Veterans Moving To High School For Program

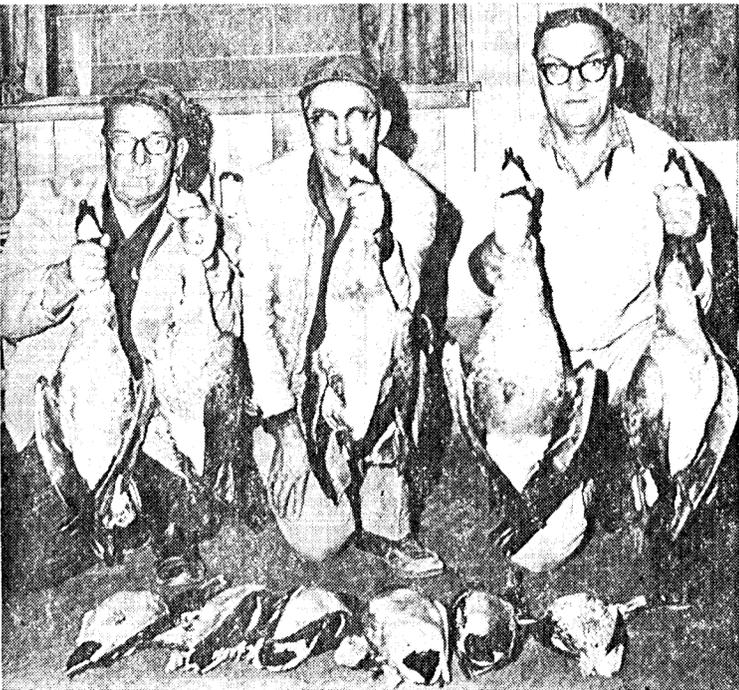

Ord citizens will not have to stand in the cold this Veterans Day to pay homage to their fellow Americans who have made the supreme sacrifice to keep this country free.

Instead of holding this year's Veterans Day observance on the steps of the Valley County courthouse as in past years, local officials have announced plans to hold it at the Ord High School. Participating units and individuals will assemble at the Veterans Club and march from there to the high school auditorium. The entourage will embark from the club at 10:40 a.m.

Also a first this year is direct participation by the high school students. As part of the program, student council president Greg Martin will deliver an address entitled "Veterans Day Is A Day For All Americans."

The primary speaker will be J. Marvin Weems, Ord's newest attorney. A memorial to the dead will be rendered by John Wozab, Valley County service officer, with "Faps" following by Connie Bredthauer and Dan Chester.

Hal Pierce will serve as master of ceremonies, delivering both the opening and closing remarks. Members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the American Legion, and their auxiliaries will also participate, as will the Ord High School band.

Future Fare at Ducks Unlimited Feed

There'll be plenty to eat again this winter at the annual Ducks Unlimited banquet, if the hunting luck of the sponsors continues as well as it's started. Left to right Bob Douthit, Spud Kapuska, and Jim Cetak show off the crop of Canadian geese and wild ducks they shot on a recent hunting expedition to the Missouri River wilds. The birds will be used for the annual Ducks Unlimited benefit scheduled Jan. 31 in Elyria. The trio's hunting location was in the same area that Cetak and Bert Kunz became stranded during a blizzard last winter. Cetak told about his ordeal in a recent issue of Nebraskaland magazine.

New Records at Library

The Radio Corp. of America recently donated 76 record albums to the Ord Public Library. The records are available for check-out, and include such well known artists as Ed Ames, Al Hirt, Four Jacks and a Jill, Don Gibson, and Perry Como. There are also several Walt Disney children's records, plus a number of Christmas albums.

Ambulance service—or more correctly the lack of it—and dirt-moving problems at Ord's new grade school site dominated proceedings of the area's three local governmental bodies this week.

The decision by Hastings-Pearson Mortuary to get completely out of the ambulance business as of Dec. 1 was a prime topic of discussion for both the Ord City Council and the Valley County Supervisors. And both they, as well as the District 5 Board of Education, discussed at length the problems that have cropped up with regard to the massive dirt-moving now going on at the grade-school site.

However, local contractor Don Goodsell indicated Tuesday afternoon that some of the alarm being voiced by property owners and officials about the dirt situation is unwarranted. He said his firm would see that all dirt which has been moved without permission onto private property will be shoveled back onto county or school land when the project is completed.

Bob Coats had appeared Tuesday morning at the County Board meeting to ask about the sharp drop-off that has resulted from dirt being piled onto old Highway 11, which runs alongside the school site. Ed Christensen, a member of the City Council, also appeared to complain about the muddy condition of the road since it is the prime access route to the city's new landfill (dump) which was opened Saturday.

Members of the county board recessed their official meeting and went to the site for a first-hand look. They went away satisfied that there were no major problems that would not be solved before the project is completed.

The ambulance problem was not so easily dismissed. The supervisors wound up taking no action, indicating instead that they would let things ride until their next regular meeting. That's scheduled for Dec. 2, two days after routine ambulance service will have been discontinued.

At last month's meeting the supervisors voted to stop paying the $350 monthly salary of ambulance driver Frank Steinwart, Hastings-Pearson Mortuary, which furnishes the ambulance, promptly announced plans to discontinue the service completely as of Dec. 1. Hilding Pearson and George Hastings, proprietors of the mortuary, cited economic problems brought on by the 1967 minimum wage law as a reason for their action. (For more details on the law and its effects see the editorial on Page 2, Section 2, in today's Quiz).

In making their announcement public with an advertisement in last week's Ord Quiz, Hastings and Pearson noted that in some locales volunteer fire departments had taken over ambulance operations. This brought immediate negative reaction from Ord's volunteer firemen.

"We will continue to provide rescue service in emergencies," Fire Chief Ivan Sorenson told both the City Council and the County Board. "But the last thing we want in Ord is to get the firemen into the ambulance business."

He was backed by a number of other firemen who showed up at the City Council meeting.

Sorenson cited two reasons for refusing to get involved.

"First, we don't want to take the equipment out of town and leave the community unprotected," he said. He indicated that this would be necessary if a patient needed to be transferred to a hospital in some other city.

"Second, we can't afford it," he added. "Practically all the firemen are working men, and they can't expect to get time off from their jobs to run an ambulance business."

At its Monday night meeting, the City Council directed Mayor Bill French to meet the following day with the County Board of Supervisors. He did so, telling them that he was ready to appoint a committee that would work with one appointed by the county in an effort to resolve the problem. However, the supervisors adjourned without taking any action.

In voting last month to stop payment on Steinwart's salary, the supervisors said they had been lying for a year to obtain information from Hastings-Pearson on the number of calls made, the miles driven, etc. Hastings denied this Monday, saying that his company had never been asked for such information.

At Tuesday's meeting the supervisors did have information covering the past two years, which had been provided by the mortuary.

Hastings appeared at the City Council meeting and restated that his company under no conditions would reconsider its decision to stop ambulance service. However, he did offer to give the ambulance to either the city or the county if one of them wanted to take over the service.

He said, though, that should that occur rates would undoubtedly go up. He said other communities who have had the same problem saw their rates doubled when the government took over.

Concerning the dirt problem, the county supervisors had given the school contractor—Busboom & Rauh—permission to dump up to two feet of dirt on the county road that runs alongside the site. However, the subcontractor—Goodsell—dumped eight to 10 feet. This of course buried the old roadbed, and in the meantime the new one was moved some 10 to 15 feet west. A drainage ditch on the east side of the road was completely filled in, and some dirt was also dumped onto private property.

Meeting with the county supervisors Goodsell assured him that all dirt would be moved off private property and that proper drainage arrangements would be made. The county agreed to put in a pair of culverts which would divert water from the east side of the road to the west.

Four Vancuras Battle in Contest

After winning the first two weeks of the season, the Vancura family had been rather quiet in the Quiz football selection contest for a spell.

But that spell was broken resoundingly this week as four persons each predicted 18 games correctly—and all of them were Vancuras. They were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Vancura Jr., Alan Vancura, and Edwin Vancura.

Furthermore, all four of them forecast six points for Ord in the tie-breaker game. Mrs. Vancura proved her superiority over the males, though, by getting Lexington 12 points. The final score was 14-8. Her husband called it 20-6.

Kovarik, Miss Wojtasek Win Top 4-H Awards

A pair of familiar names in Valley County 4-H circles, Duane Kovarik and Rita Wojtasek, were named for top honors at the 1969 4-H awards program held recently.

The two long-time 4-H participants were named recipients of the Achievement Award, which signifies the summit in 4-H activities.

Duane is a senior this year at Ord High School and has been a 4-H member for nine years. He belongs to the Happy Circle Club. Rita is a sophomore this fall and has participated in 4-H for six years. She is a member of the Bonnie Belles Club.

Various local merchants, usually in cooperation with their national affiliates, donated the many awards that were presented. The Achievement Awards were sponsored this year by the Ford Motor Co. and its Ord agency owned by Starling Lee.

Another highlight of the program was the presentation of four alumni awards, which honored adults who have contributed many hours as leaders and assistant leaders to the 4-H program. Cited this year were Mrs. Rita Barnes, Mrs. Frank Maly, Mrs. Bryan Peterson, and the late Don Geweke.

Mrs. Barnes and Mrs. Peterson have both served as leaders for five years in their area. Mrs. Maly has been a leader for seven years. Mr. Geweke had been a leader for two years before his untimely death in an automobile accident one year ago. His widow, Carol Geweke, accepted the award on his behalf.

Editorial Opinion

Let's Talk Facts About Vietnam, Both North and South, Past and Present

(Editor's Note: Aside from his fatal decision not to seek victory, probably the most serious blunder Lyndon Johnson made as President with regard to the Vietnam war was his failure to explain it adequately to the American people.

(A failure to comprehend the background of the war is a basis for many of the differences among the American people today.

(In a "Vox Pop" letter published last week, Darwin Blue took issue with a number of opinions expressed in a previous Quiz editorial. One of Mr. Blue's suggestions — that of "re-settling any South Vietnamese who would feel insecure under a coalition government — was dealt with in an editorial last week. However, because the Vietnam War is the most critical issue facing the United States today, we feel that Mr. Blue has raised other points which not only deserve — but demand — an answer.

(The following open letter provides those answers. It is written not to embarrass Mr. Blue, but to help all Quiz readers understand more fully why the United States is in South Vietnam, and why it should remain there until the people of that country can successfully defend themselves.)

Dear Mr. Blue:

In your letter you said there was no basis for comparing the Vietnam War with others this country has fought, such as the Korean War. "The Korean War was a rather clear case of aggression across an internationally recognized boundary line," you wrote. "In Vietnam the 17th parallel between North and South was accepted in the Geneva accords of 1954 only as a temporary line until free elections were held in 1956. The elections were never held because President Diem and the United States blocked them."

You are correct — as far as you go. But why did President Diem and the United States, under President Eisenhower, block the elections? First, at the Geneva conference neither President Diem — who had just come into power in South Vietnam — nor the United States agreed to the accords as they were written. Both flatly refused to sign them.

Ho Was Happy

The accords were instead an agreement among France, Great Britain, and Russia as the direct participants — and indirectly Ho Chi Minh and North Vietnam.

When the Geneva conference was originally assembled Vietnam was one semi-independent nation existing as part of the French Union. But for years the Communists in Vietnam, under the guise of being "nationalists," had been at war with the French and those Vietnamese loyal to them.

The Geneva conference was assembled, at Great Britain's invitation, with the idea of ending the war as a draw — on the Korean pattern. But while the conference was in session, France was decisively defeated at the Battle of Dien Bien Phu.

This changed things drastically. Having been defeated militarily, France was in no position to dictate nor negotiate very strongly the terms of her surrender.

Ho Chi Minh, as the conqueror, was willing to accept the terms of the conference. Even though it divided Vietnam at the 17th parallel, Ho thought of the division as only temporary. He gained official control of North Vietnam, and he was confident the entire country would come under his authority in the promised elections of 1956.

When 1956 did come along, both President Diem of South Vietnam and President Eisenhower of the United States saw that Ho was right. The Communists would gain control of the entire country if elections were held.

But they would not win because more of the Vietnamese people preferred them. They would win because any elections held in North Vietnam would be a farce.

Presidents Diem and Eisenhower knew this, and their suspicions were confirmed in 1960 when an election finally was held in North Vietnam. Each Communist candidate received an average of 99.85 percent of the votes cast by his office. Ho Chi Minh himself polled 99.91 percent.

With North Vietnam having a greater population, it was obvious that even if the South Vietnamese voted overwhelmingly non-Communist Ho Chi Minh would still be elected.

Reds Violated Pact First

Furthermore, Mr. Blue, while you and others who advocate U. S. withdrawal from Vietnam are quick to find fault with South Vietnam and the United States for refusing to hold elections in 1956, you ignore the fact that it was North Vietnam who first violated the Geneva accords.

The election is most often cited when talking about the accords, but the final pact actually contained a number of other provisions. One was that there would be free movement by refugees from one portion of Vietnam to the other.

The idea was that northerners could move south if they chose or southerners could move north. But this soon turned into a one-way street, with all the traffic going from north to south. Entire villages were abandoned in North Vietnam as citizens forfeited everything they owned — except for a small amount of light baggage that they could carry with them — in order to flee south and escape Ho Chi Minh's Communist regime. Official figures showed that 860,000 inhabitants made their way south, although many more went uncounted.

An estimated 2 million more would have followed had the frontier remained open. But it did not.

Ho Chi Minh and his friends, startled at the mass exodus, were alarmed because of the large areas of rice lands that were being abandoned and the factories that were being stripped of their technical staffs. His regime first made it difficult for further migration southward and then shut the door completely. In addition, the Communists branded anyone who even expressed a desire to go south as a traitor and punished him accordingly.

This was a clear violation of the Geneva accords.

A Civil War?

Thus, Mr. Blue, while you condemn the United States and South Vietnam for refusing to hold elections in accordance with an international pact to which they never agreed, you ignore the fact that the Communists were the first to violate that pact. You let the North Vietnamese choose which parts of it they will follow and which they won't, and deny that privilege to the South Vietnamese.

In his book "Background to Vietnam," noted correspondent Bernard Newman tells what ensued when the Communists realized they could not unify Vietnam through elections.

"Taking stock after five years of power, Ho Chi Minh was scarcely satisfied. The country (North Vietnam) had made some industrial advances, and agriculture had recovered sufficiently to meet the rice ration. Yet the U.S.A. had proved to be a benefactor far more generous than China or Russia. South Vietnam was making real progress, and showed no signs whatever of disintegrating under its own contradictions. So, at a meeting held in May 1959, the Central Committee of the Communist Party decided to launch a guerrilla war in South Vietnam. Its objective was to overthrow the government, annex the country, and thus reunite Vietnam — but this time under a Communist regime."

The Viet Cong, who conducted this guerrilla war, were supplied and directed by North Vietnam, which in turn received aid from the Soviet Union and Communist China. In time North Vietnamese military units themselves entered South Vietnam and joined the Viet Cong in their fight to overthrow the non-Communist government in Saigon.

Was this not a clear case of aggression, just as North Korea's surge across the 39th parallel into South Korea was? Or was it still a civil war as you stated in your letter, Mr. Blue? Thieu-Ky Regime Not Perfect

You also criticized the Quiz for saying that the United States is "defending freedom" in South Vietnam.

"The Thieu-Ky regime doesn't seem too concerned with freedom," you wrote. "They imprisoned their closest election opponent, and they put newspapers out of business if they do not support government policies. This is not my idea of freedoms that we should commit thousands of lives and billions of dollars to."

It is true that in South Vietnam — a nation under attack — there are not the freedoms that exist here in the United States. But freedom, like many other things, is relative. No one denies that the Thieu-Ky regime has imprisoned some political foes, and it has put some newspapers out of business. But compare that with what happened in the South Vietnamese city of Hue when it fell under Communist control during the Tet offensive of 1968.

2,500 Murdered at Hue

A recent discovery of 250 bodies brings to more than 2,500 the number of South Vietnamese known to have been murdered during the 25 days Communist forces were in control of Hue. Most of the victims were harmless villagers and farmers; many were women and children.

The 2,500 bodies have been found in about two dozen mass graves.

Witnesses who have since rallied to the South Vietnamese cause under the government's "open arms" program have told of seeing long lines of prisoners — their hands bound behind them with wire and linked to one another by other lengths of wire — marching through rice paddies to a tributary of the Perfume River. There, according to the witnesses, a number of persons were convicted and killed on the spot. The discovery of nearly 20 bodies nearby confirms this.

The other victims apparently were herded up a narrow creek bed and into an area of thick tangled underbrush and murdered there. Authorities who examined the remains of the 250 bodies discovered most recently said that many of the victims had been clubbed to death with rifle butts while others had been shot.

Reaching further back into history, the initial success enjoyed by the Viet Cong in taking over most of the South Vietnamese countryside was due to Communist terror tactics.

In the underdeveloped country of South Vietnam — with poor transportation and worse communications — local officials played a key role as contacts between common citizens and the national government in Saigon. Realizing this, the Communists decided to eliminate these local officials. Orders came from North Vietnam to get rid of them, and the edict was promptly carried out.

In one year 4,000 local officials were assassinated. As replacements were appointed, they too were killed off — as were any villagers who supplied information to the government concerning the assassinations.

Many of these people were not only killed, they were butchered and their bodies put on public display as examples to others.

A First-Hand Account

Again referring to the book, "Background to Vietnam," Bernard Newman tells of visiting a village the morning after a local official had been murdered.

"On the veranda was a significant shape, covered with a cloth. My (Vietnamese) friend pulled this back, revealing the feet, legs and body of the dead man. A final pull revealed the head. I gasped, for after murdering the headman the Viet Cong had decapitated him; his head lay beside the ghastly wound of his severed neck."

Decapitation holds a spiritual as well as a physical terror for the Vietnamese, as Mr. Newman's friend explained.

"You talked about terror," he was quoted as saying. "It is not the normal fear of death. Our people are very superstitious — it is inherent in the many religions which have amalgamated here. They believe that a man thus mutilated will know no peace in the spirit world — his spirit must wander for all time. So you can picture the effect — more than terror."

Such tactics had their effect, and soon there were few volunteers for government jobs outside Saigon. Thus, the important link between government and people was irretrievably broken.

Thousands Marked for Execution

A new chapter will be added to these horrors, should the United States leave South Vietnam in such a manner that the Communists are assured of success in their long battle to control the country.

Already a captured North Vietnamese soldier has told of lists which contain the names of tens of thousands of South Vietnamese to be executed. The soldier reported that the lists are now being circulated among Communist military commanders.

Yes, Mr. Blue, the Thieu-Ky regime does have its shortcomings. But please consider the alternatives before saying that its policies are not those to which thousands of American lives and billions of American dollars should be devoted.

For, surely the people of South Vietnam have as much right to live without fear as do we in the United States, who but for the grace of God could have been born as Vietnamese just as easily as we were Americans.

Carol's Corner

by Carol Leggett

A lot of activity was crammed into the simple month of October, with our Number Three Girl observing her birthday all month long. It is now a proven fact that each birthday at our house is a "Big Deal!"

To begin the list of events, a surprise party was staged at the country home of a classmate during the first week of the month, with three friends sharing the expense of a turtle housed in a see-through box. One worried mother admitted encouraging the early giving in fear that the turtle might be dead by actual birthday time. For those who are wondering... "he ain't dead yet!"

Several days later there was an invitation for another dear friend for a stay-all-night visit — again to celebrate the birthday. This simple invitation included an evening at the movie and breakfast at the cafe, plus a 50-cent tip from the kind mother for help the girls had given with an office chore.

By this time the day — Oct. 10 — had been here and gone (along with the cake Grandmother had baked). Four greetings had arrived in the mail, and two more gifts were added.

As the next weekend neared, I was approached with another idea — a slumber party was being planned by still another young miss — again to celebrate you know what! This was a fun time for six young socialites who each took along a generous supply of munchies to share while burning the midnight oil.

Recalling my early-in-June promise that "maybe we can eat out to celebrate your birthday," our young celebrant refreshed my memory with this innocent idea.

Without hesitating I snapped, "Haven't you had enough?"

As a final capping, however, the birthday was once more celebrated last week when three family members were gone during the supper hour. It was an opportune time for our remaining two to eat out — which further helped to start our Shannon on her new year.

And now, only three weeks after her 11th birthday, she is already "going on 12." Such is the hurry of youth... they just can't wait to be grown up!

A common complaint among mothers these days is the age-old breakfast problem. Many sleepy-eyed little ones seemingly have no appetite at this early hour, and those of the intermediate set blame breakfast skipping on the fact that they are "already 10 minutes late."

A quick cure for these excuses may be a cup of this instant drink. The recipe was given to me by Flora Anderson who insists that credit be given to Toby Clinch of Burwell.

The ingredients needed are an 8-oz. box of Carnation dry milk, 1 lb. box of Nestle's Quick, 6oz. jar of Coffee Mate, and 1/2 c. powdered sugar. Simply mix in a large container. When ready to use, fill each cup half full and add hot water. So easy to fix and delicious to drink.

Coffee Cup Philosophy: Of course money isn't everything. It isn't even what is used to be.

Clad in true Halloween colors of black and orange, the Lexington Minutemen played their role to the hilt Friday night. They treated Ord's Chanticleers to a superior showing in the statistics, but tricked them out of two cheap touchdowns and a 14-8 victory.

The loss dropped Ord's record for the year to 1-6-1. The Chants will close their season tomorrow night (Friday) against Grand Island Northwest.

Lexington's record jumped to 5-2-1 with the triumph.

Ord controlled the ball almost unbelievably in the first quarter but still saw the period end with Lexington leading 7-0. Then the Chants took an 8-7 lead on the first play of the second quarter and the conversion that followed only to see the Minutemen come back three plays later with a 74-yard pass play.

From then on it was a defensive struggle with neither team scoring. In the first quarter Ord ran 27 plays to Lexington's 5. In fact, only 3 minutes and 40 seconds remained when the Minutemen ran their first play from scrimmage. Before that Ord had run 21 plays. Then, on their first effort, the Minutemen fumbled and Jim Martin recovered for Ord. The play count then went to 25-1 before Lexington got in a complete four-down series. Nevertheless, the Minutemen were ahead almost all the way. Rod Hennek intercepted an Ord pass and returned it 49 yards with the game less than three minutes old. Ron Unterscher's conversion kick made it 7-0.

The Chants took the ensuing kickoff and marched to the Lexington 21 before they stalled. After the one play by the Minutemen, Ord got another chance to push it across. Martin's fumble recovery came at the same point his team's drive had ended—the Lexington 21—but in four plays the Chants could advance the ball only five yards.

"I think it's our inexperience," Coach Chuck Squier said later in assessing his team's failure to convert on scoring opportunities.

Finally, on their third effort, the Chants did get across the goal. Another fumble this one recovered by Bruce Worm while Bill Miller put pressure on the Lexington quarterback, gave them their opportunity.

The ball was recovered at the Lexington 23, and on the third play Larry Wells bounced off the defensive line and went outside 14 yards for the touchdown. A fake kick, with Paul Markley throwing to Dennis Kamarad, gave Ord the two points it needed to go ahead.

It looked as if the fired-up Chants really had something going when, on Lexington's next series, ball carriers were dropped for first five-yard and then nine-yard losses by Ord's two crashing linebackers — Wells and Bob Peterson.

But on a third-and-24 situation from the Lexington 26, John Roberts dropped back and lofted a pass down the middle. It was thrown short, but Hennek was so wide open he had time to slow down and catch it and still be in no danger of being caught. Unterscher's extra-point kick ended the scoring with Lexington posting only two mild threats thereafter and Ord none. Once the Minutemen moved to the Ord 17, but another fumble — this one recovered by Dan Timmerman — ruined that effort. On another try they were held on downs at the Ord 19.

Coach Squier had only 26 men suited up for the contest, and he's not expecting anymore for tonight's game at Grand Island.

His starting lineup last week showed five sophomores, three juniors, and three seniors. Three-fourths of the starting backfield were first-year men.

The list of players not suited up included starting guards Loren Vancura and Jeff Hruby, plus starting halfback Jerry Novotny. The other halfback, Bruce Hurlbert, didn't play until the fourth quarter after missing two games because of sickness.

Vancura had received a neck injury in the Broken Bow game, while Hruby had cracked a vertebra in the St. Paul contest.

They were replaced by sophs Jim Martin and Allen Wotalewicz, and Coach Squier said he was quite pleased with the play of both boys. They're scheduled to start again tomorrow night against Northwest.

Novotny will not be available then either, as he is still weakened from a blood infection. His place has been taken by Jim Naeve, a season-long starter on defense.

Thrilling Rematch Set Up at Bartlett For Sandhill Gateway Playoff Game

Wheeler Central and Humphrey didn't take a thing away from their possible play-off game as they met Friday night in a regular season football contest. The two Sandhill Gateway Conference contests last night. Elgin held a 7-0 mark, while Humphrey was 5-0-1.

The tie with Humphrey gave Wheeler Central a 5-1-2 record for the year. The Broncos will close their regular season tomorrow night at home against Clearwater.

"We'll be in real good shape physically for the play-off if we can get through Friday night's game without any serious injuries," Coach Stine commented

The Wheeler Central scoring was divided among four players with Scott Patrick and Jerry Childers joining Olson and Schmidt as point-markers.

Humphrey took a 12-0 lead in the first quarter as Loescke and Schmidt each scored from short range. Both touchdowns were set up by the defense, which first blocked a Wheeler Central punt at the Bronco 23-yard line and then recovered a fumble at the 18.

Wheeler bounced back with 12 points in the second quarter, permitting the teams to leave the field at halftime deadlocked with an even dozen points apiece. Both Bronco scores came on passes from Tom Majors, one going 2 yards to Schmeits and the other 25 yards to Patrick.

In the third quarter Humphrey went back in front, 20-12, as Schmidt rambled 20 yards and then ran across the two-point conversion.

Wheeler pulled within two points in the fourth quarter as Childers scored from the 2. The two-point conversion that would have tied it was missed, though, setting the stage for the wild finish.

The Humphrey defense yielded grudgingly all night, but still Olson managed to crack it for 70 rushing yards on 19 carries. Childers added 53 on 14 tries.

Majors softened the defense up some for his two running backs as he hit on 11 of 25 pass attempts for 132 yards. Schmeits caught five of his throws for 63 yards, while Patrick latched onto four for 46 yards.

The two touchdowns passes gave Majors 11 for the season. Added to a pair of two-point conversions, they mean he has now thrown for 70 points this year.

Olson led the Wheeler defense from his linebacker position, making eight tackles and two assists.

powerhouses battled to a 26-26 tie.

Having already won the conference's Western Division title, Wheeler Central this week was awaiting a showdown between Humphrey and Elgin to determine the Eastern Division winner. Those two clubs were to vie last night (Wednesday) in the crucial contest.

The winner will meet Wheeler Central in a play-off for the conference championship Tuesday. The game will be played in Bartlett, probably starting at 7:30 p.m.

"We'll get together with whoever wins between Humphrey and Elgin," assistant coach Jerry Stine of Wheeler Central said Monday, "and decide for sure on the time. We're planning on a night game if the weather is good."

The game will definitely be played in Bartlett, since it is scheduled for the home field of the Western Division winner this year.

Regardless of who wins between the two Eastern Division teams, fans are in for a real treat Tuesday in the play-off contest. For Wheeler Central also tied Elgin in the second game of the year, 32-32, meaning there wasn't a single point's difference between the Broncos and either of the two eastern leaders in the regular-season games.

Adding more luster to the play-off till, the two ties represented the only blemishes on the records of both Eastern Division leaders going into their championship

Hurlberts Get Two Big Ones on Elk Expedition to Mountains

Hunting deer will never be the same again, Ron Hurlbert commented recently after getting his first elk on a trip to the Colorado mountains.

Ron accompanied his father, Raymond Hurlbert, who's been hunting elk annually for about the past 20 years. They brought back two large cows, whose individual weights were estimated at 700 to 800 pounds.

"We don't know for sure who got which one," Ron commented. "We were both shooting at both elk."

The bigger one was hit first.

by a bullet which broke its leg, then by a killing shot in the neck. The smaller one was dropped by a single shot in the head.

The two men were using model 70-270 Winchester rifles.

They were hunting in a party of five, which also included Alex Chambers of Burwell. The other members were from Colorado. Altogether the group shot two cows, two bulls, and a calf. They had permits for one elk apiece.

The elder Hurlbert estimated he's had "about 70 percent luck" during his 20 years of elk hunting.

"It has improved as I've gotten to know the country better," he stated. He pointed out too that it's important not to shoot elk in country which is too remote; else the hunter will wind up having to quarter his kill in the field and take it out by horseback.

The Hurlberts said the larger elk was first hit and knocked down when it was 350 to 400 yards away. Then it got up and came directly down a hill toward them.

Their hunting location is near Steamboat Springs, Colo.

Sargent threw up a tough defense Friday night to completely shackle favored North Loup-Scotia and score a 12-0 triumph in their LHTC Conference game.

Besides holding North Loup-Scotia in check, the Bulldog defenders set up their own team's first touchdown by blocking a punt. Greg Brass blocked it, and Tim Sherbeck recovered at the Wildcat 17-yard line.

Tom Keefe capped the short drive with a three-yard plunge. That was in the first quarter.

Then in the third period Jim Ash passed six yards to Mark Cooper for the second touchdown.

Both teams had fine rushing defenses, but Sargent showed the better pass protection as North Loup-Scotia completed only three of 17.

Arcadia Clobbered By Wolbach, 36-8; Record Falls to 6-2

Arcadia is convinced this week of Wolbach's rating as the top Class D football team in the state.

The Huskies, who had rolled up a fine 6-1 record themselves going into the game, were overwhelmed by the top-rated Mustangs, 36-8, in a Friday night contest at Wolbach. The winners put 28 of their points on the scoreboard in the first half.

The wonderfully balanced Mustangs, who are undefeated in eight had touchdowns scored by four different players, Tom Dugan got two and was joined by Kim Marco, Bill Grossart, and Rollie Rother.

Arcadia didn't score till the fourth quarter.

The Huskies will close their season tomorrow night (Friday) at Panmer.

Putting forth one of their best efforts in the seven years Coach Don Wagner has been at Loup City, the Red Raiders of that community Friday night handed Ravenna its first Lou-Plate Conference defeat in more than three years. The score was 12-0.

"This had to be one of the best efforts since I have been at Loup City," Coach Wagner commented afterwards. "We are extremely proud of all the kids for a very big win."

For the first half of this season Ravenna was rated generally as the top Class C team in the state. However, the Bluejays had suffered their first loss the week before playing Loup City as Class B St. Paul also shut them out, 13-0. They are now 4-2-1 for the year, Loup City is 5-3.

The Loup City defense was brilliant. It never allowed Ravenna inside the Raider 20-yard line, and it repeatedly killed Bluejay offensive efforts with pass interceptions or fumble recoveries. In all, the Red Raiders took the ball six times via those means, twice on interceptions and four times on fumbles.

The defense contained Ravenna's fine fullback, Henry Heider.

He was held to less than 3 1/2 yards per carry and a net total of 83 yards for the game. Both figures were considerably below his season averages.

The most serious Ravenna thrust came in the third quarter when the Bluejays made their only take-over of the night on a miscue, recovering a fumble at the Loup City 25-yard line. But Mike Rowley intercepted a pass in the end zone to squelch that threat.

Rowley also had a fumble recovery as he played a key role in the tough Red Raider defense. The other fumbles were gathered in by Tom Jablonski, Ed Kowalski, and Tim Eurek. They were all cited for their defensive work by Coach Wagner, along with Al Kowalski, Mark Eurek, Rog Obermiller, Glenn Epley, Jack Van Slyke, Ken Kuzak, Mike Mendyk, Ron Setlik, and Gary Riskowski.

After a scoreless first quarter, Loup City got started on its way to victory when quarterback Bob Guzinski wedged his way behind fine blocking to a two-yard touchdown. Then the Raiders went up 12-0 in the third quarter on Van Slyke's 10-yard reverse.

The Raiders will close their season tomorrow night (Friday) at Shelton.

Blue Jays Return To Winning Ways

Elba broke loose with a vengeance Friday night, snapping a three-game losing streak by rolling past Roseland, 52-14.

The victory evened the Blue Jay record for the season at four wins and four losses. They'll close their season tomorrow night (Friday) by hosting Greeley Sacred Heart.

Although Elba scored 14 points in the opening quarter, Roseland stayed in contention until halftime. The score at that point was 24-14.

Roger Pedersen and Lynn Jackson led the winners with three touchdowns apiece. Both were outstanding on defense too.

Steffan Baker Carves Best Jack-O-Lantern

Ord youngsters got in the Halloween spirit again this year as they hurried into Walker's Drug to select a pumpkin and then carefully toiled home the gourd-like fruit of the vine, ready to begin creating their very own jack-o-lantern.

After considerable carving, cutting, dressing and coloring the jack-o-lanterns were checked in at Walker's Drug, Thursday evening, as entries in the annual Jack-O-Lantern Contest. Judging was held later the same evening with Steffan Baker winning grand prize honors for his creation.

In the Fifth and Sixth grade division, Kim Carson was named first place winner with Joan Schade placing second and Jane Krikac third. Nancy Ringlein was chosen to win in the Third and Fourth Grade group with Jane Gogan winning second prize and Tod Fryzek placing third. In the youngest division — youngsters through second grade — Doug Schenkau was selected as first place winner, followed by David Waskowiak, second and Laurie Zulkoski, third.

Mrs. Louise Buckles of Ericson, Mrs. Ign. Pokraka of North Loup and Bruce Ebenieler of Ord acted as judges for the contest.

Local Man Ordered To Pay $1,600 For Hitting Building

Lots of people around the country celebrated the World Series triumph of the New York Mets last Oct. 17, but probably few compared with Jim Heisek's performance. At least not money-wise.

A reported night of celebrating ended up costing the elderly Ord man at least $1,600. He was found guilty Thursday in Valley County Court of leaving the scene of an accident and reckless driving, and was fined $50 on each charge. But he was also ordered to pay $5 court costs and $1,495 for repairs to Rowbal's Plumbing & Heating Shop.

A car drove off highway 11 and went through a wall of the plumbing shop sometime early Friday morning.

In addition to the fines and costs Heisek was directed to pay, his driver's license was suspended for six months. He pleaded "no contest" to the charges.

In other recent cases which came before Judge Rollin Dye, two Ord teenagers were fined $100 apiece on charges of minor in possession of alcoholic liquor. William C. Naeve pleaded guilty after being arrested Oct. 4, while Douglas C. Zapp was fined for an incident occurring in September.

FHA Girls Initiate 17 At First Night Meeting

The first night meeting of the Ord chapter of the Future Homemakers of America was held Oct. 16.

A discussion on the chapter's candy-selling project was held. This year the FHA girls and the Student Council are working together on the candy sales, which began Oct. 22. The money earned will go toward a marquee for the high school, which will tell of events scheduled during the school year.

The FHA district convention held Oct. 15 at Loup City was interrupted because of the weather, and the Ord girls returned home after two hours. Linda Stiger, Publicity Chairman

Congressman DAVE MARTIN Reports

Social Security
President Richard Nixon on Sept. 25 sent a second message to Congress in regard to proposed changes in the Social Security law.

In the President's message he requested a 10 percent increase in Social Security benefits to offset price rises which have occurred since the last increase was passed in 1967. The President's proposals would become effective Mar. 1, 1970.

Other bills which have been introduced will provide for a 10 percent increase in benefits but will become effective Jan. 1, 1970. Other members of Congress have talked about introducing legislation which would allow as much as a 15 percent increase in benefits.

Congress has increased benefits eight times since setting up the Social Security system in 1935. Twenty-five million Americans (one in eight) are currently receiving benefits.

Increased benefits would have to be offset by increased payments which, of course, would fall on the shoulders of the working men and women of America. President Nixon proposed increasing the maximum amount on which Social Security is paid from $7,800 to $9,000 a year.

The Ways and Means Committee began hearings on this Oct. 15. With the increase in cost of living, which amounted to approximately 5 percent in 1968 and is currently running at 6 percent for 1969, there is justification for a 10 percent increase.

Passenger Trains
A senate subcommittee on surface transportation began hearings Sept. 23 regarding legislation related to railroad passenger service.

The bills, in general, would allow a federal reimbursement to railroads for passenger trains operating at a loss, and would give the Interstate Commerce Commission power to enforce standards of service for passenger trains.

The I.C.C. last July advised Congress that most intercity rail passenger trains were "in serious financial condition," and that without action by the government and the railroad industry they were doomed to early extinction. Further, the I.C.C. on Sept. 12 determined that its powers did not include regulation of the quality of passenger service. It asked Congress for the power to enforce standards of cleanliness, adherence to schedules, and other factors in service quality.

Many passenger trains have been lost in Nebraska over the last few years, and it is estimated that in the entire country today there are only 200 such trains still in operation. Predictions are that this will drop by another 50 percent within the next couple of years.

Advertising, like the Liberty Bell, may not be perfect, but it works. It works to keep millions of Americans on the job and enjoying the highest standard of living the world has ever known.

It works to help build and sell over a million new homes a year, plus all the latest gadgets and appliances that go in them.

It works to put millions of new cars on the road this year... even paves the way for the thousands of new roads they'll run on.

It works to ring up billions of dollars in sales all by itself each year. No, advertising may not be perfect. But — like the Liberty Bell — it works. And it works best when it rings true.

Kernels & Husks First in Series of Pork Programs Scheduled Tonight on ETV Channel

By John Schade

The pork spotlight series of five hour-long programs will be offered again this fall on the Nebraska Educational Television Network.

The series, designed to aid swine producers in making management decisions, will be aired at 8 p.m. tonight (Thursday) and again on Nov. 13 and Dec. 4, 11, and 18.

The first 30 minutes of the program will consist of a color film presentation tied to a pork spotlight quiz. The second 30 minutes will be a live studio program featuring a panel of pork producers and specialists who will answer questions submitted by mail and telephone.

The "Pork Hotline" phone arrangement will allow interested viewers to call in questions through five phone centers — North Platte, Scottsbluff, Concord, Clay Center, and Lincoln.

The five programs will have topics on selection, gestation, farrowing, nursing, and finishing. The emphasis this year is on individual rather than group viewing as in 1968.

Further information on this series can be obtained from the Valley County Extension Office. Housewives Can Help

The rains and snow of the past weeks have called a halt to corn and milo harvesting. With no further moisture, harvesting should begin in seven to ten days.

Farmers are becoming impatient as they get in the field they may throw caution to the wind and take unnecessary chances. Who knows when that one mistake may be the fatal one?

You wives can do your part in cutting down corn harvest accidents. You can help by making sure your husband wears proper clothing — clothing that is comfortable but yet snug fitting. Send that man of yours to the field with a good breakfast, and see that he gets plenty of rest. A hungry, tired, cold, impatient corn harvest operator is more prone to accidents than the well-nourished, well rested, relaxed operator.

Wives can help further in reducing corn harvest accidents by taking that operator a cup of coffee and a sandwich midway through a frosty morning or chilly afternoon. This little refreshment and rest will do wonders to improve his comfort and attitude until you see him again at noon or at dark.

It appears we are going to harvest one of our biggest corn crops this fall. And with your help, Mrs. Housewife, your husband will be around to brag about that bin-bursting yield along with the rest of his neighbors.

Obituary For DDT (In Michigan)
"Died: DDT, age 25, a persistent pesticide and one-time humanitarian. Considered to be one of World War II's greatest heroes, DDT saw its reputation fade after it was charged with murder by author Rachel Carson. Death came on June 27, 1969, in Michigan after a lingering illness. Survived by dieltrin, aldrin, endrin, chlordane, heptachlor, lindane and toxaphene. Please omit flowers."

The above introduction to "Obituary for DDT" (in Michigan), written for the July 6 New York Times Magazine, is recommended reading for anyone who is interested in pesticides. It is very unfortunate that we are trying to crucify a chemical that has served us well and is still very useful, if properly used.

Let us try education and control, the intelligent way to handle a problem of this kind. Laws and banning cannot solve our problem of mismanagement and the failure to institute sufficient controls.

THE Ord Quiz

Estab. April, 1882. Ord, Nebr., Thurs., Nov. 6, 1969. Vol. 88, No. 35. In 2 Sects.

Bad Weather Fails to Deter Youngsters

Despite misty, overcast skies most of the day, there was another fine turnout Friday for the annual Halloween parade sponsored by the Ord Chamber of Commerce.

Winners were named in four categories, ranging from singles to groups.

Norma Krcilek disguised herself as a black Halloween owl to win first place in the singles division. Second was taken by Jeff Quinn, who sported a plaster replica of the University of Nebraska's "Big Red" mascot, and third went to Rosellen Sich, who appeared to be literally "sitting on top of the world."

In the doubles division Mike and Kim Ballard won first with their colorful uniforms and matching red mop hair-dos. Snoopy and his doghouse, portrayed by Tiffany Ray and Kim Moss, were second, while third went to the Fritos Bandito — Kevin Chelewski — and sister Kim who was dressed as a giant Fritos bag.

A live turkey carried the length of the parade route by Glen Nelson helped him and Dick Noll win first in the mechanical and pets division. Greg was dressed as a pilgrim while Dick was an Indian.

members of Cub Scout Den 1: Steffan Baker, Russell Barnes, Kurt Krenke, Danny Martin, Leak Pelton, Bobby Rasmussen, Ricky Simpson, and Jeff Wolfe. They cooperated to form themselves into a long, wavy dragon which wound its way down the Ord streets. However, their dragon cover fell apart before picture-taking time.

The Three Bears — Michelle Norman and Mike and Kendra Williams — were third in the mechanical and pets division.

Tops in the group competition was a patriotic entry recognizing the sacrifices of United States servicemen in Vietnam. Doug Stephens and Jamie Switzer carried a stretcher, on which Brad Smith lay. A very competent nurse was little Stephanie Ackles. Jon Miller also played the part of a victim, but an ambulatory one with his crutches, while Jeff Voyek carried a sign reading, "Remember Our Boys in Vietnam."

The gingerbread story of "Hansel and Gretel" provided a second-place theme in the group division for sisters Peggy and Mary Novosad and Barbara and Diane Dworak.

Third place in this division went to the Tin Soldiers — Kelly, Lisa, and Marcia Sears.

New Greenhands

These 19 Greenhands were initiated recently into the Ord chapter of the Future Farmers of America. In the annual creed speaking contest, Clinton Meese earned the right to represent the chapter in district competition. After the contest and initiation ceremony, a safety film was shown, with an open house and lunch following.

Lawsuit Pairs State Against State, With Taxpayers Picking Up the Tab

By Melvin Paul
 Statehouse Correspondent
 The Nebraska Press Assn.

LINCOLN — The State of Nebraska is suing the State of Nebraska. It all stems from those problems the 1969 legislature had getting its budget bills passed.

The State Supreme Court last week agreed to take the case as an original action — meaning tests in the lower courts could be bypassed.

The office of Atty. Gen. Clarence Meyer is bringing the lawsuit on instructions from the legislature, which decided its budget problems must be resolved in the courtroom.

After several weeks of study, Meyer and his staff decided the best way to present the issues was to bring a suit against Gov. Norbert Tiemann and a series of other officers in the executive branch. They will hire their own attorney, but he will be paid — at least in part — with state funds.

In addition to the governor, the suit was filed against Ray Johnson, state auditor; Wayne Swanson, state treasurer; Robert McManus, director of administrative services; and the State Board of Equalization. Members of that board are Tiemann, Johnson, Swanson, Secretary of State Frank Marsh, and Tax Commissioner Murrell McNeil.

The case is designed to test

Tiemann's authority in vetoing $5 million of capital construction projects which the legislature, acting on advice from Meyer, contends were immune from veto.

In addition, the seven high-court justices are being asked to determine if the governor had the right to order state agencies to disregard annual salary limits which the lawmakers wrote into the appropriation bills.

In arguing that the case deserved to be given priority consideration by the Supreme Court, a deputy attorney general said in the application:

"Actions by the governor and the legislators have caused confusion among various officers of the state having duties involving the validity of legislative appropriations and it is essential that these matters be clarified in order that the affairs of the state may be efficiently and economically administered."

Four Vetoes Questioned
 Four Tiemann line-item vetoes are being put under judicial scrutiny.

The governor nixed $1 million for land acquisition at the University of Nebraska Medical Center in Omaha, $1.35 million for UN-O campus expansion, $1.23 million for a home economics building on the east campus in Lincoln, and $1.5 million for remodeling of the administration building at Kearney State College.

Here's what it's all about: Actually, Governor Tiemann said no twice to the home ec project. The first time, the attorney general's petition says, he had the right — although a veto wasn't necessary because the project wasn't valid anyway. The second time, the petition says, the project was beyond his reach because it had received supporting votes of at least 33 senators when it was adopted as an amendment to the budget bill.

The 33-vote problem is at the heart of the controversy.

Here's what it's all about: The state constitution says at least two-thirds of the legislature must agree on any appropriations which exceed the governor's recommendations. In a 49-member unicameral, two-thirds of the membership is 33. But the constitution doesn't make it clear whether this 33-vote support must be given on final reading — when the budget bill is offered for passage — or whether any 33-vote support during the bill's consideration is enough to meet the test.

The attorney general's office supplied the lawmakers with an opinion during the last session which said they could give a minimum of 33 votes any time — such as advancing the bill from first to second reading.

THE Ord Quiz

County Should Act Now

Like live shells left in an abandoned minefield, the various legislative programs of the Great Society continue to explode with startling impact on the American public.

Locally, prospects are now considered good that Valley County soon will be without routine ambulance service—thanks in large measure to a favorite Great Society bill of 1967. We refer of course to the minimum wage law which became effective in February of that year.

With great fanfare about the role it would play in bringing social justice to workers at the bottom of the wage scale, the controversial measure sailed through the 89th Congress. Its more widely publicized provisions included a hike in the minimum wage from $1.25 an hour to $1.40, effective in February 1967, with a subsequent boost to $1.60 one year later. The bill also made more than 8 million additional workers subject to the Fair Labor Standards Act.

And therein lies the basis for Valley County's current problem. Among those new employees whose interests Congress was so zealously protecting were ambulance drivers.

Six Men Needed Each Day

According to local mortician Hilding Pearson, when the new minimum wage law became effective it made mandatory the following requirements with regard to ambulance service:

- At least two attendants, both with special training, would be required on every service run;
- No individual could work more than eight hours per day without receiving overtime pay;
- An attendant would be considered to be working any time he was "on call," regardless of what he might actually be doing.

Since ambulance service is a 24-hour-per-day operation, what these restrictions added up to was a minimum of three shifts per day with two men on each—or six men per day to operate one ambulance.

County Helped in Past

Naturally these were hard rules for most small operators to play by, and during the past 2½ years many private firms that were providing ambulance service have discontinued it. Here in Ord the Valley County Board of Supervisors voted in 1967 to subsidize Hastings-Pearson Mortuary—the only company in the county providing ambulance service—at the rate of $1,000 per year. The supervisors also voted to pay the salary of driver Frank Steinwart. Since this officially made the county Steinwart's employer, the labor laws of 1967 did not apply.

Last year the Board of Supervisors discontinued the $1,000 subsidy but voted again to pay Steinwart's salary. Then last month, citing lack of information about the services they were receiving, the supervisors decided to stop paying Steinwart's salary as of Nov. 1.

Hastings-Pearson has since announced plans to continue the ambulance service until Dec. 1, with the company paying Steinwart's salary. Thereafter Valley County will have no routine ambulance service unless another private firm, a volunteer organization, or a local governmental unit agrees to provide it.

Only One Acceptable Solution?

The perfect answer, of course, is to have the service provided by private enterprise. But this appears to be out of the question, since it is hard to see how any private firm could operate within the present law and still make a profit.

A second alternative is to have members of the Volunteer Fire Department take turns being on call and operating the ambulance. But firemen have already said they will not accept this responsibility, and their position is understandable. It would not be fair to expect a man to take time off from his job, for example, to transport a patient needing the care of a specialist to Lincoln, Omaha, or even Hastings or Grand Island.

The third alternative is to have a local governmental unit provide the service. The City of Ord has indicated its willingness to cooperate with the county on the matter. Appearing at a meeting of county supervisors Tuesday, Ord Mayor Bill French said he was ready to appoint a committee of two or three councilmen to meet with a committee from the county board and work out a solution. George Hastings had appeared at Monday night's City Council meeting and told the members of that body his company would give its ambulance to any governmental unit willing to take on the responsibility.

The county board did not seem interested though, and eventually wound up leaving the matter hanging.

Federal Government Created Problem

Up to this point the main culprit appears to be the federal government, which has made it impossible for any small firm to remain in the ambulance business. Members of the 89th Congress acted before thinking out the consequences of what they were doing.

But that is water over the dam, and this community must now find a way to live with the law.

The wait-and-see attitude, which the County Board of Supervisors indicated it would follow Tuesday is not the answer. Already little more than three weeks remain to find a solution, if there is to be no lapse in service.

We appreciate the county board's desire not to rush into something it will regret later. We also appreciate its reluctance to either subsidize a private firm or take over a job that traditionally has belonged to private industry.

If a better solution can be found than getting the county into the ambulance business, we're all for it. But ignoring the problem completely and hoping it will go away will not solve anything. It never has.

ESPAÑOLA, N.M., SUN: "It is frustrating to law-abiding citizens to observe the tortoise-like pace of our courts, and it must be particularly frustrating to law-enforcement officers charged with gathering evidence and making arrests. It must be very satisfying to those charged; for the longer their cases are delayed the better their chances of being acquitted. Shoot up a couple of lawmen, kidnap a few people, assault the courthouse . . . and you go free for months, sometimes years. But beware of getting caught Saturday night after inhibiting a bit too much. The courts move quite quickly in those cases."

Anderson Ups Causes Next For Chicle

Dear Editor:

After reading Mr. Schroeder's letter in last week's Quiz, no longer feel so alone in my belief about the United Nations and UNICEF. I have not allowed my children to go out and collect money for UNICEF because I have suspected many of these things. After all, what can you expect from an organization controlled by Communists and their supporters?

It is hard to explain these things to young children. All they understand is they have to stay home while their friends are having a big time at the party given after the drive.

What would be wrong with collecting money for CARE? CARE packages are distributed where they are needed. I think through CARE we could be assured our money would get to the right places, and would also be a gift from the United States, not from the Communist leaders.

Robert W. Vogeler
Scottia, Neb. 68875

Dear Editor:

Thank God that in spite of the last minute anti-UNICEF literature the UNICEF collection this year exceeded that of those taken in the past. I sincerely pray that the Christians in this community searched their hearts and hearts before turning their backs on an organization that gives aid to children in need during emergencies.

As for me, let it be known that my belief in Christ and my Christian responsibility for those in need far exceed my political ideas. Recall Jesus's parable of the good Samaritan and His words in Matthew 25:40 . . . as you did it to one of the least of these my brethren, you did it to me. . . Seek first his kingdom and his righteousness . . . (Matthew 6:33)

Ultimately, Christianity will triumph and carry far greater rewards than any political attempt to undermine the command to love even in the face of hate and to serve even under the threat of death. For, "If a man say I love God, and hateth his brother, he is a liar; for he that loveth not his brother whom he hath seen, how can he love God whom he hath not seen?" (1 John 4:20)

I hope that the minister of my church is a minister for Jesus Christ and not a political judge, for there is only one true judge—God judges the secrets of men by Christ Jesus." (Romans 2:16)

As for the name calling in last week's "Vox Pop": "Judge not, that you be not judged for with the judgement you pronounce you will be judged" (Matthew 7:1-2), and "Let him who is without sin be the first to throw a stone . . ." (John 8:7).

Being Buried on the Lone Prairie Ain't a Worry fer Modern Times

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

Did you see that little item in the paper the other day where the mayor of Toledo had named a committee to study the city's parking and meeting-place problems? The committee had to call off its dog, meeting cause it couldn't find a place to meet. And one member said traffic was so bad he couldn't find a place to double-park.

Actually, Mister Editor, we ain't that crowded yet out here in the country, but we are getting a taste of city traffic.

Used to, a feller could live by the side of the road and be a friend to man. Now all he gets at the side of the road is the squeal of tires on them fast cars and the roar of trucks as big as locomotives.

The road by our place don't come from nowhere and it don't go nowhere, but we get woke up every night by the beller of a string of trucks.

The guy that runs the country store told the fellers Saturday night that practically everything he has in stock came on a truck, so it ain't no wonder the roads are full of 'em.

He allowed that stopping all the trucks would stop the country as cold as cutting off all the electricity. He said he didn't know where the country is headed, but it's fer shore that it's going there on wheels.

Duane Brechbill allowed traffic is just another sign that the country is filling up fast.

He had seen where every minute of every day an acre of land is covered by a building, a

The Scott Report

Keep Criminals in Jail Till They Are Tried, Policeman Begg of Congress

By Paul Scott

WASHINGTON — Leaders of Congress have received an extraordinary challenge on how to combat the alarming crime rise in the nation's capital.

The lawmakers were bluntly told that the crime rate here could be drastically reduced by the "pre-trial detention" of 300 hardened criminals now freely roaming the city while waiting trial for crimes of violence.

That's the hard-hitting report that Washington Police Chief Jerry Wilson gave Senate and House leaders at a bipartisan White House meeting arranged by President Richard Nixon.

In an emergency briefing on the seriousness of the crime problem here, Wilson charged that hardened criminals who are responsible for most serious crimes are being freed on their own personal recognition bonds within minutes after their arrest.

To end this dangerous situation, Wilson called on the lawmakers to drastically reform the courts and to provide local authorities with the necessary laws to keep these hardened criminals behind bars until their trials are held.

"If we could get the right 300 people off the street, I think it would probably almost cure the crime problem here," Wilson reported. "It would get those committing most of the crime."

Wilson reported that detention of these 300 hardened criminals would end the atmosphere in Washington which now encourages youths to become criminals.

He pointed out that young people now see or read about persons committing major crimes, being arrested, then released, and back on the street all in the same day.

This favorable atmosphere for crime in the nation's capital, Wilson charged, was created by the bail Reform Act of 1966 which was passed by Congress as a social reform of the Johnson Administration.

Under this reform law, it is mandatory to release persons pending trial in non-capital cases on their own personal recognition bonds. Since the courts now recognize only murder as a capital offense, persons charged with all other crimes are released immediately.

Something Different

Ord Face Lifting

We say nothing ever changes in a small town like Ord, but this isn't so. It changes every day, I can notice since returning home.

The first thing I saw was the handsome new black metal screen Ted contrived and erected behind my house. I love it.

Then, see the Hallowe'en soap on my garage windows! And see how white and bright the former C. J. Mortensen home is looking since it was sold.

See the new carpet installed in the First National Bank lobby.

See the new business building Henry Lange has concocted on the corner across from the bank. How good it is to see that corner occupied once more.

Look at the two houses Charlie Kriewald built, across from the Christian Church. What's that strongly marked wooden siding he used on one . . . cedar?

The former C. A. Anderson home has been sold again — looks like Mr. Norton the teacher may already be installed.

Have you seen the miles of grading and the tons of earth that have been moved where the big new school will be built? You won't believe it when you look.

What on earth are the Maynard Colliers building on now, another room? And look at the concrete pattern Marv Mach has put down, planning a new house?

How good looking the big Bud Ballou house is: guess they needed it all when they went out to acquire two more children.

The eight-plex apartment house is coming along — can't wait to see if it will look interesting when the old house to the north is moved away. Soon now, hey?

Ellis Carson keeps thinking of things to do to his home; now it appears he's establishing a west entrance.

Carroll Williams has erected the shell of a nice looking new house near the Catholic Church.

Sack Lumber Co. has a couple of speculation houses, one mostly done, one just begun, in my neighborhood.

Out by the Elks Club a new church is taking first form with a row of south windows. But the Elks parking lot doesn't progress as rapidly; there are acres of soapy mud to get stuck in. And winter's almost here, or so it feels.

The Harold Christensens have moved into their hilltop residence, which will undoubtedly have marvelous views of a marvelous valley, the North Loup. Next door, Wilma and Art Kroeger will also be the masters of all they survey, a wonderful but windy location.

I can swear to the wind we get out here near the hospital.

In fact, sometimes I could just plain swear when it shrieks down my fireplace chimney and roars around my ears. — Irma Land already is so scarce in Japan, Duane said, that they're burying people in 10-story buildings to save space. And just enough room to keep somebody's jug of ashes over there costs $2,777.

It gives me the shakes, Mister Editor, to think what a shopping-center parking lot would cost at their prices.

Yours truly,
Geranium Joe

KERRY ON

By Kerry Leggett

What a weekend!

Usually I don't bore you with my personal problems, but this past week was just too much.

After a business trip into Lincoln on Thursday night — and getting comfortably settled in a motel room — I decided to take advantage of the store opening that evening in the Capital City. Earlier in the week in The New Yorker had read a review of the book that I wanted to get. Entitled "God's Country and My People," this is a book EVERY NEBRASKAN should have on his bookshelf.

First, a copy of it at my favorite bookstore, I returned to the motel and spent the better part of the night reading it. Written by a former Central City man — Wright Morris — it's a combination of pictures of everyday Nebraska scenes and beautifully descriptive text on life. One of the pictures and the text mentions Loup City, and it's so realistic it brought tears to my eyes to read it.

I'm not working for Harper & Row, but if you want a nice Christmas gift for some old-time Nebraskan, this is worth every penny of the $10 it sells for. It should be a fixture on the coffee table of every Nebraska home.

With very little sleep Thursday night I left a call at the desk for 6:15 a.m. Friday, hoping to get an early start with the "thing" I had to do and get back to Ord. By mid-afternoon Friday I was back behind my desk trying to make my way through the pile of notes left for me in my brief 20-hour absence.

Knowing I'd be leaving early Saturday to watch the University of Nebraska tangle with Colorado's Golden Buffaloes, I worked late Friday night and nearly forgot it was Hallowe'en until I went home to shave and hit the sack.

Everyone at our house was either at the Ord football game or out Hallowe'ning. This is one of the few times I get the bathroom to myself . . . when everyone's gone. If you have a wife and three girls, you know what I mean.

Thinking how calm and peaceful it would be—having the bathroom to myself and no one jumping up and down outside the door — I opened the cabinet and reached for my aerosol shaving cream. Gone!

"That's funny," I thought to myself. I just put it up there about five hours before when I came back from Lincoln. When it hit me! HALLOWEEN. What a better can you use to mess things up than push a button s h a v e cream?

I may have shaved, but I was still in a lather when my eldest returned and I informed HER to get her a razor for 6:30 Saturday morning and march right downtown and replace her Dad's shave cream.

With Saturday off to a good start (!) my wife and I headed for Lincoln. Half-way through an enjoyable first quarter the public address system in the stadium announced to the 67,000 people, "Dr. Otis . . . Dr. Otis . . . Dr. Otis Miller. Please report to University Operator . . ."

"My God," I thought, "what's happened at Ord NOW!" Out of that crowd they have to single one of Ord's four physicians for an emergency call and set me wondering what could have possibly happened at home.

Unable to enjoy the game the way I should, we were leaving the stadium with the consolation that Nebraska had won the game when I looked up and amid the Colorado fans was none other than Ord Superintendent Dr. William Gogan and sons. Not only were they sitting with former Colorado friends . . . but the boys were wearing GOLD instead of RED! "Wait until I see HIM!" I mused to myself. "I won't let him live this one down."

Returning to the car to unload the heavy coats and our stadium blanket, I reached in my pocket for my car keys. NO KEYS! Slowly — trying to keep my cool — I removed coat after coat and searched every pocket.

Trying to restrain herself from hysterical laughter, my wife calmly said, "Maybe you locked them in the car." I raced around to the driver's side and peered through the window. There they were . . . in the ignition!

"You'll never believe this," I told the parking lot attendant, "but I locked my keys in the car."

He didn't argue about whether or not it was MY car. He merely got out the coat hanger wire and we proceeded to try and break into the car without breaking the window.

After a lot of work and little success, a friendly farmer from the Nebraska City area happened by, and with his mechanical inclination he had it opened in no time. I thanked both of them and tried to pay them. Nothing doing.

"Just tell Virgil Bennett 'hello' for me," the parking lot man said as I got back in my car. By this time nothing came as a surprise to me. "Okay," I said, "how'd you know him?"

"We both worked for National Alfalfa at one time," he said. "I ran the mill at Cozad."

Driving away and wondering who could have happened next, I decided that only one thing could top this weekend. "Let's go to The Inferno and watch the go-go girls," I said to my wife. She agreed, and we found a parking place.

Now if you haven't been to The Inferno, you've missed a lot. A whole lot! There was a go-go dancer under the name of Baby Dimples that must tip the scales at nearly 300 pounds. I've seen go-go dancers — but nothing like this! She can shake it where you didn't even know they had it! Ever see a 300-pounder do the splits? Well this gal did it! I could feel it clear back where I sat.

After watching the dance routine of Baby Dimples, we wearily made our way back to the car and headed for Ord. About 10 o'clock we rolled into town happy to be home. But no more weekends like that, thank you. Who said life is uneventful? Did I?

Two Valley County men were killed in an auto accident while hunting rabbits east of Burwell. Anton Mach and Anton Tuma were pinned beneath the car when it overturned in a secluded ravine.

Burwell beat Ord, 140, in their football game.

Another favorite target of hold-up men here is the High milk store chain. These stores have been hit by 156 holdups since July 1. Wilson reported that in many instances employees know who held them up but are afraid to tell police because they know the holdup man will be back on the street the next day.

In blasting the courts for the way they sentence convicted holdup men, Wilson stated:

"I suggest we have poor sentencing policies. We have a policy in this city where all persons get concurrent sentences. The word is that when a man is arrested for a holdup, he knows he is free and is going to get out on bail reform. And while he is out he might as well live high because he will get concurrent sentences for anything he does after that."

Other Highlights

Other highlights of Wilson's briefing, as contained in a transcript now being circulated among members of Congress, are as follows:

"Talking about poor people. I had a case yesterday afternoon from a community leader of the Barry Farm Welfare Mothers. The woman was crying, saying that the mothers lose their money. The husbands go to jail

Come to Church

He Cut Off His Finger!

"I'm through with drink!" Mr. Chang vowed, then cut off his finger to remind himself of his purpose. The next pay-day he drank up all his money again. Vicious, he almost choked his wife to death; kicked his little girl to death; hit a cop, and landed in a cell to sober up. Remorse drove him to attempted suicide. He butted his head against the wall, and awoke in a hospital.

He was frightened to see a white man at his bedside — a missionary doctor. The loving care and good news that Jesus Christ was God's Son — that Jesus could save, deliver, keep him — was almost too good to be true! But he received Jesus as his Saviour.

Released, with some money in his pocket and Christ's love in his heart, he started for home. But he had to pass by that evil place, the tavern. It happened the boss was at the door, who offered Mr. Chang free drinks. Desperate prayer for help rose in his heart. As the odor of the tavern assailed his nose he became so ill that he vomited on the spot. Christ's cure was complete — he was free!

Hebrews 7:25 records: "(CHRIST JESUS) IS ABLE ALSO TO SAVE THEM TO THE UTMOST THAT COME UNTO GOD BY HIM, SEEING HE EVER LIVETH TO MAKE INTERCESSION FOR THEM."

Your problem might be other than drink, but know that Jesus Christ is the solution for your need. Why not honestly give HIM a try?

Babbles by Bertha

The weather wasn't the best last Wednesday but we who at-tended the Achievement Day pro-gram at Arcadia were glad we did. Nellie Snyder Yost reviewed her book "No Time on My Hands" and told about the fif-teen beautiful quilts made by her mother, who was present. The quilts were on display. The book I want to read, but I'm not even tempted to try making quilts like those were — such tiny pieces and such fine stitches — all made by hand of course.

We're glad to hear that Mrs. Elsie Bremer is improving after breaking her hip. She's still in Brookings Hospital but sits in a chair part of the time, and with help stands, using her leg. She has been a friend of the family for many years and when I was a girl — I mean a young girl — we lived only a mile apart.

Were you at the turkey supper at the Seventh Day Baptist Church in North Loup Sunday Sunday night? If you were, you know all about it — no, not all of it because a lot of cooperation and preparation that didn't show went into it. Or did the results show that? If you weren't there I can only say "come next year." Arthur Duvall's 4-H calf is still missing.

Torino. High Style.

Nothing in its field can match it for luxury.

The elegant Torino Brougham is rich in looks, lavish in appointments. Compare it to other intermediates. You won't find its equal anywhere — not in appearance and certainly not in price. It has a longer wheelbase for a smoother ride. A wider track for better road holding. Hideaway Headlamps, concealed windshield wipers, 302 CID V-8 are just a few of the standard features. Take your choice of 2- or 4-door hardtop. Either one is worth a visit just to see how beautiful it is.

Torino Brougham 2-Door Hardtop

Torino. High Performance.

New SportsRoof styling... six great V-8's.

Torino GT gives you the ride, the handling, even its own aerodynamic SportsRoof styling that adds to your go. And you can go all the way up to the 429 Cobra Jet Ram-Air V-8 with a living, breathing, through-the-hood shaker. Then add our new Laser Stripes, high-back buckets, 4-speed Hurst Shifter... you get the idea. Park the GT if you want to collect a crowd, and take them on a cruise if you want to dazzle them.

Torino GT SportsRoof

Torino. Low Price.

Lowest priced hardtop in its class.

This is the beauty that caught the competition napping. You won't find a lower priced intermediate hardtop anywhere in the country. Yet it offers you many features you'll find only on the more expensive Torino models. Longer wheelbase. Wider track. Curved side glass. Concealed windshield wipers. Fiberglass belted tires, and more. Fairlane 500 is just one of thirteen great ways to go Torino in 1970. Your Ford Dealer is the man to see. To see them all.

IMPORTANT NOTICE

Two years ago the government changed the laws governing Ambulance Service.

We had been operating under transportation laws, then ambulance service was put under hourly wage laws.

Ambulance service is a 24-hour-a-day service and it takes 2 men for each call. Under the new laws they can work only 8 hours a day.

THIS FORCES US OUT OF THE AMBULANCE SERVICE

Until now we have continued our service by receiving help from the county, but they have decided they can no longer help us.

Therefore we must discontinue our ambulance service as of the 1st of December 1969.

Others have turned to fire departments, the city or the county for ambulance service. We feel this is the best recourse for the citizen.

Nearly 1,000 Turn Out To Honor Veterans Here

A crowd estimated at nearly 1,000 persons heard Ord attorney Marvin Weems urge moderation on both sides of the Vietnam question as the highlight of Tuesday's local Veterans Day observance.

Addressing himself directly to the division created by the Vietnam War, Weems suggested a halt to name-calling and loose accusations and a return to facts.

"If we are to honor our veterans, who have given so much of themselves, and if we are to serve our nation, each of us must do what we can to reunify our country," he said. Then he went on to explain how this can be done.

"Each of us must understand our form of government and why it is worth perpetuating, and then actively support that understanding," he said.

"We must stop the name-calling and the accusations which infer that everyone with whom we disagree is dishonest, stupid, or unpatriotic.

"We must develop attitudes of good will toward our leaders and our fellow citizens no matter how much we might disagree with them.

"We must seek to persuade them with facts and intelligent argument.

"We must undertake to learn the facts and problems before we form our opinions.

"Finally, when something is wrong we must not stop with accusations; we must furnish proof, and offer and pursue a reasonable and workable program of correction."

He concluded:

"Anyone can criticize; a patriot, however, will offer a workable alternative, because he loves his country and zealously supports its authority and best interests."

Most observers felt that the program was one of the best offered here in several years. It was held at Ord High School after a march from downtown led by an honor guard from the local Veterans of Foreign Wars and American Legion posts.

Also participating were the auxiliaries of the two organizations, the Ord High School band, and Cub Scout and Girl Scout units.

Some of the Auxiliary members carried signs telling of their support for the troops in Vietnam. The biggest sign, which was later draped across the base of the stage beneath the speaker's podium, said simply, "We care."

Others said "thanks to you who have served our country," "millions have served and died to preserve American ideals," and "support our boys."

Weems spoke as the climax to a program which also included a talk by the high school's student council president, Greg Martin; a memorial to the dead rendered by John Rozab, Valley County service officer; and a number of patriotic musical selections given by the high school band, including "Taps" played by Connie Bredthauer and Dan Chichester.

J. H. Schroeder, minister of the Ord Christian Church, gave the invocation; and Hal Pierce served as master of ceremonies.

"Finally, when something is wrong we must not stop with accusations; we must furnish proof, and offer and pursue a reasonable and workable program of correction."

He concluded:

"Anyone can criticize; a patriot, however, will offer a workable alternative, because he loves his country and zealously supports its authority and best interests."

Older People's Problems Will Be Aired at Session

Special problems of the aged will be discussed in a day-long conference Wednesday at Parkview Village.

The session is the last of five scheduled across the state. The others were held at Ainsworth, Hastings, McCook, and North Platte.

Sponsors are the University of Nebraska Extension Division, the Nebraska Nursing Home Assn., Nebraska Assn. of Homes for the Aging, Nebraska Nursing Assn., state Department of Public Health, State Department of Public Welfare, Nebraska Assn. of Housing and Renewal Authorities, and State Advisory Committee on Aging.

To participate in the conference, interested persons should register by Friday. Registrations may be made by the University of Nebraska Extension Division, 511 Nebraska Hall, Lincoln, Neb. 68593. A fee of $3 per person will be charged each participant and checks should accompany the registration requests.

A brochure published by the University of Nebraska says that the conference is designed to broaden the understanding of local citizens and community leaders regarding services and opportunities available to the elderly, to inform local citizens providing these services, and to help them actually provide the services.

Wednesday's session will begin at 8:30 a.m. with an official welcome from Bill French, Ord mayor, followed by Ron Jensen speaking on "Changing Needs of Individuals Grow Older." Mr. Jensen is executive director of the State Advisory Committee on Aging.

Harold Norby, executive director of Tabitha Home in Lincoln, will moderate a panel discussion of "Services Needed for the Older Person," starting at 9 a.m. Among the panel members will be Mrs. Dorothy Van Diest, executive director of the Burwell Housing Authority, which supervises Parkview Plaza in that community.

Other program topics and speakers will include:

- At 11 a.m., "Church Related Services for the Elderly," Tom Frasier, program coordinator in church related services, Tabitha Home, Lincoln.
- At 11:30, "Relationship of Community services to Mental Health," Terry Keuning, psychiatric social worker, State Department of Public Welfare.
- At 1 p.m., "Economic Alternatives for the Older Person," Dr. Bert Evans, assistant professor of economics at the University of Nebraska, Lincoln.
- At 2:30 p.m., "Educational Opportunities for the Older Person," Leonard Hill, administrative director of Adult Basic Education, the Department of Education, Lincoln.
- At 3:30 p.m., "Challenges for Your Community," Ron Jensen, executive director, State Advisory Committee on Aging.

Christmas Seal Letters Mailed

Ten members and volunteers of the Valley County Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Committee shared the recent task of processing appeal letters and Christmas Seals. One thousand fifty letters were prepared for delivery on November 6 in Valley County.

The "Stuffing Party" was held at the Methodist Educational Building. Those assisting in this annual project were Mrs. George Cox, North Loup, Mrs. R. Mittenbrink, Arcadia, Mrs. Robert Hrubec, Comstock, Mrs. John B. Governor Says He Will Run Again; Visit to Ord Scheduled for Nov. 25

By Melvin Paul

BULLETIN

Governor Tiemann did confirm Saturday that he will run again for the top state job. It has also been disclosed that he will be in Ord Nov. 25 for the annual Valley County Republican Banquet, scheduled at the Elks Club. It will begin at 6:30 p.m.

LINCOLN — Gov. Norbert Tiemann said recently he wasn't likely to turn to a career as a dramatic actor, despite his "flawless" performance on a nationally televised show last week.

Tiemann had been flown to Hollywood earlier for the filming of a brief episode on a CBS network show, "The Governor and J.J." The show stars Julie Sommers of Fremont and veteran actor Dan Dailey.

Although many Nebraskans watched their governor's short performance, Tiemann wasn't one of them.

He was at a Republican fundraising dinner in Central City that night and missed the show. He said he hadn't even seen film-clip.

Tiemann said the scene had to be filmed twice, but it wasn't his fault. He said there was camera trouble on the first "take."

In the governor's mansion, the Tiemann family watched the performance. Mrs. Tiemann, the governor's wife, reported, "You looked all right and you sounded all right."

Many of his statehouse friends and other associates, Tiemann said, have been kidding him about the acting debut.

The best crack, he said, was made by Lancaster County Attorney Paul Douglas. "I sneezed and missed it," Douglas told the governor.

In his short dialogue with Dailey, Tiemann invited the television "governor" to lunch and kidded him about his turtle-neck shirt (in the plot Dailey's shirt were lost by a laundry). "If you have any trouble getting in (to the restaurant), tell them you're with me," Tiemann said.

The national television exposure came during the week many political observers were predicting would contain Tiemann's announcement of a decision to seek a second term.

A party had been arranged by his friends to follow the Iowa State Nebraska football game. Heading into the weekend, Tiemann was sidestepping news-men's questions about the party.

He did concede: "An announcement of some relative importance will be made."

Newcomer

Meanwhile, another possible candidate for the Republican nomination for lieutenant governor.

nor moved onto the political scene.

Edward Schwartzkopf of Lincoln, a University of Nebraska regent, said he is "very interested" in the post. He said, however, he wouldn't run if the new university chancellor — now being sought by the board of regents — wanted him to remain on the board.

Tiemann and Schwartzkopf had a brief, inconclusive discussion about the regent's possible candidacy in the pressbox during the Nebraska Colorado football game.

Li. Gov. John Everroad has announced he will not seek another term. He has indicated he is considering running as an independent for the seat now held by Republican Senator Roman Hruska.

State Senator Henry F. Pedersen Jr. of Omaha is already an announced candidate for the GOP lieutenant governor nod.

On the congressional front, meanwhile, John McCollister of Omaha has announced he will try for the Republican nomination in the second district. That seat is now held by Rep. Glenn Cunningham, also a Republican.

Inspection Chief Quits

The man who headed the state motor vehicle inspection program during its infancy has resigned.

Rayfield Johnson, who was hired in July of 1968 to head the program, said he was quitting to enter private industry. He said the primary reason was the low pay in the state job. He was receiving $605 per month.

State Motor Vehicles Director Larry Johns praised Johnson for "an exceptional job." He said he was "astonished" when he learned Johnson was quitting.

Johns said John Cerveny, assistant department director, would serve as acting supervisor until the regent's possible successor to Johnson is chosen.

Classifications Board Named

The governor last week named the 11 members on the Board of Public Road Classifications and Standards. The board was created by one of the bills in the highway package approved by the 1969 legislature.

The board is to establish standards for all categories of public roads in the state. City, county, and state governments are to improve existing roads until they meet the new standards.

Tiemann made these appointments:

Representing city officials — Alfred Rasmussen, Grand Island public works director; Marvin Alby, Imperial utilities superintendent and city engineer; and Gene Jordan, Omaha public works director.

Representing county officials — R. Doyle Hanson, Newcastle, Dixon County board chairman; Melvin Ommen, Unadilla, Dye County board member; and Robert Gaugel, Scottsbluff, Scotts Bluff County highway superintendent.

Representing state officials — Donald Swing, location and pre-design engineer, and Bruce Gillman, deputy state engineer for planning.

Representing the public — Floyd Burkinshaw, Jamison; A. V. Sorenson, Omaha; and C. D. Ackerman, Beatrice.

World War II and its Pearl Harbor ... Corridor ... Coral Sea ... Saipan ... Anzio ... North Africa ... beaches and the beaches of Utah and Omaha ... St. Lo ... the Bridge at Remagen ... the Battle of the Bulge

Korea and its Inchon Landing ... Pork Chop Hill ... Heartbreak Ridge ... and the icebergs of Panmunjom ... Vietnam and its DaNang ... Khe Sanh ... Hue and Hymn-burger Hill

In his opening remarks Pierce said there were men present who had served in all four wars that were mentioned.

Bob Norton, principal of the high school, estimated the total crowd at between 900 and 1,000. It included 752 students from both the public schools and St. Mary's.

Letters to Santa Claus

At least one young Ord lad is going to make sure Santa Claus gets his order this year. With Thanksgiving still two weeks away, Garry Ray Mulligan already has his letter in to Santa Claus telling what he wants for Christmas.

Since Santa still has a subscription to the Quiz, letters to the jolly old fellow will again be printed in the newspaper this year.

Dear Santa Claus,
How are you. I will leave cookies every Christmas.
I want the big real work train. I hope you give it to me.

Visiting Priest Will Discuss Threat of Immorality to U.S.

Many of the current problems facing the United States will be discussed Wednesday night at Ord High School by a touring Catholic priest, Francis Fenton of Bridgeport, Conn.

A line-time foe of Communism in this country, Mr. Fenton will speak on such subjects as pornography, drug abuse, sex education, and situation ethics in his talk titled "Morality and Decency Are Under Attack."

His appearance here is one of a series across the country sponsored by a network of MOTOE (Movement to Restore Decency) committees.

A Catholic priest since 1944, Mr. Fenton has labored for more than 25 years to expose the Communist conspiracy in this country. In assessing the progress of the nation's enemies, he states, "The increasingly critical plight of our nation today is due to one reason above all others, and that reason is the abandonment of God and His moral law by a large percentage of the American people."

One of his strongest beliefs is that a nation must be morally strong to remain physically strong. Quoting the famous French admirer of the United States — Alexis de Tocqueville, who visited U.S. shores over 100 years ago, Mr. Fenton argues: "America is great because America is good; when America ceases to be good, it will cease to be great."

Of particular concern to him is the wave of immorality victimizing the young.

The Nebraska MOTOE Committee, part of a nationwide network, has been formed to reverse the tide of degeneracy that threatens the United States. Through education, persuasion, precept and example, the committee says it seeks to restore the "morals, values, customs, and traditions which have characterized our nation."

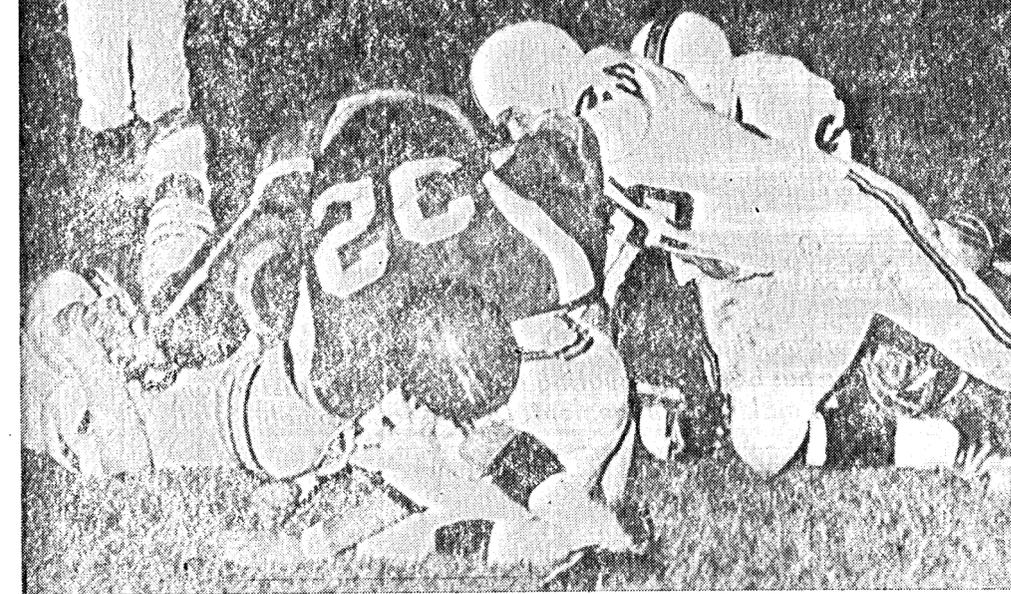

Local sponsors include Doctors Roy Cram and Ben Meckel of Burwell, R. I. Westbrook of Sargent, and Otis Miller of Ord.

Tickets for the lecture may be purchased at the door or in advance from either of the Ord drug stores, Misko's Sporting Goods, or the Martin-and-Miller clinic.

It's Mike and Kim Bower

Those little typographical gremlins were harassing the Quiz editor last week. As a result, the names of Mike and Kim Bower came out Mike and Kim Ballard. They were the first-place winners in doubles competition at Ord's Halloween parade.

Those little typographical gremlins were harassing the Quiz editor last week. As a result, the names of Mike and Kim Bower came out Mike and Kim Ballard. They were the first-place winners in doubles competition at Ord's Halloween parade.

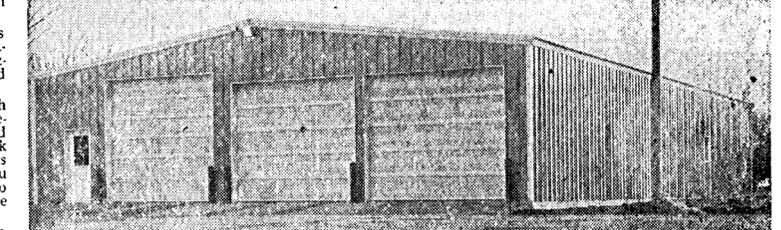

Larry Wells climbs across the Grand Island Northwest defense to score Ord's final touchdown of the season, and the one that gave the Chanticleers their second victory. They defeated Northwest, 13-7, to end their years a 2-6 record. The final weekend was the most successful of the year for area clubs, as seven of them — Ord, North Loup-Scotia, Arcadia, Wheeler Central, Sargent, and Elba — scored victories. For more details turn to the Quiz sports section.

Vancura Family Wins Fourth

Like the Ord Chanticleers, the Vancura family won their first and last contests of the season. In fact, they won their FIRST TWO, and their LAST TWO.

The games in question are the football selection contests sponsored by the Quiz and its advertisers each week. The final week's winner was Alan Vancura, a student at Kearney State College. His mother had won the week before.

The Vancuras also won the first two contests this year.

New fire station is pride of Elba.

Improvements at Elba Draw Attention

The North Loup Valley has one finalist in this year's Nebraska Community Improvement Program. Judges in the annual contest, which promotes community development, have selected Elba as one of six towns for further consideration in Class I. That's the smallest population category.

Winners will be revealed at Awards Day activities Dec. 5 in Columbus.

Several other area communities including Ord, were entered in the contest this year. It was divided into five classes, based on population.

Mrs. Clark Weckbach, chairman for the local effort, has already started plans for the 1970 competition. She announced at last week's Chamber of Commerce banquet that the city will have a booth promoting itself at the awards festivities in Columbus.

Elba's competitors for top honors in Class I are Brainard, Endicott, Republican City, Tobias, and Wilsonville. They were chosen from a field of 24 villages that originally entered competition in their class.

State evaluators visited Elba on Oct. 29 to personally assess the village's projects.

Chairman for the Elba entry is Mrs. Ann Jacobsen. She is assisted by Gerald Novotny as vice-chairman.

One of the principal improvements made at Elba was the erection of a 50-by-80-foot fire station, which will house up to six trucks. Presently the village has five emergency vehicles — two fire trucks, two tankers, and one ambulance.

The new metal building also contains administrative space that can be used for elections, town meetings, and the like. It is equipped with restrooms and kitchen facilities too.

The building, erected by the rural fire district, is the bright spot of a refurbished Main Street, which also has a number of other improvements. The old fire station, located a couple of doors from the new one, was purchased and remodeled by the Elba State Bank and Novotny's Electric. Paul's Hardware bought the old city hall, located next door to the fire station, and remodeled it. A new front has been put on Pete's Market.

Improvements in the residential area were also a prime part of Elba's contest entry, Novotny said Tuesday. He said several new homes have been built recently and a number of others remodeled. Presently there is only one liveable house in town that is not occupied, he added.

Other major improvements in Elba include:

- Oiling village streets;
- Cleaning up the baseball diamond and park;
- Removing an old house from a lot next to the school building and converting part of the space into playgrounds.
- Erecting a welcome sign at the main entrance to town with the signatures of 19 businesses.

Finalists in the other population categories are:

- Class II — Battle Creek, Cole-ridge, Maywood, Filger, Snyder, Stuart, and Utica;
- Class III — Cambridge, Grant, Imperial, Pierce, Plainview, Ravenna, and Red Cloud;
- Class IV — Aurora, Central City, Coz-Id, Papillion, Superior, and Wynore;
- Class V — Beatrice, McCook, Nebraska City, North Platte, and South Sioux City.

What Are The True Facts About UNICEF?

We the undersigned are concerned about the recent campaigns made in our communities against UNICEF. Many of the allegations made in these campaigns were entirely false while others were only half truths or distortions of the truth. We would like to set the record straight.

ALLEGATION: "It's the Communist governments that get this money (which is allocated by UNICEF)."

THE TRUTH: "UNICEF helps governments establish long-range programs of permanent benefit to children. Allocations of funds are not turned over to the recipient governments but are used by UNICEF to purchase the supplies and equipment not available locally and for scholarships to train necessary local personnel. Often the assistance is for transport, whereby UNICEF provides trucks, jeeps, bicycles or motorcycles to enable the teams to reach remote areas. The projects aided are in the field of health, disease control, nutrition, education, vocational training, and family and child welfare."

"Each recipient government must provide assurance that the project will contribute to expanding services for the children of the country. UNICEF does not claim to meet all the needs of children in the developing countries. Its aim is to assist governments to attack the most critical problems of their children in a way that can be continued when UNICEF aid ends."

ALLEGATION: "Bloody Red China . . . received from UNICEF in 1961 a total of $1,536,109.46."

THE TRUTH: "UNICEF has made NO allocation to Communist China." "UNICEF made allocations totaling $9,139,400 to China during the period 1947-1949 (prior to the takeover by the People's Republic of China [Communist China]) for emergency feeding, maternal and child welfare programs and for tuberculosis control. Of this total, $7,229,900 was returned to the central accounts of UNICEF. Since 1950, all UNICEF aid to China has gone to the Republic of China (Taiwan) (Nationalist China)."

ALLEGATION: "This money was given to the Communist government, and the dictators spent it as they saw fit. We can only take their word for where it was spent." (While this allegation referred specifically to the "money" Red China allegedly received, the implication is that this is the case with all communist countries.)

THE TRUTH: "The care with which a project is established and the guarantees which surround it assure that UNICEF's aid serves its purpose, reaching children in need. The aid is given under strict rules of control and supervision embodied in a formal agreement between the recipient government and UNICEF. This is supplemented by a detailed plan of operations. The government must agree that the supplies provided by UNICEF will be used efficiently and distributed equitably on the basis of need. It also must agree to admit UNICEF personnel at all times and provide access to current accounts.

ALLEGATION: "Only the uninformed or pacifists would ask what's wrong with the COMMUNIST program of UNICEF. An editorial in the Birmingham Post Herald of Sept. 12, 1962 said there is nothing wrong with UNICEF, EXCEPT their funds are used for furtherance of Communist aims" and "the people running UNICEF are predominantly Communist or Communist accommodations."

THE TRUTH: "UNICEF currently assists 119 countries. For the 1969-70 fiscal year, the UNICEF Executive Board approved allocations totaling $35.7 million. Included in the allocations for the nearly 500 projects aided by UNICEF are $150,000 for the improvement of science education in Cuba and $27,000 for integrated health services in Yugoslavia, or approximately .5% of total allocations. Nine countries of Eastern Europe and Cuba also voluntarily contribute to UNICEF."

"UNICEF's income in 1968 included government contributions from Bulgaria, Byelorussian Soviet Socialist Republic, Cuba, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Poland, Rumania, Ukrainian Soviet Socialist Republic, Union of Soviet Socialist Republics and Yugoslavia, totaling $1.25 million, more than three times the amount of allocations to communist countries."

"UNICEF staff members are part of the United Nations Secretariat, the international civil service which administers the work of the United Nations. Personnel are employed on the basis of their professional competence. Nationals of all member nations, communist or non-communist, are entitled to be employed if they meet the professional qualifications of the particular jobs they seek."

"Each United States citizen employed by the United Nations is subject to a security investigation by the United States government as a condition of employment, under the provision of Executive Order 10422."

ALLEGATION: "Funds from UNICEF totaling $10 million were used to make war on the Christian ANTI-COMMUNISTS of Katanga, where hospitals were bombed and women as well as children were shot down in the street by the UNITED NATIONS 'peace force.'"

THE TRUTH: "The question refers to a loan made by the United States government in 1961. Misunderstanding about the loan was clarified in a speech to the House of Representatives by Congressman Walter H. Judd (R-Minn.) on August 14, 1962. This speech, in the Congressional Record for that date, confirms that in May 1961, the State Department loaned $10 million to the United Nations for general use. In December 1961, this money was reimbursed. If it then became part of the United States contribution to UNICEF. At the time of the loan, UNICEF had neither claim to nor control over the money. UNICEF funds have been used for no purpose other than programs for children and youth."

ALLEGATION: "Time was, when anyone gave support to the enemy, it was called treason and the culprits were dealt with accordingly. It's time we dealt with these traitors who give support to our enemy . . . by giving money to UNICEF . . ."

THE TRUTH: "Ever since its founding, UNICEF has enjoyed the full support of the people and Government of the United States. I want to take the opportunity to reaffirm this commitment and pledge you our continued cooperation in the advancement of your high human goals."

"Every day UNICEF proves its interest, concern and tireless devotion to the health and welfare of mothers and their children throughout the world. You sponsor programs for prenatal care. You help train nurses and midwives. You assist governments in providing milk for school lunches. You contribute to the control of diseases and the upgrading of nutritional standards. You offer educational and vocational training. And, when needed, you are always ready to give emergency assistance."

"Your work goes on without regard to race or color, without preference for national origin, without prejudice to religious and political beliefs. It is the children and their mothers who count. And by enhancing their health and well-being, you make the soundest investment for future prosperity and peace."

"May you have every success in the year ahead. And may the world be better for your noble mission."

"President Richard M. Nixon
"March 20, 1969"

(You draw your own conclusion as to whether it is "treason" to support UNICEF.)

We would suggest that in the future, when you read charges of communism and subversion, that you first check back to the original documents quoted in the works which aroused you. Investigate their reliability and see if there has been any quoting out of context, distortion of sentences by adding or subtracting words, or guilt by association. Get the FACTS before making a judgement. DON'T take somebody else's word for it!

The "allegations" in this ad were quoted from a letter in VOX POP (ORD QUIZ, Oct. 30, 1969). "The Truth" was quoted from the pamphlet UNICEF Facts and Fallacies, 1969 edition, United States Committee for UNICEF with the exception of the quote followed with an asterisk which was quoted from the 1965 edition of the same work.

Carol's Corner

by Carol Leggett

Pausing between thoughts, I fumbled with the pencil I held in my hand. Though I had used it numberless times, never once had I taken time to read the message it carried.

"From a Friend of Yours — To a Friend of Mine. Ten easy rules for getting people to like you: 1. Learn to remember names. 2. Be a comfortable person to be with. 3. Acquire a relaxed, easy-going attitude. 4. Don't be egotistical. 5. Cultivate the quality of being interesting. 6. Study to get the scratchy elements out of your personality. 7. Sincerely attempt to heal, on an honest Christian basis, every misunderstanding you might have. 8. Practice liking people. 9. Never miss an opportunity to say a word of congratulations, or express sympathy where appropriate. 10. Give spiritual strength to people."

1. baking powder
1 c. milk
Cream butter and sugar until light. Beat in egg and vanilla. Sift dry ingredients together and add alternately with milk to first mixture, beating until smooth. Drop by level measuring spoons onto baking sheet covered with foil. Bake in hot oven (425 degrees F.) about seven minutes. Cool on racks and put together, back to back with filling. Makes about three dozen double cookies.

Filling: Cream 1/2 c. butter or margarine with 1 c. confectioners' sugar until smooth. Blend in 1 c. marshmallow cream and 1/2 t. vanilla. If too thick, add a few drops of milk.

In telephoning a busy mother recently I was greeted by the anxious voice of a young helper.

"May I please speak with your mommy?" I inquired.

"She's changing her pants," was the little boy's reply. Waiting only a moment, the mother took the telephone and immediately I began apologizing for whatever it was I had interrupted.

"Oh, I was changing the baby's diaper," she explained.

It was then I learned that the two older children of that household refer to their baby sister as HE!

Now I take the time to read what I'm writing with "Let Your Conscience Be Your Guide"; "Christ Loves You So Do We"; "Smile, let people wonder what you're up to."

Cookie baking must be a favorite in most households, as it is cookie recipes which seemingly are most common in this column.

Anyone with hungry youngsters and husbands will welcome still another cookie idea, however, so why not try this one? It's from Lila Naeve.

Carolyn Lange Marries John Curry In Lutheran Ceremony at Houston, Tex.

Carolyn Lange and John Curry, both of Houston, Tex., were united in marriage Nov. 1 in a candle-light ceremony at the Memorial Lutheran Church, Missouri Synod, in Houston. Pastors Eugene Oesch of Houston and George Lange of Tomball, Tex., officiated.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lange of Ord, and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. T. Leo Curry of Rockford, Ill.

Girl friend of Houston was the organist; and Mrs. Paul Homan of Reno, Nev., a sister of the bride, was the soloist.

Bride's matrons were Mrs. John Gerety of Klamath Falls, Ore., another sister of the bride, and Mrs. George Lange, Tomball, Tex., sister-in-law of the bride. They were wearing floor-length gowns of autumn gold crepe featuring elbow-length bell sleeves and softly rounded necklines. The dresses were accented with gold velvet ribbon around the bodice, closed by a pert bow at the back with trailing ribbons.

Each attendant wore a soft gather of illusion on her hair, which was held by a tailored velvet bow. They carried autumn arrangements of bronze daisies and chrysanthemums.

Jack Coggins of Buenos Aires, Argentina, served as best man, and groomsmen were Eugene Smith and George Jacobson, both of Houston.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, appeared in an Empire Asilhouette gown of ivory tulle and Alencon lace. Scalloped lace trimmed the high collar and traced a redingote effect down the front, seeming to be held together by the five tiny peau bows racing toward the hem. The long tight sleeves were buttoned with traditional tiny buttons.

Miss Lange's chapel train was held high with a little girl boy of peau. She carried a cascade of white orchids, stephanotis, and ivy.

The couple will reside at 2807 Stanton in Houston.

Chants End Year On Winning Note

Ord's Chanticleers will have a long time to savor their second football victory of the season. The Chants closed out a rebuilding year by upsetting Grand Island Northwest, 13-7, Friday night.

"It means a lot to win the first and the last games," Chuck Squier said after completing his first year as a head coach. "By winning the first one it meant our kids were ready to play ball, and by winning the last one it meant they hadn't quit."

But the coach promptly issued a warning to those players that are coming back next year.

"We have a lot of boys who have come a long way this season," he said, "but they can lose it all by sitting around this winter and spring and getting fat and sassy. Any of them who do that will be no good to us."

The seniors are running backs Jim Novotny, Bruce Hurlbert and Dennis Kamarad, all starters; reserve defensive end Ron Lenstrom; defensive end Paul Markowski, a starter and possible all-conference candidate who was lost for the year when he dislocated an elbow at mid-season; Bill Miller, a two-way starter at end; and linemen Loren Vanucera, Chuck Setlik and Bruce Worn, all two-way starters most of the year.

Squier said the junior class was "a good, stable one," and he said the sophomores "came along like we hoped they would."

"With all our young players, we thought we would improve as the season went along," he said. "And we did, but the injuries really hurt us. If we had had all our seniors, I think we could have gone into next season with a three-game winning streak."

The hospital list for the year was like this: Bruce Hurlbert, halfback, missed most of three games with sickness; Paul Markowski, end, missed five games with dislocated elbow; Bill Miller, end, missed most of three games with ankle injury; Jim Novotny, halfback, missed three games with sickness; Loren Vanucera, guard, missed two games with neck injury; Jeff Hruby, guard, missed three games with cracked vertebra;

Gary Kamarad, halfback, missed five games with broken wrist; Russell Rogers, tackle, missed three games with broken ankle; Dan Timmerman, tackle, missed one game with injuries; Tom Klancek, halfback, missed five games with broken finger; Norm Martin, guard, missed two games with sickness; Mike Shafer, center, missed full season with dislocated vertebra.

Against Northwest Ord dominated play, although it had to score a fourth-quarter touchdown to win. The two teams went into the quarter tied, but an 85-yard drive was climaxed with a short burst by Larry Wells.

The drive consumed the major part of that fourth quarter, as Keown got only six plays from scrimmage. For the game Ord ran 74 plays to 47 for the losers.

Much of the credit for the victory must go to the tenacious Ord defense, which gave up only two touchdowns in its last three games. When it came, the North Loup-Scotia sophomore kicked O'Neill St. Mary's right out of its third-place rating in state Class C football circles.

Only 25 seconds remained when Keown dropped his clipboard and ran into Friday night's game. With amazing calmness, he booted a perfect 32-yard field goal that snapped a 20-game winning streak for the Eagles. The victory skinned extended back to the 1967 season.

Having undergone back surgery just a few days before practice opened this fall, Keown had provided the sidelines most of the year keeping statistics for his team. He had a doctor's permission to kick, though, and he suited up each game and did his team's punting and extra-point kicking.

He had tried one field goal earlier this year, but it had been unsuccessful.

Then, with the score tied 8-8 and North Loup - Scotia facing fourth down on St. Mary's 15-yard line, Keown made his year successful.

"I told him it was just like kicking an extra point," Coach Keith Stacher explained later. "I told him we had the tie even if he missed, so there was nothing to worry about."

Keown was simply the last in a long line of Wildcat heroes. Dave Edwards, for example, made his last game in a North Loup-Scotia uniform one to be remembered with pleasure as he gained 88 yards rushing, scored his team's only touchdown, and intercepted a St. Mary's pass. His performance earned him laurels as the Omaha World-Herald's high school player of the week.

The entire Wildcat line performed well too as it out-fought the touted Cardinal front. On one side offensively were Craig Wegner, Mike Rasmussen, and Steve Rasmussen, and on the other side were Jon Reeves, Roger O-to, and Clifford Jorgensen. Bruce Bergman held down the pivot.

On defense Dana Wert, Craig Hughes, and others joined in on the fun.

North Loup - Scotia scored just before the first quarter closed as Edwards drove across from the one-yard line on fourth down. The plunge capped a 77-yard drive that had appeared to be stopped when Gordy Kriewald was tackled two yards short on a fourth-and-nine play from the St. Mary's 43-yard line. But the Cardinals were penalized for unsportsmanlike conduct on the play, and North Loup-Scotia went on.

Jorgensen then caught a pass from Rod Van Slyke for the two-point conversion.

That's the way it stayed till the fourth quarter when Ted Fritton rode a strong block by Joe Fuhner into the Wildcat end zone from four yards out. Fritton found the same hole good for the two-point conversion that tied it with just under nine minutes to play.

North Loup-Scotia then drove to the St. Mary's 12-yard line before turning the ball over. The Cardinals, seeking to preserve their winning streak, tried a fourth-and-five play from their own 31 and failed to make it as Hughes knocked down a pass.

The Wildcats then took over and moved to the St. Mary's 15, where they encountered fourth and six. That's when Keown made his appearance.

Junior Alan Fuss, and seniors Randy Winter and Jerry Van Horn aided Wildcat cause in 5-3 year.

North Loup-Scotia Upsets Highly Rated Team

Terry Keown waited through seven full games and 47 minutes, 35 seconds of another for his big chance. When it came, the North Loup-Scotia sophomore kicked O'Neill St. Mary's right out of its third-place rating in state Class C football circles.

Two Seniors Lead Wheeler Central As It Wins Sandhill Crown, 34-28

Talent-laden Wheeler Central has finally proved itself the best football team in the Sandhill Gateway Conference this fall, but the margin isn't much. In a playoff for the conference championship Tuesday night the Broncos nipped Elgin, 34-28.

The two teams had battled to a 22-22 tie earlier in the year, and it appeared for a while Tuesday night that they might be going to repeat that deadlock. They were tied, 28-28, late in the fourth quarter when Tom Majors and John Olson teamed up on a 45-yard pass-and-run play for the winning touchdown.

Still the verdict was in doubt until less than a half minute remained. Elgin had driven to the Wheeler Central 26, but on a third-and-11 play Olson intercepted an Eagle pass to preserve the victory.

Heroes were plentiful for the winning Broncos, but the leadership roles were taken by their two seniors — Majors and full-back-linebacker Jerry Childers. As an offensive quarterback Majors hit on 13 of 21 pass attempts for 181 yards and did some pro-style signal calling. Once on fourth down with six inches to go he threw a 21-yard pass, and as a defensive end he repeatedly made big plays.

Childers did not have a particularly good night rushing, but his blocks repeatedly paved the way for sizeable gains by running mate Olson. And on defense he was all over the field, especially in the latter stages when Elgin was threatening to snatch victory after trailing by 22-8 at halftime.

All seven other members of the Wheeler starting lineup are scheduled back for more competition next year, and a couple, for even more after that. Elgin, on the other hand, started a total of 13 players on either offense or defense — and 11 of them.

With the victory Wheeler Central climbed past Elgin in the weekly eight-man ratings compiled by Lincoln Star sportswriter Virgil Parker. In Wednesday morning's listings the Bartlett school was ranked ninth and Elgin 10th. They had been ranked the other way around last week.

Wheeler Central closed its year with a 7-1-2 record. The defeat was the first for Elgin, as it ended with a 7-1-1 slate. The Eagles had gained the right to play Wheeler by defeating Humphrey, 12-8, in a playoff Friday night for the Eastern Division championship of the conference. Wheeler previously had won the Western title.

The game followed pretty much the pattern of the earlier contest between the two schools as Wheeler Central jumped off to a big halftime lead, only to see Elgin make a fine second-half comeback.

Both teams played wide-open football, with Wheeler drawing first blood on a nine-yard pass from Majors to Gene Schmeits. Majors made a fine fake into the line after four straight running plays, and Schmeits was all alone in the end zone.

The touchdown had been set up by Olson's 47-yard run from his own 18 to the Elgin 15. The junior tailback ran for 114 yards in the first half and 131 for the evening, darting through some good holes opened by offensive linemen Brian Hinze, Lyle Lenz, and Mike Childers.

Olson ran the two-point conversion to make the score 8-0.

Elgin came back to tie it at 8-8 on a 44-yard pass play, with Tom Juester throwing to Mike Bennett.

Kuester played a courageous game but wound up being the goat. After his sensational 56-yard run tied the score at 28-28 late in the fourth period, it was he who let Olson get behind him for the winning touchdown pass.

After the first Eagle score Wheeler Central dominated things the rest of the first half. The Broncos scored on a one-yard run by Olson and a two-yard push by Majors.

But the second half was a different story as Elgin refused to stay down until the final seconds. The Eagles scored on their first series of the third quarter, only to see Wheeler bounce back with a 56-yard drive of its own. The highlight was a 40-yard pass-and-run by the left-handed Majors hitting bigplay Olson.

That brought the score to 28-16, but Elgin came back with another score just before the quarter ended. After the two teams took turns running long series that consumed much of the fourth quarter, Elgin finally tied it on Kuester's 56-yard gallop.

But on the extra-point try that would have put the Eagles ahead for the first time, Scott Patrick nailed Kuester with a sure tackle that preserved the deadlock.

Wheeler then lost no time in regaining its lead, with Majors throwing to Patrick for nine yards and then hitting Olson for the winner. Olson caught it about the 23 and was home free, as Kuester had leaped in a vain attempt to knock the pass down and had thus taken himself out of the play.

The Eagle came back and still had Wheeler fans biting their nails when Olson made the final interception. That drive had been stymied, however, when Majors turned in a big play. He threw Kuester for a five-yard loss as the Eagle quarterback tried to roll out on a second-and-six play from the Wheeler 20-yard line.

Wheeler's triumph avenged a playoff loss to Elgin suffered two years ago.

Jerry Childers is bulldozed on this play by an Elgin defender, but Childers and his teammates did some bulldozing themselves Tuesday night as they won their conference playoff game, 34-28. The victory gave Wheeler Central a 7-1-2 record for the year.

Playing a near perfect game, Loup City stormed past Shelton, 20-0, in the season finale Friday for both teams.

With the victory Loup City claimed third place in final Loup-Platte Conference standings. The Red Raiders, with a 4-2 conference mark and a 6-3 overall slate, finished behind co-champions Fullerton and Ravenna. Each of them posted 5-1 conference records, and the one Ravenna loss was to Loup City.

Against Shelton, which had a respectable 5-4 record for the year, the Red Raiders were at their very best. They had their top offensive showing of the year with 423 yards gained, and also their best defensive effort as they limited their foe to a net of 60.

Even in the mistake category the Red Raiders were nearly flawless as they did not give up a fumble and had just one pass intercepted. On the other hand, their alert defenders picked off three Shelton passes and scooped up two Bulldog fumbles.

Improving as the season progressed, the Red Raiders posted their second straight shutout in the finale. They had blanked Ravenna, 12-0, the week before.

Twenty seniors played their final contest for Loup City, and Coach Don Wagner said they will be "sorely missed" next year. He said they had provided fine leadership all year for the younger members of the team.

Ball control was an important factor for the Red Raiders Friday night. Not counting plays wiped out by penalties, they put the ball in motion 83 times from scrimmage compared to only 51 for Shelton. And almost 20 percent — of the Bulldog plays were punts as they gave the ball up 10 times that way. They ran the ball only 16 times all night.

The shutout was the only one of the year for Shelton. Both the Loup City front five and the secondary played important roles in administering it.

Up front Glenn Epley, Rod Obermiller, Gary Riskowski, Ed Kowalski, and Ron Setlik choked off the Shelton running game and put pressure on the passer. And in the secondary Tim Eusek, Jack Van Slyke, and Mike McDyk each picked off a pass to lead play there.

Van Slyke also had a fine offensive game as he scored one touchdown and made several other good runs, including the ones that set up his team's other two touchdowns. They were scored by Mark Eusek on runs of two and five yards.

Quarterback Bob Guzinski complemented the running game, which amassed a whopping 302 yards, with 121 yards through the air.

Loup City 0 6 14 0—20

LC — Van Slyke 3 ran (Obermiller pass from Eusek) 3 run (conversion failed).

VFW Requests 'Day of Prayer' This Sunday

Area residents have been asked to join in a national day of prayer Sunday, asking for peace, safety of U.S. servicemen in Vietnam, national unity, and guidance for the United States in "this time of crisis." The request was made by Clarence Fox on behalf of Post 7029, Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Fox said he hoped all local residents would participate and that the clergy would set aside Sunday for special prayers at all church services.

In announcing the day of prayer, he cited a recent appeal made by Rev. Earl Best of Indianapolis, Ind., national VFW chaplain, who said:

"In this critical time, all Americans should reflect prayerfully on the future course this nation will follow and to ask divine guidance for President Nixon as he makes decisions and sets policies that may affect untold generations yet unborn."

"All Americans should pray for peace and for the thousands of men who daily put their lives on the line in Vietnam to ensure the right of dissent for other thousands at home who so vociferously object to the role our nation is playing in that troubled country. Let us pray for unity in our resolve to do right."

"In their prayers Americans should remember the men and women who have given their lives in Vietnam and in all the wars their countrymen have fought to preserve freedom everywhere."

Junior Play Due Tomorrow At Bartlett

Perhaps they didn't know when they were well off, or maybe they were just gluttons for punishment, but Hercules Nelson's uncle and aunt had long wanted him to come spend a weekend with them. And to top it off, they even went so far as to say he could bring his bosom pal, Wilber Maxwell. So with suitcases in hand, the boys arrive at Uncle Bob's set for a big weekend. That's putting it mildly indeed because Hercules knows his uncle has taken a new job, but what he doesn't know until it's too late is that his uncle is a mortician. Needless to say, the boys are terrified. They're all for heading home pronto, especially when they find there's another guest in the house, an old boy named Jason Quigley who — "ran out of gas." His funeral's to be Monday. But then Wilber meets Celeste and Hercules meets Nina and they decide to stay. They soon find out that Mr. Quigley gallivants around in the most uncorpus delicti fashion. Mr. Quigley isn't really dead. Someone tried to do him in and he evoked a plan to show up at his funeral and trap the guilty party. The boys set out to solve the case and matters go from bad to worse to terrible.

This hilarious mystery-comedy will be presented by the Junior class of Wheeler Central High School Friday, November 14. Reserved seats will be one dollar. They can be purchased from Junior class students. General admission will be seventy-five cents for the 8:00 P.M. performance.

Some Personal Notes
Your correspondent has been ill the past week with bronchitis, so if I sounded different this week when I called each of you you'll know the reason why. I am getting along just fine and hope to be back to normal when I call again.

I would like to say at this time that if I don't get you called for news in the future and you do have news, please feel free to call my number — 723-3920 — as it isn't always possible for me to reach you. I have had many people say, "Well, I don't have news this week but I did last week and you didn't call." I always try three times to get each family in the community, and still there are several each week that I don't reach.

Thank you so much for the many nice comments I have received since I started this column. Many people tell how much their children or relatives enjoy reading what happens in their old community and what their friends are doing, and how much they appreciate hearing news from the Sand Flats for the first time in years. I too enjoy writing the column as it gives me an opportunity to talk with each of my neighbors and make new friends.

A gas room heater.

One of the nicest things about winter.

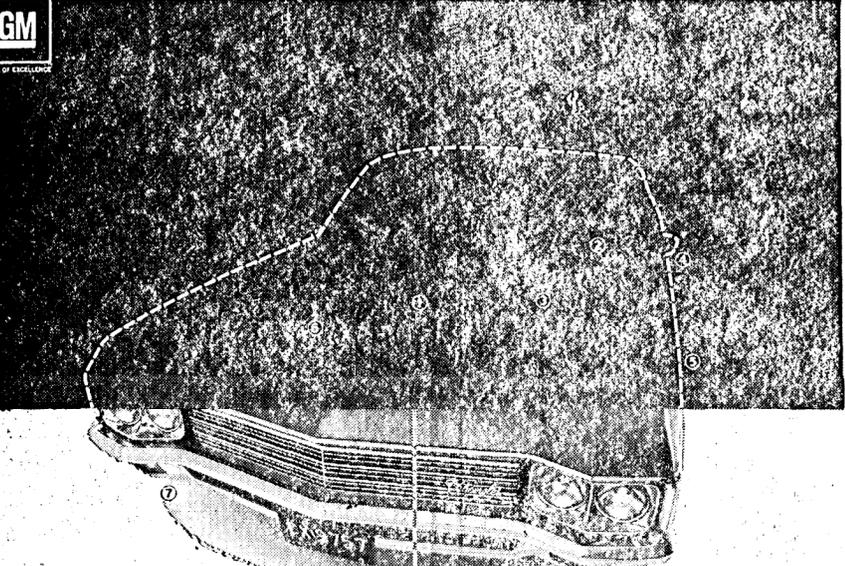

Just because it's going to get cold outside doesn't mean it has to inside. Not this year, anyhow.

The simple addition this winter of a gas room heater to the garage, basement, enclosed porch or wherever can make all the difference. Gas room heaters are fast, efficient, reliable and economical—a gas furnace in miniature. Many models use outside air in the sealed combustion chambers so they don't need a chimney or any ductwork. And they come in pretty styles and colors besides.

See them at your heating contractor's or come see us.

Impala's hidden persuaders:

- ① 350-cu.-in. engine
A new more powerful standard 250-hp V8 makes the 1970 Impala move with all the more assurance. On good ol' regular gas.
- ② Anti-theft column lock
A locking system is built right into the steering column. When you take your key with you, your lock not only your ignition but your steering wheel as well.
- ③ Aluminized exhaust system
It simply means that your original muffler, tailpipe and exhaust are going to last longer than you'd probably expect them to. Fair enough?
- ④ Side guard beams
They look like highway guard rails, and they're built into both sides of the car for extra protection in case of impact. Not too many cars have them.
- ⑤ Full Coil suspension
Huge coil springs at all four wheels are four big reasons why a Chevrolet Impala rides smoother and quieter than a low-priced car has any right to.
- ⑥ Inner fenders
Up inside every fender is another fender to protect against slush and mud and help keep your Impala looking good.
- ⑦ Flush and dry
We build the car so that rain and wash water can run down through the inside of the rocker panels, then out. Air follows to do the drying.

Church Women Install Officials For New Year

Mrs. Leonard Clark challenged those attending the World Community Day services at Salem United Methodist Church last week to "seek the Lord and live" — using Amos 5 and Luke 10 as scripture references.

The program — theme was "Christians in International Development," carried out with readings and voices from the congregation plus a unison reading by U Thant, secretary general of the United Nations. Special music was presented by a Mira Valley trio.

Twenty-three $3 certificates and an offering of $39.39 were dedicated for the work of Church Women United. Several blankets were also donated to victims of the recent hurricane disaster.

Mrs. Jess Meyer conducted installation ceremonies for the 1970-71 officers. The new officials are Mrs. Charles Anderson, president; Mrs. Lyle Sintek, vice-president; Mrs. Howard Cook, secretary; and Mrs. Richard Meyer, treasurer. Council members include Mrs. Meyer, Mrs. Carroll Thomas, Mrs. Virgil Ferguson, Mrs. Edwin Lenz, and Mrs. Reuben Malmstrom. The Greeley society was added as a newcomer to the group.

During the business meeting a thank-you was read from the children of the Ord Special Service School, and it was voted that the Church Women United would visit the school several times during the year — with different societies being responsible for designated months. Another project of the group is to make and send layettes to the Nebraska Indian Mission at Winnebago.

Caution Urged for Pork Producers; Large Price Fluctuations Anticipated

By John Schade

A seasonal decline is ahead for hog prices the next few months. Look for prices in the 23-24 dollar range during November and December. They may drop to around 21-22 dollars by February of 1970.

Next spring the pig crop will be up as much as 5 to 7 percent, and next summer should bring a seasonal price increase with prices reaching the 24-25 dollar range during July and August.

But look out from September through December of 1970. The price of fat butchers may tumble to as low as 18-20 dollars. This drop can be prevented if producers will hold spring and summer farrowing in line.

Feeder pig prices have been high during 1969. Diseases and embargoes by some states slowed movement in July, but the prices recovered somewhat in August.

Look for 40-pound pigs to sell around 17-20 dollars per head the rest of 1969. Prices will decline slightly in early 1970, but should be near current levels during March and April.

The Invasion Has Started
At this time of year many unwanted insect visitors find their way into houses. The most common ones are crickets, roaches, ground beetles, spiders, millipedes, sowbugs, boxelder bugs, and clover mites.

The boxelder bug invasion into homes seems to be in full swing. These little creatures are only looking for a warm place to spend the winter. Although they are not destructive, they do create considerable concern to the lady of the house.

They enter houses through small openings around windows, wires, pipes, and cracks in the foundation. They are often found in large numbers around foundations, usually on the west side of buildings where the temperatures are high.

Sprays applied directly to the insects will kill them, but migration of survivors into houses will continue. The residue left from sprays may have little effect.

Spray bugs where they congregate around foundations with chlordane 45 percent Emulsifiable Concentrate, mixed at the rate of 4/5 pint to a gallon of water. Sevin 50 percent wettable powder at the rate of one cup to a gallon of water will help reduce the number of bugs that enter the house. It is also advisable to spray foundation plantings and into the lawn a distance of 10 to 15 feet from the structure. This will give some control of other unwanted insects.

Inside the house, vacuum up the insects as they appear. If rooms are heavily infested, an aerosol spray containing pyrethrin can be used. Be sure to follow directions and precautions on the can. Fill the room with the spray mist and close it for several hours. Windows and doors should then be opened to remove the remaining mist, and insects should be vacuumed up immediately as some of them may recover from the effects of the aerosol.

Agnew's Accusers Find Strategy Backfiring

He doesn't really seem to need any help, but just for the record it should be pointed out exactly what the context was when Vice-President Spiro Agnew uttered that now famous phrase, "an effete corps of impudent snobs who characterize themselves as intellectuals."

The phrase has generally been used to accuse the vice-president of calling all those who took part in the October Vietnam War Moratorium as "effete" and "intellectual snobs." Some writers have pointed out that Agnew wasn't referring to everyone who took part in the moratorium when he uttered those words, but only to their leaders.

But even that is not correct, as can be readily seen when the phrase is put into context. Here's what the vice-president actually said:

"Education is being redefined at the demand of the uneducated to suit the ideas of the uneducated. The student now goes to college to proclaim rather than to learn. The lessons of the past are ignored and obliterated in a contemporary antagonism known as the generation gap. A spirit of national masochism prevails, encouraged by an effete corps of impudent snobs who characterize themselves as intellectuals."

"It is in this setting of dangerous oversimplification that the war in Vietnam achieves its greatest distortion."

"The recent Vietnam Moratorium is a reflection of the confusion that exists in America today. Thousands of well motivated young people, conditioned since childhood to respond to great emotional appeals, saw fit to demonstrate for peace. Most did not stop to consider that the leaders of the moratorium had billed it as a massive public outpouring of sentiment against the foreign policy of the President of the United States. Most did not care to be reminded that the leaders of the moratorium refused to disassociate themselves from the objective enunciated by the enemy in Hanoi."

When put into context, it is obvious that Vice President Agnew did not say what generally has been attributed to him. And he has mildly protested the action, saying that his remarks were deliberately distorted by the news media.

But the protest has been mild, for the distorted version proved to be even headier stuff for the average "forgotten" American than the real version. The proof is in Agnew's mail, which he proudly proclaims is running between 4 and 5 to 1 in favor of his remarks.

The Real 'Forgotten American'?

During these days of vociferous debate between the "get-out-of-Vietnam-now" and the "gradual-withdrawal" factions, it seems incredible to think that there is still any sizeable number of Americans who would like to see the United States win the war in Vietnam.

Thus, it is startling to learn the results of a poll conducted recently in Texas. Published in U.S. News & World Report, this poll indicates that there are more Texans who prefer to see their country "go all out to win" than there are who advocate any other course.

The poll shows that 39 percent of the people interviewed prefer a win policy, 36 percent would like to see the U.S. get out of Vietnam, 15 percent would prefer that we continue what we are presently doing, and 10 percent are undecided.

This indicates that the overwhelming support given President Richard Nixon recently on the Vietnam question has been for many a choice between the lesser of two evils, and not a true indication of their first choice.

Secret Inquest Cannot Clear Kennedy

Considering his stated desire to clear the air in the death of Mary Jo Kopechne, it seems incredible that Senator Ted Kennedy would allow his attorneys to ask that the scheduled inquest be closed to the press and the public.

In view of Senator Kennedy's national stature and his aspirations for the Presidency, the public has a right to know every detail concerning Miss Kopechne's death. Now that the Massachusetts Supreme Court has ruled that the inquest must be held in secret, it cannot possibly accomplish its full objectives — even though a transcript of the proceedings will presumably be released later.

It is significant that more than half the people in this country — if the results of a poll published last week by Time magazine can be considered indicative — now do not believe that Senator Kennedy has told the truth about the accident. The poll showed that 51 percent did not believe the senator's story, 25 percent did, and 24 percent were not sure.

The number of doubting Thomases had increased by 8 percent since a similar poll was conducted in August, while the number of those who said they believed the senator's story had declined by 11 percent.

Those changes were not due to chance.

DAVE MARTIN Reports

Vietnam President Richard Nixon last week delivered a clear, forceful, and logical talk to the United States in regard to Vietnam. His speech was courageous, and I approve wholeheartedly the policies being followed by the President — deescalation instead of escalation.

From 1953 through 1961, the United States provided a total of $5.3 billion in economic assistance to South Vietnam. In 1960, when President Dwight Eisenhower left office, we had a total of 900 American military men in South Vietnam who were only assisting in the training of the South Vietnamese Army.

During the first year of the Kennedy Administration in 1961, this figure jumped to 3,200 and escalated to 11,000 in 1962, 16,000 in 1963, 23,000 in 1964, 84,000 in 1965, 385,000 in 1966, 485,000 in 1967, 543,000 in 1968, and is presently 495,000. You can see from these figures that deescalation is the policy of the present administration.

As President Nixon stated in his address, there are only two choices open to us to end the war. First, he could order an immediate withdrawal of all Americans from Vietnam without regard to the effects of that action; or, secondly, "We can persist in our search for a just peace through negotiated settlement if possible, or through continued implementation of our plans for Vietnamizing if necessary — a plan through which we will withdraw all our forces from Vietnam on a schedule in accordance with our program, as the South Vietnamese become strong enough to defend their own freedom."

President Nixon is following the second course, and I believe most Americans approve. As he further stated, "Let us be united for peace. Let us also be united against defeat, because let us understand that North Vietnam cannot defeat or humiliate the United States. Only Americans can do that."

We need to re-emphasize in our schools the importance of patriotism and love of country. President Nixon has made it clear that he intends to bring peace once again to the United States and to the world, and he has made it plain that he accepts the responsibility for success or failure in this endeavor.

Kissinger's Advice: Talk Communists Out of Takeover Until U.S. Leaves

By Paul Scott
WASHINGTON — Henry Kissinger, White House assistant for national security affairs, is the man to watch in those secret Vietnam talks that a President Nixon mentioned in his television address.

Although it has been one of the best-kept secrets of the Vietnam War, Kissinger has been deeply involved in secret talks with Hanoi since early 1967 when he set up his own communication link with the North Vietnamese.

Two mysterious Frenchmen have been Kissinger's go-betweens with Hanoi. They are Raymond Aubrac and Professor Herbert Marcovitch. Both are friends of Wilfred Burchett, the Australian correspondent whom the Kennedy and Johnson administrations frequently used to deliver peace feelers from the Nixon Administration.

Geranium Joe Research, Analysis, Predictions - What Good Do They Do?

DEAR MISTER EDITOR: Ain't it a wonder how we ever got along before government and private agencies got to studying and reporting every move we make and every thought we think?

We are the most analyzed people there ever was, but there ain't many of us who are happier because of it.

The fellers took up this matter during their session Saturday night, and they full agreed we got to take all these tests and predictions with a big grain of salt.

For instance Joe Knapp said back when television first come out somebody said all the younguns would get malocclusion, which is their front teeth turning in from propping their chins in their hands while laying on the floor watching TV. Joe said he is yet to see a malocclusion, but now everybody is worried 'cause by the time a youngun is 15 years old he has seen 13,000 people killed in TV shows.

Joe said he wondered who figured out the number of killings. Probably it was the same survey outfit that predicted there'd be too long back, Joe said, he saw where eating fruit before it's ripe causes a hard wad in the stomach that has to be taken out by surgery. Joe said if this was so every boy that ever lived would of had them things from eating green apples.

One brains and our blood, our social lives and sex lives, our hearts and our habits, and even our unconscious has been studied, surveyed and analyzed, allowed Joe, and all it has got us is more things to worry about going wrong with us.

"When a feller knows he ain't nothing but 50 cents worth of acid, water and mirafal, it takes some of the kick out of living," were Joe's words.

All this ain't just happening to people, said Mike Bower. He had seen where the Department of Agriculture has given a $59,082 grant to a university to study the cause and cure of worn-out shirt collars. Mike figures the reason for this study was that the government is taxing us to pay for so many grants until we ain't got the price of a new shirt left.

Another study Mike reported on deals with the economic status of the bald eagle, and he said most folks didn't even know they had one. A professor got $1,000 to find out if eggs talk to one another before they hatch.

Personally, Mister Editor, I ain't too strong on researching the sex life of spiders. And I see where this zoologist in England has found that birds have "definite immoral tendencies," which I take to mean some of 'em get in the wrong nest sometimes.

I can't help wondering what the birds would have to say if they researched our nesting habits.

Yours truly,
Geranium Joe

Some Heart Warmers

Just when I'm wondering what you'd like to hear from me this week, comes a long, pleasant typed letter from Horace Davis of Lincoln, who was once a big star on the Ord newspaper scene, years back.

He's telling me about his experiences at Bryan Memorial Hospital where he was sent by Dr. Murray Markley, after he suffered a broken hip at North Loup. Nine weeks at Bryan and three more at a swank nursing home qualify him to have some ideas about present-day hospitalization, he feels, and I agree.

"Within 19 months Mrs. Davis and I incurred over $4,000 medical costs, but God bless Medicare for absorbing the big, big end," he writes.

He goes on to tell about some of his pet nurses and helpers. "There was a 200-pound Cuban woman with arms like iron bands who carried me in the later days to the exercise department for best foot up, second foot down."

Strangely interesting to one who has recently done the same things, but sometimes felt like the original guinea pig.

"I liked the uncapped girls better than the nurses — not so smug," he writes.

And he declares, "Old folks should know more about hospitals, doctors, medical costs, and mortuary practices."

I agree. It's like wandering in a wilderness, Mr. Davis. Then I had a delightful letter from another North Louper, Myra Thorngate Barber, a well loved former Quiz reporter. She never complains, but instead finds a way to brighten my day.

She writes, "I have my fruit cake made, wrapped, and stored. I have my Christmas shopping done but not wrapped! I bake and knit and write and take a walk every day; time is not heavy, but I do not feel that I accomplish much."

"I am to make my orange marmalade next week. This week I am addressing envelopes."

"I rejoiced that the Mets won, sat in front of TV all week! It is all true what you said about Rochester. At first it made me sad to go there; now I know the good that is being done for folks there, and their friends."

Myra sends "best wishes to all the Quiz people," typically. Something else nice happened to me yesterday. Two fine large rocks were hauled all the way from the West, and delivered by Lillian Auble and a sister of Clara Belle King, Mrs. Royer.

One rock came from Arizona. One black, cindery one was a lava sample.

And one smallish one . . . you'd never guess . . . came from the LBJ ranch in Texas! I am very proud of all three, sent through the kindness of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. King of 2280 West Rialto Ave., Space 32, at San Bernardino, Calif. Thank you, friends.

White House Aides Report That Kissinger's Role in the Secret 1967 Talks with Hanoi was One of the Reasons President Nixon Picked Him as his Key Adviser on Vietnam

These aides say Nixon hoped Kissinger could negotiate the U.S. out of Vietnam through his French channels. Instead, Kissinger reportedly convinced Nixon that the only way out was for him to unilaterally withdraw American troops.

To keep the withdrawal from being labeled a defeat for the United States, Kissinger recommended that secret talks should be continued with Hanoi to convince the Communist leaders that they should not take any immediate advantage of the U.S. disengagement.

In private discussions at the White House, Kissinger has taken the position that this country's Vietnam policy should be tailored to avoid a Communist takeover of South Vietnam during the withdrawal of American forces.

The U.S. cannot be held accountable for what happens after American troops leave, according to Kissinger's reasoning. He does not see U.S. security being endangered by a Communist takeover of South Vietnam after American forces have gone.

KERRY ON

—tears of joy— The scheduled Apollo 12 flight Friday will hold a special significance for many Nebraska publishers — my wife and I included.

While serving on the Board of Directors of the Nebraska Press Assn. in 1965, I was becoming interested in public speakers — where you obtained a good speaker and how you made arrangements to get him on the date you needed him.

Frequent business with the Nebraska Press office — and my duties as a board member — called for numerous trips to Lincoln. The office of the NPA (Nebraska Press Assn.) is located just off the lobby of the Lincoln Hotel. The manager of the association was a good friend of mine and knew how vitally interested I was in both the affairs of the association and public speaking.

Prior to our 1965 press convention in Lincoln, the association manager told me "that he had really 'fallen into something.' With my curiosity aroused, I needed him into letting me in on his 'little secret.' I had been carefully following his work on the convention agenda all year and strongly suspected it had to do with the upcoming meeting. Over a cup of coffee, the following story came out:

The manager had always gone after the "impossible" speakers hoping to build his convention attendance with "big names." That particular year practically everything and everyone had fallen through.

Each morning the manager had coffee in the hotel's coffee shop. He had become familiar with the regulars who ate their breakfast there — though he really didn't know them by name.

One fellow in particular had always listened intently to the manager and they became friends — though they'd never been introduced to one another.

After writing everywhere from Washington to the Manned Space Center in Houston to try to get an astronaut to talk at the noon luncheon of the convention, the manager was a little vociferous one particular morning — exclaiming excitedly for all to hear that he had an astronaut to talk at the noon luncheon of HIS press convention!

The quiet little man who had become a "breakfast friend" of the manager modestly called him aside and asked, "What's his name?" The manager told him and the man replied, "That's my son. I haven't seen him — except for Christmas — since they started this space program."

My friend — the manager — was one of the most thoughtful people I'd ever known. When he learned this, he made arrangements for the astronaut to spend the night at the hotel — in the same room with his father.

When he learned, too, that the astronaut would be flying to Lincoln in his Navy jet (because he liked to fly and regular flight time is required, even under the space program), it was arranged to "take the modest little man to the air base to meet his son."

"I'll never forget when they walked through the door of the Lincoln Hotel together — the astronaut still in his Navy flight suit and hugging his dad who was grinning from ear to ear."

The next day the father and son admitted they'd had very little sleep . . . having spent the greatest share of the night in their room. But the astronaut's dad did get to hear his son give one of the best talks the Nebraska Press Assn. has ever heard.

For the first time in my life I was "sold" on the space program through the wholesome sincerity of the luncheon speaker. And his father's modesty was reflected in the eyes of this dedicated young man.

Few of the press people in the audience that day ever doubted the merit of the government's expenditures on reaching into the unknown after the astronaut's talk. I know that I had a lump in my throat as I shook his hand wondering how any man could be so dedicated to his job and his country.

God willing, when Apollo 12 reaches the moon, I'll be there once again have tears in my eyes — the same tears of joy that overcame me when I first saw Commander Alan Bean hugging his dad in the doorway of the Lincoln Hotel just four years ago.

One group of experts in the Central Intelligence Agency believes the measures are being taken by Peking to tighten central control over all the provinces of China.

But another group within the CIA sees the military operations as a forerunner to the large-scale use of army troops outside China — probably Korea — next year.

A large Chinese Communist military delegation, recently visited North Korea and inspected the readiness of its troops near the demilitarized zone dividing North and South Korea.

Deer Count Down But Quality Better, Check Master Says

A total of 230 deer were reported to the Ord check station this year during the eight-day deer hunting season for this area. The total was four fewer than last year.

However, Paul Adamek — owner of Adamek's 66 Station which serves as the check point — said he felt the total this year was actually better than last. He based this reasoning on the fact that all types of deer — including fawn — were eligible prey on the final day last year. This season hunters had to get whatever their permits called for — either a buck or a doe — all eight days.

The oldest deer checked in was an 8½-year-old doe. Most were under 3 years, Adamek said. Broken down by areas, Adamek's count showed 164 deer taken in Loup West, 56 in Loup East, and 10 in Calamus.

Quite a few hunters got deer for the first time, while for others it was old stuff. Representing the extremes were a young Ord mother, Mrs. John Smedra, and another Ord resident, 79-year-old Clarence Pierson.

Mrs. Smedra got her buck the first time she ever shot a high-powered rifle. She brought him down with a single shot on the Verl Arnold farm in the Springdale area east of Ord.

Mr. Pierson, on the other hand, has been getting his bag for years — with one exception, 1963. He said it looked like another miss this season when, after five days of hunting, he entered the final day without having fired a shot. But luck was with him, and about 9 a.m. he proved his eyesight is as good as it ever was. He brought his buck down with a single bullet which entered the deer's body just behind its shoulder.

He was hunting about 15 miles northeast of Ord on the Paul Wray farm.

And an old veteran . . . 79-year-old Clarence Pierson.

Mrs. Tiemann and Poster Child Lead 'Honey Sunday' Campaign

Honey Sunday Scheduled To Aid Retarded Youths

Twelve hundred jars of honey have arrived in Ord and are being stored at distribution points throughout the area for Sunday's one-day sales campaign. The campaign will be part of the 1967 "Honey Sunday" activities, sponsored locally by the Ord Jaycees. Members of various youth groups will assist the Jaycees in door-to-door canvassing.

Proceeds will go to the North Central Assn. for Retarded Children, specifically to support programs in the Special Services School here.

"We are sure the people of Valley County want to do their part, and we will make a strong effort to have someone call at every residence," drive chairman Harlan Ray said Monday.

Plans call for the workers to be out from 1 to 4 p.m. Ray said he hoped residents will plan to be at home during that period. The honey will sell for $1 a jar.

"Honey Sunday" is actually a statewide program, with benefits going to the various organizations caring for retarded children. This year's campaign is reported to be the most extensive ever conducted, with volunteers selling in more than 350 Nebraska communities.

In Valley County salesmen will call in Arcadia and North Loup, as well as Ord. Broken Bow Jaycees will be sponsoring honey sales in several Custer County communities.

While North Loup Residents Argue, Garbage Stacks Grow

New York City with its periodic garbage strikes has nothing on North Loup. As village officials and residents continue to debate the merits of one disposal arrangement against those of another, the Valley County community's individual garbage piles mount higher and higher.

Officially, North Loup has no dump without a disposal site since April — and there's no relief in sight. "We've all just been getting here with our garages getting fuller and fuller," village clerk — Mrs. Janet Hanson — explained yesterday. She said some in-town residents have been able to find farmer friends with private dumping sites and have been able to get rid of their refuse that way. But for most of the town's nearly 500 citizens a good airing out is going to be in order, if and when the situation is finally resolved. The problems began in April when the city dump was condemned by officials of the State Health Dept. because it was polluting the North Loup River. Although the state gave the community a 60-day grace period to find another site, a local official decided to close the old dump immediately.

Since that time a new site has been located and lease arrangements made with the landowner, Don Vogeler. A public hearing, which is required by law before the site can officially be approved, will be held by the Valley County Board of Supervisors Friday at 10 a.m.

The proposed site is located four miles south of North Loup on the Ashton road.

But unlike Ord, which was also forced to find a new site recently, the big controversy is not over location. It's over how the dump will be operated.

The village board thought it had the matter all figured up last month, but at its November meeting 42 citizens showed up to express an opinion — and most were opposed to the board's plans.

Specifically, the board had decided to hire a local man — Walt Biskeborn — to pick up garbage and haul it to the disposal site. He would be the only person allowed on the site.

Mrs. Hanson explained that the board members felt they would have to hire a full-time attendant if everyone were allowed to haul his own garbage. But with a single contractor and no one else allowed on the site, no attendant would be required. The board members felt the contractor could handle all ground-keeping requirements.

What upset the residents about this arrangement, according to Mrs. Hanson, was the cost per resident. The board had set a monthly fee of $1.50 per residential building and $3 per business house for the garbage pick-up. The money would go to Biskeborn for his services but would be collected by the village along with electricity and water bills.

After the big protest concerning this arrangement, village board members agreed to a suggestion that someone be hired by the village to pick up garbage and assist the village marshal, Harwood Rice, with sewer and other duties. He would be paid directly from tax funds. The village subsequently advertised for bids on the position, hoping to hire the man who said he would work for the lowest wage.

Since then, Mrs. Hanson said Wednesday, many citizens have found out how much their taxes would go up to pay the salary — so they don't like that arrangement either. Besides, she said, there hasn't been a single bid turned in for the job.

And that's where the situation stands at present. Mrs. Hanson said no further action is planned until the village board meets again Dec. 1, and at that time it will reconsider the various proposals again.

In the meantime, most North Loup folk are thankful for the freezing weather of late that has kept odors submerged.

Other Nebraska Dignitaries To Accompany Governor Here

Gov. Norbert Tiemann will be accompanied by several key members of his staff when he speaks Tuesday night in Ord. The governor will be the principal speaker at the annual Valley County Republican Banquet that evening. The affair will be held in the Elks Club, starting at 6:30 p.m.

Governor Tiemann has not yet disclosed the subject of his speech.

Among those lesser state officials who have announced their intentions to attend the banquet are Elmer Schlaphoff, director of the State Dept. of Agriculture, and Edwin Langley, director of the State Dept. of Banking. Secretary of State Frank Marsh has indicated in a letter to local officials that he has other appointments that evening but will still "make a serious attempt to attend."

Two other state officials were invited. Attorney General Clarence A. H. Meyer has definitely declined, and no word has been received from State Treasurer Wayne Swanson.

Merrill Mason, local Republican leader who is assisting with plans for the banquet, said Monday that he also planned to invite Marvin Nuernberger, director of the state Highway Dept.

One additional state dignitary, Lorraine Orr of North Platte, has confirmed her plans to attend. Mrs. Orr is the state chairman of the Republican Party.

Although Governor Tiemann will give the principal address, Mason said the other officials would be invited "to say a few words."

He said the Republican Party is hoping for a turnout of between 200 and 300 people for the fund-raising event.

Governor Tiemann recently announced plans to run for reelection in 1970.

Arcadia Man Dies In One-Car Crash Near County Line

A young Arcadia farmer was killed Tuesday morning when his car went out of control on Highway 70. Investigating officers theorized that he either went to sleep or hit a patch of ice.

Dead as a result of the one-car accident was Larry Lee Rickerson. He would have been 26 years old Dec. 14.

The accident occurred midway between Arcadia and Westerville. The scene was two miles west of the line dividing Custer and Valley counties.

Rickerson was alone at the time. He is survived by his wife, the former Diane Kay Gould whom he married Oct. 31, 1965; two small children, Michael and Donita, both at home; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rickerson of Arcadia; and his maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Cockroft of Arcadia.

Funeral services will be held today (Thursday) at 2 p.m. in the Arcadia Congregational Church. Rev. Duane Davis will officiate, with burial following in the Arcadia Cemetery.

The funeral services will include a pair of duets, "How Great Thou Art" and "In the Garden," sung by Mrs. Roberta Blakeslee and Mrs. Alberta Lutz. Mrs. Ina Woody will accompany at the organ.

Pallbearers will be Lloyd Smith, Gary Fernau, James Holmes, Ladd Leach, Dale Hurlbert, and Charles Ritz.

Young Rickerson was born Dec. 14, 1943, at Burwell, but had lived all his life in the Arcadia vicinity.

Planning Commission on ways of making this area more attractive to youth, and to recommend how federal tax money should be spent in order to best prevent juvenile delinquency. The Joint Planning Commission is an offshoot of the Central Nebraska Community Action Program.

Walter Weaver, a member of Gov. Norbert Tiemann's Commission on Law Enforcement and Criminal Justice, will speak at the Monday meeting. Local government officials, school teachers, ministers, parents, and young people from throughout the five counties served by the Central Nebraska CAP have been invited to the meeting. Those counties are Custer, Greeley, Howard, Sherman, and Valley.

Ord Woman's Rites Held After Shooting Death

A well known Ord woman, Mrs. Lloyd Zikmund, died sometime Friday morning from a single gunshot wound in her left temple.

Valley County Sheriff Clarence Fox said yesterday that his investigation into the shooting is continuing, but as of that time he had no evidence to indicate that the wound was other than self-inflicted. He said, however, that no suicide note was found.

Mrs. Zikmund, 47, was the former Patricia Ruth Strong. She had lived in this community the last 26 years and was executive secretary of the Valley County Local Board No. 91 of the Selective Service System.

The shooting occurred at the Zikmund farm east of Ord. The dead woman's husband, a son and daughter-in-law were in the house at the time of the shooting. However, Sheriff Fox said they did not report hearing a shot.

The exact time of the shooting has not been determined, however, the sheriff said best estimates are in the 3 o'clock-to-5:30 range. He was called at 6:30 when the body was discovered.

Sheriff Fox said Mrs. Zikmund's body was lying in a doorway between the living room and kitchen. A .22 Magnum revolver lay on the floor nearby.

Mr. Zikmund was asleep in a north bedroom with two closed doors between him and the accident scene, the sheriff reported. The couple's oldest son, Douglas, and his wife were asleep upstairs.

Fox said that if the gun had been held directly against the temple, as evidence indicates, the sound would have been muffled.

Funeral services were held Monday afternoon at the United Methodist Church in Ord, which was filled to near-capacity.

The 2 o'clock service was conducted by Rev. C. R. Campbell. Mrs. Sharon Fues sang "How Great Thou Art" and "The Lord's Prayer," with Mrs. Shirley Karre serving as organist. Pallbearers were George Ray Brown, Billy J. Marsh Jr., Clarence J. Fox, and Dr. F. J. Osen-towski. Interment was in the Ord Bohemian Cemetery with military graveside rites by local posts of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and American Legion and their auxiliaries.

Hastings - Pearson Mortuary had charge of arrangements. Memorials, to be designated at a later date, may be given in memory of Mrs. Zikmund.

The deceased was the daughter of G. S. and Vesta (Starbuck) Strong, and was born July 25, 1922, at Myrtle Creek, Ore. She served with the SP4L women's branch of the U. S. Coast Guard, in World War II, enlisting at Portland, Ore., on Jan. 18, 1943, and receiving an honorable discharge on Sept. 11, 1944.

She was a member of the local V.F.W. Auxiliary, American Legion Auxiliary, the Does of B.P.O. Ord Drive #208, and the United Methodist Church of Ord. She was also a member of the 8 et 40 Chapter.

Mrs. Zikmund's early life was lived in Oregon, and since her marriage to Lloyd Zikmund at Seattle, Wash., on Oct. 16, 1943, she had called Ord her home. For the past five years she had served as executive secretary of the Valley County Selective Service.

Survivors are her husband of Ord; her parents of Henet, Cal.; two sons Douglas Zikmund of the U. S. Navy and Donald Zikmund of Kearney; three brothers, Robert Strong and Duane Strong of Los Angeles, Calif., and Gregory Strong of Memphis, Tenn.; and one sister, Mrs. Barbara Cowen of California.

Do Your Dumping Early
The City of Ord Landfill Waste Disposal site will be closed all day on Thanksgiving Day, Thursday, November 27.

While You Slept . . . Ord's city street commissioner, Emil Penas, was busy early Wednesday morning clearing away the latest snowfall. It brought to 13 inches the total received here this fall, and that's the most local weatherman Horace Travis can remember for this early in the year. This week's snowfall left 26 of an inch of moisture.

Electors Will Again Face Long List Of Proposed Constitutional Changes

By M. M. Van Kirk
Nebraska Farm Bureau

The 1969 Nebraska Legislature enacted 15 legislative bills, proposing constitutional amendments. These amendments will be voted on in the November 1970 general election.

The 15 special proposals compare with 17 that the people voted on in the 1968 general election.

That year they okayed 12 of the 17 proposals for a higher-than-usual approval percentage. The 1968 voting was highlighted by the extremely controversial proposal to knock out the state income tax.

Although the voting is more than a year away, Nebraskans could be familiarizing themselves with the constitutional decisions they will have to make.

Following are the 15 proposals approved by the legislature for the ballot:

(1) Voting Age — This constitutional amendment would reduce the minimum age of voters from 21 to 20 years. In 1968 the voters rejected a proposal to lower the voting age to 19.

The 1969 Legislature has enacted a number of laws which tend to establish the dividing line for minors at 20 years, but lowering the voting age requires a constitutional amendment.

(2) Final Reading of Legislative Bills — This amendment would eliminate the requirement to read each bill at large before the legislature prior to a final vote. It would not preclude the legislature by its own rules or by statutes, from requiring final reading of any or all bills. However, it would permit the legislature to dispense with the perfunctory rapid reading of long, involved bills before final passage.

(3) Exempting Personal Property From Taxation — This amendment (Legislative Bill 290) would permit the legislature to classify personal property and to exempt any or all classes from taxation. This would complete the "tax package" passed in 1967. That package was never finished because the legislature repealed the tax on household goods, head and poll taxes, and intangible property taxes. The proposed amendment would permit the legislature to eliminate all personal property schedules which farmers and industry are still required to file on farm machinery, livestock, and inventory that are necessary to their production processes.

(4) Home Rule Charter — This amendment would change the number of electors (now 5 per cent) needed to petition for the amendment of a home-rule city charter or to call a charter convention. The change would raise the number to 10 per cent of the registered voters in the city at the last general election. It is designed to make it more difficult to bring about changes in home-rule charters and to make voter registration the basic qualification for change in governmental structure.

(5) Supreme Court Redistricting — This is a continuation of state changes resulting from the U.S. Supreme Court's "one-man, one-vote" decision. It provides that after each 10-year census the legislature must redistrict the state into six contiguous districts of approximately equal population for the selection of supreme court judges.

(6) Restructuring Administration of Courts in the State — Basic purpose of this proposal is to eliminate justices of the peace as constitutional courts and to allow the legislature to provide for courts other than the Supreme Court, district courts, and county courts.

(7) Temporary Duty for Retired Supreme Court Justices — Under the Mandatory Judge's Retirement Act, a retired judge cannot be placed on temporary duty. This amendment would permit retired supreme court judges and district judges to be called for temporary duty by the State Supreme Court.

(8) Revenue Bonds for Dormitories, etc. — Approval of this amendment would remove doubt about the legality of the university and state colleges using revenue bonds to finance dormitories, student unions, and similar revenue-producing facilities.

(9) Abolish County Tax Levy Ceiling — This amendment would repeal the law limiting county levies to 14.28 mills.

(10) Commission on Legislative Compensation — This proposal would create a commission to set the salary and expense allowances for members of the legislature. The voters in 1968 approved a pay increase for state senators from $200 to $400 per month.

(11) Grants for Students in Non-Public Schools — This would permit the legislature to make grants to parochial schools for that part of their tuition which is allocable to instruction in state-approved courses, not to exceed one-third of the per-student cost in the public school district in which the student resides.

(12) Office of Lieutenant Governor — This amendment would eliminate the lieutenant governor as presiding officer of the legislature with the right to vote in case of a tie, would authorize the election of the governor and lieutenant governor from the same political party by one vote cast jointly, and would require that the lieutenant governor after Jan. 1, 1975, devote full time to the duties of his office.

(13) Investment of State School Funds — This proposal, contained in L.B. 1330, would permit the legislature to provide by statute for the investment of state educational funds, and would require legislative approval of members appointed to the Board of Educational Lands and Funds.

(14) Government of State Schools — Provides that the general government of the University of Nebraska, the state colleges and publicly-supported junior colleges, vocational technical schools, and other institutions of higher education shall be vested in a nine-member Board of Trustees of Higher Education.

(15) Frequency and Length of Legislative Sessions — Provides that beginning with the year 1971, regular sessions of the legislature shall be held annually. The duration of regular sessions held shall not exceed ninety legislative days in odd-numbered years and shall not exceed sixty legislative days in even-numbered years. Bills and resolutions under consideration by the legislature upon adjournment of a regular session held in an odd-numbered year, may be considered at the next regular session as if there had been no such adjournment.

Rathbun Takes Part — Larry Rathbun participated in the first student recital of the semester, when the Department of Music of Kearney State College gave its presentation on Monday, Nov. 17 in the Otto Olson Auditorium. The recital consisted of three pianists, one flutist, and nine vocalists including Larry.

Red Cross Officials Hear Reports — The annual meeting of the Valley County chapter of the American Red Cross met in the basement of the First National Bank building Thursday evening, Nov. 13. Clark Weckbach, local chairman introduced Mrs. Elnor Sultor, Field Representative from the Omaha office. The local budget and audit were reviewed. Mrs. Sultor reported on aid to victims of Hurricane Camille. $10,670.40 was provided, 33,000 homes have been rebuilt and there are still 200 people in Red Cross shelters to be provided for.

Various training classes were discussed which might be of assistance in our community, as well as the continuing work of the Bloodmobile which has been most successful in this area under the direction of Mrs. Gladys Weckbach.

Housing Bill
The House of Representatives last week passed by an overwhelming vote the 1969 housing bill, which came to the floor of Congress as a $3 billion program but ended up at $5 billion. The bill included $2 billion for urban renewal, $1 1/2 billion for the government's National Mortgage Assn. to purchase mortgages on low-cost housing insured by the FHA and the VA; $150 million for housing loans to the elderly; and substantial funds for the home ownership and rental assistance programs for low-income families.

This was an authorization bill, with the money still to be appropriated. It is far above the President's budget — another example of the five-wheeling, free-spending action of this Congress.

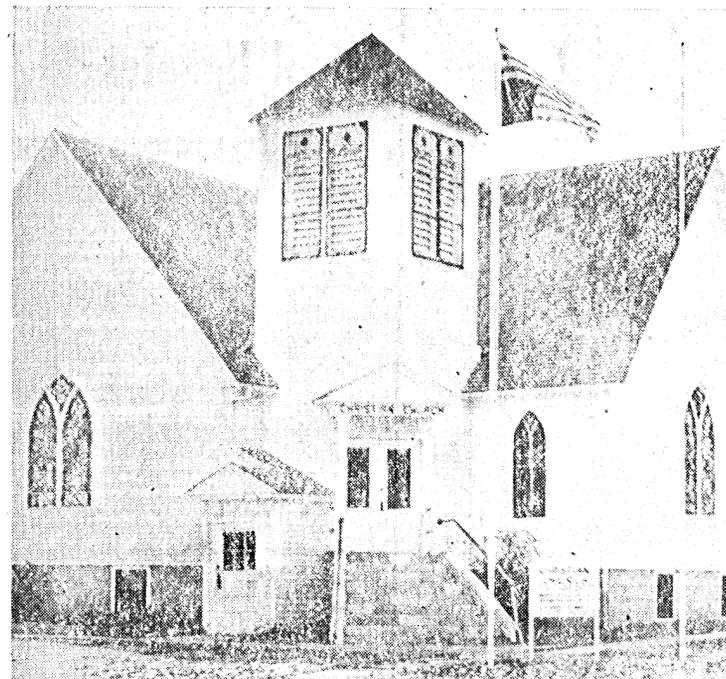

National Debt
In 1961 the national debt was $289 billion; today it is $359 billion. In 1961 it took an appropriation of $9 billion to pay for the interest on our national debt; today it takes $18 billion. This amounts to nearly one of every ten dollars spent by the federal government.

Basic reasons for the doubling of interest costs are the increased cost of money, or higher interest rates, and of course the $70 billion increase in our national debt.

Medicare
The $4-a-month voluntary payments made by the elderly under Medicare to cover doctor fees will go up next July 1 to at least $5 per month. This was disclosed by Social Security Commissioner Robert Ball in testimony before the House Ways and Means Committee recently. He cited rising medical costs as the reason. Twenty million Americans who come under the Medicare program will be affected.

Vietnam
President Nixon's efforts to de-escalate the war in Vietnam appear to be attaining success. Casualties are at the lowest point for several years and offensive action by American troops has almost completely ceased. There is much optimism in Washington that the President will be successful in his efforts to bring about a peaceful solution to this conflict.

Carol's Corner

by Carol Leggett

Surveys are often being made in an effort to find out how much the American housewife is really worth. Several years ago some one determined that at the going rate for all the jobs under the title "housewife" the average woman should get about $100 a week. That included such estimates as 3.3 hours of food shopping a week at $1.50 an hour and 13.4 hours of cooking each week at $2.50 an hour. Other hourly rates to be considered are $2.50 as a chauffeur, $1.50 as dishwasher, and $1.55 as gardener.

One housewife figured she was worth nearly $1,000 a month — realizing it would cost $672 a month to hire a nurse for her two children. In addition, her husband would have to pay someone for the cooking, cleaning, and laundry.

All this adds up to only one thing . . . husbands who deem their wives great bargain hunters should realize they themselves have found the greatest bargain of all, their wives.

Throughout the United States on Nov. 27, families will be having happy reunions around tables heaped with cranberry sauce, pumpkin pie, and that ever favorite roast turkey and dressing.

For the best turkey stuffing ever, why not try this favorite from Norma Fox. Note that the amount for various-sized birds is also figured out just right.

Sargent Gridglers Spurn Run-Away Triumph, Win Instead in LMTC Title Game

In what surely must be regarded as one of the strangest football games ever played in these parts, Sargent won the championship of the Lincoln-Hooker-Thomas-Caster Conference Friday, 32-20.

Despite the close final score, the winning Bulldogs were in command all the way as they upset Nebraska's third-ranked Class D team - Theford. In fact, they appeared to have a runaway in the making as they entered the final quarter with a 20-0 lead. But their literal use of substitutes, plus a howling north-west wind at Theford's back, enabled the Trojans to score four touchdowns and three two-point conversions in what was undoubtedly the longest fourth quarter of the year.

The loss was the only blemish on Theford's 1969 record, as the Trojans had gone through nine previous games undefeated. Sargent finished the season with a 7-3 mark.

The Bulldogs had earned the right to play for the championship by finishing in a three-way tie for the conference's East Division crown. They posted a 2-1 division mark, as did Ansley and North Loup-Scottia. The trio had traded knockout blows against each other, with Ansley defeating Sargent, Sargent defeating North Loup-Scottia, and North Loup-Scottia defeating Ansley. In such a case league rules state that the team which had been away for the playoffs for the longest period of time gets to represent its division.

Theford won the conference's West Division title.

Weather Hit

A raw northwest wind sweeping in across the open fields, plus Sargent's tiny field, plus temperatures in the teens at game time, kept both teams from performing their best. But the winning Bulldogs left no doubt about their supremacy as their hard-charging defense blocked three Theford punts.

Bulldog victory hopes were never threatened seriously until Theford scored its final touchdown and conversion with 45 seconds remaining. The TD was the only one in barely over a minute of playing time.

After that final touchdown and the kickoff that followed, Sargent quarterback Brian Morse simply fell on the football for two plays to insure that his team did not fumble for its 11th time.

Together, the two teams committed 21 fumbles as the adverse weather conditions made fingers cold and stiff. Theford bubbled the ball 11 times and Sargent 10; however, the Trojans recovered all except one of their miscues whereas the Bulldogs let five of their's get away.

Sargent Defense Tough

Looking at the final statistics, it seems hard to believe that Sargent even won - let alone with ease. But that's exactly what happened, thanks in large measure to the terrific Bulldog defense that intercepted four passes in addition to blocking the three punts and recovering a fumble.

Most of Theford's offensive success came in the wild fourth quarter. For the game the Trojans outfirst-downed the Bulldogs, 17 to 7; outtrushed them, 127 yards to 5; and outpassed them, 152 to 126.

But Sargent had more than enough offense to win. Coach Glenn Hawley had designed a wide-open attack which exploited the multiple abilities of premier senior Mark Cooper, and that attack gave the Bulldogs three touchdowns.

Cooper caught 37 passes last year for 852 yards, but this season Coach Hawley - without a top passer - has used him wherever he was needed most. Friday that was at one of the two running back posts.

Cooper Hit on 7 of 10

Passing proved to be the lanky senior's strong suit, however, as he threw 10 times after taking pitchbacks from quarterback Brian Morse. On seven of those throws he found his target.

Marvin Schultz, another senior, led the Bulldog play up front. He blocked one punt, recovered another in the Theford end zone for a touchdown, and made several key tackles for long losses.

The visiting Trojans were able to get off just one punt all afternoon, and that netted only five yards. Thus, for the game, their punting average on four attempted kicks was 1.3.

The three blocked punts didn't really indicate the true value of the Sargent line, however, for on several other occasions when the Trojans normally should have putted they chose rather to try for long fourth-down yardage take a chance on getting still another kick blocked. That subsequently gave Sargent good field position most of the afternoon.

The strong northwest wind - which helped drop the wind-chill index to 15 degrees below zero - was blowing directly into the face of the Theford bench, so the Trojans found things on the sidelines as cold as on the field most of the afternoon. When not in the game they tried to keep their hands warm over a portable barbecue pit filled with glowing charcoal.

Many of the linemen on both teams wore gloves.

Choosing to receive the opening kickoff, Theford fought the wind most of the first quarter. It got nowhere, first getting a punt blocked - by Schultz - at its own 30-yard line and then fumbling at its own 36.

But the Bulldog backs couldn't get their fingers warm either and fumbled back to the Trojans at first Theford 21 and then the 17.

Schultz Got First Score

On Theford's third possession it again tried to punt into the wind, and again the Sargent line came barreling through. From his linebacker post Tom Keefe got to the kicker first. He blocked the ball, which bounded along the ground with red and white jerseys in pursuit. Schultz finally caught up with it in the Theford end zone, falling on it there for a Sargent touchdown.

Cooper fought off a tackler behind the line of scrimmage and then circled his own right end for Sargent's only conversion of the day - and the one that eventually spelled victory.

Two plays later the teams traded ends of the field, with Sargent fighting the wind for the second quarter. The Bulldogs didn't find it quite so troublesome though, as they moved 39 yards for their second touchdown after Theford's third punt attempt netted only five yards. Cooper passed 22 yards to Morse for the touchdown.

Another big play in the drive was a fake punt on fourth and six. Cooper faked the punt, then handed off to track speedster Bob Anderson coming around from his right end position. Anderson picked up 10 yards and a first down at the Theford 25.

That made the score 14-0, and that's the way it remained through halftime.

Keefe Was Key Man

On its first possession of the third quarter Sargent boasted the count to 20-0. Keefe picked off a Trojan pass near midfield and returned it to the Theford 10-yard line. From there the Bulldogs took five plays to score with Keefe getting the six points on a one-yard plunge. Again Cooper had a hand in the big play of the drive, passing to Keefe for 10 yards on fourth and five.

The score mounted to 26-0 on Sargent's next possession as the Bulldogs drove 53 yards. They had taken over at their own 42-yard line after Theford declined to punt on fourth and 20.

Cooper passed 14 yards to Anderson for the touchdown.

The Bulldogs no doubt could have swelled their margin even higher had they chosen, for they had excellent opportunities on their first two possessions of the fourth quarter. But Coach Hawley made friends of all those who believe in fair play as he sent his second team in after the Bulldogs had moved to the Theford 13-yard line on the first of those possessions.

Bulldog Receives Flop

The reserves promptly bogged down. The first team still in on defense, got the ball back for them at the Theford 11 when Cooper intercepted a pass and returned it 15 yards. But again the reserves couldn't move, and Theford eventually took over at its own 24 after a fourth-down fumble was returned to that point by a Trojan lineman.

From there the visitors moved to their first touchdown, with John Butler getting it on a six-yard dash off left guard. Butler carried on four of the five Trojan plays during the drive, picking up 52 of his team's 65 yards. His extra-point run made it 32-3.

Still there seemed nothing to worry about, and that idea was cemented when the Bulldogs scored their last touchdown to make the score 32-3. Proving his defensive as well as offensive prowess, Cooper scooped up a Theford fumble and ran 35 yards for the touchdown. He received big help on the play from Dan Stale, who showed Theford quarterback Mark Nutter away from the ball so Cooper could grab it.

More substitutions sprinkled the Sargent lineup, and Theford promptly started its big comeback. In just three plays the Trojans moved 62 yards for their second touchdown with Nutter throwing to Ron Eaton for the last 43. Butler's conversion run made it 32-16, and Sargent fans - who had been savoring what looked like a one-sided victory - began to grumble.

Theford Edges Momentum

Still Hawley stuck with his reserves, though, and on their third offensive play substitute quarterback Tim Griebel threw an interception into Eaton's hands. The Theford junior sped 31 yards for still another touchdown, making it 32-22. Butler was stopped on the extra-point run in what turned out to be a key play of the game.

When Griebel lost eight yards on the first play following the kickoff, Coach Hawley had had enough. He sent his first-teamers back in, but by that time the momentum was all with Theford. Two plays later the Trojans recovered a fumble at the Sargent 10-yard line, and three plays later Butler burst through for the touchdown that made it 32-28. A pass fell incomplete on the conversion try, but a penalty against Sargent gave the Trojans another try. That time Butler ran it in, narrowing the difference to 32-30.

The Trojans next tried an on-side kick, as they had been doing after each of their touchdowns, but once more they were unsuccessful. Morse then fell on the ball twice to run out the clock with an 11 of 30 pass as time by the two teams, the game lasted an extraordinarily long 2 hours and 25 minutes. The fourth quarter was the longest of all, with 45 plays being run off. That was 17 more than in the first quarter, 12 more than in the second period, and 16 more than in the third quarter.

Fourteen members of the 24-man Theford squad were seniors.

15-Pounder With Bow

Ross Cottrell of Fremont holds the state bow-and-arrow fishing record for gar. Cottrell shot the 15-pound, 10-ounce fish in a sand-pit near Fremont during July, 1966.

North Loup-Scottia's Dave Edwards, with his white helmet barely showing at the bottom of this pile, didn't have things too good on this particular play against O'Neil St. Mary's. But most of the night he did have things pretty good as the Wilds played their 1969 football season to a close by defeating St. Mary's, 11-3. The Cardinals had been picked the state's third best Class C team before the loss. They had won 20 straight games.

LETTING YOU IN ON A SECRET

Sonotone is celebrating its 40th birthday. That's right—we have served the hard of hearing since 1929. Over those years, we have helped thousands upon thousands of persons to enjoy better living through better hearing.

Over those years, we have also learned a secret about hearing— You give away your "deafness" NOT BY WEARING a hearing aid—but by NOT WEARING an aid. Your poor hearing is no secret as long as you must strain to hear.

You'll find a tiny, modern Sonotone transistor aid no more inconvenient to wear than eyeglasses. Few will even notice it and others won't need to raise their voices when they talk to you.

SONOTONE
the trusted name in better hearing since 1929

Mr. Muench will be at the Ord Hotel, Wednesday, November 26, 1:30 to 5:30 P.M.

Second Spot on Tiemann's Ticket Is Now Big Question for Republicans

By Melvin Paul
LINCOLN — Gov. Norbert Tiemann's hat is in the ring officially now, and the Republican spotlight has turned to the lieutenant governor's post.

There never had been much doubt — for the past few months at least — that Tiemann would seek a second four-year term. But there had been considerable doubt about who would be his GOP running mate, since Lt. Gov. John Everroad of Omaha has said he isn't interested in a repeat term.

The only candidate who's announced his plans publicly is State Senator Henry F. Pedersen Jr., of Omaha. But more names have been popping up lately.

First, University of Nebraska Regent Edward Schwartzkopf of Lincoln said he is interested. Then Game Commission Director Mel Steen said he is considering the race.

State Senator William Swanson of Lincoln added that he hasn't ruled out the possibility of a campaign for lieutenant governor, and Legislative Speaker Jerome Warner of Waverly is still considered a possible candidate.

On the Democratic side, Lincoln businessman J. J. Exon — the party's national committeeman from Nebraska — appears poised for a try at the gubernatorial nomination. His opposition is expected to be State Senator J. W. Burbach of Crofton.

Tiemann's GOP primary opponent, at least the only one at the moment, will be John Langford, a political science instructor at Kearney State College. Langford was an unsuccessful candidate last year for the Republican nomination as representative of the 3rd Congressional District — the post eventually retained by Dave Martin.

Tiemann Continues Battle To Save Highway Funds
 The governor last week notified President Richard Nixon he still wants federal highway funds exempted from construction cuts in the fight against inflation.

Tiemann and most other governors have argued since the national administration announced its inflation-fighting plans that the states are willing to cooperate, but they want to choose for themselves where they can make the most effective construction cuts.

Tiemann has contended cutbacks in Nebraska's highway work wouldn't have much effect on inflation. While construction workers generally have high wages, those employed in road-building projects are among the lowest paid.

On the other hand, as Tiemann explained in a telegram to Nixon last week, delays in the Nebraska highway program would "create unsurmountable problems in developing the road system."

The Nebraska chief executive has met with Vice-President Spiro Agnew several times to make the same pitch.

Barnett To Leave Governor's Staff
 A third member of Governor Tiemann's staff is leaving.

First, Dr. Clayton Yeutter — Tiemann's administrative assistant — resigned to become head of the University of Nebraska's mission to the government of Colombia, where a university built on the principles of American land-grant colleges is being formed.

Then, Larry Johns — the former motor vehicles director who was to succeed Yeutter — was sent back to the motor vehicles department when his successor resigned. Officially, Johns still is a member of the governor's staff, but he spends almost all his time supervising the motor vehicles agency.

Now, Robert Barnett — who has been Tiemann's executive counsel since the governor came into office — has announced his resignation, effective Dec. 1. Barnett will be executive director of the Constitutional Revision Commission created by the 1969 legislature.

The new job will pay him $1,800 per month for 10 months. Barnett says he had been planning to leave the governor's staff for several months because "there comes a time when a staff position no longer satisfies all the creative desires a man might have."

He said he plans to participate in Tiemann's reelection campaign and is not, as he said, he has heard commented, "abandoning ship."

According to Barnett, a change to help update the state's constitution is an "irresistible" opportunity for a lawyer. He called it a "once-in-a-lifetime opportunity."

Barnett had been considering a possible campaign for the Republican nomination to Congress from the 1st District. That seat now is held by Rep. Robert Denney of Fairbury, who has announced plans to try for reelection.

Road Woes Discussed At Hartington
 Tiemann's sixth town-hall meeting of the new series, and the first since he announced his political plans, was held last week at Hartington.

About 300 persons gathered in the city auditorium to quiz the governor and a panel of his top administrators. Most of the questions were directed to State Engineer Marvin Nuernberger, because road improvements seemed to be the priority gripe among the northeast Nebraskans.

Nuernberger said under a new set of sufficiency standards, all state highways without hard surfacing and those with only initial layers of surfacing were considered critical and would get prompt attention.

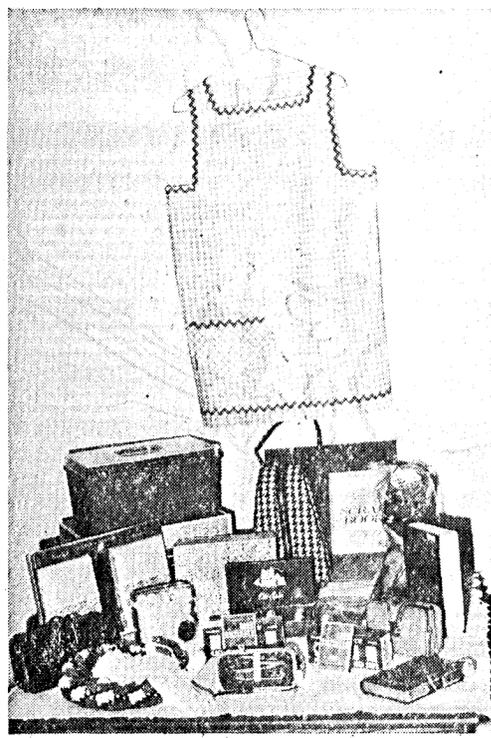

The governor fielded a variety of questions ranging from sex education ("as a parent I think it's necessary, but only if the teacher is qualified") to food costs ("I don't think they're too high at all because the farmer has to get a return and he can't any other way").

But he got the biggest response from the crowd about a dozen miles from his home town of Wausa when he answered a question about Vice-President Spiro Agnew's criticism of antiwar demonstrators.

"I think he makes great speeches," Tiemann said as the audience applauded.

Mrs. Archie Hopkins and daughter Bonnie of Montrose, Colo., and Charles Hopkins of California were Wednesday visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Cash Welniak.

American Legion Auxiliary Provides Gifts for Veterans

Santa Claus will again make it to the homes of thousands of hospitalized Nebraska veterans this year, thanks to the Ord American Legion Auxiliary and other units like it throughout the state.

Members of the Ord chapter are again participating in a state-wide program to provide Christmas gifts for patients in the veterans hospitals of Nebraska.

The gifts will not be used by the patients themselves, but will be given by them to members of their families. They are displayed in gift shops at each of the hospitals, and those veterans able to walk or move about in wheel chairs come to the shops and select different items for their loved ones. Hospital carts with a large assortment of articles are wheeled through the wards for those patients unable to leave their beds.

The gifts are of course free to the hospitalized veterans.

This year the Ord chapter provided nine presents suitable for girls in the 5 to 9 age range, three gifts for 10 to 18 year olds, four for ladies, and two for men.

Every Auxiliary unit in the state assists in the project. Last year more than $8,000 worth of gifts were presented to the hospitals in Grand Island, Lincoln, and Omaha, plus the Norfolk annex.

Auxiliary members also assist the patients in making selections, and in gift-wrapping and packing for mailing.

The Ord unit plans to send a group to Grand Island Dec. 8 to help with this work there.

Kernels & Husks

Guidelines Listed for Mold Control In Corn With High Moisture Content

By John Schade

Mold on food and feed cause spoilage, reduce grade, and lower prices. And some molds produce substances which may be toxic to livestock.

Mold growth in shelled corn is essentially a race against time, with temperature and moisture setting the pace. The race starts the day you harvest, no matter how quickly you dry or how long you hold it wet before drying.

High moisture and warm temperatures — these are the conditions which cause mold in shelled corn. Both of these conditions actually shorten the effective "storage life" of corn.

When we speak of "storage life" we are talking about that period of time in which mold growth will develop to such an extent that it causes enough loss in corn quality to bring about a lowering of grade.

How fast or how slow this mold growth continues from the day you harvest, until the day a miller processes the grain or a farmer feeds it, depends on a number of factors.

Research has shown that at any given temperature, you can hold corn having 15 percent moisture, nearly 10 times as long as 20 percent corn, about 27 times as long as 25 percent corn, and roughly 45 times as long as 30 percent corn.

It is also known that you can hold, or store, corn of any given moisture content at 35 degrees Fahrenheit nearly 2 1/2 times as long as the same moisture corn at 50 degrees, and over four times as long as corn at 75 degrees.

Also, it has been found that corn which has not been physically damaged can be held about 2 1/2 times as long as damaged corn, regardless of the moisture and temperature.

It is not unusual to have from 25 to 35 percent of the kernels damaged when corn is shelled at 28 percent moisture or higher. So the drier the corn, longer its storage life. Wet corn, if held at lower temperature, can be kept a few more days before mold growth becomes serious enough to affect the grade. The less physical damage done to the kernel during harvest and handling, the tougher it is for molds to get to hold in your grain.

Remember, the drier the corn going into storage, the longer you will be able to keep it. The sooner you bring that temperature down to a safe level and hold it there, the longer the expected storage life of the grain. Keep in mind too the importance of properly adjusting your picking and shelling equipment to keep kernel damage to a minimum. Damaged kernels are a source of mold growth and deterioration of grain quality.

Little Cheer

In Wheat Outlook
 A third straight year of lower wheat prices appears to be in store for Nebraska farmers.

There is nothing on the horizon to trigger an end to the slump which has seen prices drop steadily from $1.87 in July of '66 to the current rate 15-20 cents below the loan level.

However, heavy loan participation, withholding from the markets would strengthen prices to near the loan level by January of 1970.

Wheat exports for the 1969-70 marketing year are estimated at 550,000 million bushels. This is up slightly from a year ago. Large and well distributed world supplies held the world trade to 47 million metric tons during the 1968-69 year. This is the smallest tonnage exported since 1962-63.

The large and increasing stock of wheat in foreign countries and a record wheat crop the past two years in India and Pakistan are factors working against any sizable export expansion. India and Pakistan are often the principal outlets for United States wheat.

It appears that future exports of United States wheat will remain at the present level until supplies are reduced in these foreign countries.

Wheat feeding soared to 175 million bushels in 1968-69, the highest in 20 years. Present corn, grain sorghum, and wheat price comparisons would signal about another 50 million bushel increase in the use of wheat as feed in 1969 and 1970.

Young Misses Needed To Boost Membership

At the Monday meeting of Junior Girl Scouts Troop 145, Ord, Jane Gogan and Karen Hald dedicated themselves to scouting — Jane becoming a Junior Scout and Karen a Cadet.

Held in conjunction with the afternoon meeting was an organizational meeting of the Cadets — a group which Mrs. Robert Sich hopes to initiate soon. The Cadets will meet next Monday after school with the Junior Scouts at which time a separate meeting day will be selected. Any young miss interested in becoming a Cadet is invited to attend this meeting.

Over the weekend guests in Mrs. Bert Needham's home were Sue Preston of Rosalie, Pat Niebur of Lincoln, and Sheryl Timmerman of Norfolk. Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Needham joined them for visiting and a 6 o'clock dinner Saturday.

Dear Editor: After reading your Nov. 6 front page editorial, I still do not feel that you have answered the questions I raised in an earlier letter.

I would suggest that sources other than Bernard Newman's book might give you a clearer picture of the war. I still maintain that if the South Vietnamese government cannot successfully defend its people after $150 billion in weapons, equipment, and technical assistance...

(Editor's Note: We urge Quiz readers to go back and read Mr. Blue's letter in the "Vox Pop" column of Oct. 30, as well as our editorial of that date and a lengthier reply published Nov. 6, which dealt for themselves the questions he raised were answered.)

Dear Editor:

After reading some of your editorial offerings of late, I find that the Quiz seems to be assuming something about the current situation in Vietnam which is not true, has not been true in the past, and will not be true in the future despite all sorts of wishful thinking by certain politicians.

To appreciate why the United States would be unpopular with the majority of the Vietnamese people, I must present a capsule history of Western colonialism in Vietnam. While the following is brief, I am sure that it is more reflective of the true situation in Vietnam than is the version in the Quiz which never seems to discuss events prior to 1954.

The history of the Western presence in Vietnam goes back to the 1800s when the French and the British were vying to "protect" French missionaries. Needless to say, Western colonialism soon followed and Indochina became a colony of France.

Now if all the super patriots of this country would remember their American history, they would recall that when the British had a similar colonial situation in America in the 1700s, it was strictly for the benefit and profit of the mother country.

Thus, the Vietnamese people came to hate the Western presence, as did most of the people of Asia (the presence of Great Britain, Germany, Russia, etc. in China at the same time is probably a reasonable reason for the war, and is, one burning issue—and that issue is land reform.

Even today the South Vietnamese National Assembly, which is dominated by landlords, cannot pass a land reform bill because the landlords refuse to give up their land so we fight on to defend a bunch of landlords.

With the end of the war, Ho hoped to establish an independent Vietnam free of outside influence. Granted, it would have been Communist, but it would have been nationalistic first and Communist second (the United States presently supports a similar situation in Yugoslavia).

The French, of course, had ideas of reclaiming their former colony. Thus began the Vietnamese war of independence against the French. By 1954 Ho's forces had won, and at the Geneva Conference which followed it was decided that the whole of Vietnam would be divided temporarily with elections promised to determine a national government for the whole of Vietnam. These elections were never held.

The Quiz seems to think that it would have been a farce to hold them as the Communists would have used some kind of treachery to win. My own view is that the Communists could have won a fair and honest election due to their popularity among the peasants.

Are Lawyers a Necessary Nuisance? Fellers Find Lots of Room for Debate

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

If there's anything left a body can do without a license and a lawyer, the fellers want to know about it. They took up this matter Saturday night, and the vote was split on a motion that lawyers are running the country and running us crazy.

Ray Meese said a feller that argues his own case has got a fool for a lawyer, but he thought a man still should be able to slop his hogs without hiring a lawyer to research the subject.

Ray had seen a piece in the papers where some farmer was fined $25 for feeding garbage to his hogs without a permit. Ray said he didn't know anything else to do with catable garbage, that he'd always figured if it was fit for people it was legal for hogs.

Emanuel Wadas had a clipping about a woman whose car was hit by one being driven by a mail carrier. For 12 months she couldn't drive her car and had to bum rides to work, cause lawyers for the Post Office and the mail carrier's private insurance company were arguing over who was to pay the damage.

It's not entirely the fault of lawyers that we got 20 million laws trying to make us go by the 10 Commandments, said Emanuel, but they don't help matters none with 20 million interpellations.

The federal government ain't helping none with tax forms, went on Emanuel.

"You got to get a lawyer to help you fill 'em out, or to help you stay out of jail after you fill 'em out wrong," were Emanuel's words.

The trouble ain't lawyers, it's people," declared Milo Florian, "because we always looks fer ways to get around what is right."

For instance, he recollected the feller that bought an iron from a mail order outfit that promised to return his money "if not entirely satisfactory." The iron blew fuses, so he sent back and asked for his money. The company wrote back, "We find your money entirely satisfactory and we decline to return it."

"That's when we holler for the lawyer," allowed Milo, "when we're in too deep to dig ourselves out."

Lawyers, Mister Editor, are like women. We can't live with 'em or without 'em.

Yours truly, Geranium Joe

KERRY ON

—life's highway—

In addition to hosting a customer from Newark, N.J., during the past week, I've found myself more on the road than in the office.

Monday night (in the height of a snowstorm) I talked to parents and youth at Davenport, Neb. Among other things, I overshot the turn-off to get to Davenport and ended up taking a gravel road from Nelson. This DID take me through Oak, Neb., the hometown of local state trooper Gerald Schmitt. Wait until I see him and get a chance to "rib him" about his hometown!

Tuesday it was on to Lindsay where I talked at the Holy Family School, and then Tuesday night I was in Wakefield for a talk to the PTA.

From Wakefield I had to make it into Omaha that night for a talk at Holy Name High School on Wednesday. Then Thursday my plans called for a talk at Gibbon High School.

Due to a rather "full week," I'd like to reprint the following thoughts that I like. It will give you something to think about, at least.

"Life is too short, at its longest, to be consumed with little things. The biggest and the best should engage life's potential. Negative thoughts will shorten life and keep it busy with the little things. Positive thoughts lift a man and challenge him with the better and the best."

"When life gets stranded in the mud of negative thoughts, the doors of opportunity are never reached. The grand avenues of possibility are never traveled. The exciting streets of potential are, never entered."

"Negative thoughts poison the mind. What a mind poisoned with negative thoughts contributes, then, to life is not progress, but problems."

"Many exciting life journeys have detoured through the murky marshes of negative thoughts, never to return to life's travel. What could have been a thrilling destination became a terrible disaster."

"Negative thoughts breed doubts and despair. Such thinking enslaves life and keeps it from reaching out for the best. Such thinking makes life a stranger to possibility."

Something Different

Forbidden Groceries

If there's one thing I miss when I'm incapacitated . . . you'd never guess.

I miss going to the grocery. Wherever I am living, whatever I'm doing, I dearly love to prow the aisles of a grocery. There isn't anything in there that doesn't fascinate me. And I never can understand these women who moan, "I can't think of a thing to cook!"

Every part of a grocery is entrancing. Coming in, there's the pop, assorted kinds, need any? Who doesn't, cyclamates or no cyclamates? As long as it takes 50 bottles to give me a lethal dose, I'm safe, for I've never seen the day yet when I could consume 50 bottles. Or want to.

I never did try that recipe for baking ham in Seven-Up . . . Here are all the breads. Doesn't that round whole wheat bread look good? How heavy the loaf is. Amama. No wonder it is good, those Amama people believed in cooking and eating with a capital "E." Seven meats, seven sweets, seven soups, to begin. Fabulous cooks, of heavy cream-laden foods especially. Very Germanic.

Little bitty doughnuts. Good even if they are store-bought. French bread to make garlic bread of; don't spare the butter. Or the garlic. Garlic bread will make a meal, adds just that welcome touch when you feel the table doesn't offer too much.

Vegetables, what fun in the fall when all the squashes appear. Beautiful green peppers waiting to be stuffed, and to stuff you. Tangey apples—spare me the bland ones. Pinky grapefruit appearing again, and cranberries, what a lot can be done with them: such good cranberry bread last week. Yams are so good; grab them at their best.

The dairy things always offer ideas. Love that cottage cheese when onions are minced, and mayonnaise stirred in. All the new types of milk to try. The cheeses—who could live without cheese: like mushrooms, it adds to almost any dish. I love it with fruit for breakfast, nearly any kind of cheese.

The meat counter, I could linger here indefinitely. And what a host of ideas for meals. Corned beef, put it in your pressure cooker—later add onions, cabbage, potatoes, even a carrot. Use it cold to make Reuben sandwiches; nothing easier, nothing tastier.

Tiny sausages, smoky for cocktails or breakfast eggs. Or to make wee pigs in blankets with the aid of a bit of dough. Good looking pork cutlets, tenderized, ready to dip in egg and crumbs or nice for sandwiches. Or to make a fast easy supper for a foot-weary salesgirl.

Remember that saying, the meat makes the meal. Well, doesn't it? Begin with the meat; other ideas will pop into your head. There are always nice roasts; a fine joint cracked ready to go into the soup kettle. Must have a bone to make good soup, usually.

Such loads of frozen foods. Ready prepared vegetables for the hurried. Such numbers of packaged foods, ready for a fast fix. Dozens of kinds of ice cream. Counters loaded with dietetic foods, if you want to reduce . . . everyone has to but nobody wants to.

I haven't mentioned the canned vegetables or the packaged stuff, but you can see I have no idea of starving. In fact quite the contrary, I've gained a few pounds since returning to Ord. So, it's time to stop watching those grocery shelves. Darn.

Sex-Education Book Too Detailed

At this month's District 5 Board of Education meeting, Rev. Clarence Campbell said that none of the materials to be used in the local sex-education program were from the Sex Information and Education Council of the United States (SIECUS).

While that may technically be true, the textbook being used in the four-session course is authored by a member of the SIECUS Board of Directors, Evelyn Mills Duvall. This is revealed in a brief biography on the back cover of the book, "Love and the Facts of Life."

SIECUS is a controversial "nonprofit" organization headquartered in New York City and financed principally by tax-free private foundations. It acts as a sex-education consultant to teachers, schools, clergymen, community groups, and even the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare. It also publishes study guides and advises schools and agencies setting up sex programs.

Many members of its 50-person Board of Directors are of questionable background, including Dr. Isadore Rubin. Dr. Rubin edits Sexology, a slick-back magazine which borders on the pornographic—if there is such a thing these days—and whose articles include such titles as "Will Mate Swapping Solve Sex Problems?" "Positions in Intercourse," and "What To Do About Too-Quick Ejaculation."

Textbook Advocates Abstention This is not to infer that Miss Duvall's book is on the same order as Sexology. Contrarily, on the whole it advocates virtue and an abstinence from pre-marital sexual relations. It does this by pointing out the pit-falls that may await those who do not follow such a course.

However, its 342 pages are much too detailed and include a great deal of information for which youngsters at the ninth-grade level have no need. (That's the group the local course is aimed at.)

For instance, there's a chapter entitled, "Do You Know What To Expect of Marriage?" Sub-heads include such titles as "Sex Adjustments in Marriage," "What Happens in Intercourse," and "Sex Response in Men and Women."

Is this information that ninth-graders—hopefully several years away from marriage—really need to know? Homosexuality Is Part of Growing Up?

Furthermore, there are a couple of passages whose accuracy we question. For example, Miss Duvall says that homosexuality is "a not unusual part of growing up."

Let's we be accused of taking something out of context, it should be pointed out that surrounding passages indicate the homosexuality she is talking about is the normal preference little boys have to play with other boys—rather than girls—during a certain period of adolescence, and vice versa as far as the girls are concerned.

But this cannot properly be called a "homosexual tie," as Miss Duvall refers to it, for Webster's New World Dictionary defines homosexuality as "sexual desire for" or "sexual relations between" individuals of the same sex. Certainly that is not the case in a normal playground friendship.

The textbook is published by Association Press, Publication Department, National Council of YMCAs of the USA, 291 Broadway, New York, N.Y. 10007.

Two Classes Left Mr. Campbell, who ministers to the United Methodist Church of Ord, is one of four clergymen arranging and participating in the sex-education course. His co-workers are Kenneth Bunnell of the Ord Presbyterian Church, Earl Higgins of the Arcadia and Mira Valley United Methodist Churches, and Louis Trebus of the Bethany Lutheran Church in Ord.

If they see fit to conduct the course again next year, we hope they will select a more appropriate text.

In the meantime, two of the four class sessions remain on the schedule. They are scheduled Nov. 25 and Dec. 2, starting at 7:30 each night. We urge every parent who has a child attending the sessions to be on hand both evenings. Other parents have been invited also.

And we further advise all parents who have not already done so to get a copy of the textbook and read it thoroughly. We think they'll learn something.

The Other Foot

The chuckles could be heard wherever the "Great Silent Majority" gathered early this week.

On the television stations and to whatever reporter would listen, anti-war leaders were trying to explain that it was just a few militants and not the mass of last weekend's peace demonstrators who resorted to violence. "Why accuse the entire group when it was just a few who took part in storming the Justice Department and the South Vietnamese Embassy?" they pleaded.

Among the "Great Silent Majority"—which had been using similar logic for weeks in a vain attempt to convince North Vietnam that the demonstrators did not represent a majority of American public opinion—the pleas undoubtedly fell on deaf ears.

Nixon Will Seek Ban on Russia's 60-Megaton 'Super Bombs'

By Paul Scott

WASHINGTON — President Richard Nixon plans to press the Soviet Union for an agreement to limit the size as well as the number of strategic nuclear weapons.

Prepared for presentation during the U.S.-Soviet strategic arms limitation talks opening this week in Helsinki, Finland, the new Nixon proposal is designed to outlaw the giant, super H-bombs which Russia has tested and is now fitting to its big missiles.

The monster, 60-megaton bombs, according to the President's military advisers, are the most dangerous weapon in the world. If exploded in the skies over the United States, a half dozen of these huge bombs could easily destroy the nation's entire communication system.

Studied made by the Joint Chiefs of Staff show that giant shockwaves from these super H-bombs would make it impossible for the U.S. to use any of its land-based missiles as a retaliatory force against Russia.

The Soviets already have stockpiled an estimated 200 of the giant bombs. The number that have actually been fitted as warheads on missiles is not known. The U.S. has no super H-bombs. Policies of the Kennedy and Johnson administrations limited the size of American weapons to under 20 megatons. Most of the U.S. bombs are in the 2 to 5 megaton range.

Under the new Nixon proposal, a ceiling of between 10 and 20 megatons on U.S. and Soviet H-bombs would be negotiated as a starter. If acceptable ways can be found to police such an agreement, the ceiling would later be lowered.

In the Helsinki talks Gerald Smith, head of the U.S. negotiating team, will make a strong effort to link the H-bomb ceiling to the banning of MIRV (multiple individually targeted reentry vehicles). The MIRV system, which is still being developed by the U.S., would permit several warheads to be attached to a single missile.

The link between MIRV and a nuclear ceiling was being pushed by the Joint Chiefs of Staff. They wanted to keep Russia from taking advantage of any agreement that would force the U.S. to stop its development of MIRV.

Under present U.S. policies, MIRV development is being pushed to counter the military advantage of the U.S.S.R.'s super H-bomb. If Russia is permitted to develop MIRV, the Soviet military advisers say MIRV is needed to give the U.S. parity with Russia during the late 1970s.

Should Russia reject the plan to outlaw the big bomb, Nixon is being urged to press it in the United Nations. His advisers are convinced that the U.S. could rally world opinion to pass a resolution in the U.N. General assembly calling on all nations to ban H-bombs larger than 10 megatons.

Note: Latest American intelligence reports show the Soviet Union has in place, or under construction, 1,370 intercontinental ballistic missiles (ICBMs). This is roughly 320 more land-based missiles than the U.S.

Tough Soviet Stand If the secret U.S.-Soviet negotiations on Vietnam are any indicator, the strategic arms limitation talks in Helsinki appear to be doomed before they begin. In the Vietnam talks here, the Russians flatly refused to lift a finger to help end the war in Vietnam. When President Nixon offered increased trade if the Russians would cut back their arms to North Vietnam, Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin said his government wasn't interested in such a deal.

Failure of these backstage talks was confirmed by President Nixon in a little-noted paragraph in his recent TV talk. The President said: "Since the Soviet Union furnished most of the military equipment for North Vietnam, Secretary of State Rogers, my assistant for security affairs, Dr. Kissinger, Ambassador Lodge, and I personally have met on a number of occasions with representatives of the Soviet government to enlist their assistance in getting meaningful negotiations started. . . . None of these initiatives have to date produced results."

White House aides report that the President entered these talks with a preconception that the Soviet Union was the key to the way out of the war in Vietnam.

Nixon felt that arms supplied by Russia were essential elements in Hanoi's capacity to carry on the war. If he could get the Russians to stop these shipments, Hanoi would have to negotiate a settlement.

What has greatly disturbed the President is that the Russians not only rejected his plea to cut back arms shipments but have now stepped up their deliveries.

Another Chicago Washington police were on alert for a possible attempt to burn down the South Vietnamese Embassy here last weekend, and as a result a group of demonstrators was repulsed by force when they tried to invade the embassy Friday night.

Government undercover agents had reported that the so-called "Mad Dogs" branch of the Students for a Democratic Society would try to put the torch to the embassy during the anti-war demonstrations. As it turned out, the Mad Dogs were accompanied by the "Weathermen" and the "Crazies" when they attacked the embassy. Firecrackers defending the building and the police in turn used tear gas. Made up of SDS militants from Chicago, Detroit, and New York, the "Mad Dogs" also led a violent protest against the Justice Department in an effort to temporarily seize parts of that building, including the attorney general's office.

Their principal objective was "to bring the Vietnam violence to Washington and show the world that the U.S. Capital is not immune" to their attacks. Attempts were also made by the "Mad Dogs" who are in close communication with Hanoi, to incite high school students brought here for the anti-war demonstration from New York, Cleveland, and Philadelphia, to attack police and local National Guardsmen.

Washington Pipeline Look for a major message from President Nixon to Congress on improving the quality of the environment. While House aides say it will come early in the new session, grappling with environmental problems was high on Nixon's list of campaign promises. However, no new programs so far have been advocated because of a tight budget. The only direct presidential action to date has been formation of the cabinet-level Environmental Quality Council, which has met but twice. (From the Washington News-Intelligence Syndicate) son knowledgeable in Indo-Chinese affairs who did not agree that had elections been held as of the time of the fighting, possibly 80 percent of the population would have voted for Communist Ho Chi Minh as their leader rather than a chief of State Bao Dai.

VOX POP

Eisenhower implies no coercion on the part of the Communists to win this vote.

If almost 80 percent of the Vietnamese people wanted Ho Chi Minh as their leader, who are we as citizens of a democratic country, to deny them that wish? Or should we play God and be the world's policeman?

It was after Ho Chi Minh — the only Vietnamese political personality of real national stature, the man who had led the Vietnamese fight for independence from colonial rule since the late 1930s — was denied election in 1956 that he began to sponsor the Viet Cong in the south in what, in my opinion, was a mistake.

It started out as a fight between different factions of one nation. The United States entered this conflict and helped to impose an unwanted government on the people of South Vietnam. It seems to me that this is somewhat akin to what the Soviet Union did in Czechoslovakia last summer, except that Czechoslovakia may be viewed as being more vital to Soviet interests than Vietnam is to our interests.

They would point out, however, that the overwhelming sympathy for Ho Chi Minh in 1956 was based on the popularity of the Communist party among the people of Vietnam. Ho's popularity was based on the fact that he represented the wishes and desires (land reform and an end to foreign rule) of the Vietnamese people.

An old Vietnamese proverb states: "He should own the land who rubs it, between his hands each season."

As I have already stated, this was not true of the Vietnam of French rule nor is it true now. If the United States would have sponsored land reform 10 years ago (one recent estimate has the cost of land reform at $350 million) which it has not done, the United States spends every three days to prosecute the war, we could have given every new peasant landholder a gun at the same time and he would have given his all to protect his land from the Communists. But in failing to back land reform, we in fact encouraged the peasant to seek help elsewhere.

Thus, the United States chose to support the business interests in Vietnam rather than the desire of the masses.

Oh well, we are doing the same thing today in Latin America. But then we will have to pay for that too someday. When will we ever learn that Communism is not stopped (just as cancer is not stopped by shooting victims of cancer) but by getting at the root causes which motivate people to look to Communism to deliver them from their poverty?

Please don't think that I am totally against the war in Vietnam. On the contrary, I think it also has its merits in that it has helped to make even more evident to the American people the unresponsiveness of our political structure to needed change, the disease of the city, the vested interests of big business, the full ramifications of the Negro revolution, the alienation of the young, the split between rich and poor, the place of the military in determining national policy, and, last but not least, the bankruptcy of American foreign policy.

In closing, I would like to say that I sincerely hope that I have not just engaged in polemics but have helped in some way to clarify controversy over our present debacle in Vietnam. I know that in many cases this letter will not meet with the consensus of opinion in your area, but I feel that both sides should be heard. I also think that it is time for the so-called "silent majority" to quit burying its head in the sand and begin to realize that the Vietnam War is causing more trouble than it is worth. The war is poisoning both our society and our image in the world.

Despite living in an age of a rapid communication, many Americans do not realize how many citizens of other nations view the Vietnam War. This attitude can best be summed up in a number of signs that I saw two years ago in Europe. The signs read: "U.S. = S.S." "U.S. = Nazis," and "U.S. = the rape of Vietnam."

Gentlemen: I wish to thank the Ord Quiz for the story on Elba being finalist in the Community Improvement Program.

Gerald Novofny Box 3883 Elba, Neb. 68835

Dear Editor: Thank you for printing that long half-page ad about UNICEF. It really explained well all of the "nice" Communist controlled governments that receive this generous aid. Meanwhile the news says that Christian Biafra has died trying to save his starving children and is feeding only those who seem to have a chance.

The facts are quite evident if our eyes are seeing. It takes quite a few words to try to pull the wool over our eyes. The truth is self evident. If we listen to and read the news, we can see who is talking and who is doing.

Meanwhile, I will continue to give to the Salvation Army, true Christian charities, or the Red Cross, as the need to help hungry children is growing daily.

I am so grateful for the abundance we have, and for all the wonderful people who want to help their neighbor. But is the "band wagon" going in the right direction? Think!

Esther Williams North Loup, Neb. 68849

Dear Editor: I disagree with your recent editorial stance on the minimum wage provision of the Fair Labor Standards Act. But I DO agree that there is a definite need for an AMBULANCE SERVICE for the citizens of Valley County.

The cost factor has eliminated private enterprise from providing this service to our community. It would be unfair to expect members of a volunteer organization to take time off from their jobs to provide this necessary service. It seems obvious, then, that a governmental unit will have to provide this service.

The question is: which governmental unit should be responsible for providing this service? The City of Ord should not be the one responsible for providing this service. The ambulance service would be used by ALL the citizens of Valley County; it is obvious that the county is the governmental unit with a natural responsibility for providing this service.

The City of Ord has expressed its willingness to cooperate with the county on the matter. WHY is the County Board of Supervisors dragging its feet? WHAT is needed to get them to take action on this URGENT problem? Must an innocent citizen die because of a lack of this indispensable service before the County Board of Supervisors will act?

Top Harvest, Automation Mean Too Much Corn

A "bin-busting" harvest, plus the advent of the picker-sheller, have combined to create serious storage problems for the 1969 corn crop.

Most farmers agree that this year's crop is the best in several years. But with the automation of the picker-sheller, most of it is going to market immediately.

"We just have no place to go with it — no buyers," Lumir Cadek of the Farmers Co-Op Elevator at North Loup said Monday. And with his elevator already full, he has been forced to dump a huge quantity of corn out onto the ground. At the close of Tuesday's workday, the total on the ground stood at 22,072 bushels.

"We don't know how long we'll be able to keep it that way," Virgil Beneke said Wednesday morning. "We're going to try to move it as fast as we can." Beneke manages the Farmers Co-Op Elevator in Ord, which also has jurisdiction over the one at North Loup.

Unlike some areas of the state, a shortage of box-cars is no problem here. "We've got box-cars," said Cadek, "but no place to go with them."

Both Cadek and Beneke said that farmers are not storing nearly as much corn on the farm this year in their own bins. Instead, they are taking it directly to the elevators as it's picked and shelled in the field.

In the past large quantities of corn have been stored on the farm and then taken to market gradually.

"This year there'll be no corn left after the harvest is over," Cadek said.

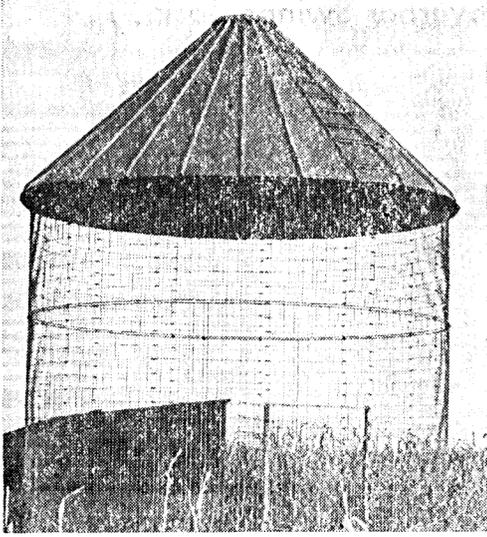

The extra-wet weather this fall has also created some problems, since moisture content of the corn is running higher than normal. And the higher the moisture content, the shorter the time it can be stored.

"It has improved the last few days," Cadek said. "A lot of it now is running between 18 and 20 percent."

At the Ord elevator Beneke said the range Tuesday was all the way from 15.9 to 32 percent. The average is about 22 percent.

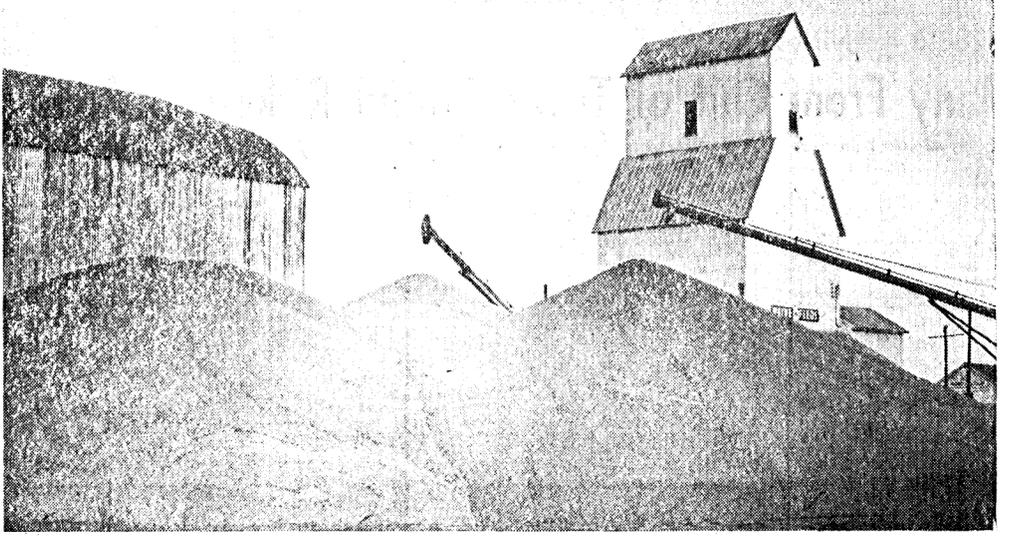

"We're just thankful for Thanksgiving," Beneke said. "I think we'll be able to get caught up this weekend."

He said the Co Op was paying $1.07 a bushel for dry corn.

This . . .

Many bins are standing empty in the field while corn goes to market and is dumped on the ground because of lack of storage space.

Joint Banquet Planned Tuesday By Farm Groups

Plans and preparations for the annual Soil and Water Conservation Recognition Banquet and Extension Service Annual Meeting set for Tuesday are nearing the final stages of completion. County workers are busy working in an effort to promote the sale of banquet tickets in hopes that this year's gathering will be even more successful than in past years. The banquet will be held at 7 p.m. at St. Mary's Auditorium.

Mal Hansen, executive vice-president and director of Travel and Transport Inc. of Omaha, will be the featured speaker of the evening.

Final Rites Held for Jay Auble, Former Community Leader in Ord

Jay Auble
A moving force in Ord

Jay Auble, formerly one of Ord's most prominent citizens, died Nov. 23 at Madison after a lengthy illness. He had been living in a rest home there.

A former jeweler, Mr. Auble had been a businessman in Ord for 32 years before his retirement several years ago. In addition to his jewelry business, he had been associated with his brother — Dr. Glen Auble — in music and the manufacturing of marquettes they had invented.

Through the years he was also responsible for many civic improvements in the community, often taking the lead in pushing for needed changes or additions.

He was noted especially for his work as park chairman.

His most recent effort was toward the establishment of Parkview Village.

Mr. Auble was 80 years old at the time of his death and was a member of the Ord United Methodist Church, the Masonic and O.E.S. lodges, and the Shrine, Sesostrius Temple of Lincoln. He was the son of William L. D. and Martha (Peterson) Auble, born Mar. 30, 1889, at Ord. Survivors include his wife, the former Pauline Hansen whom he married Feb. 23, 1914, at Grand Island. Also surviving are a daughter, Mrs. Leota Underberg of Norfolk; one son, Don Auble of San Jose, Calif.; one brother, Dr. Glen Auble of Ord; six grandchildren; and four great-grandchildren. He was preceded in death by his parents, one infant son, one daughter, one brother, and two sisters.

Funeral services were held Tuesday at 2 p.m. in the United Methodist Church of Ord with Rev. C. R. Campbell officiating. Mrs. Shirley Karre played "Trameter" as a special organ selection.

Pallbearers were Elwin Johnson, Laverne Johnson, Chester Swanek, Emil John, Stanley Absalon and Elmer Marshall. Interment was in the Ord City Cemetery with final rites conducted by the Ord O.E.S. #26. Hastings-Pearson Mortuary had charge of arrangements.

George Hastings and Hilding Pearson, owners of the mortuary, said that a 1967 minimum wage law passed by Congress made it too expensive for them to operate an ambulance service. They said the law required that two specially trained men be on call at all times, and they were paid for the time they were on call — whether they were actually working or not. Hastings and Pearson said that in order to comply and not pay overtime, they would have to hire six men a day.

At Friday's meeting Carson Rogers, chairman of the County Board, said he had received an average of three calls per day recently — "all in favor of the county doing something." Another supervisor — Alfred Burson — asked him if the people calling were taxpayers, and Rogers replied, "Some of them pay more taxes than I do."

Burson said he had not received a single phone call on the subject. Supervisor Ray Knapp echoed that statement.

A native of Dixon, Ia., Hansen is a graduate of the University of Iowa and served as a naval officer during World War II. In 1959 he joined Travel and Transport and now holds the designation of certified travel counselor awarded by the Institute of Certified Travel Agents. His most recent expedition was a tour up the west coast of Africa — from Capetown — observing the farming operations of that area.

Banquet tickets may be obtained at the Extension Office and the ASCS Office or from any of the following committee workers: Lyle Sintek and Eugene Petka of North Loup; Max Staab and Donald Murray of Arcadia; Mrs. Don Axthelm, Mrs. William Janda, Mrs. Bryan Peterson, Oscar Larson, Harold Garnick, Charles Zangger, and Russell Hackett of Ord.

Weed Control Chief Honored

Elmer Brockman of Burwell, superintendent of both the Garfield and Valley County Weed Control Authorities, has received his second award for outstanding service from the Nebraska Weed Control Assn.

Only five such awards were made throughout Nebraska this year.

Brockman received the same award in behalf of the Garfield County Weed Control Authority in 1967.

Governor Swings Back At Democratic Opponent

An overflow crowd heard Gov. Norbert Tiemann set in a quick retort Tuesday night to one of the first accusations leveled at him by his newly announced Democratic opponent, J. James Exon. Speaking at the annual Valley County Republican Banquet, Governor Tiemann said the fights between the executive and legislative branches of state government "are a good thing, with you — the taxpayers — the beneficiaries."

In announcing his candidacy Tuesday for the governorship, Exon has assailed the Tiemann administration for its frequent tacking with the Nebraska State Legislature. He had suggested that a better working relationship between the two branches of government might result in more things getting accomplished.

Without referring specifically to Exon's criticism, Tiemann pointed out that of 17 major proposals submitted by him to the 1969 legislature, 15 were enacted into law.

"Those were all good, progressive programs," he said, indicating that the frequently hot discussion between the executive and legislative branches results in "thorough examination of major bills and eventual passage of the best measures possible."

Shake, Podner!
Mrs. Lorraine Orr, state chairman of the Republican Party, fires an election-sized handshake at Dr. Dale Karre in the receiving line of Tuesday night's Valley County Republican Banquet. That's Gov. Norbert Tiemann looking on.

Attendance tables estimated at between 230 and 240 persons for the fund raising affair, held in the Elks Club at Ord. Additional tables had to be set up to handle the large crowd, as officials reported that only 30 tickets had been sold as of 3 p.m. on the day preceding the banquet.

Besides Tiemann, a number of state dignitaries were on hand — as well as one person of national prominence, Ord native Ron Romans. Now national chairman of the Young Republicans, Romans said in a brief talk:

"We have heard much about the silent majority recently. In the Young Republican organization we are trying to make more young people leave the ranks of the silent majority and become a vocal, building majority."

He reported current membership at approximately 500,000.

Later Romans was presented a citation by Mayor Bill French for his accomplishments and the fame he has brought to Ord. In a moment of whimsy, the current resident of Ralston quipped, "Does this mean I can no longer call Ord home?"

His wife, the former Jackie Jastowski of Elyria, was also recognized.

State officials present in addition to the governor were Frank

Marsh, secretary of state; Murrell McNeil, state tax commissioner; Elmer Schlapoff, director of the State Dept. of Agriculture; and Lorraine Orr, state chairman of the Republican Party.

Each of them made brief comments, with Schlapoff drawing a round of applause when he said Nebraska was "the most Republican state in the nation" and Valley County "the most Republican county in the state."

Addressing himself to a common complaint of many taxpayers, McNeil said there has been property tax relief since the state sales and income taxes went into effect, even though some landowners are paying more property tax than before. "All property taxes now are handled at the local level," the commissioner stated. "If your property taxes are higher now, it means your local units of government are spending more. The governor and the state have no control over that."

Tiemann defended Tax Stand. Tiemann also touched on taxes in his talk, repeating some statements that he has made in speeches elsewhere. In particular, he put the blame for the common complaint of state income tax on the backs of the legislators.

"I called the legislature into special session in December of 1963 and asked that the sales tax be maintained at the then-current rate of 2 1/2 percent," he stated. "I also submitted an executive budget at that time of $339 million, which could have been funded with a 2 1/2 percent sales tax and a 10 percent income tax."

"The legislature said no, it wanted to study the situation more," the governor continued. "So when it reconvened in January for its regular session I re-submitted my budget for the same total amount of money."

"Senator Richard Marvet of Hastings, chairman of the legislature's Budget Committee, said he could trim $20 million off my budget. But nine months later when the budget was finally passed, the legislature had added ed $36 million." After that, setting the tax rates was a matter of simple arithmetic, the governor stated. He said the legislators didn't want to do the job, so they passed it on to him and his staff.

"It was simple calculating," he remarked. "The legislature had appropriated $366 million for the biennium, so we had to raise that much in taxes. Since the sales tax is supposed to bring in approximately the same amount of money as the income tax, by simple arithmetic we arrived at a figure of 2 1/2 percent on the sales tax and 1 1/2 percent on the income tax."

However, the governor did try to take some heat off the state senators by pointing out that state expenditures will be lower in calendar year 1970 than either federal or local spending.

"In calendar year 1970 Nebraska will send $960 million to Washington," he remarked. "Local political subdivisions — counties, school boards, cities, etc. — will raise another $290 million. At the state level we'll get $218 million, and a lot of that will come back to your local communities in the form of state aid — particularly to schools."

"So when you start to complain, go to Washington first and then to your political subdivisions. Then come to me and I'll help you," he concluded, referring to State Senator Rudolf Kokes who was in the audience.

State Capitol to Ord?
In a humorous moment, the governor paid tribute to Kokes' persistent efforts during the last session to have the State Game Commission headquarters moved to Ord.

"It got so that I started checking every morning to make sure the state capitol was still there," he remarked.

Answering a question from the floor asked by Clark Weckbach, the governor put himself on record as definitely favoring a partisan state legislature.

"In the present legislature we have 39 Republicans and 10 Democrats," he stated, "and we've been able to work with all of them. But we need a bipartisan leadership on the floor because individual senators have no party or party leader to be responsible to."

Wants Annual Sessions
Tiemann went on to advocate annual sessions of the legislature with a 60-day time limit one year and 90 the next. Presently sessions are held every other year with no time limit.

Such an arrangement would have two advantages, he stated. "First, with a time deadline, only important bills would be introduced. (This year more than 1,400 measures were introduced during a session that lasted nearly eight months.)"

"Second, we would have more people interested in running for the legislature. Not very many people can get away from their regular jobs for six or eight months at a time, even if it is every other year. But a lot could get away for two or three months."

Wants Highway Say
Speaking of highway construction, Tiemann said the state is willing to go along with federal plans to fight inflation by cutting back on some expenditures. He said the state wanted the right to choose where it would cut, and he indicated that highway construction was not an expendable item.

The governor also reported that several million dollars worth of bonds to finance highway construction, which the voters approved in the form of a constitutional amendment a year ago, have been sold at 5.26 percent interest. The money has been reinvested at 8 percent interest, he added, and is now bringing in $4,000 per day.

Tiemann also reported that the battle to keep the state's young people in Nebraska is being won, although it is far from over. He said the out-migration trend has been slowed from 9 percent a year in the 1950s to 3 percent over the last three years.

He advocated increased industrialization to provide more jobs, saying that farming had become so automated to help much in the employment battle.

"Providing economic, cultural, and recreational advantages within the state is the way to keep our people here," he said. And he indicated that the state has many assets to attract industry, foremost of which is a "quality" labor supply.

"Nebraskans have been raised to give you a day's work for a day's pay," he stated, pointing out that at one plant in Kearney employees are paid on a straight salary basis and are not required to punch a time clock. "Officials are really pleased with the way that experiment is working out," he said.

Vietnam Stand Popular
The chief executive drew applause when he took a slap at those who advocate immediate withdrawal of all United States forces from Vietnam. Claiming not to be "an expert on foreign policy," he nevertheless stated, "I've got my faith in the President and not in a bunch of senators."

Tiemann said he has talked with war protesters in Lincoln and asked them "to give us a solution."

"All they say is, 'Let's just leave,'" he added. "And we can't do that — it's absolutely impossible. President Richard Nixon has inherited the problem, and I'm convinced he is doing everything in his power to negotiate an honorable peace."

Finally, the governor took a crack at carelessness on the highways, deploring the fact that Nebraska's "Mission 100" has now become "Mission Impossible." Mission 100 had as its goal a reduction during calendar year 1969 of at least 100 deaths on state highways.

"This month isn't even over yet, and already it's the bloodiest November in the history of the state," he said. "We're not killing people one at a time anymore; we're killing them three and four at a time."

"It's plain, unadulterated carelessness," he added. "We have more driver training classes, better roads, and safer automobiles, but nothing seems to help."

"We're killing more people on the highways every day than are killed in Vietnam. I wish all those people who are marching against the Vietnam War would start marching about careless and boozing drivers."

"My Cup Runneth Over!"

A Thanksgiving Meditation by Leonard S. Clark
Pastor, North Loup Scotia United Methodist Churches

Have you ever stopped to think of that well-known and greatly loved Shepherd Psalm (Psalm 23) as a Psalm of Thanksgiving? In it you will find an all-inclusive song of thanksgiving, not only for the material blessings of life, but also for the spiritual and social!

The author of this priceless jewel of the Psalter has fallen heir to the great prophetic insights of Jeremiah, (23: 1-4), Ezekiel (34) and Isaiah (40:11) where the Lord is presented as the great Shepherd of Israel. In the picture here presented, we get the full view of the godly Shepherd and his spotless character! No wonder the Psalmist could put his full faith in One so gracious and merciful!

As one analyzes this Psalm, he finds first of all that the psalmist presents Jehovah, his God, the Lord as SHEPHERD PROVIDER! The sheep whom the Lord shepherds are conscious of no lack: "The Lord is my Shepherd, I shall not want!" How wonderful to have such trustful faith — to believe that God will provide all things needful for our welfare! The good Shepherd provides the things needed by his sheep — pasture, rest, and water. As we survey this pastoral scene and apply its beautiful and highly figurative terms to our own lives in this 20th century world in America, in Nebraska, in our North Loup Valley, how grateful we should be for our great Shepherd Provider! William Merrill in his poem "Not Alone For Mighty Empire" expresses so well this thought of what else beside material blessings we have to be grateful for.

In the second place, the psalmist presents the Lord as GUIDE AND GUARDIAN! He leads His sheep in "the paths of righteousness." Through such Palestinian pictures of ordinary daily life the psalmist portrays what the Lord is to him personally in life's valleys and highlands. How intriguing is this picture given us here! As we make our way through life's valleys and highlands, how good it is to know we have one watching over us who cares for and loves us each one! Truly, "we are His people and the sheep of His pasture!"

In the third place, the psalmist presents the Lord God as HOST! The Lord spreads before him a table of bounty! The psalmist is an honored guest. In Oriental fashion he anoints the author's head with oil and his "cup runneth over!" One senses the lifting tone of wonder and gratitude which rises to its climax: Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life; and I will dwell in the house of the Lord forever!"

Two Chant Gridders Named All-Conference

Two members of the 1969 Ord High School football team have been named to the Central 10 all-conference team. They are Bruce Worn and Dan Timmerman.

Both were linemen on this year's Chanticleer eleven.

Worn was a two-way performer most of the year, playing center on offense and guard on defense. He was a 170-pound senior who had started some on defense last year.

Timmerman, on the other hand, a 175-pounder who started the year at defensive tackle but, because of the injury situation, wound up playing some at offensive tackle and defensive linebacker.

Cocaptains of this year's Ord team also have been announced. Worn is one of them, and Bruce Hurlbert is the other.

Hurlbert was one of the team's top running backs this year. He's a 147-pound senior.

The cocaptains were chosen in a vote of the players preceding Ord's final game of the year, against Grand Island Northwest. The Chanticleers won that one, 13-7, to post a final 2-6 record for the season.

The list of 20 lettermen for the 1969 season shows nine seniors, ten juniors, and seven sophomores. One student manager from each class lettered also.

Seniors earning numerals were Hurlbert, Worn, Dennis Kamarad, Ron Lonskron, Paul Markowski, Bill Miller, Jim Novotny, Chuck Setlik, Loren Vancura, and student manager Dennis Radil.

Juniors cited were Timmerman, Stan Axthelm, Darrell Farmer, Jeff Hruby, Jim Naeve, Tom Oczkowski, Bob Peterson, Russell Rogers, Carl Suminski, Dean Vancura, and student manager John Dale.

Action Planned For Ord Cagers

Ord High School basketball fans will get a free preview of their 1969 team in a game-type scrimmage tomorrow night (Friday). It starts at 7 p.m.

Couch Ken Trubey said yesterday that only two of his players were not up to par physically. But they're important ones.

Dennis Kamarad, who had been listed among the top seven by Trubey, injured a knee last week and definitely will miss the season opener with Cozad. That game will be played here Dec. 5.

"Kamarad probably won't be fully ready until our holiday tournament the last week in December," Trubey stated.

The other ailing player is returning starter Bill Miller. He has been sick this week. He was just a junior this year. He's Ord's Junior High football team did not win a single game this year, but Coach Chuck Squier still thinks there are a number of freshmen off that team who can help his varsity next year. One of them is Lynn Seaver, 22 above, as he and his teammates combine to stop a Burwell ball carrier. One boy Coach Squier can't count on next year is quarterback Doug Wolf, seen below tackling Paul Anderson of Burwell. Wolf was just an eighth grader this year and has another season of junior high competition ahead.

Dorothy Wray Plans Baking Demonstration

With the Christmas holiday fast approaching — a time when new ideas and baking techniques are greatly appreciated — the homemakers of the community are extended an invitation to attend a baking demonstration at the Parkview Village recreation hall, Friday, Dec. 5, from 2 to 4 p.m.

Mrs. Paul (Dorothy) Wray will present the demonstration which features many helpful hints in the shaping and baking of fancy rolls.

Mr. and Mrs. Derwin White were supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Benben Tuesday.

Overflow Crowd
Mr. and Mrs. Chet Swaneck were among the overflow crowd that attended the N.S.F.A. Concert held at Burke High School auditorium in Omaha Sunday. Five students from the Ord High School music department participated in the concert. Mrs. Swaneck reported that the presentations of the choir, band, and orchestra were outstanding. The auditorium and hallways were filled. Some came as far as 700 miles and were unable to see the students perform, having to listen from the hallways.

Prize to Mrs. Kapustka
Happy Circle Club met recently at Parkview Village with Mary Jurgensen as hostess and Mrs. Gene Augustyn co-hostess. Mrs. Carl Schauer gave the lesson. Twelve members were present, and the door prize was won by Mrs. Bolis Kapustka. The club's Christmas party will be held at the Odd Fellows Hall.

World Traveller Finds Extra Miles to Quiz Plant No Handicap

By Kerry Leggett
"Quiz is a very unusual name," said the visitor. "How'd you ever acquire a name like that?"

The question about "Quiz" was not unusual. The visitor was. Both are a story in themselves.

Ord may be an ordinary town, but it has a very unordinary printing plant. John Felber, international trade consultant, realized this many years ago. From his office in Newark, N.J., this world traveller compiles and edits periodicals for many foreign lands.

Coming to Ord from Newark, Felber was met at the Grand Island airport by Quiz owner and publisher Kerry Leggett. The easterner had flown in to pick up 500 copies of a booklet he had the Quiz print for the Russian government.

Russia's government-owned travel agency is called Intourist and has offices in a building leased by the Russian government on Manhattan Island in midtown New York City. Felber calls on these people daily and has compiled their tourism guide for several years. The Quiz prints it.

The Intourist travel guide for 1970 will go to such companies as American Express, Diners/Fugazy Travel Service, CIT Travel Services, and dozens of others. Over 2,000 copies of the booklet are destined for Canadian travel agencies. The Quiz has been printing these booklets in Ord for the past three years.

Felber, a one-time tour guide anywhere in the world, reported that the Russians are "funny people." He was referring to the fact that this year an insert for their booklet was printed in England, then shipped Air Freight to Grand Island. The Quiz picked up the inserts at the Grand Island airport, included them in the 1970 edition, then took them back to Grand Island for Air Freight shipment direct to Intourist's New York offices.

Before coming to Ord to pick up the initial booklets for a Russian travel seminar at Seattle, Wash., Felber called here and stated, "The wheels are here and want their books." Flying in from the Kremlin were the Intourist officials with a check for the printing and they expected it — NOW!

some distinct impressions about them.

"They have a lot of the same problems we in the states have," he said. "For instance, they're plagued with 'professional students' just like we are — people who prefer to stay in school till they're 35 rather than get out and go to work."

He said, however, that in Russia college students must prove their abilities more so than in the United States.

"Their college entrance exams are very, very difficult," he explained. "For instance, they'll pick some very minute character out of a novel and tell you to compare his characteristics with somebody else's. Of course you can't do it unless you've read the book. It's not like here in the states where lots of times kids can get by just reading the book review on the cover."

Felber said he knew of a woman whose daughter was planning to enter college, but she failed to study enough for the entrance exam. As a result she flunked it, and now she must work at least two years before getting another try at it.

One thing the well travelled printer did find in common between the Soviet Union and the United States was governmental inefficiency.

"A bureaucracy is no different whether it's in Moscow or Washington," he stated.

While the Soviets with their government-controlled industries loudly condemn capitalism as practiced by the United States, they are in fact exercising their own form of capitalism, Felber stated.

"If you're willing to work, the government will help you," he said. "The better workers are the ones who get the better apartments, the color television sets, and so forth."

The Leggett family visited Felber in Newark last summer and learned that this most learned and widely-travelled gentleman began his career early. At the age of 12 he had his own small printing shop and started ordering photo-engravings from the Quiz at that time.

Having wanderlust while still in school, Felber would hit the books during the first part of the week, then ride his bike to the Newark Airport on Thursday and fly to any of the various states. When he arrived, he would take a Greyhound bus tour of the state, then return to Newark in time to be in class on Monday morning. By the time he was out of high school he had visited every state in the union and paid for it by operating a small printing business.

Presently Felber headquarters in Newark and makes his home at Hillside, N.J. He acts as a printing consultant, writes a regular column in Printing Impressions magazine (a trade publication), and tours the world looking for either printing business or picking up bits of information for reporters. He has authored numerous travel and trade books and compiled Chamber of Commerce brochures for such ports as Kuwait, near Saudi Arabia.

While giving the Leggett family a tour of New York City last summer, Felber related that he was as much "at home" in London or Paris as he was in New York. "I could show you London as easily as I could New York," he said.

Felber's daily business finds him calling on many customers offed in the Empire State Building. To keep up with events, he devours newspapers. He reads eight to ten daily papers each day.

"If you read the daily papers," he told Mrs. Leggett, "you don't know what's going on you don't have to read the periodicals."

Why does Felber utilize the printing services of Quiz Graphic Arts? Quality at a reasonable price, he says, plus the time factor. He can get work done by the Quiz in Ord as fast as he can right in New York City.

Recently the Russian Embassy in Washington, D.C., needed visas printed in Russian on one side and English on the other. Felber was on the phone, air-mailed the copy to the Quiz, where it was photographed and printed nearly the same day. Then it was put on a flight at Grand Island that assured its delivery the next morning at the Russian Embassy in Washington.

"You can't get that fast service right here in the East," Felber stated.

The Quiz has also printed a book on the USSR for Felber, advising exporters and importers on the Russian market. Licen-sintorg — Russia's newsletter on items for export — is also printed at the Quiz, as is Felber's International Intelligence Index which lists importable items from around the world.

What does a world traveller who headquarters in the bustling New York-New Jersey area think of a small town in the middle of Nebraska?

"It's quiet," he said, "real quiet." But then he added, "I hope you keep that courthouse square. It's beautiful!"

After a brief overnight stay in

Ord, Felber was back on his way with the Russian travel books as part of his luggage. "The airlines have disregarded weight for size," the knowledgeable traveller commented as he checked nearly 150 pounds of books instead of luggage. (The packages were no bigger than a suitcase.)

"When will you be coming to New York to see me again?" he asked as matter-of-factly as if it were an everyday trip. The Ord printer and publisher merely grinned and walked back to his car for a 60-mile drive home.

Sun Bowl Ticket Information Listed; 12,000 Ducats Available at $6 Each

By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Assn.

LINCOLN — After two years of spending their holidays at home, the Nebraska Cornhuskers are going bowling again.

Coach Bob Devaney's football team will tackle Georgia Dec. 20 in the Sun Bowl at El Paso, Tex. Ticket Manager Jim Pittenger said Nebraska was allotted 12,000 tickets at $6 apiece. A priority system for distributing the tickets was established and Pittenger said those which hadn't been sold by this Friday would be handled on a first-come, first-served basis.

Although it still isn't definite, the favored site for the new building is on the state fairgrounds where the facility would be available for use by the State Fair Board.

The new building probably will be designed to hold about 20,000 basketball fans — or more than double the seating capacity of the Coliseum where the Husker cagers now perform.

The new building also could be used to provide an all-weather site for the football team to practice. When weather chases the football squad inside now, workouts are held in the cramped Henry F. Schulte Fieldhouse north of Memorial Stadium.

Devaney said it is difficult, if not impossible, to have practice sessions in the present fieldhouse because of its size.

"We'd be okay if we just ran a few single-wing plays," he said, "but the way we spread people out and throw the ball we need some room."

plan affecting natural resources, that the well-being of Nebraska is not subordinated to that of any other area.

Before assuming my final position, I will want to know if this structure complements the opportunity for development of upstream projects.

The governor was among more than 100 persons who testified during two days of hearings on the controversial project. At a hearing in Omaha more than 1,000 persons were on hand, and about 450 attended a hearing the next day in Lincoln.

In each case the audience was composed generally of persons who opposed the dam, which is expected to cost about a half-billion dollars and create a reservoir with 100 acres of surface between Omaha and Lincoln.

Opponents argue that some of Nebraska's choicest farmland would be inundated to provide flood control which could be done more cheaply and effectively by a series of smaller dams upstream.

They claimed the reservoir would be polluted with urban wastes and plant growth and that benefits projected by the dam's supporters would never come true.

The supporters, on the other hand, said that economic benefits to eastern Nebraska resulting from development of the reservoir and its recreational assets would be "staggering."

The project drew support from State Economic Development Director James Monroe and Game Commission Director Mel Steen, but State Senator Loran Schmitt of vivid City was dead set against it.

Schmitt said benefits seen by the supporters were "mythical."

Col. B. P. Pendergrass, Omaha district engineer for the Army Corps of Engineers, will analyze testimony from the two hearings and prepare a report on public reaction for his superiors. If he recommends the project be built, it will be up to officials in Washington whether to go ahead.

Congress will make the final decision by determining whether to appropriate construction money.

Ticket requests are to be sent to the Coliseum Ticket Office, University of Nebraska, Lincoln, Neb. 68508. An extra quarter per order is necessary to cover handling costs, Pittenger said.

The priority system, he said, was established "to give first consideration to those who have demonstrated a sustained interest in backing the Cornhuskers through good seasons and bad."

At the top of the list come the NU students and faculty, then major contributing organizations, season ticket holders, former Nebraska lettermen, and travel agencies.

After those orders have been processed, members of the University of Nebraska Alumni Assn. will get preferred treatment.

The ticket chief said fans who wanted to be certain they would be on time and had mailed in orders for tickets to "any bowl" would be protected. Their orders, he said, would be treated just the same as if they had been requested specifically for the Sun Bowl.

Tiemann Wants More Study
Gov. Norbert Tiemann, in testimony last week at an Army Corps of Engineers hearing on the proposed Platte River dam and reservoir, said the project needs additional study.

"I have previously indicated support for your planning efforts," Tiemann told the Engineers. "Today, I reiterate my support for this planning effort, just as I have always supported planning endeavors in other fields."

"I feel it is important that a positive attitude be assumed by the state when participating in all resource development studies. It is my opinion that state partnership in this planning effort will assure a more searching analysis of the opportunities for development which are available in Nebraska."

The governor had been considered a supporter of the dam, but he said in this testimony at the hearing he hadn't made up his mind yet.

"As governor of Nebraska," he said, "my paramount interest in the Lower Platte Basin Report will be for the welfare of this state. I insist, in this or any other

ONE 1970 Outlook Bright for Dairymen

By John Schade

Dairymen can look forward to another favorable year of milk prices in 1970 if predictions of Wisconsin economists prove accurate. The 1970 milk prices are likely to be 5 percent above this year's price level.

Production on the other hand, is expected to be down 2 percent in 1970. Cash receipts will increase about 3 percent over this year's level.

During the past few years the dairy industry has experienced a dramatic production and price change. Production has been decreasing nationally for four consecutive years, and prices have been rising since the mid-1960s.

A further reduction in cow numbers is anticipated with a corresponding drop of about 50 percent in number of dairy farms. In the next 10 years the herd size is expected to more than double from today's 25-cow average to a mean of 60 to 100 cows by 1980.

With higher milk prices in the offing, it appears that the four-year production decline will do a turn around. Larger, better-managed herds will lead to more production per cow.

However, on the consumption side of the picture, per capita use of milk and dairy products continues its 10-year decline. Especially hard hit have been higher fat items, such as whole milk, cream, and butter. Competition from filled milk and imitation dairy products continues to be a threat, although sales have been leveling off recently.

While further declines in per capita consumption of dairy products are likely, population growth will be great enough to keep the total dairy product consumption figure moving up. Increased sales of lower fat products, such as American cottage and other cheeses; ice cream; ice milk; low-fat milk; and non-fat dry milk will help keep the total consumption figure rising.

Area Dairy Day Planned
The University of Nebraska Cooperative Extension Service, in cooperation with the County Extension Services, is sponsoring an Area Dairy Day in Central City.

This meeting is scheduled for Dec. 10 at the 411 Building. The program will get under way with registration and a cup of hot chocolate at 9:30 a.m. and should adjourn by 3 p.m.

Topics for discussion are: "Energy is the Key"; "Least Cost Rations"; "Free- Stall Design and Management"; "Udder Health Can Be Maintained"; and "Feed Handling Made Easier." Time has been allotted on the program for a question-and-answer period.

Leading the discussion on these topics will be University of Nebraska Extension dairymen and members of the University of Nebraska animal science teaching and research staff.

Ord friends have received word concerning the death of Manie Young, former pastor of the Evangelical United Brethren Church here.

After her retirement Miss Young made her home with Elva Bond in Ord for many years. About seven years ago the two ladies moved to Hastings, and about a year ago Miss Young returned to her birthplace in Illinois. She was living in a nursing home at the time of her death.

Mary J. Young was born on June 26, 1877, in London Mills, Ill., and passed away Nov. 6, 1969, at the age of 92. Funeral services were conducted Nov. 8 at the London Mills E.U.B. Church with Rev. Lyle Leverton officiating. Interment was in the Pleasant Hill Cemetery at London Mills.

THE Ord Quiz

Hands Off Our Clients!

Any local merchant would be appalled if he discovered that some organized group were sending letters to his customers asking them to boycott his place of business. His anger would be intensified if he discovered that the only reason for this action was that the group simply did not like the way he was running that business.

Thus, the Ord Quiz is concerned that the newly formed Loup Ministerial Assn. is thinking about sending letters to sponsors of the church page in the Quiz, asking them "to consider dropping their ad."

At their Oct. 13 meeting, members of the Valley County Ministerial Assn. discussed the meditations printed on the church page of the Quiz. They voted that these meditations should be submitted by each minister through the association, rather than directly to the newspaper. A motion also was made and seconded that "Louis Trebus and Clarence Campbell be a committee of two to edit these meditations and give them to the Ord Quiz."

Later Mr. Trebus, who serves the Bethany Lutheran Church of Ord, visited with Quiz publisher Kerry Leggett and asked for permission to censor all meditations appearing on the church page. The request was of course denied, since not all ministers in this area belong to the ministerial association and those who do not always agree 100 percent with its policies.

Minutes of Meeting. By the time of its November meeting, the Valley County Ministerial Assn. had become the Loup Ministerial Assn. The following is quoted from the minutes of that group's first session, held Nov. 13:

"Louis Trebus reported on the 'Church Page' in the Ord Quiz. He and Mr. Kerry Leggett met and talked about the importance of the 'devotional article' to be uplifting and inspirational. It was the agreement of the group that this space should not be used by any of the pastors to throw stones at another church, pastor, or activity being sponsored by members of the association. We suggest that the meditation be of the type, similar to the Upper Room, Portals of Prayer, Our Daily Bread, etc. Motion made and second that the chairman and secretary compose a letter stating our objection to any use of the Church Page other than for the above devotional purpose and that a copy of this letter be sent to each sponsor of the page and to Mr. Kerry Leggett and the editor and that all in agreement sign the letter. Two suggestions were shared in the group: a) That each pastor be responsible for submitting a devotional meditation for the Church Page and that these be to the editor by Monday noon; b) As of Dec. 1, if policy for such does not change we would send a letter to each of the sponsors indicating that we will request that our 'Church News' be omitted from the page and that each sponsor be asked to consider dropping their ad."

All Invited to Use Church Page

The church page originally was set up for the convenience of the churches in this area, at no cost to them. All are invited to list the times of their regular services as well as any special non-fund-raising activities that may arise.

Each minister in the area has not only been invited, but requested to contribute articles for the "meditation" section of the ad. If each of them does, the articles will be used on a rotating basis so that no one individual can monopolize the space.

However, past experience has proved that only two or three ministers regularly take advantage of this opportunity. As a matter of fact, for two of the past three weeks no local articles have been submitted.

We feel that the church page provides a definite service to the people of this community. Its use is by no means mandatory, though, and any ministers so choosing may discontinue their participation at any time they wish.

We do not feel, however, that they have a right to prevent others from using the page. Nor do they have a right to run advertisements away from the Quiz.

We therefore trust that they will soon get back to minding God's business and leave Quiz business in the hands of those rightfully responsible for it.

Public Will Have Leading Role In Ambulance Decision

In a manner of speaking, the citizens of Valley County are being given an opportunity to decide for themselves whether they want ambulance service or not.

A public meeting tomorrow night (Friday) will be used as a sounding board to see just what citizen sentiment is on the subject. The meeting has been called by the Valley County Board of Supervisors, and any action they ultimately take will be based to a large extent on what happens at the meeting.

If a large number of people show up and say they want the county to step in and provide ambulance service, the supervisors most likely will take action. On the other hand, if the citizenry appears apathetic and a mere handful show up for the meeting, the supervisors probably will interpret that as an indication that the majority do not want them to take any action.

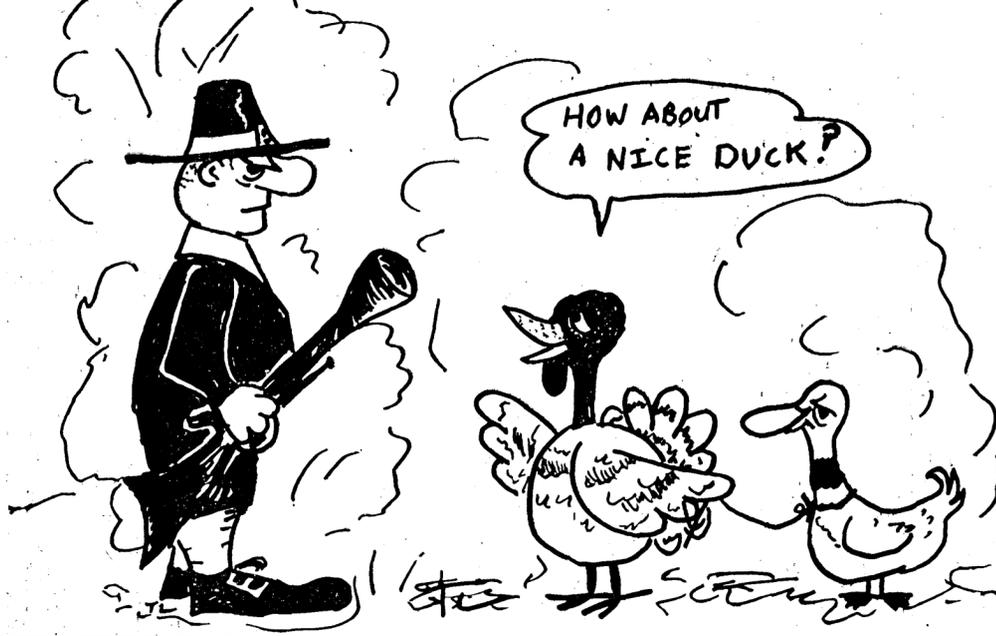

It should be understood that anything the county provides will not be free. It will have to be paid for, and here that presents a unique problem.

All counties are limited by state statute to a maximum tax levy of 14.28 mills. Valley County has a levy of 14.21 mills for the current fiscal year. That of course means that the county levy could be increased at most only .07 of a mill.

Carson Rogers, chairman of the County Board, said Friday that there are special funds available from which the county could pay for ambulance service. County Clerk Thelma Dulitz said Monday that the only such fund she knows of is the Inheritance Tax Fund, and that she did not know if it would cover the full costs of ambulance service each year or not.

What all this means is that the County Board may be forced to make cuts in other services if it goes into the ambulance business. The picture is not a pretty one.

Still, ambulance service in a community this size is an absolute necessity. And so far no alternative solutions have been advanced.

VOX POP

The following letter was sent to Quiz publisher Kerry Leggett, rather than to the editor.

Dear Kerry: I've really admired you for the comeback you made from alcoholism and for giving your time in telling other people how they can be helped by Alcoholics Anonymous.

As I see it, our ministers are doing the same thing by teaching our young people the moral values of sex education — so why jump on them? The course has been approved by the State Board of Education and the local board.

Our doctors are giving their time — they haven't been condemned. I hope there will be a change of policy in the Editorial Department. Many things that are constructive for our community could be brought up, such as the plans to set up a community youth organization. So far this has not been accomplished with local funds or personnel.

I love the people of this community; it has been my home for 35 years. Our two sons and two daughters grew up here, and I feel it would have been a fine thing if we could have had sex education in our schools at that time — don't you?

Cheer with some of the young people taking this course please, and if you get any favorable reports please publish those also.

Mrs. Martines Blomond

Editor's Note: The local sex-education program has not been approved by either the State Board of Education or the local board. Since it is not conducted at the school, no formal approval is required. Local officials have reviewed the materials being used, and some of them have expressed the same opinion that the Quiz expressed; that is, that the textbook being used is too detailed.

We were not "condemning" the ministers for conducting such a program, but we felt it proper to correct misleading information which had been printed earlier. One minister had said that no material from the Sex Information and Education Council of the United States was being used. Because of the nature of this organization, it seemed appropriate to point out that the textbook author was a member of its board of directors.

All readers are entitled to their own opinions as to whether a sex-education course should be conducted, and if so how detailed it should be.

Dear Editor: Because of a deep concern I write this letter to you. It is apparent that a lot of people are unaware of some of the agreements between our nation and others that the Communist governments are breaking. There is the Atomic Test stations, the Grechko military mission spent considerable time inspecting the island's main ports where Soviet weapons have been photographed entering Cuba in the past.

Significantly, nearly half the Grechko delegation has stayed on in Cuba for additional conferences with Cuban Defense Minister Raul Castro, their official host, following the Soviet defense minister's departure.

A joint communique issued by the two Communist defense ministers during Grechko's visit also points to new Soviet military moves in Cuba. The official statement, which attracted little public attention in the United States, pledged efforts to strengthen communications between the armed forces of the two countries.

While American intelligence experts are split on exactly what this means, one group believes it signals the "Sovietization" of Cuba's military forces. This theory is supported by in-

Russians Who Helped Set Up Missiles in Cuba Visit There Again

By Paul Scott

WASHINGTON — Soviet Defense Minister Andrei Grechko used his recent seven-day visit to set the stage for a large new Soviet military arms buildup there.

This is the preliminary assessment reached by American intelligence authorities from information gathered on Grechko's activities while in Cuba, and the make-up of the high-level military delegation that accompanied him.

Included in the delegation were a number of top Russian logistical officers. This elite group consisted of several transportation experts known to have been involved in the shipment of offensive weapons to Cuba in 1962.

Fellers Get in a Thankful Mood, Decide They're Pretty Well Off

DEAR MISTER EDITOR: Thanksgiving was on the mind of the fellers at the country store Saturday night, and just about all of 'em got to say his piece about the store owner in- deed 'em to give thanks outside so could go home and get some sleep. He said he was especially thankful there ain't but one Saturday in a week.

George Radil set the mood for the meeting when he spoke kind of the country.

George had seen a recent breakdown on this country of 200 million, and he said he noticed there are a couple million more women than men. So it's a wonder we get along as good as we do, he said.

Seriously, George said this piece reported we have 19 million people over 65 years old, 11 million widows and widowers, 120 million old enough to vote, 6 million in college, and 9 million that were born in another country. George said he could go on, but what he wanted to say was that out was that everyone of them groups has a different set of problems and it was an impossible job for any government to satisfy all of 'em.

All of the county supervisors would agree with that I'm sure, Mister Editor. They claim at least half the people in the county are mad at 'em 'cause they haven't done anything about providing ambulance service, and the other half will be mad as soon as they do provide it, 'cause those people will have to help pay for it too.

But getting back to what the fellers were saying, Leonard Moudry commented that when you look at the mixture of people and problems we got, we don't do all bad.

Per instance, said Leonard, right now a heap of countries are split wide open for one reason or another. There's Korea, Vietnam, Germany, and the big bust-up in Ireland, for a few, and there are sensible people in all them places, Leonard allowed.

"We live in a divided world that has a hard time seeing eye to eye on anything," he said, "and the United States is more united than a heap of it."

Edwin Vancura said he gets tired of hearing about how Americans are a violent people. He said you get the idea we are pretty peaceful when you think of Hitler, Stalin, Hindus and Moslems, Arabs and Jews, Congolese and Biafrans.

"There ain't no counting the millions of people done away with violently in other places," were Edwin's words.

Eldon Marsh wasn't much fer giving thanks by pointing out troubles of other folks, but he allowed he was grateful that people in this country still care enough about her to try and help with some of the problems. Some time back, said Eldon, two women were denied U. S. citizenship 'cause they said their religion wouldn't let 'em vote, serve on juries or take any part in government.

Edlon said he reckoned that was reason enough to turn the women down, but a heap of people in this country ought to be thankful they were born here and ain't got to prove in court they qualify as citizens.

Personally, Mister Editor, I figure everybody in this country has plenty to be thankful fer, except old Tom Turkey.

Yours truly,
Geranium Joe

KERRY ON

By Kerry Leggett

—a reminder— Anyone that reads this column knows I was gone most of the past week, speaking to high school students throughout Nebraska on the subject of alcoholism.

I've repeatedly written about the many rewards from these talks. None—to date—has "hit home" like the following letter I received after speaking at Omaha Holy Name last week.

With this being Thanksgiving week, I'm taking the liberty of deleting the name from the letter since it was NOT intended for publication. But no part of the letter is changed in any way.

It's letters like this that make me thankful for what I have. This week I'll let this girl's letter to me speak for itself . . . a simple reminder of ALL I have to be thankful for.

"Dear Mr. Leggett, My name is . . . I'm a senior at Holy Name High School, where you gave one of the most touching talks we have ever had.

"I would personally like to thank you for speaking to us, for giving your time and a part of yourself to us. You made us all stop and think — made us aware of how tragic alcoholism really is.

"Your talk touched the hearts of many and had a dramatic effect on some of us, especially me. You really hit home with me because, you see, my father is an alcoholic.

"He's drunk for the major part of his life, but for one year—my junior year—he stopped. It was the most blessed year of my whole life, and also for my six brothers and sisters, and my wonderful mother. We had our troubles then, and it was kind of rough, but all that was easy to be compared with now. My father has steadily gotten worse, and it is a surprise to me how he continues living.

"It's so bad that I can't bear to call him my dad anymore. He's . . ."

That Invaluable Blood

I see that the local Red Cross chapter has just reelected officers for the coming year.

A lot of the year there isn't much for them to do. Then again, they can be overburdened with chores. The reason I know is because I faithfully wrote news for this group for years and years.

They do deserve your thanks for serving quietly, yet efficiently. One who tirelessly sees to Bloodmobile visits time after time is Gladys Weckbach. When she takes on a job it gets done. And so she phones, she trots around to see people. She writes a good story about the Bloodmobile, carefully sprinkling it with local names so that You and You will be glad to read it.

With her to inspire them, a full corps of Valley County people have duly signed up and showed up to give blood or to wait on those who do. Dozens of our citizens work. This includes the doctors, the nurses, the helpers, the snack preparers, the juice servers, the record keepers, the church ladies, and the clubs who want to serve. It takes a lot of people to do all these things.

And you may be very proud of Valley County, one place where the Bloodmobile quota is always met religiously.

And I want to publicly acknowledge this and add my fervent thanks, for I took advantage of this blood donation recently to the extent of five pints. One other time I needed 17 pints. Needless to say, I bled easy.

Blood is very expensive, not free by any means. But this Red Cross program makes certain that blood is available whether the patient can pay for it or not.

Of course there is always the administering charge. It is quite a bit of work to check blood types, string up that bottle . . . often now it is a plaffin bag instead of a bottle . . . stick that patient, and keep an eye on the dribbly flow. Not to mention training the nurse who helps.

The administering charge is moderate. Did you know that you can designate your blood donation, tell the Bloodmobile that it is to be credited to Uncle John or whoever? So that blood you have been given may be replaced, according to the county records?

And for folks who don't even know they've received blood . . . yes, you can be that "OUT."—The Red Cross writes an informing letter of notification. I got one.

Some parts of the Red Cross program I could do without. But this blood giving part I am happy about. Blame me? —Irma level of government, there has been no sign from the White House that these views of Grechko's visit have been called to the President's attention.

Carlos Rafael Rodriguez, a lone-time Communist, is assuming an increasingly important role in the Cuban government. In the absence of ailing Foreign Minister Raul Roa Rodriguez, he has been speaking extensively on foreign affairs. draw American forces from South Vietnam has encouraged the Russians to adopt a bolder policy in Cuba.

The recent joint Soviet-Cuban naval maneuvers in the Caribbean Sea and the visit of Grechko, the highest-ranking Kremlin military man to call on the island's Communist regime, are symbols of the new Soviet policy, they report.

It is the belief of the defectors that unless President Nixon promptly warns Russia that the U. S. will not tolerate Soviet military bases in Cuba that the Kremlin will proceed with its plans to build them.

Once Soviet naval and air bases are in operation, they contend, the Russians will then try again to introduce strategic missiles as they attempted in 1962.

The big question now is whether these warnings will get serious consideration at the White House level. Although circulated among policy-makers at a lower need Thanksgiving, and really Thanksgiving Day, we need to give for all that we have received for the Blessings that we take for granted. I recall that the first such as set aside to give for an abundant harvest so often in our routine of daily living we forget to be thankful so many ordinary things.

Thank Thee for cake and frozen noodles, for disposals, for the telephone though it is always when our turn rolls.

Thank Thee for neighbors who are willing to stop for a few minutes for friendly conversation, for girls who so often feel disgraced, and for boys — even though through the living and track mud on the what would we do to them?

Thank Thee for vacuum cleaners and cosmetic faces into shocking, for friendly clerks in and for teachers who school so pleasant that children skip off each thought a grumble.

Thank Thee for automatics and vacuum cleaners a recent bride game she girls, for laughter, aypens and headache, and for a husband's derstands.

At this time of year that like the many things for to be thankful. Thanks is better translated "is giving." For one can only give thanks unless it is.

Are you looking for a way that leftover Thanksgiving turkey? This Golden Roll can easily be turned into a Golden Roll. The ingredients are:

- 1/4 c. butter
 - 1/4 c. minced onion
 - 1/4 c. diced green pepper
 - 2 T. flour
 - 1-1/2 t. salt and pepper
 - 1 c. turkey (or chicken) stock
 - 3 c. chopped cooked turkey (or chicken)
 - 2 c. cooked rice
 - 1/4 c. diced pimiento
 - 2 T. grated Parmesan cheese
 - 1 c. pkgd cornflake crumbs
 - 3 T. melted butter
- Saute onion and pepper in butter. Blend in flour, salt and pepper, add stock. Cook until thick. Cool. Combine chicken, rice, pimiento, cheese, and cooled sauce. Chill several hours or overnight. Combine cornflake crumbs and 3 T. butter. Spread on waxed paper 12 x 15. Shape chilled mixture in roll about 10 inches long. Place in center of crumbs and roll until coated. Bake at 350 degrees for 40 minutes. Garnish with pimiento strips if desired. Makes eight generous servings. Very good.

This seems an appropriate time to say "thank you" to all those who have contributed recipes and material for this column. Your support is appreciated. Just Sunday, a friend laughingly told me she thought of me the other day after she absent-mindedly drained the prunes instead of the potatoes!

Congratulations to the Louis Zabloudils and Vencil Boudas who jointly observed their wedding anniversary Sunday. The autumn-like temperatures Monday much compared to the couples' wedding 50 years ago. However, the ladies were quick to recall a severe blizzard which hit the area that day — something everyone was pleased to do without this time!

Louis Zabloudils, Vencil Boudas Carry Out 50-Year Tradition With Double Anniversary Celebration at Local Veterans Club

Two anniversary events were celebrated Sunday as Mr. and Mrs. Louis Zabloudil of Ord and Mr. and Mrs. Vencil Bouda of Omaha were honored at an open-house reception.

Fifty years had passed since the two daughters of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joe Valasek were married in a double ceremony performed by Judge Gudmundson at the Valasek family home in the Springdale vicinity — for it was on Nov. 24, 1919, that Emma became the bride of Louis Zabloudil and Mary exchanged marriage vows with Vencil Bouda.

At the Sunday reception, held in the lower level of the Veterans Club, the honorees greeted more than 300 relatives and friends during the afternoon hours of 2 to 5 p.m. At noontime family members — numbering 45 in all — dined together in the club dining room with Sheryl Jones serving the guests.

Registering the Zabloudil guests were their granddaughters, Shirley John of Ord and Jane Zabloudil of Hastings. The Boudas' guest book was cared for by their granddaughters, Mary Lou Bouda and Karen Bouda, both of Omaha.

Meanwhile, another granddaughter of the Zabloudils, Sharell Zabloudil of Hastings, handed out thank-you scrolls.

The beautiful two-tiered cake, frosted white and decorated with gold flowers and white anniversary bells, was cut and served by Mrs. Myrin Young of Chicago, Ill., Mrs. Larry Zabloudil of Kearney, Mrs. George Valasek, and Mrs. Joe Ruzicka of Ord.

Mrs. Will Valasek and Mrs. Frank Mottl, both of Ord, poured coffee; and Mrs. Victor Cook of North Loup and Mrs. Joe Valasek of Ord served punch. Other reception helpers were Misses Joe Bartu, Johnny Valasek, Marvin Setlik, F. G. Pesek, Don Petska, Frank Drudik, and Don Axthelm.

Mrs. Joe John presided at the Zabloudil gift table while Mrs. Clara Krahulik cared for the Bouda gifts.

Mr. and Mrs. Zabloudil and Mr. and Mrs. Bouda are well known couples in this community.

The Zabloudils have lived here all their married life, retiring from the farm in 1962 and living now in Ord proper. They have two children, Ernest Zabloudil of Hastings and Mrs. Wilma John of Ord.

The Boudas, also farmers in this area for a number of years, left Ord in 1941 to make their home in Omaha where Mr. Bouda had employment at the packing plant and as a carpenter until retiring. Their children are William Bouda and Mrs. Mildred Young, both of Omaha.

Other special guests of the day with the honorees' children and spouses were grandchildren Larry Zabloudil of Kearney;

Danny Zabloudil, stationed at Fort Lewis, Wash.; Sharell Zabloudil and Jane Zabloudil, both of Hastings; Shirley John and David John, both of Ord; Myrin Young, stationed at Greck Lakes, Ill.; and Mary Lou Bouda and Karen Bouda of Omaha. David Bouda of Kansas City, Mo., was unable to attend.

Also present was Mr. and Mrs. Bouda's great granddaughter, 1-year-old Angela Young.

Garden Club Befriends Ord Opportunity School

The Valley County Garden Club met at the home of Mrs. Anton Kluna for its Nov. 21 meeting. Fifteen members and two guests — Mrs. Ruby Scott of Fort Lupton, Colo., and Mrs. Leonard Laidington — were present. An election of officers for the coming year was held, with their installation scheduled for December.

Plans for the club's annual Christmas party also were made. A gift exchange for members was planned, and gifts provided for the children of the Opportunity School in Ord.

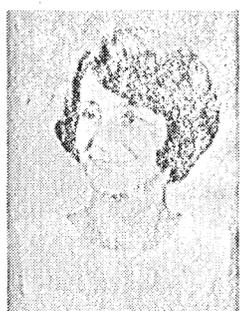

The December meeting will be the Christmas party at the home of Clara Belle King. It will be held on the 18th.

A Family Affair

A Sunday event at the Leonard Edwards home was a family dinner and reunion with Mrs. Valo Edwards of St. Paul — mother, grandmother, and great-grandmother of the clan as a special guest. Others present with Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Edwards and children were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Edwards and children of North Loup, Mr. and Mrs. Merrill Edwards and daughter of Omaha, the Gail Edwards family of Portland, Ore., Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Neeman and children of North Loup, and Mr. and Mrs. Allen Edwards of Ord.

Mrs. Emil Sedlacek returned Wednesday night from Omaha after having consulted a specialist — undergoing tests and treatments for three days. She returned by bus to Grand Island and accompanied shoppers Mr. and Mrs. Emanuel Sedlacek back to Ord.

Becky Kosmicki of Omaha and Danny Zabloudil of Hastings spent Sunday visiting Mrs. Adeline Urbanski.

N.L. Couple's Son To Wed C.I. Girl

Mr. and Mrs. Dwaine Van Horn of Grand Island announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Dwana Van Horn, to Larry Rice, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harwood Rice of North Loup.

Miss Van Horn is a graduate of Grand Island High School and the Grand Island School of Business. She is presently employed by Northwestern Bell Telephone Co.

Her fiancé was graduated from North Loup-Scottia High School and has served with the U. S. Army in Germany. He is presently employed by the Police Department at Ravenna.

Babbies by Bertha
We enjoyed a visit from George's cousin, Mrs. Ralph Winch of Williamstown, Mass., this past week. But we were disappointed that her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Anil Asher, couldn't stop at this time. Molly, the daughter, has been in the hospital since June, and Anil arrived recently from India. They met him in San Francisco, Calif. This is Molly's first trip home since she went to India 12 years ago. Through the years we've had a glimpse of their life in letters. Their ups and downs in that troubled country read like a book. The unrest there seems much closer when it concerns someone in our own family.

Our grandson Tom spent Saturday and Sunday with us while his folks, Kent and Charlene Clement, went to Omaha. He did some hunting, but pheasants are scarce and wary. Tom is a football fan and was pleased with the outcome of the Nebraska-Oklahoma game. We were too. Tom was a recipient of a trophy at the Punt, Pass 'n Kick contest in Ord this fall. He wasn't first, but good enough to be a trophy winner. He may have been disappointed that his Kearney cousins weren't here this week end, but Grandpa was glad to have him as his right-hand boy.

Not long ago my Sabbath School class of juniors greeted me with, "We were all here last week except you." To help me to break the good record, I prefer going to church rather than to the dentist. This was the first week in our attendance contest.
