

Supervisors Holding Action On Claim Submitted by Uher

After an appearance by Ord lawyer David Uher, and further discussion Tuesday, Valley County Supervisors postponed further action on Uher's claim for $1,913 in attorney's fees. Along with that amount the Ord lawyer sought payment for $250 related to lie detector tests.

Uher was the court appointed attorney for Steve Kuklish. Kuklish had been charged with carrying a concealed weapon. This allegedly happened last January when Kuklish was in the Starlite Lounge in Ord.

Uher said he was appearing before supervisors on a two-fold mission. Reasons for the appearance, as listed by Uher, included explaining the law relating to payment of his fees and to reaffirm that his demands were reasonable.

What he called "a full blown trial" was involved in his case, requiring much preparation. Statute cited by Uher states: "Appointed counsel for an indicted felon defendant other than the public defender shall apply to the district court which appointed him for all expenses reasonably necessary to permit him to effectively and completely represent his client and for fees for services performed pursuant to his appointment. The court upon hearing the application shall fix responsible expenses and fees and the county board shall allow payment to counsel in the full amount determined by the court."

COMPROMISE

The lawyer next suggested settling the entire bill for $1,730 down $433 from his total bill of $2,163. Reasons for the compromise, as listed by Uher, were:

— It would take time and money to take the case to court.

— He would get paid now, not in two or three months when the affair is settled in court.

He would like to maintain what he called a working relationship with the supervisors.

He concluded his presentation by urging the supervisors to let him know their decision on his claim as soon as possible.

Supervisor chairman Ted Lenker then asked Uher if a polygraph test indicated his client was telling the truth. Uher declined comment because the case could be appealed.

Lenker and other supervisors then commented on the fact they couldn't find any papers naming Uher a court appointed attorney. The Ord lawyer replied whether there were — or were not — papers, he was the court appointed attorney.

In other remarks Uher told the supervisors the idea of a public defender for the 21st judicial district was feasible. Handling cases from the seven county area would be a full-time job, in his estimation.

He suggested that the annual salary of $10,000 dollars might get an attorney just graduated from law school for a few years.

It was suggested that this cost and others connected with the defender's job could be prorated among the participating counties.

Chairman Lenker speculated the job could require a secretary, and other personnel hiking the total budget for the department to $25,000 a year or more. This and other related matters have been discussed at Council of Government meetings according to Supervisor Charles Zanger.

After discussing and reviewing the attorney's bill, the supervisors moved on to other things.

Calamus Permit Is Now Being Reissued

The Notice of Permit Pending dated 28 December 1977 is being reissued in its entirety because of a computer error in the mailing list. Due to this error, various concerned Federal, State and local agencies, as well as interested individuals, groups and organizations were not notified of the proposed project. This revision also extends the comment period to 22 March 1978.

The application of the United States Department of the Interior, Bureau of Reclamation, Lower Missouri Region, for approval of plans and issuance of a permit under authority of the Secretary of the Army is being considered by the District Engineer, U.S. Army Engineer District, Omaha, Nebraska.

The applicant requests permission to place temporary and permanent fill in conjunction with the construction of three impoundment structures, relocation of a bridge and five siphon crossings as follows:

1. Calamus Dam on the Calamus River — Section 31, Township 22 North, Range 16 West, Garfield County, Nebraska.

2. Davis Creek Dam on Davis Creek — Section 30, Township 17 North, Range 12 West, Greeley County, Nebraska.

3. Kent Diversion Dam on the North Loup River — Section 27, Township 21 North, Range 17 West, Loup County, Nebraska.

4. Bridge relocation over the Calamus River — Section 36, Township 23 North, Range 18 West, Loup County, Nebraska.

5. Mirland Canal siphon under the North Loup River — Section 20, Township 21 North, Range 16 West, Garfield County, Nebraska.

I think they (shoplifters) know we mean business."

That same person recalled how his store lost $5,000 one year to shoplifters. That was before the newer, more stringent policy was instituted.

Asked what are preventive measures used, most merchants listed surveillance. Some said they have systems for spotting shoplifters but declined to elaborate.

structures will be utilized to facilitate the bridge construction. All excess material will be disposed of above the ordinary high waterline. Upon completion of the activity, all disturbed areas will be graded to drain and seeded.

Siphons

The work will consist of constructing cofferdams to facilitate the installation of the river siphons. The stream bed will be dewatered so a trench may be excavated. The excavated material will be stockpiled. The concrete pipe will be inserted and backfilled with the stockpiled material to the original contours.

9. Fullerton Canal siphon under Spring Creek — Section 5, Township 15 North, Range 9 West, Howard County, Nebraska.

Calamus Dam and Davis Creek Dam

The work will consist of constructing dams across the Calamus River and Davis Creek. Cofferdams and other diversion structures will be utilized to dewater the stream beds to facilitate the excavation of the foundations and the structure sites. Rock riprap and bedding material will be placed at the tail end of the outlet and spillway structures.

All excess material will be disposed of above the ordinary high waterline. Disturbed areas will be graded to drain and seeded. There will be five siphons constructed by the above methods.

The primary function of the project is to provide water for irrigation to the North Loup River Basin.

Federal Agencies are not required to obtain certification of compliance with effluent limitations and water quality standards from State or interstate water pollution control agencies. They are, however, required to comply with the substantive State, Interstate, and local water quality standards and effluent limitations as are applicable by law that are adopted in accordance with or effective under the provisions of the Federal Water Pollution Control Act, as amended.

Impact Statement

The Final Environmental Impact Statement has been completed by the Department of the Interior, Bureau of Reclamation. The report was filed with the Council of Environmental Quality and made available to the public on 18 September 1972.

The decision whether to issue a permit will be based on an evaluation of the probable impact of the proposed activity on the public interest. That decision will reflect the national concern for both protection and utilization of important resources. The benefit which reasonably may be expected (Continued on page 6)

These were just some of the many paintings on display at the two Ord banks. The painting "Blue Crocks" by Burwell artist Judy Greff is on the far left, middle row.

Art Exhibition At Ord Banks Includes Work By Judy Greff

The Loup Valley Artissians and the Association of Nebraska Art Clubs, Inc. are sponsoring an exhibition of selected works of art at the two Ord banks. Arriving last Tuesday, the pictures will remain here until March 4.

Each picture displayed rated an "excellent" or an "honorable mention" at a state-wide meeting of art clubs in Scottsbluff last June.

One of the prize winning pictures belongs to Judy Greff. The Burwell artist's composition, "Blue Crocks" was completed about one year ago. As an artist for the last 11 years, Mrs. Greff described her artwork as "realism as I feel it."

A Burwell resident since 1971, she uses acrylic paints in her work. In a telephone interview Sunday, she said still-life paintings are one of her favorite subjects.

Snow Removal Cost $12,919

City snow removal costs ran nearly as high as some of the drifts after the February 13 storm. According to City Street Commissioner Emil Penas, the city of Ord spent $12,919.65 on snow removal following the recent storm.

A work crew of six men manned graders, loaders, trucks, and other municipally owned equipment during the long operation. Penas described the work as being "long, cold, and hard."

Often working hours for city crews have to be worked around traffic patterns. For this reason some crews started work at 5 a.m. while others started their cold ordeal at 10:30 p.m. The later hours are usually spent clearing the Ord downtown business district, a job that usually takes 5-6 hours, according to Penas.

Areas having top priority for snow removal crews are the city fire hall at 16th and N Streets, the Valley County Hospital in west Ord, and streets where local doctors live.

Clearing these and all other city streets required 275 man hours, 550 hours of machinery work, and running city trucks 40 hours, according to the Street Commissioner. Total bill for the service came to $12,919.65.

Recalling the storm Penas said, "It's a good thing we didn't have a wind or it could have been worse." Quiz files show an estimated 9-10 inches of snow fell on Ord during the February 13 storm.

With youths of all ages bombarded by commercials, their needs and expectations rise. How they get these items is another matter.

According to law enforcement officials and merchants interviewed, it isn't a game, and there is nothing sporting about pilfering merchandise from a store.

Charges of petty larceny can cost six months in jail and $500 plus restitution of the merchandise or double restitution and court costs. Once court action on shoplifting was infrequent. No more. According to law enforcement officials, more and more merchants are deciding to let the law handle the situation.

However, most merchants interviewed said they handled shoplifting cases on an individual basis. Youngsters, so they said, were generally apprehended, and kept in the store until the merchant had a chance to talk with their parents.

Some merchants interviewed said they would talk with the offenders and reach an equitable solution while other store owners flatly stated they would prosecute all pilferers.

Said one area store owner, "We catch them, have them sign a confession and then call the law-

Comstock Site Decision Expected In Two Weeks

If Comstock is selected as the site for a planned coal fired generating plant, it may be known in about two weeks, according to a Nebraska Public Power District spokesman last Thursday.

Ron Bogus, of NPPD's public relations office, was reported as saying results of an independent feasibility study from R. W. Beck and Associates of Denver are expected in about 14 days.

The NPPD spokesman was quoted as saying, "It's not a solid site as of now..."

Abundant Snow Inspires Creative Artwork

Snow and subfreezing temperatures combined to inspire artists, young and old, to try their hand at snow sculpture last week. Everyone from grade school students to teachers got into the act.

One of the older resident Rembrandts was Jim Williams, son of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Williams of Ord. He first started working on his snow bride Friday morning while home on vacation from his teaching job in a Boston suburb. "Everything," he said, "was just made up as I went along." The result was the six foot bride, complete with a long train and bouquet.

Students at Valleyside District 10 school, eight miles south of Ord, used the snow in an art project. Teacher Delores Hill gave students in the 4-8 grade level an assignment to create something original out of the

State Senate Passes Key School Aid Bill

State solons passed a bill February 13 that could prove a key aid to Ord area school districts. According to State Senator Rasmussen, the bill, LB 508, provides financial aid to schools with soaring enrollment because of a privately owned construction project.

Under terms of 508, as Rasmussen explained, a school must have an enrollment jump of 10% or better and be able to show the increase is directly related to a privately owned construction project.

In Rasmussen's opinion, such a project could be the proposed coal fired generating plant at Comstock.

Should it cause school enrollment here to jump 10% or better, the Ord Public Schools could go to NPPD for financial assistance.

After passage by the unicameral, the bill went to Governor J. James Exon for further action. Until such action is taken it is not a law.

SIGN OF THE ZODIAC? — You might think astrology is silly. It might be. Some claim it to be helpful at times. Anyway, the zodiac guide may give you a clue to the actions of your family or co-workers — and also your own.

ARIES (3/21-4/20). Active, adventurous, energetic. Those born under the sign of the ram learn quickly and grasp ideas easily. Occasionally this can make them overlook small but important details.

TAURUS (4/21-5/20). Honest, sensitive, reliable. These persons are purposeful, methodical workers who sometimes become trapped in routines that narrow their outlook.

GEMINI (5/21-6/21). Intellectual, witty, charming. Geminis are generally pleasant, but have a tendency to be changeable in their daily relations with others.

CANCER (6/22-7/22). Loyal and upright. Because they're somewhat reserved, these persons are often misunderstood and accused of self-centeredness.

LEO (7/23-8/22). Joyful, fearless, courteous, less seldom show their feelings because they're exceptionally proud. Their pride sometimes creates problems.

VIRGO (8/23-9/22). Sincere, precise. They have keen powers of observation and analysis and tend to be critical of those lacking these talents.

LIBRA (9/23-10/22). Graceful, poised, sympathetic. Librans hate pettiness, but they sometimes commit the same sins they accuse others of.

SCORPIO (10/23-11/21). Attractive, dynamic, generous. Scorpions are courteous and patient. But they can be extremely bitter and cutting when angry.

SAGITTARIUS (11/22-12/21). Interesting, frank, friendly. Sagittarians are independent, self-willed creatures who rebel against restraint.

CAPRICORN (12/22-1/19). Thoughtful, diplomatic, calm. They are unusually mild-tempered, but when aroused become critical and tend to blurt out feelings.

AQUARIUS (1/20-2/18). Sociable, expressive. Aquarians are idealistic, but not always for the right reasons. When challenged they become head-strong and obstinate.

PISCES (2/19-3/20). Kind, pleasant, gentle. These can look at a problem from all sides. Because of this, they're hard to pin down. So they often seem wishy-washy.

Four Key Fouls Halt Lady Chants Friday

Sue Sich (53) goes up for two points against O'Neill Friday.

Four key fouls cost Ord Lady Chants the District B-6 championship Friday at Atkinson. The game saw Ord edged 55-50 by a nearly even matched team from O'Neill.

The game went right down to the wire with both teams neck and neck all the way. It wasn't until the last 10 seconds of the game that anyone knew who would be the winner.

With less than a minute left, the score was tied 48 all. The front half of a 1-1 charity shot by Ord tied the game. Then came the four fouls.

FOUL ONE
Moments after the charity shot, a foul sent the O'Neill Eagles to the charity stripe with a 1-1 combination. Making good on both halves, the Eagles had a 54-48 advantage.

FOUL TWO
With less than 30 seconds left an infraction gave O'Neill yet another two-shot free throw combination. Both went in, and Ord lagged 52-48.

Sue Sich had what many consider her best night of the season thus far by scoring 12 points. Jane Gogan was top scorer with 13. Sister Nancy Gogan came in off the bench and chipped in 7 points of her own.

NUMBER THREE
Ord fouled again, and O'Neill made good a charity shot with less than 12 seconds left in the game.

Coach Max Murray credited Nancy with showing a lot of potential. In his words, "She has a real feel for the game."

Sue Sich (53) makes things difficult for a West Holt player in Thursday's game.

Said Murray of the sister team, "They really carried us." Season Ends.

Then came O'Neill and Ord's season ended.

"I think we are real happy with our season," Murray said. We had to replace some key players this year — people like Kim Carson and Tracie Todsen.

The two former Ord High seniors graduated last year and went on to college basketball.

"I'm just happy we found some girls to carry their share of the load."

Kids like Barb Kittle, Anne Smith, and Nancy Gogan all have shown signs of developing into some fine players. I just hope we can keep this winning tradition going."

This year that tradition was 13-5 for the season. Losses were to Kearney and Lincoln East among others. Both top rated schools in the state. Kearney missed going to state by one game. Lincoln East, a contender in the state tournament, could again be Nebraska Class A Champions.

Other losses were to York, still undefeated and defending class B champions, and twice to O'Neill, also undefeated.

Earlier this season, just after O'Neill had down Ord, Murray was heard to speculate, "Wouldn't it be something if Ord and O'Neill met again at the districts. I bet that would be a good game."

They did and it was.

Pay For "Set-Aside"

NEBRASKA FARM BUREAU FEDERATION

By M. M. Van Kirk, Director of Information

U.S. Department of Agriculture surveys and planting intentions for the 1978 crop year listed by farmers as of January 1, indicate the voluntary set-aside program to reduce acreage on surplus support-covered crops is not going to work and should be changed before spring planting time.

This is one feature of the 1977 Agriculture Act which many knowledgeable observers told members of Congress and Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland prior to passage of the act, that needed change. Their solution then and now was, "If you want farmers to reduce their plantings, then pay them for those set-aside acres." In other words, provide an immediate incentive for taking acreage out of production.

A USDA survey of farmers in major corn and sorghum producing states has indicated that only 19 per cent of the farmers planned to participate in the set-aside program. Refusal to participate in a set-aside program would bar them from any of the price supports involved in the target price and loan rate system and the disaster aid provisions of the 1977 act.

Those who put the 1977 Farm Act together undoubtedly were trying to avoid the charge that it was just a warmed over version of the government farm programs of the last 40 years and the stigma of "paying farmers not to grow crops" which critics and comedians had jeered. The question though, becomes which is the most effective way to get farmers to take cropland out of production... by penalty or incentive. The incentive says to the farmer, "We'll pay you so many dollars per acre to take this land out of production, cash on the barrelhead." The penalty method says, "In the end it may cost you plenty for not playing the game."

A Nebraska farmer taking a reasoned approach to the over-production problem explained his side recently. He pointed out that he has a high priced investment in his land and equipment. The taxes on the land, the interest on his debt, and a certain amount of maintenance expense continues even if the land is left idle.

In most grazing operations in Nebraska today, a farmer owns a portion of the land he is farming and leases the rest. The landowner, often times a retired couple or a widow, depends on the rent to cover taxes, some maintenance and still have a little income left. Both landowners and tenant find it hard to idle 10 to 20 per cent of the acreage on the premise that in the end, they will gain by getting a better price on the harvest from their remaining acres.

The history of farm programs is that it is much more difficult for a small farmer to gain by participating because his total acreage is limited already. In addition, his per acre production costs are usually higher than those of the farmers who has many more acres. In the case of "set-aside" incentive payments, it has been easier for landowner and tenant to reach an agreement on the division.

Those who remember the "Soil Bank" program instituted in the late 1950's will recall that it was an incentive program to take land out of production on a long-term basis, with payments for developing specified soil and water conservation treatments. It started with considerable fanfare, then quickly lost appeal. It produced much worthwhile conservation, but did little to reduce overall production. Farmers put their poorer land into the Soil Bank, farmed their best acres more intensively and produced as much or more than they had previously. Young farmers complained that it reduced the amount of acres available to them to rent, and an attempt to revive and expand the "Soil Bank" concept in the late 1960's was unsuccessful.

The reality simply is that if the program calls for taking acres out of production, there appears only one way to get farmers to comply and that is to pay them for doing so.

Glancing Back

By Elmer Lukesh

Last Sunday two good friends of ours, Mr. and Mrs. John Wells observed their 60th wedding anniversary with an open house reception at Comstock. I am sorry we couldn't make it to their reception, as much as I would have liked to.

When we lived in the Geranium community and attended St. Wenceslaus church we saw Mr. and Mrs. Wells every Sunday. They still attend church there (I think they were married in that church) but since we live in Ord we see them just occasionally.

One would hardly guess that they are married for 60 years. They don't act like they could have been married that long—and they certainly don't look it.

It seems that a lot of young couples are observing their golden wedding anniversaries this year. I see in the Quiz that our friends, Venard and Alice Collins will celebrate 50 years together. They still go out dancing and seldom sit out a number. I think this is real fine.

Several of my cousins celebrated or will celebrate within a year. They are Casper and Anna Zukoski and my cousin Mike Kosmatka and his wife Opal of Mountain Home, Idaho. Both of these couples celebrated a week ago. Two more will celebrate before long. Vic and Emma (Lukesh) Benben will be married 50 years in April and my cousin August Vodehnal and his wife, Emily (Puncochar) will celebrate in the early part of next year.

My brother, Albert and his wife Agnes (Bilka) will celebrate their big one in January of next year.

Fifty years is quite a long time and it seems even longer when we realize that Calvin Coolidge was president when these people were married and if you owned a model A Ford you were driving the latest thing in automobiles.

There was quite a bit of activity on the political scene in 1928 and the Quiz carried a lot of ads from office seekers. Arthur J. Weaver was the governor of Nebraska in 1928 and Herbert Hoover of Iowa was elected President after a spirited campaign. His opponent was Al Smith of New York.

The stock market crash came shortly after Mr. Hoover became president. This triggered the great depression that made life so miserable for so many people for so many years. Mr. Hoover's name was Mud and he was easily defeated by Franklin D. Roosevelt in his bid for a second term.

Our friends who were newly married and just starting out in 1928-29 could tell all of us a few stories about how tough it was to be starting their married life and having the dreams to disappointments.

Our best wishes to all of these fine couples who started out in the depression. May they never have any more hard times for the rest of their lives.

AG TIPS FROM OUR COUNTY AGENT

Implications of the January 1, 1978 Cattle Inventory Report:

On January 1, 1978 the U.S. cattle inventory was 116.3 million head, down 5 percent from one year earlier. Conditions in 1977, the largest year of liquidation of the current cattle cycle, led to the smallest cattle inventory since 1971. By taking a look at what happened in 1977, this gives us a base to look at what may happen in 1978.

The report indicates that in 1977 cattle producers stuck to their intentions to add fewer heifers to the cow herd. Doing so, the relationship between intended and actual replacements changed from recent years as less than 76 percent of intended replacement heifers entered the herd. Since 1971, over 79 percent have been added. Furthermore, the July report suggested 8 percent more heifers were added to the cow herd in the January-June period. Yet the July-December additions dropped 32 percent from year earlier levels.

The report indicates that in 1977 cattle producers stuck to their intentions to add fewer heifers to the cow herd. Doing so, the relationship between intended and actual replacements changed from recent years as less than 76 percent of intended replacement heifers entered the herd. Since 1971, over 79 percent have been added. Furthermore, the July report suggested 8 percent more heifers were added to the cow herd in the January-June period. Yet the July-December additions dropped 32 percent from year earlier levels.

Good grazing conditions, higher calf prices, and an anticipated bright economic outlook could entice producers to depart from intentions to add fewer heifers to the cow herd. However, a larger portion of the heifer inventory is in feedlots than in recent years. Numbers of yearling heifers outside feedlots were down 7 percent and heifer calves were 9 percent lower than the previous year. This statistic does not mean that the industry lacks sufficient numbers to meet larger additions to the herd, but it does infer that substantial tightness could arise if many producers become interested in the cow-calf business.

Another interesting development in 1977 was the larger portion of the calf crop born in the first half of the year compared with recent periods. This implies that the January-June crop was up .5 percent while the July-December crop was down 19 percent from the previous year.

The stock market crash came shortly after Mr. Hoover became president. This triggered the great depression that made life so miserable for so many people for so many years. Mr. Hoover's name was Mud and he was easily defeated by Franklin D. Roosevelt in his bid for a second term.

Explosive and unexplained disappearance was larger than anticipated in 1977. For example, death losses increased 20 percent over 1976. In total, disappearance was over 400,000 head higher than in 1976.

In 1978, it will be some time before the full impact of the inventory decline of the past three years will be felt, but significant increases in prices and declines in beef consumption will develop. Implications of the January 1978 cattle inventory liquidation to 114-115 million head, January 1979, 2. Possible return to 116-117 million head January 1, 1980. 3. Continued decline of cow inventories below 49 million head by next year. 4. Significantly lower feeder calf and yearling numbers. 5) A recovery in calving rates. 6) The July 1977 inventory report indicated some cow herd rebuilding was taking place, this was contradicted by the January 1978 report which indicated little or no rebuilding took place in 1977. 7) Grassfed beef supplies will undoubtedly tighten, especially if good grazing is available in all major beef producing areas. 8) More beef will come from feedlots. Slaughter weights may increase.

Cattle slaughter, beef production and consumption will decline in 1978 which will help support prices above 1977 levels. Better grazing conditions, higher prices and the anticipation of improved returns should result in lower nonfed-grassfed slaughter. A smaller calf crop and feeder calf supplies may reduce calf slaughter substantially. These two factors should account for all of the drop in beef supplies.

In 1977, cattle and calf slaughter was 39 percent of beginning inventories—the 1978 percent is projected at 37 percent. The calf crop will be smaller unless productivity improves dramatically. As a percent of January 1 cow numbers, the calving rate for 1978 must be 92.7 percent, up almost 3 percent from 1977, to result in no decline in the calf crop. Death losses, large in 1977, could drop in 1978 if the weather is milder.

Cattle slaughter in 1978, now expected to be 39.2 million head, may drop 5.6 percent from year ago levels. But fed marketing are forecast to rise 4.5 percent. Prices of cows, calves, and yearlings should rise more rapidly than slaughter cattle prices. Obviously, the implications are not favorable for cattle feeders.

Furthermore, prices of cuts such as roasts, hamburger, and ground lean will probably increase faster than steaks cut from the loin. This assumes that most of our new-found demand for ground and processed beef will remain sufficiently strong to absorb higher prices of the smaller available supplies.

Variations in beef supplies for 1978 hinge mainly on two factors—the length of time on feed and pasture conditions. Large fed marketings scheduled for March-April could be delayed if feeding periods lengthen. Minor adjustments could move 100,000-200,000 head of fed slaughter from the winter into the spring period. If so, heavier weights and larger volume could depress slaughter cattle prices. Pork supplies are also expected to increase at that time. With improved beef movement in recent weeks and a probably drop in expected slaughter little price weakness from large fed beef and pork production might materialize.

Price averages for slaughter steers at Omaha for the first half of the year could be $42.45. Calf prices should average near $50 with yearling prices somewhat between calf and slaughter steer prices.

in production agriculture in Nebraska, requiring an estimated 43.6% of the total energy input.

Another recent publication by the Great Plains Agricultural Council, GPAC Pub. No. 82 titled "Energy Impacts on Agriculture 1976-2000—Great Plains States" states that irrigation pumping because of its heavy demand for energy will be subjected to severe economic stress if not supply limitations in the years ahead. The report states that those areas heavily dependent upon natural gas likely will be the first squeezed by a combination of limited supply and sharply increased costs.

This latter report further forecasts that electricity generated from the less critical fuel sources (such as coal, nuclear energy, and perhaps eventually such sources as biomass, wind or solar energy) will evolve as the primary source of energy for irrigation during the next 25 years. Also, the authors of this report predict that this transition will be complicated and will reflect user stress as electrical generation and distribution facilities will lag behind the demand. Irrigators will be in competition with industry and consumers for the limited electrical generation capacity and many irrigators will be adversely affected as the struggle for tight energy supplies gets more severe during the next two decades, according to the report.

This report points out that because of its stationary nature, irrigation can use electricity in order to preserve petroleum-based fuels for mobile equipment such as ships, trains, buses, trucks, autos, farm tractors and equipment. The higher energy

4-H Market Beef Weigh-in Day

Remember the weigh-in day for all 4-H Market Beef to be entered in the Rate-O-Gain Contest is Saturday, March 11 from 1:00 to 3:30 p.m. at the Ord Animal Clinic. Calves to be entered in the State Fair and Ak-Sar-Ben Livestock Shows must also be weighed and tagged this day. Other 4-H Market Beef can be tagged on this day too. All market beef must be tagged by March 31. Tags may be obtained from the Valley County Extension Office for a small fee.

costs almost certain to result from dwindling energy supplies will add the necessary incentives and impetus to bring about adoption of more refined irrigation system designs and management for improved water use efficiency. The net result will be a reduction in terms of both energy and water used per irrigated acre. The Great Plains Agricultural Council report further predicts that computerized scheduling of irrigation will become common practice, as will other programs aimed at reducing the peak electrical loads by off-peak irrigation pumping in the night-times and mornings.

During periods of economic stress such as currently exist for irrigation farmers practicing cash grains, the use of such techniques as soil moisture blocks, irrigation scheduling, and improved efficiency of water management can help to reduce costs of production. At the same time while these practices help reduce production costs per unit of output, there is also a net saving in both energy required and quantity of water pumped in a given season.

Down on Everything

Often this paper is accused of being what one subscriber once described as "being down on everything". In his estimation, and I suppose in that of others, we seldom reported glad tidings.

Rather than debate the issue of the paper not making the news, just reporting it, we took a quick glance around this week to rectify any negative image we may have. Glancing around at the start of our 97th year, we find there are plenty of positive things to report.

Max Murray finishing a 12-5 season with a fast-paced basketball game at Atkinson last week. One spectator was heard to remark, "Don't think you could see a better game even in Lincoln." We'll go along with that.

And while mentioning athletics, a bouquet for boys varsity coach Doyle Denney for a season filled with fast-action games, and another bunch of flowers for the entire system of coaches at Ord High.

Don Nekuda for going through the grueling job of activities director, and getting darn little thanks for a job well done.

Dan Klimick for taking time to work with youngsters in our area in the Ord-Greeley Boxing Club. An understudy of his, Mark Dugan, will be heading for National Golden Glove competition in mid-March.

The average citizen in the Ord area making this a great place to live.

Granted, to some people this paper may appear negative. That may be because we report the news.

If our viewpoint is slanted on the negative side intentionally or unintentionally, a quick survey of people like these will quickly offset any doctored impression.

Turning a New Leaf

Quiz readers will note we are turning over a new leaf. With this issue of the Quiz we launch our 97th year of publication. Founded in 1882, the Quiz has been owned and operated by the Leggett family since 1918.

Throughout the years, the axioms handed down has been "Print the news — all of it." We have and we will.

Recently, there have been charges that persons have managed to keep their name out of the court record. On investigating, we found legal action was settled — hence dropped — before the matter came up for a hearing. The matter being dismissed by the court, the case wasn't mentioned in the Quiz court news.

To avoid any taint of favoritism and to squelch the rumor that some way, somehow, you can keep your name out of the Quiz, all cases, dismissed or otherwise will be recorded in the Court News. Those dismissed will have a notation to that effect.

Matters will be entered as they appear when we get the court news.

something Different

We Weep

We have loved so many things about old San Diego, not only her heavenly climate, exotic flowers and trees but the many things to do and see. It is a haven of culture of every kind.

And so we enjoyed spending a day viewing aviation history, complete with ancient balloons, the earliest planes, replicas or originals flown by famous pilots all over the world. Here was a duplicate of "Spirit of St. Louis" for Lindbergh's plane was built here. Here was the first Japanese Zero captured. Planes put together by famed pilots; engines they tried to build, were on display along with medals won all over the world.

Often the families had posthumously donated the papers and photographs of world-renowned aviators. Pictures and books of World War One days along with mementos of World War Two days made an engrossing show; while more than 40 famous planes were displayed beside them. Here was all the lore of pilots working, pilots flying, pilots funning in far lands. Planes hung from the lofty ceiling in this vast old three-story building, built in 1915 for the San Diego's World's Fair.

We looked and gawked and peered, could hardly absorb it all but we tried. "We'll come back and spend some more time here," we promised ourselves tiredly.

That day was never to be.

For last night the news horrified this entire area when it was learned that all this history and romance had burned to the ground. Worse, it was thought to be the work of arsonists, a sickening thought.

Ironically the planes and displays were to be moved to a sturdier, safer building soon. For it was recognized that they were like tinder, and so was the old three-story structure. All interior walls had been taken out to accommodate the big old planes which were tucked in everywhere.

Now all that history, irreplaceable, is gone. The antique planes, the costumes, the pictures on every walls, whisked away in three hours in spite of 14 fire trucks, a hundred firemen battling valiantly. The pride of San Diego is gone, no more visitors, no more children will ooh and aah with delight. The treasure is gone.

The firemen had contained the fire, nearby museums and theaters remain.

Next door was the precious new Reuben H. Fleet Space Theater with its ceiling sloping saucer-wise right down to the floor. Here the wonderful laser shows, the colorful displays of lights, or stars or storms or waves entranced crowds as carefully synchronized music altered to fit each scene. The audience lies back almost flat to view all this overhead majesty, in big squashy seats.

Every visitor who can goes to see the Fleet shows. They change about every three months so there isn't much chance to repeat an experience.

And now the Aerospace Museum is no longer next door. Watchers sobbed, tears ran freely. It is all a part of the won-

Solons Nearing Half Way Point In Senate SessionCAPITOL NEWS

By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

Lincoln — Nebraska lawmakers, nearing the halfway point of their 60-day session, have been busy dealing with a variety of issues, ranging from homestead exemptions to product liability insurance.

Unfinished Speaker Roland Luedtke of Lincoln has been allocating specified periods on the daily agenda for consideration of the more controversial legislation.

This means the senators have been debating the same measures for several days in a row, but usually for only one hour daily on each bill. Because there normally are numerous amendments to bills about which there are strong differences of opinion, it can take up to a week for some of the more hotly-debated proposals to get preliminary approval.

A case in point is the bill that would allow Omaha to increase its 1 percent sales tax to 1.5 percent so sufficient revenue can be generated to get the city through what its officials claim is a very tight financial squeeze.

At this writing it appears the bill will eventually be approved, but whether it will be enacted as emergency legislation remains doubtful. If the emergency clause is attached to legislation, it goes into effect more quickly.

Some senators who live a long way from Omaha vigorously fought the bill, mainly because they said it would erode the state's sales tax base. Some legislators believe the Legislature made a serious mistake when it permitted any city to impose its own sales tax.

Sen. Ernest Chambers of Lincoln, chairman of the committee, said,

"I'm sick and tired of sitting on our behinds and not doing anything. I'm willing to lose the committee chairman, Sen. Lorin Schmit of Bellwood, was instrumental in 1971 in getting the Legislature to establish the Nebraska Gasohol Committee.

He has made it plain he thinks the state has been dilly-dallying when it should have been actively boosting the gasohol concept.

Another person with the same viewpoint is Holly Dodge, chairman of the Gasohol Committee. He said a two million-mile road test proved the product is feasible. Cars that used gasohol recorded up to a 5 percent mileage increase, he said.

Omaha tried to kill the bill, arguing his city has surplus funds and that the Legislature is being made into a "scapegoat" for poor fiscal management in Omaha's government.

Gasohol Bill to Floor

Members of the Legislature's Agriculture Committee believe it is time that the state either make an all-out effort to start a gasohol program or abandon the project.

Sen. John DeCamp of Neligh said Nebraska should get serious about the program "or let somebody else take the ball in another state."

The committee reported to the floor of the Unicameral a bill that would provide seed money to help interested Nebraska communities produce gasohol, a blend of 90 percent unleaded gasoline and 10 percent grain alcohol.

DeCamp said Nebraska pioneered the idea of blending the fuel and has a duty to proceed. The bill provides for up to five $500,000 state-supported grants that would be matched by communities interested in constructing grain alcohol plants.

Sen. Martin Kahle of Kearney, a member of the committee, said, "I'm sick and tired of sitting on our behinds and not doing anything. I'm willing to lose the legislature," he said.

Another "special order" bill is LB 407 which would increase the homestead exemption. This bill was advanced to select file after considerable discussion, and the bill will remain there until the budget bills are considered. I supported the advancement of LB 407. As the budget issues are resolved, I hope we will give some additional relief under the Homestead exemption.

Another measure was killed during the past week — LB 818

— the returnable bottle bill. I voted to kill the bill for two reasons, because of the unfair treatment of some containers, and because of the large profits that could be made by distributors. The measure was not very satisfactory as it was brought to the floor. The impact of legislation on this subject is much greater than what might be expected, and it seems like major problems are often discovered during floor debate. I had especially hoped to see some amending of the bill, in order to improve it, but this did not happen.

LB 212, the Jail Standards Bill, is now bracketed on final reading until March 10, which is the date when all bills which spend general fund tax money are to be considered. It is hoped that the bill is an improvement over the unrealistic law on the books now.

I mentioned this poison sign to the fellers Saturday night, and Joe Petska said he didn't see no problem. If all we want to do is keep the youngsters from gutting at the stuff, he said, all we got to do is seal the poison in plastic like we do razor blades and it'll be safe from everthing.

Joe said he'd like to see the kid that could break into one of them

parks, not to mention the child who's gonna eat the stuff.

The measure also includes sliding income scale provision to facilitate figuring the amount of an exemption for the elderly. For example, a married couple with an income of more than $6,200 would receive an 80 percent exemption. Under the bill, the amount of the exemption would decrease as income rises, and vice versa.

Under another section of the bill, persons 65 and older would not have to pay property taxes on the first $25,000 in valuation of their homes. The current ceiling is $15,000.

Sen. Ben Labedz of Omaha introduced the bill last year. S.C. has insisted that the Legislature act on the measure this session and several times balked when it was suggested that the debate be postponed until later this spring.

Her bill has been given first round approval.

Three Want Job

Three more state senators have announced they want to keep seats in the Legislature, but not the ones they currently occupy.

KAN HAS GOOD THINGS IN STORE FOR YOU

"Keeping heat in, not on, is the mark of a good water heater. That's where the conservationist really excels."

One of the chief causes of inefficiency in a water heater is standby loss—the inability of water, once heated, to retain its heat. If your present water heater is old or inefficient, its standby loss is probably high. That means your burner has to stay on longer than necessary, forcing fuel and operating costs up.

A practical solution is replacing your old water heater with a new A. O. Smith Conservationist, the energy saving water heater, from Kansas-Nebraska. The Conservationist's thicker layer of double efficiency insulation surrounds the tank, keeping in more heat. It actually pays for itself by saving fuel costs. And the Conservationist is protected by a special 10-year Limited Warranty* which guarantees replacement and repair of your heater if the tank should leak at any time during the first ten years.

Remember, you can save yourself some money, and save everybody some energy, by lowering the thermostat on your water heater to 120 degrees. Anytime you have a question about energy conservation or gas appliance servicing or replacement, call or visit your local Kansas-Nebraska office. It's our business to help you save.

*When used commercially, warranty is for three years.

AG TIPS FROM OUR COUNTY AGENT

Implications of the January 1, 1978 Cattle Inventory Report.

On January 1, 1978 the U.S. cattle inventory was 116.3 million head, down 1 percent from one year earlier. Conditions in 1977, the largest year of liquidation of the current cattle cycle, led to the smallest cattle inventory since 1971. By taking a look at what happened in 1977, this gives us a base to look at what may happen in 1978.

The report indicates that, in 1977 cattle producers stuck to their intentions to add fewer heifers to the cow herd. In doing so, the relationship between intended and actual replacements changed from recent years as less than 76 percent of intended replacement heifers entered the herd. Since 1971, over 79 percent have been added. Furthermore, the July report suggested 8 percent more heifers were added to the cow herd in the January-June period. Yet the July-December additions dropped 32 percent from year earlier levels. Although these data raise questions, more importantly, they tended the men's Lenten break fast hosted by the United Methodist Church in Cotesfield.

Fort Receives A Boost With Restoration of Saddlers Room

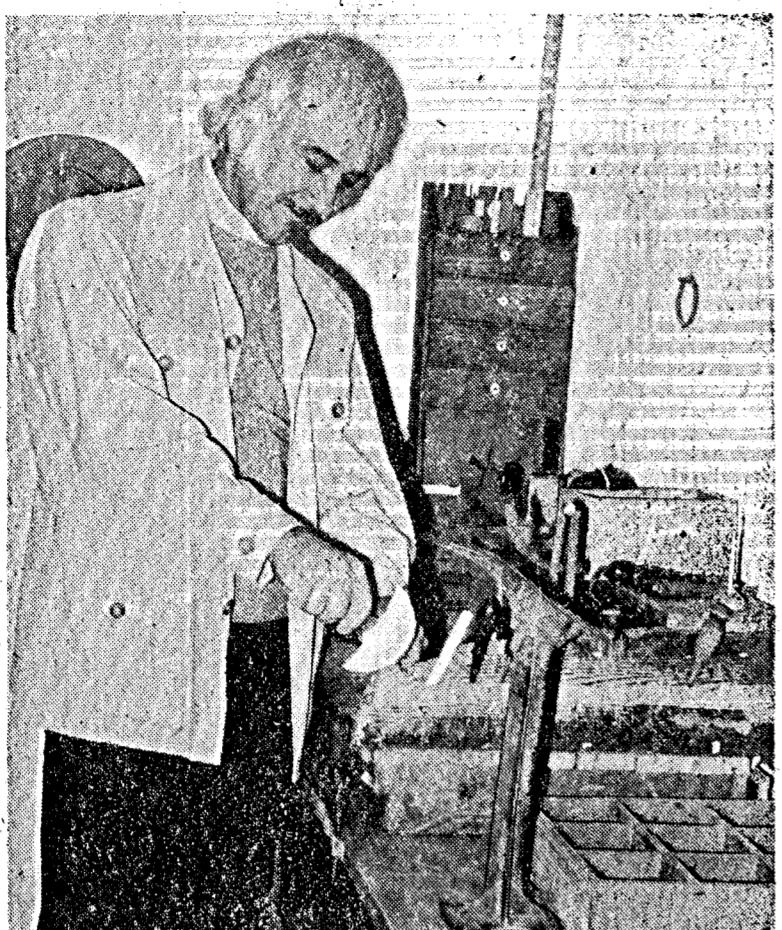

The restoration of Fort Hartsuff received a boost recently when work on restoring the saddlers room neared completion. Located in the old stables on the north side of the fort, the room was virtually forgotten, according to Fort Hartsuff superintendent, Roye Lindsey. Few people remembering the old fort could recall any such room, he recently told the Quiz.

However, plans from the National Archives in Washington, D.C. showed where the room was located. Work started earlier this year has centered on rebuilding the room according to original blueprints of the fort.

Materials furnished by the Johnson Shoe Store and area history buff Buck Newbury, both of Burwell, have been used to refurnish the room much as it was in the 1880s when Fort Hartsuff was a military post.

According to Lindsey, the saddler was usually a soldier with quite a few years in the military service. He lived and worked in his shop on the government post. In an earlier Quiz interview Lindsey likened the saddler's importance to that of a mechanic in the modern Army. He repaired saddles, harnesses, and other things used with horses at the fort and probably repaired shoes and did other odd jobs to earn a little extra money.

Lindsey said he hopes to have someone experienced in leatherwork at the fort this summer to work in the restored saddlers room.

Roye Lindsey demonstrates some of the tools on display in the saddler's quarters at Fort Hartsuff.

Education of the Whole Child Is Goal of St. Mary's School

Asked to respond to the phrase "the school system", many Ord residents would likely respond, "Ord Public Schools". Often overlooked is another of Ord's school systems: St. Mary's.

Founded in 1955, St. Mary's has the education of the whole child as its goal. School principal Sister Diane elaborated by saying "We want to teach moral, intellectual, and religious values in a Christian environment, and provide for the physical welfare of the children also."

She is one of two Sisters of St. Joseph teaching the 84 children in grades one through eight. Organized in 1901, the order first taught the children of Polish immigrants. "Now," Sister Diane quipped, "we are much more diversified."

She and Sister Michaeline along with Mrs. Fern Waldmann and JoAnn Rathbone lead the children through a curriculum that includes a half hour of daily religious instruction. Students attend classes grouped in double grades, first and second, third and fourth, etc.

All teachers and their curriculum meet State Education Department requirements according to the school principal.

"Dr. Gogan," Ord Public Schools superintendent, "visits the school twice a year to evaluate it and our teaching," Sister Diane stated.

School board members Robert Dworak, Mrs. Mary Klimek, Mrs. Dorritta Petska, and Mrs. Angie Duba along with Father Stanley Gorak supervise staffing and other academic needs at St. Mary's.

Board members and school staff alike work closely with Ord Public Schools. Jim Ochsner instructs St. Mary's band students and many of those same parochial students eat in the Ord High cafeteria. Ord High athletic teams use the St. Mary's gym for practice sessions.

Twelve eighth graders are scheduled to graduate from St. Mary's this spring and will enter the Ord Public School System in the next fall. That is quite an increase over the first class of seven students graduating from St. Mary's back in 1956. Those first graduates were Carolyn Jones, Betty Kapustka, Patricia Kokes, Mary Jean Petska, Kathy Tara Piskorski gets a gentle assist from St. Mary's teacher Mrs. Fern Waldmann.

Shottoski, Mary Troyer, and Betty Wadas.

"And now some of those and others from here have children going to school here," Sister Diane said.

Modern day students mature faster and are more sophisticated than those of earlier days, in her opinion. She attributed this heightened awareness to the media, especially shows like Sesame Street, and other television programs.

"And their vocabulary is more extensive now than it used to be," she added. "Some of those words they could leave out."

New additions to those vocabularies include words like LEM, astronaut, atomic (Continued on page 5)

Iwanski May Face Multiple Charges

Mark Iwanski faces possible charges of driving while intoxicated, receiving stolen property, and assault on a police officer as a result of an incident late Tuesday night in Ord. Ord Police Chief John Young had stopped Iwanski around 24th and L for reckless driving when Iwanski reportedly pulled and attempted to fire a 12-gauge shotgun.

Iwanski allegedly pulled the trigger on the weapon, but it failed to discharge.

The Ord resident was taken to the Ord police station by Young, Ord Police Officer Cal Thelander, and State Patrol trooper Jerry Schmitt. He was held in the Valley County jail on charges of driving while intoxicated.

Police found another shotgun, 12 gauge, in the vehicle. A check with the National Crime Information Service showed the gun was taken from Oklahoma.

According to the County Attorney's office Iwanski may face charges of receiving stolen property, driving while intoxicated, and assault on a police officer with a deadly weapon.

Members of the Karp and Krow and Loup Valley Muzzle Loaders Clubs held an open house Sunday at the Elyria Parish Hall, six miles north of Ord. Old guns, knives, and other items were on hand to explain the exhibits and assist in a BB gun shoot for the smaller fry interested in guns.

G. H. "Woody" Woodgate, explained one of the guns in his display to Travis Lindsey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Billy Lindsey of Burwell.

— Studied the possibility of Ord buying a snow blower. The Lincoln, NE firm manufacturing the machine makes two models.

The larger version costs $8,600 and the smaller machine costs $5,000. The device would be mounted on a city-owned front end loader and would blow snow while moving along city streets.

No decision was reached on the item.

— Agreed with the Planning Commission that a city ordinance governing residential development be changed to allow for development of a subdivision by sections, and not require the entire subdivision be completed in one year.

— Heard Bob Dworak and others asking if they could have a holding pen for livestock at Ord Cold Storage. For that to be possible the area in northeast Ord would have to be rezoned from its present Central Business classification to an Industrial category.

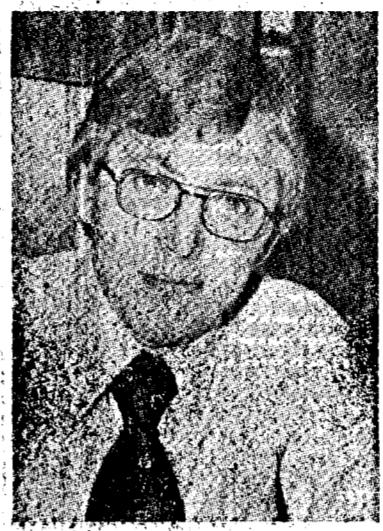

Month of March In Like a Lion

The old question of March entering like a lion or lamb was answered with subfreezing temperatures on March 1 and a snow storm March 2. More snow fell on the Ord area March 6 and 7.

Classes in Ord schools were called off Tuesday, March 7 using the last snow day on the school calendar. At the start of the academic year last September, school officials scheduled 181 days of classes, six days over the 175 school days required by state law.

The additional six days, called snow days, were for school closings, dismissal of classes for athletic events, etc.

Between March 17 the high temperature was 34 degrees

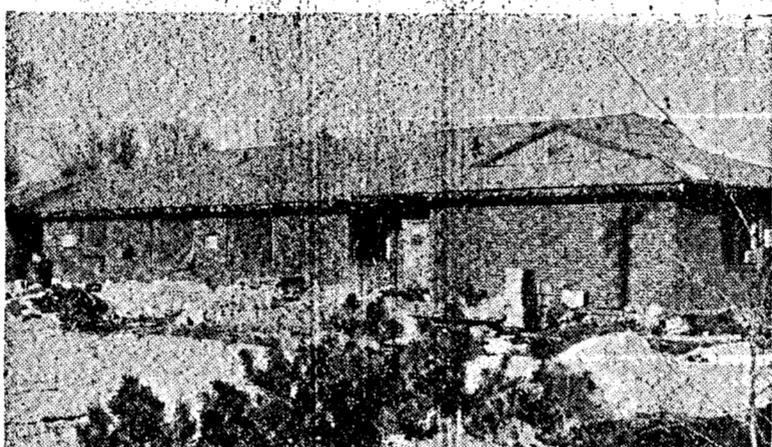

Uher Files Suit For Legal Fees

Ord attorney David Uher will apparently settle his claim for legal services in District Court here. According to County Clerk Thelma Dultz, Uher has filed a case involving the $2,163 he seeks from Valley County for his court appointed defense of Steve Kuklisch on charges of carrying a concealed weapon last January.

Uher's action came after he and Valley County Supervisors held a closed door session last Thursday morning. Supervisors also have a recreation or community room and laundry facilities for use by the tenants.

Work continues on the low rent housing for the elderly in Arcadia. Started last September, the eight-unit project is nearly three-fourths complete, according to Rae Jean Gogan, Arcadia Housing Director.

Tentative completion date for the project is May 18. Contractor is Weaver Construction of Kearney.

Town Team Players Will Meet March 15

All boys interested in going out for town team baseball this summer are to meet in the superintendent's office at Ord High Wednesday, March 15 at 8 p.m. Those unable to make the meeting are to call Ed Vancura.

Purpose of the meeting is to see if there are enough players to get into the league this summer.

Under terms of the agreement Burwell — which in the past had generated all of its own electrical requirements — will be able to purchase load growth, off-peak, economy and emergency-type power from NPPD.

The city will construct a substation and the power district will construct a short segment of transmission line to "tie-in" Burwell's generating plant to receive the supplemental power and energy.

The interconnection with NPPD will give Burwell an economical fuel alternative when the city is forced to burn diesel fuel at its generating plant. Currently, when its supply of natural gas is interrupted, Burwell must resort to expensive diesel fuel to generate and this has resulted in added costs to the ratepayers.

Another consideration for the city is the uncertain future of the availability of natural gas to municipal generating plants such as the one operated by Burwell. Kansas-Nebraska Natural Gas Co. which supplies natural gas to the Burwell plant has already imposed a maximum usage ceiling on the city and there is a possibility that ceiling could be lowered even further in future years.

"As it is now we're making it sound as though everyone involved in government is guilty until they disclose their financial records," said Stewart.

When government is playing a larger role in today's society, it is necessary that we have as many top quality people as we can get in government, said the Stock Grower spokesman.

"Why should we structure our government so we have to settle for less than the best?" If you are concerned about this issue, write your state senator and tell him to support LB 774 which would greatly change the Sunshine Law.

CAROL'S CORNER

POTPOURRI — An old-fashioned word meaning a little bit of everything . . . and that's what this is: One jumped out of bed after sleeping all night and cried, "I'm going to have a happy day!" She did.

Another jumped out of bed after sleeping all night and cried, "I'm going to have a miserable day!" She did.

Have you decided what kind of day you're going to have?

—O—

A house may be bleak and dark even at high noon. Reasons for its gloomy interior may be that the sun is behind a black cloud . . . or perhaps the windows of the house are dirty.

Unfortunately, one cannot command the clouds to disappear but the windows can be kept clean, ready for the sunshine.

—O—

Worried over what to give his girl for a birthday present, the teen-age boy said "Mom, tell me something. If you were going to be 16 tomorrow, what would YOU want?"

Mother, with a faraway look in her eyes, replied, "Not another thing, son."

—O—

Little Red Riding Hood was the favorite story of one very young, highly imaginative, five-year-old girl.

I suppose it's no wonder, then, that when she visited her grandmother, she asked, "Where's the wolf, Grandma?"

—O—

The manager of a department store put this notice in the window: "If you need it, we have it."

But in the window of a rival, a sign appeared stating: "If we don't have it, you don't need it." One might recall that reverse salesmanship!

—O—

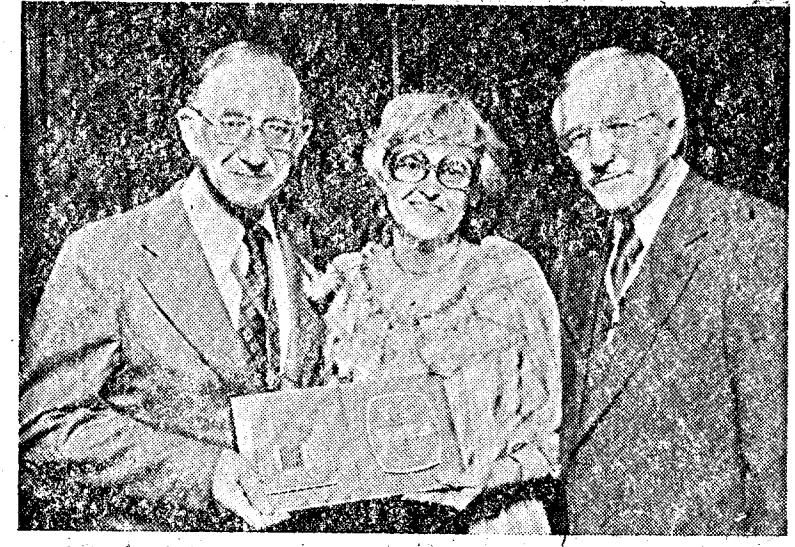

"How many people work in your office?" asked the new vice president.

"About half," replied the honest supervisor.

State Park Entry Permits Will Be Needed After April 1

Nebraska's new park entry permit requirements go into effect beginning April 1, reminds the Game and Parks Commission. At that time, all motor vehicles must display the permit when entering designated areas.

Basically, the permit was adopted by the 1977 Legislature to generate part of the funds needed for operation, maintenance, and development of Nebraska State park areas. Such a system is really nothing new. Similar requirements are in effect in about half of the states in the country.

Nebraska has witnessed a dramatic increase in state park usage. Just a few years ago, a mere 3,000 visitors trickled through the park areas. By 1977, that count had jumped to 7,000,000 and it's still climbing. With that kind of usage, more funds are essential to meet the demands for additional facilities and to keep existing areas up to par.

The Legislature is well-aware of the funding problem and doubled the appropriation for capital development for all areas from $415,000 in 1976-77 to $835,000 in 1977-78. In addition, $300,000 was donated by Ak-Sar-Ben and $60,000 by the World Herald Foundation to assist with construction of the new aquarium and educational complex at Schramm Park State Recreation Area near Gretna.

Unfortunately, though, it's simply not enough, when the needs of the park system are analyzed. It's also a fact that general tax revenues can't be tapped much more. Therefore, the park permit was adopted as a way to assess a part of the costs of operating the parks to those who use them.

Four fee categories were established to allow park visitors to select the permit appropriate to their situation. These include: daily, $1.50; nonresident annual, $12.50, and nonresident annual, $2. The permit does not replace other fees charged for such activities as camping, swimming, trail rides, and the like.

Permits will be required only during the heavy use season — from April 1 through August 31. Areas where the permit will be required include all state parks and recreation areas, as well as Mormon Island and Windmill state wayside areas on Interstate 80. State historical parks are exempt from the permit requirements. All fee areas will be posted as such at the entrance.

The permit stickers may be obtained at any manned state park area; at Game and Parks Commission offices in Alliance, Bassett, Lincoln, Norfolk, North Platte, and Omaha; from all conservation officers, and from hunting and fishing permit vendors.

NFO Official Makes Plea For Involvement

National Farmers Organization members heard a call for involvement from guest speaker Gene Potter during their annual banquet Saturday at St. Mary's auditorium. Potter, administrative assistant to the NFO president, challenged the audience by stating, "You better get involved and believe in something. Those that sit back and do nothing are only part of the problem."

That problem — low farm market prices — and what to do about them, was the subject of Potter's speech. The NFO officially contended the organization of farmers under the NFO banner was the solution.

It's not a question of "will agriculture get organized," he said, "but rather a question of who will organize it. It can either be organized for the people or for someone else."

One of those possible things is the corporate farm. According to Potter the main advantage it has over the family farm is that it provides its own financing. The family farm, he noted, does not.

Corporate farming can gain a foothold only when someone sells out, Potter related. "And people don't usually sell out when prices are high," the speaker reminded.

Survivors include one son, Lloyd of Arcadia. Lizlie was preceded in death by her parents, husband William in 1969, and one infant son. Memorials may be given in her memory to the Rose Lane Nursing Home at Loup City.

Funeral services were held Saturday, March 4, 1978 at 2 p.m. at the First Congregational Church at Arcadia with Rev. Richard Tremain officiating.

Burial was in the Arcadia cemetery with the Ord Memorial Chapel in charge of arrangements. Mrs. Ina Woody was the organist for Mrs. Elvira Bollie as she sang, "No Night There" and "Nearer My God to Thee." Pallbearers were Delbert Drake, James Hawley, Carl Nelson, Jerry Lybarber, Merle Meyers, and Delevan Kingston.

"You take what someone gives you," he stated, "and have little control over economic conditions.

Parliament Back From Conference

Paul L. Parliament, President of the Broken Bow Production Credit Association, has just returned from a three-day conference with other PCA presidents from four states. Combined, the group represented more than $1.3 billion in loans outstanding for farmers and ranchers.

The purpose of the conference was to update the presidents on credit and conditions affecting agriculture in the midwest.

The presidents also heard reports from officers and staff of the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank of Omaha, suppliers of loan funds for the PCAs in Iowa, Nebraska, South Dakota and Wyoming.

The conference included a panel discussion on the present ag-finance situation and the impact of farm income conditions on agricultural lending. Also discussed were areas of current concern, including the availability of credit; the farm cost price squeeze; loan quality; and the cash flow problems many farmers and ranchers are experiencing.

The Broken Bow PCA serves farmers and ranchers short term credit needs and currently has more than $42 million in loans outstanding in Custer, Blaine, Loup, Thomas, Valley and parts of Dawson and Logan Counties. It is a cooperative lending organization owned by its borrowers who also elect the board of directors. The current board members are: John Hardy, Seneca, Chairman; Carson Rogers, Ord, vice chairman; E. M. Thompson, Dunning, director; A. W. Millsap, Broken Bow, director; and Glenn Rohde, Edgely, director.

Sierra Club to Aid Fight on Calamus Project

Nebraskans against the North Loup irrigation project will get an assist from the state Sierra Club chairman Bob Warrick said Monday in Omaha.

According to him, the club has agreed to assist a citizens' group, Farmers and Ranchers to Save the Loup and Calamus, in an attempt to halt the project.

Warrick announced plans to go to Ord Thursday night to discuss his ideas. Project opponents will meet at Ord High, 7:30 p.m.

The Bureau of Reclamation has funds to start the project, which calls for a dam on the Calamus river near Burwell. An estimated 53,000 acres will be irrigated using the canal or ditch methods.

Opponents of the plan have filed suit and are attempting to get the project put to a vote of area residents.

Feed Grain-Wheat Program Stated

The 1978 Feed Grain Program calls for a 10 percent set aside of corn, grain sorghum and barley and the wheat program calls for a 20 percent set aside of wheat.

"Participation in the program is voluntary, however, non-participants are not eligible for price support loans, disaster, or target price payments."

Farmers participating in the program must set aside one acre for every 10 acres planted to corn, grain sorghum or barley and set aside 2 acres for every 10 acres of wheat planted for 1978. Set aside land must be cropped that was tilled within one of the last three years in the production of a crop other than hay or pasture.

Set aside land must be devoted to a conservation practice that will protect the land from weeds, wind, and water erosion. The land must have vegetative cover established on it no later than the normal period for planting spring crops. Haying and harvesting are not permitted on land designated as set aside. No grazing will be permitted on set aside land in Valley County from May 1 — October 31, 1978.

Producers may sign up for the 1978 set aside program at their local ASCS office beginning March 1 and ending May 1, 1978.

Court Sets Precedents

NEBRASKA FARM BUREAU FEDERATION

A recent Nebraska Supreme Court decision has posed a new consideration for anyone planning further development of the state's underground water resources for irrigation purposes.

The high court's decision clearly establishes the precedent of potential liability on the part of the irrigator and also makes clear that water for domestic use takes top priority.

The assessment of damages in the case to reimburse the plaintiffs for such things as deepening their domestic wells and installing a new pump carries serious implications for those who insist on making huge investments in irrigation equipment in areas of marginal underground water resources where recharge is extremely slow.

It holds implications for those well developers (irrigators, municipalities or industrial users) who ignore the fact that under ground water moves and they do not have a guaranteed right to unlimited pumping.

It poses some less clearly defined questions for all irrigators in an area when their wells start pumping air instead of water. Do they simply deepen their wells and continue pumping or will they be more ready to adopt more conservative, regulated pumping schedules?

The court ruling serves as a warning that water conservation and water use planning should take place before crisis situations develop. Some of the comments voiced at public hearings of Natural Resources Districts to establish water control areas have been discouraging and unrealistic. In some areas where water levels have been dropping steadily and alarmingly for years and wells have gone dry and had to be deepened, there have been statements opposing any type of regulation, including well metering.

The Natural Resources District concept of keeping water regulation and control in the hands of local people was never intended as a license to do nothing, but rather as a vehicle for people who know the situation best to provide fair and practical answers.

Up to now, the state's vast underground water resources have gone unregulated although studied, surveyed and monitored for years. There are plenty of warning signs that say this situation must change. Developers are beginning to think more carefully before they sink a deep well, invest in a $60,000 center pivot system, and start paying high fuel costs to irrigate land that isn't even suited to summer-fallowed wheat.

The economic facts of high production costs, not just good conservation, say that such things should never happen... not to irrigate and produce crops that are already in surplus and selling for less than production costs.

Now the court decision adds the factor, "What happens if all my neighbors' domestic wells go dry? Will I be paying them damages and find myself unable to use this expensive outfit?"

There is still suitable land and water resources for irrigation development in Nebraska... but better planned and with more consideration for sound conservation and best use of our soil and water resources and the rights of friends, neighbors and all Nebraskans.

Glancing Back
By Elmer Lukesh

People who have been away from Ord for 20 or 25 years wouldn't believe their eyes if they saw the town today. With all of the new residential subdivisions and with the business buildings along the highway, Ord must cover twice the area that it did 25 years ago. My cousin from a distance was visiting in Ord a couple of years ago and said he did what he never thought would happen — he got lost in Ord!

When we built our home on North 19th Street 22 years ago the area to the west of us was almost empty all the way to the city park. Now we have a trailer court a block west of us and new houses all over the place with hardly room for any more.

Ord has five or six churches built in the last 25 years and three new bank buildings counting the new PCA building. The old familiar landmark, Hotel Ord was razed to make room for one of the banks. The Ord Livestock Market was also dismantled making that part of town look kind of empty. The Ord Seed House was taken down by Boileens to make room for a more modern grain handling facility and the tall, new, Farmers Elevator is about the first thing the travelers see as they approach Ord from either direction.

The Ord Bohemian Hall which was once the favorite good time spot in Ord is not used as a lodge meeting place and dance hall anymore. It is being remodeled into a business place but it retains its old look to remind us of all of the good times we used to have there. My wife and I had our wedding dance in the Ord Bohemian Hall. Ed Swanek and his seven piece polka combo, "The Swingsters" provided the music for us that night.

There was an item in last week's Sand Flats news about a group of neighborhood ladies being guests of Lydia Zikmund for a "Bramboracky" party. A few of us here at the Quiz tried to figure out what that was. We decided that since "Brambor" is Czech for potato that it is something made with potatoes. I'm sure I would like it — I like everything made from potatoes — especially potato dumplings! My mother used to cook several different things with potatoes. I wouldn't be surprised she made what these ladies had the other day but with a different name.

I hope these ladies send their recipe to the cookbook column in the Quiz and share this delicacy with the rest of us.

I stand corrected on a statement I made about Ord Coop Oil Co. always being at the same location. Steve Papiernik informed me their first location was in a station they rented from Charlie Brown a year or so before their station was built on its present location. Brown's station stood on the corner now occupied by Benda's Cleaners.

I appreciate having people help me out on some of these things. I remember when Brown ran his station on that corner when I was a boy but I didn't know that was when Coop got started.

Can the wife of an individual who is a certified private applicator purchase restricted pesticides using her husband's certification number or must a certified applicator personally buy a restricted pesticide?

According to a proposed new ruling suggested by the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), an uncertified applicator may purchase a restricted pesticide for a certified applicator. The uncertified applicator must have information on transportation, storage and safe disposal of pesticides and written evidence that the pesticide is being purchased for use by a certified applicator. The seller must maintain adequate records of such evidence.

Do I have to attend a pesticide training meeting in 1978 if I attended one in 1977?

All pesticide applicators certified according to Nebraska's training and/or testing programs are eligible for a Federal Nebraska certificate. Persons meeting certification requirements will automatically receive their Federal certificate.

It's the Law

Ord Elementary School officials are faced with a problem that has the potential of a ticking time bomb. According to school nurse Karen Johnson, five percent of the students at Ord Elementary haven't received or completed immunizations against a series of diseases that are at best serious and at worst deadly.

State law mandates students entering public schools in Nebraska shall be immunized against measles, mumps, polio, tetanus, whooping cough, diphtheria, and German measles. So far, an estimated 16 grade school students in Ord don't meet this requirement.

Last year 100 percent of the youngsters were properly immunized according to Mrs. Johnson. This year that figure has dropped.

Actual reasons for the decline aren't known. We suspect the decline could be attributed to a mixture of accidental neglect, indifference, and the attitude that "it can't happen here" on the part of some parents. Whatever the reasons, the fact remains that there are around 16 students who could catch and/or transmit any one of the above named diseases.

In our book, this boils down to an accident just waiting for a place to happen. In this case that "place" is right here in Ord. The easiest way to prevent this from happening is to see to it that your child receives proper medical attention. According to an Ord physician, it costs around $60 to complete the required series of immunizations.

This is one of the cheapest — and best — forms of insurance available today. Insurance for you, for your child, and the community at large. Anyone doubting the value of this insurance need only pause and recall the polio scares of those not so distant days gone by.

Is proper immunization a good idea? Of course it is, but there is more to it than that: it's the law.

Something DifferentWhere Are the Roots?

We thought we had pretty well put down our roots out here in California, but now???

We were so proud of a big hibiscus bush at the front of our little lot. But pride goeth before a fall, alas: one night we went to bed exulting in the several hundred fat rosy pink buds showing color; next morning when we rose it was to find that a big wind had blown the bush off level with the ground. So much for the big eight-foot-by-ten-foot bush and its lovely blooms. All gone.

And I was so happy about a fine canary tree in our backyard, waiting for the end of each branch to show lovely yellows, like flowers. But to realize when we began to prune it that nearly all the tree was gone, and it wasn't going to bud out. Sorrowfully John chopped it out and took it away.

A neighbor brought a handsome pink rose bush, leaving one big bud on it when she cut it back to transplant, so that we could anticipate the color. It's thriving!

And we bought a dwarf peach tree and can hardly wait for it to show us a peach or two. Might take a year or two!

Then we set out a loquat tree, a splendid specimen and eagerly await the small citrus fruits it bears profusely, so good for nibbling or jam or jelly.

We acquired a new pad for our chaise longue. We bought a barbecue grill and tried it out, on spine of our young relatives. It works just fine.

John painted some old tables a new coat of white. Installed 10 or 15 little plants in pots, all donated by neighbors. Most of them grew although I certainly do not have a green thumb. The first gladiola is in bloom.

We parked two older living room chairs out on our wee back patio along with a couple of new yard chairs. So the place is beginning to take on that cluttered, homey look, that warm, welcoming appearance.

This goes for the inside too. Our pots and pans crowd the cupboard, including our cute little hamburger frier, our Christmas apron, plus assorted splices galore.

The bookcase is full of books, already there are too many . . . are there ever too many books? Never.

Newspapers litter the place, as they always will where I am afraid. I seem to need them to be happy. We peruse all the news and especially Nebraska news; that word stops us in our tracks.

Yes, we have some roots down out here, in the pot of big monster philodendron, in the dumb cane, in all the green pots hanging out front.

But deeper yet, at this time, are our Ord roots. We flaunt a Nebraska license on our little yellow car and our little blue VW. We continue to have many Nebraska business dealings. We keep an eye on your weather!

And come election time we plan to vote for Ord and Valley county as Nebraska citizens. We read about the elections in California but we're glad we are not needing to figure out where their legislature is going about taxes and who should be mayor of Imperial Beach and who should be governor of this wild-eyed state.

We like it all but we are still Nebraskans.

Solons Disregard Exxon's First Veto

Capitol News
By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent

The Nebraska Legislature chose to disregard Gov. J. James Exon's first veto of the current session and overrode his refusal to sign a bill dealing with the budget-making process.

The measure will require future governors to submit their executive budget recommendations to the unicameral by January 15. An exception will be made for a new governor during his first year in office when the deadline will be extended to Feb. 1.

Acting on a motion by Sen. Jerome Warner of Waycross, the legislators balloted 31-11 to override the veto.

In his veto message, Exon claimed the legislation would diminish a governor's ability to "preserve sound and conservative budgeting." He also noted he had always submitted his budget before the statutory deadline — the 30th legislative day of each session.

According to the governor, the Legislature was "unnecessarily and unwisely further attempting to invade executive authority and options by unbatching the budget presentation from 30 legislative days to 15 calendar days."

That would only make sense, the governor added, if the Legislature would also agree to meet on a calendar day basis.

Warner, chairman of the Appropriations Committee, said the bill was a necessary safeguard.

He said the 30th legislative day this year was March 1. If the governor had elected to wait until then to present the executive budget, it would have been nearly impossible for the Appropriations Committee to deal with the spending proposals realistically, Exon presented his budget message to the lawmakers on Feb. 10 this year.

No Penalties Planned
Counties that failed to revalue their property by the first of this year, as they had been ordered to do by a 1977 law, probably won't be penalized.

State Tax Commissioner William Peters said recently he does not plan to utilize the financial section of the law.

His comment was made after the State Justice Department issued an opinion that said the penalty provisions are probably unconstitutional.

Under the statute, a county that failed to revalue faced the loss of part of its money from the State Property Tax Relief Fund.

Several months ago, Peters said he had been warned by several counties that they would take him to court if he tried to impose penalties on them.

Last week Peters said the attorney general's opinion "removed any sanctions for failure to comply and removed the time frame for telling counties (when) to do it."

The opinion, which was requested by Peters, said the language of the statute was vague and also did not include the emergency clause, meaning it did not go into effect until January 2.

The tax commissioner said he would review the opinion to determine if there are new sanctions, which would satisfy constitutional questions, that could be imposed.

Will Seek Re-election

State Treasurer Frank Marsh, who has the longest Capitol tenure of any of Nebraska's constitutional officers, will seek re-election to another four year term.

Marsh, who some months ago was rumored as a possible candidate for the Republican nomination for governor or lieutenant governor, ruled out any chance of running for either of those offices.

He noted there are four GOP gubernatorial candidates and said this fact is "splitting" the financial support of those seeking the nomination.

Marsh, who served one four year term as lieutenant governor before becoming state treasurer, was the secretary of state from 1952 through 1970.

Pulled From Committee

Members of the Legislature passed 26-11 to pull from the Judiciary Committee a bill that would mandate a minimum 25 year sentence for every first degree sexual assault conviction.

Sen. Herb Duis of Gothenburg, sponsor of the bill, asked his colleagues to force the measure to the floor because it could not muster enough strength for aeller called to jury duty in Arkansas was being questioned by the lawyer for the defense. When the lawyer asked was the man married or single, he said he'd been married 10 years. Then the lawyer wanted to know if the feller had formed or expressed an opinion in the case at hand. The feller said he hadn't expressed an opinion on nothing in the past 10 years.

Actual, you can sit in a courtroom and see mankind on parade. He recalled the feller in Georgia a few years back that was charged with speeding. He said he was hurrying home to take his mother-in-law to a prayer meeting. The judge fined him $35 for speeding and $15 for lying.

This judge in North Carolina looked over his bench at one of his regulars that had tied one on and spent the night on the sidewalk in freezing cold. He didn't look any worse than usual, so the judge offered to strike a bargain. He said he wouldn't lock the poor devil up, or fine him if he'd will his body to science.

The judge said he was convinced the feller's antifreeze was good for 20 below, "and you've got a lot to teach the rest of us."

Personal, Mister Editor, I think our court decisions are a heap like our economic decisions. I recall when Hoover came to the White House he was going to economize. One of his first savings was to move Coolidge's saddle horse from the capital grounds to Fort Meyer. When Cal heard about it he ask if the horse would eat less hay at Fort Meyer. In most problems we deal with the same hay, we just move the horse around.

Meanwhile, he reported where

Yours truly,

committee approval.

Sen. Wally Barnett of Lincoln, chairman of the committee, said the legislation was unnecessary because laws already provide the penalties Peters was proposing.

Currently anyone guilty of first degree sexual assault can be given a 1 to 50 year sentence.

A second conviction mandates a minimum 25 year sentence without hope of parole.

Barnett said the law is adequate but that prosecutors are not utilizing it to the fullest extent.

Sen. Ernest Chambers of Omaha said passage of the bill could not by itself force a prosecutor to file a first degree sexual assault charge.

Techn College Bill

The Education Committee has sent to the floor a bill that would bring technical community colleges back under state control.

But there was almost immediate speculation that the measure, sponsored by Sen. Sam Culman of Hastings and Richard Marvel of Hastings, would be revised to provide only for a moratorium on tech school construction funded by local property taxes.

It is known some senators believe too much construction has been done or is being planned by some of the community colleges.

The Education Committee also reported to the full Legislature a bill that would establish a public radio network across the state.

The legislation would create the Nebraska Public Radio Commission, which would have the same membership as the Nebraska Educational Television Commission.

The measure is sure to touch off heated debate because a number of the lawmakers have said this is not the time for the state to embark on still another project that could make further demands on the state treasury.

Gov. J. James Exon has also voiced opposition to public radio, especially during a period when dollars are not plentiful.

In other action, the committee has reported to the floor a bill that proposes creation of a $49 million escrow fund just in case the voters decide in the general election to retain the state aid to schools bill that was passed by the unicameral last year. The bill, which was suspended through a petition drive, provided for raising state aid by $20 million annually for three years.

— waiting —

Allowing the waitress to refill his cup one more time, he glanced again at his watch and then toward the door.

Could something have happened? This was Tuesday. It was the 28th.

Once more he picked up the paper, knowing any words he'd read would mean nothing. He'd read the same front page a half a dozen times already, and couldn't tell you what the lead story was even about!

Staring at the paper, he turned his attention, once more, to the conversation in the booth behind him.

A telephone rang. He glanced immediately at the front counter where the hostess cradled the receiver between her shoulder and ear while she held the menu.

" Paging Mr. Paul Roberts, please. Telephone at the front counter."

Disappointed, he ground out his cigarette in the overflowing ashtray. He watched a well-dressed businessman, sitting alone at a table by the wall, acknowledge the page with a nod and place his napkin alongside his half-eaten breakfast while he left to clasp her hand in greeting.

"It did. Blowing, drifting snow . . . and about ten years of loneliness. How have you been?"

"The same."

"Snowed in? Or lonely?"

"Both."

"More coffee?" the waitress interrupted.</

North Loup Irrigation

Editor Ord Quiz:
The public, in general, is not well informed on the project, nor do the farmers and taxpayers know how the project will either effect them, or cost them.

The three most publicized features of the North Loup Project are: it's to provide water to irrigate 53,000 acres, (28,000 acres are now being irrigated, why "irrigate"? 2nd, great economic benefits will result, (perhaps to the B.O.R. in jobs and pensions, and the construction company awarded the contract, but it could make bankrupt some of the affected farmers, resulting in government owned land) 3rd, The estimated cost (78 is $13.8 million) (most construction project's costs are doubled, some tripped by the time the project is finished.)

Economists have warned of the possible "economic collapse awaiting us" (remember 1929?) Think of the already "hard pressed" farmers. Who go ahead with an irrigation project that will increase their woes?

The farmers involved in the North Loup project have not been asked by either the Twin Loup Irrigation Dist. nor the Twin Loup Reclamation Dist., if they are willing, or able to pay their share of the $27 million repayment debt to the U.S. Government, which would be $745 per acre with a first mortgage against their place until paid. In addition to the annual apportioned repayment debt per acre per year for 50 years, farmers would also pay $8.20 per acre per year, with raises, for water and maintenance. How can "hard pressed" farmers stand the economic burden of the North Loup Project?

The burden would be greatest to the farmers of the North Loup Basin who at their own expense are now irrigating 28,000 acres, especially if they still owe for their irrigation systems, then

Is CMS A New Disease?

We hope not! CMS is the Continuous Multi-Stage grain drying principle. It's new to most Nebraska farmers, but not to our farming neighbors to the north and east of us. The FARM FANS company has been building grain dryers in Indianapolis, Indiana for nearly 30 years.

Only within recent months has the FARM FANS dryer become available in Nebraska through Holdrege Seed and Farm Supply and its dealers.

To learn how continuous multi-stage drying "temper dries" grain to a final result of full, bright colored kernels...automatically, see Holdrege Seed and Farm Supply, Holdrege, Nebraska.

Fact is, FARM FANS was mostly a regional company building quality dryers pretty much like any number available in this area. That was before CMS! This system, with its automatic control has revolutionized the grain drying industry and made it possible to save money.

Over 40 Candidates Have Entered May Primary Race

Over 40 candidates will be vying for offices in the May 9 primary race, according to figures supplied by Valley County Clerk Thelma Dultz. Figures released after the Friday, March 10 filing deadline show competition for the Ord School Board may be keener of the races before voters.

A total of ten candidates are seeking the three positions on the Board of Education. Two of the three incumbent office holders have decided not to run again. Those sitting it out '78 primary are Dr. Dale Karré and Dennis Krikac.

Dr. Karré was first elected to the board 14 years ago. Krikac was first elected in 1974.

Eli Vancura is the lone incumbent on the board seeking a return to office.

Others after the three vacant positions include Ray Marshall, Barbara Weems, Carl R. Nelson, Darrel Zarich, Emanuel Leuck, Karen Zaruba, Emanuel Sich, Orlie Watts and Ronald H. Kitz.

Less interest is shown in the race for city offices. City Council members Willie Skala, Charles Cox, and Bob Edgill, all incumbents, didn't file for a chance at another term. They represented the first, second, and third wards, respectively.

Charlene Lola from the second ward and Roger Goldfish from the third are the only city council candidates. No one filed for the first ward council position now occupied by Willie Skala but up for election.

Council Approves Planned Rebuilding

The Ord City Council approved blue prints and specifications for the first phase remodeling of the Masonic Building during their session Monday night at City Hall. Bids on the project are scheduled to be opened April 3, 7:30 p.m. in the Council chambers at a much later date.

The city signed a lease-purchase agreement with the Ord Masonic chapter last year. The building had been vacant for several months at that time. Former tenants, the Ord Memorial Chapel, had moved to new quarters northwest of Ord along highway 11.

The council's approval came after Richard Stacy of Great Plains Engineering and Architecture of Kearney reviewed the project specifications Monday.

In other business the council appointed Al Cudly pool manager for the coming summer, and RECOMMENDED City Attorney Greg Jensen drew up a new contract with the Rural Fire District. The new contract shall contain a provision for renegotiation at the time the city opts for a different dispatch center.

Fire did extensive damage to the Emanuel Sich home, located three miles east on the Springdale Road, Tuesday afternoon. Ord Fire Chief Ivan Sorenson speculated a short in an electrical cord likely caused the blaze that did over $8,000 damage.

Sich told the Quiz his wife was downstairs on the first floor when she smelled smoke. Sich was called and went upstairs to investigate. He found a southeast bedroom on the second story in flames.

Firemen were called around 5:40 p.m. Two fire trucks, a ladder, and two rescue units responded.

There were no injuries. Sorenson stated smoke and water damage to the two-story frame house was considerable.

Another weapon in the Sierra Club arsenal is the Sierra Legal Defense Fund. Headquartered in Denver, CO, the service provides free legal advice concerning various projects under study by the club.

According to Warrick, the fund helped halt a planned highway through the Wilderness Park in Lincoln. Located on the south edge of the city, the park will include an undeveloped area along Salt Creek, Warrick told the Quiz.

Planned Symposium To Tell Both Sides of Calamus Issue

Calamus Project opponents are planning a symposium to combat what Mr. Lloyd Geuke called "brainwashed" media and to tell both sides of the Calamus project question. The proposed Bureau of Reclamation project would use the ditch or canal system to irrigate 53,000 acres in five counties.

Moderators of the proposed meeting, at a yet unknown time and place, would be members of the local and state-wide media.

The plan got straw vote approval following a meeting of project opponents and members of the Sierra Club Thursday night at Ord High. Representing the Sierra Club were Bob Warrick and Rose McCullough.

A Meadow Grove, NE farmer-stockman, Warrick is state Sierra Club chairman. Rose McCullough is a staff member of the Life Sciences Department at the University of Nebraska in Lincoln.

Warrick told project opponents he wasn't familiar with the North Loup or Calamus project but had worked to halt the Cedar River Project three years ago. Located south of Ericson, the irrigation project uses the canal or ditch system of irrigation.

"I'm not sure just what the Sierra Club can do," he said, "except take your story back to members of the club here in the state." According to figures Warrick supplied there are around 700 Sierra members in Nebraska. Many are farmers and ranchers according to the club official.

Slide Show

A slide show told the story of the Sierra Club and its goals. In 1888 John Muir, founder of the organization, got then President Theodore Roosevelt to declare parts of the Yosemite Valley a National Park. Most early Sierra Club members were mountaineers. During its first 60 years existence, the club worked to protect scenic areas in the western United States.

Now international in scope, the club has an estimated 150,000 members according to the slide show. The presentation called local action "our strongest tool".

Thirty students savored the taste of success at the end of a 22 hour hunger fast Saturday. Meeting in St. Mary's gym Friday night the students played basketball, sang hymns, and discussed the plight of the world's less fortunate during their vigil. Galen Marsh and Marilyn Keskell, left to right, savored a well cooked meal at the conclusion of the fast Saturday.

SPRINGTIME DUE . . . Although it may not look like it, the magic season of Spring is due in only a few days. "In the spring, a young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love," wrote Tennyson. He thinks of other things, too, probably, but that's beside the point.

The point is — what does a woman's fancy turn to? Consider her thoughts. Doesn't she think of these?

— New outfits with matching accessories for spring and/or Easter.

— Plans for summer vacation.

— Ways to spend the I.R.S. refund, if there is a refund.

— Plants and shrubs for the garden.

— A better, easier-to-manage but more exciting hairstyle.

A paint job for the house, inside or out, plus little things like chairs and tables and shelves and such.

— Somebody's, anybody's, wedding complete with gifts and tearful surprise showers.

— A new car in that just right shade of color to match her personality.

— Cleaning. This includes floors, windows, yards, drapes, attic, you name it.

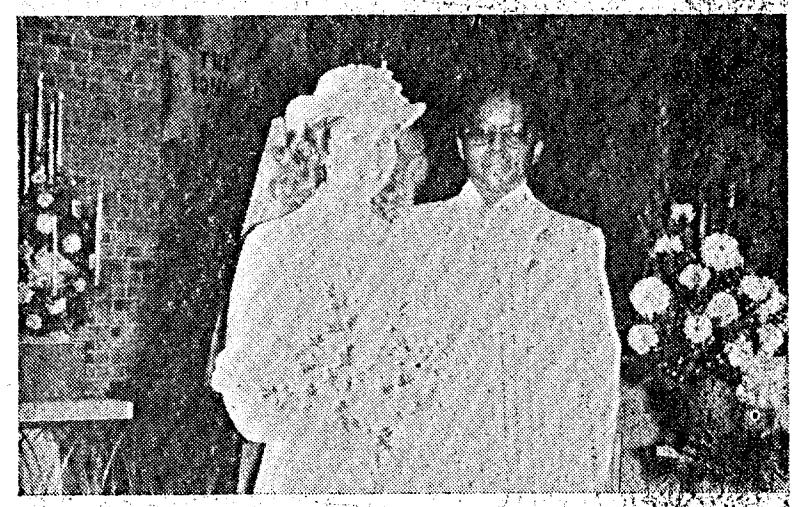

And all the re-things you can think of like refurbishing, restuffing, repapering, replanting, repacking, repolishing — that is — anything unreasonable.

Oh yes — and her fancy turns, too, to thoughts of love.

Beef Production-Consumption Are Predicted to Fall in 1978

The U.S. cattle inventory, currently the smallest since 1971, will bring about a decline in beef production, cattle slaughter and beef consumption in 1978, which in turn will boost live cattle prices above 1977 levels. This is the assessment of Dr. Al Wellman, University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension livestock marketing specialist, as he analyzed the cattle situation which was featured by a cattle population of 116.3 million head on January 1, 1978, down five percent from a year ago.

Two factors account for the drop in beef supplies, Wellman said. He expects smaller numbers of nonfed grass-fed cattle to be slaughtered. This is attributable to better grazing conditions, higher prices and the anticipation by producers of improved returns. A smaller calf crop and feeder calf supplies may substantially reduce calf slaughter.

The 1978 calf crop will be smaller unless productivity improves dramatically, Wellman stated. The calving rate this year must be 92.7 percent of January 1 cow numbers up almost five percent from 1977 to avoid a decline in the calf crop, he explained. If weather is mild, 1978 calf death losses could drop from last year's high numbers.

Anticipated cattle slaughter of some 39.2 million head this year may drop 5.5 percent from 1977 levels, but fed cattle marketings are forecast to rise 4.5 percent with prices of cows, calves and yearlings expected to rise more rapidly than slaughter cattle prices, implications obviously are not favorable for cattle feeders," the economist said.

On the consumer side, prices of cuts such as roasts, hamburger and ground beef probably will increase faster than steaks cut from the loin, Wellman continued. "This assumes that most of our new-found demand for ground and processed beef will remain sufficiently strong to absorb higher prices paid for the smaller supplies available."

REACT Chapter Formed Friday

The Loup Valley REACT chapter was formed Friday during meeting in the First National Bank of Ord. An estimated 15 interested persons and members of the Grand Island REACT chapter attended the session.

REACT, an acronym for Radio Emergency Associated Citizens Teams, is a full-scale volunteer civilian emergency radio service that meets the need to communicate. REACT members using their own citizens two-way radios monitor channel 9 to assist the public. The U.S. Federal Communications Commission and the Canadian Department of Communications have reserved channel 9 for emergency messages and motorists assistance.

REACT volunteer monitors use channel 9 to report accidents, summon medical aid, keep traffic moving, report road conditions, give road directions, and avoid being lost. Distress calls including accident reports, personal injury reports, etc., are turned over to proper authorities.

A REACT member strives to assist and cooperate with law enforcement officials at all times.

Temporary officers for the Loup Valley REACT chapter are president Gene Johnson; watch commander, Dale Manchester; secretary-treasurer, Donna Bennett; and public relations chairman, Wade Misko.

Hours for the REACT monitoring procedures, etc. will be established at a later date.

The next REACT meeting is scheduled for March 24, 8 p.m. in the First National Bank of Ord community room.

An estimated 12 members joined the new organization.

Dr. Auble Ord Rotary Speaker

Dr. Glen Auble was key speaker at Rotary Monday evening.

Dr. Auble described how the public came to own Ft. Hartsuff including:

An old settler's committee formed at a picnic in the 1920s.

Senator Krezack's legislation to condemn historical sites.

The purchase he and Ben Rose made in the 1940s.

The Game Commission's acceptance of the gift of the building site in 1962 and

The progress of the restoration of the Fort which makes it one of the top attractions in Nebraska.

In other Rotary news, President Arden Koelling reminded those present there will be a special Rotary Ann on March 27 for new Rotarians and their spouses and other guests.

Rotarian Ed Bosworth reported on developments in the community's plan to send its own foreign exchange student abroad. The club voted to prepare duplicate slide presentations for the use and convenience of the exchange students from the Ord area.

Water Conference Is Scheduled March 23

Members of the Lower Loup Natural Resources District and the Nebraska Water Resources Association are keying up for the Central Nebraska Water Conference Thursday, March 23 at the Ord Elks Club.

Topics for discussion during the day-long meeting include the natural gas pipeline, water legislation, hotline, irrigation scheduling, pumping plans of efficiency and related topics. The program will open at 9 a.m. with welcome by Ord Chamber of Commerce president, Jim McCready and conclude with a question and answer session at 3:15 p.m.

This is the third year for the jointly sponsored meeting. Last year a near-capacity crowd attended the event.

Another factor is pork, which is expected to increase in volume at the same time. However, Wellman said that with improved beef movement in recent weeks and a probable drop in nonfed cattle slaughter, chances are for little price weakness to develop as a result of the large supply of both fed beef and pork.

Thus, Wellman predicted prices could average $42-$46 per hundredweight for slaughter cattle at Omaha for the first half of 1978. Calf prices should average above $50 per hundredweight with yearling prices somewhere in between.

While noting that it will be some time before the full impact of the cattle inventory reduction of the past three years will be felt by the industry, Wellman listed these implications based on the January 1, 1978 inventory:

Continued liquidation of cattle to an anticipated 114-115 million head in January 1979, with a possible upswing to 116-117 million head by January 1, 1980.

Little or no rebuilding of cow herds apparently took place in 1977.

Significantly lower feed and yearling numbers.

A recovery in calving rates.

Tightening in supplies of grassfed beef, especially if good grazing is available in major beef production areas.

More beef will come from feedlots, and slaughter weights may increase.

Other APC activities included special seminars, the world's largest exposition of products and services for pork production, and featured speakers Orson Bean, Carol Tucker Froman and Earl Butz.

According to Mrs. Rogers, 1978 National Porkette officers elected at the Annual Meeting business session include: Mrs. Helen Nichols of Brock, NE, president; Mrs. Millie of Virginia, vice president and Mrs. Delores Kleine of Minnesota, secretary-treasurer.

Carson Rogers, National Director from Ord was elected to the executive board of the National Pork Producers Council.

Mr. and Mrs. Ron Rogers also attended the Pork Congress.

Flying Farmers Meet in B. Bow

Around 60 people from all parts of the state met at the Broken Bow airport Sunday for the Nebraska Flying Farmers and Ranchers planning session. Those from Ord attending included Mr. and Mrs. Dean Bresley, Ord Airport manager Ben Wadas and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Glen Brethauer, and Leonard Vech of Ericson.

During the planning session it was decided to have a pilot refresher course along with a session for co-pilots in Ord. The meeting will be held in the near future.

Flying Farmer and Rancher members decided to give special emphasis to enlarging the teen and junior program of the organization. They help make the aeronautical organization a family affair.

The 1970 state convention will be held in Grand Island in February of 1979 according to Heloise Bresley. A place and time will be decided later.

June 25 the club will have a fly-in at the Vech ranch west of Ericson.

New members of the Flying Farmers and Ranchers are Mr. and Mrs. Ben Wadas, Mr. and Mrs. Glen Brethauer, and Leonard Vech of Ericson.

Republican gubernatorial candidate Stan Juells was in Ord Thursday, March 9, meeting with area voters. This is his first try at election to the state's chief executive post.

According to the candidate, local control is a key plank in his election platform. "Local control and the government are getting away from us," he told the Quiz.

If elected he plans to do away with unnecessary governmental agencies and hold the line on hiring state employees. According to Juells there's been an increase of 6,000 people working for the state in the last seven years.

The GOP candidate has traveled some 6,000 miles since last August meeting voters and explaining his views. "I'm shooting for 100,000 miles by the primary next May," he said.

Chamber Backs Agriculture Day

The Ord Chamber of Commerce will note Agriculture Day '78 March 20. Agriculture Day is an effort to promote better understanding between rural and urban residents and is a day to remind those living in town of the need for a profitable agriculture industry.

According to Ord Chamber supplied statistics only 15.5 percent of American's income goes for food. The Chamber prepared data indicates 83 percent of a person's total income goes for food in Asia. What is more, Americans have a variety of foods prepackaged and on display in modern supermarkets, conditions undreamed of one generation ago.

Recent warrants issued to the Sheriff Dept. include warrants for Maurice Wagner for insufficient fund checks and for Jimmy Oldson on an assault complaint.

DEC Decision To Aid Ord-Arcadia

A recent decision to ease pollution standards for about 100 Nebraska communities using lagoons for wastewater treatment will mean considerable savings for federal, state and local governments, according to a spokesman with the Nebraska Department of Environmental Control (DEC).

Ord and Arcadia are two of the towns affected by the decision.

The decision was made by the 16-member private citizen Environmental Control Council in Lincoln Feb. 17 upon the recommendation from DEC personnel. The council sets the pollution standards and regulations under which DEC operates.

Jay Ringenberg, section chief of DEC's water permits and enforcement section, said that each of the communities would now be spared the expense of building mechanical wastewater treatment plants. He estimated the savings from one fiscal year's worth of grant allocation money to be about $27 million, or roughly $270,000 for each community. The community can figure its savings to be 12.5 percent of that, since that would be the amount of matching funds required of it to build a new system.

DEC has been a national leader in the effort to convince the federal Environmental Protection Agency to allow each state to set its own standards for lagoon systems, he said. He, as well as DEC Director Dan Drain and water division chief Bob Wall have attended various meetings of environmental officials to stress the need for a more lenient approach to lagoon systems, he said.

Lagoons have had to meet the same standard for suspended solids as required of mechanically operated systems, that is, 30 milligrams per liter. However, because of the high concentration of naturally occurring algae in lagoons, the systems could not attain standards during the time algae is present. The standard adopted by the council is 80 milligrams per liter, a level Ringenberg said will not have any serious effect on the environment.

He explained that the department's procedure now will be to evaluate each lagoon to determine which ones will meet the new standard. He added that he is confident that most will be within the limit.

Other midwestern states have or will be following Nebraska's example, he said. Lagoon systems are a sensible and economic method for handling wastewater in states like Nebraska, he said, where there is more evaporation than precipitation. Naturally there are fewer maintenance and upkeep costs on the nonmechanical systems, too, he added.

Lagoons have had to meet the same standard for suspended solids as required of mechanically operated systems, that is, 30 milligrams per liter. However, because of the high

Edgar Howard-Nebraska Editor & Statesman

The varied career of Edgar Howard (1858-1951), one of Nebraska's most colorful public figures, spanned more than forty years, and won him wide state and national recognition. Entering politics in 1890 as a supporter of William Jennings Bryan, Howard served six terms in Congress (1922-1934), and was also a Nebraska legislator and Lieutenant governor. A simultaneous career as editor of the Columbus Telegram gained his vigorous writings such distinction that he was compared with Kansas editor William Allen White. The July 19, 1951, Columbus Telegram, on file at the Nebraska State Historical Society, reported extensively on Howard's life as editor, lawyer, legislator, and elder statesman of Nebraska Democrats.

Born on September 16, 1858, in Ossola, Iowa, he (Howard) was a problem child when his rugged individualism began to manifest itself in his boyhood. As a pupil in the Glenwood, Iowa, public school, he was a bit precocious for the schoolmasters of the day, so his parents put him in a private school, the Wesleyan Collegiate Institute. Then he attended Iowa College of Law at Des Moines (later merged with Drake University), where he would have been graduated if he had not disagreed with his professors a few weeks before commencement date. He didn't receive his degree, but some years later passed an examination and was admitted to the practice of law in Nebraska.

"In the Democratic state convention of 1890 as a delegate from Sarpy County, he urged the nomination of Mr. (William Jennings) Bryan for congressman from the First (Omaha) District. Mr. Bryan was nominated, elected, and, in appreciation of his support, invited the country editor to go to Washington as his private secretary. Congressmen's secretaries were not paid out of federal funds in those days, but Mr. Howard went along. He stayed in Washington a few months, as long as his limited finances would permit."

"In 1894 he was elected state representative from Sarpy County. He was elected county judge of Sarpy County in 1895 and again in 1897. Democratic nominee for congressman in the First District in 1900, he was defeated in the election. In 1916 he was elected lieutenant-governor of Nebraska, serving one term. Elected to Congress from the Third Congressional District in 1922, he survived the Republican landslide in elections, and was elected to his sixth term in 1932, serving 12 consecutive years. In 1934, the second year of President Roosevelt's administration, he was defeated for reelection by Karl Stefan, the Republican nominee. Two years later party leaders induced him to stand as a candidate for lieutenant-governor, but he failed to be nominated. Again in 1938, as a matter of party loyalty, he consented to make the race for Congress, but failed to unseat Congressman Stefan. His last active appearance on the political stage, nationally, was as delegate from Nebraska to the Democratic national convention in Chicago in 1944.

"A champion of agriculture, small business, organized labor, and the 'common man' in general, from the earliest days of his newspaper career, Howard became well known in Washington during his congressional terms. His trademark was long hair, worn in a down-to-the-collar bob, complemented by a long black frock coat, string tie, and hat with a six-inch crown and wide brim. "It was an index to the character of the man that he never for a moment lost his intense personal interest in the people he represented."

"When a biographical sketch was submitted to him, reviewing the political offices he had held, he added these lines: 'Holding contemporaneously with all these official places the higher office of editor of a country newspaper, and still in that

Cattlemen Seek to Limit Use Of Antibiotics in Animal Feed

The Nebraska Stock Growers Association has asked the Food and Drug Administration not to take steps to limit the use of antibiotics in livestock feeds until all scientific evidence and comments are reviewed.

In a letter to FDC Commissioner Donald Kennedy, NSGA President Jack Maddux pointed out that a ban should not be put on the use of antibiotics without due process.

He noted that NSGA members are opposed to statements made by Kennedy in his third document published that would limit the distribution of premixes containing penicillin and tetracyclines. The Food and Drug Administration had previously published reports that would ban the use of penicillin and tetracyclines from livestock feeds unless a prescription was submitted from the veterinarian.

Maddux told Kennedy "the statements made in your third document tend to indicate that you do not even plan to wait until all evidence has been received and evaluated before you take action." The NSGA President continued to say that "all comments and scientific evidence should be evaluated and public hearings held where pros and cons can be discussed further."

The penicillin and tetracyclines that have been threatened of being removed from the market have been used for 27 years without any occurrence of ill-effects. Performance of the antibiotics has not decreased, which would tend to indicate that resistance does not build up, either.

'NSGA members are concerned that Commissioner Kennedy plans to eliminate, or severely restrict a practice which has been of benefit to producers and consumers alike over a quarter of a century. Maddux also told Kennedy he finds it "unthinkable" that you would ban the use of penicillin and tetracyclines before all the scientific evidence is examined and any final action taken."

Maddux has announced that NSGA will have a representative present to testify at a public hearing on March 23 in Ames, IA.

Tractor Testing Data Available

The new Nebraska Tractor Test Data summary booklet, including tractors on the market in Nebraska as of January 1, 1978, has been published and can now be obtained through county Extension offices.

Single copies of the booklet are free to Nebraska residents; for out-of-state residents, the cost of $1.00 each, with a sliding scale for larger quantities. Tests conducted at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources facility measure power takeoff and drawbar performance and also sound levels of various models.

Single copies of individual test reports, or a yearly subscription to tractor test reports as they are printed and the summary booklet at the end of each testing season, are available for a fee from the UNL Department of Agricultural Engineering, East Campus, University of Nebraska, Lincoln, NE 68583.

North Loup Rites for Nellie Helbig

Nellie Helbig was born May 17, 1885 at Streator, IL to William and Mary Burton, Rich, and died March 13, 1978 at Littleton, CO at the age of 92.

Nellie moved with her parents at an early age to Valley County, near North Loup. She attended school at North Loup, then after completion, she taught school for one year. She was united in marriage to Edward C. Helbig, October 3, 1910 at North Loup. After their marriage, they farmed for a time south of North Loup, then operated a hardware store in North Loup for several years, before returning to farming south of town. They later lived in Loup City, and Burwell where Mr. Helbig operated service stations. From Burwell, they moved to the state of Washington, where they both worked at the Crown-Zellerbach Mills. After ill health forced Mr. Helbig's retirement, they moved to the Littleton-Denver area.

Nellie was a member of the Christian Church in Denver.

Survivors include three sisters, Mrs. Grace O'Brien of Denver, Lydia Rich and Mrs. Lois Peterson both of Littleton, CO; as well as numerous nieces and nephews. Nellie was preceded in death by her parents, husband, Edward, in 1943, one sister, and five brothers.

Funeral services were held Thursday morning, March 16, 1978 at 10 a.m. at the United Methodist Church in North Loup with Rev. Earl Reed officiating. Burial was in the Hillside Cemetery at North Loup with the Ord Memorial Chapel in charge of arrangements. Mrs. Irma Keown was the organist for Mrs. Lou Hudson and Mrs. Donita Cook as they sang, "How Great Thou Art," and "Abide With Me." Pallbearers were James Knapp, Robert Knapp, Hills Cole man, Edward Hudson, Carroll Thomas, and Robert Vogeler.

William Holtz, Age 92, Buried At Shelton, NE

William Holtz, 92, died Sunday morning at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Large where he had made his home the last 5½ years.

Services were at Zion Lutheran Church, north of Shelton Wednesday morning with Pastor Tom Johnston of Ravenna and Pastor Norman Schedler of Ord officiating. Burial was in the Shelton Cemetery. A Memorial Service was also held at St. John's Lutheran Church, Ord, Wednesday evening, preceding the Lenten Service.

Mr. Holtz was born March 4, 1886 near Edwardsville, IL. When he was seven, he, with his family moved to a farm north of Shelton.

He was baptized as an infant in Illinois. He was confirmed at Zion Lutheran Church, Shelton, in 1900, and remained a lifelong member there. He married Minnie Lade of Sweetwater on May 26, 1909 and they made their first home near Kilgore in Cherry County. They returned to the family farm in 1914. Following the death of his wife in 1954, he continued to live on the farm. In 1963 he moved to the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Bremer, St. Libby. He, also, lived with Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ohlman, Central City and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lange.

Survivors are his daughters: Mrs. Viola Ohlman, Central City; Mrs. Vera Lange, Ord; Mrs. Lydia Stohs, Fremont; Mrs. Ella Bremer, St. Libby; Mrs. Dorothy Brethauer, Arcadia; Mrs. Bernadine Lange, Ord; also 33 grandchildren and 55 great grandchildren; two sisters, Mrs. Louise Kuster, Ravenna; and Mrs. Emma Cunningham, Houston, TX, and many nephews and nieces.

He was preceded in death by his wife, one daughter, Imogene, and four brothers and four sisters.

Pallbearers were Don Ohlman, Central City; Rev. George Lange, River Forest, IL; Dr. Sidney Stohs, Omaha; Bill Bremer, Grand Island; Martin Brethauer, Arcadia and Duane Lange, Ord.

Turning to the North Loup or Calamus project, Warrick called the Calamus River "One of the most tremendous wildlife and waterfowl rivers I've ever seen." He suggested project opponents tell the public of the river's beauty.

Ord attorney Bob Stowell suggested the possibility of having a symposium on the Calamus project. Members of the Reclamation Bureau, project opponents, and others could make their views known.

Mrs. Lloyd Geweke voiced support for the idea. She contend the local radio station and area papers have been "brainwashed," in her words, on the project by the Bureau of Reclamation.

Stowell suggested local and state-wide journalists and other media members could be discussion moderators at the proposed meeting.

No place or date for the meeting has yet been set.

Rose McCullough told project opponents when she was planning a symposium she sought Sierra Club speakers who were dynamic, forceful, etc. Speakers selected from the Bureau of Reclamation by club members had opposite qualities, she related.

Straw vote approval was given to the proposed meeting and to having a college student help organize the session. From Antioch College in Yellow Springs, OH, he will be on a three-month work-study program during his stay here. It is not known when he will arrive.

Different Proposal

NEBRASKA FARM BUREAU FEDERATION

By M. M. Van Kirk, Director of Information
Members of the Nebraska Legislature have come up with an amended version of LB 153 which proposes a different solution to their problem of unreasonably low compensation.

If the bill is passed in its present amended form, and that appears possible on the basis of the 30-2 margin by which it was advanced from General File, it will submit by constitutional amendment to the voters in November, a proposal that the salaries of the senators be "not more than" what is determined to be the median family income of Nebraskans, as established and reported annually by the Consumer Price Index.

Currently this would be in the realm of $14,000 per year. It would be flexible. If inflation continues, which appears to be likely, then the salary would be adjusted according to the Consumer Price Index figure. If the index figure declined, so would the salary.

Service in the Nebraska Legislature has never been a financially rewarding experience. In 1960, the voters approved a constitutional amendment setting the salary of the senators at $200 per month or $2,400 per year and there it remained until 1968 when the figure was raised to $400 per month or $4,800 per year. And there it has remained for 10 years. The voters have rejected constitutional amendments to increase that figure in elections in 1972, 1974 and 1976. The voters have turned down a proposal that the senators be permitted to set their own salary and that they be entitled to per diem expense compensation while on official legislative business during the period between sessions. In 1974 and again in 1976, the voters turned down a proposal that the salary figure be increased to $675 per month.

During the last 10 years, every Nebraska has experienced firsthand the worst period of inflation in the nation's history. There has been no organized opposition to increasing the salary of the senators and widespread recognition that the compensation must be more realistic if the quality of legislative membership is to be retained. Still the voters have said "NO."

For many years, service in the Nebraska Legislature has not been a part-time job. The days when a member got on the train and rode to Lincoln to stay a month or two and then return home to his farming, business or whatever are long gone. Most of the senators' constituents expect them to return home frequently on the weekends which are filled with meetings, consultations and telephone calls. After four or five months of a legislative session now, they continue to be involved throughout the rest of the year with speaking engagements, public hearings and interim studies, and steady contacts from their constituents. As one farmer-senator said in discussion of LB 153, he got to spend about 8 or 9 days last year in uninterrupted attention to his farm duties.

Service in the Legislature has become so costly that some senators, especially those who have farms, businesses and professions, after a single term, and sometimes in the midst of a term, have given up. This is a great handicap for development of experienced legislative leadership.

Balanced representation cannot be obtained by a system which tends toward restriction of service to those who are wealthy, retired and willing to use their personal finances to subsidize their legislative service.

The office of state senator is attractive from the standpoint of personal prestige and satisfaction and that is why it still attracts candidates who can afford it. But it is unfair and self-defeating to their own best interests for Nebraskans to expect their representatives to serve at a salary that is below minimum wage and poverty standards.

LB 153 as amended would retain constitutional control and still permit flexibility to solve a wage inequity that has been chronic throughout the history of the Nebraska unicameral.

What can I do to prevent condensation and frost in my older buildings which are being used for farrowing and finishing hog operations?

Our cold weather has created excess moisture problems for many swine producers, particularly in uninsulated buildings.

The moisture that condenses or shows up as frost develops because of a high relative humidity in the building. The high humidity is caused by moisture from the animost individuals do not realize that a 100,000 BTU propane heater will produce about 3.9 gallons of water vapor in the flue gas. So, in a 24-hour day, a total of 24 x .9 or more than 33 gallons of additional water are exhausted into the building. In an uninsulated structure, the situation may result in water dripping from the ceiling or roof. When an unvented heater is used for several days the building can be expected to be very damp or extremely wet.

This problem can be eliminated by using a heater with an outside vent or chimney that carries exhaust fumes outside of the building. These generally are not portable but they can eliminate undesirable conditions encountered with unvented heaters.

For further information, ask for "The Swine Housing and Equipment Handbook." Copies are available at $2.50 each from the Valley County Extension Office.

Glancing Back

Sunday, March 5 we attended two open house receptions for our friends. It isn't every day that you are invited to two of them. One of them was a 35th wedding anniversary open house for Glen and Velma Warner. Glen is a co-worker of ours at the Quiz. He has been here for several years. We were friends of the Warners for some years before he started working here.

The second reception was the golden anniversary of Venard and Alice Collins. I worked with Venard at the sale barn for a number of years. Before that I worked with their son, Ken when he was employed at the Quiz. Venard's sister Vida Wheeler had been an employee at Quiz for several years when I first came to work here. As you can see, we are longtime friends of both families. Both of these couples celebrated on the exact date of their anniversary.

I guess we stirred up quite a fuss with the Bramboecky last week. About three different ladies called Mrs. Zikmund to ask for her recipe. As I heard it, the recipe is one that Agnes Novosad has had for years and years. One of the ladies told me it is the same recipe our mothers had so when they called it "Bramboecky Platke".

While we are on the subject of food, I've often thought about a snack pastry my mother used to make. It was a real crisp, thin thing that closely resembled pizza (no one heard of pizza that long ago). The main ingredient was sauerkraut. It wasn't a main course thing, but just something to chew on to pass time. My sister-in-law, Agnes Lukesh of Kimball, Neb., used to make it too. I wonder if she still remembers how.

One evening last week when I went to visit my aunt, Beth Lukes at the hospital, her roommate, Rose Albers told me that her father had a livery barn in Ord when she was a little girl. She remembers that some of the farmers would leave their horses there while they did their business in town. Sometimes some of them would get together and buy themselves some bologna, crackers, cheese and bread — and a bucket of beer from the saloon and eat their lunch at the stable.

My dad used to tell about leaving his horses in Pavek's (Rose's father) barn when he went to Ord on business.

mall's breath and evaporation from manure, urine and water spilled from waterers. When the walls or ceilings are cold, the humid air condenses and sometimes shows up as frost during periods of low temperatures.

The prevention of this problem includes two steps that go "hand in glove." First, insulated walls and ceilings will be warmer so there will be less condensation and probably no frost. Then, to get rid of surplus moisture, a ventilation system can be installed. It will carry some of the warm, humid air out of the building. A good ventilation system acts like a water pump by carrying water out of a building and at the same time bringing fresh air to the housed animals.

Both of these features — insulation and ventilation — are needed to reduce frost and condensation.

An insulated building retains animal heat to keep the building warmer so incoming air will be warmed so it can pick up the excess moisture. A well-insulated building will be humid and damp unless well-ventilated.

The correct design and management of a ventilation system is essential for good results.

There also have been reports of excess moisture when portable unvented gas heaters were used to warm buildings. The unvented heater will help get a building warmer, but the unseen culprit is the excess water that is exhausted into a building. This additional water increases dangers of condensation but may also use the oxygen in the building. In a very tight building, animals may die from lack of oxygen. The flue gas fumes also include an irritating gas that will cause a person's eyes to water and also irritate the nose and throat.

Most individuals do not realize that a 100,000 BTU propane heater will produce about 3.9 gallons of water vapor in the flue gas. So, in a 24-hour day, a total of 24 x .9 or more than 33 gallons of additional water are exhausted into the building. In an uninsulated structure, the situation may result in water dripping from the ceiling or roof. When an unvented heater is used for several days the building can be expected to be very damp or extremely wet.

This problem can be eliminated by using a heater with an outside vent or chimney that carries exhaust fumes outside of the building.

These generally are not portable but they can eliminate undesirable conditions encountered with unvented heaters.

Hyde Escapes Injury

In One Car Accident

Cathy Hyde escaped injury in a one-car accident five miles northeast of Ord Monday morning. According to Valley County Sheriff Martin Sonnenfeld, Hyde was headed south on highway 70 when she lost control of the 1968

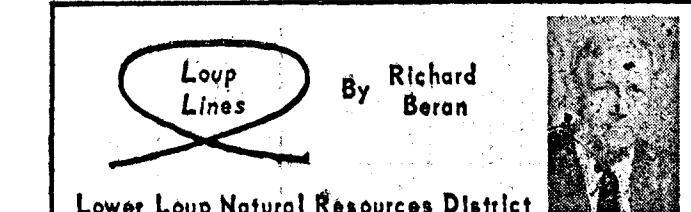

Chevrolet.

The car spun out of control, skidded off the road, and struck a traffic sign. Sheriff Sonnenfeld told the Quiz water covered roads may have contributed to the accident.

There was $250 damage to the car. The driver was unhurt.

that, "NO₃-N concentrations in groundwater under fertilized irrigated land in Merrick County are primarily dependent on infiltrating irrigation returns which in turn are dependent on the intensity of irrigation and the drainage characteristics of the soils."

"Commercial fertilizer is the suspected major source of NO₃-N in groundwater. Since the largest quantities of nitrogen fertilizer are used in areas having the highest irrigation returns, a considerable portion of the nitrate could, and very probably does, come from fertilizers."

What all this really means is that we cannot stop using nitrogen fertilizer, but we can better manage the application rate; and most certainly the tools are available to control the application of irrigation water that carries nitrates off the fields and contributes to the deep percolation of nitrates.

Our sampling efforts will shortly in Sherman, Buffalo, and Howard Counties. By the end of April we should be working in Boone, Nance, and Platte Counties.

Think About It

The Ord City Council has been under some fire recently for their purchase of a new police car last week. During their meeting March 6 at City Hall, the council accepted the low bid of $5,499.95 from Husker Dodge for purchase of the vehicle.

Located in Omaha, Husker Dodge made a mass or block purchase of vehicles available to the State of Nebraska and towns within the state. The cars come equipped with options designed for law enforcement work.

Earlier last month, Ord Mayor Gaylord Boileen had Ord Police Chief John Young solicit all Ord auto dealers for bids on the new squad car. Of all those contacted, only two submitted a bid. One was for $6,530 and the other for $6,600. Both were substantially above the price bid by Husker Dodge.

Discussion before the low bid was accepted revolved around the two themes of (1) shop at home, and (2) save the taxpayers' dollar. At best the council was stuck with a no-win situation.

Opt for the low bid from an out-of-town dealer and you have local merchants down your throat. "Shop at home" they scream. "Help support Ord". Yet aren't these same people and others taxpayers? By deciding to purchase the higher bid but locally supplied vehicle the council might be accused of unwisely spending tax dollars or contributing to an increase in the unpopular tax load now paid by Ord residents.

Is there a right answer in this case? I don't know. Better yet, faced with the same situation what would you have done and why?

Think about it.

Vote for the Amendment

From the Central City Republican-Nonpareil
Central City, Nebraska

State legislative salaries, an issue that sends many Nebraskans reaching for their pocketbooks like a squirrel checking its store of nuts, will very likely come up before the electorate again this fall.

Omaha Senator Dave Newell's bill (LB. 153) to raise the salaries of state senators has been advanced to General File by the Constitutional Revision and Recreation Committee after it was heard January 19.

As introduced, LB. 153 proposed a constitutional amendment authorizing the State Board of Equalization and Assessment to set the senators' salaries at no more than one third the salary of the governor, or approximately $13,000. Before it left committee, the bill was amended to set the senators' salaries at the median income level of Nebraska residents, which, on the basis of the latest census data, is about $14,000 annually. State senators are currently paid $4,800 a year.

It is almost certain that the senators will opt to approve LB. 153 and put the question before the voters this November.

"If at first you don't succeed, try again" fits this case, and we hope it proves to be true. Men who are elected and entrusted to make wise decisions regarding millions of dollars of expenditures for the state deserve more than a pitance token of $400 a month. The salary cannot begin to cover the time or travel expenses accumulated by the legislators in attempting to do a good job.

We hope Nebraskans will consider the welfare of their state and its citizens and mark an "X" for this constitutional amendment if it appears on the ballot this fall.

State Sunshine Law Going Into Eclipse?

CAPITOL NEWS

By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

Lincoln — Nebraska's much-discussed Sunshine Act may be headed for extinction.

The Legislature has given first round approval to a bill that would repeal the law, which technically is the Political Accountability and Disclosure Act.

It was placed into the statute books a year ago. And when the senators recently had a bill before them to make some minor revisions in the law, they agreed to, insert an amendment that would abolish the act.

There has been a lot of criticism of the sunshine legislation, which requires those running for political offices and some elected and appointed government officials to file reports with the state on their financial and real estate holdings.

Some strong objections have been voiced against this provision, and much of it came from members appointed to local zoning commissions. The attitude of many of the opponents is that the information they had been asked to furnish is both unnecessary and no one's business.

Sen. John DeCamp of Neligh offered the amendment that was adopted. He planned to offer another revision later that would include provisions Grand Island Sen. Ralph Kelly proposed two years ago.

Kelly advocated requiring political candidates to place their campaign money in one bank account and to permit the secretary of state's office to keep an eye on that account.

The same day DeCamp won approval of his first amendment, the Miscellaneous Subjects Committee reported to the floor the Neligh lawmaker's bill that was written with the express purpose of repealing the Sunshine Act. That measure apparently won't be needed anymore.

Among those fighting DeCamp's repeal amendment was Sen. Neil Simon of Omaha. He said the legislation, if approved, will brand the Legislature as "opposed to open government."

Another objector was Sen. Roland Luedtke of Lincoln, who said repeat of the Sunshine Act would go down as the biggest blunder of the session.

Patrol Bill Ready

The special legislative committee voted to look into the State Patrol's operations has prepared a bill that will propose a major overhaul of the agency's organizational structure.

I then asked you if you were aware that your current kindergarten program is in violation of this law. Your response was that you were & I asked you what you were going to do about complying with 79-549. You advised me that nothing would be done. Two months have elapsed and the Ord-Constock school district is still violating 79-549.

Therefore, I wish to advise you that if you elect to continue violating 79-549 I will have a writ of mandamus filed in court asking for your compliance. Please advise me by March 19, 1978 of your intentions and actions concerning your compliance with 79-549.

In our society, laws are made for compliance regardless of our like or dislike for them. No individual or government agency is above the law. I find it a paradox that the very people charged with the responsibility of educating our children & preparing them to be good, law abiding citizens are themselves violating one of our state laws.

I trust your sense of duty & the allegiance to your oath of office will be sufficient to bring our district in compliance with this state law. It certainly would be unfair to expect the taxpayers to pay for the defense of a violation of state law. Especially, when you are aware of this violation.

cases where homicides were suspected.

The size of a coroner's jury would be increased from six to seven members to prevent the ballots in closely disputed cases.

Drinking Age Debated

Sen. Ralph Kelly of Grand Island recently lost a round but claims he did not lose the battle.

He has been trying for two years to raise the legal drinking age from 19 to 21 and recently sought to amend that provision into a liquor bill dealing with another subject.

His amendment failed on a 20-18 ballot on which 25 supporting votes were required.

Also rejected, but by a much larger margin, was an amendment from Sen. Donald Dvorak of Columbus. He wanted to allow 19 and 20 year olds to drink inside bars but wanted to prohibit them from carrying out liquor for consumption in other places.

Dvorak said he was concerned about young people procuring booze for those below the legal drinking age.

Several of the lawmakers said it would be preferable to have the youthful drinkers carry their liquor home and drink themselves silly there than to have them get drunk inside a bar and then drive home.

Kelly said he planned to reintroduce his amendment because he could count five senators who favored his idea but who were not present when his proposal came up for a vote.

The Grand Island legislator is still lowering the drinking age in 1972 was a mistake, one that has been reflected in sharply higher traffic accident rates in the years since the 1972 law was enacted.

Death Penalty Review

Sen. Ernest Chambers of Omaha has given up on his attempt to repeal the death penalty. But he would still like to have the State Supreme Court review all criminal homicide cases dating to April 20, 1973, when the current capital punishment law was adopted.

He said it is obvious to anyone who has studied the record that the death sentence is not applied uniformly. He argued an effort should be made to devise standards that could be followed in homicide cases of a similar nature.

What Chambers is seeking is a comparison of punishments that have been handed down to point up his repeated claim that the death sentence has been unevenly and arbitrarily imposed.

Key provisions in the bill would create two bureaus within the Department of Law Enforcement and Public Safety.

One of the bureaus would be involved with criminal investigations and the other with traffic and public safety, which would also be known as the Nebraska State Patrol.

The criminal investigation bureau would be charged with preventing crime, finding and apprehending criminals and enforcing laws.

Another section of the bill proposes establishment of the office of state coroner, a pathologist who would be appointed by the governor. Among the coroner's duties would be the performance of autopsies when requested by county attorneys in

If passed with the emergency clause, his bill could result in stays of execution for the four men on Nebraska's death row and Sen. Dennis Rasmussen of Scotia said he would oppose that.

Rasmussen, who sponsored the capital punishment law now in effect, said the four condemned to die have had their day in court. He noted several were convicted three years ago and are still alive.

Rasmussen tried to kill the bill but lost on a 20-20 vote. Chambers then attempted to get preliminary approval of the legislation but could muster only 19 votes.

He said Rasmussen probably wants to use his stand on capital punishment as a campaign issue when Rasmussen runs for the Republican nomination for lieutenant governor.

That brought a quick denial from the Scotia senator. He noted he and Chambers have been disagreeing on the death penalty for six years and that their current dispute is far from a recent development.

Preliminary Decisions Made

The Legislature has made preliminary decisions on the homestead exemption and school aid bills.

The lawmakers decided to retain Omaha Sen. Bernice Labedz's homestead exemption proposal and to reject the one championed by another Omaha senator, David Newell.

The Labedz measure would base part of the property tax exemption on the first $25,000 of actual value of a home and would also use a sliding income scale in computing the amount of the exemption for the elderly.

Newell's proposal would have been geared much more heavily in favor of the elderly in need. It would also have abolished the average $25 exemption every homeowner gets, if he or she bothers to file for it.

Restricting the tax credit to those truly in need would have saved the state $3 million annually, Newell said.

The result is that some districts have been heavily penalized while some others have profited.

Lamb thinks his bill would straighten out the difficulties, but he could not get enough Education Committee support to report the measure to the floor.

The full Legislature also refused to pull the bill out of committee.

Some of the senators who worked hard a year ago to raise aid by $20 million annually for three years say they have little sympathy for foes of higher state aid who now find themselves receiving considerably fewer dollars from the state than they were given a year ago.

First I must explain that this correspondence began nearly ten years ago. After a speech I had given, I received a very nice letter. The writer had "tuned in" to the words I'd used and decided to tell me so. Thus began a friendship.

The entanglements my friend refers to are the physical side of relationships — be they man/man, or woman/woman. Too much closeness and togetherness has wrecked a lot of good friendships.

Let me, though, go back to my friend. Knowing we'd never meet again, in all likelihood, we began exchanging thoughts and ideas through letters.

The friend explains, "It was the writing at first. The pure joy at finding someone who wrote words you'd been trying to pen, who understood the same fears, doubts and feelings you'd been having. Geranium Joe Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

Felix Gregorski told the fellers at the country store Saturday night that he has figured out why positive thinking meetings is so popular all over the country right now. At first he thought folks was just trying to look on the sunny side of eight foot of snow packed agin their front doors, but Felix said he has thought the situation up one side and down the other and he has decided that a real bad winter ain't near as depressing as an election year.

Having to elect a entire House of Representatives is enough to git the happiest of us in the dumps, was his words. He said the more he reads behind the rascals that are in and the rascals that want in the more they look and sound alike. The only time you can pin one of em down to a straight answer is when you ask him if he wants seconds at a fund-raising dinner. All of em are going to turn this country around until you want some particulars, Felix said, then you find out they ain't even got their hands on the wheel.

The fellers took to his report like politicians, they come down hard on both sides of the issue. John Paprocki was strong of a mind that it ain't the people in elected office that's the problem so much as it is the demands on them by the people that put them there. Folks want their Guverments to do everything for

A report from the unicameral by State Senator Dennis Rasmussen of the 41st Legislative District.

TO THE PEOPLE OF THE 41ST LEGISLATIVE DISTRICT:

The Nebraska Legislature moved a considerable quantity of legislation during the past week, both on select and general file.

LB 902, which would allow Omaha to levy a 1.5 percent sales tax, is now on select file. The bill has been amended to allow the tax for a limited amount of time, and I have concluded that the bill merits my support. The City of Omaha does have a financial problem, and the assessment of the tax locally is a better solution than the alternatives which have been offered.

Also considered during the past week was LB 701, which dealt with the Criminal Code we adopted last year. Senator Duis attempted to amend the bill with the contents of LB 555, which makes a mandatory 25 year sentence with no parole for first-degree sexual assault. The amendment failed because a majority of Senators felt that the strict penalty would result in most offenders being charged with second degree sexual assault. The people who work with rape victims preferred that the penalties be left as they presently are, so that offenders will be charged with first degree.

We also rejected an attempt by Senator DeCamp to modify the marijuana laws, his proposal would have changed the charge from a criminal to a civil offense. I voted to oppose his effort.

We also gave final approval to LB 109, which will allow a portion of the cigarette tax to be used to upgrade our state park system. I am certain that an effort will be made now to take the "park entry permit" laws off the book.

We will soon begin work on the budget, since the bills have been sent to the floor. The bills are in a form to provide no sales income tax increase, unless additional major spending bills are passed.

em, John said, but we don't want to git no bills for the services. It ain't no wonder that more first-term Congressmen than usual is saying onct is enough, John allowed.

Louie Greenwalt took the view that 99 percent of the Congressmen is like the mayor that was ask what he intended to do about the condition of the streets. The mayor laid down his policy on street work. If the town fixed your potholes and broke curb I'm responsible, he said, but if the town didn't I didn't have nothing to do with it. There's too many ways to wiggle out of being called to account in politics, was the way Louie put it. He said the Carter Administration has come up with a half-trillion-dollar budget with a 60 billion dollar built-in debt for this year. The amount we'll run in the red is as much as the entire budget 30 years ago, but everybody in elected office is in favor of cutting spending.

As far as paying the bills, Ted Walahoski said he had saw where in 1977 we paid 42 cents of ever dollar we earned for taxes to federal, state and local governments, up from 34 cents seven year ago, 27 cent in 1950 and just 12 cent in 1929. With the Social Security tax going up again, he said, we'll have a 50-50 split before long, and more living off Governments than keeping em up. He allowed it's enough to worry a feller sick.

So what you do, broke in Felix, you pay $10 a head for somebody like Art Linkletter to git you thinking positive. You're not near as worried that spring won't come as you are that November elections will. Folks fill the hall and git filled with the git-up-and-go spirit. If they can go home with the idea they can make things work, then git their money's worth, Felix said, and fer sure all them positive thinking speakers got theirs.

Yours truly,
Geranium Joe

Resources District Ponders Standing Committee Review

The Lower Loup Natural Resources District pondered a proposal to reappoint all standing committees during their meeting Tuesday, March 14 in Ord. It was decided to make a complete review of the NRD's existing committees and to survey the committee systems of other NRDs to perhaps develop a more complete and workable committee system. A committee consisting of the Executive Committee and the General Manager were instructed to report back to the board at their May meeting.

The two existing standing committees of the Lower Loup organization break down into one dealing with the habitat plan and another on the NRD's farm north of Ord.

L. J. Garrison, Director from Burwell, was reappointed as Lower Loup NRD representative to the Nebraska Association of Resources Districts. Floyd Mueller, Columbus, was appointed as alternate.

The Board heard a report from the General Manager of a recent meeting with the Village of Anselmo concerning their flood control project. It was reported that Anselmo had directed their attorney to begin negotiations for the land rights and necessary permits for the flood protection project. Approximately 35 people were in attendance at the Anselmo meeting to sample local interest.

Water quality investigations that had been carried out to date were reviewed by the Board. It was reported that generally the water quality sampling has shown that a very high percentage of the wells are still indicating high quality groundwater with the exception of two wells in Custer County, which had shown some tendency to be high in nitrates.

Reports were made on water quality monitoring in Wheeler, Greeley, and the southern half of Custer County.

The final program for the 1978 Central Nebraska Water Conference scheduled for the 23rd of March was reviewed. Dan Wagner, past president of the Nebraska Water Resources Association, reported his efforts with bank sponsorship of the noon luncheon. Wagner reported that the banks had been very receptive to the luncheon sponsoring because of the recognition given them for their efforts.

The Board reviewed briefly an information report on water usage in the Ogallala Aquifer.

Board approval was given to a resolution to be forwarded to Senator Rasmussen recognizing Mr. Tim Wake's selection as State Tree Farmer for 1977.

Discussion was held on whether or not the NRD would provide cost-share on trees where cost-share was requested in excess of ASCS's ability to provide funds. It was determined that some counties are indicating that ACP funds for tree planting might be short; however, the Board felt it was too early to determine whether this was a District wide problem or an isolated case. The Board felt that it was prudent to delay any determination until more complete information has been made available.

Howard Paulsen, Liaison D.C., reported on SCS's efforts to provide information on irrigated agriculture and erosion hazard problems for the 208 water quality planning problems. Paulsen also reported on SCS staff changes and allotment of funds for various SCS programs. All plans and agreements were approved and the Board adjourned until April 11, 1978.

WIFE Organization Tells Essay Contest Winners

Winners in the W.I.F.E. essay contest were announced Monday by members of the organization. WIFE (Women Involved In Farm Economics) sponsored the contest to note Agricultural Day, Monday, March 20.

The top three winners in the contest were: first, Steve Wadas, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Wadas; second, Susan Lech, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roman Lech of Ord; and third, Lisa Zikmund, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Zikmund.

Chris Johnson and Mark Pierce rated honorable mentions in the contest. WIFE officials admitted judging was extremely difficult because the essays were all well-written.

Around 20 fourth and fifth grade students in both the Ord Elementary and St. Mary's School entered the competition. Judges this year were Gary Nelson, Valley County NFO president; Glen Bredthauer, Farm Bureau president; and Teresa Beben and Carol Petersen, both WIFE members.

The student in this year's competition wrote on the theme "What Agriculture Means To Me." Here are their prize winning essays.

By Susan Lech

Agriculture means to me living on a farm and knowing that someday the food you produce such as cotton, oats, meats, and vegetables will someday be used by other people and other animals.

Also, knowing you have done something worthwhile to make the world a better place to live and the satisfaction of having produced your own food.

Third Place Winner
What Agriculture Means To Me
By Steve Wadas

Agriculture means working for others, raising gardens, crops and livestock. It may be living on a farm or ranch.

Agriculture means having food for the family.

There are lots of risks in agriculture. You can get snowed in or hauled out or flooded in.

No farmer or rancher is sure when he starts a new year if it will be a success or not.

Second Place Winner
What Agriculture Means To Me

By Lisa Zikmund

Agriculture means to me not having to say I'm hungry. Agriculture also means to me working hand in hand with mother nature, and a feeling of freedom. Agriculture also means to me a strong and prosperous nation. Agriculture means making all people all over the world, Agriculture is one of the most important things all of us can have.

Honorable Mention
What Agriculture Means To Me
By Chris Johnson

How I feel about agriculture farming is the raising of animals and food products. The farms has helped us in many ways. He's grown animals for meat, eggs and milk. Wheat, barley and rye are used in breads and cereals. Vegetables and fruits for good nutrition. A farmer has played a big part in our growth today.

Honorable Mention
What Agriculture Means To Me
Aid My Community
By Mark Pierce

When I think of agriculture I think of farmers out in the field at 10 p.m. and in 90 degrees weather, and farmers wives helping them. If you really think about it, if there were no farmers, there would probably be no people. A farmer is both happy and sad.

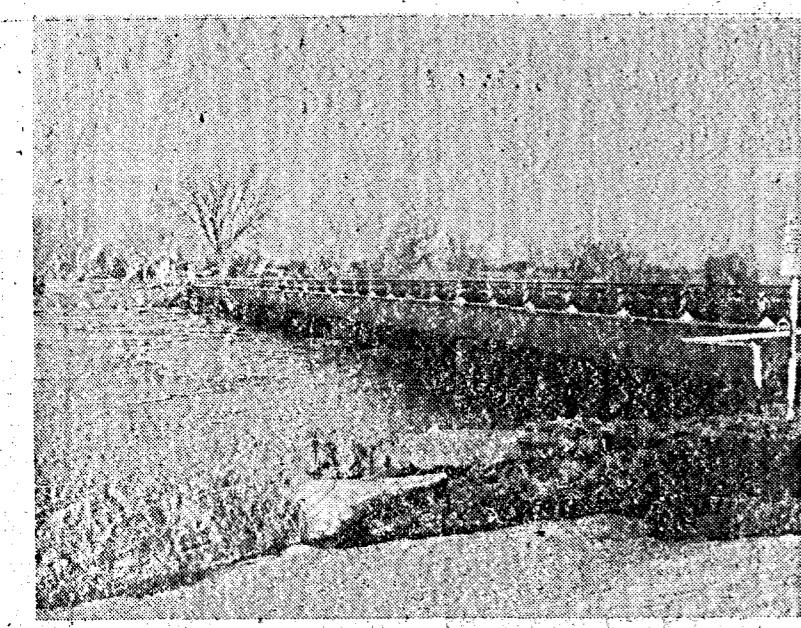

Spring Arrives With Blue Skies & Great Weather

Charges have been filed against three Ord youths in connection with vandalism. February 12 in Scotia, Todd Spady, Wey Ulrich, and Allen Wilson, have been charged with destruction of property.

The vandalism allegedly took place February 12 and involved broken windows at Murphy's Tavern and the Nebraska Public Power District office and damage to a fire department station wagon.

Officially, the time for the change was 5:34 p.m. Monday, a day with a high temperature of 52 degrees.

Tuesday, area residents were seen on tennis courts, taking leisurely strolls, and enjoying the wonderful weather that came with spring's arrival.

The North Loup River was bank-full and rising when this picture was taken Wednesday afternoon at the bridge just west of Scotia.

Area Rivers Flowing Bank Full

Melting snows and rain caused high water and low land flooding along the three Loup Rivers this week and last. These streams and many area creeks were running full.

The Middle Loup River is capped with ice, Noyes stated, but water continues to flow unobstructed underneath.

Spanish Club Carnival Boosts Fund for Trip to Old Mexico

Members of the Ord High Spanish Club held a carnival Thursday to raise funds for their planned trip to Mexico. The small gym at Ord High was a maze of cake walks, booths, and other activities.

The trip, in the planning stage for the last two years, is scheduled to take place this summer. Club members will leave from the airport in Kansas City and fly to Old Mexico. While seeing the sights, they will have a chance to practice their required language. The trip will last eight days.

Madame Rosalie (Ord High Spanish teacher Suzanne Keen) ran a fortune telling booth Thursday night. Amy Martensen got a chance to peek into the future. Other booths included the football throwing concession run by Pam Nelson.

The hapless Quiz reporter found himself thrown in jail and had to post 15 cents bail before being released.

Initial circulation projections call for a press run of slightly over 300 papers. Each teacher and elementary student will get a complimentary copy of the hard-copy paper.

When the last Chronicle rolls off the press, students will cap

a unit on journalism that began the first part of March. Using study materials supplied by the

Omaha World-Herald, students have tried their hand at writing editorials, studied news items, and other parts of the paper.

Many of the items in their journalism study have been incorporated into the usual classroom curriculum. Math involving word ads, geography

using the names of places in the news, and other items have all driven home the fact that journalism is an essential part of anyone's education.

Knights Of Columbus Hear Mark Ahman Define Success

Richard Liss (right) presents Ed Blaha with his honorary membership pin in ceremonies Sunday night at the Knights of Columbus banquet.

City, IA. Back then, in 1959, everything was live. There was no replay on video tape.

From Sioux City, he went to a television station in Lansing, MI and later joined KOLN-KGIN television in Lincoln August of 1972.

That station has had a new image recently. New anchors, desks, a station logo, and other changes, revive around the 10-11 Strong. Ahman returned to the station.

The sportscaster evidently likes Lincoln and the Nebraska midlands. "I've found a home here and I like it. I have great dreams of going anywhere else," he said.
