Bids Opened on Twin Loup Project Laboratory

Greeley Gas and Electric was apparent low bidder on construction of a Bureau of Reclamation laboratory building Tuesday. Bids were opened in the First National Bank of Ord lower level.

According to B of R officials the field office or lab building will measure 24 by 60 feet and be located near the Calamus Project dam outside Burwell.

Greeley Gas' bid of $52,000 will now be sent to the Regional B of R Engineer in Denver for final approval.

That bid was one of six opened Tuesday at 11 00 a.m. Other bids and their amounts were:

• Tricounty Building Systems of Bassett	$56,841.64
• Trotter Inc. of Arcadia	$65,814.00
• Paulsen Building and Supply, Cozad	$75,400.00
• Wheeler Construction	$89,954.00
• Davis Construction of Fremont	$101,490.00

The engineer's estimate for the project was $1,426.00.

George said making a heater is easy. Making one that works under all conditions is something else. Some 14 or 15 different models were tried and rejected before he came up with his present invention.

Patent Pending on Spierling's Stock Water Tank Heater Unit

George Spierling, an Ord farmer-inventor, has patents pending on a new stock water heater. In a Quiz interview Sunday, he said he started working on it ten years ago. He called a stock water heater, "a very mean thing to invent, a heater that will keep working and stay on the job".

Many people have and will invent heaters, George related, but few really work well, and work consistently.

His has been invented and working for the last five years, "and it has never cooked out", he proudly stated. His unit uses liquefied petroleum gas, is thermostatically controlled and has a constant flame burner which varies heat production according to outdoor temperature.

There have been several units sold in the last few years, he said, and customers are well satisfied. One customer complimented George on his unit's reliability and then asked if he could sell them.

An estimated 14 or 15 stock heater units were tried and scrapped before George came up with his present design, he said. Each failure taught him what was wrong with his idea or how to improve the unit.

Office Is Moved

Mutual of Omaha Agency has moved their office from the Cronk Bldg. to the south side of the Johnson Bldg. third door east of the Post Office.

Supervisors Get The Big Picture

The photos were provided by an arrangement with the Soil Conservation Service, the Lower Loup Natural Resources District, and the Valley County Supervisors. Supervisors funded part of the photo flights in return for their set of pictures.

The SCS and the NRD will use the pictures for various conservation purposes. Their offices provided county officials with a key map and identified sections on the pictures.

Supervisors appointed Rick Noyes to represent Valley County on the Central Nebraska Emergency Medical Services Board.

Judge Denies Paving Petition

Judge James R. Kelly, in District Court here last Wednesday dismissed a petition filed by opponents of an Ord paving district. Persons opposing paving district 1978-8, a six block area in southwest Ord, had claimed:

— The Ord City Council and the Ord Quiz misled them into thinking paving districts would be created only by petitions from area residents.

— The legal notice, run in the Ord Quiz, was insufficient notice that a paving district had been formed.

— That it was unfair non-resident property owners had been notified of the district by mail, and that resident property owners had not.

The petition filed by opponents sought to have pending work on paving district 1978-8 halted.

Prior Petition
A prior petition filed by opponents was denied late last December in District Court here on grounds it was too vague and didn't point out a specific defect in creation of the paving district.

Judge Kelly, Wednesday, said plaintiffs failed to state the cause of action on which relief could be granted, according to City Attorney Greg Jensen. He said Kelly found the Ord City Council had complied with all statutory requirements in forming the paving district.

Opponents have until February 5 to file an intent to appeal.

Ag Mechanics Contest Scheduled at Ord High

The District Five Voc. Ag mechanics contest will be held at Ord High Saturday, February 3. Contestants from 17 schools will gather at 9 a.m. Competition will be in dairy products, welding, tractor maintenance, farm machinery, farm wiring, and soil conservation.

The students will have hands-on testing along with written examinations.

Special Prosecutor Named In Sheriff Kaminski Court Case

A special prosecutor has been named in the drunken-driving case of Sherman County Sheriff Virgil Kaminski.

County Judge John Icenogle said Monday that Nance, County Attorney John Morgan, has agreed to prosecute Kaminski, who is charged with driving while intoxicated.

Kaminski was arrested outside Loup City late November 23 after he was elected sheriff but before he took office.

The special prosecutor was named because Sherman County Attorney Fred King disqualified himself from the case. Judge Edon Bass, who was most of the cases in Sherman County Court, also disqualified himself, leaving Icenogle to preside.

Icenogle was quoted as saying, "It was in everybody's best interest to bring a prosecutor in from out of town." All the attorneys in Loup City will have to work with him (Kaminski) after

Griddle Readied For Pancake Day

Ord Chamber members are firing up their griddle for the annual Pancake Days at the Ord Veterans Club February 10. From 11 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Chamber of Commerce members will serve the public free pancakes and sausage.

Richard Klimek is the Chamber Director in charge of the project and Ivan Sorenson is the project chairman.

Dr. Meckel Voted New Vice Chairman

Dr. Ben Meckel of Burwell was elected vice chairman of the Nebraska Highway Commission at its January 25 meeting in Lincoln. He was appointed to the commission in 1976, replacing William B. Quigley, Jr. of Valentine, who resigned. He was reappointed to the commission for a full six-year term in 1977.

Meckel succeeds Joe J. Huckfeldt of Gering as vice chairman. The new vice chairman represents 17 counties in north central Nebraska.

the trial is over".

At an arraignment last week, Kaminski pleaded not guilty, and the sheriff's attorney, Paul Matthey of Loup City, indicated he might seek a change in venue or a jury trial or both.

Icenogle said the case might be held sometime in early March.

The driving while intoxicated arrest was made by a deputy of Sheriff Ed Wheeler. Kaminski's predecessor and unsuccessful write-in opponent in the November election.

Before making the arrest the deputy called in Loup City's new police chief, Gerald Sere, in an attempt to avoid charges of a setup. Kaminski was reportedly found slumped over the wheel of his vehicle with the transmission in gear and the motor running.

Wheeler has said Kaminski was given a blood-alcohol test, but won't reveal the test results.

Dinner chairman Ken Petska checks on some last minute preparations for the annual DU event.

Solons — Sportsmen — Connoisseurs Attend Ducks Unlimited Dinner

State solons, sportsmen, and connoisseurs of good food attended the annual Duck Unlimited wild game dinner in Elyria Saturday night. According to dinner officials, those present dined on 30 ducks, 11 geese, four coons, 200 doves, half a deer, half an antelope, and had side dishes of dumplings, sauerkraut, wild rice dressing, etc.

Dinner chairman, Ken Petska, estimated attendance at 160 persons.

Honored guests were State Senator and Mrs. Donald Wagner, Ducks Unlimited Regional Director B. J. Rose, DU official Joe Kopecky, State DU Chairman Jim Ernest of Columbus, District Chairman Bob Ackles, former Game Commission member Ken Zimmerman, former State Senator Rudolph Kokes, and Richard Beran of the Lower Loup Natural Resources District.

Beran talked on wild life habitat preservation, and noted Ken Petska helped start the NRD's wild life habitat plan which involves farmers receiving payment for set-aside acres left dormant and for use by wildlife.

The habitat stamp purchased by Nebraska hunters is one source of WHIP funding, Beran told the audience.

Following Beran's address, Petska revealed the '79 dinner mystery dish was bobcat.

Items donated by area merchants were auctioned off, raising funds for the Ducks Unlimited organization. Petska placed proceeds from this year's dinner at around $4,000.

An Ithica limited edition shotgun drew a top bid of $1,050 from Hank Benda. He bought the item for Jim Cetak and Lloyd Geweke.

What is now a solid success had a slow beginning back in '81. Seeking to promote the Ducks Unlimited organization, Jim Cetak and E. P. "Spud" Kapustka showed a wildlife film and served coffee and rolls. Kapustka described that first fund raising effort in 1981 as gaining them little but pocket change for the DU organization.

Ducks Unlimited leases wetland marshes in Canada. These are both nursery and home for ducks and other waterfowl.

When the young birds mature in DU sanctuaries they start their long flight south, pleasing both North American and Canadian sportsmen. Each year another "crop" of game birds land, mate, and procreate on the DU leased lands in Canada.

This game conservation began when Americans and Canadians realized wild game of any nature wasn't an unlimited natural resource. Since then the DU international organization has steadily worked to assure an adequate supply of ducks and other game birds for hunters.

Jim and Spud, dedicated sportsmen, and others, took up the idea of promoting game conservation. After their 1951 fund raising flop, the two agreed a wild game dinner with a steep admission price might be successful.

It was and has been since that first DU dinner 27 years ago. Quiz publisher Kerry Leggett designed tickets used at the annual event, and area sportsmen and their wives help with contributions of wild game and meal preparation.

Since the first DU dinner, the local DU Club has raised over $20,000 for the DU organization.

Alumni Banquet Is Rescheduled

The Ord High Alumni Banquet has been rescheduled from June 20 to July 7, according to banquet officials. Theme of the '79 gathering is "Chanticleer Country."

State Senator Don Wagner received a surprise present from D.U. members during the banquet Saturday night: a T-shirt with the logo "Where in the hell is Elyria?"

Rescue Unit Fund Totals $17,742

The fire department rescue unit fund now totals $17,742.30. According to figures released by Ord Volunteer Firemen Tuesday, the fund is up $6,278 from its total of $11,474 recorded in the January 18 Quiz.

The department needs a new unit, firemen say, because the older unit now in use has reached its maximum potential. Newly learned techniques and equipment make a roomier, newer unit a necessity.

Donors making the fund to its new level are:

Planned Power Plant Still Generates Mixed Reactions

Plans to build a generating plant near Comstock are being met with mixed reactions by area residents.

In September 1978, Nebraska Public Power District directors approved a resolution confirming the Comstock area as the site for a 650,000 kilowatt generating plant. Plans call for coal-fired unit to be operational in 1986.

Some Comstock-Sargent area inhabitants see the planned plant as a major economic asset. Others have a different view.

Frank Beran is one of those in the latter group. He and his wife, Juniata, farm two miles southeast of Sargent.

During a tour of his property Thursday, he told the Quiz why he opposes the plant. As his pickup lurched over snow-packed roads, Beran commented, "If this thing goes through, I'll lose about 300 acres."

Included is the place where his son lives, 1 1/2 miles south of his home.

"We lose that land," Beran related, "it will affect our operation. The work load and labor are in harmony now. If we lose that land nothing will work right."

A self-styled conservationist, Frank has planted many trees on his property. Effects fumes from the coal-fired plant will have on them and other growing things troubles him.

Byron Wildauer of Dannebrog, was celebrated at the home of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. William Bremer Sunday. Guests were Mr. and Mrs. Wildauer, Kirsten, Nathan and Sondra, and Mr. and Mrs. Darrell Bremer and Jennifer.

The Darrell Hackels were Friday night guests at the Don Hackels in Crete. Saturday night and Sunday they visited Mr. and Mrs. Frank Esky in Lincoln.

Mrs. Jim Richstatter, Katje and Karl of Lincoln, were house guests of her folks, the Eldon Langes, Wednesday to Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Arvin Bredtauer and Todd attended the wrestling match at Ainsworth Monday and at Amherst Tuesday. Their son Paul is one of the wrestlers.

Land owners and other people against the plant have organized recently some boycotts at a NPPD meeting January 23 at Comstock. Beran was quoted as saying, "We thought rather than arguing the situation we could show our resistance by boycotting."

NPPD representative Ron Bogus said letters of invitation were sent to 50-60 property owners. Environmental studies now in progress were discussed at the meeting.

An estimated 30 to 35 people attended the session, according to one report.

The Grand Island Independent said Beran estimated about 20 people in the area joined the boycott. Beran explained they believe they are being brainwashed with propaganda, according to the Independent.

During an interview Thursday Beran said he "... would be interested in buying land, not selling it, and not under those conditions", of a forced sale to NPPD.

That organization will continually need 6,000 gallons of ground water a minute to run the plant, according to Beran. Asked what this will do to the ground water level, he replied, "That is what scares the hell out of me."

NPPD, Beran warned, has said that if one plant is constructed at Comstock, a second plant will follow. "And they told us that not once but twice!" he exclaimed.

Should this happen, water consumption figures would double, the farmer predicted.

Beran apparently isn't alone. Gary Long was also concerned about the ground water level. Publisher of the Sargent Leader, Long has been a resident of Sargent six years.

"People aren't concerned about the plant so much as they are about the construction workers and the impact they'll have on the area," he said Thursday.

He and his wife, Mary Ann, agreed many residents have been straddling the fence on the power plant issue. "But I'm not sure how long that can go on," the publisher added. "A lot of us are waiting for further developments."

Retirement Dinner for Don Long

Saturday, January 20, a retirement dinner was held at the Vet's Club for Donald Long. Donald recently retired after 21 years of service with the State Department of Roads.

Following the dinner, Don was presented a gold watch and a Certificate of Recognition of Service to the Department of Roads, State of Nebraska, which was signed by Governor J. J. Exon and Secretary of State, Allen Beerman, and presented by Alvin Grooms, Highway Maintenance Superintendent for the Nebraska Department of Roads, District 4. Don also received a personal letter from Governor Exon.

Thirty-five friends and employees of District 4 attended the dinner.

First Federal Tells Merger

Charles Thorne, president of First Federal Lincoln, today announced that the merger of Bloomfield Federal Savings and Loan Association, Bloomfield, with First Federal Lincoln has been approved by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board.

The office will open February 5 as the First Federal Lincoln with LaVerne L. "Swede" Johnson as vice president and branch manager. This brings the total number of First Federal Lincoln offices to 43 serving 22 Nebraska communities. The total assets of First Federal Lincoln are now in excess of $812 million.

Extension Board Members Elected

The Valley County Extension Board held their annual meeting Thursday, January 25, 1979 at the Ord Courthouse. The main item of business was to elect two new board members. Mrs. Orel Koelling, Mrs. Laddie H. Bruha and Ted Walahoski were on the ballot. The people in attendance elected Mrs. Orel Koelling and Ted Walahoski to serve on the Extension Board for a three year term.

Following the annual meeting, the Valley County Extension Board held their monthly meeting to elect officers for 1979. Elected for the coming year were Dean Rasmussen, North Loup, president; Lyle Sevensen, Ord, vice president; Darrell McKinney, Arcadia, secretary-treasurer.

U.S. Bond Sale Figures Posted

Sales of U.S. Savings Bonds in Valley County during 1978 amounted to $116,845 according to Don Blaha, county chairman. This represented 10% percent of the county goal for the year.

Statewide purchases amounted to $56 million which equaled 81 percent of the state goal.

Counties which exceeded their goals were: Thomas, 146.9; Dakota, 146.8; Arthur, 139.0; Hayes, 134.2; Johnson, 130.7; Boone, 113.6; Valley, 108.0; Pawnee, 102.3; Sioux, 101.4; and Sherman, 100.7.

During the year payroll savings campaigns added more than 15,000 new or increased savers compared to 14,070 during the previous year for an increase of 970 and represented 100% of the statewide goal for the year.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Stone of Sargent were Sunday dinner and afternoon lunch guests of Mrs. Emma Zink.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Howery were Wednesday evening visitors of Mr. and Mrs. John Wells.

Kate Gibbons was a Thursday evening visitor of Heidi Treptow.

Displaced Homemaker Program in Nebraska

Although the Displaced Homemaker Program has been through ten months of client service, some people still misunderstand who the Displaced Homemaker is. She is not displaced from her home; she is displaced from her role as homemaker, usually because of divorce, widowhood or disability of the breadwinner. She has lost many benefits, including health insurance; she will not be eligible for Social Security until 60, or perhaps much later; and she has little or no paid job history as a reference for employment and she must now support herself. The Nebraska Legislature has established certain guidelines for the program. However, they will talk to any woman and refer her to the proper agency if they cannot help her.

If you are having difficulty finding employment and coping with your situation, get in touch with the DHP. There are meetings each week in Grand Island, Hastings, and Kearney. In Grand Island contact the YWCA; in Hastings, the YWCA or RSPV; and in Kearney, the CAP Agency.

Your gentle face and patient smile
With sadness we recall
You had a kindly word for each
And died beloved by all.
The voice is mute and stilled the heart
That loved us well and true,
Ah, bitter was the trial to part
From one so good as you.
You are not forgotten loved one
Nor will you ever be,
As long as life and memory last
We will remember thee.
We miss you now, our hearts are sore,
As time goes by we miss you more
Your loving smile, your gentle face,
No one can fill your vacant place.

DIET TALK . . . More people than not are on a kind of weight reducing plan. At least half the people you talk with in a day mention the diet they are following — or diet they should be on. Statistics show that one million women are overweight — and the writer of those facts concludes his report by saying "these, of course, are round figures."

Did you know that one little jellybean contains seven calories? Since diet is often a matter of mood, it is a good idea to keep some diet foods handy for those mornings when you awaken with lots of ambition and decide "this is the day." If the low calorie foods are there, you can pin down your resolution with action before the mood leaves you.

It isn't a good idea to tell anyone you're on a diet, though. Whether she's plumper than you — or thinner — almost always will try to tell you that you look great just the way you are. Well, she does.

Naturally, most people who go on a diet do so because they feel fat. How very convenient if you can feel fat and rich, for then you can diet on the tasty expensive things like steaks, broiled rare, and luscious fresh fruits either in or out of season.

One thing more that's nice to know is how many calories the average housewife is spending per minute at her various projects around the house. According to my chart, this is how that goes: Sitting 1.11 is the calorie cost per minute; sitting and reading, 1.11; sitting and eating (not counting what you eat) 1.28; sitting and playing cards, 1.32; resting in bed, 0.93; standing and staring, 1.30; standing and dusting, 2.25; dressing, 2.93; taking a shower, 2.93; making the bed, 4.20; shining shoes, 3.36; mopping floors, 4.15; walking out doors, 4.89; walking downstairs, 6.06; walking upstairs, 15.92; kneeling, 1.00 and washing clothes (this means by hand), 2.33.

Now, is it really worth it to make the bed 24 times just for a one-inch square of fudge? It sounds like a dreadful way to spend a morning!

Former Resident In California News

An article of interest for North Loup residents was sent from California by Jean (James) Litzette and Alice (James) Rothert. The article appeared in the Long Beach Independent.

Mrs. Grace Packler Rood Mayo observed her 101st birthday on January 9 of this year. Mrs. Mayo, who lives with her daughter and son-in-law, Margaret and Dale Halverson, 6122 Oakbrook Ave., Long Beach,

CA, is used to the experience of being a centenarian, and takes it in her stride.

Grace was born in Astoria, IL, the daughter of a grocer, Sam Packler, Valdeictorian of her high school class, she taught at a country school in Illinois after graduation. The family moved to Ord when she was 21 and she became the school "marm" for 13 years, leaving teaching in 1912 to marry Walter Rood, owner and editor of the North Loup Loyalist.

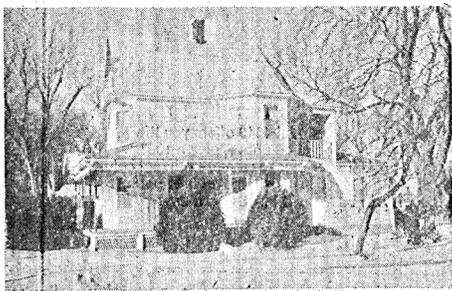

Grace wrote a column called "Most Anything," and made a name for herself as a witty, wise and knowledgeable newspaper woman. She even found time to serve on the school board.

Her husband died in 1925 at the age of 62, and Grace carried on for him for 11 years. She sold the newspaper in 1936 and married George Mayo, who died in 1941. A year after losing her husband, Grace began a new career as house mother of the Alpha Xi Delta Sorority at the University of Nebraska. She's been a resident with daughter, Margaret, for the last three years, making many new friends and keeping up with the news. Even so, her roots are Nebraska, and she gets a little homesick for the house that's her's back in North Loup.

Faculty Wives
Faculty wives met Wednesday evening, January 24, for a soup supper at Parkway Village. The rest of the evening was spent visiting.

Norman Luboff Choir Features Music of Many Moods

On Thursday, February 15, Norman Luboff Choir, conducted by Norman Luboff, will present an evening concert, to be held at 8 p.m. at the Ord High School Auditorium. This performance in Ord is sponsored by The Loup Valley Arts Council, and is a performing arts project of Mid-America Arts Alliance.

The mastery of all styles of music and the development of an esthetic philosophy which enables him to speak a truly universal language were the reasons for Norman Luboff's chance occurrence. They evolved from many years of study and work, many thousands of miles travelled, and a basic desire to communicate with his fellow man. That desire to communicate will be demonstrated through the choir presents its program, which features soloists from its ranks.

Performing 100 concerts a year on tour presents the Choir with a challenge to maintain its level of artistry and seek to expand its range. The close-knit family atmosphere that surrounds the Choir provides a key to understanding how the Choir maintains its consistent quality. Their warmth reaches out to audiences and repeated visits to some towns are common for this ensemble of excellence.

Norman Luboff is known as a singer, arranger, conductor, and composer. His early years in Chicago as a singer were eclipsed by the demand for arrangements. Since his "forced retirement", the words "Arranged by Norman Luboff" have become well known to anyone who has sung in a choir, chorus or chorale. In the mid-'50's, the demand became so great for his arrangements that he brought together the best singers he could find to form a choir. Initially, the choir's purpose was to record Luboff's arrangements. Yet, there soon came a demand for the Choir to tour. The Norman Luboff Choir began touring the country in 1963 and since then an annual tour has been a scheduled event in the Choir's hectic schedule. Ord is among the first in the Choir

Chants Hand 'Bow Indians A Shocker

Jim Smith (52) eyes the basket before sinking two points for Ord.

Host Ord Chants handed the Broken Bow Indians a shocker with a 68-61 upset Friday night. Ord drew first blood and got a quick 8-0 lead. The Indians tied it up 14 all with eight seconds left in the first quarter, and then made good on a charity shot.

Jeff Welniak sank a basket opening the second quarter, boosting Ord to a 16-15 edge with 6:44 in the period. A band of determined Indians came right back and got a one point lead 18-17.

The game was tied 20 all when 6'6" Dennis Poland went to the charity stripe. He sank one of two basket tries.

That one point edge disappeared when Joe Dworak made good on two charity shots. Ord moved to a 22-21 edge.

And it was Dworak again with charity shots, pacing the Chants to a 24-21 lead. After another basket by Ord, it was Dworak free throwing Ord's margin to 28 points. Bow Indians had 21.

Welniak got two and Dworak one more free throw giving Ord a 31-22 safety margin. Dan Martin and Jim Smith chipped in with one basket each and their Chants were in front by ten points, 35-25.

Baskets by Kremke and Wadas soon followed. Wadas went to the bench with four fouls to his credit. Twenty-two seconds remained in the first half. That was just time enough for Smith to sink a shot just as the buzzer sounded. The Chants were in front 41-30.

The crowd came to its feet, cheering a revitalized groups of Chants, they were playing like a new team. Scoring in the first half was well balanced with Kremke having nine points and Dworak nine. Ord got 13 of 16 free throws in the first half, helping them gain their 41-30 lead. The big question was could they hold on to it.

Second Half
Dworak and Martin boosted it to 45 points with 5:33 in the quarter. The Indians went to a man-to-man defense in the second half, gaining back six of the 13 point deficit.

Ord was in front 51-41 with 2:02 left in the period. They closed out the third quarter 56 points to Broken Bow's 47.

Fourth Quarter
With 5:22 left in the game Ord had a nine point lead, 60-51 and the Chants began to realize a victory was possible, if only they could hold on to their lead.

A foul by Joe Eberle helped, giving Barry Witherwax some bonus shots and so did another infraction by 6'3" Ron Day, his fifth of the game. Kurt Kremke did the honors on that last call, sinking both charity shots and giving Ord a 63-51 margin.

And a double dribble call on Eberle didn't hurt either. Adding to the Chants luck was a stealing attempt by Bruce Archer. That resulted in Kremke again, sinking both shots at the free throw line.

With just over a minute left in the game, Dennis Poland committed an infraction, his fifth, and retired to the bench. Kremke's two free throws were't good. Broken Bow got the ball only to lose control of it. Ord took over. With just 20 seconds left in the game Barry Witherwax tried for two charity shots. Neither one was good, and Broken Bow got the ball, and a foul by Indian Brad Bohy.

Cohen Hoppes made the two shots boosting Ord to 68 points. The game ended with Broken Bow sinking a shot at the last second.

Stats
Ord shot 22 out of 33 free throws and Broken Bow 21 out of 36.

Leading scorers were Kurt Kremke with 15, Jeff Welniak with 15, Joe Dworak with 11, and Jim Smith with 9. Witherwax had 7 and Wadas 2.

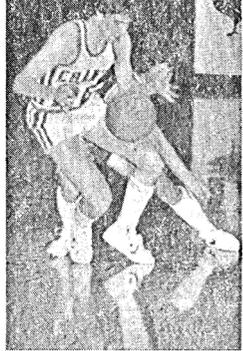

For Broken Bow, Reinhard had 17 points, Archer 13, and Poland 10.

Coach's Comments
A happy Fred Williams said, "Our shooting percentage was much, much better. I think we had 60 some percent from the line and 41 from the field. We've been shooting around 30 percent. And we capitalized on turn overs." Ord had 18 turnovers to Broken Bow's 17.

The coach said, "I think their emotions were up for the game." The Ord Broken Bow rivalry is an old one. Last year they nailed Ord. This year things were different.

Ord Reserves Dam Wood River

Ord girl reserves nipped guest Wood River 42-21 Saturday night. The win boosts Ord's record to 3-5 for the season.

Wood River had a hard time adjusting to Ord's full-court press. Not until the second quarter could the host Eagles score a point.

From then on, it was an even game, but Ord's early lead was hard to shake. "Also in the first quarter", Ord coach Tom Rhodes said, "we were running out of fence well and getting the ball to our centers and forwards."

"In the second quarter we switched from a zone pattern to a man-to-man defense. That shift gave Wood River a lot of easy baskets, Rhodes recalled, but not enough to beat Ord.

Leading scorer for Ord was Robyn Upah with 11 points. Peg Kramer had 8 points. Leading rebounders for Ord were Robyn Upah and Julie Scheideleer; each had eight.

February 8, the reserves meet Grand Island Northwest here. Coach Rhodes rated the Viking reserves as "excellent" and speculated they could be the best team his girls will play this year. "They are", said Rhodes of the Vikings, "very tall."

The Gal Viking reserves are 8-1 for the season. Ord's win over Wood River gives them a 3-5 record.

Valley Rods Claim Trophies

At the sixth annual Tri-City Auto Exhibition at Grand Island's Pommer Park last weekend all four entries from the Valley Rods Unlimited Car Club won trophies in their classes.

Gary Palder took a trophy for the 1935-1943 street rod sedan class with his '41 super deluxe Ford. Dale Beran's '51 Hudson won first place in the post-war sedan class. Allen Philbrick was first place winner in the street rod sedan delivery class with his '48 Chevy and Alan Edghill's '40 Ford placed first in the early street rod pickup category.

The Valley Rods Club won the money for best display for the second time with their mock-up of an old time gas station, "Rip-off Oil Co.", behind the members cars.

Lady Chants Gain Top Ten

The Ord Lady Chants returned to the Top Ten Class B ratings this week. Lincoln Journal-Star prep sports writer Ken Hamblton rated the Lady Chants number 10.

Ord returned to the ratings by bumping Sidney which lost to Kimball.

Gal Chants Swamp Wood River 50-40

Ord girls hustled host Wood River 50-40 Saturday. A zone press, along with solid shooting, helped Ord put the game away. The gal chants shot 47 percent from the field.

Ord's zone plan forced the Wood River Eagles to throw the ball away. Ord was most accommodating. Gal Chants took it, and rammed in a basket. Ord coach Max Murray speculated "an outstanding effort".

A junior, Kittle has one more year to play. The Ord coach estimated she averages nine points a game.

Top scorer, Nancy Gogan, was Saturday's star. She had an impressive 19 points during the night.

Murray applauded what he called "the whole team effort".

Kusek, Scheideler, and others came off the bench to spark Ord's scoring.

Ord had been lacking in bench strength, according to the Ord coach. This, he said, is improving. When the season opened the gal Chants relied on five or six individuals game after game.

"And now," the coach said, "we're getting some kids who can help us in the game." It's been encouraging to watch this progress during the season, the coach stated.

Ord could need them and all other players in the next two weeks. District matches at Broken Bow are scheduled to start February 19. Pairings will be announced next Monday.

Boy Chants Make It Two in a Row

The Ord varsity boys team made it two wins in a row Saturday by downing guest Loup City 86 to 51. Ord had a 47-34 lead at the half and closed out the game with an explosive fourth quarter. In that last period the Chants scored 29 points to Loup City's 10.

The Chants shot 55 percent from the floor, up about 25 percent from their usual average, and sank 12 out of 22 free throws.

A happy Ord coach, Fred Williams said, "All the kids shot well and played well as a team. This is something we've got to have." Ord was so far in front that Williams let the junior varsity team on the floor the last few minutes of play.

Recalling the game, he said, "I think our shooting is coming around. We're putting them in; before, they were going in and coming out."

Leading scorers were Joe Dworak with 19 points, Jim Smith with 12, Bill Wadas with 10.

For Loup City Rob Kuszak had 16 points and John Werner 9.

Ninth Grade Gals Swamp St. Paul

Ord ninth grade gals swamped host St. Paul 33-21 Saturday. The Ord gals got an 8-3 advantage in the first quarter and never looked back. In three out of the four quarters they out-scored St. Paul.

Ord had a height advantage enabling them to put several second shots in. Ord was 3 for 4 from the free throw line, while St. Paul was 5 for 9.

Said Ord coach Jan Weber, "I'd like to see our percentage improve." Other items needing improvement, she said, were breaking the press of an opponent and passing the ball more effectively.

Leading scorer for Ord was Sue Penas with 10. Diane Dworak had 9 points, Jone Bosworth 6, Tami Sears 6, and Deb Meese 2.

For St. Paul it was Sheryl Switzer with 13 points and sister, Sherrie with four for their top scorers.

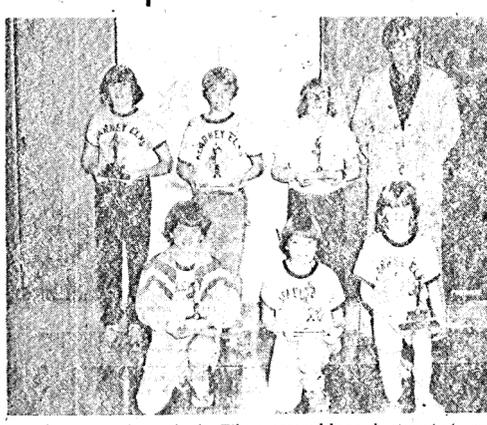

Ord's rebounding was led by Sue Penas with 13 points and Jone Bosworth had 10 rebounds. Diane Dworak led in steals with 4.

The girls' next game is a make-up session with Central City. An exact time and date aren't known.

The last game of the season will be the West Division Central 10 tournament Feb. 9, 12, and 13 at Ord.

Dick Noll Pilots College Cage Team

Dick Noll, former Ord High School all-state basketballer, is presently playing the captain's role as his York College team hails down its 13-7 record.

Noll, whose 19.1 points per game average won him the right to be on two all-conference teams last year, is scoring 10.7 points per game this season while shooting at a 49.7 percent clip from the field and 70.8 from the line.

According to Coach Dale Neal, "We do not have to depend on Dick to score as much for us this year as we did last year."

"Dick can, and does frequently score in the 20's but we depend more on him to run our offense this year and he has become an excellent floor general with one of the highest assist averages in the conference."

Noll was named to the second team of the All-Nebraska Community College Athletic Conference team as a freshman last year.

Arcadia Cagers Bow Out of Tourney

Arcadia girl cagers dropped out of the Cedar Valley Conference Tournament last Monday after a 45-29 defeat by host Cedar Rapids in opening tourney action.

Eiba went on to win the tournament. Arcadia was scheduled to play them Tuesday night. This Thursday, it is on to Taylor.

Arcadia gal cagers were 2-8 for the season Monday night.

FRIENDSHIP

I think that God will never send
 A gift so precious as a friend;
 A friend who always understands
 And fills each need as it demands.
 Whose loyalty will stand the test
 When skies are black and overcast;
 Who sees the faults that merit blame,
 But keeps on loving just the same;
 Who does far more than creeds could do,
 To make us good, to make us true.
 Earth's gifts a sweet enjoyment lend,
 But only God can give a friend.

Ord Reserves Whip Broken Bow - Romp Over Visiting Red Raiders

Ord reserves trounced guest Broken Bow Friday night 60-50. Ord had an easy 32-36 lead with 4:30 in the last quarter and took it on home.

Ord made 10 of 19 free throws. Larry Sears was the top scorer with 12 points and Randy David had 10.

Coach Lon Bartholomew said, "I enjoyed the chance to get everyone into the game for a considerable time. I played the entire bench."

He had another chance to do that again the following night. Ord reserves downed visiting Loup City Red Raiders 57-27.

Ord scored 16 points to Loup City's 4 in the first quarter and easily vanquished the foe. Loup City never caught up.

Again he played everyone, "and," the Ord coach added, "almost everyone that played scored."

High scorers for Ord were Randy David with 13 points and Larry Sears with 10.

Ord was 5 of 17 free throws for 29 percent. Loup City made 15 of 37 for 41 percent.

Ord shot 39 percent from the field.

Friday the reserves are at Burwell and Saturday they host Minden here.

The win over Loup City Saturday gives them an 8-1 record for the season.

Chapel Rites for Eva Robertson

Eva B. Robertson, the daughter of Harvey and Daisy Lynch Smith, was born June 8, 1901 in Custer County and died January 26, 1979 at the Valley County Hospital at the age of 77 years. Her early life was spent in Custer County where she attended and graduated from what was known as the Dry Valley R. U. r. a. l. Public School. On November 5, 1921, she was united in marriage to Ivan E. Robertson at Broken Bow. After marriage, they made their home on a farm near Arcadia. In 1920, they moved to California. They lived there for seven years and then returned to Valley County where they again were engaged in farming until 1947 when they moved to Ord and owned and operated the Diner Cafe. Mrs. Robertson was a member of the First Presbyterian Church in Ord, the Presbyterian Women's Association and also a member of a circle.

Survivors include one son, Charles of Riverside, CA; one daughter, Mrs. Doris Johnson of Rising Sun, MD; six grandchildren; one great granddaughter; and one brother, Kenneth Ray Smith of Hermiston, OR. She was preceded in death by her husband, Ivan, on July 10, 1964; her parents; one son, Harold; one grandson and six brothers.

Funeral services were held Monday, January 29, at 2 p.m. at the Ord Memorial Chapel with Rev. S. A. Hanke officiating. Mrs. Sharon Fuss sang "Rock of Ages" and "Sweet Hour of Prayer" accompanied at the organ by Mrs. Zola Schudel. Pallbearers were Lee Smith, Eugene Smith, Troy Smith, Dean Smith, Darrell Fish and David Robertson. Burial was in the Ord City Cemetery with the Ord Memorial Chapel in charge of arrangements.

Sheriff Report

Friday, Dargis Package Liquor Store, 128 South 15th, reported a window was broken around 9:55 to 10:05 a.m. No entry was made, and the front door was locked. Kathy Spady reported the theft of $40 from a purse Sunday night, January 21. She left the purse in the restroom of a filling station.

Thursday, January 25, there was a two vehicle accident in the Wheeler Farm Supply Store parking lot in north Ord. A 1978 Chevrolet pickup driven by Pat Hruby of Comstock, was backing from a parking space. A 1971 Chevrolet van belonging to Daniel Esherman of Ord was struck.

There was no damage to the truck and about $25 damage to the van.

Mr. and Mrs. Rick Bredthauer, Amy and Chad were Sunday dinner guests of his folks, the Eugene Bredthauers.

Ord FFA Stock Judging Team Bound for State Competition

The Ord FFA Junior Division livestock judging team placed third in competition at the Howard Pitzer ranch January 18. The win qualified team members James Kalhoff, Brad Staab, Mary Luack, and Jim Pokorny for state competition this April. In individual competition, team members scored well too. Kalhoff was third, Brad Staab 12, Mary Luack 37th and Pokorny 40th.

The senior team consisting of Dave Conner, Mike Petska, and Brian Martensen didn't qualify for state. Martensen received a white ribbon.

There were 68 contestants from 17 schools in the contest.

Clarence Christensen Services in Indiana

Services were held January 29, 1979 at Ditus Funeral Home in Warsaw, IN for Clarence L. Christensen, age 75, who died January 26, 1979 of an apparent heart attack at Koskiosko County Hospital. Burial was at Oakwood Cemetery in Warsaw with Pastor Lester A. Young in charge of the services.

Clarence was born at Dannevirke, NE on September 5, 1903 to Martin and Anna Keller Christensen. He grew to manhood in the Dannevirke community. He was married to Marie Moravec February 20, 1923. He farmed on Davis Creek until 1948 when they moved to the St. Paul area. Clarence was a long-time cattle feeder.

In 1971 he was married to Alta Arrasmith. Their home was at Warsaw, IN. He was a member of the Lutheran Church, Danish Brotherhood, and the Farmers Market Association at Warsaw where he served as vice president.

Survivors include his wife, Alta of Warsaw; two daughters, Heloise Bresley and husband, Dean of Ord, and Arlene Pedersen and husband, Dick of St. Paul; one son, Harlan and wife, Audrey of St. Paul; eight grandchildren; seven great grandchildren; and one sister, Martha Klein of Elba. He was preceded in death by his parents; one brother, Albert; one sister, Clara; and three grandchildren.

Heloise Bresley, along with her brother and sister from St. Paul, flew to Warsaw for the services.

New Council of Governments Members Are Seated Thursday

New members were seated when the Region 26 Council of Governments met Thursday at the Valley County Courthouse in Ord. New COG members are Carroll Thomas of Greeley County, Larry Rademacher of Sherman County, Walt Rhodes of Blaine County, and Rollie Johnson of Valley County. John Michalek of Central Nebraska Community Services presented the CNCS three-year work plan. COG coordinator Rick Noyes described the program as a continuation of present efforts.

COG members decided a central telephone number for all state agencies was not needed. Called the Information Referral Service, the number would direct callers to an appropriate state agency. Noyes likened the proposed system to a clearing house.

Favorable comment was given a proposal to have one budget for all three of the Region 26 functions. Region 26 is an umbrella for civil defense efforts, manages the communications center at Taylor, and helps the Council of Governments. Each of the functions or areas of Region 26 had three separate budgets, according to Noyes.

COG member Orlie Watts reported on a recent trip to the Nebraska Public Power District generating plants. Watts termed the NPPD sponsored tour "informative". NPPD sponsored the tour recently to show area residents what the coming Comstock power plant would be like. On a related item, COG members decided to solicit consultants about an Impact Assessment Study on Comstock. The proposed study would determine what effects the pending power plant would have on the Comstock area and suggest ways to avoid problems. COG had sought $23,000 for the study from the Old West Regional Commission. OWRC allocated $15,000, according to Noyes.

COG members will now determine if the study can be done effectively for that amount. Board members decided to get a formal statement on how state agencies view COG boards. Nebraska has never adopted a formal declaration on how they view COG boards, according to Noyes.

COG members decided to back a bill allowing joint housing authorities. The legislation, now before the Unicameral, would take nothing away from local housing authorities. Noyes told the Quiz, but would eliminate duplication.

The Council of Governments will next meet February 23 in Ord.

Weather Report

With another surge of cold Arctic air expected to usher in the month of February, Valley Countians closed out the coldest January on record with an average temperature of less than seven degrees beginning with a -18 Jan. 1 and ending the month with a -15 low on Jan. 31.

Snowfall continued to accumulate with little relief in the way of thawing temperatures. An estimated foot of snow covers the landscape, accumulating since Thanksgiving and creating problems for farmers and ranchers, as well as leaving a treacherous ice-cover.

Accumulated precipitation for the month, in the form of ice and snow, measured 96 inch of moisture.

Temperatures for the week are as follows:

'Water Law' Must Progress

Strategy is improving Nebraska's water conservation and use laws appears to be to use the piecemeal rather than the over-all approach, achieving some yearly progress in preference to bogging down with a massive confrontation.

During the excessive dry years of 1974-75-76, there was sentiment in the Nebraska Legislature for an attempt at a general rewrite of the state's water laws. There was a sense of urgency about such a project that faded when the rains returned and the alarming drop in water tables leveled off for a couple of years.

There were suggestions that such a piece of legislation could best be handled in a special session. Perhaps the senators' experience with rewriting the state's criminal code, a chore that extended over three or four sessions and aroused tremendous opposition over such subjects as capital punishment, abortion and sexual offenses, discouraged them.

Water laws in Nebraska have always been a complex subject dating back to the pioneer water rights on stream flows for irrigation. The early battles over appropriations of water for irrigation from the Platte system produced lawyers who were known far and wide for their expertise in the intricacies of "water law."

With the development of pump irrigation which began in the 1930's and has now boosted total irrigation cropland in Nebraska to more than 7 million acres, a whole new dimension to water laws and water problems has developed. Because the state's water resources have been so vast, development of its irrigation potential has been relatively unchecked and unsupervised. Only when shortages developed and water tables and stream flows began declining seriously has there been a willingness to recognize that the state's water resources are not unlimited and some degree of conservation and regulation must be accepted.

Vast amounts of information have been accumulated in continuing studies by University of Nebraska scientists throughout this century. Test wells in all areas of the state monitor the underground water resources through good years and bad and this information is available on a regular basis. Since the early 1960's, interim studies have been conducted by special legislative committees reviewing not only the scientific data but consulting with all major users... farm irrigators, industrial and municipal users, and others as to their present and future needs and anticipated problems.

Sen. Maurice Kremer, chairman of the Legislature's Public Works Committee, has proposed a number of bills in this session for changes in the state's water laws, particularly those involving the establishment of water control areas where problems are developing. The initial hearings on some of these indicate no great reaction to the proposals so far.

LB 26 would strengthen the procedures for setting up groundwater control areas. LB 201 has to do with the spacing of wells... irrigation wells couldn't be drilled within 1,000 ft. of industrial wells and industrial wells couldn't be drilled within 1,000 ft. of another irrigation or industrial well. LB 202 would set regulations involving diversion of unappropriated waters of natural streams, but would not apply to a well existing prior to effective date of the act. In other words, this would provide some regulation of developments which seriously affect stream flows and existing water rights.

The urgency for sound water laws and water conservation is dictated by the inescapable certainty that pump irrigation development will continue in Nebraska, that drought cycles repeat themselves regularly, and that water problems are best solved before emergency situations develop.

Mid-Nebraska Irrigation Show and Technical Conference

The Mid-Nebraska Irrigation Show and Technical Conference, sponsored by the Grand Island Chamber of Commerce, Agriculture Committee and the University of Nebraska Cooperative Extension Service will be held February 8 at Fanner Park in Grand Island. Here is your chance to see the latest irrigation equipment and visit with manufacturers. An informative and educational program will be conducted by Extension specialists.

Nebraska 1978 popcorn crop of 127.3 million pounds was 7 percent below the 1977 crop of 136.5 million pounds and 23 percent below the 1976 record high crop of 165.8 million pounds. The 1978 lower production resulted from a 10 percent reduction in acreage although yield per acre was increased by 3 percent. Total US popcorn production was down 8 percent from the 1977 crop.

Dipping Out of State Cattle For Scabies in Cold Temperatures

Dipping out of state cattle for scabies in cold temperatures (around zero degrees F) ordinarily doesn't cause problems if the dipping vat fluid isn't too cold (warmed to 40-45 degrees F) and the animals have some protection from winds. A calm day is best. The dip freezes on the hair and dries by sublimation (directly from solid ice to water vapor) when the temperature is higher, (25 to 30 degrees F), the dip dries by evaporation which chills the animals more than at colder temperatures.

In addition, it is likely the State Veterinarian would grant permission to delay the dipping for a short time if he were called (his phone number is 402/471-2351) and the problem explained.

This would be especially true if there was sickness in the cattle such as "shipping fever." It isn't advisable to dip sick cattle regardless of temperature. Of course, imported cattle must be kept separate from native cattle until after they have been dipped.

Soybean Varieties

Nebsoy Soybean is the first variety to be developed and released from the relatively young soybean breeding program in Nebraska. Nebsoy is classified as group II maturity, similar to Amsoy 71 and a day earlier than Beeson. Nebsoy has consistently been superior to Amsoy 71 and Beeson in seed yield. It is 3 to 4 inches shorter, has better lodging resistance, and slightly better seed quality than either Amsoy 71 or Beeson. Nebsoy exhibits better emergence under unfavorable conditions than Amsoy 71 or Beeson. The Nebraska Foundation Seed Division has approximately 100 bushels of Foundation Nebsoy variety soybeans to allocate to certified seed producers for planting in 1979.

If you are interested in being considered for an allocation of Nebsoy variety soybean seed, please stop by the Extension Office and fill out an application for seed. All applications must be sent in to the Foundation Seed Division by Febr. 12.

Which is more economical for heating water, Natural Gas or Electricity?

It takes the same amount of energy to heat a given volume of water regardless of the heat source. The difference in cost is based primarily on the cost per unit of the energy source and the operating efficiency of the heater.

At present, the energy cost for heating water with electricity is more than four times the cost for natural gas, based on an average electric rate of 3.8 cents per kilowatt-hour (kwh) and a natural gas rate of 21 cents per 100 cubic feet (CCF).

As a general rule, a gas water heater will cost as much to operate as an electric water heater when the cost per 100 cubic feet (CCF) of natural gas is about 25 times the cost per kilowatt-hour of electricity. When the cost per cubic foot is less than 25 times the cost per kilowatt-hour, gas is more economical; more than 25 times, and electricity is cheaper. However, the initial cost and installation costs also may influence the final selection.

DISSOLVED SOLIDS

Groundwater used for municipal, domestic, stock, irrigation, and industrial supplies in Nebraska is generally of good quality. The mean concentration of dissolved solids in water from 1,518 wells sampled for analysis was 474 parts per million (ppm). A well in the Sandhills region yielded water having the minimum dissolved-solids concentration of 47 ppm, and a well tapping a bedrock aquifer in southeast Nebraska yielded water having the maximum dissolved-solids concentration of 4,310 ppm.

The major constituents of dissolved solids in Nebraska's groundwater are calcium, magnesium, sodium, potassium, bicarbonate, sulfate, chloride, and silica. Total amounts of these and of minor constituents depend on the quality of the infiltrating water, on the characteristics and composition of the unsaturated material infiltrated by water en route to storage, on the characteristics and chemical composition of the storage medium, and on the chemical equilibria of the various constituents in solution at any time during the recharge and storage phases.

Groundwater containing greater than 1,000 ppm dissolved solids occurs in several areas scattered throughout the state. In the water-poor area of northwest Nebraska, the topsoil is thin and concentrations of dissolved solids in the small amount of groundwater in clay and shale deposits exceed 1,000 ppm. In northeast Nebraska, concentrations of greater than 1,000 ppm dissolved solids occur in water from sandstones in the Dakota Group and from other bedrock aquifers of Cretaceous age. In southeast Nebraska, dissolved-solids concentrations exceeding 3,000 ppm occur in water from wells tapping Permian, Pennsylvanian, Devonian, and Cambrian aquifers as well as in water derived from aquifers in glacial drift. Other areas in the state where concentrations of dissolved solids in the groundwater exceed 1,000 ppm include upstream parts of the Republican River and the South Platte River floodplains.

Concentrations of dissolved solids ranging from 501 to 1,000 ppm occur in water from alluvial deposits throughout most of the valleys of the Platte and Republican rivers. These rivers are hydraulically continuous with the groundwater of the adjacent, underlying alluvium, and at times water is lost to groundwater storage. Since both rivers have been enriched in dissolved solids by irrigation return flow in upstream areas outside of and within Nebraska, the alluvial aquifers in both valleys have been enriched also.

Dissolved-solids concentrations of less than 200 ppm are representative of groundwater in the Sandhills region since most soluble material has already been removed from the sandy deposits. The U.S. Public Health Service recommended a limit of 500 ppm dissolved solids in drinking water unless water with a concentration of less than 500 ppm dissolved solids is not available. Updated regulations implemented in 1977 do not contain specific limit for dissolved solids, but secondary regulations which are now under study and which are based generally on aesthetic considerations, include the 500 ppm figure for dissolved solids.

Dissolved-solids concentrations provide a measure of the salinity hazard of water used for irrigation. Most crops can tolerate water with concentrations of 500 ppm or less dissolved solids without adverse effects and, if leaching or drainage is adequate, concentrations of 500 to 1,500 ppm are not likely to be harmful. Water with a concentration of 1,500 ppm or more dissolved solids has a high salinity hazard and is harmful to most crops. Irrigated Nebraska crops, including corn and grain sorghum, have medium tolerances for salt.

Chaffin-Davis Named Water Assn. Directors

Thirty officers and directors to head the Nebraska Water Resources Association in 1979 were elected in Lincoln Tuesday, January 23 at the conclusion of the organization's joint annual conference with the Nebraska Association of Resource Districts and the State Irrigation Association.

The NWRA with more than 1,000 members statewide is the largest private organization in Nebraska representing diversified water interests. River basin directors elected were Leo McGowan of Ulysses, Keith Davis of St. Paul, and Jack Chaffin of Sargent. Other directors elected were Alfred Drayton of O'Neill, Steve Oltmans of Norfolk, Hal Schroeder of Lincoln, J. Scott Harris of Shelton, Ford Jacobsen of Omaha, Alfred Giststad of Nebraska City, Dwight Dam of Valentine, Elvin Terrell of Hay Springs, Don Thompson of McCook, Roland Emmett of Arapahoe, and Homer Loutzenheiser of North Platte.

Disaster Declaration Signed Counties to Get Assistance

Capitol news
By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent

The Nebraska Press Association Lincoln — Gov. Charles Thone has signed a disaster declaration in a king of 11 storm-struck Panhandle and Sandhills counties eligible for state assistance.

The governor blamed the emergency on a combination of heavy snows, freezing rains and high winds that left large stretches of the northwestern and north central Nebraska virtually isolated.

Thone, when making his disaster declaration, said spokesmen for two county boards said the consequence of the mixture of unfavorable conditions was more serious than the blizzard of 1949, which the governor characterized as "a rip-roarer."

The disaster designation made emergency aid available to Daws, Box Butte, Grant, Garden, Sheridan, Cherry, Grant, Hooker, Thomas, Blaine and Arthur counties.

Thone made six helicopters available for emergency medical services and ordered the state Roads Department to divert snow removal equipment to the snowbound areas.

The Governor's Emergency Fund is out of money, but Thone said he will ask the Legislature for a deficit appropriation of about $200,000.

Thone's action came less than a day after a delegation of state officials, including state Sens. Sam Cullum of Hemingford and Howard Lamb of Anselmo, flew over the afflicted areas.

During the 1,000 mile trip, the officials seemed especially concerned about stranded cattle and isolated farms and ranches.

In many areas, cattle were unable to get to feed, and vehicles had great difficulty getting from county and secondary roads to main highways.

Initial reports on livestock losses were sketchy. But Lamb said 60 cows owned by a rancher northwest of Mullen had died.

The Thomas County sheriff's office at Theodosia also noted the deaths of several calves isolated and many county roads were impassable because of drifting and blowing snow.

Lamb said one rancher in his district had received mail only once since November when the state recorded its first snow storm of this winter season.

community colleges.

If passed into law, the measure would require each of the four state colleges and each campus of the university to have a single, systemwide bargaining unit for its faculty.

A committee spokesman said the bill was proposed to avoid "undue fragmentation" of bargaining units — an idea that received strong support from university and college and administration spokesmen.

But representatives of the American Association of University Professors, a recognized bargaining unit on the university campuses, were very much against the legislation.

They claimed the roles and missions of the university's campuses resulted in different employee concerns, which could not be addressed adequately by a statewide bargaining unit.

When You and I Were Young

KERRY ON

— blending —

A friend recently wrote me about that endless search for knowledge of self — the unending effort to better understand us.

"Knowledge of self has always been a painful process with me — rather a situation of trial by fire. My mood is inexplicable when my mind is trying to grasp one of these truths. I am rarely able to see it or deal with it until I have been burned."

"How do you learn to stand on the edge of yourself — looking in — without losing your balance or your focus?"

It wasn't difficult for me to understand where my friend was at. I think we've all been there. But few of us are able to put those feelings into words. Nor do we have the patience of my friend, who sought the meditative silence and serenity of an aquarium to continue this reflective study.

"Today, at the aquarium, I watched the sea otters. They are marvelous animals with a face like no other — singularly captivating, full of charm, grace and energy. Preoccupied with their individual grooming needs when not being fed, I wondered if they had any sense of the profound pleasure their self-indulgence brought me.

"I sat, feeling suspended, as I watched the fish in the huge domed tank swimming all around me. Strange creatures — and equally uninterested in the variety of species around them. Less playful than the otters, many repeated a chosen path, passing the same comrades over and over with nary a wink to the familiar face or the occasional intruder.

"It reminded me of the plight of city dwellers who walk the streets daily, seeing another person's shirt or shoes — but never a face. But the pattern and easy motion of these many shapes and sizes brought a sort of peace... a feeling of blending in with the flow of life inside the tank. I wondered at the source of this mysterious feeling. Did the fish feel it too? Was this the explanation my mind had been seeking? Were all the personal struggles directed toward being part of the whole?"

I admired my friend's insight — and her sharing it with me. For too often I'm inclined to try and attach special significance to a single happening, forgetting its endless single happenings that shape our lives.

The blending of these singularities gives us the total person.

Dear Boxholder

Every newspaper worth its salt has a letters to the editor column. It may go by various titles, but the column serves the same basic purpose: letting the public exercise its freedom of speech.

At the Quiz, letters received go on the editorial page under the "Vox Pop" column. Those printed in the Quiz are accepted subject to condensation and other general guidelines.

Though glad to receive all letters, some make me pause and wonder a bit. What I'm referring to are mass-produced letters. We accept them, of course. Expressing a viewpoint on a subject, they exercise the writer's freedom guaranteed under the first amendment.

Maybe I'm old fashioned or just not in tune with the times, but there is something about these shotgun mailings that strikes me with the same sincerity as a letter that starts out "dear boxholder."

Something Different For Visitors

We have become quite addicted to San Diego and love to show off her charms to our visitors. There are so many features and we try to tailor our tours to the interests of each guest.

There is the Reuben H. Fleet Space Theater, unique in the world. Specially built like an inverted saucer, it gives three shows daily. It actually is overwhelming, as 10,000 stars are projected overhead to move and sparkle, as lightning strikes, as the planets approach and recede, all in fabulous color. The projections chase one another rapidly. One moment you're surging down the Grand Canyon, the next you are investigating atoms, or perhaps genetics or screaming at roller coasters, 170 ft. high.

A science museum alongside is equally incredible.

Or maybe we'll see a favorite spot, Balboa Park, established on 1,400 acres in 1848. Here every animal and bird and beast is placed in its own habitat and made to feel at home. Several sorts of bears, and bison, and buffaloes, a dozen kinds of monkeys, gibbons, large staid gorillas, we rhesus monkeys... some are attractive, some are spooky, some are dirty, some don't seem to be, as they lick and scratch.

The handsome zebras, all black and white. The tigers in their lovely striped coats. No two are striped alike we are told.

In the children's zoo the newest baby animals are shown, each in custody of a young admirer. How the little visitors love this show.

Sometimes we take the tour bus around for a 40 minute trip past the many animal runs, as a guide tells us about what we're seeing. Sometimes we take the sky ferry, swinging high above dozens of the beasts. There's an oryx, there are antelope; there are volvierines — those evil devils. There are dozens of exotic animals from farthest parts of the world.

Cunning Australian koala bears snuggle into the branches of bare trees. Last year there was an extra chance to see them but this winter they're on display next to the special buildings for the dressy black and white penguins in their icy background. They are striking, and pose willingly.

The staid giraffes gnaw at acacia branches; (they can't eat anything down on the ground level.)

One of the loveliest areas is the aviary, a walk-through trail among forests, woods, ferns, thickets, fruit trees and bushes. Dozens of kinds of rare birds whistle and trill and swoop, teasing us, chirping and coaxing. They wade in the streams, they nest placidly beside us, they chase one another joyfully. They are at home in a world of orchids, of lilies, of vinca, of rhododendron. Beside them are bamboo shoots 30 feet high on one side and eight feet high on the other: everything to make the birdies feel at home.

The flowers and trees are more marvelous and more valuable than the animals. Nearly every tree and vine is labeled neatly with both the ordinary and the scientific names. The flowers are unbelievable, and the view changes every few feet.

All around are tame birds, flamingoes, here in their pink glory; showy peacocks and their circumspect hens beside them. There are several kinds of pheasants, often from the Orient. Colorful roosters stalk unconcernedly all over the park... all animals and birds and flowers and greenery is protected by law and may not be harmed. It is great to feel the peace and beauty on every side.

Children are in excited glory in this park. Mostly they tug mothers and teachers, little tots ride in rented strollers. Many teachers bring classes and many Den Mothers and their broods remind me of the five years I put in as a Den mother. It is a wonderful place for children; this park; also for their elders.

Dear Editor:

On December 14, 1978 by a unanimous decision five Judges of the Appellate Division of the New York Supreme Court ruled in favor of nine year old Joey Hotbauer that he can continue using Laetrile and Nutrition for his cancer condition.

The medical authorities had tried to force Joey to undergo chemotherapy and other toxic treatments. The parents had chosen nutritional therapy and Laetrile.

Some important points were given by the Court in its opinion, that Laetrile is not the "Quackery" as the medical establishment claimed, and that in some cases they have favorable results with Laetrile and Nutrition on hopeless cancer patients after conventional treatments had failed.

The Court decision also says that radiotherapy and chemotherapy had potentially dangerous side effects and that all drugs used in chemotherapy are highly toxic, which included the administration of a poisonous toxin commonly known as mustard gas.

Further the Court stated "Scientific evidence clearly demonstrated that on the issue of toxicity, Amygdalin (Laetrile) is clearly less toxic than the drugs used in conventional treatments."

"This Court also finds that metabolic therapy has a place in our society."

National Health Federation Attorney Kirchpatrick Dilling for the Hotbauers said for the first time he had the medical authorities under oath and for this reason he was able to get these facts before the court.

Placed by Assignment

Gov. Thone said recently he was pleased by his assignment to the Agriculture Committee of the National Governors' Association.

"I am pleased at this assignment, following on, as it does, my service on the Committee on Agriculture in the House of Representatives," Thone said.

He added he hoped "to be able to continue the splendid work former Gov. J. James Exon performed as a member and chairman of this committee whose actions and recommendations are critical to the economy of Nebraska."

The same day he made that announcement, Thone said he would have given the American Agriculture Movement "a most cordial welcome."

The day the movement's tractorcade reached the state Capitol, an ice storm was getting a good start. The governor did manage later that evening to make his way to a farm east of Lincoln for a meeting with some members of the tractorcade.

Asked during his weekly news conference what he thought about a group of farmers piloting their tractors to Washington, D.C. in an attempt to press their problems, the governor said any group fighting for the best interests of agriculture "has my support."

He added he believes the tractorcade is an effective way to "dramatize" the farmer's plight.

Among the many things the governor of an agricultural state can do to help farmers is work with a coalition of agriculture-minded governors to get the position of the farmer better known, Thone said.

Would Require Exams

A bill that would mandate physical examinations for children before entering kindergarten and seventh grade has no opposition — and much support — when heard recently by the Legislature's Education Committee.

Sen. Gerald Koch of Ralston, introducer of the proposal, said it was designed to detect "not obvious physical conditions" that could result in a permanent handicap or hamper a student's learning experience.

His bill would also add mumps to the list of student immunizations, but it would exempt children from the immunization and examination requirements, if their religious beliefs were contrary to such procedures.

Among organizations supporting the bill were the Nebraska Crippled Children's Council, the Nebraska Association for Retarded Citizens and the Nebraska PTA.

New Highway Commissioner

Mickey Skinner, 45, of Omaha is a member of the Nebraska Advisory Highway Commission.

He was appointed by Gov. Thone to succeed the late Joseph Linton of Omaha.

Skinner, who was named Omaha's Outstanding Young Man in 1965, is a member of the board of Nebraska Methodist Hospital and is president-elect of the Marian High School Board.

"The commission serves in an advisory capacity to the state Roads Department director in the establishment of policies for administering the duties and responsibilities of the department."

Geranium Joe Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR: I was a part of a discussion of what people think Saturday night at the country store after Paul Maly give a report where a woman in Los Angeles says she can read animals' minds. The most interesting thing the animals have told her, Paul said, is that they can tell what people are thinking. This is really someone, declared Paul, since in 199 per cent of the cases people don't have the foggiest notion what people are thinking.

This lady says she can communicate with all animals, and she has found that dogs are best at figuring out what people are up to. She says when your dog sets and stares at you under the dinner table he's reading your mind as much as he's trying to get his message across to you. She said she talked to a lobster that knew he was going to get dropped live in boiling water, and he let her know he didn't like it one bit. A wild horse told her he couldn't understand how other horses were willing to do what people asked them. She said she can form mental pictures with animals thousands of miles away.

General speaking, the tellers took Paul's report with a large grain of salt, but it got them to thinking of the possibilities. Milo Florian said the woman's claims was pretty safe since as far as he could learn none of the animals was speaking on the record. But Dean Peterson said he was going to write the lady and see if she could reach Billy Carter's dog. If she can raise him on her mental telephone, Dean said, maybe the mutt can give us some idee what Billy is thinking, cause people to people communication keeps having breakdowns.

One thing that Billy has done, Dean said, is send his brother Jimmy to the doctor. He said he had heard the President's nerves had been jangling lately, and the doctor gave him a prescription for Carter's Little Brother Pills. About all you can find out about America's domestic and foreign policies these days, said Dean, is that Billy and Jimmy wants the country to understand that neither one has anything to do with the other does. Milo jumped in to say President Carter has got more important dealings than Billy, and inviting the former President back to the White House to meet the Chinese ought to count for someone. What it did, Milo said, was draw some of the fire off HEW Califano and his war on tobacco, but the big chance is to do for the country what the whole Watergate business couldn't do. If the President can get the Carter family dog to read Nixon's mind, Milo said, we might get filled in on that 18 minute gap in the tapes and no telling what all.

As for the anti-smoking drive, Mister Editor, I see smoking was up its usual two percent last year, but chewing and dipping increased nearly nine per cent. I'm glad to see snuff back in fashion, cause it go way back to the day when we had a sure fire way to recognize a Jevtheaded man. That was one where the snuff juice ran out of both sides of his mouth at the same time.

Yours truly,
Geranium Joe

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

MAKE LAETRILE LEGAL FOR CANCER

Write or call these state senators on the health committee that they be gracious enough to vote LB 382 on the legislative floor so they can return our freedoms denied us by the FDA. Thousands of patients have been saved with Laetrile.

Also insist that your senator endorse Senator Venditte's LB 382 because last year's committee refused to vote it out of committee. If your senator votes yes, he votes for your freedom. Without freedom there is no choice, without choice there is no freedom.

Members of the Health Committee are: Sam Cullan, Hemingford, Chairman; Richard Maresh, Milligan; Robert Clark, Sidney; Tom Kennedy, Newman Grove; Glen Goodrich, Omaha; Neil Simon, Omaha; and Don Wesley, Lincoln.

1976 Academy Award-winning documentary about 180 Kentucky coal mining families trying to win a United Mine Workers contract, will air on PBS Cinema Showcase Saturday, Febr. 3 at 9 p.m. on NETV.

After the miners voted to join the union and the parent company refused to sign the UMW contract, an illegal strike ensued. The film follows the strike through confrontations on the picket line.

During the year-long strike, viewers come to know the 180 families and the emotions and changes they experienced.

A tour of the wall-writings from the ancient city of Pompeii, which was covered with volcanic ash in 79 A.D., will be presented on "The Talking Walls of Pompeii", airing Friday, Febr. 2, at 6 p.m. on NETV.

John Forsythe tells of the cultural, social and political fabric of the Roman commercial seaport, evident in almost exact detail under volcanic ash.

Portions of the program were taped at an exact replica of a villa found not far from Pompeii that was reconstructed at the Getty Museum in Malibu, CA.

The role of the small town newspaper in rural American life is observed on "The Spirit of Punsulawney", an hour-long program airing Saturday, Febr. 3 at 2 p.m. on NETV.

The program follows the day-to-day routine of reporters, showing how the gathering of local news is part of a complex relationship between reporters and residents in Punsulawney, PA, known as the home of Groundhog Day.

Included in the hour-long program is the newspaper's young general manager who is seen covering a conflict between a local farmer and a coal mine operator, and conflicts with veteran staff members, the night editor, the social editor, and the city editor.

READ MATTHEW 7:1-5

"Judge not, that ye be not judged. For with what judgment ye judge, ye shall be judged." (Matthew 7:1-2)
About a year ago I attended a writer's course. Several of us became aware of a small elderly lady who frequently sat alone in the back of the auditorium.

She wore the obligatory admission badge, but she seemed terribly out of place in mismatched bright print shirts and slacks. She looked more like one of the housekeepers pausing to rest her feet than an eager student taking in a lecture.

During a break, I met her and discovered to my chagrin that this lady was not housekeeper but a professor emerita of journalism, retired from one of the top universities in the country. Recovering from a recent illness, she had opted for comfort instead of fashion.

"In my quickness to judge another by appearance, I almost missed an enlightening visit with an interesting person. How often we make snap judgments based on superficial data. Thus we close a door to what might have been a good experience. How much more Christlike to leave ourselves open to all people and occasions and welcome them as opportunities to grow.

PRAYER: Dear Lord, let us not judge too quickly or too harshly those who seem different. Remind us that we are all Your children.
THOUGHT FOR THE DAY
It is not ours to judge; it is ours to love.

Basketball Basics Displayed

Ord fifth and sixth graders provided half time entertainment at the Ord-Minden game Saturday at Ord High. The red team won over the white squad 8-6 in an eight minute mini-match.

The youngsters were taught basketball basics at a seven week school by Fellowship of Christian Athletes instructors. Said coach Al Cudly, "I wish I could bottle their enthusiasm".

He described the game as "a continuous fast break". Refreshments Punch and cookies were served the young players following the game.

Bankers Assess '78 Agricultural Prices

Ord area bankers gave their assessment of '78 agricultural prices during Quiz interviews Friday. Most believed 1978 was a better market than 1977 for farmers than experts had earlier predicted. Don Blaha, president of the First National Bank of Ord, said there was "definitely a better cattle market" in '78 than a year earlier. "It has jumped considerably in the last month and a half," he said, "but not nearly enough to compensate for excessive feed needs."

Recent surges in the beef market have helped a lot, he noted. Those price gains have come after four years of a sagging market for cattlemen. Merrill Mason, manager of Ord's First Federal office, agreed with Blaha. An estimated 90 percent of the Ord area is dominated by agriculture, he stated. It and local schools, the hospital, and the Quiz are the area's main employers, he said. Greg Stine, president of the Nebraska State Bank, agreed the area depends on agriculture — and the area economy is heavily dependent on the price of corn. This hasn't improved substantially in the past, Stine said. "It's stayed about the same," he observed, "and with inflation it is worse."

A recession is likely in '79 Stine predicted. He defined "recession" as six months of negative growth in the Gross National Product. The GNP consists of all goods and services produced or provided in the United States. Cattlemen and others will feel the effects in increased inflation prior to and during the recession, the banker said.

He termed grain prices "still very poor. Most farmers here raise grains, but they are fed to livestock rather than sold. Area merchants, and others

Ord Students Give 'Em the Real Thing in Demonstration Speeches

James Ritz gave 'em the real thing in a demonstration day speech Thursday at Ord High. The tenth grader brought four two-day old pigs into the classroom, clipped their tails, gave necessary injections and clipped their teeth. Teacher Alice Berigan said, "Most town kids didn't realize they had to do all those things to young pigs."

Other speech students cleaned guns, gave a music lesson, and recited a poem. Their efforts were for tenth grade speech students demonstration speeches. After Janice Psota finished decorating her cake, she let teacher Berigan and class members sample her lesson. Berigan rated Psota's effort a solid A.

Slick Streets Trigger Six Fender Benders

Slick streets were likely responsible for six accidents in this week's police report. There were no injuries, according to Ord Police, but property damages totaled several hundred dollars.

February 1 — A two-car accident happened just north of the 21st and K Streets intersection. A 1969 Chevrolet, driven by Patti Miska, was making a right hand turn from K Street on to 21st when it slid into a parked car. The 1978 Chevrolet, owned by Fern H. Lineback, had $125 damage. There was $75 damage to the Miska vehicle. February 2 — A 1975 Ford driven by Yvette Belgram collided with a 1971 Chevrolet owned by William or David Sims at 23rd and M Streets. The Sims vehicle was parked and Belgram making a left turn from M on to 23rd. There was $150 damage to each vehicle. February 2 — There was a two-car accident at 11th and Q. A 1964 Chevrolet pickup driven by Barbara J. Kittle collided with a 1974 Ford pickup driven by Russell G. Dockhorn. Kittle was headed north on 11th Street and Dockhorn was going west on Q. The two vehicles met at the intersection. There was $200 damage to the Kittle truck and $300 to the Dockhorn vehicle. February 2 — A 1965 Chevrolet pickup and a 1971 Plymouth collided at 18th and I Streets. The Chevrolet, driven by Lori J. Ackles, was going south on 18th St. The Plymouth, driven by Ted A. Nelson, was headed east on I. There was $250 damage to each vehicle. February 2 — There was $600 damage on a two-car crash at 19th and P. A 1973 Rambler, driven by Wynne V. Adams and a 1972 Toyota driven by Gerald Petska, each had $300 damage. The Rambler was going south on 19th Street and the Toyota west on P. They met at the intersection. February 3 — A 1975 Buick driven by Kenneth A. Durand and a 1978 Chevrolet pickup driven by Gaylord D. Bolesen collided at 14th and I Streets. Bolesen was backing from a parking space and Durand making a left turn on to I when the accident happened. There was $750 damage to the Buick and $150 to the pickup.

Chamber Handles Routine Items

Business items and committee reports had center stage during the Ord Chamber's luncheon here Thursday. Chamber head Betty Jo Axthelm revealed the group had a deficit at the end of last year. The Chamber spent $12,590 with a balance of $11,932, leaving the Chamber with a $657 loss. Dave Sandoz told those present of the "wonderful feelings" he has about Ord and of the "wonderful things" happening in Ord Public Schools. Those wonderful things in Ord schools he attributed to Superintendent Dr. William F. Gogan. Teachers there are given what Sandoz called "every chance" to teach students.

The former teacher turned mortician will be leaving Ord in the near future for a job at Broken Bow.

Committee Reports Committee reports came from: —Lloyd Needham, of the Membership Committee. He suggested all Ord businesses be encouraged to join the Chamber.

—Gerry Bundy told the Chamber there was $3,000 in a savings account not included in the Chamber's deficit treasury report.

—Greg Stine, of the Industrial Committee, said efforts to get industries in Ord continue. Land is available, he said. Luring a new business here could take one to five years, in his estimation.

—Mary Marshall, of the Red Carpet Committee, mentioned the opening of the French office complex last month.

Mary Seaver reminded Chamber members she and Linda Cetek will head the Gal-A Event this year. March 20 Ord area women will have a salad luncheon and style show.

The Gal-A Event is sponsored in appreciation for the business support women give Ord merchants.

Al Baeder reminded Chamber members the Norman Lubof chair is coming to Ord February 15. He said an estimated 1,000 (Continued on page 6)

Comstock Bar Sues Village Board

Owner of a bar in Comstock has filed suit against the Comstock Village Board of Trustees in District Court at Broken Bow. The lawsuit alleges the board violated the open meeting law before passing an ordinance shortening hours bars in the village can stay open.

Broken Bow attorney, John Sennett, filed the suit on behalf of Floyd Kahlhoff, owner of Bud's Bar in Comstock.

Another attorney from Broken Bow, Carlos Schaper, is Comstock village's attorney. A temporary injunction against enforcing the ordinance has been issued by the court until February 8, the date of the hearing.

Sennett said his client contends some village board members met before their regular meeting to (Continued on page 5)

City Dads To Give Firemen A Helping Hand-If Needed

City Council members voted to give Ord Firemen a hand, if needed, with purchasing a new rescue unit. Their unanimous vote came during a council meeting in City Hall Monday night.

Under the plan approved then, if firemen have a chance to purchase a rescue unit at a good price, but lack funding, the city will loan them the needed money. Ord firemen will reimburse the city at a later date.

According to Ord Mayor Richard Rowbal, firemen have collected $21,000 for a new unit. It will take about six months to raise the rest, he said. Firemen have estimated the cost of a new rescue unit at $35,000.

Councilman — and fireman — Verlin Smith, suggested the council see some specifications before firemen order anything. Enough city funds are available, he urged, for the council to back the firemen.

On a motion by Smith and a second by Charlene Lola, the item passed.

In other business, councilmen heard a suggestion for a new police car. The suggestion, from John Young, Ord Police Chief, was referred to the Police Committee.

If purchased, the new vehicle would replace the old model green cruiser owned by the department. It has been used as a backup unit since the new Dodge patrol car was purchased last June.

According to Chief Young, the Ord Police Department puts 44,000 miles annually on a squad car.

Trotter Lumber of Arcadia received $39,852.50 from the city for work done on the City Hall addition. Trotter, the general contractor, has $12,000 worth of work left to complete on the project.

That last figure came from Bill Raleigh of Great Plains Engineering, project engineers. During the session Monday, he gave council members a sketch of the nearly completed office suite next door.

The city signed a lease-purchase agreement with Ord Masons last year. Masons will use the top floor of the building, one door north of City Hall. Municipal offices and a fire department garage will be on the building's lower level.

First floor remodeling was started late last year.

Council members heard donation requests from Ord Rotarians and Mike Fox of the John Young Ord Police Chief. Fox sought funds for the June 17 airshow. Willie Skala, appearing with Fox, suggested councilmen give "whatever you feel is right".

J. Marvin Weems sought a donation for the Rotarians Circle

Tour project. More on that elsewhere in this Quiz.

Smith suggested the American Legion or the Veterans of Foreign Wars might be interested in helping the Rotary project.

Weems pointed out the tours would benefit both tourists and area businesses.

Frank Kapuska, Clarence Fox, and Elmer Bergman, Ord Golf Board members, had another funding request. They asked the council to help them get state and federal funds for club house and golf course improvements.

City dads told them to come back with total cost estimates.

Smith told the council Dr. Otis Miller wanted to delete 128 feet on U Street from a paving district. The area he wanted withheld is on U Street between 14th and 15 Streets, lots two and three.

Smith's motion to set aside the 128 feet died for lack of a second. Mayor Rowbal reminded councilmen the first communication consolidation meeting would be this Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in City Hall. City and county officials and others will study the feasibility of consolidating their radio communications systems.

City Street Commissioner Em I Penas presented the one and six year street improvement program. A map showing these planned improvements is in the November 30 Quiz, front page.

Year End Report Shows Criminal Activity Is Down by Fifty Percent

The Valley County Sheriff's Department ended 1978 with records showing criminal activity reported to the department was about 50 percent below that reported in 1977. This reduction is in serious crimes such as theft and burglaries.

Also down were accidents with 31 in '78 versus 43 in 1977. Two of these involved fatalities. Fines received from the courts were down from 344 to 233 in 1978.

The Sheriff's department received 50 distress warrants from the Treasurer in 1978, totaling $14,440.33 of which $9,400.00 had been collected by December 31, 1978. Total taxes collected during 1978 were $13,259.23.

Other areas included: — 104 bad checks received, 72 collected informally totaling $2,407.56. — 103 arrests made in 1978. — 109 prisoners handled in Valley County Jail. — $3,082.00 paid in fines and costs for citations issued. — Deputies worked 28 hours in 1978. — $7,691.95 paid to County for Sheriff's services in 1978. — 11,467 communications handled by secretary and jailors. (7,230 on night and weekend shifts) — The "Vial of Life" program was completed in 1978. Local expenditures (Continued on page 6)

Estate Seminar Session Scheduled Febr. 20th

Estate planning will be the topic of a one-day seminar offered in Ord by the University of Nebraska Learning Center. Paul Wilmut, Coordinator of the Center, said the seminar will be held at the First National Bank on February 20, from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m.

A panel of experts including an attorney, life insurance agent, banker and an accountant will explain complicated financial matters such as wills, life insurance, and trust funds. There will be a question and answer period following the seminar.

Rotarians Plot Area Circle Tours

Ord Rotarians are making it easier for newcomers and old timers alike to be aware of their heritage. Their Circle Tour program, according to Rotarian J. Marvin Weems, will provide both entertainment and education for participants.

Rotarians, along with the Nebraska Department of Economic Development, have prepared brochures outlining three tours of the Ord area. Included are Fort Hartsuff, the Scotia Chalk Mines, the Ericson Sale Barn, and other items.

The tours were first started in 1973, according to Weems. A region committee, consisting of Willie Skala, Dr. Glen Auble, and Weems recently updated the tours. Started last November, that assignment has been completed, and sent to the state D.E.D.

Dairy Products Team Is First at District

By Don Proskocil, FFA Reporter

Eighteen schools took part in the District Ag Mechanics Contest at Ord High Saturday. The Ord Dairy Products judging team took first over teams from Albion, Ansley, Broken Bow, Burwell, Elba, Fullerton, Genoa, Humphrey, Loup City, Loup County, North Loup-Scottia, St. Edward, St. Paul, Sargent, Spalding, Wheeler Central, and Wolbach.

Elba won the over-all contest rating and will represent District Five at state. A win there will qualify them for the national contest.

Ord teams and their placings included: — Dairy Products Team, First place, purple ribbon. Team members were Randy Psota, Steve Setlik, and Kevin Wagner. — Metals Team, Fifth place, blue ribbon. Team member was Mark Knight. — Tractor Maintenance, Third place, blue ribbon. Team members were Martin Bruha and Jerry Kramer. — Farm Machinery, Second place, blue ribbon. Team members were Bryan Kirby and Byron Stevens. — Farm Wiring, Sixth place, red ribbon. Team members were Kevin Hruza, and Mike Petska. — Soil Conservation, Fifth place and a red ribbon. Team members were Eugene Bruha, Brian Martensen, and Julie Scheideler.

Sixel Notes Fifty Years In Banking

Clarence Sixel celebrated his 50 years in banking with free coffee and doughnuts at his State Bank of Scotia Friday.

He started work in the bank at Harbine, Nebraska January 1, 1929. The cashier of the bank there asked Clarence's father, "What's your kid going to do after he graduates from high school?" In a Quiz interview Friday, Clarence explained, "The deal was, I was to work there for six months — at no pay — to see how I liked it." He passed that probationary period, and remained with the bank for six years. It was liquidated in 1934, but paid depositors 100 cents on the dollar. "Those were rough times," Clarence recalled. "A major depression held the nation in its grip. I don't see how we existed. Nobody seemed to make any money." Back then someone borrowing $100 to $150 from a bank was a big operator, the long-time financier recalled. Since then he has acquired what he called "a self-education. I learned as I grew." A series of banking jobs added to his knowledge. In 1948 he came to Scotia. His bank moved to its present location in 1974. Son Robert joined the bank in 1975 and is now an executive vice president there. Clarence's wife, Janet, serves as vice president.

Ord Rescue Unit Fund Totals $21,919

The Ord Fire Department Rescue Unit fund now totals $21,919, according to Ord Firemen. This is up $4,177 from one week ago.

The new unit is needed, according to Ord Firemen, because the present unit has reached maximum potential. New equipment and advanced training by local firefighters make a new unit a necessity.

Firemen started soliciting area residents for the new unit last December. Over $11,000 had been collected by January 17.

Donors Listed Donors making the new total of $21,919 possible are: Ann Parks, Vivian Turner, E. R. Kokes, J. B. Zulkoski, Albert F. Edwards, Philip Wentek, Robert Hlavinka, Bill Mroczek, Mrs. Edw. J. Sevenker, Anton Sydzik, Leroy Burson, Cecil E. McCail,

CAROL'S CORNER

CURES FOR BOREDOM... Like it or not, there is a lot of wintertime ahead. Are you having a hard time finding something — anything — to do on ice-cold days and Sundays? Or both of the above.

You are not alone. What you are probably suffering from is a common affliction that has been the scourge of mankind down through the ages. Boredom. Boredom can be as hard to cure as the common cold. Up until now that is. Now, there has been brewed, a list of perfect remedies for things to do when there is absolutely nothing to do. These range from the ridiculous to the outrageous. Here are a few:

- Stick things between your toes.
- Act sickeningly cutesy.
- Check for loose change in the sofa.
- Lock yourself in a closet and pretend you are the only one left.
- Wear a paper bag over your head.
- Stack raisins. Eat the ones that won't stay on top.
- Squish a loaf of bread. Then make little dough men out of your squished bread and eat them.
- Relive fond memories.
- Tell your feet a joke.
- Dance with a broom.
- Make a mess.
- Appreciate everything.
- Set your watch back an hour and live it over.
- Count your teeth with your tongue.
- Gargle.

Actually, it can be invigorating to be un-bored. You'll laugh a lot — and that alone can be reason enough to be bored no more. Try it.

"The Flies" Rates Superior

The North Loup-Scotia one-act play, "The Flies", was rated as one of the top plays at the State One-Act play contest held last week at Kearney State College. The NLS production received Superior ratings from both judges and placed second in the preliminary round. Norfolk Catholic received a score of 54.5 and the Wildcats received a score of 53.

Twenty-seven plays were entered in the competition. All of these plays had received Superior ratings at district contests. The plays were divided into three groups and one play from each section advanced to the finals. Norfolk Catholic and Plainview tied for first place and North Platte St. Patricks received second place.

Members of the NLS cast were: Lori Jeffers, Karen Jensen, Kim Peterson, Lisa Rasmussen, Reba Ackles, Tim Edwards, Steven Roy and Rick Metteer. Sharon Kriewald served as assistant-to-the-director.

Director Mel Shoemaker made the following remarks about the production, "Despite the fact that we were disappointed we did not make the final three, the students should realize they had an excellent theatre experience. All five judges who viewed the play gave it Superior ratings; three students were awarded outstanding acting awards; they won the conference one-act contest; and they qualified for State and did an admirable job there."

Mrs. Emanuel Wadas spent Wednesday and Friday helping Mrs. Joe Shafer pack. The Shafers are moving to Crofton.

ERICSON

Chants Squeak By Burwell Longhorns

Cohen Hoppes (31) gives a Burwell Longhorn a tough time Friday night.

Ord Chanticleers squeaked by a band of determined Longhorns 44-41 at Burwell Friday. Burwell was going into the match with a 8-6 record and hopes of a win over a long-time rival, Ord.

The Chants were ahead 8-12 at the end of the first period, but not without some scary moments. Burwell tied the game four times in the first eight minutes.

The Longhorns lagged by one point, 13-12, seven minutes into the second period. A controversial call at 6:47 gave the horns two free throws. Both were in, and they were nipping at Ord's heels 15-14. One basket later they were in front 16-15.

Fans expecting an easy win over Burwell had to shift their thinking. The clock ticked away, and Burwell held on to their one-point lead, and then boosted it to 5 points.

Thirsting for a victory after years of humiliation by Ord, horn enthusiasts were going wild. What could be sweeter than a win over Ord, they reasoned. With a 8-6 record it was possible. Unlikely, yes. But possible.

Ord pulled ahead 21-20 with 2:47 left in the first half. Then Burwell was up 22-21. The seesaw battle closed with a basket by Witherwax putting Ord in front 25-24 at the end of the first half.

Leading scorer for Ord that period was Joe Dworak with 10 points. Burwell had 6.

Half

The Longhorns moved to a 28-27 lead with four minutes left in the third quarter. At 3:40 Ord got a 29-28 edge. One point isn't a solid lead and with the free for all Friday night, it wasn't even a straw in the wind.

Ord began padding their lead. With 1:16 left in the third frame, the Chants were up 35-28. Ord began breathing easier.

Briefly.

Burwell was within three points of Ord, 35-32, when the third quarter ended.

Fourth Quarter

Ord had added two points to their lead when an infraction sent Longhorn Bob Augustyn to the free throw line. One shot went in, Burwell rebounded and sank a basket. Ord was ahead by two slim points.

Charity shots by Ord's Joe Dworak helped pad the Chants' lead, but then came a basket by Burwell, and the two-point syndrome returned.

The score was 40-39. Ord, with 3:24 left in the game, Ord's Jeff Welniak sank a basket. Seconds later, Burwell did too. The score changed but not the one point margin. When time out was called, Ord was in front 42-41. Less than two minutes remained in the game.

Burwell started working the ball carefully, looking for an opening. A fluffed pass gave Ord the ball.

Ord had started a slow-down when a Burwell player lunged for the ball. Barry Witherwax went to the free throw line and sank both shots with 20 seconds left in the game.

The Longhorns tried some frantic last-ditch effort playing, but the Chants closed out the game with a 44-41 win.

Scoring by Quarters

Ord	12	13	10	9	44
Burwell	10	14	8	9	41

Witherwax 10, Dworak 14, Barry Witherwax 10, Ord was 10 out of 16 free throws.

Burwell's Jeff Hoppes had 20 points and Bob Augustyn had 5.

Gal Chants Take Second In Tournery

The Ord Lady Chants came within a whisper of winning their own invitational meet Thursday night. They were edged 53-49 by Kearney in the championship game at Ord High.

Kearney was coming into the final match with a 10-2 record. Their two losses were to Lincoln High and Lincoln East, teams Ord had defeated earlier in an invitational tournament at Lincoln, late last year.

The Ord girls had a 9-4 record. Most recent wins were over Wood River (50-40) and Seward. Ord topped the gal Seward 'Jays 64-61 in a game last month.

They followed that win with another close game against Ainsworth January 30 in Ord Invitational preliminary rounds. Ord took that match 47-45.

Ord had a 16-4 lead in the first quarter. Then Ainsworth came back in the middle two periods, outscoring Ord 27-14. A complacent Ord squad was surprised by Ainsworth's height and revived spirit, according to gal varsity coach Max Murray.

Trailing 31-30 at the end of the third quarter, the Ord gals got their act together and staged a rally. Ord crept ahead on two early baskets by Anne Smith and 11 out of 15 free throws in the final quarter.

Ainsworth hung in there and gave Ord fans a real scare. The Lady Chants took the game, barely, in the last seconds of the fourth quarter.

Ord-Kearney Game

That win advanced the Lady Chants to the finals round of the Ord Invitational Thursday. The team "played a better game than they did against Ainsworth", according to coach Max Murray, but that wasn't enough. The bowed to top-ranked Kearney 53-49.

Ord drew first blood, and tied the game four points all midway through the first quarter. Then Kearney broke loose and ended the period with an 12-8 lead.

The Bear Kittens kept up the pace, opening the second quarter with back-to-back baskets. A Chant foul gave Kearney the ball, with 6:10 in the quarter.

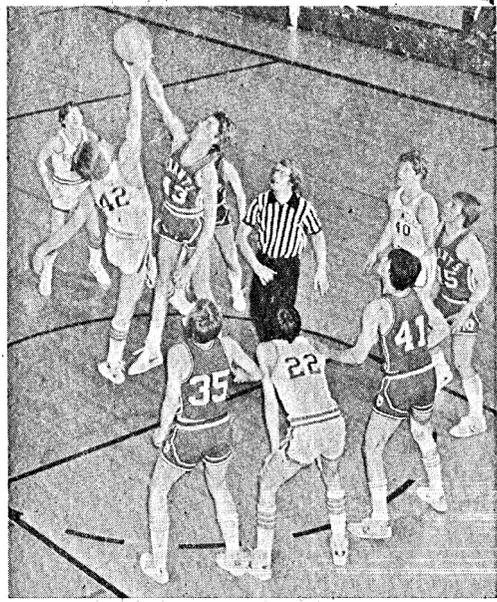

After a time out, Kearney sank one of two free throws, rebounded for the ball, got it, and sank another basket. Ord slipped behind 19-8.

Free throws by Gogan lifted Ord two points with 4:12 remaining in the first half, but Kearney had hiked its lead 23-10.

It was Gogan again, adding four points to Ord's credit with her two baskets, one minute later.

With one minute remaining in the half, Ord pulled within six points of the Bearkittens, 25-19.

A free throw combination by Kurt Kremke (43) takes the tip-off during the Ord-Burwell game Friday.

Seventh-Eighth Graders Lose

Ord High seventh and eighth graders opened their season with a 46 to 20 loss to St. Mary's Monday. Cold shooting from the floor, poor rebounding, and a season starting butterflies combined to mix Ord.

Despite their height advantage, Ord could only pull down 24 rebounds to St. Mary's 31. The Chant underdogs got 11 of 42 field goals, 26 percent, to St. Mary's 20 of 48.

Ord failed to make good on their lone free throw for the evening. St. Mary's had 6 of 14 from the charity line.

St. Mary's played a solid zone defense Monday, forcing Ord to shoot from the outside. That combined with mediocre accuracy killed the Ord High team.

High scorers for Ord High were Phil Fischer with 10 points, and Shawn Sich with 4.

For St. Mary's, Doug Welniak had 17 points and Randy Welniak 8.

Saturday Ord seventh and eighth graders play host to St. Paul; game time is 10 a.m. Monday they will be at Central City, for a 5:30 p.m. make-up game.

Monday, February 19, they will be at St. Mary's again, and February 20 they go to Albion. Game time there is 6:30 p.m.

Members of the seventh and eighth grade squad are:

Jim Sajevic is coach of the seventh and eighth grade team.

Eight Are Bound for Wrestling Districts

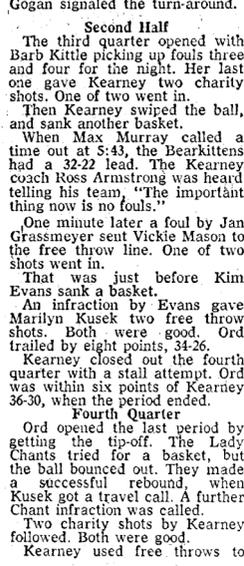

Ord High will send eight wrestlers to the B-3 district wrestling tournament at Aurora February 9-10. Those scheduling the trip are Doug Corner, Dave Conner, Greg Patska, Paul Bredthauer, Doug Zukoski, Jerry Augustyn, Kirk Lehecka, and Byron Stevens.

First round events will be held at 11 a.m. in the Aurora school gym. Saturday, semi-final rounds will be at 10 a.m. With consolation matches and finals scheduled for 3:30 p.m.

Vickie Mason (22) pumps two in during the invitational tournament held in Ord.

Basketball Seedings

Mason pulled Ord within three points of Kearney, 25-22, in the last seconds of the first half.

Ord had been down by 13 points in the first half before starting a rally. Back-to-back baskets by Gogan signaled the turn-around.

Second Half

The third quarter opened with Barb Kittle picking up fouls three and four for the night. Her last one gave Kearney two charity shots. One of two went in.

Then Kearney swiped the ball, and sank another basket.

When Max Murray called a time out at 5:43, the Bearkittens had a 32-22 lead. The Kearney coach Ross Armstrong was heard telling his team, "The important thing now is no fouls."

One minute later a foul by Jan Grassmeyer sent Vickie Mason to the free throw line. One of two shots went in.

That was just before Kim Evans sank a basket.

An infraction by Evans gave Marilyn Kusek two free throw shots. Both were good. Ord trailed by eight points, 34-26.

Kearney closed out the fourth quarter with a stall attempt. Ord was within six points of Kearney 36-30, when the period ended.

Fourth Quarter

Ord opened the last period by getting the tip-off. The Lady Chants tried for a basket, but the ball bounced out. They made a successful rebound, when Kusek got a travel call. A further Chant infraction was called.

Two charity shots by Kearney followed. Both were good.

Kearney used free throws to lift themselves to a 41-30 lead in the last minutes of the game. When time out was called three minutes were left in the Ord Invitational.

The margin between the two teams hovered around 9-11 points during the last two minutes of play. The gal Chants had narrowed the deficit to four points when the game ended, 53-49.

Coach's Comments

Ord coach Max Murray said, "I was real pleased with the way the kids played. They hung in there real well. If we can continue this, the winning and losing will take care of itself. They played far better than last night (against Ainsworth)."

He lauded Vickie Mason for being the high scorer in both games. She logged 15 points against Ainsworth and 22 points against Kearney.

Charity Shot Lets Chants Nip Minden

A charity shot by Jim Smith lifted Ord Chants to a 52-51 win over Minden Whippets Saturday at Ord. The win makes the Chants six and nine for the season. Minden falls to a two and 13 record. Their two lone wins have been over Holdrege and Grand Island Northwest.

The two teams ended the first quarter tied 12 all. Then Minden began pulling away. Solid rebounding and skillful ball stealing boosted them to a 31-28 lead at the half.

The Whippets exploded in the opening minutes of the second quarter. Their initial big push was helped by Ord's cold shooting in those opening minutes.

Then the Chants got their act together and lagged by two points when Whippet Chris Howe sank two free throws. The two bonus shots put Minden in front 20-16.

Steve Petersen forced Kurt Kremke out of bounds. Kremke tried for the free throw but his shots didn't go in. Undeterred, Kremke rebounded, snared the ball, and sank a shot. Ord lagged by two points, 20-18.

Minden was ahead three points, 31-28 when the half ended.

The Whippets opened the second half with a basket. They were in front 33-30 when a time out was called with 4:54 on the board.

Baskets by Kremke boosted Ord to 34 points, but by then Minden had 39 points.

Ord ended the third quarter behind 41-38.

Fourth Quarter

The fourth quarter was a seesaw battle with both teams behind and then ahead. A basket by Ord's Smith opened the last period, and Ord was within one point of Minden 41-40. With just over six minutes left, Ord had moved ahead 44-43.

Then came a foul by Kremke, giving Minden the ball under their basket. Minden took it and sank it.

After a basket by Paul Beran, Jim Smith swiped the ball and pumped in two more points. Ord was up 48-45 when Minden called time out with 5:03 left in the game.

The game changed hands five or more times in the next few minutes. With 1:57 on the clock, Minden lagged by one point, 49-48.

Ord was trying to stall in the last few seconds when Minden's Doug Schwenka fouled, sending Jim Smith to the free throw line. One of two shots went in.

Then it was Schwenka sending Smith to the charity lane again. This time neither shot went in. And then again, Minden fouled and Ord tried for two charity shots. Neither was good.

With 48 seconds left Whippet Tom Beck sank two free throws and Minden was behind 52-50. Frantic Whippets were trying for the ball, and made another infraction. With 11 seconds left in the game, Ord got the ball by the Minden bench. Minden fouled again and Joe Dworak went to the free throw line. Neither of his two shots went in.

Then it was Minden's turn. One of two shots by Steve Petersen made the basket, and Minden was within one point of Ord. Minden gained possession of the ball in the last seven seconds but couldn't do anything with it.

The game ended with Ord the winner 52-51.

Huskies Squeak By 'Cats 50-48

Arcadia Huskies got a razor-thin 50-48 victory over guest North Loup-Scotia Saturday. Both teams had 48 points with 40 seconds left in the game. After a time out, Arcadia swiped the ball and scored.

North Loup-Scotia had three seconds and the ball, but couldn't score. Just what did — or did not — happen in those last few seconds is the center of some controversy. Some claim John Cox of Arcadia fouled a North Loup-Scotia player. Others have a different story.

Another item up for discussion are those last three seconds. Wildcat advocates contend their team had a few more seconds coming.

Whatever may or should have happened is now past history. Both teams are scheduled for the Cedar Valley Conference competition at Cedar Rapids, North Loup-Scotia was scheduled to play host Cedar Rapids Monday.

North Loup connected on 10/16 free throws. Arcadia had 8/14 charity shots.

Arcadia had 21 field goals and North Loup-Scotia 19.

Twenty-Four Report For Ord Seventh-Eighth Grade Team

Twenty-four boys reported for uniform check-out on the Ord High seventh and eighth grade basketball team Monday. According to coach Jim Sajevic, 16 eighth graders and eight seventh graders make up the squad.

They plan to use a man-to-man defense, according to the coach. Both he and varsity coach Fred Williams agreed that would be best for teaching the team the basics of basketball.

"They have been practicing on that and other game items for the last seven weeks."

Sajevic declined comment on the team's condition saying it is too early in the season for any analysis he did reveal that it was tough to pick the starting line up. More on that and the team's first game at St. Mary's elsewhere in this Quiz.

Sajevic commented, "It's more important to let them play at this level than it is to shoot for a win-loss record."

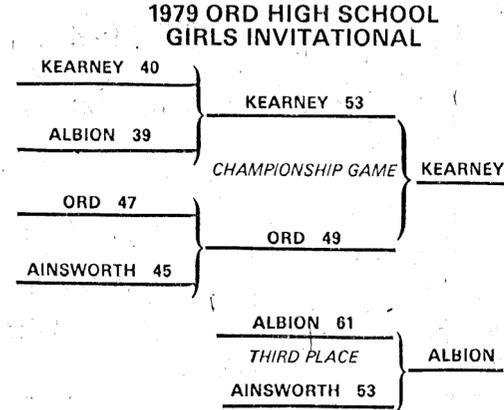

Just how he will get all 24 kids on to the floor during the season is a real concern of his. He wasn't sure just how he would do it, but vowed to do his best.

We even have a phone in the car — been there ever since the wife hit the local phone booth.

Seedings in the C-10 girls district basketball tournament to be at Ord were announced Thursday afternoon. Ranked first were the Burwell Longhorns with a 7-0 record. Anselmo-Merna, with a 5-0 record was rated second.

Third and fourth places went to Ravenna and Sargent. Ravenna has a 5-2 record and Sargent a 1-3 tally for the season.

Rated fifth was Ansley (0-6), sixth was Palmer (0-4), and Centura-Cairo was seventh. Centura has a 0-5 record.

Ord, Nebr.

The Ord cheerleaders Deb Osentowski and Ann Conner had a gentle assist from the Chant Rooster during the Minden-Ord game here Saturday.

Ninth Graders Win 2 in a Row

Ord ninth grade boys scored easy wins in two recent games. January 27 they downed host St. Paul 54-38. January 31 they zoomed by Burwell 54-30.

In that last game, Ord blew Burwell off the court in scoring the first three quarters. Ord had a 27-8 edge at halftime and pushed that lead to 41-12 at the end of the third period.

Burwell scored 18 points in the last quarter, but it was too little too late.

High scorers for Ord were Brian Cetak and Gary Upah, each with 11. Brad Stephens had 14 points.

John Lytle of Burwell was their top scorer with 5 points.

Ord sank two of seven charity shots while Burwell got eight of 23.

The same pattern dominated the game at St. Paul January 27. Ord blasted the host team in the first three quarters. The Chant understudies had a 35-13 lead at the half, and then widened this to a 47-21 margin at the end of the third quarter.

High scorers at St. Paul were Brian Cetak with 14 points, and Brad Stephens with 12. For St. Paul, John Olson had 19 points and Tim Jacobson 10.

The Ord lads made eight of 16 free throws and St. Paul sank six of 20 attempts.

NL-S Gal Wildcats Bow to Merna

The North Loup-Scotia gal Wildcats bowed to visiting Anselmo-Merna 58-23 Thursday night. "The biggest thing," gal coach Tim Lanik said, "was that they were a fast breaking team. They got down the floor before we did. They just out-hustled us."

AM nailed the 'cats on rebounding and transition, too. They easily slipped from offensive to defensive patterns during the game. AM had 42 rebounds to Scotia's 28.

Lanik's girls sank 13 of 22 free throws for 59 percent. AM was 16 of 35.

The Wildcats shot 5 of 60 from the floor or 8 percent.

High scorers for Scotia were Carle Sheldon with 7 points and Madge Gebhardt with 5.

Top scorers for AM were Kim Markham with 19 points and Pam Arnold with 8.

The gal Wildcats next take on Ansley at Scotia Saturday. Ansley started the season slowly, according to Lanik, but has recently been coming on strong.

Monday Lanik's players will start their district tournament at Scotia, Scotia, seeded eighth with a 1-10 record, will play Pleasanton Monday at 4:30 p.m.

Other teams in district competition are Elba, Amherst, Litchfield, Greeley, Loup County, Arcadia and Wolbach.

Winners will advance to regional play-offs at a yet to be announced time and place.

Grapplers Have Mixed Results

Ord grapplers had mixed results in two recent tournaments. At the Ord-Ainsworth meet held a week ago Monday, the Chants fell to host Ainsworth 46-15. Winners were Doug Zulkoski in the 98 pound division and Doug Conner in the 105 pound class. The third champion was Paul Bredthauer in the 167 pound division.

Amherst Tourney:

In the tournament at Amherst, the Chants grapplers had a string of winners. Champions from Ord included:

Doug Conner, 98 pounds.
Kirk Lehecka, 106 pounds.
Byron Stevens, 138 pounds.
Doug Conner, 145 pounds.
Greg Petska, 145 pounds.
Paul Bredthauer, 167 pounds.

Second place winners were Sterling Ritz in the 98 pound division and Doug Zulkoski in the 105 pound set.

Jerry Augustyn at 119 pounds and Kevin Sich at 155 pounds finished in the third place division.

Schools entered the Amherst meet were Ord, Amherst, Ravenna, and Grand Island Northwest.

Ord grapplers placed ninth overall in the conference meet at Grand Island Northwest Friday and Saturday.

In individual results, Doug Conner placed second in the 98 pound division and Dave Conner was second in the 145 pound class. Greg Petska and Paul Bredthauer scored points. Other wrestlers were Doug Zulkoski, Jerry Augustyn, Kirk Lehecka and Byron Stevens.

Schools participating in the conference meet were Aurora, Ord, Albion, Grand Island Northwest, Central City, Crete, Schuyler, Seward, York, and David City.

Arcadia Whips Taylor Wildcats

Arcadia Huskies ended a two week period away from the court by whipping the Taylor Wildcats 60-49 Friday. John Cox fired in 25 points, boosting host Huskies to victory.

The Huskies led Taylor 'cats in the first two quarters. Springing to a 18-8 lead in the first quarter, Arcadia was ahead 38-21 at the half. Arcadia hit a cold spot in the third quarter, but recouped their scoring edge with 16 points in the fourth.

The Wildcats had narrowed their deficit to 11 points with 1:30 left in the game, but it was too late to dream of a win.

'Wax Injured in Ord-Minden Game

An injury to varsity Ord High cage player Barry Witherwax may sideline him for three to four weeks. The 5'11" junior broke a bone in his hand during third quarter action against Minden here Saturday night.

The Chants won that game 52-51 but the win could prove to be a costly one. Witherwax has been one of the top scorers on the Chanticleer varsity basketball team.

Following the game a cast was put on Barry's injured hand.

Ord Reserves

Ord reserves easily defeated host Burwell 66-44 Friday night. Ord led 49-36 at the end of the

Louisa Landgraf Rites At Scotia

Louisa M. Landgraf was born April 19, 1884, in Grand Island to Albert and Bertha Bethke. She died January 29, 1979, at the Valley County Hospital in Ord at the age of 94.

Louisa became a member of the Lutheran faith November 21, 1897 in Buffalo County. She was united in marriage to Charles Landgraf October 2, 1901 at Ravenna. In 1908, they moved to Scotia where they were engaged in farming five miles south of town. In 1913, they moved to Scotia where they operated a general merchandise store for many years.

Louisa was a member of the Zion Lutheran Church at Scotia and the Lutheran Ladies Aid Society.

Survivors include four daughters, Mrs. Hattie Menze of Bellevue, WA, Mrs. Magdalen Sauter of Scotia, Mrs. Mabel Varner of San Diego, CA and Mrs. Esther Spittigerber of Columbus; one son, Edward of Porterville, CA; one sister, Mrs. Minnie Manske of Pierce; ten grandchildren; 26 great grandchildren; and five great, great grandchildren. She was preceded in death by her husband, one infant son and one daughter, Leona Thomas.

Memorials may be given in her memory to the Zion Lutheran Church in Scotia or the Scotia Rescue Unit.

Funeral services were held Thursday, February 1, 1979 at 11 a.m. at the Zion Lutheran Church in Scotia with Rev. Leon Zlamek officiating. Susan Vlach was the organist for congregational singing of "I Am But A Stranger, Here" and "Asleep In Jesus." Pallbearers were Claude Johnson, John Stanger, Elvin Voorhees, Bill Gydesen, Leo Klein, and Wilbur Fuss. Burial was in the Mt. Hope Cemetery at Scotia with the Ord Memorial Chapel in charge of arrangements.

William Greenway On Chapel Staff

Ord Memorial Chapel welcomed to their staff, William Greenway, who joined them February 1.

Bill, a native of Palmer, graduated from Palmer High School in 1972 and attended Kearney State College. He graduated from Dallas Institute of Mortuary Science in 1976.

Upon returning to Nebraska, he worked for Jacobson Funeral Home in St. Paul while finishing his apprenticeship. After receiving his licenses in 1977, Bill has worked in Hastings for the past one and a half years.

Bill is married and is currently residing at the Ord Memorial Chapel.

Transfer Told

Stephen P. Mausbach, Assistant County Supervisor in the Ord Farmers Home Administration office, is being transferred to David City, effective February 12.

A native of Humphrey, and a graduate of the University of Nebraska, Steve began employment with Farmers Home Administration as an Assistant Emergency Loan Supervisor on July 18, 1977. He was promoted to the position of Assistant County Supervisor in September 1977. Steve will be employed as an Assistant County Supervisor in the David City FmHA office.

Landbank Loans Over $23 Million in 1978

The Grand Island Federal Land Bank Association loaned $23.1 million to farmers and ranchers during 1978, according to President Allen Grudzinski.

The Grand Island FLBA, which serves farmers and ranchers in Greeley, Hall, Hamilton, Howard, Merrick, Sherman, Valley, Adams, Clay, Webster and Nuckolls Counties, had $94.8 million outstanding at year-end.

Grudzinski stated that land purchases continued to be the leading reason people acquired loans, but that a considerable portion of the funding had to do with on-farm improvements and debt restructuring in the early part of 1978. He stated that improvement in livestock prices and a steady grain market created renewed interest in land during the second half of 1978, which was reflected in higher sales.

Housing loans, which are a newer aspect of the Land Bank's loan program, showed considerable strength toward the close of 1978 as more people became aware of the program and its benefits.

The $23.1 million advanced in 1978 compares to $19.4 million advanced in 1977, Grudzinski said.

1979 is off to a start considerably more optimistic than 1978 began. Land values will continue to go up as the successful operators compete for

Sheriff's Report

January 29 — Road signs were vandalized at the Highway 88 and 70 junction, 14 miles southwest of Ord. A vehicle was apparently used to knock down a cluster of signs.

Damage was estimated at $101.

February 2 — A two car accident one-fourth mile west of North Loup did $2,000 damage. A 1977 Plymouth, driven by Echo Sperling, was going east on a county road. A 1971 Oldsmobile, driven by Leora Lundstedt, was going west on the same road when the two cars collided.

Neither could stop on the snow-packed roads.

Diane Lundstedt, a passenger in the Sperling car, received some cracked ribs. She was taken to a local doctor.

There was $1,000 damage to each of the two cars.

Grappler Tourney on State ETV Febr. 11

Live coverage of the finals in all four classes of the 1979 Nebraska High School Wrestling Tournament will be broadcast — Tuesday, Feb. 11, from 7 to 10 p.m. on the Nebraska Educational Television Network beginning at 1 p.m. (12 M.T.) Saturday, February 17.

The finals competition, which climaxes the three-day wrestling tournament, features 48 championship matches in the 12 weight categories for Class A, B, C and D. Through the use of a quad-split, a machine which divides the television screen into four equal parts, viewers will be able to watch the matches in each class simultaneously.

Lincoln sportscaster Don Gill and Jack Ramey, Kearney State College wrestling coach, will provide commentary on the championship matches. This year marks the tenth time the Nebraska ETV Network has covered the tournament live and the twelfth year of coverage.

The defending team champions in the four classes are Class A, Omaha Tech; Class B, Cozad; Class C, Franklin; and Class D, Amherst. The tournament annually involves 768 boys.

The program is produced by the University of Nebraska Television's special projects unit in cooperation with the Nebraska School Activities Association. The program will be produced by senior producer of special projects Tom Howe and directed by Kevin Caffrey.

Funds Available for Fire Protection

The 1979 Nebraska Rural Community Fire Program will provide up to 50 percent cost share for fire equipment of fire districts, according to Joseph E. Range, extension and assistant state forester.

The Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources staff member said rural areas fire districts or communities under 10,000 population qualify for assistance to purchase badly needed fire fighting equipment, protective clothing, breathing apparatus, alerting systems, radio communications and residential smoke detection systems.

"Priority will be given to organize fire districts, communities with poor insurance ratings and for multi-community and countywide projects. Construction or building costs do not qualify. Purchase of new vehicles will receive low priority because of limited funds," Range said. Purchases made before approval of applications do not qualify, he added.

Requests for project application should be made to Nebraska State Forester, Department of Forestry, 104 Plant Industry, East Campus, University of Nebraska, Lincoln, NE 68583; telephone (402) 472-2944.

"Communities requesting assistance should return applications as soon as possible so that approvals limited to available funding and priority of needs can be made by April 20," Range concluded.

Spring Not Far Away
 With spring not far away, many people's thoughts are drifting toward fishing, and with these thoughts come ideas of stocking ponds and small lakes with fish. We have available at the Extension office necessary materials needed to apply to the Game and Parks Commission for fish. In order to receive fish for stocking private ponds it will be necessary that the pond owner agree to allow fishing by permission and that the pond meets certain requirements. All applications must be received by the Nebraska Game and Parks Commission by June 1 to be considered for stocking during that calendar year.

Fuel Costs Less Than Feed to Heat Cow's Winter Water
 According to Dr. Alex Hog, Extension Veterinarian, INAR it costs less to heat that cow's winter drinking water with electricity, oil, wood or propane than it does with grain or hay.

Either way you do it, that water eventually has to be raised to body temperature. It costs about 30 percent more to heat water with feed than it does with fuel or other energy sources. That means a tank heater during particularly cold spells can be a good investment. Usually, getting water to body temperature is not practical, but getting it as nearly to this level as practical is a good idea. If the water source is a spring, the temperature will remain fairly constant, so it may be impractical to heat flowing spring water.

Another consideration in watering cattle is the location of the watering point. If the water is where animals are not reluctant to drink or to brave the cold weather getting to and from it, they will have less digestive upsets during the winter months. And avoiding those upsets may avoid weight losses. Adequate water is an important as feed.

Technical-Environmental Data On Comstock Site To Be Gathered

Landowners in the Comstock and Sargent areas of Eastern Custer County were told Tuesday night that the Nebraska Public Power District will begin gathering technical and environmental data in the area in the next few days.

NPPD held a meeting with landowners to explain their plans for compiling the information needed to determine a specific site for a 650,000 kilowatt coal-fired power plant that the District is proposing to build in the area. Current estimates are that construction would start in 1981 or 1982 and be completed in 1986.

Hydrology studies will be made to determine the method by which the plant would be cooled. NPPD's current plans are to use deep wells to provide water for cooling purposes but also under consideration is an on- or off-site water impoundment or an off-site reservoir.

Geotechnical studies will be conducted to determine a more precise location. They will be limited to a recently proposed alternate site for the plant — which is nearer Sargent. The scope for the geotechnical studies will be the same type previously obtained for the original site — which is just west of Comstock.

Hazelton Environmental Sciences of Northbrook, Ill., will conduct water quality, hydrology, aquatic and terrestrial ecology monitoring studies in the area.

Howard Lewis of Lincoln, representing Hazelton, said that portion of the studies would continue through 1979 and would Entomologist, INAR advises that if your corn rootworm insecticide is performing adequately, there is no particular advantage to rotating materials. Research at Corn Belt universities is conflicting as to whether or not chemicals fall if used repeatedly in continuous corn fields. Occasionally, insecticides fail on their first year of use; in other cases, performance slips in a few years. In other fields, a single product has been used for many years with apparent success. However, rootworm damage can occur in a field and go unnoticed if soil moisture and fertility are abundant and weather conditions are favorable for regrowth of damaged roots.

The best way to evaluate your soil insecticide is to leave a small check strip in each field. Even a few hundred feet of a single row left untreated will give you an idea of an insecticide's performance. Mark it well with a brightly colored stake and come back the first week in July. Dig up 10 corn roots from the untreated and 10 from an adjacent treated row, soak them overnight and hose them off. Then examine for rootworm feeding injury. This will give you a more accurate picture of what you are getting for your rootworm control dollars.

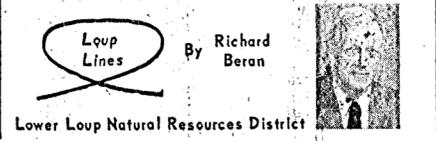

If performance is slipping, rotate from Furadan (the only carbamate insecticide) to an organic phosphate such as Counter, Dyfonate, Lorsban, Mocap or Thimet. If a phosphate insecticide is failing, rotate the other way to the carbamate material, Furadan.

consist primarily of on-site observations of plant, animal, and aquatic life. Meteorological studies are already underway in the area to gather current environmental data to determine what effect, if any, the plant would have on the area. Texas Instruments, Inc., of Dallas, is the firm under contract to NPPD to gather that data.

Representing NPPD and answering landowners' questions concerning the studies were Brian Harris, environmental specialist, Ed Stauber, from the District's land management and right-of-way department, and Ron Bogus, NPPD's public information manager.

NPPD will be personally contacting landowners in the area for right-of-access agreements so that the necessary studies can be made.

ALKALINITY
 Concentrations of alkalinity expressed as an equivalent amount of calcium carbonate are generally well below 100 parts per million (ppm) in groundwater of the Sandhills region and are low to high in groundwater of other parts of the state. Alkalinity concentrations in water from 1,609 sampled wells ranged from a minimum of 19 ppm in water from a well in Pierce County to a maximum of 1,020 ppm in water from a well near Lincoln. The statewide mean was 210 ppm.

Alkalinity can be defined as the capacity of water to neutralize acid. In groundwater, the principal source of alkalinity is bicarbonate ions. Bicarbonate concentrations can be estimated by multiplying the alkalinity concentrations by 1.2. Bicarbonate is formed either by the reaction of carbon dioxide dissolved in infiltrating water with basic material in the soil or by the weathering of some igneous silicate rocks. Where the pH of water is greater than or equal to 8.3, measurable concentrations of carbonate as well as of bicarbonate exist in solution.

Carbonate and bicarbonate concentrations in groundwater depend in part on equilibrium reactions with other chemical constituents. Other anions derived from the solution of weak acids such as phosphoric acid contribute to alkalinity, but usually in very small amounts compared to carbonate-bicarbonate concentrations. Because calcium carbonate generally precipitates when carbonate concentrations increase, calcium concentrations tend to regulate the amount of alkalinity in a solution. Thus it follows that some of the highest alkalinities are observed in water having a very low concentration of calcium.

Alkalinities greater than 300 ppm occur in northwest Nebraska. Alkalinities in water samples from aquifers in and at the base of glacial drift in eastern Nebraska also exceed 300 ppm. Dissolution of carbonaceous material or limestone detritus from the drift probably accounts for these high concentrations. Many samples of groundwater from the valleys of the Republican, North Loup, and North Platte rivers and from the Platte River valley in Dawson, Buffalo, and Hall counties had alkalinities greater than 300 ppm. All were from areas where the river water is diverted for irrigation or where the use of groundwater for irrigation is intensive. The high alkalinities observed in the groundwater of these areas is due either to recharge by irrigation water that contains return flow from upstream irrigation projects or to the accelerated dissolution of carbonaceous material from soils by a continuous recycling of groundwater pumped for irrigation.

Low alkalinities in groundwater from the Sandhills region probably reflect the lack of soluble carbonaceous material in the siliceous soils and subsoils of that region. No recommended limit for alkalinity is included in the Environmental Protection Agency drinking water standards. Some alkalinity in public supplies is desirable, especially if the water is chlorinated. If alkalinity is less than 25 ppm, chlorination may produce corrosive water that attacks metallic parts of water systems.

prices have helped a great deal. Expectation of future controls on irrigation development make the existing pivots and new developments more attractive. It will probably become increasingly difficult to develop land in the future.

"We consider Nebraska land to be a bargain when compared to land in states like Ohio, Illinois, and Iowa", Harris said. University of Nebraska economists have estimated that land values in Nebraska have risen around 10% in 1978 after dropping 4% a year earlier.

More Interest In Center Pivots

After a period of depressed activity in the market for center pivot irrigated land, Ag-Land Realty reported that there is a decided strengthening of market interest and activity. "Since we specialize in farm and ranch sales, we try to keep a pretty close watch on market developments," said Bob Harris, the firm's broker.

There are several factors which have contributed to the increased activity. Stronger corn price expectations and high cattle prices have helped a great deal. Expectations and high cattle

Stock Growers Offer Scholarships

The Nebraska Stock Growers' Research and Education Foundation will offer four scholarships this year to cattlemen's sons and daughters, announced Bob Lute, committee president for the Foundation from Ogallala.

For the ninth consecutive year, the Research and Education Foundation in conjunction with Lute Ranches of Ogallala, will award three scholarships to deserving students in June. The additional fourth scholarship offered this year comes from a special donation by Mickey and Betty Stewart. Stewart served as Executive Secretary of NSGA for 8 1/2 years, before leaving the Association at the first of the year to become the Director of Agriculture for the State of Nebraska. Over 40 applications for the awards are anticipated, said Lute.

The scholarships are presented for one year, half each semester. Applicants must maintain at least a C average in the last year of high school or in college, and should be sons or daughters of active NSGA members, the chairman stated.

Any student enrolled in a college or university offering a bachelor's degree, an approved vocational or trade school, a state accredited junior college, or a nursing school offering an RN degree may apply for the scholarships.

Applications may be obtained from the NSGA Research and Education Foundation, PO Drawer 40, Alliance, NE 69301. The deadline for receiving the applications at the above address is April 15.

The founding of the Sandhills Animal Lab Research Facility located near Tryon, is one of the results of the Foundations' efforts. The research conducted at the research facility provides essential data pertinent to livestock operations in western Nebraska.

The scholarship is one of the items concerning research and information of the cattle industry the Research and Education Foundation supports. The Foundation is an independent non-profit organization supported by contributions and memorials from cattlemen interested in furthering cattle industry research and education.

Thone Gives State Solons His Budget

By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent

The Nebraska Press Association LINCOLN — Gov. Charles Thone has submitted to the Legislature his first budget. And true to his word, he managed to keep total expenditures under a 7 percent increase.

His budget of slightly more than $570.1 million in General Fund money, including operations and construction, would represent a 6.3 percent increase over this fiscal year's appropriations.

Thone's proposals included $299,889,918 in aid to local governments and individuals, $134,009,598 for postsecondary education and $129,160,381 for state government operations.

Don Leuenberger, Thone's budget chief, described the governor's recommendations as "a tight budget but one that meets the legitimate needs of the state."

making an offender eligible for parole at the statutory minimum of a fixed sentence regardless of the length of the term imposed by the court.

District Judge James Buckley of Omaha, chairman of the Sentencing Alternatives and Parole Procedures Committee of the judges' association, said courts are currently denied a needed sentencing tool.

Buckley said factors other than rehabilitation must be taken into consideration when a judge imposes sentencing. Among those factors, he added, are deterrence to the offender, punishment, the need to protect society and deterrence to others.

There are times, according to Buckley, when a person convicted of a particular crime should serve the full sentence, even if that person has been rehabilitated before his term is up.

Dan Griepentrog, a Corrections Department administrator, said that combination of so-called "good time" statutes on the books would make some offenders ineligible for parole and also delay their eligibility for release programs.

"Good time" refers to the days and months a prisoner earns off his sentence for good behavior while in prison.

Sen. Patrick Venditte of Omaha, a member of the Judiciary Committee, said the criminal justice system isn't getting the job of reducing crime done. Instead, he said, the Legislature seems to keep "watering down" laws pertaining to the punishment of criminals.

Griepentrog replied that "one great way" to cut down crime is to reduce the number of repeat offenders through rehabilitation programs. Passage of the bill would place a roadblock in the way of those programs, he said.

Eugene Neal, a member of the Nebraska Parole Board, also spoke against the proposal.

Way to Go

Last Monday night, City Dads heard an appeal to readjust an existing paving district. According to one councilman, an area resident had requested some 128 feet to be deleted from a planned paving project. The resident's reason, so we were told, was that he wouldn't derive much benefit from the paving in that particular strip.

After some discussion, the council let the matter stand as it was.

In our estimation, this was a shrewd move. Granting an exception, no matter how small, would open the floodgates on no one knows how many requests for a minor adjustment here, and a small concession there.

In the end the council wouldn't end up with a paving plan but a patchwork quilt of compromises and likely some hard feelings to boot. I suspect it would be like determining whose name will — or will not — be withheld from the court news.

When first starting work here, Quiz publisher Kerry Leggett made it plain to me that no names were to be withheld. He contended that if you withhold one name, you should rightfully withhold them all.

So it is with presently made paving plans. Granting one small adjustment or making a concession will open the floodgates of troubled waters. For these reasons we suggest the council's approach to the problem Monday night was a sound one.

Way to go, councilmen.

Bill Draws Large Crowd

A bill proposing that a certificate of need be required before construction or expansion of medical facilities and services attracted a crowd to the Legislature's Public Health and Welfare Committee hearing recently.

Everyone who spoke on the measure supported the idea behind the legislation, but many suggested amendments.

The bill is designed to encourage cost containment and eliminate duplication of services.

The state's three health agencies told the committee they would like to have more of a voice in determining local health

Women's Work Is Never Done

Something has had me percolating for quite some time now, and I am coming to a full rolling boil.

It is this continuing phrase I read almost every day about "women and blacks and other minority groups."

My gosh.

They come out with these statistics that say there are more women than men in the world; why, then, are we termed a "minority"? And how many "blacks" are there? And how many comprise "the minority population" in all the world?

No wonder women press for Womens Lib.

Women are necessary in this world in which we live. Women, as yet, must produce the babies that become the children who become the adults of tomorrow.

Women are pretty darned important, and you may quote me.

Scientists fiddle with test tubes; authorities quarrel over whether babies should be reared in baby compounds, with teachers and tutors and caretakers and nursery schools . . . none of them have yet to substitute satisfactorily for good old Mom.

She with the worried look, the wrinkled skirt, the sudy apron, the sticky little fingers pursuing her all day.

Women a minority? Don't make me laugh.

I am sure you've seen those charts that say sweeping is worth so much per hour, cooking is worth so much per hour, doing the laundry is worth so much per hour, baby-sitting is worth so much per hour, chauffeuring the children to and from school is valued at so much per hour, cleaning up the kitchen or doing the windows or cleaning the goldfish bowl or watering the lawn . . . all are worth how much per hour? And a lot more, but you get the idea.

And as I said, so far no one has figured out how to bear babies except women. Haven't heard any men volunteer lately have you? Just how much would you say it is worth to carry an embryo and give birth to it . . . in money?

Yes I think we need women's lib. Shades of Bella Abzug. Also Carrie Nation, and a few others.

I wish to state this minority group, known as women, does not have a chance of getting equal salaries for equal work. They are never going to be given the salaries that so many of them earn.

Women are conscientious. They are excellent on detail work. They are persistent. They come early and they stay late. And I don't mean simply stuff like helping the Boss entertain.

Do you know why women will never achieve the top jobs? Why they find it so difficult to win executive positions? No matter how hard they work, how early they come, how late they type and file?

— Because the white American male is never going to help her become his equal. He is jealous of his position and his lofty achievements. Why should he raise up lively competition . . . like a smart, ambitious woman? He's too clever to do that, girls.

So be happy blowing noses and putting mittens and wiping up after the dog. Nobody wants those jobs. You lucky kid!

Geranium Joe Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

Just when I was sure everything I eat, drink and breathe was going to be the death of me along comes GRAS. Mister Editor, GRAS is such good news I figure you'll want to share it with your readers. It stands for Generally Regarded as Safe, and it's a list of 600 things that if they ain't downright good for you at least they ain't likely to kill you.

Actual, I was suprised to run across GRAS in a small item inside the paper. I would've thought news of this list was front page stuff. I ain't trying to tell you your job, Mister Editor, but if you happen to see GRAS you might do well to put it out there where folks can get at it. According to this piece I saw, a Food and Drug Administration official actual comes right out and says not only don't eat things not cause cancer, but more things don't than do. Fer instant, we can keep right on eating citric acid and drinking caffeine and going through the monosodium glutamate that is in everything that comes in a can or a jar. According to the item, the FDA is getting help from the Federation of American Sciences and the full list won't be made up fer another two months.

I give the GRAS report to the fellers at the country store Saturday night, and it played, as they say, to a mixed review. Stanley Nolte said he was happy to see salt on the safe list. He said he and his wife never can agree on how much. She says he eats enough to dry up his blood, but turn him into a cured ham, but he allows it brings out the flavor in food and if it was good enough fer folks in Bible days to use fer money it must be better than today's money. But it was Jim Meese that said GRAS give him a worst scare than ever. This must, he declared Jim, that the FDA has decided it's easier to list the things that won't kill you than that will.

Fer instant, went on Jim, some feller at Temple University says a digital watch is hazardous to our health. This is a watch that don't have a big hand and little hand, Jim said, it flashes the time when you push a button. According to Dr. Miles Orvell this is bad because we feel alone in the world just looking at the numbers. When we get the clock face and the hands we can find where we are in relation to the world and the day, the doctor said, and "the cycle gives us a sense of continuity." Jim said he didn't know what kind of sense that is, but if looking at a flashing number makes a feller lonesome he had some big problems before he got his digital watch.

Martin Rasmussen said his first concern was whether his wife's coffee was on the GRAS list. He said she got one of them contraptions that makes coffee as soon as you pour water through it, and he ain't sure about coffee that don't perk and give a feller time to appreciate that first cup. Martin said it looks like the dos and don'ts are turning around. He said he had saw latest studies show a good snort now and agin not only makes you feel good, it's good fer you. Drinkers live longer than abstainers, Martin reported, they have fewer heart attacks, and them that do have em don't worry about it near as much.

Yours truly,
Geranium Joe

THE ORD QUIZ
Ord, Nebraska.

Dear Mr. Misko:

One need only substitute two or three words to gain some perspective on a column which appeared recently (January 25) in The Ord Quiz.

"For years I have been fond of Ord and Ordites. They are much maligned.

It is true, some of them are slow and lazy and light-fingered. Yet they can be considerate, thoughtful, concerned.

Yes, they'll give you the wrong change, sometimes, but not as often as you get it in Elvira."

Perhaps your columnist would consider sending this version to the editor of some weekly newspaper five miles or so from the Mexican border.

Sincerely,
Mary Avidano

Dear Sir:

We should show our appreciation for groups and individuals trying to make our lives a little better. This month, the Loup Valley Arts Council will bring the Norman Luboff Choir to Ord.

It's a shame Ord doesn't give more support to the Arts Council. The same goes for professional groups brought to Ord. Men and women who have made fine arts their profession end up playing to a half-empty gymnasium.

It doesn't have to be this way. February 15, the Arts Council will present the Norman Luboff Choir at the high school. Anyone knowing contemporary music knows the name, since Luboff is one of America's leading composer-arrangers.

The Arts Council began planning the Luboff appearance over a year ago. His choir will appear in only three concerts in Nebraska this year. The second will be at Dunning and the third at Scottsbluff.

Norman Luboff's first concert will be February 15 in Ord. Let's make that first concert Luboff's best.

KERRY ON

— gay bars —

A brief six-week stint learning camera repair, while with the U. S. Army, took me from my regular duty post at Ft. Knox, Kentucky, to Ft. Monmouth, New Jersey.

Ft. Monmouth was then known as "the playground of the Army," due primarily to its location. New York City was barely an hour away from the Signal School. Famed Asbury Park, New Jersey, was only minutes away from the main gate near the Garden State Parkway. Monmouth Race Track, right at Long Branch, New Jersey, was also a popular spot for the betting crowd.

Though I spent much of my off-post time in the bars of Long Branch and along the boardwalk gin mills, when I could put together a few bucks and an overnight pass, I headed for New York City.

"The Big Apple," as it's now known, had everything to offer. From Central Park to the Bowery and Staten Island to Mulberry Street in Brooklyn, there was little I missed. Usually, though, I was somewhere between Canal Street and 90th on Manhattan Island. That's midtown and lower Manhattan.

I'd arrive at the Port Authority Bus Terminal with some money in my pocket and immediately head for The Metropole — a jazz band bar along Broadway. Beer and drinks were expensive, but behind the bar on a narrow stage a Dixieland band usually held forth. The noise would lure the tourists strolling along Broadway and there was always a crowd around the door and inside the place.

Knowing my money would run out before my weekend, bass, usually began slowly winding its way through bars toward Lower Manhattan and the Bowery.

Forty Years Ago

A plan by which the Rotary Club of Ord will finance purchase of 50 bred girls and distribute them, one apiece, to boys and girls between the ages of 10 and 20 who are involved in 4-H or Voc. Ag. was decided upon Monday evening by Rotarians and applications for the bred girls will be accepted at once by C. C. Dale.

The North Loup River Public Power and Irrigation district's reply to the action taken by Ord and Burwell in discontinuing purchase of electricity from the district was delivered Thursday, following a meeting of directors and took the form of a resolution in which it was stated that the district will hold Ord and Burwell to their contracts and make these municipalities responsible for any damages caused the district by their actions.

Drinks were cheaper, and after I'd had a few, I wasn't particular about who I drank with nor where I drank.

Sometimes I'd take the subway and sometimes I'd simply walk to Greenwich Village. There I frequented two places — Eddie Condon's and a bar called Mona's. Condon's was noted for Dixieland jazz. Mona's was a gay bar before the days they were even known as "gay bars." Then it was simply a "homo hangout."

For that particular night, the patrons of Mona's and the music of Condon's held a special fascination. These were the things you read and heard about — but seldom saw with your own eyes. After I'd had a few drinks I had more false courage than good sense and I'd go anywhere.

Until one night I vividly remember, at Mona's, there was an intrigue about male lovers. Though I wanted no part of it, I was still fascinated.

On that particular night I'd been in and out of bars all over Greenwich Village and finally decided to look in on what was happening at Mona's. It was an average night with only a couple of dozen customers. Most were seated at tables and a few of the bar stools near the door were occupied.

I was alone and went to the far end of the bar and ordered a drink. The four fellows on the bar stools near the door were typical "drag" and I watched them. There seemed to be some sort of "lover's quarrel" ensuing. Voices were raised and there was some shoving back and forth.

Suddenly, from nowhere, one of the lovers pulled his hand from beneath the bar and before I could see what he was doing, he plunged the knife blade through the hand of one of the others — pinning it to the bar.

I didn't stick around to find out more. In fact I don't even think I finished my drink. There wasn't much room between that group and the doorway, but I made it through and, out into the street.

As I recall, I cut across the street and found a well-lighted bar where I could tell the dates were more my style. Boys and girls make awfully nice couples.

Former Ordite Woman of the Year

Charlotte Meier, the former Charlotte Blessing of Downey, CA, was selected 1979 "Woman of the Year" by the Beverly Hospital Foundation of Montebello and will be honored with a gala dinner-dance on St. Patrick's Day, Saturday, March 17, at the Montebello County Club.

Mrs. Meier, who moved to Downey in 1961, has long been active in charitable and service organizations in the Los Angeles region. George Hensel, president of the Beverly Hospital Foundation Board of Directors, described her as "a tireless worker for the well-being of the whole community."

Mrs. Meier and her husband, Dr. Woodrow W. Meier, are both from Nebraska and have resided in the Southern California area for 35 years. Mrs. Meier accompanied her husband when he interned at the Naval Hospital in Long Beach. At that time, they lived in Bellflower; then moved to Montebello, when Dr. Meier set up his general practice, and then to Downey 18 years ago.

The couple has three daughters.

Mrs. Gregory Polito of Whittier, CA, Mrs. David Scriven of Denver, CO, and Mrs. William Sandberg of Huntington Beach, CA, and four grandchildren.

Old Stamps Feed Needy

The canceled postage stamps that you may have tossed into a trash container could buy a cup of milk or a bowl of rice for a hungry youngster.
Ladamat Perera, a native of Colombo, the capital of Sri Lanka (formerly Ceylon) has found a way to convert the stamps into cash. They are sold through the Salvation Army in Louisville to dealers who, in turn, sell them to collectors. The money is then used to purchase food for the children of Bangladesh.
Since 1976 when he began the program, more than 30,000 needy children have been fed. He has contributed stamps from the 50 states and 26 foreign nations.
How many stamps are required to buy a cup of milk or a bowl of rice? About 200 regular stamps, 150 commemorative stamps, 100 Christmas stamps, or a smaller number of foreign stamps.
Locally, the stamps may be sent to Rose Visek at Parkview Village who sends them on to the Tabatha Home in Lincoln.

County Supervisors

January 30, 1979
The Valley County Board of Supervisors met at 11:30 a.m. with all members present. The January 9 minutes were accepted.
Howard Paulsen, District Conservationist with the Soil Conservation Service presented a set of non-reculated aerial photographs of the county to the board. These were provided in accordance with the arrangement between the Soil Conservation Service, Lower Loup Natural Resources District and Valley County. His office prepared a key map and identified the sections of the photos which should make it useful in conducting soil surveys. The supervisors then requested them to the county assessor for keeping.

Max Leth, Highway Superintendent commented about "living snow fence" that it would make another survey of the Sich bridge at no further cost, about the continuance of NRD projects and will pursue one of the three possibilities mentioned, asked about stabilizing a creek in a road in Liberty township, about snow removal east of the round barn on the Sherman County line and also at the Hospital parking lot. He asked about ordering grader blades and reviewed the 1 & 6 year road plan that will be heard at the next meeting.

The board received at noon and returned at 1:00 P.M. when Rick Noyes, Region 25 Coordinator said he would also represent Valley County on the Central Nebraska Emergency Medical Services Board. Benda moved that he do this for the county, seconded by Johnson and approved by all members.

The chairman also appointed Johnson as a Council of Government representative to take the place of Charles Zangger.
Much time was spent working on a Personnel Policy. County Attorney Don Rogers as deputy sheriff and Philip VanHorn as North Loup Township treasurer, seconded by Benda voted 'yes' by all and signed by the board committee.

and then they will be coordinated and printed.

County Assessor Sevenker presented several exemption applications. Mulligan moved approval of these as previously discussed, seconded by Klonecky and all answered 'yes' to roll call. He also discussed Light on reimbursement to counties from sales and income tax and LBS which would provide for centralized evaluation and assessment of real property. He said Bill Thornberg, of the Midwest Appraisal firm would be at the next meeting.

Klonecky moved approval of bonds for Greg Jensen as County Attorney, Chas. Vancouver as assistant assessor, Don Rogers as deputy sheriff and Philip VanHorn as North Loup Township treasurer, seconded by Benda voted 'yes' by all and signed by the board committee.

Peterson moved approval of an easement to lay water pipe across the S¹/₂ of Section 9 & 10 in Yale for J. J. Holmes, seconded by Mulligan and all answered 'yes' to roll call.

Reports studied and filed were two from the sheriff on fees collected, the 4th Q¹/₄ 1978 report of the County Attorney and a letter from County Attorney to Attorney General about surveyor salary. Other miscellaneous reports were from Greater Nebr. Health Systems Agency, Mid-Ne Comm. Mental Health Center, Loup Valley Mental Health Center, Region 25 Civil Defense, Council of Governments and Communication Center, Lower Loup NRD, CICA, NPHD, Sedalia, 1978 Census of Agric., LB84 & 131 and other items.

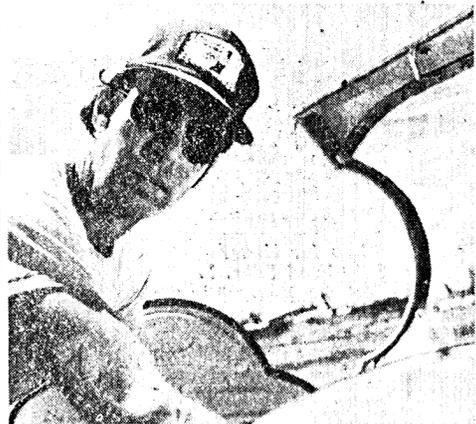

The board studied the list of delinquencies on ambulance payments and will make a decision on some of them at next meeting.

The board adjourned at 4:00 P.M.

Card of Thanks

I would like to thank all my friends and relatives for the cards, gifts and visits while in the Ord hospital. Also a special thanks to Dr. Zlomke and Dr. Vesekerna and all the nurses for the fine care I received. And a special thank you to the two men blood donors. Again thank you very much.

Card of Thanks

I want to take this opportunity to thank all those, who in your many ways, expressed thoughtfulness to me this past week.

A special thank you to Drs. Ray Johnston and J. H. Bancroft for their procedural care and concern, the 2nd floor staff and surgical staff for their thoughtful and compassionate care. Thanks to Sister Teresa, Rev. Ben Keene, Rev. Roemnich, Rev. Carlson and his lovely wife Ruth, Rev. Poulal, and Rev. Blumberg for their visits and prayers.

Thank you to Evelyn Zaboudil and the Fathers at St. James Convent for their good meals and conversations and a place for Jr. to stay while he was with me. Thanks to those who took time in the bitter cold weather that provided me with the extra warmth of your presence and thank you to anyone else connected with my stay at the Good Samaritan Hospital in Kearney. And to those who sent their cards, flowers, prayers and well wishes my way, thank you.

A thank you filled with love for my husband for all he meant and means to me, to Patty, who, though preparing for her big adventure, helped care for Paul, Karen and her Dad. To Rena and Gordon and family, Mom and Dad, Ryschon, Mom and Dad Foth, and Bill and Sharon who each contributed in his or her own way to make those days away from home not quite so lonely.

Thank you all, for yours were the hand God used to touch my life this past week. May God, and He alone, be praised for all you've done and may Jesus Christ satisfy all your needs in the days to follow.

In Christ's abiding love,
Kay Foth

Card of Thanks

Thanks guys of the Fire Department who came to my rescue so fast, to help me to the hospital, last Wednesday. Also special thanks to Dr. Miller and the nurses for their help. Thank you friends for the cards, food and visits and to my co-workers and boss at the Quiz for the lovely bouquet. You are all beautiful people. I love you all.

What's your BIGGEST Interest?

Maybe your big interest is sports, and you like to be a winner. But since you don't play games with money, your biggest interest ought to be a First Federal Lincoln Money Savings Certificate. You're a winner there, too, because our Certificate Savers earn all the way from 6.50% on a 12-month certificate to 8.00% on an 8-year certificate. With interest compounded continuously. Not daily, monthly, quarterly or annually, but every instant to produce the highest possible yield. So if you think big interest alone is a sound enough reason to save at First Federal Lincoln, you're probably right.

However,
FIRST FEDERAL LINCOLN OFFERS ALL THESE EXTRA CERTIFICATE BENEFITS:

Add-On Option.
Add $25.00 or more to your existing certificate, do it automatically every month if you want. This allows you to earn up to 8.00% on small additions. No bank does this.

Loans on Savings.
We make immediate loans on your savings at low rates—lower than normal installment loan interest rates. Meantime, your savings continue to earn without interruption.

Automatic Renewal.

We'll renew your certificate for you automatically. And we'll tell you before we renew it so you can make changes if you wish.

Pre-Certificate.

You need $1,000 to purchase one of our high-earning certificates. If you don't have it we'll show you how to save up to it.

The Money Doubler.

This is the innovative First Federal Lincoln plan that makes it possible for you to double your money in less than 9 years!

Insured Safety.

Your money is safely insured to $40,000 by an agency of the U.S. Government. If you need to insure more than that amount, we can show you how.

Interest Payment Options.

Have interest added back to the certificate; have it deposited each month in a Money Service Daily or Money Savings 90 account; have it mailed to you by check. Or. Withdraw your interest at any time! No bank does this.

Uneven Deposit Option.

Unlike many institutions, we don't require even amounts to purchase a certificate other than the $1,000 minimum required by law. If you want to open a certificate for $10,199, just say so!

Free Services.

We have a big long list of these including free American Express travelers checks and money orders and free notary service and free save-by-mail.

MONEY SAVINGS CERTIFICATES:

Annual Yield	Annual Rate
5.91%	5.75%—3 Month ($100 Minimum)
6.71%	6.50%—12 Month ($1,000 Minimum)
6.98%	6.75%—30 Month ($1,000 Minimum)
7.78%	7.50%—4 or 5 Years ($1,000 Minimum)
8.06%	7.75%—6 or 7 Years ($1,000 Minimum)
Now Offering	8.32% 8.00%—8 to 10 Years ($1,000 Minimum)

Federal regulations require substantial interest penalty for early withdrawal on Certificates of Deposit.

NOW! TREASURY-PLUS CERTIFICATE
pays you the highest interest and greatest yield on 6-month savings. Minimum $10,000 deposit. For current interest rate and full information about this new certificate, call or come in any First Federal Lincoln Office.

Colder Weather Spells Higher Prices For Hay?

Valley County Extension Agent, Al Martens, predicted colder weather could mean higher hay prices. Livestock needs for hay and other nutrients increase as temperatures drop, he told the Quiz Friday.

According to the Valley County Agent, for every degree below 20 degrees Fahrenheit, cattle need one percent more food. "This is especially important now that we are going into calving season," Martens commented.

A mature cow in average condition, carrying a calf, needs 20 pounds of hay daily with temperatures at 20 degrees. When temperatures drop to 0 degrees Fahrenheit, the same animal requires 24 pounds of hay daily, an increase of 20 percent.

Martens suggested supplementing livestock feed with Vitamin A to help cattle in colder temperatures.

Grain may be substituted for hay, a University of Nebraska Extension Service release stated. The UN publication stated:

"Grain can be substituted for hay at the rate of 1 lb. for about 1.6 lbs. of hay. With corn at about $2.25 per bushel, it could replace grass hay starting at about $55-$65 per ton if the total amount of the ration is restricted. Even though hay is relatively high in cost a minimum of approximately 5 lbs. of roughage should be provided per head daily in order to keep the rumen healthy.

"If bunks are not available some grains can be fed on the ground satisfactorily if snow can be bladed off to expose a fairly solid feeding surface. Ear corn can be fed without processing. Because much of the grain will pay for itself, it should be given about 20% less value than the value of the grain it contains. Grains that need to be finely ground may have considerable loss. If purchased through an elevator or feed company, it may pay to have such feeds made into grain cubes."

Area farmers haven't had any problems in getting to their livestock, Martens said, and have adequate hay so far. "But Martens stated if these cold weather conditions hang on we could see some problems."

'Pizza for Heart' Scheduled Febr. 11

Ord pizza lovers will be able to put some heart in their pizza on Sunday, Feb. 11. Area Pizza Hut stores will be contributing fifty cents for each pizza sold to the American Heart Association, Nebraska Affiliate.

"We are interested in community heart education," Terry Schmidt, Nebraska area Pizza Hut manager explained.

"Heart health care and preventive measures are important. The heart cause is also close to me since my father has experienced a heart attack."

This second annual "Pizza for Heart," will aid the Nebraska Affiliate's program of heart research, education and community service.

Know Nebraska Tours Scheduled

More than 1,000 inquiries on the new KNOW NEBRASKA Tours have been received by the Game and Parks Commission since the tours were announced on January 7 by the Commission and the Omaha World Herald, co-sponsor of the trips.

The first of seven tentatively scheduled trips will take place on May 17 and 18, and will feature sandhill cranes and migrating waterfowl congregated on the Big Bend of the Platte River in the Kearney area. The tour bus will depart from Omaha, and pick up more passengers in Lincoln. The March trip's $52 cost includes transportation, overnight lodging at the Kearney Holiday Inn, and three meals.

Present plans also call for a canoe outing down the Platte River in May, a backpacking tour of Indian Cave State Park in June, a trip to Fort Robinson State Park and other northwest Nebraska sites in June, a tour of western Nebraska in August, a history tour in September, and an autumn harvest trek in October.

Game and Parks Commission Director Gene Mahoney predicted popularity for the tours for several reasons. "They will make interesting vacations possible for people who would otherwise have to stay home because of inflation and high gasoline prices; they will allow midlanders to see Nebraska under the guidance of well-informed Game and Parks Commission staff, and they will help Nebraska communities and businessmen by bringing them dollars that would otherwise wind up in other states," he said.

All of the tours are set to depart from Omaha and pick up passengers along the way except the September outing. That one will leave Scottsbluff and bring western Nebraskans to the east. Costs range from $26 per person for the two-day backpacking trip, to $204 for the seven-day historical tour.

Information about the tours can be obtained by writing: Know Nebraska, P.O. Box 30370, Lincoln, NE 68503.

Help for Wildlife

Severe winter conditions in western Nebraska are playing havoc with wildlife, as with domestic animals, and the Game and Parks Commission has developed a three-prong approach to deal with the situation, according to Bill Bailey, Commission assistant director.

To alleviate damage complaints about foraging deer and antelope, the Commission is offering to buy hay from farmers and ranchers in the affected areas. Haystacks now being utilized by big game herds will be considered for on-the-spot purchase, then left in the field for the animals, Bailey said.

Unfortunately, funds for this type of effort are quite limited. However, the Commission has cancelled equipment purchases to free more dollars for this purpose. To inquire about the program, landowners should contact their local conservation officer or nearest Game and Parks Commission district office at Alliance, Bassett, North Platte, Norfolk, or Commission headquarters in Lincoln.

Secondly, where farmers and ranchers sustain serious losses due to foraging wildlife herds, the Commission recommends that they file claims for reimbursement of the loss. Claims must be filed as Miscellaneous Claims with the State Claims Board. The Commission will review these claims and make recommendations on the justifiability of payment.

Last, but certainly not least, the Commission is establishing a Winter Wildlife Fund. Any organization or individual is invited to send contributions to that fund which will be earmarked to purchase winter food supplies for wildlife in areas

READ PSALM 103:1-5
"He fills my life with good things, so that I stay young and strong like an eagle." (Psalm 103:5 TEV)
Praise chickens have wings, but they have to be scared into using them. My son and I were hunting the other day. We walked through a stubble field. A covey of prairie chickens scurried ahead of us in the pines. Only when their fear had reached a certain peak did they take to the air. So many upland game birds seem to use their wings only for "flight flights."
Faith is wings which the Lord has given His people. Faith allows us to soar over many obstacles that would otherwise block our path. Instead of soaring in running along on our own two feet, stumbling because of fear. When the situation gets desperate enough, we may be forced to use our wings.
Scripture never uses prairie chickens as examples for the people of God. We are to be characterized more by the eagle. Now there is a bird that uses its wings. It has feet, too, and walks when it has to — but it never walks when it can fly. Can you imagine an eagle thinking itself to be properly humble because it refused to use its wings? That would not be humility. That would be tragedy.
PRAYER: Forgive us, Lord, for using our faith only for flights of fright. We want to learn more and more what the psalmist meant by being young and strong like an eagle. Amen.

Art Council Grant Announced

The Loup Valley Arts Council has been awarded a $1,000 grant from the Nebraska Arts Council to sponsor a performance of the Norman Luboff Choir at Ord High School on February 15. The grant award was announced by Arts Council, official, Ron Dughman.

The Norman Luboff Choir is a part of the touring program of the Mid-America Arts Alliance, a regional arts alliance of Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma, and Missouri. Because of Nebraska's affiliation with Mid-America Arts Alliance, cities like Ord are able to sponsor nationally recognized arts groups like the Norman Luboff Choir at a reasonable cost.

Pancake Day Nets Near Record Crowd

The Ord Chamber of Commerce served free pancakes and sausage to all comers Saturday during their annual Pancake Day at the Ord Veterans Club. Project chairman, Ivan Sorensen, estimated some 1,200 people were guests of the Chamber from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Volunteers arrived around 10 a.m. Preparations included firing up griddles, frying sausage, making coffee, and getting in a few practice flapjack flips.

Batter was mixed in huge bowls on the upper level of the club. Nearby, other workers were frying sausage. On the lower level, others started making pancakes.

When doors opened at 11 a.m. there was a crowd waiting. A continuous stream of customers kept Chamber members hopping from then until doors were closed at 1 p.m.

When the last customer was served and dishes cleaned, Chamber members had used 180 pounds of pancake mix, 15 pounds of coffee, and fried a whole hog of sausage.

This year senior citizens were given rides to the free meal. Valley County Pork Producers provided the sausage. Cetak's Market in Ord did the processing. The Ord Veterans Club furnished the facilities.

Crew 'Sniffs The Breezes' In Power Plant Preparations

A two-man crew is sniffing the skies around Comstock as part of a preliminary air quality study project commissioned by the Nebraska Public Power District. NPPD officials contracted with Texas Instruments of Dallas, TX to do the 12 month study in preparation for a planned coal fired generating plant to be located near Comstock.

So sensitive are instruments located outside a small, one-room hut three miles west of Comstock, they can detect emissions from nearby automobiles. Visitors to the laboratory are asked to stand on newspapers. Water from melting snow on their shoes can distort recorded readings. Smoking is not allowed.

Two and a half inch insulation surrounds the one-room building housing the System 7,000 in use used to measure and record air quality and meteorological data. Instruments on a 330 foot or 100 meter tower gather wind and environmental information. This is fed into the electronic unit below. The air around Comstock is so pure and instruments so sensitive that scientists inside the cramped laboratory can tell if a passing car burps conventional or unleaded gasoline.

A perpetual clock records the year, day, minute, and millisecond readings are taken. This 12 month study, to meet government regulations, will go on during and after construction of a planned NPPD coal-fired power plant near Comstock. To be operational by 1986, the plant will supply 650,000 kilowatts for midwest power demands.

At the end of the 12 month period, in March 1983, collected data will be turned over to NPPD authorities. Texas Instrument personnel will then recommend continuing or halting the air monitoring operation.

Last Friday, Bill Gloff and Steve Thieme, along with D. L. Metcalf, all of Texas Instruments were putting some finishing touches on the System 7,000 data bank.

Here on a trip from Dallas, Metcalf said he drops in occasionally to "worry over" the complex installation. Construction of the air sampling facility was started last December and is now near completion. "Right now, we're still in the debugging stage," Metcalf explained. The System 7,000 is so sensitive it can measure two parts of sulfur dioxide per billion.

he said, "is pretty cold for a southern town."

Bill Gloff, site representative, is no stranger to cold weather. But even he had to admit recent temperature readings have been impressive. From upstate New York, originally before moving to Dallas, he remarked, "I've seen more snow but it never got this cold."

He and his wife, Lori, and their two children, live on a farm two miles east of Ord.

The second Comstock site crew member, Steve Thieme, also from Dallas, lives near Ord and commutes daily to Comstock with Bill.

In a subsequent Quiz interview both Thieme and Gloff were lyrical in their praise of Ord and the surrounding area. A slower pace of life, and easier commuting were often mentioned. Bill admitted since arriving here he has taken up hunting.

His wife, Lori, spoke of the friendliness of the people although wrapping her tongue around the pronunciation of some of the local names has proven to be an adventure.

On first arriving here, while perusing the Ord phone book, she was impressed a town this size could support two radio stations. First there was KNLV, and then there was what appeared to be call letters for a second station, WOZAB.

"I sure hope we get to stay on after a year," said Bill. "I sure like it here."

Crash Claims Two O'Neill Residents

An accident eight miles north of Greeley claimed the lives of two O'Neill residents Tuesday morning. Joseph A. Gokie and his wife, Millie, both 56, were killed when the pickup collided with a semi on Highway 281.

The semi, driven by Duane M. Seaman, 25, of Spalding, was going north on the highway when he passed a slow-moving vehicle. Seaman hit his brakes on the icy road. The truck jack knifed. The rear of the truck hit the southbound pickup killing Joseph. His wife, Millie, was pulled from the wreckage, but died at the accident scene.

First Steps Toward Centralized Communication System Taken Thursday

The first steps toward consolidated communications systems in Valley County were taken Thursday when the Communication Advisory Board met in Ord's City Hall. The three-man board is studying ways to consolidate telephone and radio emergency communications in Valley County and Ord.

City communications are primarily handled through the local light plant. Most county radio traffic goes through the sheriff's office in the county courthouse.

Since Ord signed an interconnect agreement with Nebraska Public Power District over a year ago, the necessity for having someone constantly on duty at the local light plant has ceased to exist.

Another reason for consolidation plans is the future possibility of a one number emergency telephone service, according to Advisory Board member C. J. Klimek. The sheriff, Ord Police, and the fire department currently have separate phone numbers.

Even with three separate numbers, a one number operator could eliminate some confusion, Klimek told the Quiz.

Klimek, Leon Klanecky, and Herb Goff serve on the Communications Advisory Board. Klanecky is chairman; Goff, vice chairman; and Klimek, secretary of the organization. The three members represent the city, the county, and the rural fire district. Spectators present Thursday were Ivan Sorensen, Ord's Fire Chief; Ord Mayor Richard Rowbal; Ord Police Chief John Young; Valley County Sheriff Martin Sonnenfeld; City Council members Bob Grove, Charlene Lola and Roger Goldfish; City Utilities Commissioner, Gene Baugh, and County Supervisor, Leon Klanecky.

The idea of using the Region 26 communications in Taylor was discussed and then dropped. Emergency calls would have to go from Ord to Taylor and back again, Klimek explained. That would take time.

Board members reached a tentative decision that the county courthouse in Ord would be a good communications center location. Operating costs were estimated at $30,000 to $35,000 annually. This includes a four to five person staff with someone on duty 24 hours a day.

Klimek stated, during the Quiz interview, existing radio equipment could likely be used initially. That found to be obsolete would likely be gradually phased out.

Costs will likely be about the same as they are for the present communications system, he said, or somewhat higher.

"I guess it all boils down to the fact that this is more than a convenience," Klimek said. "An emergency communications system is an essential service."

Advisory board members will report back to their respective

Ed Board Juggles Possible Courses - Job Assignments

Ord school board members spent most of Monday's meeting at Ord High juggling possible curriculum offerings and teaching assignments. Options for the 1979-80 school year discussed were:

— Combining music programs in the Ord Elementary and Ord High Schools. Dayle Johnson teaches vocal music to Ord High students on a full-time basis. Jewell Buoy is a half-time music teacher at Ord Elementary.

— Hiring an additional Special Education teacher. Student numbers in Special Education, according to their teacher Phyllis Burger, have increased substantially recently.

— Hiring a new speech pathologist. Elaine Bosworth, from the Educational Services Unit, now fills that post. Board members wanted a pathologist of their own.

— Juggling Social Science class assignments. Many teachers, according to Dr. Bill Gogan, Ord Superintendent, teach a subject and some Social Science classes as a schedule addition. Hiring a full-time Social Science teacher would free teachers for other scheduling assignments now being contemplated.

After discussion lasting about 45 minutes, board members decided to:

— Hire an additional Special Education teacher. This came after Burger outlined legislated class size requirements, case load, etc. Student numbers and projected special enrollment indicate the number of Special Ed. students will increase.

— Leave vocal music teaching assignments as they exist. Should they combine the two sections — Ord Elementary and Ord High — they could have faced the prospect of losing Johnson and Buoy and having to search for a new teacher to replace the two, according to discussion Monday.

— Hire a speech pathologist. Dr. Gogan said he knows of someone "really terrific" in his words, who has recently moved to Ord. He is a K-12. Her husband works for International Harvester, according to the superintendent. No name was mentioned.

— Consider hiring a full-time Social Studies teacher, and work out new course offerings, etc. Those now teaching Social Studies classes would be available for other teaching duties.

Just who will be hired and what courses will be added or dropped or expanded are not known. Possible cuts mentioned included a section of Swing Singers, guitar lessons, and other subjects.

Calculus was mentioned as a possible curriculum addition by Dr. Gogan.

Bus Tabled
The board tabled action on buying a new school bus until their March meeting. That came after discussion of mileage payments in lieu of busing expenses.

A report by board member Robert Dworak on transportation needs sparked the discussion. According to Dworak, school buses numbers two and four "are in bad shape". Both are used on a stand-by or substitute basis.

Dworak suggested buying a new bus, but wasn't sure what size vehicle was needed. Darrel Smith said a van would be the proper vehicle. Dr. Gogan urged board members to look seriously at a smaller bus, a 24 or 26 passenger model.

He estimated cost of the 26 passenger bus at around $19,000.

Board member Ed Vancura, commented, "My feeling is, I wouldn't do it", and suggested looking into something else. "If we're going to trim the budget," he said, "there would be a good place to do it."

Board member Ruth Power suggested tabling the matter until mileage costs, busing expenses, and other data are known. A lawyer for the school district was discussed — and dropped. Board president, Merrill Mason, said he had contacted Ord attorney, Bob Stowell. Stowell, according to Mason, said he was available. Teaching resignations from the following persons were read and accepted:

— Deborah Rubesh, kindergarten teacher at Ord

Elementary.
— Al Rubesh, Ord High wrestling coach, assistant football coach, and social studies teacher. Rubesh cited inadequate wrestling facilities at Ord High, inadequate assistants, and poor student participation in his letter to the board.

A report by head custodian, John Wojtasik, was passed to board members. Wojtasik estimated he has saved the school $3,500 by having jobs done by school staffers rather than hiring outside help.

Contract Negotiations
Contract negotiations will be on the menu March 5. Phyllis Burger, Ord Education Association negotiating team head, suggested OEA team members and those from the school board break bread together.

The two sides will have an informal session on what each wants and is willing to give. Representing the teachers will be Jim Sajevic, Dale Huebner, and Burger. Ed Vancura, Merrill Mason, and Karen Zaruba are the negotiating team for the school board.

O.E.A. and school board members annually negotiate higher salaries and increased fringe benefits.

Superintendent's Report

Dr. Gogan revealed he is: — Interviewing applicants for teaching posts: art instruction, football, and wrestling.

— Assigning Gary Patch to be track coach for a year.

— Contemplating a town hall meeting in March. The session would be for board members to hear possible budget cuts and where to make them. Just when and where the public meeting will be held haven't yet been established.

All Aboard
Permission was given Don Walker to use a school van for a trip to Grand Island. Walker and other fair board members want to look at facilities there.

The board went into executive session for teacher evaluations and salary discussions for counselor Eldon Buoy and Athletic Director, Don Nekuda.

Project Irregularity Charges Called "Poppycock" By Lange

Henry Lange, head of the Twin Loups Reclamation District called recent charges of irregularities in the North Loup Irrigation project "poppycock" for the first time.

Paula Siebke, spokeswoman for the Nebraska Agri-Water Council, claims she has uncovered alleged irregularities in plans for the $136.7 million irrigation project.

The project's two dams, canals, and other items by staying reared in a six-county area. Included are lands in G-Field, Valley, Greeley, Howard, Nance and Merrick Counties.

The Amherst ranch wife said she discovered the alleged irregularities by staying reared in four county courthouses and other offices and by talking with people.

Lange stated her information is "twisted" or just absolutely false, and suggested Siebke "should be knitting stockings or cooking jellies instead of this."

Here are some of her charges and responses from Lange as contained in a February 2 Omaha World-Herald article:

Charge — Federal law limits delivery of irrigation water to 160 irrigable acres per farmer or 350 acres per husband and wife. Yet, 110 persons owning 22,159 acres have more than the limit so they will have to sell land or obtain water illicitly. Among those with more land than the limit are eight of nine members of the reclamation district board, including Lange.

Response — No one is in violation now since water isn't being delivered and won't be for four or five years. After that, landowners have 10 years to dispose of excess lands. They can deed them to sons or daughters, sell them or seek to change the limit law. Landowners in western states have violated the limit for years and an attempt is under way in Congress to raise the limit. Contrary to her charge, Lange said he doesn't own more than the limit and only six or seven board members do.

Charge — The formation of the Twin Loups Irrigation District, part of the project, appears to be unconstitutional. It incorporated into the district lands already irrigated and whose owners hadn't petitioned in, as law requires.

Response — False. The district was properly formed and is constitutional.

Charge — Of the 75,099 acres signed up to receive water from the project, 11,922 are outside the boundaries of either the reclamation or irrigation districts or both, in violation of the law.

Response — The lands will become part of either or both districts before getting any water, so there is no violation.

Charge — More than 50 absentee landowners and 27 farming corporations own land within the irrigation district, indicating large corporate farms will benefit most from the taxpayer expenditure, not small farmers.

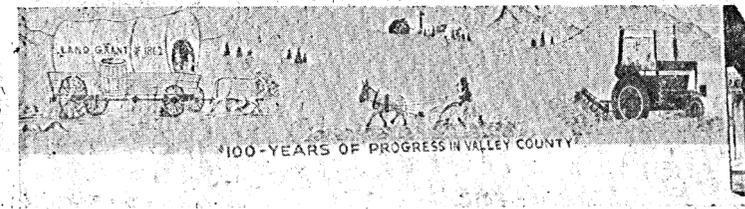

Response — Many of those groups are corporations formed by families so it is misleading to suggest large corporations will benefit. It is the little guy who is working hardest to get the project started because he realizes its benefit to small farmers and their families.

Charge — In the project area, 45,819 acres already are irrigated privately and 108 center pivots and 33 river pumps are in use. The project will cut through and remove already irrigated lands and is larger than needed.

Response — Lange said he hasn't seen Mrs. Siebke's final document, so can't comment

The Hangout on Arcadia's main street is literally a one-story building. Ord area artist Walt Ekern painted a scene last fall showing 100 years of progress in Valley County. The painting, commissioned by Arcadia State Bank president Al Masters, is a real eye catcher and a conversation topic. Old-timers have taken note of the left hand walking plow, shown in the center of the mural.

Masters told the Quiz Ekern wants to touch up the painting when the weather gets warmer.

Quiz Publisher Named Ak-Sar-Ben Ambassador

Students at Ord Schools celebrated Valentines Day Wednesday. Leisa Smedra put a valentine for someone special in the box at St. Mary's School. Jaseen Augstyn (right) appears to have a hunch just who that someone is. Both are third graders, at St. Mary's in Ord.

CAROL'S CORNER

by carol leggett

Hearts and Flowers . . . Why the fuss? It's the time for valentines. You've heard it said that on this day the patron saint will smile on maidens all the world over.

In times long ago, the first girl a boy saw in the morning, or the one whose name she drew from a box, was her "valentine." He then gave her a gift, which was usually flowers.

Originally the day concerns a priest named Saint Valentine. The story goes how he supposedly had the power of healing lovers' quarrels and sometimes was known for bringing back straying lovers. He was a kind person and the leader of the times was afraid of losing his throne to him, so had St. Valentine beheaded. After his death a celebration started in observance of his birthday with giving of sweets and flowers.

Believe what you want, but the custom of gift-making started and grew. The favorite color is red, denoting cheer. Modern time artists now often use blue (the true lover's color) along with pink (which symbolizes thought).

Valentine letters full of love were always the old-time custom. Nowadays, one can decide whether to give a gift or only a card. I hope you remember the date — and the card. The important thing is to have and be a happy valentine.

Do you remember your very first valentine? That tiny person held one chubby hand a valentine — probably a small red heart with the three magic words "I love you" written inside. It is probably one that both still remember, because nothing seems more thrilling as when a little boy gives his first sweetheart her very first valentine. Remember?

COFFEE CUP PHILOSOPHY: The time to be happy is now.

Harry Foths Return From California Trip

Last August, when Harry and Golda Foth celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary, one of the gifts from their family was a trip to California. On Jan. 23 they boarded a plane for Los Angeles where they were met by Edwin, Mildred and Eugene Lenz, who live in Torrance.

The Lenzes had planned many trips. Some of the highlights were Marineland, Disneyland, Lion Country Safari and a tour of the ship, Queen Mary. In San Diego, they visited the San Diego Zoo, and were allowed aboard the aircraft carrier, Kitty Hawk, which was being repaired. In the San Francisco area, they drove over the Golden Gate Bay and San Mateo Bridges, and saw the Coit Tower, Fisherman's Wharf, Chinatown and Alcatraz.

Friends and relatives they visited while in California were Barbara Jackman and family of Torrance, Mrs. Mary Merritt of San Diego, Wilma Cook Dixon of Arroyo Grande, Odgen Lenz and family of Hayward and James Bell.

They arrived back in Grand Island Feb. 8 and were met by their daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Urwiller of Ravenna, where they spent the night before returning home.

Artissimos Plan Workins & Workshops

Plans for workins and workshops were presented to the 14 members attending the February 6 meeting of the Artissimos by workshop committee members Julie Noyes, Zola Schudel and Rene Radil. Workins for the year will be on March 3, hosted by Rene Radil; May 5, hosted by Eloise Beranek; July 14, hosted by Julie Noyes; and September 29, hosted by Connie Myers. All will be at Parkview Village from 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

Workshops scheduled for the year will be on April 27 and 28 by Carlos Frey on "Still Life and Color Study in Oil"; June 16 by Judy Greff on "Flowers and Still Life in Acrylics"; August 10, 11, and 12 by Russ Hamilton on "Autumn Landscapes in Oil"; and October 27 by Ardie Moore on "Silkscreen".

A one year subscription to "The American Artist" was presented to the Ord Township Library as a gift from the Artissimos.

Two shows are scheduled for the public. February 15 the Artissimos will have an exhibit in conjunction with the performance of the Norman Luboff Choir and March 20, they will sponsor a showing at the Gala Event, which is open to all interested persons and groups. It will be held in Arcadia on Thursday, February 15 at 1:30 p.m. at the Hangout, and in Ord, Friday, February 16 at 1:30 p.m. in the Extension Office (third floor, Courthouse).

Participants will explore the meaning of cultural arts, types of cultural arts and why they're needed, and how they can help extend and take advantage of the arts in their own communities.

"When we think of cultural arts, we may think it has little to do with Nebraska," she said. "But Nebraska is far from a cultural wasteland. For example, the state ranks third in the nation for its artist-in-residency program in schools!"

The cultural arts also include a much wider subject area than many people might think, she said. It includes such things as exploring your family heritage, ethnic traditions, the culinary arts, photography, folk music, libraries, home furnishing, crafts, dancing and educational television, for example.

In the lesson, participants will be making plans for activities throughout the year to extend their cultural arts experiences. Among the proposed projects are locating and documenting all murals in the state and a national tour to Washington D.C.

For more information on the leader training lesson, contact the Valley County Extension office at 728-5071.

St. Ann's Study Club St. Ann's Study Club met Wednesday evening, February 7, at the home of Mrs. Clem Klimek. Mrs. Rich Liss was co-hostess for the evening. Members voted to give $25 to the Rescue Unit drive. President Lucille Shotkoski informed members of the World Day of Prayer being held on the first Friday in March. Everyone was encouraged to attend. Alice Rogers talked on the Right of Life movement.

Elsie Furtak led the lesson on Mathew Chapter 17-18. At the end of the lesson, Mary Liss served refreshments.

Ord senior citizens gave the local rescue unit funding drive a gentle assist Saturday. The sale of a hand-made quilt boosted the fund $155. George Rybin is the new owner of the quilt.

Booster Is on Reduced Power

The Channel Two booster, sending out Channel Five of Hastings, has had a power output failure. It will be operating on low power until needed repairs arrive. This may take a week to 10 days. Power will then be restored.

Cultural Arts Lesson Announced

1979 will mark a year of cultural arts experiences for members of Nebraska Home Extension clubs and other interested groups. The cultural arts has been designated as the statewide extension club thrust for this year by the Nebraska Council of Home Extension Clubs, according to Carol Van Nordheim, Area Extension Agent.

This year's observance will be kicked off in Valley County with the March leader training lesson, "Appealing and Revealing — The Cultural Arts Experience."

The home economist will be hosting the training session which is open to all interested persons and groups. It will be held in Arcadia on Thursday, February 15 at 1:30 p.m. at the Hangout, and in Ord, Friday, February 16 at 1:30 p.m. in the Extension Office (third floor, Courthouse).

Participants will explore the meaning of cultural arts, types of cultural arts and why they're needed, and how they can help extend and take advantage of the arts in their own communities.

Ord senior citizens gave the local rescue unit funding drive a gentle assist Saturday. The sale of a hand-made quilt boosted the fund $155. George Rybin is the new owner of the quilt. According to members of the quilting group, they worked all summer on their stitching project. Members whose sale aided the rescue unit drive are (front row, left to right) Mary Rysav, Myrtle Stalker, Dale Baker, Rose Visek, Tillie Massey and Alma Pierson. Fannie Porter, not shown, also helped. Ord firemen Richard Klimek (left) and Ivan Sorensen (right) inspect the quilt along with its new owner George Rybin (center).

Lady Chants Blast Central City 53-32

Anne Smith (52) taps the tipoff in the gal Chants direction.

The Ord Lady Chants blasted visiting Central City 53-32 Saturday night. A solid defense held Central to four points while the gal Chants gained 15 in the first quarter.

"The kids are really settling down and playing good ball", Ord coach Max Murray told the Quiz. He lauded their efforts in the first half. "We knew they relied on two main shooters", he explained. The girls planned their moves accordingly. Both Kathy Holbrook and Jill Folbrecht were held to a basket each in the first period.

The second quarter Central made an impressive comeback. Three Ord starters were benched with foul problems. Kittle, Smith, and Blaha looked on as replacements went into the game.

In mid second quarter, Ord was in front 30-12. Then Central rallied and ended the first half 30-22, Ord ahead.

The third quarter Ord held Central to five field goals. A good game plan and super free throw shooting nailed the game down. Central was held to five points each of the last two quarters.

Said Murray, "Everyone played."

They say the girls go to Broken

Bow. The Indians have a 2-9 record, according to Murray. He admitted their marks aren't impressive but warned they could be deceiving. "The Indians have played some good teams", he said and suggested his girls could get a rude surprise if they expect an easy win. Vickie Mason continued her super free throw shooting Saturday. In the last two games she has sunk 17 of 20 shots. Anne Smith had her best game to date against Central, Murray said, and commented Nancy Gogan shot well.

Bison Buffalo the Ord Boys 52-35

Cold shooting stifled attempts of Ord boy Chants to get five wins in a row Saturday. The host Chants were downed by visiting Central City Bison 52-35.

Central came into the game with an 8-7 record. A week ago Friday they were edged by Lexington and one day before the game here they lost to York Dukes 69-68.

The Chants were aiming for their fifth win in a row. The last four wins were a bright spot in an otherwise bleak season. The Ord boys last win was at Burwell February 2 where they got by host Longhorns 44-41. Hopes for a win Saturday didn't materialize.

Central City was in front 13-10 at the end of the first quarter and never looked back. With the Chants it was a story of almost tying the game, but never quite succeeding. Central's record from the free throw line alone was enough to hand them the game. They were 14 of 27 shots. Ord was 5 of 15.

The Bison pushed their lead to 17-10 with 6:32 in the second quarter. Central had 19 points to Ord's 12 when a foul by Kurt Kremke gave Central two charity shots.

Neither went in. Ord rebounded for the ball. After a basket attempt by Ord, Central got two free throws on a travel call. One went in.

Hustle, height, and skillful rebounding gave Central a 20-14 edge when a time out was called at 3:55. Time in Central got yet another charity shot and the score jumped again.

The Chants got the ball and with it an infraction call. Central's Gregg Stephens sank a free throw boosting the Bison to a 24-14 edge. This was hiked to a 28-21 margin when the first half ended.

Leading scorers for Central were Gregg Stephens with 9 points, Don Brokemeier with 6, and Scott Johnson with 4.

Ord super scorers were Jim Smith with 7 points the first half, Cohen Hoppes with 4 and Joe Dworak with 4. The Chants had six fouls the first half to Central's five.

Second Half

The Bison kept up the pressure, opening the second half with back-to-back baskets, and a swiped ball for basket number three.

In trying for yet another basket, Central incurred an infraction, sending Dan Martin to the free throw line. One of two shots went in.

Central got — and then lost — the ball. A basket try by Smith fizzled, and then Beran went up for the rebound and tapped it in. The teams were 31-24 when time out was called at 3:50 in the third period.

Both teams scored baskets, hiking the score, but keeping the point spread the same.

The third quarter ended with Ord shaving their deficit to nine points 29-38.

Fourth Quarter

Central took the tipoff and was working the ball downcourt when a missed pass sent the ball out of bounds. Ord got the ball and a basket. The score was 31-38. Victory for the Chants was still possible.

These odds changed when with half the last quarter gone, the Lady Chants Bound for Districts

The Ord Lady Chants will be bound for district matches at Broken Bow Feb. 20. They are scheduled to play Broken Bow at 8 p.m.

O'Neill with a 13-2 record is a likely contender for district champion as is West Holt with a 10-2 record for the season, thus far.

Ord's gal Chants are right in there too. Their 11-6 season statistics are nothing to sneeze at, and neither are records like those held by Broken Bow. The Chants will take on Broken Bow for the second time this season at the district meet. The teams played earlier in regular season competition.

Ord will take 12 girls to Broken Bow for their first game February 20.

Chant Reserves closed out the game losing 47-39.

Doug wrestles in the 98 pound division and Dave in the 145 pound category. Their win at Aurora assures the two Ord High students places at the state meet in Lincoln this Thursday-Saturday at the Devaney Sports Center.

Seventh-Eighth Graders Split Two

Ord seventh and eighth graders split a pair Saturday when St. Paul teams came to Ord. Seventh graders were blasted 30-10.

Ord coach Jim Sajevic pointed out the boys had never played together as a team prior to Saturday's game. St. Paul, he said, has four seventh graders their coach is considering placing on the eighth grade squad.

High scorers for Ord seventh graders were Mike Wert, Brian Hoge, and Martin Rodriguez, each with two points.

Ord eighth graders took their game 27-18. The Chant understudies had 18 turnovers to St. Paul's 29 and enjoyed a two to one advantage in rebounding. Coach Sajevic called that last statistic "the biggest improvement we made last week."

Paul Hill had nine rebounds. Todd Pelton and Phil Fischer each had eight.

Top scorers were Bob Grove with 10 and Shawn Sich with 8. Todd Pelton had six points and Scott Novosad had 8. They were the only four players who scored.

Viking Reserves Nix Gals 47-39

Grand Island Reserves overwhelmed Ord girls 47-39 Thursday with devastating first and third quarters. Ord was behind 44-31 with four minutes left in the game. A charity shot and basket boosted Grand Island's lead to 47 points.

Ord lagged by 12 points when Mason stole the ball. The gal Chants failed to capitalize on their advantage, and Grand Island got the ball back.

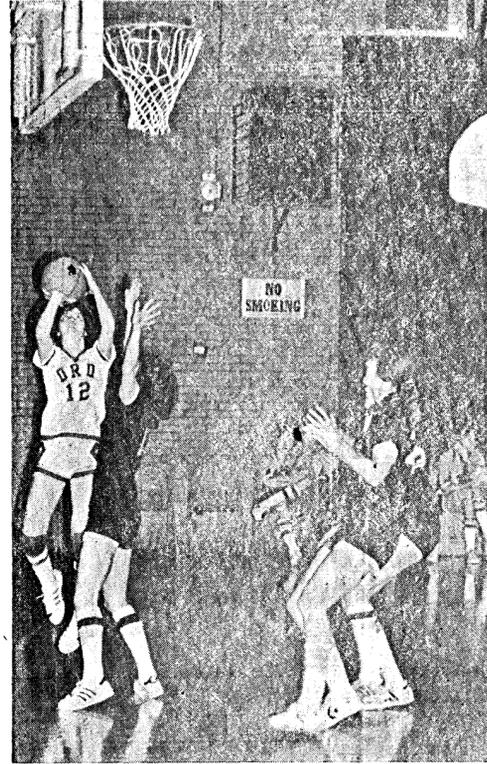

Two free throws by Peg Kramer narrowed Ord's deficit to 10 points.

Ord rebounded on a fluffed charity shot attempt by Grand Island, but their efforts weren't enough to win the game. The gal

Boxers Score Big In Grand Island Bouts

Ord Boxing Club members walked away from Golden Gloves competition in Grand Island Friday and Saturday with everything but the kitchen sink last weekend. They capped a two-day spree of decisions, knock-outs, and TKOs by winning the team trophy at the District competition.

One of the most spectacular knock-outs came at the hands of Duane Sonnenfeld, in the heavyweight division. Both he and his opponent Ronald Holeman of Grand Island are big men.

Sonnenfeld ended the fight 50 seconds into the first round. One punch from the Ord native sent Holeman down. Sonnenfeld went on to decision Duane Vasicek in final rounds Saturday.

Other knockouts Friday went to Rick Hawk and Don Freouf. Hawk, in the 147 pound novice division won in the first round over Bobby Slocum of Amherst.

Hawk went on to decision Greg Taubenhern in final rounds Saturday.

Vikings Squeak By Lady Chants 47 to 46

Ord varsity gal cagers came within a whisper of winning their game against Grand Island Northwest her Thursday. The gal Chants were edged 47-46 in a game that went down to the wire.

That win Thursday was the first time gal Vikings have whipped Ord in four years. The victory boosts Northwest to 14-1 within four points of Grand Island, 37-33.

Then it was scrappy Vickie Mason sinking two free throws. Ord had 35 points, and the possibility of a win. A charity shot by Smith gave Ord 36 points, and the likelihood of a win increased.

Then Grand Island erupted with a fireworks display of ball stealing, fast breaks, and baskets. Gogan and Mason kept Ord in the game. Within three minutes left in the game Ord trailed 45-40.

Free throws by Mason pulled Ord within three points of the Vikings. Then Gogan swiped the ball. A Chant shot attempt fizzled, and Grand Island got the ball.

Mason rebounded successfully, giving Ord possession once more. A jump ball was called with the game in its last few minutes. Grand Island took the tip and scored a basket, giving them a 47-42 lead. There was 1:13 left in the game.

Two baskets by Kittle in the last few seconds of play made a possible win agonizingly close. Mason got the ball with less than a minute. Two shot attempts failed and the clock ran out. Grand Island had a 47-46 win.

Dave Reed in Distance Relay

David Reed, son of Pastor and Mrs. Earl H. Reed of Ord, was one of the participants in the Distance Medley Relay at the UNL Invitational Track Meet on Saturday, Feb. 10. The Nebraska Wesleyan team won first place in the event and set a new school record at 10:00.92 which is 9 seconds faster than the previous record.

The Distance Medley Relay team members were: David McKnight on half mile, Scott Reed, one quarter mile; Bob Quick, three-quarters mile; and Dale Bradley on the mile leg of the relay.

Reed also was a participant in the Mile Relay team from Nebraska Wesleyan which placed fifth in the meet.

Ninth Grade Gals Whip Central City

Ord ninth graders whipped visiting Central City Bison 39-26 Tuesday, Febr. 6. The Ord girls took the game in the first and fourth quarters. Central was overwhelmed and out scored in those two periods by 10 points. Added to that was the two-point scoring edge Ord had in the third period.

The best Central could do was scrounge up two points in the second quarter to Ord's one.

Leading Ord was Diane Dworak with 10 points. Jane Bosworth with 8, Sue Penas with 8, Tammi Sears with 7, and Mary Novosad with 6.

Tina Reeves of Central City had 13 points.

Ord was 5 of 17 at the free throw line. Central was 4 for 11.

The Ord girls were 17 of 47 from the field for 36 percent. Sue Penas had 11 rebounds and Jane Bosworth 9.

Project Irreg.

specifically on number of acres irrigated and pivots at work. But he said her preliminary findings discussed several weeks ago were incorrect. Area residents want the project to open up dryland to irrigation or recharge underground water supplies so they can continue irrigating. The project will be designed to avoid damage to as many pivot-irrigated acres as possible.

Charge — Mrs. Siebek said her study indicates farmers may not want to or be able to pay the amount of money the bureau will charge to get the water.

Response — Not so. The amount will be within farmers' means.

Charge — Since the Nebraska Game and Parks Commission has declined to sponsor the recreational portion of the project, the reclamation district will have to tax persons to create and maintain recreation facilities.

Response — Although the commission hasn't agreed to sponsor the recreational portion, Commission Director Eugene Mahoney favors taking it over, so when the time comes, the commission likely will be the sponsor. If not, the reclamation district can borrow money to build facilities, charging persons for using them, and repaying the loan over 40 years.

Charge — The law allows the district to tax area residents whether or not they get water. Many persons don't realize that. The district may have to make assessments to repay costs.

Response — Area residents realize the many benefits of the project besides the irrigation water, such as new jobs and businesses. They are willing to pay another mill in taxes to support a project aiding the whole region.

According to the February 2 article, Mrs. Siebek was a leader in the citizen effort that defeated the proposed Mid-State irrigation project on the Platte River in 1975.

The Center for Rural Affairs reportedly paid her $250 to do the North Loup study. She was quoted as saying this figure is to be "less than a penny an hour" because of all the time it took.

Some don't know happiness until they lose it.

is geographically divided into 16 Ak-Sar-Ben districts with a District Ambassador overseeing ambassadorial functions in all communities within each district. This brings the total complement to 296 Ak-Sar-Ben representatives throughout Nebraska and western Iowa.

Duties of Ak-Sar-Ben Ambassadors include: — Informing citizens of their communities about Ak-Sar-Ben's many programs which benefit the people of the area.

Leading the annual Ak-Sar-Ben membership drive in their communities.

Arranging appropriate ceremonies for presentation of Ak-Sar-Ben's annual Good Neighbor Awards to winners in their communities.

Referring Ak-Sar-Ben scholarship program inquiries to the appropriate college or university.

Nominating candidates from their communities for Countesses for the annual Coronation and Ball.

Participation in Ak-Sar-Ben sponsored local community service dinners.

Assisting in the location of eligible farm families for the annual Ak-Sar-Ben Pioneer Farm Family Awards.

Recommending contributions from Ak-Sar-Ben toward the purchase of local rescue units and lifesaving equipment.

Crash Kills

Bids Taken Monday for Ord Airport

Bids on leasing airport owned farm lands were received during a meeting Monday at Sharp Field. Top bid on the estimated 93 acres came from Tom Pierce. He was willing to pay $6,100 on a three year rental contract, according to airport authority member, Don Blaha.

Blaha wasn't sure how many bids were placed during the auction, but said there "were many".

Board members tabled all bids. Just which one will be accepted will be announced within a week, Blaha told the Quiz Tuesday.

WEATHER REPORT

Warmer temperatures during the past week, brought some thawing and evaporation to the heavy snow cover — and also some hazardous foggy conditions during the early part of the week.

Though more snow was in the forecast for the latter part of the week, expected to sweep down from the Pacific Northwest, a gradual warming trend is seen in the weekend forecast and for early in the coming week.

Happy Circle Extension Club

The Happy Circle Extension Club met Tuesday, February 13, at the Barbara Kapustka home with Erma Mulligan as co-hostess. Twelve members were present and one guest, Mrs. Ed Marshall. Some of the ladies enjoyed a pot luck luncheon before the meeting.

During the meeting, home made Valentines were exchanged by the ladies and a get well card was sent to a former member, Mrs. Earl Scofield. The Club also donated a lap quilt to an old member, Ina Flynn, who is in the long term section of the Valley County Hospital.

Mrs. Howard Fauss won the door prize and Alice Stevens received a valentine from her sister sister. The lesson, "Will It Be Good and Good For You" was given by Eva Woods at the previous meeting.

Home Health Nurse Visits Ord Rotary

Kathy Shoemaker, Valley County Home Health Nurse, was guest speaker at Rotary Monday. Mrs. Shoemaker explained a number of facts about the availability of her services including: — The program is designed to avoid unnecessary rest home care and hospitalization.

— The home nurse costs only $26 a visit as compared with current hospital per day charges. Part B coverages also available but the patient must meet the $100 deductible first.

— The home nurse's biggest problem is to devise systems to make sure patients take their medicine.

— The Home Nurse is a satellite nurse for the Broken Bow Hospital who works under the direction and supervision of the individual patient's physician.

Mrs. Shoemaker is married to Rotarian, Dave Shoemaker. In other Rotarian news, Rotarian Galley reported Rotarian McDermott had contributed a 1969 Plymouth station wagon to the Ord Airport as the courtesy car and that $140 has been raised to permit the authority to furnish the courtesy car to the public.

Farmer-Rancher Meeting in Ord

A meeting of the Ord area Young Farmers and Ranchers was held Monday, February 5, at the Ord High Ag Room. A short business meeting was held. Dick Beran of Natural Resources District, along with Howard Paulsen of the Soil Conservation Service of Ord, spoke on water and soil conservation. Several demonstrations were given on ground water and well-testing instruments and methods.

Among other topics discussed was the Young Farmer-Rancher State convention held in Kearney February 2 and 3. Five members from the Ord area attended. Activities included a tour of a large feeding operation near Kearney, and a tour of the Kearney Youth Development Center. Plans were made for the 1980 National Convention to be held in Omaha.

The next local Young Farmer-Rancher meeting is scheduled for February 20 at 7:30 p.m.

Supervisors Hear Of Cemetery Plot

Valley County Supervisors heard plans for a February 20 cemetery hearing in Broken Bow during their meeting Tuesday in Ord. According to County Clerk Thelma Dultz, the burial ground is located west of Arcadia, in Custer County.

Area residents want all residents, not just those in Custer County, to contribute toward the cemetery's maintenance and upkeep.

A hearing on this will be held at 1:30 next Tuesday in the Custer County Courthouse in Broken Bow: A new cemetery district may be formed at that time.

In other business, supervisors adopted the one and six year road plan Tuesday. There were no opponents appearing at the public hearing at the courthouse Tuesday in Ord.

A 3M (Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing) salesman gave a presentation on microfilming county records. Space and storage costs reportedly would be saved in the process.

The salesman said he would set up a proposed program for Valley County records. Supervisors could consider it when the program is presented, at an as yet undetermined date.

Ray's Studio Attend Seminar

Ray and Mary Marshall and Millie Winterfeld of Ray's Studio attended the Winter Seminar of Professional Photographers of Nebraska. The seminar was Sunday and Monday, February 11 and 12 at the Cornhusker Holiday Inn in Lincoln.

Girl Scouts Selling Cookies in February

Girl Scout Cookie sales will begin in Ord on February 16 through February 25. Girl Scouts will be taking cookie orders door-to-door. This year a new Country Oats and Nut Crisp cookie is being introduced along with the regular favorites. Part of the money will go to the local troops to be used for camping experiences for the girls. Council profits from the sales are used for equipment for

"My hogs get to market weight faster on less feed. Two reasons: good management, good feed."

You own it. You benefit from it.

BEST DEAL IN THE COUNTRY!

"The double-circle CO-OP Brand Pig Starter Plan adds profit to my overall hog production. It's a two-stage feeding combination that gets my hogs to 50 pounds faster on less feed. It lowers my cost-per-pound of pork produced. I start them on CO-OP Pig Starter #25. I get them weaned earlier and at the creep feeder. The extra daily weight gains are easy to see. Everything stacks up right: Palatability, right nutrient and protein levels. High energy feeding at less cost.

"When my hogs reach 25 pounds I switch them to CO-OP Pig Starter #50. They maintain that efficient, rapid growth, and spend less time on feed. Simply, it means at 9 weeks they're averaging 5 pounds or better of extra weight at a lower cost-per-pound of gain. CO-OP Pig Starters #25 and #50 make a lot of sense. Especially when you consider I own part of the CO-OP Feed Mill they come from."

Coming Events
 February 16-17: Second Annual Trees for Nebraska Conference, Nebraska Center for Continuing Education, Lincoln.
 February 19: Problem Pig Workshop, First National Bank basement, Ord, starting at 1:30 p.m.
 February 20: An Estate Planning Seminar, First National Bank, Ord, starting at 9 a.m.
 February 20: Irrigation Workshop, Ord Elk's Club, Ord, starting at 9:30 a.m.
 February 23: Alfalfa Workshop, Courthouse Assembly Room, Greeley, at 1:30 p.m.
 February 26-27: Nebraska Soybean Days, Nebraska Center for Continuing Education, East Campus, Lincoln.
 February 27: Commercial Pesticide Applicator Training Meeting, Ramada Inn, North Platte.

Having Problems With Your Pigs?

If your answer is either yes or no you will want to attend the "Problem Pig Clinic" to be held the afternoon of February 19 at the First National Bank basement in Ord. The program will start at 1:30 p.m. with a representative of the Ord Animal Clinic discussing swine health. The remainder of the program will consist of a question and answer session on swine housing and nutrition. Gerald Bodman UNL Extension Engineer of livestock systems and Bobby Moser UNL Extension Swine Specialist will be on hand for this session.

Irrigation Workshop

Irrigation Scheduling will be the theme of an Irrigation

Workshop to be held at 9:30 a.m. on February 20 at the Ord Elk's Club. Good water management is always essential to profitable irrigated agriculture. Careful control of the timing and amount of irrigation can cut pumping costs and reduce the potential for nitrogen leaching loss.

Plan to attend this workshop sponsored by your Valley County Cooperative Extension Service. The morning session will include discussions on effect of weather on scheduling, equipment needed for irrigation scheduling, and use of the Irrigation Hotline. Basic and advanced techniques of irrigation scheduling and an A G N E T demonstration on Pumping Plant Efficiency are on the agenda for the afternoon.

Alfalfa Workshop Planned

An Alfalfa Workshop is planned for February 23 at Greeley. Better alfalfa varieties, establishment methods, new seeding, and weed control are all topics to be discussed at an alfalfa workshop to be held in Greeley. Interested area farmers are invited to attend this meeting.

According to Greeley County Extension Agent, Lee Nielsen, the meeting will start at 1:30 p.m. in the Courthouse Assembly Room at Greeley. District Extension Specialists Phil Grabowski and Jim Nichols from North Platte, and Fred Roeth from Clay Center will be guest speakers.

New AGNET Programs

In addition to the many programs offered on the AGNET Computer, there are several new programs available. CROP-SET/IDE is designed to aid in decision making regarding participation in the government farm program and to determine the most profitable (or minimum loss) crops to produce.

LANDPAK consists of two programs: 1) BUYLAND estimates the maximum price you can afford to pay for land. In addition to a "market" price, BUYLAND also calculates a "productivity" bid price based on income from the land and does not include any tax or inflation effects. 2) MINCOME, this program works like BUYLAND in reverse. You tell MINCOME how much you are willing to pay for a parcel of land and then MINCOME will calculate the minimum net cash income per acre required to support your purchase. Both these programs will bring out cash flow analysis on a per acre basis. MINCOME is a computer program that will estimate the energy use of your home. It will calculate the annual heating and cooling costs of your home. This program will also provide recommendations on the cost effectiveness of energy saving home improvements such as adding insulation and storm windows. These programs do require input information from your own situation. Stop by the Extension office for information forms for these programs.

Nebraska Champions

Just a reminder to keep your eyes open for large trees in your area — you may have a Nebraska Champion. This program is co-sponsored by the IANR Departments of Forestry & Fisheries, Wildlife and Horticulture, and the Nebraska Statewide Arboretum. Its purpose is to give recognition to champion trees and to focus attention on trees in general.

St. Mary College Recruiter Coming

Liz Young, an admissions counselor from the College of Saint Mary, Omaha, will visit Ord High School Thursday, Feb. 15 at 11 a.m.

The College of Saint Mary is a four year, independent, liberal arts college for women. Located on a 45 acre campus in southwest Omaha, CSM is able to take advantage of its smallness (560 students; 1-9 teacher/student ratio) within the metropolitan setting.

The College offers both Associate and Bachelor Degree programs with majors in 20 areas including the liberal arts, health sciences, pure sciences, education, and business. In addition the College offers a Weekend College for working women.

Ice Shelter Deadline Extended

Ice fishing shelters will be allowed to remain on Nebraska lakes beyond the customary February 10 cutoff date because of the cold weather and extremely thick ice, according to the Game and Parks Commission. Many Nebraska lakes are covered by 30 inches or more of strong, hard ice, and Commission authorities see no reason to enforce the February 10 removal.

A new date of February 25 has been set for removal of the shelters, but that deadline will also be reviewed and extended if good ice conditions persist.

Attend Seminar

The State Civil Defense Agency conducted a Fire Preparedness Seminar in North Platte Feb. 9-11. Those from the Ord area attending were Hazel Materno, Garfield County Civil Defense Director; Clarence Fox, Valley County Civil Defense Director; Dorothy Pollard, Loup County CD Director; and Region 26 Coordinator, Rick Noyes.

The program dealt with disaster operations planning, hazardous materials handling, and other emergency situations.

The kitchen crew was busy frying sausage during the Ord Chamber's Pancake Day Saturday at the Veterans Club.

One of the more skilled chefs was Chamber member Bob Moyer. He was seen flipping pancakes to spectacular heights at the Ord Veterans Club.

HARDNESS
 Hardness of groundwater reported as calcium carbonate (CaCO₃) ranges from less than 60 parts per million (ppm) in the Sandhills region to more than 1,000 ppm in several other widely scattered areas in the state. A maximum hardness of 1,400 ppm was determined in a sample from southeast Nebraska and a minimum hardness of 6 ppm was determined in a sample from the Sandhills. The statewide mean for 1,802 samples was 270 ppm. Hardness of groundwater tends to increase across Nebraska from west to east.

The terms "hard" and "soft" as applied to water, may be used to describe Nebraska's groundwater. In ppm as CaCO₃, 0 to 60, soft; 61 to 120, moderately hard; 121 to 180, hard; and greater than 180, very hard. To convert ppm to grains of hardness, multiply ppm by 0.0584. Soft water generally occurs where limestone or reworked limestone is absent. The Sandhills region of Nebraska, where the softest water in the state generally occurs, is such an area. Most soluble materials, if ever present, have been removed from the sand by infiltrating water.

Hardness of groundwater in about one-half of the state exceeds 180 ppm. In parts of eastern Nebraska, the hardness may be considerably greater than 360 ppm. Such very hard water is derived from bedrock aquifers or from aquifers in glacial drift. Most of the aquifers in Paleozoic bedrock are limestones or dolomites, which are primary sources of calcium and magnesium. The Dakota Group in northeast Nebraska contains considerable gypsum and beds of calcareous sandstone, which are recognized sources of calcium.

By Richard Beran

The glacial drift, composed in part of pulverized rocks of Paleozoic and Precambrian age, also contains large amounts of calcium and magnesium. Other areas of Nebraska where very hard water occurs are along the Platte and the Republican rivers. The hardness of the groundwater in the alluvial deposits is similar to the hardness of the water in the rivers. Irrigation return flow, which contains higher concentrations of dissolved constituents than did the water originally diverted for irrigation, is a large component of the flow of both rivers.

Therefore seepage from the rivers into the adjoining deposits increases concentrations of chemical constituents, including hardness. Water diverted from the Platte River for irrigation of upland crops in Gosper, Phelps, and Kearney counties is more mineralized than was the groundwater beneath those counties prior to irrigation development. Infiltration of some of the irrigation water to the aquifer has increased the hardness of the groundwater in this area. Very hard water also occurs in the rocks of the northwest corner of the state.

Moderate hardness is characteristic of water in the Ogallala Formation in central and western Nebraska. Regulations of the Environmental Protection Agency covering drinking water do not include a recommended limit for hardness because no serious health problems are known to result from the consumption of hard water. However, the insoluble residues that collect in kettles used for heating water, the curd that forms when soap is used to produce a lather, and the stiffness that is added to laundered towels and other fabrics are among the aesthetic problems resulting from hardness. On the other hand, depending on factors such as the pH and dissolved-oxygen content of the water, naturally soft water cause corrosion in water systems. To avoid scale formation and corrosion in boilers and pipes, many industries treat the water they use for boilers.

State Checkers Tourney Coming to North Loup

The State Checkers Tournament will be held in North Loup February 18-19. The competition will be held under a three-move restriction play.

About 20 persons are expected for the two-day event.

Kenneth Swanson of Columbus is the current state champion. Last year he defeated Lloyd Mills, a 27 time winner of the state championship.

Due to the extremely low temperatures now prevailing in Ord, you are urged to use extra precautions to protect your water meters and other plumbing against freezing. The inconvenience and expense connected with frozen underground lines can be avoided by allowing a small stream of water to run continuously. The danger of freezing in underground lines will exist and may increase after the first general rise in temperature.

Where and When

Elsewhere in this issue of the Quiz is a news item about a possible gasoline plant in St. Paul. Corn is distilled, and the resulting alcohol added to gasoline, stretching America's hydrocarbon fuel supply.

First thought of during the Second World War, gasoline was then considered little more than a novelty of the times. The war over, America's energy needs were easily met — for a while.

Then came the Arab oil embargo, and with it the realization that we can no longer supply all our own oil and gasoline. Right now, interest in Iran has cut America's oil supply pool even further.

Mid-east OPEC (Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries) members could conceivably use this to bring concessions from the United States, already dependent on OPEC for most of its energy needs. They have used their "petroler" in the past, and there is no indication they won't in the future. Why should they? Right now they have the bull by the horns — or the great American Eagle by the tail feathers — depending on your point of view.

As OPEC's grip on us continues to tighten and our energy demands soar, the feasibility of the gasoline plant will likely grow ever more plausible and acceptable. Right now, it is the best bet America has going for it.

Energy legislation proposed by President Carter has emerged from Congress a patchwork quilt of special interests and concessions. Motorists continue to ignore the 55 mile per hour speed limit. Leaders on the home front and in Washington either downplay or ignore the energy crisis.

Unfortunately, the problem just won't go away. The longer we choose to ignore it, the greater will be the final settlement when the inevitable day of reckoning with available natural resources comes.

True, solar and atomic energy have been proposed to offset the energy crunch, but for the most part they are in the developmental stage or impractical for helping meet America's transportation fuel needs.

Virtually the only ace in the hole the U.S. has here is gasoline. As we see it, it is an idea whose time has come. It isn't a question of if but only where and when.

Something Different

San Diego 124, Denver 100

Occasionally one of the super sports events in this "physical" (whatever that is) area entices us out of our cozy little nest. And so we drove 25 miles across San Diego to watch San Diego's prize Clippers battle the Denver Nuggets one evening last week. It turned out to be a super basketball show.

The Clippers had been on a winning streak for several games. We were almost afraid we might jinx them, they'd been doing so well, whipping the last six opponents.

It was a little rainy in spots but we arrived safely and waited around for two-three hours. Like everyone else, The Sports Arena is big, new, well organized in several ways, but they have at least a block of parking area on all four sides and this means a long walk after tricky parking.

For this town is basketball mad, not only kids but crowds of families and wellwishers. The teams in these days are usually black boys, so black people are there in hordes to cheer their favorites.

This is an integrated city. The thousands of service men often bring home foreign brides, Korean, Japanese. The city is close to Mexico and Mexican girls are mighty pretty when they're slim and young, those doe eyes, yum yum, that Spanish look. We sat in quite good seats next to a young dorkish man and his little white wife, and we enjoyed them.

The ball playing was unbelieveable, that San Diego team slipped those baskets in so quickly. It looked so simple. The teams raced the length of the floor a thousand times while our heads swiveled.

The crowd was wildly enthusiastic, and must have jumped up after a good play at least 50 times. And Lloyd Free was making a record, they were watching him, all cheering. And so did we although I continue to feel warmth for Denver, and Colorado.

Suitable organ music filled the arena, marking every basket, every play, it was heavenly for acoustics were excellent.

But more than all this we enjoyed San Diego's K G B chicken in his furry red suit, with his high cockcomb, his big red fan of a tail which might have been just a wee bit bedraggled (the rain?).

His showy yellow stockings, the queer flat shoes in yellow that he flaps around in, his fat yellow beak, his pop-eyes like two hard cooked eggs... he's a riot.

Not because of his garb, weird as that is. But because of his personality, there is nothing he doesn't do. He postures boredom, sleeping, jumping high at each good play, jumping up and down, flapping his wings, shaking his head, dancing and prancing. His antics applaud every good move and wails every bad move. Mostly he cheers the San Diego team but sometimes whips his hands together in prayer for someone else. He is a riot and the crowd loves him.

Originated to boost a local radio station, he belongs to this community. He is paid $30,000 per year but has been offered $100,000 to perform elsewhere, which he has turned down, for he loves this region and its people.

The crowd loves The Chicken as much as it does the performers he boosts: he is seen at almost all local functions.

I couldn't help but bemoan the sad, dreary, idiotic and stupid ugly man with the big hat who appears at Cornhusker games. No one can be proud of him. Or so I feel.

Gas Tax May Increase But Won't Be Hiked Two Cents

CAPITOL NEWS
By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association
Lincoln — The 9.5 cent per gallon tax on gasoline may be increased, but it may not rise two cents as proposed in a bill on which a public hearing was held recently by the Legislature's Revenue Committee.

The bill was prepared by the Legislature's 1978 Transportation Advisory Committee. This year's committee agreed to introduce the bill, but its vice chairman, Sen. Elroy Helfer of Coleridge, said the current members favor only a penny a gallon increase.

Each cent of the tax produces about $10 million annually. Helfer said boosting the tax from 9.5 to 11.5 cents would amount to a 21 percent increase — well above the inflation-control guidelines of President Carter.

State Engineer Dave Coolidge testified as a neutral witness. He left no doubt he could well use whatever extra money that could be made available to the state Roads Department. He cited "the constant demand for road maintenance and construction projects that come to his office from all parts of the state."

Coolidge and several other witnesses emphasized that inflation, higher wages and spiraling material costs make it impossible to meet the state's road program on schedule.

Another witness — Lancaster County Engineer Marvin Nuernberger — said the higher tax would generate revenue that would put counties in position to participate in a new federal program designed to help pay for replacement of obsolete bridges on county roads.

Nuernberger, a former state engineer, said the federal government is making available $900 million this year and $1 billion during each of the next two years for a federal matching program under which Uncle Sam will pay for 80 percent of bridge replacement costs. In addition, Nuernberger said, the state has promised to give counties 10 percent of the cost, leaving counties with a comparatively small amount to pay.

Robert Crosby, speaking for highway related industries, said the reason so many road projects have had to be postponed is that 9.5 cents today has the purchasing power of 3.8 cents 12 years ago.

The Nebraska Association of County Officials and the League of Nebraska Municipalities among organizations supporting the two-cent per gallon tax hike.

The Nebraska Motor Carriers Association opposed the bill. That organization's executive director, Jim Preston, said he was sure $4 million of the state's 1.5 million residents would agree with his stand.

He said buses and trucks pay nearly 52 percent of highway user fees "and our industry doesn't want to be the money tree everyone wants to be."

Preston maintained funding for road maintenance and construction has kept pace in recent years with inflation and other costs.

paying a sales tax on utilities, the same break should be given to residential customers, Sen. Bernice Labedz of Omaha believes.

She is one of the sponsors of the bill that would remove all sales taxes on natural gas, electricity and other energy sources.

The bill received considerable support during a public hearing, but several Revenue Committee members said they were concerned about approving a measure that might trigger an increase in state tax rates.

But Mrs. Labedz said, "We are not charging business and I think that's a gross injustice to the homeowner." She added her bill would cost the state $13.8 million next fiscal year in lost taxes.

Mrs. Labedz said the state might be forced to raise the state income tax 1 percent, which would produce about $15 million. But she said the state could probably make up the lost revenue in other ways.

Sen. Neil Simon of Omaha, who co-sponsored the bill, said the tax on utilities "is the most unfair we have in Nebraska today. No one can dispute the fact that it's completely unfair to tax a necessity."

Sen. Carol Pirsch of Omaha, who also helped sponsor the bill, said "This tax hits hardest at the least able to pay."

Legislative approval of the measure "would be a sign to the people of Nebraska that the Legislature is trying to help them," Mrs. Pirsch said.

University Officials Testify
University of Nebraska officials have told the Legislature's Appropriations Committee they could have asked, with justification, for more than $9.4 million in capital construction money.

"We could easily have justified many more dollars," Dr. Robert Koefoot of Grand Island, chairman of the Board of Regents, told the committee.

Last July, the regents approved the university's proposed fiscal 1979-80 capital construction budget, which listed 24 projects. For fiscal 1978-79, the regents asked for $9.9 million in building money but were given only $1.5 million.

University President Ronald Kosken said the construction requests were mainly for renovation of utilities and improvement of existing facilities.

He said the "No. 1 priority" is a $1.1 million request for a chiller on the East Campus. Kosken noted the Appropriations Committee has already introduced a separate bill for that project.

Robert Pazderka, university construction coordinator, said the institution should spend $16 million on deferred maintenance and would like to receive $4.5 million of the total next year. He suggested the money come from a three-year fund created by the Legislature for deferred maintenance.

Sen. Ron Cope of Kearney said he doubted the Legislature would allocate $4.5 million of the $6 million fund to the university.

Geranium Joe Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:
Ed Psota got the floor early during the session at the country store Saturday night, and told the fellers that he has studied the situation up one side and down the other, and is fully convinced that the Sunset Commission watchdogs that has been turned loose in 26 states is barking their fool heads off up the wrong trees.

First off, Ed said, the idea behind these sunset laws is to trim deadwood out of Government. If an agency or department or division ain't earning its keep do away with it. This will save what it cost to run the outfit, and it'll save folks the aggravation of putting up with services and regulations they don't need and don't want. That's the assignment give all these Evaluation Commissions, Ed allowed, but that ain't the targets they're shooting at. In ever case he's seen in the papers, Ed said the sunset laws is being applied to the state licensing boards for trades and professions.

Practical speaking, Ed went on, it was too much to expect these commissions to bite the hands that made them by turning on the government and coming down hard for trimming fat. But they are doing worst than nothing by going for these boards that are made up of private citizens that ain't on no Government payroll. Fact is, Ed said, most of em actual make money fer their states by turning in fees they get fer licenses. Ed reported that Florida, fer one, was doing away with licensing boards by the bunches. Barbers and watchmakers went early, according to Ed, and ever job from architect to zookeeper is going to have to "show cause" why they should have boards to set trade standards.

Frank Cernik got Ed slowed down enough to tell the fellers the thinking behind this part of sunset laws. The state ain't got no business being part of a deal that keeps folks out of a particular trade, Frank said, unless the job has to do with the health, safety and general welfare of the public. If a feller gets a bad haircut onct, he goes to another barber the next time, went on Frank, and by that time his hair has grown out and he's none the worst off. He was strong of the mind that the old advice about letting the buyer beware still has a place, cause folks still got sense enough to know whether they like what they got. Fer a state to set standards fer a house painter is carrying police power too far, was Frank's words. He said let the house owner judge quality of the work.

Ed asked why should we bother boards that was created in the public interest, he wanted to know, when you got all them $100-a-day consultants coming in at ever level of Government advising how to do what the Sunset Commission is supposed to cut out? Why pour more tax money in this CETA that pays folks to do jobs only if it can be proved the jobs don't need doing? How come we got so many Government workers we have reached the point where it's better to keep paying em to do nothing than to go through the paperwork of getting rid of em? The questions went on into the night, Mister Editor.

Yours truly,
Geranium Joe

The Thone administration is thinking about moving the proposed Omaha state prison to Mead and is considering placing a work release center on land already acquired in east Omaha.

Lt. Gov. Roland Luedtke said the prison may also be changed from a medium-minimum security reformatory into a minimum security facility. But he said the final policy decision won't be made until after Gov. Charles Thone selects a new corrections director. Luedtke said the Legislature would also have to approve any change in corrections construction plans.

KERRY ON

— bump in the night —
The past week's mail brought me a fun letter. It was from a lady in Missouri. She calls herself "Maw Maw" Booth. I know her by no other name. She's signed "Maw Maw" to every letter I've ever received from her.

To you she's unknown. To me she's a customer. And she's also the mother of one of the nation's top cartoonists.

George Booth, a cartoonist for The New Yorker, Playboy, and many other national wide publications is "Maw Maw's" son. One of her sons, Another, Jim, runs a shoe repair shop and printing shop in Princeton, Missouri.

Son George may possibly be remembered by readers who enjoy cartoons with all those funny looking cats in them. Or dogs. George is a genius at drawing dogs — and the dogs most generally are frantically digging at a flea.

George also includes little old ladies in his cartoons — usually the basis for most of his humor. Though I've never gotten "Maw Maw" to admit it, son Jim confirmed that brother George does, indeed, use "Maw Maw" and the early Booth home life as the basis for many of his best cartoons.

"Maw Maw" is proud of George. I'm sure she frequently sends me samples of his most recent cards done for The Drawing Board — one of the nation's largest producers of cards. A packet of Valentines, done by George, arrived in time for me to enjoy them and use them myself — indebted me to the Booth family for both their humor and their generosity.

Also an artist — and a good one — "Maw Maw" often includes a quick cartoon, of her own, in each letter I get from her. But the letters, themselves, are priceless for the joy of living they convey. Her most recent tells of George's latest cartoon contributions to The New York Times and Doubleday books — then she goes on to tell about Jim.

Jim has spent his time digging us out, repairing stoves, chasing bears, feeding birds, fixing cars, painting dragons and slamming doors. We just throw some seed out the door, for the birds.

If that doesn't tell you enough about "Maw Maw" and the Booth Gang, get this closing sentence to her letter:

"Watch out for poltergeists. I let some get away."
"And then she closed her letter, 'Intentionally yours'."
"Beautiful! Why else would you write a friendly letter to someone you'd never meet?"

But "Maw Maw" and her "poltergeists" sent me to the dictionary. I'll save you the trip by telling you poltergeists are "ghosts or spirits reputed to make their presence known by any kind of clutter, as knockings and the noise of moving objects". Excuse me. I think I hear something at the door.

The ORD QUIZ
Dear Editor and Readers;
In America we were born free, yet we must constantly fight off the F.D.A. and other bureaucrats that try to take from us that most precious thing we have, FREEDOM OF CHOICE. Without freedom there is no choice and without choice there is no freedom.

It is good that we can turn to our legislators for help, as they have in 17 other states. It never was illegal to use vitamin B-17 until the F.D.A. chose to interfere with people's freedom to use it. By passing L.B. 382 we could make it permissible in Nebraska so that our people would not have to go to one of the other states or one of 23 foreign countries. Thousands of Nebraskans have contributed vast sums of money over the years in hopes that someday there would be some relief and control of this most dreaded disease cancer. It seems incredible that the F.D.A. now stands in the way of that probability.

Our elected Representatives in Lincoln can pass L.B. 382 and give us a lot of money, since Medicare and insurance could help with the cost. Save valuable time for the patient, Physicians and hospitals, but most of all give relief and hope to those who return to health has been unnecessarily hampered by the edicts of the bureaucrats. L.B. 382 takes nothing away from present day therapy, just adds the choice for those people and their doctors that agree on vitamins.

On behalf of those that care about others, I am sincerely,
Van J. Vopat

Dear Mr. Misko:
For the past six months I have followed your commentaries and reporting of the events connected with the Street Paving program and Storm Sewer Improvements as the work has progressed and developed. I have read each week, following a council meeting, your reporting to the people of Ord, of the matters concerning this project. I would like by way of this letter to commend the Ord Quiz for their factual reporting of the events during the creation of the Paving and Storm Sewer District, of the approval of the work by the Council and the reporting of the bid openings for the project.

I agree with your editorial in the Thursday, February 8, edition of the Ord Quiz, commending the Council for not granting exceptions to minor changes in the Street Paving program. The paving program has been prepared in a chronological manner and the average property owner has no way of knowing the ramifications which might occur should a portion of the improvement be eliminated or changed. Many times a simple change may cause a catastrophic increase of cost to the City with little or no benefit to the general public.

Your paper has given this project accurate reporting and has taken the time to ask questions of representatives of our firm and of the City Council to clarify many controversial issues. I commend your method of reporting. I hope that during the upcoming construction stage of this project that the citizens of Ord will take an opportunity to evaluate the many benefits of this project as an improvement to the entire City.

I believe the citizens of Ord will be pleased with the completed project.
Very truly yours,
GREAT PLAINS ENGINEERING & ARCHITECTURE, INC.

Dean's List
Jean K. Welniak of Elyria is one of several students at the College of Dentistry at the University of Nebraska in Lincoln, making the Dean's List.

Students may apply for specific scholarships in business or bank management, accounting, secretarial training, photography, journalism, band, chorus, practical nursing, and drama. The band, chorus, and drama scholarships do require personal auditions or tapes. Also, five general scholarships are available for students interested in any other majors.
High school rank, personal letters of recommendation, and ACT or SAT scores are used to help determine the winners of the academic scholarships. The past average for 30 winners has been $200 each. The average scholarship pays for over half of the $345 tuition for one year.

Parents, teachers, coaches, and friends are encouraged to recommend students for a scholarship. The college will mail a packet of materials to any interested student upon request.

Don Dimmitt is Promoted
Marine Lance Corporal Donald S. Dimmitt, son of Donald D. and Delores A. Dimmitt of Elyria, has been promoted to his present rank while serving with 3d Marine Division, Marine Corps Base, Twenty-nine Palms, CA.
He joined the Marine Corps in January 1978.

Who Determines When Power Plants Are Built In Nebraska?

YOU DO!

Insuring adequate electricity for you and all Nebraskans is a job that must be done in advance. It's part of our continuing challenge to help meet your energy requirements as reliably as possible and at the lowest cost possible. In considering future needs as well as rising construction costs, it's not difficult to see that it's not in your best interests to wait until demand exceeds supply before we begin work. We're working now...to serve you better tomorrow.

What's your BIGGEST Interest?

Maybe your big interest is sports, and you like to be a winner. But since you don't play games with money, your biggest interest ought to be a First Federal Lincoln Money Savings Certificate. You're a winner there, too, because our Certificate Savers earn all the way from 6.50% on a 12-month certificate to 8.00% on an 8-year certificate. With interest compounded continuously. Not daily, monthly, quarterly or annually, but every instant to produce the highest possible yield. So if you think big interest alone is a sound enough reason to save at First Federal Lincoln, you're probably right.

However, FIRST FEDERAL LINCOLN OFFERS ALL THESE EXTRA CERTIFICATE BENEFITS:
Add-On Option. Add $25.00 or more to your existing certificate, do it automatically every month if you want. This allows you to earn up to 8.00% on small additions. No bank does this.
Loans on Savings. We make immediate loans on your savings at low rates—lower than normal installment loan interest rates. Meantime, your savings continue to earn without interruption.

Automatic Renewal. We'll renew your certificate for you automatically. And we'll tell you before we renew it so you can make changes if you wish.
Pre-Certificate. You need $1,000 to purchase one of our high-earning certificates. If you don't have it we'll show you how to save up to it.
The Money Doublor. This is the innovative First Federal Lincoln plan that makes it possible for you to double your money in less than 9 years!

Insured Safety. Your money is safely insured to $40,000 by an agency of the U.S. Government. If you need to insure more than that amount, we can show you how.
Interest Payment Options. Have interest added back to the certificate; have it deposited each month in a Money Service Daily or Money Savings 90 account; have it mailed to you by check. Or Withdraw your interest at any time! No bank does this.

Uneven Deposit Option. Unlike many institutions, we don't require even amounts to purchase a certificate other than the $1,000 minimum required by law. If you want to open a certificate for $10,199, just say so!

Free Services. We have a big long list of these including free American Express travelers checks and money orders and free notary service and free save-by-mail.

MONEY SAVINGS CERTIFICATES:

Annual Yield	Annual Rate
5.91%	5.75%—3 Month ($100 Minimum)
6.71%	6.50%—12 Month ($1,000 Minimum)
6.98%	6.75%—30 Month ($1,000 Minimum)
7.78%	7.50%—4 or 5 Years ($1,000 Minimum)
8.06%	7.75%—6 or 7 Years ($1,000 Minimum)
Now Offering	8.32% 8.00%—8 to 10 Years ($1,000 Minimum)

Federal regulations require substantial interest penalty for early withdrawal on Certificates of Deposit.

NOW! TREASURY-PLUS CERTIFICATE pays you the highest interest and greatest yield on 6-month savings. Minimum $10,000 deposit. For current interest rate and full information about this new certificate, call or come in any First Federal Lincoln Office.

Noble Grand Winnie Arnold appointed her committees for the year as follows: visiting committee, Lola Owens, Mary Gates and Gladys Scott; auditing committee, Dorothy Drake, Frances Johnson and Lydia Bruha; good cheer, Ina Woody and Lola Spencer; news reporter, Gladys Williams; right supporter of Noble Grand, Gladys Scott and left supporter of Noble Grand, Mary Gates.

The birthday of Thomas Widley, the founder of Odd Fellowship, was observed.

It was decided to donate money to the Education Foundation Fund of Rebekah Order and also to the Amos family of Anselmo and Mrs. Minnie Greenlee of Oshkosh, a 70-year member of this lodge.

Evelyn Crist served lunch.

Saturday afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. Claude Zentz.

Garden Club
"Plants and Their Care" was the lesson given by Mrs. Eva Wibbels when the Arcadia Garden Club met with Mrs. Merle Myers Wednesday, Feb. 7. This was the first lesson on one phase of the year's comprehensive study, "Language of the Flowers." The flower for February is the Violet. President Mrs. Kermit Erickson gave a report on the many things that violets have meant to people down through the ages.

The next meeting of the Garden Club will be the birthday party Feb. 21 to be held at the Last Chance Hangout with Mrs. Carol Lutz and Eunice Einspahr hostesses. There will be a plant and seed exchange for party fun.

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Bendykowski and Mrs. John Kaminski attended the Knights of Columbus district meeting and sweetheart banquet and dance at Ashton Sunday evening. Mrs. Bendykowski received a door prize of a fresh flower arrangement.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Hisek and Sandra Hisek of Lincoln and Mrs. John Kaminski had supper together at the Club Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Max Marco attended the funeral of a brother-in-law, Delmer Steenson, at Wolbach Saturday and visited at the Carol Thompson home.

Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Einspahr and Mrs. Mable White of Loup City, and Keith and Kevin Einspahr were Sunday visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Einspahr and Eunice.

Bob Zentz, Anselmy, visited

Mr. Frank Sybrant and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Harkness, Ord, attended a play "Alice in Wonderland" at Hastings by Hastings College. Diane Nolte, Ord, was a member of the cast.

The Lee Park Aid held their annual Valentine Party Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Delbert Drake with six members present. The next meeting will be March 6 at the home of Mrs. Darr Evans.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Harkness of Ord were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Sybrant.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Hunt were Sunday afternoon visitors of Mrs. John Kaminski.

Mr. and Mrs. Kermit Erickson and Gene Erickson were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Nyles Frost at Anselmy for Mrs. Erickson's birthday which was Monday. After the film "Shackari Pass", which was shown at the Calvary Baptist Church Sunday evening, all present were invited to a surprise fellowship hour at the church basement honoring Mrs. Erickson for her birthday.

Debra Sahlie and LaDonna Griess of Omaha came Friday to spend the weekend with Debra's folks, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Sahlie, Jim and Teresa. Becki Sahlie of Kearney spent Sunday at the Sahlie home.

Bill Tunnicliff, Loveland, CO spent Tuesday and Wednesday with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Easterbrook. Mr. and Mrs. Carl Easterbrook of Kearney and Mrs. Allen Masters and Joel Masters were additional guests on Tuesday to celebrate Arthur Easterbrook's 90th birthday.

Mr. and Mrs. Larry Merritt and Deanna, Grand Island; Carla Merritt, Cairo; and Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Lewis, Broken Bow; were

Storm Drives Beef Prices Up

"The consuming public should be aware that the rapid increase in retail meat prices is simply a supply-demand situation. The four or five years previous to these rapid increases there was an over-supply of beef and the cattlemen suffered with low prices," said Pat McGinley of Oshkosh, president of the Nebraska Stock Growers Association.

With the over-supply four or five years ago, the cattle reduction phase began, which is the cause for higher prices, in part. Whether the reduction phase was too severe is one question, but cattlemen could not sit by and suffer the losses they were experiencing when they had to sell their livestock for less than cost of production, stressed McGinley.

However, McGinley explained that the most recent rapid rise in retail meat prices has been the result of elements cattlemen have had no control over. The severe storm weather this winter that covers a large majority of the cattle feeding segment has lowered gains on livestock and therefore, reduced the tonnage of available beef. "We're getting to the time of year where the storm is also going to affect the calf crop, and this will have more of a long-term effect on supply," McGinley said.

McGinley said the recent beef price increases are due to the same increases that have been experienced by the frost that ruined the lettuce crop. "When the weather reduces production of any product, the shortage will cause an increase in price."

The NSGA President also stressed that the storm "is causing cattlemen to receive less profits, due to the lower feed conversion and increased feed costs." The losses suffered during calving and increased health problems due to stress from the storm conditions has also reduced the cattlemen's profits. "The prices received for cattle may be higher than before, but more expenses are required to get those cattle to market," explained McGinley. The consumers should realize this before they put all of the blame for increased prices on the cattlemen.

Air Show Plans Are Progressing

Ord Hi Flyers continued planning for the June 17 state airshow in Ord. At a meeting Sunday at the Ord Airport, Hi Flyers confirmed Chuck Caruthers, an acrobatic pilot, will be at the show. No stranger to the Ord area, Caruthers and his Pit Special plane have entertained crowds here and elsewhere on many occasions.

Flying enthusiasts have received verbal communication from Charles Thome who will designate the show here the official state air show.

Hi Flyers will meet again February 25, Sunday, at the local airport.

Pioneer Farm Family Wanted

The Knights of Ak-Sar-Ben and the Nebraska Association of Fair Managers announced today that nominations for the twenty-fourth annual Nebraska Pioneer Farm Family awards are being accepted. The program honors farm families in Nebraska whose land has been owned by the same family for 100 years or more.

Marlyn Koch, Wayne, NE, president of the Association, pointed out that 1,693 farm families in 65 counties have been honored at various county fairs during the first twenty-three years of the project.

President Koch and Orville Koch, Syracuse, NE, secretary-treasurer, said that again this year the honored families will receive an engraved walnut plaque and an aluminum gatepost marker for each farm from the Knights of Ak-Sar-Ben, plus a special framed citation from the Nebraska Association of Fair Managers.

In addition, Ak-Sar-Ben will host the honored families at an annual banquet during the organization's 52nd Livestock Exposition and Rodeo, Sept. 21 through Sept. 29.

All nominations must be submitted by May 15 to the Secretary of the local County Fair Board, President Koch said.

Deer-Antelope Scoring Time

Deer and antelope trophies taken during the regular 1978 firearm season are now eligible for scoring and possible inclusion in the state record book, and perhaps, national recognition.

Big-game trophies are eligible to be measured at the end of a 60-day drying period. The drying period allows for shrinkage of the skull and cartilage in the skull, both of which can affect the score.

Deer bagged during the November firearm season have been eligible for scoring for several weeks. Antelope bagged during the season are also eligible as are archery deer taken at least 60 days previously.

Trophies may be scored at any one of five commission offices in Lincoln, Norfolk, Bassett, Alliance, and North Platte. There is no charge for scoring or entry in the state record book, but there is a fee for inclusion in both the Boone and Crockett or Pope and Young record books if the trophy qualifies and the hunter wishes to enter scores for the Nebraska record book are: Typical whitetail, 150; non-typical whitetail, 160; typical mule deer, 150; non-typical mule deer, 170; and antelope 73. Archery minimum scores are: Typical whitetail, 115; non-typical whitetail, 125; typical mule deer, 125; non-typical mule deer, 135; and antelope, 50.

READ EPHESIANS 4:23-32

Be kind to one another. — Ephesians 4:32 (RSV)

Years ago enroute to the West Coast, I blundered into a highway under construction.

Roadblocks were opened each day at 3 p.m. No human habitation marked any segment of the fifty-mile stretch. Only pine trees hemmed in a forest to the right and left. Midway through this lonely road lay a mudhole concealing a broken Coke bottle. I hit it — bull's eye. The jagged edges rattled a tire.

I finally came by and changed my tire. I was so grateful that I was effusive in wanting to pay him. "How much do I owe you?" I asked, opening my pocketbook with ruffles and flourishes.

"Young lady, some things aren't for sale. This is a lonely road. You barely escaped spending the night here — alone in this pine forest. I didn't stop to increase my bank account; I only stopped to help you. No! This service wasn't for sale."

The husky trucker slapped his muddy hands together, climbed into his truck, and drove off.

PRAYER: Loving God, thank You for all the persons who give their help to others. Thank You for the ones who have helped us in special ways. We pray as Jesus taught us, "Our Father, who art in heaven... Amen."

Being an independent housing contractor can be very rewarding... especially if you have a proven line of homes behind you.

We offer 60 standard catalog plan homes, plus we sell hundreds of custom designs annually in 18 states. We sell only through a network of local builder-dealers who are independent contractors. A dealership is not a franchise and no fees are required.

Midwestern Homes has sold pre-engineered homes of the finest quality materials since 1952. They enjoy better-than-average resale because of the design and quality.

Our headquarters and original factories are in Rapid City, SD. With the 1978 opening of a large factory in Pittsburg, KS, we now have available the opportunity for qualified builder-dealers in additional areas. This is one.

Ed Board Clamps Down on Drivers

Infractions by school bus drivers will come to a halt, hopefully, after the special Ord School Board meeting Wednesday at Ord High. During that hour and 45 minute session, board members voted that:

- any bus driver having a traffic violation while transporting students, will lose his job.
- any teacher having a traffic violation while transporting students will not be allowed to transport students in the future.

According to board members, drivers have been speeding, ignoring stop signs, and committing other traffic violations recently. The board meeting Wednesday was to prevent future accidents, according to board member, Karen Zaruba.

On a motion, ed board member, Ed Vancura and a second by Zaruba, the new policy was approved.

Board president Merrill Mason warned bus drivers, "Anyone caught with a violation will be dismissed".

Letters stating the new policy were sent to all drivers.

Speech Students Eye Invitational

Arcadia High students are gearing up for an invitational speech tournament at Loup City February 17. Three speech classes are busy working on presentations they will make then.

According to their teacher, Nadine Beckenbach, about a dozen students will likely attend the event.

The invitational will include competition in oral interpretation, drama, extemporaneous speaking, poetry, prose, and other subjects.

More Surpluses — Not Less

NEBRASKA FARM BUREAU FEDERATION

By M. M. Van Kirk, Director of Information

One of the distinguishing characteristics of federal farm programs dating back to their beginnings in the 1930's has been that they have consistently resulted in more production and greater surpluses of the farm commodities that were already in trouble.

When cropland acres were reduced, the burden fell most heavily on those farmers with small acreage and benefitted most those of large acreage. Understandably, a wheat grower who normally plants 5,000 acres of wheat will disturb his normal cropping program less with a 20 percent "set aside" than one who has 500 acres.

The record of corn production can provide a graphic example. Production of corn for grain in 1978 topped the 7 billion bushel mark for the first time in the nation's history and was the fourth consecutive year that it has established a new record. The 1978 production was realized because it was an exceptional crop year and the yield average was 101.2 bushels per acre. The 70 million acres harvested was 1 percent below 1977 but very obviously farmers did not participate enthusiastically in the USDA's call for a 10 percent reduction in corn acres.

One of the most surprising reports has been that as of Jan. 1, farmers have indicated that in 1979 they intend to increase their corn plantings by 1 percent. That report has been depreciated by many as premature but on past performance is reasonably credible. After all, there is a huge stockpile of wheat in this country, and for that matter, a good supply in the rest of the world, yet winter wheat seedings for the 1979 crop are already in the ground and acreage is estimated at 3 percent over the previous year.

The 95 percent of the population of this country who know very little about agriculture have reason to be confused. They have sympathy for the farmer and show willingness to believe that he is a major victim of inflation and producing his crops at below cost of production. They hear demands for government subsidies of farm commodities to 90 and 100 percent of parity as necessary to survival. And then they see that farmers have increased their acreage of already surplus crops and figured out ways and means to produce new record harvests.

Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland in an interview recently about increasing the loan rates on farm commodities stated the dilemma as he faces it: "If our loan rates force our products above world prices, then foreign customers will buy elsewhere and all we can do is build more granaries."

The present farm program has bought "time" for the market price on the 1978 crops of wheat and feed grains but the grain reserve storage has already mounted to more than 1.2 billion bushels. Agricultural exports are predicted to climb to $29 billion this year to provide some optimism but the question has to be asked, "What are we going to do if we get another 7 billion bushel corn crop and another 2 billion bushel wheat crop?"

Once again it is apparent that government farm programs do not reduce surplus production nor do they guarantee that the "family farm" will survive.

Weather Biggest Factor Increasing Beef Prices

The biggest factor affecting beef prices in recent weeks is under no one's control — the weather, the Nebraska Beef Industry Foundation (NBIF) said today.

"Weather this bad affects prices in several ways, and its effects will continue to be felt several weeks after the weather breaks," Steve Dittmer, NBIF executive director said. "In fact, if you look at the long term, the effects of this winter will reach out several years into the future."

Retail beef prices, pushed higher by weather related problems, have consumers wondering how to cope with beef prices that are catching up with prices of other items, Dittmer said.

"Even though beef prices are still lower than the Consumer Price Index figure for food in general, consumers are just not used to paying prices for beef that are nearly on a par with other prices," Dittmer said. "Live cattle prices have now reached the levels of 1973. But how many other businessmen can say their prices are not getting back to the levels of six years ago?"

If severe weather conditions moderate soon, some temporary price relief for consumers might be forthcoming, Dittmer said.

Poor and unpredictable road conditions, especially in rural areas, have made it impossible for feeders in many areas of the country to ship cattle to market, Dittmer said. That reduces the supply of beef on the market and prices rise.

Meat packers in some parts of the country have had to close down temporarily or shorten work weeks, he said. They have been unable to ship processed beef out of their plants and get slaughter animals in, in some cases.

Another weather related problem will be slower clearing up than these problems, though, Dittmer said.

"Cattle that would normally have been coming to market during the last few weeks are still not ready for market," Dittmer explained. "When the weather is this cold and nasty, cattle gain very little, if any, weight. Some have even lost weight. The absence of these cattle in the market makes the supply even tighter," he said.

As for future years, the severe weather this winter will make this year's calf crop smaller than it would have been and thus further shrink the total supply of cattle. Winter stress will also keep some cows from conceiving next year's calf crop, shrinking the supply of slaughter cattle two years from now, Dittmer said.

Consumer Tips Available in Beef Budget Stretching Kit

Coping with beef prices that are starting to catch up with other food prices is important to shoppers right now, the Nebraska Beef Industry Foundation (NBIF) said today.

Since helping consumers make the best, most economical use of beef is the NBIF's job, they are offering a free "Beef Budget Stretching Kit" to help you get the most beef eating for the money.

One of the most important places to start saving involves watching for beef "specials" in newspaper, radio and television ads. Advertised beef specials are planned by supermarkets several weeks in advance to help you keep some cuts of beef on your table regardless of your budget limitations. These specials are the store's regular quality beef, but ordered in extra quantities so shoppers won't be disappointed by a store running out of a feature. Stores commonly discount prices on their special feature 20 cents to over $1.00 per pound, so this is a great place to start budget stretching.

If you want to double or triple your savings from the above tip, then use your freezer compartment. When a cut your family likes is on special, buy enough for two or three meals. Fix one meal now, and save the other cuts for future meals. It's like finding a special on that cut two or three different weeks instead of just one, the NBIF points out.

Another important economizing tip involves your knowledge of different beef cuts. How many of those beef cuts that look unfamiliar to you in the meat case might be the champion budget stretchers? Cuts from the chuck, round, short plate and brisket fall into this category. But these less tender cuts that cost you less money must be cooked by the proper methods for you to be happy with them. A beef chart is part of the NBIF's budget stretching kit.

If you are a "steak and hamburger" cook, please don't try those cooking methods on cuts from the round and chuck. If you do, the resulting meat will serve you much better nailed to the bottom of your shoe than it will on your plate. If your recipe files don't have the proper cooking methods and recipes, the budget stretching kit does.

Stretching your beef dollars also involves considering cost per serving more than cost per pound, the NBIF said. Quiz question: if round steak is on special at store A for $1.39 and chuck roast is on special at store B for $1.59, which is the most economical buy? Answer: the round steak, since round yields three servings per pound while chuck yields two servings per pound. Thus cost per serving is 46 cents for the round and 70 cents for the chuck. Not much good at arithmetic. A free purse or pocket sized slide rule that will do the above calculations for you instantaneously is also in your kit.

You can also get more beef for your money and cut energy consumption at the same time if you go easy on the temperature dial when cooking beef. The higher the temperature at which you cook beef, the more shrinkage will occur and the less actual beef you'll have to serve. Turning the temperature up also makes the meat drier and less tasty.

Since time savings is often important for most of us these days, recipes and cooking methods that use time saving tricks and still save money are important. The NBIF points out that convenience foods that provide shortcuts are often the most expensive ones. Keep in mind that smaller portions of meat cook faster. Recipes that call for braising or cooking beef in liquid will go faster if you cut the beef into serving size pieces before cooking. For round steak recipes using these cooking methods, try slicing the steak while it's still partially frozen into thin slices. This will reduce cooking time.

No Such Thing As a Bad Egg

Look on the sunny side despite inflationary food costs. Believe it or not, one of nature's best foods — the egg — is almost as low in price today as it was in 1951. According to the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture Crop Reporting Board, the national average retail cost of a dozen eggs (through June, 1978) has risen less than 10 cents over the last 27 years — amazing compared to most other commodities.

Aside from being relatively inexpensive food, they are considered a true nutritional bargain. The only protein considered better than the egg is milk, while the only protein sources cheaper are peanut butter and beans. Eggs supply 13 minerals, every vitamin except C, and at approximately only 80 calories each.

And talk about versatility — Scrambled, fried, baked, poached, cooked in the shell, or as a souffle, omelet, or quiche they make a great dish.

Egg selection is relatively easy if one is aware of government grading.

There are three consumer grades for eggs: U.S. Grade AA, A, and B. The grade is determined by the interior quality of the egg and the appearance and condition of the egg shell. U.S. Grade AA eggs have whites that are thick, yolks that are firm and practically free from defects. U.S. Grade A eggs are the quality most often sold in supermarkets. They have whites that are reasonably thick, yolks that are firm, high, and practically free from defects.

U.S. Grade B eggs are, however, seldom found in retail stores. The white of these eggs may be thinner and the yolks may be enlarged and flatter than eggs of the higher quality.

While egg size tells you the minimum required weight per dozen, it does not indicate the actual size per egg. The three sizes most often sold in the supermarket have a minimum weight per dozen of 27 oz., 24 oz., and 21 oz.

Remember that size and quality are not related — in any way. Large eggs may be high or low quality; high quality eggs may be any size. Also, contrary to popular opinion, shell color does not affect egg quality or nutritive value. Shell color is determined by the breed of the laying hen.

VILLAGE OF NORTH LOUP, NEBRASKA
ORDINANCE NO. 47

AN ORDINANCE GRANTING TO KANSAS - NEBRASKA NATURAL GAS COMPANY A PERPETUATION, ITS SUCCESSORS AND ASSIGNS, THE RIGHT, PERMISSION AND AUTHORITY TO CONSTRUCT, MAINTAIN AND OPERATE A GAS TRANSMISSION AND DISTRIBUTION SYSTEM, INCLUDING MAINS, PIPES, CONDUITS, SERVICES AND OTHER STRUCTURES, IN, UNDER, UPON, OVER, ACROSS AND ALONG THE STREETS, ALLEYS, BRIDGES AND PUBLIC PLACES WITHIN THE PRESENT AND FUTURE CORPORATE LIMITS OF THE VILLAGE OF NORTH LOUP, NEBRASKA FOR THE FURNISHING, TRANSMISSION, DISTRIBUTION AND SALE OF GAS WHETHER ARTIFICIAL, NATURAL, MIXED OR OTHERWISE FOR LIGHTING, HEATING, DOMESTIC, INDUSTRIAL AND OTHER USES IN SAID VILLAGE AND OTHERWISE, LIMITING THE TERMS OF SAID GRANT, PRESCRIBING THE TERMS AND CONDITIONS UNDER WHICH SAID COMPANY MAY OPERATE AND REPEALING ORDINANCE NO. 41.

BE IT ORDAINED BY THE CHAIRMAN AND BOARD OF THE VILLAGE OF NORTH LOUP, NEBRASKA:

SECTION 1. That in consideration of the benefits to be derived by the Village of North Loup, Nebraska, hereinafter referred to as municipality, and its inhabitants from the construction and operation of a gas transmission and distribution system in said municipality there be and hereby are granted to Kansas Nebraska Natural Gas Company, Inc., a corporation, its successors and assigns, hereinafter collectively referred to as "Grantee," the right, permission and authority to construct, maintain and operate a gas transmission and distribution system within the limits of said municipality, as the same now exists or may hereafter be extended for a period of twenty-five (25) years from and after April 2, 1979 and for said purpose there are hereby further granted to Grantee the right, permission and authority during said period to lay, install, construct, maintain and operate in, under, upon, over, across and along all of the streets, alleys, bridges and public places within the present and future corporate limits of said municipality all mains, pipes, services, conduits and structures necessary or convenient for the furnishing, transmission, distribution and sale of gas whether artificial, natural, mixed or otherwise for lighting, heating, domestic, industrial and other uses, and for transmitting such gas into, through or beyond the limits of said municipality to other cities, villages and customers.

SECTION 2. That all mains, services, and pipes laid or installed under this grant shall be so located and laid as not to obstruct or interfere with any water pipes, drains, sewers or other structures already installed, and all such mains, services and pipes shall be installed, subject to approval of the Committee on Streets and Alleys or other authorized representatives of said municipality.

Grantee, in doing any work in connection with said mains, pipes and services shall avoid, so far as practicable, interfering with the use of any street, alley or public place, and where the paving or surface of any street, alley or public place is disturbed, Grantee at its own expense and in a manner satisfactory to the authorized representatives of said municipality shall replace such paving or surface in as good condition as before such work was commenced.

In event that at any time hereafter said municipality shall lawfully elect to change or alter the grade of any street, alley or public place, or to construct new or additional water or sewer lines, Grantee, upon being directed by resolution of the Chairman and Board of said municipality so to do, shall where the same becomes necessary by reason of said change of grade or construction of water or sewer lines, move or relay its mains or service pipes, provided, Grantee shall be compensated by municipality for costs incurred by Grantee in moving or relaying its lines or facilities or raising or lowering the same where required by either the construction of new or additional or the placement of existing water or sewer lines.

SECTION 3. Grantee shall have the right to make all such reasonable rules and regulations in the conduct of its business as it may deem necessary or expedient, including meter deposits in such amounts as may be required to assure payment of bills. Grantee shall make such reasonable extensions of its mains from time to time and shall install service to the curb line where mains are located in a street, and to property line where mains are located in an alley, as may be required to furnish service within said municipality to parties making application therefor; but Grantee shall not be required to make any extension for the purpose of serving any consumer or consumers if Grantee is, for any reason unable to obtain an adequate supply of gas to warrant the construction of said extension or will require the installation of more than one hundred feet of mains for each consumer to be served, nor where the estimated revenue to be derived from serving such new consumer or consumers is not sufficient to show an adequate return upon the total additional investment required to serve such consumer or consumers.

Whenever the delivery or supply capability of Grantee's system, due to any cause whatsoever not limited to force majeure, is such that Grantee is unable to deliver to consumers served by Grantee the quantity of gas which the consumers require, Grantee shall have the right to prescribe reasonable rules and regulations for allocating the available quantities of gas among such consumers.

SECTION 4. Subject to the approval of the Board, Grantee shall maintain on file with municipality a current schedule of rates for residential and commercial gas service. In the event said schedule of rates becomes insufficient or excessive it shall be revised to rates which are fair and reasonable. Any provision hereof to the contrary notwithstanding, Grantee shall never be required to provide gas service hereunder at rates which are insufficient to provide Grantee with a fair and reasonable return.

SECTION 5. Grantee shall furnish and install for its customers, and at its cost keep in repair reliable meters. Grantee shall, at any time, when requested in writing by the customer, upon the deposit of $20.00 by the customer, test the accuracy of the meter used by the customer, and if the meter is found to be more than three (3) percent high, Grantee will refund to the customer the $20.00 deposited and adjust the customer's bill proportionately for the period elapsed since the last previous test, if any; unless the period of inaccuracy can be otherwise determined, but in no case shall such adjustment be made for a period exceeding sixty (60) days immediately preceding such test. In event such meter is found to be more than three (3) percent high, or to be slow, the $20.00 deposited shall be retained by Grantee to defray the expense of such test. Whenever at the request of the customer any gas meter is tested by Grantee or any regulatory body having jurisdiction, the meter shall be considered as correct if found to have an average error of not more than three (3) percent, and no adjustment of charges will be made unless the error therein is greater than three (3) percent.

SECTION 6. Grantee in the construction of said gas system within the limits of said municipality shall use tested and approved pipes, material and equipment.

SECTION 7. Grantee at all times will keep a map in the office of Grantee or of the Clerk of said municipality, showing the size and location of its mains laid in such distribution system in said municipality. This map will be replaced at the end of each calendar year with a revised map showing new construction for the past calendar year.

SECTION 8. In case the available supply of gas shall at any time fail or become insufficient to supply the needs of the public of said municipality, or should Grantee for any reason be unable to furnish the service herein contemplated, or upon the termination of this franchise for any reason whatsoever, Grantee shall have the right to remove any and all of its pipe and other equipment or property from said municipality, but in such event Grantee shall restore the streets, alleys and other public places to as good condition as before such removal, and will hold said municipality harmless from damage and expense incident to such removal.

SECTION 9. Grantee shall be required, and by the acceptance hereof agrees, to save harmless said municipality from and against all lawful claims and demands, and from all loss and expense necessarily incurred as a result thereof, arising out of the negligence of Grantee in the construction, removal, replacement, inspection or repair of any mains, pipes, services or appliances of Grantee, or in the use and operation thereof during the term of this Ordinance.

SECTION 10. In consideration of the rights and privileges herein granted, the Grantee shall pay to the Village Treasurer an annual payment for each year of the duration of this franchise, an amount equal to two (2) percent of the gross receipts derived by the Grantee from sales of gas delivered to residential (commonly known as domestic) gas users within the Village of North Loup, Nebraska, as set forth in Grantee's annual report to the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission. Payment shall be made on or before March 1st of each year for the preceding year and shall be accompanied by a statement showing the total amount of the gross receipts upon the basis of which the computation for such payment was made.

Such payment shall be in lieu of any and all other fees, charges, license, taxes or assessments which the municipality may impose for the rights and privileges herein granted within the municipality and, in the event any such fee, charge, license, tax or demand shall be imposed by the municipality, the payment to be made in accordance with the provisions of this section shall be refunded in an amount equal to the annual burden of such fee, charge, license, tax or assessment imposed upon the Grantee. Ad Valorem property taxes imposed generally upon all real and personal property within the municipality shall not be deemed to affect the obligation of the Grantee under this section.

SECTION 11. This Ordinance and the respective rights and obligations of the parties hereunder are subject to all present and future valid governmental legislation or regulation, whether federal or state, of duly constituted authorities which have jurisdiction over this Ordinance, one or both of the parties, or any transaction hereunder.

SECTION 12. This Ordinance and the rights, authority and franchise herein and hereby granted shall terminate and be of no further force and effect:

(a) unless within six (6) months after final passage of this Ordinance Grantee shall file with the Clerk of said municipality a written acceptance hereof; also

(b) if and when after such acceptance Grantee shall file with the Clerk of said municipality a surrender hereof in writing.

SECTION 13. Ordinance No. 41, passed under date of April 2, 1954 and accepted by Grantee on June 3, 1954, is hereby repealed and of no further force or effect from and after April 2, 1979.

SECTION 14. Wherever the term "Grantee" is used herein it shall be held to mean and include said Kansas Nebraska Natural Gas Company, Inc., its successors and assigns.

SECTION 15. This Ordinance shall be in full force and effect from and after its final passage and publication as required by law and upon acceptance by Grantee shall be held to constitute a binding contract between said municipality and Grantee, subject to its terms and conditions.

Junior Lawman Program Told

The twelfth annual Junior Lawmen Program has been scheduled for June 4 to 8, 1979, at the Nebraska State Patrol Training Center at Lincoln Air Park, according to Commander Darrel Merry of The American Legion, Department of Nebraska.

Participation in the one-week program is open to boys completing the 11th grade. Three students will be endorsed from each of the 15 districts of the Department of Nebraska. Application forms are available from the American Legion Post Commanders or the local high school superintendent.

The scheduled activities include classroom studies in such subjects as motor vehicle laws, court procedure, human relations, safety education and first aid; tours of city, county, and state law enforcement offices; and are highlighted by field activities that include marksmanship, VASCAR and radar operation and maximum performance driving. Evening classes will be devoted to the Defensive Driving Course developed by the National Safety Council. Each day will begin with before-breakfast calisthenics. The participants will remain "in residence" during the period and will be awarded Certificates of Achievement at concluding ceremonies at 2 p.m. on June 8.

Commander Merry said, "This program was developed by the Law and Order Committee and is offered in cooperation with the Nebraska State Patrol. Other states are now following Nebraska's leadership in developing similar programs which help youthful participants better understand the true "role" of today's professional police officer."

Competitors Ponder Next Move At The State Checker Tournament

Fifteen competitors squared off for the state checker championship in North Loup Monday. Terms including "draw," "squeeze," and "bridging," were heard while players reshaped just completed games.

Keneth Swanson of Columbus was defending state checker champion, and "champion five times over," in his words. The main competition for his title was coming from Lloyd Mills. A state champ 27 times and runner up eight times, Mills was no stranger to the game.

The two men have been playing opposite each other for 40 years. They met while students at the University of Nebraska.

"Almost everyone in those days played checkers," Swanson recalled Monday, during a lunch hour break. "It was just about like bowling now. Cards and checkers were our main recreational things."

The game is still popular in small towns. In Swanson's estimation, a barbershop in Ord has a board. Tonsorial trade clientele frequently can be seen bent over the board, contemplating their next move. Most state champions come from Nebraska's smaller towns, Swanson told the Quiz.

Omaha, Lincoln, and Grand Island used to produce a share of good players, he related. Used to, but no more. "In a way you can compare it to the way cities have gone so urban," the champ explained. Go-go girls and X-rated movies have replaced the more sedate game of checkers as entertainment, he sighed.

Those new forms of entertainment and urban renewal projects have fractured a city's sense of community, in Swanson's estimation. Smaller towns "are more of a community. Churches are stronger there too," he told the Quiz.

To revive interest in the game, the Nebraska Checkers Association plans to have an open tournament in Omaha next year. Under rules of the contest, anyone in the country can enter.

Lloyd Mills will likely be there, as will any other checker tournament. Fellow players classified him "a perennial state champion." In that match, or any other, two checker games are called a round. Opponents are drawn from a hat in opening rounds. Thereafter, they are assigned to a win-loss ranking to assure equal competition. No two players face each other for more than one round.

Mills has come out state champ 27 times and state champion runner-up eight times. He allowed as how, "I've been kinda involved for a few years."

He started playing during lunch hour while a student at Lincoln High. That was during the 1930s. He had some humiliating defeats when first joining the Lincoln Checker Club, back then. Gaining experience and learning from past matches, he steadily improved.

His enthusiasm for the game is such that he braved pain from a recent knee operation to attend the state tournament at North Loup this week.

Mills agreed with Swanson that the game's popularity with young players hasn't grown. Back east, there is another picture, he happily added. There, they have an active youth program with some matches drawing 500 young players.

Tae Kwan Do More Than Fighting — Precepts Form A Way Of Living

Three men gave a demonstration in the martial art of Tae Kwan Do Saturday in Ord. Literally translated Tae Kwan Do means defense using hands and feet.

Forms of the oriental art have been in existence since before the time of Christ, according to Clayton Brooks, demonstration leader. A General Choi refined this method in the 1940s and taught it to the Korean Army.

Since then, its popularity has spread to the United States.

A series of degrees and belts of various colors designate a person's achievement level in Kwan Do. Highest is the ninth degree — black belt. Reaching pinnacle could take a life time, in Brooks' estimation.

Novices start on the white belt level. They can progress through the yellow, green, blue, red, and finally the black belt stages.

Those striving to master the martial art learn self-defense while enjoying a good workout. Brooks maintained Kwan Do classes help a person's physical fitness, coordination, and concentration while giving the student more self-confidence.

First learned are a series of stances. Next comes mastery of a series of blocks, or body positions to ward off attacks. Having these down pat, a Kwan Do student learns the swift kicks and lightning fast hand movements that can immobilize an adversary.

All require constant practice and letter perfect positioning of the body.

Students of the martial art are taught five basic precepts or rules. As listed by Brooks they are:

- courtesy
- integrity
- perseverance
- self control
- and maintaining an indomitable spirit.

June 17 Proclaimed State Air Show Day

It's official! June 17 has been designated Nebraska Air Show Day by Governor Charles Thone. The proclamation was received by air show backers last week.

June 17, of course, is the date of Ord's Air Show. According to planners, this year's event will include an aerobatic demonstration and other events that annually draw a large crowd.

The proclamation read, in part, "Charles Thone, Governor of the State of Nebraska, do hereby proclaim June 17 as Nebraska Air Show Day."

Orientation Day Is February 20

Students from rural and Ord parochial schools will get an introductory look at Ord High February 20 during Orientation Day. Ord High guidance counselor Eldon Buoy will supervise a high school placement test in the morning for those students and eighth graders at Ord High during the morning.

That afternoon newcomers will visit classes at O.H.S. and have school programs explained to them.

Buoy explained the program is to familiarize students with high school classes.

Luboff Concert Attracts 600

Despite the bitter cold, an estimated 600 persons turned out to hear the Norman Luboff Choir, directed by Norman Luboff, Thursday evening at the Ord High School.

The Choir presented various selections from their vast repertoire. The first half of the program centered around sacred and secular music.

Following intermission, their music switched to popular, folk and spirituals. "Do Lord, their final selection, brought the audience to their feet, clapping for more.

Social Security Agent Scheduling Ord Visit

The social security representative will be in Ord at the Courthouse on Tuesday, March 6, from 10 a.m. to 12 noon.

Health insurance wasn't part of the original social security act, but it is now. Medicare is available to most anyone 65 or older and to certain disabled people under age 65.

Planning Commission to Hear Rezoning Request

Area residents will get a chance to have their say on a proposed new industrial development when the City Planning Commission meets February 27 in the First National Bank. The session is scheduled to start at 7:30 p.m.

Four men seek to have about 20 acres north of the fairgrounds changed from an agricultural to a commercial zoning classification. Bob Stowell, Gaylord Bollesen, Jim Clement, and Greg Stine purchased the property last September.

Plans are to develop it into 10 or 11 commercial use lots or tracts.

Bollesen told the Quiz Friday no one lives on the property.

Music In America Alive - Well Luboff Contends

Music in America is alive and well, according to Norman Luboff. In Ord for a concert Thursday, he took time out for a Quiz interview.

"Musicians today," the famed choral director said, "are very well trained. People sing and play better than ever. The problem is, where do all these performers find jobs?"

"Traditionally," Luboff joked, "musicians starve." The fine arts, he noted have never been self-supporting. "In Europe," he said, "they are supported by government and private grants, much like they are in the United States." Federal and private funding sources are well endowed, according to the director, and make extensive contributions toward helping the performing arts.

Larger, well known groups seldom have much trouble getting backing, according to Luboff. Smaller groups or those just beginning, face a different picture.

Firemen Cap Fund Drive - Purchase New Rescue Unit

Ord firemen voted to purchase a new rescue unit for Ord Monday, during a meeting in City Hall. The 1978 Cayel-Craft, manufactured in Rock Rapids, IA was purchased at a savings of $4,000 for a comparable 1979 model, firemen told the Quiz.

Its purchase caps a donation drive and news story that began two months ago. On December 14, 1978, firemen revealed a rescue unit fund drive had been started. The following week, the Quiz carried an article explaining why a new rescue unit was needed.

The present unit had out lived its usefulness, firemen said. While running well it was inadequate for handling newly improved skills and needed equipment.

A replacement was estimated to cost $32,000, the fund drive's goal.

Firemen launched the fund drive with a $2,500 donation of their own. One week later both Ord banks pledged $1,000 each. Donations from area residents poured in.

By February 8, $21,919 had been raised. This week rescue unit funds totaled $25,644. The demonstrator unit, with 3,673 miles on it was then purchased.

It will be about a month before the unit is officially Ord's. During that time, the title will be transferred, training sessions added to the unit.

A fire department press release stated:

"This has to be one of the best received community projects ever initiated in Ord. In just over two months the people who were concerned have opened their hearts and their purses to see that Ord receives the very best

Thank You

"The Ord Firemen wish to thank each and everyone of you for your generosity and pledge that we will continue to give our best effort to serve you well.

"Anyone who hasn't donated but wishes to may do so since the need for rescue equipment and supplies is never ending."

Condemned Lands Are Replacing Habitat Lost To Construction

According to Paula Siebke, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service will soon be recommending some 1700 acres of land within the proposed North Loup project area be condemned by the Bureau of Reclamation to replace the riparian habitat that will be lost with the project.

The determination was based on a recently completed re-evaluation of the effects of the North Loup Irrigation project on wildlife habitat. The re-evaluation was accomplished using an analysis procedure known as "Habitat Evaluation Procedure" (commonly referred to as "HEP") implemented approximately four years ago by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

"The last Fish and Wildlife Service re-evaluation of the North Loup project was accomplished in the late 1960's with the most recent report issued in October 1969. This report was based on the capabilities of the project areas to support populations of fish and wildlife to provide fishing and hunting. The 'HEP' re-evaluation, completed in December 1978, is based on the capacity of the habitat to support all wildlife species, not just those which are hunted.

"Oborny stated that "the recently completed re-evaluation shows that approximately 4,300 acres of additional cropland or grassland habitat, and 1,700 acres of additional riparian or woodland habitat would be required to achieve compensation for loss from the project. The service is interested primarily in compensating for riparian habitat that will be lost by creating the Calamus Reservoir to be located on the Calamus River a few miles northwest of Burwell.

Oborny further stated that "the Service will soon be designating some 2,200 acres of potential riparian lands upon which riparian habitat can be re-established."

"Asked where the lands would be located, Oborny replied, "The lands selected will most likely be situated along the North Loup and Loup Rivers and along certain other North Loup

Does Meeting

The regular monthly meeting of the Ord Does was held February 14 at the Elks Lodge. Charter members were honored at the meeting. The Does donated $50 to the Elks Lodge to be used for remodeling purposes. Several Does volunteered to help the Elks shine and polish the Club on clean-up day Monday, February 19.

Does were reminded of the Elks free Hypertension Clinic coming up on Tuesday, March 6 and anyone wishing to volunteer their services should contact Uga or Stephanie Hurlbert. Refreshments were served after the meeting in observance of Valentine's Day.

World Day of Prayer Will Be Held March 2

"Spiritual Growth" is the World Day of Prayer theme this year. Church Women United in Ord and Scotia will hold services on March 2 at the Presbyterian Church in Ord at 2:30 p.m. and St. Patrick's Catholic Church in Scotia at 2 p.m.

World Day of Prayer dates back to 1887 and this year women in 140 countries and 33 islands will unite in prayer on this historic day. The service for this year was written by students in the Pan-African Leadership Course for Women at Mindolo Ecumenical Foundation in Kitwe, Zambia. Each year, women in a different nation are asked to write the World Day of Prayer service based on themes chosen by the International Committee for World Day of Prayer. Church Women United is the officially-recognized sponsor of World Day of Prayer in the United States. The women of Africa send this message: "Our warm greetings to all the Christians around the world who are coming together from different places for the World Day of Prayer 1979. We hope the voices of the Pan-African Leadership Course at Mindolo can be heard in solidarity with the voices of women in the world as we pray together on World Day of Prayer 1979."

Weckbachs Return

Mr. and Mrs. Clark Weckbach returned home Saturday after spending the past 2 1/2 months in Denver where they report the winter was the coldest in 40 years but much warmer than Ord. They visited with the following former Ordites: Mary Beranek Bradley, Melvin Clements, Robert Hughes, Paul Kubitschek, Ann, Adeline and Marie Murrays, Don Pilgers and the George Vasickes.

WIFE Meeting Held February 12

Ord W.I.F.E. (Women Involved in Farm Economics) met February 12 at the Farm Bureau of 1716 E. Final plans were developed concerning the open forum meeting with Senator Don Wagner to be held March 3. This is to be an informational meeting, and is open to the public. Specific topics to be discussed are: state and private water rights, foreign investors, new legislation regarding inheritance and estate taxes, and the possible repeal of LB 518 (1977).

It was decided to make a donation to the Ord Rescue Unit. Evelyn Kusek will attend the State Steering Committee meeting in Kearney on February 17.

Fund raising activities were discussed with the salute to the National level were reviewed. They are: Gasohol, estate, tax and social security, sugar legislation, countercyclical beef import act, inspection and labeling of USDA, transportation of commodities, water, and EPA and OSHA regulations affecting agriculture.

Concern was expressed over information received in the State W.I.F.E. newsletter regarding the President's State of the Union Message, in that he indicated that Federal water policies will supersede the States' water policies. If this statement is not acted upon by Congress within 60 days, it automatically becomes law by means of executive order.

All present were urged to write our Senators, Representatives, President Carter, and Cecil Andrus to protest this plan.

Various other topics of concern were discussed. Following adjournment, the group listened to a taped speech of Arnold Paulson, which dealt with a discussion of the economic situation in the USA and the world.

The next meeting will be held March 19 at the Farm Bureau office.

Nursing Home Has New Projector The Valley County Nursing Home recently purchased a film projector. Donations from the Hospital Auxiliary, the Lloyd Wilson memorial fund and other donations, made the purchase possible.

Various films are available and can be ordered from the Ord Township Library with only postage expense.

Washington — The Way It Was

Each time I come home to Nebraska and to my home in the country, I realize why I am fighting so hard, along with hundreds of other country people. I do know now however that it is much easier to be on the battle front, than to be stationed back home, and have to depend on the T.V., newspapers, and radio for any information on what is going on.

We had known all along, that the news media was controlled, but to print, and broadcast out and out lies, it makes me sick to my stomach.

I know some will say after I tell the real story, that she is just sticking up for the farmers, but the truth is something that will always win out in the end. So as I start to tell what I saw, and what I lived through, I have no fear, that what I am about to tell you will ever be disputed.

The 18 days that it took for the snow birds of the North to get to Washington, were some of the most fantastic days of my life. I had always felt that city slickers from the east, weren't as smart, or as nice as we who live in the midwest. But I have never been so wrong in my life. These people know what is going on in their nations Capitol, and they lined the overpasses, and the approaches, they threw food down to us as we passed. Cheered us on with the thumbs up sign, they had signs made that read, "go get em", and with a wave of the arm.

When we were marooned in Galesburg, Illinois, the people of that city called and wanted to take us in. Now that we are in Washington, D.C., they, the people of that city are doing the same. Some even said they would pick us up at dark, and take us home with them, and bring us back in the morning to the mall, and our compound.

They have furnished us with food, donuts, and encouragement.

As we started toward D.C. on that fateful Monday morning, everyone was confident that, that day was set aside for the farmers and ranchers of America, and that they would parade around the capital, and have a rally, and go back to their camp grounds. The stage was set. Can you tell me how at three different places, and at exactly the same time why violence broke out? And why the T.V., and the police should happen to be there at just the right time?

Since I have been home I have had to sit and watch the T.V., and see how they distort the picture. They are telling you the farmers have done 2 million dollars worth of damage to the mall. The farmers were forced to park on the mall, they were forced to park the tractors on the lawn, forced at the risk of losing life and limb. You can't put a bull in a china closet, and not get any china broken. If you weren't there how do you know that it was a FARMER that was doing the things they say? We know that one minute there was a man in a strike hat with an axe handle, beating on police cars, and the next minute, he has a badge on his chest, and he is not saying that all the farmers are angels, far from it, but how many farmers do you know, who would destroy anything, harm anyone or for that matter break the law in anyway?

When you see someone you admire, and look up to, beaten for no reason, your instinct for survival takes over, and you then try to defend yourself.

As for the reporters who make such strong statements, against the farmers, unless they have been there and have been an eye witness, they have no right to print hearsay.

The farmers didn't want to drive all those miles and hold up traffic, cause the police to work overtime, and to make people late. Ninety-five percent of the people along the way told us to "go get em", which made us feel what we were doing was right. The police and highway patrol along the way couldn't have been more cooperative, and for this we are so thankful.

As for the other farm organizations, that have criticized what AAM has tried to do, I say this, if you think going to Florida for a convention, and worrying about the nesting habits of the turtle dove, or saying we have ruined the image of the farmer is going to solve anything, you are sadly mistaken.

Your organization can sell orange juice, tires, and whatever else, at wholesale, but is that going to help them pay their bills???

Don't know if what I have told you will make any difference one way or another about what you think of AAM. But I will always be proud of these brave, honest, dedicated men and women. They say a wrong being done to their country and their fellow man, and they had the guts and fortitude to stand up and be counted. They have been ridiculed, and slandered, but they still fight on. Because of their faith in God and each other they won't give up, so before you criticize, ask yourself a few questions. Did I bother to ask anyone involved what really happened? Or have they done anything so wrong? Did you know that the U.S. government reseed the mall every year, whether the farmers were there or not?

These people didn't ask to be locked up like a pig in a poke, now they (the government) have no choice but to wreck the image of these people.

Believe me, everyone should make one trip into Washington, and then if you really believe that what AAM is doing is wrong, then and only then do you have a right to criticize.

DOESN'T IT MAKE YOUR DAY . . . When the snow stops in time for your outing after all.
When your pet returns after being gone for a week.
When you make up after a misunderstanding with someone you love.
When the plane you thought you missed hasn't left yet.
When your favorite neighbor decides not to move after all.
When you try a new recipe and it turns out great.
When the plant you've been nursing along for weeks finally decides to grow.
When the mistake you worried about wasn't a mistake after all.
When you find something valuable you thought you'd lost.
When your boss lets you off work a half hour early.
When you call a service man and he shows up early in the day.
When you have a day off and the weather's fine.
When you're lost and finally see a familiar landmark.
When you get an unexpected present.
When you weigh yourself and find you've lost five pounds.

Gillispies to Note Anniversary

Harry and Leta Gillispie will celebrate their 64th wedding anniversary this Saturday. The long-time North Loup residents were married in Omaha February 24, 1915.
At the time he was employed by Standard Oil in the state's biggest city. Seeing an ad for a telephone office manager at North Loup, he and his then new bride swapped big city living for the pleasures of a small town. "And we've never been sorry," said Harry in a Quiz interview Monday.
Roy Hudson hired Harry as manager of the Loup Valley Independent Telephone Company in 1928. He and his bride lived in the telephone office, first building north of the hardware store, for 33 years. The Gillispies were on duty 24 hours a day.
They and two operators kept the town switchboard open from 6 a.m. to 10 p.m. seven days a week. Emergency calls were put . . . through any time. "Someone," Harry recalled, "was on duty all the time."
Rodeo Telephone of Burwell purchased the North Loup system in 1957. Harry retired in 1960. Now 88 years old, he and Leta, 86, live quietly in the town they call home, North Loup.
There'll not be any fancy ceremonies, Harry predicted, just a lot of fond memories on their 64th anniversary Saturday.

Laura Edwards - Craig Clement
Wedding Ceremony on February 10

An afternoon ceremony February 10, 1979 at the United Methodist Church in Ord united Laura Edwards and Craig Clement in marriage. Rev. Earl Reed and Rev. Charles Moore solemnized the 4 p.m. service.
Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Edwards of North Loup and Mr. and Mrs. Milton Clement of Ord.
The altar was appointed with a branch Hurricane lamp candleabra entwined with greenery. The bride was escorted to the altar by her father. For her wedding, she selected a gown of ivory polyester knit. The bodice featured a Queen Ann neckline with a Capella yoke in back all trimmed with Venise lace appliques. Her long tapered sleeves were adorned with lace and formed bridal points below the wrists. The skirt fell from a high rise waistline featuring a Watteau train attached to the back yoke. The chapel length gown was completely edged in matching lace. The mantilla veil of bridal illusion featured a rolled edge and was accented with matching appliques. The bride carried a long cascade of pink roses and white daisy pom poms accented with greenery.
Ann Ketchmark of Hastings was maid of honor with Karen Jensen of Scotia, Kim Jeffres of Hastings, and Kim Clement of Ord, niece of the groom, as bridesmaids. The attendants' floor length gowns were of pink and rose polyester. The brides featured bouquets topped with lace yokes. Full sleeves were gathered on wide cuffs at the wrists. The full skirts fell from natural waistlines. They carried nosegays of Val Halla maroon carnations and white daisy pom poms. Kelly Clement, niece of the groom, was the ring carrier. Candle lighters were Scott and Tiffany Clement, nephew and niece of the groom.
Music for the ceremony was provided by friends of the couple. Donna Brakenhoff, accompanied by Karen Wells, dedicated "Sometimes" to the parents. "Our Love," dedicated to the groom, was sung by Karen Kolar, accompanied by Karen Wells. Steve Sintek, accompanied by Dennis Hansen on the guitar, dedicated "The Bride and Groom" and "Three Times a Lady" to the bride.
Dale Clement of Kearney, brother of the groom, was best man. Groomsmen were Daryl Jorgensen of North Loup, Jerry

District 12 V.F.W. Meeting

The District 12 V.F.W. meeting was held in Ord Sunday, February 18, at the Vets Club with 65 members in attendance.
Ken Collins, District 12 Commander, and Rose Ann Goodman, District President, presided at the meeting.
The District Voice of Democracy winners gave their speeches before the meeting. Regina Rogers of Ord was second in the district and Tim Woodward of Broken Bow, first. Tim went on to win the state contest and will go to Washington D.C. March 3 to try for national honors.
State Auxiliary President Shirley Arens was the ladies' representative and Duane Wilson of Culbertson was the V.F.W. representative at the meeting.

Birthday Slumber Party

Darla Nolte had several of her friends Friday for a slumber party. The party was planned by Darla's mother and also helping was her sister, Danette. Those present for the party fun were Judy Nelson, Sara Trubey, Becky Riley, Chris Stowell, DeeLinn Goodsell, Traci Radil, and Malanie Krajnik.
Darla was 10 years old on February 19.
Darla celebrated her birthday Monday evening by going to the Pizza Hut and later having cake at her home. Helping Darla celebrate were her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Nolte, and grandparents, Mrs. Eunice Rice and Mr. and Mrs. Theron Nolte.
During the evening, Darla received a phone call from her sister, Danette, who goes to college in Hastings. Her sister, Diane, also sent birthday wishes from Hastings.

Mr. and Mrs. Duane Woods of Alma were overnight guests in the Leon Woods home on Saturday.

Cooking Cuties

A meeting of the Cooking Cuties 4-H Club was held at Tracy Johnson's house Monday, February 12. We said the pledge of allegiance and the secretary, Terri Cudly, took roll call. They answered by saying their favorite breakfast meal. They all were very good and delicious. We then had a report from the treasurer. We then took a vote on being in the song contest. All voted that we would participate in it. We then talked about our outfits for the contest. The business meeting was adjourned and we went to our classes. After classes, we had dessert.
The next meeting will be at Christy Arnold's house at 7 p.m. on March 5. The demonstration will be done by Christy Arnold and Dahn Stowell on breakfast protein.

Scouts Rough It In The Klondike

Seven Ord Boy Scouts, Troop 194, roughed it in the supposed Alaskan wilderness over the weekend. The seven Scouts attended the Klondike Derby south of Grand Island.
While there, they "took trips" to the Alaskan outback. During the "trips" they used skills learned through scouting programs. These included rope tying, first aid, melting snow to wash a wound, fire building, etc.
Those exploring the Klondike wilderness were Scott Vancura, Kent Studnicka, Brian Arnold, Bob Darnell, and Pat Bernery. Doug Weems and Crain Vancura went and helped with the first aid program. Dan Studnicka and Emanuel Sich, Scoutmaster, provided transportation.
Assistant Scoutmaster Henry Hassman served as mayor of several Alaskan cities.
Ord got first place in their Klondike dogsled construction. Scouts held a pot luck supper on returning to Ord Sunday night, at the Methodist Church.

York Dukes Edge Ord Chants 60-50

The Ord Chants were edged by host York Dukes 60-50 Friday night. The game was decided at the free throw line.

The Dukes were 11 of 13 from the charity stripe while Ord was zero for three basket tries the first half. Game statistics show the Chants shooting 13 free throws during the game and making good on six for 46 percent.

Host York Dukes sank a blistering 67 percent of their free throws, 20 of 30 for the night. Ord did not shoot York from the field 22 baskets to 20, but it was little consolation. Said Williams in a post game interview, "I guess it's ok if you don't have any fouls".

Unfortunately, that wasn't the case. Ord's boy Chants had 25 infractions for the night. Twelve of these came in the first half. Given the opportunity, the Dukes used the bonus shots to their advantage.

During Friday's game both Kremke and Smith went to the bench with five fouls, late in the first quarter. Remaining players had low infractions totals.

Ord was ahead 24-20 midway through the second quarter when York moved ahead. York ended the half with a 31-25 lead. The Dukes' 11 point explosion came late in the second quarter.

Williams summed it up saying, "We made some bad mistakes and they capitalized on them". Then came the third quarter, and Ord being out scored 18-10. The Chants never ahead in the game after that point.

Ord's record slips to 6-11 with the loss. This Friday, they go to Seward.

Gal Chants Soar Over Broken Bow

Ord Lady Chants soared over Broken Bow Thursday 49-33. An explosive fourth quarter clinched the game for Ord's girls. Gal Chants scored four free throws and eight field goals in that last period.

Said their coach, Max Murray, "We started playing basketball". Nancy Gogan pumped in eight points that last period. Vickie Mason and Barb Kittle each had six.

"Wickie shot real well from the free throw line", Murray commented. She was nine for 13 from the charity stripe, had 10 rebounds and eight steals.

"She had a real good game", Murray said, "and she has been consistent all year". Vickie Mason as "one of the better all-around players in Central Nebraska".

Nancy Gogan was another high scorer; she had eight of 13 from the floor.

Anne Smith chipped in 10 rebounds.

Barb Kittle played well the second half, as did the entire team. The first half they trailed 21-15. Murray characterized the first two quarters as "real sluggish".

After that came a better third period and a fantastic fourth quarter finish. "I think they just woke up" (at halftime) and discovered they weren't going to win if they didn't get in the game."

Ord was in front 29-27 at the end of the third quarter. Then came the 20 point climax to the game. That was when the girls started doing things like they've been doing them all year", Murray recalled.

The win Thursday makes Ord 12-6, paving the way for district competition February 20.

Ord and Broken Bow will meet at 8 p.m. in Broken Bow.

"I hope we'll be able to play from the start", Murray said. "It makes things a lot easier."

Broken Bow is 2-10 with Thursday's game. High scorer for the loss was Becky Kummig, with 12 points.

Ord's top scorers were Vickie Mason with 17 points, Nancy Gogan with 16, and Barb Kittle with 10.

NL-S Girls Lose

The NL-S girls' varsity lost its opening game of the District 12-31 by losing to Pleasanton 42-34. The game was much closer than the final score indicated as this was the biggest lead held by the team from Pleasanton.

The lead changed hands many times in a game which was a total of 73 free throws shot. Pleasanton held a slim 2-point lead at half and only a 1 point lead to begin the fourth quarter. Led by the shooting of Madge Gebhardt, the NL-S team gained a 2-point lead with just over 4 minutes to play, but fouls turned the table. In the last 4 minutes of play, 3 NL-S starters fouled out and Pleasanton sank their last 9 free throws in a row to seal the victory. The loss dropped the girls' season record to 1 win and 10 losses.

The following night, the consolation game will begin at 6:30 followed by the championship game at 8 p.m.

Ord Boxing Club Will Host District Tourney

The Ord Boxing Club will host the Junior District Tournament here at St. Mary's auditorium Saturday, February 24. Matches will start at 2 p.m. with finals to be at 7 p.m. that night.

Towns competing in the District are Ord, Greeley, Loup City, Dannebrog, and two clubs from Grand Island.

Champions will advance to the regionals at Superior March 9 and 10. Any boxer 8 to 15 years old is eligible to box in the tournament.

Ord St. Mary's Mauls Beginners

Ord seventh and eighth grade boys were mauled by St. Mary's Comets 41-18 Monday night. Ord shot 37 from the floor and made eight. St. Mary's connected on 20 of 61 shots for 33 percent.

Scoring for the Ord team was balanced. Shawn Sich, Todd Peltin, Marty Moody, Paul Hill, Mike Linke, and Tim Riley each had two points. Bob Grove had five and Jeff Augustin one.

For St. Mary's, Doug Welniak led 17, John Dubas 6, Gary Warner 8, Mike Wadas 7, and Russ Welniak 3.

The loss puts Ord High seventh and eighth graders at 1-3 for the season.

Ord Cagers Begin District March 5th

Ord cage players will begin their district competition March 5 at Ainsworth by taking on St. Paul. Game time is 6 p.m.

Ord is 6-11 for the season and St. Paul 10-3, according to district pairings made at Ainsworth Monday.

This will be the third time Ord and St. Paul have met this season. The first time the Chants took St. Paul 53-49 in a double overtime game. That win, at the Nebraska Tournament in Grand Island last December, ended a five game dry spell for Ord.

The two teams clashed again last month with Ord again the winner 63-43.

Should Ord make it three wins in a row they will play the winner of the West Holt and Valentine game Thursday, March 8 at 6 p.m.

Conners Conclude State Competition

Doug and Dave Conner, Ord High wrestlers, ended their state competition with losses in opening rounds last week. They and other grapplers from Nebraska met in the Sports Complex at Lincoln Thursday-Saturday.

Doug wrestles in the 98 pound division while Dave is in the 145 pound category.

Both qualified for state level competition with wins at districts in Aurora two weeks ago. Dave is an Ord High senior and Doug a freshman.

Noll Scores in Jr. Cage Ratings

Former Ord High School All-Stater Dick Noll, now starring for York College, is climbing up the scoring charts in the Nebraska and the Prairie Junior College conferences.

Noll, a classy 6'0 guard, assumed more of a floor general's role on the much improved '79 Panther team according to York Coach Dale Neal.

This early season scoring did not match his 1977-78 game average of 19.2 points.

The Panther co-captain is now averaging 13.4 points per game, as York College rides a 10-game win streak into weekend action.

Over the past six games Noll has averaged 18.2 points per outing.

On PJCC statistical charts Noll is No. 8 in scoring (13.4), No. 4 in field goal percentage (.504), No. 7 in free throw percentage (.754) and No. 6 in assists (3.3 per game).

York stands at 19-7 on the year and is undefeated against PJCC competition. In their sub-region the Panthers won a 5-2 mark.

York College has already clinched its first PJCC championship. Along the way they have picked up the winners' trophies at the Kansas-Nebraska tournament at McPherson, KS and the Harding College Invitational Tourney at Searcy, AR.

Wildcat Gals Third in Tourney

North Loup-Scotia girls closed their cage season with a freshmen-sophomore tournament at Scotia Monday and Tuesday. The NL-S Wildcats came out in third place in a four-way race.

Action started Monday when Palmer mixed North Loup-Scotia 45-20. In the second game that night, Greeley blasted Spalding Academy 44-16.

Tuesday, Greeley edged Palmer 39-38 in an overtime game. Action concluded with the Cats beating Spalding 47-16 for third place.

Every occasion has its problems. I know a doctor who's given so many flu shots, he can't even bear to look at a parker house roll.

Gal Reserves Win Double Overtime Thriller at B. Bow

Ord girls reserves won a double overtime thriller 33-31 over host Broken Bow Thursday night. A basket by Peg Kramer and a charity win by Julie Brass gave Ord the winning edge.

Leading the way both offensively and defensively was Robyn Upham, with 13 points and nine rebounds. Peg Kramer had eight points and Julie Brass had eight rebounds.

Ord coach Tom Rhodes called Thursday's game Upham's "... finest of the year."

The team's win ends their season with a 5-6 record.

Gal Ninth Graders First in C-10 West Division Tourney

Ord Gal Chant ninth grade cagers took first place in the C-10 West Division tournament at Ord a week ago Tuesday with a 47-33 win over Albion.

Ord shot 17 of 30, 56 percent, from the free throw line. Coach Jan Weber termed the team's accuracy "very good for the freshman level". Her girls pumped in 15 of 36 from the field for 41.6 percent.

"The girls played one of the finest games they've played all season."

The win last Tuesday closed that season with a 7-3 record. Some ninth grade cagers have been playing on the reserve team.

A 33-26 win over Grand Island Northwest and a 50-29 upset over Central City earlier paved the way for Tuesday's game.

In a consolation match, Aurora defeated Northwest 24-23 for third place.

Cals End Season With Two Victories

North Loup-Scotia Wildcats ended their regular season with two home victories defeating Centura on Tuesday, February 13 and winning over Greeley on Friday, February 16.

The Wildcats had a strong first half against Centura. Everything seemed to go right in the first two quarters. A season high 30 points were scored in the second quarter, giving NLS a 22 point lead at halftime, 44-22.

NLS was never threatened in the second half and went on to win easily 72-50.

Top scorers were Chuck Abel 23, Barry Newman 14, Kevin Sheldon 13 and Mike Holmes 12.

NLS shot 43% from the field compared to 32% for Centura. NLS also owned a 41-34 edge in rebounding.

North Loup-Scotia entertained the Greeley Bulldogs Friday night and came away with a four point win 63-59. The Wildcats started off on a high note with an 8-2 lead with two minutes gone in the first quarter. Scotia was outscored 14-4 in the final six minutes to trail at the end of the first quarter 12-16.

NLS was not in the second quarter, and pumped in 21 points to lead by 11 at halftime 37-26.

The third quarter saw the Wildcats score 19 unanswered points and hold Greeley scoreless for over seven minutes. NLS led by 16, 45-27 before Greeley hit a free throw with 50 seconds left.

NLS led at the start of the fourth quarter 46-41. Greeley outscored NLS by 1, 18-17 in the fourth but some timely free throws kept NLS in the lead. The Wildcats preserved the win.

Kevin Sheldon hit 18, Chuck Abel 16, Barry Newman 15 and Mike Holmes 9 for NLS. Barry Newman and Chuck Abel were top rebounders with 19 and 11.

The win ends NLS's regular season at 7-5. The Wildcats will be rematched against Greeley in first round of the District tournament at Ravenna on Friday, February 23 at 7 p.m.

Checkers

He speculated that "millions of young kids with nothing to do" have opted for checkers.
Chance of a similar revolution starts here "are almost nil" in Mills' words. "There are too many motorcycles and too much television," fellow player, Harry Foth interjected.
"A lot of people think it's a 'sissy game'," Foth said. Mills agreed and added, "but mentally, checkers is a killer."
Tournament Results
When tournament play ended Monday, Mills was the new state champion. He edged out Swanson, 25 points to 22, regaining his title of top Nebraska checker player.
Swanson was in second place at 21. Burrows in third with 16 points.
Other tournament results, in order of their ranking are:
Twenty Orent, North Loup, 15 points.
Giff Thompson, Lincoln, 14 points.

Goss, Snerling, Ord, 13 points.
John Clement, Ord, 12 points.
John Pestal, Jr., Omaha, 12 points.
John Pestal, Sr., Omaha, 12 points.
Russ Hill, North Loup, 10 points.
Henry Lange, Ord, 10 points.
Albin, Omaha, 7 points.

Condemned

tributary streams within the project service area. Designation of at least 2,200 acres will be necessary initially, in order that the 1,700 acres required for compensation can be selected from that.
"Opponents of the project have charged that 12 miles of the Calamus River would be destroyed by the proposed North Loup project. This 1,700 acres will be added to more than 19,000 acres of land that would be taken, or condemned by the project, according to Paula Sierke, newly named Executive Director of Farmers and Ranchers to Save the Loup and Calamus, Inc.

In a Quiz phone interview Thursday, Henry Lange, Twin Loups Reclamation District head, confirmed the condemnation. He suggested a wildlife refuge be established below the project dam, near Burwell.
He stated he mentioned the idea to Dave Wilde Thursday morning. Wilde is the Bureau of Reclamation's top officer in Nebraska.
"Some sportsmen have favored declaring the reservoir a wildlife refuge," Lange revealed, "and I favor that. We want a refuge, he added, "so that the birds will come here and stay."

Luboff

His wide experience has convinced him musical techniques are constantly improving. He attributed this to better teaching. "People can play an octave higher on the trumpet than ever before," he observed, "or they can play a tuba with the facility of a trumpet."
Despite these improved techniques and greater talent than ever the problem of getting a job remains. "It has always been difficult and always will," Luboff commented. This will likely continue, in his estimation, until states and cities include fine arts in their annual budgets. "Like fire protection, refuse removal, and other municipal services," he suggested.
He flatly rejected the old stereotype that all outstanding musicians "come from abroad." The Chicago Symphony he rated above some so-called prestigious orchestras in Europe.
The notion that all "culture" comes from abroad goes back to the fact America didn't have a culture of its own for many years, Luboff explained. Lacking that, we looked to our European roots.
In Luboff's estimation, it wasn't until the 1930s that the United States began to develop its own cultural identity. Improved communications like radio, helped us take this step, the conductor explained.
Records did — and do — help heighten America's cultural awareness, the conductor stated, and added, "But the big sellers are still the popular ones."
"There is a lot of good stuff and a lot of junk," on the current pop music scene, in Luboff's words. He listed contributions by the Beatles, Bert Bacharach, and Linda Ronstadt in the "good stuff" category.
Progressive jazz is another of his favorites, and he isn't adverse to hearing some good Dixieland once in a while.
"Don't underestimate the life of American music," he warned. "It is alive, well, and doing quite nicely."

Card of Thanks

I want to thank Dr. Miller and the hospital staff for the excellent care I received. I want to thank Pastor Talbot for his prayers and visits. I want to thank all of my friends and relatives who remembered me with cards, flowers, telephone calls, gifts and visits. Everyone was very kind and I appreciate their kindness.
Special thanks to John and Alice Wozab for the transportation to the hospital and back to their home.
It's really gratifying to live in a small town where people care and are concerned.
May God bless you all.
Ann Parkos

Card of Thanks

A heartfelt thank you to all those who called, sent cards and flowers, and for the concern shown while I was hospitalized.
To all who remembered our anniversary and our birthdays, thank you so much. All these loving acts have made our milestones a truly memorable occasion for us.
Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hruby

Mitchell Services In Central City

Edward R. Mitchell died at the Veterans Hospital in Grand Island Tuesday, February 13, at the age of 85.

Mr. Mitchell was born January 11, 1894 near Glamis, Scotland. He left Scotland in 1911 and immigrated to Canada and then to Chicago. He worked at fairs taking care of animals and livestock in Iowa and surrounding states. He enlisted in the Army in 1917 and served in six engagements in France in World War I. He was honorably discharged in 1919.

Following his discharge, he worked in Iowa and in Nebraska for various breeders and ranchers caring for purebred cattle. He was employed by Clare Clement for 17 years until his retirement. He had been at the Veterans Hospital Long Term Care Unit in Grand Island since 1972.

Memorials may be given to Merrick Foundation for the Edward R. Mitchell Scholarship Fund.

A memorial service was held in the Chapel of Merrick Manor in Central City Tuesday afternoon, Feb. 20, 1979 with Rev. Victor Skaggs of the Seventh Day Baptist Church in North Loup officiating. Mrs. Don Clement of Kearney sang "Abide With Me" accompanied by Mrs. George Bell.

Jos. R. Petska Services Monday

Joseph R. Petska, the son of James, Sr. and Anna Ptacnik Petska, was born September 16, 1903 in Germanium Township in Valley County and died February 15, 1979 at his farm home at the age of 75.

He attended rural school District #35 in Germanium Township and later attended the Business College in St. Paul. He then began farming and cattle raising for which he was quite prominently known. He was a member of the Knights of Columbus.

Survivors include one sister, Mrs. Anna Puncocar of Grand Island; one brother, John, Ord; plus numerous nephews and nieces. Preceding him in death were his parents, two brothers and one sister.

Funeral services were held Monday, February 19, 1979 at 8 a.m. at the Ord Memorial Chapel with Rev. Stanley Gorak officiating. Michael Johnson sang "The Old Rugged Cross" and "In the Garden" accompanied at the organ by Mrs. Elsie Kurtek. Pallbearers were Jim Kordik, Richard Lukesh, Rudolph John, George Zurek, Leonard Fuxa, and Harlan Puncocar. Burial was in the Ord Catholic Cemetery. Rosary was recited Sunday at 8 p.m. at the Ord Memorial Chapel in charge of arrangements.

Stanley F. Vitek Services in Ord

Stanley F. Vitek, son of Frank and Mary Mares Vitek, was born May 7, 1890 in Novestvo, Czechoslovakia and died February 19, 1979 at the Valley County Hospital in Ord at the age of 88.

Stanley farmed most of his life in the Valley County area. He was united in marriage to Theresa V. Sedlacek in 1922 at the Germanium Catholic Church west of Ord.

Survivors include two granddaughters. He was preceded in death by his parents, his wife in 1935, and one son, Stanley, Jr. in 1966.

Funeral services were held Wednesday, February 21, 1979 at 10 a.m. at Our Lady of Perpetual Help Catholic Church in Ord with Rev. Stanley Gorak officiating. Mrs. Elsie Kurtek was the organist for the funeral. Pallbearers were William Sedlacek, Emanuel Sedlacek, Emil Sedlacek, Elmer Kluna, Al Boro, and Al Moudry. Rosary was Tuesday evening at 7:30 p.m. at the Ord Memorial Chapel. Burial was in the Ord Catholic Cemetery with Ord Memorial Chapel in charge of arrangements.

Tuesday Rites for Adolf Urbanovsky

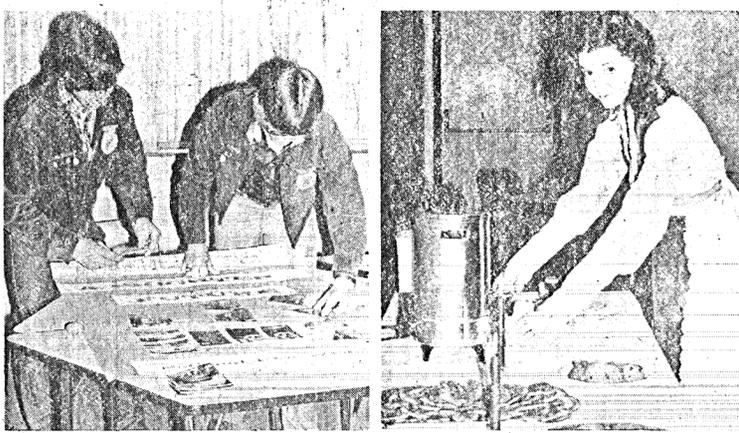

Funeral services for Adolf J. Urbanovsky were held Tuesday, February 20, 1979 at Our Lady of Perpetual Help Catholic Church in Ord with Father Stanley Gorak officiating. Mrs. Elsie Kurtek was the organist and Michael Johnson was the soloist. Pallbearers were Ernest Chalupa, Vincial Huss, Eugene Michalski, Don Rathbone, Stanley Urbanovsky, and Bill Janda. Burial was in the Ord Memorial Cemetery in charge of arrangements.

Adolf J. Urbanovsky was born June 29, 1923 in Valley County to John and Anna Psota Urbanovsky and died February 16, 1979 at Ord at the age of 55. His early life was spent on the family farm in Garfield County where he attended rural school. Adolf then attended the Ord High School, graduating with the class of 1941. He attended the St. Paul Business College at St. Paul for two years, then worked in Omaha with United States Savings Bond sales.

Adolf was united in marriage to Virginia Chalupa February 26, 1946 at Ord. They made their home on the family farm in Garfield County until 1970 when they moved to Ord. He was a member of the Ord Elk's Lodge #2317, and the Western Fraternal Life Association, and was a sales representative for the Association in the central Nebraska area. Adolf was best known in Nebraska for his Polka Band.

Survivors include his wife, Virginia of Ord; two sons, Dennis of Ord and Michael of Lincoln; two daughters, Mrs. Terrance (Emily) Michalski of Arnold and Mrs. Dick (Kathy) Janda of Lincoln; three granddaughters; one brother, J. W. Urbanovsky of Elyria; and one sister, Mrs. Olga Foral of Columbus. He was preceded in death by his parents. Memorials may be given in his memory to the family for a Memorial Fund to be established at a later date.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Burmood and Vickie were Sunday dinner guests of her folks, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Peterson in Ord. Other guests were Alan Peterson of Central City, Cheryl Peterson and Mrs. Edna Collins.

Displays - Ceremonies Note Future Farmers-Homemakers Week

Members of Ord Future Farmers and Future Homemakers of America chapters noted their national weeks with ceremonies and special displays recently. Both organizations planned special activities during the seven day period.

Members of the Ord FFA chapter joined with nearly 500,000 other FFA members in the United States in celebrating national FFA Week, February 17-24.

Throughout the week the state's many chapters are planning activities to support the theme "FFA at 60 - a golden past - A brighter future."

The traditions of FFA have produced a mighty work force for food and fiber to meet the needs of our nation and the world. Successful agricultural leaders of today are the testimony. The 50-year success story is the story of Learning by Doing.

National FFA week always includes George Washington's birthday in observance of his leadership in promoting scientific farming practices. Washington is considered the patron saint of the FFA and has come to symbolize the FFA Treasurer.

According to news reporter, Don Pruskoel, the Ord FFA Chapter will have two window displays. One will be down town in Andreesens Jewelry, Store window. The other will be at Ord High School.

Organized in 1928, the FFA promotes leadership, cooperation and citizenship among high school Vocational Agriculture students. Vocational agriculture education in high school prepares students for careers in agricultural production, marketing, processing and service.

Ord High Future Homemakers of America celebrated national FFA week, February 11-17 with a coffee in the First National Bank Saturday. From 10 a.m. until Saturday afternoon area residents could see various FFA projects displayed, view a slide presentation explaining the organization, while sipping coffee and eating cookies.

Weather Report

Cold temperatures and a few snow flurries caused hazardous driving conditions during the past week, but added to nature's beauty painting the trees with frost on many mornings while the thermometer continues to edge upward.

The outlook for Central Nebraska called for a continued slight warming trend into the weekend, accompanied by periods of rain or snow - depending on the temperature. By Sunday, a clearing trend could allow further melting of the still-heavy snow cover.

Certified Crop Varieties for 1979
Extension Circular 178 on Suggested Certified Crop Varieties for Nebraska is available. Varieties of small grains, sorghums, soybeans, alfalfa and clovers, grasses and corn are listed by cropping districts. Know the seed you plant!
Certified seed assures purity and quality.

Set Your Sights For $250 Per Acre
The 1979 Soybean Growers Planning Guide is available now. 1979 profits begin with winter planning. This pamphlet shows you how to "pencil out" estimated profits for this year's crops. A rule of thumb makes soybeans more profitable than corn. When the price of beans is three times that of corn. Management changes for 1979 are also included for your information.

Watch Mineral Levels In Swine Ration
"More isn't always better" when you add minerals and vitamins to swine rations. According to Dr. E. R. Peo Jr., Professor of Animal Science, IANR-UNL it may be tempting for a producer to add more than recommended amounts because vitamins and minerals are relatively "cheap" components of rations.

Don't go out and haphazardly add minerals to the ration. Intentional addition of minerals to the diet are very complex. For example, too much calcium will result in an improper calcium-phosphorus ratio and limit zinc availability. The ratio of calcium and phosphorus is important to structural soundness in swine.
Generally, calcium levels required for sows and gilts are about one and a half times the required phosphorus levels. Breeding swine require a level of about 0.85-0.90 percent calcium.

Hei-Gro Not Effective In Feedlot Heifers
Hei-Gro, an intravaginal device for use in feedlot finishing heifers to promote growth and feed efficiency, was evaluated by James Goodman of the animal science department, South Dakota State University, and found to be ineffective. This research confirms observations made by producers who have used the device and noted that heifers still exhibited estrous activity while many heifers lost the device during the feeding period.

The device was placed in 48 heifers. Their performance was compared to 48 heifers which lost one or more devices. Isolation of heifers carrying the Hei-Gro device did not help performance of heifers. A combination of the Hei-Gro device and Synovex-H implants did not improve feedlot performance over heifers which received only Synovex-H.
Considerable scarring and infection of the vagina was noted for heifers which received the Hei-Gro device.

Increase Windbreak Effectiveness With Evergreen Trees
In these days of high land values, heating costs and cattle feed prices, it makes sense to plant evergreens in windbreaks.
It takes only about half the number of evergreens to do the same job done by broadleaf trees. Therefore, instead of planting six or seven rows of broadleaf trees for windbreak purposes, three or four rows of evergreens will do the same job. The land not used for tree planting can go into crop production.

Windbreaks also can increase future crop yields. The decrease in wind velocity and increased humidity in protected fields reduce the moisture stress on the plants. Because of the reduced moisture stress, the existing soil moisture is used more efficiently, especially during dry years.
Windbreaks also can decrease irrigation costs and conserve the groundwater supply by protecting center pivot systems. Windbreaks can reduce the amount of water lost through evaporation and transpiration. Because of the reduced water loss, the center pivot does not need to be run as often or as long to replenish soil moisture.

Two Hundred Persons Asked to Invest In America's-Agriculture's Future

An estimated 200 people heard pleas to invest in agriculture and America's future during a meeting in St. Paul a week ago Tuesday. The St. Paul Development Corporation is looking for persons willing to invest in the future of a gasohol plant in that town.

Gasohol, a blend of corn alcohol and conventional gasoline, has been touted as one answer to America's energy crisis and crop surplus.
Jerry Korff, engineer with Boiler Bros. Inc. of Houston, TX, spoke to the crowd at St. Paul, explaining the process necessary to build an alcohol plant. Alcohol derived from corn would be added to gasoline.

Bohler Bros. have built 580 alcohol plants in Brazil where they are burning pure alcohol in their motor vehicles. He said they have built 232 plants in Austria where corn for the production of alcohol costs $11 per bushel.
Plant size can be from 10 to 80 million gallons per year. For an example Korff used a 20 million gallon plant which would cost about $35 million and could produce alcohol for a minimum of 55¢ and a maximum of 94¢ per gallon, depending on the quality and price of corn. This product would sell for $1.25 per gallon. An alcohol plant using irrigated corn yields a 1.27 input-output energy ratio, dryland corn yields 1.59.

This plant would produce an anhydrous feed grade of alcohol. The alcohol now being used in gasohol now sold in Nebraska comes from the A.D.M. plant in Illinois which produces beverage alcohol, a considerably more expensive process.

This plant would use about eight million bushels of corn per year. When asked how much agricultural over production could be used by this process, Korff stated it has been predicted that 200-200-million gallon plants in the U.S. by the year 2000.

The first step for the area group centered at St. Paul will be the raising funds for a detailed engineering feasibility study estimated to cost $300,000. It will bring the project to the earth turning stage. This is payable in three stages — cancellable at each stage. The $300,000 also applies to the cost of the plant if it is built by the Houston firm.

Robin Elstermier, president of the St. Paul Development Corporation, explained the group will be electing officers Feb. 20, with those having paid for $100 shares being eligible to vote.

Scholarship to Former Ordite

Susan Zikmund Bute, of 604 South Fir, Yuma, CO, has been awarded a $300 scholarship by The Order of United Commercial Travelers of America (UCT).
The grant is in addition to $400 in scholarship funds which she previously received, in 1964, from the fraternal organization.

Mrs. Bute plans to use the grant at Adams State College, Alamosa, CO, to pursue studies in the education of the mentally retarded.
She is employed by Yuma JFI Schools, Yuma, as a special education teacher. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Zikmund of Ord.

Arcadia Student On Dean's List

An Arcadia student has made the dean's list for the first semester at Marymount College of Kansas.

She is Carol Bendykowski, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Bendykowski.
Students making the dean's list have compiled a semester grade point average of at least 3.4, computed on the basis of 4 points per A, 3 points per B, 2 points per C and 1 point per D and have enrolled in at least 12 credit hours for the semester.

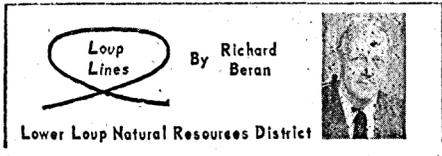

New Food Stamp Rules To Start March 1st

Starting March 1, new rules will be used to determine who qualifies for food stamps and how many stamps people can get.
Among the new rules are:
— Simplified procedures with only three possible deductions;
— Household assets limit raised to $1,750;
— Tougher penalties for fraud;
— Benefits retroactive to first day of month of application.
Food stamps at no cost already went into effect on January 1, 1979.

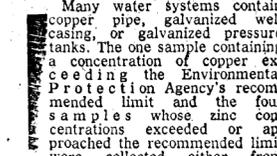

All food stamp cases will be reviewed between March 1 and July 1 and changed over to the new system. Most households in Nebraska will not lose benefits under the new rules.
If there are any questions about this change, contact your local food stamp office, or call this toll-free number: 800-742-7630.

TRACE CONSTITUENTS
Many samples of Nebraska's groundwater have been analyzed for several trace constituents. Most of the samples were collected after 1960, since methods for routine measurement of most trace constituents were not available before then. Certain trace constituents are important because of their toxicities to humans, animals, and plants. The Environmental Protection Agency has applied drinking water standards to each, and a concentration of any constituent greater than established limits constitutes grounds for rejecting the water in which it occurs as a source of public supply.

Although trace constituents are most often associated with toxicity at concentrations exceeding the Environmental Protection Agency standards, some of them at lower concentrations are essential nutrients for sustaining both animal and plant life.

Cadmium, chromium (hexavalent) lead, and silver generally occur in groundwater in very small quantities only. At the usual pi (7.0-8.0) of groundwater in Nebraska, the most common ionic species of each of the constituents are insoluble. Commonly they are soluble only in acid solution such as that associated with acid mine drainage, which is not a general problem in Nebraska. Furthermore, probably no geologic source in Nebraska contains more than traces of any of these constituents.

Less than 25 percent of the total number of water samples analyzed for cadmium, chromium (hexavalent), lead, and silver had detectable concentrations. The upper limits recommended by the Environmental Protection Agency for chromium (hexavalent), lead, or silver in drinking water were not exceeded in any water samples analyzed. Only one of the 211 water samples analyzed for cadmium contained a concentration greater than the Environmental Protection Agency standard of .010 parts per million (ppm). This excess concentration of .013 ppm occurred in a water sample collected in 1975 from a recording observation well in Phelps County. No source of cadmium is known to exist in the area, and water from other wells nearby contains no comparable concentration. This well is scheduled for resampling in 1978 under the cooperative program between the U.S. Geological Survey and the Conservation and Survey Division.

Copper and zinc generally are more soluble in water than are the other trace constituents for which data on concentrations are available. Over 50 percent of all samples analyzed for copper and zinc had detectable amounts of each. One sample contained a concentration of copper exceeding the Environmental Protection Agency's recommended limit of 1 ppm and four samples contained concentrations of zinc exceeding the recommended limit of 5 ppm.

Former Ordite's Daughter Is Finalist

In the recent National Miss United Teenager Pageant, which was held at the Sheraton-Parke Hotel in Washington D.C., Miss Alice Don Duda, daughter of Peter Edward and Kay Duda, was one of the finalists and was awarded the Miss Congeniality trophy from a field of 50 contestants representing each of the states. She also received a cash award and a color portrait. As Miss Virginia, the title she won in the pageant held last August in Virginia, she received a trip to Europe which she will take in April and a trip to Hawaii which she plans in July. Her parents will accompany her.

Miss Duda is a senior at Edison High School in Alexandria, VA where she is a member of the National Honor Society, Math Honor Society and a Varsity Cheer Leader. She has recently been accepted to the Virginia Poly Tech College where she plans a major in Fashion Merchandising. She has two sisters, Melanie and Nicole. Her grandparents are Mrs. Victoria Duda of Ord and Don and Mary Womack of Arlington, VA.

Attending the pageant were all of Eddie's sisters: Clara Ingebritson of Iowa Falls, IA; Lorraine Lukesh of Ord; Florence Bastow and her husband, Ray, of Casper, WY; and Bernice Fiala and her husband, Doris E. Kinsworth. They spent ten days with the Dudas in the Capitol City where they visited Mount Vernon, Arlington National Cemetery, Shrine of the Immaculate Conception, National Aeronautics and Space building, toured the White House, U.S. Capitol, the FBI Building, and Fort Myer, where Eddie was stationed while in the service.

Staab Makes Dean's List

David Bernard Staab, son of Mr. and Mrs. Barnard Staab, formerly of Ord, is one of six Nebraskans on the Dean's List at Bob Jones University in Greenville, S.C. Students listed earned at least a "B" average during the first semester.

David is a senior in the College of Arts and Sciences at BJU.
Bob Jones University, known as the "World's Most Unusual University," is a liberal arts, coeducational institution. About 5,700 students are enrolled there, according to a school news release.

Leitschuck Is Awarded Diploma

Jerrie Leitschuck of Ord was one of 18 practical nursing graduates awarded diplomas during commencement exercises Friday at Platte Technical Community College in Columbus.
Ronald W. Saalfeld, president of the Columbus Community Hospital directors board was the keynote speaker.
18 students receiving diplomas are the 18th class to graduate from the PTCC practical nursing program.

Degree Awarded
Curtis Schauer of Ord received a Two Year Diploma in Automotive last week from Central Technical Community College in Hastings. Curtis is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Schauer.

Card of Thanks
Dear Friends:
We are settled into our "new" home now, since losing our home to fire the 8th of January. Thanks to the generosity of so many kind people we will have the basic household tools needed to start over again.
A note sent to us after the fire read:
"Our Father will give you what you need, strength, courage, peace — and friends who care."
Thank you so much for caring.

"My hogs get to market weight faster on less feed. Two reasons: good management, good feed."

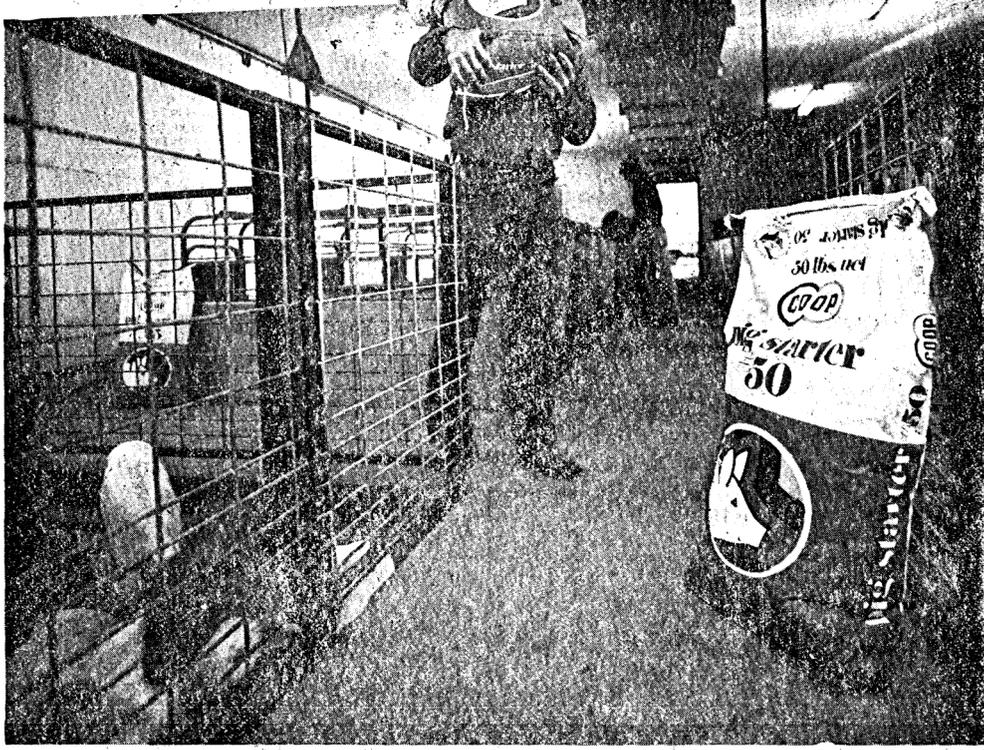

You own it. You benefit from it.

"The double-circle CO-OP Brand Pig Starter Plan adds profit to my overall hog production. It's a two-stage feeding combination that gets my hogs to 50 pounds faster on less feed. It lowers my cost-per-pound of pork produced.
"I start them on CO-OP Pig Starter #25. I get them weaned earlier and at the creep feeder." The extra daily weight gains are easy to see. Everything stacks up right: Palatability, right nutrient and protein levels. High energy feeding at less cost.

Pat on the Back

Wow! Let's hear it for all you area residents making the new rescue unit possible. Within two months you dug down deep in your pockets and came up with over $24,000, backing a project that will help all of us.

And while we're passing out bouquets, let's not forget the Ord firemen. They're the ones who headed this venture. What is more, they did it at a cost considerably less than first estimated.

When the rescue unit fund drive was started last December, they calculated the cost of a new unit at around $32,000. Using a little ingenuity, they came up with a barely used model that would cost considerably less.

The way they went about raising funds — and the way area residents responded — is well worth noting. Firemen first told us what they were going to do, and why, and then showed us how the project would benefit not just one segment of the populace, but everybody.

Officially the unit isn't Ord's yet. Paper shuffling and equipment additions will likely delay Ord's getting the unit for a month or so, according to firemen.

Next time you see a fireman, give him a pat on the back. If you're one of the those persons making the new unit possible, you can give yourself one too.

Something Different

Changing Daily

I think the world is changing faster than we know, in so many more ways than we know.

For example places to live are getting so expensive that I foresee one-family dwellings going out of use. Ground is too valuable, so perhaps we'll get smart enough to stop putting acres of it into lawns to show off, big plats about public buildings, wasted backyards.

I believe the houses will crowd closer and closer, we'll grow to like not only two-family houses but four-family houses, six-family houses. Probably they will be built flush with the street with playgrounds a joint affair at the rear, a safe, community-type place for our children.

Or we may be living in an elevated world, with living places stacked like blocks.

School on the 12th to 15th floor, offices on 30 to 41st, groceries and shops on the 8th, 9th and 10th?

The way our cities strangle along coasts, I predict the eastern seacoast will join and combine into one big community. It will spread from the New England states down along Philadelphia and Atlantic City clear to Key West.

Everyone wants to live with "a view"; everyone wants to live on the water, a stream or an ocean if possible. Everyone wants a boat and plenty of recreational area.

It appears everyone has this leisure-oriented attitude. They don't all want to fish, only many of them want to sail, to scuba dive, to explore the unknown bottoms of our oceans.

From our oceans is where it is predicted we'll be getting our food, all the way from plankton to whale meat — for these billions of people who now starve on every side of us, all these poor that we talk about helping and feeding.

And don't forget the current passion for mountains and skiing.

Now this leisure world is something else.

No longer do we feel that everyone must go to work at 6 a.m. and work until true dark. Our Puritan and Pilgrim ancestors would have no idea how we've strayed, into a land where computers and little buttons do the chores.

Retirement came into general focus when welfare and retirement programs and pensions became topics of our every conversation: should we retire at 65? At 62? At 60? At 50?

To be educated lost its position on a pedestal. To replace it our goal became "to quit work and retire."

All this is pretty hard on us. We don't train ourselves to retire. We don't plan for it. It is at out like the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow... we expect it to be, instantly a colorful, exciting sort of heaven where we'll dawdle.

We'll expend no more energy; we'll achieve nothing. We'll loaf, read, play cards, possibly tennis or golf.

How long will this plastic world continue to be a delight?

Careful Compromise Boosts Compensation Benefits

By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent

The Nebraska Press Association LINCOLN — A compromise worked out carefully in the Business and Labor Committee forestalled extended floor debate before the Legislature recently voted 27-9 preliminary approval of a bill that would increase the maximum workmen's compensation total disability benefit to $180 a week, $25 or more than is currently paid.

In its original form, the bill proposed raising the maximum benefit to $170, but the committee amended that to $180 after Sen. William Brennan of Omaha, president of the state AFL-CIO, said in return he would not push for approval of another bill he sponsored.

For several years Brennan has been trying to sell his colleagues on the idea that the maximum benefit should be the same as the state's average weekly wage, currently $193.

He told the committee, of which he is a member, he would no longer pursue the objective if the committee approved the $180 figure in the other bill, which was sponsored by Sen. John DeCamp of Neligh.

During the legislative debate, DeCamp said the business community had agreed to the $180 figure. That was after Sen. Elroy Hefner of Coleridge tried to revise the figure to $166, which Hefner described as "a reasonable and fair compromise."

Sen. Frank Lewis of Bellevue said approval of Hefner's amendment could prompt Brennan to try again to have his own bill enacted. The Brennan measure, since it would tie the maximum benefit to whatever the average weekly wage was, would take the matter out of the hands of the Legislature where the business community wants it, DeCamp noted.

The Neligh lawmaker said the compromise showed a change in business thinking, because business was ready to accept a "reasonable increase."

Sen. William Nichol of Scottsbluff said a person would have to be earning $270 per week at the time he or she was totally disabled before the worker would qualify for the $180 benefit.

Most other workers would receive two-thirds of their salaries for total disablement.

Longer Trucks a Possibility

The day may not be far off before long trucks roll down Nebraska highways.

The Legislature, after extended debate, recently gave first round approval to a bill that would authorize increasing truck lengths from 60 to 65 feet.

The legislators voted 33-3 acceptance of the measure, but some of them said the states are playing off one Legislature against another in an effort to increase truck sizes.

Sen. Maurice Kremer of Aurora, sponsor of the legislation, said the trucking industry had nothing to do with the introduction of the bill. The request for it came from grain elevator operators who have no rail service and are dependent on trucks to move huge quantities of grain during the busy harvest season, Kremer said.

He added, some truckers in neighboring states, especially Kansas and Colorado, refuse to come into Nebraska because of the truck length limitations.

In effect, the bill allows all semi-trailers to pull 45-foot trailers.

The bill would also increase the allowable gross weight of trucks from 66,000 to 68,000 pounds.

Responding to questions, Kremer said the state Road Department raised no objections to the bill and advised him the longer and slightly heavier trucks would not damage highways and bridges.

More Throne Appointments

Gov. Charles Thone said he has several key positions to fill but recently appointed three more department heads.

Acting Tax Commissioner Fred Herrington of Lincoln agreed to sign on as a permanent appointee, Herrington, 68, described by Thone as a real expert on the property tax, served as tax commissioner during the 1950s.

The governor said the commissioner's expertise will be of invaluable help in the state's efforts to straighten out the property tax "mess."

Thone selected Jerry J. Bolin, assistant director of the Missouri Division of Corrections, to become Nebraska's corrections director, succeeding Joseph Vitek who served during the administration of J. James Egan.

Bolin, who will be paid $33,900, will start his new job April 1.

Thone said Bolin was his choice in a field of 12 candidates from across the United States.

A former president of the Packers National Bank in Omaha, John Knight, was the governor's choice to head the Welfare Department.

Knight's background also includes 10 years in the Methodist ministry, six years as a state senator, and a stint as a Lincoln insurance agent and executive.

Thone also named William E. Mountford of Red Cloud to the state Sunshine Commission, succeeding Mimi Waldbaum of Omaha, who has been serving as Chairman but whose term expired

The governor said the commission is almost overloaded with persons from Lincoln and Omaha and there was a need to have someone from another part of the state as a member.

Drinking Age Debated

Sen. Ralph Kelly of Grand Island is continuing his effort to have the legal drinking age changed from 19 to 21.

This year, Kelly sponsored two bills designed to accomplish his objective. One of the bills calls for a vote on a constitutional amendment to lock the legal age for consuming alcoholic beverages into the state constitution. The other bill would have the Legislature change the age.

A public hearing has been held on the constitutional proposal.

DEARM MISTER EDITOR:
Frank Cernik and Ed Psota drug their sunset law discussion back to the country on Saturday night, but before Ed could rattle off many more places where Government ought to be trimmed Fritz Pape came up with a motion to strike straight at the root of the evil. Why not cut back on them groups that come up with all the laws about cutting back everywhere except where they're standing at the trough, was his question. He said he was talking about state legislatures, but mostly about Congress. The way to cut the size and cost of Government is to cut down on them that decide how big and how much.

This notion got the fellers so stirred up and Ed never did get back to the item they had carried over from the agenda of the week before. In general, the fellers was of a mind that what Fritz had in mind couldn't be done cause it sounded too good. But it was Lumir Cadek that don't have much to say at the sessions, that give the best reason to do it. Lumir allowed that we got a heap of fine and honest folks in Government, and we got some that ain't so fine. If we thin them out, he said,

But at least several members of the Constitutional Revision Committee feel it would be a mistake to place the matter into the constitution, which is quite difficult to amend. It would be preferable, they said, to leave the change, if it is to be made, with the Legislature.

Wants Educational Priorities
Sen. Loran Schmit of Bellwood, the father of 10 children, said he believes they spend too much time away from home because of extracurricular activities.

During a hearing before the Legislature's Education Committee, he suggested school boards be required to place priorities on their academic programs.

He outlined a bill that would require the boards to implement a priority expenditure program that would list and rank educational and educationally related programs.

As amended before being sent to the Legislature, the Schmit bill proposes that each program designated as a priority would have to insure that basic academic education programs are developed and maintained.

Schmit said school districts with limited budgets would more easily decide which programs to cut if there was a priority list subject to review by parents and local taxpayers.

Ord Quiz
Dear Sir:

I know it was unintentional, but the February 15th issue of the Ord Quiz made it appear that the Ord School is hiring a different speech therapist for next year because the current person, Mrs. Elaine Bosworth, is not as "terrific" as she should be. When he used that term, Dr. Gogan was not making comparisons either, as the Quiz did not intend to do. Mrs. Bosworth is a highly competent, dedicated teacher who has done outstanding work with the children of Ord. She is employed by E.S.U. #10, Kearney, with which the Ord School District contracts for its speech therapy services.

The reasons for the change need not be mentioned here, but neither the performance or personal qualities of Mrs. Bosworth had anything to do with the hiring of another speech therapist for the Ord schools.

This letter is not intended as an unfavorable reflection on the incoming speech therapist of the Ord administration's hiring policies. I simply wanted to erase, concerning Mrs. Bosworth's ability, any questions that might have been wrongly conceived by some who read the article.

Yours truly,

— destination —

I listened, carefully, knowing he needed to share his words and thoughts with someone — anyone — who could understand. For his veil of sadness could soon become a death mask of interest to no one.

"My folks were poor... very poor. Dad worked in the mines. It's all he knew."

We sat in the shade beneath the barracks, out of the hot Kentucky sunshine. A six-pack of beer was nestled between us.

"Yanna beer?" he asked. "I'll tell you about it."

"Sure," I said, "sounds good."

He pulled the tab and quickly wiped the dirt on his fatigues and handed me the can. "Tastes good after those calisthenics. That sergeant must be preparing us for duty in the Sahara!"

"He's just gung-ho," I replied. "Trying to impress someone." I took a sip of the cold beer. "Go ahead with your story."

"Well," he began again, "you know I'm from Pennsylvania... the coal fields. Pay wasn't all that bad, but I've got nine brothers and two sisters. I was the youngest."

He took another sip of his beer, then his eyes turned away from me and he started off across the drill area and into the rough and hilly terrain beyond. I knew he was finding it difficult.

"I was born this way," he said, slowly.

"What way?" I asked, knowing of nothing unusual about this man I bumped with through basic training.

"You know... the way I lisp."

I could see the tears forming in his eyes as he continued to stare straight ahead.

"I never gave it thought. One," I quickly replied. "A lot of people lisp."

"But a lot of people aren't born with a cleft palate." His voice was beginning to break. "I was."

"What the hell is a cleft palate?" I asked, not trying to be rude — but not understanding a defect that was no more than words, to me.

"This," Paul said. With that he carefully reached in his mouth, with his thumb and index finger, and removed a plate.

Turning it this way and that, for me to see in the dim light beneath the barracks, he mumbled something and returned the plate to his mouth.

"No roof in my mouth." His eyes searched my face.

"Dad saved for years — everything he had left over. He and Mom went without, so they could get me this plate. It cost them their lifetime savings."

"They wanted to," I assured him, not knowing how to offer understanding — nor what was really worrying him.

"I know. I know they did. But what if something happens to me?"

"Like what?" I asked.

"You know... this is the Army. You never know. If something happens and I don't make it, their life savings went for nothing..." He was looking down, the tears streaking his face and his feet nervously shuffled the dirt.

I reached my arm around his massive shoulders and squeezed him. "Nothing will happen," I tried to assure him. But that night I lay awake, listening to the heavy breathing of the man sleeping in the bunk above me, wondering about our varied backgrounds and common destination.

Now I tell you: love your enemies! (Matthew 5:44 TEV)

Recently I became one of those women returning to the work force after a dozen years working at home. I was assigned as temporary secretary in a residential treatment facility for mentally retarded children. Needless to say, my office personality was a bit rusty and out of adjustment to an ongoing routine. As a newcomer, I had the feeling I was only being tolerated by the other employees. No one really went out of the way to make me feel comfortable.

On day I was returning from my lunch hour fifteen minutes early. I was met by the insistent pleaf face of one of the children inviting me to join them in their activities. As I sat there on the floor modeling clay figures, I was aware of the warmth of spirit and appreciation from the children as they patiently and gleefully waited for their clay snowmen to appear. A sense of belonging came to me through the genuine expressions of support and communication from two outlooking counselors who had been trying in vain to entertain the children.

PRAYER: Father of all, ever remind us that our compassion and love freely given can break down any walls of indifference or hate. In Jesus' name we pray. Amen.

Ask Roger Ecker about the coal trains that cross his property.

Roger Ecker hadn't planned to have a railroad cross his land. But the need for coal to fuel the Gerald Gentleman Station changed all that. Today coal trains shuttle regularly across a portion of the Ecker farm south of the Gentleman Station and Roger says, "We've had no real problems with the coal trains."

Roger also cooperated with NPPD by selling land for use as an ash dump and he says, "It was a fair settlement." Cooperation and understanding between landowners like Roger Ecker and NPPD is essential to serving Nebraska's growing needs for electricity. It's the kind of teamwork that can help insure a dependable supply of power for everyone — at the lowest cost possible.
