AA's Celebrating Anniversary Here

The Burwell-Ord Group of Alcoholics Anonymous, having held their first meeting in the area in November of 1953, are celebrating their 25th Anniversary this weekend with an open house Saturday afternoon and evening and an anniversary party and program Sunday at the Ord Veterans Club.

Though anyone is welcome at the Open House at 1611 N Street, Ord, from 2 p.m. until 8 p.m. a closed meeting for members only will be held from 8 to 10 p.m. Saturday evening.

Sunday, from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. a public meeting is being held at the Ord Veterans Club basement and anyone interested is invited to attend. There will be several speakers representing both A.A. (the alcoholic) and Alanon (for family and friends of the alcoholic). There is no charge and coffee and cookies will be served. Alcoholics Anonymous was founded, originally in 1935, by two men looking for a way to get sober and stay sober. It is estimated there are over a million members today, in thousands of groups around the world.

Latest survey figures have found a nearly 50% jump in the proportion of young (under 30) members and revealed a continuing increase of women in the fellowship.

The first local meeting was held in Burwell in November of 1953. Since that time the local group has grown from five members to 30-40 attending twice weekly meetings at their clubrooms at 1611 N Street in Ord. Also, in recent years, an Alanon Group has been meeting regularly each Thursday, offering help to family and friends of alcoholics.

Though no records or membership roles are kept, it is estimated that in the 20 years the local groups have been active, over 100 have sought help and often found permanent sobriety through the suggested A.A. program of living a day at a time.

Alan Martens Is New County Agent

Alan Martens was named as the new County Agent Friday by the Valley County Extension Agent's Office. The 33-year-old native of Leigh, NE will likely start work here the first of December, according to Carol VanNordenheim, Home Extension Agent.

A University of Nebraska graduate, Martens is now training in Madison County. He has a Masters Degree in Agronomy from the University. Alan, his wife, Leona, have two sons, Mark eight years old and Matthew, age three.

Saves Life of Brother-in-Law

Former Ordite Tom Anderson, son of the C. A. Andersons, was credited with saving the life of a relative at Grand Island this past weekend.

According to a report of Hall County Sheriff C. F. Hendley, John Hatcher — who suffers from muscular dystrophy, was strapped into a little dune buggy for a drive in the hills surrounding a sand pit near Grand Island on Saturday.

Apparently unfamiliar with the area, he drove over a 15-foot embankment into the water.

A relative, Grand Island attorney Tom Anderson, dove into the water, pulled Hatcher out and kept him alive with artificial respiration until deputies arrived, the sheriff said.

Hatcher was listed in fair condition at a hospital Monday. "If it had not been for the quick thinking of Tom Anderson, this is very easily could have been a drowning," Hendley said.

Hatcher is the brother-in-law of Anderson — Tom having married John's sister, Barb.

County Clerk Thelma Dulitz has had her hands full getting ready for the November election. After voters cast their ballots, the long work of counting begins, and waiting for precincts to report their totals. This year, her election night vigil could be a long one. Valley County voters will have between 11 to 14 ballots facing them November 7.

Thelma recalled one year when her office finished counting at 7:00 a.m. the day after the election.

Former Quiz Kid Has Photo Showing

Former Quiz kid, Les Freeman, has a photographic exhibition at the First National Bank of Ord.

The 24 pictures went on display Monday and will be shown until Friday, November 17.

Les said he has been working with photography since 1966. He was bitten by the shutterbug while messing around with an old camera his father, Les, owned.

Known as Slim, father Les was an Ord resident for many years. He was employed by the State Road Department. Les worked for Quiz Graphic Arts from 1962-69.

School
From there, he went to a school in Nashville teaching offset printing techniques. On graduating in 1969, he went with Mid America Web Press, Lincoln, his present employer.

While printing is his vocation, photography is his hobby. He first started with black and white film, later advancing to colored shots.

His subjects have included "just about everything" Les told the Quiz. These have included animals, flowers, and many other subjects.

Les' mother, Eileen Freeman lives in Ord.

Count Dracula, the Wolfman, ghouls, ghosts, and other Halloween creatures of the night were in residence on 11th Street at the Ord 'haunted' house. Funds from admission prices will scare up funds for equipment needed at Valley County Hospital.

Syl Furtak — Forty Years of First Downs

Area schools closed out their football seasons last week. Coffee shops sazes and others, from the first kickoff to the last gun, have had fun diagnosing misdirected plays and speculating on what might have been.

While most area residents are fans of the gridiron game, some follow the sport with more knowledge than do others. Syl Furtak is in this latter group. For 40 years he has been officiating area football games.

Ord's well-known resident first wore the striped shirt at a game in North Loup. It was 1938.

"I've been pretty interested in sports all along," Syl told the Quiz. Before officiating, he used to send information to newspapers on athletic events in the Loup Valley. Coverage of high school sports by outstate papers, back then, was limited or inconsistent, Syl recalled.

"Then one fella asked me to help officiate," he said. That "fella" was Kermit Ericson.

Back then, anyone could call a game. All they had to do was read the rule book and get to know the game. Certification programs and written exams didn't exist.

Generally the head linesman was an unpaid volunteer from the "inside crowd."

"Back then, there was what Syl called 'a crying need' for officials. Few people wanted to take the guff dished out by game spectators.irate fans often would follow officials to the dressing room and then to their cars, Syl recalled.

He early learned to greet the coaches, call the game, and get off the field. "And never," he cautioned, "show any favoritism."

This and other suggestions and regulations are contained in a set of books each game official is now required to buy. Tests insure the books are read and understood.

The Nebraska High School Activities Association first began registering officials back in 1913.

"It was an effort to improve the game," Syl explained.

Later, the NHA decided to have annual rules reviews and written tests. An official could be registered, approved, or certified. Syl received his certification in the early 1950s, shortly after the three categories were established.

"Now the main goal of all this was to get 'em (officials) to read the rule book," Syl commented.

Nowdays, officials can be registered for three years only. After that, they must take a closed book test and receive an approved or certified classification.

Over the years, Syl has encouraged many football aficionados to become officials. At one time there were eight three-man officiating teams in the Ord area. Now, there are two. (Continued on page 8)

One souvenir from former days of football is Syl's horn. The umpire blew it to mark the end of quarters.

Many people don't realize Syl designed and built field clocks for many area schools. "I did the whole thing myself," he recalled. This included everything from assembling brass gears in the clockwork movement to designing and painting the board and clock face. The last one he made went to the school up in Taylor, about 10 years ago.

The clock was designed so that it could also be used with basketball.

Project Hearing Will Be Nov. 9th in Ord

A meeting of concerned views and comments concerning information contained in the draft supplement to the North Loup Division Final environmental Statement will be held November 9 at the Elks Lodge in Ord, beginning at 9 a.m.

Persons wishing to make statements at the hearing may be placed on the statement schedule by writing or calling the Lower Missouri Regional Office, Bureau of Reclamation, Denver Federal Center, Denver 80225, telephone (303) 234-3779. Ballot Boxes - Candidates Await November Elections

Voters will determine the fates of state, national and local office seekers along with several proposals when they cast their ballots November 7 in the general election.

On the federal level, Nebraska Governor J. James Exon is seeking a senate seat as is his Republican opponent Don Shasteen. Other federal candidates include Democrat Marilyn Fowler and Republican incumbent Virginia Smith.

Drawing the most attention on the state level is the governor's race. Gerald Whelan, a prodigy of Exon, and Orville Keys are making their bid for the Governor and Lieutenant Governor's posts, respectively.

Facing the two Democrats will be GOP contenders Charles Thone and Roland Luedtke. Thone, a former Congressman, said he wants a state-level position because a shift in public sentiment is returning power to the states, away from the federal level.

Other state level races to be decided include those for the Secretary of State, Auditor of Public Accounts, State Treasurer, and Attorney General.

Local Races

Local races where one or more persons seek an office include those for County Clerk, County Sheriff, the Supervisors race in the Fifth District, and the School Board contest.

In that last mentioned race a field of six candidates is off and running for three seats to be vacated by the November election. Those six candidates were reduced from a field of 10 in the May 9 primary election.

Of the remaining six, only Ed Vancura is an incumbent.

Ed. board seats up for grabs include those occupied by Vancura, board chairman Dr. Dale Karrie, and Dennis Krikac. Of the three, only Ed Vancura chose to run again.

Others in the school board race include Ray Marshall, Darrel Smith, Karen Zaruba, Barbara Weems, and Ronald Ritz.

At an October 5 meet the candidates forum here in Ord, Zaruba and Smith said they favored the Lid Bill constitutional amendment, while Barbara Weems told the audience she was against it.

Subsequent Quiz interviews have revealed incumbent Ed Vancura is opposed to the five percent spending ceiling as is Ray Marshall. Candidate Ronald Ritz told the Quiz he was undecided about the proposed Constitutional amendment.

Vancura said he is against the lid because it would hurt the education of students if it went through.

Other candidates expressing opinions on the lid bill were incumbent County Clerk Thelma Dulitz. The GOP candidate speculated it might be possible to live with the lid, providing there were no emergencies.

Her opponent Ron Radil, a Democrat, said he is against the amendment because it would be hard to change.

Both sheriff candidates, Democrat Martin Sonnenfeld and GOP contender Woody Woodgate said they were opposed to the measure. Sonnenfeld said he might approve of a Proposition 13 type law, but couldn't support the proposed amendment.

In the County Supervisors race representatives from districts 1, 3, 5, and 7 are up for reelection. District One representative Kenneth Collins, faces no opposition. Neither do Leon Klanecky from District Three nor Richard Bossen from District Seven. All are Republicans.

Eldon Foth Receives Meritorious Service Award in 4-H Ceremonies

A surprised Eldon Foth received the Meritorious Service Award Thursday during the 4-H Achievement Program in North Loup. A long-time advocate of 4-H, Foth has served as 4-H County chairman several times, has been a 4-H Club leader, served as Valley County Fair superintendent, and has helped 4-H members and clubs in various other ways.

County Extension agent Carol VanNordenheim described Foth as "A person we could call on. He has been a real friend of 4-H and someone we knew would help."

Eldon, his wife, Sharon, and their family live south of Ord in the Mira Valley area.

Pam Meese, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Meese, won the Outstanding 4-H Member Service Award on the basis of her activities above and beyond the normal call of duties. The 17-year-old Ord High senior took part in the National 4-H Congress in Chicago this year, is a Junior Leader, and is pianist for a song group.

The Outstanding Valley County 4-H'er award went to Sharon Kriewald, 17-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. August Kriewald of North Loup. The North Loup Scotia High senior has been a 4-H member for several years, according to her father. She is a Junior Leader, active in judging contests and horse-ownership events.

Clifford Moody of Greeley uncovered some humorous Ord history Thursday while working at the former Hastings-Pearson Mortuary, 232 South 16. While taking down some ductwork in the building he found the message "Hi stupid! When the roll is called up yonder you'll be there."

Some whimsical workman evidently painted the message on the heating and cooling duct when it was first installed. The side with the writing was placed next to the ceiling, concealing it from view.

Moody works for Greeley Gas and Electric, contractors on the building renovation. The City of Ord signed a lease-purchase agreement with Ord Masons, building owners, and plans to use the first floor for municipal offices.

The mortuary, now Ord Memorial Chapel, has moved to officer northwest of town on Highway 11.

Ben Waterman and Cynthia Greshirner of Grand Island were Sunday afternoon visitors and lunch guests of his Aunt Dolie Waterman. Helen Horn was also an afternoon caller.

Ak-Sar-Ben Week: A Fantasy World

The royal court supper-dance, Saturday, was the finale of Ak-Sar-Ben Week festivities for Council 5897, January 7, 1979. The meeting was adjourned and refreshments were served by the group chairman.

For Friday's coronation ceremony, at which John C. Kenefick of Omaha was crowned King and Diane Todd Howard of Omaha was named Queen of Ak-Sar-Ben, the Ak-Sar-Ben Hall was transformed into a garden setting reminiscent of Saratoga Springs, NY during its heyday as a fashionable Victorian spa and racing resort. White wicker furniture, hurricane lamps with white candles and table centerpieces of white daisies and lemon leaves added to the Victoriana theme.

The decor combined deep turquoise and mint green — colors of the court gowns worn by the queen's attendants — accented with white highlights. Attending Ak-Sar-Ben festivities from Ord were the Kerry Leggetts, parents of Countess Sheryl Grove, and her grandmother Mrs. Dale Norman. Sisters Shannon Grove of Lincoln and Susan Grove of Omaha were also in attendance.

The Ken Clements, friends of Countess Karen Olson's family of York, attended the Saturday night Coronation Ball. Saturday's party chairman was Mrs. Barbara Lewis, wife of former Ordite Kirk C. Lewis.

Swedes Sack Ord Chanticleers 28-18

Two second quarter touchdowns pushed Gothenburg Swedes to a 28-18 win over host Ord Friday night. The Chants ended their season with a 2-5 record while guest Gothenburg was 6-3 after Friday's play.

Ord Chants and the Swedes are long-time rivals. Their meeting has closed out the schools football season for a number of years. Last year, the Swedes ended their season with a 21-14 loss to Ord.

This year, things were different. Whopping runs by Lenny Ambler, Rod Franzen, and friends gave Gothenburg the win. Ord drew first blood Friday with a touchdown by Keith Pelton early in the first quarter.

A punt return by Valla opened that scoring drive. Barry Witherwax pushed to near midfield on a keeper. Then it was Pelton again, ripping through the line, and in for a touchdown.

Gothenburg wasn't long in replying. Their Lonnie Ambler ran 65 yards on a return, tying the game six all. The extra point was good, and Gothenburg closed out the first quarter with a 7-6 lead.

Ord struck again, early in the second period. Russ Barnes recovered a fumble near the Gothenburg 33 and the Ord team turned it into touchdown number two.

That came after Novosad moved the ball near the 20 yard line. Then it was Valla, Novosad, and Pelton slowly clawing inside the 10, and finally the one yard line. Valla plunged over, giving Ord a 12-7 lead, temporarily.

Two plays later Gothenburg's Larry Ambler was in Ord's end zone. With the extra point the Swedes were out in front 13-12.

Ord came within a fumble of shifting the lead minutes later. A Swede fumble at their 36 gave Paul Beran the ball, and Ord a golden opportunity.

Pelton was inside the five when another fumble gave Gothenburg the ball again.

The Swedes wasted no time in running the ball to their 43 and then to the Ord 29 yard line. With just seconds left in the first half, they carried into Ord's end zone.

When the teams left the field, Gothenburg had a 21-12 edge on Ord.

Replay

Spectators got a near replay of Gothenburg's long runs shortly after the third period opened. Charging Swedes ran the ball from their 31 to the Ord 24, and then to inside the five yard line. After a quick pitch-out Gothenburg was in front 26-12. After a successful two point attempt, they jumped ahead 28-12 with 10:42 on the clock.

Keith Pelton gave his version of the long run on a return from the Ord 25 to the Swede 36. The Chants had penetrated to the 22, when an illegal procedure call moved to the ball back near the 35 yard line.

Pelton tried again, but was stopped dead in his tracks by the Gothenburg defense. An incomplete pass followed, and Ord faced a fourth down and ten long yards to go.

This near-sure punting situation turned into touchdown number three for the Ord Chants. Witherwax caught a pass near the 10 yard line and ran it in pushing Ord to 18 points.

An attempted run by Valla for the extra points was a near-miss for the Ord team. Valla took a hand off and was stopped just a few feet from the end zone.

The Swedes took the ball at their 26 and punted to near the Ord 27 before running into trouble and out of first downs.

Their hardships started when Ord tackle Jim Smith nailed the Swede's quarterback at the 35 yard line for an eight yard loss. On the next play Chants broke through the Gothenburg line and pushed the carrier back to the 45 for a fourth and long yards.

A successful pass play did gain a few yards, but nowhere near the real estate needed for a first down.

Ord got the ball and blundered into what could have been a near disaster. A solid Chant defense averted what could have been another Swede touchdown. That came when Gothenburg got the ball on the Chant 24, after a fumble.

The swift Swedes got within the Ord 10, but a solid defense held them back. After that, the best Gothenburg could produce was a five yard loss and an incomplete pass.

The following punt landed just inside Ord's end zone, and the ball came back out to the 20. A near textbook draw play got Valla from the Ord 20 to the Gothenburg 40 yard line.

The Chants then steadily chipped away at needed yardage and were near the Swede's 10 yard line when they had a fourth down and nearly one yard to go. Ord went for it, but came up just inches short of the first down.

A fumble by the Swedes gave Ord the ball at their seven yard line and some high hopes. That was about all Ord got out of the situation. Four plays later, Gothenburg took over on their 10-yard line.

Another blitz return landed the Swedes at the Ord 35. They were just short of a first down, on the next play, near the 25, when quarterback Steve Dudley was sacked at the 35 on the next play.

Ord took over, but couldn't produce a first down.

Gothenburg took over and had penetrated to the Ord 15 when the game ended.

Ord Nips St. Paul In District Action Ainsworth Next

Ord won over St. Paul in District B-6 play at Broken Bow Tuesday night. The gal Chant spikers took the game in three sets, the first with a handy 15-7 win. The second set looked like it would be the same story. Ord had St. Paul down 14-8 when they staged a rally.

St. Paul got their act together and came back to take the set 16-14 against Ord. This was likely one of the best comeback efforts seen on the volleyball court in area play recently.

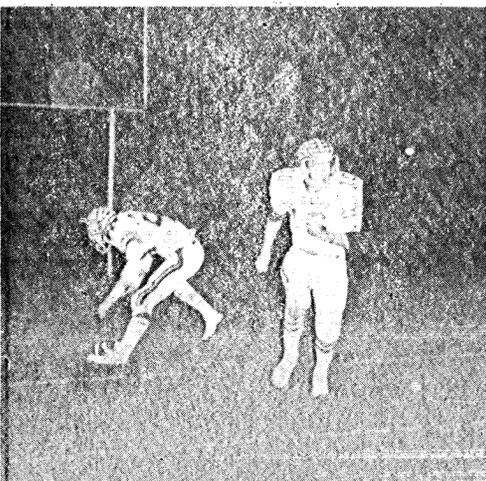

One impressed spectator noted Ord needed only one more point to take the second set. It never came.

After a coach-players huddle the gal Chants pulled together to win the third set 15-4. That win entitles them to battle with Ainsworth Friday at Broken Bow. Game time is 5:45 p.m.

The winner of that match will play the winner of the Loup/O'Neill match Friday. Game time is 8:00 p.m.

SAVE IN ORD

Russ Barnes (34) and Kevin Valla (20) break up a play near the Gothenburg end zone in first quarter play here Friday.

Whoops! Jay Novocsek, Gothenburg quarterback, dropped the ball on a Chant kickoff during Friday's game here.

Ord Spikers Make It To Central 10 Semifinals

The Ord varsity volleyball team made it to semi-final action in the Central 10 Conference tournament last week before being defeated by the York Dukettes at York, Thursday.

That tournament opened with Ord downing Crete in two out of three games Tuesday. Ord won by scores of 14-16, 15-11, and 15-2. After losing the first game in a close match, Ord gals rallied, and downed powerhouse Crete.

Vicki Mason led Ord's scoring with 23 points, and Kathy Hansen added eight points of her own.

Barb Kittle had what coach Jan Weber called "an outstanding spiking attack", Thursday, putting down 20 ace spike attacks. Kittle was 29 for 34 attempts, 85.2 percent.

Rhonda Brass led Ord in setting with 35 of 35 attempts, 100 percent, with 12 assists.

Coach Weber listed the following girls as having demonstrated fine serving in the Ord-Crete match:

- Vicki Mason with 24 of 26 attempts for 92.3 percent.
- Kathy Hansen with 12 of 13 attempts for 92.3 percent.
- Shari Fox with 6 of 6 for 100 percent.

Ord's team serving was 89.2 percent making 58 of 65 attempts.

Semi Final Action

Following their win Tuesday, the Ord gals advanced to semi-final action Thursday at York. Perennial powerhouse York downed Ord 15-10 and 15-3. Ord had trouble setting the ball set up and spent most of the game playing defense.

The Ord team made a valiant come from behind try in the first game, but it wasn't quite enough to win the set. Ord failed to carry this momentum into the second game and were downed 15-3.

In consolation matches, Ord played David City, who was defeated earlier by Seward. Ord won the three game set 4-15, 15-6 and 15-15.

Ord coach Weber termed the contest "... a very high spiking game". David City spiked the ball well against Ord. General errors along with that cost Ord the first round 4-15.

Ord then came back and nailed David City 15-6. Leading scorer in that second game was Vickie Mason with seven points, Rhonda Brass led setting with eight assists, Vicki Mason had five and Pam Meese three.

Ord served nicely, with 58 out of 62 attempts, for 93.5 percent.

The series win came down to a 17-15 game, "and you don't get much closer than that", Weber commented.

Kathy Hansen helped by being high scorer in the three game series. She had 10 points.

York went on to beat Seward in final round competition that same day, Thursday. Weber called that final battle "some of the finest volleyball in the state."

On To Districts

Ord spikers went on to District bouts at Broken Bow Tuesday, by taking on Broken Bow. The winner of that game advanced to play at 5:45 p.m. Friday in Broken Bow.

There are eight top teams in the broken Bow contest and competition will be tough. Included are Ord, O'Neill, Broken Bow, Valentine, Loup City, St. Paul, West Holt, and Ainsworth.

Ansley Snares District Volleyball Championship

Ansley knocked off Stuart to capture the C-9 district volleyball championship title in play at Ord Tuesday night. The spikers from Ansley knocked off Stuart in two quick games 15-2 and 15-1.

In the first finals match, Ansley had an 8 point edge before Stuart could score a point. Stuart's lone tally for the match came when a return ended up tangled in the net. Point number two for the Stuart Broncos came when an Ansley serve sailed out of court.

After that, it was determined Ansley working, thinking in reacting as a team. The champions Warriors played some of the best volleyball seen in these parts for some time.

The Warriors got to final match competition by knocking off Rock County in preliminary play and then downing Ravenna in semi-final matches Tuesday.

Ravenna fell in two quick sets, 15-3 and 15-7. Ansley never played more than two matches against any opponent the entire tournament.

Wins here bring their record to 17-1 for the season. Their one loss this year was to Litchfield in conference tournament early in October.

After this, it is on to regional play in the Central 10 division.

The site and date will be determined later.

Warrior coach Pat Hoblyn said Ansley has had volleyball as a regular sport for 10 to 15 years.

This year, going into regional play, she took time off to have a daughter, and this year returned to leading the squad.

While piloting Warriors spikers, she has earned a 56-3 record for her three years at the school.

Eight teams entered preliminary competition here Monday. They were O'Neill St. Mary's, Spirit, Sargent, Burwell, Ansley, Rock Co., Ravenna, and Ansley-Merna. Semi-final and final matches were held Tuesday.

Two men tied for first place. They were Lerry Curran of Greeley and Dave Bosley of Grand Island. Both finished the course in a time of 50 minutes and 45 seconds. Mark Dugan of Greeley placed 12th.

Women's Division

The women's division was won by Kay Curran of Greeley, with a time of one hour six minutes and 47 seconds. Karlene Ericson of Ericson took second place.

Fourth Quarter Explosion Blasts Arcadia to a Season End Victory

A fourth quarter explosion blew host Wolbach off the field Wednesday night. Guest Arcadia Huskies erupted with 20 points in the last stanza winning the game 30-14.

Before the onslaught, Arcadia lagged 14-10. A late first quarter touchdown by Curt Teeter gave Wolbach the needed edge.

Both Wolbach and Arcadia got eight points in the second quarter and in the third, Arcadia nailed a Wolbach player in the end zone for a safety. Arcadia Huskie Dave Lewandowski was credited with that play.

Then came the explosive fourth. "We had excellent field position the entire second half", Arcadia coach, John Crose recalled. Player errors and infractions kept the Huskies from capitalizing on this asset in the third period.

In the fourth, it all jelled. Steve Einspahr's rapid fire three touchdowns at the start of the last stanza "was the whole game," in Crose's words. "I've never seen a greater individual performance and a better come-back by a team."

Einspahr came in to replace Doug Cox, in the last period. Cox was out with a broken bone in his hand.

The substitute finished the game with eight carries for 134 yards. Mused Crose, "Maybe I've overlooked him all year."

Both Cox and Einspahr will be back next year, a prospect pleasing to Crose in his first year at the school.

The Huskies will lose four players to graduation, come next year. "As they go, these kids are finally learning they can win."

Departing players include Kevin Holcomb, center; Mick Anderson, guard; Paul Hill, end; and in the backfield, John Cox.

"All four have given us a lot of leadership and have had a good year", Crose told the Quiz Friday.

That '78 season got off to a slow start. The Huskies were 1-3 at mid-season their first part of October. "Up to that time, we hadn't pulled together," the Huskie coach recalled.

A team discussion after the North Loup-Scotia and Arcadia disaster changed all that. Crose termed the Team's playing that night the worst all season and recalled the game included five fumbles and two interceptions by Arcadia players.

But then came the team discussion. It was followed by a 12-12 tie with Spalding Academy the following Friday. Crose was then quoted as saying, "I think we can win our last three games", and that is exactly what Arcadia did.

That happy three game trail ended Wednesday with the romp over Wolbach, closing out a season with four wins, three losses, and one tie. Crose termed the '78 gridiron season the best Arcadia has had since 1974.

"I've had more talented teams," the Huskies' pilot stated, "but I've never had a more satisfying season. The kids never lay down. They gave all kinds of effort."

Asked about next year, Crose replied, "You never know." He did admit Arcadia was blessed by escaping serious injuries this season, and this did help us down the last stretch", he said.

Reviewing season end statistics, Crose commented, "You know, I'm looking forward to next year. These kids are finally learning they can win."

Further lessons along this line are planned.

be ground up into flour and used for bread.

The fellers was pleased that George was pleased about all of this, but Richard Lukesh said he was taking George's report on the food chain with a heap of salt. Richard said he, fer one, wasn't ready for no kudz salad, and as long as there was wheat in the world he weren't switching to kudz biscuits. He said there is vegetables and there is weeds and he'd as soon leave it that way. He said the bone and sawdust he gets in his hamburger, and sand that keeps the salt he eats from clogging is bad enough.

But John Petska, that don't talk much, spoke up fer George. The neatest trick he had heard of, John said, was this perfessor in North Carolina that wants to build a space ship you can eat after you git where you're going. He had made a building material out of wool, silk, sugar and hamburger, but he can't whet NASA's appetite fer it, John said.

READ 2 CORINTHIANS 5:17-21
"When anyone is joined to Christ, he is a new being; the old is gone, the new has come." (2 Corinthians 5:17 TEV)
God made a promise to His children in the Old Testament Book of Joel. He said, "I will restore to you the years that the locust hath eaten."
I didn't understand the meaning of this promise until the Lord opened the mess in my own life. I now realize that God is able not only to work in the present and in the future but is also able to work in the past! He can restore wasted years - but is also able to work in our lives. God can do major surgery - cutting out the wasted past and sewing up our lives in such a way that at last even the scars are healed. Because of Calvary and Christ's atonement, God is able to throw all our sins and wasted years into a bottomless lake, to be remembered no more. He even puts up a sign that reads, NO FORGETTING FOR THE DAY.

Just as the apostle Paul wrote, we can forget those things which are behind and reach forth. We can "press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus."
PRAYER: Our heavenly Father, we thank You for the blood of Jesus, which redeems us from our wasted past. Use us now for Your THOUGHT FOR THE DAY.
Christ breaks the power of canceled sin.

255,000 Hours Without Accident

(Editor's note: The following article appeared in the October, 1978 Nebraska Rural Electric. The publication hails the Loup Valley Public Power District in Ord for the 255,000 accident free hours. Their last mishap was in March, 1971.)

Safety is a little like a good marriage.

It needs constant reinforcement. Like, for instance, letting the better half know your feelings once in a while. Makes both of you feel better. Makes things a little "safer" in your marital relationship you might say.

Keep Safety Uppermost in Mind
Though this comparison sounds a little farfetched — and many a husband and wife may disagree — safety at work does depend heavily upon keeping safe work practices uppermost in the mind.

And, the way to do this, says Manager Wilbert Calvin of Nebraska's Loup Valleys Rural Public Power District at Ord, is to make everyone's safety the business of everyone else in the organization.

It has worked at Ord to the tune of some 255,000 accident-free work hours since the last accident in March of 1971. That's an excellent record in the utility business where so many tasks are fraught with accident possibilities. And, where death can often be the result of a careless act.

Remind Others on Safety
Manager Calvin says the safety program depends upon understanding by everyone who works for the district that each is responsible for watching for unsafe work practices by others and telling them so if he sees it.

Though this could be expected to generate some resentment on the part of the worker who unwittingly does something wrong, it does not at Loup Valleys because of the close working and personal relationship of the staff.

No Criticism Involved
The object, says Calvin, is to bring things to the attention of others without being critical. "It's not criticism," he says, "it's just a reminder, openly discussed. It's based on the fact that someone watching a job being done is in a better position to spot unsafe practices than the person doing the job."

The safety performances of employees are discussed openly and candidly at monthly meetings of employees, including the women working in the office.

Such round-table discussions have brought out the fact that some had seen fellow workers taking chances but were hesitant to say anything about it for fear of being regarded as being too critical.

In-Depth Accident Discussions
This kind of feeling is gone now, adds Calvin, and actual and possible carelessness that could cause accidents are talked over in depth by the men. Meetings last a full half-day, with everyone getting into the act.

One of the important things employees must realize at such meetings, says Calvin, is that there will be no black mark on his record because he has been reminded that he might have just barely avoided an accident.

Recognizing that personal problems are perhaps the major cause of accidents at work, Calvin, Line Foreman — Safety Director Dan Klimek and Chuck Ackles, line superintendent, make it a practice to encourage employees to get personal problems off their chest in private conferences. This also has worked well at Loup Valleys and a sense of trust has entered that in itself makes for a climate in which accidents are less likely to occur.

Confidences Are Kept
"We make sure," says Calvin, "that anything the man says to us in private is kept that way. The confidence this builds is essential to letting a man blow off steam that might someday bind him to a dangerous situation at work."

"We had fairly frequent accidents before we began this program, including the death of

Mahoney Farmer-Rancher Speaker

The State Game and Parks Commission had center stage during the farmer and rancher appreciation banquet Tuesday, at the Ord Elks Club. G and P Director Gene Mahoney told how that agency serves the public.

For years the commission was short on funds, according to the speaker. At one point it ranked 14th in state budgeting priorities. Yet, the director pointed out, it served many Nebraskans.

Along with supervising state parks, the agency also heads fish and game management in Nebraska.

With these activities and others, the state agency had to look for additional funding. This came from park entry fees and receipts of a penny cigarette tax. Cigarette funds formerly helped build the University of Nebraska stadium in Lincoln.

Mahoney concluded his remarks by noting the agency he heads serves most Nebraskans in one way or another. Hunters and fishermen benefit from the agency's game management while vacationers often visit the 90 plus state parks in Nebraska.

He called Fort Hartsuff, located between Ord and Burwell, "my favorite historical park."

The banquet was sponsored by the Ord Chamber of Commerce, to show appreciation for farmers and ranchers support over the year. Chamber official Bill French placed attendance at about 360 persons.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Andreesen and Mr. John Johnson (left to right).

Andreesen Receives American Farmer Award

The National FFA Organization bestowed the Honorary American Farmer Degree upon 85 outstanding vocational agriculture instructors teaching in 36 states. The presentations were made during the 51st National FFA Convention in Kansas City, MO, November 7-10, 1978. Frank M. Andreesen, vocational agriculture teacher at the Ord Public school, at Ord, NE was one of those honored. Each recipient was presented a certificate and a gold key designating the highest degree of membership in the FFA.

The instructors honored this year have a total of 2,000 years experience teaching vocational agriculture. They have helped 4,000 students achieve the FFA's State Farmer Degree. Of these, the National Organization's highest degree, the American Farmer, was earned by nearly 300 of their students. More than 200 of their students were elected to State FFA leadership positions.

The recipients were guests of honor at a dinner Wednesday evening, November 8 sponsored by Ford Tractor Operations, Troy, MI. Mr. J. John Johnson, General Sales Manager, Ford Tractor Operations for North America, Troy, MI was the guest speaker.

Wendland at Church's Centennial

Mark Wendland

Mark Wendland former Ord High vocal teacher was in Ord Friday and Saturday for the Methodist Church's century celebration. The former Ord High instructor left teaching to enter the ministry in 1975.

Mark joined the OHS faculty in 1972. Highlights of his three years here included producing "Fiddler on the Roof" and a course on death and dying. One of the first in the state, it was part of the humanities program Wendland had.

He started that program "probably because," he said, "life becomes richer when you deal with death — a reality of life."

Mark left his teaching career here, often called a very successful one, to enter the ministry. Asked why, he responded, "There are three ways people enter the ministry. One is by a tremendous spiritual experience, and the next a gradual luring process where you are called a step at a time. The last one, I guess, is when you have nothing better to do."

His calling was the second kind. Mark said he was gradually lured into the church. His teaching and humanities course provided what he called "the gate" into the ministry.

Leaving Ord in 1975 he went to St. Paul's seminary in Kansas City, MO and is now serving a church in Springfield, NE, a town outside Omaha. "It's impossible to guess what the population is, it's growing so fast," Mark said.

"Schools in Springfield have grown eight percent in one year, according to Wendland. He attributed this and other growth there to urban sprawl."

He called the town's population explosion "phenomenal," adding there is a McDonald's hamburger stand nearby. "And they don't put them in where they will fail," he observed.

The church he serves is growing, too. "Some people feel like we're being invaded," he told the Quiz. "They don't know everyone in town anymore."

This growth makes his ministry challenging and exciting, Mark stated. He and other church officials are wondering just how big a church should be. Some favor a large metropolitan church while others believe smaller churches can best serve a large number of people.

"We'll have to face that question eventually," Mark admitted. Right now, the debate on which direction to follow continues.

Since leaving Ord Mark married the former Jackie Eckhoff of Holden, MO last May 13. Their marriage is a happy one, Mark said, and so is his choice of a career.

"At first I missed teaching once in a while," he said. "But now I know this was meant for me."

Quiz Office Will Be Closed On Thanksgiving Day

The Ord Quiz will be closed Thursday, November 23, for Thanksgiving. Staff members usually find themselves short on time and long on work after a holiday.

News items and advertising should be in as soon as possible.

Kids Thankful For Many Things

With Thanksgiving approaching, the Ord Quiz asked youngsters in the Humpty Dumpty Preschool for what they were thankful. Their answers were honest and varied.

Heather Zanger said she was thankful for her mother, father, and brother, Luke. Vickie Keyser was giving thanks for wintertime while Nathan Holtz expressed gratitude for last summer.

John Edgill had to think awhile before responding. He then answered, "Well, I'm thankful for my gun."

For what are you thankful this holiday season?

Interest Hikes on Coasts Will Be Felt Here Two Bankers Say

Recent interest rate jumps on east and west coasts will be felt here, two Ord bankers revealed. Banks in California and New York raised their prime rate to 11 percent and then lowered it to 10 1/2 percent last week.

Along with farm loans, home mortgages are a major portion of a bank's loan portfolio. Home mortgage rates are now around 10 1/2 to 11 percent, according to Blaha. Interest rates in individual cases depend on the down payment made and other variable Stine agreed.

Prime rate is the interest rate charged preferred borrowers on loans. As one economist stated it, "Prime rate is the interest banks charge General Motors when it borrows $500."

Don Blaha of the First National Bank and Greg Stine of Nebraska State Bank, both of Ord, agreed the new higher interest rates "would set off a chain reaction eventually hiking loan costs in the Midwest. Loan rates here are now near 10 percent or 10 percent plus according to Stine.

Some banks, according to Blaha, are nearing the maximum interest rate allowed by law. That is 11 percent. "But ours isn't that high," Blaha said.

"Swings in the Midwest economy aren't as extreme as they are on either coast, Blaha told the Quiz. The farmer-rancher borrower usually wants a steady amount of capital, he stated. Nebraska's economy is better balanced, Stine said, more diversified.

The United Methodist Church Has Centennial Celebration

The Centennial Celebration of the First United Methodist Church of Ord concluded Sunday, Nov. 19, with the presentation of recognition pins to those who have been members of the United Methodist Church for 50 years or more. Jim Vodehnal, a member of the Centennial committee, made the presentation.

Lorraine Ferris was recognized as the oldest continuous member — 71 years; although John Haskell, who is a direct descendant of one of the founding families of this congregation, had joined earlier and transferred to other congregations before returning to Ord to live. Vivian Turner was also recognized as a direct descendant of one of the founding families (the Collins Family).

To those not present, the pins will be sent or delivered. Those include: Polly Auble, Elmer Almquist, John and Ruth Haskell, William and Norma Sack, Ida Noll, Vida Rathbun, Flossie Clark, Joe and Bertha Knezacek, Lyda Porter, Rollin Dye, Zola Griffith, Helen Jensen, Leah

Nelson, John Round, Mary Stara, Herman and Mary Stowell, and LaVon Warford. A gift of a quilt made by Mrs. Ted Slobaszewski was given to the church as a special centennial gift for them. Flowers that were at the altar during the celebration were in memory of Robert and Ava Noll for their faithful service to the church and Mr. and Mrs. Ben Eberhart and their children.

At the Centennial Fellowship Dinner that followed the morning worship, the youth musical group called "The Ghost Riders" sang. Mrs. Lucile Tolen, the compiler of the history of the church, was honored since Sunday was her birthday.

During the four days of celebration the attendance totaled nearly 650 persons. The next part of the Centennial Celebration will be on Sunday, Dec. 17, at the morning worship when Bishop Monk Bryan of the Nebraska Area will be present to bring a Centennial message. A Family Fellowship Dinner will follow the service.

LIGHT UP YOUR LIFE

THE GOVERNOR'S HIGHWAY SAFETY ADVISORY COMMITTEE IS ASKING ALL MOTORISTS TO DRIVE WITH THEIR HEADLIGHTS ON DURING THANKSGIVING WEEKEND. BE SEEN. BE SAFE.

Dear Sir: In regard to letters of the past weeks concerning teachers, I would like to say something. I am a student at OHS and see teachers everyday. They do a lot more work than what some people give them credit for. They dedicate their lives to teaching and give not only their services, but their time. I believe it is time to open the eyes of some people in this community and let them see teachers are a valuable asset to their children. They mold your children's lives by teaching and caring about them.

There of course may be teachers who don't care, but lets face it, they aren't in it for the money! Teachers are worth a lot more than they are paid. If as a student, do complain about teachers, but deep down I know they care and really want me to learn. Whoever wrote last week's "prayer" is a real sick person.

Perhaps they should visit a school, have and see how much work teachers do. Maybe the problem lies in administration, not faculty. This town had better quit complaining about teachers and be thankful we have good quality teachers. If you can find better, do it! In other words, put up or shut up.

Thank you. A Concerned OHS Student (Name withheld at writer's request)

AND BE THANKFUL... Another Thanksgiving. Another turkey dinner at the house of a relative. And you almost wish you could stay at home.

Don't do that. Instead, gather with those aunts, uncles, cousins, parents, or friends for this holiday's reunion. And when you sit down at the Thanksgiving dinner table to bow your head and speak those customary few words of thanks pause just a bit longer.

There are words in the Bible which say "Let the peace of God rule in your hearts... and be thankful." There are so many reasons.

COFFEE CUP PHILOSOPHY: "If you can't be thankful for what you've got, then be thankful for what you didn't get."

The 1978 Ord High Girls Basketball Team

Ord Chants To Be Smaller-Speedier

The varsity Lady Chant basketball squad will be smaller but speedier this year, according to their coach, Max Murray. Currently 18 girls are out for the season. Six of these are returning letter winners.

The six are Vicki Mason, a senior and two year starter; Marilyn Kusek, Shelly Blaha, Barb Kittle, a former starter; Anne Smith, and Nancy Gogan. Murray lost five girls to graduation last year. They helped form the nucleus of a team that was 13-5 at season's end. The girls lost in district finals to O'Neill at Atkinson, 55-50.

When Ord goes to districts this year, fans won't have so long a track. District games will be at Broken Bow during the 78-79 season.

Murray said that while the squad may be shorter, it will be speedier this year. With returning players the al Chants will be strong in both guard and center positions.

One of Murray's prime concerns is building depth in Ord's forward positions. Last year Wynne Adams, Barb Kittle and Sue Sich manned those posts. Sich and Adams have departed, and Kittle has been moved to center.

Just who will fill their shoes remains to be seen. Murray said no definite choices have been made yet. Several girls, he revealed, look promising.

They and their teammates this year will "... have to develop if we're going to have a year like in the past", in Murray's words. Both newcomers and returning players are strong on desire and hustle, their coach revealed.

All that is lacking is experience. The girls will start getting that December 1 at Crete. Game time is 6:15 p.m.

This is the first time Ord has played the gal Cardinals. Crete schools have had a women's basketball program the last four or five years, Murray said. He predicted the season opening game will be interesting.

"I've heard they're (Crete) real aggressive", Murray said.

Crete is one of several teams added to the Ord girls basketball schedule this year. It is part of the move dropping smaller schools from the athletic calendar in favor of teams from schools of comparable size.

Another change is that both boys and girls varsity basketball teams will play the same school, frequently. Both varsity boys and girls teams will be at Crete December 1. The girls will play at 6:15 and the boys at 8 p.m.

Tom Rhodes will assist Murray. This is his third year as assistant coach in the girls' basketball program at Ord High.

Four Ord Gridders Central Ten Players

Four Ord High football players were on the Central Ten All-Conference and All West Division teams released last Wednesday. Jim Welniak was selected as a defensive linebacker on the All-Conference squad. The OHS senior, a 178 pound guard, had 40 tackles and 85 assists during the '78 football season. He recovered two fumbles and had one 12 yard interception.

All West Division
All West Division selections were Jim Smith, Paul Beran, and Russ Barnes. Smith and Beran made the roster as offensive ends. Both are OHS seniors.

Season end statistics showed Smith, a 195 pound tackle, had 25 tackles and 59 assists to his credit.

Team mate Paul Beran, a 175 pound guard, snared three fumbles during the just completed season. Ord High varsity football coach Jim Blessen called Beran "... a real hard worker who has helped the team."

The third Ord High player in the All West Division is Russ Barnes. He was billed as a defensive end.

A 172 pound fullback, he is a senior and averaged 3.3 yards last season and got two fumbles. Barnes had 23 tackles and 60 assists to his credit.

The West Division of the Central Ten dominated the All Conference team with 16 of the 25 selections.

Third Quarter Blast Lifts St. Paul Understudies 18-9

Ord seventh and eighth grade girls opened their cage season on a somber note last Tuesday, November 14. Both bowed to host St. Paul.

In the eighth grade game, St. Paul nixed Ord 16-9. "It started out to be a pretty close game", Ord coach Rich Cecetka said. At the end of the third quarter Ord was ahead 9-8.

Then St. Paul exploded, doubling their score in one quarter, and winning 16-9. "We failed to block their off rebound alley", Cecetka explained. "This gave them easy shots inside."

The "idiot" white Ord went scoreless in the last quarter. "But the overall problem we had throughout the game," Cecetka explained, "was a lack of offense." He also mentioned the words "inexperience" during the Quiz interview Friday.

If the eighth grade game was a problem, God only knows what the seventh grade session was like. There, St. Paul swamped Ord 39-5. It wasn't until the last two quarters that Ord had any points on the board. By then, St. Paul had a nice 16 point lead. Ord scored two points in the third quarter and three in the last.

Cecetka expressed hopes for better days ahead. His first chance at these came Tuesday, when Burwell played here.

Quarter Scoring
Ord 4 1 4 0 9
St. Paul 2 4 2 8 16
St. Paul 1 1 1 1 4

Deer Numbers Are Down This Season

Deer numbers were down this season, according to Game Conservation Officer Ross Oestmann and Gary Ackles of Ackles Oil, the Ord deer check in station.

"We're not seeing as many", Oestmann said, "and we're seeing does not bucks." He attributed the decline to disease in deer herds and to inclement weather when the season opened November 11. It closed Sunday, November 19.

Gary Ackles confirmed deer check in this year are down from a year ago. Of the 106 brought in this season, 60 were white tail deer. The remaining 46 were mule deer.

More than half of these were shot the first two days of the season, according to Ackles.

Former Ord Players Make All Star Team

Two former Ord High athletes were among college players named to the NAIA District II All-Star team.

Coaches of the nine member colleges chose the 26 man honor team at a meeting earlier last week.

The two former Ord High players are Doug Peterson and Bob Hruby.

Hruby, a senior at Peru State, has been a four-year starter but switched from offense to defense early this season. The former OHS player stands 6'11" and weighs 225 pounds. He is one of two team captains.

The second player, Doug Peterson, is a third year member of the team. Kearney State's Honorable Mention NAIA All American last year, Peterson was the nose guard that led the defense allowing less than seven points per game.

Peterson has been approached by professional teams including the Dallas Cowboys and the Oakland Raiders recently.

Team members from District II will join members from NAIA's other 31 districts for consideration for the NAIA All-American teams. Division II teams will be announced December 15 and Division I teams will be revealed December 22.

By M. M. Van Kirk, Director of Information

There are indications that the Federal Government may start tightening up on land conservation requirements and responsibilities.

The National Association of Conservation Districts (NACD) has recently hosted meetings of Washington representatives of agricultural and environmental organizations to share concerns about conservation programs and propose solutions. The basic concern expressed by the NACD appears to be that voluntary farmer participation in federal conservation programs (a) varies significantly based on market prices of agricultural commodities; (b) while encouraging implementation of conservation practices, does not assure maintenance; and (c) does not lead to adequate participation in the conservation program or has not satisfactorily accomplished conservation objectives.

NACD has proposed, as a remedy to these problems, that eligibility for federally-funded economic assistance programs for farmers (target prices and loans on agricultural commodities, Federal Crop Insurance, Federal Flood Insurance, farmers home loans, and others) be limited to those farmers who "adequately" participate in conservation programs.

The NACD proposal offers the possibility of "green tickets" issued to individuals for the implementation of conservation practices. These "green tickets" would authorize participation in economic assistance programs.

It is expected that Congress will undertake a comprehensive review of conservation-oriented programs during the spring of 1979, and the National Association of Conservation Districts hopes to have its proposal ready at that time.

One can expect some drastic reaction of many farmers — particularly those who pay little attention to conservation practices — to some of these proposals. But the majority will recognize that most of these concerns are legitimate and that there has always been serious abuse of the federal conservation program, dating to its earliest days.

Many farmer conservationists have said for years that good soil and water conservation is just good business, resulting in greatly improved crop yield, rehabilitation of otherwise unproductive land, and increased, terraced where necessary to prevent damaging runoff, boasting such features as retention dams, grassed waterways, etc., will bring double the price of one that is full of gulleys and other signs of uncontrolled erosion.

There can be little argument that the enthusiasm for conservation that prevailed in the 1940's and 1950's has slipped. The demands of center pivot irrigation development have caused farmers to rip out shelterbelts wholesale. Increased use of bigger and bigger farm implements has caused many farmers to take out field terraces and reject further installations. Minimum tillage practices have helped make up for some but not all of the soil and water losses which have accompanied these changes.

In the late 1930's the taxpayers spent millions to solve the great Dust Bowl problems and get vast areas of Colorado, Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas back into grass. Then came World War II, the price of wheat and the demand for it rose, and once again it was plowed under. Other examples come to mind, including the "fencerow to fencerow" planting that came with high grain prices in 1973-74-75.

Soil and water conservation is not an "on again, off again" proposition but a long-range, continuous process if the nation's soil and water resources are to be maintained for future generations. Lack of consistency in the program is a very legitimate concern.

Rogers to Advisory Meeting

Carson Rogers of Ord, Nebraska, (right) talks with D. L. Hovendick, President of the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank of Omaha. Rogers, a director of the Broken Bow PCA, was in Omaha recently for a meeting of the PCA Directors Advisory Committee.

Carson Rogers of Ord, a director of the Broken Bow Production Credit Association (PCA) was in Omaha November 13 and 14 for a meeting of the PCA Directors Advisory Committee.

The nine-member committee, which represents over 20,000 farmers and ranchers who are PCA borrowers, meets semi-annually with officers of the Omaha Federal Intermediate Credit Bank (FICB) — the supplier of loan funds to PCAs in Iowa, Nebraska, South Dakota and Wyoming.

The committee and FICB officers discussed lending policies, agricultural economic conditions in the four-state area and the operations of the member-owned system.

PCAs currently have more than $1.3 billion in short and intermediate term loans outstanding to member-borrowers in the four-state area.

Efforts to Assure Steady Beef Supply Stymied by Administration

Efforts by the beef industry to assure a steadier supply of beef to the consumer have been stymied by the Administration's desire to retain more control over the beef supply, the Nebraska Beef Industry Foundation (NBIF) said today.

"Consumers have been misled by several administrations into thinking that allowing the president to have pushbutton control over beef imports helps the consumer," M. D. Shepherd, NBIF president said.

"Instead, in the long run consumers are hurt by arbitrary interference with the supply and demand situation. Any short term benefits are short indeed, and more political than real."

Shepherd said the beef industry has many times suggested a countercyclical formula for dealing with beef imports. Congress agreed with cattlemen that consumers would benefit most if more imports were allowed when domestic supplies were low. When domestic supplies were high, imports would be reduced.

Under present law, the opposite occurs, Shepherd explained. When domestic supplies are tight, fewer imports are allowed.

"This tends to create a 'glut or shortage' supply line for the consumer," Shepherd said. "A countercyclical formula would tend to level the peaks and valleys."

The Administration agreed with Congress on the formula, Shepherd said. The disagreement came on how much authority the president should have to suspend import quotas completely. Congress would have restricted that authority.

Under present law, the president can suspend quotas whenever he decides there is a national emergency, Shepherd said. President Carter, for example, felt there was a national emergency last June and suspended the quotas. However, supply and demand forces had already begun bringing retail prices down by themselves by the time Carter's action was taken.

The NBIF is also concerned that most consumers do not know what they are getting when it comes to foreign beef.

"Foreign beef does not get the same sanitation and wholesomeness inspection that U.S. beef gets," Shepherd said. Foreign beef gets spot checked by the shipload, while every single U.S. carcass is inspected, he noted.

Foreign beef is not of the same quality as U.S. beef, Shepherd said. For example, you'll virtually never see imported beef in the fresh meat case because U.S. consumers will not buy that kind of meat, he said. Imported meat is used by some companies in luncheon meats, sausage, canned products and, mixed with domestic beef, as ground beef.

"Most consumers don't even realize they're buying foreign beef because the law does not require labeling if it is mixed with domestic beef," Shepherd said. "The NBIF and other cattlemen's groups have requested the USDA to require labeling so that consumers could know exactly what they are buying, but the USDA has countered that that would be too difficult."

"We just feel consumers would benefit more from automatic formulas and more accurate product information," Shepherd said.

"Consumers should know for example, that imported beef does not get inspected like U.S. beef, does."

Heart Memorials Are Established

Heart Fund Memorials in the names of three Ord area residents have been received by Doris Thomas, Memorial Chairman for Valley County. These included are Henry Desmull of Ord, Anna Rohla of Ord, and Nora Dutcher of Greeley.

Thomas said memorials to the American Heart Association, Nebraska Affiliate, are an important source of support for continuing research and community service programs such as hypertension screenings, CPR classes, etc.

Memorials to the American Heart Association are acknowledged by a card naming the donor and the person in whose honor the donation is made.

Midwest Ending Area Appraisal

Midwest Appraisal Company is now finishing the reappraisal of Valley County. All property owners will be receiving notices as to the value placed on their property within the next two to three weeks.

Representatives of the company will hold informal hearings for those property owners who wish to discuss their property values. Dates and times for the hearings will be on the individual notices mailed to the property owners.

SELENIUM
Selenium concentrations in water sampled from 1,317 wells ranged from below detectable limits to almost 5 ppm.

Volcanic activity is the principal source for most selenium in the earth's crust. During volcanic eruptions some of the volatile selenium is carried into the atmosphere in volcanic ash which subsequently settles to, or is washed by precipitation to, the earth's surface. During the Cretaceous and Tertiary periods, considerable volcanic activity added seleniferous material to sediments then being deposited. Some members of the Pierre Shale (Cretaceous) together with sediments derived from them members contain much higher concentrations of selenium than do any other exposed rock units in the state.

Some selenium in groundwater may be dissolved directly from the rocks with which the water comes into contact, but probably most selenium in groundwater is derived from the decay of several species of plants native to areas where the soil is rich in selenium. These plants convert selenium from insoluble organic forms to soluble organic forms and accumulate the latter in concentrations commonly exceeding 1,000 mg/kg dry weight. Recharge from precipitation coming into contact with the decaying plant material transports the soluble selenium to the zone of saturation.

The highest selenium concentrations in Nebraska's groundwater occur in eastern Boyd County and northern Holt County. Some wells have been drilled through unconsolidated sediments of Quaternary age and into the underlying Pierre Shale to act as a reservoir for water draining from thin layers of saturated deposits just overlying the shale. Partially oxygenated water in these well casings may cause oxidation and subsequent solution of the selenium present at the shale-water contact. In addition, selenium is leached from soil containing decayed accumulator plants. These mechanisms probably are responsible for the high selenium concentrations in water from several wells ranged as high as 48 ppm.

Moderately high concentrations of selenium in groundwater occur in much of northeastern Nebraska. In this locality, Quaternary deposits consist in large part of fill that contains rock debris derived from shale formations. These deposits include also some layers of volcanic ash. In addition, some of the groundwater comes into contact with the Pierre Shale that underlies part of the area and is known to be a source of selenium.

Significant amounts of volcanic ash are in the Tertiary rocks underlying the large northwest Nebraska area of moderately high selenium concentrations in groundwater. Not only here but also in several other small areas in the state, volcanic ash probably is the source of the selenium in groundwater. The Pierre Shale underlies part of the northwest Nebraska area.

In the Phelps County area, Platte River water that previously was used for irrigation upstream is used again for irrigation. Such reuse causes an increase in the concentration of minerals dissolved in the water, and probably the concentration of selenium has been increased accordingly. Because groundwater supplies in the area have been increased greatly by seepage from the irrigation distribution system and water applied to cropland, the locally greater concentration of selenium in the groundwater is not surprising. Test drilling has shown that a deposit of volcanic ash occurs beneath at least part of this area also.

The Environmental Protection Agency drinking water regulation for selenium is .01 ppm. Few cases of selenium poisoning from drinking water have been documented. Selenium is known to be an essential micronutrient in quantities below the drinking water standard.

The maladies "blind staggers" and "alkali disease" are caused by high concentrations of selenium and are common in grazing animals living in seleniferous areas. These diseases generally are caused not from drinking water but from the ingestion of selenium-accumulator plants, grain, or hay crops grown on selenium-bearing soils. While man is susceptible to these maladies, he is not likely to be affected by them because his food comes from a large variety of areas even though he may reside where soils are seleniferous. Furthermore, cooking volatilizes much of the selenium that would be consumed if the food were eaten raw.

Hot Air Ride

Considering the mileage Public Service Commissioner Jack Romans gets out of his use of state vehicles documented or undocumented — possibly he should be considered for the State Energy Office.

Politician Romans has not only covered the state roadways, but he has racked up endless miles of newsprint from Nebraska's newspapers and countless hours of airtime via the electronic media.

If he continues to use a state vehicle, we hope it's not a Pinto with Firestone radials or the newsmen may be out of material.

Though we don't condone improper use of state vehicles, newsmen investigating governmental improprieties might make better use of their time and energy than getting high-centered on a sandhill trail.

Stand Up

After the sound and fury of the recent election passed, analysts found conservatives are gaining new ground on the state and national level. Time and other publications devoted barrels of ink and gallons of type to this new "discovery".

Said Edwin Fuellner of The Heritage Foundation Forum: "While the faces are still the same, there was a definite change in the mood as leaders of many of America's most prominent liberal organizations gathered in Detroit October 17 to lament their present and plan for the future."

"At the last get-together during the summer, their talk had been of 'right wing crazies' out to destroy the democratic liberties of the American people."

"While there was much of that kind of talk at the more recent meeting, there was also something of a more serious and reflective ring to the conversation. Maybe even a note of despair."

"They are outlobbying, outworking, and outspending and outthrusting us" said United Auto Workers president Douglas Fraser. But worst of all, he complained, "At times they are outthinking us."

The recent election in Valley County is an apparent microcosm of this trend. Two school board candidates received overwhelming approval from Valley County voters. Karen Zaruba with 999 votes and Darrel Smith with 931 votes finished first and second respectively, in a field of six persons.

They and incumbent Ed Vancura will fill the three school board seats that were up for grabs. Both Smith and Zaruba ran on platforms of reducing spending, returning to educational basics, and both were in favor of the lid bill.

A strong voter turnout, estimated at near 75 percent, saw both candidates get approval of these goals.

While supporting both candidates' views, we suggest that their solid voter endorsement isn't a permit to ram their views down the throats of fellow board members.

Some persons have contended this is exactly what will happen. Both candidates have been referred to as "barracudas" and members of "that bunch".

To avoid confirming these fears, new board members should listen to both sides of a question and show some consideration for the other person's opinion.

This isn't to say they should compromise their opinions. No way. However, it is one thing to stand up for what you believe, and something else to turn a local governing body into a zoo, or a shouting match.

Doing that would (1) likely kill any further chances for a conservative getting on the board and (2) give their opponents a golden opportunity to say, "Aha, I told you so!"

These two candidates have come too far and invested too much to have a darn fool thing like that sidetrack the good they can — and we hope will — do.

Something Different

Nice Contacts

From Mexico City comes a truly handsome brochure (printer speaking) inviting us to view the newest fantasies painted by an artist from Ord, Kathleen Clement, who has made quite a name for herself.

The showing on November 8 was held at the antique San Angel Galeria, say "San An Heel", and to visit this old palace is a treat in itself, refurbished as it has been to color and elegance. It is probably the most famous place for a show in all of Mexico City, and I should think it quite an honor to show there.

The cover picture Kathleen chose is certainly different. Six white eggs rest near a wildly checkered table cloth which changes colors several times, exhibiting deep reds, dark browns, greys and white . . . intriguing.

Kathleen's earlier art was often portraits, I have seen a good number of them and they were pleasing. A big one of her three children sprawled happily was especially nice.

But she was not content and has gone on to study with several excellent teachers who have encouraged her to branch out, to try her hand at several types of work. The recognition she is achieving is proof that her ability is in more than one form of oil.

Election Brings Worries To Exon Administration Members

CAPITOL NEWS
By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association
Lincoln — After a new governor is elected, many key members of the outgoing administration wonder what the future holds for them.

This is especially true when a Republican is selected to replace a Democrat or vice versa.

Some of the agency heads in the administration of Democratic Gov. J. J. Exon hope they will be retained by Republican Governor-elect Charles Thone while others know their jobs will end when Thone is sworn in on Jan. 4.

Many of the executives who are hoping the new governor will see fit to retain them are career state employees or experts. This group includes Dan Drain, director of the Department of Environmental Control, State Patrol chief Col. C. P. Karthaus, and John C. P. Karthaus, and John C. P. Karthaus, director of the State Department of Water Resources.

When asked recently what he thought about the transition that will occur with the change in administration, Karthaus said he chose law enforcement as a career "and I hope to continue to serve the people of the state of Nebraska."

Drain said he thought it would be inappropriate for him to be looking for another job.

The director of the Department of Administrative Services, Jon Oberg, said his plans are to remain on the job during the transition before he accepts another position.

Oberg said he will help Thone analyze his budget and will try to retain many of the division heads in his department. Many of them, he noted, are people with expertise in their areas who were sought out for governmental service or have risen through the ranks over a period of years.

Among agency heads considering job possibilities is Agriculture Director Roger Sandman, who is sure he will not be retained.

Others who have acknowledged they are leaving are Banking Director William Riley and R. James Pearson, director of the Department of Motor Vehicles.

Tax Commissioner William Peters and Roads Director Dave Coolidge have also said they will be leaving their posts, as has state Labor Commissioner Gerald Chizek.

As of this writing, Thone has not revealed any of his appointments.

painting. Something else pleasant happened to us lately.

Driving to the grocery store in our little pale blue VW, we recently heard a couple of small beeps. We looked around: soon we heard two more beeps. John pulled over and stopped, and I said "What is it, the law?" I couldn't imagine this for as I have, stated before, we drive 55 miles per hour even if no one else does.

A yellow Mercedes pulled beside us and a nice looking youngish woman spoke up: "I just couldn't resist seeing who was driving a 47 license Nebraska car out here."

I was on her side of the car so I answered "I used to be Irma Leggett: this is my husband John Sullivan."

And she answered "I grew up in Ord, I was Norma Snell in those days, now my name is Kauffman."

"Oh I remember you, you're Norma Mae Snell, and as a tiny child you came to live with Eva McBeth, she was Mrs. Guy LeMaster later." She responded, "Yes, I was six weeks old when they took me home." I knew, Eva and her sister Sophie McBeth and been devoted to the little blonde girl, and raised her with the little LeMaster girls.

So we visited away, exchanged telephone numbers, and last week one day we called her to go to lunch with us down at a famous harborside fish place. (We adore fish).

Then we proceeded over to her home in the nearby Coronado area where she is nicely situated and has a fine yard of flowers and shrubs to which she is addicted.

She is a widow now, and her four children are grown and gone.

We marred the day a little for her when we could not identify members of her high school class in a clear plasticized picture she had received. I think Virginia Clark Knecht was the only person we could positively identify though several others looked familiar.

Can anyone name the names in this happy reunion group? She'd welcome it.

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

Ed (that fellow from down around Ashton with that long Polish name I can't spell) come to the session at the country store Saturday night with a handful of clippings and discouraging words on just about everything but the Mason-Dixon line. Ed told the fellows that the only thing that's gone right lately was that surveyors using the most up-to-date equipment found that the line laid off 214 year ago was accurate to within two inches, and who's to say the modern boys couldn't be off two inches.

Ed said he was glad to see someone that was done right, and he'd like to see us get back to taking pride in doing it right the first time, whether it's making laws or patching tires. Ed said we have reached the place in this country where there's no such thing as a law abiding citizen. There's just too many laws for anybody to keep up with, like the health law that says you've got to mop the floors in the meat plant every four hours, but you got to abide by the OSHA law that says keep the floor dry so workers won't slip down. Ed said he recalled years ago when a fence law for cattle was being discussed. One legislator said he was agin it because if a poor hungry feller come to steal chickens he might get hurt climbing over the fence. Back in them days, Ed allowed, human weakness gave some thought, and the legislator was thinking straight. He knew that the poor could be depended on to vote at least once in ever election.

As for the way things are going now, Ed had this clipping about plans the department of Housing and Urban Development has to keep throwing good money after bad on "new towns." The item said HUD has dropped $149 million down this rathole in the past six years, and it is taking the position that if at first you don't succeed you keep on failing. The Federal Government is giving $5 million or $20 million to fast operators who start towns in areas of few people, low income and high unemployment. Nearly all of em spent the money and dried up, but four or five, including one in Texas and one in North Carolina, keep on convincing HUD they got a future. Ed said he can't understand why the Government can't understand that if these were good places for towns they'd already be towns. The one in North Carolina has spent $17 million in four years, and it has 22 homes and 145 people to show for it, Ed said.

Furthermore, Ed went on, the next time he writes his congressman he's going to ask about this Englishman that is suggesting America follow their plan of kicking bad farmers off the land so the good farmers can raise more food. It won't happen here, Ed said, but the very idea makes him mad. Only farmers and ranchers that got up early, worked hard and got results could use the land. What Ed wanted to know, if that crazy thinking was carried over to politicians, to newspaper editors and school teachers? Fer one thing, Ed said, we'd spend all our time at the polls trying to find public servants willing to serve the public.

Yours truly,
Geranium Joe

KERRY ON

— an answer —

Though I've lived most of my life in Central Nebraska, I don't recall ever being in Cedar Rapids — that small community about 20 miles east of Greeley. So I was eager about a speaking engagement I'd accepted in Cedar, before a Catholic youth group, last week.

Checking the map for highway numbers and mileage, the hour I'd allowed for the trip over was barely enough, even though I thought I'd allowed adequate time. I had barely five minutes left when I pulled off of Highway 56 into the village.

A red neon-lighted cross glowed warmly in the night sky and I headed toward that, only to find myself at the Lutheran Church. A couple of young men, just unloading materials from a parked car, gave me directions to the Parish Hall. I told them I was sure I could find it and thanked them.

They'd told me, "It's quite a layout" and they were right. Near a darkened church was a modern building, lighted and surrounded by cars. Had it not been for the cluster of young people outside the door, I'd have thought I was in the wrong place — for I hadn't expected much of a crowd.

Grabbing my notes off the seat of my car, a young man near the front door confirmed any doubts I might have about being in the wrong place when he anxiously said, "Hide the keg!" as I approached. I grinned, knowing — then — I had arrived.

Inside I introduced myself to one of the two dozen adults standing in the back of the room. I was, in turn, introduced to the priest. He immediately instructed the young people to come in and find themselves a chair.

Following an opening prayer and my introduction, I tried to calmly launch into my usual talk about alcoholism. Despite the many times I've been before audiences of this type, it isn't easy — sometimes — to get started.

Nearly an hour later I tried to conclude my remarks and offered to try to answer any questions from the audience. The priest, who had been taking notes, was first — though

I don't remember what he asked. Then hands started popping up around the room the minute the first question broke the ice.

It was probably a half hour later that I thanked the priest and the youth leader and climbed in my car for the enjoyable night-ride home. Though I'd successfully answered most of the questions, I thought, one continued to bother me.

Farm lights dotted the landscape as I rode westward, pondering an easy and brief reply that hadn't been forthcoming when I was asked, "What can you substitute for drinking?"

How do you explain the beauty and joy of living to someone who's never been through Hell?

Grinning, warmly, at the red cross reflected in my rear-view mirror, I thanked God for another day.

READ MATTHEW 24:34-40
"Whenever you did this for one of the least important of these brothers of mine, you did it for me!" (Matthew 25:40 TEV)

The cold of the November night clutched at my bare arms as I ran from the back door of the church to our parked car. I glanced at the church windows — frosty squares of light in the starless sky.

Tonight I was on a special mission, and my heart beat wildly with the secrecy and joy of the affair. In the darkened seat of the car I groped until my arms grasped the huge paper sack, heavily weighted with the surprise turkey. Staggering under my voluntary burden, I made my way to the widow's car. Silently I placed the gift in the driver's seat. I knew that to the widow and her children it would mean an unexpected feast, a real Thanksgiving, an answer to prayer.

I remember the excitement of the widow's children upon finding the treasure. I remember the stories told on the school bus the next morning — stories of the "magic" turkey. But most of all, I remember the warmth, peace, and completeness that encompassed my whole being as I learned that it truly is better to give than to receive.

PRAYER: O God, fill us with the joy of unselfish giving. May this Thanksgiving bring a reawakening of our love for others. Amen.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY
I will plan a special mission of love each day.

Area Residents Urged To Fight Power Plant

Compstock and Sargent area residents were urged to fight the pending Comstock power plant during a meeting in Sargent Tuesday, November 21. Plans call for the coal-fired electrical generating plant, owned by Nebraska Public Power District, to be located near Comstock.

NPPD officials told their plans for plant construction at a series of area meetings a few months ago. Tuesday night, two Hershey area farmers told their side of the story.

Tom and Bob Brown said NPPD plants near Sutherland hurt that area, and suggested the same would happen to the Comstock - Sargent area should the pending Comstock plant be built.

The meeting Tuesday was organized by Jack Chaffin and other concerned citizens. They made plans for the gathering about one week earlier.

According to Chaffin, there are quite a few unanswered questions concerning the proposed plant. NPPD explanations, Chaffin said in an interview Saturday, leave some area residents with a lot of doubts.

"And I guess we're not the only ones," he told the Quiz. "Here," he smiled, handing out a newspaper clipping, "do you believe the Omaha World Herald?"

The Omaha paper, dated October 12, 1978 said NPPD candidate Leslie Scott Taylor thought NPPD was overbuilding and that spending could be better held in line. Taylor, 45, of York, was quoted as saying "I think the biggest problems confronting the district right now are cost overruns at the power plants and the overbuilding."

A World Herald clipping dated November 9, 1978 told of Taylor's apparent win over Hans Jensen. Chaffin said his opposition to the proposed plant revolved around two main points. They are:

1. That no one has shown benefits from the plant project would outweigh drawbacks and
2. That NPPD picked Comstock for the plant site. NPPD proposes drilling wells to pump needed water for the plant. This, Chaffin suggested, could be done at locations nearer railroads and main highways.

Chaffin suggested NPPD is after the area's water. "They just want to be near our river," he said.

That river, the Middle Loup, is totally committed to irrigation, Chaffin revealed. "If you drive by it in July there isn't enough water to get your tootsies wet," he chuckled.

"I wonder what will happen to farmers using this water if the plant gets built," Chaffin lectured. "As president of the Sargent Irrigation District I feel I owe it to the irrigators to find out."

Asked if he had posed this question to NPPD officials, Chaffin replied, "Yes, they say they are going to put down a well field." This would lower existing ground water levels, Chaffin contended, raising havoc with existing irrigation wells.

"Questions like this, to me, have to be answered now and not after the plant is built," Chaffin said. The interview concluded with him showing the Quiz reporter an article "The Case Against Coal" in the November 20 issue of Fortune magazine.

Meeting Tuesday

During the meeting Tuesday Tom and Bob Brown raised some more questions and gave quite a few answers of their own. Both brothers felt the Comstock plant should be built in eastern Nebraska, where NPPD sells most of its power.

Tom supplied statistics showing 70 percent of NPPD power sold goes east of Grand Island. He also mentioned eastern Nebraska has more water than does the western part of the state.

The two speakers contended the plant will produce a power surplus for the area. This, they hinted, could be used by a MX missile system, should it locate in the area. The moveable missile system was a major issue in the recent Congressional campaign.

Federal officials have said it will be several years before the system is developed, if it is, and they aren't certain where it would be located.

Base Effects

The two brothers painted a bleak picture of project problems. Among these was the rapid influx of construction workers. Speakers maintained they don't pay their bills cause rents to soar and flood area schools with their children while paying few taxes.

Bob Brown said enrollment at Hershey schools jumped 50 percent in the last five years. NPPD hasn't helped the school district according to Bob Brown.

The Unicameral passed a law mandating utilities to aid schools affected by the arrival of construction workers. Sutherland has received some aid this year, but not Hershey, according to the Browns.

NPPD officials have stated that during peak construction, about 1,000 workers will be at the plant. The Browns said they were told similar figures before the Gentlemen started construction near Hershey last year. However when that construction peaked, Lincoln County papers estimated that over 2,500 workers were in that area, the speakers said.

Lincoln County law enforcement agencies have increased personnel in the last five years, according to the Browns, and high wages paid at the plant have lured skilled workers from their local jobs.

Project hard hats have given grocery stores, bars, and gas stations an economic shot in the arm, but haven't helped the area economy as a whole, the speakers said. However, the Browns admitted construction does benefit gravel companies, landlords, and workers benefiting from high construction wages.

The prospect of all this money coming into the area is why most supporters want the Comstock and other projects, the Browns related.

Those opposing them, the Browns warned, are tackling what he called "the most powerful group in the state," Nebraska's power companies. Tom Brown ranked University of Nebraska Cornhuskers number two in clout and state government a distant third.

To fight this lobby, Tom suggested opponents organize, name officers, and get financial pledges. He placed the cost of a successful five year campaign at around $30,000.

Also recommended was affiliation with the Sierra Club. The Browns said the club's members said the club's expertise and national standing could be useful to Comstock plant opponents.

If You Want It

"If you want the plant, more power to you," Brown concluded. However, the Browns contended their experiences at Sutherland convinced them a plant in the area benefits few people in the end.

Asked Saturday if opponents would affiliate with the Sierra Club, Chaffin declined comment, saying he wasn't sure. He did agree with the Browns' closing statement, suggesting area farmers and ranchers wouldn't benefit from the plant's construction. "When this thing is finished," he said, "what will they have that they don't have now?"

Chaffin placed attendance at Tuesday's meeting at around 150 persons.

This one car crash 1 1/2 miles west of Ord on the Sargent Highway was caused by icy roads, according to Valley County Sheriff Martin Sonnenfeld. No one was hurt in the accident. The car, a 1978 Chevrolet, had over $1,000 damage.

Snow-Sleet-Icy Roads Slow Holiday Traveling

Snow, sleet, rains, and icy roads combined to hamper Thanksgiving traveling around the state. Those brave enough to venture on to highways found them treacherous.

Valley County Sheriff Martin Sonnenfeld reported difficulty in driving his four-wheel vehicle around the Arcadia area Wednesday. He reported roads as ice-packed and hazardous.

Thanks giving day, roads cleared with warmer weather and travelers ventured out to their holiday destinations.

The relief proved to be temporary, however. A few days later snow whipped by winds slammed into Nebraska. The Omaha World Herald reported nearly a foot of snow and winds up to 30 MPH made roads hazardous across the state. Reports given the Quiz indicated 1-80 was a sheet of ice. Many cars and trucks were reportedly in the ditch or parked on the side of the road.

Street crews in Ord were kept busy with snow removal. Warmer temperatures Tuesday made their job a little more comfortable, and perhaps somewhat easier.

Tax Protesters 'Entertain' County Dads With Tape Recorded Messages

Valley County Supervisors had some transcribed entertainment during their meeting Tuesday. But it wasn't the usual relaxing strains of music. Their 'entertainment' was a tape recording made at a meeting of disgruntled taxpayers in Arcadia recently.

The taxpayers gathered to complain about recently received reassessment statements from the County Assessors office. Midwest Appraisal has revalued property in Valley County as required by state law.

A story on the protestors will be found elsewhere in the Quiz.

Not Only Harsh Note

Nor was the tape recording the only harsh note sounded Tuesday. Roads Superintendent Emanuel Petska told county dads they didn't treat him right at the last Supervisors meeting, November 14.

His resignation by December 1 was requested at that time. Petska said they made it sound like he had done something wrong, in asking his resignation. Board members said this wasn't the case. Petska agreed to stay on until the first of the year as County Roads Superintendent. He has filed that post for about ten years, according to County Clerk Theima Dulitz.

Attempts to locate Supervisors Chairman, Ken Collins for comment on the requested resignation were unsuccessful Tuesday.

In other business Carl's Standard Service was the one — and successful — bidder on the county's fuel supply for December. Carl bid 56.4 cents a gallon for gasoline and 44.5 cents a gallon for number two diesel fuel.

Supervisors approved an easement requested by Bob Dworak. It allows him to put a gas pipe under a county road west of town.

A sales representative from Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing gave a demonstration on microfilming. County supervisors, along with County Attorney Bob Stowell, saw the show.

The supervisors met at 11:25 and adjourned shortly after three p.m. Richard Bossen was absent.

Revaluation Sparks Class Action Suit

Mid-West Appraisal may be finished with Valley County, but some Valley County residents aren't finished with them. Persons objecting to their property revaluations are thinking of filing a class action suit.

Lowell Jones, apparent spokesman for the group, contended the recent revaluation isn't equalized. "Lots in Arcadia the valued the same as they are in Ord," Jones told the Quiz Friday. "And there is a lot of difference between Ord and Arcadia," he added.

A week ago Tuesday, Jones contacted Grand Island attorneys Kelly and Kelly. They along with Grand Island attorney Tom Anderson, formerly of Ord, will handle the class action suit, according to Jones.

They plan to file the suit in the near future, Jones revealed.

According to him the suit will be taxpayers of Valley County vs. Mid-West Appraisal and Valley County Supervisors.

"It's a class action suit," Jones explained, "so anyone can get in on it. If we all go together it won't cost much. Anytime anyone wants to get in on it they can."

Around 100 persons are involved in the suit, Jones stated. He estimated 500 people might be involved by the January 1, 1979 filing date. The suit must be filed by then, Jones said, because that is when Mid-West will turn their figures over to county supervisors.

One disgruntled taxpayer said "We don't question their methods, but we wonder about the results."

Virgil Kaminski Arrested On Drunken Driving Charge

Sherman County Sheriff-elect Virgil Kaminski was arrested near Loup City last week and charged with driving while intoxicated.

The arrest was made about 12:15 a.m. Thursday at the Highway 92 and a county road intersection, by Sherman County Deputy Sheriff David Byrd and Loup City Police Chief Gerald Sere.

The police report reportedly indicated Kaminski was slumped over the steering wheel of his car, about 11:45 p.m. Wednesday.

Deputy Byrd said he didn't make the arrest immediately but called for assistance from the police department.

Byrd was quoted as saying, "Due to the sensitivity of the situation I felt people would think prejudice was involved. Therefore I wanted a non-biased party to witness and assist in the arrest."

Byrd works for the current sheriff, Bill Whear. Whear lost a write-in campaign for reelection as sheriff in November 7, balloting. Kaminski was defeated as sheriff by Whear in a recall election in 1975.

Sherman County Attorney Fred King said a hearing has been set for December 14.

Byrd reportedly said Kaminski reached for a shotgun on the seat beside him when the two officers tried to rouse him. Byrd said police chief Sere removed the gun from the car. It proved to be unloaded.

According to the Grand Island Independent Sere verified Byrd's story about the gun.

"He had to shake him three or four times before he could get any sound or movement out of him," Sere said. "He tried to get him to turn the car off, which he didn't do, and asked him to get out of the vehicle."

"During this time there was a shotgun lying on the front seat. This man kept reaching for it three or four times."

Sere described Kaminski as swaying and very unsteady and said he had to ask Kaminski to repeat everything he said because his speech was slurred.

Sere, a police chief for three months, said he did not know Kaminski at the time of the arrest and had never seen him before.

Occupants Escape Injury in One Car Accident Recently

Three lucky passengers escaped injury in a one-car crash 1 1/2 miles west of Ord Friday. Patricia Davis was driving a 1978 Chevrolet four-door east on the Sargent Highway when the vehicle hit an icy patch. Davis lost control of the car and it went into a ditch, rolling on its top.

The driver and two passengers were shaken up, but there were no injuries.

Valley County Sheriff placed damages at over $1,000.

A similar mishap occurred Saturday one mile west of Ord on Highway 70. Jeannie

Severance was driving a van west when she went into a ditch and the vehicle overturned.

The seven passengers were shaken up but not hurt. The van was totaled according to Sonnenfeld.

Van occupants were taken to the hospital by Ord Police.

No Hunting

In other business, the sheriff issued a citation to Galen Osentowski of North Platte for hunting without the landowners' permission Friday. He was reportedly on property 10 miles west of Ord.

While the recent snowfall was a problem for some, it was a boon to others. Shelly Norman (left) and Deelina Goodsell (right) made this tall snowman on the Valley County Hospital lawn, in west Ord. Their frosty friend stood 6'10", the girls said.

Klimek Gets Cable TV Franchise

Richard Klimek was awarded the municipal cable television franchise during the City Council meeting in Ord Monday. Under franchise terms, Klimek will charge a $20 installation fee and an $8 monthly rental. Three percent of his gross from franchise operations will go to the city.

The cable system, to bring in six channels, has the capacity for 12. Those six will include KOLN-KGIN channel 11 in Lincoln channel 5 in Hastings, channel 7, BTJ, from Bassett, channel 13 from Kearney, a time-temperature monitoring channel, and a station from Atlanta, GA showing movies and sports 24 hours a day. A circuit picking up FM stations in range and an optional Home Box Office channel will round out cable television selections.

HBO will offer first-run movies to cable customers for an additional $10 a month.

The Atlanta station and HBO will be received by satellite. Other channels will be picked off the air and strengthened before entering the cable system.

Both satellite and regular signals will be received on equipment located 1.8 miles south of Ord on the Dan Spillene farm.

Installation of the cable system will begin when warmer weather arrives, according to Klimek. Todd Communications of Minneapolis, MN will supply the equipment. C. J. Trautner of Todd will be the installation engineer.

Once started, installation should take six to eight months, Klimek estimated.

Booster

The city will repair the present television booster from funds received from the cable franchise operation. Councilman Verlin Smith said several people were concerned Ord would lose its booster, now in operation.

At an earlier council meeting Don Sears said he wanted it understood the booster system will remain in operation. Repairs financed by the franchise operations will help insure this.

Klimek wasn't the only one seeking the franchise. Eldon Mulligan had submitted an application to councilmen recently. After reviewing the two proposed contracts, city dads opted for Klimek's agreement.

In other business the council voted to annex West Ord Acres. That development is located northwest of town along Highway 11. Councilmen had earlier rejected a street there. It didn't meet municipal qualifications.

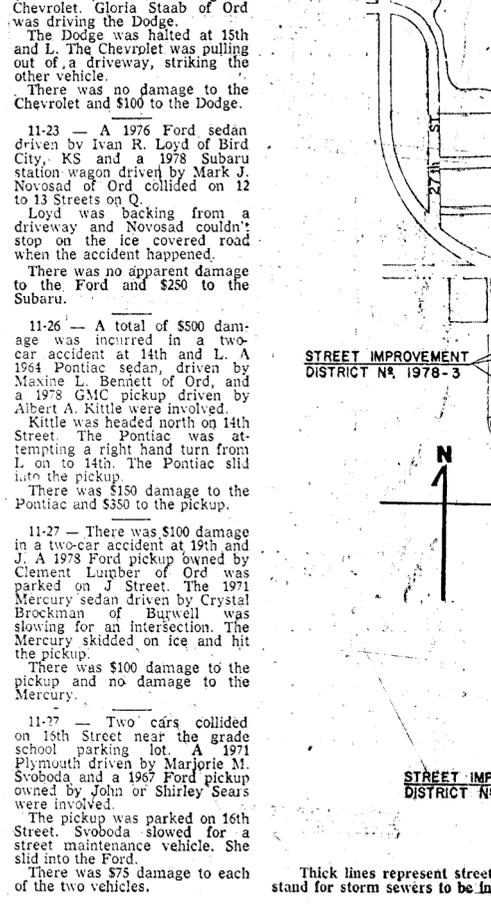

Since then, repairs have been made, according to Ord Mayor Gaylord Bolesen.

Streets-Sewers

The council accepted plans and specifications on street and sewer improvements submitted by David B. Mead and Charles Kemery of Great Plains Engineering. Paving will include districts 1978-2 through 1978-5 and 1978-7 through 1978-11. Plans included storm sewer districts 1978-1 and 1978-2, legal, and miscellaneous expenses.

Bids on the municipal improvements will be opened December 15 at 2 p.m. in City Hall. A legal notice of this will be found elsewhere in this Quiz.

Thick lines represent street paving projects. Thin lines stand for storm sewers to be installed.

CAROL'S CORNER

GOOD INTENTIONS ... I have so many intentions. There is hardly a day goes by that I don't promise myself something. I make a lot of promises to myself. I'm always planning nice things to do. Nice things like sending flowers or thinking-of-you cards, having somebody over, writing a letter or telephone someone just to say "hello".

A few of these things I do accomplish, but too many go undone, referred to merely as my "good intentions." Because, like most everyone else, my days are full of other things. Things like tasks that must be done ... duties, demands.

If I were to tell you about my good intentions you would probably question my honesty. It no doubt would sound like a mere excuse if I confessed that I did buy that thinking-of-you card and now I can't remember where I put it ... I did think of you when you were ill and I bought the cutest card to say "get well soon" but when I located it several days later (at the bottom of my purse) it looked pretty "sick" too and you were already well so I didn't send it ... Often I can mentally write quite beautiful letters, but when I sit down to write (in the evening after the dishes are done) the lovely words have vanished ... I baked you a cake for your birthday and I frosted it with your favorite sour cream chocolate frosting, but as I was delivering it to your house (I was driving my car) the cake slid off the back seat and crumbled to the floor. Probably could have brought you the bottom layer of that cake as it was still together and it didn't look bad but instead I took it back home and we had it for our supper. I never told you about it. What could I say?

I've wondered many times if we (as it is said) "will get to heaven on our good intentions." Will we get any credit for them at all? I certainly hope so.

Since the gift from Loup Power would exceed $10,000 value, it would have to get approval from the state legislature. Lake Ericson is located just outside the small village of Ericson. It has had a succession of owners over the years.

Question of Lake Ericson's Fate Is Again Up In The Air

The question of what will happen to Lake Ericson is apparently up in the air again. A group called Save Lake Ericson Project is gathering information for a December 1 meeting with the State Game and Parks Commission in Lincoln.

Quiz Ericson correspondent, Helen Hugelmann, filed a release stating the Loup Valley Rural Public Power District owns the lake and wants to dispose of it. The State Game and Parks Commission, according to Hugelmann, is reluctant to take possession of the lake.

Should that state agency refuse the lake, it will be disposed of in some other manner by the power district, Hugelmann stated.

Wilbert Calvin, Loup Valley Rural Public Power official confirmed that organization owns the lake. Loup Valley wants to dispose of the property, Calvin said, because of a broken hydroelectric generator. Repairs are economically unfeasible, according to Calvin. Also, lake ownership entails unneeded responsibility for Loup Valleys.

Loup Valley acquired the lake from Nebraska Public Power District in 1977. NPPD sold Loup Valley an electric service contract for the Ericson-Bartlett area. The lake went with the deal.

Earlier, NPPD had tried to give the lake to the Game and Parks Commission. NPPD owned the recreation area where they had a small hydroelectric dam. The water-driven generator broke down about two years ago.

The generator was old, according to Quiz files on the story, and NPPD had no further use for the lake. Cabin owners and other concerned citizens asked NPPD to find a solution to the lake's ownership.

It was then that the Game and Parks Commission was approached. Negotiations for them to take the land were evidently unsuccessful.

Present lake owners, Loup Valley Power, find themselves in a position like that of previous owners, Nebraska Public Power District.

Game and Parks official Bill Bailey recalled working with NPPD two years ago. At that time the Game and Parks Commission agreed to take possession of the lake provided:

1. They had clear title to the property.
2. The property would be maintained as a wildlife refuge.
3. That the Game and Parks Commission wouldn't be required to dredge the lake.

Research by the Nebraska Attorney General's office showed some of the lake property titles were clouded, according to Bailey. That is, they were not held free and clear by property owners. Various minor defects, some several years old, existed, he said.

The last Bailey heard, NPPD was trying to clear these titles, he told the Quiz Monday. He learned last summer that Loup Power now owned the lake.

Asked what the Commission would do during their meeting December 1, Bailey said he wouldn't speculate on any future action.

He termed the present situation a case of musical chairs, with lake owners and the Game and Parks Commission back where they started, about two years ago.

Richard Beran, manager of the Lower Loup NRD, told the Quiz an estimated 150 acres of wildlife refuge go with the lake. He expressed the hope that someone would purchase it and maintain it as a recreational area open to the public.

Lake Ericson residents want to find a new owner too. The only question is who or what agency.

Persons interested in these questions formed the Save Lake Ericson Project group recently.

Mrs. Karlan Kokes is secretary of the organization. Howard Watson is chairman, John Gréne is treasurer, Con Erickson is their attorney, and Dr. Lasse of Lincoln, vice chairman.

They met Monday night at Howard Watson's place on the lake, formulating future plans for saving the lake and for their December 1-meeting in Lincoln.

Twelve Gals Out For Arcadia Cagers

Twelve gals reported for varsity basketball at Arcadia High School, according to coach Wilbur Cushman. "Actually, eleven," he added. "One girl twisted her leg and won't play for the first two or three games."

He identified the injured player as Carol VanSlyke, a 6'1" senior. "She should be able to help us a lot," Cushman told the Quiz.

Another potential leading scorer is 6'1" senior Denise Luedtke. She lettered last year, and Cushman is speculating she will be a major asset to the Arcadia team.

Asked plans for the team's defense, the coach hedged that they would be using both a man-to-man and zone system "depending on where we play and when" Cushmanberry interjected.

Arcadia's offense this year will be a screen, he said, with variations to suit most game situations.

The coach and his girls will have a chance to try these systems out when they play Arnold this Thursday, opening their season. Arnold is a new addition to Arcadia's schedule.

When the gal Huskies completed their season last year they had a 12-5 record.

Fellowship of Christian Athletes Sponsoring Boys' Basketball

The Ord Boys' Chapter of Fellowship of Christian Athletes will sponsor a basketball program for boys in grades 1 thru 6.

The program will run for seven sessions, December 2, 9, 16, January 6, 13, 20, and 27. Boys in grades 5 and 6 will meet at the Ord High School Gym, and boys in grades 2, 3, and 4 will meet at the elementary school. The program will start at 10:00 and be over at 11:30. Parents should know that the door at the west side of the high school gym will be opened at 9:45. Use this entrance only. Use the door at the back parking lot (southwest corner) at the elementary school. This door will be opened at 9:45 also. The program will be concluded so that participants will be ready to leave at 11:30.

The sessions will be divided into two areas: Learning Basketball Fundamentals, and Scrimmaging.

The only equipment needed will be gym clothes (shoes, socks, trunks, possibly a sweatshirt rather than t-shirt - it can get cold in the gym, and a towel.) Participants will be encouraged to shower after each practice. A stocking cap should be worn as they leave to prevent colds. (Many are not too careful about drying their hair.)

Fred Williams, Lon Bartholomew, Allen Cuddy and the FCA boys will be in charge of the sessions.

Twenty Five Out For Varsity Squad

Twenty-five cagers checked out for varsity team practice sessions November 6, according to Ord Coach Fred Williams. This year he is blessed with eleven returning lettermen on the squad.

The big question mark now facing Williams is Cohan Hoppes. The Ord High athlete was injured in a football game this year, and is wearing a cast. "I talked to him last week," Williams said, "and he told me he has to have the cast on four more weeks." After that, there is a rehabilitation period.

Williams speculated it could be six or eight weeks before Hoppes could play. By that time, most of the basketball season will be over.

Ord will run a full court offense against the Cards, he revealed, to get the ball in quickly before Crete can press Ord.

Williams rated Crete one of the tougher teams Ord will play this season. Other pending powerhouses he mentioned included Aurora, Seward, Cozad, and Goshen.

"We hope to win 50 percent of our games," Williams said, "finish high in the conference and win at districts."

Last year Ord cagers had a 12-3 record and finished fourth in their conference. Ord made it to District semifinals before being downed by Loup City Red Raiders.

What will happen this season remains to be seen. Whatever the outcome, it will start at Crete December 1st.

This marks the first year Williams has piloted a varsity squad. He admitted the new role was different, but seemed confident.

Varsity team members as listed by the coach included: Jeff Wolniak, Joe Dworek, Dan Martin, Greg Linke, Barry Witherwax, Kurt Kremke, Bill Wadas, Paul Beran, John Dworek, Larry Sears, Cohan Hoppes, Bob Beran, Jim Smith, Randy David. All except Smith, Beran, and David are returning lettermen.

Ord reserves, Williams said, are: Neil Carson, Brad Christensen, Gary Mulligan, Rod Ostrander, Wayne Erickson, Jim Kalhoff, Kris Kremke, Kyle Novosad, John Scheideler, Jim Studnicka, Jerry Woodgate.

Ord Grapplers Opening Season at Home With Match Against St. Paul

Ord Varsity grapplers will open their season here Thursday with a disadvantage. They will have to give guest St. Paul 12 points. Forfeits in 126 and 185 pound weight classes will give St. Paul 12 points.

"It will create some problems," Ord coach Al Rubesh admitted. "All returning lettermen will have to win for us to score."

Those six include Paul Brethauer and Dave Conner, team co-captains. Other returning lettermen are Kevin Sich, Byron Stevens, Kirk Lehecka, and Victor Burrows.

They and their teammates will face a rugged group November 30. "They've got a pretty good tradition," Rubesh commented. He should know. Ord's coach went to high school in St. Paul and was on the wrestling team there.

After St. Paul, Ord wrestlers will enter the Broken Bow Invitational Saturday. Seven other schools are scheduled to compete, too.

Rubesh rated St. Paul, Holdrege, Gibbon, and Broken Bow along with Ord as teams to watch in that match. Ord has won the invitational three years in a row.

Those out for wrestling at Ord include Paul Brethauer, Dave Conner, Kevin Sich, Byron Stevens, Kirk Lehecka, Victor Burrows, Doug Zolotok, Greg Pitska, Doug Conner, Sterling Ritz, Jerry Augustyne, and Jody Smith.

Bob Hruby Makes All-Star Listing

Former Ord High player Bob Hruby earned a spot in the District II (Nebraska Colleges) All-Star football team. Bob started the 1978 season for Peru State College as a defensive tackle but when injuries slumped the offensive line, Bob went back of the offensive line.

His presence paved the way for Alvin Holder's feats as well as teammate Marvin McGill. Record breaking running back Alvin Holder was named to the District II backfield. He gained 1143 yards this season, good for 14th in the nation.

McGill gained 704 yards this season.

Hruby is a four-year starter at Peru State. He is from Comstock.

Knight's of Columbus Council 2292 is sponsoring a free throw contest Saturday, December 2 at Ord High School. Youths ages 11-14 should report there at 10:00 a.m.

Seventh-Eighth Graders Drop Two Games to Burwell

Host Ord seventh and eighth graders dropped two games to Burwell last Tuesday, but won a better playing efficiency. Their coach, Richard Czetka, listed their improvement as "100 percent, especially the seventh grade."

He credited Amy Schroeder with an outstanding job of ball control and leading the Ord offense. "That was the problem we had last week (against St. Paul)," Czetka related. "We don't have leadership or control."

The Ord girls shot twice as many against Burwell as they did against St. Paul, Czetka told the Quiz. "And we scored twice as much too," he added.

He listed the eighth grade squad as "showing definite improvement." "If it wasn't for that slow first quarter we could have won the game," the Ord coach recalled. Ord was outscored 8-2 in that opening stanza.

The last three quarters Ord outscored Burwell 14-13. Czetka attributed the first quarter lag to inexperience and a case of nerves. Time, he speculated, will likely correct this situation.

Tuesday night, November 29.

Ord went against O'Neill. Last year seventh graders played them to a close win. It should be a close game again, Czetka predicted.

Boxers Take Three Out of Four Bouts

Ord Golden Gloves took three out of four matches at Albion Saturday night. Winners Saturday included:

— Roger Williams, 112 pounds, who defeated Less Valdes of Danneberg.

— Dwayne Vasicek, 213 pounds, who won a smashing TKO over Allen Goodrich of Central City. Area residents here may recall similar victories to Vasicek's credit.

Mark Dugan capped the evening with an exhibition bout with Robby House, 156 pounds, of Tilden.

Scott Spady, 112 pounds had the lone loss of the evening. That came in a decision to Billy Pelster of Petersburg. Fight fans recognize the Pelster name. The Pelster brothers have a well-earned reputation for endurance and speed on the state boxing circuit.

Spady, no slouch either, is developing a sound boxing reputation of his own.

Morry Hoppes of Ord didn't get matched.

Ord Gal Spikers Go Seven Straight

The Ord Women's Volleyball team made it 7-0 defeating previously unbeaten Sargent on their home court Monday, 15-1, 12-15, 15-7 and 15-7.

High scorers for Ord were Lois Pickens and Judy Gottlob, each with 13 points.

Ord played a good defense with some extra effort from Jeannie Hyde, whose blocked spikes took the heart out of Sargent's attack.

Ord's final regular season game is at home this Sunday against Taylor.

Flying for Coyotes A Federal Violation

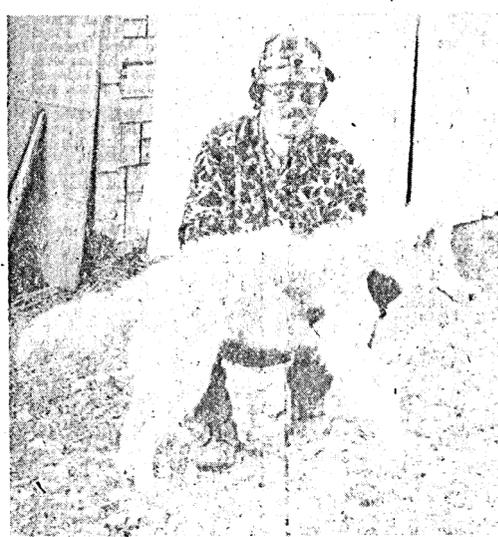

LINCOLN, Nebr. — Using airplanes to spot coyotes for hunters on the ground is a violation of federal law, according to the Nebraska Game and Parks Commission.

The only legal use of an airplane in taking coyotes is with a special permit from the Game and Parks Commission, which is issued only in response to landowner complaints of livestock losses. In such cases, a permit to shoot coyotes from a plane is issued, but most of the time the actual control is done by personnel of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Animal Damage Control Branch.

"It all boils down to the fact that an airplane cannot be used in sport hunting of coyotes in any way," said Bill Bailey, the Game and Parks Commission's Assistant Director. "Anyone using an aircraft in spotting coyotes or any other wildlife for hunters on the ground risks a substantial penalty under federal law," he said.

Farmers or ranchers experiencing livestock damage from coyotes can apply through the Game and Parks Commission to the State Department of Agriculture.

Larry Philbrick Bags A Rare Albino Coyote

Larry Philbrick can add another tale to his stories about hunting and fishing in the Loup Valley. Thursday he shot a rare albino coyote five miles northeast of Ord. His father, Robert, had spotted the animal in that area a month ago. Several trips to the place paid off Thursday when Larry got the animal.

Both Philbricks agreed albino coyotes are very rare.

The Philbricks are noted for their ability in hunting and fishing. Father Robert voted a record fish out of Sherman Lake several years ago.

Correction

Rhonda Brass — not Barb Kittle — made honorable mention on the All-State Class B volleyball squad. Kittle along with Brass, and Vickie Mason were voted Central 10 West Division team honorees by coaches recently.

Brass and Kittle were named All-Conference players.

Last week the Quiz identified Kittle as making Honorable Mention on the All-State squad. Rhonda Brass received the honor.

Older residents may recall reciting lines beginning "when the frost is on the pumpkin and the fiddlers in the shock..." One Ord resident went that poet one better. Her pumpkin was covered with snow. This feat was accomplished because Carol Leggett's pumpkin is a ceramic one, not made from more perishable stuff.

What is more, readers may spy some flowers peeking out from under a white blanket of snow. They, like the pumpkin, are artificial.

New Test Promising In Pseudorabies Detection

Kristen McNutt, executive officer of the National Nutrition Consortium, said the medical community and government must try to help the average consumer sort out the differing and often conflicting opinions of scientists and researchers in regards to all health issues.

LINCOLN — The radioimmunoassay test may not revolutionize diagnosis of pseudorabies in swine, but it probably will find extensive application in the future, according to Dr. Clayton Kelling, virologist at the Veterinary Diagnostic Center of the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources.

The radioimmunoassay test (RIA) is a procedure originally developed to monitor the level of hormones in the blood system. The test is based on the use of a radioactive tracer, Iodine 125, which is attached to the antibody, a protein isolated from an immune serum of an infected animal. If specific antibodies are formed in the serum of the animal exposed to the pseudorabies virus, a reaction occurs and the isotope retained in the test system is detected by a gamma counter.

Pseudorabies routinely is diagnosed by the conventional serum-virus-neutralization (SN) blood test, which is recognized as the official diagnostic test. The SN test is specific and widely used, but shortcomings which the radioimmunoassay test does not, according to the University of Nebraska-Lincoln researcher.

An important factor in the control of pseudorabies is the prevention of contact between infected and noninfected swine. Kelling has confidence that the RIA test is more sensitive than the SN test in detecting infected animals, thereby improving disease control.

Use of the RIA test should increase general efficiency, Kelling said. Dependent upon quantity being tested, the radioimmunoassay system should decrease process time from the two to six days required for SN blood test results to results received within a few hours of RIA test submission.

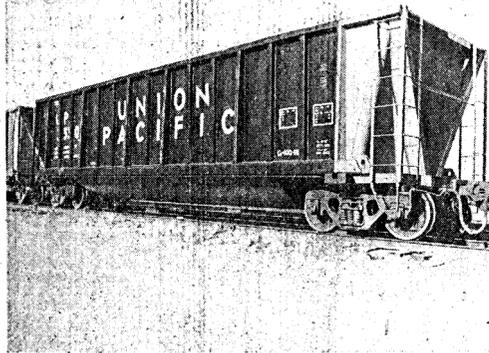

The greatest limiting factor of the RIA test, Kelling noted, is the limited capacity of the sophisticated gamma counter. The National Pork Producers Council, the Nebraska Pork Producers Association, the Nebraska Specific Pathogen Free (SPF) Swine Accrediting Agency and the U.S. Department of Agriculture have provided the UNL department of veterinary science with research funds to develop an alternate test for the diagnosis of the frequently fatal disease.

Union Pacific Tells of Funds Increasing Its Rolling Stock

Omaha, November 22 - Union Pacific Railroad today said it plans to spend at least $90,000,000 for new freight cars, auto racks, cabooses and ballast cars for 1979.

The purchase price includes the cost of buying cars from suppliers and the cost of constructing cars at Union Pacific's car building facility in Portland.

The purchase breaks down in this manner: 425 covered hoppers, 130 auto racks, 100 flat cars, 600 bathtub gondolas, 1,050 open top hoppers, 2,325 cars at a cost of $78,152,500.00.

The balance of the funds will cover 100 cabooses for $6,000,000 and 175 open top hopper cars for track ballast (ground gravel used under the rails) for $6,827,500.00.

In addition, the railroad has also approved the purchase of 200 truck trailers to be used in play-back shipments for $2,220,000.00.

Union Pacific earlier announced it would purchase 150 new locomotives in 1979 at a cost of about $104,000,000.00.

The 1979 purchase of 425 covered hoppers follows the purchase this year of 1400 covered hoppers at a cost of $48,200,000.

PHOSPHORUS

Dissolved-phosphorus concentrations in the groundwater of Nebraska range from below detectable limits (reported as zero) to 1.2 ppm. as phosphorus. Nearly all the phosphorus in groundwater exists as orthophosphate, the highest oxidation state and the most stable form of phosphorus. Dissolved phosphorus as discussed herein includes orthophosphate and other dissolved forms of phosphorus as well. Phosphorus concentrations in Nebraska generally are less variable in groundwater than in surface water, where photo-synthetic algae utilize the phosphorus as an essential nutrient.

The major natural source of phosphorus is the apatite mineral group. Minerals in this group generally are composed of calcium phosphate with lesser amounts of hydroxide, carbonate, and fluoride incorporated in the material matrices. The majority of manufactured phosphorus fertilizers are derived from naturally occurring deposits of apatite group minerals. During the weathering of apatite minerals and phosphorus fertilizers, phosphate may dissolve and be added to groundwater in some areas by infiltrating precipitation or irrigation seepage. Other potential sources of phosphorus that have been oxidized at land surface; organic residues in and on the soil; and seepage from septic tanks, particularly that contains phosphorus detergents.

The highest concentrations of phosphorus in groundwater occur in the Sandhills region. Sources of this phosphorus include the dissolution of minerals and the decay and release of phosphorus from plant life and animal wastes. The relatively low absorptivity of the sand allows some of the phosphorus to infiltrate to the groundwater system. Within the ground-

Ag Secretary Admits Consumer Not Given All Diet Information

Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Carol Foreman admitted that perhaps the American consumer has not been given all the information necessary for wise diet choices about the possible hazards of highly polyunsaturated diets, the Nebraska Beef Industry Foundation (NBIF) said today.

In referring to the known health dangers of obesity, Foreman emphasized that she had made no distinction between saturated fat from animals and polyunsaturated fat from vegetables.

Speaking to a nutrition seminar sponsored by the National Cattlemen's Association, Foreman conceded for the first time that while the dangers of a high fat diet have been highly publicized, very little information has gotten out about the risks of diets high in polyunsaturated fats. The reference was to research indicating that diets high in polyunsaturated fats may speed up the aging process and prove toxic to heart cells.

Several national heart research centers are holding over 200 in Denver that the primary risks for heart disease remain obesity (regardless of source), hypertension, cigarette smoking, diabetes, heredity and a high cholesterol level. NBIF reported. But several of the researchers emphasized that while only about 10 percent of the population had abnormally high cholesterol levels, changing diets had had only a negligible effect on blood levels.

Dr. Robert Olson, chairman of the Biochemistry Department at St. Louis University Medical School pointed out that over 50,000 man/hours of scientific research had failed to prove that serum cholesterol levels could be altered significantly by either increasing or decreasing dietary consumption of either saturated or polyunsaturated fats. Olson emphasized that the average person gets only 20 percent of his cholesterol from the diet, while the remaining needed 80 percent is manufactured by the body.

Cholesterol is essential for the body in the manufacture of hormones, bile acids, lipoproteins, cell membranes and vitamin D, Olson stated.

Dr. Theodore Cooper, former assistant secretary of HEW and now dean of Cornell University Medical College, said claims that America's health and diet are worsening are not at all true when he looks at the diet figures, the NBIF said. Cooper said the average life expectancy in the U.S. was up to 73 in 1977, up decades from the beginning of the century. Infant mortality, once the shame of the country,

State Solons Jockeying For Position In '79 Unicameral

CAPITOL NEWS
By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association LINCOLN — The opening gavel of the 1979 Legislature is still about six weeks off, but the jockeying for positions of influence in the next session is already being done.

And Sen. Ernest Chambers of Omaha, who will be graduated from Law School in December, says he may be a candidate. Nichol has been serving as chairman since last spring after the resignation of Wally Barnett, who was appointed state fire marshal.

Exon Announces Eight Appointments
Gov. J. J. Exon recently announced the selection of eight key staff members who will be his staff in Washington and Lincoln offices when he becomes a U.S. Senator next January.

State senators and lobbyists are discussing persons they expect to see in positions of leadership when the lawmakers convene in January.

The general speculation is that Sen. Maurice Krieger of Aurora will be given leaves of absence during legislative sessions.

For the past eight years, Mrs. White has been the governor's administrative secretary. Mrs. Van Neste and Mrs. Labedz both worked closely on Exon's successful senatorial campaign.

Sen. Frank Lewis of Bellevue, who was somewhat subdued during the 1978 Unicameral, has given some indication he would like to become head of the Executive Board of the Legislative Council — a position some past members of the board have used to wield influence.

Sen. Orval Keyes and Cal Carsten are expected to battle it out again for the chairmanship of the Revenue Committee, a fight Keyes won last time around.

William Hoppner and Jon Oberg will head Exon's Washington staff. Hoppner has been the governor's legal counsel for five years while Oberg has served the Exon administration in several capacities. He is currently director of Administrative Services.

The current chairman is Sen. Richard Marvel of Hastings, who has said he wants to be Speaker of the next Legislature. Legislative observers expect him to get his wish.

Grand Island lawmaker Ralph Kelly says if he doesn't win the job as head of the Committee on Committees, he might go after the top post on the Miscellaneous Subjects Committee. Sen. David Newell of Omaha was also in the running for the latter job.

Exon has several times pledged he would do whatever he could to assure that the transition from one governor to the next will be handled smoothly.

Sen. William Nichol of Scottsbluff has announced his intention of being a candidate for the Judiciary Committee chairmanship.

Sen. Moylan Dies
One of the quiet gentlemen in the Legislature for the past 14 years died recently. He was Omaha Sen. Harold Moylan, 75, who died of a heart ailment.

A 2-61 season football record hardly warrants critical remarks to a taxpayer supporting the program. In many schools such a performance would be cause for firing.

Although his participation in legislative debate was infrequent, he occasionally delighted his colleagues with flashes of Irish wit. When he did debate, it often was to argue the merits of a bill dealing with helping the mentally retarded, the blind or the aged.

When I hear some feller trying to get in or stay in office talking about how he's going to reduce taxes I get as deaf as a Scotchman being asked for a loan. They say the three toughest things to do is climb a fence leaning toward you, kiss a gal leaning away from you and live up to your compliments. I would add reducing taxes to that list, Mister Editor.

Most high school athletic teams were self supporting until recent years. Possibly if "peanut butter and jelly" philosophies were transferred to teaching blocking and tackling techniques the record would improve.

Moylan was respected by his fellow senators for his willingness to listen to both sides of an argument before making up his mind on how he would vote.

General speaking, we nearly always aim at one thing and hit another, like the country boy that went to Harvard. When folks ask me Ma what he was studying at Harvard she said Harvard was studying him. And I saw where this feller mailed his gal a marriage proposal ever day fer two years, and then she married the postman.

What this column writer will hear mostly is taxes. They're too high and they're not fair. Taxes always dip in a election year. But this is the time when the papers the other day about the Japanese government trying to calm folks that were crying about the dolphins the Japanese fishermen were killing because they tear up their nets and eat all their fish. The government spent $25,000 making a fake whale to scare the dolphins away. But after a week, the dolphins figured out the whale ain't real, and they were right back in the nets worst than ever.

First, we do not know exactly when Thanksgiving was celebrated: only that it was in the fall. We do know wild turkeys are hard to catch, so there wasn't turkey! The birds weren't esteemed, were often parked beside kernels of corn to fertilize them. They were spooky birds and had to be carefully stalked. Cranberries were thought poisonous, and there was no pumpkin pie.

Taxes always dip in a election year. But this is the time when the papers the other day about the Japanese government trying to calm folks that were crying about the dolphins the Japanese fishermen were killing because they tear up their nets and eat all their fish. The government spent $25,000 making a fake whale to scare the dolphins away. But after a week, the dolphins figured out the whale ain't real, and they were right back in the nets worst than ever.

But there were plenty of Indians at that feast, for the chief Massasoit had been a true friend, and was invited, and he came bringing 90 braves with him, shocking the Pilgrims! There were more Indians than white folks.

Truly a contrast to the way we gulp and guzzle on Thanksgiving, with tables so overlaid that they crash to the floor. Possibly we can list many things for which to give thanks, I hope so. Thus making the holiday overstuffing worth it all.

KERRY ON
— insight —
Though he reminds me I'd met him long before that, the first time I remember meeting Bill was when he answered my knock on the door of his motel suite.

"I'm Kerry Leggett . . . and this is my wife, Carol. He invited us in, suggesting we sit down while he found a shirt and finished dressing.

"Have you ever met Father Martin?" Bill yelled through the partially opened bedroom door. "Father . . . meet those people in the front room."

A pleasant and quiet looking priest stepped out of one of the other bedrooms, and walked toward us, extending his hand. "I'm Father Martin and I'm happy to meet you."

As meek and unassuming as a lamb, I immediately thought of the many tapes I'd heard of this man's talks. His voice was powerful — as was his manner of speaking. His film on alcoholism had become a classroom standard through the nation's schools and rehabilitation centers.

We visited, briefly, as he fastened his collar and prepared for the talk he'd soon be delivering. Then he would fly back to his home on the East Coast.

After that I'd forgotten about Bill — the guest speaker's host that evening. Forgotten, that is, until a family familiar voice asked, "Got time for a cup of coffee?"

I had my back to the door of my office, typing a letter. Unable to put a name with the voice, I answered "Sure do," anyway, and then turned around. It was Bill.

"Last time I saw you, you were hobnobbing with priests," I kidded. "Wasn't he a great guy! The more I hang around people like that," Bill continued, "the more I learn about me."

Though I continued visiting with Bill as we walked toward the coffee shop, my mind continued to consider what he'd said about his own growth and self-knowledge. Few people, I thought as we walked along, would ever believe the number of years this man has served behind bars. Nor would they believe he was a one-time pro football player.

Bill had been around — and possibly this is one of the reasons I enjoyed visiting with him. For he'd gained an uncanny insight into people, through his hard years — I liked to share my thoughts with him. His self-education from penitentiaries to priests was something you'll get from no classroom.

We visited about mutual friends and acquaintances, as we sipped our coffee. Both of us seemed to agree about the things and people we discussed.

"You know," I pondered, as Bill lit a cigarette. "It's almost frightening the insight I have, into people. And you seem to have it, too! I wonder what it is?"

"That's easy," Bill said, blowing out the match and placing it methodically in the ashtray. "When you accept who you are and don't have to spend all your time looking at yourself to see how you look to other people — when you KNOW who you are and don't have to look at yourself — then you can look out and see others."

"Most people are so preoccupied with themselves," Bill continued, but I didn't hear him. My mind clung to the statement he'd just made about self-acceptance. And I again saw a priest — meek as a lamb — squeezed your heart when he grasped your hand.

Alcohol Ed. or Mostly Personal

The Omaha World-Herald, Monday, carried a lengthy article on alcohol education at the University of Nebraska and other colleges. Answers to voluntary tests taken by students will indicate how many drink too much, how many are aware of the dangers of drink, and how to help those that aren't.

Reading about their efforts reminded me of another earlier alcohol ed. program at a college. One little old lady, a staunch member of the WCTU, lectured students on the evils of drink in her required course.

To prove just how harmful alcohol really is, she would drop a live worm in a beaker of the stuff. The poor animal would survive for a brief period and then die.

His death, the instructor would point out, clearly showed just how bad of a demon alcohol really was. After all, if it killed a worm, just imagine what it would do to you, the instructor darkly hinted.

The instructor continued her tirades against the evils of drink for many years. Students dutifully sat through the class, gave the "correct" answers to questions posed, and then likely went out and celebrated on having passed the dismal course.

Each year she would sacrifice some poor worm in the vat of alcohol to impress upon her charges the evils of alcohol. And each year the hapless worm died.

This dreary cycle continued unbroken until one year some bright fraternity jock followed her worm-alcohol exhibition with a show of his own. The day after the old gal made her annual sacrifice of the worm, the bright young student showed up with a large beaker of milk and a small fish.

"Now, if this stuff is as good for you as they claim it is," the student reportedly said, pointing to the milk, "this fish will really grow and survive."

He then placed the fish in the milk bath, and the poor creature died.

Just what grade he got out of the course we don't know. I suppose he flunked, there being little hope for him in the instructor's eyes.

Our only hope is that the present alcohol education program is more effective than the one just mentioned.

Alcohol Ed. or Mostly Personal

The Omaha World-Herald, Monday, carried a lengthy article on alcohol education at the University of Nebraska and other colleges. Answers to voluntary tests taken by students will indicate how many drink too much, how many are aware of the dangers of drink, and how to help those that aren't.

Reading about their efforts reminded me of another earlier alcohol ed. program at a college. One little old lady, a staunch member of the WCTU, lectured students on the evils of drink in her required course.

To prove just how harmful alcohol really is, she would drop a live worm in a beaker of the stuff. The poor animal would survive for a brief period and then die.

His death, the instructor would point out, clearly showed just how bad ol' demon alcohol really was. After all, if it killed a worm, just imagine what it would do to you, the instructor darkly hinted.

The instructor continued her tirades against the evils of drink for many years. Students dutifully sat through the class, gave the "correct" answers to questions posed, and then likely went out and celebrated on having passed the dismal course.

Each year she would sacrifice some poor worm in the vat of alcohol to impress upon her charges the evils of alcohol. And each year the hapless worm died.

This dreary cycle continued unbroken until one year some bright fraternity jock followed her worm-alcohol exhibition with a show of his own. The day after the old gal made her annual sacrifice of the worm, the bright young student showed up with a large beaker of milk and a small fish.

"Now, if this stuff is as good for you as they claim it is," the student reportedly said, pointing to the milk, "this fish will really grow and survive."

He then placed the fish in the milk bath, and the poor creature died.

Just what grade he got out of the course we don't know. I suppose he flunked, there being little hope for him in the instructor's eyes.

Our only hope is that the present alcohol education program is more effective than the one just mentioned.

Lake Ericson

The question of what will happen to Lake Ericson is once again with us. A few years ago we thought the popular recreation area was going to the State Game and Parks Commission. Then lake owners, the Nebraska Public Power District, wanted to divest themselves of the property.

Their proposed gift to the state agency didn't work out, evidently. Present owners, the Loup Valley Rural Public Power District, are now saddled with the property. Now, they too, want to get rid of the area.

With little income from the lake, and added responsibilities, any power company has something to lose and nothing to gain by holding onto the property.

Having sat through the first round of "who will get the lake" with NPPD, the present scenario resembles a game of musical chairs. This time, Loup Valley is where NPPD once sat.

The Game and Parks Commission is once again being approached to take the property and, once again, the matter will start going through state channels. How long it will take to get an answer from officialdom is anyone's guess.

Like NPPD, Loup Valley manager Wilbert Calvin has promised to act responsibly while the search for a new lake owner goes on. For this he deserves a great deal of credit.

However we suspect that neither Loup Valley nor any other business will hang onto Lake Ericson indefinitely. Sometime — and soon — a new owner will have to be found. When this time comes we hope they will be a public entity rather than a private one.

We would hate to see Lake Ericson restricted to the use of a few persons. It is a major asset to the Burwell-Ericson area, and should be enjoyed by all.

State Solons Jockeying For Position In '79 Unicameral

CAPITOL NEWS

By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
LINCOLN — The opening gavel of the 1979 Legislature is still about six weeks off, but the jockeying for positions of influence in the next session is already being done.

State senators and lobbyists are discussing persons they expect to see in positions of leadership when the lawmakers convene in January.

Sen. Frank Lewis of Bellevue, who was somewhat subdued during the 1978 Unicameral, has given some indication he would like to become head of the Executive Board of the Legislative Council — a position some past members of the board have used to wield influence.

The current chairman is Sen. Richard Marvel of Hastings, who has said he wants to be Speaker of the next Legislature. Legislative observers expect him to get his wish.

Sen. Larry Stoney of Omaha has said he will probably challenge Lewis for Executive Board chairman.

Also to be decided are chairmen of the Judiciary, Business and Labor and Revenue committees.

Sen. William Nichol of Scottsbluff has announced his intention of being a candidate for the Judiciary Committee chairmanship.

And Sen. Ernest Chambers of Omaha, who will be graduated from Law School in December, says he may be a candidate.

Nichol has been serving as chairman since last spring after the resignation of Wally Barnett, who was appointed state fire marshal.

The general speculation is that Sen. Maurice Kremer of Aurora will have no difficulty in obtaining another term as chairman of the Public Health and Welfare Committee.

Sens. Orval Keyes and Cal Carsten are expected to battle it out again for the chairmanship of the Revenue Committee, a fight Keyes won last time around.

Sen. Bill Burrows of Adams and Sen. Richard Maresh of Milligan will oppose each other for the Business and Labor Committee assignment, and Sen. Gerald Koch says he's considering seeking the chairmanship of either the Education or Government Committee. Some support for Sen. Martin Kahle of Kearney for the education post was reported.

Grand Island lawmaker Ralph Kelly says if he doesn't win the job he heads the Committee on Committees, he might go after the top post on the Miscellaneous Subjects Committee. Sen. David Newell of Omaha was also in the running for the latter job.

Sen. Moylan Dies
One of the quiet gentlemen in the Legislature for the past 14 years died recently. He was Omaha Sen. Harold Moylan, 75, who died of a heart ailment.

Moylan, who announced near the close of the 1978 session that he would not seek re-election, was elected for the first time in 1964 and won re-election in 1966, 1970 and 1974.

Although his participation in legislative debate was infrequent, he occasionally delighted his colleagues with flashes of Irish wit. When he did debate, it often was to argue the merits of a bill dealing with helping the mentally retarded, the blind or the aged.

Moylan was respected by his fellow senators for his willingness to listen to both sides of an argument before making up his mind on how he would vote.

A 2-6-1 season football record hardly warrants critical remarks to a taxpayer supporting the program. In many schools such a performance would be cause for firing.

Most high school athletic teams were self supporting until recent years. Possibly if "peanut butter and jelly" philosophies were transferred to teaching blocking and tackling techniques the record would improve.

Something Different

Five Kernels of Corn

Sit still and I'll tell you more about Thanksgiving than your teacher did . . . or than you want to know.

First, we do not know exactly when Thanksgiving was celebrated: only that it was in the fall. We do know wild turkeys are hard to catch; so there wasn't turkey! The birds weren't esteemed, were often parked beside kernels of corn to fertilize them. They were spooky birds and had to be carefully stalked. Cranberries were thought poisonous, and there was no pumpkin pie.

But there were plenty of Indians at that feast, for the chief Massasoit had been a true friend, and was invited, and he came bringing 90 braves with him, shocking the Pilgrims! There were more Indians than white folks.

The women who had prepared the dinner had to really scratch and scabble to extend it enough for all the guests.

Of the passengers who came on the Mayflower, 102 of them, 70 per cent were men. The oldest traveller was 33 years old Miles Standish.

The Pilgrims were Congregationalists but in 1640, ten years after they arrived, they consolidated with the Puritans. They too were Congregationalists, who had not been able to effect any changes in the Church of England.

Here William Bradford wrote the famous Compact, stating "No man shall have a mortgage on the body, mind or spirit of another", the first time such ideas had been expressed, the first written constitution in the world. And they obeyed it.

However, in the first six months, the 102 population was cut in half by illness and lack of food. Their rations had been cut to as little as five kernels of corn per day!

Truly a contrast to the way we gulp and guzzle on Thanksgiving, with tables so overlaid that they crash to the floor. Possibly we can list many things for which to give thanks, I hope so.

Thus making the holiday overstuffing worth it all. Amazingly, other nations do not celebrate Thanksgiving. We should have realized this, but one such holiday found us in Ireland — and not a trace of turkey dinners could we find.

And even more critical, we couldn't find any Nebraska-Oklahoma football results!

Until in desperation we phoned Ord!

Exon Announces Eight Appointments

Gov. J. J. Exon recently announced the selection of eight key staff members who will be his staff in Washington and Lincoln offices when he becomes a U.S. Senator next January.

The governor said he will have local Nebraska offices in each of the three congressional districts. Named to head the offices were Mrs. Edie Van Neste of North Platte, Mrs. Fran White of Lincoln, and Mrs. Bernice Labedz of Omaha.

Mrs. Labedz, a state senator, will be given leaves of absence during legislative sessions.

For the past eight years, Mrs. White has been the governor's administrative secretary. Mrs. Van Neste and Mrs. Labedz both worked closely on Exon's successful senatorial campaign.

William Hoppner and Jon Oberg will head Exon's Washington staff. Hoppner has been the governor's legal counsel for five years while Oberg has served the Exon administration in several capacities. He is currently director of Administrative Services.

Also part of the Washington staff will be Mrs. Dorothy Obpink, a long-time employee in the governor's office who will be Exon's executive secretary, and Mrs. Doris Peterson, who has been a secretary in the governor's office.

Exon tabbed as his agricultural specialist Richard Fitzsimmons of Minden, who is Nebraska deputy director of agriculture.

The governor said he did not expect to announce other staff appointments until he begins his Washington duties and receives his committee assignments.

Thone's First Appointment

Gov.-elect Charles Thone named Kay Orr of Lincoln to be his chief of staff when he assumes his new duties in January.

Mrs. Orr, who handled many of the details in the gubernatorial campaign, was the first person Thone named to be part of his staff.

In his announcement statement, the governor-elect said Mrs. Orr, 39, "demonstrated during the campaign that she has a broad grasp of details and a talent for planning that is required in this demanding task."

Mrs. Orr worked on Thone campaigns for Congress and in 1976 was co-chairman with Milan Bish of Grand Island of Ronald Reagan's successful primary in Nebraska.

That same year she was a delegate to the Republican National Convention where she served on the platform committee.

In a prepared release, Mrs. Orr said she expects a cordial relationship with officials of the outgoing Exon administration.

Exon has several times pledged he would do whatever he could to assure that the transition from one governor to the next will be handled smoothly.

Geranium Joe Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

Well, Mister Editor, we got to brace ourselves for all the new things going to turn the country around and head it toward less government, balanced budgets and all the rest will be explaining that the are just one among many, and their little voices are crying in the big spending wilderness.

When I hear some feller trying to get in or stay in office talking about how he's going to reduce taxes I get as deaf as a Scotchman being asked for a loan. They say the three toughest things to do is climb a fence leaning toward you, kiss a gal leaning away from you and live up to your compliments. I would add reducing taxes to that list, Mister Editor.

General speaking, we nearly always aim at one thing and hit another, like the country boy that went to Harvard. When folks ask his Ma what he was studying at Harvard, she said Harvard was studying him. And I saw where this feller mailed his gal a marriage proposal ever day for two years, and then she married the postman.

After a life of studying taxes, and dodging all of em I could, I can tell this feller that folks will tell him everything, but what they want from their country is more fer less. And what they're going to get is less. I saw this piece in the paper the other day where this column writer was touring the country, asking folks what's wrong and what's right with this country. If you see him might pass along what I'm fixing to say. It will save him a heap of questions.

What this column writer will hear mostly is taxes. They're too high, and they're not fair. Depending on how close folks have been listening to the politicians before the election, some will think help is on the way. These ain't made much of a study of the situation. Taxes always dip in an election year. But this is the year that in the papers the other day about the Japanese government trying to calm folks that were crying about the dolphins the Japanese fishermen were killing because they were up their tails and eat all their fish. The government spent $25,000 making a fake whale to scare the dolphins away. But after a week, the dolphins figured out the whale ain't real, and they were right back in the nets, worse than ever.

In ever speech from precinct to President leading up to the election, these fake whales were built to calm folks concerned about higher taxes. But I guarantee you that by the time these new-elected office holders get sworn in they will be faced with a crisis that changes the hole shape of things they outlined in the campaign. Them candidates that were going to turn the country around and head it toward less government, balanced budgets and all the rest will be explaining that the are just one among many, and their little voices are crying in the big spending wilderness.

When folks ask his Ma what he was studying at Harvard, she said Harvard was studying him. And I saw where this feller mailed his gal a marriage proposal ever day for two years, and then she married the postman.

After a life of studying taxes, and dodging all of em I could, I can tell this feller that folks will tell him everything, but what they want from their country is more fer less. And what they're going to get is less. I saw this piece in the paper the other day where this column writer was touring the country, asking folks what's wrong and what's right with this country. If you see him might pass along what I'm fixing to say. It will save him a heap of questions.

What this column writer will hear mostly is taxes. They're too high, and they're not fair. Depending on how close folks have been listening to the politicians before the election, some will think help is on the way. These ain't made much of a study of the situation. Taxes always dip in an election year. But this is the year that in the papers the other day about the Japanese government trying to calm folks that were crying about the dolphins the Japanese fishermen were killing because they were up their tails and eat all their fish. The government spent $25,000 making a fake whale to scare the dolphins away. But after a week, the dolphins figured out the whale ain't real, and they were right back in the nets, worse than ever.

In ever speech from precinct to President leading up to the election, these fake whales were built to calm folks concerned about higher taxes. But I guarantee you that by the time these new-elected office holders get sworn in they will be faced with a crisis that changes the hole shape of things they outlined in the campaign. Them candidates that were going to turn the country around and head it toward less government, balanced budgets and all the rest will be explaining that the are just one among many, and their little voices are crying in the big spending wilderness.

When I hear some feller trying to get in or stay in office talking about how he's going to reduce taxes I get as deaf as a Scotchman being asked for a loan. They say the three toughest things to do is climb a fence leaning toward you, kiss a gal leaning away from you and live up to your compliments. I would add reducing taxes to that list, Mister Editor.

General speaking, we nearly always aim at one thing and hit another, like the country boy that went to Harvard. When folks ask his Ma what he was studying at Harvard, she said Harvard was studying him. And I saw where this feller mailed his gal a marriage proposal ever day for two years, and then she married the postman.

KERRY ON

— insight —
Though he reminds me I'd met him long before that, the first time I remember meeting Bill was when he answered my knock on the door of his motel suite.

"I'm Kerry Leggett . . . and this is my wife, Carol."

He invited us in, suggesting we sit down while he found a shirt and finished dressing.

"Have you ever met Father Martin?" Bill yelled through the partially opened bedroom door.

"Father . . . meet those people in the front room."

A pleasant and quiet looking priest stepped out of one of the other bedrooms, and walked toward us, extending his hand. "I'm Father Martin and I'm happy to meet you."

As meek and unassuming as a lamb, I immediately thought of the many tapes I'd heard of this man's talks. His voice was powerful — as was his manner of speaking. His film on a catholicism had become a classroom standard through the nation's schools and rehabilitation centers.

We visited, briefly, as he fastened his collar and prepared for the talk he'd soon be delivering. Then he would fly back to his home on the East Coast.

After that I'd forgotten about Bill — the guest speaker's host that evening. Forgotten, that is, until a family familiar voice asked, "Got time for a cup of coffee?"

I had my back to the door of my office, typing a letter. Unable to put a name with the voice, I answered "Sure do," anyway, and then turned around. It was Bill.

"Last time I saw you, you were hobnobbing with priests," I kidded.

"Wasn't he a great guy! The more I hang around people like that," Bill continued, "the more I learn about me."

Though I continued visiting with Bill as we walked toward the coffee shop, my mind continued to consider what he'd said about his own growth and self-knowledge. Few people, I thought as we walked along, would ever believe the number of years this man has served behind bars. Nor would they believe he was a one-time pro football player.

Bill had been around — and possibly this is one of the reasons I enjoyed visiting with him. For he'd gained an uncanny insight into people, through his hard years. I liked to share my self-education from penitentiaries to priests was something you'll get from no classroom.

We visited about mutual friends and acquaintances, as we sipped our coffee. Both of us seemed to agree about the things and people we discussed.

"You know," I pondered, as Bill lit a cigarette, "it's almost frightening the insight I have, into people. And you seem to have it, too! I wonder what it is?"

"That's easy," Bill said, blowing out the match and placing it methodically in the ashtray. "When you accept who you are and don't have to spend all your time looking at yourself to see how you look to other people — when you KNOW who you are and don't have to look at yourself — then you can look out and see others."

"Most people are so preoccupied with themselves," Bill continued, but I didn't hear him.

My mind clung to the statement he'd just made about self-acceptance. And I again saw a squeeze your heart when he grasped your hand.

Kron Termed Skilled Surgeon of Earth Moving

(The following article appeared in the May 1978 issue of Action magazine. Bob Kron is a former resident of North Loup, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Kron.)

What Dr. Christian Barnard is to heart surgery, Bob Kron of Anchorage is to the fine art of moving dirt with a Caterpillar Motor Grader. Each is a virtuoso in his own field; while Barnard slices human tissue with a sharpened scalpel, an ever-smiling Bob Kron cuts curbs, corners and cul-de-sacs with his Caterpillar-built Motor Grader with such finesse that he has Anchorage-area paving contractors clamoring to hire him as a one-man subcontractor for their most delicate and difficult fine grade work.

Kron purchased his Caterpillar 12G Motor Grader in May, 1976 and immediately put it to work for Stephan & Sons Inc., an Anchorage dirt-moving and high-way contracting firm. Since then he has worked for numerous other Anchorage paving contractors including Eastwind Inc., Black Top Co., Damco Paving Co. and most recently Wilder Construction Co., which paved about four miles of Muldoon Road this past summer.

"I worked about five months last year and put 1,350 hours on my grader," Kron recalled. A majority of it was as a one-man subcontractor for the most difficult finish work that highway contractors can throw at him.

During the winter of 1975-76, Kron worked for Frontier Rock and Sand at Prudhoe Bay, extending a gravel causeway out into the freezing waters of the bay. As huge chunks of ice were lifted out of the water, gravel was used as fill to build a base so thousands of tons of equipment and material critical to the development of North America's largest oil field could be brought to shore after the barges, on which the supplies were loaded, became frozen in the ice.

"I've run 'em all," Kron said with a grin.

"I guess I've run every blade made, including the old pull type. I even worked a blade my dad had in Nebraska which he used to pull behind horses to smooth out the rural roads there. We've come a long way since then and I guess I'm just a little partial to 'Cat,'" Kron said.

He is particularly enthusiastic about the articulated steering feature of his Caterpillar 12G Motor Grader made possible by a universal joint between the cab and the back half of the machine.

"The maneuverability is just hard to beat," said the native of North Loup, NE where he still maintains a 225-acre corn farm.

Another Caterpillar feature that Kron has enjoyed is the automatic blade control. "It's been pretty darn accurate."

"It takes a lot of guess work out of the job. I've had two 8T series motor graders, a 12E and then this one here. These things are so nice to operate I don't know if I could go back to the old ones or not — it would be quite a shock."

"And it's been trouble free, really," he said with evident pleasure in his voice.

Kron began his career as a skinner in 1954 in Grand Island, NE when he went to work for the Missouri Valley Co., which was owned by Peter Klewit Sons. In 1956 he went to work for Paul Hooper, a Little Rock, AR contractor who had been awarded the dirt work for the main buildings at the Air Force Academy in Colorado Springs, CO.

"I started on the Academy from scratch," he recalled. Over a period of five years, he worked all over the Academy grounds working on jobs ranging from the golf course, the track, and even snow removal.

"I finished the slopes for the stadium at the Air Force Academy as a subcontractor on my own," Kron said.

"I've probably dealt with five or six Caterpillar dealers and I think N C Machinery Co. does as well as any of them," Kron said.

"They get right after the problem and that's all anybody can do."

While in Colorado Kron operated as C. R. Kron Excavating. Today he calls his operation C. R. Kron and Sons because he hopes to bring his three boys into the business some day. His oldest son, Jeff, 20, currently acts as his stake hop.

"I might just buy another grader and put Jeff to work on it pretty soon," he says with a grin.

Use the All New Foodstamp Hotline

Having problems with high food bills? Do you think you might be eligible for food stamps? How will "food stamps at no cost" and smaller allotments affect you? Do you want more information about food stamps?

There's a new toll free food stamp hotline. The number is 800-742-7630. You may call without charge from anywhere in Nebraska. In the Lincoln area, dial 471-3121 and ask for the hotline.

The toll free number is available 24 hours a day. After 5 p.m., incoming messages are recorded and answered the next working day.

Eldin J. Ehrlich, State Director of the Nebraska Department of Public Welfare, says the hotline is an attempt to give people the information they want about food stamps. Other states have used this method and found it successful.

READ PSALM 28:6-9

"The Lord is my strength and my shield; in him my heart trusts."

(Psalm 28:7 RSV)

On September 12, 1977, the worst flash flood in the history of Kansas City, Missouri, brought shock to all of us. Twenty-five lives were lost, and hundreds were homeless. Massive destruction was everywhere.

On the night of the flood, many people tried frantically to get to higher ground. One woman climbed onto the roof of her car for safety, but it turned over in the rushing water. A group of passersby saw her life-threatening situation. They formed a human chain to pull her from the water. These strangers saved her life.

Often God seems to use a chain of caring people to help a person in times of crisis or illness. The chain may include family, friends, and even strangers. They may not even know each other, but they are a part of a vital team to help someone to "higher ground."

God wants us to depend on Him for our strength. Only then can we be an effective part of a chain of prayer and assistance to His children.

PRAYER: Heavenly Father, we thank You for Your nearness to us today. Keep us on the high ground of the spirit. Make us ready to help to minister to others who are in need. Amen.
