

State Senator Returning To Lincoln But In A New Role

Dennis Rasmussen

State Senator Dennis Rasmussen is winding up his career in the Nebraska Unicameral. Moving to Lincoln in the near future, he will start work as a lobbyist for the Nebraska Medical Association.

Resigning from the Unicameral late last year, he ended a six year stint in the State Senate. First elected in 1972, he then defeated J. H. Schroeder.

"I've seen quite a few issues come and go," Rasmussen said reviewing his six years in office. When first elected, government spending and taxes were the main issues. In the November 1978 election, these same items were still being debated.

"The faces change," Rasmussen conceded, "but the problems are still the same."

One face gone from capitol halls is that belonging to the late State Senator Terry Carpenter. From Scottsbluff, nicknamed Terrible Terry, Carpenter was noted for his colorful ways. Rasmussen recalled Carpenter could introduce a bill in the morning, change his mind over lunch, and then oppose legislation he had introduced earlier the same day.

"The thing was," Rasmussen explained, "you never knew how to take Terry." That mercurial state senator was known to tangle with giants including Ak-Sar-Ben and Peter Kiewit interests, one of the state's largest businesses.

Rasmussen disagreed with the suggestion Carpenter was all show and no substance. "He was a very smart man," the Scotia resident said, "and worked for things for the little people." These things included day-care centers.

Larger projects Carpenter helped shepherd through the Unicameral included the Nebraska educational television center in Lincoln and the Devaney fieldhouse. Acknowledging their debt of gratitude, ETV personnel re-named their new Lincoln center after the late legislator.

"But you've got to remember," Rasmussen added, "Carpenter could pass anything by himself. He needed the help of other senators." Both he and Rasmussen will be recalled for their log-rolling abilities. Both men had the knack of making other senators see their point of view.

Said Rasmussen, "In the six years I was there (in the Unicameral) I never lost any major bill I was working on that really mattered." Bills the Senator from Scotia helped introduce and pass included Nebraska's death penalty.

Lively debate between Rasmussen and State Senator Ernie Chambers, of Omaha, was an annual event. Chambers is a well-known opponent of capital punishment.

During his stay in the Unicameral, Rasmussen wrote a weekly column called "Your Senator Sez." He credited it for helping keep constituents informed of his views and pending legislation.

"And I learned something else," he added, "That column taught me just how well county papers are read." He suggested members of the fourth estate often have more clout than they realize. They and lobbyists often help shape legislation passed by state solons. Hired by a particular group or association, lobbyists ply their trade in and around the state capital in Lincoln.

Most contacts between senators and lobbyists are informal and low-key according to Rasmussen. One frequent place is the state capitol's coffee shop, early in the morning. High pressure tactics are rare, the former state senator recalled, with most solons too busy for those legendary free dinners and drinks.

In an earlier interview, he had told how the senator's day often starts early and ends late. Most evenings are occupied reading up on pending bills.

After the first of the year, the now ex-senator will end this routine and start his career as a lobbyist at the capitol where he once represented the 41st district.

His assignment will be representing the Nebraska Medical Association.

During his state senate stay, Rasmussen served on the Health Committee. He termed medicine "an interesting field, there are so many facets to it."

"I expect," he concluded, "my biggest problem will be remembering I don't have to form an opinion on each of the bills introduced."

Three Charged With Aerial Coyote Hunting

Three Nebraska men have been charged with hunting coyotes by aircraft.

Two of the three, Jerome T. Bair, 38, of York and Gordon G. Harnes, 28, of David City, were named in last week's Quiz lead news story. They, along with James L. Anderson, 30, of York are free on bond but are to be arraigned January 11 before U.S. District Judge Warren Urbom in Lincoln.

According to a UPI news dispatch, the U.S. District Attorney's office reported officials seized the pelts of 95 coyotes, a helicopter, gun, and pickup truck. The truck and 85 pelts were seized December 21 at Scotia while the helicopter and additional pelts were later seized at York.

Possible Penalties
Should the men be convicted, under federal law, their vehicles could be forfeited to the government, authorities reportedly said. The helicopter is valued at more than $100,000. If convicted the men face a maximum penalty of a $5,000 fine or a year in prison or both.

Man-Woman of the Year to Be Named at Ord Chamber Banquet

Weeks of suspense will end at 7 p.m. January 9 when Ord Chamber officials reveal their Man and Woman of the Year choices at the Chamber banquet. Speculation has been running high on just who will receive the awards at the Ord Elks Club.

Master of Ceremonies
Quiz publisher Kerry Leggett will be master of ceremonies.

Along with the Man and Woman of the Year awards Betty Jo Axthelm will be installed as the 1979 Chamber president. Guest speaker will be Dr. Gene Koepke, chairman of the Business Development at Kearney State College. He has conducted several seminars and will speak on "Business Future of the Small Town."

Plane Crashes Just Yards From Former Ordites Door

Pamela Gridley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Moyer of Ord, got a close look at one of last week's major news stories. A United Airlines DC-8 jetliner crashed 25 yards in front of her Portland, OR home Friday. Reports of the crash have termed it a near miracle. Only ten people died when the plane lost power and plowed through a Portland residential area. A report in the Grand Island Daily Independent said the pilot was working to correct a malfunctioning landing gear when the plane went down.

The aircraft plowed through two houses, both empty before coming to a halt near Mrs. Gridley's home. A family had been evicted from one of the two empty homes a week earlier.

A man had halted remodeling work on the other home, around 6:00 p.m. Mrs. Gridley's clock stopped at 6:10 when the plane snapped overhead power lines. The Portland, OR resident was sitting in her home hearing news reports of a plane in trouble when Flight 173 ended just outside her home. She said, "insulation from the houses (destroyed) was falling like snow," Moyer told the Quiz. Several passengers appeared to be disoriented.

One gentleman wanted to know how far from the airport they were. Another passenger wasn't sure if he was in the plane when it came down or lived in the Portland suburb.

One stunned passenger kept repeating, "I can't believe I'm alive." Gathering up blankets, Mrs. Gridley gave them to passengers standing around the aircraft wreckage. Police, firemen, and ambulance crews arrived a short time later.

An Associated Press account of the crash listed these factors as having saved lives:
— Both houses flattened by the plane were vacant.
— Dozens of high-voltage wires scattered over the ground around the plane when dazed passengers scrambled from the wreck, but no one was electrocuted.

— The plane's tail was touching a live wire, but the craft did not catch fire, possibly because it had only a small amount of fuel on board.
— A grove of fir trees sheared off both wings, preventing the plane from plowing through scy-

Calamus Work Bids Opening Jan. 30th

The Bureau of Reclamation announces that it is advertising for sealed bids for construction of a Materials Laboratory Building at Calamus Dam site of the North Loup Division, Nebraska. Pick-Sloan Missouri Basin Program. The Calamus Dam site is located approximately six miles northwest of Burwell, NE.

The bids for the work will be opened at 11 a.m. on January 30, 1979, in the basement of the First National Bank Building, 1411 M Street, Ord, NE. Bids will be received at the place of bid opening until 11 a.m. on January 30, 1979. Bids submitted by mail should be addressed to the Bureau of Reclamation, P.O. Box 130, Ord, NE 68862.

The work involves the furnishing and erecting of a 24-by-60-foot prefabricated metal laboratory building, including site work, plumbing, sewage disposal facilities, heating and electrical systems. The contractor will have 160 days to complete the work after award of a contract.

Hurst Completes Police Training

Patrolman Cleo Hurst of the Ord Police Department was one of 33 students successfully completing seven weeks of training at the Nebraska Law Enforcement Training Center in Grand Island, Nebraska on December 22, 1978.

This law enforcement officer was required to take 300 hours of comprehensive classroom instruction consisting of Legal Subjects, Patrol and Related Subjects, Firearms and Defensive Tactics, Criminal Investigation and Human Behavior.

Pizza Hut Beer Permit Approved

The State Liquor Control Commission approved Ord Pizza Hut's beer license application at a hearing held in late December, according to Barb Stalker, Pizza Hut Assistant Manager. The approval followed a public hearing in Lincoln.

Stalker speculated the local Pizza Hut will start serving beer within a few weeks.

The approval ends a long fight by the local franchiser for state approval of a beer license. During earlier public hearings, local church leaders had maintained Pizza Hut's serving beer would lead to everything from broken minds and broken hearts to pollution of area youths' bloodstreams.

Police Report

December 29 — A two-car fender bender at the Parkway Motel, 24th and L, did minor damage to two vehicles. A 1966 Ford pickup belonging to Byron Stevens and a 1971 Plymouth belonging to Ted Nelson both of Ord, were involved.

Nelson was parked and the pickup pulling into the motel lot when the accident happened. No damage to the truck, $200 damage to the Plymouth.

December 29 — Dan Ehfesman of Ord reported his Chevrolet van was struck by a hit-and-run driver while parked at 202 N. The van had an estimated $100 dollars damage.

January 2 — A two-car accident in the alley by the Parkway Motel, 24th and L, did minor damage to two vehicles. A 1958 Chevrolet pickup driven by Lee L. Petersen of Ord and a 1973 International pickup driven by Randall G. Mason of Ord were involved.

Mason was backing from a parking space and the other truck headed south through the alley when the accident happened. Both vehicles had an estimated $150 damage, each.

Former Judge Joins Lawyers

Former Hall County District Judge Donald Weaver joined the Grand Island law firm of Anderson and Vipperman January 1. Judge Weaver was a regular rotating circuit judge through Valley County in 1961-62 and heard cases from time to time as requested by other District Judges until his retirement from the bench last year.

Weaver, retired from the judgeship last July 1, Grand Island Attorney Tom Anderson said he first contacted Weaver about joining the law firm about a year and a half ago. At that time Weaver was unsure of his retirement plans. After retiring, Weaver traveled for a while, and then decided to return to law, according to Anderson.

Top Quiz News Story in '78 Is Comstock Power Plant

Lead story in the Ord Quiz during 1978 was Nebraska Public Power District Directors approving Comstock as the site for an electric power generating plant. The September 14 Quiz told directors had approved a resolution confirming Comstock as the site of a 650,000 kilowatt coal-fired generating plant. Plans call for it to become operational by 1986.

The plant will become the third coal-fired plant of its size in the NPPD grid system. Two 650,000 kilowatt coal-fired units are now under construction near Sutherland.

Official approval ended over a year of speculation that Comstock would likely be picked as the plant site.

Preliminary estimates by NPPD place the cost of the facility at about $620,118,000. This estimate includes an initial supply of coal at the site. The unit will burn low-sulphur coal from the Wyoming area.

At a series of meetings held in October, NPPD officials explained the cost of the impact, operations, etc. One of these sessions at Comstock in early October drew a standing room only audience. Opponents claimed the plant would cause everything from acid rains to an increase in undesirable transients.

Preliminary environmental studies are now being conducted near Comstock, prior to the plant's construction. Omaha and Lincoln papers, and others, had feature articles on what the plant will mean and do to the once sleepy hamlet located between Ord and Sargent.

Opponents to the plant have organized and are reportedly taking steps to halt what promises to be a major expansion at Comstock.

Other news stories, and the Quiz week they were carried included:

December 28 — One of three men believed involved in an aerial coyote hunting operation was arrested near Scotia. The alleged assault in Ord September 1977.

August 24 — Ord's new municipal swimming pool was officially opened. Work on the pool was started in November 1977 after voters approved a $240,000 bond issue. Construction was completed last June.

December 21 — A lawsuit to halt Paving District 1978-8 was filed here. Opponents wanted to halt planned work on the six-block area in southeast Ord. Their request for a temporary injunction was later denied.

December 21 — New Mayor Richard Kowbal and Councilmen took office.

December 14 — State Senator Dennis Rasmussen of Scotia resigned his Unicameral seat, ending six years in the state house. Rasmussen will become a lobbyist.

November 30 — Plans for street and storm sewer improvements were accepted by the Ord City Council. Great Plains Engineering of Kearney estimated cost of improvements at $972,255. Paulsen Supply of Cozad later submitted a low bid on construction of $837,739.

November 30 — Richard Klimek was awarded the municipal cable TV franchise. The cable system will bring in six channels including a time-temperature monitoring station and a station from Atlanta, GA.

November 9 — The general election saw Governor J. James Exon elected to Congress. Charles Thone was named the state's new governor-elect. In Valley County the Lid Bill limiting local government expenditures to seven percent passed.

October 26 — The North Loup Project received $4.1 million in Congressional appropriations.

October 5 — A task force named by Gov. J. J. Exon to evaluate the pending Calamus or North Loup Project called the planned irrigation system "a beneficial project for Nebraska."

August 24 — A $233,000 lawsuit against three Ord Police Officers, Ord Police Chief John Young, and Valley County Sheriff Martin Sonnenfeld was filed by Marvin Timmons in U.S. District Court. The legal action involves an alleged assault in Ord September 1977.

August 24 — Ord's new municipal swimming pool was officially opened. Work on the

Town Spikers In Tournament

Ord town team spikers will enter the nine team double elimination volleyball tournament in Taylor January 7, 13-14. Games will be in the school gym.

Ord is scheduled to play at 5 p.m. Sunday, January 7. They will take on the winner of the Taylor-Burwell game to be played earlier that day.

Ord, with an 80 record is seeded number one. Coach Gerri Warford speculated Ord could have an easy time knocking off either team.

More next week.

Foths Win Hawaii Trip

Eldon and Sharon Foth will be winging their way to Hawaii in February for a seven-day, two-island holiday, courtesy of Pizer Genetics' Aloha Sweepstakes.

Pizer seed dealers submitted more than 200,000 far-over their Western Area of Operations. Six winning couples, including the Foths, were chosen at random.

Their February holiday will include round-trip airfare and accommodations at hotels.

Travelers Tell of China Visit

Lavern C. Johnson and Mrs. Evelyn Jackson, both of Ord, found themselves "like a monkey in a cage" recently during their recent international tour, they spent 11 days in China.

Both agreed there were few travel restrictions, and that the people there were friendly. The one barrier they did encounter was linguistic. Few people spoke English.

They speculated this could change. English is now being taught children starting in the third grade. At a commune outside Peking, they observed an introductory English class.

The present language barrier limited their first-hand exchanges with local residents. "And besides," Laverne said, "a lot of things are so different." These differences included farming with a water buffalo in place of a tractor. Hand labor was often used.

Other differences were negative, according to Laverne and Evelyn. Both travelers remarked at the neat cities they saw. Litter was seldom seen or non-existent.

Leaving from North Platte November 27, they entered China December 6, exiting that country December 17. They returned home December 18.

Crossing the international date-line they got two Mondays, one right after the other.

Along with China, they saw Thailand, and Hong Kong.

During this same time, most merchants reported Christmas sales as good as or better than those recorded last year at this time. One entrepreneur reported people were more relaxed and friendlier this season, helped no doubt by a recovering beef market and pork prices holding steady.

Other miscellaneous events included blessings many of us take for granted. In this last category are friendly neighbors and the tempo of life as we know it here in the Valley.

These were our top news stories for 1978. What were yours?

The only English language publication Laverne and Evelyn saw, while in China, was this Communist magazine. Wall posters took the place of newspapers.

Comstock Creates a Planning Commission

Comstock Village Board Trustees passed an ordinance at their December meeting authorizing establishment of a planning commission, a first step toward comprehensive planning and possibly zoning.

Both comprehensive planning and zoning have become hot issues in Custer County recently. County officials have expressed a n. interest in controlling development around the site of the planned electric generating plant near Comstock.

The plant will be built a few miles outside Comstock. Village officials there are concerned an influx of construction workers will degrade the quality of life in the town and jeopardize village development plans. Should Trustees approve a comprehensive plan and zoning regulations they could have jurisdiction a mile outside village limits, and in the town itself.

December 7 the Trustees passed an ordinance authorizing the Comstock Planning Commission.

That ordinance said the commission will have nine members authorized to enforce state statutes pertaining to zoning and development and with any powers Trustees delegate to it.

Initially, three members of the nine man body will be appointed for one year terms, three for terms of two years and three members will serve for three years.

paper, but for only six months. She has been in for a year as part of his Christmas, and he was a little curious about the cut back. If she was worried about the subscription, outliving the subscriber maybe she knows someone he ought to know, was the way Ed put it.

Lumir Cadek put Ed's mind at ease by pointing out the cost of the paper, like everything else, keeps going up, and the daughter probably was more concerned about her budget than about losing a long-term investment. Lumir reminded the fellers that 1979 predictors are calling for a decrease in inflation and a decrease in everything else. What this comes out to in plain words spoke by President Carter's chief economic expert, Lumir said, is a banana. Not a big one, but a banana all the same. When the fellers looked at Lumir like they thought he had stripped a gear, he pointed out that official economic policy now is to call bad news by other names so as not to get people upset. The way things are shaping up, went on Lumir, we're like that feller in Florida that named all six of his youngsters after himself. The banana of China and the banana of Taiwan will be growing about one move we make where the bananas of Israel and Egypt will be snarling at one another over someone else.

Ed said he never could figure how Lumir could get so far ahead in so short a time. Here we were bringing one another up to date on holiday doings, Ed allowed, and Lumir busts in with a State of the Union address. Ed made a motion that the fellers start out the year by adopting some rules like their public hearings have. He had saw where state school folks set hearings on vacation classes and invited everybody to come speak their minds, as long as they said what they was going to say 10 days in advance and sent it in typed up.

Spaeking of rules, Emil Zadinia allowed that the President's inflation-fighting guidelines reminded him of them schools like West Point where they got honor systems. The schools got the honor and the students got the system. It looks like the only place where anybody is paying any attention to wage-hike rule is private jobs where folks involved ain't appoint or elected and ain't got a union to speak for me, Emil allowed. Everybody else is acting like them free agent ball players that won't settle for a cent under a 800 per cent increase from the highest bidder, on account everybody else is out for all he can get.

Actual, Mister Editor, I would have to agree with Emil that when it comes to working out our problems we are or own worst enemy. We are like that report the other day where the home fire was started by the smoke detector. Our warning system keeps getting short circuited.

Yours truly,

Geranium Joe Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

The fellers was all gathered at the county store Saturday night, and every one reported in with a fresh stock of socks and neckties and prepared to meet the New Year, whuther it's ready or not. The only change in the routine was noted by Ed Spota, who said his daughter give him his usual subscription to the paper, but for only six months. She has been in for a year as part of his Christmas, and he was a little curious about the cut back. If she was worried about the subscription, outliving the subscriber maybe she knows someone he ought to know, was the way Ed put it.

RESOLUTION TIME . . . It happens each year. The time to begin a list of resolutions; ways to better live each day in every way. Often these are the same resolutions, the same goals as were listed a year ago.

How different it could be, if, instead, one would resolve to be a failure. That list would probably read this way:

- ... I will never do anything that I am not paid to do.
- ... I will never do anything more or better than I have to.
- ... I will pity myself.
- ... I will not stick to anything too long. After all, I get bored fast.
- ... I will remember that nothing matters much except what I have to do during my working hours.
- ... I won't have a sense of humor. What is there to laugh about?
- ... I will put off until tomorrow what I do not feel like doing today.
- ... I will let others make decisions for me.
- ... I will demand immediate results — like now.
- ... I will believe only in luck, even though I got a new rabbit's foot.
- ... I will avoid all regular habits of self-improvement.

These resolutions are not recommended, unless, of course, you choose to work at being a failure in '79.

COFFEE CUP PHILOSOPHY: Instead of remembering the slights, remember the blessings.

Huffman-Upson Wedding Service At St. John's Lutheran Church

Upsons . . . she was Mary Ellen Huffman

Mary Ellen Huffman of Hastings, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Huffman of Ord, became the bride of Lloyd Richard Upson of Beaver City at St. John's Lutheran Church in Ord Saturday, December 16. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Upson of Beaver City. Rev. Norman Scheller performed the 3 p.m. double ring ceremony in the presence of about 200 relatives and friends.

Phyllis Burger was organist and Doug Gary of Beaver City sang "The Wedding Song". The bride, given in marriage by her father and mother, chose a floor length gown of Venice lace and Maracaine Jersey. Pearls accented the Venice lace which formed her high neckline and the jabot on her bodice. Venice lace and pearls also formed the cuffs of her bishop sleeves. Her A-line skirt flowed from her empire waistline into a chapel length train. She carried a bouquet of Waburn Abbey roses and peach tinted carnations with brown accents.

Mary Ellen Cookley of Doniphan was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Janice Volkmer and Patty Hajny, both of Hastings. They wore peach empire dresses and carried nosegays of peach tinted carnations and white daisies with brown accents.

Larry Lambert of Beaver City was best man. Groomsmen were Craig Weaver and Clay Kuerstner, both of Beaver City.

Flower girls were Tiffany Upson, niece of the groom, and Corina Huffman, niece of the bride. They carried baskets of peach tinted mini carnations and white daisies. Blake Upson, nephew of the groom, was ring bearer.

Candlelighters were Deb Park of Hastings and Jacque Lambert of Beaver City. Ushers were Ron Upson, brother of the groom, and Marion Huffman, brother of the bride.

Hosting the reception in the church parlors were Mr. and Mrs. Bill Weaver of Beaver City and Mr. and Mrs. David Lange of Ord. Denise Novossad attended the guest book and Karen Smith and Cinda Weaver cared for the gifts. Mrs. Keith Bennett of Cotesfield, Glenda Uden of Juniata and Deb Rodecker of Grand Island, all cousins of the bride, were servers at the serving table. Mrs. Louis Barnes of Greeley made the wedding cake.

Special guests were the grandparents of the bride, Mrs. Maude Huffman of Dunning and Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Lange of Ord.

The bride is a 1975 graduate of Ord High School and a graduate of Central Nebraska Technical College at Hastings.

The groom is a graduate of Beaver City High School and of Central Nebraska Technical College at Hastings. He is currently deputy sheriff at Beaver City. The couple is at home in Hastings.

Guests were presenting for the wedding from Dunning, Halsey, Hastings, Grand Island, Columbus, Juniata, Cairo, Beaver City, Scotia, Cotesfield, Holdrege, Burwell, Greeley, Stamford, Meadow Grove and Eustis, as well as Ord and vicinity.

Area Dairy Days Scheduled January 9

Area Dairy Day will be held in Ord on Tuesday, January 9 at the Ord Elks Club starting at 9:30 a.m. The program is designed to provide dairymen and others interested in dairying with up-to-date information on programs and techniques for economical dairy production.

Speakers from the UNL departments of Animal Science, Food Science and Technology, Agricultural Engineering and Veterinary Science will be on hand to present topics of interest.

Because high-yielding dairy cows are under higher stress, they are more likely to encounter disorders related to nutrition and feeding than are ordinary cows, according to Dr. Foster Owen, IANR Extension Dairyman. Dr. Owen will emphasize special ingredients and feeding techniques as a part of a presentation entitled "Feeding High Producers".

Phil Cole, IANR Extension Dairyman, will outline the benefits offered by DHIA programs, with emphasis on the most recently developed managerial tools available through these programs.

"Calf Raising Programs", a presentation by Dr. Foster Owen, IANR Extension Dairyman, will include feeding, housing and management practices which are able to reduce calf losses and simplify the job of producing replacement animals.

Don Kubik, IANR Northeast District Extension Dairy Specialist, will discuss a discussion of a number of new techniques for feeding dairy herds. Some of these new techniques are being used to improve performance, reduce feeding or milking time and to simplify cow management.

The program will begin with registration at 9:30 a.m. and will conclude at 3 p.m. and is being sponsored by the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources Cooperative Extension Service and the Valley County Extension Service.

Dr. Charles Blaha of Ord will help the Nebraska Dental Association observe National Children's Dental Health Week, February 4-10. Dr. Blaha is from the NDA's Northwest District.

Central Crusaders Edge Ord's Chants

Jim Smith (52) and Kurt Kremke (42) go up for the ball in a third quarter rebound against the Crusaders.

Kurt Kremke (42) sinks a basket for Ord in first quarter play.

Ord Chants were edged 64-52 by Central Catholic Crusaders in holiday basketball tournament at Grand Island Thursday. The loss gave Ord a 0-5 record.

Infractions accounted for most Ord points scored in the first quarter. Ord came from a 6-2 lag and ended the opening quarter 10-8 behind Central.

This was tied in the opening seconds of the second period. Fouls gave Kurt Kremke and Joe Dworak free throws. Both being good, they tied the score, but not for long.

Crusaders rebounded on a shot by Ord's Barry Witherwax, and made it good. Central moved ahead 12-10. The score was unchanged until 6:13 in the second period. Back-to-back Crusader charity shots, moved them ahead 14-10.

With 2:49 left in the half, the score was 19-12. Crusader John Santos proved adept at snaring rebounds, feeding them to Tom Beecham and other teammates. Central Catholic closed out the first half with a 23-14 lead.

They sharpened their edge further in the third quarter, pulling ahead 38-26 with 45 seconds left in the third frame. An official call brought Ord coach Fred Williams up off the bench, just as a time out was called.

With time in Crusader Francis Curtis went to the charity stripe and pumped two in. The quarter ended with a Central basket. Ord trailed 42-26.

Ord narrowed Central's lead 47-40 in the last period. A basket by Dworak with 4:16 left in the game narrowed Central's lead to five points.

This vanished when a call on the Chants gave Crusader Curtis two charity shots. Ord proved good, and Central moved further ahead.

Ord had just made a basket, and Central got the ball in a scramble under the net.

Ord has just scored two points and Central got the ball under the basket. Central sank a shot. This gave them 50 points.

The same basic pattern kept repeating itself throughout the game. Ord players were trying, but their shots wouldn't go in. It was a long night.

Stats

Ord had 19 field goals. The Chants shot 20 percent of the field the second half. They hit 14 of 20 foul shots for 70 percent.

Ord's leading scorers were Joe Dworak with 21. Kurt Kremke with 7 and Barry Witherwax, Dan Martin, and Jim Smith each had 6 points.

Central had 17 field goals and shot 30 out of 38 shots for 78 percent from the field. Their leading scorers were Francis Curtis 25, Pat Beecham 19, and Mark Callahan with 11.

Rank Does Have Its Privileges

Rank doth have its privileges, as the saying goes. Fifty-two persons, including 35 state senators, received a pair of free season tickets to University of Nebraska football games in 1978, according to a December 23 Lincoln Journal article.

In addition, 59 newsmen from across the state were listed as receiving a pair of free tickets—normally costing $9.25 each—for one or more of the Cornhusker's 1978 games.

Among those receiving free football tickets were newsmen Lloyd Zikmund, Fred Reinhardt of the Burwell Tribune, George Peterson of the Sherman County Times, and State Senator Dennis Rasmussen.

Boxing Invitational Will Be This Friday

The Ord Boxing Club's Invitational Golden Gloves matches will be held Friday, January 5, at 8 p.m. in St. Mary's auditorium. If these matches equal those held here previously, the action should be thick and fast with few people leaving early.

Impossible Dream Becomes Reality

Class A Superpowers Fall to Ord Chants

Ord gal cagers had their impossible dream of winning the Runza tournament in Lincoln. They downed class A superpowers Lincoln High and Lincoln East at the Bob Devany sports complex.

That Lincoln High cliffhanger ended 34-33 Friday in an overtime game. A sensational free throw by Rainforth pulled the game out of the fire. That came in the last second of play.

The two teams were tied six at the end of the first quarter. Then Lincoln Links pulled ahead 18-12 at the half.

By the third quarter Ord gals had narrowed this lead to 21-20 and were steadily gaining. Ord scoring went about equally divided between charity shots and three throws, according to Gal Chant coach, Max Murray.

At the end of regular play the game was tied 29 all.

It was Nancy Gogan's four points that set the stage for Ord's spectacular finish. Nancy scored on a basket and two charity shots. But the game wasn't over.

Lincoln had tied it 33 all when Rainforth was fouled. With one second on the clock, she checked out in winning the game.

High scorers for Ord were N. Gogan with 16 and B. Kittle with 12.

Lincoln East

Then came Lincoln East and Ord's 47-37 win, their second at the tournament. Free throws won the game for Ord in the last quarter, Murray recalled. The gal Chants went 8 out of 11 at the charity lane.

Coach Murray called the match "the best game we've played this year." In the first quarter, Ord exploded for 13 points. The scoring then and throughout the game was well balanced.

Lagging 20-19 at the half, both squads hiked their scores by 10 points in the third quarter. Ord then opened up 18-7 in the last stanza, icing the game.

Murray credited Smith and Kittle with having their best game of the season, and mentioned Mason, as having a fine showing. Smith had 8 points to Kittle's and Mason's 14 points each.

Ord's Cinderella story ended with a 42-28 defeat by York. Murray speculated the gals were tired from the long tournament.

"The kids played tough," the coach said, "and who knows, we might meet them again at the state tournament."

Both York and Ord proved to be the Class B young upstarts, knocking off all other teams — B. Kittle 14, York 14, and York 12, 8, 9, 13, 42 and Ord 4, 10, 5, 9, 28.

St. Paul Sunk for Chants First Win

Ord varsity boy cages ended a five game dry spell with a win over St. Paul Friday at Grand Island. The Chants 53-49 victory came in the last period in the Holiday Tournament at Grand Island Northwest High.

Ord came from behind a 29-17 deficit at halftime to get the win. Ord coach Fred Williams credited better shooting from the floor and a rebounded shot for the second half explosion.

The first half Ord shot 20 percent from the floor. By game's end that had risen to 32 percent.

"We moved the ball inside more," Williams told the Quiz. Recipients included Bill Wadas.

Randy David, and Kurt Kremke. This combined with a full-court press slowed St. Paul. Said Williams of the press, "They (St. Paul) didn't handle it too well."

At the end of regular play the score was 49 all, throwing the game into the first overtime period. Both teams played a conservative game in the first extra period. Neither side scored.

During the second overtime, Randy David sank two charity shots and a basket giving Ord the 53-49 lead and clinching the game.

Williams admitted the win gave him a warm glow, a welcome change from past games this season. He complimented David for a good game, adding he got four rebounds, scored nine points, and did a good job on defense.

Another player mentioned was Bill Wadas, credited for making what Williams called, "clutch shots."

High point man was Jim Smith. He had 15 points for the night.

Ord next goes to Schuyler Friday and Aurora on Saturday night.

Major Beef Packers Support Beef Checkoff

Most of the major beef packers operating in Nebraska have shifted to the 25c check-off in support of consumer information and nutrition research programs, the Nebraska Beef Industry Foundation (NBIF) said today.

Money collected through the 25c Beef Check-off pays for consumer information, advertising, elementary and high school education materials and nutrition research in Nebraska and on the national level as well, the NBIF said.

"We're pleased with the progressive, realistic attitude of most of the major packers," M. D. Shepherd, NBIF president said. "They realize that educational and research programs are absolutely necessary. They also realize that unless they help the industry by serving as collecting agents for the cattlemen wanting to contribute, the job won't get done."

"I would also like to compliment the auction markets who are on the 25c Check-off," Shepherd said. The NBIF hopes that the auction markets currently checking off at the 10c level will soon join those collecting 25c.

"The need in this area is so great, that a 'wait and see' attitude could seriously damage the beef industry expected in 1979," Shepherd said.

A lack of action on the part of the cattle industry for years has allowed unproven health claims and misleading commercials to dominate the public's thinking, Shepherd said. The shift from the 10c check-off to the 25c Check-off is absolutely necessary or the cattlemen's and cattlemen's organizations wouldn't have asked for it."

The NBIF said those packers who have backed the 25c program are American Beef Packers, Oakland, Iowa, American Stores, Lincoln, Cornland Dressed Beef, Lexington, Great Plains Beef, Council Bluffs, Iowa, Iowa Beef Processors, Dakota City, Minden Beef, Minden, Sunflower Beef, York, Spencer Foods, Schuyler and Swift Fresh Meats, Grand Island.

The cattlemen who work so hard on these programs surely appreciate the support of those packers," Shepherd said. "There are several packers processing smaller volumes of cattle collecting at the 10c level who also contribute to the program. It is hoped they will shortly move to the 25c level."

The NBIF said early response to their year end private treaty drive has been encouraging. Funds sent in so far this year exceed the funds contributed in the last two years combined.

"This indicates that the cowman out in the country realizes the need and supports our programs," Shepherd said.

Rites Held Wednesday For Jacobine Laursen

Jacobine Emilie Laursen, the daughter of Jacob and Emilie Petersen Johnson, was born January 1, 1897 at Ord and died December 31, 1978 at the Valley County Hospital at the age of 81.

She received her early education in Rural School District #12 in Valley County. On May 9, 1928, she was united in marriage to Eivind Laursen at Ord. After marriage, they made their home on farms west and south of Ord.

Survivors include one daughter, Mrs. Emilie Farnes, Lincoln; five sons, Paul of Lincoln, Robert of Eugene, OR, Harold of Corvallis, OR, Erlend of Indianapolis, IN and Brian of Long Beach, CA; and one sister, Marie Johnson, Ord. Preceding her in death were her parents.

Funeral services were held Wednesday, January 3, 1978 at 2 p.m. at the Arcadia United Methodist Church with Rev. Charles Moore officiating. Mrs. Joy Lutz was the organist for Mrs. Lynn Cusimano as she sang, "In the Garden" and "The Old Rugged Cross." Pallbearers were Steven Holcomb, Merle Web, David Cox, John Cox, Douglas Cox, and Alan Cox. Burial was in the Arcadia Cemetery with the Ord Memorial Chapel in charge of arrangements.

Memorials may be given to the Bethany Lutheran Church or Dana College at Blair.

Ray Holcomb Rites at Arcadia

Raymond Holcomb was born September 19, 1902 at Arcadia to Hatt and Elizabeth Stone Holden and died December 28, 1978 at the Valley County Hospital in Ord at the age of 76.

His parents died when he was eight years old, and he was adopted by Earl and Lillian Holcomb. He attended the Arcadia Schools and was united in marriage to Merle Web, October 2, 1926 at Ord. They made their home at Arcadia with the exception of two years at Giltner. Ray worked for 29 years operating his own trucking business; then in 1958, he began farming near Arcadia. He retired from farming and moved into Arcadia in 1973.

Survivors include his wife, Merle of Arcadia; two sons, Douglas of Arcadia and Boyd of Brookfield, MO; two daughters, Mrs. Shayell Cox of Arcadia and Mrs. Shirley Hruby of Scappoose, OR; 17 grandchildren; one great grandson; one brother, James Holden of Casper, WY; and one sister, Mrs. Virginia Vega of Dearborn, MI. Ray was preceded in death by his parents, his adoptive parents, one infant daughter, one brother, and one sister. Memorials may be given in his memory to the Arcadia Rescue Unit.

Funeral services were held Saturday, December 30, 1978 at 2 p.m. at the Arcadia United Methodist Church with Rev. Charles Moore officiating. Mrs. Joy Lutz was the organist for Mrs. Lynn Cusimano as she sang, "In the Garden" and "The Old Rugged Cross." Pallbearers were Steven Holcomb, Merle Web, David Cox, John Cox, Douglas Cox, and Alan Cox. Burial was in the Arcadia Cemetery with the Ord Memorial Chapel in charge of arrangements.

Plane Crash

Several more blocks of the neighborhood. According to Moyer, his daughter said overhead power lines acted as an arresting cable further slowing the aircraft.

The plane went down in about the only spot where it wouldn't have hit an occupied house.

Walt Porter, battalion fire chief at the scene said it was amazing that the people escaping the craft didn't touch any of the wires. "But then," he reportedly said, "a lot of things about this are incredible."

Beef One of Lowest Items on Price Index

Lower November wholesale beef prices should help keep one of the lowest major food categories on the Consumer Price Index, the Nebraska Beef Industry Foundation (NBIF) said.

Current retail beef prices are more than three percent below the peak prices of last June, M. D. Shepherd, NBIF president said.

As for the Consumer Price Index, all food is rated at 117, fish at 180, fruits and vegetables at 114, fats and oils at 117 and beef at 112, Shepherd pointed out. Medical care, gas and electricity and non-alcoholic beverages are rated at 125, 140 and 241, respectively.

Consumers can expect stable retail prices and supplies for the rest of December, Tommy Beall, economist for "Cattle-Fax" said. Sometime during the first quarter of 1979, consumers can expect some drops in retail prices. "Cattle-Fax" is the market analysis service of the National Cattlemen's Association.

Beall said it was difficult to say how much retail beef prices would go up after the first few months of 1979. But reduced supplies would definitely force some increase. "We're looking for a 5 to 8 percent decrease in supplies of cattle next year, but there will be an increase in pork and poultry supplies," Beall said. "Steadier supplies mean steadier retail prices, but winter weather can disrupt marketing plans, too," he noted.

Asked why cattlemen are not building up their herds, Shepherd said there were several reasons.

"Fear of mandatory wage and price controls, the government's disregard for the long term supply of beef for consumers and radical, controversial food and nutrition policy at the USDA are major reasons," Shepherd said.

On top of that, the government calls beef inflationary when their own Consumer Price Index shows beef is lower than the majority of items."

Another rancher at a cattlemen's meeting said difficult financial situations for some ranchers leave them no choice but to reduce herds. Some bankers have directed cattlemen to sell cows in order to get cash to pay off interest on loans, he said. Those big loans come from poor cattle prices the last four years.

President Carter recently vetoed countercyclical meat import bill that was designed to help smooth out the peaks and valleys in the beef supply, Shepherd noted. When domestic supplies were low, more imported meat would have been allowed into the country and vice versa. Congress had passed the bill over 18 months ago, and left language in the bill restricting the President's authority to arbitrarily tinker with the formula. Carter vetoed the bill because of those restrictions, even though he favored both the countercyclical formula and the restrictions on presidential power.

"Basically, consumers can expect steadier or even lower prices for the next few months," Shepherd said.

Filing A Kinkaid Claim - 1904

On June 28, 1904, the homestead laws were expanded by the Kinkaid Act, named for Congressman Moses Kinkaid, to permit filings on 640 rather than 160 acres in 37 counties of western Nebraska. The expansion was important because it brought areas long avoided as unproductive by farmers — the Sandhills, principally — under private control. The July 1, 1904, issue of the Custer County Chief (Broken Bow) files of which are in the Nebraska State Historical Society library, reported on the opening day of the so-called "land rush."

"Broken Bow displayed considerable activity for some days prior to June 28th, at which time the Kinkaid Homestead Law took effect, under which law it is possible for one man to acquire 640 acres by homestead right. "As early as the fore part of last week strangers from all parts of the country began to arrive in town. Those who had preference rights by which they had thirty days to take land a joining their present homesteads were resting easy, but those who were after sections of land where they knew about half a dozen parties were more endeavoring to get what advantage was possible. "By daylight on Tuesday morning the crowd began to gather and by 8 o'clock nearly 2,000 people, attracted there through curiosity or through a desire to make entries, congregated about the land office eager to have the line formed.

"Governor Mickey was asked to permit the militia company to assist in maintaining the line of march. While no trouble was experienced and the crowd was nothing but a great big, good natured, jolly lot of people, it was difficult to handle them without plenty of assistance. "Governor Mickey gave his consent to the militia boys assisting and after a half hour's work in lining the people up, the filings commenced, the first one going over the counter at promptly 9 o'clock.

"It was so curious sight, old men, old women, some of whom were 80 years of age, cowboys, farmers, business men and professional men, ladies in plain dress and ladies in silks, all waiting for their chance to take a section of Uncle Sam's land. "The city officials furnished the crowd with water and restaurant people sold sandwiches, pies, lemonade, pop, cigars, etc. It was an interesting sight to go down the line, some people were playing cards, some were making burlesque stump speeches, and many of them singing old familiar hymns. "At 3 o'clock numbered cards bearing the name of the holder were issued and the people broke ranks, and were admitted to the land office as their numbers were called. When the people found that they were to be turned loose with numbers, one enthusiastic gang started up "Praise God from Whom All Blessings Flow." The first hour about 20 people were taken care of, after that an average of 25 entries being made per hour.

"While the line was being formed, an occasional favorable position would command $5 or $10, seems strange to some that people should be so anxious to secure this land that has been open to settlement for years past. If it had any particular value it would have been taken long ago. Some of it is of value, owing entirely to its location in connecting land owned by an individual or company on either side. "It is the general impression that more land was entered in this grand rush than will be proved up now. The vacant land in the Broken Bow land district comprises about 2,000,000 acres, the amount in each county being as follows: Blaine 219,912; Brown 141,856; Cherry 515,930; Custer 20,485; Grant 178,419; Hooker 316,485; Logan 140,804; McCook 278,991; Thomas 245,266.

"By July 1 over 1,000 applications have been filed in the land office at Broken Bow. Six hundred of these were made at the land office and 400 were received by mail. The land officers and their force of clerks have been putting in long hours, checking over these entries, and have passed on about 550 of them. Of this number 150 have been rejected."

Contrary to an often-held misconception, no violence occurred at Broken Bow. The Chief reported:

"The fact that Governor Mickey was asked to issue an order for the militia company to assist during the land rush in Broken Bow on last Tuesday, was deemed sufficient grounds for the daily papers. (to) publish long articles of a supposed riot in Broken Bow. The crowd could not have been more quiet and orderly than were the 600 people who were gathered in this city to file on land. No disturbance of any character occurred and the people were as good natured and quiet as any crowd of that size could be expected to be."

Grain Reserves Outlook

NEBRASKA FARM BUREAU FEDERATION
By M. M. Van Kirk, Director of Information

The short-range outlook for the government's grain reserve program is good but economists generally admit that the long-range outlook remains pretty cloudy with some undesirable possibilities.

The latest U.S. Department of Agriculture reports state that there are more than 1.2 billion bushels of wheat and feed grains now in the reserve program. By late November, corn and equivalent feed grains had reached a total of 675 million bushels in the farmer-held reserve and the USDA stopped accepting 1978-crop corn for immediate entry into the program, although 1976 and 1977 crop corn is still eligible.

In the short-run, putting grain into the reserve has almost certainly strengthened prices. Although buyers know that the reserve stock are in existence and that they could be returned to the market at some future time, this is a long-range possibility rather than an immediate threat. An important consideration is that stocks placed in farmer-held reserves are less readily available to the market than the government-owned stocks that were used to dampen price increases in some past years.

In the case of wheat, the basic rules on returning farmer-held reserve stocks to the market are firmly fixed by law. These rules could be changed, but it would take action by both houses of Congress and the President. The rules on returning feed grain reserve stocks to the market are not embedded in law, but they are fixed by contractual agreements between the Secretary and participating producers.

It should be noted that the present programs involve 3-year contracts with no guarantee that these contracts will be extended after three years. The 1978 loan rates are: wheat, $2.35 per bushel; corn, $2 per bushel; sorghum, $1.9 per bushel and barley, $1.63 per bushel. Under the farmer-held reserve program, storage payments cease and the producer may redeem his loan without penalty if the market price of wheat reaches $3.29; corn, $2.50; sorghum, $2.38 and barley, $2.04.

The ultimate "trip point" in the reserve program is the point at which loans can be called in, thus forcing the grain out into the market. That point would come if the market price of wheat reached $4.11 per bushel or 175 percent of the loan rate. For feed grains the loans would be called if the market price reached 140 percent of the loan rate and this would be: for corn, $2.80; sorghum, $2.66 and barley, $2.28.

The fact that the U.S. has a reserve program probably makes it easier for other producing countries to reduce their stocks and, at the same time, discourages any tendency for importing nations to accumulate reserves. The U.S. share of world wheat stocks has been increasing. In addition, the fact that some excess stocks can be shifted to farmer-held reserves reduces pressure for the Administration to develop more effective set-aside and diversion programs.

In summary, according to some analysts, the farmer-held reserve programs borrow time, but excess stocks cannot be channeled into farmer-held reserves indefinitely. Once the reserves are full, the effect of stopping the inflow will be similar to that of losing an important market.

If producers continue to produce enough grain to supply the available markets for current production year after year, the farmer-held reserves could develop into a real problem. They will look somewhat better if production is occasionally reduced well below current requirements due to adverse weather, government adjustment programs, or other causes. Best thing that could happen would be for world demand to provide a good cash export market for U.S. surplus production.

AG TIPS FROM OUR COUNTY AGENT

By Al Martens

1979 Crop Protection Clinics

This year a variety of subjects will be on the program. Weed science will deal with weed problems such as shattercain, dogbane, common milkweed, musk thistle, field bindweed, sandburs and many more. A session on new herbicide application equipment will be offered. Some of this equipment could easily be built in farm machine shops. An extensive survey on herbicides used on all major and minor crops is in the final stages of tabulation and preliminary findings will be reported.

Entomology and plant pathology will be discussed with eight interesting topics on each subject. You will hear about grasshoppers, chinch bugs, mites, worms, borers, smoky grubs, rusts, wilts, viruses, nematodes and rots. Stored grain problems will also be discussed. Meetings of interest to Valley County residents will be on January 11 at the O'Neill Legion Club and January 16 at the Holiday Inn in Hastings. Please contact the Valley County Extension Office for a copy of the program.

1979 Herbicide Use Guide

The 1979 edition has been at the printer for some time. It is available in English and Spanish and IANR Extension personnel expect delivery about January 1. Copies should be available in Valley County shortly after January 15, 1979.

Do Cows Need Additional Protein While Grazing Milo or Fall Growth of Bromegrass?

Spring-calving cows should not need supplemental protein while grazing milo before calving as long as leaves can supply most of their feed intake. When most of the leaves are gone and the stalk supplies more than 1/3 of the protein supplement should be fed at the rate of about 4 pounds of plant protein (one pound of 40 percent or 1/4 pound of 32 percent protein) per head daily. To reduce labor and help equalize intake between cows, the supplement can be fed every second or third day.

If alfalfa hay is available, feed it at the rate of three to five pounds per head daily to provide the supplemental protein needs when milo stalks are the main source of roughage.

Fall growth of bromegrass that has been saved for winter grazing should provide ample protein for spring-calving cows up to 60 to 70 days of calving. Then additional protein should be provided as indicated for grazing milo after most of the leaves have been consumed.

Cows nursing fall calves need protein supplementation when grazing milo stubble. Eight to ten pounds of alfalfa hay is recommended when milo leaves provide much of the grazing intake and somewhat more — 10 to 15 pounds — when stalks provide most of the forage grazed.

If a urea-containing supplement is used, the protein equivalent is less effective than most plant proteins for cattle grazing low quality roughage — perhaps as little as 50 percent as effective.

Nebraska Hog Inventory Up 16 Percent

According to the Nebraska Crop and Livestock Reporting Service, Nebraska pork producers had an estimated 3.65 million hogs and pigs on hand December 1978, up 16% from a year ago. Hogs and pigs kept for breeding totaled 569,000, which was 28% above last year. Market hogs, at 3.1 million, were up 15% from a year ago. Hog inventory of the 14 quarterly states (which accounts for 85% of the total U.S. hog and pig inventory) was up 6% from December 1, 1977.

Coon Pursued Cow Is Shot

An Arcadia lad went coon hunting last week, but came away with something bigger, according to Valley County Sheriff Martin Sonnenfeld. The youth, unidentified, pursued a coon in the Bossen feed lot, east of town.

Firing at what he thought was a coon, he hit an animal in Bossen's herd.

He was charged with hunting too close to livestock and buildings and hunting without permission, according to Sheriff Sonnenfeld.

to mean annual maximum daily air temperatures. For Nebraska with an average maximum daily air temperature of around 50 degrees F (10 degrees C), the upper limit for fluoride is 1.7 ppm. Concentrations of fluoride greater than 1.7 ppm are known to cause mottling of teeth (McKee and Wolf 1963); however, lesser concentrations are beneficial in the prevention of tooth decay in children.

Lower Loup Natural Resources District

FLUORIDE

With few exceptions, fluoride concentrations are less than 1.0 parts per million (ppm) in Nebraska's groundwater. The mean fluoride concentration of water from 149 wells was 0.5 ppm. Concentrations were less than 0.3 ppm in water from all sampled wells in the Sandhills region. The maximum concentration was 8.4 ppm in water from a well in Cass County.

Fluoride may be derived from the mineral fluorite (CaF<sub>2</sub>) in many different rock types. Small amounts of fluoride may be associated with evaporite deposits. When fluoride-bearing rocks are reworked by water, fluoride is slowly liberated from its parent rock matrix. Water trapped in interior basins is known to contain relatively high fluoride concentrations, probably as a result of evaporation. Phosphate fertilizers, some of which contain as much as 3.5 percent (3,500 ppm) fluoride, also can be a source of fluoride in groundwater.

Fluoride concentrations ranging from 1.0 to 8.4 ppm occur in water from wells in several different areas in southeastern Nebraska. These higher fluoride concentrations probably result from dissolution of fluorite in shale layers that are intercalated with the water-producing Paleozoic rocks tapped by the wells. Fluoride concentrations higher than 1.0 ppm also occur in the groundwater of several other eastern Nebraska areas. In each of these areas, the Dakota Group is either the principal aquifer or immediately underlies the principal aquifer. It is likely that dissolution of fluorite in the shale beds of the Dakota or dissolution of evaporite minerals in any of the rock layers composing that group accounts for the fluoride in the water. Correlation of fluoride concentrations with dissolved-solids concentrations indicates that fluorite associated with evaporite minerals may be the main source of the fluoride in water from wells tapping the Dakota.

The source of the higher concentrations of fluoride in water from wells in much of KNOX County and eastern Boyd County probably is evaporite minerals in the Codell Sandstone member of the Carlile Shale, which is the principal aquifer in that area. Dissolution of fluorite in the Pierre Shale probably accounts for the higher fluoride concentrations in water from wells in the Nobrara River valley ## below Cherry County and in part of Ponca Creek valley in Boyd County. The alluvial deposits and terrace deposits tapped by the wells are underlain by Pierre Shale, and runoff from the Pierre Shale slopes on both sides of the valley is a source of recharge to those deposits. Dissolution of fluorite in the underlying Pierre Shale may also account for higher fluoride concentrations in Dundy County.

Close correlation of fluoride and phosphate concentrations in water from wells in the Platte River valley from eastern Dawes to eastern Morrisk counties, also on uplands south of the valley in parts of Gosper, Phelps, and Kearney counties, indicates that dissolution of fluorite from fluorophosphate minerals such as apatite may account for the higher concentrations of fluoride in the groundwater of those areas. Whether the fluorophosphate minerals occur naturally in the soils or are derived from commercial fertilizers is not known. Nearness of the water table to the land surface throughout most of these areas may be a factor contributing to the leaching potential.

The Environmental Protection Agency recommended upper limits for fluoride in drinking water which are inversely related

New Supreme Court Justice Sworn In

CAPITOL NEWS
By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

Lincoln — Before a packed house in the East Senate Chamber, Norman Krivosha of Lincoln was sworn in as Nebraska's 19th chief justice of the Supreme Court.

Administering the oath was Gov. J. James Exon, who selected Krivosha from a list submitted by the judicial nominating commission.

The new chief justice succeeded Paul White, who resigned unexpectedly last September.

After taking his oath on his family's Bible, with his wife, Helene, and daughter, Rhonda, at his side, Krivosha urged that those in the judiciary not be afraid to take innovative approaches aimed at better delivery of the judicial system's services.

Exon, who said he gave more time and consideration to appointments to the bench than any duty he had during eight years as governor, said he was "sure Norman Krivosha will be another distinguished chief justice."

Spokesman for the Supreme Court during the ceremony was Associate Judge Harry A. Spencer of Lincoln. He has been pro-tem head of the court since White's resignation and himself will soon retire from the high court.

Spencer also said the backlog of cases that has built up "will require innovative procedures" if the court wants to get and stay current.

Spencer, who taught Krivosha in law school, told him "From the way you have taken hold, by every criteria you meet the test of a great chief justice."

The swearing-in ceremony attracted a large delegation of representatives of the federal and state court systems, as well as a number of legislative and Exon administration leaders.

The Krivoshas' other daughter, Terri, could not attend. She is a student in Israel and sent a letter which her sister read as part of the ceremony.

like a citizens advisory committee functioning under present statutory authorities.

Those testifying expressed mixed reactions to the blueprint. One said irrigators were allowed to give their ideas on what should be in the plan but wildlife and environmental interests were not.

Keith Harmon of Fifth, a spokesman for the Wildlife Management Institute, advocated a strong public advisory committee representing the views of all water interests.

Most spokesmen for the natural resources districts said they were against a statutory inter-agency water planning council and suggested the lawmakers retain control of the planning with the Natural Resources Commission.

George Kleen of Franklin, past president of the Nebraska Association of Resources Districts, questioned how eight agencies, "each jealous of its own staffs and programs," could agree.

But Jack Odgaard, the executive director of the Nebraska Water Resources Association, said the inter-agency council would be a good idea. He argued it would enable the different agencies to coordinate their activities and cut unnecessary duplication.

Recommending a prohibition on further surface water withdrawals and tighter restrictions on putting down new wells in critical areas until the studies are completed and policies are set was Rober Warrick of Meadow Grove. He is the chairman of the Nebraska Chapter of the Sierra Club.

Where the Heck Have You Been?

Thursday, January 4, the Nebraska Public Power District will have a delegation here explaining the Comstock power plant project to Ord Chamber of Commerce members. NPPD representatives were asked to come here after Chamber members postponed a vote of support for the Comstock project at their last meeting.

When time for the yea or nay say came, Chamber members decided they didn't have enough information on the project. After some discussion, it was decided to have NPPD representatives explain the planned Comstock generating plant.

While admiring Chamber members' intellectual honesty, we suspect NPPD agents must have a sinking feeling. We don't blame them. They had a four-man crew in this area giving hour-long explanations of just how the project would work, where it would be located, why Comstock was selected, etc., etc. Presentations were made in all area towns including Burwell, Sargent, Comstock, and Ord.

The Quiz ran column after column devoted to the subject, before, during, and after the area meetings. Nor were we alone. The Omaha World-Herald along with the Lincoln Journal have carried news items on the pending plant. So have many other area papers.

Wanting to keep all citizens informed, NPPD has issued a steady stream of press releases on virtually all aspects of the planned project. Newspapers, radio stations, and television stations have all used these and other materials in searching out stories on what will surely have a major impact in our area.

To those saying they don't have enough information on the Comstock project, our question is "where in the heck have you been?"

Geese and Ganders

It is that time of year, dear friends, when the U.S. Government demands its annual pound of flesh. By now most Quiz readers have received their income tax forms from the Bureau of Internal Revenue.

This year, or so the government says, these forms will be easier to understand. However, for most people, it isn't the prose style of the publication they object to, but the bottom line amount owed the government.

According to some estimates it now takes 25 percent of a wage earner's salary to pay the state, federal, and local piper. Although many taxes go to make up that amount, the biggest share likely comes from the federal income tax.

Based on a sliding scale, that tax is supposedly progressive and equally distributed among all income classes. Those on the lower end of the spectrum pay less while persons and corporations on the other end supposedly pay progressively more because they can afford to, in theory.

That is the way its supposed to work, but doesn't. According to Facts on File, November 13, 1976, the following corporations paid NO income taxes in 1975. Escaping the federal bite were:

- Ford Motor Company
- Delta Airlines
- Northwest Airlines
- Chemical New York Corporation (Chemical Bank)
- Manufacturers Hanover Corporation (Manufacturers Hanover Trust)
- Western Electric Company
- Bethlehem Steel Corporation
- Lockheed Aircraft
- National Steel Corporation
- Phelps Dodge Corporation
- Freepot Minerals Company

This inconsistency becomes even more glaring when considering the fact that Ford Motor Company received a whopping $189 million tax refund that same year.

Yes, we understand the fact that businesses are given tax advantages because they create jobs and pay salaries. This is as it should be.

Yet with corporations taking maximum advantage of write-offs while lower income groups pay little or no income tax, we can't help wondering what lies ahead for middle income Americans. Too rich for food stamps and welfare, yet not rich enough for higher income loopholes, it is middle America's tax share continually being lengthened and stretched to make both ends of the government budget meet.

With this in mind, it is a moot question to wonder why what is good for lower and upper income Americans isn't good for the ganders in the middle income tax bracket. I somehow get the feeling they're supporting most of the flock.

*Facts on File, Nov. 13, 1976.

— W.M.

Quiz Quote of the Week

"The biggest mistake we make, at all levels of government, is to get sucked into the theory that money from above is free. So it's channeled back to the sub-divisions of government without the mandatory stipulation that those sub-divisions in turn freeze or reduce local taxation."

Wild Christmas Tales

Add to Christmas stories you haven't heard: (From the young office girl — to another receptionist.)

"And you should see the black satin vest my Dad gave me, it's groovy."

"And the black satin pants and the black satin blazer... and the sheer black shirt! Where'll I wear it? It's beautiful. Yes, it fits perfectly! Yes, I have a date tonight!"

"And I peeled 10 1/2 pounds of potatoes for my Mom before a 12 o'clock dinner, how's that? About nine o'clock p.m. everyone had gone and the house was full of dirty dishes and I just couldn't leave her: I pitched in and helped and even then we didn't get through until after midnight when I went home."

"Oh, did I tell you what I gave the folks? I was prowling, just shopping, and I came across these huge tennis shoes made into bags, you know, about three feet long? I wasn't shopping for them or anything, just ran across them, lucky! They were marked 'way down.' I got the right shoe for my Mom and then I decided to buy the left one for my Dad! Did they ever get a kick out of those big canvas things?"

"No, they aren't really purses, they're to lug your stuff in when you're jogging. My folks are really into jogging you know. These shoes are expensive, quite nice, they're made by Adidas. Wasn't I lucky to find them marked down? And the folks both got a real charge out of them."

The next Christmas picture is of a young girl coming into the doctor's office (No, nothing the matter with me: I went there with a friend who was seeing him). After her care a pleasant-looking woman carrying a small, bald-headed baby. And after her came an older woman carrying a duplicate small, bald-headed baby. Such nice-shaped heads, both babies. Both babies were wrapped and re-wrapped. When I began talking to the older lady who couldn't make her pretty baby stop crying although she was pounding it half to death, she told me "Yes, the babies were twins, three months old. The two babies and their young mother all three had the flu."

Ready for a wilder Christmas story?

This you won't believe: there was this young fellow apparently new to fishing who appeared in the boat in the blue-watered harbor all ready to fish — with a can of creamed corn to use for bait while chummin'!

"Someone told me corn made good bait!" he expostulated amid the cheers and jeers.

I heard he caught a fish on one tiny bit of corn! But of course I can't prove it.

Other off-beat items from southern California suggest ways to celebrate New Year's day, like water-skiing without your wet suit... and earn a Penguin Patch: or you may waterski with your wet suit and be given a Chicken Patch to wear.

The hardest 100 or 150 are expected to go swimming, after which hot buttered rum and chili will be provided by the San Diego Rowing Club:

Or you may see manmade snow at Sea World, replenished daily by a local ice company. The 20-foot slide delights underprivileged youngsters who don't get to play in the snow very often! Shades of Ord.

And a Happy New Year to you too, if you can believe this kooky column from California.

KERRY ON

— what's your bag —

There is an old, old story of a fisherman who was walking by the shore of a sea. As he trudged along, his head down, he speculated on what he would do if only he could forsake his boat and nets and retire to idle luxury. Wealth, he mused, would solve all of his difficulties.

His eye suddenly alighted on a small, weathered leather bag. He picked it up, opened it, and found — therein — a handful of small stones. He resumed walking and as he moved along the shore he withdrew one of the stones.

"If I were rich," he said to himself, "I'd build me a good house." He tossed the stone idly into the sea.

"I'd have a lot of servants," he continued, "and never lift my hand to do anything again." With that he tossed another stone into the waves.

Thus he continued, dreaming of what he would do if only he were rich — punctuating each new thought by tossing away another stone, until finally he came to the last.

He held this in his hand for a moment, and, as he did so, it sparkled, giving off reflected rays of the sun.

The fisherman looked closely at the last stone and realized he held in his hand a precious gem! By now he had no way of knowing what the other stones were, for he'd thrown them away without scrutinizing them. While he'd been idly dreaming of what he would do were he to attain wealth, he'd ignored that which he had in hand and it was irretrievably lost.

How like that fisherman are so many people! Each new year brings 365 days which can be tossed away. Or each day can be a gem — when spent wisely — bringing us all the vast riches of living.

It is up to each of us to decide — and that decision can be made, anew, each day.

So as you trudge the shores of the sea of life remember you hold, in your hand, a bag of days that can be thrown away as worthless stones or scrutinized and invested wisely as gems.

— What will it be?

GOOD! BETTER! BEST!

County Supervisors

December 22, 1978
The Valley County Board of Supervisors convened at 11:15 A.M. with all members in attendance. Minutes of the December 12 meeting were approved.
A letter about inspection of Off-System bridges was read and Johnson moved that the state department of roads do this job. This was seconded by Peterson and all answered 'yes' to roll call. Max Leth reported on needed repairs to the 6 x 6. Conversation followed about an antique transit in the surveyor's office and Zangger moved that it be put on display at Fort Hartsuff, seconded by Benda and all answered 'yes' to roll call.
Emanuel Petka talked about duties of surveyor and salary to be paid and that he would still inspect On-System bridges and make the 1 & 6 year road plan. No decision was made.

READ LUKE 4:14-21
"The Lord is my light and my salvation." (Psalm 27:1)

I experienced a happy childhood with no serious sickness or death darkening my home. Therefore my youthful husband's death was like a thunderbolt out of a clear sky. All was darkness in front of me. Soon afterwards as I was going down the basement steps, I had noticed a large white thread-looking vine. I picked it up, and my hand followed to its source. There was one potato that I had missed when I brought the last one up. I turned and followed it in the direction of the window. There it had put up several small leaves to make a new start in life!

I stood transfixed. It had not been easy for the eye of this potato to reach the light.

Did I need the light? Did I need a new start? Yes, I did need the light. And I got a new start in the Lord.

PRAYER: Father, guide all of us who have burdens to bear to Your wonderful light. We pray the prayer Jesus gave us: "Our Father, who are in heaven, hallowed be thy name. Thy kingdom come, thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread. And forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive those who trespass against us. And lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For thine is the kingdom, and the power and the glory, forever. Amen."

THE Ord Quiz

Estab. April, 1882. Ord, Nebr., Thurs., Jan. 4, 1979. Vol. 97, No. 45. 2 Sects.

Amelia Puncocar returned home Wednesday after spending the Christmas weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Joe O'Hare of Central City. On Monday she went to Grand Island to visit Mr. and Mrs. Bob Fagan. Mrs. Fagan brought her home.

The Friendship Hour was held at the Recreation Center Thursday afternoon with 14 attending. Myrtle Stalker was in charge of the devotions.

Mrs. Paul Stalker, Angie and Lisa of Ericson were visitors of Myrtle Stalker Friday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Arnold received news of the arrival of a great grandson Tuesday. Charles Dean was born to Mr. and Mrs. Rick Dahlin of Cheyenne, WY and weighed eight pounds, nine and a half ounces. The Clayton Arnolds also had a visit by telephone with Mr. and Mrs. Roger Dahlin of Cheyenne, WY on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Rolland Zulkoski and Michelle and Amy Nevrla were Sunday evening visitors of Mary Jorgensen.

Vonda Boulay visited Eva Robertson at the Valley County Hospital Saturday.

Sunday afternoon visitors of Marie Rasmussen were Mary Jorgensen and Mena Jorgensen. Mr. and Mrs. David Garwood and family of Red Cloud were visitors of Opal Peterson on New Years Day.

Lillie Psota spent Christmas weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Psota and returned home Tuesday. She received news Tuesday of the arrival of a new great grandson, born to Mr. and Mrs. Michael Neville of Grand Island.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Peterson of Scotia visited Dale Baker Friday. Stuart, Beth and Julie Baker of Ericson were visitors Sunday.

Grain Reserves Outlook

NEBRASKA FARM BUREAU FEDERATION
By M. M. Van Kirk, Director of Information

The short-range outlook for the government's grain reserve program is good but economists generally admit that the long-range outlook remains pretty cloudy with some undesirable possibilities.

The latest U.S. Department of Agriculture reports state that there are more than 1.2 billion bushels of wheat and feed grains now in the reserve program. By late November, corn and equivalent feed grains had reached a total of 675 million bushels in the farmer-held reserve and the USDA stopped accepting 1978-crop corn for immediate entry into the program, although 1976 and 1977 crop corn is still eligible.

In the short-run, putting grain into the reserve has almost certainly strengthened prices. Although buyers know that the reserve stock are in existence and that they could be returned to the market at some future time, this is a long-range possibility rather than an immediate threat. An important consideration is that stocks placed in farmer-held reserves are less readily available to the market than the government-owned stocks that were used to dampen price increases in some past years.

In the case of wheat, the basic rules on returning farmer-held reserve stocks to the market are firmly fixed by law. These rules could be changed, but it would take action by both houses of Congress and the President. The rules on returning feed grain reserve stocks to the market are not embedded in law, but they are fixed by contractual agreements between the Secretary and participating producers.

It should be noted that the present programs involve 3-year contracts with no guarantee that these contracts will be extended after three years. The 1978 loan rates are: wheat, $2.35 per bushel; corn, $2 per bushel; sorghum, $1.9 per bushel and barley, $1.63 per bushel. Under the farmer-held reserve program, storage payments cease and the producer may redeem his loan without penalty if the market price of wheat reaches $3.29; corn, $2.50; sorghum, $2.38 and barley, $2.04.

The ultimate "trip point" in the reserve program is the point at which loans can be called in, thus forcing the grain out into the market. That point would come if the market price of wheat reached $4.11 per bushel or 175 percent of the loan rate. For feed grains the loans would be called if the market price reached 140 percent of the loan rate and this would be: for corn, $2.80; sorghum, $2.66 and barley, $2.28.

The fact that the U.S. has a reserve program probably makes it easier for other producing countries to reduce their stocks and, at the same time, discourages any tendency for importing nations to accumulate reserves. The U.S. share of world wheat stocks has been increasing. In addition, the fact that some excess stocks can be shifted to farmer-held reserves reduces pressure for the Administration to develop more effective set-aside and diversion programs.

In summary, according to some analysts, the farmer-held reserve programs borrow time, but excess stocks cannot be channeled into farmer-held reserves indefinitely. Once the reserves are full, the effect of stopping the inflow will be similar to that of losing an important market.

If producers continue to produce enough grain to supply the available markets for current production year after year, the farmer-held reserves could develop into a real problem. They will look somewhat better if production is occasionally reduced well below current requirements due to adverse weather, government adjustment programs, or other causes. Best thing that could happen would be for world demand to provide a good cash export market for U.S. surplus production.

Coon Pursued Cow Is Shot

An Arcadia lad went coon hunting last week, but came away with something bigger, according to Valley County Sheriff Martin Sonnenfeld. The youth, unidentified, pursued a coon in to the Bossen feed lot, east of town.

Firing at what he thought was a coon, he hit an animal in Bossen's herd.

He was charged with hunting too close to livestock and buildings and hunting without permission, according to Sheriff Sonnenfeld.

Mrs. Joe Lonowski spent Sunday afternoon with Anna Janulewicz.

Mr. and Mrs. Doug Zikmund of Norfolk were visitors of Lenya Zikmund Friday afternoon. Sunday afternoon visitor was Tillie Massey.

Thursday visitors of Alma Pierson were Marie and Leona Anderson of Comstock, Albin Pierson and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Pierson of Arcadia. Bryce and Sterling Ritz of Comstock were Friday visitors and Myrtle Stalker was a Sunday afternoon visitor.

New Years Day dinner guests of Mena Jorgensen were Ethel Heuser, Myrtle Stalker, Alma Pierson, Marie Rasmussen and Mary Jorgensen.

Linda, Beth, Julie, and Stacy Baker of Ericson were visitors of Dale Baker Tuesday afternoon. They were visitors of Lenya Zikmund and Tillie Massey accompanied Mrs. Rudy Vodehnal to Burwell on New Years Day where they were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Don Hughes.

Saturday Rose Visek went to Sargent to attend the funeral of Mrs. Phyllis Skoll.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Pierson of Arcadia were coffee guests of Elsie Rathbun Thursday. Mena Jorgensen was an evening guest for supper.

Mrs. Jim Stevens of North Carolina returned home Sunday after spending the holidays with Iona Leach and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Stevens.

Visitors Thursday of Ethel Zikmund were her grandchildren Verlene Zikmund and Mr. and Mrs. Jim Zikmund and family of Kearney and Mrs. Paul Pockoc and two children of Chapell.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Osentowski and Rose Visek were Wednesday visitors of Josie Osentowski. Sunday afternoon visitors were Frances Krason, Lillian Psota and Rose Visek. Evening visitors were Mrs. Chet Papiernik, Mike Papiernik of Lincoln and Betty Ziller of Grand Island.

to mean annual maximum daily air temperatures. For Nebraska with an average maximum daily air temperature of around 50 degrees F (10 degrees C), the upper limit for fluoride is 1.7 ppm. Concentrations of fluoride greater than 1.7 ppm are known to cause mottling of teeth (McKee and Wolf 1963); however, lesser concentrations are beneficial in the prevention of tooth decay in children.

AG TIPS FROM OUR COUNTY AGENT

1979 Crop Protection Clinics

This year a variety of subjects will be on the program. Weed science will deal with weed problems such as shattercain, dogbane, common milkweed, musk thistle, field bindweed, sandburs and many more. A session on new herbicide application equipment will be offered. Some of this equipment could easily be built in farm machine shops. An extensive survey on herbicides used on all major and minor crops is in the final stages of tabulation and preliminary findings will be reported.

Entomology and plant pathology will be discussed with eight interesting topics on each subject. You will hear about grasshoppers, chinch bugs, mites, worms, borers, moldy grain rusts, viruses, nematodes and rots. Stored grain problems will also be discussed.

Meetings of interest to Valley County residents will be on January 11 at the O'Neill Legion Club and January 16 at the Holiday Inn in Hastings. Please contact the Valley County Extension Office for a copy of the program.

1979 Herbicide Use Guide

The 1979 edition has been at the printers for some time now and IANR Extension personnel expect delivery about January 1. Copies should be available in Valley County shortly after January 15, 1979.

Do Cows Need Additional Protein While Grazing Milo or Fall Growth of Bromegrass? Spring-calving cows should not need supplemental protein while grazing milo before calving as long as leaves can supply most of their feed intake. When most of the leaves are gone and the stalk supplies more of the feed, the protein supplement should be fed at the rate of about .4 pound of plant protein (one pound of 40 percent protein) per head daily. To reduce labor and help equalize intake between cows, the supplement can be fed every second or third day.

If alfalfa hay is available, feed it at the rate of three to five pounds per head daily to provide the supplemental protein needs when milo stalks are the main source of roughage.

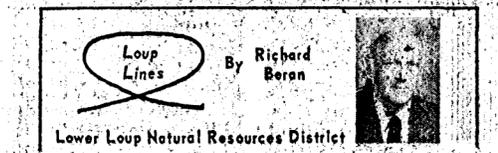

Fall growth of bromegrass that has been saved for winter grazing should provide ample protein and spring-calving cows up to 60 to 70 days of calving. Then additional protein should be provided as indicated for grazing milo after most of the leaves have been consumed.

Cows nursing fall calves need protein supplementation when grazing milo stubble. Eight to ten pounds of alfalfa hay is recommended when milo leaves provide much of the grazing intake and somewhat more — 10 to 15 pounds — when stalks provide most of the forage grazed.

If a urea-containing supplement is used, the protein equivalent is less effective than most plant proteins for cattle grazing low quality roughage — perhaps as little as 50 percent as effective.

Nebraska Hog Inventory Up 16 Percent

According to the Nebraska Crop and Livestock Reporting Service, Nebraska pork producers had an estimated 3.65 million hogs and pigs on hand December 1, 1978, up 16% from a year ago. Hogs and pigs kept for breeding totaled 569,000, which was 23% above last year. Market hogs, at 3.1 million, were up 15% from a year ago. Hog inventory of the 14 quarterly states (which accounts for 88% of the total U.S. hog and pig inventory) was up 6% from December 1, 1977.

FLUORIDE
With few exceptions, fluoride concentrations are less than 1.0 parts per million (ppm) in Nebraska's groundwater. The mean fluoride concentration of water from 1,449 wells was .5 ppm. Concentrations were less than 0.3 ppm in water from all sampled wells in the Sandhills region. The maximum concentration was 8.4 ppm in water from a well in Cass County.

Fluoride may be derived from the mineral fluorite (CaF<sub>2</sub>) in many different rock types. Small amounts of fluoride may be associated with evaporite deposits. When fluoride-bearing rocks are reworked by water, fluoride is slowly liberated from its parent rock matrix. Water trapped in interior basins is known to contain relatively high fluoride concentrations, probably as a result of evaporation. Phosphate fertilizers, some of which contain as much as 3.5 percent (3,500 ppm) fluoride, also can be a source of fluoride in groundwater.

Fluoride concentrations ranging from 1.0 to 8.4 ppm occur in water from wells in several different areas in southeastern Nebraska. These higher fluoride concentrations probably result from dissolution of fluorite in shale layers that are intercalated with the water-producing Paleozoic rocks tapped by the wells. Fluoride concentrations higher than 1.0 ppm also occur in the groundwater of several other eastern Nebraska areas. In each of these areas, the Dakota Group is either the principal aquifer or immediately underlies the principal aquifer. It is likely that dissolution of fluorite in the shale beds of the Dakota or dissolution of evaporite minerals in any of the rock layers composing that group accounts for the fluoride in the water. Correlation of fluoride concentrations with dissolved-solids concentrations indicates that fluorite associated with evaporite minerals may be the main source of the fluoride in water from wells tapping the Dakota.

The source of the higher concentrations of fluoride in water from wells in much of KNOX County and eastern Boyd County probably is evaporite minerals in the Codell Sandstone member of the Carlisle Shale, which is the principal aquifer in that area. Dissolution of fluorite in the Pierre Shale probably accounts for the higher fluoride concentrations in water from wells in the Nobrara River valley

Senator Wagner (left) was sworn in by Secretary of State Allen Beermann (right). Wagner's appointment as senator was the first official act of Gov. Charles Thone (center). Seated in the audience for the ceremony were 13 of Wagner's 14 children, who range in age from 9 to 29.

Wagner To Serve In State Senate

Don Wagner, 51, was selected as the new state senator for the 1st Legislative District. He was sworn in Friday during ceremonies in Lincoln. The long-time Ord area resident will fill the unexpired term of Sen. Dennis Rasmussen of Scotia.

Wagner, in a Quiz interview Saturday, said people approached him suggesting the state senate post several weeks ago. Taking the post was "a big decision," according to Wagner. "I did it," he said, "to give something back to the valley."

He first came here in 1950 while working for REA. He now farms southwest of Ord.
During his stay in Valley County, Wagner has been secretary of a rural school board, active in the American Legion, helped organize the Jaycees. Director of the Twin Loups District, he was vice chairman of the Water Quality Planning Committee.

Truck Crash Kills Yearling

A one-vehicle accident Thursday night killed a yearling bull and did over $1,000 damage to a truck nine miles west of Ord on the Sargent Highway. Lyle Buckbee, of rural Sargent was headed west driving a 1978 GMC pickup and pulling a horse trailer when he struck and killed the animal.
The bull reportedly came out of a ditch near a bridge and headed into the path of the truck.
The bull was killed. There were no injuries to passengers in the truck.

New School Board Members Seated Dennis Krikac-Dr. Dale Karre Honored

Two men ended their term of office during the school board meeting Monday at Ord High. Dr. Dale Karre and Dennis Krikac, departing board members, were given certificates of appreciation and gifts by fellow board members. Dr. Karre's momentous included the gavel he has wielded as chairman for the last eight years.
Dennis Krikac was first elected to the board in 1974. Dr. Karre had served for the last 14 years.
Merrill Mason, school board treasurer, told the two, "I've appreciated working with you, and know you've been through a lot."
With that, Karen Zaruba and Dr. Dale Smith, with returning board member Ed Vancura, were sworn in. New officers named include:
— president, Merrill Mason.
— vice president, Ed Vancura.
— secretary, Ruth Powers.
Board members first item of business was accepting the resignation of Cindy Glidden, effective May 29. She has been teaching second grade at Ord Elementary School.
Standing committees heard from:
— Building and Grounds, Ed Vancura, chairman. Estimates on repairing and remodeling Ken Truby's room, in the southwest portion of old Ord High, were heard.
— Other topics covered included the leaky roof at Ord Elementary. After discussion, the board decided to write a strong letter to Johns-Mansville, bonding company for the roofing job. It was installed when Ord Elementary was constructed in 1969-70.
The roof leaks in wet weather. Just who is to blame, what is causing it, and what to do, have been frequently discussed at board meetings.

Jim Wray's freeholding request was approved by the board Monday. One quarter of land will go from Greeley County to Valley County tax roles on completion of necessary paper work.
Tabled until the February meeting was a decision on purchasing a new school bus. Board action awaits a recommendation from the Transportation Committee.
The board voted approval of a self-evaluation study during the 1980-81 school year. The evaluation of the school system must be done every seven years, according to Dr. Bill Gogan, Ord Schools Superintendent, for continued accreditation.
More on that elsewhere in this Quiz.
Ord High principal, Bob Shannon, will be the study chairman.
Routine items of business included:
— Designation of banks in Ord and Comstock as depositories for school funds.
— Naming Dr. Gogan as Title IV representative. Done annually, it designates the superintendent as the school district's representative when working with Title IV government funds. These include library materials, etc.
Dr. Gogan suggested the board get public input on budget cutting recommendations. Mentioned were sending out questionnaires and the possibility of an open forum. A decision on what to do was postponed until the February board meeting.
Going into executive session, the board rehired both principals and Dr. Bill Gogan. This is done annually.

Dr. Dale Karre ... Man of the Year Marie Linke ... Woman of the Year

Man-Woman of the Year Honored By Ord Chamber

The Ord Chamber of Commerce honored two Ord residents, naming them the Man of the Year and Woman of the Year, in ceremonies Tuesday night at the Ord Elks Club.
Dr. Dale Karre, named Man of the Year, received his Doctor of Veterinary Medicine Degree in 1948 from a college in Fort Collins, CO. Coming to Ord he worked with Dr. McGinnis and later formed a partnership with Dr. Paul Lambert.
The father of four children, he served on the City Council representing the Third Ward. In 1958 he was elected Mayor of Ord. Monday night, he ended 14 years on the Ord School Board. Eight of those years have been as president.
He and his wife, Shirley are long-time Ord residents.
Named Woman of the Year was Marie Linke. During the annual Chamber Banquet, she was described as "someone working quietly, caring for other people's children."
Her husband, Walt, contracted polio in 1950. At that time he was a farmer in the Ord area. This all changed with the start of the crippling disease.
It wasn't until 1953 that he returned to Ord from a hospital in Grand Island. Marie tended to his needs, raised five children, while providing day care for children of other families.
Despite an active schedule Marie found time for hobbies including knitting, macrame, and embroidery.

Previous honors for Marie include the Heart of Gold Award from the Ord Business and Professional Women's chapter.
Other Chamber awards given Tuesday night for:
— Al Baeder, named Project Chairman of the Year.
— Ivan Sorensen as Director of the Year.
News media awards went to Ord radio station KNLV and The Ord Quiz. Pat Beran accepted for KNLV and Kerry Leggett for the Ord Quiz.
Quiz publisher Kerry Leggett presented Ord Firechief Ivan Sorensen a check, on behalf of Ak-Sar-Ben, for the new rescue unit fund raising drive.
Guest speaker was Dr. Gene Koepeke, Dean of Business at Kearney State College. He told Chamber members and their guests he was concerned about the pessimism in this country. Part of this, he contended, was caused by the rapid technological changes taking place.
These changes started with the industrial revolution, according to Dr. Koepeke, and have been steadily accelerating. The speaker said technological change in creases geometrically and won't slow down in the foreseeable future.
The fear of these changes — called future shock — makes many people yearn for the good old days, according to the professor, and is evidenced by the popularity of memorabilia from bygone days. He included antique collecting, recent interest in old movie posters, and other such items as evidence of this strong desire for yesteryear.

Included in his projections by the year 2000 were:
— The capability to pick the sex of children before they are born.
— The use of electric stimulation of the brain to increase learning capabilities.
— Growing human limbs for use by persons needing them in case of the loss of a hand, arm, etc.
— The complete control of heredity. Using this, parents could pick the height, weight, color of hair, etc. of a child they plan to have.
— Lifespans of 100 years or more.
He addressed skeptics in the audience, reminding them that his grandfather died in 1917 never having seen television. "And the first telephone I ever used was a hand-cranked model, with the old goose neck," he said.
He mentioned getting his children a mini-computer for Christmas this year. Costing $25, it plays tic tac toe with the youngsters and operates on small flashlight batteries, Dr. Koepeke said.
The guest speaker predicted 1979 would be a good year with farm prices staying where they are or advancing.

Ord Chamber Votes Support Of NPPD Comstock Facility

The Ord Chamber of Commerce gave a near unanimous vote of support to the Comstock electrical generating plant during a luncheon at the Elks Club Thursday. The vote followed a four-hour presentation by Nebraska Public Power District personnel.
NPPD plans to construct and run the 650,000 kilowatt coal-fired station. A tentative schedule calls for it to be operational by 1983. On completion, the plant will be the third coal-fired generating station of its size in the NPPD power-grid system. Two similar plants are now under construction near Sutherland.

A schematic diagram shown by NPPD spokesmen Thursday illustrated how the plant will work. Pulverized low-sulfur coal will be blown into a furnace. Heat generated by the flame will turn water flowing through tubes in the furnace into steam. After turning a turbine, the steam will be cooled, and returned to a liquid state.
Smoke will be filtered through scrubbers and other anti-pollution devices.
Why Needed?
The plant is needed to help meet soaring electrical demands, according to an NPPD spokesman. A graph chart depicting this demand has a blue line steadily sloping upward. Estimated to cost $750 million, the plant will begin supplying electrical power in 1985, according to a tentative time table.

Comstock was chosen as the plant site on the basis of several criteria. Included in the plant-site study, begun in 1974, were factors including the water supply, water quality, seismic risk, accessibility of the plant site, etc.
The impact of workers flocking to the plant site won't be as great as many believe, according to NPPD projections. A population study for the period 1980 to 1970 (Continued on page 8)

Chamber Chairman Isn't

For the first time in over 20 years, the chairman of the board isn't. Newly named Ord Chamber of Commerce president, Betty Jo Axthelm, is the first woman to fill that post since Aileen Paciniuk in 1953.
Betty Jo joined the Ord Chamber on purchasing The Fabric Shop from Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Needham in 1976. "I got my feet wet right away," she quipped in a Quiz interview Thursday. Her first assignment as a new member was chairman of the Retail Trades Committee. She was instrumental in starting the Gal-A Event, an afternoon function honoring area women while noting their support of Ord businesses in 1983.
Past Gal-A Events have included afternoon style shows and salad luncheons. A success when first offered, the Events are now an annual item on the Chamber's calendar and have been copied by other Chambers in the area.
Serving on the Ag Committee, she and other Chamber officials got John Love to come to Ord last year. A writer for Business Week magazine, Love did an article on how farmers were faring in battling the cost-price squeeze.
Many contend that nationally circulated article did much to correct popular misconceptions about Midwestern agriculture.
Nor was this Betty Jo's first effort at telling the farmers' side of the picture. While attending a fabric clinic in Des Moines, IA in 1977, Betty and her husband, Don, had lunch with Matilda Roth, vice president of McCalls Patterns. Matilda revealed McCalls planned to honor a woman for her contributions to American society that year.

The self-selected honoree? Carol Tucker Foreman, organizer of the beef boycott. Her recognition was to include full-page photos in the McCalls pattern catalogues.
Dumbfounded, the Axthelms told the McCalls executive how the boycott was hurting Nebraska farmers and ranchers, and suggested the nationally known sewing pattern supplier reconsider the planned move.
What Betty Jo and Don said must have had an impact on the Board's vice president. A salesman from that organization, calling on the Fabric Shop later, mentioned workers ripping pages from the well-known pattern catalogues that year, before they were circulated.
"Seems like most of them had a picture of Foreman," the salesman reportedly commented, adding that there had evidently been some big changes in plans at that company.
Recalling her conversation with Matilda Roth, Betty Jo said, "It was meeting the right person at the right time."
Ord Chamber vice president in 1977, Betty was named president this year. She will be serving with this year's vice president, Richard Liss.
Speaking of her new leadership role, Betty Jo commented, "Women didn't used to do this (Continued on page 8)

Plans first drawn up called for river water to be diverted and stored in a large reservoir. Present plans under consideration dropped that idea. Water will come from wells drilled by NPPD. Other changes include an alternate plant site, shown here.

Shannon Explains Planned Study

School board members gave their approval Monday to a planned self-study of the Ord Public Schools. The critique is done every seven years, according to Dr. Bill Gogan, Ord Public Schools Superintendent, as part of the accreditation process.
According to Bob Shannon, Ord High principal, Ord schools have just completed reaching goals listed in the study done here six years ago. This, he stated, is as it should be. A school system should be continuously striving for self-improvement, he said, reaching out to fulfill set goals, he told the Quiz. A Steering Committee on the self-evaluation, completed in 1974, listed these objectives:
In the just approved planned study, it will do the same. The board Monday named Shannon to head the Steering Committee in the study scheduled to be started in the 1980-81 academic year.

That committee will ask a cross-section of the population in the school district what they think Ord Public Schools' educational priorities should be and where schools need improvement.
After these viewpoints have been heard, the Steering Committee will list goals for the school system. A committee dealing with each of the enumerated goals will then concentrate on their given area.
Shannon pointed out the local populace, and not the state or national government, will decide these goals or priorities.
Members of the Steering Committee along with Shannon are Al Cudly, Jan Weber, Lu Gibb, Dorothy Manning and Dan Hersh.

school system) and another list of needed improvements.
Shannon called the latter areas of concern.
The goals along with suggestions for improvements and other related data will go into a formal report. An outside team will then evaluate it. The team usually consists of teachers and administrators from other schools.
Their evaluation of the study will go into a report sent to the Steering Committee and the State Department of Education.
Printed separately, their evaluation is considered part of the schools' self-evaluation.
Members of the Steering Committee along with Shannon are Al Cudly, Jan Weber, Lu Gibb, Dorothy Manning and Dan Hersh.

Duck Dinner Debate Settled

Debate over raising the price of Ducks Unlimited wild game tickets has been settled, according to DU dinner chairman Ken Petska. Members have decided to retain the $25 ticket price, while soliciting merchants for merchandise donations.
That decision came after some members suggested raising ticket prices to $30 or $35. Petska told the Quiz. After the debate, members decided to retain former ticket prices while seeking merchandise donations.
These items and others will be auctioned off after the January 27 DU wild game dinner in Elyria. Proceeds from the sale go toward wild life conservation projects.
Past auction items have included shotguns and limited edition prints of wildlife scenes. The quality of the goods matched the high bid prices.
Petska said many people likely wanted to join in the annual bidding, but high bid prices prevented them from doing so, at past D.U. dinners.
This year's D.U. dinner will begin with a 6 p.m. cocktail hour followed by the usual feast at 7 p.m. in the Elyria Parish Hall Jan. 27. Persons lucky enough to get tickets will likely ponder this year's mystery dish. Past entrees have included turtle, coyote, and other area delicacies.

Jorgensen (right) received the new unit from Marvin Kohout Thursday. It was purchased using federal monies. There was no direct expense to the village.

North Loup Gets Radar Unit

Motorists had better steer clear of North Loup or slow down while going through that town. The town marshal was presented a portable radar unit by Marvin Kohout, traffic safety specialist with the Department of Motor Vehicles, Thursday.
Town Marshal Kenneth Jorgensen received the unit on behalf of the village.

North Loup has a stationary unit, Jorgensen said, but the new portable unit will allow greater flexibility in its use. The portable unit may be used while the police car is moving or while standing still.
Kohout said the unit is loaned to the city for a two-year period. The only requirements are that (Continued on page 8)

The annual Ducks Unlimited dinner will be January 27 — not the 17th — as listed in last week's Quiz article.

HAPPY INDEED . . . Stalled! My faithful vehicle just wouldn't budge from the middle of an intersection. Why is it always in the middle of a busy intersection that a car chooses to rest?

I lifted the hood and peered into that maze of wires and things. Nothing seemed to be loose or lost. No use, I was stuck in a car with a back seat full of groceries and a mood to match the cost. Not to mention the bitterness of the afternoon weather.

I would have to leave the car, hood up, and telephone someone for help.

More money, I thought. The expenses of everything and now, another bill.

But just then, two teen-age boys, rattled by in something resembling a very old Chevy with a Packard (just guessing) grille, and the driver yelled "Need some help, lady?"

"Need a push to get this out of traffic, but not with that thing," I said, nodding at their car. They parked at the curb and started toward me. I didn't mean to say all that about your car, I apologized. It's just that I'm embarrassed and mad at my car and I dislike this cold weather. I'm already wishing for springtime. "No sweat," smiled one boy. "Let's see what's wrong."

They, too, looked under the hood and checked something there. "Try your horn." The faint beep of it told the story. My battery was dead.

"We'll get you going soon" they said convincingly. "Got a jump cable in my car, that should get you started. Just be sure to keep the motor running until you get the battery recharged."

They knew what they were doing and worked awhile until they started my car. I was relieved.

"I'm very grateful. How much do I owe you?" "Just glad to be of help," said one of the boys. "Maybe we'll need some help sometime. Happy new year, lady."

It is, indeed.

Effective Detective Training Session Set

Homeowners in Valley County will be arming themselves with flashlights, tape measures, candles, pads and pencils in the coming months as the result of a new Extension energy program.

"The Effective Detective — Finding Energy Savings at Home," is the title of the new lesson, which will help homeowners systematically search their homes for sources of energy waste and ways to save money, according to Carol Van Nordheim, Area Home Extension Agent.

"Although higher energy costs have caused most Nebraskans to take some measures to improve their homes' energy efficiency, many just don't know where else to look after a certain point," she said. "And as a result, most homeowners are still paying higher than necessary fuel bills."

The home economist will be hosting a leader training session on the new lesson for Extension club members and representatives from other interested groups at Arcadia, Thursday, January 11, at 1:30 at the home of Mrs. Dick Bossen and at Ord, Friday morning, January 12, at 9:30 a.m. in the Extension office.

Participants will be provided with an energy inventory that will help them evaluate their homes in such areas as site orientation, caulking and weatherstripping, storm windows and doors, insulation, ventilation and window treatments, she said. After the evaluation, they will come up with an overall "home energy rating" to see how their homes rate in terms of energy efficiency.

Following the lesson, groups will be urged to take one area of energy improvement such as caulking and weatherstripping, and carry it out in their own homes. Step-by-step instructions will be provided.

"Weatherstripping and caulking alone can lower your energy consumption by as much as ten percent," Carol Van Nordheim pointed out. "This is actually the easiest and most economical first step to making your home more energy efficient."

The lesson is open to all interested participants. Contact the Valley County Extension Office, at Ord for more information.

Artissimos Learn Rub & Buff Technique

The high point of the January 2 meeting of the Loup Valley Artissimos was a demonstration by Thelma Johnson on rub and buff backgrounds for paintings done on canvas, poster board or gessoed surfaces. Blends of blue, amethyst and green and of the metallics of brass, copper and gold complimented paintings of a Japanese pagoda, a variety of life designs, and deserted buildings, all themes chosen by members to try the rub and buff technique.

Evelyn Jackson and Julie Noyes will place paintings on the dining room wall in the C wing of the hospital for January. Shirley McClure and Rene Radil will be responsible for the February showing at the hospital.

President Connie Myers is trying to arrange a tote painting class through the adult education program of the high school. Anyone interested in tote painting this semester should leave his or her name with Ed Bosworth at the name school before January 9.

The February 6 meeting of the Artissimos will feature a portrait by Zola Schudel and Virginia Ender.

Boxing Bouts Fast-Colorful Held At St. Mary's Friday

Craig Markvicka (right) skillfully ducks a punch from Chris Johnson of Central City.

Area residents were treated to some of the finest ringside shows seen here in some time Friday when the Ord Boxing Club sponsored 18 bouts in St. Mary's gym. Towns represented included Ord, Loup City, Broken Bow, Neligh, Central City, Omaha, Grand Island, and Hastings.

Sanctioned by the Amateur Athletic Union, the fights included everything from small fry exhibition matches to bouts in the 200 pound weight division.

Coach's Comments
Ord boxing coach, Dan Klimiek said, "We were very satisfied with the results and large crowd attending the fights. We prematched most of the boys, matching them tough to give people good fights."
"Craig Markvicka, although only training two weeks, lost a close fight, but showed signs of his championship caliber. Craig has won the district championship three times and Outstanding Boxer award twice."
"Scott Spady has lost two close fights to Billy Belster. Scott is a good classy boxer but needs to get in better shape."
Roger Williams is the newcomer to the Golden Gloves team. He won the Junior State title last year and has a 6-1 record this year. Williams lost his first fight to Dennis Duffy of Superior. Roger won a unanimous decision over Duffy in Ord.

"Williams, Spady, and Markvicka with the experience they have are national material."
"Mark Dugan is a condition fighter and is about 75 percent there now. He showed his excellent speed the first round against national champion Larry Hoshaw, but slowed down in the next two rounds."
"Terry Sweet and Rex Studnicka made their first appearance in the ring Friday and show a lot of promise."

Results
Full results of the bouts here Friday are:
119 pounds — Roger Williams decided Dennis Duffy of Superior.
119 pounds — Scott Spady decided Jessie Reivera of Dannebrog.
165 pounds — Morry Hoppes decided Robby House of Tilden.
165 pounds — Craig Markvicka lost a decision to Chris Johnson of Central City.
175 pounds — Terry Sweet vs. Bill Strickland. Fight stopped in the second round.

185 pounds — Rex Studnicka lost on a first round TKO to Gregg Rasmussen of Hazard.
200 pounds — Dwaine Vasicek lost a decision to Rick Eberhardt of Grand Island.
156 pounds — Main Event — Mark Dugan decided Larry Hoshaw of Superior.
Exhibition Bouts
Chad Bundy vs. Richard Brass of Broken Bow.
Chip Dalstein vs. Danny Dubas of Loup City.
Willy Gottlob vs. Scott Kratzer of Broken Bow.
Danny Klimiek vs. Kevin Michalek of Loup City.
Gregg Gottlob — Bill Baush of Dannebrog.
Jim Learman vs. Tony Carol of Broken Bow.

Results of Loup City Bouts Saturday Night
119 pounds — Roger Williams won a second round TKO over Jim Hoover of Hazard.
165 pounds — Morry Hoppes decided Tim Lonowski of Loup City.
200 pounds — Dwaine Vasicek won a TKO over Josh Sanders of Hazard in the second round.
200 pounds — Allen Godrich lost by a second round TKO to Dean Fisher of Amherst.

Solid Second Quarters—Charity Shots, Take Games at Loup City & Schuyler

A solid second quarter and charity shots in the last lifted Ord girls Chants to a 50-40 win over host Loup City Tuesday, January 2. Ord coach, Max Murray, said his girls played well despite some defensive lapses.

These included letting Judy Yelkin inside. The 6'4" center consistently scored when given this opportunity.
Other information included the statistic showing Ord scored 70 percent (28 out of 40) from the free throw line. It was these charity shots in the fourth quarter that played a crucial part in winning the game, according to Murray. "We've been winning some games with free throws" he said reviewing his statistics records.

This game was one of them. That victory Tuesday set the stage for yet another win, at Schuyler Friday. Ord eased by their host team 48-41. Thirteen points in the last stanza gave Ord the win.

"The girls held their poise well during the last quarter," Murray told the Quiz. Ord trailed 37-35 going into the final period. "We had some good shots and made key free throws then," he said.

Asked to comment on who scored those key points, Murray was hard pressed for an answer. "After a quick check of the game book he stated, 'There was well balanced scoring then, and throughout the game.' During the last period Vickie Mason and Nancy Gogan had four points each. Barb Kittle and Shelly Blaha chipped in one field goal each."

Murray credited Mason with playing her best game of the season at Schuyler. "She and Anne Smith carried the team the fourth quarter," Murray said. Smith had 15 rebounds for the game and finished with 8 points.

Mason had 16 points to her credit and 15 rebounds.

Ord Town Spikers Down Taylor 15-8

The Ord town team spikers easily defeated Taylor Sunday, advancing to the semifinals in the Women's Spiker Tournament at Taylor. Ord downed Taylor 15-8; 15-8.

High scorers were Monica Nelson with 10 and Judy Gottlob with 7.

Other winning teams Sunday were Loup County, Arcadia, and Sargent. Ord will play Loup County Saturday at 7 p.m. in Taylor.

Should Ord defeat Loup County Sunday, they will advance to finals competition Sunday at 5 p.m. against either Arcadia or Sargent.

Schuyler Over Ord 66-51 Friday

Host Schuyler downed Ord 66-51 Friday. Cold shooting and problems at the free throw line shut Ord varsity boys down for the night.

The Chants sank one of eight free throws the first half and were five of eighteen for the evening.

Ord coach Fred Williams estimated Ord didn't connect on over 20 percent of their shots from the floor the first half. When that period ended, Schuyler was ahead 17 points. The Chants never caught up.

Lady Chants Nip Aurora Huskies

Shelly Blaha (40) lofts a basket for the Ord girls against Aurora Saturday.

Ord varsity gal Chants used an explosive second quarter to edge host Aurora Huskies 56-32 Saturday afternoon. Ord was in front 8 points, 30-22 at the half.

In a slow first quarter Ord lagged 13-10.

This quickly changed in second quarter play. That period opened with a travel call on Gogan giving the Huskies the ball. They failed to use this and two free throws to their advantage.

Ord rebounded on a charity shot, sank a basket and tied the game 13 all with a basket by Shelly Blaha. The Chant scoring drive kept going with Nancy Gogan swiping the ball and pumping it in. Ord moved ahead 15-13.

Aurora's Lisa Gertsch, a 6'3" junior, missed one free throw but sank the next. Ord's Barb Kittle did the same, 3 seconds later.

The score was 15-14 with 5:15 in the second quarter when a time out was called.

Time up, Aurora got the ball and tried a long pass that went sailing into the audience. Ord got the ball and Kittle got two free throws, both good.

Aurora's Lisa Gertsch, mentioned earlier, took a pass by the basket, jumped a few feet, and the score changed again. At 6:30 she is likely one of the tallest — if not the tallest — players Ord has seen this season. No hindrance to her is a record as the Nebraska High Jump Champion.

While she may be tall, she wasn't as quick as the smaller, more agile Ord players, like Nancy Gogan.

Gogan took a pass and shot it in from the left side of the basket. Ord moved ahead 19-18.

There was a lot of action but no scoring until Kittle connected on a free throw, moving Ord ahead 20-18. Smith snared the ball, raced down court and sank a basket padding the lead.

Spectators had a seesaw scoring exhibition with Ord ahead 30-22 at the half.

Coach's Comments
Ord coach Max Murray called the game Saturday "The best team and most consistent effort of this season. They're starting to play better as a team," he added, "during the last three games."

During that time Ord's offensive effort has risen about 12 points a game according to Murray. "This reflects the fact that they're starting passing the ball better and playing better as a team," the coach observed.

Next on the girls' sports schedule is Albion at Ord Thursday, January 11. Murray rated them "a tough team." With their entire starting lineup back from last year the gal Cardinals were undefeated as of Saturday night.

Top scorer for North Loup was Gebhardt with 14 points. High scorers for Arcadia were Christ Holcomb with 12 and Denise Luedtke with 11.

Arcadia girls split a pair Thursday and Saturday. Their mixed results came in matches against Callaway and North Loup-Scotia.

Callaway opened the two games by downing the gal Huskies 56-32 Thursday at Callaway. Arcadia coach, Wilbur Cushebery summed it up as his girls having an off night.

Having one of those against a team with Loup-Scotia can be an unforgettable experience. She sank 22 points for Callaway. "She couldn't miss and we couldn't hit," recalled Cushebery in a Quiz phone interview.

Arcadia only got 4 out of 18 free throws that night and connected on 14 of 70 tries from the floor.

Urbach isn't very tall, according to the Huskie coach, only 5'9" or so. Nothing overly impressive by basketball standards. "But she could slice hit," said the coach.

North Loup-Scotia Cushebery's girls staged a comeback Saturday when playing host to North Loup-Scotia. They took the gal Wildcats 41-36.

"North Loup-Scotia is a lot better than the papers say," Cushebery told the Quiz. "I don't think they've won a game yet, but they'll get something out of these days."

Next scorer for North Loup was Gebhardt with 14 points. High scorers for Arcadia were Christ Holcomb with 12 and Denise Luedtke with 11.

Huskies Nip Ord Chanticleers 73-56

Kurt Kremke (42) goes up for a jump ball against Aurora Saturday.

Guest Aurora Huskies edged Ord Chanticleers 73-56 Saturday night. Highly rated by prep sports writers in a pre-season poll, the Huskies lived up to their reputation.

In front 11-19 at the end of the first quarter, the Huskies pulled away to a 26-18 lead at the half. Early in that period, the Huskies got a 17-12 edge. That came after Joe Dworak went up for a basket. An Aurora player being fouled, the Huskies got a free throw, and then back to back baskets.

Ord's Barry Witherwax took a long pass and turned it into a basket. Chanticleers aided the Huskies cause. Sinking two, the Ord squad pulled within two points of Aurora 19-17, but not for long.

Free throws by Aurora widened that gap 20-19 and then to 22-19. A basket by Dworak, and Ord was back within one point of their opponent, 22-21. The Chanticleers pulled even 24 all with 4:57 in the half with a free through.

Kremke went to the bench and Bill Wades came into the game, just as an Aurora charity shot moved them ahead 25-24 with 4:33 to go.

Ord coach Al Cuddy called the game, "Ord's best, defensively, this year. I felt there were too many mistakes offensively. This was the first time this year we were bothered by a press."

Wildcat Thespians Receive Top Award

The North Loup-Scottia one-act play, "The Files," was selected as the best play at the Cedar Valley Conference One-Act Play Contest held at Greeley, Monday.

Members of the NLS production were Lori Jeffries, Kim Peterson, Lisa Rasmussen, Karen Jensen, Tim Edwards, Reba Ackles, Steven Roy, and Rick Metteer. Sharon Kriewald served as assistant-director.

Elba received the second place award and the outstanding actor award. Wobach placed third in the competition.

"The Files," written by Jean-Paul Sartre, is based on ancient Greek legend. It tells the story of Orestes and Electra who avenge their father's death. The play shows the remorse and decay the characters experience. This is personified by the four Furies.

Last Second Foul Costs Gals Tie With Ainsworth

A foul in the last seven seconds of play cost Ord eighth grade girls a tie and a likely win over Ainsworth here Monday.

The Bulldogs stank 4-1 with their lone loss to Atkinson-West Hoyt last week.

Ord eighth grade girls came within a whisper of equalling Atkinson's feat. The game opened Monday with both teams neck and neck. That trend continued throughout the game.

Both teams were up for the game, very physical, and neither wanted to lose.

Ainsworth was up 28-26 in the last minute of play. A basket by Ord in the last 45 seconds tied the game 28 all. With just seven seconds left, Ord fouled, giving Ainsworth a one-and-one freethrow. The first basket was all it took — or was all that was needed to give Ainsworth the game.

Coach's Comments

Eighth grade coach, Jan Weber said, "It was a good game. I feel the second quarter was our downfall. We failed to run our offense as smoothly as I would have liked."

"A great number of turnovers from bad passes, lane violations, and travelling occurred."

"Although we ended up on the short end of the game I feel the girls played well. It was a good game. If we can eliminate our turnovers we will be able to improve in the future."

Eighth grade girls go to Albion January 15. Game time is 6:15 p.m.

Stats Ainsworth 2 15 4 8 29 Ord 8 5 8 7 28

Leading scorer for Ord was Amy Gibbons with 15. Diane Dworak and Julie Brass each had 4 points.

Dana Reymann led Ainsworth with 13 points.

Chamber Vote

NPPD personnel estimated the plant would halt this decline sooner than that and start a population gain quicker than if the plant weren't coming here.

Such enrollments have declined 25 percent in the same period, 1950-1970, according to power company figures. NPPD officials admitted there will be a jump in school enrollments, when construction starts, but not nearly as great as some people have predicted.

Preliminary projections call for that work to start in mid 1982. When completed, the majority of workers will leave the area. However, some will stay behind. These people along with NPPD plant staff members, will help boost the area's declining population, power company projections show.

A question and answer period followed the NPPD presentation. After that, Chamber members voted to support the NPPD project.

SULFATE
Sulfate concentrations in water from 1,596 Nebraska wells have been determined. A minimum concentration of 0.0 parts per million (ppm) has been observed in water samples from several wells in the Sandhills region, while the maximum observed sulfate concentration of 4,300 ppm occurred in water from a shallow well north of Chadron, in Dawes County. The mean concentration of sulfate was 135 ppm.

The principal geologic sources of sulfate are metallic sulfides in igneous and sedimentary rocks. These insoluble sulfides are oxidized during weathering to produce soluble sulfates. Evaporite deposits contain sulfates, mostly gypsum and anhydrite. Sodium sulfate occurs in some closed basins and is responsible for the white alkali deposits in some parts of western United States. Certain bacteria that use sulfur in their metabolic process convert reduced forms of sulfur to sulfate. Deposits of biogenic material such as coal contain large quantities of sulfide which is readily oxidized to sulfate.

Sulfate concentrations greater than 1,000 ppm are associated with water from bedrock aquifers in southeastern Nebraska. In groundwater around Lincoln, sulfate concentrations exceeding 1,000 ppm result from the dissolution of sulfate from natural evaporite deposits. In northern and east-central Nebraska, sulfate concentrations in excess of 500 ppm occur in water derived from sandstones of the Dakota Group of Cretaceous age.

Concentrations of sulfate exceeding 100 ppm are common in water from wells near the Platte River. In most places, water in the aquifer is hydraulically connected with the river and the quality of groundwater tends to reflect the quality of the river water, which at low flow contains 100-200 ppm sulfate. Concentrations of sulfate exceeding 500 ppm are common in the Platte River as it flows through the arid upstream areas where water from the river is used and reused for irrigation. The same thing occurs to a lesser extent in the North Platte River.

The glacial drift mantling much of eastern Nebraska is composed of debris derived from rocks containing abundant sulfide or sulfate minerals. Groundwater in drift aquifers and in aquifers at the base of the drift commonly contains concentrations of sulfate exceeding 500 ppm, as evidenced by the analytical results for several samples of water from domestic or stock wells.

Concentrations ranging from 0.0 to 10 ppm sulfate occur in the groundwater of the Sandhills region in parts of the panhandle. No extensive source of sulfate is known in these areas.

A limit of 250 ppm sulfate was recommended by the U.S. Public Health Service for drinking water supplies. Primary regulations established by the Environmental Protection Agency which went into effect June 24, 1977, do not include a sulfate limit; however, secondary regulations presently under study include a maximum level of 250 ppm sulfate. Although it is not known to cause any serious health problems, sulfate has a laxative effect on some people when concentrations greater than 250 ppm are first ingested. Concentrations of sulfate exceeding 400 ppm may also affect the taste of water.

Even though sulfate in irrigation water does not affect crops directly, concentrations of sulfate exceeding 500 ppm may render water unfit for irrigation by contributing to high salinity.

Implied Warranty

NEBRASKA FARM BUREAU FEDERATION

By M. M. Van Kirk, Director of Information

In this day of "Naderism" in which a large segment of the population expects government and the courts to provide them constant "protection" and recourse, people in the nation's livestock industry are forced to worry about the "implied warranty" factor as applied to transactions in the livestock industry.

The Livestock Markets Assn. recently held a special meeting on the subject of "implied warranty" problems and the number of lawsuits which are being filed under provisions of the Universal Commercial Code (UCC). Drovers Journal, the nation's leading specialized publication for the livestock industry, has reported extensively concerning the discussion and the threat that it can pose to livestock producers who at some point must buy and sell their products.

Drover Journal noted that the only midwestern state in which sellers are still protected under a semblance of the old "caveat emptor" rule (let the buyer beware) is Nebraska, noting that in 1975 the Nebraska Legislature amended the UCC code to provide that in the sale of cattle, hogs and sheep there is NO "implied warranty" that the animals are free of disease or defects.

Cattle, hogs and sheep are not like the automobiles, refrigerators, tv sets, et cetera warranted against defects for which the UCC code was designed. For example, a producer of feeder cattle may deliver what he honestly considers to be completely healthy feeder stock to a feedlot operator but he can't guarantee that those cattle will remain healthy under conditions of the next owner's feedlot management and environment.

Drovers Journal cites this actual case: "A cattleman in a southeastern state sold a set of around 800 brood beef cows to a businessman. All of the cows were negative reactors and came from a brucellosis-free herd. The buyer took them to his ranch and kept them there for two years. At the end of that time he sold out. But when he did so, it was discovered that the herd was heavily infected with brucellosis. Although he had owned the cattle for two years, he sued the seller on grounds of implied warranty and even in the face of evidence that his ranch was bordered on two sides by ranches with infected herds from which it logically could have been assumed that his animals contracted the disease, he was awarded substantial damages."

An Iowa feeder pig dealer told the Markets conference that running tests on animals to determine whether they are healthy before being offered for sale is hardly practical. He said he had determined from Iowa veterinarians that the cost of giving a pig every known test for health would total about $80 per pig. Veterinarians readily agree that visual inspection of an animal prior to sale adds credibility to the health of the animal but will not detect exposure.

The conference did not attempt to reach any conclusions on what to do about the problem but will continue to study it. It was agreed that it would be difficult, if not impossible, to amend the UCC in all states, because of adverse reaction from consumer activist groups.

The "implied warranty" concept is difficult enough to apply fairly to manufacturers of inanimate objects without trying to extend it to animals. Hopefully there will be some favorable solution.

Meantime, give credit to the Nebraska legislators who recognized the implications and took appropriate action in the 1975 session.

Gas Supplies Are Adequate

Cold weather has caused natural gas consumption to soar, according to Rod Hansen, but Nebraska users need not worry about supplies. That's the word from Hansen, of Kansas-Nebraska's public relations office.

Speaking from K-N's Hastings headquarters, Hansen said the company has adequate supplies for this winter. Residents fearful of K-N's running short, can rest easy.

NOTICE OF PERSONAL PROPERTY ASSESSMENT

For Valley County, Nebraska

ALL PROPERTY ON HAND JANUARY 1, (12:01 A.M. 1979, IS TO BE ASSESSED UNLESS SPECIFICALLY EXEMPT BY NEBRASKA STATUTES

Filing of personal property assessment schedules shall be done between January 1, 1979 and March 1, 1979.

Schedules filed after March 1st are subject to penalty.

Individuals who must file schedules are those who own or have charge of the following items on January 1 —

PERSONAL ITEMS — Registered boats and motors, airplanes, unlicensed motor vehicles, furniture in rental units.

BUSINESS — Equipment and fixtures, tools used for income, leased or consigned property.

FARM — Livestock, portable buildings.

REAL ESTATE — Improvements such as homes, cabins, grain bins and other buildings. Report new improvements and additions, as well as the removal of improvements, to the County Assessor not later than March 1. An improvement statement must be filed with the County Assessor prior to commencing improvements or alterations.

Nebraska law allows a self-assessment method of reporting personal property for taxation; the RESPONSIBILITY of filing timely returns rests with the person, corporation or organization required to report under existing laws.

Blood Disease in Swine

A diagnostic blood test developed in the last couple of years has shown that infection of eperythrozoonosis (epi) is widespread. This is a blood disease affecting sows and baby pigs. Sows become anemic when the epi organism attaches to the red blood cells and destroys them prematurely.

The disease is not a new discovery, but research on the incident rate is nearly nonexistent. About 20 to 25 percent of the blood tested is positive, but many of the positive samples may be found by chance observation.

Clinical signs are not usually obvious, but may include infertility, abortions, increased stillbirths, lactation problems, weak pigs at birth and poor growing and finishing pigs.

The signs usually occur gradually. By the time a producer is aware of them the disease may be well established. Some pigs become very ill and anemic and have a severe case of yellow belly. Others grow more slowly than normal and may "stall out" before achieving market weight.

The disease spreads from infected carrier swine to uninfected swine by transfer of red blood cells. This may be through equipment used for vaccinations, castrations, tail docking and restraint or through biological vectors such as sucking lice, mange, mosquitoes and flies.

Diagnosis is difficult because of the inconspicuous symptoms, but a blood test can detect if a pig has had the disease and developed an immunity.

There is no vaccine available, so satisfactory treatment requires all sources of contamination to be removed. Needles and other equipment should be routinely cleaned and disinfected between animals to reduce blood transfer. Treatment varies from herd to herd, but usually involves high levels of tetracyclines or prolonged use of arsenical in feed. A good louse and mange control program and good sanitation are needed to prevent re-infection. Local veterinarians are the best sources on prevention and control.

Low-Test Milk Sample Problems:

Dairymen have you been experiencing problems with low tests when taking one (1) ounce sample milk for central lab tests? If so, then here are some sampling suggestions from Phil Cole, Extension Dairyman at UNL. 1) Be sure there is at least 1/4" of air space in the plastic bottle when you ship it. It is difficult for the lab to properly mix the sample if the bottle is completely full. 2) If it would be handier for you there is no objection to collecting the sample from the Tru-Test or Milk-O-Meter in a larger container (such as one of your old 4 oz. bottles) and filling the plastic cup from it. 3) Another procedure you might want to consider is to take both the AM and PM sample in your old 4 oz. jars and then fill the plastic cups at home. You need to be careful about mixing the larger sample before you make the small sample. Again be sure to leave at least a 1/4" air space in the plastic cup. 4) A third option is to use plastic bags but this is slower and more expensive. It also means the lab has to handle two (2) types of containers.

Commercial Applicator Training-Testing Meetings:

Commercial applicator training-testing meetings for the year of 1979 will be scheduled only in the months of February and March. Training sessions of local interest at Columbus, Feby. 13; Grand Island, Mar. 6; and Norfolk, Mar. 19. Pre-registration is advisable to assure that training will be presented in a specific category and to obtain study materials. For more information contact the Valley County Extension Office.

Area Swine Days 1979:

Swine producers will want to mark their calendars for the 1979 Area Swine Days which will be held at O'Neill on January 23 and at Aurora on January 24.

4-CLUBS

Trying Our Best 4-H Club

The fourth meeting of the Trying Our Best 4-H Club was called to order on December 9 at 1:30 p.m. by President JoAnn Bruha. The meeting was held at the Johnny Valasek home. We said the pledge. Roll call was to say something you want for Christmas. Minutes were read and approved. We had the treasurer's report and paid the bills. For our new business, we planned our Christmas Party. We will have it December 14 at the National Hall at 6 p.m. The Extension Club will have their party with us. Members are to bring a gift for the grab bag and their own cups, plates, and silverware. Each family is to bring two covered dishes.

We made plans for the next meeting. It will be held December 30, at 1:30 p.m. at the Laddie H. Bruha home. We will have a sleigh riding party; so everyone is to bring their sleds. For roll call, we are to say something that is a sign of spring. The meeting was adjourned. We had our lessons, then put a picture on a bar of soap with wax and had lunch.

Trying Our Best 4-H Club

The fourth meeting of the Trying Our Best 4-H Club was brought to order on December 30 at the Laddie H. Bruha home at 1:30 p.m. The meeting was called to order by Alan Vavra, vice president. The pledge was said. Everyone answered roll call by telling something that reminded them of spring. Minutes were read and approved. The treasurer and coupon chairman gave their reports.

We made plans for the next meeting. It will be held February 3, 1979 at 1:30 p.m. at the Edward O. Bruha home. Food committee will be the Adventures With Dinners and the Learn to Bake classes. David Bruha, Alan Vavra, Timmy Hulinsky, and Janet Bruha will give demonstrations. For roll call everyone is to make a valentine for a leader or for someone in another 4-H club. The meeting was adjourned.

Annette Hulinsky gave a demonstration on "How to Make String Art Pictures". Bethene Bruha gave demonstration on "How to Cut Bottles". We had our lessons, and then ate lunch.

Beef Prices Are Not Unreasonable

Beef consumers should not be alarmed with the recent beef price increases, announced Pat McGinley of Oshkosh, president of the Nebraska Stock Growers Association.

McGinley admitted that the prices of beef have risen pretty rapidly during the last few months, but he also stated that cattlemen still are not at the same level of increase as many other products and the cattlemen had been looking at unrealistic lows until recent months.

For example, the most recent Consumer Price Index (C.P.I.) figures from the Department of Labor in Washington, D.C. show that many products are running ahead of beef prices. The CPI figures are based on an index of 1967 and 1968 is used as the base year.

Dealing strictly with food items, beef is one of the lower indexes. The index for all foods was 118% while beef and veal was only 112%. Fish and seafood was toward the top of the list with 182%. Fats and oils ranked at 117% while cereals and bakery goods were low at 108%.

In comparison, gas and electricity costs were at 135% and medical care was at 127%. Machinery, vehicles and fuel, three items needed by businessmen to run their operations, are still at higher prices than those of beef prices, said the NSGA President. McGinley also said that the cattleman was only starting to regain some of the losses incurred during the past five years, due to lower prices received for cattle and increased operating expenses. He also urged consumers to compare beef prices to other price increases before assuming that cattlemen are trying to make a big rip-off.

In-Service Session Scheduled at Scotia

North Loup-Scotia High students will get a vest pocket vacation Monday, January 15, when teachers grades 7-12 attend an all-day in-service training session. The meeting will be from 8 to 4:30 at the school in Scotia.

Elementary school classes will have regular hours.

According to NL-S school superintendent Alfred Newman, the one-day session will emphasize class scheduling and curriculum for the 1979-80 school year. In a Quiz interview Thursday he said "It looks like there is interest in more flexible scheduling. We could end up having another class period."

NL-S High now has a five period day with one floating period. Newman explained that during some classes meet four periods a week. The fifth period, or floating period, is used to teach another subject.

High school classes will resume at their regular time Tuesday, January 16.

Rick Jorgensen Now Submariner

Mr. and Mrs. Steven P. Jorgensen of North Loup received word that their son, Rick, has recently completed his "qualification in submariner" program aboard the USS FRANCIS SCOTT KEY (SSB-667). Rick has thus earned the privilege of wearing the coveted silver submarine dolphins and the right to be known as a submariner.

During the qualification period, Rick had to learn each system aboard KEY, the location of all equipments, the general operation of the ship, and the use of all damage control and safety apparatus. All of this was accomplished in addition to his other professional duties aboard the ship. His final examination consisted of a walk through the boat explaining each system to an officer qualified in submarines, a four hour written examination and an oral examination administered by several enlisted men and an officer all of whom are also qualified in submarines.

Rick's address is — Rick Jorgensen, 5403 Dorchester Road, Box 509 Charleston Heights, Charleston, SC 29405.

Job Service Schedule

HOMESTEAD EXEMPTION

This is to remind home owners of the Homestead Exemption law passed in 1970.

WHO MAY FILE. Any natural person who on January 1 is an owner-occupant of a homestead may file. An owner of a homestead shall mean:

1. Owner of record,
2. Vendee in possession under a land contract,
3. One of the joint tenants,
4. One of the tenants in common,
5. A surviving spouse of any of the above, and
6. As a beneficiary of a trust of which the trustee is the record title owner and the beneficiary, pursuant to the terms of the trust, has:
  - a. The specific right to occupy the homestead,
  - b. The right to amend or revoke the trust to obtain legal title, or
  - c. The power to withdraw the homestead from the trust and place record title in his own name.

TYPE OF RESIDENTIAL PROPERTY

1. Mobile home permanently attached to real estate,
2. Mobile home located on leased real estate,
3. Urban, single family residence,
4. Residence located on leased real estate,
5. Duplex, apartment house or condominium,
6. Residence which is part of commercial building,
7. Farm or ranch residence.

A certificate from the county service is required when application is made for exemption benefits for veterans or veteran's widows.

WHEN AND WHERE TO FILE. Application for exemption shall be filed in triplicate on or before April 1 with your county assessor. Any taxpayer who has been granted a homestead exemption and who continues to occupy such homestead shall not be required to reapply the following year.

CHANGE IN STATUS OF HOMESTEAD. If there has been a change in the status of the exempt homestead during the previous year, the county assessor shall be notified on or before March 15 of the year following such change. Use Status Change of Homestead Exemption, Form 452-A, for this purpose. Failure to give such notice will result in the assessment of the tax lawfully due with penalty and interest and in forfeiture of the right to a homestead exemption for two succeeding years.

WHAT PROPERTY IS EXEMPT. Any taxpayer who qualifies shall have exempt from the actual value of their homestead:

1. The first 25 percent of the actual value of any homestead having an actual value of $1,500 or less.

Owners can call at the Assessor's Office for forms.

Homestead Exemption for Homeowners age 65 and over.

WHO MAY FILE. Any natural person who on January 1 is an owner-occupant and meets the following requirements may file.

1. An owner of a homestead shall mean:
  - a. As owner of record,
  - b. As vendee in possession under a land contract,
  - c. As one of the joint tenants,
  - d. As one of the tenants in common,
  - e. As a surviving spouse of one of the above,
  - f. As a beneficiary of a trust of which the trustee is the record titleholder and the beneficiary, pursuant to the terms of the trust, has:
    - (1) The specific right to occupy the homestead,
    - (2) The right to amend or revoke the trust to obtain legal title, or
    - (3) The power to withdraw the homestead from the trust and place record title in his name.

2. The owner-occupant must be 65 years of age or older, or must become 65 years of age during the calendar year for which the applicant is filed.

3. An owner-occupant who qualifies shall have exempt 40, 60, 80 or 100 percent of the first $25,000 of the actual value on their homestead in accordance with the following table:

Adjusted Gross Income	Percentage of Relief
$ 0-3,700	100%
3,701-4,200	80%
4,201-4,700	60%
4,701-5,200	40%
Over 5,200	0%

b. Married, one spouse over 65 years of age.

Federal Adjusted Gross Income	Percentage of Relief
$ 0-5,450	100%
5,451-5,950	80%
5,951-6,450	60%
6,451-6,950	40%
Over 6,950	0%

c. Married, both spouses over 65 years of age.

Federal Adjusted Gross Income	Percentage of Relief
$ 0-6,200	100%
6,201-6,700	80%
6,701-7,200	60%
7,201-7,700	40%
Over 7,700	0%

A homestead means a residence and the land surrounding it not exceeding one acre. Only one applicant per homestead may file.

If you do not qualify for this particular exemption you will automatically receive the next highest homestead exemption for which you are qualified.

WHEN AND WHERE TO FILE. Application for exemption shall be filed in duplicate on or before April 1 with the county assessor. Once the application of an owner-occupant 65 years of age or over has been approved, it is automatically renewed each year in which there is no change in status affecting qualification.

LEGAL DESCRIPTION OF HOMESTEAD, LINE 15. The legal description of your real estate, of which your homestead may be a part, may be found on your deed, your tax receipts, or from your county assessor.

Please bring your Social Security numbers and legal description with you when applying for exemption.

No Contest

Ord firemen recently launched a fund raising drive for a new rescue unit. According to firemen, the old unit has reached its maximum potential. A new one is needed.

Believing this to be a worthy community project, the Quiz carried a front page article December 21 explaining why a new unit was needed, how much it would cost, and other related information. The following week, a sizeable photograph on the front page showed both Ord bankers giving donations to the rescue unit fund. Last week we carried the names of those making contributions to the fund and the amount raised thus far.

One day after the Quiz came out last week, a fireman contacted this office. He was unhappy. He maintained The Quiz should have carried the names of individuals donating to the fund along with their separate donations.

We disagreed. After a conference between publisher and editor, we decided to list the lump sum amounts of donations rather than individual contributions.

Our reasoning was based on the parable of the widow's mite. Put in modern terms, a $10 or $25 donation from a person of modest means will proportionately be more than a sizeable donation from someone in a higher income bracket.

Bearing this in mind, we contend the fund raising drive should be — and is — a worthwhile community project, not a contest in one upmanship.

Something Different

We Have New Friends!

Our changing world: "Nebraska invites Japanese delegation to move in and open new business enterprises."

It is to laugh. Nobody needs to invite Japanese business, for it is already among us. And quietly digging in on every side most competently.

About five years ago when I accompanied my brother and his wife to Manzanillo, Mexico we were continually amazed at Japanese enterprise. We drove through the fabulous Copper canyon, dangerous and twisty, only to learn that Japanese interests had bought the copper mines, the railroad, and were reinforcing manufacturing plants and tracks there.

In the port of Manzanillo itself, a deep natural one where Mexico navies customarily train, we found big Japanese boats had brought sizeable hunks of their navy to learn and train there. Uniforms filled the streets of the little west coast resort. And many little Japanese shops were thriving.

In Hawaii a few years ago the hotels and resorts were clogged with Japanese and they were buying the hotels and resorts and the banks too. Already they owned much of the best real estate.

In our hotel at one place 200 Japanese business men dressed expensively in our garb had brought their little Japanese wives, dressed beautifully in their garb, to learn about our habits and ways.

In San Francisco there is a large handsome complex newly put together in Japanese style, about four blocks of it complete with a typical Oriental temple, ready for visitors, ready for business.

Everywhere these people are infiltrating, buying up fine stores, big banks, estates. They are so ambitious, they work so hard, that they succeed.

Where six years ago Caucasians were managers and Orientals were the bellboys and busboys — now a Japanese will be the manager and will direct white boys to carry the bags and wait the tables! Times change!

The new picture is about to include Chinese: now we're going to be their friends and their business associates. They're eager to learn and they work hard. I'm sorry for Taiwan. And maybe I'm sorry for us too.

TIME magazine salutes China by devoting about a third of a recent issue to that mammoth country.

In my Christmas mail comes a long entertaining travelogue from old friend and travelling companion Alice Barlow of Champaign, Ill., telling about a trip to China. She has just returned. For years she'd applied for a visa and had to wait.

She wrote that Americans were great curiosities and were stared at everywhere they went, often causing bicycle pileups as the traffic, men and women, looked and looked, forgetting to sound their bells.

She related that they did not try the "boiled quail eggs" . . . and were happy about that when they learned they were actually boiled fish eyes!

Yes, she did climb the Great Wall, in 100 degree heat. First came two steep steps about 20 inches in height; then the "rib" takes you one and a half miles to the top so you can walk the wall itself. The rib ascends at a 45 degree angle and is wide enough for 12 horses to gallop abreast!

Her stories fascinated me, so I thought you'd like to read them too. And yes, she'd like to go back to China.

Gavel Falls—Solons Waste No Time In Getting To Work

CAPITOL NEWS
By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association
Lincoln — Nebraska's lawmakers, nine of them new, wasted no time in getting to work after the opening gavel of the session.

Except for a few brief interruptions while the senators waited for Supreme Court Chief Justice Norman Krivosha to come to the legislative chamber to swear in several unicameral officers, the first day of the session went almost like clockwork.

One of the first things the legislators did was select Sen. Richard Marvel of Hastings as their Speaker. He had no opposition.

Sen. Frank Lewis of Bellevue was the choice of the majority for the influential position of chairman of the Executive Board, the administrative arm of the unicameral. Chosen vice chairman was Neilson Sen. John DeCamp, a close ally of Lewis on some major pieces of legislation in past sessions.

Lincoln Sen. Shirley Marsh gained the distinction of selection as chairperson of the Committee on Committees — the highest post ever held by a woman in the Nebraska Legislature.

As expected, there was no opposition to Sen. Jerome Warner of Waverly for the chairmanship of the Appropriations Committee.

Many of those selected for key positions were unanimous choices. But there were several exceptions, one being Lewis who won out over Omaha Sen. Larry Stoney on a 27-22 vote.

Sen. Richard Maresh beat Sen. George Burrows of Adams, 28-21, for the leadership of the Business and Labor Committee. Sen. William Nichol of Scottsbluff won by that same vote in a contest with Sen. Ernest Chambers of Omaha for chairman of the Judiciary Committee, Sen.

Exon, who occupied the governor's office longer than anyone in the state's history, served simultaneously for a little more than one day as governor and U.S. senator because the U.S. Constitution says newly elected senators take office at noon on Jan. 3 and the Nebraska Constitution says an incumbent governor stays in office until his successor is sworn in.

Charles Thone didn't succeed Exon until the early afternoon hours of Jan. 4.

Exon Says Farewell
J. James Exon, who for a 26-hour period was both a U.S. senator and governor of Nebraska, said farewell to the Legislature in rather subdued tones.

At least it seemed that way to legislative observers who recalled the many times Exon had dealt with the lawmakers in harsh language.

He told the senators the condition of the state is generally good "and with prudent management the future bodes well for the continuation of the good life in Nebraska."

Among other things, Exon said, the state is in a "sound financial position with a realistic General Fund balance of approximately $612 million," taking into account all monies on hand and deposited.

He didn't bypass the opportunity to remind the lawmakers, as he had done so frequently during his eight years as governor, that "the power to tax still embodies the power to destroy and must be used with prudence."

Exon said he tried "to preserve the independence of and to prevent the encroachment upon the already limited constitutional and statutory powers of the office of governor."

He said it was natural to have disagreements between the two branches of government. But he said "out of legitimate differences of opinion generally comes the intelligent resolution of all issues."

In citing to the accomplishments of what he several times referred to as the "Exon-Whelan Administration," Exon mentioned the reduction of the state's bonded debt, an improved highway system, good progress in mental health and education programs, a reversal of a population decline, the "greatest industrial expansion" ever in Nebraska, and one of the nation's lowest unemployment rates.

Geranium Joe

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

Always when the calendar runs off the papers is packed with facts and figures on how good and how bad a year the Government, the car industry, farmers, freeloaders and everybody else had. Wading through all this information, us ordinary folks realize that for all we are told we know mighty little. One thing we have figured out is that everything is good or bad big. "Billion" is tossed around like it's someone we all deal with every day. It's hard for them Washington reporters to set down a paragraph without at least one billion in it, and usual it's dollars.

This come up at the session at the country store Saturday night and Lumir Ptacnik noted many folks that has any idea what a billion is. He said we just pass over words like that, like we do light years and megatons. Use to, writers would tell us a new bomb has the power of so many thousand tons of dynamite and how fast light is, but that's more information than don't mean a thing to us. As for a billion, Lumir said he had heard one way to understand that much in dollars is to know that if you give a billion to your old lady, Lumir said, this means a day she wouldn't pester you for money again for full 3,000 years. That makes some kind of sense even to a feller that spent the prime of his life talking to the north end of a southbound mule, Lumir said.

The billion business made the rounds, Mister Editor, and when Rudolph John had his say he put it right down where all us fellers live. He had saw this report where more folks our age, and we're all right up there, are being ignored by television commercials. What's more declared Rudy, we are selling stuff besides laxatives, false teeth glue and cures for sore, aching muscles.

What happened, according to this piece he read, is someone called the Gray Revolution. This means the advertising world has woke up to the idea that old folks wear clothes, shave, eat, sleep just like ordinary people.

And this, said Rudy, is being seen as the discovery of a $60 billion a year market that was being ignored by advertisers. Rudy's report found general support among the fellers. Joe Patska said it tied in with the Government plan to let folks work longer, and other changes that come with the news that we don't sudden become helpless at 65. People are living longer and staying healthy longer. Joe declared, and with the birth rate slowing down the older part of the population can only stand to grow.

Practical speaking, allowed George Zurek, he don't want this Gray Revolution to go so far they quit letting the pretty girls sell cars and shaving cream. Like the man said about older fellers, George went on, he ain't reached the point yet where he can't appreciate the finer things of life, and television has reached the point where the most interesting part of the programs is the commercials.

Per sure, Mister Editor, the fellers may not be able to imagine the national debt in billions of dollars, but they imaginations are alive and well in other areas.

Yours truly,

KERRY ON

— winter —

This being the sixteenth successive day of temperatures below freezing, it's not hard to understand unpleasant dispositions and discontent with one's lot — commonly referred to as "cabin fever" by psychologists.

Most Nebraskans I've known have preferred to be "out and around." They don't object to a few days of extreme weather. But prolonged weather conditions to any extreme tend to "get to 'em."

Outdoor activity has been curtailed for most people during the past two weeks. People do what they "must" do outside — then seek the warmth necessary for their well-being.

Despite a raft of good books I'd received, for Christmas, and the football bowl games and pro play-offs, I'd been cooped up inside as long as I could stand it and so I bundled up and took a ride up the north side of the Loup River, last week.

An occasional snowflake could be seen as the brisk north wind plummeted the wind-chill index far below zero. My car coughed and sputtered before it got the short runs out of its system. I'd tossed in my camera, hoping to find a nice snow scene without the extreme brightness of the sun on this overcast day.

The frozen roadway jarred me into wondering if the car would hold together as I left the Haskell Creek Road to wind my way along the river toward Elyria. But I truly enjoyed the scenery and had forgotten the beauties of a frozen countryside.

I stopped, frequently, to take pictures — though the beauty I'd hold together as I left the Haskell Creek Road to wind my way along the river toward Elyria. But I truly enjoyed the scenery and had forgotten the beauties of a frozen countryside.

Kerry

something about frozen meadows dotted with haystacks that presents an enchantment to the eye, and is nothing more than snow and barren land on film.

Occasionally I'd see activity around the farm buildings I passed — chores being tended to by someone I couldn't recognize under their heavy clothing and hooded coats. Sometimes they'd wave a mittened hand and quickly continue with their tasks. Others were so bundled up they neither heard nor saw me.

Crossing the Elyria bridge to return, I paused long enough to shoot a picture of the nearly iced-over river. Though it's not often seen as such, the frigid current pushing its way through fast-forming ice is a beauty in itself.

The wind whined through the stringers of the bridge and I crawled quickly back into my car to find Rich Lola and a warm cup of coffee at the Duck Inn in Elyria.

Sid Jablonski was busy trying to duplicate a batch of Spud Kaputka's chili while Ken Patska, father-in-law Enos, Gerald Woodgate and Spud kept the conversation going. Young John Kaputka darted in saying something about food at school, hungrily lifting the lid on the skillet and quickly recovering it with some remark about "Liver! Who ever heard of liver!"

Finishing our coffee, Rich and I returned to his shop — but not before I'd performed on the ice, coming down on my back — unhurt but red-faced.

Turning the ignition key in my car, I realized it had gotten cold again and so I huddled up for the ride back to Ord. But I wondered, as I returned, why I didn't venture out more frequently — and enjoy the winter rather than cursing it.

Shortly after we were married, my husband tried to boost my ego. He brought me a statuette of a dumpy lady holding the failure of a birthday cake with the inscription, "World's Greatest Cook." Gratefully I received his gift but served him that evening's culinary flop.

No, I am not the world's greatest cook, nor the world's greatest housewife, nor the world's greatest mother. But I am trying with all the strength my Savior gives to me to be all these.

In such a competitive world, it is hard to remember that God calls us to be the "greatest" at only one thing — being ourselves. So today, I will be what no other else can — myself. With God's help, I will be the world's greatest me!

The task is an impossible one if I founder in the shadow of others. There is always someone with better skills than mine. Yet, living in the shadow of the Saviour's love, asking what He expects of my life, I can become the best me possible.

PRAYER: Lord, help us keep our eyes on You that this day will find us being our best selves. Amen.

Kaminski Sherman County's Sheriff

It's official! Virgil Kaminski became the Sherman County Sheriff in ceremonies January 4. According to the Sherman County Times, his wife Judy, will be his secretary. Wilbur LeSeur will be his only deputy.

Kaminski's race for the sheriff's post has not been an easy one. He was defeated in late 1974, he staged a successful primary race and emerged the winner in balloting last November. Shortly after his successful campaign Kaminski was found slumped over the wheel of his car and arrested on charges of driving while intoxicated by then Deputy Sheriff David Byrd.

French Office Villa Opens

The French Office Villa, 1514 J, held its grand opening last Friday. Chamber members and French Insurance Office personnel were on hand. Construction on the two-story building was started last spring, and just recently completed. The bottom floor is occupied by French Insurance and FIA offices. The French family lives upstairs. It is located on the site of the old Ord Sale Barn.

NPPD Tour to Avert Possible Protests - Misinformation

Wanting to head off possible protests over the proposed construction of a coal-fired power plant near Comstock, and correct misinformation, the Nebraska Public Power District conducted a two-day tour of power plants in the state.

helped the town, according to an article in the Grand Island Independent. The effects of the tour remain to be seen. It apparently did little to change the mind of Comstock area farmer, Bill Reckling. "Our feelings are that the plant should be put where the coal is closer to the area where they need the power in the eastern part of the state", he said.

to familiarize area residents with power facilities and what NPPD tries to do. Knefel said a year's delay in construction of the Gerald Gentlemen plant, caused by Sierra Club opposition, cost NPPD millions of dollars. He estimated cost of the two-day tour at $3,000 and said it helps prevent similar delays it will be worth it.

Pleas Entered in Coyote Case

Three men entered innocent pleas in U.S. District Court in Lincoln Thursday to federal complaints of using an aircraft to shoot, capture, or kill coyotes during two separate periods last month.

ment claims they used a helicopter to hunt coyotes in Nebraska from December 7-9 and December 19-21. If convicted, each could be imprisoned for a maximum of two years and be fined a maximum of $10,000 or both.

Wellers Establish Foundation For Vocational Education Scholarships

A former Ord resident and pioneer in Nebraska's livestock auction business has announced the formation of a foundation to support scholarships for vocational-technical students in a six-county area of north central Nebraska.

E. C. "Ernie" Weller, 79, and his wife, Frances, 81, established the foundation through the gift of 33 quarters of land within 40 miles of Atkinson. Rentals from the property is estimated at $100,000 a year, which is to go into the scholarship fund.

Foundation Purpose Purpose of the foundation is to award money to students planning to attend vocational trade schools, preferably in Nebraska. Students in 14 high schools in Holt, Garfield, Boyd, Keya Paha, Rock and Brown Counties will be eligible for the money.

Weller, a Staplehurst native who quit school after one year at Concordia prep school in Seward, said he had been approached by liberal arts colleges and universities for possible gifts.

He turned them down "because they aren't down my alley."

The man, who pioneered in sale barn operations for 60 years at Ord, Spaulding, Ewing, and Winner, SD and other places said he is giving priority to students from the six-county area in north central Nebraska "because we feel we are indebted to this area for the 47 years of the 'good life' it has given us."

The lender in establishing interior livestock markets or auction sale barns, admitted he was lucky in love and in business. Becoming a teenage auctioneer, he learned the trade from the late Ray Burdick at Ord in 1918.

It was here he met and married Frances, a Springfield, SD girl who had become a nurse.

Dee Vodehnal, secretary in the Valley County Sheriff's Department, presents Judge Blixt with a cup of coffee and a snack.

Coffee For Judge Blixt

Valley County Courthouse workers held a coffee for Judge Roy Blixt Thursday. Judge Blixt will be moving to Broken Bow in the near future to replace Judge

C. S. Marchek who resigned effective February 1. Blixt officially began his new duties January 7.

As Judge of the 10th Judicial District, Blixt's territory includes Custer, Blaine, Garfield, Greeley, Loup County and Wheeler Counties.

Blixt's offices had been in Ord.

Proposed Zoning Change Defeated

The City Council voted 4-2 Monday to let property at 132 and I remain residentially zoned. Their action prohibits Ord Co-Op Oil Company from placing propane tanks at that site, in Ord's Third Ward.

The vote came after residents of that area expressed their disapproval of the contemplated change from a residential to a commercial zoning status. Rollin Nelson presented a petition signed by all property owners living with 300 feet of the proposed tank site. All, Nelson said, opposed the zoning change.

Ord Mayor Richard Rowbal, Sr. read letters from Robert and Norma Phibrick, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Johnson, Margaret Winterbottom, Dale and Mary Norman, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Snyder, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Miller, and Lorraine Rysavy opposing the proposed change.

They mentioned dangers to their health and safety should the propane storage tank go in.

Ord Co-Op president Ray Setlik, said he wanted to make it clear the Co-Op wasn't pressuring anyone to vote one way or the other. Setlik mentioned Co-Op has an alternate site.

Asked where this was, following the Chamber vote, he declined comment.

Mayor Rowbal told those present he was "impressed by the solidarity shown by people in the third ward."

The council's vote ended a controversy that started December 12. The City Planning Commission, with five of its eight members absent, then recommended approval of the requested zoning change. The matter went to the City Council for further action.

Meeting December 18, the Council referred the matter back to the Commission.

The Commission met again January 9. A sizeable group attended the session, voting opposition to the proposed zoning change. They mentioned dangers of the tanks exploding, increased hazards from more truck traffic in the area coming and going from the propane site, and other hazards.

After hearing their arguments, the Commission again voted approval of the zoning change from a residential to a commercial classification.

The City Council overrode their recommendation on a 4-2 vote Monday. Sears and Klimek voted yes. The other four council members voted no.

Industrial Park The Council approved a preliminary plat or map of Riverview Industrial Park submitted by Gaylord Bolesen. The 15 acre site is located east of the Valley County fairgrounds in southeast Ord.

Approval was given repair of a 12 cylinder Worthington generator at the city light plant.

According to Utilities Commissioner Gene Baugh the 25,000 KW machine has a cracked base. He estimated repair costs at $72,000 for parts plus labor.

Baugh revealed electrical rates in Ord are substantially lower than those charged by neighboring towns. Residential electrical rates are between 20 to 30 percent cheaper than those in a nearby town having its own generating facility.

All rates in Ord are substantially lower than those charged by NPPD.

The Council paid Great Plains Engineering Company $35,301 Monday on an engineering contract for street and storm sewer improvements.

Street Commissioner Emil Penas outlined 1 and 6 year street improvement plans. A hearing on these is scheduled for February 5, 7:30 p.m. in City Hall.

Refuse collection licenses were granted Charles Teasley and Keith Manchester.

The Council confirmed the appointment of L. E. Walford for a five year term on the Ord Housing Authority.

Councilman C. J. Klimek gave a financial report on the new Ord Municipal Swimming Pool. Total cost, according to Klimek, was $192,644.71. The new L-shaped pool replaced a pool built in 1947.

The present pool is built on the former pool site, in Bussell Park.

Home Destroyed In Blaze Monday

A Burwell family barely escaped a fire destroying their mobile home January 8, 20 miles north of Burwell.

Mike Sitz, his wife Debra and their two-year-old son Jesse, squeezed through a bedroom window as smoke and fire enveloped their trailer home. The house was completely destroyed. Family members escaped with nothing but the sleepwear they were wearing.

By the time fire departments and neighbors arrived to help the home was too far gone to be saved. The cause of the blaze has not been established.

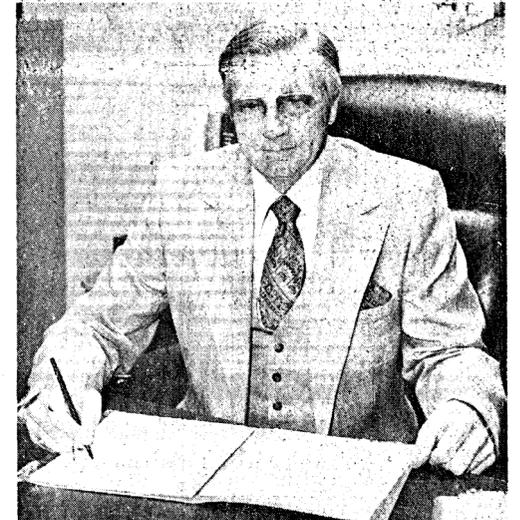

A fund has been set up in the Bank of Burwell to help the young family get started again.

Paving Opponents File New Petition

Opponents of a planned paving district filed a new petition January 9 in District Court here. The document, filed with County Clerk Thelma Dultz, seeks a temporary injunction to planned paving in a six block area of southeast Ord.

Plaintiffs claim that with formation of Paving District 1978-8 by the Ord City Council last year:

- They had no adequate remedy at law.
- They were led to believe by the council and the local newspaper paving districts couldn't be created except by petition.
- City Attorney Greg Jensen told the Quiz Friday the case may be heard in District Court here later this month Judge James R. Kelly will preside.
- The City Attorney said he plans to file a demurrer, claiming the paving opponents have no cause for action.
- The opponents had filed a petition seeking an injunction late last year. Judge Kelly contended it was too vague and not applicable.

Ord Agency, Inc. Named Representative for Allstate

The Ord Agency, Inc. (formerly the Pierce Agency, Inc.), an established insurance agency in Ord since 1960, with an office at 1504 L Street, has been named the area representative for Allstate Insurance Companies in Ord and vicinity.

Will Continue The agency will continue to represent other insurance companies as it does now, in addition to representing Allstate.

Allstate auto, homeowners, renters, boat owners, theft, and personal liability insurance, business insurance for companies large and small, and life and health insurance will be offered by the agency.

"I am pleased to add Allstate, one of the best known, most widely accepted names in the business, to our complete insurance line for the people in the Ord area," Elmer Bergman, vice president of the agency, said.

A native of North Loup and Ord, Elmer Bergman has been an insurance agent in Valley County for 14 years. He also has been active in the Lions Club, Ord Elk Club, Boy Scouts, and is presently on the Ord Golf Club Board.

Other agents and office staff in the Ord Agency, Inc. are Bruce Bergman and Dorothy Wadas.

Rescue Unit Fund Totals $11,474

Donations continue to roll in for the Ord ambulance fund. The old rescue unit has reached its maximum potential, according to firemen, and needs to be replaced.

The present unit looks good and runs fine, the firemen pointed out, but the usefulness of a rescue unit can't be measured by its condition.

During the last several years members of the Ord Fire Department have taken Emergency Medical Training and are continually adding to their skills. Equipment needed to meet these skills had been added to the unit until the present unit can not accommodate needed supplies.

Firemen estimate a new unit will cost about $35,000. As of the January 4 Quiz, $6,000 had been given to the rescue unit fund. That fund now totals $11,474 according to figures released by Ord firemen, an increase of $5,474. New donations to the rescue unit came from the following individuals:

Albion Gal Cards Edge Ord Chants

Gal Albion Cardinals squeaked by Ord Lady Chants 36-34 Thursday. Cold shooting cost host Chants what likely could have been a win. Ord was 16 of 53 from the floor for 30 percent. Ord gals have been shooting much better than that.

Ord lagged 11-6 in the first quarter but came back and trailed by two 29-27 at the end of the third period.

Barb Kittle opened the fourth quarter by taking the tap. A pass to Mason, and her basket tied the game 29 all. That was before Ord's Nancy Gogan tried for a basket and got a travel call. Two free throws later Albion was ahead 21-29.

It was the same thing in reverse second later. Tristhammer had a foul and Ord got the ball. Anne Smith, Nancy Gogan, and Marcia Mason worked the ball around when Smith passed to Mason. She sank a basket and Ord tied the game 31 all.

The gal Chants pulled ahead when Mason scored on one of two free throws, inching Ord up 32-31, but not for long. It was Tristhammer again at the basket, and Albion had a 33-32 lead.

Her basket was followed by Mason swinging the ball and making a basket. Ord moved in front 34-33.

The seesaw battle continued and with just 2:16 left in the game, Albion was ahead 35-34. Playing conservative ball, they tried to ease up the clock. Short passes and slow deliberate movements on the floor all helped use up the remaining minutes standing between them and a victory.

Ord called a time out. Chant gal coach Max Murray huddled with his players. Planned fouls were the only way, he later told the Quiz. Ord would likely get the ball back.

The first of these, by Smith, sent Albion's Tristhammer to the free throw line. One of two shots went in, boosting Albion to a two point lead.

Another foul — perhaps unintentional — came with no time left on the clock. Albion's Diane McCorkle got two shots. Neither one was good.

Albion's here Thursday gives them a 6-1 record. Ord stands 7-4 for the season, as of that night. The Cards had been rated number five in Class B girls competition by prep sports writers. Ord was ranked 10th.

Jan. 20 Saturday, the girls play Seward here.

Anne Smith (52) stretches for the rebound during third quarter play.

Ninth Grade Boys Nail Albion Cards

Ord ninth grade boy cagers nailed Albion Cardinals 42-23 Monday in a game away from home. Ord ninth grade coach Al Cudly revealed his lads, after the Ainsworth game, adopted goals of improving their rebounding and defense. By any standards, they met their challenges.

"We held Albion to 28 points," Cudly proudly commented Tuesday. The boys had earlier vowed to hold host Cardinals to 35 points or less.

Ord dominated the defensive boards and did their best job all year on the offensive boards, according to the Ord coach, pulling down a total of 35 rebounds Monday night.

Mike Williams hauled in 16 rebounds and Brian Cetak 9. Brad Stevens added his 7 for the game. Said a satisfied Cudly, "I feel the lack of rebounding cost us the game at Ainsworth." This week it was a different story.

Though the twin goals have been met, Cudly indicated further improvements are pending. These will be unveiled when Central City comes to Ord Monday, January 22.

The Ord team is 3-2 for the season.

Ord 8 14 6 14 42
Albion 7 5 8 8 28

Ord had 50 percent of their free throws, sinking 8 of 16. Albion had 27 percent with 4 of 15 successful attempts.

Arcadia Gals Edged By Merna-Greeley

Arcadia gal cagers lost two in a row with games at Merna and Greeley recently. Monday, January 15, host Greeley edged Arcadia gals 30-41. The Huskies lagged by one slim point with four minutes left in the game. A starter fouled out and the team "just fell apart," in coach Wilbur Cushman's words.

Arcadia connected on 7 of 16 free throws that night. "If we had hit all our free throws, we could have tied the game," Cushman said in a Quiz phone interview. His gals shot 20 percent from the field.

That loss, combined with the one at Merna last Thursday, makes the Arcadia girls 2-2 for the season. Merna was the winner January 11, 38-26.

Height helped Merna. Cushman recalled, and called them "the toughest team we've played so far."

Next on the Arcadia schedule is the game at Litchfield this Thursday (tonight). Then it's on to Greeley for the Cedar Valley Conference Tournament.

Scoring by Quarters
Arcadia 4 2 7 13 26
Merna 10 14 2 12 28

High scorers for Arcadia: Pam Gogan 12, Deb Smith 6. Merna high scorers were Evelyn Hardy, 12 and Kim Markham 8.

Greeley 8 14 13 15 50
Arcadia 10 6 10 15 41

High scorers — Arcadia: Deb Smith 18, Pam Gogan 11; Greeley: Mary Torson, 13 and her sister, Gina, 12.

Loup City Falls

Ord varsity wrestlers won over host Loup City 56-12 Thursday, January 11. Loup City won matches in the 132 pound and heavyweight divisions. Both were open.

Ord's winners and their weight divisions were:
98 pound Sterling Ritz,
105 pound Doug Zukoski,
112 pound Doug Conner,
119 pound Jerry Augustyn,
126 pound Kirk Lehecka,
138 pound Byron Stevens,
145 pound Dave Conner,
155 pound Kevin Stch,
167 pound Paul Bredthauer,
185 pound Jeff Wolf.

Overall, the team is doing better, according to Rhodes. Their win Thursday makes their record 2-4 thus far. Next, they play host to Seward Saturday, January 20.

Scoring by Quarters
Ord 9 4 8 6 27
Albion 5 6 8 7 26

Silver Gloves Winner
Marty Leach, 13, of Arcadia was the winner in the 80 pound division of the Silver Gloves Boxing tournament in Columbus last Saturday. Marty will be going to national Silver Gloves competition in Pontiac, MI January 27 and 28.

Chants Get Win Number Two At St. Paul 63-48

Ord Chants got win number two of the season over host St. Paul 63-48 Friday. Ord coach Fred Williams credited a good defensive game for the victory.

The Chants went to a man-to-man defense the second half. The first two quarters they used a man-to-man and zone combination. The switch worked. Ord held Jon Christensen to nine points. Last year he scored 21 against Ord.

Ord's shooting from the floor was 41 percent, the best it has been all season. Asked what sparked the improvement, Coach Williams replied, he didn't know, adding, "and if I did, I'd write a book and make a million dollars."

The following night against Northwest, Ord shot 30 percent a sizeable difference.

Ord had a poor first quarter against St. Paul scoring eight points to their 16, but the Chants managed to come back. Aiding this effort were low turn-overs, "And that makes a big difference," Williams said.

He indicated this has been a problem earlier this season.

Scoring by Quarters
Ord 8 15 16 24 63
St. Paul 15 13 9 10 48

Top Ord scorers were Joe Dworak 13, Jeff Welniak 10, Kurt Kremke 9.

St. Paul had Mark Mayberry 16 and Jon Christensen 9.

Northwest Vikings Vex Chants 56-48

Host Ord Chants were edged by Grand Island Northwest Vikings 56-48 Saturday at Ord High. A seven point lead at the end of the first quarter combined with a fourth quarter rally proved to be more than the Chants could handle.

The win Saturday boosts the Vikings to a 6-3 record. Ord drops to two wins and eight losses for the season.

Grand Island led 20-13 at the end of the first quarter. A free throw by Ord's Kurt Kremke opened the second. Both charity shots in, Ord moved to a 20-15 score.

Grand Island got a free throw opportunity moments later, but couldn't sink their shots. Ord regained the ball and connected on a basket.

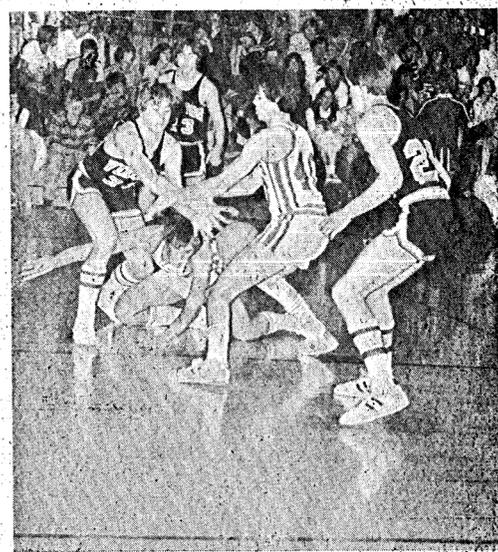

Ord trailed 24-19 when Wadas passed to Martin. Martin, a 5'10" senior, sank it and the Chants trailed by three points, 24-21. With 3:17 remaining in the first half, Wadas went to the bench. That happened just before Joe Dworak made a basket.

With 1:07 left in the second quarter, Jim Smith went to the free throw line. Neither shot was good, but Ord successfully rebounded and Dworak boosted Ord to within five points of Northwest, 30-25.

Two free throws by the Vikings closed out the first half 32-25.

Second Half
Ord opened the third period with a basket and a foul. The Vikings made both charity shots and followed through with a basket. Barry Witherwax had the ball when the Vikings attempted to steal it.

Their attempt resulted in a foul. Kurt Kremke took the ball for Ord.

Just who has the ball is the unanswered question as Ord Chants and Northwest Vikings scramble under Ord's bucket Saturday.

Under the Vikings basket, Ord Chants tried for a basket, but didn't connect and Grand Island got the ball. Their basket attempt fizzled and the Chants were once again in possession. Martin dribbled down court and sank one for Ord.

The Vikings had narrowed the gap 39-37 when they made an infraction during a jump ball. The Vikings made good on one of two free throws, and they were ahead 40-37.

Ord's Jeff Welniak came back, tried once, tried again, and then taped one in. Ord trailed by one point.

The Vikings concluded the game by scoring 14 points in the last quarter to Ord's 9. With 5:28 left in the last period, Ord had pulled with five points of the Vikings 48-43, but not for long. The Chants' efforts just weren't enough.

Friday the Chants go to Albion. The Cardinals downed Centura 68-46 last weekend. Top scorer in that match was Barry Sweller with 12 points. That name should ring a bell with Ord sports enthusiasts. Barry's older brother, Greg, was an outstanding athlete while at Ord High.

Scoring by Quarters
Northwest 20 12 10 14 56
Ord 13 12 14 9 48

Ord top scorers: Jeff Welniak 11, Kurt Kremke 10, Jim Smith 8.

Jim Bauer had 21 points and Dan Hall 11 for Northwest.

Ord Town Team Ends Spiker Season With A 12-0 Record

Ord ends their volleyball season with a perfect 12-0 record. The first match with Loup County, when they won 3-0, was the Women's Volleyball Tournament.

Ord had no problems in their first match with Loup County, defeating them 15- and 15-6. Jeannie Hyde led the Ord scoring with 10 points, followed by Monica Nelson with nine points.

In what proved to be the best match of the day, undefeated Ord played only once-beaten Sargent, coming out on top 15-7, 14-16 and 15-11.

Sargent led in all three games and Ord played catch in the final and deciding game. Ord was behind 7-1 before they started to make their move. Ord pulled to within three with Sargent still leading 11-8 when Jeannie Hyde ran off six straight points, helped by some one-on-one play from her teammates. Carol Meese served the final point to give Ord the victory. High scorers for Ord were Judy Gottlob with 15 points and Jeannie Hyde with 12 points.

In the championship game Ord had no difficulty disposing of Taylor 15-6 and 15-5. High scorers were Monica Nelson with eight points, Carol Meese and Jeannie Hyde each with six.

Final standings in the tournament were: Ord, first; Taylor, second; Sargent, third; and Loup City, fourth.

Coach Geri Warford had nothing but praise for her team, saying, "Our girls all year have been team efforts with everyone contributing. In this tournament, particularly the match with Sargent, I feel we really showed what we were made of and that we deserved our 12-0 record. No one panicked when we were behind; they just went out and played the good solid ball we have been playing all year. In order not to leave anyone's name out, I will just say that when we needed it, the defense was superb and the setting and spiking outstanding."

Ord lost only three sets all year; one to Arcadia and two to Sargent, passing over everyone else in straight set wins.

Charity Shots—Last Minute Basket Boosts Ord Reserves Over Northwest

Free throws by Neal Carson and Bob Beran, along with a basket by John Dworak, gave Ord's 58-52 win over Grand Island Northwest reserves here Saturday. Ord reserves won the game after an unscheduled overtime, in the Ord High gym.

With 3:58 left in the fourth quarter the lights went out, forcing a half hour delay of the game. When darkness fell Ord was in front 52-46. A half hour later Grand Island's Dave Jacobs, a 5'11" junior, went to the charity lane, and boosted Northwest beyond two points.

The Viking reserves kept gaining and with less than two minutes on the clock, they trailed 54-50. That gap closed to two points with free throws by North West's John Bauer.

Carson was under the basket, trying for a shot when a descending Viking slammed into him. The 5'10" sophomore took his time, eyed the basket, and sank one of two charity shots, boosting Ord to a 55-52 lead.

Making an intentional foul, the Vikings sent Ord's Bob Beran to the charity lane. One went in, the other was blocked by John Dworak, padded Ord's lead.

Grand Island got the ball, but couldn't do anything with it.

The game closed with Greg Linke at the free throw line. He didn't score.

Scoring by Quarters
Ord 11 13 16 15 58
G.I. NW 6 14 15 17 52

John Dworak 18, Randy David 9, Greg Linke 9, Larry Sears 8, Brent Carley 11 points for Grand Island.

Overtime Charity Shots Boost Arcadia Huskies Over Elba 63-61

Free throws by Mick Anderson in the last seven seconds of overtime play gave Arcadia a 63-61 win over guest Elba Friday night. The win boosts Arcadia to a 4-1 record.

Arcadia was behind most of the game until late in the fourth quarter when they got a four point edge on Elba.

"If we'd hit 50 percent of our free throws we wouldn't have had to go into overtime," Arcadia coach, Cliff Jorgensen remarked during a Quiz phone interview.

But they did and the two teams were tied 57-57 when the fourth quarter ran out. Elba got the tip off when the overtime started. They sped down court, and missed the basket.

Elba rebounded and got the ball. Elba fouled and Mick Anderson went to the charity lane. He was followed a short time later by Doug Cox when Arcadia was ahead by two points. Then it was Anderson again, and Arcadia got 63 points with seven seconds left in the game, giving them the winning edge.

Coach Jorgensen was happy with the win but contended Arcadia needs to improve their playing. Specifically mentioned were turn-overs. Jorgensen said Arcadia has had 19 or 20 a game so far this season. Another item needing improvement, as mentioned by the coach, were free throws. The Huskies have hit 50 percent from the charity lane, he said.

The team's rebounding and hitting from the floor were items he was obviously pleased with.

He speculated the team will have to be ready when Greeley comes calling next Friday. Rated eighth in a prep poll by the Omaha World-Herald, Greeley has an 8-0 record.

Game time is 8 p.m. for the varsity and 6:30 for the reserves.

Scoring by Quarters
Arcadia 8 17 14 18 63
Elba 14 11 16 15 61

High scorers for Arcadia were John Cox with 30, and Mick Anderson with 13.

Elba's Mike Novak had 31 points.

Ord Gal Reserves Squeak by Albion

Ord girls reserves squeaked by Albion 27-26 Thursday, here. Leading Ord scorers were Julie Scheidter with 7 and Jean Dubas with 6. Top rebounders were Robyn Upah with 12 and Julie Brass with 6.

It was a close game all the way. Ord got off to a quick lead by moving the ball well, getting the ball inside to the center and forward. Mental lapses in the second and third quarters narrowed the gap, but Ord still had enough to pull through.

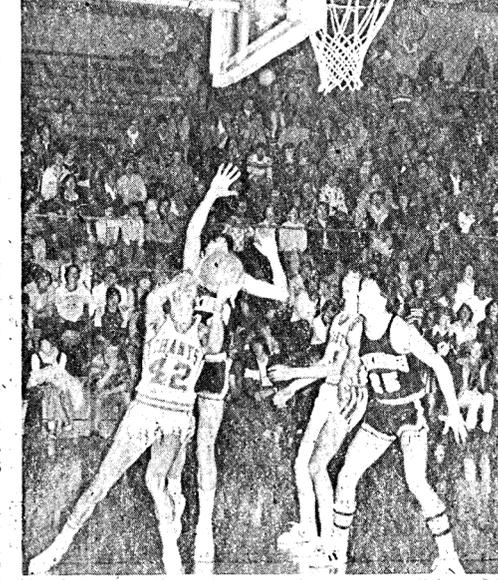

Gal reserve coach Tom Rhodes listed these lapses as including sloppy passes.

"They tried to bring the ball up court too fast," he told the Quiz Friday, "and tried to do too much dribbling." These last mentioned infractions occurred mainly in the fourth quarter, when younger players were in action.

Overall, the team is doing better, according to Rhodes. Their win Thursday makes their record 2-4 thus far. Next, they play host to Seward Saturday, January 20.

Wildcat Gals Snap Three Year Losing Streak with Win at Spalding

The North Loup-Scotts' girls basketball team ended a three year losing streak by a 45-26 win over Spalding Academy last week. The girls had a 21-5 lead in the middle of the second quarter and coasted to their first win in three seasons. Their coach, Tim Lanik, credited good free throw shooting with helping snare win number one. The girls were 17 of 26 from the charity lane at Spalding.

Men's Reserves Dominate Albion

The Ord men's reserves team dominated host St. Paul Friday 49-35 boosting their season record to 6-0. The score isn't indicative of the kind of game it was, Ord reserves coach Lon Bartholomew told the Quiz. "St. Paul was in the game until the last half of the final quarter."

Ord Grapplers Bow to Aurora

Ord High wrestlers bowed to host Aurora 39-21 Thursday, January 4. Chant grapplers gave their hosts 18 points by forfeits in the 132 pound, 185 pound, and heavyweight divisions. Ord coach Al Rubesh commented there are only eight boys on the varsity wrestling squad this year.

Keep Basic Issue in Mind

Rumblings in advance of the opening of the 1979 session of the Nebraska Legislature indicate that there will be a strong attempt to repeal the 1977 personal property tax exemption law. Nebraska's agriculture interests and particularly individual farmers and ranchers who in 1978 for the first time found their farm machinery and equipment exempt from personal taxes and are looking forward to exemption on their livestock in 1980, have cause for concern.

Memories are short and foes of personal property tax exemption are wheeling up all the old arguments as well as some new ones, and part of the strategy will be to mislead and confuse the issue. One of the problems has been that the vast majority of Nebraskans have not filed a personal property tax return since 1967.

In 1966, Nebraska voters passed a constitutional amendment which prohibited the State from levying a tax on property, both real and personal. At the same time, the voters by referendum, nullified a state income tax law passed by the 1965 Legislature, and the State of Nebraska was left without a major source of tax revenue.

This forced the 1967 Legislature to pass a combination sales and income tax law as a replacement. In the same session, the legislators overhauled the tax laws by eliminating the poll tax and totally exempting the personal property tax on household goods and intangible property (cash, stocks, bonds, bank accounts, etc.). Constitutional limitations prevented exemption of farm machinery, livestock and business inventories at that time. In 1970, the voters passed State Constitutional Amendment 10 to permit the Legislature to classify and exempt personal property as it may choose.

Implementation of Amendment 10 provisions was delayed until passage of the Personal Property Tax Exemption Law of 1972 which set up a 5-year program to phase out the personal property tax on farm machinery, livestock and business inventories over a 5-year period to a maximum exemption of 62 1/2 percent, with the State to reimburse the counties from sales and income tax sources. The 1972 law was a compromise version passed over the governor's veto.

There were complications naturally. County assessors got busy doing a better job of assessing, rounding up more personal property on the schedules and increasing valuations. Reimbursement totals climbed and worried legislators.

The 1977 Legislature approved a new exemption law which called for 100 percent exemption of business inventories in 1979, and 100 percent exemption on livestock in 1980. The reimbursement funding to the counties for loss of revenue was set at $58,600,000 for the first year, $62,200,000 for the second year, and a limit of $70,000,000 in 1980 and thereafter. Distribution to the counties was to be in proportion to the amount each county received in 1977. This last provision is a bone of contention and from a practical standpoint will require adjustment as the 1977 formula becomes more obsolete with time.

The principle for exemption of a tax on personal property is as valid now as it has always been, because it taxes the tools of production that an individual farm or business must own to make a living. A professional may make $100,000 a year income with little more invested than a brief case and pay no personal property taxes. But today's farmer and rancher must have $100,000 to $200,000 invested in livestock and equipment, all subject to a personal property tax for support of local agencies of government. At the same time he must pay a sales tax on his considerable purchases of equipment and supplies and an income tax the same as anyone else if he makes a profit on his operations.

The personal property tax by its very nature has been difficult to administer, unfair and discriminatory and that is the real issue to be kept in mind during the 1979 legislative session and future sessions. There is no clamor to return to taxing household items or intangible property because many people have forgotten that they ever were taxed.

AG TIPS FROM OUR COUNTY AGENT

By Al Martens

Beef Day

Beef producers will want to remember the date of January 29. This is the day we will have our Beef Day program at the Veteran's Club in Ord. A women's section will be presented as well as the program dealing with Beef and Beef Herd Management.

Irrigation Short Course

Did you know that Nebraska has 7.2 million irrigated acres? The Nebraska Irrigation Short Course will be held at Lincoln on January 22-23. Those of you interested in more information feel free to contact the Extension Office.

Sheep Shearing School

The 1979 Sheep Shearing School will be held March 29-30 at the University of Nebraska Sheep Unit near Mead, NE. Twenty people is the limit for the school, so get your enrollment applications in early. Applications are available at the Extension Office.

Crop and Livestock Report

According to the Nebraska Crop and Livestock Reporting Service, November cattle slaughter was up 21 percent, hog slaughter was down 5 percent and sheep and lamb slaughter was the same as a year ago. Production of beef, pork, and mutton as of November, 1978, was lower than that of November, 1977.

Nebraska Farm Numbers Decline

The number of farming units in Nebraska during 1978 totaled 65,000. This represents a decline of 1000 units from 1977 and 2000 from 1975. The preliminary estimate for 1979 is 64,000 farms. Average size of farm for 1979 is estimated at 759 acres, up 22 acres from the 77 average in 1978. The 1979 estimate is 44 acres from the 737 average in 1975. The number of farming units in the United States show a decrease of 2 percent from 1977.

Farm Fatalities

In 1978 there were 33 farm fatalities in Nebraska. Approximately one-half of these fatalities were from tractors and machinery. We encourage you to

Risk Reduction Tips Listed

Just about any farmer will tell you that if you want a secure weekly paycheck, farming isn't the business to be in.

Even though it's sometimes a risky business, farmers can reduce their risks in several ways, said Dr. Lynn H. Lutgen, extension agricultural economist in the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources, University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

Farmers in the Great Plains probably face greater risks than farmers in other areas due to weather variability, Lutgen said. In addition, higher costs for labor and equipment have caused the risks to increase.

Producers face two basic types of risks. Production risks include such weather problems as hail, drought, wind and flood, while price risks include the variability of prices for crops and livestock, Lutgen said.

Production risks can be reduced somewhat by diversification, he suggested. This can be done in one of two ways. One would be to raise a variety of crops or to raise different types of livestock or combine crop and livestock production.

"A good year for cattle prices might offset poor crop production conditions or poor prices," he said. Or, one crop might come through when others have poor yields.

Another possibility would be to spread out physically. This is not often a feasible alternative due to land availability, Lutgen said, but if it is possible, having land in several locations will decrease the chances of the entire operation being halted out. Some disasters can be insured against, including hail, but Lutgen said it's important to weigh the advantages against the costs of such protection.

A second way to diversify is in the marketing plan, Lutgen said. It's possible to spread sales out throughout the year.

"If a farmer can put together a combination of marketing use extreme caution when working with machinery — don't let routine tasks become so routine that you get careless. Let's make this a safe and accident free new year.

Farrowing House Ventilation

How can I restrict the air flow on a larger CFM fan for less air movement in the winter season without turning the fan on and off in my swine farrowing house? This is a question that has been asked recently. The technique involved in controlling air flow through a fan by techniques other than fan speed is known as "throttling". The output of a fan is dependent on the resistance to air flow which the fan must operate against. This is static pressure.

In a typical situation, the air moving through the fan will result in a pressure drop or static pressure differential of about .04 to .05 inches water gauge. The design of most air inlet systems results in a static pressure drop of about the same amount through the inlet system. Fans for ventilating agricultural buildings are typically selected on the basis of their air-moving capacity at a static pressure of .10 to .125 inches water gauge.

As the total static pressure to which the fan is subjected increases, the amount of air moved will decrease. Consequently, anything that can be done to increase static pressure will decrease the output of the fan. One such technique is to increase the velocity through the inlet system.

As an approximate rule of thumb, doubling the air velocity will increase the static pressure, drop across the inlet by four times. One technique would be to restrict the inlet opening by providing a narrower slot to throttle the fan at the inlet. A second technique would be to cover part of the fan with a piece of solid material such as plywood or masonite. It is important that a rigid material be used to reduce the chance that the cover material will be drawn into the fan. By restricting the opening of the fan, this will serve to throttle the output.

In both cases it will be necessary to adjust the amount and throttling necessary to get the desired results.

strategies such as cash contracts and cash sales or cash sales and hedging on the futures market, farmers aren't likely to lose out," he said. If a farmer has 12,000 bushels of wheat, for instance, he could sell 1,000 bushels the month and thus get the average price for the year. He wouldn't get the year's high price, but also wouldn't get the low price, Lutgen said.

Farmers-Ranchers Hear Winchester

Guest speaker at the Young Farmer-Rancher club meeting Tuesday, January 9 was Miles Winchester. The 18 young farmers and ranchers attending the meeting at Ord High heard Winchester, a former agent with the Farm Bureau, discuss the types of insurance, reasons for having insurance, etc.

Along with insurance needs and types, Winchester talked about estate planning and wills. During a short business meeting, it was decided dues should be paid by February 1. Other items discussed included the Young Farmer-Rancher Convention at Kearney February 3 and 4.

The next Farmer-Rancher meeting will be January 23 at 7:30 in Ord High. Guest speaker will be at Breen, currently with the Federal Land Bank in Ord.

Area CROP Contributions

Valley and Greeley County residents contributed $332,004 to CROP — the Community Hunger Appeal of Church World Service, in 1978 according to a CROP press release. This compares with $1,166,21 given in 1977, according to Rev. Dick Staple at Nebraska CROP.

The figures are unaudited, according to the release, but do reflect contributions made through December 31, 1978. Statewide, the total giving to CROP reached $316,715.97, up just slightly from the 1977 total of $315,597.44.

CROP in Nebraska receives contributions of grain and cash to fight world hunger.

EEAP Extended Contact Welfare

The State of Nebraska has again been authorized to reopen the Emergency Energy Assistance Program, which was run last spring, statewide to assist low-income and elderly residents whose energy-related debts from last winter placed their current financial situation in jeopardy.

This program is called Emergency Energy Assistance Program (extended) — EEAP (extended) and will be run by the County Welfare Office.

To qualify for this program, last winter's fuel bills must have been excessive, and you must not have been a participant in the spring EEAP effort. If you qualify, the program can help pay this year's past due energy-related costs and even help pay for future fuel delivery.

The program will run until March 15, 1979, so contact your local Welfare Office immediately. A second energy assistance program will be opened to help those experiencing energy difficulties for this winter, however, insufficient information is yet available on this program.

You own it because Promark is a part of the cooperative system that starts at your Double Circle sign.

You control it, because Promark recommendations on major policy decisions are made by an advisory committee made up of wheat producers and local co-op managers.

Promark came into existence at the request of Great Plains wheat producers who wanted more control and profit from marketing their wheat.

They were tired of investing in seed, fertilizer, herbicides, insecticides, and equipment, just to see the profits go elsewhere.

So your cooperative system responded with Promark. It offers the best long term potential for you as a wheat producer to influence and profit from marketing your wheat all the way to export.

To become a force in the export market, we need a sizeable and stable supply of grain in order to compete.

CHLORIDE
Chloride concentrations in Nebraska's groundwater, with few exceptions, are less than 100 parts per million (ppm). No chloride could be detected in water from several wells in the Sandhills region and concentrations greater than 100 ppm were found in only six widely scattered areas of the state. Water from a well in the Lincoln area had the maximum chloride concentration of 4,900 ppm. The mean chloride concentration for samples from 1,563 wells was 64 ppm.

Evaporite rocks undoubtedly are the most important source of chloride, but marine shales are also a source. Chloride enters into relatively few chemical reactions, and once dissolved in water it generally remains in solution unless precipitated by evaporation.

One of the six small areas where chloride concentrations exceed 100 ppm is in central Lancaster County, and another is in southern Lancaster and part of Saline and Gage counties. In these areas the outflow of saline water from sandstones of the Dakota Group enters overlying unconsolidated deposits of Pleistocene age and accounts for the high chloride concentrations in the Pleistocene aquifer, which is the principal aquifer of the areas. In two areas — one at Omaha and the other southwest of Omaha in Cass County — wells tapping aquifers in Paleozoic rocks of marine origin yield water containing more than 100 ppm chloride. The Codell Sandstone Member of the Carlile Shale, also of marine origin, is the aquifer in eastern Boyd County that yields water having concentrations of chloride exceeding 100 ppm. In Banner County, water having concentrations of chloride exceeding 100 ppm is produced from sandstones at the base of the Chadron Formation. These sandstones occupy valleys that were incised into marine shales of Cretaceous age and it is likely that the shale is the source of the chloride in the basal sandstones.

In much of southeastern Nebraska and in several smaller areas elsewhere in the state, the chloride concentration of groundwater ranges from 11 to 100 ppm. Small amounts of naturally occurring salts in the water-bearing sediments or in the materials infiltrated by water recharging those sediments are sources of the chloride in the water. However, in some of the areas where a large part of the land is now irrigated, the chloride concentration may have been less than 11 ppm prior to irrigation but has since increased because much of the water used for irrigation has been used several times before for the same purpose. Repeated exposure of water to evaporation also has resulted in increased concentrations of several other dissolved constituents of the water.

In most of the state, chloride concentrations in groundwater are less than 10 ppm. In water samples from several wells, however, they were less than 1 ppm. Because human and animal wastes contain considerable chloride, well water having a chloride concentration significantly higher than the average for a given area may, under certain circumstances, indicate contamination of the water by sewage. Waste materials from some industries can also be the source of higher-than-normal concentrations of chloride in groundwater.

A limit of 250 ppm chloride in drinking water was recommended by the U.S. Public Health Service. Because water containing that concentration of chloride may be offensively salty to the taste, the standard is based solely on aesthetic considerations.

Way to Go, Kids!

Last Monday the Ord City Council voted down a proposed zoning change for property at 13th and I streets. Ord Co-Op Oil Company requested land there be rezoned from a residential to a commercial classification. The change would allow Co-Op to build propane storage tanks at that site.

Quiz readers following the story since its start in mid-December have had a textbook case of civic responsibility and citizens organizing for a common goal. Learning of the proposed change, Third Ward residents got together, circulated petitions, and started attending city planning commission and city council sessions. During last Monday's Council session, they packed the City Hall chamber, presenting their side of the story in a quiet dignified manner, telling elected officials of the dangers they believe would exist if propane tanks were installed in that residential area.

Their work paid off when on a 4-2 vote Council members killed the proposed zoning change.

In this era of inertia and don't give a damn the way those residents of the Old Bloody Third got their act together and the way they presented it was a welcome sight. Way to go, kids.

Something Different

In the Mail

I forgot to tell you about some of my Christmas mail, both sad and glad. First to arrive was always a letter from Rev. and Mrs. Ralph Chamberlain who live two doors north of us on Middle Cullen Lake, MN.

Their letter is always a delight, telling of the northwoods, the colors, the birds, the trees and bushes, the wood, the ice, the wonderful fruits and vegetables they have filed away to cope with Minnesota's long cold winters. But I don't worry about them for they have created a warm, cozy nest complete with fireplaces up and down. When it gets too cold they simply retire to their fine well-furnished basement and let the winds howl. Their letters are poetry.

A Presbyterian minister, he taught Sunday schools for about 30 years as they travelled Nebraska sandhills.

Another northland Christmas letter comes from Dogwood Farms at Ada, MI, most interestingly put together by Cary Stiff, Sr., father-in-law of my niece Carol Wilcox. But sadly it did not arrive until after Christmas after forwarding from Ord, and I received word in the mail that Mr. Stiff had died the morning of Christmas. So it was poignant reading even with all the pictures of their activities and with Helen Stiff's little sketches. They travelled mostly to visit old trains and stations, a long time hobby of his. Or to see Beatrix Potter figurines, a hobby of hers. Between operating his stores, they too enjoyed gardening, canning, and a full home life. I was glad that Cary II had had a three day visit with his parents only the week before his father had a heart attack.

Then I had a dear, friendly little letter from Myra Thorngate Barber. It was as warm and perky as ever although she has moved into a rest home, and so I deduce, given up baking cookies and baby sitting for neighborhood children.

But she added some news I didn't like: that she is now a member of that exclusive group including Happy Rockefeller, Betty Ford, Jean May and I, all of whom have had a breast removed. Myra's operation was shortly before Christmas, but already she is planning the story she will write next Christmas. No whining from Myra, she's always a trooper.

I do think it would be nice if you would write to her. Myra's address is Dodge Center, MN, at Fairview Home. She did not include her zip code, but she remains an Ordite and a North Loup resident at heart and I'm certain she'd love to hear from you.

She went to so much trouble to be a good Quiz reporter: remember how she "took turns" attending each Ord church on Sundays so as not to play favorites? Remember how she walked out to the park to chat a few minutes at each Sunday picnic group, making herself known, getting a pleasant little news-story? No wonder so many people love her.

Ship of State Sets Sail — Charles Thone at the Helm

By Melvin Paul

The Nebraska Press Association Lincoln — Nebraska's Ship of State is underway with Charles Thone at the helm.

The 55-year-old Republican took over direction of the state's course for the next four years admitting he was "proud indeed" to have the honor but acknowledged his pride was "tempered by the heavy responsibility which is implied in this office."

Thone, those packed into the West Senate Chamber for his inauguration he is aware he must continue to call on Nebraskans for support, encouragement, counsel and honest criticism.

With his wife, Ruth, three daughters present, and other family members in front row seats, Thone took the oath of office from Chief Justice Norman Krieger at the Supreme Court.

Right after the new governor said "I do" to end the formal inauguration ceremony, the Thone's daughters let out a "yahoo" to signify her joy at having her dad the state's chief executive officer.

During his inaugural address, Thone sketched Nebraska's history and made comparisons between Nebraska and Nebraska and pioneer days.

He pledged to "commit my heart, my mind and my energy to the task" of dealing with "the new problems our inventions and our energy keep creating for us."

He also used the occasion to reiterate his campaign pledge to offer "the firm hand of friendship and cooperation" to the Legislature, which during the past eight years had frequent and strong disagreements with Thone's predecessor, J. James Exon.

"We can work together," said Thone. "We can settle any differences amicably and reasonably, so long as both branches are committed to the best interests of the people of our state."

There will be differences between himself and the lawmakers, the new governor said, adding, "Sometimes verbal sparks will fly, to be sure. But I do have confidence those differences can be resolved in a civil and dignified manner with each side giving the other the right to hold opposing views."

Thone did not go into specifics committee appointments in addition to a post on the Legislative Council.

of his program but did say he hopes the Legislature will pass fewer laws. He added bills that are enacted should include a sunset provision so state programs can be continually evaluated.

On one specific, he was in agreement with Exon. That was when he said "above all, we must live within our means."

Thone's restated pledge to adopt a cooperative stance in his dealings with the Legislature was singled out by many lawmakers as among the brightest points of the inaugural address.

Unicameral Speaker, Richard Marvel of Hastings said, "It was one of the better inaugural speeches I've heard. The speech was comprehensive, challenging and was given by a very serious-minded man who wants to get things done. I'm looking forward to working with him."

Bill introductions slow
The always, are more than enough to take care of in a legislative session to keep the senators busy.

During the first week of the session, only 200 bills were submitted — the lowest total for that period in four years, according to speaker, Richard Marvel.

But the first batch of measures included a number sure to spark considerable debate in the weeks ahead.

One of them was LB 188, signed by 14 senators, and described by chief sponsor John DeCamp of Neligh as the top proposal for this session for coming to grips with the problems of property values and the funding of local governments.

The bill would set the maximum property tax rate at 1.5 percent of actual value.

That approach, of course, was questioned by some of the senators but was described as "interesting" and deserving of study by Gov. Thone, who said the property tax is too heavy in some parts of the state.

DeCamp by providing incentives for setting values uniformly at the actual rate, the bill might adequately address the problem of equalizing property values within and among counties.

Sen. Jerome Warner of Waverly did not sign the bill but said many experts have said the property tax is most fair when it varies between 1 percent and 1.5 percent of actual value.

Sen. Gerald Koch of Ralston labeled the DeCamp bill "a political gimmick" and Columbus Sen. Don Dwork said he wasn't sure it was the final answer because the measure was only part of the taxation puzzle.

The proposal is utterly simple and does not have all of the mumble-jumble of the various bill proposals and it goes directly to the heart of the problem," DeCamp said. "The problem is excessively high property taxes with no method of curtailing or stopping them. The solution is to install an absolute limit on the total amount the government can take from property."

Roles on Teacher Tenure
The state Supreme Court has ruled schools must attempt to retain tenured teachers whose positions have been eliminated.

In an opinion written by Judge Harry Spencer, the court said, "We hold a tenured teacher whose position has been abolished has a right to be retained to fill any vacancy for which she is qualified for the next school year (which occurs, after elimination of her position).

The court, in reversing a Frontier County District Court decision, ruled a tenured teacher whose job is abolished must be given priority over outsiders in filling other vacant positions.

In other words, no new teacher may be hired to fill a vacancy she is qualified to fill," Spencer said. "To hold otherwise would simply allow a total emasculcation of the tenured teachers act."

The case involved a Curtis teacher, Elaine M. Witt, whose position in a special reading program was terminated because the school district in 1975 hired a teacher specially trained to instruct children in learning disabilities.

The following year the Curtis superintendent recommended that the school board eliminate the special reading program because of duplication of effort and expense.

Spencer said the board apparently believed because it eliminated the program, it terminated the contract. It did not have that effect because Mrs. Witt was a tenured teacher and was entitled to continued employment unless just cause existed for her removal, Spencer said.

Geranium Joe Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

Just when you think we've gone as far as we can go, along comes a report like Joe Knapp give during the session at the country store Saturday night. Joe had saw where the U.S. Forest Service has come up with a plan to cut a "scenic highway" across farms in five counties of Virginia, and then to build "living farms of the past" along the road so folks whizzing by in their air conditioned cars could see how Virginia country life was before the highway came through and messed everything up.

Joe said this cockeyed thinking reminded him of the way generals in Vietnam explained why they burned out folks. They said they were fighting the kind of war where it comes necessary to destroy the country in order to save it. If that makes sense to you, declared Joe, you ought to sign up for the Forest Service.

While Joe's report was sinking in, Mister Editor, Paul Maly pulled out a clipping and read where the Department of Transportation is trying to get rid of what it calls "vehicle exterior protrusions." That ain't a disease, it's hood ornaments. The DOT allows these do-dads are dangerous, but Paul said no mention was made of evidence where a pedestrian had been run through with one. He figured the Government agency was taking the long way around, like always.

Putting a crome eagle on the hood is a safety hazard, Paul explained, because it cost money that otherwise could be spent making the car safe.

Practical speaking, broke in Ed Novak, the scenic roads and hood protrusions won't make no never mind in a few years. Ed said he had studied the situation up one side and down the other, and he was of a mind that the Arab oil coultires are leading the golden goose to the slaughter, and the American oil companies are getting ready to finish the job. Between them they are going to destroy the system that makes them as big as they are, was Ed's words. Ed recalled that the 14.5 per cent jump in imported crude came after the importers staged their mini-crisis right

KERRY ON

—the gift—

Arriving when it did there was little doubt that the package was a Christmas gift. Removing the brown paper wrapper carrying it through the mails, he placed it carefully aside. It would have to wait.

Several times, in the coming days, he would carefully examine the package. For it looked like a book — and he was curious what book the giver might have selected. In the decade he'd known the sender, their interests in reading and writing had placed like titles on each of their respective bookshelves. He couldn't imagine a book neither of them had — or had known of — that wasn't previously discussed and added to their growing personal libraries.

As the Holiday approached his own curiosity mounted with the excitement of the sender. "Have you opened it yet?" "Do you think you know what it is?" Such questions reminded him of his own childlike ardor and the difficulty of not revealing surprises.

He knew the gift must be special. And with that knowledge — and his knowledge of the giver — he knew the gift would have to be opened at a special time. The words of Ecclesiastes rang through his mind: "There is a time to cry and a time to laugh . . . a time to grieve and a time to dance . . . a time for scattering stones and a time for gathering stones . . ."

Each passing day brought moments of wonder and added to the depth of what soon would be shared by two — himself and the giver. For it long had been understood, between them, that their world was divisible only by two.

When the time came — as he knew it would — he carefully removed the paper. It revealed a book — unlike any he'd recently seen.

At first he thought it to be a volume so old and worn that it had been recovered by a book-binder. There was no title on the cover. Nor was there a title of the spine . . . nor even the name of the publisher.

He marveled at the beauty of the bluish cover — seemingly an ocean wave splashing and foaming over the hard binder-board. A contrasting blue gummed Holland tape firmly held the spine.

Still wondering what treasure was held in such a beautiful, hand-covered book, he opened the dark brown end pages to read, hand-lettered, "hardbound by John and Annie Hansen." The white stitching, contrasting with the dark end pages, caused him to pause and marvel at the craftsmanship.

What, he wondered, was inside?

Turning two more dark brown end pages he came to the first page of the book. Hand-lettered on the ivory book page, he read:

"This book is dedicated to the man whose presence in my life gave birth to its contents, and who, through his years of friendship has been the heart and soul of my meaning."

Realizing, without turning another page, what he held in his hand, he wiped a tear from his eye. For in his hand he held the only copy, in existence, of a book — hand lettered, page by page, from his best friend — written only for him.

... a time to hug and a time not to hug . . . a time to find and a time to lose . . . a time for keeping . . ."

Money isn't the biggest thing in American lives — it's their bills.

Our granddaughter, Theresa Gement, and her friend, Kim Forke, both of Broken Bow, visited us Saturday afternoon at the Netherlands. She too had travel problems but got to Lincoln a bit sooner.

Our granddaughter, Theresa Gement, and her friend, Kim Forke, both of Broken Bow, visited us Saturday afternoon at the Netherlands. She too had travel problems but got to Lincoln a bit sooner.

Grandson Victor was here and at his mother's home Friday to Monday evening, when he returned to Kearney and college.

Our son, Don, and Phyllis spent all day Sunday with us. Phyllis also visited Dianne and Angie.

Granddaughter Cindy, Robin and little Kent LaCroix arrived from Gulliver, Ill Monday afternoon and are house guests of Ken and Charlene Clement in Ord. No flight troubles for them.

Mike and Deb Sitz and little Jesse of Burwell lost their trailer house and all the contents, except the night clothes they wore, in a fire early Monday morning between one and two o'clock. Deb is the daughter of our neighbors, Bill and Evelyn Cook, and is a relative of ours. They crawled out through a window after tossing Jesse out. Mike walked a mile for help. It was a bitter cold night. Bill and Evelyn immediately went to Burwell and she spent the day there.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Duvall met their friends, Mr. and Mrs. George Bonde of Callaway, in North Loup Sunday. The couples had dinner and visited. The Bondes went on to Omaha and the Duvalls to Loup City to visit their daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Freeman and Brad.

ADVERTISEMENT FOR BIDS

REAL ESTATE The Ord Airport Authority will receive bids for lease of the following described real estate, for a period of one hour beginning at 7:00 o'clock p.m., February 12, 1979, in the Administration Building, Ord Airport, Ord, Nebraska, at which time any interested party may appear and bid on the lease of said real estate. If the Airport Authority receives no bids or if the bids received are substantially lower than the fair market value of the assessed value of said real estate, the Airport Authority may negotiate a contract for the lease of the real estate if such negotiated lease is in the best interest of the Airport Authority. The successful bidder will enter into a lease agreement with the Ord Airport Authority on or before the day following the acceptance of bids. Said lease will be for a term of three (3) years beginning March 1, 1979, and the cash rent bid for each year shall be one-half on March 1, and one-half on November 1, of each year, beginning March 1, 1979. The successful bidder shall be required to comply with all F.A.A., State Aeronautics Department regulations, and all other federal, state and city regulations now in effect or hereafter amended. Further, five acre tract designated as Tax Division No. 4 shall be moved prior to any air show with ten days notice given by the Airport Authority. The legal description and address of the real estate to be leased is as follows: All that part of the Northeast Quarter of Section 17, Township 19 North, Range 14 West of the 6th P.M., Valley County, Nebraska, lying Southeast of the Southwesterly right-of-way line of the Highway 41, less runways and runway right-of-ways; subject to easements or contracts of record with North Loup River Public Power and Irrigation District; and, also Tax Divisions 2 and 3 adjacent to the north edge of the above described premises; all of said real estate containing approximately 98 acres, more or less. Said property is located approximately one and one-half miles north of Ord, Nebraska, and surrounds the Ord Airport.

Harvest Time — in November

If you're bothered by the ever advancing date of the Christmas season, be glad you don't live in Kings Valley, OR. Christmas there started in early November.

And, while this tiny rural hamlet tucked away in the foothills some 20 miles west of Corvallis is not the North Pole, people as far away as the East Coast and Guam wouldn't have a complete Christmas without its indigenous gifts.

Christmas trees are a mainstay crop there. The annual harvest began on Nov. 5.

"We have 2,500 acres of growing Christmas trees — that's two million trees," said Steve Schudel, who helps operate Holiday Tree Farms, along with his father, mother and two brothers, John and Dave.

Before Dec. 25, he said, more than 300,000 trees from the family plantation will end up in living rooms across the country.

"They grow Christmas trees both there and throughout Oregon, but few on the scale of the Schudel farm. Their Holiday Tree Farms is one of the largest producers of Christmas trees in the Northwest."

Hal Schudel, who founded the operation with former partner Paul Goodmonson 20 years ago, was one of the first to recognize the potential in growing Christmas trees much as one would plant and grow corn.

Schudel was then an agriculture professor at Oregon State University and Goodmonson was a forestry professor. Together they dreamed up the idea of a Christmas tree farm. At the time, it was an unheard-of endeavor.

"The first year, 90 percent of the crop failed," recalled son Steve, who along with brother Dave bought out Goodmonson in 1972.

"But they kept trying; they kept planting until they finally got it going," he said.

Since then, modern technology, including the use of helicopters for harvesting and computerized bookkeeping have entered the business.

Trees this year were trucked to Texas, California, Arizona, Georgia, Alabama and shipped to Hawaii.

About 100 workers are brought in during the annual harvest.

"It used to be that 90 percent of our trees went straight to Southern California," Schudel said. "But our market's enlarged — the Douglas fir is more widely accepted and the production and popularity of the Midwest's pine is way down."

The popular Douglas fir accounts for 90 percent of the total harvest, Schudel said. Noble fir, Scotch pine and Grand fir make up the rest of the annual cutting.

While the concentrated effort is packed into the two months before Christmas, growing Yule trees is a year-round undertaking.

Crews plant from 250,000 to 300,000 new trees each spring. The trees are hand sheared in June.

Their trees not only decorate living rooms. They produce trees as well as table-top models and as large as the 80-footer they provided one year for a Portland shopping center.

Steve, John and Dave Schudel are grandsons of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Jones of North Loup.

READ 2 CORINTHIANS 12:7-10
"I take pleasure in infirmities, in reproaches, in necessities, in persecutions, in distresses for Christ's sake: for when I am weak, then I am strong." (2 Corinthians 12:10)

I have been diabetic since I was eleven. I have wanted and demanded for God to heal me, but it has never happened. On day I had been having severe reactions, one after another. At times I was not aware of what was going on around me, yet I was conscious. That night I could not sleep. I tossed and turned and fought going to sleep for fear I would not wake up. Forgetting my anger, I prayed to God to give me peace and protect me through the night. I awoke the next morning with a headache but a stronger faith in Almighty God; He had answered my prayer.

Paul said he had a thorn in the flesh — a bodily weakness. He finally reached his purpose in his life was to strengthen his faith and dependence on God. With God's help, Paul turned it from his weakness to his strength. He made it something he could use rather than be used by.

For God's people, weakness and infirmity may be divinely permitted. The way we handle our trouble could make us an invalid or a victor.

PRAYER: O Lord, help us to see our weakness as Your perfect strength. Amen.

Sleet-Freezing Rain Cover Loup Valley Area Thursday

Sleet and freezing rain covered most of the Ord area Thursday afternoon and Friday morning. The mixture started falling on Ord before noon Thursday and by mid-afternoon, a thick glare of ice covered streets and sidewalks. About an inch of snow fell early Thursday evening.

Schools at Ord, Arcadia, and Comstock were recessed Thursday, giving students a three-day vacation.

While students were enjoying themselves, motorists faced a different situation. Radio and TV stations urged persons across the state to stay home. Travel, the announcements said, should be started only if absolutely necessary.

Those motorists caught in the storm faced treacherous roads. On Highway 70, 13 miles south of Ord, a semi truck slid off the road blocking traffic in the south lane for an hour or more around 5 p.m.

A state snowplow-sander was called, and the truck put back on the road.

Greeley County Sheriff Doyle Keller reported six to eight cars were off the road on Highway 11 near the Scotts Chalk Mine.

A semi jack-knifed on Highway 281 eight miles north of Greeley, he said. The vehicle was out back on the road later Thursday.

Youngsters were seen playing hockey and skating on Ord sidewalks and streets Thursday. They were often making better time getting around town than were motorists slipping and sliding over the icy streets.

Friday, temperatures rose, roads were cleared, and traffic returned to its normal pattern.

Dave Ender Retires Jan. 31

Dave Ender of Ord, DWR division engineer, is retiring January 31 after 40 years in government service.

Mr. Ender began working as an inspector with the Department of Roads in Litchfield in 1936. When he left in 1941, he'd been moved by them eight times. He began working with the Bureau of Irrigation, McCook and North Platte, he was transferred to Ord and became the Division Engineer.

According to Chief of Operations Bob Bishop, Mr. Ender is a "fair and understanding man who's been a great asset to state government."

A retirement dinner was held for Mr. Ender at the Ord Elks Club Thursday, January 18, with 33 persons in attendance.

Downed Power Lines a Problem

Most area residents were happy to see warmer temperatures Friday. Ord REA office personnel were likely happier than most.

Office manager Wilbert Calvin told the Quiz ice-covered electric lines can sag under the additional weight. Should they touch, the two lines can short out, halting electrical service to an area.

Warmer temperatures melt the ice, lessening the chance for such an accident to happen.

When the lines short out, they often break. Calvin suggested anyone seeing a broken electrical line contact his office and suggested that all downed lines be left alone.

No School January 29

There will be no school at the Ord High School and the Ord Elementary School Monday, January 29.

The staff will be attending an in-service workshop in York that day.

Parent-Teacher Conferences Told

Ord Elementary students will get a two day vacation this Thursday and Friday. Parent-teacher conferences are scheduled at that time. There will be no classes during the all-day sessions.

Comstock students will get Friday off when parents and teachers meet to review students' progress.

Classes in both Ord and Comstock schools will resume at their regular time Tuesday.

Forty-one Pound Canape At DU Wild Game Dinner

This year's Ducks Unlimited dinner will have a 41 pound canape. Early last year E. P. "Spud" Kapustka captured and raised a snapping turtle. When the animal was slaughtered it tipped the scales at 41 pounds.

That and other culinary delights will be on the bill of fare Saturday at the Elyria Parish Hall. Dinner at 7 p.m. will follow a 6 p.m. cocktail hour. Duck, goose, pheasant, venison, and other wild game dishes will grace diners' plates, along with side orders of dumplings, kraut,

North Loup Funds In Carter Budget

The North Loup or Calamus project was one of several reclamation projects in Nebraska included in President Jimmy Carter's 1980 budget unveiled last Monday.

The largest request in the Nebraska portion of the budget was $11.95 million for the North Loup division of the Pick-Sloan Missouri Basin program. This amount is up $8.61 million from the $3.34 million allocated for fiscal 1979.

The ear-marked funds will be used for land acquisition, various preconstruction activities, work on the Calamus Dam and its foundation, and other items.

Carter's budget request got approval from representatives of some Nebraska Water interests attending a convention in Lincoln, according to a Lincoln Journal article.

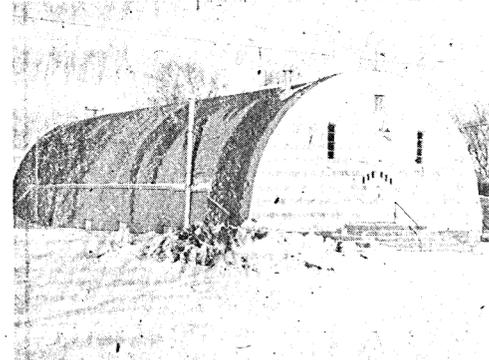

Jack Odgaard, executive director of the Nebraska Water Resources Association, reportedly said the proposed increased financing for the North Loup Project and the proposed $6 million for the O'Neill unit indicates the Carter administration considers the projects to be worthwhile.

Wayle Williamson, executive secretary of the state Natural Resources Commission said the financing level proposed shows the president is behind the projects.

Other Projects Missouri Basin programs included in the reclamation budget are $134,000 to continue construction on subsurface drains and $700,000 to continue replacement of open ditch laterals with pipe laterals, both for the Frenchman-Cembridge Division.

The budget also includes $6 million for the O'Neill Unit to improve the access road to the Norden damsite and continue preconstruction work on other facilities.

Knights of Columbus Buy Elyria Hall

Ownership of the Elyria Parish Hall was transferred from the parish to the Ord Knights of Columbus Council 2292 in ceremonies Sunday at St. Mary's Catholic Church outside Elyria. Bishop Lawrence McNamara had given his approval to the transfer earlier this month.

One Dollar The hall was sold to the Knights for one dollar.

Membership in the parish has declined the last several years according to E. P. "Spud"

Kapustka, a parish member. He estimated that in the last 25 years membership there has declined 50 percent. About 25 families now worship in St. Mary's Catholic Church, according to Kapustka.

Construction on the hall was started in 1949 and completed five years later. A second story was added to the basement at that time.

Mr. and Mrs. Leon Clemmy sold the church land for the hall in 1949 for one dollar.

Norman Luboff Choir To Present Concert in Ord

The Norman Luboff Choir will present an evening concert at 8 p.m. on February 15 at the Ord High School Auditorium. The choir, under the direction of Norman Luboff, will perform the evening's program ranging from popular, contemporary works to classical selections arranged by Mr. Luboff, which will feature soloists from its own ranks.

Since its formation as a recording group in the late '50's, the choir has grown in its artistic range and versatility. In response to rising demand, the choir began touring in the early sixties.

Norman Luboff has arranged, composed and written the songs that are the bread and butter of most choirs and choruses in the country. The Norman Luboff Choir presents his arrangements with versatility, precision and compassion. Luboff's arrangements, when combined with the Choir's artistic range present a variety of musical styles for the delight of all listeners.

Luboff's years of training and education in Chicago provided him variety as a singer, arranger, composer for radio and records. Since 1963, the Choir has toured annually and has presented its variety of music to appreciative and enthusiastic audiences with consistency and freshness.

This tour of the Norman Luboff Choir, as a performing arts project of Mid-America Arts Alliance to Ord is part of an 11 city tour. The local sponsor is The Loup Valley Arts Council. Ord is the first stop in the Choir's 11 city tour through the western states.

A full program for the Norman Luboff Choir concert will be announced soon. For more information, contact Ron Dugham, President of the Loup Valley Arts Council, at (308) 728-3156 or by writing to 307 Sp. 21st, Ord, NE 68662.

Tickets are on sale now at Andresen Jewelry and Gifts in Ord.

Ord F.H.A. Girls "Adopt" Grandparents

The idea of adoption wouldn't even cross the minds of most teenagers, but the F.H.A. girls of Ord High School not only thought about it, they've done it! They've adopted some grandparents. The 25 member F.H.A. Club has "adopted" a total of 39 grandparents in the area.

The project, which began in early December of 1978, was suggested to the girls by their sponsor, Angela Batenhorst. After viewing a film strip on the need and discussing the project, the girls decided to try it.

Before they began, Miss Batenhorst acquired a list of names from the Valley County Hospital, the Ord Rest Home, Parkview Village, and individuals. The list consisted of elderly persons who don't have any relatives or friends in the area to visit them, or persons who are shut-in or lonely.

Although this was a club project, each girl made a personal commitment to visit her adopted grandparent. Some felt they had time for just one while one girl chose as many as five.

The girls didn't just rush out and start visiting; Miss Batenhorst made each girl sit down and think about the goals of the project. What did each hope to gain from the project and what could the adopted grandparents gain?

One of the girls hoped to learn the advantages and disadvantages of growing older; another hoped for "good friendships." One girl just wanted "to have fun together."

Besides friendship and making their lives less lonely, the girls hoped the adopted grandparents would realize they are very much wanted and needed.

Although this started as a school F.H.A. project, Miss Batenhorst felt the girls intended to continue with the project even after school is out.

Clark Hervert New Employee At First National

The First National Bank in Ord announced they have hired a new employee. He is Clark Hervert, a life long resident of a family farm near Ravenna. He is a 1978 graduate of the University of Nebraska in Lincoln, College of Business Administration. He is married and he and his wife, Laurie, have a two month old daughter, Ami.

He had been working at State Federal Savings & Loan in Lincoln since graduation until he was transferred to Gothenburg where he was manager of the new branch office.

He will start his new duties at the bank this week as a Loan officer.

New Officers Newly installed elective officers were president, Rosalie Leggett; first counselor, Miaka Huff; senior counselor, Lauree Lueck; junior counselor, Gertrude Ringler; secretary, Virginia Norman; treasurer, Norma Ackles; inner guard, Elva

Smoke Fertilizer May Reduce Pollution Problem

SPRINGFIELD, IL (UPI) — Ralph Peck wants his new fertilizer discovery to go up in smoke.

In fact, the more people he can find throughout the country to agree with him, the better — for the sake of state utility officials, consumers and clean air advocates everywhere.

Peck's discovery, flue gas desulfurization smoke fertilizer, for short — is a process still being tested that converts sulfur oxides from the smoke of coal-burning generators into farm fertilizer.

Peck, a researcher and professor at the Illinois Institute of Technology, said in an interview that smoke fertilizer might improve the buying power of high-sulfur Illinois coal and reduce levels of high sulfur phosphate emissions of utility companies troubled by Environmental Protection Agency air pollution standards.

Peck said the smoke process produces a high grade nitrogen and phosphate fertilizer.

"This process can be used to promote the use of Illinois coal," Peck said. "Ohio, Iowa and New York also have high sulfur coal and this could make the staff more profitable again."

"And, because utility companies are the ones that burn the most high-sulfur coal, they would be the logical clients of the idea."

Peck said many utility companies in Illinois and the Midwest — including some in New York — are interested in the concept.

Area Residents Get Awards

Three area residents received certificates of appreciation during a joint conference of the Nebraska Association of Resource Districts, the Nebraska Water Resources Association, and the Nebraska State Irrigation Association in Lincoln Monday.

Among those honored were: Wade Misko, editor of the Ord Quiz, for his news coverage and reporting of water resources issues, particularly the North Loup Division Reclamation Project.

Dennis Rasmussen, former State Senator, recognized for his public service as a State Senator and for his particular attention to water resources matters concerning Nebraska.

Dick Bern, manager of the Lower Loup Natural Resources District, noted for his leadership, efforts and work in promoting developing and implementing a program for irrigation scheduling and water management research and application in central Nebraska.

Joe D. Hall, Regional Director for the Bureau of Reclamation's Lower Missouri Region, headquartered in Denver, CO was recognized for his personal contribution to meeting the objectives of the Nebraska Water Resources Association during the past year. He was commended for his assistance in responding to requests for information by citizens and state officials.

Other recipients included Burns McCulloh, editor of the Holt County Independent for his news coverage and reporting of water issues.

Icy Streets Cause Fender Benders

January 23 — A two car accident at 20th and J did over $250 damage to one of the cars. A 1973 Dodge driven by Paul J. Birdsall of Ord, was headed east on J and a 1968 Ford pickup, driven north on 20th street, was driven by Edward H. Hovet of Ord. The two met at the intersection.

There was over $250 damage to the Dodge and no apparent damage to the truck.

January 19 — A 1969 Ford Mustang driven by Charles G. Fryzek and a 1966 Chevrolet truck driven by Robert A. Turek, both of Ord, collided at the 15th and Q intersection. The Mustang was headed west on Q and the pickup going east on the same street.

There was $150 damage to each car.

January 19 — Kenneth Calver of 322 Westridge reported a window broken apparently by a

Community Contest Deadline Near

February 1 is the deadline for entries in the Nebraska Community Improvement Program (NCIP) program coordinator Nancy Donovan says. The NCIP is co-sponsored by the Nebraska Department of Economic Development and the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Resource and Research Center.

1979 marks the 16th birthday for the program which climaxes in an awards banquet honoring communities and neighborhoods judged outstanding in various improvement categories. Judging is done by out-of-state experts in community affairs.

Ms. Donovan explained the NCIP as "a total approach to community development."

"The NCIP's main purpose is to provide an incentive for community-wide efforts to identify needs and resources, to determine realistic goals and to meet those goals," she said.

Several Nebraska communities have been involved in the NCIP since it began in 1963 as one of the pioneer community improvement programs in the country. Many other Nebraska communities have entered the NCIP for over 10 years, according to Ms. Donovan.

The NCIP offers three major areas for community involvement. The community recognition program is open to all communities under 50,000 population. Those communities with a population over 50,000 may enter the neighborhood recognition program. Finally, all incorporated municipalities in the state are eligible for the All-Nebraska community program, and may enter it alone, or in combination with one of the other programs.

The deadline for entering all three areas is Feb. 1, 1979.

Scotia Thespians Qualify for One-Act

The North Loup Scotia State Play Contest, "The Flies," qualified for the State One-Act Play Contest. In order to qualify, a play must receive Superior ratings from both judges at the district contest. No more than 20% of the plays may advance to State.

Reba Ackles and Tim Edwards were presented Superior acting awards. Other members of the cast are Lori Jeffers, Lisa Rasmussen, Karen Jensen, Kim Peterson, Steven Roy and Rick Metter. Sharon Kriewald serves as assistant to the director.

Thirty plays were entered in the District IV contest held at Kearney last Wednesday. Six plays advanced to the state competition.

SBA Interest Rates Scar to 12 Percent

Because of the high cost of money in the commercial market, maximum allowable interest rates on the U.S. Small Business Administration's regular business loans are being raised to 12 percent per annum for bank-guaranteed loans, and to 11 percent for unguaranteed participation bank loans, SBA Administrator A. Vernon Weaver announced.

Raises are effective immediately. Rates had been held at 11 1/2 and 10 1/2 percent respectively for two categories since last October. The recent rise in the nation's prime rate to 11 3/4 percent prompted SBA's action.

"SBA tries to maintain the most reasonable interest rates possible for small business," Administrator Weaver said, "but we must also make the ceiling rates attractive enough for commercial lending institutions to participate in SBA loan programs."

SBA business loan approvals totalled $1.5 billion in 1978. The majority are bank-guaranteed loans, where commercial lenders provide the money and SBA guarantees repayment of up to 90 percent. In immediate participation loans, the lender and SBA share the funds dispersal under a mutually acceptable agreement.

Contestants Wanted For Nebraska Teen

Young ladies of this area are invited to enter the Miss Nebraska Teen USA Pageant to be held in Omaha June 29, 30, and July 1, 1979.

Contestants will be judged on scholastic achievements, civic involvement, beauty, poise, personality, and patriotic speech or talent. No swimsuit competition is involved. Contestants must be between 14 and 18 years of age as of November 1, 1979 and maintain a "B" or better grade average in school.

The winner of the Nebraska Pageant will receive an all-expense paid trip to compete in the Miss Teen USA Pageant in Albuquerque, NM, a full scholarship to Nancy Bounds Modeling School, $500 scholarship to the school of her choice, and other prizes.

Those interested in entering the pageant may write for information to Cappy M. Smith, State Director, 524 Rockbridge Road, Stormont, Mountain, GA.

IT ALL DEPENDS ON YOU . . . Life can be boring! Why? Nothing exciting will happen for months. Maybe years.

It's the same old routine, day in and day out. Sometimes for even a longer time. Getting up in the morning (the alarm is always set for the same time each day), getting dressed, doing whatever work there is to be done. The washing, ironing, settling the youngster's arguments, or meeting the challenges in the career world. There is preparing dinner for the family, watching television, housecleaning. Some call it "Dullsville."

Then something happens: a promotion, a new hobby, the unexpected meeting with an old friend or a vacation (if one is so lucky.) For a while then, living becomes an exciting experience again.

But, "Dullsville" returns as soon as the novelty wears off. That old rut remains, grows, as the same old routine is repeated day after boring day.

What's there to do? One answer is nothing. Stay in that rut. Another answer depends on you . . . Make something happen!

Join a new club, meet new people, volunteer your services to a worthwhile cause, discover a new talent, learn a new subject, join an exercise class, take guitar lessons.

Think about it for a minute. Is your life dull, or is it your attitude that is dull? Life can be exciting or it can be disgustingly boring. So much depends on one's own attitude. Attitude is contagious. (Is your worth catching?)

COFFEE CUP PHILOSOPHY: Life is like a taxi. The meter keeps ticking whether you choose to go anywhere or just sit still.

Erma Klanecky Visits Relatives

Adeline Adamek and Neil Underback took Erma Klanecky to Grand Island December 22 where she left for Denver to spend Christmas and New Years with her daughter, Matilda, and her friends, Ann Bragassa and Karen Anderson. While in Denver, Erma visited with the Bob and Eldon Kalneckys, Joe Mahoney and Jerry Adamek and family.

January 4, Erma left for California to be with her sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Dahlin, to help them celebrate their golden wedding anniversary. A surprise get together was held in their son Gene's home on January 5. Others visited in the area were Mr. and Mrs. Royal and Burdette Fredricksons, their sister, Evelyn, and husband, Bud and Ernie Lashmets, Leo Kesler and Everett Lashmets. She also helped Mr. and Mrs. Leo Kesler celebrate their 43rd wedding anniversary.

Returning to Denver January 11, Erma spent the remainder of the time with her daughter, Matilda, until her return home January 14. Mr. and Mrs. Herb Dulitz met Erma at the airport in Grand Island to bring her home.

Helping Hands Extension Club The Helping Hands Extension Club was called to order by President Mrs. Kathy Waldmann on January 10 at the home of Mrs. Mary Lou Bruha. Nine members answered roll call by telling three places anywhere in the world that they would like to visit. Annual dues were collected. After the meeting, the lesson on learning to knit was continued.

The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Marilou Dockhorn on February 14. Roll Call will be a home-made Valentine exchange.

Dixieland-Disco In Brazz Concert

Dixieland and disco, country and jazz — all are on tap for the Brazz performance scheduled for 1 p.m. on Feb. 1 at Ord.

"Pop Music of the Ages" is the theme for the 1979 Brazz tour. The 17-piece show band from Platte Technical Community College was formed in the fall of 1977 when jazz ensemble students approached instructor Earl Sherburne about forming a touring group. Brazz is the result, and although it has roots in jazz, the group's repertoire includes much more.

The current program includes "Fanfare to the Common Man," written in 1942 as a tribute to the openness of the West; "Rock Velvet", a light piece using rhythms and harmonies of the rock genre; "The Hustle", a disco tune; "Junior Jump", a Dixieland style number; a 40's medley featuring the Big Band sounds of "In the Mood" and "Johnson Rag"; Jimmie Webb's famous tune, "MacArthur Park"; the theme from "Mannix"; a Tip-tap Brass medley; "Southern Nights" by Glenn Campbell tune with a Count Basie twist; the movie theme "Heaven Can Wait"; "The Girl from Ipanema"; a medley of Henry Mancini television and movie themes; and a "Peppy Polka" arrangement.

Ensembles include a Dixieland combo, trombone horn quintet, flute trio, flugel trio, and brass choir.

Director Earl Sherburne said the performance is open to the public and invited everyone to attend.

Students Aim for Yearbook Deadline

Ord High journalists are shooting for the March 15 deadline for their '79 yearbook. What instructor Jim Sajevic called "the people section" is nearest completion. He told the crew this includes photos of Ord High faculty, students, and others associated with the school.

Another area of the book will wrap up state and local news events of the 1978-79 school year.

OHS journalists will note the 50th birthday of Mickey Mouse in a special section. Sajevic said the section will be unusual, but declined further comment.

This year, each of the five sections of the book will have a different style and layout, according to the OHS instructor.

Ord WIFE Chapter Elected Officers

Ord WIFE (Women Involved in Farm Economics) Chapter met for their regular monthly meeting on January 15 at the Farm Bureau Office. Election of officers was completed, and those holding offices in 1979 are president, Mrs. Adrian Kusek of Burwell; vice president, Mrs. Dave Lange of Ord; treasurer, Mrs. Herbert Bredthauer of Arcadia; secretary, Mrs. Dale Melia of Ord; and publicity, Carol Peterson of Ord.

Various items of business were discussed. Arrangements are being made to hold an open house meeting with Senator Don Wagner of Ord to discuss farm-related bills introduced to the Legislature. Following adjournment of the meeting, Janet Melia gave a slide presentation entitled "Estate Planning for All Ages."

The next meeting will be held February 19 at 7:30 p.m. at the Farm Bureau Office. All area women are invited to attend.

Ord Senior Prom Plans Continue

April 27 may seem like a long way off, but work on the Ord High senior prom has already started. Ord High teachers, Jim Sajevic and Ron Dughman have been meeting with prom committees to determine their goals, deadlines, etc.

Theme for the '79 dance at the Ord Elks Club has been decided, according to Dughman, but won't be revealed until prom night.

Master of ceremonies for the dance isn't known yet, the Ord High teacher said. Plans to have a WOW radio station personality here for prom night fell through. Prom organizers are trying to get another booking for the dance, April 27.

Presbyterian Church Circles Held Meetings

The circles of the United Presbyterian Church met Wednesday, January 17, for their monthly meetings. Each circle had election of officers, read the by-laws, and had devotions.

Esther Circle, which met at 2 p.m. at the church with Mrs. Zickmard as hostess, elected Rosie Buckbee as chairman.

Ruth Circle, which met at the Dola Vodehnal home at 2 p.m., elected Arthelia Ramsey as chairman.

Martha Circle, which met at the Lt. Gibb home at 8 p.m., elected Lu Gibb as chairman.

Golden Anniversary Celebrated in Arizona

Melvin and Evelyn Koelling just returned from Mesa, AZ where they spent ten days visiting Leslie and Carol Leonard, and helped them observe their 50th wedding anniversary. On January 8, an open house was extended to relatives and friends who live in the Mesa area. Besides the Koellings, other former Valley County relatives who attended included Merrill and Hazel Flynn, Tony and Doris Cummins and son, Robert; Comfort and Doris Mae Cummins and son, Ron. Their grandson, John Leonard, flew in as an added surprise. During the evening, a brief program "This is Your Life" was presented by Melvin and Evelyn Koelling. Lunch was served by Hazel Flynn and Doris Cummins.

Leslie and Carol Leonard were raised in the Mira Valley and Haskel Creek communities. They farmed for 11 years in Mira Valley, four years north of Ord, and then moved to Madrid, IA. For 15 years they were in the insurance business, and then farmed until 1975 when they moved to Mesa to retire. They reside at 6137 E. Albany, Mesa, AZ 85205.

Pacesetter Extension Club

The Pacesetter Extension Club met January 20 at the home of Karen Johnson. Roll call was taken with 15 members and two guests present. An interesting lesson on natural organic and health foods was given by club members, Joan Knapp and Linda Kearns. Special guest Faunie Wolfe gave an informative talk on natural food and nutrition. Members were informed of the Norman Luboff concert to be held February 15 at the Ord High School Auditorium. Beef Day was discussed and members were invited to attend. A farewell coffee for members Kay Sandoz and Lucille Schram will be held February 1 from 2-4 p.m. at the home of Sherri High.

The meeting was adjourned and lunch was served.

TOPS NE #302 Meetings

TOPS NE #302 met on Thursday, January 18, with 28 ladies present. Mrs. Catherine Thomsen was the best loser of the week.

Gert Osenowski opened a traveling prize she won for losing weight for six weeks in a row. Heloise Bresley received a traveling prize to work for.

The meeting was adjourned with the next meeting to be January 25.

Hastings Symphony Auditions Scheduled

Auditions for Young Artist soloist with the Hastings Civic Symphony will be held Saturday, January 20 from 2 to 5 p.m. in Fuhr Hall, Hastings College campus, according to Dr. Robert Walters, Hastings conductor.

The auditions are exclusively for Nebraska high school students, grades 9-12, who study with a Nebraska music teacher. Applicants must present one movement of a concerto, memorized or other solo with orchestral accompaniment. Judges are allowing 15 minutes per audition.

The winner will appear as guest soloist with the 80-piece Symphony at either the April or the Fall 1979 concert. An award of $200 will be made to winners of the Symphony auditions. In addition, Hastings College will award $200 in scholarships.

For further information or application blanks, students should contact their music teacher or Dr. Robert Walters, Fuhr Hall, 9th and Ash, Hastings, NE 68901.

V.F.W. Auxiliary Recent Activities

The V.F.W. Auxiliary met January 8 at the Vets Club basement. They petitioned seven new members and reinstated Janet Hansen. The new members are Jill Augustyn, Gwery Maly; Lori Nelson, Dixie Anglemeyer, Kathryn Turek, Mary James, and Ester Sedlacek. Lorraine Held's husband made a bird feeder to donate to Ord Rest Home.

The Auxiliary donated $500 to the Fire Department for the Emergency Unit. They also delivered apples, pears, and bananas to the B & C Wings and Ord Rest Home for New Years.

Initiation of new members will be at the next meeting, February 12 at 8 p.m.

Hilltop Happenings

By Kathryn Streff and Teresa McKinney Social Services Directors

Here is a typical weekly activity schedule at the Valley County Nursing Home:

Sunday — Church at 4 p.m.
Monday — Coffee Wagon at 2 p.m. served by Bev. Kirby.
Tuesday — Exercises for C Wing at 11:30; Country Store, run by Lucille Pearson and Mrs. Hildred Pearson at 2:00; Story Time, done by Velma Horner, at 3:00.

Wednesday — usually a day reserved for special parties or entertainments. For instance, on the 10th we had exercises for B and C Wings at 10 a.m. and an Arts and Crafts program from 2:00 to 4. The exception to the rule is the last Wednesday of every month when the VFW ladies give a Bingo party.

Thursday — Bingo at 2 p.m. except for the last Thursday of each month. This is because of the VFW Ladies' Bingo party on the last Wednesday takes its place.

Friday — Bible Study at 3 p.m. This month we had different people every Friday. On the fifth we had Rev. Talbott, on the twelfth Rev. Meyer gave the lesson, and on the nineteenth Rev. Reed was here.

If anyone would like to give a little of their free time, more volunteers are needed, especially on Wednesdays and Thursdays.

Rebekah Lodge Installs Officers

Ord Rebekah Lodge #91 installed new officers for 1979 Tuesday, January 23 at 8 p.m. New officers are noble grand, Freda Kokes; vice grand, Charlene Reed; secretary, Doris Mrsny; right support to the noble grand, Sylvia Kirby; left support to the noble grand, Agnes Baru; conductor, Lucille John; warden, Blanche Knudsen; flag bearer, Betty Green; musician, Caroline Mentzer; chaplain, Elsie Wilson; outside guardian, Goldie Paider; inside guardian, Helen Pearson; right support to the vice grand, Lavern Kirby; left support to the vice grand, Charlene Schauer and past noble grand, Maxine Nolte.

The installing team for 1979 was from the Sargent Lodge.

After the installation, a soup supper was served.

George-Kuhn Wedding Ahead

Mary . . . a bride-elect

Mr. and Mrs. Sam George of Ord announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Mary Elizabeth, to Ronald E. Kuhn, son of Mrs. Roberta May Kuhn and the late Remigius C. Kuhn.

The bride-elect is a junior at Fort Hays State University, where she is a member of Alpha Gamma Delta social sorority.

The prospective bridegroom, who is also a student at Fort Hays State University, is employed by Warehouse Inc.

A July 7 wedding in Immaculate Heart of Mary Church in Hays, KS is planned.

Saints and Sinners
A group of 13 men and women organized on January 17 at Bethany Lutheran for study and fellowship. They adopted the name "Saints and Sinners" and will meet on the third Wednesday of each month.

Mrs. A. L. Meyer hosted the first meeting.

Dr. McCartney To Seminar
Dr. Roger McCartney of Ord attended the recent Continuing Education Seminar of the Nebraska Optometric Association. The Seminar was held at the Villager Motel in Lincoln January 14, 15 and 16.

The sessions are accredited toward mandatory continuing education requirements for license renewal annually.

Annual Ord Elementary Hockey Game Tied Seven All

The annual indoor hockey game between Cecetka's Raiders and Hyde's Bombers ended in a 7-7 tie during halftime at the girls' basketball game Saturday.

The overall record for the two teams is now three wins for Hyde and Cecetka has one win to his credit. Both teams have tied twice.

The two squads of sixth graders from Ord Elementary pursued the elusive puck with speed and dedication, letting neither chairs nor spectators get between them and their goal.

Ord Invitational Schedule Revealed

The Ord Girls' Invitational basketball tournament will see four top teams here January 19-February 1. Kearney and Albion are scheduled to tip-off Monday at 6:00 p.m. Ord and Ainsworth will clash the following night at the same time.

Albion was rated fourth in the Class B division by state prep sports writers this year. Kearney, an annual powerhouse, is rated fifth in class A. Ainsworth is coming to the contest with only two losses this year, and the Lady Chants have a healthy 8-4 record thus far this season.

Chant coach Max Murray said the '79 invitational "will be the strongest tournament we've ever had." It has been held at Ord for the last five years.

Last year Kearney downed the Ord gal Chan 49-39 in finals. This year they will be the likely tournament favorites, according to Murray. "Their depth," he said, "will help them." However, he was quick to add that any of the four teams could walk away with the invitational championship.

Joe Dworak (41) disregards a steal attempt by Albion's Frank Svoboda.

Arcadia Downs Undefeated Greeley

A pack of Arcadia Huskies snapped Greeley's unblemished season record Friday. Host Huskies came out the winner 75-69 in a clash with the Bulldogs. Arcadia upped its record to 6-1 for the season. Their win makes Greeley 8-1 for the year.

Arcadia nudged Greeley 16-12 in the first quarter, and then lagged, scoring 21 points in the second quarter to Greeley's 22.

The last two quarters saw Arcadia put the game away. Ahead 56 to 48 at the end of the third, they hiked their lead to snap Greeley's winning streak.

High scorers for Arcadia were John Cox with 27; Anderson with 17; Hill with 12 and Holcomb with 11. Dave Cox had 7 points and Johnson, 1.

NLS Wildcats Win In Make-Up Game

The game between NLS and Litchfield that was cancelled Friday night was played at Scotia Tuesday with NLS winning 76-53. The win evened the Wildcats' record at 3-3 for the season.

NLS led at the end of the first quarter 14-10 and increased it to 9 by halftime, 35-26. The Wildcats got into some early foul trouble in the first quarter. Kevin Sheldon and Barry Newman each had three fouls. Litchfield failed to capitalize, missing six out of one situations in the first half.

The second half saw NLS increase its lead to 16 points by the end of the third quarter with a score of 55-39. Some good board work was turned in by Chuck Abel, Mike Holmes and Barry Newman with 6, 6 and 8 rebounds. NLS owned a 34-20 advantage over the Trojans in this department.

NLS also had a fine shooting night as they hit 56% of their field goal attempts. NLS hit on 20 of 30 attempts from the charity stripe for 67%. The Wildcats outscored Litchfield in the fourth quarter by a 21-14 count to end the game 76-53. All the Wildcats saw action in the fourth quarter with Allen Meyer adding five points in this period.

NLS will be tested this weekend as they travel to Ansley Friday and host the Wolbach Mustangs on Saturday night.

Ord Boxers Split a Pair

Mark Dugan was on the winning half of a split ticket at the All Star Boxing Match in Central City Saturday night. Dugan, showing his old form, won a unanimous decision over Jim Pelster of Petersburg.

Roger Williams, 119 pounds, lost a close decision to Joe Sanchez of Scottsbluff. Sanchez won the Midwest Title last year and boxed in the national matches.

Arcadia Gals Out Of Cedar Tourney

The Arcadia girl cagers had an off night and ended up being bumped from the Cedar Valley Conference tournament schedule Monday. Cedar Rapids swamped Arcadia 45-29.

Arcadia coach Wilber Cushman was at a loss to explain his gals' on-hum performance Monday. The best excuse he could give was, "It was just one of those things."

The Huskies hit 18 percent from the floor. (They put up 53 shots and hit 10) and about 33 percent from the free throw line. There, they had 26 charity shots and sank 9.

Cedar Rapids scored 11 points in the first quarter to Arcadia's lone one point, and went on to take the game.

High scorers for Arcadia were Deb Smith with 14 points and Denise Luedtke with 7.

Cedar Rapids' leading scorers were Lori Kayton with 19 and Sheila Miller with 11.

Tuesday, Elba will be at Arcadia. They were seeded number one in the Cedar Valley Tournament. "They must," coach Cushman said, "have a pretty fair record."

Knights of Columbus Hoop Shoot Contest Held Saturday

Eight participants qualified for regional competition at the close of the Knights of Columbus free throw contest Saturday in Ord. The eight are divided equally among boys and girls in four age groups.

The winners are:

- Boys 14 years old, Mike Wadas of Ord.
- Boys 13 years old, Paul Reilly of Spalding.
- Boys 12 years old, Randy Woods of Greeley.
- Boys 11 years old Doug Duda of Ord.
- Girls 14 years old, Jane Bosworth of Ord.
- Girls 13 years old, Carla Conely of Spalding.
- Girls 12 years old, Kim Cook of Ord.
- Girls 11 years old, Kendra Williams, of Ord.

They and other participants in the district level contest Saturday advanced to that level from local competition. Their win at Ord qualifies them for regional play-offs at a yet to be arranged time and place.

Winner in the 13 year old division Paul Reilly, was state champion last year.

Ord Reserves Bow to Albion In First Loss of the Season

Chances of a basketball team going undefeated are maybe a million to one. The Ord boy reserves came close, on so close, to fulfilling that goal this year.

It wasn't until Friday, more than half-way through the '78-'79 season, that they had an upset. That came Friday at Albion. There, the Cardinal reserves edged Ord 54-49. "All we needed were a few key shots," Ord coach Lon Bartholomew recalled.

At half time Ord was behind 24-23. "Our main problem was," the Ord coach said, "we were impatient with the offense, and our shot selection wasn't as good as it has been."

Ord had 19 field goals from the floor to Albion's 18.

High scorers for Ord were Bob Beran and John Dworak, both with 10 points, and Randy David with 9. Bill Wadas had 8 points.

For Albion it was Dave Purcell with 13, Hank Nelson with 11, and Brian Stewart with 9.

Albion reserves remain undefeated while Ord reserves slip to a 6-1 record.

Freethrows Lift Ord Over Seward

Shelly Blaha (40) looks for an opening during first quarter action against Seward.

Two charity shots by Anne Smith lifted Ord to a 64-62 win over visiting Seward Bluejays Saturday night. The winning baskets came in the last minute of an action-packed game.

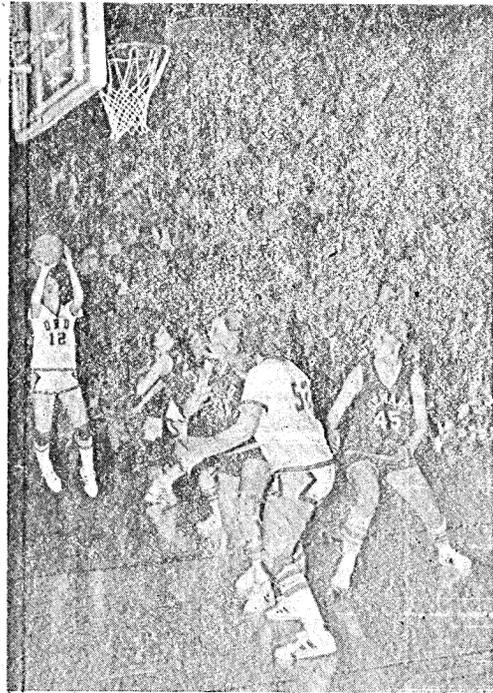

The Lady Chants let a 13-4 lead during the first quarter dwindle to a one-point edge when quarter ended. Free throws by Nancy Gogan gave Ord an 18-17 lead over Seward at the end of the first period.

Seward's Bluejays picked up the tempo of the game midway through the first quarter. High scorers were Seward's Peg Woolsey and Cindy Meyer. Woolsey had five points the first quarter and Meyer six.

The usual combination of Gogan-Kittle-Smith pumped in the first half of points for Ord. When the first quarter ended, the Jays kept up their fast pace. With 5:30 left in quarter number two they were in front 23-22.

That score remained unchanged until 3:57 when Ord's Anne Smith put the Chants in front with two free throws. That gap widened to 26-23 with 3:01 left in the first half, and then to 30-25.

That five-point edge evaporated under the heat of the Jays' improved shooting and quick rebounding. Seward ended the first half with a 37-31 lead and pushed this to a 10-point advantage, 53-43, when the third quarter ended.

Nancy Gogan (12) was a top points getter for Ord Saturday.

Ord Chants Fall to Albion Cardinals

The Ord boys varsity basketball team was nudged 69-51 by host Albion Cardinals Friday night. Ord coach Fred Williams said his boys "tried everything, but nothing worked." Included in "everything" was a man-to-man and zone defense and a press.

Albion was quicker than Ord, he said. They got six points up on the Chants during the first quarter and never looked back. The Cards led in scoring the entire game.

Vickie Mason (22) eyes the basket before sinking a shot for Ord during the Ord-Seward game.

Added to this was the fact that Albion had three players standing 6'3". The three, Ron Pochop, Steve Sherrill, and Bruce Stuart, scored 37 points.

Former Ordite Barry Suelter, now of Albion, scored 17 points during the game. He penetrated well, according to Williams and was one of the Cardinals' starters.

But it was the turnovers that made the big difference. Ord had a whopping 24 to Albion's 14.

The Cards played an effective press the whole game, causing Ord nothing but problems.

The loss makes Ord 2-9 for the season. Albion is now 5-5.

Next are games with Broken Bow Friday and Loup City Saturday; both are in Ord.

High scorers for Ord during the Albion match were Jeff Welniak with 12; Dan Martin with 9.

Ord had 27 fouls to Albion's 26.

Ord shot 36 percent from the floor to Albion's 42 percent. In rebounds, Ord had 39 and Albion 33.

Two Area Boxers Are Winners in Nebr. Tournament

Two Ord area youngsters won championships at the Silver Gloves boxing tournament in Columbus, January 13 and 14, Saturday and Sunday.

Reed Spierling captured the 65 pound weight division title while Marty Leach won the 80 pound division championship. Leach will advance to the national tournament in Pontiac, MI January 26 and 27 as a boxer for the Broken Bow team.

Spierling, although a champion, is too young for the national level bouts.

In semi-final rounds Willy Gottlob defeated Monty Larson of Grand Island, but lost a split decision to Mike Fuher of Lincoln in final round competition.

Complete results of the Silver Glove competition are as follows:

Semi-finals
Denny Klimke, 60 pounds, lost a decision to Andy Benavides of Bridgeport.
Denny Dugen, 75 pounds, lost a decision to Tony Carol of Broken Bow.

Willy Gottlob, 70 pounds, defeated Monty Larson of Grand Island.
Bob Hollibaugh, 106 pounds, lost a decision to Andy Martin of Columbus.
Chip Dahlstein, 112 pounds, lost a decision to Larry Arsiago of Lincoln.
Chad Bundy, 125 pounds, lost a decision to David Daigado of Lincoln.

Finals Results
Willy Gottlob, 70 pounds, lost a split decision to Mike Fuher of Lincoln.
Reed Spierling, 65 pounds, won the championship.
Marty Leach, 80 pounds, won the championship.

Seward Edges Ord Reserves

Ord gal reserve cagers were edged 52-42 by guest Seward Saturday night. Ord let a three-point first quarter lead fall to a half-time 24-23 deficit.

Seward built that one point edge into a solid lead. With 4:51 in the third quarter, the Bluejay understudies were in front 45-35. That ten point lead stayed with them the rest of the game.

High scorers for Ord were Dubas with 10 and Scheideler with 8 points.

Ord made 16 of 31 free throws. Seward reserves rose to an 8-0 record with the win. Ord reserves are now 2-5.

O'Neill Wrestlers Pin Ord Malmen

O'Neill grapplers pinned Ord 42-16 in a match Tuesday, January 16, at Ord. Ord failed to enter men in the 112, the 126 pound and the heavyweight divisions.

Complete results of the match are as follows:
90 lbs. Conner, Ord def. Wimmer, O'Neill, 6-2.
105 lbs. Ertz, O'Neill def. Zukoski, pin.
112 lbs., Joe Schaaf, O'Neill, unopposed.

Fourth Quarter
Ord then started a long, grueling come-back. The Chants were behind 57-50 when Gogan gave a dazzling display of second effort. That came after a free throw. The Jays missed the basket. Kittle, then Gogan, and then Smith went up for the ball. On a fourth try Smith sank it, giving Ord 52 points.

After a foul by Seward's Jodi Wust and Vickie Mason got - and made - two free throws.

Seward started playing a stalling game. Barb Kittle, in trying to steal the ball, fouled, sending the Jays to the free throw line. Peg Woolsey sank both shots, boosting Seward to a 59-54 edge.

That edge was dulled when Gogan sank a free throw. Her shot came just before a travel call on Seward. Gogan went to the charity lane again. She failed to connect on a basket, but Barb Kittle rebounded and made good on her attempt.

Ord was within two points of Seward, 59-57, with 3:52 left in the game.

Anne Smith and Gina Mueller had a jump ball when an infraction gave Ginelle Mueller a free throw. She sank one shot, moving Seward to a 60-57 lead.

Secondstarer Ord's Vickie Mason went to the free throw line. She made one of two shots, and Seward rebounded and came

The statistics sheet showed Ord won the game at the free throw line. The Chants made 26 of 42 charity shots. Seward was 18 of 27 free throws.

Seward shot 74 percent from the free throw lane to Ord's 52%. Seward had 22 field goals to Ord's 19.

The win boosts Ord to a 3-4 record. Seward stands at 5-4.

The girls' next game is January 27, Saturday at Wood River.

Next Game
Ord girls will go to Wood River Saturday night. Wood River girls have good size and a good record, according to Ord's Max Murray, with some of their girls standing 5'10" or more. He speculated the newest addition to Ord's sports calendar could give his gal Chants some problems.

Both Ord and Wood River have been defeated by Grand Island Central Catholic and both have nailed Loup City. If the two teams are equally matched, and apparently they are, the game Saturday could be a good one.

Social Security Agent To Be Here February 6

The social security representative will be in Ord at the Courthouse on Tuesday, Febr. 6, from 10 a.m. to 12 noon.

If you lose your social security card, you can get a duplicate by applying to your social security representative. Because of new regulations, you'll have to show documentary proof of your identity. It takes up to six weeks to get a duplicate card.

Card of Thanks

Thanks to all who assisted or remembered me in any way after my accident and stay at Mary Lanning Memorial Hospital, also while recuperating at home. Special thanks to Dr. Ouis Miller and the Ord Volunteer Fire Department who responded so quickly.

Thanks to Doctors Yost and Peck, resident Dr. Hevert and the staff at the orthopedic wing of the hospital for such tender care.

Thanks to my wonderful family who kept in daily touch by phone, to all my relatives and friends who remembered me with visits, flowers, gifts, cards and letters, also their prayers, t-shirts for the food sent to my home.

Special thanks to Duane and Margaret Armstrong for their generous offer of transporting me to my home.

Words cannot express my appreciation for all the kind deeds, only my prayers that God will reward you all.

Sincerely,
Ann Sobon

Card of Thanks

I want to thank all our relatives and friends for their kindness to us in our sorrow, for the food sent to the home, their visits, the food sent to the church for the dinner and lunch, for the beautiful floral offerings, the memorials and all the beautiful cards.

We wish to thank Rev. Ruth Mocer for her sermon, Erna Keown and Orel Koelling for the music, our members for serving as pallbearers.

A special thanks to all the ladies for serving dinner and lunch, the men who shoveled my walks and driveway, the ones who opened the road to the cemetery and anyone who helped in anyway.

It is nice to live in a small town where people are so helpful and kind. We all appreciate it so much.

Ruth Shoemaker & family

Card of Thanks

I wish to thank all of our relatives and friends for the flowers, gifts, cards and visits while Ed was in the hospital. I want to thank Dr. Zlomke, Les Veskeema, all the nurses and aids for the good care and kindness they gave Ed. Also I want to thank them all for being so kind to me while I stayed with Ed. I appreciate it all so much.

Card of Thanks

I would like to express my sincere thanks to my friends and relatives for visits, cards, gifts and flowers while I was in our fine Valley County Hospital.

Thank you also to Drs. Raines and Miller, and all the hospital staff. They were all so kind and considerate.

The visits of Pastors Ruth Moorer, Reed and Saul were also appreciated.

Also a special thanks to my own family, Arden, Karan and Curtis for their care and concern while I was in the hospital, and in their home.

Maurine Koelling

Card of Thanks

We would like to say thank you to the North Loup Fire Department for their promptness in putting out the fire in our home in North Loup, thanks to Mallory family for reporting the fire, and thanks to Kenneth Jorgensen for his help.

Joe and Fay Rysavy

Card of Thanks

I wish to thank Dr. Martin and the nurses for their wonderful care, and Father Gorak for his visits during my stay at the hospital. Also thanks for the cards and visits from my friends and relatives.

Sheryl Krcilek

Card of Thanks

We would like to thank the many, many friends who sent cards and did so many kind and good deeds for us in our time of sorrow. We shall never forget your concern for us.

North Loup Rites for Edward Shoemaker

Edward J. Shoemaker was born March 9, 1906 on the family homestead southeast of Ord to Jacob and Rosalie Soppelsa Shoemaker and died January 16, 1979 at the Valley County Hospital in Ord at the age of 72.

His early life was spent on the family farm where he attended rural school at District 64. He had spent all of his life farming near his birthplace until his retirement in 1970 when he moved into North Loup. Edward was united in marriage to Ruth Honeycutt August 28, 1930 at Greeley.

Survivors include his wife, Ruth of North Loup; one son, Ronald and wife, Beverly, of North Loup; one daughter-in-law, Martha Shoemaker of North Loup; four granddaughters; four grandsons; two great granddaughters; two great grandsons; one sister, Mrs.

Hilma Young of Ord; and one brother, Alfred Shoemaker of North Loup. He was preceded in death by his parents, two sons and one daughter. Memorials may be given in his memory to the Heart Fund or the North Loup United Methodist Church.

Funeral services were held Saturday, January 20, 1979 at 2 p.m. at the United Methodist Church in North Loup with Rev. Ruth Moorer officiating. Mrs. Irma Keown was the organist for Orel Kelling as he sang "The Old Rugged Cross" and "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere". Pallbearers were Leonard Jacobs, David Shoemaker, George Hiett, Dennis Jacobs, Eldon Sintek and Raymond Primrose. Burial was in the Hillside Cemetery at North Loup with the Ord Memorial Chapel in charge of arrangements.

Wayne Pierce Services at Ord

Wayne Pierce was born December 13, 1910 at Burwell to Frederick and Flossie Schuyler Pierce and died January 15, 1979 at the Lincoln General Hospital in Lincoln at the age of 68.

Wayne grew up in the Burwell area where he attended rural schools. During World War II, he worked in California as a machinist, and also at Los Alamos, Nat. during production of the atomic bomb. He was employed as a cook in the Hemphill County Hospital for 20 years. She then came to Arcadia to make her home and remained there until she entered the Nursing Home. She was a member of the United Methodist Church of Arcadia.

Survivors include his wife, Maybelle of Ord; two sons, Marvin Pierce of Burwell and Eugene Johnson of Ord; three daughters, Mrs. Frances Williams of Burwell, Mrs. Shirley Hoke of Summersville, SC, and Julia Gumm of Lincoln; ten grandchildren; three sisters, Mrs. Mildred Gregory of Ord, Mrs. Irene Winslow of Lacanada, CA and Mrs. Grace Irwin of Fernvale, WA; three brothers, Ted, Taft, CA, Harv of Las Vegas, NV, and Herb of Oregon. He was preceded in death by his parents, one infant granddaughter, three sisters, and one brother. Memorials may be given in his memory to the Bethany Lutheran Church in Ord.

Smoke Fertilizer that fertilizer produced by the process could be sold at the competitive price of $149 a ton, which would help pay for the new cleaning equipment.

He said a utility that produces 100 megawatts of power each year could produce about 125,000 tons of fertilizer for sale. If a plant produces nearly 192 megawatts, it could sell fertilizer worth about $37 million, if promoters' estimates are correct.

Although the immediate costs of building and operating the new system — more expensive than traditional scrubber processes — would cut into that profit figure during the first several years, Peck said, the returns would start coming in after about three years.

He said tests by IIT researchers show the fertilizer works as well as most nitrogen fertilizers now on the market.

Mary (Kate) Beals Services Thursday

Mary (Kate) Estella Beals, the daughter of John and Elvira Strohl Beals was born November 17, 1897 in Loup County and died January 23, 1979 at the Valley County Nursing Home at the age of 81.

Her early life was spent in Loup County where she attended rural public school and also the school at Almeria after which she made her home in Taylor where she was employed as a housekeeper. Later she moved to Idaho and in 1950 she moved to Canadian, TX where she was employed as a cook in the Hemphill County Hospital for 20 years. She then came to Arcadia to make her home and remained there until she entered the Nursing Home. She was a member of the United Methodist Church of Arcadia.

Survivors include three sisters, Mrs. Minnie Johnson of Arcadia, Mrs. Maggie Molley of Omaha, and Mrs. CO. Engler of Castle Rock, CO; plus numerous nephews and nieces.

Funeral services were held Thursday (today), January 25, 1979 at 11 a.m. at the United Methodist Church in Arcadia with Rev. Ruth Moorer officiating. Mrs. Ina Woody was the organist. Pallbearers were Howard Bolli, Allan Schmidt, Lynn Ritz, Rollen Sell, Louis Drake, and Roland Pedrick. Burial was in the Almeria Cemetery in Almeria with the Ord Memorial Chapel in charge of arrangements.

Kaminski Enters Plea of Innocent

Sherman County Sheriff Virgil Kaminski pleaded innocent Thursday in Sherman County Court at Loup City, to charges of drunken driving.

A Sherman County Deputy Sheriff, David Byrd, arrested Kaminski on the charge last November, just weeks after he had won an election. The innocent plea will result in a jury trial for the Sheriff, but no trial date has been set.

Sherman County Attorney Fred King, indicated he would not serve as prosecuting attorney at Kaminski's trial. The judge and both attorneys went into chambers immediately following that announcement.

A prosecutor must be appointed before a trial date can be set. Judge John Cenogole, who heard the case Thursday, will appoint one.

Kaminski was Sherman County Sheriff prior to this term, but lost a recall election in 1975. In the last election he defeated Bill Wheeler, who became sheriff after Kaminski's ouster.

AG TIPS FROM OUR COUNTY AGENT

By Al Martens

In an older barn remodeled for farrowing, can a dehumidifier be used to reduce moisture instead of ventilation systems which lose so much? Gerald Bodman, Extension Agricultural Engineer at IANR, answers this question as follows:

Ventilation is the primary technique currently used to control this moisture. Control is achieved by discharging warm, moisture-laden air and replacing it with the cool, drier outside air. Because cold air is being introduced, it does require heat to warm the air to interior temperatures. In most cases, supplemental fuels are required to provide part of this heat. The amount of supplemental fuels required will be partially dependent on the construction techniques used in developing the farrowing house as it relates to the quantity and type of insulation materials used in the walls, ceiling and possibly in the floor.

Ventilating an animal housing unit does remove heat from the facility. Exchange equipment, including dehumidifiers aid in moisture control while minimizing heat discharge. Because of dust, moisture and the corrosive nature of the atmosphere in a farrowing house, dehumidification equipment has not been found to be satisfactory. Extremely high maintenance requirements have been involved, so it is not recommended that moisture control be attempted through the use of a dehumidifier.

In ventilating an animal housing unit, moisture is controlled, but odors also are controlled. A dehumidifier has little or no effect on these air contaminants which, like moisture, can be detrimental to the well-being of the animals.

An alternative to the present system might be to re-evaluate the design of the air inlets and the size and style of ventilation equipment being used. In many cases, the farrowing houses are being over-ventilated due to the lack of small fans available from many manufacturers. If non-vented liquid or gaseous fuel supplemental heaters are being used to provide heat in the farrowing house, these also introduce moisture and consequently add to the difficulty of controlling moisture while minimizing heating costs. To assure proper performance

Meeting at Burwell for Stock Growers-CowBelles

The Area 19 Stock Growers and CowBelles will hold their meeting Friday, January 26, at the Legion Club in Burwell. The Dutch Treat Supper will begin at 6:30 p.m. with the meeting to follow at 8 p.m. The program on Animal Health will be presented by area veterinarians.

of the ventilation system, it is recommended that only fans bearing a "certified rating" seal of the Air Moving and Conditioning Association (AMCA) be used. Presently there are two companies known to be making low-volume AMCA-rated fans which are suitable for use in farrowing houses. One company has equipment which will provide proper air flow for units as small as 10 sows and litters while the second company has equipment satisfactory for 12 to 14 sows plus litters. Both companies have a full line of larger fans which can be used for warmer weather operations and for larger installations.

Fuelwood

As our supply of fossil fuel dwindles and the cost increases, alternatives for energy become more important. Because wood is a renewable resource its use as a source of energy makes sense. Homeowners can save money and energy by heating partially or entirely with wood. A standard cord of air-dried dense hardwood weighs about two tons (4,000 pounds) and has the same heating value as one ton of coal, 200 gallons of domestic fuel oil, or 24,000 cubic feet of natural gas. Existing and new plantings of trees will increase in importance as years go by.

Beef Days

On Monday, January 29, the Valley County Extension Service will sponsor the 1979 Beef Day Program at the Ord Veterans Club. This educational and informative program will begin with registration at 9:30 a.m. and conclude at 3 p.m. Programs for the beef producer and the beef consumer will be presented throughout the day. Lunch will be available at the Veterans Club and will be Dutch Treat. Please notify the Extension Office by January 25 if you plan to attend and have lunch at the Veterans Club.

Mid-Nebraska Irrigation Show and Technical Conference

The Mid-Nebraska Irrigation Show and Technical Conference is set for February 8, Water, energy, and fertilizer management will be key topics of the day. The show and conference will be held at Fanner Park in Grand Island on February 8. Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources specialists will present information on management of irrigated corn, soybeans, and pastures for maximum profit. The meeting, sponsored by the Grand Island Chamber of Commerce and the IANR, Nebraska Extension Service will include an educational program plus displays of irrigation equipment. A noon lunch will be provided by the Chamber and exhibitors.

Foundation Seed

1979 Foundation Seed order forms are available at the Extension Office. Now is the time to get your foundation seed order in. In cases where requests exceed the amount of seed available the Department of Agronomy IANR will use a unit allocation system. The size and number of units allocated to growers will depend on the crop variety, supply of seed, and number and size of seed requests. Area of adaptation of the variety will be considered in making seed allocations. The acreage a producer has been certifying and/or merchandising will also be considered.

Give It A Good Look

NEBRASKA FARM BUREAU FEDERATION

By M. M. Van Kirk, Director of Information

Nebraska farmers and ranchers have been pushing their pencils and home calculators to see how LB 188 just introduced in this session of the Nebraska Legislature would affect their tax situation if it should pass.

The bill proposes that taxes on a piece of real property be limited to 1.5 percent of its full value, and it has attracted as sponsors some of the Legislature's most influential senators. The bill is being promoted as a means of setting a lid on real estate taxes, of providing incentive to get counties to bring their property valuations up to date, and as a vehicle for solving state aid to education problems and shifting more of the property tax burden over to sales and income tax sources.

Nothing is ever as good as its promoters say it is or as bad as its detractors contend. Every property owner, whether urban or rural, tries to figure out how any new tax proposal would affect him personally. There is truth in the old saying that "the only good tax is one that somebody else pays."

In assessing the good or bad features of LB 188, there are some major questions to consider: What is meant by "full value"? Does this mean valuation on the basis of what homes, farms and other property are actually selling for? Presumably that is the basis on which LB 188 is being represented.

In making comparisons, consider that the "actual value" total on Nebraska agricultural real estate, according to Department of Revenue figures for 1978, is $6,354,574,733 on 43,589,731 acres of land and improvements.

On Feb. 1, 1978, Nebraska's farm real estate was estimated by the Nebraska Crop & Livestock Reporting Service at $18,480,000,000 in value with an average price per acre at that time of $385. The latest estimates, based on what land is actually selling for, indicate the value of farmland has increased 10 percent during the past year to an average per acre of around $425.

What this means is that in 1978, real property "actual valuations" turned in by the counties to the State Department of Revenue were about one-third of the definition of "full value," and are at about the level of what real property was selling for in 1968.

One landowner looking at that "actual value" total of $6.3 billion commented, "That looks about right for a 'production value total.'" What he meant was that the total is about what the land is worth on the basis of what it will produce. He has a point. Most farmers will agree that choice irrigated land selling for more than the $2,000 per acre that some farmers are paying for it cannot be justified on the basis of agricultural returns. Such prices are being rationalized as "a hedge against inflation" or because farmers feel it necessary to increase their current acreage by 160 or 240 acres or "whatever" to make a more efficient operating unit.

Another question: Can farmers stand a couple of extra percentage points in the sales tax rate? Their annual purchases of equipment and supplies on which sales tax is applied are very large. For example, a 3 percent sales tax on a $60,000 combine amounts to $1,800.

If LB 188 is passed this session, there has to be a system of setting up fair and realistic valuations, achieving equality between counties, and updating them every year. This has always been difficult to do, especially during the last 10 years. That's why the present property valuation system is in such a mess.

If this bill is passed this session and actually results in a reduction in property taxes, then the loss in local revenue will have to be made up in the form of other taxes. People have not said they want less in the way of local governmental services or public schools of less quality and they are not likely to do so.

Sodium Plus Potassium

Except in the Sandhills and a few smaller areas, sodium plus potassium concentrations average about 20 parts per million (ppm) in Nebraska's groundwater. The highest concentration in 1,282 groundwater samples was slightly over 1,000 ppm in water from a well near Lincoln. The lowest observed concentration was 4.8 ppm in water from a well in the Sandhills region.

Sodium and potassium are discussed together because of their chemical similarities. Sodium and potassium are alkali metals and both are very abundant in the earth's crust. Both occur in igneous rocks, especially those high in feldspar and mica, and are released into solution when the rocks are weathered. Potassium is commonly absorbed on or incorporated into clay minerals and normally occurs in much smaller amounts in groundwater than does sodium, which ordinarily tends to remain in solution. Sodium is absorbed by some clay minerals, which when dispersed in water may release sodium into solution and absorb calcium and magnesium. This process, called base exchange, often accounts for increases of sodium in groundwater beneath land irrigated by surface water.

Both sodium and potassium occur in evaporite deposits; however, sodium is most common common in evaporites of continental origin. Because sodium-bearing deposits are extremely soluble, large quantities of sodium and associated anions, generally chloride or sulfate, are released to water coming into contact with them.

Sodium-plus-potassium concentrations are low in groundwater from the Sandhills and Loess Hill regions of central Nebraska and higher in groundwater from other regions. Sodium-plus-potassium concentrations exceed 50 ppm in groundwater of the Platte and Republican river valleys where, in areas of extensive irrigation development, evapotranspiration and base exchange has led to an increase of sodium in the infiltrating water. Concentrations of sodium plus potassium exceeding 50 ppm also occur in groundwater from a newly developed irrigation area near Alliance in western Nebraska. In some areas of eastern Nebraska, concentrations of sodium plus potassium exceed 200 ppm because the thick deposits of glacial drift contain substantial amounts of sodium. Sodium-plus-potassium concentrations exceeding 200 ppm are also common in water from aquifers in Cretaceous rocks in northeast Nebraska and from aquifers in Pennsylvanian, Permian, and Cretaceous rocks in southeast Nebraska. The high concentrations of sodium plus potassium in water near Lincoln result from the solution of natural evaporite deposits.

The drinking water regulations of the Environmental Protection Agency include no recommended limits for sodium or potassium. Although high concentrations of sodium can be harmful to some persons with heart disease, water containing injurious amounts is so unpalatable that its use for drinking or cooking is unlikely.

High concentrations of sodium (Na) are harmful both to plants and to soil. Application of irrigation water containing large amounts of sodium increases soil pH and reduces soil permeability. Such soil deterioration normally takes place over a period of years, and soils so affected are rendered worthless.

Worthwhile Investment

Ord firemen have an axiom that department calls come in groups of three. Banner headlines in area papers this month have indicated their contention may have some merit.

In two of three fires reported this month, families near Burwell and Loup City escaped with little but the clothing they were wearing. The third fire, near Anselmo, claimed the life of a ten year old child.

Reading these items, I can't help but recall a present a friend gave the Misko family: a smoke detector. Easily installed, it went in our living room.

A second unit, purchased later, is in our upstairs hallway. Periodic checks, and my wife's cooking, have shown they are efficient in detecting smoke. Most recently, a casserole triggered the unit in the living room.

We don't endorse any one brand, but we do suggest that a smoke alarm is a worthwhile investment. For details on the various types of units available and other information, contact an Ord fireman.

If you won't buy a fire alarm for yourself, then why not do it for the other members of your family.

Won't You Help?

February 3, Ord Volunteer Firemen will have their annual evening of fun and frivolity at the Ord Elks Club. Proceeds from this year's firemen's ball will go towards the purchase of a new rescue unit.

Firemen told in mid-December, that a new unit was needed. An announcement from firemen last month stated the present unit has reached its maximum potential. A new unit, estimated to cost $35,000, is needed.

Support of the fund raising drive was fast coming. Ord business houses and individuals joined the effort days after that first announcement. By January 4 $6,000 had been raised, according to Ord firemen. Last week, the fund had risen to $11,474.

While impressive, that figure is still a ways from the needed $35,000.

Recognizing the common benefit of a new, improved ambulance, the Quiz invites your support of the Ord Fire Department, their annual dance, and fund raising drive.

Won't you help?

Mexico, I Love You

For years I have been fond of Mexico and Mexicans. They are much maligned.

It is true, some of them are slow and lazy and light-fingered. Yet they can be considerate, thoughtful, concerned. And I have never seen such gentleness shown to children. Of whom I may say, they have multitudes.

So I was rather pleased to learn that "Children of Sanchez" had been filmed. No, I haven't had a chance to see it as yet.

I've told you about this wonderful book before.

It was compiled from facts assembled during five or ten years of constant research, done with the backing of the University of Illinois.

One Mexican family and all its adjuncts and ramifications are detailed in the book, which was published some ten years ago. I have a copy: (I do hope I haven't loaned it to some dear friend who didn't return it!)

At any rate this one kindly Mexican assumes burden after burden. As his life goes on, he takes on the care of his mother, his girl friend and her family and her children and their children, his wife and their children, his brother-in-law, his sister-in-law, their children, the family of sweet old neighbor women who helped with his mother. And so on.

I do not recall it in detail, but the saga of this man, ever caring for so many, working hard always, hungry mostly gives the reader much to ponder.

What a long, hard life, spent in working for so many who had so little claim on him. Truly a warm, generous man although he never thought of himself as such.

He particularly cared for children and for old people and tried to keep them fed and warm. He loaned money, he bought flowers, he provided funerals and care no matter how hard he must work.

I do hope it made a good movie. Anthony Quinn plays the title role.

We live less than five miles from the border and enjoy a trip down Mexico-way now and then. There's so much to see and learn. The farther you drive into Mexico the more genuine picture of Mexico you'll get.

Often an entire town will concentrate on producing one item, it may be all silver, with shop after shop. It may be baskets, thousands of them, with anything woven to your order: you want

Pending Bills In Unicameral Hopper

By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent

The Nebraska Press Association Lincoln — All of the bills that will be introduced individually by Nebraska's state senators are in the legislative hopper.

The deadline for the lawmakers to get their own measures submitted is past. On the last day for individual sponsorship of bills were brought forward and placed on the legislative clerk's desk.

After 10 days, the total number of bills reached 535, but quite a few of them were offered by committees and didn't count against the 10-bill limit each senator has.

Committees, with the consent of 30 legislators, can still bring bills before the Legislature.

Among the large batch of proposals submitted on the 10th day was one Sen. John DeCamp of Neligh is "absolutely certain" will deal with what he believes will be "one of the biggest, if not the biggest, issue of the 1979 session" — tax relief for the small businessman, rancher and farmer.

His bill would allow a taxpayer to claim a credit on the state income tax return equal to the amount of personal property tax paid each year on specified income-producing property.

That property would include business and farm inventories, livestock, grain, seed, and income-producing machinery, equipment and animals.

All such property would be assessed and taxed at 100 percent of actual value, DeCamp said, including business machinery and equipment are included for the first time in the tax relief plan.

The amount of credit allowed under his legislation would not exceed $1,000 in the taxable year beginning in 1979, but would increase gradually until reaching the maximum credit of $2,500 in 1984.

DeCamp also introduced a bill calling for a 3 percent sales tax on lodging.

The Neligh lawmaker said many states have such a tax and it is "only fair and proper" Nebraska should reap the benefits of such a levy when "some living outside the state visit Nebraska."

The money generated by the tax, which would be mandatory, would go to the state and counties. One-third would be paid into the state treasury for state tourism and convention promotion. The balance would go to counties if the counties' governments voted to receive the money.

None of the lodging tax revenue could be used for capital construction.

DeCamp said an integral part of the legislation is a program for retention of highway advertising and development, under the auspices of the state Department of Economic Development.

"This critical element of the bill has been insisted upon by many within the lodging industry before they would agree to support any form of a lodging tax," DeCamp said.

He praised Sen. Ron Cope of Kearney, who has been one of the strongest advocates of a state tourism promotion program.

"Without the leadership of Ron Cope development of an effective tourism financing program would be impossible," DeCamp said.

The Legislature's Revenue Committee was urged recently by Sen. David Neill and Ernest Chambers of Omaha to repeal the state sales tax on food.

Each fought vigorously for elimination of that tax in past sessions. Their arguments this year were similar to those used previously.

Newell is sponsor of a bill to forbid taxing food purchases in grocery stores, and Chambers' measure would go a step further and abolish the tax also on food purchased in restaurants.

Newell described the tax as "regressive" and one that hits the poor and those on fixed incomes the hardest because they pay a proportionately higher amount of their incomes on food.

Both told the committee the issue is a moral one and should be dealt with promptly.

Chambers noted that when the sales tax was approved, a provision was made for rebating to Nebraskans the amount of tax they paid on food. But he said millions more than is rebated are being funneled into the state's General Fund.

Sen. Richard Maresh of Milligan is the sponsor of a third food sales tax bill that would raise from $20 to $23 annually the food tax credit. He said he was advised by experts at the University of Nebraska the extra $3 would reflect the inflationary trend since the last adjustment in the rebate was made. He added he would not object if it was determined the $23 was not sufficient to offset the sales tax on food and the credit was raised to a higher figure.

Gov. Charles Thone, during the first of what he said will be weekly news conferences announced the appointment of Lancaster County District Judge William C. Hastings to the Nebraska Supreme Court.

Hastings was chosen from a field of three, and one of them, Thone said, "could have" been ably dispatched the duty of a Supreme Court judge.

The other candidates nominated by a judicial nominating commission were Lancaster County District Judge Dale Fahrbrugh and Lancaster County Juvenile Court Judge W. W. Nuernberger.

Thone said he "finally" came down on experience" in selecting Hastings, 57, a district judge since 1965 and acting Lancaster County judge between 1963 and 1965.

Thone told the news conference he still has a number of key jobs to fill in his administration but that he will not rush or hurry on these very sensitive and important positions.

The governor said work on his budget was progressing well and his spending recommendations will be such that they can be accommodated with revenue produced with current tax rates.

Thone, responding to a question, said he would veto a bill to abolish capital punishment, if such a measure was passed on to him by the Legislature. But he said he might change his mind, if the bill gave strong assurances convicted murderers would seldom if ever, get paroled or paroled.

In any case, Thone said, he would be troubled "very much" to see the first execution in Nebraska in more than 20 years occur while he is governor.

There are eight men on Nebraska's death row.

Ed told the fellers he had read where Senator Russell Long wants to start a hidden sales tax that would allow the Government to roll back Social Security taxes and personal income taxes. This is a tax on goods ever time their values change, like when cotton is made into cloth and then the cloth turns into a shirt. The value-added tax, as it's called, would get a piece of the action at every step of the way, according to Ed. The piece said this form of taxing is used all over Western Europe, and Ed said the wonder of it is that it is a way to tax that we didn't invent.

According to Ed, the Congress ain't excited about Senator Long's scheme, but once a seed of this kind is planted it's hard to get rid of it. Besides, Long heads the Senate Finance Committee, so his thinking carries weight. The Carter-Administration probably will come down again, said Ed, which could be just the push it needs to get it rolling.

Ed went on to declare that Senator Long's idea bears out Democrat thinking that the late Senator Humphrey liked to use. He alluded the big challenge in politics is in finding new ways to tax to finance new ways to serve. Ed said Senator Humphrey would of loved this plan in Raleigh, N.C. to declare a map's mailbox his home. This feller that lived in the country rented a post office box in town to use in his work. The tax boys said that was his legal residence, so they sent him bills for property taxes on his car. Pritty soon, declared Ed, the city will figure out they ought to tax his income to, since he uses town services to make his living.

Eldon Bruha reminded Ed that tax gimmicks ain't limited to one party. He pointed out that Republicans first come up with the plan to sell credit cards and get a commission on ever new card user, and now the Democrats has picked up the idea. When you see somebody you're a card carrying whatever, declared Eldon, you are paying

KERRY ON

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

Taxes was on the minds of fellers at the country store Saturday night, so Ed Hulinsky just added another item to the agender with his report where Congress may dream up another way to draw money from us. Interest in income tax is strong out here in the country these days, on account the farmers and ranchers has got to get their federal report in by the middle of February.

Ed told the fellers he had read where Senator Russell Long wants to start a hidden sales tax that would allow the Government to roll back Social Security taxes and personal income taxes. This is a tax on goods ever time their values change, like when cotton is made into cloth and then the cloth turns into a shirt. The value-added tax, as it's called, would get a piece of the action at every step of the way, according to Ed. The piece said this form of taxing is used all over Western Europe, and Ed said the wonder of it is that it is a way to tax that we didn't invent.

According to Ed, the Congress ain't excited about Senator Long's scheme, but once a seed of this kind is planted it's hard to get rid of it. Besides, Long heads the Senate Finance Committee, so his thinking carries weight. The Carter-Administration probably will come down again, said Ed, which could be just the push it needs to get it rolling.

Ed went on to declare that Senator Long's idea bears out Democrat thinking that the late Senator Humphrey liked to use. He alluded the big challenge in politics is in finding new ways to tax to finance new ways to serve. Ed said Senator Humphrey would of loved this plan in Raleigh, N.C. to declare a map's mailbox his home. This feller that lived in the country rented a post office box in town to use in his work. The tax boys said that was his legal residence, so they sent him bills for property taxes on his car. Pritty soon, declared Ed, the city will figure out they ought to tax his income to, since he uses town services to make his living.

Eldon Bruha reminded Ed that tax gimmicks ain't limited to one party. He pointed out that Republicans first come up with the plan to sell credit cards and get a commission on ever new card user, and now the Democrats has picked up the idea. When you see somebody you're a card carrying whatever, declared Eldon, you are paying

At least 10 flights over snowbound areas, making an aerial survey and delivering such items as food and medicine where needed, and delivering personnel have been made by the C.A.P. the past week. Local men taking part are Cork Biehlom, Rich Marshall, Emil Smelik, Vernon Nay, Ellis Carson and Ed Swopes.

A blaze, which Fire Chief Geo. Anderson believes was caused by internal combustion, swept through the Valley County AAA office late Tuesday afternoon causing an estimated $1,000 damage to the building, fixtures, and stock of two Ord retail stores.

Ord, Nebraska
January 15, 1979

A regular meeting of the Mayor and City Council of the City of Ord, Nebraska, was held at the council chambers in said City on the 15th day of January, 1979 at 7:30 o'clock P.M.

Present: Mayor Rowbal, Council Members: Sears, Klinek, Lola, Grove, Goldfish, Smith. Absent: None.

Notice of the meeting was given in advance thereof by Posting Notice, the designated method for giving notice, as shown by the Certificate of Posting Notice attached to these minutes. Notice of this meeting was given to the Mayor and all members of the Council and a copy of their acknowledgment of receipt of notice and the agenda is attached to these minutes. Availability of the agenda was communicated in the advance notice and in the notice to the Mayor and Council members. All proceedings hereafter shown were taken while the convened meeting was open to the attendance of the public.

Moved by Sears, seconded by Goldfish to approve minutes as mailed. Motion unanimously carried.

Moved by Klinek, seconded by Goldfish to approve Treasurer's report and place on file. Motion unanimously carried.

Mayor Rowbal announced the meeting was open for public hearing on rezoning of Blk. 24, Haskell's Addition and Division of Div. II, NE 1/2 Sec. 21-19-14.

The Planning Commission recommendation read by Mayor Rowbal stated the Commission members voted unanimously to recommend approval of Commercial zoning of the property.

A group of area residents were present in opposition of the rezoning of the real estate. Rollin Nelson presented a petition being signed by (they believed) 100% of the people with a 300' area.

Mayor Rowbal read letters from several persons residing or owning property in the area all in opposition of rezoning.

Ray Setlik, President of firm Ord Coop. Oil Board, stated the Board did not want the council to feel they were bringing pressure on them to vote one way or another.

Mayor Rowbal asked for a motion. Sears moved to change the property to a commercial site. Seconded by Smith. Roll call vote, "Yea": Sears, Klinek, "Nays": Lola, Grove, Goldfish, Smith. Motion failed to pass.

Mayor Rowbal stated the Planning Commission's recommendation for approval, by the council, of the annexation of Riverview Industrial Park area.

Moved by Sears, seconded by Klinek to approve the preliminary plat of the Riverview Industrial Park area. Motion unanimously carried.

Gene Baugh was present to tell the council of the decision of the Power Board to recommend the repair of the W12 engine at an approximate cost of $2000 plus labor and to ask the council's feelings concerning the matter. Moved by Sears, seconded by Klinek to approve repair of the W12 engine. Motion unanimously carried. The Clerk presented an estimate of the special engineer of the City con-ing construction of street improvements and storm water sewer by Great Plains Engineering and Architecture, Inc. Engineer.

Councilman Smith introduced the following resolution #130 and moved its adoption.

BE IT RESOLVED by the Mayor and Council of the City of Ord, Nebraska: That the certificate filed with the Clerk by the special engineer of the City, showing the amount of work performed in the city under contract heretofore let for the construction of improvements in Street Improvement Districts #1878-2 through 1978-3, inclusive, and 1978-7 through 1978-11, inclusive, and Storm Water Sewer District #1978-1 and 1978-2 is hereby approved and the Council finds that the services therein set out have been furnished and have been received by the City and work has been performed and claims therefore are hereby allowed, as follows:

Great Plains Engineering and Architecture, Inc. $58,836.11
Less 40% $24,534.44
Total Estimate $34,301.67
Less previous payment NONE
Total Claim $34,301.67

2 Warrants Nos. 1, 2 and 3 for $10,000.00 each and a Warrant No. 4 for $5,301.67 shall be issued and delivered to the above claimant. Said warrants are to bear interest at the rate of 7% per annum until January 1, 1980, and thereafter at 7 1/2% per annum until paid, and shall be subject to work performed in the construction of improvements in said districts, and that if no funds are available when the work is completed they shall be paid out of the proceeds of the sale of bonds of the City after said improvements are completed.

Motion seconded by Council Member Sears. On roll call on the passage and adoption of said resolution, the following Council Members voted "Yea": Sears, Klinek, Lola, Grove, Goldfish, Smith. The following voted "Nay": None.

Thereupon the Mayor declared said motion carried and said resolution passed and adopted.

St. Supt. Emil Penas presented the one and six year plan for street improvements. Moved by Klinek, seconded by Lola to approve the 1 and 6 year plan as presented and set date of hearing on Feb. 5, 1979 at 7:30 P.M. Motion unanimously carried.

Council Member Goldfish introduced Ordinance No. 289 entitled:

ORDINANCE NO. 289
AN ORDINANCE OF THE CITY OF ORD AMENDING SECTION 1150 AS AMENDED OF THE 1978 MUNICIPAL CODE AND CHAPTER 22, SECTION 5 OF THE 1978 MUNICIPAL CODE AS AMENDED; PROVIDING FOR THE REGULAR MONTHLY MEETINGS OF THE GOVERNING BODY; PROVIDING WHERE SUCH MEETINGS SHALL BE HELD; PROVIDING FOR A QUORUM AND THE ESTABLISHMENT OF SAME; PROVIDING FOR THE REPEAL OF PRIOR ORDINANCES AND PARTS OF ORDINANCES IN CONFLICT; AND, PRESCRIBING THE

TIME WHEN THIS ORDINANCE SHALL BE IN FULL FORCE AND TAKE EFFECT.

It was moved by Goldfish, seconded by Smith that the minutes of the proceedings of the Mayor and Council of the City of Ord, Valley County, Nebraska, in the matter of passing Ordinance No. 289 be preserved and kept in separate and distinct volumes known as Ordinance Record, City of Ord, Nebraska and that said separate and distinct volume be incorporated and made a part of these proceedings the same as though it were spread at large herein. Motion carried unanimously.

Moved by Lola, seconded by Grove to approve applications submitted by Charles Teasley and Manchester Refuse for Refuse Collectors license. Motion unanimously carried.

Moved by Klinek, seconded by Sears that the Mayor and Council confirm and approve the appointment of L. E. Walford for a five year term to the Board of Commissioners of the Housing Authority, City of Ord, Ne. Motion unanimously carried.

It was the desire of the council that the Antirecession payment in the amount of $219.00 be disbursed for salaries:

READ I TIMOTHY 2:1-8
I will therefore that men pray every where, lifting up holy hands, without wrath and doubting. (1 Timothy 2:8)
When as a teenager I accepted Christ, I would seek out lonely places in order to pray alone with God. One day I went to such a place, thinking that nobody was there. Kneeling, I started to pray. But I was mistaken because two of my friends were nearby, and they saw what I was doing. One of them was a scoffer against my new faith. But seeing me on my knees, he understood that there was a reality in my faith. After some time, he accepted Christ and became an earnest believer and preacher of the gospel. He said that my attitude in lonely prayer was the cause of his conversion.
Our Lord said to the Samaritan woman that the worship of God must be in spirit and in truth, independent of the place of prayer. It is enough to lift up holy hands without wrath and doubting, and our Father who sees in secret shall reward openly.
PRAYER: Harken unto the voice of our cry, our King and our God. Unto Thee we lift our hearts and pray as Thy Son taught us, "Our Father, who art in heaven... Amen."
THOUGHT FOR THE DAY
Our praying is a witness to our faith.
