

Miss Denise Luedtke Is Crowned Festival Queen

The crowning of a queen, presentation of a citizenship award, and a parade were highlights of the 1978 Fall Festival in Arcadia Sunday and Monday.

Miss Denise Luedtke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Luedtke of Arcadia, was crowned Festival Queen Monday following a parade through the village.

The 17-year-old Arcadia High student is active in all sports and has hobbies including swimming, bike riding, sewing and drawing. President of the Arcadia High pep club, she is also a member of the school band and A Club. Her future plans include attending Kearney State College after graduation from high school next spring.

If for any reason Denise is unable to complete her one-year term of office as Fall Festival Queen, her first attendant Melea Sullivan will assume the title. The 17-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Sullivan lists school activities including band, chorus, cheerleading, volleyball, and speech. She plans to become a dentist.

Court Members

Other members of Her Majesty's court include:

— Betty Jo Hunt, 17-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Hunt. Her school activities include speech, volleyball, basketball, and membership in the Arcadia High student council.

— Caryl VanSlyke, 17-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon VanSlyke. Caryl is active in Pep Club, music, home economics, and all girls' athletics at Arcadia High.

— Cindy Waggoner, 18-year-old daughter of Evelyn Waggoner. Her hobbies include sewing, sewing and working with macrame. In school she is active in volleyball, basketball, track, and is a member of the A Club.

Fall Festival queen competition is open to all senior girls at Arcadia High. Selection is by popular vote of the community.

Theme of the parade this year was "I Remember When," and according to parade officials, there were 114 entries in this year's parade. Winners in the various categories listed in order are:

GRAND PRIZE — The Harmony Extension Club, "When The Swallows Come Back To Capistrano".

BUSINESS DIVISION — Earl's Feed and Supply, "Milking Time"; Middle Loup Irrigation, "Man's First Walk on the Moon"; Dale's Riverside, "It Wasn't Soft and Pretty".

Driver Is Uninjured

Four Escape with Cuts-Bruises in One Vehicle Accident Monday Night

Passengers in a one-vehicle accident one mile north of Elyria Monday escaped with minor injuries. According to the Valley County Sheriff's Office a 1978 Chevrolet Blazer was headed north on Highway 11 when it drove off onto the shoulder of the road.

Driver Sheila Cammareri of Wimble, TX pulled back onto the road and apparently lost control of the Blazer. The vehicle rolled over twice before landing upright in a ditch on the west side of the highway.

Sheila was uninjured. Four passengers in the Blazer escaped with minor cuts and bruises. These were Jack Roseberry of Ord, Janine Bowers of Grand Island, Charles Cammareri, and Henry Thompson of Grand Island.

Thompson was taken to the Valley County Hospital in Ord.

The vehicle was pretty well totaled" according to Sheriff Martin Sonnenfeld.

Parents Council Members Named

Michael Johnson, elementary principal and director of Ord's Title I program, has announced the members of the Parent Advisory Council (PAC) for the 1978-79 school year. They are: Mrs. Richard "Dick" Beran, phone 728-5074; Mrs. Litt Ballou, 728-5112; and Mr. Galen Dulitz, 728-5377. Mrs. Beran is chairman of the PAC. The Parent Advisory Council is also acting as a sounding board for parents who may have a concern about the Title I program, but feel that they can't approach school personnel.

The purpose of the Title I program is to provide supplemental instruction in reading and math to those students in grades one through nine who qualify.

No dollar damage estimate was available.

Supervisors Want Public to Decide Airport Question

During a special session Tuesday night, Valley County Supervisors voted to let the public decide the Ord airport issue. All supervisors present at the evening session voted to put the question of changing the Ord City airport to a County airport on the November 7 election ballot.

The mil levy to support the airport would be over and above and separate from the county's present mil levy limit. That is currently pegged at the 14.28 mil maximum.

Dirt moving on some county road projects was discussed. It was decided the county will do the Waldmann project and will wait on the Schwartzlander project. Both are located northwest of Ord, according to County Clerk Thelma Dulitz.

Prices on some pickup trucks were quoted, but no action was taken.

The meeting adjourned around 8:40 p.m.

ORGANIZATIONS DIVISION — Be Sharp Club, "Tuesday We Ironed and Ironed, and Ironed"; Arcadia Garden Club, "I Remember When We Started"; TVs 347, "When a Double Dip Was A Dime".

CHURCH DIVISION — Catholic Church of Arcadia, "When We Worshiped Here"; United Methodist Church, "When Families Stayed Home Together"; Calvary Baptist, "God When I View His Handiwork."

YOUTH DIVISION — Sunshine Sallies, "When a Postcard Cost One Cent"; Mira Valley 4-H, "When Home Was on the Range"; Calvary Baptist Youth Group, "When I Gave My Heart to Jesus".

Winner in the horse division was D. L. Frederick of Kearney with his six-horse team.

The largest saddle club in the Festival parade came from Loup City.

Named the best boy and girl were Peg and Dan Hurlbert. The four Hurlberts, mom, dad, and the two children, were dressed as Indians.

When the amateur thespians completed their roles Monday night, the Arcadia Fall Festival of '78 became history.

Citizenship Award — Prior to the coronation Monday, Wes Hurlbert was presented a Golden Citizenship Award by the Arcadia Community Boosters Club. Jill Ritz, club selection committee member, made the presentation.

A long-time Arcadia resident, Wes is known for being a good neighbor to all Arcadia residents.

He takes mail to shut-ins, and has served as a taxi for persons without transportation for important trips. The award citation concluded with the phrase, "He has helped everyone he knew try to stop it".

Remarks made by Ord Mayor Gaylord Boilesen during the city council session Tuesday night indicated he thought the city's insurance policy covered Ord Police in such a lawsuit.

Wes wasn't present for presentation ceremonies. He was performing yet another neighborly act.

The Bituminous Casualty Insurance Company, evidently thinks otherwise. The city got that policy through the Ord Insurance Agency.

Bruce Bergman, of the Ord Police, stated Ord Police have general insurance coverage, but the policy rider insuring them against a situation like they face

What City Does-Or Does Not Have in Insurance Package Occupies City Dads

Bid opening for work on the city-leased Masonic Building may have drawn the most spectators at Tuesday's City Council meeting in Ord, but City Dads focused their attention on what the city does — or does not — have in insurance coverage.

At stake is who will or will not pay for the defense of four Ord Police officers named in a $23,000 jaw suit filed against them and Valley County Sheriff Martin Sonnenfeld.

Mervin Timmons filed that suit in U.S. District Court in Lincoln recently. Timmons charges former Ord Policeman Terry Darnell broke his jaw and three teeth during an assault in Ord last September.

Timmons further charges Valley County Sheriff Martin Sonnenfeld, Ord Police Chief John Young, and an officer LeRoy Svoboda along with former Ord policeman Cal Thelander witnessed the assault and didn't try to stop it.

Remarks made by Ord Mayor Gaylord Boilesen during the city council session Tuesday night indicated he thought the city's insurance policy covered Ord Police in such a lawsuit.

City Attorney Greg Jensen speculated the lawsuit might have been avoided, except for instructions from a Bituminous employee, Alice Clark. Jensen related she told him to tell Timmons' lawyer nothing. Jensen followed her instructions.

Monday, he wistfully stated, "If we had furnished that information, we might not be sitting where we are today."

The discussion on what was and was not included in the city insurance package ended with Boilesen suggesting it was "time to sit down and figure out what we do have for insurance." He suggested councilman Charles Cox, Bergman, and other appropriate persons attend the session.

TWO TIME GRAND PRIZE WINNER — This float, by the Harmony Extension Club, won the grand prize in both Popcorn Days and Fall Festival parade competition.

Parade-Presentation End North Loup Popcorn Days

A parade and presentation of an Ak-Sar-Ben Good Neighbor award wrapped up 1978 Popcorn Days in North Loup Wednesday.

In the parade Wednesday afternoon, the Harmony Club won the Grand Prize with their float "When the Swallows Come Back To Capistrano". Using hundreds of napkins, club members depicted swallows returning to Capistrano, an old Spanish mission on the California coast.

Good Neighbor

During ceremonies Wednesday night, John W. Hamer received the Ak-Sar-Ben Good Neighbor Award. Ak-Sar-Ben Ambassador Jack Roman and State Senator Dennis Rasmussen presented the $1000 award.

— Chairman of the North Loup Popcorn Days Committee. This is a tremendous responsibility for any one person but John took charge and did an excellent job and his leadership was a big asset in making the 1978 Popcorn Days a success.

Helping Hand

— Even after taking charge of his job as chairman he was always willing to give a helping hand in sacking of hundreds of sacks of popcorn that were given away free during the three-day affair.

No Villa, a 20 unit housing development project for the elderly has had many finishing touches added by John.

He served as Building Inspector for this project; handled the installation of new sidewalks; assists the maintenance man as needed; freely gives of his time; is responsible for the installation of the air conditioner units.

Under the guidance and leadership of Mr. Hamer the year 1978 has resulted in a number of civic improvements for our town. The following areas are directly related to this fine gentleman:

Bids Opened

Bids on remodeling the first floor of the Masonic Building, one door north of City Hall, were opened. Those submitting bids, and the amounts were:

Wheeler Construction of Grand Island, $86,000.00.

Donald Naeve of Elyria, $77,814.24.

Trotter Lumber of Arcadia, $72,788.00.

Trotter submitted an alternate bid of $24,559, indicating his first bid would be this much less if a planned truck bay or garage were not included in the project.

The city signed a lease-purchase agreement with Ord Masons in 1976. Under that plan the city will rent and later buy an option to buy the building. Masons will retain their second and third floor meeting room while the city will use the first floor for municipal offices, storage of equipment, etc.

Ord Airport

Ord Airport Authority member Don Blaha urged councilmen to contact County Supervisors and urge them to take the Ord Airport under their jurisdiction. The city now owns and supports the airport.

He supplied councilmen with figures showing the airport generated $20,482.63 in revenue last year. Expenses were listed as $19,848.09.

Various other miscellaneous items were handled before the council recessed at 10:15 p.m. They are scheduled to meet again next Monday night.

In the 121 towns served at retail by K-N which are located east of McCook, the increase amounts to 14.5¢ per Mcf, which will add an approximate $1.80 per month to homeowner's average per month.

The new rates reflect increases in the cost of gas purchased by K-N for use in the Nebraska communities. These costs have risen as the result of price escalations provided for in long-term gas purchase contracts, higher prices paid for new gas and increases in the price of gas K-N pays to its interstate pipeline suppliers. The Federal Energy Regulatory Commission has jurisdiction over the prices K-N pays for the gas which it purchases.

Wheeler Donates Resusci-Anne

Wheeler's Farm Store in Ord presented Region 26 a Resusci-Anne mannequin Thursday. The doll will be used in CPR classes in the eight-county Region 26 area.

The store has a long involvement with CPR training. Last spring Wheeler's management paid all fees for employees taking CPR training. Promotional literature of Wheeler's has also boosted CPR instruction and classes.

Using mannequins, like Anne, persons learn how to sustain the breath of life in a person unable to breathe and whose heart has stopped. Classes in Ord and other towns throughout the nation have begun — and will be offered.

Instruction

According to Rosalie Leggett, CPR instructor with Region 26, further CPR instruction for the local area will be scheduled in the near future. For further information, contact the Region 26 office in Ord.

Rosalie Leggett receives the Resusci-Anne from Ord Wheeler's Store manager Richard Liss.

CAROL'S CORNER by carol leggett

A DAY FOR GRANDPARENTS . . . It's exciting to learn that a day has been named — for grandparents. They are very special people and do, indeed, rate a day of their own. That day has been designated as September 10.

Of grandparents it is said: "Any grandparent can tell you what's new in people . . . and they often have pictures to go with their wonderful story."

There is one grandfather who claims that grandbabies are better than babies. Because, he says, you can tote them around the church, collecting compliments, whereas it would be unseemly if you were merely the father.

The country's first Grandparents' Day was the result of the persistence of a grandmother in West Virginia, Marian McQuade of Oak Hill, who has 15 children and 14 grandchildren decided in the early '70s that grandparents were being overlooked and should be honored each year with a day of their own.

So, she first persuaded the governor of her state to proclaim a statewide Grandparents' Day in West Virginia. She then began a great letter-writing campaign to other state governors and politicians. Her efforts weren't all in vain; for in 1974, 22 states proclaimed a Grandparents' Day. I am not sure which states these were.

Her campaign did not go smoothly and there were setbacks, but she was determined. She shared her idea with President Ford in 1976 and he promised his support. She kept writing and calling congressmen, senators, businessmen, editors and even organizations for the elderly.

Finally, Mrs. McQuade's dream of a national Grandparents' Day came true this year.

Remember your special ones this Sunday, September 10.

3. Keep shields in place.

4. Shut off power before unclogging or servicing.

5. Watch where you are going.

6. Stay away from ditches and steep hills.

7. Wear safety shoes with slip resistant soles, a bump cap and safety glasses with well fitting clothing.

8. Stay clear of moving parts on elevators and augers.

9. Watch out for over-head power lines with tall equipment.

10. Drive carefully obeying all rules of the road.

The Ord FFA Chapter wishes all of you a safe harvest season.

McKinney Attends a TORI Community

Trust — Not Fear Best for Motivation

Trust, love, and understanding were key words at a recent TORI meeting or community in Toronto, Canada. Area mental health counselor Iva Jo McKinney joined about 200 other TORI advocates of all ages there for a five-day session preceding the 16th annual

This idea or philosophy of trust and understanding was developed by Jack Gibbs. The main idea being that people grow and operate better when motivated by trust, not fear.

Gibbs has sold this idea to a list of companies and agencies that reads like a who's who in business and government. Past clients have included General Motors, AT and T, DuPont, Western Electric, the TVA, the Bureau of Internal Revenue, and others.

OPENING SOUGHT — Cohen Hoppes (12) looks for an open man in action in the third quarter of the Ord-Cozaad game.

Sparks Fly As Ord Haymakers Clash

By Deb Osenkowski
Sparks flew as the Ord Chanticleers clashed with Cozaad last Friday night.

The real sparks came during the fourth quarter from a faulty electrical wire. In addition to the fireworks the electrical fire knocked out a bank of lights and the field clock and the final period of action was played in semi-darkness.

A 52 yard touchdown run by Kevin Valla, in the first quarter, gave Ord hopefulness a vision of an upset in the making as the Chants scored first.

Ord's defense played extremely tough the whole game, forcing Cozaad to punt on their first possession. Senior Kurt Krenke gave his Chant team ideal field position as he blocked the Haymakers first punt.

Fumbles plagued the Chants as they gave up the ball at untimely situations. Luckily the Haymakers didn't capitalize on the turnovers this quarter.

Ord finally got shifted into high gear when they received the ball on a touchback. Keith Peltor and Kevin Valla carried the ball several times as Ord stacked up a first and ten. Here is where Valla broke for the only Ord score.

On a fourth and two yard situation, QB Cohen Hoppes pitched to halfback Valla then he rambled around left end to pay dirt. The touchdown capped an 80 yard Chant drive and left seven seconds on the field clock.

The first quarter came to a close with Ord atop powerhouse Cozaad 6-0.

The number of turnovers continued to rise as Ord made offensive mistakes. OHS defenseman Jeff Weinik, Mark Novosad and Jeff Wolf keyed on the Haymakers running backs and quarterback as they contained Cozaad on several fourth down occasions.

Still unable to control the ball, Ord's offense gave up the pig skin to Cozaad in good field position. With seconds left on the clock, Chant defenseman Jim Weinik intercepted a Cozaad pass and returned it to the Haymakers 30 hard line. Time ran out before Ord could stop the clock.

When play resumed neither

Cozaad nor Ord apposed any real scoring threat until late in the game. With seconds left on the clock, Chant defensemen Jim Weinik intercepted a Cozaad pass and returned it to the Haymakers 30 hard line. Time ran out before Ord could stop the clock.

"I'm proud of the kids. If they could have hung on to the ball more the first half we would have done better," Coach Blessem said of the four fumbles in the first two quarters. "All in all the team played good. If we just had one more point," he added.

In closing Coach commented on offensive standout Senior Kevin Valla, "The only play for more than five yards was his 52 yard run. Kevin runs very deceptively and does a nice job."

"Someone has said 'A tie game is like kissing your sister.' Sometimes those sisters aren't so bad," Coach Blessem remarked of the 6-6 tie game.

In the next quarter of play penalties and turnovers stopped Ord's drives.

With 2:30 left in the third quarter the Chant defense forced Cozaad to punt. Unable to attack on the ground QB Hoppes went to the air. The drive was stopped

Varsity Spikers Open Season by Taking St. Paul in Two Matches

Ord varsity volleyball players made quick work of St. Paul Thursday, August 31, by downing them in two matches. The Ord gals triumphed with scores of 15-10.

Ord varsity coach Jan Weber credited St. Paul as being "a fine team with a good spiking attack."

She continued by commenting, "I feel Ord did some very fine things, especially in the first game. We served-received well and got the ball up to the setter who, in turn, set the ball up for the spiker attack. At times this bump-set-spike sequence was well executed by Ord."

"In the second game we made some mental errors and communication errors. These errors can be worked out with more experience working together."

Ord's serving was very impressive as Ord accurately served 44 of 42 attempts which is over 95 percent accuracy.

"We definitely have a lot to work on before we become a smooth team. However, for our first game of the season I felt we had a good effort. We must eliminate mental errors in the future if we are to continue to win."

"Our competition gets progressively tougher as our season advances."

Weber cited the following players in the St. Paul game:

Serving: Rhonda Brass 12-12,

Vickie Mason 11-11, Anne Smith 8-9.

Attack: Barb Kittle and Vickie Mason had several strong spiking plays.

Serves: Pam Meese, Dependable Play;

Correct Classification of Fires and Fire Extinguishers Is Reviewed

A seemingly harmless spark could result in the destruction of a home, severe personal injury or death if proper fire extinguishing equipment were not available.

According to Rollin Schnieder, Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources Extension safety specialist in the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, "fires are divided into four general classes, and it is important that people know the proper extinguisher to buy for the class of fire they might have to fight."

Various extinguishers are designed for specific types of fires, "and improper use could lead to personal injury or failure to extinguish the fire," he emphasized.

types of furniture," Schnieder said. Foam, pump tank and dry chemical extinguishers are available as dousing agents, but water also may be needed to aid dry chemical extinguishers. Halogenated extinguishers also are effective on Class A fires. Homemade devices like garden hoses, pails, brooms and wet sacks can also be useful.

Dry chemical, carbon dioxide, halogenated and foam extinguishers may be used for Class B fires which include flammable liquids such as gasoline, kerosene, paints, paint thinners and some solvents and specific agricultural chemicals, he said.

Water must not be used on Class C fires — electrical equipment fires or any fire involving danger of electrical shock, Schnieder said. Dry chemical, carbon dioxide extinguishers and some halogenated extinguishers are effective, but baking soda and dirt also may be useful.

Fires which involve combustible metals — magnesium — should be doused only with dry chemical extinguishers, Schnieder emphasized.

"All extinguishers must be inspected and recharged periodically." Water and air charged, loaded stream extinguishers also should be refilled and inspected after use, and winterized by adding approved antifreeze to the water and chemicals.

Further information regarding fire extinguishers may be obtained from NebGuide G78-399 available from any area county Extension agent.

irrigation project which would have reduced flows in the South Platte by 25 percent at the Colorado-Nebraska border focuses squarely on critical habitat for the endangered whooping crane on the Big Bend of the Platte from Overton to Chapman."

The Narrows' decision, according to Wiegers, set "an important precedent" for Nebraska, in interpreting the Endangered Species Act to require consideration of cumulative effects of multiple projects on an endangered species' habitat.

"What this means," Wiegers said, "is that we no longer will ask 'What effect will the Wheatland project have on the Platte in Nebraska?' but 'What effect will Wheatland have in concert with Corn Creek, Badger Beaver, Foothills, Trans-County Users, Prairie Bend, Little Blue and all the other existing and foreseeable projects in the Basin?'

The Wildlife Federation recently called upon Governor James Exon to ask the Missouri River Basin Commission to look at the cumulative effect on the Platte of the multiple proposals in the Basin, rather than the present "piecemeal approach" to planning.

According to Wiegers, Interior Solicitor Leo Krantz held in the Narrows Decision Document that Section 7 of the Endangered Species Act requires "consideration of not only the impacts of the particular project subject to consultation, but also the cumulative effects of other activities or programs which may have similar impacts on a listed species or its habitat."

Krantz continued, "The focus of Section 7 consultation should not be limited to individual impacts of the activity under review. Rather, consultation should also look at the cumulative impacts of all similar projects in the area."

"That's good news for all Nebraska's two-leggeds," Wiegers said, "for people, as well as whooping cranes."

Kinkaid Claim Possibilities In Sheridan County Outlined

Prior to the passage of the Kinkaid Act in 1904, much of the Nebraska Sandhills had not been settled. A 160-acre homestead had proved insufficient to support a family in this region. Consequently Nebraska congressman Moses F. Kinkaid of O'Neill, elected in 1902, secured passage of a bill permitting 640-acre homesteads in thirty-seven counties of northwest Nebraska.

Despite the increased acreage available to homesteaders, farming in this high dry area was still difficult. A number of prospective farmers who claimed homesteads under the act eventually sold their land to area cattle ranchers. However, some "Kinkaiders" hung on and managed to achieve modest prosperity. C. F. Cooper of near Ellsworth reported on his homesteading experiences in the February 12, 1907, Alliance Seminary Times, now on file at the Nebraska State Historical Society.

Cooper began with a description of his own background and the location of his homestead: "Living on a 640-acre homestead for the last three years, I think it will be of interest to a good many newcomers to state here my experience. This article is intended to help our sandhill country. I am located between Lakeside and Ellsworth in town (ship) 24, range 43, two and one-half miles southwest of the latter place in a dry valley. The topography of this valley is like hundreds of similar valleys — almost alike, sloping from northeast to southwest. The sheet water of these valleys is generally found at a depth varying from ten to thirty feet. The soil is composed of a dark sandy loam, resting upon a subsoil of sand. Though rich, the water percolates (through the soil) freely."

"Before I proceed any farther I have to make a few personal remarks: The name 'tenderfoot' can hardly be prefixed to the writer of this article because he entered the sandhills in 1876, coming from Texas over one of the old cattle trails — a mere striping o boy. I make these remarks concerning my own personality to put damper on all bucolic wit of certain old timers (?) who try to make newcomers believe that to make a living on a 640-acre homestead would be the height of folly. An eastern farmer who would try to break up the dry valley land and trying to farm it would find this venture disastrous. But if he tries diversified farming, dairying and poultry raising, he can find a better location, no cheaper home than our hills. I have no land for sale — in fact I have been an invalid for years, my children carrying out my details of farming. But how to start this was the question that confronted me three years ago. So far, in spite of my old enemy, rheumatism, I have solved the question."

If this article should come under the eye of any doubting Thomases, I wish they would make me a visit about the end of June, whether a native of Missouri or any other state and I will show them.

Cooper then described the farming practices he had found most successful in the Sandhills: "If a man settles down here on a Kinkaid claim on a dry flat, let him sink a good well and erect a power windmill. Next build a reservoir which can be cheaply constructed with team and scraper . . . About 20 acres is all a man should break. More can be broken, but by doing so, part of your breaking should be put in alfalfa. To keep up your soil fertility you must observe three points: Rotation of crops each year, for by so doing you largely avoid scab, leaf blight and insect pest . . . The second point is barnyard manure. The third point, if barnyard manure is not to be had, is plowing under a crop of green rye. If you have 20 acres under cultivation, put ten in potatoes, change seed every second year and land each year. Put five acres in grain for your stock. Rye, and spell five acres. You put in garden truck of all kinds. Whatever you try, be it alfalfa, tame grass, grain or trees, if you fall one year — try, try again . . .

"In conclusion, I will close with a few 'ifs'. If you are from the east, locating on a Kinkaid claim, trying to make a living on a small bunch of range cattle and nothing else, you will be sorely disappointed. If you want to put a piece in alfalfa in a dry valley in a slipshod manner, getting the cheapest kind of seed, raised south of your latitude, full of weed seed, hauling your rotten manure from your barnyard in a blowout instead of on your alfalfa field, you ought to be put in jail. If you break more land than you can handle by proper rotation (and) green manuring, your homestead ought to be cancelled, because you will be a menace to your community. If you think the writer of this article does not know what he is talking about, come and see me about the middle of June, two and one-half miles south of Ellsworth. You will be made welcome. The information I will give you as to how to get out of the rut on a Kinkaid claim free gratis will be worth a hundred dollars to you."

"For three generations my ancestors have followed horticultural and market gardening in France, Germany and in the west. For two years I studied horticulture and forestry in Bonn and Dusseldorf. Root and branch of my family have been tillers of the soil. If you want to be successful . . . you must keep up with the 'Times'. Remember, the firm of Hayseed, Cortassel & Granger is dead, and instead of the old caricature farmer with cotton hoe and side whiskers in the comic paper, we see a far different home on the agricultural stage — a reader of newspapers, magazines, a student of soil chemistry — a businessman to the backbone."

Cooper's faith in the principles ahead of many farmers of his day. The frequent inhospitality of land and climate in the Sandhills encouraged the early adoption of crops and farming practices more suited to the region than those of eastern Nebraska.

Lower Loup Budget Totals $245,000

A public hearing on the Fiscal Year 1979 Budget and regular board meeting was held at the Legion Club Meeting Room on Saturday, August 26. The proposed budget calls for a property tax rate of 1.11 mill per $100 of assessed value. This compares with last year's budget of $265,836.04.

The Board adopted the budget as published and set the levy at .89 mill.

Wilbur Lasenbros, president of the Nebraska Statewide Arboretum, and Joe Young, Curator for the Statewide Arboretum met with the board and presented certificates of appreciation to the board for the development of the plantings at the Agard Farm.

Three individual citations were passed along to the District for presentation to Jim Anna, and Valborg Aggaard in recognition for their gift of the land to the District.

The Board reviewed a contract proposal with the Nebraska Natural Resources Commission to act as contractor on an irrigation check valve study. The study will concerning this type of development that has been in operation in other states and report back.

The Board accepted and adopted an agreement with the Nebraska State Energy Office on a joint program to fund and operate a pilot program for testing of irrigation wells and pumping plants for efficiency.

The Board also authorized the Chairman to appoint a committee to oversee the purchase of major equipment items for the efficiency testing program.

The Board considered road structures in Buffalo, Valley, and Sherman Counties. A proposal for the construction of an erosion control structure in Buffalo County was refused. The Larson-Schwartzlander structure in Valley County was approved, along with the expenditure for corrugated metal pipe. The Stopanski structure in Sherman County was authorized for purchase of pipe.

The Board approved a motion by the Habitat Committee that applications under the Private Lands Habitat Program be approved for David Korus, Karl A. Koziol, Jim Novacek, James Adams, Jim Kirkpatrick, Ernest Poland, Glenn Ernst, Cyrus Greek, Charles Lesak, Walter Nunn, Earle Baillie, Tom Kaminski, Richard Ritz, Jon Chippis, Thomas Gregg, Alvin Holmes, James J. Holmes, Elwin Johnson, and Dale Zadina.

Applications for Valeria Kotlarz and Stephan Stopak were disapproved because of applicant cancellation and land being within the Central Plateau NRD boundaries.

The meeting was opened for new business, that business being considered was the funding and administration of the Nebraska Water Conservation Program.

Howard Paulsen, Liaison D.C., SCS, reported on public participation on the Resources Conservation Act questionnaires.

All plans and agreements were accepted and the Board adjourned until September 22, 1978.

During their meeting Thursday in Ord, Council of Government board members turned thumbs down on a $275,000 funding application from the Center for Rural Affairs.

Briefly, a selected group of persons from 6 midwestern states would attend sessions training them to deal with water and sewage problems on the local level. After attending the sessions, backed by the Center for Rural Affairs, the selected participants would bring their new-found knowledge home.

In this area, the program would be run through Central Nebraska Community Action offices in Loup City.

During their session Thursday night, Council of Government board members recommended the program not be funded. Rick Noyes, COG director, pointed out this knowledge is readily available from existing government bodies.

When the Quiz contacted Central Nebraska about the grant earlier, we were told then that knowledge on water pollution problems, etc. was available, but that Central Nebraska offices were headed to co-ordinate help available from the many government agencies, programs, etc.

While we admire the Central Nebraska spokesman's candor, we think he overlooked one item: Region 26, Head of Region 26 offices, Rick Noyes has described his operation as "a clearing house for information."

That it is. Noyes and other Region 26 personnel have handled items including where to get trees for a city park, how to get funding for fire trucks, and many other things.

In other words, Noyes is presently capable of offering the so-called coordinating efforts that Central Nebraska would offer under the proposed grant.

As we see it, the proposed plan put before COG Thursday was little more than a duplication of existing services now readily available.

COG members should be thanked for turning down yet another plan that would produce little or nothing except the expenditure of more taxpayer dollars.

Score one for COG.

Central Tech's Troubles

Pity poor Central Technical Community College Area administrators. Things just haven't been going right. Recent events have given them one black eye after another.

First, Central Tech president Chester Gausman, 62, has been accused of misleading the CICCA board about a proposed Job Corps program in Grand Island, and about an administrative reorganization plan, and about an accreditation plan.

With the accusations, made in hundreds of petitions signed by residents of the 25-county CTCCA area, came calls for Gausman to resign the post he has held since 1966.

An investigative committee of five board members was formed to decide Gausman's fate.

Newspapers and those in electronic journalism have had a ready-made story; and a lively one at that. Coverage of Central's troubles has been extensive.

Apparent concern over this coverage gave Central Tech yet another black eye and Central public relations officer Deb Quirk a red face. A faithful employee, Deb thought coverage of Central's plight by the Hastings Tribune was less than fair. She claimed the paper's editorial stand influenced judgement in their news coverage.

Wanting to right this alleged wrong, she wrote the National News Council, a media watch-dog group with fairness and accuracy as their twin goals.

The Council supported the Hastings paper, praising what it called "its fairness and completeness" in covering troubles at Central Tech. The paper ran these kudos on its front page.

And if things weren't bad enough black eye number three started forming. There is now the possibility of a law suit between Central and members of the media. This potential donnybrook was hatched August 16 when Central's five man investigating committee met behind closed doors.

About 12 minutes after that session began, the doors opened and reporters and others were allowed in. They were then told attendance at committee meetings was by invitation only.

With the troubles, Central and its president, Gausman, are facing, we question whether this is the time for secrecy and closed-door investigative sessions. At stake is top administrator's job and with that the reputation of Central Tech.

In times like these, we suggest that all problems would be better handled if aired in open and public meetings, free from any suggestions of deals made in legendary smoke-filled rooms.

Central Tech is a school financed by public funds, supervised by a board voted into office in an election, and attended by youths throughout Nebraska and elsewhere. For these reasons, and others, we maintain that business of a tax supported institution should be held in an open meeting readily accessible by the public.

Is Gausman's job at stake? Yes, I suppose it is. But there is something more important being questioned here: the public's right to know.

Something DifferentDriving at 55

Did I tell you that in San Diego we were peacefully travelling down the center lane of five traffic lanes, doing our usual 55 miles per hour . . . when a semi-tough cop with a bullhorn ploughed up beside us and bellowed "Get over, you're going too slow!"

We were shocked but complied.

All the way to and from Nebraska and all over California we drive the suggested 55 miles per hour. And do you know, we've been passed hundreds and hundreds of times, by cars, by trucks, by vans, by R.V.'s, by half-ton trucks, by monstrous double-tanked dairy tank-trucks, even by patrol cars? And the 55 miles per hour signs are everywhere . . . on every highway, every side road.

Without a doubt cutting down the speed limit has saved many a life. Particularly in traffic, speeding is dangerous . . . And the 55 miles per hours is justified.

Yet all the way home from California we saw not one interested patrol car. Until we turned from Broken Bow, then one lone sneaky patrolman perched beside the road and scrutinized oncomers and ongoers.

We travelled all kinds of roads. Way out in Utah we decided to catch Highway No. 70 and pursue it to Ord . . . shades of the Able brothers!

But it wasn't to be. A showy, spectacular road through the beautiful Wasatch Mountains was a delight, but after a hundred miles or more, the scenery snuffed out and lost its lovely red rocks, its cliffs, its canyons and trees. We kept running into construction work, I expect we came to two dozen "one-lane" or by-pass situations. Highway 70 vanished; turned into four-lane; we came to new black-topping as we travelled our last miles to Ord.

And in Ord too we met new blacktoppings and gravel.

Yes, we saw a lot of highway 70. But not so much as we had expected. Our AAA map didn't even mark highway 70 in on a great central segment!

We saw thriving wheat fields. We passed dozens of cattle feeding lots (and smelled them). We saw good corn fields and poor corn fields.

Going across country is an education, as you stop at handsome-looking inns and get an ordinary meal; and conversely stop at small clean little places and get excellent food. Even unusual food: on the edge of Colorado I had the pleasure of ordering mountain oysters. Well, they were a bid disappointing, pounded out so thin. Now when I cook them . . . !

But it was in a region of heavy cattle feeding, and I did expect them to be wonderful.

Traffic was heavy, just hundreds of cars from all over the U.S., hurrying the children home for school . . . or the children hurrying themselves home from the beaches, the hiking.

We saw hundreds of little cars, often VW's, sometimes Datsuns or Toyotas. For some reason a good many Mercedes-Benz and Continentals. Not many Cadillacs. Comparatively few old and rebuilt cars: most people seemed to be able to afford a shiny new car.

And it did seem as though everyone in the entire U.S. had climbed into a car and was going SOMEWHERE.

So were we. To Ord.

Geranium Joe Says:DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

This Polish feller down by Sherman Lake brings his soapbox to the meeting at the country store Saturday night, but every time he would stand up Republican Orel Koelling or another sharpshooter would take a crack at him. He come ready to put in his bid as President Carter's image maker, but he never was give much of a chance to present his case.

For a start, he told the fellers it was time everybody changed tunes about the Carter Administration. He said all he has heard in the past two months is how popular Ted Kennedy is and Jimmy Carter ain't. He said he was full aware that summer is a dull time for news, but the papers is sounding like a broke record.

Actual, he said: the President has not been give a benefit of any doubt in the past year. The column writers have come to expect the worst out of Washington and they all seem downright disappointed if they don't get it. He said he has been follower politics from a safe distance most of this century, and never in his memory has the papers played bounds to the President's fox the way they are with Carter. Even the poor man trying to take a vacation with his family last month was made to look like the Keystone Cops on one of their bad days, said this Polish feller. He went on to say from one account he read, you'd think the President ought to have done a better job planning the weather during his raft trip.

As a matter of actual fact, broke in Orel, President Carter has said one thing and done another thing or nothing at all on just about ever issue he's dealt with in the White House. Orel said he would admit that one problem with the people and the President is, we want to believe he can do what we know he can't do. But he makes it worst by eggging us on. For instant, he said Carter promised to cut the size of the President's staff, but he wound up selling that pleasure boat and adding everywhere else. He has not been able to inspire Congress, or even to wake it up, said Orel, and if you don't move the Congress you don't move the country. As far as his stand on tobacco, he has come down four-square on both sides, he said, and when a man in his job stands up and says his Administration is going to make smoking "safer than it is now" he deserves what he gets. Whatever his party flavor, a President stands or falls on leadership, and right now Carter is trying to balance on one knee.

Practically speaking, our truck driver friend from on down the line allowed, politics may be the art of the impossible. He said he saw where state and local governments is growing faster than the federal, and he didn't see how we can blame Carter for that. The CETA thing is the kudzu of the section as it comes off the press. The papers are then inserted for a complete issue by hand. Eventually someone grabbed the wrong stack of sections and caused more grief and upset from subscribers than you could ever imagine. And I, personally, don't blame the upset subscribers!

We've tried to make good by sending the missing sections to anyone receiving an incomplete Quiz. But we have no knowledge of to whom, or where, these bad copies went. We're merely fulfilling all requests we get and hoping the left-over and extra papers from that week will hold out long enough to make up for our error.

And I'd like to express my appreciation to the patient and understanding subscribers who may have received a 'bad copy' of the Quiz of Aug. 24th. Writing a note to us takes time and postage, but we will try to supply you with the missing section of your paper.

If any good can come of an unfortunate incident, it's been the opportunity for me to write notes to names I'd nearly forgotten. It has also brought about some interesting conversations, at home, as you can imagine!

On the pleasant side of the misfortune, this weekend my wife made a delicious dessert everyone was enjoying and I asked her, "Where'd you get that recipe?"

The second section is piled on a large table, awaiting the first bureaucracy, he said, threatening to cover us up in $11 billion worth of make work. If that ain't bad enough, we git word the General Services Administration, which is supposed to keep the federal government in line, is taking payoffs to the tune of $500 million a year. So we've been sending the fox to guard the henhouse, and long before Carter's time.

Kids are like vertical chameleons. They can really drive you up the wall.

Seven Applying For Supreme Court Post

CAPITOL NEWS
By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association
LINCOLN — At this writing, seven men had applied for consideration for appointment as chief justice of the Nebraska Supreme Court.

Only one of the seven is a member of the court. He is Leslie Boslaugh, who was elected to the court in 1960, was reconfirmed by voters in 1966 and 1972 and whose name will be on the ballot again November 7.

After Boslaugh announced he would apply for the post being sought by Chief Justice Paul White, three other Supreme Court Judges, C. Thomas White, Hale McCown and Donald Brodkey, said they would not be candidates.

White issued a statement in which he described Boslaugh as "a distinguished and capable judge." He also said he was pleased his colleague filed for the position.

White refused to say why he decided against becoming a candidate. McCown said he would have applied only if someone on the court had not sought the appointment. At 64, he added, "I don't want to take on any additional responsibilities."

Brodkey, who is 68, said he had decided some time ago he did not want the appointment.

The other two members of the court are not eligible to advance to the top spot. Harry A. Spencer will retire later this year, and Lawrence Clinton was ruled out because he is the head of the Judicial Nominating Commission that will screen applicant and recommend at least two of them as possible successors to Paul White.

Boslaugh said he discussed his decision with his colleagues on the court but declined to speculate whether his candidacy stopped other judges from applying.

Boslaugh is the senior member of the court. He will turn 61 this month. He replaced his father, Paul Boslaugh, when the older Boslaugh retired.

The Nominating Commission will meet Sept. 13 in Lincoln to take testimony on those who have applied. At least two names will be sent to the governor, who will make the appointment.

Those besides Boslaugh who had applied are District Judges William Colwell of Pawnee City, John Burke of Omaha, and Mark Fuhrman of Fremont, attorneys Dixon G. Adams of Papillion, Marvin Weems of Ord, Norman Kiyosha of Lincoln and Assistant Attorney General Mel Kammerlohr.

There was a possibility other names would be added to the list by Sept. 13.

Parole Hearing Set

A man sentenced to life in 1953 for murdering State Patrolman Vern Rolfs of North Platte will have a parole hearing Sept. 14.

James Leroy Fish, now 52, was given life in the penitentiary for shooting Rolfs after the trooper had stopped Fish for speeding.

The state Parole Board, during a previous hearing recommended Fish's life sentence be commuted to a definite 45 to 65 years, which would make him eligible for parole this year.

The state Parole Board later commuted Fish's term, even though State Patrol officials opposed the commutation and possibility.

Only three other inmates have been at the Penitentiary longer than Fish and one of them has been transferred permanently to the Lincoln Regional Center.

Cited for Unsafe Water

The state Health Department has cited four public water systems for failing to demonstrate the biological safety of their water for a 90-day period.

The department said they also did not make the required public notification of the failure.

Cited for not submitting enough samples to the department laboratory were Eastern Heights and Sunrise in Madison County and Tingle's Mini Village Mobile Home Court in Antelope County. According to the department, the village of Decatur and Evergreen Court in Platte County did not submit the required number of check samples when more than four bacteria were present in a single sample.

It was the second consecutive violation of a similar nature for each of the systems, the department said. It noted violations of state and federal public water supply regulations are punishable by fines.

Under federal law, any consumer can also file a civil suit against the owner of any public water system who does not comply with the law.

Request Backs Committee

The state Justice Department, claiming a special legislative committee studying State Patrol operations had "absolute" immunity from being attacked in the courts, has requested a lawsuit against the committee and its counsel be dismissed.

Assistant Attorney General Mel Kammerlohr made the request at U.S. District Court in which former McCook Police Chief William Green filed the action.

Green sued the committee and its counsel, Tony Redman, alleging the committee violated his constitutional rights of due process during its inquiry into the 1973 death of an elderly McCook woman.

Green asked for an unspecified amount of damages and for an injunction that would preclude the committee from taking any further action in the McCook case.

The former police chief said he suffered loss of reputation after issuance of a report in which Green's handling of the woman's death was described as "totally inadequate."

In a brief filed in the federal court, Kammerlohr said the legislative unit acted within the bounds of legitimate legislative activity and is immune from liability under the Federal Civil Rights Act.

Investigatory committees, such as the special one set up by the Legislature, are an established part of representative government, Kammerlohr said.

Under the free speech guarantees in the constitution, Green, acting as a public official, may not recover damages for alleged libel — unless he can prove actual malice, the assistant attorney general said.

Special Meeting Planned

The Nebraska State Education Association's 500-member delegate assembly will hold a special meeting in Lincoln September 23 to plot strategy that will be used in attempts to defeat the constitutional amendment proposal for a government spending lid.

But the association won't forget that a referendum against LB33 will also be on the Nov. 7 ballot.

LB33, enacted in 1977, would increase state aid to schools by $20 million annually for three years.

Paul Belz, NSEA executive secretary, says the two issues cannot be divorced. He said he is convinced voters would approve the higher state aid and would reject the spending limit amendment if they understood the proposals.

Belz said after the special delegate assembly meeting, the teachers will return to their home town to explain the local impact of the proposals would have.

A $5 cash prize will be given by The Ord Quiz each week to the person who picks the most winners from the games listed in each ad on this page. Here's all you do: Pick the team you think will win each game (there's one in each ad) and write that team's name in the corresponding blank in the special entry form provided here or a sheet of paper. For example: The team you pick to win game number 1 (found in the ad in the upper left-hand space of this page) should be written in blank number 1 in the entry form.

Also indicate your predicted score of the tiebreaker game in the space provided. Then write your name and address in the space at the bottom of the entry blank and bring it to the Quiz office by Friday at 5:00 p.m. (You have 2 days to enter this contest.) Entries may be brought in or mailed in, but will not be accepted after the deadline.

Only one entry per person may be made each week. If more than one person in your family wishes to enter, you may write their guesses on a separate sheet of paper.

Should two or more persons guess the same number of winners, the one predicting the nearest to the actual score of the tiebreaker game will be judged the winner. Otherwise, the score of that game will not be considered. Decision of the judges will be final. The winner will be announced in the Ord Quiz each Thursday. Everyone is eligible except employees of the Ord Quiz and their immediate families.

Better get the family together and start picking... now! Extra entry blanks may be picked up at the Ord Quiz.

"There is one Lord, one faith, one baptism; there is one God and Father of all mankind, who is Lord of all." (Ephesians 4:5-6 TEV)

As the only youth in a very small church, I decided to seek the companionship of other young Christians in a nearby church on Sunday evenings. Some in my church frowned on the idea, for the other church was of another denomination. But I went to the other church one Sunday evening, and every Sunday evening thereafter for three years. I was, in a sense, a member of two churches.

I listed to and studied all that my friends said. Then I looked at my own faith to see our differences and similarities. I found that the Bible makes no stipulations about the denominations of those in God's kingdom — only that they believe in the Lord Jesus Christ and live for Him.

I learned from that experience that human beings created denominations — God created the church. So what if I was a Methodist on Sunday morning and a Baptist on Sunday night — as long as I lived as a Christian all week long!

PRAYER: Dear Lord, help us to realize the importance of belonging to your church and living for You every day. Give us the wisdom and insight to look beyond any denominational barriers to the wonderful oneness that is ours when we seek communion with others who follow You. In Your name we pray. Amen.

Comstock Will Get Generating Plant

Directors Make Decision Monday

The Nebraska Public Power District (NPPD) board of directors Monday approved a resolution confirming the Comstock area as the site for a 650,000-kilowatt coal-fired generating plant planned to begin commercial operation in 1986.

The plant would become the third coal-fired plant of its size in the NPPD's grid system. Two 650,000-kilowatt coal-fired units are now under construction near Sutherland.

The resolution, approved by the board, authorized the District's management to proceed in obtaining the necessary permits, licenses and other approvals for the project and to proceed with studies and activities necessary to meet the planned commercial operation date.

Studies conducted by NPPD and a consulting firm concluded that the District will require the additional generation by the mid-1980's to meet power supply deficiencies on its system.

Among activities to be undertaken by the District's management will be studies to determine a specific site in the Comstock and Sargent areas in eastern Custer County, selection of an architect-engineer for the facility, procurement of long lead time items such as a boiler and turbine, determining the type of cooling system and negotiations on a coal contract.

Consulting Firm

NPPD and a consulting firm have previously conducted siting studies that identified the Comstock area as the most suitable location for a generating plant on the basis of environmental, economic, technical and other considerations.

Two sites have thus far been identified by NPPD as possible locations for the generating facility. One is just west of Comstock and the other is southeast of Sargent.

Meetings Planned

NPPD is planning a series of public information meetings in the general area of the plant's location to explain preliminary plans and discuss the plant's possible impact on the area.

These public meetings will be preceded by a meeting with landowners who might potentially be affected by the construction.

Communities currently under consideration as sites for public information meetings include Comstock, Sargent, Broken Bow, Ord, Burwell and Loup City.

Preliminary estimates place the cost of the 650,000 kilowatt facility at approximately $620,118,000. The estimated cost figure includes an electrostatic precipitator and sulfur dioxide scrubber to meet current air-quality standards and such water quality facilities as cooling towers and treatment plant.

The estimated cost figure also includes an initial supply of coal at the site. It is currently expected that the unit will burn low sulfur coal from the Wyoming area.

Not included in the preliminary estimate are the costs associated with borrowing money to construct the plant.

NPPD Estimates

NPPD estimates that it will need approximately 1,800 acres of the site.

Acquisition of environmental data needed prior to the filing of actual applications to construct the plant are expected to get underway soon. The time required to gather the necessary environmental information range up to two years.

Estimates compiled by NPPD's planning department indicate that the District's system peak demand will continue to grow by approximately 6.4 percent per year and the year around energy sales by approximately 6.6 percent per year through 1987.

Ord Chamber Hears of Activities at Hartsuff

Fort Hartsuff's restoration activities and tourist statistics were the main items discussed at the Chamber luncheon Thursday in Ord. Guest speaker was Roye Lindsey, Fort Hartsuff superintendent.

He told Chamber members and guests Hartsuff is one of six historical state parks in Nebraska. Funds received for restoration there have an impact on the immediate Ord-Burwell area, according to him. Relatives, friends etc. of area residents often stop at the fort. Many area clubs and organizations have used the fort and renovated quarters there for a meeting place.

These items and other contacts have given area residents what Lindsey called "a very positive image" of the fort.

Four buildings there were restored over a ten-year period ending in the early 1970s. In 1976 phase two of restoration plans began: the interpretive program.

Mannequins, artifacts, and similar things have been used in displays created inside buildings at the fort. Most displays are open to the public, Lindsey told the crowd. That is, they aren't roped off allowing the public free access to the various rooms, etc.

Losses have been minimal, according to the park superintendent.

These restoration programs are made possible by funds from the State Game and Parks Commission, according to Roye, and from private donations. The latest of that latter group came from Mrs. Gaylord Wallace. She has given an 18 x 20 foot American flag and a flag pole.

School District Valuation Down; District Levy Up Over Six Mills

board meeting here, calling for taxpayers to tighten their belts on November's valuation.

According to statistics he posted, the school district's valuation plunged nearly $3 million while the 1978-79 mill levy rose 6.77 mills. The '78-'79 mill levy will be 67.94 according to

Dr. Gogan, up sharply from last year's levy of 61.17 mills.

A breakdown of the new levy shows $7.73 mills going for the general fund, 6.53 mills for the bond account, with the remaining

3.68 mills earmarked for the special fund.

The superintendent speculated

the recent removal of farm machinery from tax roles contributed to the sharp drop in the district's valuation. Last year

District Five (Ord Public Schools) was valued at $17,565,

$35. This year the valuation is pegged at $14,844,495, down $2, 721,040.

During the session Monday night, Ord High teachers, Jim

Sajevic and Ron Dughman asked the board their contingency plans should the lid bill be approved by voters next November.

That constitutional amendment limits state and local spending to a five percent annual maximum increase. A successful petition drive put the question of the five percent state and local spending lid on the November ballot.

Dughman noted a recent World

Herald poll showing two-thirds of those questioned favored the spending limitation.

CAROL'S CORNER

ANOTHER CONTEST . . . It is the time of year for beauty contests. We select fair queens, festival beauties, pork queens and band queens to name only a few. We have Miss America, Miss Universe and many others.

These are for the young. Those with a head full of dreams, stars in their eyes and the future at their fingertips.

How about a contest for girls in the "awkward age." For this is when encouragement is really needed.

Most certainly, each contestant would have to decide for themselves exactly what is the "awkward age." It is almost a guarantee one will feel it when it hits. It might come in the form of when memories about the old days aren't old enough to fit the pioneer stories but are ancient enough to be quite "old fashioned" or it can be when one hears their children describe someone not yet 40 as "older" or when your baby grows up to be taller than you.

The judges of this contest would probably be easy to find. True, their work may not be as exciting as if judging much younger females but certainly the wives of these judges would not be as envious of these contestants.

Beauty and talent would be the big features of this contest. Beauty, of course, on the looks that are left in spite of everything. Consideration should be given to how much time and how much money it takes to get to looking good. Almost any woman can look pretty darned good if she has several hours each day for primping and enough cash for a stylish hairdo and to buy a good girdle, but it does take some talent to look half way okay in last year's dress, a dab of blush and a touch of lipstick.

I suggest the swim suit contest be eliminated since often the greatest splash for contestants of this "awkward age" is made when getting into the water. I think too the evening dress part might be exchanged for a bathrobe parade.

I feel definite about the scoring. A point system should be used. For instance the contestant should receive five points for each five years she volunteered her time as a Brownie leader, a 4-H leader or a den mother. Now add ten points for each 25 times she chaperoned a slumber party, helped sponsor an after game dance, took cheerleaders to an away game or worried over some family problem. Now, each time she stayed home because of sick child should give a point or two and add another point for each five times she put off getting something new for herself because another's need was greater.

I wonder, though about the accuracy of all this scoring for there seems to be no way of counting how much has been added to genuine beauty by simply being needed by a family, or in the joy of sharing achievements, or in all the fun and memories that have accumulated through the years and the satisfaction of some hard jobs done to the best of one's ability.

Let's forget I even considered a contest such as this one.

When the Quiz dined at Ord High Friday, main dish entrees were chillburgers, a chef's salad, and pears were available in the fruits and vegetables category (pick one), while dessert possibilities included cookies. Rolls and milk were included in the menu.

This attendance figure is higher than usual, the school head related. The usual lunch room count this year runs around 330 daily.

Along with Ord junior-senior high students, St. Mary's School pupils dine at Ord High. The first of three half hour luncheons shifts starts at 11:10 a.m. Monday-Thursday. Junior high students go through first, followed by St. Mary's students, and then those in senior high.

Faced with a take-it or leave-it menu, many students went for the latter option. Lunch room attendance dwindled. Salads, vegetables and other items often went directly from the students' trays to the trash can.

Faced with a soaring waste problem and sagging lunch attendance, school authorities created the multiple choice menu. Said Dr. Gogan, "The only student we have now is that a student must take three of the items offered." All menus meet governmental nutrition guidelines.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill League of Walnut, IA and Mr. and Mrs. Darrell Olson of Winnebago were weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Rasmussen and Cindy as well as Dennis and daughter of Lincoln although the Dennis' mensus were overnight guests of the DeWayne Bussells.

Mrs. Dottie Vogeler moved into an apartment at Nolo Villa on Monday from the long term care of the Valley County Hospital. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Vogeler of Scotia helped her get settled.

Surprisingly, the new lunch menu isn't more expensive according to Dr. Gogan. The kitchen staff knows the demand for various dishes and pizzas and tacos were rated very popular by head cook Elva Finley. She estimated creamed hamburger would be at the other end of the gastronomical spectrum with creamed chicken falling some where in between.

Despite the low prices (55 cents for students and 75 cents for adults) the cafeteria is self-supporting and has been for the last six years. Dr. Gogan aims to keep it that way while offering students a menu with a greater variety.

Industrial Bond Expansion

SUPPORT: The amendment would improve Nebraska communities' ability to attract new business by improving the competitive position with neighboring states that already have such programs. Opportunities for industrial expansion are limited and passage of the amendment would open a new area for improvement of local economies.

OPPOSITION: Currently, communities and counties can issue bonds to finance facilities for lease to manufacturing and industrial firms. This amendment would expand that power to make eligible commercial and business enterprises, such as warehouses, corporate headquarters and distribution centers—but not retail establishments.

Alternate Energy Tax Exemption

"Constitutional amendment to allow tax exemptions or tax credits for installation of direct alternate energy systems."

PURPOSE: To encourage Nebraskans to make use of devices that generate energy from the sun, the wind or other alternate sources like water power or conversion of solid wastes. It would permit the Legislature to pass laws exempting homeowners and businesses who use them.

OPPOSITION: Arguments against the amendment include the case that alternate energy research is still at an infant stage and no agreement exists on what kinds of systems will work. A tax incentive could encourage "fly-by-night" salesmen with ineffective devices, they add, while more research is needed. Opponents also point out that whenever something is exempted from taxation, someone else picks up the tab.

Land Bank Stockholders Will Meet September 20

Demand for long-term farm credit during the past year has been brisk, according to Allen Grudzinski, president of the Federal Land Bank Association of Grand Island. A report on the lending activities of the Association and trends affecting financial situations of farmers will highlight the 1978 stockholders' meeting in Grand Island. They will gather at the Liederkrantz, Grudzinski reported, September 20.

Allen Keep of Coatesfield, chairman of the Grand Island Land Bank Association Board of Directors, will preside at the annual business meeting during which members will hear a report on Association operations and elect two members to the FLBA Directors Board. Three members will be elected to a nominating committee.

Following the business meeting and dinner, there will be a dance.

In addition to Chairman Keep other directors are Johnny Reiners of Juniata, Cecil Glause of Archer, Clayton Kaar of Bladen, Larry Fagan of Hampton, and Herb Ulmer of Sutton.

The Grand Island Federal Land Bank Association makes long-term real estate loans to farmers and ranchers in Greeley, Hall, Hamilton, Howard, Merrick, Sherman, Valley, Clay, Nuckolls, and Webster Counties.

Loup Lines

By Richard Beran

Lower Loup Natural Resources District

a questionnaire in conjunction with the Resources Conservation Act.

Participants in the RRA questionnaire were asked to respond if the subject was of major or minor concern. Two hundred eighty-four individuals in the NRD responded listing as major concerns: 1) 93% indicating irrigation, water and fiber production; 3) 88%, cost of irrigation water; 4) 83%, energy consumption for agricultural production; 5) 80%, efficiency of irrigation systems; 6) 80% efficiency of irrigation application; 7) 76%, availability of irrigation water; 8) 74%, sediment and related pollution of water supply; 9) 72%, viability of family farm and ranch in rural development; 10) 70%, loss of windbreaks; 11) 69%, depletion of groundwater due to irrigation; 12) 69%, loss of windbreaks as related to wind erosion; 13) 67%, effect of public facilities on land use; 14) 65%, surface storage of water; 15) 64%, depletion of groundwater supply in general.

It appears that the action taken by the Board of Directors in guiding District activities is in keeping with the major concerns of the people. The Lower Loup NRD is heavily involved with irrigation water management; it is concerned with the cost of pumping water for irrigation; has initiated a program for pumping plant efficiency; is monitoring the quality of drinking water supplies; and is responsible for the most comprehensive tree planting program in the State of Nebraska.

Lynn Kerkel Is Named Chairman

Lynn Kerkel of Ord has been selected as Chairperson of the 1978 Door-to-door Campaign for St. Jude Children's Research Hospital.

St. Jude Children's Research Hospital is the largest childhood cancer research institution in the world. Cancer is second only to accidents as a killer of children in this country.

William J. Kirven, SJCRH Director of Development, said,

"We deeply appreciate this help. Research at St. Jude Hospital benefits children all over the world. Without such wonderful people such as Mr. Kerkel, we would not be able to continue our life-saving work."

St. Jude Children's Research Hospital, founded by entertainer Danny Thomas, is non-sectarian, non-discriminatory, and provides treatment free to patients admitted after referral by a doctor.

Discoveries in leukemia and solid tumors of children have already brought international acclaim by the medical profession.

The Door-to-door Campaign is planned for mid-October.

The Same Dish

Last week Cecilia Osgood was in the Ord area extolling the virtues of a senior citizens hot meal program. Nutrition Director with the South Central Nebraska Area Agency on Aging, she told how the bureau she represented would make sure that all persons 60 years of age or older around Ord would have at least one hot meal a day providing one-third the nutrition requirements as established by the federal government.

Unfortunately while spreading the gospel of good eating, she didn't have time to drop by the Quiz. So we called her up. Speaking from her office in Kearney, she told how a similar center had been established at Comstock recently. Around 50 senior citizens are dining there daily, or so she said. As far as similar programs financed by the AAA, there is no charge for the meal, just a voluntary donation.

Nor are there any income guidelines connected with the program.

A cheerful young gal, Cecilia bubbled with enthusiasm and support for the program over the phone. "If you really want to see what it's about, go to Comstock," she urged.

Although we haven't made the trip, we get a general idea of just what this proposed program is all about. No doubt, Cecilia wants to establish one just like in Ord.

She admitted that there is a similar program now in operation here and administered by the county welfare office. For $2.25 a hot meal is brought into a senior citizens home once a day. To qualify a person must be 60 years of age or older.

For those having incomes below $460 a month for a single person or $520 a month per couple, a reduced payment schedule is applicable. Tax dollars make up the difference.

During the conversation Miss Osgood said the existing program was no doubt operating well, but that her plan would get senior citizens out of their homes. "And besides," she added, "we provide recreation along with the meals."

We realize that man doth not exist by bread alone, but in this case we wonder if he is getting two servings of the same dish. Most of the services cheerful Miss Osgood mentioned are already being provided.

Senior citizens are receiving meals — at reduced cost if necessary — and have a variety of recreational activities from which to select. Most area churches have some form of socializing for their older members. Existing fraternal lodges are another source of enjoyment.

While we think the proposed program outlined by Miss Osgood is worthwhile, we suspect it could be duplicating services that are presently available. — W.M.

Get the Show on the Road

At the school board meeting Monday in Ord High, O.H.S. teachers Ron Dugham and Jim Sajevic led what was billed on the agenda as a "Lid Proposal Discussion". To be more precise, the two men outlined what might happen if Nebraska voters approved the five percent spending limit next November.

More importantly than that, they asked the board what they planned to do to outline possible ramifications should the lid proposal pass. The two mentioned other school boards have started establishing lists of priorities on where to make cuts should the lid pass and have made plans on telling taxpayers just what the lid would do to their school systems should it pass.

We believe the two gentlemen made some very good points. With the November election fast approaching, both teachers and school staff had better get their side of the question made known, and fast. If they don't care to support their cause, why should anyone else?

But before that can begin, they had better get organized. Now.

Make no mistake about it, this paper has solidly backed the lid proposal in the past and will continue to do so. Yet there is nothing so sad as an issue with just one side because proponents of the opposing view were too timid or unorganized to get their act together and get the show on the road. — W.M.

Only One Of Four Gasohol Plant Sites To Be Funded?

CAPITOL NEWS

By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association
Lincoln — The chairman of the Legislature's Appropriations Committee, Sen. Jerome Warner of Gering, believes the lawmakers next year probably will provide funding for only one of four sites recommended by the state Gasohol Committee for grain alcohol plants.

Said Warner, "I would anticipate there will be additional state financial efforts to encourage production of gasohol (but) I feel quite certain that initially not more than one site will be approved for funding."

The committee recently reaffirmed its selection of the towns of St. Paul and Hartington and Holt and Phelps counties as sites for grain alcohol plants. But Warner said economic feasibility studies on the motor fuel extended — a combination of 90 percent unleaded gasoline and 10 percent grain alcohol — will be a factor when decisions are made in approving financing for the sites.

A recent study that cost $54,000 was made by a Kansas company for the Gasohol Committee. The study concluded the gasoline-grain alcohol blend would have to be subsidized indefinitely by the government.

It will be up to the 1979 Legislature to decide whether to appropriate $2 million in matching grants for the grain alcohol plants.

Warner said it will be difficult to convince some lawmakers to approve a substantial amount of funding because of the disagreements about the financial feasibility of the product involved.

The one-hour debate will begin at 9 p.m., according to Joe Fowler, senior producer of public affairs for the network.

Arrangements for the program were completed after Thone consented to debate Whelan without the candidates for lieutenant governor participating.

The Lieutenant Governor nominees, Republican Roland Liedtke and Democrat Orval Keyes, took part in three other debates which used formats arranged by Thone.

Whelan had objected to having the running mates included in the earlier meetings, which were not televised, and also opposed adding them to the Oct. 27 program.

Fowler said Liedtke and Keyes will have a separate debate at 8 p.m. on Sept. 27.

Two members of the Nebraska League of Women Voters will ask questions during the debates, which will be co-sponsored by the league.

Other ETV debates will include:

Senate, Democrat J. James Exon and Republican Carol Shasteen; 7 p.m. Oct. 23; 1st District House, Democrat Doug Parks of Ogallala, who was appointed by Gov. J. James Exon to fill out the unexpired term of Jack Mills of Big Springs. He resigned last month to become executive director of the Nebraska County Officials Assn.

During the swearing-in ceremony, Exon noted Mrs. Parks is the third woman he has appointed to the Unicameral. The others are Sen. JoAnn Maxey of Lincoln and Sen. Bernice Labeled of Omaha.

The governor said it is "interesting that women are playing a more key part in our governmental affairs."

The fourth female senator, Shirley Marsh of Lincoln, said the addition of Mrs. Parks marked the first time in the Nebraska Legislature's history that four women served in the lawmaking body.

Mrs. Parks' time in the Legislature won't last long. She will remain only until January when a successor to Mills will take her place. Mrs. Parks is still serving as executive director of the Nebraska County Officials Assn.

meeting on August 31st.

My presentation at that meeting was not to support the project, but simply to bring the members up to date on the happenings as I have done in this letter. In fact, the reason I was there, was to see if the members felt there was a need and if so, would this resource help meet it.

During that meeting, I was of the opinion that the members also felt that communities were having problems with their water and sewer systems. I recall stating that "it appears we all agree there is a need in this area, however, I don't know if this program will help solve the problems". I even suggested that maybe the Center for Rural Affairs should consider contracting with some other organization such as NRD.

After our discussion, I said "even though CNCS will not be participating in the project, I would sure hate to see the COG submit a comment of disapproval. Instead, maybe we should look at what happens in the other 4 areas and if they have any success, keep the door open for our area". One member said "that makes sense" and others when trying to explain something, gave an acknowledging nod of the head. We then went on to other business.

At no time during the meeting was there a motion, a second or a vote to "turn thumbs down" on the grant or "kill the funding request" as the articles in the Quiz report. In fact, there was no official action taken at all.

Therefore, when I read the Quiz, I felt compelled to write this letter and tell the part of the story that remained untold.

It seems that any time the name of CNCS is connected with a project, the news story reflects a negative attitude. In this case, CNCS was the one that said they were not going to participate, but

I still get the impression from the news that we are with the villains.

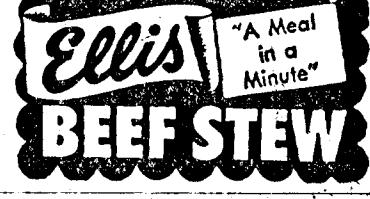

I really didn't intend that this letter be so lengthy. However

I found out that one sometimes must go into detail, otherwise we are forced to make inaccurate assumptions because facts are missing. Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,

John L. Michalek
Assistant Director
Central Nebraska
Community Services.

Read the easy Rules below:

A $5 cash prize will be given by The Ord Quiz each week to the person who picks the most winners from the games listed in each ad on this page. Here's all you do: Pick the team you think will win each game (there's one in each ad) and write that team's name in the corresponding blank in the special entry form provided here or on a sheet of paper. For example: The team you pick to win game number 1 (found in the ad in the upper left-hand space of this page) should be written in blank number 1 in the entry form.

Also indicate your predicted score of the tiebreaker game in the space provided. Then write your name and address in the space at the bottom of the entry blank and bring it to the Quiz office by Friday at 5:00 p.m. (You have 2 days to enter this contest.) Entries may be brought in or mailed in, but will not be accepted after the deadline.

Only one entry per person may be made each week. If more than one person in your family wishes to enter, you may write their guesses on a separate sheet of paper.

Should two or more persons guess the same number of winners, the one predicting the nearest to the actual score of the tiebreaker game will be judged the winner. Otherwise, the score of that game will not be considered. Decision of the judges will be final. The winner will be announced in the Ord Quiz each Thursday. Everyone is eligible except employees of the Ord Quiz and their immediate families.

Better get the family together and start picking... now! Extra entry blanks may be picked up at the Ord Quiz.

Win $100 — get all 24 games and the Tiebreaker correct.

$5 Awarded to Winner Each Week

Crop Water Use Information

The following crop water use data is supplied by the Lower Loup Natural Resources District and is published as a public service by the Ord Quiz.

For the week of September 4 through September 10, crop water use for alfalfa under full cover was 2.2 inches; crop water use for corn was 1.61 inches.

Next week's forecasted crop water use for the week of Sept. 11 through Sept. 17 is estimated to be: 1.45 inches for alfalfa under full cover, .95 inches for corn.

After corn has reached full dent, approximately one to two inches of moisture will be required for crop to attain maturity. Soil profiles should contain this amount of moisture to obtain maximum yield.

The last recording day for the Lower Loup NRD Irrigation Hotline (1-800-652-9329) for the 1978 season will be Friday, Sept. 15. Hotline service will be discontinued Monday, Sept. 18.

Railroad Repair Crews Midway On Tracks Between Ord - North Loup

Work on the Union Pacific spur track had reached the midway point between Ord and North Loup Thursday. According to Bill Thompson, staff engineer with the Union Pacific railroad, work done on the rails and roadbed will raise the maximum speed limit on track between Ord and

St. Paul from 10 miles an hour to 40 MPH.

Started July 31, work consists of realigning the track, replacing old ballast with new, and replacing old, worn crossties. An estimated 25 car loads of ballast per mile will create more stable road as will other improvements,

About 60 men are involved in the project, Thompson told the Quiz. They are progressing about one mile a day, he said.

The Sled
Shown here is the sled. The sled lifts track up allowing new crossties on the roadbed to be put in place.

Lawsuit to Decide Insurance Coverage

What is or is not covered under the city's general liability insurance coverage will soon be settled in District Court. Greg Jensen, City Attorney plans to file a case against the Bituminous Casualty Company of Omaha next week.

This action was started on instructions from city dads given September 11, according to Jensen. He stated he will ask for the case to be heard very soon, possibly within two or three months.

The case revolves around what is and what is not insured under the city's general liability policy. According to Ord Mayor Gaylord Boilesen, the city believed street, utility, and police departments were insured under that coverage.

After a lawsuit was filed against Ord policemen and the Valley County Sheriff, the Bituminous Casualty Company said Ord Police were not covered under circumstances in the law suit.

Marvin Timmons filed the suit in connection with an alleged fight in Ord last September. He is seeking $253,000.

To cover such circumstances, according to Mayor Boilesen, the city has paid a $300 annual premium to Bituminous insuring Ord Police. During a city council session earlier this month, City Dads and Elmer Bergman of the Ord Insurance Agency, from whom the policy was issued, met. Bergman then told them the issuing company, Bituminous, was denying coverage.

The question then was what is or is not covered under the city's insurance plans and who will pay for the defense of the law enforcement officers.

That first indeterminate is being settled by Councilman Charles

Ships Run On Computers — Collective Bargaining

Changes on the Maritime Scene Larry Wagner Says

Life on the seal pools — while safe on land — have lauded it. Movie producers have painted celluloid pictures of swash-buckling crews and stout hearted captains. The ship, foreign or a domestic, a windjammer or a modern vessel, is usually enroute to some exotic port of call.

As in most things, the chasm between the stereotyped picture and reality is a wide one. A talk with Larry Wagner confirms this fact. With four years experience on oil exploration ships he speaks from first-hand observations.

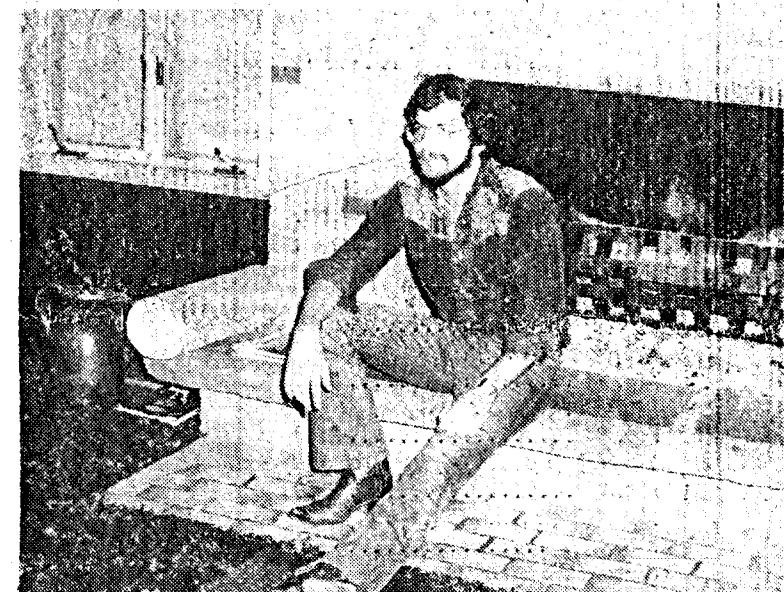

According to the well-traveled Ord native, the age of aquarius has come on board most modern vessels. The one he was last on, the Western Endeavor, is run by a mixture of collective bargaining and electronic wizardry.

Sextant Gone

The old sextant, used to plot a ship's position, has been replaced by a solid-state computer. "Although once in a while we stoop to using radar, just to prove the captain 'wrong,'" Wagner chuckled.

Gone, too, are navigators sightseeing the North Star. Formerly used as a constant point of reference to plot a ship's course, it is seldom consulted anymore. Satellites and ultrasonic tracking systems have taken its place.

Long since departed are sailors often stereotyped as existing at the whim of a gruff captain. On Wagner's last duty station, off the northwest coast of Australia, sailors were often skilled technicians. Many belong to the Seamen's Union of Australia.

5,000 pounds pressure per square inch.

Used with ship board seismographs, the underwater explosion will help find submarine oil deposits.

Modern Innovations

These modern innovations, and others, have brought about quite a few changes on the maritime scene. Yet sometimes still remain the same, like the role of a captain on board his own ship. He can and does make life and death decisions and can give orders to anyone on board.

But even here there have been some sharp breaks with past traditions. Members of the Seamen's Union of Australia can demand extra pay for such hardships as a malfunctioning television set, a malfunctioning technology and collective bargaining.

If You Don't

Those captains unwilling to meet union demands, in a case like this, can dump their catch in the sea or leave it dangling along side. They can not, however, unload it.

That job, apparently, is restricted to union members only.

Captains are still captains and ships still fly the sea, but there have been sweeping changes made recently. Modern ships, like the ones seen by Wagner, apparently operate on space age technology and collective bargaining.

Modern Innovations

In between sea assignments, he works on research projects at Western Geophysical Corporation of Houston, TX. On board, Larry is in charge of the ship's electronic system and navigation. His skills have earned him the title, "Assistant Coordinator."

end with just the larger, more sophisticated ships. Larry told of fishing boats bringing up nets bulging with an extra large catch. When the swollen nets swung along side, the union crews demanded extra pay.

The Pilots were served coffee and rolls for breakfast and sloppy joes for lunch by the Ord Flyers.

Calamus

The North Loup Irrigation project has a more favorable cost-benefit ratio today than it did more than six years ago, according to a Bureau of Reclamation project report.

Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus announced Thursday that the report, which re-evaluated the project, has been approved.

An Interior Department spokesman said the physical plan of development has not been changed.

According to the report, the benefit-cost ratio of the North Loup plan has gone from 1.3 to 1.6, when calculated in 1971 to 2.3 to 1.

The Interior Department document said "the physical plan of development has not been changed."

Republican Caravan to Visit Ord October 16

The Republican Candidates' Caravan will roll into Ord Monday, October 16. The caravan is scheduled to arrive around 4:15 p.m. A barbecue at the Ord Elks Club is scheduled for 7 p.m. on Tuesday.

Preliminary figures place the cost of the 650,000 kilowatt facility at around $620,118,000.

Two sites have been named by NPPD as possible locations for the generating facility. One is just west of Comstock. The other is southeast of Sargent. Power company estimates indicate it will require about 1,800 acres at the plant site.

Preliminary figures place the cost of the 650,000 kilowatt facility at around $620,118,000.

Monday, Dennis Krikac, editor and publisher of the Comstock News, said it was hard to say if any clear-cut majority of area residents are either for or against the plant. "It's like anything else," he commented. "Those against it are vocal. Those that are for it are quiet."

He and his father, Ed, speculated some persons are against change in general, including the generating plant.

Ann Kalhoff, working at Bud's Bar down the street in Comstock echoed his idea. During a full in the afternoon trade Monday, she wondered if some older residents might be against the project because, in her words, "it would upset our nice quiet town."

Businessmen, in her estimation, would likely be for it and the increased trade it would bring to the village of 235 persons.

Farmer reaction to the plant is mixed, she revealed. A key factor influencing their feelings could be the location of the Woods Park Reservoir.

COMSTOCK STREET SCENE — Comstock's main street does quietly under the noonday sun. This tranquil scene could change, and soon, once the planned NPPD facility is under construction.

not be as nice a thing or as pleasant a thing as some people think it will be."

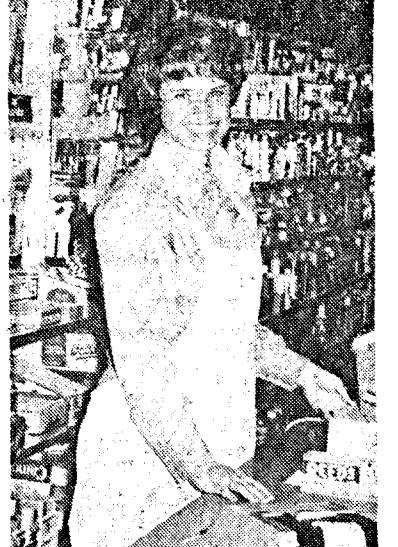

The long-time Comstock resident had just finished speaking when Elda Albright walked in. She echoed his views adding, "I think it is going to be a bigger disappointment than most people think."

Mixed Feelings

Clerk Ginny John was waiting on customers while the interview was in progress. She had mixed feelings about the plant, so she said. The pert redhead admitted feeling sorry for those losing their homes to other property to the project but added, "We've got to look to what it will do 10 years in the future."

and George Wells (right) suspect the long awaited power station may not be the golden bonanza many people expect.

Meeting with irrigation and water conservation leaders about a year ago, NPPD officials speculated about eight farm families would be forced to move if the reservoir were built on that site.

Persons concerned over the reservoir location and the plant itself reportedly met at the Bill Hart residence last week. Their future plans at this time aren't known.

"It's silly to be against it," Kalhoff said. "They can't fight it anyway." The town realizes the size of the project, she told the Quiz, but is sitting back and waiting.

High Wages

Two young men in the bar spoke wistfully of $10 an hour construction wages the project might bring. They evidently favored these and other prospects in Comstock's future.

So did Mrs. Avis Desbien, a patron at Bud's. "It's been a grave yard long enough," she firmly stated. "We need progress here." A friend, Mrs. Dulce Titus sat nearby.

Queried if she approved of the project, Dulce replied, "Does America need power plants?" People opposed to it are up in their 80s, or so she said.

"We've got to think of the younger generation," she maintained. "I can tell you what's wrong with the older people here: they are scared."

Neither lady claimed to know many farmers opposed to the pending plant. But they soon found out. One door west of Bud's at the Comstock Market grocery store they ran into Melvin Marsh.

Long-time project proponent Henry Lange said, "The report reaffirms what we have known for quite a while." According to Lange, ground water recharge can now be included in cost-benefit computations.

The present bank, with over $3 million in assets, is adding an estimated 10 feet to the west end of the building. The new addition will include a drive-up window.

May stated the recent decision by the Nebraska Public Power District to build a power plant did little to influence the decision to build the addition. Work was started several months prior to NPPD's announcement confirmed Comstock as the plant site, according to May.

The need for more working space was the main reason triggering the addition plans, he stated.

Brick facing, planned to match facing of the original building, will be put up in the near future.

The bank officer said he hopes to have the window and driveway in by the end of this month and hopes to be in operation by the first of next month.

Dear Mr. Editor:

RE: CITY DOG POUND

As past members and officers of the 1975-1976 Ord Science Club, we visited the site of the City Dog Pound to see how the Science Club project was functioning. To our great disappointment and surprise we could not even see the dog pound. The pound was invaded by 7-8 ft. tall marijuana plants and rag weeds.

The Science Club jumped in to do the community a service and save the city from an embarrassing law suit as a result of a small dog being killed by a larger dog in the old city dog pound.

Many, many hours of hard work and planning were put forth by high school students and their sponsors to erect the new dog pound, doing everything from making a blue print to placing the last shingle on a well constructed dog pound with no outside professional help. Everyone involved in the project spent many extra hours between studies and extra-curricular activities to complete the project.

We had hoped this project would show that the youth in our town were interested in their community and set an example to other students to get involved in community projects. Instead we find the project has slipped by the wayside only to deteriorate and be forgotten.

Why should the youth put forth the effort to perform a service to the community? Was this project simply a waste of our time and the taxpayers money? We encourage anyone who is interested in the youth in our community to drive out to the dog pound site and see how it is being neglected.

Sincerely,
Tony Kusek

IT'S EASY TO CRITICIZE... A want ad in a daily newspaper read: "Social Critic for hire at parties. Will criticize anything. Amaze your friends."

No doubt the "social critic" is a talented individual, but usually the critic is someone who earns his livelihood writing criticisms of work done by those with far more talent he possesses.

It's easy to criticize our country and its leaders, to sit on the sidelines and cry, complain and condemn. It's a lot harder to do our part to make our country a better place in which to live.

It's easy to criticize an organization, our company and everyone in authority. It's easy to pass the buck, to blame everything on someone else, and to let George do it. It is far more difficult to be a part of the answer rather than a part of the problem.

It's easy to criticize our policemen, teachers and club leaders. It's a simple matter to expect these people to be all things to all people. It's far more realistic, helpful and fair to give our cooperation, understanding and active support to those dedicated persons of our community.

It's easy to criticize our churches or preachers or those in public office. It's not trouble at all to analyze the sermon of their daily duties. It's far better to give our support and to change our criticism to cooperation.

It certainly is a lot easier to be critical; but it's much wiser to be constructive. It's a snap to be pessimistic and prejudiced; but it is a sign of maturity to be pleasant and patient.

Amaze the world — be joyful, loving, generous and kind!

Local Artists Attend Workshop Near Halsey

One hundred and sixty artists from Nebraska and surrounding states sharpened their painting skills at the eleventh annual Autumn Art Workshop held near Halsey at the National Forest 4-H Lodge. There were two sessions: Sept. 14-17 and Sept. 17-20.

The Autumn Art Workshop was organized in 1968 through the combined efforts of Tom Talbot and Mrs. Glenn Miller.

New to the workshop as instructors this year were William B. Schimmel and his son, Schimmel, both of Arizona.

"Bill" Schimmel, Sr., is a nationally known painter, teacher and lecturer. He is the author of "Watercolor, The Happy Medium", but does work in all media. He taught acrylic, Son, Schimmel, taught in oil. Born in Tucson in 1934, he began painting at the age of eight with the help of his father. He classifies himself as a representative landscape painter.

Herb Thomson of Estes Park, CO, was back for his second year, teaching watercolor. He has studied in that media with Bill Schimmel and John Pike.

Popular Chancery Nelson of Omaha headed up the teaching staff. He taught drawing. He has studied art at the University of Nebraska, Charnard Art Institute and while stationed in Naples, Italy.

Students painted in assigned classes, had a talent night, and heard a lecture by photographer Vincent Wright of Sidney.

On the workshop board are Curtis Routh of Chappel president; Naomi Clary of Lewellen; Evelyn Schuff of Grand Island; Russ Hamilton of Fremont; Martha Peters of Bedford; Lorraine Still of Broken Bow and Gwen Lindberg, registrar, of West Point.

Attending from the Artissimos were Zola Schudel, Virginia Ender, Evelyn Jackson, Julie Noyes and Betty Jo Axthelm who were enrolled in the oil and watercolor and drawing classes.

Baby Shower:

Karen Novotny, Verna Zulcoski, Pat Konkoleski and Erma Zadina accompanied Marie Novotny to Murdoch Sunday where she attended a baby shower for Kay Novotny of Miller. Her party was given by Lynn Kafka at the home of Patricia Miller at Murdoch.

CAROL'S CORNER

IT'S EASY TO CRITICIZE ... A want ad in a daily newspaper read: "Social Critic for hire at parties. Will criticize anything. Amaze your friends."

No doubt the "social critic" is a talented individual, but usually the critic is someone who earns his livelihood writing criticisms of work done by those with far more talent he possesses.

It's easy to criticize our country and its leaders, to sit on the sidelines and cry, complain and condemn. It's a lot harder to do our part to make our country a better place in which to live.

It's easy to criticize an organization, our company and everyone in authority. It's easy to pass the buck, to blame everything on someone else, and to let George do it. It is far more difficult to be a part of the answer rather than a part of the problem.

It's easy to criticize our policemen, teachers and club leaders. It's a simple matter to expect these people to be all things to all people. It's far more realistic, helpful and fair to give our cooperation, understanding and active support to those dedicated persons of our community.

It's easy to criticize our churches or preachers or those in public office. It's not trouble at all to analyze the sermon of their daily duties. It's far better to give our support and to change our criticism to cooperation.

It certainly is a lot easier to be critical; but it's much wiser to be constructive. It's a snap to be pessimistic and prejudiced; but it is a sign of maturity to be pleasant and patient.

Amaze the world — be joyful, loving, generous and kind!

Popular Chancery Nelson of Omaha rounded out the teaching staff. He taught drawing. He has studied art at the University of Nebraska, Charnard Art Institute and while stationed in Naples, Italy.

Students painted in assigned classes, had a talent night, and heard a lecture by photographer Vincent Wright of Sidney.

On the workshop board are Curtis Routh of Chappel president; Naomi Clary of Lewellen; Evelyn Schuff of Grand Island; Russ Hamilton of Fremont; Martha Peters of Bedford; Lorraine Still of Broken Bow and Gwen Lindberg, registrar, of West Point.

Blue Bell is our dog. Lutie Belle is Melissa's pup and Jezel Bel is the Edwin Clement's cat. The Bell, Belle and Bel of the names is coincidental.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Helbig of Denver and Don Clement of Kearney were here this Monday.

Our grandson Rex of Kearney and Melissa Pearson of San Gabriel, CA spent Wednesday and Thursday with us and with Ed, Dianne and Angie. Wednesday noon Rex had a call from "Young Americans" office in Los Angeles telling him the group was asked to have a musical performance in Chicago Sept. 31. Could he be in L.A. for a rehearsal Saturday morning? Our son came for Rex and Melissa Thursday evening. They spent Friday with Dianne and Phyllis in Kearney. Joining them in the evening were Victor of Kearney, Theresa, Clementine and David Heider, both of Broken Bow and Edwin, Dianne and Angie from here.

Rex and Melissa were to leave by plane from Kearney at about 9:30 p.m. Friday. They boarded and were ready for take off. The pilot noticed that something wasn't quite as it should be, so they were delayed an hour. The plane started up the runway and was about to take off when the pilot decided "No". They finally left Kearney at 3:30 a.m. Saturday. I'm glad the mal function was discovered while the plane was still on the ground. They arrived at Los Angeles just in time for the morning rehearsal, which lasted all day.

Comstock Plant

Things Different

In those earlier days things were different he recalled. According to Wells, Comstock once had a blacksmith shop, three beer joints, a harness shop, quite a few hog buyers, and lots of other things, long since gone. "And," he added, "we shipped out lots of stuff from here."

Asked what happened to Comstock, Wells sighed, "It deteriorated, just like most small towns." He didn't think the coming plant would bring any vitality to the village because workers will bring their own equipment.

Ted Erikson was lounging in the station, reading a World Herald account of the impending boom. "The trouble with that darned plant," he groaned, "is that it will be located on my property, about half a mile from my house."

In 1975 NPPD officials held a public meeting in Comstock announcing the village was an alternate site for the coal-fired plant. Most village residents then viewed that eventually happening as a remote possibility. Now most admit its coming to Comstock is an established fact.

City Lawsuit

The second question of who will pay for the city's defense remains a question. According to Greg Jensen, under a civil rights law, the city isn't obligated to defend the police. However, the city can be responsible for any judgments imposed on the law officers, he said.

Mayor Boileens told the Quiz that it would be in the city's interest to keep down or dismiss any judgments against the officers. "And," he added, "we've got to defend them if we want to hire any more policemen."

Should the city not care to defend the police, present officers and future recruits might prove reluctant to work for the City of Ord.

Jensen said Ord Insurance isn't being sued because it was acting as an agent for Bituminous. The policy issued by Bituminous covers the sheriff and other elected officials, according to Hal Pierce, formerly with the Ord Agency.

Preceding her in death were her parents and one sister, Mrs. Estelle Penney.

Chief Worry? Inflation

NEBRASKA FARM BUREAU FEDERATION
By M. M. Van Kirk, Director of Information

Inflation and the constant spiral of production costs which it produces continues to be the most discouraging factor for farm and ranch operators of all ages.

According to USDA figures, the nation's farm production expenses rose 225 per cent in the last decade . . . from $38.1 billion in 1967 to $85.7 billion in 1977. Cash receipts from farm marketing in the same period rose from $42.8 billion in 1967 to $95 billion in 1977. Since 1973, total net farm income has actually declined. Farmers are handling more dollars each year but retaining fewer of them.

Most of the expansion of recent years in the farm sector has been with borrowed capital, much of it secured by land values which have nearly tripled since 1967. Most of the purchases of farm land, according to virtually all surveys, have been made by older farmers who acquired their land years ago at lower prices and who are able to spread the cost of new land purchases over their entire acreage.

The increase in land values has enabled many farmers to finance losses in their livestock and crop operations because of the greater equity which their land ownership represents. Such expansions and refinancing, while necessary and helpful to those who have the land base to do it, are costly in terms of an added interest and property tax load.

In general, those farmers and ranchers who acquired their land, machinery, livestock herds and other capital items prior to 1973 have been in the most favorable position to ride out the stresses of the last four years.

One frequently hears the present financial woes of agriculture compared to the Depression years of the 1930's. Such comparisons can be misleading. The 1930's were a time of deflation rather than inflation, complicated by severe drought conditions and shortage of operating capital. Crop and livestock prices were very low for what was produced despite adverse weather conditions. The nation's general economy was at a low ebb; unemployment was rampant and domestic demand for all foods, including meat, was far below normal. The export market for farm products was almost non-existent.

Land prices declined and farm foreclosures and bank failures were every-day occurrences. In many cases, farmland wouldn't bring the price of the mortgage and title passed to the lenders, generally the insurance companies. Most farmers did not have enough equity left in their land to refinance.

On the plus side, production costs were also low. The better operators survived and delayed expansion until World War II and improved crop conditions brought a return of prosperity. The chief difference between conditions then and now is the difference between deflation and inflation. Perhaps one of the chief problems with government farm programs of the last 40 years is that they attempt to apply the poultices and bandages originated for deficiency ills to the sicknesses of inflation.

Recently a young farmer-rancher here in Nebraska who got his start at a more favorable time and has coped with the stresses of the last three years fairly effectively, shook his head and observed, "My expenses have gone up 15 to 20 percent each of the last three years." He cited purchase of a new combine last year which listed at $59,000, and big increases in his fuel costs among other things. Generally he has delayed some of his expansion plans, done most of his own construction and maintenance work, and conducted a conservatively balanced crop and livestock operation.

For him and others like him the greatest worry continues to be inflation and the entirely predictable effect it will have upon his production costs next year and the years thereafter.

gritty, where us locals representing the people can put a ring in the nose of this monster and lead it around. Not so! Every time we tug on the rope, the critter heads in a different direction and we end up with rope burns.

Well, anyway, on September 20, NRC will act on the interim plan for agricultural non-point pollution so that Nebraska will be eligible to get some of our money back via the Rural Clean Waters Program.

The major points covered in the plan are:

1. To identify significant agricultural non-point source problems and list, in order of priority, the most severe problems and areas.

2. To identify the best management practices to control the problems.

3. To designate management agencies to implement the agricultural portion of the State Water Quality Plan, and designate the approach to be used.

4. To prepare a schedule of implementation.

5. To establish budget and manpower needs.

The best management practices are not all that bad, except one must keep in mind that EPA has the final word on each state plan. The rules and regulations adopted to administer these programs are not of our own making. We will just have to wait and see what we come up with after all the staff is washed out. One should beware of federal agencies bearing gifts; there are usually long and tangled strings attached.

The interim plan and future developments should provide a lot of copy for this column. Now we get down to the nitty-

Pork Producers Fighting Unreasonable Regulations

Local pork producers have launched an all-out effort to focus attention on the growing problem of unreasonable and unrealistic regulations coming out of Washington.

Among activities planned is circulation of petitions seeking the support of all pork producers, and a meeting with Congresswoman Virginia Smith where the petitions will be presented and producers will voice their concerns.

"In addition, members of the Valley County Pork Producers group will seek additional support for their efforts from local markets and follow producers," adds Russ.

"For example, several months ago USDA committed manpower and research monies to try to unravel the sulfite situation. And it's time to stand up and be counted," says Russell Rogers, president of the Valley County producers. "Hardly a day passes without a bureaucrat issuing a proclamation that affects our industry both emotionally and economically."

"However, without the constant prodding by NPPC and state groups, this would never have happened."

"But these kinds of efforts are going to become commonplace if the industry is going to survive today's regulators."

"It's our battle. And we've got to fight it."

These have created undue confusion and uncertainty and have undermined the stability and future of the pork industry. We've simply got to return reason to regulations.

"This means more than ever before, that pork producers and all segments of the industry have got to band together. We've got to speak out. And we've got to increase our efforts to increase membership and revenue."

Russ adds that within the next two weeks, his group will contact all pork producers in the county asking them to sign petitions and join their organization. And they'll call on all markets to increase participation in the voluntary funding program, as well as signing petitions.

Dr. Wayne L. Zlomke has completed continuing education requirements to retain active membership in the American Academy of Family Physicians, the national association of family doctors. The Academy formerly was called the American Academy of General Practice.

The requirements call for members to complete a minimum of 150 hours of accredited continuing medical study every three years. Members become eligible for re-election at the end of the third year following their election to membership. The Academy, the country's second largest national medical association, was the first national medical group to require members to keep up with educational progress through continuing education.

Two drivers escaped injury in two separate one-vehicle accidents recently. Sept. 11, Ron Miller, 15, of Scotia lost control of a car on the Springdale Road about one mile east of Ord.

The 1969 Chevrolet was headed north when it left the road, rolled over, and landed on its top.

Neither the driver nor passengers were hurt.

Damages were estimated at over $250. The driver was ticketed for misuse of a permit.

Sept. 15, Wednesday, Evelyn Sinkler of Burwell, escaped injury in a one-car mishap 10 miles west and 1 mile north of Ord.

The 1977 Chevrolet was going north on a county road, approaching an unmarked intersection.

She lost control while slowing for the corner. The car left the road and hit an embankment.

There were no injuries.

Damages were estimated at $700.

A shotgun and rifle were taken from a pickup belonging to Jim Robertson of North Loup sometime during the last five weeks. Sonnenfeld said he was notified of the theft Sept. 14.

Sheriff Is Probing Potentially Hot Theft

Valley County Sheriff Martin Sonnenfeld is probing what could be a potentially hot — and heavy — theft. On or about the first of the month a stove was taken from a second story apartment at 15th and L in Ord.

Sonnenfeld speculated the appliance had to have been maneuvered down a flight of stairs and then loaded into a waiting pickup. What puzzles him is that there are apparently no witnesses to the sizeable theft.

Fed cattle marketings during August totaled 310,000, 3 above 1977 and 7% over two years ago.

Placements during the month numbered 360,000, up 14% from last year's record level and 41% from 1976.

Cattle and calves fed in the seven states numbered 1.65 million head, an increase of 3% from last year and 4% from two years ago. Placements during the month totaled 1.74 million head, up 15% from 1977 and 23% from two years earlier.

Potential Expenditures

Elsewhere in this issue of the Quiz is a story outlining the current dispute between the City of Ord and the Bituminous Casualty Company of Omaha. At stake is what is covered by the city's insurance policy with them and who will pay for the defense of Ord policemen charged in a lawsuit.

During interviews on this subject both Ord Mayor Gaylord Boilesen and City Attorney Greg Jensen mentioned the question was not if but when we go to court who will pay for the defense of the policemen involved. Shrewd thinking, that.

Both men pointed out that should they offer to settle the matter out of court they would be asking for future problems. As Jensen explained it, anyone wanting to pick up a few extra dollars could file suit against the police for causes real or imagined. After naming a steep amount, he could offer to settle for an amount considerably less than that first named. Out of court, of course.

With nothing to lose and something to gain, this would post a near open season on the city police, municipal officials, and taxpayers forced to foot the bill.

By now going to court over what some could call a nuisance suit, Jensen, Boilesen et al are avoiding establishing this costly future game. They are to be applauded. Should taxpayers gripe about how much this suit may end up costing, they could be reminded about the potential future expenditure now being avoided.

Something DifferentMaking Little Friends

How do you suppose I wander into such odd conversations, such weird discussions? For instance:

As we prepared to leave our little California mobile home for Nebraska I began to worry about all my little flowers. I have a dozen or twenty plants, small plants, shoots I'm rooting, slips friends have started and I cherish them. And three little green pepper plants with peppers!

I cast about to decide which neighbor I should bother with a request to give my plantlets a quick spray every three or four days. The people across the street were about to venture to Washington and Oregon for a month, so I eliminated them. The lady behind us was having a visitation of granddaughters. The woman on either side of us was a career gal.

So I settled on a kindly soul ("Ma Perkins" we call her) two doors east and duly went to talk to her. She was more than willing and began to tell me her experiences when she left town for a bit. She had hosts of handsome flowers.

And she began to tell me about ants. Ants are a real problem in California, especially those little bitty ones you may not see once. One crumb on your table or beside your sink and WOW.

We talked about ant cures, from the neat small stakes to be inserted about the base of your house, to all the sprays, the powders, the ant traps.

"I've had ants a number of times and battled them successfully," she stated, "but wait until I tell you about this friend of mine. She says she talks to ants. She talks to her flowers, she talks to her trees and flowers. And one day she thought 'Why don't I talk to insects too? Like ants?'

"She soon had her chance. One morning she got up to find an army of ants proceeding across to her icebox. And the lady stepped right up to the ants and stated firmly, 'Now all you ants go home. Go on. Get right out of my kitchen and go away from my icebox. Go home.'

"And trustingly she left the kitchen for the day.

"And when she came back that evening, behold: not a single ant was to be seen."

"So I decided to talk to ants too. And since then, I don't step on them when they get in my patio, I don't try to kill them when they get in my kitchen; I talk to them, just like I talk to my plants. Really I do," explained Mrs. Perkins.

For what it's worth friends! Go try it. Do you talk to your ferns? Do you speak gently to your violets?

Add the ants to your list of little friends.

Equipment Purchase Charges Hurled In Shasteen-Exon RaceCAPITOL NEWS

By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

LINCOLN — During election years, the Labor Day weekend usually marks the beginning of stepped up politicking by candidates whose names will be on the General Election ballot.

This year was no exception, although some of the nominees for various offices had gotten close to a full head of steam by that date.

Getting a considerable part of media attention was the J. J. Exon and Don Shasteen headline-grabbing stories were triggered by a Shasteen allegation the governor's office might have been used to influence equipment purchases from Exxon's office supply firm.

The charge was made by Shasteen during a debate in Columbus before a state editors' meeting and was promptly and strongly denied by the governor during the exchange. Exon told Shasteen the Republican nominee was going to "get beat and beat bad" in the November balloting.

A few days later, the governor asked that the attorney general, the Lancaster County attorney and the U.S. district attorney look into the allegation and then publicize them quickly.

Exon, who owns 70 percent controlling interest in the J. J. Exon Co., said he has not been involved in the business affairs of the firm since becoming governor.

At this writing, Exon said Shasteen had not yet provided any documentation of his allegations and accused him of "using the news media in an attempted character assassination."

The governor added his opponent was using "the big lie technique" but that he did not believe the people of the state would be fooled by it.

Shasteen said he had raised a legitimate point about which he had received so much information it could not be ignored. He said he had received a copy of a letter because a number of Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service employees felt they were pressured politically to buy copying machines from Exxon's firm.

He would not say from whom he received a copy of the letter except it came from a third party. But he said the letter indicated wrong-doing by the governor's office supply company.

Several days after the debate with Exon, Shasteen released a statement which said, "Should the evidence establish that the letter which I distributed was mailed to county ASCS offices soliciting business for the J. J. Exon Co. under the office of the state ASCS director, Glenn Kreuscher, Gov. Exon should resign and withdraw from the Senate race."

Shasteen earlier had also said purchases made by banking and architectural firms from the J. J. Exon Co. might have been attempts to influence Exxon administration decisions. These charges were also flatly denied by the governor, as well as by several prominent members of his administration.

Prominent Republicans asked to comment on the matter said Shasteen had to back them up with solid evidence or lose his credibility. Several said the Republican candidate was level-headed and that they doubted he would have made the accusation without something to back it up.

The governor said affidavits denying his office was ever involved in efforts to influence equipment purchases were taken from seven employees of his business firm. Exon said those seven persons are the only ones involved in any way with sales.

Safety Director Resigns
Severiano "Sam" Franco has resigned as director of the state Highway Safety Office.

His voluntary resignation was submitted after he was arrested following an alcohol-related traffic accident.

Franco said he could not "in clear conscience, ask people not to do what I do, but do what I say. The only credible thing to do was to go ahead and resign."

Franco headed the highway safety program since June 1975.

He was arrested in Crete on charges of driving while intoxicated and not carrying a driver's license.

REACTers Gearing Up for November Observance

EMERGENCY CHANNEL 9
LOUP VALLEY REACT
EMERGENCY ASSISTANCE INFORMATION
ROAD CONDITIONS
PHONE CALLS

Loup Valley REACTers are gearing up for November, national REACT month. To commemorate the event, local REACT units will promote a better understanding of REACT in the Ord area.

November 7, a recognition award will be presented to a local citizen or business that helped REACT become a reality in the community. Special guests at that meeting, to be held at the Ord Drive In, will be members of Grand Island REACT units. New Ord REACT officers will be elected.

Available some time in mid October will be bumper stickers saying, "I am a REACT backer."

Saturday, Sept. 30, Ord REACT members will join Grand Island REACT units for an area meeting at the Bonanza Steak House.

Bill French, scout official, has requested REACT units to attend a Boy Scout camp scheduled for late October. Planned activities include REACTers showing proper procedures for using channel nine and demonstrating citizens' band radio equipment.

During 1977 REACT members nationwide donated 13 million man hours monitoring channel nine and handled over 13 million calls. REACT teams have helped recovery efforts in virtually every major disaster. These, in this last year alone, have included floods, blizzards, tornadoes, fires, and maritime emergencies.

The next scheduled REACT meeting is October 3 at 7:30 p.m. at the Ord Drive In.

REACT GOAL REACHED — Loup Valley REACTers have reached their goal of having REACT signs, like the one shown, posted on all highways leading to Ord. Two signs are posted on Highway 70 and another two on Highway 11. Donations by concerned merchants and individuals made the accomplishment of this goal possible.

Whelan Endorses Calamus Project At Democrat Rally

Democratic gubernatorial hopeful Jerry Whelan gave a ringing endorsement to irrigation and the Twin Loup Project Sunday. Whelan voiced his approval during a Democratic rally at the Ord Elks Club.

Addressing an estimated 100 plus persons, he recalled the Tri-County Project receiving final approval. George Norris, an independent Congressman, "and what an independent he was", said the speaker, helped guide it through legislative channels.

When word was received the project had received final approval, papers ran banner headlines and schools let out, the speaker recalled. "This meant we were enthused, 'we didn't have to leave the state every six years or so during a dry spell.'"

The Twin Loups or Calamus Project won't have the impact of the Tri-County, Whelan predicted, "but let me tell you, he assured, "in the long run this project will be a tremendous social and economic benefit to the area."

The current Lieutenant Governor, Whelan maintained agricultural problems are national in scope, but urged state and local officials to discuss them and make people of all political persuasions realize a cheap food policy should be discouraged.

He contended there is no cheap steel or clothing policy at this time. Why, he asked, should agriculture be an exception?

The key to further agricultural production is irrigation, Whelan told the audience. Through it, corn, a crop he called "our most valuable product", is grown bountifully in both wet and dry years.

He predicted the nation will have to follow a more stringent soil and water conservation policy in the future. Farmers will have to more precisely control their water needs, so he said.

Martin Sonnenfeld, Valley County Sheriff, tells fellow Democrats of victory plans for this November.

McClure Interim Fort Commandant

Fort Hartuff has a new temporary commander until the first part of October. Greg McClure will supervise the troops while Commander Roye Lindsey is away at a museum and historical preservation conference in Arizona.

Lindsey left Thursday morning for the Rocky Mountain-High Plains Park and Recreation Conference in Tombstone. He will attend meetings and view restoration activities at various parks while there.

Greg McClure arrived Monday to man the fort in Lindsey's absence. McClure has worked at the fort previously.

Tentative Plans for Warehouse Revealed

Region 26 is considering plans to construct a surplus property warehouse in their eight-county administrative area, according to Rick Noyes. Co-ordinator for Region 26 office, Noyes said the tentatively planned building would make storage of equipment easier.

Surplus purchases from the federal government are now stored out of doors or in the Region 26 office at Ord.

Should the planned structure be built, more equipment might be purchased, according to Noyes. "If we knew where we could put it, we would be more aggressive in getting it," he said.

No specific site for the proposed warehouse has yet been selected, Noyes revealed.

Burwell Policeman Not Guilty of Assault-Battery

Burwell Police Officer Steve Burke was found not guilty of assault and battery Tuesday, Sept. 19. A jury returned that verdict in the Garfield County courthouse in Burwell.

Charges against Burke were brought by Joel Southard. Burke reportedly stopped Southard June 7 while operating a motor vehicle within the city limits of Burwell. Southard was told he was being stopped because a headlight on the right side of the car wasn't working.

Southard then claimed he was forcibly removed from his car and struck several times.

Garfield County Judge Roy Blix has found Southard guilty of "resisting and abusing an officer". Southard has appealed that decision.

According to Associate County Judge Dorothy Hall of Garfield County, Southard has until September 29 to appeal Tuesday's verdict.

The next scheduled REACT meeting is October 3 at 7:30 p.m. at the Ord Drive In.

Plant Reservoir Plans Cancelled!

Concerned Conestock area farmers may rest easier now. According to Ron Bogus, of Nebraska Public Power District's office, NPPD may not build a huge reservoir for their generating plant after all.

Bogus told the Quiz Thursday, NPPD is leaning toward using underground wells for supplying needed water. These plans are still tentative Bogus said, and then added, "If we build a reservoir at all, it will be within the plant site."

That will cover an estimated 1,800 acres according to NPPD, he released earlier.

Further studies on the plant site and in other areas around Conestock will help determine the ultimate course of action, Bogus stated. For now, all plans on what NPPD will or will not do are tentative.

The public will have a chance to learn more about present power plant plans at a series of town hall forums scheduled by NPPD. A listing of dates, times, and places will be found elsewhere in this issue of the Quiz.

October of last year, NPPD revealed tentative plans to build a huge reservoir around three and a half miles north of Conestock. The reservoir would cover about 1,500 acres of land.

Storm Sewer Hearing is Scheduled For October 2

Ord residents will get a chance to speak their piece on a new storm sewer project when the City Council meets October 2. A public hearing on the projects, estimated at $200,000 will then be held.

The two sewer districts, named 1978-1 and 1978-2, were created by the council to correct a sticky and smelly situation. Storm or runoff water was being channeled into sewage lines.

When rains came, raw sewage often backed up into business and residential basements. Concerned residents appealed to the council, requesting they do something about the situation.

During that same meeting, the council will likely adopt the just completed revised city ordinances book.

Ord Mayor Gaylord Boileen told the Quiz there are few radical changes in existing rules. He termed the revision, just completed, "an updating process."

Cattle Rustling Car-Truck Crash Concern Sheriff

A 1973 Ford Pinto station wagon and a 1976 Kenworth tractor-trailer collided five miles east southeast of Ord on Highway 11 Saturday. The Pinto, driven by John Cimianec of Ord had stopped at a stop sign and had just pulled out when it was struck by the northbound truck.

The truck, driven by Russell Rose, drove over the front end of the station wagon.

There was an estimated $1,000 damage to the Pinto and $800 to $1,000 damage to the truck. There were no injuries.

An investigation is underway.

Dwinell home, one mile south of North Loup. The person or persons evidently forced open a window. Missing is a color TV set, two CB radios, several eight-track tapes, and stereo albums. The sheriff is investigating.

Nothing was taken in a break in at Arcadia High School Sunday evening. A door to the school band room was forced open.

Four head of cattle were taken from a pasture six miles north and two miles east of Ord late Monday or early Tuesday morning. Sheriff Martin Sonnenfeld speculated some one separated the animals from the rest of the herd and then loaded them into a truck.

Blockhead Helps Conquer Shyness

A block of wood, talent and determination helped Janine Dietz overcome a classic case of stage fright and shyness. The sister of Mrs. J. H. Schroeder of Ord, the talented ventriloquist is currently appearing with a local church revival program.

Her 16 year career with ventriloquist dummies — "You can call them if they aren't listening", she cautioned — began when she was eight years old. Watching the popular Captain Kangaroo television show, she is currently appearing with a local church revival program.

Receiving a duplicate of the block of wood, talent and determination helped Janine Dietz overcome a classic case of stage fright and shyness. The sister of Mrs. J. H. Schroeder of Ord, the talented ventriloquist is currently appearing with a local church revival program.

She explained the process as being an optical illusion. "Ventriloquism is interesting because people like to pretend," she said. "So evidently does the performer. So evidently does the dummy, not her, or so she claims.

Her varied cast of puppets "talk" by having Janine being able to form words inside her mouth sans moving her lips. Coordinating the movement of the dummy's mouth with the sounds coming from her immobile lips makes it appear the puppet — she explained the process as being an optical illusion. "Ventriloquism is interesting because people like to pretend," she said. "So evidently does the performer. So evidently does the dummy, not her, or so she claims.

By the time she was 11 her parents had purchased a dummy with a moving mouth. "But the first REAL ventriloquist dummy I had was when I was 16 years old", she recalled.

By that time she was performing publicly. Rather than go to the traditional show business route, she opted for church entertainment. Asked why, she replied, "Because I wanted to use my talent for God."

She first joined the revival circuit while in high school and later attended the Dakota Bible College in Huron, SD. Janine graduated from there in 1970. She has since joined the staff of that institution. "And right now I'm on a leave of absence", she quipped.

A performer with some years experience, Janine admitted to being shy. Working with her wooden props has helped her conquer this impediment. On stage attention is focused on the dummy, not her, or so she claims.

She has a special interest in the Mister Moose puppet. "And," she added, "they have personalities of their own. Occasionally they say things she wouldn't dream of stating, she revealed. "It's like role playing", she said. "It happened so gradually."

Ordites Return From Five Country Tour

Mr. and Mrs. Adolf Urbanovsky and Mr. and Mrs. Emanuel Wadas returned home Thursday morning from an eight day, five country tour to Austria, Germany, Italy, Switzerland and Liechtenstein.

They departed from Omaha via a Super DC-8 Trans International plane with 246 people aboard.

After stopping at Bangor, Maine for refueling they flew to Zurich, Switzerland where their tour began.

The weather and country are very beautiful this time of year, farmers were busy making their hay and storing it in their little sheds for winter. As they approached Liechtenstein and Italy, apple orchards and vineyards were very numerous. Lumbering is also a very important industry of these countries.

As they crossed into Italy they passed over Brenner Pass which is 7,600 feet at its highest peak and also went through a three and one-half mile lighted tunnel built in 1962 by the Swiss. In Austria they drove over the highest bridge in Europe, it being 622 feet high and 2600 feet long. It was finished in 1964.

Their next stop was Seefeld, Austria, where they stayed for the duration of the tour. The rest of the tour consisted of one day at the Oktoberfest in Munich and a one day sightseeing excursion through the Alps to Salzburg where "The Sound of Music" was filmed and also the home of Mozart birthplace. One day was also spent in Innsbruck where they viewed many historical churches and castles and also went up to see the ski lift where the Olympics were held in 1966.

Outside Rotterberg they viewed a blow glass crystal factory. Also at Rotterberg they have a factory that produces one-third of the world's penicillin.

In the evening they were entertained by Nebraska and Austrian bands playing in the various places. Moostah Joe Polka Band, Adolph Urbanovsky Polka Band and Edie Basgal Band were the bands that entertained from their group. They were also entertained by a teorean group dressed in their colorful costumes, with music, dancing and yodeling.

Wednesday at 11:30 they departed from Seefeld to Munich to catch a plane back home to the states. Enroute home they stopped for refueling at Shannon, Ireland. There they had an opportunity to do some shopping and get a glimpse of the countryside. The next and last stop, before reaching Omaha, was Bangor, Maine where they went through customs for their return home.

THROW IT AWAY — Cohen Hoppes ditched the ball as a host of Albion Cardinals swarmed over him.

Solid Defense-Sound Basics Pace Ord to Win over Albion

Some solid defense and sound basic football won Ord Chants a 17-8 upset over Albion Friday, on the Ord field. A perennial powerhouse, Albion was a supposed favorite in Friday's game. The Chants, or as some predicted, would have their hands full vying with those supercharged Cardinals.

Kalhoff booted the extra point, and Ord got seven points on the scoreboard.

Albion took the kick and moved it to near the Ord 40 yard line. They then ran into that solid Chant defense. Two plays produced little but frustration for the Cards. On the third, this gave a interception by Barry Witherwax. Hoppes followed with a first down on the Albion 30 yard line. The Cards defense first held, and then gave way on a pass from Witherwax to Novosad that was carried into the end zone.

Ord took the ball and ran it to the 25 yard line. A face mask penalty moved the ball to near the 40. Ord couldn't capitalize on the gain, and were forced to punt to Albion.

One play later Ord regained the ball. Swift Barry Witherwax snagged a long Cardinal pass near the Albion 40 and moved it near midfield. Valla helped set up the touchdown on the next play with a carry to the 33. A Hoppes to Valla pass gave Ord the ball at the 20, well within field goal range.

A holding penalty, moving the ball from near the 20 to about midfield, may have slowed the Ord TD drive, but failed to stop it. With less than 20 seconds left in the half, a Hoppes to Kremke pass gave Ord touchdown number two. With Kalhoff booting the extra point, Ord was in front 14-0.

Half Time

After half time ceremonies, spectators saw a solid defensive and punting display with neither team moving the ball for the first few minutes.

This display of playing prowess sans gain ended with an Albion kick falling out 4 yards near the Ord 16. This was turned into Ord's touchdown number three, but not before some heart stopping minutes.

Best remembered is a fumble by Valla near the 40 yard line. Chant fans were on their feet as Ord had lost, and then recovered the pigskin. In recovering the ball, Ord added an estimated four yards to their last play and a few grey hairs to coach Jim Blessen's scalp.

A Chant infraction on the next play moved the ball back 15 yards, near the 25 yard mark. Valla had moved the ball to near the 35 yard line, when Albion picked off an Ord pass and rammed it down to near the 10.

Albion did manage to get a touchdown — their first and last of the game — moments later, but they had to work hard to get it. Ord's defense yielded one lone yard and then held. Albion did manage to chisel their way to near the five on the next play, but faced a fourth down and goal.

They went for it and managed to run it into the end zone. A two point sprint between the goal posts have them eight points to Ord's 14.

Ord Chants had plowed to their 45 yard line when the quarter ended.

One play into the fourth period, disaster struck. Ord fumbled and Valla recovered on the Chant 45 yard line.

Again the Ord defense dug in and frustrated further attempts by the Cards. Out of downs and luck, they turned the ball over near the Chant 45.

Ord reclaimed the pigskin, possession, but couldn't do much with their acquisition. The ball went back to Albion.

The charging Chant line halted any anticipated Card gains and then broke through the Albion line. After frustrating game plans, that rail remick, Albion was pushed for a five yard loss and had a would be punter sacked at their 15 yard line.

Ord took over and carried to the 10 yard line. An off-side call placed the ball near the Cardinal 15, and Ord elected to kick the field goal. Ron Kalhoff booted in the last points of the game, with 4:13 left in the fourth quarter. Ord was ahead 17-8.

an Albion pass in the end zone. The ball went to the 20 yard line and one play later, was at the 22; Ord elected to punt. With 15 seconds left on the clock, Martin centered the ball to Valla. He fumbled with it, but managed to boot it away.

Coach's Comments

Ord coach Jim Blessen credited the team with playing good basic football and having a sound defense that won the game. He noted the week before, Albion opened Columbus-Scots 13-8. Scots, he noted, usually has a good ball team. The fact that Ord could beat a team defeating that highly regarded school is a tribute to the Chant team, in his estimation.

Defensive players he singled out for praise included:

— Dave Conner, 3 solo tackles, 8 assists.

— Keith Pelton, 5 solo tackles, 8 assists.

— Jim Welniaik, 5 solo tackles, 8 assists.

— Jeff Welniaik, 3 solo tackles, 4 assists.

— Jim Smith, 3 solo tackles, 3 assists.

— Russ Barnes, 3 solo tackles, 4 assists.

— Jeff Wolf, 2 solo tackles, 6 assists.

— Barry Witherwax, 2 interceptions.

Offensive credits went to:

— Kevin Valla carrying 15 times for 79 yards. Blessen commented he thought the entire offensive line did a good job Friday.

The win Friday makes Ord 2-1 for the season. Albion's record now stands at 2-2.

Fresh Spikers Whip Aurora-Loup City

The Ord freshman volleyball team made it two in a row with victories over Aurora and Loup City recently. Tuesday, Sept. 19, the Ord girls downed Aurora 15-11 and 15-6.

Leading scorer in that match was Chris Finley with 12 points. Coach Tom Rhodes lauded the Ord defense. He commented, "Our defense was real good and we were thinking about the proper way to bump, set, and spike. Aurora had a pretty good team that set the ball up well," he continued, "so we had to play pretty good defense."

Thursday, Sept. 21, the Ord fresh spikers made their season record 5-1 with a win over Loup City. Ord took that match in three games. Scores were 15-5, 7-15 and 15-10. Leading scorer Deb Meese, with 14 points, helped seal the victory.

Rhodes recalled the girls as "... making one of the finest comebacks I have ever seen. Once again they held their poise and played well when the going was tough."

"We lost the second game and were trailing 8-4 in the third mainly as a result of the fine serving of the Loup City squad. They are one of the finest serving teams I have ever seen."

First in Years

Ord's team spirit and hard work combined to pull off the victory.

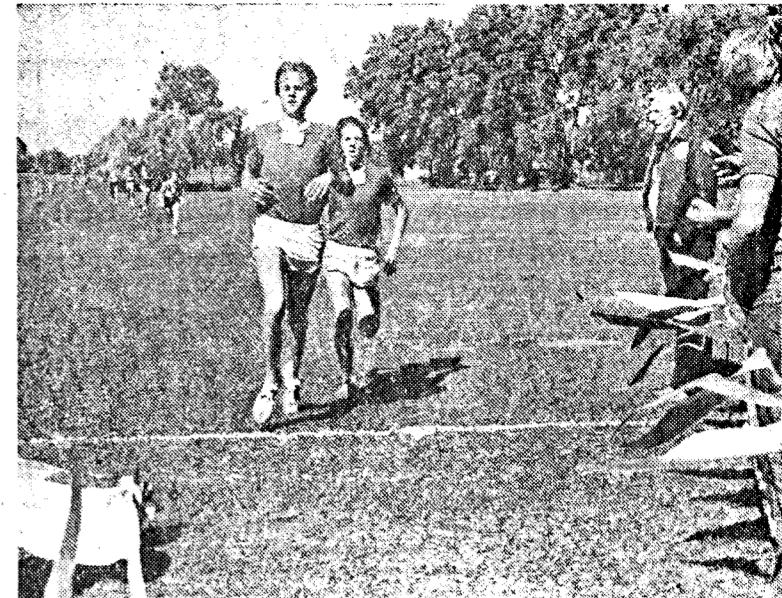

"Incidentally," Rhodes added, "this was the first loss this group of Loup City girls has had in three years."

Town Spikers Set To Start Season

The Town Team volleyball squad opens their season at home October 2, Monday, when they take on Loup City. The two teams will clash at 8 p.m. in the Ord Elementary Gym.

October 4, they will host Arcadia at Ord High Game time is 8 p.m.

According to head coach Geri Warford, about 10 girls are out for the team this season. She speculated they could better their last year's record. At the end of the '77 season, they were ranked third in the Women's Central Eight Volleyball League.

Warford proudly stated, "And this year," she chorused, "things could be even better."

Joining the team are former players with Jan Weber's girl spikers. Their past experience and impressive record will be a real asset Warford stated.

Persons wanting to sign up for the town spiker team should contact Geri at her Ord home.

Arcadia Swamped By Greeley 62-20

Host Greeley overwhelmed Arcadia 62-20 Saturday night. Arcadia varsity coach John Cross said his Huskies were simply outplayed and outrun during their third game of the gridiron season.

He states Greeley has 13 seniors out this year, their team has more depth than Arcadia and mentioned Greeley halfback Nethuse as another factor in the Arcadia defeat. Nethuse stands around $11" by Cross's estimations and weighs about 155 pounds.

Said Cross, "That boy is something; he is both big and quick."

The Greeley team, Cross said, "blew us out, and had too many people for us to handle."

He applauded Arcadia linebacker Mike Johnson for being the most consistant player in the Huskies' last three games.

The loss gives Arcadia a 1-2 record for the season. Next week they meet old rivals, the North Loup-Scotia Wildcats at Arcadia.

percentage of 92.6 percent paved the way for Ord's win, with the Chant gal spikers making 38 out of 41 serves.

Loup City, on the receiving end of these deliveries, had trouble returning them. Ord coach Weber credited them with being a good spiking team but she added Ord's playing an excellent defense repelled their strong attack.

Vickie Mason led Ord to victory with 11 points to her credit. Rhonda Brass was second in the ranking statistics 10 and Anne Smith third with seven. Pam Meece rounded out Ord's scoring with two points of her own.

Once again Barb Kittle spearheaded Ord's attack with eight of nine attempts and by scoring three ace attacks.

"Barb," Weber told the Quiz, "is one of our strongest all-around players. She plays a tough defense, serves well, and is a leading spiker. I have seen a great deal of improvement in Barb from last season—she is a fine player."

Rhonda Brass and Vickie Mason each chipped in two aces to aid Ord's cause.

Ord's setting was led by Rhonda Brass who had a nifty 100 percent with 7 of 7 attempts and two assists on ace spikes.

Coach Weber commented, "In game number one Nancy Gogan scored nine consecutive points before Aurora's Diane Pheigard scored four points. Barb Kittle added one point and Anne Smith three."

"Aurora scored two more points. Gloria Wetzel finished the game with two points."

In game number two it was Nancy Gogan again leading with eight points. Following her were Barb Kittle with three. In the second rotation Vickie Mason scored three and Rhonda Brass finished the game with one point. "It was," Weber commented, "what I felt was a good team effort. We seem to be playing well together and doing a good all-around job of volleyball."

Comments

"So far," Weber said, "our team has communicated well and I hope we will be able to continue to play as a team."

"I would like to see more attack from our girls. When we do spike we do a good job but we are games where I would like to see more spike attempts."

Tuesday, October 3, Ord plays host to Burwell. The freshmen play at 6 p.m., the reserves at 7 and the varsity at 8 p.m.

Being courteous is all very well, but people will probably think you haven't anything important to do.

Ord Spikers Snare Back to Back Wins

Ord varsity spikers upped their season record to 4-1 with victories over Aurora and Loup City last week.

This two-game victory streak opened with Ord playing host to Aurora Tuesday, Sept. 19. The guest players were whipped in two games with scores of 15-6 each.

Aurora had some very fine players, according to Ord coach Jan Weber, but Ord's solid defense and aggressive play proved superior. She credited Shari Fox and Barb Kittle with leading the team's aggressive effort.

Kittle led Ord's attack with 10 spike attempts, nine of which were good and scored five ace attacks. Fox spiked 13 times with 11 being good and scored four ace attacks. The Ord coach credited Vickie Mason and Pam Meece with helping lead Ord's winning attack.

The Ord gals' scoring was led by Nancy Gogan with 17 points. Nancy served 19 of 19 for an excellent serving percentage. Said Weber, "We have been pleased with Nancy's performance as she is only a sophomore."

Ord's setting was led by Rhonda Brass who had a nifty 100 percent with 7 of 7 attempts and two assists on ace spikes.

Coach Weber commented, "In game number one Nancy Gogan scored nine consecutive points before Aurora's Diane Pheigard scored four points. Barb Kittle added one point and Anne Smith three."

Ord Reserve Spikers Sink Teams From Loup City-Aurora Last Week

Ord reserve spiker squad members whipped teams from Loup City and Aurora recently. Thursday, September 21, they ripped into Loup City 15-9 and 15-6. Cindy Kamard was the leading scorer with 11 points.

Kathy Hansen led the attack with an 87.5 percent rating efficiency. Coach Angie Batenhorst singled out Anne Smitn for her fine passing effort.

The team communicated well, and pulled together for a solid team effort, Coach Batenhorst said. The opposing team had a number of good servers, she revealed, but had problems with their serve receive.

There being some extra time after the two regular matches, younger reserves got a chance to play. They were edged by Loup City 9-15 and 10-15.

Julie Sich with six points was the leading server. Coach Batenhorst said the girls had trouble communicating and moving on the court.

In regular reserve action, Ord goes to Burwell Tuesday, October 3.

Aurora 15-7 and 15-9. Leading servers were Anne Smith and Kelly Scofield each with five points.

Batenhorst said she was proud of the girls' performance. "They moved well, communicated well, and had an overall good team effort and hustle," she told the Quiz.

Kathy Hansen with a 100 percent rating and Cindy Kamard with an 83 percent rating both helped Ord with their attack.

Se Sevenker, with her 100 percent rating, was singled out for her doge kicking, as was Anne Smith for her good passing.

Batenhorst said both reserves must concentrate on their serve receive and consistency in serving during practice sessions.

The young reserves will be traveling to Aurora Saturday, September 30, to play in a triangular Aurora, Centura, and Ord players will gain experience by participating.

In regular reserve action, Ord goes to Burwell Tuesday, October 3.

Midway through the last period when Witherwax ran the pigskin in from the three, Larry Sears started the chain reaction that ended in the end zone with a pass reception deep in Northwest territory. Jeff Sich's run to the three provided the finishing touches for Wax's last scoring blitz.

Grand Island scored their lone TD late in the third quarter.

Pete Crane had a pass interception he ran back for 35 yards in the third quarter.

The Chants next play host to Broken Bow Monday, October 2. Game time is 7 p.m.

Proposition 301 - For the People

NEBRASKA FARM BUREAU FEDERATION
By M. M. Van Kirk, Director of Information

Farm people have said for many years that something should be done about the deluge of beer and soft drink cans and bottles tossed onto the roadsides along their farms and into their fields. Finally they have a chance to do something about it.

They can vote for Proposition 301 on the November ballot to require a minimum 5-cent refund on all beer and carbonated beverage containers sold in Nebraska. If the bill passes, Nebraska will join Oregon and six other states which have chosen this method of reducing the throwaway can and bottle litter problem effectively, without cost to the taxpayers.

Of course this is not just a farm problem, it's everybody's problem. The can and bottle litter fouls city streets and parks, urban dwellers' curbsides, lawns and gardens. A successful majority decision for Proposition 301 will need favorable votes from all segments of the state's residents. The farm and ranch vote for the measure, by all logic and based on years of frustration by the problem, should be overwhelmingly in support. The proposed bill has the backing of the general farm organizations.

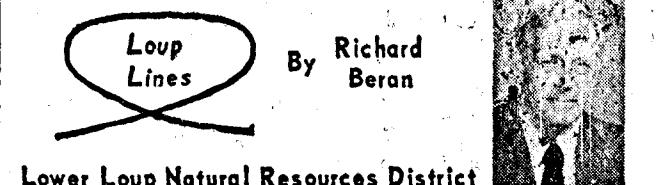

In Nebraska an estimated 550,000,000 throwaway bottles and cans were sold last year reflecting the nationwide trend by beer and soft drink manufacturers to market their products in throwaway containers. This trend has been pushed during the past 20 years by the container and bottling industries without regard for the environmental damage and nuisance aspects of the situation.

The bill proposed by petition in Nebraska is similar to the Oregon bottle law which was approved years ago and is credited with reducing beverage container litter along Oregon highways by 83 per cent. Similar laws have been approved by voters in Michigan, Vermont, Iowa, Delaware, Connecticut and Maine. In all cases, the beer, beverage and container industries have spent millions to head off a favorable vote, claiming that it would result in loss of employment and increased costs to consumers, along with many other dire contentions.

Experiences of the states where such legislation has been enacted all refute such contentions. Use of returnable containers has actually increased employment and solid waste disposal requirements have been reduced. And a 28-city nationwide survey on comparative price indicated soft drinks sold in refillable bottles cost five cents less and beer eight cents less than in throwaway cans and bottles.

For many years, similar legislation has been introduced in the Nebraska Legislature and rarely has even got out of committee because of the intense lobbying by the beer, soft drink and container industries. This is typical of the experience of the other states. Legislators simply won't pass the legislation . . . money talks in terms of political contributions. As one brave senator in the Nebraska Legislature declared before a vote that doomed the proposal for another year, "The only ones who want this legislation are the people."

Opponents of such legislation have spent millions in other states to defeat the proposal and to influence the vote by confusing the issues and using all kinds of misleading arguments to discredit support for the measure. It is estimated that they will spend some $350,000 in advertising alone this fall against the proposition. Supporters, mostly rank and file people, have no such resources at their disposal, but must rely almost entirely on the good sense of Nebraska voters to see through the arguments of the special interest groups. Proposition 301 is a vote by the people and for the people and so far the polls indicate the people have that pretty well figured out. Hopefully they won't let themselves be confused on the issue between now and election day.

We ran across an article on Foreign Investment in Farms and Ranchland in Cornhusker Economics that should prove interesting.

A farm policy issue currently receiving considerable attention is foreign investment in U.S. farmland. Foreign investment is defined as nonresident ownership by alien investors. Emotion regarding the issue runs high. The general public seems to accept foreign investment in further manufacturing development, but takes an opposing view of foreign investors buying U.S. farmland.

Very sketchy and incomplete information exists as to the magnitude and characteristics of foreign investment. It is generally believed that a relatively small amount of U.S. farmland is currently owned by nonresident aliens. The USDA estimates are no more than one percent. However, such investments can be hidden in the purchasing process (by establishing interlocking corporations) thus owners are not easily identified. The exact amount of foreign investment is now known.

In recent months there are indications that foreign investors have become increasingly interested in buying U.S. farmland. There are several reasons: 1) U.S. farmland has been a good investment in the seventies; 2) the U.S. dollar has declined relative to other major currencies such as the German Mark and the Japanese Yen; 3) the U.S. is a stable nation, where investments can be made with little risk of drastic changes of governmental policy; and 4) some international trade treaties exist which specify lower tax requirements for foreign investors as compared with domestic investors.

"But even with increased alien interest in U.S. farmland, current purchase activity does not appear to approach alarming levels. Only about 3 percent of U.S. farmland changes hands each year, with active farmer buyers accounting for most of those purchases. As a result, only a very small percentage of U.S. farmland (less than 1 percent) is likely to be available to outside investors in any given year.

"This is not to say that land tenure patterns and the basic structure of U.S. farming can not or will not change gradually over time. This is the heart of the foreign ownership issue.

Since the U.S. land tenure system has historically reflected a dominance of small land holdings primarily by owner operators, any interest on the part of outside investors has been looked upon with caution.

Consequently, over the years, various legislation has been enacted in numerous states to limit farmland ownership by large domestic corporations as well as by aliens.

Nebraska is one of 9 states which have enacted major restrictions on non-resident alien ownership of land. As stated in the Nebraska Statutes, aliens may hold real estate only within the city or village limits and within 3 miles of those limits.

Aliens may hold leases for up to 5 years in other lands. Other alien land ownership is prohibited. Should nonresident aliens acquire property by inheritance, the statutes specify that it must be sold immediately at a judicial sale. The law also specifies that lands outside the 3-mile radius of cities or villages can not be owned by alien corporations if a majority of its directors are aliens, if its executive officers or managers are aliens, or if a majority of its stock is owned by aliens. Just how effective these laws have been is not certain since ownership can be hidden through various ownership arrangements.

A uniform national monitoring system should provide useful information for use by citizens and policy makers who have an interest in the structure of U.S. agriculture.

Land Bank Loans at $83.7 Million Level

In his annual report to members and guests attending the Association's annual stockholders' dinner meeting in Grand Island on September 20, 1978, he said that $21.7 million was loaned to farmers and ranchers in the area during the year.

Grudzinski's report to the 511 members and guests attending the Association's annual stockholders' dinner meeting in Grand Island on September 20, 1978, indicated that lending activity was brisk during the entire year. He said that farming operations have become more complex as have the applications being processed. Partnerships, corporations, and joint ventures with multiple applicants are becoming more common. Also, the time required to properly analyze applications and make a sound credit decision has increased somewhat. He indicated that applications were up 62% and dollar volume of loans pending, compared to last year, had more than doubled from $5.5 million dollars to 11.5 million dollars.

Allen Keep of Cotesfield, chairman of the Grand Island Land Bank Association Board of Directors, presided at the annual business meeting. Johnny Reiners of Junia, vice chairman of the Board of Directors, gave the directors' report which included details of the past year's experience and activities. He informed the stockholders of the establishment of a new contact point in Aurora and the development of a full-time branch office in Ord. He also stated that the new branch office facility in Hastings had been completed and that work had already begun on the new office facility in Grand Island.

Other highlights of the Association's business year included the election of two directors and three nominating committee members. The elections were conducted by the nominating committee chairman, LaVern Klute of Hampton, who announced that Clayton Karr of Bladen and Allen Keep of Cotesfield had been re-elected to three year terms on the Association's Board of Directors.

In addition, Delwin Beck of Litchfield, Lewis Driewer of Hampton, and Kenneth Herz of Lawrence were elected to serve on next year's nominating committee. Other directors in attendance were Cecil Glause of Archer, Herb Ulmer of Sutton and Larry Fagan of Hampton. Activities at the meeting included comments from Earl Hoing, representing the Omaha Land Bank, the presentation of several flower baskets and a free dance following the meeting and dinner.

The Federal Land Bank Association of Grand Island makes long term loans to farmers and ranchers in Hall, Hamilton, Greeley, Valley, Sherman, Merrick, Howard, Nuckolls, Clay, Adams and Webster Counties. The Association is a cooperative lending organization entirely owned by its 1,431 member-borrowers.

Whelan Calamus Support A Major Policy Shift?

Bob Stowell, project opponents spokesman, said statements made by Jerry Whelan Sunday differed sharply from those made earlier regarding the planned Calamus or Twin Loups project.

According to Stowell, Whelan voiced doubts about the project last April at an Agri-Water Conference in Kearney. Whelan then, Stowell stated, had reservations about the irrigation plan because of what Stowell called "the deteriorating cost-benefit ratio."

The Ord lawyer indicated Monday, Whelan thought the day of the big dams was past, last April.

The gubernatorial candidate then suggested impounding water in small canyons as an alternative to building massive dams, Stowell told the Quiz.

Asked what may have changed Whelan's mind, Stowell indicated candidates often do that which is politically expedient.

Accusation

As the November balloting deadline approaches, candidates for offices are making one last big push to share votes of the electorate. To gain their attention, candidates have been known to play the issues to the media. That is, they contend their claims or accusations of right and wrong doing in the midst of television cameras, reporters etc.

This may have been the case recently when GOP Congressional candidate Don Shasteen accused Democratic rival J. James Exon of trying to use his influence in obtaining orders for his Lincoln office equipment business.

Other charges have included innuendos that all wasn't right with the State Banking Department. Shasteen last week told the Quiz he had heard of irregularities in bank examination and licensing procedures. Or so he said.

Now, however, these apparently are, to quote Ron Ziegler, inoperative. Wednesday, Shasteen told the Associated Press that he made no allegations against Gov. J. J. Exon, but did call attention to what he considers an "improper and unethical letter" sent, reportedly, by the J. J. Company to ASCS offices in Nebraska.

It appears that these issues are now the subject of a semantics discussion with Shasteen saying he merely mentioned what someone else had told him. Members of the media calculated these remarks as accusations.

Whatever they are — or are not — it boils down to the fact that a candidate mentioned wrongdoings — real or imagined — of the other candidate, and did so publicly in an election race.

We just hope Shasteen has some solid proof to back up these remarks, accusations or whatever they may be termed, or he can kiss this election goodby. Knowing Shasteen personally and being followers of the GOP faith, we contend he could make an outstanding member of Congress. Unless proof is forthcoming — and soon — he may not get that chance.

Civics Lesson

Last week, three former members of the Ord High Science Club wrote a letter to the editor concerning the city dog pound. Tony Kusek, Sue Usasz, and Cheri Klimek claimed the one-time club project was overgrown with weeds, and had fallen into a state of disrepair.

Curious about the state of the pound, the Quiz along with Klimek and Usasz went there Sunday. Located just north of town, off Highway 70, the animal shelter has three runways and three separate cages for the impounded animals.

Arriving Sunday, we found the weeds trimmed, and the pound in good condition. "But this isn't the way it was," the two girls cried, and wondered what had happened. We suggested that someone read the Quiz, and took action.

So, as of now, there is an empty dog pound, with the weeds trimmed, and in an adequate state of repair. Whatever problems there were — real or alleged — have evidently been repaired.

We did however suggest that the two girls and other past Science Club members keep an eye on their former project, and let us know if anything interesting happens. Contacting the City Council was also suggested as another solution to any problems.

Driving back to the Quiz from the pound, the girls were rather quiet, and seemed disappointed in the way things turned out. The Quiz wasn't. These two young ladies saw a problem, got involved, wrote letter to the editor, and followed through on solving what they thought was a problem.

This is what civic improvement, and local government are all about. The Quiz doesn't know what grades they got while in high school, but they rate a solid A-plus with us for their citizen participation.

Something DifferentAre We Improving?

Sometimes I think men are the silliest. Well honestly. Look at the great accumulations of clothes a dressed-up man has on layer on layer. Look at all the vests, now fashionable once more (my father wore one all his life). And he wore a stiff . . . like a board — collar, plus necktie.

You can't find much excuse for neckties!

All those pockets in a man's suit? 20? 30? There's considerable sense to a man carrying a purse — whether you think it's sissy or not!

In the first place — men are built to wear skirts! Physically, skirts would be an advantage, a comfort; more relaxed than those foolishly fitted trousers ever were.

Conversely, women are physically contrived to wear pants! Think about it folks. It's true.

At least the drab years have gone and men now appear in far more colors than any self-respecting rainbow. And about time! I got weary of dull gray suits, dingy brown suits, or the forever dark blue ones — exchanged for shiny black ones that everyone wore.

I'm happy that a pink shirt is now agreeable to everyone. Pink suits, peach-colored suits, they look alright in California — and Nebraska. Yes, on men!

Towns Face Budget Battles-Phony BillsCAPITOL NEWSBy Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

Lincoln — Many Nebraska towns are faced with the same financial problems as other governmental units that must meet legitimate needs with the resources available.

It was reported recently several towns were confronted with still another problem — bills for items never received even ordered.

The director of the League of Nebraska Municipalities, Dave Chambers, said that has happened to a number of Nebraska cities.

After Chambers alerted league members to be on watch against allegedly phony billings, nine invoices from Florida and New York companies were forwarded to his office by Nebraska communities.

Howard Parrott, city administrator at Plainview, called the alleged billing scheme to the attention of the state Justice Department in July. That was after a Hollywood, FL firm sent what appeared to be a $269 bill for weed control chemicals to "accounts payable Plainview City Hall."

The document received in Plainview indicated the chemical had been sent.

The document was turned over to the Consumer Protection Division of the Justice Department.

Parrott said the Plainview bill was brought to the attention of the attorney general to make sure other communities were not paying for items they had never ordered.

A member of the attorney general's staff contacted the Hollywood, FL company and was told, the invoice Parrott's office received was not a bill but an order and that it should have been sent to Plainview, N.Y. The spokesman for the Florida firm said he had never sent a bill and several similar errors had been made during his absence.

The Justice Department then informed Parrott the file on the case was being closed. Chambers said he was surprised by the state's acceptance of the explanation, especially because the invoice was postmarked Plainview, Nebraska.

Jerold Fenmell, head of the Consumer Protection Division, said the investigation was then reopened and that his office was looking at other similar billing complaints.

He said if an invoice carries a note saying it is not a bill, it is not illegal. Bills sent to Chambers' office apparently did not include such warnings.

Chambers said after the state dropped the matter the first time, he asked members of the league to send unexplained bills to him.

Elkhorn, Firth, Hickman, Fairbury, and Marquette responded, sending copies of bills for goods officials said had not been made.

After the law goes into effect, dealing with intoxicated persons will be a statewide problem and there should be a statewide effort to attend the law, the council was told.

Bottle Bill Debated

The debate on the merits of the bottle bill proposition that will be on the November ballot is starting to warm up.

During a recent appearance before a meeting of Young Republicans, Sen. Donald Dwork of Columbus said even if the proposal is approved, cans and bottles will still be discarded.

He is scheduled to arrive around 9:30 a.m.

The deadline for making changes has also passed, Douglas said.

The unemployment insurance representative will be in the Valley County Courthouse at Ord alternate Thursdays, starting October 12 — November 23.

Thanksgiving being a holiday he will be in Ord November 22.

He is scheduled to arrive around 9:30 a.m.

The proposed legislation would require merchants to refund at least a nickel for the return of each glass, metal or plastic container for beer or other malt beverage, mineral water, soda water or carbonated soft drinks.

Douglas said he does not believe voters will be misled by the explanatory language on the ballot because it will appear directly above the actual petition language.

Come To Church

READ MATTHEW 25:34-46

"You also should share with those in need." (2 Corinthians 8:15 TLLB)

A young, rapidly growing congregation, meeting in a rented hall, approached their minister with a proposition to build a new church that would accommodate a much larger group of worshippers. They assured the pastor they could raise the necessary finances for the new building.

The pastor told the committee that he would approve the plan if they, as a group, would increase their giving to missions as much as they would increase their giving to the new church fund. The members of the church accepted this challenge.

Increased giving for missions proceeded at the same rate as that for the new building, and the congregations became more and more interested in various mission activities and support. In fact, our family became so involved they went into mission service in Africa. Others of the congregation became associated directly with various activities, helping in other countries and in other areas of America. The church led their area in per capita involvement in missions.

If we are really sincere in our Christian faith, we must obey Jesus' command to help others. Our reward is the freedom of abundant life.

PRAYER: Father, we ask for the strength necessary to meet the needs of others. In Jesus' name. Amen.
