Area Residents Will Greet Pope

Forty-seven parishioners from Catholic Churches in Ord and Ellyria are planning to see the Pope during his October 4 stop in Des Moines, IA. Frank Smedra hatched the idea of chartering a bus for the trip.

After a series of on again off again notices from the bus line in Grand Island, the church members were told last week it was official they had a bus reserved. Betty Smedra recalled waiting for the confirmation as "... a very prayerful time."

Along with the adults, students from St. Mary's School in Ord will be making the trip, carrying a banner, "You Have Touched Us and We Are Strengthened."

Gas-Water Rates Increased During City Council Session

City gas and water rates were hiked during the City Council session Monday in Ord. Gas rates went up 8.9 percent and city water rates increased 30 percent.

The gas rate increase came after Jerry Clausen, Superintendent of Metering with Kansas-Nebraska Gas Company, told councilmen the rate hike was to cover the cost of doing business. Effective December 15, the new rates will mean an average of $2.00 to $2.50 a month for an average household.

The water rate hike was explained by City Utilities Commissioner Gene Baugh. The last rate boost was prior to 1959, he said. Ord Mayor Richard Rowbal heard Baugh explain increased operating costs during the 20 plus year period and said, "We've got to make adjustments."

In an interview after the council meeting Baugh said the rate hike would have little or no effect on average users. It will, he said, raise an average three months supply of water (45,000 gallons) for a residence from $12.10 to $15.66.

Increased operating costs include replacing water mains and installing extra meters on houses. This last improvement speeds meter reading considerably, Baugh told the Quiz.

Resolution to Pay
The council passed a resolution to pay Paulsen Building and Supply Inc. $71,818 and $56,130 for work done on storm sewers 1978-1 and 1978-2.

Housing
Ord Housing Authority members got council approval to apply for FHA funds. These will be used to construct more senior citizens apartments. Bob Meyer, representing the Ord Housing Authority, said 50 units are available and will soon be filled.

Constructing 30 additional units would open up more homes in Ord, he claimed.

"This could help solve what Mayor called "... a critical need ..." for housing in and around Ord. He suggested the biggest demand is for homes in the $20 to $35 thousand dollar bracket.

It would also put more houses back on the tax rolls, Moyer contended.

Construction of the 30 units will take about three years, Moyer stated. An additional 30 units could be built later.

Approved
The council approved the plan. The approval will go with the funding request to the FHA. Moyer called the application "a preliminary step."

No idea of the cost, shape, or location of the senior citizens apartments are known at this time, Moyer made it clear this will not be HUD or low-income housing.

We Created What?
After more than an hour of discussion, paving districts 1979-1 to 1979-4 were approved.

Gene Augustyn and Lynn Kerchal launched that discussion, claiming they thought creation of paving district 1979-4, done earlier by petition, meant a survey of how much paving would cost, how feasible it would be to be done etc. The two were surprised, they stated, to find that the district they helped create would be for actual street paving and not a preliminary survey.

Mrs. Dean Clawson claiming to represent the Henry Benn family was adamantly opposed to the district.

After discussion on possible compromises, paving costs, what could be done, should be done, etc., the opponents, except Mrs. Clawson, dropped objections to the paving district.

Boundaries
The districts, created in early September, 1979, have the following boundaries:

1979-1: N Street from the west line of 17th Street to the west line of 18th Street.

1979-2: G Street from the east line of 22nd Street to the east line of 21st Street; 22nd Street from the south line of G Street to the north line of block seven, Auble's Addition.

1979-3: 23rd Street from the north line of J Street to the north line of L Street.

1979-4: F Street from the west line of 22nd Street to the west line of 20th Street and 20th Street from the north line of F Street to the south line of G Street.

City Dads opened the one bid for a Caterpillar loader. That was for $23,859 from Allen Scott of Missouri Valley Machinery. That price includes a trade-in and five months rental on the machine. Street Commissioner Emil Penas said the machine is working fine.

The city has had a lease-purchase plan with Missouri Valley for the past five months.

The city will pay the purchase price in two installments: $18,000 this year, and $5,859 next year.

The council gave Ord Police Chief John Young authority to interview applicants for a job on the police force.

Pool Problems
Councilman Roger Goldfish spoke on pool problems, as the meeting drew to a close. He claimed pool architects Clark Emmeron and Associates believe recent pool problems are the city's fault.

These have included two leaks, among other things.

City Utilities Commissioner Gene Baugh stated he had found Clark Emmeron hostile when contacted recently. He suggested City Attorney Greg Jensen contact them in the future.

"Goldfish said the council might "... drop the hammer pretty hard ..." when dealing with the architects. Problems have continued for a long time, according to the councilman.

Baugh planned to meet with the City Attorney in the near future.

Mayor Rowbal announced tentative plans to put a four-way stop at the 16th Street and Highway 11 intersection in Ord. Councilmen were asked their opinion of that.

The council recessed until 7:30 p.m. October 8 at City Hall.

Eleven Million Plus Available To Loup Project

Monday, October 1, $11,950,000 became available to the Calamus according to Henry Lange. The long-time project proponent said the funds were included in a Public Works Appropriation Bill signed by President Carter late last month.

Specifications on the main Calamus Project Dam were released Monday. Lange told the Quiz. Bids on its construction will be opened Dec. 13 in Ord.

The Calamus project will bring water to 53,000 acres in five counties primarily using the ditch type irrigation system.

Ord Quiz Sponsors Press Essay Contest

The Ord Quiz, along with state and national journalism associations, is sponsoring an essay contest in conjunction with National Newspaper Week, October 7 to 13. Theme of this year's contest is "What the First Amendment Means to Me."

A local first place winner will advance to state and possibly national competition. Over $1,000 in cash prizes are available.

Pargman Injured In Auto Accident

Rhonda Pargman of Ord was injured in an accident one-fourth mile north of Pleasanton Wednesday night. She was going north on Highway 10, and another vehicle headed east on a country road when the two vehicles met. The brakes on the second vehicle reportedly failed, and it ran a stop sign.

Rhonda had cuts and bruises on her left arm and forehead. She was kept in a Kearney hospital for two days, and then released.

Loup Meeting To Establish Water Control Area Draws SRO Attendance

The Lower Loup Natural Resources District office in Ord Thursday night as Lower Loup directors pondered creation of a water control area. After more than 90 minutes of testimony, directors decided to put the issue on hold for 30 days.

The control area under discussion would include the northern parts of Garfield and Wheeler Counties and a western portion of Boone County.

Written and oral testimony was taken from County Supervisors and Commissioners representing the three counties, apparent representatives of the newly formed Nebraska Sandhills Resources Council, along with farmers, ranchers, and others.

Representing Garfield County Commissioners was a Gerald Quinn. He told NRD directors the main concern of constituents in the northern half of his county was water: its quantity and quality.

Wells near center pivots have gone dry or their output reduced to a trickle, he maintained. Quinn said he had spent 22 years as a director of the former Soil and Water Conservation Districts and called present developments in the Sandhills "heartbreaking."

Asked by an NRD director if exact information on water declines, etc. are available, Quinn replied that one rancher has five stock wells where the flow has stopped.

"The biggest question", he said, "is will they come back this winter?"

Board member Frank Bartak asked him if a control area were established, and no new irrigation wells for three years mandated, would the people back it. The Garfield Commissioner stated they would.

Another person testifying stated irrigation developments are being used for tax shelters. These people, he said, "... don't have any love for the land."

Director Bartak warned that if a control area should come the controls and regulations would be for everyone.

Jim Wolf
Jim Wolf of Albion said his concerns are like those of Garfield County residents. People in his area, too, are starting to feel the affects of massive irrigation developments, he told the NRD board.

Mentioned were the Swanson-Olson development just east of Bartlett. In a subsequent interview, Wolf stated it contains 43 wells. Another he cited was the Swanson Langeneier development west of Petersburg, where Beaver Creek has a major underground water supply, according to Wolf.

A well Wolf has on the eastern edge of the first development is down 20 to 10 feet below its cylinder, he alleged.

Beaver Creek is, according to previous remarks, from area ranchers, used by stock growers to water their animals. Many apparently fear that demands on groundwater by rapid center pivot irrigation developments could reduce the stream flow.

"The thing that worries us", Wolf said, "is a development of this size coming in this rapidly." He suggested that area residents could end up with a problem of such a size that it would be too big to handle by the time official action was taken.

"What we are asking for", he told NRD directors, "is a control area." If irrigation developers could show farmers and ranchers their fears of water depletion are false, they would be glad, according to Wolf, adding, "But let's get the information out where we can see it."

He concluded his remarks by stating land owners have a responsibility to future generations and their families.

Warren Oleson, a long-time Sandhills rancher near Bartlett, asked for proof of the alleged dramatic declines. NRD well reading data was passed around to NRD directors. Thirteen wells in Wheeler County were monitored from the Spring of 1975 to the Spring of 1979.

Oleson claimed testimony about well water declines was misleading, that persons testifying hadn't differentiated between irrigation wells and stock wells.

Richard Beran, manager of the Lower Loup NRD, replied persons testifying had made it clear declines discussed were in stock wells.

Wait Dietz, an NRD director, asked if checks are being made on nitrate levels in well water. Beran said they are.

One NRD director asked, "What are we really trying to decide?" He wondered if the question was one of adequate stream flow, stock well water levels, irrigation well water levels, or what.

Wolf replied by saying, "We aren't asking about anything other than a control hearing", to determine the extent of the problem. He maintained farmers and ranchers can show damage to their wetland meadows while adding their other big concern is pollution of underground water.

A control area, Wolf maintained, would get information on these problems, and others, out in the open.

Judd Wagner, president of the newly formed Nebraska Sandhills Resource Council, compared a control area to a municipal zoning code. A control area, he stated Thursday, would allow local residents to determine the best use of the land.

"I'm glad," he said, "we have an NRD board that will listen."

One Wheeler County rancher asked if it were possible to petition out of a control area.

Beran replied that if his ranch were within boundaries of the control district he couldn't petition out of it.

"Irrigation", the rancher recalled, had helped him grow his crops in the Sandhills for 24 years.

Should a district be established the Director of the Nebraska Department Resources, John Neuberger, would determine the boundaries.

There are presently three control areas in Nebraska. One is in the Upper Big Blue Natural Resource District, with headquarters in York. The other is in the Little Blue NRD and the third is the Upper Republican NRD.

Lower Loup director Paul Landrigan asked if the control area could be voted out of existence. Richard Beran replied there are provisions for that. Landrigan maintained the Lower Loup's main concern should be people. His remark, "Is it worth ruining the Sandhills just to feed a bunch of Russians?" drew applause from spectators.

Larry Ackles, a rancher north of Burwell, stated wells should be better sealed and installed.

NRD director Dale Zalina, asked Wolf if facts involving water declines could be determined without a control area hearing. Wolf thought a hearing was needed to get people's attention and inform them of existing conditions.

Dole wondered if Wolf had enough evidence to testify at such a hearing. Wolf replied he thought he did and would likely have more when or if a hearing is held.

Dean Bresley, an Ord area farmer, cautioned those attending the meeting not to look to LB 208, a Nebraska water bill, as one solution to their problems, stating the legislation has drawbacks in it.

He cited the provision that streams along pasture lands must be fenced.

Beran told him that voluntary measure of 208 had been eliminated.

Ed Burton of Genoa supported establishing a water control area. He told NRD directors there are similar problems where he came.

Four Arrested For Picking Marijuana

Four Californians were arrested Friday three miles southwest of Ord on charges of harvesting marijuana. About 150 pounds of marijuana, a 1972 Mercury station wagon were confiscated.

Brian Cavalier of Santa Ana and John Lowe, Steve Hobbs, and Dave Pruitt, all three of San Bernardino, were arrested following a tip from a farmer, according to Valley County Sheriff Martin Sonnenfeld. Game Conservation Officer, Ross Gustafson and Ord Police Chief John Young, assisted Sonnenfeld with the arrest.

Other items in this week's Sheriff's Report include:

— Adrian Kush, presumably of Ord, but no address given, was arrested Sunday on a bench warrant from Valley County for failure to appear. He was held overnight, and appeared before a judge Monday morning.

— Frank Kovarik reported Sunday night that he had struck a Hereford cow one mile west of Ord on the Sargent highway. Kovarik left the scene before officers could arrive. The cow, Kovarik told Sonnenfeld, limped away from the accident scene. Damage estimates on the car were unknown.

— Al Hagemeyer of Ord was arrested Saturday on charges of driving while intoxicated. Sheriff Sonnenfeld observed him, (Continued on page 8)

COG Board Kills Sewer Plan

Council of Governments officials turned thumbs down on a $295,798 sewer demonstration project from the Midwest Assistance Program Inc. during their meeting at the Valley County Courthouse Thursday night.

According to Rick Noyes, COG coordinator, the program is run by Center for Rural Affairs staff members at Walthill. It involves training people to solve sewer problems, etc. for low income families and other disadvantaged groups. COG members noted the funding request would duplicate services now offered by 14 state and national and local agencies. Among those mentioned were the state-wide system of resource districts, city and/or town engineers, and others.

This is the second time COG members have declined recommending the same program. It was submitted to the board about a year ago.

In other business, COG board members:

- approved a $39,000 funding application for soil surveys of Wheeler, Garfield, and Valley Counties. The study will be done through the University of Nebraska.
- put on hold funding applications from United Cerebral Palsy of Nebraska and State Historical Society. The first grant request totaled $39,820. The last two were for $1,858,010 and $283,400.
- approved a $1,453,222 funding request for upgrading library resources and materials. That request came from Loup County public schools.
- approved a $83,200 request for a road project near Bartlett.
- approved a $55.08 request for library resources materials from the Anselmo-Merna Public Schools.
- made no comment on a $543,775 funding request for a new out-patient primary health care facility at Mullen. The project doesn't concern those in the COG area.

New Council of Governments members are Joseph Fulton, of the Loup City Council and Gene Lewis of the Burwell City Council.

To Combat Inflation First Learn Where It Hurts Most

(This is the first of five articles on living with inflation from the Nebraska Society of Certified Public Accountants.)

Is there nothing the ordinary family can do about inflation, short of moving into a cave with a year's supply of turnips? Certified public accountants, who help companies, state and local governments and other organizations deal with the problem, say there are remedial actions families, too, can take.

Members of the Nebraska Society of CPAs say that in corporate circles those actions are labeled "cost containment," but they might be termed simply "living with inflation."

Industry attacks soaring costs in a number of ways, not all of which would help a family much. For example, because of the sheer size of most industrial operations, even the tiniest economies, multiplied many times, can save thousands of dollars. But families can emulate business managers by closely restudying their living pattern.

Not everyone is hit by inflation in the same way nor to the same extent, the CPAs say. Persons on fixed incomes suffer the most, while those whose wages or prices are keyed to inflation may be affected hardly at all. To cope with your own particular inflation problem, you should know just what that problem is — how your income and purchasing power are uniquely squeezed.

The government's Consumer Price Index (CPI) for urban families is some help, but only some. It divides the cost of living into seven categories and assigns a weight to each category, based on the percentage of total spending the average family devotes to each.

For the average family, here's where the money goes: Housing, 44%; Food and Beverages, 19%; Transportation, 18%; Apparel and upkeep, 18%; Health Care, 5%; Entertainment, 4%; Other goods and services, 4%.

(The "other" omits savings, investments, gifts, mortgage amortization, pension contributions and any other costs that might be expected to bring eventual returns and in that sense do not constitute spending. The biggest "other" expenditures are for education, toiletries and tobacco.)

The CPI also breaks down the overall inflation rate to show how much each category has swollen, relative to prices that prevailed in 1967, the base year. Below we see where the cost factors stood at the start of this year, with 1967 prices representing 100:

Housing, 228; Food and beverages, 214; Transportation,

193; Apparel and upkeep, 162; Health Care, 228; Entertainment, 181; Other goods and services, 189; Average, 203.

This means the average family last year spent $203 for goods and services that cost $100 in 1967. But if your spending percentages differ from the average family's, being concentrated, perhaps, in areas that have risen more, or less, than the average, the government's CPI doesn't show accurately how inflation has hit you.

To learn that, compare your expenditures with those of the average family, determining what percentages of your total spending you devote to each type of goods and services, then compare your increases with those in the Cost of Living Index for that category — the national average.

By comparing your personal inflation index with the monthly national CPI you can see if you are suffering more or less from inflation than the average family. And a comparison of your percentage allocations to those of the average family will probably tell you why you are faring better or worse.

Such comparisons should be helpful in your personal financial planning, pointing to areas where spending might be reduced to lessen inflation's effects, according to the CPAs.

Nutrition Preached But Not Practiced

Although consumers say nutrition is important to them, they don't always practice what they preach. Surveys have shown that nutrition is only one of the many factors consumers weigh when they select food. Often cost, taste, convenience and sociability become more important.

There's very little concern among most consumers that they might not be getting a nutritious meal, whether they eat out or eat at home. This is because the majority of people have a pretty simplistic view of what nutrition is all about.

Many consumers, for example, believe that if they eat vegetables and meat, they're getting a balanced diet. Others feel that if they eat three meals a day, they're well-fed.

Few consumers know about the nutritive value of foods in terms of fats, carbohydrates, protein, vitamins or starches.

Yet, the majority of shoppers are confident that they're providing their families with a proper nutritional diet. If the grocery shopper provides meat and vegetables and breads which the family likes to eat, many other trade-offs are acceptable.

Everyone has different nutritional needs and these needs are constantly changing. Even though one set of rules doesn't apply to all, there is a practical guide to follow for good nutrition — the Basic 4 Food groups. It translates the technical aspects of nutrition into a simple plan for everyday eating:

MILK GROUP — food items in this group are a primary source of calcium, phosphorus, magnesium, riboflavin, and high quality protein. They are good sources of Vitamin A and Vitamin D. When fortified, you need two or more servings of this daily.

VEGETABLE - FRUIT — four or more servings daily. Foods in this group are counted on to supply most of your daily needs of ascorbic acid (vitamin C) as well as much of the Vitamin A, some iron, and other minerals.

MEAT GROUP — Foods in this group supply protein, iron, thiamine, riboflavin and niacin, plus other nutrients. Two or more servings daily is recommended.

BREAD-CEREAL GROUP — Four or more servings daily. Foods in this group are enriched, restored, or whole grain. They supply many of the vitamins in the B group, iron, carbohydrate and limited amounts of protein.

Margaret Smith from the State Welfare Office claims that persons conducting day care centers must have licenses by the state. She alleges that those in violation of this rule can face a $50 to $200 fine and 30 days in jail.

During an interview Thursday, she admitted enforcement of the rule has been lax and less than 100 court will throw a day care center manager in jail.

The law is on the books, Smith claims, to protect toddlers from abuse, etc. No cases of child abuse, neglect, etc. have been reported in the Valley County office, the agency handling such complaints.

According to Smith, the law should be obeyed "just because it is there."

Varsity Spikers Win One-Lose One

Ord varsity spikers lost one and won one last week. Tuesday, Sept. 25 they nailed host Aurora 15-6 and 15-9. Coach Jan Weber called the game "one of the best the girls have played." quiding she was very pleased with the girls' spiking.

Aurora has a good offensive squad, according to Weber, led by Lisa Gerlich. She hurt Ord when she got on the front line. Ord used Aurora's serving and spiking to keep her away from the front low position.

Ord's serving percentage was up this game at 83 percent. Weber has said she is aiming for the high 80s and low 90s in this category. The team appears to be slowly going toward that goal.

Barb Kittle was the leading scorer with 9 points. Kathy Hansen had 8.

Kittle led the team's attack with four ace spikes. Nancy Gogan was next with three. Hansen had five ace serves.

When Loup City came to Ord Thursday, things were a different story. Ord was edged in three matches, 13-15, 15-13, and 9-15. Ord played a good game, Weber stated, and has nothing to be ashamed of. "We played hard and just came up a little short", is the way she said it.

Ord mistakes gave Loup City the winning edge in three matches. Ord errors included errors in serve receive and serving.

Thursday, October 4, the girls head for the varsity volleyball tournament in Lincoln.

Junior Spikers Split A Pair

Thursday, September 25, the Ord Junior High volleyball team split a pair of matches with the visiting Grand Island Northwest Vikings. The seventh graders dropped their season record to 1-1 after being pushed to a 3-game match. Ord's junior spikers jumped to a 15-13 win in the first game, but slowed their pace and became inconsistent, losing the next two games 6-15 and 9-15.

Leading scorers were Jill Pichert, Cheryl Kamrad, and Tammy Vancura with 6 points. Another four points came in Ord's game one winning effort. Others serving well and contributing to the scoring were Kayla Peters with five points; Tammy Mulligan serving 100% with two points; and Dana Zlomke getting four of five overhand serves in one point.

Defensive standouts were Vicki Wagner, Amy Kienker and Deb Spiek.

"Getting more movement on defense and improving team communication are areas of concern that we really have to work on," coach Richard Cecotka said.

The Ord 8th graders had the thriller this week. By winning the last two of the three game match they raised their season record to a sparkling 2-0. After dropping behind in game one 14-3, the Ord girls showed the visiting Vikings that they would have to play their best to get the game winning 15th point. Ord fought back to force overtime by tying the game at 14-14. Both teams had numerous chances to get the game winning two-point margin, but it finally fell Northwest's way as they took the first game 18-20. The final two games were almost as close with Ord coming out on top 15-12 and 15-11.

The leading scorers were Ellen Green with 13 points and Angie Kamrad with 13. The rest of the scoring was well balanced throughout the line up with Jenny Anderson collecting five points; Kline Chilwecki and Angela George with four points each; Kim Cook with three points and Pauline Penas serving 100% with two points.

"The defense was extremely strong and all 12 players did their job equally well," Patti Wagner and Valerie Kiewald were two girls who have really improved their performances," the Ord coach said.

Ord, 55 points
Loup City, 40 points
Wood River, 64 points
Ravena, 67 points
Ainsworth, 95 points
Burwell, 103 points
Centura, 117 points
Curtis, 119 points
Arcadia, 156 points

In reserve action Jean Dubas was 15th with a time of 16:11 and James Lewis, 19th with 16:43. Marcia Mason was 27th with a time of 17:51.

Spikers Winning Streak Unbroken

The Arcadia Huskies have improved their record to 2-4. The reserve Huskies have better their record to 4-2, and have a three game winning streak.

Last week the reserves picked up two wins. The first was against the Ansley Warriors. The Huskies played three hard and well executed sets. The second game of the week was with visiting Callaway Bears. This game looked like it was only going to go two sets, but the Bears surprised the girls and the game went three.

The varsity girls didn't have such a good week, and only came up with one win. The first game was with the Ansley Warriors at Ansley. The girls didn't play as well as their potential. The Huskies lost this game in two sets, both by the score of 15-9.

The second game of the week came easier than the girls expected. The girls were ready to play a hard and tough game and defeated the Bears in two sets, 15-5 and 15-4.

The Huskies only have one game this week, but it will take a very well-played game and a strong team to defeat the Sargent Bulldogs.

Reserve Spikers Romp Loup City

Ord reserve volleyball players whipped guest Loup City in two out of three sets Thursday. Ord won with scores of 15-1, 8-15, and 15-6.

Ord coach Angie Batenhorst called the first game "nearly flawless." "With the Ord girls 'really spirited and really fired up.' Everything they did was near perfect.

In the second set, she made substitutions and Ord lost the second of three 8-15.

Yet another squad took on Loup City in game number three. After a shaky start Ord won it 15-6. The girls came on strong, their coach recalled, helping seal the victory over Red Raider reserves.

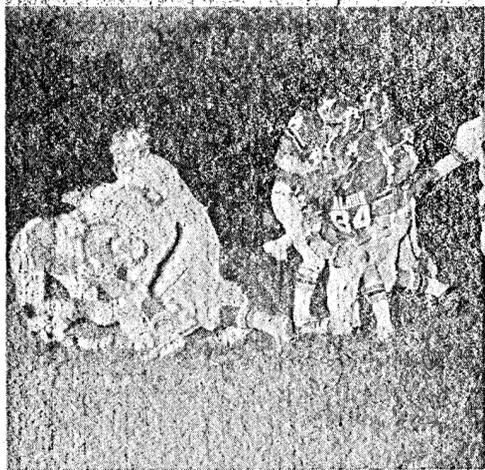

Batenhorst noted there is more competition and experience among teams Ord is now playing than last year. She suggested, during an interview Thursday that this can do nothing but help sharpen Ord's spiker skills.

Leading scorers in the three game set were Jane Bosworth and Tammy Sears, each with 10 points.

October 9, Ord reserves go to Burwell. Game time is 7 p.m. Ord reserves are 3-3 for the season.

Albion Cards Nix Ord Chants 27-7

Albion back Roger Suelter (34) kept Ord Chants occupied most of the game. The name should be familiar. His older brother, Greg, played for Ord a few years ago.

By Anne Smith

The Ord Chants, looking for a win, just couldn't pull it together last Friday against the Albion Cardinals.

To many fumbles and penalties caused Ord to lose to Albion 27-7.

Ord just wasn't ready to play and Albion was," commented Coach Suhr. On the first kick-off of the game a fumble left Ord stranded at the 10 yard line. Moving the ball just to the 38 yard line, Ord was forced to punt. An eager Cardinal got a hand up to block Keith Pelton's punt and fell on the ball, gaining possession. With only 1:53 into the game, Albion took it in for the score. Though the Cards failed the point after, they had a 6-0 lead.

Both Ord and Albion had many penalties. A roughing the kicker call cost Ord another eight points when Roger Suelter took the ball in for Albion from the two yard line. The Cardinals completed the two point conversion to put Albion ahead 14-0.

Then Ord began to pull it together. Starting with a nice pass from Barry Witherwax to Garry Mulligan, Ord took it all the way to the 15 yard line where Witherwax completed a pass to John Dworak in the end zone for six. Larry Sears completed the point after to bring Ord closer, 14-7. With only 40 seconds left in the second quarter, no one could move the ball, leaving the score at the half 14-7 in favor of Albion.

In the third quarter, Ord started what looked like a successful drive. The Chants got the ball to the 43 yard line and couldn't make things work and were forced to punt. With more penalties, it was Ord outside to give Albion a first down at their 37 yard line. A few plays later they took it in for another touchdown to make the score 20-7.

It was Albion the rest of the way. With 43 seconds left in the game, a 40 yard run and a point after, gave Albion a winning score of 27-7.

Ord will be hosting the Aurora Huskies on Friday, October 5. Coach Suhr made the comment that Ord is going to have to start playing much better football. He also said, "Ord must establish a running game." Suhr feels that their inability to run the ball is freezing the Chants offense.

Jamie picked the tie breaker at 48-20, Nebraska to win. Also picking 22 correct winners were either Mervyn Eysley, Nelson, and Mrs. George Fryzak. They did not guess their tiebreaker scores as close as Jamie.

Jamie will receive a $5.00 check from the Ord Quiz for his football guessing ability.

Seventh-Eighth Graders Are Edged By Guest Burwell

The host Ord seventh and eighth grade football team was edged by Grand Island Northwest 8-0 Tuesday, Sept. 25. Northwest scored on their first possession, using sweeps around both right and left ends to set up the lone TD drive.

Offensively Ord moved the ball well, according to Ord coach, Lon Bartholomew, but great gains were nullified by penalties. The most frequent of these were off side calls, the coach recalled.

"We had punt returns and kick returns," the leader said, "but put us in good position, but we always ended up hurting ourselves."

Defensively, Ord played a good game after faltering during the first quarter.

October 9, Tuesday, Burwell comes to Ord. Game time is 5:30 p.m.

Ord Gals Snuff Sargent Spikers

The Ord Women's Volleyball team whipped Sargent in three of three sets Monday. Both host Sargent and Ord went into the match undefeated. The win makes Ord's record a piffy 4-0 for the season, thus far.

Ord took the set with scores of 15-14, 15-3, and 15-11. High scorers were Judy Gottlob with 12 points, and Lois Hansen with 9.

Ord plays RKD October 10 in Ord.

Frosh Squad Edged By G.I. Northwest

The freshman football squad was edged by host Grand Island Northwest Monday, 8-6. Ord coach Paul Lucks said his boys "did a great job as a team. There was a super team effort by everybody," he said.

Northwest scored with two minutes left in the first half. That came when Ord dropped a punt. Northwest recovered and drove it in.

After conservative ball handling, Ord scored in the fourth quarter. Ground gains moved it to near the three yard line. Doug Weisak took it in on a run around left side. A 20 to 25 yard pass from Greg to Greg Warner set the pay up near the three.

Coach Lux stated the entire team is showing improvement. Kids are becoming more sure of themselves and are pulling together as a unit.

Next Monday, Ord will be at Broken Bow. Game time is 5:30 p.m. respectively. Mike Johnson was the leading receiver, catching five passes for a total of 45 yards. Steve Einspahr scored Arcadia's lone touchdown in the fourth quarter.

On the defensive side, Steve Einspahr was the leader in unassisted tackles with three. Mike Johnson and Dave Lewandowski each had two. Scott Sell had the most assisted tackles with 10. Mike Johnson and Marty Lybarger each tallied eight assists.

The Huskies' record drops to 1 and 3, as they look toward North Loup-Scotia in a game to be played at Scotia, this Friday.

Reserve Game

The Arcadia reserve squad travelled to Cedar Rapids on Monday, October 1. At the end of the first quarter the score was tied at 6-6, and stayed that way until the end of the game.

Fred Calabro was the leading ball carrier, carrying 13 times for 67 yards. Lanny Cusimano was next with 11 carries for 51 yards, and Jim Smith tallied 33 yards in 15 carries. Calabro scored the Huskies' touchdown on a five yard run.

Lanny Cusimano was the leading tackler with three carries for 12 tackles. Marty Lybarger and Jim Litz each made two solo tackles. Jim Smith and Marty Lybarger share honors for most assisted tackles, each with six. Jess Trotter was close behind with five assists. Penalties seemed to really hurt the Huskies as they controlled the ball for most of the second half but were still unable to score and the final tally remained 6-6. The next reserve game will be against the North Loup-Scotia Wildcats on Monday, October 15. The game will be played at Arcadia.

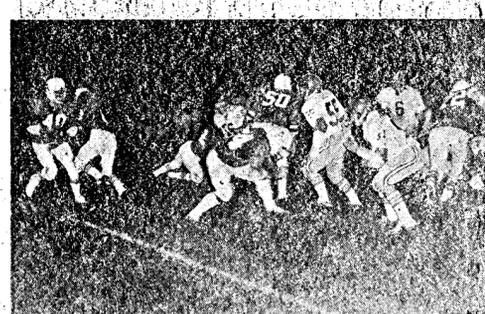

Wilson Wins 'Puff Demo Derby Division

Angela Wilson of Ord won the state demolition derby powder puff category in Kearney last weekend. Her car was one of eight in the gals competition at the Iron Horse raceway.

One of the eight was driven by fellow Ordite, Barb Markowski. Other entrants in the derby divisions, and their rankings, are Allen Petska, first in the consolation; Paul Markowski third in the consolation meet, and Dyane Scott of Arcadia who took third in the final race.

Wilson's pit crew were DeLysa Burson, Chuck Green, and Roger Stethem.

Greeley Bulldogs Rip Arcadia Huskies 29-6

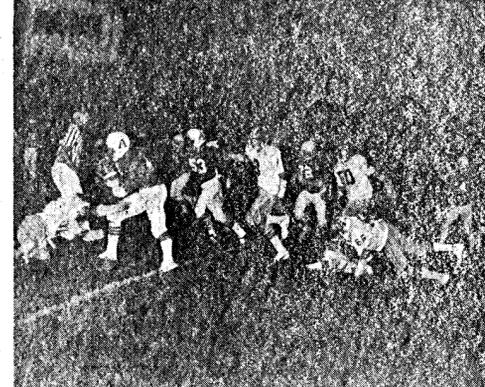

Doug Cox (40) hands off to Steve Einspahr (8) in the second quarter action at Arcadia Friday night.

By Lanny Cusimano

The Arcadia Huskies were defeated by the Greeley Bulldogs, 29-6 in a game played on the Huskies' home field Friday evening.

On offense for the Huskies, Mike John was the leading rusher with a total of 40 yards. Doug Cox was next in line with 21, and Steve Einspahr tallied 17 more. Quarterback Steve Einspahr completed six passes for 89 yards and Fred Calabro and Mike Johnson each completed one pass for 11 and 13 yards, Doug Cox (40) crashes through the Bulldog line with Jess Trotter (53) and Dan Scott (72) close by.

Ord Cross Country Team Second Out Of Ten Schools at Invitational Meet

Overhand Or Underhand Ord Frosh Spikers Are Winners

Either underhand or overhand, the freshman girl spikers win games. Last week, they tried it both ways and trounced host Aurora in two of three sets and then went on to nail Loup City here on Thursday.

Frosh coach, Elaine Haas, revealed her girls have been experimenting with both overhand and underhand serves recently. The switch from the usual overhand volley came after the Aurora game.

High scorer for Ord last Tuesday, Sept. 25 was Deb Vancura and Dawn Melia. Both had 12 points.

The team worked well together, according to coach Haas, and their overall serving was better than in previous games.

Following that win, she had her girls try underhand serves during practice sessions. "The overhand serve is more aggressive," she admitted, "but the underhand gets the ball across the net."

After some experimentation, she switched the team back to traditional overhand serves. They used the familiar serve against visiting Loup City Thursday and sank them in two out of three, 15-3, 9-15, and 16-14. High point gal was Dawn Melia with 7.

The coach called the girls' performance Thursday in Ord "their best game of the season." Their attack and spiking sparked to life, she revealed, and serves were sailing over the net.

She mentioned Deb Mason as helping ignite the team by playing well at the net, and boosting the team's attack.

Waterfowl Prospects Varied

More than 30,000 acres have been reserved for wildlife habitat on farms and ranches in Nebraska, and 3,759 acres of new public wildlife land purchased across the state, thanks to Habitat Stamps bought by Nebraska hunters and trappers.

During 1977 and 1978, the first two years of the Game and Parks Commission's Habitat Program, 297,227 Habitat Stamps were sold, yielding $2,191,702. And, sportsmen are investing more in wildlife habitat this year with the purchase of 1979 Habitat Stamps for the fall hunting and trapping seasons.

Since 1977, Habitat Stamps have been required of all hunting and trapping permit holders, and proceeds from stamp sales have been used in several ways to preserve, produce, or enhance wildlife habitat. The Commission has purchased 16 new tracts of wildlife land with Habitat Stamp money, and has intensified habitat production and management on some 8,000 acres of other state and federal lands in Nebraska.

Perhaps the most innovative portion of the Habitat Program involves wildlife cover on private lands with the cooperation of most of the states' Natural Resources Districts. The NRDs administer the program in their areas and provide 25 percent of the incentives paid to landowners, while the Game and Parks Commission pays the remaining 75 percent with Habitat stamp proceeds and provide all costs in the trees and seed.

Private landowners have several options through the NRDs, which pay as high as $27.50 per acre for some habitat practices. These practices include establishing permanent cover, protecting existing wetlands, woods and grassy areas, and sowing sweetclover and oats mixtures for upland gamebird nesting cover.

There's an educational gap in the U.S. between available scholarships, grants and financial aid and the people eligible to receive them.

Who is more likely to qualify for college funds?

To help answer this question, the Student Assistance Council developed a 60-second quiz for which one "yes" answer could qualify someone to apply for a number of financial aid sources.

Bancroft's John Neihardt Center

When visitors arrive at the John G. Neihardt Center in Bancroft, they are given a guided tour of a one-room house, a Sioux Indian prayer garden, and a circular brick exhibit building, all part of a branch museum administered by the Nebraska State Historical Society. Branch museum curator John Lindahl has compiled the following information on the Center and the late John G. Neihardt, teacher, philosopher, writer, friend of the Indians, and former poet laureate of Nebraska.

Dr. Neihardt lived in Bancroft from 1900 to 1920. His home, where he lived with his wife and children, was located near his study, a one-room building furnished with a desk and chair, kerosene lamp, rocking chair, and small stove. It was in this simple setting that he wrote most of his lyric poems, some prose works, the Song of Hugh Glass, the Song of Three Friends, and a portion of the Song of the Indian Wars from his five-part epic A Circle in the West.

The study was used by Dr. Neihardt for writing purposes until late 1920 when he and his family moved to Branson, Missouri. The building was restored by local Bancroft citizens who formed the Neihardt Study Restoration Project in 1965. The study may be viewed by the public with explanations provided by Neihardt Center tour guides.

Adjacent to the study is a Sioux Indian prayer garden, which was originally planted by members of the Bancroft Garden Club according to plans provided by Dr. Neihardt. He had established his own prayer garden while living in Missouri. Inspiration for the garden came from the Black Elk, a Sioux holy man, the subject of the poet's popular book Black Elk Speaks.

The Neihardt Center prayer garden's circular design is outlined by privet hedge symbolizing the "hoop of the world." A flowering crab tree firmly rooted in the center of the living "hoop" forms the sacred "tree of life." Flowers are planted in each of the four directions to symbolize the colors of the directions. Two roads cross the "hoop of the world." The "hard black road of worldly difficulties" begins in the east "where the days of man begin" and ends in the west "where the days of man end." The "good red road of spiritual understanding" begins in the south "where lives the power to grow" and precedes north "to the region of white hairs and the cold of death." A complete description of the prayer garden is found in Dr. Neihardt's book, When the Tree Flowered, published in 1970.

Horseback — Lincoln To the Sandhills 1903

In October, 1903, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Parker, of Lincoln, rode horseback from Lincoln to their Sandhills ranch near Dunning, Blaine County, a distance of 252 miles. It took seven days to reach the ranch, where they remained for eight days. The return trip took six days. Parker, considerably overweight, hoped to lose 75 to 100 pounds while journeying along in the saddle.

During the 504-mile journey, Mrs. Parker rode a Kentucky Thoroughbred but Parker, who had once ridden the range, was mounted on a "regular western horse" that he had purchased in the South Omaha. Mrs. Parker's riding outfit consisted of divided skirts, sweater, cowboy hat, and riding shoes, while Parker wore an ordinary business suit and cowboy hat. Both used regulation cowboy saddles. Their route was planned so that there would be no camping or stopping along the route for meals. They ate their meals and slept at hotels.

Seated on a pillow at his place of business, Parker described their recent experiences to a reporter for the Omaha Daily Bee's "Illustrated Bee" (copies of which are in the newspaper files at the Nebraska State Historical Society). Excerpts follow:

"The times when I got tired were when night was coming on and we would stop some man on the road, and he would say it was three or four miles to the (next) town. We would jog along, some in sight of the town and then find it was six or seven miles away. . . . When the train would pass I had visions of home and of the greatness of the iron horse.

"We had fine weather nearly all the way (but) at Broken Bow we struck a sand storm. . . . The sand cut our faces. . . . It was impossible to make any headway against it.

"One night we rounded into Linscott at 6:30 and found nothing left to do but to push on to the next town. We were right in the sand hills then and from then until the stars came up I believed it was the darkest night I ever saw. . . . We rode a little trail to follow in the sand, and we ran into a sand blow. This is where the wind scoops out the sand and wipes out the trail, in this instance for over a block. We hunted around and found a patch and followed it over the hill and it took us to a water tank. We made it all right and found the trail that brought us into town about 9:30 that night.

"The first day upon our return trip we made 64 miles and were

Paint Store Baffling To Many Customers

Walking into a paint store is something like walking into a chemist's lab for most people: one item looks just like another. But there is a big difference between the types of paint suitable for different jobs, according to an Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources extension home furnishing specialist.

Magdalene Pfister said factors to be considered in paint selection include glossiness, cleanliness, finish, ease of application and where it's to be applied.

Latex, sometimes referred to as "acrylic" paint, is the most popular paint because it's easier to use and gives a smoother finish when applied, she said. It also cleans up easily, has no lingering paint odor and is available in flat and semi-gloss finish.

Although latex will dry to the touch in about half an hour, wait at least a week before washing it, she advised.

Most other paints are referred to as oil-based paints, said the University of Nebraska-Lincoln specialist. These are made with a combination of oil and synthetic material.

Oil-based paints require thinning with a solvent such as mineral spirits, which also is needed for clean-up. Because some require other kinds of thinner, be sure to read the label.

Pfister said these paints dry more slowly than latex and most are more difficult to use. However, they are recommended for special jobs, such as enameling furniture or floors.

Buyers also might consider the relationship between the glossiness of a paint and its cleanliness. It is important — such as on doors, trim, kitchens and bathrooms — it's best to use enamel paint, which is available in either latex or oil-base types.

Enamels clean up more easily and stand up better to repeated washings than flat paint, Pfister noted.

Work Session Gets Room Into Shape

An elbow grease session Saturday helped whip the basement room in the old Masonic building, at 16th and N, into shape. Representatives of Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, and TÖPS showed up to clear debris and clean up the basement room.

Artifacts uncovered during the excavation project included an old moose head — given to the local Karp and Krow Club — and a tax statement from the 1980s along with liberal amounts of plaster dust, dirt, and general debris. Hard at it Saturday morning were: (left-right) Doug Weems, Craig Vancura, and Scott Vancura. Others helping with the clean-up project were Shawn and Brian Stich, Chris Arnold, Lori Arnold, Pam Watson, and Kathy Erdigman.

When renovated, the room will be used for a public meeting room. The project was an idea of Doug Weems. The Scout will use it in his advancement to yards becoming an Eagle Scout.

Consumers Ignore Drug Savings

Although substitution of generic drugs for brand-name prescriptions has been allowed by the Federal Trade Commission (FTC), most consumers aren't taking advantage of the price savings available.

The original developer of the drug has exclusive patent rights for a certain number of years, during which no other manufacturer is allowed to produce the trademarked drug, Wilson said.

Essentially "carbon copies," these drugs are chemically the same as the original trademarked drug and are known as generic equivalents. Companies who duplicate the original formulation may then sell the drug under their own brand name or sell it to pharmacies under the generic name.

"These are usually lower in cost because the company has no need to recover heavy research and development costs," the University of Nebraska-Lincoln specialist said. "Laws that permit the substitution of generic drugs, then, can mean lower consumer drug prices with no loss of quality."

Consumers can take advantage of the situation by asking their physicians if a generic substitution is appropriate when they receive a prescription. "If so, then ask your pharmacist to fill the prescription with the lowest-priced version of the drug," Wilson suggested. "By choosing the least expensive brand, savings are substantial."

Under the FTC ruling, pharmacists may do this on their own, providing the doctor does not specify there should be no substitutions, she added.

Consumers also can save on drug expenses by asking their doctor to prescribe a drug in quantity if they'll be taking it for a long time, Wilson said. "But check to be certain it won't spoil before being used."

Finally, she advised comparison shopping, either by phone or in person. "You'd be surprised to find out how much drugs vary in cost from store to store," she said. "And if you're over 65 years of age, ask about special discounts available to the elderly."

reportedly, failing to negotiate a corner in the road at the Haskell Creek Road and Highway 70 junction. He was released to his wife. About sundown Saturday Joe Boone surprised a light colored car apparently stealing gas near his farm, seven miles southwest of Ord. He chased the car northwest to near National Hall where he lost sight of the vehicle. It is known that the light colored car met several vehicles on the road in the National Hall area. Persons having information on it should contact the Valley County Sheriff's Office. Sonenfeld told the Quiz this case could be linked to other area gas thefts.

Early September rainfall of 2.15 inches of accumulated moisture brought the year's total to 23.13 inches, according to Quiz records. Though other areas of the state have had normal rainfall, for September, the local moisture was about average.

SRO at Lower Loup Meeting

(Continued from page 1) from. It makes good sense to protect an investment in farming, he related, even if it means sacrificing a monetary investment.

Gordon Walla, a rancher from Garfield County, stated he would like to see an organization "like the one you have here" to set up rules for water use.

One witness suggested developers be saddled with the expense and duty of forming an environmental impact statement, proving their development wouldn't hurt a given area.

NRD director Frank Bartak asked if county boards could rule on land use or land control. No one present knew.

Another witness suggested taking a long-term look at the problem of declining water levels, telling NRD directors he would like to see controls on water use rather than land use.

The short-term problem was that people in his area, believed to be around Petersburg, will be hurt and hurt badly and soon. "And that problem is now," he said.

One means of control mentioned by NRD manager Richard Beran was the spacing of irrigation wells, regulating the feet required between them.

Beran then gave a thumbnail summary of what he said Vince Drezsen, Director of Conservation Survey Division with the University of Nebraska, believes is the overall Sandhills water picture. That is:

The Sandhills had previously been in a state of equilibrium, prior to sizeable irrigation demands. With the introduction of irrigation, a foreign element was introduced. Drezsen, Beran said, believes that will result in the slow fall of the ground water level in the Sandhills.

Ernie Collins, a Sandhills irrigator, was asked if he is concerned about ground water pollution. He replied he is, but that his wells were drilled to the 250 foot depth, below the level reached by surface water recharge.

Paul Mann from the Upper Elkhorn Natural Resources District, was asked by Beran if he had found polluted water at the 250 foot depth. Mann replied he had. Concentrations range from 45 to 500 parts per million nitrate in some wells, according to Beran.

Collins then asked at what depth did they make their pollution tests. Mann replied they took water from ground level, as it gushed out of the irrigation system.

Beran closed the 90 plus minute hearing by stating support is needed if a water control area is to be established. He warned it could be "tough to get the state to declare a control area."

"If history repeats itself," he cautioned, "areas having underground water will face terrific pressures for irrigation well drilling if it looks like a control area will be established."

How It Is Done
Beran next outlined how a control district or area is established. To wit:

If after hearing testimony from interested parties, the Lower Loup NRD board votes to establish such an area, their recommendation is sent to John Neuberger, Director of the Nebraska Department of Water Resources in Lincoln.

Neuberger then has 120 days to set a time, date, and place for a public hearing. He will conduct it. After testimony is heard and collected, it is up to Neuberger to decide if the control area will be established, and where.

If he decides it shall, the NRD has 18 months to draw up its proposed controls. Another hearing by the NRD on proposed controls is held. Neuberger then must approve the hearing, considering public input, etc.

With Neuberger's final approval, the control area is established, with the NRD acting as an enforcement agency.

Following further discussion, the Lower Loup directors, voted to postpone a decision for a month. During that time, NRD staff members will determine how strong public support for a control district is in the three counties.

"I'm the type of guy who's tried different varieties, but I've had real good luck with CO-OP Feed. I'll stick with it."

We have farrowing feeder pig operations, and try to farrow 30 to 35 sows every month. After these sows farrow, we give the pigs full medical care. As soon as these pigs are ready to eat, usually in the neighborhood of ten days, we start them out on CO-OP Pig Starter #25.

Save good money when you grind and mix Hog Con 40. We also grind and mix for our sows with CO-OP Hog Con 30. When we go through this particular CO-OP program, they're proven with excellent results.

Grasshopper Control in Winter Wheat

Fields planted to wheat in areas with high grasshopper infestations in adjacent areas may be severely damaged when the insects move into wheat after it germinates. Insecticides that can be used as sprays on wheat are: Toxaphene, 2 lbs./AI; Orthene, 3 oz./AI; Parathion, 8 oz./AI (restricted use); dimethoate, 6 oz./AI; Furadan, 2.4 oz./AI; Lorsban, 4.8 oz./AI; and Seven 4-0il, 1.5 lbs./AI per acre. Haylage Additions For Hay Crop Silages

Generally, we do not recommend preservative type additives for hay crop silages. We suggest that hay crops be wilted down to about 65-70 percent moisture before storing in bunkers. However, if moisture is higher than this, certain additives may be beneficial. At moisture levels below this, packing is more difficult and the forage may undergo heating and molding. Under these conditions mold inhibitors such as propionic acid may be beneficial. However, since forage moisture levels between 35-65 percent present a hazard of spontaneous combustion we do not generally recommend haylage type silages be stored in bunkers, trenches or stacks.

Seed a Lwan, Plant a Tree — It's Fall

Fall is the ideal time to plant a Kentucky bluegrass lawn. Many other horticultural crops can also be planted in the fall. Balled and burlapped and container grown nursery stock can be planted almost any time. Deciduous nursery stock such as fruit trees and shade trees can be planted late in the fall, staked, mulched and made ready for growth early next spring.

Don Janssen, extension horticulturist in the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources, said fall would be a second choice as the ideal time to plant evergreens. Because evergreens lose water through the foliage during the winter, fall planting losses are usually higher than if the same plant were planted next spring. Light syringing of the foliage or the application of an antitranspirant may aid in winter survival of fall planted evergreens, he said.

With herbaceous perennials such as peonies and asparagus, you have some options, Janssen said. These can be transplanted as soon as the foliage dies back or they can be transplanted very early next spring.

Stock Growers Favor Vet College

The Nebraska Stock Growers Association is in full support of construction of a Regional Veterinary College in Nebraska, said Pat McGinley of Oshkosh, President of the association.

The Nebraska legislature had passed enabling legislation in May during the last session which would initiate the building upon approval of federal funds. "That is where the project currently is," said McGinley.

The finalization of this plan depends on if the Federal funds are allotted for the project. If passed, the structure would be built on the University of Nebraska campus.

The board of Regents of the University of Nebraska cannot enter into agreement or contracts with other members of the region until it has been established that federal funds will be available in an amount sufficient to start construction. The states included in the region are North and South Dakota, Wyoming, Montana as well as Nebraska. Of these, North Dakota and Wyoming have already indicated that they are ready to proceed, explained McGinley.

McGinley said "cattlemen feel this is a necessary project and we're behind it all the way. I'm sure if federal funds become available the other states will cooperate with us."

The president stated, "We appreciate the support

Congresswoman Smith, Congressman Berener, and Senator Zornitsky and Exon have given in working to secure federal funding." Some media publicity had indicated recently that perhaps the neighboring states were not going to support the project, but McGinley said he felt that once funds were secured the states would be supportive of the project.

The third oil producing plant in Daniel M. Bragg's article is Euphorbia (pronounced you-fur-bia).

There are two types of euphorbia plants — a small bush and a much larger bush. The small bush, E. tirucalli, shows more promise for the southwest.

The large euphorbia bush was called the "gasoline tree" by Nobel laureate Dr. Melvin Calvin of Cal-Berkeley. It has also been called the "milk bush".

The large euphorbia contains a water suspension of a hydrocarbon with a molecular structure similar to that of crude oil. Dr. Calvin estimates that in the wild the plant will yield 2 to 10 pounds of crude hydrocarbon per acre per year at a cost of $3 to $10 a barrel.

Experimental plantings are growing in California and other places.

The large euphorbia is a perennial that reaches maturity after several years. Harvesting requires cutting it off at the ground, leaving the stump to resprout, then crushing the stems like sugar cane to remove the sap for further processing.

Euphorbia can be grown on land that is nonproductive because of lack of water or poor soil condition. It is estimated that an area the size of Arizona would be required to grow euphorbia with plants producing 40 barrels per acre to meet the nation's gasoline requirement.

After all, it may take a lot of small contributions to solve big energy problems.

Something for Everyone

October 7-13 is National Newspaper Week. During that seven day period editors, publishers, and the public at large are invited to take note of one of their community's main assets: the local paper.

The Ord Quiz has been a part of this community for quite a while. Founded in 1882, The Quiz was purchased from its founder, W. W. Haskell, by H. D. Leggett, grandfather of present Quiz publisher, Kerry Leggett.

Over the years, The Quiz has recorded the ups and downs of life in the Loup Valley along with what one wag has called the usual trade in hatchings, matchings, and dispatching. But this paper does more than that: a lot more. It contains something for everyone. Everything from want ads and sports to the school lunch menu are found in The Quiz.

Members of the community apparently approve of The Quiz, for paper sales have steadily increased over the years. Fellow members of the fourth estate have given us high marks too. Both state and national press awards hang on the halls of our news room. The latest of these came last April when The Quiz received a community-service award at the 105th annual Nebraska Press Association convention in Lincoln. That was for our role in promoting the town's needed paving improvements, now underway.

But more than any plaque or scrolls received from any group, the knowledge that The Quiz is a central part of life in the Loup Valley is our greatest satisfaction.

During National Newspaper Week, and throughout the year, we are proud of this public confidence while doing our best to continue making your newspaper The Ord Quiz.

Because It Is There

Ms. Margaret Smith, Licensing Specialist from the State Welfare Department, was in Ord last week informing the media of a law she contends needs obeying: the licensing of day care facilities.

According to a Nebraska Department of Public Welfare publication, licensing requirements include:

- having 35 square feet of indoor space per child.
- having 50 feet of outdoor space per child.
- specifications on the type of diet given the children.
- having a file listing the time and date medications are given.

Other regulations, rules, and so forth outline requirements on everything from proper ventilation of said day care facilities to fresh air and sunshine.

During an interview Thursday, Ms. Smith maintained she had a file containing six complaints concerning area facilities offering child care. Questioning revealed these "complaints" were because they weren't licensed, not because of child neglect or abuse.

Complaints from Valley County in the latter group don't go to her, Ms. Smith said. They go, she pointed out, to local welfare office head Theresa Benben. When asked how many complaints she had on the mistreatment of children attending a day care center, Mrs. Benben replied she had none.

Ms. Smith told the Quiz child care licensing laws have been on the books for years, but have been lightly enforced. We believe her.

With no complaints involving day care centers, with no reports of neglect or abuse of their young charges and with both area parents and those taking care of their young charges apparently satisfied, this licensing regulation strikes us as being one that isn't needed locally.

Asked why it should be obeyed, the best reason Ms. Smith could give was "... because it is there."

To the best of our knowledge and apparently that of Mrs. Benben, too — there haven't been any problems in Valley County with day care services for children. Ergo, why have someone from a state agency up here trying to police regulations for a problem that doesn't exist.

To our way of thinking, zealous enforcement of the licensing provision will do no good and likely disrupt what is — literally — a well-run home service bringing in a few dollars to augment a family's income.

Abandoned Respect of Authority

(From the Sherman County Times)

Of all the many reasons advanced to explain the worst crime wave in the history of man, the one given the least attention by social scientists — probably because it would conflict with some of their other theories — is the most critical.

At no time in the history of America has there been such widespread lack of respect for authority, and the major share of the blame for that calamity must fall on parents. Swept along by the popular tide in this age of permissiveness, they have forsaken the homely virtue which used to be the first commandment of child rearing, "Honor thy father and thy mother," the Biblical precept which demanded obedience.

Obedience has become an old-fashioned word, an archaic concept scorned by modern psychiatry. Parents no longer demand obedience from their children. The emphasis is on self-expression, which inevitably raises conflicts when the kids want to "do their thing," right or wrong. Corporal punishment, of course, is an absolute taboo, either at home or in school, and God help any teacher who dares to give a well-deserved whack on the tail to any brat in the class.

Now the Schools, in other times, were the second line of offense in the teaching of respect for authority. No more. Teachers don't teach much of that sort of thing any more.

So the critical formative years of a youngster's life pass without lesson on the need for respect for authority. In their place we now see heavy emphasis on their "rights." Five-year-olds vociferously argue with parents, teachers and everyone else for their so-called "rights," and as they get older the arguments get louder and louder. When they reach the teens, their parents — both advantaged and disadvantaged — suddenly begin complaining, "I simply can't do a thing with ..."

There is a good reason for that. On the subject of rights, the kids were taught only half of the lesson. No one ever told them that responsibility goes hand in hand with rights. And a large part of

Widow's Appointment Triggers Some Criticism

By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association
Lincoln — The appointment of the late Sen. William Hasebrook's widow as director of a proposed state volunteer office triggered some critical remarks.

The criticism came from the original supporters of a grant from the federal government that would be used in setting up the agency.

Gov. Charles Thone said he had selected Mrs. Margaret Hasebrook of West Point to head up the Nebraska Office of Voluntary Citizen Participation and that she would be paid $19,500 a year.

The appointment hinges on approval of a grant of more than $93,000 by the federal agency known as Action.

For about five years, members of the Nebraska Organization of Volunteer Leaders (NOVL) have urged the state to go after federal money for setting up the umbrella organization that would coordinate and encourage volunteer activities within Nebraska.

Some members of the NOVL have said Mrs. Hasebrook's appointment amounted to a political payoff. Mrs. Hasebrook's husband helped out in Thone's past campaigns, and her son, Robert Hasebrook, was formerly chairman of the Douglas County GOP.

Some NOVL members criticized Mrs. Hasebrook's qualifications and also said the governor should have opened the process of selecting the director.

One NOVL member, who chose not to be identified, said Mrs. Hasebrook represents the "stereotype that we in the volunteer area have been trying to break for years. That stereotype, she added, is 'the little old lady who goes to the hospital and hands out goodies.'"

Mrs. Hasebrook countered with the statement she had been in volunteer programs for a long time and has been the president of several national voluntary organizations. Her past experience includes having been head of the National Federation of Women's Clubs, the National Association of Parliamentarians, and the National League of American Penwomen. The last group is made up of writers, artists and musicians.

In addition, Mrs. Hasebrook has been actively involved in Nebraska Mother of the Year competition and was director of the state bicentennial celebration office.

Messenger Service Ruling
U.S. District Judge Robert V. Denney of Omaha has ruled a Nebraska law that prohibits that responsibility is obeying the law and respecting the rights of others.

When the realities of life and economics are forced on the not-quite-adult youngsters, when they can't get a car, or a moped, or whatever — simply for the asking — they decide it's their right to go out and get what they want. And that's how it starts.

The police? They are the enemy. The young people learned that as they grew up. The cops won't let them have whatever they want, or do whatever they want, or "express themselves" in ways that impinge on the rights of others. So as far as the "fuzz" is concerned, it's an adversary relationship. Anything they can do to outwit the law is a personal victory.

And through a misdirected sense of loyalty and protectiveness, thousands of parents support them in this perverted outlook. From all over America, we have heard of outraged parental reaction when local police officials, trying to get kids straightened out before it's too late, have contacted parents with early, friendly warnings about their offspring's tentative forays into vandalism, petty larceny or dope-dealing. The mothers want the cops fired. The dads threaten to sue. The kids go on their lawless ways, only more so.

When they finally do get busted, the idiocy of the lenient treatment dispensed by the Courts engenders their contempt, not appreciation. They are applauded by their young peers. They laugh at the law. They have no fear of the law.

And respect for authority? Why, that's the biggest laugh of all.

The final tragedy comes when they get into really serious trouble with heavy crimes. Tragedy for the kids and tragedy for the parents, who shake their heads in sorrow and complain, "I can't understand how it happened. We gave them everything."

Everything except one thing: respect for authority.

Something Different

That Oregon World

Visiting with old friends Maelee and John Misko is always an experience, never a bore. They are forever inspirational.

When I arrived with a bad backache Maelee promptly put me to bed with an electric pad and an electric blanket, then sat beside me and we visited happily away. This went on for quite a few hours: 24? We enjoyed renewing old ties and ideas, and she was as much fun as ever. And meantime I grew more and more comfortable as pain left me.

I love any house that is full of books, an of course theirs always is. I couldn't begin to browse through even a few of them, but I tried, and so did John. Suffice it to say we were never bored in the least.

And when I felt better we went on a happy tour of the big yard. It is a beauty, with the biggest hydrangeas I have ever seen, and in the loveliest colors.

Some of these colors were due to feeding additions like extra iron, zinc what-cha-macall-it and so on. And so we had mountains of purple, not lavender but purple hydrangeas. And some with many shades of blue. And lovely pinks. And luscious whites, monstrous mounds of them about the base of the rambling one-story house and the garage nearby. I loved them, I've never seen such hydrangeas.

There were so many trees, tall ones too. Of many kinds. They like it there with their feet in the water of the friendly adjacent lake, which rises with the Willamette River and sinks the same way.

And Maelee, who does the yard with the help of a gardening boy or two, has impatiens that are simply beautiful, by far the finest, biggest blossoms I've ever seen, and in colors I've never seen anywhere before.

They pop up everywhere, near the house, on the path to the house, at the lake edge but always with most unusual colors. The Misko's live so close to nature that it is a new world to a Nebraskan. At night beavers slip up and gnaw bark off succulent young trees, or any branch left laying on the ground. It is close to nature all right.

One day Maelee had a carpet-cleaning man come to do all the carpets in the house. Duly cleaned and handsomely green with a pleasant temperature outdoors, the Misko's went happily to bed that night.

Woe! Next morning they arose to find that their friendly friends the mallard ducks had wandered peacefully through the open doors, through the house and trailed on out the front door, leaving very positive proof that they were not housebroken.

Yes, they feed the ducks every day, and the ducks paddle peacefully about the baby lake, occasionally waddling up to the patio to see what That Delectable Smell Is?????

Other friends also sneak up to the windows and doors, which are always open of course, in this far-western world. At the bird feeders assorted birdlings venture through the open window, curious little friends.

On the patio the wasps love that smell of meat cooking, follow the fragrance in to see about John's fragrant big prime rib roast as we all inhale hungrily. The wasps bring us all to our feet as we brush them away.

Such is life in a PORTLAND paradise, Oregon, to be exact. No, we didn't take our raincoats although we were informed that we should; but not a drop of rain did we see.

betting messenger services is constitutional.

But several hours after issuing his decision, Denney granted a motion by Omaha attorney Richard Bruckner for a 10-day delay in executing the ruling. That will allow time to place the controversial issue before the 8th U.S. Circuit of Appeals.

Bruckner represents a coalition of messenger services that filed the lawsuit challenging the law. The coalition has claimed the law, approved in 1977, violates the due process and equal protection clauses of the federal constitution and was unconstitutional because it destroyed members' businesses.

The coalition members took their case to the federal courts after the Nebraska Supreme Court, in a 4-3 decision, declared the statute constitutional.

In his ruling, Denney said a state statute is presumed valid and it is up to the party attacking it to prove it has no reasonable basis.

Denney said no one would question that the state is empowered to regulate gambling in the interest of the public health, safety and general welfare.

Although the messenger services may not be gambling per se, such businesses are closely entwined with gambling, the judge said.

Because of that close association, Denney said, "The Nebraska Unicameral could reasonably conclude that the public could only be protected from some of the evils of gambling by abolishing messenger services."

The messenger services charge a 10 percent commission for bets taken to horse tracks.

During a hearing several days before Denney handed down his ruling, Jerry Subject of Omaha, head of Pegasus of Omaha, Inc., said his company had processed at least $1 million in bets so far this year.

Pushing for Slurry Hearing
Sen. John DeCamp of Neligh wants to have an interim committee hearing on the coal slurry pipeline, and he suggested he may take over the issue if the Public Works Committee holds to its plan not to conduct a hearing.

Sen. Maurice Kremer of Aurora, committee chairman, advised DeCamp recently the committee was planning to forego hearings and to settle for a summarization of testimony presented at several previous hearings.

But Kremer told DeCamp there has been indication of "holding a hearing which addressed only specific questions so as to limit testimony."

He invited DeCamp's suggestions and the Neligh lawmaker, sponsor of the 1979 coal slurry bill, responded the resolution authorizing a study of the question was "very detailed in terms of trying to determine precisely what the answers are to the questions raised and not answered adequately in these previous hearings."

It is the answers to these questions which will determine whether a coal slurry pipeline is or is not built, and Nebraska's involvement or lack of involvement therein.

DeCamp said a summary of past hearings would not solve anything and asked Kremer to let him know if the issue would take more time than Kremer's committee is willing to devote to it prior to the 1980 legislative session.

DeCamp said if that is the case, a special energy committee that has been established "might properly attempt to answer the unanswered questions in a free and open forum."

Energy Transportation Systems Inc. has proposed construction of a pipeline that would carry a mixture of coal and water from Wyoming to Arkansas.

The pipeline would cut across some Nebraska Panhandle areas. ETSI has sought the right of eminent domain from past Legislatures but has been turned down. Spokesmen for ETSI have said if their firm were empowered with eminent domain, their project would be speeded because ETSI then would be allowed to cross railroad property.

Railroads, which have been hauling huge amounts of coal across Nebraska, claim a loss of part of that business would damage them commercially.

Gasohol Brief Failed

KERRY CON

— freedom —

Sunday, Oct. 7, National Newspaper Week begins — running through Oct. 13th.

Taking for granted that everyone knows "all about" newspapers, it seems the press is too often too modest. I'd like to think that newspapers ARE a very important factor in the lives of all Americans.

A promotion — of sorts — focusing on the First Amendment of the United States Constitution is being announced in this issue of the Quiz. I hope, even if you don't enter, that you'll give some thought to the precious right of freedom of religion, speech, press and assembly.

Anyone reading newspapers or listening to the news need not be told that such freedom is rapidly diminishing through Supreme Court decisions. These freedoms ARE very important to the American people.

Any doubt I may have had about Quiz readership and interest in local matters should have been quelled by a phone call at 4:30 a.m. one morning recently.

Bleary-eyed and half asleep, I tried to shake the fog from my mind.

I filed a brief with the state Supreme Court in which the attorneys argued a law designed to promote the development of gasohol is unconstitutional.

The state Justice Department earlier filed a brief in which the constitutional validity of the

Geranium Joe Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

I've been reading U.S. Department of Agriculture pamphlets into 50 year now, Mister Ed was quick to point out a deeper understanding than most of the workings of the Washington mind. I reckon that's why I couldn't get as excited as some of the fellers Saturday night when they fell to talking about how politicians can use such big words for such little thoughts.

It was Ed Hruby that opened the session by "denouncing" this and "reprehending" the other. When Frank Cernik called him on it, as Ed knew somebody would, Ed was quick to point out that they are words you use when you don't want to say nothing. He said a old newspaper hand told him once that the best way to guess the size of crowds at public gatherings was to say the number of people that were there. He said if you mean more or less, so you're always right with upwards. Ed was of a strong opinion that was the advise the honorables took in the lodge, Herman Talmadge. They didn't want to congratulate him, and they didn't want to fuss at him, so they denounced him for his reprehensible acts.

All Talmadge done, after all, Ed said, was turn a measly $12,000 or $20,000 in campaign funds to his personal use. It seems the senator just stuffed that money in a overcoat pocket and forgot how it got there, but he got to going to that overcoat regularly for walking around money and forgot all about writing checks for some months. The Senate Ethics Committee didn't say that was the right thing to do, but they said it was nothing to get worked up about like they did against Joe McCarthy. Joe got so rambunctious they actual "condemned" him. And they didn't want to "censor" Herman, cause that didn't sound nice. They got a split vote on "denounce" finally, Ed said. One member didn't like it because he said that's what Churchill said to Hitler fer invading Poland.

Whatever word they decided on, Ed went on, the Senate honored Herman by keeping him as chairman of the Agriculture Committee, and Sen. Talmadge come out of the whole unhappy business claiming a "personal victory." Maybe the senator promised to retire that overcoat to the same place of honor like his right hand man Adams sent his vicynya coat back some years. Ed said as far as he could tell, Herman didn't have to promise not to use campaign money any more fer out of pocket expenses, so there's always a chance he won't use it any less either.

Practical speaking, Chris Kirby said, it's bound to be hard for anybody in Congress to get excited about $12,000 when they feel they're dealing in $500 billion. Chris said he had saw where the House and Senate had denounced a seven percent raise fer themselves that all federal employees are getting, but he ain't heard yet how reprehensible they think they're in line for. After all, if the 18,400 people it takes to wait on them 535 members of Congress get seven percent the honorables ought to take someone to be polite, he said.

Yours truly,
Geranium Joe

Legislation was challenged. The law permits special revenue or special purpose bonds to be issued by cities, counties, or a combination of the two, with the proceeds to be used in financing construction of grain alcohol plants and related facilities. The alcohol could be blended with gasoline into gasohol.

One of the arguments the Justice Department made in questioning the law on grounds of constitutionality is that the statute would permit the spending of state money for other than a clearly recognizable public purpose.

FOOTBALL CONTEST

Win $100 — get all games and the Tiebreaker correct
$5 Awarded to Winner Each Week

Read the easy Rules below:

A $5 cash prize will be given by the Ord Quiz each week to the person who picks the most winners from the games listed in each ad on this page. Here's all you do: Pick the team you think will win each game (there's one in each ad) and write that team's name in the corresponding blank in the special entry form provided here or a sheet of paper. For example: The team you pick to win game number 1 (found in the upper middle of this page) should be written in blank number 1 in the entry form.

Also indicate your predicted score of the tiebreaker game in the space provided. Then write your name and address in the space at the bottom of the entry blank and bring it to the Quiz office by Friday at 5:00 p.m. (you have 2 days to enter this contest.) Entries may be brought in or mailed in, but will not be accepted after the deadline.

only one entry per person may be made each week. If more than one person in your family wishes to enter, you may write their guesses on a separate sheet of paper.

Should two or more persons guess the same number of winners, the one predicting the nearest to the actual score of the tiebreaker game will be judged the winner. Otherwise, the score of that game will not be considered. Decision of the judges will be final. The winner will be announced in the Ord Quiz each Thursday. Everyone is eligible except employees of the Ord Quiz and their immediate families.

Better get the family together and start picking...now! Extra entry blanks may be picked up at the Ord Quiz.

Pope's Visit Well Organized Ord Area Residents Recall

Ord Catholics seeing the Pope in Des Moines Thursday described his visit as well organized and running smoothly. A cooperative crowd, described by one Papal viewer as "...like a bunch of sheep..." eased any potential strains and helped keep things smoothly running when an estimated 350,000 people gathered 15 miles west of Des Moines, IA. The 47 area residents left at 2 a.m. Thursday, arriving at the visitation site around 8:30 a.m. Mary Marshall, one of those on the trip, said the group was seated about 400 yards from the altar where Mass was said. Others there recalled it was overcast and cool, about 40 degrees, when John Paul landed at Des Moines, IA that moment the winds died down and the sun came out. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Smedra

Valuation-Mil Levy Totals Revealed by School Board

Teachers on 12 committees have been named. Chairpersons are being appointed, according to Shannon. The committees will study problem areas, called areas of concern, identified earlier in a community survey. The report should be completed by next fall, the school official predicted. In the red School board president Mason revealed the district's general fund is $38,190.39 in the red, as of October 1. The district will dip into its savings account to pay bills. That account now totals $154,850.01. Board member Karen Zaruba suggested bills be presented and paid in the same budget year in which services or goods were rendered. Some bills, according to remarks made Monday, arrive long after work is performed, etc. Super's Report In the Superintendent's report, Dr. Gogan told board members the annual audit of school finances was completed September 24-25. A full report on that will be given at the November board meeting. Per pupil costs and other statistics are drawn from this data. About $15,000 is left from the 1978-79 school budget. Ord Public Schools will comply with President Carter's energy conservation plans. Building temperatures will be 78 degrees in summer and 65 degrees in winter. The Ord Elementary school is exempted from federal freeze-thaw energy regulations.

In conventional photography light is used to produce an image on film. In thermography, varying temperatures are recorded. What Caruso called "the blood of the system" is liquid nitrogen. Poured into the camera, it is over 300 degrees below zero. The extreme temperature makes possible for the camera to record hot and cold areas in homes and many other things too. According to Caruso, thermography is used in everything from spotting potential trouble spots in power lines to locating tumors in cancer research animals.

Thermography To Give Residents A Clear Picture of Heat Losses

Ord residents may be able to look forward to lower heating bills, thanks to a project scheduled to begin in December. Infrared photographs taken of Ord homes will show where heat losses can be corrected. A two-man team from Environmental Thermography and representatives from the City Utilities Department and the Kansas-Nebraska Gas Company will take curb-side photographs this December. Frank Caruso, of Environmental Thermography, said the project is scheduled for December because near freezing temperatures are needed for the infrared camera to detect hot and cold areas of homes in Ord. The infrared camera or scanner, looking like a videotape camera, uses a sophisticated process called thermovision, when taking snapshots of hot and cold spots outside Ord homes. Cold or cool areas show up in darker shades and hot or warm areas are a lighter hue on the resulting black and white photographs. Each home owner or resident will receive a thermogram "picture" showing heat loss areas and a synopsis on how to correct them. There will be no direct charge to Ord residents. The project is covered by a federal grant. A public information meeting will be held prior to the project's beginning.

This home had staged defects, showing how thermography can be effective. The bottom portion of storm doors were left open and the roof area uninsulated.

These defects showed up in the thermogram, along with what was at first an unidentified hot object curled up on the front porch. Further investigation showed the mystery item was a dozing dog.

Cold Northerly Winds Falls Some Dry Corn

Chilly northerly winds nipped warm memories of summer, early this week, as the mercury took its first serious plunge of the fall and brought out coats and corn picking at a rapid pace. Though the Quiz thermometer recorded its first freezing temperatures on Oct. 4, a temporary respite provided a nice weekend before daytime highs matched previous nighttime lows. More of the cold and overcast weather was forecast, with possible relief from the dry conditions that reportedly caused falling corn from the stiff winds. Variable cloudiness and possible showers were in the extended forecast into this coming weekend.

Educators Attend Reading Convention

Ord Elementary principal K. Vidal, Crystal Brockman and Alice White attended the seventh Annual Mid Plains Regional Reading Convention held recently in Minneapolis, MI. Mrs. Brockman was one of the speakers at a Friday afternoon session. Her topic was on identifying and doing remedial work with the perceptually impaired student.

Chamber Members Meet New Teachers

Ord Chamber of Commerce members met new teachers with the Ord Public Schools System during the Chamber luncheon Thursday at the Elks Club. Ord High principal Bob Shannon and K. Vidal, Ord Elementary principal, introduced the new teachers while outlining new programs and events occurring in the schools. According to Shannon, a mandated self-study is one major current project. The State Education Department requires it be done every ten years, and school accrediting associations mandate it every seven years. Twelve areas of concern are being examined, according to the principal. These were determined after surveying ten percent of the population in the school district. Shannon said study members are looking for volunteers to help with the job. Vidal told Chamber members and guests about her teacher aid program. It was covered in past issues of The Ord Quiz. Betty Jo Axthelm, Chamber officer, said some merchants are concerned because students hired often have trouble with basic math and can't spell. Exceptional students go on to college or take jobs elsewhere, she stated, leaving average caliber students to enter the local employment market. Shannon suggested a spell down between students and business people. A Future Business Leaders of America chapter is being formed at Ord High, according to the school principal. Further details will be revealed at the November (Continued on page 6)

Mode O'Day Opening Soon

A new business about to open its doors in Ord is Mode O'Day, which will be located at 109 South 16th Street (where the Classic was previously located). This will be a locally owned franchise store. The local owner will be Carol Thomson. Carol and her husband, Leo, are not new to Ord. They are both graduates of Ord High School and live on a farm about six miles east of Ord with their three children, Sharyl, Birdie, and Jolene. Sharyl will be working in the new business while Birdie is a junior at O.H.S. and Jolene is in the first grade. Sharyl and her dad, Leo, have also been helping for the last two weeks remodeling the store for its opening on October 15. When visiting with Carol about the new business, the Quiz learned she has always wanted to own a women's ready to wear store within a moderate price range and hopes to help keep business in Ord. Mode O'Day is not a newcomer to the American scene. The first Mode O'Day shop opened in Glendale, CA in 1932 and two years later, 59 shops were flourishing. Now there are about 700 retail shops in the western, southern, and midwestern states, making this one of the largest franchised apparel chains in the country. Mode O'Day Company is also among the nation's largest manufacturers and distributors of women's apparel. It maintains a 90,000 square-foot executive and distribution center in Burbank, CA and another operation is in Kansas City, MO. Seven manufacturing plants in the west, southwest and midwest are responsible for producing the large percentage of merchandise sold in the Mode O'Day shops. The plants manufacture dresses, sportswear, and leisurewear, from designs created at the main Burbank office for Juniors, Misses and Half Sizes. Coats, suits, swimwear and accessories are purchased from outside sources and the company now imports sweaters, handbags and other accessories from Europe and the Orient. In 1961, the original owners, the Malouf brothers, sold Mode O'Day Company and Mode O'Day Frock Shops of Hollywood to Gamble-Skogmo, Inc.

Hydroseeder a Sure Shot for Conservation

Lower Loup NRD personnel demonstrated the hydroseeder October 3 on a road structure two miles south and one and a half miles west of Burwell. The hydroseeder sprays a slurry mix of grass seed, fertilizer, and special hydromulch on hard to reach areas. It is safer than using a tractor pulled grass drill on steep embankments, according to Leon A. Koehnmoos, assistant general manager at the Lower Loup Ord office. This was demonstrated on a sharp embankment of the Larson-Schwartzlander road structure. A roadway dike of dirt with a tube underneath for flowing water replaced a conventional bridge. It is more permanent and easier to maintain than a bridge, and cheaper in the long run, Koehnmoos told the Quiz. The hydroseeder was purchased last fall and may be rented from the Lower Loup NRD.

Bedroom Car Crash Saturday Night

A pickup crashed through the bedroom wall of the Con Pierson residence in Arcadia late Saturday night. Mike VanSlyke was driving a 1976 Ford pickup when it missed a curve around 11 p.m. The truck plowed through the bedroom wall of the Arcadia residence. VanSlyke isn't believed to have been injured. Mrs. Pierson, according to Valley County Sheriff Martin Sonnenfeld, was injured. How badly isn't known.

Auxiliary Wins in State Competition

Valley County Hospital Auxiliary has been named a winner in the Nebraska Hospital Association's outstanding Auxiliary Project Contest for its efforts to raise funds for a projector for the hospital. The award was presented last week at the Association's 43rd Annual Convention in Kearney. To raise money for the purchase of the projector, the Auxiliary held a tour of new and remodeled homes in Ord and North Loup. An Auxiliary hostess collected a charge at the door of each home. The Auxiliary also held a bake

Charges Against Ord Teens To Be Reduced

Charges of committing felony criminal mischief and aiding and abetting in the same, filed against three Ord teenagers September 24, will be reduced, according to Greg Jensen of the City Attorney's office. The charges of criminal mischief will be reduced from a felony to a lesser misdemeanor status. The three youths now face possible maximum sentences of three months confinement and/or $500 fine, Jensen told the Quiz. Jensen revealed Wednesday, one reason for the charge reduction was a report from the State Fire Marshal's Office and Kansas-Nebraska Gas Company. Jensen stated that, according to that report, there was little chance that physical harm would result from the chimney taping. Bill Clamp, 18, was originally charged with committing felony criminal mischief. Sheryl Fues, 19, and Bill Tietzin, 18, were originally charged with aiding and abetting in the same. The defendants will be represented by Jim Kelly of Grand Island. The three are charged in connection with an incident at Ord High Principal Bob Shannon's home September 18. Shannon reportedly heard noises on the roof that Tuesday. When police arrived they found the fireplace chimney was completely sealed with duct tape. The furnace chimney was about half sealed or taped. Jensen revealed Wednesday, one reason for the charge reduction was a report from the State Fire Marshal's Office and Kansas-Nebraska Gas Company. Tractors, a Pickup Truck, Barrels of Flammable Duplicating Fluid, a Lawn Mower, and Other Items are now stored in the Ord High Voc. ag. shop, according to Shoemaker. The room, he stated, is crowded.

We need to put more emphasis on vocational education, he told the board. "I've never asked a kid (when hiring him) if he wrestled. I'm thankful you realize agriculture is the bread and butter of this area." Vancura said it would take three or four meetings for board members to decide on building plans. Last month preliminary work on renovating the girls dressing room was launched. If constructed, funds for the ag shop addition and new dressing room would come from the Special Building Fund, according to Dr. Bill Gogan, Schools Superintendent. The Activity Committee has decided on evaluation guidelines, according to group member Ed Vancura. These were reached after recent meetings, he told the board. The committee will now meet with coaches and other school personnel. Vancura had earlier suggested reducing the number of school activities. During a September 10 board meeting, he maintained the number of school related events should be pruned. Committee members are board members Ed Vancura, Bob Dworak, Karen Zaruba, and Merrill Mason. Ord High teacher, Ron Dughman, suggested the liaison committee meet every two weeks or so. Purpose of the group is, in his words, "...to keep everyone informed" and to discuss possible concerns of teachers, staff members, board members, and others in the school system. As proposed by Dughman committee members would be drawn from teachers, staff members, and school board representatives. Board president Mason said something along these lines "...is pretty much what we had in mind."

Year Book

John Minnick, Ord High annual sponsor, suggested advertising in the school annual, as one way of keeping costs down. Last year's annual cost $6.50. The 1979-80 Chant yearbook will likely cost an estimated $7.50, according to the school teacher sponsor. He stated the book could become prohibitively expensive for some students. Mason recalled yearbook ad sales were dropped because board members didn't want student bothering area merchants. According to Dr. Gogan, annual ads were discontinued in 1949 or 1950. Board member Bob Dworak suggested tabling the idea for 30 days. Needed monies could come from the district's general fund, he said, adding selling ads would put students in competition with the Quiz and local radio station.

CAROL'S CORNER

TODAY... IT COULD BE A GREAT DAY... I woke with the bright morning sun shining in on me. It was the start of a beautiful autumn day. Even though it was Monday, I was determined this would be a good day.

Yesterday also started out beautiful, but several things went wrong and I just let it go.

"Today," I thought to myself, "will be different." No matter what happens I will try not to let it upset me. If there is a sarcastic remark, I will tolerate it — even try to understand it — and I promise to play it cool and not let it bother me.

Of course, things are bound to go wrong during a day and I realize I sometimes add my share to the commotion. Still, I can do my best to keep things right, keep it pleasant.

I know I can't control everything, but I can control myself. Today will be a good day because that's the way I want it. Anyhow, I can try.

So, today... I will concentrate on this day only and not tackle all my problems at once.

Also, today... I will be happy, for most folks are as happy as they make up their minds to be — or so it is said.

And, today... I will have a schedule. I might not follow it exactly, but I will have it. This will save me from hurry and indecision (or at least help a lot).

Today... I will try to adjust myself to what is, and not try to adjust everything to my own wishes. I will take my "luck" as it comes, and fit myself to it.

But most of all, today... I will be unafraid. Especially I will not be afraid to enjoy what is beautiful, and to believe that as I give to the world, so the world will give to me.

Burwell Residents Young at Heart

The Burwell Nursing Home has three residents who will celebrate their birthdays this month with a combined age of 296. The three are Ericka Larsen, Mary Scanlan and Barbara Horak.

Ericka, the youngest in the group, will be 93 on October 15. She was born in a log cabin which she later donated to the Burwell Park. Ericka still goes to the beauty parlor every week to get "spiffy" for all the social functions she attends.

Mary will be 98 on October 18 and she still enjoys going to the coffee shop nearly every day with one of her sons. Also, when the weather permits, she loves to go for rides in the country.

But both Ericka and Mary will have to admit they have a way to go to catch Barbara. She will be 105 years old on her birthday, October 23. Barbara is still very alert and active and attends all the social and craft activities at the home. She also loves to have company.

You can tell these ladies are young at heart!

Hospital Auxiliary Reveals Activities

The Valley County Hospital Auxiliary met October 8 at 1:30 p.m. with Marie Cetak, vice chairman, presiding. Having accepted obtaining a portable heart monitor as a project, we were pleased to be told that along with the Thomas memorial, we have been presented donations from the Catholic Ladies Altar Society and the American Legion Auxiliary.

Plans were made to have a card party and a craft demonstration in the near future as fund raisers. Kathy Streif, social director, reported that the Ord School Band had been there to play for the residents and was appreciated by them all. The extension clubs have also been in to entertain with such things as a kitchen band and a mini circus.

With the coming of cold weather, the garden area is an array of color and well worth the visit from everyone. One of May Lockhart's Easter lilies is ready to bloom.

Aurora Huskies Blast Ord Chants

The Ord Chants broke through Aurora's line and put a stop on his play during the third quarter.

The chant line held, forcing Aurora into a punting situation during third quarter play Friday. Aurora had inches to go, but were denied the desired gain.

By Anne Smith
It was the fifth place ranked Aurora Huskies downing the Ord Chanticleers 38-13 Friday night in Ord.

Once again, penalties and turnovers at the wrong times cost Ord points and a win against Aurora. The Huskies made the first move, scoring with 3:52 left in the first quarter and by the half Aurora was ahead 31-0. Ord Coach Suhr had a lot of talking and very little time to do it at half time.

The boys were very down at the half, but we set goals for ourselves and came out and did them," Suhr said. "We didn't get down on the guys, we just tried to fire them up, and we came out at the half ready to play ball."

Aurora had lots of depth in the first half. Ord slowed the Huskies in the second half by allowing them only one touchdown.

Ord still couldn't put enough together to come back. Ord did score in the fourth quarter, as was their goal at the half, on a four-yard run by Jeff Sich. The kick failed and the score was 38-6. The Chants later scored on a three-yard run by Keme Pelton. They completed the game after, giving Ord 13 points.

Coach Suhr commented, "Next week we are going to come out all fired up and ready to play Central City."

The game will be in Central City at 7:30. The Chants will appreciate the fan support.

Wildcats Swamp Huskies 32-18

By Lanny Cusimano
The Arcadia Huskies bowed to host Scotia, 32-18, last Friday, for their fifth game of the 1979 season. Arcadia got off to a bad start on their first offensive play of the game with a fumble inside the Wildcat 15 yard line. Things didn't get much better.

Mike Johnson was the leading ball carrier for Arcadia as he tallied 142 yards in 19 carries. Steve Einspahr added 53 yards in 8 carries. Johnson was also the Huskies' leading receiver, racking up 63 yards from three receptions.

Mike Johnson and Scott Sell were the leading players on defense with 18 and 16 tackles, respectively.

Arcadia outran the Wildcats with 340 total yards, as compared to North Loup-Scotia's 206. Penalties and fumbles really destroyed the Huskies as they lost nearly as many yards as they gained.

The Huskies' next game will be on October 19 with the Elba Bluejays. The game will be played at Arcadia and is also the Huskies' homecoming.

The Huskie reserve squad will face the NLS Wildcats, Monday, October 15, at 7 p.m. on Arcadia's home field.

Ord Frosh Tie Br. Bow 14-4

Ord freshmen tied host Broken Bow 14-14 Monday night.

Broken Bow scored in the first quarter with a series of ground gaining plays. They were capped by a long pass and short run to the end zone. With the two point conversion Broken Bow was ahead 8-0.

Ord replied in the second quarter. Shawn Sich took it in on a 20-yard trap play. Ord tried for two, but didn't make it.

A long pass in the third quarter set up Broken Bow's final scoring Monday. That came on a 25 yard pass from the 40 yard line.

Chant understudies tied the game 14-14 in the fourth quarter. A fake to the right and a pass from Bob Grove to Shawn Sich set Ord was behind by only two points. A pass from Grove to Mike Wadas got those two extra points, tying the game 14-14.

Ord coach Lucks said the team is really improving and has one of the toughest defenses in their league. Ord's offense continues to improve, he said, but big mistakes continue to hurt Ord.

"St. Paul comes to Ord next Monday. Game time is 5:30 p.m."

Spiker Reserves Swamped by GINW

Ord reserve spikers were swamped by host Grand Island Northwest last Tuesday, 3-15 and 6-15. Ord's defense was up to par, but the offensive arm of the gal Chants wasn't there.

Coach Angie Batenhorst said it was hard to pinpoint just exactly what happened, and chalked the loss up to the game having an off night. She said Ord had trouble with their serve receive and covering defense.

Ord serve received so poorly that the team didn't get opportunities for many spikes according to the coach. The Chants were 86.9 on their serving accuracy.

The team's defense was good, but a good defense doesn't put points on the board.

7th-8th Grade Football Team Nips Central

A fourth quarter touchdown by Wade Bundy and a conversion by Jeff Augustyn gave Ord seventh and eighth graders an 8-0 win over guest Grand Island Central Catholic Tuesday, October 2. That TD came with four minutes left in the last quarter, on a 40 yard run.

Ord coach Lon Bartholomew termed the game a defensive battle with teams calling three plays and punting the first half. Ord had some initial trouble with blocking assignments, but by the second quarter this had been corrected.

In the third quarter, Ord had a good drive going but lost the ball on a pass interception. That gave Central a first down near their 30 yard line.

The Ord defense held them, killing any likely hopes for a touchdown.

During fourth quarter action Ord took the ball near mid-field, and turned that possession into a touchdown. Solid blocking cleared the way for Bundy's six points. Jeff Augustyn made good on the conversion.

That mid-field possession came as Central had tried for a first and ten with just a short distance needed to make four more tries.

That same defense denied Central any points during the game.

After a game Tuesday, October 9, with Burwell at Ord, the seventh and eighth graders will wind up their season at St. Paul Tuesday, October 16. Game time is 5:30 p.m.

Cross Country Squad Ninth at Kearney Meet

The Ord High Cross Country team placed ninth out of 16 Class B high school squads entered in the Kearney State Invitational High School meet there Friday. Ord with 142 points was behind Lexington with 120 points and in front of McCook with 144.

Along with the 16 Class B teams, there were six Class C-D teams.

Imperial won the class C-D standings with 16 points. In second place was Grand Island Central Catholic. Third ranked Ravenna had 52 points.

In Class B competition, Seward with 54 points was first and York with 63 second. Grand Island Northwest had 72 points for third place.

Greg Linke of Ord won a medal in individual Class B competition with a time of 14:51.

Junior Spikers Split Two Games

The Ord Junior High Volleyball team split a pair of matches with the visiting Grand Island Central Catholic Crusaders Tuesday, October 2. The seventh graders returned to their winning ways by taking the first two games in their match by the scores of 15-3 and 15-3.

"This was the most balanced game we have played this year, as nine girls contributed in the scoring and everyone played well on defense," Ord coach Rich Cecotka said.

Leading scorers were Kayla Peters with six points and Jill Huribert with five points. Tammy Vancura, Patty Jo Miller, and Tammy Mulligan scored four points each, while Deb Spilney, Debra Zinke and Cheryl Kamarad had two points. Sondra Loft rounded out the scoring with one point. Playing exceptionally well on defense was Amy Kienker and Vicki Wagner.

The eighth graders jumped to a quick 12-5 lead in game one before faltering. They lost their match in two games by the scores of 15-12 and 15-3. "We had one of our best days this year serving but our defense left a lot to be desired. We can and should play better than we did in those two games."

The leading scorer was Kim Cook with six points. Others in the scoring column were Angela George, Angie Kamarad, and Patti Wagner with three points each. Amy Schroeder, Ellen Green, and Kina Chileski served 100% but failed to score.

Both teams now have a 2-1 record with games with Burwell and St. Paul remaining.

Anderson Boosts Concordia Spikers

Christy Anderson of Ord helped Concordia College gal spikers in a match against host Kearney College at a triangular meet with Creighton University. Concordia dropped the first set against Creighton 5-15 and 6-15.

In the second, they were defeated by Kearney, but it took three games for host K State to do the job. Chris scored seven points.

Kearney took the second set 16-14, 9-15 and 12-15.

Youth Programming On ETV Network

Children's wants... needs... problems... dreams... rights!
Sometimes it's difficult to be young. Children are sometimes looked down upon, ordered around, told what to do or w/lo to be, and not permitted the thoughts and emotions which are rightfully theirs.

A special Saturday afternoon block of programming on the Nebraska Educational Television Network features four programs geared for pre-teens and parents, which will help the members of America's younger generation to better know and deal with themselves, and expose parents and adults to some of the younger individual's problems.

FREESTYLE — a 13-part dramatic series designed to demonstrate the limiting effects of sex-role stereotyping on career-related interests and activities of younger males and females is being rebroadcast on Saturdays at 4 p.m., repeating Thursdays at 8:30 a.m. Each episode is in the form of an adventure that focuses on an ordinary situation to which the pre-teen can relate.

FEELINGS — an all new series hosted by well-known child psychologist Lee Salk airs on Saturdays at 4:30 p.m., repeating Fridays at 8:30 a.m. The 13-program series features candid conversation with two or three youngsters on young people's deepest feelings about life's most significant problems — divorce, love, anger, sexuality, family life and schools. The program — structured for pre-teens and their parents — also considers the special outlook of youngsters whose lives are complicated by chronic illness and handicaps, child abuse and children in trouble.

FOOTSTEPS — in a rebroadcast of the highly acclaimed series, these programs examine the options which are open to parents when dealing with their children about issues which are often difficult — childhood fears, fantasy and make-believe, discipline, death in the family, development of social skills and food habits. The 20-program series on parenting does not preach or give cut-and-dried solutions, but offers possibilities via dramatizations followed by documentary comments to parents and parents-to-be. The series airs on Saturdays at 5 p.m., repeating on Thursdays at 8 a.m. and Fridays at 6 p.m.

THE OTHER SCHOOL SYSTEM — a 12-part series airing Saturdays at 5:30 p.m., focuses on many aspects of teaching and education which are of concern to volunteer teachers, group leaders, scout troops, 4-H, church schools, YMCA/YWCA, and parents who work with pre-school and day-care programs. Such topics as learning development, story telling techniques, discipline and goal setting are explored.

Four Year Losing Streak Is Ended

There was rejoicing in the North Loup-Scotia locker room Thursday. The North Loup-Scotia girls volleyball team ended a four year losing streak. The Wildcat girls downed guest Spalding Academy 15-17, 15-7 and 15-13. Carrie Sheldon led the winners with 12 points. Madge Gebhardt and Jill Hamer made good on 17-17 and 16-16 serves, respectively. Karen Clement was 13-14 spikes and Hanner 19-19 for the Wildcats. Spalding Academy is now 5-2 for the season and Scotia 1-4.

Varsity Spikers Nix Northwest - Falter at Valentino Invitational

Ord varsity spikers whipped Grand Island Northwest in two quick sets last Tuesday before going on to the Valentino's Cornhusker Classic in Lincoln Friday.

Ord made quick work of host Northwest 15-7 and 15-11 October 2. Barb Kittle was the leading scorer with 10 points. She also had seven ace attacks. Kathy Hansen and Nancy Gogan had four ace attacks each.

Ord coach Jan Weber, said she was pleased with Ord's ability to attack the ball against NW, while noting her girls' serving was much improved. Ord was 88.6 percent in team serving statistics.

Nancy Gogan and Barb Kittle were further lauded for their good defensive net play, halting a potential Northwest attack.

Others mentioned were Anne Smith and Amy Gibbons for setting the ball, thus helping Ord's attack.

That win made Ord's record 5-2.

Valentino's
Then Came Valentino's Cornhusker Classic. Sixteen teams classes A, and B, from across the state were in Lincoln for the event.

Grand Island High took first place and Lincoln Northeast was second.

Ord bowed to the York Dukes Friday, 7-15 7-15. Anne Smith was the top scorer with seven points. Nancy Gogan and Barb Kittle led Ord's attack.

Ord's defense reacted slowly, according to Coach Weber, and the team had trouble serve receiving the ball, making it hard to attack. No attacks, no points. It's that simple.

Missing six serves in the second game didn't help either.

In consolation games, it was Ord against Omaha Mercy Friday night. Ord outplayed Mercy. Weber told the Quiz, but was edged 12-15, 9-15.

She speculated Ord should have won the game. "We had a more aggressive team and outspiked Mercy," Weber said. "I think we made our errors when Mercy had the serve. They collected points off these errors. When Ord had the serve, we couldn't convert it into points."

CPAs Cite 10 Ways to Fight Inflation

(This is the second in a series of five articles from the Nebraska Society of Certified Public Accountants on dealing with inflation.)

Certified public accountants, who provide business managers with wide-ranging advice, say a major problem currently being wrestled with by most firms is "cost containment," a problem familiar to families, too, who usually call it "living with inflation."

From the anti-inflation policies found effective by industry members of the Nebraska Society of CPAs have come up with 10 ways of countering inflation's blows that might be equally useful in the home.

Their 10 cost-containment suggestions are:

1. Multiply your sources of supply. Shop around when you buy a new car or a TV set; do the same for every-day consumable items. Only if you buy from two or more sources will you learn when a price advantage is available.
2. Prepare a "needed soon" list. Knowing what household necessities are in short supply will keep you alert to bargains you can really use. Avoid buying "bargains" you really don't need.
3. Take advantage of special offers, but, again, only if you need the product. Cents-off, two-for-the-price-of-one, mail-in-the-coupon, two-percent-off-for-cash. All good as sold, but only if you need the product or use the service without the special offer.
4. Get rid of white elephants. Industry periodically clears out assets that are rarely or never used, converting them to cash which can be invested to earn income. This also increases the space available for useful purposes.
5. Take advantage of economies of scale — but with care. Realize the savings that come with it. Remember that stocks on hand for prolonged periods are an expense; they tie up capital and have to be heated, refrigerated, or otherwise maintained. On the plus side is the fact that almost anything you buy could cost much more a year from now.
6. Reduce waste. Another look at your life style to see how many of the expenses you take for granted could easily be dispensed with: the seldom-used phone extension; the unread magazine; the heated but unlit fireplace; the duplicated accident-insurance coverage; the club membership no longer used; the savings left on long-term deposit at low interest.
7. Get everybody into the act. Industry finds that waste-reduction programs work only if everyone in the organization realizes how necessary they are. Impress on the whole family the importance of staying alert for "leaks."
8. Do it yourself. Companies are saving by letting people on staff perform simple services that once were assigned to outside contractors: sending employees to short training courses if necessary, to acquire the skills needed.
9. Explore renting as an alternative to buying. Consider carefully the cost of a tool or appliance in terms of how much you will use it over its lifetime. Then compare with daily rental or monthly lease fees.
10. Substitute. Where quality is comparable, consider the lower-priced alternative product. Don't believe you must remain loyal to an item you have always used. That's not loyalty, it's a habit — a bad habit in times like these.

The Railway Post Office

By 1875 the Railway Post Office had become a fixture on the principal passenger trains of the nation. In a short twelve years much of the inter-city mail was being sorted in this fashion. One of the "first experimental" ones had been attached to a northern Massachusetts line, the Hannibal and St. Joe (later the Burlington) in the early 1860s. The Grand Island Times of August 11, 1875 (on file at the Nebraska State Historical Society), explained the process of mail sorting on the nation's major trans-continental line, the Union Pacific:

"How the Mail is Handled Before We Get it."

"Nearly every one of our readers receives his mail regularly from the one mail carrier every day, and thinks nothing more of it, but probably not one in a hundred has the faintest idea of the importance or magnitude to which this branch of the department has grown.

"It has only been about a dozen years since the first car was started, and now they are run on all the principal lines in the country. Before, the mail was left at general distributing offices to be sorted and sent to the smaller country offices, causing much and frequent delay. At present, this work is all done while in transit, and the mail is delivered more or less early, according to distance.

"The transportation has not yet been brought to perfection, but arrangements have just been concluded which will come pretty near it, by putting on a train of four cars, between New York and Chicago, to make the trip in twenty-six hours, carrying nothing but mail. If successful it will be extended.

"But to come nearer home and show how we handle our mail over the U.P. is the purpose of this article, and with it in view we boarded the car upon its arrival last Saturday evening, being fortunate in finding our good friends Otto F. Steer and H. M. Parker. Then went without his supper for the benefit of the Times' subscribers, as he said:

"There are eight cars in use, employing thirty-two clerks, two of the latter working the head office at Omaha. The car is divided into three compartments, the largest of which is used to work in. In the form of an oval around this room are boxes, each labeled with the name of an office, into which the proper packages are thrown as fast as sorted. The middle room contains three berths, for the use of the clerks. The third is a store room and often when leaving Omaha contains eight or ten tons of mail to be handled. Two clerks accompany each car, but on three days in each week, when the eastern weeklies mostly arrive, the services of a third clerk are required on papers.

"Each clerk works six days, and lays off eight, making a trip once in two weeks. On the morning on which they are to go out, they go to the car at eight and work on the matter that arrived during the previous night. The express into Omaha in the forenoon brings the letters in pouches, tied up and numbered by States, to aid in quicker distribution.

"As soon as the train is under way, the way mail is taken up and quickly disposed of, and work resumed on the through mail. Mistakes made in forwarding letters are traced back, and credited

Whooping Crane Sighting Time

It's just about whooping crane time in Nebraska, according to Ross Lock, of the Nebraska Game and Parks Commission. The whooping cranes should be moving down their customary fall flyway through central Nebraska any time now. The big birds seldom pass west of Grand Island or west of North Platte, and seldom delay their trip south much past the first week in November. Whoopers are more commonly found on or near the Platte River, Niobrara River or in natural wetlands and associated croplands.

He described whoopers as "very large white birds, with a seven-foot wingspread, black-tipped wings and a dark red face. They fly with a steady, deliberate wingbeat, with their long neck extended to the front and spindly legs trailing behind. They stand about five feet tall."

Lock noted that most false alarms on whooping cranes sightings are cases of mistaken identity. The species most commonly confused with big cranes are pelicans, large white birds with black wing tips, just like the whoopers. In flight pelicans carry their necks propped back in the form of an "S", while the whooper's neck is extended. Pelicans often soar in flight, something the whooper is not known for. Of course, the pelican's big, yellow bill is a dead giveaway to his identity at close range.

Another bird commonly mistaken for the whooper is the snow goose which is much smaller than the whooper, but has the same black wing tips and flies in much the same manner. Swans, too are often identified as whooping cranes, because of their large size, white color, and the way they fly. However, swans have no black wing tips.

With the opening of the waterfowl hunting seasons, sportsmen are urged to positively identify any large white bird before shooting. Surveys conducted on their wintering grounds at Aransas National Refuge in Texas in late 1978 show only 74 of the birds living in the wild.

According to Lock, the young birds hatched this year, plus about 17 sub-adult birds from 1977 and 1978 will be carrying colored

United Pork Usage Urged

Allen Skroch, Director of the Hog Division of the National Farmers Organization, today issued a statement encouraging those in the hog industry to get together to promote additional consumption of pork and to adjust the supply of hogs coming to market during the fourth quarter of this year.

The Meat Board reported that the average American consumed 1.02 ounces of cooked pork (edible basis) daily during the fourth quarter of 1978. Based on government reports and the projections of many economists, an increase of 20-24% in hog marketings is anticipated for the fourth quarter of 1979. To accommodate this increase, the average daily consumption of cooked pork in the U.S. would have to increase by only 1.5 of an ounce per person. This would increase the average daily consumption of pork in this country to only an approximate 1.23 ounces per person.

Skroch urged those involved in the hog industry to step up pork promotion efforts in order to encourage this additional consumption.

AG TIPS FROM OUR COUNTY AGENT

By Al Martens

Coming Events:
 October 25 — 4-H Achievement Night, North Loup Community Building, North Loup, 7 p.m.
 November 10 — Equine Seminar, Northwest Kansas Cultural Arts Center, Colby Community College Campus, Colby, KS.
 November 27-29 — Pork Production College, Aurora.

Early Pregnancy Exams:
 In managing either a dairy or a beef cow herd it is of great economic importance to examine animals early for pregnancy.

According to Duane N. Rice, Extension Veterinarian, this procedure is probably one of the best bargains available to producers in today's inflationary times. The veterinarian can accurately inform the producer of the pregnancy status of cows at least seven months in advance of calving. This information can prompt the owner to make necessary moves to better his position as it relates to the costs of maintaining his cows.

If there are a large number of "open" cows, early discovery is important for possible disease control and to consider therapy, with breeding for fall calves a consideration.

Also, by examining early, decisions for culling while the cows are in good flesh and very marketable, can save many dollars.

Don't delay nor forget this part of good livestock management.

Time is Short For Cattle Grub Control:
 The time to use septemics on cattle for grub control is late summer or early fall. Although labels may not specify a cut off date, the risk of reaction to grub control increases in November through March. A number of products are registered for grub control. Most grub control chemicals and some that are not for grub control can be used for control of cattle lice. According to Jack Cambell, Extension Entomologist, none of these are reliable for season-long control of lice. Fall is the best time to control cattle lice, before severe numbers develop on cattle.

Fall Application of Fertilizer:
 Fall application of fertilizer for next year's crop can be effective and efficient if properly done. Soil conditions in the fall are more favorable for fertilizer application and this practice can relieve the spring workload. Edwin Penas, District Extension Soils Specialist, cautions that fall application of nitrogen should be limited to non-sandy soils.

Ammonium Ammonia is the only form of nitrogen suggested for fall application. Also, it is desirable that soil temperatures not exceed 50 degrees F at the time of application.

Field research shows that the most efficient time for applying nitrogen (all forms) is at sidedressing time for corn, and second best treatment is fall application of Anhydrous Ammonia.

Other nutrients such as phosphorus, potassium and zinc can be applied in the fall. Apply these nutrients according to a soil test before soil freeze-up. A slight incorporation into the soil is desirable on sloping land to prevent losses from runoff while the soil is frozen. Sulfur, if needed, should be applied in the spring.

Fall Lawn Weed Control Is Effective:

You seldom see blooms on dandelions in the fall. However, plants are present in lawns and other turf areas. Dandelions, along with field bindweed, chickweed, shepherds-purse and other species that make fall growth can be effectively treated in October before a hard freeze. Use the same rates of 2,4-D, mecoprop and Banvel as suggested for spring application. Combinations of two or more of the herbicides are available and give control of several weed species with one application. Herbicide-fertilizer combinations that do two jobs in one trip are also effective.

Care of Dahlias:

According to Don Janssen, Extension Horticulturalist, dahlias are a summer flowering bulb that should be dug once the first frost blackens the foliage. Loosen the soil thoroughly around each dahlia clump and pry out the clump, taking care not to break the fragile tubers. Dry the clump thoroughly and store in dry sand or peat at 35 to 50 degrees F.

Lower Loup Natural Resources District

It's time again to report on the crop water use (evapotranspiration) data gathered from the District's weather stations at Merna, Burwell, St. Edward, and Farwell.

Calculations on crop water use are made using the modified Penman equation with input on total wind run, solar radiation, maximum and minimum temperature, and humidity. Rainfall is also recorded; however, it is not an input into the calculation.

This season we gathered the information and calculated growing degree days (GDD). The calculations were made using the format described in NebGuide G75-253. GDD is the average of the maximum and minimum temperature minus 50 degrees for that particular day.

In our reporting for next year, we plan to include the reporting of accumulated GDD for the four general areas covered by the weather stations. It has also been suggested that we compare seasons, that is, last season in relationship to the current reporting season. I'm not sure how that will work because we have a limit on tape time and itsener tolerance. We will do our best.

Total miles of wind run for the 105-day reporting period (was 14,778 at Merna; 17,299 at Burwell; 12,142 at Farwell, and 12,087 at St. Edward).

In June, crop water use for the Merna area was 6.28 inches for alfalfa, 2.89 inches for corn, with 488 GDD accumulated; for Burwell, 5.29 inches for alfalfa, 2.33 inches for corn, with 540 GDD; for Farwell, 5.40 inches for alfalfa, 2.71 inches for corn, with 464 GDD; and for St. Edward,

5.76 inches for alfalfa, 2.77 inches for corn, with 57 GDD.

In July crop water use for the Merna area was 7.05 inches for alfalfa, 5.50 inches for corn, with 647 GDD; for Burwell, 6.31 inches for alfalfa, 4.82 inches for corn, with 683 GDD; for Farwell, 6.48 inches for alfalfa, 5.18 inches for corn, with 717 GDD; and for St. Edward, 6.20 inches for alfalfa, 5.01 inches for corn, with 680 GDD.

In August, crop water use for the Merna area was 7.11 inches for alfalfa, 7.38 inches for corn, with 543 GDD; for Burwell, 6.79 inches for alfalfa, 6.61 inches for corn, with 663 GDD; for Farwell, 6.41 inches for alfalfa, 6.21 inches for corn, with 717 GDD; and for St. Edward, 6.11 inches for alfalfa, 5.93 inches for corn, with 649 GDD.

From September 1 to the 20th, the reported crop water use for Merna was 4.78 inches for alfalfa, 4.18 inches for corn, with 338 GDD; for Burwell, 4.73 inches for alfalfa, 4.13 inches for corn, with 342 GDD; for Farwell, 4.02 inches for alfalfa, 3.51 inches for corn, with 351 GDD; and for St. Edward, 3.91 inches for alfalfa, 3.42 inches for corn, with 298 GDD.

Summing up: During the reporting period, crop water use for Merna was 25.22 inches for alfalfa and 19.95 inches for corn, with 2,016 GDD; for Burwell, 23.12 inches for alfalfa, 17.89 inches for corn, with 2,228 GDD; for Farwell, 22.12 inches for alfalfa, 17.89 inches for corn, with 2,228 GDD; for Farwell, 22.31 inches for alfalfa, 17.61 inches for corn, with 2,245 GDD; and for St. Edward, 21.98 inches for alfalfa, 17.13 inches for corn, with

Acres of Diamonds

It wasn't much. Just a small item in a daily paper telling how another paper had been sold to a journalism syndicate. The terse obituary of local ownership has become a familiar item recently. More and more papers are being controlled by fewer and fewer persons. Or at least that is how it looked.

I was contemplating that while browsing through the latest edition of the Nebraska Newspaper. In that publication of the Nebraska Press Association, an article about Marion Krehbiel painted a different picture. Krehbiel told how there is a new interest in small town newspapers and rural living. People are leaving the supposed "good life" in cities to head for rural environs, Krehbiel said.

With 30 years as a journalism broker, bringing buyers and sellers of papers together, he should know. A frequent guest speaker at journalism gatherings, Krehbiel is respected for his knowledge of the trade.

Contemplating the article, I recalled how last weekend my wife was bent on getting out of town. She suggested we go to Grand Island. Yielding to the inevitable pressure, I gave up a quiet evening of television, doing little or nothing, and digesting the Sunday paper for a long trip on the road in pursuit of happiness.

For her at least.

On returning, I wondered just what in the heck we — rather she — was trying to prove. I didn't ask, I just wondered. Experience has taught me to hold my peace. You don't use logic with a woman.

Maybe, I thought, maybe with further gas shortages and higher fuel prices predicted in the future, with small towns expanding, and with more city dwellers seeking the good life in smaller towns, then just maybe residents of those hamlets will realize the good life they seek lies back in their own back yard.

There was a man who made a fortune telling a parable called "Acres of Diamonds." In that tale, a man sells his home and searches the world over for wealth. Old, spent, and poorer, he eventually wanders back where he first started only to find the diamond field he sought was in his own back yard.

The story is old, the well-known tale teller is dead, but the basic truth endures. I wonder how many of us fully appreciate it?

Gasohol proponents told the court a constitutional amendment approved some years ago removed the restriction against continuing appropriations, such as the gasohol law would authorize.

The Justice Department had earlier been granted an injunction blocking implementation of the law until all questions about its constitutionality were settled.

Against Forced School Consolidation

A spokesman for Nebraska teachers has warned legislative advocates of forced school consolidation not to bring the issue to a head during the 1980 legislative session.

Paul Belz, executive secretary of the Nebraska State Education Association, said a reorganization bill next year would be untimely and could actually harm the cause of education.

Belz said any time is a bad time to talk about reorganization "but right now is the worst time."

His statement was similar to one made recently by Sen. Gerald Koch of Ralston, chairman of the Legislature's Education Committee.

Sens. Peter Hoagland of Omaha and Don Westly of Lincoln, who will be in their second year of lawmaking next year, have indicated they may sponsor reorganization legislation in 1980.

Belz said he is optimistic the reorganization to promote efficiency and better programming. But he and Koch believe discussion of the issue next year in the Unicameral would provide an obstacle to senators promoting the issue of higher state aid to schools.

Belz said he is optimistic the Legislature will enact some type of school financing law. But he questioned whether proposals being considered could be described as state school aid.

All of the bills appear to be designed to provide property tax relief, he said.

Belz said his organization is attempting to develop an aid program of its own, but he declined to get into the specifics of the proposal.

'Cycle Helmet Bill Will Be Reintroduced to Unicameral

By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent

The Nebraska Press Association — Lincoln — A bill proposing re-enactment of a controversial piece of legislation will be before Nebraska lawmakers next year.

Sen. Dave Landis of Lincoln announced recently he will sponsor a measure that calls for motorcycle and moped riders to wear helmets.

The Legislature, threatened by the federal government with possible loss of road building and maintenance funds unless it cooperated, passed a motorcycle helmet law in 1975.

But the lawmakers repealed the law two years later.

Landis says voluntary systems of helmet use have not worked. He noted a recent state government survey showed 83 percent of those questioned said they believed the repealed law should be re-enacted.

The Lincoln lawmaker said he knows he will have strong opposition when he attempts to get his measure approved. In fact, he said he expects the opposition to be "fierce." But Landis said he is convinced opponents represent only a small minority and that the public good that would result from a helmet law would far outweigh any arguments the opponents could present.

Landis cited studies by the National Highway Traffic Safety Committee as an important reason why the state needs a helmet statute.

Those studies indicated riders who did not wear helmets had from three to nine times more fatal traffic accidents than riders who wear the protective device.

Last year, nearly 100 motorcycles were registered in Nebraska. There were an undetermined number of mopeds. The little cycles do not have to be registered with the Department of Motor Vehicles but they have become increasingly popular as the price of gasoline keeps escalating.

Defective Window Blamed

The spanking new medium-minimum security prison at Lincoln had not been in use very long before three inmates escaped by pushing out a window and scaling down a fence around the prison.

State Correctional Services Director Jerry Bolin said the reason the inmates got away so easily was a defective window.

Two of the escapes were recaptured within a few days, and the other was taken back into custody about a week later.

Bolin said a replacement for the defective window had been ordered before the escape and that a check was being made to determine whether similar windows were also defective.

He said new and longer bolts now secure the windows and that "keeper frames" will probably be added to help prevent the glass from being pushed out.

Bolin said changes in the movement of the population and better supervision of inmates when they are in the yard may also be needed at the new corrections center, which opened in July.

Gasohol Law debated

Oral arguments on the constitutionality of the gasohol law were presented recently before the Nebraska Supreme Court.

One of the main arguments of the state Justice Department, which is challenging the constitutional validity of the statute, is that it would authorize the spending of state money for something other than a clearly recognizable public purpose.

The law would permit state governmental assistance in the development of gasohol — a blend of 10 percent grain alcohol and 90 percent unleaded gasoline. Its supporters said, because of the energy crisis, the law definitely would serve a public purpose.

They made that argument repeatedly while outlining to the high court reasons why the law should be upheld.

The legislation would create a special fund financed by a 1-cent per gallon increase in the state gasoline tax. Money generated by the tax would guarantee government bonds for the development of alcohol plants and facilities by counties, cities and private parties.

The county or city would lease the plants to the state for up to 50 years with rental periods of not more than 12 months, with the rental payments being subject to annual appropriations. The legislation would authorize the state to enter into contracts or agreements with any private entity or person to provide the management or operating services for the facilities.

The Justice Department has contended the act would, among other things, unconstitutionally extend the state's credit to private firms and obligate future legislatures.

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

There is just no end to information you can pull from your mailbox. Last week came this piece from the National Wildlife Federation that tells about attack butterflies, which to my way of thinking puts President Carter's battling bunny in the shade. If there's anything peaceable left on this earth, Mister Editor, you would say it's a butterfly, cause he sure ain't got much to fight with.

Not so, says the wildlife people. They report battles to the death amongst certain kinds of these insects, and some will bash themselves into people that invade their territory. They let out battle cries by clicking parts of their bodies together, and they will chase dogs and cats fer half a mile. From reading the piece, you would figure that prize fighter that said he could float like a butterfly and sting like a bee was bragging more than he thought.

I bring up this butterfly report during the session at the country store Saturday night, and it got some of the fellers talking about other strange doings. Junior Meese, fer instance, said he had said that fer $16,000 a feller could

Finally she pleads with any young people that may read her message. "Experience life for him and for yourself — share it with your parents . . . you need your touching and caring very much."

"And don't forget a great deal of beauty lies within yourself. DON'T LOSE IT!"

I asked her if I could keep the letter and then I folded it up and carefully tucked it in my coat pocket. Again I wondered what I could possibly say.

She seemed to sense my loss of words and a faint smile found its way into her eyes. "Thanks. Thanks for listening."

I walked out the door and across the motel lobby and out into the night air and the darkness.

Cars and trucks droned along the nearby interstate highway. Their headlights pierced the darkness of the brisk autumn night.

"So many people in such a hurry," I thought. "No one wants to listen . . . until it's too late."

I looked up at the full moon . . . took a deep breath of the fresh air . . . plunged my hands deep into my pockets and decided to go for a walk.

Something Different

Want to Be Scrawny?

Never did I see such feverish people as we are. Every day a different rage, a different passion, a different excitement.

If you don't believe me look at all the furor over cancer: it is in every newspaper, every magazine, and at least half the TV shows. Everything is dangerous!

Or look at reducing. This staying slim, getting skinny criteria is at a full rolling boil. Doctors have encouraged it for years. Movie and stage stars agitated it. Fashionable stores show nothing but bony-thin styles in their show windows.

They've got us all reducing. Yes, even me myself. And I'll bet you're doing it too. It is either to cure your arthritis, take it easy on your heart, keep your waistline down, help you bend over or walk farther . . . or please your doctor.

So perhaps I can help you.

One radish equals one calorie. Really. So help yourself.

Peaches are in season; you may eat a whole peach and add only 34 or 35 calories. And nectarines are a few less.

An apple is about 68 calories, a banana more like 120. Strawberries count four or five calories per berry! Cherries about the same.

Grapefruit amounts to 35 or 40 for an average half. Lemon juice is less than two per teaspoon so you may flavor your vegetables and fish with it freely.

Your old watermelon carries less than 25 for a three-ounce serving.

Now of vegetables asparagus is only 35 calories or less for a large serving. Beets are less than 70 for a cup full. Cabbage is your friend with less than 30 for seven ounces. Carrots are only about 35. Cauliflower is 25 or less for a cup, celery is under seven in one large stalk.

Our favorite corn is less than 75 for a five-inch ear. Cucumbers are your friend, less than 25 for an average sized one. Eggplant is less than 40 for one cup.

Greenery is less than 25 calories per average portion, lettuce about 15. Onions, that universal pickup for a dull dish or salad, are listed at under 30 calories.

Peas count up to 70 calories for a medium serving. Green peppers total about 40 for an eight-ounce portion.

Potatoes are your friend; no they are not fattening. It is what you put on them that is fattening . . . that sour cream, that butter or margarine. A medium-sized boiled potato is listed at about 75 calories when it is let alone. Sweet potatoes are about double this.

Don't slight tomatoes; at less than 30 calories for a medium-sized one they are a bargain.

Whole milk counts 160 calories for eight ounces. Skim milk (fatless stuff) only 90. If you will eat cheese (I will) stick to Swiss or cottage.

I'd tell you more but the Nebraska-Pennsylvania game is raging on TV and I have to go howl for our Big Red boys.

 open his own franchise tanning studio. That is a place where people bring their hides to be tanned. They sit to lay under special lamps and burn to a even turn, with the cost running someone on the order of $50 for 25 fries. He said these studios are opening in the big cities, and like everything else from tacos to Prairie water they'll be out here in the country before long. Junior said he figured he was as likely to meet up with a prize fighting butterfly as a feller willing to pay good money to use electricity to burn lamps to do what the sun will do for free, but that just goes to show what a feller gets for his fingering nowadays.
 Herb Goff said you can have your battling butterflies and tanning operations, for his money he'd rather take the doctors that specialize in house calls. Just when you think making a house call was as dead as the $3 office visit along comes a house call service in Portland, Oregon. Herb said, This team of doctors takes calls from other doctors who don't think patients need to be in the hospital, mostly after office hours. But they will come to the home of anybody that calls em and charge less than an emergency room visit. Herb was of a mind that if this catches on we might have to get the doc a horse and buggy in case we can't find him enough to make his rounds, then we'd really see some doctoring.
 General speaking, the fellers was excited about Herb's report. Martin Rasmussen said this service could be a real help for older folks that didn't want to live in a rest home and couldn't get into town ever time they need a doctor. He was worried that it might work out so good Medicaid and Medicare would have to step in and find some grave risk in treating folks at home without proper sanitation equipment, backup ambulances and the rest. It is too bad, Martin declared, that we and all the Government agencies that look out for us have to return everything about ever 50 year, and this is truer in medicine and education than anywhere.
 Yours truly,

Geranium Joe

FOOTBALL CONTEST

Win $100 — get all games and the Tiebreaker correct
$5 Awarded to Winner Each Week

Read the easy Rules below:

A $5 cash prize will be given by the Ord Quiz each week to the person who picks the most winners from the games listed in each ad on this page. Here's all you do: Pick the team you think will win each game (there's one in each ad) and write that team's name in the corresponding blank in the special entry form provided here on a sheet of paper. For example: The team you pick to win game number 1 (found in the ad in the upper middle of this page) should be written in blank number 1 in the entry form.

Also indicate your predicted score of the tiebreaker game in the space provided. Then write your name and address in the space at the bottom of the entry blank and bring it to the Quiz office by Friday at 5:00 p.m. (You have 2 days to enter this contest.) Entries may be brought in or mailed in, but will not be accepted after the deadline.

Only one entry per person may be made each week. If more than one person in your family wishes to enter, you may write their guesses on a separate sheet of paper.

Should two or more persons guess the same number of winners, the one predicting the nearest to the actual score of the tiebreaker game will be judged the winner. Otherwise, the score of that game will not be considered. Decision of the judges will be final. The winner will be announced in the Ord Quiz each Thursday. Everyone is eligible except employees of the Ord Quiz and their immediate families.

Better get the family together and start picking...now! Extra entry blanks may be picked up at the Ord Quiz.

Former Ord Pastor Back From Japan

Rev. Don Wright, formerly with the Bethel Baptist Church in Ord, was in town earlier this week, just back from a four year missionary stint in Japan. He served the Ord church for 1967-69. From there, he went to Japan, and helped start a church in Tokyo.

"We were really involved in two churches in all," Rev. Wright explained. One was in a 13 story apartment complex, part of a government planned community. Officials neglected to allocate space for the area's religious needs. "There was a real spiritual vacuum there," he commented.

"The congregation of 20 persons 'really fill the apartment up', he observed. After turning that church over to a Japanese minister, Rev. Wright became involved with a branch church of that congregation some 40 miles away.

It takes a lot of work to get converts in Japan, he stated in a Quiz interview Monday. Christians make up only one percent of the nation's populace. Most natives are Buddhists or believe in Shintoism. Many younger Japanese have no stated religious preference.

There is no government opposition to Christianity, according to Rev. Wright, and the religion is respected by large segments of the populace. "A pagan look up to Americans and Europeans," Rev. Wright said. He speculated one reason is that Japan has to import raw materials and export finished goods to survive.

English lessons start on the junior high level in most schools there. Students eager to try out their "new" language like to talk with Americans. Further interest in the west is evidenced by the popularity of Mrs. Wright's, Joann's, cooking classes.

Rev. Wright intimated both language and culinary sessions provide fertile ground for winning converts. In converting to Christianity, according to Rev. Wright, a Japanese national may face a conflict. In Shintoism there are many gods, and in Buddhism there are none. That last named religion uses precepts or guidelines for conducting one's life.

Caught in the middle between no gods at all and a plurality of deities is Christianity. Added to this, is the fact that some oriental religions are a synthesis of Buddhism and Shintoism, creating further imbalances of one or many or no gods at all.

Despite its low representation in numbers in Japan, Christianity is widely respected, according to the former Ord minister. The Bible is a best seller over there. "Maybe not read, but sold," the pastor quipped. What Rev. Wright considered the "educated" classes accept Christianity more readily than others, he contended. He attributed this to their being more open to new ideas.

In defining the word "educated," Rev. Wright was hard pressed. Japan has the highest literacy rate in the world. An estimated 98 percent of the Japanese citizens can read. In America that statistic is around 70 percent the pastor estimated.

His observations on Japan are likely well founded. He has been in that country ten years. He first went there in 1969, he said. Since then he has maintained the usual missionary rotation schedule: four years in a foreign country and one year in the States. During their stay in Japan the three Wright children have picked up the national language. That consists of an alphabet with 52 characters or symbols. "Well, actually there are three alphabets," he elaborated. Most written Japanese is a synthesis of the three. Two of these have 52 letters. The third has around 3,000 entries in its unbridged dictionary. "It takes around two years of concentrated study for a westerner to start from scratch and be later able to read a newspaper written in Japanese. Rev. Wright speculated it could be easier for a resident of Japan to learn English than for an American to learn Japanese. Like most things in life, it's all in a point of view.

Cattle Get a Brief Vacation

An estimated 56 cattle had a brief vacation in a cornfield when a semitruck carrying them upset a mile and a half north of Bartlett Sunday. The truck was headed north on Highway 281 when the accident occurred.

One driver was killed but the remaining 55 went into a nearby cornfield, according to Doyle Keller, Greeley County Sheriff. The driver, from Yankton, SD was taken to the hospital in a critical condition, complaining of a leg injury.

Keller estimated damage at $3,000 to the tractor and $5,000 to the trailer.

Wait-See Attitude On Pending Corn Crop

Ord ag dealers have a wait and see attitude about the coming corn harvest. Most estimated that it is a week and a half to two weeks away.

Valley County Extension Agent, Al Martens, predicted corn yields this year will be better than usual and later than last year in maturing.

Soy beans, he speculated, would contain about nine percent moisture. "There is," he said, "a pretty fair crop in both."

Mike Erickson, Farmers Co-Op Elevator, assistant manager agreed with Martens predictions on higher than average moisture count in pending corn harvests while adding, "It's hard to tell until they (farmers) start picking."

Gaylord Bolesen of Bolesen Grain Company revealed two loads of early planted corn were received recently but declined harvest predictions, stating, "It's hard to tell yet."

Special Ballot Will Decide School Issue

School District 57 Ed Board officials in Greeley County voted Thursday to hold a special election deciding if bonds should be issued for a junior-senior high school building in Greeley.

Cost of the school alone would be between $800,000 and $850,000, according to figures in the October 4 Greeley County Citizen. A new gym in the structure would cost an additional $340,000.

A school board financial advisor, Phil Lorenzo, speculated about eight mills would be required for the school and 3.4 mills for the gym.

Voters will decide, at an apparently undetermined date, two questions. They are (1) Should a new school be built, and (2) Should a new gym be built.

Elderly-Disabled Benefits Increase

A new food stamp rule that will make certain elderly and disabled food stamp users eligible for increased benefits had been announced by U.S. Department of Agriculture officials.

Under the new rule, elderly and disabled persons will be able to deduct high medical expenses or exceptionally high shelter costs from their gross incomes, according to Assistant Secretary Carol Tucker Foreman. "These deductions will have the effect of raising their food stamp benefits."

The new rule goes into effect nationwide no later than January 1, 1980. States will have until December 15, 1979 to notify elderly and disabled food stamp users that they may be eligible for increased benefits.

Foreman said that the elderly and disabled persons already using food stamps will need to

"I stay with the CO-OP Feeding Program because the results are excellent and the service beats anything around."

—Oscar Eberhart

7 buy 400 pound calves in the fall and fatten them through the summer. I start them on CO-OP 35-0 all vegetable protein. Then, later on in the year as I get more grain into them, I go to more urea CO-OP 35-11 and also 42-21. I feed Rumensin and MGA, and keep them on this program all the way through.

CO-OP Research leads to greater gains.
 Since CO-OP has come out with new products, my gains have been going higher, and much, much better. Some of my gains, payweight to payweight, have run about 2.2 pounds per day, which I think is excellent. This is the result of research through the CO-OP Feeding Program.

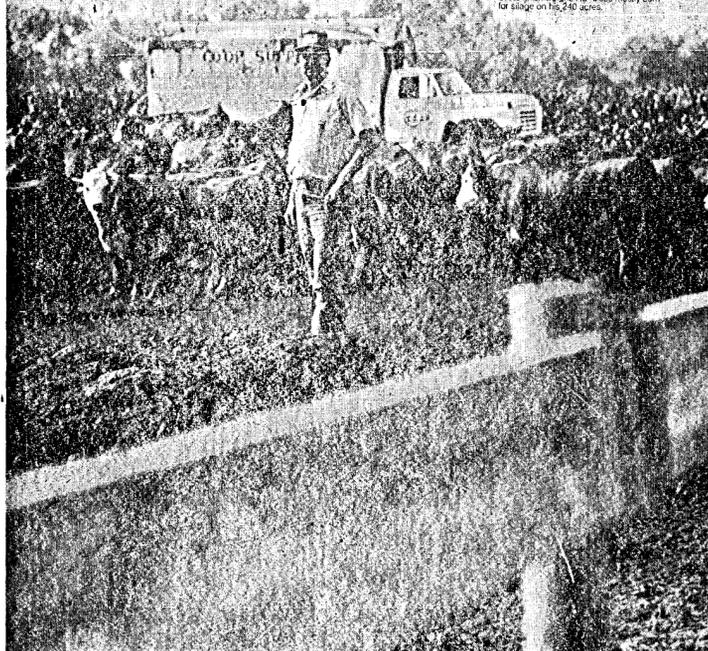

Get in the circles. Stay in the circles.
 © Fairland Industries, Inc. 1979

CO-OP Feeds are the choice of more farmers.
 I attended a dinner meeting put on by a research group and 25 cattle feeders were invited to explain why they fed certain brands of feed. Out of 25, 20 of them fed CO-OP feeds.

A basic ingredient of good feed is good service.
 Most of those 20 farmers said the reason they fed CO-OP was because of the good service, the high quality of the feeds, and the results they got.

I've been married 25 years this fall, so I guess I've been a CO-OP member 25 years, and on the CO-OP Feeding Program at least 20 of those years. Service is excellent. I'm really getting good results. When you need it, they've got it!

Delbert Eberhart buys 400 to 500 head of 400 pound calves a year, and feeds them up to finish with urea. He uses mostly corn for silage on his 240 acres.

Arcadia Students Voting To Elect Homecoming Royalty

Arcadia students cast ballots Friday deciding who their 1979 Homecoming King and Queen will be. This year seven girls and nine boys are competing for the two titles.

Queen candidates must be a member of the school Pep Club, must have lettered in a sport and be a member of A Club. King hopefuls must have lettered in a sport and have an A Club membership.

The '79 Homecoming Royalty will be revealed during half time ceremonies of the Arcadia-Elba football game October 19. A dance at the town Legion Hall will follow.

The 1979-80 Arcadia High homecoming queen candidates.

Candidates for queen are:
— Yolanda Oline. The Arcadia High student enjoys sewing, cooking, and reading as her hobbies. Her school activities include volleyball, membership in the Pep Club, and chorus. She has worked at a local cafe for two years.
— Debbie Smith. Debbie lists her hobbies as swimming, motorcycle riding, riding horseback, and sports. She has been a cheerleader five years and has been on basketball and volleyball teams three years each. Active in softball four years, she made the CVC all conference team in the 11th grade. A member of the A Club for three years, she has been active in the school chorus, Girl Scouts, and other organizations.
— Teresa Holman. Teresa lists her hobbies as sewing, riding horses, swimming, and rodeoing. A junior at Arcadia High, she is active in volleyball, basketball, track, and other school events. A junior leader in 4-H, Teresa has participated in many equestrian events.
— Neta Bulger. A member of the Spanish Club, Neta is a nominee for being listed in a Who's Who publication. Most sports and 4-H work hold her interest. A pom-pom girl at Arcadia High, Neta is the junior class treasurer.
— Terina Trotter. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Trotter, this Arcadia High student is "knee deep" in a wide variety of activities. These include speech contests, 4-H activities, queen contests, and training dogs. She has participated in both volleyball and basketball three years and track one year. The annual staff photographer, she also works on the school newspaper. Her hobbies are basketball, reading, working with horses, and 4-H work.

— Cindy Leininger. This young Arcadia miss has done everything from paint barns to serving as a class officer during her high school years. A cheerleader for four years, she has also played on school basketball and volleyball teams. She has been active in band, speech, and chorus at Arcadia High. Her hobbies include sewing, bike riding, swimming, and cooking.
— Christine Holcomb. The Arcadia High senior is a sports enthusiast. She has lettered in volleyball and basketball and has served as a cheerleader, and lettered in track. A Girls State alternate, Christine has also been

Arcadia School Bond Issue on Ballot Nov. 13

The Arcadia School Board voted Wednesday to hold an election November 13 on a $875,000 bond issue. According to school board president, Dick Dalby, the funds, if approved, would be to construct three new classrooms and a new gym.

Currently third and fourth grades are in a room together as are fifth and sixth grade students. The board would like to house the four grades separately.

The third room would house art classes. Currently art students and a newly established vocational class are sharing the same space. These plans are part of a drive to get accreditation for Arcadia Public Schools. They are now approved by academic authorities, but not accredited. Dalby thought they had been accredited until four or five years ago.

Under state law, students may transfer from an approved school district to an accredited school district sans approval of the first board.

As part of the accreditation drive, the Arcadia school board mailed out 370 survey forms last August. Of the 120 returned, 70 percent indicated they thought a building program was needed.

Dimensions on the planned building location are known now, Dalby told the Quiz. These could be decided on when meeting with architect Jack Wilkins from Kearney in the future.

Control Area Request On Lower Loup Agenda

Establishing a control area in three sandhills counties will be on the Lower Loup Natural Resources District's agenda when the directors meet Thursday, October 25 in the LLNRD office in Ord.

Other items for discussion will be the Beaver-Cedar Study (Bureau of Reclamation), a Rural Water Districts Study proposal, a pumping plant test program, a tree survival inventory, a community forestry report, and other topics.

Lower Loup meetings are open to the public.

Bankers Survey Interest Rates

Ord area borrowers will be paying higher interest rates on loans. Major banks in New York raised their prime interest rate to 14 1/2 percent last week.

Prime rate is the interest rate charged preferred corporate borrowers by banks.

Don Blaha, First National Bank of Ord president, said the prime rate locally would likely be around 11 1/2 to 12 1/4 percent. "We never go as high as they (east coast banks) do or as low as they do," he said.

Greg Stine of the Nebraska State Bank said the interest rate paid by customers is an individual thing. It depends on the customer and his or her financial condition, Stine told the Quiz.

"This probably means we won't be taking loan applications from people not our customers," Stine said of the recent prime rate hike. "Or if we do, they would have to have excellent credit."

Stine said the Federal Reserve Bank has hiked the cost of borrowing money as one way of cooling inflation. He speculated inflation would end when, in his words, "Congress and the President get a handle on government spending and controlling inflation. It also comes back to you and me," he added, "we can encourage our Congressional representatives to be conservative in government spending."

Blaha told the Quiz loan funds would be available, but at a higher price. The less spending there is, according to Stine, the slower inflation will rise. Ergo, the government is trying to limit borrowing by making it more costly.

Ord High Homecoming Royalty To Be Crowned

Weeks of suspense will end October 19 when the 1979-80 Ord High Homecoming king and queen are crowned during half time ceremonies of the Ord-Central Catholic football game. The two were selected by balloting of Ord junior and senior high students last Tuesday.

Their identity will be a closely guarded secret until coronation ceremonies.

Earlier, on October 8, students selected the five king and five queen candidates by balloting Members of the Ord High senior class were eligible for the honor.

A dance at the Veterans Club in Ord will follow the October 19 game.

Mira Valley Church Will Celebrate Its Centennial

The Mira Valley United Methodist Church will celebrate 100 years of history this Sunday. Special services will note the church's centennial.

Church records show six families started what was to become the present church in July 1879. Of those six, three names are known. They are Conrad Boettger, Chris John Busse, and Henry Lee. Women assisting with the Centennial observance noted only men's names were recorded. That was in the days before women's lib, they suspected. As such, men were the head of the house.

The church was started as the Zion Evangelical Church. That first congregation was primarily German, and services were held in that language. Florence and Elmer Hornickel recalled those Teutonic days by speculating his grandparents helped found that original congregation.

"It started in their home," he told the Quiz Monday, "so they had to be there." Alas, no record of that early day Hornickel exists. Elmer suspects they could be one of the unknown three.

Within two years after the church's founding in 1879, the Cook (then Koch) family and Koelling family moved to Mira Valley. Their descendants live there still.

Three area residents were recipients of awards during the Tuesday, October 9 meeting of the local Business and Professional Women's organization in Ord. Phyllis Burger, Rev. Ruth Moorcer, and Myrtle Stalker were recognized for their contributions to the community and professional achievements.

Young Career Woman
Receiving the club's Young Career Woman award was Phyl Burger, special ed teacher with the Ord Public Schools. In presenting the award, Lu Gibb said:
"Phyllis Burger, Supervisor of Special Education Programs for the Ord Public School system, is the recipient of the Young Career Woman Award. Phyl came to Ord in 1978. She had previously

Changes
There have been some changes in the church and congregation during the last century. The original wooden structure of the Evangelical Church was replaced by the present building in 1925. That was two years after the church joined the Evangelical Association and became the Evangelical Church.

In 1946, the Evangelical denomination and the United Brethren Church merged, forming what was known as the Evangelical United Brethren Church.

In 1968, the Mira Valley church joined the Methodist Church to become the United Methodist Church and in 1970 became part of the Loup cooperative parish.

In 1943 the parsonage just across the drive east of the

Runaway Tractor-Irrigation Pipe-Pickup in Unusual Accident Report

A runaway farm tractor irrigation pipe, and a parked pickup were included in one of the more unusual accident reports in this week's police blotter. What makes this accident report even stranger is the fact that no drivers were involved.

October 11 — A McCormick Farm tractor, parked on the S and M Farm Equipment lot, east of Ord, triggered the accident. The tractor, owned by S and M, somehow rolled down an embankment, going north across Highway 11. It struck a pump and some irrigation pipe owned by Al Kittle, pushing the pipe into a parked 1979 Ford pickup, owned by Rollis or Lorraine Malney of Milan, MO.

$150 damage to the pickup; $400 damage to the pump and pipe, and no damage to the tractor that started the chain reaction mishap in the first place.

Other items in this week's police report include:
October 10 — Lavern Hansen of Ord told police three eight foot aluminum ladders were stolen from a construction site at 15 and J, value $90.

October 11 — During the Ord-Albion volleyball game at Ord High, four windows were broken and an unknown amount of radio antennas broken off Albion cars. Valve stems from tires on the Albion school bus were removed.

October 10 — A 1975 Dodge pickup owned by Lumir or Carolyn Hawk was struck by a combine driven by Malcolm Lambert of Red Cloud. The pickup was parked at Bolesens Fertilizer Plant and the combine backing up, $700 damage to the truck, no damage to the combine.

October 11 — A GMC pickup driven by Stader E. Erikson of Comstock and a 1971 Toyota sedan driven by Gene M. Dubas of Elyria collided at 16th and L. Both were headed west on L and Erikson slowing when the accident occurred. The truck was struck in the rear by the Toyota. No damage to the pickup, $150 Toyota.

7th-8th Graders End Play with 2 Wins

Ord seventh and eighth graders rounded up guest Burwell 20-12 Tuesday. Both teams scored six points in the first quarter (Wade Bundy for Ord), but any similarities ended there.

It was the second half that told the story, and what a story it was. The Ord squad was scoring at will. Our kids had a great day," Ord coach Len Bartholomew said. "If it hadn't been for penalties we could have done even better."

The second half scoring spree opened with Jeff Augustyn scoring on a quarterback sneak. Wade Bundy then caught a pass for a touchdown. Martin Rodriguez converted for two points.

Monday, at St. Paul, things were a little bit tougher. Ord won 12-8, but had to work hard for the victory.

On the first possession, Wade Bundy ran it in for a TD. St.

Paul came right back with a TD and a conversion.

Paul came right back with a TD and a conversion. That put them ahead 8-6. With just seconds left in the first half it was Bundy again. This time catching a pass, he ran 30 yards for a touchdown.

Later in the fourth quarter an unorthodox play came getting Ord the needed first down. Bundy lined up for the kick; took the pass and saw the kick would be blocked. He ran around the end, being halted just short of the first down.

Long Minute
This gave St. Paul the ball near Ord's 25 yard line. One minute was on the clock. The Ord coach recalled "It was the longest minute of my life."

Ord's defense dug in and held St. Paul for four downs, but not without some grandstand plays. On the last play of the game an Ord player knocked down a pass just at the end zone with the St. Paul receiver inches behind him.

CAROL'S CORNER by carol leggett

IT'S ALL UP TO YOU... Being nice to people pays off. I really believe it. I believe, too, that a person is in public relations no matter what the job is.

Just think for a minute... Don't you like better doing business with a company that has a good reputation? Consider it on the local level, for instance...

Do you trade with people because you're related to them? Are they good friends? Maybe they're special clients of yours. I guess the reasons could be any of these.

Now... What about you? How do you stack up with your public?

Ord Got Close To Central City But Not Close Enough

By Anne Smith
Ord came close but not close enough to Central City last Friday in Central City. The Chants were nipped 9-6.
Ord got off to a slow start along with the Bison but soon came out of it with 1:45 minutes left in the first quarter. Ord had just pointed to the Bison, they recovered the punt and were Central City then worked the ball all the way down to the 20 yard line, where a broken play and very good defense resulted in a fumble that was picked up by Keith Pelton. He ran 80 yards

Reserve Spikers Split 2 Games

Ord reserve volleyball players split two games recently. Last Tuesday they took on Burwell and won in two of three matches. After dropping the first game 10-15, Ord came back and took the last two 15-2 and 15-3.
In the last two matches the Ord girls pulled together, coach Angie Battenhorst recalled. She did substituting in the last two sets and was, in her words, "happy to see them come on as far as attacking is concerned."
The team's serve efficiency was 88 percent. Battenhorst has said she is shooting for the 90 to 95 percent range in this department but admitted the 88 percent is an improvement.
"It was very heavy with the way our setters are working out", the Ord coach told the Quiz. The set percentage was 85.2. In the coach's estimation that was good but could be better.

Ord-Albion
In the Ord-Albion match, Ord reserves faced what Battenhorst called "one of the tougher teams we've met". Ord played a good game, Battenhorst stated, but lost the three game series 12-15, 15-7 and 15-11.
Albion used the underhanded serve, an unusual game tactic. According to Battenhorst the serve wasn't a real threat. It was the team's attacking that was the decisive factor. "They've got a good program going there", Battenhorst admitted.
Peg Kramer scored ten points and both Kathy Hornickel and Deb. Meese had nine points. In the Ord-Burwell match Meese receivers were there but the passes weren't. Coach Subr also added, "We had problems shutting off their inside game. Also, they ran twice as many plays as we did."

Ord's next football game will be Homecoming Friday against Grand Island Central Catholic. Game time is set for 7:30 with Homecoming festivities at half time. The Chants also invite everyone to attend the Booster Club meetings Wednesday night at 6:45 in the chorus room.

was top scorer with 15 points.
The reserve spikers play their last game of the season at Broken Bow Thursday. Game times are six and seven p.m. The girls are 4-5 for the season.

Two Winners in Football Contest

Peggy Trubey, Ord, and Lyle Vancura, Kearney, picked 22 winners out of 26 state football games.
Peggy picked Nebraska to beat Kansas 42-7. Lyle picked Nebraska 49-0.
Both will receive $5.00 checks from the Quiz.

Boxing Practice Sessions Stated

The Ord-Greeley Boxing Club will hold a meeting and practice session Thursday, October 18 at the Ord Grade School gym. The session is scheduled to start at 6:30 p.m.
Club officials released the following season practice schedule:
Golden Glove boxers (16 years of age and older) will meet every Monday, Tuesday, and Thursday.
Junior Boxers (eight to 15 years of age) will meet every Tuesday and Thursday, 6:30 to 8 p.m.

Ord Freshmen Gut St. Paul

The Ord High freshman football team blasted St. Paul 34-0 Monday at Ord. "The team really played well together", coach Paul Luck's proudly stated. "There was good execution on the line."
Shawn Sich scored four touchdowns and Doug Weinak the other. Monday's game gives Bob Grove seven or nine TD passes, Luck's estimated.
St. Paul had a big problem with Ord's defense and nearly anything else the Chant understudies did. The Ord defense "played super" in Luck's words.

Monday the Ord frosh will play their final game of the season when Loop City comes here. Ord is going into that match with a 1-2-2 record. "If we play as well as we did Monday, it could be tough to beat us", Luck's said. Game time is 5:30 p.m.

Doubt Ended Saturday; Mercury Dipped to 22

After dipping to a low of 22 on Saturday morning and ending any doubts of killing frost, the mercury climbed back into the 70's on Monday for a brief respite before a cold wave predicted to arrive in later this week.
A few sprinkles of moisture on Thursday and Friday failed to amount to more than mere traces of precipitation and dry conditions continued to prevail, aiding early corn picking and corn still crying in the fields.

The extended forecast warned of a return to autumn conditions of cooler and partly cloudy later this week.

SOLID CONCENTRATION — All eyes were on the ball when Nancy Gogan (front) made a dive saving a serve for Ord spikers. Sue Sevensen (right front) and a startled Anne Smith concentrate on Gogan's extra effort.

Varsity Spikers Follow in Understudies Footsteps

Ord varsity spikers followed in the footsteps of their understudies last week, winning over Burwell and then bowing to Albion. Ord won the match at Burwell Tuesday with two of three games, 13-15, 15-9, and 15-6. Leading scorer for Ord was Anne Smith with 15 points. Amy Gibbons was second with 12.

Burwell spiked well, according to Ord coach Jan Weber. Gal Chants played a solid defense in compensation. Ord's 91.2 percent serving statistic didn't hurt either. That is up sharply from the 78 percent posted at the start of the season.

Ord coach Jan Weber admitted being pleased with the latest 91 percent effort. She has been striving all season for a serving percentage in that mathematical area.

Other plus factors Tuesday were nine ace attacks by Kittle and five by Nancy Gogan, Anne Smith chipped in nine ace serves of her own and Cindy Kamrad had four of the same.

"The stats show the girls played a real fine game," Weber said. She is concerned about the team's defense and return efficiency. That last term could be defined as getting the ball over where it can't be attacked.

The girls posted their win at Burwell without starter Kathy Hensen. The flu also kept her out of the Albion match Monday night.

That was a close three-set set that Ord could have — but didn't — win. Gal Chants had Albion down 14-11 in the third set, but the Cards came back and took it 18-15.

Albion took the first set 15-12 and Ord the second 7-15.

Sue Weber of the third set, "it could have been anyone's ball game. I'm extremely pleased with the way our kids played."

Ord missed only one serve.

"We had fine defensive plays," Weber recalled, "by some great Ord girls. Albion has a fine spiking team."

Some of those "fine girls" mentioned include:

— Nancy Gogan with a solid job at the net. Gogan scored several points on dinks.

— Barb Kittle with her six ace attacks.

— Peg Kramer who came off the bench and ended the night with 92.3 percent serve efficiency statistics.

Next — Broken Bow

Thursday, Ord varsity girls go to Broken Bow. Game time is 8 p.m. Broken Bow's record may indicate they aren't a tough team, according to Ord coach Weber. However, she pointed out most of B.B.'s losses have been to solid southwest conference opponents.

She down played any speculation the game will be a walk-away for Ord, saying, "We're taking nothing for granted."

After that game it's on to the Loup City volleyball tournament October 22, 23, and 25. A complete story on that is elsewhere in this issue of the Quiz.

worked as a teacher of severely handicapped children, ages 16-21, in the Grand Island Public School system. In addition to her classroom teaching duties, Phyl served as Work Experience Coordinator in the Grand Island School System from 1975 to 1978.

"Phyl is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Burger from DeWitt. She graduated from Tri-County High School, in DeWitt. She attended Kearney State College where she earned a Bachelor of Arts Degree in Special Education with an Emphasis in Mental Retardation. Phyl also earned her Masters Degree in Educational Administration from Kearney State College.

"Phyl is successful in her profession because she is a hard and diligent worker and relates well with people. She spends many hours above and beyond the call of duty helping students in her program. It has been said that Phyl gives so much of herself because she really believes in what she is doing — 'SHE CARES'.

"Phyl is a member of the national, state, and local Educational Associations. She served as Negotiations Committee Chairman last year. Phyl is also a member of the Association for Retarded Children. She has held the office of secretary in this organization. She served as co-editor of the CEC, a national publication which is published by the Council of Exceptional Children. "It is with great pleasure that I present Phyllis Burger, an outstanding young woman who has been selected as the Ord BPW Young Career Woman for 1979."

Heart of Gold

Myrtle Stalker was given the organization's Heart of Gold award in recognition of her many activities. Mary Sevenker presented Mrs. Stalker with the award and said:

"This year's 'Heart of Gold' award nominee has been a resident of Parkview Village for about five years and spends much of her day helping others. She, being only about 70 years old, is able to give nursing care to other residents as they return from the hospital or surgery. Presently, she is assisting one of her neighbors in after surgery care of the eye. She takes meals to those just recovering or some little household tasks. She knows how to see what needs to be taken care of and goes ahead.

"She is one of the few residents at Parkview who still drives a car and she drives her neighbors to the doctors, dentists, the business places and to the hospital to visit.

"She is 'Chaplain' for the Thursday Friendship Hour, recruiting resource persons for that hour, she is in charge of them, she is a team teacher for the Monday Bible Class at Parkview.

"Besides showing love and concern for her neighbors, she is active in her church. She is active in the Women's Society and team teacher for Sunday School. She does babysitting for a young mother in her church who lives a long distance from her family and who cannot afford the usual babysitting arrangements.

"She is a devoted grandmother to five grandchildren. She has a warm smile that spreads joy. She truly loves her neighbor as herself."

part-time Lay Pastor on the Loup Cooperative Parish, with specific responsibility for Elba and Cotesfield Churches. Also in June, 1976 she worked in the Course of Study School at St. Paul School of Theology, Kansas City, MO, from which she is due to be graduated in July, 1980. In June, 1979 she was appointed Full-Time Lay Pastor on the Loup Parish with additional responsibility for the North Loup Church. She serves as co-pastor on this parish with her husband and one other pastor.

"She has entered a profession that allows her to give herself completely to God. She has studied diligently to increase her knowledge. Upon her graduation from seminary in July, 1980, she will be ready for full ordination into full-time ministry of the United Methodist Church and to her God, a remarkable achievement — especially for a woman.

"She has obtained her higher education while she has been working, seeing her children through college, serving as a wife, and a loving worker in the community of Ord. She has been chairman and served on many committees in an advisory capacity within the church. She is a promoter of church-related activities always willing to serve in any capacity.

"She gives of her talent in music. Her singing expresses her deep love for her Creator.

"Her leadership in the Women's Organization, United Methodist Women, is appreciated by the members of the churches she serves.

"She was a coordinator and teacher in the Bethel Bible Study that prepared Lay Pastors to teach the Bethel Bible Series. The saying, 'A Rolling Stone Gathers

No Moss', describes her well.

"She has also served her community through membership in BPW. She is presently serving as First Vice president of the Ord. Club. Her concern in this area is to always bring high quality programs to the organization — those that will help women, help women. She does this beautifully, but not without much thought and preparation. Her willingness cannot be surprised.

"She is the daughter of a Methodist Minister; the sister of a Methodist Minister; and the wife of a Methodist Minister. She is the mother of two daughters and one son.

"Wherever she appears, be it on the street, in the store, at the sickroom, the executive meeting, the funeral chapel, the prayer meeting, the pulpit, her home, or her family, she is always witnessing for God — as it says in Galatians 5:6, 'For the fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, patience, kindness, goodness, faithfulness'.

Prevent Sunscald on Trees:
 Sunscald is a serious trunk wound which can weaken or kill trees. Dick Gavitt, Extension Forester, notes that wrapping newly planted hardwood trees can mean the difference between a beautiful shade tree or a dead tree.

Last winter was cold and long and many trees suffered sunscald damage. The bark splits when unequal expansion or contraction occurs during rapid thawing and freezing. Thin barked trees such as maple and oak, ash and linden are especially affected. Keeping the tree wrapped during the winter months should prevent this.

Another reason to wrap your trees for winter is to protect them from rodent damage. As the winter progresses, the food supply of rodents decreases. Mice and rabbits damage and kill many trees especially during a tough winter. Wrapping your trees will make them much less attractive to hungry rodents. Fruit trees are especially susceptible. Trees should be wrapped for two to three years after planting.

In the spring and summer months borers become a problem on nearly all shade trees. Severe infestations make decline and death of young trees likely. Wrapping newly planted trees is important since once the borers gain access to the tree there is little that can be done to kill them. Ash, locust and flowering stone fruits are especially susceptible.

Another reason to keep your trees wrapped is the neighborhood cat. Many young trees have been injured or killed by cats sharpening their claws on them.

Commercial tree wrapping is available at lawn and garden centers, but strips of burlap or aluminum foil can be used. Start the wrap one inch below the soil line and extend it to the lower branches. The wrapping should spiral around the trunk and overlap on each turn. Secure the wrapping with staples or masking tape so that it will not girdle tree as trunk grows. Check the wrapping frequently and replace or loosen, if necessary.

Exercise Care With Nitrite-Free Processed Meats:
 A recent decision by the USDA allows nitrite-free meats to be labeled as frankfurters, bologna or bacon. Until now, these products had to contain sodium nitrite to be sold by the traditional names. The new rules also stipulate that labels on nitrite-free products carry the wording "uncured" as part of the product name and the phrase "No Nitrate or Nitrite Added". According to the USDA, these new labeling rules will go into effect September 20.

What does "uncured" mean? According to Dwight Lovday, Extension Meats Specialist, uncured implies that no nitrate or nitrite has been added to the product. Nitrate and nitrite are approved food additives that have several functions. Most important property is the protection against the growth of Clostridium Botulinum, the microorganism that causes botulism. Nitrite also protects against product rancidity and imparts the pink color characteristic to cured meats.

Although uncured products will appear similar in product shape and packaging, consumers should not confuse uncured with cured meat products. Mishandling of uncured processed meats can pose a serious health hazard. Uncured processed meats should be handled as though they were a fresh meat product to prevent spoilage or food poisoning. Uncured meat products must be refrigerated below 20 degrees F (4 degrees C) at all times to prevent the possibility of botulism.

With storage time, uncured meat products will develop un-

Ord FFA Team Bound for National Range Judging Contest Next May

The contest consisted of identifying 24 range plants, identifying three range sites and determining the condition and degree of use on that site. There was also a range map problem and a ten question test.

There were about 200 people competing in individual competition and 50 teams. The top individuals from Ord were Mary Lueck receiving second; James Ritz, seventh; Birdie Thomson, eleventh; and Julie Scheidele, 15th. The Ord team consisting of Mary Lueck, James Ritz, Julie Scheidele and Tom Hruby placed second.

If a team places within the top five the members receive a trip to Oklahoma City. The Ord team, consisting of James Ritz, Julie Scheidele, Birdie Thomson and Mary Lueck will go to Oklahoma City for the National Range Judging in May.

Agri Water Council Meets

The third annual meeting of the Nebraska Agriwater Council was held in the Holiday Inn at Columbus.

Eldon Poth, Ord, president of the association opened the meeting by expressing the importance of the issues involved and introducing Senator Don Dwyak and Senator Loran Schmidt.

The Nebraska Agriwater Council formed for the purpose of promoting sound water management now exceeds 5000 members throughout the state, according to a NAC press release.

Ross Mosier, Spalding, vice president, invited the members to participate in a work shop which involved the discussion of 13 important issues. From these, three priorities were set by the council for the next session of the Nebraska Legislature. The first is to allow land owners adversely affected by federal reclamation projects to have a vote on these projects. State reclamation laws currently require that only those who benefit from a project be included in the reclamation district. The second priority is to urge state senators to prohibit the transfer of water from one basin to another until laws are passed recognizing the relationship of ground and surface water and maintaining minimum stream flows.

After a break for lunch, Dan Beard, Deputy Assistant Secretary, Land and Water Resources, United States Department of Interior spoke on President Carter's Water Policy and how it will affect Nebraska. According to Mr. Beard state governments, not the federal government are responsible for the allocation of water within their boundaries, the NAC reported.

The council told Beard of their objections to the North Loup irrigation project. Beard understands that the Bureau of Reclamation has not found bedrock or stable soils to build the foundation for the dam.

Leslie Robinson, vice president in charge of legislation, gave a brief run down on current issues.

Pave Aiken, water law specialist from the University of Nebraska, spoke on public participation on the state level and urged the members to participarticipate.

A tentative date for the next meeting is January 5 at Ord.

Section Two

Estab. April, 1882. Ord, Nebr., Thurs., Oct. 18, 1979. Vol. 98, No. 34. 2 Sects.

What's happening in the sandhills of Nebraska? In case you haven't noticed, a definite change from grassland to irrigated row crops is taking place. Good or bad? That depends on how you look at it. To the developer, the land is cheaper than hardland; has a plentiful supply of easily accessible water; and is less costly to farm.

To the rancher, it's cows, bulls and calves; it's hot, dry, and windy in the summer; it's cold, windy, and sometimes impossible in the winter; but he loves that sea of grass. That's why he lives there, at the end of a trail that taxes his four wheeler, both summer and winter.

People that live on the land are independent cusses and have believed for years that land ownership means that it's mine; I'll take care of mine and you take care of yours. That's the way it really should be if, however, you really do take care of yours. Does this independence and free enterprise philosophy give one the right to damage other property rights by stopping flowing wells, reducing wet meadows to dry production, dewatering stock wells and rendering them useless, and maybe most important, polluting groundwater?

Maybe opinion is changing; maybe not. This change in outlook has prompted landowners in Boone, Wheeler, and Garfield Counties to say ENOUGH! This

The District will be considering the request at a regular meeting on October 25. In the meantime, staff is talking with people in the Sandhills area about their feelings, pro or con.

A meeting of the Ord Area Young Farmers and Ranchers was held in the Ord High Ag Room Tuesday, Oct. 2 at 7:30 p.m. A short business meeting was held, along with discussion of the upcoming year.

It was moved and seconded that the Young Farmers and Ranchers Organization will donate $30 toward the upcoming Farmer and Rancher Banquet sponsored by Ord and area town businesses. It was also moved and seconded that the organizational meeting of the new year will be held Tuesday, Dec. 4, at the Ord High School Ag Room at 7:30 p.m. It was also voted to plan for the second annual State Sanctioned tractor pull to be held at Ord.

It's not a subject that should be taken lightly. The creation of a control area brings into play a regulatory management program designated to conserve and prolong the supply of Nebraska's underground water. What do you, our readers, think?

Speculation

Arcadia voters will face a $875,000 school bond issue November 13. Funds, if approved, will be used to add three class rooms and a school gym.

While in Arcadia getting that story and another, I heard the old chestnut of possible consolidation being discussed. It isn't anything new. Townspeople and others have been quietly speculating on it or when Arcadia will be forced to consolidate with another school district.

As outlined by pessimists, supposed declining school enrollments would make their Arcadia school district too expensive to maintain. When — more properly if — that point is reached, merger plans will have to be on some future school board's meeting agenda.

Looking at it realistically, speculation that a merger could take place is just that: speculation. Those making book that Arcadia could have to abandon its school system are toying with a concept that would virtually gut the town. When a school closes, the surrounding town loses a huge chunk of its identity. School plays, athletic teams from the town, and no one knows how many other activities die. Worse yet, a focal point of the populace ceases to exist. Without that, a town has no identity. It becomes nothing more than a spot in the road offering a few basic goods and services.

It is this feeling of "we" that has made Arcadia so special. People unite around activities like proms, like Fall Festivals, like so many other things I can't put into words. It is this something special that makes Arcadia such a wonderful place to visit in my job.

Discuss consolidation? No way! What is being contemplated over coffee is about equal to a identity suicide of a great little town.

Yes, I admit that consolidation might take place in the future. Might. But until that time, why not work at maintaining or better yet improving one of Arcadia's main assets; its school.

Speculating on how it might go down the drain isn't doing this.

Right On, Captain!

Robert Keeshan, joyed by millions of youngsters as Captain Kangaroo, laid off on the line recently. In New York to accept a television award, he scooped parents for using television as a babysitter.

The genial performer reminded moms and dads they should monitor their children's viewing habits. Right on, my man! Too often the boob tube is used as an intellectual parolite.

Yet the parents allowing this indiscriminate TV watching are among the first to yell about the low quality of children's television programs. As they see it, it is the fault of those mean old TV networks that their kids are exposed to all kinds of supposedly inferior programs.

Horsefeathers! Just who should be responsible for a family's kids in the first place? CBS? I don't think so. If a show isn't worth watching, turn it off.

In this free enterprise system Americans enjoy, rejecting a product, a program, or whatever is one of the benefits we have. No one forces us to purchase, watch, or consume anything. Should an item offend customers, they stop buying it. Soon, the product is withdrawn from the market.

Applying your decision making role as a parent, of selecting what your children should or should not watch, isn't accomplishing anything. It is merely passing the buck. This holds true in picking television programs, and a lot more too.

Our congratulations to the Captain for reminding us of this point, and for 25 years on television.

looking grandma I know has had the surgical eyelid lift, and it really did make her eyes much more open and attractive.

Although I considered that she had a good figure, (she's a jogger) she went on to contract for a stomach tuck. An expensive proposition, it cost her $3,000 before the doctor would even calendar the operation. The tummy tuck involved taking a giant tuck across her lower abdomen from hip to hip, tucking off a sizable fold of skin and fat.

"And I called the Burn Center and offered them all this skin I was having cut off, and they were simply delighted! They said there was never enough skin for grafting all the burn victims."

Which made her feel good about that.

She is a very Christian woman and is always doing something good for someone. In fact she and her husband were missionaries in Mexico for seven years. Now where can you find a more fascinating life story than that?

Yesterday in the supermarket I went to the cashier's desk, lined up behind a grey-haired man, a pleasant looking man, say 65. But what was unusual about him... was that his cart bore 44 tin cans of tennis balls! We talked about it.

He explained to me, "I play a lot of tennis. Yet it's a lot of tennis balls, but it will last me just about six months."

Let's see, 44 cans times three balls per can...?

They say Florida is old people country. They call California a place for the aging. But I don't know about that.

The parks, the beaches, the sidewalks, are crowded with joggers. There's rarely a block without a jogger, and many of them are not young.

Bicycles, motorcycles, mopeds, dune buggies, even roller skates have hosts of older people venturing out, along with the youngsters in black leather jackets.

There are boating groups, and fishing clubs, and racket ball and hand ball courts have full memberships. Not to mention the many golf clubs with courses crowded every hour of the day.

A lively country for old people, wouldn't you say? As you crane your neck at the very short shorts, the cutoffs, the skimpy bathing suits on the old as well as the young swimmers. Who wouldn't be in shorts when it's 80 or 85 degrees?

With the beautiful sun and sea breezes egging them on.

Something Different

The Lively Elders

There's a lot of fascination for me in all this new discussion of aging and older people, and how the world should treat them. It is all such a big switch from the days when Grandma had a room with the family and sat quietly knitting and doing the family darning.

These days Grandma is likely to go back to school, she may even try for a degree. At the least she'll get a parttime job, "so as to get a little Social Security".

(Foo, Grandma, Social Security is vanishing over the horizon, can't you see it?)

But Grandma will probably get a new haircut, pardon me, styling, plus a permanent, and maybe have her hair officially dyed some unlikely color. This year it is likely to get a henna bath.

Then she'll feel the need for some new clothes, like higher heels and a skirt with a slit at the side, "like the girls are wearing."

Some plastic surgery may be next. One charming and lovely-

Scrutiny of Regional Comprehensive Care Unit By State Solons Is Likely

Statehouse Correspondent
By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association
Lincoln — The Lincoln Regional Comprehensive Care Unit will probably come under the scrutiny of a special legislative committee soon.

That was the comment of Sen. Don Wesley of Lincoln after the state Health Department terminated certification of the unit in which mentally retarded adults are cared for.

The termination has been applied by the State Department of Public Institutions, according to the agency's new director, W. Ralph Michener.

The appeal, he added, will have the effect of postponing the ending of federal funding.

The care unit was strongly criticized last summer, and the Health Department placed center officials on notice they had one month to remedy deficiencies.

Health Department investigators made another review of the unit recently and indicated there were two major areas of concern: "Insufficient documentation of individual treatment programs, and too much reliance on chemical and physical restraints."

Michener said physical restraints being used are of the type that triggered the initial controversy about the care unit.

Last spring a national hospital commission, revoked the unit's accreditation, noting the physical restraints violated OSHA standards and perhaps violated the civil rights of the patients.

Gov. Charles Thone then appointed a special committee which made a number of recommendations. Those also directed that restraints devices not be used unless absolutely necessary.

Because "very substantial improvements" have been made since last spring, Michener said, he was surprised by the Health Department's reference to the restraints devices.

According to Michener, the care unit's environment has been improved, treatment programs have been developed and utilization of the restraints have been significantly reduced.

Wesley said the special legislative committee appointed to study the state's programs for the mentally retarded gave Michener one month to report on actions he has taken to improve conditions at the unit.

At the time of its first meeting, the committee said it would allow Michener some time to initiate his programs.

That time, Wesley added, has elapsed and apparently things haven't gotten better at the care unit.

Nebraska Lags
The Chronicle of Higher Education says Nebraska is one of nine states that have failed to keep up with the inflation rate in funding higher education the last five years.

A Chronicle survey showed Nebraska appropriations for higher education just kept abreast with inflation during the period while the national average of state funds for such education rose 15 percent. Nebraska's average was 10 percent.

During the last two years, Nebraska appropriated $150.9 million, nearly $116 million of which was given to the University of Nebraska.

The survey showed Nebraska's spending on higher education exceeded the national average in two categories. Last year the Legislature appropriated $95 per person for higher education compared with the national average of $87.48. Also, the state appropriation per $1,000 in personal income was nearly $13. The national average was $11.16.

Bailout Not Requested
Ever since residents of the Omaha School District approved a 10 percent increase in property taxes proposition, there have been recurring reports the Legislature would be requested to grant special state aid to help the financially squeezed district.

Paul Goodrich, a president of the Omaha School Board, said such a bailout would be unfair to other school districts. He added that contrary to published comments attributed to Ed Jaksha of Omaha, she never asked for special treatment by the state's lawmakers.

In a recent letter to Sen. Carl Carsten of Avoca, chairman of the Legislature's Revenue Committee, Mrs. Goodrich explained the district's financial story in which Jaksha said some school officials, including Mrs. Goodrich, have discussed seeking special consideration.

Mrs. Goodrich said the Omaha district has already made cuts in the budget required to operate within anticipated revenues for the coming year.

In her letter to Carsten, Mrs. Goodrich said, "We have, however, always known that a school year's adjustment will be crippling. For that reason, I have several times said that we will have to look to the Legislature for help in the form of more state aid and/or adjustment of the tax structure that will enable local boards to provide for local needs."

Court Hits the Road
The Nebraska Supreme Court recently held an actual session outside the Capitol.

The justices conducted the session at the Ahmanson Law Center at Creighton University in Omaha.

Dean Rodney Shkolnick dismissed law classes for the day and encouraged the students to be crapping. For that reason, he said, the session was held in Omaha.

About 400 students were present when Chief Justice Norman Kivvasha called the session to order.

During the day, attorneys presented oral arguments on the appeals of five cases.

The session was well received.

An Open Letter
Congresswoman Virginia Smith
1005 Longworth Building
Washington, D.C. 20515

Dear Congresswoman Smith:

Recent disclosures concerning the FBI's Federal Bureau of Investigation have given a black eye to what was once considered the prime law enforcement agency in the nation. No lad, so it was once thought, could do better than work for the FBI.

Highly educated agents and the organization they worked for had an image of impeccable honesty. When growing up, I heard the joke that the worst sin ever committed by these top-ranked law enforcement officials was taking a drink on their lunch hour.

This image has changed by recent disclosures. They have included recent revelations that:

— A smear campaign was launched against a film actress. Government agents supposedly spread the story that she was to have had a child of a negro.

— This character assassination attempt was bad enough. Adding a racial slur makes it even worse.

The Chicago Sun Times carried a story last week telling how the FBI secretly gave Polish intelligence agents confidential data on eight attorneys specializing in immigration cases, particularly of Polish seeking asylum.

The files supposedly gave Communist agents detailed personal and derogatory information that could have been used to blackmail four of the lawyers.

Our government is supposedly founded on a system of checks and balances to prevent abuses of power. If there were checks and balances of this sort, why didn't they work? Better yet, if these weren't established to prevent an arm of the federal government from conducting these covert operations, why didn't they exist? And what is being done to prevent further abuses of this kind?

John Donne wrote "Any man's death diminishes me, because I am involved in Mankind. And therefore never send to know for whom the bell tolls; it tolls for thee." The same holds true for any man's civil liberties.

I'm sharing this letter with readers of the Quiz editorial page. May I do the same with your reply?

Cordially Yours,

— life extension —

For years I've read ads. Any ads. All ads. I've found I learn as much — or more — from reading advertisements as I do from reading the news columns of newspapers and magazines.

Several magazines I take are noted for their "institutional type" ads. Institutional ads are usually promoting an idea or a business, in deference to "hard sell" and price advertising.

Ideas and opinions are often expressed through institutional ads, encouraging thought and consideration. One such ad caught my attention, this past week.

The ad appeared in The New Yorker magazine and Champion International Corporation was the advertiser. Champion is probably best known for their paper products.

Catching my attention was a full page illustration showing an "elderly couple" in warm-up suits with towels draped around their necks. Only their wrinkled faces and hands and necks are exposed, with flowing white hair. Under the warm-up suits are muscular bodies of someone half their age.

The ad's headline reads, "In the future, incredibly expensive technology could enable a few people to live for 200 years or more. Who will be chosen? And, who will choose?"

The ad lists six possible measures that could enable 100, 200, and 400 year life-spans for Homo Sapiens. They are:

— "Transplantation, which might allow us to continue replacing organs until almost our entire bodies are new."

— "Regeneration, a process by which deactivated genes are switched back on to renew cell tissue."

— "The Prevention of Lipofuscin Build-Up. Lipofuscin is a form of destructive cellular garbage produced by the body, and are thought by many scientists to contribute to aging."

— "Restricting Diet, which in the young, delays maturity and increases longevity; and in the middle-aged seems to rejuvenate the immune system."

— "Lowering Body Temperature, which alone might add many years to human life."

The future of life-extension is very promising. There is little doubt that many of the problems of aging will be solved within the next few generations. That possibility presents endless questions we must ask of ourselves and the generations to come, mustn't we?

Some of the questions you might consider:

— "If life-extension becomes commonplace, what will we do with all those great, great, great-grandparents? Will they hold onto their jobs forever? If they don't, who'll support them?"

— "On the other hand, what if the first technology to prevent aging is incredibly expensive? Will that mean that only the wealthy will be able to turn back the clock, or that the government will select the future 'Methuselahs', based on its own criteria — intelligence, race, talent, or perhaps, even political affiliation?"

— "That is an untenable solution. But what are the alternatives? How can the people have a say in the matter? We all have a lot of things to think about."

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

The feller was setting around Saturday night giving one another the benefits of their doubts and Ivan Homes said he was worried about all the Government agencies that worry about him. Ivan had saw this piece on "The Future of Regulation" and he said the professor that wrote it was a mind that the bureaucrats are killing us with kindness.

He allowed he couldn't go with the professor all the way. He said he left him about where he blamed the ban on DDT and most of the other bug killers for this summer's grasshopper and locust invasions. Ivan was full agreed with the feller, though, that in too many cases the Government cure is worse than the disease. Fer instance, he said, one agency said children's bed clothes had to be fire proof and another agency found out that the best stuff the pajama makers could find to treat the fabric with causes cancer. As fer Government regulation in farming, he said, you mention one program and you can think of four programs dreamed up to get us out of the first program.

Willis Plate didn't take kindly to Ivan's topic of the evening. He was of a mind that when we got OSHA we got as far as we could go in that direction, and everything else had to be improvement. He said he ain't heard much from OSHA lately and he's content to let sleeping dogs lie. But Ernest Maly took some interest in what Ivan was talking about.

A $5 cash prize will be given by the Ord Quiz each week to the person who picks the most winners from the games listed in each ad on this page. Here's all you do: Pick the team you think will win each game (there's one in each ad) and write that team's name in the corresponding blank in the special entry form provided (help on a sheet of paper). For example: The team you pick to win game number 1 (found in the ad in the upper middle of this page) should be written in blank number 1 in the entry form.

Also indicate your predicted score of the tiebreaker game in the space provided. Then write your name and address in the space at the bottom of the entry blank and bring it to the Quiz Office by Friday at 5:00 p.m. (you have 2 days to enter this contest.) Entries may be brought in or mailed in, but will not be accepted after the deadline.

Only one entry per person may be made each week. If more than one person in your family wishes to enter, you may write their guesses on a separate sheet of paper.

Should two or more persons guess the same number of winners, the one predicting the nearest to the actual score of the tiebreaker game will be judged the winner. Otherwise, the score of that game will not be considered. Decision of the judges will be final. The winner will be announced in the Ord Quiz each Thursday. Everyone is eligible except employees of the Ord Quiz and their immediate families.

Better get the family together and start picking...now! Extra entry blanks may be picked up at the Ord Quiz.

Municipal Pool Problems Studied

The City Council pondered municipal pool problems during their session in City Hall Monday night. This summer there have included stopped pipes and leaks.

Opened in 1978, the new L-shaped pool replaced an older one built in 1947. That earlier pool had shown signs of its age in 1976. Cracked deck areas, corroded shower stalls, and other flaws caused the State Health Department to closely examine the structure.

In November 1976 voters approved a $240,000 bond issue for the new pool. The local financial burden was eased when $120,000 in cost sharing funds became available in May 1977.

General contractor of the new pool was Christensen Construction of Peader. Midwest Plumbing of Norfolk was the mechanical contractor for the new pool while Paddock of Bismark, ND supplied the stainless steel pool siding and gutter system. Vern DeBolt, according to Greg Jensen of the City Attorney's office, was the manufacturer's representative.

Various problems forced the pool to close at least twice last summer. The council met Monday with Bill Schlabitz to determine what should be done. Schlabitz represented Clark Enersen and Associates of Lincoln, pool architects.

According to Schlabitz, it looks like there is a possible leak in the main drain line and there could be another possible leak near the filtering system in the bath house, he told the council.

Schlabitz speculated this second leak could be responsible for a shift in one wall of that bath house. There is also some evidence of the pool deck shifting, he stated.

What To Do
Schlabitz told council members within a week to ten days he and a representative from Christensen will test pipes in the pool for possible leaks. This will be done using air or water, he stated.

Ed Board Decision on Architects Is Pending

Ord School Board members remain undecided on the choice of an architect following a special board meeting Thursday night at Ord High. According to Dr. Bill Gogan, Ord Public Schools Superintendent, two architects were considered. A board committee had earlier interviewed the two. Thursday they reported their findings to the entire board.

Ed board members are considering projects including an addition to the Ord High voc ag shop, renovating the girls dressing room, a weight room and wrestling facilities. The dressing room and ag shop have top priority, Gogan told the Quiz, ranked in that order.

No decisions on dimensions or other specifics have yet been reached. The school official maintained.

Lower Loup employees have held a meeting at the kindergarten park, 15th and O, at 1:30 p.m. for judging.

The parade will begin at 2 p.m. Marchers will walk from the park to the steps of the Valley County Courthouse in downtown Ord.

Support For Water Control Area Is Solid, Beran Says

There is solid support for a water control district in Garfield, Loup, and Wheeler Counties, according to Richard Beran, manager of the Lower Loup Natural Resources District office in Ord. In a Quiz interview Monday, Beran said, "My opinion is that support (for a water control district) is there. Most of those people don't want additional governmental controls but they see no alternatives for potential declining water tables in both stock wells and wet meadows and ground water pollution."

at Bartlett, in Wheeler County, a short time later. When Lower Loup officials met with the county board in Burwell, 85 persons attended.

Beran took a straw vote at a meeting in Petersburg October 11. Of the 88 people attending that session, only one was against the possible control area.

Beran indicated the biggest support he has found has been through personal contact. He estimated 90 percent of those persons contacted support the idea of a water control district.

"The Lower Loup employers made a real effort to get out and contact people", Beran said. Maps of Wheeler and Garfield Counties the Lower Loup manager has, have large shaded areas, indicating pro district feelings, according to Beran. The maps were drawn up based on personal contacts in the counties.

"The real test will come if a control area hearing is requested", Beran said. That

Only Registered Voters Can Cast Ballots Nov. 13

If you want to cast a ballot in the November 13 Arcadia school bond election, you must be a registered voter. That is the word from Valley County Clerk, Thelma Dulitz.

She told the Quiz Monday that persons have until November 2 to register. They may do so at her office or at the school superintendent's office at Arcadia High School. Dulitz has designated someone there to take registrations for the convenience of the public, she stated.

Registering isn't complicated and doesn't take long. All that is needed is some basic information.

Only registered voters can decide the fate of a $875,000 school improvement issue on November 13.

Ringlein Fined For False Report

Dennis Ringlein of Ord was fined $35 for filing a false accident report during an appearance in County Court here Friday. According to Greg Jensen, of the County Attorney's office, Ringlein pled no contest to the charge.

The report involved an accident October 13 near 16th and N. According to police reports, a 1977 Ford driven by Ringlein apparently was backing when a parked 1968 Chevrolet pickup owned by James or Gale Studnicka was hit.

Farm Bureau Members Hear Call for More Communication

Farm Bureau members and guests heard a ringing call for better communication during a banquet Thursday night. Rex Messersmith was the guest speaker at the Veterans Club in Ord.

Now Communications Director for the Livestock Feeders Association, Messersmith was Farm Bureau Director of radio station KRNV in Lexington for many years.

He reminded Farm Bureau members and others in the agricultural profession, that they make up only three to four percent of the nation's population. "We need to do a better job telling the other 97 percent of the job we do of feeding the world," he stated.

Messersmith suggested those in agriculture should join an organization fitting their beliefs and principals. "That", he maintained, "is the only way we can be heard."

Farm Bureau representatives speak with such authority, he stated, because they represent so many members. Messersmith told of a recent meeting in Kansas City where a "Ringlein high kebab was served. After the meal it was revealed the 'meat' on the flaming spears was really an artificial substitute. Said Messersmith, "I think it's great they could research a thing like that. DDT. The material?"

Another man-made substitute mentioned was an artificial sweetener made from corn. According to Messersmith, the product is twice as sweet as conventional sweeteners. What he called a prime example of good communication was the creation of the product and the accompanying efforts ending with one soft drink company abandoning sugar for the new item.

The speaker maintained you could sell just about anything if presenting it right. He suggested people purchase the quarter inch drill when really wanting it. "What they really are after", he explained, "is the quarter inch hole."

Another best seller Messersmith mentioned is the Nothing Book. The volume, filled with blank pages, shows how almost anything can be created and successfully sold to the public, the speaker maintained. Agriculture, he told listeners, is another industry or item needing to be sold. "Sights, sounds, and ideas can help shape the public's attitude on an idea, he reminded. Examples he mentioned included the sight of red flashing lights and the sound of a siren. A hailed out cornfield makes most people feel sad, the speaker stated.

Consumerism
One thing shading the way Americans view agriculture is consumerism, according to remarks Messersmith made. The speaker suggested so-called consumerism drives can be unfair in the way they present information. Illustrating his point, Messersmith told how:

— A chemical is the number two child killer in the nation. He suggested that consumer advocates would demand this dangerous substance be banned. The substance? Water. Drowning is the second largest cause of childhood deaths.

— A food material has been found to be more concentrated than DDT. The material? A mother's milk.

— A drug has been revealed as a killer of hundreds of people annually. The drug? Penicillin, according to the speaker. An allergy to the life saving antibiotic can prove lethal, he maintained.

"There are a lot of people who would like to change what we raise and eat", he told the audience. "We need to talk to the other 97 percent of the nation about that."

New Business Is Gift Shop

Area residents who want handmade items for themselves or as gifts this season can find a large variety in the newly opened Lee Mae's Gift Shop located at 128 1/2 South 15th. (The former Odds and Ends Store.) They carry macramé, crocheted items, wood craftings, dolls, ceramics, oil paintings, baby items, and other miscellaneous items plus a selection of Christian books. The owners of the shop, Sharon Ryschon and Pam Ellingson, make most of the items sold in the store, but they do take consignments. Pam and Sharon, who have been making gifts for the friends and relatives for the past eight or nine years, got the idea for the business after the two of them were in Broken Bow in the Country Store there. When they opened their store October 1, plans were for it to be a seasonal business; however, if there is enough demand, it could become a yearly business.

Ladies of St. John's Lutheran Altar Guild are having a Large Group Rummage Sale Fri., Oct. 26th at the 4-H Building. Baked Goods, Craft Items, Rummage 9:00 to 4:00

Sharon and Pam have spent most of the lives in Ord, having married local young men. Sharon and her husband, Bill, lived on a farm near Ord until this last year when Bill bought a welding shop in Ord and they purchased a home. The Ryschons have four children, Mike, age 12; Randy, age 11; Shelly, age 8; and Becky, age 6. Pam's husband, Terry, is the local Rainbo bread salesman. They have two sons, Craig, 11, and Clint, 10.

Tailfeathers Opens in Ord

Guys and gals can now shop in a new business in Ord called Tailfeathers, owned and operated by Jim Ochsner. Tailfeathers features sportswear for the fashion conscious adult. The guy's department carries jeans, casual and dress slacks, shirts, and sweaters plus a formal wear rental service. The gal's section has a variety of separates including jeans, slacks, tops, and sweaters. An alteration service will be provided for clothes bought in the store.

Although Tailfeathers opened its doors the middle of September, merchandise is still arriving. At the present time, the guy's section is about half complete and the gal's section is just in the beginning stages. More merchandise is expected to arrive before the grand opening scheduled for October 27. Tailfeathers is located at 134 North 16th in the building where Ski's Grocery was formerly located. The building has been completely remodeled both inside and out. The interior of the store is done in earthy, rustic decor creating a casual atmosphere complete with mood music. The exterior of the building, remodeled by the owners, Lloyd and Zola Griffith, has a new front complete with show windows. Tailfeathers is open Monday through Saturday from 9:30 a.m. until 5:30 p.m. with the exception of Thursday when they are open until 9 p.m. Part-time employees are Keith Uphal and Sue Hengeler. Jim Ochsner, a Sutton native, is a graduate of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. After teaching in Scribner for a year, Jim moved to Ord eleven years ago to make his home. During that time he was the music instructor for a number of years at both Wheeler Central and Ord High School. Also, he worked part-time for a local clothing store. Jim has always been interested in clothes and fashions, having worked in a clothing store in Lincoln while he attended college. When visiting with the Quiz, Jim said he has always liked Ord and hopes to offer a much needed line of sportswear for young adults.

This year, tickets for littering as well as vandalism will be issued, he told the Quiz.

The bull was destroyed by a deputy at the scene at the request of the owner. The animal was valued at $1,400, according to Sheriff Sonnenfeld.

The Valley County Sheriff's office has received two more reports of missing or strayed cattle in the Western Valley county area. This brings the total of missing cattle in that vicinity to 27. Sonnenfeld told the Quiz. The 27 missing cattle belong to three parties. Said Sonnenfeld, "Cattle rustling is not a thing of the past. It is something that happens in these modern times." A state Brand Investigator and the sheriff are working on the case.

CAROL'S CORNER

STRANGE CREATURES . . . There they are . . . hidden by the dark and spooky streets. Turn around slowly and look. Watch out! It's a witch! She's coming at you on a broom . . . And what's that behind you? It's white . . . it looks like it's floating . . . it looks like a . . . it is . . . a ghost! And, it's holding hands with a skeleton, a talking skeleton. Look over there. There's a black cat, bats, and even pirates. Get off the street! It's no place for you!

Now that you're safe, maybe you would like to take another peek at those strange creatures. Go ahead, be brave.

Well, I see now . . . They're counterfeit goblins and ghosts. The witch just took off her ugly face and the skeleton is giggling. Why not? The last night of October is Halloween and trick-or-treat time! They will be at your door soon, so be prepared with some goodies to offer.

Although you can't tell by watching, the peace offering custom today is a version of semi-religious rites which were held on All Hallows' Eve, a long time ago. It was believed, then, that on October 31 the spirits of the dead visited their earthly homes. They also believed that these evil spirits came to earth, so fires were built and sacrifices were made to try to ward off these spirits.

Today's October 31 spirits, however, are simply of the trick-or-treat variety. Treat 'em well.

B-O-O! . . . Not too many years ago, as a mother helped her small daughter get into her big bad witch costume for the annual Halloween parade the mother commented "you look wonderfully wicked, and here's your mask to complete your costume." "Don't want it," cried the small girl. "But, why?" asked mother. "The mask is perfect for that witch costume." And the youngster explained, "It scares me."

Theatre Caravan To Be in Sargent

A crisp plink on a banjo, a bootlick in the air, and the Nebraska Theatre Caravan magically transports its audience to Rodney, Mississippi in 1792 with its musical-comedy, "The Robber Bridegroom." The Caravan will be performing in Sargent at the Palladium on Nov. 4 at 7 p.m. The performance is sponsored by Loup Valley Arts Council. This performance will be a Dinner Theatre.

The Robber Bridegroom is the story of Jamie Lockhart, a legendary gentleman robber during Mississippi's pioneer days when only a few planters and trappers had penetrated her wooded lands. The tale of these people was rich and spicy, and it is captured by the Caravan with live bluegrass music, authentic American clog dancing, and lots of spirited tall-tale telling.

Each explained the fatal carelessness in working with electric wires that had caused her to become a ghost and gave cautious advice to others if they did not wish to join them in their "Ghost Club".

Door prizes given by Sophia Janus went to Emma Potrzeba and Wm. Valasek. The working committee for October was Emma Potrzeba, Sophia Janus, Mrs. Martha Rasmussen, Mary Starz and Mary Ehmke, assisted by Carl and Hilma Young, Wayne and Fannie Porter and Stephen and Gladys Beran.

Glitter of Stars Start Shaded by Loss to NLS

The glitter of an opening volleyball game by the St. Mary's Stars October 16 was dimmed by a 15-8 and 15-10 loss to Scotia Junior High. According to St. Mary's reporter Gretchen Rischling, the team played well showed good basic skills. Wrote Gretchen, "We are really looking forward to next year, as we will try to get a full schedule of games.

A new team, the St. Mary's girls had the opportunity to pick their own name. They decided on the St. Mary's Stars to go along with the boys basketball team, the St. Mary's Comets.

Members of the squad include: Sixth grade: Christy Arnold, Mary Dubas, Susan Dworak, Anne Lech, Kaylee Michalski, Tara Piskowski, Amy Potrzeba. Seventh grade: Michelle Bonne, Susan Lech, Linda Setlik, Cori Smicra.

Eighth grade: DeAnn Dubas, Betty Markvicka, Mickie Petiska, Marie Wadas, Kathleen Warner.

The Ord Chants were defeated for the last time this season on their home field, Friday against the No. 1-ranked class C Crusaders from Grand Island, 41-6.

The first quarter was definitely controlled by the Crusaders when Steve Nelson took the ball in on a three-yard run to put six on the board. Dirk Stopp put up the PAT. Later in the period Golka passed 19 yards to Berry, and Stopp once again completed the PAT, to give the Crusaders a 14-0 lead at the end of the first quarter.

Central Catholic also dominated the second quarter when Bill Gorman scored on a one yard run, and Shawn Hansen scored on an eight yard run to give the Crusaders a 27-0 lead at the half. John Dworak commented at half time, "They were ahead but we thought we could come back. We really felt we could come back."

In the third quarter G.I. started up again. Nelson added a 16 yard run and Kosmicki took a 10 yard pass from Rupp to give them a 41-0 score.

Ord Scores!!! Late in the fourth quarter Keith Pelton took the ball for six on an eight yard run, to put 6 up for the Chants. After the game Pete Crane said, "G.I. was a really good team and I hope we can put it together for Broken Bow."

That is scheduled for Wednesday, October 24 at 7:30 in Broken Bow.

Ord Cross Country Team Takes Fourth

The Ord cross country team placed fourth out of nine entered in district cross country competition at Albion last week. First place winner Columbus Scotus had 40 points while Albion, ranked second had 41. Wayne and Ord shared third and fourth places with 47 and 49 points, respectively.

This was the last meet for Greg Linke and Neal Carson, both seniors. "They will be missed", Ord coach Fred Williams said. Three returning lettermen will strive to fill the gap created by their absence next year. Linke was seventh in individual competition with a time of 13:54. Kyle Novosad was 11th with 14:14 and Neal Carson 13th with a time of 14:23. Paul Hill was 18th with a time of 14:35 and John Scheidler 31st with a time of 15:14.

According to Williams, all Ord kids ran better at Albion than they had all year. An interesting fact is that Ord's top four scorers finished in front of those from Columbus Scotus. Yet Columbus Scotus won the meet.

Linke and Carson won't be the only seniors departing this year. Jean Dubas and Marcia Mason will be graduating too. Both have lettered in cross country.

Linke's regular complain about this year, Williams said, "Ord has finished in the top half of most meets." Linke got medals in most of these, boosting the team's standings. This year coach Williams hopes to have some younger runners out for cross country, to help the team's future.

Team Results Full team standings, in order of ranking, at Albion were: Columbus Scotus 40, Albion 41, Wayne 47, Ord 49, O'Neill 50, Ainsworth 59, Columbus Lakeview 102, Hartington C.C. 111, Wisner-Pilger 135.

In setting, Amy Gibbons hit 23 of 25 sets for 92 percent and five assists on ace attacks. Anne Smith was 15 of 16 with five assists.

Amy Gibbons led Ord's scoring with nine points. Cindy Kantarad was second with eight. Ord coach Jan Weber played all her girls during the two matches. Broken Bow substituted several players in the second game and started being more competitive. That, and coach Weber speculated, a mental let down by Ord girls made the second match a closer one.

Thursday's game was the last in Ord's regular season play. After that it is on to the tournament at Loup City and to the conference tournament at Aurora October 29, 30 and November 1. Loup City Ord drew a bye in the first round action at Loup City. Tuesday, they were scheduled to play Gibbon. Weber said, "If the girls can play to their full potential, they can defeat this team. But they do have some good spikers."

Others advancing from first round competition were: Burwell defeated Arcadia, Gibbon defeated Centura, Grand Island Northwest defeated Loup City. These wins set up the following matches: Burwell — Ansley, Ord — Gibbon, St. Paul — Litchfield, Grand Island Northwest — Ravenna. If Ord wins over Gibbon, they

Ord Chants Have Western Theme for Homecoming

QUITE AN ENTRANCE — is what the Ord High students had during Friday's pep rally downtown. Fire trucks and police cars were in the caravan from Ord High to the downtown square.

The 1979 Ord High Homecoming celebration had a western theme this year. Students and teachers painted windows, wore clothes, and took part in contests recalling early days on America's western frontier.

Monday students dressed in western apparel as part of Boot 'em Up Day at Ord High. Cowboy boots, western hats, and other items from America's past were seen in school halls.

Tuesday, the theme was Disco Daze. Students wore flashy disco clothes carrying out the idea that the Chants would disco down the Crusaders backfield Friday when Ord played G. I. Central Catholic.

Wednesday, it was toga day. Thursday, students were supposed to bring a teddy bear to school, as part of the "Casey Day Fun." Lori Rainforth didn't have a teddy bear, but brought instead a "pet" bull. A pie eating contest and bonfire rally capped Thursday's events.

Friday, it was Red and White Day with a downtown pep rally, Ord High varsity players and

Ord Frosh Swamp Loup City 41-6

The Ord freshman football team closed their season by swamping guest Loup City 41-6 Monday night. Ord scored 21 points in the first quarter. By the half, Ord was ahead 29-6.

"Everyone played well", Ord coach Paul Lucks recalled. The holes opened up that needed to open up. Loup City scored their lone six points just before the half.

Shawn Sich was Ord's top scorer with three or four touchdowns, according to Ord's coach, Doug Weinak, had two and Todd Pelton and Todd Fisher each had one.

Ord's last TD was on what Lucks called a flea flicker play. That complicated play starts with a hand off to the half back, the half back gives the ball to the split end, the split end gives it to the quarter back and the back ends the razzle dazzle by giving the ball to the tight end.

The last TD ended the frosh Chants season with a -22 record. Lucks said, "They came through when they had to and played 100 percent all the time. It's been a great season working with the guys. The varsity squad will have some talented and dedicated players coming along in the future."

Defendants Given 20 Days to Reply in Jones Lawsuit

During an appearance in District Court here October 17, Judge James R. Kelly gave defendants 20 days to plea or reply to a declaratory judgment filed by Lowell Jones of Ord. Defendants include the Valley County Board of Equalization, the State Equalization Board, County Supervisors and other agencies and individuals.

Jones filed the declaratory judgment late last August on behalf of himself and other persons. Jones seeks to have appraisals and values set by the Midwest Appraisal declared void as far as Valley County is concerned. Defendants are represented by Greg Jensen and Ralph H. Gillan.

Presbyterians Have Busy Week

Monday the ladies of the Presbyterian Church made over 100 quart jars of mince meat. The ladies who helped were Chairman Hazel Gudmundsen, Sylvia Kirby, Bessie Sich, Margaret Armstrong, Phyllis Garnick, Arthelia Ramsey, Alice Blessing, Rose Buckbee, Opal Burrows, Jane Andersen and Carol Worm.

Friday the ladies of the church will hold a rummage sale with Ruth Hansen as chairman. The Mariners, a couples fellowship group, have been busy washing the windows of the church and also washing windows for members of the church that are not able to.

School Conferences Have Been Scheduled

Public grade schools in Comstock and Ord have scheduled parent-teacher conferences in the near future. November 5 and 6 parents and elementary teachers will meet in Ord. Comstock grade school conferences have been scheduled November 6.

Parents will soon receive letters telling scheduled conference times. There will be no classes while conferences are in progress.

Reserve Spikers Get Mixed Results

Ord reserve spikers split two sets at Broken Bow last Tuesday. In the first set, Ord won 19-17 and 15-4. Leading scorers for Ord were Jane Bosworth and Kathy Hornickel, nine points each.

The opening stanza was a thriller, with both teams returning attacks, and aggressive at the net, just waiting for the chance to get the ball. In the second game, "We put it all together", Ord coach, Angie Batenhorst said. Ord came on strong attacking and did a solid job of serving. The team's serve receive appeared much improved too.

In the second set, Ord lost two out of three, 15-17, 15-11, and 4-15. "We had a lot of problems going out there and communicating", Batenhorst recalled. Other difficulties lay in serve receiving and getting behind the ball.

Ord served well, according to Batenhorst. But that does not a good game make. You have to return the ball.

Jeanine Potrzeba was the leading scorer with 16 points. This was the last game in the reserves season. Some players will move on to the varsity squad. "I think the majority of the girls have really improved this season", Batenhorst said.

The closest 1979-80 spiker season with a 5-5 record.

Injury Sidelines 'My Best Player'

Injuries Friday have sidelined what coach John Crose called "my best player", Mike Johnson. Johnson is in the third play of the Elba-Arcadia game at Arcadia.

"There's no doubt about it", Crose told the Quiz, "He is the best player I've coached in five years. I'm not sure who will take his place on defense yet", Crose said.

Johnson played fullback on offense and was a linebacker on defense for the Arcadia High Huskies. Crose revealed Lanny Cusimano will replace Johnson on offense. "I'm not sure who will take his place on defense yet", Crose said.

Crose stated he knew Johnson was injured, but wasn't aware of just how serious his injuries were. The Arcadia player sat on the sidelines watching the game, and then went to get medical attention.

The Huskies have two more games to go in the '79 season. Sandhills High at Dunning will be their rival this Friday. One week later they play host to Weibach, closing out their season.

Arcadia Spikers Split Two Games

The Arcadia spikers had two away games last week. The Huskies brought their record to 4-6 with one win and one loss.

The Arcadia bus carried the Huskies to Greeley October 16. The girls were ready to play despite the long ride.

The reserves didn't have any pep and lost in three sets 15-4, 16-15 and 3-15. This loss broke the reserves four game winning streak and brought their record to 5-3.

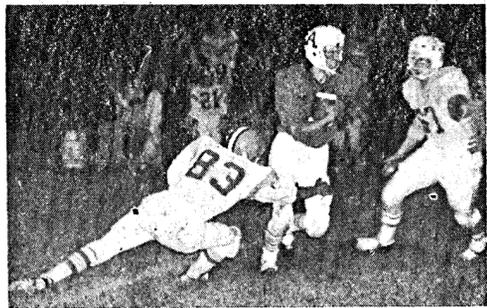

Cheryl Lewandowski was the leading scorer with 10 points. Becki Sell was the second high scorer with 5 points and the leading spiker with 6 points.

The varsity girls, remembering their loss to Greeley in the CVC tournament, were out for revenge. The first set was quickly over and the Huskies had won 15-8.

The second set was just the opposite. The Greeley Bulldogs pulled out a win again the score was 15-8.

The final set was a little more exciting. The Huskies were EXTRA EFFORT — This Arcadia player successfully eluded the two rival players and came away with a five yard gain during third quarter play Friday.

By Lanny Cusimano The Arcadia Huskies Homecoming festivities for 1979 ended on a sour note last Friday evening as the Elba Bluejays blanked the Huskies 38-0.

As usual everything went wrong for Arcadia from the very beginning. Elba broke a play wide open for a touchdown before one minute had expired in the opening period of play. In Arcadia's first offensive series, senior fullback, Mike Johnson suffered a broken ankle. That was only the beginning.

Elba scored 12 points in the first quarter; 14 in the second quarter, and 12 in the final period to give them a final score of 38-0. This win boosts Elba's record to 2 wins and 4 losses as the Huskies tally drops to only one win and five losses.

Dan Scott, a senior defensive player, was also injured in Friday night's contest. Both Dan and Mike will be out for the remainder of the season. The Huskies' next game will be with Sandhills this coming Friday.

FOOTSTEPS — that is what this Elba Bluejay heard when Scott Sell (number 50) approached.

Ninth Grade Spikers End Season With 5-4 Record

The Ord High ninth grade volleyball team wound up their '79 season with a 5-4 record Thursday. Coach Elaine Haas said she "felt this is one of the best freshman teams I've seen" she played on a volleyball team at her alma mater, Kearney State College, and officiated while a student there. During her high school years in Valentine she was active in the sport.

"I feel they have a lot of potential and will be an asset to the squads next year." Her understudies will join varsity and reserve volleyball squads at Ord High.

A three game series capped the ninth grade '79 season. This opened with Broken Bow being downed by guest Ord last Monday, 15-7 and 15-13. The first set was a near walk-away. In the second, Ord started attacking Broken Bow heavily. Coach Haas admitted this was unusual for girls on the ninth grade level. "But it was the end of the season," she explained, "and the girls can use the experience next year." Usually, lower level players concentrate on getting the ball over the net with good serves and team work. Attacking requires more skill and team coordination, according to the coach.

Deb Vancura and Dawn Meila both had good spikes, she stated, and were helped by setters Deb Mason and Colleen Schauer. Jeanine Staab was valuable with her net plays.

"I felt this was one of our better games," Haas said, "because of our attack."

Things were different when Burwell played host to Ord Tuesday. They nipped the Chant understudies 15-10 and 15-13. Some believe that because Burwell is a smaller school, their teams will be less skilled than larger rivals. This isn't always the case, Haas pointed out.

Burwell relied on the standard strong serve-spike game for their win. Coach Haas recalled they served the ball to Ord and waited for mistakes.

"We outplayed Burwell as a team," she said, "but the score shows we came up short. At this point in the season, the attack is more important than the score."

The Burwell upset was followed by an 11-15 and 7-15 loss to guest Albion Thursday. Coach Haas called Albion, "The first team Ord played against that has used some attack back at us." The thing that was holding us back from winning was our serves. They either went into the net or out of bounds.

With solid serves Ord would have come out on top, Haas told the Quiz.

That was the last game in the 1979 ninth grade series.

Football Contest Is Ruled a Tie

For the second week in a row there are two winners in the football contest. Scott Ulrich and Jim Duda, both picked 20 winners out of 26 state football games.

Scott picked Nebraska to beat Oklahoma State, 34 to 10; Jim picked Nebraska 38 to 10. Also picking 20 winners, but not guessing the tie breaker as close as Scott and Jim were: Roland Essman, Scott; Ray Duda, Bonnie Duda; Todd Bredthauer, and Tim Augustyn.

Jim and Scott will both receive $5.00 checks from the Ord Quiz.

Spring Forward Fall Back

October 28, the last Sunday of the month, clocks will be turned back one hour, when the nation returns to Standard Time until the last Sunday in April 1980.

Local Business and Professional Women Honored This Week in Ord

The Ord Business and Professional Women's Club will be observing National Business Women's Week by hosting coffee for all working women. Ladies will be treated to coffee and cookies, plus a variety of door prizes, on Wednesday and Thursday, October 24 and 25, from 9:30 a.m. to 11 a.m. at the First Federal Office.

The local BPW chapter was founded on March 31, 1934 and at the present time has about 33 members. Any woman involved in a business or profession is welcome to join the club. The club meets once a month for an early dinner meeting.

The State Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs for Nebraska came into existence June 30, 1919. Business and Professional Women's clubs came into existence as a result of the war to fill a need for constructive effort on behalf of business and professional women. The initial funds were furnished by the United War Work Council. The following objectives were adopted and are the objects of the Ord Business and Professional Women's Club: to elevate the standards for women in business and in the professions; to promote the interests of business and professional women; to bring about a spirit of cooperation among business and professional women of the United States; to extend opportunities to business and professional women through education along lines of industrial, scientific and vocational activities.

Educational opportunities were further enhanced by the establishment of the Foundation in 1950. Its goals are to maintain or add social, educational, charitable, religious or other activities serving the public good, primarily through grants. Loans are made to persons needing assistance in furthering their education.

Educational assistance is granted locally through a scholarship to a girl from the Ord High School who will attend a school of higher learning, which can be either a college or a technical school. Karen Rysavy, who is attending Norfolk Christian College, received a $125 scholarship this year. Ord BPW recognizes all senior girls with an Honors Convocation night. The Outstanding Senior Girl is presented a savings bond. Marilyn Kusek was the 1979 Outstanding Senior Girl.

Wilma Baeder, Legislation Chairman, cooperates with the American Legion Auxiliary to select and finance Girls State on behalf of the club. Jean Dubas was the 1979 Girls State. Current legislation, both State and National is discussed at regular club meetings.

The local club is under the leadership of Ceola Glenn. Ceola is a teacher at Valley County School District #6. Prior to this position she was kindergarten teacher for the Morrill City Schools for 19 years. She is a graduate of Chadron State College and is a member of Delta

Kappa Gamma, national honorary teachers group. She is also a member of the Ord United Methodist Church, Home Arts Extension Club, Couples Bible Study, and Bridge Marathon. As president she conducts the business of the Ord club and represented the Ord BPW at the District Conference in Grand Island, the Fall Board in Chadron, and the State Convention in Lincoln.

Pam Meese, a student at the University of Nebraska, Lincoln, was home this weekend for homecoming and to visit with her family. Mr. and Mrs. Bill Meese, Deb, Paul, and Brian.

Halloween Safety Rules Are Listed

Halloween is traditionally a time of happiness and fun for youngsters. A tragic accident could mar what is otherwise a joyful occasion. To prevent this from happening, parents should:

- Have youngsters carry a flashlight when out at night. The light makes the young ghosts more readily seen by motorists.
- Make sure masks worn have large enough eye holes for good vision.
- Let youngsters wear light colored clothing for easier visibility.
- Have parents walk with younger trick or treaters to ensure safety along the trick or treat route.
- Motorists should drive with caution on Halloween and be on the lookout for the youngsters.

Municipal Pool

(Continued from page 1) Schlabit told the Quiz the pipes had been tested before the pool's opening in 1978. He further told council members he would tell Christensen to look into the bath house settling or shift, find out why it is happening, and to repair the defects. Further shifts in the pool deck area will also be corrected, he maintained.

The most important thing right now, according to Schlabit, is to find the leak in the pool and fix it. That leak could have been caused by a plug or seal installed while winterizing the pool last year. Just who installed the plug and how it got into the pool's pipes remained unclear during Monday's council session.

4-H Three Generation Family Affair With The Cruikshanks

4-H is a three generation family affair with the Cruikshanks. For that many generations and heaven only knows how many total years they've been involved in the organization.

Max Cruikshank, Sr. credited former Quiz publisher H. D. Leggett with starting him on the 4-H route. Old H. D. had an essay contest with the winner to receive a bred sow. Max's winning entry triggered a family interest that is still going strong.

The senior 4-H enthusiast used that first pig as a starting point, raising a good many more showing them and later other animals at county fairs. Back then, a man could get some substantial prize money with his animals. "Why a fellow could win maybe $150 a week," senior said. When you could buy a sow for $35-$40 that was a lot of money.

The prestige of having a top-rated animal wasn't bad either. Max senior had the grand champion sow and boar five years in a row in national competition, he recalled. That was quite a big step from that first essay.

With this interest in animals and 4-H work too, it was only natural Max Cruikshank, Jr. became a club member. "Dad was the leader of the RKD Livestock Club when I started", junior told the Quiz. That was in 1950 when he was eight years old.

Swine and sheep were among his first 4-H animal projects, junior recalled. He later was on a successful livestock judging team that went on to competition in Fanner Park at Grand Island.

"I learned about how to care for livestock and the financial end of things", junior said of his 4-H experience. That evidently paid off. He now farms around 400 acres northeast of Arcadia.

Just like father, and grandfather too, Mike Cruikshank, age 13 and Dustin, age 9, are solid 4-H enthusiasts. Mike has had hogs (after three generations it gets to be a habit) as his project the last three years. His first year he was Junior Champion Showman at the Valley County Fair.

Not bad for a 9 year old. Jan Cruikshank Goodsell, junior's sister, also has followed the long family tradition. Starting at age nine, she "took about every project available to girls at that time," she told the Quiz recently.

Remarks made suggested girls usually stuck to cooking and sewing back then while boys enrolled in what were then considered more masculine pursuits. There were no official sanctions enforcing this, according to Mrs. Goodsell, it was just one of those things.

Those things along with 4-H have changed. "Boys nowadays have the Bachelor Bob project available to them", she said, where they make their own clothing.

Other club projects are now also more varied. They include everything from gardening to those dwelling on outdoorspace themes. If none of the many projects available aren't to a youngster's liking he can opt for a unit titled, "Do Your Own Thing", where the 4-H member designs his own project.

Nor is 4-H limited to persons coming from rural environs. Urban youngsters are included with units on bicycles, gardening, and pet care among other subjects.

Like other Cruikshank descendants, the Goodsell family members are solidly sold on 4-H. Jan is a long time club leader. Her children, DeeLinn, age 10 and Brian, age 12, have a flock of ribbons to prove their involvement.

There's just no getting around it: 4-H is a long term family affair.

Card of Thanks

I wish to thank Dr. Markley, the nurses, and the staff of the Valley County Hospital for the care during my stay. Also a thank you for the cards and floral gifts from family and friends.

Regional Energy Director Has Gone A Long Ways To The Top

(The following is an article from the October 9 Omaha World Herald about Mary O'Halloran. Her parents ran the O'Halloran Dairy here for a number of years.)

It's a long way from the Iowa Capitol to the 24th floor office that gives Mary O'Halloran an expansive view of Kansas City.

It's been a greater jump from being an ex-nun to directing the operations of the Department of Energy's four-state Midwest area.

"It's a great experience, learning about the federal government from the inside," Ms. O'Halloran said.

"With the importance that energy is playing not only right now but in the years to come, there's nothing that could be more rewarding to me personally."

The road to becoming the DOE's only woman regional administrator has been an unusual one for Ms. O'Halloran.

The 36-year-old Norfolk native is a graduate of Ord High School and attended Creighton University. She is a former teacher, and spent nearly three terms in the Iowa House representing Black Hawk County. While there, she was chairman of the Iowa House Energy Committee.

As a political appointee with no background in day-to-day government administration, and as a woman, she encountered immediate obstacles, she said.

Shortly after taking over the energy post, Ms. O'Halloran was confronted by a man in her office.

"I've only met two intelligent women in my life," he said. "I hope you're the third."

He no longer works for DOE. Other facets of her background sparked more office rumblings.

"It was the nun thing that really got to them," she said. "They just couldn't figure out how this nun and school teacher could suddenly start taking on all these technical issues."

Ms. O'Halloran is not the type to take such comments lightly. She developed a reputation as a tough political fighter while serving in the Iowa Legislature and recently finished reorganizing the Kansas City office, leaving it with a structure she hopes will give it more visibility than it had been, especially under former Energy Secretary James Schlesinger.

Her perception of her role and that of her office made her the center of controversy after one year on the job.

She was accused of devoting too much time to travel, especially to Iowa. Critics suggested she was using the DOE post as a political stepping stone and was making a disproportionate number of appearances in Iowa to keep alive the possibility of a bid for Congress or state office.

Sen. John Danforth, R-Mo., demanded an investigation of Ms. O'Halloran's travel and her involvement in hiring a team of auditors.

Although political office looms as one of her options — she regards her DOE post as "a sabbatical" from Iowa — Ms. O'Halloran estimates she has spent less than 25 percent of her time traveling.

The affair ended when Schlesinger told Danforth that travel was intrinsic to Ms. O'Halloran's regional responsibilities and that she had not been involved in hiring the auditors.

It gave Ms. O'Halloran a quick notoriety gained by few of Kansas City's 35,000 federal employees.

Ms. O'Halloran is quite insistent about the need to increase DOE's liaison with the public. The staff she has assembled is said to be geared more toward that goal than that of her predecessors. Although she defends the administration's policies, she criticizes Schlesinger.

Schlesinger, whose intellect often was taken for arrogance, was accused of making policy in a vacuum. New Energy Secretary Charles Duncan, Ms. O'Halloran said, appears more attuned to public participation in what has become an increasingly vital policy-making area.

"This is a critical time period," she said. "Come the '80's, if our ability to conserve and produce more doesn't improve, we may not have the choices we have now."

FOOTBALL CONTEST

Win $100 — get all games and the Tiebreaker correct
$5 Awarded to Winner Each Week

Read the easy Rules below:

A $5 cash prize will be given by the Ord Quiz each week to the person who picks the most winners from the games listed in each ad on this page. Here's all you do: Pick the team you think will win each game (there's one in each ad) and write that team's name in the corresponding blank in the special entry form provided here or a sheet of paper. For example: The team you pick to win game number 1 (found in the ad in the upper middle of this page) should be written in blank number 1 in the entry form.

Also indicate your predicted score of the tiebreaker game in the space provided. Then write your name and address in the space at the bottom of the entry blank and bring it to the Quiz office by Friday at 5:00 p.m. (You have 2 days to enter this contest.) Entries may be brought in or mailed in, but will not be accepted after the deadline.

Only one entry per person may be made each week. If more than one person in your family wishes to enter, you may write their guesses on a separate sheet of paper.

Should two or more persons guess the same number of winners, the one predicting the nearest to the actual score of the tiebreaker game will be judged the winner. Otherwise, the score of that game will not be considered. Decision of the judges will be final. The winner will be announced in the Ord Quiz each Thursday. Everyone is eligible except employees of the Ord Quiz and their immediate families.

Better get the family together and start picking... now! Extra entry blanks may be picked up at the Ord Quiz.

Tips on Temporary Grain Storage Facilities
 Jerry Bodman and Tom Thompson, Extension Ag Engineers, say that various means and facilities can be used to store grain for short periods of time.

Keep in mind that the primary purposes of a grain storage are to keep down or minimize losses from moisture and weather, birds, rodents and insects; and microorganisms and enzymes. Temporary storages are not recommended to replace permanent grain storage facilities, but are meant to serve as short term protection (usually several months) to reduce losses until the grain can be sold, fed, or put into permanent type storage facilities.

Convert Existing Buildings
 Several types of existing structures could be converted to temporary grain storage.

Some of the old general purpose horse barns with haymows could be used. The wall studs, floor joists and girders must be matched to the grain that is to be stored. In some cases the structure may need to be "beefed up" with some extra posts and girders or extra floor joists and some wall ties. Because of loads exerted on floors and walls special care is needed to avoid overloading. Also, do not overlook the need to efficiently remove the grain from storage.

Some of the pole cattle sheds could be converted to temporary grain storage. The ground or concrete floor should be covered with a 6 mil polyethylene plastic sheet to prevent moisture from migrating up into the pile of grain. A plastic cover or tarp over the top will also protect the grain from bird droppings.

Temporary storages are not recommended to replace permanent grain storage facilities, but are meant to serve as short term protection (usually several

However, care must be exercised to avoid getting the cover too tight so that moisture collects under it. Accumulations of moisture (condensation) provide primary locations for spoilage to start.

Machine sheds can be used in a similar manner. For the large sheds, self-supporting portable bulkheads could be used to make bins of part of the building and still store machinery in part of it. The portable bulkheads are also useful where the building walls are not strong enough to resist the grain pressures.

Silos Will Work
 Many older silos, especially the 14-foot and 16-foot diameters are not being used. If the walls are in good shape and have sufficient reinforcement, they may be possibilities for temporary grain storage. A roof and drainage are essential. Walls can be weatherproofed by plastering inside with portland cement plaster and by painting the outside with two coats of cement-base paint.

Electromagnetic Pest Control Devices:

Electromagnetic devices which claim to control rodents and insects do not constitute a better mousetrap, according to Robert M. Timm, vertebrate pest specialist in the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources.

The Environmental Protection Agency has stopped the sale of several of these pest control devices because tests have failed to show they work, Timm said.

According to the manufacturer, the repellents emit low-level "electromagnetic waves" which cause pest animals to become disoriented, behave abnormally, die, or leave the area.

However, tests by several federal agencies and universities, including the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, have shown that various electromagnetic devices had no effect on rodents or insects, said Timm.

While certain animals are known to be sensitive to magnetism, it is unlikely that the energy fields generated by these devices are strong enough to cause the types of effects claimed by the manufacturers. Tests of several devices showed no detectable electromagnetic fields while other devices produced fields similar in strength to fields generated by a hand drill or a kitchen blender", he explained.

The EPA has stated that the principle of low-level electromagnetic emission upon which these devices claim to operate is ineffective in controlling pests, Timm added.

And although the electronic repellents may be marked with the letters "EPA" and a series of letters and numbers, Timm said this merely indicates that the maker of the device has told EPA he is in business. It does not represent any EPA endorsement of the product or evidence of its effectiveness.

Timm said persons with pest problems should rely on control techniques that have proven to be effective and economical in use. For house mice and Norway rats, the means rodent-proof construction, good sanitation traps and the proper use of rodenticides.

Fertilizer Helps Shade Trees, Too

We fertilize our lawns, our gardens and our crops, but we often forget our trees.

Trees in the forest receive nutrients from decomposing leaves and twigs. But trees on lawns often are denied nutrients because a use most homeowners remove anything that falls on the grass. Joe Range, extension forester in the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources, said trees that benefit most are those that grow where soil is compacted, or where root growth is restricted by sidewalks, driveways or building foundations.

Fertilizer can be helpful in developing good leaf color or in helping trees recover from insect, disease or other injury, Range said. Indicators of a need for fertilizer are leaves of smaller than normal size, off-color foliage, ends of branches containing dead twigs and a general lack of vigor.

Fertilizers generally are applied in early spring as soon as the frost is out of the ground or in the fall after the growing season is over, usually after the first of September, he said. Because root growth continues until December, fertilizer will be available to the tree when growth starts in the spring.

A complete fertilizer containing nitrogen, phosphorus, and potassium such as 10-6-4, 16-8-4 or 20-10-1 is recommended. For trees under six inches trunk diameter apply one-fourth pound of nitrogen per inch of trunk diameter. For trees larger than six inches trunk diameter, apply one-half pound of nitrogen per inch of trunk diameter.

Fertilizer can be broadcast under the branch canopy or placed in holes in the ground two inches in diameter, a foot deep and two feet apart under the spread of branches. Apply water with a sprinkler for several hours for effective distribution of the fertilizer.

For evergreen trees, use half as much fertilizer as for deciduous trees, Range said.

Clark-McNary Program Kicks Off November 1

November 1 is the kickoff date for the annual Clark-McNary Tree Distribution Program in Nebraska, and persons interested in purchasing trees for windbreaks, woodlots, Christmas trees, or wildlife habitats should be thinking about preparing for spring planting.

William Lovett, a tree improvement forester in the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources, stresses that now is the time to start planning and buying trees for the 1980 season. "It is important to decide where to plant, what species to plant, and to prepare the ground for planting," Lovett said.

The landowner can prepare his land for spring tree planting one of two ways, according to Lovett.

"Depending on personal choice, we recommend fall plowing the area, which is best for heavy soils with a sod cover," he said, "and spraying a herbicide in bands on light soils."

He suggested Dowpon or Roundup as two possible herbicides to use.

Next spring, the important thing is to disc down the plowed areas. No extra preparation is needed for the sprayed strips.

Lovett said he expects the tree distribution program to offer more trees than ever before — in excess of 3.6 million.

The Clarke-McNary Tree Distribution Program was started in 1926 and is designed to offer trees at cost to persons interested in and eligible to produce trees in each category of the program. Persons interested in purchasing trees through the program should contact their county extension agent Natural Resource District office as soon as possible, Lovett said.

"I'm sure we'll run out of some species early even with the large inventory," he said.

The trees cost $17.95 per hundred, delivered. This price includes tax, postage and handling.

Loop Lines By Richard Beran

Lower Loop Natural Resources District

Will the interbasin transfer of surface water be the subject of debate in future sessions of the Nebraska Legislature?

J. David Aiken, Water Law Specialist, UNL, thinks so, as explained in an article appearing in Cornhusker Economics. On June 25, 1979, the Nebraska Director of Water Resources, John Neuberger, denied applications of the Little Blue Natural Resources District to divert water from the Platte River to irrigate land in the Blue River basin. The Director determined that unappropriated water was available to supply the irrigation project. Because of the 1936 Nebraska Supreme Court decision in Osterman vs. Central Nebraska Public Power and Irrigation District, however, the Director did not have the authority to grant the appropriations. The Director's denial set the stage for a supreme court appeal which will address one of the most controversial water policy questions in Nebraska.

Legislation regarding interbasin surface water transfers is unclear. Nebraska statutes section 46-206 enacted in 1895, states that interbasin transfers would be permitted only on streams wider than one hundred feet and that up to three-fourths of the flow could be appropriated for use in another river basin. Section 46-265 enacted in 1895, requires that unseeded irrigation water be returned to the stream of origin or to the Missouri River. This statute the apparent intent of which is to prevent the waste of water from irrigation canals, was interpreted by the Nebraska Supreme Court in Osterman to prevent interbasin surface water transfers. The court found sections 46-206 and 46-265 to be mutually contradictory, and held that section 46-265 was controlling because it was the later enactment. The court held that since it would be, in the court's opinion, impractical to transport unused water back to the river of origin, interbasin water transfers were prohibited by section 46-265. The court's reasoning in Osterman has been criticized by legal commentators. In two subsequent decisions the supreme court determined that the Osterman opinion was not applicable and approved the granting of permits for interbasin water transfers, leading some commentators to argue that Osterman is no longer good law. In the 1960 decision of Ainsworth Irrigation District vs. Beloit, the court held that the Snake and Niobrara Rivers were part of the same river system and that no interbasin transfer was involved. In the 1966 decision of Metropolitan Utilities District vs. Merrill Beach Company, the court held that a permit granted under the City, Village, and Municipal Ground Water Permit Act (Neb. Rev. Stat. 46-638 to 46-650) for an interbasin ground water transfer from the Platte basin to the Papio basin was valid. Osterman was again distinguished as being inapplicable to the question of interbasin ground water transfers.

The supreme court appeal of the Director's denial of the Little Blue applications will force the court to face the question of whether the Osterman decision should be overruled. The court's decision is likely to spark a legislative debate over interbasin transfers reminiscent of earlier legislative battles where Osterman decision was defeated. Any legislative battle is likely to pit environmentalists and those who live in river basins from which water would be taken against irrigation developers and ground water users. Potential interbasin transfers are the only real source of supplemental water available to areas where ground water supplies are being mined.

Future debate and court action will effect every Nebraskan. We think you should be informed.

Good Copy

The apparent media event of the month was the death of three year old Chad Green. Members of both press and television gave full coverage to the youngster's flight to Mexico where Laetrile treatment was available, and to his death and burial in the United States.

When the son of Gerald and Diana Green was buried in Hastings late last week, media members were there in full force, covering the Green's agony and later at a press conference hearing why the Greens had decided to ignore a court order mandating chemotherapy treatment for small Chad.

Yes, I suppose their decision was an event of national significance. And yes, we can see why the youngster's fight against cancer was a natural event attracting reader interest. After all, few things are more appealing than a small child. Add drama to that, and you have the makings of a real human interest story.

Along with the emotional side of the story, is the fact that a married couple told the court system to stuff it, left their country, and sacrificed all, or at least a goodly portion, of their savings to do what they thought was right for their child. That took intestinal fortitude — guts if you will.

So did putting up with the near play by play coverage of their son's plight. Yes, even after death, little Chad was a real news event. Good copy, as it is known in the trade.

Now that Chad is dead and buried, and the "event" over, the press should realize that here is a mother and a father who sacrificed virtually everything they had and risked contempt of court to do what they believed was right for their son, Chad. As such they are entitled to pick up the pieces of their lives, share their grief with each other, and to be left the hell alone.

Something Different

It's Fun to Cook

Thinking back over what my boys used to call "the olden days" (one day I mentioned in front of them that "Dad and I didn't have a car the first 12 years after we were married" and the little one answered "I know Mom, they didn't have cars in the olden days" to which I retorted "That wasn't it: they had cars, but we were just too poor to have one") — I come to some of the wonderful eating and cooking I have known. Lucky me!

I can begin with my mother's small, thin, delicate white pancakes . . . no eggs, but plenty of sour cream will do it!

Or her "graham genis" . . . plus oatmeal, what a breakfast. With plenty of cream and sugar of course. Or that lemon jelly she made. Or that oyster bisque, yum, yum.

Or her good white bread which began with mashed potatoes . . . and cleverly was warm and heavenly about the time school was out . . .

I have been awfully lucky to know so many good cooks: there was my favorite aunt, Nevada Lee Norton, "Aunt Vada", and what couldn't she make? Her hot cross buns sprinkled with sugar on top of the egg white that topped them. The white Wyandotte chickens she grew and killed and fried . . . what cream gravy they made! She also made perfect gravy after frying bacon.

The fact that she grew her own gooseberries helped make her gooseberry jam inimitable, no doubt of it. Just as her strawberries made that wonderful shortcake. She tried to grow everything, sweet potatoes, even peanuts!

And my mother-in-law, with her Pennsylvania Dutch background, what a superb cook she was. Nothing was ever too much trouble. How well I remember her working all day Saturday dressing a turkey for Sunday, picking out those pinfeathers . . . Or sitting in one of the deep window sills upstairs where the present QUIZ office is, grating horseradish . . . with the tears streaming down her cheeks. But oh how good that fresh horseradish was!

Out in Ogallala there was Marge Buechler . . . umm, those barbecued lamb shanks!

Over in Holdrege I've enjoyed many bowls of fine bean soup with the Ralph Misko's . . . was it New Year's eve, I think, their tradition? Editor Misko's father cooks some splendid food. So does Ellen Misko, I remember her lingonberry pancakes, stacked so high, then cut in pie-shaped servings!

Or the John Misko's, other good cooks . . . Maelee always served everything with sprigs of parsley . . . "eat it, it's good for you".

The mother of the two Misko brothers was a splendid cook of German and Bohemian dishes, and both sons loved her rich cooking and copied her.

Well I could go on and on, how many extra good, good cooks I have been fortunate enough to know. And not out of boxes! Lucky me!

Vox Pop

Dear Vox Pop,

The Ord Booster Club has been trying to form an organization that will benefit the community through school activities — not just athletics — and bring teachers, administration and kids and community together.

It's an uphill battle but we were very pleased with the efforts of Ray and Mary Marshall, Eldon Mulligan, contest judges, cheerleaders and all involved in making the Homecoming Pep Rally into a success.

Dear Editor:

I read your editorial, "Speculation", then read it again and again in amazement. Is this the same editor — one of the few — that supported the "Jed Bill" last election? Now he recommends that the tax payers of the Arcadia school district be saddled with more taxes to pay for a building program that many believe we do not need nor can we afford.

Opponents of California's proposition 13 swore dire things would happen if the voters approved it and did use fear tactics to defeat it to no avail. California, by all accounts, has prospered under proposition 13. Last election you saw opponents of Nebraska's lid bill use fear tactics at their worst to defeat that proposal. Those that opposed Omaha and Nebraska City schools zero increase spending used fear tactics to no avail. I am sure that they are still having school in those cities. Sure they had to cut some fat here and there but what is wrong with that? Now you and proponents of this ambitious building program are using those same doom-sayings to scare the voters into giving their approval to this $875,000 bond. Actually, with interest, it will be well over a million and a half dollars ($1,500,000) before the bond is retired.

Arcadia may . . . "go down the drain" but it will not be contingent upon passage of this bond and the proposed "improvements" to Arcadia school building. Building improvements and improving the school system are NOT the same thing. There are too many factors involved in the decline of small towns to say absence of a vigorous building program will destroy them. We do have a nice gym. It may not be the Cadillac gym of the state but then we do not have a Cadillac town or economy in our school dist.

Part of the argument for this building program is the influx of people from the Byrwell and Comstock projects. That is pure fantasy. Byrwell, Ord, Broken Bow, Sargent, Comstock are much more likely to get those people. A new gym will not be a factor. District #21 population has been declining for a number of years. Farms are consolidated

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

It was one of them catch can sessions Saturday night. The fellers started out on taxes. They worked their way through women and women. It got started when Ed Novak said he had saw where taxes was called a "compulsory payment for which you receive no direct benefits." Ed said that tied in with one of these typical taxpayer reports in the paper the other day.

The typical American taxpayer, Ed reported, earns $18,000 to support himself, his wife and two children. He has to send $4,814 of that to Washington, and all his state and local taxes will bring that bite to a full $6,000. The Tax Foundation that got up the figgers said spending by all levels of Government has gone up seven times in 20 year, from $52.3 billion to $362.3 billion. And if this typical taxpayer isn't drawing veteran benefits, welfare, unemployment pay, Medicaid or Social Security he ain't getting hardly any of that $6,000 back, Ed allowed.

The fellers took Ed's report calm. Jim Hrebec said another foundation is just as likely to work up a report where that typical taxpayer gets more back than he puts in. Figgering the cost of keeping up the hospital where them two children were born, running the schools that take care of them nine months to the year, add up the public recreation that the family takes fer granted, like the town, the state and national parks, the fire protection, the roads, the police, the garbage collection and pritty soon the typical taxpayer will find himself ahead of the game, Jim declared. The trouble with folks, he said, is they want to St. 7, 4th 5, 3rd 13, 2nd 8, 1st 12, and Kindergarten 10. We NEED more class room and TWO gyms? ? ? How in the world did we make do several years ago when there were more children in school?

It is best that they get the voting over with BEFORE people see the new 1979 tax bill. That is going to be something. This $875,000 is not the end. We will have to have more money to operate all this extra building. More teachers, more teachers aids, more equipment and think about the extra energy to heat or cool this extra room and the increased insurance.

Sure enough, if we do not get all those new buildings, Arcadia is going to drop off the deep end. If we do, watch our tax bill climb. It is not just the school but other tax items coming up. Arcadia has to have a new water supply (well and building); we just bought a $10,000 machine; our water lines are badly in need of replacing; then there is that expensive horse barn at the county fair grounds, and we are having to help bail Ord out of collecting agencies. THAT is our money. For far too long we have meekly accepted money that has been taken from us, sent to Lincoln or D.C. and a portion returned with strings attached. As time goes by, more and more strings are attached until at last we are stangled by the red tape.

I have lived long enough to know that a town loses its school because it becomes a spot in the road, not the other way around. Arcadia is down to offering a few basic goods and services, if you will be realistic.

Sincerely,
Walter Bumgarner

KERRY ON

— long skirts and sodas —
Possibly in his late 20's or early 30's, the young man, patiently perched on the stool at the counter, had a young girl on either side of him. He wore jeans, a light windbreaker and was tanned and windburned. I guessed he worked at either construction or ranching. He was stout enough for either.

They wore long dresses — a bit unusual for a Saturday afternoon in this small Western Nebraska community. I guessed them as sisters. One was possibly seven or eight and the other a year or so younger.

Like myself, the girls were enjoying the specialty of the house.

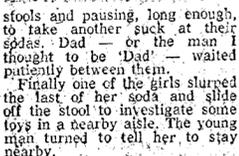

Earlier in the afternoon, in the unseasonable heat, I thought ice cream sounded good. All of the newer places serve soft ice cream and I was hungry for the good old-fashioned hard ice cream. So I'd forsaken the fast food places along the Interstate and made my way into the downtown district.

Finding a parking place right on main street, I was reminded of Saturday afternoons in most small towns of rural Nebraska. Friendly people meandered down the sidewalks and paused in front of windows. People nodded to each other and grinned as they met on the streets.

I spotted a large variety store with a sign hanging over the sidewalk, proclaiming "Fountain."

Sliding into a booth, I realized I'd found just the type of place I was hoping to find. Soda glasses lined the back of the fountain and giant colorful posters showed sodas and sundae and banana splits — the good old-fashioned kind!

Ordering a soda, I next turned my attention to the two little girls. They were spinning on their stools and pausing, long enough, to take another suck at their sodas. Dad — or the man I thought to be Dad — waited patiently between them.

Finally one of the girls slurped the last of her soda and slide off the stool to investigate some toys in a nearby aisle. The young man turned to tell her to stay nearby.

"But he has the girls for the afternoon," I thought to myself. Though I shouldn't jump to conclusions and judge people, this was — in my mind — a typical divorced father, exercising his visitation privileges on Saturday afternoon. I hated myself for making that judgment, but it was so very apparent.

I turned my attention to the pair still on the stools — the patient father and the dawdling young lady in her long dress. She was in no hurry. He was having a time with himself, trying not to rush her.

Suddenly I could see beyond the pretty face of the little girl. Her eyes reflected the helplessness of her face. Yet she wore a concerned expression. There was something on her mind — something greater than an ice cream soda and a Saturday afternoon looking through stores and the chance to dress up in a long dress.

She turned on her stool and carefully placed her small hand on the muscular, leaved leg. Looking up into his partially turned face, she spoke ever so softly. "Are you having a good time, Daddy?"

My suspicions were confirmed. And I looked down into my soda so no one would see my own tears.

Rules For Implementation Of Litter Law Approved

By Melvin Paul
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

Lincoln — Rules for implementation of the litter tax law have been approved by state Tax Commissioner Fred Herrington.

The rules for putting into effect the controversial statute were drafted by the state Revenue Department and have been endorsed by Gov. Charles Thone, the attorney general and the secretary of state.

Even though the law is now in effect, it apparently will be the subject of continued debate in the 1980 Legislature.

The law, which has been described by Lincoln Sen. Steve Fowler as "a complete fiasco," imposes a tax on businesses whose activities could cause litter.

The tax will be $150 on each $1 million of gross proceeds of businesses manufacturing, selling or selling at wholesale products that fall into specified categories. These include food for humans or pets, consumption, tobacco products; soft drinks and carbonated water; liquor products; paper products, excluding newspapers, magazines and literary works; containers made of glass, metal, plastic or fiber, and cleaning agents or toiletries.

Herrington said drugs and medicines will not be included under provisions of the law, nor will farmers, ranchers or fishermen. Also, exceptions will be made for products in grain elevators, if the products are not milled, and retailers who prepare drinks or food for their own consumption.

The possibility of including farmers and ranchers triggered considerable debate this summer and prompted the Revenue Department to ask the attorney general for an opinion.

At that point, Thone stepped in and said the law was never intended to apply to farmers and ranchers. The governor also ordered that the request for the state Justice Department opinion be dropped.

Herrington blamed much of the confusion about the law to the legislature's under-financing a Revenue Department plan for administering the law. The department wanted sufficient funding to prepare lists of businesses covered but received only about half the money requested.

Fowler, a strong supporter of the "bottle bill" that was defeated in last November's election, has said the litter tax has cost the state a considerable sum and it is doubtful it will generate more revenue than its administrative costs.

Herrington said the tax may not produce enough money for financing the program. The original estimate was that 40,000 to 60,000 businesses would have to pay the litter tax. As of a week ago, only about 1,200 businesses had been licensed under the law, formally known as the Nebraska Litter Reduction and Recycling Act.

According to Fowler, the litter tax statute has led to "widespread and flagrant disregard" for tax laws without providing a solution for the litter problem.

The doctor who performed the abortion, Dr. C. J. La Benz, 31, has said he made a mistake in estimating the woman was 19 to 20 weeks pregnant. The fetus was in the latter part of the second trimester, 22 to 27 weeks. It lived 2 1/2 hours, and La Benz has said he did not think the situation warranted the use of "heroic measures" to save the life.

The doctor has been charged with committing an unlawful abortion and with failing to care for a child aborted alive.

If found guilty of the felony charges, the doctor could be sentenced to a maximum of 10 years in the penitentiary and fined up to $10,000.

One section of the Nebraska abortion law says "No abortion shall be performed after the time at which, in the sound medical judgment of the attending physician, the unborn child clearly appears to have reached viability, except when necessary to preserve the woman from an imminent peril that substantially endangers her life or health."

Douglas County Attorney Donald Knowles said the abortion was performed after the child, a boy, reached the stage of viability and there was no imminent peril to the life or health of the mother.

Knowles, in filing the charges, also cited another section of the law which states "all reasonable steps, in accord with the sound medical judgment of the attending physician, shall be employed in the treatment of a child aborted alive with any chance of survival."

La Benz has said he decided against use of extraordinary measures to save the child because he believed they would be futile. He said three other physicians agreed with his assessment of the situation.

La Benz's attorney, Lawrence Batt, said when all the facts become known, his client's innocence will be apparent.

Will Challenge Sen. Marsh
Lav Crosby, wife of former Gov. Robert Crosby, has announced plans to challenge Sen. Shirley Marsh for Lincoln's 29th legislative seat.

Mrs. Crosby, long active in the Republican Party, married Crosby, a Lincoln attorney and lobbyist, in 1971.

Crosby was elected governor in 1982, the same year Mrs. Marsh's husband, Frank, was elected secretary of state.

Mrs. Crosby, 55, said she is "not running" against Shirley Marsh, who is expected to seek re-election for a third term.

Mrs. Crosby said she has thought about running for the Legislature for several years and almost became a candidate in 1976 but her activity with the Lincoln Symphony Orchestra prevented her from getting involved.

The former governor's wife has not been active in working for the Equal Rights Amendment for which Mrs. Marsh has been one of the Legislature's most vocal supporters.

According to Mrs. Crosby, the objectives of the constitutional amendment can be achieved with continued changes in the laws and attitudes that handicap women.

She said she will conduct a people-oriented campaign and will seek the opinions of the residents of her legislative district.

Her husband won't direct her campaign, Mrs. Crosby said. "But with Bob's background, I'd be foolish not to ask for his advice."

dance but they don't want to pay the fiddler, and that idea is what keeps our politicians busy promoting what they know they can't come up with unless they keep inventing new ways like a value added tax to get what Ed called that compulsory payment.

Before the fellers got into one of their Republican-Democrat debates on how to turn the world, Gust Foth reported where we got to cut out our worrying so we can cut out fishing to get away from our worries. Gust had this clipping where researchers in Sweden say they have found out it hurts a worm to have a fish hook run through him. When the worm is squirming on the hook he's in agony, the study showed, because his body produces the same stuff ours do that lets us know when we're hurting. Doctors had said animals without backbones didn't feel pain. Add to that thought how the fish must feel with a hook run through the roof of his mouth, and it could take all the pleasure out of relaxing, Gust said.

As for the wimmen, Henry Bruha had saw where one woman lawyer had got rich over the past 25 years handling nothing but divorces, and where a woman justice of the peace had married 2,000 couples in the past two year at $15 a clip. This, said Henry, is a case of gitting locks on the market. He said he saw this wimmen takeover coming 40 year ago at a picnic. This one lady won the rotting pin throwing contest and then beat her husband in the 100 yard dash.

READ MATTHEW 6:25-34

"Don't worry at all then about tomorrow. Tomorrow can take care of itself! One day's trouble is enough for one day." (Matthew 6:34 Phillips)

There is something about me that makes me prone to worry. I seem constantly to be concerned about something. I automatically worry. I know the Lord was speaking to me through her song, and I am thankful that He chose to use my little girl to bring home a lesson He taught to His disciples so many years ago.

PRAYER: Lord, help us to remember that we are Your children, and You will provide for us always. Help us not to worry. Amen.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY

Let's not be so worried about tomorrow that it takes up most of today.
