

Boys' Quick Thinking Saves Youth From Drowning

Three Youths—Crist, Staab and Kremer Save Life of Robert Hoberg Friday

ARCADIA — The Eagle Patrol of Boy Scout Troop 160 can all raise their heads a little higher after last week. Three of their members are credited with saving the life of a fourth member of the troop after a dramatic confrontation late Friday afternoon with the Middle Loup River that runs past here.

JEFF CRIST

Several in a park clean-up and later had helped to mow the lawn when it was decided that it was time for some relaxation and fun. Several decided to go swimming and this was when tragedy nearly took its toll.

SAW TUBE

The youths were swimming when suddenly the boys spotted an inner-tube floating down the river unattended. After making a quick count of noses they discovered that one of the youths, Hoberg, was missing. The boys then began a search of the area.

According to Crist, he waded down the river about ten to 15 yards when he spotted Hoberg. He was wearing bright orange trunks which helped Crist to spot the youth. Hoberg was reportedly "floating with his face down with only his seat near the surface of the water."

As soon as Crist spotted his companion, he began to try to pull the boy out of the water, and in doing so yelled for help. At this point Kremer arrived on the scene and helped tow the unconscious Hoberg to shore.

NOT BREATHING

According to both Crist and Kremer, Hoberg was not breathing at that time and his lips were purple. There was no sign of life. When the boys were just

BILL STAAB

Hoberg's eyes had hemorrhaged which is one of the last signs of life in drowning victims. Had he been in the water just a few seconds more he undoubtedly would have died.

SCOUT MASTER PROUD

According to Scout Master Don Sell, he is extremely proud of the quick way in which the three youths responded. He said the boys had learned the emergency techniques needed to save Hoberg's life in a rescue course held in Arcadia some two or three years ago. Staab also said he had a lesson in mouth-to-mouth resuscitation in Biology class just before school was out which helped him a great deal.

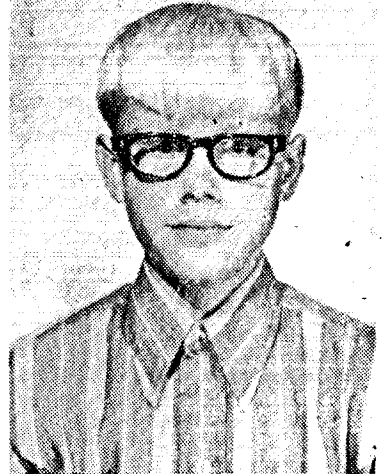

He said the teacher was Miss Mary Peters, and he gives the course a great deal of credit for him knowing what to do. Sell indicated that he is going to contact proper officials to try and get an official Boy Scout recognition for what they did.

a few yards from the shore, Staab arrived on the scene because he heard "lots of yelling" and sized up the situation and the way to shore. He immediately began to apply mouth-to-mouth resuscitation as Kremer ran to call the Arcadia Rescue Unit. Within five minutes the Arcadia unit was on the scene and at this point Jim Trotter, an Arcadia fireman, took over the mouth-to-mouth resuscitation work. The boy reportedly "coughed up water all the way to the Valley County Hospital in Ord.

According to one spokesman,

ROBERT HOBERG

Jeff Crist, 13, son of Mrs. Elgin Crist; Bill Staab, 15, son of Mr. and Mrs. Max Staab; and Dennis Kremer, 13, son of Mr. and Mrs. Chuck Kremer are credited with saving the life of 13-year-old Robert Hoberg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Brock. All the youths are members of Troop 160 and attend school in the Arcadia Public School System.

The boys, along with other members of the Arcadia Boy Scout unit and several other interested area youths had partic-

Construction to Begin on New Roads Building

Bids are expected to be let in July for the new Highway Department headquarters that will be located in Ord. The announcement came from State Senator Rudolph Kokes recently. According to Sen. Kokes the borings have been made and it is expected that construction will begin within two weeks after the bids are let. The building will be located at the Valley County Fair grounds.

It is hoped that the building will have a roof on it by November so that construction work can continue through the winter.

Sen. Kokes also announced that 8.8 miles of Highway 11 around the Scotia Chalk Mines will be rebuilt this summer. Bids will be let on the work in June. Highway 11 is expected to be rebuilt in spurts. Current rebuilding work for the highway will take care of areas that road beds do not have to be changed.

"I REALLY TAUGHT HIM EVERYTHING HE KNOWS" — So might Mrs. Robert Curtright (seated) be saying to Mrs. Dale Holbien, Lexington at the annual Ord Jaycees Banquet held Thursday night. Curtright, standing behind Mrs. Curtright, was honored at the banquet for being the Jaycees' Outstanding Educator in Nebraska. Standing in the center is Mr. Holbien who is serving as a National Director for the Jaycees.

Light Schedule In District Courthouse

Only four cases have been brought before the District Court of Valley County since March according to Mrs. Thelma Dultz, Clerk of the District Court. In action before the court the following defendants have been named in recent court action: Goodsell Brothers Construction Co. and Merchants Mutual Bonding; Dr. Wayne Zlomke; Lanny and Diana Maxson and Harry Zulkoski.

In the case against Goodsell Brothers the bonding company, ARMCO Steel Company is seeking a money judgment of $13,796.66. According to the ARMCO Company, Goodsell Construction has owed the money since Sept. 8, 1971. It is also pointed out that a bond was issued to secure the payment of the money from Goodsell's Construction of all just claims to all laborers and mechanics for labor that had been performed and for the payment of material and equipment rental which was actually used or rented in performing the contract.

The plaintiff alleges that the defendant has "wholly failed to perform said agreement on his part, and has wholly neglected and refused to pay said sum or any part of the same. Interest on the amount is also being sought.

KANSAS-NEBRASKA VS. ZLOMKE
Dr. Wayne Zlomke is a defendant in a suit brought forth by Kansas-Nebraska Natural Gas Company. KNGG alleges that on August 23, 1971 at approximately midnight, the defendant was operating a tractor towing a rotary mower on property described as the Northwest Quarter of Section 28, Township 19 North, Range 14 West in Valley County and "did negligently and with disregard to plaintiff's property drive against a three inch steel pipeline."

Kansas-Nebraska says the defendant was negligent for failing to observe the pipelines located above the ground in a position enabling good observation; that he was operating a tractor-driven rotary mower at a time and under conditions as to hazard the Plaintiff's pipeline; and in failing to operate the tractor in a careful and prudent manner.

Kansas-Nebraska is requesting a total of $80.30 plus court costs.

FOUR SEEKING MONEY
In the case of Lanny and Diana Maxson, the Credit Bureau of Broken Bow is seeking judgment on behalf of four plaintiffs. According to the Court brief the action is being taken on behalf of First National Bank, Ord in the amount of $782.02 with interest at nine percent per annum from April 2, 1971. In addition the Nebraska Central Telephone Co. has turned over to the Credit Bureau a bill of $98.26 to be collected with interest at six percent per annum from April 1, 1972. A third account turned over to the Credit Bureau for collection from the Arcadia couple totals $172.12 with interest at six percent per annum from April 30, 1972. That account was from Preferred Advertising, Inc. The final account to be collected from the couple is from Missouri Valley Machinery Co. in the amount of $595.76, with interest at six percent per annum from April 30, 1972.

DIVORCE
In another case before the District Court, Martina Zulkoski is suing for divorce from her husband, Harry Zulkoski. She charges mental and physical cruelty and says she is unable to work and is seeking support for herself and one minor child. She is also requesting that she have the family home as "the home was given to the plaintiff by her father and was not acquired by the joint efforts of the parties."

Mrs. Skoil Is Ak-Sar-Ben Good Neighbor
Mrs. Phyllis Skoil, Sargent, is one of 76 Nebraskans and three from Western Iowa who have been named recipients of Ak-Sar-Ben's annual Good Neighbor Awards for their unselfish and neighborly deeds.

The winners were nominated by their friends and neighbors through the Ak-Sar-Ben Ambassadors. They will receive a framed Ak-Sar-Ben Good Neighbor citation and pin.

Mrs. Skoil was cited for providing help to both the young and old.

Schroeder Addresses Memorial Day Crowd

Taps Echo Through Ord Cemetery In Memoriam

The drums beat, the bugles played, flags fluttered at half mast from flag poles throughout the community, and in the end all that could be heard was the melody ran through the Ord City Cemetery. Ord honored its dead on Monday, May 29, 1972. The ceremonies were brief but tears sprang to the eyes of many in the scattered crowd that came to honor loved ones that fell on the battlefields and in struggling with the conflicts and problems of living in modern day America.

On hand at the City Cemetery was the Ord High School marching band, various units of the American Legion, VFW and auxiliaries, members of the new media and the scattered crowds gathered quietly on hill sides and in small groups listening to the Rev. J. H. Schroeder give the annual Memorial Day message.

"Memorial Day is consecrated to the soldiers and is dedicated to patriotism," began the Rev. Schroeder. "On this day we assemble to pay tribute to the memories of our fallen comrades with flowers to show our gratitude and honor for their service."

ACROSS THIS LAND

"All across this land of the free and home of the brave, modern day patriots are assembling together to renew their devotion and commitment to the cause for which these patriots died. The fruits of their victories are the God given blessings of Liberty. This is a sacred heritage purchased by their valor and sealed with their blood. History is their reward, battlefields testify of their courage."

Schroeder also said, "There are those in our land today who say, 'Why worry, we've always been free?' We will remain free. Might I remind them that Liberty is one thing you cannot have unless you give it to others. Freedom is not free... it was paid for by thousands of soldiers giving their lives and backed up by millions of prayers back home. A tomorrow that's worth living is the result of men willing to meet a crisis today. And whether we like to admit it or not, America is facing a crisis."

He added, "With riots and revolution, assassinations and murders, no-win wars and sell outs at the conference table — desecration of the flag and draft card burners. There are 60,000 deserters in Canada and wanting amnesty for their cowardly actions."

"The very foundations of our country are being shaken. I fear for our nation when we have presidential candidates who are running on a platform for a continued withdrawal from Vietnam and are for the granting of amnesty to traitors. I say let's either win the war in Vietnam or else get out. Regardless, let's play a ring around the poise. At the present rate we will have to change the song, 'When Johnny Comes Marching Home' to 'When Johnny Comes Crawling Home!'"

LOOK TO THE FUTURE
As we look to the future, may we clearly understand why we are here. We are here to pay our respect and honor to the dead — our loved ones and friends. From the first soldier to fall mortally wounded in the Revolutionary War to that patriot who has just fallen today in Vietnam — perhaps even while we were assembled here.

"But why have they willingly laid down their lives? It was in fear that they proudly answered their country's call to arms. But they've answered that call willingly to protect our common heritage, to preserve our cherished

Kansas City OEO Officers Critical of Loup City CAP

(EDITOR'S NOTE — The following news release was sent "Air Mail" to THE ORD QUIZ over the Memorial Day weekend. The fact that it was sent to us Air Mail leaves little doubt in our minds that this publication is the "local Nebraska newspaper" mentioned in the second paragraph. If our readers will remember, we published an editorial entitled "You've Got to be Kidding" in which we shared with the public the views of Mr. Ralph Greger, an OEO Field Representative. In his letter he stated he could see no value of the results of a federal audit of the Loup City Community Action program being published and that he was satisfied with the progress that the Loup City office and its director, George Dworak had made up to this point. The following news release is a statement from the Kansas City OEO office that would seem to aim "Mr. Greger's statements.")

The Regional Office of Economic Opportunity in Kansas City today announced a letter had been sent to the director of Central Nebraska Community Action Agency, headquartered at Loup City, to clarify a May 3 letter sent to the Loup City Office. The OEO field representative which commented on recent audits of the Loup City CAP program and its efforts to correct deficiencies discovered by the audits.

The May 3 letter from Ralph Greger, OEO field representative, to George Dworak, director of the Loup City office, received attention from a local Nebraska newspaper.

Today's letter from OEO is from Dean Lupkey, Chief of Field

Operations of OEO Region VII, to Dworak. It states:

"On May 3, 1972, Mr. Ralph Greger, a Field Representative in the Operations Division, wrote you concerning his views on the audit discrepancies in your agency. While Mr. Greger's letter may have been well-intended, his opinions were certainly his own and not the official position of the Regional Office of OEO. The office would certainly not condone the failure of your agency to effect changes in your fiscal practices when the problems were pointed out by our auditors in November of 1970 and again by GAO nearly a year later.

"We were informed that corrective measures had been taken by your agency in April of 1971 and yet the visit by the General Accounting Office revealed that while procedures for correcting the fiscal problems had been corrected, they were not implemented in some cases or not followed in others. This is my reason for citing Mr. Greger's letter as misleading and not expressing the true position of OEO.

"We do feel that you have made some progress but at the same time we do not consider all the difficulties resolved. For this reason, Mr. Phil Whitaker, an Accountant Specialist in the Operations Division, will continue to make periodic visits to verify your fiscal procedures and the progress you are making.

"As an agency of the Federal Government, we have a responsibility to make certain that public monies are handled in a proper manner. We intend to do just that, and if the letter from Mr. Greger has created any other opinion, I hope this letter will clarify the matter."

Card of Thanks
Our Mother to her home has gone
And we who loved her so
Must bear the cross with broken hearts
For God is just, we know,
A vacant chair is all we see,
Her voice once loved, is stilled,
But, Oh! her sufferings
Now are o'er
And God, we know, so willed,
We'll miss you Mother, every day,
You, whom we all loved so,
But we submit to him above
And say, "Thy will be done."

Card of Thanks
I wish to thank all of my relatives and friends for all the cards, flowers, gifts, visits during my stay at Good Samaritan Hospital and since my return home.

CAROL'S CORNER

Wider Seats Noted . . . Women have claimed another record in their fight for female supremacy.

A recent study of body dimensions shows that women have an average seat width of 14.4 inches to the mere 14 inches recorded by the average man. This was one of the few body measurements in which women exceeded men — a nationwide probability sample of 7,710 persons from ages 18 to 79 showed.

Man reaches his maximum seat breadth in the ages of 25 to 34. Women expand later in life reaching their maximum between the ages of 45 to 54.

Such statistics are collected and used by the American Seating Company of Grand Rapids, Mich., in its efforts to stay abreast of changes in the human shape.

And did you know — the 17 or 18 inch-wide theater seat used 25 years ago is now obsolete and most auditoriums are now using seats which are 20, 21 or 22 inches wide!

Shopping Shenanigans . . . Two ladies, pushing loaded grocery carts, collided at one of the supermarket's narrow lanes.

"You fool!" scowled one. "Watch where you're going!" "Sorry," said the other.

"Well, then, back up. I never back up my shopping cart for a fool."

And the other smiled her reply. "I always do."

Ready, Get Set, Bones in Action . . . Every organization is made up of people with bones. Classify yourself:

There are wishbones who spend all their time wishing somebody else will do what needs to be done.

There are jawbones who do all the talking, but very little else.

There are knucklebones who knock everything that everybody else tries to do.

And there are the backbones who get under the load and do the work!

In which bone category are you?

COFFEE CUP PHILOSOPHY: If you must have a cluttered mind, fill it with facts!

Rev. Clarence Campbell solemnized the double ring ceremony after a musicale of bridal airs given by Mrs. Shirley Karre and Mrs. Sue Rassaert of Holdrege sang "Love Can Make You Happy," "The Wedding Prayer" and "We've Only Just Begun."

Mr. Kruml escorted his daughter to the altar. For her wedding the bride wore a gown made by her mother, of satin polyester crepe and Alencon lace sparkled with hand-sewn seed pearls. Fashioned on Empire lines, the gown featured full Camelot sleeves accented by wide lace, fastened at the wrist with tiny pearl buttons. Tear-drop pearls framed the close-fitting high neckline. The floor-length A-line skirt edged in lace was accented by a detachable sweep train. Her veil of imported English silk, edged in lace and seed pearls, fell gracefully to chapel length. It was held by a soft flower petal and pearl-accented headpiece. A large white spider mum encircled by white and pink miniature carnations, purple statice and baby's breath made up her bridal bouquet.

Matron of honor for her sister's wedding was Diane Zwick of Grand Island. Bridesmaids were Nancy Gustafson, Lyons, Mary Vanis, Seward, and Linda Kunz, Lincoln.

The four attendants wore pink and lavender flared spring floral gowns of Empire style with scoop neck and full wrist-length sleeves. They wore purple velvet neck chokers adorned with seed pearls which the bride's mother made, and in their hair were cascading ribbon streamers ending in flower blossoms. Each carried a pink candle in a glass goblet framed with pink mini carnations, purple statice and ribbon shower.

Best man for his brother was Larry Christensen, Minneapolis, Minn. Other attendants were Don Timm, Lyons, John Rusnogle, Seward and Gary Vodehnal, Ord. John Kruml, Ord, brother of the bride was head usher. He was assisted by Don Anthony, Lexington, and Norm Newhouse, Lincoln. ### Computer to Hand Out Hunting Permits

Big-game permits in Nebraska will be issued by computer this year, which should mean faster delivery of the licenses and better control over the whole process, according to the Game and Parks Commission.

As in past years, applications and fees will still be sent to the Game and Parks Commission. Only changes in procedure that will concern hunters are new application dates and the need to include the special security numbers on the forms.

New application blanks, with space for the Social Security numbers, have been printed and distributed. However, many of the old forms without these permit vendors. Applicant using old forms should enter their Social Security number in the left-hand margin.

Information on the forms will be transmitted to the central location at the Game and Parks Commission office to computers at the State Department of Administrative Services. The computers will screen the applications and prepare the permits for issuance.

Annual application periods for residents only are June 1 through 15 for antelope, July 1 through 15 for deer, and September 1 through 15 for wild turkey.

For the first time, 14-year-olds will be allowed to hunt deer and wild turkey when accompanied by a licensed adult, who is at least 21 years old. However, they will not be able to apply for a rifle-antelope permit this year, since legislation enabling the Commission to issue them big-game permits does not become effective until after the antelope application period. For archery-antelope, the 14-year olds will be eligible provided they apply after July.

Southern Corn Leaf Blight Still a Problem

Plant pathologists urge Nebraska farmers to keep a watchful eye on cornfields this year, as Southern Corn Leaf Blight is probably still here. University of Nebraska Extension plant pathologist Dr. David Wysong says the fungus that causes the blight is present in the state and has probably survived the winter in corn debris infected last year.

Another factor favoring the reappearance of SCLB this season is the likely recurrence of weather conducive to its development, as has occurred the past two years. A combination of temperature, humidity, and wind conditions stimulating development of the disease may last for only a short time, but long enough to trigger an outbreak, Wysong said.

A third factor Dr. Wysong cites which influences the extent of SCLB appearance is the susceptibility of the host plant. The kind of seed planted determines the susceptibility, with "N" cytoplasm varieties generally being more resistant to infection than the "T" cytoplasm types.

Dr. Wysong comments that, "all three factors interact to determine the severity of the disease. Two out of the three conditions are somewhat satisfied already. The third is a decision made by the farmer when he buys seed."

"Although chances of infection are greater with the 'T' and Wysong adds, "growers should keep an eye out either way. They should check their fields, and check them early." He strongly supports the advice given by other plant pathologists of "getting out of the pickup truck and walking the cornfields every week."

Drowning . . .

Mrs. Bill Brock, mother of the Hoberg youth, said she is "thankful the boys knew enough and had enough experience to save her boy." She also said she hoped this would get a lot of publicity because she doesn't feel that enough is said about the good things that youths do today.

According to her, Robert Hoberg told her that he had made an effort to swim to the other side of the bridge and he "bumped his head" on the bridge which was the last he remembered until waking in the hospital. Hoberg was released from the Valley County Hospital Sunday afternoon.

An irony in the event is the fact the Brock family lived in a house right on the shore of the river and recently moved. Mrs. Brock said when they moved they thought they were getting away from the dangers of the river.

Pokraka will be responsible for financial administration in the division's merchant and business forms business units.

Pokraka began his Mead career in 1966 at the Mead Papers. After four years in systems analysis, he became Accounting Manager there in 1970. The following year he moved to the Papers division in Dayton. He received his accounting degree from Creighton University, Omaha, Nebraska in 1963.

Pokraka is a native of North Loup and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ign Pokraka.

Campaign Expenses High in 41st Race

The 41st Legislative District, which drew seven candidates to succeed retiring Sen. Rudolf Kokes in the primary election balloting, also resulted in the highest total campaign expenditures. That was disclosed last week in an examination of spending reported to Secretary of State Allen Beermann. Deadline for filing reports is Friday.

The Rev. J. H. Schroeder, Ord, who finished second in the primary, said he spent $2,028 while winner Dennis L. Rasmussen, Scotia reported spending of $630. Fred W. Frost, Wolbach, reported he spent $1,513, and Arthur F. Shotkoski, Arcadia, spent $537. Spending under $500 were Mike Berni, Greeley and John R. Sullivan, Ord. No report was yet available from William Mayne, Scotia.

Farmers Urged To Beware of Corn Borers

"Fall (1971) corn borer population counts in central, south and east crop districts of the state were higher than normal, which could warrant a problem this year if conditions are right," Dr. David Keith, University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension Survey Entomologist said this week.

A report from Hall County noted that in 12 planted fields surveyed, overwintering borers averaged 5,025 per acre, 3.35 times the normal of 1,493.5 per acre, based on 13 years of data compiled by Dr. Roscoe E. Hill. These remaining borers are the remnants of around 17,000 borers per acre noted last fall before winter mortality. Figures registered 97 per cent. The deciding factor determining the extent of first generation corn borer infestation will be the weather, said Dr. Keith. Temperatures somewhat warmer than the average with average rainfall will favor corn borer development. However, hard-driving rains or generally cool, wet conditions and hot, dry winds will reduce the possibility of borer infestation.

Weather factors affect the moths' activity and their ability to lay eggs, and also the survival of the eggs and young borers, Keith said. Diseases and predators will also take their toll of the newly-hatched corn borers, the entomologist commented.

Dr. Keith said entomologists cannot collect any meaningful data on corn borer development until June, when they will inspect the young plants and determine the degree of infestation. "At that time we can assess the need for any borer control. If we find 50 per cent or more of the plants showing shot-holes in the whorls, we will recommend controls. Until then the best strategy is to wait and keep a close watch on the early-planted corn."

City Dads Vote Money To Parks

The City Council at their Friday afternoon meeting voted to take $7,000 from the Peter Mortenson Fund to upgrade and improve the city's recreation facilities. The Council has had assurance from the City Park Board that the Federal government will match the funds on a dollar to dollar ratio.

According to Mayor Ole Ruzicka, the money will be used to upgrade the City Park and to build and improve tennis courts.

An amendment was voted down that would have provided an additional $1,000 for park improvements at the site of the old Ord Grade School. As yet the City and the School Board still have not agreed on the City's purchase of the land. For this reason the amendment was voted down.

Rains Make Farmers Empty Waste Systems

Recent rains may force livestock farms with waste management facilities to face up to the need of emptying holding ponds of waste systems, according to E. A. Olson, Extension agricultural engineer at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

The holding pond of the livestock waste system is the second pond, which is intended to store liquid runoff that flows from the settling or debris basin. The purpose of the holding pond is to store these runoff liquids for a period of two to three weeks before they are emptied and the liquid distributed on adjacent cropland, Olson emphasized. Since the liquid will be high in nitrates the excess should not be allowed to flow into adjacent streams.

Failure to empty the holding pond can create several problems, Olson said. First, if it is not emptied there may not be enough capacity to store feedlot runoff from future rains, which could cause the pond to overflow.

Second, the holding pond is designed to be pumped out, Olson stated. In many cases, lagoons of inadequate capacity create odor problems since the bacterial action becomes anaerobic when the lagoon is overloaded.

When holding ponds are not emptied — and with hot weather coming on — some of the solids in suspension will settle to the bottom of the pond. When these solids settle, odor may be noticeable for a short period because of the added solids load in the bottom of the holding pond. These odors may last for a few days. However, to overcome the possibilities of odor problems, Olson recommended emptying holding ponds often.

Equipment for emptying and spreading holding pond liquids have been included in the waste management plans prepared by Soil Conservation Service and consulting engineers. Livestock men who have further questions should contact their local SCS office, Olson concluded.

Ord Cheese Official Comments on NU Statement

Suelter Feels Milking Provides "Steady Income"

Nebraska farmers have greatly increased their gross return from the marketing of milk and cream with the increase being due in large part, to a change from the marketing of farm separated cream to the marketing of whole milk. The report on this was recently released from the University of Nebraska, Lincoln College of Agriculture.

Harold Suelter, a new owner and manager of the Ord Cheese Company who himself is involved daily in the purchasing of milk, agrees with the above statement. He noted that a great deal of Grade "A" milk today is being "diverted" back to cheese companies. He said in this day in age, not all Grade "A" milk is being used for milk.

Suelter feels very strongly that there is still a place for the milk producing farmer in agriculture.

In fact, Suelter maintains that it would be "difficult" for a young farmer to start into farming without having some cattle to milk. He said this is important so that a new farmer can have "a good stable source of income."

He noted that many long time farmers are beginning to go back to milking operations for this same reason.

Suelter also noted that "there is a greater demand for milk" today.

Writing in "Cornhusker Economics," a University of Nebraska Department of Agricultural Economics publication, Prof. T. A. Evans, Extension economist (food marketing), notes that Nebraska farmers received $3.09 per cwt. in 1971, an increase of 75 per cent over the $2.90 received in 1962.

Prof. Evans points out that this marks the ninth consecutive year of increased cash receipts from combined marketings of milk and cream in Nebraska, as well as in the United States.

This increase in gross cash receipts has come about in spite of a decrease in the amount of milk and cream marketed. In Nebraska the decrease during the 1962-71 period was nearly 13 per cent.

Nationally the average returns increase was 45 per cent and the production decline about three per cent.

Nebraska milk producers almost completely abandoned the practice of marketing farm-separated cream in the 1962-71 period, Prof. Evans reports.

During 1962 less than half (47 per cent) of the Nebraska supply was marketed as whole milk but during 1971 more than 90 per cent of the milk was marked in this way.

In 1962 Nebraska producers received about $18.5 million from the sale of farm-separated cream. In 1971 this had dwindled to about $3.6 million.

In 1971 about 80 per cent of the farm-separated cream was marketed in the seven West North Central states, with Nebraska ranking third, behind North Dakota and Iowa, in the amount marketed.

Another shift in milk marketing practice is the trend toward marketing "fluid" grade or Grade A milk. This is milk that is approved by regulatory agencies for bottling and use in fluid products such as cream, half and half, skim, etc.

The balance of the milk marketed is ordinarily called "manufacturing" grade and is used in butter, milk powder, cheese, etc.

In 1971, the states with the highest percentage of manufacturing grade milk were South Dakota (83 per cent), Idaho (72 per cent), Minnesota (67 per cent), Iowa (66 per cent), North Dakota (64 per cent) and Nebraska (54 per cent).

Nebraska's dairy industry is changing in line with altering consumer preferences. Until recently Nebraska was one of the nation's top four butter producing states. However, butter consumption declined and cheese plants gained a foothold. In a short time the production of cheese became an important part of Nebraska's dairy industry.

"Today Nebraska's dairy industry bears little resemblance to the industry even a decade ago," Prof. Evans said. A decline in production figures has led some to believe that dairying is a dying enterprise in Nebraska but this is "definitely not true," according to Prof. Evans.

"When you make a distinction between 'milking cows' and 'dairying,' it is quite evident that the dairy industry in Nebraska has never been stronger," he said.

Field Day Will Be June 10th

Four Nebraska Junior Livestock organizations are scheduling annual field days starting June 10.

Kicking off the four events will be the annual Nebraska Junior Hereford Association Field Day on June 10. This will be held at the Harold Melcher Ranch, near Orchard, Nebraska. The Association members have a judging contest planned with divisions for Juniors (4-H and FFA members) as well as for men and women. A registered hereford heifer will be awarded to the top Junior judge in the competition.

The Nebraska Junior Short-horn Association Annual Progress Show is open to 4-H and FFA members as well as Junior Short-horn members. A showmanship contest will precede the regular show. There will not be a judging contest with this event.

The Junior Charolais members are holding their progress show and judging contest on June 12-13. This will be at the fairgrounds in Lexington. The show and judging contest is open to all 4-H and FFA members. The judging contest will be held on the 13th.

The last of the four events is the Junior Angus Field Day and Judging Contest on June 24. This will be held at the S and W Angus Ranch near Theford. The judging contest begins at 10:00 a.m. There will be divisions for men, women and juniors.

'71 Arcadia Grad To Serve in Korea

Airman Arnold W. Urban, son of Mrs. Pauline Urban of R.R. 1, Arcadia, Neb., has graduated at Lowry AFB, Colo., from the U.S. Air Force weapons mechanic course conducted by the Air Training Command.

The airman, who was trained to load and inspect the weapons used in Air Force fighter aircraft, is being assigned to Osan AB, Republic of Korea, for duty with a unit of the Pacific Air Forces, headquarters for air operations in Southeast Asia, the Far East and the Pacific area.

Airman Urban is a 1971 graduate of Arcadia Public School.

New Holland, the farm equipment division of Sperry Rand, reports that Canadian acreage of tame hay has increased by nearly 30-percent over the past three decades.

There is no real solution to annual weed control except persistent cultivation and herbicide application each year. Annual weeds present a tough problem.

Each year we receive numerous inquiries as to whether or not fruit and vegetables are suitable for use after being exposed to 2,4-D either from drift or accidental spraying.

2,4-D is of low toxicity to humans and most other warm blooded animals. There should be no harmful effects from using fruits and vegetables that have been exposed to 2,4-D and other closely related products.

Only by preventing all the plants from producing seeds for several years you can reduce the problem from these weeds.

A check of musk thistles in several locations in the county this past week reveals that stalks are starting to elongate. They will be blooming in a week or two.

Now's the best stage in their growth from the tree on a web. We call them cankerworms. These are hungry little fellows. They can strip a tree pretty fast.

We recommend spraying with sevin, diazinon or malathion. Mathoxychlor is also recommended if you can get it. Follow the directions on the label.

Green Thumb Tip: We've had a deluge of calls from farmers and home owners concerned about the little green worm eating the leaves from their trees. These are about an inch long. They are sometimes referred to as inch worms because of their peculiar way of moving. They sometimes hang down from the tree on a web. We call them cankerworms. These are hungry little fellows. ## Valley County DHIA Group Meets June 27

The Valley DHIA (Dairy Herd Improvement Association) with membership in Sherman, Greeley, Garfield and Valley Counties, in cooperation with the Valley County Extension Service are planning a Barn Meeting. According to County Agent, John Schade, this meeting will be held on Tuesday, June 27th at the Rodney Sperling Dairy Farm at North Loup, Nebraska. The Sperling dairy is located 4 1/2 miles southeast of North Loup on the Greeley County line. The meeting starts at 7:30 in the evening.

County Agent Schade extends an invitation to all dairymen from Valley and surrounding counties. Dairymen attending will arrive at the Sperling farm just after Mr. Sperling finishes his evening milking. They will have an opportunity to observe the sanitation and maintenance practices as well as to discuss the feeding and breeding practices followed by Mr. Sperling.

Some thing is planned for the youth. Mr. Schade went on to say. We have invited Mr. Phil Cole, Extension Dairyman from the University of Nebraska, to discuss dairy cattle judging and to present a type demonstration. This should be of particular interest to the 4-H and FFA members, Schade commented.

Also of interest to the youth will be the dairy fitting and showing demonstration. Duane Kovarik, a top dairy showman, will be leading the discussion on this topic. Duane will demonstrate the actual steps of grooming and showing a dairy animal.

All 4-H club members, leaders and interested dairymen are urged to attend this informative and educational meeting. Schade said. Refreshments will be served. The Valley DHIA members are asking those attending to bring along finger food. A drink will be furnished.

According to the U.S. Department of Agriculture, 196 farmers in the Third Congressional District of Nebraska received farm payments of $15,000 or more in 1971. Congressman Dave Martin reported this week.

The figures, provided by the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, represent all payments under the ASCS and Great Plains programs for the year.

Martin said that 21 of the third district's 61 counties had no farmers with farm program payments of $15,000 or more. The 196 with payments of $15,000 or higher came from 40 counties, and received a total of $4,114,326 under the program in 1971.

Payments to farmers in the central area of the third district, as reported by the Agriculture Department, include:

CUSTER - Four, $70,878; Reuben R. Squier, $18,537; Melvin Marsh, $18,133; Donald J. Coslor, $17,565; Pirnie Brothers Cattle Co., $16,643.

GREELEY - Two, $43,833; James H. Dugan, $24,892; Marvin W. Dugan, $18,941.

According to the Agriculture Department, there were no farm payments in excess of $15,000 during 1971 in Garfield, Howard, Loup, Sherman, Valley or Wheeler Counties.

KERNELS & HUSKS

Valley County Agent

With the recent rains followed by warm days we had better be on the lookout for armyworms. The moths have been active for the past several weeks. They lay eggs in rank growth of small grain and grasses. Tall growing patches of bromegrass are very attractive for egg laying.

We could have trouble in three to four weeks. If infestations develop spray with sevin, diazinon or malathion if you're using a ground rig. Use parathion if you're putting it on by aircraft.

A count of over-wintering corn borer larva in an adjacent county reveals this years population up 3.85 times over the average of the past 13 years. So you'd better be on the lookout for first brood borers. These will usually be found in early planted corn. First brood larva will be hatching about the last of June. All indications point to a heavy infestation.

2,4-D is of low toxicity to humans and most other warm blooded animals. There should be no harmful effects from using fruits and vegetables that have been exposed to 2,4-D and other closely related products.

Only by preventing all the plants from producing seeds for several years you can reduce the problem from these weeds.

A check of musk thistles in several locations in the county this past week reveals that stalks are starting to elongate. They will be blooming in a week or two.

Fun and Tragedy

Robert Hoberg is a lucky young man. Thanks to the quick thinking of three Arcadia youngsters, Hoberg was literally "snatched out of the jaws of death". Arcadia Scout Master Don Sell has indicated that he is going to see to it that everything possible is done to assure official Boy Scout recognition for Jeff Crist, Dennis Kremer and Bill Staab, action that this writer would certainly say is merited.

Hoberg was a near victim of a common summer problem — drowning. Ord lost two young people by drowning last summer and it is hoped that Hoberg's narrow escape will take care of the summer heartaches for 1972. We are fearful, however, that it won't.

Perhaps some tips on summer swimming for youngsters should be offered.

One of the problems that Crist had in rescuing Hoberg was that other kids thought they were "just fooling around." Perhaps one of the first rules of thumb should be never to pretend to be drowning for fun. Swimming, while fun, is a serious business. If you see a situation such as this, investigate even if you might think the other parties are kidding. It is better to be fooled than wrong.

Wear bright swimming outfits when swimming. Another factor that seemed to help save Hoberg's life is the fact that he was wearing bright orange trunks at the time of the mishap. This made him easy to spot when he did become missing. Swim in groups, and keep track of each other. Parents should never let a child go swimming with a group of children unless they know beyond a doubt that at least one other child in the group besides their own child is a qualified swimmer.

Try to learn mouth-to-mouth resuscitation. It would seem that Arcadia High School Biology teacher Mary Peters should be given credit for helping to save young Hoberg's life despite the fact she was not on the scene. She taught her students the technique and young Staab, who administered the mouth-to-mouth resuscitation indicates that this class helped him to save Hoberg's life. You can never tell when you may need it.

Last but not least, use common sense. Don't gamble on your life, or on the life of others. Life is too short for gambles as it is. — RON

The Way to Peace Is Morality

David Lawrence, venerable dean of American journalism and editor of U. S. News & World Report, in his own inimitable and fearless manner has pointed the way to peace:

"The peoples in the countries which have the major military power can do a great deal to bring about peace. In Red China and the Soviet Union, the citizens do not have the freedom which prevails in democracies. But if the peace of the world depends upon the liberation of the peoples of the Soviet Union and of Red China so they can help to abolish wars, this should become the issue of greatest priority."

It is what we ultimately must do, but we are not even going to think about doing it until vast convulsions of the world have taken their toll. It is precisely the opposite of what we are doing. We are helping in every way to keep the Communist strait jackets on the Soviet and Chinese peoples by dealing with their governments over their heads and in complete indifference to the way in which they are robbed of their freedom.

What Mr. Lawrence is saying is that the way to peace is through morality in internal and external affairs. It is not through Machiavellianism or wishful thinking. Until we can free the peoples of the U.S.S.R. and Red China — and it is something we should ponder — we must base our policies at home and abroad on simple morality, on right as distinguished from wrong. — U.S. Press Association

Did Nixon Ask Peking About Heroin?

In his dealings with Red China it was expected that much of the "dialogue" between President Nixon and dictator Chou En-lai was little more than polite talk. But there is one question Mr. Nixon should have put to the Chinese Communists in plain and simple language: "When are you going to stop heroin production and sales throughout the world, especially to U.S. soldiers in Asia? When are you going to stop smuggling heroin into the United States?"

Almost every month for the last year has been a new report about Red China's role as the world's largest grower, refiner, salesman, shipper and smuggler of deadly heroin-morphine drugs. A recent detailed report by the Institute of International Studies featured an article entitled "Chinese Communist Production and Sale of Narcotics" by Peter Huang. It pointed out the locations of opium farms, refineries and shipping points throughout Asia, and the purity of the different types of heroin produced.

In the November "Issues and Studies," Dr. Stefan Possony updated the Haung report. Possony went even further and explained how Red China is the world's largest producer of opium products.

The various refining processes require a high degree of controlled production and equipment, plus close supervision of the poppy fields, with modern farming techniques. By a systematic analysis of estimated opium production throughout the world and the needs of the known heroin addicts, Possony concludes

Dear Editor, In appreciation to the driver of the yellow vehicle, who swerved to the right into the ditch to avoid hitting my little Plymouth and me.

My car had stalled and I was helpless to move. Traffic was approaching towards me when I heard a huge noise and just to the right of me a truck dove into the ditch, hit the right side and swerved left, again right, before righting itself and proceeding in the ditch for a distance then going up the side grade and going on its way.

A sincere thanks to Mr. Driver for choosing harm to his vehicle and to himself rather than demolish me and mine. The tire marks on the highway proclaim the swift use of brakes. The tire tracks in the ditch show the force of the truck taking the ditch.

A sincere thanks. Helen Horn

Dear Editor, On Monday, May 22, the Lincoln Journal carried a picture of a frog-jumping scene in California. This is an annual fete at the Calaveras County Frog Jumping Jubilee. It should be remembered that granted, it is a traditional and historic fete, isn't it slightly ridiculous for state governors to be participating in this childish contest?

The picture to which I am making reference above was one of Gene Fasano of Fresno, and he was supposedly "hopping" his frog how it is done. Big deal! The frog was also in the jumping position, and it was difficult for one to decide if the frog was doing the jumping for the contest, or if this man was taking its place. At any rate, I should think that adults, would turn this insignificant contest over to children. I am sure most children would not even relate to this kind of play.

According to the article on this same page where the picture appeared, this annual fete belongs to all governors, and they seem to relish with gusto the idea of being No. 1 in this exciting frog game. I thought that with the election of Governor Exon, Nebraska would have a leader who would place more prestige and integrity in his job by omitting the annual frog journey to California. I wonder who pays for these trips and for the "up-keep" of our Nebraska slimy frog.

It appears that all of the governors have a difficult time finding enough serious kind of work in their realm of business. With the salaries they receive, we ought to expect leadership becoming to an official who wins an election through taxpayers' trust and hopes.

Governor Exon's frog came in No. 1. One other frog made a win of $300, and according to the article in the Journal, the $300-frog was not No. 1. The news article did not disclose the amount that was awarded Governor Exon. If the state pays for this childish contest trip and its related expenses, then the prize money should be returned to the state treasury, and he should pay income tax on the initial receipt, and not on the "take-home" portion.

Yours for better State Government, George Ilavinka

The Scott Column

By Paul Scott
Former Resident of Communist Party

Soviet Communist Party Boss Leonid Brezhnev's activities during Dr. Henry Kissinger's visit to Moscow has added new intrigue to the Brezhnev-Kissinger meeting.

From foreign sources inside the Soviet Union, American intelligence authorities have learned that during Kissinger's four day stay at Brezhnev's country house nine miles from Moscow the Soviet leader left his villa to meet with high-ranking Soviet military and defense officials on several occasions.

Most important of these sessions involved more than one hundred of Russia's top military officers, ranging from the Minister of Defense to the Commanders in Chief and the Chiefs of Staff of all branches of the Russian Armed Forces.

The Commanders of all military districts and top political commissars also attended the unprecedented conference with Brezhnev. The last time there was such a gathering of military men in the Kremlin was just before the Seven Day War in the Middle East in 1967.

Whether Kissinger was invited to attend the meeting or met with any of the Soviet military leaders separately is a White House secret. Not even the U.S. Embassy in Moscow knew exactly where the Kissinger-Brezhnev meetings were being held.

What Kissinger reported, if anything, about Brezhnev's activities is known only to President Nixon and his inner-circle of White House advisers. None of Kissinger's reports on his Moscow mission, now circulating in government outside the White House, mentions these Brezhnev meetings with Soviet military leaders.

Kremlin meeting of Soviet military high command apparently centered around what to do about Vietnam and the buildup of U. S. naval and air power in the area.

This U.S. intelligence assessment is based on Soviet military communications intercepted by the National Security Agency (NSA), the government's worldwide monitoring agency, since the Brezhnev-Kissinger meeting.

SECRET SOVIET MESSAGES — These secret messages reveal that the Soviet forces in the Far East have been placed on a special alert for the months of May and June. Orders have gone out to a number of Soviet warships and submarines to move into the Pacific Ocean from other areas of the world.

Another indication of the alert was contained in the general order issued after the Kremlin conference. It quoted Secretary Brezhnev as emphasizing "that all conditions for the fruitful military and political relations" (Continued on page 3)

MIDDLE CLASS AMERICANISM — THE LOSING BATTLE — Part VI - Is There Hope?

For the past several weeks this publication has taken a look at the dilemma of Middle Class America. Some comments that we have received have indicated that a rather bleak picture has been painted. We can only say that we were not the artist of the picture, we only reproduced it as it is.

Middle Class Americanism is a losing battle at the present time. There is certainly no larger group in the nation that has so large a tax bite as do the Middle Class Americans. For instance, a man making $9,000 with a family of three will pay out almost $2,000 in taxes. Many times he will be required to take out loans to pay the taxes and the borrowing trend becomes a vicious cycle.

We studied the high cost of hospital and medical care in the nation. A case was quoted where hospital bills ran in excess of $7,000 for just one day's care for a patient that died in a Detroit hospital. While this example cited may have been higher than most hospital costs it does point to the fact that high medical costs should be of alarm to every citizen. Even the very rich would be broke within a short time paying the $7,000 a day charge of the Detroit hospital.

Now the question has to be asked, is there hope? Can the Middle Class American hope to survive?

At the present rate, the answer would have to be a strong no. Taxes are increasing and until legislators are elected on both the state and national levels that we understand the dilemma of the Middle Class American, they will continue to rise. For years the Middle Class has been the scape goat for more tax funding. It has been no secret for a number of years that the very rich are able to dodge taxes and many of the most wealthy are not even paying as much taxes as the $9,000 a year factory worker or farmer. Gov. Ronald Reagan of California is just one example of this. When he was questioned as to why he did not pay any California income tax one year he told the press to more or less mind their own business. Public outcry, however, reached such a pitch that the following year he did pay income tax. Perhaps public outcry is the only salvation for the Middle Class American. When the Congress, Senate and State Legislators KNOW beyond a doubt that the vast majority of this nation will no longer tolerate high tax structures that are aimed at taking their dollars. This however must come from citizens' groups, churches, the news media, and not just private citizens. It must be done in such numbers that no one will have any doubt as to the feeling being expressed and in such a volume that it will be able to drown out complaints of the very rich that have everything to lose and nothing to gain by a new tax structure.

Many have advocated that a national health insurance program might be of assistance to the poor and to the middle class. On the surface this seems to be a good idea that merits more study. Every American, rich or poor, should be entitled to the best medical attention possible. In failing to provide such standards we are promoting a great injustice. Lastly, the only way that Middle Class America is going to advance is if the Federal government quits discriminating AGAINST them. A few years back businesses were told to hire negroes as much as possible.

Now we are being told that "veterans are to be the first employed". Other minority groups such as Indians are expected to be next in line for the preferential treatment.

The basic problem of the Middle Class seems to be that the Federal government refuses to recognize their importance. Many have suggested that they, and until the Federal government comes to grip with the problem, through a mass publicity campaign waged by the Middle Class, will the status improve.

TEN YEARS AGO Burwell had caught the building fever. Tennis courts, a new courthouse, swimming pool, Dr. Ben Meckel's new clinic and a new law firm were being projected. A 25 bed wing to be added to the present hospital.

Stan Haynes was named the new manager of KK Appliance in Ord replacing Delmer Aldinger who was transferred to Elkhorn.

It was learned that the likely location for the new hospital in Ord might be in the Westridge development area.

Mr. E. W. Gruber, still active at the age of 81, was making rugs as a hobby.

Joe Jirak was a new member of the Ord park board. Pfc. Albert Volk, Jr. was stationed in Korea.

New teachers hired in the Ord school for the next school year included Patty Achen, Norma Volk, Glen Trent, Leola Dahlgren, Gerald Nelson, Mariel Soles, Allan Bellinger and Eleanor Simpson.

THIRTY YEARS AGO The Hugo Players, who had been coming to Ord for so many summers that they were nearly a tradition, were scheduled to be in Ord the first week in June.

A North Loup girl, Donna Manchester, and an Ord boy, Leroy Noll, were honored as the best eighth graders scholastically in Valley County this year.

Gasoline rationing and rubber shortage did not worry Frank Kovarik. He had a new method of delivering cream to the Ord community creamery. A 3 year old pinto saddle horse, Poppy Day sales in Ord hit the high score of $155.09.

FORTY YEARS AGO Ord's oldest store, the Milford Store was sold to C. N. Leonard of Kearney.

For the first time in at least 25 years and probably longer, men of Ord bought shaves for 10 cents each and those who wanted their hair cut got the chore done for just 20 cents. The reason — a barber shop war.

Grasshoppers, three weeks ago considered a serious menace to Valley County's crop prospects, had been discouraged by continued heavy rain fall.

that there has to be one major industrial base for the production of the very pure heroin which has appeared throughout Asia in the last few years.

The heroin that is addicting our men in Vietnam is sold very cheaply on the streets, yet it is 96-100 pure, a purity that is impossible to achieve in the isolated hills of Burma, Thailand or Laos.

The American public is being deliberately misled on the heroin problem because we have been blaming the wrong people. Turkey has cut her production heavily, and the amounts grown by the tribal groups in Asia are small and of low purity. Yet not one high American official will even mention Red China as the source of the world's illicit narcotics, for fear of "offending" the Communists."

Our men are being deliberately turned into addicts in Asia, and our youth in America are being destroyed through addiction. President Nixon should have been firm in demanding of the Chinese Communists: "When are you going to stop your production of narcotics?" The place to stop our drug problem is right where it starts: in Red China. — U.S. Press Association

Living Up to Doc Welby

There's such a thing as too good an image. It's reported that some doctors are annoyed by the popularity of the nation's most familiar family doctor, Marcus Welby, M.D., who first gained fame as a movie actor named Robert Young.

It seems that having watched Doc Welby's bedside manner on television, his intense empathy with his patients—yes, his willingness to make house calls even—a lot of people are beginning to expect the same sort of impractical behavior from their own doctors. They didn't get away with that stuff when surly Ben Casey was around.

In the meantime, as the 23rd annual convention of the American Academy of General Practice got under way in Miami Beach, one of the first orders of business was to vote on a proposed amendment to change the name to The American Academy of Family Physicians.

And guess whose picture is on the cover of the official AAGP program, hands professionally draped in the pockets of his white coat, stethoscope around his neck? Marcus Welby, of course. — From the Independence, Missouri Examiner

KERRY ON

By Kerry Leggett

Having browsed the Chicago Loop bookstores — hoping for something inspiring — the park along Michigan Avenue beckoned me. Falling to find inspirational material on the book shelves, I thought I might find it in the people.

A cool breeze from the lake lured the lunch-hour crowd. Many with couplets. Businessmen with loosened ties and coats under their arms chose the park for a few minutes of relaxation in the warm May sunshine. Perhaps they could darken their winter-white skin and get some fresh air in the brief hour allowed them.

Warming the hearts as well as the skin, the Spring sun brought many lovers to the park — hand in hand — wandering aimlessly down the sidewalks. A man with a dog on a leash, the grass over the hot sidewalks and lay stretched out, passionately embracing . . . oblivious of their surrounding audience.

Nearer me stood a lady with a leashed poodle, leaning on the iron fencing above the railroad tracks while she rubbed her dog's nose and patted its ribbed head — urging it to "go like a nice doggie." The poodle finally stepped to a tuft of tall grass and lifted its hind leg to water the greenery. "Good dog," she said patting it again and then walking off in the opposite direction from which they'd come.

Three cement-encased trees away, a large Negro with dark glasses and a medallion neck rhythmically danced in the grass, snapping his fingers to impress two youthful girls of his own race, giggling at his offering from their perch on the concrete tree-box.

A pigeon left the flock and fluttered to a stop a few feet from me, looking wistfully at me and then at a lollipop stick abandoned in the grass nearby.

Some tired shoppers spread a piece of pink plastic on the grass, near me, holding the flimsy grass-cover down with some of their recently-purchased packages. Sitting cross-legged in this park.

I closed the black leather cover to my writing pad and put my pen back in my pocket. Walking out of the park and in to the mass of humanity on Madison Street, I thought of Sandburg's "Hog, Butcher for the World," he had said of Chicago. "People Butcher of the World," I thought of Sandburg's city. His "stormy, husky, brawling, 'City of Big Shoulders' had grown too big. The 'big shoulders' were now those of gang leaders and the 'tool makers' and 'stackers of wheat' were but pawns in the concrete jungle of Chicago. I was glad to be leaving.

Excerpts from The Editor's Notebook By RON BALDWIN, Quiz Editor

In last week's Quiz it was announced that Sister Leona will leave St. Mary's School at the end of the present school year to take a position in Grand Island. It seems that Ord is losing two top educators this year — Robert Curtright at the high school and Sister Leona at St. Mary's. Both will be greatly missed in the community next year.

I feel it is unfortunate from a personal standpoint that I was not able due to my own fault to work more closely with Sister Leona this year. She has been most cooperative all year and she has a great love and respect for her students. She is progressive and many of the things she has accomplished in the classroom have been noticed in the community. I personally felt one of the most imaginative programs this year was the "Ecology Art" that her students did. This consisted of going out and cleaning up the countryside of litter and turning them to "art" in the classroom. She killed two birds with one stone — cleaned up litter and had a worthwhile classroom experience.

I will miss her next year and take this time to wish her a great deal of luck in the future.

OMAHA, ORD HAVE ONE THING IN COMMON In order to save a man's marital status, I will not reveal his name, however a newcomer to Ord made a rather startling observation to this writer recently. I asked him how he liked Ord and he commented he thought it was an interesting and progressive community. He did have one interesting observation however.

He noticed that high school girls in Ord wear their skirts as short as they do in Omaha. And they say small towns can't keep "up" with the bigger ones!

ARE YOU GUILTY? I will also protect by not revealing his name commented that he likes Ord a great deal but finds the people here "not as friendly as expected." He has lived in several small towns and notes that in others neighbors would stop and call and make efforts to get acquainted. They have lived here for sometime now and this has not happened here in Ord, as of yet and both he and his wife have found this to be a disappointment.

Do you know of someone new in town? Have you made an effort to meet them? If not you should take the time to drop by. Just because you know who the new family is in town doesn't mean they know you!

THE PIT Another selection by the UNL student that was in the state hospital. The moment we're born we begin to die. Some live with laughter and others will cry. Moment by moment death erodes at our life slicing away like a finely honed knife.

Some early meet death and are wrapped in its cloak While others flee in terror from the inevitable stroke. Some seek out death and the peace that it brings while others see life as a most precious thing.

Those who would die (they) go seeking out death hoping it will come and snuff out life's breath Truly and surely we will soon be forgot For in steps another to fill the vacant slot. Just another person caught in the rush just another passenger riding the bus. Left all alone on the stormy sea of bickering and clashing humanity.

We Can Be Proud

A number of those who watched the Frazier-Stander fight one night last week were interested in it because they had met Ron Stander in Golden Gloves competition years ago.

One local boy, Charlie Fox, the large economy-size son of Sheriff and Mrs. Clarence Fox, cannot join Frazier as one of those who has defeated young Stander. It was in a Golden Glove meet, yes, several years ago. Charlie and his wife, little Mary Ann Gudmundsen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Curt Gudmundsen of Ord, now make their home in Grand Island and have a little Golden Glover growing up in their home.

Ord people do get in the news, strange times and strange places. Ron Romans, born and educated in Ord, graduate of Hastings College, became national president of the Young Republicans, and was selected by Richard Nixon as one of a small group of promising young comers in the Grand Old Party, hauled into Washington for further training and work. Also, I might add, trained by his father Jack who is a pretty fair politician and has been a faithful party worker for a long time.

Ron has announced he is going to go into the trucking business in Grand Island, leaving the political field for the present. But, I predict he isn't leaving it permanently. He's too good at it.

I could write about Shan Cronk who topped his University of Nebraska law class with some fantastic honors, like the Order of the Coif, high distinction and so on. He has now gone into a substantial Lincoln law firm and appears to have a bright future, which he has earned.

I am proud when our young people leave Valley County and actually achieve success under their own steam. But I am never surprised. I expect them to do well and they do. Our schools are excellent here.

But then sometimes Ord disappoints me. Such as Memorial Day when our flag is meant to be honored along with our dead.

Only three American flags waved over the downtown square in Ord that day. I believe they were those of Emil John, the Nebraska State Bank and John R. Sullivan.

What has happened to our love for the flag? It seems to be unfashionable to revere it, and unfashionable is a word I don't like to use in this connection.

Brezhnev also was quoted as "expressing the firm conviction that the military would successfully fulfill its task." This quote is being examined here to determine if Russian military forces have been given a specific new Vietnam military task.

One group of American intelligence experts believe the movement of additional Soviet naval units into the Pacific is a prelude to their use to convoy Russian vessels to Haiphong, North Vietnam's major seaport.

A "quarantine" or blockade of the port of Haiphong to stop the flow of Soviet war materials pouring into the battlefields of South Vietnam has been under intense study by President Nixon for several weeks.

As if he were planning a controlled confrontation with the Russians, President Nixon late last month sent word via Dr. Kissinger to Brezhnev telling him of the possibility that he may have to invoke a naval quarantine of Haiphong before the end of May if the North Vietnamese did not end their offensive.

Significantly, Kissinger also relayed to Brezhnev last month the information that Nixon has ruled out the use of nuclear weapons in Vietnam under any circumstances.

None of these details of possible U.S. military moves has been given to the American public by either the President or Kissinger. On the other hand, this advance warning of possible future U.S. military action has given top Soviet military officials the information they need to map their own next moves.

PLAYING THEIR GAME

The Kremlin's "strategic island" strategy, which they are now using to try to dominate the world, calls for the arranging of controlled confrontations at U.S.-Soviet tension points.

The objective is to so alarm the world, especially the American public and Congress, that a nuclear war might occur that they will agree to almost any kind of settlement with the Russians to avoid such a conflict.

By first putting limitations on U.S. military moves in Vietnam and then telegraphing future ones, President Nixon is helping the Soviets carry out their game plan for all Asia whether he realizes it or not.

His three year delay in imposing a "quarantine" of Haiphong harbor already has resulted in the Soviet equipping the North Vietnamese Army with enough heavy equipment to destroy his own program of arming the South Vietnamese. Will the controlled confrontation that is starting to emerge do the same to capability of American military forces?

State Hires Court Administrator; Satellite to Look Over Nebraska

By Melvin Paul Statehouse Correspondent The Nebraska Press Association For the first time, Nebraska has an administrator for its state court system.

He is James Dunlevy, a Lincoln attorney, who will begin his duties in the $22,500 job July 1 officially, but is to work without pay until then.

Dunlevy was appointed to the post, created by the Constitution, by Chief Justice Paul W. White of the State Supreme Court. His responsibilities cover the county, district and supreme courts, but White said Dunlevy would concentrate initially on the new county court system established by the 1971 Legislature.

Under the new system, there will be 21 county court districts and 43 judges. The judges will be elected this fall. They will name associate county judges who will be located in each of the state's 93 counties.

White said part of Dunlevy's job will be to make sure there is an adequate number of associate county judges and that they have proper quarters.

Dunlevy also is to prepare the budget for the court systems, compile statistics and perform other administrative work under the direction of the chief justice.

Dunlevy had been working until last fall as a researcher and bill drafter for the Legislature. He was the chief author of LB 1032, which created the new county court system.

Before working for the lawmakers, Dunlevy had been a special assistant to Gov. Frank B. Morrison and had served as director of the State Department of Motor Vehicles.

SATELLITE TO VIEW NEBRASKA A satellite due to go into polar orbit this summer will be taking a look at Nebraska with its cameras.

The data relayed back to earth is to be used by University of Nebraska - Lincoln scientists to help in the management of the state's soil and water resources.

Information gathered by cameras in high-flying reconnaissance aircraft also will be used in the UNL studies under a pair of grants totalling $151,200.

The two grants, covering a total of three years, were announced last week by officials of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Using electronically produced images — which are similar to photographs — the UNL scientists will be able to inventory the extent of irrigation in Nebraska, study soil types and make geological surveys which would be difficult to do from the ground.

MRS. BIEGERT STEPS DOWN

Mrs. Maurine Biegert of Slickley says a dozen years is enough. She says she isn't going to seek another four-year term as Democratic national committeewoman from Nebraska. Her successor will be elected at the party's state convention in June.

Several women immediately indicated an interest in the post. Among them were Mrs. Nancy Childs of Lincoln and Mrs. Sue Morrissey of Kearney.

Mrs. Biegert predicted there would be a wide-open race at the convention.

A national committeeman also will be elected, but the incumbent, Tom Kelley of Omaha, was expected to seek another term.

The new national committee members will join the 22 Democrats elected in the May 9 primary as delegates to the national convention to be held in Miami Beach this July.

The exact composition of the Nebraska delegation won't be known for sure until June 5 when the State Canvassing Board completes its official canvass of the primary voting.

Some of the results were still close when news media vote tabulation machinery was shut down.

But the preliminary figures indicate there will be 15 delegates committed to Sen. George McGovern and seven obligated to Sen. Hubert Humphrey — plus the two national committee members.

REPUBLICANS HOLD HEARINGS

There isn't the same kind of suspense on the Republican side. The 16 GOP delegates will be solidly for President Nixon's renomination, even if the official canvass does change some of the names on the preliminary delegate list. The Republicans have been busy recently holding hearings throughout the state on what the party's state platform ought to include.

One of the highlight witnesses was former Gov. Norbert T. Tiemann, who has indicated that he may return to the political wars in 1974.

Testifying at the hearing in Lincoln — one of 10 held across the state — Tiemann urged a "progressive" platform which would call for renewed emphasis on highway construction, mental health and retardation and state school aid.

The former GOP governor said his Democratic successor, J. J. Exon, has allowed the highway program to "grind to a virtual halt." Exon's vetoes of school aid legislation this year were described as "an ax squarely in the taxpayer's back."

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

We have survived another round of Commencement speeches, so there is renewed hope that we can survive anything. We don't want to do nothing to hurt freedom of speech in the country, Mister Editor, but a law declaring Commencement addresses illegal beyond 15 minutes would be striking a big blow again air and ear pollution.

Actual, from what I see by the paper's Commencements ain't giving the play they use to, so we ain't had to read so much about speakers viewing with alarm and telling the graduates they "possess the power" to right all the wrongs in the world. Personal speaking, I am grateful for the judgment of the editors that has found more earth-shaking news.

Furthermore, judging from the way the fellers was talking about the job market during the session Saturday night, it might be a good idea to call for one of them moratoriums on graduates as well as graduation speeches. Leon Woods reported where new graduates was having a rough time finding work except in a few fields, and the more degrees they got the worst it is. Leon said the next thing you know the Government will come up with no-fault insurance for graduates. That's where they ain't their fault they can't get a job.

General speaking, said Leon, this country is getting a bad backlog in a lot of fields that's causing headaches. He had saw this piece where if New York City police called a moratorium on arrests for a year, it would take that much time to hear all the cases already on the books. It's got so bad, allowed Leon, til the only way our court system can catch up is to come up with no-fault crimes. He said he saw where one town final cut down on the traffic cases in court by raising the speed limit.

Mister Editor, they allus is a heap of confusion in normal times, and in election years jest about everthing gets out of hand. I'm as mixed up as the rest of the fellers about all this talk about no-fault insurance, but I ain't as bad off as Joe Miska. Til Leon set him straight, Joe thought no-fault insurance was where you took out a policy again anything you do being your fault. That's bad as the report I saw where businessmen git stoopsholdered cause they don't know which end is up.

On the hopeful side, Harold Marshall told the fellers he had saw this pole that shows newspaper readers is getting smarter and demanding more details and "relevant coverage." Harold said he didn't know what relevant is, but if it cuts down on Commencements, he's fer it.

Yours truly, Joe

Having Teeth Pulled by Dr. Carothers May Be More Enjoyable Than Flying With Him

WILL BE HERE—Dr. Charles Carothers will perform in Ord June 18.

As announced in last weeks edition of The Ord Quiz, Dr. Charles (Chuck) Carothers will be featured in the Ord Land-Sea-Air Sport and Travel Show which will be held here June 17 and 18. Carothers will be featured in an Aerobatic show at 2 p.m. on Sunday June 18.

Carothers, a Lincoln dentist and a native of neighboring Broken Bow, is one of those who specializes in aerial gyration. After a stint in the military service, Dr. Carothers found he "didn't want to be totally earth-bound" even after returning to civilian life. He did not feel there was much enjoyment in merely flying a light aircraft from one place to another. As a result he eventually became interested in aerobatics—the performance of spectacular airborne acrobatics.

USING THIRD PLANE
Now using the third airplane he has bought for this purpose, Dr. Carothers is convinced he owns the best. Although small, the craft has amazing capabilities. It is a Pitt's Bivwing, barely 15 feet long with a 17 foot wingspan. At first glance, the bright red plane, with white stripes on the wings and along its fuselage, appears to be a novelty. That impression doesn't last long, though, when seeing it perform. It goes through snap rolls as quick as the snap of a finger and withstands stresses that would rip the wings and tail from inferior craft.

self. I think." In his cockpit, there are only a few essential instruments. Fancy equipment is unnecessary and its absence keeps weight down. He flies visually, and his maneuvers happen too fast for a dial to keep up with them. The most spectacular and difficult gyration Dr. Carothers performs is the Lomcevac, which is appropriately named because it is Czech for "head-ache." This single maneuver puts more stress on plane and pilot than any other. It is a combination of motions in which the plane climbs steeply, then tumbles in spiral, end-over-end flips.

ENTERS NATIONAL MATCHES
Dr. Carothers enters national matches each year, as well as regional contests. Winning a meet brings honor, but hardly compensates for the amount of expense, practice time, and work involved. He flies every day, except when the weather is bad or the plane is dismantled. "My flights require a lot of split-second timing in just the right order," says Carothers. "The plane of course, must be in top condition, and that takes a lot of time. Too, my mechanic, Ed Mooring, Wahoo, keeps it in good shape."

For its weight and size, this is perhaps the most powerful propeller plane made. The Lycoming engine cranks out 180 horsepower at 2,700 rpm's and Carothers likes to keep it turning faster than that. He says that empty, the plane weighs about 750 pounds, so with him and the fuel it still weighs only about one thousand pounds. According to Carothers, once aloft, there is little it cannot do.

NOT A STUNT PILOT
"I want to stress that I am not a stunt pilot," he insists. "I perform specific aerobatic maneuvers. It's specific flying at safe altitudes. Stunt flying includes dangerous, even foolhardy tricks, and I consider it stupid. Pilots who do that sort of thing don't live long, which speaks for it-

Board of Education Meeting

Activity Tickets, Land Disposition Provide Topics of Conversation

The Ord Board of Education took under advisement on what to do with the land that the old grade school was located on. Application before the Board of Education was Marvin Weems, school attorney. While Weems did not settle the issue as to what will be done with the land, he was emphatic about what can not be done. Weems informed the board that while school districts can "receive land which cannot give it away" which mixed the idea that the School District might give the land to the City of Ord to be used as a park and recreation area.

Weems did suggest however that the School District enter into a lease agreement with the city that would allow the City to operate the land as a park complex. He suggested however that if the School District were to go that route it would be prudent for the Board of Education to make sure that a "Save-Harmless" clause be included in which the school board would be exempt from law suits or liability.

Attorney Weems also suggested that terms of the lease should be that it is renewable every two years. According to him, an alternative to the School District leasing the land to the city would be for the school to operate the land themselves at a park. It was suggested however by one board member that finances might make this plan infeasible. If the School Board decided to get the land back on the tax books, they would have to auction the land or sell it at an open meeting of the School Board.

At the suggestion of Dr. Dale Karre, Board of Education President, it was decided to table the matter to another meeting. It was suggested that a survey of opinions of people living in the immediate area of the land in question might be taken to see what their reaction would be to having a park in that area.

Lagoon Report Submitted

Council Told To Follow "Wait-and-See" Course

The firm of Hoskins-Western-Sonderregger has released a report to the Mayor and City Council concerning the recent criticisms by residents of Ord concerning odors coming from the Ord lagoon. At the last City Council meeting on May 1, a group of citizens including Linda Toelle, Sharon Manchester, Jean Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Ron Upham and Norma Ackles protested to the council about the strong odors. At that time it was decided to contact the Lincoln based engineering firm to get their recommendations on the problem.

The report returned last week by the firm indicated that a discussion on various contributing factors has been held with Mayor Joe Ruzicka, George Allen, the City Engineer, and William Beard, a city employee. In addition the factors have also been discussed with the management of the Ord Cheese Company.

The report stresses however that the cheese industry's new manager, who took over less than one month ago, has indicated this practice will be discontinued and that all possible in-house sources of wastes will be located and eliminated. The report also says, "If odors continue to be a problem this summer or violation of your ordinances regulating the discharge of industrial wastes into the city sewer system are evident, we will initiate a sampling and testing program at your request."

respond to mother nature during the warm weather and for odors to be eliminated even if the present wastewater level were not in excess of the design load." The report also says that it has been concluded that in the past year industrial wastes, in particular from the cheese plant, had at times been allowed to enter the waste-water collection system. The report also mentions that the subject of industrial wastes came up when the State and Federal review of the plans were made and assurances were requested that the City would initiate and enforce control measures. "The presence of waste is an inherent part of any industrial processing and should not be viewed as something impossible to resolve," the report continues. "Optimum reduction of wastes as well as suitable disposal of both industrial and domestic wastes can be obtained as long as everybody will cooperate and maintain an understanding of the difficulties. It is our fondest hope that a spirit of cooperation between industry operators and governmental regulatory personnel, and ourselves can be maintained so as to avoid costly and unnecessary work."

MOTHER NATURE
"We basically recommend," the report says, "that you take a wait-and-see approach before committing a great deal of funds toward a sampling and testing program. This recommendation is made on the basis that a certain amount of time will be required before the lagoon will

Rowena Wajda, Gerald Gydesen Wed In Evening Ceremony at Ord Church

In a candlelight ceremony June 3 at 7:30 p.m. at First Presbyterian Church of Ord, Rowena Dore Wajda, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Wajda, Ord, became the bride of Gerald Lee Gydesen. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Gydesen of North Loup.

The Rev. S. A. Hanke of Taylor read the marriage lines in the presence of approximately 300 relatives and friends.

Proceeding the ceremony, an organ prelude of nuptial music was played by Mrs. Zola Schudel, Ord. She accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Darlyn Jablonski, Ord, who sang "Wedding Prayer" and "The Lord's Prayer."

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride wore a gown of organza and Alonson lace. The A-line silhouette featured a wedding ring neckline and Camelot sleeves. Lace panels trimmed the skirt and bodice. A full chignon train swept from the waist. Her three-tiered veil was held with a headpiece of white roses created by Mrs. Rose Pokorny of Ord. The bride carried white roses centered with blue daisies.

Peg Larson of Lincoln served as matron of honor. Other attendants were Connie John, Grand Island, Lorena Weverka, Columbus and Cheryl Haste, Ord. They wore floor-length dresses of blue dotted swiss with puffed sleeves trimmed in blue flowered ribbon. Headpiece of white roses completed their attire and each carried a ribbon-trimmed blue garter with lighted candle.

Christy Gydesen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Orville Gydesen, Grand Island, and Shane Gydesen, son of Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Gydesen also of Grand Island served as flower girl and ring bearer. Steven Goldfish, Scotia, and Steven Peterson, Wolbach, were candlelighters.

Best man was Gary Chadek of North Loup. LeRoy Gydesen, Grand Island, Chester Dierberger, North Loup, and Larry Wajda, Ord, were groomsmen. Lonnie John and Dwayne Gydesen both of Grand Island were ushers.

A reception and dance at the Elks Club in Ord followed the ceremony. Host and hostess were Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Vancura, Ord, and Margene Gill, Pierre, S. D. presided at the guest book. Chris Penas and Mrs. Rose Pokorny both of Ord cut and served the wedding cake. Cindy Vancura and Julie Hruby attended at the gift table.

The newlyweds will be at home in Ord after June 7. Mr. Gydesen is employed by Cass Construction Co. and his bride will continue her work at the Blue Haven Salon.

CAROL'S CORNER

by carol leggett

A Great Day — Today . . . I woke after a good night's sleep and looked out the window. The morning sun seemed to shout, "It's Summertime!" for this was a beautiful day. Yesterday also started out beautiful, but too many things went wrong and loused it up.

"Today will be different," I told myself. "No matter what happens, I will not let it upset me. I will tolerate sarcastic remarks — even try to understand them — and I promise to play it cool and not lose my temper.

"Sure, many things go wrong during a day and, in fairness, I probably add my share to the commotion. Still, I can do my best to keep things right, keep things pleasant.

Maybe I can't control everything, but I can control myself. Today will be a great day, because that's the way I want it. Anyhow . . . I can try. After all, it's a good day to be alive and I intend to remember that the whole day."

Just for today . . . I will be happy. This assumes to be true what Abraham Lincoln said, that "Most folks are as happy as they make up their minds to be."

Just for today . . . I will be unafraid. Especially I will not be afraid to enjoy what is beautiful, and to believe that as I give to the world, so the world will give to me.

—O—

Use these ingredients to look your June best: 1 cup of neatness in dress; Lots of cheerful disposition; 2 sprinkles of color; 1 large friendly smile; Generous measure of understanding. Mix well and all will be well.

Catholic Ceremony Unites Omaha Couple

Our Lady of Nebraska Chapel in St. Cecilia's Cathedral at Omaha was the scene for the May 26 wedding of Patricia M. Wadas and Joseph M. (Mick) Hamilton both of Omaha. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emanuel V. Wadas of Ord, Mr. and Mrs. William L. Hamilton, Omaha, are the groom's parents.

The 6:30 p.m. double-ring ceremony and nuptial Mass was officiated by Father Richard Swoler of Omaha before an altar decorated with baskets of fugi mums, daisies, star flowers, asters and baby's breath. Approximately 40 guests attended the wedding and reception which followed at Domenico's in Omaha. Sheila DeVore was hostess at the reception and Marlene Urbanski, Ord, registered the guests.

The bride and groom were given in marriage by their parents.

For her wedding the bride chose a gown of white flowing chiffon which featured a soft ruche that opened the throat of a V neckline adorned with jewel and pearl trim. The full illusion sleeves were also banded with jeweled trim. A flowing detachable train accented the gown's softness. A matching Camelot headpiece held a double illusion elbow-length veil. She carried a cascade of phalaenopsis orchids encircled by white roses, pom pom mums and baby's breath.

Mrs. Leah McCall, Lincoln, served as the bride's attendant. She wore an exotic gown of lavender and blue chiffon. A softly gathered skirt fell from an uplified waistline and was flounced at the hem. She carried a casual hand bouquet of assorted flowers.

James Hamilton, Topeka, Kan. served his brother as best man. Jeffrey Williams, Billings, Mont., a nephew of the bride, carried the rings and Dan Struble seated the guests.

The newlyweds honeymooned in Minneapolis, Minn. and are now at home at 6202 1/2 Elm Street in Omaha. The bride is a 1968 graduate of Ord High School and is employed by Northern Natural Gas Co. Her husband who is a graduate of Benson High in Omaha and attended the University of Nebraska, Omaha, is employed by Woerner Wire Works.

The Hamiltons . . . she was Patricia Wadas.

Film To Be Shown
 "Though I Walk Through The Valley" is the title of a unique film which will be shown this Sunday evening June 11th, at 8:00 p.m. at the Bethel Baptist Church in Ord.

It is a remarkably sensitive documentary of the last six months of a man's life. Tony Brouwer had terminal cancer and this film skillfully shows how he and his family face new questions, new fears, and new sadness as death confronts life and is the loser.

It is not the typical death-bed story nor is it aimed at the tear ducts. It avoids cliches and sentimental pieties while simply illustrating that a man can live his life so that when death comes he can meet it as a friend, tenderly and gently in Christian hope. It is a 30 minute color film.

The public is welcome and invited to attend.

At Rudolph Kokes'
 Visitors from many areas of the country and state were at the Rudolph Kokes home last weekend.

"News and Views of Area Sports"

By RON BALDWIN
Quiz Editor

What a week for Ord! There was not one baseball team or softball team that was able to come up a winner! Surely better things must be ahead. The Legion teams both suffered losses to Greeley, O'Neill and Broken Bow. The softball team played expected tiffed Spalding and took a shelling and the town team suffered a stinging 17 to 3 loss to defending Sherman-Howard League king Wood River Sunday.

The only teams I saw this week were the Legion teams. Probably the best effort for both teams came Friday night at O'Neill. The Midgets lost by only 5 to 4 and the Juniors by 5 to 0. The latter score however might be deceiving at first glance. It was a better game than the final 5 to 0 score might indicate. O'Neill got everything in the first two innings through no fault of pitcher Dennis Urbanovsky.

"Urbo" played with a sore arm but as the game progressed his arm got stronger and O'Neill got nothing off him in the last five innings in what may go down as one of the better games pitched by an Ord player this year. Coach Edwin Vancura is optimistic by the time that District Tournaments roll along that "Urbo" will be a mature pitcher. I'd have to agree with him especially since he pitched a brilliant game against perhaps one of the top two or three ball clubs Ord will have to play against this year.

And in talking about pitchers this corner would be slighting someone if I did not mention the fine performance at the same site of Midget pitcher Galen Michalski. He had a fine effort against the O'Neill Midgets and shows promise of becoming perhaps the number one pitcher for Coach Gary Klancey before the season is over.

EQUAL PAY FOR EQUAL PLAY

One of the big demands in the women's equality movement is "Equal pay for equal work." This is especially meaningful in the sports field where money is the real barometer of an athlete's acceptance.

One prestigious sports arena where women have significantly suffered, dollar-wise is the golf world. In the past, women golfers have been discouraged from taking the game seriously, both as amateurs and professionals.

Women are restricted from play on the weekend, and professional prize money has been running drastically below that of the men's. In 1971, $10,000 was the largest first prize money offered on the Ladies Professional Golf Association's (LPGA) tour, in contrast to the $50,000 top prize money offered by the Men's Professional Golf Association.

Leading money winners for women took a back seat to the Nicklaus's and Trevino's. Kathy Whitworth, the top prize winner in 1971, pulled in $43,534. The PGA's money leader, Jack Nicklaus, carried away $265,000 — more than six times as much!

There seems to be a reverse to the trend. The establishment of the record $110,000 Dinah Shore — Colgate Winners Circle Golf Tournament was indeed a major breakthrough for women's golf.

The $20,000 first place check awarded to Janie Blalock was the largest prize money in the history of the LPGA. It is a big improvement on the $100 Savings Bond Patty Berg received in 1944 for winning the Women's Western Open.

In establishing this unprecedented tournament for women, Colgate President David R. Foster commented: "The Colgate-Palmolive Company recognizes the fact that women merit equality with men on the golf course as well as in other social and professional areas. I sincerely believe that elevating women's sports is a necessary part of the important job of fully recognizing woman's rightful equality in all things."

THIS WEEK IN ORD
Thursday (Tonight) Ravenna, (Busset Park), Sunday, Scottia, (Busset Park).

It was a long week for Ord's Legion Baseball teams as both the Midgets and the Juniors were "swung" in action. Greeley started things off on the wrong foot for Ord by taking a doubleheader on Thursday night by scores of 18 to 14 in the Midgets and 9 to 4 in the Junior affair.

Friday night at O'Neill the Midgets dropped a 5 to 4 and the Juniors (ell) by a 5 to 0 count. Sunday night at Broken Bow, the Midgets dropped a 6 to 4 contest and the Junior a 12 to 7 game.

Going into last week's action, the Midgets owned a 2-1 record and the Juniors a 3-0 slate. GREELEY SWEEPS TWO

Underdog Greeley put it all together at Russell Park Thursday night and made a clean sweep over Ord. In the Midget contest, Ord tumbled into an early lead but faded from the fifth inning on.

In the second inning, Ord got on the scoreboard with runs by Neal Gogan, Harry Zulkoski, Craig Clement and Tim Sevenker. Gogan started things off for Ord in the second inning with a single. Highlight of the inning for Ord was a double for Clement.

Greeley was limited to four runs in the first four innings before erupting for six big ones in the fifth. Helping the fifth inning explosion were errors on Ord's defense. Runs in the fifth inning were scored by Mike Nowak, Jamie Donovan, John Donovan, Dave Ryan, Dennis Swanson, Rick Lominer, Dennis Harvold and Neal Gogan. Ord got five runs on four hits to put the game completely out of reach for Ord.

Ord, trailing 18 to 10 going into the final inning, put on a mild rally in the seventh. Runs by Neal Gogan, Harry Zulkoski, Marty Barnes and Tim Sevenker helped keep the Midgets momentarily alive.

In the Junior contest Ord took a 2 to 1 lead after one inning, but lost it in the second. Ord pitcher Bob Dutcher did not pitch much to handle. In the first inning, Paul Markley and Dave John both scored runs to put Ord in the lead. However in the sixth inning, Greeley erupted for six runs to break open a tight contest. At the time of Greeley's rally, Ord had a 4-2 lead. John and Bob Peterson both scored runs to pad the Ord lead.

However, Donovan, Dugan, Cargill, Connor, O'Conner, and Dutcher all ran in runs in the sixth inning to put themselves out of reach.

O'NEILL BEST EFFORT

After the third inning however Urbanovsky was able to gain ball control. The choice of an Ord pitching arm began to work itself out. Coach Edwin Vancura also noted the fielding "was the best performance of the weekend came at O'Neill where the Midgets lost by only one run to an expected tough O'Neill line and in the nightcap Dennis Urbanovsky came to life on the mound despite the fact the Juniors lost a 5 to 0 contest to the O'Neill Juniors.

COLLIER AT BAT—The Quiz told Jerry to "look mean" when this photo was taken. Mean he looked, but unfortunately the sun got into his eyes resulting in kind of a mean squint. Collier may not be the best at posing for pictures, but he is one of the top players on the 1972 Midget baseball team.

In the nightcap, the Juniors had only nine players suited up for the contest and pitcher Urbanovsky was "hurling" before the game started. Coach Edwin Vancura wasn't overly optimistic about winning the O'Neill contest but after the game O'Neill control help put have respect for Ord.

O'Neill got all five runs in the first two innings of the contest, two in the first and three in the second, before Urbanovsky got loosened up. After the first two innings, O'Neill batters didn't get a thing off the husky Ord High senior.

Runs were scored by O'Neill by Kersenburk and Ickes. Both men were walked, and both got home on errors. In the second inning, the offense added its second and final run of the night, and other runs were scored by Bishop and Walston. An error on the right field allowed Walston to score.

After the third inning however Urbanovsky was able to gain ball control. The choice of an Ord pitching arm began to work itself out. Coach Edwin Vancura also noted the fielding "was the best thus far in the season" for Ord from that point on.

In the Midget contest Ord jumped into an impressive 4 to 1 lead after one inning of play, and runs were scored by Neal Gogan, Harry Zulkoski, Marty Barnes and Greg Clement. One run was scored by O'Neill in the first inning by Larry Haynes.

Two runs by Gallagher and Belger in the second inning helped to cut Ord's lead and two more runs in the sixth inning gave the O'Neill Midgets the lead for good. The winning runs were scored by Gallagher and Gleason in the seventh.

Pitching for the Ord Midgets was Galen Michalski. Tom Gallagher pitched for O'Neill.

JUNIORS LEAD 6 TO 1

Ord's Junior Legion team jumped into a 6 to 1 lead at the top of the third inning before Broken Bow's offense got rolling. At the end of seven innings, Ord had to swallow a 12 to 7 defeat at the hands of their old arch-rival.

In the first inning Ord scored three runs on two hits and one error. Leon Brechbill opened the attack for Ord by singling and then stealing to second base. Broken Bow's pitcher Robinson walked Steve Todsens and Bob Peterson hit a base hit for Ord.

Todsens was then put out on a fielder's choice and Vancura hit a single to first. Brechbill, Peterson and Vancura all scored runs for Ord in the first inning. Vancura

"sleeping" off of first base for an easy hit. Rich Psota was then put out on a throw from shortstop Max Mader to first baseman Jim Barth. For the third out of the inning the same defensive combination put out Jim Lukesch.

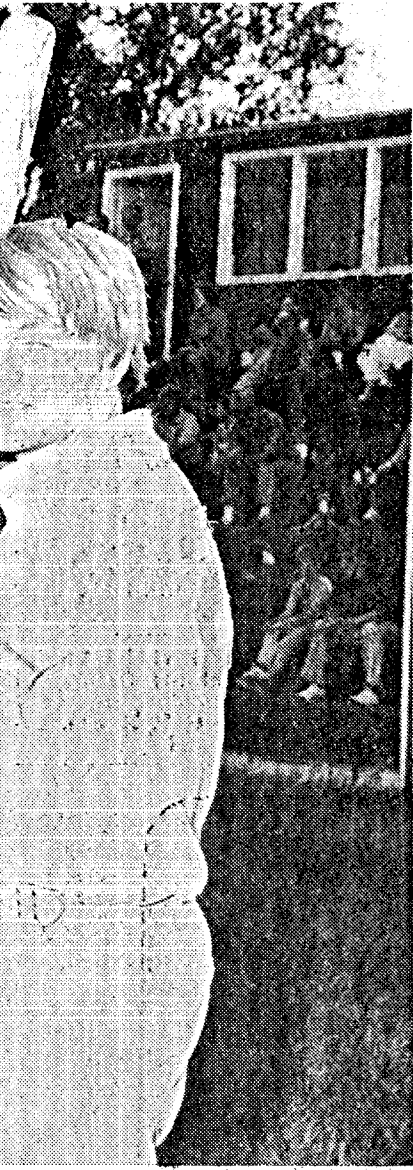

Rich Psota started on the mound for the visiting Mustangs. He opened with two walks, walking Boelsor and Stithoney. Brown hit to second base to send in Boelsor and Barth also scored in the inning. The first inning ended with Wood River on top 3 to 2.

15 HITS FOR WOOD RIVER

What started out to be an enjoyable afternoon for Mustang followers began to turn sour. For the entire game, Wood River exploded for 15 hits to just five for Ord. Hultinsky got another homerun for the visitors however that did not come until the third inning with Ord trailing 4-3. Wood River got a run in the fifth, two in the sixth, two in the seventh and exploded for seven runs in the eighth inning to win going away. In the eighth inning Wood River got the seven runs on only five hits.

Ord's three homerun efforts were over shadowed by Wood River's five homer effort. Hultinsky hit the ball over the fence for the hosts were Wagner, Barth, Mader and Brown. All had singles except for Brown who hit two homers for the afternoon.

Psota took the loss for Ord on the mound while the winning pitcher was Husman.

BATTER UP—Doug Wolf picks out a bat in the Broken Bow game. cura got in on an error on third base.

Pitcher Dean Vancura put Jerry Shea out the first time that Broken Bow came to bat on two balls and three strikes. Bill Varney next hit the ball for the host, but the ball sailed right into the glove of waiting first baseman Rich Hruza for an easy out. Rod Armstrong was walked and Romans hit a base hit. Armstrong got a steal to second and was hit home by Romans. Collins was the last out for Broken Bow in the first inning.

In the second inning, Hruza and Peterson both got runs for Ord. Brechbill and Todsens, the first Ord batters in the inning, were put out before Peterson got a base hit. Dave John and Dean Vancura both got base hits to set the stage for the two Ord runs.

Errors began to plague Ord in the third inning as Broken Bow got four runs on only one hit and "numerous errors" according to the Broken Bow PA announcer. Varney, Armstrong, Hromas and Ellis all got runs for the hosts. Ord's lone run in the third inning was by third baseman Don Hultinsky and Ord did not tally again until the seventh inning on a run by Hultinsky.

Broken Bow got two runs in the fourth, one in the fifth and three in the sixth to round out their scoring attack.

In the Midget contest, Broken Bow jumped into a quick 4-0 lead on runs by Randy Louthran, Keith Ellis, Erral Coslar and Scott Smith. The only other Broken Bow runs came in the fourth inning when Arnold and Ellis both tallied.

Ord's best effort was the third inning when Gaylen Michalski, Bill Gogan and Craig Clement all scored. Ord's only other run came in the fifth when Michalski also tallied. The Ord-Broken Bow contest also marked the debut of Gregg Suetter, who has just moved to Ord from Ralston.

Nebraska's daily bag limit on walleye and sauger, or in combination, is 8, with a possession limit of 16.

Weight Program For Ord Youths

According to Chuck Squiere has announced that a weights and conditioning program will be run through the summer for interested boys that will be sophomores, juniors or seniors at Ord High School next fall.

The lessons will be from 7 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. Monday, Tuesday and Thursday nights.

Squires and other Ord High School coaches will help supervise the program at the Senior High Gym.

Mayor Issues Proclamation

Mayor Joe Ruzicka has proclaimed the week of June 10 through June 15 as "Pitch, Hit and Throw Week" in Ord. In his proclamation Mayor Ruzicka says:

"The youth of America, on so many occasions in the recent past, have been maligned by undue focus on the controversial acts, albeit sometimes justified, of a few of their numbers.

"Rather than condemn, either their generation or their isolated acts, those who condemn might be wise to consider more persuasive and constructive approaches.

"The paths to such approaches, by which youth is guided, encouraged, challenged and served, are many and diverse.

"One such program, dedicated to the development of pre-teen boys, is the Official Major League Baseball Pitch, Hit and Throw Competition (PH&T). It offers to all boys, aged 9 through 12, the opportunity to benefit from many types of experience that will contribute to their development and maturity.

"PH&T needs and deserves the support of all people and institutions of the City of Ord, and, therefore, Joe Ruzicka, Mayor of the City of Ord, do hereby proclaim the period of June 10 through June 15 as PH&T Week in this City and I urge all eligible boys to register to take full advantage of its potential for bettering their lives and the future of all our citizens.

Joe Ruzicka

In Witness Whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the City of Ord to be affixed."

Things appear a little bit less huffed this week in the Sherman-Howard League after Sunday's action. Greeley still clings to the top spot despite suffering a 7 to 4 loss to Boelus while Gibson broke a long winless drought by dumping Scottia 5 to 3 at Scottia. It was the first win for Gibson in nearly two years as they went winless all last year. Ord remained winless after dropping a 17 to 3 loss to last year's champion Wood River.

In action this Sunday, Ord must journey to Greeley to take on the current league leaders. The game will start at approximately 2 p.m. Gibson will try to make it win number two in a row when they host St. Paul. St. Paul however can not afford to drop the Gibson contest as they are in a position to take over first place in the standings should Ord pull a major surprise against Greeley.

EARLY LEAD EVAPORATES

Ord started the ball game against Wood River on the right foot as the first two Mustang batters hit the ball over the fence for easy homeruns. Lanky Loren Vancura belted the first one for Ord the first time he was at bat. At the time of the smacker Vancura had two balls and one strike going for him.

The crowd barely got time to settle back in their seats when Jim Hultinsky fired another homer over the fence. That made the score 2 to 0 however Ord found little time to gloat over the lead.

UNRA Cowboy of The Year Goes To Tom Frazer

Current University of Nebraska-Lincoln Rodeo Club president Tom Frazer of North Loup has been named "UNRA Cowboy of the Year" and is qualified for the National Intercollegiate Rodeo Association (NIRA) finals at Montana State University, Bozeman, Mont., June 20-24.

Frazer ranked second in the NIRA Great Plains Region in bareback bronco riding; he was the University's only national qualifier. All letters must be signed but the signature will not be used if requested. We will assume no responsibility for statements in letters.

Dear Editor,

I have received a copy of the article which appeared in The Quiz on May 25 reporting the meeting held recently at Burwell regarding the formation of an Area Agency on Aging, as well as your thoughtful editorial dealing with the same subject. The column seems to reflect what I have found to be a long standing policy of The Quiz and undoubtedly speaks the feelings of many Nebraskans, as well. Certainly, from that standpoint I have no particular quarrel with it.

However, I believe that in a couple of instances your statements, while not especially wide of the mark, do not hit at dead center, either. And in that regard, I feel it is my obligation to provide some clarification.

First, the degree of relationship, if any, of an Area Agency on Aging, were one to be formed in your area of Nebraska, to the Local CAP would be a decision made by the County Commissioners in the participating counties. As I stated at Burwell, they can either designate an existing agency or create, under their supervision, a new free standing entity. Frankly, I think that the latter route will be the one generally followed in Nebraska. Designation of an existing agency entails some operational problems, and as your editorial remarks, means that this new undertaking inherits all the accumulated liabilities of the previously existing organization. At the same time, it could be done this way, if local official desire to do so.

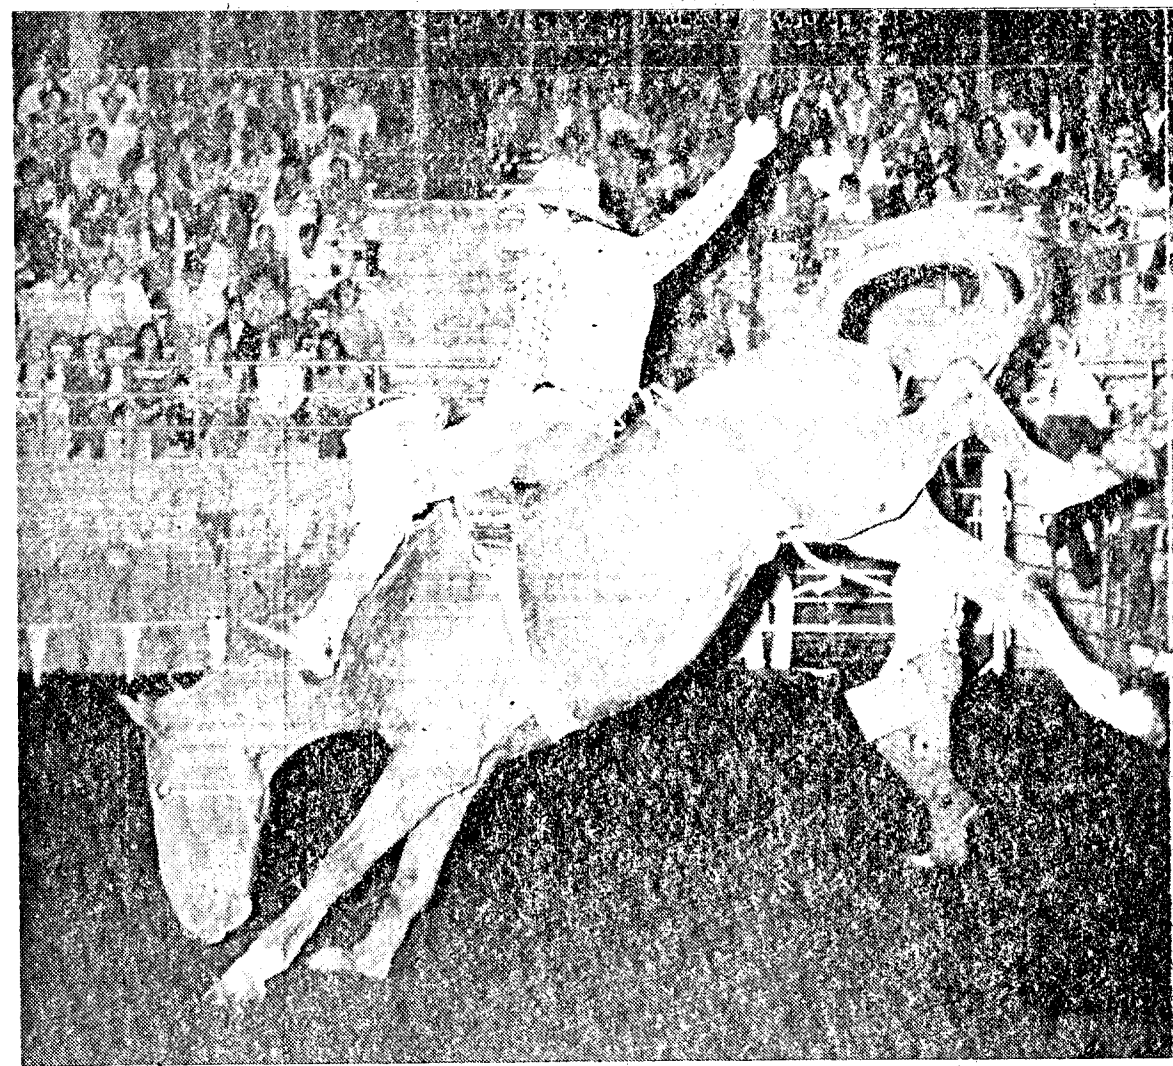

Local officials would not be asked to "relinquish control" over the area program on aging. In fact, the intention is just the opposite. The Area Agency on Aging would be fully a creation of county government, they would be accountable for it, and it would be subject to dissolution at their wish. Again, as I emphasized at Burwell, this action goes considerably beyond the kind of "blessing" which local government gives to certain quasi-citizen groups handling the dispensation of public dollars... CAP agencies among them.

Now, as to whether the creation of an Area Agency on Aging and the receipt of federal funds through the Nebraska Commission on Aging for services for the elderly in your area of the state would constitute an unwarranted federal intrusion into local affairs, the people of your community will have to decide. As programs utilizing federal dollars must operate within the guidelines of both the federal and state granting agencies, I do not think anyone would argue that communities or organizations receiving those funds do give up some measure of autonomy. As I stated earlier, I feel that I have two major obligations in this process. One is to see that both the federal and state program parameters are reasonable, effective, and realistic. Following naturally, the other is to see that local programs are operated within those parameters.

Only local people, then, can decide for their particular community whether this process represents an unwarranted outside intrusion into local affairs. Past experience has shown that some will and some won't. It has been a long standing policy of the Commission on Aging to respond only to local wishes in these matters; and, finally, I want it clearly understood that no one from this agency is or will pressure yours or any other area to participate in this aging program. The competition for those funds that are available is quite spirited, and such pressure would be as unwise as it is unnecessary.

Sincerely,
Ronald L. Jensen
Executive Director

(EDITOR'S NOTE: At the Burwell Area on Aging meeting Mr. Jensen did say that local units of government such as the County Board of Commissioners, would be asked to designate the Area Agency on Aging to act for the people, and on their behalf. The impression that was given was that the Area Agency on Aging would

Old Pros Not Old at All; Spalding Belts Ord 13-5

The Ord Softball team ran into powerful hitting and strong pitching at Spalding Friday night and bowed to the powerful Spalding Old Pros by a 13 to 5 count. For Ord it just wasn't their night as they committed a total of 12 errors to six for the hosts and Ord failed to get in a single run until the seventh inning with Spalding leading 13 to 0.

Spalding got onto the scoreboard first in the second inning on a run by Crosby. Crosby got a base hit and consecutive base hits by McCarthy and Brem brought him home.

In the third inning runs were scored by Comely and Crosby. Crosby had a triple to bring home another single. Andreeen Mahony enabled Crosby to cross the home plate.

Spalding got two runs on two hits in the fourth inning. Mack hit a single and Comely a triple. Mack and Glessenger were the scorers for the Old Pros in the fourth inning.

Ord stopped the Spalding onslaught for one inning — in the fifth — but the dam erupped in the sixth inning when Spalding rained in a total of eight runs. Mack hit a single, Comely took the base on a base on balls situation. McCarthy was walked and Warner hit a single to round out the first four batters. Crosby then followed up with a double. Mahony was walked and McCarthy hit a homerun to make the score 12 to 0. Brem then took a walk but was put out on a steal. Glessenger was the only other Spalding player to score in the sixth inning, that on an error.

Ord began to get moving in the final frame, but it was too late. Drudik hit a single, Allen Vancura a double, Warner a single, Bredthauer a single, King a single and Sorenson a single. Scoring runs in the inning were Drudik, Vancura, Warner, Bredthauer and Williams. Going out for Ord in the seventh inning were King, Hopkins, and Loren Vancura.

For the game, Bredthauer was

Total of 3.5 Billion Needed for State Travel

CAPITOL NEWS
By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent

The Nebraska Press Association LINCOLN — "We were told to turn our imaginations loose. It was like telling a kid he could go through a Montgomery Ward catalog and order whatever he wanted without worrying about paying for it."

That's how Robert Kuzelka described to a legislative committee last week how he came up with a list of Nebraska transportation needs through 1990 which would cost about $3.5 billion.

The study of the state's transportation needs was prepared at the request — and at the expense — of the federal government as part of a project by the Department of Transportation. The DOT wanted to know what it would cost to provide ideal transportation for the nation and so it asked each state to make a study.

Kuzelka, who works in the State Office of Planning and Programming, was put in charge of Nebraska's study. He and his staff now are working on an updated version which is due in Washington early next year.

The first study, known as the 1972 Transportation Needs Study, covered all forms of transportation — road, rail, river and air. If money were no object, the Nebraska planners said nearly $3 billion would need to be spent on roads alone through 1990.

The report estimated needs costing $53 million for urban streets, $151 million for urban public transportation, $206 million for airports and $174.8 million for other types of intercity terminals (such as railroad, bus and river port).

Kuzelka told the Legislative Transportation Advisory Committee he was concerned that current federal financing trends may work to the disadvantage of rural states like Nebraska.

"The emphasis currently in Washington, he said, is to provide money to work on mass transit needs in the nation's really big cities. Kuzelka said his report stressed the need for concern about the problems of rural states. One of the areas he said he urged federal officials to consider was improvement in the grain transportation system. Another was the development of improved public transportation from rural areas into service centers.

In regard to the second problem, Kuzelka said, private or public money perhaps should be invested to assist persons living in the country or in small communities to get to regional centers for shopping or medical needs.

He said this probably is an essential part of keeping population from diminishing further in the rural areas. Many persons either too old or too young to drive themselves may decide to move into cities so services are more available, he said.

Doyle Also Interested
Another state official who expressed concern about the diversion of federal money from highway-building purposes was State Engineer Thomas D. Doyle. He said he would change his vote on pending legislation.

DeCamp, who was a candidate for the Democratic nomination for the U. S. Senate at the time, told the story of the telephone call on the legislative floor.

The controller for the State Department of Roads, Harris Owens, said Nebraska now is getting back about 78 cents from each $1 it sends to Washington in highway use taxes (gasoline, etc.) By 1978, he said, this is expected to tumble to 49 cents.

Federal standards imposed on state road planners, Doyle said, have forced Nebraska to reduce the number of miles of four-lane highway it had hoped to build during the coming 20 years.

Because the federal government requires stricter average daily traffic count projections than were used in planning the original network, the state officials said, the original 2,209 miles has been pared back to 839 miles. That's a reduction of 1,370 miles of "super" highway.

The key federal standard is a requirement that projections show the four-lane roads would carry at least 4,000 vehicles a day and most of the routes in Nebraska's original plans would not generate that much traffic.

Meyer Sentencing Set
Lancaster County Judge Ralph Stocum has set June 15 for the sentencing of Perry Meyer, a Bancroft banker who has pleaded no contest to misdemeanor charges of attempting to influence the vote of a state legislator.

The charges stem from a March 1 incident in which Sen. John DeCamp of Neligh claimed he had been told by Meyer over the telephone there would be a campaign contribution if he would change his vote on pending legislation.

DeCamp, who was a candidate for the Democratic nomination for the U. S. Senate at the time, told the story of the telephone call on the legislative floor.

SLAP Group Holds Meeting
A meeting of the Valley County Selective Localized Accident Prevention (SLAP) Committee was held at the Ord City Hall last Thursday. Otto Zapp, chairman of the Valley County SLAP program announced his selections for his committees in the county.

Several persons representing groups and various communities in Valley County were in attendance. Some of these people were Mrs. Mildred Maly, Secretary of SLAP; Dick Peterson, VFW; Wayne Winterfeld, Ord Fire Department; Rolland White, Farm Bureau Insurance; Dale Melia, Ord Jaycees; Delores Vore, City of North Loup; Heloise Bresley, RFW; Mrs. Barbara Cullin, VFW Auxiliary; Mr. Spud Kapska, Elyria Lions Club; Clarence Fox, Ord Elks Club; George Krajinik, Farm Bureau; Albert Hruza, FFA; Eldon Poth, Farm Bureau; and Elsie Furtak, American Legion Auxiliary.

Due to the increasing number of accidents in the state, the State Department has formed an organization in every county known as SLAP. It is hoped that each SLAP organization will form their own action planning committee to work with the County. Through this manner it is hoped that accidents will be cut in each county.

Local organizations and clubs are being asked to sponsor safety programs such as improved or expanded driver education, how to help prevent blind intersections due to crops and foliage, how to instruct on tractor and bicycle safety, motorcycle safety and many other similar projects.

The SLAP committee will meet the first Thursday of every month and will report to the Nebraska State Department on what has been accomplished. The programs will require the cooperation of everyone in the county and according to Mrs. Maly, "everyone is needed."

Superintendents reports included points of information on the possibility of dropping active tickets to all of us to leave Nebraska and to healthy ecology: "Doing something about these problems is not entirely a government program. It should be our program to clean up Nebraska and our country. Remove ugliness and add beauty. This is a challenge to all of us to leave Nebraska and our country better, not worse, than we found it."
This attitude surfaces in the pamphlets, which are divided into seven areas beginning with an acknowledgment of local pollution problems and expanding into specifics and how to combat resulting problems.
Gilman outlines the basic problem of each area, such as litter; he asks questions such as how do we pollute the soil, what does each group contribute to the problem, and what should be done with waste materials. Once the project members understand the problem, they take on assignments to do something about it. Listed activities in the litter chapter include "clean all the litter from around the farmstead," "encourage planting a farmstead windbreak and farm land beautification," "start a program to get old washing machines, sofas and other junk off the front porches, and old cars off the streets." Rudman commented that when a project has been completed, the 4-H'ers will hold a great respect for the problem and be able to contribute to its solution.
Copies of the pamphlet are available from County Extension Agents.
In the United States, more than 225,000 miles of large-diameter pipelines have been constructed to carry natural gas from the places where it is produced to the places where it is needed. If all these lengths were put together in a single line, they would come pretty close to the moon and all the smaller gas distribution pipes were added, it would almost be enough for two round trips.

Cattle Prices May Decline

Cattle prices will probably decline somewhat and little slaughter weights will probably rise a little this fall, predicts Allen C. Wellman, University of Nebraska Extension economist (livestock marketing).
Noting agreement with a United States Department of Agriculture report on cattle weights and prices, Prof. Wellman said: "Slaughter weights may rise a little for a few weeks, then peak out at mid-summer and slide off some in the fall."
"Prices, which are now around $35 to $36, will probably come down late in the fall or early in winter, to $32 or a little lower, making for an average price of about $33 for the remainder of 1972 nationally."
The USDA report noted that cattle prices when fed cattle reached their highest peaks in 20 years, average weights were trimmed down as animals were moved to market quickly as they reached "finished" condition. However, cattle prices have retreated several dollars from mid-February highs of nearly $37 per hundredweight.
Meanwhile, because of a temptation to hold animals in feedlots a little longer in hopes of improving market prices, average weights have risen, according to the USDA.
The USDA report indicated that in April, choice steers sold at Omaha averaged 1,154 pounds, a 30-pound gain per head since February and a 20-pound boost since March.
"Too much rain" and a "squeeze on the corn crop" could affect cattle prices, Prof. Wellman said.

4-H Clubs Take Stand on Ecology

The Nebraska 4-H program took a strong stand on ecology in producing a publication made up of the gliest parts of the environment - sludge, used computer tab, cards, envelopes, pie plates, paper mill and printed form waste. In other words, the new 4-H Ecology project leader's guide is printed on totally recycled paper, according to Louie Rudman, Associate State 4-H Leader at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.
The leader's guide and membership manual delve into Nebraska's ecological problems with blunt questions and difficult assignments. The pamphlet's author, Harold Gilman, Extension agronomist (conservation) at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, said the project is designed to help young people understand the ecological problems and expanding into specifics and how to combat resulting problems.
Gilman outlines the basic problem of each area, such as litter; he asks questions such as how do we pollute the soil, what does each group contribute to the problem, and what should be done with waste materials. Two Area Youths Attend Co-Op Meet At William Jewell

Albert Hruza, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hruza, Sr., Erlson and Lynn Sevenker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Sevenker, Sr. Ord, last week attended the annual Co-Op Youth Leadership Conference of the campus of William Jewell College, Liberty, Mo.
They are among some 800 outstanding rural youth who attended the camp's four sessions. Sevenker was sponsored by Co-Op Oil, Ord and Hruza by Farmers Cooperative Elevator, Ord.
The camp program is designed to develop leadership abilities, to teach good citizenship and increase understanding of farmer cooperatives and to provide plenty of fun.
Farmland Industries, with headquarters in nearby Kansas City, sponsors this event.
Youth at camp are from 17 midwestern states which have farmer cooperatives that own and operate Farmland Industries, a regional cooperative manufacturing petroleum, feed, fertilizer and other farm supplies.
Campers arrived at William Jewell on May 31 for registration, games and swimming. The following morning they toured Farmland Industries facilities in the Kansas City area. From June 1 through June 5 they participated in regular camp activities ranging from athletics to group discussions. Campers themselves plan and conduct much of the camp program and even establish their own rules through their Camp Senate. Campers learn how a co-op functions by organizing and operating a Co-op Canteen during their camping period.
Patches of weeds and sunflowers, as well as grain, provide food for whitebait quail.

These youngsters then are eligible for a random drawing for two prizes: either a $25.00 U.S. Savings Bond, or an expense-paid weekend for an entire family at the Newman Guest Ranch at Stuart.
The winner will be announced on Friday, September 15th, on Carhoun Corral.
Nearly $4,000.00 was raised during the summer of 1971 by youngsters who participated in the summer "Carnivals Against Dys trophy".

TAKING A LESSON—Doug Moody, seated on the tractor, takes some pointers from Greeley County Extension Agent Lee Neilson, on tractor operation. Thirty-nine boys and one girl completed the course held here last week.

Forty Youths Finish Course

A total of 40 youth completed an Occupational Safety Training Course held last week at the Valley County Fairgrounds. The course included 24 hours of classroom and field training in farm equipment. Special emphasis was placed on tractors and tractor safety.

County Extension Agent John Schade said that those youths who have completed the course are now eligible to drive farm tractors and to operate farm equipment but they may not drive automobiles unless they have reached the age of 16. They also cannot apply chemicals or anything toxic. Schade also indicated that since the course has been taught in Valley County approximately 200 youths have completed the course and none have been involved in a serious farm related accident.

Instructors included Schade and Greeley County Extension Agent Lee Neilson, Garfield County Extension Agent Dean Robinson, Norris Lange, and Vocational Agriculture Instructors Frank Andressen, Ord, Don Philip, Burwell and Rollin Essman, North Loup-Scotia.

Those who have completed the course include:

ORD — Charles Biskeborn, Arthur Duvall, Paul Hansen, George Hruza, Bill Karre, Jim Lola, Curtis Schauer, Jim Winterefeld and Jerry Zulkoski.

BURWELL — Lex Bratka, Richard Buhke, Duane Dearmont, Darrel Fisher, Delbert Freeman, Daryl Gompert, Blane Lowe, Verlon Robbins, Craig Strickman, Michael Svoboda, and Leonard Wunderlich.

AMELIA — Keith Alan Barthel and Weston Barthel.

SPALDING — Daniel Bopp, Mark Henry, Michael Hitchler, and John Zwiener.

GREENE — Douglas Moody.

ERICKSON — Bryan Anderson and Dennis Hruza.

ALMERIA — Dwight Bowers.

KEEP FIGURES HANDY

Every farmer and rancher should be armed with facts and figures to knock down the misinformation that continues to be so prevalent about "high food prices," even in Nebraska where people should know better.

Temporarily the clamor to apply price controls to farm commodities, particularly meat, has subsided, but it is still there as witness the fact that several times a week letters from housewives and wage earners appear in the metropolitan newspapers complaining that farmers are getting rich and inferring that they have some sort of god-given right to the world's best food at a rock bottom price.

Typical of the attitude was the housewife featured on a national television network for her testimony before the Price Commission asking for controls on food prices. Asked if she had listened to the testimony of the livestock producers who had testified that day, she said no because she wasn't interested in facts and figures, she just knew that food prices are too high and something must be done about them.

A national magazine article this winter splashed its cover with the words "Sky High Meat Prices," and then featured a story about the struggles of an Arizona family to live within its food budget... while supporting two station wagons and a luxurious home equipped with a swimming pool.

Here are some easy to remember statistics for those who complain about their food costs:

— Prices received by farmers for food products are up only 6 per cent from 20 years ago.

— Wholesale food prices are up 20 per cent from 20 years ago.

— Retail food prices are up 43 per cent from 20 years ago.

— Average wage rates per hour of production workers in manufacturing are 2.3 (230 per cent) times higher than 20 years ago — $1.56 per hour in 1951 and $3.57 for 1971.

— Average hourly earnings of food marketing employees are 2.5 times higher than 20 years ago... $1.31 then, and $3.24 in 1971.

— Imports of beef and veal have risen faster than U.S. beef production and are 1.7 times larger than 10 years ago and 3.7 times larger than 20 years ago.

— Total beef production is 2 1/2 times higher than 20 years ago. Farmers marketed 8.8 billion pounds of beef in 1951 and 21.9 billion pounds in 1971.

— Beef supplies per capita are twice as large as 20 years ago. Beef consumption per capita was 56.1 pounds in 1951 and was 114.3 pounds in 1971.

— Farmers' costs have gone up tremendously. Farmers are paying 2.3 times higher wages for help than 20 years ago. Farm machinery price levels are nearly double what they were 20 years ago.

— Farm real estate taxes per acre are 3.8 times higher than 20 years ago.

— Twenty years ago, consumers spent 23 per cent of their disposable income for food. This year the estimated figure is less than 16 per cent.

These kind of figures have been widely distributed in the past two months by the secretary of agriculture and by farm and livestock groups and have been helpful in halting the political steamroller that for a while seemed all set to put price ceilings on meat and other farm commodities. But they must be kept handy and updated regularly because as inflation continues (federal deficit spending virtually assures that it will), consumer interests will renew their demands, and political pressures to accede to them will be applied constantly.

Geranium Joe Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR: I see by the paper where American Telephone and Telegraph Co. in thinking of quitting afore it gets started on the picturephone, a gadget where you can see who you're talking to on the phone. The company says they ain't no public demand for this marvel of the age.

Mister Editor, somepun like this could turn this country around. Course, which way we'd take off from here is anybody's guess. I mentioned the deal about the picturephone Saturday night, and Francis Ryschon said flat out that not wanting a invention was downright unAmerican. He said it's allus been in this country that if somebody makes somepun different everybody wants it.

Clothes is one example Dick Peterson give fer the problems a thing like turning down the picturephone can cause. What if folks was content with the clothes they got jest because they cover em and keep em warm? What would that do to the economy of this country? Dick wanted to know. If folks waited until they needed a new car to buy one, the auto industry would be sucked down the drain inside of two year, was Dick's perdition.

Gust Poth was agreed that not going in debt fer a picturephone is dangerous thinking. I imagine, cause you didn't need the thing said Gust, what it would do to Congressional appropriations if the American people decided we can do without a 2,000 miles a hour airplane, and that whatever the moon and mars has got ain't worth going after. If this is allowed to spread, went on Gust, no part of the country's economy will be safe from the threat.

Fer instant, Gust said, Government is subject to be a victim of this strange turn of events. Suppose the Administration was to come up with a freeze on Government spending as a way to fight inflation, stead of putting the squeeze on wages and prices? He said if that happened it could lead to other discoveries, like public assistance programs that lumped together can mean a annual income of $21,000 fer a family with eight younguns.

General speaking, the fellers felt AT&T had ought to go ahead with the picturephone fer the good of the country. Actual, I'm surprised that a outfit that big went about the hole deal backwards. I thought everybody knows you got to create the desire fer a product, and then make the product. It would be been a real simple matter for the telephone company to put one picturephone in one neighborhood after running a series of ads in the papers telling what a joy it would be to see grandma while you talked with her.

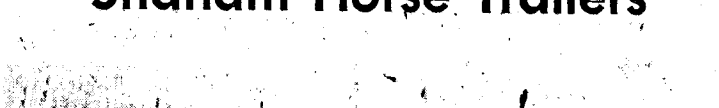

No sooner would the family renting the picturephone invite the neighbors over to make a call than everybody in the country would be been standing in line to plank down their grocery money fer one.

Course, Mr. Ford didn't ask me about making the Edsel neither.

Yours truly

Children to Be Warned of Rabies in Farm Animals

Dr. N. W. Kruse, State Veterinarian reported today, that his office has received word from practicing veterinarians of several suspicious cases of Rabies in skunks and farm animals.

Kruse said, children should be cautioned against playing or handling farm animals, particularly quills, skunks, rabbits, coons, etc.

According to state law, every dog four months of age and older must be vaccinated against Rabies. Young dogs have to be vaccinated within thirty (30) days after they have reached four months of age. Dogs acquired or moved into the State of Nebraska must show proof of vaccination or be vaccinated within thirty (30) days after purchase or arrival, unless under four (4) months of age as specified.

Kruse, also, stated that every dog is required to be revaccinated following the designated length of immunity. The length of immunity can vary from 12 months to 36 months depending upon the type of vaccine administered and by the health requirements of a given county, township, city or village, according to Kruse.

All bites or injuries encountered in handling animals should be reported to a physician or local health authorities.

For further information or assistance, please contact your local veterinarian.

Burwell Show Set for July 8

Dates and locations of 10 Nebraska District 4-H horse shows have been announced by R. B. Warren, University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension horse specialist. Warren also announced a change in preliminary judging procedures in the Pleasure and Horsemanship classes.

Riders must qualify for State Fair or Ak-Sar-Ben 4-H horse competition by receiving a purple or blue ribbon in a district 4-H show. The district shows are set up to accommodate a 4-H horse project members in a given area, to provide a workable show for the audience, and numbers, yet still maintain a reasonable driving distance. With a total 1971 Four-H enrollment of 4,925, potential entries from a single district range from 345 in the Lincoln County district to 644 in the Seward area.

Judging procedures have been changed because large Pleasure and Horsemanship classes in past years failed to give enough individual attention to each exhibitor. Warren stated, "Each rider will be judged individually in the preliminaries in the order they draw before showtime."

According to Warren, each contestant will enter the arena alone and work his horse counterclockwise in the following pattern: go to the rail, walk ten yards, trot or jog 20, canter or lope 30, stop, back a few steps. The contestant will then retire from the arena to a blue, red, or white ribbon area. The judge will comment to the audience on the individual as he performs.

After all the contestants have worked individually, each ribbon group will return to the arena for a quick standard judging. They will then be given a final ribbon placing and be dismissed or allowed to compete again with the higher ribbon groups. The last horses in the ring would be blue awards, and perhaps a few purple, plus the medal and trophy winners of that class.

Equipment and dress rules for exhibitors are essentially the same.

The complete schedule of shows:

July 5 — Minden; July 6 — Scottsbluff; July 7 — North Platte; July 8 — Burwell; July 10 — Theedford; July 11 — Benkelman; July 12 — Wymore; July 13 — Wahoo; July 14 — Tekamah; July 15 — Seward.

All shows are tentatively scheduled to start at 9 a.m. Entry deadlines will be announced at a later date, Warren stated.

Linda with SWET Working with the Summer Work Experience and Training (SWET) in Omaha is Linda Finley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Finley.

Linda will be caring for retarded children for eight weeks and will probably be living in a nurses dormitory in Omaha. Linda graduated from Ord High School in 1972.

KERNELS & HUSKS

BY JOHN SCHADE
Valley County Agent

Each year we receive numerous calls asking if it is safe to graze rangeland or pastures that have been sprayed with 2,4-D.

There are no restrictions on grazing stalk cattle or cattle being fed for slaughter on rangeland treated with 2,4-D. There are, however, restrictions on the grazing of dairy animals. Most labels state that you should restrict dairy animals from grazing on range treated with 2,4-D for at least seven days.

So if you need to use 2,4-D on your dairy pastures — take your cows off for at least seven days.

Southern corn leaf blight (SCLB) is probably still here. The organism which causes the disease is capable of overwintering in Nebraska. It has probably survived in corn debris infected last year. There were three fields in Valley County where SCLB was positively identified in 1971.

There are no weather conditions, susceptibility of host plants, and the presence of the infectious organisms. One of these situations is already present. Most of you planted "N" cytoplasm seed. But we have no control over the weather. All we can do is wait.

If you planted either "T" cytoplasm or "B" (a blend of "N" and "T") cytoplasm seed you better keep a watchful eye on your corn fields this year. Check them early. Take a few minutes to get out of the pickup and walk your corn fields every week.

June is Dairy Month. Did you ever wonder how the first cheese came about?

History tells us that an Arabian merchant filled a pouch made of a sheep stomach with milk and took off across the street on a long day's journey.

That night his milk had separated into curd and whey... aided by the heat and the rennet remaining in the pouch.

He drank the whey to quench his thirst and he ate the curd, or cheese, because he liked it.

It has been reported that green bugs are damaging seedling sorghums in southeast and south-central Nebraska. None found in this area yet. But lets keep a close check on emerging milo and other sorghums.

You're looking for that yellow green aphid with a black stripe down his back and dark feet. Large milo, nearing the heading stage can take a relatively heavy infestation. But newly emerged seedlings can be wiped out with only a few aphids per plant.

Green Thumb Tip: Home owners and lawn and garden bugs are asking for a general all around spray for their flowers, ornamentals, and vegetables.

Highly toxic or systemic materials are not recommended for use here.

For general insect control, Sevin, Diazinon, Malathion are suggested.

You can make your own mixture. Use Sevin or Diazinon or Malathion plus a fungicide such as maneb or Zeneb. This can be used on your flowers, ornamentals and vegetables. Be sure you follow instructions on the label.

If you don't like the idea of mixing these chemicals pick up one of the general fruit tree sprays. These can be used on flowers, ornamentals as well as vegetables with excellent success.

I started saving early... put something away almost every month. The money I saved then is sure handy now... I get a check every month from First Federal Lincoln. That extra interest means extra cash for the things I want to do.

Time for a Change

It seems to be becoming more and more obvious as time goes on that all is not right with the Loup City Community Action Program. It is also becoming more and more obvious that the central core of the problem is the administration of the CAP program by Administrator George Dworak. This writer, over the past two months, has become more and more convinced that perhaps it would be a good thing if Dworak would step down from his position with the Community Action Program.

Since the April 20th edition of The Quiz, a week has rarely gone by when some new development has not been reported on the mishandling of funds at the Loup City office. In the April 20th edition we reprinted a story printed by The Omaha World-Herald pertaining to mishandling of CAP funds as well as Dworak's reply to the article. We printed the story exactly as Dworak told it to the editor of this publication. Those of you who read the response by Dworak could not have helped but get the impression — from his statements — that everything was then being properly handled by the Loup City CAP office. The only thing that we did not do was go along with his request that we not use his name in the article. In our opinion it was Dworak's responsibility as administrator of a program that was being questioned by a Congressman of the United States to come out from behind the accusations and defend the program. Dworak's willingness to talk but unwillingness to be identified didn't exactly ring true to this writer at that time.

Briefly this writer would like to explain in detail the reasoning behind my feeling that Dworak should resign from his position as administrator and be replaced.

1. He told The Ord Quiz that he was making progress in righting the wrongs that a Federal audit had found when it was conducted. He gave the impression to this writer that these wrongs had been corrected as soon as he was aware of them. Popycock! We only have to look at an article released by the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO) to this newspaper last week to refute this statement. In that article Dean Lupkey, Chief of Operations of OEO for Region VII claims to have written in a letter to George Dworak: "This office would certainly not condone the failure of your agency to effect changes in your fiscal practices when the problems were pointed out by our auditors in November of 1970 and again by GAO nearly a year later." The article also points out that "All the difficulties are not yet resolved" and that it has been "revealed that while procedures for correcting the fiscal problems had been corrected, they were not implemented in some cases, or not followed in others." In other words the Loup City Community Action Program (CAP) made some corrections, but totally ignored or did not follow through on some recommendations. To this writer, the responsibility to follow these recommendations would have to rest on the shoulders of Administrator Dworak and he must shoulder the responsibility for the office not having done so.

2. Last week's article from Kansas City is the first time that anyone connected with the Loup City CAP office has admitted that repeated violations are involved. The article points out that it was in 1970 that these things were first brought out. Now, nearly two years later in 1972 we still are mired in some of the same old issues. Surely in two years time, Dworak and other workers at the Loup City CAP program have had the time needed to clean up the problem. A Congressman of the United States shouldn't have to be the one that finally brings the pressure to bear that motivates the changes. If CAP and Administrator George Dworak had the best interests of the people in mind, they would have instituted the changes at once.

3. It will undoubtedly be claimed by Dworak that he did not take over the Loup City CAP office until March of 1971. However by his own admission in the April 20 edition of The Ord Quiz, he states that he took over as ACTING DIRECTOR in December of 1970. He was also in a position of influence prior to the December 1970 date. It still appears to this writer that Dworak has had more than ample time to make the recommended changes. When he first talked to the editor of this publication after the initial World-Herald story, he tried to convince the editor that he had not had all that much control over the program prior to that time. We think that the fact that he was acting director since December of 1970 surely points to the fact that the majority of the problem has been during his administration, not during the administration of the previous director as Dworak claims.

4. And last but not least, the editor of this publication has found the attitude of Administrator Dworak somewhat lacking. This is an intangible thing, but in talking with Dworak and observing him I have found him to be seemingly unfeeling as to the situation he is in at this time. It certainly did not impress this writer at a meeting with Loup City CAP officials and Congressman Dave Martin, watching Dworak (who was not standing in a position where Martin could see him) making faces at one of his assistants everytime Martin brought up a point of contention with the Loup City CAP operation. Surely an administrator of a $900,000 plus program can find better ways of expressing himself and should certainly have paid strictest attention to the points that Martin had brought out. It also surprised me that Dworak did not speak at the meeting while this writer was there but the entire defense of the Loup City CAP operation fell on the shoulders of the lay Board of Directors. When most of the discrepancies were in administration of the program, it would seem only fair that the Administrator should have been the one to speak on the issues, not the Board of Directors. Dworak should have at least spent fifty percent of the time allotted to the Loup City CAP office in discussing the issues.

The editor of this publication feels that the reasons outlined above are ample reasons for Dworak to be replaced as Director of the Loup City Community Action Program. It is hoped that some action will be taken on this by the Kansas City OEO. — Ron Baldwin, Editor

Wanted: Street Repairs

Despite the fact that this writer has been in the community slightly less than one year, I cannot help but notice how much more rough some of the streets in the community seem to be as compared to last summer. It has also been brought to my attention by several persons who have lived in the community much longer than I have. Streets are one thing that a community should make every effort to keep up because if they are left to get too badly out of repair the bill for future maintenance can only rise. It would make much more sense to make the minor repairs now and not let them become any worse.

On several points along "M", "N" and other side streets the roads are rough, and full of chuck holes. Nothing is worse on an alignment of a car than to have to be constantly falling into the chuck-holes. The area around the Ord Township Library is one such instance that I can think of off hand.

Ord is about to launch a "Clean-Up, Paint-Up, Fix-Up Campaign." To us this seems of little effort if an effort is not made to maintain the streets. No matter how clean or painted up the community is it will make little difference to visitors if it is like driving down washboard ally every time they drive around the city. — RON

By Paul Scott

Senate critics of the U.S. arms limitation agreements will center their coming attacks on the substantial numerical advantage in strategic land and submarine based nuclear missiles provided the Soviet Union.

That's the strategy agreed to by a small group of Senators headed by Senator Henry Jackson (D. Wash.), who are deeply concerned that President Nixon went too far in granting concessions to Russia in the Moscow summit.

The Jackson group, as it is referred to here, includes Senator Barry Goldwater (R. Ariz.) and Strom Thurmond (R.S.C.), members of the influential Senate Armed Service Committee, and Senator James Buckley, the Conservative-Republican from New York.

Preliminary examination by this group of these "interim agreements", which do not require Senate approval as does the Treaty limiting anti-ballistic missiles, has raised grave questions whether they imperil the future security of the U.S.

The senators' studies show clearly that the Moscow arms agreements give the Russians tremendous advantages over the U.S. in the expansion of strategic weapons systems. Most important of these Russian advantages are:

The Moscow agreements freeze the U.S. at a four to one disadvantage comparing our overall missile payload to that of Soviet Union.

The Soviet Union has three missiles for every two of U.S. and theirs are substantially larger. The agreements guarantees that this gap will continue and likely widen.

Soviet missiles carry payloads several times larger than U.S. These agreements not only protect the Soviet advantage, but authorizes them to increase it.

The agreements forbid U.S. to increase number of submarines but authorizes the Soviets to continue building them until they first equal and then greatly surpass U.S.

The Jackson group is now readying a reply to the Nixon Administration's main argument in defense of the Moscow arms accords. This argument is that the U.S. now has twice the number of nuclear warheads than the Soviets.

In countering this argument, the Jackson group plans to show that the arms agreements reached in Moscow are tailor-made to help the Russians overcome this U.S. lead in the shortest amount of time. Their memorandum, citing the Soviet advantages, puts it this way:

we now have more warheads than the Soviets; for under the agreements they are not only free to multiply their warheads, but they are authorized to expand greatly the overall missile capability that makes such multiplication possible.

Linking The Issues — Whether the Jackson group will be able to force changes in these strategic arms limitation agreements is highly debatable since the President did not include them in the ABM treaty he plans to send to the Senate.

The "interim agreements" covering the strategic weapons are known as executive agreements which do not need Senate approval. Because of this Presidential maneuver, the only course open to the Jackson group is to link their attacks against the agreement to the ABM Treaty. They could do this by threatening to hold up the ABM Treaty until the President agrees to renegotiate changes in the strategic weapons agreements.

The Jackson group will try to establish this link by presenting a strong case to the Senate that the concessions granted the Soviets in the strategic weapons agreements increase the need for a U.S. ABM system in order to protect our land-based ICBMs.

It will be their argument that either the ABM treaty or the "interim agreements" must be changed.

The ABM Treaty — In their study of the anti-ballistic missile (ABM) limitation Treaty, the Jackson group noted:

The agreement prevents the U.S. from an effective ABM defense of its missile sites, while permitting the Soviets to expand their Moscow-area system and their strategic weapons capability.

The reference to the "Moscow-area" ABM system will be stressed by the Senators to show that this system is designed to defend a sizeable portion of Russia in addition to the Soviet Capitol.

The U.S. has no similar ABM defense for Washington or any region of the country.

Since the Joint Chiefs of Staff were opposed to the concessions the President made to the Russians, the Jackson group is now trying to determine how many of them will publicly oppose the "interim agreements".

Should one or more of the President's military advisers publicly come out against the strategic arms accord, the Senators believe there would then be a good chance of forcing the President to renegotiate them. Without the public help of the military, however, the odds are heavily against either forcing a delay in the Senate ratification of the ABM Treaty or forcing any changes in the strategic weapons agreements.

How Not to Reduce

And when you go nibbling, what do you nibble? When your stomach starts talking between meals, or perhaps it only grabs with a siftable twinge to indicate you forgot to eat breakfast? When you open that ice box door what do you reach for?

Are you a milk drinker? Do you down a cool tall glass of milk? I'm not for cold milk, but I do like a glass of hot milk, especially at bedtime. Salt heavily.

Do you make a good old peanut butter sandwich? Do you sneak a slice of cake? Do you look in the cookie jar, alas, it's empty.

Do you slice off a little cheese and get the crackers? I have a brother-in-law who regularly arises from his bed every middle of the night to eat cheese and crackers. He declares it puts him right back to sleep.

Then there's graveyard stew, I love it. That consists of one large bowl of hot milk with a goodly hunk of butter in it, plus toast on the side to dunk if you're a dunker. I'm not, except in this instance.

Another good late night lunch is a Denver sandwich. You don't know what a Denver sandwich is? It is one or two beaten eggs poured into the skillet after a bit of chopped onion and a bit of chopped bacon have cooked therein. Add them. Do drain off most of the bacon fat please. Remember your cholesterol!

If you have enough people to make it worthwhile you can't beat scrambled eggs. (How's that for a play on words?) I learned how to make what I consider superlative eggs from a girl named Stella who used to help me.

Like this: break the eggs and beat them vigorously. Then add a tablespoon of milk or cream for each egg or even a trifle more if you don't care for them too egg-y. Season with herb salt if you believe in it... (this is my own touch). Pour into a pan that is hot but not blistering so. And let them rest gently, simmer slowly. Do NOT stir until they form around the edges of the pan, then lift easily in big sections. Don't beat at them. Simply lift them and turn once in a while until you like the consistency.

Of course I can't let any recipe be, so I often pop in little squares of cheese to get melty. A chopped ripe tomato at the last minute (don't cook it) lends color and a delicious lively flavor. I've been known to add chopped bacon or chopped ham, even bologna isn't too bad.

Season it however you like, salt and maybe coarse ground pepper. That lemon-pepper salt is pretty good in there. A touch of tabasco if you're feeling Mexican, but in that case add a crumpled-up hot little red pepper or some Jalapenos... and in that case look out!

Well I suppose I've made you hungry and here you were determined to reduce this week. My best wishes, —Irma While browsing through a religious book store in Chicago a few weeks ago, I happened to spot the famed "Desiderata" on parchment paper and decided to pick up a copy. The passage, printed several months ago in this column, has always been a favorite of mine. It's the inscription found in old Saint Paul's Church in Baltimore, and was dated 1692.

About the time the clerk was wrapping my original purchase, I started reading another poster on the desk behind the counter. "Is THAT for sale, too?" I queried. It was — so the clerk wrapped it, also.

The second scroll I'd never seen previously, though it's supposedly Karma, meaning it's a doctrine of responsibility of Buddhist or Hindu origin. I enjoyed it so much, personally, I'd like to share it with my readers. Its title of "Anyways" will be understood if you finish the entire passage:

People are unreasonable, illogical and self-centered. Love them anyway!

With Memorial Day over with for another year and with the Fourth of July holiday rapidly drawing upon us it may be a good idea for us to stop and reflect on the words of Abraham Lincoln written during the strife of the American Civil War.

"It is the duty of nations as well as of men to own their dependence upon the overruling power of God; to confess their sins and transgressions in humble sorrow, yet with assured hope that genuine repentance will lead to mercy and pardon; and to recognize the sublime Truth announced in the Holy Scriptures and proven by all history, that these nations only are blessed.

"And inasmuch as we know that by His Divine Law, nations, like individuals, are subjected to punishments and chastisements in this world, may we not justly fear that the awful calamity of Civil War which now desolates the land may be but a punishment inflicted upon us for our presumptuous sins, to the needful end of our national reformation as a whole people?"

"We have been the recipients of the choicest bounties of Heaven. We have been preserved this many years in peace and prosperity. We have grown in numbers, wealth and power as no nation has ever grown; but we have forgotten God, and we have forgotten His law."

"We have forgotten the Gracious Hand that preserved us in peace, and multiplied and enriched and strengthened us; and we have vainly imagined, in deceitfulness of our hearts that all these blessings were produced by some superior virtue and by our own arms. Intoxicated with unbroken success, we have become too self-sufficient to feel the necessity of redeeming and preserving Grace, too proud to pray to the God that made us."

"It behoves us then, to humble ourselves before the offended Power, to confess our national sins, and to pray for clemency and forgiveness."

While Lincoln may have penned the words over 100 years ago, they still are meaningful and appropriate today.

TO GAY

Run girl run,
 but where'ever you may go
 This one thing remember and this one thing know,
 Run girl run,
 my love you'll always carry
 And if you return
 I'll ask you again to marry.
 Run girl run,
 where will you go to hide?
 For my love is flowing as constant as the tide,
 Run girl run,
 for this love you yearn,
 I'll still be here awaiting your return.
 Run girl run,
 you think your running helps me,
 But I'm chained by love
 I just can't be free.
 Run girl run,
 run back into my arms,
 Bringing back to me
 your love and your charms.

This Week's Meditation

READ LUKE 2:39-52

"The Creator made them from the beginning male and female. For this reason a man shall leave his father and mother and be made one with his wife, (Matthew 19:4-5; NEB)

There are some films which reach the heart. One that I saw portrayed a young minister doing an unusual thing. He called on all married couples present at church one morning to stand and hold hands. Some obeyed instantly. Others seemed resentful.

Then he asked them to repeat after him the age-old marriage vows. "for better, for worse, for richer for poorer, in sickness and health. Again they hesitated; but, with urging from the preacher, they repeated the beautiful, solemn words — vows that have carried thousands of couples through all the trials of married life, until death claimed one or the other. His sermon which followed was along the lines of the necessity for love, pity sympathy, and gratitude.

We should begin every day with the realization that we need to recognize our blessings, to thank God for them, and to show our gratitude in a practical way. Only then can we really claim to be a Christian parent or family.

PRAYER: Eternal Father, we are grateful for our loved ones, and for what we call the common blessings of life. Help us to be thankful by showing more kindness to all around us. Amen.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY Now is the time to express love. — Herbert Wood, Ontario, Canada

Children to Be Warned of Rabies in Farm Animals

Dr. N. W. Kruse, State Veterinarian, reported today that his office has received word from practicing veterinarians of several suspicious cases of Rabies in skunks and farm animals.

He said children should be cautioned against playing or handling wild animals, particularly quills, skunks, rabbits, coons, etc.

According to state law, every dog four months of age and older must be vaccinated against Rabies. Young dogs have to be vaccinated within thirty (30) days after they have reached four months of age. Dogs acquired or moved into the State of Nebraska must show proof of vaccination or be vaccinated within thirty (30) days after purchase or arrival, unless under four (4) months of age as specified.

Kruse, also, stated that every dog is required to be revaccinated following the designated length of immunity. The length of immunity can vary from 12 months to 36 months depending upon the type of vaccine administered and by the health requirements of a given county, township, city or village, according to Kruse.

All bites or injuries encountered in handling animals should be reported to a physician or local health authorities.

Here This Weekend to Feature Fun For All

The second annual Ord Land-Sea-Air-Sport and Travel Show will be held here this weekend and the 1972 program promises to be a much bigger bonanza than the 1971 inaugural affair. The program has been expanded to a two-day affair with activities beginning on Saturday and running through Sunday. There should be plenty of activities for young and old alike.

A special highlight of the two day affair will take place at 2 p.m. Saturday afternoon when the Highway 70 Dedication will be held on the North Side of the Courthouse Square. Both state and local officials are expected to lend a helping hand.

BIKES, BOATS AND CARS

The Elyria bridge is located two miles north on the Fort Hartshoff Road and the race will end at the Highway 70 Bridge East of Ord. ANTIQUES TO FLY IN
According to Chamber of Commerce Manager Bill French several antique planes will fly in from across the state to particiipate in the Ord show. Among those expected to be shown are:

— An 1895 Glider from the pre-Wright Brothers era. The glider was reconstructed by Charles Zenger.
— A 1912 Breezy owned by Don Terry and John Bower, both of Grand Island.
— A "Sail plane, owned by Bill McKee, Lexington.
— A Mustang owned by John Bower, Grand Island.
— A 1929 Arrow Sports Biplane owned by Dr. Roy Cram, Burwell.

In addition to the ones mentioned, French indicated he is hoping that there will be antique planes in from Hastings, Kearney, McCook, Norfolk and Ravenna.

French also said the planes will be on display at the Evelyn Sharp Field throughout the air show.

Last year the only thing that Ord had was the air show and the success and experience gained in that first show should guarantee that this year's show Sunday at 1 p.m. will be even better than last year's. Once again, Broken Bow native Dr. Charlie Carothers will be the headline attraction as he performs his aerobatic show. Dr. Carothers performs in shows throughout the summer months and Ord is considered fortunate in having him for two years in a row.

Also on hand will be the Lincoln Sport parachute club and the Lincoln Sky Knights. The Lincoln Sky Knights is a group that presents shows using radio controlled model airplanes. The planes swoop as low as inches from spectators heads and according to French the model planes are able to perform snap rolls, dog flights, and the Sky Knight shows are termed "every bit as good as the big planes, put on."

In addition many new planes will be displayed such as Piper, Beech Craft and Cessna.

Proceeding the show on Sunday will be a fly-in, drive-in breakfast from 7:30 a.m. to 10 a.m. and a spot landing contest at 11 a.m.

State Officials in Attendance at North Loup

Highway Appreciation Banquet Held Last Week

By RON BALDWIN, Quiz Editor

NORTH LOUP — The Highway 22 Appreciation Banquet was held here last Wednesday. The event, long anticipated by area residents, was attended by state and local dignitaries including Nebraska Director of State Engineering Thomas Doyle.

The event was sponsored by the North Loup Lions Club and despite the sweltering heat, over 150 persons attended the festivities. The banquet was held to honor those who either donated or sold land for right-of-ways for the ultra-modern span that was opened just last winter. The newly improved section of road is a major renovation of a long existing highway that was in need of desperate repair before a group of concerned citizens, the Valley County Board of Supervisors and the Nebraska Department of Roads joined hands to repair the span.

Other state officials on hand besides Doyle were Thane Davis, Chairman of the State Advisory Highway Commission, Jack Reed, District Engineer, Grand Island; Andy Meece, District Construction Engineer, Grand Island; Ben Bouhy, Project Engineer, Broken Bow; and Bernard O. McBride, Right of Way Agent, Lincoln.

MOMENTS OF FUN

Will Foy Jr., chairman of the Highway 22 Appreciation Commission, noted that "three years ago our road here was worse than others." He said that several times farmers in the area had to get tractors to help pull stranded motorists out of the mud.

"I don't feel there is a better road in the State of Nebraska," commented the hard working chairman of the project. "All I hear from people that drive through Poppeters, the R and L Amusement Co. and, of course, the famous beef barbecue, were just a few of the things to do at Scotia last week. "missed his own turnoff" because landscaping had undergone such drastic change because of the new highway development. He noted that many persons along the improved passageway have remodeled homes and made general improvements so that not only is the road improved but the general area as well.

DOYLE GIVES ADDRESS

Doyle was the main speaker at the event. In his opening comment he noted that he "appreciated having the opportunity to speak at North Loup." In a witty reference to Foy's "confession" that he had made the wrong turnoff many times because landscaping changes on the new highway, Doyle commented that "while Foy may not know where he is going all the time, he will certainly get there faster."

Doyle also commented that Ord State Senator Rudolph Kokes has been "very good" in working on the project with the highway department. Doyle said he felt that those present at the banquet owed Kokes a big "thank-you" for all the work he has put in on the highway improvement.

NEBRASKA — THE GOOD LIFE

"This accomplishment," continued the State Engineering boss, "is a good example of why Nebraska can justly claim to have the good life. This was a very worthwhile project and we got enough people interested in it to get the job done. It goes to prove that once we begin cooperating with one another, we can get a lot more done."

Doyle continued, "What you have done here in the North Loup area will be recognized and be a source of encouragement to others with similar problems."

Doyle also gave the large audience some interesting statistics. "Eighty percent of the project's right-of-ways were provided to the State at a cost of only one dollar. You people here wanted something done and you were willing to make contributions. This is important," he added.

THIRTY TRIPS MADE

Doyle also pointed out that the local project commission made at least 30 trips to Lincoln to visit with either himself or Gov. Exon on the project.

He noted that while citizens in such a situation are legally entitled to more compensation, the urge to have a bad road replaced spurred the people to action. He estimated that the people in the construction area saved the State of Nebraska a total of $60,000. He noted this enabled the money to be spent in other areas. He said for instance that the $60,000 that the state saved on right-of-ways for the highway 22 project provided two miles of hard surfacing on another road.

"You have made a big step in helping Nebraska achieve a good life for everyone," added Doyle. "As a result of this, people will spend more time and money here."

Her attendants were Mary Jane Johnson, Barb Bredthauer, Sonja Winter, and Mary Keller. The queen coronation highlighted two days of activities in Scotia. A teen dance, parade, kids races, pony pulling matches, the Playhouse Puppeteers, the R and L Amusement Co. and, of course, the famous beef barbecue, were just a few of the things to do at Scotia last week. ## Sobon Responds To Osentowski

Jim Sobon, Ord Chief of Police, has issued a statement concerning remarks made by retiring City Councilman Dr. F. J. Osentowski about the use of radar within the city by the Ord Police Department. In his statement to the City Council, Osentowski expressed the feeling that signs should be posted on all entry ways into the city advertising the fact that the city is radar patrolled.

"This equipment was purchased by Valley County through matching funds and placed at the disposition of Sheriff Clarence Fox," said Chief Sobon. "He is permitting the police the use of the equipment at no cost."

GAIN EXPERIENCE

Sobon went on to explain that the Ord Police Department is using the equipment and logging hours to "gain experience in its use."

"No arrests have been made," noted Sobon, "but drivers who have been clocked driving in excess of the posted limits have been stopped and informed that they have been clocked by radar."

"If, in the future it becomes necessary to use radar," continues Sobon, "the officers will be proficient in its use. At no time will the equipment be used as a speed trap, as the officers are interested mainly in the heavy footed drivers, local or otherwise."

In completing his statement to The Quiz Sobon added, "In reference to the posting of signs designating that radar is being used in checking speed, this matter has already been taken up with the Department of Roads and their assistance has been asked for in the proper wording and placement of such signs."

Valley County Fair Dates July 25-27

Fair Is Now $500 Richer

The Valley County Fair at Ord, Neb., has received $500 from Ak-Sar-Ben as the fourth and final contribution to the new exhibit building, according to president E. J. Lange and secretary Edmund H. Huffman of the Loup Valley Agricultural Society.

The Ak-Sar-Ben County Fair Improvement Program, now in its nineteenth year, is one of a series of projects of financial assistance to county fairs made possible by funds from Ak-Sar-Ben's annual race meeting, according to Richard H. Becker, Acting General Manager of Ak-Sar-Ben.

The popular county fair program follows the "dollar-matching" principle, in that Ak-Sar-Ben agrees to grant $500 to each county fair which agrees to match this with at least an equal amount. In the past, most of the counties taking advantage of these grants have raised far more than $500, resulting in improved facilities.

Ak-Sar-Ben has set aside $45,000 for the improvement program. In addition, another $50,000 is allocated for 4-H and PFA premiums. Also, all state admission taxes at the Ak-Sar-Ben Races are earmarked each year for the county fairs.

The first eighteen-year period of Ak-Sar-Ben's assistance program has seen over $2,700,000 spent to benefit the county fairs.

NOTICE — A Red Cross fund drive to assist those who lost their homes in the Rapid City, S.D. area has been started with a national goal set at $5,000,000. Residents in the North Loup Valley can contribute to this fund by leaving their donations at the First National Bank, Ord or at the McDonald Store.

All money donated will be used in assisting in making repairs and replacement of the damaged homes.

CAROL'S CORNER
by Carol Leggett

It's just around the corner . . . that all-important day when the entire family gets set to honor Dear Ole Dad.

A lot has been said of this man who could be referred to as a mender of toys and leader of boys, or the changer of fuses, mover of couches, pounder of nails, teller of tales, hanger of screens, raker of leaves and the fixer of bikes. But perhaps it is best summed up in these borrowed words:

What Is A Father? . . . A father is a thing that is forced to endure childbirth, without an anesthetic.

A father is a thing that grows when it feels good — and laughs when it's scared half to death. He never feels entirely worthy of the worship in a child's eyes. He's never quite the hero his daughter thinks — never quite the man his son believes him to be — and this worries him, sometimes. So he works too hard to try and smooth the rough places in the road for those of his own who will follow him.

Fathers grow old faster than people. Because they have to stand at the train station and wave good-bye to the uniform that climbs aboard. And while mothers can cry where it shows, fathers have to stand there and beam outside — and die inside.

Fathers have very stout hearts, so they have to be broken sometimes or no one would know what's inside.

Fathers are what give daughters away to other men who aren't nearly good enough — so they can have grandchildren that are smarter than anybody's.

Fathers fight dragons — almost daily. They hurry away from the breakfast table; off to the arena which is sometimes called an office or a workshop. There, with calloused, practiced hands they tackle the dragon with three heads: Weariness, Work and Monotony. And they never quite win the fight but they never give up.

Knights in shining armor — fathers in shiny trousers — there's little difference, as they march away to work each workday.

Good Neighbor Sam's Club Offers Unique Experiences

Campers that enjoy a good time and fellowship with others interested in the same hobby might find a new organization in the area of interest to them. The Loup Valley Good Neighbor Sam's Club is now an official organization for the area. Harold Burson is currently serving as president of the group's newly elected president with Ellis Carson serving as vice-president. Clark Weckbach as the treasurer and Lois Zapp as the secretary. Lowell Jones handles the publicity chores.

The purpose of the Sam's group is simple — to provide recreational fun in wholesome camping situations. Recently the Loup Valley Sam's Club toured the Halsey National Park for a weekend camp-out. The event featured a bonfire, song fest and plenty of popcorn. A pot luck dinner and a tour of Look Out Tower ended the weekend festivity.

Another camp-out is being planned for the weekend of July 15 and 16 when the Loup Valley Good Neighbor Sam's Club will tour Ponca State Park in extreme Northeastern Nebraska near South Sioux City. Sam club members point out that "anyone who likes to camp out is invited to attend" the July 15-16 outing.

WHY JOIN?

Camping buffs who enjoy an outdoor camping experience will probably find the Loup Valley Sam Club a beneficial thing to join. While the Loup Valley Good Neighbor Sam group is relatively new and hasn't really gotten its feet off the ground yet, achievements of similar clubs across the nation have been significant.

Some 160 families toured Mexico for 39 days in December, January and February on two separate caravans from Grand Rapids, Mich. The group saw the "best" of Mexico with the first tour spending Christmas in Mexico City and New Years on a yacht in Acapulco Bay. The entire trip costs about $365 per couple.

Good Neighbor Sam clubs however do more than just take trips. They are actively involved in promoting legislation both on the state and national level that helps promote recreation within the United States. In the State of New York for instance, under the leadership of state secretary Peggie DeLeo, the Good Sam chapters in Central New York helped to put the lid on a discriminatory state law designed to regulate snowed-out recreation. In the State of California, Good Sam's have been active in promoting the passage of a bill of rights to prohibit cities from enacting restrictive parking ordinances and other such laws, against recreational vehicles. Those are just two of the more recent efforts of Good Sam's in the legislative field.

Every month, members of Good Sam's clubs are able to receive that organization's monthly publication entitled "Hi-Way Herald." Besides giving information on various national and state rallies, the publication lists various places in states across the nation that give discounts to either Good Neighbor Sam club members or campers in general. In the June, 1972 edition for instance, several places in Sidney, Nebraska are listed that give camping discounts.

Other advantages of the Good Neighbor Sam operation include a free mail forwarding service, discount on camping supplies and accessories, discounts on park and campground fees, discounts on LP gas discounts on some gas and oil, access to the Good Sam's Discount and Accessory catalog, special insurance coverage, discounts on travel life, Campers Coachman and Motor Home Life Subscription rates, free trip routing service, plus fun and fellowship in great Good Sam rallies and caravans.

Interested persons are urged to contact any of the mentioned officers as members are being actively sought for the Good Neighbor Sam group here.

THIS IS CAMPING — The Carson camper, completely air conditioned and complete with television, is typical of many camping rigs on the road today and certainly offers a change from the old concept of camping with pitched tents with net doors. Enjoying lighter moments are Mrs. Otto Zapp, Clark Weckbach and Ellis Carson.

Hungry Mustangs Face Scotia Next

Wood River	1-1
Wolbach	1-1
Gibbon	1-1
Scotia	1-1
Ord	0-3

RESULTS LAST WEEK

Greeley 4, Ord 0
Boelus 10, Scotia 4
Wood River/Wolbach postponed to Wednesday, June 14.
St. Paul/Gibbon postponed to Wednesday, June 14.

GAMES THIS WEEK
(Favored teams as selected by The Ord Quiz in bold face.)

Scotia at Ord (Night Game)
Boelus at St. Paul
Wolbach at Greeley
Wood River at Gibbon

A victory hungry Ord Mustang team, still winless after five trips to the diamond, will go after what may be their best chance for victory this week Sunday night at Bussell Park. A new starting time, 8:15, will take the place of the 2 p.m. starting time that has been observed thus far this season.

The opponent will be neighboring Scotia. Scotia has a 1-1 record that includes a 10 to 4 loss to powerful Boelus last Sunday. Scotia is on the next to the last rung in the Sherman-Howard League, while Ord is at the bottom of the heap. An Ord win would deadlock the two teams for the cellar, while a Scotia win would give Ord sole possession of the last spot.

ONLY TWO GAMES

Only two games were played last Sunday with weather again being the major factor in the league. At Greeley, Ord played a good ball game in dropping a 4 to 0 verdict to loop leader, Greeley. At Boelus, Scotia took a 10 to 4 battering at the hands of the hosts. Wood River at Wolbach and St. Paul at Gibbon were both postponed to last night (Wednesday) because of the weather.

GREELEY TAKES WIN

Greeley took a 1 to 0 lead at the bottom of the first inning to hand the Ord Mustangs their fifth consecutive loss of the season. Greeley scored on two hits in the inning. Pitcher John Hansen scored the only Greeley run on the inning. Hansen singled but a double by Bruce Lammers put Hansen home and gave the hosts their 1 to 0 lead.

In the second inning, Greeley looked on runs by Bill Dugan and Joe Dugan to make the score 3 to 0. Greeley got two runs on just one hit in the inning.

Greeley's final tally came in the sixth inning on a run by Dave Townsend.

In the second inning, Ord got hits off of Jim Lukesh and Larry Dugan. Lukesh also got a hit in the sixth inning and in the eighth inning. For the game Ord had five hits, Greeley six.

Lukesh pitched for Ord. Rich Pota was Ord's catcher.

NORTH 9 TAYLOR 0

Ord North got on the winning side of the ledger Tuesday night to raise their record to 1-1 on the young Pony season by belting Taylor 9 to 0. According to Coach Elliot Johnson, steady pitching by Lyle Vancura and Bob Dworak was a contributing factor to the win. Taylor was allowed only two walks and they didn't get a single hit the entire evening.

Not helping the Taylor cause any was the fact that the visitors had a total of eight errors for the contest.

Troy Witherwax and Jim Smith each had 2 RBIs.

Runs were scored by Hoppes, Dworak, Rogers, Lyle Vancura, Penas and Witherwax and Suminski scored two.

North will battle South next Tuesday night at Bussell Park. The remainder of their schedules include:

NORTH — June 27: Scotia (There); July 4: Arcadia (There); July 11: Comstock (There); July 18: Sandflats (Home) and July 25: Sargent (Home).

SOUTH — June 25: Sandflats (Home); July 4: Burwell (There); July 18: Arcadia (Away) and July 25: Scotia (Home).

TWO WINS FOR SOUTH

The Ord South Pony baseball team opened their 1972 season by taking a pair of impressive league games here last week. In their first game, South thumped Sargent 20 to 4 and in their second outing, Comstock was muzzled by a 25 to 0 count in a no hit affair for Ord.

Composing the South squad this year are Jeff Quinn, pitcher; Tom Clement, catcher; Morley Koll, first base; Doug Stevens, second base; Dick Noll, second base; Brad Smith, second base; Tracy Johnson, short stop; Jim Staab, short stop; Mike Urbanovsky, third base; Jamie Swietzer, outfield; Tomper Beard, center field; Wally Porter, Herman Hopkins and Mike Fisher all in the right field; and John Miller, centerfield. The boys are coached by Larry Goodenough and Darrel Smith.

Jeff Quinn was the winning pitcher for the South-Sargent battle. The talented athlete also hit an infield home run to top the evening's effort. Mike Urbanovsky hit a triple. The big inning for South was the second inning that saw ten runs scored. Frank Johnson and Mike Urbanovsky combined forces on the mound later in the week, for a 25 to 0 shutout of Comstock. To add to the sweet taste of victory was the fact that the boys were able to pitch a no hit game.

In the first inning Ord South jumped into an unbelievable 12 to 0 lead over the visitors. South got three runs in the second, three runs in the third and six runs in the fourth in the shortened contest. Every man scored for the contest with Brad Smith getting five runs, two in the first inning.

Ord Girls Get Ready

According to Coaches Sue Ebmeier and Jane Edwards, two women's softball teams have been started in Ord. Games will be played with neighboring towns during the season, and Mrs. Edwards promised to keep The Quiz posted on scheduling a game results.

Members of Team II include Angela Wilson, Jean Klanecky, Mary Lonowski, Rhona Wieser, Sue Stiger, Mary Timmerman, Barbara Goodsell, Dona Voyek, Pat Stetham and Kathy Smith.

Members of Team I are Lyn Newland, Debbie Brown, Jean Hyde, Cindy Green, Leilia Plate, Phyllis Dyer, Rowena Gydesen, Cindy Wolatzevski, Chris Rowland and Kathy Lola.

Coaches indicated they were particularly pleased with the help they have received via donations that enabled the teams to purchase equipment.

Softballers Get 2 Wins

The Ord softball team raised its record to 3-2 on the year with double victories last week. On Wednesday the Ord team exploded for 24 runs to only five for the Wolbach Bombers. The Ord 24 point scoring spree was produced with a total of 21 hits.

The game was shortened to just five innings because of the ten run rule.

Ron Drudik lead the Ord attack by hitting two home runs. Loren Vancura had one homer.

Later in the week, the Men's softball team nipped Greeley 11 to 8 on the Hornet's own field. Bredthauer was the battery keeper.

Ord took the lead in the first inning 2 to 0 but fell behind in the fourth inning by a 7 to 2 count. A rally in the sixth inning produced four Ord runs. In the seventh inning, Ord scored five runs for the final score of 11 to 8.

In the final inning Keyser struck out three Hornet batters. He also allowed only three hits throughout the game for a fine pitching effort.

Captain and Mrs. Allen Troyer of Eglin Air Force Base, Fla., arrived at the Dillo Troyer residence Sunday, and will be here for about 10 days to 2 weeks.

This Week For Ord

June 15 — Arcadia (Comstock Home)
June 16 — Wolbach (There)
June 18 — Callaway (Three Midgets only)

The Ord Legion baseball teams got back on the winning road last week by breaking losing streaks at Bussell Park. The Ord Juniors broke a three game losing slump by out hitting Ravenna 7 to 4 in a North Central Association contest while the Midgets dropped a 14 to 11 tilt but in their next action, Coach Gary Klanecky's crew broke a four game losing streak to edge Scotia 8 to 7.

JUNIORS GET RAVENNA

In the Junior contest between Ord and Ravenna, Ord was led by the three run effort of Bob Peterson. Ord did not manage to get onto the scoreboard until the third inning on runs by Paul Markley and Peterson. Two errors aided Ord's cause in the third inning. Ravenna also scored two runs in the third inning with Bacus and Betke both crossing the homeplate for the visitors.

Peterson doubled in the fifth inning and was able to get a run before Dave John, Rich Hruza and Don Hulinsky were excited to retire the side. Finkle scored runs in the fifth inning for the hosts to still cling to a 4 to 3 lead entering the sixth inning.

Regardless of what else Ord may have done thus far in the season, the Juniors have established that the later innings of the game are "theirs." In the sixth inning, Ord salted the game away by scoring four runs. Leon Brechbill, Markley, Peterson and Tom Klanecky crossed the plate for Ord. In the sixth inning, Ord got four hits and were lead by doubles by Peterson and Klanecky.

Baseball

Ord Mustangs vs. Scotia

Sunday

ing, pitcher Dean Vancura quickly struck out Pota, Finkle and Heryera to seal the win.

GOOD START, BAD ENDING

In the Midget contest between Ord and Ravenna, Ord got off to a good start by scoring nine runs in the first-inning. Neal Gogan, Doug Wolfe, Galen Michalski, Harry Zulkoski, Jerry Collier, Bill Gogan and Jerry Weverka all scored for Ord. Gogan and Wolfe got two runs in the explosive start.

In the same inning, however, Ravenna got two runs by the Unick brothers.

In the second inning, Ravenna came to life by scoring eight runs to take a 10 to 9 lead. The first six batters, the Unick brothers, Reissland, Arken, Obermiller, Carstens, and Rasmussen all scored runs in the inning. Also scoring for Ravenna in the inning was Klien and Farison. Carstens hit a homerun and Klien a double to spark the effort.

Ord got just two more runs in the contest, that being run by Michalski and Neal Gogan. Ravenna meanwhile got runs in the third and fourth to take the win. Wolf and Michalski shared honors on the mound for Ord while Ravenna was led in the pitching department by the Unick brothers.

AT LAST A WIN

The Midget's four game losing skid came to a welcome end later in the week when Scotia was nipped by an 8 to 7 score. Runs for Ord were scored by Neal Gogan (2), Doug Wolfe (2), Greg Suelter (2), Bill Gogan (1) and Tim Sevensen (1). Scotia runs were scored by Dev Hansen (2), Johnson (1), Holt (1), Freeman (1) and Marshall (1).

Ord took the lead in the third inning 4 to 0 on runs by Neal Gogan, Wolfe, Suelter and Sevensen.

Two more runs in the fifth, one run in the sixth and one in the seventh aided the win. The score was tied 7 to 7 in the final inning when Neal Gogan got the winning run.

The win raised the Midgets to 2-4 in North Central Association play and 2-5 overall.

BURWELL 9 NORTH 1

Ord North lost their first baseball outing of the 1972 season by dropping a road contest to Coach Elliot Johnson of the North squad. Burwell scored two runs in the first inning and broke the game open in the second inning with six runs in the bottom of the second inning. North's lone counter came in the top of the second on a run by Bob Dworak.

Coach Johnson attributed the Burwell win to the fact that Burwell had a much larger pitcher and catcher. Lyle Vancura at the pitching mound and Jim Penas as a catcher were two players cited as having outstanding performances for North.

Four Boys To Omaha

Bill Hopkins, John Adams, Dan Marlin and Doug Stephens will represent the Ord District in the State Pitch, Hit and Throw competition in Omaha this weekend. The State Pitch, Hit and Throw contest will be held at the spacious Burke High School Field, site of this year's State Men's High School Track and Field meet. The Burke High Stadium is located at 120th and Dodge.

Young Hopkins won in the 9 year old division and Alan Lewis, Scotia, was named runner-up in the same division. In the 10 year old class, John Adams was the winner and Ron Svoboda, Burwell, was the runner-up. The 11 year old championship was won by Dan Martin and Stan DeLashmunt, Burwell, was named runner-up. In the 12 year old class, Doug Stephens was the winner and Ord's Troy Witherwax was named runner-up. All the winners list Ord as their address.

According to the Performance Stop owner and manager Del Lonowski, who sponsored the local contest, the boys had to throw the ball once, pitch the ball five times, and had to hit two fly balls on five chances. The boys were scored on distance and accuracy.

The boys had plenty of competition in each class. Following is a complete list of participants as provided to The Quiz by Lonowski.

Quiz Editor

Last week The Ord Quiz carried a story on the Board of Education meeting in which it was mentioned that a school administrator had requested the School Board to do away with activity tickets. While I do sympathize with the school somewhat on this issue, I cannot go along totally with the reasoning behind their wishes to do this. I still feel that activity tickets for junior and senior high school students are relevant and worthwhile.

One of the first arguments presented on behalf of doing away with the activity tickets is that kids "frequently forget their activity tickets therefore they have to sign their names and high school principal Dave Van Nordheim has to spend the next week collecting the money." The solution here is very simple — if the student forgets his activity ticket he pays up, no arguments or questions asked. I would like to see a student at the University of Nebraska try to get in if he "forgot" his activity ticket. Ord should be no different.

The second argument presented is that school officials feel they are "baby sitting" for about five cents an hour. Let's face it, we will never get rid of that problem. As long as parents are content to dump their grade school age children unsupervised onto others, it will continue to be a problem. The problem is evident during the Junior-Midget baseball games. Dr. William Gogan, who is directing the Legion program here, is constantly having to chase kids from the concession stand roof, and trying to keep them from running through the stands. The problem is the same during football and basketball. Until parents take the responsibility to teach their children manners and see to it the children are supervised we will continue to have that problem. Taking away activity tickets from Junior and Senior high school students certainly will not solve that problem! I am not so sure that it wouldn't be more fair to raise the rates for grade school admission from 25 cents to 50 cents or even 75 cents. After all, it is the grade school kids that cause the majority of the problems, not the senior high and junior high students.

The third major argument for doing away with the activity ticket is to my way of thinking, the weakest. That is "students have the money to buy beer, candy and cigarettes therefore they can afford to pay admission to the games." Here we are talking about a MINORITY group of students and are advocating punishing the MAJORITY. Surely this doesn't even approach a democratic procedure!

A minority group of students probably do this, (and are these the ones who even go to the games?) however I am a firm believer that the over-all majority of the kids here are good kids (the administrators are also constantly telling me this) and such a generalization is unfair and totally irrelevant. A far better excuse than this will have to be thought of for justification of doing away with the activity tickets.

And finally the fourth major argument advocated for doing away with activity tickets is that not enough tickets are sold. It would appear to me however that those that are buying the tickets are probably putting them to good use. Also if a stricter enforcement of making the kids pay if they didn't have the tickets were put into effect, more might be sold. Many times I have stood in line and watched a high school kid go through the gate at the football field and or the gym and tell the high school kids taking the money that "they left their ticket at home" and they were just waved through WITHOUT signing anything or paying anything. Now, with a system like that, who needs a ticket? Several times I wondered how the ticket taker could know if the student REALLY had an activity ticket or not.

Ord has several large families and it would only seem fair to them that they be given a break. When you consider the amount of money the kids (or I should say parents) have to fork over every year for such things as art supplies, pep club uniforms, band rentals, school supplies, physical education supplies, money spent traveling to away games, and all the other countless things that come up over the year, it certainly doesn't hurt the school to give the kids and the parents a break by continuing the activity tickets.

Recreation Schedule Announced

Larry Goodenough, co-director along with Elliot Johnson of this year's Ord Summer Recreation program, has announced the schedule for the remainder of this week and part of next week. Today (Thursday) and Friday boys 6, 7 and 8 years old are to meet at 9 a.m. at the Softball Diamond. Nine and 10 year olds are to meet at 10 a.m. and 11, 12 and 13 year olds will meet at 11 a.m. Goodenough indicated that these will be mostly "organizational meetings" and during the next week the boys will be placed on teams for baseball competition in the Pony League. He is hopeful of fielding about four teams.

Girls will meet every morning for the rest of this week and next week at 9 a.m. for an hour of recreation. On Monday, Wednesday and Friday, there will be arts and crafts offered from 10 a.m. until 12 noon. At 9 a.m. the girls meet at the Ord High School Practice Field and the arts and crafts sessions are held at the Shelter in the main park area. Goodenough expressed disappointment that only ten girls have signed up thus far for the program and he encourages any girl between the ages of six years old and a senior in high school to sign up.

The project began in April and is estimated to take 60 days at an approximate cost to NPPD of $32,183 for additional poles, conductor and other associated materials needed to complete the job.

Since action has not been completed on the proposed legislation, the IRS has decided to go ahead with the printing of W-2 forms reflecting the current law. Supplies of the form are available at IRS Offices.

Ord Employment Service Explained

Ord Rural Employability Service (R.E.S.) is a combined effort between Farmers Union of Nebraska and the State Employment Service to offer expanded employment service within Ord and its trade area. This service is designed to acquaint and assist local residents with the employment services that are available to them and to help rural businessmen and farmers to find skilled and competent help full time, seasonal or part time, that may be essential to sustain a thriving business. Many people that are looking for jobs have no knowledge of which firm or employees that are in the need of help.

The R.E.S. will keep pamphlets and brochures from the state employment services on display. These consist of pamphlets on Fair Labor Standards, Federal Wage and Hour Laws, Child Labor Laws, training programs, etc.

They also act as a primary screening agent for employer and employee. They will only refer applicants that qualify for the job specifications and help the job seeker find the kind of job for which he is best suited.

The more information that is given to the representative on job orders or job applications, the better job of screening they can do for you. This information is held in the department in confidence. An employer is not obligated in any way to hire any referrals sent to him by the representative. There is no charge to either the employer or employee for this service.

If employment is not available in your area, they will help applicants find a job elsewhere by forwarding a copy of the application to the Grand Island employment office. If the employer can not find available help in the immediate area, the representative will assist in finding help from other localities. This is done by forwarding the job order to the Grand Island employment office where it can be circulated in a weekly bulletin to the outlying R.E.S. representatives and labor offices.

A representative from the state employment office visits the R.E.S. office on scheduled days providing assistance to your representative and to the job seeker or employer.

The R. E. S. representative serving your area is: William French, 213 South 16th.

I CAN'T BELIEVE THEY TORE DOWN THE WHOLE THING — IT'S gone. The old Ord Elementary School is now only a pleasant memory to many people. The only thing left of the long used building are a few bricks scattered randomly around the vacant lot. The Ord Board of Education still has not made any decision as to the projected future use of the land.

State Agriculture Head Explains Egg Market Loss

Glenn W. Kreuscher, Director of the Nebraska Department of Agriculture issued the following news release last week. It has come to our attention that the Nebraska Egg Improvement Law and the USDA Egg Products Inspection Act are being blamed for recent changes in the buying policy of firms handling eggs in Nebraska.

The shell egg provisions of the USDA Egg Products Inspection Act that go into effect on July 1, 1972 do not change any of the grading procedures that have been in existence under the Nebraska Egg Law since 1954. Under both laws, it is illegal to sell eggs below U.S. Grade B quality to consumers, restaurants, hospitals, institutions, bakeries, food manufacturers and other food providers.

Undergrade eggs can only be sold to USDA inspected egg breaking plants where they can be properly segregated and processed.

The main difference between the USDA regulations, which go into effect on July 1 and previous existing regulations that affect Nebraska egg producers is that under the new regulations a monitoring program has been established to assure that restricted undergrade eggs are sold only to USDA inspected egg breaking plants.

Producers, buyers, or collectors who grade and segregate eggs into various categories are required to label all undergrade eggs as "Restricted Eggs For Processing Only In An Official USDA Egg Breaking Plant."

All other ungraded eggs sold by producers, egg handlers, or assemblers need not be marked in any manner and can be sold to USDA inspected egg breaking plants for further processing and segregation.

Even though regulations permit USDA inspected plant to buy ungraded and unclassified eggs for further processing, this does not necessarily mean that a producer can sell all of the eggs he collects on his farm. Extremely dirty eggs, leakers, blood spots and eggs that have become spoiled through bacterial contamination cannot be used for human consumption. These eggs represent a financial loss to processors who buy them. Because of this and tremendous competitive pressure, processing plants must exercise caution when they purchase eggs from any source that might contain a large number of undergrade eggs.

If Nebraska producers want to maintain a market for their ungraded farm-run eggs, they should remove all inedible eggs before they sell their eggs to a buyer for further processing.

Land O'Lakes earnings are obtained from the sale of feed, seed, fertilizer, chemicals, petroleum, automotive products, and general merchandise; from processing and marketing members' soybeans; and from marketing members' milk, turkey and eggs as processed and branded foods for the grocery, food service, food processing and military markets.

The cooperative is owned by 250,000 farmers — either directly or through membership in 900 affiliated local cooperatives — in a seven state area in the upper midwest.

Physical activity provides a good outlet for built-up tensions and helps you relax for rest and sleep notes the Nebraska Heart Association.

Geranium Joe Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

You recollect in my piece a few weeks back I reported where the fellers had took up the matter of the minorities clubbing together to be majorities. That discussion must of stuck with Jim Duda cause he come to the county Saturday night with more on the minority-majority question.

Jim got on the agender fast and allowed that the American in the middle was gitting to be a minority and furthermore if the country keeps on the way it's headed the Middle American is going to be as extinct as a dodo. Jim was of the opinion that the feller in the middle gits it going and coming from all sides. And being in the middle is a problem from age to income and everything between.

The young git schooling and training, and no end of programs is fixed for them. The old git a heap of attention Jim said, and some real benefits besides not having a income to pay taxes on. It's them in the middle, the working, tax-paying average citizen that don't git no relief, was his words.

Actual, Mister Editor, all the fellers is well enuff in their working years to be called middle class, and Simon Walkowiak, fer one, was agreed with Jim. They is a heap of benefits for older folks, Simon allowed, like help with doctors bills, so he couldn't go along with Jim on that point.

But as fer the Middle American gitting the squeeze, went on Simon, that was hitting the nail on the head.

Use to be, said Simon, everybody was afraid of being pore. Now, with all the house rents, medical and dental care, college expenses and everything else based on income, the only way to git ahead in this country is to be pore. The less you got the more you git, said Simon, and all the feller in the middle can do is pay the bills.

Practical speaking, broke in Jim, the average working man is in bad shape cause he's got what you could call awkward income. He makes to much to qualify fer programs so he can live as good as the pore, and he don't earn enuff to live as good as the rich that can hire lawyers to look fer tax loopholes. It actual has got where a feller on a job can't afford to git a raise cause the Government would take out more than the employer put in Jim allowed.

The fellers went round and round on the matter, Mister Editor. Final, Dave Stevens said he had saw where the idea of designing yore own check is big all over the country, like one feller has a picture of him kissing his new wife on his alimony checks. Dave said, Middle American needs a picture of Uncle Sam holding his hand out.

Yours truly,

Land O'Lakes Pays Dividends

A patronage dividend of $13,250,000 has been declared by Land O'Lakes, Inc., the farm supply and food marketing cooperative headquartered in Minneapolis, Minnesota. The dividend is member and patron earnings from sales of $721,663,000 for 1971.

In making the announcement, D. H. Henry, president of Land O'Lakes, said that 20 percent of the dividend ($2,650,000) would be paid in cash in mid-June to local member-patrons and to local member cooperatives. Following past practices, the remaining 80 percent has been allocated proportionately in reverse equities for redemption at a later date.

District Dairy Show Dates Given

LINCOLN — Dates and locations for the nine Nebraska District Dairy Shows have been announced by P. H. Cole, Extension dairy specialist at the University of Nebraska, Lincoln. Also announced was a new production class similar to the one inaugurated at Ak-Sar-Ben last year.

The District Shows, now in their 26th year, serve to qualify entries for the Ak-Sar-Ben Dairy Show September 22 and 23 in Omaha. Purple and blue award winners at the District Shows are invited to compete at Ak-Sar-Ben.

All bona fide 4-H club members and FFA students owning heifers or cows are invited to compete at one of the nine shows. All entries for the shows should be submitted to the host county Extension agent at least one week prior to the show.

The new production class will look at the animals' 305 day records completed between July 1, 1971 and July 1, 1972. Records must be started and completed in Nebraska (or Iowa for Iowa exhibitors), and must be Official DHIA or DHR. A special rosette will be awarded by the Nebraska Dairy Herd Improvement Association to the owner of the cow with the highest actual milk production in each of the six dairy breeds.

Judges for this year's Nebraska shows are Fred Eipperle of Bennington and Ike Anderson of Genoa.

A dairy queen will be selected at each district show and district queens will be guests of Ak-Sar-Ben at the Ak-Sar-Ben dairy show in September. One of the candidates will be chosen to reign as Ak-Sar-Ben Dairy Queen.

Cooperating with the Nebraska Agricultural Extension Service in the staging of the Nebraska shows are the Agribus Division of the Omaha Chamber of Commerce which represents Nebraska-Iowa dairy interests, the Knights of Ak-Sar-Ben, and local sponsors.

The show schedule: July 17 — Hemingford; July 21 — North Platte; July 31 — Norfolk; August 1 — Fremont; August 2 — Beaver City; August 3 — Seward; August 4 — Grand Island; August 5 — Beatrice.

Trophies and ribbons will be awarded plus a $25.00 bond to the exhibitor of the Grand Champion Steer and Grand Champion Market Heifer.

The show requires an entry fee of $1.00 with 50 cents for each additional entry. If an exhibitor shows four animals, the fourth entry is free, and he may show four animals with a maximum of three market animals. The fee includes a noon lunch ticket.

The due date for entries is June 14 so send entries to the Elgin Chamber of Commerce, Elgin, Nebraska 68036.

KERNELS & HUSKS

BY JOHN SHADE
Valley County Agent

There are a wide variety of perennial and biannual weeds in every pasture. These compete for both water and nutrients needed by the grass.

You can control most of these with a combination of 2,4-D amine plus dicamba. We recommend 1 to 1 1/2 pounds per acre. It's advisable to spray while the weeds are small and before they bloom.

Be sure to read and follow the directions on the label. There are some grazing restrictions on this combination.

The wheat crop looks excellent in the County. You may be storing this crop on your home farm. If you store it you'll want to keep the insects out.

Now is the time to protect your grain. Clean out those bins now. Sweep them thoroughly. Get rid of all grain and other debris. Insects like to hide here.

After thoroughly cleaning spray with a recommended residual insecticide, you should have this spraying done about two weeks before refilling the bin.

You may be thinking about spraying adult beetles as method of corn root worm control. This method has been very effective. We recommend Sevin. Timing is critical in using this method. The spray will last about a week.

Don't expect this one shot to take care of all your corn insect problems. The life cycle of the rootworm adults, corn borer larva and the western bean cutworm just isn't synchronized so that this can be accomplished. Nature just isn't all that cooperative is it?

4-H'ers don't forget the Annual Chaffin Field day on the 20th of June. This will be at the Chaffin ranch, 22 miles northeast of Burwell, registration starts at 9:00 a.m.

While we're talking about youth activities don't forget the Barn Meeting at Sperlings on the 27th. The program gets underway at 7:30 in the evening. There will be a type demonstration and a fitting and showing demonstration that should be of interest to 4-H'ers and FFA members.

Green Thumb Tips:

It's about time to spray your apple trees for the control of apple maggots. These are the insects that cause those ugly brown streaks through the fruit.

The flies should be active about the 15th through the 20th of June. We recommend spraying apple trees at least three times from June 15 through August 30.

Use the same spray materials you been using on fruit trees. If you've not been on a spray program use malathion and diazinon or malathion and methoxychlor. While you're at it you just as well add a fungicide. Here

Farm Speed Speeding Up

An operating speed of 10 miles per hour can be expected in the field within the next 10 years. Stupendous? Not if you're talking about automobiles, motorcycles or even mini-bikes on snowmobiles. But if you're referring to farm tractors in tillage operations, it's comparable in that context to the new records set on the Indianapolis "500" this year.

"Go Fast-Farm Fast" is a developing trend in agriculture, according to University of Nebraska-Lincoln Agricultural Engineers. The use of increased ground speed at a supplement of substitute for more horsepower will be demonstrated and discussed at the annual NU Tractor Power & Safety Day at Mead July 20.

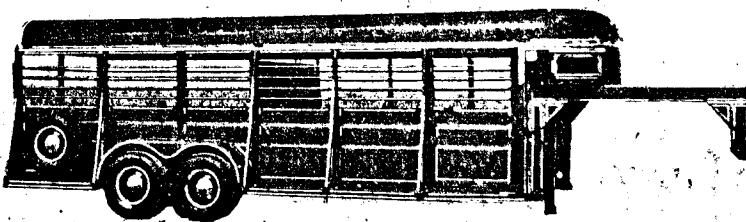

Early tractors were designed to travel at the same speed as the horse — about two to 2 1/2 miles an hour, explains L. F. Larsen, engineer-in-charge of tractor testing at NU.

Nowadays, however, "nobody is plowing slower than five m.p.h., and one major farm equipment firm's new corn planter model is engineered to operate efficiently at 7 1/2 m.p.h.," Larsen stated.

Some farm equipment problems within the farm equipment industry today, Larsen observed: the development and design of many farm implements hasn't kept pace with the stepped-up speed of the tractor. Many farmers are using the same farming tools, running them faster, to utilize more of the horsepower of the tractor rather than adding more horsepower, without adding a lot of extra weight, he said.

Some farm operations, such as deep chisel operations to stir the subsoil and break up subsoil hard-pans, are more efficient at faster speeds, Larsen pointed out. Conventional plowing, which is not efficient at higher speeds because dirt from the new furrow is thrown too far, is becoming less and less a part of the regular tillage operation on many farms, Larsen added.

"THOU SHALT NOT POLLUTE"

Feedlot operators in Nebraska aren't opposed to reasonable pollution control regulations but right now they don't know what to expect next and they have every right to be worried.

Cattle feeders and organizations representing them in testifying recently at a public hearing by the Environmental Control Council and at a public hearing by the Environmental Control Council and at public hearing conducted by Sen. Loran Schmitt's interim study committee on pollution control, all complained about the uncertainty involved in what may be required of them.

At the Environmental Protection Council's hearing, state officials indicated a willingness toward a measure of reason and leniency. But at the same hearing, a federal representative spoke for tougher controls and no extension of the original deadline for compliance from Dec. 31 of this year to Dec. 31, 1974.

Most who appeared at the EPA hearing asked that the council proceed cautiously and concentrate on the larger lots which naturally pose more serious pollution problems. William Krejci of the Nebraska Livestock Feeders Association, appeared at both hearings and expressed considerable disillusionment with what has happened so far. The trend in the state is toward larger feedlots and it was noted that application of a system requiring expensive control measures could simply force a lot of the smaller feeders out of the business.

Attention to feedlot pollution measures started with a federal requirement for registration of all lots over 1,000-head capacity. Then the state came into the picture through the Water Pollution Control Council and the dividing line was for application of standards to feedlots of 300-head capacity or their equivalent. Next step gave the Environmental Control Council responsibility for water, air and land pollution factors. Its initial declaration of policy and rules are so broad that conceivably they could be applied to any size feedlot or corral where livestock is kept. The farmer-feeder who perhaps feeds out 50 to 100 head of cattle in a season, and this used to be the average pattern, economically can't justify an expensive system to guarantee that after a four or five inch rain, there won't be any runoff from his property that would find its way onto a neighbor's land and into a running stream.

No one would argue or has argued that the drainage from big capacity feedlots does not pose serious problems in stream pollution and odor, and as the trend toward big cattle concentrations continues to develop, such problems must be controlled and dealt with. Somehow, laws and regulations, which are notoriously inflexible, must make a distinction between the pollution control prescription for say a 5,000 or 25,000-head capacity feedlot and the lots of a 50 or 100-head feeder who beds his lots and spreads the manure on his fields as he has been doing for the last hundred years.

Sen. Schmidt's hearing dealt at length with a widely reported fish kill in an Elkhorn River slough in Cuming County which was attributed by a Game Commission biologist to runoff from feedlots in the area which occurred following heavy rains. There are other reasons for fish kills than feedlot runoff. Feeders at the hearings indicated that they want some assurance that if they comply with all the rules and spend their money, that they won't be hauled into court or arbitrarily ordered to close down their operation whenever some evidence turns up that some sort of pollution has occurred.

They have a point. As of this time, the rules in effect say to one and all, "Thou shalt not pollute under any circumstances." The state's cattle feeding industry can't survive that kind of edict if it is strictly enforced and there will be doubt and uncertainty until it is narrowed down.

The Hanging Tree

It would appear that the administration of the Central Nebraska Community Action Program (CNCAP) is continually seeking to hang itself. Despite some controversy as to whether CAP Administrator George Dworak should step down as Administrator of the five county program, it seems that if a story appearing in a neighboring newspaper is correct, Dworak and company is attempting to take an even bigger bite of the tax dollar. It would seem that Dworak, or someone in his administration, is seeking to have the Broken Bow CAP office closed, and having the Broken Bow personnel moved to Loup City. Feeling seems to be running high in Broken Bow for keeping the office open, and the Broken Bow affair just might provide the hanging tree for Dworak.

If the Broken Bow CAP office is removed from that city, according to the newspaper article, those presently employed with the office will be forced to move to Loup City or lose their jobs. The article also cites jealousy as a main reason for the Loup City office wanting the Broken Bow CAP operation closed. The article reads, "there is speculation by local CAP officials that the cooperation received from individuals and organizations in the Custer County area might be the source of jealousy to the Loup City area administration which reportedly has a somewhat shaky foundation."

Local arguments in Broken Bow point to the fact that Custer County has approximately one third of the population in the five county Central Nebraska CAP area and that it would seem "more feasible" to move the CNCAP to Broken Bow rather than to move away from the population.

This writer finds the entire situation somewhat amusing. A controversy such as this where feelings have been allowed to become so bitter, only points to another reason why it might be prudent if the Board of Directors of the CNCAP would dump Dworak as administrator. The arguments for his replacement presented in last week's edition of The Quiz, added to this week's Broken Bow affair, would indicate that Dworak is not only having a difficult time administering a $900,000 federal program, but is also having a difficult time in getting along with his own people.

This writer only hopes that the CNCAP Board of Directors will give this matter the attention it deserves before the situation that seems to be surrounding Dworak becomes even more chaotic than it already appears to be. — RON

Thank You, Dr. Osentowski

This writer for one was sorry to see Dr. F. J. Osentowski step down from the Ord City Council. I personally feel that Dr. Osentowski was one of the most energetic and hard working members of that body. I will certainly miss "Doc's" brand of dry humor that helped spice council meetings. I will also miss his methodical soul searching attitude before voting. "Doc" was for one thing and one thing alone — the betterment of the City of Ord.

In taking his leave from the City Council Dr. Osentowski brought out some rather strong criticisms of the City Council. In the opinion of this writer, "Doc" may have brought up some worthwhile points.

One of his first criticisms of the council is the fact that so few council members attend Chamber of Commerce meetings. It must be admitted that "Doc" is about the only council member since this writer has been here, that has made any kind of effort to attend the meetings on a regular basis. Starling Lee, Otto Zapp, Don Sears and Marv Scheideler have all been seen occasionally at the Chamber meetings. This writer has never seen the mayor at a chamber meeting. If he has attended I must have missed him.

The Ord Chamber of Commerce does make efforts to promote the city. Dr. Osentowski seems to be of the opinion that the City Council and the Chamber of Commerce should make more of an effort to work together. The Chamber meets every first Thursday of the month at a time when most City Council members should be able to attend. The best way for the City Council to know what is going on in the community is to attend this meeting.

Several other points were brought up by Osentowski including the fact that the City is not spending the special fund that was set up to help promote the City. One of the things suggested by Osentowski to this writer is the City Council can help promote industrial trips for the Chamber. He suggested the Council could have helped pay for the Chamber's drive to get the Natural Resource District here.

Dr. Osentowski deserves a "Thank you" from the people of this community for pointing out weaknesses of the City Council. It is hoped the Council will take the thoughts in the spirit that they were offered. After all, Dr. Osentowski, the Ord Chamber of Commerce and the City Council all have the same thing in common — the promotion of Ord and the selling of the city to others. — RON

How These Things Work

The following was submitted to The Ord Quiz by Walter Linke from the Grand Island Daily Independent. The editorial reads:

Dear Editor:
To whom it may concern: I am writing these few lines as I have grown to love you.
Every year people take time on Memorial Day to place flowers on their loved ones graves, which is the custom to do, but I can't see why people get so low and take flowers off a loved one's grave.
I know of a party that placed a nice piece of American Beauty Red Roses on a loved one's grave the day before Memorial Day and the next day they were gone.
So whoever the party was that took the flowers, I hope your conscience is clear, as I can't see why people go and do such a thing, especially to the dead.
Sincerely,

Sixty old graduates of the North Loup High School attended the annual alumni banquet.
Because of stringent financial conditions and low agricultural prices, the directors of the fair association decided not to have a county fair this year.

It was not entirely without motivation. Sunday and today an educational seminar has been held at the Nebraska Center for Continuing Education in Lincoln, sponsored by the State Office of Comprehensive Health Planning.

The seminar was for state and areawide advisory council and board members, according to a letter we received from the health planning people. One of the leaders in training professionals in comprehensive health planning from the University of Oklahoma was the chief consultant, with an associate instructor assisting him. Also on the agenda was a progress report on comprehensive health planning in Nebraska by the program's director, Mrs. Calista Cooper Hughes.

What prompts this commentary was this bit of information in the letter:
"We would welcome your attendance and would be glad to pay any expenses incurred. Please let us know if you do plan to attend. Thank you for the coverage you have given our agency in the past."

Why a newspaper editor should be reimbursed from taxpayers' money to attend such a session is beyond us. Obviously, they didn't expect any expertise from us because of the reference to coverage. They couldn't get expertise anyway, because we couldn't supply it.

But it is the responsibility of our newspaper, and other media, not to just report what is being done by such agencies but to do so without any undue influence from any source. Besides being a waste of taxpayers' money, it'd make us a paid errand boy of the agency to accept such an invitation.

This commentary, by the way is our response to it.

Something Different

To the Big City

Saturday proved to be an enjoyable day. I spent it at the Republican State Convention at the Hilton Hotel in Omaha, accompanying Gwen Cochran and Orel Koelling on a pre-dawn flight down and an evening return trip.

Gwen is on the state central committee, and Orel is Valley County chairman.
There were several hundred people there and among them many old friends — like, newspaper people.

Of course the highlight of the day was Spiro T. Agnew, our vice president, who arrived about six o'clock engulfed in secret service men. All smiles, he greeted the convention which by this time had been increased with a number of admiring young students.

Milton Bish, the young state secretary, proved to be a fine engineer who railroaded the program steadily but gracefully along with never a draggy moment. It was about the best convention ever, all agreed.

And I was happy to meet his pretty young wife who proved to be the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Miller, now retired and living in Denver. Paul was a linotypist on the Quiz when he met and married Jeannette Blessing of Ord. They plan to come up the valley for the July 1 alumni doings. Of course they sent greetings to all Ord relatives and friends, such as Alice and Dutch Blessing, Opal Blessing and more.

Then I visited with Alice James Rother, as lively and gay as ever and always fun to see. She loves Ord and everything thereabouts. I believe she said her graduating class here would celebrate in 1975 and she'd see you then.

Jack Romans was there, Glea was at Johnson Lake getting ready for a big Romans clan gathering, but daughter Caroline was pretty and present in a dress like a yellow jonquil. She is on the state central committee, a dedicated Republican worker.

The all-Republican Nebraska delegation was there in force, looking fit and capable. There was Senator Hruska and his trace of Czech accent which always seems to grow stronger in Nebraska; Senator Carl Curtis greeting everyone briskly and happily, Congressman Dave Martin and his delightful No. 2 boy Bob Brayton from Stuart, Nebraska and never to be neglected Tancie, Dave's dear little wife. Also Congressman Thone in a red necktie and big smile and attractive John Y. McCollister who was promptly dubbed the birthday boy. A handsome cake with multicolored decorations appeared and Representative McCollister began a losing battle to give a piece to everyone while strains of Happy Birthday filled the big banquet hall.

I was impressed with several new friends: red-haired Carol Cope from Kearney helping Mr. Bish; merry little Pat Smith of Lincoln who can do anything and does with five languages and many travels to assist her; Dick Nelson, very savvy rules committee chairman. And a dear friend, tall Bill Morrow of Omaha whose eyes twinkle and smile is ready while his ever-clicking mind can unravel any knot, and so pleasantly. His beautiful girl graduate daughter was with him.

I missed busy little Irene Auble Abernathy, an ever competent devoted Republican from Grand Island, the daughter of Glen and Lillian Auble of our city of Ord. She was unable to be present.

Ron Romans, pleasant and mannerly, wasn't able to get there either, he and Jackie are very busy, about to move.

I laughed at a good story Jack told one time. He declared "There are a lot of Romans, I have so much family you know, but of all my brothers and their families, they are all good Republicans, there's not one Democrat among them and their children!"

They told us a bit about the Miami convention which will convene on August 21. Nebraskans aren't sure yet which of three hotels they'll be quartered at, it may end up the Eden Roc. But there will be five sessions of two and one-half hours each.

Nebraska is entitled to two young pages and a contest will award these coveted jobs to the two Young Republicans who win the most new YR's to their group — with all expenses paid, this is quite a plum.

The Scott Column

By Paul Scott

President Nixon is preparing a dramatic Vietnam assignment for Former Treasury Secretary John Connally — if Hanoi will agree.

Under intense private discussion at the White House is a plan to send Connally to Hanoi and Saigon. His mission would be to work out a Vietnam ceasefire and agreement for immediate withdrawal of American forces.

Secret feelers for such a Connally mission already have gone to North Vietnamese officials through Moscow and to South Vietnamese officials through U.S. Embassy in Saigon.

President Nixon proposed the idea of the "higher level negotiations with Hanoi" to Soviet Communist Party Secretary Brezhnev during one of their long-ranging conference on Vietnam during the Moscow summit talks.

Breznev was told by the President that he was ready to send one of his most trusted advisers to Hanoi with full authority to negotiate a Vietnam ceasefire, including an end to U.S. bombing and mining of North Vietnam. The President asked Brezhnev if he would convey this proposal to the North Vietnamese leaders.

When Brezhnev asked whether the adviser would be "my good friend" Dr. Henry Kissinger, the President's national security adviser, the President replied:

"I had in mind sending Treasury Secretary John Connally. He is leaving the cabinet and would be free to undertake such an assignment without delay."

Noting that Brezhnev seemed puzzled with his choice of Connally over Kissinger, the President explained:

"Secretary Connally has a lot more influence with Congress than Dr. Kissinger. He will be in a much stronger position to sell a ceasefire agreement to Congress and the American people."

Smiling broadly and apparently at the President's frankness, Brezhnev said he would immediately pass along the President's proposal to Hanoi. The Soviet leader also added that he would urge its consideration as a means toward ending the bombing and mining of North Vietnam.

As Kissinger outlined to Brezhnev in an earlier meeting, the President reported that he would accept the establishment of a coalition government in South Vietnam as part of a political settlement that included the release of American prisoners of war.

The arrangement of a ceasefire in Vietnam, the President stressed, would be the first step toward such a political settlement which could be arranged between Hanoi and Saigon.

These are some of the secret

Seldom a day goes by which doesn't find me wallowing in self-pity... a character defect I must battle constantly. I can't think I'm alone, with so many others in this world worrying about THEMSELVES and few spending the time to look around them.
The tragedy at Rapid City, South Dakota, over the past weekend probably brought many of us to the realization of how lucky we REALLY ARE — fortunate to have a home and a daily routine uninterrupted by the devastation experienced by our neighbors in the Black Hills.
Only a few short years ago I was invited to Rapid City where I spoke at the dedication of a clubhouse for recovering alcoholics. Though it was late at night when my hosts took me to the clubhouse, I can vividly remember it was located in one of the valley areas at the foot of a canyon. I would imagine of how lucky I helped dedicate is gone, today. Hopefully — at some future date — I'll learn the fate of the Club and those recovered alcoholics who worked so hard to remodel the little frame shelter they proudly called Friendship House.

Since speaking at Friendship House, I've been on their mailing list for a small monthly newsletter the group gets out. Only last week I received their most recent — and I hope not their LAST newsletter. One of the closing lines of it was a quotation from Charles Dickens, "Reflect upon your blessings, of which every man has many; not on your misfortunes, of which all men have some."
As I thought about these friends in Rapid City, over the weekend, I dug a little deeper in my file of inspirational material... hunting for a little poem I've never used in this column. I

"I stopped to buy some candy. The lad who sold it had such charm, I talked with him. He seemed so glad. If I were late 'twould do no harm. And as I left he said to me: 'I thank you. You have been so kind. It's nice to talk with folks like you. You see, he said, 'I'm blind.' Oh, God forgive me when I whine, I have two eyes. The world is mine."
"Later, while walking down the street, I saw a child with eyes of blue. He stood and watched the others play. He did not know just what to do. I stopped a moment, then I said, 'Why don't you join the boys?' He looked ahead without a word, and then I knew he could not hear. Oh, God forgive me when I whine, I have two ears. The world is mine."
"With feet to take me where I'd go, with eyes to see the sunset's glow, with ears to hear what I would know... Oh, God forgive me when I whine, I'm blessed indeed. The world is mine."

With Father's Day upon us this Sunday it would seem only appropriate that something be said in this paper about the roles that fathers play in our lives. I guess in a way, I would like to take this time to pay public tribute to my own father. As I sit down to my typewriter I really don't know exactly where to begin, so I will let the keyboard take off on its own.
I have many fond memories of my own father. Perhaps one of the more amusing that comes to my mind concerns the time when I was in second or third grade and I was getting 25 cents a week allowance. It always came on Saturday and it didn't take this kid long to spend it. One day I came up with a brilliant idea. I proposed to my father that instead of my getting 25 cents ONCE A WEEK that I would much rather get two cents a day (a more steady income I must have thought) so that I would have a little to spend everyday. It took me about two weeks before I realized that I wasn't getting anywhere fast, this way and eventually I was back on the quarter a week system. Father cooperated all the way.

I can remember the "flash card" sessions of when I was about the same age. Dad worked real hard making flash cards with such things as 8 plus 8 equals 16" written on one side and "eight plus eight equals 16" on the other side. For a week at a time we labored on the "answer side" with me trying to memorize the answers and the number combinations. But then the day came when Dad decided it was time to try it out WITHOUT the answers in front of me. I began to sweat while Dad glowed with anticipated pride at all that he had taught me that week.
"Four," I chirped as a 1 quickly added to my fingers that were placed secretly underneath the table.
The next one was still relatively easy — five plus five — and I still had enough fingers to do some rapid calculations under the kitchen table.
"Ten," I bellowed hoping that my enthusiasm at the present time would make up for the time in the rapidly drawing near future when I wouldn't have enough fingers for the required calculation.
Then it came. I was sunk. "Nine plus eight" flashed before me. I stilled as I quickly tried to calculate with my fingers still secreted under the table.
"Fifteen" I stammered somewhat weakly.
I could tell by the look on dad's face that wasn't right.
"Get your fingers on top of the table," he told me. We tried again.
"Nineteen" I stammered even more weakly than before.
So the lessons went. Finally, in the end, he gave it up as a lost cause. He came to the conclusion that whatever else his son may or may not be, he definitely was not a mathematician. And you know, to this day when I'm doing counts on headlines I still sit at my desk, with my hands underneath my desk top, counting away on my eight little fingers and two thumbs.

TOO LATE
This following poem by the University of Nebraska student that was confined to the Nebraska State Hospital, Lincoln also fits well into the Father's Day theme. A little background on this poem might be helpful — after the boy was confined to the state hospital, his father died. His mother, it is my understanding, died shortly after giving birth to the boy of complications.
I might also add, my poetry is about exhausted and if anyone has some they would like to share, let me know. Credit will be given to the person submitting the poem. Many have indicated they enjoy the poetry section here so let's all share a little.

TOO LATE
Life's road you have trod.
But you and I,
Though strangers we were
And yet were alike
In ways, that is sure.
You had your heartaches
And troubles it's true,
Times of great burden
But you always came through.
Now that you've gone
The facts show true
Between you and me
The better was you.
And I think of many things
Should have discussed
But, I the black sheep
Had lost love and trust.
There was a question
I should have asked too
Of Mom's death —
Was I blamed by you?
But this question unanswered
Like the other ones
For dear dad

Congressman DAVE MARTIN Reports

CHADRON, Nebr.—Rep. Dave Martin said today that the 1969 and 1971 tax reform legislation reduced substantially income taxes of those in the low and middle income brackets.

Speaking at a noon luncheon meeting of the Nebr. Stockgrowers Assn., Martin said "Repeal charges for certain Presidential candidates through the law changes since early 1969 have favored corporations over individuals, simply are not true."

The facts speak for themselves, Martin said, and he cited changes in federal revenue sources as a result of the 1969 and 1971 tax reform measures. "For the four-year period, 1969-72, individual income taxes will have decreased by an aggregate $1.9 billion, while corporate income tax will have increased by an estimated $4.9 billion," he said.

"The changes in our tax laws, proposed by President Nixon, have been most beneficial to the very poor and the low and middle income taxpayers," Martin said, and he cited reductions of federal revenues from various income groups in 1972:

—Tax revenues from persons with less than $3,000 gross income are down 82%. In 1968, nearly $1.5 billion came from this group, compared to $265 million this year.

—A decrease of 43% from those with incomes of $3,000 to $5,000, of 27% from incomes of $5,000 to $7,000, and 17 1/2% from $7,000 to $10,000 incomes.

Total federal revenue decrease of $6.4 billion in 1972, from persons with incomes of less than $10,000.

In addition, Martin said, "middle income tax revenues, from the $10,000 to $15,000 range of incomes will be reduced by nearly $2.9 billion." The 1971 Revenue Act further reduced or eliminated federal excise taxes, which will cut tax $2.6 billion this year.

Martin said a lot of attention is being given by some to a reported 106 individuals with incomes above $200,000 who paid no federal income taxes in 1970. "What those critics fail to mention is that there were 15,300 persons with incomes above $200,000, and 15,200 of them paid federal income taxes averaging $177,000 each in 1970," Martin said.

The 106 who had no federal income tax payments have been categorized by the Treasury Department, Martin said, and they include seven that paid income tax to foreign countries totaling $1.5 million; 12 with state and local tax deductions of more than $4.1 million; 12 with aggregate charitable contributions of $4.2 million; and 55 with an aggregate of $17.3 million in interest payments for which only $16.5 million in dividends was paid.

Martin said "Rather than attacking the broad coverage of federal income tax which is more fair to the low and middle income, those critics should be thinking of ways in which they would be able to finance some of the exorbitant, expensive federal programs they propose for if they were to get into office. Those programs will surely result in much higher taxes if they are to be funded."

Lower Loup NRD Formed In Ord; No Decision Made on Headquarters

Charles Zangger, a North Loup farmer, was elected Chairman of the Lower Loup Natural Resource District (NRD) at the group's organizational meeting held Tuesday evening at the Ord Elks Club. Zangger, who has served as temporary chairman for the past several months, was elected without opposition.

Vice Chairman of the NRD will be Dean Rasmussen. Secretary will be James Ryan, Greeley and treasurer will be L. J. Garrison, Burwell. Sometime after July 1 an Executive Committee will be elected for the NRD and the men will continue in their elected capacity after the Committee is seated provided they are nominated and elected to the Lower Loup Natural Resource Executive Committee. In the event they are not placed on the Committee, they will be replaced by someone from the ranks of the Committee. This is to avoid having two chairmen or having conflicting laws.

HEADQUARTERS DISCUSSED

One of the first questions asked at Tuesday evening's meeting is the status of the headquarters location for the Lower Loup NRD. At a meeting on May 29 in Loup City, it was taken which gave Loup City a vote edge over Ord for the selection, however Chairman Charles Zangger told the delegates that if his vote would have been counted, the vote would have been a tie. It was then pointed out by an official of the State of Nebraska that no official decision can be made on the location of the new headquarters until after July 1.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

Prior to the election of officers a panel of state and local officials lead a discussion on various aspects of what will constitute the duties and functions of the Lower Loup NRD. On the panel were Ron Fleecs, a lawyer, Jim Cook, another lawyer, Emmett Lee, representing the State Soil and Water Commission and Harold Garnick, the temporary secretary of the Lower Loup NRD.

In the discussion on the Executive Committee, it was pointed out that the group must be elected shortly after July 1. It was suggested by Cook that due to the large area of the Lower Loup, it would be advisable for the group to elect the maximum 21 committee members allotted by state law. The Executive Committee must also have the full rights of the general board unless the general board votes not to grant the Executive Committee certain powers. The main function of the Executive Committee however, will be to create subdistricts. It was stressed that while no decision has been made as to how the Executive Committee will be selected, the general board will have a voice on selecting the Executive Committee.

According to Dean Rasmussen, who served on the initial finance committee of the Lower Loup NRD, it is expected that the original budget for the NRD will run approximately $87,000. Rasmussen termed the figure "just what we need" and pointed out the figure would not represent any breathing room. It was also suggested that while current plans called for one-fourth of a mill to be levied to support the NRD, it might be advisable to raise that to 4 of a mill to provide a cushion.

BUDGET

This figure and these estimates are based on several things, said Rasmussen. They are based on state figures, our own estimations and on discussions with the State Auditor. We went into this thing blind with no guidelines. We were hoping to get some guidelines from other NRDs but that did not materialize.

Rasmussen also added that current cash for the NRD stands at slightly more than $6,000. Fleecs suggested that the Budget Committee should plan on budgeting for a maximum of 18 months. He said the main thing is to make sure you have enough to "tide you over" until the tax money starts coming in. He noted that most tax money does not start coming in until sometime in November. He also suggested a short term loan from a bank might be needed until the tax money does become a reality.

He also said a budget plan must be passed shortly after July 1. Legal notices of the proposed budget must be published in area newspapers, a public legal hearing held, the budget adopted, and finally submitted to the state by August 15. He also said a mill levy amount, not a money total, must be submitted to each county for them to act upon during this same 45-day period.

On a vote by the general board it was decided to hold their next meeting in Ord on Tuesday, July 11 at 8 p.m. It was added that the public is invited to the meeting and all meetings of the Lower Loup NRD.

School Costs May Be $804,770

Public Hearing Scheduled For July 14 On Budget

The Ord School District No. 5 may operate on a budget of $804,770 during the 1972-73 school year. The proposed budget was discussed at Monday night's Board of Education meeting for the discussion of the proposed budget. It also marked the first time since the recent elections that the new Board of Education were able to participate with full voting privileges.

At the present time, the tentative schedule calls for the budget to be approved on July 3. A public hearing will be held at 8 p.m. on Friday, July 14. Board of Education members are hopeful that the public will come forward and express opinions on the budget.

OTHER SCHOOL SERVICES

Other school services have been budgeted for $61,100 for the 1972-73 school term compared to last year's $57,800. Other school services include such things as health services, transportation, school lunch services, playground and recreation, school newspaper and yearbook, subsidizing the athletic department, cleaning uniforms etc. General increases in transportation have been allowed an additional $2,200 from last year and additional expenses with the school paper, athletics and athletic transportation have been allowed $1,100 more over last year.

Operation of the plant for the 1972-73 school year has been budgeted at $68,720 compared to $65,340 the last school year. Some items included in this area are: Physical examinations $600; the water softener is set at $400; cleaning typewriters is estimated at $500; anti-freeze at $200; fire inspection at $450; and additional shop expenses at $500.

The $804,770 budget compares with a budget of $758,200 during the 1971-72 school year and the requested budget of $814,800. Dr. William Gogan, Superintendent of Schools, had originally submitted a budget of $814,800 for the board's approval. However the board made cuts in three areas, dropping the requested capital outlay request of $12,950 to $8,720; dropping the request for administrative money from $37,500 to $36,000 and dropping the maintenance request from $18,000 to $13,700 to drop the total budget back to the $804,770 figure — a cut of slightly more than $10,000 from the original proposal.

BIGGEST CHUNK

The biggest chunk of the budget is in the area of instruction where $515,680 will be spent. This is an increase of $39,150 from last year. The following increases were noted: Teachers salaries up $30,480 from last year; Administrative salaries up $2,200 from last year; Clerk and Aids up $2,450 from last year; Administrative texts and programs up $2,000 from last year; and library supplies and teacher requests up $2,000 over last year.

As stated previously, the total for administration next year has been set at $36,000 which is an $800 decrease from last year's budget.

Concerning the rising and lowering of the mill levy, Dr. Gogan indicated it is still too early at this time to give an exact estimate on this. He did indicate to the board that if it did rise it would not be much over three mills but he reminded the board that last year the mill levy dropped by two mills. He stressed however that he does not expect the mill levy to rise by that much and said a clearer picture could be presented to the board in August on this matter.

Anniversary Slated Sunday For Methodists

The second anniversary celebration of the birth of the Loup United Methodist Parish will be observed at the Ord Church Sunday, June 25, at 8:00 p.m. All friends and members of the eight churches throughout the Parish are urged to come and enjoy this uniquely different service being planned under the direction of the Parish Coordinator, the Rev. Ron Roemich. A service combining several styles of worship is being planned.

All churches are asked to bring their large contemporary banners, together with standards on which to hang and carry them, and later to use in placing them inside the sanctuary.

Everyone is invited to participate in the march at last year, singing hymns and proceeding into the sanctuary. While it is not compulsory to take part in the march, all who will be urged to do so. Participants will meet at the Ord Church building to receive instructions from Rev. Roemich for the march. ## Two Accidents Investigated By Ord Police

According to Chief of Police Jim Sobon, only two accidents disturbed the routine pace of police work in Ord last week.

On Thursday, a car belonging to Robert Stauss, Grand Island, was backed into by Harry Kramer at the Kramer Garage. Stauss, a salesman for Red Rooster, Grand Island, was at the Kramer Garage when Kramer attempted to back his vehicle out of the lot and did not notice the Stauss vehicle. Approximately $100 damage was done to the Stauss car and no damage was reported to the Kramer vehicle.

On Friday pickups belonging to Floyd Shotkoski, Ord, and Cecil Atkinson, Bartlett, collided on the east side of Anderson's Garage. Shotkoski was traveling south on 14th when Atkinson attempted to back away from the east of the garage. Atkinson reportedly did not see the Shotkoski vehicle soon enough to stop.

Damage was minor in the accident with the Shotkoski vehicle suffering damage to its right rear fender and box and no damage was reportedly done to the Atkinson pickup.

Chief Sobon did ask The Quiz to remind readers that now would be a good time for Ord property owners to take a "good look" at their alleys and back lots for weeds that are starting to "take over."

Set Aside Acres to Be Examined

The Valley County ASC Committee, consisting of Chairman Robert W. Timmerman, Vice Chairman Arthur L. John, and Member Everett A. Lech, made known their plans today that they intend to examine the field in Valley County indicated as set-aside acreage for the 1972 feed grain program.

This comes about so that the American taxpayer shall receive full value for each tax dollar spent on land set-aside in order to accomplish a reduction in grain supplies that are necessary to affect the price of feed grains at the market place.

AGRICULTURE ACT

The Agriculture Act of 1970, in order to work effectively, must have this type consideration for the Act itself offers many options in this type program. The farmer can now specialize in his choice of operation since they are free to plant the crops he desires. He can limit or reduce costs of machinery and other operating expenses due in part to the opportunity to substitute wheat for feed grain and vice versa.

To further explain, the committee indicated that if below average land is designated as set-aside or if the set-aside acreage will not qualify as irrigated when irrigated is the requirement, it is their responsibility to affect an appropriate reduction in payment for failure to fully comply. This "get tough" policy is not a new one with ASCS, merely a continuation of program principles that have been in effect for many years.

OTHER ITEMS

Other items of set-aside that shall be specifically checked are: noxious weeds, trees, indiscriminate growth of weeds, and land which the County Committee determine could not be expected to produce a crop because of its physical condition.

The recreation areas involved include Fremont, Louisville, Lake Minatere, Bridgeport, Two Rivers (near Venice), Kearney County (near Kearney), Johnson Lake (near Lexington), Bluestem (near Sprague), Wagon Train (near Hickman), and Pawnee (near Emerald). In addition, other fireworks areas may be added if it appears that they are needed.

Legal fireworks generally include sparklers, Vesuvius fountains, spray fountains, torches, color-fire cones, star and comet-type aerial shells without explosive charges for the purpose of making noise, color wheels, and cap pistols and caps which contain no more than one-quarter gram of explosive material.

"The purpose of the areas is to give families a chance to have a fireworks display as part of their Independence Day outing," according to Willard R. Barbee, director of the Game and Parks Commission. "If these areas attract illegal fireworks, however, we will have no choice but to drop this service in the future," he warned.

Directional signs at the recreation areas involved will point the way to the special areas. All other recreation areas, state parks, and state special-use areas are closed to possession and use of fireworks.

"The Best Step You Can Take"

"I Can't Believe I Ate the WHOLE Thing" "Try It, You'll Like It" Heard By QUIZ Editor In Tour of Girl Scout Day Camp

By RON BALDWIN, Editor

There is a favorite commercial on TV today that shows a slightly overweight man sitting on the edge of his bed muttering, "I can't believe I ate the WHOLE thing." Another favorite commercial shows a young man sitting at a table in a restaurant saying, "Try it, you'll like it."

This writer felt like a combination of the two men in the commercials after returning home from the Girl Scout Day Camp Thursday afternoon. After Girl Scouts and Brownies constantly told me, "Try it, you'll like it" all during the noon meal I did indeed mutter at my desk the rest of the afternoon. "I can't believe I ate the WHOLE thing." Believe me, you have never had an experience in eating out until you have tried and tasted at least seven or eight different dishes prepared by seven and eight year olds. To top the whole thing off, the food was darn good.

A brief summary of the bill of fare included: Mexican tangerine, chicken and dumplings, chili, chocolate pudding, banana boat, Sloppy Joe, ice tea, carrots, cheese and heaven knows what the other little lump was on my plate. At any rate even the "unidentified" lump tasted pretty good. All I know is, that it had meat in it (or a squashed bug, I'm not sure which).

Upon driving up to the camp, held at the Ord Veterans Grounds, the first thing I saw were several little girls frying bananas over an open fire. They were, I was to find out later, making banana boats. For those of you who never graduated from Girl Scout Cooking school, that consists of frying the banana over an open fire, splitting the skin and adding chocolate and marshmallow. It did turn out to be very delicious even though one of the office girls did warn me I would be sure to have that.

One of my first stops was at a table that was preparing chili. Those girls in charge of the chili preparation were Joan Bosworth and Susan Penas. As the adult leader handed me a spoon she told me that "we forgot to get any chili powder." I don't know what Joan and Susan put in it in place of the chili powder but it was indeed excellent.

Mexican Tangerine and...

WHAT'S THAT? Three youthful girl scouts "inspect" the fixings (banana boats) shortly before lunch time Thursday.

NIXON SUMMIT CONFERENCE: President Nixon's recent trips to Peking and Moscow will result in expansion of trade to both of these countries. Increased exports can be expected of both wheat and feed grains which will be of great benefit to Agriculture in Nebraska. President Nixon has agreed with Russia to stop the Arms Race is a major effort towards achieving peace in the entire world. A second major benefit will allow our country to concentrate on domestic problems. President Nixon has proven himself to be one of the most effective Presidents in regard to foreign affairs of any in the history of our Nation.

MINIMUM WAGE: The House passed amendments to the Minimum Wage Act which will increase the minimum wage from the current $1.60 per hour to $1.80 per hour for non-agriculture workers and one year later to $2.00 an hour. The present minimum wage for agriculture workers is $1.30 an hour. This will be increased to $1.50 and on year later to $1.70 per hour. The only other change in the present law provides for the employment for those between 16 and 18 years of age who are drop-outs from school a 90 percent of the minimum wage.

NATIONAL DEBT: In my last newsletter in March, I reported that the Congress had increased the national debt from $430 to $450 billion, and further stated that an additional increase would be necessary before June 30. The Ways and Means Committee began hearings this week on a $15 billion increase to $465 billion. The Treasury Department announced that the expected deficit of $40 billion for the current fiscal year which ends June 30 would be reduced approximately $11 billion to $29 billion. This is still far too much to suit me, as I feel the government should live within its income.

The House recently passed a Water Pollution Bill of almost $25 billion to be spent over the next three years. Revenue Sharing, which is expected to come up soon for consideration on the Floor of the House, will amount to $30 billion over the next five years. The Conference Report on the Higher Education Bill which has lumped many of the present education programs into one package provides for $21.7 billion over the next three years. Although these programs may have merit, the American taxpayer imply cannot afford the luxury of the tremendous cost. I did not support any of the above three programs because I felt very strongly that it would be fiscally irresponsible to do so.

WELFARE LEGISLATION: Although the House passed substantial amendments to the Welfare Act almost a year ago, this bill is still in the Senate Finance Committee, and it appears that there will not be time to get final action on the legislation before adjournment. The House Bill included a 5 percent increase in social security benefits. It appears that the Congress will pass legislation to increase social security benefits this year, with at least a 10 percent boost, and it could be as much as 20 percent.

NATIONAL HEALTH INSURANCE: I do not look for the Congress to take any action on National Health Insurance during the current year. Many programs have been suggested and many bills have been introduced. The cost of these programs varies from the President's recommendations of approximately $3 billion to as high as Senator Kennedy's bill which would cover everyone with an estimated cost of $70 billion per year.

In regard to tax reform legislation, the '69 and '71 Acts provided for substantial changes in our tax laws, with decreases of as much as 82 percent in the income tax for those in the lower brackets. Those in the lower and medium income brackets benefited the most. The wealthy, the least, and corporate taxes were increased. The facts are contrary to some of the wild and misleading statements made by some of the hopeful Presidential candidates.

No limit is placed on the number of game birds and antelope permits that may be sold in Nebraska. Individuals, however, may hold only one bow-and-arrow permit for each species.

"I Can't Believe I Ate the WHOLE Thing" "Try It, You'll Like It" Heard By QUIZ Editor In Tour of Girl Scout Day Camp

By RON BALDWIN, Editor

There is a favorite commercial on TV today that shows a slightly overweight man sitting on the edge of his bed muttering, "I can't believe I ate the WHOLE thing." Another favorite commercial shows a young man sitting at a table in a restaurant saying, "Try it, you'll like it."

This writer felt like a combination of the two men in the commercial after returning home from the Girl Scout Day camp Thursday afternoon. After Girl Scouts and Brownies constantly told me, "Try it, you'll like it" all during the noon meal I did indeed mutter at my desk the rest of the afternoon, "I can't believe I ate the WHOLE thing." Believe me, you have never had an experience in eating out until you have tried and tasted at least seven or eight different dishes prepared by seven or eight year olds. To top the whole thing off, the food was darn good.

A brief summary of the bill of fare included: Mexican tangerine, chicken and dumplings, chili, chocolate pudding, banana boat, Sloppy Joe, ice tea, carrots, cheese and heaven knows what the other little lump was on my plate. At any rate even the "unidentified" lump tasted pretty good. All I know is, that it had meat in it (or a squashed bug, I'm not sure which).

Upon driving up to the camp, held at the Ord Veterans Grounds, the first thing I saw were several little girls frying bananas over an open fire. They were, I was to find out later, making banana boats. For those of you who never graduated from Girl Scout Cooking school, that consists of frying the banana over an open fire, splitting the skin and adding chocolate and marshmallow. It did turn out to be very delicious even though one of our office girls did warn me I would be sure to have that.

One of my first stops was at a table that was preparing chili. Those girls in charge of the chili preparation were Joan Bosworth and Susan Penas. As the adult leader handed me some chili she told me that "we forgot to get any chili powder." I don't know what Joan and Susan put in place of the chili powder but it was indeed excellent.

Mexican Tangerine was prepared by Lisa Sears and Gerilyn Peters. That dish is a hamburger type casserole with a little bit of everything dumped in to make it more interesting.

The main meal was eaten with a lively bunch of young ladies that make up Troop 110 and 134. Those girls were Janine Potrzeba, Mary Novosad, Peggy Kramer, Ellen Kusek, Deborah Elshor, Lorie VanWinkle and Elaine Bosworth. Janine and Mary were the "cooks for the day" and they managed to come up with chicken and dumplings, chocolate pudding, relish tray, milk or tea and sauerkraut. However one of the cooks, Mary Novosad, did confess the sauerkraut was a mistake as she "meant to get cole slaw" instead. Still the meal was far above average, especially when you consider that eight-year-old hands were in charge of the pots and kettles.

After the meal, the girls had an extensive "clean-up" of the area.

Peggy Kramer and Ellen Kusek were to cook for the girls the next day and all during the meal they worried about what they were to have the next day. They finally decided, I think that macaroni and cheese would have to do for the final day's meal.

I decided to turn down an invitation to return however when pretty little Peggy told me that if I used her picture in the paper she would slip "red poison" into my meal on Friday. I decided that journalism was a risky enough business without that. As I was departing the camp however, Peggy decided that it might be alright to use her picture in the paper.

Her reasoning — no one reads The Quiz anyway so it really wouldn't make much difference.

Fish caught on bank line or by nagging are not eligible for Nebraska Master Angler Awards.

FINGER LICKING GOOD — A table of hungry girls make short work of sloppy joes.

CLEAN UP TIME — Janine Potrzeba, Mary Novosad, Peggy Kramer and Ellen Kusek share the work in clean up operations after a chicken and dumpling dinner at the girl scout day camp. It wasn't all work however as the girls got time to study Indian lore, had a flag burning ceremony, learned the art of "tie dying", made sand candles, and heard Mrs. Mike Johnson present a talk on camping accidents. Mr. Ken Inman and his son, provided the Indian lore information.

WHAT'S THAT? Three youthful girl scouts "inspect" the fixings (banana boats) shortly before lunch time Thursday.

WORK CAN BE FUN — As the expressions on these two girls' faces indicate, Jana Blaha (right) and Jean Dubas haul the cooking water. Name of the camp this year was "Camp Talahiki". The name was submitted by Vicky Bodyfield.

officials this is due to several factors. During the spring early-born fawns begin to break away from the does. As a result, more and more animals begin to wander near or onto highways. Also highway travel is increased as people take their vacation. During October and November deer are in the rut and lose some of their natural caution. They are also seeking shelter from the weather. State Game and State Roads officials urge motorists to be especially alert when traveling through areas that are marked by deer crossing signs.

Youths Back From Dallas

Some 100,000 trained Christians delegates to the recent EXPL0 72 in Dallas, June 12-17 are now laying plans for the further spreading of the claims of Jesus Christ across the United States.

A delegation from Loup Valley was among the multitudes. A nationally organized series of follow-up conferences called EXPL0 72 COMES TO YOU will bring hundreds of American cities the same type of Christian life training given at EXPL0.

Campus Crusade for Christ International, sponsor of EXPL0 will start local events. The theme reflected by the name given the conference — "EXPL0 72 COMES TO YOU."

High school and college students, laymen and pastors, and military personnel, were delegates at EXPL0. More than 1,000 churches and towns sent delegations numbering 3,500 persons in one case. Every state was represented at the unique event, as well as some 85 foreign countries.

Billy Graham, EXPL0's Honorary Chairman, Arthur Blessitt, Minister of Sunset Strip, Bob Harrington, "Chaplain of Bourbon Street" were among the 145 distinguished Christian leaders who addressed the crowds. Delegates met in approximately 60 separate conferences each morning across Dallas, and in the Cotton Bowl nightly.

An all day Christian music festival featuring Johnny Cash and 30 music groups was the grand finale of the week with an estimated 200,000 people in attendance.

EXPL0 72 COMES TO YOU conferences are intended to teach how to experience the abundant Christian life and how to effectively share one's faith in Christ with others.

The denominational Campus Crusade estimates that one half million people may be trained by the fall in the EXPL0 72 COMES TO YOU events.

Dangers Increase During Vacations

It's vacation time and the increased traffic on the highway creates a unique problem involving motorists and wildlife.

Every week hundreds of wild animals in the state fall victim to automobiles, mostly when the creature is crossing a well used highway.

Crossing a highway is dangerous for humans and appears to be twice as dangerous for animals.

Skunks, squirrels, raccoons and turtles are the most frequent victims, but deer are also part of the wildlife toll.

The State Department of Roads reported that during the week of May 15-22 10 deer hit and killed by automobile on Interstate in Nebraska. From May 23 to May 31, a total of 23 deer were killed.

Unlike other animals that cross highways, deer have a tendency to stop when a car approaches. A stationary deer hits a car at a speed of 75 miles per hour. In most cases, a driver has no chance of missing the animal.

A fast moving car often receives substantial damage when it hits a deer. Repairs involved in car-deer accidents range from $200 to $350 per car. However, records show that there has been only one Nebraska traffic death, attributed directly to car-deer accidents.

It is not known how many other traffic accidents were caused by deer crossing highways. For example, a driver swerving to miss a deer could easily lose control of the car and crash. Or a driver could cross his lane and hit another car while trying to miss an animal. These accidents may happen frequently, but are hard to attribute to wild animals simply because the animals leave the area after the accident occurs.

The incidence of deer being hit by motorist has been a problem in Nebraska and other states for a number of years. Approximately 1,300 deer are killed annually on the state's highways. An all time high of 1,477 deer were killed on Nebraska roads in 1971.

Compared to other states, Nebraska's yearly deer highway toll is quite low. In Pennsylvania over 15,000 deer were killed on the highways in a one-year period.

In Nebraska, deer kills are highest during May, October and November. In May of 1971, 158 deer were killed, in October, 212 and in November, 298.

Four ceramic football lamps which are autographed by Bob Devaney and the 1971 football team will be raffled off at the dedication of the new Chapel which is tentatively scheduled for this fall. Tickets on these regular size white ceramic footballs with the words "Go Big Red" carved out of them are available from the various veterans organizations or the Nebraska Veterans Home at the cost of $1.00.

Members of the Nebraska Veterans Home come from all areas of the state," stated Phillips "and this is why we are requesting the financial support of the citizens of Nebraska as well as the Veterans organizations".

The present membership of the Home is 408 with an addition to the WWII building in Grand Island to provide for another 100 members.

A multi purpose room is being used for worship services by placing a portable altar in front of folding chairs. Recreation activities meetings and training classes are also scheduled for this room.

"The Veterans Home facilities provide shelter, food, medical care and a social life for its members," said Phillips, "now we are asking each and every citizen of Nebraska to help us provide the proper atmosphere for worship for the aged, disabled or handicapped veterans".

Donations may be sent to the All Faiths Chapel Fund drive at the Nebraska Veterans Home or to the local veterans organizations.

ic effects of the Mid-State development will be carried out by qualified private consultants. Guidelines for the protection and enhancement of the environmental quality of the project impact areas will also be provided through the environmental analysis.

In letters to Nebraska Governor J. J. Exon and other officials, James M. Ingle, Director of the Bureau's Region 7, Denver, Colorado, asked that one representative from each agency or entity be designated to serve on the "advisory team" Ingle said, "As a further aid in implementing the study, a technical environmental advisory group to provide advice on a broad range of environmental matters is desirable." The "advisory team" will provide the Bureau with comments and advice on the scope and particulars of the proposed study and review progress reports and findings.

The Mid-State development entails a regulated gravity and groundwater supply for 140,000 acres of land adjacent to and north of the Platte River in Buffalo, Hall and Merrick Counties. In addition to irrigation, project functions will include flood protection, recreation, and fish and wildlife enhancement.

Death Continues On State Roads

Nebraska Department of Roads records show that the deadly race toward a new traffic fatality record continued during the month of April. Though the month's total of 39 deaths was four below last April's total, the January-April '72 total was 13.2 per cent ahead of the same period in 1971. According to the Department's Accident Records Chief Tom Ryan, there were 120 fatalities during the first four months of the year. This compares with 106 fatalities for January-April 1971. Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays were especially dangerous during April. Nearly one-half (19) of the 39 deaths occurred on these days. Twenty-six males and 13 females died during April. Twenty-four of the victims were drivers, nine were passengers and six were pedestrians of other. Following is an established trend, more accidents (22) occurred during dark and dusk hours than during the day (17). Douglas held undisputed first place among the counties with 14 deaths recorded. Lincoln County was in second place with three deaths. If traffic deaths continue to increase at the present rate, the 1972 toll could reach 533.

Court Reform Hits Nebraska; New System to Begin January 1

Court systems in Nebraska will undergo drastic changes in the near future if LB 1032, which already has the signature of Gov. J. J. Exon affixed to it, goes into effect. Considerable controversy surrounds the bill and at least one County Judge in the state has resigned partly because of the new bill and several others are expected to resign in the near future. Harsh criticism have been leveled at the bill by outspoken opponents of the measure. One local authority in the Ord vicinity, who requested The Quiz not identify him, has said, "The only place that a similar system is now being used is Alaska. They have had the system for about six years and they claim they still don't know where they are at the present time."

Dakota County Judge Gary Irish, South Sioux City, who resigned from that post, said upon his resignation, "With the court reform it seemed to be a good time to make a move. I can see very few advantages at this point, of the new system over the old one."

Under the new system, there will be 21 county court districts and 43 judges. The judges will be elected this fall. They will name associate county judges who will be located in each of the state's 93 counties at the county seat. District County Judges will receive a total of $20,000 per year with Associate County Judges receiving up to three-fourths of that salary with case load, experience and responsibilities being used to determine pay of associate judges.

LB 1032 is expected to go into effect in January of 1973, giving seemingly little time for the court to fully reorganize. One of the first things of interest is that each county court in the state has been placed in one of 21 district county court districts in the state. Valley County is in District 20 which consists of Blaine, Loup, Garfield, Wheeler, Custer and Greeley in addition to Valley. It is one of the largest districts geographically in the state. District 11 will consist of Hall and Howard Counties and District 12 of Buffalo and Sherman Counties. Because District 20 takes in such a large land area, the district will have two District County Judges. Candidates for the District County Judge post must file on or before August 1, 1972 on non-political ticket and those elected will serve for terms of four years. An original proposal which was changed by the Legislature this past year, had judicial nominating committees picking the initial District County Judges with them serving a term of six years.

DUNLEVY APPOINTED

For the first time Nebraska now has an administrator for its state court system. He is James Dunlevy, a Lincoln attorney, who will begin his duties in the $22,500 a year job on July 1. Dunlevy was appointed to the post, created by the Constitution, by Chief Justice Paul W. White of the State Supreme Court. His responsibilities cover the county, district and supreme courts, but White said Dunlevy would concentrate initially on the new court system established by the 1971 Legislature.

Under the new system, there will be 21 county court districts and 43 judges. The judges will be elected this fall. They will name associate county judges who will be located in each of the state's 93 counties at the county seat. District County Judges will receive a total of $20,000 per year with Associate County Judges receiving up to three-fourths of that salary with case load, experience and responsibilities being used to determine pay of associate judges.

ADEQUATE NUMBER

White said part of Dunlevy's job will be to make sure there is an adequate number of associate county judges and that they have proper quarters. He is also to prepare the budget for the court systems, compile statistics and perform other administrative work under the direction of the chief justice.

Dunlevy has been working until last fall as a researcher and bill drafter for the Legislature. He was the chief author of LB 1032, which created the new county court system. Before working for the lawmakers, Dunlevy had been a special assistant to Gov. Frank B. Morrison and has served as director of the State Department of Motor Vehicles.

One of the many questions that has been asked is will all present county judges, police magistrates and justices of the peace be assured of a job if they want one? Section 8 of the bill provides that "All County Judges, Justices of the Peace and Police Magistrates holding office on the effective date of this act shall be eligible for appointment as Associate County Judges, and all such County Judges desiring such appointment shall be appointed as Associate County Judges."

Under the new setup, each Associate County Judge in any given county seat or branch of the court may be designated the following responsibilities by a District County Judge:

1. Any civil proceeding where the amount of money or damages or the value of personal property claimed does not exceed $1,000.
2. Any proceeding based on violation of a city or village ordinance.
3. Any criminal proceeding which is a misdemeanor under the laws of the state.
4. Any proceeding for the issuance of warrants for arrest or for searches and seizures.
5. Any proceeding for preliminary examination to determine probable cause, commitment, prior to trial or the release on bail of persons charged with criminal offenses.
6. Any juvenile proceedings except the commitment to a state institution or the termination of parental rights.
7. Any proceeding to prevent the commission of crimes and

8. Any proceedings relating to decedents' estates, guardianship or conservatorship, except the construction of wills and trusts, the determination of title to real estate and authorization of the sale or mortgaging of real estate.

Under the law, "all assignments of matters to Associate County Judges shall be by written order signed by the presiding county judge and filed with the clerk." The bill also says "no order or judgment shall be void or subject to collateral attack solely because it was rendered pursuant to improper assignment to an Associate County Judge."

Under the new system, present County Judge Rollin Dye would be eligible to serve as an Associate County Judge and his responsibilities might include city cases of Ord, North Loup, Arcadia and Elyria in addition to the above mentioned duties. District County Judges must hold a law degree.

FLOOD SCARE

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Christoffersen and family of Green River, Wyo., were Friday and Saturday visitors in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Ellingson Jr. They also visited with Mrs. Mary Christoffersen in the Valley County Hospital, and the Lyle Inness family of Burwell. Ray is the grandson of Mary Christoffersen and the son of Elmer Christoffersen, who once lived in Ord and owned and operated a body shop several years ago. They had been vacationing in the Black Hills, and left that area just a few hours before the flood waters. They had planned on staying another day, but because it was raining hard, they were a little afraid their tent wouldn't keep the water out, so they packed up their belongings and their five children and moved on to a small town 30 miles from Rapid City where they rented a motel room instead of sleeping in their tent. This undoubtedly kept them from becoming a part of the tragedy that struck that area. They left Ord Saturday and are now homeward bound.

Nixon Declares July 25-31 As Farm Safety Week

President Nixon has proclaimed July 25-31 as National Farm Safety Week. The theme for this 29th annual observance is "Protective Equipment — Your Defense Against Injury." Your Defense Against Injury. "Your Defense Against Injury." The main thrust this year is personal protective equipment, including safety glasses, hard hats, respirator, ear plugs and muffs, safety shoes with metal toe caps and reinforced soles. A large chunk of the accidental injuries in agriculture involve parts of the body which could be protected by this equipment. Such equipment is widely used in many industries, and has prevented or reduced the severity of countless injuries. Therefore, it would be logical to apply this equipment to agriculture to heighten farm safety.

FARM DEBT
FARM MORTGAGE DEBT totaled $307 billion as of January 1, 1972 according to a report from USDA. This is some $12 billion more than a year earlier. At the start of 1971, Federal land bank held 24 per cent of the total debt; life insurance companies, 19 per cent; commercial banks, 15 per cent; Farmers Home Administration, 1 per cent; miscellaneous lenders, 41 per cent.

During the last decade, the share of farm debt held by Federal land banks and commercial banks has increased. Farmers Home Administration and life insurance companies waned.

Farm Accident Factors Studied

What problems are associated with farm accidents? Is age a factor? Does the area of the state have some effect? Is the type of farming important in relationship of accidents? What is the ratio of males to females involved in farm accidents?

A look at some answers to these questions is contained in a continuing study of farm-related fatalities gathered by the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

Data covering 1969-71 pinpointed areas where accidents and fatalities occurred on a map of Nebraska. Many of the counties without fatalities were in areas with less farming activity and therefore not as high a probability for machinery-associated fatalities. Terrain also played an important part.

Machinery-related accidents accounted for 101 of the 106 fatalities, including power take-off, overturn, run over by equipment, and falling from equipment accidents. The tractor overturn accidents accounted for 65 of these fatalities. In all these fatalities, none of the tractors had roll bars or cabs.

In a second study, only three fatalities resulted from 28 overturns in which all tractor had roll bars or cabs. The remaining accidents may have caused injuries but not fatalities. The three fatalities in this study occurred in two accidents with cabs which were not manufactured before the period when protective cabs were available and so were not considered effective.

In the male-female statistics, males accounted for 149 of 168 fatalities over a three-year period.

KERNELS & HUSKS

Valley County Agent

High temperatures and high humidity can spell trouble for cattle and hogs in the feedlot. We've had a couple bad days already this summer. We can expect more.

Steers and hogs nearing the end of their finishing period are usually hardest hit with hot humidity weather.

You livestock men are urged to take every precaution possible to eliminate stress during these periods.

Be sure they have plenty of water available. Provide a shade if trees or other shade is not available. Keep them in a location where air can circulate around them. Don't work them or move them unless you have to.

Your dairy cow needs from four to five gallons of water for every gallon of milk she produces. She could drink double this amount in very hot weather.

Nebraska has some 210 thousand living, breathing "food factories" in the form of dairy cows. These "factories" produce high quality food from crude raw materials.

The dairy cow excels all other animals in producing protein, the nutrient lacking in many human diets. The yearly production of edible solids from a just average cow, is about 1,600 pounds. This is roughly equivalent to the edible solids produced by six steers.

"Promotion Is Big Job"

National Pork Officer Speaks In Ord Saturday

Gerald Beattie, Vice-President of the National Pork Producers from Sumner, was the featured speaker Saturday night at the Midwest Pork Producers Meeting at the Elks Club. Beattie was in Ord to give a summary of the National Pork Congress and events that have transpired since that meeting.

Beattie said "communication is our biggest problem" in the pork business. He said a major hurdle is how to tell people out in rural Nebraska about some of the good programs that are being conducted in St. Louis or in Chicago. He also noted that most of pork's consuming customers are east and west of this area.

He also noted that people out here in the rural area cannot imagine how it is to live on the east coast or west coast. He noted people will spend an hour to an hour and a half driving one way to work.

SOME THINGS NEED TO BE DONE

Beattie noted that with these factors in mind, the National Pork Congress decided that several things need to be done. He said National Pork Producers Officers have spent considerable time in Washington trying to get the President and Congress to allot more money to the National Pork organization. He noted that pork producers rank third nationally in output but rank 16th in money given to them by the federal government for research. He termed this "grossly unfair."

He said more and more money must be spent in "problem areas" trying to find out things about pork producing that we do not already know. He also noted that the National Pork Producers officers have "reworked" national by-laws so that state representation is more equal. He noted that there will be an important national meeting June 26 at Sioux Falls, S. D.

"Our big job on the national level is to promote," commented Beattie. "Money spent on goods and services has risen 164.7 percent, the disposable income by 146.5 percent, farm machinery costs by 100 percent, expenditures for food by 66.8 percent, steel prices by 3.6 percent and pork by 36 percent."

He also noted that what many people do not realize is the money paid at the food store for food shows little correlation with money received by farmers for food. He noted that 28 percent of every dollar spent in a grocery store is for non-grocery items. He also noted that while income has risen by 80 percent in this country over the past several years, food prices have gone up only 28 percent. He said people today "still expect 1939 prices" for foods.

"We must sell pork with a mass media campaign so that people will want it," continued Beattie. "We have found that full page announcements in newspapers, complete with color layouts and spot radio announcements are still the best source of advertising."

He noted that in St. Louis where an extensive newspaper campaign was conducted trying to sell the benefits of pork consumption, sales of pork related products rose by 37 percent which was termed "tremendous and above expectations."

He said at the present time pork producers are spending only .084 percent of every profit dollar for promotion of pork product and said if a successful advertising trend is to promote pork, at least 3 percent must be spent.

He urged pork producers at the Elks Club Saturday night to give serious thoughts on ways to improve pork promotion.

Petition Drive Over July 7

"The petition drive to put the proposal for the exemption of food purchases from Nebraska's sales tax on the ballot will end July 7. Nebraska citizens should understand the issues," warns Dr. Everett Peterson, University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension professor in agricultural economics.

An alternative to this proposal is to increase the present food tax to recognize higher food prices since 1967. The 1972 Legislature boosted the tax credit to $10 per person, effective July 1, from 1968 through 1971, tax credit per person was $7. The $10 tax is equivalent to $400 worth of purchases — $333 in Lincoln and $235 in Omaha.

According to Peterson, the present tax credit system holds several advantages:

1. Convenience for the customer and retail grocer because it eliminates any sorting at the check-out counter.
2. Low-income families benefit more from the credit refund than high-income families.
3. Tourists buying food in Nebraska pay sales tax on purchases.
4. It applies less pressure to exempt other items and narrow the sales tax base.

He said the main disadvantages of the present system are:

1. It is inflexible in relation to rising food costs.
2. City sales taxes in Lincoln and Omaha make credit less adequate for low-income residents.
3. Some people may fail to claim refunds when no state income tax is paid.

In comparison, Peterson listed the advantages of exempting food:

1. Everyone gets the exemption.
2. Automatic "adjustment" to food price rises without legislative action.
3. No refund claim is necessary.

Disadvantages to this proposed system are:

1. Increased cost and more inconvenience to consumers and retailers as taxable and exempt items are separated.
2. Problems will arise as to which items are exempt, which taxable.
3. High-income people would benefit more than low-income people (steak versus hamburger).
4. Tourists and other non-residents would pay no Nebraska sales tax on food purchased in the state.
5. Pressure groups would demand exemption of other necessities of life.

"Keep in mind that this would not exempt non-food items bought at the grocery store," Peterson emphasized.

Pests cost the U. S. about $20 billion a year in total losses of crop plants and livestock. This represents a 25 per cent pest tax, or 25 cents on every dollar spent for food.

Looking at it another way... The equivalent of 75 million acres of food, or one-fourth the harvested crop acres in the U. S., is lost annually to pests.

LAND USE PLANNING

Farmers and ranchers as the largest landowner group in the nation need to become actively involved in land use planning in order to represent agriculture's interests and maintain some semblance of local and state control in this important issue.

Time after time the federal government moves into what should be local responsibilities out of public demand because local governments and individuals fail to recognize the needs and realities of the issues involved, and to do anything about them. So it is with land use planning.

There is legislation in the U. S. Congress to launch a nationwide land planning program and many of the proponents of federal legislation may not recognize the full implications of a federal approach. When the nation starts down the road of a national program for land use planning, it will cross a bridge that leads to a more prominent federal role and brings an increase in public management of all land resources.

All prominent federal bills provide a "carrot-stick" approach in which the federal government would make grants from 50 per cent to 90 per cent of the cost for state and county comprehensive land use planning. Federal responsibility to protect broad public interests that cross county and state lines is established by the courts and must be accepted. However, in using federal funds to motivate local governments, there is the bigger issue of preserving self-determination in local government.

The potential benefits from sound land use planning are numerous but there are some pitfalls which must be recognized, and these include loss of basic freedoms in the rush to achieve immediate environmental goals, increased misunderstanding and hostilities caused by riding roughshod over valid minority points-of-view and profiteering by special-interest groups.

Historically, ranchers and farmers have taken the position that individuals should be responsible for the management and use of privately-owned agriculture lands and free to sell their lands for the highest possible dollar. But a number of changes are dramatically altering some of these long-established concepts and are forcing agriculture to study land use planning and zoning laws.

Property taxes have increased and if the tax is not based on agricultural use, it can erode land values and eventually make agricultural use of the land uneconomical. Improperly planned or non-complementary land developments on adjacent properties damage potential land values and increase assessment costs.

Poorly planned rural growth such as "leap-frog" expansion of cities and towns and "ribbon developments" often become economic liabilities to rural governments. When the service needs of providing utilities, police, schools, fire protection, etc., catch up, the unplanned rural sprawl around our cities becomes a costly tax burden.

Agricultural uses produce noises, pesticides, dust, odor, etc., which can create environmental complaints from non-agricultural neighbors which result in expensive court actions and pollution abatement costs, plus hostility between the farm and ranch families and those who have "moved out" with suburban developments into the agricultural communities.

Such things are forcing farm and ranch people, especially those near large cities, to re-evaluate their individualistic approaches and to seek protection by sound planning and zoning laws. The alternative is to sit back and do nothing until the federal government moves in. Then it is too late, the damage will be done and the course toward federal control will be irreversible.

CAP's Devaluation of the Evaluation

According to information received at The Ord Quiz from private sources, the Loup City Central Nebraska Community Action Program (CNCAP) underwent an extensive "evaluation" of its operation by several of its board members and staff personnel. The evaluation was made from June 15 through August 6, 1971. It should be no shock to anyone that several of these recommendations have been ignored by Administrator George Dworak and his staff.

Considering the same administrator ignored the results of federal audits until the outcry from the press became deafening, it should be of no surprise that Dworak should choose to follow the same path when an evaluation is turned into him by his own people.

According to our private sources of information, those making up the evaluation team included Walt Smith, Ord, a CNCAP Board of Director representing Valley County; George Sorensen, Board Member from Howard County and the team leader; Mary Ann Henry, Board Member representing Greeley County; John Kaminski, businessman from Arcadia; Georgia Férnéc, a Loup City homemaker; Mrs. Gale Smith, a Dannebrog homemaker; Patty Peacock of the Broken Bow Community Action office; Lottie Graus, of the St. Paul Community Action office; John Michalek of the Loup City Community Action office and Joe House, from the State Technical Assistance Agency who acted as a consultant to the evaluation team.

Below are listed some of the recommendations and suggestions that were made by the evaluation team that, according to our sources of information, have not been followed by Dworak. —It was recommended that the Board of Directors hold their Board meetings throughout the five-county area. To the best of our knowledge they are still being held almost exclusively in Loup City.

—It was recommended that Dworak hold weekly staff meetings with all program directors and other employees when deemed necessary and that they be present and that proceedings of these meetings be sent to all personnel. According to our sources of information, this is not being done.

—It was recommended that the Administrative staff submit a public relations plan to the Board of Directors. According to our sources of information, this has not been done.

—It was recommended that there is a need for training some staff members in specialized areas such as housing. According to our sources of information, this has not been done.

—It was recommended that more emphasis should be placed on reporting, documenting and publicizing activities of the program. According to our sources of information this has not been done. We also know from our own personal standpoint that this is true. News releases from the Loup City CNCAP office are almost collector's items.

—It was recommended that CAP personnel attend City Council meetings in all major towns in the area to inform these people of the program and also to find the needs in different areas. According to our sources of information, this has not been done.

—It was recommended that there should be better relationships between the CNCAP office and some of the welfare offices. Central Nebraska Community Action Program's own evaluation brought forth the point that in some cases people are referred to welfare who are not qualified for food stamps. It was recommended that the emphasis directed toward food stamps be modified to restore better relations with the welfare offices. According to our sources of information including visits with some members of the Valley County Board of Supervisors, this has not been done.

It was also recommended that Dworak be "given ample time to carry out these recommendations and align his staff." We can only question how much time does he need. Surely these are all simple enough requests that Dworak could have fulfilled them all by now if he ever intended to do so.—RON

Accent on the Obvious

A team of University of Missouri sociologists have completed a three-year study of small-town elderly — specifically, 1,716 persons 65 years or more in age living in 63 Missouri communities of 250 to 5,000 population — and has come up with an "index of life satisfaction."

Among the findings: —Married couples scored higher on the index than did the widowed, the divorced, the separated or the single. —Those who had Social Security or private sources of income or both had higher scores than those on Old Age Assistance.

—Those who reported a decline in income since 1960 had a lower life satisfaction score compared to those whose financial situation had not changed or had improved.

—Those who reported themselves as "never lonely" had higher scores than those who were "occasionally lonely" or "frequently lonely."

—Those who classified themselves as middle aged scored highest in life satisfaction; those who considered themselves old scored lowest.

—In most cases, good health and high social participation were positively related to high life satisfaction scores, just as poor health and limited participation tended to be associated with low life satisfaction scores.

The study was supported by grants totaling $122,641 from the U.S. Public Health Service. Its discoveries are similar to those of a $249,000 study made in Puerto Rico, also sponsored by the Health Service, which reported that young people are happier than old people, healthy people are happier than sick people, people with money are happier than people without money, etc.

If the Health Service is willing to come up with another six-figure grant, perhaps other teams of sociologists can be found who will be willing to study these studies.

And as long as we're having studies, it would be interesting to have one that compared the life satisfaction indexes of those scientists who make genuine contributions to human understanding compared with those who seem to spend an inordinate amount of time analyzing the obvious.

Something Different

What Happens to Women?

When Mrs. Lucile Tolen came to the end of her teaching career in the Ord schools there were numbers of students and old friends who made a suitable fuss over her.

Two mammoth dinner parties in her honor bulged the Elks Club two nights in one week, as Lucile was honored with flowers, food and speeches of appreciation. Her years in the seventh and eighth grade classroom, her long hours of work on the school yearbooks as she strived to teach one group of young would-be editors after another, the long hours in the library, all were publicly noted and appreciated.

So many youngsters gained a good start under her nudging. There was another delightful touch.

One day Lucile received a lovely rose from an anonymous friend.

Two days later she received two roses from an unnamed friend.

A day or so later she received four red roses with no card from the donor.

And in a day or two she was given an armful of red roses. This time the card enclosed bore the name of her eldest son, Tom, who is also a teacher, in fact he is the principal of one of Omaha's finest westside schools.

What an unusual, thoughtful tribute to his mother.

What could have been a tragedy in the Ted Welniak family has been quietly solved, after considerable suffering by the mother and seven young Welniaks. When they had reason to think the family's pet dog had been exposed to rabies, Dr. Paul Martin considered it a good idea to give each of them a course of rabies shots.

In case you don't know, I believe it takes 14 shots. They are given in the pit of the stomach and are extremely painful, so I was really sorry for Betty and the children.

But any tiny scratch when exposed to rabies can be critical. And this year rabies seem to have a real hold in the mid-west, particularly on skunks, squirrels, rats, dogs and cats. So it is very wise to be careful or even to have the rabies immunization shot, whatever it is called.

That's all from Dr. Leggett for today.

From California Clinton Blessing writes a cutie to his sister, Opal Burrows, . . . a slight switch of a current saying (too popular).

State Capitol News

By Melvin Paul

It cost more than a half-million dollars to convene Nebraska's legislators for their 60-working day 1972 session. That's not what they spent—they spent about a half-billion dollars—that's what it cost for the salaries of legislative employees, for supplies, for equipment, for postage, for printing and for similar items.

The exact figure was $588,753. And that works out to $9,813 for each of the 60 days the lawmakers were on duty.

A year earlier, when the Legislature was in session 90 days, the session expenses totaled $572,672.

The two figures aren't exactly comparable, however, because some of the expenditures in each of the years were for such things as furnishings and typewriters—capital items—which will have a useful life covering several sessions.

The bookkeepers say about $58,300 this year went for such things. No attempt has been made to figure how much of that total is directly attributable to the 1972 session.

Some of that money, in fact, was used to pay for items actually ordered and used during the 1971 session.

In any case, the two annual sessions—the first under the new system approved by the voters in 1970—cost a total of nearly $1.2 million.

PREPARING THE WAY
Evidence gathered by Israeli security officials reveals that the three Japanese gunmen received coordinated help for their mission from terrorist groups on at least four continents.

Direct support came from the "Baader-Meinhof" group in West Germany, the "Dynamars" organization in South America, and from communist-financed radical groups in Lebanon, Italy, Canada, and Japan.

All of these terrorist-radical groups are known to have received money from Communist China and Russia. Many of their key members have been trained in guerrilla warfare in those countries.

Israeli officials have established that a Japanese contact of the three terrorist killers visited Israel to look over the target at least three months before the attack.

This contact also met with several radical groups in Israel, including one called the Black Panthers. This group is made up of Jewish political radicals which is believed to receive funds from Moscow.

The link-up of the terrorist groups and the support given the three killers came to light in the grilling of Kozo Okamoto, the only gunman to survive the shoot out.

Okamoto disclosed that he and his partner received their "false documents" from a radical group in Frankfurt, Germany, their weapons training in Beirut, Lebanon, their weapons in Italy, and money from radical groups in Canada, Japan, and South America.

Describing himself as a member of the Moscow supported "United Red Army" in Japan, Okamoto traced the route his group took from Japan to Israel.

"What do you do when you get depressed?"

This question was tossed at me, last week, following a talk I'd given at Halsey to the 4-H Conservation and Ecology Camp.

My first thought was that the young girl asking it had been doing drugs. She had been crying—I could tell from her reddened eyes. And she hated to ask the question, "Depressed from WHAT?"

I vainly tried to answer her question—without asking her more about herself. I'm afraid I wasn't of much help, though she needed someone to talk to as much as anything. So I did my best without prying into her personal life.

Since that time, though, I've given her question a lot of thought. She's certainly not alone. The majority of our population, it seems to me, doesn't know how to combat depression.

As I took a broader view of her question during the past week, I see more and more Americans seeking ways to combat depressed feelings. It's a sad sign of the times and the troubled world around us.

Famous screen and recording stars on tv jokingly kid with the emcees about psychoanalysis. The so-called Jesus freaks grab the Bible and recite Biblical quotations to you in answer to your questions.

Young people everywhere are doing the drug scene, trying to discover "where it's at." Older people retreat to alcoholic drugs. No one wants to face reality!

I hate to think that the Big Brother government which controls so much of our life has entered George Orwell's phase of "1984." But I'm afraid it's nearing Orwell's predictions.

Few people have a mind to think for themselves. In my own work with people, I've found fewer and fewer who actually try to discover the answers to their problems WITHIN THEMSELVES.

There's more and more lip service paid to "soul searching" and less and less of the actual thing.

Apathy has a strangulation hold on our nation as a people and it's on its way to wrecking the hopes and dreams of life and any faith and courage to change that life.

This apathetic attitude blinds one to any opportunities and we miss the adventure and excitement of living. Boredom and purposeless living are the price we pay and we wonder why we get depressed. It's a vicious cycle of self-destruction.

To the young girl asking the question, I could only advise her to seek the adventure of self-knowledge. YOU are a great person to know — or have you given it any thought lately?

The Editor's Notebook

By RON BALDWIN, Quiz Editor

An article was recently published in an official publication of the Kansas Press Association that kind of caught our eye. I'd like to share the article with our readers and might add, all these points have been brought up since I have been at the Quiz at one time or another. In a couple cases I have made a few slight modifications to even more closely fit our situation. Honest, I have had all these thrown at me at least once since I've been here.

The article was originally printed in a Utah newspaper. Hay Boyle, an Associated Press writer, often serves up a selection of remarks a bachelor (or a spinster or a fat man or cabdriver) gets tired of hearing. The Escanaba, Utah, Daily Press, however, observed that "so far as we know, he has not yet published a column on remarks an editor gets tired of hearing. If he did, the entries would probably include these threadbare phrases:

"Please put it on the front page."
"Use the story just as I have written it. The club wants it that way for a scrapbook."
"You're invited to our annual dinner tonight. There will be plenty free to eat and drink. I suppose we have to provide you with a ticket. Oh yes, please bring your camera."

"How come it wasn't in the paper? It was? Well, I didn't see it. It must have not been in a very good place. It was on the front page? Well, I didn't look there because I never thought it would be on the front page. Will you please go through the back copies and tear it out for me?"

"I just stopped by to talk a few minutes, but if you're busy . . ."
"The Someplace, Oregon, Newspaper printed the most lovely story on my third cousin. Would you mind reprinting it? He left here not too many years ago, I think maybe it was about 1941."
"I know you have a deadline, but couldn't you squeeze this little item in?"

"My husband has never been in trouble before, so I don't think his name should appear in the paper for drunk driving and hitting that nasty policeman. Besides, he only had a couple of beers, and there are the children to think about."
"My uncle's brother is one of your biggest advertisers, and I was wondering if . . ."

"I know you people are the paid photographers but we simply CAN'T leave anyone out of this picture. Can't you somehow get all 67 club members into this picture?"
"You left several pictures, but you didn't print my first wedding anniversary picture."
"How come you don't print poems by local residents?"
"If there wasn't any room for the other picture, why couldn't you run it on another page?"
"If the Somewhereville, Kansas Newspaper printed it, why can't The Quiz?"

"I know this is a public meeting, but I would like to talk off the record."
"I know it was a public meeting, but you didn't have to print that I said that. I looked terrible in print."
"You guys only print the Republican side of the story."
"You guys only print the Democrat side of the story."

"Everyone Wants a Piece Of the Pie" Says Senator

By Melvin Paul

into water resource development in Nebraska.

They decided last week that the only way to convince their fellow legislators that the money needed is to put priorities on the pending projects and explain why they are needed.

In an unusually frank discussion, the senators said political considerations would have to be taken into account while the list is being put together.

The lawmakers originally asked the State Soil and Water Conservation Commission to establish the priorities. But the commission staff said there were too many subjective decisions involved — such things as social objectives.

For example, Jerry Wallin told the committee, is it the state's policy to encourage projects in areas where population is declining and try to stimulate growth?

Wallin, who heads the commission's comprehensive planning section, said that type of a question couldn't be answered by the agency without more guidance from the legislators.

Sen. Rudolf Kokes of Ord said it is just as important to make sure the priority list is well distributed geographically and politically so it can be sold to the 1973 Legislature.

"If we play it right," Kokes said, "we'll have projects all over the state so when we go after the money, we'll get it. People all over the place want a piece of the pie, and rightfully so."

Sen. Wayne W. Ziebarth of Wilcox also stressed the importance of the project. He said the Legislature will play in getting the money to go with the federal and local funds now being used to finance water conservation projects.

The legislators asked Dayle Williamson, executive director of the commission, to prepare a list of pending projects and have it ready for the committee's July 6 meeting in Lincoln.

At that time, the lawmakers will compare project against criteria prepared by the commission staff and against the political criteria they will furnish themselves.

Although the aim is to get more state money into the water projects, there hasn't been any talk yet about how much state money will be requested.

The senators have said they are interested in supporting a combination of water projects, some designed to provide irrigation, some aimed at flood control and some involved basically with soil conservation.

Keith Myers, Nebraska soil conservation specialist with the U.S. Department of Agriculture, urged the senators to have separate priority lists for each type of project.

But Ziebarth and Kokes, especially, said that approach isn't practical in putting together a package for Nebraska.

"You're talking about apples and oranges," Ziebarth said to Myers, "but all we see are oranges."

Myers said the Department of Agriculture funds soil conservation work, the Department of Interior handles irrigation projects and the Corps of Engineers is concerned with flood control.

He said the state could short itself on federal funds unless it divides its projects up along similar functional lines.

Kokes said it wouldn't be a good idea for the Legislature to say irrigation, for example, should have the No. 1 priority in the state.

"There are places where they couldn't care less about irrigation, but flood control is a major concern," he said.

Kokes also said Nebraska must get busy and "tie down" its water resources with plans, at least, because other areas of the nation are casting envious eyes at Nebraska water.

"We need to have enough projects to show where we're going to use this water so they don't keep looking at it so much. We may suddenly find ourselves without water and then we're

Geranium Joe Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

Ed Psoa raised a question during the session at the country store Saturday night that kept the fellers wound up past closing time. Ed wanted to know why it was that a feller can run for public office after he's old to do anything else.

Ed pointed out that a few months back Adolph Rupp was forced to retire from coaching basketball, and he said if they wouldn't let him coach he would run for Congress. Rupp's school has a rule that everybody quits at 70, but a politician can serve as long as he can get elected. Ed says they is somepun wrong with a deal that says a school teacher in charge of 30 youngsters can't work after 65, but a senator that might speak for 15 million people can hold down the job as long as the people want him.

The fellers was general agreed with Ed, but Frank Cernik reminded them that the system actual was designed to help folks that wanted to retire but couldn't. A rule that everybody quits at 70, but a politician can serve as long as he can get elected. Ed says they is somepun wrong with a deal that says a school teacher in charge of 30 youngsters can't work after 65, but a senator that might speak for 15 million people can hold down the job as long as the people want him.

Edgar Lange was of a mind that forced retirement is discrimination of the worst sort. He said you don't junk a car as long as it runs good, no matter how old it is, and folks ought to get at least as much consideration. But Edgar saw agreed with Frank that retirement for them that wants it is fine. What bothers him most about forced retirement, allowed Edgar, is the idea of kicking out a old hand just to make room for a young one. He had saw this piece where a company was hiring salesmen that had retired from other jobs, and they was selling rings around the young ones.

Frank said Social Security had a lot to do with forced retirement, because they had to set a age for people to be eligible for it. That age has come to be took as the age everybody runs out of gas, was Frank's words. If that's the case, he added, it ain't no wonder the Supreme Court pulls some of the stunts it does. That court is older than our bunch that meets ever Saturday night, said Frank, and the one in Washington had 4,000 cases filed with it last year. That's even more than we hash out.

Personal, Mister Editor, ain't none of the fellers ever broke a sweat if it didn't suit him. They

the direction of energy

When the big wheel turns clockwise, the little wheel turns counter-clockwise at a greater rate of speed. Thus man controls energy in the physical universe, determining, according to his own will, its direction and effect.

There is a spiritual universe, too. A world in which God, who gave us freedom of will, provides the guidance, help and inspiration which unite our minds with His for purposes which are GOOD.

We realize with trembling in this nuclear age that the physical and spiritual universe are not two—but ONE. We cannot live in the one and forget the other. For the world we know will perish unless man's spiritual vision governs his use of the energy he controls.

Wise and reverent minds have always known this. That is why we have CHURCHES... why we share their Life and Work with one another.
