vet fashioned in traditional white. A wedding ring collar contoured the defined skimmer silhouette with its waist-length baroque sleeve of cut velvet. Mr. Needham spoke of presents and God's gift to us, using Luke 2:1-27, especially verses 10 and 13. They told of glory and praise in heaven the night God gave his Son to us. On earth there was nothing, no place for the Christ child. Only a few hearts, such as those of the shepherds, accepted Him. Today there is no place for Jesus but in the hearts of those that believe and accept Him into their hearts. After the scripture talk, Mrs. Anglin sang, 'Thou Didst Leave Thy Throne,' and closed with 'Joy To The World.' The service was much enjoyed by the 12 present. Last Fine Levied In Assault Case Final actions have been taken to clear up the criminal end of last summer's assault case at Burwell. Doug Markley was fined $150 and costs in Garfield County last week on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of a minor. He had been out of state since shortly after the incident, but apparently returned to clear the matter up. He is now working as a policeman in Virginia. Three other youths had been named in a charge of assault with intent to commit rape in the June 20 incident. One of them was found guilty in district court contributing to the delinquency of a minor and the other two of assault and battery. A fifth youth had pleaded guilty in county court to a charge of procuring liquor for a minor. Although this clears up the criminal portion of the case, it apparently will not be closed for some time as civil suits calling for $500,000 have been filed against the three boys and their families who were named in the original assault charges.

Cost Accounting: The information presented here is taken in part from an editorial entitled "Those Confounded Records" by Ralph Reynolds appearing in the November-December issue of The Farmer. Those of us on the outside looking in seem to think that these cold winter days are vacation days for farmers. Most crops are out of the field and sold or stored away. And when that old north wind whistles around the barn, the farmer has a good excuse to stay close to the fire. There's time to catch up on visiting, reading, resting, and all the other pleasures he has by necessity put off during the busy season.

But what most of us don't realize is there's a little irritant that keeps bugging the farmer. It's like that angry, persistent fly that wants to pester you when you have shut your peepers for 50 winks on a Sunday afternoon. Or it's something akin to the drip-drip-drip of the kitchen faucet as you are awakened on a night when the floor is cold and you don't want to get out of bed to shut it off. It's those confounded records!!!

There are farmers who would sooner plow the back 100 than make one entry of any kind in a record book. And for these are those farmers who are almost fanatics about putting down anything related to performance (yields per acre, pigs per sow, and so on), but when it comes to costs they won't be bothered beyond the simplest figures required for income tax purposes. There are other farmers who gain satisfaction in adding up costs. They can tell you within a penny where their money is spent. Still they overlook, or completely avoid, the important non-cash costs such as their own time and management ability.

Why are most farmers lax in their record keeping? Perhaps it's because this meticulous kind of figuring and record keeping just doesn't appeal to them. In some cases it may even appear to be a plain nuisance.

To get right to the point of the question, then, is this kind of modern up-to-date record keeping and account analysis really worth it?

We think so. We recommend crossing the new frontier of cost accounting so you can get all the financial facts you need to make sound economic decisions. Any other decision-making picture is incomplete and may even be misleading.

In cost accounting you simply isolate each enterprise that contributes to your overall income. You then make sure that each of these enterprises is paying its way by charging the proper costs against it. For instance, if you grow crops, farrow pigs, and milk cows you may have at least four enterprises to keep records

Ord Comeback Bags Title In Local Four-Team Meet

Ker-pow—like that! It looks as if Ainsworth's Rich Newton has just clobbered Ord's Ron Bredthauer with a solid left jab, but in reality all Newton was trying to do was block a Bredthauer shot. He was unsuccessful as Bredthauer helped his team to a 61-44 triumph in the championship contest of the Ord holiday tournament.

Members of the Ord High basketball team performed last week in a series of games around town as performing this week in the Ord holiday tournament. The Chantlers had enough oomph in the latter stages to win their holiday tournament trophy. They were a team from behind to beat Ainsworth, 64-44, in the tournament finals after they had opened a class semifinal game with a lead to win going away, 63-53. The latter team found Loup City to prove in the battle for third place, whipping the Raiders, 62-42. Loup City had also been outed in the semifinals by Ainsworth, 77-61.

Ord faced a 13-2 deficit in the second quarter of the championship game, but once the Chantlers started making the rebounding. They closed the game 13-11 in the end of the first quarter, and then outscored Ainsworth, 20-4, in the second period. Ainsworth gave them a 31-20 halftime edge, and a 32-23 advantage at the start of the fourth quarter insured more than the usual amount of playing time for their reserves. Four of the five Chant starters had big hands in their team's comeback, as the first half scoring was divided rather evenly. Ron Bredthauer led with 15 points and was followed by Dick Janda and Bill Miller with seven apiece, and by Bill Klanecky with four. Klanecky got hotter in the third period, however, reeling off 12 points enroute to a game-high total of 20. Bredthauer was runner-up with 18, followed by Miller with 13 and Janda with 11.

No Ainsworth man could reach double figures. Free Throws Still Problem. Coach Ken Trubey of Ord expressed satisfaction with his team's weekend performance, despite some ragged spots. "You can't ever complain much when you win two," he stated Monday.

However, he did lament the fact that his squad continued to show the slow-starting tendency. "That's what beat us against both Cozad and Lexington," he said. "They got such big leads on us early that we could never catch up. We played them evenly in the last half, but it was too late by then."

Free throws also continued to be a problem area for the Chantlers as they canned only 14 of 28 against Ainsworth and 10 of 24 against Burwell. Their field goal shooting was much better as they hit 42 percent in both contests.

Sorensen Shines. The Ord-Burwell game was easily the best of the tournament. In the second quarter the Chantlers threatened to make a run-away of it as they opened up a 21-14 lead midway through the period. But Dennis Sorensen, who proved himself the best marksman of the tourney, led a Longhorn comeback that narrowed the margin to 23-26 at halftime. Sorensen hit three long jump shots and added two free throws as he scored eight of his team's last 12 points before the half.

But Coach Les Piper's team also suffered a severe setback in that flourish as 6-3 center Dave Mitchell, tallest man on the team, picked up his fourth foul. He was forced to sit out the entire third quarter, easing the way for Ord's 6-4 Ron Bredthauer to dominate the backboards. With Bredthauer pulling in 15 caroms and the scrappy Klanecky getting 12, Ord held a 41-33 edge in final rebounding statistics.

Despite Mitchell's absence, Burwell went ahead briefly in the third quarter as Sorensen hit three more baskets and Jerome Maxson two. Things really began looking dark for Ord when Burwell took a 24-22 lead and Bredthauer picked up his fourth foul with the third quarter still half over.

Coach Trubey refused to pull his big man, however, and Bredthauer responded by leading his team on a big streak that reeled off 10 points. Sorensen's margin reached 43-33 with the margin reaching 43-33 in the period. Trubey pulled him out, but he was back in when the fourth period started.

Chuck Wegner, left, wants to play ball, but Jack Smits, center, and Jim Clement appear to have other things on their minds. Smits and Clement weren't actually squaring off, though—the camera just clicked at an opportune moment as Smits headed downcourt after losing a rebound battle to Wegner. Smits' Wolbach team also lost the championship game of the Scotia holiday tournament to Wegner and his North Loup-Scotia aggregation, 65-61.

North Loup-Scotia Survives First Real Test To Win Championship of Holiday Tournament

Given their first dose of pressure basketball this season, North Loup-Scotia Wildcats found the medicine a palatable tonic Saturday night.

The Wildcats trailed by seven points late in the third quarter but came on to defeat Wolbach, 65-61, in the finals of the holiday tournament they were hosting. Centura walloped Anasley, 73-37, to take third place.

From a 47-40 deficit, North Loup-Scotia roared back to take a 63-55 lead with less than two minutes to go in the championship game. But Wolbach fought back tenaciously and forced the issue down to the last 15 seconds before two free throws by Al Williams sealed the verdict.

The triumph left the Wildcats with a 5-0 record for the year. Their other victories have all been one-sided affairs, with the closest margin a 70-42 game they won from Anasley in the tournament semifinals.

Clement Scores 29. Wolbach, which is certainly among the state's better Class D teams, now stands 5-2 for the year. The Mustangs defeated Class B Centura in the semifinals, 72-63.

Turning to Jim Clement in the clutch, North Loup-Scotia found the 6-3 senior a willing and able performer in the title game. He hit 13 of 22 field goal tries and finished the contest with 29 points. Twenty-three of them came in the last half as he scored 11 of his team's 12 third quarter points and 12 of its 23 fourth quarter total.

One of his short jump shots put North Loup-Scotia ahead to stay with about five minutes to go in the game. The score at that point was 54-53.

But squat Jon Wibbels, looking more like the all-state football player he is instead of a basketball stand-out, led a Mustang surge that kept the partisan crowd biting its nails until the final gun. The 5-8 Wibbels was toiling under a four-foot burden but still made his team's last eight points. And his leadership of Wolbach's full-court press in the closing moments helped reduce the North Loup-Scotia victory margin as it forced a couple of turnovers.

Williams Leads Early. The victors had some outstanding guard play too, especially from the 5-7 Williams. He kept his team in the game in the early moments by scoring eight of its first nine points. In fact, less than three minutes remained in the first quarter before any other Wildcat could get a field goal.

Williams finished the game with 17 points, and his one-hand push shots from outside and out-of-the-ordinary inside some for Clement and 6-4 Chuck Wegner.

Wegner scored 10 points while picking off 11 rebounds. Clement led in rebounds as well as points, claiming an even dozen.

Widdels scored 22 points to lead Wolbach, most of them coming on outside jump shots and free throws. Larry McIntyre led 16, as he performed admirably, solidly opened the inside some for Clement and 6-4 Chuck Wegner.

Grossart Exit Hurts. Steve Grossart, 6-0, scored 11 points for Wolbach but fouled out with just under four minutes left in the game. He was the only player to be fouled out.

point. He had entered the final period apparently in no trouble, with only two violations.

After Wolbach jumped off to a 5-0 lead, North Loup-Scotia battled back to even the score at 11-11. Then the lead changed hands several times before the quarter ended with the Wildcats ahead, 19-18.

The built that lead to 4 points before a hot streak by Wolbach put the Mustangs out front by five, 35-30, at halftime.

The teams battled evenly through the third quarter, thanks mainly to Clement. But the fourth period belonged to North Loup-Scotia as Grossart and McIntyre were limited to one basket apiece.

Centura Wins Easily. In the third-place game Centura was never in trouble as the short Anasley team found itself completely out-classed by the rest of the tournament field. Larry Hadenfeldt led the victors with 28 points after tossing in 22 the previous night against Wolbach. He scored 16 of his 28 tallies in the second quarter as Centura built a 35-18 halftime lead.

Jim Shada scored 13 and Dale Dohesh 10 for Anasley.

Four North Loup-Scotia players hit double figures in the semifinal triumph over Anasley. Wegner was the leader with 18, followed by Williams with 17, Clement 15, and Dick Benson 13. Steve Porter topped the losers with 14.

Unlike the Wildcats, Wolbach had to battle fiercely to reach the finals. The Mustangs trailed Centura at each of the quarter breaks, 18-13, 32-29, and 44-43. But a whopping 29-point fourth quarter pulled it out for them as they won by a fairly comfortable margin.

Grossart was the scoring leader with 24 points, followed by Wibbels with 16, McIntyre 15, and Jack Smits 11. Smits was held to three points in the championship contest. Centura's loss was its first of the year. The Centurions now own a 4-1 season mark.

Anasley finished the tournament with a 4-4 mark.

Allah says don't shoot. But Dennis Sorensen, right, of Burwell shot anyway, despite the out-stretched arms of Loup City's Bob Cook. Ron Cox of the Raiders watches helplessly. Sorensen helped his team take a 62-42 victory in the battle for third place at the Ord tournament.

All join hands and do-ido! The game is really basketball, not square dancing, and there's a ball in some place that all those hands are reaching for. Ainsworth's Bruce Medcalf, 41, came out with it as Loup City's Roy Obermiller, 30, and Ken Zenczynski, 40, battled along with other friends and foes. Ainsworth's Myron Wasson, 55, and Loup City's Ron Cox were going through some gyrations of their own at left. Ainsworth won the first-round game of the Ord tournament, 77-54.

Lawmakers Could Get Scratched On Thorny State Budget Problems

By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Assn.

LINCOLN — Of all the thorny issues which will confront Nebraska's legislators during their 1969 session, perhaps the budget will bear the biggest brambles. The senators proved in their December special session they were determined to keep the lid as tightly screwed down on spending as possible. They rejected Gov. Norbert Tiemann's plea that the sales tax be retained at the 2 1/2 percent level to handle revenue requirements for the coming two years.

The governor laid it on the line to the lawmakers: Either keep the tax rate at 2 1/2 percent, raise it later, or find for yourselves where to make additional cuts in the budgets requested by state agencies.

Tiemann had already taken a $210 million bite out of the requests and said he couldn't find any more fat to trim. Even the cuts he had made, the governor said, would hold back progress more than he liked.

The legislative response was that the senators would decide for themselves, through hearings by the budget committee, whether there was more cutting which could be done. The lawmakers also bowed their backs at Tiemann's inclusion of a homestead exemption and a higher food sales tax credit in his arguments supporting the 2 1/2 percent rate.

The governor said the voters, by approving a constitutional amendment authorizing the homestead exemption, expected action by the legislature in 1969. He said he believed the voters were also expecting that each owner-occupied home would receive the property tax relief.

The senators disagreed on both counts. They said they were confident the voters would want them to make a thorough investigation of the homestead exemption idea before implementing it in any form. Furthermore, they said they were sure an exemption which profited only the poor and the aged would be acceptable to the people.

In addition, they argued there was no need to increase the food credit if the sales tax rate was going to fall to an even 2 percent. The exemption and the food credit were two of the spending items which will be considered during the 1969 session. There will be others. During the debate on each, it is certain, the effect on the budget and tax rates will be argued.

'Legislative Intent'
Also in the background throughout the 1969 session will be the problem of defining and protecting "legislative intent."

The legislature has often felt the administration takes liberties with some of the laws and administrators them in a manner the senators didn't expect or intend. An example of this would be a department's decision to fill only part of its authorized personnel positions and then use the extra money from its budget to raise the salaries of the people it had hired. This means it would take an additional budget appropriation the next biennium to finance the new, higher salaries.

There has been a lot of legislative complaining on this matter, and Tiemann recently issued a directive to provide some protection.

He has distributed a memorandum to department heads telling them changes in salaries must henceforth be cleared by both the state accounting office and the executive budget office.

If either of these offices detects a "deviation from legislative intent" or improper management practice, the governor is to be warned. He will make the final decision on whether the salary adjustment can be granted.

Hastings Senator Richard Marvel, veteran chairman of the legislature's budget committee, has been especially concerned about pressing the unicameral's intentions. He said the budget bill to be proposed during the 1969 session will stipulate exactly how the money is to be spent. Greater detail than ever will be written into the bill.

Old Problems
Among the specific issues to be considered by the new legislature will be many familiar topics.

Highways — how to finance them and how to regulate their construction — will be one of the spotlighted issues.

Another hot topic will be education, particularly state aid to schools.

The senators will be considering the financing and improvement of the state's mental institutions. Also at front stage will be public power, changes in the constitution, and refinements in the taxing systems.

Open housing, found to be an emotional issue, is expected to pass because the federal government is ready to step in and enforce its law if the state doesn't supply one of its own.

Loophole Plugged
The Nebraska Supreme Court has plugged a loophole which allowed drunk driving suspects to avoid part of their license suspensions.

Old Problems

Among the specific issues to be considered by the new legislature will be many familiar topics.

Highways — how to finance them and how to regulate their construction — will be one of the spotlighted issues.

Another hot topic will be education, particularly state aid to schools.

The senators will be considering the financing and improvement of the state's mental institutions. Also at front stage will be public power, changes in the constitution, and refinements in the taxing systems.

Open housing, bound to be an emotional issue, is expected to pass because the federal government is ready to step in and enforce its law if the state doesn't supply one of its own.

Loophole Plugged

The Nebraska Supreme Court has plugged a loophole which allowed drunk driving suspects to avoid part of their license suspensions.

Until the court spoke, it appeared possible for a person accused

The Shape of the Table

Evidence mounts daily that the average American is growing more and more impatient about the delay in getting new peace talks started.

He doesn't understand why the four parties don't just sit down at any old table and start talking.

"In April, 1968, our President proposed to begin negotiations for peace with Hanoi," a typical reader wrote the Omaha World-Herald recently. A long and ridiculous struggle ensued on where the talks should be. Recently these top-level negotiators have been locked in a battle of wits to determine the shape of their table.

"All of this time there were young men 'too immature' to vote who were fighting and dying to protect the honor of our country.

"When it becomes apparent that people 'too immature' or 'too inexperienced' to vote are displaying more common sense than the great diplomats of our country, I think it is time to consider the benefits to be derived from giving these people a political voice."

Lessons From Korea

Such reading makes sense on the surface. As level-headed Americans, we don't see any point in quibbling over the shape of a table.

But past dealings with the Communists have proven that such small matters are of vital importance to later developments.

When we began negotiations with Communist North Korea in 1951, a similar argument arose about where the talks were to be. Impatient to get on with them, we quickly agreed to meet behind Communist front lines.

The size of that blunder soon became apparent. The United Nations delegation — under whose banner we were fighting at the time — was forced to use a white flag to get through Communist lines to the negotiating site. Photographs of the U.N. delegation with its white flag, complete with propaganda describing our surrender, were soon circulating throughout the Communist world.

VC Would Gain With Square Table

Furthermore, when Admiral C. Turner Joy (our top negotiator) arrived at the talk site, he was given a seat substantially lower than that of the top Communist. Again propaganda photos made the rounds, this time showing us looking up to the North Koreans.

In addition, the ease with which the Communists won a concession on the negotiating site made them much more confident, and therefore obstinate, on more important matters later.

Today a square table at Paris would give equal prestige to the delegation representing the revolutionary Viet Cong and that representing the duly elected government of South Vietnam. To us that might not be important, but to the uninformed peasant of South Vietnam it could be very important.

It is a concession that cannot be made.

We Get a Gun Registration Law After All

From Washington-Exclusive

One of the most hotly contested issues before the last session of Congress was the compulsory gun registration bill. The administration proposed such legislation, and thousands of Americans wrote or wired their objections to Congress. That body responded by defeating all gun registration bills. The only gun bill it passed was one restricting interstate and mail-order sales of firearms.

But on Nov. 6—the day after the federal elections—announcement of a federal gun registration edict was made in Washington, Congress notwithstanding.

What bureaucrat presumes to impose such regulations? Believe it or not, the collector of internal revenue.

In the Federal Register for Nov. 6, 1968, Volume 23, No. 217, the Internal Revenue Service gave notice that it is prepared to enforce new rules on reporting the sales of ammunition and firearms.

Under the new rules, any person buying firearms or ammunition from a dealer will have to report his name and address, height and weight, place and date of birth, and provide identification.

Further, the rules will empower the regional offices of the Internal Revenue Service to require regular reports from all dealers on the names and addresses of every person who buys firearms or ammunition.

Thus, every firearm and every purchase of ammunition will be a permanent record in the files of the Internal Revenue Service. And that is gun registration by bureaucrat, in defiance of the clearly expressed will of the Congress of the United States.

It will be more difficult to arouse public opinion on the issue now, because those citizens who screamed last summer have relaxed in the belief that Congress rejected gun registration. And it did. But the frightening fact is that the Internal Revenue Service is doing on its own, what Congress refused to do.

Delusions of grandeur are not unknown among bureaucrats. But no manifestation has been so conspicuous as this travesty. It is a bad joke.

And unless Congress has become a joke, it will quickly correct the Federal Register for Nov. 6, 1968.

Something Different

This Art Kick

People inquire how I got tangled up in this art kick. I don't know, but it was easy. It has always fascinated me.

As a little girl I remember seeing my mother infrequently using water colors, drawing and painting the then standard brown and tan landscape of trees. She had no instruction, but she had done lots of china painting, taking lessons at Miller's in Lincoln. I have a few dainty things she did, on white china so thin my fingers show through, the china from Austria or Germany.

In Los Angeles schools I began to do water colors with a class, but only got in about two lessons before my father decided it was spring in Nebraska so we were to go home. I remember how furious I was at him when I had to stack a wet painting in with other packing, ruining the bright flowers against a black oval.

Not much more art history. Once in a while I picked up charcoal to do a crooked tree branch that intrigued me.

Didn't seem to gain much from Lois Dimmitt's classes.

I bought a kit of oil paints from Eloise Beranek, but didn't seem to be able to get to the painting sessions she held weekly.

Harold Holoun taught a summer oil painting course. I was in Minnesota. Darn.

Signed up for a course in Nisswa, Minn., one day, foolish and brave — hardy wasn't I? The teacher had done art for the Chicago Tribune for 25 years, but when it came retirement time he returned to northern Minnesota where he held several classes a week. I felt far behind the rest of the class, most of whom painted beautifully. Some of them had taken 14-15 years of lessons from various teachers over the United States. Some of them sold everything they painted. I was awed.

Our Irish teacher insisted we set up our own compositions. He put together two bread boards, forming four pockets in each of which a drapery and a scene was assembled by a student. Some students tried for outdoor views, or assemblies of their own. Anyone could bring flowers, fruit, wooden decoys, glass jars, pottery, anything he wished to try to paint. The instructor judged each grouping, saying "A little far apart," or "I don't like this color with that one," etc.

Then to each student his own trials, with palette and brushes. The garb was wild, the oldest and most covering the best thing to wear. We got paint everywhere.

Mostly it was pretty quiet, not too much visiting. Occasionally a would-be artist, disgusted with a line he couldn't draw or a color that was atrocious, would tramp around the big room of the high school to see what other artists were achieving (as the hen said to the rooster about their peacock neighbor).

The teacher walked about, asking, "Why do you have this so far away?" "Make the fruit bigger." "Hold your brush like this."

The time from 1 until 6 p.m. flew by. We emerged bed-ragged, tired, aches, somewhat disgusted with our attempts.

But it was so engrossing next Monday found us back ready to try again. Never satisfied, but it was fun to try. So I dabbed on.

Anyone Still Around Already Has Best New Year's Present

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

Well, Mister Editor, the fellers started off the first session of the year at the country store by announcing they all had got just what they wanted for Christmas and New Years. They had got started on another year. It was Henry Lange that allowed years were flying by so fast a feller has got to look sharp to keep from missing 'em altogether. With all those services they got fer old folks, said Henry, they ought to do somethin' about time.

Fer instance, Henry allowed, they can save daylight with time, but they can't slow it down. Henry said he would like fer one of them government committees to investigate who got mixed up when they were changing time around all over the country. He said there was half a year lost in the shuffle on account of he found a bunch of Christmas cards in his jacket pocket last fall, and he

Edgar liked to tell the story of the woman that had two sons. One of them went to sea, the other became vice-president, and neither one was ever heard from again. With Mr. Agnew hard at work, allowed Edgar, it might get to the place where some of them $20,000-a-year investigating committee members will have to investigate somethin' or take a working job.

Furthermore, claimed Edgar, Mr. Nixon ought to get up a search party to look fer them agencies the Democrats keep paying after they're filed away and forgotten about.

Personal, Mister Editor, I think the fellers is more worried about getting time slowed down than about Mr. Agnew's duties. They are glad to be starting a new year, and they want another one next Christmas. And a happy new year to you.

Dear Editor:

To the long list of New Year's resolutions, I would like to add this one: to love and appreciate people just as they are, not as we would like to have them be. Of all the human errors, I give this one first place. No fault gives more trouble nor causes more human misery than this one.

Consider the years that husbands and wives spend trying to change each other, to bring about the conformity each thinks proper. Or the way parents feel affronted if Junior turns out to be like the "other" side of the family. Or the way so-called "friends" criticize, preferring the people whose attributes and faults are similar to their own.

Every person is wonderfully unique. Like snowflakes, there is not anywhere, above or under the earth, anyone who is just like you. There never was, there never will be. You are one of a kind. This is not accidental. This is all part of God's wonderful plan. That means that each lovely person has something, some understanding, some gift to give the world, that cannot be given by any other human being anywhere in the world. For that reason, no one is expendable, not the humblest person here nor the most ignorant bushman in darkest Africa.

Consider the "failures" such as Socrates or Gauguin. These men took the cake for being the worst husbands imaginable.

Socrates stood on the street corner all day exhorting the people who came by, ignoring the pleas of his hungry wife and children — no pillar of society certainly.

Gauguin left his business, wife and children and went to the South Seas to sit around and paint pictures while living with a native girl.

Rembrandt is to this day an undischarged bankrupt.

But these men gave what God gave them to give. They were true to themselves. Why do we ask that they give something else? Why do we expect more than their best?

Only one person who ever lived was in all things perfect. Jesus could have been both a good painter, or teacher, or whatever, and a good husband and neighbor. But most of us have only one string to our fiddle. We must all try constantly for perfection, but how about appreciating each other in the meantime?

Why should the financier feel disrespect for the painter or philosopher just because those lines of work do not pay as well? Or vice versa?

Why should you disrespect your neighbor who does not spend her time polishing her windows but does keep a wonderful chronicle of the times, to be read by your grandchildren some day for their enlightenment?

How can you be expected to march to another man's drumbeat? It is for him alone. It is a concert played by God for each man alone.

If this idea caught on, I wonder what it would do for foreign relations? Would there be an end to strife in the world?

If your eyes are too full of your own image, you will not be able to see the beauty that is another man. What is right for you is right for you alone, no one else, ever. Not right for your child or your wife, or the man across the street, or the man who is head of state, or the other man who is head of state of another country. You can only do what you must, as your conscience (God) dictates. Why then should you or anyone be surprised if what you do is different from what anyone ever did in the whole world?

This is what the younger generation means when they say, "doing your own thing." They are on the right track. They are much more tolerant than man has ever been.

KERRY ON

By Kerry Leggett

—you for you—
Funny — I think — to hear people say, "I wonder what the coming year will have in store for me?"

Though we can't control our outward circumstances, we certainly can control what's going to happen to US. The future is always what YOU make it. No one else can live your life for you. Once again I return to the old adage, "As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he."

You can be as happy as you want to be. Or you can make your life miserable — if you so wish. It all depends on YOU.

The New Year can be the best year of your life . . . if you just let it be. There are bound to be times of adversity. I know. But adversity can be a blessing in disguise — if we don't despair.

If you're going to "give up" every time the odds seem to be against you, you'd just as well check in. But if you'll seize each opportunity that seems "impossible," use it as a challenge and a goal, then every hurdle you come to can only ADD satisfaction to your life in the knowledge that you tried. To live on in hope is far better than to quit in despair.

The world is never going to see things as you see them. You may be out of step . . . marching to a different drummer . . . BUT, you are marching to the drummer YOU hear. And it's YOU that counts! You're the only one that has to live with YOURSELF.

Start today. Live for YOU. That's the way to be happy . . . to be a success.

Edgottical? Not in the least! Who's going to do this for you — live your life — if YOU don't? Absolutely no one. They're too busy living their own lives . . . practicing these same principles.

So — as I wish for you during the closing days of 1968 — let me wish you self-discovery during 1969. With it will come self-renewal. Then — and only then — you'll become one of the "beautiful people."

With self-renewal you'll find — among many — these things are beautiful beyond belief: the pleasant weakness that comes after pain; the radiant greenness that comes after rain; the deepened faith that follows after faith. And — if you're lucky — you may even awaken to love again!

Your happiness during the coming year can be gained through self-respect. If you're wondering about self-respect — what it IS — let me offer you these lines I jotted down during the past year. I think they say all I'm trying to say — in few words.

"Self-respect can not be hunted . . . it can not be purchased . . . it is never for sale. It can not be fabricated out of public relations. It comes to us when we are alone, in quiet places, in quiet moments, when suddenly we realize that, knowing the good, we have done it . . . knowing the beautiful, we have served it . . . and knowing the truth, we have spoken it."

LET'S CELEBRATE... TOGETHER!

Don't chance it . . . Live to enjoy the New Year by driving safely Pass out that "one for the Road" . . . have a happy, healthy holiday, and many more! Now is the time to Exercise all safety precautions . . . drive carefully, safely and soberly, with a sharp eye out for the other guy!

WASHINGTON — Militant Buddhists are preparing to again take to the streets of Saigon.

Under the leadership of Thich Tri Quang, the pro-Communist monk who helped topple the late President Diem, the Buddhists are organizing a loosely linked, left-wing peace movement to demonstrate for an immediate cease-fire in South Vietnam.

Principle objective of the protestors is to force the ouster of President Thieu's government and replace it with a coalition regime including Communists.

According to South Vietnamese diplomats here, Tri Quang began organizing in early November to launch the new protests after several of his associates met secretly with Viet Cong agents.

Under what Tri Quang calls "movements to struggle for peace," Buddhist monks and professors who teach in Buddhist-operated high schools are being instructed to prepare their students for peace demonstrations throughout South Vietnam in January.

Other Buddhist monks, including followers of Thong Diem, the pro-neutralist Saigon lawyer, have held a series of seminars to

Emergency Measures

To deal with the new internal threat, the Thieu government recently pushed through the National Vietnamese legislature a little-noticed "state-of-war" resolution.

This emergency measure grants the government extraordinary powers to ban demonstrations and declare martial law in all the large cities of South Vietnam.

Individuals considered to be enemies of the government or believed to be helping the enemy can be arrested and detained for an indefinite time without formal charges being made against them.

The big concern of the Thieu government is whether the "lame duck" Johnson administration will continue its backing if force is necessary to repress the Ironically, it was Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge, scheduled to be named the new American negotiator in Paris, who helped pull the U.S. rug out from under Diem.

As ambassador to Saigon, Lodge in talks with Vietnamese Army leaders made it plain that the U.S. would not continue to support the Diem government after he put down demonstrations aimed at overthrowing him.

Earlier, Lodge had urged President Diem to permit demonstrations in the streets by the Buddhists and the political opposition to enhance his liberal image. Lodge also was the U.S. diplomat who granted Tri Quang asylum in the U.S. embassy as he

Robert Hill, U.S. ambassador to Mexico and several Central American countries during the Eisenhower years, is being considered by President-elect Nixon as the replacement for William Bundy, assistant secretary of state for Far East affairs.

George Allen, who served Eisenhower as ambassador to Yugoslavia, Greece, and India, has been offered the Saigon post now held by Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker. The South Vietnamese delegation at Paris is planning to "expose" Mrs. Nguyen Thi Binh, head of the National Liberation Front delegation. Colonel Tam Ha, South Vietnam's highest ranking Viet Cong defector, has revealed that the Communist lady isn't the daughter of a respected Saigon family as she claims. Come to Church A Call For Workers The lazy and the idle seldom hear the call of God. It is often when intent on some useful work and while pursuing a helpful calling that God's voice is heard. Here are a few examples from the Bible. Moses was busy with his flock at Horeb. Gideon was busy threshing wheat by the wine press. Saul was busy searching for his father's lost beasts. Elisha was busy plowing with twelve yoke of oxen. David was busy caring for his father's sheep. Nehemiah was busy bearing the king's wine cup. Amos was busy caring for his sheep and sycamore fruit and attending the market. Peter and Andrew were busy casting their nets into the sea. Lydia was busy preparing and selling her purple fabrics. James and John were busy mending their nets. Matthew was busy collecting customs duties. Mary and Elizabeth were busy with their homemaking. Jesus was busy probably in the carpenter shop and about His Father's business. —Author Unknown —Submitted by Rev. D. L. Davis, North Loup

Comstock Residents Score Repeat Performance

The first baby of the new year would be a rarity in most families, but it's getting to be old stuff with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Chlewski.

Mrs. Chlewski gave birth early Sunday to a pert, dark-haired miss who will answer to the name Kindra Sue. She was the first baby to arrive at the Valley County Hospital in 1969.

Her arrival came exactly one year to the day following the arrival of her brother Kip, who was the first baby of 1968 born at the Broken Bow hospital.

The Chlewskis, who reside in Comstock, also have four other children: Kevin, 8; Kim, 5; Gregg, 3; and Kine, 2. Kindra Sue tipped the scales at 8 pounds, 9 ounces.

Mrs. Chlewski is the former Phyllis Manchester, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Manchester of Ord.

She claims she didn't plan things this way — they just happened!

School Ending Early Next Two Mondays For Ord, Comstock

Public schools in Ord and Comstock will be dismissed at 1 p.m. each of the next two Mondays so teachers can participate in self-appraisal workshops and curriculum study.

Dr. Kenneth Shubat of Lincoln will serve as workshop consultant. He is director of instructional services for Educational Service Unit 6 headquartered in Millard.

Dr. Bill Gogan, superintendent of the Ord and Comstock schools, said lunches will be served both days to all youngsters wishing to eat in the school cafeteria. Buses will leave at 1 o'clock, he said.

Omaha Credit Bank Reaches Milestone As Farmers Affain Complete Ownership

The loan agency for the Broken Bow Production Credit Assn. closed the year 1968 on an historic note, as it completed retirement of $9 million in government capital.

With its noteworthy action, the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank of Omaha became fully owned by the farmers and ranchers it serves. The bank provides loan funds to the Broken Bow Credit Assn., which serves Valley, Custer, Loup, Blaine, and Thomas counties, as well as parts of Logan and Dawson counties.

The Omaha bank was one of 12 federally chartered credit institutions located across the country which made their final payments Dec. 31. All together, they completed retirement of $129 million in debts owed to the government. Capital of the credit banks is now completely owned by various production credit associations, such as the Broken Bow one, which are in turn owned by farmers and ranchers. They have been so owned since 1953.

The 12 intermediate credit banks were originally capitalized by the federal government in 1923 to provide short and intermediate term credit to agriculture. Provisions were later made for the system to become completely owned by its users, and that goal was accomplished on the last day of 1968.

Loan funds are obtained by the banks through the sale of bonds to the investing public.

School Election Scheduled Feb. 11; Kickoff Meeting Set Next Week

Feb. 11 was set Monday night as the date Ord voters will decide whether or not they want a new grade school.

That date was selected for a special election at the Board of Education's monthly meeting. The board members also voted to kick off their campaign to secure passage of the vote with an open meeting Jan. 16 in the high school cafeteria.

Representatives of Shaver & Co., the school's architectural firm from Salina, Kan., will be on hand to answer questions about the building.

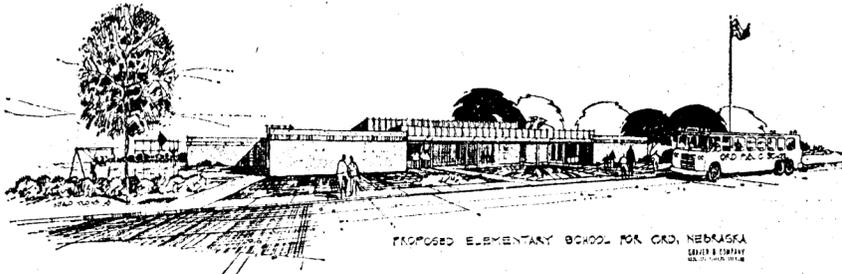

Available will be Chuck Vana of the First Mid-America Corp. of Omaha, who will answer queries concerning the financial aspects. If the $940,000 bond issue passes, First Mid-America will handle the bonding procedure.

The meeting will be open to the public, and the board urged all eligible voters to attend.

Many other meetings with civic groups are being planned for the month-long campaign. Block captains are also being selected to inform voters of the need for a new school.

The board viewed more detailed drawings of the proposed floor plan, as well as an architect's drawing of the completed structure.

Ord Navy Man Recuperating From Accident

Larry Boettcher, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Boettcher of Ord, was released Tuesday from the Lemoore, Calif., Naval Air Station hospital.

Young Boettcher was injured shortly before midnight New Year's Eve in an automobile accident near Fresno, Calif. He was taken to a hospital in Fresno and later transferred to Lemoore where he is stationed.

His father reported that Boettcher had four teeth knocked out in the accident, and that he sustained cuts and bruises. Doctors have already pulled one other tooth and will probably pull some more, he said.

Boettcher and three Navy friends were on their way home from a New Year's Eve outing in the mountains north of Fresno. Another driver reportedly pulled across the median dividing the four-lane highway and into the path of Boettcher's car. He was unable to stop and hit the car broadside.

One passenger in the Boettcher car received a broken jaw and compound fractures of an arm, another had some ribs cracked, and the third was not seriously hurt. In a telephone conversation Tuesday with his father, young Boettcher said he did not know how badly the occupants of the other car were injured since he had been unconscious for about two days himself. His car was completely demolished.

Radar Traps Out, Speed Limits In

You can stop watching for those "little black boxes" as you speed along local highways. Roadside radar is no longer necessary.

State Troopers Phil Quin and Gerald Schmitt, both stationed in Ord, have each received new cars within the past week. AND SCHMITT'S IS EQUIPPED WITH THE NEW IN-CAR RADAR!

The new equipment—in case you haven't read about it—is capable of measuring the speed of ANY auto within one-tenth of a mile per hour. The patrol car need not be standing still, either. Speeds can be measured no matter which direction the patrol car is moving and regardless of the directional movement of the vehicle it's measuring for speed. Exceed the speed limit, and they've got you—COMING or GOING!

Both new patrol cars are also equipped with air conditioning.

Sounds like Ord will have some "cool cops" . . . and some "hot" drivers—unless the lead-footed ones decide to ease up on the footpedal. If you're going to drive the speed limit, better keep it upright.

County Officials Rap Mill Levy Limit In Meeting With State Legislator

The ceiling 14.28 mill levy that Nebraska counties are limited to was the major topic of discussion at a lengthy meeting Friday in the Valley County courtroom.

The session was attended by officials from Valley, Sherman, Howard, Greeley, and Boone counties, which comprise the 41st Legislative District, and by Senator Rudolf Kokes, who represents the district in the state legislature. Its purpose was to discuss mutual problems and to give Senator Kokes an idea concerning specific projects the officials would like to have him work toward. The legislature convened yesterday.

Despite the lengthy discussion, it was generally concluded that little could be done to remove the levy limitation. Senator Kokes pointed out that the limitation was contained in the state constitution and could be done away with only by a constitutional amendment. Such an amendment would require a vote of the people, and the assembled officials generally felt that it would not pass.

Senator Kokes offered to work toward lowering the two-thirds vote needed for passage to a simple majority, but the officials felt that even that margin could not be obtained.

Frank Noonan, a supervisor from Greeley County, dominated the discussion. "There's been a lot of talk about how broke we are in Greeley County," he said. "We're not broke by any means, but we're in a bind because of the mill levy limitation."

"I don't see how anyone can expect the counties to operate on 14 mills when towns get to levy 25 or 30 mills and school districts 40, 50 or 60 mills." Noonan criticized specifically the fact that counties must collect funds to care for the state's mentally retarded, and that those funds must be included in the 14.28 mills.

Boss Talks Way Into Cold Night's Work

Don't blame the editor! He just follows orders. After a hectic two days trying to get a paper out in a "short week," Quiz editor Gerald Green walked out the door Tuesday evening, Dec. 31, saying, "I'm going to bed and not get up until the bowl games start New Year's Day."

About 10:30 p.m. New Year's Eve, publisher Kerry Leggett began feeling sorry for Green — a relative "newcomer" to Ord.

"Gosh," Leggett remarked to his wife, "I'll bet Gerald doesn't know they blow the whistle at midnight to usher in the New Year. Living on a block from the whistle on top of the high school, he'll just get to sleep and come flying out of bed thinking there's a fire. Guess I'll call him and tell him to roll over and go back to sleep when they sound the siren."

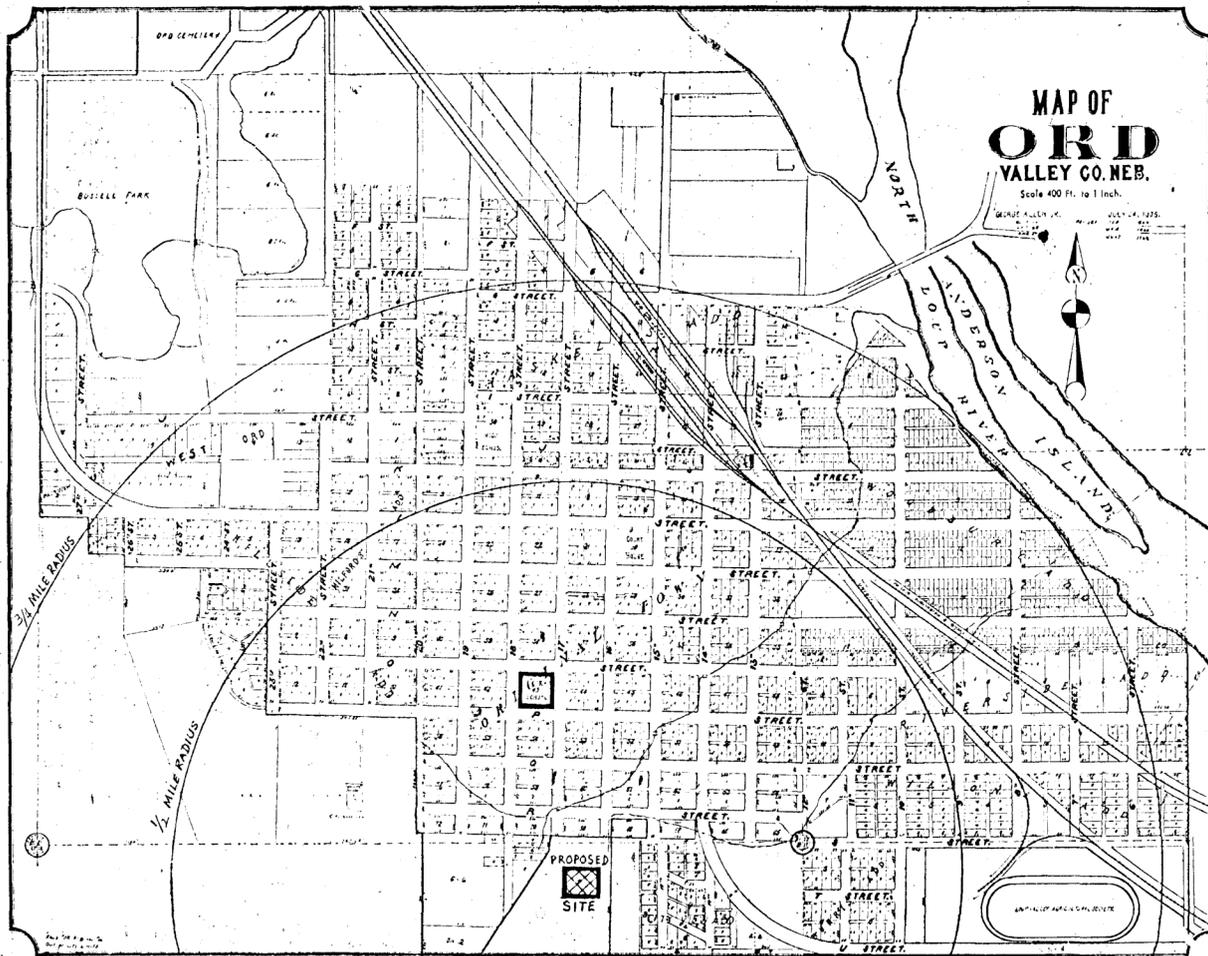

The call was made and all was well . . . until 12:45 p.m.

Jan. 11 Leggett was shaving, getting ready for bed. Suddenly he thought he heard the fire whistle — and he'd already heard the midnight siren!

"Gerry will think that's the siren I told him NOT to listen for," Leggett told his wife. "I'd better cover it!"

Just as he was about to grab his fireman's hat and head for the fire hall, within two blocks of Green's residence red lights were filling the sub-zero night air.

After Leggett finished his work, he turned to his wife — shivering in the car. "I wonder if Gerry heard the whistle and rolled over like I told him?" Driving by the Green home, all was dark. Had Green "followed orders?" "Nope," he replied the next day. "I was sleeping so soundly I never heard the whistle. Old newsman never die . . . they just flake out!"

This city map shows the location of Ord's proposed grade school and dramatizes the distance various residents will live from it. The inner circular line marks a half-mile radius, and the outer circle, a three-quarter mile radius. School officials point out that very few families will be living outside the three-quarter mile line. The site of the proposed building is shown in black square at lower center, and the present building in square three blocks north.

School Board Feels

Proposed Site Is Closest, Cheapest

(Editor's Note: This is the first in a series of articles explaining in detail plans for Ord's proposed new grade school. This week's article is devoted to a discussion of the site—why it was selected and why Board of Education members feel it is the best available. Future articles will deal with the building design and funding.)

The proposed site for a possible new grade school is a 25-acre tract of land just south of the Ord city limits. It is located south of S Street between 16th and 17th Streets, and is presently occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Albin Dobrovsky.

Board of Education members considered several alternate sites before deciding that this would be the best one. Their final decision was based on a number of factors, including proximity to the greatest number of probable users, land costs, and architect's recommendation.

The proposed site is three blocks south of the present grade school. As such, board members determined that it would be closer to more residents than any other site they could have picked except the one where the present building is located.

That site was ruled out because it is too small, and the cost of acquiring enough land to make it suitable would be prohibitive.

The State Department of Education recommends that no new school be built in an area of less than seven acres, and it suggests as many as 15 if possible. The one city block on which the present building is located contains just over an acre, according to County Assessor Frank Mottl. Therefore, to acquire the needed land, at least six additional city blocks would be required.

Besides the inconvenience to home owners in the area, the expense involved in such an undertaking would be enormous. In a budget memorandum supplied by the school's contracted architects, $32,000 was suggested for land cost, legal fees, "and miscellaneous." This would be only a drop in the bucket if the school district were required to purchase six city blocks and move out homes.

Even if such land could be acquired, it would be taking off the tax rolls many valuable pieces of property. The loss in revenue to the school district and the city would be much greater than that which will occur by purchasing the proposed site, which contains only one residence.

"The state learned that lesson the hard way with the interstate system in Omaha," explained Dr. Otis Miller, president of the Board of Education. By putting the highway through the middle of town, many valuable tax properties were lost.

Furthermore, the present building can be torn down and that site sold as lots for homes.

"Such action will give us back some income to help defray costs of the new building," Dr. Miller said.

Educators justify the need for at least seven acres by pointing out that the present building, which is considered too small to meet present needs, contains two stories and a basement that is being used for classes. If it were spread out on one level, as is suggested with the new building, it would not fit into the present space, much less leave anything left over for a playground area, parking space, possible expansion, etc.

The one-story building is considered essential for safety reasons. (It presently takes about five minutes to empty the present building in fire drills, whereas the new building could be emptied almost immediately since it will have an external door in each classroom.)

Furthermore, building designers point out that much usable floor space is lost in a multi-story building, since stairs must be provided.

Educators emphasize the easier access to materials and varied programs that can be provided with a one-story building.

"The concept of team teaching, where two or three classes can be combined for instruction under one teacher who is a specialist in a particular area, is much more practical with a one-story building," said Dr. Miller. "Also, experts in the education field are finding that it is much better to place children near the resource centers, or libraries as they used to be called. That is why our present plans call for the resource center in the middle of the building. To accomplish this in a multi-story building we would have to duplicate many facilities."

There was one other very large drawback to building in the present location: where do the children go to school during the 18 months it takes to construct the new building after the old one is torn down?

Once the present location had been determined to be unfeasible, Board of Education members began considering other possibilities. They looked at proposed sites west of the hospital and in the north part of town.

The one near the hospital would have been farther away from more residents than the proposed site, and would probably cost more money. It definitely would have cost more money for land development (leveling, preparing for construction, etc.), according to the architects.

The suggested site in the north part of town was considered too small.

Other possibilities, such as near the new Elks Club, would have been even farther away and would have resulted in the bussing of many city children, Dr. Miller said.

Finally, the architects agreed with the school board that the proposed site would be best after they took soil tests and made other technical considerations.

One other point should be explained. Since the state recommends "7 to 15" acres why is the school board negotiating for a 25-acre tract?

"Now that we're bussing children in from rural areas, we need space for parking and unloading," Dr. Miller explained. "Also, we'll be able to group children on the playground by ages. At our present building we can't even begin to think of that."

"Twenty-five acres will give us (Continued on page 6)

This is the time for New Year's resolutions and reformations, and by now many of us have found it is easier to break a resolution than a habit.

This list of "Backslider's Resolutions" was taken from The Miami Christian. It struck me as humorous . . . but full of truth.

January: "I hereby resolve to start to church this year. But I'll wait till February. Gotta get over the holidays. They take a lot out of a fellow, you know."

February: "Weather is terrible. I'll start when it warms up a bit. My blood is so thin this time of year."

March: "Lots of sickness just now. Got to keep away from those bugs. A person can't afford to take a chance."

April: "Easter . . . big crowds. You can't get a decent seat. Anyhow they won't miss me. It would look strange if I showed up only at Easter."

May: "I've been holed up all winter and now that the weather is getting pretty . . . it's time for reunions, too."

June: "I'll wait until the baby is older . . . how on earth do some folks bring their babies at two weeks of age and then never miss a Sunday?"

July: "Boy! Is the heat terrific! We've got that cabin that we still owe for . . . and that boat for Sunday pleasure."

August: "Preacher's on vacation. He'll never know if I miss this one. Never liked guest preachers anyhow . . . but when the preacher gets back . . ."

September: "School's started. Vacation threw me behind with my work. Gotta make one last visit to Grandma's before the snow flies."

October: "Leaves are beautiful . . . I can worship God outdoors when I want and the kids will be cooped up all winter."

November: "My heart is bursting with gratitude and thanksgiving . . . the Christmas season will be a wonderful time to start back."

December: "What a madhouse . . . right after this is over my family and I will start back to church . . . the first Sunday in January. This next year I resolve . . ."

The V.F.W. Auxiliary is making plans to send Valentine boxes to Valley County servicemen overseas. This cannot be done, however, without some outside help of family and friends. If you haven't given the name of your serviceman to Mrs. Norma Fox or Mrs. Adeline Adamek, better do it soon. The list of addresses, previously used by the JC. Eites has been given to the auxiliary, but no doubt it needs updating.

The deadline for this project has been extended to Jan. 31 — so hurry!

During Christmas, hospital activities concentrated on patients in the Veterans Hospitals. Now an expansion program to include patients at the State Hospitals in Nebraska is underway. Items needed for this January Snow-Ball presentation are dress hose (both men and women in various sizes) gloves and mittens, headscarfs, neckties, skin lotions, hand creams, soaps, candies, perfumes, toothbrushes, tobacco, pipes, sweaters, stationery, compact and lipsticks. Members are asked to bring any items unwrapped — to the V.F.W. Auxiliary meeting next Monday, Jan. 13.

Fifth-Rated Seward Wins As Ord Starts Too Slowly

Facing up well to their stiffest opposition of the year, Ord's Chanticleers came through with a fine shooting performance last week but still bowed, 69-56, to Seward.

The Chants hit 26 of 59 from the field for a very good 44 percent, their second best mark of the season. But Seward showed why it's rated fifth in state Class B circles by hitting 30 of 56 for an exceptional 54 percent. And the Bluejays gave Ord its worst beating of the year on the backboards, claiming 34 rebounds to only 20 for their foe.

Ord now owns a 4-3 record for the year. Seward is 5-1, having lost only to defending state champion Schuyler, 67-60. Schuyler is Ord's next foe, as the two will meet Friday in the home gym of the defending champs.

Before the Seward game Coach Ken Trubey was bemoaning a tendency his team had shown of starting slowly. His alarm was almost prophetic as the Chants fell behind, 13-4, at the end of the first quarter.

Sparked by juniors Bill Klanecky and Bill Miller, who scored eight points apiece in the second period, Ord made a strong comeback to narrow the margin to 29-24 at halftime. But another cold spell opening up the second half quelled any thoughts they had of making it all the way back.

"You don't win many ball games when you score only four points in the first quarter," Trubey stated Tuesday. "I was real proud of the way we came back, but costly mistakes just at the time it looked like we might be back in it killed us."

Seward's dominance of the backboards was demonstrated by the fact that Ron Bredthauer won eight rebounds. The 6-4 senior had been averaging 16.3 rebounds per game and had not captured fewer than 14 in any one game all year.

A pair of sharp-shooting brothers, Tom and Jerry Schaefer, led the Bluejay attack. A 6-3 senior, Tom hit nine of 12 shots from the field and picked off 15 rebounds. Four free throws swelled his point total to 22. Against Schuyler, he had scored 30.

Little brother Jerry, standing an even 6 feet, hit eight of 17 from the field and added one free throw for a total of 17 points. The Bluejays were especially tough in the fourth quarter when Ord was playing fine ball. They overshadowed a 7-of-13 performance from the Chants by hitting 10 of 14.

Although he had his worst rebounding night of the year, there was nothing wrong with Bredthauer's shooting eye. He hit 10 of 15 from the field, equaling his previous best this year. That came in the second game of the year against a weak O'Neill outfit. A single free throw brought his total production against Seward to 21.

Klanecky wound up with 16 points and Miller with 12.

Dick Janda, who's had some good streaks and some bad ones this year, had one of his poorer outings as he scored only two points. Duane Kovarik had five. Again Trubey substituted sparingly, using only one man—Greg Martin—for relief.

Despite the loss, Ord was rated Monday by the Nebraska State District 6.

Chants Reaching Meat of Schedule; Schuyler, Aurora on Tap This Week

Having already faced two of the state's top 10 Class B teams this season, Ord will square off against another Friday night when it travels to Schuyler. Then Saturday night it will be at home to meet a team which is knocking at the door of the select group. That's Aurora.

The Chanticleers opened their season by bowing to Cozad, 55-40. The undefeated Haymakers have won four other games since then and are ranked fifth by both metropolitan papers.

In Schuyler, Ord will be meeting the team which administered that lone defeat to Seward. The Warriors won, 67-60, in the finals of a holiday tournament at David City.

who, despite his 5-10 height and normal outside position, is averaging 6.7 caroms a contest.

The other starters will be Bill Miller, Dick Janda, and Duane Kovarik.

Other than Bredthauer, Janda is the only senior on the squad.

Ord Schedule Stronger

In addition to Seward, Schuyler's victims this season have been Albion, Central City, Howells, and David City. The latter school has been beaten twice by the Warriors, the last time by a 103-57 count. Both Howells and David City are Class C teams.

Ord's victories have been over O'Neill, Gothenburg, Burwell, and Ainsworth. Gothenburg is mentioned as one of those teams likely to break into the top 10 if any of those presently there should falter, and Burwell is the only Class C team Ord has played.

the two inches he added since last season gave him whatever help he needed to make the switch from forward to the post position.

Harmon has been joined in the starting lineup by seniors Bart Becker, 6-2, and Randy Hrouda, 6-1, at the forward positions, and by lettered juniors Don Jarecki and Steve Bailey at the guard posts.

In addition to Harmon, Jarecki has consistently been a top scorer for the Warriors this season.

Rebounding Help Needed

To combat this powerhouse, Ord will field a team which is still looking for its first road win of the season.

Ron Bredthauer, whose down-the-neck hair style of last summer has given way to a brand-new crew-cut, will have the difficult job of containing Harmon.

At 6-4 Bredthauer will be spotting Harmon three inches in height, but the solidly built Ord senior has proven himself a competent performer this season after also moving from a forward position to the post. He's averaging over 16 points a game and more than 15 rebounds a contest, even though he was limited to eight by Seward.

Bill Klanecky, though, is the scoring leader with a 17.4 average.

Unfortunately for the Chants, there's no second punch in the rebounding department. The drop goes all the way to Klanecky,

Over the past two years, since Coach Jay Muma arrived at Schuyler, the Warriors have had a combined 41-4 record.

The varsity contest at Schuyler will be preceded by a reserve game. It gets underway at 6:30 p.m., with the big boys following at 8.

Aurora will also bring an impressive record into its contest with Ord Saturday night. The latest Huskie victory was an 81-62 smashing of York.

Game times are the same as the night before.

A Saturday morning recreation program for boys will begin this week, and plans will be discussed tonight (Thursday) for a men's program.

The first session of the boys' program will begin at 9 a.m. Saturday and last until 11:30. Boys who have not yet signed up but wish to participate should be present at 9 o'clock. They will need parents' consent, verification of insurance, appropriate clothing, and a towel for showering.

Chuck Squier, physical education teacher at the high school, is supervising the program. He said school insurance can still be purchased.

Teams will be selected this week, he added.

Wrestlers Make Best Showing of Year; Two Defaults Decisive in Loss to Aurora

Showing vast improvement, the Ord wrestling team came within four points of victory Tuesday night as it bowed to Aurora, 28-25.

Last week the Chants had bowed to Central City, 41-9. The two defeats left them winless in four dual meets this season.

Lack of contestants in the two smallest weight divisions — the 95 and 103-pound classes — gave Aurora the deciding points in Tuesday night's contest.

"I don't know if that made the difference, but I sure wish I had a couple of wrestlers in those divisions to find out," Coach Jim Ramsey said afterwards. Aurora not 10 points for the two defaults.

The Ord performance was led by Tim Markley, who scored his third victory of the year. He has been defeated only once, in the opening contest against Cozad.

Other points were gained for the Chanticleers by Dale Baldwin, Roger Cahill, and Ken Durand, who all pinned their opponents for their first victories of the year; by Roland Cronk, who also gained his first win with a 4-0 decision; and by Leonard Krason, who finished in a draw with Jerry Willis.

Five awards are awarded for a pin, three for a decision and two for a draw. Defaults are scored the same as a pin.

Defaults were not counted in reserve matches, and Ord bowed to both Central City and Aurora. The scores were 20-10 and 23-10.

Ord Boxers Run Record to 13-6 With Two More Good Showings

Ord boxers have continued to look good in warmup matches as they prepare for the district Golden Gloves competition scheduled later this month.

In matches last weekend at Central City and Loup City, Ord pugilists won seven bouts while losing three. That brings their record for the training season to 13-6 against outside competition.

Tom Banks, a welterweight with a heavyweight punch, led local contestants in the weekend forays. He won twice by knockouts, and his second victim was last year's welterweight champion from McCook, Ron Lindon. The kayo came at 1 minute, 20 seconds of the first round.

Tony Haussel of Lincoln was the other Banks knockout victim. He went down at 57 seconds of the middle round.

Tom Frazer was the only other double winner, as he scored decisions over Ron Cameron of Grand Island and Roger Hunt of Broken Bow. They were fighting in the 168-pound class.

Also victorious at Central City were Clark Hoppes and Charlie Fox. Hoppes was impressive as he dominated Benny Polskill of the host community. Last year Polskill was the district runner-up in the middleweight division.

Fox fought at 186 pounds and decided 195-pound Ray Sharp of Superior.

Ord boxers who lost at Central City were Gordy John and Jack Ptaenik. John was beaten by Alex Ivory of Lincoln on a decision, while Ptaenik lost in a similar manner to Don Razy of Grand Island. John was fighting at 133 pounds and Ptaenik at 138.

Also making the trip were Chuck Janicek, Gary Proskocil, Gail McManigal, Lonnie John, and Dennis Proskocil. Janicek fought an exhibition with Jim Harris of Central City, but the other boys could not get bouts.

However, both Proskocil and McManigal did get some competition at Loup City. Proskocil proved equal to his task by gaining a unanimous decision over Tom Vaughn of Loup City in the welterweight division. But McManigal was beaten on a decision by Kenny Littlejohn of Broken Bow.

Dennis Proskocil, who weighed in at 98 pounds, boxed an exhibition with Tom Obermiller of Loup City.

The team was to fight in Lincoln yesterday and then wind up its competitive training season Jan. 18 with matches here in Ord. Coach Dan Klineck said he hopes to have matches for every contestant at that session.

The district competition will be held Jan. 28-30 and Feb. 6-8 in Grand Island.

Marjorie Goff Becomes Mrs. James Miller In Ceremony at Burwell Methodist Church

A scriptural service of marriage uniting Marjorie Jean Goff, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Goff of Burwell, and James David Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Vern Miller of Bellevue, Ia., was held Dec. 28 at the United Methodist Church in Burwell.

The 2 p.m. marriage ceremony took place in a candle-light setting before the chancel area bedecked with poinsettias in baskets. The Trinity candelabra was placed behind the worship center.

Prior to the ceremony, an organ solo was played by Judy Overturf of Columbus. Jan Rathbun gave a prelude of nuptial music and also accompanied Jeanne Miller, sister of the groom, who sang "I Love You Truly" and "One Heart One Mind." Miss Rathbun also accompanied Leonard Blinde of Hawarden, Ia., who sang "Calm Is the Night."

Anne and Jimmy Goff were candlelighters. David Goff, ring bearer, and Sara Lynn Goff, carrying a basket of rose petals, preceded the bride and her father to the altar.

After the exchange of marriage vows, the bride sang "Whither Thou Goest" to the groom and then the two proceeded to the Trinity candelabra which held two lighted candles symbolizing their individual lives prior to the marriage. They lit the Christ candle as a symbol of their marriage in Christ. The service of marriage was concluded with the uniting of the bride and groom in bonds of holy matrimony. Officiating ministers were Rev. Robert Ditterline of the United Methodist Church of Burwell and Rev. Dr. Lowell Jones, pastor of the United Methodist Church of Columbus, who served Holy Communion to the couple. At that time Mr. Blinde sang "The Lord's Prayer," followed by the final marriage blessing by Pastor Ditterline.

For her wedding the bride chose a floor-length gown of ivory satin with lace designs studded with pearls and sequins applied on the A-line dress and train. Her fingertip veil of nylon illusion was held in place with a cluster of beaded velvet roses. She carried a white Bible covered with lace holding two orchids accented with a shower of tiny red roses.

Serving as maid of honor was Mary Ehrensmann of Beverly, Ky. Bridesmaids were Lois Hertzler, also of Kentucky, and Virginia Matulka of Blue Hill. They wore identical floor-length gowns of green satin with a deep inverted pleat of ivory satin, and carried ivory satin muffs which supported a single large poinsettia with streamers of red roses.

Karl Kingsley of Beverly, Ky., was best man with Bruce Cram, Donald Hirschman, and Donald Fedderson, all of Iowa, serving as groomsmen. Ushers were Terry Alwine of Kentucky, Gene Overturf of Columbus, Floyd Goff of Fremont, and James Goff of Burwell.

Mr. and Mrs. Loyd Cariker hosted a reception which followed in the church parlors. Various reception duties were performed by Mrs. Fedderson, Mrs. Earl Hurst, Mrs. J. P. Young, Mrs. Dan Klimck, Mrs. Gene Overturf, Mrs. James Goff, Mrs. Floyd Goff, Judy Overturf, and Kathy Matulka.

For their wedding trip to the South the new bride wore a cape suit of blue Scots plaid with alligator accessories. After their return they will resume teaching duties at the Red Bird Mission in Beverly, Ky., and will live on the campus of the mission.

Mr. and Mrs. Vern Miller were hosts for a 6:30 p.m. rehearsal dinner prepared and served by ladies of the W.S.C.S. at the Burwell United Methodist Church, Dec. 27.

The figure included damage to both house and contents, according to Fire Chief Ivan Sorenson. The fire was detected shortly before 1 a.m. It erupted when the coal side of a combination coal and electric range overheated. plenty of room for future expansion," he added, "and if the community should ever decide to build a new junior high there will be room for it too."

"We don't feel the additional cost for the few extra acres is much of a drawback, considering the insurance it gives us for the future," Dr. Miller said. "It's a cinch that land costs aren't going to go down."

Finally, he pointed out that the present occupants — Mr. and Mrs. Dobrovsky — own only the 25 acres at that location. They have cooperated with the Board of Education in land negotiations but are interested in getting enough money to purchase a similar homestead elsewhere. Purchasing the entire 25 acres would be a great convenience to them.

NOTICE

The Ord Livestock Market will start their butcher hog sales promptly at 11:00 A.M. Saturday morning.

Most Nebraska Livestock Auction Markets start their hog sales from 7:00 to 11:00 A.M. The reason for this is, so that packers can fill their orders by noon of that day. Packers would like to know the number of hogs a market will have at the beginning of the sale. This gives packers some idea in placing orders with their buyers and results in a higher price paid to the producer. It is very important that you bring your market hogs in early Saturday morning or better still bring them in Friday. We have the facilities to handle your stock in well bedded pens under roof.

This is a request of the packer buyers.

Burwell Named Among Communities Which Must Process Sewage Better

By Melvin Paul
The Nebraska Press Assn.

LINCOLN — Thirty-nine Nebraska communities will have to make significant changes in their sewage treatment facilities under water pollution control standards recently adopted.

The federal government has insisted that sewage discharged into Nebraska streams must receive at least secondary treatment. That means it is not enough just to run the sewage through preliminary treatment and then send it into the streams.

Under the definition of water authorities, the sewage must have 85 percent removal of biochemical oxygen demand and suspended solids.

The 39 communities which do not now have such facilities will have to build them by 1972, according to the standards adopted under federal pressure by the State Water Pollution Control Council. The standards were recently accepted by Interior Secretary Stewart Udall.

T. A. Filipi, director of the State Health Department's Environmental Health Division, estimated that the total cost to provide these 39 new plants would be about $3 1/2 million.

Under present programs, Filipi said, the cities will have to put up about two-thirds of the month and the federal government will supply the remainder.

If, however, the state were to assume part of the financial load, the federal share would go up to 50 percent. The state would pay 25 percent, leaving the local community with only 20 percent — instead of about 67 percent.

Kenneth Bowen, executive director of the League of Nebraska Municipalities, said his organization plans to urge the 1969 legislature to provide state funds for this purpose. Without aid from the state, he said, some of the 39 towns can not afford the required plants.

The state already has legislation authorizing the uncensored to appropriate this type of aid, but the law has never been funded, Bowen said.

Nebraska was the 47th state or jurisdiction to get water control standards accepted by the federal government. The delay was partly due to Nebraska's reluctance to accept a deadline in its standards.

Filipi said he was "not happy" with the deadline aspect in the final standards because he had found cooperation with the communities and encouragement from the state had worked well.

The question, he said, was never one of whether the secondary sewage treatment would be required. The question was when it would have to be done. From Washington, Udall said he was "particularly gratified" by Nebraska's adoption of a non-degradation clause which seeks to maintain the quality of waters whose present condition exceeds the limits established under the state's standards.

"Successful implementation of the standards is a key to accomplishing our mutual goals of protecting and enhancing the quality and productivity of interstate waters," Udall said.

The states and jurisdictions which still have not submitted standards acceptable to federal authorities are California, Utah, Kansas, Iowa, Kentucky, Virginia, Florida, and Puerto Rico.

Udall said the Federal Water Pollution Control Administration "is now discussing with these states the strengthening of their standards so they can also be approved."

The 39 Nebraska communities which must meet the 1972 deadline are nearly all in the eastern two-thirds of the state. Only Hay Springs is in the Panhandle.

The others are Valentine, Ainsworth, Long Pine, Atkinson, Verdigris, Ewing, Pierce, Tilden, Stanton, West Point, Burwell, Meadow Grove, Uehling, Scribner, Hooper, Fremont, Spalding, Albion, Waterloo, Ashland, Staplehurst, Murray, Milford, Sterling, Humboldt, Elm Creek, Callaway, Odell, Fairbury, Hebron, Guide Rock, Campbell, Red Cloud, Arapahoe, Curtis, Indianola, Lindsay, and Trenton.

Power Review Board Members Gov. Norbert Tiemann has replaced two members of the Nebraska Power Review Board.

The retiring chairman of the board, William Norton of Osceola, was succeeded by Thomas Fitchett, a Lincoln attorney and son-in-law of Senator C. W. Holmquist of Oakland.

Tiennon named Joseph Dye, a North Platte automobile dealer, to replace Thomas Eason of North Bend.

Each will serve a four-year term on the board.

Tax Reminder
State Tax Commissioner Murrell B. McNeill reminded Nebraskans as they file their first state income tax returns to be sure and include all the information requested.

McNeill said early returns filed with his office indicate some taxpayers are not following instructions on the forms. Most of the early trouble, he said, has involved the food credit which most Nebraskans will qualify for — but only if they file their returns properly.

McNeill offered this check list as a reminder:

• The Nebraska income tax liability is based on the federal income tax liability before the surtax is added.

• In order to obtain the food sales tax credit of $7 per person, an individual must be a Nebraska resident more than six months this taxable year.

• The food credit may be claimed for each person — but not for additional exemptions granted for age or blindness.

• Individuals entitled to credit for income tax withheld must attach copies of their Nebraska wage and tax statements to their return.

• Before mailing the return, taxpayers should recheck mathematical computations and be certain the return is signed.

The Scott Report

From The Washington News-Intelligence Syndicate
By Paul Scott

WASHINGTON — Israel's violent retaliations against Arab terrorism were triggered by warnings that all her aircraft and ships are now targets of these armed groups.

The government of Premier Levi Eshkol decided to act after Lebanon informants revealed that the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine had begun putting into effect contingency plans to attack Israeli ships and aircraft abroad wherever feasible.

Purpose of these Arab terror attacks, similar to the one against an Israeli airliner at the airport in Athens, Greece, on Dec. 28, are to isolate Israel and damage the country's economy.

By carefully selecting their targets, the Palestinian Arab group hoped to discourage travel on Israeli flag carriers and reduce the flow of tourists to Tel Aviv.

Israeli diplomats here claim the world-wide terror campaign against their country was planned in Cairo last July by an 11-man guerrilla coordinating council and another secret "higher planning board" on which most of the Arab countries are represented.

With the Palestinian National Assembly scheduled to meet in Cairo about Jan. 17 to map new ways for implementing their world-wide attacks, Israeli authorities felt it necessary to show the Arabs that their campaign could become very costly if continued.

Another Viewpoint

More in sorrow than in anger, Israeli authorities have been privately trying to convince U.S. officials that this country should be supporting rather than denouncing their efforts to destroy the Arab terror groups.

The world-wide clandestine operations of these Arab groups, they argue, could soon present a security problem for the U. S. and European nations because of the growing infiltration by trained Moscow agents.

State Department officials are being reminded of the links of those involved in the unsuccessful assassination plot against President-elect Nixon with members of one of these Arab terror organizations.

It is also being stressed that several members of these Arab groups are known to have entered the U. S. as "refugees" during the past year, and their present whereabouts are not known to U. S. officials.

Attacks on Israeli aircraft while in this country by these "refugees" is a possibility that the U. S. should be considering, according to Israeli diplomats.

Uninvited Guests

The gathering here of militants involved in past rioting in the nation's big cities is the reason why no American insurance company will insure President-elect Nixon's inaugural against disruption on Jan. 20.

Most illuminating example of these unwelcome visitors is Alvin Harrison Jr., the Detroit black militant leader linked with disastrous rioting in that city during 1966 and 1967.

The 28-year-old Harrison was spotted among holiday visitors to the nation's Capital by legal police after Detroit law authorities had alerted them that the black militant was moving his headquarters to this city.

In testimony before the Senate Permanent Investigating Subcommittee, Police Lt. William McCoy singled Harrison out as one of the leaders in a dozen Detroit protests and riots since he moved there from New York City in May, 1965.

As chairman of several black militant student and youth groups, McCoy stated, Harrison made speeches urging Detroit Negro youths to go into the streets and take whatever they

New Adoption Record Established; Scotia Couple Have Decisive Role

A Scotia couple has helped the Nebraska Children's Home Society set a new state record for adoptions.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren Malmstrom adopted a one-month-old son, Ray Matthew, through the home last Nov. 27. It was the 203rd adoption of the year, surpassing 1967's record total of 204. The Malmstroms also have a 2-year-old daughter.

Regarding the record, the executive director of the Omaha home stated:

"While we are not in the business of trying to set records concerning children, it is most gratifying to be able to help an ever-increasing number of children in their hour of need. As a voluntary organization, we are solely dependent on donations and bequests from the fine folks of Nebraska in order to carry on our work; and we certainly express our deepest thanks to those who have helped make this possible through the Christmas appeal known as "Little Red Stocking."

Although best known as the largest adoption agency in the state, the organization's boarding home program and unwed mother service are also quite extensive. In addition, services include a great amount of temporary care in emergency cases involving various courts throughout the state.

"This year's increase of 8 percent in adoptions, together with an increase of almost 11 percent in the number of days care, mean a great many children who might have become community liabilities will be turned into community assets."

Off on the Wrong Foot

Hopes that 1969 would bring a return to law and order in the United States were dealt an early set-back last week when Rep. Adam Clayton Powell was seated by Congress.

Powell's seating, in spite of sufficient evidence to levy a $25,000 fine against him and strip him of his 22 years of seniority, will do nothing to discourage law-breakers at either the top or bottom strata of U. S. society.

Powell was originally excluded from the 90th Congress on Mar. 1, 1967. Fellow members of the House of Representatives voted to deny him his seat because of alleged misuse of public funds, including:

- Putting his wife on the payroll without requiring her to perform Congressional duties; and
- Using government money to pay for private airplane trips.

Grand Jury Did Not Vote

Powell has spent most of the time since his ouster languishing on the Isle of Bemini, soaking up sun and alcohol with equal fervor. He declined until a few weeks ago to return to his home state of New York because of criminal charges pending against him there in connection with a separate incident.

A nine-man committee of his peers investigated the misuse-of-public-funds charge before Powell was ousted. It concluded that he was guilty of wrong-doing but recommended only that he be censured. (Webster defines censure as "blaming, condemning as wrong, criticizing adversely, and/or expressing disapproval of.")

Following the Congressional vote, the available evidence was turned over to a federal grand jury for further investigation and possible indictment. That investigation lasted 18 months, but the grand jury was dissolved last month without taking any action. It did not even vote on whether Powell should be indicted or not.

Despite the absence of a vote, Justice Department officials presumed to know the grand jury's findings.

"Available evidence did not warrant prosecution," a spokesman stated.

However, there was apparently sufficient evidence to warrant a civil suit to recover the $40,000 in misappropriated funds, since the spokesman went on to say that a civil action was being considered. Why that much evidence was not sufficient for a criminal indictment was not explained.

$15,000 to the Good

Rep. H. R. Gross of Iowa led the fight against Powell. After hearing of the Justice Department's action, he stated:

"I am advised that dismissal of a grand jury before it resolves the question if was impeached to investigate is virtually unheard of. Here is a grand jury which, after conducting an exhaustive investigation, is dismissed and disbanded without taking a vote to either indict or not indict Powell. This is outrageous."

Gross said he had written Attorney General Ramsey Clark in November after hearing reports that the grand jury would be dissolved without voting. Clark did not acknowledge his correspondence.

Without action by the Justice Department, it would have been difficult for the 91st Congress to refuse Powell his seat. But it was not impossible, and if his actions were wrong two years ago they are still wrong today. Surely our attitudes of right and wrong have not changed that much in such a short time span.

Furthermore, the $25,000 fine levied against him is little more than half the total he is accused of misappropriating. So he is still $15,000 ahead in his handling with taxpayers' money.

Some legislators argue that Powell has paid his debt by sitting out two years without pay. But those same men would never think of putting an embezzler back to work in the same bank where he had been caught tapping the till. Why must it be so different when taxpayers' money is involved?

Celler's Statement Gives Clue

Rep. Emanuel Celler, a fellow Democrat from New York who headed the committee investigation which ruled Powell guilty, nevertheless led the fight to seat him. And he hinted at the most alarming aspect of the whole mess when he stated:

"He who is without sin in this chamber, let him cast the first stone. Judge not that ye be not judged—especially in regard to loved ones on the pay roll and travel."

Celler's statement seems to indicate, as some have claimed for a long time, that Powell is only one of many legislators guilty of misappropriation.

If so, they should be exposed, indicted, and successors elected who are "without sin." Fiscal honesty seems a small enough attribute to expect of our elected officials.

(Congressman Dave Martin, representing Nebraska's 3rd Congressional District, was not afraid to cast stones. He voted with the minority to again refuse Powell his seat.)

Eating tangerines is the best remedy for relief from a cold, researchers at North Carolina's Clemson University advise, as stated in CIPSCO NEWS published by the Central Illinois Public Service Co. An effective decongestant has been discovered in the fruit, and 8 to 12 ounces of the juice will provide the medically prescribed dosage. This does not mean an artificially colored, flavored, sweetened, vitaminized drink with no real fruit content.

Something Different

You Can't Get There From Here!

Who said the days of the pioneers had gone? Who said we don't have blizzards and don't get snowed in and don't have to rough it?

Who said civilization had made us all into softies?

Our recent bad storms proved otherwise. The shakedown dinner at the new Elks Club, for instance, shook up a heap of people as they slid home through the drifts. Some of them didn't make it. Some cars were marooned for days afterward.

I was endeavoring to get out of the country and into Sun Country, wherever that might be.

So first I got stuck in a motel where no cooking or serving was going on. Such a hardship, going without supper!

Next morning I blithely dressed and packed and taxied to the airport. It was fogged in solidly. I went back to the city. Three times that day I returned to the airport because I was assured of "stand-by" status. No soap. No planes landing, so of course no planes departing. I was grounded. The weatherman had gotten the best of me. I couldn't even get back to Ord!

So I investigated busses and trains. At last a kindly ticketmaster assured me he'd put me on a train... but he couldn't promise a seat! "You may have to sit in the smoking car," he said.

By that time this offer of stand-up transportation seemed like a dispensation from heaven, so I accepted gratefully.

About 1:30 a.m. I left my warm hotel and taxied to the station (by this time I owned the taxi company).

An hour later I got aboard the train, and the ticketmaster somehow produced a fine lounge chair for me. I subsided gratefully for nine or ten hours, then got off at Denver.

And took another taxi to the airport, way across the city.

And caught a plane out very shortly for Phoenix, only 24 hours late. There I changed planes and got aboard the one for Tucson.

Hurray, I made it.

And I felt just like a pioneer spirit.

Almost exactly as if I'd bounced in a big lumbering prairie schooner behind a team of oxen. For had I not conquered snow and ice and sleet and fog and rain and taxis and motels and hotels and trains?

Elyria Folk Have Plenty of Advice Ready If President-Elect Nixon Wants to Listen

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

Seeing as how we're getting a Republican administration, Joe Kruml, who carries a picture of Abe Lincoln in the back of his watch, was extra careful in wording up his New Year resolutions. Saturday night during a session at the Elyria store, Joe brought up his list of promises to himself, and he told the fellers he was running late with 'em on account of the change in the government outlook.

Usually, Mister Editor, when the Democrats are in charge, Joe's resolutions sound more like announcing the end of the world.

One year I recollect, Felix Gregorski's preacher was in the store when Joe got wound up on his promises and the preacher said Joe was a profit of doom.

Saturday night, Joe called for a slowdown in government build-up everywhere but efficiency in the post office, and there were a few signs of hope scattered in his list.

The first resolution that Joe says he is sending along to President Nixon is for a cutback in them agencies that tell the President and the Congress how to spend our money. Joe was of the opinion they spend it fast enough now.

Joe had seen this report by Congressman Goodling of Pennsylvania who had looked up the number of advising boards started in the last four years. There are 150 more than there were in 1965, reported Joe, and they're costing taxpayers $1 billion a year. Joe said he would serve as an advising board without pay to advise Mr. Nixon to do away with most of the paid ones.

Joe said it was his opinion that them advising boards naturally come up with the advice they are named to give in the first place. For instance, one advising

Come to Church

This Week's Meditation

It seems strange that a man who lived so long ago in an insignificant country could have had such an influence on us. Even the calendar bows to his authority. It was 1500 years ago that a scholar named Dionysius Exiguus, a student of the Bible and astronomy, proposed that the entire course of history be reckoned from the birth of Jesus. Everything that happened before was to be designated B.C. (Before Christ). And everything that happened after was to be dated A.D. (Anno Domini, the Year of Our Lord). Thus the entire calendar became a Christian testimony.

Four head of mules selling at a farm auction would have been a common sight 30 years ago. But two spans of Molly mules that were sold Jan. 7 on the Jim Hansen place northeast of Ord caused quite a stir. Buyers came from miles around to see the mules sold at $200 a team, including harness and collars. Other animals sold at the auction included a Palomino Shetland driving team, complete with harness and cart, which went for $265. The sale marked the end of an era for Hansen, who had farmed 13 miles northeast of town and raised horses and mules "because I like them." He used his mules during the recent snowstorm to feed cattle when his tractors couldn't make it through the snow. Selling the mules was a first for Ord auctioneers Leo Wolfe and Stanley Nolte. By the way, that's the mules at left and the auctioneers at right.

Proposed Grade School Layout Planned Around Top Library Facility

(Editor's Note: This is the second in a series of articles explaining in detail plans for Ord's proposed new grade school. This week's article is devoted to a discussion of the building design — why it was selected and why Board of Education members feel it is the best possible. A future article will deal with the funding.)

Proposed floor plans submitted by the Ord School District's contracted architect call for a building of approximately 38,000 square feet. It is to be designed in the form of two crossing rectangles.

Main feature of the building will be a resource materials center. This is a library, 1969 version. It will contain not only books and other printed matter, but audio-visual teaching aids as well.

For example, there will be records, filmstrips, and 8-mm films, plus the facilities to use them.

School officials favor this type library for a couple of reasons. First, there is simply more information available than can be found in books alone. Second, studies have shown that not all children learn best the same way. For some hearing is more important, and for others seeing. Thus, officials want to have the facilities to appeal to more than the one sense used in reading.

Located to either side of the main resource materials center will be instructional materials centers. These will be "sub-libraries," one designed for primary-age children and the other for intermediate-age.

Six classrooms for each of those age groups will be clustered around the respective I.M.C.

"The library should be the focal point of any educational building today," Bob Kula of Shaver & Co. said in presenting the proposed floor plan last month. "This layout makes it a focal point, and it provides easy access from every classroom."

To provide even easier access, there will be no permanent walls between the classrooms and the library — or between the rooms themselves.

School officials feel this provides greater flexibility for their program. For example, team teaching will be used quite extensively. This means that teachers may want to combine two or more classes for instruction under a single teacher who may be more proficient in that particular subject area. This will be much easier to accomplish with movable walls.

Schools without interior walls are becoming more and more common. In other places teachers have found them to be a help rather than a hindrance, helping to reduce discipline problems. (For more on how schools without walls work turn to Page 1 of Section 2.)

However, if a teacher does want to separate her room for some particular reason, she will be able to do so with portable screens or cabinets.

Desks will also be movable, so that a teacher may arrange her room any way she wishes to best achieve her objective.

The rooms will all have exterior doors to permit quick exit in case of fire. However, there will be few windows.

"A minimum of windows eliminates light glare and heat control problems, reduces construction and maintenance costs, and results in better use of walls for teaching aids," Kula said.

Special acoustical materials will prevent one class from interfering with another. These features include ceilings covered with acoustical plaster at least five-eighths of an inch thick, plaster walls of special material, and carpeting on the floor.

Least any parents think that their children can get along without carpeting at home and therefore ought to at school, Kula pointed out:

"Eighty-seven percent of your noise originates on the floor, with feet shuffling, things being dropped, etc. This carpet will kill that noise at its source."

Carpeting will also save on maintenance costs, said Dr. Otis Miller, president of the Board of Education.

Educational TV Swine Program Now Underway

Nine Valley County swine producers met Jan. 6 at Ord High School to view the first program of "Pork Spotlight."

This is an "in depth" workshop being presented over the state's education television network. It explores the problems associated with pork production.

A series of five programs were originally scheduled to discuss the following topics:

- Selections of breeding animals;
- Management programs to maximize live pigs at farrowing;
- Factor affecting survival of baby pigs;
- Factors that reduce stress and maximize gains during the nursery-growing period;
- Maximizing profits in the finishing period.

If they wish, farmers can view the program in the comfort of their own living room, right in their favorite chair. They can enjoy the series by picking up the program guide and other material at the Valley County Extension Office. A charge of $1 will be levied to help defray the cost of materials.

Farmers interested in viewing the program with their fellow swine producers may do so by attending the next meeting in Room 108, Ord High School. A short discussion period will follow.

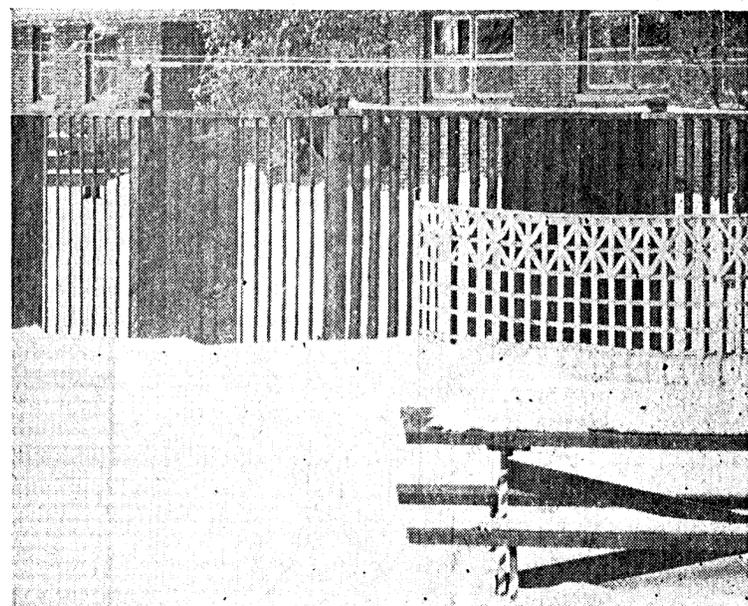

Thief Settles For Peppermint Liquor

A thief with a taste for peppermint schnapps drew a blank in his quest for cash late Saturday night or early Sunday morning.

Ralph Wiberg, owner of Wiberg's Drive In, reported Wednesday that a fifth of the sweet liquor was his only loss from a Saturday night break-in.

Wiberg said the drawer of his cash register was pulled open, indicating the thief was originally looking for money. When he found none, he apparently decided to console himself with peppermint schnapps.

The back door trim and casing were broken off, indicating the thief had entered the store that way.

A redwood fence, picnic table, and clothesline combine to make an interesting combination of vertical and horizontal lines. Cover with snow, and it's a perfect winter scene.

Student Exchange Record Still Intact As Ord Gets In Through Back Door

Students — five girls and two boys — came here under the American Field Service program. The community's request for a student this year was denied because the application was received too late, and because it was specified. Because of an excessive number of requests for a boy would have been rejected to obtain.

Under the AFS program the community as a whole acts as a student, even though he or she normally lives with one particular family during the year.

However, under the Youth for Understanding program the visiting student is hosted by an individual family. If the family moves during the school year, as the Wolfes are doing, the student moves with them.

During a recent visit to Ord, Mr. Wolfe called Joke "a typical teenager." He said he and his wife had had no problems with her, other than those normally associated "with the average youngster her age."

In some ways Joke is not so average, however. For example, she speaks four languages fluently. In addition to her native Dutch, they are English, German and French.

And at 6 feet 2 1/2 inches, Joke will stand out in any crowd — even in the Bohemian community where the women usually grow taller than normal anyhow.

The intent of the Youth for Understanding program is to put visiting students in a typical American home, so that they can get a better understanding of the way we live. Joke is getting the full treatment, moving in the middle of the year and everything," Wolfe said.

However, he said she has a good personality and adjusts easily to new surroundings, and he and his wife anticipate no problems.

Her American "father," Mr. Wolfe, is a 1953 graduate of Ord High School. He went on to Kearney State College, graduating with a Bachelor of Arts degree in 1957.

After three years of teaching and coaching at Clay Center and Shelton, he went into the insurance business as an adjuster for the General Adjustment Bureau. Following two years at Alliance, he was transferred to Omaha in 1962. After two more years he and his family moved to Grand Island, where he served a couple of years with the General Adjustment Bureau and then became executive vice-president of the Great Plains Insurance Co.

Wolfe is married to the former Karen Loewenstein of Shelton. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wolfe, still live in Ord.

The newcomers will reside in the old Mildred Auble house, now owned by Zola Schudel, located on M Street.

Ord High School Adult Education Section Will Offer Eight Classes This Semester

Eight adult education classes — two of them offering high school credit — will be organized Jan. 28.

The classes are all being offered subject to sufficient enrollment. Eidon Buoy has announced. He is supervisor of adult education for the Ord School System.

Classes with limited enrollment will be offered on a first-come, first-served basis, Buoy said.

The organizational meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. and will be held at Ord High School.

Buoy said anyone interested in a class but unable to attend the organizational meeting may call in and leave their name and the desired class. Meeting nights will be determined by the class participants and instructor if Tuesday nights are not convenient, he added.

If individuals would like to enroll in both credit classes, an attempt will be made to schedule them on different nights, Buoy said. The subjects are high school Mathematics and English. The math class could possibly be a business math course, and English a combination of grammar and literature. Content will be determined primarily to meet the needs of the class.

The two classes will each carry five hours of credit. They will meet three hours per night, one night a week for 16 weeks. A charge of $18 will be levied with a minimum of 10 enrollees.

If there are less than 10 participants, it would be possible to raise the fee accordingly and still offer the class, Buoy said.

Books will be furnished for both classes. The English group will meet in Room 204 and the math class in Room 103.

The six courses that do not carry high school credit will meet two hours one night a week for eight weeks. Fees will be $3 per course plus any materials used such as wood, iron, etc., in the shop classes.

The art class will meet in Room 111 with Mrs. Beverly Walsh as instructor. A minimum of eight members will be required. Content of the course will be optional, covering art history, painting, sculpture, or drawing.

The bookkeeping class will meet in Room 210 with Ed Bosworth as instructor. A minimum enrollment of eight members is required for this class also. The content will cover basic accounting or personal bookkeeping.

Music classes will be held in the new chorus room with Mrs. Florence Erickson as instructor. A minimum of six students must enroll for this class, which will cover music appreciation and actual study of a chosen instrument or voice.

Welding will meet with Frank Anderson as instructor in the agriculture shop. Minimum enrollment is eight and maximum is 13. Course content will cover beginning as well as advanced arc and oxy-acetylene welding.

The woodworking and/or architectural drawing class will meet in the industrial arts shop and will be taught by Arden Koelling. A minimum enrollment of eight is required.

A class in men's physical education was organized Jan. 9 and will meet for 12 weeks. Anyone interested in enrolling may contact instructor Chuck Squier. There is no charge for this class.

Cpl. Richard Gillham Killed in War Action

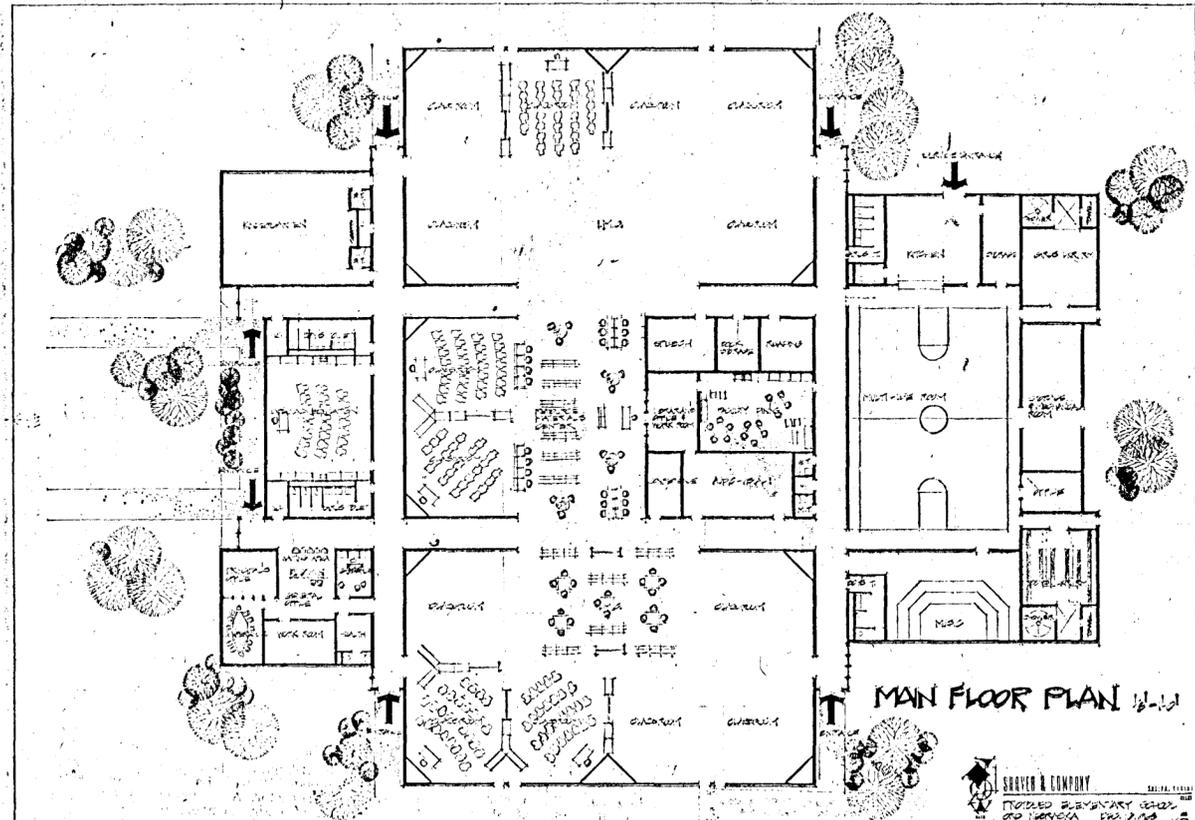

A former Ord couple, Gerald and Ursula Gillham of 303 E. 16th St., Grand Island, have learned that their son, Cpl. Richard Gillham, 29, was killed Friday in Vietnam.

Mr. and Mrs. Gillham were notified personally Sunday by two Army personnel and on Monday by a telegram from Maj. Gen. Kenneth G. Wickham, saying Corporal Gillham died Friday of wounds received while he was a passenger on a military vehicle. The vehicle was on a military mission when a hostile mine detonated.

Richard was born Apr. 15, 1948, at Ord, and moved to Grand Island with his family when he was 4 years old. He graduated from Grand Island High School in 1968 and attended Wayne College for one semester. Before entering the Army in March of 1968, he was employed by Multi-View TV Systems. He was assigned to Vietnam in September of 1968.

Survivors with his parents are a sister, Mrs. Charles (Barbara) Evans of Ogallala, and grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Jess Gillham of Grand Island.

Funeral arrangements are pending.

The main floor of the proposed Ord grade school is pictured here, with the main entrance at left. Right behind it is a special education room with principal's offices and kindergarten room to either side. The main central portion of the building consists primarily of library space and classrooms, and at the rear are a multi-purpose room, music facility, and kitchen area. A special election will be held Feb. 11 to approve or disapprove the proposed structure.

Recreation Meeting Scheduled Tonight

Another attempt will be made to organize a men's recreation program tonight (Thursday) at 7:30 p.m. The meeting will be held in Room 108 at Ord High School.

Carol's Corner

by Carol Loggett

Statistics show that 1 million women are overweight. These of course are round figures. Figures have been printed and ignored about the virtues of balanced exercise and diets.

First you must know your own strength, and it is unwise to overestimate it. One jellybean contains seven calories.

You will look somewhat thinner if your hairdo is reasonably sleek rather than bouffant. Since dieting is often a matter of mood, it is wise to keep some diet foods handy for those mornings when you awaken with a surge of ambition and decide "this is the day." If the low calorie canned fruits and salad dressings are there, you can pin down your resolution with action before it fades.

Never tell anyone you're on a diet. Whether she's plumper than you — or thinner — nine times out of 10 she will try to tell you that you look great just the way you are.

Of course, most people who go on a diet usually do so because they feel fat. It is convenient, however, if you feel fat and rich — then you can diet on fine, expensive things like steaks, broiled rare, and luscious fresh fruits either in or out of season.

All diet-minded people need one of the stickless, greaseless frying pans to cook in.

Another good thing for them to have is this easy recipe for low calorie Oven French Fries. Simply set the oven at 475 degrees. Then cut 3 raw potatoes in strips. Drop them into a bowl containing 1 T. oil and 1 T. water mixed together.

Stir the potato strips until they are well coated. Bake for half an hour in your 475-degree oven and serve hot. This will serve four or five depending on how hard you are dieting.

It is nice to know how many calories the average housewife is spending per minute at her various projects around the house. This is how it goes: sitting, 1.11; the calorie cost per minute, sitting and reading, 1.11; sitting and eating (not counting what you eat), 1.28; sitting and playing cards, 1.32; resting in bed, 0.93; standing and staring, 1.30; standing and dusting,

2.25; dressing, 2.93; taking a shower, 2.93; making the bed, 4.20; spinning shoes, 3.26; mopping floors, 4.15; walking outdoors, 4.89; walking downstairs, 6.06; walking upstairs, 15.92; kneeling 1.00, and washing clothes (by hand this means) 2.33.

Now, is it worth it to make the bed 24 times just for a one-inch square of fudge? It sounds like a dreadful way to spend a morning!

This is the time to put the young cooks of the household to work. So that you won't be so tempted by tasting and nibbling, suggest that they pacify the family with a batch of Easy-To-Do Candy made from: 5 c. corn flakes, 2 pkgs. caramel (butter-scotch) chips, 1/2 c. peanut butter.

Melt caramel and peanut butter over low heat, stir in corn flakes. Drop by tablespoon on waxed paper.

Mrs. Lyle Flynn writes the Quiz that her mother, Mrs. Chris Johnson, is presently with them at Boone, Ia., but plans to move into a place of her own later. "We'll share her paper," writes Mrs. Flynn. "We always look forward to Quiz Day."

On Monday, even when the ice and snow are thick underfoot, a meeting of the Golden Horizons Club takes place at the Methodist Educational Building. Usually about 20 attend the afternoon meeting, where mending and sewing and craft work of all kinds go on.

In 1968, for instance, this eager group mended 1,188 articles for the hospital. Their cash contributions included $100 to the Donita Hastings fund, $200 to the building fund of the Special Services School, and $5 for the Valley County Hospital memorial fund.

Minnie Jensen is the president (for the ninth year in a row), and her capable assistants are Lucy McCune, vice president; Gladys Walker, treasurer; Agnes Dodge, secretary; and Ruth Wolf, project chairman.

Dairy Meeting

A meeting to discuss problems associated with dairy herd management is scheduled Jan. 15, starting at 8 p.m. in the Valley County Extension Office.

W. Miller, extension dairyman for the University of Nebraska, will lead the discussion. The meeting will be as informal as possible, and Mr. Miller will be prepared to answer questions on dairy herd management.

All dairymen in Valley County are invited to attend the meeting. Mark this date on your calendar: Jan. 15, 8 p.m., Valley County Extension Office.

Mineral for Cattle

Mineral needs for cattle on the average are quite low. However, their normal diet may be deficient in some minerals, particularly during the winter months.

The most important minerals for the ruminants are sodium chloride (salt) and phosphorus. In some instances calcium may be deficient.

Range grasses usually contain nearly enough phosphorus during the summer but will definitely be lacking in this element during the winter months. Average quality winter range and prairie-type hays will contain about half the phosphorus level required by beef cattle.

Therefore, it will be necessary to supplement a mineral containing phosphorus during this time of the year. In choosing a mineral supplement for range cattle, be aware of the calcium-phosphorus ratio. Choose that mineral which has the lowest amount of calcium with relation to the amount of phosphorus available. A calcium phosphorus ratio of 1 to 1 is the most desirable.

Irrigation Short Course
An irrigation short course will be held at the Nebraska Center for Continuing Education in Lincoln Jan. 13-14.

The two-day session will be addressed by 16 University of Nebraskans, and other specialists.

Purpose of the course is to bring the irrigator up to date on the most recent developments in the irrigation field. The session may also be of interest to farm managers, bankers, irrigation manufacturers, and dealers, as well as others interested in keeping up to date on problems associated with irrigation.

More information on this meeting can be obtained from the County Extension Office.

Watch Your Step
Falls can be fatal, if you don't look where you are going. Some of the most common causes of falls are water and grease spots on the floor, toys or boxes on stairs, extension cords, hairpins or paper clips on the floor, and torn places in the linoleum or loose throw rugs on the floor.

Chairman Picked

Leaders reported on troop activities over the past month. Those present were Meses Bob Sich, Don Sears, Bill Gogan, Junior Hansen, Stanley Nolte, and Wayne Zlomke.

The next meeting is set for Feb. 6 at 1:30 p.m. in the Zlomke home.

Ord Record Sinks to 4-5 Despite Top Performance

The game was basketball, but Tom Klanecky and Jim Martin almost made it look like football practice. That's Klanecky hugging the ball and Martin going out for a pass. Teammate David John looks on. The action occurred in the Ord Junior High game with Barr of Grand Island. Ord won it, 48-45.

Coach Ken Trubey says it still counts as a loss in the record books, but he was quite pleased nonetheless about the play of his Ord Chanticleers Friday night against Schuyler.

The underdog Chants carried the top-rated Warriors to two overtimes before bowing, 78-77, at Schuyler.

Trubey was not so happy about the next night's showing as Ord dropped a 65-62 decision to Aurora, also rated highly. The final score was not indicative of the game as the Huskies frequently had leads in excess of 10 points.

Rebounding, which had been a weak spot in previous outings, turned out to be an Ord strength in the game against Schuyler. Led by Ron Bredthauer, the Chants beat the Warriors, 36-30, in that department. Bredthauer hauled down 19 and scored 20 points as he outplayed Schuyler's touted Gene Harmon. At 6-7 Harmon had a three-inch height advantage, but he got only 17 rebounds and 16 points.

A controversial call in the closing moments of regulation time played an important role in the final outcome. As the clock ticked off the final seconds, a Schuyler player drove for the basket and contact was made. One official called it a charging foul, but the other ruled that an Ord defensive player had fouled. After a huddle they ruled the foul against Ord's Bill Klanecky.

Besides the free throws it gave Schuyler, the call caused Klanecky to exit the game since it was his fifth foul. With Duane Kovarik already on the sidelines with five, Ord was forced to play both overtimes with reserve guards.

Klanecky finished the game with 20 points.

The Chants jumped off to an early lead and stayed ahead most of the way. They entered the fourth quarter leading by six at 59-53.

It took an exceptional shooting performance by Schuyler to catch up. During the game the Warriors hit 31 of 54 shots from the field for 57 percent. They were led by junior guard Ron Jarecki, who canned 12 of 18 and finished the night with 30 points.

Harmon played the entire second half and both overtimes with four fouls against him. Three of his teammates, including Jarecki and Steve Bailey, who scored 20 points, also finished the game.

Aurora's Tom Kropp heads for a one-point landing as Ord's Ron Bredthauer gives him the heave-ho. Kropp was charged with a foul on the play, but his Aurora team won the game, 65-62.

Kovarik, too, played well although he scored only two points. He made just one turn-over as he directed the Ord attack.

Schuyler's triumph raised its season record to 7-0. The Warriors remained the Nebraska State Journal's pick as the No. 1 Class B team in the state despite the close call.

With that loss and the one the following night, Ord's record dropped to 4-5 for the year. Four of those losses, however, have been to teams rated in the top 10. Besides Schuyler, they are Seward, No. 4; Cozad, No. 6; and Aurora, No. 8. The fifth loss was to Lexington.

Aurora jumped off to an early lead and held it all the way in the Saturday night game. The aggressive play of the Huskies resulted in 10 more fouls than Ord was charged with, but the Chants weren't as successful at converting them into points as they had been the night before. They made 22 attempts but missed 15 others, many of them on the front end of one-and-one situations. Had they made them, they of course would have received bonus spots.

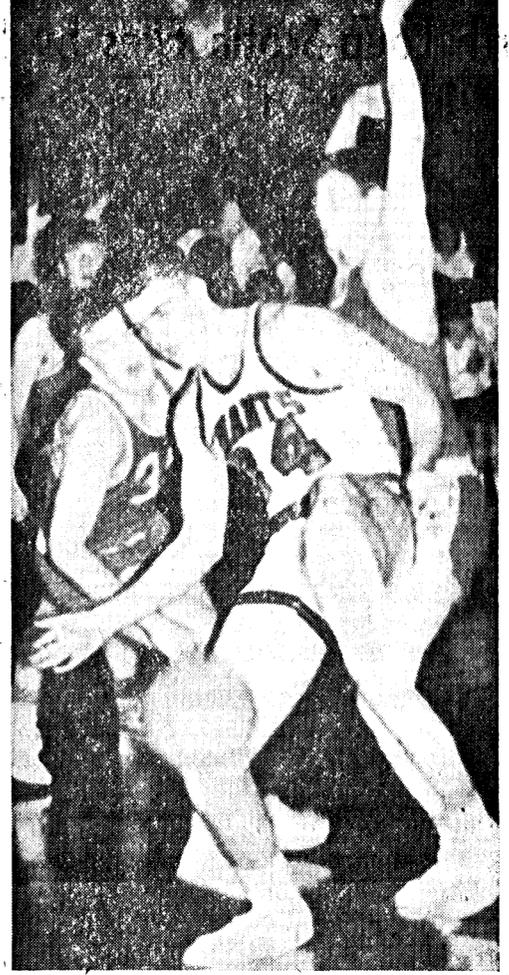

Ord's field goal percentage was down too, as the Chants hit only 35 percent. And they were beaten in rebounds, 44-33.

Bredthauer was the top scorer at 16 points, with Klanecky just one behind.

However, for the second night in a row Klanecky fouled out. His replacement, Dennis Kamarad, led a fourth-quarter surge that cut the final margin to three points. He scored five.

Aurora connected on 41 percent of its field goal tries, and on 15 of 20 free throws. The Huskies are now 5-1 for the year.

The weekend performances did nothing to mar Ord's image with the state ratings experts. The Chants are still rated the top team in District 6, and the State Journal says they "may deserve a spot in the top 10."

Ron Bredthauer does some high-stepping as he chases a loose ball against Aurora.

Chicks Lose First Of Year, 39-35, To Broken Bow

Broken Bow rallied in the fourth quarter to hand Ord Junior High its first defeat of the season Tuesday night, 39-35.

Ord's record is now 3-1. Last week the Chicks defeated Barr Junior High of Grand Island in a suspenseful encounter, 48-45. The scoreboard read 45-45 when Paul Markley sank a short jump shot with one second left. But a recheck of the scorebook showed the score was actually 46-45.

Grapplers Lose To Northwest

Although three regulars were not available, Ord wrestlers still made a respectable showing Tuesday night against Grand Island Northwest. They were defeated, 32-27, losing 10 points because of defaults in the two smallest weight divisions.

Tim Markley, Dale Baldwin, Roger Cahill, Alan Cahill, and Terry Lee picked up victories for Ord.

The local team will participate Saturday in an invitational meet at Lexington.

Returns to Base

Leonard Urbanski left Saturday morning from Grand Island for Oceanana, Va., after spending a three-week leave with his mother, Mrs. Adeline Urbanski, and sister Marlene. Ord Graduate Rates In Cornhusker Plans For Track Season

Bob Pierce, former Class B state champion in the 440-yard dash, is rated as one of the top newcomers on this spring's University of Nebraska track team.

Pierce is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hal Pierce of Ord. He won a gold medal at the 1967 state meet by turning in the best 440 time of the day, regardless of class. His time was 48.8 seconds.

He also finished second that year in the Class B 100-yard dash and led the Ord mile-relay team to a runner-up finish.

Pierce was a stand-out performer last season on the Nebraska freshman team.

The Cornhuskers will open their indoor track season Feb. 1 in a triangular meet with Southern Illinois and South Dakota State. Their outdoor season begins Apr. 5.

Mrs. Frank Kapuska entertained members of the Mother Cabrini Study Club at her home Wednesday evening. Mrs. Doris Franssen was co-hostess and Mrs. Joe Osentowski was lesson leader. Meanwhile, the St. Anne's group met with Mrs. Marvin Setlik with Mrs. Richard Beran the co-hostesses.

St. Paul Will Bring 4-2 Season Mark Into Friday Contest Against Chants

Two basketball teams with similar characteristics will match off Friday night when Ord hosts St. Paul.

Game time is 8 o'clock with a reserve contest scheduled at 6:15.

St. Paul will bring a 4-2 record into the fray, while Ord is 4-3. However, the Chanticleers have played much the stronger schedule. They have lost to four of the state's 10 top-rated Class B teams and have played only one Class C outfit.

On the other hand, three of St. Paul's victories have been over Class C teams (Ravenna, Wood River, Loup City), and they stand only 1-2 against Class B aggregations. In that category they have defeated Central City and lost to Albion and Seward.

The teams are almost identical in height. Ord is led by 6-4 Ron Bredthauer and St. Paul by 6-3 Russell Dreyer.

Other Chant starters will be

6-1 Dick Janda, 5-11 Bill Miller, 5-10 Bill Klanecky, and 5-9 Duane Kovarik.

St. Paul's other front-liners are 6-0 Dan Bahensky, 5-11 Doug Bruce, 5-9 Bob Oakeson, and 5-9 Barry Pederson. The latter pair are the only lettermen, although everyone except Bruce is a senior.

Bahensky leads a balanced scoring attack.

Strong backup play is provided by 5-11 Ray Jackson and 6-2 Paul Muskuiz.

Ord reserves haven't had much opportunity to play this season, but they did pick up some valuable experience last week as four sidelined starters in both the Schuyler and Aurora games.

"Dreyer has really been improving and played his best of the year in our last game with Ravenna," St. Paul Coach Mark Cordes stated Tuesday.

North Loup-Scotia Ekes by Sargent To Win LHTC Conference Tourney

Twice coming from behind, North Loup-Scotia won three games last week to keep its season record unblemished and win the championship of its conference tournament.

The Wildcats tangled with Sargent in the finals. It turned out to be a real donnybrook as North Loup-Scotia trailed by as much as 11 points before pulling out a 50-56 squeaker.

The victory upped the Wildcat record for the year to 8-0. Sargent is now 5-2 for the season, having also lost to Burwell.

Those three teams will play in the same district tournament later this year for a spot in the state meet.

North Loup-Scotia's two big men — G. A. Chuck Wegner and J. J. Jim Clement — proved the difference. Wegner scored 19 points and Clement 21 to off-set a balanced Sargent attack which featured the outside shots of Hanna and Johnson. Hanna scored 17 points and Johnson 16.

Almost three minutes were gone in the fourth quarter before North Loup-Scotia took its first lead of the game. That came on a pair of free throws by Clement which made the score 52-50, but the fans had to wait until just three seconds remained before they could relax.

Al Williams made two free throws at that point to give the Wildcats a 55-56 lead and assure their second close win of the season. In the only other game in which they've been seriously pressed, they defeated Wolbach, 65-61.

Coach LaVelle Miller deserted his normal man-for-man in favor of a zone defense when his team dropped behind, 21-10, early in the second quarter. The move proved a wise one as the Wildcats narrowed the gap to 33-26 at halftime and 48-46 at the three-quarter mark.

Although Wegner and Clement were the scoring leaders, all the Wildcat regulars had a hand in the triumph — especially in the crucial closing seconds. Williams of course had the two clinching free throws, while Dick Benson pulled off a key rebound with just 16 seconds to go. Larry Tolson, who drew three fouls with barely more than that many minutes gone in the game, returned to action in the pressure-packed final quarter and made a key steal with 34 seconds left that led to a three-point lead instead of two.

Craig Wegner also helped immeasurably, scoring eight points as Tolson's replacement.

North Loup-Scotia took a four-point lead with two minutes to go, but a full-court press paid some quick dividends for Sargent. Johnson stole the ball and hit for two quick points; and when the Wildcats couldn't get the ball in bounds, Hanna followed up on a shot one of his teammates had missed to tie it at 54-54.

But Wegner followed a missed shot by Clement to break the tie and send the Wildcats back in front, 56-54. Then came Tolson's steal, allowing Clement to hit a free throw after being fouled.

After the teams traded misses Hanna scored two pressure free throws with nine seconds to go, making it 57-56. But time ran out on the Bulldogs as a desperation foul was converted into two more points by Williams.

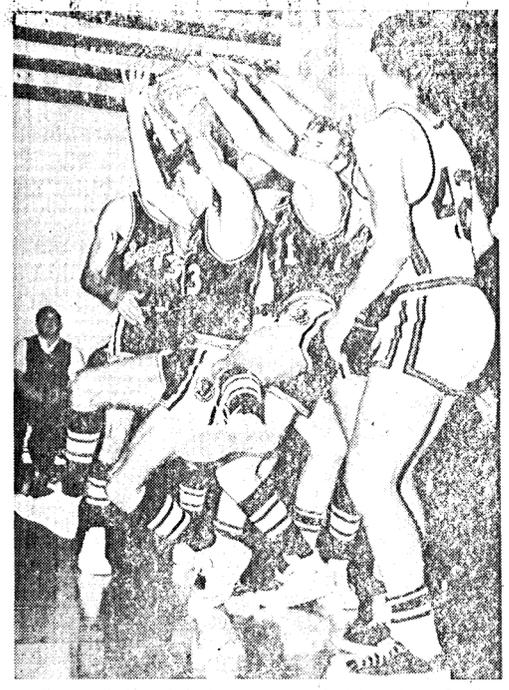

Mark Cooper and Jim Green, Sargent's two big scorers most of the season, were held to 5 and 10 points, respectively. However, both were reportedly suffering from sprained ankles.

North Loup-Scotia earned the championship berth by beating Anselmo-Merna, 80-44, and Theford, 77-63. The Wildcats trailed in the latter game at the end of the first quarter, 18-13, but pulled away to win handily.

Sargent gained the final round by defeating Arnold, 50-35, and Anselmy, 50-43.

Anselmy, the team that had looked so bad earlier this season in the Scotia holiday tournament, took third place by beating Theford, 56-50.

In its only action this week, North Loup-Scotia will host Anselmo-Merna in a Friday night contest.

North Loup-Scotia's Dick Benson decided to let all these Bulldogs have at it in this Friday night action at the LHTC Conference tournament in Merna. In the thick of it are Sargent's B. Anderson (13) and Mark Cooper (21). Benson's teammates, Jim Clement, is also in there somewhere as are a couple more Bulldogs. North Loup-Scotia won the thriller, 59-56.

Golden Gloves Card Expected to Draw Outstanding Field

Nearly a dozen former district champions are expected to be in the field for Saturday night's final Golden Gloves tuncup, to be held at St. Mary's Auditorium.

Eleven former winners have announced their plans to compete in the smoker, which begins at 8 p.m. They include one contestant with experience in the national Golden Gloves tournament. He's Bob Hixson of Neligh, who was an alternate on last year's Nebraska team. He'll be fighting in the 156 pound weight class that will also include two other former district winners, Don Slingsby of Broken Bow and Jim Rademaker of Loup City.

The 147-pound division, however, looks like the toughest with four former winners. They are Tom Banks and Bob Hoppes of Ord, Dick Pelster of Petersburg, and Gerald Hunt of Broken Bow. Both Banks and Hunt have also been named outstanding fighter at the Grand Island district meet in former years.

The other former winners and the classes they'll be competing in are Larry Proskocil, Ord, 132; Gary Proskocil, Ord, 139; Lonnie Jensen, Loup City, 175; and Charlie Fox, Ord, heavyweight.

Teams are expected from Bassett, Broken Bow, Central City, Grand Island, Loup City, Omaha, Ord, and South Sioux City.

Approximately 20 fights are planned plus some exhibitions.

V.F.W. Auxiliary Donations Rate High

Dr. William Gogan and Gerald Decker presented the proposed plans of the new elementary school building to members of the Ord V.F.W. Auxiliary, Monday evening.

During the business meeting which followed in the lower level of the Veterans Club Jan. Goodsell, Agnes Novosad, Loretta Belgram, Vesta Huffman and Irene Kapuskaitis became members of the organization bringing the membership for the year to 156 — 33 more than last year.

A committee was named to package the Valentine boxes for service men overseas. They are Dixie Zukoski, Shirley Walker, Virginia Timmerman, Virginia Thompson, Mary Ann Struckman, Jean Smith, Carol Simpson and Ruth Swinski.

The last quarter report of 1968 compiled by President Norma Fox will be given at the Mid Winter Conference at Hastings Jan. 25-26 and the Dist. 12 meeting at Scotia, Feb. 2. Projects included the following donations: $130 to Cancer Research Fund; $15.40 National Home; $10 Christmas Hospital parties plus $20 for Bingo party prizes; $12.50 Health and Happiness Fund; $12.50 National Home Christmas Fund; $25 Girl Scouts; $50 needy veteran family who lost home by fire; $30 Homecoming Fund; $8 prizes for costume party; two $5 memorials to members also $5 to Elaine Wilson Memorial; three Thanksgiving baskets to nursing homes and food donations for two funerals; large punch bowl and cups; a podium and clock for the new Veterans Club. A new gass enclosed bulletin board is being made for the club also.

The Buddy Pappy sales on Nov. 9 totaled $154.40; ten members donated blood and four helped with the Bloodmobile; members participated in the Veterans Day parade and also helped compile calendars for American Legion, V.F.W., their auxiliaries and club associate members.

During the last three months 100 coffee labels were sent to National Home; 20 dozen handkerchiefs were made for Operation Blow; 24 Christmas greetings plus billfold calendars were mailed to servicemen in Vietnam. The Parkview Village and St. Mary's School were given American flags and flag sales to total 22. Members responded generously with gifts for the January Snowball. These gifts will be given to patients at the Hastings State Hospital.

Guestesses were Dolores Babcock and Velma Hornickel who served in the absence of Betty Jo Antheim.

A winner-loser party is being planned for Feb. 10 at the Veterans Club by Mary Marshall and her committee.

At a grade school in Olathe, Kan., students listen on their own to an historic speech. The headsets permit them to listen without disturbing other students.

Board Members Get First-Hand Look At 'Open Concept' Building in Operation

Does the "open concept" type of school building, where there are few permanent walls, really work?

To find the answer to that question, three members of Ord's Board of Education made a trip last week to schools in Olathe and Lawrence, Kan. They were accompanied by local newspaper and radio representatives.

What they found was a growing loyalty among school staffs to the new type of building, and surprisingly little disruption in classes.

Even among older teachers, the new type of educational facility had made its mark. Mrs. Angela Enright, secretary at North View Grade School in Olathe, was typical.

"I didn't know if I was young enough to adapt to this type of building after years of experience in conventional ones," she said. "But now I wouldn't go back to a conventional one even if I had the chance."

Mrs. Enright is 59 and a former teacher. She continued: "It helps develop a habit of concentration in the children. Furthermore, they're not going to be restricted to four walls when they get out into the world. Most of us here feel that the self-discipline this type of system develops is a great thing."

Few Discipline Problems
Parents and teachers who are wondering about discipline problems that the absence of walls may cause apparently have little to worry about.

"I have almost no discipline problems," stated Mrs. Eileen Williams, a fifth and sixth grade teacher in the Lawrence school. She pointed to a husky young red-head with freckles and continued:

"I had that same boy in my class last year at a conventional school just down the road, and he was so awful I wanted to put him in a straight jacket. But this year I've hardly even had to tell him to get busy."

A veteran of seven years in the teaching profession, Mrs. Williams had no ready answer as to why the sudden change.

"I suppose it's the fact that nothing ever gets old," she said. "With the team teaching concept the students get a change in teachers frequently, and they don't see the same 25 classmates all day long either."

"Also, if I leave the room," Mrs. Williams said, "the children don't get rowdy like they would in a conventional building because there's another teacher just a short distance away who can quiet them down."

Team Teaching Planned
The Lawrence school is organized on a "colony" basis. All 140 fifth and sixth graders, for example, are grouped together into one colony. Then they are divided into smaller groups according to their abilities for actual instruction. Because some students excel in certain subjects and other students in other subjects, there is a general mixing of the students from class to class.

Each of the four teachers working with them is allowed to concentrate on his or her specialty. For example, if one teacher excels in English and another in math, the one can teach all the students English and the other can teach them math.

"We won't go quite as far as they have gone," said Dr. Otis Miller, president of the Ord Board of Education. "But we do want to use the team teaching idea a lot more."

He pointed out that the concept has been used for years in high schools, and that the basic idea should work just as well at the grade school level. However, instead of moving the children from room to room as is the case in a high school, the teachers will do most of the moving about.

Film Room Needed
Mrs. Williams had only one complaint with the no-walls building.

"If you're going to build a new school, seriously consider putting in an audio-visual room," she said. "Because of the excellent acoustics, one class activity never interrupts another when there's normal activity going on. But something like a film, which has a higher noise level, can be distracting."

An audio-visual room had already been included in the architect's drawing for Ord's proposed school.

Few Distractions
Despite the absence of walls, the three school board members did not find their presence distracting to the students.

Dr. Dale Kavn, who did not make this trip but who had visited similar schools previously, said at a recent board meeting:

"We were a group of strange men touring the school, yet the children were so accustomed to movement through their areas that most of them didn't even notice us. If we had gone into a closed room, every head in the class would have popped up."

On their trip Friday his fellow board members found that to be an accurate appraisal of the situation.

Varied Source Materials
The principal feature of both the Olathe and Lawrence schools (and all other new ones of that type being built today) is an elaborate library system.

Called an instructional media center, it features many sources of material. For example, records of historic speeches might be available for individual use by the students, or there could be filmstrips teaching different concepts.

Mrs. Dawna Martin, a teacher for nine years before switching to the library at the Lawrence school, is a strong devotee of the expanded facilities.

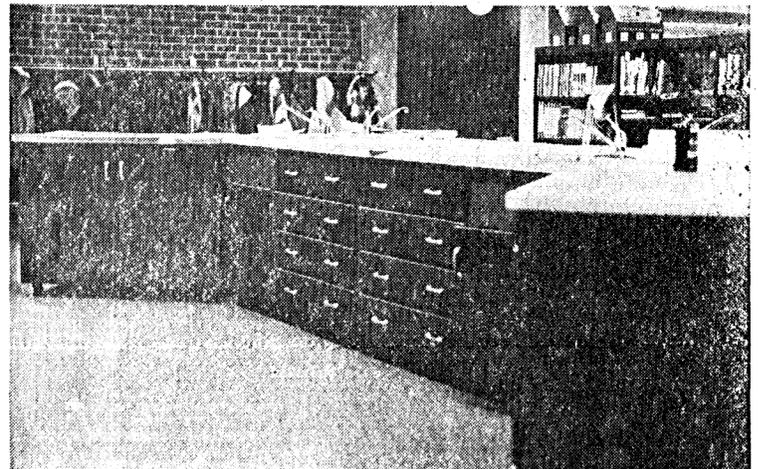

"Students today have so many things to learn," she said, "and the best way is not always by sitting down and getting it from a book."

Practically all walls, many of which will be portable, in the proposed Ord School will have an exterior surface which will double as a bulletin board. Many of them will be portable.

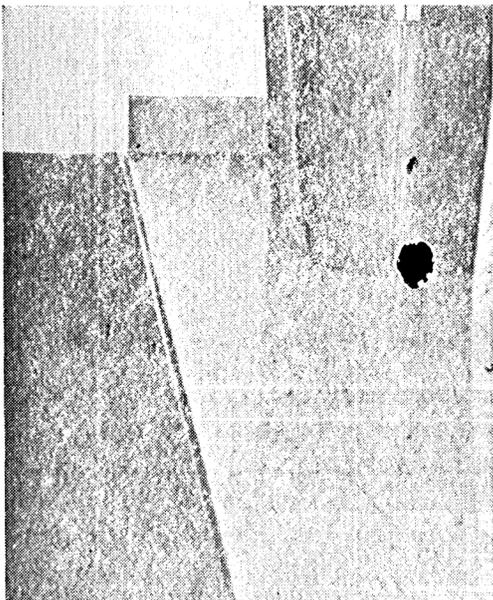

Portable laboratory facilities serve two functions — they can be used for normal scientific demonstrations, and they serve as room dividers. Because they are portable, they can be used by all classes and thus avoid costly duplication of facilities.

With a satellite kitchen, food is prepared elsewhere and taken to the school in specially designed carts like those shown in the foreground. At Olathe, Kan., three carts serve 330 students, with two of them containing hot food and one cold.

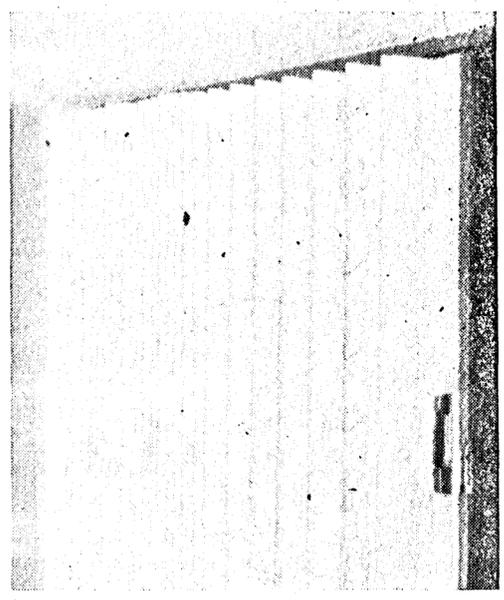

Students at left work on their own while those at right are taught by the teacher. The idea is to let each student progress at the level he is capable of achieving; thus, individual or small-group instruction is emphasized. Through the open area in center another class is in progress. In a conventional building this space would be closed off by a wall.

Carpet designed to cut down noise covers most of the new school's interior, but in certain work areas tile is used. The space at right is used by a kindergarten class for such things as painting. Carpet, obviously, would not be feasible here.

Oblivious to a group of visitors just outside their classroom, even though there was no wall on that side, this math class goes on as normal. Officials report that students adjust quickly to the absence of walls and that there is no distraction from outside sources when they are properly motivated.

Collapsible curtains are used in many areas to close off rooms when that is desired. Portable cabinets on rollers are used in other instances, and sometimes V-type folding screens are used. Frequently they double for other purposes, such as bulletin boards or supply containers.

THE Ord Quiz

Farewell to the Chief!

Having known the heights of adulation as well as the depths of rejection, Lyndon Johnson will step down next Monday as 36th President of the United States.

The President's successes and failures have been well documented. Riding a groundswell of public sympathy for the martyred John F. Kennedy, President Johnson was reelected in 1964 by the largest popular vote margin any Presidential candidate has ever received. But from that pinnacle his popularity plummeted to an all-time low in 1968, when he surrendered his position as chief of state without a fight and saw his chosen successor defeated at the polls.

Ironically, the deterioration of President Johnson's popularity was more the work of his friends than his foes.

For example, it was Democratic liberals in the Senate — like William Fulbright — who gave Johnson two of the sweetest years any President has ever enjoyed with Congress. Yet it was those same Democrats, members of the President's own party, who turned on him most bitterly in the last three years of his administration.

Negro leaders were Johnson's allies too in the glory days of 1964. But his socialistic programs merely whetted their appetites for more federal hand-outs, and when he was unable to deliver they also turned against him. Their protests stirred the spark of rebellion and anarchy in city streets across the country, and other middle-class Americans recoiled in horror at the violence which they saw spawned.

Even Johnson's most trusted ally — big labor — turned against him. Though the leaders as a rule supported him to the end, for once they could not control their constituents. As a result, the President was rebuffed by the rank-and-file even though huge inflationary pay raises were a mark of his years in office.

More time must pass before historians can accurately assess the Johnson era of the mid-60s. But on the surface the man from the Pedernales seems to be leaving more problems than answers.

For instance, there's a major war that has been going on for almost four years, there's a burgeoning crime rate that has risen 89 percent since 1960, there's rampant inflation which has resulted in the highest prime interest rate ever, and there's a definite void of new weapons systems in the slow-moving defense assembly line.

For these and other reasons, hopefully the United States will be a better nation without Lyndon Johnson at its helm.

However, all has not been failure during the Johnson years. The country has had some extraordinary space successes, it has enjoyed low unemployment (although that must be attributed to a large extent to the Vietnam War), and it has enjoyed an increasing standard of living.

Thus, as the President retires to the banks of the Pedernales, he can take with him the thanks of a nation which gratefully acknowledges his efforts while performing the most difficult job in the world — even though those efforts may not always have been what many considered best for the country.

Find Out Why — Then Vote

In talking with citizens of this community, there appears to be little doubt in most minds that a new grade school is needed. The issues, instead, are what kind, how big, how expensive, and where should it be located.

Board of Education members have made decisions regarding all those questions, and tonight (Thursday) they will kick off a campaign to explain those decisions to the voters. An open meeting will be held in the high school cafeteria.

In addition to school officials, representatives will be on hand from the school's contracted architectural firm and from its bonding agent. They will be prepared to field questions on all aspects of the issue.

Anyone who has registered to vote has a responsibility to the youth of this community. He has a responsibility to determine if the proposed building will adequately serve future educational needs, and if it is the best we can present at a reasonable cost.

Board of Education members feel they have reached a suitable compromise of need and economy. They are prepared to explain their decisions to the voters.

It may be that the voters will not feel present plans are the best. But that decision, as well as one to support current plans, should be made only after arming themselves with as many facts and explanations as possible.

We urge every eligible voter to be present at tonight's meeting. It starts at 7:30 p.m.

Know Your Merchandiser!

Several persons in this area have received cards during the past week from an out-of-state firm advising them that they have won free wigs. The only charge to the recipient is a "styling" fee.

The Quiz did not have time to check out this particular company with the Better Business Bureau before going to press, but it strongly suggests that potential customers do so before ordering or accepting any merchandise.

In matters such as this, it has been proven the hard way that one rarely receives a "bargain."

Unless the merchandiser is a reputable firm or has been checked through a Better Business Bureau, we suggest trading with local merchants. In fact, that's a good practice anyhow.

Report from the State Legislature

By Rudolf Kokes

Nebraska's 80th legislative session opened last week with more than the usual amount of controversy over legislative positions and leadership.

One of the first orders of business was to elect chairmen of the various committees and appoint members to them. The state is divided into four districts, three of them composed of 12 legislative districts and with one of 13 districts. The 41st Legislative District falls into the northwest area.

Our district managed to garner the chairmanship and vice-chairmanship of the Committee on Committees. Senator Wylie was elected chairman, and I was chosen vice chairman. That gives us one vote more on this committee than the other three districts, placing us in a favorable position for naming committee chairmen and appointing committee members.

I will also serve as chairman of the Claims and Salaries Committee and as a member of the Revenue Committee.

Senator Harsh, who also falls into the northwest district, will chair the Education Committee; and Senator Carpenter has the Government Committee.

Other committee memberships from the fourth committee district are as follows:

- Agriculture & Recreation Committee, Senator Harsh;
- Banking, Commerce and Insurance Committee, Senator Wylie;
- Budget Committee, Adamson and Whitney;
- Education Committee, Clark; Government and Military Affairs Committee, Waldron;
- Judiciary Committee, Stull and Carpenter;
- Miscellaneous Subjects Committee, Craft and Robinson;
- Public Health and Welfare Committee, Craft and Robinson;
- Revenue Committee, Waldron.

This places the fourth committee district in a position of favorable representation.

At this point, legislative bills are being drafted and introduced and assigned to various committees. Committee hearings will commence Jan. 20.

Copies of any bills of interest to you may be obtained by writing me at the State House, Lincoln, Neb. 68509.

My work load will be much greater than in past sessions. As seniority grows, so do responsibilities.

With the cooperation of your weekly paper, I hope to periodically bring forth news of interest from the state legislature.

War Against Poverty May Stretch Out To Last as Long as War on Communists

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

The fellows got to wondering at the National Aid Saturday night what will happen to the war on poverty now that a new administration is taking over in Washington. They spent most of the session discussing the matter after it was brought up by Ed Waldmann. They studied it up one side and down the other, and they finally decided poor folks are here to stay.

Ed gave a report on what the Center for Policy Research found out when they checked into how the poor war is going. The sad fact is, said Ed, poverty in this country is giving up at a slower rate since the war started than it was back when it was at peace with the government.

According to the center, Ed reported, it will take the government 31 years to get rid of poverty completely at the rate we're winning the war now. If the government gives up the fight, poverty will be gone in 30 years.

Fighting a war like that is like treating a bad cold, allowed Ed. "If you take all the high priced medicine you can get for a cold, it'll give up in seven days, but if you let it alone it'll go away in a week," was Ed's words. Anyhow, said Ed, the Office of Economic Opportunity claims the center for Policy Research is all wrong.

The OEO says they used the same figures on the war to show that the government will win the war in just 10 years. Ed allowed it sounded to him like reports on the Vietnam War where our side and the Communists claim they win the same battles.

Personally, said Ed, he was siding with the center on account of some figures on the cost of the war on poverty he had seen. Federal aid to the poor for 1967 was $24.6 billion, he said, and they are asking $27.7 billion in the next budget.

Ed said this government could give every North Vietnamese soldier $50,000 to quit fighting and go home and we'd come out ahead, and he was of the opinion we could buy off all the poor cheaper than we can hire an army to fight them.

Harvey Krahuik, who has been fighting Democrats longer than they have been fighting poverty, agreed with Ed we'll never beat poverty the way we're going. Harvey said 200,000 people went bankrupt in this country last year, and they were owing $500 million. That's 200,000 more poor war refugees, allowed Harvey, not counting them stuck with all the bills.

The government has set $3,335 as the poor level for a family of four, said Harvey, and that's the trouble with the war. He said we ought to move the poor level up to $10,000 a year-income for a family, and he had seen economists say just 48 per cent will make that much 10 years from now. By jumping the poor level, Harvey said, we can be sure of having the poor in the majority for the next 10 years.

"If we can't beat poverty, let's join it," was Harvey's words.

Yours truly,
Geranium Joe

Something Different

The Inaugural Trip

The best words to describe Richard Nixon and his operations surely must be "well organized." In every way, the plans of that administration seem to be perfectly made.

The inaugural plans are exactly made also, in every way. Every day the mail brings new evidence of this.

There have been letters asking if I want to fly with other Nebraskans on a chartered plane from Omaha on Jan. 17, and return with them Jan. 21. It is a 96-passenger Boeing 727 chartered from United Airlines. With the plane trip included in the same fee, rooms are reserved at the Hotel Americana for four nights.

Ha ha, I already knew that; the Americana Hotel wrote me about reserving a room two or three weeks ago.

They want to know if I want to fly first class for $210 per person or coach class for $175.

They must be afraid I'll write and ask "which class ticket arrives first," for they go on to explain: The only difference between first and coach class is the seating arrangement on the airplane.

These prices not only include the plane fare both ways and the room, but the transportation from Dulles Airport to the hotel and return.

They made one boo-boo though. They wanted the check dated yesterday. Yes, actually.

Well, there's a lot of fancy stuff. There's a reception for distinguished ladies at the National Gallery of Art. I'm not sure they'd let me in there; am I distinguished? I doubt it.

There's the inaugural all-American gala Saturday evening, and the advance material says I may pay $10, $25, $50, $75, $100, or for $1,000 I can have a box seating 10. A fund-raising event, did they need to mention?

I don't think they'd let me in the governors' reception.

There's a reception honoring Mr. and Mrs. Spiro T. Agnew, the vice-president and his wife, with tickets by special invitation only.

There's an inaugural concert Sunday afternoon at Constitution Hall.

Then there's the inaugural parade, with tickets ranging from $4 to $25. To get these one must write the Willard Hall direct.

A special tour is offered, should you wish to cram it in your busy schedule. Also, help in finding a room or whatever else you need.

The weather can make plans difficult to carry out. I remember when Valley County's Frances McCall decided to go to Washington for the inaugural activities. She bought a lovely emerald satin gown for the great occasion.

The Washington scene was a nightmare of snow and drifts, and getting around was next to impossible.

So far no political party has been able to dictate the weather.

KERRY ON

By Kerry Leggett

—keep travelling—

"When I am dead and buried," says Yul Brynner, "on my tombstone I would like to have it written, 'I have arrived.' Because when you feel that you have arrived — you're dead."

Thus life gains more excitement, if you live each day knowing you're still traveling. The longer the journey the more you gain from living.

We chuckle at the story of the celebrated lawyer who once said the three most troublesome clients he ever had were a young woman who wanted to be married, a married woman who wanted a divorce, and an old maid that didn't know what she wanted.

You can bet the old maid was unhappy. But the other two... they were still experiencing the full excitement of the search. Even the lady that wanted the divorce was happy, because she had not "arrived." She knew there was something more that she wanted from life.

To dismiss a problem as unsolvable is only one step nearer that "arriving" moment. But themselves off before they've even tried for an answer. They give up without any deep soul searching.

The self-knowledge that comes from looking for answers to the unsolvable questions opens our subconscious to new ideas and new faculties we never before knew we possessed.

One of my favorite stories is about the veteran stage star that was asked to entertain at a large dinner party one evening.

A ripple of excitement ran through the crowd of prominent and important guests as the great actor rose to speak. He chose the 23rd Psalm, and recited two verses before the audience realized they were in the presence of a master performer.

He finished the recitation in a thunder of applause, and the crowd gave him a standing ovation as he walked to his seat.

The next speaker was an elderly white-haired man, bowed and worn by long years of patient labor.

"I, too, would like to recite the Shepherd's Psalm," he said quietly. Then, turning his face a little upward, and closing his eyes, he began.

When he was through, all was quiet. No one said a word. There was no applause. But there was not a dry eye in the room.

Afterward, a man approached the great actor. "I don't understand," he said. "You both said the same thing. Your presentation was perfect in every way. Yet, when he spoke in his halting, imperfect manner, people were moved too deeply for words. What made the difference?"

"I think I have the answer," replied the actor. "I know the 23rd Psalm, I know it well. But he knows the Shepherd!"

The Scott Report

From The Washington News-Intelligence Syndicate
By Paul Scott

WASHINGTON — Vietnam and not the Middle East is the immediate danger point for President-elect Nixon.

While no major Israeli-Arab conflict is expected for several months, large-scale fighting in South Vietnam could break out at any time.

The north Vietnamese build-up of troops in South Vietnam and near its borders is so large that Nixon is being privately urged to prepare contingency plans for all eventualities now rather than waiting until he takes office.

In emergency briefings, U. S. Intelligence authorities have warned Nixon that more than 70,000 North Vietnamese have infiltrated into South Vietnam or been moved into their Cambodia sanctuary since President Johnson halted the bombing of North Vietnam early in November.

The military truck traffic through Laos is so heavy that another 10,000 North Vietnamese are expected to join the communist build-up before Nixon is sworn in as President on Monday.

The huge striking forces armed for the first time with a number of Soviet-made tanks, is poised for a series of lightning-like attacks against U. S. military installations and major South Vietnamese cities.

No Alternative Plan

What is disturbing Nixon are reports that President Johnson has centered his entire Vietnam policy around success of the stalemated Paris peace talks.

Only recently Nixon learned that no contingency plans had been developed by the President should Hanoi decide to seek a military rather than political victory in South Vietnam.

It is this lack of an alternative plan, Nixon was told, which puts U. S. military men at a great disadvantage in preparing future strategy.

For example, no decision has been made by the President as to the maximum level of increased North Vietnamese military action which can be tolerated before the bombing is resumed.

Soviet Advance Man

The Cambodia activities of Soviet Ambassador Sergei Kudryavtsev bear watching closely by President-elect Nixon.

Since early November, Kudryavtsev has made several visits to the Cambodia-South Vietnam border area to confer with North Vietnamese generals in charge of the 50,000 communist troops now in that region.

Kudryavtsev, who supervised installation of Soviet missiles in Cuba during 1962, was accompanied on each trip by several other Soviet military officers.

During the November 1960 to January 1961 transition period from the Eisenhower to Kennedy administrations, Ambassador Kudryavtsev shuttled from Russia to Cuba setting up a security organization to prepare for large-scale Soviet arms shipments to Cuba.

An intelligence report of Kudryavtsev's activities was received in the State Department during the transition period but for still unexplained reasons never was passed on to the new President.

Significance of Kudryavtsev's presence in Cambodia was first revealed by a reported Russian spy named Luri Logynov, now in a South African prison.

In exchange for his life, Logynov furnished South African security officials information that Kudryavtsev was one of Moscow's most trusted officials in the KGB, the U.S.S.R.'s worldwide espionage agency.

Arms Expediter

Kudryavtsev's mission in Cambodia, according to Logynov, was to set up a security organization that will handle Soviet weapons for the North Vietnamese forces using that country as a military sanctuary.

Since Kudryavtsev's arrival in Cambodia more than a year ago, Soviet arms shipments arriving by sea have increased by 30 times. Nearly all these military supplies, according to U. S. intelligence reports, are being trucked directly to North Vietnamese camps near the South Vietnam border.

Kudryavtsev, who was ordered out of Canada on charges of heading a Soviet spy ring in 1946, reports directly to Soviet Communist party boss Leonid Brezhnev, who heads the party's international section.

Thailand Is Target

Communist China has significantly stepped up its propaganda against Thailand in recent weeks.

Peking radio and the official New China News Agency have been carrying a lot more material attacking the present Thai government.

Some of this is of Chinese origin, some from the "Patriotic Front of Thailand," the Thai Communist organization which has been given sanctuary in Peking.

Peking radio recently termed the Communist struggle against the Thai government "more and more favorable."

Chinese Communist engineers resumed work last month on a road in Laos that starts in Southern China. It is believed to be a supply route for guerrillas operating in Northern Thailand.

Film Tour of Europe Highlights Birthday Fete

By Berenice Cornell

Wednesday before the birthday party Rev. and Mrs. Harold Bestul showed a film of countries they have toured. First Mr. Bestul showed maps of the different countries and marked their route of travel and their voices were heard on the recorder. Mountains and water scenery, farms, churches, schools, businesses, coliseums, statues, and homes of artists, poets and composers were shown. The countries visited were Sweden, Denmark, Holland, Germany, Switzerland, Italy, France, England and Norway. An overall view of the city of Florence, Italy, was shown, as were the ruins of old Pompeii. Mr. Bestul said Denmark has the most storks, and a picture of a stork and her nest on top a chimney was shown. This meant good luck for that home. The Bestuls named their film, "What Country Do You Like Best?" Their favorite was the U.S.A.

Birthday refreshments were served in honor of Mrs. Oscar Hackett and Ona Nelson to the 21 present. Mr. and Mrs. Bestul were guests, and Mrs. Norma Ackles joined the group.

Two nice bouquets were received for the occasion. Mr. and Mrs. Hackett got one from their son Chester and his wife Marie of Tacoma, Wash. It consisted of chrysanthemums and carnations, and was sent for Mrs. Hackett's birthday and the couple's 64th wedding anniversary, which will be observed today. A nephew of Ona's, Theod Nelson, and his wife sent carnations and daisies for the birthday celebration to Ona and Mrs. Hackett. Both bouquets added to the joy of all those present and made the overall atmosphere of the party even more pleasant. Mrs. Jay Nelson made birthday cakes for both honorees.

Later, on Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Jay Hackett of Kearney spent the afternoon with his parents.

Sargent Resident Dies

Rev. Leonard Clark of the Scotia and North Loup United Methodist Churches was with 14 of us Thursday for religious services. Mrs. Louis Axthelm of North Loup was a visitor. Rev. Christians are referred to as the "salt of the earth," Mr. Clark said, and Christianity is the flavor or good part of life, the keeper of life, and the healing power of the spiritual life. The service was ended with a hymn, "I Would Be True," and prayer.

Services Conducted In Grand Island For Tractor Victim

Funeral services were held Tuesday in Grand Island for Francis H. Bolles, 64, who died Saturday after his tractor overturned the previous day.

Bolles was injured about 3:30 p.m. Friday in an accident at the Ray Knapp farm south of Ord where he was employed. He was rushed to the Valley County Hospital and transferred to a Grand Island hospital when his condition worsened that evening.

Rev. Paul Martin of Trinity United Methodist Church officiated at the funeral service. Burial was in Westlawn Park Cemetery.

Bolles was born June 24, 1904, in Lebanon, Mo., to Marion and Hannah (Prescott) Bolles. He lived in Missouri, Kansas, Broken Bow, and Wood River before moving to Ord about 10 years ago.

Married June 18, 1929, to Alice Ooley at Minden, Bolles is survived by his widow, six sons, Francis W. of Cairo, R. Randall of Kansas City, and Louise, Gary, Larry, and Dwight of Grand Island; three daughters, Mrs. Nina Woodruff of McCook, Mrs. Nina Ruzicka of St. Paul, and Linda Bolles of Ord; one brother, Marion of Lebanon, Mo.; and one sister, Mrs. Gwen Schultz of Kirksville, Mo.

He was preceded in death by one son, Douglas.

Parents, Teachers Will Get Together At Ord High School

Parent-teacher conferences will be held Jan. 30 and 31 at Ord High School.

Letters have been mailed to all parents telling them of the times they are requested to appear. However, should anyone not be able to make it at the scheduled time, a two-hour session has been reserved from 7 to 9 p.m. on the 30th. No appointments are needed for those hours, and all teachers will be on hand in the girls gym for consultations.

"We would like to have both parents attend, but we'll be happy if at least one comes from every family," high school principal Bob Norton said Tuesday. "So many of our teachers don't know the parents and vice versa. We need to establish a two-way communication for the benefit of the children."

"We can talk over each student's individual problems as well as his strengths, and hopefully both parties can learn something that will help the child," Norton said. "No set format will be observed in the discussions. Instead, whatever the teacher or parent feels will be of interest in a particular case may be talked about."

Parents will also pick up their children's report cards.

School will be recessed those two days for the conferences.

VanNordheim Resigns as Football Coach; School Board Delays Naming Successor

Dave VanNordheim's resignation as head football coach at Ord High School was accepted by the Board of Education at its regular meeting this month.

In a letter of resignation, VanNordheim indicated that he no longer had the enthusiasm needed for a coaching job. He requested that he be allowed to remain on the school staff as activities director and assistant principal.

Last season was VanNordheim's third as head coach in Ord. It was the most disappointing of his career as his team started with bright expectations but finished with a 2-7 record. In 1966 his team had a 4-5 mark, and in 1967 it was 4-4-1.

Before that he had served in Ord for seven years as line coach under Al Bellinger and one year as junior high coach.

Altogether, VanNordheim has been coaching for 17 seasons. His best marks as a head coach were compiled during six years at Mullen and Hershey. During that span, from 1932 through 1937, his teams had a combined record of 38 victories, 16 losses, and 2 ties. His best season was 1935 when his Class C Mullen team ran up a 7-2 record while playing an independent schedule.

Privately, VanNordheim explained his resignation by saying he felt "17 years is enough." He also said he wanted to complete work on a master's degree in administration. He began work at Kearney State College last summer and hopes to finish this summer.

The Board of Education indicated that no successor would be named immediately.

Swine Raisers May Organize Local Council

Plans for the formation of a swine producers organization will be discussed Monday at a meeting in Room 108 of Ord High School. It will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Terry Schrick, executive secretary of the Nebraska Swine Council, will be on hand to discuss the functions and administrative structure of the council.

The Nebraska Swine Council is a self-help organization with the interests of the swine producer and the swine industry at heart, according to County Agent John Schade. Through its organizational leadership, and the voluntary nickel check-off system, swine producers are able to help themselves to their fair share of profits at the market place, Schade said. He added that the council provides other benefits to the swine producer which Mr. Schrick will discuss.

Schade urged swine producers in Valley County and the surrounding area who are interested in learning more about the Nebraska Swine Council to attend the meeting.

State Game Expert Will Speak Tonight

Bob Wood of the Nebraska State Game Commission will speak and show films at a joint meeting tonight (Thursday) of the Ord Chamber of Commerce and the Junior Chamber.

The gathering is the annual Chamber of Commerce banquet and Jaycee Bosses Night. Wives will also attend.

Wood is a project leader for upland game with the Game Commission. His films will deal with fishing and hunting in this area.

The meeting will be held at St. Mary's Auditorium beginning at 6:30 p.m.

Half-Breed Fowl Is Wild Bird

An unusual type of fowl has been developed by Frank Hulinsky at his farm west of Elyria. It's a cross between a pheasant and a bantam chicken.

Such crosses are not so rare when the father is a pheasant and the mother a chicken, but Hulinsky's bird was developed the other way — with a female pheasant and a male chicken.

After two years of trying, Hulinsky came up with two of the cross-breeds this year. One is a rooster and the other a hen.

"They have characteristics of both a chicken and a pheasant," the long-time Valley County farmer explained recently. "For example, they can cluck like a chicken when they're running with the chickens, or they can squawk with the pheasants when they're in the hen house."

The rooster in particular also inherited much of the "wildness" from the pheasant mother.

Hulinsky formerly owned a large flock of turkeys, but now he's concentrating more on pheasants and pigeons.

He has 12 breeds of pheasants and 20 of pigeons. The pheasants are sold primarily to hunting refuge operators for stocking, while the pigeons are sold usually to persons who are interested in them as hobbies for children.

Although he does realize some monetary rewards from his work with birds, Hulinsky's major interest in them is simply as a hobby.

"My youngest boy was going to be a taxidermist, and someone gave him two golden pheasants — one of them to be mounted," Hulinsky said as he told how he got started in the fowl business. "But when it came time to kill the pheasant for mounting, the boy chickened out and I had to do it."

That start created a spark that grew at one time into a giant turkey ranch.

"I've sold turkeys in every state of the union," Hulinsky explained, "and I still sell most of my birds out of state. A lot of people buy them as gifts."

Elks Plan Big Opening

A gala grand opening is scheduled this weekend for Ord's new $200,000 Elks Lodge.

Dedication ceremonies will be held at 1:30 p.m. Sunday will mark the culmination of a vast cooperative effort involving Elks organizations from Ord and many surrounding towns.

The dedication ceremony will be conducted by officers of Ainsworth Lodge No. 1790. They will be led by Richard Hagerman, exalted ruler.

H. L. Blackledge of Kearney Lodge No. 984 will offer dedicatory remarks.

Local officials participating in the ceremony will be J. B. Ferguson, exalted ruler of sponsoring Lodge No. 2371, and Bill French, mayor of Ord.

The dedication ceremony will be open to the public.

Other highlights in the momentous weekend include a pre-dedication dinner and dance Saturday evening and an initiation of new Elks Sunday afternoon. Officers of McCook Lodge No. 1434 will initiate the new members in ceremonies beginning at 2:30 p.m. Attendance will be limited to Elks members and initiates.

Mel Pop will provide music for the Saturday night dance. A buffet dinner will be served in the banquet room from 5 to 9 p.m., followed by the dance which will last until 1 a.m.

Attendance at this function is limited to Elks members and their guests.

Construction began last May on the 18,000-square-foot building. It has been open for business since mid-December.

The sponsoring Lodge No. 2371 includes Elks organizations in Arcadia, Amelia, Bartlett, Burwell, Chambers, Comstock, Colesfield, Elyria, Ericson, Greeley, Loup City, North Loup, Ord, Sargent, Scotta, Spalding, Taylor, and Wolbach.

Vehicle Inspection Law Outlined by State Agency

Motorists purchasing new license plates have been reminded by the State Department of Motor Vehicles that Nebraska's new inspection law becomes effective in March.

Vehicle owners buying plates ending with the number 3 must have their automobiles inspected by the end of March. Those ending with 4 must be inspected by the end of April, those with 5 by the end of May, 6 by the end of June, 7 July, 8 August, 9 September, 0 October, 1 November, and 2 December.

However, motorists do not necessarily have to wait until those months to have their cars inspected. A number of approved inspection stations, in fact, are already prepared to conduct the examinations.

In Ord these stations include most garages and some service stations.

Once a car has been inspected and approved, a sticker good for 12 months will be placed on it.

Special rules apply for vehicles bearing an amateur radio operator's license, trailers and semi-trailers with a gross weight over 3,000 pounds, trucks, tractors, self-propelled mobile homes, and buses. They must be inspected prior to Apr. 1 regardless of license plate number.

Items that will be checked include the registration, horns, rearview mirrors, windshield wipers and blades, glass, tires, exhaust system, brakes, steering, suspension, alignment, lights, and "certain parts of the body that present safety hazards to the operator, other motorists, and pedestrians."

Cost of the inspection is $2. However, this does not include cost of adjustments or repairs that must be made in order for a vehicle to pass.

Should a vehicle fail the inspection, its owner will be given a certificate showing items that need adjustment or repair. The owner may have this work done at a place of his choice, or he may do the work himself.

If he returns to the original inspection station within 10 days, he will not be charged an other inspection fee. However, if he exceeds the 10-day limitation, he will be required to pay another $2 fee.

Maximum penalty for failing to have a car inspected on schedule is a $500 fine and up to six months in jail.

Sex Education Class Will Begin Tuesday

The sex education course, "Sex and the Whole Person," will be offered for freshman students of Ord and the surrounding high schools of North Loup, Scotta, Arcadia, and Burwell. The course will be held on Tuesday evenings Jan. 28, Feb. 4, 18, and 25 at the Ord High School cafeteria. Each evening session will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Four local ministers — Rev. Clarence Campbell, Rev. Kenneth Bunnell, Rev. Don Wright, and Rev. Earl Higgins — will direct the course which is also being offered to parents of freshmen. Assisting in the course will be Eldon Buon, guidance counselor at Ord High School, and other faculty members plus Dr. Paul Martin and Dr. Otis Miller, both of Ord.

Further information concerning the course can be obtained from Ord High School or any of the leaders. Officials hope to complete registrations by tomorrow (Friday). Parents have been asked to attend the sessions with their teenager so that channels may be opened for communication on this subject within the home.

The text for the course is written by Evelyn DuVall and is titled, "Love and the Facts of Life."

Clem Klimek gives boss Dean Misko a ride on the first snowmobile to arrive in town. This one is a 20-horsepower Challenger manufactured by the Johnson Co. It is capable of speeds up to 45 miles per hour. Misko said Johnson has a backlog of 5,000 orders and is turning out only 15 machines per day. Other major manufacturers have also been unable to meet demands, he said. The snowmobile has short skis in the front for guiding and a track underneath. Misko owns and Klimek manages Misko Sport Shop.

Additional Levy in Neighborhood of 7 Mills Needed for New Building

(Editor's Note: This is the third in a series of articles explaining in detail plans for Ord's proposed new grade school. This week's article is devoted to a discussion of building costs and funding. A future article will discuss the present building and why Board of Education members feel a new one is needed. There will also be a question-and-answer article covering miscellaneous aspects of the program. Anyone with a specific question he wants answered may call or write the Quiz editor.)

Estimated cost of Ord's proposed grade school building is $940,000. That's the figure which will be listed on the bond issue voters will rule on Feb. 11.

Two-thirds of that total — or $613,328 — will be for general construction and associated utility work. This associated work includes such things as heating, ventilation, air conditioning, plumbing, and electrical work.

Thus, construction costs will average about $16 per square foot.

Of the remaining expenses, the largest portion — $110,000 — is set aside for purchase of furniture and equipment.

To finance such a facility if it is approved, bonds will be issued over a 20 or 25-year period. A decision has not yet been made as to which of the terms would be most desirable.

Presently, the total assessed value of property in the Ord School District is slightly under $10 million.

Based on that figure (specifically $9,927,733), the average levy for a 20-year issue would be 7.68 mills per dollar of assessed valuation. For a 25-year issue it would be 6.86 mills.

Assuming the bonds are issued for 25 years, this means that each $100 of assessed valuation property owners would have to pay an additional .69 cents in taxes.

To make this even more easily understood, the school district's fiscal agent has prepared a table showing how much taxes would go up based on specific valuations. For example, if a taxpayer's actual valuation is $1,000, his assessed valuation would be $350 since assessed value in Nebraska is based on 35 percent of actual value. The tax increase on this property would be $2.40 per year or 20 cents per month.

For other valuations taken at random, the increase would be: $12 per year or $1 per month on assessed valuation of $1,750 (actual valuation of $5,000); $24 per year or $2 per month on assessed valuation of $3,500 (actual valuation of $10,000);

$60 per year or $5 per month on assessed valuation of $8,750 (actual valuation of $25,000); $120 per year or $10 per month on assessed valuation of $17,500 (actual valuation of $50,000).

All figures are based on 100 percent collection of taxes.

Board of Education members point out that the 6.86 levy will go down as valuations increase, and they do expect total valuations in the district to go up.

Estimated Cost Break-Down

General Construction
Heating, Ventilating, Air Conditioning and Plumbing @ $16.00/Sq. Ft.
Electrical Work (excluding communication systems equipment and cable)	$613,328
Carpet @ $1.20 per sq. ft.	26,000
Furniture and Equipment	110,000
Food Service Equipment	20,000
Site Development Cost	50,000
Landscaping	10,000
Fine Arts
Sub-Total	829,328
Architect's Fees (6.5%)	53,906
Land Cost - Legal Fees and Miscellaneous	32,000
Contingency (3%)	24,880
Total	$940,114

For example, the Ord district is now teaching children from three other districts on a contract basis. This is the third year of the contracts, and they will be terminated at the expiration of this school year. Those districts must decide whether to hire their own teachers and provide their own facilities or to join another district — probably Ord.

Two of the districts are located quite close to the city, and board members feel confident they will join the Ord district. If they do, total valuation will go up to approximately $11 million, reducing the average levy to 6.19 mills.

The third district is located in Custer County, but board members are hopeful that a large portion of it will also join the Ord system. If it does, they feel the total valuation will shoot well over $12 million and reduce the average levy still further.

The fiscal agent has also projected the average levy as total valuation goes up still further. Thus, with a valuation of $13 million, the levy would drop to 5.24 mills, with $15 million it would go to 4.54 mills, with $17 million it would go to 4.00 mills, and with $19 million it would go to 3.59 mills.

While they don't foresee this kind of valuation in the near future, board members feel that it is not totally unrealistic since Valley County presently has a total valuation near $23 million. A levy of 6.86 mills would bring the total school levy up to 46.5 mills, since it is presently 39.64. However, the total includes a special levy of 2.19 mills for the recent music and administrative addition to Ord High School. This addition will be paid for in three years, so the 2.19 mills will not be required after that time.

The present total also includes a levy of 5.10 mills for an older addition to the high school. However, it will not be fully paid for several years yet.

If the bond issue passes, the first levy will be made this August for collection during the first part of 1970.

Chuck Vana, from the First Mid-America Corp. of Omaha, said recently that the bonds could probably be issued at an average interest rate of 8 percent. After five years, if lower interest rates could be obtained, the bonds could be called in and reissued at the lower rates.

Taxpayers who are worried that construction costs may exceed the architect's estimate of $940,000 need have no fears of a further tax increase. The school district will be limited to the figure listed on the ballot, and that will be $940,000. If costs go up, something will simply have to be deleted.

More Teaching Helps Made Available To Educational Service Unit 13 Schools

Member schools of Educational Service Unit 13 will now be able to use teaching materials provided free of charge by Service Unit 12. The materials include such items as 16-mm sound films, filmstrips, recording tapes, and disc recordings.

Action was taken at the January board meeting of Service Unit 13 to approve such an arrangement. Participating schools need pay only the return postage. The superintendents of schools in city areas and the county superintendents in rural areas have catalogues concerning specific materials available.

Schools in Valley and Loup counties participate in ESU 13.

In other action the board accepted the resignation of Howard Paulsen as an at-large representative from Valley County, and approved the appointment of Andy Anderson as his replacement. Both are from Ord.

Robert Dearmont of rural Burwell, who was elected to board membership during last November's general election, was also sworn in.

The board is composed of one regular representative from each participating county and four at-large representatives. Because only Valley and Loup counties are taking part in the unit, they each have two at-large delegates plus their regular representative.

Valley County's other at-large member is Rae Jean Treptow of Comstock, who was appointed shortly after the November election. In that election Mrs. Treptow, the incumbent, was defeated by Dearmont for the county's regular position. However, she was reappointed to fill a vacancy created when Custer County delegates were ruled ineligible for office.

Custer, Garfield, and Blaine counties originally participated in the service unit also. However, voters from those areas chose later not to participate. For a period their representatives continued to serve, but when a ruling was received declaring them ineligible they relinquished their posts.

The Custer County position was left vacant, since by that time some voters were petitioning to have the county reinstated. However, their petition was ruled invalid and did not appear on the November ballot. As a result, the Custer County post was then filled by appointing another Valley County representative.

Originally, all board members were appointed. However, law now provides that they will be elected except when vacancies appear in the middle of the term. Announcement was also made last week that Service Units 12 and 13 will share $13,000 which has been awarded for the purpose of financing a program to help classroom teachers get increased benefit from educational television.

Carol's Corner

by Carol Leggett

Mothers with little tots readily agree that these wintery months are the depressing ones. If it isn't chicken pox or mumps, it's probably "spaghetti leg."

We are thankful to be sure that the tell-tale symptoms of chicken pox and mumps very seldom invade an entire family at one time. If this were the case, it might be necessary for mothers to schedule an appointment for a turn to jump off the river bridge.

Instead, the ugly spots and bumpy glands linger with one or two children at a time and then continue on to the next, disrupting the household completely for six to eight weeks. Fortunately mother's patience runs THIN but not OUT!

Now about this "spaghetti leg" affliction which Dr. Stock didn't tell us about. It is common indeed and whether you've realized it or not, if you've had children then you've experienced "spaghetti leg."

This is a phenomenon resulting from attempts to put boots on a child, occurring as the parent orders the child to stiffen leg and push. Though the child ordinarily may have the loose structure of a draft horse and calcium deposits enough in each joint to be worth mining, this command to stiffen the leg causes a dissolving of all bones, joints, and major muscles in said leg and reduces it to a state of limbo found only in overcooked spaghetti. A mother attempting to force the leg into a boot once it has achieved this jelly state might be more gainfully employed trying to thread a needle with an oyster.

Then sprinkle on topping and bake in hot oven for 10 minutes. Reduce heat to moderate and continue baking until done. Total baking time is about 45 minutes. Double the recipe for very large pie plates.

What next? Our great-grandfathers called it the Holy Sabbath; our grandfathers called it the Sabbath; our fathers called it Sunday; and today we call it the weekend.

A little girl was telling her mother about her day's activities.

"We played wedding" she said. "I was the bride, Susie was the bridesmaid, and Susie's little sister the flower girl."

"Who was the groom?" the mother asked.

"Oh, I wanted a small wedding," the child replied, "so we didn't have a groom."

Congratulations go out this week to Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Hackett who marked their 64th wedding anniversary and to Mr. and Mrs. Anton Novotny who have been married 50 years. Both couples observed the memorable occasion with open house celebrations during the past week.

Ord Golden Gloves Fans Treated to 16 Fine Bouts

Larry Proskocil of Ord grimaces as he moves Jim Obermiller of Loup City into the ropes.

Finesse and style weren't always the best, but there was no faulting the effort at Saturday night's Golden Gloves smoker staged by the Ord Boxing Club.

Nearly 400 paying customers were treated to 16 regular bouts and five exhibitions. They saw some of the scrappiest performances imaginable as 11 fights were decided by decisions, four by technical knockouts, and one by knockout.

No team totals were kept, but squads finishing on the plus side were South Sioux City, 2-0; Central City, 3-1; Neligh, 1-0; Broken Bow, 2-1; Bassett, 3-2; and Ord, 4-3. Other communities with entrants were Omaha, 1-1; Grand Island, 0-3; and Loup City, 0-5.

In what could be called the night's main event, Gerald Hunt of Broken Bow scored a second-round technical knockout over Tom Banks of Ord. Referee Dale Hixson stopped the fight when Banks began bleeding badly from a cut below the left eye.

Banks carried the fight to Hunt in the first round and appeared to have a slight advantage. But the second round was all Hunt as Banks was decked twice before Hixson stopped it.

"I think Tom got butted while they were in the corner, and it dazed him a little," Ord Coach Dan Klimek said Monday. "But I expect him to be okay. I still think he'll be our best fighter in the district tournament."

The cut reopened a wound Banks had originally suffered two weeks ago in a fight at Lincoln. The loss was his third in 23 outings.

Both contestants were among the most experienced on the card. Each had been named outstanding fighter at the Grand Island district tournament in former years.

Hunt weighed 148 pounds, Banks 146.

In another bout involving top performers, Bob Hixson of Neligh won a unanimous decision from Lonnie Jensen of Loup City. Both of them were also former district champions.

Hixson, at 160, was 10 pounds lighter than his short, stocky foe. But he was also much faster and appeared to be in top condition.

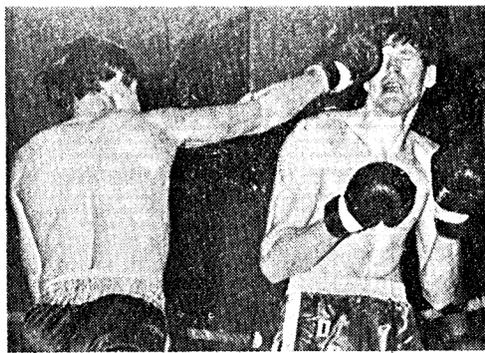

Jensen, however, used his superior strength to land some telling blows and make the contest close.

Brothers Provide Thrills

Although Loup City was shut out in the victory column, its fighters nevertheless provided some of the top action of the night. A pair of battling brothers, Jim and Ray Dooley, in particular brought the fans to their feet.

Jim, who weighed in at 132 pounds, fought the taller Tom of Central City, who scaled 128.

Ericson had an unorthodox left hand that he kept in constant motion, drawing attention away from his explosive right. Dooley, on the other hand, kept straight on his swings with long, looping several times with long, looping right hooks; but Ericson tagged him solidly in the second round and he began bleeding badly from the nose. When Ericson opened another cut on the left side of the head in the third round, the referee stepped in to stop it and award the Central City representative a TKO. Dooley was still throwing lots of punches at the end, but by then he was missing most.

The other Dooley, red-headed Ray, was even more explosive. He and Ord's Jack Ptacnik, who was a crowd-pleaser himself, engaged in the wildest, most loudly applauded contest of the night.

They threw leather from start to finish and stopped only when the referee decided Dooley was bleeding too badly from a cut on the forehead to continue. Ironically, the cut came when the two butted heads and not from any of the many punches with which Ptacnik scored.

The winner was also bleeding. From the nose, when the fight was halted.

The stocky Dooley weighed 139 pounds, the rangier Ptacnik 140.

Another crowd-pleaser was the free-swinging affair engaged in by Ord's Tom Frazer, weighing 155 pounds, and Bassett's Art Porter, weighing 154. The latter won a split decision with a courageous third-round comeback.

Frazer scored with practically everything he threw — and that was plenty — in the first two rounds. He was particularly effective with jabs, right uppercuts, and even a hatchet-type overhead chop.

But Porter survived it all, not even bothering to put up any sort of defense, and came back in the third to give the taller Frazer a terrific pounding. Almost too tired to hold his arms up after the first round, Frazer was easy prey for Porter in that third round. Completely exhausted, he found himself hanging on at the final bell.

"That could have been a real good draw," Athletic Commission Joe Stanek of Omaha said afterwards. However, under Golden Gloves rules a fight can not be called a draw. If the fighters are even on points, the bout goes to whichever is the more aggressive.

Proskocils Split

Another bout that could have been called a draw was the one matching Gary Proskocil of Ord and Cyril Pelster of South Sioux City. Pelster used his combinations and aggressiveness to win a split decision.

Stanek served as one of the judges, along with Fred Meyer of Sargent and Bob Temme of Petersburg. Referees were Dale Hixson of Neligh and Bill Engle of South Sioux City.

Proskocil's twin brother, Larry, was more successful as he won a close decision from Jim Obermiller of Loup City. Sporting a small chin beard, Proskocil weathered a third-round flurry by Obermiller to make a first and second round lead stand up. The Loup City boxer scored with left jabs and left-right combinations in the third, bloodying Proskocil's nose.

Gordie John, a solid 132-pounder, was perhaps the most impressive Ord fighter as he won a unanimous decision from Bob Peters of Loup City. John gave away three pounds but scored repeatedly with solid right crosses.

Ord's final representative was 163-pound Obert Dimmitt, who decided 152-pound Keith Allison of Bassett. Dimmitt built up an early lead and was in control throughout the fight, putting Allison down in the first round amidst a wild exchange.

South Sioux City's Pelster boys made the most impressive family showing. In addition to Cyril Pelster's win over Gary Proskocil, Roger Pelster decided Hiram Patchen of Grand Island and Dick Pelster looked good in an exhibition against Lonnie John of Ord.

The three Pelsters are members of a family that contains 15 children. To stay in condition, each of them runs five miles in the morning and five miles at night.

Fighters who had no opponent in their weight division were paired in two-round exhibitions.

The most popular of these exhibitions matched a pair of small fry, Chuck Janicek of Ord and Charles Harris of Central City. The fans were so pleased with efforts of the two youngsters that they showed the ring with coins — most of them of the quarter variety — when the bout ended.

The smoker served as a final warm-up for this area's district tournament, which begins Tuesday at Grand Island. After a night off, it will continue Thursday. Then there'll be a break until Feb. 6. The tourney will conclude Feb. 8.

"This has been the best year we've ever had for smokers," Stanek commented. "We've had about 25, and they've nearly all been out here in the central and western part of the state."

Gate proceeds above expenses were donated to Ord's Opportunity School. The smoker was sponsored by the Ord Boxing Club with local merchants donating trophies for the winners.

These were the first bouts to be held here in several years.

Reserves Do Well In Junior High Win

Reshuffling his lineup to give his less experienced players some game action, Coach Chuck Squier still saw his Ord Junior High team coast to its fourth victory of the season Tuesday. The score was Ord 43, Burwell 32 in a game played at the Ord gymnasium.

Squier rested his regulars for the entire first and fourth quarters, as well as part of the third.

"Those boys needed some actual experience under game conditions," Squier said of the group that started. "I thought they did an outstanding job."

District Favorites Will Square Off As Ord Journeys to Albion Friday

Fans who want to drive 65 miles may get to see a preview Friday night of the Class B District 6 championship game.

Ord will play at Albion, and the two are rated along with Broken Bow as the team most likely to represent District 6 at this year's state tournament.

Albion began the year with high expectations and basketball players to match. The Cardinals had four players scaling 6 feet, 4 inches.

Three of those skyscrapers are still around, and Ord will most likely see plenty of Larry Sharp, Chris Nelson, and John Barnhard Friday night. But a couple of smaller types may be the real men to watch.

Doug Donscheski, whom most avid Ord fans remember from last year, and Tom Neidhardt

Chant Wrestlers Will Entertain Ainsworth Team

Forced to stay at home last week because of bad roads, an improving wrestling team won't venture out this week either. But it will have company, weather and roads permitting, as Ainsworth comes to town for a 2 o'clock match, Saturday afternoon.

Tim Markley, as expected, has been the backbone of this year's team, compiling a 5-2 record.

Next best mark belongs to Dale Baldwin, who has won six and lost three. He picked up half his victories in the recent Central City Invitational where he finished third in the 145-pound class. He lost just once.

Markley finished second in his 133-pound division at that meet. However, he only had to wrestle twice and thus had a 1-1 record for the day.

Leonard Krason, who's starting to perform up to the level that was expected of him at the season's outset, also took a second. He had a 2-1 record in the 138-pound class.

Rolland Cronk won two of three also but finished only third in the heavyweight class.

Other boys who placed among the 10 best contestants were Roger Cahill, 2-2, second, and Alan Cahill, 2-2. Both boys took fourth places, Roger in the 154-pound class and Alan in the 120-pound class.

As a team, Ord compiled 45 points and finished fourth among eight competing schools. Last year the Chanticleers scored only four points and finished at the bottom.

Central City was the winner with 117 points, followed by Crete, 104; Aurora, 56; Ord, 45; Grand Island Northwest, 32; David City, 24; Ulica Centennial, 24; and Cairo Centura, 0.

In their most recent outing, on Jan. 14, they were defeated by Grand Island Northwest, 32-27. Ten of Northwest's 32 points

Reserves Nip Schuyler But Can't Handle Aurora

Ord reserve basketball coach Fred Williams is a pessimist, he's pointing out this week that his charges haven't won more than two games in a row all season. On the other hand, if he's an optimist, he's pointing out that they haven't lost more than two in a row.

The Chanticleer reserves continued a season-long habit of splitting weekend series when they defeated Schuyler, 42-39, in a Jan. 10 contest and then lost to Aurora the following evening, 57-45.

The split gave the Chant backup team a 3-4 record for the season. On three different occasions this season they've played Friday and Saturday night games back to back, and each time they've won one and lost one. Their fourth loss was to Arcadia varsity, 40-46, just before Christmas.

Had they not run into fourth-quarter foul trouble against Aurora, this latest set might have been the one where the Chants finally turned in a weekend sweep. But that was not to be the case as their two top scorers, Dennis Kamarad and Darrel Farmer, fouled out in the last quarter. Aurora went on to amass a whopping 22-11 bulge in that period and win easily. The Huskies had entered the last quarter ahead by only one point.

The winners also had foul trouble as they lost three men and had two others with four apiece on them at the game's conclusion. As a result, Ord shot 36 free throws to only 16 for Aurora, and that was what kept the home team in the game. Hitting 23 of the 36, Ord scored more points at the free throw line than it did from the field.

Kamarad finished the game with 17 points, hitting 9 of 10 free throws. Farmer scored 8 but missed all four of his charity shots.

Ken Nelson led Aurora with 18 points.

Loren Vancura was the hero of the game against Schuyler. His team was ahead by only one point when he sank two free throws with five seconds left to clinch it. They were the only ones he hit all night as he had missed three previous attempts.

Ord built up a 14-5 first quarter lead and saw that expanded to 24-13 by halftime. But the Warriors came on strong in the second half to make it suspenseful.

Controversial Highway Bond Issue Near Consideration by Legislature able to finance the work.

For interstate construction, the federal government supplies 90 percent of the cost. Therefore, Nuernberger said, within three years all but 10 percent of the state-advanced money would be returned to Nebraska from Washington.

And the complete interstate would be available to traffic that much sooner.

Nuernberger has already arranged to get underway this year the work which would complete I-480 through downtown Omaha. Contracts to fill the controversial "downtown gap" will be let without bond money.

Remaining in Omaha, however, will be completion of I-80, which cuts through the southern part of Omaha, and I-680, which skirts the northern edge of the city. Both these routes require Missouri River bridges which will be built in cooperation with Iowa authorities.

Nuernberger has suggested that $20 million in bonds be sold this year to finance interstate work which couldn't otherwise be afforded during 1969. He said this extra financial shove would virtually assure completion of the super highway in Nebraska by the 1974 Congressional deadline.

Warner's committee also recommended a $15 million bond issue for 1970 and another for 1971. These would be separate from the proposal Nuernberger made.

The state engineer's proposal calls for a repayment plan of 20 years. He said the servicing of bonds could probably be handled if money in the State Highway Cash Fund were put into short-term investments and the interest returned to the fund.

In addition, Nuernberger would like to have the shrinkage allowance now granted to petroleum jobs reduced from 3 percent to 1 percent. He said this would bring another $1 million a year into the highway fund.

The shrinkage allowance is, in effect, a credit allowed the jobbers. It means they only have to collect taxes on 97 percent of the gasoline they sell. The allowance is considered a compensation for loss through evaporation.

Nuernberger says national statistics show the average loss is much closer to 1 percent than 3 and Nebraska is the most liberal of all states in this respect.

Also under Nuernberger's plan, the $20 million in bond money would be, in effect, advanced to the federal government. The state, using bond funds, would put the interstate construction under contract, rather than waiting until enough federal aid is available to finance the work.

Warner said several alternatives are available for the handling of approved bond sales.

The Roads Department could be given this task, or it could be assigned to the State Investment Council. Warner said there also was a possibility a special commission could be created to handle only highway bonds.

The Waverly senator said the legislature's research staff and several attorneys who specialize in bond affairs were studying the problem.

There is a possibility, Warner said, that the bond bill could be turned down by the legislature. He said his research staff is in no hurry to implement the new amendment. Others, Warner said, want to stipulate that bond money be used only for certain types of highways, such as the interstate or farm-to-market roads.

Highway problems of all types are expected to create the most fireworks of the 1969 session — and the bond battle could provide the first skirmishing.

Also scheduled for hot discussion in the coming months will be proposals to boost highway users' fees — and the distribution of that money among cities and counties. Warner's committee proposed that the cash be divided on a 60-20-20 basis with the state getting the big chunk. The counties have already objected to this as unfair.

Another highway issue which might stir up some debate is the committee's proposal that uniform standards be established for streets and highways throughout the state. Each street and road would be classified, and every thoroughfare within a classification would have to be built to certain specifications.

For Dutch Elm Disease Yet!

Some time back an article appeared in the Omaha World-Herald stating that a possible cure for Dutch elm disease had been developed in Bloomfield Hills, Mich. This news item, entitled "Ailing Elm Cure Believed Found" prompted a number of inquiries from home owners.

A compound termed a "decongestant" by the World-Herald is injected into the trunks of trees through a large hole. It is claimed that the compound is then generally distributed throughout the tree, and is said to have both preventative and curative properties.

Subsequent investigation by the Entomology Department, the Plant Pathology Department, and the state forester has revealed that little or no scientific testing has been completed on the product to date. It was further revealed that the University of Michigan had not observed any tests where this material was used.

It would thus appear, that until additional information is made available and/or the effectiveness of the compound is clearly demonstrated to be beneficial, the public should be advised against harboring false hopes of a miracle cure for Dutch elm disease.

Best prevention of Dutch elm disease can be accomplished by following those procedures outlined in Extension Bulletin E. C. 67-1845. A copy of this publication may be obtained at the County Extension Office.

Dutch elm disease prevention involves a four-point program which includes: (1) Sanitation;

(2) Beetle control with insecticides; (3) Destruction of root grafts; and (4) Interspersed planting of other tree varieties. Research is progressing on many facets of this problem and will be published as soon as results are made available.

Starlings
With the relatively heavy snow cover on natural feedstuffs, the starling has moved into feedlots throughout the area.

The starling may be considered a song bird in the eyes of some, to most people its vocal efforts are considered noise.

In addition the bird feeds on insects in the summer, but here too its bad habits outweigh the good.

Starlings are often serious pests in cities; they are noisy, messy, and roost in trees and on buildings. They are known to be carriers of human diseases too.

In Nebraska, the greatest starling problem is around feedlots, especially in winter. The birds consume large amounts of feed, contaminate feed in bunks, and are capable of spreading diseases of livestock.

Control in feedlots is difficult. The use of scaring devices is not acceptable, as they probably would frighten the cattle as much or more than the birds. Shooting is not feasible but may be good sport, even if expensive.

Therefore, the most effective control measure would be the use of poisoned bait. Three are manufactured: Starlicide, Sodium Fluoride Pellets, and Artritol. Of the three, we would recommend Starlicide as the other two may present dangers to both the user and domestic animals.

For further information on the control of this noisy, messy pest, contact the County Extension Office.

4H Emphasis Week
The week of Jan. 23 through Feb. 1, 1969, has been designated as "4H Emphasis Week." Activities are planned throughout the state to place emphasis on the total 4H program. Here in Valley County plans are directed toward informing the public of the various types of projects available to 4H members.

The 4H youths are engaged in projects or activities that cover just about every home situation, personal goal, and ability. Among some 50 programs which carry merit are home economics, awards for outstanding achievement, health, safety, field crops, science, conservation, livestock, marketing, photography, and veterinary science.

Emphasis is on 4H benefits reaching more young people, ages 9-19, through the Head-Hands-Heart-Health program.

Clarke McNary Trees
It's not too early to be thinking about that farmstead wind-break or livestock shelterbelt you will be planting this spring. Application blanks for Clarke McNary trees are available in the County Extension Office.

Farmers' Tax Guide
We still have a good supply of Farmers Tax Guides in the Extension Office. Be sure and pick up your copy of this helpful guide.

Farm Account Books
We also have a new supply of Nebraska Farm Business Record Books, as well as Home Account Books. Both of these record tools are available at the County Extension Office.

Don't forget to watch "Pork Spotlight" on the Nebraska Educational Network. The topic for discussion next Monday will be "Handling Pigs at Weaning Time." The program can be viewed at 7:30 p.m.

THE Ord Quiz
A Cleaner Slate

In its eagerness to leave a good impression, the outgoing Johnson administration made some remarkable progress in its final weeks. The progress was especially noticeable in a couple of areas where previously there had been nothing but frustration.

First there was the dramatic release of the Pueblo crew just before Christmas. Then a week ago the long-festering problem of how to get serious peace negotiations started was abruptly solved.

A close examination of these subjects reveals no sudden discovery of any magic formula, nor does it show that the Johnson administration was stubbornly holding onto a position it could and should have vacated long ago.

Instead, a close examination shows that in both instances the outgoing administration merely capitulated to Communist demands.

In the Pueblo case, a confession of guilt was signed by the United States exactly as the North Koreans had demanded 11 months earlier. In the peace discussions, the allied side agreed to a round table—without a dividing line to indicate two sides—just as the North Vietnamese had suggested more than a month earlier.

Former President Johnson was obviously willing to give in to Communist demands so that the stains those subjects represented on his administration's record might at least be blurred.

Regardless of Johnson's motives, however, incoming President Nixon may be the greatest beneficiary of his actions.

Nixon had reportedly already ruled out military action to free the Pueblo crew. About the only diplomatic avenue left that Johnson had not tried was a prisoner exchange, whereby North Korean infiltrators captured recently in South Korea would be returned to Pyongyang in exchange for the Pueblo crewmen.

And if anything could have caused more anger and distrust among our South Korean allies than the action Johnson took, this would have been it.

The peace talks and the table design would have been a major problem for Nixon too—a problem that he doesn't have to face now.

All this, however, does not mean that we can live happily ever after. In both instances the United States has shown serious weaknesses, and the Communists are not known to let such weaknesses go unprobed.

They will undoubtedly throw new challenges at the U. S. now that they have been so successful on these occasions. But the new President will at least be permitted to meet the challenges in his own manner, without inherited limitations on the avenues of response.

School Children Need a Brake

The state of Nebraska has established certain traffic laws to protect its school children. But these laws can be no more effective than the drivers who are supposed to abide by them.

One such law requires that motorists either meeting or following a school bus stop—and remain stopped—while the bus stop arm is extended, indicating that passengers are being loaded or unloaded.

If the stop arm is not extended but the bus's red lights are flashing, motorists should slow down and proceed with caution. And the "slow down" part of that requirement is just as important as the "proceed with caution."

If you've been guilty of violating any school bus laws, won't you take steps to see that the offense is not repeated?

And your responsibility doesn't quite end there, either, for someone else's car can be just as deadly as yours. Therefore, if you see anyone else violating these regulations, take his license number and give him a call. It may be that he just doesn't know the law. If that's the case, he'll appreciate your thoughtfulness. And even if he doesn't, hundreds of Valley County families will.

Cost-Effectiveness for the Pueblo

Testimony of Cdr. Lloyd Bucher, skipper of the U.S.S. Pueblo, indicates that the Navy may have had his own McNamara-style "whiz kids."

During the first day of a naval board of inquiry, Bucher said his request for an automatic destruct system in the Pueblo was turned down because there was not enough time to install it or money to buy it. Shades of McNamara's cost-effectiveness program!

As a result of this tendency to draw the purse strings too tight in certain critical areas of national defense, the North Koreans and Russians now have access to a large amount of secret U.S. data and equipment.

Undoubtedly, evidence even more incriminating to the McNamara style of running the Defense Department will show up during coming months and years.

The Scott Report

From The Washington News-Intelligence Syndicate
By Paul Scott

WASHINGTON — Senator Eugene McCarthy's surprise shift from the choice Senate Foreign Relations Committee to the Government Operations Committee is an integral part of his strategy for a political comeback.

Taking a leaf from the headline-making notebook of the late Senator Joseph McCarthy (R-Wis.), the unsuccessful Presidential candidate plans to use the wide-ranging investigative powers of the Government Operations Committee to stay in the national spotlight.

As outlined in private discussions with key supporters, McCarthy's strategy calls for using his new Senate forum to build a national following by attacking what he terms the growing dangers of the nation's military-industrial complex.

Immediate objective of McCarthy's campaign will be to create a new anti-war, anti-military issue to replace the fading anti-Vietnam war issue which he successfully used to force President Johnson's political retirement.

Picking His Spot
In selecting the Government Operations Committee as his new base of operations in the Senate, McCarthy will have access to the best investigative staff in Congress.

The Government Operations Committee produces little legislation and until a few years ago was considered a minor Senate committee. Headed by veteran Senator John McClellan (D-Ark.), the committee's assignment is to keep an eye on the performance of government agencies.

The committee's limitless jurisdiction has been used by McClellan to investigate virtually every phase of American life, from riots to black militant gangs, from urban problems to the Defense Department.

The committee's hearings usually attract wide television coverage and pack the caucus room

Nixon the Target
Tip-off of McCarthy's new strategy came earlier this month when his backers began circulating an article he wrote for a national magazine charging that the Defense Department has become "the strongest independent power in world affairs" and has gone beyond "the effective control of Congress."

In the article, McCarthy echoed the campus battle cry of militant student groups that colleges and universities are tailoring their direction in order to get defense grants.

He argued that the military by establishing draft criteria is influencing directly "the whole culture of America and the direc-

Wallace Looks Ahead
Former Alabama governor George Wallace is laying the ground-work to keep his third-party organization alive and active.

A newsletter, which may turn into a national weekly newspaper, will be launched shortly in order to raise funds and serve as a country-wide communication link between Wallace and his millions of followers.

More than 600,000 persons, whose names were selected from those contributing to Wallace's 1963 campaign, will be asked to become charter subscribers. Under the newsletter's tentative format, it will carry regular articles by Wallace, other conservative politicians, writers, economists, and foreign policy experts, as well as news about third-party movement in the different states.

Life's Vicious Cycle Has a Fast Track To Revolve On

DEAR MISTER EDITOR: Pretty soon, allowed Frank Naprestek Saturday night during a session at the county store, we'll just start next year this year and the government will be withholding our wages two years ahead.

Frank told the fellows that he had looked note these days everything is coming sooner but the birthdays of the womenfolks.

This is still the first month of the year by the calendar, said Frank, but for most folks everything from taxes to draft notices is being figured fer next year.

Things have been getting faster and faster ever since they came up with the fiscal year where everybody starts next year in July. Frank said a heap of them government agencies now have set the start of their year back to April and March, and we're run so far ahead with the national debt we're spending what the next four generations will make.

What got Frank to thinking about speeding everything up was that prospect of victory the Communists won in Vietnam when they announced a Christmas ceasefire in the middle of November. Frank said we and South Vietnam were caught by surprise on account of we hadn't planned to announce our Christmas ceasefire until after Thanksgiving.

Frank said it wouldn't surprise him if our side don't announce a spring offensive early in February to beat the Communists to the draw.

The fellows generally agreed we might as well call this 1970 and wish everybody merry Christmas.

Furthermore, Ken Collins said he was in favor of having ceasefires fer all holidays and bunch up all the holidays fer the next five years. By the time we run out of holiday ceasefires, allowed Ken, maybe we can figure how to do more talking and less fighting.

Floyd Konkoleski said if it wasn't that Frank always celebrates Abe Lincoln's birthday two weeks in February, we would announce our Easter ceasefire now and get ready for the Fourth of July.

The trouble with all this, Frank said, is that folks try to rush up what they like and slow down what they don't like.

For instance, Frank said he knew a fellow that got the first 1969 car that came out last September, but he borrowed the money so he don't make any payment until this month.

"Most folks are glad to trade in their old car, but they ain't so glad to pay for the new one," was Frank's words.

Frank said we got credit in this country that revolves so fast pretty soon we'll meet ourselves coming back from the welfare office.

We got credit cards fer everything but paying off bills of other credit cards. And the bills we slow down with credit cards have a way of catching up with us all at once, said Frank.

Mister Editor, I'm not sure if most of us are two years behind in our paying or two years ahead in our buying, but personally I left the session with the mind that we ought to slow down our wants and let our means gain on us a little.

Yours truly,
Geranium Joe

KERRY ON

By Kerry Leggett

—do's 'n don'ts—
We're already well on our way into a New Year, I know, but it's never too late to make a start.

In the December issue of American Salesman appeared the following "Do's 'n Don'ts." They aren't original. As the old saying goes, "There's nothing new under the sun." But the best "new ideas" are adaptations or combinations of older ones.

This list of "Do's 'n Don'ts" are merely reminders, but good ones to remember. I think they're worth repeating. So... think on these things:

— Don't wait for the other fellow to come to you; go to him.
— In competition with others, always give them credit for being a little smarter than you are. Then work like the deuce to prove they are not.
— If you have no money and little credit, capitalize your personality. Sometimes it pays to have nerve.
— Never admit to anybody — and least of all to yourself — that you are licked.
— Keep your business troubles to yourself. Nobody likes a calamity howler — besides, he doesn't want to share your troubles.
— Don't be afraid of dreaming big dreams. It won't hurt you to figure on owning a railroad, even if you have to compromise on a compact.

— Make friends; but remember that the best friends will wear out if you use them too frequently.
— Be square even to the point of finickiness, and you will have mighty little occasion to complain of a crooked world.
— Take advice but do you own deciding.
— The world respects the man who stands tall and looks you straight in the eye.
— That's it. Good ideas — I thought — for anyone. To them I can only add this thought: "If a person is to be generous with others, he must be generous with himself. People who don't like themselves and don't believe in what they are doing and aren't realistic about their own needs, are less capable of extending love to others."
— It all goes back to the old, old saying, "Know thyself."
— "This above all," wrote Shakespeare, "to thine own self be true, And it must follow, as the night the day, Thou canst not then be false to any man."

Something Different

The Elks Did It

You simply must go see the new Elks Club. You won't believe it could happen in Ord.

From the outside it is a massive flat rectangle. No landscaping nor planting around it yet. The old house on the highway corner beside the new building is rapidly being torn down. This will make the parking area much greater. And it is already large sized, as was proved during our recent famous snow storm.

At the porte cochere on the west two young men in uniform jackets wait to park your car, to open the door, very impressive for Ord. Or anywhere else.

Coming in through broad glass double doors, you are in a spacious entry. Soon a large mirror will be installed there to greet you and double your welcome. Mrs. Verlin Smith, who has been doing the decorating, also has some other ideas about making the entrance lounge attractive. An ample coat room is at the left as you come in.

Probably you will file next into the large room housing the cocktail area and bar. Much turquoise has been used here, very pleasantly. The rug is quite a positive turquoise, and the color is also used on a big wall and behind the long lowered bar. Three monstrous panes of glass offer a wonderful picture at the south side of the room, with an ever-changing view of the golf course. As always, that golf course is a charmer with its rolling slopes and evergreen dots.

Proceeding east, there is a generous sized dining room, with the same three large windows picturing the inviting Ord golf course. The walls in this room are of dark wood panelling which Mrs. Floyd Beranek has hung with a number of oil paintings, rather like a museum.

There are so many rooms. There is a bar for stags, and a lounge just for stag visitors. Of course there is a large and beautiful lodge room, mostly done in gold tones. The usual notable Elks clock has not yet arrived to be installed, but it is expected soon, complete with Eleven O'Clock.

The kitchen is a chef's dream, beautiful with chrome fittings and the newest cooking arrangements and gadgets. Chef Jack is as happy there as Manager John is with his work. The food is superb, prime ribs like Ord has never been served, for one thing.

I could rave on about the white simulated brick walls which have been touched with gold. A cement concoction never looked that good before.

I could rave on about the draperies, but they aren't all here yet, as I write.

I could tell you about the unfinished shower room for men, to be polished off later. There are quite a few beautiful items to mention, throughout the building. Jean Smith has done a good job.

I could even tell you about the attractive pink retiring room for women and its many mirrors. It's nice.

Or the smallish parquet-floored room for dancing. It's nice. It's all nice.

Nearly every Elk has pitched in to work to make it so. Ross Allen has almost quit sleeping. So many members and wives have reported to assist with details.

And the result is great. For Ord or any place.

Your gas furnace. It's just full of hot air.

And aren't you glad! Glad because you're so comfortable inside, regardless of what's happening outside. Glad, for the unequaled economy of modern gas heat. All that cozy warmth at a fraction of the cost of other types of heating. Glad because there's fresh, clean, circulated, filtered warmth throughout your home, with no chilly rooms or corners. Glad because you don't have to worry about delivery. (Gas has its own underground delivery system.) Glad you chose gas heat? We'll bet you are, just like millions of other families who are glad they have modern gas, for winter peace of mind.

Junior, Senior Chambers Honor 12; Weckbach Receives Highest Award

A dozen Ord civic leaders were cited for special honors at last week's annual joint banquet of the Chamber of Commerce and the Junior Chamber.

Clark Weckbach, president of the First National Bank, received the most coveted award. He was named Boss of the Year by the Jaycees.

Others honored by the Jaycees were Johnny Hyde, outstanding educator; Russ Rose, outstanding fireman; Dale Zadina, outstanding farmer; and Gaylord Bollesen, Distinguished Service Award recipient.

Cited by the senior chamber were Bernard Staab, Don Walker, Emil John, Lynn Chichester, Carroll Grenier, and Florence Janda.

The Boss of the Year award is presented annually to an individual who takes an interest in community development as well as his own organization and employees.

Weckbach was cited for his work in helping to obtain a new building for the Valley County Hospital and for his service as a past commander of the local VFW post, particularly his efforts in helping to obtain the new Veterans Club. He also served formerly as a city councilman, on the board of the Valley County Agricultural Commission, as treasurer of the Ord Development Corp., as president of the Rotary Club, and as president of the Chamber of Commerce.

The outstanding educator was selected by faculty members themselves. They selected Hyde because he "has gone out of his way to improve his own education as well as that of the children he teaches." The Jaycees try to present the award to someone who has "contributed more than just the ordinary teaching day."

Hyde is working toward his goal of becoming a guidance counselor while he works with the children in his sixth-grade class. He is a graduate of Loup

County High School and Kearney State College. He has been with the Ord School System for eight years.

"When you go to a fire or clean up afterwards, you know Russ will always be there," said fellow fireman Duane Carson in presenting Rose's award.

"The Jaycees used to restrict

No Fires, Please

Ord volunteer firemen have issued a special request that residents refrain from having fires next Monday evening. That's the night for their annual Fireman's Ball.

For 81 years, since the department was founded in 1888, the ball has been an annual event.

The ball will last from 9 p.m. till 1 a.m. and will be held at the new Elks Club. The Jolly Gents will provide music.

Local 4-H Participants Can Choose From Various Project Possibilities

By John Schade, County Agent

During the week of Jan. 25 to Feb. 1, County Extension Services, 4-H Councils, and other interested individuals and organizations are placing special emphasis on acquainting the public with the 4-H program.

Valley County 4-H youths are engaged in projects and activities that cover just about every home situation, personal goal, and ability.

Among some 50 programs which carry awards for outstanding achievement are those in agricultural production, such as meat animals, dairy, poultry, garden, and field crops.

Another category members participate in is management—money, home, and farm.

Skills in family living are developed by 4-H'ers through such projects as food and nutrition, clothing, home furnishings, care of home grounds (or yard beautification), child care (or baby sitting), and canning and freezing (or preservation of food).

The 4-H'er is also interested in personal development. In this category members participate in such activities as good grooming; personal, family, and community health; and safety and first aid. They also develop leadership abilities through junior leader activities.

Other popular projects include horse care, photography, and "know and understand your heritage."

Persons are familiar with the market beef, market swine, and market sheep projects 4-H'ers engage in, as well as the various breeding projects. Many are familiar also with dairy projects which include the dairy calf, dairy heifer, and dairy cow. Clothing and cooking projects which are popular with the girls are well known too.

Less popular project areas that 4-H'ers may choose to participate in are probably not so familiar to the outsider. These will be discussed a little further.

The 4-H program is based on the four "H's"—head, hands, heart, and health. This year in Valley County special emphasis is being placed on health. Each 4-H member is being encouraged to participate in at least one health or safety project.

As mentioned earlier, these projects include personal health, where the emphasis forms the importance of practicing sound habits in personal hygiene and becomes aware of the basic food in his daily diet. He also has an opportunity to become familiar with and aware of the importance of sound health habits. The member can, and often does, encourage other members of his family to participate in sound personal hygiene and sound diets, as well as other health habits.

Another project area which is being emphasized in Valley County, as well as the state, this

New Member Added At Annual Banquet Of 'Ducks Unlimited'

Jim Aagaard was given honorable recognition as a Ducks Unlimited member Saturday evening at the Ducks Unlimited Benefit.

More than 100 waterfowl enthusiasts attended the annual affair held at the Elyria Hall. A consistent supporter of the DU program, Aagaard has pledged an increase in contribution annually.

The festivities began at 6 p.m. with an hour-long cocktail time provided by Bill Wadas, manager of Elyria Fertilizer & Propan. The feed call of the Canada goose by J. D. Kapustka brought everyone to attention for the invocation by Rev. Stanley Rose-nau. The guests filed two abreast for the feast prepared by Irene Kapustka and Celia Zulkoski. Irene put forth special effort to prepare the wild rice dressing which brought favorable comments from the guests. Canadian goose was the main menu item, complemented by mallard and roast turtle.

Jim Nickel, president of the Nebraska Council of Sportsmen's Clubs, was the featured speaker. He reminded all sportsmen to conduct themselves honorably in the field and that if this is done there will be game to harvest every year.

Don Wagner, manager of Consumers Public Power District in Loup City, gave a progress report on Lake Ericson. He pointed out that during and after an eradication program the rough fish-to-game fish ratio was reversed from a 1,000-to-1 rough fish monopoly to a 40-to-1 game fish population. Biologists feel this is a satisfactory condition, he said. The lake and stream are clear once again, he added, and the growth of game fish has been excellent from a report of samplings taken in 1958.

In addressing the group, Senator Rudolf Kokes praised the Fort Hartuff Cavalry for its appearance at Nebraskaland Days.

Siegler Will Speak At Father-Son Feed

The United Methodist Men of Mira Valley Arcadia will sponsor a father-son banquet and program Feb. 10 at the United Methodist Church in Arcadia.

Ernie Siegler, senior quarterback for the Nebraska Cornhuskers football team and leader in the Fellowship of Christian Athletes, will be the special speaker. Tickets may be purchased from the following Arcadia men: Elgin Crist, Ben Mason, Charles Weddel, Darrell McKinney, Kenneth Dorsey, and Max Staab, or from Jack Duval, Russell Haeckel, Rollie Staab, Dan Spilneck, and Arden Koelling of Mira Valley.

Those serving on the program committee are Eldon Foth, Kent Hornickel, Dick Peterson, Bill Cook, and Rev. Earl Higgins.

Absentee Ballots

Absentee school election ballots may be obtained from Harold Paulsen at the Soil Conservation Office.

Ord Pep Club Poster A Sign of the Times

Classes were dismissing after the first evening of the sex education course. Following a film strip on "the facts of life," parents had remained in the school cafeteria for a discussion. The youth had separated into two different co-educational discussion classes and utilized classrooms just outside the cafeteria.

As one of the youth groups dismissed, parents were told that they could find their sons and daughters—class was over. Climbing the stairs and entering the foyer, smiles crept slowly over many adult faces. Inside—through the glass-walled classroom—they could see one youth group still in session. On the window hung a giant pep club poster—"Sock It To EMI!"

Game Commission May Move to Ord

Headquarters of the Nebraska Game Commission will be transferred to Ord if a bill introduced Tuesday in the state legislature is approved.

Senator Rudolf Kokes of Ord introduced Legislative Bill 576 to consolidate the commission's Lincoln offices and move them to Ord. Presently, the Game Commission is located in six separate buildings in Lincoln.

"The big thing is to get it out of Lincoln," Senator Kokes said in a telephone conversation Wednesday morning. "And if it's moving, why not to the Loup Valley?"

He said there are "various investment groups" willing to take on the cost of constructing a building and renting it out to the Game Commission.

"We can save so much money seems a fallacy to leave it as it is at present," he said.

Kokes acknowledged, however, that getting the commission in Ord will be a difficult project.

"There's going to be group after group trying to get the bill amended so the commission can move to some different location," he said.

"It's new," he commented when asked about the possibility of passage. "The senators are just now looking it over, but they like the idea of moving."

"Present expense is tremendous," he said. "The commission pays so much rent. If it were taken out of Lincoln and put under one roof it would be much more efficient and much cheaper."

In a statement released Tuesday, Kokes said the Ord Industrial Development Corp. could issue revenue bonds for construction of a new commission headquarters, with annual rent payments being used to pay off the bonds.

"Land for a commission headquarters near Ord can be obtained for a fraction of what it can be bought for near Lincoln," he said.

Game Commission Director Mel Steen has endorsed the idea of moving away from Lincoln. The commission received legislative approval in 1967 to issue $2½ million in revenue bonds for construction of a complex on the Lincoln East campus of the University of Nebraska. But the State Supreme Court ruled that such action violated the constitutional debt limit of $100,000.

Kokes said he felt the legislature should take hold of his bill and give it "a good airing" this session.

"Why not move to Ord?" he asked. "It's a beautiful area, just at the edge of the sandhills and from corner to corner of the state it's about as centrally located as you can get."

"Relocation could start a workable counter-trend to the growing exodus of overcentralization in state governmental agencies," he concluded.

Kokes refused to speculate on how many families would be involved in a move of Game Commission facilities to Ord.

"Let's just say it would be a sizeable force," he said.

Brucellosis Testing Will Be Conducted In Herds of Michigan, Vinton Precincts

Blood tests for brucellosis reactors will begin soon on market cattle herds in Michigan and Vinton precincts.

The tests will be conducted by Dr. Dale Karre of Ord. They are necessary for Valley County to be recertified as a "Modified Certified Brucellosis Area."

Valley County originally received such certification in 1966. However, the status was granted with a stipulation that the county meet recertification requirements by Apr. 25, 1969.

According to figures supplied by the Animal Health Division, Agricultural Research Service, Valley County would need a total of 2,803 market cattle test (MCT) results to meet the necessary 15 percent required for recertification. To date, the MCT program has resulted in 2,117 head of cattle being tested.

County Agent John Schade reports that 343 of the total 396 cattle herds in Valley County have qualified either through the Brucella Ring Test (BRT) or the MCT.

However, he said that without additional testing it is doubtful that the 691 negative MCT results needed to reach the necessary 15 percent will be attained in time to meet the recertification deadline of Apr. 25.

Therefore, in order for Valley County to retain the status of a "Modified Certified Brucellosis Area," it is necessary to conduct on-the-farm blood tests of 20 percent of the herds in the county that have not met requirements through either individual BRT or MCT programs.

Dr. E. H. Nordstrom, veterinarian in charge of the Animal Health Division, has designated that only herds in Michigan and Vinton precincts will be tested. Specific herds will be selected on the basis of past records. Those without recorded tests on the books will be more prone for selection, Schade said.

He advised cattlemen to not be concerned that the blood testing program will reveal a high number of brucellosis reactors. During the past three years, only four head of the 2,117 tested under the MCT program have proven to be positive reactors.

Old Man Winter is still hanging around Nebraska, complete with cycles, snow, the works. The past week's low was 16 below zero Saturday.

Crowd Estimated At Nearly 1,000 For Elks Shindig

A crowd estimated at 800 to 1,000 persons swarmed into the new Elks Club last weekend for grand opening festivities.

The big crowd appeared Saturday night for a special buffet dinner and a dance which followed. About 950 persons were on hand for the actual dedication of the building Sunday afternoon.

At those ceremonies, keys to the building were symbolically passed from Ross Allen, chairman of the building committee, to Bill Frenous of chairman of the Board of Trustees. Other local and state Elks officials also took part in the dedication.

Among those on hand was Mrs. Ruby Johnson of Kearney, national supreme president of the Elks. This is an organization for wives of Elks members, and a chapter will be organized in Ord next month, according to J. B. Ferguson, exalted ruler of the local lodge. An organizational meeting will be held Feb. 12 at 8 p.m. in the Elks Club.

Another Elks celebrity present for the festivities was H. L. Blackledge, also of Kearney. He is a past grand exalted ruler of the Elks nationally.

Following dedication ceremonies, 58 new members were initiated into the local lodge, No. 2571.

Another initiation will be held Feb. 26, Ferguson said, and he estimated it would bring membership up to approximately 680.

Head Chef Jack Fisher was mighty proud of his Elks Club buffet Saturday which featured a whole pig with an apple in its mouth. A crowd estimated at from 800 to 1,000 persons, turned out. For more on the opening see Page 6.

For Top Breeding of Dairy Cows

To maintain good milk production levels and obtain a calf each year, dairymen must strive for high levels of breeding efficiency. The goal should be to maintain a calving interval of not more than 12 to 13 months.

Other measures of reproduction efficiency include a conception rate of 65 to 70 percent on the first service, and not more than 1.5 to 2 services per conception.

Good management plays a key role in top breeding performance. Dairy specialists indicate the largest single cause of delayed conception is failure to spot cows in heat.

Delayed breeding and skipped heat periods are expensive in terms of lost dairy income. Every day a cow is not bred following 60 days after calving costs the dairymen an average of 60 cents.

These losses jump to an average of $2 per head daily for a cow failing to conceive within 90 days after calving.

With high-producing cows proper feeding is important all the time, but especially at breeding time. After calving, the dairy cow needs enough energy feed—especially energy—to support her milk production and body maintenance.

Irrigated Pasture Can Complete With Work Crops

One University of Nebraska researcher has reported that a beef animal can thrive on irrigated pastures. It is not unreasonable to expect to produce from 700-750 pounds of beef per acre.

Using today's market prices for finished beef, you can see that the potential for profits from irrigated pasture is tremendous. Profits may be even greater if you are producing replacement feeder cattle.

Beef production on irrigated pasture, then, would be quite competitive with producing corn or grain sorghum on the same land.

Much of the move toward this type of farming is on large acreages, irrigated with self-propelled, center-pivot sprinklers. However, many farmers and ranchers are also doing this on a small scale using tow lines, flood or stationary sprinkler systems.

Something To Think About: The Japanese Mission Flour Milling Co. states that it will start full-scale production of artificial meat from wheat. It plans to produce 150 tons of synthetic meat a month when in full operation this coming spring.

Think of this in terms of the lean meat produced by approximately 700 head of finished steers.

Keep Tax Records For Five Years: It's tempting to clear your file of some of those old farm bills. But you'd better keep records of ordinary receipts and expenditures for at least five years.

An Internal Revenue Service assessment against a taxpayer for additional tax due must ordinarily be made within three years after the filing date.

The Nebraska statute of limitation is from five to seven years depending upon the situation in question. Therefore, it's usually best to keep the records an extra year just to play safe.

Thus it will pay you to save records, other than those regarding depreciation and capital assets, at least five years.

Poloxalene Drench: Good Bloat Treatment: Poloxalene in a water drench has been proven effective for alfalfa-bloat cattle.

Response was excellent in 44 out of 45 cases in Kansas where poloxalene mixed with water was administered. Poloxalene was used at the rate of 10 grams per 100 pounds of body weight. This dosage is large enough to compensate for spillage.

Carol's Corner

by Carol Leggett

When the postman left a thick catalog of spring lovelies the other day, my two youngest fashion-minded pals sat down to absorb what would be nice for spring. For some it might have been a poor day to concentrate on a light airy wardrobe while the wind played a game of piling snow up around the doorways and blocking the streets, but these two had no trouble at all compiling a continued on page 2 list of frocks that "would be nice."

They found the wide-legged pants (with cuffs of course) to be exactly the kind they have always wanted and past dresses (nine in all) to be almost a "must." The list of wants included two very stylish raincoats with matching umbrellas and enough pastel patent slippers to match every dress they already own — or ever plan to own.

Concluding the list were two little bathing suits, and I frowned as I thought of how easily each could be created from one large or two medium-sized men's handkerchiefs — with material to spare. Sensing my reaction (before I actually reacted), they quickly produced a second choice and sheepishly asked, "Would this kind be better, Mom?"

There's something about fashions that can occupy one's mind for hours. Fashion is fun. It's a game that intrigues. It's entertainment of an extremely exciting kind!

Betty Michalek Exchanges Marriage Vows With Larry Zabloudil at Loup City Church

In a 1 o'clock afternoon ceremony Saturday, Betty Michalek, daughter of Mrs. Delphine Michalek of Loup City, and Larry Zabloudil, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Zabloudil of Hastings, were united in marriage.

The couple's ceremony took place at St. Joseph's Catholic Church in Loup City, with Father James Dunning of Loup City officiating. Organist Shirley Cook presented appropriate nuptial music and accompanied the soloist, Marsha Phifer.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Ron Michalek. For her wedding she selected a floor-length skimmer gown of Peau de soie. Venice lace formed the yoke and long sleeves. Daisy lace appliques graced the pea skirt, and edged the high neckline, sleeves, and attached Watteau train. The elbow-length bouffant English illusion veil fell from a petal cluster accented with seed pearls and crystal beads. A cascade of red rose and white pom poms completed the bride's ensemble.

Maid of honor was Christine Ignowski of Kearney. Other attendants were Jeannie Krolkowsky of Omaha, bridesmaid; Mrs. John Michalek of Loup City, bridesmatron; Jane Zabloudil of Hastings, bridesmaid; and Shari Zabloudil of Hastings, junior bridesmaid. They wore identical floor-length skimmer sheath gowns of rouge chiffon velvet. Candlelight lace edged the cuffs of the baby bishop sleeves, high necks, and floating back panels. Each attendant carried a single white mum.

Best man was Dan Zabloudil of Hastings. Groomsman were John Michalek, Rick Badura, and Billy Vodehnal. Ken Slominski, Rich Guzinski, Kenny Tesmer, and Carl Tesmer seated the guests.

Woman's Club of Ord Studies Color, Truth

Two lessons made up the afternoon program Jan. 22 when the Woman's Club of Ord met with Mrs. Fred Stoddard.

Mrs. Sol Furtak spoke first on "Color Me Red." She told the fundamental use of color in our lives and the influence of various colors on personalities. She said that color also has an effect on the behavior of children, as well as their choice of food and clothing. Experiments which have been conducted show the efficiency of workers increased or decreased in relation to the color of their surroundings, she stated.

The second lesson was presented by Mrs. Adrian Remington who briefly reviewed the book, "Anything But The Truth." This book tells how news is managed in Washington. It charts the course of American credibility through such incidents as the U.S. the real mission of the U.S. to mention a few. Citing examples from the White House, State Department, and poverty program, authors William McGuffin and Erwin Knoll, news papermen, raise a serious question as to the reliability of information the government supplies its citizens.

Chants Hike Mark In Two Close Ones

Two back-to-back victories last weekend put the Ord High basketball team back over the 500 mark for the season, but the Chanticleers' month-long fast found themselves nothing longer hours this week.

The reason was a lackluster performance Saturday night against Loup City in which the Chants had to work overtime for a 54-51 victory. The previous week they had performed well and beaten a tall and talented Albion team, 65-62.

Zone defense was the name of the game Saturday night as Coach Larry Johnson shifted his Loup City Raiders from a man-to-man before Ord had run off to a 20-10 lead at the end of the first quarter. The zone worked to perfection as the Chants were held to six points in that second period and Loup City rushed forward to claim a 20-26 halftime tie.

Ord remained cold opening the third period, and Loup City built a five-point lead before Ord made its first score of the second half. That came on a free throw by Ron Bredthauer with 3 1/2 minutes gone. The Chants didn't get their first field goal until another minute had elapsed.

From their low point the Chants came slowly back, emerging from the third quarter with a one-point 30-35 lead. They increased it to five midway through the final period, and when it was still holding firm with two minutes to go things looked bright. Coach Ken Trubey directed his team into its delay game.

But the mistakes and missed opportunities which had plagued them all night continued to hound the Chants. Eventually Loup City tied it at 49-49 with one minute to go, and during that final 60 seconds both teams missed scoring opportunities. The most crucial was a one-and-one free throw Bredthauer missed with six seconds to go. But Loup City's Mike Moeller also saw his shot at the buzzer bound high off the rim, and an inch the other way would have given his team victory.

The overtime was just as exciting as the regular finish. With 30 seconds to go Ord held a 52-51 lead and had the ball. But Loup City's Tom Rifehle stole it and raced down the court for what seemed like a sure layup. Somehow he missed it, though, and Bill Klancey's jump shot just before the final buzzer added two points to the Ord total and provided the final victory margin.

Rebounding and free throws — areas they had excelled in the night before against Albion — hurt the Chants. The hustling Loup City team — resembling in no manner the ragged outfit that was beaten badly by Ainsworth and Burwell in Ord's holiday tournament just a month ago — claimed the rebound battle by five, 42-37. It did this despite the loss of its biggest man, 6-3 Ken Bonezynski, on fouls less than a minute into the fourth quarter. Ord had out-rebounded Albion, which listed players at 6-5 and 6-4 in its starting lineup, 45-38.

In free throws, Ord sank only 14 of 25 against Loup City. During the last two minutes of regulation play and the overtime, the Chants hit just two of seven.

Bob Cook, a 5-11 senior, was a do-everything man for Loup City. He scored 22 points and hauled down 15 rebounds despite his medium stature.

Bredthauer led Ord scoring with 20 points but was held to his second lowest rebound total of the season — a still respectable 13.

The Ord-Albion contest was a see-saw affair with a four-point lead the largest by either team during the first half. At intermission Ord led by one.

It remained close until midway through the third period when Ord hit a cold spell. The Chants went over four minutes without getting a bucket as Albion built a 50-42 advantage. But a full-court press forced some Albion turnovers, and during the last 37 seconds of the period Ord scored six points.

The Chants finally caught up midway through the final quarter when Bill Miller hit a left-handed layup. Klancey then stole the ball and converted it into a three-point play, and Ord never trailed again.

However, the issue was still in doubt when Bredthauer scored on a drive with 28 seconds to go, increasing a one-point lead to three. Dick Janda's two free throws second later cinched it.

Martin, Farmer Shine In Two Reserve Wins

Scoring 60 percent of their team's points, Greg Martin and Darrel Farmer led the Ord junior varsity to its first weekend sweep of the season Friday and Saturday. The Chanticleer reserves beat Albion on the road, 59-51, and then came home to damp Loup City, 48-35.

Between them, Martin and Farmer scored 64 of their team's 107 points in the two games. Martin had 20 against Albion and 17 against Loup City, while Farmer totalled 15 against Albion and 12 against Loup City.

In the road game, Ord scored eight straight points opening the fourth quarter to break open a tight contest. The Chanticleers had a one-point lead entering the final period but shut their foe out for more than three minutes.

Until that time the game had been close all the way with Ord holding leads of one point, two points, and one point at each of the quarter breaks. It was tied as late as 1 minute, 18 seconds to go in the third period.

A player with a turned-around name, Nelson Rick, led Albion as he scored 14 points, all on field goals.

The game was Ord's best of the season foul-wise. The Chants were charged with their season low of eight, giving Albion only nine shots from the charity line. And it's a good thing, considering the way the Cardinals were hitting as they made seven of the nine good.

Ord got 25 shots from the free throw line and hit 13 of them. The next night it was all Ord as the Chants jumped off to a 17-9 first quarter lead. Loup City narrowed it to four points at halftime but could get no closer than six in the last half.

With the twin triumphs, the Ord reserves boosted their season record to 5-4. They will be seeking to improve on that this weekend when they host Broken Bow Friday and St. Paul Saturday. Both games will start at 6:15 p.m.

Here's mud in your eye, and a hand to boot. Ord's Bill Klancey engaged in some close-up defensive work Friday night on Albion's top scorer, Tom Neidhardt. It didn't work too often as Neidhardt scored 23 points, but Ord won the game anyway, 65-62.

Wildcats Absorb First Loss of Year But Rebound to Take Ninth Triumph

Dreams of an undefeated season went bouncing away like so many missed free throws last week as North Loup-Scotia bowed to Wolbach, 67-62, in overtime. But the Wildcats proved the next night that they're not finished for the year as they clubbed an improving Anselmy team, 65-56, on the latter's home court.

After leading practically all the way against Wolbach, North Loup-Scotia saw the Mustangs pull even at the end of regulation time. In the three-minute overtime period Wildcat eagles went to the free throw line three times on one-and-one situations, and in each instance the score-board stuck on 62.

By the time the extra period ended, Wolbach had scored five points to none for North Loup-Scotia and had knocked the Wildcats from their hard-earned place among the state's 10 top-rated Class C teams. They were eighth going into the contest but were unrated by both the Omaha World-Herald and Lincoln Star this week. Their record for the year is now 9-1.

Wolbach's victory did nothing to dim its stature as the state's fifth-rated Class D team. The Mustangs have not been beaten since North Loup-Scotia did the job, 65-61, in the finals of the Scottia holiday tournament. Wolbach has lost one other contest this campaign, to third-rated Clarks in the season opener.

Chuck Wegner and Jim Clement scored 44 points between them, with Wegner getting 24 and Clement 20, but it wasn't enough as Wolbach's balanced attack wiped out a six-point lead North Loup-Scotia had at halftime.

The Mustangs were led by Steve Grossart, who scored 19. In the earlier meeting between the two teams, Grossart forced out with nearly four minutes to go in the fourth period and his team behind by one point.

Following the 6-foot junior we Jon Wubbels with 15, Jack Smits 10, and Galen Berney 10. North Loup-Scotia had one more field goal than did Wolbach, but the Wildcats missed seven of 11 free throws. The Mustangs weren't really hot at the charity line either, but the frequency with which they went there paid off as they scored 11 points in 22 throws.

"I hate to lose to a Class D school, even if it's a good one," Coach LaVelle Miller of the Wildcats said Tuesday. "But I was really proud of the way we bounced back the following night against Anselmy."

"I was really worried about whether we could get back up after such a big let-down," he added.

Coach Miller also pointed out that even though Anselmy performed poorly in the holiday tournament at Scottia, the Warriors are capable of beating anybody when they're on their tiny home court. They had proved it just three nights earlier when they defeated a fine Sargent team, 69-65.

Another thing that worried Coach Miller was the fact that Anselmy ace Dave Sintek was due to return to action in the North Loup-Scotia game. Sintek received a broken jaw in the LIHC Conference tournament at Merna earlier this month and had sat out all Anselmy's games since that time, including the win over Sargent.

Sintek showed little rustiness as he scored 12 points and helped out on rebounds. But North Loup-Scotia wiped out a three-point first-quarter lead to win handily. The Wildcat bulge reached 19 points at one stage of the game, as Wolbach whittled it to nine by the time the final buzzer sounded.

Wegner was again high man, scoring 27 points. Al Williams had 17 and Clement 13.

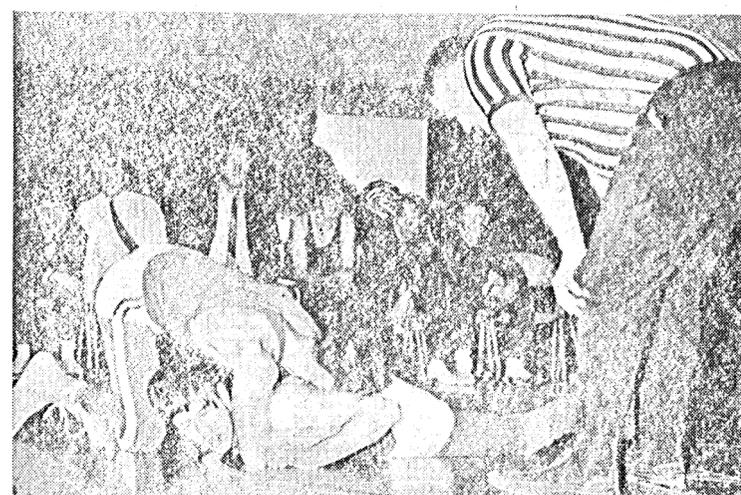

Anselmy's record is now 7-7. The Wildcats appear to be no relief on the immediate horizon for North Loup-Scotia schedule-wise. The Wildcats have three rough games coming up in a six-day span. They'll face Spalding Academy, rated ninth in Class D, tonight (Thursday), then on Saturday they'll tackle always tough Burwell, and on Tuesday the foe will be Sargent. The Spalding Academy and Burwell games will be played in Scottia, while the Sargent one will be in that community.

The week's action should give fans a tip-off on what to expect in the district tournament, to be staged in late February at Broken Bow, North Loup-Scotia, Burwell and Sargent will all field strong teams for the competition that will determine District 13's representative in regional warfare.

On the bottom at this point, Ord's Leonard Krason hugs the mat to keep Ainsworth's Ron Ferris from turning him over and getting more points. Ferris is the state's top-rated performer in the 138-pound class, but he had to hustle to squeeze out an 8-6 victory over Krason Saturday. Ainsworth, however, won the team competition easily, 39-10.

Ainsworth Wallops Ord In Dual Wrestling Meet

Powerful Ainsworth slammed the door shut Saturday on the steady progress Ord high wrestlers had been making as a team. After coming close to a team victory on several occasions recently, the Chanticleer grapplers were soundly beaten, 39-10. But even in this one-sided affair there were individual bright spots.

Probably the brightest was the terrific fight Leonard Krason put up against Ainsworth's Ron Ferris in the 138-pound class. Ferris is rated tops in the state for his weight class and had won 15 straight matches. But Krason forced him to put out all the way before bowing on points, 8-6.

With the defeat Krason's record dropped to 3-4 for the season. At one stage he nearly had Ferris pinned.

Another bright spot for Ord was the one-sided victory Roger Cahill turned in over Milt Loeb in the 154-pound class. Cahill defeated his foe on points, 12-4, to pull within one victory of the 500 mark. He now has a 4-5 record for the season. His win by decision gave his team three points.

Ord's other points came on a default in the 120-pound class, worth five points, and on a draw Tim Markley got with Ainsworth's Dan Greis in the 133-pound class. They wound up tied on points at 8-8 as first one, then the other took the advantage.

In addition to Ferris, Ainsworth had one other rated wrestler. Stan Clark is regarded as the second best 145-pound contestant in the state. He pinned Dale Baldwin but not until near to the end of the second round. (High school matches consist of three two-minute rounds provided neither contestant is pinned before the time limit expires.) The team defeat left Ord winless in six dual meets this season. The Chants will try again to end the drought this weekend. They'll go to Broken Bow for a 7:30 p.m. match Friday and host Ravenna for a 6:30 p.m. contest Saturday.

In last week's reserve contest, Ord was blanked, 24-0. All matches were one-sided, with the closest being Allen Koelling's 7-1 defeat in the 112-pound class.

Carol's Corner

by Carol Leggett

When the postman left a thick catalog of spring lovelies the other day, my two youngest fashion-minded pals sat down to absorb what would be nice for spring. For some it might have been a poor day to concentrate on a light airy wardrobe while the wind played a game of piling snow up around the doorways and blocking the streets, but these two had no trouble at all compiling a continued on page 2 list of frocks that "would be nice."

They found the wide-legged pants (with cuffs of course) to be exactly the kind they have always wanted and pant dresses (mine in all) to be almost a "must." The list of wants included two very stylish raincoats with matching umbrellas and enough pastel patent slippers to match every dress they already own — or ever plan to own.

Concluding the list were two little bathing suits, and I frowned as I thought of how easily each could be created from one large or two medium-sized men's handkerchiefs — with material to spare. Scusing my reaction (before I actually reacted), they quickly produced a second choice and sheepishly asked, "Would this kind be better, Mom?"

There's something about fashions that can occupy one's mind for hours. Fashion is fun. It's a game that intrigues. It's entertainment of an extremely exciting kind!

Wilda Carlson, Ron Waldmann Say Vows In Afternoon Ceremony at Shelby Church

Heavy Venice lace accented the front and extended the full length of the sleeves. She wore a full-length veil of illusion, and her bouquet was of yellow and bronze mums entwined with baby breath.

Marleen Carlson of Homolula, Hawaii, served her sister as maid of honor. Mrs. Gary Kortes of Oxford, sister of the bride, Mrs. Alvin Leska of Ansley, Kathy Waldmann and Jackie Waldmann of Burwell, sisters of the groom,

Betty Michalek Exchanges Marriage Vows With Larry Zabloudil at Loup City Church

In a 1 o'clock afternoon ceremony Saturday, Betty Michalek, daughter of Mrs. Delphine Michalek of Loup City, and Larry Zabloudil, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Zabloudil of Hastings, were united in marriage.

The double-ring ceremony took place at St. Joseph's Catholic Church in Loup City, with Father James Dunning of Loup City officiating. Organist Shirley Cook presented appropriate nuptial music and accompanied the soloist, Marsha Pifer.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Ron Michalek. For her wedding she selected a floor-length skimmer cage gown of Peau de soie. Venice lace formed the yoke and long sleeves. Daisy lace appliques graced the peau skirt, and edged the high neckline, sleeves, and attached Watteau train. The elbow-length bouffant English illusion veil fell from a petal cluster accented with seed pearls and crystal beads. A cascade of red rose and white pom poms completed the bride's ensemble.

Maid of honor was Christine Ignowski of Kearney. Other attendants were Jeannie Krollikowski of Omaha, bridesmaid; Mrs. John Michalek of Loup City, bridesmatron; Jane Zabloudil of Hastings, bridesmaid; and Shariell Zabloudil of Hastings, junior bridesmaid. They wore identical floor-length skimmer sheath gowns of rouse chiffon velvet. Candlelight lace edged the cuffs of the baby bishop sleeves, high necks, and floating back panels. Each attendant carried a single white mum.

Best man was Dan Zabloudil of Hastings. Groomsmen were John Michalek, Rick Badura, and Billy Vodehnal. Ken Slominski, Rich Guzinski, Kenny Tesmer, and Carl Tesmer seated the guests.

Hosts at the reception which followed in the V.F.W. Mrs. Ray Gudmuth and Mrs. Don Athelina poured coffee and punch. Caring for the gifts were Paulette Damratow, Mrs. Peggy Foxhoven, Pat Dainig, Mary Lou Geis, and Terry Burkholder.

For going away the bride wore an off-white shift dress with navy blue trim.

The bride is a graduate of Loup City High School and attended Kearney State College. The groom, also a Loup City High School graduate, is a junior at Kearney State College. Their home will be in Kearney.

Woman's Club of Ord Studies Color, Truth

Two lessons made up the afternoon program Jan. 22 when the Woman's Club of Ord met with Mrs. Fred Stoddard.

Mrs. Syl Furtak spoke first on "Color Me Red." She told the fundamental use of color in our lives and the influence of various colors on personalities. She said that color also has an effect on the behavior of children, as well as their choice of food and clothing. Experiments which have been conducted show the efficiency of workers increased or decreased in relation to the color of their surroundings, she stated.

The second lesson was presented by Mrs. Adrian Remington who briefly reviewed the book, "Anything But The Truth." This book tells how news is managed in Washington. It charts the course of American credibility through such incidents as the U.S.S. Liberty, and the Vietnam War to mention a few. Citing examples from the White House, State Department, and poverty program, author William McGrawfin and Erwin Knoll, news papermen, raise a serious question as to the reliability of information the government supplies its citizens.

this award to someone under 35," Carsen added, "but we have discontinued that practice. We know now that it takes too long to become a good fireman. The best are not those under 35."

Rose has been with the department since Nov. 9, 1942, except for an 18-month stretch when he moved away from the city. He is now assistant chief and has served in that capacity since March, 1968. Only four men have longer terms of service with the Ord department.

Zadina has taken a strong interest in civic affairs while caring for large livestock and crop operations.

He retired this week as president of the Valley County chapter, National Farmers Organization. In addition, he is currently serving as secretary of the Ord Jaycee chapter.

The Distinguished Service Award is a Jaycee presentation, but the recipient is selected by a committee from the Chamber of Commerce.

Boilesen was named to receive it partially because of the manner in which he stepped in and carried on the family business (Boilesen Seed Co.) when his father was seriously injured in an automobile accident a couple of months ago. He was also lauded for his service as president of the Ord Jaycees, and for his work in securing the state Outstanding Young Farmer-Rancher banquet for Ord.

Two of the Chamber of Commerce honorees were receiving their second awards for service rendered. They are Staab and Walker.

Staab was cited because of his work in arranging and overseeing the annual Farmer-Rancher banquet for two straight years. He "set it up entirely," according to Don Sears, outgoing Chamber president who presented the awards. That included securing a speaker and arranging entertainment, as well as other details.

Walker was honored for his service as head of the Fair & Home Show for two consecutive years. "He even made money for us," said Sears, "and it's very rare when we can put on a project like that and not lose money." Walker is also a retiring member of the Chamber's board of directors.

John contributed a great deal of time and effort during 1968 seeing that the city's park benches were painted and maintained properly, Sears said. He was also lauded for his faithfulness in attending Chamber meetings and for his service as a past officer in the organization.

"Chesterton is helpful on anything that comes along," Sears stated. "We especially wanted to honor him for his work on the Chamber's past pancake breakfasts and barbecues."

A relative newcomer to Chamber activities in Ord, Grenier was acclaimed for a "terrific job with the recent Christmas promotion program." His "good ideas" as a new member of the Board of Directors were also mentioned.

Mrs. Janda, as secretary, is the only paid member of the Chamber. However, she was cited for service "above and beyond the requirements of her job." Her work in publishing the monthly Chamber bulletins was particularly noted.

The 12th award was presented to Sears by Bob Anderson, incoming president of the Chamber. It honored him for his work as president during the past year. Approximately 135 persons attended the banquet held at St. Mary's Auditorium.

ear is conservation. It is felt that the youth of America need to develop an awareness of the need for sound conservation practices. They need to be aware of the need to conserve not only the land, which is man's most valuable natural resource, but also to conserve wild life. They need to be made aware of the requirement to eliminate pollution of streams and waterways, as well as the air man breathes.

A variety of projects are designed to bring about this awareness on the part of individuals. Projects are available to members in simple beginning soil and water conservation and run through the gamut of wild life conservation, rangeland conservation and other phases of the conservation programs.

Incidentally, members of the Nebraska Assn. of Soil and Water Conservation Districts, at their annual meeting this past October, passed a resolution to support the 4-H conservation programs.

Club leaders hope that every 4-H member in Valley County will give full consideration to the possibility of participating in at least one or more conservation projects.

Although not directly associated with conservation, forestry projects are nevertheless quite closely correlated to it. Through 4-H forestry projects, members become aware of different species of trees and shrubs. They also become aware of the need for sound management practices in timber production.

Members also are taught the important role trees play in the economy of the United States, as well as the beauty they provide and the unmeasurable or esthetic value that can be gained from windbreak and shelterbelt plantings. One of the more advanced forestry projects deals with the planning and caring for a farmstead or the shelterbelt type windbreak planting.

Through the junior leadership project, 4-H members have an opportunity to further develop their leadership abilities. Junior leaders (older members who have had at least two years of project experience) assist leaders with various phases of 4-H projects. They may help plan the local club program, lead a small project group, or assist with exhibits and fairs. As their leadership abilities are developed, they may assume the major responsibilities in whatever projects they undertake.

Horticulture projects may be considered production-type projects. Club members may choose to plant and care for the family garden, where vegetables and produce are grown for use on the family table. Commercial gardening, where the produce is sold for profit, may also be selected by the 4-H'er.

Even the 4-H boy or girl living in town, who is limited to the confines of his home lot, can participate in horticulture projects. For example, care and maintenance of the home lawn is a very desirable project. The member may choose to perform all the work involved in maintaining the home lawn as well as plan and perform needed landscaping and planting tasks. This project is commonly called yard beautification.

Bug or entomology projects are also available to the boy or girl living in town who wants the experiences gained from 4-H activities but does not have facilities to carry out a production-type project.

Entomology projects start with the collection and identification of some 20 to 30 common insects. More advanced units require members to identify and name more insects. The economic importance of insects, and they gain an understanding of insect controls. Not only do they learn which chemical to use on a specific insect, they also learn how to use this insecticide properly so that the possibility of food and feed contamination — as well as injury to the user — are minimized.

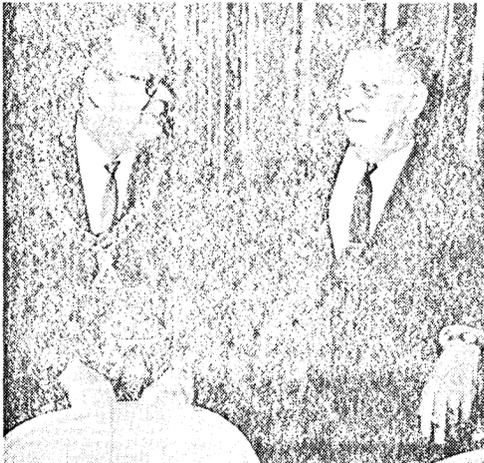

Also of interest to the 4-H'er is the size of his project. Why a dog project in 4-H? So boys and girls — particularly those youths who do not live on farms — can learn to understand animals. A dog project also provides an educational tool to develop dependability and pride of ownership among youngsters. And if there is not a family pet already available, the 4-H'er has the thrill of choosing his own dog. Learning about canine health and daily care are other benefits of a dog project.

A dog in the 4-H household is expected to shape up, walk right, and obey its master.

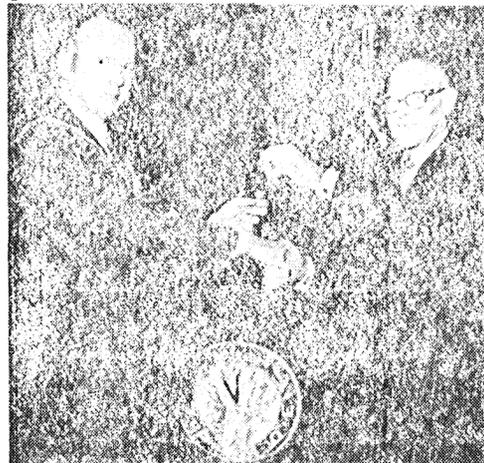

Electrical projects in 4-H range from repairing electric cords to items and building complicated electrical devices. Electric projects can save money and often lead to a career, besides being installing complete wiring systems.

education programs, or "Dollars and Sense" as it is called in Nebraska, are taking part in an activity that meets the "today" needs of youth. Emphasis is now being placed on consumer education in money management. The 4-H'ers learn not only good money management practices, but also are taught to become product conscious and to deal with reputable businesses.

With teenagers spending $15 billion annually for consumer goods and influencing family expenditures on an additional $30 billion, consumer education for teens is vitally important.

From these brief descriptions of some of the various 4-H projects available to youngsters, it can be seen that the program is certainly varied. There is something in the 4-H program for everyone. And if every potential 4-H'er will look these possibilities over, he will undoubtedly find something suited just for him.

Parents should also consider enrolling their youngsters in a 4-H project. Anyone with questions on this matter may visit the County Extension Office for a personal discussion of the 4-H program.

School officials say that the antiquated, exposed steam pipes seen in this classroom picture represent a safety hazard to the students. No pipes have broken while children were around, but they have broken, at other times. Such pipes are common throughout the building.

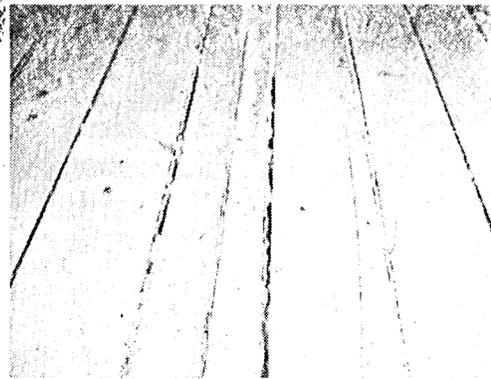

Fifty-eight years of wear have left huge splinters exposed in various portions of the wood floor. These are located in front of a much-used water fountain.

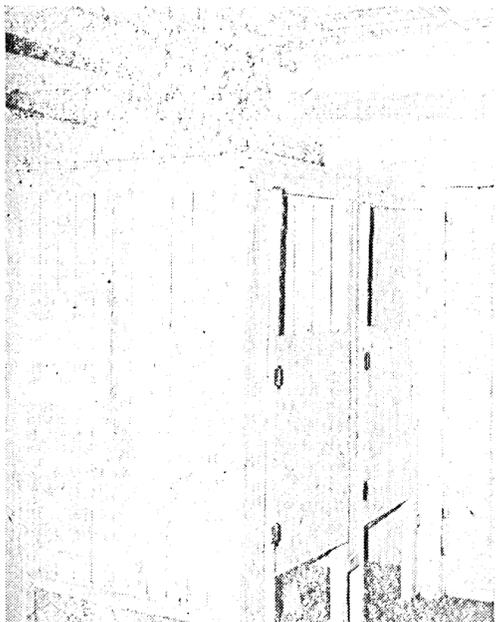

Here's another shot of those exposed steam pipes. These are located in the small gymnasium where the children gather for physical education and various group activities.

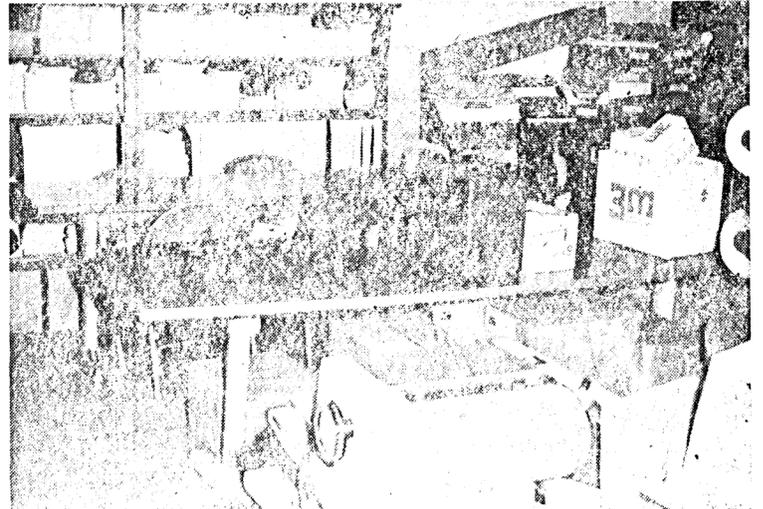

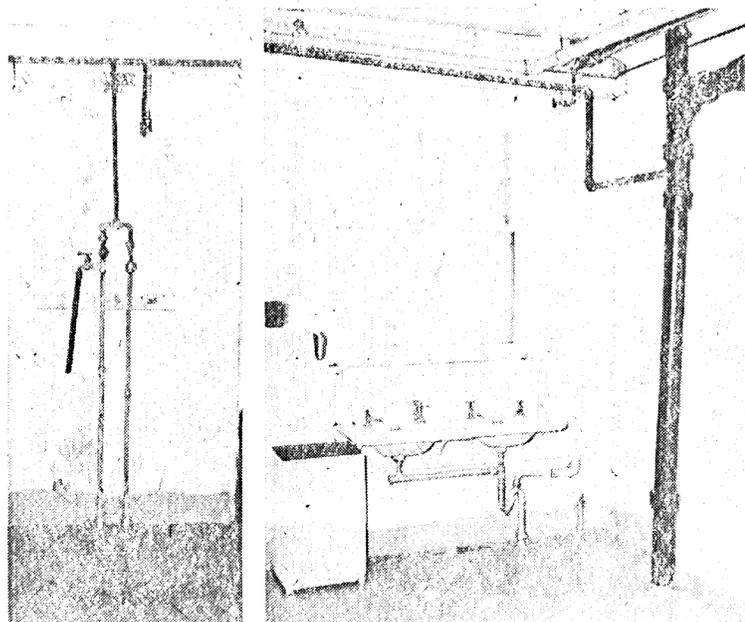

Many of the pictures on this page were furnished by Ray's Studio.

Wood floor shows wear.

Bathroom, washing, and shower facilities in the present school leave much to be desired, in the minds of school officials. While those shown here are antiquated, they are better than what exists on the second floor, Principal Gerald Decker states. He says there are no bathroom facilities whatsoever on that floor. If a child becomes sick, he must go from the second floor to the first to reach a bathroom. If the teacher doesn't think he can "hold it" that long, she sends him with a trash can.

Because of a shortage of classrooms, this storage space has been pressed into service during certain periods of the day. When it is being used for classes, other teachers must stay out. This obviously causes great inconvenience.

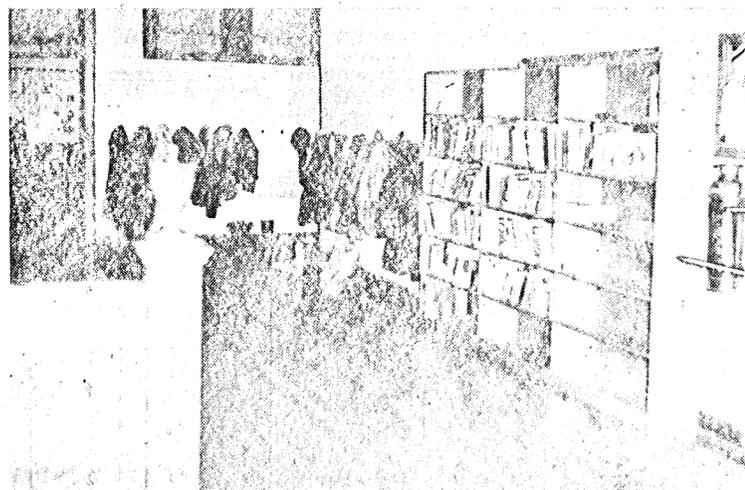

Unfinished plywood lines this hallway. Officials point out that it would burn quickly in case of fire. Ironically, the room at right is the one which provides access to the lone fire escape second floor students would probably have to use if a fire did occur. It is also located almost directly opposite the stairs, which fire authorities say would probably be inaccessible. The updraft they create would make them the first thing to burn.

This is what that lone fire escape looks like from the ground. When it is used during fire drills, the building can be emptied in about five minutes.

The scenes on this page illustrate some of the reasons Board of Education members in Ord feel the city needs a new grade school building. An open house will be held Thursday, Feb. 6, at the present school so voters can see for themselves what it is really like. The building will be open from 8 a.m. till 9 p.m., and citizens may browse at their own leisure. School personnel will be present to answer questions but will not attempt to guide voters to certain areas. School will be in session as any other day. Gerald Decker, principal, has stated: "The school building is purposely open for your benefit to see the condition of your grade school. You may come any time you wish and look around. You are free to go where you wish in the building, whether it be the classrooms, boiler room, gym, dressing rooms, restrooms, etc."

One desire of school officials is to get away from bussing elementary students during the lunch hour. Because the present school has no kitchen or food drying facilities, students are bussed to the high school for lunch each day, regardless of weather conditions.

The present school has no library. A make-shift one has been established in the second-floor hallway. Because traffic cannot be impeded, no tables and only one or two chairs can be placed there for the convenience of students who wish to use what limited library facilities are available. A comprehensive library facility is the major feature of the proposed school building.

KERRY ON By Kerry Leggett

"Is life really worth living," the philosopher inquired of his students.

From the back row piped a voice: "What else can you do with it?"

Both questions are worth asking. Both deserve an answer. Yes, life is worth living... and there are many things you can do with it.

The problem lies in knowing one's self. Too many of us are terrified from ourselves. We travel the road of least resistance with hope upon hope that we won't ever encounter our inner self.

But how wonderful that discovery can be, if we'll just let it be so.

We keep ourselves busy, fill our lives with the thousands of diversions offered in our leisure, stuff our heads with knowledge, involve ourselves with everyone around us, and cover so much ground that we never really learn to find ourselves.

That mysterious and wonderful world within goes unprobed... usually because that's the way we want it. More often than not people are afraid of their real self. They don't want to depend upon themselves... they don't want to live with themselves. They merely want to be carried along with the tide of humanity and everyday living.

With so much tension in the modern world it is hard — but not impossible — to retreat until we find ourselves. Norman Vincent Peale tells of the governor of a western state that joins a group of Roman Catholic men in a year's retreat where in religious silence is imposed for 48 hours.

"How," asked Peale, "can a politician keep quiet for two days? It seems incredible."

"That is the cure," the governor replied with a grin. "It's the curative value of discipline. And, also, in silence you find yourself and God. Insights come as the fitful fever of life is lessened."

When you take a mental retreat it's not necessary to forget the past completely. But it is highly important to fix your attention on the future.

No one can make his mind a vacuum, but he can forget one thing by remembering another.

How far back do you remember? Do you remember your first love affair? And how did you forget that when you thought your whole life would end? It was not by determining to forget, but by falling in love with someone else.

No vacuum exists, nor will one ever exist without something rushing in to take its place if we'll but let it.

Set a goal. Devote earnest effort to planning your life, to setting for yourself something which you wish to achieve. Winds and storms may doubtless force you occasionally off your course, but surely it is better to have a course to follow than to float about rudderless and goalless.

There are three things extremely hard: steel, a diamond, and to know ourself.

And remember that true happiness is less dependent upon things than it is upon the personality of the individual. The kind of happiness which remains with us is the kind which springs from inward thoughts and emotions rather than external things.

You can complain because roses bushes have thorns, or rejoice because thorn bushes have roses. It's all how you look at it.

THE Ord Quiz

Please, No Tax Cut!

Nebraska voters did their state legislators no favors last fall when they authorized the lawmakers to exempt certain homesteads from any or all state property taxes.

Barely three weeks into the current legislative session, the senators already find themselves sharply divided about the extent to which they should use their newly allotted authority.

To date five separate bills on the homestead exemption issue have been introduced in the 1969 legislature. They differ basically in their broadness—whether proposed exemptions will apply to all homesteads or just those of certain groups—and in the size of exemptions they will allow.

Gov. Norbert Tiemann favors Legislative Bill 243, which would allow a straight $1,500 exemption on assessed value of all homesteads. The governor says the people indicated their support for across-the-board exemptions when they approved a constitutional amendment last November giving the legislature authority to make such exemptions.

The Alternatives

Other bills introduced and their basic provisions are:

LB 157—Would allow exemptions on the homesteads of persons 62 years old or over, and persons who are receiving relief payments from the State Assistance Fund. Such homesteads would be exempt from taxation to the extent of $2,000 actual value if they are valued above $10,000, or to 20 percent of actual value if they are valued at $10,000 or lower.

LB 179—Would allow exemptions on the homesteads of persons 62 or over. Such homesteads would be exempt from taxation to the extent of $2,000 or 50 percent of the actual value, whichever is less.

LB 404—Would allow exemptions on the homesteads of persons 65 or over, provided that their income is not more than $3,500 annually. Such homesteads would be exempt to the extent of 50 percent of the actual value.

LB 446—Would exempt in full the homesteads of veterans who are totally disabled as a result of military service. This bill would also broaden and extend to some extent the present exemption of a home furnished by the Veteran's Administration to paraplegic or multiple-amputee veterans.

Tiemann-Backed Bill Costly

By this day of ever-increasing taxes, no one would oppose a chance to go the other way if it were offered with no strings attached. But before jumping on the bandwagon for LB 243, which is the broadest of the proposals and the one favored by Governor Tiemann, it is wise to look into the matter a little deeper.

Since assessed value in Nebraska is rated at 35 percent of actual value, the $1,500 exemption means that taxes on a $9,000 piece of property would be cut almost in half. The Nebraska Tax Research Council, Inc. has estimated that LB 243 would thus result in a loss of approximately $10½ million to the state.

County governments, which are already hard-pressed for funds, would find themselves in tighter financial straits too if LB 243 were to become law.

The council found it impossible to make accurate estimates on the effects of the other bills, but it said their impact would be much smaller since only selected groups would be exempted.

City Dwellers Benefit at Rural Expense

Governor Tiemann has already "trimmed all the fat" from his proposed budget and still comes up with more expenses than income, so it appears the state can ill-afford to lose $10½ million.

Most likely it won't—even if the broader LB 243 is passed. Instead, the $10½ million will be obtained elsewhere—possibly from a higher income tax, possibly from a higher sales tax, probably from higher taxes on real estate other than owner-occupied homesteads.

Most city residents own merely the house they live in. To them LB 243 would provide a big tax break.

But to rural residents, who usually own properties other than just their homesteads, it would most likely be a great burden. These rural families would probably pay heavier taxes not only to make up for what they were no longer paying on their own homesteads, but also for what city residents were no longer paying.

Persons who are renting would probably absorb part of the deficit, too, in the form of higher rent. Since rental properties would not be exempted, the taxes on this type of real estate would probably go up also.

Thus, when all aspects of LB 243 are considered, it does not appear to be one that is of benefit to rural Nebraska.

In a recent meeting with local officials from his five-county district, Senator Rudolf Kokes pledged to work for a homestead exemption law "which will hurt us the least."

We trust he will oppose LB 243 and work for one of the other proposed bills—preferably 404 which would provide relief where it is most needed.

A House Divided Against Itself

Beleaguered taxpayers might also be interested in how some of their money is being used at the federal level to finance both sides of a series of lawsuits.

In its weekly news memorandum dated Jan. 6, the Office of Economic Opportunity told how 26 suits had been filed in November alone to force counties which had declined to participate in federal food aid programs to do so. More than half the suits, it said, were filed by Legal Services lawyers. They were coordinated by the Columbia University Center on Social Welfare Policy and Laws, and directed against specific states as well as the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

The memorandum specifically mentioned a California case which was filed by the California Rural Legal Assistance program, which is supported by federal anti-poverty funds.

Thus, taxpayers are financing OEO, the Legal Services lawyers, and the Department of Agriculture at the federal level. The Columbia department which coordinated the suits has also received some government money.

Now it appears the taxpayers are going to support yet another party in the conflict, as the House Appropriations Committee has announced plans to investigate this strange state of affairs.

Dear Quiz-Reading Friends:

It is impossible to find words to express our appreciation and gratitude for your generous response to my request for mail for my husband following his surgery to repair an abdominal aortic aneurysm. The fact that the Quiz is widely read is proven by the many cards and letters still arriving from many points in Nebraska (and elsewhere), as well as from old neighbors with Archedia, North Loup, and Ord addresses. A heart-felt "thank you" to one and all! Not the least blessing, during such ordeals, is the deepening realization there are many dear people who care and are moved to let one know of their concern.

Guy is growing stronger and is taking daily walks. His surgeon is pleased with his progress, and we have set Apr. 1 as a tentative date for his return to work. Surely, we have much for which to be thankful.

We are trusting that in time the memory of our sense of anxiety and frustration (not only because of impending serious surgery but also because of post-operative of the operation, first because of a strike called by hospital employees and later because of the prevalence of Hong Kong flu among members of the surgical staff) will fade — but we shall always treasure the memory of each kind and thoughtful word and act in our behalf. May God bless and keep you always in our prayer.

Change in School Board Elections Proposed by Nebraska Legislator

By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Assn.

LINCOLN — The Nebraska legislature, after concentrating on a record number of bill introductions during the first two weeks of the new session, has begun the job of working through the stacks of proposals.

Gov. Norbert Tiemann has predicted more than 1,200 bills eventually will be placed in the senators' laps for action. The total is already about half-way there.

The sorting-out process at the committee level began last week. The biggest early fireworks were produced with a proposal introduced by Senator Eugene Mahoney of Omaha who wanted members of the Omaha School Board to be elected by districts instead of at-large.

The Omaha Parent-Teacher Assn. vigorously opposed the measure and organized two bus-

Life Is Just One Obstacle After Another, Say the Regular Clientele at National Hall

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

Paul Waldmann told the fellers at the National Hall the other night that he had thought it up one side and down the other, and he figured getting born was hazardous to your health. Everything a feller does after that just increases the danger, Paul said.

For example, the first thing you do on this earth is add to the population problem, and after that you start working on the world's short supply of food, water, and air.

It is fantastic, allowed Paul, that more than half the people in this country weren't born when the Japs bombed Pearl Harbor.

With half the people under 25 years old, and them people having new people, and old people living longer and longer, said Paul, it ain't no wonder we're fast running out of food to eat, water to drink, air to breathe, and ground to stand on.

Rudy Vodalneck agreed with Paul for a change. Rudy said the world was fast filling up, but he had seen where folks are figuring how to use the space we got better. Paul had seen this piece where Japan is making bricks out of garbage and working on two problems at once. He said, they have machines that pack the garbage so hard they can build houses with blocks of the stuff. This way they get rid of their garbage and get a house in the bargain. Rudy said the Japs saw a grabage compressor in this country and then went home and made a better copy. That was the usual way fer them, Rudy said.

Paul was of the opinion that the Japs and the Germans are about the best friends we got left in the world, and their economies are in better shape than any of them countries that beat 'em in the war. The secret to their success, Paul said he heard this feller say, was they know how to pick their enemies.

We'll soon have this country paved complete, Paul said, and we'll have to get food somewhere else. The Japs have been getting a fine dish of greens from seaweed for some time, allowed Paul, and he had seen where Rudy made from fish was being used in some places.

And this town in Florida, Paul reported, was dumping junk cars in the ocean to make dikes like the Dutch did to drain off some of the sea for farming.

Paul had also read where this feller in England is planning a new school, was dumping built 15 miles out in the ocean.

Personally, I didn't take part in the discussion, Mister Editor, but it looks like to me the way we are using up and polluting everything we ought to eat plenty of fish flour. I hear tell fish is a brain food, and we sure need all the brain power we can get if we want to give everybody a toehold in this old world.

Yours truly,
Geranium Joe

Something Different

Desert Resorts Revisited

This Palm Desert, Calif. is something else. Even among resort towns, it's a marvel. I've viewed it from the days when it was principally sand. Now it's principally money. Of course the sand is still here, and the tumbleweeds, and the cactus.

But mostly it's lush one-story buildings surrounded by neon and swimming pools.

Palm Springs, the mama city a few miles north of here, is bigger, plusher, with more swank shops, more motels, more condominiums, more money, more swimming pools, bigger bars, flower eating places. More people in wilder resort costumes you'll never see.

Women with every color hair, every kind of curls, wear every bright combination of shorts, shirts, shifts and heels. But they all look wealthy!

The flowers are fancier. Palms are dug up and planted where they did not grow. With only abushel or so of roots, they blithely take hold at once.

Every type of desert plant flourishes. Lots of yards are solely sand, barrel cactus, a tipsy palm. Pyracantha flourishes, that handsome green vine with clusters of red berries the birds like. Bougainvillea brightens many a view, as it gets thicker and bears more gay flowers yearly. It is gorgeous. Recently they had a frost that browned these blossoms and others that were tender.

They called it the worst storm in 100 years.

Stopping in Tucson I had a fine visit with Les Martz and his wife Weesie (Louise). Like other ex-Ordites, Les had a hundred questions about the old hometown. I could answer some of these questions. Like who lives where and whatever happened to So-and-So?

And where did they build the new hospital, and where did I live? And where's the low cost housing unit?

Then I tell about the wonders of Ord. What a nice place Smitty has made of his tavern, with live music every Saturday night. What an attractive Vet's Club we have and how busy it is. How large and charming is the new Elks Club, not yet officially open when I left.

And about the new modular unit school building now proposed for Ord.

There are so many items about Ord that I can brag on. Once in a while a supercilious friend queries, "Well if you like it so well, why do you leave?"

To which I archly reply, "But I always come home, don't I?"

The Scott Report

From The Washington News-Intelligence Syndicate
By Paul Scott

WASHINGTON — The Nixon administration has begun preparing new contingency plans to deal with a Hungarian-type revolt should one break out in Czechoslovakia.

The government's highest policy planning group, the National Security Council staff, was assigned the task after President Nixon indicated that he wanted to be prepared for all eventualities.

The crucial question to be studied is what type of help, if any, should the U.S. extend to the people of Czechoslovakia should fighting break out with Soviet forces occupying that country.

Recent tragic acts of protests by young Czechoslovaks, according to information reaching the White House, have brought that country to the verge of open revolt against Soviet occupation forces.

One Central Intelligence Agency report warns that the self-immolation have triggered a wave of national feeling akin to that aroused by executions of Prague University students soon after the Nazi occupation nearly 30 years ago.

In civil political terms, the report points out, the Prague communist leadership will soon have to decide on whether to support the growing student protest or

Coordinating Our Plans

Under the new policy review, State Department officials have been instructed to contact Western European governments to determine what additional planning, if any, the North Atlantic should be undertaking at this time.

Because of Czechoslovakia's common border with West Germany, it is the belief of Nixon and his foreign policy advisers that any violent showdown in Prague could easily involve U.S. forces stationed in West Germany.

The Russians have kept two of their crack divisions near the West German border since their massive troop movements into Czechoslovakia last August.

New reports of military maneuvers in Western Russia, similar to those conducted last August before the invasion of Czechoslovakia, are causing additional concern among Nixon's advisers.

These unannounced maneuvers, they point out, could be the force

Two-Faced Policy

Only to its own working class for preserving the communist system in Bonn and Prague, stated recently, "to the whole world Communist movement for the common task of achieving full victory of Communism."

Unflinching unity of the Communist camp is demanded. Without international solidarity of the forces of world socialism (communism) it is impossible to guarantee the independence of each fraternal country individually," says Pravda.

The growing number of official Kremlin statements like the above, along with recent events in Czechoslovakia, convinced President Nixon that the U.S. should be prepared for a new violent confrontation in Prague.

The Berlin Watch

The U.S., Britain, and France — still sovereign in West Berlin — have so far raised no objections. However, President Nixon is now reviewing the U.S. position at the request of Henry Cabot Lodge, his chief negotiator at the Berlin talks.

Traditionally, West German presidents are chosen by an assembly of federal and state lawmakers in Berlin. Dr. Eugen Gerstenmaier, Bundestage president who decides on the location, has ruled that Heinrich Lübke's successor will be elected in West Berlin on Mar. 5.

Release Report Submitted

The dean of the University of Wyoming Law College has submitted a report of a study he was commissioned to make by Gov. Norbert Tiemann.

Frank Release was asked to survey Nebraska's administration of natural resources and make recommendations. He recommended a wholesale reorganization of state agencies and the creation of a new Department of Natural Resources.

PROVERBS 29:18 "Where there is no vision, the people perish." Great is the controversy over the direction that churches in the Twentieth Century are taking. Heatedly different concepts are presented and contended for by the faithful supporters of these concepts. Some would make the church an institution to be a physical aid to the less fortunate. Others would completely neglect the need of the body and concentrate entirely on the things which are spiritual. Both are important. However, the lesson that the modern church needs to learn is that NOT ONE RELIGIOUS REVIVAL HAS EVER BEEN PRODUCED THROUGH LIBERALISM. The church and those who stand in her pulpits must be anchored to the solid rock of Jesus Christ and preach to a condemned world, "Jesus Christ, and him crucified!" The words of Solomon, "where there is no vision, the people perish," can be used as commentary to describe the average Christian. Most churches and the people who are members of them seem to have no desire to turn this world upside down and win it for Jesus Christ. The popular belief is that once you've been to church on Sunday you've fulfilled your area of christian responsibility. Might I remind you that the church service (wherever you attend) is not a time to make your christian witness felt; but it is a time to be filled with the spirit to be vitalized, to be stirred anew, to be lifted up and challenged to be a true servant of God. When you go back out into the pathway it is then that the christian witnessing should take place. But all too often, many churches have no such vision. To them the church has become a place where they leave their faith when they depart for home following the sermon. The

LP-Gas Saves Pig Energy for Growing

Today's hog operators are turning more and more to economical dependable LP-Gas unit heaters to raise winter pigs for peak spring prices. Safe, vented heating systems control air movement, avoid drafts and prevent crowding.

LP-Gas users report improved gains as growing hogs can devote feed energy to growth instead of body heat maintenance.

LP-Gas is piped directly to this area by a division of MAPCO - The Mid-America Pipeline System - the underground highway weather can't block.

Members of Association for Retarded Will Vote on Relationship to State Group

Members of the North Central Assn. for Retarded Children will decide Feb. 17 whether they will continue to support financially the group's parent organization. The members will vote at their February meeting on a proposed change in bylaws. One of these changes would alter the passage which says the local association agrees to maintain membership in state and national associations, to adhere to their policies, and to support the state group financially.

If the change is approved, voting to the effect that the local organization agrees "to maintain an interest in state and local associations, and to support their activities" will be substituted.

"Some members feel that dues assessments of the Nebraska State Assn. for Retarded Children have been unrealistic in the past," said Mrs. Jewell Buoy, secretary of the local organization, in explaining the reason for the vote.

Mrs. Buoy said the state association billed the local group approximately $1,300 for dues the past year. So far the North Central Assn. has been unable to meet that commitment.

When North Central originally joined the state association, dues were assessed according to the number of members in the local group ($1 per member). Now they are based on total population in the geographic area covered (4 cents per person), Mrs. Buoy explained.

Because the North Central Assn. covers seven counties, the present type of assessment results in a substantial sum, the secretary said.

"To provide some relief, we are working to reduce the area we cover to only Valley County, or Valley County and its immediate environs," she added.

"Our members have neither the time nor the resources to go out and work the entire seven-county area for donations," she explained. "As a result, most of our money comes from Valley County — and the great majority of that from Ord."

Donations, benefits, and dues of local members are the only means the association has of raising money.

"If we could get our dues reduced to about $325 — approximately what they would be if Valley County alone were covered — we feel we would be able to handle them," she said.

The second by-law change that the members will pass judgment on concerns bonding of the treasurer. The proposal is to eliminate entirely the present requirement for bonding.

The decision to vote on the proposals was made at the association's regular January meeting. At that session it was also revealed that $56 in donations had been received for operating expenses since the December meeting. Another $24 had been received for the building fund to finance construction of a new Opportunity School facility.

Miss Fuss Wins In Competition For Scholarship

A one-year Regents' Scholarship to the University of Nebraska has been won by Marilyn Fuss, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Fuss of Cotesfield.

The winner is a senior at North Loup-Scotia High School.

Named as alternates for scholarships were Jolene Wells, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Wells of Cotesfield, and Donald Kluthe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Kluthe of Scotia. They also are seniors at North Loup-Scotia.

Miss Fuss won the scholarship by scoring highest among North Loup-Scotia students taking the Scholastic Aptitude Test. Her score also had to be above a minimum level established by university officials, as did the totals of the two alternates.

Just to take the test, they had to be in the upper one-fourth of their class at the start of the senior year.

All three honorees are listed on the current North Loup-Scotia honor roll, which covers the third six-week period of the fall semester. Miss Fuss received all A's while Miss Wells and Kluthe each received one B.

State-wide, a total of 202 students won Regents' Scholarships for the 1969-70 fall term.

Village Marshal Of North Loup Dies at Hospital

Funeral services were held Sunday for Harlow Brennick, 65, street and water commissioner and marshal of North Loup the past 27 years.

Mr. Brennick died Jan. 30 at the Valley County Hospital after a long illness.

Rev. Duane Davis and Rev. Mynor Soper officiated at the 2:30 p.m. service held at the Seventh Day Baptist Church in North Loup. Mr. and Mrs. George Cox sang "Great Is Thy Faithfulness." Mrs. Mynor Soper was the organist.

Active pallbearers were Cecil Knapp, William Vodelnal, Fred Lundstedt, Charles Lundstedt, George Maxson, and Menzo Fuller. Present and former law enforcement officers served as honorary bearers. They were Robert Hill, Clarence E. Fox, Dwayne Wert, Phil Quinn, Harwood Rice, Otto Zapp, Gerald Schmitt, John Boettcher, Bud Kearns, Oren Carr, and Fred Hilmer. Interment was in the North Loup Hillside Cemetery with Hastings Pearson Mortuary in charge of arrangements.

Mr. Brennick was born May 22, 1903, in North Loup, the son of Charley and Margeritha (Peterson) Brennick. He lived his entire life in the North Loup community.

He was married to Louise Hutchins Sept. 30, 1929, at North Loup. The couple farmed until 1942 when Mr. Brennick began his work with the village of North Loup.

Survivors include his wife; one daughter, Mrs. Jennie Abel; one brother, Robert Brennick; and one sister, Mrs. Pearl Mulligan. They all reside in North Loup. Additional survivors are one sister, Mrs. Mary Weed of Alliance, and three grandchildren.

Mr. Brennick was predeceased by his parents and an infant son.

A landmark since 1910, the present grade school faces a voter assault Tuesday.

Questions Answered

School Board Plans No Major Cuts If Bond Issue Fails

(Editor's Note: This is the final article in a series explaining in detail plans for Ord's proposed grade school. This week's article consists of miscellaneous items that either did not fit into previous articles or which warrant reemphasizing. A question-and-answer format is used.)

Q: What happens if the bond issue is disapproved?

A: Board of Education members indicated at their monthly meeting Monday that the issue will be resubmitted to the voters as soon as possible without any substantial changes.

"I think quite a few people have the impression that we will cut something out to lower the cost if the bond issue fails," said Dr. Otis Miller, president of the board. "That is an erroneous impression as far as I'm concerned. I feel this building meets our minimum requirements, and it would not do so if anything presently included were left out. I do not intend to give the people an inadequate facility simply to secure passage."

Other members of the board indicated their agreement with Dr. Miller's position.

Q: If the bond issue fails, when can it be resubmitted?

A: It can be resubmitted six months from the date of the previous election unless a disaster causes an emergency, a new district is created or a regular election occurs during the interval. An Ord city election is scheduled Apr. 1; thus, it could be resubmitted at that time.

Q: Why don't we build a new high school and convert the present one into a grade school?

A: "The biggest part of education is the basic part," stated Dr. Miller in response to this query. "Our present high school is not designed for the type of elementary program we feel is best for the students. I feel that elementary education should not be secondary — without a good start you're in trouble the rest of the way."

Q: Why was the Knickreim School in Grand Island built for $12 per square foot and this one will cost $16 per square foot?

A: A brochure from the dedication program at Knickreim lists the cost per square foot at $15.10. However, this includes the cost of furniture, equipment and carpeting, which is not included in the Ord figure. Without including furniture and equipment — but keeping in carpet since no figures were given for it specifically — the cost per square foot at Knickreim was $14.35 (for general contract, electrical, and mechanical work). Construction began in the spring of 1966 — more than three years before work can begin in Ord. Construction costs are rising 10 to 15 percent per year.

Q: Will these rising costs mean that the building will be more expensive if the bond issue fails now but passes later?

A: Yes, if present economic conditions continue.

Q: Isn't the architect's fee excessive?

A: Architects charge a flat 6½ percent of total building costs. That portion of $940,000 is $53,900.

Q: How were these architects selected?

A: "We talked to seven or eight different architectural firms," stated Dr. Miller. "We formally interviewed and checked the past work of four of them."

Q: Why is so much land needed?

A: In a telephone conversation Wednesday morning, Roger D. Farrar of the State Department of Education in Lincoln said the department recommends a minimum of 10 acres for an elementary school plus one acre for each 100 children in projected enrollment. Thus, if the Ord school projects an enrollment of 400 students (present enrollment is about 360), the state recommends 14 acres. That's the basic 10 acres plus one acre per 100 students. "There are many reasons for this," Farrar said. "Physical education and recreation are playing a part they have never played before. As a result, more and different types of play facilities are needed for the different games. Also, deliveries should be made in an area completely isolated from student play areas. Bus loading and unloading should also be accomplished in an area separate from where parents are picking up and discharging children."

"Finally," said Farrar, "if the school board later discovers it does not need all the land, I'm sure it can sell the excess for at least as much as it paid."

Weeks of speculation will end Tuesday as voters of School District No. 5 approve or reject a $940,000 bond issue. If it passes, the money will be used to finance construction of a new grade school in Ord.

This is one election where voters do not have to be registered to cast ballots. Anyone who is at least 21 years of age and has lived in the school district for 40 days may vote, provided he meets any one of the following additional requirements:

(1) Owns real or personal property that was assessed in the district under his name at the last annual assessment.

(2) Is the husband or wife of a person owning real or personal property that was assessed in the spouse's name at the last annual assessment;

(3) Has children of school age residing in the district under his real or personal property includes automobiles provided they are registered in the district, County Assessor Frank Mottl said yesterday.

With no Harris or Gallup polls to predict the outcome, citizens can pick up just about any rumors they want as to which way the election will go.

The proposed building is a one-story facility of approximately 38,000 square feet. It would contain 14 regular classrooms plus kindergarten and special education rooms. The latter would be used to train educable mentally retarded students — those who can be taught a salable skill but cannot necessarily keep up with other students their own age.

In addition, there would be a multi-use room (gymnasium, auditorium), a music room, audiovisual room, faculty dining area, speech room, reading room, and various administrative areas.

The feature of the building would be a centrally located resource materials center (library) with a sub-unit for primary classes at one end and another for intermediate classes at the other end. Classrooms for those age groups would be clustered around the respective instructional materials center (sub-library).

Another key feature of the building would be exterior doors in every classroom. Not only would these doors serve as immediate exits in case of fire, they could also be used for entering or leaving the building during play periods. This would prevent one class from disturbing another, school officials pointed out.

If approved, the building would be constructed on a 25-acre plot of land located just south of the Ord city limits. The land is now occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Albin Dobrovsky;

Meantime, though, it has some place to expand should it desire to do so.

The 10-acre-plus is also recommended by the National Council of Educational Facility Planners, Farrar said.

Q: If a rural school district joins District 5 after the bond issue is passed, will taxpayers in that area be obligated?

A: Yes, they will be required to pay a fair and proportionate share.

Q: I live in Comstock. We have our own school. This one will merely raise my taxes.

A: Since taking over the Comstock School, District 5 has conducted a fine educational program in that community. Before joining District 5, the levy in Comstock was 72 mills. After joining it dropped to 32. If the bond issue passes, the levy will jump to 39 or 40. District 5 officials still consider that a fair exchange, considering the improved academic program they have provided.

Q: Will our school at Comstock be closed down and our children bussed to Ord if a new building is constructed?

A: The Board of Education has no plans to alter in any way the present arrangement regarding the Comstock School.

Principal Acclaims Sessions Success At Ord High School

Last week's parent-teacher conferences at Ord High School were a booming success, Principal Bob Norton announced afterwards.

"Not a single pair of boxing gloves were required as teachers and parents hit it off fine for the most part," Norton said. The teachers had been apprehensive before the sessions began, but all were enthusiastic following their conclusion. He said he felt with parents and teachers concerned things that will help the children.

Especially pleasing to Norton was the turnout. Of 360 families with students, only 18 failed to show. "And most of them had good reasons," he said.

He was particularly happy about the large number of fathers who attended.

"Many of them took time off from their jobs," he said. "They felt it was worth one to three hours, and there were some fine bosses who let them off."

"I think this speaks well for the interest this community has in its children," he concluded.

Meeting Scheduled At Christian Church Starting Sunday

The Ord Christian Church will hold evangelistic services nightly, beginning Sunday and continuing through Feb. 14. The services will commence each evening at 8 p.m.

Howard Roseberry, minister of the Central Church of Christ at Gering, will be the evangelist. Roseberry has served the Gering church for the past 11 years.

Jerry Beckenhauer, minister of the Church of Christ at Sargent, will lead the singing. He has served as song evangelist in several gospel meetings.

The community has been invited to attend all services.

Old Hospital Sold For $30,000 To Bill French

The old Valley County Hospital building changed hands recently with Bill French purchasing it from Henry Lange.

Now housing French's insurance office as well as the LeBow Home for Senior Citizens, the building was sold for $30,000. Lange had co-owned it with Dr. Glen Auble; however, before selling it to French he purchased Auble's share for $12,500.

The new owner said there would be no change in the building's function. The rest home will continue as at present, he said, "with a few improvements in physical facilities as time goes along."

Sperling Named By Dairy Group As President

Six Valley County dairymen met in the County Extension Office on Jan. 30 to organize a local Dairy Herd Improvement Assn.

Officers elected for the 1969 term are Rodney Sperling, president; Thead Nelson, vice-president; and Mrs. Harry Hopkins, secretary-treasurer. M. Dale Sell, Maynard Schudel, Gayle Lenstrom, and Armin Lueck were elected to the board of directors.

The newly formed association rehired Herman Maxson as supervisor. Membership dues were set at $10 per year.

North Loup-Scotia Coach Resigns But Will Finish This School Year

In the midst of one of its best basketball seasons ever, North Loup-Scotia High School has learned that it will lose its head coach at the end of this school year.

Coach LaVelle Miller's resignation was accepted by the North Loup-Scotia Board of Education at its January meeting. He said he wanted to obtain a master's degree in physical education and administration.

A 1964 graduate of the University of Wyoming, where he received a Bachelor of Science degree in education, Miller said he would voluntarily return to his alma mater for graduate work. He is a native of Cheyenne, Wyo.

Going into last night's game with Sargent, Coach Miller's team had won 11 and lost only one this year.

Combined with his 16-4 record of 1967-68, that gave him a 27-5 mark for his year and a half with the Wildcats.

Before coming to North Loup-Scotia, Miller coached two years at Spencer. His first team there had a 21-3 record and set a state tournament scoring record for all classes by running up 93 points against Norfolk Buns. However, the team from near the South Dakota line lost later in the semifinals.

The following year Miller's

Spencer team had a 14-4 mark. In addition to serving as head basketball coach at North Loup-Scotia, Miller has assisted in football and held the head track job. He also teaches history.

Resembling a giant expanse of water more than a golf course, the Ord Municipal lay-out shimmers under a blanket of snow as the sun sets in the western sky. This was one of the more pleasant scenes Loup Valley residents could remember about January, 1969.

January's Gone . . . With Few Regrets

With nary a tear, Loup Valley residents watched one of the foulest Januaries in memory pass into history Friday at midnight.

Seeking to determine just exactly how foul it was, Ord weatherman Horace Travis went digging through his record books. Mon night — and he came up with some startling revelations.

So far this winter Ord has received 21.8 inches of snow. Nineteenths of an inch came in November, 10.9 inches in December, and 10 inches in January.

But that's nothing compared to the 68.7 inches which fell during the famous winter of 1948 and 49. In fact, it's still some distance from the average winter's reception of 30.8 inches accumulated over the past 41 years.

Of course no one is guaranteeing that February — and even March or April — won't bring additions to this year's total. As a matter of fact, that groundhog had to be blind or asleep if he didn't get a good gander at his shadow Sunday.

Further proving that no one should start his spring planting yet, Travis dug out the statistics for 1936. The coldest 35-day period in Ord's recorded weather history occurred that year, and it didn't get started until Jan. 18.

High and low averages for the 35 days were 6.1 degrees and minus 10.8. For eight days during the stretch the thermometer failed to rise above zero. Only twice did it fail to get below zero at some point during each 24-hour period.

The low was reached on Valentine's Day that year as the mercury plunged to 22 below zero. Five days later it was down again to 20 below.

Furthermore, 12 inches of snow lay on the ground as of Jan. 13 that year, and a month later the total had risen to 17.

Travis refused to estimate how much of this year's snow is still around, but he did confirm that it is nothing approaching that figure. Temperature-wise, this winter has not been so bad either. The averages for December were 22.6, high, and 9.9, low. For January they were 23.7 and 4.7.

To make those figures sound almost tropic, Travis listed the six coldest days on record. They are:

Jan. 5, 1924, 32 below zero.
Jan. 11, 1918, 31 below zero.
Feb. 2, 1917, 27 below zero.
Jan. 3, 1911, 26 below zero.
Jan. 27, 1963, 25 below zero.
Jan. 25, 1968, 26 below zero.

Now, that 21 below zero Ord had back in late December doesn't sound so bad, does it? Of course there's another side to the picture too. For example, only 0.3 inches of snow fell the entire winter of 1927-28.

Which all goes to prove what everybody knew anyhow — the weather will do what it damn well pleases, and all man's griping and complaining can do naught to change it.

There was standing room only much of the time at parent-teacher conferences.
