uncle, instead of vice versa."

HUNTINGTON, IND., HERALD-PRESS: "... the FBI's Uniform Crime Report released by the Department of Justice ... was not necessary for public realization that crime is a daily threat to life, limb and the possession of property in America. It may help the public to realize, however, that the affliction of a steadily rising crime rate will continue until official and personal determination to stop it takes a meaningful form."

Questionnaire Results:

Following are the results of my annual questionnaire which was mailed out the later part of April. I want to thank everyone who took the time to answer, and particularly those of you who wrote additional comments explaining the reasons for your answers. Approximately 20,000 of you returned the questionnaire, and the results are revealing.

In regard to civil disorders and crime, 81.5 percent felt that there had been a general moral decline in America. Over 91 percent felt that crime had increased because of failure of the courts. It is interesting to note that only 26.6 percent felt that a lack of adequate Civil Rights legislation was responsible for the increase in crime and riots.

To prevent crime, 97.2 percent felt that we should have strict enforcement of the laws by both police and the courts, while 79.6 percent feel that an "on-the-job" training program to teach a skill to the unemployed would be beneficial. Only 2.5 percent felt that increasing welfare benefits was the solution.

In regard to the anti-poverty program, 70.4 percent felt that it should be reduced, and 58.7 percent would eliminate it altogether.

In regard to the projected federal deficit of 20 to 25 billion dollars for the current fiscal year (which has since been reduced), approximately two-thirds favored the bill recently passed by the Congress which made mandatory a reduction in Federal spending, plus an increase in the tax rate.

In regard to legislation to change certain national holidays to Monday, 70.7 percent of you were opposed. This is contrary to statements made by proponents of this legislation that there was overwhelming support throughout the country favoring this change.

According to 68.8 percent of those who responded, the Post Office should be removed from politics and operated as a non-profit corporation.

Something Different
The Greatest Birthday

A really suitable celebration of July Fourth was held last week at the Leo Clinch summer home on Big Pelican Lake in Minnesota. The house abounded with children ... seven ... adults ... four or five ... a dog ... even birds.

Toby outdid herself with that good old standby menu that always makes a hit, fried chicken, potato salad, baked beans, three kinds of cake, and ice cream.

In the front yard, pecking in the window, was a Fourth of July tree, a pretty evergreen garlanded in red, white and blue streamers. It was a charmer.

There were also swimming and water skiing.

Down on the beach a red-hot volleyball game raged with adults having more fun than the children and dogs.

After the young made a trip to a jam-packed nearby resort, Breezy Point, where they saw a stupendous fireworks display, they came home to another one arranged by the Burwell attorney and aided by Richard Scheer, husband of Ord's Cory Anderson.

It began with rows of pretties stuck in the sand to rocket out over the lake and ended with dozens of sparklers to please the fittest, who were still up though it was very late. (It doesn't get dark until 10 p.m. you know.)

Then there was a picnic on the beach with a blazing fire. No one needed hot dogs nor roasted marshmallows, but they vanished rapidly.

There were too many mosquitoes for singing. They're a vicious pest this year, beginning about the day I arrived, after two weeks of rain.

Everyone was made aware that it was our nation's birthday, and I think they should be.

Patriotism seems to have gone out of style. Why is it considered corny to be dedicated to our wonderful country? Plenty of our young men have gone to fight for these ideals. Are they wrong?

We need more parades, more band concerts crowded with stirring marches. We need more flag-waving, more pledges of allegiance to the flag, more youngsters who can repeat the Declaration of Independence and understand the great words they're saying.

The Fourth of July isn't just another three-day weekend: it's the birthday of the finest country you and I will ever know.

—a dream—
Somehow you're with me, even though I sit here alone watching the moon and listening to the wind rustling the leaves in the cottonwoods.

There's no escape ... even though I would not take it if I had the chance.

My life ... my every dream ... all are based on the fantasy that someday we will be together.

It's funny, as I sit here and talk to you, that you seem to be listening. Somehow I feel that my words are not going begging — but are being heard somewhere ... somehow ... and perhaps I am. I know I'm entertaining thoughts that will never come true. But what else is there to live on? To live on life ... a daily diet of fundamental living ... I would starve!

Because of you ... because of your everpresence ... this — this is my reason for living.

They say I should be satisfied, and perhaps I am. Satisfied with every day. Satisfied with my job. Satisfied that I'm a provider as each man should be.

But never ... no, never ... ever satisfied to live without dreams ... or hopes ... or desires ...

Were it not for desire and all that it provides — nourishment for the mind and sustenance to the soul — were it not for this, would life be worth living?

Man can not live by bread alone. How true! How true!

When his wants and wishes are fulfilled — there is one step more. Always another step ... No, I'll never find you. I'll never have you. But I'll continue wanting and dreaming to the end of my days.

For with each hope is born a new tomorrow ... another chance ... another challenge.

With each tomorrow a new hope that some day ... somehow you'll be mine. Oh! Life is so precious for what it offers that we can't attain. For that which we do attain, we tire of. That which can never be ours will lead us ever forward.

Surely you must be with me tonight ... as you always are, ever knowing that my thoughts are with you ... and ever knowing that we'll be together in only a dream.

The touch is burning ...

Return to Mules Would Solve Problems

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

The fellers at the county store Saturday night give mules a vote of appreciation, but they couldn't decide what to do about the mule's partner, the farmer and rancher, that was getting exstink too. Them items was part of a full program on agriculture that Ed Waldmann brung up at the session.

Ed said he had saw where them pore folks that marched on Washington looked all over Georgia, Alabama and Mississippi fer 600 mules to pull their wagons, but they didn't find but 20 of last count. He figured how it was a sad thing that the mule was getting exstink, but he was of the opinion man was getting about as scarce on the farms and ranches as mules.

Little Albert agreed with Ed, said folks was now using plows fer mailbox holders and wagon wheels fer making lighting fixtures in them fancy eating places. The only thing that ain't retired is the man, and he has got to keep on digging. With all this new fangled farm machinery, said Albert, dirt farmer and his mule was more outlived than homecranked ice cream.

Furthermore, allowed Albert, the government was missing a good idea in not doing somepun about the exstink mule. Fer instant, he said, all them people leaving the country and moving to town was creating all kinds of housing and other problems. At the same time, the government was having to pay farmers not to grow too much of certain crops. So Albert figgers the government can come out cheaper by going back to mules. We can cut down on production and give the pore folks work so they don't have to march to Washington at government expense, And, Albert said, if the mule don't slow down production enuff, we can eat out fertilizer and them chemics fer a year.

It was at this point, Mister Editor, that the storekeeper butted in to offer a reserlution that Albert run fer U. S. Commissioner of Agriculture. But Otto Bruha of the Great Society was on the reserlution on the grounds that ain't never even crossed the New Frontier yet ain't got no business roaming around in the green hills of the Great Society. Otto said that personal, he would vote fer Albert, but technically he wasn't eligible.

But Albert got in the last word. First off, he said he aimed to continue his campaign fer office at the next session, and in the meantime he was offering his program. He said, if elected, he would set up a 40 acre working farm with plows and mules as a piece of living American history, so's the children of tomorrow can go there and see fer themselves that milk bottles don't come direct from the cows and that they ain't really no July Green Giant to pick the peas.

All the fellers, Mister Editor, was anxious to hear more about Albert's program.

Yours truly,
Geranium Joe

Dear Sir:

Just a note to thank the merchants of Ord for the enjoyable display of fireworks last night. They were very beautiful.

We would also like to thank the people whose driveway we used as a grandstand. We had a very good view of the whole show.

Mrs. Milton Percell

Dear Editor:

I'm one of the many, I'm sure, people that enjoy the sport of hunting and feel even though Sen. Kennedy's death was a terrible tragedy that the government is carrying this gun law too far. If there have to be laws and registration, let them be at the state level, not federal. I feel people in Florida, California and New York don't have the need or opportunity to use a gun for hunting so control them there, not in Washington, Neb., Colorado, etc. where hunting is vast.

I feel communism offers more of a threat to humanity than all the guns in the world. So control that in our midst with federal laws.

Another question for you: how poor can a person be that can pull up stakes at any time, leaving jobs, etc., to take a two-month vacation in Washington, D. C.? I wish I could afford a week, but I doubt they would pay my room and board for even one day.

So as an example the federal government has a lot more pressing problems than the guns of America — if they are of America. After all, is Kennedy's alleged assassin from America?!

Sincerely Yours,

MOVING FORWARD...

In the olden days when life was simple, people didn't know about such things as personalized checks, savings accounts and insured loans.

They kept their money in cigar boxes, walls, mattresses, and even under floor boards.

People didn't know much about banks either. In fact, about the only thing a bank was good for, was to get robbed.

Things have changed. Today we have brick walls, and it's kind of hard to store money under wall-to-wall carpeting.

That's why you should depend on NEBRASKA STATE BANK for your banking needs. They have a solution to every banking problem, and will keep your money safe until you need it.

If you want fresh, cool, clean air, go to the mountains.

Or buy a gas air conditioner.
Gas air conditioning cools your whole house, not just one room at a time. Cools it fresh and clean, because the air is constantly circulated, filtered and re-circulated. No cold clammy spots. No hot sticky spots. Every room is just the way you want it. Cool. Humidity is controlled, too.
And, gas air conditioning costs less to operate and maintain. There are fewer moving parts. A little gas flame is the most important part of the system, and little gas flames can't wear out. Call your Kansas-Nebraska man.

THINK! don't sink

Water is fun to play in — unfortunately it can also be very dangerous — even deadly. There are certain rules which aid to your safety while in or on the water. The important ones are listed below. Learn and practice them.

- 1. Do not swim in unsupervised areas. 2. Do not swim away from the shore, swim parallel with it. 3. Do not swim after dark. 4. Do not use tubes, balls, balloons, etc. if you are not an expert swimmer. 5. Do not let children use the above articles as the children will rely on them for buoyance. 6. Do not swim in unknown water. 7. Do not swim when overheated; cool off gradually. 8. Do not swim when tired. 9. Do not swim immediately after eating. 10. Do not dive into shallow water or areas which are not distinctly marked for depth. 11. Never swim alone. 12. If you use a boat for your holiday pleasure, be safe, have everyone wear an approved lifejacket. 13. Never swim for long periods of time. 14. For safety and enjoyment swim in water between 68 and 74 degrees F. 15. The lifeguards are responsible for your safety — obey them. 16. If your boat or canoe capsizes — hang on! 17. Don't overload your boat and don't drink when boating. 18. Plastic wading pools may be a death trap for children unless they are constantly supervised. 19. Don't panic if you get into trouble in the water. 20. Avoid horseplay in the water and in the boat; playfulness may cost a life. 21. Learn how to swim properly.

The Right To Freedom!

Psalm 135: "Thy Right Hand Hath Holden Me Up."

"Freedom is what we have — Christ has set us free." Stand, then, as free men, and do not allow yourselves to become slaves again."

Galatians 5:1
One of the truly universal attributes of man, has been his incessant struggle to be a free moral being. His history on this earth is written from the struggle intellectually, morally and religiously to be a free agent. But the desire too often has been a struggle for freedom of the wrong type, a freedom which is really only unrestricted living with little regard for moral or right living.

This is not freedom, the word is license. Man is not free by himself, nor is he truly free apart from God. This is what our founding fathers, had discovered and upon this concept they sought to establish the governing forces of man. Man lives in community and he is a creation of God. He is free only as he learns to live in harmony and assumes responsibility of being a person respecting the rights and privileges of other persons. He does not really have any inalienable right to be free, but rather his freedom comes by assuming his obligation of doing his part to bring the rights and betterment to all mankind.

Man's freedom rest upon each man assuming the responsibility for his own actions, his own total life. Man's freedom rest in each becoming a moral and spiritual man, to live otherwise is to be a slave to life. The man who would thus seek to live a free life, must say, with all, "Where the Spirit of the Lord is, there is liberty." (1 Cor. 3:17).

The Right to Freedom — not a right, but a responsibility and an obligation on our part to know God and let him set us truly free.

Leland L. Alderman Killed in California

Leland E. Alderman, 36, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Alderman who lived in and around Garfield County until 1937, was killed in a logging accident June 28 at Westwood, Calif.

Survivors include his wife; four children; three step-children; his parents; who now live at 1631 N. W. Everett in Portland, Ore.; five brothers, James of Portland, Clyde of Billings, Mont., Raymond and Clifford of Woodland, Wash.; seven sisters, Mrs. Woodrow (Alice) Witt of Taylor, Mrs. Ward (Edna) Griffin of Walla Walla, Wash., Mrs. Luther (Florence) Sancer of Cape Cole, Alaska, and Mrs. Ted (Darlene) Hale of Lawndale, Calif. Also many uncles and aunts including Mr. and Mrs. Bill Flock of Ord.

Funeral and burial were held in Westwood, Calif.

Good old American enterprise isn't completely dead yet, these Ord youngsters proved Monday. Craig Clement and Tracy Johnson, seated, said they grossed 80 cents during their first hour of operation. Business must have fallen off, though, because the boys didn't show up for a second day Tuesday. Or maybe it was just that Lennie Andersen, right, was drinking up all the profits.

Editorial Opinion Admissions, No Charges

Although a trio of local youths orally admitted to drinking beer and one of the three admitted procuring the beer—all in the presence of two law enforcement officers and one parent—County Attorney John Sullivan refused to press charges of intoxication and procuring liquor for minors after local police made an arrest here recently.

According to Sullivan—whose statements to the Quiz were contradictory to those of the police officers—no evidence has been given to me that can be used in court. Sullivan and the state liquor inspector both said the local officers had failed to get a written statement which is deemed necessary.

Officer Duane Wert of the Ord City Police apprehended Bruce Brickner, 22, in downtown Ord at 2:16 a.m. July 5. He was accompanied by Jean Absalon and Gloria Zukoski, driver of the car, both of Ord.

According to police, the Absalon girl is 17 and the Zukoski girl 18. At the time Wert approached the car there was one open and one full beer "outside the car," the Quiz was told by Officer John Boettcher.

Wert told the Quiz that Brickner admitted to him he had procured the beer. "In the presence of John Boettcher, Stan Absalon, and myself in a session at the police station the girls admitted drinking a beer," Wert added.

"In fact," the city officer con-

Drought Program Participants Lining Up To Use Diverted Acres; Total Tops 100

Over 100 applications have been received from Valley County farmers wishing to use diverted acres for pasture or hay, Lloyd Zikmund said yesterday.

He said the county's Agriculture Stabilization & Conservation Service committee has stayed on top of the applications, and a backlog of only 12 to 15 requests was on hand. They would be disposed of before completion of the day, he said.

The three-man committee must evaluate any acreage which farmers wish to harvest for hay before they can do so. This is to establish an estimated yield per acre so the government's $5-per-acre rate can be applied against it.

New Councilman Takes Office; ETV Costs Paid

Ray Marshall was sworn in as a new councilman from the Second Ward at this month's regular meeting of the Ord City Council. The meeting had been postponed from its usual first Monday of the month date because a quorum failed to appear that night.

Marshall replaces Don Edwards, who has moved to Arizona.

In other business the council approved payment of $5,000 in installation costs for the educational television system being added this summer to the Ord elementary and high schools. It had already agreed to foot a portion of the bill, and this was merely the formal approval to release funds.

The school district is paying a similar amount, while the federal government is picking up about $8,000 of the installation costs.

Kerry Leggett also appeared before the council to ask if the city has a building code. He said the city sewer system had backed up into his basement recently, and a plumber had to dig a large hole in the basement to check the pipes all the way to the street.

Architect Selected To Draw Up Plans For School Building

Shaver and Co. of Salina, Kan., was chosen Tuesday night by the Ord Board of Education to draw up plans for a new elementary school building.

The selection was made after board members and school administrators visited several buildings planned by different architects. The most recent visit was to Ravenna and Grand Island.

Dr. Bill Gogan, superintendent of the Ord School System, said the next step will be to sit down with the architect and decide what type of a building will best fit the community. He said Shaver and Co. has had a lot of experience with different types of buildings.

No date has been established as to when the proposed building might be available for use, he said.

Dr. Gogan accompanied three Board of Education members, as well as Elementary Principal George Zuecker, on a tour of the Ravenna and Grand Island school buildings last week. He reported they were favorably impressed by the Knickreth School in Grand Island, which had been planned by Shaver, and that other board members had been impressed on earlier visits to schools engineered by the Kansas firm.

Food Stamp Sales to Poor Residents Planned in Valley, Sherman Counties

Initial sales to Valley and Sherman County residents participating in the federal government's food stamp program will begin in August, welfare officials have announced.

The starting date in Valley County will be Aug. 27, and in Sherman County Aug. 28. Applications are already being accepted in Valley County, and may be submitted starting Wednesday in Sherman County.

Individuals will use their own money to buy coupons which will be redeemable at local authorized grocery stores. A designated number of bonus coupons will be given with each purchase, the exact number to be determined by family size, adjusted income, and the number of coupons purchased. Thus, the program is intended to help low-income families stretch their food dollars.

It is operated by the Consumer and Marketing Service of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. However, local welfare officials will administer the program. Funds for the bonus coupons come from federal taxes.

Coupons may be used to purchase any items intended for human consumption, except alcoholic beverages, tobacco, and foods identified on the package as being imported.

Households in which all persons are receiving public assistance (old-age, blind, disabled, or aid to dependent children) will be eligible automatically for the program. Such families need not make formal application, according to Mrs. Alma Nelson, Valley County welfare director. She said her office will send out letters informing them of their eligibility.

Households not already receiving public assistance must make formal application at their respective county welfare offices, and must meet certain eligibility criteria based on size of family, adjusted monthly income, and liquid resources.

Mrs. Nelson said families whose adjusted income and liquid resources do not exceed those listed below will be eligible:

No. in Family	Adjusted Mo. Income	Liquid Resources
1	$120	$ 150
2	180	1,500
3	230	1,500
4	270	1,500
5	300	1,500
6	335	1,500
7	360	1,500
8	385	1,500
9	410	1,500
10	435	1,500

Liquid resources include cash on hand, money in the bank and stocks, bonds, time certificates, etc.

Unusual expenses which might effect a family's ability to purchase food at the normal level will be subtracted from net income to determine the adjusted monthly income, Mrs. Nelson said. Such expenses might include excess housing costs, continuing medical bills, child care and other expenses incurred in attempts to obtain or continue employment, depreciation on equipment used in earning a livelihood, losses from accidents or natural disasters, and medical and hospital insurance fees.

The adjusted monthly income will be determined using the following formula: (1) add monthly rent or housing payments to utility costs; (2) multiply net income (after taxes) by 30 percent; (3) subtract the 30 percent of income from total of housing and utility costs; (4) add to this figure the costs for child care and unusual hardship expenses (medical bills, depreciation, etc.); (5) deduct this total from monthly net income.

All information concerning income and expenses must be verified by welfare officials, Mrs. Nelson said.

When making application, she advised heads of households to have with them the following items: rent or home payment receipts, or other evidence of address and amount of monthly payments; savings account books and/or checking account books and statements; pay stubs of the last three months for each employed person in the family; proof of other regular family income, such as railroad retirement or other pensions, veteran's benefits, unemployment compensation, social security payments, etc.; and evidence of any high continuing medical costs. In addition, farm families should bring copies of their income tax statements for the last three years with any attachments and schedules.

No decision has been made in either Valley or Sherman counties as to which grocery stores will be authorized to participate in the program. Mrs. Nelson said a visit is scheduled Aug. 5 by Department of Agriculture officials to discuss the program with local food merchants and banking officials.

Miss Margaret Legg, director of the Sherman County Welfare Office, said a similar visit will also be scheduled to Loup City. However, the date has not yet been set, she said.

Food stamps will be sold at the two county welfare offices and at the Arcadia Medical Building. Hours will be 8:30 to 11:30 a.m. daily at the welfare offices and 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. in Arcadia.

Mrs. Nelson said an outlet may be established in North Loup if the need is great enough.

Neither she nor Miss Legg had any idea how many families will be eligible for the program. In Valley County approximately 100 are already on public assistance and thus automatically eligible.

However, Mrs. Nelson predicted that few of them would participate. She based this prediction on the fact that they are "already well cared for." For example, she said welfare budgets allow a single person on public assistance $38.50 a month food. For two persons it's $63, three persons $97.50, four $123, five $145.50, and so on.

If those families do desire to participate, though, they cannot be refused, Mrs. Nelson said.

The addition of Valley and Sherman counties to the program brings to 46 the number of counties in the state now participating. Eleven others have requested authorization, leaving 34 who still have taken no action on the federal program.

Mrs. Nelson said the county board of supervisors ordinarily makes the request for participation. If the board refuses to act, the state may make such a request if it feels there is a need and if both the county and the state refuse to request participation, the federal government may do so.

County Fair Receives $500 for Fence

Plans for the Valley County Fair, to be held July 29-31, continued to progress this week following announcement that a $500 grant from Ak-Sar-Ben has been received.

The grant will be matched by local funds to provide a total of $1,000 for use in erecting new permanent fencing at the fairgrounds. However, the fencing will not be up for this year's fair.

In other news concerning the fair, details of the July 31 talent festival were announced. Mrs. Russell Hackel, chairman of the sponsoring Ord Farm Bureau Women, said competition will be conducted in three divisions: lower junior for youths 13 and under, upper junior for those 14 through high school (including this year's graduates); and young adults.

Prize money in each division will be $15 for first place, $10 for second, and $5 for third.

The July 31 program will also include the crowning of the 1968 Valley County Fair queen.

Mrs. Hackel urged prospective contestants to enter as soon as possible, since length of the program will be limited and participants will be accepted on a first come - first served basis. She said the following ladies may be contacted for information: Mrs. Herbert Bredthauer in Arcadia, telephone 789 - 2619; Mrs. Vernon Thomas in North Loup, 466 3283; or Mrs. Hackel in Ord, 728-5763.

Handicap Air Race Scheduled Sunday

E. J. Lange, president of the fair, said the $500 from Ak-Sar-Ben will be used to provide a fence "which will enhance the overall beauty of the grounds, will be easy to keep up, and will serve the functions of a fence."

He said Ak-Sar-Ben has contributed over the years to a number of projects at the fair-

Nebraskaland Tour Includes Loup Stops

Two Loup Valley points of interest were included as stops on a state-wide tour sponsored by the Nebraskaland Foundation.

Participants in the tour visited the Chalk Mines near Colesfield and Fort Hartsuff near Elyria during their five-day jaunt around the state. They were at both Loup Valley locations Sunday afternoon.

Dr. Glen Auble, a member of the foundation's board of directors, and Mrs. Auble were among those making the tour. It began Sunday in Lincoln and concludes today at the same location.

This is the first Nebraskaland tour in three years.

The group was stopped outside Ord and escorted through town by a convoy of city patrolmen, Chamber of Commerce officials, and junior Chamber of Commerce members.

Dr. Auble described points of interest as the bus wound about the city.

Handicap Air Race Scheduled Sunday

The Hi-Flyers Club will conduct a handicap air race Sunday, with the beginning and ending in Ord.

Time trials start at 2 p.m. with the race at 4. The course will be from Ord to Burwell to Sargent to Ord.

To The Streets First Real Estate Appraisal Since 1949 Increases Valley County Property Values

People shopping in Ord this weekend will find it easy to locate bargains as the Ord retailers plan to move right out on the sidewalks with their merchandise as they observe the annual Sidewalk Sale.

Take a look at the advertisements in today's QUIZ—then plan to come to Ord this weekend for the big event—you'll be glad you did!

The first complete revaluation of Valley County real estate since 1949 has been completed, resulting in a $3 million increase in assessed value of property.

With valuations complete on everything except franchises and railroads, which together amount to less than $1 million, the total assessed value of property stands at $23,142,764. Last year it was $19,870,011 before franchises and railroads were added.

Property owners still must wait until next month, though, before finding out if they'll have to pay more or less taxes. The County Board of Supervisors has not yet approved an estimated budget; however, it has scheduled a public hearing July 31 to consider fiscal requests from the different departments and agencies.

If the county is able to hold the line on its own requirements, Ord taxpayers at least should get a break on the mill levy. Both city and school district officials have said they expect their respective levies to be down from last year. The county adds these levies to its own and makes one united collection for all three units.

However, this does not mean individual taxpayers will all pay less. The increased assessment means that some of them will be paying taxes on property which is valued higher than it was last year. Thus, even though the mills-per-dollar is lower, taxes may be higher because of a larger amount of dollars being taxed.

The new assessed values are supposed to be 35 percent of a property's actual worth.

The figures still must be approved by the State Board of Equalization. Last year the state board made no changes in the county's valuations; however, in 1966 it increased the value of rural lands by 37 percent.

Most of the increase in this year's total value of tangible property is a result of the real estate survey. County real estate jumped in value by more than $3 million, approximately the same amount as the total taxable property increased.

North Loup Youlths Return From Camp In Rocky Mountains

Six young people have returned from the Rocky Mountain Seventh Day Baptist Camp, held recently on Lee Hill near Boulder, Colo. The youngsters spent a week in the Mid-Continent Assn. Senior youth camp there. Those attending were Toni Monk and Jani Williams, Jim Goodrich, Clifford Jorgensen, Keith Severson and Jerry Van Horn. One feature of the camp was a trip by small groups up into the high mountains, reaching about 13,000 feet. A new 12-inch telescope, valued at $2,000, was set up at the camp this year. At 8,000 feet this reflecting telescope is especially efficient, according to those who used it. Mrs. Duane Davis and sons drove one carload of youths to Colorado and visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eino Davis of the Lakewood area near Denver, during the camp. The other campers were driven to Ogallala by Mrs. Edward Christensen and Mrs. Harlan Brennick. They joined youths from that area for the remainder of the trip.

Scotia, Central City Run Up Score As Ord Adult Nine Loses Two More

The combined score was 33 to 3 as Ord lost two more games last week in Sherman - Howard League activity.

Central City piled a 14-2 defeat Sunday on top of a 19-1 thumping Scotia had administered the local adult nine Wednesday. The double matings left Ord with a 1-12 record for the year and a solid hold on last place.

There'll be mercy this week, however, since only one game is scheduled. That's a home contest Sunday with Boelus providing the opposition.

In other league activity last Sunday, the top of the pack got scrambled considerably when second-place Wood River tripped first-place Scotia, 3-2. The two are now tied for the top spot with 3-2 records, while Greeley and Boelus are back in contention with 3-4 marks.

Greeley has now won four straight, including a 7-5 decision Sunday over Wolbach, while Boelus has won three in a row, including a 6-5 triumph over Central City last week and a 7-5 victory over Ashton.

Sunday's feature game finds Greeley at Scotia. Wood River visits seventh-place Gibbon.

As the season nears its close, Ord is still seeking some sort of regularity in its pitching staff. Bob Goodsell made his first start Sunday and fared reasonably well, leaving in the sixth with his team behind, 4-2. However, Dick Collins was battered for nine runs over the last three innings, which included a seven-run eighth.

Central City showed the same combination of pitching, hitting, and defense it had exhibited last week in handing Scotia its first loss.

Jerry Nicholson checked Ord on five hits and walked one to get the pitching victory. He was backed by perfect defensive play from his teammates, and at the plate they supported him with a 16-hit attack. Nicholson added two himself, making a total of 18 safeties off Ord pitching.

Doug Townsend, a Wayne State College performer who's had major league scouts eyeing him this season, led the attack with four hits.

Goodsell was the only Ord batter to get more than one hit. He got two.

Wood River tied the top of the standings with a fine pitching performance from Darwin Heinrich. He limited Scotia to six safeties, beating Leonard Williams in a defensive struggle. The teams were tied, 1-1, until the sixth.

Forage Crops

Valley County has been officially declared a drought disaster area. Farmers will have an opportunity to seed a part of their diverted acres to temporary pasture or forage crops. This is the second in a series of articles on drought information.

Temporary pastures become doubly important when overgrazed and dry weather reduces the yield of permanent pasture. Where permanent pastures have been destroyed, a system of temporary pastures is essential if the pastures are to be re-established.

For Valley County, Sudan and Sudan x sorghum hybrids or winter small grains are the most dependable temporary pasture crop. In some cases oats and winter wheat may be able to contribute to the feed supply.

Do not pasture until the crop is 18-24 inches high. It usually pays to divide a sudangrass pasture into two or three fields of such size that they are grazed down quickly.

Allow an 18-24 inch regrowth before regrazing. This allows maximum production of forage that is low in prussic acid.

Short young dark green growth or regrowth is the portion of the plant most apt to be high in prussic acid. Adverse growing conditions such as drought, hail damage, as well as regrowth following frost may also produce conditions favorable to the development of prussic acid poisoning.

1968 Range War
An unprecedented air offensive in South Dakota this summer will find aerial sprayers flying assault missions against costly range cattle enclosures, and horn and face flies.

More sweet dreams turned to nightmares Sunday for Ord's midget baseball team. Leading 8 to 3 in the sixth inning, the local midgets came up with another of their regular collapses. It produced six runs for the opposition, resulting in a final score of 9-8 in favor of Anselley.

This loss, like most of the seven others the team has suffered this year was caused by erratic pitching and fielding.

After Bill Miller had given up three runs - only one of them earned - through the first five innings, it took three pitchers to get Ord through the sixth. When the lights were turned off, the local team had again out-hit the opposition - this time by a resounding 13 to 6 - only to see its season record drop to 5 and 8.

Anselley scored its six runs in the sixth on two hits, five walks, and two hit batsmen. An error by Bill Klancey, who later became the second of the three Ord hurlers, helped the rally along. It was Klancey's third error of the game, at shortstop, where he played the first 5 1/3 innings.

Ord was shut out in only three of the seven frames, but one of them was the crucial seventh when three batters were set down in order. It was the only time that happened during the game.

Miller led the 13-hit Ord assault with two singles and a double in four times up. Klancey had a pair of singles, as did Spencer Douthit, while Dick Janda had a triple and a single.

State Crime Commission Going Slow On Recommended Gun Control Laws

By Melvin Paul

Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association LINCOLN - Nebraska Attorney General Clarence A. H. Meyer has cautioned against enactment of new state gun control laws until Congress decides how far it wants to go.

Meyer said any state laws would probably have to be linked to federal legislation to be effective. "I don't feel that the state should embark on any new gun control legislation until we see how far Congress goes in this area," Meyer said.

"We all agree there should be some type of gun-control legislation, but we do not agree on how far it should go," Meyer, chairman of the governor's crime commission, spoke out after spokesmen for the Nebraska Emergency Committee for Gun Controls asked the commission to back President Johnson's strict weapons legislation.

The spokesman, Mary Kay Green of Omaha, said it is important that state agencies designed to prevent crime "make their views known."

She said the President's bill "would not infringe upon rights of the individual to own a gun or upon rights of the sportsman."

The commission took no position on the legislation, which is opposed by sportsmen's groups and others. But it said members were free to write to Nebraska's congressional delegation expressing individual viewpoints on the proposal.

A recent survey by the crime commission showed that Nebraska has no state law banning the mail-order sale of rifles and shotguns and requiring the registration of weapons.

However, the study also showed that some local communities, notably Scottsbluff, Hastings and Omaha, do require registration of concealable weapons.

On another matter, the crime commission agreed to set up a seminar that would bring together penitentiary inmates and Nebraska's 36 district judges to discuss the effect of sentencing practices upon rehabilitation.

Lancaster County District Judge Elmer Scheele, who proposed the idea, said the seminar would aid in assuring impartial dispensing of justice.

"A lot of judges actually have no idea what effect their sentences have toward rehabilitating criminals," he said. "Far too many of them have had no experience in criminal matters before becoming judges."

Scheele said he discussed the idea at the annual conference of district judges earlier this summer and the reception was good.

But Lancaster County Attorney Paul Douglas and Lincoln Police Chief Joe Carroll said the seminar would be a waste of time.

"I don't see what good it would do to bring criminals into the discussion," said Douglas. Carroll was afraid the inmates might mislead the judges and persuade them to hand down light sentences.

State Penal Complex Warden Maurice Sigler Disapproved. He said the judges should be given all the information possible on sentencing.

"The judge has one of the roughest jobs in the world," he said. "I certainly would not want the job of telling a man how long he's going to jail."

Properly Values Soar
Nebraska's 93 counties have listed the actual value of their property at a record $12,337,447,996 for 1969 tax purposes, the state tax commissioner's office reports.

For example, if a one-acre tract is valued at $50, the taxable portion would be $17.50, or 35 percent of the actual value. If the value were raised to $70, the taxable portion would go up to $24.50. This would permit a lower levy to raise the same amount of dollars.

Similarly, if a property's value is decreased, then a higher levy is assessed to raise sufficient funds to pay for local government services.

Thus the real key to higher or lower property taxes is how much money local governments spend, and not the level of valuations.

The tax commissioner's office said 57 counties reported valuation increases this year, with 36 reducing the worth of their property.

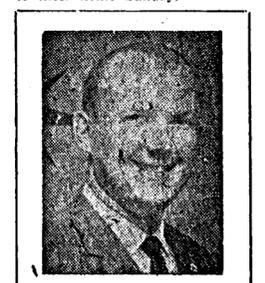

The state board, headed by Gov. Norbert Tiemann, can raise or lower the figures to provide for statewide equalization of property.

Last year the board accepted the county values without change, and that decision was upheld three weeks ago by the Nebraska Supreme Court.

Senior Citizens Abound
The State Advisory Committee on Aging said a recent survey showed more than 12 out of every 100 Nebraska residents are 65 or older.

Ron Jensen of Lincoln, the agency's executive director, said only Iowa now has more senior citizens than Nebraska on a per capita basis.

He said since 1960, the percentage of Nebraskans 65 and up has steadily increased compared with other states. He said this underscores the need for educational and recreational facilities for older persons.

the street. He said normally a cleanout is installed in plumbing systems so that plumbers can go in at intervening points in case of trouble. However, no cut-off was installed when his house was built, he said. Leggett said a plumbing supply friend of his from out of town had told him Ord was the loosest city in the state as far as enforcing building standards was concerned.

Mayor Bill French replied that the city has no building code outside the fire district at this time, although one is needed. "However, the only kind that will be any good is one where inspections can be held regularly to insure adherence. It would be practically a full-time job," he said.

The fire district encompasses only the downtown area.

Evaluators Cite Need for Recommended Additions To Physical Education, Home Economics Staffs

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the third of a series of articles explaining in depth the findings of a 15-man delegation which examined the Ord School System Apr. 30-May 2. The men were from the North Central Assn. of Colleges and Secondary Schools, and the Nebraska State Department of Education. This week's special areas of concern are physical education and home economics.)

Physical Education
Comments concerning the physical education program were quite complimentary with only one major criticism, that being the fact that the program ends for all practical purposes at the middle of the 10th grade.

Of each student's last six semesters in high school, he is required to take P.E. for only one. Most students take this semester at the beginning of the 10th grade.

To talk fitness and conduct a program such as the one being conducted here, and to say in effect that it ends with the first semester at grade 10 is enough to defeat the entire philosophy of physical education," the evaluators stated in their formal critique.

"If it is valuable at one level, it is valuable at all," they continued. "Future plans should include preparations to require physical education at all levels, even if one must compromise for a while on the number of times per week."

Cindy and Chuck Squier, who conduct the P. E. program, said Sunday they were aware of this shortcoming and would prefer to see the program extended through the two additional grades. However, they said the cut-off was necessary because of limited staffing. As far as they know, no plans exist to increase the high school staff in the immediate future, although the addition of a full-time elementary teacher is anticipated for the 19-69-70 school year.

The evaluators also acknowledged the need for more teachers, saying that "increased staffing is a must."

"This system is large enough to look for ways to have an ideal program, rather than one that barely meets minimum requirements," they said. "You have done this horizontally (four classes per week); you leave much to be desired vertically (inclusion of all grades)."

If the program is expanded to include the 11th and or 12th grades, the evaluators recommended that emphasis be on sports that can be carried over into adult life, such as golf, bowling, archery, tennis, swimming, etc.

Should it be impossible to expand physical education, the evaluators suggested "a strong intramural program to give activity, competition, and participation opportunities to girls and boys not in athletics."

Concerning other areas, all comments in the report were quite laudatory.

"Evidence is abundant that the program is well organized, well handled, and really designed to meet the needs and interests of students in grades 3 through 10," the critique read. It also praised the program for "a good selection of activities, above-average facilities and materials, and an ideal condition for cooperation and planning through the husband-wife teaching staff."

Plans also exist, it pointed out, to expand "an already broad co-recreational program" with the addition of rhythm dancing at the elementary level and more gymnastics equipment.

The health portion of the program is in for a boost too, the evaluators reported, with the addition of a new textbook series for kindergarten through the sixth grade.

Home Economics

Expansion of the teaching staff was also the principal recommendation for the home economics department.

"Because the program is a strong one, enrollment continues to increase..." the evaluators stated. "As a result, the teacher (Mrs. Harold Garnick) is severely overloaded... A second teacher needs to be hired on a permanent basis to help meet the needs of homemaking students."

Dr. Bill Gogan, new superintendent who assumed office July 1, said Monday he knows of no plans for increasing the staff during the coming year. However, he said the situation will "certainly be looked at in the future." He indicated that was also the case in the physical education department.

If a second teacher is not hired, the evaluators recommended reduction of the program from four semester offerings a year to two. Most likely this would mean elimination of seventh and eighth-grade home economics.

As the program now exists, students may take one semester in the seventh grade, one in the eighth, and a full year in the ninth.

"This means they have two comprehensive years of home economics by the time they start the 10th grade when they start specializing in such areas as foods, housing, and clothing," Mrs. Garnick said.

She said the junior high program was eliminated once before because of a teacher shortage.

Except for the limited staffing, again the comments were all quite favorable.

"The homemaking program in the Ord Public Schools is one of the finest in the state," the evaluators said. "It has been a student teaching center for Kearney State College for many years and has provided valuable pre-service education through this program."

"The teacher is regarded throughout the state as one of the most dedicated, professional educators in home economics," they continued. "She has especially developed interest in and respect for home economics in the community of Ord. Enrollment in the program reflects this."

They also said the addition of a class entitled "Adult Living" is commendable.

Mrs. Garnick said contents of the course, which will be offered to both senior boys and girls, will include such things as personal development, problems students will face in college and on the job, family life, and consumer economics ("an explanation of the economic system and the consumer's part, the effects of advertising, what influences the consumer to buy, etc.)."

The evaluators also complimented the school system on numerous improvements in facilities during the past few years. Some things still need to be done, though, they said. Among them: "Classrooms should be equipped with a teacher's desk and permanent chalkboard and bulletin board facilities. (A portable roller-type chalkboard is currently being used.)"

Small equipment in the kitchen area needs to be updated so that girls can have realistic experiences with foods. (Mrs. Garnick said the department now has no electric skillets, grills, etc., "which practically all women today have.")

Two large refrigerators should be obtained to replace the old refrigerator and chest-type freezer presently being used. (An allotment of $350 for purchase of one refrigerator-freezer was made in the budget adopted last week by the Board of Education.)

Class size must be held at 20 to 25 because of facilities, the evaluators added.

It's Legal But Not Right

President's Johnson's latest Supreme Court appointments are running into unexpectedly tough opposition in Congress. At least 19 Republican senators, including Nebraska's Carl Curtis, have signed statements saying they will not approve any Supreme Court appointment until the next President takes office.

Other Republicans, as well as some Democrats, are expected to align with them. And with Congress trying for adjournment prior to the conventions, the first of which starts Aug. 7, the odds are increasing that Abe Fortas could be the second nominee in history to be refused the country's top judicial post. It is assumed that whatever decision is made on Fortas will be paralleled by one on Homer Thornberry.

Many oppose Fortas—and Thornberry—on the grounds that a "lame-duck" President should not be allowed to make such important appointments.

The truth of the matter is that Lyndon Johnson is President until his successor takes office in January, and one of his duties is to appoint Supreme Court justices when vacancies occur.

Congress Obligated Too

However, Congress also has the right—and the obligation—to refuse approval of anyone it feels is not qualified.

Technically speaking, Fortas' professional qualifications are impressive enough to warrant his appointment to the top post. But anyone who has grown weary of the Warren Court's landmark decisions breaking down law and order can only hope the 19 Republicans will be able to hold out.

For a look at Fortas' record during the three years he has been on the court offers little prospect of change from the direction in which the Warren Court is headed.

What the Record Shows

A quick perusal of the record:

Fortas cast one of the deciding votes in the 5-to-4 Miranda decision. That ruling virtually barred the use of freely given confessions from use in court. Countless attorneys have testified that they have had to turn loose murderers and thieves as a result.

Fortas also voted with the majority in striking down a section of the 1950 Subversive Activities Control Act which barred admitted Communists from working in defense establishments. Now it is against their constitutional rights to be refused employment in a defense plant, no matter how critical the material produced.

The new appointee has also voted to throw out the requirement for registration of Communist Party members with the government, and has helped overturn convictions of persons accused of traveling with American pass-ports to countries declared off limits by the State Department.

Some Good

To his credit, it must be pointed out that Fortas has upheld federal power to punish draft-card burners and a policeman's right to frisk a suspect for dangerous weapons if he feels that his safety and that of others is endangered.

Nevertheless, his decisions have generally been with the rest of the liberals who have dominated the court. And the country can't stand another 10 or 15 years of that.

Even the 'Poor' Have Pocket Money

From the Cumberland, Wis., Advocate

So much drivel has been written about the rioting and looting in our cities that it is not easy to put the disturbances in perspective. Politicians, wiping tears with one hand while holding aloft a campaign banner with the other, chorus that billions of the taxpayers' dollars will have to be spent on the good things of life for these downtrodden looter-voters.

Before you accept that verdict, ponder the following Associated Press dispatch out of Chicago on Apr. 10: "The warden of the Cook County (Chicago) jail said yesterday that he is amazed at the sum of money found on the 1,800 persons arrested during the rioting in Chicago Friday and Saturday.

Winston Moore, the warden, said $85,000 was inventoried as taken from prisoners. One man arrested at the scene of looting had $563 in his possession. Moore said the average adult who was arrested for looting had $300 to $400."

That's a lot of walking-around money and rather more than our friends and neighbors carry in their pockets. Where did these adult looters and arsonists get that kind of money? Were they paid in advance to loot and set fires? And if so, who paid them? Maybe the President's riot commission should be reconvened to review the matter of whether or not there is a conspiracy at the bottom of this. If the average adult looter had "$300 to $400," certainly they don't need any billions from Washington very badly.

As to the Washington riots, perhaps the following from U.S. News and World Report says all that needs to be said:

"Three blocks from the White House cars loaded with

What Kind of Country Will It Be?

By Bill Bray
Executive Secretary, Missouri Press Assn.

I was reading a column from the Duncello Press the other day when my son came in. When I looked up he seemed to be saying to me just what that column said. It went something like this:

"Dad, don't pretend you don't see me. Just sit still and listen because I want to ask some questions."

"I'm not very smart yet, but I'm smart enough to see what's happening to this country in which I'm supposed to grow up and support my family. When I do grow up, will I be a social security number in a government file or will I be myself? You always told me the most precious possession I had was my name. Seems to me like today the most important thing is a number."

"When I get sick, whose doctor can I go to, my doctor or the government doctor? When I go to school, who is going to decide what I learn, you and mother or a government bureau?"

"When I am able to afford a house, will I be able to build one just as good as I can make it, or will it be a government-built house, worth only a part of what the government taxed me for housing?"

"When I go to work, will I be able to pick my own job or will I have to get a work permit from the government and take whatever job they give me? And if I criticized the government will I get a work permit?"

"What makes you think it would be 'bad' me to have to make my way in competition with others? If I work a little harder, or better, or get lucky, will I be able to keep any more of what I earn than the other fellow who didn't work as hard, or as well, or get as lucky?"

"This lucky business is important: In your heart you know that in the game of life there has to be a jackpot, or the game won't be played very hard."

"Where did your generation get the cock-eyed idea that the man who earns twice as much should be taxed four times as much? (I know where you got it — right out of Marx.)"

"Where did you get this idea that government can take care of everybody? You know you can't get something for nothing: Yet you pretend that people in Washington can give Negroes pulled up at a shoe store. Looters piled into the street, broke the windows and cleaned the place out. Police, looking on, did nothing to stop them.

"After loading up with hundreds of dollars' worth of shoes, the looters jumped back in their cars and started off — then they stopped at a red light. One witness yelled: 'They can loot all they want, but they're afraid of getting arrested for a traffic violation.'"

In other words; loot at leisure in the nation's capital, but don't run any red lights when you drive away.

And you can appreciate that it may cost a lot of federal money to keep such looters in a style which will dissuade them from looting in the future.

$39,500 Survey, Plus Night at Store, Prove You Can't Make Everyone Happy

DEAR MISTER EDITOR: Charlie Radil started off the session at the country store Saturday night by predicting the new President would be a Republican and the odds on Charlie getting appointed commissioner of Agriculture were improving every day.

Leon Woods of the Great, Sochi said there wasn't no chance of a Republican making it fer President in 1968, but on account of him believing in free speech, he was willing to let Charlie offer some more of his program fer agriculture.

Charlie had his clippings ready, Mister Editor, and was quick to take the stump. First off, he said, people on farms and ranches has dropped by half since 1950 and during that time agriculture production has more than doubled. He reported the price supports and hand - outs had cost the taxpayers $51 billion in the last 35 years. He claimed three-fourths of the farmers say they want the government to get out of farming, but the more the people say they don't want the hand-outs the more government gets into it. They'll set a limit on how many acres of wheat a farmer can grow and turn right around and hire three new experts to tell the farmer how to raise more wheat to the acre.

Furthermore, said Charlie, he had seen where they have added 1,400 more people to the Agriculture Department payroll since Sept. 1, 1967, and he didn't see no chance of easing off on the taxpayers with that kind of program.

Paul Waldmann said he disagreed with Charlie on price supports, and claimed they ain't much profit margin in raising chickens, fer instance, when you get less fer the chickens than the feed costs to raise 'em.

Seeing as how he was getting a little help from Paul, Leon you things without first taking them away from you.

"Don't try to blame the people in politics: They are simply doing what you want them to do. Naturally they favor the things you favor because getting elected is their business. They would change overnight, if you would."

"And don't get the idea that they respect you for being saps: Only a fool can be sold a ride on his own horse. And that is exactly what is happening when you vote yourself 'security' by giving the government more and more so the government can give you some of it back. My arithmetic isn't too good, but it looks to me like you're passing the buck to my generation. You're taking the easy way out and leaving me and your grandchildren to pay for all your waste."

"I'd rather risk having to stand in a bread line a few times than to spend my life standing in line for government handouts."

"You know darn well that those men who run labor unions know that unearned wage increases are stage money. But you are supposed to be a businessman. Don't you know any better? Can't you do something about it? Even I know that you can't expect prosperity when everybody is getting more money for producing fewer things."

"Have you forgotten that the only reason Americans produce so much more and live so much better and easier is the whopping supply of tools of production that people used to be willing to save for in the days when profit was not a nasty word?"

"At the rate you are going the private property system will fall apart and the tools will fall apart with it. Then goodbye America — and me!"

"What's wrong with the idea of paying people fairly for the use of the tools bought with their savings? The tools do most of the work."

"If there were any other place in the world where government wouldn't plan my life for me even more so, it wouldn't be so bad, but America is the only place left — and look what you are doing to it."

"Aren't you ashamed?"

Congressman DAVE MARTIN Reports

Gun Bill

The Johnson Administration gun bill was reported out of our Rules Committee last week by a 10 to 5 vote. I voted against the measure. The legislation would prohibit the mail-order sale of both rifles and shotguns. It would prohibit the purchase of either guns or ammunition in a state outside of a contiguous state to but in to say he had seen in his pamphlet from the Department of Agriculture where a farmer would have to have a 170 percent price increase to get back from his investment what he could get in any other line of work. If it wasn't for price supports, said Leon, we would have a "poor farmers' march on Washington and the place wouldn't be big enough to hold 'em."

They ain't no way, Mister Editor, to run this country that'll make all the fellers at the country store happy. I was reading where the U. S. Public Health Service spent $39,500 on a survey to find out what makes people happy. They come up with three things — youth, health and money — and the fellers at the store was short on all three.

I didn't report on this item Saturday night, Mister Editor, on account of Charlie would've had a fit over that $39,500 and maybe announced he was passing up agriculture for a chance to be commissioner of public health.

Yours truly,
Geranium Joe

The Quiz welcomes communications from readers. The briefer they are, the better is the prospect of publication. All are subject to condensation. We assume no responsibility for statements in letters.

Dear Editor: Well parents, it is hitting pretty close to home. Instead of sitting around hating these kids, and hoping they hang them, let's take stock and make sure it doesn't happen again. And maybe next time the ones of us that know so much about it all, it won't be

When I hear all the hatred and animal-like behavior among us adults, my heart aches for our children, when that is all they hear.

In the first place when they are small and bother us, we give them a quarter and say here, run downtown and don't bother me. At 15 they are all excited about learning to drive. We don't have time. They come home and ask if we would take a car of kids to a school activity. No no no. They walk away dejected as usual. The phone rings and so-and-so wants us to ride to the game. We are ready in a few minutes, beer and all.

Next they want the car for something special. No, we are going on a big party tonight. Or we are having a bunch in tonight and make yourself scarce. Or go buy them a car so they won't bother us. We have to keep up with the Joneses so we have to buy them a new car.

Oh yes! We will all say, "Boy we didn't do that. We took our kids after the game was over we said, "Now go straight home. We are going to a party and don't know when we will be home."

To hear grown people talk and carry on who are supposed to be level-headed adults, I get so scared, I am really upset now. Yes! We are big shots in town. If our kids get in trouble, we can get them out of it. Go and pay them off.

A church minister calls us up some night about 10 and asks if we know where our kids are. If we are lucky, they are home; if not, we are mad and tell him it is none of his business.

Yes, we can blame the kids for it all; it is easier that way. But whether we like it or not, they had to learn from someone. I am wondering from some of the things we do, if it could have been from us.

When I listen to the hatred toward other children, I wonder if it is felt toward my children when I am gone. I love all children, and it breaks my heart to see this. So please, let's all make it a point to show more love and kindness, and try to teach them better. After all they are pretty wonderful.

A worried grandmother who still loves kids, Marie Andersen, Ord, Neb. 68862

P.S. You can print my name. I am not ashamed to let people know I don't think the kids are to blame. Only wish I knew of some way to help.

one's residence. It would prohibit the sale of shotguns, rifles or ammunition to anyone under 18 years of age. It would prohibit a father from giving one of his guns to his own son, except that when he dies he may then will his gun or guns to one of his children. I questioned Chairman Celler of the Judiciary Committee, from which the bill originated, in regard to a father loaning a gun to his son who is under 18, plus ammunition, to go hunting. He replied that this would be a subterfuge.

The age limit at which a young man or woman may drive a car is left up to the states. In most states this is permitted at age 16. It seems to me that this entire matter should be left up to the states to regulate.

A hunter who goes to another state to hunt, not contiguous to his home state, and who runs out of ammunition, under the bill as currently written would not be allowed to buy ammunition in that state.

Present laws currently require the dealer in selling a gun to register the serial number, as well as the name and address of the purchaser. This legislation will not curtail crime, nor the murder of people, nor will it keep criminals from obtaining guns.

We need far stricter penalties than we currently have in regard to a felony, a robbery, or an assault committed with a gun, and then we need strict enforcement of those laws by the courts. It seems to me that we are approaching the problem from the wrong end.

Retirement Benefits

We currently have before the House a bill which would increase both the amount paid into a retirement fund by a member of Congress and a federal employee, and would also increase retirement benefits.

Currently, 7.5 percent of a Congressional member's salary is deducted from his pay check and goes into his retirement fund. Retirement is then based on 2.5 percent of his salary times the number of years he has served. The present bill would increase the deduction from 7.5 percent to 10 percent and increase benefits from 2.5 percent to 3.33 percent.

Legislation increasing the deductions and also the benefits for all federal employees should also be postponed. Their retirement fund is currently in the red by several billion dollars. This legislation would authorize appropriation from Treasury of millions of dollars in order to keep their retirement fund solvent. Increases in deductions should be approved, but no increase in benefits should be voted at this time.

KERRY ON

By Kerry Leggett

A pleasant cool breeze rustles the treetops of the summer night as my thoughts turn, once again, to you.

The sky has turned to a deathful white . . . marked only by brush strokes of blue tinged with pink . . . the pale pink of a rouged face in an attempt to add life to the already dead.

The black oval of a tire swing suspended by rope sways to and fro in its lonely vigil of the lifeless playground.

Picnic benches—in line—vacant of picnickers . . . stand solemnly end to end.

Only the green grass reminds me of life—grass that has felt the naked feet of lovers . . . the barefoot plodding of tiny feet . . . grass that holds many secrets in its green lushness.

Memories return as I glance thoughtfully outward. Turning myself loose with my thoughts, you return.

Always and ever haunting my mind as I seek repose in the summer night, like a dream dreamed over and over—always awakening the dreamer before the climactic ending.

Will it ever be? Will it ever come? Will I ever dream the dream through to its end?

Bronzed by the summer sun, you lay—head on entwined fingers—soaking up the warmth as if your skin thirsted for more of the tanning radiance from above.

Never opening your eyes, you spoke haltingly . . . spoke of other days and other times . . . other names and other faces.

Questioningly I searched your face for the answer. Was this real—or was it only a dream? Was this you talking . . . or was it the sun-warmed soul within you?

The river rolled on—as rivers do. And as do minds, my thoughts darted to and fro in wild imagination . . . speculation. Now—as darkness encloses me—the trees disappear into the blackened sky. I've lost sight of where you lay . . . of the words you said . . . of the speculations. Only you can bring them back—you and your wanton smile . . . you and your elusive thoughts . . . thoughts that skimmed with my hopeful mind.

As darkness settles over the countryside around me I am alone again. Alone with my thoughts . . . alone with my dreams . . . alone with you.

But even when I close my eyes—hoping to find rest—the image of you returns to fill my mind as once you filled my heart.

Something Different For the Birds

CULLEN LAKE, Minn.—Every time I think each facet of lakeside living in beautiful Minnesota has been explored, presto, something new pops up. This year we are bird-y. Everything is birds. The only person who doesn't know anything about birds is ME.

And I'm getting educated, for I'm hearing much bird conversation. Very bird-y.

It began simply, with little green-backed hummingbird feeders. Quite a few hummingbirds flutter iridescently at the glass tubes full of colored water, emptying a feeder of its syrupy contents in less than a day.

The birds aren't always peaceable; they fly at one another, evidently arguing over who gets hopped up first on the syrup. The tiny birds get plump so there must be enough to go around.

Then the Bird Lady, my next door neighbor and sister-in-law put out a big metal sunflower, a pretty bird feeder meant to hold sunflower seeds for bigger birds. Some beautiful species have discovered the sunflower feeder, which promptly sent us to the bird books to try to identify them.

Dictionary Would Be Helpful

There's an unbelievable bird with an orange chest and a cerise hairpiece. We admire him so much, but we can't decide if he's a double-breasted seed splitter or a Sunflower Sam thrasher. He might be a purple something or other, one authority thought.

These names! They can be pillated (no, not pixilated) — that means they have a feathery topknot. They can be rufous; we never did find out what's rufous. Also of course, they can be simple things like speckled — I understand speckled.

But the bird feeder was discovered by enemies. And so were the hummingbird feeders, for here came the chipmunks, the little cuties. They puzzled a good bit, but at last learned to scale the tree or leap to the feeder, directly, and then the seeds vanished. The chipmunks made pigs of themselves, until they got actually fat.

That wasn't all that raised Mrs. Anderson's blood pressure, as one bird feeder after another was emptied.

For a handsome gray squirrel discovered the sunflower seeds, and easily learned how to rob the flowery feeder.

I still enjoy the chipmunks, but Mrs. A. has decided to be their enemy and is chasing them away.

Loud Loons

That doesn't finish the bird problems, oh no.

This afternoon a tea party of women heard a pair of loons on the lake yodling like crazy. That pair of adults had a small loon swimming about with them, and they were warning off all comers. The trouble was that three naughty boys in a fine power boat had cruised up too close to the loons, and were using their dip net to try for the baby loon.

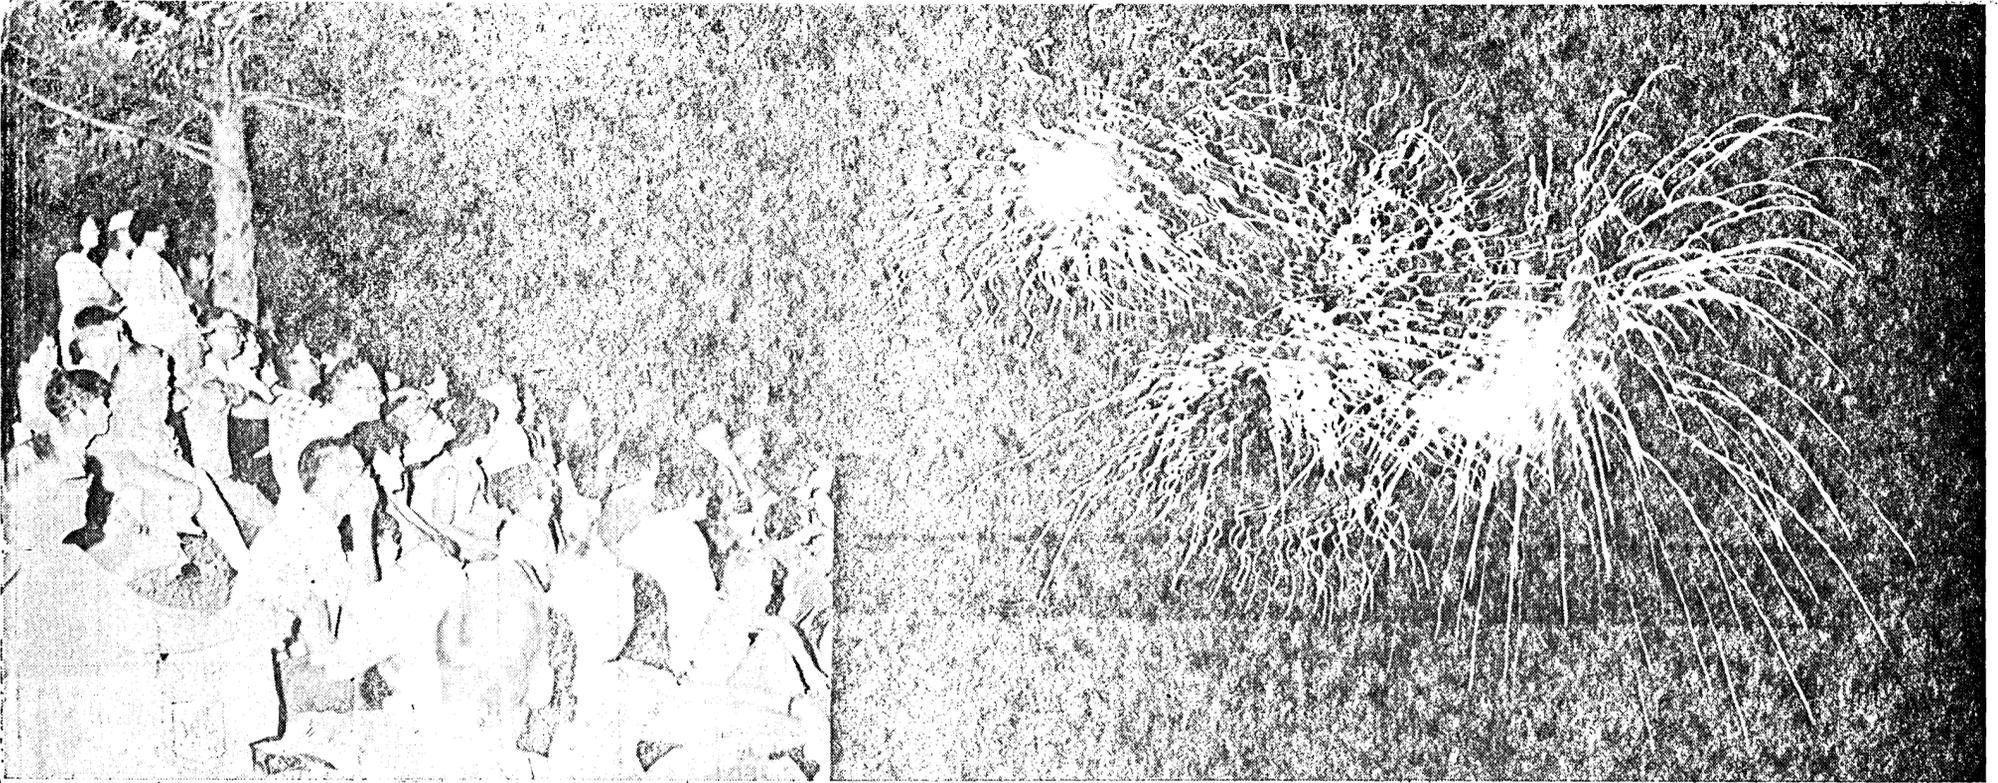

That loon father and mother were wild, thrashing and holering more than you would about your baby if it were threatened with kidnapping.

All this clamor upset the tea party in a hurry as the women charged down onto the dock and began shouting at the distant boys who returned that answer of boys since time began — "We weren't doing anything."

But they made no indication that they'd fish. They must have had guilty consciences, for they revved up their motor and took off down the lake.

"We did our good deed for today," announced one of the women positively.

Come to Church

The Parable Of The Vacationist

by I. V. Jacobs

Now it came to pass, as the summer drew nigh, that Mr. Church Member lifted his eyes unto the hills and said: "Lo, the hot days come and even now are at hand! Come, let us go into the heights, where cool breezes refresh and glorious scenes await!"
"Thou speakest wisely," quoth Mrs. Church Member. "Yet, three or four things must we do before we go."
"Three things I can think of, but not four," responded Mr. Church Member. "We must arrange for the flowers to be watered, the chickens fed, the mail forwarded, but the fourth cludes my mind."

"The fourth is like unto the first three, yet more important than all! Thou shalt dig down into the purse and pay the church tithe, that it may be well with thee. For verily, I say unto thee, thou hast more money now than thou wilt have when thou doest return!"
And it came to pass that Mr. Church Member paid his tithe for the month and the treasurer rejoiced greatly, saying, "Of a truth tithes are those who care for the Lord's work."
— And it was so.

Ord JC-Ettes Help Form Club at Albion

Ten Ord JC-Ettes journeyed to Albion Monday evening to help wives of the Albion Jaycees establish a Mrs. Jaycees organization.

Mrs. Podroza led the discussion and the Ord ladies answered questions concerning objectives of the organization and how to organize a Mrs. Jaycees group.

Following a lunch served by the Albion ladies, officers for the new club were elected, under the guidance of Kathy Bolleson and the other Ord JC-Ettes.

The Albion group will ask for a charter as a Mrs. Jaycees organization at the McCook convention July 26-28.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Green and Mr. and Mrs. Kerry Leggett and daughters represented the Ord Quiz at the Central Nebraska Press Meeting in O'Neill Saturday.

School Days Relived

Edith James Skinner of Herman, Class of 1932, had written asking Ord people in particular to attend the banquet. Clayton Noll, a local man from the Class of 1912, showed what he thought of Mrs. Skinner's suggestion with a big buss on the cheek. She announced it was the third one she had received that day and promptly went off in search of another.

September Trials Expected for Trio Accused of Assault

Trials for three youths arrested on charges of assault with intent to commit rape have tentatively been scheduled for the first week in September, Garfield County Judge Dermont Erington said yesterday.

The third youth involved in the case, Thomas Vaughn, 18, of North Loup, was bound over to district court last week. The two other accused youths — Delysie Barson, 19, of Ord, and David Konkoleski, 15, of Elyria — had been bound over previously.

Judge Erington said District Judge Donald Weaver of Grand Island will preside at the trials. Judge William Manasil of Burwell, who normally hears cases in the Burwell area, suffered a heart attack recently and has been restricted by his doctors from performing normal work.

Selection of a jury has already begun, Garfield County Attorney Keith Kovanda said. The scheduled date for arraignment is July 30; however, no definite trial dates have been established.

Kovanda also said he anticipates the filing "shortly" of additional charges concerning liquor violations in connection with the June 29 incident. Apparently no further assault charges will be filed, he said.

The prosecution called two witnesses at Vaughn's preliminary hearing, just as it had for those of Barson and Konkoleski. They were Don Grieb, of the Nebraska State Highway Patrol's Criminal Investigation Division, and Mary Patricia Gubin, 16, of Omaha, the alleged victim.

The defense called no witnesses, Judge Erington said.

The alleged incident reportedly occurred in Jones Canyon six miles northeast of Burwell, where "about 35 or 40" youths were holding a "party."

Any way you look at it, the Dick Beran clan is minus one automobile. High winds last week broke a large limb off a tree next to the Beran house in Ord. The limb plummeted to earth, landing directly on top of a 1951 Plymouth the Berans had recently purchased. Tom Beran, 16, said he had hoped to fix the car up for himself, but now he doesn't know.

Various Activities Scheduled for Fair

Contests and exhibits ranging from livestock to flowers will be featured at the 1963 Valley County Fair, to be held Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

A Monday morning parade will signal the start of the three-day extravaganza. Sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce, the parade will begin from the grade school at 10:30.

Floors will have as their theme some television program. There are four categories: children's programs, Westerns, comedies, and miscellaneous.

Persons wishing to enter floats should contact Duane Schernikau or Gerald Woodgate. If unable to do so, they should be at the grade school at 9:30 Monday morning, Schernikau said.

Also on Monday's schedule will be the first session of the Jaycee Junior Rodeo. It will be held at 8 p.m. A second session will be held at the same time Tuesday. All contestants will participate both nights, Bill Kirby said Tuesday.

Events will include a greased pig scramble, open only to Valley County boys and girls aged 7 through high school; calf roping on foot, open to all ages; ribbon roping, for both boys and girls; large yearling riding, restricted to youths 15 and over; yearling riding, 12 to 14 years of age; calf riding, under 12; boys barrel racing, all ages; girls barrel racing, all ages; Shetland pony riding, over 12; pole bending, for girls only of all ages; saddle race, for girls and boys 12 and over; and girls calf riding, all ages.

Trophies will be presented to the best all-around cowboy and all-around cowgirl.

A new attraction at this year's fair will be a pie baking contest. Competition will be conducted in two divisions, one for persons in school and the other for adults, and in two classes, double-crusted and single-crusted.

Mrs. Dean Hiser, who is helping to organize the contest, said pie bakers may enter both classes if they desire. They should bring their pies to the school exhibit area between 7 and 7:45 Tuesday night, she said. The judging will begin at 8 and the winners will be announced at the conclusion of that evening's rodeo performance.

A flower show is also scheduled Tuesday. Although judging will be conducted that night, the flowers will remain in place until 10 p.m. Wednesday.

Members of area 4-H clubs will display livestock throughout the three days.

Judging of the dairy animals will be held Monday at 2:30 p.m. Swine, sheep and beef animals will be judged Tuesday at 8:30 a.m.

Over 100 market beeves are expected to vie for honors in the beef cattle division, County Agent John Schade said yesterday.

Culmination of the beef show will be accented by the auctioneer's chant at 3:30 p.m. Wednesday, when approximately 60 head of cattle will be sold to the highest bidder.

As usual, there will also be a carnival with various rides.

A local talent show will help bring the three-day program to conclusion. It will be held Wednesday night starting at 8.

Crowning of the fair queen will also be apart of the Wednesday night activities.

Minnesota 4-H'ers Visit Valley County On Exchange Trip

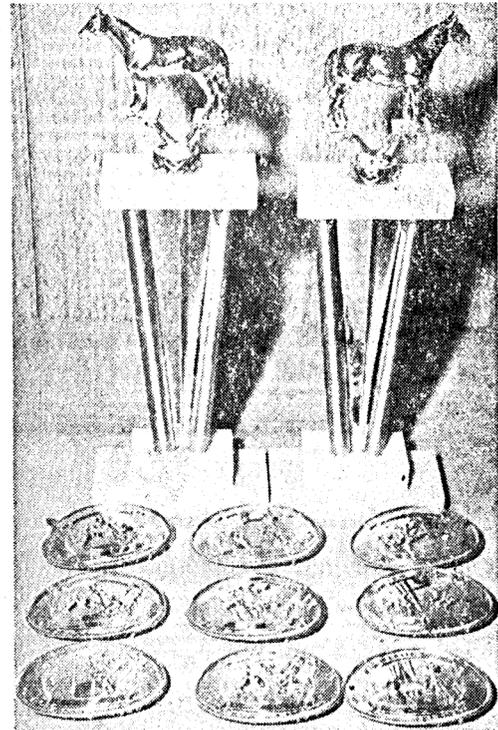

Seven 4-H members and one county extension agent from Steele County, Minn., spent the past week with farm families in Valley County.

The 4-H'ers were part of a 41-member delegation that visited 14 Nebraska Sandhill counties.

Valley County 4-H members will visit farms in the Minnesota county in 1969.

Part of the loot that will be hauled away by contestants in the Jaycee Junior Rodeo was on display this week. The two big trophies will go to the all-around champion cowboy and cowgirl, while belt buckles will go to winners of individual events.

Reduction of Local Postal Services To Follow Employment Restrictions

Effects of the recent Congressional legislation putting a halt to rising federal employment will be felt almost immediately in the local area. The first shock waves will come in the form of reduced postal services announced today by Acting Postmaster Roland Norman.

The reductions include:

- Elimination of all Saturday window service.
- Restricting Saturday mail collections from street deposit boxes to the less-frequent schedule already followed on Sundays.

Cancer Fund Drive Tops $1,600 Mark

A total of $1,663.16 was collected during this year's American Cancer Society fund drive in Valley County, project chairman George Lockhart has announced.

The figure represents an increase of approximately $200 over last year's total, which included one $500 donation.

More than 40 solicitors throughout the county participated in the drive, Lockhart said. A few dollars are still coming in, he added, even though the drive officially ended July 1.

A meeting will be held the first part of September to select a staff to handle next year's fund drive.

The changes are effective this Saturday, Norman said.

Planned extensions of city and rural delivery were curtailed July 1, he added, pointing out that the post office does not plan to provide mail delivery service to new housing subdivisions and apartment projects as long as the present employment restrictions exist.

Under the legislation which also included a 10 percent surtax and a mandatory $6 billion budget cut, all federal agencies are required to cut back employment to the level authorized on June 30, 1966, Norman said. No local postal employees will be laid off their jobs, but there will be a reduction in the working hours of part-time employees.

Quoting Postmaster General Marvin Watson, Norman said the problem "is not a matter of dollars but of people." He added,

Weather
	High	Low Prec.
July 18	80	62
July 19	82	33
July 20	84	64
July 21	85	68
July 22	83	56
July 23	84	57 .02
July 24	81	59
Rainfall to date for 1967 — 11.79 in., 1968 — 12.33 in.

General delivery windows will be open for two hours on Saturdays, from 9:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m., for the convenience of general delivery patrons and firms normally calling in person for mail. Residential customers who have received notices that parcels are being held may also call during these hours, Norman said.

The Post Office Department will not fight the budget restrictions, he quoted Watson as saying. However, he said attempts will be made to have the employment restrictions lifted.

Liquor Violations Result in Fines For Two More Under-Age Youths

Two out-of-town youths have been added to the growing list of minors convicted in Valley County Court of liquor violations.

Steve Czaplowski, 19, of Loup City, was found guilty on a charge of possession of alcoholic liquor by a minor and fined $100 plus costs. He was apprehended by State Patrolman Phil Quinn "in the early hours" of July 6. The pickup occurred south of Ord on Highway 11.

Czaplowski, who was on parole from Sherman County, was in an automobile also occupied by Phillip Alexander, 24, of Loup City. Alexander was fined $100 for intoxication.

The second underage youth fined was Gary Rhoades, 28, of York. He was arrested on a minor-in-possession charge June 26 at 1:30 a.m., and fined $100 also.

Rhoades was arrested, according to police, after attempting to cover up for a companion, Roger Melvin Wessels, 23, also of York. The two were working in Ord for the Comanche Masonry Co.

Wessels was alone in a pickup when he was stopped by City Patrolman Dwayne Wert because a taillight was out. When he failed to produce a valid driver's license, Wert refused to let him drive further.

According to police, he went and got Rhoades who was going to drive the pickup. Rhoades, however, picked up a can of open beer which Wessels had in the pickup and was consequently cited for minor-in-possession.

The citation occurred after general uncooperativeness on the part of both Wessels and Rhoades. Patrolman John Boeltcher stated "Off duty at the time, he had been called by Wert to assist in handling the situation after it became involved."

Wessels was found guilty Wednesday in County Court on a charge of driving while under suspension. He was sentenced to 30 days in jail, and his driver's license was further suspended for one year from the time of his release.

However, his attorney, Stubs Kelly of Grand Island, announced immediately that he would appeal the decision to district court. Wessels remains free on bond.

Sweeping Revisions Recommended In Care of State's Mentally Retarded

By Melvin Paul
The Nebraska Press Assn.

LINCOLN — A special study committee has concluded that Nebraska is pursuing an "archaic and fruitless program" for the mentally retarded and recommends sweeping changes be started at once to remedy the problem.

The Nebraska Citizens' Study Committee on Mental Retardation, after 10 months' investigation of conditions at the Beatrice State Home and elsewhere, reported the "existing condition is one of the blackest pages in our state's book," but added:

"The legislature and the administration... can launch us on the road to the comprehensive, modern-day program needed."

The committee did not put a price tag on its recommendations, but it said under-financing of public institutions is a key problem in Nebraska.

"Public funds traditionally spend more to care for their large animals than is spent to care for the mentally retarded," the report said.

"Five of the largest zoos spend an average of $7.15 per year to care for their large animals. Per capita expenditures for the mentally retarded in Nebraska's institutions is approximately $4.45 per day. Per capita daily cost at Beatrice State Home in 1966 was $3.58. The national average is $7.15. Our neighboring state of Kansas spent $12.18."

Dr. Robert Osborne, state mental health director, said that while the initial outlay would be large, the state would end up saving money "in the long run" through more efficient administration.

Major proposals in the report included:

- Reduction of the Beatrice Home population from the present 2,300 to 850 within a six-month period, including the transfer of 400 older patients to nursing homes.
- Establishment of regional mental health care centers and diagnostic clinics to eliminate "unnecessary institutional placement" of the mentally retarded.
- Separation of the State Institutions Department into departments of penal-correctional services, and medical-community services, with the latter containing divisions of mental health and mental retardation.
- Charging local public school districts for the cost of educating school-age residents of the Beatrice Home instead of billing their families.
- Creation of a public guardianship program to help in the placement of mildly retarded patients in jobs and other useful, productive ventures.
- Revamping of the Beatrice Home's salary schedule to put professional and custodial employee wages on a level comparable with neighboring states. A "merit system" or "personal system" was recommended for non-professional workers.
- Repeal of the state law which provides for sterilization of certain Beatrice Home patients before they are released, and renaming the institution to better reflect the home's responsibility.

Authorization of the state and its political subdivisions to contract with private, non-profit corporations for the purpose of providing community or residential services to mentally retarded individuals anywhere within the state. The committee said this would open the door to millions of dollars in federal funds.

The governor said some of the recommendations could be put into effect without legislation but many would require action by the Unicameral, especially those pertaining to appropriation of state funds.

"But I can assure you I will do everything I can to see that these recommendations are implemented," Tiemann said.

The governor "wholeheartedly" endorsed the proposal to reduce the Beatrice Home population. He said the institution is way overcrowded.

Senator Fred Carstens of Beatrice had been critical of the committee and the governor for considering a proposal to cut the home's patient load.

Dr. Osborne, who worked closely with the committee, called the study "probably one of the best of its kind that I have ever seen." He was prepared "to defend this plan extensively. It is not a crash program, but a realistic one."

The 12-member citizen's committee was co-chaired by James Jacoby of Omaha and Dr. William Higgins of Lincoln.

"Nebraska is among those states which has failed to reap benefits for its citizens from a modern outlook on the mentally retarded," the committee said.

"The mentally retarded represent a distinct challenge to Nebraskans. They are a challenge to its state government especially, and to its governments at all levels; to its organizations concerned with making life more wholesome for all citizens; and to every citizen of the state."

Housing Bill — Last week the House passed, 295 to 114, a whopping housing bill which includes everything but the kitchen sink—or perhaps the sink is included. The bill authorizes $5.4 billion and could cost up to $50 billion over the next 40 years.

Provisions: rent supplements home ownership subsidies, riot insurance, model cities, public housing, flood insurance, and new powers to savings and loan institutions. The bill calls for building 1.7 million new or rehabilitated housing units over the next three years.

Home Ownership — Allows families with incomes up to $7,000 to buy homes with the government paying part of the monthly payments. Families would be required to spend 20 percent of their income on monthly payments for principal, interest, taxes and insurance. The government would pay the difference between the family's payment and the actual payment required, provided the purchaser paid at least 1 percent interest. Cost over the next 40 years—$12 billion.

Low-Rent Subsidies — Provides interest subsidies to non-profit apartment builders so they can provide 700,000 low-rent units over three years at a long-range cost of up to $12 billion.

Public Housing — Calls for 425,000 public housing units in three years at a 40-year cost of up to $16 billion.

Rent Supplements — Provides another 155,000 new units in which the government provides subsidies for rent programs.

Riot Insurance — A new program of help to private insurance companies who write policies for ghetto areas.

Flood Insurance — A new program of federal help to private insurance companies to insure flood-prone areas that can't get insurance now.

Model Cities — Another $1 billion allocation for rebuilding entire areas of cities.

I opposed this Housing bill because the American taxpayer cannot afford the cost. How are we going to attain the $6 billion mandated by federal expenditures this year when the Congress passes bills like this?

Carol's Corner

by Carol Leggett

It's great to be a girl. In terms of good health, education and the chance to combine job with domesticity, women have never had it so good. For instance:

• Life expectancy of today's girl babies has increased almost 20 years since 1920.

• Three out of four 17-year-old girls are high school graduates, compared with only one out of five in the early 20s.

• About one out of six 21-year olds is a college grad, as against one out of 50 in 1920.

• Biggest challenge to modern women: About half have their last child by age 30. Once the kids leave the nest, their mothers have years and years ahead to figure out how to keep busy, use time profitably and stay happy.

A letter from Mother Irma this week had the following cookie recipe enclosed. Our family has made the cookies to our list of favorites.

Snowball Cookies
2 1/2 c. graham cracker crumbs
1 c. powdered sugar
1/2 c. melted margarine
2 c. chopped pecans
1 6-oz. can frozen orange juice
More powdered sugar

Combine first five ingredients, blend well. Form small balls roll in powdered sugar. Refrigerate uncovered. Store for freezing in coffee can if there are any left.

About five guys and 15 gals were at the Ord Pool last Thursday evening to sign up for adult swimming lessons. Some started by learning to float while others are in more advanced stages. I still wish Ord had a traffic light at the Elks Club corner, which most Ordites more commonly refer to as the "Farmer Store Corner."

It was good being back at my desk Monday morning after taking a few days off. Call it a vacation, if you like. A pleasant change, anyway, and Mrs. Clean would be proud of how nice things look at our house now. The floors and windows are sparkling clean; there's a freshly painted wall in the family room; all the peacock spots are gone from the concrete garage floor; the two-month-old screen door now wears a clear coat of varnish; and that "catch-all" closet in the hall is so orderly it is hard to find what I'm looking for (probably because I threw most of the "clutter" away).

The bicycle — anyhow, a bicycle of a sort — is 150 years old this year. It was a German forester who invented what he called the "velociped." But it was primitive indeed by the standards of today's cyclists. It had no rubber tires and no pedals. Those pioneer cyclists had to get started by pushing off from the ground with one foot. Fortunately in about 1853 another German man invented pedals. And in 1888 an Irishman introduced inflatable tires. So — if you think bicycling is an effort today, think again. It appears that Ord has a number of bicycling enthusiasts, namely Marietta Smith, Glenn and Velma Warner and Marv Withers. But Dorothy Holmes does not use her big three-wheeled bike anymore. Or am I wrong?

Corn Field Moisture Study Underway To Increase Yields

Electrical resistance blocks to measure moisture conditions have been placed in more than 75 corn fields in south central Nebraska, according to the state's Cooperative Extension Service. This system of measuring moisture content will help farmers determine how to divide the available water during the critical period of corn growth. Nine co-operating farmers in Phelps, Gosper and Kearney counties will share the use of these meters with five adjacent farmers, according to H. Robert Mulliner, University of Nebraska district extension irrigation specialist in Hastings. Assisting with the program are the Central Nebraska Public Power and Irrigation District, the Tri-County Water Users Assn. and the state and county extension services.

The water in this area is used on a 14-day rotation basis, and it is hoped that use of the moisture meters will provide information required to gain maximum efficiency from the canal system, said Mulliner. The ultimate goal is to gain maximum use of the water and get maximum yields, he said. Soil moisture records will be recorded by 45 individuals. The readings will be taken out every seven days up to the time of irrigation, just prior to applying the water, eight hours after starting flow of the water, and then 24 hours after the water has been shut off. In addition, dates and acre inches of water applied will be recorded as well as crop yields. These records should help farmers make better use of the water, he said, and it is hoped that all inefficiencies will be eliminated.

Heart Featured In Science Film

The human heart — that efficient little instrument which has been described as the most powerful and precise pump for its size anywhere — will be featured in a film to be shown Sunday evening at the Bethel Baptist Church.

Entitled "Red River of Life," the film will show the inside of a beating heart and take the viewer on a guided tour of the 100,000-mile maze of blood vessels in the human body. Produced by the Moody Institute of Science, the film is inspired by a Biblical phrase from Leviticus 17:11, "The life of the flesh is in the blood."

Rev. Don Wicht, pastor of the Bethel Baptist Church, said last week's film was an outstanding success with about 50 persons present to view it under the stars. This week's film will also be outdoors, he said, beginning about 9 p.m.

The public is again invited, he said.

"I've always let people onto my land to fish and enjoy themselves," he said, "but I'm going to post it now. I don't want to take the chance on something happening again."

After examining the animals Dr. Karre said he could detect nothing to indicate that the injuries were anything more than normal accidents.

"That type of thing is quite common this time of year," he said, "although it is extremely unusual for two bulls in the same pasture to come down with it."

Kernels & Husks

Light traps in the Lexington and Grand Island area began picking up the first of the western bean cutworm moths on July 9. Catches had risen to 84 per trap on the 14th. This appears to be just the beginning with peak moth catches probably between July 25 and August 10. Eggs are now being laid.

Dylox has a 40 day waiting period before harvest; however, it can be ensiled or harvested after 40 days.

Following is the third in a series of drought disaster articles on the use of straw and other low-quality forage crops:

If you're short of feed, plan to salvage all the low-quality forage that's economically feasible. This includes straw, corn stalks, milo stubble, and corn cobs. These forages may provide feed for maintaining seed stock herds cheaper than any other way.

On many livestock farms, harvesting the entire plant in the form of silage will be the best method of utilizing the forage from a grain crop, especially during drought. In most localities, however, low quality roughage will be available on farms that are not raising cattle or sheep.

Coarse roughages, plus supplemental protein, phosphorus, and vitamin A, will provide adequate nutrients for the beef cow herd whether they're dry or nursing to six weeks before lambing. They are satisfactory as the basal ingredient in the ration of growing beef and dairy calves or heifers and ewes nursing lambs, if supplemented with small amounts of grain in addition to protein, minerals, and vitamin A.

Most of these low-quality forages can be grazed as is normally done with corn stalks and milo stubble. During drought, harvesting and storage will be justified in many — if not most — instances to reduce waste, to permit controlled feeding, and to have feed available during bad weather.

Straw should be harvested soon before fall rains cause leaching and discoloration.

Milo stubble can be handled easily by harvesting as silage. It does not lose leaves rapidly and will normally contain enough moisture to make silage for several weeks following grain harvest. Some livestock producers recover additional forage by using a chaff catcher behind their combine. Whether or not this is justified depends on the amount of grain not removed from the head and the variation in the height of the milo.

MAKE Farm Safety AN EVERYDAY HABIT!

Harvest the Rewards in Profit, Production and Protection . . .

The success of today's highly mechanized farm depends to an ever-increasing degree on the safety practiced by today's modern farmer. When safety is your constant companion, you run a more efficient and productive farm.

As a modern farmer, you put heavy dependence on the proper operation of costly, often specialized equipment. Be sure it is safe to use . . . keep all machinery in tip-top shape.

Accidents are fewer when your farm area and buildings are neat, clean and in good repair. And even your youngest farmers-to-be should practice safety. The best way for them to learn is by following your good example.

Safety is a full time job. Practice it all year around, and you'll never stop harvesting the benefits.

Varied Talents Displayed By 15 Queen Contestants

By Ellen Sintek

Fifteen Valley County girls pantomimed, sang and discussed such things as LSD and Negro riots while vying for the title of Miss Valley County 1968 at a tea Friday afternoon.

Although results of the queen contest will not be revealed until the Valley County Fair, the annual queen tea was a three-hour session for the judges, Mrs. Max Jordon and Mrs. Larry Johnson of Loup City, before they finally reached a decision.

Following a four-minute talent presentation by the contestants, each girl drew a question from a hat and answered it extemporaneously. Mrs. Orel Koelling was emcee for the afternoon event, and also assisted a committee at the tea table following the competition.

The queen was selected on the basis of natural beauty, 40 percent; poise and personality, 30 percent; public speaking, 20 percent; and talent, 10 percent. To be eligible, the girls must be 17-20 years old, single and sponsored by a Valley County club.

Those girls competing for Valley County Fair Queen were: Sharon Bruha, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Bruha of Ord. She was sponsored by the Jolly Neighbors Extension Club. And read an excerpt from "The Art of Friendship" for her talent number.

School Report

Needs of Individual English Students Stressed; Importance of Overall Business Program Cited

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the fourth of a series of articles explaining in depth the findings of a 15-man delegation which examined the Ord School System Apr. 30-May 2. The men were from the North Central Assn. of Colleges and Secondary Schools, and the Nebraska State Department of Education. This week's special areas of concern are English and business education.)

English
Individualized instruction was the primary concern of evaluators who visited the English department. They liked the progress Ord teachers had made in this area but hoped further inroads on the old classical system of teaching could be made. "A beginning has been made toward individualization of instruction," the examiners reported. "This involves some use of differentiated assignments, a variety of materials, and special individual work. The concern for the slower student is evident," they continued, "and it is obvious that the staff is seeking solutions to this problem."

Their primary desire was to see that each student receives as much individual attention as possible, and that a program of learning to fit each one's particular abilities is developed. They favored a system featuring individual assignments and requirements, instead of the old system where a teacher made one broad assignment for the entire class and each student was required to accomplish it at a skill level identical with that of his classmates, even though it might be ridiculously easy for some and extremely difficult for others.

The use of Project English materials has helped in achieving this personalized curriculum, they felt. Project English is a program being used in various schools throughout the country. It emphasizes the literary aspects of English more than the grammar, according to Don Nekuda, one of the four high school English teachers in Ord. It has no textbook, and each student can be assigned an amount of homework that will fit his abilities.

"There's a vast amount of reading in the program," Nekuda said last week. "I personally feel it lacks a little in the composition area, although there are units which pertain to grammar as well as various aspects of literature. The program certainly stimulates greater interest among the students though," Nekuda continued. "The emphasis is on producing students, who are well read and have an ability to write. The intent is to allow each individual to progress at his own rate," he added. "With Project English we're getting away from a lot of the old-time teaching techniques," Nekuda continued. "For example, when I was in school there was a lot of emphasis on diagramming sentences. Now that seems to be on the way out, because you have to know whether a word is a noun or a verb before you put in the diagram. Thus, diagramming is just an unnecessary repetition of what the student already knows."

To date the program has been used in the Ord system only for grades 7 through 12. However, the evaluators indicated it should be considered for the lower grades as well.

While they congratulated the Ord teachers for their attempts at individualized instruction, the examiners criticized the grouping of children by abilities.

Concern for the slower student is great," they wrote, "but too much hope is being placed on ability grouping to solve the problem. The trend is definitely away from ability grouping and toward doing something to meet the needs of the individual child."

"Through individual study, supplementary materials, etc., teachers are finding ways to do this job within the heterogeneous classroom," they continued. "This eliminates the problems that grouping can cause to feeling of individual worth, growth differences, etc. Too often the grouping has been done for the child, and the realization of the basic undemocratic spirit of grouping is causing much concern in the nation."

Nekuda said he, for one, planned to do more individual teaching during the coming year. Last year was the first acquaintance he had with Project English, he said, and he tried to teach it at a medium pace. This year he will experiment and specialize more, he said.

Although Project English has been in use at Ord for two years, it is still relatively new to all four high school English teachers. Three of the four—Nekuda, Jerry Walsh, and Steve Deger—were new to the Ord system last year. The fourth, Mrs. Mildred Schwengel, will be new this fall.

The evaluators acknowledged this problem of newness and called the situation "still experimental."

to do this sort of thing next year. Communication is desirable not only with other teachers in the Ord system, but with instructors throughout the state as well, they thought. They advised all English teachers in the local system, both high school and elementary, to join the Nebraska Council of Teachers.

"Benefits would far outweigh the necessity to travel a distance to meetings and to give up a Saturday or two," they reported. They also recommended the individual approach be used not only for literature, but for grammar as well.

"A modern approach generally is being followed in the senior high, but both junior high and elementary need to consider a program more in tune with modern findings," they reported. "To use the Project English units for literature alone is to overlook half the program."

One other major recommendation was made by the evaluators. That was the addition of a required speech course at grades 7, 8 or 9, "so that the skills learned can be used during the high school years."

Such a course might be only a six- or nine-week portion of a language arts block, they conceded, or a course balanced against physical education, music, or some other part-time course for a semester.

"Means should be sought to include it at the junior high level without taking away from English unless absolutely necessary," they wrote.

Such a course would mean the speech elective now being offered at the 12th grade could be "designed to help those interested move on into higher-level speech activities, such as dramatics, debate, etc."

The evaluators also raised the question of a required 12-grade English class which would "stimulate thinking, even in a situation where grades become secondary in importance." This would help meet the needs of slower students, they inferred.

Business Education
Business education should be thought of as a total program by both students and teachers, and the curriculum should be expanded. Those were two of the principal suggestions of evaluators in this field.

Their comments inferred that some students enroll in individual courses without ever relating them to other business courses or the work-a-day world.

"Students should be oriented to the fact that business education is a program and not merely a collection of courses," the evaluators wrote. "They should enroll in the total program so they may be prepared to have a salable skill for the world of work. If this is not done, stu-pils interested in the office occupations.

The course, "Introduction to Business," is an integral part of the curriculum.

Lack of sufficient business education opportunities for the adult community was a void the evaluators listed. They suggested the expansion of refresher or upgrade courses.

Mrs. Paulsen said such a course was conducted last year with 12 enrollees. She said it was geared to the backgrounds of individuals enrolled, and that the students met at night once a week.

However, she said the course was offered only once and that adults engaged in seasonal occupations, such as merchants who might have to stay open nights during the Christmas season, may not have been able to attend. She conceded that it should be offered at least twice during the school year.

The present "Business Week" program, where students work for various businesses in town for a week, was criticized as "not good unless the student is paid and supervised by the Office Practices' instructor."

The evaluators suggested expansion of the program so that the student would work throughout the year with pay, course credit, and instruction. At present the student receives no pay and is supervised only by the employer for whom she is working.

Greater use of local businesses for field trips was also encouraged in the report. Mrs. Paulsen said such trips are already common to a number of offices in town, especially to the Agriculture Stabilization & Conservation Service "which has the most up-to-date equipment in town."

A follow-up study of business education graduates was suggested. This would help indicate the program's success and provide suggestions for improvement, the evaluators said.

While she conceded that no formal study had been conducted, Mrs. Paulsen said she felt the present situation is better than that suggested. She said she had known many former students who had returned and talked with the business instructors — Mrs. Paul Burmood and Ed Bosworth as well as herself — telling them of strengths and weaknesses in the department. Such face-to-face conversation provides more information than a formal written questionnaire or third-hand information obtained through a canvasser, she said.

Other criticisms of the evaluators included:

• A need for more storage space.

• A need for new typewriting tables and adjustable chairs to replace those presently in use.

• A space for more reference materials, including up-to-date dictionaries, secretarial handbooks, magazines, postal guides, telephone directories, atlases, shipping guides, travel guides, etc.

Wheat Harvesting Nears Final Stages; Low Prices Main Cause for Concern

Harvesting is practically complete on the 1968 wheat crop, with farmers reporting good quality, fair quantity, and poor prices.

This year's crop ran all the way from four bushels an acre to 54, Joe Polak of the Farmers Coop in Ord reported. However, he estimated the average yield to be 25 to 30 bushels.

Very little wheat from non-irrigated fields was harvested; as a result, the overall quality of that which was cut was above average. Polak said it "was fairly dry for the most part," although rains at the beginning of last week sent some of it above the 13 percent moisture level. Some of it was as low as 10 percent, he said.

The average test weight was reported as 60 to 61 pounds. Prices were the main object of concern for farmers this year rather than quality or yield. The average paid was $1.16, Polak reported, and by Tuesday the price had dipped to $1.14.

"If the price goes up later, then I'll take it out and sell it," Koelling said.

Quite a number of farmers are following that procedure this year, Polak said.

The top crop reported came from a field worked by George Bremer in the Mira Valley area. It yielded 54 bushels an acre, and Bremer's total crop came in at an average of 46.

Generally, wheat in Nebraska this year is quite good compared to surrounding states, according to the State Department of Agriculture. Average test weight for the state is 62.3 pounds per bushel, second only to Oklahoma's 62.7, and average moisture content is 12.4, the best of the four states reporting.

Only Nebraska, Oklahoma, Colorado, and Kansas have made reports so far.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Ferguson attended the convention of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks in New York City last week.

Mr. Ferguson is exalted ruler of Ord Lodge #2371 and represented it at the convention.

More than 15,000 Elks and members of their families attended the convention. Guest speaker was Gen. Lewis W. Walt, former commander of Marine forces in Vietnam and currently deputy commandant of the Marine Corps.

Why Play Their Way?

The Johnson Administration's latest great experiment in wishful thinking is proving to be another albatross hung about the collective neck of the United States.

Despite sufficient lessons from our recent past, the administration's negotiators continue to go once a week to accept vocal abuses and insults from the North Vietnamese propagandists at the Paris "peace" table.

Meanwhile, in South Vietnam the abuses and insults also continue to fly. But there they're a little harsher than mere words. There they consist of such things as mortars and grenades, hurled in ever increasing numbers at our troops as well as South Vietnamese civilians.

Since the President called a halt Mar. 31 to the bombing of most of the enemy's homeland, more than 40,000 North Vietnamese regulars have invaded the South. The flow of military supplies and weapons southward has more than doubled, and the enemy's broken rail and road networks have been repaired. Anti-aircraft defenses formerly around Hanoi have been moved south, greatly increasing our plane losses.

But this is not news. It's exactly what was predicted. The Costs: Aside from the drain on our manpower (more than 400 deaths a week), the monetary cost of the war to us is staggering. We simple mortals who rarely deal in money above the three-figure level find it difficult to get the significance of a news report which says we are spending $28 billion a year on the war. It helps only slightly when the figure is broken down to $77 million a day.

Vice-President Humphrey, who appears to be the foremost Democratic candidate for President, says we must have patience and stay at the conference table in Paris for months and, if necessary, for years. We did that in Korea—for two years as a matter of fact, until a Republican administration took office.

Two years of negotiations on Vietnam at the present casualty rate will mean more than 40,000 young Americans will die. Negotiations just until President Johnson's successor takes office—and the Communists apparently are shooting for at least that—would mean 10,000 U.S. deaths.

Certainly this is a price we can ill afford. The irony in all this is that the Communists have pulled no surprises—they have acted exactly as was predicted. Yet we cannot learn from lessons of the past. We continue to stumble along making the same mistakes we made in Korea, and Mr. Humphrey would have us stumble even further.

Our Reactions Elsewhere Limited
It is interesting to note the speculations of columnists concerning official U.S. reactions to the present Czechoslovakia-Russia confrontation. Most come to the conclusion that we will not intervene, even if Russia uses force to crush the Czechs as it did the Hungarians 12 years ago.

The columnists are exactly right. How could we do otherwise, even if we desired? Mired in Vietnam, we cannot afford a major military action anywhere else in the world.

As a matter of fact, our leaders won't even go to the defense of 83 of our own sailors captured six months ago by the North Koreans. Does anyone think we could really give help to a foreign country?

When the Communists went to the Paris negotiating table, they expected to spend months and years. That's the way they play the game.

In athletics one of the principle rules for victory is to make the other fellow play your game—or at least play it yourself. Don't ever fall into the trap of playing him the way he wants to play.

The Communist way is to talk and fight—with them doing most of both. With Mr. Johnson and Mr. Humphrey we're playing the game their way. It's not the best way—for us.

Castro Still Getting in His Whacks

Hijacking airplanes and having them flown to Cuba has been a popular hobby for quite some time now. Up until a few days ago, though, Fidel Castro's Communist government had observed—for it—normal rules of decency by returning the planes and most of the passengers without serious incident.

A couple of weeks ago, however, the Cubans lost their heads. When a civilian airliner carrying a number of military passengers—several of them just returned from Vietnam—set down on the Havana runway, they couldn't resist the temptation of hauling the servicemen off and interrogating them.

Their questions ran the gamut from Vietnam to racial disorders, with the latter aimed particularly at Negro servicemen.

Although no physical violence was used and the men were allowed to return to the United States with the rest of the passengers, the Cubans showed extremely poor taste—not to mention a lack of international decorum—in questioning them at all.

Our government must make it plain to Castro that such incidents will not be tolerated in the future.

Something Different It Came Out of a Big Kettle

Yesterday I got out a big old aluminum kettle and made a boiled dinner. I made a lot, starting with a good-sized beef roast, quite a nice one. I dropped in a garlic clove.

I let it boil a couple of hours. Then I went two big onions, cut up. And 12 or 15 slim young carrots.

After they simmered merrily for a time, I added celery, maybe a cupful. These vegetables take longer than some, but soon I laid in a layer of potatoes, say 10 cut in two.

And lastly, 20 or 30 minutes before serving, I went a young head of cabbage, cut into serving portions.

It is all so easy to do, and makes a good dinner for a starving horde, especially if you make hot cornbread or toast hard rolls to go with it. I chickened out and did it the easy way: I baked three loaves of frozen bread. So good for dunking.

I fell to thinking of all the good dinners I'd eaten from that kettle, which has been in the Leggett family for years. It has been full of good, thick bean soup many a time, cooked with the bone end of a ham, with possibly a potato cut fine. Or an onion, for sure.

Or, my husband's mother, who was a fabulous cook, would make what we called German potato soup. Now this is different, and it's very tasty too.

Start with pickled pork, cut fine and fried a little, drained somewhat. Put the meat into the big kettle, then chop in a pair of onions, dice three or four large potatoes and add two quarts of water. Put on to simmer, cover and forget it for a few hours.

Then stir flour and water together into a soupy mixture, and stir a half cup of hot soup into the flour and water. Now you may turn it into the big kettle, and the soup should be no thicker than heavy cream. For heaven's sake don't make one of those pasty effects that resemble wallpaper paste, which completely ruin the flavor of any vegetable or dish where they're used.

Or perhaps the big kettle was used to make a corned beef dinner, much the same as a boiled dinner, though you may find parsnips or turnips added. Be sure to have enough corned beef left to slice cold, though. Or better yet, to make corned beef hash. It is so much better than the canned kind, which has too many potatoes and too little flavor.

The usual excellent kind of potato soup was made in this kettle for many a tableful of hungry eaters. Split pea soup sometimes was made in this big kettle. Or tasty chili.

In early summer, often new potatoes and new peas from the garden were assembled in pure cream; such a wonderful day that would be.

Sometimes ham was boiled with new potatoes and new string beans; that makes an elegant dinner, and the leftover potatoes are full of flavor for hash-browning.

And of course that big kettle cooked up endless quarts of juice and jelly. This is fruit country, Minnesota is. Do you ever feel sorry for these new, modern little cooks? I do, rather. Of course it is easier to zip open a frozen package, and there's some fine food packaged that way.

But it also great sport to start from the beginning and build a superior-tasting meal, in a big friendly kettle. Only trouble is, I've lost my customers! They grew up and went thataway!

Practicing Safety on Farm Is Sensible, Not Sissified

(Editor's Note: This is National Farm Safety Week. In observance of the occasion, this article was contributed by the local chapter of the Future Farmers of America. It was written by Jack Burke, editor of "Farm Safety Review.")

One of the ruggedest, workingest farmers I know is a real nut on safety. He's a man who can laugh at the toughest jobs, but he always makes sure that whatever he does is done safely. Brains prevail over brute muscle.

Jim relishes life. He has enormous vitality. He never needs to resort to wild chance—taking or showing off to prove how smart, daring, strong, invulnerable or masculine he is. That well-run farm is proof enough. Excellence of deed does the shouting for him. He'll gamble on a new idea, but he wouldn't risk a penny's worth of his or his two sons' lives by taking chances.

"My father is in his 70s," Jim told me down home one weekend, "and he farmed for over 50 of 'em. He did pretty well and did it without a serious accident. I don't remember his ever losing a day's work due to getting hurt. And you safety people

Is it the loneliness of a lost soul? Or is it the fact that I'm alone that creates a void inside me... a void that only you and thoughts of you can fill.

Loneliness—like jealousy—ferments the heart until it becomes drunk on wine of its own making. A staggering and reeling imagination moves the mind along the street of lost souls.

Trying to return to reality—to dispel the loneliness within me—I walk the streets of a quiet city. Window shopping. Picturing you in the latest fashions... not sure of your size... but knowing that whatever I buy may not please you. You have a style of your own.

The mode dresses of today look so lifeless on the mannequins... yet I know even the simplest outfits—even these will spring to life when you don them. You add the life and vitality to the marker their real.

I walk on. The heat from the sidewalks permeates my body. I spot a refuge. "Entertainment Nightly." Entering the cool corridor, I descend the stairs into the quietness of the dimly lit lounge.

Seeking solace from my solitude, I find a table near the wall. Ordering a plain ginger ale begets a look of askance from the waitress. "That's right, one plain ginger," I repeat. She smiles apologetically and soon returns with my order.

As I swirl the swizzle stick around the glass a pianist behind me plays a few chords, then in a French accent asks, "Any requests?"

Two young couples—college age and well-dressed—request a Beethoven number from their table across the room. "Yesterday?"

"Certainly," the pianist replies, breaking the hushed quiet of the room with some heavy chords, then in a heavy French voice singing—almost speaking—the lyrics that will live on as one of today's "hit tunes" that will never grow old.

As he finishes I glance up. "Do you know 'When the World Was Young?'" I ask.

"Ah..." he says, smiling. "The gentleman requests a French number!" He smiles, knowingly... reassuringly. Grinning with pride he opens the sheet music he'd dug from a stack at his side.

"Ah, The Apple Tree." He repeats the lesser known title of the song... then chords and opens with the spoken lyrics: "It isn't by chance I happen to be, A boulevardier, the toast of Paris. For over the noise, the talk and the smoke, I'm good for a laugh, a drink or a joke..."

Youthful faces look first in my direction... then to the singer who's lost in song. I look down and make ringlets on the table with the bottom of my glass.

"Ah, the apple trees, Blossoms in the breeze, That we walked among." He sings the refrain... completely lost.

The lounge is quiet. Everyone listens when only minutes before they talked quietly. All faces studied the pianist... casting an occasional glance in my direction.

"Ah, les pommiers doux, Ronde et ritournelle, J'ai pas peur des loups, Chantonnait la belle, Ils sont pas méchants, Arce les enfants, Qu'ont le coeur fidele, Et les genoux blancs."

Setting my glass on the table I shove out a quarter tip, pocket my change and walk—head down—toward the door.

Glancing back once more as I push open the door, the pianist smiles—understandingly—and nods a slight grin at me. I smile back, then ascend the stairs as the water in the fountain drowns out the music behind me. Alone again.

The torch is burning...

Geranium Joe Fellers at Country Store Draw Fine Line In Discussion About Antiques and Junk

DEAR MISTER EDITOR: Bill Campbell's preacher came by the country store Saturday night but said he couldn't stay but a few minutes. He was rounding up some groceries on account of his old lady was late getting home from the auction site. The good parson said his wife had to go to them household auctions on account of it was the only way she could tell if their furniture was junk or antiques.

After the parson had left, the fellers got to talking about them auctions and how they were getting more popular every day. Oscar Pearson was of the opinion women go because they think everything that's old and don't belong to them is valuable.

But Bill had some ideas on the subject. He said the world was changing so fast that we got to have antique auctions so we can sell some of the stuff that goes out of style afore it's ever sold the first time. He said he knew of this feller that runs a furniture store in one town and an antique shop in another town, and he gets all his antiques that way.

Bill reported he was in the preacher's house one day recently and saw this horse collar being used for a mirror frame in the hall. It seems the preacher's old lady bought the collar at an auction and couldn't figure what else to do with it. Bill said the parson told him his old lady had got a room full of everything from quilting frames to a matched pair of snuff boxes, and it was just the other day she announced what she aimed to do with all of it. She was planning an auction sale of her own.

Bill said she was a member of the garden club and the women were always fixing up these flower arrangements for shows. Nowadays, women don't use a pot or a jar for arrangements. They got to give their flowers what they call "character." A bunch of flowers sticking out of a coffee grinder took first place at the last show, Bill said.

All the fellers agreed this was real "character" and Kenneth Wilson was of the opinion this antique business was a way of trying to hold on to the past. The future is coming at us so fast that the hurried everybody goes the behinder they get, was Ken's words. Afore we get used to doing things one way, he said, they have three more inventions to do it faster. Personal Mister Editor, I agree with Ken in this matter.

I was reading the other day about the printing business, and this column writer said printing equipment that ain't been invented yet will be antique in 20 years. I'm already antique and ready for auction, and I wouldn't be surprised none if my cow pasture this year didn't turn out to be a shopping center next year.

Yours truly,
Geranium Joe
