Suit Seeks Return Of Sheriff's Car

A law suit filed by Sherman County authorities in County Court here seeks the return of a car used by Valley County Sheriff Martin Sonnenfeld. The suit alleges former Sherman County Sheriff Bill Wheeler sold the car without proper authorization from Sherman County Supervisors.

They seek the return of the 1968 Pontiac. Said Sonnenfeld Friday, "I contend I have legal title to it. I bought the thing under the assumption it was going to be mine. That's all there is to it." He was unsure how Wheeler got the vehicle. The car may have been a former patrol vehicle, Sonnenfeld speculated.

Scotia Chalk Mines Closed

The chalkmines located at the Chalkmine State Wayside Area south of Scotia are closed to public access until further notice, according to Jim Carney, Chief of Recreation and Wayside Areas of the Nebraska Game and Parks Commission. The mines have been closed, says Carney, because of dangerous conditions in the form of crumbling walls and ceilings, which he attributes to the spring thaw. Personnel will be examining the historic mine to determine possible corrective actions to eliminate the dangerous conditions, according to Carney.

K-N Gas Files Rate Increase

Notice of new natural gas rates has been filed by Kansas-Nebraska for residential and commercial users in the 153 communities served at retail by Kansas-Nebraska in Nebraska. In the 121 towns, including Ord, served at retail by K-N, which are located east of McCook, the increase amounts to 5.8c per Mcf, which will add an approximate $7.8 per month to the average homeowner's bill. The new rates will go into effect on May 1, 1979. The new rates reflect increases in the cost of gas purchased by Kansas-Nebraska for use in the Nebraska communities it serves. The increases have resulted from higher prices charged by Kansas-Nebraska producers for gas under new gas purchase contracts, monthly adjustments to prices which producers are allowed to charge in Kansas-Nebraska, and increases in the price Kansas-Nebraska pays to its interstate pipeline suppliers. The Natural Gas Policy Act of 1978, which was passed by the U.S. Congress in November of 1978, is largely responsible for the increases. This Act permits producers both to charge purchasers, such as Kansas-Nebraska, higher prices for gas under new gas purchase contracts and to monthly adjust the price charged purchasers under existing contracts. Kansas-Nebraska has filed notice of new natural gas rates in order to adjust its rates for natural gas service in an amount sufficient only to offset its increased purchased gas costs. The rate adjustment will not increase Kansas-Nebraska's earnings.

City Council Launches System Consolidation

City Dads launched the communications system consolidation during their meeting Monday night in City Hall. They cast a unanimous vote to move radio and other equipment from the local light plant to city offices. Fire warning lights, radios, etc. will be in both City Hall and Police offices at 16th and N in Ord. Plans call for City Hall workers to man the system from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Two other shifts will be added to give 24 hour service to firemen, police, etc. Other options discussed but discarded Monday included: — Using Region 26 headquarters in Taylor as a communications center. — Placing fire phones in the homes of Ord volunteer firemen. The possibility of the county paying for some or all equipment maintenance was discussed. Ord Fire Chief Ivan Sorenson recalled an agreement where the county was to pay equipment maintenance costs. Exact details on how much and when weren't recalled. It was moved by Smith and seconded by Lola that communications equipment be moved from the light plant to city offices. The unanimous vote followed.

Perfectly Clear. City Councilmen reversed their stand on Willie Skala's liquor license application. It had been voted down March 16 because the location of the proposed business wasn't clear. Skala's application listed his business address as South Highway 11.

No Parking. The Council passed an ordinance prohibiting parking from L to G on 20th street. The one-way route is extremely narrow, according to councilmen. Another city ordinance passed amended a 20 acre industrial tract, located near the fair grounds. A Kansas-Nebraska Gas Company representative told councilmen of K-N rate hike of 5.8 cents per thousand cubic feet. Their last rate hike was December of 1978. "Ever reduce the costs", Ord Mayor Richard Rowbal quipped. "Well, as a matter of fact we did," said K-N agent Sam Whiteman. He revealed the company gave a one month rebate in 1976. The present rate increase doesn't hike K-N profits, Whiteman said. It just passes along increased costs. Ord volunteer firemen leased the new rescue unit to the city for a dollar a year. The transaction officially makes the unit municipal property. Hilding Pearson and Rollie Johnson requested the road to the cemetery, north of town, be improved. It has pot holes, dips, etc. the two maintained. Councilman Smith suggested area residents petition into the city. "That," he said, "would take care of it." Former Ord Mayor Gaylord Bolesen stated fixing the road permanently, rather than patching it, would be another solution. City Street Commissioner Emil Penas said he would later work on the road. Lynn Kerchal asked about costs, etc. of the Ord Elks Club, located north of town, hooking onto the city sewer line. He was referred to City Utilities Commissioner Gene Baugh.

Building Permits. Building permits drew fire from councilman Smith Monday night. That came when Commissioner Baugh was reading the permits approved. Among them were permits for a small greenhouse and another for a handicraft and health foods store. Both were located in a residentially zoned area. Said Smith, "It seems like every time you turn around there is a new business in a residential district. Just where," he asked, "do you draw the line?" He griped about permits being issued and construction started before the council learns the permit has been issued. "We've had a hard time getting them (builders) to get permits," Baugh explained. "Well, step on them," Smith urged. Dean Development Company notified the council of a feasibility study in Ord now underway. The study will determine if a planned eight-unit apartment house complex would be practical. The units would have a base rent of $185 a month, according to the Dean Company letter. The units are not HUD housing, according to Dean.

The council gave $100 to the Boy Scouts. Funds will help maintain their state and national flags. These are flown around the courthouse and along the highway on appropriate occasions. A letter from Ord Rotarians thanked the council for its past financial support of the club's circle tour project. Booklets list interesting tours around the Ord area.

Up On The Roof. Doberstein Roofing was given the job of reroofing the old City Hall at 16th and N. Their bid was $4,577. Konklin Roofing bid $2,000 for a reroofing job on the same building. Joe Fajmon was granted a Master Electricians license. Eddie Pesek was issued a permit for five pool tables in Eddie's Tavern.

It is with great pleasure I present this plaque of Veteran of the Year to Emil John. Various other awards were presented at the banquet. Awards ceremonies were followed by a dance.

Ochsner's Job Is Voted Down

The Ord School Board voted not to renew Jim Ochsner's contract Tuesday, during a meeting at Ord High. A unanimous vote capped the 55-minute meeting. According to board president, Merrill Mason, Ochsner will learn why he won't be back for the coming school year on receiving a letter from the board. He has five days after its receipt to request a formal hearing. That must be held within 10 days of Ochsner's request. Ochsner's attorney, Curt Sikyta, cleared up what he called "damaging rumors" prior to the vote. Sikyta revealed pornographic materials were sent Jim at Ord High. According to the lawyer the materials were mailed from California. He didn't know who sent them. "It might have been a joke," he told the board. The unordered materials resulted in what he called "damaging rumors." He then requested and was given a 30-minute executive session with the board. Following that, board members returned to the meeting room. On a motion by Vancura and a second by Powers, the board voted to consider not renewing Ochsner's contract. He has taught instrumental music in the Ord Public Schools since 1977.

Kaminski Lawyers Gain Trial Delay

(From the March 29 Grand Island Independent) — By Peggy Robarcheck Independent Staff Writer LOUP CITY — Sherman County Sheriff Virgil Kaminski's trial on a drunken driving charge was delayed here Wednesday after attorneys for the sheriff filed a motion to suppress evidence in the case, saying it was improperly obtained. A jury trial had been scheduled to begin in Sherman County District Court Wednesday, but the session turned into a hearing on the motion. Kaminski had pleaded not guilty to driving while intoxicated Nov. 22, 1978. Attorneys Paul Mathew and Andrew McMullen contended that Kaminski was arrested improperly, therefore making any evidence obtained as a result of the arrest inadmissible. They would include the blood test administered to Kaminski. The test, according to testimony presented at Wednesday's hearing, showed a blood alcohol content of .14. A blood alcohol content of .10 is the presumption of being under the influence of alcohol under state law. Testimony was heard from the arresting officer David Byrd, a Sherman County deputy at the time of the arrest, and Jerry Sere, Loup City police chief, who was called by Byrd to assist and to witness the arrest. Both men testified that Kaminski was discovered a half mile west of Ashton on Highway 92 slumped over the wheel of his vehicle with the engine running and in gear. They also testified that Kaminski staggered and slurred his speech at the time of the arrest. Judge John Icenogle of Kearney granted Kaminski's attorneys 10 days to prepare a brief stating their reasons for requesting the suppression of evidence. The attorneys also waived their rights to a six-month statute of limitations in the case. According to Judge Icenogle, when the brief is received, a decision will be made on whether to suppress the evidence. If he agrees it should be suppressed, the state may decide to drop its case against Kaminski. But if the evidence is admitted, a new trial date will be set for the sheriff, who took office in January. Kaminski was excused from Wednesday's proceedings because of an appointment in another part of the county.

Communications Group Suggests Going It Alone

Ord City and Fire Department officials have recommended the city go it alone in consolidating emergency radio communications systems. The recommendation came after town officials, a representative of the City Utilities Department and Ord Fire Chief Ivan Sorenson met in City Hall Friday night. Earlier plans had included combining both city and county radio networks, but county officials went no part of it according to Ord City Councilman C. J. Klimek. He, councilman Bob Grove, and Ord Mayor Richard Rowbal represented the city at the meeting Friday. Phone and radio systems for city and fire departments are now handled through City Hall and the Ord municipal light plant. Plans call for consolidating the system at one location. The first step for this, recommended Friday, is to transfer all communication equipment from the light plant to city hall. City Utility office workers in city hall have handled calls from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. recently. Two additional shifts will likely be added, according to Klimek, to give the communication center 24-hour service. The funding for this, and other proposed changes, will come from the Rural Fire Board, the City of Ord, and the City Utilities Department, Klimek told the Quiz. While there may not be a cost savings in the proposed consolidation, there will be better, more efficient service, the councilman maintained.

Special Ed Classes Help Ord Students

(This is the first of a four-part series on Special Education.) Bob can outrun most of his classmates. He is quick with a joke, fun to be around, and always seems to have an answer to whatever problems confront him. But Bob doesn't do so well in school. A slow reader, he is inattentive and his performance varies from day to day. Another 'lazy' kid? A born troublemaker? Doubtful. More likely, Bob has a learning disability. Ord schools are helping Bob, and others like him, achieve their full potential through special education programs. Special Ed, as it is known, is a relative newcomer to the educational field. Ord Special Ed teacher, Phyl Burger, admitted the program is "often misunderstood and hard to understand." Through a series of four articles, The Ord Quiz hopes to clear up myths and misunderstandings on the subject. How It Began A grass-roots effort by parents got Congress to pass legislation in 1975 stating all children had a right to an education. Students handicapped with mental, emotional, or physical problems were often shunted aside, labeled "just plain dumb" or ignored. Not fitting into established school programs, these students were the perennial square pegs in the educational round hole. They didn't fit in. Schooling was often a trying program, a study in frustration, and a thing to be abandoned, or dropped out of, as soon as possible. With legislation signed by then President Gerald Ford in 1975 this began to change. Nebraska's own LB 403 soon followed. It reads, in part, "It shall be the duty of the board of education of every school district to provide or contract for special educational programs for all children who will benefit from such programs." From its inception, Special Ed has been likely the most mandated, regulated, and legislated part of a school's curriculum. A maze of state and federal laws govern everything from pupil-teacher ratios to forms charting a student's progress. Like the legislation governing it, Special Ed has become more complex and specialized. Teachers are now trained to work in a specific part of the program (Continued on page 9)

CAROL'S CORNER

WHO WILL REMEMBER . . . Everybody agreed to it. "She keeps her house so clean, you can eat off the floors." Not one denied it: They recognized she was a wonderful woman. Enough said?

But who in the world wants to eat off the floor? She is a superior housekeeper. And knowing her efficiency she could also be a superior wife and a superior mother.

Or is she so busy keeping the house clean she has neither time or energy to listen to the problems of her children or to praise the accomplishments of her husband?

Maybe . . . just plain maybe, it would be better to concern herself less with the house and become more interested with her family.

After all, a house becomes a home only after a child's bruised knee has been made to feel better with tender hands and time.

Her house can be a home only after her husband's daily cares and woes have been soothed with tenderness and understanding.

What's the good of expert housekeeping when the housekeeper is too busy for her children and husband?

Or, to put it still another way, who in the world is going to remember a house twenty, thirty, or fifty years from now that was so clean you could eat off the floors?

Bartholomew Hopes Returning Boys Will Guide Team

Junior boys coach, Lon Bartholomew is looking to his eighth graders for leadership this season. He is hoping they will help steer the seventh-eighth grade track team to a successful season.

That year will open April 10 at the Ord-Albion duo here. Ord's best hopes lie in the middle distance events, according to Bartholomew, like the 220 dash and the 1320 yard run.

About 10 thinclads are back from last year, according to the coach. He is looking to them for experience as well as leadership.

Just how well they or their teammates can do is still undecided. Bartholomew did reveal however that the boys have looked good in practice sessions. Those drills outside have been few and far between recently. Snow, rain, and cold temperatures have combined to keep the athletes indoors.

Conner Will Face German Grapplers

Doug Conner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Darrell Conner, has been selected as a team member for a dual wrestling match against the German National Team from the Black Forest area in Germany. The German team is here on a cultural visit. The match between the 15 individuals on each team will take place Friday, April 13 at 7:30 p.m. in the Albion Gym. The wrestling will be international freestyle.

The young men were selected from wrestlers in this area who had participated in the state wrestling tournament. Grapplers were picked from Ord, Central City, St. Paul, Albion, and David City.

Doug's opponent will be 15-year-old Ralf Gramer in the 105 pound weight division.

Following the match, the teams will be treated to a buffet supper at the Albion Country Club, courtesy of the Albion Booster Club.

Spring (?) Weather Snarls Track Meets

A case of bad spring weather has snarled Ord High track meets recently. A duo between Ord and Albion boys Monday was rescheduled for Wednesday, April 4. A girls track meet, to be at St. Paul Tuesday, April 3, was called off.

Overcast skies, cool temperatures, and I-don't-know-what-else has fouled up scheduling of these and several other Ord High athletic activities.

Spring has come to Nebraska, but only on the calendar as far as many people can determine.

Dworak Is on Area Listing

Joe Dworak of Ord made Honorable Mention in the Grand Island Independent All Area team listings. The Ord High 5'11" senior also made All Conference C-10 ratings this year.

Dworak pumped in 90 of 232 field goal attempts for 37.8 percent and made 60 of 76 free throws for 78.9 percent. Joe scored 240 points for Ord this season.

Neither Rain Nor Snow Nor Gloom of Night Can Halt Ord High Linksmen

Say what you will about the Ord High golf team. You've got to admit they have the tenacity of a finance company pursuing an overdue loan payment.

At the Lexington Invitational Saturday, Ord linksmen played on to the 11th hole until a sudden snowstorm forced them to quit. Cold weather and winds didn't deter them from starting the round.

"Maybe", coach Fred Williams deadpanned, "next time we could use colored golf balls. Those white ones aren't so easy to see in the snow." The future of that proposal isn't certain - yet. Some suspect that the lines about neither rain nor snow, nor gloom of night could have been written about these and other die-hard golfers.

Invitational officials scored the first nine holes of play for tournament placings. Ord was fifth out of 12 schools entered in the event. The Chants had 178 points.

Individual high shooters were Dan Martin with 40, tying for second. Other top achievers were Barry Witherwax with 44, Kevin Hruza with 46, Rod Ostrander with 48, Mike Blaha with 49.

Paul Anderson of Holdrege was in first place with 39.

Team standings in order of rank are as follows:

First and second Holdrege and Aurora with 168 points; Gothenburg, 169 points; Imperial, 171 points; Ord with 178; Minden with 184; Lexington, 190; McCook, 192; Central City, 193; Cozad, 197; Broken Bow, 211; and Grand Island Northwest, 223.

Ord-Sargent

Ord won the Ord-Sargent duo Friday, opening the 1979 golf season. The Chants had a score of 159 to Sargent's 212.

Top individual shooters for Ord were Barry Witherwax with 36 and Dan Martin with 37. Sargent's pumber one linksman was Todd Peterson with 49.

Coming Next

Coming next is a duo meet at Albion this Friday. Saturday, 13 teams will be in Ord for the annual Invitational.

Chant Girls Last In Central Relays

Overcast skies and cold weather matched the girls track team results at the relay races in Central City March 26. The girls placed last out of a field of seven with 30 points.

Grand Island Northwest was sixth with 39 points.

The girls took third place in three events. On the distance medley relay team were Gloria Wetzel, Diane Dworak, Marcia Mason, and Jean Dubas. Srint medley relay team members were Pam Meese, Deb Meese.

Kathy Hornickel, and Glenda Wetzel. Girls on the mile medley relay team were Pam Meese, Janiece Grim, Robin Upah, and Jean Dubas.

Sonnenfeld Bows to Ware In 'Gloves National Bouts

Ord boxer Dwaine Sonnenfeld lost a decision to Walt Ware in national Golden Gloves competition in Indianapolis last Wednesday. Ware, from Las Vegas, took the fight 59-58, 59-58, and 60-54, in the heavyweight division.

Ware's trip to the Indianapolis bouts was the center of some controversy. He won Golden Gloves district in Omaha, just weeks prior to the national bouts but was billed as coming from Las Vegas.

Omaha officials protested Ware's entry into the fight, Sonnenfeld's coach, Dan Klimek, told the Quiz, but were overruled. Ware fought again after winning the decision Wednesday, but was later disqualified. A Marine, he had to wear headgear according to armed forces regulations. Golden Gloves rules don't allow the use of headgear.

Familiar Name

Morris Frazier, son of Joe Frazier, won the Golden national heavyweight title.

Another winner was Lamont Kirkland. Kirkland reportedly knocked down, knocked out, or won on a TKO, in all but his final fight at Indianapolis. Craig Markwicka, of the Ord-Greeley Boxing Club, has gone all six rounds with Kirkland.

Said Coach Klimek, "This speaks well for Markwicka."

Cindy Koch Clips Last Bastion of Male Chauvinism

Cindy gives Sheldon VanHorn a few finishing touches.

Don't look now, men, but the last bastion of male chauvinism has just been invaded. The town barbershop, once repository of blue jokes, stale cigar smoke, and dog-eared copies of the Policemen's Gazette, has just fallen to the feminine touch. In bygone days, women weren't seen in barbershops. Now they're thinking of running the place. It was Mrs. Cindy Koch who delivered the final blow. After barbing for a year, she started coming to Ord recently. The 23-year-old Grand Island resident is pursuing the tonsorial trade two days a week in a shop belonging to her cousin, Gerald John. Nor is Cindy alone in launching this feminine barbershop invasion. In a Quiz interview Friday, she revealed that out of 15 students in her class at the College of Hair Design in Lincoln, 13 would-be barbers were women. That leaves two lone men survivors of what was once an exclusively male trade.

More women are entering the tonsorial trade, she speculated, because they can acquire a good profession after one year's training. She denied striking any blows for women's liberation by entering the trade. Her reasons for pursuing the profession were self-satisfaction and the desire to earn some money, she maintained. Future plans include taking the required state licensing exam next June and opening a shop, perhaps in Grand Island. But before that last mentioned event happens, she must pass the state exam. One half the test is a hands-on demonstration of required skills. The other half is a written exam over chemistry, anatomy, skin diseases, and other subjects. On passing the state required test, applicants receive the title of Master Barber. Cindy plans to continue her twice-weekly trips to Ord until sometime late this summer. She, her husband Larry, and their five-year-old son, Matthew, live in Grand Island.

Numbers Aren't Everything Junior Girls Coach Contends

Numbers aren't everything. At least that is how junior high girls track coach Angie Batenhorst sees things. Of the 20 girls out for junior high track, only three are returning former seventh or eighth graders. She called her group of 20 "the spunkiest bunch of girls you ever saw" and predicted the team would make a good showing this year. Her charges are "fun to work with," she said, and contended their strength will be in running events. "Actually," she corrected,

Gals Set Records At Aurora Relays

Two school records fell at the Central Ten relays at Aurora March 29. Warm but windy weather set the stage when new Ord High statistics were established in the distance medley relay and the long jump relay.

The second record to fall was in the long jump relay. Deb Meese, Kathy Hornickel, and Kathy Hansen leaped 47' 11" bettering the old school record by 4' 8 1/2".

Despite the new school records, Ord placed fifth in the event. The gal Chents placed second in the two-mile relay. Jean Dubas, Kathy Hansen, Diane Dworak, and Robin Upham did the honors. Gloria Wetzel, who ran two 400s in identical times of 1:05. Cecetka called that "a fine time for this time of year". Jean Dubas, who ran what Cecetka called "a very good 2:35 opening 880 on the second place two-mile relay". Jean also anchored the mile medley and th distance medley.

Robin Upham, a girl Cecetka dubbed "the busiest of our runners". She was in four relay races with her best times of :28.3 in the 220 and 1:05 in the 440. Diane Dworak. The freshman half miler continues to improve, according to the coach, running a 2:47 and a 2:43. Those performances at Aurora were dubbed "her best day yet" by the coach.

Kathy Hornickel, a freshman long jumper and sprinter had a very good 16' long jump and ran on two relays. One placed fifth.

Sue Hill, a sophomore, who ran a 1:09 anchor leg on Ord's sixth place mile relay. This is the first time she has run this distance. Gas Theft - Vandalism in Sheriff's Report

Three stop signs were damaged three and a half miles east of Ord Friday. A vehicle likely knocked the signs down, according to Valley County Sheriff Martin Sonnenfeld. Damage was estimated at $120.

The sheriff received a theft report last week from Rollie Sell. Sometime within the last month someone stole about 50 gallons of aviation gasoline from his airport hanger on one and one-half miles south of Arcadia. The fuel was valued at 84 cents a gallon.

Sheriff Sez Valley County Sheriff Martin Sonnenfeld said, "With the farming season approaching, farmers are urged to safeguard their equipment and tools. Several tool thefts have occurred recently."

These thefts are difficult to solve in many cases because of the time lag between the theft and its discovery. Identification of many items is nearly impossible. The average clearance rate for the crimes is low - about 20 percent.

Proper locks and other safeguards will discourage potential thieves from attempting to take farm property. The harder a theft is, the greater the risk of being discovered. Parking tractors along public roads for extended periods amounts to an invitation for equipment and tool thieves.

County Dads To Seminar

County Board members Rolland Johnson and Richard Peterson attended a two-day seminar in Lincoln this week, sponsored by the Nebraska Association of County Officials and Southeast Community College.

The purpose of the seminar was to provide a forum for county officials to discuss legal topics, budgeting and comprehensive planning. Another purpose of the seminar was to advance a greater understanding of the role of human service agencies operating at the county level.

Entries Wanted For Cook-Off

If being a nationally famous beef cook as well as richer appeals to you, now is the time for paperwork as well as perfecting your recipe. The Nebraska Cow-Belles announced today.

Paperwork includes entering your local Cow-Belle Beef Cook-off or sending your entry to the state contest to see if you can qualify for the National Beef Cook-off. The Nebraska Cow-Belle Cook-off chairman for 1979 said, "The recipe would include perfecting your favorite beef recipe using a beef cut from the round, chuck, rump or fresh brisket."

The 1979 Nebraska Cow-Belle Beef Cook-off will be held June 14 in Kearney during the Nebraska Stock Growers-Nebraska Cow-Belles annual convention. Besides cash and prizes, the winner of the Nebraska state contest wins the chance to represent the state at the National Beef Cook-off Sept. 27-28.

This year, for the first time, the national cook-off will be hosted by a Nebraska city - Omaha. Judges already confirmed for the national contest include nationally known butcher and meats columnist Merle Ellis from San Francisco. Cash prizes totaling over $3,000 will be awarded, including the $1500 first prize.

The initial step for aspiring contest winners is to contact the local Cow-Belle contest chairman in their area if a local contest is to be held. Most of these qualifying contests will be held in April.

If your area is not conducting a local contest, then you must request an entry blank and contest rules from the state contest chairman. Write to: Mrs. Dwight Baltensperger, Box 82, Bushnell, NE 68128. This will enable you to qualify for the state cook-off on a written recipe basis, if there is no actual cook-off in your area. Contestants must be legal residents of Nebraska at least 18 years old and have a non-professional food status.

Dr. Kovarik Attended Seminar Dr. Duane Kovarik attended an optometric seminar March 17 and 18 at Pacific University in Forest Grove, OR. The topics covered in the seminar included retinal pathologies, the visual care of the diabetic and fitting of contact lenses to the patient with astigmatism.

Membership Drive Headed By Co. Sheriff

Valley County Sheriff Martin J. Sonnenfeld announced today that the Nebraska Sheriffs and Peace Officers' Association will conduct a membership campaign across the state in the near future. The broad purpose of this is to increase the awareness of citizens in Nebraska in the work, needs and problems of the Sheriff and his deputies. The program is also expected to generate funds for the Association which will be used in different ways to help the local sheriff and his department.

The campaign will take the form of a letter from the sheriff inviting citizens in his county to become honorary members of the Nebraska Association. Citizens who join the Association will receive membership credentials consisting of a membership card, a Star decal, and two bumper stickers. In addition, all members will receive periodic information from the Association concerning programs undertaken through a quarterly magazine.

Sheriff Sonnenfeld urges everyone to support this membership effort by joining the Nebraska Sheriffs and Peace Officers' Association when the membership letter is received.

Special Ed

and not just "Special Ed" per se.

Should the Special Ed program offered by a school not meet student needs, a district may contract with another for what are called "alternate programs". For example, should Ord Public Schools be unable to meet the needs of deaf students, those pupils would be sent to the Nebraska School for the Deaf, at the school district's expense.

In most cases, however, Special Ed needs are met at the local level. In Ord, a staff of two teachers handle a load of 37 students. A speech pathologist and other specialists are available, if needed.

Teaching services and other programs have made Nebraska "a forerunner and a leader in providing special educational programs", in the words of Phyl Burger.

April 15 Is Deadline for Stock Growers Scholarships

Sons and daughters of Nebraska Stock Grower members are urged to apply for a scholarship by April 15, reported Bob Lute of Ogallala, committee president for the NSGA Research and Education Foundation.

For the ninth consecutive year, the Research and Education Foundation, in conjunction with Lute Ranches of Ord, will award three scholarships to deserving students in June. An additional fourth scholarship will be offered this year from a special donation by Mickey and Betty Stewart. Stewart served as Executive Secretary of the Nebraska Stock Growers Association for 8 1/2 years, before leaving at the first of the year to become the Director of Agriculture for the State of Nebraska. The amount of the four scholarships will be $300 each.

Applicants must maintain at least a C average in the last year of high school or in college and should be sons or daughters of active NSGA members, the chairman said.

Any student enrolled in a college or university offering a bachelor's degree, an approved vocational or trade school, a state accredited junior college, or a nursing school offering an RN degree may apply for the scholarships.

The deadline to apply for these scholarships is quickly approaching, warned Lute. Applications may be obtained from the NSGA Research and Education Foundation, PO Drawer 40, Alliance, NE 69301. The applications must be filled out and returned to the above address by April 15, 1979.

WEATHER

Coming in like a lion, March left in the same manner, leaving behind enough traces of snow to bring the monthly total to 3.65 inches, and the yearly measurement to 4.17 inches for 1979.

Median temperature for March was 33.41 degrees Fahrenheit, just .03 of a degree over last year's March median of 33.38 degrees. Average high for March was 43.5 and the average low was 23.2.

April fooled most forecasters with a snowcover of white through most of the state, adding 1.3 inches of moisture with cool and overcast days early this week. Forecasters are more promising for the coming weekend, predicting a warming trend into the weekend ahead for those eager to get started on their clean-up of winter. Highs were expected to reach the 60's and 70's late this week.

The past week's record:

Energy Costs Forecast Change

NEBRASKA FARM BUREAU FEDERATION
By M. M. Van Kirk, Director of Information

The impending prospects of higher and higher petroleum-based fuel costs forecast some changes in American farming techniques and planning.

The mechanical revolution which has distinguished U.S. farming operations since World War II has been based primarily on relatively inexpensive and plentiful petroleum supplies. It has enabled American farmers to spiral their productivity to the point that one farmer produces on average enough to feed himself and from 56 to 58 other people, the number dependent on how recent the statistical source may be.

Low cost energy encouraged farmers to greater and greater mechanization as a means of coping with inflation and achieving a better income and higher living standard for their families. Larger, more efficient, more expensive equipment encouraged farmers to expand their acreage to justify such capital investments. To quote from a 1978 General Services Administration survey report, "It is difficult to determine whether the new technology was necessitated by increased farm size or whether the farms expanded to fit the available machinery."

A University of Minnesota agricultural economist has described the situation as a "technology treadmill." He says the technology-oriented U.S. society encouraged farmers to adopt new technology, thus reducing costs per unit of land, enabling expansion, increasing the return rate, and starting of the process again. With pressures from other expanding farmers and increasing input prices, farmers found they had to expand simply to maintain their income status.

The technological revolution in the last 30 years has included new petroleum-derived products. Fertilizer use has shown a 500 percent increase in that time. Herbicides and pesticides have made possible continuous one-crop farming and encouraged displacement of such proven practices as crop rotation, use of legumes and organic fertilizer.

In the mid-1960's some agricultural "experts" were depreciating the use of manure and tilling farmers, "It doesn't even pay for hauling it to the field." Higher fertilizer prices have changed that tune and organic farming and standard conservation practices are regaining rightful respectability.

Nebraska's vast expansion of pump irrigation to more than 7 million acres and widespread use of center pivot irrigation systems has been generally dependent on moderately priced energy costs. Now the emphasis is on reducing pumping costs and many farmers are finding that by improved management they can cut their water use as much as 50 percent without loss of yield.

Low cost energy has encouraged some developers to install wells and put poor quality land to intensive crop production, lowering water tables and threatening aquifers and streamflows in watershed areas. Perhaps the costs of energy and fertilizers alone will halt such speculative and destructive practices.

If and when fuel shortages develop, U.S. agriculture must and will get its share because those who allocate available supplies will recognize that people would rather eat than drive. But just as Americans must turn to small cars and one-car families and find ways and means of reducing their gas and electric bills, so farmers will find that they will no longer be able to farm in some of the ways to which they have become accustomed. Conservation and presentation of natural resources has always been good business but energy costs are going to make it more so.

Last Chance to Order Clarke-McNary Trees

The spring tree planting season is rapidly approaching. This year more than three million Clarke-McNary tree and shrub seedlings will be distributed to approximately 3,000 Nebraska landowners beginning about April 1.

Several species of trees and shrubs are still available, but the selection is limited. Eastern red cedar, jack pine and silver maple still can be ordered. Landowners who plan to plant (or replace losses) in their windbreak, woodlot, wildlife or similar planting should order trees immediately.

Clarke-McNary tree and shrub seedlings are sold for $14.75 per hundred plus $2.50 for mailing. Total delivered cost is $17.25 per hundred seedlings. Place orders at the county extension office or Natural Resources District office.

New Regulations in Effect on Using Strychnine for Rodent Control

Strychnine is the only stomach poison registered for use by private individuals for control of pocket gophers and prairie dogs, according to Dr. Robert Timm, Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources Extension Vertebrate Pest Specialist.

New regulations published in the February 9, 1979 Federal Register affect most uses of formulations containing strychnine.

The only non-restricted use of strychnine is that of formulations below 0.5 percent when applied below ground and when a burrow-building machine is not used. For all other uses, strychnine is a restricted-use pesticide, the University of Nebraska-Lincoln staff member said.

Persons wishing to control gophers by using a burrow-building machine to apply strychnine baits must be certified applicators.

Because some manufacturers of strychnine baits are distributing all of their products under a "restricted-use" label, it will be necessary for non-certified persons to obtain certification in order to purchase such products. It is illegal for a non-certified person to obtain a restricted-use pesticide for his own use.

A variety of baits have been used in the state for poisoning pocket gophers. Barley and milo coated with strychnine (0.3-0.5 percent) have been given excellent results in field trials. The specialist recommended 0.5 percent strychnine-coated oats or barley for poisoning prairie dogs, noting that lesser concentrations of strychnine probably would not be as effective. Before applying poisoned bait, pre-bait prairie dogs with clean grain (of the same type as the poisoned bait) for several days to increase bait acceptance.

The best time to poison prairie dogs is during the late-summer or early-winter period, when food supply is low, while the best time to poison pocket gophers is February through April, before reproduction and while gophers are noticeably active.

Additional information on strychnine and rodent control is available through the Valley County Extension Office.

2,4,5-T and Silvex Alternatives

The March 1 "emergency suspension" of silvex and 2,4,5-T removed two valuable herbicides from pasture weed control, brush control on right-of-ways and turf weed control. Suggested replacement herbicides, recommended by University of Nebraska-Lincoln weed scientists include the following:

Turf Weeds — MCPP also known as MCPP can replace silvex for chickweed and clover control. It is already included in several formulations. Trimec is a patented formula that combines 2,4-D with specific amounts of mecoprop and dicamba (Banvel). The Banvel portion is small and has not caused known problems to trees, shrubs and ornamentals. The combination is effective on practically all troublesome turf weeds. 2,4-D — Banvel formulations also control most troublesome turf weeds. Don't overlook handweeding, mowing and vigorous growing turf grass as effective weed control practices.

Pasture Weed Control — Alternative products suggested by EPA to replace silvex and 2,4,5-T include 2,4-D, dicamba (Banvel) and picloram (Tordon). Tordon is not currently labeled for applications in pasture except for a state label on musk thistle. Those rates of 1 1/2 to 2 ounces active ingredient per acre registered for musk thistle would be ineffective on perennials. 2,4-D alone or in combination with Banvel are the only herbicide alternatives. Non-chemical methods include hand chopping and mowing.

Alfalfa — Early Weed Control. The principal troublesome annual weeds in alfalfa are downy brome, pennycress and other mustards. Chem-Hoe, Kerb,

Impact Study Contract Signed

A $15,000 contract between the Department of Economic Development and the consulting firm of Leinke and Miller was signed during a Council of Governments meeting in the Valley County Courthouse Thursday, March 29.

The contract calls for a study of ways of avoiding problems likely to be caused for an expected sudden growth of Constock. That town about 25 miles southwest of Ord is the planned site for a coal-fired electrical generating plant.

Nebraska Public Power District officials plan to start construction in mid-1982. Preliminary site studies are now underway.

According to Rick Noyes COG coordinator, the study will start "as soon as possible." Plans call for it to be completed by L and M by December 31, 1979.

downy brome and other annual grasses. Make the applications when the grass weeds are small for effective control.

Neccor/L and Sinbar also control pennycress and other mustards. Applications should be made when the alfalfa is dormant. Principle is labeled for fall application only. These materials should be used on alfalfa established for one year or more.

Lawn Calendar — April 1-15

Your fertilizer program should include applying iron at 5 pounds per 1000 square feet (ferrous sulfate, sold as Cooper's). Also apply a complete fertilizer 20-5-5 at 5 pounds per 1000 square feet use a fertilizer spreader, fan type for even distribution.

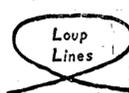

Your recommended spring weed control program for April 1 to 20 should be to spray dandelions with 2,4-D Amine using a low pressure spray. You could also apply granular formulations with or without fertilizer. Avoid dicamba (Banvel) around shrubs.

Lower Loop Natural Resources District

By Richard Beran

It's been some time since we have reviewed the Private Lands Habitat Program administered by the Lower Loop NRD and the Nebraska Game & Parks Commission. Since the inception of the program in July 1977, several changes have been made to broaden the scope and bring more lands under lease.

The program is funded 15% NRD and 75% Game & Parks. You will recall that in 1976 license fees were raised and the $7.50 Habitat Stamp was implemented. These funds are available to those leasing privately owned lands for a specified time period for game production and hunting areas.

Twenty-one of the state's 24 NRDs are cooperating with Game & Parks by their funding and administration of the program. Each NRD participating in the program had the option of picking and choosing the practices that were adaptable to their specific area. Those practices currently being offered are:

Practice I, Establishing Permanent Cover for Wildlife, includes marginal lands that are currently in crop production. Minimum size is 5 acres; maximum size is 25 acres. Contract period is 5 years minimum, 10 years maximum. Payment is $2000 per acre per year annually. Approved cover includes warm season native grass and legumes and trees if desired.

Practice II was omitted and included in Practice IV.

Practice III, Legume Planting with Oats, is a rotational practice using legumes with oats where oats can be harvested the first year. Minimum size is 4 acres; maximum size is 25 acres with a $200 annual payment. Practice III has a two year contract period. Specific legumes are required along with seeding rates and harvest restrictions.

Practice IV includes five sub-practices, a through e. IVA is a wetlands practice with a 3 acre minimum and a 35 acre maximum. It carries a 10 year contract period and returns $15.00 per acre annually where specific wetlands in Class 3, 4, and 5 are contracted for.

IVb includes grasslands and odd areas including timbered areas. It has a 2 acre minimum and a 10 year maximum contract period, and pays $7.50 per acre on an annual basis. IVc includes shelterbelts and living snowfences. Sizes are 2 acre minimum and 35 acre maximum for a 10 year contract period. Payment is $7.50 per acre annually.

IVd provides for cost of materials for fencing on Practices IVA, b, c and e, where exclusion of livestock is necessary. All Practice IVd contracts are 10 year minimum practices with certain requirements for reimbursement for materials if areas that include fencing are removed from the program.

IVE is a new practice added recently to include farm ponds and adjacent odd areas. A minimum of 2 acres is required with a variance in the maximum depending upon the size. The contract period is for 10 years and payment varies between $15.00 and $20.00 per acre annually.

For more details on the Private Lands Habitat Program contact the Lower Loop NRD, P. O. Box 129, Ord, NE 68862, or your local SCS or ASCS office.

Don't Make Waves

Last Wednesday, members of the Ord School Board voted not to renew James Ochsner's teaching contract for the coming school year. That unanimous vote capped a near hour-long meeting at Ord High attended by school officials, their attorney, Ochsner, his attorney, and the public.

We don't know all the facts leading to the board's vote as yet, so we're withholding any final judgment. Yet from knowledge readily available, it appears there may have been a slip between the spirit and the letter of the law.

What piques our curiosity is Ochsner's support from students and parents alike. Both appeared at an earlier meeting voicing their support for the instrumental music teacher. Granted some may rally to a cause on the emotion of a fight, but even if discounting some of Jim's support from both groups, there is still a sizeable group apparently supporting the man.

The second item drawing our interest is Ochsner's work with the Ord High band. Like most laymen unlearned in grace notes and musicology we contend we may not understand the subject, but we know what we like to hear. If the proof be in the pudding (or in this case the ochsner), then the Ord High band has improved a great deal under Ochsner.

As we said earlier, we don't know all the facts on this case. Yet based on Jim's support and improvement of the OHS instrumental sound, we have the nagging suspicion that Ord Public Schools are losing a talented man.

Granted Ochsner isn't a candidate for sainthood, nor are we. It has been said the teacher is something of a boatrocker. Yet while he leaves for weaknesses — real or imagined — found by the school board, there are other teachers less talented and less controversial who hang on year after year, after year.

Ochsner's departure after what sounds like — literally — a successful year and the survival of other teachers maintaining mediocrity paints a sharply contrasting picture. It's almost enough to make a person suspect that the best way to get along is to go along.

In other words, don't make waves.

— W. M.

Something Different

Contrast

We spent a pleasant Monday morning; you'd never guess doing what?

Picking asparagus, that's what. A friend directed us to a 40-acre patch free for the picking. We went to find it, alongside the river, a stone's throw... (if you're throwing stones) from the Mexican border. A Mexican border patrolman assured, yes, there is free asparagus, yes the patch is right here beside you, yes go ahead and pick. Which we did.

As nearly as we could tell the field had been flooded by the river, and the asparagus went wild, it just grew and grew. The field was also full of what I think were Martha Washington geraniums, they were everywhere. Now you figure that out, were both asparagus and geraniums being grown commercially?

No, the field wasn't wet. We stalked about it, wandering at will, acquiring a goodly haul of asparagus on this attractive sunny day.

We were reminded of asparagus picking with Katie and Dean Misko, over near Ericson some place. Or was it beyond Ericson? (We had to step carefully over a few cow pies!) At any rate it was in a sparsely tree-set area, not a forest really, and we did return to Ord with lots of the good green crop. Such elegant eating, and free for the picking.

And to go from the sublime to ridiculous, two days later we drove several hundred miles to the play town of Las Vegas. What a contrast, with hundreds and thousands of dollars flipped about, changing hands speedily with no tears shed by anyone. I sat beside a girl who said she'd lost $2,000 in two days and hated to go home and tell her husband. I sat beside a nice man and his pretty laughing wife who were playing stacks of $25 chips as fast as they could pick them up.

Accidentally I perched on a stool at a blackjack table where I was welcomed warmly as they inoned "These are $100 chips" to which I responded as I flounced out of there "Well good bye!"

In the breakfast room one egg, any style was $1.25... pretty valuable, $15 per dozen says this old Valley countian. Almost any breakfast was $3 something. Pretty rich for my blood.

A strange world, an enjoyable wild, noisy world, with mad traffic, marvellous flower gardens... m-m-m-m, those giant pansies. An extravagant world in every way.

We were glad to return to our quiet little nest, and our asparagus. M-m-m-m, good.

Abortion Bill Is Battled In U.S. District Court

By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

Lincoln — Nebraska's new abortion law, adopted by the Legislature on March 19 and signed by Gov. Charles Thone several days later, is under attack in U.S. District Court at Lincoln.

This year's law was passed in response to questions raised by U.S. District Judge Warren K. Urborn about the constitutionality of the 1977 Nebraska abortion statute.

Urborn late last year issued an injunction, which precluded the state from enforcement of several sections of the 1977 law.

He made the ruling in a lawsuit brought by Women's Services, P.C., an Omaha professional corporation that offers outpatient facilities for abortion, and Dr. G. William Or, an Omaha obstetrician and gynecologist.

Those same two parties brought the latest class action suit claiming the law passed and signed this year violates the constitution, in restricting abortions.

Among their allegations was one that some sections of the new law inflict "grave and irreparable injury upon women and physicians... because they burden, limit and in many instances preclude access to elective and medically necessary pregnancy termination procedure."

Sought in the suit are a temporary restraining order and a permanent injunction against implementation of the law, which is slated to go into effect April 2.

The suit says the new legislation also gravely curtails the traditional and vital privacy of the doctor-patient relationship by having the state attempt to dictate a decision on the abortion of an unmarried woman under the age of 18 cannot be made without the consent of her parents or guardian.

Other claims are that the law interferes with the right of a physician to practice medicine, constitutes enactment into law of one religious belief concerning abortions and the nature of the fetus.

When the abortion bill was being debated in the Legislature, Sen. John DeCamp of Neligh said it was at least "arguably constitutional."

The legislation, which passed easily after final reading, was an attempt to make Nebraska's law as restrictive as possible while addressing objections Urborn had raised to the 1977 law.

The bill included a savings clause, meaning that if one or several sections were found unconstitutional, the rest of it would remain in the statutes.

Defendants in the court action are Thone, Attorney General Paul Douglas and Douglas County Attorney Donald Knowles.

Federal Regulations Are Expensive

A legislative committee was told recently that proposed federal regulations for nursing homes could prove so expensive that nursing home operators would be unable to pay them.

According to James Brown, executive director of the Nebraska Health Care Association, several of the proposed rules would cost Nebraska operators millions of dollars.

Under present regulations, Brown said, a nursing home must have at least one nurse on duty eight hours a day. A proposed change would require the hiring of a second nurse who would work a second shift.

Hiring the additional help could cost the state's more than 200 nursing homes $3 million, Brown said.

Another proposed change would require homes of 100 beds or more to have a dietitian. Current regulations are concerned solely with the sanitary conditions in which food is prepared, not its nutritional value.

Forty-six nursing homes would be affected by the suggested dietitian rule, William Page, director of licensing and standards for the state Health Department, said.

Some of the regulations "just aren't practical," according to Brown. He said one answer might be to increase the number of physician assistants in the state since some of the problems stem from the rural nature of the state.

The state Health Department scheduled hearings on nursing home problems at Omaha, Lincoln and North Platte in order to hear from persons who could be affected by the problems.

Would Lift Prohibition
Deputy sheriffs could engage in political activities under provisions of a bill that has received first-round approval in the Legislature.

The measure would prohibit the deputies from participating in such activities while in uniform and during working hours. The deputies also could access themselves as law enforcement officials.

Sen. David Newell of Omaha said the current law is unfair and discriminatory, but Sen. Ernest Chambers of Omaha said the deputies should be protected from coercion by their superiors and from coercing others. Supporters of the legislation countered by saying Nebraska law prevents such coercion.

Chambers was unsuccessful in getting approval of an amendment to forbid political activities by deputy sheriffs unless they were campaigning for themselves.

The bill, unlike present law, would impose a penalty of up to three months in jail or a $500 fine, or both, for violators of the statute.

Jury Age Lowered

Persons 19 years old could serve on juries if a bill that is being debated by Nebraska's lawmakers wins final approval.

During early discussion of the bill, Sen. Dave Landis of Lincoln noted 20 states allow 18-year-olds to be jurors, and two permit those 19 years old to serve.

Most opponents said they did not believe those below 21 were mature enough to address the serious cases, juries are asked to decide.

Sen. Ralph Kelly of Grand Island, who is leading the attempt to raise the drinking age from 19 to 21, said he opposed lowering the age for jury service solely because of its relationship to his legislation.

The lawmakers rejected an amendment from Sen. Howard Lamb of Anselmo who wanted to authorize employers to deduct from the salary of an employee the amount received for jury service.

An important feature of the measure is that it would make many more persons eligible to be on juries. This would be accomplished by eliminating the many exemptions now in the statutes. The exemptions cover a variety of occupations and professions, including doctors, dentists, embalmers and many others.

An attempt was made to expand the pool from which jurors are selected by including holders

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

I submit that we have set a record in recent weeks. There has been more news about more events than more people don't understand nothing about than ever before. I admit that takes some doing, but you don't have to go farther than Einstein and Egypt to see I'm right.

The great scientist Einstein's birthday was last month some time, and was treated to newspaper and magazine articles and TV specials on about how his mind changed the world. Actual, he just changed the undersiding of the world by them that understands anything he was thinking about for me, gravity makes as much sense as the core of the earth as it does as a rubber blanket with a pool ball rolling across it. And you might as well tell me I can flap my ears and fly as show me where the Easter Bunny is, I don't know I got. But the atomic bomb is real enough, and I'm told Einstein figured that one out.

Meanwhile, President Carter was off trying to beard the Middle East lions in their dens. His summit over here didn't take so he decided to take younger to Begin and Sedat. The best I can figure he got the leaders of Israel and Egypt to set down and talk, but I didn't know what they were talking about till the President got back. When them fellers was doing, Mister Editor, was dividing the loot. The papers said after the President got his peacemaker welcome back home that his trip will cost us $5 billion in aid to the two countries. At last report, they still were yelling of driver licenses. But a majority of the senators turned down that idea.

Jurors are selected from voter registration lists. Several of the legislators said some persons do not register simply to get out of being on the list from which members of juries are chosen.

Down Legislature's Way

With Senator Donald L. Wagner

Earlier in the Legislative Session the Public Health and Welfare Committee voted to indefinitely postpone LB 382, the laetrile bill. This measure, introduced by Senator Venditte, was brought out of committee by a vote of 31 ayes, 12 nays, and 6 not voting. This will allow the bill to be heard and debated on the floor of the Legislature. I supported the motion as I felt the bill merited further discussion and debate.

Since its introduction I have been opposed to LB 435 which is a bill restricting the use of firearms during deer season. Amendments were added somewhat improving the bill, however, I still felt it was not a good bill and is a form of Gun Control. The bill passed on final reading with 29 ayes, 12 nays, and 8 not voting. The bill now goes to the Governor for his approval or disapproval.

LB 201, introduced by the Public Works Committee, relates to irrigation and provides limitations on the spacing of wells. It requires that irrigation wells will not be drilled within 1,000 feet of an industrial well and industrial wells will not be drilled within 1,000 feet of an irrigation or industrial well. The restrictions do not apply to wells owned by the same person. This will eliminate the possibility of interference between wells and protects the owner's water rights.

A bill which would provide for a different means of calculating state aid to schools has been introduced by Senator Vickers. LB 494 uses a formula based on "normal student factors" instead of specified dollar amounts. The intent of this measure is to equalize the funds appropriated to school districts from the School Foundation fund. As an example, Getty firmly she squeezed his hand within her own and sleepily smiled goodbye. Then she turned.

He watched her as she quickly rejoined her husband and they disappeared out the door.

He tightened his grip on the empty tea glass, tensing against the swelling he felt in his throat and chest.

Swallowing hard he relaxed his grip on the glass and looked for a guest check for two glasses of tea — one half-finished, he wondered "is it always 'half-completed'?"

Finally catching the waitress' attention, he asked, "Could I have a ticket?"

"Sure," she said, pulling the pad from her apron pocket. "Something wrong?"

"No... nothing."

Fumbling in his pocket for change, he found a quarter and slipped it under the unused saucer.

Paying the bill, he slipped the change into his pocket and stepped outside. The clouds had parted to the west, showing traces of sunshine though the March wind was still brisk.

"Maybe there won't be a storm," he thought — though the radio warned of a tornado watch effective into the evening. "Wouldn't it be nice," he continued thinking to himself, "if the clouds would part and suddenly, the warmth and sunshine of Spring would overwhelm the world. Why must life be so uncertain... so stormy?"

Will Your Land Be Taken For The North Loup Project? (You Don't Know Because No One Told You!!)

The Bureau of Reclamation, your Twin Loups Reclamation and Irrigation Districts, as well as your politicians who support the project, have not taken the time to inform you the public, as to the location of lands yet to be taken for the project.

More than 19,000 acres will be lost forever to the North Loup project. Fourteen farm and ranch families will lose their homes, present farm and ranch units will be split up by over 374 miles of irrigation canals, and 2600 acres of "potential" mitigation land from Ord to Fullerton has been determined.

Residents and taxpayers of the area have been subjected to over 20 years of blind, taxpayer-financed, promotion of the North Loup Project. With this advertisement, financed through private contributions from area residents, we are attempting to present the other side of the issue - the escalating costs of the project.

The North Loup project's costs are not measured only in terms of tax dollars wasted, but also in terms of good land to be taken from local farmers and ranchers. A portion of those very real costs are indicated below. The following table lists the county, township, range and section from which numbers of acres are tentatively scheduled to be taken.

FROM THE 2600 ACRES DESCRIBED BELOW - 1700 WILL BE TAKEN FOR MITIGATION OF WILDLIFE HABITAT LOSS FROM THE PROJECT!

The table below indicates the location of lands now listed as "potential" mitigation lands for the North Loup Project. The County in which the lands are located is indicated first, then the Township, Range and Section from which acres will be taken are indicated next.

NORTH LOUP LANDS PRESENTLY IDENTIFIED FOR POSSIBLE MITIGATION. ALL THESE LANDS ARE LOCATED ALONG AND ADJACENT TO THE NORTH LOUP RIVER FROM ORD TO FULLERTON.

- HOW MUCH LAND IS INVOLVED WITH THE NORTH LOUP PROJECT?
The authorized project, as endorsed by our 3rd District Congresswoman, and the Twin Loups Reclamation District, will provide irrigation to 53,000 acres of land, most of which is presently being irrigated by private means. A total of 20,700 acres will be taken for the reservoirs, canals and mitigation lands. All of these acres are privately owned.
- WHO IS TAKING THIS LAND?
The Bureau of Reclamation.
- WHY ARE THE LANDS LISTED ABOVE BEING TAKEN?
The lands listed above are mitigation lands, intended to compensate for damage caused to wildlife habitat through project construction.
- WON'T THE PROJECT THEN AT LEAST BE GOOD FOR WILDLIFE?
No. The irrigation ditches would be potential death traps for wildlife and livestock alike. The Calamus Reservoir would destroy thousands of acres of the best wildlife habitat in the area. The Blue Heron rookery in Loup County would be destroyed.
- WILL I BE ABLE TO USE THE MITIGATION LANDS FOR FARMING OR GRAZING?
No. The lands will be fenced and no farming will be permitted.
- IF MY LAND IS LISTED ABOVE, HOW WILL THE ACQUISITION PROCESS WORK?
The government will send an appraiser out to determine the value of your land. A government negotiator will then tell you what you feel your land is worth, and will offer you that price. If you decide to accept that price and sell, the transaction is then closed.

- WHAT IF I DON'T WANT TO SELL?
The government will then condemn your land and you will be forced to sell.
- BUT IF THE GOVERNMENT'S OFFER IS LOW, DOESN'T CONDEMNATION PROVIDE A JURY TRIAL AND THE CHANCE TO RECEIVE A FAIR PRICE FOR MY LAND?
Condemnation does provide for a jury trial. If the government offer for your land was low, the jury will usually raise it to a fair level. The problem is that you won't get to keep the full award the jury gives you. Your court costs, including private appraisal and attorney fees must be paid out of your own pocket. Your award from the jury may be fair, but the net award you keep after paying your costs will likely be below the fair value of your land. We don't think this situation is fair, and we believe federal laws concerning condemnation should be changed to provide governmental payment of attorney fees, if the jury determines the government's offer for your land was too low.
- WHY HASN'T MORE INFORMATION BEEN PRESENTED ON THIS SITUATION BEFORE?
Because the Twin Loup Reclamation and Irrigation Districts have become little more than outright agents for the federal government, and are doing their best to ignore, or down play the problems of the project.

- WHOSE MONEY IS PAYING FOR THE NORTH LOUP PROJECT?
Yours. Your federal tax dollars, through money given to the Bureau of Reclamation pays for the project that may take your land. Your tax dollars through the money given to the Twin Loups Reclamation District, pays for promoting the project that may take your land.
- WOULDN'T IT BE BETTER TO WAIT WITH CONSTRUCTION UNTIL WE SEE THE FULL AND FINAL PROPOSAL, AND THEN DECIDE IF WE STILL WANT THE PROJECT?
We certainly think so. The politicians supporting the project know, however, that if everyone will eventually lose land to the North Loup project, will not receive promised water, and will face increased taxation, knew so today, they would face much more opposition. Promoters would prefer to keep landowners and taxpayers in the dark, so you won't know what you might lose until it's too late.
- WHERE CAN I FIND OUT MORE INFORMATION ON THE NORTH LOUP PROJECT?
Farmers and Ranchers to Save the Loup and Calamus, Inc. will be sponsoring informational meetings with speakers from the Fish and Wildlife Service and the Bureau of Reclamation in Fullerton, April 27 at 8:00 P.M., in Scotia, April 28 at 1:00 P.M., in Ord, April 28, at 8:00 P.M., and in Elba, April 29, at 1:00 P.M., or you may write Farmers and Ranchers to Save the Loup and Calamus, Inc. Better yet, join by sending in the membership coupon included below. We operate solely on donations and need your help to remain active in presenting to you, the people, the truth about the North Loup Project.

Strip back the husks on a few ears of Funk's G-Hybrids. You'll see some classy looking ears. Filled with uniform rows of kernels. Filled all the way out to the tips with deep, well-formed kernels. And this fall you'll be looking at some mighty dry ears, too. That's one reason so many growers stay with Funk's. Of course, Funk's being the World Yield Leader could have a lot to do with it, too. So look into our ears this year. You'll like what you see.
FUNK'S HYBRID
The limitation of water and nutrients on each ear of Funk's G-Hybrids is a part of the terms of sale thereof.

In Memoriam

In memory of my husband Irvin (Red) Merrill who passed away one year ago April 4th.

This date recalls sad memories. Seems twice as long to me. Only God knows how much I miss him.

He meant so much to me. Though his smile is gone forever. And his face I cannot touch, I still have the sweetest memories. Of him I love so much.

READ PROVERBS 15:1-9

"A soft answer turneth away wrath: but grievous words stir up anger." (Proverbs 15:1)

One day as we were motoring to a distant church, we stopped when we saw an accident. The driver was having an argument over who was responsible. A reddening face showed one man's increasing anger. He began to realize that he was wrong but was unwilling to admit it. His arguments rose to floods of abuse.

His bitterness gradually began to vanish when the other man said to him, "I am sorry your automobile is so badly damaged."

Having heard all the conversation, I was amazed at the unexpected turn of events. I asked the speaker to explain. He replied, "I am a Christian, and I believe that a soft answer turns away wrath."

I have valued the lesson I learned that day, although practicing it has been difficult at times. It is so easy to get angry and to return hard words for hard words. But trying to see the other person's point of view and speaking a soft word is always best.

PRAYER: Father, we thank Thee for what we learn when persons we meet share their faith, strangers as well as friends. We pray in Jesus' name. Amen.

Quiz Gets Flack At Board Meeting

The Ord Quiz was the center of controversy at the regular Ord School Board meeting Monday night. During the Monday night session, board member Ed Vancura lashed out at what he called the negative aspect of the paper.

According to Vancura, all teachers interviewed by board members recently, thought the newspaper was negative in various ways.

Quiz editor, Wade Misko countered by pointing out the "negative" publication had articles on Ord High students winning FFA honors recently, and the first of a four-part series on special education along with other items.

Ord attorney, Curt Sikyta said sometimes teachers are afraid to talk because of reaction from the school's administration. He contended people feel threatened.

Vancura replied that administration officials were not present during the teacher interviews.

J. H. Schroeder asked why there were fewer board meeting agendas when people attend meetings. Dr. Bill Gogan, Ord High superintendent, said agendas are always available for public inspection at Ord High. Others, he said, are available when the board meets.

Gaylord Bolesen next addressed the board. He told of a letter from Ord High principal, Bob Shannon. In the letter, Bolesen said, Shannon stated Ord Public Schools ranked with those in the Omaha Public Schools System.

Bolesen then handed board members an article saying eleven grade history books were written on an eighth grade level, to ease Omaha students' reading.

Bolesen further stated that above the national average on scholastic tests. However, scores by Omaha students, according to Bolesen, fell below the Nebraska average.

"If we rank with Omaha", Bolesen asked, "could we be in that lower group?"

Ord Schools Superintendent, Dr. Bill Gogan assured those present that Ord Public Schools students have done well on scholastic tests and in schools.

Bolesen then mentioned an incident in which a student lost some teeth. According to Bolesen, a knife was pulled in another incident.

The system "has gone backwards", according to Bolesen. He wondered aloud why these incidents weren't reported to the police.

Ord attorney, Curt Sikyta mentioned the recent vandalism of a teacher's car and commented, "somewhere there is a problem."

He further stated the minutes of a recent school board session didn't accurately reflect what happened. The legal minutes show 90 people attended the meeting, Sikyta told the board, but they don't say on what subject.

Board member Karen Zurbaba said the board doesn't always know why everyone is here. "Should we have asked all 90 what they wanted?" she said.

Board member Dworak asked Sikyta if all persons appearing before the board should have a written statement. The lawyer replied that wouldn't be necessary, but that the minutes should reflect what happened in a meeting.

Bolesen suggested a head count at the last meeting might have been appropriate, defining how many were for or against the subject discussed—Jim Ochsner's contract renewal.

The Comstock Community Club, sponsors of a planned July 4 horse show for a 4-H Club, were given permission to use the old football field in that town for a practice field.

Court Room

Leonard Karamar pledged to "back you guys (board members) all I can." He contended he thought he was in district court when walking into the hearing held earlier. He contended the board meeting was just a nit-picking session.

Four new teachers were hired for the coming school term. They will replace departing faculty members.

Karamar contended Ord High was not the only school where there are fights and other problems. He said school authorities are "doing a tremendous job", and urged them to "keep it up".

Bolesen said he didn't attend the meeting just to point out problems, but contended we need to ask how Ord Public Schools compare to those of a similar size. "If I offended anyone I'm sorry", he said. After hesitating a moment he added, "Well, no I'm not. But until I get answers I'll be back stomping on some more toes."

Jewell Buoy asked what percent of time would a newly hired physical education teacher and social studies instructor spend in the classroom. Dr. Gogan told he would teach six classes; two of them social studies and four of physical education.

Buoy suggested the emphasis should be the other way around.

Phyl Burger

Special education teacher, Phyl Burger outlined during the hearing "a very exciting step", having a psychologist from Kearney State College available to Ord Public Schools.

He or she will work with teachers and students in classes, she said.

She also revealed the possibility of having a work-study program for handicapped students. The program, if approved, would give both classroom and job training.

Dr. Gogan suggested the board approve this at a later date.

Teacher resignations from Al Cudly and Jim Sajevic were accepted. Cudly, in his letter, said he was leaving Ord High with "mixed feelings", and had enjoyed his employment at Ord High the last two years. He called the school administration "very supportive."

Jim Sajevic was also complimentary in his resignation letter. He will be going to Kearney Public Schools next year.

Other items handled by the board included:

- The school calendar for the coming year.
- A graduate hours pay scale schedule.
- The superintendent's report.
- Deciding not to buy firearms for phys. ed. classes.

Announcement On Schedule - Bus Line Will Start

For the third year in a row, the Central Nebraska Community Services office has announced bus service for central Nebraska will soon become a reality. A press release from the government subsidized agency in Loup City said two new buses have arrived. CN staff members are busy meeting all related requirements, the release said.

The initial grant authorized by the Federal Highway Administration limited the amount available for operating expenses. As a result CNCS has made application through the Nebraska Department of Labor for bus drivers and a reply to the application will hopefully arrive by mid-April.

CNCS is hopeful that round-trip service from Sargent and Broken Bow to Grand Island can begin on May 7. Jim Crosland, CNCS director, pointed out that the beginning date is subject to the hiring of qualified drivers, approval by the Insurance Company and the granting of the license by the Nebraska Public Service Commission. He added, however, that all clearances are given until all clearances are given and regulations are complied with.

Crosland said that the long delay in getting the buses was a result of various strikes which affected manufacturing and transportation in Canada where they were built. He said a Congressman Virginia Smith became involved at the request of CNCS and helped speed up the eventual delivery.

The CNCS system will be open to the public and the charge for riding will be based on a schedule approved by the Nebraska Public Service Commission. More information will be released soon.

Unscheduled Fight Puts Ord High Boy In Local Hospital

What likely was an unscheduled school activity at Ord High sent one student to the Valley County Hospital with some teeth missing last Wednesday. Valley County Sheriff Martin Sonnenfeld said David Burton, 17, suffered a mouth and nose injuries when the boxing bout ended.

That started, he said, with a name calling and shoving scuffle around 11:20 in the school gym. Threatening gestures were likely made with a two-by-four, according to the sheriff.

When the fight ended, Burton was on the floor unconscious. He was released from the local hospital Thursday afternoon.

A group of five or six boys were present when the fight started, the sheriff said. When it ended, he said, several unidentified males were reportedly present.

Ord Chamber Hears Health Problems

Ord Chamber members heard health care problems and potential solutions during the luncheon in Ord Thursday. Iva Jo McKinney, Mary Reid, and Ron Edzards told of the problems and progress their jobs entail.

Edzards, Valley County Hospital Administrator, told of contradictory federal regulations. While demanding health care costs be held to a level of several annual increase the government also changes hiking hospital operating costs, he said.

According to Edzards a government mandated accounting procedure change would cost $3,000 to $10,000. Government regulations may force Valley County Hospital to get a new or newer model x-ray machine. Edzards told the Chamber, further increasing the budget at the Valley County Hospital.

The administrator speculated these food changes could be a prelude to a national health insurance plan.

The hospital is contemplating getting a fetal heart monitor and has converted a formerly unused room into a bacteriological lab, Chamber members learned.

Mental Health

Mental Health counselors Iva Jo McKinney and Mary Reid told their duties and functions. According to McKinney, she is practicing what she called "preventive medicine". The mind is closely linked to physical and mental illness, she contended.

Operating under the Loup Valley Mental Health Center in Loup City, McKinney has established offices in Ord, Burwell, Greeley, and Loup City. Counseling referrals come from many sources, she said, including the clergy and various government officials.

Best known for counseling McKinney said counseling makes up only 50 percent of her job. The other half is concerned with education. Film strips, scheduled activities, and appearances before groups are important parts of this second phase, she maintained.

Ed Board Votes Not To Renew Ochsner Contract

After a marathon session Monday, Ord School Board members voted unanimously to not renew Jim Ochsner's contract for the 1979-80 school year. That decision came after six hours of testimony and a 40-minute executive board session, at Ord High.

Ochsner's contract will not be renewed because board members have substantial evidence, in their words that:

Ochsner wouldn't follow administrative direction.

Ochsner slapped a student.

Ochsner's performance record was substantially below that of other teachers in the Ord Public Schools system.

During the six hour plus hearing, board members heard Ochsner's lawyer, Curt Sikyta, and attorney Edwin C. Perry, for the board, argue Ochsner's case. Perry sought to prove Ochsner wouldn't cooperate with school authorities, wouldn't communicate with parents, and had a substandard performance record.

Ochsner's attorney contended the teacher had sound professional capabilities, often went out of his way to talk with parents, and did follow administrative direction.

Bruce Wright, a Lincoln attorney, presided during the hearing. It was his job to counsel the board on the law and to rule what evidence was admissible.

That hearing opened with Wright polling board members with these questions:

- Can you act impartially on the decision at hand?
- Can you base your ultimate decision solely on the evidence presented here?

Board members replied yes to both queries.

Perry's attorney for the School Board, called Ord High Principal Bob Shannon to the stand. Shannon testified that Ochsner:

- Had a low evaluation score, in the bottom 15 percent of all teachers in the Ord Public School system.
- Was below average in flexibility, a willingness to change.
- Was reluctant to communicate with parents. In this category he mentioned a parent-teacher conference he called "distasteful" and according to Shannon, was between Ochsner and another parent.
- Slapped or struck a student. This reportedly happened on a school activities bus trip, March 9.

Under cross-examination by Sikyta, Shannon said all teachers were aware of the evaluation process and how it worked. They got to see their records, he stated. He estimated Ochsner saw his sometime in early January. Shannon admitted Ochsner had a high rating mark in an area called "Cognitive Domain." Ochsner was reportedly credited with having "very idealistic and admirable goals."

The mentioned parent-teacher conference was between Jewell Buoy and Ochsner, according to Shannon. He stated that was the only conference at which teachers reported to him, "boy you should helping her is Mary Reed, a former nurse in a psychiatric hospital ward. Mary arrived in Ord last September. Her pet peeve, so she said, is people expecting her to come up with a magical, instantaneous "cure" for their problems.

A mock counseling between McKinney and Reed, closed the program.

In Other

In other Chamber business, the importance of a town airport was stressed. Wayne Anderson, from the Nebraska Department of Aeronautics, said over 50 percent of major American companies own their own planes. With industry leaving major cities, airports in less crowded sections of the country are becoming more important, he said.

According to Anderson, airports at both Omaha and Lincoln have no empty hangar space. "If you really want to see what aviation does for industry, go to the commercial aviation section of Lincoln's field," he said. That and other towns growing are relying more and more on their local airport, so he said.

He urged those planning for the airshow in Ord to, in his words, "think of the future." Suggested air show expansion plans included contacting aviation suppliers and aeronautical showmen.

Carson Rogers, National Pork Producers Executive and Meat Board member told of a conference phone call between organization officials and Carol Tucker Foreman, under Secretary of Agriculture. That took place about two weeks ago.

He outlined an updated nutrition study involving pork. Saturday night. The last similar study was done 25 to 30 years ago, he stated.

Other future projects, outlined by Rogers, included getting more pork served in so-called fast food outlets.

Banquet goers took an armchair tour of Europe when Mr. and Mrs. Frank Andresen showed their slides taken during a have been there."

Asked who was yelling at who, Shannon said he didn't know. His account of the meeting was second-hand.

Turning to the student needs in the evaluation Sikyta asked Shannon how many kids dropped out of band. Shannon estimated eight or nine. Asked why, Shannon suggested asking Ord High Guidance Counselor Eldon Buoy.

Asked if any students had been kicked out of band, Shannon replied none had.

March 9

The slapping incident on the school bus was discussed. Sikyta asked Shannon if Ochsner knew the school policy of corporal punishment. Shannon replied the school faculty had been told authorities didn't approve of corporal punishment.

"Is band a required class at Ord," Sikyta asked. Shannon said it wasn't and that it was open to students who wanted to try and learn.

Under questioning by Sikyta, Shannon testified Ochsner was rated in the bottom 15 percent of the evaluation scale. Sikyta asked how much is 15 percent of the 28 faculty members. Shannon didn't know.

"Well, maybe two or three," Sikyta suggested. He then asked which other two teachers were being released.

Shannon's answer was inaudible.

Who, Sikyta asked, told Ochsner he wasn't going to be rehired. Shannon replied he wasn't sure. Shannon further testified that:

- Prior to the March 2 closed-door school board meeting, he told Ochsner the board wanted to meet with him. Purpose of the meeting was a wrap-up of teacher evaluations started earlier.
- He told Ochsner he wanted him in the school if he could iron out certain differences.
- Has this estimation changed? Sikyta asked. The slapping incident was a wrang-up of teacher evaluations started earlier.

Recess

After a 15 minute break, Dr. William Gogan, Ord Public Schools Superintendent, was called to the stand. Questioned by Perry, he testified that Ochsner's teaching evaluation was below that of most other teachers because he was:

- Unwilling to accept administrative direction.
- Inflexible.
- Uncooperative.

Dr. Gogan said he had visited with Jim and told him he likely wouldn't recommend Ochsner's contract being renewed.

Cross-examined by Sikyta, Dr. Gogan gave Ochsner's past employment record. At Ord High from 1968-71, Ochsner was rehired in 1977. This was done, according to Dr. Gogan, because Jim had told him he had matured a great deal in the interim.

Goals

When hired in 1977 Ochsner and

Dr. Gogan discussed goals. These included an 80-member band and more participation in the summer band program, Gogan said.

Dr. Gogan then related the Ochsner-Dayle Johnson conflict. Johnson, in charge of the Ord High vocal music department, and Ochsner reportedly didn't get along. This resulted in a planned musical being dropped.

Sikyta then asked if the same criteria for evaluating teachers might apply to administrative personnel. Dr. Gogan replied they could, but added, "we've got to have leaders."

Sikyta's questioning about the March 2 meeting drew sharp objection from Perry. That came when Sikyta said "The man's (Ochsner's) rights are being violated every time you turn around."

Further questioning by Sikyta produced a request from the bench that he speed things up.

Parents-Students

Former students and parents of past and present band members testified to Ochsner's accomplishments and availability for conferences. These included Luetta Hurlburt, Jean Moudry, Dee Meese, Marlis Christensen, Cindy Anderson, and Gaylord Bolesen. All were complimentary.

Rod Adams, Ord High art teacher, testified students use of profanity in the classroom was common. He admitted grabbing students and told of cuffing one student on the back of the head on overhearing a coarse remark in his class.

"I just hope everyone realizes the pressures a teacher is under," Adams said. "You've got to be a baby-sitter and counselor."

Students, he contended, just dare you to violate their rights.

Adams said he is leaving teaching at the close of the present school year, and that corporal punishment had been discussed with him. School authorities, according to Adams, told him they couldn't support him if the cuffing incident resulted in legal action.

Sikyta next submitted an affidavit by Jerilyn Peters, telling what happened in the March 9 school bus incident.

That drew an objection from Perry, overruled by Wright.

Ochsner

Sikyta next called Jim Ochsner to the stand. He said he was aware band member numbers are declining. When coming to Ord High in 1977, he and Dr. Bill Gogan discussed this along with other matters, Ochsner testified.

Goals the two discussed then included a 90-member band. According to Ochsner, the superintendent had said band numbers might have to drop a bit to get what Ochsner called "the right kind of people."

Ochsner had projections, when starting, calling for an 80-member or better band in four to five years, he told the court.

When he came here, he said, there were nine sixth graders in instrumental music. Now there are 19, according to the witness.

Sending a questionnaire to band members and parents, Ochsner said, he'd give them input into developing regulations for that organization. Guidelines by the administration were not on paper, according to Ochsner.

He termed himself "... a fairly successful band director, and maintained his professional input hadn't been considered by the administration."

Shannon, so Ochsner said, had told him once he was "moving in the right direction" when handling a student situation. Other praise had come from Ord Elementary Principal, Mike Johnson, the witness told those present.

Please Attend

Ochsner then recalled Shannon asking him to attend the March 2 school board meeting. The instrumental teacher asked Shannon why, he said on the witness stand, and Shannon countered by asking Ochsner if he had upset any parents.

Ochsner was, he said, told the meeting wasn't a hearing. Shannon, Ochsner testified, told him "As long as I'm principal, I want you to stay."

A memo from Dr. Gogan later scheduled a meeting between Ochsner, Shannon and Dr. Gogan. At that session, Ochsner said, he was told his contract likely wasn't going to be renewed.

Dr. Gogan, the witness said, then asked him if he knew what to do. Ochsner said he did, and left the meeting.

Official Charges Against Ochsner

(In a letter dated March 29 Ochsner learned the board was considering not renewing his contract for the 1979-80 school year for the following reasons):

1. His lack of ability to develop a desire among students to participate in the varsity band as evidenced by a significant decline during his employment by the district in the number of students participating in the varsity band.
2. An evidenced unwillingness to provide adequate conference time with parents of students.
3. An unwillingness and apparent inability to accept administrative direction and to cooperate with his supervisors.
4. Use of profane and other inappropriate language towards students on or about March 9, 1979.
5. The slapping of a student and using physical force with students on March 9, 1979.
6. The standard of his performance of his duties was below the standard of performance required of other teachers in the Ord High School.

Just Established Johnson Fund Will Help "Return The Favor"

Laverne Johnson

"What Laverne Johnson called a "good way to help people" will help Valley County students get a higher education. Johnson, a long-time Valley County resident, has established a student scholarship and loan fund.

Under terms of the Johnson Student Scholarship and Loan Foundation, students from Valley County wanting to further their education may apply for low-interest loans or scholarships. Each student may receive a maximum of $1,200 in financial aid.

Primary purpose for the Johnson Student Scholarship and Loan Foundation is to provide loans for students who are in financial need and who have demonstrated ability to benefit from advanced schooling. Loans will be supplied to a limited number of selected students each year who are Valley County residents for tuition and books at any college, university, school, or trade school located in the state of Nebraska.

Scholarships are available for theological students who are Valley County residents. Those theology students entering the seminary may use the scholarship at any seminary in the continental United States.

Recipients will be selected by a committee appointed by a Board of Directors of the foundation. The committee will name those recipients by the first of May of each year.

Those interested in applying for a loan should contact their school guidance counselors. Only theological students are eligible for scholarships.

"I started thinking about this two years ago", Johnson told the board Friday. After a year of setting up the fund and after a year's work gaining approval by the Bureau of Internal Revenue, the fund was launched late last month.

"I'm out of it now", the beneficiary said. A committee of three persons will make the final decisions on fund recipients. That committee currently consists of Eldon Buoy, Mrs. Harold Garnick and Duane Carson.

"I figured it was a good way to help people", Johnson said. "Valley County has been good to me."

He first came here in 1933 from Cherry County. "Even went to school here some time before that", Johnson added.

Farming right to ten miles southwest of Ord, he later eased into cattle feeding. "Thing", he modestly admitted, "have gone well."

"I've always had a pretty strong thread to education", the long-time Valley County resident recalled. His hope of going to college were dimmed by the dry 1930s.

"But now", he added, "I've got a chance to help someone help themselves." That chance is geared toward the student earning part of his way himself, Johnson pointed out. That's why the fund has a $1,200 per student limit.

"Valley County has been good to me", he said. "I just want to return the favor."

Assessment Protest Meeting Scheduled

Assessment protests will be the topic during a Tuesday meeting in the Valley County Courthouse April 17. Supervisors will meet with Midwest Appraisal officials Tuesday morning and hear protests that afternoon, according to County Clerk Thelma Dulitz.

Golf Cart Dumped in Creek

A golf cart belonging to Ken Clement was found dumped in the creek on the municipal golf course in northwest Ord Monday morning. Course attendants locked up the cart storage shed around 5:15 p.m. Sunday. At that time the cart was in the shed.

Returning early Monday morning, they found the cart dumped in the creek.

This is just one of many acts of vandalism on the course, golf attendants told the Quiz. Cars have been removed from the locked shed and found abandoned on the local course.

What mystifies attendants is the fact that the shed has been locked when many of these acts occurred. They suspect those responsible have a key to the newly constructed storage shed, located near the club house.

SYMBOLS OF EASTER . . . Though the rituals of Easter are rooted in religious traditions, many of the holiday symbols began with ancient customs. The word Easter itself stems from Eostre, the goddess of spring.

The spring season was celebrated by the ancient Egyptians who used the egg symbol as a sign of renewed life and during the spring festival they colored the eggs just as children do today. The Easter rabbit also stems from ancient Egyptians. Since the rabbit prefers night to look for its food, the people of those times related the rabbit to the moon.

Another symbol of Easter is the lamb which concerns the first Passover.

With the advent of spring and looking toward a renewed life, the ancients believed misfortune or bad luck would come to those not wearing some new item of adornment. Eastern, then, is a time for new clothing . . . particularly a new hat.

And there must be flowers, for the Puritans decorated their churches with many flowers, particularly lilies.

So, we have continued to build as we observe the religious and historical customs of the past and we look to a new renewed life with the coming of spring — and Eastertime.

For Easter is the promise of everlasting understanding and undying love.

Ord Sixth At B. Bow Meet Coach Gung Ho Over Future

Ord girls shared seventh and eighth place honors with Lexington at the Broken Bow Invitational track meet Saturday. Both teams had 20 points.

Ord track coach, Richard Cecetka, was all smiles during a Quiz interview Monday. Considering the potential of the team, he has reason to be happy. His girls are turning in some fairly impressive results, and the season has just begun.

Not only that, but many of his present and potential high-achievers are not seniors. This means they'll be back at least another year.

Like who? Jean Dubas, an Ord High junior. She was first in the mile run with a time of 5:46.8 and sixth in the 800 yard run. In that last event, she had a time of 2:38.1.

Robin Upham is another underclassman showing potential, according to her coach. Snaring second in the 400 with a time of 1:01.4 she also anchored Ord's mile relay squad. Her performance Saturday boosted the gal Chants from a likely fifth or sixth place finish in the race to a third place ending, her coach told the Quiz. A junior, she will be back next year.

And if that wasn't enough to satisfy any track team pilot, Cecetka has Deb Meese and Kathy Hornickel, both ninth graders, to groom for future events. Although low in seniority, the girls are high on results and future potential. Saturday, Deb was sixth in the long jump with a leap of 15'7".

Kathy was one-fourth of a relay team that ran their fastest time of the year Saturday. Kathy, along with Sue Hill, Sue Sevensen, and Shelly Norman finished the 400 relay course in 55.9.

Diane Dworak is another promising young miss. A freshman, she got the two-mile relay team off to a good start Saturday, according to her coach.

Said Cecetka, "Diane Dworak continues to improve her 880 time every week. It'll only be a matter of time before she is scoring important points for us."

And the list goes on and on and on.

Not only does Cecetka have good future prospects, but his scoring in the here and now is another pleasing item. "Now Grand Island Northwest finished the competition with 43 points in second place," Cecetka explained. "But one of their girls scored 38 of those 43 points."

Cecetka indicated that outstanding scorers are welcome, but often teams are built around them alone.

"Ord's scoring in more events than last year," the coach pointed out, "which is good." He spoke enthusiastically about "getting more people out who are quality performers."

According to the Ord coach, it is only a matter of time until Ord girls start ranking in the top at track meets. "An estimated 10 to 15 girls will be there, according to Cecetka."

Team Standings at the Broken Bow meet were: O'Neill, 82; Grand Island Northwest, 45; Gothenburg, 41; Broken Bow, 39; Holdrege, 38; Minden, 32; Ord and Lexington, both, 30; Kearney Catholic, 28; Cozad, 27; Arnold, 22; Sargent, 12; Anselmo-Merna, 8; and Dunning Sandhills, 2.

Quarterback Quinn Contends for No. 1

As the Nebraska Cornhusker gridgers began their second week of spring practices, Ord's Jeff Quinn was still sharing the No. 1 quarterback position with Lincoln's Tim Hager.

A scrimmage Saturday, at the end of the first full week of spring sessions, was inconclusive on who might be termed "No. 1 quarterback."

According to NU Coach Tom Osborne, following Saturday's scrimmage, "Of the quarterbacks, not one had a bad day and not one had an outstanding day. Nothing was clarified there," Osborne stated.

Wildcat Boys Win Chant Boys Fifth In Greeley Meet At Ord Track Meet

North Loup-Scotia hosted the Greeley County track meet at Scotia on Wednesday, April 11th for the second year. Experience and depth paid off in a victory for both the boys' and girls' teams. The boys won their division by 12 1/2 points over Spalding Academy in a close meet.

The Wildcats built an early lead in the field events, and then were able to hold their own on the track as they were only able to win one running event, the 165m low hurdles. They picked up valuable 3rd, 4th, and 5th places. Another thing which helped NLS was that they were able to place and score points in every event in the meet.

A double winner for NLS was Mike Holmes in the long jump and triple jump with efforts of 20'4 1/2" and 41'2" respectively. Mike also placed 2nd in high jump and 5th in the 100m dash.

Other field event winners for NLS includes Darren Thompson in the shot put at 41'1 1/4" and Terry Meyer in the discus with 119' 1/2". Terry placed 2nd in the shot put with 43'2 3/4" and Darren was 5th in the discus at 94'1". Jay Kaslon also scored in the discus with a 94'9" effort. Tim Edwards placed 4th in the discus and just missed 9'6". Other places in field events include Barry Newman, 3rd in the long jump, and Scott Hansen tied for 4th in the high jump.

The Wildcat only victory on the track was by Barry Newman in the 165m low hurdles with a time of 23.5. Barry also placed 3rd in the 200m dash. Darien Cox ran 4th in the low hurdles and 3rd in the 110m high hurdles. Larry Waller also placed 5th in the high hurdles.

Kevin Williams and Kent Jorgensen were the hardest working team members as each ran 3 distance races and placed in all 3. Kevin placed 3rd in the 800m run and 4th in the 1600m run with times of 2:22.0 and 5:16.8. Kent placed 4th in the 3200m run and 5th in the 1600m run with times of 11:38.9 and 5:32.3. Both also ran on the 3rd place 3200m relay with Jay Kaslon and Robert Timmons. Tim Edwards placed 3rd in the 400m run with a time of 56.4.

The other two relay entries also placed 3rd. The 800m relay of Tim Edwards, Scott Hansen, Rich Mettler and Barry Newman ran 1:41.7 and the 1600m relay of Scott Hansen, Mike Goldfish, Rick Mettler and Darien Cox ran 4:11.3.

The next meet for the boys is at Loup City, Thursday, April 12, followed by the Palmer meet on April 9. NLS will host the Cedar Valley Conference meet April 27 which will begin at 1:00 p.m. and run into the evening.

Ord boys placed fifth out of a field of 10 at their invitational track meet Saturday. Coach Gary Patch is "real pleased" with the Chants' performance (and 40 points, he said).

He told the Quiz his boys "did real well" for no more time than they've had outside this season. Cold weather, snow winds, and other adverse conditions have curtailed practice sessions.

He was especially happy with Greg Linke's performance in the two mile race. The junior completed the course in 10:24.5 and finished fourth. Patch termed his performance Monday as promising.

In what may have been an understatement, Patch admitted to "pretty happy" with Ord High pole vaulters. They snared both first and second places. In first was Kremke with a jump of 12'6". Valla cleared the bar at 12'6" assuring him second place status.

High hurdlers also helped boost Ord's total points earned Saturday. Kremke and Petska were rated fourth and fifth, respectively. Kremke had a time of 16.4 and Petska 17.1.

According to the Ord coach his team needs to work on technique and on some field events. "We haven't been able to run the 6m enough," Patch explained. He speculated this would be corrected when — or if — warmer weather returns.

Team standings: Lexington, 127; Minden, 92; Broken Bow, 76; GINW, 63; Ord, 40; GICC, 39; Albion, 33; Cozad, 20; Loup City, 19; St. Paul, 18.

Next on the Ord High boys' schedule is the Red Raider Invitational at Loup City Thursday.

Good Season For Kim Carson

Kim Carson had an impressive 1978-79 basketball season at Midland College in Fremont. The supershotter, a former Ord High star athlete, averaged 10 points per game while shooting 51 percent from the field and 70 percent from the line for Midland.

Along with that, she made the second team in the NIAC All-Conference Women's basketball team. The Warriorettes placed three players on the first string NIAC listings, two on the second, and had yet another teammate the NIAC All-Conference honorable mention roster.

During her years at Ord High she was a key player for the OHS Lady Chants.

Team totals were: Gothenburg, 311; Albion, 318; Holdrege, 323; Valentine, 333; Ord, 338; Lexington, 338; Ainsworth, 340; Minden, 341; Cozad, 351; St. Paul, 353; Loup City, 376; Broken Bow, 387; G.I. Northwest, 410.

In individual competition, Frank Svoboda of Albion had 69 for first place. Wayne Westcott of Ainsworth was second with 74 and Kevin Block of Gothenburg had 75. Tom Jeffers with 76 was fourth. Dan Martin of Ord and Dan Martin of Gothenburg were in fifth and sixth places, respectively, with scores of 76.

Barry Witherwax had 78 for 10th place individual competition.

Complete results of the Broken Bow Invitational are as follows:

First place, mile run, Jean Dubas, 5:46.8.

Second place 400 yard dash, Robin Upham, 1:01.4.

Planning-Zoning to Be Arcadia Meeting Topics
On April 17 an informational meeting for all interested citizens will be held in the Arcadia Community Center at 7:30 p.m. to discuss Comprehensive Development Planning and Zoning. This is a program designed to give citizens a "tool" in deciding their own town's development. This process of planning and zoning enables a town, or a county, to reach a consensus on what direction they want to go in the future, what aspects of their life they want to preserve and what aspects they want to develop and how. With the construction projects coming to this area, this can be a very positive tool.

Dr. Paul Gessaman, Extension Specialist from Lincoln will be a guest speaker. Persons from Region 26 and Cooperative Extension Service will also be present to answer questions. People in and around Arcadia are invited as well as people from North Loup, Comstock, and Loup City. The public is invited.

Inflation is what makes spending money the only way to save it.

I just saw the first campaign slogan for 1980. It says: Would you buy a used Shah from Jimmy Carter?

Delaney Amendment Should Go

NEBRASKA FARM BUREAU FEDERATION
By M. M. Van Kirk, Director of Information

After 21 years the impracticality of the Delaney Amendment has reached such proportions that the U.S. Congress may at long last be forced to eliminate it from federal law.

The amendment was named after former New York Congressman James Delaney and was passed by the U.S. Congress in 1958. Quite simply, and well-intentioned no doubt, it forbids the addition to any food of any substance that is thought to be cancer-causing.

Application, typical with government interpreters and regulators, quickly became something else. Science developed new techniques to pinpoint chemical traces so small that they defy human imagination. Instruments are now available to detect trace elements as low as parts per trillion. And the tests on animals of such chemicals consisted of applying them in direct dosages in quantities exceeding by many times what humans might be exposed to in an entire lifetime. From such massive injections, if even a small percentage of test rats developed a tumor, it became cause for running the product containing the element off the market.

At the end of May, the moratorium on the government's efforts to ban saccharin will come to an end. The initial move to take the sweetener off the market caused such a furor that Congress ordered an 18-month delay in enforcement.

The pork industry has been plagued by uncertainty for several years by the nitrite issue. Nitrites are chemicals used in preserving meat products of all kinds, especially bacon, ham and sausage, and have been the only sure additive to prevent formation of deadly botulism. But it was found that nitrites under certain cooking conditions produce nitrosamines and that nitrosamines when injected in huge doses in test rats, produced some tumors. At anything approaching moderate doses, nothing happened, but this made no difference to the regulators, the Naders and consumer worries. Under the Delaney Amendment, nitrites must go even though there might be an epidemic of botulism deaths following.

The Food and Drug Administration and the Department of Agriculture put together a plan to phase out nitrites, allowing time to find a substitute which would head off the botulism threat. But information is that the Justice Department after studying the situation, will order an immediate ban on the use of nitrites because the Delaney Amendment is inflexible.

Congressman Thomas S. Foley (D-Wash.) has introduced H.R. 12 in this session to repeal the Delaney Amendment. Some may contend that it should simply be revised. But if last year's revision of the Endangered Species Act is any indication, that would be a mistake. The patched up Endangered Species Act provides a blue ribbon appointed commission to adjudicate such situations as the Tennessee snail darter case in which a new flood control and power dam can't be placed in operation because it might endanger a tiny species of fish. So far the "snail darters" have won.

The Delaney Amendment has never been realistic. It calls for absolute zero tolerance when scientists know that there is a little of anything in everything if one can find instruments powerful enough to measure it.

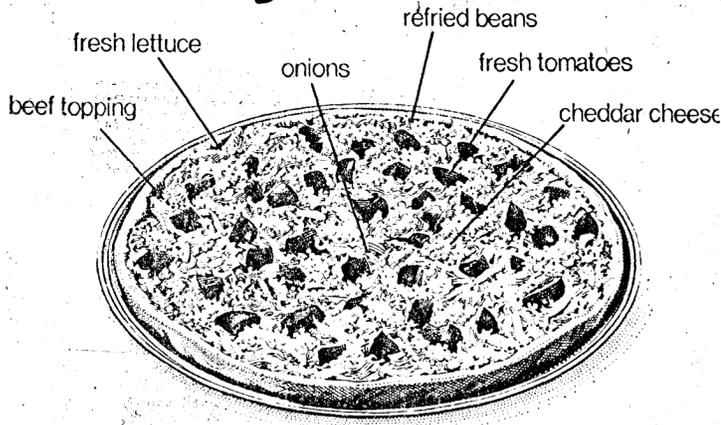

The same impractical principle emerges in many state and federal laws... "guarantee the public absolute freedom from risk of any kind." Congress write a Clean Water Act which calls for zero pollution of the nation's waters' river and streams by 1985, an impossible requirement. Even in wilderness areas pollution occurs. The Missouri River was known to the Indians as "The Big Muddy" long before civilization encroached. Even in Nature there is no such thing as perfection and no act of Congress can achieve the impossible.

In the name of common sense, the Delaney Amendment should go.

Silvex on Rangeland
Silvex, like 2, 4, 5-T, is still registered for weed control on rangeland. The information first received indicated that all uses of silvex had been cancelled. This is not the case. Both 2, 4, 5-T and silvex can be used for the control of susceptible woody plants and broadleaf weeds in rangeland.

Out of Tree Plantings
Trees can benefit livestock during both winter and summer. However, livestock in windbreaks is the beginning of the end of the trees. The most serious effect is compaction of the soil. Compaction restricts fine root development and soil aeration, and causes more of the rain water to run off. This spells slow death to a windbreak or any type of tree planting.

Winter Wheat Condition Associated with Crown and Root Rot Disease

Concern over the condition of the 1979 winter wheat crop prompted a thorough survey of 53 fields in 11 Northeastern counties by Extension Plant Pathologists this past week. Preliminary examination of affected plants revealed a high incidence of winter kill and crown and root rot disease brought on by environmental stress.

Individual fields contained scattered pockets of dead and dying plants or damaged areas following the ridge of terraces and on exposed slopes. Other fields showed "winter injury" symptoms uniformly over much of the crop. Areas of infected wheat appeared brown in contrast to the new green growth of healthy plants. Plants with root and crown rot are slow to initiate growth; those with severe crown rot have already died. Some of the weakened plants probably will recover if moderately warm temperatures prevail during the next week or two; those with severe root and crown rot probably will not. Plants with less severe root and crown damage will tiller sparsely and may not yield as well as those with healthy roots and crowns. Plants showing only root damage can recover from the disease, whereas those with extensive crown injury will not recover.

Root and crown rot of wheat is a stress related disease commonly caused by either or both of two soil-borne fungi. Severity of the disease is directly associated with stress factors from early fall following germination through spring. The effects of a loose seed bed, soil moisture deficiency, lack of an insulating snow cover, ice, and sustained low temperatures all become factors in the spring as affected wheat fields fail to green up uniformly. These factors are known to predispose the plants to infection by the root and crown rotting fungi. The most serious effect is commonly called "winter injury".

To diagnose the disease, the root and crown areas of suspected seedlings should be washed free of soil and examined. Dark brown, non-functional roots with few or no new root initiation from the crown is characteristic of diseased plants. The crown at the base of stems should be split with a sharp knife to detect the rot. Diseased crowns are brown to dark brown instead of white like those of healthy crowns.

Triad Approach Advocated For Musk Thistle Control

With the coming of spring, a perennial problem will once again raise its head in Valley County: the musk thistle. The purple blooms have been a pain in the side of local farmers and ranchers for the last several years.

Valley County Agent, Al Martens suggested using an integrated control in stifling the noxious weed. "This concept," he explained, "is to hit it (the thistle problem) from all three areas". These areas are mechanical control (cutting, mowing, etc.) chemical control (herbicides) and biological control (using natural enemies to combat the plant).

Those in that last category are weevils. Classified rinocyllus conicus, they were brought here from Montana several years ago, according to Martens. The small weevils, by some accounts, have proven effective in controlling musk thistles.

"Now, we can't say they have proven effective," the agent warned. "We don't have enough information to evaluate its effectiveness. He did, however, admit the mighty mite does look promising."

"At present we don't have weevil numbers built up enough," Martens said. "We don't have a weevil population adequate to make a clean sweep of the plan. By 'clean sweep' Martens meant nipping the growth of the top thistle flower along with those growing further down the stalk of the plant."

According to Martens, neither mechanical nor herbicide methods of this kind will kill the weevils. Herbicides, he pointed out, are designed for plant control.

"But," he added, "you could indirectly kill the weevil by killing his food supply, the musk thistle."

Herbicides commonly used for thistle control include 2,4-D and Banvil.

Tordon-22-K is also registered for thistle control in non-crop areas the county agent said.

Asked if he could see the light at the end of the weed patch, he replied, "We're optimistic. But to eradicate the weed, we've got to have a united and persistent effort. We need everyone to work at it."

Treatment in both the spring and fall, are recommended for the best thistle control. For herbicides, the important consideration is to treat thistle rosettes before the emergence of the flowering stalk in the spring," Martens said. "To be safe, plan on spraying by May 1."

This early treatment reduces risk of spray drift and injury to susceptible plant species such as trees, vegetables, and other other things, he stated.

Pig Crop Increase Exceeds Estimates

For the first time in recent years, the first quarter pig crop increase exceeded December predictions, according to an Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources extension farm management specialist.

Dr. Larry Blaney, a University of Nebraska-Lincoln agricultural economist, said the December-February 1979 pig crop was 17 percent larger than for the first quarter 1978 crop. He noted that December reports estimated the crop to be 12 percent above the 1978 number.

Blaney, who said he received his information from the pig crop report for the 14 major hog-producing states, noted that the first quarter increase likely will indicate an increase in the number of third quarter marketings, which may drive the prices down.

"As a result, producers may want to evaluate the possibility of forward pricing a portion of their expected sales," he said.

Anticipated farrowings for the March-May quarter, which will provide marketings for the fourth quarter, now are expected to be up 24 percent from March-May 1978 farrowings, he said. Earlier estimates had predicted a 16 percent increase.

If the 24 percent increase materializes, market prices likely will break in the $30-$40 price range by late fall, he said.

Blaney pointed out that the strong consumer demand for red meat and reduced beef supplies in the first quarter likely will the average market hog price to above the $47-$50 range earlier predicted.

Second quarter prices likely will support earlier estimates of about $45, with marketings up about 9 to 10 percent, he said.

"If the demand remains strong, the average price of market hogs for the second quarter could be slightly above the earlier estimate," he said.

Lower Loop Natural Resources District

By Richard Beran

Water Research in Action, published by the Texas Water Resources Institute, Texas A & M University, came out with a series on Irrigation Efficiency that I would like to pass on to our readers.

"The drought of 1976-78 has brought the subject of water conservation and efficiency into sharp focus not only in the western states, but nationwide.

"The water supply problem is not due to lack of sufficient annual supply but rather to non-uniform seasonal availability and poor regional distribution. Surface runoff in the United States is estimated by the U.S. Geological Survey as 3,678 million acre-feet per day. Further, only about 25 percent of the withdrawn water is consumed (0.294 million acre-feet per day). This means that only 8 percent of the average daily runoff is actually consumed by American homes, industries, and agriculture.

"Average supply, however, is misleading because the seasonal and regional distribution of runoff does not correspond well with demand. Unless storage is provided or distribution improved shortages will occur.

"Irrigation is the largest 'consumer' of water. The need for conservation and efficiency of water use in irrigation has led the Office of Water Research and Technology (OWRT) and its associated state water resources research institutes to give this problem substantial study. Over 100 abstracts of completed research projects dealing with irrigation are available for public use; twenty-two projects are currently in progress. Many OWRT programs in this area have been in cooperation with state experiment stations and the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

"The concepts of 'water conservation' and 'efficient use of water' are very similar and in many cases can be used interchangeably, but they are not the same. 'Conservation' generally means to protect the resource from being used completely. 'Efficiency' refers to the production of a desired effect without waste. Efficiency is therefore only one factor in conservation, though it is a major one.

"Greater efficiency in irrigation at an individual farm does not necessarily result in conservation of water because one user's 'waste' becomes another user's supply. In fact many efficient river basin systems depend on inefficiency in the individual and project irrigation systems. The water users in the South Platte River basin of Colorado, for example, annually withdraw about 2.5 times the volume of annual supply by recycling groundwater and by sequential use of return flow from 'inefficient' irrigation systems. "In response to the new federal water policies, an interagency irrigation water use study is currently in progress by a task force representing the U.S. Department of Agriculture, the U.S. Department of the Interior, and Environmental Protection Agency. The preliminary draft cautions that a high on-farm or conveyance efficiency may not always be a desirable objective. Efficient use of return flows and groundwater contributions may result in better use of total water supply with less expenditure of other resources. The report, however, points out that low irrigation efficiency often leads to (1) degradation of water quality and (2) an increase in noncrop evapotranspiration which is unavailable for reuse and estimated at 12 percent of total withdrawals nationally.

Drinking Age Bill Out Of Committee

By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association
Lincoln — A bill that would raise the drinking age from 19 to 21 had been stalled for weeks in the Miscellaneous Subjects Committee, but it didn't take the full Legislature long to pull it to the floor recently.

The measure is one of two Sen. Ralph Kelly of Grand Island is sponsoring this year in an attempt to raise the drinking age. The bill taken from committee would make the change in the statutes while Kelly's second bill would have the people vote on whether to lock the change into the constitution.

The Grand Island lawmaker favors making a statutory change.

Sen. John Murphy of South Sioux City made the motion to bring the controversial proposal before the 49 legislators. He said it would be "shameful" if the Legislature did not, at least try to do something about the serious problem of teen-age drinking.

He and others said they did not believe legislation itself would solve the problem but that upping the legal drinking age would be a step in the right direction.

There are some senators who strongly oppose the measure because they do not believe it is the answer to dealing with the many youths who drink, some of them excessively.

Sen. Frank Lewis of Bellevue said changing the law will cause many youths to drive to nearby states which have lower drinking ages. And he said drinking youths could be involved in more traffic accidents if the bill became law.

Lewis said he favors "massive fines" and perhaps jail time for those who procure liquor for minors.

He said there is a serious alcoholic problem with young people but added: "The answer is not a state law."

An immediate full-blown debate on the merits of the legislation was precluded by legislative rules. But Speaker Richard Marvel of Hastings said the measure will be placed on the agenda for first-round debate later in the session.

Happy Easter

Many years ago I was sitting at a meeting in Brainerd, Minnesota, when one of the speakers pulled a small printed paper from his pocket and proceeded to read from it. He was making a point — one, I guess, with which I agreed.

After the meeting I made a special point to ask the man about the paper. Where did he get it? Could I have the address so I could subscribe, myself?

Getting all the information I could, from him, I later wrote to the address I'd carefully tucked away and was put on the mailing list.

Titled "Here's How", the paper is the Chicago Area publication of the city's Alcoholics Anonymous groups. As all donation-sustained publications, "Here's How" has experienced their share of financial problems in the face of increased postal rates — not to consider the spiraling costs of printing.

Because there is often an inspirational article to my liking, I've continued to offer a small donation each year in order to be left on the active mailing list. I usually find something worthwhile in the tiny paper that continues struggling against the increasing costs it must meet.

Also the articles are all voluntarily contributed and the editor of the publication offers his write what it described as the "erroneous conduct" of Sheriff Gordon Gilster in associating with jurors

Good Ol' Jim

Soon, dear friends, we will know just where former Governor now Senator J. James Exon stands on the North Loup project. A master politician, Exon will have to reveal his stand when appropriations for that planned irrigation system comes to a vote.

During the election year just passed, the former Governor successfully straddled the issue. At first for the Loup Project, he later backed off with what he called "serious reservations" about the long-planned aqua system.

That last move came just before voters cast their ballots naming him Nebraska's senator. His not quite yes but almost no stand was evidently a prudent one. Exon buried his GOP opponent Don Shasteen in what could charitably be called an avalanche.

Not one to abandon a good thing, Senator Exon continues to have an ambivalent stand on the issue. In a recent Lincoln Journal-Star article he was reported to have said he would be inclined to support continued appropriations for the project. This inclination would come if voters of the Twin Loups Reclamation District approve repayments and water service contracts in an election next June.

But, in the same article, Exon reportedly said he would "not necessarily support appropriations even if a favorable vote is forthcoming by the people there."

Good of Jim. Right now, he has a good thing going. We hope he enjoys it while he can. Soon he will have to cast a vote on financial support for the Loup and O'Neill Projects. When that moment of truth comes, he will be faced with a yes or a no. Not a maybe.

not even he was sure just how system of issuing permits and enforcing zoning regulations should work.

At one time he believed City Utilities Commissioner Gene Baugh was also a municipal building inspector. Mentioning this to Baugh, Jensen was surprised to learn Baugh wasn't aware of his second title.

During the phone conversation Monday, Jensen still wasn't certain if Baugh officially was or was not designated the municipal building inspector.

Asked about the City Council's role in determining zoning enforcement, Jensen said he believed persons now having building permits had acted in good faith and have valid permits.

But, we suggested, weren't some of the permits obtained and operations started prior to the council's approval? Jensen admitted some had.

He also said the council has final authority over building permit approval and enforcement of zoning regulations. In theory, he conceded, no building or new business should be started prior to the council's approval.

He admitted the present contradiction and confessed there was a lot of uncertainty over just who does determine who shall build, remodel, or locate where. "It is," he said, "a question the council will have to face."

We agree. And the sooner this is cleared up the better. With pending plans for a power plant and a sizeable project likely to materialize, this question had better be settled.

But even if these two developments fall through the city will still have the problem of just who is in charge of regulating Ord's growth, and how the system should operate.

Not of the Quiz

The Quiz caught hell during Monday's regular school board meeting at Ord High. Board member Ed Vancura said teachers were dissatisfied over what he contended was the constant negative tone of the paper.

To our ears, that sounds like the old story of the king slaying the messenger because of the bad news he carried.

We aren't sure just which section of The Quiz earned the sobriquet of containing negativism. Should it be the news items, they are but an account of what happened. Should they make unpleasant reading, I suppose it would be expedient to blame their content and not their source, i.e. the actual event itself.

True, the news item may be a condensed version of an event, but they are, to the best of our knowledge, an honest version of the actual event.

Should it be the Quiz editorial section drawing the teachers alleged ire, those same persons have been strangely silent. Letters to the editor agreeing or disagreeing with our editorial stand on most issues have been few.

Those reportedly so upset over this paper apparently don't have time or the inclination to rebut or stand on an issue.

Should Vancura or some Ord Public Schools employees be irked that the Quiz does have an editorial page, we suggest that most papers do take stands on given issues. By the same token we invite readers to do the same.

In reality I suspect the thing that upset Vancura and, supposedly, some of the teachers is that week after week we have followed the Ochsner story closely and went shup up about it. Granted it might have been easier if it were handled quietly with little fanfare or public knowledge, but that isn't the way things are done. At least not at the Quiz.

Something Different

About Driving

Automobiles have been an agitating factor in my family for as long as I can remember, going back to the days when my father shoved my mother into a car and declared "You can drive. I know you'll get it home." This was after he had repossessed the car at Chadron, which is 65 miles from Alliance . . . or was in those days.

Although she had never driven before, my courageous mother herded the car along the hardtop and limestone-frosted highway, scared to death but game. She even managed to drive through a herd of cattle without hitting any of them or wrecking the automobile! Some initiation, but then my father believed that my mother could do anything and she didn't disappoint him.

My father was an excellent driver and I grew up to reverberations of "Now keep to the same speed, don't be speeding up and slowing down", and like comments. (Although he didn't teach me to drive when I was 18 as he had promised; someone else beat him to it.) He drove until he was 85 or 90.

One holiday season when my brother and I were positive that we had to return to Lincoln for New Year celebrations with university cronies, I remember we left Alliance in a blinding snowstorm. Foolishly as it turned out, for by the time we reached Whitman, (was it 30 miles?) we were glad to abandon the old Hudson and seek cover with the depot agent and his friendly wife. She took us upstairs and thawed us out and kept us until the next eastbound Burlington train.

In later years I often drove old highway number two — (I won't even capitalize it) for it was a hard, rough road. It was only years later that clay was brought in and it later became blacktopped. The haul from Broken Bow to Alliance was no longer torture.

One early trip that I recall, Kerry was standing up in the seat beside me, he was restless and just wouldn't sit quietly. This was understandable when he threw up all over the front seat: I remember the exact spot in the road, just as it goes up the hill into Arcadia from Ord. He was about one at the time.

Mostly I had no trouble with cars.

Except I got smashed into in Omaha one violently rainy night when I went to make a left turn off Leavenworth. But I was in the east-going six o'clock traffic, and a left turn was very bad news: I got smashed into on the right front fender and my nose got smashed into the steering wheel. "Did you always have a crooked nose?" inquired the doctor who tried to patch me up sufficiently so that I could attend the Ak-Sar-Ben ball where my niece Susie Ellis was to be a countess.

Yes, I went to the Ball, covered with about three inches of makeup goop through which my black and blue face was clearly, muddily, visible. And the car got fixed and both of us were OK.

For years I drove without incident, slipping gently up to stop lights, backing and filling as per order.

This winter in San Diego saw a big change.

For we bought a new five-gear (plus reverse) Volkswagen, and it had all sorts of intricate stick maneuvers I must learn. John had raved so much about the wild heavy traffic here that I was terrified to try, but I did.

The park where we live has some 250 homes, and almost as many lanes, and so I have been wheeling up one and down the next and around corners and shifting, shifting, shifting, until now I feel I can manage. Not beautifully but I'll learn. Shades of my mother.

Who's In Charge Here?

Back when I was a kid, westfrens were the standard Saturday matinee fare at the local theatre. The good guys always wore white hats, and the bad ones donned black. The problem testing the valor of the silver-screen hero was clearly defined and always solved, just as he rode off into the sunset.

Right now, the Ord City Council — and the City of Ord itself — face a problem that is ill-defined and apparently no one is sure just who wears what hat. The problem we mean, of course, is the application of municipal zoning codes.

In theory, at least, builders and new businesses obtain permits allowing them to operate in a certain section of the city. These permits coordinated with municipal zoning codes will direct or organize Ord's growth.

That is, businesses will be restricted to certain areas of town as will private homes, etc. At least that is the way it's supposed to operate.

How it does — or does not — actually operate is another matter. During the April 12 Council meeting, Councilman Verlin Smith objected to the way things are currently handled. As he saw it, building permits are being issued before the council has a chance to approve them.

In a Quiz interview Friday, he maintained building permit and zoning regulations are like city leash laws use to be. "They're there," according to Smith, "but they aren't being enforced."

A person wanting to build a structure, or open a new business appears before the City Zoning Commission.

Obtaining their approval, City Utilities Department head Gene Baugh inspects the plans or proposed location.

That done, the matter goes to the Council for final approval.

On obtaining that, the new structure may be built or the new business opened.

But just to make sure, he suggested going to City Hall and checking out a copy of the municipal ordinance book. So we did.

Arriving at City Hall we found:

1. The public can't check out ordinance books and
2. Existing zoning regulations in that volume have been supplemented by a 20 page up-date or addition not found in the hard-cover book.

City Clerk Wilma Kroeger thought the library might have a city code book, but she wasn't sure. She also offered to help us with whatever section of the book we sought.

The hour was late, so we thanked Wilma and returned to the Quiz.

The next person contacted was City Attorney Greg Jensen. Being a lawyer he would obviously know his way around the municipal code, or so we thought. On calling Jensen, we learned

Increased Liquor Taxes

A proposal to produce more money for treatment of alcoholics by increasing the taxes on liquor easily withstood a kill attempt in the Legislature.

Sen. Sam Cullum of Hemingford, chairman of the Public Health and Welfare Committee, said the legislation is needed because of the Legislature's decision last year to decriminalize public intoxication.

Cullum said the higher taxes would bring in an additional $800,000 annually and half of that would be available for alcoholism programs this fiscal year.

The bill would increase the per gallon tax on beer from 11 to 12 cents; on fortified wines from Energy, water, food/fiber — these three items are going to become more pronounced with each passing day and year.

With Senator Donald L. Wagner

In looking back, it took approximately 10 years for the energy situation to focus on today's reality. Now we are in a catchup type of ball game trying to do something about shortages. Water needs are beginning to take the same patterns as the energy shortage did. Food is presently abundant in this country, however, other parts of the world are not so blessed.

I am concerned about all three, but more so with energy and water. Particularly energy because now we have our backs to wall. While in Washington last week to support funding for the North Loup Division's fiscal year 1980 appropriations, I had the opportunity to check on energy problems facing our state and nation.

Many farmers, ranchers, and station operators are concerned about diesel and gas supplies for this upcoming crop year. In meeting with various members of Congress there is no doubt we will have supply problems varying from area to area both in the short- and long-term. Solutions won't come fast or easy, however, I was impressed with the efforts being made by the Nebraska Congressional Delegation. Among other things, they have introduced legislation in support of Gasohol for energy. The legislation includes (1) requiring 10% of government vehicles to burn Gasohol, (2) that certain amounts of our feed grains be used to make Gasohol, and (3) allocation of front end money to start Gasohol production.

We can no longer keep sending our dollars across the pond for petro fuels, thus, creating a deficit in our balance of foreign payments. This country is at the mercy of foreign oil producing nations and we must free ourselves from that dependence. Oil nations, at their whim, could literally bring this nation to its knees.

Nebraska Senators Loren Schmitt and John DeCamp have been promoting Gasohol for around eight years and it now appears even the United States Secretary of Energy has seen the need for Gasohol in the last week or so. This is a step forward to reverse the trend of dependency. To me, it's no longer should we or should we not produce Gasohol, it's we must.

LB 344 that requires certain areas in public places be set aside for smokers was amended this week to exclude restaurants 1200 square feet and under from the requirement.

The bill to raise the drinking age to 21, LB 221, had been locked in the Miscellaneous Subjects Committee because of a 4-4 vote. This week the bill was brought out of committee to be heard and debated on the floor. A bill that resembled California's Proposition 13 was killed by the Legislature. LB 188 would have imposed a statutory limitation on property taxes not to exceed one and one half (1 1/2) percent of the actual value of real property.

Simants early last year filed a petition to have his sentence set aside and asked for a new trial because the sheriff visited the jurors in the motel where they were sequestered. Simants said Gilster also played cards with the jurors.

Judge Hal McCown, who wrote the majority Supreme Court opinion, said, "To condone the conduct of Sheriff Gilster in this case would violate the fundamental integrity of all that is embraced in the constitutional concept of a fair trial by a fair and impartial jury."

"The stability and integrity of the American system of justice demands that those principles be maintained inviolate," Judge Leslie Boslaugh dissented, arguing the court erred in holding that prejudice or lack of prejudice in the Simants case should be determined only by inference and speculation.

Boslaugh said the trial court after two days of testimony during a hearing ruled the contacts between the sheriff and jurors did not affect the verdict and were not prejudicial to Simants.

Legal Insurance Bill Advances — The Legislature has advanced to final reading a bill that would provide for pre-paid legal insurance.

When the measure was being debated recently, Sen. Steve Fowler of Lincoln and Ernest Chambers of Omaha tried to amend it so lawyers would not have to belong to the Nebraska Bar Association if they wanted to practice in the state.

That effort failed, but Fowler was successful in getting approval of another amendment to forbid use of bar association dues to establish a pre-paid legal insurance company.

It wouldn't be right, said Fowler, to first require all lawyers to belong to the NBA and then use the money to establish an insurance company in competition with private enterprise.

The bar will not be able to use money to produce the capital for the formation of the company, but will be allowed to use funds for advertising and payment of costs of administering the company.

Geranium Joe Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

Ed Psota got the floor early during the discussion at the country store Saturday night. He had this clipping that gave a report on Government regulations for last year, and he was busting to get it in the record. He said the Office of the Federal Register figured out that 61,000 pages of rules were issued in 1978, including a 260-page masterpiece on how to write regulations in plain English folks can understand. This output, Ed said, compares with 20,000 pages in 1979, an increase of more than 300 percent.

Practical speaking, declared Ed after all is said and done at any level of Government, a heap more is said than done. But this is where truth is said, that on the Federal level, and especially under the Democrats that just love to issue orders to cover every possible circumstance. Just the other day, Ed went on, took the Supreme Court to convince the Department of Health, Education and Welfare that of all the thousands of pages it has written on what schools can and can't do, not one word can be used to tell church-supported schools what they can do when they get in a lab dispute with their teachers. Probable, Ed said, more than a few thousand of them pages to tell Government agencies how to get out of where they got no business.

Ed natural got some backfire from Jim Cadek that reminds he's trying, but having some trouble building a New Foundation. He said you can pick your favorite official source, and you can read back, and you can't find a speck of proof to Ed's charge that one party is making a bigger mess of the bureaucracy than the other. Lumir said he was prepared to argue a case based on which party has more ex-convicts that fell from high places, but it was his guess that Ed left that set of clippings at home. But as a practical matter, Lumir went on, he could see why Sears Roebuck is suing to prove it is impossible for a company to follow all the government rules, and why small companies are trying to organize a revolt against filling out forms.

General speaking, the fellers sided with Lumir. Frank Cernik said he had studied the situation up one side and down the other, and his best advice to the Federal Government is "physician, heal thyself." He said he saw just the other week where President Carter's chief inflation fighter was lambasting big companies that reaped profits up 25 percent last year. This shows they ain't trying to cooperate with the Administration's seven percent increase in wages, but the spokesman didn't mention the Federal deficit that now looks to run near $50 billion this year.

Furthermore, Frank said, while the President's chief energy saver is crying for everybody to cut down on travel he is leading the bureaucrats that go to ever meeting everywhere. He said he read where 20,000 of em are in the air at any given time, and at least 2,000 ain't got no business there.

Yours truly, Geranium Joe

To the Editor:

In regard to the case of James Ochsenr vs. the Ord Public Schools, I feel compelled to voice my opinion, for whatever it's worth.

If Jim Ochsenr was employed by a school system in a larger community, his personal life would go virtually unnoticed, and rightfully so, with the people being concerned only with the quality of teacher he is. What he does outside the classroom is nobody's business, but we're all guilty of making it our business now and then, aren't we?

In cases where profanity is used in the classroom, so what else is new? Coaches and other classroom teachers have been swearing at their students for years and nothing has happened to them. When I was in school, teachers used profanity occasionally but more often than not, we had it coming. Teachers are supposed to be responsible for their subject matter; not making sure that every child leaves OHS with clean morals and a clean mouth. If parents cannot instill good moral values in their children, they cannot expect teachers to do their parenting for them.

As for Mr. Ochsenr's teaching evaluation being "below the standards" of the ideal OHS teacher, who in the present administration is enough of a music critic to make that assessment single-handedly? The Ord Schools have seen many, many music teachers come and go over the last few years. Maybe some priorities should be re-established in the curriculum. There has to be an underlying reason for such a great turnover in a single department.

Maybe it's time Jim Ochsenr carries this thing as far as he can. He might step on some toes along the way, but they could be toes that have needed stepping on for a long time.

The fact that so many of Jim's students and their parents have spoken out in his favor speaks for itself. It's just too bad that the members of the school board made up their minds well in advance of the public hearing.

READ ISAIAH 53:1-11 "And I, if I be lifted up from the earth, will draw all men unto me." (John 12:32)

A successful writer once told me that during her first year as an author she had 17 rejections. But she didn't give up. She said, "Do you feel like a rejected? Do you feel like a rejected and indifferent? Are your dreams not being realized? Rejection can make one feel like lepers of earlier times."

The lepers of Jesus' day were the rejects of society. They know the pain of being shunned. It must have been hard until Jesus touched them and transformed their lives. Then life took on meaning once again.

I felt rejected one day when I passed a former employee on the street and spoke to him. He lashed out, "Don't ever speak to me again." He was harboring an imagined grievance. Unsuccessfully, I tried to make amends. Yet, when sudden death invaded my home, he was the first to come to my assistance.

Rejection is only temporary. It must not prevent us from offering to the world the best that is in us. PRAYER: Lord, when we experience rejection, give us strength. Enable us to know that we are accepted by You. Amen.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY The rejected Jesus is the hope of the world. — Martin S. Fidler (Columbia, Pennsylvania) Copyright — THE UPPER ROOM

No Conflict Of Interest In Federal Funding Of Sierra Club Lobbyist?

An apparent Sierra Club lobbyist disclaimed any conflict of interest Monday between her receiving federal research funds in which the Sierra Club is a host organization and the club's opposition to water projects in Nebraska.

Rose McCullough of Lincoln, Northern Plains Conservation Committee delegate for the Nebraska Chapter of the Sierra Club, verified Monday that she is receiving a Public Service Science Residency from the National Science Foundation to do research and provide public information on nitrates in ground-water in Nebraska. According to McCullough, under terms of that grant the Sierra Club will be her host organization.

She is frequently listed as a contact person for various Sierra Club projects, the apparent author of an undated Action Alert bulletin for Friends at the Niobrara River, testified before House and Senate Appropriations sub-committees and was named in a letter to the Sierra Club chairman, for "doing an outstanding job" in "making sure that the Club is represented in all public hearings related to water."

Jack Odgaard, Executive Director of the Nebraska Water Resources Association, contended McCullough is using tax dollars under the National Science Foundation grant to work for the Sierra Club and to oppose various state and federal water programs.

McCullough and other Sierra members have been vocal critics of the Twin Loups and O'Neill water projects. Earlier this month, she cited "economic, equity, and environmental grounds" for withholding public funds from the O'Neill project. Those remarks came when she appeared before the House and Senate Appropriations sub-committee on April 9 in Washington, D.C.

Odgaard further questioned the objectivity of McCullough's research and contended it was a duplication of nitrate studies now being done by other state, local, and federal agencies. Said Odgaard in an April 11 letter, "I know that some of the NRDs (Natural Resources Districts) in Nebraska are now researching this subject, as is the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources at the University of Nebraska." The Bureau of Reclamation is doing a further study, according to Odgaard.

"Beyond the obvious situation in which Ms. McCullough is using tax dollars under the NSF grant to work for the Sierra Club and to oppose other federal and state programs and projects, one must wonder at the awarding of such grants by a federal agency where the research, study, and efforts supposedly the object of the grant are being carried on by other agencies and individuals."

In a Quiz phone interview on Monday, McCullough stated she has never opposed a water project as a NSF fund recipient. According to her, there is not what she called "an employer-employee relationship" between her and the Sierra Club. McCullough pointed out she is a volunteer for that and other organizations.

McCullough called Odgaard's charge that NSF funds are supporting her Sierra Club activities as "technically inaccurate."

From Where? Said Odgaard, Monday, "I haven't made any charges against McCullough, but was just providing information from clippings and newsletters. This information was for a member of my organization (the NWRA) who asked for and got it."

"And since you asked for her comments, I don't understand what is 'technically incorrect.' What does that mean?"

"The information I provided was either correct or incorrect or technically one way or another."

"But I emphasize the information came from printed sources and from her. It is in writing. She says she has never used the NSF grant to oppose Nebraska water projects. I don't know what her other income is or where she is employed. But as you can see from the Sierra Club newsletter, she spends her time before committees of the legislature, attending meetings of state agencies, and going to her meetings around the state."

"Of course, she was just in Washington where the news media reported she testified against Nebraska water projects. Did she pay for that out of her own pocket or what?"

"Did the NSF grant pay for that trip?"

School Board Probe Launched

An affidavit filed by Ord attorney, Curt Sikya, has led to an investigation of the Ord School Board. Sikya, attorney for Jim Ochsner, filed the document with County Attorney Greg Jensen April 9 in County Court here.

In the document Sikya claims the school board violated sections of Nebraska's open meeting law. Fourteen points are mentioned in the legal document.

These alleged violations involve the recent school board decision not to rehire Jim Ochsner, an Ord High instrumental music teacher, for the 1979-80 school year. That decision, by a unanimous school board vote, came after a hearing at Ord High April 9 lasting more than six hours.

Ochsner's contract for the coming school year will not be renewed because board members have substantial evidence, they contend, that:

administrative direction. Ochsner's performance record was substantially below that of other teachers in the Ord Public School system.

Ochsner slapped a student. County Attorney, Greg Jensen, filed an affidavit dated April 9 stating he couldn't head the investigation because of a possible conflict of interest. His law partner, Bob Stowell, had been the school board's attorney during part of their dealings with Ochsner.

County Judge Roy Blixt appointed Greeley attorney Harold Connors to manage the investigation into the alleged irregularities. Connors was appointed on Friday, April 13.

Contacted by phone Tuesday morning, Connors said he had just learned he was to handle the case. He wasn't sure how long the investigation would take, but said it would start Wednesday.

Zorinsky Urges Funding-Support Of Loup Project

Senator Edward Zorinsky (D-Nebr.) asked a Senate sub-committee to appropriate money next fiscal year for the North Loup and O'Neill irrigation projects, and to go on record as favoring a variety of other water resources ventures in Nebraska.

"I strongly support the North Loup project," Zorinsky said in a letter to the chairman of a Senate appropriations sub-committee, J. Bennett Johnston (D-La.). Johnston's sub-committee on energy and water development held hearings last month on budgets submitted by the Army Corps of Engineers and Bureau of Reclamation for the fiscal year beginning next October. It will meet in early May to decide what spending to recommend.

Zorinsky told Johnston, however, that the North Loup project cannot move forward until the construction contracts have been ratified by voters in the affected reclamation and irrigation districts.

North Loup is the name given two dams planned for the Calamus and Loup Rivers in Loup and Garfield counties, and a network of irrigation canals that would serve farms in east-central Nebraska. Work on the project has been held up by the Nebraska Supreme Court ruling requiring voter approval of the contracts.

Zorinsky also asked for

"continued appropriations for the O'Neill Unit, a dam (Nebr.) and irrigation system planned for the Niobrara River in north-central Nebraska. But he stopped short of endorsing it."

The subcommittee should "seriously study" the critics' objections, he said. He specifically called the subcommittee's attention to pending litigation about the adequacy of the Environmental Impact Statement for O'Neill and to the need to submit the construction contracts there, too, to the voters.

Congress usually gives federal agencies authority to spend money for broad program categories, rather than for specific projects. Zorinsky asked, therefore, that the subcommittee go on record as favoring river bank stabilization work at three points along the Missouri River on the South Dakota border: Cedar County Park, Elk Point Reach (opposite Dixon county), and White Swan (opposite Boyd county).

He told Johnston he also supports plans to have a 9-mile stretch of the Missouri River in Cedar and Dixon counties designated a national reclamation area, and asked that money be put in the Bureau of Reclamation's budget for rehabilitation work on the Phelps irrigation canal in Phelps county, should the Bureau approve a loan for the work before summer.

Over A Hundred Years of History Awaiting Return of Leslie Flynn

When Leslie Flynn visits Ord this summer, 106 years of history will be waiting for him. The brother of Mrs. Rachael Flynn Oliver of Ord will discover a picture of his mother, Marilla Fredrick Flynn, waiting for him.

Marilla and her father, Wolfgang Fredrick, migrated to Valley County in 1872 and homesteaded five miles northeast of Ord. Then 15, Marilla is believed by many to have been the first white woman East of the North Loup River.

Marilla worked at Fort Hartsuff as a servant to an officer stationed there. He, his family, and Marilla moved to Fort Omaha. There, she met her future husband, Richard Flynn. After he was transferred to Fort Laramie, WY they married. After his discharge in 1886, he and Marilla settled on homestead in Valley County. He died here of tuberculosis in 1895, leaving his wife with ten children. Of these, only Rachael and her brother, Leslie, survive.

"It was through the goodness of her neighbors that mother survived," Rachael recalled. In 1901 her mother purchased 160 acres of land and raised her family.

Marilla died in 1944. She was 87 years old.

Annual Pinch Of Boxcar Shortage Is Being Felt

All area elevators report feeling the pinch of a boxcar shortage. The annual problem is the same as always, according to persons interviewed Monday.

Gaylord Boelsen, of the Boelsen Grain Company, reported his firm is running 14 to 15 cars behind, consistently. Trucking some grain helps he said, but boxcars are still needed.

According to Boelsen the shortage is nothing new. "And it's getting worse every year," he added. "The railroad just tells me they'll get them (boxcars) when they can."

Another person feeling the shortage pinch is Virgil Beneke, manager of the Farmers Co-Op Elevator in Ord. The Union Pacific Railroad has been cooperative, he said, but there just aren't enough cars to go around.

NL-S Teacher's Car Vandalized

A North Loup-Scotia teacher's car was vandalized April 2. The car, belonging to NLS principal Glen Hawley, was parked in North Loup when the incident occurred.

According to Valley County Sheriff Martin Sonnenfeld the car grill was smashed and nails driven in some of the tires. Damage was estimated at over $100.

Motion Denied Kaminski's Trial Date Will Be May 2

District Judge John Icenogle denied a motion to suppress evidence in the case against Sherman County Sheriff Virgil Kaminski Thursday in Kearney. Kearney defense attorney, Andrew McMullen, revealed he will not request a change of venue and that he is contemplating requesting a jury trial.

At a hearing in Loup City earlier this month, Kaminski's lawyers made a motion to suppress evidence obtained during the sheriff's arrest. The attorneys contended that evidence, reportedly including blood test results, was improperly obtained. District Judge Icenogle overruled the motion and set a trial date for May 2 at 9:30 a.m. in Loup City.

When arrested last November, Kaminski was not in office, but had just been elected Sherman County Sheriff. He took office in January, succeeding Bill Whear. During a recall election, held long before November balloting, Sherman County residents voted Kaminski out of office over charges of misuse of authority and drinking while on duty. Following the election, Whear took the sheriff's post. Kaminski was re-elected to office in balloting last November by Sherman County residents.

Eric, the ten year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Oestmann of Ord, was the winner in the pre-junior contest division. The fourth grade student in the Ord Elementary School lists his hobbies as gardening, playing baseball, basketball, and other sports.

Other competitors, their speech titles and ribbons were: Deann Hopkins, Inflation and the Dairyman, red. Darla Nolte, My 4-H Experiences, purple. Kristina Knapp, Adventuring in 4-H, blue. Here is Eric's speech: Grow, Garden, Grow By Eric Oestmann

My garden seeds came today! I can hardly wait to plant them! Carrots, beans, corn, tomatoes, beans, pumpkins and squash. But I can't just throw the seeds in the garden and expect everything to grow. I have to plan my garden. I have to get ready, get set, and grow, grow garden, grow.

I have to draw a simple picture of my garden and figure out where I'm going to plant my seeds. Will my garden get enough sun? Does it have good drainage? My garden will be in the same

Teacher Seeks Over $8,000 in Assault Damages

A Loup City teacher is suing two former students and their parents for over $8,000 in damages in District Court at Loup City. Ron Schroll is seeking $8,923.59 for injuries suffered during a beating in his classroom May 22.

David Shotkoski and Kevin Fulton entered the Loup City High classroom and beat the vocational agricultural teacher. The boys later pleaded "no contest" and served 20 days in jail.

The resulting suit was filed April 11. Defendants are Kevin Fulton, his parents, Dr. and Mrs. J. F. Fulton and David Shotkoski and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alex Shotkoski, all of Loup City.

The Schroll petition maintains the parents of the two boys are liable for the acts of their sons, both minors at the time of the assault.

The plaintiff seeks $8,000 since he was unable to pursue his farming activities during the summer of 1978 due to his injuries.

He further seeks $923.59 for medical and hospital expenses and additional expenses for psychiatric therapy, an exact amount for that isn't yet known.

Scotia Forensians Make Top Ten in Class B Division

North Loup-Scotia's speech team closed their year by scoring in the top ten schools of the Class B forensics division. According to NLS speech teacher, Mel Shoemaker, the team scored 117 points this season.

"I'm not sure just where we are ranked," Shoemaker said. "But fifth place is 130 points, so I know we're in the top ten."

According to the teacher there are over 200 schools state-wide in the class B forensics division. He defined Class B schools as those having less than 200 students enrolled.

On the way to taking top honors in that division, Shoemaker's team won district competition in Kearney last March and conference competition at North Loup Scotia soon after.

"It's been," said Shoemaker, "a very successful year."

Tree Program Headed For A Record Year?

The Lower Loup Natural Resources District tree planting program could be headed for a record year. That is the word from Leon A. Koehlmoss, Lower Loup assistant general manager.

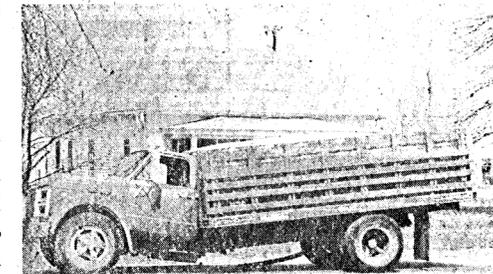

According to him, an estimated 470,000 trees and shrubs have been ordered so far this year. With about a month to go until the tree planting program deadline, this could equal or surpass numbers racked up last year.

During 1978, a record year, some 300,000 trees and shrubs were ordered, he confirmed. "And we're running pretty close to where we were last year, or a little better," Koehlmoss told the Quiz.

Under the Lower Loup program trees are made available to area farmers and ranchers. The shrubs are ordered through state and federal sources. Along with the Lower Loup NRD, the Soil Conservation Service, the Agriculture Stabilization Service, and the Game and Parks Commission, all promote planting the low-cost plants.

The state Game and Parks Commission often suggests planting shrubs in conjunction with their habitat improvement program. (Continued on page 8)

Farmer Has Real Bumper Crop

Ord area farmers have been harvesting a real bumper crop of corn recently. Or so it appears. This corn load came to an abrupt stop when Dennis Hurlbert was headed west on P, between 12th and 13th streets Monday. The Chevrolet hit a bump and the truck broke. The frame apparently gave way between the cab and the box. The cargo was unloaded and repairs made.

CAROL'S CORNER

CARS . . . One day recently when traveling the interstate I simply observed the many vehicles as they came and went along the way.

The roads are full of cars. There are low cars and high cars, elegant newly painted cars and rich luxurious ones.

Rickety cars, silent cars, noisy cars, paint-faded cars and squeaky ones complaining with each turn of the wheels.

Cars topped with furniture, cars full of rubbish and trash. Cars towing lumber, some with firewood, cars with flowers and houseplants.

Cars holding suitcases, cars crammed with children; others with animals. Many are overloaded.

There are frail cars, idle cars, abandoned cars, cars worn out from too much use, repaired cars and cars broken and crushed by overloads.

Some are rusted with misuse, many are slow, others very speedy and there are those emptied and standing anxious for refilling.

Neat cars, trim cars, cars cramped and uncomfortable. Spacious, comfortable cars.

Work cars, pleasure cars, cars that travel noiselessly and unnoticed.

The roads are full of cars. People are a lot like cars!

Aebelskiver Supper Planned and Explained

Two years ago Bethany Lutheran Church returned to having an annual Aebelskiver Supper. A number of people outside the congregation asked about one and thus the return.

Since Bethany Lutheran also includes Dannevirke it was decided to have a spring supper at Ord and a fall supper at Dannevirke.

Aebelskiver is spelled several ways. Actually in Danish the A and E are one letter. Aebelskiver is a type of Danish apple cake-rolls. However, since it is difficult to place the apple sauce in and it tastes good without, Bethany doesn't use the apple part.

Some Danish people prefer to just roll the aebelskiver in sugar and eat it as a doughnut. However, in this area chokecherry syrup as well as regular syrup such as maple are popular.

Aebelskivers are made in a special constructed skillet. Bethany serves sausage and pie. All these items are donated, including a whole hog for the sausage.

Agnes Clausen is general chairperson of the supper with almost all the members involved in some way.

Ord the supper is Saturday, April 21, with serving from 5 to 8 p.m. with tickets sold at the door.

Loup Valley Livestock
The Loup Valley Livestock met at the Scheidler home on Tuesday, April 8.

Cleaning up the Davis Creek Cemetery was decided on to be a project. John Scheidler showed a film on Robert's Rules of Order.

The lace bodice had a sheer yoke with applique of Venice lace and pearls. Clung lace circled the high neckline with a ruffle of lace circling the sheer yoke. The long slender lace sleeves were edged with a ruffle. A panel of lace and pearls accented the organza skirt front. A wide lace flounce bordered the skirt. The tiered chapel length mantilla was edged with matching lace and held by headpiece of lace and pearls. The bride carried a basket of white carnations and peach roses.

Ord - Lexington Gals Are Tied Second Week In Row

For the second week in a row Ord and Lexington girls track teams are tied. Last week they shared seventh and eighth place honors at Broken Bow. This week they are in a fourth-fifth place duo match at the Burwell Invitational.

Deb Meese helped push Ord to their high placing with her long jump. She won it Thursday with a leap of 15'6". The Ord High freshman has gone further, according to her coach, Rich Cecetka, but under different conditions. The weather at Burwell was windy, cold, overcast, and boasted intermittent showers.

Another first place winner was the Ord High mile relay team. They had been running second and third at other meets this year. At Burwell they put it all together and came in first.

"Glenda Wetzel was the one," coach Cecetka said, "that did the trick. She passed the other girls slicker than grease". It was her burst of speed that pulled the mile relayers from a possible second or third place to a first place finish.

She was second on the hand-off and quickly hit her stride. Cecetka speculated her improvement from earlier performances this year was the result of what he called "little things".

"But", he was quick to add, "all four girls have to be in top notch form for the relay". Those others included Gloria Wetzel, Pam Meese, and Robyn Upham. Upham had one of her better days this season Thursday. She came in second in the 430 yard dash, time of 1:04.9, and anchored the two-mile relay squad. That last team was third out of a field of 10.

Cecetka listed the following girls as "doing their personal best": Nancy Gogan, who made it to the finals of the 80 yard hurdles. Cecetka called that "A good step for her".

Diane Dworak, a freshman who placed sixth in the 800 yard run. Cecetka speculated this could be a portent of possible future potential.

"And the same thing with Kathy Hornickel", the coach said.

She took sixth in the long jump with a 14' leap.

Cecetka revealed the teams captains this year are Pam Meese, senior, and Sue Sevensker and Robyn Upham, juniors.

The Ord girls next go to Grand Island Northwest Thursday. Cecetka called that scheduled match "a tough meet". Twenty-eight boys and girls teams will be there. "I hope for us to score in the top seven", Cecetka said. "We can do it if everyone pulls together".

Ernie French Two Races Closer to His Olympic Goal

Ernie French is two races closer to the 1980 Olympics in Tallon, Russia. The Ord resident recently completed sailing competition in Galveston Bay and Dallas, TX.

French, along with crewman, Mickey Hayes of Lincoln, is shooting to represent America in 1980 Olympic competition. Their goal is to bring home a gold medal in the Flying Dutchman sailing class.

Toward that goal, they came in 19th out of a field of 30 boats entered in the Flying Dutchman Midwinter Championships at Lake Ray Hubbard, near Dallas, March 30-April 1 the two completed the five race series. Each race covered a seven mile course.

After that, it was on to Flying Dutchman North American Championship race in Galveston Bay, at Houston. They were ranked 16th out of 30 entries April 3.

Next month, they will enter sailing competition at Newport, RI. Ernie described it as "a tune up" for a regatta playing a crucial role in determining just who will represent America in Olympic sailing competition. That key race will be at Newport in June.

French, an Ord native, has been interested in sailing for 19 years.

Burning To Help Sherman Habitat

Fires will be used on about 160 acres of wildlife land at Sherman Reservoir to improve the wildlife habitat there, according to Jim Douglas, Wildlife Habitat Manager for the Game and Parks Commission's southeast district.

According to Douglas, controlled burning has proved a beneficial wildlife practice in other parts of the country for many years, and has been used with success in the Wildlife Nebraska Game and Parks Commission since 1973.

Burning, with the right humidity and wind, will promote the growth of native warm-season grasses such as Blue-stem and Indian grass, which give good nesting cover. At the same time, the fire will retard growth of cool-season grasses such as smooth brome, a plant with relatively little wildlife value.

The overall result will be a mixture of grasses and legumes more resembling a true prairie, Douglas said.

Other effects of the burn include removal of the tangle of dead grasses that accumulates over the years, and removal of unwanted "doghair" stands of undesirable trees from grasslands.

Arcadia's Track Squad on the Run

The coming season means many different things to the sports enthusiast it means track season has begun for another year.

Spring finds Arcadia High School's track team running all over the place. This year's track squad includes John Cox, who is listed among the state's top quarter milers, Paul Hill, listed with the top triple jumpers, and a two mile relay that's listed in the state's top five with a time of 8:36.2. The girls' team has members that includes Neta Bulger who is among the state's top milers.

So far this year the boys have had five meets and have never placed lower than sixth in the overall team standing. The girls have had three meets.

Track is a very individual sport. If one wants to excel in it he or she has to work hard. Most track meets are held between 15 and 20 schools, so the competition is always tough. Medals are usually awarded for the first three places and ribbons are given for 4th, 5th, and sixth places.

For an overall team score, points are awarded for each member of the team that places. For instance, a first place is worth ten points, a second is worth eight and so on down the line. The team that ends up with the most points usually receives a trophy for winning the meet.

This then is a backround on what high school track is like. I hope I have helped you to understand it a little better. In the future I'll be covering the boys' and girls' track meets and giving you complete reports on them.

LINKE, 24 year sports writer. Greg Linke introduced two for one specials at the Red Raider Invitational at Loup City, Thursday. The Ord High junior won gold medals in the mile and two mile runs. Greg took first in both events.

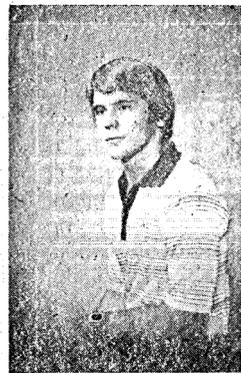

In the mile his time was 4:48.0 and in the two mile it was 10:21.0.

Coach Gary Patch jaded Greg, saying he has "done consistently well this year".

Another high achiever was Pete Crane. He ran one of his best times in the 400 and 800, according to Patch. The junior finished the 400 in a time of 54.6, his best time this year. In the half mile, 800, he completed the course in 2:13.7.

The two-mile relay team of Kevin Sich, Kyle Novosad, Mike Williams, and Bob Beran placed third with a time of 9:04.6. Sich and Beran are the older men of the team; they being both juniors. Novosad is a sophomore and Williams a freshman.

All will be back next year. Seniors were at the meet too. Curt Kremke called "22" at Loup City. Earlier in Ord, that height won him first place honors. Thursday he took third behind VanMartre of Gibbon (13'9") and Wade of West Iolt (13').

NEBRASKA FARM BUREAU FEDERATION
By M. M. Van Kirk, Director of Information
American agriculture, American industry and the American life-style if they are to continue near present levels are dependent on development of new supplies and sources of energy on a vast, dependable and the most economic basis.

So far the people of the United States have not faced up to that fact any more than they have been willing to make the hard decisions necessary to bring inflation under control.
In 1973 when the Arab nations imposed an oil embargo, President Nixon in a speech that was more political than purposeful, called for a great effort to make the nation independent of foreign nations for its energy needs by the mid-1980's. It was the right answer then as it is the right answer now. But it was too easy to pay the increased prices imposed for foreign oil to borrow time as we have borrowed money, and to wait for another crisis.

There are precedents in the history of our country in this century as well as in other highly advanced nations as to what can be done in survival situations. At the beginning of World War II, the Japanese overran the world's principal rubber producing countries and cut off the world's supply of natural rubber. Those who think there is an energy crunch now should recall what the U.S. faced with a 2-front war on its hand and no rubber to keep tires on its war equipment and its domestic transport.
Yes, there was tire and rubber rationing with the implements of war at the top of the list, then essential transportation, industry and agriculture. The average consumer was at the bottom of the list. But the division of nothing is nothing and a synthetic substitute had to be developed and fast.

The late William Jefferson left his job as president of Union Pacific Railroad to become the nation's "rubber czar" and he did what had to be done. Money was not an object and alcohol plants including one at Omaha were built and rushed into production to provide the raw materials to produce synthetic rubber. Those first synthetic tires were crude and short-lived by today's standards but by the end of the war were comparable and beginning to exceed pre-war tires in quality. Never again would the world be dependent on natural rubber.

Most people have forgotten that Germany fought a 2-front war largely on synthetic fuels produced from its vast coal reserves. Cut off from petroleum supplies in the late stages, its planes, tanks and essential transport and industry were forced to operate almost entirely on coal derived sources of energy. Ask former GI's about the "charcoal burners" that they saw operating the cars and trucks in Western Europe... inefficient, under-powered but they did run.

The United States has huge resources of coal and oil shale waiting development by already-known techniques and petroleum and natural gas supplies still to be discovered and put into production. These are the sources of energy in quantity which must make the difference between whether this nation is energy-dependent or energy-independent until such time as science finds the ultimate in nuclear and solar-power utilization.

The nation's farmers are not going back to horsepower days any more than the railroads will go back to the coal-fired locomotives of 50 years ago. The history of America's success has been built on bold production and development, on calculated risks to obtain rewarding returns, not on a policy of dividing up and conserving the leftovers.

4-H VIP Week

Four-H VIP Week will start April 22. This is a week set aside for the recognition of all volunteer 4-H leaders. Volunteers, both teen and adult, serve the 4-H program in many ways. It is important to recognize that volunteers have varying amounts of time, interest, ability, and resources to contribute to our 4-H program. In general, volunteers can serve in three basic ways:

1.) Service to 4-H members. There are volunteers who provide programs directly to 4-H members. These volunteers usually give leadership to 4-H clubs and groups. An example of this is club organizational leaders, project leaders (livestock, clothing, etc.), camp craft instructor, and so on. 2.) Service to other volunteers. These are volunteers who work in locating, training, and helping other volunteers. 3.) Services to the 4-H program. These volunteers may be people who speak out to seek public support or solicit funds for the support of 4-H. They may provide administration services or serve in policy advisory, or they may work behind the scene. Example: Fund raising, County Fair Superintendent, County 4-H Council member, speaker promotion, or camp sponsor. Contributions of all our 4-H volunteers are vital to the 4-H program. The next time you see a 4-H volunteer ask him or her what they like about 4-H and how they think you can become involved.

Farmers' Question of the Week:

What should we do to clean up front and reduce losses from TGE in swine?

The answer — The virus is very fragile and does not live in the environment very long. Ordinary disinfectants destroy it easily. TGE virus does persist in the lungs of recovered pigs for several months and probably is the source of persistent infections. This is the reason that feeder pigs, that are possible inapparent carriers of virus if they have recovered from TGE, should not be brought to a farm that has a farrowing operation. TGE losses can be reduced by using the modified live virus vaccine that is available to vaccinate sows six weeks and two weeks before farrowing.

Omega also has very good mileage for a car this size.

With standard engine and transmission, the EPA estimate is 24 mpg. And the highway estimate is 38 mpg.

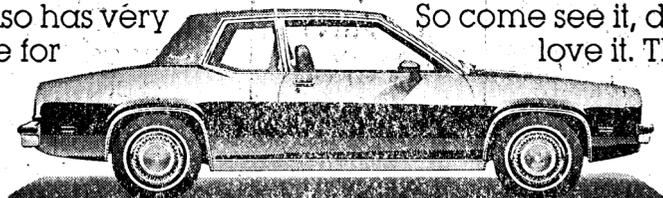

Remember, the circled EPA estimate is for comparisons to other cars. Your mileage depends on speed, weather and trip length; your actual highway mileage will probably be lower than the highway estimate.

Continuing with the series on Irrigation Efficiency, we are looking this week at Surface Irrigation.

There are two approaches to managing surface irrigation applications. Traditionally the objective has been to maximize use of the water storage capacity of the root zone soil in order to minimize the number of irrigations. Although there are practical advantages to this approach, high efficiency is difficult to achieve — except on level basins — because several variables such as water infiltration rate, size of stream, slope of field, and duration of application must be matched to produce a given depth of application without waste.

Guidelines for the best combination of these variables which have evolved from extensive research since 1915 in state, agricultural experiment stations and federal agencies such as the Soil Conservation Service and the Agricultural Research Service have helped improve irrigation efficiencies; however, average efficiency has remained low.

Application efficiency for typical surface irrigation systems (Furrows or borders) average about 50 percent with a range of 30 percent to 75 percent efficiency. Tailwater reuse may bring the average up to 85 percent. If water cannot be applied to a uniform depth over the field surface, application efficiency will decrease.

The second approach is to maximize application efficiency without concern for maximum use of root zone storage. The primary objective is distribution of water for equal time over all parts of the field. This technology was developed in the mid-1960's under OWRT sponsorship at the Colorado Institute. The research provided guidelines for selecting the proper combination of variables including slope of field, length of application, infiltration of soil, surface hydraulic resistance, and stream size to produce high efficiency.

Operating criteria for different types of soil are specified. Application efficiencies of 80 to 95 percent can be obtained although more frequent irrigations are required. This leads to the need for automated irrigation systems in order to minimize labor costs.

"High efficiency in well-designed surface systems depends heavily on operational control, suggesting either high labor requirement or automation. Good progress in developing control systems that are automatic or nearly so, has been made through OWRT research. One example is the system developed by the Oklahoma Institute which used a lined ditch and hooded inlet tubes to automatically deliver flows to each furrow.

"This system irrigates through the field with a design furrow flow and then automatically cuts back the furrow flow to balance the intake rate of the wet soil. Variation in flow between furrows in negligible; variation along the furrow is small, and runoff losses are greatly reduced.

"Since the total labor required is less than two minutes per acre, the labor savings alone would pay for the system in less than seven years."

Elsewhere in this issue of the Ord Quiz is a news item about Rose McCullough. An apparent lobbyist for the Sierra Club, she has been a vocal critic of water projects around the state.

While some might disagree with our usage of "lobbyist", few can dispute the fact that she is an outspoken member of the Sierra Club frequently appearing before various governmental bodies.

In a Quiz interview Monday, Rose disclaimed any conflict of interest between her opposition to water projects and her partial-at-least-support from federal research funds. To some eyes, it appears the government is supporting a lobbyist hell bent on biting the hand that feeds her.

The dedicated Sierrite, Monday, said she has never opposed a water project as a National Science Foundation fund recipient. Just where Rose McCullough the-NSF-fund-recipient ends and Rose McCullough the-vocal-Sierrite begins is a tantalizing question.

Questions like this are suitable fare for, say theologians debating how many angels can dance on the head of a pin. Other likely candidates to decide the point include philosophers or students in advanced logic courses. Being an average layman, the best I can do is honestly admit I don't know.

And because I don't know, I'm inclined to believe Rose should have her say. Yes, I know the gal is funded, partially at least, by the government, and I also know she frequently appears before various agencies, and other governmental bodies.

It would be easy to demand she cease and desist from her lobbying work. That ungrateful woman, we could fume, has no darn business peddling her papers at taxpayers expense.

Yet because we don't know for certain that she is solely supported by the government, we won't. We won't because in journalism, freedom of speech is more than a topic of conversation.

Yes, we support Rose's right to sound off — even if it appears to be at taxpayer expense. We support her right even though she will likely be remembered as someone who tried to stop a project that proved beneficial to all area residents.

Something Different

The Changing Scene

As we get older we tend to take root. We settle down in our favorite chair, we hoist our feet, we read, we contemplate, we watch TV whether it is good or bad. We do sedentary things. We knit, we crochet, we weave, we whittle, we visit quietly, we write letters to former cronies. We are happy in a tranquil way, listening to music. Sight-seeing.

We forget the wild confusion, the noise, the constant agitation, the racket, the demands, denials, the yellings and whoopings of youth. The activity.

And so it is good for older people to have a lively family with little people descend into this once placid life. To stir things up, pull up those roots.

We'd forgotten how active a slim young Mama had to be to keep Junior out of the pill boxes and tighten all the lids. To see that Susie didn't tip that hot iron over on herself. To watch that the handles on the kettles on the stove all aimed IN, not dangerously out. To find the missing shoestring, "my OTHER doll!"

"He's tearing my book." "I was here first." "That's My place." "Why can't I sit by the window?" "I want to go with Daddy." "I put my orange right here!" "I'm not sleepy." "I won't lose my pocketbook." "Mama, let me carry the camera." "Aunt Irma the eggs are pretty spicy."

Everyone hustles into a car, everyone hustles out again "to see the ocean." Oh grief, it's top foggy, there's no horizon.

But the lovely sand is there to walk on, the ocean is just as wet as ever.

As our youngest visitor p oves when a big bad wave knocks him over.

Annual Budget Battle Fails To Spark Much Controversy

By Melvin Paul

Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association - Lincoln

The annual battle of the budget didn't spark much controversy the first time the Appropriations Committee's spending recommendations were debated by Nebraska's lawmakers.

There were only a few attempts to amend the first four bills, even though they provided for multi-million-dollar expenditures during the fiscal year starting July 1.

Those four measures remained unchanged from the form in which they were proposed by the budget committee and easily won first-round approval.

The committee has recommended allocations of more than $596 million for such things as state government operations, capital construction, and aid to local governments.

Some time ago, the committee's chairman, Sen. Jerome Warner of Waverly, advised it had been estimated the Legislature will have about $601 million available for next year's appropriations and there would probably be several million dollars for new or expanded programs.

The second time the lawmakers debated appropriations bills, Sen. David Newell of Omaha tired without success to reduce some of the proposed expenditures.

While he and his colleagues were discussing a bill for funding postsecondary educational institutions, Newell sought to trim some of the suggested allocations for the University of Nebraska.

But the bill received preliminary approval on an 11-10 vote.

It was when reported to the floor by Warner's committee.

The measure proposes giving the University of Nebraska $116 million, considerably less than the $124.9 million requested but slightly above the $115.5 million set at the time proposed in his budget recommendations.

The bill also recommends a $1 million state-supported budget for Chadron State College; $7.2 million for Kearney State; $2.4 million for Peru State; and $4.1 million for Wayne State.

One budget bill that did not receive approval after it was debated the first time was a capital construction proposal that would provide for spending $12.1 million in fiscal 1979-80 and another $23.6 million in fiscal 1980-81.

The motion to advance the bill fell one vote short of the required 25. Seventeen senators voted against preliminary approval.

A spot check of lawmakers who voted against advancement introduced the $12.1 million obligation for 1980-81 troubled them the most. Those same senators indicated they expect numerous amendments to be offered when the bill comes up for debate the next time.

One legislator, Maurice Kremer of Aurora said, he did not think the state could afford the suggested amounts of capital construction. "Maybe we should stretch the future commitments over a longer period of time," he said.

Another item of concern to some of the legislators was the proposed purchase of the Elks Club building in downtown Lincoln, so the Nebraska State Historical Society could transfer it into a heritage center. Some senators said they were not sure renovation of the facility would be cheaper than constructing a $6 million heritage facility, as was originally proposed.

It's believed the Elks building Mrs. Ed (Helen) Kokes of Ord was elected first vice president of the Nebraska Federation of Business & Professional Women at the conclusion of a three day state convention in Grand Island last weekend.

Dick Beran received the 1959 V.F.W. state trophy for the singles championship recently in York. Dick bowled games of 212, 214, and 244 for a 670 scratch series. His handicap totaled that total to 712. Dick was also third high in total pins for the tourney.

What proved to be one of the most destructive storms of the entire winter swept across Nebraska Wednesday evening of last week. Starting out with an electric storm, rain began falling, soon turning to snow which clung to all surfaces. When the snow began, it froze to all wires running crosswise of the wind, east and west. By morning it was two inches in diameter. Wires were broken in hundreds of places. Where wires held, the weight broke off or unrooted poles and broke cross arms.

Incorporation of the Ord Cooperative Hospital Association was formally completed this week with the filing of articles, election of officers and directors. Heading the new association, which is incorporated for $60,000, are Archie Geweke, president; Glen Apple, vice president; and Leslie Nash, secretary-treasurer.

Food Tax Debated
One day recently the lawmakers debated a long time over the merits of two bills — one to repeal the state sales tax on food and the other to increase the $20 per person annual food tax credit.

The legislation calling for repeal of the tax, which several senators said had to be classified as "immoral" because it taxes a basic necessity, had more supporters than opponents. But the measure needed two more than the 23 affirmative votes it received to get over its first floor hurdle.

Time ran out before a vote could be taken on the second bill, which would boost the food tax credit from $20 to $23. But the senators turned down two amendments to raise the credit to $26. Sen. Ernest Chambers of Omaha tried to get adoption of the change so it would be effective this year and Sen. Don Westcott of York offered an amendment to raise the credit to $26 on Jan. 1, 1980.

Sen. Richard Marsh of Milligan, who is sponsor of the bill, said he is afraid that if the Legislature raises the credit beyond $23, Charles Thone will veto the legislation.

Several of the senators said the state could not afford the revenue loss that would result if the tax on food were repealed. But others argued the intent of the credit system was to return to citizens the amount the average person shells out in food taxes annually.

That amount, according to Sen. Vard Johnson of Omaha, is about $30. He said he got the figure from the legislative fiscal analyst and from the state Revenue Department.

The bill to abolish the tax calls for the repeal to become effective on Jan. 1, 1982. The sponsor of the proposal, Sen. David Newell of Omaha, said that would allow plenty of time for finding ways to make up for the food tax revenue loss.

During the debate, several senators said repeal of the tax would force a heavier reliance on the state sales and income taxes.

About 9 percent of those eligible do not file for the credit and their rebate money goes into the state treasury.

According to comments during the debate, there is no way to find out exactly how many millions of dollars the state realizes from the tax on food. Whatever money is left over after the credit checks are mailed out goes into the state General Fund.

Kerthauser Eulogized
The unexpected death of Col. C. P. Kerthauser, chief of the State Patrol for the past six years, shocked his many acquaintances and friends in the Capitol.

The Legislature adopted a resolution praising the 28-year veteran of the patrol for his devotion to duty and for his professionalism.

Senator Ernest Chambers of Omaha, a frequent and vocal critic of some law enforcement agencies and people, said Kerthauser demonstrated the kind of professionalism he favored.

Chambers added the hope that the new patrol chief would follow the fine example Kerthauser set.

LD Bill Appears Constitutional
The state Justice Department says an amended version of a bill to change some of the provisions of the 1973 local spending law generally appears to be constitutional.

But the department said there may be several technical problems with the bill which, among other things, would place a 7 percent annual limit on the portion of a local government's budget financed by state and local taxes. The limit in current law pertains to local property taxes.

In an opinion requested by Sen. Cal Carsten of Avoca, chairman of the Revenue Committee, Assistant Attorney General Patrick O'Brien said there are apparent problems with a provision allowing governments to exceed the percent limit because of population increases.

O'Brien said another problem is a provision enabling a local government to seek voter approval to exceed the 7 percent budget limit. The bill would require the special election to be held before Aug. 1 of the calendar year preceding the date of levy, which taxes are levied in September of each year.

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

The pamphlets put out by the U.S. Department of Agriculture usual don't call for no deep meditation, but ever once in a while we happen onto one that stirs us into a little thinking. For instance, it don't take long to thumb through one that tells you how to fix the grapevine, provided you set out the vine and you been taking care of it all its life. And you ain't upset to learn that plowing corn don't help the corn, it just holds down the weeds, cause you allus took the position that the corn and weeds could fight it out, and may the best plant win.

But a pamphlet come in the mail last week, Mister Editor, that pulled me up short. It is one called "Living On A Few Acres." Actual, what I got ain't the pamphlet, it's a folder telling how I can get the whole story by sending $7 to the U.S. Government Printing Office. I am much obliged to the USDA for alerting me to this bargain. After observing the way agriculture is moving in this country, I am full convinced that it is ever bit as easy to live on a few acres as it is for Uncle Sam to spend himself out of this inflation that is eating us all alive.

The folder explained that the pamphlet is special for city folk that think they can buy a little farm, raise a few pigs and chickens, keep a garden and live happy ever after. I say these kind of dreamers need this kind of book to guide em along the rose covered path. Just last month, I saw where the national praised value of farmland now is $500 a acre, and in some states, as much as $2,000.

I brung up this subject at the country store Saturday night, and Ernie Vodehnal was the first to look at it from a new angle. He said the USDA could be talking about living on a few acres, not off em. You can live on em, he said, provided you got a good outside income, but they ain't no way you can live off a few acres unless you're talking about the kind of office buildings in a few acres in downtown Denver. Ernie said the city feller might find clean air to breathe on his few country acres, but he'll be hard up for somethin to eat. If he expects to live better cheaper, Ernie declared, he better talk to farmers and ranchers that are selling out to them foreign conglomerates that are buying up whole counties.

KERRY ON

— taxing thoughts —

At various times, through the year, I find myself taking a long hard look at life and my own sense of values.

One of those times is usually at Christmas. Another is Thanksgiving. And yet another is Memorial Day.

But the one I seem to forget until I encounter it is tax deadline. That, of course, was this past week's my mind. But I like most Americans, I become despondent over the tax dollars I must pay. Wondering whether it's worth it and wondering where it will end — spoil many of my days, as tax deadline disgusts my mind. But I And, like most Americans, I find some way to come up with what hasn't already been withheld or paid into the federal government. At that time I always feel depressed. Frequent disquiet creeps my mind. But I manage to scrape up enough to appease the tax collectors.

Though this is a disheartening time, it also causes me to take stock of what I believe to be the real values in my life. I consider the freedoms I have and the good fortune of having an income. I am thankful for my health and the community in which I live and work. I recall, over and over again, the blessings that are mine — despite the heavy taxation from state and federal governments.

Feeling strapped and poorer than usual after paying my taxes, I think about the world, the world can take some quick turns. He was thinking where just a few years ago the USDA reported, where power vehicles, the farm had replaced 30 million horses since 1930, and had "saved" 70 million acres of hay needed to feed them horses. Now this same agency is talking about how many acres of hay it would take to feed how many horses. I say, how many barrels of oil ever year. The day when we got to go back to real horsepower may be sooner than we think, he said.

Final, Ed Beran had this clipping where William G. Stern, an American in London, ain't messing around with keeping up with the Joneses, he's trying to keep up with Uncle Sam. Ed said Stern is bankrupt and $209 million in debt. There's a feller, Ed said, that could live on a few acres.

Yours truly,
Geranium Joe

With Senator Donald L. Wagner

Legislative Resolution #50 is not the type of resolution a Senator normally cares to introduce. However, LB 330 was very fitting and proper, since it paid honor to Col. Cletus P. Kerthauser who was the Chief of the Nebraska State Patrol. He was a man dedicated to the State Patrol and law enforcement. Col. Kerthauser died of a heart attack on Palm Sunday, April 8, in Lincoln.

He spent 28 years with the State Patrol and his leadership provided a firm administration yet love and understanding for his men. As one patrolman said, "He was always busy but yet he would take the time to listen to his men." He will be missed by his family, the State Patrol, law enforcement and many others.

Col. Kerthauser was a graduate of the McCook High School class of 1946. We'll particularly miss him at our 1980 reunion. He served his state and country well. God Bless him.

Senator Ernest Chambers of Omaha has introduced legislation which would increase the speed limit to 65 mph. This move is being supported by some who feel it is a facade to continue to uphold a low limit which obviously isn't being adhered to by the driving public. Others feel that it will serve as a subtle attempt to override the powers of the federal government, as Nebraska could lose federal highway funds if LB 330 is passed. However, in light of the increasing fuel costs and possible future shortages, I feel that the most sensible action would be to maintain the present speed limit and help conserve our valuable resources.

LB 16 which failed to win first round approval this week would have eliminated the sales tax on food. Although this would have meant a savings to the taxpayer on the surface, it would have resulted in a loss of state revenue amounting to approximately 22 to 26 million dollars which would have to be made up elsewhere. Other legislation in this same vein attempts to raise the food sales tax refund from $20 to either $23 or $26. Perhaps a statewide tax program should be studied and evaluated as a comprehensive program could function more effectively than the present piecemeal system.

A spot check of fuel distributors (propane and diesel) will be made of those dealerships in the 1st District. I am interested in determining if there will be adequate supplies during the planting season if you are presently suffering from a shortage or are expecting difficulty in obtaining fuel, please let me know and I will assist in any way possible.

For the record, my office has been moved from the third floor down to the second. The new room number is 2107. The phone number is still the same, 471-2631.

Dear Mr. Editor:
Those of us who attended the hearing for Jim Ochsner were witnesses to a Kangaroo Court in action. Anyone who had talked to any of the School Board Members before the hearing could tell by their comments they had already decided how they were going to vote. In other words they had already had the "Administration's Show Job".

It is unbelievable that these people on the board are the same ones that ran for the school board during the last election. What happened to their statements, "I am my own person and I will stand by my convictions and not bow to the administration"? It is so bad when a school can't be run by the Democratic System but rather by a "Mr. & Mrs. Administration Dictatorship".

I also seem to remember statements from the Board Members that the budget was going to be cut and anytime we had any questions we were to ask them. I wonder then since it is common knowledge that Dr. Gogan's salary for the 1978-79 school year was $28,500.00 plus expenses, use of school cars and other fringe benefits, what kind of raise the school board is awarding Dr. Gogan for the 1979-80 school year? Most of us would be very happy with the income mentioned above even if it was the combined salary of both spouses. In this family it is the income of only one.

A question I brought up at the hearing was "What is Double AA Accredited"? A very simple definition, "It is a feather in the cap of the Administrator and higher taxes for the tax payer". Why raise taxes? Because the school that decides to be "Double AA Accredited" must meet very high standards and there is no way to meet these standards without it costing money. What most parents want is that their children be able to read, write, spell, do simple math and have "Fair" discipline in their school and what you need for this is good teachers and administration, not Double AA Accreditation.

I feel Mr. Vancura was very much out of order in his observations. First that parents are to blame when the school has disciplinary problems and that the Quiz was biased in their handling of news and facts. What would Mr. Vancura have the Quiz do, print the things the Board and Administration want to see? I think in most instances the Quiz has done very well, reported the facts and called the shots the way they saw them. At least they cannot be snowed "by the Superintendent and are not afraid to print things as they are. It would seem that if Mr. Vancura and the Board were "thinking people" they would have seen by the large turn out of parents and students at all of the meetings and hearing concerning the Quiz that the parents are saying we have "Fair" discipline in our homes and we also want "Fair" discipline in our schools.

Another comment that Mr. Vancura made that was so ridiculous that if this issue were not so serious, would have been hilarious. The comment being that the board had talked to all the other teachers to see how they felt about the administration and the way things were being handled. Almost all of the other said everything was wonderful. After seeing what Mr. Ochsner is going through one would have to be stupid or leaving the system to say anything else. Or is the fact that four of the Board Members are self-employed and one is retired and do not have to answer to an Administrator or Board that such a statement was made. I also wonder how anyone of the Board would have handled the situation had they been the one on the bus, or don't they have any discipline problems with their children at home?

Exactly what does the School Board mean by "being below the standard performance required of teachers in the Ord. High School"? You mean all the other teachers meet this requirement? How about a breath test. As I understand it, only a small amount of alcohol need be present to disallow one to be able to drive a car let alone teach, and how many, many, years has this bad breath been going on in the Ord Schools? And is it true that some teachers do not drink only coffee in the teacher's lounge?

The worst thing that happened at the hearing is that the Board said "yes" to a student and "no" to a teacher where discipline is concerned. They said yes to a student in that you may behave as you please and no one may correct you since you are the child of the administration. They said no to the teacher in that you may not correct or discipline this student since she is the child of the administration, your hands are tied. Was the Board also aware of other problems in this same case concerning grades, excuses, etc. when they did not meet with the parents approval?

Who actually was hurt the most by the Board's action at the hearing, Mr. Ochsner, the students of O.H.S., the teachers remaining in the Ord School System or the student and her parents? And if the Board still maintains they couldn't vote any other way because of School Policy, then perhaps there should be some changes made in the School Policy.

A Concerned Parent and Taxpayer

VOX POP
There has been a lot of criticism the last four weeks against the school board and administration and I feel compelled to speak out.
On April 9th the school board voted not to rehire Mr. Ochsner. This was done in accordance with necessary legal procedures and no ones rights were violated. This decision has made the board unpopular with some Ord citizens.

The school board is a local committee in charge of public education, elected by the people. They represent the school. Could any of us do a better job? Also there are some saying, "The board are puppets for Gogan". Those are strong words, but words are cheap. A superintendent is hired to direct the school and has a say in school policies. This is his right. The only thing I see him guilty of is doing his job.
I have also heard, "There are a few other teachers that need to go". Some feel they are not good teachers. If so, they should be investigated. Under the present law, after a two year probation period a teacher becomes tenured. After this time it is very difficult to release a teacher. Instead of destructive criticism why not work through legislature to change this law.
Some one told me there are a lot of good people supporting the board and administration. Isn't it about time to hear from them? Why not stop degrading all branches of local government and work constructively to better the whole community.

Sincerely,
Dona Young

I am writing in regards to the dismissal of Jim Ochsner. Seems to me he could have been framed! To have to have a 3 1/2 hour hearing on such a case and have the vote be 60 when so many parents and students, also teachers testified in favor of him! Could their decision have been made prior to the hearing?
Yes, we elected our school board hoping for some changes going on their campaign speeches etc. I'm in hopes they will reconsider their decision either as a Board or as individuals! Again maybe they are "yes" people!
I think Mr. Ochsner did the proper thing when he hired a lawyer and requested an opening meeting. He couldn't have had too much to hide, could he? An expensive way to have to try to keep a job you like, and do a good job at isn't it? Many of us are asking when are the good teachers quitting? Could it be they'd rather quit than fight? Some of the teachers think they are receiving too low a salary. Reason enough to change jobs however, on that subject I'll have to agree salaries are low everywhere. I work 12 months a year, get one week vacation, no paid holidays or storm days and pay my own insurance premium! Things always look greener on the other side of the fence!
Back on the original subject, were any of the good things brought out about Mr. Ochsner? Three of my children have him or have had him as a teacher and all agree that he isn't any worse than some of the others. In fact they respect his classes and person very much. One did drop out of band, but with no reflection on his part. One of the others started Beginner Band and looks forward to band because of his ability to teach the same. I have the patience it must take to teach 5th graders! If you've ever attended a concert I'm sure you'll have to agree there is usually a "full house" and every one performing puts on a good performance and it appears to be proud to be a band member, from Beginner Band through Jazz Band! Another child of mine has had him for a teacher of "Humanities Class" and can't say enough good things about him! We keep wondering if he were of such bad "character" etc. why Ord rehired him in the first place? We're glad they did, at least we had two years of improvements in the area that needed improving. Anyway we pine with many others regret the Board's decision!
On another subject mentioned in last weeks Quiz, one board member was quoted as saying, "do we have to ask why the people attending board meetings are present?" One person I attended many meetings prior to her election and wanted to know what was going on! Guess it makes a difference which side of the table you're sitting on!
Also it has been said by an administrator that our school does not have a discipline problem. I think there is reason to disagree here too. Just in last weeks Quiz was an article where a student was injured and in the hospital. This, I'm assuming happened in the school house. Maybe the parents are partly to blame but they can't attend school with their kids! We have several problems to solve, attitudes are terrible among the students, teachers' parents and also within the administration! Maybe we need to have some "hearings" in some of the other areas too!
Ord always has been prejudiced. I had a child get a finger broken in her first period P.E. Class, and also found the administration. So she stayed in school all day and then we had to see the doctor at 6 that evening! But when you have the right name it takes two teachers and two students to take you to the doctor. Wonder how come I had to write an excuse to the fact she couldn't take part in P.E. because of a broken finger and her grade suffered because of it, but in the case of the girl getting "hit" she could drop out of band the following week and no reasons had to be given. Sometimes I'm glad to not be in the "right" name category.
I really think more of us should put up a fight for what we think is right but last weeks hearing should tell us many things. You've lost before you ever get to be heard.
Anyway if Mr. Ochsner leaves Ord we want to wish him the best of luck and we have told him personally that we consider him one of Ord's best.

READ LUKE 22:14-19
"The Pharisees and scribes murmured, saying, 'This man receives sinners and eats with them.'" (Luke 15:2 RSV)
Frequently, what is spoken as a criticism is in fact a compliment. Some enemies of Jesus lashed out at Him because He received sinners and ate with them. This willingness to identify with sinners was one of the most remarkable attributes of our Lord. Yet His detractors faulted Him for it.

A missionary told me of a friend in the Philippines who opened the doors to many a spiritual opportunity by her willingness to eat with the people in their homes.

It is not always easy for those of one culture or style of life to eat food prepared by those who are of a different culture. Yet, willingness to do so is a significant mark of identity.

We are all sinners, out of touch with God, strangers in His company. But God gave us One, as Lord and Savior, who will break bread with us, eat of our food at our table. This is not a mark of condescension, but of love which we are daily thankful.

PRAYER: Our Father, we are grateful that while we are seeking Thee, Thou art always coming to us in the love of Thy Son. We rejoice in His presence with us as we daily break bread together. Amen.

TORNADO Safety Rules

To Know What To Do When a Warning is Received, or a Tornado is Observed, May Mean the Difference Between Life and Death !!

The Nebraska Civil Defense working through Region 26 communication system will alert all police and fire units if and when a violent storm is heading in our direction. Please abide by the tornado safety rules.

City Tornado Warning Signal

A Solid 3-Minute Or More Blast Of The Siren

(The tornado warning is a non-fluctuating whistle — take shelter immediately.)

If A Tornado Is Sighted Report To CITY POLICE DEPT. — PH. 728-5771 REGION 26 COMMUNICATIONS — 1-942-3435

There is no universal protection against tornadoes except caves or underground excavations. When time permits, go to a tornado cellar, cave, or underground excavation which should have an air outlet to help equalize the air pressure. It should be kept fit for use, free from water, gas, debris; and preferably equipped with pick and shovel.

If You Are in Open Country:

1. Move at right angles to the tornadoes path. Tornadoes usually move ahead at about 25 to 40 miles per hour.
2. If there is no time to escape, lie flat in the nearest depression such as a ditch or ravine.

If in a City or Town:

1. Seek inside shelter, preferably in a steel reinforced building. STAY AWAY FROM WINDOWS!
2. In homes: The southwest corner of the lowest floor or in the basement offers greatest safety. People living in brick or stone houses should seek other shelter, preferably in a storm cellar or the basement of a frame house. If time permits, electricity and fuel lines should be shut off. Windows on the north and east side of the house may also be opened to help reduce damage to the building.
3. Standing against the inside wall on a lower floor of an office building offers some protection.

If in Schools:

1. In city areas: Especially in school buildings if of good steel reinforced construction, stay inside, away from windows, remain near an inside wall on lower floor. AVOID AUDITORIUMS AND GYMNASIUMS.
2. In rural districts—remove children and teachers to ravine or ditch if storm cellar is not available.

Keep tuned to your radio KNLV 1060 or tv station for latest tornado advisory information. Do not call the Weather Bureau, except to report a tornado, as your individual request may tie up telephone lines urgently needed to receive special reports or to relay advisories to radio stations for dissemination to thousands in the critical area.

Stay Under Cover:

When tornadoes strike, many persons are killed by running out into streets and by turning back into the path of a tornado. Even though a warning is issued, chances of a tornado striking one's home or locations are very slight. Tornadoes cover such a small zone, as a rule, that relatively only a few places in a warned area are directly affected. You should know about tornadoes though, "just in case."

Ord Quiz Wins Ak-Sar-Ben Community Service Award

The Ord Quiz won the Ak-Sar-Ben Community Service Award during the annual Nebraska Press Association convention in Lincoln Saturday. Quiz publisher, Kerry Leggett, accepted the plaque from a Knights of Ak-Sar-Ben representative. A check for $200 will go to a project or charity designated by the Quiz at a later date.

Community Service

The award, for outstanding community service in 1978, was given for the Quiz's coverage of needed municipal paving improvements. A series of articles, pictures, and editorials showed deteriorating city streets and urged Ord City Councilmen to pass paving districts and make Ord a better place in which to live.

Coverage opened with an interview with then City Councilman, Willie Skala, and concluded with bids being awarded a paving contractor.

This change, like most, wasn't without some controversy. Paving opponents claimed the council created and passed paving districts without adequate notice. Some hinted deceptive means were used in the process.

The districts were found to be legally sound and work on the districts is scheduled to start in the near future.

One of Many

The Community Service Award is one of many state, local, and national awards won by The Ord Quiz over the years.

Founded in 1882, the Ord Quiz has been in the Leggett family for three generations. H. D. Leggett, grandfather of present Quiz publisher, Kerry Leggett, purchased the paper from W. W. Haskell.

Often Overlooked Health Care Professions Outlined

Six University of Nebraska medical students outlined often overlooked health care profession job opportunities and fielded questions during a meeting at Ord High Wednesday night, April 18. Their appearance was part of a program to let the public know about job opportunities available in the medical profession, according to Mike Zlomke.

The son of Dr. and Mrs. Wayne Zlomke of Ord, Mike explained most people think of possible health care jobs as being a doctor or a nurse. Many more alternatives are available, he said. Mike, a U.N. student, was discussing a leader.

A physical therapist to be, Shanda Freitag, said many graduating high school seniors aren't aware of what injuries in her profession can do. A P.T. can get nursing home residents "up and going," in her words, and in cardiac patient rehabilitation, help teach a Maze childbirth classes, and "do lots of other things," as she put it.

In that last category, a physical therapist can help coaches and players alike in a school's athletic program. Teaching players how to avoid injuries is one often overlooked part of this potential program. Shanda related.

Job opportunities are many in this and other medical fields, according to remarks students made.

Jean Mefford was another medical student in Ord Wednesday. She started medical school last July in Omaha, and plans to become a M.D. She admitted liking the small town life style, but wondered about socializing opportunities there.

There is what she called "a real push" by medical school administrators and others to promote students entering a General Practice field. According to statistics she supplied, this hasn't yet paid off. Out of a class of 153 students, only 25 are going the family practice route.

"The NU Medical College has a lot of statistics," she said showing the rural distribution of doctors and how more will supposedly enter General Practice in a rural area.

Quiz editor Wade Misko lauded the volunteers' data and asked, "Where are the doctors?" Many small towns have trouble attracting one, he noted. After discussion on where they are — or aren't — Zlomke suggested the discussion "was getting into a rut."

Pam Robertson had the floor next. Studying to be a nurse, she said many communities have a real need for more registered nurses. Towns can attract them by allowing nurses to work in a hospital and to establish a private nursing practice for home-bound patients, she said.

Bill French agreed that nurses are needed. RNs at Valley County Hospital and other places are snowed under with paperwork and administrative chores, he contended, curtailing their patient contact.

Don Blaha agreed nurses and other health care professionals are in short supply. Realizing this, many new medical school graduates have what Blaha called "the world owes me a living" attitude. Greg Stine suggested that the person — and not the profession — is responsible for that outlook.

Freitag told those present medical school admissions staff members look for, in her words, "... someone who is empathic, someone who considers the whole patient."

Pam Robertson added that in rural areas there is more of what she called "the total patient concept."

NU pharmacy student Denise Thomas agreed and pointed out health care professions "all work together," in treating a patient.

Loup Project Vote Is Scheduled June 5th

A vote crucial to the continuation of the North Loup Project has been scheduled for June 5, according to Henry Lange Langa and other Directors of the Twin Loups Reclamation District passed a resolution scheduling the election during a meeting in St. Paul Monday.

The vote will be on a contract between the Twin Loups Reclamation District and the Bureau of Reclamation's water service contract. A voter rejection of the contract could slow the coming of the long-planned North Loup irrigation project.

Polling places will be designated in legal notices in the Quiz and other area newspapers, prior to the election.

Scotia Students To Give 1-Acts

The senior class of North Loup Scotia will present "Comedy Tonight," a production which consists of three, one-act plays and several musical numbers. "Comedy Tonight" will be presented Thursday, April 26, at 8 p.m., in the high school auditorium at Scotia.

"Lover, I Can't Hear You," a one-act comedy by Bill Gleason is one of the plays to be presented. This play tells of a wife and mother whose family does not communicate. This play develops the theme in a hilarious manner. The mother is played by Brenda Abel while her husband is played by Kevin Griffiths. Their children are played

Power Plant Opponents Take A Walk

Angry landowners and residents walked out of a Nebraska Public Power District meeting in Comstock last Tuesday, April 17. Their protest came after Sargent Mayor Bernard Griebel, said he was against a pending NPPD power plant to be located near Comstock. Griebel said everyone sharing his feelings could show their protest by walking out of the meeting. According to figures in the April 19 Grand Island Independent more than 50 people did just that.

The meeting at Comstock had been scheduled to give lan-

Teachers-Ed. Board Reach New Salary Agreement

Negotiating terms for the Ord Board of Education and the Ord Education Association (OEA) have reached a tentative salary agreement for the 1979-80 school year, according to board president, Merrill Mason.

The settlement was ratified by the 35-member OEA following two months of negotiations, with final approval pending formal ratification by the board at its regularly scheduled meeting May 14.

Basic to the settlement was the adoption of $900 base pay for a starting teacher with a college degree. This represents a projected increase of seven percent in base pay. Other

Both spokespersons said there will be no changes in health benefits or schedule index, although teachers next year will be given an option to receive Central 10 school activity pass in return for working at three athletic events during the year. Teachers not selecting to accept the pass will not be required to work at athletic events, with teachers working more than the required three times receiving hourly minimum wage.

Extra curricular pay for coaches or other sponsored activities was not negotiated.

The effect of this year's settlement on next year's budget and mill levy can only be determined when the total budget calculations for the current academic year are completed in June.

A total of $590,557 was paid to 47 certified staff members last year, according to Ord Public Schools records. This represents 47% of last year's $1,245,430 budget.

Salaries next year will be paid for working a 187-day year, up two contract days from this year and will be distributed in 12 equal payments.

Skycrane Airlifts New Fort Flagpole

Fort Hartsuff got its new 95 foot flagpole flown in Monday. The pole, weighing an estimated 9,500 pounds, arrived winched to a Sikorsky Skycrane helicopter. The three-man crew landed at the fort around 12:30 p.m.

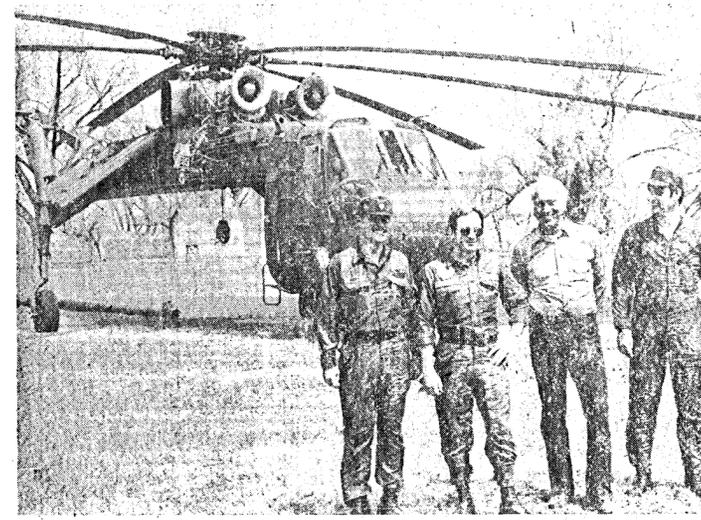

Major Donald Scott, Sargent Lee Tucker, and Gene Roles, from the 137th Aviation Company at Topeka, KS, loaded the pole at York, NE. They arrived at Fort Hartsuff one hour later. A brisk tailwind helped speed that 80 nautical mile trip.

According to Major Scott, the twin turbine helicopter can lift 20,000 pounds. Its engine "has a 4,000 horsepower total."

After unloading their dangling cargo, they had lunch in Elyria, and took a tour of the fort.

After that, they returned to Kansas.

May 27 the troops will gather at Fort Hartsuff. Roye Lindsey and other personnel will dedicate a new historical marker, the flagpole and three newly restored buildings.

Special Ed Students — Who Are They — How Are They Selected?

(This is the second in a four part series on Special Education at Ord High School.)
Who are they? Everybody knows 'em. A Special Ed student is unaccommodated, a guy who can't hack it in regular society. The blank look, and vacant stare are dead giveaways.

At least that's one popular misconception of just who is in Special Ed.

Who really is in it? "Any student in need of a specialized learning program," according to Pyl Burger, Ord High Special Ed teacher.

Her students include those with speech impediments, learning disabilities, and minor physical handicaps. No one major "type" of student is a candidate for Burger's programs. No single identifying handicap can be cited as a common denominator.

In short, a special ed student must lack any other student found in Ord Public Schools, or elsewhere.

How Identified
Students likely to benefit from

The Special Ed program are first identified by a classroom teacher. Continued problems with reading, writing, spelling or other communication skills usually indicate a student could use some extra help.

A parent-teacher conference is next scheduled. The student's progress is reviewed, and the possibility of using Special Ed classes reviewed.

After that, parents, teachers, the psychologist and sometimes the student sit down and decide if Special Education classes are needed.

"One thing I want mentioned," Burger said, "is that parents have full control. All the time. Nothing is done without their written consent."

Should they opt for a Special Ed program, an I.E.P. is drawn up. Standing for Individual Educational Plan, it states specific objectives and goals for each student.

Avoided, according to Burger are broad generalizations. Objectives like, "The goal of this week program is to get the student reading on a grade level" are more often used.

Ways to meet these goals are next outlined. Tape recorders, films, and one on one student-teacher sessions may be used along with other materials.

Students with a learning disability, students physically handicapped, or those who are socially maladjusted often benefit.

Burger mentioned those in the last category were usually known as "the obnoxious kid" or "the class troublemaker" in former days.

All programs and goals must have written parental approval, according to Burger.

"They aren't just for the mentally handicapped," Burger said, "or for those kids usually called just dumb. Special Ed programs are for any student who would or could benefit from them — academically, vocationally or socially."

Dawn Mella State Level Winner in K of C God-Country Essay Contest

Thirteen year old Dawn Mella entered the local Knights of Columbus essay contest last February and ended up walking away with second place state-wide honors. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Mella was honored during the annual Knights of Columbus awards banquet Sunday at St. Mary's School in Ord.

The St. Mary's eighth grader wrote on the theme, "What God and My Country Mean to Me."

A first place winner on the local level, Dawn's entry advanced to state level competition in April. Judges awarded her second place in state-level competition April 14.

The prize-winning writer lists her interests as playing basketball, reading, and playing the guitar.

Here is her essay:
What is Patriotism to God and My Country Mean to Me.

By Dawn Mella
Mr. Webster would say it's "love of one's own country and devotion to its welfare."

If you're younger this might not be quite clear. Simply it means to be a good neighbor to the people and your surroundings.

Now if you apply patriotism to God it would mean loving or being a good neighbor to God.

Become your best self and using yourself to better the relationship with God and our country.
Say there was an American flag lying on the ground. Would you pick it up? I hope you would. If there was ever another war, would you fight in it? Think about it. This doesn't mean just to be patriotic, you have to save your flag or your country. Maybe you won't get a chance to do something like that. Just picking up a piece of trash will make you aware of the need to better your country.

Patriotism to God is similar to the patriotism toward one's country. We must work up to our capacity in society with what abilities and talents God has given us. You must make yourself the kind of individual in your opinion. God would like you to be, yet you still should be the kind of person you yourself will like. God gave everyone some talent. Working with these talents to better you and your country is a sign of your patriotic feeling toward your country. Not exposing these hidden talents given to you to use as assets would be a grave mistake. You should try and advance the talents God gave you to your full potential and use them to improve this beautiful country we call the United States of America.

Christian Artist Fuses Talent With Electronic Innovations

Bill Leach used sight, sound, and a soft sell approach to share his Christian faith during a three program series at Ord High earlier this week. The filmmaker, "radio-visual artist" said he uses animated drawings to share his faith.

His emphasis on the low-key is a sharp contrast to the "hyped" style of many evangelists. Leach contended people are attracted more by art and curiosity than they are by alternate styles.

He is on the road most of the year telling his story to both high school and college students. The appearances are equally divided between the two groups.

Bill was converted to Christianity in the early 1940s from what he called "an aimless playboy lifestyle." He worked for Universal Studios in Hollywood then, helping create stage settings.

After that, he went to Twentieth Century Fox where he specialized in animation. His skill saved twentieth century actors a trip to Egypt. Leach blended filmed camels onto a stage background for the film classic "Sinbad."

Movie goers saw the animals plodding through the "desert" while actors and actresses spoke their lines on a sound stage in California.

In another film he "built" a skyscraper in New York City. The building in reality was a painting on canvas. Skillful use of camera angles made movie goers see the tall structure being "built" before their eyes.

Hector Serberoff was a giant in the film industry. He could do almost anything. Through the skill of men like Serberoff and Leach, ships were sunk, buildings constructed, and mind-boggling catastrophes staged in California based movie sets.

"But the most significant work I've ever done, I'm doing now," Leach said. The results are more meaningful, according to Leach, "and," he added, "I get excited about it because it has life to it."

Using rear and front projectors, lighting, and a stereo sound system, Leach makes his chalk drawings come alive. A quiet like scene opens at dawn. Birds call and other early morning sounds can be heard as the sun slowly rises over the placid lake.

Two fishermen glide across the water in a canoe, reach their boat, and fry their catch over a camp fire.

The quiet scene is interrupted by a thunderstorm. Lightning flashes in the sky.

Other special effects enhanced drawings include a space shot and the crucifixion. All come to life under the special effects supervision of Leach.

Recalling his years in Hollywood, Leach said, "In the careers of most stars there are 10 real good years and then they get tired of all the publicity. The glitter starts to wear off. The stars start wondering if that's all there is, and wondering what it's really all about. I think I have the answer."

ONLY SKIN DEEP . . . While attending the convention for people of the press, I found that after a couple of days I had time to spare and indeed the weather weary look.

With the formal awards banquet that evening I decided to go to a nearby beauty services salon and have my hair styled imagining this would give me the beauty and new life for this very special event.

To prepare for this time in the salon, I selected some reading material. The first article was not what I had expected. It began — "Have you got inches, solid pounds, pits, fluid ounces, ripples, bulges, bumps, lumps and flab? Are wastes, water and fat sitting it out together in strange-looking lumps on your upper arms, knees, hips and thighs?"

Then, of course, the article went on to offer ideas for losing weight. One suggestion was the use of special baths of very hot dry heat, for as much as 20 minutes, followed by rolling in the snow to rid as much as three pints of fluid from your body.

Another idea began in big black block letters. "A little stitch in time is all it is — but it's enough to change your whole view of life." The beauty lift went on — "Have you been peering out from under droopy lids or peeking out over puffy ones? Cheer up and look up. In less than two hours you can get the life you need by admitting to blepharoplasty. (Eye surgery that is).

The beauty operator was brushing, re-brushing and styling my hair and seemed pleased with her results. But those just read, which I had hoped.

I put on my dark glasses (yes, my eyes did have that droopy, puffy look) and snugged my coat around me to hide the lumps and bumps I was now seeing so clearly. I hurried back to the hotel to retreat to our room.

Ord Girls Exceed Coach's Prediction

Ord girls did better Thursday than their coach, Richard Cecetka, dared hope. One week ago he voiced hopes that his track team would finish in the top half of schools entered at the Grand Island Northwest Invitational.

When results were posted, Ord finished fourth out of ten teams entered in the meet. What's more, they missed third place by a mere three points. Hastings St. Cecilia was first with 101 points, G.I. Central Catholic was second with 88. In third place was fourth Northwest with 47 1/2 points, Ord was fourth with 44 1/2 points.

"We could have done better," Cecetka told the Quiz. High winds and a fast spreading flu bug slowed the team's performance.

All Ord relay teams placed at the meet. Top achievers were Gloria and Glenda Wetzel, along with Pam Meese and Robin Upham. The four finished the mile relay in 4:24.8 for second place.

Their showing was remarkable in that only one of the four was an original member of the team. Flu and injuries were blamed for the high team turnover.

All mile relayers did well, according to Cecetka. He singled out Robin Upham for additional praise, saying, "She's been more consistent recently."

The Ord High junior placed first in the 400 yard dash with a time of 1:04.1, and second in the 850 yard run. Her time there was 2:39.0.

Jean Dubas was another second place winner with a time of 5:58.3 in the mile run. She took third in the 800 yard run in 2:40.7.

Kathy Hornickel got an appreciative nod from Cecetka for her time of 11.9 in the 100 yard dash. Had weather conditions been better, she might have done even better, Cecetka speculated.

After individual competition, came the team relays.

Ord scored second in the mile and took fifth in the 800. Pam Meese, Gloria Wetzel, Glenda Wetzel and Sue Hill finished the course in 1:59.9.

In the two-mile relay Ord girls ranked sixth. Kathy Hansen, Jean Dubas, Marcia Mason, and Sue Sevensen had a time of 12:02.2.

Another sixth place winner was the 400 relay squad. Pam Meese, Deb Meese, Sue Hill, and Kathy Hornickel clocked in with 56.1.

Other, non-spring, performances, were in:

— 200, Glenda Wetzel, Deb Meese, and Pam Meese all improved their times and just missed getting into the finals.

Hurdles, Nancy Gogan ran her best time of the year, 13.2, and missed getting into the finals by an eyelash.

Sue Hill was another improving performer mentioned by Cecetka. She ran her best times in both the 100 yard dash and the 400 yard run, she stated.

Sue Sevensen ran her best time yet in the 100 yard dash, and had her farthest long jump, 13'3". She also filled in for an injured half miler, enabling Ord to finish sixth in that event.

The half mile was the longest distance Sue has run so far, according to Cecetka.

The gal tracksters face a conference meet at Aurora Saturday. It's getting down to the place where we'll have to run our best," Cecetka observed.

Preschoolers from the Humpty Dumpty classes got a first-hand look at law enforcement last week. They and their teachers heard Ord Police Officer Leroy Svoboda explain the fine points of police work. The red lights on top of the squad car were a real crowd pleaser.

North Loup-Scotia Boys Give Outstanding Show at Central

Thursday the North Loup-Scotia boys' track team went to Central City for the Palmer Invitational and had one of the best team performances they have had this year. The NLS boys placed 4th in the 10 team meet, being beat only by three class A teams, (Genoa, Palmer, and Stromsburg). Five of the class D teams that NLS beat will be in their district on May 9 at Central City.

Once again, most of the Wildcat points were scored in the field events. Lead scorer in the field events was Mike Holmes, 20 1/2. Other top scorers were: Daren Thompson, Mike Schaefer, and Daren Thompson. Mike Schaefer set a school record in the triple jump, as he went 42'11 1/2" to win the event. Daren had a personal best of 45'9" to win the shot put. Mike also added a second place in the long jump at 13'1/2" and third in the high jump, as he cleared 5'6". Other points in the field events came from Terry Meyer as he placed 3rd in the shot and 4th in discus with throws of 111'1/2" and 115' respectively.

Two 5th places came on the track from Kevin Williams in the mile run with a time of 5:36.4 and the 2-mile relay of Kevin Williams, Kent Jorgensen, Rick Mettetter and Robert Timmons with a time of 9:56.1. Ord's Promising Potential Blooms With Second at Scotia Invitational

Ord junior girls got off to a promising start Saturday at the Broken Bow Invitational track meet and capped that performance with a sparkling exhibition at Scotia Tuesday.

The junior girls had everything going against them at Broken Bow Saturday, but placed four girls. For openers, this was their first track meet of the season. Foul weather had forced the cancellation of four earlier meets.

Ord coach Angie Baleshore touched on another factor. "We're a young team," she explained. "For many girls this was their first track team ever." Her squad has 14 seventh graders and three eighth graders.

Saturday the sun shone and so did Ord's prospects for the rest of the season. Granted, Ord was fifth, dead last, with 18 points, but meet results gave an indication of some promising potential.

Pauline Penas throwing the shot for the first time. She got third with a throw of 25'3". Coach Baleshore called that "a good start."

Shannon Maxner taking sixth place in the high jump for first try at the event ever. The newcomer jumped four feet.

Patti Wagner, a seventh grader, taking sixth in the 1300 yard run with a time of 4:47.8.

Deb Mason, taking fifth place in the 800 with a time of 2:58.1.

Two relay teams placed fourth at the meet. The 440 squad of Ellen Green, Jennifer Hansen, Lisa Rasmussen, Jeanine Leppstrom placed fourth with a time of 1:01.96.

The 800 relay squad was fourth with a time of 2:14.20. Team members were Deb Mason, Julie Boilesan, Kim Kerchak, Patti Wagner.

The junior girls lived up to their earlier potential Thursday they got a solid second place. Ord had 37 points and host North Loup-Scotia 80 1/2 for first place. Ord's nearest competitor was Palmer, a distant third with 16 points.

Greeley with 7 1/2 points was fourth.

Nearly every Ord junior team member place at the meet Tuesday. Like who?

Like Jeanine Lenstrom, fourth in the long jump with 12'9 1/2".

Shannon Maxner in the high jump, third, 3'10".

Two Teams Lead Optimist League

The red and purple teams continue to lead the Optimist basketball league with five and four wins each, respectively. The gold team, after starting out with four losses this season, has won three straight games. They trail the blue team, which has a three and three record, by a scant one-half game.

The green team still stands winless with a 0-6 record for the season. But numbers can be deceiving. The girls have lost four games by one point each time.

The Optimist basketball league tournament will start next week for all teams.

Wildcat Gals Tie for Fourth - Set New School Record at Callaway

The North Loup-Scotia girls track team scored 100 points and tied for fourth place last Wednesday. The girls scored the strongest finish in their school's history at the Callaway meet.

In team scoring statistics, SEM had 70 points, Ansley 58, Amesbury 54, and North Loup-Scotia along with Kearney Catholic 42. Sixteen schools took part in the windy cinder track invitational.

Times and distances were hindered by strong winds, but the NLS finished well according to their coach Kathy Rackness.

Denise Knee, a freshman harrier, came away with first place honors in the 80 yard hurdles. Running against the top individual in class D from SEM, Denise was clocked at 12.3.

Denise also collected a second place finish in the 100 yard dash (12.4) and third in the 220 yard dash (29.8).

Karen Clement experienced a few problems with cinders and wind, as she was second to an outstanding SEM thimble. The NLS student covered the course in 29.7.

After a false start in the 100 yard, which disqualified her, Karen took first place honors in the triple jump, 30.7.

Carrie Sheldon continues to improve in the throwing events. She didn't qualify for the finals, but looks better each week, according to her coach.

Monday, the girls went against Greeley. A full account of that meet elsewhere in a Quiz sports story.

Varsity Boys Finish Eighth at Northwest

Ord varsity boys finished eighth out of 13 teams at the Grand Island Northwest Invitational Thursday. Ord had 21 points.

Most points were earned in running, according to Ord coach, Gary Patch. Ord placed fourth in the two-mile run and sixth in the mile. Greg Linke did the honors in both races.

It was Mike again on the two-mile relay. He, Pat Crane, Kevin Sich, and Bob Berard got fourth with a time of 9:03.

In the 120 yard hurdles, Kurt Kremke was fifth and Greg Pettska sixth, adding still more points to Ord's total.

Kurt Kremke scored again in the pole vault. He soared to his best record this year, 13 feet.

While that mark is impressive, coach Gary Patch is worried it might not be good enough at the Longeneer Invitational Saturday. Five of the top pole vaulters in this district will be there.

Ord used to be in a district centered at Albion, according to Patch. This year, Ord was switched to a district centered at Lexington. The switch happens frequently, according to Patch, because Ord is right on the district's border.

Whatever the district, 10 class B schools will be in Holdrege this Saturday. This will likely be one of the toughest meets Ord will face this year.

Arcadia High Holds Carnival

By Janelle Owens

The Arcadia High School Student Council held their annual Carnival Friday, April 20 at 8 p.m.

Games such as the Fishing Pond, Tic Tac Toss, and Breathe the Ice were featured. The Duck Pond proved a favorite with the children once again this year.

The night proved to be a good opportunity for some people. The dart board and Nickel Toss were frequented often during the two hour Carnival. The Carnival was not only successful for the lucky winners, but also for the Student Council. According to Mrs. Betty Landon, sponsor for the Student Council, the Carnival grossed $322.14.

With this event behind them, the Arcadia student body looks to Thursday, April 26, for more excitement. That night the Athletic Banquet will begin at 6 o'clock. The guest speaker for the O'Leary sponsored event will be Claire Boroff, head football coach at Kearney State College.

A woman who gives you more than half the road is probably parked better than usual.

Often Overlooked Careers

The suggested small town hospitals can often use a full time pharmacist. They could dispense medicine to patients, and make sure they were being taken properly.

She supplied figures showing pharmacists spend only 50 to 60 hours annually at the Valley County hospital. A resident hospital pharmacist could generate revenue for the hospital, she contended, and easily pay their position. This would be done by linking costs of prescriptions filed on a minimal charge, she contended, would pay the pharmacist's salary, and create more hospital revenue.

Ann Ewert, a fellow pharmacy student, said she was impressed with Ord. All students thanked those attending the session for their interest.

Mark Sanders Publishes His First Book of Poems

Mark Sanders, formerly of Ord, has published his first book of poems, 'First Hunt', available from Sandhills Press. A 1973 graduate of Ord High School, Sanders received his B.A. in Education from Kearney State College in December of 1976.

After graduating from Kearney State, Sanders substitute taught in the Arcadia and Ord school systems during the spring semester of 1977, and then taught English and Journalism at Bladen Public School, Bladen, NE during the 1977-78 academic year.

Since leaving Bladen, Sanders has published poetry in various poetry journals throughout the Midwest, including Hiram Poetry Review in Ohio, Blue Unicorn in California, Riversedge and Cedar Rock in Texas, and Rectangle and Pteranodon in Illinois, as well as in such Nebraska journals as Pebble, Antelope, Plain Valley Review, and Writings from the Great Plains. A critical article which examines poetry written by Nebraska poets William Kloeckorn, Ted Kooser, and Don Welch, was published in Northeast, a journal edited by the University of Wisconsin-LaCrosse poet and lecturer John Judson. Recently, Sanders has done poetry readings for the Nebraska Poets' Association and the University of Nebraska Omaha Writers' Workshop at Omaha, and was one of the featured poets reading at Kearney's "Spring Festival: Showcase of the Arts" which was sponsored by the Kearney Area Arts Council. This summer, Sanders will be editing The Sandhills & Other Geographies: An Anthology of Nebraska Poetry as the first in a series of annual journals of Poets of the Great Plains for Sandhills Press. This first issue will be devoted exclusively to Nebraska poets, and will feature approximately 160 pages of poetry written by more than 25 Nebraska poets.

Currently teaching Freshman Composition as a graduate assistant in the English Department at Kearney State College, Sanders will receive his Master of Arts Degree in English on May 11, 1979. As partial fulfillment toward that degree, he has put together a second book of poems entitled 'I Have Been Here Enough to Know to serve as his Master's thesis, and hopes to publish this in-part sometime in the future. Although other future plans are yet indefinite, Sanders does plan on continuing his education to work toward the completion of a Ph.D degree in English.

Sanders is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Willis Sanders of Ord.

While in the southern recording center, he attended a session of the Grand Ol' Opry and visited various other musical landmarks. The teacher contended both country and rock and roll lyrics portray extreme stereotypes. Love, if found, is usually the answer to all problems, according to both musical mediums, and when found it lasts forever. Should a spouse in either musical category be found wanting, he or she is portrayed as having few redeeming qualities, in lyrics some writers have penned.

While both musical classes deal in extreme stereotypes, they view those ends differently. In rock and roll lyrics, according to the teacher, the fickle female is usually running around or up to no good.

Country-western, on the other hand, it is usually the man who is unfaithful to his wife or sweetheart. True to her stereotype self, the country-western wife is dutifully tending the home fires while waiting for her man, Dr. Wanzendorf stated.

Torn between two lovers and in the middle of a heartache, the lyrics usually present someone with a problem, but suggest few concrete or realistic solutions. With all this frustration, small wonder the Sons of the Pioneers contemplated Heading For The Last Roundup.

Both rock and roll and country-western were idealistic from 1955 to 1964, according to Dr. Wanzendorf. Then came the turbulent sixties marked by protest and rapid social change.

From 1964 to 1969 balladeers spoke of wanting to make it with you and having other earthy and perhaps more realistic requests.

The troublesome sixties passed, song writers returned to their usual diet of romance and unrequited love. The hard realism of lyrics from the 1960s began to fade. "The songs reflect society," Dr. Wanzendorf explained. Ergo, the shift in lyrics, the teacher stated.

Professor Seachers Song Lyrics for Trends-Shifts in American Life

If Dr. Wanzendorf is right, there could be more to popular music than meets the ear. The University of Nebraska-Omaha professor suspects that disc jockeys spinning their stacks of records could be broadcasting reflections of the society of which they are a part.

The communications specialist has spent hours searching song lyrics for clues to society's shifts over the years. In Ord Thursday for a communications workshop, he took time out to explain his study of popular music.

During a Quiz interview, Dr. Wanzendorf said, "I think people who are searching for meaning to their lives could hear messages in pop songs."

Ignoring both the beat and the tune, Dr. Wanzendorf concentrated on rock and roll lyrics for his doctoral dissertation.

From 1972-73 he listened to endless hours of rock and roll classics, carefully jotting down the lyrics. Finding copies of the bygone classics wasn't easy. Few libraries had permanent files of records or sheet music.

"I finally got lucky," Dr. Wanzendorf recalled. "I ran on to a kid in Omaha with five thousand old 45 rpm records."

He supplied him with material for his doctoral dissertation. Even with a large supply of records, his job wasn't easy. Trying to hear and carefully jot down lyrics by singers slurring their words was difficult. "A driving rhythm section, usually a strong bass and a telephone-booming away in the background didn't help either."

His dissertation completed, the study was enlarged to include country-western songs. Gathering information on this musical medium proved somewhat easier.

Trips to Nashville opened files in many musical publishing and recording companies. Their collections, often extensive, made his second study less frustrating.

He was in Ord Thursday on a more serious note, conducting a communications workshop. The all-day session taught those in attendance that making themselves understood isn't always easy.

Dr. Wanzendorf contended we communicate using our entire physical and mental selves, and not just through words alone.

Illustrating just how hard it is to make ourselves understood, a group of four people had to give oral instructions on how to assemble a puzzle. After false hints and a maze of mismatched puzzle pieces, those receiving the oral instructions learned that what people thought they said isn't always what the other person hears or understands.

downers a chance to change their mind about granting NPPD permission to conduct studies on their land. The studies were to help decide which of two sites would be used for the pending coal-fired power plant. Both are near Comstock.

NPPD spokesman, Bill Fish, estimated 135 people attended the session. After an NPPD presentation the audience was reportedly asked for questions.

Then came Griebel's suggestion and the exodus. NPPD officials have indicated the right of eminent domain could be used to conduct needed studies should landowners withhold their permission.

NPPD-landowner negotiations are scheduled to begin in May, according to Fish. Should these break down, the matter will be taken to court, Fish reportedly said.

Some landowners in the Comstock-Sargent area are against the plant. They contend the plant may not be needed, and that plant-related pumping will seriously lower the area's ground water level, raising havoc with existing irrigation wells.

NPPD officials have stated the plant is needed to meet Nebraska's power demands.

WEATHER

Before last week's high winds subsided there were tornado threats and sightings in Central Nebraska on Thursday with one twister reportedly touching down on the Delivan-Kingston farm near Arcadia, but no damage reported.

Thursday's front brought near-finch rains to some local areas, but only .72 was recorded by the Quiz. Warner weather allowed field work to get underway as winds subsided Friday and temperatures warmed through the weekend.

Scattered showers moving through Nebraska Wednesday were expected to be followed by a slight cooling trend with clear skies and highs in the 60's through the coming weekend.

Data Withholding Charge Is Denied

Bureau of Reclamation officials have denied recent allegations that they are withholding information from the public on lands to be taken for the North Loup Project. Dave Wilde, Project Manager for the Bureau's Central Nebraska Projects Office in Grand Island, says that the recent advertisement sponsored by Farmers and Ranchers to Save the Loup and Calamus, Inc., suggesting that information on lands for fish and wildlife mitigation were being withheld from the public by Reclamation simply is not true. Wilde says this apparently is a reference by the opposition of the project to information contained in a preliminary interagency coordinating report which has not yet been received by the Bureau, and he says this use of the information appears to be a deliberate attempt to frustrate a minimum of the landowners of the North Loup River Valley.

"There are lands tentatively scheduled to be taken for mitigation of wildlife habitat," Wilde said. "The plan of development for the North Loup Division, as authorized by Congress, does not include specific mitigation lands. If such a plan is recommended, it would have to be approved by the Secretary of the Interior and then submitted to Congress."

Wilde said Reclamation has been cooperating with State and Federal agencies in a reanalysis of the fish and wildlife aspects of the North Loup Division, and a fish and wildlife study report is scheduled for completion in September 1979.

The study is not yet complete and has not been reviewed or accepted. Wilde said that if Reclamation receives a recommendation to acquire land for mitigation purposes, the public and specific landowners involved would be notified and invited to participate in the decisionmaking process.

Nebraska Game and Parks Commission would also be asked for concurrence of any recommendation prior to submission to the Secretary of the Interior for consideration.

Wilde said he would be glad to respond to questions or concerns regarding acquisition of lands by the Bureau for construction of the authorized North Loup Project. Inquiry should be addressed to him at Central Nebraska Projects Office in Grand Island.

Project Won't Displace Pivots

According to Henry Lunge, the pending Calamus Irrigation project won't displace any center pivot irrigation systems. Lunge, in a Quiz interview last week, revealed no center pivot systems will be destroyed or hampered by the ditch or canal system of waterways.

The project oronment said he learned of the latest development in a recent meeting in Scotia with project and Bureau of Reclamation officials.

The Opportunity Is Now

NEBRASKA FARM BUREAU FEDERATION
By M. M. Van Kirk, Director of Information

Farmers and ranchers of Nebraska and the other 4 states of the Old West Region and the general economies of those livestock oriented states have much to gain by establishment of the proposed veterinary medical college at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

Authorization of such a facility depends on approval by the Nebraska Legislature in this session of LB 357 which would authorize the University of Nebraska Board of Regents to enter into agreements with governing regent bodies of North Dakota, South Dakota, Wyoming and Montana to construct and operate such a facility on the University of Nebraska's East Campus. LB 357 conditions the construction of such facilities on participation by at least 3 of the 5 states and on federal funding of at least 50 percent of the construction costs.

Total construction costs have been estimated at $28,302,610 and Nebraska's share is estimated at $6,202,000. The University of Nebraska's recently completed new facilities of its Animal Health Research Center and Veterinary Diagnostic Laboratory with their superb programs lend themselves well to location of the proposed veterinary college at Lincoln.

Consideration of the need for a program of veterinary medical education in Nebraska has been a topic of discussion for over 25 years. It received renewed emphasis during the last 5 years as a result of a series of studies supported by the Old West Regional Commission.

The State of Nebraska through the UN Board of Regents presently contracts with Iowa State University, Kansas State University and the University of Minnesota for acceptance of Nebraska residents into their programs of veterinary medicine. Also, a reciprocity exists with the University of Missouri for exchange of students in certain programs. During recent years, an average of about 25 Nebraska students per year have been accepted on either contractual arrangements or through the reciprocity agreement with these colleges. Nebraska currently has a total of 88 students paid for by contractual agreements and 10 others are at the University of Missouri under the reciprocity agreement. During the current year, the cost to the State has been around $804,000 and for the next fiscal year the cost is expected to be in excess of $900,000. Each student accepted to an existing institution pays resident tuition and fees, costs of books and instruments and living expenses.

Contractual agreements are of a relatively short-term nature. Contracts with Colorado State University and Oklahoma State University for receiving students for Nebraska were terminated by those institutions 3 years ago.

Nebraska's $2.9 billion per year livestock industry and the major livestock industries in the other Old West states together would seem to justify establishment and operation of a regional medical college accepting their qualified students and turning out trained veterinarians to serve their needs. The general farm organizations, the Age 40 Group, and the Veterinary College Task Force have been supporting the proposal and working for its enactment. The Veterinary College Task Force has launched a private campaign to raise $3 million to apply toward the capital construction costs.

Supporters of the regional veterinary college see the proposal as an opportunity to assure that there will be adequate numbers of practicing "large animal" veterinarians to serve the expanding livestock populations in the 5-state region where great distances and time factors are always problems in providing essential services, particularly in emergency situations. The opportunity exists now and should not be lost through inaction.

Volunteers Find Satisfaction
Through 4-H

"When I was young, people helped me, now it's my turn." "It will give me a chance to learn new skills." "They want and need me." Whatever the reason may be, thousands of people, both young and old, volunteer each year throughout our state and country. Many of those people are volunteers for 4-H, a part of the Cooperative Extension Service of the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources.

Without those adult and junior leaders, advisory council members, project leaders, activity chairmen, special interest group leaders, and parents are finding satisfaction and self-confidence as 4-H volunteers. Each year adult and junior leaders would not be the effective youth program it is.

4-H VIP WEEK IN NEBRASKA is April 22-28. What could be a better time to recognize 4-H volunteers and their contributions they make to the young people of our state. By investing in the lives of young people, they're helping to decide the quality of leadership in our communities and in our state for the next fifty years.

Lawn Calendar
Fertilizer (20-5-5) can be applied at five pounds per 1000 square feet. Thus pounds of complete fertilizer (20-5-5) can then be applied in mid-May and in mid-June. Too much fertilizer will stress grass plants and can encourage "melting" or "disease." A "slow release" fertilizer is recommended.

Weed Control - April 20 - May 10 use a preemergence herbicide for year around weed control of weeds. Follow directions on container, use a lawn spreader, the drift type. Repeat application July 1 for late germinating weeds, especially prostrate spurge.

Disease Control - April 15 - May 1 - May 20 for Helminthosporium Leaf Spot or Melting Out disease apply Daconil 2787, Dyrone, Maneb, or Fersan LSR. Copies of the 1979 Lawn Calendar are available at the Extension Office.

Insect Question
What is the name of a snout-beetle, black, about 1/4 inch (7mm) long? Adults are slow moving and will frequently play "possum" when molested. At times they may be observed walking on sidewalks or drives, especially in the fall. Damage to bluegrass lawns is stem and root feeding done by larvae.

The answer to the insect question is - The Bluegrass Billbug. Control: the most reliable control is to apply an insecticide in mid-May to kill wintering adults before eggs are deposited. After larvae are present in stems or root areas control is almost impossible as chemicals do not penetrate the thatch area to reach the larvae. In these cases it is probably wise to water and fertilize to stimulate new growth rather than depend upon insecticides.

4-H Volunteers To Be Recognized

Four-H volunteers throughout Nebraska will be recognized for their contributions to youth development during "4-H VIP WEEK IN NEBRASKA," scheduled for April 22-28. According to Dr. William E. Caldwell, assistant director, 4-H and Youth Development, Cooperative Extension Service, 4-H VIP WEEK IN NEBRASKA is a named way of saying thank you when volunteers are often taken for granted. "We believe we should plan a special week recognizing our 4-H leaders because they are very special people in the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources staff member said.

Volunteers have always been an important part of the 4-H program. Historically, they have been club leaders, working directly with youth. Today, the 4-H volunteer's role is changing and expanding. "Volunteers can choose from many different roles, each with different responsibilities," Dr. Caldwell said. "We will always remain strong as an organization supporting our 4-H club leaders, or they may serve in supporting roles for other adults, helping to recruit and assist new leaders."

Volunteers can participate in the 4-H Council, a county-wide planning group, or if they have expertise in a certain subject area, they can lead a special interest group. Volunteers also serve as county project chairmen, supervising activities in a specific subject area, such as beef, for the entire county.

Volunteers are a very important part of the 4-H program. Through volunteerism young people develop their own skills while teaching others. It provides a chance for leadership and interaction among all age groups. Dr. Caldwell said, "Volunteering serves as a way for teens to test career opportunities and provides a way for them to teach the project and leadership skills to others," he continued.

4-H Volunteers experience growth in their own lives, enlarge their own self-concepts, and improve their own skills. They make a lasting investment in the lives of children and a long term investment in the community. "There is an internal satisfaction in knowing you have accomplished something which makes a difference. I believe there is no program better suited for the life and growth of a child or an adult than 4-H," Dr. Caldwell said.

According to Alan Martens, Valley County Extension Agent, the opportunities for voluntarily helping others in 4-H are constantly increasing and changing. "More and more young people need the type of guidance and friendship an adult or older teen can provide," Mr. Martens said.

Being a 4-H volunteer is fun, satisfying, and frustrating; it's sharing the joys as well as the failures of young people and adults, the Agent added. Sprinkler and Trickle Irrigation is the subject of this week's series from Texas A & M.

Sprinkler irrigation application efficiencies are in general higher than current surface methods, averaging 70 percent with a range of 55 to 90 percent. Wind conditions disturb uniformity of water distribution and lead to the lower values of efficiency. The highest efficiencies are obtained on soils of high infiltration rate and under relatively high depth of application. Evaporation loss from sprinklers is normally 5 to 10 percent of the discharge, but with small droplets plus wind, loss may reach 30 percent.

"Center-pivot sprinkler systems have become very popular in the past ten years because they require little labor. Studies of application efficiencies and other performance characteristics of center-pivot systems in several state water resources research institutes have resulted in improvements to equipment and performance. The major limitation to efficiency has been high instantaneous application rates exceeding the infiltration rate of the soil, resulting in surface runoff.

"Infiltration characteristics of soils under sprinkler application were studied at the Colorado Institute in order to determine the alternatives in system design and operation which might be available. Various design modifications were tested, and recommendations for improvements were made covering system capacity and sprinkler selection.

"Recommendations were also made for improvements in field preparation which will improve the operating conditions for rotating lines. Operating criteria to improve overall performance and reduce the amount of local surface runoff were also developed."

"Trickle Irrigation. A new technology called trickle irrigation is gaining popularity around the world because it places irrigation water only where it is needed - in the near vicinity of plant roots. Application efficiency therefore may be expected to approach 100 percent. The system of small tubing with trickle or "drip" outlets uses a minimum of water because only soil near the roots is wetted and there is little evaporation from the soil. This water conservation method was initially used only on high value orchard crops, but the use is expanding to other fruit and vegetable crops.

"The trickle system is capable of precise control of soil moisture by frequent small applications of water. This introduces the possibility of allowing the crop to grow under controlled stress (water shortage) during certain growth stages when yield is not affected.

"Research at the Texas Institute evaluated the effects of high frequency trickle irrigation on grain sorghum growth and yield. Under high frequency irrigation, yield was increased if a water deficit occurred during the boot-to-bloom growth period.

Water use efficiency was increased by applying small frequent applications of water allowing deficits to occur outside the boot-to-bloom period.

"Results of the study show that irrigation water requirements can be reduced by almost one-half without appreciable loss in yield if the irrigation water is supplied optimally for the plant needs throughout the season."

The Award

A front page news item in this issue of the Ord Quiz tells of this paper winning an Ak-Sar-Ben Community Service Award at the Nebraska Press Convention in Lincoln Saturday. The award, for outstanding community service in 1978, was given for the Quiz's coverage of needed municipal street improvements.

As with most awards, a few people share the spotlight and get the publicity. Others are overlooked whose work helped make the recognition possible.

In this case, the entire Quiz family should have been center stage Saturday. Composers, proof readers, and the many other Quiz employees make this paper and the award possible: They deserve a vote of thanks.

No less important were local residents and their elected officials. They realized Ord had a problem and did something about it. I only hope this attitude continues.

Ord is a wonderful place in which to live, but a town that rests on its laurels and fondly recalls the past has little to offer the future.

There are several problems currently confronting this town. Some have suggested this paper ignore them, or, perhaps, gloss over certain unpleasant facts. This attitude could be charitably described as asinine. This paper has — and will — take stands on issues, let the chips fall where they may.

Walking away from an issue or pretending that it doesn't exist never helps anything. Nor do citizens afraid or unwilling to speak their piece. These gutless wonders frequently expound their views the local coffee shop, but refrain from making an honest public statement.

Want an election? Disagree with an editorial? Have a bone to pick with an elected local body, board, or official? For God's sake, speak up and make your views known.

Last, I would like to thank Quiz publisher Kerry Leggett for his help, guidance, and support on the paving issues and others currently facing this paper, and for giving me a chance to win the award presented Saturday.

Positive Suggestion

The negative Quiz would like to make a positive suggestion. Although we may stand accused of straining at gnats, we contend it would be a good idea if the school board's vote on not rehiring Jim Ochsner were put in the board minutes. No record of that is found in those of April 9 meeting at Ord High.

Granted, their unanimous vote is well known now, but in future years, or for various legal purposes, an official record of the matter might be a useful item.

Something Different

Here Come the Spas

Have you noticed the great upswing to those exhilarating, altogether delightful little round tubs full of hot swirling water?

It seems like everyone in the U.S. is getting one. And they are just great, great. They are relaxing, exhausting (if you stay in too long), comforting, pleasant. They take away aches and pains. They make arms and legs work that didn't want to, and backs gain resiliency.

So I like them. I think the first whirlpool bath I encountered was at the side of that lovely big swimming pool of Dr. Murray Markley, when he and his wife Eunice moved to their Ord home, built by Lloyd and Naomi Geweke. It was luxurious, with a table and bench perched beside it for those who had a drink to imbibe. Pure pleasure.

Next I found one in the Champaign, Ill. home of a friend, my longtime travelling companion Alice Barlow.

She too had built an extravagant house complete with every modern additive, among them a Jacuzzi on the edge of a big bathtub, which I duly enjoyed.

Now you know they've had whirlpool baths in gymnasiums for years, for the benefit of athletes. Those lucky guys.

Then we were very happy when we visited Ed and Margit Swopes in Tucson, Arizona to indulge in pleasant dunkings in the fine Jacuzzi Ed had installed in their large back lawn. It was round, plenty big enough for six or eight. Benches around the edge furnished fine perching places, a good place to relax and converse. Which we did, both in the sunny days and the balmy Tucson evenings with the moon watching us. It is a beautiful pool.

Coming to San Diego, friends promptly took us out Jamul (say Ham-ull) way to a famous recreation spot, Pio Pico Park. Weekends it is full of people playing baseball, picnicking, doing all the Sunday things. AND it has a very fine whirlpool bath suitable for 12 or more, in a duly secluded spot beside a swimming pool. We enjoyed it so much with our friends, staying overnight, going in several times.

And then, joy of joys, we moved into a mobilehome park with a fine bean-shaped swimming pool all blue and clean, (not locked up like the one in the last park we lived in) and with a fine, large Jacuzzi which is kept about 103 or 104 degrees F. day and night. Do we ever enjoy it. We are likely to be found there almost anytime between eight a.m. and ten p.m.

There are also saunas to heat up in, all the modern conveniences, including a huge parking and sunning area, a big shuffleboard court, a fine clubhouse where they are likely to have a dance or a dinner every few weeks for 250 cottages' inhabitants.

Now if you haven't met up with a Spa yet, I hope you do very soon. Please try.

If you don't have any problems . . . you'll enjoy it anyway!

Naming Of Proud Nets Opposition

By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

Lincoln — The appointment of former state Sen. Richard Proud of Omaha as one of four deputy directors of the state Department of Welfare triggered immediate and strong opposition from advocates of women's rights.

The selection of Proud, a 10-year veteran of the Legislature who is now a professor at the University of Nebraska-Omaha, a noted women's rights promoter who remembered the key role Proud played in rescinding Nebraska's ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment.

Sen. Steve Fowler of Lincoln said it was ironic that the leader in that decision effort would be appointed to a position that deals so closely with women.

Proud, an attorney who worked for many years for Mutual of Omaha, will start his new job May 14 and will be paid $23,544 annually.

One of his chief duties will be keeping Welfare Department policy in line with rules and regulations of the federal government.

A statement released by state Welfare Director John E. Knight revealed that the appointee had led a legislative fight for money to build a women's physical structure at the University of Nebraska. Proud himself noted he had a record of strong support for the provision in federal law mandating equal opportunity for women in scholastic activities.

Despite that, Kappie Weber, president of the Nebraska Coalition for Women said Proud's position on ERA was evidence of his opposition to women's rights. His appointment was especially disappointing, she said, because most of the department's constituents are women.

Some years ago, Proud and Knight served together in the Legislature where Knight was actively involved in welfare issues. Proud has said he did not sponsor any welfare legislation during his 10-year stint in the Unicameral.

According to Ms. Weber, Proud's non-involvement was another demonstration of his lack of concern for the welfare of Nebraskans.

Gov. Charles Thone was aware of the selection of Proud for the job but did not interfere, according to Randall Moody, administrative aide to the governor who said Knight had the authority to do the hiring.

Thone has been a strong supporter of affirmative action in Nebraska and is backing a legislative bill proposing creation of a special affirmative action office in government. At this writing that bill was awaiting final approval in the Legislature.

Reiterates Funding Concern
For three weeks in a row, Gov. Charles Thone told his weekly news conference he continues to be concerned about second- and third-year funding obligations in the capital construction bill reported to the floor by the Appropriations Committee.

He told reporters he was keeping a close watch on what was going on as the lawmakers headed into what he called "the crunch" part of the session, especially regarding appropriations.

The governor indicated he will lean heavily on the expertise of Sen. Jerome Warner of Waverly, chairman of the Appropriations Committee, when pondering his budget decisions.

Both men have said they are concerned about committing too much money for construction projects in the immediate years ahead because the economic indicators for that period are not very favorable.

During his latest news conference, Thone also repeated that he is worried the federal revenue-sharing program may be eliminated and that it might happen as soon as this year. The state annually receives about $15 million in revenue-sharing funds and the loss of that sum would have a very significant impact on Nebraska, Thone said.

Gets Bill Changed
Sen. John Murphy of South Sioux City was successful recently in getting an elections bill changed so that names gathered during petition campaigns to change Nebraska laws or the constitution would have to be verified for validity.

The bill had a provision that verification of the names could be waived if signatures on the petitions exceeded the required number by 12 percent.

Murphy's amendment wiping out that section of the measure was adopted on a 26-0 vote.

Siding with Murphy, Sen. Dave Landis of Lincoln said the bill without the Murphy amendment said: "Just make sure you have a lot of names on petitions. Beat the required number by 12 percent and the county clerks have no obligation to check the signatures."

Another who agreed was Sen. Ron Cope of Kearney who said: "If verification of names is not required, it's unbelievable what could happen."

Disagreeing was Sen. Shirley Marsh of Lincoln. She argued that when an extraordinary number of signatures are submitted to put a proposition on the ballot, it should be sufficient to check the only every third sheet of names. Each sheet has room for 20 names on it.

Bingo Change Approved
Nebraska lawmakers, on a vote of 46-1, recently passed and sent to the governor a bill that makes significant changes in the bingo law.

The key change was one that would limit the number of games in any one building to two a week.

Sen. Vard Johnson of Omaha, who steered the legislation to passage, said it was aimed at "casino-type operators" who threaten to run small operators out of business.

There was considerable pressure on the lawmakers to do something about the big operators.

The legislation would still permit big games with a maximum prize of $1,000 for one game. There is also a section in the bill that authorizes city councils to allow more than two bingo sessions a week in one building if other structures are not available.

Johnson, while the bill was being debated earlier, said that provision was inserted for small communities that may have only one building suitable for bingo.

but may have more than one organization wishing to run games.

The bill included an emergency clause, meaning it would go into effect immediately upon the governor's signature.

A representative of the governor's office indicated the governor probably would sign the measure.

Two pieces of news in the Quiz lately have been unfinished: one, the trouble between James Ochsner and the school. Who was the student that he was alleged to have slapped or physically punished? Two; A student named Burson was set upon by other students and physically damaged. Who were his assailants?

In fairness, we ought to see those names in print too.
Jay Nelson

(Editor's Note: The name of the student allegedly slapped wasn't revealed. The names of the two supposed assailants weren't given the Quiz by law enforcement officers. The case was to have been heard in juvenile court. Juvenile records aren't open to the public.)

— surprise —
After all the flak this paper has taken, in recent weeks, it was a both surprising and rewarding to find we'd been named one of the winners of the Ak-Sar-Ben Newspaper Community Service Awards at the 105th Annual Nebraska Press Association convention in Lincoln on Saturday evening.

Usually the publishers are aware of the awards for their paper. A brief note is sent, in advance, announcing merely that a paper will be presented an award and wanting to make sure someone will be present to accept. This is the first year, that I recall, we'd received no such notice — except, of course, during years we hadn't won any awards.

I pay little attention to the contests and our entries. I do urge the editors to enter anything they deem worthy. But seldom do I know what contests they've entered and what material may have been submitted.

Early this year, when the contest deadlines were near, I remember Editor Wade Misko asked me about what he contemplated entering. I was busy at the time and paid little attention. I told him simply to use his judgement, though I do recall discouraging his purchase of a scrap book to hold the material since we could make one, ourselves, from materials we had right at the Quiz.

Expecting nothing and enjoying the excitement of others as the awards were presented, Saturday evening, I was adjusting my chair for the after-dinner speaker and sipping my coffee when the President of Ak-Sar-Ben read, "The Ord Quiz."

"My God!" I remember exclaiming — and my wife thought, she said later, I'd lost another filling from a tooth.

I was dumfounded! In fact I don't remember leaving my chair to step forward and receive the award. For racing through my mind was the wonder of where Editor Wade Misko might be in that crowd of over 600. He was the one who should have been receiving the award.

Only moments after the banquet finally ended did Wade excitedly step through the crowd to hug the giant plaque and ask, "Can I take it home with me?"

"Sure," I told him. "You earned it."

As I watched Wade grinningly hug the plaque and wend his way through the crowd, I remembered my own excitement on previous occasions and how the recognition, among my peers suddenly made the long nights and gut-gnawing loneliness worth every minute and every word.

Drive Carefully — Save Lives

With Senator Donald L. Wagner

The Legislature has now completed 90 days of the 90 day session. Of the 600 bills introduced this year, 125 have been signed into law by Governor Thone. Many more bills will be debated and acted on before the session is over, and no doubt some will be carried over into next year's shorter 60 day session. A large share of the bills to be heard and considered are measures dealing with revenue which provide the dollars for the appropriation bills. These are difficult issues to deal with as no one appreciates increased taxes.

Issues confronted by the Legislature this week included LB 398 which deals with increasing the salaries of all the judges in the state. After several hours of debate the bill was advanced with several amendments. One of the major changes, which was adopted removes a section of the bill which would have provided an automatic annual pay hike for all the judges.

LB 164, the Nebraska Bingo Act, gained final approval and will go into effect immediately if the Governor signs the measure. In essence, the bill is a protective effort to control professional operations by shifting the emphasis back to churches, schools, and other non-profit organizations. The provisions of the bill include allowing only two bingo games per week in any single structure. In action prompted by a desire to "do something" the Legislature gave first round approval to LB 571, the Agricultural Committee's Gasohol Bill. Local governments will be allowed to issue revenue bonds to build power alcohol plants to aid in the production of gasohol. The bill proposes a one-cent per gallon tax on gasoline to be placed in the Alcohol Plant Fund. This measure could encourage construction of such plants and initiate a total gasohol system for Nebraska.

A spot check was taken this week of fuel distributors in the 43rd district. At this time many of those contacted felt that their allocations of diesel and propane fuel were sufficient to supply the farmers during planting season. However, should a shortage develop please contact my office about the possibility of requesting additional fuel from the state's "Set-Aside Program."

Other legislation passed this week includes LB 207 which provides procedures for arbitration of disputes between suppliers and purchasers of electrical services. The intent of the bill is to protect the wholesale suppliers of electricity from discriminatory burdens and to insure that wholesale rates are fair and reasonable.

Another measure which gained Legislative approval is LB 271 which changes the membership requirements for those serving on the Nebraska Veterans' Home Board of Inquiry and Review. If the commander or immediate past commander of any veterans' organizations cannot attend a Board meeting he may appoint someone else to attend the meeting, or may permanently appoint two representatives to serve in place of the commanders.

Finally, the Legislature passed LB 574 which deals with procedures relating to grand juries. The bill details the duties of the jurors, specifies the rights of the witnesses, and adds provisions relating to indictments.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

Geranium Joe Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

Stanley Bruha was lamenting Saturday night about the whole world going on the automatic. He told the fellows that all the signs are pointing to a life not to far down the road when all we will do is punch buttons, but we'll have to have a college degree to punch em. What got Stanley on the matter was a report he had saw where companies are recruiting college engineering graduates like they were eight-foot basketball players.

Use to, he said, our schools had to turn out enough engineering people to keep our engineering companies supplied, but that's just the start now. Businesses that don't have nothing to do with engineering want graduates in this field because they are trained to solve problems, and like one professor said, everybody's got problems these days. The kind of problems he was talking about are technical, he reported, and the sharpest business brain in school probable don't know beans about em. He said the piece allowed that getting data processed as fast as the data comes in is a big part of ever kind of work today.

General speaking, Stanley's report came as no surprise to the fellows. Ed Hulinsky said he took note of the same thing last week when he went to the hospital to visit his friends. Instead of folks talking about how good the doctors and nurses were, everybody was excited about switching the hospital bookkeeping over to a computer that stores all the data about everybody in a bank in Los Angeles. Ed was of a mind that when modern medicine goes on the automatic he's sticking with old timey ways. But Ed said he has no trouble seeing where towns that use to scramble to get a young doctor to come to town now is looking for young engineers to come to town and process the data for the doctors they got.

banovsky, he can see signs where engineers are out-engineering themselves. Anybody that has tried to get into one of them child-proof medicine bottles will know what he means, said Joe. They write on them caps to push down or pull up and turn, Joe said, but when you've lost your glasses and you need a aspirin to ease the arthritis in your hands you're flat out of luck with up-to-date engineering. He said he was worried about engineers that design a ink pen with a eraser. He saw they have come out with ink you can rub out, and he can't figure why. The reason you write with ink is so it won't erase, he said, and now they got it so a feller can write you a check and you can watch it disappear the next day.

Personal, Mister Editor, I side with Joe. I read where a engineering student at a Chicago college wrote a paper on how to run in the rain without getting wet. He worked out the angle of the rain, the speed of the runner and come up with a formula that any fool knows won't work near as good as a raincoat. Even the perferer that

Don't Be Caught By Home Repair Racketeers

With the arrival of Spring comes the Robin... And usually, right behind him is a whole flock of strangers soliciting orders for Siding, Awnings, Windows, Doors, Roofing, etc. . . . Should you be solicited . . . "Don't get YOUR tail salted . . ."

Beware Of The Home Improvement "Gyp"

Property owners would do well to read the following home improvement hints:

Check any "bargain" offer presented by a stranger that seems unrealistic BEFORE you deposit any money or sign any agreement.

Let NO ONE begin ANY work on your property before you ascertain the reliability of the firm they represent.

Beware of the "bargain job", or any idea that your home will be a "model home" for advertising purposes, entitling you to a rebate or commission, or a "Special Offer" that will soon expire.

Insist on knowing the TOTAL cost of labor and materials . . . don't rely on verbal promises. Require the solicitor to leave proposed forms with you for further consideration, and refuse to deal with him further if he is unwilling to comply.

Remember that the firm may not be too greatly interested in the matter of materials, quality or payment because it will have a mechanic's lien on your property in case of non-payment.

Before you purchase any home improvement deal from strangers consult a local attorney, merchant, contractor, financial institution or the Chamber of Commerce.

Musk Thistle Control
What now appears to be a harmless looking plant turns into a very obnoxious intruder later that reduces grass production and interferes with livestock grazing.
Timing is everything with herbicides for musk thistle control.
Musk thistle is in the rosette stage now — rather innocuous looking but this is the stage to apply herbicides.
There are three herbicide treatments available for musk thistle control: 2-4-D, 2-4-D + Bonvel and Tordon.
Remember musk thistle what it was last summer, not what it looks like now, and take action.
Musk thistle herbicides are just like corn herbicides — they don't work well if you apply them too late.
Wheat, Weeds and 2-4-D
We feel it is advisable to let wheat plants reestablish themselves before shocking them with a 2-4-D treatment. After the plants have three or four healthy tillers they'll be able to take 2-4-D treatment. Weeds such as Kochia and lambsquarters that are coming on now will still be in susceptible stage for treatment two or three weeks later.
Penny cress and other mustards should be treated now in central Nebraska.

Hilltop Happenings

By Kathryn Streff and Teresa McKinney

We have a new resident at Valley County Nursing Home, Dan Pishna. Those celebrating April birthdays are Mary Mier the 3rd, Harvey Barr the 9th, Annabelle Allen the 14th, Kristine Gudmundsen the 27th, and Minnie Johnson the 28th. May birthdays are Rose Adamek the 3rd, Emmit Dutcher the 5th, Ina Flynn the 11th, Louis Axtheim the 14th, Sophia Koupal the 15th, and Marguerite West the 25th.

We have been hearing from the extension clubs as to what they would like to help us with for their coming year's project. The B Sharp Extension Club decorated the Arts and Crafts room for Easter. Others will be giving parties, sending cards, or making tray favors.

We have just received a new public address system which was purchased with part of the Ted Leeman Memorial fund. It is very nice and now it is easier for all to hear the programs.

We are having weekly films shown on the projector which was purchased with the Lloyd Wilson memorial fund. Beverly Kirby has helped us each Monday by passing juice and cookies to each room. Also the Coltray Store sponsored by the Methodist Women, under the direction of Lucille Pearson, brings fruit and other requested articles and sells them at cost each Tuesday.

Story time has also been on Tuesday which is taken care of by Velma Horner with Lou Lansman as substitute.

We have Virus Timmerman, Helen Crook, and Gladys Christensen helping with bingo. The VFW Ladies conduct bingo on the last Wednesday of each month.

For one afternoon a month, Dr. and Mrs. Glen Auble have helped us with a sing-a-long. District 23 entertained us with a pageant this month.

For Easter, Lori Gloff, a new volunteer and her daughter, Summer, made crosses. Summer was dressed as an Easter bunny as she passed them out to all the residents. She also helped pass out the Easter baskets that were made and filled by the LampLighter Extension Club.

The North Loup United

Methodist Women purchased white vases for the tables in the B and C Dining rooms, the Presbyterian women have furnished us with some new bibs and aprons, and the North Loup Scott F.H.A. shop club made some patio benches from wood purchased by the North Loup-Scotia Lions Club.

Come To Church READ MATTHEW 6:5-13 "All things, whatsoever ye shall ask in prayer, believing, ye shall receive." (Matthew 21:22) Sometimes we fail to ask the Lord for something in our time of need because we think He will not answer our need. As a young college student I found myself too short of funds to pay for my last term. There seemed no way I could finish my studies to graduate. I asked the Lord to somehow help me find a way to get the money. Shortly thereafter, a fellow student, not knowing my plight, told me that a bedridden, elderly, millionaire gentleman needed someone to take care of him at his home for a few days each week. I inquired and accepted the job offer. I then earned more than I required to finish my studies and graduate. The Lord knows when we need His help. But He wants us to come to Him and ask for it. PRAYER: Lord, you are always available to lend us a helping hand when we need it. Give us the insight to ask you for what we need at the right moment of our difficulty. Amen. THOUGHT FOR THE DAY The Lord wants us to ask for His help. — Harold L. Reynolds (West Chester, Pennsylvania) Copyright — THE UPPER ROOM
